SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Seeds for Present Sowing.

There are a number of plants that in order to obtain the best stock it is necessary that the seeds be sown during January. Centaurea gymnocarpa is slow in making its growth and to have nice plants for edging the beds of geraniums and other plants an early start is required. Vinca rosea should be sown in January to obtain a good blooming stock at planting time. *Lobelia*s should be sown by February 1 that fine stock plants may be had. If it is proposed to reset the smilax beds next year this is the time to get the seed started. Begonia Vernon and the other summer blooming varieties, if sown early, make fine plants by May, full of flowers. Gloxinias and tuberous begonias can be sown at this time and blooming plants had for the coming summer. Many growers have given up the propagation of verbenas from cuttings and depend upon seedlings and to have a nicely branched plant by June 1 the seed should be sown the last of January. Another useful border plant is Pyrethrum aureum (golden feverfew) and this should be sown early to get good sized plants at bedding out time. There are not many cannas these days, grown from seed, but anyone intending to grow them in that manner should sow the seeds in January. These seeds will germinate much more readily and evenly if soaked in water for 24 hours before planting. Asparagus plumosus and A. Sprengeri should be sown now when there is good heat in the greenhouses, and these seeds, like the cannas, start much more evenly if soaked.

Spiraeas.

The spiraeas are always a very useful plant at Easter, but they are classed among the cheaper plants at that time, so should be grown in such a way that they do not occupy valuable space any more than necessary. They should be brought into a cool house by the middle of January and until the foliage begins to grow can be placed along the edge of the walks if room is not available, but they must not be left standing in this location too long, for when the leaves begin to unfold they quickly draw toward the light and a plant growing to one side of the pot will be the result. So as soon as growth starts they should be placed on the bench in full light. They can be grown quite close together for some time, but when the foliage begins to touch that of the plant beside it they should be spaced out and given room enough for the plants to grow shapely. Spiraeas require a large quantity of water during their entire culture, especially those that are potted in as small a pot as possible, which is the general custom with all growers. To make the large specimens, two or three clumps are planted in the same pot when started. These will make large plants for church decorations at Easter. If the plants are grown in a house which is to be fumigated by tobacco smoke they should either be removed from the house or well covered with papers; the foliage quickly burns when subjected to tobacco smoke and the plants are blemished.

Cyclamens.

"What can we do with the old cyclamen plants?" is a question often asked by many growers. As a rule the answer is, "Throw them away," for a plant can be grown to a 6-inch or 7-inch pot size in 16 months. That is, seed sown in September will produce such a plant for Christmas the following year, and it is uncertain how the old plants will carry through the spring and summer. There is a limited demand for cyclamen plants in larger sizes than 7-inch pots and they must of necessity bring a good figure to make them remunerative. After they are through blooming the best way to handle them is to shake the old soil out and pot them up in fresh soil, two parts loam, one part well rotted manure and one part leaf mold, with a good sprinkling of sharp sand. If the soil is inclined to be heavy and sticky add more sand. They can frequently be potted in a pot a size smaller than that in which they have been growing.

Place them in a cool temperature, that is, in a house from 45° to 50° at night, so as to encourage root action and slow growth. It used to be the custom to dry the bulbs off so that they lost all their foliage, and start them in the spring, but growers have found that our springs and summers are too hot and dry and it is often difficult to make the bulb, after it has been dried off, break a good luxuriant foliage, and it is far better to keep the plant growing all the time. As the warm, sunny days of spring come on, the plants should be slightly shaded and as early as possible placed in cold frames and the glass shaded. The shade should not be made too heavy or the leaves will become drawn and an unshapely plant will be the result. After the plants have begun to grow care should be taken that they do not become pot bound, but shifted into large sizes as soon as necessary. The watering of this stock will require constant study and attention. They should never become too dry and it is very easy to over-water, so they will require looking after very closely until a good growth has been encouraged.

Begonia Gloire De Lorraine.

For the large plants for next winter's flowering we are placing the cuttings in the propagating bench now. The plants were selected before Christmas and strong, healthy specimens taken for propagation. The flowers were removed and the plants given a warm location that the best vigor might be maintained. Any leaf showing blemish is discarded, only clean, healthy leaves being used from which to raise the young stock. A warm propagating bed is chosen for these plants and the stems are inserted in the sand deep enough so that about half an inch of the leaf is below the surface. They are kept moist and warm until they are rooted, when they are potted in 2½-inch pots and placed in a warm house and shifted along as required. This may seem a trifle early by many growers to start the propagating of these plants, but there is always demand for some large specimens and fine leaves are obtainable at this time and they root easily during January and February when the propagating bench is warm. The plants will require considerable care and attention during the heated spell of July and August, but with plenty of ventilation and a light shade, they are easily kept moving and make fine plants for the holidays.

Leaky Boiler Tubes.

A quart of wet bran or horse droppings mixed with salammoniac put into a boiler with cracked tubes through any of its openings will nearly always stop a minor leak that seems very serious. The water in seeping out carries the small particles with it into the crevice, gradually stopping the opening. When fire is started the iron expands and the trouble is over for the time being. Frequently the break rusts up and no further trouble is experienced.

Ehmann Flower Shop Wedding Decoration

Acknowledged by the 800 guests present to have been the finest arrangement of flowers they had ever seen, the Ehmann Flower Shop of 2112 Broadway, New York, and Passaic, N. J., are being complimented on the execution of probably the largest and most beautiful decoration ever seen in White Plains, N. Y., the occasion being the wedding of the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Searles Babbitt. The Ehmann Flower Shop is conducted by A. Ehmann, his wife, two sons and a daughter, every member of the family well known as an artist. Cattleyas, Sunburst roses and yellow and lavender butterflies, which were first manufactured and introduced by Mr. Ehmann, were seen at every point of vantage from the first floor to the roof of the mansion, mantles were embellished with cattleyas, roses, lily of the valley and Farleyense, and the display of smilax, polypodium sprays and butterflies in every room was splendidly arranged under the personal supervision of Wm. Ehmann, who was in charge of the entire decoration. The bouquets reflected great credit on the artistic ability of L. Ehmann, whose work they were. The bride carried an elaborate shower arrangement of white orchids, lavender sprays of the same flower and lily of the valley. The six bridesmaids carried bouquets of large cattleyas and Farleyense showered with miniature Sweetheart roses. Baskets of lavender pansies and lily of the valley were provided for the flower girls. The ushers wore gardenias with a small lavender orchid in the center and the mothers of the bride and the groom carried splendid bouquets of violets and gardenias. The contract was secured by A. Ehmann and the general supervision of the entire arrangement was in his capable hands.

McKinley Day.

January 29 will be the martyred president's birthday. At one time for the first several anniversaries and on account of the effort made by some of the trade to make it a carnation day, quite a few were sold and prices were slightly influenced. For the last year or two it has passed almost unnoticed. As a flower day, however, it is not yet obsolete and the man who will decorate his window with carnations, calling attention to the day by appropriate cards, President McKinley's picture or bust displayed on a flag, etc., has a feature window that will attract attention even if not many sales are made. Feature or special displays in the windows are like newspaper ads that may not appear to pay at first, but if well planned and followed up they gradually acquire a cumulative value that shows very good returns. So keep thinking them out, Mr. Retailer. It will pay you.

Penn's Pot Plant Publicity.

We have on several occasions called attention to "publicity that paid," clever examples of the judicious use of printers' ink by Penn, The Florist, 124 Tremont street, Boston, Mass., in the daily press of that city, and we reproduce herewith an advertisement of this well known firm, one of a series, which has been most favorably commented upon. An interesting feature is the fact that no prices are quoted, no solicitation to buy—merely a suggestion as to the proper care of a pot plant. It is only natural to assume that the flower lovers of Boston, when they think of plants, will remember the suggestions—and naturally—remember Penn. K.

MARSHFIELD, ORE.—The Marshfield Florist Co., which succeeded the Drews Floral Co. in 1915, has doubled the capacity of its establishment since that time and its output has doubled several times during the past year. The 1916 Christmas trade was unusually good and the new year is starting off well with plenty of sunshine and mild weather.

THE ROSE.

Care of Plants After Holidays.

Now that the holiday business is over, the rose grower will have to get back into the houses and hustle to get the plants straightened up and nursed along into good growth. Houses that have been cropped for the holidays of course have a pruned down close kind of a look, that in order to come back with vigor will require a little special treatment. We usually hold up a little with the water and feed, until the eyes have started slightly, then increase the water gradually. In the meantime we clean off all the old mulch, leaves, etc., that may be on the beds, and after the young growth has started, apply a medium heavy mulch of cow manure, washing about half of it into the soil on the first watering, the soil being in a condition to take this watering without making it too sloppy. Before watering the mulch again, it should be gone over by hand and roughed up. This should be done the day before the next watering takes place, which may be from three to six days, depending on weather conditions. The best results are obtained when the watering is done on clear days; however, if the weather should hold cloudy for several days after the first heavy watering, it would be advisable to loosen up the mulch so as to allow a little air to reach the roots, otherwise there might follow an unnecessary loss of foliage. There will be some loss of foliage resulting from the application of a mulch at almost any time during the season, especially at this time, but it will do no harm providing, of course, that it is not caused by neglecting to keep the mulch broken up and the houses not properly ventilated. We would suggest carrying a crack of air on the houses for several nights following the application of a mulch at any time of the year, if one does not want an excess of yellow foliage or loss of foliage. Remember the mulch at this time should not be applied very heavily; just enough to coax along a good growth. Follow the mulch in about two weeks with the usual weekly watering with liquid manure, which can be kept going until the next crop of flowers.

Where the houses have a cut that is fairly well broken up (that is cutting quite freely every day) the plants will require a light mulching every six weeks or thereabouts; also the weekly feeding with the liquid manure. Shredded or pulverized sheep or cow manure is excellent for both the top dressings or the liquid feeding; alternating the feeding often brings splendid results, also the application of dried blood to take the place of a light manure mulch. The dried blood should be used sparingly as it is a highly concentrated and a soluble plant food, giving best results when used on benches or beds that are being copiously watered.

The American Beauties are very easily forced into a rapid, long drawn-out growth following a hard cut-back at Christmas unless very carefully handled. And at times with all the care one can give them, they will wind up next the roof. We have had the best results by reducing the night temperature to 56° to 58° and running them a little on the dry side, also allowing them as much air as possible. If the growths start with a good red color and strong, and the plants are not over-fed, they will (as a rule) come back with a normal length of stem and fine foliage.

We will now take up the question of propagating by grafting. This subject has been fully well threshed out from season to season, until it is hardly necessary to again go into the details of the operation, more than to state that a good strike means careful attention given to all the details from first to last. Good Manetti stock is of the greatest importance. English or Irish stocks are the best, and there is very little difference in the two kinds, if any. Pot them in 2½-inch pots and start them at a temperature better grown on own roots as are also any of the varieties that have a tendency to form a heavy callous in the cutting bed. In fact, if one has the ideal rose soil, a soil that will grow excellent American Beauties the year around, there will not be a great deal gained by grafting anything; but where one has a light, sandy soil, requiring a great deal of feeding and constant heavy watering, we would suggest the use of grafted stocks, excepting of course the three varieties mentioned above. As for propagating by cuttings, we will mention this in our next article. E.

American Rose Society Festival.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., MARCH 20-23, 1917.

The preparations for the rose festival of the American Rose Society (kindly notice that the word "festival" has supplanted the more homely and hackneyed term "show," which latter designation is now in the discard) are being pushed vigorously by the several local committees. Meetings of the chairmen of the various committees are held every Tuesday afternoon at the Bellevue-Stratford hotel. On Tuesday, January 2, there was a good attendance, satisfactory progress being reported by all.

The executive committee of the American Rose Society meets every Thursday afternoon in the same room. Last Thursday's conference was productive; H. F. Michell's proposal that this exhibition should be called a "rose festival" in preference to a rose show, was taken as a happy thought and this title was at once adopted. Various advertising schemes were proposed. That of having a new rose christened and named by a society leader surrounded by the season's debutantes at the opening session would, it is believed, give the festival a good send-off and furnish a worth while article for the newspapers.

A number of the leading retailers have agreed to take space and decorate, same with up-to-date specimens of their work. In addition to the rose garden or display of H. A. Dreer, Inc., which will be as at last spring's great show, an important feature, the society will have as the central decoration a large rose garden of about 1,000 square feet. This will be of the latest design, containing in addition to well flowered beds, hedges, etc., pergolas, pyramids and all the requisites that belong to such elaborated beauty spots.

The preliminary premium list in which is offered large prizes for all varieties that are now being forced for market; also, for various seedling sports that are seeking recognition, is almost ready for distribution, and will probably be mailed to members of the society during the present week.

The ticket committee, of which Edward J. Fancourt is chairman, held an important meeting Saturday, January 6. An associate member's ticket was decided on, of which the price is to be one dollar. This is to be a season ticket, non-transferable. It is hoped to get new members to the society by this special low entrance fee, which may be later increased to a full membership. Trade tickets are to be issued as for the national show at 25 cents each, in blocks of 50 or more. The tickets will be ready for distribution by February 1.

The Care of Potted Plants

The cool days of winter are checked by pretty flowering and foliage plants; but while they are particularly fascinating at this time, it is during the coldest days that the plants require the most attention.

Never allow them to stand in front of an open window or in a cold draught. The intense dry heat in homes on extremely cold days will dry out the soil and wither or permanently injure most plants in a few days.

The pots of plants should be immersed in a pan of water for several minutes on very cold days, while in milder weather, on alternate days or even twice a week, will suffice to keep the plants in a healthy condition with the exception of forced plants, such as azaleas or lilies, these should be thoroughly watered every day.

of 48° to 50°. Spray the tops and keep them shaded. If the stocks are fresh they will be ready for grafting in about two weeks' time from the date of potting. At the first sign of root action they are ready for working. In the meantime, the grafting case can be made ready. Make the case as nearly air-tight as possible and have the heating of same so adjusted that a temperature of 75° can be maintained during the coldest weather. Use plenty of moss and ashes in the bottom of the case, as a moist atmosphere is what is required, brought up to the right temperature. Use only flowering wood, and the best obtainable, for the scions, and it should be taken before the eyes are advanced too far. A good, plump, firm eye is better than one that is started half an inch or so. Great care should be taken to avoid wilting the foliage after placing the grafts into the case. Do not graft American Beauty, Sunburst or Radiance, as these three varieties are far Cottage Gardens Changes.

Charles Willis Ward, founder and majority owner of the Cottage Gardens Company, Inc., of Queens, Long Island, N. Y., has sold the majority of his holding of stock in that corporation to his son, David S. Ward, who will succeed his father as majority owner and president of the company. The new president has for the past three years occupied the position of superintendent of the greenhouse department. The Cottage Gardens Nurseries at Queens was established in 1890. C. W. Ward had been engaged in growing carnations in a small way for three years previously at East Moriches, Long Island. Purchasing the Nicholas Hallock farm on the Rocky Hill road near the village of Creedmore in the fall of 1889, he took possession of the property June 1, 1890, and commenced the erection of a range of short span to the south carnation houses. The succeeding year the range of glass was enlarged and for 10 years thereafter new glass was added yearly. In 1900, the tival is to be given and which affords 22,000 square feet of exhibition space all on one floor, is to be quite elaborate, changing the appearance of the building in such a way as to give a landscape or garden effect to the whole interior. The local entries in all the various competitive classes are sure to be full and strong, and it is the belief of the executive committee that the very liberal premiums in all the classes will, in addition to the great efforts to be made to interest growers all over the country and in Canada, insure a truly national representation.

In addition to the society's scheduled cash prizes, many special cups and other prizes are being obtained, offered by large firms, hotels and individuals, all of which will appear in the final and complete schedule. K.

Rose Mrs. Herbert Stevens.

One of the most useful roses we have to-day is, without a doubt, Mrs. Herbert Stevens. As a white rose it is supreme, and for the florist invaluable. Either as a bush or climber, it is excellent. Of course, I know the variety is not classified as a climber, but it comes in the same category as that famous rose, Mme. Abel Chatenay. About a month ago I saw "hedges" of it in the Caledonia Nurseries literally covered with buds, and although the weather had injured the outside petals, these, when removed, left a beautifully clean and shapely bloom. It also does magnificently inside.—H. B., in English Horticultural Advertiser.

A Floral Peerage.

In a railway carriage in England two men were talking rather loudly:

"Lord French is very sick," one of them observed.

"Yes," said the other, "so is the Marchioness of Powys, but the Duchess of Cleveland is getting on famously. The Earl of Rosebery seems to be dwindling away. I can't make it out."

When they left the carriage a passenger remarked to a friend that these two fellows seemed anxious to impress the company with the fact that they were acquainted with every one in Burke's "Peerage."

"Peerage be blowed," he said, rudely, "they were talking about dahlias."

short span houses were torn down and replaced with modern, wide, steel-frame structures.

Carnations have been the chief greenhouse product from the beginning. In 1889, Mr. Ward joined with the late Fred Dorner, of Lafayette, Ind., in growing and introducing the Dorner seedling carnations. He also began the raising of seedling carnations himself, and began laying plans to enter the nursery business and commenced collecting and accumulating a stock of peonies. In 1901 the growing of nursery stock had progressed to such an extent that sales were begun in a moderate way. This branch of the business has grown steadily until the Cottage Gardens at Queens is now one of the most important ornamental nurseries in the east.

Charles W. Ward has been awarded many gold and silver medals for seedling carnations of his origination. He has won the American Carnation Society's gold and silver medals several times. He was the first winner of the Fred Dorner memorial medal and he was also awarded the Lawson gold medal several times. Among the numerous seedlings introduced by him, the most conspicuous have been Mrs. C. W. Ward, Matchless, Governor Roosevelt, Alma Ward, General Maceo, General Gomez, Glacier, Harry Penn, Lieutenant Peary, The President, Golden Beauty, Mrs. Theo. Roosevelt, Mrs. Tom Harvey, and Howard Gould. Cottage Maid, introduced during present season, and Crystal White, to be introduced next season, are also results of his work.

It is a little remarkable, when one considers that from Mr. Ward's last lots of cross bred carnation seed, fertilized in 1906 and 1907, there was secured Mrs. C. W. Ward, Matchless, Crystal White, Mrs. Tom Harvey, Cottage Maid (sport of Mrs. Ward), Howard Gould and several others which would have been considered valuable commercial varieties at the time Wm. Scott was introduced.

In May, 1913, Mr. Ward was called to Eureka, California, on legal business; he had to remain there a year; took a liking to climatic and soil conditions and commenced experimenting just as he commenced experimenting at East Moriches, Long Island, nearly 30 years ago. The results of his work is the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Inc., of California, wholesale growers of florists' decorative plants, ornamental nursery stock and Holland bulbs. Mr. Ward writes:

"My son David is a 'chip off the old block' so far as plant growing is concerned. He likes to see them grow as well as I do. I am well satisfied that he will make a success of the business at Queens, because he is really interested in it, is determined to master it, and is possessed of a large measure of horse sense, good judgment, application, honesty and uprightness. R. T. Brown, vice-president and general manager for the past 14 years at Queens, will probably move to California to assist Mr. Ward in completing the organization of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries in Humboldt county. W. D. Fraser, formerly with the Chas. H. Lilly Co. of Seattle, Wash., and the Luther Burbank Co. of Santa Rosa, is slated to take Mr. Brown's place at Queens.

BULB CULTURE ON THE PACIFIC COAST.
Hyacinths at the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Inc., Eureka, Calif.

Bulb Culture on Pacific Coast.

Abstract of an article in the San Francisco Chronicle by W. J. Van Aalst, superintendent of the Cottage Garden Nurseries bulb farm, New Haarlem, Humboldt county, Calif.

With its soil and climate particularly adapted to bulb growing, Holland has become famous for this industry, and still there is another reason. Started on a small scale, the Hollanders, notwithstanding the enormous increase in their bulb farms, often 400 or 500 acres to one grower having been noted, have always tried, and with good success, to sell their product, and having made their customers, have invariably tried to fill the demand. For this reason Holland growers rarely had any competition, and while there are bulb farms in other countries their existence never interfered with the trade or had any noticeable effect on prices.

Few persons, however, realize the difficulties that the Dutch bulb grower has to contend with. The planting of the main stock is finished in October, as November brings indications of the approach of winter. Rain fills the ditches and he is kept busy draining the fields, putting the beds in shape and covering them with reed grass as a protection against frost, which goes deep into the rain-soaked sand and would otherwise result in serious damage to the bulbs. Hyacinths formerly received a covering about one foot in thickness, but in recent years this has been reduced one-half or even less, while daffodils do not get that much and the tulip covering is even less, sufficient to protect against sand storms, it having been found by experience that the sharp, frosty north winds and not the frost did the harm. When not affected by the frost, the bulbs, especially hyacinths, sheltered by their covering, started growth and their thick yellow shoots appeared; in order to check this growth the covering had to be shaken to loosen the blanket of reed, or in many cases part of the covering taken away to admit the cold air. Following this mild part of the winter, February arrives with its cold, frosty weather, often accompanied by snow. Knowing that Jack Frost is bound to come sooner or later, no one dares to withdraw all of the covering. A real frosty period from the middle of December until the end of January is the hearty desire of all engaged in bulb culture, but it is seldom experienced. The soft, tender shoots of the hyacinths, forcing their way through the reed, enjoy the sunshine during the daytime, but have to endure the melting snows and the frosts at night, and the foliage suffers in a way that is easily discernable when the real spring weather induces bulb growth.

In March, or part of April, the covering is removed with the exception of that of the tulips, a little being left on them as a safeguard. At this time, not to mention many changes in temperature, the dry, windy period sets in and the coarse, sharp sand is driven toward the hedges serving as windbreaks and everywhere help is needed to save the field from dust, or rather sand storms, which is accomplished by covering with a litter of manure and reeds, held in place with sticks and laths. Otherwise the foliage, especially the tulips, with their broad, tender leaves, are badly injured.

April is the time of flowering and the bulbs are given a fair chance to develop; then comes the picking process, after which the bulbs start growing. The period for searching for diseases is now at hand. Previously only the weak or bad looking plants were removed, but now every one has to be examined; especially the hyacinths, as practically every disease of an infectious or disastrous nature shows in the foliage. In many cases not only the diseased bulbs, but also surrounding ones are taken out, too much care being impossible. A single night frost, or a sort of poisonous cloud, has wrought much havoc among hyacinths, tulips and daffodils, and the prevention or cure of diseases in the damp soil is most important. Often entire beds are dug out and the soil taken long distances to prevent further spreading of the infection. The bulb grower in Holland has to sustain greater losses than the average farmer, and if these drawbacks did not exist his product could be sold even cheaper than it is now offered.

On the Pacific coast, my experience has been that weather conditions are practically the same each year; at least they do not appear to have any noticeable effect on bulb growing. If rain does not interfere, planting can be done as late as the middle of December, often even later, without danger, and the tenderest bulbs, the hyacinths, can be left unprotected, there being no danger of freezing. They make strong roots in their nicely prepared beds, well drained and enriched with manure, after from two to four weeks. A night frost is welcome, as it tends to hold the shoots back and gives the roots a fairer chance to develop. There is nothing to cause damage—no sharp sand, no melting snow night after night, frozen to their tender shoots. Strong and healthy, they show their handsome blossoms in the most brilliant colors—I dare say colors that have never been dreamed of in Holland. The flowering season is three weeks earlier than in Holland, as the bulbs start their growth earlier, and each day shows a mark as to how much the plants have grown.

The only disease requiring attention is what was left over in the newly imported stock. There is none in the older stock, and no possibility of spreading disease, as the soil is not damp enough and there is no excess moisture in the atmosphere so destructive to foliage.

Holland bulbs which die off gradually give the best results, as is well known. They are thoroughly ripened and matured and remain solid, the skin (which is an important commercial point) becoming strong so that it can withstand handling and shipping. On the Pacific coast, it is the rule that the bulbs ripen off slowly, evenly and completely, which means that they are able to form a perfect flower and able to stand a great deal of forcing.

There is not much more to say about bulb growing on the Pacific coast. They have found their "home" there. That word includes everything. The advantages over Holland stock are numerous. The product grown on the Pacific coast is perfectly healthy, but if diseased bulbs are left in the ground they do not infect those surrounding them. The soil is too dry; they themselves soon become dry and are eventually eaten by worms.

An important feature is the easier way of forcing. It is a self-pronounced fact that the bulbs are so fully matured they are able to bring a well-developed bloom. Without hesitation the writer has cut a number, even very small ones, to show the perfectly formed blooms inside. It is true, our hyacinths do not, as a rule, acquire the same size as they obtain in Holland, but it is not always the biggest bulb that gives the largest bloom. It is the quality. Compare the Holland grown hyacinths with those grown on the Pacific coast. Look at the loose skin, shriveled and light, and compare it with the shiny appearance of the heavy, solid Pacific coast bulb. Cut a bulb of the same size of each kind and note the difference.

One more advantage, and certainly not the least important one: Pacific coast bulbs grow all winter. Eureka, Calif., has even earlier records. Here I find that the earliest narcissi began blooming as early as the middle of January in some seasons and that practically all the daffodils were in full flower February 14 to February 20. They have a longer growing period than in Holland and for that reason we have fully ripened bulbs which can be shipped as early as the middle of August and be in the hands of florists long before the Holland shipments arrive, to say nothing of the superior condition in which they appear. The bulbs ripened so early can all be sold and forced for Christmas.

American bulbs, grown under such favorable conditions, require 14 to 17 days less to bring into flower than the Holland stock, grown in a damp soil in a wet climate, where even the up-to-date dry houses are at present provided with artificial drying systems.

There is really no end in summing up the advantages of the Pacific coast grown bulbs, but, stated briefly, bulbs grown in Humboldt county, California, possess the following cardinal points which will appeal to all American florists as strong features:

1. They are heavier, denser and more solid than stock grown under the intense cow manure diet which they get in Holland.
2. The skins are tougher, smoother and more silky in texture and ship better.
3. They ripen six to eight weeks earlier than Holland grown stock and the ripening process is continuous and unchecked up to thorough maturity.
4. They will be in the hands of the American florist at least a month before he can get the imported stock.
5. They can be boxed earlier, left longer to establish good root system and forced much slower and at lower temperatures than imported stock, and this means larger blooms, better colors, stronger and longer stems and hardier, better keeping and shipping blooms.
6. The growing season is longer, the growth much more continuous and even and maturity is perfect, consequently it takes less time (14 to 17 days) to force Eureka bulbs than it does Holland grown stock.

The Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Inc., has growing at its bulb farm at New Haarlem, Calif., 1,500,000 bulbs, consisting of tulips, early single and double, late single, Darwins, Rembrants and breeders; narcissi, a full list of standards and novelties; hyacinths, crocuses and lilies in variety. Of the Dutch bulbs 50,000 were grown at Eureka, Calif., 80,000 were grown in the state of Washington, and 700,000 were grown at Victoria, B. C. The balance were imported from Holland. The next year's planting will comprise from 7,000,000 to 10,000,000 bulbs, of which 5,000,000 to 7,000,000 will be imported from Holland. The balance will be grown at Eureka.

St. Louis Spring Show.

MARCH 15-18, 1917.

As the festive days of the big St. Louis spring flower show draw near and all arrangements being practically complete, it gives the writer pleasure to explain to the trade in general why we invite everybody interested in the florist business to come and participate in this big holiday—a real event in the florist business in the west.

St. Louis, with a population of 800,000, the largest city west of the Mississippi valley, has not had a flower show for the past four years. For this one reason, if no other, this show will be a grand success. The public in general demand to be shown something new in all lines of business, therefore, Frank Windler, W. W. Ohlweiler and David Geddis concluded it would be a good thing to give a flower show and present to the public the newer creations in blooms. With the assistance of the St. Louis Florists' Club these gentlemen formed the St. Louis Flower Show Association, Inc., and elected as manager our well known florist and friend, Jules Bourdet. The guarantee fund of $10,000 was promptly subscribed and the largest and best adapted hall in the city secured. Everything was done with great enthusiasm and every florist in the city worked hard to complete the details of this great undertaking, and improve through this event, the demand for flowers and educate the public to the fact that flowers are no longer a luxury, but a necessity.

The publicity committee under the direction of Frank Windler, is doing great work. Over 500,000 stickers with a neat advertisement of the show were distributed to the trade and used on packages and mail matter.

BULB CULTURE ON THE PACIFIC COAST.

The show will embrace 29 sections, classes having been arranged for commercial growers, private gardeners, retailers and open to all. A special attraction will be the section devoted to the fish aquariums.

And now, with a premium list of $10,000—with numerous gold, silver and bronze medals in addition to loving cups and other prizes, the St. Louis Flower Show Association extends a cordial invitation to all—exhibitors and visitors—from the Atlantic to the Pacific, to participate in this big flower show of the west.

FINE JANUARY SALES.

As was the case in January of last year, there has so far been no perceptible drop in sales, much to the delight of the trade in this city. Funeral work has been unusually heavy and there has been a great demand for the flowers that go with various social occasions. Conditions in the local market are satisfactory and the quantity and quality of seasonable stock is good. There was a slight scarcity during the past week of roses of the better grades. Carnations are coming fine and it looks as though there would soon be enough for all purposes. Paper White narcissi are very abundant and sell fairly well. Azaleas are now in better supply and are finding a ready sale, as are the tulips that are on the market.

NOTES.

George Bayer, of the florists' club, has awakened from his long winter sleep, and the thing that aroused him was some bill that is up before the legislature which he claims will be obnoxious to every florist. George at once got busy and has called a meeting of the club to discuss the measure. He is looking for a large attendance.

Metz & Bateman have been pushing telegraph orders hard during the past month and have had several very attractive "Flowergram" display windows. Since the new salesroom in the basement of the Ohio building had been thrown open to the public, business has been making rapid strides.

Harry Turvey, the only retail florist in West Toledo, had a fine year and as a result is planning on greatly enlarging his facilities to take care of his rapidly growing trade. He is located in a district that is fast increasing in population and his prospects are bright.

Frank Schramm will again decorate the Terminal building for the big auto show. Many cases of smilax and other garlands will be necessary to properly adorn this mammoth structure, which has more actual floor space than Madison Square Garden, New York.

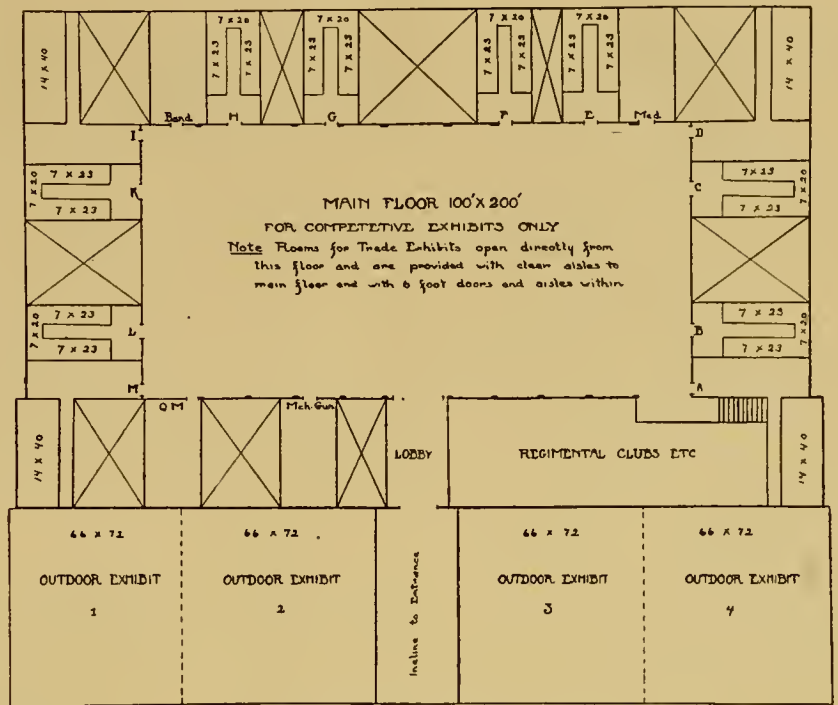

Harry Heintz, rose specialist, is having trouble these days taking care of the demand for his product. His roses were exceptionally fine during the past month and his books record a splendid increase in business.

Mrs. E. N. Suder now has a handsome new Overland delivery car. This prosperous Cherry street florist manages to keep two cars busy delivering. Her conservatory is the pride of this city.

Mrs. J. B. Freeman has replaced her old car with a handsome new Dodge. It is attractively painted. This progressive florist has enjoyed a remarkable business during the past year.

The Helmar Flower Shop is having a great call for pot tulips and azaleas. This concern was well satisfied with their holiday trade. A. C. K.

CROMWELL, CONN. — A. N. Pierson, Inc., will distribute a new rose. Mrs. Charles Bell, raised by George E. Anderson, of the Hubbard estate, Washington, D. C.

ST. LOUIS SPRING SHOW FLOOR PLAN.

Philadelphia Notes.

Frank M. Ross, the enterprising retailer of West Philadelphia and Kensington, is remodeling his store No. 12 on South Sixtieth street, which when the alterations are completed will be one of the most up-to-date shops in the city. The entire lot, 16x64 feet, will be occupied by the salesroom, which will be fitted, wherever possible, with wall mirrors to enhance the beauty of the interior. The other fixtures and lighting will be of the best and latest pattern. Mary L. Rook, of Binghamton, N. Y., with former experience in Philadelphia and Washington stores, will take charge here on February 1.

Habermehls have their hands full at this time with decorations for large fashionable balls and dinners, most of which are held at the Bellevue-Stratford hotel. The hunt ball decorations of last week were quite elaborate, one item of nearly 1,000 American Beauties will give an idea. Most of these were suspended from baskets, hanging from the balcony of the ball room. A large drop curtain painted with a hunt scene as a background for the stage decoration was a feature.

Matters pertaining to the coming rose festival of the American Rose Society are moving along expeditiously, all committees reporting progress. The advance premium list is out and mailed to many growers and all members of the society. Any one desiring a copy who will write to the American Rose Society, 1612 Ludlow street, Philadelphia, will have the list by return mail.

The Leo Niessen Co. hopes the scarcity of flowers will soon be over as there are so many demands for medium grades that are very difficult to supply. American Beauty roses, lilac and gardenias are features.

Valentine accessories are to the fore at H. Bayersdorfer & Co. The active social season is giving them a lot of work in special creations, ideas of decorators from all the large centers.

"More orders for roses than we can fill" is the good word from Edward Reid. Lily of the valley, cattleyas, carnations and American Beauty roses were features.

"Not nearly enough flowers for the orders," is the word of the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange. Better crops are expected for next week.

Last week's poultry show, the ninth of the H. F. Michell Co., Inc., was very successful, the attendance being larger than that of any previous exhibition.

Carl Cortis, of the Jos. Heacock Co., says crops are off, but in two weeks they will start their spring campaign, which promises to be the best ever.

Thaddeus N. Yates Co., of Mount Airy, has just completed a house 35x100 feet, to be used for general greenhouse stock.

Berger Brothers report good business with stock scarce. Carnations, Maryland roses and Easter lilies were leaders.

Stuart H. Miller is pushing violets, freesias and Easter lilies. Carnations are also in good supply. K.

Cincinnati.

MARKET IS STEADY.

The supply is much shorter than at the last writing and prices have advanced. Business is steady, but not nearly as good as it might be. Compared to what it was, the rose supply, the first of this week, was very short. The same applies to carnations and Easter lilies. Callas and rubrum lilies are in a fair supply. Sweet peas are now quite plentiful and some excellent ones of the Butterfly type may be had. Paper Whites are plentiful. Some Roman hyacinths and freesias are seen and primroses, wallflowers and forget-me-nots have a fair market. Other offerings include lily of the valley, violets, orchids and snapdragons.

NOTES.

Gus Knoch and wife, of Detroit, Mich., visited the wholesale district in this city last week. They stopped over on their way to Florida.

C. E. Critchell has been having some excellent Killarney and Ophelia roses. P. J. Olinger is again cutting some excellent Russell roses.

Visitors: S. A. Gregg, Charleston, W. Va.; J. T. Herdegen, Aurora, Ind., and Mrs. G. A. Beckman, Middletown, O. H.

THE Florists' Hail Association, it is announced, will seek a new charter before the New Jersey legislature this winter.

ENGLISH papers announce the death of Prof. Daniel Oliver, former keeper of the Kew herbarium and well known to many horticulturists. Prof. Oliver retired in 1890.

"CANARIES" is the title of a bulletin which has been issued by the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., giving information on their care and management, with illustrations.

LARGE retail stores in lines other than florists who run plant departments at holiday seasons now have this stock grown by contract. One large grower has an order to deliver 500,000 assorted hyacinths, tulips and daffodils for Easter sales. Each plant is grown in a 3½-inch pot and must be staked. Forty thousand geraniums is an item for spring delivery.

Personal.

F. R. Pierson, the veteran horticulturist, Tarrytown, N. Y., will celebrate the sixty-second anniversary of his birthday, January 22.

THIRTY THOUSAND carnations were received by the El Paso, Tex., Chamber of Commerce from California and were distributed to the soldiers along the border on Christmas day. A bunch was supplied for each mess table and every hospital patient received flowers.

Philadelphia Rose Festival.

We are in receipt of the advance prize list of the American Rose Society for the National Rose Festival, to be held at the First Regiment Armory, Broad and Callowhill streets, Philadelphia, Pa., March 20-23. Six thousand dollars are offered in money premiums besides many medals and other special prizes. Copies of the premium list may be had on application to Secretary Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y., or the local secretary, Fred Cowperthwaite, 307 Harrison building, Fifteenth and Market streets, Philadelphia, Pa.

Chicago to Indianapolis.

CARNATION MEETING AND EXHIBITION.

For the annual convention of the American Carnation Society to be held at Indianapolis, Ind., January 31 and February 1, the Monon Route has been selected as the shortest and most convenient line for the Chicago party. The one-way fare between Chicago and Indianapolis is $4.60 and the party fare for 10 or more, $4.14 each. Lower berths, $2; upper berths, $1.60.

The night train leaving the Dearborn station, Polk and Dearborn streets, Tuesday, January 30, at 11:40 p. m., due in Indianapolis at 4:30 a. m., has been chosen by the Florists' Club as the convention train for its members and others wishing to join the party. Berths on the night train are ready at 10 o'clock and can be occupied until 7:30 a. m. the next morning.

Reservations should be made early to secure the party rate by writing or telephoning Herbert Wiley, General Agent Passenger Department, 104 South Clark street, Chicago. Telephone Harrison 3309.

For those who wish to reach Indianapolis earlier the Monon Route has an evening train, leaving the Dearborn station Tuesday, January 30, at 5:30 p. m., due in Indianapolis at 10:30 the same night.

Massachusetts Agricultural College.

The enrollment of students in floriculture at the winter short course is 21. Many of these men come to the college from practical work and commercial establishments. The short course is divided into two sections. Prof. A. H. Nehrling is giving the work in commercial floriculture, while C. E. Wildon is handling the work in garden flowers.

A total of 20 students are enrolled in the regular major courses in floriculture. Three courses are to be given this term. Course 51, treats of greenhouse management; Course 77, is of decorative plants and conservatory work; Course 80, is a continuation of the work in commercial floriculture.

The publication of the annual, which the M. A. C. Florists' and Gardeners' Club has determined to get out, is being pushed energetically. Already over 40 per cent of the advertising space has been subscribed and the remainder is rapidly being filled out. Over 1,000 copies are to be distributed free to persons in the horticultural trade.

Flower Pots.

A. H. Hews & Co., Inc., of Cambridge, Mass., the oldest and largest manufacturers of flower pots in the world, announce that for the year 1916 their product and sales have been the largest in the history of the company. Coincident with this condition extraordinarily increased costs of labor and material have been most discouraging and necessitated some increases in selling prices.

They have recently discontinued their jobbing business in glassware, woodenware, crockery and other household ware lines, to devote their entire interests to their flower pot manufacturing industry, and have taken steps to increase their capacity by adding new machines, kilns, and drying rooms on the property that was devoted to storage for their jobbing business.

Several customers throughout the country have suffered by delays in shipments and transportation during recent months owing to phenomenal demands, but it is now believed the Hews Company is sufficiently equipped to take care of all demands hereafter. Owing to congestion of requirements of commercial florists coming periodically twice a year, it is always urged to place orders for shipment far in advance to assure pots being on hand when wanted. Many florists overlook this and suffer delay because it is a physical impossibility for any factory to ship every order within a two months' period in spring and fall.

It is interesting to learn that A. H. Hews & Co., Inc., used 8,843 tons of clay, 1,653 tons of coal, and employed an average of 95 men for their sole industry of manufacturing flower pots during the past year.

The Hews Company are members of the Association of Centenary Firms & Corporations of the United States and rank eleventh in list of 58 members.

Chrysanthemum Elections.

The Horticultural Trade Journal of England has conducted a series of elections with a view to securing lists of the most profitable varieties of early, mid-season and late chrysanthemums. The result of the three elections held are as follows:

Early.—Roi Des Blancs, Framfield Barly White, Polly, Almirante, Goacher's Crimson, Horace Martin, White Countess, Cranfordia, Normandie, Betty Sparkes, Leslie and Cranford Yellow.

Mid-Season.—M. Julian Valat, Mrs. Roots, H. W. Thorp, Cranfordia, Source D'Or, Market Red, Batchelor's White, Ivy Gay, Lizzie Adcock, Parson's White and Soliel D'Octobre.

Late.—Baldock's Crimson, Heston White, Winter Cheer, Western King, Tuxedo, Niveus, Cheshunt White, December Gold, Negoya, Mlle. L. Charvet, Madame Oberthur and December Pink.

Rose Midge.

Freezing the rose houses is now said to be the only remedy for the midge. This means practically a loss of a year's bloom. Growers who have had experience with this pest will confer a favor by advising us of any efficacious remedy which is less costly than the freezing.

CLUB MEETING.

The club meeting Thursday evening, January 11, was one of unusual importance. The attendance of 25 members was in itself exceptional, and Ex-President Phil Breitmeyer, who now rarely attends, was there. Another Phil, too, was present—the genial Philip J. Foley, of the Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., Chicago—and both being good speakers, they made their presence felt. Mr. Breitmeyer spoke chiefly upon the proposed organization of local growers, most of whom were present. He deplored the organization for the alleged purpose of advancing prices and being antagonistic to the retailers and wholesalers, both of whom, with the growers, were necessary to the success of all, and to that end should work harmoniously together. He said, however, that if the growers would unite upon a determination to grow more and better stock to supply the local demand he would heartily endorse the movement, and would aid such a purpose all in his power. He referred to the recent holidays as an example of the unpreparedness and glaring deficiency of the local growers who obliged the retailers to go to outside points to get supplies of both plants and cut flowers, and to this disadvantage could be added the misfortunes attending the shipping of this stock, so much of which arrived too late and in a frozen condition. He warned his hearers of the danger of others coming here to occupy this field, so badly in need of more competent growers, though he was willing to concede the rare ability of a few of our growers whose stock is a credit to Detroit.

Philip Foley, speaking upon the same subject, said it was evident that this city needed more greenhouses and that he was ready to supply them. He stated that to his certain knowledge houses he had erected at points very remote from here were used to grow stock much of which reached this market. A. Pochelon, in his few pointed remarks on the subject, said that the Detroit stores would have a poor appearance if only local grown stock was shown in them. He said the aim of most growers here was to grow quantity at the expense of quality. He claimed two plants for a dollar each would be far better than four plants at fifty cents each. Other members who spoke and concurred in the opinions of the previous speakers were: A. J. Stahelin, Jos. Streit and Thos. Browne. The interesting proceedings were reluctantly terminated because of the approach of bowling time, in which all indulged until a late hour.

NOTES.

The growers composing the nucleus of the new growers' association held an interesting meeting at 25 Broadway Wednesday evening, January 10. There were also present H. P. Zwetsloot, representing Driehuizen Brothers, Lisse, Holland, and B. A. Faure, representing M. Van Warren & Sons, Ltd., Hillegom, Holland, both of whom gave interesting talks on the bulb industry of their country.

S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia, Pa., with his bride of three weeks, is visiting the trade in Buffalo, Erie, Cleveland and Detroit. Mr. Skidelsky was married to a Philadelphia lady in the Quaker City December 24, last, and is combining business with pleasure on his wedding tour. The congratulations of the trade are extended him and his bride.

Ten of the crack bowlers of the Cleveland Florist Club are scheduled to play a match game here with the local boys with the highest scores, Tuesday, January 16. The contest is for the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange trophy, which was donated by that firm at the opening of the bowling season.

Phil Scott, formerly of Buffalo and Denver, will open a retail store here in the near future, according to reports.

The Detroit Stand Co. is now located at 700 Milwaukee avenue, east.

Michael Bloy is planning a California trip. J. F. S.

FAIR SUPPLY OF GOOD QUALITY.

Considering the season, trade during the past week was up to expectations. The convention of implement men which opened January 15 brought a number of good orders for decorations and with funeral work which has been better than usual, the market has been held at a normal stage. The supply of stock has not been heavy but the quality has been good, especially roses. They are the scarce item, however. Carnations are most plentiful; in fact, are almost a drug. Other offerings include lilies, violets, snapdragons, sweet peas and bulbous stock.

NOTES.

A heavy demand for funeral work at the W. J. Barnes establishment made possible the cutting down of the surplus of carnations and white and yellow narcissi which are being cut daily. Decorations for the implement show have also kept his staff busy, one order alone covering 10,000 square feet. He is supplied with excellent roses, lilac and rhododendrons.

A. Mohr, who has a small range but grows nothing but quality stock, has figured his returns on Christmas business at about $2,500. He gets the very best prices and is now preparing for the Easter trade, for which he specializes.

T. J. Noll & Co. are handling a fine line of bulbous stock and California violets. They also have fine sweet peas and a plentiful supply of good carnations. Roses and lilies are in limited supply.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. reports a scarcity of roses. They are receiving some fine cyclamens from the greenhouses. Business in general is good.

Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. are cutting excellent stock at the greenhouses and are sending in some fine pot plants. Trade is reported satisfactory.

Samuel Murray has been busy with convention decorations in addition to a good demand in all lines.

Fred Fromholdt reports satisfactory business, the demand for funeral work being above the average.

The local trade are preparing for an excellent Valentine's day demand.

Cleveland-Detroit Bowling Contest.

The Cleveland team of 10 bowlers played the Detroit "boys" Tuesday evening, January 16, at the Broadway alleys, 25 Broadway, Detroit. The trophy donated by the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange was won by the "Forest City" team in a contest of four games, the deciding game going to Cleveland by a majority of six pins. The trophy is a design in silver, 24 inches high—a ball supported by three pins and mounted on a base of mahogany and engraved "Michigan Cut Trophy, Cleveland vs. Detroit." The winners are to retain the trophy if they win another game from the Detroit boys, and this contest will be played in Cleveland in the near future. The visitors were shown some of the florist stores and other points of interest here during the day and previous to a banquet given in Harmonie Hall before the games were played. The high individual average for Cleveland was made by Chas. Graham, 185; for Detroit, Norman Sullivan, 180.

SUPPLY SHORTENS AND PRICES ADVANCE.

Prices on nearly all kinds of stock continue on the upgrade occasioned by a shortening of supply and good business. Roses are scarce and prices high, especially Russell and American Beauty. The Killarney supply is also limited and those reaching the market are of very poor grade. A few Ophelia are to be seen and the quality is fine. Carnations are plentiful but prices remain firm at $3 per 100 for the best. Violets are also in ample supply and of good quality. There is a good call for narcissi and sweet peas move well, although the receipts are increasing daily. They are quoted at $1 and $1.50 per 100. The supply of jonquils is sufficient to balance a weak demand.

The Florists' and Nurseries' Employees' Union, No. 14,134, held its annual banquet at Mission Inn, January 9, about 30 members being present. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Henri Duernburg, president; J. L. McCloskey, vice-president; H. Y. Ellison, secretary; Marion W. Uhl Schmidt, treasurer.

Fred Weber Jr. has called a meeting of the retail florists' association for the purpose of arranging various matters relating to the coming spring flower show. The date will be announced later.

Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney had the largest December business in the history of the firm. Ed Westermann, manager, states the call for plants is so heavy he has difficulty in supplying the demand.

The wholesalers are cleaning up their counters daily. Some dissatisfaction with prices is reported but with the supply shortening improved conditions in this respect are looked for.

INAUGURATION DEPLETES STOCKS.

The fashionable florist shops enjoyed a phenomenal business incident to the inauguration of Ohio's new governor, January 8. Numerous floral gifts to the governor and his party and to other incoming officials, in the form of elaborate baskets, and corsage orders from ladies attending the grand ball, nearly cleaned up the cut flower stocks. From the florists' viewpoint this was the biggest event in years. Business has now settled down to a rather quiet stage, with very little scarcity of anything. Prices so far have suffered no serious decline. Carnations, which are plentiful, are bringing $1 a dozen. Zero weather is keeping growers busy in taking precautions against loss. Jonquils and freesias are now making their appearance, each selling for $1 a dozen. Pot plants are recovering from the dearth created by the holiday trade and are good sale. Hospital trade is large, but funeral work is somewhat below the normal for a period of extreme weather like the present.

NOTES.

F. M. Brownwell, manager of the cut flower department of the Livingston Seed Company, has severed his connection with that concern, after having been with it for 11 years. His future plans have not been announced, but it is understood that he is considering a new floral project of his own. W. W. Walker, a highly competent young man of some 18 years' experience, succeeds to the vacancy. He has been with the firm for some time, and just previous to going with them was with the Wilson Seed Company.

The magnitude of the order for the decoration of Memorial hall, where the governor's inaugural ball was held, oversized available local stocks and the business went to Cincinnati parties.

The renting of the Hartman Floral Shop's quarters to another line of business, following financial troubles, means the wiping out of a very pretty, modernly-appointed retail stand.

Hamburg Late White Chrysanthemum

The examining committees of the Chrysanthemum Society of America scored Hamburg Late White as follows: Philadelphia, December 14, 88 points commercial; Boston, December 14, 83 points commercial; New York, December 18, 85 points commercial.

This picture was taken November 26, 1916, and will give a good idea of what Hamburg Late White looks like when grown to single stems and planted six inches each way.

Hamburg Late White is pure white under all weather conditions, and is a sport of White Maud Dean, but has no trace of pink as has the original.

The average grower of Chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle, and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible.

Hamburg Late White has been grown for the last four years, and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but for late white, one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November, by taking an early bud; but by selecting later buds, most of the flowers are cut during December, and we would advise a selection of late buds, as the later buds come somewhat fuller, and by selecting late buds, flowers can be had as late as the middle of January.

Keeping qualities are excellent, and where a light, graceful white flower is wanted, Hamburg Late White cannot be surpassed.

Hamburg Late White will be disseminated in the spring of 1917. Plants will be ready April 1, 1917, and all orders will be filled in rotation.

SUPPLY INCREASES—PRICES MODERATE.

Normal trade conditions still prevail, but there is considerable activity in decorations and funeral orders. The supply of good flowers is increasing and prices are not as high as a week ago. Roses and carnations are both better in quality.

NOTES.

S. Murata & Co. have taken a long lease of the Johnson building, 380-386 South Los Angeles street, where they will have two stores and a basement 50x145 feet. They have added seeds and fertilizers to their wholesale cut flower and supply business and will make a specialty of grass and clover seeds.

J. A. Norris & Son are enjoying good business at both the store and the nursery. At the latter establishment they have erected a glass house which will be devoted to palms and ferns. They make a specialty of hay trees of which they import large numbers.

Burt Cole, for many years associated with the nursery department of the Germain Seed & Plant Co., has been placed in full charge of that department. The position was formerly held by H. R. Richards.

Howard & Smith have a force constantly employed in making funeral designs and bouquets. This firm does considerable advertising, which accounts for their increased business.

Lily of the valley is in good supply at Wright's Flower Shop. Gardenias are also seen. This firm is usually busy in one department or another.

The Redondo Floral Co. reports a busy week, especially in decorations. Sweet peas of good quality are in plentiful supply here.

GOOD MARKET MAINTAINS PRICES.

Market conditions have been very satisfactory and prices held up very well during the past week. Roses have been somewhat scarce and there has been quite a demand especially in the shorter grades. Carnations have been moving well but have begun to arrive in quantities and prices have weakened to some extent. Paper Whites are plentiful and are selling at low figures, some at $15 per 1,000. Some very fine spring flowers are being received which find ready sale at good prices, being a change from the usual line of carnations, roses, American Beauties, etc.

NOTES.

Many bulb salesmen are visiting the local trade and if they are all successful in making sales there will be an

Mention the American Florist when writing

Holyoke and Northampton Club.

The regular meeting of the Holyoke and Northampton Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held January 9 in the city hall, Northampton, Mass., upon invitation of C. E. Williams and G. W. Thornley. There was a good attendance, presided over by George Strugnell, newly elected president of the club. Committees were appointed to look up lapsed members and revise the by-laws.

G. H. Sinclair spoke entertainingly of an auto trip he made through New York state last fall, making special mention of the park systems of several cities and the noted nurseries at Rochester.

Carnation exhibits were made by F. D. Keyes & Son, Northampton, who showed a pleasing rose pink sport of Enchantress, and by G. H. Sinclair & Son, Holyoke, who staged a promising seedling, the result of a cross between Harry Fenn and Princess Dagmar. Butler & Ullman, Northampton, exhibited Sweet Pea Yarrowa and Rainbow freesias of excellent quality. The Smith College botanic garden showed Erlangea tomentosa and Coleus thrysoideus.

STOCK IS SCARCE.

Stock of all kinds, with possibly one or two exceptions, is very scarce and the market is cleaned up at an early hour every day. The extreme cold below-zero weather of the past week had something to do with the present market conditions, but the demand has also been good, consequently what little stock was offered found ready sale and caused a shortage, as was predicted in this column last week. The shortage appears to be general throughout the country, especially in the east, for many large orders have been received from that section the past few days. Roses are most scarce, especially red, and it is impossible to fill anywhere near the demand. American Beauty roses are bringing high prices for January, and there is never any surplus when the stores close for the day. Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are in short supply and what few are offered are selling quickly at top notch figures. White roses are none too plentiful, but are not moving as well as the colored varieties and while they clean up satisfactorily, prices might be a whole lot better. Carnations are selling better than they have at any time this season and are bringing higher prices, which should please the growers, for the carnation returns so far this season have been anything but satisfactory compared to former years. Sweet peas are reaching the market in large supply, but are in brisk demand at good prices. Violets, both the home-grown singles and New York doubles, have not sold any too well as far as prices are concerned during the past week, but are selling at more satisfactory figures at this writing, owing to the shortage of other stock. Orchids and gardenias are moving nicely and the same holds true for lily of the valley. Paper White narcissus is about the only item that is not selling as well as it should, considering conditions, but it is expected that it will come in for its own before the week is over. Lilies and callas have sold better this week than they have for some time and are now rather scarce. Tulips and freesias are more plentiful but are having a good call and clean up fairly well right along. Jonquils, snapdragons, daisies, daffodils, Romans, mignonette, statice, bouvardia, stocks, iris, sweet alyssum, pussy willows, forget-me-nots, stevia, calendulas, candytuft, feverfew and pansies, are included in the many offerings and are in brisk demand. Green goods are in large supply but at times one or two items are found to be scarce.

NOTES.

W. D. Desmond, who has been engaged in the retail florist business at Minneapolis, Minn., for many years, has accepted a traveling position with Poehlmann Bros. Co. and is now calling on the trade in the northwest. Mr. Desmond is well and favorably known through his former connection and his many friends wish him every success in his latest undertaking.

The stores at the northwest corner of Wabash avenue and Van Buren street, one of which is now occupied temporarily by George Perdikas, have been leased by William C. Lobenstine to the Independent Drug Company for a period of two years at a term rental of $175,000. The drug company expects to open for business at this location on or before March 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruns and daughter will accompany the Amling party to California.

Felix Reichling says that Peter Reinberg has had several calls from eastern points for stock this week, principally roses. Orders for rooted carnation cuttings are numerous and every mall is bringing in new ones.

Herman W. Rogers, for twelve years with Weiland & Risch, said good-bye to as many of his friends as possible this week before leaving for Detroit, Mich., January 16, which city he will make his future home.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. has installed a machine in the supply department for the manufacture of wire greening pins and is now in a position to supply other dealers as well as its own trade. T. E. Waters says that a machine has also been installed at Morton Grove for making the loops in wire frames, which will enable his house to turn out a larger quantity at a much less expense than heretofore. Tom Conlon, superintendent of Poehlmann's plant range at Morton Grove, reports that over seven tons of wrapping paper, valued at $25 per ton, were used in making Christmas plant deliveries and that notwithstanding the fact that every precaution was taken in packing to avoid freezing, many complaints in regard to frozen shipments were received.

Albert Lies, Chris Blaumeuser, E. H. Blaumeuser, James Poulsen, Nick Damm, Matt Mann and Allie Zech took in the sights at the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co.'s greenhouses at Joliet, Thursday, January 11, where the new flesh pink carnation, Superb, was the center of attraction. Everyone in the party was most favorably impressed with this variety and several of the party have signified their intention of growing it next season. P. W. Peterson, superintendent of the Thompson Greenhouses, also escorted the visitors though the state penitentiary.

William Johnson, for many years in the employ of A. L. Vaughan & Co., will be married in the near future. "Bill" has always been fond of the ladies and the news, while a surprise to many, might be expected for it would be impossible for such a fine fellow to remain single for any great length of time. He is one of the last of the "clan" to submit to the inevitable.

John Degnan is busy at Winterson's Seed Store, preparing the retail and wholesale catalogues, which will be ready for mailing soon.

Kennicott Bros. Co. increased its capital stock from $10,000 to $25,000 at a meeting of the stockholders held Wednesday, January 17. The additional capital is all paid in and will be used to enlarge the business along plans that they have in mind and which will no doubt be made public some time in the future. The firm also declared its usual annual 20 per cent dividend and carried over $15,000 in the reserve fund. Officers of the Kennicott Bros. Co. are: H. B. Kennicott, president and treasurer; F. K. Reilly, vice-president, and J. E. Pollworth, secretary.

Otto Goerisch, of the A. L. Randall Co.'s cut flower department, says that practically everyone has figured out that his initials are the fifteenth and seventeenth letters of the alphabet so he might as well admit that he is the one that is going to join the ranks of the benedicts. The young lady's name is Miss Maeta Martens and the date of the wedding is set for Saturday, January 20.

Mrs. John Borden and Mrs. James B. Waller are in charge of the booth for the Mary Borden Turner hospital at the Allied Bazaar now being held in the Coliseum for which twenty flower girls are working among the throngs. Practically all the wholesale growers donated liberally to the good of the cause, notwithstanding that stock in general is scarce at present.

Bassett & Washburn received an order from a grower at Havana, Cuba, this week for 500 rooted cuttings of their new scarlet carnation, Belle Washburn. Last year they received an order for this variety from a grower in the Orient who read their advertisement in THE AMERICAN FLORIST.

Arthur C. Leedle, of The Leedle Rosary, Springfield, O., was a visitor in the wholesale market, January 11. Paul Klingsporn, manager of The Chicago Flower Growers' Association, escorted him through some of the loop retail stores during his stay here.

The A. A. Arnold Paper Box Co. has a good supply of Valentine boxes ready for immediate delivery. The box is printed in two colors, red and gold, with the red heart embossed, and is used extensively by all the leading retail florists on this occasion.

Wietor Bros. report a good demand for carnations this week with a grand clean-up in all varieties. American Beauty roses are in exceptionally brisk James McLaughlin, with the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, O., was here on his first visit to this city January 16. He says that his firm will add two large Lord & Burnham greenhouses to its range next spring.

The Raedlein Basket Co. is offering a heart-shaped handle basket for Valentine day which should be a winner. A red heart on the basket itself makes it doubly attractive.

James Barnard is now in the employ of Adolph Malchow, 3745 North Clark street. Louis Bauscher, who was with Mr. Malchow, has returned to Freeport.

Fred Schramm, of Park Ridge, is serving on the jury. He will grow the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co.'s fine new blush pink carnation, Superb, next season.

Percy Jones is handling a large supply of calendulas but the demand is so heavy for them that there is never any surplus after the day's orders are filled.

Henry Kruchten is suffering from blood poisoning in the left hand, but is on the job as usual at the John Kruchten Co.'s store.

It is rumored that another one of the local wholesale houses is planning on moving into a new location. Particulars later.

John Harris, Mike Kronis and Mrs. Nick Harris, of Pittsburgh, are guests

Miss Frieda Poehlmann is learning how to drive a car and is treating all her friends to a ride in her Winton Six.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner are offering as fancy a grade of callas as there is obtainable in this market.

Chas. Bond donated several orchid plants to the Allied Bazaar now being held in the Coliseum.

Chas. Samuelson expects to make a trip to Idaho immediately after St. Valentine's day.

BUSINESS GOOD AND PRICES SATISFACTORY.

The supply of stock continues good, although some of the growers report a shortage in roses, some of the varieties being off crop at the present time. There are, however, very good Killarney, Russell and a few American Beauty, sufficient of all to supply the demand. Sales continue good with a brisk call for plants and prices are satisfactory. The best sellers are the bulbous varieties, hyacinths and narcissi being much sought after. Violets grown in cold frames have been plentiful but the cold weather we are experiencing at present will affect the supply for a few days, but they will be the leaders for Valentine's day. The local trade are looking forward to this event as the next great rush before the Lenten season, which, although it does not seriously affect the social activity in this city, its presence is felt nevertheless.

NOTES.

Geny Bros. have a nice lot of sweet peas which are beginning to come in. Their violets are also in plentiful supply as are Bermuda lilies and lily of the valley. Roses are scarce.

Business has held up well since the holidays and the demand continues with a well balanced supply. Present offerings include fine antirrhinum, Paper White narcissus, sweet peas, violets, orchids, tulips and calla and rubrum lilies.

NOTES.

The florists' club held its first banquet at the English tea room, January 4, covers being laid for 17. The decorations of the room were very handsome and consisted of French baskets filled with Shawyer roses, snapdragons, sweet peas and primroses. Miss Rhoda Doswell presided as toastmistress and responses were made by various members of the club. A. W. Herre, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, was an out-of-town guest. The meetings will hereafter be held on the first Tuesday of each month, the February meeting at F. J. Knecht & Co.'s greenhouses.

A recent wedding of unusual interest to the florists of this city was that of Miss Rhoda Doswell, of the Doswell Floral Co. and president of the florists' club, to Henry J. Wickman of St. Louis. After a western trip the couple will make their home in that city. The bride was one of the best known local florists and decorators and her many friends wish her every happiness.

Christ. Winterlich, of Defiance, O., shipped some exceptionally fine poinsettias to this market for the holiday trade. He has demonstrated the fact that he can grow fine poinsettias as well as cyclamens.

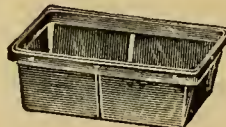

Among the local florists who will attend the annual meeting of the American Carnation Society at Indianapolis, January 31-February 1, is W. J. Vesey, Jr., president-elect of the State Florists' Association of Indiana.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are expecting shortly to receive a shipment of 5,000 orchid plants of many varieties from South America. This firm already has one of the foremost orchid collections in the United States.

THE LEO NIESSEN CO., 1201-5 Race St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Philadelphia.

ROSE SUPPLY LIMITED.

The season is on in earnest, there being many fashionable balls, dinners, and other entertainments, at which the floral decorations are quite up to or above the average of previous years. The supply appears not to have increased over that of last, which fell considerably below the demand. Roses are particularly scarce as many more could be used and sold to advantage. Nearly all the houses have orders for total shipments before they arrive. Easter lilies are in good supply. Pink Japan lilies are now a standard stock as they come along with great regularity and are much in demand, particularly when other stock is scarce. White lilac is fine and a good seller. Carnations are more plentiful than last year at this time, but the market takes them and calls for more, particularly the pink shades. Cattleyas are not overly plentiful. Lily of the valley hangs fire and is not up to its best in quality. Freesia is in and white buddleia is a novelty that looks as if it had merit. Violets are in good supply. Very good sweet peas are seen and many more promised before long.

NOTES.

A. B. Cartledge, of Pennock Bros., in speaking of Christmas roses, stated that they had never handled better American Beauties than this season; they made special arrangements with their dealers that the growers were to be instructed to let the blooms to fill their orders come to bursting buds or even partially open before they were cut. These were packed and marked for them at the greenhouses, arrived in splendid condition and gave the greatest satisfaction. Mr. Cartledge claims that roses cut right for shipping are not fit for city sales; their experience is that many do not open, and if they do, are then off color. When tight buds are delivered to be used in the dwelling, they wilt down in the dry air of the house before they expand, being too young to open out and mature.

Frank Birnbrauer, Second avenue and Oak Lane, met with a severe loss January 10. A fire breaking out in his boiler and packing shed, discovered at 4 a. m., consumed the shed, his auto car stored there, and the adjoining ends of the three houses that comprised the plant. The loss is total, as it was impossible to save any of the stock, that not burned freezing immediately as the fire was put out. There was no insurance. Mr. Birnbrauer and his son, who assisted him, have taken positions with John Stephenson of York road until spring, when the houses will be rebuilt. Mr. Birnbrauer has the sympathy of the craft in his great loss. It is supposed the fire caught from an imperfect flue.

The Robert Craig Co. has recovered from the damage to the boiler house last week and has everything in working order again. A splendid stock for Easter is under way. They will be particularly strong in rambler roses, lilies and hydrangeas. K.

FAIR BUSINESS HOLDS PRICES FIRM.

There was a fair volume of business during the past week, enough, considering the supply of stock, to keep prices on most lines at good figures. By the middle of the week the supply of carnations was on the increase and they moved slowly. The receipts of violets were much greater than the demand and prices dropped; nothing unusual in the violet market, as it is see-sawing all the time. A cold wave struck this section on January 11 and that night was the coldest, thus far, of the winter. The temperature fell to about six above zero and, with strong winds, the supply of stock is likely to be somewhat diminished; but a scarcity is unlikely. There has been a fair supply of roses and the supply of narcissi and tulips is increasing, tulips with a fair length of stem being now on the market. There is also a sufficient supply of lilies and lily of the valley.

January 15.—There is a fair movement in roses at good prices, but carnations, orchids, gardenias and violets are all dragging. For cattleyas, gardenias and violets, the demand is very light, with low prices. Four cents is a fair average for carnations, and they are not cleaning up. Roses, lilacs, snapdragons and the bulbous stocks seem to have the call; even lilies and lily of the valley are slow. Indications point to a big snowstorm, if it does not turn to rain.

NOTES.

The annual dinner of the heads of departments of Peter Henderson & Co. was held at Spilker's cafe on the evening of January 11. Twenty-five were present, a number of others being absent from sickness in their families, or being out on the road. The program stated that "Patrick O'Mara, general manager and baseball fan," would deliver an address, the probable subject being "The Home Run You Made Last Year Will Not Win This Year's Game." The first number—if that's the right word—on the menu card was: "Peace Cocktail a la W. J. B. served to those desiring it instead of a Martini." Not being well versed in foreign languages, we are unable to state what all the other eats and drinks were composed of, but are certain that everybody had enough. Prof. Guy Hunter and W. R. Smith entertained with songs; A. Mackrell with violin solos, and James Black with minstrel sketches and "bones." It was a very enjoyable affair, and it was the unanimous opinion that the best way to knock the high cost of living is to—plant Henderson's seeds.

John J. Coan, 115 West 28th street, who sells stock from August Doemling's range, Lansdowne, Pa., recently communicated with him over the long distance telephone and learned that no tidings had been heard of his son, Emil, who sailed on the ill-fated steamer Maryland, that sent out S. O. S. calls on Christmas night. It is yet possible that the crew, or a part of it, may have been picked up by passing vessels bound for some distant port. Shipwrecked sailors have from time to time been brought into New York, who had long been given up for lost.

At a meeting of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage at a fashionable hotel in this city, January 9, it was decided to spend as much for the cause as they are spending for hats. The sisters have plenty of money; nobody can hold a meeting at a fashionable hotel in this city who has not. We hope they will go the limit and spend as much for flowers as they spend for those dandy shoes they are wearing this winter, and then, they must be saving money on the cloth for skirts.

Peter Beuerlin, of Elmhurst, has bought 35 acres of land at Westbrook, N. J., and will remove there in June and erect greenhouses. The city of New York has already acquired a considerable part of his Elmhurst property and he has decided to go where he will have room, "to swing a cat by the tail." He is an extensive grower of carnations and bulbous stock.

Mrs. W. L. Trumppore, wife of W. L. Trumppore, buyer for J. H. Small & Sons, died at her home, in Rosebank, Staten Island, January 14, after a long illness. Much sympathy goes out to this family, as W. L. Trumppore is a patient in the French hospital, having recently undergone a delicate operation. There is one son who conducts a retail store at Stapleton, S. I.

Peter F. McKenney arranged a fine decoration, January 9, at Delmonico's, for the dinner of the Rocky Mountain club. This club, as we understand it, is composed of men who made their money in the west and came here to spend some of it. John Hays Hammond presided and Charles B. Dillingham had charge of the arrangements.

Frank Traendly, of Traendly & Schenck, and Robert Simpson, the rose grower of Clifton, N. J., returned January 11 from an enjoyable western trip. They visited the ranges of the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., the Heller Bros., Newcastle, Ind., and a number of the leading Chicago firms.

Even the old almanac makers, who predicted weather a year ahead, would have been puzzled by New York weather during the past week. On January 11-12 it was near zero; on the 13th and 14th there was a deluge of rain. The forecast is for another cold snap.

A. L. Young has recently been interested in the celebrated Rae Tanzer case, but not as a suitor of Rae, we hasten to state. He has been on a jury in the United States court that was trying a man who had somehow got mixed into it.

In our report of committees appointed by President Stumpp at the club meeting, January 8, the name of Frank H. Traendly was inadvertently omitted from the committee on special premiums for the club.

W. H. Long, the retailer of 412 Columbus avenue, who has been in a hospital for some time as the result of an operation, is now much improved and has been discharged from the institution.

John Manolos, who over a year ago bought out the retail business of George Hanges, at 546 Columbus avenue, has a good store and reports good holiday business.

George C. Siebrecht, 109 West 28th street, is handling good cut stock of acacia which was grown at the range of his father, W. H. Siebrecht, Sr., Chappaqua, N. Y.

Max Schling advises us that his large force is being kept very busy and that his present quarters are not large enough to accommodate his increasing trade.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

ROCKVILLE, IND.—H. B. Brubeck reports the holiday business of 1916 about on a par with that of the previous year as far as volume of sales were concerned. Cut flower stock was in short supply, due to dark weather, and while the call for pot plants was greater than in previous years the supply was ample for requirements.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., First
Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fifth annual convention, June, 1917.

GLOXINIAS and tuberous begonias have arrived.

FLOWER seed novelties are among the short items this season.

POTATOES for domestic use advanced two cents per bushel at Chicago last week.

CARL CROPP, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, closed the thirty-second year with his house January 12.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade January 17 were as follows: Timothy, $4.00 to $5.50 per 100 pounds.

PEDRICKTOWN, N. J.—Hamilton G. Pedrick has been elected a director of the First National Bank of his home town for the ensuing year.

TRADE interest in the flower and vegetable seed needs of the government seems to be waning, probably due to the decrease in surplus stocks.

THE Japanese produce a "vegetable milk" from the soy bean. This milk is used fresh, in a condensed form, and as the basis for vegetable cheese.

BOSTON, MASS.—The Thomas J. Gray Co., Inc., is now located in more commodious quarters at 16 South Market street, where they occupy the entire building.

WATKINS & SIMPSON, the well known English firm of seed growers and dealers, are now located in a handsome new building at 27-29 Drury Lane, Covent Garden, London.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—S. Murato & Co. have leased the Johnson building, 380-386 South Los Angeles street, and will add a seed department to their cut flower and supply business.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, Chicago, reports unusual wholesale demand for its flower seed specialties. This firm's store is being overhauled and decorated for the coming retail campaign.

