

CAPT. BRINE'S
MAP OF VALENTIA
AND THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH.

L/t

PLAN OF THE

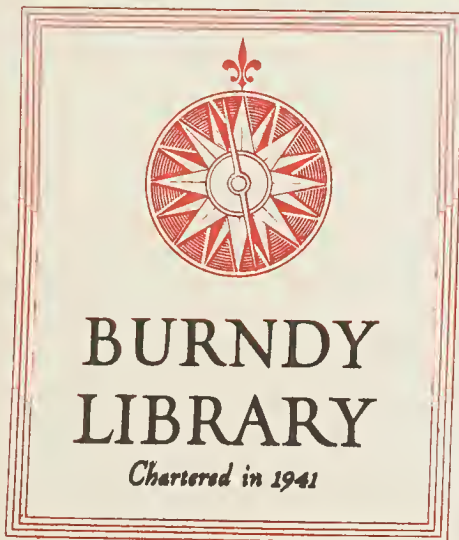

BATTLE OF TCHERNAYA OR TRAKTIR

Fought by the Russians against the French and Sardinians 16th Aug., 1855.

SKETCHED BY CAPTAIN WOLSELEY, 90th LIGHT INFANTRY,
AND
LIEUTENANT BRINE, ROYAL ENGINEERS.

Price, in one sheet, 1s.; in case, coloured, 2s. 6d.

London:—Edward Stanford, 6, Charing Cross, S.W.

GIFT OF
BERN DIBNER

EIGHT IN SHEET

OF SEBASTOPOL,

INDING COUNTRY,

Positions of the Allied Armies and the British Military and Naval Burial and Telegraph, and Dates of Leading the War with Russia.

BY

LIEUTENANT BRINE, R.E., F.R.G.S.

	s.	d.
Furnished	10	6
Printed in Case	7	6
without Case	5	0
EIGHT IN SHEET	3	6

London:—Ackermann & Co., 106, Strand, S.W.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

“This is decidedly the best Map of Sebastopol we have seen, and completely illustrates the story of the War.”—Naval and Military Gazette.

“Captain Frederic Brine, of the Royal Engineers, has published a most excellent Map of Sebastopol. The famous plateau is not only correctly mapped—the celebrated spots accurately marked—the positions of the French and English armies correctly given, but there are useful tables in the corner of the sheet which contain the important dates of the various events, and the distances from one place to another. In fact this Map contains every possible information connected with the occupation of the Crimea by the Allies, drawn from the most authentic sources. Any one desirous of studying the history of the late war ought at once to provide himself with this Map.”—Daily News.

MEMORIALS OF THE BRAVE.

(SECOND EDITION.)

BY

CAPT. HON. J. COLBORNE, 60th Royal Rifles, late 77th Regiment.

AND

CAPT. FREDERIC BRINE, Royal Engineers.

Size, quarto royal, cloth gilt, £1 1s.; in morocco, £1 11s. 6d.

Containing Fourteen Views of the various Burial Grounds, in the Crimea and at Scutari, accompanied by the entire Inscriptions on the Monuments, both Public and Regimental, together with those on the Tombs of our departed Heroes, whether Officers, Soldiers, or Sailors; thus forming a valuable memento of reference to the Companion in Arms, or to the Relative and Friend.

THE APPENDIX

Gives the date of embarkation for the East, and arrival of the various Corps, also strength of each on embarkation, and on the 1st April, 1856, shewing during that period the casualties amongst Officers and Men (whether caused by disease, wounds, or being killed in action), strength of reinforcements, and number invalided home. It likewise furnishes the names, cause, and date of death of all Officers connected with the Russian War, including those of the Naval Brigade, Baltic, Black Sea, and Pacific Fleets, also Military Chaplains, &c., &c., who died previous to the evacuation of the Crimea, with the date of their landing, if ever in the same.

London:—Ackermann & Co., 106, Strand, S.W.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

“An excellent Work, of which the accuracy is as great as the interest attached to the subject.”—p. 488, British Expedition to the Crimea, by W. H. Russell, the “Times” Correspondent.

“Such a record as this should be placed in every Regimental Library as an incentive to brave and noble deeds, and as a proof that the memory of the Fallen Heroes will ever be cherished by their successors in arms.”—Daily News.

“An elegant volume of the most striking interest, admirably executed.”—United Service Gazette.

“It is a graceful act, and of no slight historical value, to treasure up their memorials in one work, so that posterity may view at a glance the names of those whose fame it cherishes and whose acts it would teach its children to imitate.”—Court Circular.

“The plates in tinted lithography are most truthfully executed, and give an excellent idea of the scenery about the last resting places of the brave.”—Naval and Military Gazette.

“It is an invaluable work to every one who has lost a relative or friend in the Crimea; and such ought not to be without it—the history is so telling and so true. The illustrations that embellish these memorials, and the whole character of the undertaking reflect the highest credit and praise on the gallant authors.”—Military Spectator.

“Sorely stricken as England has been in its home affections there are few families who will not look upon such a record as this with absorbing interest.”—Art Journal.

5787
V55
1857
B 5
DSI

MEMORIALS OF THE BRAVE.

(SECOND EDITION.)

BY
CAPT. HON. J. COLBORNE, 80th Royal Rifles, late 77th Regiment.
AND
CAPT. FREDERIC BRINE, Royal Engineers.

Size, quarto royal, cloth gilt, £1 1s.; in morocco, £1 11s. 6d.

Containing Fourteen Views of the various Burial Grounds, in the Crimea and at Scutari, accompanied by the entire Inscriptions on the Monuments, both Public and Regimental, together with those on the Tombs of our departed Heroes, whether Officers, Soldiers, or Sailors; thus forming a valuable memento of reference to the Companion in Arms, or to the Relative and Friend.

THE APPENDIX

Gives the date of embarkation for the East, and arrival of the various Corps, also strength of each on embarkation, and on the 1st April, 1856, showing during that period the casualties amongst Officers and Men (whether caused by disease, wounds, or being killed in action), strength of reinforcements, and number invalided home. It likewise furnishes the names, cause, and date of death of all Officers connected with the Russian War, including those of the Naval Brigade, Baltic, Black Sea, and Pacific Fleets, also Military Chaplains, &c., &c., who died previous to the evacuation of the Crimea, with the date of their landing, if ever in the same.

London:—Ackermann & Co., 106, Strand, S.W.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"An excellent Work, of which the accuracy is as great as the interest attached to the subject.—488, British Expedition to the Crimea, by W. H. Russell, the "Times" Correspondent.

"Such a record as this should be placed in every Regimental Library as an incentive to brave and noble deeds, and as a proof that the memory of the Fallen Heroes will ever be cherished by their successors in arms.—Daily News.

"An elegant volume of the most striking interest, admirably executed.—United Service Gazette.

"It is a graceful act, and of no slight historical value, to treasure up their memorials in one work, so that posterity may view at a glance the names of those whose fame it cherishes and whose acts it would teach its children to imitate.—Court Circular.

"The plates in tinted lithography are most truthfully executed, and give an excellent idea of the scenery about the last resting places of the brave.—Naval and Military Gazette.

"It is an invaluable work to every one who has lost a relative or friend in the Crimea; and such ought not to be without it—the history is so telling and so true. The illustrations that embellish these memorials, and the whole character of the undertaking reflect the highest credit and praise on the gallant authors.—Military Spectator.

"Sorely stricken as England has been in its home affections there are few families who will not look upon such a record as this with absorbing interest.—Art Journal.

