44-H

GOODFELLOW FIELD
San Angelo, Texas

FOR two months we of Class 44-H have been taking off and landing on the runways of Goodfellow Field. During all that time we have supposedly been following what the army fondly calls traffic patterns. These traffic patterns have been diagrammed for us, explained to us, and demonstrated to us, yet for some reason or other we have never been able to make the damned things work.

Always when we try to fly traffic by the book we find ourselves getting cut in upon, dropped down upon, or climbed up into by at least one other airplane, usually with some (several words censored) instructor at the controls. So we throw the diagram out into the slipstream, bring the plane in one way or another, and land. That way it works.

But traffic patterns still fascinate us, so in a state of complete bewilderment we are hereby dedicating this volume to the Goodfellow traffic pattern. May we some day fly one according to the book and get the ship in first time around.

*Col. Harold A. Gunn
Commanding Officer*

TO THE MEMBERS OF CLASS 44-H

Gentlemen:

You have completed a very important phase of training at a time when big things are happening in the war. The invasion brings us closer to our goal and magnifies the importance of the task which faces you.

This command has justifiable pride in your achievements here and firm confidence in your ability to complete the training which will equip you for combat assignments or instructor's jobs. The final success can be achieved by self discipline, aggressiveness, determined action and alertness.

Your former instructors join me in this wish for good luck in the future, with the hope that you remember the lessons you learned at Goodfellow Field.