VISITED CHICAGO: C. C. Massie, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn.; Henry Nungesser, of the Nungesser-Dickinson Seed Co., New York; F. H. Henry, of Henry & Lee, New York.

PRESIDENT Kirby B. White has called a meeting of the executive committee of the American Seed Trade Association for January 30 at the Vanderbilt hotel, New York, to decide the meeting place of the next convention and arrange the programme.

WE are informed that some seedsmen of the United States continue to send orders for seeds and bulbs to Europe at the same time of year as they were accustomed to mail them before the war when steamship sailings were regular and frequent. It should be remembered that the sailings of ocean mail and freight service in either direction are few and far between as compared with those of the first half of 1914.

THE list of varieties available for the commission box business has been greatly curtailed.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Henry F. Mitchell Co., Inc., tendered their force of traveling salesmen a dinner at the new Bingham hotel December 30.

HELENA, MONT.—H. R. Gould, formerly in charge of the seed department of the Clinton Falls Nursery Co., Owatonna, Minn., has taken the management of the wholesale department of the State Nursery Co. of this city.

Garden Seeds in Politics.

Old abuses die hard in congress. Some of them do not die at all.

Despite the criticism aimed at the policy of spending public money in the free distribution of garden seeds for the political glory of members of congress, the new appropriation bill is to provide $243,000 to be used in this manner. The need for economy is ignored by congress when expensive perquisites of its members are under consideration.

The appropriation ordered for the purpose, though preposterously large, does not tell the whole story. Garden seed packages are sent through the mails under congressional frank, which imposes a large additional cost on the national government.

Congress acts in a particularly shameless way in continuing such wasteful expenditures at a time when the burdens of the taxpayers are being very greatly increased and new taxes are being invented to swell the public revenues.—Chicago Daily News.

New Zealand Spinach.

One of the crops we have tried with success under glass is the New Zealand spinach. It promises well, and we believe it could be pushed to hold a very important position in the forcing industry. At first the public was a little skeptical but we have overcome all doubts by handing out free samples for a time. The result was that we soon had no samples to spare, the demand taking the entire cut. We set the price on a par with leaf lettuce, and at this it should be more profitable than lettuce as it is a cut and come again crop. Its producing power is a wonder. It seems to be free from all diseases and insect pests and adapts itself to a wide range of temperatures. It thrives in a higher temperature than lettuce, say 55° to 60°; however, it will make good progress at 50°. Besides, it transplants readily. It can be handled much like lettuce, but needs more room, 15x15 being better than 8x8. It is extremely succulent, and its tender growth appeals to the buyer at sight. We simply termed it, "Hot-house spinach," and as such it has a place. Compared with the common spinach it is away ahead as a cropper under glass, and if the demand can be established permanently, here is a new and valuable crop.

MARKETMAN.

Providence, R. I.

SUPPLY OF STOCK VERY SHORT.

The supply of stock in this market has been very short during the past week. Roses are advancing in price daily, present quotations being from $8 to $16 per 100. Carnations are selling at from $6 to $8 per 100, and while violets are beginning to arrive and the quality is excellent the supply is limited. Sweet peas are also seen and what few there are show good form. Orchids are good and colors superb; daffodils and marguerites are among the offerings. Bulbous stock seems to be in short supply this year, but what little is being received is good. Paper Whites and Romans sell well.

NOTES.

The Rhode Island Fruit Growers' Association, the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, the Newport Horticultural Society and the Corn Growers' Association held a meeting during the past week to decide whether it would be advisable to hold a joint exhibition this year instead of individual shows as in past years. As yet nothing definite has been decided upon.

Samuel Resnick of the Jos. Kopelman force, who has been on the sick list, is out again and gaining fast. He will be back on the job shortly, his friends will be glad to hear.

Max Villers has left the Johnston Bros. force to enter another line of business. Henry Patrie takes his place.

One of the largest seed houses in the West, The Aggeler & Musser Seed Company, Sixth and Alameda streets, Los Angeles, have just received the first edition of their new 1917 catalog, and are giving it broadcast distribution. This is their 24th Annual Catalog, and it certainly surpasses any previous edition.

It contains many new features such as hints to the home vegetable gardener, how gardening may be made easy, etc. In fact, the supplementary booklet, called the "Garden Manual," which heretofore has been printed separately, is this year incorporated in the big Annual, and is claimed to be one of the most complete seed books published. It contains answers to more than 1,000 questions and gives information regarding all varieties of plants listed and is fully illustrated. Not only does it tell all about seeds, but gives full data concerning the correct tools and implements agriculturists should use to obtain the best results. Valuable hints on Poultry, Spraying, Fertilizing, and the use of Insecticides are also given.

The Aggeler & Musser Seed Company will gladly send this descriptive, illustrated and interesting catalog free and postpaid to anyone writing and requesting it.

GARLAND MANUFACTURING COMPANY
DES PLAINES, ILLINOIS. LOUIS WITTBOLD, President.

Boston.

MARKET IS FIRM.

During the past week business has held up very well on nearly every line of stock. Roses have advanced in price, as the crop shortened with the dull weather. The average figure is now from $6 up to $16 per 100 for the common commercial grade, but a few fancy lots sell for even more. Carnations are a little more plentiful and consequently the price has decreased a slight degree. From $4 to $5 per 100 seems to be about the average. Bulbous stock is coming slowly and the price is high. Jonquils bring $6 per 100 and Paper White narcissi sells from $2.50 to $3 per 100. Violets are scarce and bring $1 per 100. Yellow primroses and polyanthus sell at $4 per dozen bunches, the supply being very limited. Yellow marguerites are very scarce and are bringing unusually high prices. Lily of the valley is practically unobtainable at any price.

NOTES.

Robert Montgomery, of Natick, is improving after his mishap, and, with the exception of a badly sprained shoulder and a broken bone, is as well as may be expected after such a severe shaking up.

The Rawson Conservatories, Inc., are cutting a heavy crop of carnations at present, many of which are going to New York. Enchantress Supreme, Ward and Matchless are grown extensively.

John Barr, of South Natick, is getting a fine lot of carnations now. His Pink Delight are especially fine. He will grow 2,500 plants of the new carnation, Albert Roper, next year.

W. S. Wilson, of Wellesley, has commenced cutting Spencer sweet peas of very good quality. He will have a large crop of them this year, as about half his range is devoted to them.

Burgess & Cooney are shipping a fine lot of fresas from their plant at Maplewood. F. L. W.

Tri-City Florists' Club.

The January meeting of the Tri-City Florists' Club was held at the residence of Ludwig Stapp, Rock Island, Ill., and the flower show committee reported the Masonic temple in that city had been rented for November 2-4. It was decided to have a competitive show and an admission fee of 25 cents will be charged. C. O. E. Boehm, C. J. Reardon and A. Anderson were appointed a committee to draft a set of rules by which the exhibitors will be governed. The next meeting will be held at the residence of H. G. Pauli, Davenport, Ia.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

The American Carnation Society will hold its twenty-sixth annual meeting and exhibition at Indianapolis, Ind., January 31-February 1, 1917, this being the fourth time the society has met in the metropolis of Indiana, the third, eleventh and eighteenth conventions having been held February 20-21, 1894, February 19-20, 1902, and January 27-28, 1909, respectively. Those who attended the previous meetings in this city will recall them as most successful and all indications presage that the 1917 convention will go down in the history of the society as an unsurpassed success, both in attendance and the number and quality of the exhibits. Indianapolis is well known as an ideal convention city with unsurpassed railroad and express facilities, accessible from all directions. Hoosier hospitality is always unstinted, and the committees, composed of members of the State Florists' Association of Indiana and the local trade, in charge of the local arrangements, have left nothing undone that might add to the comfort and pleasure of the visitors. The Claypool hotel, which will be convention headquarters, with its splendid exhibition hall, as well as meeting and committee rooms, all on the mezzanine floor, offers unexcelled facilities.

The exhibition will be staged by 1 o'clock, and after the judging is finished, it will be held for inspection of the members of the society until 8 p. m., at which time the public will be admitted, also Thursday afternoon and evening, no admission being charged.

All members are requested to attend the business sessions, the first of which will be called to order at 8 p. m., Wednesday. Another session will be held Thursday morning, and if necessary, a third will be called Thursday afternoon. Officers will be nominated Wednesday evening and the election will take place Thursday morning. The banquet will be served Thursday evening.

Novelties being disseminated this year will be a feature of the exhibition, and it is expected that many of these will be seen, in addition to the standard varieties. Among the varieties offered this year, we note the following:

Cottage Maid, a sport of Mrs. C. W. Ward, essentially a commercial variety, which originated with the Cottage Gardens Co., Inc., Queens, N. Y., winner of the first prize and sweepstakes cup at the St. Louis exhibition in 1916, first prize in its class at the Cleveland show, and the prize for keeping qualities after being shipped from New York, has also added prizes and certificates from many other exhibitions to its credit. Crystal White, winner of the American Carnation Society's gold medal among other honors, is also a Cottage Gardens Co. novelty, which, however, will not be sent out until 1918.

Belle Washburn, the red commercial carnation sent out by Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, winner of the American Carnation Society's silver medals in 1915 and 1916; also the S. A. F. silver medal in 1916, is fully maintaining its splendid record, having received numerous first prizes and certificates at exhibitions in various parts of the country.

Superb, a seedling of Gloriosa and Enchantress, of a soft salmon color, introduced by the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill. The blooms average three inches in diameter and are of excellent keeping quality. It has the strong stem of Gloriosa and the quick growing habit of Enchantress.

Olive Whitman is a new red seedling, possessing all the fine qualities of its parents, Victory and Beacon, grown by M. Matheron, Baldwin, N. Y., and distributed by Guttman & Raynor, Inc., New York. This variety will be disseminated 1917-1918.

Rosalia, cerise pink, and Old Gold, dark yellow with narrow pink stripe, are the 1917 novelties of F. Dorner & Sons Co., Lafayette, Ind., possessing all the sterling qualities for which this well known firm's products are famous.

Doris is described by its grower, S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., as a fine growing crimson with a robust constitution, producing high grade blooms throughout the season.

Thenanthos, for which A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, are sole distributors, winner of the silver sweepstakes cup and first prize medal and ribbons awarded by the Horticultural Society of Chicago, continues to be an object of deep admiration among the reds. Its parentage is Enchantress x red seedling, the latter a cross of Nelson x Lawson, with the habit of Scott but stronger stem.

Radium, a new red seedling, with Bassett and Victory for its parents, is a new introduction of P. J. Olinger, New Castle, Ind. This is said to be a carnation of great producing power, a beautiful scarlet of uniform shade with flowers averaging four inches in diameter, has strong stems and is a continuous bloomer during the winter months.

Cornell, a new red which originated with Ira G. Marvin, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., five years ago has been successfully grown since then, said to be of good color with medium sized flower, lasts well and is a very free bloomer, especially at the holiday season.

Merry Christmas, Baur & Steinkamp's popular scarlet, is in fine condition at this firm's range at Indianapolis and will doubtless give a good account of itself.

Miss Theo, a product of the Littlefield & Wyman establishment at North Abington, Mass., is, it is said, living up to her reputation.

Amaryllis Belladonna and Ismene.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Please advise winter treatment of Amaryllis Belladonna and Ismene bulbs for our climate, northern Kansas.

C. K.

If the amaryllis bulbs are still in the pots in which they have been growing, we would leave in moderate temperature and light, with little or no water until the bulbs show signs of growth; then shake out of old soil, trim off decayed roots, and repot in soil that drains well, avoiding any rank or raw fertilizer. Water sparingly until growth of flower stalk shows, and then more freely as the plants seem to need it. After the blooming period, we keep them under growing conditions until the crop of leaves develop and ripen. When leaves begin to yellow, we dry off, leaving in the pots in a shady, cool place until time to start again.

For bulbs out of soil we plant in suitable size pots, give one good watering, and then treat as above, except they will hardly need further potting for this season. Ismene calathina are usually treated much like gladioli, for outdoor flowering, and for indoor growing, we would suggest treatment similar to gladioli also, not planting until mid-December or January 1.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.

George Wittbold Co.'s New Store.

In 1868, George Wittbold purchased a plot of ground in the outskirts of Chicago on which he erected greenhouses to carry on his business. It was a rather swampy spot where he had been wont to hunt game, but he found it could be bought cheap, and would suit his purpose, so the sale was made. Today, it lies in a high-class residential district, fronts on Buckingham place, and extends through to Halsted street, a full city block. As the business grew it was finally covered with greenhouses. A year ago, about a quarter of these, together with the retail store, were torn down, and a large flat or apartment building, was erected by the company on the corner of the lot. This is now filled with tenants. A sunken garden or court adjoins this, which will have a row of ornamental pillars along the street front of 100 feet. Adjoining this has been erected another apartment house, the first floor of which is occupied with their very up-to-date and handsomely arranged store, in the rear of which are two large conservatories.

The store is entered from Buckingham place through a marble and glass vestibule, with flemish oak woodwork. The walls and domed ceilings are of cement with cream colored tile finish. Four large square tiled columns in the center support the ceiling. Clusters of candle electric light fixtures in copper effects add materially to the decorative features.

A large Buchbinder flower case or refrigerator, 18 feet in length, by four in depth, with tiled floor, leaded glass front, woodwork hand carved and finished in flemish oak, is the last word in ornamental flower cases, quite in keeping with the handsome interior. Two large doors, which open out, are thought better and more convenient than if made to slide.

Commodious and well furnished offices open off the store to the right, while the conservatories in the rear, in full view of the store, are ornamental and very practical. They are of Garland truss construction, divided in two sections, one to be kept cooler than the other. One is 27x65 feet, the other, 23x45 feet. All the walls are covered with "Tufa" stone and planted with ferns and other suitable plants. A large fountain, supplied by the A. L. Randall Co., is a feature. Hand elevators at each end provide convenient means of conveying stock to the packing rooms in the basement.

A wide stairs leads from the store to a half basement show room, in which are carried all the latest baskets, ribbons and other bric-a-brac, so necessary to the up-to-date business of today. Opening from this room, in the rear, are the work room and stock refrigerator. A series of zinc-covered tables, on which all orders are put up and bouquets and designs arranged, are conveniently placed. Enclosed phones are a feature. The balance of this basement floor is used as a receiving and shipping room; it is a commodious space, 50 and 60 feet with cement floor, an invaluable aid, particularly during the rush days of the holiday seasons. A Kroeschell ice machine furnishes the cold storage for all refrigerators.

A space along the rear wall of the sunken garden has been built over and is used as a storage house for wild smilax and other like material. A large show room to the right of the basement staircase is to be used for displays of garden furniture, vases and a full line of terra cotta jardinières and other such requisites. Taken altogether, this is one of the best appointed retail stores in the country. Large ranges of glass in the rear on Halsted street are filled with an immense assortment of palms, ferns, dracenas and other decorative plants. The firm enjoys perhaps the largest decorative plant business in this country.

Two of the Wittbold brothers comprise the firm. Louis is general manager and Frederick has charge of the decorative branch. Fred Nelson is in charge of the retail department and takes great pleasure in showing the many local and out-of-town visitors through the beautiful Wittbold establishment.

St. Valentine's Day Posterette.

The St. Valentine's day posterette or stamp issued by the Chicago Florists' Club for the use of florists in advertising for business incident to this great flower day is attracting widespread attention in the trade, over 130,000 having been already ordered. This beautiful posterette or stamp is heart shaped and appropriately printed in red and white, size 2x2¼ inches and is especially designed for the use of florists and others on the face or back of their letterheads, bills, statements, circulars or other matter sent out through the mails and on flower boxes. This posterette is very attractive and gummed ready for use.

An enlarged or poster form (7¼x7¾ inches) has been prepared for use on store entrances, windows, mirrors, greenhouses, delivery wagons, etc. One retailer has already ordered a large number of these posters to be used in street car advertising. The price of these posters is five cents each or 50 cents per dozen. Some 6,000 of these posters have already been sold.

The prices for the small posterettes are as follows: 100, 75 cents; 500, $3; 1,000, $5; 2,000, $9; $5,000, $20; 10,000, $35; 15,000, $50; 25,000, $70; $50,000, $125; 100,000 $200; 500,000, $500; 1,000,000, $800. These prices include postage or express.

To insure the best results the use of the St. Valentine's day posterette should be started without delay. All orders and inquiries should be addressed to the chairman of the committee in charge of this publicity work. F. Lautenschlager, 440 West Erie street, Chicago, Ill.

Florists everywhere can obtain supplies of these posters and posterettes by sending order as above with remittance to cover the quantity desired.

Mr. Lautenschlager will attend the Indianapolis convention of the American Carnation Society, January 31 and February 1, prepared to book orders for these posters and posterettes. Arrangements can be made for the use of this poster in bill posting by addressing Mr. Lautenschlager as above. The February bills and statements will afford an excellent opportunity for the use of these posterettes. The posterettes and posters are ready for immediate delivery or shipment.

DAYTON, O.—W. G. Matthews, of the Dayton Floral Co., reports business good and the outlook rosy. Coming on for Easter he has 20,000 fine lilies, 5,000 pot roses, 10,000 tulips, 5,000 Dutch hyacinths, 500 rhododendrons and 400 azaleas, besides quantities of miscellaneous stock such as ferns, palms, primroses, cyclamens, begonias, etc.

Bedding Plants.

With the month of January another season's work commences with this class of plants and from now on until planting out time there will not be any let up in the preparation and working along of the stock. The gardeners in charge of cemetery greenhouses or others who grow large quantities of bedding plants will not have to look around to find something to keep them busy.

A very important part at the commencement of this work is to overhaul the stock plants and get them in shape to produce a generous supply of cuttings. Clean off any dead or diseased foliage, repot such as need it and give them a good situation on the greenhouse bench where they will get ample light and receive daily attention. Unless a close watch is kept to have these plants free of insects by frequent fumigations they quickly become nests for all kinds of insects which not only check the plants' growth but weaken the cuttings as well. Watering is another important part of their care; they should receive water as they need it, but when overdone, it causes the cuttings to be soft and liable to rot quickly after being put in the sand. At the same time it is a mistake to allow stock plants of any description to get to extreme dryness, which is a favorable condition for the spread of red spider.

When everything has been done to encourage the stock plants and a good supply of cuttings are in sight, the propagating house should be put in order, seeing to it that all the necessary arrangements are made to facilitate the work of turning out a large number of rooted cuttings in the shortest possible time. One of the secrets of being successful with bedding plants is to keep them moving quickly, never allowing cutting or plant to stand still long enough to receive a check and become hard and wirey. Fresh clean sand is one of the most essential requisites in the propagation of these plants as with all others; it is a mistake to think because bedding plants are considered a cheap line of stock, any old sand will do to propagate them in. Trouble will very soon arise if the sand is not strictly fresh and sweet.

The list of these plants that can be propagated now is a long one, but our first consideration should be to arrange for plenty of stock of such standard varieties as alternanthera, ageratum, Luminosa begonia, cuphea, geranium, heliotrope, fuchsias, marguerites, etc. Keep the propagating beds filled up all the time until all the stock needed for the spring business is provided for.

It is now time to commence shifting along the fall struck stock of bedding plants, the most important of which are the geraniums. These should now be in condition for potting into 3-inch pots. The most suitable compost for them is a live fresh soil containing a liberal amount of well rotted stable manure and sand. Should the soil be too wet to handle properly, spread it out on the shed floor to dry out a bit; when dry enough, run it through the sifter.

Pot geraniums firmly; they make a much more sturdy growth than if lightly potted and one of the beauties of a well grown geranium plant is its dwarf habit. After potting, a good bench in a light, airy house is the ideal place for them. Water them in well, after which allow the plants to become well along toward dryness between each watering, which will help to keep them dwarf and sturdy. When allowed too much water they become long and stalky.

Examine the clumps of cannas and dahlias to find out how they are keeping, and if found to be rotting or drying up too much give them attention. If an early supply of pot cannas is needed, it is not any too early to start them up; tubers started up now will make nice salable plants in 3½-inch or 4-inch pots by May 1.

The seeds of the different annuals are now coming in. Make every preparation for sowing them as soon as they come to hand. Sow pansy seed now for late spring flowering plants. Prepare the shallow boxes by placing a little coarse material over the bottom, filling up with finely sifted soil, pressing it firmly down, then water the soil with a fine rose sprinkler and let it remain several hours before sowing the seed. Sow the seed thinly and lightly and cover with finely sifted soil. Very fine seed such as begonia, petunia and lobelia should receive only a dusting of fine soil as a covering and cover the boxes with panes of glass, removing them for a little while each morning to let the dampness dry off them. Verbena, celosia, bellis, Centaurea candidissima, salvia and vinca are all due for sowing at this time. Watch closely for the appearance of the young seedlings, and as soon as they become large enough to handle, attend to the work of transplanting them. One thing connected with the raising of these plants that should be borne in mind is that they need plenty of light and the best place for them is on a shelf near the glass.

C. W. JOHNSON.

PORTLAND, ORE.—The Tonseth Floral Co. has doubled the capacity of its establishment.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.—Christmas sales were 15 per cent better with no advance in prices as compared with the corresponding period in 1915, is the report of D. E. Law. The supply of roses and carnations was ample and violets were imported. Paper Whites were the only bulbous flowers on the market and cleaned up completely. The quality of stock in all lines was better than last year. The call for flowering plants was better than in former years, but an increase in the number of street stands operating this year and selling greens and cheap flowers from the coast cut down the business of the established stores.

E. G. Hill with His Seedling Roses.

THE ROSE.

E. G. Hill's Seedling Roses.

Comparatively few American rose growers have tried to produce new varieties by means of cross fertilization; many will lose large sums, however, trying out new kinds, which look to them at first sight, much better than they afterwards prove to be.

"Idealism plays an important part in the work of the hybridist; let the imagination have play; conjure up in your mind the kinds and qualities you would combine in the variety you wish produced, then select the parents carefully and await results. Time, patience—unlimited patience—is the one great requisite."

These are the words of E. G. Hill, the greatest rose hybridist of America, whose ideals of perfection in roses are mountain high. His reaching into the future, his grasping at what some think are but rainbow vapors, which soon and too often fade away, did not chill his enthusiasm. He has for the past 15 years, in the face of many disappointments, kept up his ardor for the work, until at last reward has come in the most wonderful results it has been the lot of any hybridizer to obtain.

OPHELIA, THE MOTHER PLANT.

There is now in his greenhouses at Richmond, Ind., a collection of over 40 varieties of seedlings from crosses made with Ophelia as the mother plant. The general excellence of these 40 or more varieties is proven by the fact that no two of the many practical rose growers, whose pleasure it has been to study and go over their various characteristics, have agreed as to which are the best. All grafted, and now in their second year, the selections by Mr. Hill as the best of some 2,500 are with but few exceptions growing luxuriously, all showing the vigor of the mother plant to a degree and bearing the birth mark of the more or less curved stem that is the pronounced feature of Ophelia. In nearly every seedling the man who knows roses can pick out the other parent, recognizing the variety at once in the shape, petalage and color of the flower and the closely inherited foliage. There are blocks of six, of twelve, and even more of some kinds, planted on two long benches in the same house with standard sorts grown for flowers. These seedlings look equally as well and quite a number of the varieties pronouncedly better than this proven stock. As they open out, they are, with but few exceptions, superior in some particular. A few very strong growing, creamy white with sulphur and deeper shades of yellow in the center, Sunburst crosses, will as the plants grow stronger make huge flowers. No. 609 is one of the best of this family. No. 1238 is another showing great vigor, a beautiful bud with as many petals as Ophelia. No. 112 is a large white with yellow center, a very strong grower.

KAISERIN CROSSES.

There are several fine pure white crosses of Kaiserin, perfect flowers; No. 666, while not such an erect grower, may come through later. A standard white should be found here.

There are several very fine pinks. No. 627, a Killarney Brilliant cross, is a huge flower, a trifle single but gorgeous in color. No. 1367, a strong grower, is a good clear shade, fine in bud and when open, a shapely full flower—certainly a fine variety. A Sawyer cross No. 392 is picked as a winner by many; it would count very high in the commercial scale; the color, form, size, growth and vigor all are there. A beautiful pink, No. 427, is a long shapely bud on strong stem—one of the best.

There are not many reds. A Richmond cross is fair, but not conspicuous. Another cross produced an immense brilliant flower, but too single. Quite a number favor the mother in color, but none are as deep as this variety when well grown. They are nearly all lighter outside, with shades of coppery pink or yellow toward the center; very beautiful, but perhaps not as definite in color as is necessary for commercial sorts.

Others that stood out were: No. 1367, a strong grower, good shade of pink, very free; No. 702, a full double creamy yellow; No. 467, My Maryland cross, a very free flowering pink of Maryland shade; No. 844, an almost white Ophelia, strong grower; No. 565, a blush, with long stems, very free. A Russell cross, No. 427, seemed very prolific, having three buds on stems, 30 to 36 inches on one plant; others in the same block were almost as good. Lady Alice Stanley was seen in several blocks, foliage and flower very apparent; one of these should make a place. A Mrs. Ward held her own in the struggle, the personality being quite pronounced, but Ophelia was seen in the stem and foliage.

To see and properly appreciate this wonderful collection, one should make visits two or three weeks apart or perhaps in early March, when they have attained their full growth and all are likely to be in crop. They will be then at their best. Perhaps by that time, the best will have proved their right to be worthy of a place as forcing roses for the American market.

Mr. Hill has just gathered the seed hips of this year's hybridizing. The utmost care has been given this work, particularly along the lines laid down by Mendel. A number of older varieties, parents of the present standard sorts, have been secured and crossings of the seedlings made back; also seedlings back on Ophelia, which have given splendid results.

SEEDLING ROSES AT E. G. HILL CO.'S, RICHMOND, IND.

Vase of Red Rover.

The plants for breeding purposes are grown in six and seven-inch pots. Spring is the best time for hybridizing and considerable care must be taken in all stages of the work to secure accuracy; plants must be well cared for until seed is fully ripened, as immature seed will not germinate.

Mr. Hill is entitled to the greatest appreciation by all the craft in this country. He has raised many splendid garden sorts. His General McArthur is a superb flower, unquestionably the best scarlet garden rose. Rhea Reid obtained the highest honors in Europe, being decided the finest rose in the world, in the competition of that year. Many other sorts of his introductions of less note are still grown. His Richmond has held the place of honor as one of the best forcing roses for a long time. He was the first to see merit in Ophelia and has many other like successes in introducing new varieties of commercial roses.

Rose Mrs. Chas. Gersdorff.

Chas. E. F. Gersdorff, of Washington, D. C., advises that the description of his rose printed in our issue of December 23, 1916, should read as follows:

"The plant is of strong climbing habit, sending strong canes yearly from the root, both in spring and fall; strong thorns, not too thickly set; profuse and almost constant flowering habit; flowers generally borne singly, though, also in clusters of two to four; flowers very durable, remaining in good condition in hot sunshine for five days by actual test; buds large, like tulips in shape; color, a beautiful Killarney pink, shading to blush shell pink. The flowers possess a strong hybrid tea fragrance. Have grown these roses for past seven years outdoors without protection in both northern and southern exposures without winter killing.

Ohio State Hort. Society Anniversary.

The fiftieth anniversary of the Ohio State Horticultural Society will be celebrated at the annual meeting at Columbus, January 30-31. Speakers for the meeting will include H. M. Dunlap, president of the National Apple Growers' Association; S. W. Fletcher, professor of horticulture, Pennsylvania State College; and the following from the staff of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station: W. J. Green, J. B. Keil and F. H. Ballou, horticulturists; A. D. Selby, botanist; H. A. Gosard and J. S. Houser, entomologists.

The speakers from the College of Agriculture will include Wendell Paddock, V. H. Davis, R. B. Cruickshank and A. C. Hottes of the department of horticulture and F. H. Lathrop and Max Kisliuk of the department of entomology. N. E. Shaw and E. J. Hoddy, nursery inspectors of the state board of agriculture, and W. T. Mann and W. W. Farnsworth, practical nurserymen, will also be on the programme.

Nebraska State Florists' Society.

The annual joint meeting of the Nebraska State Florists' Society, in conjunction with members of the trade in western Iowa and Missouri, brief mention of which was made in our issue of January 13, page 1394, was held at Lincoln, January 16. There was a good attendance and the programme was a very interesting one. President Williams being unable to attend, Charles Green was selected to act as chairman. The opening address was made by J. J. Hess of Omaha who brought up a number of pertinent points, among them being regulating credits and discounts or commissions to agents in the country districts. In the discussion which followed, the following spoke in favor of regulation in both cases: Roy Wilcox, Council Bluffs, Ia.; Chas. P. Mueller, Wichita, Kan.; J. S. Wilson, Des Moines, Ia.; Arthur Smith, of Boone, Ia.; C. H. Green of Fremont, Neb.; G. M. Johnson of Beatrice, Neb.; W. E. Davidson of Holdrege, Neb.; C. Chapin of Lincoln, Neb.; J. R. Simanton, Falls City, Neb.; L. Henderson, Omaha, Neb.; C. H. Frey of Lincoln, Neb., and others.

A vote being called for, the society decided on a discount of 20 per cent to all agents, payable the first of each month. It was also decided to allow a discount of 10 per cent on bills of 60 days dating and 90 days net. Accounts of longer standing will be considered bad pay and marked as such. J. J. Hess, Roy Wilcox, C. H. Green and C. P. Mueller were selected to draft a resolution for adoption, after which copies will be sent to all florists in this part of the country.

Included in the local hospitalities was a trip to the several growing establishments followed by a dinner at the Savoy Hotel, tendered the visitors by C. H. Frey.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: C. H. Frey, Lincoln, president; C. M. Johnston, Beatrice, vice-president; Lewis Henderson, Omaha, secretary-treasurer.

The banquet at the Lincoln hotel, which was attended by 25 florists and their guests, was a most delightful affair. The tables were resplendent with C. H. Frey's red carnation, Nebraska, and the mantel was elaborate with roses arranged by Roy Wilcox. President Williams welcomed the guests.

COLD WEATHER HOLDS BACK SUPPLY.

Business continues to be most satisfactory, the only trouble being to secure enough stock. The cold weather is still with us and is holding back flowers to a great extent. All available roses are quickly bought up and prices continue very firm. American Beauties are in brisk demand, with the supply short. Russells are coming along a little more freely. The quality is extra good and the stock moves fast. There are plenty of shipping calls for this variety and Ophelia. The cut of carnations is not increasing to any appreciable extent and none of the stock waits very long for buyers. Red carnations are more plentiful just at present than for some time past. Many of the growers report the carnations splitting badly just at present, owing to the very cold weather. Violets especially are suffering more than anything else from the continued cold spell. The stems are shorter, flowers smaller and supply much below that of former years. The shipping call is brisk, but all orders have to be cut down to a considerable extent. The supply of bulbous stock is the only item that seems to be on the increase. Freesias are plentiful and of splendid quality. There are very large quantities disposed of daily at very good prices. Daffodils and narcissi are in ample supply. The former sell well but have taken a drop in price as compared with last week. A few lilies are coming along, just about enough for the demand, which is not very strong. Cattleyas are in the market a little more plentifully. Trianae is the chief variety coming along. All sell at firm prices. Quite a lot of cut cyclamens are used, also some Primula obconica, and Forbesi. Snapdragons are scarce and practically out of the market. The same is true of lily of the valley. Some fine azaleas are to be seen in the down town stores. They seem to have made their appearance too late for the holidays. Greens are in strong demand, yet stock is none too plentiful. Asparagus has not suffered from the cold weather as yet, and sells quickly.

NOTES.

We have been informed by Frank G. Cuthbertson, of C. C. Morse & Co., who is assistant secretary of the American Sweet Pea Society, that there will not be a sweet pea show in this city this coming spring. This announcement will be a matter of much regret to the many lovers of this charming annual. It was found that all of the work and much of the financial burden of the show fell on a limited number, and coming at a time of the year when most of them are exceptionally busy, it was thought best to drop the show until a stronger organization could be gotten together. It is hoped that the cause of the sweet pea will be championed on the coast by the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society or the Menlo Park Horticultural Society. There is surely a splendid opportunity for these two strong organizations to co-operate now and hold a sweet peas show in June.

The Lynch Nursery Company was in with a splendid house of snapdragons for the Christmas holidays. This firm is very successful in the growing of this popular flower. The favorite varieties are Nelrose, Keystone and Silver Pink. The carnation range at this establishment is producing heavily. Matchless is largely grown and does splendidly here. Their new red seedling carnation, as yet unnamed, is proving the most prolific of all reds to date that they have tried.

The coal situation is again very acute in this vicinity. Many of the growers who were unable to get deliveries early in the season, are now compelled to go into the open market for their supplies at very much advanced prices. There seems to be no immediate relief in sight or prospects of any. Many of the growers say this will be their last season with coal, intending to change to fuel oil. Several of our largest growers are now using oil exclusively, with splendid results.

At the last meeting of the Menlo Park Horticultural Society, President elect John M. Daly was awarded the society's gold medal for the most points won during the year at the monthly meeting exhibits. A gold medal was also awarded to John M. Aitken for his exhibits made during the past year. A large number were in attendance and refreshments were served after the meeting.

Henry Goertzhain is bringing in some splendid carnations from his Redwood Nurseries. He has a splendid lot of lilies coming along. They are all clean and vigorous, and give promise of being extra fine stock. Like a great many more of the growers, his coal supply has been giving him much concern, but so far he has been able to secure enough for his needs.

Last month was the coldest December we have passed through for 11 years. Many varieties of plants which heretofore survived our winters without injury, show the effects of the severe cold. Such plants as coprosmas, pittesporums, crepe myrtle and plumbago have all been hit more or less. We will all be glad to see the cold spell pass again.

Many florists and greenhouse men claim that there will be a very heavy demand for bedding plants of all kinds this coming spring. We have had the coldest weather known for many years and all soft wooded plants have been killed. Many growers are now preparing to meet this demand.

M. H. Ebel, Sacramento, who is in town this week, reports having a splendid Christmas and holiday trade. He says more stock could have been easily disposed of if it were to be had. Large quantities of pot plants were sent up from this section and sold out completely.

J. Otto Thilow, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., is spending a few days in the city. Paul and Henry Dailedouze, of New York, were also in town and visited many of the leading growers before they departed for Honolulu, where they will spend part of the winter.

John Carbone, the orchid grower at Berkeley, had a large write-up in the Wasp, a local society magazine, recently. A splendid cut of his new hybrid Brasso-Cattleya, Queen of California, was shown. It is claimed that this is the first seedling to flower in this state.

Superintendent McLaren of Golden Gate Park has a large force of men beautifying Lincoln park. About 4,000 plants are being set out. A large collection of acacias will be one of the pleasant features of this park when the work is completed.

Nels Peterson, of San Mateo, has long been recognized as the producer of the finest carnations that arrive in this market. His cut this season compares very favorably with former years, and his flowers always bring the top notch figures.

C. A. Tonneson, secretary of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen, retires as editor of the "Northwest Horticulturist," owing to ill health, after 27 years' service. We all hope his health will be restored after his well earned rest.

It is the unanimous opinion of most of the nurserymen that the coming season is going to prove a very prosperous one. The demand for ornamentals is heavy and several growers report being sold up very close on many items.

Walter Eglington, who has charge of the Fleishacker collection of or-tage Gardens Nurseries of Eureka. It was illustrated with many photographs of the nurseries and greenhouses.

We regret to announce the death of the mother of J. J. O'Connor, the Mission florist. Mrs. O'Connor was a very estimable woman and greatly beloved by a wide circle of friends.

Angelo J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., has been appointed on the executive committee of the Mardi Gras carnival, which is to be held during the latter part of this month.

Dave Cooper of Josephs' spent several days in Sacramento last week. He said that all the Sacramento florists were busy and that business was in a very healthy condition there.

Howard D. Bowen, a noted landscape engineer of Honolulu, who has been spending some weeks in this city and vicinity, departed for Honolulu this week.

Ricardee Lee Murray, at S94 Geary street, has been using the daily papers in advertising his store, and says the results have been very good.

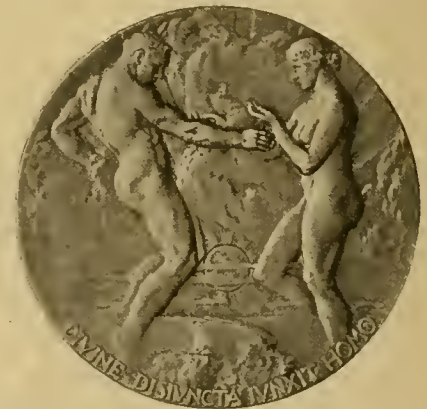

Arthur Bearsby, of Frank R. Mills' force, has been laid up for some time with the grippe, but is hoping to be out soon again. G. N.

chids, surprised his friends by a quiet marriage ceremony during the holidays. Walter is now back from his honeymoon receiving congratulations.

Podesta & Baldoecchi have been showing some very good azaleas of late. Their orchid display is up to their usual high standard. They say they are very well pleased with business conditions.

The San Francisco Sunday Chronicle had a two-page write-up of the Cot-Vaughan's Panama-Pacific Medals.

Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago and New York, has just received the handsome medals awarded at the Panama-Pacific exposition, held at San Francisco, Calif., in 1915. The medals received are as follows:

Canna Firebird	Gold medal
Gladiolus Mrs. Francis King	Gold medal
Gladiolus Rainbow Mixture	Gold medal
Gladiolus Chicago Salmou	Gold medal
Gladiolus Chicago White	Silver medal

Cincinnati.GOOD STOCK SELLS AT SIGHT.

The stock problem has become a serious one in this market. The supply has shortened so that at the time of this writing everything is cleaning up at sight at prices that the retailers regard as rather stiff for the time of the year. Shipping to out-of-town points is heavy. The greatest decrease in any one flower was in roses. The supply at this time is not much more than a shadow of what it was a fortnight ago. The carnation supply, too, was shortened considerably. Sweet pea receipts are holding their own. Easter lilies are in demand and are proving good property. Rubrum, lilies and callas are in a fair supply. Daffodils and Murillo tulips may be had. Both have been cleaning up very readily. Other offerings include narcissi, Roman hyacinths, freesias, snapdragons, lily of the valley, orchids and single violets.

NOTES.

The following Cincinnatians will attend the Carnation society meeting at Indianapolis, January 31-February 1: Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Peterson, C. E. Critchell, E. G. Gillett and R. Witterstaetter.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Gillett have made arrangements to spend four or five weeks at West Palm Beach, Fla., with C. J. Olmer. They will leave February 6.

Will Brueggemann, of P. J. Olinger's, is being congratulated upon the arrival of a baby boy at his home.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange has been getting in some excellent baby primrose plants.

C. E. Critchell has been having an excellent market for his daffodils and primroses.

Visitors: Robert Shoch, of M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and S. Lipman, of Scheuer & Co., New York.

Pittsburgh, Pa.EXCELLENT DEMAND, BUT NO OVERSUPPLY.

In spite of the fact that we had all kinds of weather last week, business held up well. The greatest demand was for short roses. It seems that the longer grades and American Beauties do not sell so well. There was no over-supply of other stock until the latter part of the week, when carnations and daffodils started to come in in quantities, which brought down the price. Indications are that all bulb stock will now come in large amounts, which will be welcome, as we are always glad to see the spring flowers come (and go). Some very good sweet peas are now in this market, which find ready sales. The scarcity season is about over until after Easter, which will give the retail men a much needed rest. Funeral work keeps all the stores very busy.

NOTES.

Mr. Retail Florist, prepare for the next big day (Valentine's). It is only a few days now until you will have another grand rush. This is one of the best flower days of the year, so begin early to advertise and do something about your store to attract the attention of your customers and remind them of Valentine's day.

The next meeting of the florists' club will be held February 6 at the Fort Pitt hotel. It is very important that all members attend the meetings regularly, as it is only five months until the Pittsburgh flower show is to be held, and every member is expected to work hard to make it a grand success.

Randolph & McClements are cutting some very fine white lilac and purple iris from their Stanton avenue greenhouses.

Dave Hill, of Fifth avenue, has opened a new store at 6117 Penn avenue, in the heart of East Liberty.

Pittsburgh expects to be well represented at the rose festival in Philadelphia March 21-24.

W. H. Rosenbauer is cutting some very fine freesia from his Leetsdale greenhouse.

Al Briggs of the North Side has been very busy with decorations the past few weeks.

G. M.

Washington, D. C.PRICES HIGH, BUT SALES GOOD.

Business is at its best, as it seems everybody is trying to do much entertaining before the inauguration. Prices have been extremely high, especially on Sunburst, Maryland, both Killarneys, Hadley, Richmond, Ward Ophelia and Stanley. In orchids, the best were quoted at $9 per dozen; others not quite so large at $7. The price on American Beauty ranged from $1.50 to $7.50 per dozen. Lily of the valley, which has been high in price all winter, has taken quite a drop and can now be had at prices ranging from four to six cents. Gardenias sell at from $2 to $3 per dozen. Easter lilies are none too plentiful and are bringing $12.50 per 100. Rubrums have been scarce all week.

NOTE.

All of the local trade were represented more or less at the funeral of Admiral Dewey, and some very handsome designs were seen. The Washington Floral Co. made a standing anchor, six feet high, rubrum lilies, violets, lily of the valley, orchids and Ward roses being used in the arrangement. George C. Shaffer arranged a reproduction of a 4-inch gun that was on the Olympic in gardenias, rubrum lilies, violets and lily of the valley. A ship's anchor was made of orchids, rubrum and calla lilies and sweet peas. Many handsome arrangements including wreaths and clusters reflected Gude Bros', usual good style. J. H. Small & Sons had orders for extra fine pieces. One large wreath, which stood over 12 feet high, was especially attractive. Orchids and American Beauty roses were prominent in this, while another of orchids and Easter lilies was handsome.

G. C. D.

Rochester, N. Y.CUT FLOWERS LIMITED IN SUPPLY.

Cold, unsettled weather with a lack of sunshine has caused a shortage in the supply of cut stock of all kinds. Trade keeps up wonderfully well and there is a good demand for funeral work. Decorations for dinners and social functions also add their quota to the volume of business. Carnations are scarce and the price correspondingly high. Roses are only fair in quality and the quantity moderate. Sweet peas and daffodils are becoming more plentiful. Paper Whites find a ready sale. Violets are not much sought after.

NOTES.

Ernest H. Wilson, celebrated botanist and explorer, whose researches in China and Japan are well known, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Dunbar, January 7. Mr. Wilson is enroute to Japan and thence Korea, where he will spend the next 15 months in the study of the flora and in securing new specimens for the Arnold Arboretum. Many of the plants in the Rochester park system were grown from seed which he brought from the Orient on previous trips. Following a tour of the parks, Mr. Wilson and his wife were guests at an informal dinner given by Mr. Dunbar and his wife, among others present being Park Commissioner A. B. Lamberton, Deputy Commissioner W. S. Riley, Superintendent of Parks C. C. Lancy, President Castleman of the board of education, Chas. Maloy, Wm. P. Dunbar and John Dennis.

Carnation Alice is not giving as good satisfaction locally as it is in the east and west. A great many growers are planning on Nancy another year. This variety seems to have found favor with them. F. Bennett, Clifford & Son and C. E. Fry, all of Barnard, N. Y., will grow Nancy next year.

Harry Merritt is disposing of cuttings of his sport carnation taken from Nancy. It is a good keeper and the color is an unusually good shade of pink. His Delight is also increasing in size and color each week.

J. M. Keller is producing some very good daffodils, narcissi and tulips at the Keller greenhouses in South avenue. His crop of freesias now in full bud will be ready to cut next week.

Frank Pursell of Irondequoit is having wonderful success with his roses, which are capably handled by George Rauchy, who is in charge of the rose range.

Frank McLewis of the Unique Flower Shop reports good trade in funeral orders, but a weak counter demand, due to limited supply and high prices.

J. B. Keller Sons featured a handsome vase of pink roses in a large gilt frame, which was the center of attraction in their window recently.

H. E. Wilson has been very busy with funeral work. A large casket cover of Easter lilies was among the orders of the past week.

Paul Campus will open a flower shop on South Clinton avenue near Court street in a few weeks.

E. C. Kaelber recently had a splendid window decoration of Golden Spurs arranged in vases.

Ambrose Secker is now connected with the Hugo Teute range.

Visitors: E. H. Bishop, of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich.; H. A. Price, representing S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Geo. W. Cohen, of Cohen & Hiller, New York; M. Myers, of Myers Bros.; Milton Slinka, New York; E. R. Sishens, Philadelphia, Pa.

CHESTER.

OBITUARY.Swain Nelson.

Swain Nelson, founder of Swain Nelson & Sons Co., Chicago, original designer of Lincoln park, in that city, and one of the leading nurserymen of the west, died January 18, at the residence of his son, Seymour G. Nelson, Glen View, Ill., at the age of 89 years.

Mr. Nelson located in Chicago in 1855 and engaged in the landscape gardening profession, having previously prepared himself for it in Sweden, his native land.

His designs for Lincoln park were accepted in 1865 by the city council, and during the following 15 years he directed the work of developing that park as well as several others, including Humboldt, Garfield, Douglas and Union parks. He laid out Grace-land cemetery and also the Waller estate, now known as Buena Park.

He moved from Chicago to Glen View in 1893 and was an active member of his firm up to the time of his death. He is survived by two sons, Seymour G. and Alvin E. Nelson, and three daughters, Mrs. A. L. Gyllenhal and Miss Emelia and Miss Adah Nelson.

LINCOLN, NEB.—H. H. Frey, Sr., father of the well known florists of this city, died in December.

BELLADONNA culture as a drug plant is the subject of a bulletin (No. 275) recently issued by the experiment station at Berkeley, Calif.

LATE chrysanthemums have been very good stock this fall, top prices being realized for all special flowers in markets both east and west.

VIOLETS should be allowed to attain full size on the plants. The fragrance is one of their best features and if not allowed to fully open the flowers will be found without odor.

CONSIGNEES should always be notified before or at the time of shipping to be on the lookout for a package coming by a certain express. Such advance information often corrects wrong street addresses and avoids other annoying delays.

An additional tract of 140 acres is being developed at the New York botanical garden, Bronx Park, part of which will be devoted to the S. A. F. convention garden.

Society of American Florists.

Secretary J. G. Esler of the Florists' Hail Association calls my attention to a typographical error, which appears in the suggestions to state vice-presidents sent out from this office a few days ago. The paragraph reads that the Florists' Hail Association now underwrites risks on 4,000,000 square feet of glass. This should read "44,000,000 square feet of glass."

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Dorothy Perkins.

Newark, N. Y., Jan. 15, 1917.—Mr. and Mrs. George C. Perkins have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Perkins, and Mr. E. B. Estabrook, of Germantown, Pa., which will be solemnized January 27. A large reception follows the wedding. Miss Perkins' name has been made very familiar to the horticultural world by the popularity of the well known climbing rose, raised and introduced some years ago by Jackson & Perkins Co. and named in honor of Mr. Perkins' daughter.

Scenery Again Heads Park Commission.

Edward Scenery, well-known proprietor of model florist establishments at Paterson and Passaic, N. J., was elected president of the board of park commissioners of the first named city for the seventh consecutive time at a meeting of the commission January 10, the vote being unanimous. President Scenery outlined to the board a number of improvements in the park system to include a skating rink, golf links and additional playgrounds which he hopes to see effected in the near future. At the Hamilton club, January 17, the members of the commission were the guests of Mr. Scenery, the occasion being the president's annual dinner.

American Sweet Pea Society.

A meeting of the executive committee of this society was held at the Hotel Breslin, New York, January 18, there being present Geo. W. Kerr, president; Wm. Gray, W. A. Sperling and J. Harrison Dick. A letter was read from Harry A. Bunyard, who has been secretary of the society from its inception, tendering his resignation of that office; after discussion this was accepted with regret. Wm. Gray, Bellevue road, Newport, R. I., was appointed secretary to carry on the work until the annual meeting in July. As this left a vacancy on the executive committee, J. H. Stafford, Bar Harbor, Me., was nominated. The schedule and bulletin were discussed, and these will be issued as one publication by March 1 at latest. Other matters for the furtherance of the objects and membership of the society were discussed.

Fifth National Flower Show.

ST. LOUIS, MO., APRIL 5-16, 1918.

Under the direction of Chairman George Asmus of the National Flower Show Committee, the work of the Fifth National Flower Show is well advanced. Floor plans of the Coliseum are being prepared, showing the location of the trade exhibits, and same will be sent out at an early date. The first preliminary plant schedule has been distributed, and extra copies may be procured upon application to the secretary at 53 West 28th street, New York. The schedule committee will be pleased to receive suggestions as to how and where this schedule may be improved, and such suggestions and recommendations will be acted upon by this committee at their next meeting, and included in the final schedule, if approved. The guarantee fund, which is to be $10,000, will soon be completed. Any member desiring to subscribe to this fund should do so at once.

The committee would also esteem donations of special prizes, the same to be offered under the names of the donors. Kindly, if possible, select the subject for your award from the preliminary schedules, thus relieving our obligations to the prize fund to that extent. Special prizes have been received from the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Inc., of Eureka, Humboldt county, Calif., for the best display of American grown Azalea indica. Plants must have been growing at least three years in the United States. Collection must consist of not less than six plants, five plants of each variety—First prize, cash $50; second prize, cash $30; third prize, cash $20; total, $100. John Lewis Childs, Inc., Flowerfield, N. Y., offers for Calla "Elliotiana," 25 plants, in bloom—First prize, $20; second prize, $12. Twelve plants in bloom: first prize, $10; second prize, $6.

Chicago to Indianapolis.

CARNATION MEETING AND EXHIBITION.

For the annual convention of the American Carnation Society to be held at Indianapolis, Ind., January 31 and February 1, the Monon Route has been selected as the shortest and most convenient line for the Chicago party. The one-way fare between Chicago and Indianapolis is $4.60 and the party fare for 10 or more, $4.14 each. Lower berths, $2; upper berths, $1.60.

The night train leaving the Dearborn station, Polk and Dearborn streets, Tuesday, January 30, at 11:40 p. m., due in Indianapolis at 4:30 a. m., has been chosen by the Florists' Club as the convention train for its members and others wishing to join the party. Berths on the night train are ready at 10 o'clock and can be occupied until 7:30 a. m. the next morning.

Reservations should be made early to secure the party rate by writing or telephoning Herbert Wiley, General Agent Passenger Department, 104 South Clark street, Chicago. Telephone Harrison 3309.

For those who wish to reach Indianapolis earlier the Monon Route has an evening train, leaving the Dearborn station Tuesday, January 30, at 5:30 p. m., due in Indianapolis at 10:30 the same night.

Indianapolis Hotels.

In view of the fact that the convention of the hardware dealers will be held in Indianapolis on the same dates as that of the annual meeting of the American Carnation Society, namely, January 31-February 1, 1917, it has been deemed advisable by the reception committee to have rates of Indianapolis hotels published so that reservations may be made in due time. There are plenty of good hotel accommodations in Indianapolis included in the following list:

Grand hotel—Rooms, $1 up; with bath, $1.50 up.

Washington hotel—Rooms with bath, $1.50, $2, $2.50 and $3.

Claypool hotel—Single room, $1.50; with bath, $2.

SHORT MARKET WITH PRICES HIGH.

Inclement weather during the past week checked the supply of stock and with the heavy demand many items appeared in the short list daily. What roses came in were of good quality but the prices were high. Carnations were plentiful with lilies and excellent sweet peas close followers. Bulbous flowers are making a better appearance each day, good freesias, tulips, jonquils and white and yellow narcissi being seen, but the supply is not large. Pot plants find ready buyers as fast as they make their appearance. Funeral work is heavier than it has been for some time.

NOTES.

About $2,000 worth of bulbs, which were scheduled to burst into luxuriant bloom next summer in the city parks of the Kansas side, were put out of commission January 16, by a fire which destroyed the municipal greenhouses in City park. About $1,000 worth of bulbs, it is believed, were saved. Immediately after the fire, J. B. Clark, superintendent of parks, had a force of men erecting a temporary greenhouse to protect such stock as had escaped the fire, from the effects of cold and water. The loss on the greenhouses was $1,800.

T. J. Noll & Co. are handling a good line of roses of the best quality. Carnations are also plentiful and fill the bulk of the orders. Jonquils, tulips and narcissi and a good stock of sweet peas are also seen, but the supply does not meet requirements.

J. Austin, who has greenhouses at Thirty-fifth street and Park avenue, and a retail store at Thirty-first and Troost streets, has opened a new flower shop at Tenth and Main streets.

John S. Meyer, aged 68 years, died January 20, at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Charles E. Heite, 1201 East Sixty-third street. Mr. Heite is foreman of the Wm. L. Rock Flower Co.'s greenhouses.

Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. has been cutting fancy rose stock at the greenhouses. Business is reported very satisfactory and some excellent advance orders are being booked.

W. J. Barnes reports the heaviest call for funeral designs this season. This has kept his supply of cut stock low. Pot plants sell readily and are fast decreasing in number.

H. Kusik & Co. have had a heavy week in shipping business, with local trade also holding up well. This firm is receiving some excellent carnations from John Stevens.

Out-of-town funeral trade has been very heavy at the Alpha Floral Co.'s establishment. Mr. Elberfield, accompanied by his wife, will spend three weeks in the south.

Ray Sturgens has a fine line of carnations and is cutting heavily on Butterfly sweet peas. He has over 10,000 geraniums for the spring trade.

Fred Fromhold reports excellent business during the week. Decorations and hotel work have been better than usual.

A record-breaking week in funeral work is reported by A. Newell.

The monthly meeting of this society was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, January 10. President James McCarthy in the chair. E. J. ceived. The president appointed Robt. Jones, James Gladstone and Samuel J. Trepess to act as judges for the monthly exhibits, and their decisions were as follows: John F. Johnson, for one pot of Primula Malacoides, first; Harry Goodband, for three poinsettias, first, and also first for 12 sprays of freesias; also special mention to James Duthie for a pot of Primula Malacoides Townsendi. Jas. Duthis, who is the originator of this valuable type of Malacoides, upon request, gave us a very interesting talk on the history of this variety.

Samuel I. Trepess ably read a very interesting and instructive essay entitled, "The Gardener and His Profession," by W. N. Craig, Massachusetts. This essay was thoroughly enjoyed by all members present and a motion was made and carried that a letter of thanks be sent to the author. James Duthie then read an essay by John Johnson, Massachusetts, entitled, "The Japanese Garden." This also proved very interesting and a letter of thanks was ordered sent to the author.

Exhibits for the next meeting to be held February 14 at 2 p. m., sharp, are Twelve mixed roses, six tomatoes and one pot of cyclamens.

NEW RED ROSE--DONALD MacDONALD

A new Hawlmark Red Rose sent out this year by Alex. Dickson & Sons.

We have tested this Rose for Winter forcing for two years, and with us it produces more red roses during the winter than any Rose we have ever grown. It is not a large Rose, but has perfectly formed medium sized flowers that sell at sight. Color bright orange carmine; will not turn blue; because the base of the petals is orange. It is not a summer rose, as it has the same substance as Killarney. We build the plants up until November, and from Thanksgiving until May it is a money maker for the Rose Grower, as no pinching is necessary.

Strong Grafted Plants

$35.00 per 100; $300.00 per 1000.

Own Root Plants

$30.00 per 100; $250.00 per 1000.

Dicksons' Hawlmark Irish Roses.

Alex. Dickson & Sons, Ltd., of Newtownards, County Down, Ireland, have been distributing their Pedigree Roses in the United States, under the name of DICKSONS' IRISH ROSES for the past thirty years.

They have given us for winter forcing, Killarney, Liberty, Mrs. Jardine, Melody, Irish Fire Flame and Killarney Brilliant. In outdoor varieties, in addition to the above, they have sent out Duchess of Wellington, Mrs. Wemyss Quinn, Duchess of Westminster, Mrs. MacKellar, Lady Ashtown, Lady Greenall, and a host of other sterling varieties.

Other firms by the name of Dickson are now advertising DICKSONS' IRISH ROSES, so that Alex. Dickson & Sons, for their own protection, have copyrighted the name HAWLMARK, which is the sterling stamp of the rose world. Every HAWLMARK ROSE is genuine, and the best cultivated.

COLD WEATHER HOLDS BACK STOCK.

With the ground covered with snow and dark cloudy days the effect on stock has been to shorten the supply, especially roses. There is barely enough to meet the daily demand, with nothing for the wholesale trade. A good supply of Harrisii lilies seems to be on hand and these serve to fill in nicely in funeral work. There are very few American Beauty or Russell, the two leading favorites in roses. Carnations continue in popularity and generally sell up well early in the day. They are blooming well and the quality is excellent. The yellow narcissus is a prime favorite both as a cut flower and in pot plants. There are still some azaleas, but they sell slowly. Cyclamens have held first place in the pot plant section. Violets were cut short by the cold spell but will be in good shape for Valentine's day.

NOTES.

The Joy Floral Co., even with its large range, has felt the effect of the dark days and had to refuse more orders than they filled for the wholesale trade. They had a very beautiful window recently with the "Dainty Maidens" filled with fresh cut flowers to match the vase; the yellow ones filled with the Soliel d'Or narcissi were particularly attractive. They have had quite a good sale on the "Dainty Maidens," something entirely new in the market.

The McIntyre Floral Company has had a very good trade with just enough flowers coming in each day to keep up with the daily demand. They have a small supply of each of the varieties of roses, the Killarneys, Ophelia and Richmond. While they have no Bermuda lilies they have a fine supply of calla lilies, which some patrons prefer to any other. Violets are a little off crop, but if the weather is favorable, there will be a good crop for Valentine's day.

Geny Bros. report a good week's business in funeral work, orders for out-of-town shipments being especially heavy. They have had good sales on bulbous stock. M. C. D.

BURPEE'S SEEDS GROW

BURPEE'S ANNUAL
The Leading American Seed Catalog

WITH the close of 1916, forty years of "Burpee Effort" have passed into Seed History. These were constructive years, years of careful, intensive, scientific investigation and experimenting. Starting in a very modest way, acre after acre, building after building have been added until today we enjoy the distinction of being the World's Largest Mail Order Seed House.

The House of Burpee

in this forty years has introduced more distinct new varieties of Vegetable and Flower Seeds that are now in general cultivation, than have any three other American Seed Firms, but never have we catalogued any one of these varieties until it has passed all the exacting requirements of the Burpee Standard. This Burpee Standard is maintained by rigid tests at Fordhook Farms, America's largest and most complete Trial Grounds. These tests are made each year for the purpose of strengthening the bond of confidence between our customers and ourselves.

With the culmination of these forty years we enter the fifth decade of our active business life, with the firm intention of continuing to Better Serve.

Burpee Annual for 1917

The Leading American Seed Catalog is bigger, better and brighter than ever before. Twenty-two pages have been added, and best of all you will find thirty Burpee Specialties illustrated in color. Never before have we issued a catalog with so many accurate color illustrations.

Florists and Market Gardeners, in addition to Burpee's Annual, should have Burpee's Blue List, the Market Growers' Handbook. This is a wholesale price list for commercial planters. Write for these catalogs today. A post card will bring them.

HIGH PRICES RULE SHORT MARKET.

With stock scarce and a firm demand, the market held up well during the past week. All varieties of seasonable flowers are in moderate demand and prices are above normal. The stiffest market is on American Beauty, which is still on the short side, and all arrivals were quickly disposed of with little deviation from prices. Russell is scarce and the quality is very poor. Roses in general are none too plentiful and the supply is not up to requirements. Killarneys, while of poor quality, are selling well because of the scarcity of good stock. Ophelias have practically disappeared and the few that do arrive command holiday prices. The supply of carnations is shorter than a week ago and they clean up well at $4 per 100. There are sufficient Easter lilies for present needs and the supply of lily of the valley is ample. Sweet peas are arriving in larger numbers, the quality is good and prices continue high. Violets sell well and some very fine singles are seen. Paper Whites are beginning to shorten up and find a ready market at $3 per 100. Stevia is rapidly disappearing. La Reine tulips made their appearance within the last few days and find an easy market.

NOTES.

The Valentine's day campaign is on and the local trade are preparing to use space in the newspapers. The retail florists' association expects to receive aid from the wholesalers and growers. The chairman of the advertising committee plans to spend about $500 during the second week in February.

Local members of the American Carnation Society plan to attend the Indianapolis convention in a body. Dave Geddis is chairman of the transportation committee.

A. L. Gumz, of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., is soliciting advertising for the spring flower show with good results.

Mullanphy Florists report heavy business in funeral work. Both managers are daily market visitors.

The first shipment of La Reine tulips to arrive in this city was consigned to C. A. Kuehn.

Tom Carr is increasing the capacity of his store to care for the heavy spring business.

W. C. Smith is now spending half of his time at his range in St. Louis county.

The Windler Flower Shop recently had a fine display of cyclamens and hyacinths.

H. G. Berning is showing some very fine violets. X, Y, Z.

COLD WEATHER CAUSES SHORT SUPPLY.

The continued cold weather is causing a shortage in the supply of stock in this market, all kinds being affected. Indoor stock is backward in getting into bloom and the weather is of course having a bad effect on outdoor flowers. Acacia blooms of the Baileyana variety are now being received. Violets are in abundant supply and freesias are coming in fairly well. There is a good demand along all lines.

NOTES.

Wolfskill Bros. & Morris Goldenson report a fairly good trade. They are showing some good specimens of Azalea oxalis. Albert Goldenson will be married to Miss Jennie Jacobs, February 25.

The Redondo Floral Co. recently had a very artistic window arranged with daffodils, violets and lilies banked with ferns. The effect was beautiful. This firm is well satisfied with trade on the whole.

Wright's Flower Shop, Inc., have been featuring some excellent Killarney, Killarney Queen and American Beauty roses. Good prices maintain and the stock seen here is excellent.

S. Murata & Co. have been showing excellent stocks of Purity freesia and carnations. They have moved into their new quarters at 380-386 South Los Angeles street.

Howard & Smith have been kept busy with funeral orders. The nursery trade with them is also brisk.

O. C. Saakes reports a good demand for flowers but a difficulty in securing sufficient stock.

The Abbey Flower Shop, 827 West Eight street, has closed its doors.

The annual meeting of the South Waterloo Agricultural Society was held in this city January 18. At this meeting it was decided to hold a seed fair on April 3; also a fall exhibition October 4-5. Reports showed that the horticultural exhibitions held in 1916 were successful from a financial standpoint and the society was able to wipe off a considerable indebtedness, which was very gratifying to the members. The society elected the following officers for the ensuing year: A. S. Clemens, president; W. Phillip, secretary; R. E. Cowan, treasurer. J. E. K.

NO GREAT CHANGE IN THE MARKET.

There is no great change in market conditions since last week, which means that stock of all kinds is as scarce as ever, if not in shorter supply. American Beauty roses are in brisk demand and are bringing high prices with very little stock available. Roses in general are in short supply and command good figures, especially in the shorter stemmed grades. Long stemmed roses are none too plentiful and while they clean up completely every day, prices are not as high as one would expect under the existing market conditions and the general scarcity all around. Carnations are moving well at good prices with the daily receipts gradually diminishing. Sweet peas appear to be in good supply but are in brisk demand at fair prices with no surplus to mention when the stores close at night. Violets are having a good call and while there are enough to go around prices are not what one would call high, neither are they low. The supply of violets in this market all through the season has not been as large as last year, which accounts for the good averages so far. Orchids are plentiful enough so that all orders can be filled in full, and the same holds true for gardenias. Lilies and callas are selling quickly and lily of the valley is moving as rapidly as ever at the advertised quotations. Tulips and jonquils are in good demand but Paper White narcissi seem to drag, although prices now are much better than they have been. Freesia is having a good call and there is hardly ever any surplus even though the receipts this week have been rather heavy. Stevia seems to be shortening up and the supply of Romans is not as large as it has been. Miscellaneous stock, such as snapdragons, daisies, mignonette, statice, bouvardia, stocks, iris, sweet alyssum, pussy willows, forget-me-nots, calendulas, candytuft, feverfew and pansies are moving unusually well and like all the other stock is disposed of at an early hour at satisfactory prices. The shipping trade has been brisk all this week, but the city demand outside of the call for funeral flowers was the quietest in months.

NOTES.

C. L. Washburn and wife, George Asmus, Allie Zeeb, Matt Mann, Fred Lautenschlager, Philip L. McKee, E. F. Kurowski, J. E. Quallich, A. T. Pyfer and P. W. Peterson, of Joliet, have signified their intention of attending the annual convention and exhibition of the American Carnation Society at Indianapolis, Ind., January 31-February 1.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is headquarters for pussy willows which are in brisk demand by the local retail florists for decorative work. They sell by the bunch and are unusually good specimens. Spring flowers, such as tulips, freesias and jonquils are the leaders in cut flowers here this week.

John Risch says that Weiland & Risch will plant 30,000 more Champ Weiland roses next season and will carry over the six houses they are now cutting from.

A. Henderson, of A. Henderson & Co., had his new automobile stolen January 21. The loss is covered by insurance.

Nils N. Emitslof of the George Wittbold Co. left January 18 to call on his firm's many out-of-town customers.

C. W. Johnson, who has been on the sick list, is at the Wesley hospital this week for examination.

Henry M. Hirsch, who recently sold his store at 37 East Van Buren street, is temporarily located with Bernie Zalinger, in the rotunda of the Insurance Exchange building at 175 West Jackson boulevard. Mr. Hirsch had a nice order for the Livingston funeral this week calling for a blanket of roses, orchids and lily of the valley.

The Batavia Greenhouse Co. is fortunate in having a good crop of American Beauty roses during the present scarcity and no trouble is being experienced in receiving $7 to $8 per dozen for the very best grades right in the city.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. seem to be well fixed on roses, notwithstanding the general shortage of stock, and are showing particularly fine Killarney Brilliant. Fancy sweet peas are also seen in large supply at this establishment.

Mangel, the Palmer House Florist, is installing one of the A. L. Randall Co.'s electric fountains in his loop conservatory, which is without question one of the most beautiful sights imaginable when it is in operation.

Peter Reinberg never had such an early demand for rooted carnation cuttings as he did this year, and many shipments are going out every day. The American Beauty rose, one of Reinberg's old standbys, will be discarded at the greenhouses next season when the rose, Mrs. Chas Russell, will be grown more heavily than ever. Champ Weiland will replace Killarney. Roy Bourke, who formerly assisted Emil Reichling at the Reinberg greenhouses, is now helping out Felix Reichling at the store.

Weiter Bros. are having a good run on the miniature roses, Baby Doll and George Elgar, which are cleaning up every day at an early hour, like all other stock. Carnations are moving better at this house this week than they have at any time outside of the holidays and the indications are that they will be in still better demand before the week is over.

Percy Jones has rented office space to the new concern that the writer had reference to in these columns recently. It is understood that H. Van Gelder, president of Percy Jones, Inc., is interested financially in the new company, which will market an article that every florist needs. Further particulars will be announced later.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. have built up a large trade on orchids, which they are handling in quantity regularly in all the best commercial kinds. This house never had so many growers on its list as right now which accounts for the splendid assortment they are offering daily.

Miss Alice White and Reinhold Schiller, manager of Schiller's loop store, will be married some time in February. They will spend their honeymoon in the east, principally in New York. Mr. Schiller's many friends in the trade extend their best wishes for a happy married life.

The E. C. Amling Co. is gradually moving into its new location across the street from its present stand and expects to be permanently and comfortably settled within a few days. The new store will give them about 35 per cent more room than it had in its old quarters.

A large number of floral pieces were sent to the new Rialto theatre on the west side of State street, north of Van Buren, which opened Monday, Janu-

Zech & Mann are handling a heavy supply of freesias, but the demand is so good for them that there is never any left when their store closes at night. Calendulas of the finest quality possible were seen at this store one day last week.

O. A. and L. A. Tonner are showing a nice supply of snapdragons in addition to their regular line of stock. The supply department of this firm is gradually building up a large trade and at present is featuring a large assortment of baskets.

M. C. Gunterberg is handling a splendid supply of orchid flowering sweet peas in addition to her regular large shipments of violets.

P. W. Peterson, superintendent of the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, visited the wholesale market January 20.

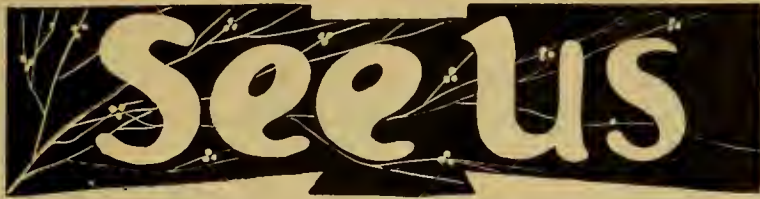

The Misses Bertha and Louise Schiller were called to El Paso, Texas, this week owing to the serious illness of a relative.

Many of the local growers lost several boxes of glass during the high windstorm of January 21-22.

Henry C. Dunn is no longer connected with Wm. F. Schofield, the North State street florist.

Chas. Cassier is serving on the jury for two weeks.

Otto W. Frese, who has been in the employ of Pochlmann Bros. Co. for the past 15 years, is now manager of the cut-flower department, a position he is perfectly capable of handling, for he is one of the best posted men in the local wholesale market today. Keeping everlastingly at it brings success and his many friends are pleased to hear of his recent promotion.

George Way, of the A. L. Randall Co., was quietly married at Cleveland, O., Saturday, January 20. Otto Goerisch, of the same firm, was married on the same day, which was somewhat unlucky for him, for a couple of sneak thieves stole all of the many wedding presents that his wife had received, and so far, no trace of the burglars has been found.

Joseph Ziska & Sons expect to be located in their new store in the Durand building, on or about February 1. It is understood that the chief of the auto delivery service at this establishment will wear a lavender uniform after the change in location is made.

Philip C. Schupp, of the firm of J. A. Budlong, is not worrying any about that firm's fuel supply, for it has plenty of coal on hand to keep the greenhouses going for several weeks to come, and, outside of a little delay, they experience no trouble in getting what they need whenever they want it.

A. Lange had a big decoration at Battle Creek, Mich., last week, which was arranged by B. V. Brown and Martin Nielson, who recently joined the force. Homer Lange is taking to the retail trade like a duck does to water, and is a valuable assistant to his father at the store.

The St. Valentine's day posterette and poster, issued by the Florists' Club, have made a great hit all over the country, 130,000 posterettes and 6,000 posters having been already sold. For supplies call Fred Lautenschlager, Superior 8680.

Vaughan's Seed Store was fortunate in receiving two carloads of manetti last week in excellent condition. These shipments included both French and British stocks, most of which have now been distributed to the firm's customers.

J. S. Pintozzi, who recently succeeded Henry M. Hirsch as proprietor of the store known as the Van Buren Florist, at 37 East Van Buren street, is well pleased with the trade that he has enjoyed since taking possession.

Mrs. F. Manke, 3019 Wentworth avenue, had a large floral piece representing the Austrian flag for the first memorial parade in honor of the late Franz Joseph, held last Sunday, January 21.

Word was received here this week that the store of the Beyer Floral Co., of South Bend, Ind., was almost completely destroyed by fire January 22.

Indian Agent A. D. McNabb of the Garden River reservation is making plans to organize a horticultural society with a view to increasing interest in the production of farm and garden produce. As an experiment a four-acre tract was sown and yielded 117 bushels of oats which will be distributed among the Indians this spring and relieve the Canadian government of the obligation of providing seed. School garden plots are also being planned which will be cared for by the pupils of three reserve schools and their products will be entered in competition. Interest in the school gardens will be stimulated by visits of A. S. Smith of the government horticultural department, who will encourage the boys and girls in their work.

FUNERAL WORK KEEPS COUNTERS CLEAN.

