CHAMTER OF DEPUTIES—Apait 18. The order of the discussion on the articles of the third resolved to vote the 25 millions demanded by American relative to the interest of the money, about which not discussed; and are generally arknowledged by the disinterested. But it may be necessary to assure our rollical friends, that unless they make assurance doubly rure in prompt and energetic action, by concentrating their electioneering exertions in favor of those candidates, the vote of the people may be annufiled by a reference to the house of representatives—as was formerly done in the instance of Jackson and Adams, when we remember the ingenious tergiversation then resorted to, to defeat the election of the choice of the people. Knowing this, shall we not be more decided and systematic in our ensuing presidential campaign; being forewarned, should we not be forearmed? A long pull, a strong pull, and a pull altogether is now the best means of security. Our enemy is in the field, and operating by every devices from the feditives of the notion on a topic of the field states and securities of the little states and securities of the little states and securities of the little states and according to with the semi-choice of the restriction of the people. Knowing this, shall we not be more decided and systematic in our ensuing presidential campaign; being forewarned, should we not be forearmed? A long pull, a strong pull, and a pull altogether is now the best means of security. Our enemy is in the field, and operating by every devic authorized to take the pressure free execution of the let article of the treaty and the pressure of the second group of the let article of the treaty and the pressure of the second group of the let article of the treaty and the pressure of the second group of the let article of the treaty and the pressure of the second group of the let article of the treaty and the pressure of th

Two of these bills, for a herey sum, had already been offered for discount in the Commercial and City Binks, but fortunately were not discounted. One bill presented to Win. Wilman, an exchange broker, created some swepticion, and on examining the same it was discovered that the name of Those C. Magoffin, Cashier, had been erased and abother one inserts of in its stead. A check for $1000, drawn on the U.S. Branch Bank, was paid by the tollor, it being altered in the same manner.

It may be true though triet to easy that there is no city resources, where public education is so, neglected as in New Orleans. Literature in general is at the lowest ebb; and science and the fine arts have not yet dured to make their appearance among us. Not one literary society has yet been organized; there are no literary meetings, no literary parties. There is not a single lyceum or public library of repute for higher classes of intellect : and a correct idea may be formed of the intellectual presensions of our legislators, when it is known that there are only about 20 volumes in the librarof the state legislature; and that these are chiefly copies of the legislative codes, enactments and proceedings. Yet even these volumes are not known to more than a dozen mem bers; were not consulted by more than half a dozen during the past session; and when a motion was first made to appoint a joint library committee, most of our legislators looked astonished or amused at the proposal.

It is indeed auspiciously true that during the past six months exertions have been made to acquire a better order of things. A Historical Society of Louisens is under the suspices of Judges Porter and Bullard : a Medica College of Louisiana is now partly in operation, with a school one; and a Medical Society of New Orleans has been chartered which promises much good. But there are inciplen stages; and of very limited extent. We want a more extend ed scale of operations in such a state as Louisiana; and such of Jefferson and Jackson, whose objects approximate those of universities; and the Franklin college may be expected shortly to commence operations—being thus a cellege for each congressional district. But these colleges are not yet generously nor efficiently potronized by the state. Yet if they were, their advantages would be vary limited. New Orleans would still require a university; and superior aca-pute were unknown in the city; and the youth of both segs.

not rent to schools out of the state or country—had their aducation greatly if not wholly neglected. Commercial transactions are indeed the prime objects of all our citizens, not of the learned professions; and these have hitherto been so disunited among themselves, as to be rather averse to any retrieval. so disputed among themselves, as to be rather averse to any combined plan of meliorations; for there is not one law library, not one medical library among us; and we all know the faction not only for the American Provident's massage, but the faction not only for the American Provident's massage, but also for the correspondence which had provided that message also for the correspondence which had provided that message also for the correspondence which had provided that message. ked by the professors of law, physic and divinity. The Hathen said that in the course of the ensuring segracuum of professional leisure is therefore whiled away in and his colleagues would demand from Ministers if the dignity dle gossipping or public carousing at balls, hotels or thea-

But next year we hope to be enabled to report many ameliorations desired and designed as well as demanded.

The lat article of the bil was then ordered with the amendment of Gen. Value. The Opposition Deputies, both of the right and left, voted against the article; those of the left center (the tiers part) in favor of it. The articles are then adonted without discussion.