Market conditions are improving nicely and we hope that it will keep on improving, for there is quite a gap to fill since the holidays. There is an unusual activity in funeral work which kept the counters cleaned up all last week; due to the unfavorable weather, roses, especially in the medium and short grades, are very scarce, thus giving the pink and white carnations a chance to make good. Red carnations are plentiful with little demand for that color. Sweet peas and violets were cleaned up in a hurry; also all the bulbous stock such as Paper Whites, tulips, daffodils and freesias. All kinds of lilies, due to their color, are a good proposition these days.

NOTES.

Oscar Golin, who has charge of the decorating department at the A. F. Kellner Co., has had a tussle with pneumonia since January 7. Latest reports announce that he has passed the critical period and we hope he will soon be out and around again. Hans Heine is taking care of his end of the work to full satisfaction, according to A. F. Kellner.

Hugo Locker & Sons, at Wauwatosa, report the blowing out of a section of one of their hot water boilers a short time ago. They feel lucky that the loss was not any worse, for it did comparatively little damage. They are cutting a nice lot of especially fine sweet peas daily.

President W. A. Kennedy of the florists' club announces the postponement of the regular February club meeting to February 8, due to the carnation convention, which will be attended by several of our regulars.

Gust Rusch & Co., who say business is fine, report the arrival of the first Rainbow freesias from Kamp & Spinti, North Milwaukee, on January 22. G. F. Baerman is consigning fine sweet peas and freesias to them.

At the Holton & Hunkel Co. they report shipping trade again back to normal, which means fine. Their rose crops are still on the short side, but they will soon be able to again report "on crop."

Fred Holton, wife and family left for Hot Springs, where he expects to be relieved of his rheumatism, which has kept him confined to his home since the middle of December.

Roy Currie and his bride returned from their honeymoon the latter part of last week and Roy, all smiles, is back in the harness at the Currie Bros. Co. store.

Will Leverenz, grower for Mrs. Kaiser, south side florist, left the hospital last week, after taking treatment for abscess of the head.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. is receiving a nice lot of cut flowers from the Wauwatosa range, which are cleaned up daily at good prices.

Among numerous orders the J. M. Fox & Son, Inc., has a wedding decoration at Neenah, Wis., this week.

LIMITED SUPPLY HOLDS PRICES FIRM.

Trade conditions remain about the same as last reported, especially as far as the supply of stock is concerned. Roses have been short of the demand in all grades and varieties. American Beauty is a scarce item, but a few Killarney, Rhea Reid and Wards are being received and the quality is good. Carnations are more plentiful, but in the absence of short roses and other stock they move at fair prices. Paper Whites, daffodils, Proserpine tulips and stevia sell well and callas move nicely. Easter lilies are as plentiful and a few sweet peas, forget-me-nots, mignonette and freesias are part of the daily receipts. Violets are in better demand than they have been for some time.

NOTES.

The funeral of Virgil P. Cline, one of John D. Rockefeller's attorneys, was one of the largest ever held in this city in a long time and caused an enormous demand for orchids, violets and the better class of stock. The orders were well distributed among the leading establishments on the avenue.

The Schoen Floral Co., 1268 Euclid avenue, will open February 1. F. Schoen, the manager, was formerly connected with the Crane Co. and the James Eadie Co.

George W. Smith, of the Cleveland Florists' Exchange, has been in Chicago during the past week, combining business and pleasure.

A. M. Coe, of North Olmstead, O., is still a very sick man, but his condition is showing improvement.

The Claude Tyler Co., of North Olmstead, is cutting fine carnations and freesias at present. C. F. B.

SUPPLY SHORT OF DEMAND.

Business continues to be good in this vicinity, although the holiday season is a thing of the past. The local florists complain that the supply in nearly every line does not begin to meet the demand.

Woon Young Chun, of Shanghai, China, was the lecturer at the first of the winter meetings conducted by the Worcester County Horticultural Society, January 4. His subject was "The Flowery Kingdom," and the large audience which filled Horticultural hall was treated to a highly interesting, scholarly discourse. The speaker, in the course of his remarks, shattered many popular beliefs religiously credited by Americans about his native land. R.

MARKET LOOKS BARE.

The feature of last week's market was the scarcity of flowers—there was no excess of anything, while roses were nearly always sold before the shipments arrived. There are a few pots of Easter lilies, and possibly some jars of carnations standing about, but otherwise the anatomy of the ice boxes is painfully apparent. The quality of the stock offered is fine and in spite of the apparent shortage, the supply is varied and up to the usual volume for the season. Prices are good—most buyers say high, but they appear glad when this or that is awarded them. Sweet peas are coming strong of splendid quality, like those seen at the spring shows. There are some good snapdragons, calendulas, freesias, daisies and mignonette. Single and double violets are in full supply. One wonders where all the lily of the valley comes from; the street men have it by the thousand. All the shipments appear to grade low. Cattleyas are good stock, not near enough for the demand. Gardenias of quality sell well, but the low grades are practically given away. In spite of the southern competition, the asparagus section is rarely overstocked, while good adiantum is always in demand.

NOTES.

George Burton, the American Beauty expert, has purchased a farm of 50 acres at Arlington, Pa., about four miles from his present location. The Cresham branch of the Pennsylvania railroad forms one of his boundary lines. With a siding from this it will be very easy to handle coal. An up-to-date rose growing establishment will no doubt soon go up here, as Mr. Burton is much cramped for room at his present location.

An effort is to be made during the meeting of the present legislature to have the Quaker lady adopted as a state flower. Two years ago the laurel was selected and a bill passed both houses, but the Governor vetoed the bill at the last minute because Connecticut had adopted this as their state flower. The tulip poplar is a favorite with some.

Not a whole lot doing, but flowers are scarce at that, was the state of things at the Leo Niessen Co. Three hundred choice American Beauties going out rather tempered this statement, but then it takes a "lot doing" to keep the 50 hustlers that make up the force here busy.

Snellenburg's department store is advertising Easter lily bulbs with the caption, "Grow your own Easter lilies;" bulbs started now will flower for Easter. Fine large bulbs, 15 cents each. A large cut of a plant with a dozen flowers is used as an illustration.

The H. F. Michell Co., Inc., had a large contract with a firm in Denmark for lily of the valley. When ready to ship the English authorities would not let it go through, for the reason that they had discovered that German capital was back of the enterprise.

Paul Richter of the H. F. Michell Co., Inc., has just returned from a short vacation in the south.

The advent of the first chrysanthemums is generally noted and now this 22nd day of January we are able to report the last dozen of the season. 12 very fair Bonnaffon sent to W. J. Baker from L. E. Eastburn of Kennet Square.

Additions are being made to the plant and rooted cutting department of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., which business is making great strides forward. Their plant bulletin is rapidly assuming a catalogue dignity.

Harris & Cook, of Chester, Pa., have sold their retail business to J. Silversteen. George Cook is now with the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange and could not give the store the necessary attention.

Ornamental house plants and bird boxes were features of the H. A. Dreer store windows the past week. A big business is being done in double petunia seed, for which plant they are headquarters.

Berger Brothers' central market offers as leaders Easter lilies, orchid sweet peas and daffodils. They say: "Flowers scarce, but in a couple of weeks—look out."

The rose houses of the Jos. Heacock Co. at Roelof's look promising. A couple of weeks more and shipments will be increased threefold. So says Carl Cortis.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange is now getting the entire cut from three large rose growing establishments. Easter lilies are also a factor here.

The London Flower Shop will have quite an elaborate booth at the coming rose festival. They have had a splendid business since the holidays.

The H. Bayersdorfer Co.'s factory force is busy with Valentine novelties. Well fruited cherry trees for Washington's birthday are a novelty.

Roses scarce, carnations easier, is the word with Edward Reid. Lily of the valley and cattleyas are features here.

Some of the finest freesias of the season were seen in the windows of Stuart Miller the past week.

Alexander Scott is in North Carolina, where he will spend a month's vacation. K.

New York to Indianapolis.

The annual meeting and exhibition of the American Carnation Society, takes place at the Claypool hotel, Indianapolis, next week, Wednesday and Thursday, January 31-February 1. As this is one of the great centers of carnation growing, and is accessible from Chicago, Cleveland, St. Louis and other populous centers, and as good delegations are expected from the east, it looks like being a record meeting. It is the twenty-sixth annual convention of the society.

The Boston party will leave Boston at 2 p. m. Monday, January 29, while it has been arranged that the New York party leave Grand Central Terminal, 42nd street, 4:50 p. m., the same day. As this is McKinley's day, suggestion is made that all delegates should wear a red carnation as a badge.

The fare from New York to Indianapolis is $21.15; lower berths, $5; upper berths, $4. Provision will be made for the shipment of flowers, and reservations from New York can be made up to Monday mid-day by writing Louis Haffner, 30th street, care Grand Central R. R.

The transportation committee of the New York Florists' Club, comprises J. Harrison Dick, chairman; A. J. Guttman and W. E. Maynard, each of whom will be glad to assist any of the delegates if further information is required. A. F. F.

TRADE QUIET WITH LIGHT RECEIPTS.

There has been little change in the condition of the cut flower market since our last review was written. Business continued quiet during the past week. The arrivals of stock were rather light and there has been some talk of a scarcity, but it has not been, to any extent, noticeable. Anything approaching a scarcity was only noticeable in roses, there being a steady demand for the shorter grades of tea roses. In special American Beauty the supply has not been heavy and prices have ranged from 50 to 75 cents each, wholesale rates. While the supply of carnations has not been heavy, there was enough to supply the demand at $4 and $5 per 100. The best violets wholesaled at 50 cents per 100 and the poorer grades went into funeral work and to the street men at 25 cents and 30 cents per 100. All varieties of orchids and gardenias continue slow. The yellow narcissi and tulips are fairly active factors. In addition to cut stock, neatly arranged pots and pans of tulips are noteworthy features in the retail stores. Lilies, irises, freesias, wallflowers, callendulas, snapdragons and sweet peas are all noticeable in the market. In brief, while necessarily there is daily buying, the demand is light; if it was heavy, there might be a scarcity in some stocks. Many of the roses seem to be off color, which we attribute to continued dark weather.

January 22.—The condition of the market is unchanged. The supply of roses and carnations is not heavy, but bulbous stocks are increasing. The demand, considering the season, is light. Violets are slow at from 25 cents to 40 cents per 100. The weather continues dark and changeable; a cold day or two with light snow turning to rain, has been the order for this month.

NOTES.

As a warning to other florists, Frank Lorraine, a retailer of 17 East 28th street, has voluntarily stated that he was recently fined $50 for having employed a boy who was a few months under 14 years of age. In the light of common sense, this case has been a hardship, both to the employer and the boy's family. The boy was only working after school hours; his father makes but $12 per week and has a sick wife and a family of young children to support. In former times, before so many professional reformers began to attend to everybody's business but their own, it was considered a credit to a boy if he worked to help his parents. Many of the greatest men in this and other countries, started as poor boys and worked at whatever they got a chance to do, and it helped rather than hindered them. It is not going too far to say that this law will largely recruit the army of corner loafers, already too numerous.

Joseph Trepel, who has seven stores in Brooklyn, recently bought the building at Broadway and Reid avenue and has fitted it up as a store in a stylish manner. The interior furnishings are in purple and white, and the electric display at night is very fine. The second floor is occupied as a workroom. The third as a store-room for supplies. In the management of his large business, he is ably assisted by Mrs. Trepel and a large force of clever men and women, the women being particularly noteworthy.

A meeting of the executive committee of the American Sweet Pea Society was held at the Hotel Breslin, this city, January 18. The resignation of Secretary Harry A. Bunyard was received, and accepted with regrets. Various matters pertaining to the welfare of the society were discussed.

The retail store formerly conducted by Thos. F. Galvin, Inc., Fifth avenue and 46th street, has been leased by the "Jackues Jewelry Shop," and it is closed for changes. A card announces that Galvin will open a shop adjoining the corner store, on 46th street.

J. W. Hauser, 571 Madison avenue, was very busy during the past week with dinner and luncheon decorations. His store is always well stocked and he has a good class of customers.

At the store of the Drakos Co., Broadway and 116th street, we have recently noticed very tasteful window decorations in tulips, sweet peas and other popular flowers.

Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., President; F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., First Vice-President; L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fifth annual convention, June, 1917.

COMMERCIAL White beans are selling in California at 10 to 12 cents per pound.

SAULT STE. MARIE, ONT.—A co-operative seed grain organization to supply farmers and gardeners in this vicinity is planned.

GALT, ONT.—A seed fair under the auspices of the South Waterloo Agricultural Society will be held in this city, April 3.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade January 24 were as follows: Timothy, $4.00 to $5.50 per 100 pounds.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Machinery for mixing lawn grass mixtures is being installed by the J. G. Peppard Seed Co., of this city.

COSMOS, fine double forms in two colors, pink and white, is now being offered by the John Bodger & Sons Co., Los Angeles, Calif.

SIoux CITY, IA.—George H. Cummings, secretary of the Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co., and wife, left last week on a pleasure trip to Honolulu.

VICE-PRESIDENT Bolgiano, of the American Seed Trade Association, who has been on the sick list at his home in Washington, D. C., is again attending to business.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—Mrs. M. W. Johansen, of the Victor Johansen Seed Co., is improving after a long illness, but has been compelled to forego her usual eastern trip.

THE wife of Arnold Ringier, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, who was stricken with pneumonia enroute to California, is still critically ill in a Los Angeles hospital.

RAINS in Southern California, January 16, followed by unusually heavy frosts (22 degrees above zero) may damage germinating seeds now in the ground, lettuce, radish, sweet pea and the like.

PHILADELPHIA, PA. — Howard M. Earl, the well known manager of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., completed his thirtieth year of service with that firm this month, having reported for work Monday, January 10, 1887.

CALIFORNIA pole and lima beans have required hand picking two or three times, owing to rain damage, eliminating 50 per cent of the crop in some extreme cases. The yield of Fordhook was greatly reduced in this process.

VISITED CHICAGO: John C. Bodger, of John Bodger & Sons Co., Los Angeles, Calif.; J. S. Michael, of the Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co., Sioux City, Ia.; Alling Woodruff, of S. D. Woodruff & Sons, New York; C. R. Kimberlin, of the Kimberlin Seed Co., Santa Clara, Calif.; J. W. Edmundson, representing the California Seed Growers' Association, and wife, San Jose, Calif.; Joseph L. Schilder, Chilli-cothe, O.; S. Suzuki, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., Yokohama, Japan.

French Bulbs.

French bulb growers in the Toulon district are asking an advance of 50 per cent on last year's prices on Paper Whites, Roman hyacinths and nearly all their produce. The present asking prices, of course, are not based on much real knowledge of the behavior of the crops and whether the growers' syndicate at the meeting, toward the end of March, will sustain preliminary demands, no one knows, but it is as certain now as in former years that definite prices are not made until the meeting of the syndicate.

Catalogues Received.

Seed and Bulb Misrepresentation Bill.

On January 12 Congressman Byrnes of South Carolina introduced House Bill No. 20044, to regulate interstate commerce in adulterated and misbranded seeds, etc., which bill was referred to the committee on agriculture.

The bill applies to seeds and bulbs of all kinds, defining adulteration to be, when seeds or bulbs contain dead seeds or weed seeds, or dead bulbs or any other substance materially reducing the value for seeding or planting purposes. Misbranding is defined, as first, when one kind or distinguishable variety of seed or bulb shall be offered for sale under the name of another kind or distinguishable named variety of seed or bulb; second, if in package form and the contents are stated in terms of weight or measure, they are not plainly and correctly stated; third, if the article be falsely labeled or branded as to the state, territory, locality or country in which it is raised or produced.

Heavy penalties are provided for the first offense, not exceeding $200 fine; for any subsequent offense not exceeding $300 or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—Mushrooms, home grown, 40 to 50 cents per pound; lettuce, small cases, 20 to 22½ cents; radishes, 40 to 60 cents, dozen bunches; celery, 75 cents to $1.50, open crate; tomatoes, six baskets, $2.25 to $4.00; cucumbers, per 2 dozen box, $1.50 to $2.50.

New York, Jan. 23.—Celery, per crate, $2.50 to $3.00; cucumbers, 75 cents to $1.75 per dozen; mushrooms, 75 cents to $1.75 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, per lb., 10 to 20 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2.50 to $4.50; lettuce, per strap, 25 cents to $1.00.

Radishes.

One of the remarkable features of our market this winter is the total absence of hot house radishes. The shortage of labor is no doubt one factor. Pulling, bunching and washing radishes is more laborious than packing lettuce and when lettuce is at a good price, the radish crop is neglected. The remarkable thing, however, is the total disappearance of this crop—every grower having dropped them for the time being. Even at such figures as 60 to 75 cents per dozen bunches, none appeared. To relieve our labor somewhat we abandoned hand sowing and thinning and very carefully drilled them with a Planet, Jr., seed drill. We screened the seeds to remove the weaker ones and then tested the drill to a fair stand. By running the machine side by side to the old wheel marks without a marker we got a spacing of about five inches, which is very good. We obtained good stands and good crops at a minimum of attention. One of the factors is to run a low temperature when first up to hold the young plants short and stocky—after they commence to bulb they will stand more heat. Radishes are very sensitive to dryness, and if germinated on poorly watered beds, they will at once miscarry and no effort will recover them. Therefore see that any beds for radishes are watered clear to bottom. MARKETMAN.

Tomato Seed for Your 1917 Crop.

You will get an enormous crop of Tomatoes from Bolgiano's Tomato Seed this year. Our Seed was saved from one of the largest crops we have ever had, due to being favored by weather conditions. The vines were loaded with large, solid, red fruit. We know positively by planting seed from this "Big Crop" your yield will be much larger than if you had bought seed grown where the weather conditions were not favorable.

Nursery Stock Legislation.

The scare given nurserymen and florists through a rumor that drastic riders were about to be tacked to the agricultural bill was the cause of hundreds of letters and telegrams to congressmen. I personally saw all the leaders in this matter and have positive assurance that nothing drastic is contemplated. The bill has passed the house and is now in the senate committee, ready for action. Herewith is copy of changes contemplated.

(Suggested amendment of section 8 of the Plant Quarantine Act. The added wording is in italic and the omitted wording in black type.)

That section 8 of an act entitled An Act to Regulate the Importation of Nursery Stock and Other Plants and Plant Products; to Enable the Secretary of Agriculture to Establish and Maintain Quarantine Districts for Plant Diseases and Insect Pests; to Permit and Regulate the Movement of Fruit, Plants, and Vegetables therefrom, and for other purposes; approved August 20, 1912, be, and the same is hereby, amended so as to read as follows:

"Section 8. That the Secretary of Agriculture is authorized and directed to quarantine any state, territory, or district of the United States or any portion thereof, when he shall determine that such quarantine is necessary to prevent the spread of the fact that a dangerous plant disease or insect infestation, new to or not theretofore widely prevalent or distributed within and throughout the United States exists in such state or territory or district, and the Secretary of Agriculture is directed to give notice of the establishment of such quarantine to common carriers doing business in or through such quarantined area, and shall publish in such newspapers in the quarantined area as he shall select notice of the establishment of quarantine. That no person shall ship or offer for shipment to any common carrier, nor shall any common carrier receive for transportation or transport, nor shall any person carry or transport from any quarantined state or territory or district of the United States, or from any quarantined portion thereof, into or through any other state or territory or district, any class of nursery stock or any other class of plants, fruits, vegetables, roots, bulbs, seeds, or other plant products, or any class of stone or quarry products, or any other article of any character whatsoever, capable of carrying any dangerous plant disease or insect infestation, specified in the notice of quarantine except as hereinafter provided. That it shall be unlawful to move or allow to be moved any class of nursery stock or any other class of plants, fruits, vegetables, roots, bulbs, seeds, or other plant products, or any class of stone or quarry products, or any other article of any character whatsoever, capable of carrying any dangerous plant disease or insect infestation, specified in the notice of quarantine hereinafter provided, and regardless of the use for which the same is intended, from any quarantined state or territory or district of the United States, or quarantined portion thereof, into or through any other state or territory or district, in manner or method or under conditions other than those prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture. That it shall be the duty of the Secretary of Agriculture, when the public interests will permit, to make and promulgate rules and regulations which shall permit and govern the inspection, disinfection, certification, and method and manner of delivery and shipment of a class of nursery stock or of any other class of plants, fruits, vegetables, roots, bulbs, seeds, or other plant products, or any class of stone or quarry products, or any other article of any character whatsoever, capable of carrying any dangerous plant disease or insect infestation, specified in the notice of quarantine hereinafter provided, and regardless of the use for which the same is intended, from a quarantined state or territory or district of the United States, or quarantined portion thereof, into or through any other state or territory or district; and the Secretary of Agriculture shall give notice of such rules and regulations as hereinafter provided in this section for the notice of the establishment of quarantine: Provided, that before the Secretary of Agriculture shall promulgate his determination that it is necessary to quarantine any state, territory, or district of the United States, or portion thereof, under the authority given in this section, he shall, after the notice to interested parties, give a public hearing under such rules and regulations as he shall prescribe, at which hearing any interested party may appear and be heard, either in person or by attorney."

Connecticut Horticultural Society.

The Connecticut Horticultural Society has made an auspicious beginning for 1917. Through the efforts of its president, George H. Hollister, superintendent of Keney park, the members were addressed at the January meeting by Dr. G. P. Clinton of the Connecticut experiment station, New Haven, who spoke on "The White Pine Rust and the Diseases of Flowering Plants," and the members were so interested and the speaker so imbued with his subject that President Hollister had to remind him of the time. His remarks covered the history of the study of fungi, and the scientists who devoted the greater part of their lives to the work. In the eighteenth century there was no definite knowledge of fungi. Knowledge really began in the early part of the nineteenth century, when the various kinds, shapes, colors, etc., were distinguished.

The white pine rust is the result of parasites which summer on the leaves of currant bushes, and during the winter live on the young green leaves of the white pine. Dr. Clinton would combat the disease by removing all the berry bushes throughout the state, burning them, and then removing all pines imported from Europe. By the removal of the berry bushes it is hoped to control the spread of the disease, as the fungi are dependent upon them for sustenance from one season to another. At the close of his remarks, the members extended a rising vote of thanks to Dr. Clinton.

The following members were named to serve as the executive committee: John F. Huss, Warren S. Mason, C. H. Sierman, W. W. Hunt and Francis Roulier. The society will hold three flower exhibitions this year. There will be a show in June of hardy flowers, a dahlia show in September, and a chrysanthemum display in November. These exhibitions will surpass anything of the kind ever held in previous years.

THE day of cheap wooden houses is past with cemeteries.

Past, just as it is with everything else, if pencils are sharpened, and some real figuring done.

You know how those old houses used to be put way off out of sight. And no wonder, they certainly were not anything to look at.

But now, with the attractive houses we are building, they become part of the ornamental landscape scheme. Often they are the very centre of it.

This one at Fort Wayne is next the Superintendent's residence, right along the main driveway, before the burial plots are reached.

It is built with our Construction of Everlasting Lastingness.

That greenhouse problem of yours—let's talk it over together. Say when and where, and we'll be there.

Annual Meeting and Exhibition, Indianapolis, Ind., January 31-February 1.
Next Meeting Place, Boston, Mass., 1918.

The Exhibition.

The twenty-sixth annual meeting and exhibition of the American Carnation Society was held at the Claypool hotel in the Riley room, the banquet hall of the hostelry, very suitable in point of size, but somewhat deficient in ventilation. The display as compared to that at St. Louis was by good judges declared to be quite superior, both in number of vases and in the quality of flowers, which in many of the classes were superb. There was not a "sleepy" vase in the whole 112, which number it took to hold the various entries. That carnations will keep is evidenced by the entries of Strout's, Inc., of Biddeford, Me., 1,500 miles from Indianapolis, who brought 800 selected blooms which were entered in the various classes and made a very fine showing, looking as fresh as the stock of the Indiana growers. There were also a number of exhibitors from the vicinity of Boston, whose stock carried perfectly. There were few, if any, delays in transportation and the very mild weather prevented damage by freezing so often experienced.

The vases were staged on round tables about four feet in diameter, each covered with a white cloth. The arrangement of the tables allowed for plenty of room for inspection. All the entries in the various classes were staged side by side on one or more tables, if one was not sufficient, there being plenty of space to stage all without crowding. The vases, fibre and zinc, were all painted an olive green; they belong to the society and are kept by the secretary and shipped to the exhibition each year. One of the most notable vases in the show was that of Baur & Steinkamp, which was staged in the Indiana carnation silver trophy vase competition, which they have won twice. This contained 200 very choice blooms of all the varieties they grow and made a fine display. Carnation foliage would have helped and is not barred. To give an idea as to favorites, or the taste in colors, there were 19 vases of white, 34 of light pink, 24 of red, 18 dark pink, six dark red or crimson, four white and red striped and one of yellow. The whites were superb. In Class 1, for the best 100 blooms entered, were Seedling 140-09, Crystal White, and Matchless. These were exceptionally fine flowers with all the good qualities that a carnation should possess. Class 2, 100 blooms flesh pink, had four entries, Seedling 148-09, a splendid flower; Superb, Enchantress and Nancy. Class 4, 100 medium pink, had two entries, Mrs. C. W. Ward and No. 110, a deep pink flower of very fine form. Class 5, 100 blooms dark pink, had two entries, Rosette and Rosalia, the latter a distinct cerise in color, of fine form. Class 6, 100 red, had eight entries, Thenanthos, Merry Christmas, Belle Washburn, Nebraska, Aviator, Radiance, Beacon and Seedling 2412A, being the varieties that struggled here for supremacy. Class 7, for the crimson, had four entries, Rufus, Bernice, Doris and Seedling 6909A. Class 8, 100 blooms yellow, had one entry, Old Gold. In Class 9 for 100 blooms white variegated, there were three entries, all Benora. There were no entries for Classes 10 and 11 for flaked or other form of decoration.

In sections for 50 of a kind there were a number of exhibits. Class 12, for 50 White Enchantress, had six entries, all of them exceptional blooms which seemed to prove that this old variety does universally well. Class 14, for 50 Matchless, had five entries; these were also splendid flowers. Class 13 called for 50 White Wonder, which brought out five vases of well grown stock. In Class 14, for best 50 Matchless, there were several vases of splendid flowers. In Class 15, for any other white, White Perfection was the only vase. In Class 16, for Alice, there was no entry. Class 17 had several showings of grand flowers of Enchantress Supreme. Class 18, for Pink Delight, brought out three good vases. Class 19, any other flesh pink, showed competition between Nancy and May Day. In Class 20, for 50 Pink Sensation, there were two stunning vases of this famous sort. Class 21, 50 any other light pink, was fought for by two entries of Gloriosa. Class 22, 50 Mrs. C. W. Ward, brought out several wonderfully fine vases. Class 23, for 50 Good Cheer, had four vases. In Class 24, 50 any other medium pink, Mrs. Akehurst and Rose Pink Enchantress were the entrants. Contending in Class 25, 50 any other dark pink, Washington and Rosette fought for first place. In Class 26, 50 Beacon, there were only two vases. Class 28, any other scarlet, tried out Belle Washburn and Portland Pride. Class 29, 50 Pocahontas, was represented by one entry. Class 30, 50 Benora, had three entries. Class 33, Yellow Prince, attracted but one entry. Class 37, 50 Nancy, brought forth two entries. In Class 38, 50 Alice Coombs and in Class 40 for Miss Theo., there was one entry each.

In the competition for the American Carnation Society's silver and bronze medals there were several fine varieties entered. Merry Christmas and Cottage Maid were conspicuous here with vases of exceptional flowers. In the competitive class for the S. A. F. medals for undisminated varieties of American origin there were no awards. For the Fred Dorner memorial medal for 100 blooms of any undisminated seedling to score not less than 85 points F. Dorner & Sons Co., Lafayette, Ind., carried off the honors with Laddie. In the preliminary competition for the medal next year Seedling No. 114 and Edna, a scarlet, were entries. In Class 46, for a certificate of merit, the entries were Bernice and Edna. There were four entries for the Indiana carnation trophy, calling for 50 blooms in four or more varieties to be shown in one vase. These were exceptional blooms and made a beautiful table. A vase of Albert Roper, exhibited by the Albert Roper estate, Tewksbury, Mass., was at all times surrounded by an admiring crowd. Albert M. Herr said it came near to being the finest vase in the show. It is a large cerise flower, with a lilac tinge that is very effective.

In addition to the carnations, there were a number of interesting exhibits, for the most part novelties. The A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, staged the Breitmeyer Florist Co.'s new rose, Rose Pink Ophelia, a sport of this well-known variety. It is a beautiful bloom with a somewhat different shaped bud and flower of a most delightful shade of pink. It has the same curvature at the neck as has Ophelia. It was most interesting to all rose growers in attendance. Red Radiance was staged for Gude Bros., Washington, D. C., by I. Rosnosky. It is a good red in color, the flowers large and in shape much the same as Radiance. Mrs. Sarah Yeats, a new red rose, was exhibited by J. E. Yeats, of Champaign, Ill. This made a good showing and is said to be very free. It is being sent out by the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago. C. T. Guenther, of Hamburg, N. Y., staged several vases of his chrysanthemum, Hamburg Late White, a remarkable flower for the lateness of the season. This did not show a trace of color, which is the trouble with nearly all white varieties as the season advances. It is the best late white to date. W. J. Vesey, Jr., Fort Wayne, Ind., sent splendidly grown pink snapdragons. They were arranged in the vase by Bertermann Brothers Co. and attracted much attention. J. W. Peterson & Sons, of Cincinnati, O., filled a table with pots of Mellior, Glory of Cincinnati and Mrs. J. W. Peterson begonias, all splendidly flowered. A vase of cyclamen flowers was also a feature. A dwarf form of Solanum Capsicastrum was exhibited by Carl Hagenberger, Mentor, O. This was covered with berries and in its miniature form should be a great seller. Mr. Hagenberger has a few plants of a variety in which the berries are yellow, which should be a taking novelty.

There were several exhibits of sweet peas which were so fine that the growers just could not help but bring them along. Peter Weiland, Newcastle, Ind., staged a vase of Rose Queen which were quite the equal of anything ever staged in this country. A number of other sorts were also seen on his table in smaller vases, which were very fine. Hartje & Elder, Indianapolis, also exhibited vases of very choice sweet peas. Deerfield Nurseries, Deerfield, Ill., staged a new cerise colored flower with a dash or shade of yellow that was very fine. H. P. Smith, Piqua, O., exhibited Chrysanthemum Mistletoe—very good blooms for the time of year. There were a number of table decorations arranged by retailers. A grouping of cattleyas and Glory fern exhibited by W. J. & M. S. Vesey, Fort Wayne, Ind., was arranged by Bertermann Bros. Co. With an electric fountain in the center, it made a beautiful display.

The Business Meeting.

The business meeting was opened promptly at 8:30 p. m., Wednesday, in the Florentine room of the Claypool hotel, by Vice-President Bertermann of the State Florists' Association of Indiana, who presented Mayor Bell. His honor cordially welcomed the visitors and spoke in high terms of their calling, with a suitable response by Charles S. Stewart.

President Ammann then presented his address, which was followed by the reports of Secretary Baur and Treasurer Dorner. In the nomination of place for the 1918 meeting, S. J. Goddard, representing Boston, Mass., read invitations from the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and the Boston Gardeners' and Florists' Club, and the secretary presented a communication from Secretary John Young of the Society of American Florists, urging the claims of St. Louis, Mo., in connection with the National Flower Show. Action on this matter was deferred until Thursday morning.

The selection of officers for the ensuing year followed, Irwin Bertermann nominating W. J. Vesey, Jr., of Fort Wayne, Ind., for president, seconded by Fred Lemon. Eugene Dailedouze nominated Charles S. Strout, of Biddeford, Me., for vice-president, and Secretary Baur and Treasurer Dorner were renominated. Peter Fisher, of Ellis, Mass., was nominated to succeed himself as director and Wm. R. Nicholson, of Framingham, Mass., and John H. Dunlop, of Toronto, Ont., were nominees as judges. Wm. Nicholson and E. A. Stroud retiring, Professor Lempe of the University of Illinois department of floriculture read an interesting paper on carnation yellows and in the discussion which followed, R. Witterstaetter recommended growing the young stock in pots instead of field culture. Charles S. Strout blamed excessively wet seasons and A. F. J. Baur advocated better nutrition. Eugene Dailedouze referred to the close resemblance of the varieties Red Wing and Beacon, provoking a spirited debate. Secretary Steinkamp of the State Florists' Association of Indiana, announced an auto tour of the city, calling at various greenhouse establishments, for Thursday afternoon, with refreshments at the Maennerchor club and a banquet at the Claypool hotel in the evening. Robert Kift, of Philadelphia, Pa., called attention to the great festival of the American Rose Society to be held in that city March 20-24.

At the business session Thursday morning Boston was chosen for the next annual meeting and the society voted to co-operate with the Society of American Florists in the National Flower Show to be held in St. Louis next spring. The officers as nominated at the Wednesday evening session were elected. W. A. Clark of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. delivered an address full of information on the "Marketing of Carnations." Messrs. Ward, Rasmussen, Fred Dorner, Strout and others participating in the discussion which followed.

President Ammann's Address.

Ladies, Gentlemen, Fellow Craftsmen:

As presiding officer of this organization, that has so vastly advanced the interests of not only carnation culture, but floriculture in general, I deem it indeed an honor to welcome you to this, the twenty-sixth annual meeting of the American Carnation Society, to this beautiful and centrally located city of Indianapolis.

It is unnecessary for me to repeat at this time the history of this organization; suffice it to say that I feel more and more as I grow older the touch of good fellowship that a meeting like this brings with it. Here we commingle in brotherly love with fellow craftsmen from all over this fair land of peace and prosperity; here we renew old acquaintances and make new ones; now and then we miss an old familiar face—we ask the reason, and find that he has passed on to the great beyond. As to the old varieties of our beloved carnations, we miss them, but never forget them! It is these fond greetings and memories that really make life worth living after all.

To the members of our craft who are so diligently working to produce new varieties of merit, we are probably more indebted to, than we realize, for were it not for something new occasionally the public interest would soon wane. The American people are great on fads, and in order to keep up an interest, new things of special merit are always in demand. I dare say nothing has popularized the rose so much the last few years as the coming on of so many new varieties of merit, and the end is not yet, which I am sure you will be convinced of, in your visit to the E. G. Hill Co. establishment at Richmond, Ind. A friend recently told me it was worth a trip across the continent to see the seedling roses there, so I went and I now testify that the statement is true. We see here what one firm can do by untiring efforts in roses. I contend the same must be done in carnations in order to keep this flower as popular in the future as it has been in the past. Much indeed is being done along this line by quite a few of our trusty old friends, but what seems just at this time to lack in the new production of carnations is that they have not enough merit to replace many of the older varieties. Either they do not produce enough to be profitably grown as standards, or the quality is not good enough to command the extra price a fancy should. But all good things come to those who wait, so let us be patient and I am sure we shall soon be rewarded.

I have but a few suggestions to offer at this time. One I think worthy is to recommend that the number of blooms necessary for a preliminary certificate for the Dorner memorial medal be changed from 50 to 25 blooms. It has been suggested that many times it is hard to get 50 good blooms from a new variety where not so many plants are grown.

We have an ever-growing demand for the society's co-operation with local flower shows, which I am sure we can not afford to ignore. At the board of directors' meeting in Cleveland, November 12, 1915, a motion was passed to the effect that the board recommend to the convention following in January that the A. C. S. lend its co-operation to local flower shows, provided the schedule, the judges and the underwriting of said show be approved by the president and secretary of this society. I take it that the intention here was to have the society offer its usual medals and certificates. However, this matter never came before the regular January meeting of the society, owing, I guess, to an oversight.

I feel it is of such importance that I would recommend that at this meeting the officers be authorized to carry out the intent of this resolution, or that at least some action be taken on the matter towards such a co-operation. For the more we can induce exhibits of carnations the more we can popularize that flower.

I too would recommend that the secretary be authorized to place an advertisement in each of the trade papers, say, when the premium schedule is ready, calling attention to the fact that premium lists are to be had for the application, and stating to those who are not members to include price of membership fee, so as to be eligible to exhibit. I believe this will not only help us to get more exhibitors but also new members. On behalf of the society I want to extend thanks to the trade press for the vast amount of free publicity given the carnation whenever opportunity presented itself.

In closing, I want to heartily thank the secretary, A. F. J. Baur, for his kind co-operation and advice in many things. Also W. J. Vesey, Jr., our worthy vice-president, for his untiring efforts in leading on the preliminary work of this meeting and show. To the local committees, and especially to the exhibitors, I feel deeply grateful for their hearty co-operation in helping to bring about this creditable show. To the members of this society I feel much indebted for the honor conferred upon me in your unanimous choice as your president. I assure you, gentlemen, it will ever bring to me fond memories of your friendship in years to come, and my good wishes and prayers will be with you always.

Secretary Baur's Report.

During the past 12 months the secretary's office has been unusually busy. With our participation in the National Flower Show in Philadelphia last March, and the soliciting of funds in aid of Miss Anna Jarvis, there has been much extra work and some additional expense. The receipts, however, have also increased somewhat, though not quite as much as the expense, so that at the end of this fiscal year we find ourselves with somewhat less money in the general fund than a year ago, but still in very good condition.

During the past year the secretary's office has received:

Dues	$729.00
Advertising	261.85
Miscellaneous	46.05
Mothers' Day	154.00
Total	$1,190.90

This was turned over to the treasurer and his receipt taken therefor.

The secretary's and treasurer's books were checked over by a public accountant and found correct. All bills are being met promptly and all accounts due the society are being collected without loss. We are pleased to note that 26 pages of advertising space in this year's premium schedule were taken by our members and friends. We feel that our members should make an effort to patronize those advertisers as much as possible, in order to make it worth their while to use these pages as an advertising medium.

The one department that gives the secretary more concern than any other is the membership list. During the past year we have taken in 45 new members and reinstated six, yet in spite of this unusual number of new additions we are now 13 members behind last report. The list now stands at 312 annual members and 12 life members, making a total of 324. We have 217 members in good standing in the Society of American Florists and therefor continue to be represented on their board of directors. Our president, J. F. Ammann, was chosen for that position, to serve during 1917.

During the past year we lost Albert Roper, who died March 1; Wm. F. Kasting, who died June 15; Thos. C. Joy, who died November 10, and W. L. Kroeschell, who died November 23. All of these men were favorably known to most of you and will be missed at our future conventions.

Since the last meeting we have received seven new varieties for registration. Fourteen others were sent over by the Perpetual Flowering Carnation Society of England.

A special silver medal was struck to commemorate the society's twenty-fifth year and was awarded to each winner of a first premium in the carnation section at the National Flower Show in Philadelphia last March. Those who received these medals are: S. J. Goddard, The E. G. Hill Co., Stratford Flower Farms, J. W. Minnett Co., Inc., E. F. Lieker, Cottage Gardens Co., A. A. Pembroke, Strouts, Wm. Kleinheinz, W. L. Ellis, Wm. Graham, Mrs. Wm. Austin, A. Harvey & Sons, Countess Eulalia, and W. E. Lenk, fifteen in all. This society took a very active part in the National Flower Show in Philadelphia. Not only did we prepare the premium schedule and the rules for staging the carnation section of the show, but members of this society contributed $515 toward paying the premiums of this department, thereby reducing the liability of the management to that extent. Our silver and bronze medals were also awarded as sweepstakes in the 100 bloom section.

Early in the year, the secretary, by direction of the board of directors, solicited funds from the members for the Mothers' day fund which was being raised by the Society of American Florists, for the purpose of assisting Miss Jarvis in promoting that day. One hundred and fifty-four dollars was raised and sent to Secretary John Young.

The board of directors held the customary post-convention meetings on January 27 in St. Louis. A second meeting was held in Philadelphia on March 28, instead of the usual mid-summer meeting. At this meeting some changes were made in the premiums offered in most of the classes contained in the premium schedule for this year's exhibition. In section A, classes 1 to 11, the premiums were raised from $10 and $6 to $15 and $10. In section B, classes 11 to 36, the premiums were raised from $5 and $3 to $8 and $5. In section C only one premium, $10, is offered instead of $6 and $4. These changes have increased our liability on premiums by $219. Five disseminators have again very generously contributed the premiums in section C.

The identification badges you are wearing were provided as a result of the action taken in the meeting at St. Louis last year. They are the most practical article we were able to find for the purpose. If they are satisfactory, we will continue to use them in the future.

The arrangements for this meeting were left entirely in the hands of our vice-president, W. J. Vesey, Jr., and his committees selected from the state society. That they have labored earnestly and harmoniously you can see by the results accomplished. The retail men have come forward with a splendid demonstration of the carnation's adaptability for decorative effects. They should be given credit and every encouragement possible.

The trade press has opened its columns to everything we have sent for publication. To them is due our thanks.

Notes.

Charles S. Strout, of Biddeford, Me., declared the judges had their work cut out for them in the high quality of so many of the entries. Mr. Strout and the other New England exhibitors had gotten together at Boston and engaged the drawing room of a parlor car in which they placed all their boxes containing 3,000 flowers. They turned off the heat and kept the temperature down as desired. On arrival they were given an express wagon and placed the boxes in the hotel cool room until time for exhibition, when the flowers were all in perfect condition.

J. A. Peterson provided a treat for the members in an illustrated talk on his specialties, cyclamens and begonias, a large number of views of which had been taken on Lumiere plates, which show the flowers in all their natural colors. It was given in one of the rooms of the hotel, adjoining the exhibition, and was very much enjoyed.

The attendance of the show, which was open to the public, taxed the capacity of the room to such an extent that all were required to move in one direction. The high quality of the flowers and the excellence of table decorations were freely commented on and a source of delight to the visitors.

Commenting on the fact that none of the new ones had been good enough for the society's gold medal, several members said that this was no discredit, as but few, if any, of those that attained this distinction, developed into good commercial sorts—they were only fit for the exhibition table.

William Nicholson, of Framingham, Mass., who has not missed an exhibition, thought the display much better than last year in quality of flowers and their arrangement in the hall was unusually good. In speaking of varieties, he said that with him they must pay their board or leave.

E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind., gave as his opinion that a carnation to succeed, must, in addition to other good qualities, be an early bloomer, this being vital, as the November and December flowers brought the high prices and without them it would not pay.

The Chicago Florists' Club's table, filled with Valentine heart posterettes, was very effective. This was a brilliant stroke. Fred Lautenschlager stated the orders now amounted to $1,500, the profit from which will be used in other publicity work.

List of new varieties not yet disseminated: Cottage Maid, Superb, Merry Christmas, Siren, Doris, Thenanthos, Cornell, Crystal White, Edna, Bernice, Olive Whitman, Rosalia, Radium, Old Gold.

Secretary Baur stated that this exhibition contained more flowers of quality, fully as good, and that the attendance was much larger than last year.

F. Dorner & Sons Co.'s vases of Laddie were wonderful. They were coming back all the time—that is, the experts—to have another look.

W. N. Rudd's seedling, white, No. 140-09, fairly glistened in its snow-white intensity. It appears to be ideal in every respect.

John H. Dunlop, of Toronto, was delighted with the show, which he found exceptionally good. He made careful notes of many of the new ones.

The visiting ladies were entertained at a theater party under the direction of Miss Bernice Wiegand and reported a very enjoyable time.

The Saskana Greenhouses, of Binghamton, N. Y., displayed carnation cuttings of fine quality.

PLANT NOTES.

Pelargoniums.

While all the plants so well known as geraniums are pelargoniums, yet it is the show or fancy type called by many Lady Washington geraniums that are generally known under this name. The plants that are wanted in bloom in April and May will now be in their blooming pots and beginning to show their blooming growths, but for June and July flowering the plants should now be shifted to the blooming pots, five or six-inch as the plants may require, except with large specimens, of which few are now seen. They like a turfy, coarse loam, to which may be added one-fourth well rotted manure, and if the soil is heavy a liberal amount of sharp sand to keep it open, and the plants should be potted very firmly. A cool, well-ventilated house should be selected for growing them, and until the days grow warmer and brighter they should be watered sparingly. In early spring, when they are well covered with foliage and the blooming shoots begin to grow, more water will be needed. A little stopping may be necessary if the plants send forth strong, long growths, to make the plant shapely, but care and judgment should be used in this operation, which should cease upon the appearance of the bud shoots, which are easily distinguished by the different manner of growth. Do not attempt to take any cuttings at this time, for after the plants are through blooming is the best time for propagation, and any cuttings taken now are pretty sure to rob the plants of the bloom. These plants are very subject to attacks of both red spider and green fly, and should be fumigated or sprayed regularly. As the extremely hot, dry days of summer approach a slight shade will be found very beneficial to both the plant and flowers.

Antirrhinums.

The grower of antirrhinums has an opportunity now to select the best plants from which to propagate the stock for another year, as the plants are now producing fine spikes and it is possible to select the best types. Those that have fine large flowers set closely together on the stem, and yet not close enough to crowd, are to be preferred. The earliness of blooming is another matter to take into consideration. It will be found in raising these plants from seed that there is a great difference in their time of blooming, and for winter flowering the earliest that there are of good type should be chosen. There are plenty of good cuttings to be obtained now, for the laterals which grow from the axil of each leaf make the best cuttings and the flower is enlarged by their removal. Plants that are in bloom will be benefited greatly from now on by feeding either with liquid manure or a strong mulch, and the next growth thinned to eight or ten shoots, which will insure a much better crop for spring cutting than to allow all the small shoots to grow. Keep the plants tied erect all the time, for it takes but a few hours' sun to draw the tip up from a stem that leans away from the center, with the result that a crooked stem is formed, which greatly impairs its appearance. These spikes of bloom should be handled very carefully, especially the long sprays, for they are very brittle and break easily. It is better not to cut too many at once. When cutting hold them with the heads hanging down, and when there are as many as can be easily held in the hand, cut, take them at once to the flower room, trim off all surplus growth and tie the stems a dozen in a bunch, then loosely tie strings around the center and toward the top of the bunch, and place the stems in a deep jar of water. This prevents crooked stems, so often seen, for the plant continues its growth after being cut, and if allowed to hang away

Carnation Winsor-Enchantress.

The new carnation, Winsor-Enchantress, originated by Kirscht Bros., Morton Grove, Ill., as shown in the accompanying illustration, is said to be a decided improvement over other carnations of this color, being a bright, pleasing shade of medium pink, very similar to Winsor, with other characteristics similar to Enchantress. Kirscht Bros. are gradually getting a good stock of this variety and may have enough to place on the market next year, as they do not wish to over-propagate the stock.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Klft. Philadelphia, Pa.

St. Valentine's Day Posterettes.

The publicity committee of the Chicago Florists' Club reports that there have been sold to date 260,880 of the St. Valentine's day posterettes and 7,000 posters. The committee has received excellent support from the trade throughout the country, and has arranged to make immediate delivery on orders of any size, filling them the same day as received. The committee will be represented at the Indianapolis carnation show with a supply of posterettes and posters.

The records show purchases from the best retail florists of the largest cities in this country.

The florists of Richmond, Ind., purchased 3,600 posterettes and 150 posters.

The florists of Canton, O., combined their purchases in one order.

St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. placed an order for 25,000 stamps.

Cleveland Florists' Club purchased 10,000 posterettes and 500 posters.

Buffalo florists purchased as a body, ordering 10,000 posterettes.

About 10,000 posterettes were sold to florists on the Pacific Coast.

Dudley & Sons, Parkersburg, Va., ordered 5,000 posterettes.

The florists of Louisville, Ky., ordered 10,000 posterettes.

Numerous orders were received from New York.

Rochester, N.Y., ordered about 7,000 posterettes.

Many orders were received from Texas.

February, the Fourteenth.

This should be one of the greatest cut flower days of the year, and every preparation should be made to exploit and make the most of the opportunity. Well worded circulars or notices, calling attention to the sentiment of the day, should be prepared in good time, ready to mail a week in advance. For at least a week the show windows should feature the event in a display of the latest novelties—baskets, hampers, heart shaped boxes, cupids, etc., all of which can be arranged to make a very attractive setting. Several well made corsages, with their ribbon adornments, will help materially. Large red heart-shaped cards, with appropriate inscriptions, are helpful. Such cards stamped with February 14, hung in the center of the door, or about the store, are effective.

This is the season when sweet peas, forget-me-nots, violets, gardenias, lily of the valley and cattleyas are at their best and corsages of these flowers are the standard for Valentine day gifts. Sweetheart, Elgar, Baby Doll, Canadian Queen and other miniature roses are also favorite corsage flowers. All of the above flowers, separately or in combination, can be arranged into beautiful corsage clusters, which, with the appropriate and up-to-date ribbons, are artistic to a degree. Corsage pins of quality are also a feature.

The heart-shaped box, in plain or fancy coloring, is a fitting receptacle and especially appropriate for the day. Boxes of flowers, nicely arranged, to be sent where corsages would not be appropriate, should be in demand. The lid should bear inscriptions on heart-shaped cards in keeping with the spirit of the day.

At the stationers will be found a great variety of plain red and enameled cards in various sizes, with suitable figures and inscriptions that can be put into boxes or pinned to the ribbons of the corsage bunches. These are effective and cost but little.

Choice flowering plants, such as cyclamen, begonias, pots of daffodils, azaleas, etc., make suitable gifts. They should be featured with crepe paper, mats, or placed in pot covers or jardinières, tied with ribbons and heart-shaped cards—just a touch in keeping with the day. Heart-shaped hampers and baskets are also features that make up into very attractive gifts; short pussy willows work nicely into work of this kind. Colonial bouquets of the miniature roses, violets and lily of the valley are very dainty; they should be tied with narrow ribbons, to which a number of the smallest card hearts are attached.

Dinners in the evening call for special table decorations, some of which are quite elaborate. Hollow or solid hearts of red carnations make a good center, or a large hollow heart in the center, from which rises a slender vase of long-stemmed carnations and two smaller hearts of the same at either end, is best where there is space. A double heart is good for the decoration of a round table. At times this is of violets, with a vase of pink roses in the center. The corsages are then of violets.

Gilt, heart-shaped hampers, filled with Sweetheart roses and violets, or in the many other combinations possible, arranged in the center of the table, together with flowers for the cloth, make a very satisfactory showing. In this case there are no corsages, each lady being presented with a hamper at the close of the dinner.

ROSE SUPPLY VERY LIMITED.

Roses are still scarce in this market with the shorter grades most in demand. Paper Whites are very plentiful and are sold very cheap. Daffodils and tulips are arriving in quantity and meet with quick sale. Sweet peas are of excellent quality and bring good prices. The supply of American Beauties is very limited but as the demand for them is very weak, they are not greatly missed. Carnations are plentiful but clean up well each day. Greens move well.

NOTES.

Joseph Thomas and Wm. Loew left January 30 for Indianapolis, where they will attend the convention of the American Carnation Society.

Wm. Loew had a very valuable watch, an heirloom, stolen January 27, and has offered a large reward for its return.

M.

NEIDINGER'S VALENTINE HEART TUMBLER BASKET FILLED WITH WARD ROSES.

Philadelphia Notes.

The Lord & Burnham Co. has received an order for an iron-frame house, 20x100 feet, for the Bethlehem Steel Co. for its Saucon plant at South Bethlehem. This is the second house erected by the Lord & Burnham Co. for this corporation and marks an era, in that all the plants raised are for the adornment of these grounds, three skilled men and assistants being constantly employed in this work. One of the first semi-iron frame houses erected by the Lord & Burnham Co., 40 years ago, has just been reglazed and painted. This speaks well for the stability of their structures.

The sudden death of Samuel Batchelor, of Locust Grove, Long Island, January 19, was a great shock to his many friends in this city, where for 10 years he was an active member of the Florists' Club. As gardener of the Clement Neubold estate, under Mr. Logan, he was a frequent and successful exhibitor at the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society's shows. He was buried at Locust Grove, January 23. He leaves a wife and four children.

President Farenwald of the florists' club is to be congratulated in securing the promise of Max Schling to appear before the club at its meeting February 6. Mr. Schling is one of the most up-to-date and energetic retailers of the country, and the entire trade should turn out to bid him welcome. He has a splendid flow of language, is ingenious in thought, quick in action, and his address cannot but be helpful to those who hear him.

Alfred Cartledge, a son of A. B. Cartledge, of Pennock Bros., will open a flower shop in Wilmington, February 5. Mr. Cartledge is an energetic young man, well versed in the retail business and should made good in this Delaware city, which now enjoys the richest citizens per capita of any community in the United States.

The posterettes of the American Rose Society announcing the time of the festival are ready and can be secured from the headquarters of the American Rose Society, at 1612 Ludlow street. They should be on every envelope and tag used in the flower business from now until the show opens.

J. Doebischer, George Cook and John C. Callahan are always on the job at 1615 Ranstead street. With three such hustlers, and the high quality of the stock they handle, it is no wonder that the business of the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange is booming.

The Bonnaffon chrysanthemums noted last week as the final shipment have not that honor, as it belongs to 25 of the variety Mistletoe which E. Bernheimer received January 26.

American Beauty roses, gardenias and lilac are the leaders with the Leo Niessen Co. With the present scarcity of flowers, Mr. Niessen says there is no surplus to bother them.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. are having a great run on their Valentine novelties. Over 5,000 of their "Valentine Kid" flower holders have gone out and every mail brings additional orders.

"We could do lots more business if flowers were not so scarce," is the report of the Berger Bros. Easter lilies, daffodils and sweet peas are features here.

New roses and carnations are features of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan plant department. All the new varieties of carnations are moving fast.

J. G. Eisele and wife left January 24 for a visit to Fort Meyer, Fla.

"VALENTINE KIDDY" VASE FILLED WITH WARD ROSES.

Novelty Now Being Distributed by H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Rochester, N. Y.

SUPPLY SHORT AND PRICES HIGH.

The cut flower market cleans up well each day because of the scarcity of stock, all of which is high in price. Carnations are of good quality but roses are very small and imperfect, due to cold, cloudy weather. Daffodils, narcissi, tulips, freesias and cornflowers are not as plentiful as might be desired, but the quality is excellent. Prices on violets have dropped and they are selling more freely. Sweet peas are great favorites, as are orchids. Flowering plants are in abundant supply and meet with good demand.

NOTES.

W. A. Elder, for several years with the local office of the Lord & Burnham Co., left here January 20 for Cleveland, O., where he will be identified with the same firm. During his stay in this city Mr. Elder has made many warm friends whose best wishes follow him in his new field of endeavor. S. J. Koister of Pittsburgh will fill the position here, vacated by Mr. Elder. The Lord & Burnham Co.'s building operations have been very active, extending well into the winter months in this vicinity.

The ladies' auxiliary of the Rochester Florists' Society at its annual meeting elected the following officers: Mrs. E. P. Wilson, president; Mrs. H. M. Wilson, vice-president; Mrs. George B. Hart, secretary; Mrs. W. L. Keller, treasurer.

The Western New York Horticultural Society held its annual meeting in this city January 24-26. Further particulars will be found in another column.

E. C. Kaelber won favor last week with a fine arrangement of red roses and white lilac effectively displayed in vases.

CHESTER.

Washington, D. C.

SUPPLY VERY LIMITED.

Stock of all kinds is still scarce and prices are about as high as they can consistently be at this season of the year. There is plenty of business but the retailers are kept on the move all of the time to get enough stock to fill orders.

NOTES.

McKinley day this year was practically forgotten by the public and in fact only two of the local florists seemed to remember the date. As a result there were few calls for carnations.

Geo. H. Cooke sent his force to Delaware to arrange the decorations for the DuPont wedding January 25. Ophelia roses were used in quantity. The decoration was very artistic.

H. Witt is cutting some extra good freesias and snapdragons and has also started to send in fine pot lilies.

The Leo Niessen Co. is receiving some very fine pink snapdragons for which there is a ready sale.

Harry Cedar, formerly of Boston, Mass., is now with George C. Shaffer.

Z. D. Blackistone is back on the job again after an attack of grippe.

G. C. D.

Boston, Mass.

HIGH PRICES CONTINUE.

Business continued at the high price standard during the past week. Roses are scarce and exceptionally expensive. Russell, Hadley and Ophelia are in heavy demand but the supply is far short of requirements. Carnations have varied little, holding firm at $5 and $6 per 100. All varieties are in demand, with the pink and deep pink sorts leading in popularity. Violets are rather scarce and sell at from 75 cents to $1 per 100. Sweet peas are also bringing good prices. Golden Spurs are moving at about $5 per 100 and the demand for Paper Whites has increased the price to $2 and $2.50 per 100. Yellow marguerites and primroses are very scarce and prices are firm. Calla lilies are fairly abundant and sell well at $1.50 and $2 per dozen.

NOTES.

John A. Cox, of Reading, has sold out his establishment to E. P. Matson. At the greenhouses a line of carnation, Sprengerii, calendulas, pansies, sweet peas and callas are grown, and a crop of stocks and spiraea will be grown for Memorial day. N. Aronson will sell the stock at the co-operative market.

George Hannon, of Dorchester, is on the dangerous list at the Boston city hospital, with sciatic rheumatism. The last reports were that, although dangerously ill, he was slightly better than he was. His many friends at both markets feel anxious for him and all are hoping for his speedy recovery.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club held their field day Saturday, January 21, at Framingham, Mass. The establishments of S. J. Goddard, Wm. R. Nicholson and J. Nelson were visited and a very pleasant and instructive afternoon was spent.

Wm. Sim, of Cliftondale, is shipping a good supply of polyanthus among which are red and violet varieties. Although the colors are not what might be termed commercial benefits to the flower they are in the novelty class and sell very well.

Wm. R. Morris, of Wellesley, is planning on devoting one of his houses to carnations next season instead of growing roses exclusively as in the past, Benora, Matchless, Beacon, Alice and Ward will be the varieties.

Patrick Welch reports good trade and notwithstanding the present shortage his chests, it has been noted, are always well filled with stock of the highest quality.

Wm. N. Craig, of Faulkner Farm, Brookline, delivered a lecture at Horticultural hall, Saturday, January 21, on "Seed Planting."

Wm. J. Stewart is able to attend his duties after a very severe attack of grippe.

Wm. H. Elliott is making a four weeks' trip to California.

N. F. McCarthy left for Bermuda, January 24.

Visitor: J. Coan, New York.

F. L. W.

Western New York Horticultural Society.

The sixty-second annual meeting of the Western New York Horticultural Society, preliminary announcement of which, together with the programme, was published in our issue of January 20, page 42, was held in Convention hall, Rochester, N. Y., January 24-26. There was a good attendance and the deliberations of the organization covered a number of timely subjects.

T. B. Wilson, of Hall, N. Y., presented the report of the legislative committee recommending an appropriation of $8,500 to be expended through the state college of agriculture for the study of bean diseases; that the legislature pass a peach-packing law similar to the apple-packing law, and that a national law be passed by the government to make apple grading uniform in all states. The report was adopted.

In the election of officers, there was a strong movement for the nomination of John Hall, of Rochester, who has held the office of secretary-treasurer for 28 years, to fill the office of president left vacant by the death of William C. Barry, the society's head for 27 years. Mr. Hall refused to permit his name to be presented, and the election of Seth J. T. Bush, of Morton, as president followed. The society re-elected Mr. Hall secretary-treasurer. The following were elected vice-presidents: Arthur Barry, Rochester, a son of the late president; Harry L. Brown, Waterport; F. W. Clark, Wyoming; Geo. T. Powell, Ghent; C. K. Scoon, Geneva, and B. D. Van Buren, Riverville.

TRADE CONDITIONS ABOVE COMPLAINT.

Business during the past week has been satisfactory. Stock of all kinds sold well, the variety and quality both being good. Carnations are at present the best seller, with daffodils and roses close contenders. Violets are enjoying their usual popularity and sweet peas are short of the demand. Also in evidence are narcissi, both yellow and white, Roman and Dutch hyacinths, orchids, Sweetheart roses, several varieties of tulips and calla and Easter lilies. Floral work holds out well and everyone is kept quite busy in this branch.

NOTES.

M. M. Burdick, former president of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, died January 25 from an attack of grippe. At the time of his death he was vice-president of the organization.

Valentine's day is the next big event on the florists' calendar, and several novelties will be forthcoming this year as usual to stimulate the demand.

Joseph Kopelman is slowly recovering from an attack of grippe. He expects to be out again shortly.

The Westminster Greenhouses have an excellent display of pot hyacinths.

H. A. T.

Horticultural Society of New York.

The above named society held an exhibition at the American Museum of Natural History, January 13-14. The variety of stock exhibited was not large, but there were interesting features. A fine exhibit of primulas in variety by Mrs. John H. Flagler, Greenwich, Conn., (Wm. Whitton, Gr.), took first prize. The same exhibitor also took first prizes for carnations. Mrs. F. A. Constable, Mamaroneck, N. Y., (James Stuart, Gr.), took first prize for a vase of Buddleia Asiatica, a special prize for a vase of Calanthe Veitchii, and a certificate of merit for a vase of Erlangea, tomentosa. Mrs. H. Darlington, Mamaroneck, N. Y., (P. W. Popp, Gr.), took a special prize for a display of Polyanthus narcissus, and second prize for Buddleia Asiatica. J. C. Brady, Hamilton farms, Gladstone, N. J., took a number of first prizes for carnations. Wm. Shillaber, Essex Falls, N. J., (J. P. Sorenson, Gr.), took first prize for a vase of Sweet Pea Yarrowa. Mrs. Frederick Frelinghuysen, Elberon, N. J., (George Masson, Gr.), took first prize for a vase of mixed varieties of sweet peas, among them being Rose Queen, Lavender Queen and Red Orchid.

On the afternoon of January 13, John Scheepers lectured before the society on "Darwin and Other Tulips." The lecture was illustrated by lantern slides.

A. F. F.

Lancaster County Florists' Association.

At the regular meeting of the association which was called to order January 18 at 7:30 p. m., the following officers were elected for 1917: Harry A. Schroyer, president; W. B. Girvin, vice-president; Frank L. Kohr, secretary; Harry K. Rohrer, treasurer. Committees were appointed as follows: Programme—Rudolph Nagel, Chas. B. Herr and Albert M. Herr; Visiting—W. B. Girvin, Lemon Landis and Ira Landis. Automobile—Chas M. Weaver, A. K. Rohrer and C. S. Loeffler. Exhibition—B. F. Barr, A. F. Strickler and J. DeBarry Heinisch. Sports—David Rose, A. F. Strickler and Chas. Tucker.

The paper of the evening was by Elmer Weaver on the newer carnations, and he did not hesitate to say what he thought of the new carnations and their introducers from the buyer's point of view. It was not all derogatory, neither was it flattering to most of the introductions of the past few years. He mentioned one grower who had White Perfection better by 50 per cent than any white of recent introduction and he obtains this result by the careful selection of the cuttings. He also maintained that if this were followed up with other varieties the novelty introducer would have to produce something of real merit before he could get a hearing. Mr. Weaver also scored the man who would send out a carnation that the commission men all condemn the second season as unworthy of growing on account of its keeping qualities. He claims this could be overcome by having the American Carnation Society test novelties out as to their possibilities along shipping lines, and if found unworthy, to withhold a certificate. In speaking of the newer sorts he mentioned one place where Aviator was far ahead of all other reds in point of production and considered it one of the few good ones introduced last season. He also spoke strongly about the lack of publicity given to the faults of the new carnations and wound up by acknowledging that success or failure is often up to the man who grows the variety, or to the local conditions of soil and houses. The paper was really an expression in public of what almost nine out of every ten growers have to say in private about the carnation industry and its shortcomings, and the speaker was given a unanimous vote of thanks for it. In the discussion that followed Miss Theo was pronounced as a good producer, but rather small, and with too many off colored flowers. Alice had the same fault without the redeeming feature of being beyond the normal in production, although one grower who keeps accurate accounts, reported having cut seven flowers per plant from Alice up to this time. Belle Washburn was considered a very fine one but shy in point of bloom, one grower reporting Aviator as ten times as productive, but not quite as good a flower.

Stephen A. Kost, of the Wm. F. Kastings Co., Buffalo, N. Y., was a visitor and made some remarks on carnations and some things he had picked up in regard to the fertilizers they need. T. J. Nolan was looking up the construction of the new houses he sold the B. F. Barr Co. Both gentlemen were along on the visiting trip.

Walter Davis, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, made some fitting remarks on the flowers they had on exhibition, and was given a vote of thanks with prospects of future orders for the fine exhibition he set up, as follows: Carnations—Superb from the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill.; Rosalia, from F. Dorner & Sons, Co., Lafayette, Ind.; Cornell, by Ira D. Marvin, Williamsport, Pa.

Miss Theo and Belle Washburn by W. & H. F. Evans, Philadelphia, Pa.; Doris, by S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass.; Rose Primrose, by South Park Floral Co.; Rosalie and Donald MacDonald by Robt. Scott & Son, Sharon Hill, Pa.; Little Gem, by Edward Towill, Roslyn, Pa.

Carnations Crystal White, Cottage Maid and Merry Christmas were promised, but failed to materialize. Merry Christmas came Friday afternoon and was shown to as many of the growers as could be reached. This variety seems to have a hard time of it around Lancaster, but is being tested out along the lines of Elmer Weaver's paper, and there have been quite a few orders placed for it because it shows up so well under difficulties. Doris has also been unfortunate in its visits to this vicinity, but in spite of this has created some sensation on account of its delicious carnation fragrance, a point lacking in so many of the recent introductions.

Preparations are under way to make the next meeting a sweet pea symposium. The date is February 15.

In the afternoon previous to the meeting, it being one of the few ideal days experienced in the past sixty or seventy, 15 members of the club left on the 2 o'clock car for Strasburg. The first stop was at Amos Rohrer's, who grows a few plants on the side benches for the benefit of the Strasburg public and finds ready sale for them as they are always good stock—primulas, cyclamens, and later on, some bedding plants. One old specimen plant of sedum, in full bloom since Thanksgiving, was really quite a treat to the rest of us. His carnations, mostly standard varieties, were uniformly good. He is trying out Miss Theo, and while the plants look good and healthy, it is not fully satisfactory as a commercial variety, some of them coming off color. Alice Coombs is grown here as good as any plant in the county, but does not measure up to the standard Mr. Rohrer has set for a good carnation. He has exhibition flowers, but not enough of them.

Chas. B. Herr was next on the list, and this place is always one of the show spots of the county and never disappointing. It is a carnation range, pure and simple, and the carnations, as a rule, are just a little better than the average; of course not every one meets Mr. Herr's requirements, and Dagmar, Alice and Alice Coombs are not being propagated for next year's stock. Pink Delight is being bought to take the place of Alice, and Dagmar and Alice Coombs are looking for a successor as yet unfound. Beacon, one of the successes here, is beginning to split a bit, but will be seen as good as the best in spite of this, for it is either at home in this soil or is better understood than with most growers. Matchless and Supreme are favorites here as they are throughout almost the entire county.

ALBERT M. HERR.

Morris County, N. J. Society.

The annual dinner of the above named society, celebrating its twenty-first year, was held at Piper's hotel, Morristown, N. J., on the evening of January 23, and was a most enjoyable affair, about 125 being present. Richard G. Hollman, of New York, president of the International Exposition Company, acted as toastmaster, and at his table were seated President Frank Breare of the society, Vice-President David Francis, Treasurer Wm. H. Duckham and Secretary Edward Reagan. Toastmaster Hollman was obliged to leave before the speaking ended to catch a train and for the remainder of the evening Arthur Herrington took his place.

Both toastmasters being greatly interested in the spring show in New York, had good words for it. Other speakers were: Dr. Evans, medical director of the state hospital at Morris Plains, N. J.; Mayor Ross, of Madison, N. J.; Mayor Badgley, of Chatham, N. J.; Arthur T. Boddington and Charles Weathered of New York. The latter, in his address, paid a graceful compliment to Charles H. Totty, who is a prominent member of the society, and suggested him as a suitable man for the next president of the Society of American Florists. In a very clever speech, Secretary Reagan, in behalf of the society, presented Wm. H. Duckham with a diamond scarf pin.

A. F. F.

Canadian Horticultural Association.

At a meeting of the gardeners and florists of Montreal, called to formulate plans for the entertainment of the delegates who will attend the meeting of the Canadian Horticultural Society, in August, the following committees were appointed:

Finance—C. A. Smith, chairman; E. J. Hayward and Wm. Cotter.

Entertainment—Jas. McKenna, chairman; A. J. Bowles, R. Burrows, Ed. Gernay and Professor Bunting.

Reception—Wm. A. Hall, chairman; E. J. Hayward, J. Walsh, J. Bennett, A. C. Wilshire, A. Ferguson, F. Smith, Wm. Wilshire, J. Eddy and J. Parre.

The social part of the programme is almost complete and will include a trip through the harbor, a visit to Saint Anne de Bellevue, Senneville and by special invitation, Macdonald College; also a trip through the famous rapids, a climb to the top of Mt. Royal, inspection of the Montreal nutmeg melon fields, auto drive through the city parks and other features still to be decided upon. The base ball game, which resulted in a tie at the last meeting, at Berlin, will have to be played to a finish, and there will be a challenge bowling match—Montreal vs. All Canada.

JULIUS LUCK, Sec'y.

Windsor, Ont.

Since Charles R. Tuson, well-known local florist, was elected mayor, the demand for cut flowers of every variety suitable for club banquets and city hall council chamber meeting decorations has been on the increase. Plants have also increased in popularity. The mayor is popular and is much in demand at both public and private gatherings, and flowers are naturally a feature.

Miss Lucretia L. Bamford is receiving choice cut blooms of pink and white hyacinths, also fancy sweet peas, all of which are in good demand at the Windsor Flower Shop. Good Michigan violets and lily of the valley are also attractively displayed.

Daily shipments of cut flowers are received here from Brampton, Grimsby, Port Dover and Tilsonburg. The carnations and lily of the valley from Port Dover are excellent. J. E. K.

Petrola, Ont.

Much interest was taken in the recent corn show held here, and large crowds viewed the well-arranged exhibits. President Graham reported that the directors of the corn fair were highly pleased with the progressive results. Several prominent horticulturists from Michigan interested in the Lamberton rural school conference were in attendance. There were many interesting talks on garden cultivation pertaining to children's gardens.

OBITUARY.

Joseph Browne.

Joseph Browne, proprietor of the Lischev Nursery and Greenhouses, Nashville, Tenn., died January 25, after a long illness with bronchitis and asthma. He was about 50 years of age and had been connected with the business since it was established by the late Louis Lischev, in 1867, a typical English gardener who came to this country several years previous and located in Nashville at a time when there was a great demand for shrubs and decorative plants. The business thrived and he began the cultivation of roses which were then popular and rare. Mr. Lischev died about 25 years ago, willing his entire estate and greenhouses to Joseph Browne, who has since conducted them and developed them to goodly proportions. He was well thought of and had a large patronage, being especially sought after as a landscape gardener. Of late years he made a specialty of furnishing palms and pot plants for hotel decorations. He is survived by a widow.

William W. Essig.

William W. Essig, of Detroit, Mich., one of the best known nurserymen in the country, died January 23, at Stuart, Fla. His wife and son, Robert W., were with him and are bringing the remains home for interment.

Mr. Essig was 62 years of age, born in Ohio, but for 40 years had lived in Detroit. He was president of the Pontiac Nursery Company and active in its affairs until his health failed.

The rod and gun were Mr. Essig's implements of pleasure and he belonged to the North Channel and the Monokong hunting and fishing clubs of Detroit. He has shot game birds and caught fish in all parts of the country. Mr. Essig was a member of the Elks.

ORLANDO, FLA.—F. W. Fletcher & Co., well known growers of Auburndale, Mass., have established a range here.

HAMILTON, ONT.—Major John Connon, of the Connon Company, Ltd., now in service in the English army, has been returned from his camp at Bramshott, Eng., on sick list.

PETERBORO, ONT.—The Peterboro Floral Co., Jordan Bros. and A. Blade & Son report a highly satisfactory Christmas trade, stock in all lines selling better than in former years.

GENEVA, N. Y.—W. C. Stone, formerly assistant horticulturist at the Vermont experiment station at Burlington, has been appointed to a similar position at the experiment station here.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—La Tour's Flower Shop, 1913 Niagara street, conducted by Mrs. W. N. La Tour and her daughter, Miss Z. La Tour, will celebrate its fifteenth business anniversary in the near future.

NEWARK, N. J.—The Essex County Florists' Club, at its annual meeting, January 25, elected the following officers for 1917: John Pfeuffer, president; Jas. J. McLaughlin, vice-president; Edward Jacobi, Irvington, N. J., secretary, and Edward Persson, treasurer.

DEMAND IS VERY ACTIVE.

Business during the past two weeks has been excellent, but the supply has been short, owing to zero weather and cloudy days. Many retailers are experiencing difficulty in getting enough stock for their requirements. The call for funeral work has been very heavy. Roses have been in brisk demand with Russell, Sawyer, Ward, Sunburst, Ophelia and Richmond in the lead. Carnations are also scarce and high in price. Some very good sweet peas are to be seen. Pot plants are selling well.

NOTES.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey had the decorations for the annual banquet of the salesmen of the Bowser Oil Tank Co. at the Anthony hotel at which 500 persons were served. They also decorated the tables at the Bowser Club and the Palace theater.

The regular meeting of the florists' club will be held at the greenhouses of F. J. Knecht & Co., February 6. Several matters of importance, including the constitution, will be discussed and all members are urged to be present.

The Flick Floral Co. is showing some handsome rhododendrons and azaleas. Decorations and funeral work have kept the force here very busy. Miss Marguerite Flick will leave shortly on a business trip to Detroit, Mich.

Edgar Wenninghoff had an unusually attractive window of spring flowers recently. He has been very busy with funeral work.

A. J. Lanternier has been having a heavy sale on blooming plants, including daffodils, hyacinths and azaleas.

The Doswell Floral Co. is cutting excellent Ophelia and Sawyer roses and single violets. H. K.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The eleventh annual dinner of the above society was held in the Oriental hotel, Glen Cove, N. Y., Jan. 23. There was an attendance of nearly 100 members and friends who sat down to a sumptuous repast, which reflected great credit on the dinner committee, and for the time being made us all forget the high cost of living. The tables were all splendidly decorated with well grown cut flowers and pot plants. After we had taken good care of the inner man and nearly 100 per cent present were enjoying their Bobbie Burns, President James McCarthy, with a few well chosen words, presented James McDonald with a small present, as a token of appreciation for his excellent administration as our president during the past year. Wm. J. Stewart, of Boston, Mass., was then introduced as toastmaster for the evening. Toasts were responded to as follows: Nassau County Horticultural Society, John F. Johnson; New York Florists' Club, A. Guttman; Seed

Trade, Wm. Sperling; Nursery Trade, W. E. Maynard; Medical Profession, Dr. Connally; Glen Cove Village, Rev. J. W. Gammack; Our Country, County Supervisor J. H. Cocks. A telegram was read from M. C. Ebel, Madison, N. J., and best wishes were also received from the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and the Horticultural Society of Boston. Practically all the important nursery and seed houses in the country were represented by members of the firms or their travelers. Among those who added to the pleasure of the occasion by their singing were: Furguerson T. Twigg, Andy Wilson, Robt. Jones, W. J. Colline and R. T. French. A rising vote of thanks and the singing of "He's a Jolly Good Fellow" was tendered our excellent and entertaining toastmaster. We then concluded, unanimously, the most successful annual dinner in the society's history by crossing hands and singing, "Shoud Auld Acquaintance Be Forgot."

THE NEW QUEEN OF RED ROSES

The color is a new and brilliant red. The petals are large (see illustration) and soft and velvety in texture.

Leaves are large, well shaped and rich green in color.

Its shipping and keeping qualities are remarkable—A dozen specimen roses were brought by train from Champaign to Chicago, taken to several places, inspected and finally left lying on a desk in our office. Though in bloom when finally put in water and placed in our refrigerator, we found them closed to buds in the morning.

STOCK POOR BUT DEMAND STEADY.

Trade during the past week has shown signs of weakening. cut flowers, however, continue in good demand, but the quality is not up to the standard for this time of the year, due largely to cloudy weather with snow almost every day. The snowfall this winter has made a record so far and the continued zero temperature makes shipments difficult. The express companies have had their hands full in adjusting complaints. It has been the writer's experience that most of this trouble is occasioned by the packages being left on the station platforms after being taken out of the cars.

NOTES.

William C. Hall is in the midst of a campaign for a seat as alderman in Montreal West. We wish him all success.

C. A. Smith will sell his establishment at Lachine and retire from business.

Westchester and Fairfield Society.

The monthly meeting of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society was held in Hubbard's Hall, Greenwich, Conn., January 12. James Stuart, in a very able and instructive manner, installed the new office holders for 1917. Wm. Whitton, the newly elected president, then took charge of the meeting. There was a good attendance of the members and they were well repaid for coming out on such a cold night by seeing one of the finest displays of flowers and pot plants ever staged at any of our meetings. The judges made the following awards for the exhibits of the evening: Cultural certificate to Wm. Graham for two fine vases of Carnations Good Cheer and Pink Sensation. Wm. Whitton was awarded a cultural certificate for a beautiful vase of White Killarney roses; also a cultural certificate for six plants of Primula Malacoides. These plants were in 10-inch pots and were quite an exhibit in themselves. For a lovely vase of Calanthis Veitchii, Jas. Stuart was awarded a cultural certificate. This flower shows up splendidly, arranged with Buddleia Asiatica. John Forbes was also awarded a cultural certificate for a very fine vase of Laelia anceps. Robert Grunart was highly commended for five vases of sweet peas; also for a vase of Matchless carnations. John Harper was highly commended for a new seedling carnation; the judges would like to see the plants growing before passing further judgment on them. The thanks of the society were awarded to John Andrew for plant of Begonia Cincinnati, to Wm. Graham for three heads of cauliflower, to Robert Grunart for two vases of carnations and to P. W. Popp for vase of freesias.

After considerable discussion it was decided to hold a smoker instead of the annual concert and dance, so the executive committee were instructed to arrange for holding same after the business of the February meeting was finished. W. J. Sealey then read a very interesting paper on "How to Grow Bush and Standard Chysanthemums," which was enjoyed very much by the members present. He was accorded a hearty vote of thanks for his instructive paper. Three new members were elected and two applications were filed. The society meets on the second Friday of each month in Hubbard's hall, Greenwich, Conn.

GOOD TRADE AND ADEQUATE SUPPLY.

Spring flowers are beginning to come into quite strong competition with the staples of past weeks. Daffodils, freesias, tulips and pussy willows are having good sale in baskets. In pot plants, cyclamens and primroses have the call. On the whole trade is good, funeral work being a leading factor. There is no marked scarcity in anything, but some florists are able to clean up pretty well from day to day. Roses lead in volume of sales, with good local stocks from which to draw in most varieties. Cuttings of sweet peas are very prolific, and there are indications of the market soon becoming overstocked. Prices show a tendency to soften. Some windows are already exploiting St. Valentine's day. There has been a steady growth of business at this anniversary during recent years, and greater preparations, including a larger and more varied display of fancy boxes, have been made to meet it this season.

Within a few days a new floral shop will be opened at 120 East Broad street, by the Fifth Avenue Floral Company. F. M. Brownwell, late manager of the cut-flower department of the Livingston Seed Company, will be in charge. The company's old store, at 44 North High street, is to be continued until April 1, at which time its lease there expires, and the business will be consolidated at the new stand. The latter is slightly out of the retail district, but is near the three principal club houses and fronts on the leading residence thoroughfare. The new store is of good size, modernly equipped, and will present a very attractive appearance. J.

STOUGHTON, MICH.—E. K. Collins will open a seed store here and will also handle nursery stock.

Tarrytown Horticultural Society.

The eighteenth annual dinner of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society was held in the Florence Inn, Tarrytown, N. Y., January 16, and proved to be one of the most enjoyable events in the history of the society, and it must be added that the annual dinners of this society have always been among the delightful events of the winter. The large dining hall was never more resplendent in its decorations, which represented a flower garden.

After the dinner, well and generously served, President Bradley in an appropriate speech turned the gavel over to James T. Lawrie, for many years secretary of the society, who made a most excellent toastmaster. After a few well chosen remarks he introduced the former village president, Frank R. Pierson, who was warmly welcomed. The speaker praised the work of the society and its many excellent exhibitions, calling attention to the prosperity of the organization, which had now become a county institution. The second speaker was Judge Frank L. Young, who spoke of the large attendance at the dinner and felicitated the society on its growth and said that Tarrytown was to be congratulated in having such an organization. He complimented Mr. Pierson, whose efforts have been of such great benefit to the community. Judge Young spoke of many matters of civic interest and his address was vigorously applauded. Following several solos by Edward E. Carman, which were most delightfully rendered, were other speakers, among them being the Rev. J. J. Henry, District Attorney; Lee P. Davis, Chas. H. Tibbits, county planning commissioner; Supervisor John T. Sinnott, Rev. Lucas Boeve and Wallace Odell.

Among those present were: Rev. J. J. Henry, Rev. Lucas Boeve, Rev. Charles A. Ashmead, James T. Lawrie, John J. Sinnott, Frank R. Pierson, Charles D. Millard, E. W. Neubrand, Andrew H. Brown, Joseph E. See, Wallace Odell, William Jamieson, Robert Dashwood, John R. Collins, E. E. Carman, John Elliott, George McIntosh, Charles Vanderbilt, John Featherstone, L. C. See, Theodore Trevillian, A. F. Wood, Harry Snape, Edward Cosgrove, Benton S. Russell, John Grant, J. Wyckoff Cole, W. F. McCord, Ernest Ballard, Carl C. Loh, Anson Dolen, Joseph O'Neil, Edward Nossitter, Wm. V. Morgan, Edward Hanyen, Emmett Taxter, Mr. Walle and Mr. O'Neil, of Tarrytown; Lee Parsons Davis, of Yonkers; Frank L. Young, E. H. Kipp, Philip Carsol and John Woodcock, of Ossining; Charles H. Tibbits, and John Bushong, of White Plains; James Currie, Joseph Mooney and Theodore Wilde, of Hastings; Henry Kastberg, Joseph Bradley, of Dobbs Ferry; George W. Strange, Orange, N. J.; J. Austin Shaw and A. F. Faulkner, of New York City; W. J. Sealey, of Port Chester; J. B. McArdle, of Greenwich; James Stuart, of Mamaroneck; William Scott, of Elmsford; H. H. Cannon, Norman Templeton, Charles R. Russell and William Buckley, of Irvington.

The regular meeting of the society was held in the Corporation building, January 17, President Bradley in the chair. This being "carnation night," a fine display of many varieties of recent introduction were featured. For three varieties, six blooms of each, first honors went to Caleb Weeks, T. Strutheway being second. The thanks of the society were tendered to other exhibitors. A fine seedling adiantum was shown by George McIntosh which received a certificate of merit. An interesting discussion on the cultivation of carnations followed the judging and many valuable points were brought out.

For the February meeting the exhibits will be flowering plants in pots not to exceed seven inches and 12 cut roses, two varieties, six of each, other than American Beauty.

E. S. Dodd, Irvington, and John W. Dowling, Tarrytown, were elected to membership. J. GRANT, Cor. Sec'y.

ROSES ARE A TRIFLE MORE PLENTIFUL.

Roses are a trifle more plentiful at this writing but are cleaning up completely every day at satisfactory prices. American Beauty roses continue to be in brisk demand and are bringing top notch figures. Mrs. Chas. Russell are arriving in large quantities but there are none too many to go around. Killarney Brilliant are reaching the market in exceptionally fine condition and the receipts of Ophelia appear to be much heavier. Roses in general seem to be reaching the market in large supply and while they are clearing well prices are not as high as they were last week. Carnations are plentiful enough to supply the demand but are not as numerous as they have been, consequently prices are better although they are not what they should be yet. Tulips, jonquils, daffodils and freesias are in large supply. The first Rainbow freesias of the season made their appearance this week and sold almost as quickly as they were offered for sale. Lily of the valley was unusually scarce last week when it was impossible to supply anywhere near the demand. Orchids are in good supply and there are plenty of gardenias to go around. Lilies and callas are selling quickly owing to the large amount of funeral work. Sweet peas are seen in large quantities everywhere but are having a good call and there is never any surplus to speak of. Snapdragon, mignonette, stocks, pansies, daisies, statice, bouvardia, iris, sweet alyssum, feverfew, gladioli, candytuft, and calendulas are included in the many offerings. Pussy willows are seen featured everywhere in the retail store windows and while they are offered at several of the wholesale houses in large supply they move readily at prices ranging from 25 to 50 cents per bunch. Green goods of all kinds are to be had in quantity. From present indications it appears as if stock will be in fair supply for St. Valentine's day but if the demand is anything near what it was last year everyone will find it to their advantage to place their orders well in advance.

NOTES.

The E. C. Amling Co. is now comfortably located in its new quarters at 169-175 North Wabash avenue, directly across the street from its old stand. Their new home presents a most inviting appearance in its new coat of white and green paint and everyone will admit that it is a great improvement over their old store, which was considered an ideal wholesale place. This house received its first shipment of Rainbow freesias of the season this week and reports a ready demand for same. John Michelsen made a trip to Richmond, Ind., January 31.

The wholesale florists held a meeting Tuesday afternoon, January 30, when practically all the local houses were represented and the question of charging for packing was the main topic of conversation. While nothing definite was accomplished all those present seemed to be in favor of making a uniform charge for packing, which, no doubt, will be agreed upon at the next meeting to be held Tuesday, February 6.

Erne & Klingel are handling a splendid supply of freesias, stevia and orchid flowering sweet peas as well as their usual large assortment of spring flowers.

Zech & Mann report that freesias are selling exceptionally well at good prices. Roses are more plentiful at this establishment this week.

Mrs. Jacob Bauer, formerly Miss Bertha Duppeler—when she was the postmaster's secretary—observed her annual custom January 29 by distributing carnations among all officials and employes of the local postoffice. It was her part of the memorial observation honoring the martyred President, William McKinley.

Andrew Chronis, of the Alpha Floral Co., was a guest at the Hotel Morrison last week when fire broke out and drove all the patrons to the ground floor in a hurry. Fortunately, the blaze was extinguished before any great damage was done, otherwise the trade might have been minus one of its leading members.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is having a big demand for baskets for St. Valentine's day and for sphagnum moss, which is being handled in quantity. T. E. Waters, manager of the supply department, escorted his old friend, W. H. Elliott, of Boston, through the wholesale market this week.

Percy Jones has filled a big batch of orders for rooted carnation cuttings which represent nearly every state in the union. Practically all of the orders were accompanied by cash, which speaks well for the confidence that the trade has in the advertisers of THE AMERICAN FLORIST.

The proprietors of the store known as The Chicago Florist, are well satisfied with business and have done better than they expected they would since they opened their new store at 35 East Adams street.

Bassett & Washburn are cutting more heavily in roses but the demand seems to keep pace with the supply, consequently, they are sold out completely every day before the store closes at night.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. had a heavy shipping day Monday, January 29, which kept the entire force on the jump getting out all the orders on time.

J. A. Budlong is showing a good supply of orchid flowering sweet peas in addition to a grand line of roses and carnations.

The Chicago Florists' Club will meet at the Hotel Morrison next Thursday evening, February 8 at 8 o'clock.

J. J. Marsh, with the Farmers' & Florists' Fertilizer Co., is back from a trip to eastern points.

Miss Clara Meade and Peter Baumann, of the Peter Reinberg store forcé, were quietly married Saturday, January 27. Miss Carrie Orum and Herbert Hansen assisted the happy young couple, and after the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the Hotel Morrison. Felix Reichling and the other employes at the Reinberg store, decorated the tables in honor of the event with American Beauty roses.

R. J. Wentworth and wife, of Minneapolis, Minn., are visiting here for a few days. He placed an order with the John C. Moninger Co. while here for a new greenhouse, 34x250 feet, an addition to his present vegetable range.

H. G. Knowlton and Ed. Jacob, of the A. L. Randall Co., left January 28 on a southern trip.

Tom White of the Central Floral Co., Detroit, Mich., is home on a visit.

Indianapolis, Ind.

Bertermann Brothers Co., 241 Massachusetts avenue, has an ideal busy shop with commodious conservatory in the rear. I liked the way in which the cut flowers and blooming plants were displayed on small tables in the front of the store. Every vase or basket of flowers, or plant in a basket or jar, seemed to be featured and was a finished product waiting for a chance to be on its way. The conservatory, opening onto a street in the rear, was filled with choice palms and decorative plants. In the very commodious basement underneath the store and greenhouse were kept the decorative helps, stands, pot covers and the like. An extra lot of columns, electric fountains, etc., were being gathered together for a large decoration for a coming automobile show, which would amount to thousands of dollars. A splendid holiday trade was reported; in fact, the whole season's business had been excellent.

In this beautiful Hoosier city on the eve of the convention, while waiting for the gathering of the lovers of the "divine flower," the writer took a look around the shops and spent a few hours with the men whose word is final when it comes to judging carnations. E. G. Hill is a famous grower of roses, carnations and chrysanthemums, which should be enough glory for one man, but having an ambition to go a notch higher, he opened a retail store in this city, which is in every respect all that such a shop should be. It has been described in these columns before and it can truly be said that in its furnishings, stock of cut flowers and their display it would be a credit to any street in any city in the land. Business had been very good all season.

Anthony Wiegand's & Sons Co., 1610-20 North Illinois street, are in the residence district where, surrounded by fine homes, they have an acre of ground covered with store, show house and working greenhouses, all splendidly equipped for the large business they enjoy. The large show window of the store was beautifully decorated with a canopy of artificial wistarias and a wealth of flowering plants and cut flowers. A feature of the large show conservatory was a section of one of the street windows filled with alligators, big fellows over three feet in length—a little touch of Florida, which their customers might see without having to go so far.

Smith & Young Co., wholesale florists, 228 East Ohio street, enjoy a monopoly of this branch of the trade. They are well equipped for the work and handle all kinds of supplies for the retail shop as well. Their business had been handicapped by the scarcity of roses for the past month, but the outlook is now more promising.

Some of the early convention arrivals visited the Baur & Steinkamp range Tuesday afternoon to look over the carnations. All were much pleased with the up-to-date way of doing things as seen there and particularly with the house of Merry Christmas, which everyone declared to be a wonderful flower.

John Rieman, 203 Massachusetts avenue, has a prominent corner store. In his window a vase of Pink Sensation contained the largest flowers of any carnations I have ever seen.

Hensley's Flower Shop, 5 East Ohio street, made a very pretty appearance with its up-to-date fixtures and stock of flowers. It was opened in October, 1916.

Baur & Steinkamp's new red Merry Christmas, filled a vase. This is certainly a fine flower. A good transient trade is a feature here. K.

HIGH PRICES BUT NO SURPLUS.

Retailers report an unusually good business for this season of the year, despite high prices prevailing for nearly every item in the fast increasing lists of seasonable flowers. Roses lead all other flowers at what appears excessively high prices and the supply of them is inadequate to the demand. Carnations are becoming more plentiful as the season advances, and the quality much improved, but are commanding good prices and the supply is completely absorbed. Lily of the valley is very scarce and poor and is bringing a better price than superior stock ever realized here. Violets are good with plenty of them to meet the requirements. Lilies are very scarce and the few available bring good prices. Paper Whites and freesias are the only items much in excess of the demand, but the heavy crop of the former is being depleted, and improved conditions for this flower are in sight. Bulbous pot plants are now coming in and are all readily used at fair prices. The growers give no encouragement to the prospect for an increased supply of roses before three weeks or more. The excessively cold and cloudy weather still maintains, and the supply of coal with many is being speedily reduced.

NOTES.

W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., has been taking mineral bath treatment for rheumatism at the Medea hotel, Mt. Clemens, Mich. He is much improved after four weeks' treatment and will soon return to his home. Mr. Manda was an interested spectator and participant in the bowling exercises of the Detroit boys at two of their regular practice games.

B. Koebele, who, for the past eight years, conducted a florist store in connection with extensive landscape work at 1095 Townsend avenue, has sold his business to Henry Wostrow, who is now established at 2575 Woodward avenue.

Norman Sullivan had charge of an elaborate decoration for the annual ball of the Knights of Columbus, January 29.

Thomas Browne, A. J. Stahelin and Fred Breitmeyer will attend the carnation meeting at Indianapolis.

Philip Breitmeyer is on a trip to Cuba, where he will remain until about March 1, next.

SATISFACTORY DEMAND AT GOOD PRICES.

Business is good but the supply of stock is not quite equal to requirements. Prices are satisfactory although in some instances they are a point or two lower than the quotations of a week ago. Roses are in demand in all varieties with the exception of American Beauty. The receipts, however, are short of the demand, and much of this is now taken care of by carnations and Easter lilies, both of which are good property and are fairly plentiful. Calla and rubrum are also in fair supply. Narcissi and daffodils are having a good market and sweet peas sell well. Other offerings include lily of the valley, single violets, orchids, primroses and snapdragons.

BUSINESS GOOD WITH STOCK SHORT.

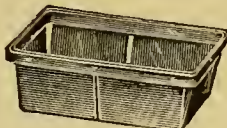

Business during the month of January was good and may be compared with that of December, with exception of the few days rush previous to Christmas. The social functions played a big part in the business during January. In most retail stores the help worked overtime to get funeral work out, because during the day everybody was busy with decorations. The supply of flowers in all lines was short. There are but few roses that could be had for less than $8 per hundred and from that price they ranged to $15 for average stock. American Beauties at $3 to $6 per dozen cleaned up well each day and there were enough of these to meet the demand as it arose. Carnations are moving freely at $4 per hundred, but there are hardly enough to fill all orders. White carnations and those of lighter shades sell best, although with the scarcity of stock the deeper colors move almost as well. The miscellaneous flowers, those that are not grown in quantities, but are highly prized by true flower lovers, are now arriving in larger quantities and sell well. Tulips, hyacinths, freesias, forget-me-nots and primroses helped the short supply of every-day stock. Harrisii lilies are scarce, and the same can be said of callas. The demand for same is good. Violets and sweet peas are selling well at moderate prices. The former are bringing 40 cents to 60 cents per hundred, the last mentioned 75 cents to $1.50. The supply of orchids is good, with fair demand. Greens clean up well.

ROSE SUPPLY VERY SCANT.

It has been a long time since the rose crop has been as short as it has been during the past month, but a few more days of sunshine ought to remedy this. Carnations are in better supply and are moving nicely. Proserpine tulips, Paper Whites and daffodils are a part of the bulbous stock offered. Callas are good stock. Sweet peas, violets, swainsonas, stevias, freesias and snapdragons are in good supply and meet with an excellent call. Orchids are in good supply and in good demand. Greens are plentiful.

NOTES.

The most successful and interesting trip of inspection ever held under the auspices and direction of the florists' club took place Thursday, January 25, when 77 members of the club, including many out-of-town florists, gathered at the East 55th street depot of the Pennsylvania railroad and went to the new range of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co., at Newton Falls, Ohio. The trip was enjoyed by all. The courteous treatment extended by the Bate Brothers to all at the greenhouses, the treat to see the stock, all looking at its best, the well kept greenhouses and boiler house, and packing shed all showed the thoroughness which prevails throughout the entire range. After a fine banquet at which 134 sat down and enjoyed the evening with music and singing, including short speeches by some of the leading citizens of Newton Falls and members of the florists' club, everybody went home tired, but happy.

SUPPLY LIMITED AND PRICES HIGH.

While the weather has moderated somewhat since our last report, market conditions remain unchanged, with a big shortage in roses, and prices are high. Carnations are of good quality and very plentiful. The same may be said of bulbous stock. Sweet peas are making a big lead, and violets and lilies have slowed up somewhat. Pot plants continue to sell well.

NOTES.

John Stevens, well-known grower, and several members of his family were injured on the night of January 25, when his automobile ran into a ditch, completely wrecking the machine.

T. J. Noll & Co. report a scarcity of roses, and prices are correspondingly high. Carnations are plentiful, as are jonquils, tulips, narcissi and sweet peas. Shipping trade is holding up well.

C. W. Lemon, formerly of the Olathe Greenhouses, and L. F. Cline of Topeka, Kan., have purchased the Mount St. Mary's greenhouses at Twenty-third street and Jackson avenue.

The annual meeting of the Western Association of Nurserymen was held in this city January 24-25. Further details will be found in another column in this issue.

BUSINESS HIGHLY SATISFACTORY.

The past week has been one of the best of the winter with the local florists. Funeral work has been plentiful and the demand for flowering plants good. Roses are off crop in this vicinity, but carnations are of good quality and the supply adequate at $3 per 100. Narcissi are plentiful and are selling at two cents and two and one-half cents each.

NOTES.

Beutel & Frederick have installed an automatic refrigerating machine in their establishment and are much pleased with it. Anders Rasmussen, the first florist in this vicinity to install the system, has had it in use for some time.

George Schulz was one of the prime movers in the recent flower, poultry and dog show at the Armory. It was a success in every way except financially, there being a slight deficit.

E. G. Reimers & Sons Co., Inc., have brought in some of the finest specimens of Primula Malacoides ever seen in this market. They sold like the oft-mentioned "hot cakes."

Stock is still limited in supply, and the demand is very good. Spring flowers are coming in freely and there is a good showing of pot plants. Bulbous stock and cyclamen, which are very beautiful, are extremely popular. Weather conditions have improved and violets are again quite plentiful. Russell roses, large and fine in quality, are in a measure taking the place of American Beauty, of which few are to be seen.

ROSE SUPPLY VERY LIMITED.

Roses have evidently not recovered from the severe test of last December, when under pressure they produced such enormous crops, as the supply of the past few weeks has been very meager, the shipments of the past six days being extremely light. Growers say that by February 10, or thereabout, normal conditions will prevail, gradually improving from now on. American Beauty is not so scarce as is usual at this time. One wholesale house reports average receipts of 300 specials per day. Several growers in the neighborhood of this city have been making a special study of this rose, and are succeeding where many others failed. The medium grades in all varieties are most in demand. There are a large number of stores that cater to the middle classes; they are as 25, to 1 of the bonton palaces, where American Beauties, cattleyas and the best of everything must be kept in stock. They are the bone and sinew of the business, the quantity buyers who should be cared for. Growers who are destroying two crops to make one will find it more profitable to have quantity rather than quality, particularly at this season when the demand for medium priced stock greatly exceeds that of the higher grades. It is the same with carnations and sweet peas; the medium stocks move off quickly at far greater prices, relatively, than the higher grades. Formosum lilies have supplanted the giganteum, the cold storage stock of which is about over. Many of them are coming in badly split, which condition the growers say they are unable to account for unless it is that the bulbs have not been allowed to mature. They claim to be giving them the usual treatment that has in the past been successful. Carnations are at their very best, but are behind the demand. Sweet peas are all that can be desired; their supply is increasing, but so far they sell out every day. Cattleyas are easing up, but find a steady market. Lily of the valley hangs fire. White lilac is great stock, as is the Freesia Purity; this variety should drive the old white out of the running. There is a good variety of the small flowers with plenty of single and double violets.

NOTES.

Arrangements for the rose festival are progressing with vigor; there is a large attendance at each meeting of the committee chairmen, held Thursday of each week at the Bellevue-Stratford. Nearly all the best retail stores of the city will be represented. A plan of the hall is ready and the important matter of a large supply of the proper sized vases has been settled, the contract for making same having been given to Jos. G. Neidinger. These are to be of skeleton willow frame of white enamel over a plant green zinc liner, in sizes to hold from 25 to 100 roses. They will be alike as to pattern, and a new departure in exhibition vases. "Not enough roses for our demands," is the word with Edward Reid. High grade carnations are a feature. K.

BUSINESS BELOW NORMAL.

Business was very quiet in the wholesale district during the past week, and there is a general feeling that the demand is not at all what it should be at this season of the year. Weddings, other social events, and the inevitable funeral work, take considerable stock, short roses going very well, but carnations and the narcissi seem slow, so are violets.

January 29. — There is an active movement in roses, and carnations are doing as well as can be expected. The supply of narcissi is increasing and moves slowly. Violets continue to drag. In lilies, lily of the valley, good sweet peas and snapdragons, there is a fair movement. Bunches of Buddleia asiatica are seen in some of the wholesale stores and it moves fairly well.

NOTES.

One of our contemporaries advises us that he has greatly enjoyed reading a book, written by a learned Frenchman, entitled, "Social Life in the Insect World." The Frenchman has made no great discovery. Many years ago, we read a poem which began thus:

"Come, take up your hat and away let us haste,
To the butterflies' ball and the grasshoppers' feast;
The trumpeter, gad-fly, has summoned the crew,
And the revels are now only waiting for you."

There is no law against writing books, providing they will pass through the United States mails, and we should welcome this addition to our literature. We hope soon to see a volume entitled, "The Views of the Oyster on Peace and Preparedness." Dismissing pleasantries, let us now seriously consider the menace of insect pests. We understand that the proposed quarantine against foreign trees and plants has already caused uneasiness among the nurserymen and is soon to be taken up by the Society of American Florists. Unquestionably, a drastic quarantine law would, at least for a time, work as a hardship to importers; but there are many laws, enacted for the general welfare, that are distasteful to somebody. The good of the many must be held superior to the wishes of the few. We believe that there should be a more rigid inspection of nursery stock, but not a prohibitive one. We have seen nursery stock on the New York docks that should have been burned. Some of it was thrown overboard, to drift ashore at some distant point, where thoughtless people gathered it up and planted it. We are not advised whether or not it grew. In the past, we have imported quite a collection of pests; add them to our home product and the list is formidable. It has just been reported that a new insect, called the "green soldier bug," has appeared in Alabama. It is said to be very destructive to all kinds of vegetation. It is hoped that this question will be thoroughly discussed in the light of reason and common sense.

Writing to a contemporary, S. J. Goddard, of Framingham, Mass., states that "a well grown carnation is worth $2 per dozen any time during the winter." He, of course, means at retail. It is quite possible that carnations are more popular in Boston than here, but the public shrinks at paying $2, even for the best, and most of the local retailers hesitate to ask it, and there are plenty of good carnations on this market. Mr. Goddard is right in one respect—that is, in the past, too much poor stock has been dumped on the market, particularly at the holidays, and to this more than any other cause, we attribute the decline in the demand for carnations. The condition in which tens of thousands of this flower reach the market at Christmas has grown to be a scandal in the trade.

It is rumored that the New York Florists' Club will give another "Din-Dan," or dinner dance, at the Biltmore, Saturday night, March 17, which is the first Saturday of the flower show. In addition to a dinner of rare goodness, with the happy accompaniment of dancing, there will be a mystery. Chairman A. L. Miller says it's going to be "A Big Joy Bubble," which will be burst in the centre of the room at exactly 12 of the clock." Further than that, we cannot find out a thing. The committee urges an early reservation of tables. Tickets for lady or gentleman will be $5 each. Write to the dinner committee, A. L. Miller, chairman, Jamaica, N. Y., or T. B. DeForest, secretary, 30 East 42nd street, New York.

Herman and Jean Van Zonneveld, uncle and nephew of Sassenheim, Holland, were passengers on the Holland-American liner Ryndam, which arrived here on January 24. The elder Zonneveld is an exporter of Dutch bulbs. He said that though his business had been hard hit by the war, it was now good. He further stated that though the bulb trade with England had been cut off, the extra trade with America, Scandinavia and Russia, more than compensated.

We have been requested to state that the tenth annual dinner of the New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers will be held in the Hotel McAlpin, this city, Saturday evening, February 17, beginning at 7 o'clock. The tickets are $5 per person. Wm. H. Siebrecht, Jr., Queen's Plaza Court, Long Island City, N. Y., is in charge of the arrangements and applications for tickets should be addressed to him.

Thomas Young, Jr., proprietor of the Beechwood Heights Nurseries, Bound Brook, N. J., has leased a part of the store at 57 West 28th street, where the output of his extensive range will be sold. Warren Spaulding, long identified with the trade in this city, will be in charge. Large quantities of orchids and gardenias are grown at the Beechwood Heights Nurseries.

T. Coumandoros, who conducts the flower department in the Golden Rule department store, St. Paul, Minn., recently spent ten days in this city, with headquarters at the McAlpin hotel. He reports good business in St. Paul. He is a cousin to M. Coumandoros, who has a retail store at Columbus avenue and 51st street, this city.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held on the evening of February 12. A number are going to the convention of the American Carnation Society at Indianapolis, Ind., from this city and vicinity and they should have something interesting to say at the next club meeting.

M. C. Ford, 121 West 28th street, is receiving from Myers & Samtman,

The building in which C. A. Dards has conducted a branch retail store, 114 West 72d street, has been sold and the store closed. Hereafter, the entire business will be conducted at the old store, Madison avenue and 44th street.

Frank Traendly and wife, Eugene Dailedouze and wife, A. J. Guttman, Roman J. Irwin and J. Ebb Weir, Jr., have been booked for the carnation convention at Indianapolis.

Philip F. Kessler, in the Coogan building, is handling fine stock of the yellow narcissus Soliel d'Or.

fine stock. New crop. Hand-picked. Bags at cost. F. O. B. Mt. Pleasant, Mich.

Never was such an opportunity for seedsmen as to be able to supply beans this year. The price is high but no seed will cost the grower less. Nothing can be substituted for beans. A quart of beans will go further than the same value of any other seed. We are booking orders for delivery crop of 1917. Write for prices. Our growing facilities are good. We grow our seed stock on our own farms. We specialize in Dwarf Garden Beans and feel that we can give seedsmen the best of service and larger average deliveries than other growers located further from the center of growing operations. We are about booked up on Wax Beans and the finer type of Green Pods so urge prompt inquiry.

BRAINTREE, MASS.—George H. Arnold, well-known Massachusetts market gardener, died at his home in this city, January 12, aged 81 years.

Co-Operation.

South Jersey Farmers' Exchange, a co-operative selling organization of 750 New Jersey farmers, has declared a stock dividend of 100 per cent and 8 per cent in cash. Exchange handled 907 carloads of potatoes at an average price of 90 cents per bushel. It did a total business of $1,087,348 at a net profit of $34,238.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—Mushrooms, home grown, 40 to 55 cents per pound; lettuce, small cases, 20 to 22½ cents; radishes, 35 to 50 cents, dozen bunches; celery, 75 cents to $1.50, open crate; tomatoes, six baskets, $2.50 to $4.00; cucumbers, per 2 dozen box, $1.50 to $2.50.

New York, Jan. 30.—Celery, per crate, $2.00 to $2.50; cucumbers, 50 cents to $1.25 per dozen; mushrooms, 75 cents to $1.75 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, per lb., 10 to 20 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2.50 to $4.50; lettuce, per strap, 25 cents to $1.00.

Potatoes at Chicago.

Plain potatoes from Wisconsin, shipped in burlap sacks, sold on a parity with Michigan grown apples in the Chicago produce market January 27. They reached the highest price in the history of South Water street, $2 a bushel in carload lots. Commission dealers made forecasts that the prices will advance to $3 a bushel within the next few weeks. Car shortage and insufficient receipts were given by dealers as reasons for the rapidly advancing prices.

High prices paid for potatoes on the Chicago market have attracted shipments from England to compete with American-grown products. Potatoes on the Chicago market January 27 were selling in small lots at $2.25 a bushel.

Potato Prices at New York.

The demand is active and prices were slightly higher, January 27. Old Dominion steamers are bringing in Southern (Virginia) late crop.

TOMATO SEED FOR YOUR 1917 CROP

You will get an enormous crop of Tomatoes from Bolgiano's Tomato Seed this year. Our seed was saved from one of the largest crops we have ever had, due to being favored by weather conditions. The vines were loaded with large, solid, red fruit. We know positively by planting seed from this "Big Crop" your yield will be much larger than if you had bought seed grown where the weather conditions were not favorable.

AT last a book has been written which tells what trees are best adapted by nature for each garden and landscape purpose. What shrubs and trees most effectively group together. "Suggestions for Effective Planting" is descriptive of the well-known ornamental trees and shrubs grown at Andorra Nurseries.

This is not the usual deadly dull nursery list. To read it is like going around your grounds and discussing in a friendly way what the place needs.

This book is free. Send for your copy at once.

NEW RED ROSE

Donald MacDonald

A new Hawmark Red Rose sent out this year by Alex Dickson & Sons

We have tested this Rose for Winter forcing for two years, and with us it produces more red roses during the winter than any Rose we have ever grown. It is not a large Rose, but has perfectly formed medium sized flowers that sell at sight. Color bright orange carmine; will not turn blue; because the base of the petals is orange. It is not a summer rose, as it has the same substance as Killarney. We build the plants up until November, and from Thanksgiving until May it is a money maker for the Rose Grower, as no pinching is necessary.

Novelties Exhibited.

Comparing the quality of the carnation blooms shown at the Indianapolis meeting of the American Carnation Society with those staged at its exhibitions of other years, it is safe to claim that never before have so many fine flowers of such average high quality been brought together at any one time. Previous exhibitions of the society have been principally noted for bringing to the front one or two varieties which have stood out far beyond any others shown; at one of the former Indianapolis meetings the variety Adonis was head and shoulders above all other entries as the big attraction. At another time, it was the variety, Mrs. T. W. Lawson, and a year or two later, Enchantress and Fiancee were the big show. But this year there were a dozen or more almost equal in the qualities that make up the very highest standard of carnations. Color, form and size of flower, with fine stems, were the prominent features of the many new varieties exhibited, which goes to prove that the carnation hybridists are working along the right lines.

Fred Dorner & Sons Co., Lafayette, Ind., has raised and disseminated many of the best of the standard varieties of carnations, but it was the opinion of a majority of the experts present, that never before has this firm staged a more beautiful vase of blooms than that of the variety, Laddie, which won the Fred Dorner memorial medal. It is a clear, flesh pink, a full four-inch flower, fine in form, with the center well built up, and carried on strong, stiff stems. The keeping qualities appear to be of the best, the blooms being in fine condition at the close of the exhibition. Rosalia is another beauty from the same firm. The color is a great improvement over that of the variety Rosette—a clear, deep cerise and one of the best shown as regards form and stem. It appears to be a most promising commercial variety. Old Gold, dark yellow with pink stripes, is a fine variety of this fancy color. Where there is a demand for flowers of this color, this sort should be given consideration. No. 148-09, the winner in the class of 100 blooms, flesh pink, is another Dorner production that will command attention when better known. That it was staged in good enough form to win in this class is a strong endorsement of the variety.

Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind., staged three of their productions which attracted close attention. The variety, Merry Christmas, first in the class for 100 blooms, red or scarlet, and winner of the American Carnation Society's silver medal, is one of the best flowers of this color that has been produced in years—fine in color and form, of large size with fine stem. It is well liked by critical carnation growers and will be given a thorough try out. Should it prove to be a Merry Christmas for those who plant it in 1917, the second year's demand for stock will be enormous. This firm also has a fine crimson in their new variety, Rufus. It looks to be a fine commercial sort of this color. Seedling No. 4-14, a light pink with lavender shadings, is another promising Baur & Steinkamp novelty. Limited stock prevented this variety being shown in quantity, but it will be heard from more another year.

The Cottage Gardens Co., Inc., Queens, N. Y., staged their two novelties, Cottage Maid and Crystal White. The former is a flesh pink sport of the variety Mrs. C. W. Ward. It was one of the prominent varieties at this exhibition, winning the American Carnation Society's bronze medal and the table decoration arranged with Cottage Maid was one of the big attractions of the show. It is a splendid keeper and shipper, strong points to make it worth while for commercial growing. Crystal White, a large, fine white, on the order of Matchless, but without the tinge of pink so common in the latter variety, looks to be superb.

John H. Dunlop, Toronto, Ont.
Judge-Elect American Carnation Society.

Nic Zweifel, Milwaukee, Wis., exhibited a red seedling named Edna, a fine flower on long, stiff stem, of good color and form, which appears to be a very promising commercial red.

J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., staged their well known novelty, Superb, salmon pink, a fine color for commercial purposes. The blooms shown, in the opinion of the writer, were not developed enough for the first day of the show—the second day they made a much better appearance.

Doris, a promising looking crimson, staged by S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., is a fine formed flower on stiff stems and was picked by many as one of the best of this color. W. D. Howard, Milford, Mass., exhibited Bernice, another very promising looking crimson, which stood well up to the front among the others of this color.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., exhibited Arawana, a crimson of fine form. Crimson varieties appear to be developing fast, and the variety Arawana looks to be one of the most promising.

Radium, a fine red of good form, color and stem, a pleasing variety of this color, was shown by P. J. Olinger, New Castle, Ind. Anthon Then, Chicago, exhibited a vase of Then-anthos, which is being disseminated by A. L. Randall Co., Chicago. This variety has been exhibited so many times, and is now so favorably known, that it is not necessary to further comment about it.

Seedling No. 1-12, exhibited by the department of floriculture of the University of Illinois, Urbana, has been shown at many of the western shows, but never in better form than at Indianapolis. It is a fine, large, light pink. E. A. Richards, Greenfield, Mass., has a very promising variety in his rose pink seedling, No. 110. It has fine color, form, size, good substance and fine stem. Portland Pride, a fine red, was shown by W. Frank & Son, Portland, Ind. This is a fine flower of good color. A. Anderson, Overbrook, Moline, Ill., staged his large white seedling, No. 100, but the blooms suffered considerably in travel. Olive Whitman, a large red of good form with stiff stem, was exhibited by M. Matheron, Baldwin, N. Y.

Cornell, a red of medium size, which is claimed to be a good commercial variety, was shown by Ira G. Marvin, Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Mount Greenwood Cemetery Association, Morgan Park, Chicago, exhibited several vases of fine seedlings, among the best being No. 140-09, white, a fine flower of purest color; also, No. 1-12 B, a fine rose pink. The Roper estate, Tewksbury, Mass., have a fine variety in Albert Roper, a bright cerise, fine in color, form and size of flower—a most beautiful variety.

Belle Washburn and Nebraska, 1916 introductions, in reds, were shown in fine shape. Nancy, light pink, and Miss Theo, cerise, also 1916 introductions, were both good. Matchless, Mrs. C. W. Ward, Beacon, Washington, Pink Delight, White Enchantress, White Wonder and Pink Sensation, made a fine showing among the standard varieties.

Notes.

St. Louis sent a lively delegation, who talked spring flower show all the time. On each plate at the banquet was a card printed in two colors illustrated with a cut of two keys with the inscription, "Here are the keys to St. Louis and the St. Louis Spring Flower Show, March 15-18, 1917." Great fellows, these St. Louis boys, getting in training for the national show next year.

Fifteen new varieties of carnations which have been registered with the secretary of the American Carnation Society are still undissemated. Several are to go out this year. Let us hope a goodly proportion will keep company with Enchantress and Mrs. Ward.

Later arrivals included H. G. Berning and wife, St. Louis, Mo.; John Michaelson, Chicago, and W. J. Keimel, Elmhurst, Ill.

Zech & Mann, Chicago, staged several vases of Purity freesias, grown by W. H. Amling, Maywood.

Marketing Carnations.

Address by W. A. Clarke, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., at the Annual Convention of the American Carnation Society, Indianapolis, Ind., February 1, 1917.

Mr. President and Members of the American Carnation Society:

I would have you forget that I am connected with a concern which grows several hundred thousand carnations. Rather, allow me to talk from the commission man's point of view, and then I might take a preacher's liberty and scold the members present for the sins of those who are absent. I must then say to you growers that it looks very much as if you are satisfied to grow carnations for their looks—size and color being your object—and you seem to forget that they are making artificial flowers, some of which look as good as yours. It is a well known fact that many of the stores are not handling carnations because they cannot depend upon their keeping qualities, and to avoid having their customers call them up and complain of their flowers going to sleep they do not offer them for sale.

There was a time when people bought carnations for the delightful, spicy fragrance and their keeping qualities, but you can come into this exhibition room filled with the finest blooms that can be grown and you will not detect the fragrance which once recommended these flowers. In fact, you do not value fragrance, as it only counts five points in scoring. After you have grown the flowers you cut them and bring them into the packing room and have the cheapest boy on the place do the grading and bunching. He, as a rule, does not know quality, and has no special interest other than putting in his time and getting the flowers tied up.

I have been told that in one of the large orange packing houses they have a sign—"Every Orange That Is Not Perfect Is a Cull." If this were applied to carnations the better class of stores might be interested and the poor stock go where it belongs.

Then, when it comes to packing, you are so economical (falsely) that the flowers are jammed into any kind of a box, usually ruining enough flowers to pay for two boxes, and what are left are bruised more or less.

In conclusion, I would say give us carnations with keeping quality and the old spicy fragrance. Use the same common sense in grading and packing as you do in growing the flowers, and I think the carnation will come into its own again.

The Banquet.

The annual banquet of the American Carnation Society in the Riley room of the Claypool hotel, Indianapolis, Ind., February 1, was a fitting close to one of the most successful exhibitions given since the society's organization. The large banquet hall was elaborately decorated with choice palms, southern smilax and lattice work screens all artistically arranged. All the vases of carnations, still in splendid condition, were also utilized. Under the direction of Fred Lemon artistic baskets filled with selected flowers were placed on each table, and together with the masses of color among the palms along the sides and ends of the room produced a most charming and beautiful effect which, when the party was seated, was also heightened by the handsome toilets of the many ladies present.

During the serving of the courses the committee furnished a surprise in the entertainment by introducing graceful and classic Greek dancing by beautiful young girls; there were several numbers, which, with graceful movements and artistic posing, made very beautiful pictures. An exhibition of athletic ability in tumbling and posing by the Y. M. C. A. physical director and his son was another enjoyable feature.

Irwin Bertermann introduced E. G. Hill, stating that he was the silver-tongued orator of the west, which position in the east was held by Robert Craig. Mr. Hill was in his best vein. In speaking seriously of the apparent falling off in the appreciation of the carnation by the public, he stated this to be more fancied than real, and thought that growers would make a mistake to drop carnations and go into roses as many were apparently doing. His firm, in common with many other rose growers, had felt this season a greater demand for young rose stock than ever before experienced. He said he felt very optimistic as to the future of the carnation, particularly after seeing such grand flowers as shown at this exhibition. He was followed by Irwin Bertermann, who declared the carnation was far from reaching its zenith—wonderful improvement was shown in each succeeding exhibition. He said, judging from the great attendance of the members from all parts of the country, that interest was not waning, but increasing. A fickle public might seem to tire of the carnation for a while, but would come back as there was nothing better or could take its place. The society, he thought, was doing noble work.

President Ammann, in addressing the ladies separately from the gentlemen, said it would not be long in the present strength of the suffrage movement, before all speakers would be able to address a mixed assemblage as fellow citizens. He felt that this was the most successful meeting and exhibition ever held by the society; so many members had come bringing flowers such long distances which showed that the carnation was not by any means on the wane. The flower has a great future, he added, but along with its improvement, should also come better methods in handling and marketing, as it was after the flowers had left the grower, and before reaching the public, there accrued needless exposure and other careless methods that were so fatal to its keeping qualities. Hon. Chas. Bookwalter declared there was something about the business of growing flowers that seemed to develop the highest type of men. Just spending a few moments in a flower shop, as he often does, gave him inspiration—the fragrance of the flowers was refreshing. He praised the introducers of new carnations, saying they contributed to the total of human happiness. The flower was beautiful in every way and that a pink in a man's buttonhole half shined his shoes. In great earnestness, referring to the position of this country in the present critical state, he felt that the citizens would meet a man's task with a man's courage and stand a united body in support of the flag and peace for all the world.

Fred Lemon praised the work of the men of the society and predicted a great future for the divine flower. A telegram of greeting and success was read from Wm. F. Gude, who could not be present.

David S. Ward stated he had found great inspiration in the meeting and exhibition. He felt sure there was much to be learned by attending such gatherings, particularly for young men who were just breaking into the business. Friendships made were invaluable. He predicted a great meeting in Boston next year. John Dunlop spoke of the great excellence of the exhibition, and then made reference to the present strain under which Canada was laboring. A call had been made last week on the citizens of Toronto for contributions to support sufferers of the war; two million five hundred thousand dollars was desired. A three-day campaign resulted in raising an amount greatly in excess of that called for, the total reaching $3,259,000.

At each plate was an attractive card in two colors bearing the design of two crossed keys and the following inscription: "Here are the keys to St. Louis, and the St. Louis Spring Flower

The plant received was a miserable looking specimen for this time of the year and beyond doing anything with for this season. After examining the plant closely, I found the roots in good condition, but they appear to have not made any growth at all since being planted. It is my opinion that it is some local condition of the bed where the plants are growing that is causing the trouble. I cannot understand why Quarantine on Plants.

Prior to the passage of the Plant Quarantine Law of 1912, agitation was worked up by lectures, magazine articles, pamphlets, etc., with the evident object of creating an atmosphere favorable to its passage. The impression was given that about all of the insect pests and plant diseases that affect our forests and farm crops were imported into the United States by selfish nurserymen and florists, along with the plants and nursery stock which they imported from Europe. This propaganda resulted in the passage of the plant quarantine act in 1912, though the agitation still continues.

To operate the plant quarantine act the federal horticultural board was created with headquarters in Washington, D. C.; it consists of five bureau chiefs of the department of agriculture, with Dr. C. L. Marlatt as chairman. All of these men are well qualified for their duties, and though the law gives them almost autocratic powers, power to quarantine any foreign country or locality, they have used this power with commendable discretion and moderation. But this does not satisfy a group of state entomologists, who demand nothing less than an absolute quarantine against the importation of plant life from all foreign sources.

At a meeting of entomologists about a year ago, resolutions were passed which in effect requested the federal horticultural board to put this absolute quarantine into effect, but as no action was taken, the entomologists interested the American Forestry Association in its plans (this association consists largely of foresters, entomologists, lumber men and others interested in our forests). Naturally such men know little about the commercial side of the nursery or florist business, but when they were informed (by men who should know better) that an absolute quarantine of all imported plant life was necessary for the protection of our forests and farm crops, they took up the subject with enthusiasm and called a spe-

Show, March 15-18, 1917." Davis Geddis extended a cordial invitation to all to attend this exhibition which is to be an unusual display.

Wm. Nicholson, who had missed but one of the twenty-six meetings of the society, said he had always found great pleasure in these visits. The love of flowers, and later, golf, the playing of which was, he felt sure, adding years to his life, were now his great pleasures. He predicted a great meeting at Boston next year.

President-elect Vesey thanked the various committees who had done so much to make the banquet a success and predicted a great future for the society. Secretary Baur predicted a great future for the carnation, which was progressing, not retrograding, for the present exhibition had been the greatest ever held by the society. Albert Pochelon and August Poehlmann also made short addresses.

Carnations Diseased.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Enclosed please find a carnation plant which I hope you will receive in a satisfactory condition. It is one of the bed of the Beacon variety which we imported last season. We would be very pleased if you could inform us if the plant is diseased, as the whole bed is affected the same way. We have not been troubled with anything like it before and none of our own stock has it, with the exception of a few Heralds, which are planted in the same bed as specimen enclosed. We would be greatly indebted to you if you would inform us of the cause and the remedy if any, also if it is likely to spread to any other variety.

the top of the plant should be affected that way and the roots still be alive. Are you sure that this bed has received the same attention as to treatment, soil, etc., as the rest of your plants? If so, then maybe some escaping gas or fumes is causing the trouble. These plants are beyond being of any use this season, so I would advise throwing them out and using the bench for something else. cial conference in Washington, D. C., to adopt measures to stop importation—even of the raw materials.

The conference was held on January 19, myself as chairman of the legislative committee of the S. A. F. and J. McHutchison of New York, a member of my committee, being present on behalf of the S. A. F. The legislative committee of the American Association of Nurserymen was also there, besides several individual members of the nurserymen's and florists' organizations. Many speeches and papers were delivered advocating an absolute quarantine, but no opportunity was given for discussion after each paper, so the horticultural side of the question was not voiced. Resolutions were unanimously adopted favoring an absolute quarantine, and to show what it means to the florists and nurserymen, I quote from the proposed bill the first two sections as follows:

Section 1. That it shall be unlawful for any person to import or offer for entry into the United States any nursery stock. Provided, that the secretary of agriculture may import, grow and propagate nursery stock in small quantities for experimental and scientific purposes, upon such conditions and under such regulations as he may advise.

Sec. 2. That for the purpose of this act the term "nursery stock" shall include all field-grown florists' stock, trees, shrubs, vines, cuttings, grafts, scions, buds, bedding plants, all herbaceous plants, bulbs, roots, and other plants and plant products for propagation, except field, vegetable, flower, and tree seeds.

This bill, if passed, will shut out practically everything the florists now import, Azalea indica, bay trees and araucarias, lily of the valley pips for forcing or any other purpose, Jap lily bulbs, French bulbs, Dutch bulbs, Manetti stocks used for greenhouse grafting of roses, orchids and nursery stock of every kind. It would not only shut out, dracena plants, but the canes which are necessary to produce them. It would shut out kentia plants—also the seeds necessary to grow our own plants. "What for?" you ask; the answer is "To save our forests." If any member of the S. A. F.

thinks it necessary to stop the importation of lily of the valley pips, Manetti stocks, or Jap lily bulbs to protect our forests, I would like to hear from him.

Arrangements were made in the conference committee so that the measure would not be introduced in Congress until committees from the national associations of florists and nurserymen had an opportunity of conferring with a special committee of the American Forestry Association appointed for that purpose. This arrangement shows the right spirit, and while the special committee consists mostly of state inspectors we hope to be able to show them that while their plan, if put into operation, would put back the florist business many years, it would not go far in protecting our forests or farm crops or reduce the diseases which afflict them to any appreciable degree.

The measures that have threatened our interests for several years have now reached a crisis. We will need on our committee men of ability who are willing to subordinate their personal interests to the welfare of the trade—men who understand why stock is imported, why at least the raw materials are necessary to our welfare—men who know something about insect pests and plant diseases and who can adequately express their views.

Since our policy will likely have to be defined before our annual convention in August (the nurserymen's convention being held in June), I will seek the advice of the executive committee of the S. A. F. on the subject, but as the matter is such a vital one to many of our members, I deem it wise to inform the general trade through these columns and trust you will give this report the publicity you consider it deserves.

SHORTAGE IN ROSES CONTINUES.

A shortage of roses in all grades and varieties is still the main feature of the cut flower market. Long-stemmed American Beauties are almost impossible to get just now. A few short-stemmed stock, suitable for funeral work, are beginning to arrive. In the Killarneys, it is mostly the longer stock which arrives, shorter stock being scarce. A few Ward, Rhea Reids and Mme. Pirrie roses arrive daily. The carnation crop is a little better, enough stock now arriving to fill orders in full. Sweet peas are now quite plentiful, mostly pink; lavender and white are scarce. Callas and Easter lilies are in good demand. Freesias are selling well; also Paper Whites and daffodils. Violets are moving slowly on account of the extremely cold weather. Snapdragons are sold in advance, mostly white and Ward shades. Orchids are moving. Greens are plentiful.

NOTES.

The January meeting of the florists' club was attended by about 80 members, and it is hoped the February meeting will be attended as well, as Elmer D. Smith, of Adrian, Mich., will speak on a subject that will be interesting to all, "Growing Exhibition Varieties of Chrysanthemums." The dues for 1917 are also payable now, and members can help by paying same promptly. Now is also a good time for those florists who are not yet members to join the florists' club.

The following from Cleveland visited the annual meeting and exhibition of the American Carnation Society at Indianapolis, Ind.: H. P. Knoble and wife, Geo. and Guy Bate, Frank Friedley and wife, Harry P. Jones and wife, Walter Cook, Ed. George of Painesville; George W. Smith and wife, Carl Hagenburger and wife.

Monday, January 29, was McKinley day. (Carnation day). This day as a flower day has waned, no extra demand for carnations, outside of regular orders, being noticed.

Walter Priest, of the Cleveland Plant & Flower Co., has been home with the gripe for several days.

SUPPLY INCREASES AND PRICES FALL.

Business has taken a tumble from its high standard of last week, prices on nearly every line of flowers having weakened. Roses are more plentiful and are about 25 per cent lower in price. Carnations have dropped to $3 and $4 per 100. Bulbous stock is more plentiful, there being a good supply of jonquils, which sell at $2.50 to $3 per 100. Paper White narcissi also are plentiful and move rather slowly at $2 per 100. The receipts of orchids, which consists mostly of cattleyas, seems to be equal to the demand. Lily of the valley is in medium supply and brings four to six cents. Yellow primroses and polyanthus are selling well, $5 per dozen bunches being the best price. Sweet peas are coming in of very fine quality and the price has dropped to $1.50 per 100 for the best blooms down to 75 cents for ordinary flowers. A few very fine mignonette are seen and sell readily at from 50 cents to $1 per dozen.

NOTES.

George Hannon is still on the dangerous list at the city hospital, although he is slightly better than he was. His many friends are looking forward to having him home again within a short time.

Chester Goldberg, who for some time has been operating a store at Coolidge Corner, has sold out his business to M. Greenburg, a former employe of Frank Howard of Cambridge.

Hyman Caplin, who has been with his brother at 144 Massachusetts avenue, has gone to Tampa, Fla., for the remainder of the winter to take charge of their sight-seeing cars.

Ben Green, who conducts the florist stand at Bacon's store, is seriously ill with rheumatic fever and other complications.

A storeroom for the display of garden accessories has been leased on Hamilton place by Penn, The Florist.

North Shore Horticultural Society.

"Insects and Bugs Injurious to Plant Life and the Best Methods of Control" was the subject of an interesting lecture by Professor D. K. McMillan, Urbana, Ill., assistant to the state entomologist, at a meeting of the North Shore Horticultural Society at Lake Forest, Ill., January 25, the occasion being the formal opening of the new reading and recreation room built by J. O. Armour for the employes on his estate, the members of the society being guests through invitation of Superintendent Thomas W. Head of Melody Farm, as the estate is known.

The lecture was a complete review of the speaker's personal experiences, and as such will prove of great help to horticulturists present, and especially to vegetable gardeners. He called attention to the thousands of dollars in damage resulting every year from injurious insects to various crops which by proper effort could be reduced at least 50 per cent, the scourge of the corn belt, for example, which could easily be controlled by throwing up a barrier by means of furrowing around any of the corn areas, smoothing off the furrows and placing a line of tar or creosote on the smoothed surface, thus preventing the inroads of this pest, the cinch bug. This method of control has proved very effective in the corn areas in southern Illinois.

Professor McMillan discussed the life history of a number of pests, telling how to recognize them, and better still, giving methods for prevention and obliteration. Among the subjects were the following: Corn root aphid, worms, the cut worm, melon and cucumber beetles, cabbage maggot, which is very prevalent among truck gardens in Cook county, Ill.; spring laid insects, onion maggot, sucking insects, such as thrip and its relations; San Jose and oyster scale; squash maggot, corn ear worm, plum beetle, codling moth, fern cut worm and rose midge, which had been so destructive in the West Chicago parks.

Professor McMillan emphasized the inability of some horticulturists to see the necessity of expending a little labor and expense to keep insect pests under control, thereby losing greatly when time came for marketing their crops. An interesting discussion followed the lecture in which the speaker ably answered a number of questions, thus closing an hour of very closely listened to advice.

BAD WEATHER AND DELAYED SHIPMENTS.

Weather conditions in this city have been all that the oldest prophet can remember in former years—and then some—from sublime winter temperature in the morning to the severest cyclone ever known in this vicinity. Still we survive. The supply of stock has been varied for two reasons—bad weather and late trains. Were it not for the bulbous stock on hand the local trade would often be minus a good order. Killarney, Shawyer, Scott Key and Ophelia roses are being supplied but the railway service hinders the delivery, and in consequence they are scarce. Carnations are chased by the heat like a fox by a hound and are as bent over and weak as the professional mourner at a funeral. American Beauty is scarce but the blooms that are received are of fine quality. Good tulips, hyacinths and cyclamens are on sale in the plant section and are much in demand. Social events have been very much in evidence during the past month and the local trade have every reason to be satisfied with business since Christmas, as almost all have been busy, notwithstanding the scarcity of flowers. All are making an effort to increase the St. Valentine's day trade over that of last year by judicious advertising—and if publicity will do it, they will get their share. The local florists are "heavy" on advertising for this occasion.

CLUB MEETING.

Some creditable exhibits of roses and carnations were a feature of the February meeting of the florists' club. The show for the benefit of the members was arranged by a special committee of which William Newport was chairman, through the co-operation of both the growers and retailers. Special mention was made by the judges named at the meeting of vases of roses and carnations exhibited by F. A. Danker; vase of Matchless carnations by Fred Henkes; a cattleya plant in bloom by Howard Menand; display of four cyclamen plants by George E. Nagengast, Jr.; display of pink carnations by William Hannell; and a design suitable for St. Valentine's day by Edward P. Tracey of The Rosery. The display was indeed attractive and did much to add to the value of the meeting. Chairman Newport announced that a chrysanthemum show would be held at the November meeting, and perhaps one other before that month.

President Charles Sanders announced his resignation from office on account of removal from the city to live in Syracuse. Vice-President J. J. Haggerty, in behalf of the club, presented him with a black leather traveling bag. Edward P. Tracey reported on plans for a full page advertisement of the retailers in four of the local papers for trade on St. Valentine's day. Eleven of those present volunteered to contribute to the expense of the venture, and Mr. Tracey was instructed to interest all of the retailers in the plan. The publishers offered a considerable reduction in the regular rates for the large advertisement.

The special committees named to place in nomination a successor to President Sanders reported unanimously in favor of the vice-president, John J. Haggerty, and he was elected by the members without a dissenting vote. One ballot was cast also for Earl Shaw as vice-president.

Stephen Green, with M. Rice Company, Philadelphia, spoke on conditions in the trade as he had observed them in his travels through the country. He said that markets are not normal; prices are high, but the outlook for business is good. He spoke also of the scarcity of flowers, a condition noticeable in many of the large cities in the United States, but mentioned conditions in Canada as different. He found in some of the Canadian cities stock, such as orchids and daffodils, very plentiful indeed and selling at prices away below figures quoted on this side of the line.

Thomas F. Tracey, manager of the Albany Cut Flower Exchange, wholesale, reports stock scarce since Christmas. In other years prices ease up at the end of January and in February, but this year such is not the case. Manager Tracey quoted roses, wholesale, at $10, $12 and $15 a hundred for the lowest grades; tulips and daffodils, $4 a hundred, and the lowest price on carnations, $6 a hundred. The market condition is quite exceptional.

COLD WEATHER HURTS DEMAND.

Trade that had been brisk during the previous week was curtailed somewhat by a cold wave which arrived here February 2. Funeral work forms the bulk of the business at present, although there are a few weddings and social functions as a help. Stock is becoming more plentiful with the return of sunshine and longer days. Carnations are much improved in quality and the supply has increased. Roses are very good, especially Shawyer, Ophelia, Maryland and Ward. Daffodils, narcissi, tulips and Romans are arriving in goodly numbers and there is a good demand for yellow marguerites, sweet peas, freesias and cornflowers. Violets, lily of the valley and orchids sell well. Among the late arrivals are azaleas and rhododendrons for the spring trade.

NOTES.

Miss Dorothy Caroline Perkins, only daughter of G. C. Perkins of the well-known nursery firm of Jackson & Perkins, Newark, N. Y., and Edwin Burk Estabrook, were married January 27. The bride, for whom the rose, Dorothy Perkins, was named by her father, is receiving the best wishes of a host of friends. The wedding was the most brilliant event of the season in Newark.

H. E. Wilson is cutting his crop of Von Sion double daffodils. His white hyacinths in 12 and 14 inch pans are very fine and he has a plentiful supply. David Scott, of Corfu, is growing new varieties of tulips which find favor in this city as cut flowers, being good in color, size and length of stem.

Joseph Cannon, of Buffalo, attended the funeral of William Mahoney, brother of Stephen J. Mahoney of S. A. Anderson's staff, Buffalo, Feb. 1.

Hugo Tente is cutting excellent carnations. He also finds ready sale for his primroses, cyclamens, begonias, also cut tulips and daffodils.

Geo. Kramer is working hard on a St. Valentine's window at Salter Bros.' East Main street store.

Colin T. Ogston is cutting great quantities of orchids at the range of Mrs. Kimball.

E. C. Kaelber is showing dainty baskets of spring flowers and pussy willows.

GOOD SUPPLY AND SATISFACTORY SALES.

The demand for both cut flowers and plants continues lively and the January business has been reported a hummer in all quarters. Carnations are plentiful and of good quality and sweet peas are also very good. Decorations for dinners and other social functions are also in brisk demand and quantities of stock are used for them. Spring flowers are plentiful, including Murillo and Lorraine tulips, daffodils, single and double, Dutch and Roman hyacinths, jonquils, narcissi, freesias, callas and Easter lilies, all of which move well. The pot plants that are meeting with the best call are azaleas, cyclamens, tulips and narcissi.

NOTES.

The custom of wearing carnations in honor of the anniversary of President McKinley's death was not observed locally as much as in former years. The day seems to be passing in this respect, due to lack of proper publicity. At Macfairs' store, however, there was an excellent window arrangement, with a large steel engraving of the martyred president surrounded with carnations.

Florists here have been busy looking over the lines of the traveling salesmen who are coming in twos and threes. Most of these visitors leave town with good-sized orders and in a happy frame of mind.

The outlook is good for St. Valentine's day. Stock will be plentiful and a good demand is anticipated. The heart box of former years will be much in evidence again this year.

Swansea, Ont.

The cultivation of vegetables and flowers in all school gardens here is being urged by the Ontario educational department, which has issued a circular to all the provincial schools, advising that in order to meet the shortage in food, more plants with a food value should be produced. If the suburban municipalities of Toronto, of which this is an important one, would utilize the unoccupied acres, it would result in an increased food production in Ontario of nearly $8,000,000, conservatively estimated. Seeds are sold to the children at reduced rates and home gardening is encouraged.

BAMBOOS of certain types have been found very useful as decorative pot plants. Their growth is rapid and they recover quickly from neglect and give much needed variety to this class of stock.

THE national carnation meeting at this time annually has come to be regarded as a sort of mecca for the wandering Dutch bulb grower and some seasons enterprising members of this class have shown well grown flowers at the meeting. The convention just past was no exception and almost every member could have in attendance one or more bulb salesmen whenever required. In fact, it is reported that a division of the sum total of attendance would indicate as many growers as buyers on the job.

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

The Conrad & Jones Company, West Grove, Pa., submits for registration the following cannas, described below. Any person objecting to the registration or to the use of the proposed names is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objections to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from this date.

Aurora (Wintzer's). Green foliage; plants five feet high; good habit; large clusters of flowers of a brilliant scarlet; petals broadly edged with pure yellow.

Snow Queen. Flowers six inches across, of crystal whiteness revealing faint opalescent flashes of fairy pink spots. The general effect is distinctly white. Petals are 2½ inches broad and of firm texture. Foliage is green and plant about four feet in height.

Druid Hill. Dark stems and deep red flowers; foliage nearly like Black Beauty; of unusual grace and effectiveness; high; well-poised heads of average sized flowers; color combination unmatched.

Morning Glow. A most picturesque color contrast; foliage olive-green striped and veined with bronze; flowers an exquisite soft shell-pink with orange-red center.

The Flying Dutchman.

The return to port last week, after proceeding two days towards America, of the big Holland-America steamship New Amsterdam, and taking back to Holland her cargo, raises the question whether those straggling importations of nursery and useful Belgian stocks of ornamental and decorative plants that came through last year, will reach America at all this year, and whether with the new German proposals of sinking all neutral ships at sea, the quantity items of Dutch bulbs will come through next autumn. Growers who have depended on this class of stock for certain cut flower products in the winter and spring will watch with interest the developments and no doubt place all foreign business of this kind without responsibility to the buyer unless ocean freight service resumes delivery. Florists familiar with the handling of cold storage lilies, colored as well as white, will probably make no mistake in having reasonable supply of these on hand for next autumn trade to take the place of any possible shortage in imported forcing bulbs.

Dreer's National Flower Show Prizes.

Plant Gas Death Theory Untrue.

Under the sensational caption, "Gas Thrown Off by Flowers Kills Two," the following recently appeared in the daily press:

Joplin, Mo.—The Rev. Ray Cornell, an itinerant minister, and John Russell were found dead in a greenhouse here recently. Carbondioxide thrown off by plants is believed to have caused their deaths.

As our readers will doubtless be interested in the true status of the case, we publish the following, for which we are indebted to H. A. Hall, well known florist, of Joplin: "An aged man, suffering with pneumonia, had been moved to a room adjoining a lettuce house, no flowers being grown in the building whatever, the other man attending him during the night. The patient succumbed to the disease, and Russell upon awakening and finding him dead, was stricken with heart failure." These are the facts in the case determined at the coroner's inquest.

PHILADELPHIA FESTIVAL, MARCH 20-24.

The floor plan of the coming "Rose Festival" of the American Rose Society to be held March 20-24 in Philadelphia, has been completed. The society's garden, for which $1,000 has been appropriated to cover 1,200 square feet, will occupy the center, while at the east end Henry A. Dreer, Inc., will occupy a similar space and duplicate on a smaller scale their great success of the national show of last spring. The H. F. Michell Co., Inc., will also have a large exhibit. All the retailers' spaces have been taken. A large number of trade tickets have already been sold and everything points to a very successful exhibition.

GOOD & REESE CO.'S FIRE.

Fire which caused a loss of approximately $10,000 visited the office of the Good & Reese Co. in this city on the morning of February 3, completely ruining the office building, which will have to be rebuilt. The movable fixtures and office records were nearly all saved, and the business of the company will not be seriously interfered with. When the fire was discovered the entire attic and roof of the structure was ablaze and the flames had eaten their way down between the walls to the lower floors. The 50 girls employed in the office were promptly notified, and all left the building safely with their personal belongings. Word was immediately sent to the company's range and to the establishments of other companies in the neighborhood, and within a very short time 100 men were actively engaged in removing all the portable property in the burning building. The day forces of the Reeser Plant Co. (Inc.) and of the American Rose and Plant Co. assisted the Good & Reese Co.'s employes, and together they saved all of the unmailed catalogues, office files and smaller fixtures. Adding the office grove of the Good & Reese Co. is the new cold storage plant of the American Rose & Plant Co., and Manager Johnson of the latter company threw open his new building to his unfortunate neighbors, and all of the salvaged property was taken into the new plant. Before noon, Miss Florence Morgan, office manager of the Good & Reese Co., had the new quarters in such shape that pressing business could be attended to. Manager Jackson has offered such part of his new building as may be necessary to the Good & Reese Co. until their own building can be rebuilt. The most serious loss is on the building proper, which was not only badly damaged by fire but also completely flooded by water. There will be considerable property damage and great inconvenience caused by the loss of labels. The fire is supposed to have started from defective wiring in the office. John M., Frank E. and Harry F. Good of the Good & Reese Co. immediately made arrangements to rebuild the office, and active operations will commence as soon as the weather permits. The fire department was greatly handicapped in fighting the flames owing to the extremely cold weather. The firm was fortunate in that the mailing of its spring catalogue to its regular list had been completed.

NOTES.

Active building operations and improvements have marked the progress of two local companies during the past six months. The American Rose & Plant Co. added four new houses to its range and built a large three-story cold storage and office plant combined. This company will in the future handle on a larger scale shrubbery and bulbs.

The Reeser Plant Co. added three new houses to its present range and installed a new heating system to take care of the added space. These increases were necessary in order to handle this company's increasing business in ferns and bedding plants for the wholesale trade.

All of the local florists are complaining bitterly of the coal situation. Very few of the coal operators are fulfilling their contracts with the greenhouses and are forcing the local florists to buy coal at the advanced prices in the open market.

Hamburg Late White Chrysanthemum

The examining committees of the Chrysanthemum Society of America scored Hamburg Late White as follows: Philadelphia, December 14, 88 points commercial; Boston, December 14, 83 points commercial; New York, December 18, 85 points commercial.

This picture was taken November 26, 1916, and will give a good idea of what HAMBURG LATE WHITE looks like when grown to single stems and planted six inches each way.

HAMBURG LATE WHITE is pure white under all weather conditions, and is a sport of White Maud Dean, but has no trace of pink as has the original. The average grower of Chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle, and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible.

Hamburg Late White has been grown for the last four years, and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but for late white, one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November, by taking an early bud; but by selecting later buds, most of the flowers are cut during December, and we would advise a selection of late buds, as the later buds come somewhat fuller, and by selecting late buds, flowers can be had as late as the middle of January.

Keeping qualities are excellent, and where a light, graceful white flower is wanted, Hamburg Late White cannot be surpassed.

Hamburg Late White will be disseminated in the spring of 1917. Plants will be ready April 1, 1917, and all orders will be filled in rotation.

Rooted Cuttings, $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

TRADE HAS BEEN QUIET THE PAST WEEK.

Trade has been quiet the past week and outside of the shipping demand there has been very little doing. The weather has been extremely cold since Friday, February 2, when the thermometer registered between zero and 15 degrees below the greater part of the time, breaking the previous low record for the winter, which was 4 degrees below. Considerable stock was frozen between the greenhouses and the wholesale stores and it is reported that many outgoing express shipments met the same fate. Trade the opening of the present week was the quietest it has been for some time, but business is much better at this writing and everything points to better sales from now on. Stock of all kinds was plentiful enough all last week so that all the orders could be filled in full with the exception of American Beauty roses, which was the only item that was scarce and held up so high in price. Roses in general are more plentiful than they have been, which is not due so much to the fact that they are in better crop as it is because the demand fell off to such an extent that they had a chance to accumulate and give the buyer an idea that there are more obtainable than are really to be had. Carnations in particular are in heavy supply and are selling in large lots at bargain prices, with very little demand for them at that. Orchids are plentiful, but are having a good call and clean up fairly well every day at prices considerably lower than they have been selling for. Lily of the valley is clearing every day as usual at the advertised quotations. Romans and Dutch hyacinths are to be had in quantity but are not meeting with very good sale. Freesias are so plentiful that practically every house in the market is handling them and the general report is that they have never brought such low prices, considering the quality of the stock offered. Tulips, jonquils, narcissi and daffodils are not moving any too freely, but lilies and callas appear to be good property and at times the past week it was impossible to fill all the orders. Sweet peas were never so plentiful this season as they are right now and probably never sold at such low prices as they are bringing this week. Gardenias are holding their own and stevia finds a ready market. Daisies, calendulas, snapdragons, violets, pansies, mignonette, stocks, bouvardia and other miscellaneous seasonable cut flowers are to be had in good supply, and while one or two items clean up completely at times there is pretty nearly always enough of everything to go around. Greens with no exceptions are in large enough supply so that everyone can secure what is needed. While stock at present is plentiful, a few brisk days would find a sudden change in the market conditions and if the St. Valentine's day demand is anything like it has been in former years a grand cleanup may be expected for February 14. The out-of-town buyers depending upon this market for their supply will find it to their advantage to place their orders as early as possible. Do it now.

NOTES.

An examination for gardeners will be held February 19, 1917, at 9 a. m., at the general offices in Union Park. Open to men between the ages of 21 and 50 years, regardless of residence. Applications must be filed in the office of the board in Union Park before 12 o'clock noon of February 17, 1917.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is handling a tremendous supply of fine carnations in all the leading varieties in addition to a most complete line of all other seasonable stock. Business was very good at this house since the first of the year and the sales during January were ahead of those of the same period in 1916.

Bassett & Washburn are well pleased with the showing that their new red carnation Belle Washburn made last week at the Indianapolis exhibition of the American Carnation Society, when it won first prize in the 50 class and second prize in the 100 class, in hot competition over a large number of other entries.

Zech & Mann report that their January sales this year were considerably ahead of those of the same month in 1916. Nick Wuestenberg of this firm has had his left hand bandaged up for some time as the result of blood poisoning contracted while handling roses.

Roy Wilcox of Council Bluffs, Ia., was the guest of C. L. Washburn and wife at Hinsdale February 4. He left the following day for Milwaukee, Wis., where he visited the Holton & Hunkel Co. greenhouses at Brown Deer.

Peter Papes, manager of the Central Floral Co.'s store at Detroit, Mich., is visiting Peter Duris, manager of the Central Floral Co.'s store here. Everyone who is acquainted with the two gentlemen cannot help but admire the splendid record they are making for themselves, which is due principally to the fact that they are both on the job early and late every day in the week.

Eric Johnson, manager of the A. L. Randall Co.'s cut flower department, is well pleased with the sales during the month of January, which have exceeded all expectations. The Randall Co. has 800 square feet of floor space devoted to the displaying of its electrical store fountains. This is probably the best paying space devoted to any one item in the great central market.

Percy Jones is making a strong bid for his share of the St. Valentine's day business, which, from present indications, will be the best ever, for inquiries in regard to stock are numerous and many nice advance orders have already been booked. "Bill" says that their 100 per cent service is the secret of their steady growth in business.

Wietor Bros. are coming in crop with roses, particularly Ophelia and Killarney, which are seen in larger supply at their store this week. Carnations are very plentiful at their establishment but clean up nicely every day, owing to their splendid quality.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. have received word from their orchid grower to the effect that cattleyas will be in good crop for St. Valentine's day, which means that there will be plenty to go around as far as the demands of their customers are concerned.

At Erne & Klingel's store the stage is all set for St. Valentine's day and from the looks of the fine supply of stock that this firm is handling it is going to be a hummer if business is anywhere near as brisk as it was last year.

Joseph Ziska & Sons have moved into their new quarters at 169-175 North Wabash avenue, where they occupy the entire second floor of the Durand building, directly over the E. C. Amling Co.

Vaughan's Seed Store handled a carload of cannas and caladiums last week. This firm took in another carload of seed stocks and gladiolus bulbs from its Michigan farm the present week, from which point it was protected all the way by a man with stoves, and during the 48 hours it had to remain on the tracks here before it could be unloaded because of the severe weather.

E. Allan Pierce, of Waltham, Mass., was escorted through the local wholesale market by T. E. Waters this week after visiting Poehlmann Bros.

EXPRESS EMBARGO ON SHIPMENTS.

With plenty of funeral work the past week, the market was kept in a healthy condition, with good prices prevailing. Toward the end of the week we experienced the coldest weather thus far this winter, the thermometer going down to 15 below zero on the morning of February 2. Naturally the supply of cut flowers was reduced somewhat and this, in a way, was a blessing, for on that date the American and Wells Fargo Express Companies put an embargo on all perishable stock going north out of Milwaukee. They did this in order to protect themselves, consignor and consignee, for most trains cannot be run on schedule time due to snow and the extremely cold weather. It is only temporary, as they promise service directly after conditions again become normal. The scarce articles on the market at present are roses and lily of the valley. Carnations, with the exception of red, are about equal to the demand, while all kinds of bulbous stock, sweet peas and violets are becoming more plentiful. The supply of lilies is none too ample.

NOTES.

Nic Zweifel, C. C. Pollworth and Wm. R. Schroeder were the only ones from here to attend the carnation convention in Indianapolis. The first two returned February 3. W. R. Schroeder stopping off at Evansville, Ind., to visit with a brother for a few days. In speaking of the convention, C. C. Pollworth says it was a fine display all around, a noteworthy fact being the co-operation of retailers by the display of table decorations. He also spent some time at the E. G. Hill Co.'s establishment, Richmond, Ind., and comments on several new roses that took his fancy.

Harrison Mann, who conducted a retail store at 2440 Vliet street since last fall, due to the advice of physicians, will go west. He has been ailing for about two months. He has sold his whole outfit to a Mr. Heather. We sincerely hope the change will do him unlimited good.

The A. T. Kellner Co. had the decoration for the Turners' mask ball at the West Side turner hall, February 3. It was carried out in green, and made a favorable impression.

The Gust Rusch Co. greatly lament the embargo which the express companies placed on all perishable goods last Friday. Tom Plocienniczak is consigning fine carnations and all kinds of bulbous stock to this firm of late.

The press committee of the local florists' club distributed large hearts for window display among the local retailers gratis last week.

Last reports from Hot Springs state that Fred Holton, of the Holton & Hunkel Co., is now able to take a short walk every day.

While the cut of carnations at the Cudahy Floral Co. range is quite satisfactory, they are off crop on roses these days.

EFFECT OF UNFAVORABLE WEATHER FELT.

The continued cold, cloudy weather has made bad conditions in the local flower market, but prospects are now better and all are hoping for improvement, for the business outlook was never better than at present. Everyone in the trade is unusually busy and in some places it is really a rush. All of which is interesting when we look back over the conditions that have existed at this time during the past four or five years.

NOTES.

S. Murata & Co. are fast becoming settled in their new quarters on South Los Angeles street, but are experiencing some difficulty in securing a supply of stock sufficient to fill all of their orders.

O. C. Saake's establishment was one of the busy places during the past week. Being an old established firm, there is always the regular volume of business that can be depended upon.

The force at the Redondo Floral Co. have been working overtime. In addition to heavy funeral demands they have had several morning weddings to arrange for.

Wright's Flower Shop has never done a larger business than is being handled at the present time. They are again getting a fine cut of roses.

Howard & Smith had the decorations of the Athletic club for the "native sons" banquet, in addition to several elaborate funeral orders.

J. W. Wolters reports business improving. He has a nice supply of bulbous stock, lilies and acacia blooms.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK PROMISING.

February has opened up well, following the most successful January business ever enjoyed by the florists' trade in this city, both wholesale and retail. The market, on the whole, is in good condition to meet any demands placed upon it. Carnations and roses are in good supply and the quality of the former is improving daily. Sweet peas are more numerous and there will be plenty for St. Valentine's day. Florists are unanimous in reporting a very brisk sale of pot plants, including azaleas, cyclamens and tulips. The weather has been the most severe of the winter, with below zero temperature and much snow, which had a bad effect on some stock.

CLUB MEETING.

The florists' club is again active after the holiday rush. This was revealed by the enthusiastic meeting that was held January 31 in the rooms of the Retail Merchants' Board in the Nicholas building. It was very well attended. One of the things taken up was the boiler firing question. It seems that there is a very obnoxious state law that only a licensed engineer can fire boilers of a certain capacity. This, if enforced, works a severe hardship upon all growers and florists with small ranges. The local club is heading a movement to introduce a bill in the Ohio legislature to mitigate the effects of this law. The co-operation of the trade in this state will be asked. Another matter considered was a co-operative publicity campaign to boost the sales for St. Valentine's day.

Arthur C. Kneisel, who has charge of the publicity of the club, spoke on the benefits to be derived by the trade through concerted action. He advocated this kind of publicity for such days as this and Mothers' day, Easter, etc. The plan of the Chicago Florists' Club received much commendation, and it was decided to have a similar campaign in this city.

NOTES.

John H. Getzinger, 39 years of age, died at his home, 1125 Fernwood avenue, and was buried from St. Theresa's church. He was the chief decorator for the Scottwood Greenhouse for the past 18 years and was very popular with the trade in this city. His widow, two sons and two daughters survive him. Nearly every florist firm in town was represented in the many floral offerings received.

Miss Helen Patten is a busy lady these days. Her Madison avenue shop is a scene of hustle and bustle every day, due to the fact that many society people admire her taste in arranging attractive dinner and social decorations. Then, too, funeral work has been particularly heavy for the past two weeks. Miss Patten is making great preparations for a heavy St. Valentine's day trade.

Last January, Frank Schramm took a hurried trip to Chicago and while there saw much to his surprise that florists there had pot tulips. He was astonished, because in his experience in this city they had never been grown that early. As a result, Schramm Bros. have a fine lot of tulips, many of which they are wholesaling to the local trade. They are in great demand.

Many elaborate decorations have been secured recently for Mrs. J. B. Freeman by Bob Blake, one of this city's most effective decorators. While actively engaged in one of these at the Overland's new office building, Bob slipped from a ladder and came near being permanently disabled.

Harry Heintz, grower of high-grade roses, narrowly escaped an attack of pneumonia when he contracted a severe cold. Harry is still confined to his bed but is coming along nicely.

S. N. Peck has returned from Cincinnati, where he spent several days on a business trip. A. C. K.

Tennessee Horticultural Society.

The annual meeting of the Tennessee State Horticultural Society was held at Nashville, Tenn., January 31. The papers and discussions were unusually pertinent and brought out many points of information for both fruit growers and market gardeners. V. L. Pruett of west Tennessee was elected president; A. I. Smith, east Tennessee, vice-president, and O. M. Watson, middle Tennessee, secretary-treasurer. Among those who presented papers were: Chas. H. Bennett, Signal Mountain; R. S. Walker, Chattanooga; F. F. Clawson, Ashwood; F. B. Wilkes, Culeoka; John Mir, Hendersonville; Geo. Hamlet, Crockett's Mills; G. M. Weil, Cincinnati, O.; Wm. A. On seeing some fine callas which were growing on the ground at the Bertermann Bros. Co.'s country place, Wm. Nicholson, the veteran grower of Framingham, Mass, said that if they could be raised on steam pipes they would bloom much more freely. He had several single rows on steam pipes between the posts, underneath the gutters in the space between the houses which were without divisions. On a board shelf, pot saucers of good size are placed; in these were stood the 8-inch pots, each containing four bulbs of Godfrey callas. A boy fills these saucers with water every morning. Bone meal is used as a stimulant, a top dressing being given as required. From these pots he has cut in the season an average of over 20 callas. When done flowering in early July the pots are laid on their side out in the field. In early August they were shaken out and potted and kept in an open frame until September, when they were brought inside. He grows the Godfrey variety exclusively on account of its purity in color and uniform and more perfectly formed flower.

Baur & Steinkamp have a very handy device which might be used to advantage by many growers. The gutters of the ridge and furrow houses are about nine feet from the ground, supported by cedar posts. To these are attached by large strong screw eyes, a bracket made of one-inch pipe, one foot of which is placed in the two screw eyes, the upper end is bent out at right angles 18 inches and a "T" with three four-inch sections is screwed to the end. This makes a four-pronged bracket of great strength, capable of supporting quite a large pot. When not in use they are easily swung around out of the way. They are about five feet above the ground, do not interfere with the cup in the ground below, and have been found a very good place to finish and flower such plants as hydrangeas, poinsettia pans, roses, etc.

Anthony Weigand & Sons Co. is kept busy with their increasing trade. A handy device in use here consists of adjustable iron rods, which, when fastened to the work bench or table, make a rounded frame on which is stretched wire gauze netting, velvet or other like material, to which flowers are pinned or otherwise fastened in making blankets. With this in place it is easy to fasten the flowers as one can easily reach any desired spot underneath. In lining graves they use wire gauze, cut one piece for each side and others for the ends; they are quickly decorated with the desired material by the use of this frame work, and when taken to the cemetery it is but the work of a very few minutes to fasten them in place.

ZERO WEATHER AND ROSES TIGHTEN.

The weather during the past week has been extremely cold, the thermometer holding near the zero mark and dropping as far as 12 below on February 4, accompanied by a strong northwest wind which attained high velocity. As a result it has been very hard to maintain proper temperatures in the greenhouses. Roses are scarce and high in price but carnations are now quite plentiful and the quality is improving. The sweet pea supply is also better. Other offerings include tulips, narcissi, jonquils and freesias in the bulbous line and a fairly good number of violets.

NOTES.

Ed. Humfeld reports his range is still standing after the big wind. It is about the oldest in this city. His January business was the heaviest in 15 years, and attributes the increase largely to the heavy demand for funeral work. Business in general is very good, however.

H. Kusik & Co. report business as holding its own very well, and a big increase in sales during January over the same period in 1916 was noticeable. This firm is well supplied with good roses, sweet peas, jonquils, tulips and rubrum lilies among other items.

Jim Payne will have to remove his range the latter part of the coming summer to make way for the traffic road which will take in his place. His bedding stock is in excellent condition and his carnations have never done better.

W. J. Barnes is having good cuts of carnations and bulbous stock. He also has a fine line of rhododendrons coming into bloom. A very good increase in January business is recorded at his T. J. Noll & Co. have received a fine sample line of baskets for the Easter trade. They report rose receipts limited, but the quality is excellent. Carnations, tulips, narcissi and jonquils are plentiful.

John Stevens and his family, who recently were injured in an automobile accident, are recovering nicely. At present about 1,500 carnations are being cut daily at the Stevens range.

Samuel Murray's force had the heaviest run on funeral work in January in the history of the establishment.

A. Newell took advantage of the recent cold weather and redecorated his store.

MARKET CONDITIONS IMPROVED.

Market conditions during the last week showed considerable improvement. There was quite a change in temperature in the middle of the week, the thermometer showing 14 degrees below zero in some parts of St. Louis county where most of the local growers are located, but in two days the weather moderated, rising above the freezing point. The supply of roses is much better than a week ago, especially American Beauties, which are more plentiful in all grades with prices ranging from $8 to $35 per 100. The demand for same is light, however. Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are very scarce and the supply of Ophelia and Ward is only sufficient to care for the light demand. Killarneys and Richmonds are more plentiful and prices have dropped accordingly. They clean up fairly well at from four to eight cents. Carnations are still on the sick list, the supply being short of demand, but prices have not stiffened, the best sorts going at $4 per 100; inferior quality at $3. Tulips, jonquils and freesias are plentiful and the call for them is good. Paper Whites are none too plentiful and they clean up nicely at $2.50 per 100. Violets and sweet peas are in good supply and move at satisfactory prices. Lilies are scarce but the supply of orchids and lily of the valley is ample.

NOTES.

The contract for the decoration of the Overland building has been awarded to Mr. Kruse, a well-known south side retailer. The price is not made public but it must run into thousands of dollars. The building is an old six-story structure and admits of very artistic arrangement.

With the exception of Vincent Gorly, who went from Indianapolis to Chicago, the members of the American Carnation Society from this city who attended the convention in the Indiana capital are back home.

Frank Windler of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co. reports business very good. This firm at present is making a specialty of fine Spencer sweet peas, fancy jonquils and Purity freesias.

The final arrangements for the spring flower show to be held in the Armory hall, March 15-18, are complete. The committee looks forward to a wonderfully successful exhibition.

Alex Siegel, the well-known retailer, located at the Wolf & Wilson department store, who has been ill for six months, is about again, but his condition is still delicate.

The shipping trade in supplies at George Angermueller's establishment is very good. Fred is back on the job again, but for a few hours only each day.

W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., Inc., is receiving very fine roses from the range of W. J. Pilcher, Kirkwood. Business is reported very satisfactory.

H. G. Berning is receiving fine cuts of American Beauty daily from the Morgan Greenhouses.

TRADE AFFECTED BY COLD WEATHER.

The severe cold weather has had its effect on business. The thermometer has been below zero, and from all indications it may continue to be cold. The social season is now over and most stores depend on retail trade and funeral work. Roses are still very scarce and bring good prices. Other stock sells very well on account of the scarcity of roses. Daffodils and violets are very plentiful and sell very cheap, principally to the street fakirs. Sweet peas are excellent and the best sell at good figures. Mignonette is very good but only a limited amount is used. Lilac and pussy willows move well. Lilies and American Beauties are not very plentiful. Tulips are becoming more plentiful with some very fine Cron d' Or. Lily of the valley is coming very good and cleans up well each day.

R. E. Blackshaw, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, has been confined to his room at the hotel with a severe case of rheumatism. G. M.

Tennessee State Florists' Society.

The largest and most successful meeting in its history, preliminary mention of which was made in our last issue, was recorded at the eighth annual convention of the Tennessee State Florists' Association, held at Nashville, January 30-February 2, in conjunction with the meetings of the state horticultural, nurserymen's and beekeepers' organizations. The addresses were able and instructive and the attendance was large, all parts of the state being represented. The loggia of the Hermitage hotel, convention headquarters, was most artistically decorated and the public took occasion to visit and admire the floral arrangements, having been invited through the daily press. The Joy Floral Co. used a large display advertisement for this purpose. The trade exhibits were also more numerous than in former years among the well-known firms represented being the following: M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa., complete line of baskets for all occasions; Grasselli Chemical Co., Cleveland, O., insecticides; Schloss Bros., New York, ribbons and novelties; Cohen & Hiller, New York, ribbons; The Kentucky Tobacco Products Co., Louisville, Ky., insecticides; Nashville Pottery Co., pots. An electric doll for table or boudoir decoration was a particularly pleasing novelty. The floral display was especially fine.

The Joy Floral Co. had magnificent carnations of the varieties Sensation, Matchless, Enchantress Supreme and Belle Washburn; also some fine roses, a vase each of Pink Killarney, Ophelia and Shawyer and large specimen cyclamen plants. L. H. Haury & Son had a fine lot of cyclamens in pots and boxes with Primula obconica and good roses. Geny Bros. had an excellent showing of azalea plants, cyclamens, primulas, hyacinths and several vases of Ophelia roses. One could tell that roses were scarce from the fact that so few of them were exhibited, but the most splendid vase and something worth while was one containing two dozen or more large, fine Mrs. Charles Russell. This firm also had fine cyclamen plants. Chas. Tritchler had a very attractive exhibit of pot ferns and the double violets for which his father was famous for many years. C. W. Crouch of Knoxville had a fine display of sweet peas included in which were Orange Orchid, Mrs. Sachs, Christmas Pink, Rose Queen and Mrs. Spanolin. Karl P. Baum, also of Knoxville, made a beautiful display of orchids, fine carnations and large gladiolus bulbs. Thos. Cook, representing C. Keur & Sons of Hillegom, Holland, had pictures of tulips, hyacinths, etc.

At the business meeting held January 30 the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: W. C. Johnson, Memphis, president; Leon Geny, Nashville, vice-president; Professor G. M. Bently, Knoxville, secretary-treasurer.

ZERO WEATHER CHECKS CUT.

Stock is rather scarce, the zero weather of the first part of this week having checked the cut considerably, and where before there was hardly enough to satisfy all demands, now the available daily supply is less. The demand for flowers is steady and active. The rose cut is far short of actual needs. All carnations coming into the market sell readily. Easter lilies are plentiful and of excellent quality. They have a ready sale. Calla lilies and rubrums are seen in fair numbers. The list of bulbous stock now includes daffodils, tulips, Dutch hyacinths, jonquils and freesias. Sweet peas are in a good supply and are proving good property. Violets, lily of the valley, orchids and primroses may be had.

NOTES.

W. J. Vesey, Jr., of W. J. & M. S. Vesey, Fort Wayne, Ind., stopped over in this city the first of this week while on his way to Huntington, W. Va., to arrange for increased coal supplies for his firm.

George Berner, of C. E. Critchell's, has undergone an operation at a hospital. His friends hope to see him back at the store very soon and in good health.

C. E. Critchell entertained Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Nicholson, Boston, and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Knoble, Cleveland, O., at his home over the week end.

The monthly meeting of the florists' society will be held Monday, February 12, at Hotel Gibson.

THE LEO NIESSEN CO., 1201-5 Race St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Philadelphia,

ACTIVE DEMAND AND AMPLE SUPPLY.

Although the market is active and the receipts of cut flowers have been none too plentiful, indications at present point to an increasing supply. Carnations especially are meeting with a good call, the fancy grades going well. Roses, of which there is no great supply, are improving, however, and there is an active movement in the No. 1 and No. 2 grades. Freesias of good quality are being received and sell fairly well. Orchids are quite plentiful but the demand, however, is not brisk and the tendency is to lower prices. Lily of the valley is selling better and the stock is good. Sweet peas, which are of excellent quality, are now a strong factor. Paper Whites are not plentiful, and to quote one wholesaler: "The growers would fare better if they would arrange their deliveries so as not to all be in at about the same time." Lilies are not over-abundant and sales are satisfactory. Small shipments of Lilium speciosum and L. rubrum are also arriving. Gardenias, of which there are a considerable supply, move slowly. Violets are increasing, both in size and fragrance, but are none too popular. Snapdragons move well with receipts somewhat limited. There is a good call for calendulas, callas and daffodils, but tulips, now on hand in good numbers, are moving none too freely. Roman and Dutch hyacinths are coming in and the receipts of mignonette and lilac are ample. Good pansies, daisies, forget-me-nots, and primulas of the baby type all meet with fair call. The stock of greens is sufficient for all requirements. St. Valentine's day is being looked forward to by the local trade and an excellent supply is expected.

CLUB MEETING.

At the monthly meeting of the florists' club, held February 6, a large attendance listened to a most interesting address by Max Schling, the well-known New York retailer, his subject being, "Advertising for the Florist." The speaker, who treated the matter from the standpoint of a florist, cited numerous ways in which those in the trade could advertise to good advantage, related a number of personal experiences with successful publicity, and advised florists who could not advertise individually to do it collectively.

NOTES.

Plans are progressing favorably and all indications point to the most successful rose festival in the history of the American Rose Society. It is believed that from an artistic standpoint it will surpass anything of its kind ever held. The posterettes are now ready for distribution and may be had by anyone upon application to the local secretary, Fred Cowperthwaite, 307 Harrison building, Philadelphia, Pa. The Bellevue-Stratford hotel has been designated as the official headquarters during the festival. The executive committee of the American Rose Society will meet in conjunction with the rose festival committee at the Bellevue-Stratford hotel, February 8, at 2 p. m.

George Cook, of the Philadelphia Wholesale Cut Flower Exchange, reports a good demand for roses, especially in the shorter grades.

The Leo Niessen Co. is showing some of the finest snapdragons seen in this market.

Berger Bros. are featuring fine Easter lilies which are meeting with ready sale.

Edward Reid says he will be strong on violets for St. Valentine's day.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND BALANCE.

There is but little change in the condition of the market, the supply and demand being about equal, with prices steady and firm. A real cold wave arrived on the night of February 1, and the night of the 2d and morning of the 3d were the coldest of this winter, the temperature going to within a few marks of zero. Probably the rascally ground hog did it—that is, if you believe in ground hog predictions. On the evening of February 3 some flowers arrived that had been touched with frost; also, on that morning, prices stiffened. One dollar each was asked for the best stock of special American Beauties; good carnations touched $6 per 100; fancies $8, but for a Saturday the demand seemed rather light, as it usually is in severe weather. Briefly stated, the supply is light and so is the demand.

February 5.—The cold wave which struck this city the latter part of last week developed a driving snowstorm this morning. As a consequence the day's business has been very light. American Beauties and carnations showed an upward tendency, February 3, but there does not seem to be any $1 American Beauties today, and the bulk of carnations are slow at from $3 to $5 per 100. While it has stopped snowing, the weather grows colder and the outlook is not promising.

NOTES.

For a bird that has been classified by some writers as among the deep dyed villains of the feathered families, the English sparrow seems to have many friends. In the newspapers of this city, a controversy has been going on for some time, relating to the merits and demerits of that bird. It seems that the League of American Sportsmen has declared war on the English sparrows. We have never known much about this league, but have supposed it was composed of mighty hunters like Colonel Roosevelt. From hunting lions, tigers and grizzly bears, to come down to English sparrows, seems to be a mighty fall in aim and ambition. On one side, it is the contention that the English sparrows drive the native birds out of the cities; the opposing argument is, that few native birds would stay in the large cities under any conditions; also, that the sparrows are great destroyers of noxious insects. Our observant nurserymen and private gardeners should be well informed as to which is right. One thing is certain, the proposal to turn a lot of children (boy scouts) loose to kill little birds, will not improve the characters of the children.

Albert Marek, of New Springville, Staten Island, is sending to A. Sauter, of the Cut Flower Exchange, fine stock of Buddleia Asiatica, which wholesales at from $1 to $1.50 per dozen.

The Bound Brook Nurseries (Thos. Young, Jr.) opened at 57 West 23th street, February 5, for the sale of their gardenias, orchids and roses.

In addition to a good stock of cut flowers, J. J. Coan is handling good azaleas.

a number of his students, spent three days of the past week in this city and vicinity. They were on a tour of observation and investigation, and visited the ranges of Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J.; Dailedouze Brothers, Brooklyn, and a number of others. While in this city they called on Secretary John Young, of the S. A. F., and at THE AMERICAN FLORIST office. We believe that all were well pleased with their trip.

The Hanft brothers, of Madison avenue and 62d street, attended a beefsteak dinner January 28, given by Charles Menne, of Church lane, North Bergen, to a number of his friends. As a matter of convenience, the dinner was held at the residence of Edward Tschupp, but Charles Menne was declared the champion steak eater.

The Astoria florists are rejoicing over the opening of a new elevated railroad to their section, the formal ceremonies having taken place February 1, Mayor Mitchel and other notables attending. The Astoria florists were ably represented by Peter Jacobson, John Schneider and others.

A. M. Henshaw has returned from the carnation convention and exhibition at Indianapolis and expresses himself as well pleased, both with the attendance and the exhibition. Seizo Suzuki, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., Yokohama, Japan, is in this city visiting the local office.

James Sage, a well-known gardener, is spending the winter in this city. He was for eight years head gardener on the estate of the late Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, who was lost in the sinking of the Lusitania, since which the estate has been closed.

At the store of David Clarke's Sons, we have recently noticed a fine display of blooming plants, noteworthy being the chorizemas, which are becoming quite popular. They are attractive, are good keepers, and sell at reasonable prices.

Frank L. Froment, a cousin of Horace E. Froment, the wholesale florist, died at Miami, Fla., January 29, aged 64 years. He was a wealthy iron and steel merchant and was interested in many other business enterprises.

G. E. M. Stumpp, Fifth avenue and 58th street, who is a connoisseur in novelties, has recently installed an illuminated fountain, as well as other features too numerous to mention.

Henry Hart's new store, 1000 Madison avenue, is now very finely fitted up, and is constantly well stocked with the best in cut flowers and plants that the market affords.

At Hession's, Madison avenue and 76th street, we recently noticed a splendid window display of cattleyas, oncidiums, azaleas, daisies and other cut flowers and flowering plants.

P. Okersee & Son, 65 Fifth avenue, have opened a branch store in the Breevort hotel, Fifth avenue, near Washington square.

Frank Millang and wife sailed January 30 on the steamer Apache, for Jacksonville and Palm Beach, Fla., for a month's stay.

Anton Schultheis, of College Point, is sending to various retailers fine plants of chorizema. A. F. F.

Horticultural Society of New York

An exhibition of plants and flowers will be held February 17-18, at the American Museum of Natural History, 77th street and Central Park West. It will be held in the foyer of that building, which affords much better facilities for display than did the room formerly used for this purpose. Classes are provided for cut blooms of orchids, roses, sweet peas, mignonette, snapdragons, narcissi, freesias, early tulips, Darwin tulips, flowering shrubs and trees. Premiums are also offered for plants of schizanthus, cyclamens, amaryllis, lilies, primulas, cinerarias, and ferns. Special prizes may also be awarded for worthy exhibits not provided for in the schedule. Schedules are now ready for distribution and will be sent on application to the secretary, George V. Nash, Mansion, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, New York.

There will be a meeting of the society, Saturday, February 17, in the west assembly hall, at 4 p. m., at which an illustrated lecture will be delivered by Mrs. Max Farrand, on "Roses, and the New Rose Garden at the New York Botanical Garden."

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.
Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., President;
F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., First
Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fifth annual convention, Detroit, Mich.,
June 19, 1917.

VISITED CHICAGO: J. B. Agnew, of the Pacific Seed Growers Co., San Francisco, Calif.; Ralph M. Ward, New York.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade Feb. 7 were as follows: Timothy, $4.00 to $5.50 per 100 pounds.

JEFFERSON, IA.—G. W. Mackey of Shenandoah, Ia., has been elected manager of the local branch of the Rate-kin Seed Co. for 1917.

MRS. RINGIER, wife of Arnold Rin-gier, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, is still confined to a Los Angeles hospital and improving slowly.

PACIFIC COAST advices state that the winter there is the coldest on record, freezing every night. Frosts so far have caused the replanting of most radish and endive, and will thus make these crops light.

It is reported that the fast Dutch steamer New Amsterdam, which left Rotterdam January 3, was recalled when two days out, fearing submarine attacks. The New Amsterdam carried considerable quantities of horticultural stocks, besides several Dutch exporters.

Onions and Onion Sets at Chicago.

Onion set growers here who still retain modest quantities of sets not definitely contracted are very shy at present in making prices or granting any options whatever. The last figures on Reds and Yellows in the southern section of the city are $2.75 or higher, northern sections a trifle lower, but practically none to be had. Jobbers are asking $3 and said to be turning down some orders for carloads at that.

No one knows to what extent the very bitter weather of the past week has affected the stocks; in fact, may not have affected them at all, as sets that have held safely this far through very cold weather, ought to be almost frost proof. It has been very cold to move sets out of this city the past 10 days, the temperature going as low as 11 degrees below zero two or three times. It is reported that some seedsmen have loaded out sets with the temperature only 6 degrees above zero, while ordinarily warehousemen do not like to load when it is under 20 degrees.

Local dealers find evidence in cut prices of onion seed to set growers that some dealers must be overstocked and seeking to dispose of a surplus.

A market gardener brought in February, 710 sacks of onions, about 70 pounds each, which he sold for $50 cash on the west side market, a record here.

THE Italian steamer Giovanni, due at New York, this week, is reported sunk. This steamer carried a considerable quantity of flower and other seeds for American houses.

St. Louis Seed Co.'s Fire.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Fire in the downtown district Sunday afternoon, February 4, destroyed five business houses, among them that of the St. Louis Seed Co. The damage to the seed company is estimated at $100,000, covered by insurance. The fire started two buildings west of the seed house, and zero weather made it very difficult to control the flames. Mr. Hummert says he will look for another location at once.

Canners' Convention.

The annual convention of the National Canners' Association is in progress this week at the Statler hotel, Cleveland, O., February 5-12. The seed trade is well represented as follows: J. H. Allan Seed Co., Sheboygan, Wis.; The W. W. Barnard Co.,
Chicago; J. Bolgiano & Son, Baltimore,
Md.; W. H. Barrett, Adrian, Mich.;
A. J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich.; Everett B. Clark Seed Co., Milford, Conn.; J. F. Garfat, Toronto, Ont.; Herald Hogg, Toronto, Ont.; N.
B. Keeney & Son, LeRoy, N. Y.; David Landreth Seed Co., Bristol, Pa.; Leonard Seed Co., Chicago; Livingston Seed Co., Columbus, O.; Jerome B.
Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y.;
Rogers Bros., Alpena, Mich.; Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co., Sioux City,
Ia.; F. H. Woodruff & Sons, Milford, Conn.; S. D. Woodruff & Sons, Orange, Conn.

Iowa's New Seed Bill.

J. S. Michael, of the Sioux City Seed
& Nursery Co., Sioux City, Ia., calls attention to a new seed bill now before the Iowa legislature, Senate File
No. 105, entitled "A bill for an act to prevent fraud in the sale of seeds and to punish the violation thereof." Mr.
Michael says: "I do not know what prompts the introduction of this bill, for, largely, its provisions are already enumerated in the present seed law on the Iowa statute books and any feature of this bill that is not already there would only amount to an added annoyance in detail in a business way to the seed trade and would in no way be any more advantageous to the regulations of that business than the law as it stands."

Trans-Atlantic Freights.

The Holland-America line is proposing to American shippers of seeds from Holland a new increase in tariff, notwithstanding this company is reported to have paid last year dividends of nearly 100 per cent. The change in rate is as follows: The 1916 rate, garden seeds in bags, Rotterdam to New York, was 47 cents per 100 pounds. This year the proposed rate is, seed in bags, Rotterdam to New York, 55 shillings English money per 1,000 kilos. Figuring English exchange at $4.75% per pound sterling and the 1,000 kilos to equal about 2.20 pounds, the new rate per 100 pounds is practically 60 cents per 100 pounds, an advance of nearly 25 per cent.

Next annual convention will be held at Springfield, Mass., in 1917.

IRISH POTATOES and most other vegetables and fruits tend to make the body tissues and fluids alkaline, so correcting the tendency of meat, eggs, fish and similar foods to create acid conditions. Since the body performs its work best when it is neutral or slightly alkaline, this function of fruits and vegetables is important, especially to the hearty meat eater.

Florida Crop Damage.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 3.—A cold wave during the last 48 hours has severely injured fruit, vegetable and flower crops in this southern producing belt. The citrus fields as far as the middle fruit zone were severely injured. The year's production of Irish potatoes and tomatoes is virtually wiped out except in the extreme south. Vegetable gardeners here have suffered also. In the fruit and market garden belt planters say no such damage has been wrought during the past 15 years. All vegetables in the south have been more or less frozen. Some growers claim that much of the Florida cabbage, celery and lettuce crops may be saved.

White Fly.

We notice in the trade papers more and more demands for remedies against white fly. This shows that the pest is widely distributed. No doubt the shipments of off plants have a great deal to do with this—for wherever they once get a foothold they are certainly hard to clean out. Last summer we found millions of them on weeds in corn fields, showing that they are not alone a greenhouse pest. We noticed recently a writer in a trade paper recommends soap and nicotine. We have experimented with these materials to our heart's content and failed. The work was done in a house of tomatoes on benches. Towards evening we would introduce a heavy smoke of nicotine papers, which would stun the insects and drop them to the ground. They were then in excellent position for spraying. Before they had time to recover, we would administer the spray and with the most liberal and powerful applications and various degrees of soap and extract up to 10 times the ordinary strengths. We failed. The majority of the fly finally recovered. While we always destroyed some, it was no clean up. Besides, the nymphs are not reached by any such treatment, hence there is a new crop of flies every day, which means more eggs and more nymphs and new flies indefinitely. At best this treatment is more expensive in time and material than most crops are worth.

Cyanide fumigation is no doubt the present day remedy. However, after long experimentation we must admit that in our hands it is not a safe remedy. We have had serious injuries to crops, often long delayed. Crops would often come out absolutely untouched, but after a week a severe check was noticed; one house of cucumbers, while showing no injury directly—never produced another fruit. We have reduced the original formula of 1 ounce to 1,000 feet of glass to 1-5 ounce cyanide and still killed every fly and nymph, probably owing to the tightness of our houses. If we could develop a procedure safe to our crops, we would certainly pronounce this the best remedy. Our troubles no doubt originate from an all night exposure, as our houses cannot be opened from the outside. On such crops as can be regularly syringed with force, white fly is no pest, as water pressure will soon put them out of business like red spider.

TOMATO SEED FOR YOUR 1917 CROP

You will get an enormous crop of Tomatoes from Bolgiano's Tomato Seed this year. Our seed was saved from one of the largest crops we have ever had, due to being favored by weather conditions. The vines were loaded with large, solid, red fruit. We know positively by planting seed from this "Big Crop" your yield will be much larger than if you had bought seed grown where the weather conditions were not favorable.

DUNDEE, ILL.—D. Hill is spending his vacation in the Mobile, Ala., district, where he has large land interests.

"THE cost of Producing Apples in the Wenatchee Valley, Washington," is the title of Bulletin No. 446, published by the United States department of agriculture.

BALTIMORE, MD.—The city park board has abolished the office of general superintendent of parks. William S. Manning has ably filled this position for a number of years.

HARTFORD, CONN.—Professor Henry A. Perkins of Trinity College, has been appointed a member of the board of park commissioners for the unexpired term of Lyman B. Brainerd, deceased.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.—With weather conditions favorable and the demand for stock beyond all expectations, the Elm City Nursery Co. reports the close of a most prosperous year. The landscape department has also been very busy.

THE work of classifying and opening to homestead entry such lands in the national forests as are chiefly valuable for agriculture is progressing rapidly. Already over 70,000,000 acres have been covered by field examinations and the final reports acted upon.

Tennessee State Nurserymen's Association

The Tennessee State Nurserymen's Association held its annual meeting at the Hermitage hotel, Nashville, February 1, the following officers being elected for the ensuing year: G. W. Pogue, Grayville, president; E. Bruce Howell, Knoxville; W. H. Davis, Smithville; W. R. Fisher, Humboldt, vice-presidents; Prof. G. M. Bently, Knoxville, secretary-treasurer. The speakers included H. K. Bryson, commissioner of agriculture; W. Y. C. Grant, of Columbia; Robt. S. Walker, Chattanooga, E. W. Chatten, Winchester, F. C. Boyd, McMinnville, J. C. Hale, Winchester, C. E. Bartholomew, University of Tenn., Knoxville; J. M. Good, Springfield, O.; A. J. Byrn, Dixon; Prof. H. A. Morgan, University of Tenn., Knoxville; Bruce Howell, Knoxville.

Damping-Off Coniferous Seedlings.

Damping-off of coniferous seedlings, in the opinion of forest pathologists of the United States department of agriculture, causes losses ordinarily considerably heavier than the nurseryman realizes. Very young seedlings decay and disappear so soon after infection that the number of dead seedlings visible at any one time is but a small part of the total loss. Furthermore, many of the seedlings are killed immediately after the seed sprouts and before the seedlings appear above the soil surface. Many failures hitherto attributed to poor germination, in the opinion of the specialists, are due in reality to the work of the damping-off parasites in the sprouting seed, underground. The high price of most evergreen seed, which ranges from a minimum of 50 cents per pound for western yellow pine to $2 to $4 per pound quoted for native spruces, and even $5 to $10 per pound for Norway pine, makes the loss of young seedlings a serious expense.

To assist nurserymen in controlling damping-off, the department conducted extensive experiments in various sections of the country. The methods employed in these experiments and the success attending their use are reported fully in Professional Paper No. 453, "The Control of Damping-Off of Coniferous Seedlings," by Carl Hartley, forest pathologist, and Roy G. Pierce, forest assistant, Bureau of Plant Industry.

Soil disinfection has so far proved the best method of combating damping-off. Of many methods tested, treatments with sulphuric acid, copper sulphate, zinc chlorid, and formaldehyde have proved the most satisfactory. The disinfectants, however, behave quite differently at different nurseries. The acid has on the whole given the best results. Heat disinfection has been only partly effective. Disinfection by acid or copper sulphate is cheaper than by the other methods commonly recommended. In addition to decreasing damping-off after the seedlings come up, the chemical disinfectants above mentioned, when properly used, cause an increase in the apparent germination and are very helpful in controlling weeds. This latter effect alone at some nurseries pays the entire expense of the treatment. Sulphuric acid has, furthermore, at some places resulted in marked increases in the late season growth of pines.

NEW RED ROSE

Donald MacDonald

A new Hawmark Red Rose sent out this year by Alex Dickson & Sons

We have tested this Rose for Winter forcing for two years, and with us it produces more red roses during the winter than any Rose we have ever grown. It is not a large Rose, but has perfectly formed medium sized flowers that sell at sight. Color bright orange carmine; will not turn blue; because the base of the petals is orange. It is not a summer rose, as it has the same substance as Killarney. We build the plants up until November, and from Thanksgiving until May it is a money maker for the Rose Grower, as no pinching is necessary.

We are now booking orders for our New Seedling SUPERB— $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

SUPERB is a seedling of Gloriosa and Enchantress. It has the good stem of Gloriosa and the fine growing habit of Enchantress. The color is a flesh pink, and it keeps its color at all seasons. The flowers average about three inches, are very full, and generally receive full score on substance. The flowers are all perfect and do not split. In the four years we have grown it, it has proved the best commercial variety, barring none.

AVIATOR If you want Scarlet Carnations for Christmas, grow Aviator. $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

ADVERTISING AND PUBLICITY.

Practical Publicity Plans Outlined by Advertising Experts at a Meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club, February 8, 1917.

Flower Sentiment and Publicity.

Address of Mrs. Ella Grant Wilson, Cleveland, O., before the Chicago Florists' Club, February 8, 1917.

Did you ever stop to think of this—that the florist business is the only business in the world that rests wholly on sentiment? Love is the cornerstone of our work; take that out and the whole florists' business would collapse. It is the very foundation stone upon which everything rests! Take it from the birth of the new born baby to the old person going to his grave. It is the florist that strews the love tokens throughout his life—all expressed in nature's choicest gift to man—flowers. It has been said that love is the greatest force in the world. The florists have used that force as the basis of a great business enterprise. We have capitalized a sentiment.

We have made supplying love tokens, or expressions of the heart a commercial proposition. It is a fine balance that must be maintained to play up the sentiment of our work, and still adjust it to a commercial proposition. The florist who runs all to sentiment soon finds his pay roll short, and the man who run it wholly on a commercial basis (I am speaking of the retail florists now), soon loses out with the public. It's the man who adjusts the two to a fine balance who wins out. What is our great Easter trade but love and friendship tokens? What is Christmas but the same? Also Mother's day, St. Valentine's day, flowers for the sick—for the loved one who has left us? What influences the gifts to the graduate? to the debutante? to the—to the "best girl in the world"? or to the mother of the new born babe? Stop and think of it. There is not an order that goes out of the retail store that was not prompted in some way by this great moving force, love. If this is the case, and I ask you to disprove it, if you can, why do not florists make more use of this sentiment? Why do they not play it up more? Penn, of Boston, and Schling, of New York, are learning the uses of this human interest story and use it freely in their work and in their publicity campaigns. In fact, some of their advertising is wholly devoted to the sentiment of flowers, and the commercial idea does not enter into it.

The growers, the wholesalers, the supply men, have got their end of the work on a commercial basis. They do not come into direct contact with the consumer. The consumer is actuated by sentiment when he seeks the florist, and unless you render the service that he demands, you are not going to keep him for a permanent customer. The successful retail florist must be a mixture of adaptability, of tact, of sentiment, of service, and must combine in one individual artistic ability of a high order, with business sense, which same must be expressed in bookkeeping terms. The commercial—the artistic and the sentimental, are seldom combined in one individual. This being so, brings us up to the point where we must specialize. The man who has not all these qualities, looks for the missing element in others. The florist, who has the commercial bent, looks for the artistic and the sentimentalist, and vice versa. This is an age of specializing. The Cleveland Florists' Club, through its chairman of publicity, H. P. Knoble, came to realize what a force this was and how it could be utilized by publicly cultivating the sentiment of love expressed in flowers.. Publicity is a great force, a powerful factor. Why not combine them? So we talked it over and decided to try it out. The florists of Cleveland, the retail florists with the assistance of the wholesalers, and a few growers, raised a fund for community advertising, about $2,000 at first. It was planned to advertise impersonally. Then I commenced to write short stories about the sentiment of flowers. At first the newspapers were a little shy of us, thinking we had an ax to grind, but we persisted. At first not more than one story in six got across, but I kept at it; in fact bombarded them with floral dope and at last they began to "sit up and take notice." Now it is very seldom that our story does not get into print. I work under the editors' direction, give them just what they ask for, and try to give it the slant that their particular paper requires. I found very early in the game that good photos to illustrate the stories with, were an absolute necessity, if I was to succeed in this line of work; again, the same line of ideas or photos must not be used in rival newspapers. Right here was where I soon learned one lesson; that I must never, absolutely never, mention one paper, or what I was doing for it, to the other. The result is now that I am greeted as a friend in all the various offices. But woe betide me, if I should inadvertently mix my subject matter, and repeat the words or ideas used in the other fellow's copy.

THE EVOLUTION OF THE WORK.

The first year I went a little slow, feeling out my way. The second Easter, Mr. Knoble told me to "go the limit," which meant to get all the articles into the papers I could get them to take. I went to the editors and told them I would give them "feature pages." Mr. Knoble said, "play up corsages," and I did—I got both Sunday papers to play up full pages of girls and corsages. We got girls and the latest gowns—and corsages. I had six or eight of our leading florists make up their most artistic corsage creations and send them to the photographic rooms of the papers, where the official photographer posed them under the direction of the Sunday editors. Well! It's a matter of history yet what it did for that Easter. Easter in Cleveland had always been a good plant day, a church day, a flower day in the home—but that Easter! Corsages took the lead, corsages ran way ahead! I counted 97 corsages in three blocks on Euclid avenue, Easter afternoon, and the whole city wore corsages. These results, and we were the only city in the United States that reported such corsage sales, woke the boys up to what could be accomplished with publicity. You see before you the scale upon which the work has been carried on during the past year. Altogether, it represents some 1,800 inches, which reduced to pages, aggregates 10½ full newspaper pages of floral matter, which, if it was paid for at space rates, would have cost the Cleveland florists $2,960.58. Through the Cleveland method of publicity, this space cost $906.46. You ask me, What is your method? We furnish this matter to the newspapers free, without cost to them. I am paid from the publicity fund at the rate of 40 per cent of the advertising rate of the newspaper for the illustrations and $10.00 per 1,000 words, but the cost of making so many photos is growing so rapidly we are now charging this year 40 per cent on all space used. This simplifies the matter very much. In addition to this, I am allowed to use whatever flowers, ribbons, or accessories I need to make the illustrations with. The flowers used are usually given to the girls who so kindly pose for the pictures. Our photographic expense is large. For the past year it footed up $304, not counting the time of two of us. We have built up an organization now to handle this work—and have behind us 88 scrap books of live ideas—which we find invaluable.

Publicity and It's Influence.

Paper by James H. Burdett, former secretary of the Horticultural Society, read before the Chicago Florists' Club, February 8, 1917.

This is an age of publicity. The extent to which our national expenditures are influenced by advertising is sure to amaze anyone who studies it for the first time. Take your own household, for example. Set down the money which goes to buy things which you may need, but which you would not know you needed if it were not for advertising. It will probably astonish you. If a man wants to save money, one of the best ways would be to keep newspapers out of the home and cut out the advertising pages of all the magazines. But who wants to save money that way? Every time we discover a new need, and are able to fill it, our lives are made just so much more worth living. And advertising always undertakes to show you not only what you need but also how to get it. Most of you here lived quite happily, no doubt, before you purchased automobiles and phonographs. You didn't know you needed them. But when you have been persuaded by the flood of advertising that you do, and have purchased either one or both, you will not be willing in the future to get along without them. They render a service which you were formerly very happy to do without, but which, now that you have experienced it, you will not sacrifice if you can help it. The advertising which these two articles have received to such an enormous extent, has educated you and made you a buyer for life of automobiles and phonographs or their supplies.

These two articles were practically unknown 15 years ago. There was no market for them then, though the florists' business was a substantial commercial factor. There have been changes in the florists' business in 15 years, but not rapid changes nor very great. There has been a slow and very gratifying growth. Now, as then, the foundation of the business is the universal use of flowers in religious ceremonies, particularly weddings and funerals. Aside from this demand, the florists' income, now as then, is derived from those persons who have been taught to consider flowers as desirable on other occasions than weddings and funerals. These persons are necessarily of that class which has some money left over, after paying for housing, food, and clothing. This is a restricted class, but is all the time getting larger. In foreign countries it is chiefly a class that has inherited its money and its habits. In our eastern states this is less true than abroad, but more true than with us. Persons who have inherited money, are very likely to have the habit of buying flowers; if their parents have been persons of culture, they have educated their children in good taste and a love for the beautiful. But with us, only a very small proportion of those who have surplus incomes, have inherited their money. Ninety per cent have made it. They have indeed inherited habits; but they inherited no flower buying habits. Their youthful training probably was just the other way. Most likely they were taught to look upon flowers as expensive and unnecessary. If their opinions are to be changed, they must be re-educated on this point. To some extent these persons are being re-educated at present. They come in contact with others who buy flowers, they see floral decorations at dinners, in former years they attended the annual flower shows and thus slowly the number of flower buyers is added to by the education of non-buyers into buyers. So in 15 years we have seen business grow, greenhouse ranges expand, and retailers become more numerous and more prosperous, without the florists expending any large sum in advertising or conducting any systematic campaign of publicity. But what have we seen at the same time? We have seen enormous new businesses built up in selling automobiles and phonographs, which did not exist 15 years ago, but which in that time have gone far ahead of the florists' business. If the manufacturers of these articles had followed the same methods as the florists and left buyers to educate themselves, their growth could not have been anything to compare with what has taken place. But instead they put great sums of money and the best brains they could buy into an advertising campaign which has performed the task of educating the public in a few years and achieved a growth which, without advertising, would have taken generations.

As a result, upon what does the average family spend the most money today, flowers or phonograph records? Yet they do not need one more than the other. They merely know they want the phonograph records, and do not know they want flowers.

It must be evident to every florist that he, like the maker of phonographs, can profit by advertising his wares, and by teaching persons who do not know about flowers how greatly they can add to the enjoyment of life by buying them oftener. But there is something more in this condition than an opportunity. There is a danger, a menace. The florists can increase their business greatly if they will educate the public, but on the other hand they are constantly slipping backward when they do not do so. There is only so much surplus income in any community, a few million dollars above the sum required to house, to fill the stomachs and to clothe the bodies of the inhabitants. Every dealer in wares which are not absolute necessities is competing for his share of that surplus. There is always danger that somebody else may get your share. The piano trade has suffered tremendously from the sale of phonographs and automobiles. Money which formerly went into pianos now goes for the newer attractions. Theaters suffered greatly from the sale of automobiles until the "movie" craze offered a way to utilize empty playhouses; and now the saloons—thank heaven!—are complaining that the "movies" are cutting into their business.

Just how much the florists may have suffered from the popularity of better advertised articles is chiefly conjecture. Certainly it has lessened the growth of the industry. It is beyond doubt that every product which must depend upon surplus income for sales, which can only be purchased after the absolute necessities of life have been procured, is resting on an unstable foundation. In times of stringency it is the first to suffer. In better times it is not sure to share prosperity. Every other article of luxury is competing against it, and it must fight to retain its share of the general surplus. The phonograph has overcome the piano, the automobile has destroyed the carriage industry, and now the flower growing business, already outstripped by other infant enterprises, is threatened more directly by the growth of sentiment in favor of artificial flowers.

Fashion is fickle. We have hundreds of instances of industries destroyed by the whim of fashion. It may seem impossible that artificial flowers, now so fashionable for personal wear, can become the thing for table decorations, funerals and weddings. Unnatural as it may seem, there have been still more unnatural fashions. The big mercantile houses which have so perfectly developed advertising and publicity methods that they can create fashions at will are not going to let so promising a field for profit get away easily. I remember reading that Stanley Field, who has plenty of money to promote such things, has offered a large money prize to encourage the invention of a method of making artificial flowers which will be more like the natural product. When the method is found and the goods are manufactured, the market will be created, if it lies in the power of unlimited money, the cleverest brains, and printers' ink to do it. And what weapon will the florists have to oppose such a campaign?

Publicity is the only weapon which can oppose it. Therefore every dollar which is expended upon the development of publicity methods and the conduct of a publicity campaign serves two purposes: It not only gets new business, but it buys an insurance policy to protect the business you have.

Retail florists hesitate, and very wisely so, to buy advertising space in large quantities. Your business is not like the department store's. You cannot all attract buyers from every part of the city. Those who are downtown can advertise profitably, but those who are obliged to depend upon a neighborhood trade are buying lots of useless circulation when they buy newspaper space, and unless they appeal to a very well-to-do clientele they cannot afford to spend large sums in this way. Then, again, when a retail florist advertises, he is not trying to educate the non-buying public. He is trying to attract to his store those who are already flower buyers. To a certain extent, his advertising does help others. Every time you force the public to think about flowers you are helping the business in general. But, chiefly, the retail advertiser appeals to the existing buyer, and advertises his own particular wares rather than flowers in general. If there were enough of this sort of advertising its general effect would stimulate business, and its amount would force the newspapers to run columns of flower fashions, as they do of millinery notes. But retail advertising will probably never be sufficient to bring this about. I remember 10 years ago talking to James Keeley, one of the best friends the florists have, because, as he says, he was born in a greenhouse in England, and carried flowers to the Covent Garden market in his childhood. I suggested that if the Tribune, of which he was then editor, would print a column of notes on flower fashions he could get advertising to make it worth while. He said it was hopeless —that the florists did not know the value of advertising. Since then some of them have proved they do know and that they can make it profitable. But, if a real impression is to be made upon the public it will not be by the individual efforts of competing retailers. A co-operative effort must be made in which everyone will help.

Everyone can afford to help in an educational campaign. Even though you have a fellow member of this club who has a store right across the street from you and is competing with you for every bit of business, you can both afford to help out in an educational campaign. You are competing, yes; but you are competing only for the business of flower buyers. You are not competing for the trade of non-buyers. The great proportion of the public, which never buys a flower except for a funeral, does not pay a cent of profit to either of you. In a campaign which is intended to make him become a flower buyer you are equally interested. You have an equal chance of getting his trade. If 10,000 new buyers can be brought into the market, each retailer can get his share of them. And the retailers are by no means alone in this interest.

The wholesalers have even more at stake. Every new flower buyer means a larger market for their products. Advertising which appeals to existing buyers may not mean much to them; but any new business which can be developed brings more money in their pockets. In some lines general advertising is carried on entirely by manufacturers and jobbers. The producers of flowers are just as much interested in educating the public to buy their wares at the retail stores as the manufacturers of soap are in stimulating trade at the grocery stores.

The last point I wish to make is that publicity of this sort is an investment. Once teach a man to buy flowers, and he will continue to buy them, when he can afford to do so, all his life. An investment by this club, or any other florists' club, in a publicity campaign to teach the public to buy flowers is at once an insurance premium to protect the business you have, a promotion expenditure to increase your business, and an investment which will pay dividends for years to come through the continued purchases of every new buyer you can educate.

Organization Publicity.

Address by Royce P. Eckstrom, of Eckstrom Advertising Agency, Chicago, before the Chicago Florists' Club, February 8, 1917:

One of the previous speakers has addressed you ably and at length on "publicity as a means of increasing the sale of flowers" and has used that term in the sense of "free copy." I will accept, for this evening only, that definition, inaccurate as it is in my estimation, but as she has covered the subject very thoroughly, I will confine my remarks to advertising in the sense of copy paid for at regular card rates.

Advertising by associations was unknown until recent years. Individual firms bought space to develop the demand for their own brands of goods, and in the majority of cases with excellent results, but they looked askance at any and all attempts to get their national or local organizations interested in campaigns involving the use of newspapers or magazines. They considered the idea as chimerical and the money so used as wasted. This attitude prevailed until they were forced into collective advertising by changing trade conditions. Now national associations in practically every line of industry either are or have in contemplation, movements that involve vast expenditures for printer's ink.

The dairymen, fruit growers, apple growers, lumbermen, building material firms, silk manufacturers, citrus, almond and raisin industries and even public utilities such as the railroads have taken to advertising either to protect their own interests or to develop new business. This evolution has been natural. In the lumber industry, some statistician discovered a few years ago that cement, brick and metal would in a comparatively short time totally eliminate wood in certain lines of construction unless the tendency was changed. To turn this tide, the cypress, white pine and now the oak men went into advertising, first to develop the use of their own woods, and secondly to aid in winning back the general market. There has resulted still another development, for while the individual associations continue to advertise their own products, they are not collectively pushing "wood" by advertising its advantages through educational copy. The lumber organizations I have mentioned will spend over $300,000 during the course of this year. The warm air furnace men, who are waging a campaign against steam, will spend $50,000 more to prove the healthfulness of warm air heated homes. The citrus, almond and raisin industries will add another $100,000 and so the astounding story runs, proving conclusively that association advertising pays.

When the collective movement started an effort was made to accomplish the desired results through "publicity." The attempts failed, although there was a time when free space could be easily obtained by expert publicity people. A firm of which I was later a member was able to secure for four clients during a period of many years free publicity reaching the value, in space, estimated on the basis of regular space rates, of over $300,000 a year, for which it was handsomely paid. But that, gentlemen, was years ago.

I appreciate as probably does no one else here tonight the splendid work done in Cleveland, where Miss Wilson declares 10 pages of free publicity valued at over $2,000 were obtained last year. I know how difficult her task must have been for I have been city editor of two Chicago papers and have handled some of the largest publicity accounts of the last decade. But, gentlemen, while I do not mean to criticize, I can not but say from experience that a change has come about and what was ethical 10 years ago is taboo and almost impossible now. The evolution has been due to a vigilance committee of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, the Associated Advertising Club of America, and here in Chicago, the local organization of the American Publishers. These organizations consist of practically every paper of any standing. They bulletin press agents until they call the attention of every publisher in the country to the work being done.

I do not mean to say that publicity campaigns are impossible even under these conditions. A couple of years ago two of them went over with great success. These were the "Swat the Fly" and the "Individual Drinking Cup," but there is a question in my mind whether the companies that backed these two efforts did not pay more for advertising and publicity combined than they would have paid to accomplish the same result had they used advertising only.

Publicity is difficult to put over for several reasons. In the first place, the newspaper publisher is selling his space just as you are selling your flowers, and publicity that is of value to you, must naturally carry advertising value. It may be veiled, but it must be there, consequently the publisher demands cash in return for his space, especially in Chicago where rates are high and circulation large.

The automobile industry is getting more free publicity than any other and it is today the heaviest advertiser. The moving picture companies realize the futility of trying to get space in large quantity without advertising and you will notice that they are beginning to use big spreads in both the newspapers and magazines. They are adepts in the art of getting something for nothing, but they also are among the wisest and shrewdest students of advertising, and they are beginning to pay their way, knowing that they cannot ride very far on a free ticket.

There is another reason for the uncertainty of publicity results which is often forgotten or not known by men and women outside of the newspaper field, and that is the effect news has on the amount of space obtainable. At the present time it is almost impossible to jimmy into any newspaper of standing any piece of publicity because the newspapers have to give from two to three pages to the present war situation and they can not afford to give up space to anything that has not either news value or human interest value of the keenest sort. Consequently a publicity campaign for St. Valentine's day would fail and at a time when you needed it. But no matter how crowded the news columns may be the advertising columns are always open when you want to use them.

Let me repeat one remark on publicity—it is getting something for nothing which has been done and will be done again, but it is fundamentally bad business and so can not prosper. Under the plan outlined, you pay a representative for space that representative begs or wheedles out of the papers. Why not pay the papers direct and get exactly the kind of service you desire? Newspapers will print stories on flowers because they are of interest, but they will not print them if they are sent in lieu of paid copy—at least not for any length of time.

Advertising to be of value to you must be planned properly and run in the right mediums, which in Chicago, are the dailies. These go into practically every home in the city. Chicago has a population of over 2,500,000 and its seven newspapers have a circulation of 1,859,000, consequently you can reach every potential buyer by the use of their columns and at a cost that is not excessive. For instance, in advertising flowers for Easter your association for six days at a cost of $1,575 can place copy, alternating 100 lines on 3 columns and 100 lines on two columns, every day in at least two papers and in every paper on the Thursday before Easter. Think this over, gentlemen, it would mean but $5 each for your 300 members.

Now as to copy—not for Easter, but for a general educational campaign—it should be of the highest class, written to show why flowers should be bought. In other words, to develop new business. It should bring out the idea that they are as necessary in a home as beautiful pictures, attractive furniture and exquisite vases. It should be planned to educate the people to use them on the dining tables. It should bring out the effect they have on convalescents. In other words, it should be written to prove that they are a necessity and not a luxury, and advertising can do this, for it has accomplished the same purpose in other lines of industry.

So much for education, now for competition: Your copy should be aimed at the artificial flower. I remember when every woman wore the real at receptions and dances, where she now wears the artificial, some most atrociously inappropriate. The artificial flower was developed solely through advertising. The State street stores, in their wise way, have advertised it along with the jewelry, with the silks and millinery. They have taken the curse away and made it fashionable, but gentlemen, industrial history proves that in business the artificial cannot live in a competition with the real if conditions surrounding them are the same. You have got to kill the artificial flower, take it off the corsage, out of the automobiles and homes, and advertising alone can do this by putting on it the curse of being vulgar. And if your advertising accomplishes this only, it will be successful.

The copy you use should be illustrated with high grade pen and ink work. It should be artistic, yet strong enough to attract and hold attention. There should be plenty of white space around the text, which should be printed in a fancy but not a script type. The illustrations can be made to serve another purpose, for in them should be worked a trade mark of your association, so that whenever your ads are seen, they impress on the reader the fact that your organization is advertising. This trade mark can be developed and used by your various members just as the clearing house banks are using the clearing house insignia. It can come to mean that every dealer using it carries none but fresh flowers of high quality.

I have been limited in time, so can not discuss the sentimental and luxury phases of your business, both exceedingly important, but before I close I desire to bring out one more point—if you advertise, plan to do it systematically and over a long period of time. A flash is money wasted. Better not do it at all unless you are prepared to continue until results come in, as they surely will if you do it in the right way.

Geraniums Diseased.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

I am enclosing geranium leaves, flowers and buds and will appreciate it if you will tell me what causes their condition and what can be done to remedy the trouble. The plants were in fine healthy condition when I took them in last fall and are now in a concrete house, 18x50 feet, running north and south. As will be seen the buds turn before they open. I have never had any trouble with geraniums before. Will the plants do for cuttings?

Wisconsin.

M. M. S.

The leaves and flowers were badly dried up when received, but it is my opinion the trouble is caused by some gas or fumes. Are the plants standing on coal ashes? I have known of geraniums acting this way from the gases thrown off by the ashes they were standing on. Try moving some of the plants to another place, standing them on sand and see if the trouble ceases. If it does the plants can be used for cuttings, but if it is found to be some disease, then it will be the best policy to buy in clean stock.

C. W. JOHNSON.

C. H. Frey, Lincoln, Neb.

All interest in the firm heretofore known as the C. H. Frey Co., at 1133 O street, with a range of glass on Thirty-fifth street, was purchased, February 10, by C. H. Frey, who has been in personal charge of the greenhouses since their erection in 1895, and who will collect all bills and pay all debts of said firm. The business will be conducted hereafter as C. H. Frey, Florist.

THE ROSE.

Propagating.

It is not necessary to start with the rose cuttings until from February 1 to the latter part of the month, unless one is very short of a certain variety, and there is an abundance of wood, which is an exception instead of a rule during the month of January, and as the wood made during February is by far in better condition, much more abundant, and strikes better also, there is really no need to retard what little growth the plants are struggling to make in December and January, or to carry along a lot of stock in pots that usually gets away to a bad start, or requires at least one more shift to carry them through till planting time.

The propagating bench should be put in good shape, and this should have been attended to long ago. However, it does not take long to clean off the bench and do not hurry over the cleaning stunt. Wash the boards off well with the hose and replace all of the old, rotten boards. Go over them and test them for strength with a heavy hammer, for it is a tough job repairing a bench if it should break down after filling it with sand. Be sure to have good clean sand. Wash-sand is good if it has been gotten ready beforehand, dried and screened through a fine-mesh sand screen; otherwise, it will be found too coarse or sharp and will let too much air into the cutting stems. Bank sand is excellent where it is taken out carefully, keeping the soil out of it. As a comparison the sand should grade about like fine granulated sugar; coarser than this it will perhaps cause the trouble stated above.

There should be three inches of sand in the propagating bed when firmly packed, and firmly packed is right, for the sand cannot be packed too hard. If one has a great deal of propagating to do, a good home-made tool to do the work of packing with is a good oak block about 5x9 inches and 3 or 4 inches thick, tapering slightly from the top. Let the striking end be of end grain. Bore a hole in the top two inches in depth, so that a piece of ¾-inch pipe will thread nicely in the hole by using a long thread on the handle. It will make a permanently tight handle. For a row marker, use a piece of oak one inch thick and three inches wide, planed smooth and straight on all sides. An old table knife, with the blade broken off to about two inches from the handle, makes an excellent tool to open up the rows with. The rows can be opened up any desired width by drawing the knife through the sand at a slight angle. A medium weight carpenter's hammer completes the outfit, and these simple tools in the hands of an expert propagator will assist in placing many hundreds of cuttings in the sand daily, and it does not require much practice to make any fairly intelligent youth quite expert if he is started right. The cuttings should be placed in the sand from an inch and a half to two inches deep, and about three inches between the rows will be about the average, except where the foliage is extra large, American Beauty for instance.

After opening up the row by holding the marking stick firmly, and drawing the knife close to its edge across the bench, begin by placing the cuttings about 1½ inches apart, working towards you from the back of the bench. When the row is filled, place the marker carefully up against the cutting and tap it the full length with the hammer. This method is quicker than using the fingers after one gets accustomed to doing it, but to those that prefer to do so they can also be packed firmly with the fingers. So much for the sand end of the job.

We will briefly state that there is nothing saved or gained by using poor wood for cuttings. The wood should be of one ripeness, wood that is still a little soft at the very tip is in good shape and should be taken with a heel as often as possible and made into two and three-eyed cuttings; avoid using streaky stock or wood that is too hard. It is always advisable to have enough help to push the work along quickly. Two men taking off wood and working it up and one putting in the cuttings make good team work. Only take off wood enough to work up before it becomes wilted, and spray the cuttings after they are made quite frequently so that there will be no chance for any wilting to take place from start to finish. When taking American Beauty cuttings, select the long runners or canes, and do not use the tips or the butts of the canes. Along through the center and out well towards each end, the wood will be found of uniform ripeness; therefore, it will root evenly. It is advisable to make all American Beauty cuttings using two eyes only, one carrying the leaf and the other at the base of the cutting, being careful to trim the lower leaf away carefully. Use the least possible amount of (strictly speaking) blend wood. There are many small flowering shoots that make the finest cuttings, and if one sticks solely to the wood blend for sticking purposes, the stock will run to the blend side before one realizes it, until he finds a lot of fine foliage perhaps and few flowers through the season.

The cuttings should be sprayed overhead on every bright day, and the sand should never be allowed to become at all dry, although the water can be withheld a little as soon as they show signs of rooting. The cuttings should also be shaded, using light cotton cloth tacked on frames or hung overhead. It should be drawn up out of the way on cloudy days, and only used to prevent the rays of the sun striking the cuttings at any time. After the cuttings have been in sand about 18 to 20 days, they can be allowed a little early morning sun and late afternoon sunshine to harden them up a little. Pot them off as soon as the roots are half an inch to three-quarters of an inch long. Use water always the temperature of house. Sand should be 65° to 70°, overhead 58° to 60°. E.

Kansas City, Mo.

MONTH'S BUSINESS OPENS STRONG.

February business has made a good start and indications point to an increase over January sales. The weather continues cold and market conditions remain unchanged. Roses continue scarce and high in price, but carnations, sweet peas, tulips, jonquils, narcissi and violets are more plentiful and the quality better. Pot plants of all kinds sell at sight. The St. Valentine's day trade promises to be larger than ever before.

NOTES.

W. J. Barnes has good cuts of carnations, tulips, jonquils and narcissi. His lilacs and rhododendrons are making a fine showing. Funeral work has been heavy during the past week and the call for pot plants continues good.

The auto show which opened here February 12 brought many orders for decorations to the florists, the bulk of them going to the Alpha Floral Co., who decorated the main hall and many of the dealers' salesrooms.

A. Newell reports good business in weddings, parties and funeral work. Pots of spring flowers are selling well. Great preparations have been made here for the St. Valentine's day trade.

Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. is cutting excellent roses, carnations and sweet peas. Good azaleas, cyclamens and pans of bulbous stock also move readily.

Fred Fromhelt reports business good in general—better than expected. Advance orders for valentine stock have been heavier than ever before.

Mrs. T. A. Mosely, of Kansas City, Kan., reports that business is holding up wonderfully well. Pot plants are making their way to the front daily.

H. Kusik & Co. report a heavy demand for wire work and a large number of valentine orders. A fine line of rubrum lilies are to be seen here.

T. J. Noll & Co. report shipping trade larger than at any time since the holidays. Green goods are scarce.

August Luther has a fine lot of cinerarias, cyclamens and begonias for his St. Valentine's day trade.

E. J. B.

Columbus, O. Notes.

The Munk Floral Co. has an ideal location and modern store opposite the state house. Their nursery of 50,000 feet of glass furnishes them with much of the stock required, although they buy all their carnations. A good bid was being made for St. Valentine's day business in effective windows. Mr. Munk, in speaking of cooperative publicity by Columbus florists, stated that it had been wonderfully efficient at first, but that it had been difficult to get all to work together. The trade of this city has, however, proved that such advertising paid and gave splendid returns, all that is needed being the support of all.

This city, the capital of the state, has about 200,000 inhabitants—a live city in which the trade is well represented. The Livingston Seed Co. has, in addition to its large seed trade, a cut flower and plant department with about 75,000 feet of glass, all the products of which are sold in the store. A fine strain of cyclamen is a feature. A desk at the door to meet the eyes of the visitors as they go out, bears a conspicuous sign above an open register: "Is your name on our mailing list?—if not, please sign."

Underwood Brothers, Twenty-first street and Fair avenue, have quite a range of houses, the stock of all of which is retailed. Funeral work is a specialty. The houses were filled with a good line of flowering and bedding plants.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co., on High street, are about to move to their new location at 120 east Broad street, where a commodious store has been fitted up with up-to-date fixtures in silver oak. Much of their own stock in plants and flowers is grown in their range of 35,000 feet of glass in the suburbs.

The Franklin Park Floral Co., Mr. Jagsch, manager, has quite a lot of glass and a store on Fair avenue in the residence district. Lilacs in flower were a feature here. There were also several large houses of carnations.

The Columbus Wholesale Florists' Supply Co. has had a good season. The stock from their 125,000 square feet of glass gives them a good nucleus to work on. They carry a general line of all kinds of supplies.

John R. Hellenthal has a busy shop. Mrs. Hellenthal, a splendid saleswoman, is in charge. Things are kept in good order, with a tasty window that attracts attention.

Mrs. M. D. Evans, the mother of John A. Evans, of ventilator fame, who resides in this city, celebrated her ninetieth birthday, February 14.

The Wilson Seed Store on High street reports a good season. The valentine window here was very showy.

T. J. Ludwig, in the midst of the shopping district on High street, is well equipped and enjoys a good trade.

HAMILTON, ONT.—Fire which started in the boiler room at the establishment of Walter Holt, recently destroyed the potting shed and ruined the stock in four houses.

OBITUARY.

James King.

James King, well known nurseryman and landscape gardener of Elmhurst, Ill., died at his home February 9, aged nearly 72 years. The cause of his sudden death was a severe jaundiced condition infecting and weakening him, necessitating an operation from which he had not the strength to recover. Mr. King was a member of the old King family of Enfield, Conn., and was born at New Haven, that state. He left New Haven, where he had been engaged in the manufacture of rustic work (arbors, summer houses, etc.), and located in Chicago in 1874. He engaged in the seed business under the name of King & Savage on State street near Marshall Field & Co. Dissolving partnership after a few years he organized the James King Seed Co. and conducted a general business in seeds, rustic work, baskets, etc., at several locations on West Lake street. In 1905 he gave up the seed shop and devoted his attention to the nursery business which he had been developing at Elmhurst. In 1909 he took up a 40-acre tract near Wheaton which later became his principal nursery, and took into partnership his son, George R. King, then a graduate of the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University. His work in the nursery business has included much in the way of landscape gardening as well as wholesale and retail business in trees, shrubs, perennials, etc. The business will be carried on by his son.

Mr. King resided successively on the west side of Chicago, Evanston, Oak Park and Elmhurst, the last place for 26 years. He was a member of Glen Oak Country Club.

Mr. King is survived by his wife, Adelaide Hotchkiss King, a daughter, Antoinette King Tracy, and a son, George Russell King.

The Late H. H. Frey.

H. H. Frey, one of the best known florists of Lincoln, Neb., whose death was recorded in our issue of January 27, page 61, and head of the firm of Frey & Frey from 1895 until his death, was the father of five sons, all prominently identified with the trade in that city, the eldest of whom, C. H. Frey, started in business in the summer of 1887, his father joining him in 1890 under the firm name of Frey & Frey. In 1895 the deceased purchased his son's interest, the latter again entering the trade and founding what is now known as the C. H. Frey Co., of which he continues the guiding hand.

H. H. Frey was very successful and built up an extensive business which is being continued under the original firm name of Frey & Frey by the four younger sons.

SEATTLE, WASH.—Harold B. Burdett, 32 years of age, of the Burdett Company, of this city, has been killed while fighting with the English army in France.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—About 120 employes and friends of Holm & Olson enjoyed a dance and supper at the firm's store, February 5, following the close of the winter carnival.

LAKE FOREST, ILL.—The active members of the North Shore Horticultural Society held a banquet and dance at Anderson's hall February 10. There was a good attendance of the craft of the neighborhood with their ladies, who report a delightful occasion. The mayor and other prominent members addressed the meeting.

Society of American Florists.

The arrangements for the trade exhibition in connection with the convention to be held in New York August 21-24, are progressing satisfactorily. The florists' supply trade and others doing business with growers and retailers are evincing a keen interest in the exhibition...

The Convention Garden, which has been laid out in the New York Botanical Garden, Bronx park, under the supervision of Dr. N. L. Britton, is an undertaking worthy of New York. Preparatory work was engaged in until the ground became too much frozen to make the continuation possible.

Besides serving the purpose of the society, the garden will be an object of interest to hundreds of thousands of the public, all horticultural enthusiasts. With this in view Dr. Britton has spared no effort to make the garden attractive. So far the following have arranged for plantings: W. A. Manda, Maurice Fuld, John Scheepers Co., Bobbink & Atkins, Henry A. Dreer, A. N. Pierson, Inc., Conard & Jones Co., John Lewis Childs, Inc., Raymond W. Swett, Arthur Cowee, B. Hammond Tracy, Arthur T. Boddington Co., Inc.

The proceedings of the society for 1916 will be mailed to members about February 20. Conditions beyond the control of the society have caused some little delay in the publication of the volume this year, but it will be worthy of close study, being more than usually interesting. One thing, particularly, the society is to be congratulated upon—the list of members in good standing published in the book is much larger than ever before recorded in the history of the society.

MEETING OF EXECUTIVE BOARD.

President Robert C. Kerr authorizes me to call a meeting of the executive board to be held in New York, March 16-17, 1917. JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

NEW RED ROSE*Donald MacDonald

A new Hawmark Red Rose sent out this year by Alex Dickson & Sons

We have tested this Rose for Winter forcing for two years, and with us it produces more red roses during the winter than any Rose we have ever grown. It is not a large Rose, but has perfectly formed medium sized flowers that sell at sight. Color bright orange carmine; will not turn blue; because the base of the petals is orange. It is not a summer rose, as it has the same substance as Killarney. We build the plants up until November, and from Thanksgiving until May it is a money maker for the Rose Grower, as no pinching is necessary.

SUPPLY IMPROVES IN QUALITY.

Local florists are very busy with funeral work, even to the extent of working overtime. Stock is getting more plentiful. Outdoor carnations are becoming more in evidence and there are increased receipts of daffodils and other bulbous flowers. Sweet peas are improving and the supply is ample. Fruit blossoms are becoming conspicuous, as are also acacia blooms. There is a very fine cut of roses to be seen and the same is true of carnations.

NOTES.

Wolfskill Bros. & Morris Goldenson recently had a very attractive window of sweet peas. They are very busy with funeral work and have a good supply of seasonable flowers. Some fine long-stemmed Sunburst roses are a feature here.

O. C. Saake's entire force has been busy with funeral work, several expensive palls being among the orders during the past week. White and pink carnations were used in quantity. Carnations of the Beacon variety were a feature here.

S. Murata & Co. report that the supply of stock is becoming sufficient for all demands and wholesale prices are consequently lower. They are shipping freesias and carnations principally at present.

Wright's Flower Shop has an excellent supply of roses from its own range, particularly of the Richmond and American Beauty varieties. Trade has been generously good.

The Broadway Florists' salesroom is one of the busiest places in this city in its line. The location is of the best and stock is always up-to-the-minute in quality and variety.

The Redondo Floral Co. are still trying to catch up on funeral orders.

CHAMP WEILAND

We will have a surplus of 20,000 plants of this rose to offer for spring delivery. Subject to prior sale, we quote strong, own root stock from 2 1/4-in. pots, at $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000. Eyes for grafting, $65.00 per 1000. Weiland & Risch, 164 N. Wabash Ave., Chicago.

Their salesroom is filled almost to overflowing with good stock.

Seki Bros. & Co. are well supplied with carnations. The call for funeral work has been brisk at their establishment.

FUNERAL WORK KEEPS SUPPLY CLEAN.

Although the supply of stock has increased somewhat over that of the previous week, it is mostly in bulbous varieties such as tulips, daffodils, narcissi and lily of the valley. The carnation supply remains about the same, with the usual "hold back" for a holiday. Roses are a little more plentiful. Funeral work has been the mainstay of trade and has kept the market pretty well cleaned up. Sweet peas, both long and short stem, are in good supply. Lily of the valley, orchids and violets promise to be plentiful for St. Valentine's day and advance orders indicate a good business. Freesias, snapdragons, calendulas, etc., move well.

HEAVY DEMAND FOR ST. VALENTINE'S DAY.

The demand for St. Valentine's day was very heavy this year and stock of all kinds cleaned up completely in almost all lines long before the rush was over. Roses and carnations were in exceptionally heavy demand, especially in the colored varieties, particularly red, which as usual had the call. Orchids cleaned up early at good prices and so did lily of the valley, gardenias, sweet peas and violets. Miscellaneous stock sold surprisingly well and taken all in all the St. Valentine's day demand exceeded all expectations and everything cleaned up early as the writer predicted it would in last week's market report with the expected exception of bulbous stock, which could have brought higher prices but which moved better than anyone really thought it would at that. The shipping trade especially was very heavy and the demand on Monday, February 12, was surprisingly brisk. The local demand was also good and everyone seemed to be pretty well satisfied with the total amount of business done. Stock in general was in good supply but the demand was so heavy that it cleaned up quickly and certain items like red roses and red carnations were scarce as early in the week as Monday. The weather the past week was very cold and the unofficial thermometers registered as low as twelve degrees below zero and around the nothing mark the greater part of the time. Considerable incoming stock was received frozen, especially violets, which put quite a dent in the local supply. The weather is considerably warmer at this writing and it appears as if the cold wave is about ready to depart. Business since the first of the year has been better so far according to the majority of the wholesalers than for the same period during 1916, with the first 14 days in February showing a wonderful increase compared to the same number of days of the same month of last year. Green goods are plentiful enough so that all orders can be filled in full with the exception of southern Asparagus plumosus, which is reaching the market in limited quantities owing to the severe frosts of last week.

NOTES.

Erne & Klingel, who have been engaged in the wholesale commission business in the local market for several years, have dissolved partnership. Fred Klingel withdrawing from the firm and disposing of his interest to Erne & Company, who will receive all bills payable and conduct the business in the future. Mr. Klingel will remain with Erne & Company for several months and is undecided as yet as to just what he will do in the future, but it is very likely that he will take a well-earned rest before stepping into the harness again. Chas. Erne, who has so efficiently managed the business in the past, will continue in this capacity with Erne & Company, which is sufficient guarantee that all their customers will receive hereafter the same consideration that they have in the past. The change in ownership took effect February 1 and from now on all business will be transacted under the new firm name of Erne & Company.

Wiltgen & Freres will be open for business in a few days at their new wholesale cut flower house at 173 North Wabash avenue. They were delayed somewhat in getting things in shape as early as they expected, but everything is well under way now and if nothing unforeseen happens the doors will be open Saturday, February 17, or the following Monday.

CENTRAL 601 and 2846

The wholesale florists located in the Atlas building at the northwest corner of East Randolph street and North Wabash avenue had a pretty close call from being wiped out by fire, Monday morning, February 12, when the store room of the John McIntosh company, on the fourth floor, was almost entirely destroyed. The fire department was on the job early and deserve much credit for the masterly manner in which they handled the fire and stopped the blaze from doing more damage than it really did. While the damage outside of the McIntosh company did not amount to much it looked for a while as if the whole building was doomed. The firms located in the Atlas building are: Zech & Mann, Batavia Greenhouse Co., Weiland & Risch, Chas. W. McKellar, Peter Reinberg, Wietor Bros., O. A. & L. A. Tonner, A. T. Pyfer & Co., Erne & Company, George Reinberg, D. E. Freres, Hoerber Bros., John Kruchten Co., Archie Spencer, M. C. Gunterberg, Sinner Bros., Kyle & Foerster, E. F. Winterson Co., Winterson's Seed Store, Southern California Flower Market and the Atlas Floral Co.

Thos. Heaven of Benton Harbor, Mich., who is a frequent visitor to this market and a member of the Chicago Florists' Club, has invested in a new Ford delivery truck. On the sides are painted the words "Lizzie from Heaven." One of the young fellows in the wholesale market suggested this wording for the back: "If you do not want to buy your flowers from Heaven go to —." Sherman used to spell the word with four letters.

T. M. Sorenson and son, T. C. W. Sorenson, of Marquette, Mich., passed through here this week on their way home from New York. They had intended to sail for Copenhagen, Den-

"Van" of Percy Jones has already caused the trade to sit up and take notice. One large firm is willing to hire him as its advertising manager and another house wrote in to find out what he had to offer. From the amount of business that Percy Jones did for St. Valentine's day no one will question the fact that he is pretty much interested in the wholesaling of cut flowers.

The Batavia Greenhouse Co. will grow American Beauty roses on a larger scale than ever next season, when 30 per cent more plants will be given bench space. CHICAGO

At the Chicago Flower Growers' Association's store business has been exceptionally good since the first of the year with the January sales showing a big increase over the same month of 1916. The February business so far this month, including the St. Valentine's day demand, was surprisingly brisk and away ahead of the same period of last year.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are more than satisfied with their St. Valentine's day business, which was a record-breaker. Both the local and shipping demand were very heavy and everything cleaned up at an early hour. A large quantity of fancy orchids was moved at this house on this occasion and when the rush was over not a single bloom was left.

J. A. Budlong had a fine supply of stock to offer for St. Valentine's day and succeeded in filling all the orders in full up to the last minute notwithstanding that the demand on this occasion was remarkably heavy. A fine supply of Mrs. Chas. Russell and Sunburst roses are attracting the attention of the many buyers here.

Peter Reinberg had a heavy demand for stock for St. Valentine's day from out-of-town points as well as a good city call. Business never was so good on this occasion at this establishment as it was this year and no trouble was experienced in disposing of all the stock there was to offer at an early hour.

John Kruchten says that business during the past week has been so good with the John Kruchten Co. that it resembled a small Christmas. The names of many out-of-town customers who had not been heard from for some time appeared on their books again during that period.

William Duntemann of Bensenville is one grower who is well satisfied with his returns so far this season and has no complaint whatever to make. Judging from the smile that his friend Harry Blewitt is wearing. Blewitt & Prickett, of Des Plaines, are also in his class.

Wietor Bros. cleaned up completely in all lines for St. Valentine's day and are more than pleased with the total sales, which exceeded all expectations. This house is showing a large supply of fancy roses, particularly Ophelia, Sunburst and Killarney.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner are showing a fine supply of tulips and callas in addition to all the other seasonable offerings in flowers. This firm was well pleased with their St. Valentine's day trade, which exceeded all expectations.

The local wholesale florists will hold a banquet at the Hotel Sherman, Thursday evening, February 15, at 6:30 p. m., when it is very likely an organization will be formed.

Allie Zech says that the demand for stock for St. Valentine's day at Zech & Mann's store was the best ever and that the total sales are surprisingly larger than those of 1916.

George Perdikas is still conducting his store on East Van Buren street, which is a branch of his main establishment at 407 South Wabash avenue.

D. E. Freres is handling a larger supply of roses than formerly, which includes many of the newer varieties as well as the old reliable standbys.

Weiland & Risch have a new strain of pussy willows that can be forced in much shorter time than the commoner varieties.

Hoerber Bros. are having a good call for snapdragons, which they are growing in quantity this season.

Samuel Seligman of the American Bulb Co. will make a business trip to Japan in the near future.

S. W. Pike of St. Charles was a visitor at A. L. Vaughan & Co.'s store February 12.

E. C. Pruner and Allan Humason are both back from out-of-town trips.

Wells, Fargo & Co. Express has added a new wagon to its delivery service on the wholesale cut flower market which is built along the lines of a refrigerator car and is absolutely cold proof in every respect. A. W. Hayes, supervisor of wagon service, is aiming to please the florists as much as possible and if the new refrigerator wagon is the success that he is confident it will be, more will be added in the near future, which will save the shippers considerable loss from freezing between the market and the depots in the extreme cold weather and prevent damage by heat in the hot summer months. D. T. Smith, who represents the Fargo company in the wholesale market, is finding that everyone appreciates the efforts his firm is making in regard to perfecting its service.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. had a heavy call for orchids and lily of the valley for St. Valentine's day as well as a brisk demand for all other reasonable stock. Roses cleaned up early and so did carnations, especially in the colored varieties. The supply department

Chicago Florists' Club.

The regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club was held at the Hotel Morrison, February 8, with a large attendance. President Amling was unable to be present on account of his health, and Vice-President Klingsporn occupied the chair in his absence. The feature of this meeting was publicity and advertising, excellent addresses on which were made by Mrs. Ella Grant Wilson, of Cleveland, O., James H. Burdett and Royce P. Eckstorm, local newspapermen and advertising specialists. Chairman Asmus of the good-of-the-club committee has every reason to feel proud of his first effort in providing instructive material for the meetings, and his thoroughly practical knowledge of the needs of the trade should enable him to make all the coming meetings of the present year both interesting and profitable to the members. Mrs. Wilson illustrated her discourse with a lavish display of her magnificent work in the Cleveland newspapers for the trade of that city, some 90 feet of printed matter with appropriate illustrations, newspaper page height, going almost completely around the walls of the room in which the meeting was held. At the close of her address, Mrs. Wilson was presented with a beautiful bouquet of orchids by Manager Waters, of the Poehlmann Bros. Co. supply department. The various addresses will be found elsewhere in this issue.

Duncan E. Robertson was elected to membership, and the following were proposed for membership: George F. Kastelnik, Maywood; Arthur M. Luedtke, Maywood; John Sinner, 158 North Wabash avenue, Chicago; Chas. Nieman, 3027 North Broad street, Philadelphia, Pa.; M. Wright, Rookery building, Chicago; T. E. Waters, 72 East Randolph street, Chicago (re-instatement).

Vice-President Klingsporn called the attention of members to the excellent work eastern florists had done during the past holiday season in improving the transportation and delivery of express packages and urged the local trade to make efforts along the same line.

Chairman Lautenschlager of the posterette committee reported progress, promising a full account of the work of this committee at the next meeting. Mr. Lautenschlager said about 50,000 of the small St. Valentine's day posterettes have been sold and some $,000 of the posters.

Chairman August Poehlmann of the finance committee of the 1915 Grand Floral Festival reported all bills paid and a balance of $80 on hand. It is understood A. Henderson, general chairman of the floral festival, will adjust the distribution of the surplus.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. made an excellent display of orchids including Phalaenopsis Schilleriana and Cattleya Trianae, some sprays of the former being the finest ever seen here.

Resolutions on the deaths of the late William L. Kroeschell and the late Nicholas J. Rupp were presented by Michael Barker and adopted by standing votes.

Pittsburgh, Pa.

SUPPLY FAIRLY PLENTIFUL.

Roses seem to be more plentiful than at any time this year, especially the longer grades. The short and medium stemmed stock clean up well each day. Carnations are also plentiful and move well at $3 and $4 per 100. Sweet peas and lily of the valley are also arriving in good supply and find clean sales daily. Violets do not move well, due to the cold weather, most of them going to the street men. Severe weather with the thermometer at zero and often 10 degrees below, the coldest snap in many years, has been the record for the week and in consequence the retail shops have not been very busy.

CLUB MEETING.

The regular meeting of the florists' club was held in the Fort Pitt hotel, February 8. Primroses, cyclamens, roses, carnations and novelties were featured and some very fine plants were shown by Messrs. Jones and Moore, superintendents of the bureau of parks. Wm. Jones, gardener for Mrs. William Thaw of Sewickley, exhibited a fine cyclamen plant with 72 open blooms. The annual election of officers resulted as follows: Carl Becherer, president; E. C. Reineman, vice-president; T. P. Langhans, treasurer; E. J. McCallum, secretary. Executive committee—P. S. Randolph, C. H. Sample and A. Frishkorn. After remarks by the new officers and the members of the club who were in attendance at the carnation convention at Indianapolis, the meeting adjourned. The next meeting will be held March 6.

Columbus, O.

AFTER-HOLIDAY SHORTAGE FELT.

A scarcity prevails in practically all kinds of stock. The trade is now feeling in its most acute form the after-effects of the big holiday clean-up. Receipts from growers are meager and the quality as a rule is poor. In roses, every variety is short, perhaps the greatest gap between demand and supply being in Killarneys. The cheapest kind of a rose is costing the trade 10 cents a bloom, and from that up to 35 cents. Retail prices range from $2 to $8 per dozen. Carnations are also bringing a good price, with limited cuttings, the consumer paying from $1 to $1.25. Sweet peas are coming in well, and bring from 50 to 75 cents. The dearth of cut flowers is stimulating the demand for bulbous stock, making the supply somewhat below requirements. Jonquils, freesias and tulips are the principal features. Business is good. The social season is still on, and florists are not as yet much affected by the coming of Lent. Funeral work is very heavy. Indications are that the St. Valentine's day trade will be fully equal, if it does not surpass, former years. There has been little effort to boom trade through newspaper advertising, the excuse being given by some of the florists that they would have all the business they could care for without special publicity.

NOTES.

What promises to be a vigorous organization of local florists is now in the formative stage. Initiative was taken by the younger members of the trade in January, who organized under the name of the Columbus Florists' Association. Officers were elected as follows: Albert C. Hottes, professor of floriculture at Ohio State University, president; Walter Stephens, of S. F. Stephens & Son, vice-president; Archie Munk, of the Munk Floral Company, secretary; Walter Engle, of the Munk Floral Company, treasurer, and Frank Hardesty, of the Hardesty Floral Company, sergeant-at-arms. This was designed as a working basis for a body that would embrace the trade generally. Several meetings have been held with this object in view, at the Neil House, and a good lineup of the trade is anticipated. The association will be made permanent, regardless of numbers. The failure of two former efforts along the same lines in times past, while serving to make some of the more conservative florists skeptical, is not accepted as proof that this new movement will not be able to realize the same success as is being enjoyed by florists of other cities. The objects are those of mutual helpfulness and the advancement of the Columbus florist trade as a whole.

The handsome new shop of the Fifth Avenue Floral Company at 120 East Broad street, the management states, is doing a fine business, one that justifies the location chosen. Formal opening will be delayed until about April 1, when the High street store will be consolidated with the new place.

The business of the Landscape Floral Company, which lately went into voluntary bankruptcy as a solution of disagreement between its two owners, has been acquired by J. F. Myers, who will remove it to his plant on Belvidere avenue.

The duties of citizenship, as juror at the county court house, is temporarily claiming the time of Walter Stephens, of S. F. Stephens & Son.

ZERO WEATHER AND STOCK SCARCE.

This city has been in the grip of zero weather for the past two weeks, the lowest temperature being 15 degrees below zero. Business has been slightly affected by this severe spell. Roses are extremely scarce and prices are high. Shawyer is the most prolific rose at present, other varieties being decidedly on the short side. Carnations are more plentiful and the quality is good. Sweet peas are plentiful and are of excellent grade. Bulbous stock is a great help in the present shortage. Easter lilies are also in plentiful supply. The demand for blooming plants this year is unprecedented, and prices are higher than ever before.

NOTES.

F. J. Knecht & Co. experienced an unlooked for occurrence on the night of February 5. One of their two large boilers at the greenhouses on Rudisell boulevard burnt out, resulting in an explosion. The second boiler was not affected and a temperature of 55 degrees was kept up, and the stock saved from freezing until an emergency boiler could be installed.

The Flick Floral Co. had the decorations for the 47 tables at the Quest Club annual banquet at the Anthony hotel, February 9. Shawyer roses and spring flowers were used on the tables and southern smilax decorating the dining room.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are cutting a fine lot of Cattleya Trianae, oncidium and Schroederiae orchids.

MARKET IN GOOD CONDITION.

The market during the past week was in good condition and stock brought satisfactory prices. The supply was not too large—just enough to clean up. American Beauties were in good supply and all grades could be had at reasonable figures. It was hard to dispose of same at prices satisfactory to the grower but this is the old story on the local market. They moved out at prices varying from $6 to $25 per 100—only a few brought $4 and $5 per dozen. Other roses, such as Ophelia, Killarney and Ward, sold freely at six to 12½ cents. Red varieties cleaned up fairly well and brought from five to eight cents. Russets are still scarce and hard to get. Those coming to the market are of very poor quality but clean up at 10 and 15 cents. Carnations show a downward tendency. The best can be bought for $4. Matchless, Enchantress and Waid are holding their place, and there never are too many. Lilies are very scarce and are priced at 12½ cents; callas from 10 to 15 cents. The shipments of rubrum are large and the price is low. The best bring $8 per 100. Lily of the valley is plentiful and sells fairly well at six cents per spike for the best and four cents for seconds. The orchid supply is evidently sufficient for all requirements and 50 cents each seems to be the tax for cattleyas. Violets are down to $3 per 1000 for good and selected brought $4. Sweet peas are improving and are more abundant. The best long-stemmed Spencers are quoted at $1.50 per 100 and the lowest grade of common, 40 cents. Tulips and jonquils are in ample supply and $3 per 100 is now the best price. Freesia Purity is plentiful and it seems as if everybody has grown this popular spring flower. Greens clean up well but a shortage of plumosus is noticed.

CLUB MEETING.

The florists' club held a well attended meeting at Geo. H. Angermueller's wholesale house. The annual exhibition of carnations was held on this day during the meeting. The president, Jules Bourdet, has appointed E. W. Geny, K. Beyer and F. J. Fillmore as judges, and they awarded the honorable mention for the best stock as follows: Vase of Pink Sensation, M. S. Wittmer Floral Co., Highland; vase of Enchantress, W. A. Rowe, Kirkwood; vase of White Enchantress, W. A. Rowe; vase of Pocahontas (red), A. Kittenman; vase of Washington, W. A. Rowe; vase of snapdragons, G. M. Thost, De Soto, Mo.; vase of dark pink snapdragons, W. A. Rowe; vase of calendulas, W. A. Rowe; new seedling violets, Joseph Hauser; four vases of sweet peas—O. C. May, A. F. Kopp, A. Faerber, W. Eckelmann; two vases of jonquils—O. C. May and W. A. Rowe. After the show and meeting the members accepted the reports of the St. Louis Flower Show Association and enjoyed a good lunch.

NOTES.

The Association of Gardeners has been organized with the following officers: L. P. Jenson, president; Hugo Sharp, of the board of education, secretary; Ernest Streble, treasurer. A fall flower show is under consideration.

W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. has some very fine carnations and roses. W. C. Smith reports business good and the prices very satisfactory to growers.

There are indications that there will be plenty of stock for St. Valentine's day and the retailers are predicting a good business.

Al Gumz, of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., has some very fine spring flowers and offers them at very reasonable prices.

The west end retailers are all preparing for the Valentine rush. Their windows are very attractive.

A very fine display of all grades of American Beauties can be seen daily at H. G. Berning's.

HEAVY CALL FOR FUNERAL WORK.

Because of zero weather, transient trade has fallen off considerably, but funeral work goes on apace. There is a good demand for stock for this purpose, but the supply of carnations has increased sufficiently to bring down the price somewhat. Daffodils, jonquils and tulips are plentiful, as are poeticus and Paper White narcissi. Roses are still scarce and small in size. Sweet peas, violets, lily of the valley and orchids are in great demand. Harris and calla lilies are not so plentiful at this writing. Asparagus sprays are very scarce, due to southern frosts.

NOTES.

Edwin C. Kaelher arranged a novel St. Valentine's day window with a kewpie for a central figure holding a colonial bouquet. In one hand were held ribbons which led to splendidly filled baskets and heart-shaped boxes.

Salter Bros. has a pleasing window of yellow, white and blue. Two tall pedestals supported large polypodiums. At the side a large red heart supported white poppies out of which miniature fairies were seen emerging.

The Rosery Flower Shop, 137 South Clinton avenue, of which Paul Campus is proprietor, opened February 10. Miss Rose Brown is now one of the staff here. The store is a very attractive one and there is an excellent display of palms, flowering plants and cut blooms. The trade wishes him success in his new venture.

Geo. H. Harding of Barnard's Crossing has a house filled with Easter Greeting pelargoniums which will soon be ready for market. He is also selling carnations.

LITTLE CHANGE IN MARKET CONDITIONS.

The market this week has been rather quiet, although the prices were not changed to a great extent from the week previous. Roses are going a little better, at figures ranging from $4 per 100 upward. Carnations are more plentiful, owing to the quiet market, and consequently have fallen off a little in price, $3 per 100 being about the limit on average flowers. White and pink varieties sell best, the valentine trade making scarcely any perceptible difference in the trading. Violets are in good supply and have been selling fairly well this week, 75 cents per 100 being the average price. Bulbous stock moves rather slowly, as there is a slight oversupply. Golden Spur sell at $2 per 100 and tulips at from $1 to $5. Paper Whites are going off and the demand seems to decrease with the supply, as they sell at practically the same figures as before. Sprengeri and plumosus are very scarce and practically out of the market as a dependable supply, all that is being cut going to regular trade. The other novelties of the market seem to remain about the same as usual, both in supply and demand, the only exception being marguerites, which have slightly fallen off.

NOTES.

The Gardeners and Florists' Club of Boston held its annual banquet at Horticultural hall Wednesday, February 7. There was an attendance of over 200 members and friends to enjoy the festivities. Richard Saltenstall, president of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, was the honored guest, and after the banquet gave a very fine talk on the prospects of the society and the possibilities which could be derived from a closer relationship between the various branches of the horticultural art if they worked together in common interest for the uplift of horticulture. A very enjoyable entertainment was given which was followed by dancing.

A visit to S. J. Goddard's establishment, at Framingham, found the range in a remarkable condition. Every flower on the place showed the untiring efforts to have everything the best possible quality. The carnations were far above the average run, the new seedling from Dorner's looming up especially. Laddie, Rosalia, Nancy, Merry Christmas and several seedlings, which are still under number, showed up as being as near to perfection in present-day carnation culture as is possible.

Arnold & Fisher, of Woburn, are cutting a very fine lot of Christmas Pink sweet peas. This firm has had a very fine grade of stock ever since they started business this summer. They now have two houses, 40x300 feet, and expect to make extensive additions this coming season.

One of the finest carnations seen in the markets is the new variety, Albert Roper, grown by the Roper estate at Tewksbury. The flowers cut seem to be practically an improved Ward, a color which always has been the most popular of the carnations. F. L. W.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—The Humboldt Flower Shop, on Genesee street, has discontinued business.

STE. ANNE DE BELLEVUE, QUE. — A free short course in suburban gardening was held at MacDonald College, January 29-February 1. The course under the direction of the horticultural staff was a very practical one, the subjects dealing largely with the growing of flowers and vegetables. A short course in cereal husbandry was held February 13-16.

ARCTIC WEATHER BUT NO DAMAGE.

This city has been visited during the past week with perfect arctic weather and has been held in the grip of snow and ice. Local growers have had to renew their energies and be very vigilant to prevent any loss, but in the main have been successful, but the coal bins were hard hit and the supply melted like snow before the summer sun. As a result of all this cold and dull, cloudy weather, stock is scarce. Trade has been good, especially funeral work, of which there has been a great abundance. This has enabled the trade to manage to fill orders with the supply as it came in, as many of the smaller flowers can be worked in and handsome designs made. The approach of St. Valentine's day called for preparedness along all lines. Indications point to a limited supply of carnations, sweet peas, orchids and bulbous stock, with home-grown violets scarce, although there may be shipments from the outside and the price will be high. The cold weather has cut the violet crop short for the present. Good plants such as cyclamens, azaleas, hyacinths, narcissi and bulbous stock will be on sale and these will help meet the St. Valentine's demand. Fancy boxes and baskets will also be featured.

NOTES.

The Joy Floral Co. passed through the cold spell very well but it took lots of coal and close attention. High winds blew out some glass but serious danger was averted. The American Beauty crop is off, but they will be able to supply both Killarneys, Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty, a few Russell and a good supply of all other flowers for their trade. Many excellent orders have been booked and a big business in floral valentines is anticipated.

There are several smaller concerns coming into this market with both plants and cut flowers, among them the following: Corbett, on Stainback avenue; Wayne, on the same thoroughfare; Corlette, Fourteenth avenue and Holle street, and Trichtler, West Lawn drive, all of whom have from three to five houses and a growing trade.

Leon Geny, of Geny Bros., is back at the store after a severe attack of grippe. The greenhouses escaped damage in the recent freeze and their St. Valentine's day supply is excellent. They will have several thousand violets in addition to lilies, roses, carnations, plenty of sweet peas and a supply of jonquils. In addition to the usual plant supply, they will have freesias.

McIntyre Bros. went through the frigid weather without mishap and their St. Valentine's day supply is in fine condition. They are now cutting 1,000 nice sweet peas daily, for which they are receiving $2 per 100.

Milwaukee.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND ABOUT EQUAL.

Market conditions for the past week were about the same as reported in our last issue—plenty of funeral work, and with cold weather predominating, the supply about equaled the demand. Prospects are for a good supply of sweet peas, violets and other stocks in that line suitable for St. Valentine's day. Big efforts by means of advertising have been made by the local craft and we hope their work will bring the results.

NOTES.

At the postponed club meeting, held February 8, our local delegation to the Indianapolis carnation convention made a full report which proved that they had a good time and by the notes taken the meeting also proved to be quite instructive. Many members present were agreeably surprised to hear of Edna, the new red seedling carnation of Nic Zweifel, which from reports made quite a hit with prominent carnation growers at the convention. The local press made quite a splurge of it, February 8. How did Nic keep it under his hat so long?

March 1 will be carnation night at the local florist club meeting. Local growers, as well as outside growers, are requested to make an exhibit. This will be an ideal chance to show novelties, seedlings and other stock.

The press committee of the florists' club ran a large adv. in all Sunday papers February 11 consisting of a large heart with the wording, "Let Flowers be your valentine. February 14." Simple yet effective.

Our wholesalers are more than pleased that the embargo on all perishable goods, placed by the express companies, was of only short duration. It certainly had its bad effects while it lasted.

We forgot to mention in last week's report that Alfred Sylvester, of Otto Sylvester & Sons, Oconomowoc, Wis., joined the Milwaukee party to the annual carnation convention.

COLD WEATHER AFFECTS LOCAL DEMAND.

Extremely cold weather during the past week has curtailed the local trade somewhat, although the out-of-town demand has been good. Roses of all varieties, especially American Beauty, were scarce, and the supply in all of the wholesale houses cleaned up Saturday. Carnations were more plentiful and the better grades moved well. Sweet peas are arriving quite plentifully, the call being for the Spencer varieties with little demand for stock of inferior quality. Gardenias, which are seen in goodly numbers, move slowly. Liliun speciosum and L. rubrum meet with a fair call. The stock of lily of the valley is excellent and it goes out fairly well. Quality freesias find ready sale, as do the better grades of tulips, although the poor stock with short stems sells slowly. Daffodils are plentiful. Orchids are a short item. The supply of violets is increasing with a fair call. There are good receipts of mignonette, calendulas, and lilac, both white and lavender, are in good supply. Greens are not overplentiful, plumosus especially being short.

NOTES.

The executive committee of the American Rose Society met at the Bellevue-Stratford hotel, February 8, when matters pertaining to the national rose festival were taken up. Among those present from out of town were Robert Pyle, J. Horace McFarland, L. J. Reuter, H. O. May and Benjamin Hammond.

Henry F. Michell Co., Inc., are booking fine orders for perennials for spring shipments. H. F. Michell and wife are at Palm Beach, Fla.

Paul Berkowitz, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., will celebrate his sixtieth birthday anniversary February 28.

INCREASED SUPPLY WEAKENS PRICES.

We will not say that the bottom has dropped out of the market, but there is certainly "a leak." The past week opened with a snowstorm, which upset business for that day and conditions did not improve during succeeding days. Notwithstanding much dark weather, there has been a great increase in the supply of stock, with falling prices. American Beauties, which are not plentiful, have held up fairly well, but there has been a decline in tea roses. In carnations, tulips, narcissi, freesias and sweet peas, the drop in prices has been more noteworthy. At this writing, the bulk of the carnations are selling at from $2.50 to $4 per 100; probably $3 per 100 is a fair average. There are now excellent tulips on the market, but too many of them. Possibly a few that are extra fine bring 75 cents per dozen, but from 50 cents down to 4 and 5 dozen for $1 is what most of the stock is going for. About the same can be said of the yellow narcissi. Early in the winter, the demand for freesias was good, but has now grown stale. The short and inferior grades of sweet peas are practically a nuisance and even the best stock is hard to move. There is always a demand for lilies and lily of the valley, but there is more than enough on the market to supply it. Excellent stock of L. Formosum is on the market, the asking price for which is 12 to 15 cents per flower, but they move slowly. The L. longiflorum are slow at eight cents and 10 cents. Many of the violets are now used in casket covers and other forms of funeral work, such stock being very cheap. The special violets do not go above 50 cents per 100. In orchids and gardenias there is little change.

NOTES.

Miss Carroll Macy, who for a number of years conducted the retail store at 903 Seventh avenue, yet known as the "Onaway Florist," has of late years been raising and exhibiting cats. Word has just been received that Champion King Winter, her famous Persian cat, had died at her cat farm at Ash Point, Me. This cat had won many championships and Miss Macy is quoted as saying that she recently refused $4,000 for the animal.—Requiescat in pace.

Eugene Dailedouze, who, with Mrs. Dailedouze, attended the carnation convention and exhibition at Indianapolis, Ind., was well pleased with the various features. On February 8 he received a letter from his brothers, Paul and Henry, who are now in Honolulu. They are enjoying themselves immensely and intend to remain there another month. They report many visitors on that delightful isle of the Pacific.

At the Hession range, Flatbush, Brooklyn, we have recently noticed a very fine crop of carnations and also an immense stock of young plants for spring planting, all in the finest condition. This is the greatest range devoted almost exclusively to carnations within the limits of Greater New York, and is well worth a visit. The stock is sold by M. C. Ford, 121 West 28th street.

Hon. Phillip Breitmeyer and Mrs. Breitmeyer, of Detroit, Mich., spent several days in this city the past week. They arrived from Cuba, February 12, on the steamer Morro Castle, having spent about a month in that sunny clime, and greatly enjoyed the visit. They called on a number of old friends while in this city.

The rose range of A. J. Ayres, Nursery Hill, N. J., who has been shipping to Badgley & Bishop of this city, was totally destroyed by fire on the evening of February 3. The fire started in the boiler room and quickly spread to the houses, which comprised about 9,000 square feet.

At the Dards store, Madison avenue and 44th street, we recently noticed neat and clever St. Valentine's day boxes. This store is noted for fine stock and artistic arrangement. Manager Perry advises us that business has been good.

Frank Nielsen has resigned his position with Harry Gessner in the Hotel Imperial store, Broadway and 31st street, and has gone into business for himself at 17 East 28th street, the store recently conducted by Frank Lorraine.

The store of John S. Nicholas is one of the show places of the Grand Central station. In addition to a great display of fruit and flowers, he carries seeds, bulbs and other requisites of a good seed store.

As receptacles for cut flowers, A. T. Bunyard, 413 Madison avenue, has a stock of miniature cradles which are handsomely decorated, and have a metal container for water or wet moss.

At the florists' club meeting, Joseph S. Fenrich made a noteworthy address on parliamentary practice. Joe is a good florist, a good bowler, and a parliamentarian of the old school.

We have recently noticed in the rooms of Hentz & Nash, Inc., in the New York Cut Flower Co., fine Spencer sweet peas, grown by O. C. Kreft, Tenafly, N. J.

Thomas F. Galvin, Inc., have their new store fitted up and are open for business. While not large, it is handsomely decorated and conveniently furnished.

Wadley & Smythe, Fifth avenue and 42nd street, sent a number of men to Boston on February 10 to arrange a fine wedding decoration. A. F. F.

Cincinnati.

SHORTAGE OF SUPPLY FELT.

The supply of stock in the market is still insufficient to take care of all demands upon it. For St. Valentine's day sweet peas and violets are in good supply, while fair quantities of lily of the valley and orchids are available. The cut of red roses and red carnations, however, is very limited. Other roses, too, are in a rather short supply. More carnations could be used were they available. Easter lily receipts are about sufficient for the present heavy demands upon them. The receipts of bulbous stock has increased very considerably. Daffodils are plentiful, while tulips and Dutch hyacinths now come into the market in fair quantities. Freesias and narcissi may also be had. Limited amounts of callas and rubrum lilies are available. Other offerings include snapdragons, forget-me-nots and primroses.

NOTES.

Miss Christine Bersmeyer of C. E. Critchell's establishment, was confined to her home last week with the grippe.

E. G. Gillett and wife are visiting C. J. Olmer and wife at West Palm Beach, Fla.

C. E. Critchell has been getting in some excellent hyacinths.

A very good looking shade of Light Green, slightly lighter weight quality than the Palm Green, but a very good box for local deliveries and a bargain at the prices offered.

Holyoke and Northampton Club.

The regular meeting of the Holyoke and Northampton Florists and Gardeners' Club was held at Geo. H. Sinclair & Son's establishment, Holyoke, Mass., February 6, President George Strugnell in the chair. E. J. Canning, who had just returned from the convention of the New England Nurserymen's Association, aroused keen interest by an instructive talk on the proposed bill to entirely prohibit plant importations. It was felt that such a drastic measure if allowed to pass would seriously affect the business of florists and nurserymen, without accomplishing the supposed purpose of the bill.

President Strugnell exhibited a specimen cyclamen which was loudly praised. It was a perfectly developed plant in an 8-inch pot with over 80 fully developed flowers, and well deserved the certificate awarded. G. H. Sinclair had a very nice display of carnations, sweet peas, snapdragons, mignonette and forget-me-nots. D. J. Gallivan exhibited a vase of Carnation Gorgeous.

DUTCH firms have recently instructed their travelers to book no orders for immediate shipment.

KEARNEY, NEB.—H. C. Green proprietor of the Green Seed & Plant Co. of this city, died February 5.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade Feb. 14 were as follows: Timothy, $4.00 to $5.50 per 100 pounds.

RAIN is now needed by California seed growers. frost and dry weather having prevailed the greater part of the winter.

GERMAN grown lily of the valley is reported to have been confiscated by the English authorities, while enroute from Denmark to New York.

VISITED CHICAGO: J. W. Ratekin, of Ratekin's Seed House, Shenandoah, Ia.; R. J. Bowen, representing J. Bolgiano & Son, Baltimore, Md.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—The Louisville Seed Co. has discontinued its mail order department and future sales will be confined to retailers and wholesalers only.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—A. J. Brown, of the A. J. Brown Seed Co., has returned from the Cleveland Canners' convention and reports good business in his specialties.

SIoux CITY, IA.—J. S. Michael, of the Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co., who has just returned from an extended contracting trip, reports he has had one of the best seasons on record.

THE embargo on Dutch steamer sailings is likely to leave good-sized lots of gladiolus bulbs and like spring stocks, sold for March delivery here, high and dry in Holland warehouses.

IRREGULARITIES in the delivery of Dutch bulb orders placed with growers and dealers abroad have caused the park authorities at Los Angeles, Calif., to change their methods and place orders only with domestic firms.

PEAS held at $7 during the canners' convention at Milwaukee, Wis., in mid-November, sold for $6 at the Cleveland, O., canners' meeting held last week, probably due in some measure to the changed conditions with regard to ocean freights.

JAMES KELWAY, the well known seedsman of Langport, Eng., in a recent letter to the London Times, says that after the harvest of 1917 many kinds of agricultural and vegetable seeds will be scarce and calls attention to the opportunity afforded England and America to extend their seed growing interests.

Onion Sets at Chicago.

Onion sets are stiff in price. The southwest is paying $2.95 per bushel of 32 pounds for reds and yellows over 1½-inch screen in carlots. The same stock over one inch square screen is worth $3.25 in carlots. Whites are 50 cents higher, browns and yellows a little less than reds. On less than carlots jobbers are asking $3.75 to $4 per bushel for choice stock through one-inch square mesh.

French Bulbs.

Toulon, January 20.—It is at this time impossible to make future prices on narcissus bulbs. They will certainly be dearer than last year and packing cases will be higher. The crop will be deficient again this year because of the lack of skilled labor and the high price demanded by such labor as is available. Such labor costs prohibit the cultivation of narcissus bulbs with any profit.

New Seed Packet Ruling.

Howard M. Earl, of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and member of the executive committee of the American Seed Trade Association, obtained a new ruling in seed packets from the Third Assistant Postmaster General's office, December 20, 1916, as follows:

Seeds put up in opaque sealed envelopes, properly labeled, would appear to constitute proprietary articles of merchandise and be mailable at fourth-class rates, as set forth in Section 469, paragraph five, instead of requiring transparent envelopes (paragraph four).

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

H. W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., President; H. F. Thompson, Arlington, Mass., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids, Mich., Treasurer.

Next annual convention will be held at Springfield, Mass., in 1917.

INVESTIGATIONS of Sclerotinia blight, a serious disease of snap beans, is covered in Bulletin 20, issued by the Virginia truck experiment station, Norfolk.

THE potato tuber moth, which works serious injury to stored potatoes in mild, dry climates, is the subject of Professional Paper No. 427, published by the Bureau of Entomology of the United States department of agriculture.

THE West Virginia truck experiment station, Norfolk, has issued Bulletin 19, entitled, "Sweet Potato Culture," showing how the value of the crop can be enhanced by modern storage houses, better packing methods and closer attention to grading.

Onion Condition and Acreage.

Reports from correspondents to the United States bureau of crop estimates indicate that condition of Bermuda onions in Texas February 1, 1917, was 87 per cent as compared with the corresponding date in 1916. The condition January 15, 1917, was 89 per cent. In 1916, shipments amounted to 4,903 cars. The average yield was about 225 crates per acre.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—Mushrooms, home grown, 40 to 55 cents per pound; lettuce, small cases, 17½ to 20 cents; radishes, 35 to 50 cents, dozen bunches; celery, 75 cents to $1.50; open crate; tomatoes, six baskets, $3.25; cucumbers, per 2 dozen box, $2.25.

New York, Feb. 13.—Celery, per crate, $4.00 to $5.00; cucumbers, 50 cents to $1.75 per dozen; mushrooms, $1.00 to $1.90 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, per lb., 10 to 20 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2.50 to $4.00; lettuce, per strap, 25 cents to $1.00.

British Columbia Potatoes in United States

British Columbia potatoes were sold for the first time in New York, Missouri, Kansas, Minnesota, California, Washington and other states during 1916. The prices from grower to consumer for a car of potatoes containing about 450 sacks (22½ tons) ranged as follows: Price paid farmers in British Columbia, $27.50 per ton; general price to brokers at Missouri River points, $30 per ton; freight, $29.25; refrigeration, $7.50; consular invoice, $2.50; duty, $67.50; clearing, $5; price laid down at destination, $1,050; broker's price to wholesaler (15 per cent profit), $1,207.50; wholesaler's price to retailer (15 per cent profit), $1,388.60. The retailer sells to the consumer at a profit of 15 to 25 per cent, making the net cost between $3.55 and $3.85 per sack to the consumer.

The export movement to the United States declined about the beginning of December, 1916, for several reasons. The easier trend of outside markets, difficulty in securing cars, the reluctance of farmers to sell at prices compatible with outside market quotations, and the difficulty in getting a sufficient quantity which would pass the quarantine inspection of the provincial agricultural department were among the causes.

The annual report for the period ending December 31, 1916, when issued, will show the quantity of potatoes exported to the United States.

SISTERSVILLE, WEST, VA.—E. Huston & Co. report a very satisfactory business with a good demand for carnations and sweet peas, both of which are first-class. Peter J. Hughes, formerly of South Orange, N. J., is now in charge of this firm's range.

Potato Prices at New York.

TOMATO SEED FOR YOUR 1917 CROP

You will get an enormous crop of Tomatoes from Bolgiano's Tomato Seed this year. Our seed was saved from one of the largest crops we have ever had, due to being favored by weather conditions. The vines were loaded with large, solid, red fruit. We know positively by planting seed from this "Big Crop" your yield will be much larger than if you had bought seed grown where the weather conditions were not favorable.

American Association of Nurserymen.

CHICAGO.—Benj. E. Gage, connected with the Peterson Nursery for the past 15 years, has opened offices as a landscape advisor at 30 North La Salle street.

A RECENT study of the navel orange in its native home in Brazil has been made by the United States department of agriculture and the result of these investigations have been published in Bulletin 445. In this bulletin Brazilian and California navel varieties are compared.

Ontario Fruit Growers' Ass'n.

The sessions of the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association, held at Toronto, February 10, were very interesting, the subject of raising strawberries receiving special attention. The stamping of the growers' names on all packages of berries was strongly advocated. The association asks that the railroad embargo on spraying and other apparatus coming from the United States be lifted and a petition to this effect will be addressed to the minister of agriculture at Ottawa and also to the railway board. Another resolution also passed urged the government to appoint an official to act for the dominion in similar work to that now being done by Geo. McIntosh, provincial transportation officer. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: F. A. Shepherd, St. Catharines, president; W. R. Garrison, Oshawa, vice-president; Percy W. Hodgetts, department of agriculture, secretary-treasurer.

Kenyon College Arboretum.

Kenyon College is located at Gambier, Knox county, Ohio, 50 miles north of Columbus, on one of the finest natural college sites in the entire country. This site consists of 335 acres of land laying on a beautiful natural plateau which slopes on three sides to the highly picturesque valley of the Kokosing river. Much of the area is covered by natural woodland, in the midst of which lie the charming sylvan parks occupied by Kenyon College and its auxiliary institutions. Favorable soil conditions, central location and permanence are factors which make this point one of the finest imaginable prospects for developing an extensive arboretum.

For the purpose of renewing Kenyon Forest, the Ohio experiment station's forestry department established a nursery on the college lands in the spring of 1911. After two years a good supply of young trees was available for transplanting and these were located along margins of the parks and in openings in the native forest. Each succeeding spring similar plantings have been made, with the result that since the inception of the movement groups of all the finer oaks, maples, lindens, sycamores, beeches, birches, magnolias, tulip tree, liquidambar, flowering dogwood, flowering crabs, service, red bud, sourwood and many of the choicest coniferous species have been very successfully established on various portions of Gambier hill. Under exceptionally favorable conditions afforded the growth so far has been eminently satisfactory. Spacious lawns of velvet, superh groves of ancient oak and the presence of classic gothic buildings combine to produce at Gambier landscape pictures which for idyllic, pastoral beauty are probably unequalled on the grounds of any college or university in America.—W. Emerson Bontrager, Ohio experiment station, Wooster, O.

Concord Grape's Age.

Some things seem to have existed from the beginning of time, simply because we have always been accustomed to seeing them. One of these is the Concord grape. This grape is probably more largely grown in America than any other variety, though its predominance is of comparatively recent date. The oldest Concord grape vine in existence is much younger than many persons now living. It is, in fact, less than 70 years old. The Catawba grape is nearly 50 years older, but it never attained to the Concord's popularity. The grape, however, is not an isolated case. When we begin to inquire into the history of almost any of our varieties of fruit, we find that all are of comparatively recent origin. The varieties in cultivation 100 years ago were seldom up to the standards we hold at present. Probably the fruits of another generation will in their turn excel those which we regard so highly.—American Botanist.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Azaleas.

The azaleas for spring flowering and Easter will soon need attention. If they have been in cold pits they should be brought into cool houses, and those that have been kept in cool houses will need spacing out and a careful going over. March and April being nearer their natural time of blooming than those brought into flower early in the winter, the plants will not have to be forced as hard and are much better brought along in a cooler temperature. The plants, however, that bloom later will require more attention, especially in regard to pinching out the soft growths that start around the cluster of buds. This should be done as early as possible and with great care, so as not to injure or break the buds. These soft growths grow very rapidly at this time and if they attain any length quickly draw the nourishment from the stem and blast the buds, so it will require constant attention to keep them pinched off. They should be looked over at least once a week and all young shoots removed. Give the plants plenty of room so as to allow a good circulation of air, that the plants can dry off after syringing. These plants are often crowded together as closely as possible, but this invariably results in the loss of much foliage and the plant grows out of shape.

What to do with the plants that have flowered is often a question. Many growers assert that a better and earlier plant can be produced the second year than can be bought abroad and imported, but to do this the plant must be given good culture and not placed in some out-of-the-way corner where it suffers for lack of air, light and water. Whatever trimming into shape the plant requires should be done now, and the plant given an opportunity to start a new growth. As early as it is safe from all frosts the plants can be plunged outside in a frame and during the summer a mulch should be spread over the soil to prevent too much evaporation. Frequent syringings may be required during hot weather to keep down red spider, these plants being quickly infested with these insects in certain localities and they quickly ruin the foliage. Like all hard-wooded stock, be sure they do not get dry. They do not show it as quickly as the soft-wooded plants and often when it is seen it is too late to remedy the injury done.

Dahlias.

The forcing of early dahlias has been practiced successfully by growers the last few years, and roots started at this time will produce flowers for Memorial day and during June. A good deep bench, in a house not too warm, should be selected, and while the plants are great feeders in the open ground, it is better not to have the soil too rich in the houses, for the plants grow very tall inside, and with a rich soil make a strong, rampant growth, which will not bloom as early. They can be fed when the buds begin to form by giving them a mulch of half-decayed manure, which will materially assist the flowering and also provide a covering that will prevent evaporation. They will require but little attention except that long, strong stakes will be necessary to keep the plants growing erect, to which they should be firmly tied, and then disbudded to produce the better blooms. Any varieties of which it is desired to increase the stock can be planted in the house and the young growths made into cuttings, which root easily at this time.

Cannas.

One of the most decorative beds for summer, especially if it is of large size, is a bed of blooming cannas, for they are very showy and will bloom throughout the summer until frost cuts them down, and the varieties have been greatly improved during the last decade. To make the best showing the plants should be started early enough to have good, strong stock at budding-out time in May and June. The plants should be started by March 1 and now is the time to procure stock of varieties of which the grower is short or which he has not on hand. The clumps when removed from the winter storage should have all the old soil shaken off, the dried up stalk and roots cut away. They are then cut up into small pieces, and if the stock is plentiful two or three eyes can be left to each piece, but where stock is short they are cut up to single eyes, although with single eyes many weak plants will be produced. Often the clumps have started into growth and where this has happened the eyes should be sorted, those already started being planted together and the dormant eyes by themselves. Have boxes all ready and place an inch of soil on the bottom and then place the divisions on this closely together and cover with light, sifted soil and then water thoroughly. Keep the varieties separate and properly labeled, each box to contain but one variety and the name plainly marked on the box, for labels are often lost or misplaced. Place the boxes in a warm location—where hot water heating is used they can be placed on the return pipes. In two or three weeks the plants will have made sufficient roots to be placed in 3½ or 4-inch pots, when they can be grown on in a house with a temperature of 50° to 60°. In planting cannas outside it should always be remembered that they are very tender and should not be set out until all danger of late frost is past.

Marguerites.

As the warm days of spring approach the marguerite plants will bloom profusely and those in pots will have, to a great extent, exhausted the plant food in the soil, so to keep up the size of the flower and length of stem watering with liquid manure will be necessary. Liquid cow manure can be safely used in frequent waterings with no danger of any injury if the plants are in a healthy condition. The flowers should be cut daily and placed in water; they will keep much longer than if allowed to remain on the plants, where they quickly fade if not picked when the warm spring days come on. This should be prevented, for it not only gives the plant an untidy appearance but takes the strength of the plants and the following flowers are often much shorter in stem. A few well bloomed plants are very decorative at Easter, especially in churches, where they make a splendid showing. Propagation for next year's stock should now be carried on; the cuttings root easily and there are plenty to be obtained at this time. As soon as rooted they should be grown on in good soil, and to secure the best results another year given the best of culture.

Early Annuals.

During the warm days of June the carnations deteriorate very rapidly and there is often a great need for some flower to take their place, and an early bench of asters is a great boon at such a time, especially for those who have a good call for funeral work. Seed planted during February and grown in pots or flats until after Easter can be then transplanted to the benches in which the Easter crops are grown and they will be in bloom at the time when most desired. A good strain of early flowering varieties, either Comet or Victoria, should be selected and with good care a paying crop is assured. A sowing of candytuft by March 1 will also produce plants that can be benched after Easter in the same manner and a good cut for Memorial day he had. The strains of White Giant candytuft now offered make splendid spikes for the filling in of sprays at that great flower day. There are many annuals that can be grown for early spring blooming that are greatly appreciated by the trade, among which might be mentioned calendulas, nasturtiums, scabiosa, sweet sultans and bachelor's buttons.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.

St. Patrick's Day.

While St. Patrick's day is not very remunerative to the retail florist, yet it offers an opportunity for a feature display that, if well planned and arranged with the various novelties of the day, has a decorative and advertising value in calling attention to the store that is worth far more than its costs.

The shamrock is the essential feature—real genuine shamrock—and there are at least four or five kinds of clover that are each called the "real thing." The shamrock of "Old Ireland" is the small-leaved clover of America, and that is all there is to it. It is raised by some growers in large quantities. One department store in Philadelphia presents every buyer of "Paddy's day" week with a plant of the shamrock in a two-inch rose pot, giving away over 60,000 of these, which are grown for them by contract.

Some florists grow plants cool in one-inch pots and find a ready sale for this miniature size. Pans the shape of the shamrock leaf are filled with the growing plants, and when decorated with crepe paper and ribbons are very attractive. Paddy's stovepipe hats, hods and wheelbarrows are also filled with the growing stock and found quite salable. An Irish harp, cut out of wood with a scroll saw, nailed to a block base with a band of birch bark, which provides space to be filled with shamrock, is then gilded and strung with silver cord. This is a very finished and good selling novelty.

One of the most popular arrangements is made with fair-sized "murphies." These are scooped out sufficiently to hold a plant, soil and all, in or out of the pot as there is room, but the pot should be pushed down so as to be concealed. When finished and tied with a green ribbon, they will readily bring from 50 cents to 75 cents each. Some of the trade have made quite a feature of these decorated potatoes the past few years, having a special box in which they can be safely sent by mail. Clay pipes, the bowl filled with shamrocks and a green bow on the handle, are quite taking.

All these novelties should be gotten ready and displayed in a well arranged window at least a week before the 17th; in fact, to exhibit a few things of this kind for two weeks before, with a green shamrock-shaped card with the date, March 17, in white letters, or a white card with a green border, the date in green letters, is sure to attract attention.

The "greened" carnations and other flowers have become, we suppose, inseparably connected with the day, but with their green smear they are a nuisance and never satisfactory. In the first place carnations are generally kept on the plants so long that they promptly go to sleep after being "dosed." When sufficiently colored they should be at once removed from the dye, thoroughly washed and kept in clear water.

The day is celebrated by many more or less elaborate dinners, at which the decorations are in keeping with the celebration. Green chiffon bands, tufted at the corners and pinned to the cloth just inside the plate line, are effective. Shamrock pans, nicely decorated with ribbon, make a good decoration of the center space. A vase or two of greened carnations, with asparagus sprays, help in the color scheme. Greened carnation corsages would ruin a dress, but they can be made of Pink Killarney roses and a pot or two of shamrocks, with the soil washed from the roots, worked in with them, tied with a green ribbon and a small silk Irish flag, and they have a real Paddy's day look.

Every pot of shamrock that is sold individually should have a green crepe paper cover, tied on with green ribbon or tape. Such decoration costs but a trifle and adds much to the appearance of the plant. For the decoration of the window a green standing harp, made of leucothoe leaves, each pinned on separately to present a neat outline, and illuminated with small green electric lights, will make an attractive feature. The Poehlmann Brothers Co., of Chicago, offer this season a large harp four feet in height as a window piece. This is wrapped with green frieze and has chenille strings. It is a distinct reminder of Paddy's day.

Cleveland Flower Shops.

Local florists have the retailing of both flowers and plants down to a science in this large Ohio city. The stores are up-to-date in every particular, equipped with all the most modern fixtures, display tables, cases for bric-a-brac, refrigerators, etc. The show windows are always attractively decorated, particularly on floral holidays, when one store vies with another in original and novel arrangements. The J. M. Gasser Co., Smith & Fotters Co., Jones-Russell Co., and C. W. Wagner, all in the central retail district on Euclid avenue, have stores that are high class in every respect.

The J. M. Gasser Co., of which R. L. Brown is manager, carries a large line of flowering plants, which are well displayed in the front of the store on tables, pedestals and in groups, all the pots being tied with vari-colored crepe paper or in jardinières or basket covers. A large show refrigerator is kept filled with the best the season affords. Cases are filled with brick-a-brac, flower holders, vases—all the latest in this line. A valentine display has been on for two weeks before the day; about everything in the line was shown. Heart shaped baskets and birch bark hearts, bound with corsage cords in various colors, the tassels finishing at the top, were tacked to a block, and with a large bunch of violets or other corsage flowers were very appropriate. A Gasser idea was a heart-shaped handle of red chenille, which, attached to a small basket, was as pretty as any of the novelties of the day. A miniature greenhouse, 6½ x 11 and about six inches in height, looked like a good seller. Small ferns or partridge berries will grow nicely in these. A large work and store room in the rear relieved the store proper of this litter. In the commodious basement there were also large stocks of baskets and other accessories, all in systematic arrangement. A large line of Easter plant baskets, and also quantities of the smaller tumbler baskets, had just been received. The window decoration, which attracted great attention, was a facsimile of their large range at Rocky River. There were twenty-four greenhouses, all made with glass roofs, and filled with small artificial flowers. The boiler house and houses of the superintendent and others were also shown. It presented a birds-eye view of the whole establishment and was a very clever idea. The large sign that stated it contains 342,600 feet of glass, and that it was the largest greenhouse establishment in Ohio, had great advertising value.

The Jones-Russell Co.'s store is most conspicuous, being at the point where Euclid avenue is crossed diagonally by Huron road. Their store is all windows—three large ones on each side, with a rounded window at the point which contained a large fountain.

This is truly a daylight store. Tables with plants and cut flowers were features, the narrow ledges of the windows all being filled with salable flowering stock. Hanging baskets of ivies were very decorative, while a large tree of artificial apple blossoms was sign that stated it contains 342,600 feet very showy. In the basement connected with the store by a marble staircase, was much more roomy than the store, what might be termed a gift shop was fitted up with all kinds of baskets, fancy pottery and florists' bric-a-brac. It was a very attractive room which Mr. Jones said had been a great addition to the store. Opening from this were the work rooms, with auxiliary ice boxes. The packing and shipping department is also located here. Many retail stores could adopt this basement gift room idea with profit.

The Smith & Fetters Co., one of the pioneer firms of the craft, have an elegant store, handsomely fitted with white enameled fixtures and crystal electric lights. Photographs of handsome church wedding and other decorations adorn the walls. The window contained lilacs, azaleas, and flats of well flowered tulips, nicely tied with crepe paper and ribbons. The flower case was well stocked with choice roses, but the special features were vases of calendulas and corn flowers; also, some of the handsomest sprays of acacia, of a variety similar to pubescens, that had ever been seen here. These were in fine condition and had been shipped from Mr. Smith's home in Los Angeles, Calif. If such stock can be depended on to carry safely from that sunny clime, the greenhouse men of the middle west will have more than bugs and cold weather to bother them before many moons.

C. W. Wagner, also on Euclid avenue, has a commodious store with a greenhouse in the rear. Enameled white fixtures, refrigerator, show cases and tables, all nicely arranged, give this show room a very up-to-date appearance. There was a selected stock of flowers and blooming plants, among the latter being some pans of splendidly colored Murillo tulips. The window was nicely decorated with Valentine novelties in made-up baskets and boxes, and azaleas.

Westman & Getz's shop at 5923 Euclid avenue is a very nicely arranged store. Quite an assortment of plants are carried here, each pot covered with crepe paper or helping to sell a jardinière or fancy pot of some kind. Up-to-date bric-a-brac is also a feature. Some exceptional pansies were in the cut flower stock. Miss Hester Getz is manager and the bright, fresh appearance of the stock and its arrangement reflects her ability.

A. Graham & Son, 5523 Euclid avenue, have a well furnished store with the "champion florist bowler" of the United States in charge. Charlie seems as much at home in the store as on the alleys and has enjoyed a very good business this season. Very good primulas and cyclamens from their greenhouses vied with the valentines in the decorated window.

The business of The Flower Shoppe, Misses Dunn and Barney, proprietors, 12374 Superior avenue, is not yet a year old, but bears every evidence of prosperity, with their neatly fitted up store, filled with a variety of plants, baskets, pottery, vases and flower holders, every article invitingly displayed and salable. Both the owners are competent women, who are in the business for a livelihood and feel very much encouraged. Already a Ford car has been added to the equipment out of the earnings.

The Kirchner Floral Co., Ninetieth street and Superior avenue, makes a specialty of funeral work. It also enjoys a good family trade. The large window contained choice azaleas and valentine novelties.

Timothy Smith, at Forty-sixth street and Euclid avenue, has a well arranged and very light corner store. A full line of plants is carried for his family trade, he being in the residential district. Business was reported excellent.

Aster Trouble Viewed by Experts.

When things go wrong it is well to get to the bottom of the trouble, and if possible determine the cause. Last fall, George W. Kerr, the well-known specialist of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, told us of his experience as discovered at their trial grounds, and from there we journeyed to Rochester, N. Y., where are situated the famous nurseries of James Vick's Sons, where the growing of asters is a specialty and where the acreage devoted to them is probably almost as much as that of all the other growers of this flower in the United States combined. This is the aster country, the moderate day temperature and the cool nights being ideal for their growth. Here are about 125 acres under cultivation, all planted for seed. Of the most popular sorts, solid blocks of five or more acres are seen, many of these, considering the season being in very good growth. The tarnished bug was seen in some sections, but one had to look close to discover it, the general view showing row after row of perfect plants. The plants of late-branching varieties, among them being the King, Peerless Pink, Hohenzoellern and the Comets, were all seen loaded with flowers that would readily bring top prices in the market as cut blooms.

The writer had the pleasure of being shown over the extensive grounds, about 350 acres, by W. H. Dildine, a member of the firm, who is an expert on all that pertains to this popular garden flower. Almost all the varieties grown were originated or improved by constant selection from the extensive fields here. Beginning with Vick's Snowdrift, a pure white, also in lavender and pink, we have the first to flower. Then follows Queen of the Market, Royal, Imperial, early non-lateral branching; Triumph, Comet, Rochester. Pink Enchantress, Perfection, King, both upright and branching, Mikado and late branching, Improved Late Hohenzoellern, late upright, and Vick's Autumn Glory. All of the above are Vick's introductions, selections and improvements on the best they could find.

In going over the fields, numberless wire stakes were seen in all the various blocks, designating the best plants from which seed was to be taken for their own sowing next year. In this way they are continually striving to keep up and improve the stocks. Every year something new appears in some of the blocks that is different and at times shows improvement; this is tried another year and oftentimes two or three and, when fixed and found of exceptional merit, is introduced. The Rochester is a distinctly improved flower of the Comet type from which it originated. Mikado is an improved Hohenzoellern, fixed, and sure to come true.

Asters should be sown in their season. The Queen of the Market, planted late, will come into flower in July when it is only four inches high. All young asters have to go into the ground when ready, to get the best results. The early varieties are started in hotbeds in late March and planted out in the field early in May. They use a planting machine or transplanter drawn by two horses with a driver, two men sitting behind on a low platform, which just clears the ground, who drop or place plants alternately in a small furrow made by the machine, which also draws soil in to cover up the roots. Seven acres a day is the capacity of this machine. The later plantings are from seed sown outside in prepared beds. The rows are three feet apart to allow for horse cultivation. The soil is first prepared with a liberal coating of manure, and with vetch, barley and other green crops ploughed under. Branching varieties require more room in the rows than the upright sorts.

The greatest insect enemy to the aster is the tarnished bug. This is a small sucking insect, most destructive in dry weather. It attacks first the center or heart of the young growing plant and later the buds as they appear, sucking the juices out so that those attacked are ruined and very often the whole plant. There appears so far to be no insecticide that is at all efficient. Yellows, most prevalent in wet weather, appear to Mr. Dildine to be the result of a sort of plant indigestion, the plant not being able to assimilate its food properly. Root aphid, troublesome in some places, had never bothered them.

The seed is gathered in November, even after quite hard frosts, and sometimes they have to knock the snow off the heads before it is all in; it has to be dried thoroughly before cleaning and much of it must be ready before January to fill wholesale orders.

The present season has been bad on account of the excessive wet spring; they have had to dynamite a ditch which ordinarily had drained a portion of their grounds to make it considerably deeper. One of their large early fields had to be prepared, as the young stock was suffering to be set out; it was ploughed in mud, harrowed in mud, the plants were set out in mud, and the result was mud, as George Clark, seed expert of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., is also an aster enthusiast; the company has large acreages of asters in the vicinity of Rochester. In one of their fields, amongst a block of Crego's Pink, there developed a number of plants of a new and very valuable pink variety, an improvement on Mary Semple, of such decided merit that it is now to be found in all aster stocks. This was in 1910. It was sent out by them the following year under the name Dreer's Peerless Pink. Although very distinct, identically the same sort came with Elmer D. Smith & Co., of Adrian, Mich., the same year, which was a very unusual occurrence.

In speaking of the various types and varieties Mr. Clark said that there were probably over 1,000 varieties, types and colors catalogued by the various seedsmen, while a list of 100 would almost cover all the desirable sorts, after cutting out many of the duplicated and undesirable kinds. The multiplications of varieties of all kinds of plants grown from seed is enormous and is very confusing to the trade generally.

Growers, who have had bad luck with asters this season, should not lay it up against the plant for next year, for Mr. Clark's experience has been that there was one good year in five, three fair years and one bad, mostly owing to unfavorable climatic conditions. They are therefore likely to be very good next season. This firm has on file a letter from a customer in Maryland, who, because her asters had done so well this year, wrote thanking them for sending her such good seed. Mr. Clark also cited an instance of two growers in New Jersey. One of these planted his stock outside, which proved a total failure; the other grew his in a frame, raising the sash as they the plants died. A later plowing and planting came along and gave them a partial crop of these early varieties.

Many other varieties of plants for seed are grown by the acre, notably Phlox Drummondii, which was in splendid shape, and mignonette and Shirley poppies were seen in quantity, showing great vigor. Taken altogether, it was seed growing on a very large scale; up to date in every particular—an inspiration for any visitor of the craft.

reached it, and secured a splendid crop of long stemmed flowers which brought the top market prices. Both received seed from the same package. In many places in the flower beds around the farmers' houses, Mr. Clark had this season seen splendid results and attributed it to their being watered during the dry weather of summer. Asters, until established, will not stand continued rain or a protracted drouth.

As to insects, nothing seemed to affect the tarnished bug. Root aphid is killed with a solution of tobacco water made from soaking stems in hot water and applying when diluted with cold water the day it is made, as it soon ferments and is then of no value.

Young plants of asters are like cabbages, they must be set out whenever ready and kept growing, as a check is sure to produce very unsatisfactory results. The field asters should be cultivated freely to keep up a mulch

A discussion took place regarding the progress of a bill for the erection of a horticultural building on the New York state fair grounds. After discussion it was decided to appoint a committee, with a joint committee of the New York State Vegetable Growers' Association and with members from horticultural organizations to confer with various officials at Albany influential in appropriations. but not too deep, as the roots run near the surface and would be injured. Air slaked lime and wood ashes mixed with the soil at time of planting is a protection against stem rot. There is little danger from any disease if the plants get a good start and are given rich, fresh soil.

Asters as well as other crops are largely grown for seed in California, where there are now a hundred acres given to seed culture as compared to ten a few years ago. K.

New York Federation of Societies.

IITHACA MEETING, FEBRUARY 15, 1917.

A most enthusiastic meeting of the New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs was held in connection with farmers' week. Of the 10 federated societies and clubs, nine sent delegates. Because of the scheduled meeting coming on St. Valentine's day, it was considered better to postpone the luncheon and official meeting of the federation from Wednesday, February 14, until the following day. During the morning and afternoon the delegates of the federation attended lectures and viewed the exhibit prepared by students in the department of floriculture of Cornell University. At noon a luncheon was given by the department for the various delegates in attendance; 30 were seated at the tables. At four o'clock the business meeting of the federation was held. At this it was voted to amend the constitution so that four meetings will be held during the coming year—the annual meeting at Syracuse in connection with the state fair; a winter meeting at Ithaca, during farmers' week; a third meeting at New York, during the annual flower show, and a fourth meeting to be held with some affiliated society, upon the call of the president. An invitation was accepted from Dr. Bates of the Syracuse Rose Society for the federation to hold a meeting in Syracuse at the time of the next annual exhibition of the society.

voted to instruct this committee to make every effort possible to impress these officials with the need of an immediate appropriation for starting the development of the plans for a horticultural building. It was the feeling of the federation that such a building was absolutely essential for the best development of the horticultural interests of the state of New York.

It was also moved that the question of the introduction of a bill in the legislature asking for a range of glass for investigational use in flower growing and vegetable culture at Cornell University be referred to the same committee, with power.

It was voted that the president appoint a committee of three to work with the commissioner of agriculture

N. Y. and N. J. Ass'n. of Plant Growers.

The tenth annual dinner of the New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers was held in the green room at the Hotel McAlpin February 17, 1917. The attendance exceeded all expectations. The guests were seated at round tables which permitted dancing between the courses. This feature was greatly enjoyed by the majority present. After a hearty dinner, the president, J. H. Fiesser, who acted as toastmaster, called upon a number of speakers, including F. R. Pierson, Anton Schultheis, A. L. Miller, James McHutchison, George E. M. Stumpp, William H. Siebrecht, Sr. and Jr. Immediately after the speeches were over the dancing was again indulged in and continued much later than the plant growers usually dance.

ASTER VICK'S KING.

New York Florists' Club.

The monthly meeting of the club was held on the night of February 12, President Stumpp in the chair. Notwithstanding the severe cold, there was a large attendance.

Secretary Young reported good progress relating to the spring flower show, arrangements being practically complete. Orders have been taken for over 10,000 trade tickets. Only a small amount of space is now available in the trade section. In addition to trade tickets, a special ticket will be issued for schools, colleges and other institutions. Not less than 25 of these tickets will be sold to any one person at 25 cents each.

Arthur Herrington also spoke on the show. A new and novel exhibit will be a cactus garden from the Brooklyn park department. All applications for space for large groups must be made to the secretary by March 1.

President Stumpp appointed committees for the convention of the Society of American Florists, as follows:

PRICES ADVANCED FOR VALENTINE TRADE.

Market conditions during the past week showed little change with the exception that St. Valentine's day ran up prices on a number of varieties of stock, such as violets, sweet peas, primroses and other small flowers. Red carnations also advanced to $4 per 100. Roses also sold better, being quoted at $4 per 100 and up. Ophelia, Ward, Russell and Hadley are the leaders. Violets are rather on the short side as far as quantity is concerned and have been moving very satisfactorily. Sweet peas, although plentiful, continue to command good prices. The supply of bulbous stock has shortened somewhat, although not enough to make an impression on the market. Easter lilies are in fair supply and are quoted at $10 per 100. Lily of the valley is scarce, but the demand for this item is light.

NOTES.

A visit to the establishment of Wm. R. Nicholson at Framingham, showed everything to be in a flourishing condition. The carnations, as usual, were of fine quality and a few new varieties were seen, the finest of these being Belle Washburn, a red introduced by Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, that appeared exceptionally good. One of the noticeable things at this range is the clever manner in which every foot of space is utilized to the best advantage. An instance of this is the large carnation houses in which sweet peas are planted along the edges of the benches and trained up on strings. Under the benches in one carnation house 5,000 Easter lily bulbs are just coming through the soil, which will be moved to the space now occupied by the young carnations when the latter are planted out. This crop is expected to be in just right for Memorial day. One thousand boxes of gypsophila are grown on shelves fastened to the supporting pipes in the houses. One bench is devoted to a strain of mignonne, nearly white in color and each flower of enormous size. This is the result of careful selection and is as near to perfection as can be imagined. Godfrey callas, the finest seen in the Boston market, are grown on shelves in one of the houses. Other quality crops include wall flowers, marguerites and freesias.

George Barr, of South Natick, has proved himself to be the "champ fisherman," having caught 35 pounds of the finny tribe through the ice, February 18.

Wm. Sim, of Cliftondale, has a fine crop of his new colored primroses. He is now shipping excellent roses and carnations.

Donald Carmichael, of Wellesley, is laid up with the grippe. F. L. W.

BUSINESS VERY SATISFACTORY.

All in all, business last week was good. The reports from the local wholesalers are that the amount of business done for St. Valentine's day was very satisfactory, the main call being for sweet peas, violets, forget-me-nots, calendulas and bulbous stock, all of which, in most cases, were in crop. Red roses and carnations also fared well in the extra demand. By the end of the week counters were practically clean, which would indicate that the call was equal to the supply.

NOTES.

In speaking of the amount of business done for St. Valentine's day, Will Zimmerman claims that this year showed an increase of 100 per cent over the corresponding period last year.

Growers and retailers should not forget the next meeting of the local florists' club, March 1, for we promise to have quite a display of new and standard varieties of carnations.

The weather was warm a few days last week and the supply of most cut flowers will increase from now on, so that a shortage will not be likely for some time to come.

Alexander Klokner had the decoration for the annual bachelors' ball, one of the most prominent hops by some of our "400" held at the Deutscher club, February 16.

After an absence of two months, during which time he was suffering with rheumatism, Fred Holton was again back of the counter at the Holton & Hunkel Co., February 19.

J. M. Fox & Son, Inc., were very busy making corsage bouquets February 16, due to the bachelors' ball.

Oscar Galin has fully recovered from his recent sickness and is again back at work at the A. F. Kellner Co.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. are cutting choice Russell roses and carnations daily.

Gust Rusch & Co. report shipping trade away ahead of the local demand. E. O.

DEMAND STEADY; SUPPLY BETTER.

Better weather conditions than for the past several weeks are now at hand, and as a result there has been a substantial increase in receipts of flowers. The demand for stock is steady and active. Shipping business is good. Roses are more plentiful but still more could be used were they available. The supply of carnations remains somewhat short. Sweet peas are fairly plentiful and have been having a good market. Daffodils, jonquils, tulips and hyacinths are in good supply, and generally are excellent in quality. Receipts in Easter lilies are equal to the present demand for them. Callas and rubrum lilies are in fair supply. The same is true of lily of the valley and orchids. Violets are fairly plentiful, but have a weak market. The supply of Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri is very short.

NOTES.

Some of the plate glass and mirrors in C. J. Jones' place were shattered by bullets fired in a duel between a police officer and a burglar last week.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange has been getting in some excellent hyacinths that have been selling very readily.

C. E. Critchell has been getting in a fine lot of daffodils.

OBITUARY.

Rev. W. T. Hutchins.

In the death of the Rev. W. T. Hutchins, a great lover of flowers has passed away, a horticulturist whose success with sweet peas gave him a world-wide reputation. Not only was Mr. Hutchins a lover of flowers, but he was also a worker and was never happier than when watching and caring for the favorites of his garden. He was a great fancier of sweet peas; their dainty, exquisitely shaded blossoms fascinated him, new varieties and strains were eagerly given a trial and all the literature on their history and growth became as an open book to him. His success led many to ask his advice as to varieties and methods of cultivation. He saved seed for which he found eager purchasers, the proceeds being devoted to the missionary work of his church.

In his desire to have others enjoy the beauties of the sweet pea, he wrote many cultural articles for the local press and soon came to be looked upon as an authority on this subject. He early found in the late W. Atlee Burpee, a staunch friend and admirer, one who appreciated his worth and at whose request he wrote a book of cultural directions, "All About Sweet Peas," containing as well a list of the best varieties of that date. This is the first known book devoted entirely to the subject, and was used by Mr. Burpee in his business, being sent broadcast to his customers.

He became a valued exhibitor at the meetings of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in Boston, where his enthusiasm and beautiful displays did much to encourage the cultivation of the sweet pea. He visited England in 1890 and again in 1894. His fame as a lover of the flower had preceded him and he was most cordially welcomed. At this time and for a number of years he was a most valued contributor to THE AMERICAN FLORIST. Regarding new varieties, methods of culture, diseases, and on everything pertaining to the sweet pea, he was an acknowledged authority. On his return from an early visit to California and later after a residence of seven years there, to regain his health, he spent several days with the editor of this paper visiting the parks and large establishments in Chicago.

On account of failing health he was obliged to give up his activity in this line, but still continued his calling as a minister of the gospel. As late as February 1 a postal was received in this office from him in which he said: "I am going to be broken up awhile. I cannot bear the severe winters and am going to Florida. Shall preach in summers I hope. THE FLORIST has long been a joy to me and a familiar friend."

Mr. Hutchins will always be remembered as an American pioneer in the improvement of the sweet pea. Although not able to take an active part in the great progress of the past 10 years, he lived to see and enjoy the wonderful flowers of today for which the earnest efforts of he and his fellow enthusiasts laid the foundation.

Mr. Hutchins studied for the ministry, graduating from Yale in 1876. He was at first a Congregationalist, but later became a Unitarian. His churches were in Allington and Indian Orchard, Mass. His latest charge was at Francetown, N. H. He had just passed his 68th birthday. He leaves a son, Mrs. A. M. Sykes, an elder sister, also survives, at whose house in New Haven, Conn., the burial services were held. The casket was covered with sweet peas, wreaths and clusters of the flower so dear to him.

Mrs. Thomas Allen.

Mrs. Thomas Allen, a well-known florist of Bangor, Me., died at her home in that city, February 7, aged 89 years.

Mrs. Allen was born in Coachford, Ireland, and had been a resident of Bangor since 1846. She entered the florist business in 1888, upon the death of her husband, and with the co-operation of her daughters and son, Edward, built up a prosperous business with a retail store and range of glass. The deceased was possessed of exceptional executive ability and her genial and sympathetic disposition won for her a host of friends, to whom her death will be a personal loss.

John Goranson.

John Goranson, well-known florist of Joliet, Ill., and a member of the firm of Larson & Goranson, of that city, died February 16, aged 43 years. He is survived by his widow, his mother, one brother and one sister in Sweden. He was a member of the Modern Woodmen of America and of the North Star Benefit Association. The funeral tributes which accompanied him to his last resting place were numerous and handsome.

PORT DOVER, ONT.—A new house being erected by Thos. A. Ivey & Sons, Ltd., one of the largest in Canada, will be completed about March 1.

BALTIMORE, MD.—A city beautiful campaign is being planned by the Woman's Civic League through its home garden committee.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—State Forester Barton has advised the planting of hardy trees and shrubs along the Dixie highway in this state.

POINT CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y.—Chas. H. Maynard has taken the position of superintendent of the H. C. Fry estate here.

NEWPORT, R. I.—The Newport Garden Club will hold no midsummer show this year.

St. Valentine's Day.

St. Valentine's day trade was the best on record for that day throughout the entire country. The special St. Valentine's day postettes and posters issued by the Chicago Florists' Club are credited with increasing the business very materially in most cases where they were liberally used. Violets, as usual, were the favorites and there was a good demand for plant and flower baskets.

Popularity of the Carnation.

There has been recently an expression by many in the trade concerning the popularity of the carnation, which is thought by some to be losing out in the competition with short roses and the general excellence of the orchid sweet peas. E. G. Hill stated at the banquet of the American Carnation Society at Indianapolis, February 1, that while he was optimistic as to the future of the carnation, he and other rose growers had never before experienced such a demand for roses in all the popular varieties, as for this spring's delivery. He felt that men who had been successful with carnations should not give them up, as they would still find them a paying crop.

Judging by quoted prices, the Chicago market has suffered most in the competition of the carnation with other flowers, but in Boston and Philadelphia, prices have held up very well, with a good demand for all grades of stock. Wm. Nicholson, in speaking of the Boston market, said carnations were in very good demand at top prices. The Leo Niessen Co., of Philadelphia, thinks the carnation is all right and has found a ready sale for all its stock this season at good figures. Strout's, Inc., of Biddeford, Me., who grow carnations exclusively, are well satisfied with the season's demand and prices. The consensus of opinion, in discussing the marketing of carnations at the recent convention, was that there would be very little complaint as to their keeping qualities, if growers and dealers would adopt standard methods in handling and caring for their stock.

National Rose and Peony Gardens.

Flower lovers are being asked by the Office of Horticultural Investigations of the United States department of agriculture to contribute to the test gardens at Arlington, Va., just across the Potomac from Washington, D. C., roses and peonies of varieties not now represented in the government collections. It is the hope of the department to assemble at the Arlington gardens as nearly complete collections of varieties of the two flowers as possible. These collections will be used for comparison and study of conditions under which they thrive best, and also as a basis for plant breeding work. At the present time approximately 700 varieties of roses and 400 varieties of peonies are growing in the Arlington gardens. These represent about one-half the varieties of each of the flowers believed to exist in the United States.

The department of agriculture is creating the test gardens in cooperation with the American Rose Society and the American Peony Society. The rose garden was begun in 1915. The peony collection was started last fall. The majority of the plants have been contributed by nurserymen and florists, though many have been given by amateurs. Express or postal charges are paid by the contributors. Plants should be sent during the dormant season, which lasts from fall to late April. Pot plants may be sent successfully as late as the last of May.

Persons who believe they have varieties of roses or peonies not represented in the Arlington gardens and who wish to contribute to the collections should first write to the office of Horticultural Investigations, Washington, D. C., offering specific varieties or requesting a list of the varieties desired.

Hammond's Gold Medal Preparations.

Recognizing the value of the insecticides manufactured by Hammond's Paint & Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y., whose products are acknowledged as standard throughout the world, the international jury of award of the Panama-Pacific exposition, held at San Francisco, has awarded that firm a gold medal, the highest recognition possible. Benjamin Hammond, the well-known head of the business, which under his able direction has grown to large proportions from a very modest beginning, has long been recognized as one of the foremost authorities on insecticides, having devoted the greater part of his life to research work in that line.

In addition to "Greenhouse White" paint, recognized throughout the country as a leader in its class, equally well known insecticide products of the company include Slug Shot, Grape Dust, Thrip Juice and Hammond's Copper Solution.

Handy Tobacco Stem Burner.

A very simple and inexpensive device or holder for tobacco stems when smoking the houses, consists of a roll of cellar window wire, 18 inches in length and eight inches in diameter, open at both ends. Fill this with damp stems to within a couple of inches of either end. Dip a wad of dry sphagnum moss, about the size of a golf ball (or if you do not play golf, a small peach will do for comparison), in coal oil, squeeze it out and place in middle of greenhouse walk, light it and stand the holder over the blaze. This is the invention of G. W. Rankin, foreman of the Leedie Floral Co., of Springfield, O., and he has found it very efficient.

British Gleanings.

Rulleben, the German camp for British prisoners near Berlin, has a full-fledged horticultural society with course of lectures, etc.. The secretary is T. Howat, Rulleben Horticultural Society, Bar 5, Box 15.

R. Richards, one of the old school florists of Bristol, died January 20, 1917, aged 79 years. His son, well known in the English and American trade, H. R. Richards, is now located at Los Angeles, Calif.

The Chelsea and Holland house shows have been abandoned this year owing to the shortage of labor and difficulties of transport.

A national organization of florists was organized at Essex hall, London, January 15, to protect the interests of this trade.

Spaghnum, it now appears, was used in surgery by the ancients, and is therefore no modern invention.

TINFOIL is quoted in thousand pound lots by manufacturers at 13 cents per pound.

FLORISTS of Germany and Austria have enjoyed unusual prosperity since the outbreak of the war on account of the cessation of cut flower imports from France and other countries.

WE are in receipt of the proceedings of the Thirty-second annual convention of the Society of American Florists, held at Houston, Tex., August 15-17, 1916, an elaborate book of 444 pages.

DUTCH bulbous stock has been very plentiful in the Chicago wholesale cut flower market and the producers claim the prices are so low they do not realize enough to pay for the bulbs, this notwithstanding the fact that Dutch bulbs sold last fall at lower prices than usual and Dutch nurserymen propose considerable advance in prices for next fall.

Personal.

R. T. Brown, of the Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., stopped off at Chicago a few hours February 20, enroute to Eureka, Calif.

PLANTS POPULAR AS VALENTINES.

The present supply of stock, while it could not be called abundant, shows improvement, the principal items being carnations, bulbous stock, lilies and a limited number of roses. The St. Valentine business was very satisfactory with a greater call for pot plants than cut flowers. The quality of the stock was all that could be desired.

NOTES.

A striking funeral design was sent by the park commissioners to the funeral of the late Maj. E. C. Lewis. It was a large reproduction of the parthenon in Centennial park, which is a replica in size and style of the parthenon of ancient Greece, and was built for the Tennessee centennial exposition, under Major Lewis' direction, 20 years ago. It still stands a monument to his memory. The floral copy was very large in size; the roof and walls made of white carnations and Roman hyacinths, the eaves and frieze of deep red hyacinths, the columns of pink carnations and the base of ferns and greens. The piece was made at the Centennial park greenhouses. Other beautiful designs were sent, although the funeral notice said it was the request of the dead man that there be "no flowers," but his prominence in railroad, municipal and civic circles caused the request to be disregarded and the tributes were magnificent.

 The approach of the Lenten season will make very little difference in the social circles in this city or affect the floral trade.

BUSINESS CONTINUES GOOD.

Business has been good the past week and stock in general has cleaned up nicely every day, especially as far as roses are concerned. While the receipts of roses appear to be considerably larger the demand seems to keep pace with the supply and there is hardly ever any surplus when the stores close for the day. The quality of the roses in general is all that can be desired and this is especially true of Ophelia, Sunburst and Mrs. Chas. Russell. American Beauty roses are a trifle more plentiful, but the demand is still so heavy that it is impossible to fill anywhere near all the orders for this variety. Carnations have moved better this week than anyone expected they would and Monday, February 19, found the market completely cleaned up in this line. Sweet peas are in large supply but continue to be in brisk demand at good prices, although at times it is necessary to move some in large lots at lower figures, so as to keep them from accumulating too much. Orchids and gardenias are moving nicely and the same holds true for lily of the valley. Lillies and callas are moving at satisfactory prices and each day finds the supply pretty well taken up. Violets have not moved as well as they might this week, which is probably due to the extra large supply of sweet peas. Bulbous stock is seen everywhere in mammoth supply and is hard to move at anywhere near reasonable prices, consequently, the majority of it, especially as far as tulips are concerned, are sold to all the available buyers at department store prices. Freesia is selling at fair figures. Jonquils seem to move at better prices than anything else in the bulb line, and this holds true since the opening of the season. Mignonette is in good supply but the receipts of stevia are not as heavy as they have been. Some fine snapdragons are included in the many offerings and sell well. Calendulas are in good supply but always clean up well at very satisfactory prices. Daisies, cornflowers, stocks and feverfew are to be had. Greens of all kinds are in good demand, especially Asparagus plumosus, which is in short supply. The city trade has been very good the past week, and in fact the best it has been since the Christmas holidays. The out-of-town demand was also extra heavy. Considerable stock was shipped to New Orleans, La., for the Mardi Gras carnival, which accounted somewhat for the clean-up in roses and carnations early in the week.

KEEPING TIME WITH PROGRESS

In the news columns of this paper announcement is made of our moving into the former location of the E. C. Amling Company.

For years we have been crowded for some suitable available space for us to do business and our new quarters meets our requirements most admirably.

For the making of this move, we owe to our growers our thanks for their loyalty and to them greatest credit is due. Our group of growers are as one in the co-operation with the management of this business.

To our Retailers we have noted their continuous and added patronage that has brought about our marked increase in business.

To give complete satisfaction to the growers and to the Retailers we believe we have made a move in the Right Direction. With our new surroundings we will make a most complete showing of Cut Flowers.

The Personal Service of the Kennicott Bros. Co., is distinct from that of any other service in this market.

When we have moved and settled down—to growers and retailers—we say, "Come right in,"—we are in business to serve you.

Bros. Co. has been located at 163 North Wabash avenue for the past ten years and the new move is a step forward and gives them much better facilities to handle their increasing trade. Arrangements for moving are well under way and from present indications the concern will be comfortably located in its new home in time to handle the Easter trade. Kennicott Bros. Co. still have a lease on their present quarters, which will be sublet as soon as it is vacated.

The local wholesale florists held a banquet in the Walnut room of the Hotel Sherman, Thursday evening, February 15, when they organized under the name of the Chicago Wholesale Cut Flower Association. August Pochlmann was elected president; Paul Klingsporn, vice-president; Philip C. Schupp, treasurer, and A. C. Kohlbrand, secretary. The object of the association is to better trade conditions in general and the first step that is likely to be taken will be to consult with the express companies in regard to bettering their service, especially around the holidays, which will eliminate any unnecessary delay such as was experienced last Christmas, when many packages reached their destination several days late. The attendance at the banquet was a pleasant surprise to everyone, twenty-five being present, making it the largest gathering of its kind ever held in this city. A special meeting will be held next Thursday, March 1, after which the association will meet regularly on the second Thursday following the first Monday of each month.

Pochlmann Bros. Co. will have a fine supply of plants to offer for Easter this year, especially baby ramblers, rhododendrons, azaleas, hydrangeas and lilac, which are in the best of condition at present, thanks to able management of Tom Conlon, superintendent of the plant department. This firm is planning on renting the second floor of the Stewart building, 40x160 feet, in East Randolph street, adjoining its present quarters on the west, which will be used by the supply department that has grown to such proportions that additional space is needed. By cutting an arch in the east wall of the present quarters it will be possible to connect the supply department with the cut flower section.

Zech & Mann are strong on roses, which are in good demand, and are cleaning up nicely every day. The shipping trade is exceptionally heavy at this house and the city demand is so good and has kept Allie Zech so busy that somehow or other he manages to get two Thursdays in every week.

John Fuhrmann, 3164 North Clark street, has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his wife, whose death occurred February 14. The funeral was held from the residence the following Friday afternoon with services at St. Paul's church and interment at Rosehill cemetery.

Wietor Bros. report business as very brisk with a good call for both roses and carnations. The demand for stock was so brisk at this establishment Monday, February 19, that extra shipments were called in from the greenhouses, so that all the orders could be filled in full.

J. A. Budlong is handling a large supply of fancy Mrs. Chas. Russell roses which are second to none in quality as far as this market is concerned. This firm had a nice lot of orders from New Orleans for Mardi Gras week.

F. O. Franzen, 5319 North Clark street, will open a new branch store in the near future at 900 Belmont avenue. Buchbinder Bros. will furnish the complete set of store fixtures, including the refrigerator.

H. Van Gelder says that the sales at Percy Jones' store last week were surprisingly good and that the seven days' business was the best that the firm ever experienced outside of the Christmas holidays.

John Michelsen of the E. C. Amling Co. says that jonquils have sold unusually well so far this season compared to tulips and other offerings in bulbous stock.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are having a good run on calendulas, which they are handling in quantity in addition to their always complete line of other stock.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. report that business since the first of the year has been very good and that the total sales are away ahead of the same period of 1916.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is handling a tremendous supply of bulbous stock, particularly tulips in a large number of varieties.

Peter Reinberg contributed an article headed "German-American Second to None in Loyalty" to the Chicago Herald, which appeared with his portrait in the February 15 issue and was read with much interest by many in the trade. Emil Reichling, superintendent of the Reinberg Greenhouses, has just finished planting three more houses of Mrs. Chas. Russell roses which will replace the American Beauty at this establishment next season.

C. L. Washburn received a postal card this week from California signed by E. C. Amling, H. N. Bruns, Harold Amling and E. B. Washburn, which was mailed from "Arbo Lita," where Bassett & Washburn's greenhouses are located. Bassett & Washburn have just bought 14 additional acres of land adjoining their holdings there and will enlarge the business accordingly.

Andrew Chronis says that the Alpha Floral Co.'s sales last week were the largest in the history of the firm, covering a period of over eight years. The St. Valentine's day sales had much to do with the big increase and the article that sold best on this occasion was a $2 corsage consisting of 100 violets and an orchid which was featured as a leader.

Miss Marguerite McNulty was one of the young society ladies who were the guests of D. W. Griffith at the Colonial Theatre Thursday evening, February 15, where "Intolerance," one of his most recent moving picture productions, is now being shown. A tea party was held in the afternoon and everyone present had a most delightful time.

The Briggs Floral Co. has added a Ford truck to its delivery service. This firm is doing a fine business at both of its stores and reports a splendid St. Valentine's day trade which exceeded all expectations. Bulbous stock, sweet peas and violets had the call.

Robert Northam, Frank Hagen and Leo Gannon had their pictures taken together last week, a proof of which is in the possession of Chas. Erne. Fred Nichols is a little bit peeved because he was not invited along, so the plates were destroyed and a new group photograph taken.

Miss Alice White and Reinhold Schiller, manager of Schiller's loop store, were married Wednesday, February 21. The happy young couple are on their way to New York, where they will spend their honeymoon. Ed. Eisner is in charge of the store during Mr. Schiller's absence.

Wiltgen & Freres opened for business at 173 North Wabash avenue, February 19, with a fine line of stock, and are well pleased with the start they have made. They treated all their customers to a fine smoke on the opening day.

H. C. Blewitt of Des Plaines is in heavy crop with sweet peas and so far has had no trouble in disposing of them at very satisfactory prices. He markets all of his stock at A. L. Vaughan & Co.'s store.

The three stores of Schiller the florist had all the business they could conveniently handle for St. Valentine's day, which showed an increase in sales of 50 per cent over last year.

Edward Jobson, an extensive grower of mushrooms at 5358 North Western avenue, was found dead in bed early February 21. The cause of death was said to be heart failure.

R. J. Mohr, formerly with A. Lange and recently with A. L. Randall Co., has accepted a position as manager of the Central Floral Co.'s store at 132 North State street.

Carl Ehrhardt has his range of greenhouses at Park Ridge planted entirely to pansies and violets.

C. L. Washburn will celebrate the fifty-ninth anniversary of his birthday February 27.

Fred Price of the J. A. Budlong force has been on the sick list for several days.

George Manos and wife are spending a few weeks at Lakeworth, Fla.

C. Gladioli Claussen is back from a business trip to Pittsburgh, Pa.

VALENTINE SALES AND PRICES GOOD.

The St. Valentine's day demand was far ahead of other years, with higher averages per sale. Cut stock was in fair supply but fell behind early and the sale of pot plants jumped in the lead. The quality of the rose stock was of the very best and prices were high. Carnations moved at from three to five cents wholesale and were plentiful, while sweet peas and violets were prominent in the basket arrangements and corsages. Bulbous stock also moved well. Begonias, cyclamens, rhododendrons, primroses, lilacs and cinerarias were the leaders in the plant section. Funeral work has been heavy.

NOTES.

Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. cleaned up on cut flowers early and had a wonderful sale on pot plants. This firm is now cutting fine string smilax. Arthur Lewis has deserted the ranks of the single men, and is receiving the best wishes of his many friends as a benedict.

Samuel Murray reports he did not have a sufficient number of pot plants to meet an unusually splendid valentine call. Corsages, vase bouquets and baskets all moved exceptionally well. It was the heaviest run of business for the occasion in the history of his establishment.

The Alpha Floral Co. had a splendid week's business in all departments. This firm has added two Fords to its delivery service. They have also introduced a profit-sharing system with employes. $223 being distributed during January.

W. J. Barnes' St. Valentine day demand was better than in any previous year and resulted in a cleanup of a large supply of pot plants and cut flowers. Corsages, fancy baskets, etc., were very popular.

Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. sold out clean. They carried a fine assortment of made-up plants and baskets and had a very heavy call for bouquets. Corsages were especially popular for valentines.

H. Kusik & Co. report the best St. Valentine's day trade in their history. Stock fell short of the demand in several items. The supply has cleaned up daily during the past week.

A. F. Barbe reports excellent trade for St. Valentine's day, with splendid stock to care for it. Pot plants of good quality were the best sellers.

Arthur Newell's valentine business was 30 per cent better than last year. Pot plants and novelties went best. Funeral work has been good.

T. J. Noll & Co. report a shortage of roses. The valentine trade, both local and out-of-town, was the best ever.

VALENTINE BUSINESS GOOD.

The increase in business for St. Valentine's day was most satisfactory. From all indications the public in this city is becoming more accustomed to the appropriateness of flowers for gifts. The market was well supplied with seasonable stock, with the exception of roses, American Beauty and Russell being especially scarce, and prices advanced sharply. Quotations for the former varied from 25 cents to 60 cents each and a limited supply of Ophelia sold quickly at from 8 cents to 15 cents. Killarneys had a fairly good call at from 8 to 10 cents. Richmond and Milady moved well at good prices. The carnation supply was plentiful, but a cleanup resulted at $4 for light colors and $5 for dark. The quality of same was very good. Daffodils, Purity freesias, Paper Whites and poeticus are exceptionally good stock, but are the cheapest priced flowers offered. Excellent sweet peas are seen, the Spencers selling at $2 per 100 for the best, shorter grades going at $1 and $1.50. Common varieties are quoted at 75 cents. There is an abundant supply of violets. Early in the day the price is $1 per 100, but before closing time they are cleaned out at 40 and 50 cents. The supply of lily of the valley is sufficient to meet the demand. Prices are fairly satisfactory. The supply of orchids is equal to requirements at $7.50 per dozen. There is a scarcity of greens.

February 19.—The market at this writing is in poor condition. The supply is limited and the demand heavy. Roses continue scarce and the carnation supply is insufficient. Under these conditions bulbous stock moves well at advanced prices.

NOTES.

The final arrangements for the great flower show to be held in this city March 15-18 are completed. The decorations will be in the hands of Dave Geddis and the show committee has appropriated $2,000 for the purpose. The finest decorations ever seen in this city are planned.

W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. had very fine Richmond and Killarney roses for the Valentine demand. Spring flowers and sweet peas are much in demand at the Windler Wholesale Floral Co.

H. G. Berning reports highly satisfactory returns from his valentine

HEAVY ST. VALENTINE'S DAY DEMAND.

Despite the fact that the temperature was from 16 to 18 degrees below zero, the St. Valentine's day business exceeded that of any previous year, with corsages and spring flowers most in demand. Roses also had a heavy call and bulbous stock, both plants and cut flowers, sold well. Heart shaped boxes and novelties were also popular. There was a general shortage of carnations but sweet peas were plentiful, the fancy varieties bringing 25 and 35 cents per dozen. Since St. Valentine's day flowers for social functions have been in demand. The call for funeral work has also been good.

NOTES.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. had a handsomely decorated valentine window, featuring baskets of sweet peas and roses and violet corsages in boxes. This firm has been very busy with funeral work and have recently had some exceptionally fine Ophelia roses on display. Clem Lanternier, who has been ill for some time, is improved sufficiently to be at the store again.

Miss Mildred Flick, daughter of Mrs. Alice Flick-Shive, of the Flick Floral Company, announced her engagement to Mr. Charles S. Buchanan at a dinner February 17, at which the tables were very artistically decorated. Miss Flick is very well known as a decorator of much ability and has been connected with the Flick Floral Co. for several years.

The Flick Floral Co. has been very busy during the past week with decorations. At a recent reception this firm supplied 35 corsages of orchids, violets and roses. At a banquet at the St. Anthony hotel 16 tables were decorated with roses, snapdragons and spring flowers.

Dick Vesey, son of Judge W. J. Vesey, of the firm of W. J. & M. S. Vesey, has been elected a member of the state legislature.

City Forester Carl J. Getz addressed the Rotary club, February 14, the subject of his very interesting talk being, "Bark."

VALENTINE DEMAND BARELY NOTICEABLE. Business during the early part of last week was not up to the usual standard, but with warmer temperatures the past few days the demand increased and Saturday found most of the wholesale houses fairly well cleaned up. St. Valentine's day did not make any noticeable increase in the call for flowers. Roses were in fair supply and have moved well. The receipts of carnations have increased but the quality is good and fair prices are maintained. The same may be said of sweet peas. Orchids are seen in larger numbers and are moving rather slowly. There is a fairly good call for lilies, which are quite abundant. The supply of lily of the valley is moderate. Violets are plentiful, but the cold weather has affected them more than any other flower, and they are not much in demand. The freesia supply has shortened and in consequence the arrivals move readily. The supply of callas, as well as daffodils and tulips, is becoming more plentiful. There is only a moderate call for miscellaneous stock, of which the quantity on hand is more than ample. The receipts of greens, especially Asparagus plumosus, is none too large, due to frosts the early part of the week.

NOTES.

The essay committee of the florists' club has arranged for a representative of the Wells-Fargo Express Co. to be present at the next meeting, March 6, and answer questions regarding the service for flowers and plants. All members are requested to be present and find out why shipments are not delivered on time, especially during the holiday rush periods.

Asparagus plumosus must be a very precious article these days. At least that is the impression the writer formed when, on entering the Philadelphia Wholesale Cut Flower Exchange, he saw George Cooke take a shipment that had just arrived and place it in the safe.

Sidney H. Bayersdorfer of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., reports that the demand for this firm's Valentine "kiddies" far exceeded their expectations.

SURPLUS MOVED BY STREETMEN.

The business of the past week was not encouraging, and with Lent drawing near, the outlook is gloomy. Excepting roses, there seems to be a surplus of all stocks. Even in roses, special American Beauty is the only variety that is scarce, for there has been a general increase in the supply of tea roses, but thus far, the slump in prices has not been so noteworthy as in other stocks. In some of the retail stores it was stated that St. Valentine's day brought considerable business. Be that as it may, it had no perceptible effect in the wholesale district. Bulbous stock, carnations, sweet peas and violets in particular, keep piling up and are hard to move. On February 15 we noticed in one block at least half a dozen street merchants loaded up with violets, sweet peas, freesias and lily of the valley. In other parts of the city the street men were equally active, and since the stock keeps pouring into the market, it is better to let the street men have it than that it should be a total loss. The great Shakespeare must have had, in addition to a great knowledge of human nature, a considerable knowledge of flowers, for he wrote:

"For sweetest things turn sourest by their deeds; Lilies that fester, smell far worse than weeds."

There was zero weather, February 12-13, and though it checked buying, it had little effect on the supply of stock, except that some of it arrived in a frozen condition. The cold weather was to a considerable extent the cause of so many violets going to the street merchants. There are various causes for the dullness in the florist business. Money is proverbially timid and quick to hide at the approach of danger, and then there is the high cost of living." There is an abundant supply of lilies, lily of the valley and cactleyas. Fine stock of Formosum lilies wholesales at 12 cents per flower, but there are short and inferior lilies on the market at 6 cents per flower. There is always a demand for good lily of the valley, but short and inferior stock is going to the street men. There is a large supply of cactleyas on the market and some of the retail stores are offering fair blooms at 50 cents each. An occasional shipment of iris arrives, but it is scarcely a factor. Mignonette, callas, calendulas, pansies, daisies, anemones and various other minor stocks are arriving in considerable quantities. The retail stores are quantities. The retail stores are carrying good stocks of plants, acacias, rhododendrons, azaleas, primulas and chorizemas, being noteworthy. There is also an abundant supply of tulips, narcissus and hyacinths in pots and pans. There is a fair trade in such stock.

February 19.—The market is fairly active this morning. Roses are holding up well, $1 per flower being paid for special American Beauties and 75 cents for Hadley. In other roses there is no material change. Flamingo tulips bring $4 per 100, but inferior varieties are very cheap; so is the bulk of the narcissus stock. Carnations bring from $2 to $3 per 100 with an occasional sale of novelties at $4. In lilies, good formosums wholesale at 12 cents per flower, but inferior stock goes at six to eight cents. The best gardenias bring $4 and $5 per dozen; the best orchids 60 cents per flower. The only way to clean up violets is to let the street men have them, and 40 cents per 100 is the top price for specials.

Good lily of the valley is going fairly well, but short and inferior stock is very slow.

NOTES.

Assemblyman Leininger, of Queens Borough, has introduced a bill, at Albany, to legalize the sale of flowers on Easter and the Sundays nearest Christmas, also on any other Sunday between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. and New Years and Memorial days, from flower stores near cemeteries. While little attention has ever been paid it by florists, they are included in the present Sunday closing law and it is within police power to close them on Sunday.

C. H. Totty spent a few hours in this city on February 19 on his return from Syracuse, N. Y., where on the evening of February 16 he delivered an address to the Amateur Rose Society of Syracuse. He is much in demand as a lecturer to horticultural clubs and societies, is a good talker and what is better, always has a thorough command of his subject.

The well-known florists' supply firm of Reed & Keller, 122 West 25th street, has incorporated as follows: Capital, $50,000; incorporators, W. N. Reed, 272 Clinton place, Hackensack, N. J.; S. Keller, 327 West 25th street; F. Keller, Jr., 322 East 141st street, New York.

James Halikias, buyer for C. C. Treppel, was recently married to Miss Amelia Christatos, a sister to M. Christatos, of the firm of Christatos & Koster. Many friends of the happy couple attended the wedding and the attending festivities and there was a jolly good time.

Leonard Vaughan, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, has for several weeks been at Vaughan's Seed Store in this city. He attended the meeting of the florists' club, February 12.

Guttman & Raynor, Inc., are receiving regular shipments of the new rose, September Morn. This rose, a sport of Prima Donna (Mrs. Paul Euler), is a fine shade of pink and sells well.

At Wm. P. Ford's we have recently noticed very fine stock in Hadley and Killarney Brilliant roses, also fine stock in carnations, Flamingo tulips and other bulbous stock.

Max Schling states that he had a good St. Valentine's day trade. He had a large stock of ladies' slippers, tastefully filled with flowers, which sold well.

Wm. Sullivan, a well-known salesman, is now with the Beechwood Heights Nurseries at 57 West 28th street.

At the store of the Boulevard Floral Co. we noticed many fine features and business was said to have been good.

P. F. Kessler, in the Cut Flower Exchange, is handling a fine stock of Flamingo tulips, also good lilies.

Manager Perry of the Dard's store, stated that their St. Valentine's day business was excellent.

Goldstein & Futterman, 102 West 28th street, are receiving a good stock of iris.

Frank McCabe, representing the A. L. Randall Co., of Chicago, is spending

GOOD INCREASE IN VALENTINE SALES.

Local florists report an increase in St. Valentine's day business of about 50 per cent over sales of previous years. Stock was plentiful and of good quality and prices were moderate, both conducive to a large volume of trade. Violets did not move as well as expected and many retailers had a surplus on hand when the shops closed at night. The great demand was for sweet peas, freesias, daffodils and tulips. Roses are now more plentiful and the supply will increase from now on. The weather continues cold with the thermometer close to zero.

NOTES.

Peter Hopman, of New Galilee, Pa., was a visitor to this city last week, looking for Dutch bulbs. He is cutting very good Ophelia and Ward roses at his range.

Murray McGrew, of the G. P. Weaklen Co., has the deep sympathy of the trade in the death of his wife, which occurred February 15. G. M.

North Shore Horticultural Society.
The first annual banquet of the North Shore Horticultural Society which was held in Anderson hall, Lake Forest, Ill., proved to be a most enjoyable affair, covers being laid for 60, the tables being attractively decorated with carnations and sweet peas. Frank Kuehne, superintendent of the A. B. Dick estate, introduced Mayor

Lewis, who felicitated the society upon the good influences of the organization as evidenced in Lake Forest and vicinity. John Tiplady, superintendent to Mrs. McCormick, thanked Mayor Lewis for his words of appreciation and was followed by Frank Kuehne, who in a few well chosen words presented E. Bollinger, on behalf of the society, with a handsome combination electric desk lamp, in appreciation of that gentleman's faithful service and efficient work during the six years that he has served the society in the capacity of secretary. Mr. Bollinger responded and graciously thanked his colleagues for this mark of esteem and courtesy. Following the banquet, dancing was enjoyed, the entire evening proving a splendid success and a credit to the committee in charge.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., President; F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., First Vice-President; L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fifth annual convention, Detroit, Mich., June 19, 1917.

THE California freesia crop is reported hurt by frost.

VISITED CHICAGO: F. E. Osborn, of the Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co., Sioux City, Ia.

EASTERN mail order houses report trade at this date running 10 per cent ahead in numbers.

GRAIN insurance rates to the United Kingdom have been reduced two per cent and are eight per cent.

SEEDSMEN in close touch with the mail trade, both east and west, predict a great trade for the coming spring.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade Feb. 21 were as follows: Timothy, $4.00 to $5.50 per 100 pounds.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.—D. R. Mayo, well known seedsman, who was stricken February 15 in a trial when his word was disputed, died February 16.

SAGINAW, MICH.—A. T. Ferrell, of A. T. Ferrell & Co., has been laid up with a severe cold. Mr. Ferrell's mother is seriously ill at his home.

DUTCH marine insurance companies have notified Holland nurserymen that after February 1 they would write no more policies on American shipments.

KELWAY & SON, Langport, Eng., have issued quite an extensive and well illustrated wholesale seed list, a highly creditable production under wartime difficulties.

MADISON, WIS.—John J. Garland, secretary of the state agricultural experiment station, has resigned his position, having acquired an interest in an Ohio seed firm.

It is reported the cargo of the Holland-America liner, New Amsterdam, has been transferred to a freight boat whose sailing without risk of submarine attack is said to be assured.

EXPORT freight rates to Europe are almost prohibitive on horticultural products because of heavy demand for space in carrying ammunition and foodstuffs. The cost to export a barrel of tuberoses is said to be over $8.

KINGSVILLE, ONT.—Nearly $2,000 in awards were distributed at the Ontario corn exhibition which closed here February 17. An interesting feature was an address on corn breeding by Professor Harper, of the University of Indiana.

CANNERS' SEED PRICES.—At the Cleveland convention of the National Cannerymen, held February 5-12, Alaska peas were offered as low as $5.50 per bushel, but $6.50 was the prevailing idea of value. Sweet corn ranged from 15 to 20 cents per pound, such kinds as Country Gentleman and Evergreen varieties. Beans, green podded sorts, were 12 to 15 cents per pound, wax kinds 20 to 25 cents per pound, very few of the latter being offered.

Dutch Bulb Sales.

Growers of Dutch bulbs last autumn instituted for the first time auction sales of bulbs in many leading bulb centers, changing locations on different days of each week. This resulted in more competition than ever before among leading exporting wholesalers, and a more uniform average market price to the grower. This plan had formerly been carried out in vegetable sales, with satisfactory results. Entire stocks of bulbs offered were brought to the selling places, not samples merely, and at the close of the day's sales, growers received the cash for stock sold. These sales were open to all, growers or dealers.

French Bulbs.

Toulon, January 25.—White Romans, because of the poor crop in 1916, both as to quantity and quality, and on account of increasing shortage of field labor, poor storing of planting stock, lack of careful planting and tillage in right soil, the 1917 crop will be necessarily still poorer.

Narcissus Paper White, because the smaller size bulbs 12 to 13 centimeter were disposed of last year in order to cover the supposed shortage of the size larger, 13-centimeter and up, this size will, of course, be missing in the new crop. Material difficulties connected with the harvesting again will probably result in reductions in the quantities available.

With regard to other items the crop is not likely to vary much from last year. Because of the crop shortages predicted above and constantly increasing expense and costs of all kinds, the prices of last season should be maintained or increased.

SANTA ANA, CALIF.—The Haven Seed Co. reports contract bookings on tomato seeds considerably advanced over 1916, both as to time of season and quantity. To take care of this increase the company has leased the Paine Ranch of 100 acres on South Main street. The soil is well adapted to the tomato and is now being put in shape for the crop. The ranch has an excellent well and is equipped with an electric pumping plant for irrigation purposes. Weather conditions in this locality have been ideal for farm work this winter and the rainfall has been sufficient to date to make the crop outlook satisfactory.

Cauliflower Under Glass.

Cauliflower can be handled as a greenhouse crop in the winter and early spring months, up to the time of excessive heat. The same as out doors, they soon suffer from high temperatures and poor results are then certain. Just as long as moderate temperatures can be maintained, good crops are readily possible. We have made several plantings of seed in recent years—the first, December 1; the second, 30 days later, and the last, February 1. As one of the main troubles with early cauliflower is their tendency to "button" or head prematurely, great care is necessary with plant production—as a rule it may be said they resent two transplantings.

It is better to sow the seeds thickly and remove surplus seedlings in order to get good plants and transfer direct from seed bed to permanent bed. One other method is very good, and that is to pot the young plants into 2½ or 3-inch pots. However, these pot plants are easily stunted if root-bound, hence care is needed in this case as in the other. Cauliflowers do well in deep, rich and cool soils, therefore use plant food and water freely. On many soils, lime is also a necessary factor.

As regards to varieties, the Early Erfurt is the best for indoor work; most of the extra earlies offered by our seedsmen are selections of the Erfurt and can generally not be distinguished. For the Erfurt class, a spacing of 15x15 inches is ample, but if Snowball is used 18x18 inches would be better.

We have produced good crops of cauliflower alongside of lettuce without any change of temperature. As radishes and cauliflowers are relatives, and subject to the same diseases, one of these should not follow the other. This is especially true where black-root is prevalent. We have always believed that lime reduces black-root, and a good drenching with Bordeaux mixture is another good remedy. For a number of years we have used a compost of poultry droppings and acid phosphate as a main-stay fertilizer and this is excellent on cauliflower as it provides nitrogen and phosphorus in ample measure.

BOLGIANO'S TOMATO SEEDS

ARE GROWN BY US AS FAR NORTH AS TOMATOES WILL MATURE.

They are free from blight. Most carefully grown—Most carefully selected—Most carefully saved—

JUST FOR SEED

Bolignano's Tomato Seeds are well known for their big yields of large, firm, solid, meaty, uniform tomatoes—

We grow Tomatoes

JUST FOR SEED

Even the pulp we destroy. Not an ounce of cannelling-house Tomato Seed is allowed to enter our establishment.

TOMATO SEED FOR YOUR 1917 CROP

You will get an enormous crop of Tomatoes from Bolignano's Tomato Seed this year. Our seed was saved from one of the largest crops we have ever had, due to being favored by weather conditions. The vines were loaded with large, solid, red fruit. We know positively by planting seed from this "Big Crop" your yield will be much larger than if you had bought seed grown where the weather conditions were not favorable.

Poplar Canker.

The poplars of this country are now threatened by a dangerous fungous disease which attacks the twigs, limbs, and trunks of the black and Lombardy poplars (Populus nigra) and of the Carolina poplars or cottonwoods (Populus deltoides), and may be expected to attack other species of poplars and cottonwoods, in regions not yet investigated, according to the plant pathologists of the United States department of agriculture. This disease is caused by the fungus Dothichiza populea.

Cankers are formed at the point of attack, spread rapidly and often girdle the twig, limb, or trunk at the point of attack, killing the part above the canker. Trees attacked on the trunk become "spike topped." The death of limbs and twigs gives the trees a ragged appearance, which spoils their beauty, and later kills them. This is especially the case with black poplars which are frequently planted in rows along boulevards and avenues.

The European poplar-canker is most severe in its effect on stored and transplanted nursery stock. Trees when in transit, and when healed in the ground, or freshly transplanted in the spring, are readily attacked by the fungus and ruined within a very short period of time. This disease is spread by means of spores produced in fruiting bodies in the form of small pimples or pustules in the bark of the cankers. From these pustules in springtime there are exuded small, sticky, cream-colored tendrils which soon change to a tawny-olive or even a walnut-brown. These tendrils contain millions of spores which spread the disease in various ways.

This disease was first reported in America by a correspondent of the plant disease survey in 1915, from Massachusetts and New Hampshire, but the causal fungus was not correctly identified. During the present year the pathologists of the department found the disease prevalent in small areas in certain districts in the following states: New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Ohio, Nebraska and New Mexico. The centers of infections appear to be in every case either certain nurseries now known to contain diseased trees, or points where poplars received from such nurseries have been planted.

Additional information as to the extent of the spread of this new canker disease in the country is desired. Owners of diseased poplar or cottonwood trees may greatly assist if they will notify the Bureau of Plant Industry, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y.—The Southampton Horticultural Society at its annual meeting, January 4, elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Chas. Guillo, president; Wm. McLeod, vice-president; H. H. Wells, secretary-treasurer; J. Dickson, corresponding secretary.

Sewickley Horticultural Society.

The regular meeting of the Sewickley Horticultural Society was held in Odd Fellows' hall, Sewickley, Pa., President Barnett in the chair. The secretary announced that the society had been invited to send a delegate to the annual Davey Tree Expert Co. convention to be held at Kent, O., March 5-10, and same was accepted.

A committee was appointed to make arrangements for the coming show in September and M. Curran presented the financial report covering the 1916 fall exhibition and the treasurer was instructed to pay the prize money to the successful contestants. Mr. Curran was accorded a hearty vote of thanks for the able manner in which he managed the show's finances.

R. Taylor showed some fine Fin de Siecle celery and a sport of Carnation Beacon. John Reig staged forced vegetables of superb quality for which he received special mention. An interesting feature to many present was a lecture on "Poultry Management" by G. R. McDonald.

James Stewart, who laid out the estate of Edward A. Woods, and who has had charge of same for the past seven years, was given the best wishes of the society. He leaves to take charge of the estate of J. R. Reynolds, Winston-Salem, N. C.

J. CARMAN, Sec'y.

Worcester, Mass.

Local florists report a St. Valentine's day trade surpassing that of previous years. Sweet peas, jonquils and violets were greatly in demand.

Randall's Flower Shop, now doing business at 13 Pleasant street, will move to a more desirable location in the Knights of Columbus building on Pearl street about April 1. Mr. Randall has taken a 10-year lease of the new place.

"Evangeline Land" was the subject of a lecture by Wallace W. Rose, Bridgeport, Conn., before the members of the Worcester County Horticultural Society, February 16. The lecture laid particular stress on the horticultural possibilities of the famous district.

ITHACA, N. Y.—Professor David Lumsden, who has made a study of the retail florist business in Buffalo, N. Y., for several months, has returned to his duties at Cornell University.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—The Buffalo Retail Florists' Association has been formed with the following officers: W. J. Palmer, president; S. A. Anderson, secretary-treasurer; Louis Neubeck, Robert Scott and Chas. Schoenhut, directors. A community advertising campaign is being planned.

NEW RED ROSE

Donald MacDonald

A new Hawlmark Red Rose sent out this year by Alex Dickson & Sons

We have tested this Rose for Winter forcing for two years, and with us it produces more red roses during the winter than any Rose we have ever grown. It is not a large Rose, but has perfectly formed medium sized flowers that sell at sight. Color bright orange carmine; will not turn blue; because the base of the petals is orange. It is not a summer rose, as it has the same substance as Killarney. We build the plants up until November, and from Thanksgiving until May it is a money maker for the Rose Grower, as no pinching is necessary.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The monthly meeting of the above society was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, N. Y., February 14 at 2 p. m., President James McCarthy in the chair. A letter was read from the Davey Tree Expert Co., Kent, Ohio, inviting a delegate, representing this society, to attend their annual convention to be held March 5-10, inclusive. James Holloway was appointed, and if he is unable to attend John F. Johnson was chosen as alternative. Adam Breznock was elected an active member and two petitions were received.

The president appointed George Ashworth, James McDonald and Joseph Adler to act as judges for the monthly exhibit and their awards were as follows: John F. Johnson for a pot of cyclamens, first; Harry Goodband for six tomatoes, first; Frank Watson for a vase of mixed roses, first; honorable mention to Robt. Jones for a vase of Rose Queen sweet peas. A very interesting and instructive essay was ably read by Robt. Jones entitled, "What Science Has Done and Will Do for Floriculture," by Prof. E. A. White, Cornell University. A vote of thanks was ordered sent to the author. P. W. Popp, Marmarock, offered a prize of $5 for the most meritorious exhibit at our next meeting. Robt. Jones offered a prize of $10 to be competed for at our annual tulip show, to be held some time in May.

Exhibits for the next meeting, to be held March 14, at 7 p. m., are 12 white, 12 pink and 12 mixed carnations.

ABOUT THAT COMPOST PILE

It's time for you to give this most important question prompt attention.

Do you know that one ton of Magic Composting Fertilizer, guaranteed to analyze 2.75 to 3 per cent Ammonia, 3 per cent Phosphoric Acid and 1 per cent Potash, will go as far as five tons of ordinary Manure?

HERE ARE THE REASONS:

Magic Composting Fertilizer	Original Stable Manure
Plant Food..... 7 per cent.....	1½ per cent
Humus..... 85 "	23½ "
Undecomposed Matter.. 5 "	15 "
Moisture..... 3 "	60 "
In dry state 2 to 3.5 per cent.

Note carefully: If you use Magic Composting Fertilizer, you will save four-fifths of the expense involved in the handling and hauling of Stable Manure.

SAVES MONEY, LABOR, TIME.

Many of the large, as well as the small, successful Growers of Flowers and Vegetables, have been using Magic Composting Fertilizer instead of Stable Manure for years, and pronounce it a big saver of time, labor and money—three all important factors to all Growers.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Violets.

With the approach of spring the violet plants grow rapidly and quantities of runners will spring from the old stools and propagation of the runners at this time will save much time and room later in the season when the spring stock is insistently demanding space, and much better plants are procurable from cuttings taken now than from divisions in May, when the days are often warm and the plants more or less exhausted. And if the young stock is procured now the old plants can be thrown out as soon as through blooming, securing available room at once. These runners or laterals root easily at this time in a propagating bench or can be taken off with a few small roots and either potted or placed in flats and will take but little room, and as early as possible placed in a cold frame. Treated in this manner splendid stock may be obtained for planting out early, either in the field or in the houses, and with good strong stock to start with much better results are sure to be attained than by being obliged to plant small, weak stock later in the year. As the warm days approach the houses will need to be shaded, for the sun bleaches the flowers, and a watering of liquid manure will greatly assist in maintaining the size of the blooms and also keeping up the color.

Mignonette.

The grower will always find some plants in his beds of mignonette that produce exceptionally large spikes of bloom, the plants are more vigorous in foliage or the blooms of better form, and these spikes that show special characteristics should be selected and the seed saved, and in this way the grower can procure a strain which after two or three years' selection will be far ahead of any seed he can buy. This seed should, however, be saved before the bees and other insects are flying around and attracted to the houses, for they will cross-fertilize the flowers with undesirable strains. The seeds of mignonette do not ripen all at once, and as the pod remains open the ripe seed falls out and is lost, so special preparation must be made to receive it. Select the spikes that are to be saved for seed and tie them to strong stakes and mark them. The flowers should then be cross-fertilized by rubbing a camel's hair brush up and down the flowers. This should be done every bright day so as to secure a thorough pollination. To catch and hold the seed take a piece of heavy brown paper and roll it into a cone shape, and after winding a piece of cotton around the stem and stake below the flowers, tie the small end of the cone-shaped paper around the cotton, the paper spreading upward so as to catch all the seeds that drop out of the seed pods. This can remain until all the seed has ripened, and as the spike grows the cross-fertilization continues, but care should be taken that no water gets into the paper to wet the cotton, and the seed must be gathered before the days become so warm that insects and bees are in the houses.

Easter Lilies.

The one important crop to the plantsman at this time is the lilies for Easter, for they must be properly timed to be at their best on that date. Easter this year comes April 8, and most growers like to see buds on their plants six weeks before that time. If the buds are not showing, the temperature will have to be increased to 70° at night. This will do the plants no harm if they have good sunlight during the day, and are given all the ventilation possible, but the ventilators should not be opened unless the sun is shining and the thermometer at least at the same degree as the night temperature, and avoid all draughts possible, for the plants grown so warm are very tender. It is next to impossible to bring a lot of lilies in all together, so it is better to grow them so the slowest ones will be in on time, and move those that are more advanced into a cooler house and retard them, but this should not be done until the buds are nearly full grown. A lily retarded when the buds are forming is very difficult to start into active growth again, but after the first buds begin to turn white the plants can be moved into a house of 50° or lower and they come on slowly and will be of better quality than those grown warmer. The plants should be all tied to a neat stake as soon as the buds form, if not already done, for the buds add considerable weight to the top of the stem and they bend over very quickly. When the buds form, if the plants are pot bound, a watering of liquid manure will increase the size and substance of the flower. It will be a continual fight against aphids from this time on and fumigation or spraying with nicotine will have to be regularly and continually practiced to bring the plants into bloom in the best condition.

Hydrangeas.

The greatest demand for hydrangeas is in May and June and to have them in the best condition at that time the plants should be started before March 1. While they may be started later and forced harder, yet the plants so grown are not as sturdy and do not give so good satisfaction after they are placed on the porches. Start the plants in a cool house and if the wood has become dry in their winter quarters frequent syringing will assist in softening it. When they begin to grow do not crowd them. Crowding and too much heat are the principal causes of the long, ungainly plants so often seen. If they are grown in a cool house, with plenty of room, the plants will be sturdy and short-jointed, covered with beautiful foliage and shapely, and are a great ornament, which surely cannot be said of the tall plants with small foliage and bare stems toward the base. When the plants begin to grow rapidly they will require plenty of water and during the warm, sunny days of spring, when the houses are hot, all the ventilation possible, and at this time watch carefully for red spider, which gather in great numbers on the young growths and blooms and quickly spoil them. If they appear, syringe heavily until they are overcome. Keep the plants staked and tied as soon as required.

Sweet Peas from Cuttings.

New sweet pea varieties being always expensive and not always seeding freely, multiplication by cuttings may be made to increase the production from a certain amount of seed four or five fold.

First of all, the mother plants must be grown short and stocky, for cuttings from weak plants would be worthless. When the plants are four to five inches high and have five to six joints make the cutting with a good pair of scissors, just above the third joint. Scissors are better than a knife on account of the fibrous stems, which, resisting the knife, are apt to tear or pull the roots. Remove the leaves from the cutting, except the upper two, and pot in sand in thumb-pots, taking care to place them near the edge. Water before and after potting, cover with glass; wipe the glass now and then, to remove superfluous moisture, and shade if too hot, though the cuttings like the light. They will be rooted in two to three weeks, when the glass may be removed, and a week later they may be repotted and treated the same as seedlings. Well cared for, they will give the same results and will bloom about the same time.—G. Klein, in Le Jardin.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.

Real Flowers Win.

When it comes to flowers, realism is cheaper in California than artificiality.

For a recent scene in William D. Taylor's first photoplay for William Fox, an enormous and sumptuous banquet had to be spread. Table decorations were of real vines, green leaves and carnations.

"Why don't you use paper flowers?" some one asked Dustin Farnum, who stars in the play.

"Paper costs more than the real stuff nowadays," was the conclusive answer. Thus doth the war affect the flowers.

Keeping Things on the Go.

Always endeavor to keep the stock moving. If plants get a trifle passe, make one out of two, let the profit go, get the investment back if possible, and make the gain on new purchases. If baskets or other accessories become a bit shabby, take them out of stock at once for repair. All goods should be spick and span in their newness. Reduce the price on things that hang. "Keep everything moving" is the rule in present day storekeeping. See that shelves and tables, on which goods are displayed, are absolutely clean at all times. A dirty store is an abomination for which there can be no excuse.

Keep in Touch With Your Market.

All growers should make a point of getting to town at least once a month, if for nothing else just to see how that box of theirs arrives. Some may find that their ideas of packing, as shown by the condition of their stock when the box is opened, needs to be revised. They also see other growers' boxes opened and wonder how they treat this or that flower to get it so fine. They find they have been cutting their snapdragons, violets or sweet peas, etc., too green, not allowing them to open so as to make good bunches. They see something new or an old flower out of season or better done than they thought possible. They have a chat with their dealer, who gives them useful points on what to grow and the best time to have it in. They see the necessity of getting their stock on the market early; their bunching may be improved. In short, a grower who keeps his eyes open, will make much more than his time and carfare by such monthly visits.

To Boost or Not to Boost.

A Chicago wholesaler, who was pointing out to one of his customers the importance and advantage of exploiting special flower days by window decorations, circulars to patrons, and newspaper advertising, ran up against this argument: "What! build up a trade and create an extra demand for flowers, so that when I come to get them you can soak me double prices, not much! Why, look at Mothers' day! Just see the prices we have to pay for white carnations! No, sir, you don't get me boosting things up just to give you a club to knock my head off," and out he went. "What do you think of that?" said the wholesaler as his customer passed out of sight. "There goes a fellow who is so narrow minded that his ears meet. There's a lot of storekeepers that think we are always trying to take advantage of them. They don't come around when flowers are plentiful and try to help us sell them, by making attractive window displays and offering at low prices, but set up an awful howl when the street men, alive to their opportunities, handle quantity lots at good profits on the corners in their neighborhood. We have the flowers to sell and try to get the market price all the time. When stock is plentiful the storekeeper can always buy as low as the street man if he will take the same quantity, but most of them are afraid to take the chance.

"White carnations are high on Mothers' day because everybody wants them, but we only get the market price. There is not much, if any, advance in other stock, and the public will buy all sorts of flowers that are nicely displayed on Mothers' day, the same as any other day of the year."

The Customer Is Always Right.

Many people are very particular; orders must be executed exactly as given, "good enough" will not do for them. A pair of plants must be of the same height, with good, even foliage all around. If when delivered, complaint is made, any defect must be remedied at once. Very often the request is unreasonable; nevertheless, it should be granted and the trouble adjusted, even at a loss, to the satisfaction of the customer.

The fernery just sent home is not "fit" to put on the table; have it sent for, refilled and returned at once. The fernery was "frozen" when received; you know it has been allowed to get dry, but refill at once, without charge. It will pay.

The beautiful azalea sent by a friend must have been frozen when delivered, as it is now all wilted down. You know it is dry, and perhaps say so; this is taken as an excuse on your part and resented. You insist—up goes the phone. The donor is notified. He asks for his bill and goes elsewhere. A $500 a year customer gone. Overdrawn, no, an actual experience. Scarcely a week passes when mistakes or complaints of some kind, many of them very unreasonable, have to be adjusted. These, in the experience of men long in business, should always be taken up on the principle that the customer is always right. People dissatisfied in any way through dealings at a particular store, never hear it mentioned without reciting their complaint and recommending another place. Everyone has peculiarities which must be studied and catered to. Particular and exacting people often become good friends on account of the trouble taken to understand and please them in the execution of their orders.

WITH THE GROWERS

At Springfield, O.

Springfield, O., is the center of the infant plant industry of the United States. Here are a large number of extensive greenhouse establishments containing from 10,000 to 50,000 square feet; others that have grown up to and over 100,000; some with more and still expanding, until the maximum so far is reached in the Good & Reese Co.'s ranges of over 275,000 square feet.

One-year-old roses rooted in summer, grown in two-inch pots and wintered in cold greenhouses, are a specialty. The Good & Reese Co. raised 4,000,000 last season and the entire product of the district was over 7,000,000, nearly all of which are sold from two or two and a half-inch pots. In addition to the roses, almost the entire list of plants that are handled commercially are grown here in immense quantities. Ferns, asparagus, coleus, geraniums, begonias, cannas, dahlias, chrysanthemums, etc., can each be had by the tens of thousands in a number of the larger establishments, while one is continually seeing an old-time favorite which had almost been forgotten. Springfield will grow. A number of bright ambitious men are getting a schooling and experience here that will greatly expand the business and keep this community to the front as the great infant plant producing center of the country.

The Good & Reese Co.

The Good & Reese Co. has a large and very well ordered establishment and conducts what is said to be the most extensive mail-order plant business in the world. They also grow for the trade, some of their wholesale orders being of immense proportions. While almost everything in the floral calendar is grown extensively, a specialty is made of roses and ferns. Their annual stocks of roses now run over four millions; the great majority of these are sold from two and one-half inch pots, although many are grown into fours and some larger. The propagation and handling of this immense rose stock is interesting. House after house is filled with plants from two and one-half inch pots which have been kept dormant all winter; these are planted out on benches about six inches apart and grown for cuttings. This is done through the month of February. The first cuttings are taken about May 20 and at varying periods until the middle of August. They are rooted in frames outside with bottom heat secured from beds of manure. When rooted, which takes from 20 to 30 days, the first cuttings are potted into two and one-half inch pots, but all the later batches are, to economize room, grown in one and one-half inch pots in which they are wintered and shifted into two and one-half about February 1; these then make a nice growth and are in fine condition for mailing at planting out time.

There is great system in this work. Boys put the cuttings in the sand in the frames, while various gangs of men make cuttings and pot up the rooted stock. These men get very expert in the work, as they do but the one thing the entire summer. A large range of houses, 200 feet in length, contains the Boston fern and her favorite children. These are planted out on beds from which the young plants are "pulled" when they begin to crowd. A two-inch mulching of well-rotted manure makes good sand for the youngsters to play in; 13,000 husky young Bostons had just been taken from a bed 150 feet long by 8 feet in width, at the time of our visit. These were potted in two-inch pots. The stock in these houses is very sturdy, being grown in a temperature of 55°.

Chrysanthemums are also a feature; over 300,000 from two and one-quarter inch pots was the stock last season. Rooted cuttings are now being potted. The dahlia stock last year numbered over 100,000 clumps. Cannas run into large numbers; the roots are now seen in sand boxes along the walks in the fern houses.

The peony demand has grown wonderfully; 50 acres are now planted, with from 15,000 to 50,000 of a variety. While the above are leading specialties, other stocks, such as coleus, geraniums, begonias, etc., in great assortment are also grown in quantity.

System is everywhere apparent. In the stock order houses, blocks of plants, each with a printed paper label, stand ready for instant selection. A labeling room with shelves, to which flats of plants were brought to have the labels attached, was a part of the system; the printed label of tough paper, with a slit at one end, is quickly looped around a branch of the plant. This label is the invention of a printer in Springfield and is a great time saver. There is a mail-order shed with every facility for the quick packing and handling of these small packages, and another larger space for the express business. A packing bench, the surface of which is of rollers on which boxes were pushed along to a scale and the weight quickly ascertained is a feature. Boxes when packed were passed along to men who tied or nailed, as the case required. One order of 7,000 ferns, another of 10,000 roses, and a number of other good sized lots, were being packed for shipment. Orders for very large blocks running into tens of thousands are quite common; one order of roses will take over 115,000 to complete. The entire output of six other large establishments is also handled, the stock being grown for them under contract.

Cement tables in nearly all the houses and soil bins of the same material in the potting sheds are noticeable. These soil bins are potting benches with movable board tops from which the soil is easily taken and filled in.

Starting in 1891 with three small houses, the glass area now consists of 275,000 square feet, with an output of over 7,000,000 plants a year. The firm consists of Frank E., John M., and Harry F. Good, who take a great interest in the work of managing and planning for this rapidly increasing business.

The McGregor Bros. Co.

The McGregor Bros. Co. is in the mail order plant business in a large way, having 150,000 feet of glass and 100 acres of ground devoted to the growing of stock. Roses are a feature, 100,000 being planted in the houses for summer forcing for cuttings. These are rooted in frames outside with manure bottom heat, which is found very effective. When potted into two-inch pots they are grown on inside and wintered in cool houses or in well protected frames outside. The stock plants are lifted in the fall, potted into fours and make good plants for spring sales. The greatest variety of stock is grown; scarcely a plant is asked for that cannot be found in their stock. House after house of ferns and other florist stock is grown in large quantities for the trade, many of whom look to them for supplies with which to fill their houses quickly after crops have been cut out. Coleus, double petunias and many other soft-wooded plants are planted out on tables for cuttings. Chrysanthemums are a feature, cuttings being taken from several houses of stock plants. Cannas are a quantity plant, dahlias another. Hydrangeas, clematis and geraniums are leaders, a large range filled with stock plants being noteworthy.

For the most part, plants are grown in small pots so that quantities can be grown in a small space, sold at a low price and are in such condition that they go forward quickly with larger pot and bench room. Their mail business, which extends all over the United States, is very large, and the small pot stock is especially suited for such packing.

H. McGregor and Roy McGregor, sons of the founders, are in active command. They are live wires, familiar with every detail in the working of this large business.

American Rose & Plant Co.

The birthplace of the Theodore Roosevelt fern, and particularly that of Teddy, Jr., which is now the standard sort of its type, is a very interesting place to visit. The American Rose & Plant Co. has the honor of producing these fine varieties; their 40,000 feet of splendidly constructed houses are almost entirely filled with ferns of the Boston type, of which they make a specialty, growing entirely for the trade. Three new sports of sterling merit are being tried, which look of practical value. One will go out next year if stock enough can be worked up. It is of the Whitmani type. Bulbs of all kinds are handled on a large scale. A new fireproof office and storage building, 40x135 feet, three stories in height, has just been erected to care for their largely increasing business, which is under the management of Opha Jackson, a young man full of energy and ideas in economic greenhouse management.

John A. Doyle.

John A. Doyle's 50,000 feet of glass is given up entirely to the growing of roses, all of which are sold to the Good & Reese Co., supplying varieties that they do not grow. A range of five houses, each 21x120 feet, built ridge and furrow plan, with gutters seven feet in height, appeared ideal in construction. These had been planted with roses in ground beds about 18 inches in height for summer cuttings, but it is the intention here to go back to the tables, in which the roses made a quicker and more satisfactory growth. At this establishment over 200 varieties of roses are grown and it was stated that over 400 varieties were to be found in the lists of the various growers of this city. The rose cuttings are rooted by the hot manure system as used by all the growers here. All the stock for cuttings was from 2½-inch pot plants, one house of which had been planted. These will not be forced and first cuttings will not be ready until May. Imported dormant budded stock from which new varieties are grown has to be planted in January and brought along cold to get good root action before the shoots started. The stock in all the houses looked fine. It is wintered in a temperature of 36° to 38°. Many plants held almost their entire foliage. Large orders were going out daily.

The Leedle Floral Co.

Confining themselves entirely to a wholesale business of growing young roses for the trade, the Leedle Floral Co. occupies 60,000 feet of glass. Seventy-five thousand roses are planted in the houses for stock for summer propagation; several houses are now finished and all will be set out by March 1. One million young roses is the capacity here. These are rooted in manure hot beds outside. A feature is a sliding muslin shade, which works in a frame five feet above the bed, giving light but at all times shielding from the sun. Early in February, as the inside planting and also selling season arrives, the roses in the two-inch pots, being pot bound, are knocked out and placed close together on tables on an inch of soil on which well rotted cow manure has been sifted. These soon take hold of the new soil, green up, and are wonderfully benefited. The contents of two houses are in this way crowded into one, the empty house being then planted for stock.

A first aid to buyers is issued by the company, which contains a dependable description of all the commercial and hardy garden roses up to date. It gives the class to which they belong, synonyms where they occur, the name of the raiser and the year of introduction. It has been compiled with great care and is absolutely correct. A section is devoted to the hybrids, the hybrid teas and all other classes separately and in alphabetical order. Another classifies them as to color, all the varieties of one color being arranged alphabetically. This is a very unique and valuable book for any lover of roses and can be had for the asking. George W. Rankin, who has had 17 years' experience with the company, a most competent man, is the greenhouse foreman.

The Reeser Plant Co., Inc.

The Reeser Plant Co., Inc., whose glass area comprises some 50,000 square feet, grow only for the trade. While their list is large and varied, they specialize on Boston ferns in variety which are grown in quantity; asparagus are also a feature, 100,000 seeds being required for next season's planting; 50,000 variegated vincas were not enough last season, while two large houses of fruited solanums, over 50,000 in three-inch pots, were insufficient to go around. Coleus is another quantity plant. A large house contains stock plants full of cuttings from which an unlimited number can be raised.

Several interesting methods of culture were observed here. Four-inch Boston ferns were seen plunged in rotted manure, not for heat or food, but to keep them moist without having to water frequently. They occupied considerable room and appeared to be coming along at a rapid rate, twice as fast as if placed on dry boards and given such frequent waterings as they would require. Solanums, from seed sown in February, are planted in three-inch pots in the early summer and plunged outside in the field; they make a nice growth, ripen their wood, are well set with berries, and do not go back when lifted in the fall. This size should be very useful for basket work at the Christmas holidays. Asparagus Sprengeri planted out in the field in summer makes good roots without much top growth but which comes quickly and fine when moved inside.

Morgan Swope, in charge of the greenhouses, and who also looks after the trade on the road, is alert, enthusiastic, and keeps a close eye on the trend of the demand. L. L. Ridge, the secretary of the company, is the office chief. Their green monthly post card calendar, which contains a list of prices, Mr. Ridge says, is a splendid business bringer.

Pasadena Tournament of Roses.

The annual "Tournament of Roses" in Pasadena New Year's day assumed international significance as a spectacle. For the first time in the 28 years this tribute to Queen Flora has been held, foreign nations were represented in addition to all of the United States possessions from New York to the Philippine Islands. Two miles of cut flowers were presented in the pageant, which included hundreds of varieties of blooms utilized as decoration for every conceivable sort of vehicle. One of the strictest rules of the celebration is that no artificial flowers shall be allowed. This condition entails considerable hard work the night the old year dies. In order to have the flowers fresh for the day, most of the floats are decorated the night before. It is probable that a larger percentage of the population in the southern California city "ring out the old and in the new" than in any community on the continent, as about half the population puts in the first hours of the new year in preparing for the mid-winter feast of flowers.

Through their leading hotels, the larger cities in all parts of the country were represented by floats in the gorgeous parade. Some of these were quite elaborate, the first honor going to the Blackstone Hotel, Chicago. Asparagus and California poppies were used in a magnificent floral coach of the Louis XVI period. Tokio, Manila, Hongkong and Honolulu were represented in the hotel division of the pageant, which was a new feature this year.

Instead of the Roman chariot races that have been featured in the past, the tournament association now stages a gridiron battle between the champion football teams of the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. No event of sports in the world has so fragrant or more beautiful setting, as the gorgeous cavalcade of vari-colored blooms ends in the stadium where the game is played.

OSAWATOMIE, KANS.—Dr. L. W. Jacobs of the Osawatomie Florist died February 3. The business will be carried over by L. W. Jacobs, Jr., and his mother.

BOSTON, MASS.—The food riots of other cities have been duplicated here. As elsewhere, the mayor and other high officials have been appealed to, but prices are not reduced. A schooner loaded with over 5,000 bushels of potatoes arrived, February 21, from Halifax, N. S. It was stated that the price at Halifax was $1.60 per bushel.

Massachusetts Agricultural College.

The annual trip of the floricultural classes to Boston, February 15-18, was a splendid success, many interesting things being seen in the wholesale markets and retail establishments of that city, as well as the commercial ranges and private estates in the vicinity. Among those who entertained the students were: Penn, The Florist; Thos. F. Galvin, and Philip F. Carbone, Boston; Thomas Roland, Nahant and Revere; Wm. Sim, Cliftondale; Weld Gardens and William N. Craig, superintendent of Faulkner Farms, Brookline.

Professor A. H. Nehrling, chief of the department of floriculture, who since becoming a member of the faculty in 1914, has inaugurated many improvements and placed the department on a solid business basis, has tendered his resignation, having purchased the McDonald Floral Co., Crawfordville, Ind., which he will conduct both as a wholesale and retail business. Professor Nehrling, son of Henry Nehrling, well-known caladium and amaryllis specialist, is a graduate of Concordia College and in 1905 was awarded a scholarship at the Missouri Botanical Gardens, St. Louis, Mo. He later became associate in floriculture at the University of Illinois, which post he resigned to join the staff of the Massachusetts Agricultural College. He is affiliated with many organizations, among them being the Society of American Florists, of which he is a state vice-president; Illinois State Florists Association, Illinois State Horticultural Society, Massachusetts Horticultural Society, National Association of Gardeners, Royal Horticultural Society, London, Eng., and others. He is also president of the Missouri Botanical Garden Alumni Association.

St. Louis Spring Show.

Manager Jules Bourdet and Secretary W. W. Ohlweiler are putting the finishing touches to the details for the St. Louis spring show to be held in that city March 15-18, and which promises to be a splendid success in every way. The finances are in splendid shape, in the hands of W. A. Rowe, as is the guarantee fund, in charge of August H. Hummert, chairman of the fund committee. Alex Lurie reports that the premium committee has completed its work, and Geo. B. Windler announces that special premiums are still coming in. Carl Beyer, in charge of admissions, has arranged for the distribution of many tickets to charity, school children, etc. Representative florist supply and accessory houses have secured space in the trade section, and W. J. Pilcher, chairman of this committee, is co-operating with exhibitors to make this a big show feature. W. J. Windler of the programme committee reports advertising galore and a book of interest from cover to cover. Special exhibits, including aquaria with fish of rare varieties, will be another interesting section, and some excellent displays have been secured by W. S. Wells, chairman.

The general scheme for the decoration of the hall will be a reproduction of the Japanese Heno tea gardens, a well-remembered feature of the St. Louis world's fair in 1904. This will be an unusually handsome decoration, under the direction of D. S. Geddis. Entertainment to suit every temperament has been provided for, with plenty of music and novelty. J. S. Carter and his committee insist there will not be a dull moment. In the retailers' section there will be more than the usual number of exhibits. Chairman F. C. Weber of the committee having this section in charge says the retailers are most enthusiastic over the show and the displays will be elaborate. The co-operation of the city park department through Superintendent Ernest Strehle, who is chairman of the parks and gardens committee, also promises much. The section devoted to private gardeners will also prove of much interest, both to exhibitors and the general public, and L. P. Jensen, chairman of this committee, has formulated a plan that will add to the success of the show.

W. C. Smith, chairman of the exhibition and hall committee, has been untiring in his efforts to lessen the numerous difficulties that have arisen, and his experience and knowledge have been invaluable to the executive committee.

F. A. WINDLER, Publicity Chairman.

New York Spring Show.

MARCH 15-22, 1917.

All details as to arrangement, etc., of the spring flower show, now an annual event in New York, have been completed. The flower show committee are now meeting each Monday and will continue to do so until the close of the show. The rose gardens and rock gardens, which were the sensational features of the exhibition held last spring, will again have a prominent place in the main hall.

The park department of the city will this year be represented by exhibits from two boroughs. From Central park greenhouses, New York City, there will be a large group of palms, foliage and plants in flower; from the Prospect park greenhouses, Brooklyn, an extensive display of cactus. This exhibit will be arranged to show as nearly as possible how these plants grow in their native state and under natural conditions and will have suitable accessories and surroundings. As an added attraction, brought about mainly through the influence of Frederic R. Newbold, there will be an exhibit from the botanical garden, Bronx park, which promises to be of unusual interest. The flower show management appreciates the valuable services of Mr. Newbold in advancing the interests of the flower show on every occasion possible.

Space accommodations both in the competitive and trade sections are causing the management much concern and it may yet be necessary to use the third floor of the Palace, if it will be available at the time of the show.

The ladies of the Red Cross will conduct a tea garden on similar lines as last year, only on a far more pretentious scale.

The souvenir programme, under the supervision of Chairman T. A. Havemeyer, will also have many new and attractive features and will consist of 200 pages, 100 devoted to valuable information and cultural notes prepared by leading horticulturists of the country, and will also contain many illustrations. Of the 100 pages set aside for advertisers, about 60 have already been reserved.

Trade tickets are now on sale; also a special ticket available for colleges, schools and institutions, and the advance orders for these tickets indicate a tremendous sale.

Thirty sketches were submitted in the Poster contest and Miss Thelma Cudlipp was declared the winner and awarded the cash prize of $100.

Charles H. Totty, chairman of the schedule committee, announces the scale of points adopted for rose gardens, the same to apply, as far as possible, on rock, bulb and spring gardens; 40 points to be considered for artistic design, general effect and accessories; 20 points for variety; 20 points for cultural perfection; 20 points for practicability. Total, 100 points. The final schedule is now in the course of preparation and will be distributed about March 1.

Space rentals to date amount to over $13,000, a very creditable showing, and as the available space is limited it will be necessary for intending exhibitors to make immediate arrangements if they desire favorable accommodations.

BANQUET OF NEW YORK AND NEW JERSEY PLANT GROWERS.

San Francisco.

STOCK PLENTIFUL AND BUSINESS GOOD.

The market in this city has been in splendid condition during the past few weeks. Stock of all kinds has been coming along a little more freely, but it is the unanimous opinion of the trade that business is good, much more so, in fact, than at the corresponding season last year. The extreme cold spell has left us and the warm sunny days have had a very beneficial effect on all growing stock. Carnations are much more plentiful than at any time during the season. Good stock is still bringing $3 to $4 per 100. Poorer grades and splits bring very much less. The quality of the blooms is just now splendid and some grand Matchless, Pink Sensation and Belle Washburn arrive daily. Carnation prices have held up much better this season than in former years. The rose stock is all that could be wished for. While the cut coming in is large, prices are very firm and the best stock is selling at good figures. American Beauties are more plentiful and so is Russell. We noted some splendid Hadley during the week. Richmond is still grown by some of the Japanese growers. Ophelia is just as popular as ever. Quite a few sweet peas are to be seen, but with few exceptions are sadly lacking in quality. Cattleyas are plentiful and move very well at steady prices. A few cypripediums are noted once in a while. Quite a few odontoglossums are available also. Violets are now in their glory and can be had in any quantity. Enormous shipments of this popular flower arrive daily, a great portion of which finds its way to the street peddlers. Gardenias are rather scarce with prices well held. Tulips and daffodils are in great quantities. Some splendid Lilium giganteum and longiflorum are arriving daily. The stock seems to be very fine this season. Prices for good stock hold up in good shape. Every florist reports his St. Valentine's day's business much in advance of former years. Little or no space was used by the florists in the daily papers to push the sale of stock for that day. The demand for greens is very steady. This is one item that is in rather short supply. Smilax is very scarce and hard to get, owing to the severe cold weather.

NOTES.

J. S. Sweet, at Santa Rosa, has just published a very interesting booklet on "How to Grow Chrysanthemums." Mr. Sweet is probably the leading amateur grower on this coast and his blooms at the show in Santa Rosa last fall would have done great credit to our best commercial growers. His book is well written and will prove of much benefit to intending growers.

The third annual California wild flower show will be held in the Fairmont hotel, April 24-28. The show will be directed by Mark Daniels, former national superintendent of parks. Every part of the state will contribute to the wild flower exhibition this year. It is estimated that over 900 varieties were displayed at the last exhibition.

After three years as a member of the Art Floral Co., Julius has withdrawn from the company and in future will devote his entire attention to his store in the St. Francis hotel. He is now busily engaged in an extensive landscape planting near Portola, where a great number of beautiful landscape designs are being executed.

At the last monthly meeting of the Menlo Park Horticultural Society the members were treated to a very interesting lecture by Leonard Coates, of Morgan Hill, on "Native California Trees and Shrubs." Mr. Coates has long been recognized as an authority on California flora and his lecture was well received.

The E. W. McLellan Co. has been receiving quite a few finely grown sweet peas from their Burlingame greenhouses. Owing to the high quality of the stock splendid prices are being received. Shipping business keeps up steadily with this firm.

The Art Floral Co. showed some splendidly grown Erica Melanthera last week. Manager Matraia says that business is very good. Owing to the Mardi Gras during the coming week, heavy orders are already being booked.

The display of orchid blooms in the MacRorie-McLaren store were much admired during the week. Most of the blooms were of great size. They report the demand for this class of stock to be unusually heavy this season.

The automobile show, which closed during the week, helped the trade in many ways. The decorations were very elaborate and great quantities of flowers were used up daily and also by the society throngs at night.

Martin Poss, of the Floral City Nursery at San Mateo, is a daily visitor to the flower market. Mr. Ross is greatly pleased with the way business is keeping up and is looking forward to a very busy spring.

H. S. Maddux has been appointed secretary of the state horticultural commission. He succeeds E. J. Vosler, who has been sent to Australia to secure parasites to combat the beet leaf hopper.

Kenneth S. Murray, the rose grower, has purchased quite an addition to his property at Redwood City. It is his intention to add to his already extensive range of glass in the near future.

George Draycott has returned after several years' stay in the southern part of the state and is now in charge of a section at the MacRorie-McLaren Co.'s greenhouses at San Mateo.

BUSINESS IS QUIET.

Weather conditions have moderated and the same may be said of trade. The arrival of the Lenten season, which always puts a quietus on social events, was no exception this year. The supply of flowers is equal to all demands, with the exception of American Beauties, which continue scarce. Other roses are plentiful and carnations are good stock. While the receipts of bulbous stock are of generous proportions, there is no surplus. Fundamental work has been plentiful and well divided.

NOTES.

On February 15 six of the local trade journeyed to Cornell University at Ithaca, N. Y., for the winter meeting of the New York State Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs. There were about 60 at the meeting, which is always held during farmers' week at the university. A lot of business was transacted and the necessity of the federation was demonstrated this time. The meeting in New York in March should be well attended as reports of interest to the florists, market gardeners, and horticulturists will be given at that time. President F. R. Pierson presided and the meeting was addressed by Commissioner Wilson of the New York state fair commission. Full reports will be made by the secretary, but it certainly behooves all florist and horticultural clubs and societies to join the federation. The exhibit of roses by John H. Dunlop, Richmond Hill, Ont., and F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., were good, Mr. Dunlop showing Russell, Hoosier Beauty and Shawyer, the finest the writer has seen. The basket arrangements of the students were very fine and good taste in color arrangements was shown. The brides' bouquets and corsages arranged by Mr. Slattery of W. J. Palmer & Son's, Buffalo, and the novelties sent by G. E. M. Stumpp of New York were acquisitions to the exhibition and certainly lent encouragement to the students, who expect to make floriculture their life work.

Marking the close of a busy season and in appreciation of the winter's work, S. A. Anderson entertained his employes, to the number of about 40, at a dinner at the Hotel Iroquois, February 21, followed by a theatre party. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson joined in the festivities and S. J. Mahoney made a most acceptable toastmaster. Toasts were responded to by Mr. Anderson and Miss Lindsay of the office, Frank Adams of the Elmwood store, Carl Butz, greenhouse superintendent, Mr. Miller of the J. N. Adam branch and J. A. Cannon of the store. Many others were called upon but were overcome by modesty and articulation failed. The review of reviews was assigned to Mr. Anderson, and like the others, his modesty prevented his naming the peculiarities of all, but Me My Henry, Edna Peters, and the boys were duly remembered. The absence of Miss Redmond, Miss Hoke and Herr von Fiebelkorn was much regretted, and last, but not least, "Dan," the first light of the delivery system, was also absent.

A bill has been introduced in the state legislature pertaining to Sunday closing of flower shops, which from sentiment expressed throughout the state should make it a law. Flowers, if people could be made to realize, can be handled on Saturday as well as on Sunday and it is only a question of time when many more lines of business will be forced to close on this day. Why wait and be put in that class?

Many florists and other large users of coal have had a hard time, the cold weather eating into the coal pile and causing a shortage.

Visitors: J. H. Dunlop, Toronto, Ont.; Max Beattus, Dayton, Ohio, and several bulb representatives from Holland, whom we are always pleased to see.

BISON.

WORCESTER, MASS.—Randall's Flower Shop will move from 13 Pleasant street to more commodious, handsomely decorated quarters at 22 Pearl street about April 1.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind.—Prof. A. H. Nehrling, of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst, has taken over the establishment of McDonald & Steele and will devote his attention to this business after the close of the present school year.

Pittsburgh, Pa.

MARKET CONDITIONS UNCHANGED.

Market conditions have not changed much since last report, except there is a good supply of all stock, especially sweet peas. It seems as though every one is growing larger quantities this year. The market has been overcrowded this week with these flowers. The quality is fine and loads of them are sold, not at the top price, but they are moved each day at some price, as the next day the same amount or more will be received. Lent is now here and some change in the market is expected, but everyone has loads of money to spend and the flower business may not suffer any decline. Carnations are not so plentiful, but indications are that large crops of roses and carnations are about due. Roses are now coming in in larger quantities than any time before and naturally dropped in price. Novelty roses are hard to move at any price. There are quantities of freesias, tulips, daffodils, mignonette and almost any other flower that large buyers call for. Violets are sold mostly to the street men. Greens are scarce and bring good prices.

NOTES.

At the next regular meeting of the florists' club a very interesting lecture will be given on the "Cliff Dwellers of the Rio Grande and Grand Canyon of Colorado." Stereopticon views and motion pictures will be shown, which will interest all who attend, as well as being instructive. All members and their ladies are invited, as well as florists who are not members. Lunch will be served and all who attend are assured of a pleasant evening. Suppose we all come out the first Tuesday of March.

Ross Adgate, of the McCallum Co., has started on a southern trip which will consume about two months. He will call on the trade, showing his complete line of supplies.

Chas. Lindacher of Canton, O., was in the city last week, purchasing supplies for his increased business.

Visitor: C. W. Kinder of Donora, M.

Boston.

MARKET WEAKENS DURING LENT.

The market has fallen off considerably during the past week, February 22 being a holiday, and the first week of Lent seeming to cause a general depression. Roses are moving slowly, prices having dropped to $12.50 per 100. Carnations are very plentiful, $1 to $2.50 being the average prices. Bulbous stock such as tulips and jonquils are moving slowly. Violets are going fairly well at 40 cents per 100. There is an abundant supply of freesia and lily of the valley, both of which seem to drag. Business all through the entire trade seems to be depressed, but it is hoped that after this week there will be an improvement.

NOTES.

The Gardeners' & Florists' Club held its annual carnation night February 20. The meeting was one of the most interesting and active assemblies which the club has had for some time. The exhibits were unusual. There were about 1,500 blooms of carnations from some of the best growers in the country, and the speakers included the best authorities on carnations. C. S. Strout and S. J. Goddard were scheduled to speak and in addition David Ward, of the Cottage Gardens Co., Inc., J. A. Nelson of Framingham, W. D. Howard of Milford and W. E. Lenk of the Halifax Gardens gave interesting talks. Mr. Goddard, in his talk, caused quite a discussion as to the propriety of awarding the highest honors to new seedlings until they have been thoroughly tried out. Mr. Strout gave a very beneficial talk, as he clearly showed the advantage of the systematic recording of varieties and their output, a very important item of modern business, which is often neglected by growers.

Edward Murray, of the staff of Thos. F. Galvin's Back Bay store, has gone to a hospital to undergo an operation. He is well and favorably known to the trade of both Boston and New York, having previous to locating here been with J. H. Small & Sons of New York.

We were pleased to meet Charles F. Boyle, who is now manager of Thos. F. Galvin's Back Bay store. He is not a large man, but has a lot of brains, and is well posted on every phase of the florist business.

David Duncan, of Arlington, died at his home February 22 after two years' illness. Mr. Duncan was well known among the trade, having been in the business for about 30 years. Mr. Duncan and Wm. Sim, now at Cliffondale, were once partners at Arlington.

On February 14 a fire caused about $600 damage at the establishment of Daffen & Humes, at East Weymouth.

Friends of Peter Miller, of the Thos. J. Grey Co., offer their sympathy upon the loss of his father, who died at his home in Glasgow, Scotland.

Mrs. Rogers will move her store to the corner of Summer and South streets about March 1. The new store will be half of the old Liggett drug store, facing South street, a model flower shop for this district.

Philip L. Carbone reports his safe arrival in France, where he is buying pottery for his Boyleston street store.

Mrs. Paul Brigham of Westboro is confined to the hospital in Waltham with scarlet fever.

Kansas City, Mo.

GOOD BUSINESS AND STOCK PLENTIFUL.

Business is quite brisk at the opening of the Lenten season, but the demand is principally for funeral work and flowers for the sick. Pot plants, especially the bulbous varieties, move well. Roses are of fine quality, more plentiful and lower in price and carnations have taken quite a fall. Sweet peas, some with 14 to 16 inch stems, are seen and lilies are once more included in the offerings. Bulbous stock improves daily.

NOTES.

Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. reports the demand for cut stock picking up. Baskets and pot plants are moving better than for some time. Large quantities of bulbous stock are being handled.

H. Kusik & Co. are rushed to the limit in an endeavor to keep up with the heavy demand for wire work. Lilies are now being handled here in large quantities.

Arthur Newell reports the best week's business so far this year. Funeral work, both local and out-of-town, has been brisk and the call for hospital flowers has been heavy.

T. J. Noll & Co. have received a fine line of baskets for their Easter trade. A fine line of good stock in variety is to be seen at this establishment.

Charles Biederman & Son report good business in funeral orders. Their bulbous stock is coming on in excellent shape.

W. J. Barnes is cutting heavily in bulbous stock and carnations. Pot plants are moving out fast.

Fred Fromholdt's delivery car was damaged to the extent of $150 in an accident last week.

Ed. Ellsworth of the Rosery, reports heavy sales of bulbous stock.

E. J. B.

Cincinnati.

HEAVY SUPPLY AND PRICES WEAKEN.

With the beginning of Lent, receipts of cut flowers in this market became much heavier than they were and caused a drop in prices. Business is not as good as it was previous to Lent, but at that the wholesalers managed to clean up very substantially at the end of last week. The shortage in roses and carnations is over and receipts in each are now able to care for all present needs. Sweet peas have become so plentiful that the wholesalers can not move all they receive and many find their exit via the ash-barrel. Easter lilies and callas are plentiful. Excellent daffodils, tulips, hyacinths and narcissi are coming into the market. The best stock has a fairly ready sale. Single violets are very plentiful, but have a poor market. Other offerings include rubrum lilies, lily of the valley, orchids and marguerites.

NOTES.

C. E. Critchell received his first shipment of asparagus February 26, from the Lake Shore Ferneries, at Leesburg, Fla., since the freezing weather there a fortnight ago.

R. A. Betz, of Trome's Flower Shop, has the sympathy of his friends in the death of his wife, which occurred February 25.

J. T. Conger, who has been on the sick list, is at his desk again.

P. J. Olinger and wife went to New Castle, Ind., February 26.

TRADE IN MARKED DECLINE.

There is a slump in trade, following months of almost uninterrupted good business. The social season has slowed down and funeral work has fallen off very materially. Except for short-stemmed roses, which show a tendency to become higher, there is an abundance of everything. The weather for the past week has been so favorable to carnations and sweet peas that the prices of $1 a dozen on the former and 50 cents a bunch on the latter are not expected to stand up much longer. Tulips and other pot plants are really stronger than cut flowers, but there is no trouble in meeting the demand on anything reasonable. Florists are now making haste to clean up on azaleas, without much regard to cost. Much of this stock did not mature for the holiday trade, and the quality at best was poor. Otherwise the winter's business has been most satisfactory, and the trade is able to stand a dull period without feeling it keenly.

NOTES.

Prof. Alfred C. Hottes, of the department of floriculture, Ohio State University, gave a lecture at the First Congregational church, February 19, on "Site, Soil, Preparation, Plants and Planting of Roses." The occasion was a meeting of the Columbus Horticultural Society. The society is making an effort to promote enthusiasm in the growing of roses, and the address was an inspiration to the good-sized audience.

A large section of additional basement space has been taken on by T. J. Ludwig, giving a total of 1,500 square feet beneath the store proper, with an outside street entrance. This space was formerly utilized by a shoe store as a bargain salesroom, and is in fine condition. The whole floor will be devoted to storage and work tables, thus relieving the store itself of congestion and litter.

O. C. Grice will have five greenhouses at his new range on the River road north of the city. In addition to those which will be moved from the Woolman plant on the Hilltop, which he recently purchased, he will build a new house 40x200 feet.

CONSIDERABLE INCREASE IN SUPPLY.

There is considerably more stock on the market this week than for some time past. Bulbous stock of course leads in supply, such as single and double daffodils, Keizerkroon, La Reine and Murillo tulips, Easter and calla lilies, Paper White and Poeticus narcissi. Carnations, too, have increased in supply, but have maintained their own in demand. Sweet peas are more plentiful, and are lower in price. Lily of the valley is good stock. Violets are moving better. Asparagus has been very scarce. Maiden Hair fern cleans up daily. Roses are in better supply, but mostly in the shorter grades. American Beauties arrive daily, but long stock has been scarce. Some very good Ophelia, Rhea Reid and Mme. Pirrie roses are in good supply, also shorter grades of Pink and White Killarney and Wards. Snapdragon in pink, white and yellow clean up daily. Calendulas meet with a good sale.

The window display at the J. M. Gasser Co.'s retail store, 1006 Euclid avenue, has attracted many people the past week. It represents, and is a very good reproduction of their farm and greenhouses at Rocky River, O., showing each house filled with blooming flowers, the residence of the superintendent, the terrace where the employes live, barns, boiler houses, coal piles, liquid fertilizer ponds, etc. It is really a good advertisement, well executed, even to the smallest detail. Much credit is due F. C. W. Brown for his skill and ability as a craftsman.

C. F. B.

Nashville, Tenn.

BUSINESS VERY SATISFACTORY.

Improved weather conditions during the past week brought in a much larger, though not an abundant supply of flowers. Carnations are the leaders in quality at present and they are quite plentiful. The rose supply is improving, but the quality is none too good, the blooms being rather small and insignificant in appearance. There are mignonette, snapdragons and a few pansies, excellent stock, and a fine lot of sweet peas in all colors. Violets are beginning to come in plentifully and are much sought. Bulbous stock and lilies help out the situation. There are many beautiful pot plants on sale. Business has been good, especially in funeral work, many handsome designs having been turned out recently.

NOTES.

L. H. Haury & Sons have splendid pot plants and have arranged a very attractive window display. The younger Louis Haury has established a very nice range of six houses, each 30x100 feet on Heiman street and is confining his attention to growing bedding plants and vegetables, among the latter, large beds of lettuce, radish, parsley, tomato and cabbage plants, all of which look vigorous and healthy.

The Joy Floral Co. is receiving a nice lot of roses. They also have an abundant supply of jonquils and narcissi in variety.

Geny Bros. have excellent stocks of sweet peas and lilies and are cutting violets in quantity.

OBITUARY.

The Late D. R. Mayo.

The late Daniel R. Mayo, of Knoxville, Tenn., whose sudden death was noted in our issue of February 24, page 310, was for the past 30 years a prominent figure in local business circles, and was for many years engaged in conducting a grocery store on South Gay street, north of the Appalachian hotel. He entered this business immediately after coming to Knoxville. He then entered the seed business and established his store at its present location on South Gay street.

Mr. Mayo was born September 28, 1854, being the eldest son of Lawrence S. and Mary T. Mayo. He was born in Monroe county, Ark., and came to Knoxville in 1880, and was married February 5 of that year to Annie E. Swift, eldest daughter of the late Dr. T. J. Swift. To this union were born six children, only two of whom survive, a son and a daughter. The son is Dale R. Mayo and the daughter is Miss Laura Swift Mayo. Mrs. Mayo also survives him. One brother, P. C. Mayo, of Holly Grove, Ark., and two sisters, Mrs. Bond, of Jackson, Tenn., and Mrs. James Parker, of Lake Village, Ark., also survive him.

The deceased was widely known as an upright citizen and business man who dealt fairly with his patrons. Since he has been engaged in the seed business he established a large and flourishing trade and had customers in practically all parts of East Tennessee and adjoining territory. He was regarded as a loyal and appreciative business man. His passing will be regretted by hundreds who knew him and respected him for his splendid character. The funeral services were held at the late residence, 721 Eleanor street, February 18.

Gustave Knoch.

Failing to renew his health in Florida, where he had spent six weeks, Gustave Knoch, 2463 Fort street west, Detroit, Mich., hanged himself among the flowers in his store, February 28. He had suffered from a nervous breakdown, due to overwork.

Besides his widow, five sons and three daughters survive him. These are Herbert, Clinton, Hazen P., Shirley and Sheldon Knoch; Mrs. Hiram L. Henderson, of California, and the Misses Minerva and Althea Knoch. Mrs. Caroline Roeder, of Detroit, is his sister.

Mr. Knoch was born in Detroit 51 years ago. He had been in the florist business more than 30 years, having built up the large establishment on Fort street west by his own efforts.

The funeral services were held from the residence at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, March 1, and the trade was well represented in beautiful displays of floral tributes.

AMES, IA.—Forester Meyer of the Minneapolis, Minn., park system, delivered two lectures at the Iowa Agricultural College here, February 2.

NATICK, MASS.—Robert Montgomery, who was injured in a fall in New York several weeks ago, is recovering and will be well again in a short time.

DICKINSON, N. D.—E. H. Knapp will open a retail store here in the near future. Buchbinder Bros., of Chicago, have the order for the fixtures, including the refrigerator.

DUNDEE, SCOTLAND.—The commanding of burlap stocks is likely to make higher prices.

A BILL in the Illinois legislature to provide $1,200 per year for each county to help pay salary of a county agricultural adviser has been favorably recommended.

GREAT BRITAIN has placed an embargo on the following items of interest to horticulturists: flower and fruit baskets, flowers (artificial and fresh), raw fruits and Soja beans.

THE recent Florida frosts damaged the handsome specimen acalyphas, bougainvilleas and hibiscus in many parts of the state to such an extent that they had to be cut back to the ground.

ENTHUSIASM is the mainspring of business. It keeps one keyed up and on edge for the best that is in him. Without this inspiring force there can be little hope for success. Hitch your wagon to a star and you will get there.

Illinois State Florists' Association.

An excellent programme has been prepared for the annual meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association, which will be held at Champaign, March 6-7. The Chicago party will leave the Park Row station, on the Illinois Central railroad, March 6, at 9:15 a. m., due at Champaign at 12:15 p. m. An attractive programme has been prepared, including the reports of officers and work at the experiment station. The election of officers for the ensuing year will take place at the afternoon session Tuesday, March 6, and the workrooms of the students in horticulture and floriculture will be open for inspection the following day.

Chicago Novelty Show.

Arrangements have been completed by the good of the club committee, George Asmus, chairman, to hold a novelty show and jubilee at the New Hotel Morrison, Thursday afternoon and evening, March 8, to which every florist in Chicago and vicinity is invited, special arrangements having been made to entertain a large attendance of the trade.

Guy French has been appointed manager of the show, and growers of novelties and members of the club are especially invited to send exhibits of cut flowers and plants, which will be displayed in Parlors B5 and B6 of the hotel. The exhibition, to which plans are now being made to invite the public, will be open for inspection from 3:00 p. m. until 10:30 p. m. All exhibits should be sent, express paid, to "A. Zech, Flower Show, care of New Morrison hotel, Chicago," to reach destination Thursday morning, March 8. All exhibits will be displayed to the best advantage.

The jubilee, in honor of the students of the University of Illinois, who will attend the meeting, will be in the form of a fine chicken dinner, which will be served promptly at 6:30 p. m., on the same floor as the exhibition. Dinner tickets are $1.50 each (refreshments and cigars with compliments of the florists' club.) Everyone in the trade should attend and bring a guest and meet these young men, who have promised to stage a very interesting exhibit from the university greenhouses.

Come! Let's make this the banner meeting of the year. Please notify F. Lautenschlager, 440 West Erie street, Chicago, immediately, how many reservations you wish.

F. LAUTENSCHLAGER,
Chairman Publicity Committee.

Discount Regulation

IN NEBRASKA, IOWA AND KANSAS.

At a joint meeting of the Nebraska, Iowa, and Kansas florists, held at Lincoln, Neb., January 16, it was agreed to adopt the following system of discounts and terms, which are to apply to agents in small towns, through which much of their business is transacted. A committee was appointed who recommended the following plan of payment and rate of discounts:

Bills are due first of each month following purchases.

No discount to show on invoices.

Twenty per cent discount allowed on bills paid on or before the 10th of the month; 10% for payment after the 10th; no commission on bills unpaid after 60 days from date of invoice.

Packing charges added to all invoices for plants and on outflower orders, requesting packing in separate boxes.

This action was brought about to create a uniform system of discounts which heretofore had varied from 20 to 40 per cent. Over two hundred florists in these states have been asked to adopt this system, and all, so far as heard from, have been favorable to the movement, which went into effect February 1, 1917.

The committee consists of Roy F. Wilcox, Council Bluffs, Ia.; J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.; F. X. Stuppy, St. Joseph, Mo.; Chas. J. Mueller, Wichita, Kas.; Jas. P. Wilson, Des Moines, Ia.; C. H. Frey, Lincoln, Neb.

Getting together of the trade is always productive of good results in any community. In this case it is primarily to fix a standard trade discount of 20 per cent allowed to all agents, which amount is to be their profit for securing the business. Their agents should adopt the system of part cash with order, balance on delivery. No other plan is safe in handling such perishable stock.

With success in this movement, such a united body can go ahead and bring about other reforms and economies, such as selling and publicity campaigns when flowers are plentiful and on special holidays. The personnel of this able committee would bring success to any movement.

Glass Prices Up.

An explanation of the 10 per cent advance in the price of window glass is given in the recent circular of the Johnston Brokerage Co. as follows: "During the past month fully one-half of the factories of the country have been out of blast, and at certain periods two-thirds of the plants have been closed down on account of lack of fuel and materials, poor railroad service, etc. This has retarded the completion of our old contracts and has made deliveries of new business very uncertain, until our old business has reached a point where the factories do not care to increase it at present discounts at the present time."

Handling the Surplus.

Now that the time of the surplus is approaching, it is up to the producers and handlers of the stock to provide an outlet before the wheels of trade become clogged and stall the machine. Every retail dealer, large and small, should be approached with inviting proposals and shown the advantage and profit in handling larger quantities of stock at lower prices. Many live men have seen the light and are quick to profit whenever opportunities of this kind appear. Others, however, still need to be shown, but once get them started, they will never drop out, and become no small factors in helping to carry the load.

"Hamburg Late White" Chrysanthemum

CERTIFICATE OF MERIT awarded by Chrysanthemum Society of America.

PICTURE was taken Dec. 10, 1916, and will give a good idea of the symmetrical form of flowers of "Hamburg Late White." These flowers were cut from plants grown from single stems and planted six inches each way.

"HAMBURG LATE WHITE" is pure white under all weather conditions, and is a sport of Maud Dean white, but has no trace of pink, as the original.

The average grower of chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle, and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. "Hamburg Late White" has been grown for the last four years, and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but for late white, one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November, by taking an early bud, but by selecting later buds, most of the flowers are cut during December, and would advise to select a late bud, as the later buds come somewhat fuller, and by selecting late buds, flowers can be had as late as the middle of January.

Keeping qualities are excellent, and where a light, graceful white flower is wanted, "Hamburg Late White" cannot be surpassed.

"Hamburg Late White" will be disseminated in the Spring of 1917. Plants will be ready April 1st, 1917, and all orders will be filled in rotation.

LENT BRINGS NO TRADE DIMINUTION.

The Lenten season has brought no diminution of business thus far, and some dealers report a steady increase as spring approaches. This is especially true in the movement of bulbous plants and cut flowers, the display of which seems to awaken increased interest in the flower buyers and their indulgence in them is a natural result. Excepting roses and lily of the valley, there seems to be a heavy supply of all the other seasonable flowers. An unprecedented supply of freesias is afflicting the market, and but little is used, at low prices. Sweet peas are arriving in great quantities, but they are fine and most of them are disposed of at fairly remunerative prices. Carnations are now in soft condition, owing to the continuous cloudy weather, and their sale is slow. Easter lilies are rather scarce, and those available are bringing good prices, while Paper Whites and all other bulbous cut stock are, even this early in the season, bringing discouraging returns to the growers.

NOTES.

Frank Holznagle suffered a heavy loss by fire Sunday night, February 25. The service building, over 100 feet long, connecting the two ranges of greenhouses was completely destroyed, as were the ends of all the adjoining greenhouses and the stock in them. Fortunately, a greater loss by frost was arrested because of the mild weather prevailing, which enabled him to temporarily enclose the burned ends of the houses and succeeded in protecting much of the remaining stock. It appears that the fire originated by suspended electric light wires coming in contact with the metal or wires of an automobile that came into the building late that evening. The gasolene of the machine was ignited, and that was responsible for the rapid work of the flames.

Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa., gave a stereopticon lecture on roses at the Twentieth Century Club building on February 23. The address was given under the auspices of the home and school gardening committee of the club, and was most interesting and instructive. Mr. Pyle showed examples of the finer rose gardens of Europe and America and strongly urged the people of Detroit to inaugurate this form of development of the queen of all flowers. The president of the club announced at the meeting that the committee had, through its members, put up nearly 300,000 seed packets for the use of the school children during the coming season.

Geo. A. Rackham, who some time ago retired to a small fruit farm at Northville, Mich., has been quite ill with nervous prostration. Late reports of his condition show some improvement, and his many friends are hoping for his early and complete recovery.

The Detroit bowlers will go to Cleveland Thursday, March 1, to play the return games with the Forest City boys in the contest for the Michigan Cut Flower trophy, which went to that city in the initial contest in January last.

NORMAL CONDITIONS RETURN.

The weather man is now issuing regular rations of sunshine to this vicinity and normal conditions are now prevailing locally. Carnations in great abundance are now in evidence everywhere and prices are lower in consequence. Some extra long stemmed flowers are to be seen. St. Valentine's day was observed here to a certain extent and there was considerable business in made-up baskets, many of the designs being exceptionally artistic. A number of the trade arranged special windows for the occasion.

NOTES.

The Broadway Florists are always very busy, the entire force being especially rushed recently handling the transient trade in addition to usual telephone orders. Jack D'Artignac, the designer and decorator at this establishment, arranged a very handsome banquet design recently in which over 5,000 daffodils, in addition to many ferns, were used. Jack is certainly an artist in his line.

O. C. Saake featured a very nicely arranged window for St. Valentine's day. He has been showing some very fine roses, especially September Morn, with stems strong enough for a fish pole. Some excellent Ophelia, Prima Donna and some good hyacinths were also seen at this establishment.

Seki Bros. & Co. have an immense stock of carnations. Trade is reported excellent and Mr. Seki, who is always optimistic, is well pleased with the business outlook.

Wright's Flower Shop, Inc., was well decorated with Valentine baskets in beautiful designs. They had many orders and a busy day.

Wolfskill Bros. & Morris Goldenson had a house of carnations and many special orders were filled for St. Valentine's day designs.

J. W. Wolters had as usual a very artistic arrangement for St. Valentine's day. Some especially fine gentas were seen here.

STOCK IS MORE PLENTIFUL.

Stock of all kinds is more plentiful at this writing, especially roses, which have been a little on the short side for some time. American Beauty roses are none too numerous, but there are plenty to go around at slightly reduced figures. Some especially fine Mrs. Chas. Russell are being offered, which are as perfect as it is possible to grow them at this season of the year. The large quantity of Mrs. Chas. Russell roses that are being offered has affected the American Beauty market to some extent, although the receipts of the last named variety have been increasing steadily the past week. Roses in general are more plentiful and are selling at lower prices than they have been for several months. Carnations are in good supply and are moving fairly well considering the general market conditions. Sweet peas are in extra large supply and very fancy stock is obtainable in large lots at very reasonable prices. Lilies and callas are more plentiful but clean up pretty well right along. Lily of the valley continues to hold its own and so do gardenias. Orchids are none too plentiful and what few are arriving find a ready market. Violets are not moving as well as they should. Calendulas are seen in large quantities everywhere, but appear to clean up every day at satisfactory figures. Southern jonquils made their appearance this week, but from all reports, the crop will not be as large as in former seasons, owing to the damage sustained during the recent frosts. Tulips are to be had in quantity at bargain prices, which holds good for bulbous stock in general not already mentioned. Very few Paper White narcissi are seen, but at that what little stock is offered is not bringing the prices that one would expect, owing to the limited quantity. Snapdragons, candytuft, stevia, daisies, pansies, mignonette, bouvardia and forget-me-nots, are included in the many other offerings. Greens are selling at better prices, especially Asparagus plumosus nanus and A. Sprengeri. Taken all in all, business is not as brisk as it might be, but it is much better than one would expect for the first week in Lent.

RUBBER HOSE PROPOSALS.

Sealed proposals will be received by the South Park Commissioners, Fifty-seventh street and Cottage Grove avenue, until 12 o'clock noon, Wednesday, March 7, 1917, for approximately 40,000 feet of one-inch rubber hose, delivered to 5818 Cottage Grove avenue. Specifications and blank bidding forms may be obtained at the above named office. A deposit of five per cent of total bid, either in currency or certified check, payable to the South Park Commissioners, must accompany each proposal as a guaranty of good faith. The successful bidder will be required to enter into a contract and give a surety bond in the sum of 25 per cent of estimated amount of contract. The right is reserved to reject any or all proposals, or any part of a proposal.

NOTES.

The demand for young American Beauty rose plants is very heavy and many of the growers are refusing orders for same. Whether the demand signifies that this variety will be grown more heavily next season or not remains to be seen, but the present indications are that it will be. One grower, who had 27 large houses devoted to this variety two years ago, will discard it altogether next season to make room for Mrs. Chas. Russell.

E. A. BEAVEN, Evergreen, Ala.

Practically all the local wholesale florists are now charging for boxes at actual cost on all shipping orders. The high cost of operating greenhouses this season has made this step absolutely necessary. Many of the houses have been charging for boxes for some time, while others figured the charge in at first cost, which practically amounts to the same thing.

An excellent programme has been prepared for the annual meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association, which will be held at Champaign, March 6-7. The local party will leave the Park Row station, on the Illinois Central railroad, March 6 at 9:15 a. m., due at Champaign at 12:15 p. m. H. B. Kennicott, of Kennicott Bros. Co., and wife left February 26 for St. Petersburg, Fla., on a combined business and pleasure trip. Mr. Kennicott will spend some time on his orange grove at St. Petersburg as well as call on the trade in all the principal cities going and coming.

The Chicago Wholesale Cut Flower Association will hold a special meeting in the Gray room at the Hotel Sherman, Thursday evening, March 1, at 6:30 o'clock.

N. J. Wiator, of Wiator Bros., is up and around again, after being on the sick list for several days. Mr. Wiator received a cocoon right from the tree one day this week from George Manos, who is visiting at Lakeworth, Fla. The cocoon came unwrapped with the address and stamp on the shell and attracted the attention of all the visitors at this establishment.

Chairman Asmus, of the National Flower Show Committee, who has been on the sick list for the past two weeks, is progressing slowly and expects soon to be out. Mr. Asmus says the western members of the S. A. F. executive committee will leave this city for New York, March 14.

Emil Reichling, superintendent of the Peter Reinberg greenhouses, evidently thinks very highly of Weiland & Risch's new rose Champ Weiland, for it will be grown on a larger scale than ever at the Reinberg greenhouses next season.

Chas. H. Fisk and wife will leave the latter part of this week for a month's visit in Florida. They plan on visiting H. B. Kennicott and wife at St. Petersburg while they are in the California of the southeast.

J. A. Budlong is showing a large supply of magnificent sweet peas, not to mention the very fancy Mrs. Chas. Russell roses.

Joseph Ziska & Sons report a great increase in business since they have occupied their present quarters at 169-175 North Wabash avenue.

President Miller, of the American Bulb Co., will celebrate the thirtieth anniversary of his birthday on March 4.

Samuel Sellgman severed his connection with the American Bulb Co., Saturday, February 24.

My Friend Bill
Says:

If we would always bear in mind, that, anything we do, to benefit the trade in general, is bound to mean a profit to ourselves in the end, more of us would make an effort to work for the general good of our business.

The Man who only works and strives for his own immediate profit, and, cannot be interested in any undertaking, unless it means a direct gain to him, is only of use to himself in this life, and, no community suffers by losing him.

Only

the determination of all the Real men in our business to help, and not to hinder, to boost, and not to knock his neighbor, the realization that cut-throat competition and contemptible underhand attempts to injure the other man's business, are the weapons of the self-acknowledged failure and the surest and quickest roads to ruin, will result in more good fellowship, a bigger, broader and more profitable business as a whole, and—finally greater returns for every honorable and conscientious man.

Bill Says:

WHY NOT BEGIN TODAY?
Do something for somebody without thought of profit, with all your good will, and you will experience much genuine pleasure and be highly elated that you are so fortunate as to be engaged in such a wonderful business, enabling you to come in contact with such enterprising, broadminded and thoroughly capable men.

Bassett & Washburn are cutting a fine grade of Mrs. Chas. Russell and American Beauty roses, which are without a doubt the finest that this firm has ever offered. Mr. Washburn celebrated the fifty-ninth anniversary of his birthday February 27, and it is needless to add that his many friends in the trade, as usual, remembered him on the occasion.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are strong on all seasonable flowers, particularly bulbous stock, which is in extra large supply with them. Orchids are in good demand at this establishment and clean up at an early hour each day.

Erne & Company, successors to Erne & Klingel, have noticed that the florists in general keep pretty close tab on the trade papers for practically all their orders are now reaching them under their new firm name.

Fritz Bahr is back from a pleasant visit at Red Bluff, Calif. His residence at Highland Park was partly destroyed by fire while he was away, but everything was put back in tip top shape before he reached home.

At Zech & Mann's store the receipts of roses are steadily increasing, but the demand seems to keep pace with the supply, for they clean up nicely every day, considering the general market conditions.

Wiltgen & Freres are doing nicely at their new wholesale store at 173 North Wabash avenue and are carrying a large line of stock, considering the short time that they have been in business.

Felix Reichling and L. Hoeckner, of the Peter Reinberg force, received their first and second degrees in the Knights of Columbus, Ravenswood Council, No. 1009, Thursday evening, February 22.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are showing a large supply of extra fancy lilies from the Pyfer & Olsem greenhouses at Wilmette in addition to a mammoth supply of sweet peas.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner have established quite a trade in green goods, which department, in charge of Henry Arnold, is now an important part of their business.

A. Henderson and John Michelsen visited the Alois P. Frey greenhouses at Crown Point, Ind., February 24, known as the home of the Rainbow freesias.

—WHOLESALE FLORISTS—
30 E. Randolph Street, L. D. Phone, Randolph 6578. CHICAGO, ILL.

The good of the club committee of the Chicago Florists' Club has announced a novelty show and jubilee, to be held at the new Morrison hotel, Thursday afternoon and evening, March 8, to which every florist in this city and vicinity is invited, special arrangements having been made for the entertainment of a large attendance. Growers of novelties and members of the club are especially invited to send exhibits. The jubilee will be in the form of a splendid chicken dinner, at which University of Illinois students will be guests of honor. Full particulars of this event will be found in another column. Tickets for the jubilee are $1.50 and reservations should be made at once through Fred Lautenschlager, chairman of the publicity committee, 440 West Erie street, this city. Poehlmann Bros. Co. is cutting a splendid grade of roses of all kinds, in addition to a complete line of all other reasonable cut flowers. Tim Waters, of the supply department, is distributing a number of rose measures to the wholesale houses, like those that are in use in some cities in the east. The measures are used in grading roses from 6 inches to 24 inches, which are sold according to actual length and not long, medium, and short, as some of the local houses are now doing. Poehlmann Bros. Co. has adopted this plan of selling and so have several of the other houses. H. Van Gelder says that Percy Jones' total sales on February 18 were the largest of any Sunday during the past six years. His out-of-town trade steadily increased, to such extent that extra help has been added to the shipping department. H. N. Bruns, wife and daughter, are expected back from California next week.

Polish Gardeners and Florists' Club.

A new florists' and gardeners' club was organized in Chicago February 18. The membership of the new club is limited to the Polish-speaking florists and gardeners residing in the United States. The purpose of this new organization is to promote social fellowship among its members, encourage higher and better professional education, and assist in finding suitable positions for the members. More than twenty have already joined this new club, and a good many more are expected at the next meeting, which will take place March 4, 1917, at 3 p. m., at Kosciuszko Park Field House, located at Diversey and Avers avenues. Applications for membership from florists and gardeners outside of Chicago should be addressed to Thomas Skorupa, 2740 North Avers avenue, who will gladly furnish all necessary information. Mr. Skorupa, who is superintendent for the northwest park district commissioners, is the promoter of this new organization and is confident that through it much good can be accomplished for the advancement of the profession and its members.

STOCK OFFERED AT BUYERS' PRICES.

Business during the past week has been very quiet. The supply is plentiful and can be had at buyers' prices, and the street men are in consequence reaping their harvest—the first since before Christmas. Carnations wholesale at from $2.50 to $3 per 100 and roses are offered at prices varying from $3 to $10. Lily of the valley is "going a-begging" at $4. American Beauty is the only scarce item. This rose is not to be had at any price.

NOTES.

All local florists are adding flags to their outdoor decorations, in preparation for "inauguration week." Many of the displays are very fine.

MARKET CONDITIONS SATISFACTORY.

Business continues to improve. With the exception of a few rather quiet days the demand has been good. Social functions have been numerous and the call for decorations brisk. Stock has been plentiful and prices are returning to normal. Roses are more plentiful and the quality is good. American Beauty is in good demand with fair supply and prices range from 10 cents to 50 cents. Russell is still scarce but the supply of Killarney, Ophelia, Richmond, Ward, Sunburst and Milady is good and quotations are about as usual. Carnations are plentiful and the best grades move at $3 per 100, lower grades at $2. Bulbous stock is of very good quality and the call for same is good. Sweet peas are plentiful and prices are lower than in previous years. The best Spencers are sold at $1, with the shorter grades offered at 50 cents to 75 cents per 100. Violets are beginning to arrive in quantity and the quality is very good. The best bring $3 per 1,000, lower grades $1.50 and $2. Lily of the valley is scarce but the demand is light. Orchids are plentiful and move well.

HIGH COSTS A TRYING PROBLEM.

The bright sunshine of the past week has had a noticeably good effect on stock, which is showing a marked improvement in quality and a much larger cut. Roses seem to revel in it, and, excepting American Beauties, there is a large supply. Trade is not any too brisk and consequently there is dropping of prices in most varieties. Hoosier Beauties, Ophelia, Shawyer and similar stock is now listed from $4 to $12 per 100, while the top price for Russell is $20. Carnations are plentiful at $1.50 to $2.50 per 100 and $3.50 is the price on select stock. Bulbous stock is quoted at $2 and $3, but if you are in position to use a quantity, price is only a secondary consideration. Where the growers get out on these prices is a mystery, for, with wages advanced and coal, in many instances, at $9.50 a ton, one must be good in jockeying figures to find a profit here. The coal situation has been a trying one, and, although a number have suffered some loss, the most serious are reported from Kitchener, where H. L. Jansen reports $10,000 damage, and W. Wilshire, of North Toronto, has let his place freeze up. The milder weather and help from the railway commission have relieved the shortage, however, and no further anxiety is felt. The storemen are taking advantage of the lower prices of stock and many well filled establishments show evidence that they are trying to push sales; but, with social festivities tabooed, the outlet is not large.

NOTES.

The high cost of living is making all sit up, and home gardening is to be part of the curriculum in the schools of this city. Pupils are to be encouraged to take up this interesting and, it is to be hoped, profitable study, not only in the growing of flowers, but vegetables as well. Prizes will be given, and evening lectures are being arranged for. The government has been seeking quotations on seeds by the thousands of packets, so that it looks as if there will be a dominion-wide distribution.

The annual social meeting of the gardeners and florists was held in St. George's hall February 20, when 150 were in attendance. An elegant programme had been provided, and, under the chairmanship of our genial Thos. Manton, all had a good time. The inner man was well looked after by Messrs. Jay and Mills. The next meeting will take place March 20, at the

GREEN

Cyaceine Flower Coloring for St. Patrick's Day

We have handled this coloring for the past three years and find it to be the most satisfactory green coloring in the market and have never known it to injure flowers in any way, not even destroying their fragrance.

We offer this to you at 50c per package (enough for one or two quarts and will color from 100 to 300 carnations) or three packages for $1.25 postpaid.

Special discounts on large quantities.

It is impossible to get any more coloring imported, therefore order early.

same hall, when the spring show will be held.

Bert Crowherst has perfected his circulator for hot water boilers, and under several severe tests a saving of from 40 to 60 per cent in fuel resulted. This would have been a life-saver to many this season.

VALENTINE TRADE SHOWS POSSIBILITIES.

St. Valentine's day trade was worth while and exceeded that of previous years by a good margin—probably 20 percent. Cut flower stock was mostly sold out by noon, otherwise a greater increase in sale volume would have been recorded. There was no increase of the usual retail prices. Flowering plants including bulbous stock sold well. Roses, carnations, violets and sweet peas shared the glory about equally in the cut-flower section. There was a nice trade among the grown-up sort of people, who probably would have passed by the old style, celluloid angel valentine, thus indicating an enlarged field of possibilities for the florist. The weather was fine—above freezing, and enjoyed by both customer and florist. February business is holding up good, with funeral work a large factor.

NOTES.

Ferdinand Kuechenmeister is doing special jury duty this week and his sons at the greenhouses say that they sort of miss him on some of the rush days.

Herman Fisher, of Marysville, Kan., is attending the Masonic grand lodge in session here this week.

MARKET CONDITIONS NORMAL.

Washington's birthday trade was not up to expectations by any means. This was accounted for, coming as it did at the beginning of Lent. Business, however, was normal. Roses are more plentiful and prices a little lower than a week ago. Carnations are moving well, notwithstanding an oversupply, and a few of the best grades bring $4 per 100. Sweet peas are more plentiful and the prices are very low, though a few of the extra long stems of the orchid type brought $2.50 per 100. Lilies are more abundant and are moving very slowly. Orchids are in good supply with a fair call. Gardenias are plentiful and meet with only a moderate demand. Lily of the valley is in good supply with a declining price. In bulbous stock, Paper Whites are scarce, daffodils plentiful, while freesias are in good supply. A few Roman hyacinths find a fairly good call. In miscellaneous stock there are plenty of antirrhinums, yellow and white daisies, mignonette and pansies, which are moving rather slowly. There is some good lilac which is selling well. Greens are scarce, especially Asparagus plumosus and adiantum. This is on account of the shortage of the stock coming from the south.

NOTES.

A meeting of the plant growers of this city and vicinity was held February 21 at the florists' club rooms, to consider advancing the prices of plants. There was a good attendance, over 100 people being present. Robert Craig, Jr., outlined the growing conditions of many years ago up to the present time—labor conditions—this being practically 50 per cent—coal, and earthen pots, which made it impossible to sell today at the old prices and make a profit. The consensus of opinion was that the prices of all bedding stock must be increased. The following took part in the discussion: A. R. Burton, representing Henry F. Michell Co., Inc.; Harry Betts, Wm. Didden, Mr. Deitrich, the Ashmann brothers, and A. M. Campbell.

J. Otto Thilow has returned from a delightful trip to the Hawaiian Islands in the best of health and spirits.

Morse & Beals, 8 Merrimac square, report a good season's business. They have an attractive store which is well stocked. We remember Walter E. Morse of this firm when he was a "broth of a boy," but even then he was a good designer. He could make the wire frame for practically any design called for and complete it in a tasteful manner, with the flowers. LeForest Beals, his partner, is well and favorably known in the business and political circles of Lowell. At the store of James J. McManmon, 6 Prescott street, we found great activity. He has a fine range on the outskirts of the city, also a nursery, and has by energy and hard work built up a fine business.

New York.

LENTEN SEASON BRINGS USUAL DULLNESS.

With a public holiday immediately following the beginning of Lent, business during the past week was dull. It is realized that the best of the season has passed and that the lean times are approaching. The florists seem to be in a philosophical frame of mind, for just now there are compensations in being a florist. Nobody likes to be called robber! and thief! or other opprobrious names, but many dealers in food, in this city at least, are being thus reviled. As flowers are not articles of diet, the florists are to that extent immune. Reviewing the season, it is almost surprising that the florist business has been so prosperous when the high cost of living has been so prominent. Of course, the greatest sufferers are people who never patronize the florists to any extent, but high prices have borne heavily on the great middle class, which is the mainstay of nearly every business. Roses, which, as we have frequently noted, have kept up in price throughout the winter, have now taken a drop and will soon go lower. American Beauties are high because they are scarce, but there is an abundance of tea roses and the supply is likely to increase. Special Ophelia, a popular rose in this market, now wholesales at from $8 to $12 per 100, whereas but a short time ago $15 was the ruling price. Extras and No. 1s and 2s are more in demand, in all varieties, than the specials and have held up better, but will also be cheaper. Lilies are plentiful. Some of the dealers have been holding short stock for eight cents per flower, but the buyers will offer but six cents as the best stock can be bought for eight and 10 cents. Carnations, bulbous stock other than lilies, sweet peas and violets, are cheap and getting cheaper. The best gardenias bring $4 to $5 per dozen. Various other minor stocks are slow.

February 26—The market is quiet, with a surplus of stock, excepting American Beauties, which are scarce. All roses are growing cheaper. Lilies, sweet peas, carnations and violets are hard to clean up. On account of the cold snap in Florida and the temporary cutting off of the supply of asparagus, there has been a little flurry in prices on home-grown stock, but there is enough to supply the demand, at from $3 to $4 per dozen bunches. Light Florida shipments are arriving and that trade is likely to be normal in a few weeks.

NOTES.

It is a bad situation that does not develop a touch of humor. The wealthy women of the West Side have been insistent on the mayor and public service commission to preserve the beauties of Riverside park from the encroachments of the New York Central railroad. In the parade of East Side women February 24, which developed a riot at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, a banner was carried inscribed: "Mr. Mayor, Never Mind Riverside Drive—We Want Onions, Potatoes, Chickens, Too." Other humorous features are the "investigations" of high prices. One jail sentence would be more beneficial than all the investigations combined, and much less expensive.

Henry Lustgarten, a grower of Manhasset, L. I., suffered a serious loss on the night of February 19, when five of his greenhouses, each 20x100 feet, were destroyed by fire. The cow and automobile shed with one cow and one automobile were also destroyed. Henry Lustgarten is a carnation grower, and a member of the Cut Flower Exchange of this city, where he sells his stock. He is an industrious worker; has a large family of young children and will have much sympathy from the trade on account of this calamity. The loss amounted to nearly $10,000, of which but $500 was covered by insurance.

Frank Millang, of the Cut Flower Exchange, who, accompanied by Mrs. Millang, has just returned from a stay at Palm Beach, Fla., says that they enjoyed the trip. He adds that the recent cold snap has done great damage to the fruit and vegetables of Florida.

Warren Spaulding, who is manager of the salesroom for Thomas Young, Jr.'s Beechwood Heights Nurseries, advises us that business has been encouraging since they opened their store at 57 West 28th street.

Alfred Kottmiller, of 426 Madison avenue, advises us that thus far, Lent has not affected his business, as he was very busy throughout the past week with decorations and in other lines of work.

The appointment of ex-Governor John Franklin Fort of New Jersey, by President Wilson, as a member of the Federal Trade Commission, gives general satisfaction.

L. E. Hauser, of the Cut Flower Exchange, has been somewhat indisposed with an attack of lumbago, but has luckily kept about and attended to business. A. F. F.

Horticultural Society of New York.

A. A. ARNOLD PAPER BOX CO.

1302 W. Division St.,

Chicago,

Illinois.

Fort Wayne, Ind.

Business has not suffered with the coming of the Lenten season. Funeral work has led the demand and orders for weddings and a brisk counter trade have helped. The supply of stock is exceptionally good. Roses, however, are short of the demand.

NOTES.

At a well attended meeting of the florists' club, February 22, W. J. Vesey, Jr., was elected president to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. H. J. Wickman, who has left the city.

A. J. Lanterner & Co. report a good demand for funeral work. The engagement of Miss Hilda Lanterner, well known as a florist of much ability, to R. J. Brown, is announced.

The Doswell Floral Co. is displaying excellent stock. A good demand for spring flowers is reported.

Markey Bros. have been very busy with funeral work. Stock at their range is in fine condition.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are meeting a heavy demand for both roses and orchids.

Edgar Wenninghoff has been very busy with wedding orders of late.

The Flick Floral Co. has added a new Ford to its delivery service.

fifth annual convention, Detroit, Mich.,
June 19, 1917.

VISITED CHICAGO: W. C. Dirself, representing the David Landreth Seed Co., Bristol, Pa.

JOHN LEWIS CHILDS, of Floral Park, N. Y., expects to return from California early in March.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—Onion sets, white, sold here February 15 at 18 cents per pound; browns, 12 cents.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade February 28 were as follows: Timothy, $4.00 to $5.75 per 100 pounds.

J. CHARLES McCULLOUGH, of Cincinnati, is enjoying the balmy Florida breezes and fishing in the vicinity of Palm Beach.

SEARS, ROEBUCK & Co., the well-known Chicago mail order house, had the best business day in its history February 26, sales aggregating $1,200,000.

DETROIT, MICH.—The Twentieth Century Club, of this city, has, through its members, put up nearly 300,000 packets of seed to be distributed among the school children this season.

THE countrywide advocacy of home garden planting of vegetables by the general press, on account of the high prices of foodstuffs, should make good business for the seedsmen this year.

TORONTO, ONT.—Home gardening is to be a part of the curriculum in the schools of this city. The government has been seeking bids on thousands of packets of seed, indicating Dominion wide distribution.

ARNOLD RINGIER, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, and wife, are expected home from California the latter part of the present week or early next week. Mr. Ringier has fully recovered from his attack of grip and Mrs. Ringier is much better.

CUCUMBER TELEGRAPH, according to a recent English writer, originated with a small private gardener near Rollinson's Nursery, at Tooting, Surrey, about 1866, and was distributed by Rollinson at one shilling (a fraction over 24 cents) per seed.

ONION SETS.—At this time of the year the daily onion set market prices at Chicago are made by the commission houses on South Water street, and just now changes are frequent. February 28 these were less-than-carlot prices, yellow and red $4.50, whites, $5 or $5.50, containers extra.

GILROY, CALIF.—L. W. Wheeler, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., says good rains the past week have been very beneficial to the seed crops. Radish probably will be a light crop, as frosts the past month killed the first plantings and the replanted acreage will be late. All other crops promise well at this time, although they have been retarded by the cold weather. It is believed all crops are practically sold, lettuce excepted.

MAIL order seed houses, east and west, report business running well ahead of last year in volume.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—The St. Louis Seed Co., since its recent fire, is occupying temporary quarters in the Rialto building.

CAMBRIDGE, N. Y.—Wm. C. Langbridge, of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., who has been on the sick list, is now greatly improved in health.

GREENE, N. Y.—E. L. Page, of the Page Seed Co., who was recently operated upon in a New York hospital, is gaining rapidly and expects to be able to return home this week.

FURTHER particulars of the late Daniel R. Mayo, of Knoxville, Tenn., whose death was noted in the Seed Trade Department last week, will be found in our obituary column this week.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—C. C. Morse & Co. report that the recent heavy rains have been of inestimable value to their seed crops.—The Hallawell Seed Co. has experienced the best season in the history of the firm.

ABRAHAM ROSENBLUM, said to be the onion king of New York, says there are less than 500 carloads of onions in the United States, while the normal demand to the middle of April when the Texas crop comes in will be 4,000 cars.

COLUMBUS, O.—The Livingston Seed Company is enjoying the most phenomenal business in its history, in the seed department, both wholesale and retail, attributed in great measure to the present high cost of vegetables and the agitation in the newspapers for private planting.

VARIOUS fertilizer companies doing business in the south, where the spring trade is further advanced than in the middle states, report that their business is running 15 per cent ahead of last season, and they have had to call in their traveling salesmen because they think they will be unable to fill increased orders.

Movies of California Seed Fields.

John C. Bodger, of John C. Bodger & Sons Co., Los Angeles, Calif., passed through Chicago last week on his return home. Mr. Bodger reports a very successful business tour of the East, and much interest was taken in the moving pictures of his firm's seed fields which were displayed at various points on the trip.

Free Seed Appropriation.

In the bill making appropriations for the department of agriculture, which recently passed the house and senate at Washington, D. C., the amount provided for seeds, bulbs, trees, vines, cuttings and plants for congressional distribution is $243,720. Other appropriations include the following: Investigating insects affecting truck crops, $47,760, but $20,000 of this amount is to be spent studying diseases of peas and beans, and $25,000 is to certify to shippers the condition of fruits arriving at destination that had been packed under the instructions of the department; safeguarding insecticides, testing articles on the market, etc., $87,430; fixing standards for climax baskets for grapes and containers for berries, small fruits, etc., $1,000; eradication of the brown-tail and gypsy moths, maintenance and quarantining districts for insect pests, $305,050; to combat the Chestnut Blight, white pine blister and other diseases of ornamental trees, $300,000, each state or affected locality to appropriate a like amount to that used by the government; foreign seed and plant department for collection and distribution of rare seeds, bulbs and plants, $93,040; studying and testing commercial seeds, publishing names of firms who sell stock not up to standard, $34,700; investigating insects of deciduous fruit trees, $5,000; investigating diseases of orchard and other fruits, $76,415. The total amount of the appropriation for the department of agriculture is $25,831,213. The bill also gives the secretary of the department of agriculture the power to quarantine any state or territory to prevent import or export of trees or plants of any kind when there is danger of disease or insect infestation. Interested parties are to be given a hearing. Common carriers are to be notified of such a quarantine and the public is also to be notified through advertisements in the newspapers of the district. At such times all inspection, disinfection, certification and methods of delivery will be subject to the rules of the department governing the emergency. For further particulars see the bill, H. R. 19359, copies of which may be had through congressmen.

Burpee's Seeds Grow

NEW ASTER AMERICAN BEAUTY

American grown Aster seed is now acknowledged to be so vastly superior to European grown seed that there is no reason why European grown seed should be at all considered. Even in the Early Queen of the market type American grown seed has been found superior to European. The Royal and Crego types closely follow Queen of the Market, and these are followed by the Late Branching types.

Burpee's New American Beauty Aster is in type of growth and form of flower similar to the Late Branching, but differs in, that all the large blossoms are produced on much longer and heavier stems. In some instances stems measure more than two feet in length. It has the longest blooming period of any Aster that we know of. The large double flowers are of a bright carmine-rose almost identical with the World's Famous American Beauty Rose.

Mr. Fred Howard of Howard & Smith, Los Angeles, California, writes March 29, 1916, in reference to American Beauty Aster, "It is in my opinion one of the most remarkable Asters which has come under my notice. The plants attain a height of some four feet, and the flowers are borne singly at the ends of stems which attain a length of thirty to thirty-six inches. The most remarkable feature to be noted regarding this Aster is the length of time which it remains in flower. The plants at our nursery came into bloom during the month of July, and we were still cutting from them late in September. It is unlikely that they would come into bloom so early under Eastern conditions, but if they come in later I have no doubt the season during which they flower would be equivalent. The stems are absolutely non-lateral branching. The flowers attain an enormous size owing to the fact that the entire sap flow is diverted to the one terminal bud or flower. The color is a distinct shade of carmine-rose. The addition of new colors to this new type of Asters will in my opinion prove to be a strain of great merit."

Burpee's American Beauty Aster is illustrated in color on the front cover of Burpee's Annual for 1917, and now that we have harvested a little more seed than was estimated we have decided to offer it to the Florist Trade. This Superb Aster should have a place in every Aster field. It will certainly prove its superior merit.

Packet containing 40 seeds, 10 cents; packet of 120 seeds, 25 cents; trade packet, 1000 seeds, $1.25.

FLOWER SEEDS FOR FLORISTS

Florists and Market Gardeners, in addition to Burpee's Annual, should have Burpee's Blue List, the Market Growers' Handbook. This is a wholesale price list for commercial planters. Write for this today. A post card will bring it.

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

H. W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., President; H. F. Thompson, Arlington, Mass., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids, Mich., Treasurer.

Next annual convention will be held at Springfield, Mass., in 1917.

POTATOES from Hillsboro, New Brunswick, entered at the port of New York at 80 cents per bushel, have been advanced to $1.12 per bushel by the board of United States general appraisers.

CARIBOU, ME.—Potatoes reached the unprecedented figure of $8.40 per barrel here, February 18, three thousand barrels being sold at that price. Prediction is made that they will reach $10 a barrel before the end of the season.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—Mushrooms, home grown, 50 to 60 cents per pound; lettuce, small cases, 27½ to 30 cents; radishes, 50 to 60 cents, dozen bunches; celery, 75 cents to $1.50, open crate; tomatoes, six baskets, $3.00 to $4.75; cucumbers, per 2 dozen box, $1.50 to $2.50.

New York, Feb. 20.—Celery, per crate, $2.50 to $4.00; cucumbers, 60 cents to $1.75 per dozen; mushrooms, 90 cents to $2.00 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, per lb., 10 to 25 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2.00 to $4.00; lettuce, per strap, $1.00 to $4.00.

Vegetable Prices Still Hit High Spots.

From various points in New Jersey it is reported that on account of the high cost of labor and of seed the farmers will plant no more than they and their immediate families can care for.

It is stated that seed potatoes are being held at $10 per bag and that fancy varieties will go to $12.

New York dealers say that potatoes will be no cheaper until the Florida crop comes in. It is even doubtful if prices will be much less when it does.

Grocers are suggesting rice to their customers as a substitute for potatoes, as it does not cost over 10 cents per pound. About the only other foodstuffs that have not greatly advanced in price are salt codfish, mackerel and herrings, and dried fruits. A. F. F.

Potato Notes.

Five million bushels of potatoes are said by railroad officials to be held up in Aroostook county, Maine, through inability of Bangor & Aroostook Railroad to obtain coal. Railroad has tried to relieve conditions by borrowing a day's supply from Maine Central and by purchase of 500 tons from Canadian mines.

Secretary Wheeler of Massachusetts board of agriculture says that price of potatoes may rise to $20 a barrel in Boston and that higher prices would result if an abnormal number of persons demanded seed potatoes to raise their own crops.

It is estimated that on January 1 there were 9,184,000 bushels of potatoes on hand in New York state, of which about 8,000,000 bushels were held by farmers. Estimated that 5,000,000 bushels are needed for seed.

Marketing Plants for City Gardens.

Never before in our memory has there been such an agitation for city gardening as is now going on nation wide. Interpreted, this means a tremendous demand for seeds and plants. In these notes we will deal with the plant trade only. Having made a specialty for years of producing vegetable plants in quantities, we are in position to give some helpful hints. To simplify matters, we some years ago adopted the standard strawberry quart basket as a carrier for our retail plants and have not changed since.

Into these baskets we transplant seedlings of cabbage, cauliflower, tomato, eggplant, peppers, asters, pansies, nasturtiums, etc., all the way from four plants up to a dozen, in each basket, according to variety, and they are then sold basket and all. Having been grown in these baskets, the plants will stand much handling and reselling, if wholesaled, and the city planters can hold them again if needed until they are ready to plant. Each basket is labeled, to educate the buyers, and we find our business in this line has increased from year to year, and, judging by inquiries, will be heavier than ever this year. Under proper conditions plants are quickly and easily produced, and are often more profitable than some of the florists' plants grown in pots.

MARKETMAN.

Lancaster County Florists' Association.

Two's company, three's a crowd; so there was a crowd of us started to Manheim in a driving snowstorm to visit that borough and the three Hostetters. Eleven of us all told, but we had a merry party and a pleasant visit.

At Munroe Hostetter's we found a general assortment of stock for cutting, sweet peas, carnations, primroses and mignonette; one bed of mignonette had been caught with the cold spell and damaged with frost, but the balance of the place was not hurt.

At Phares Hostetter's we found the entire place covered with the flower that 'toils not, neither does it spin' (calla lilies), some 20,000 in bloom, and more than that number coming on for next season. These covered the ground with not even a path between and the air was filled with sweet peas, and good ones, too, which comes about as near using all of the space possible, for there were not many cubic inches of air unoccupied.

At E. P. Hostetter's everything is done on a large scale and because it is done on a large scale do not imagine it is done haphazard. His houses of Sprengerii and plumosus would gladden the eye of any commission man. H. A. Schroyer says his mignonette is the finest in the county, and Schroyer ought to know, as he uses it by the 1,000. Baby primroses are here by the 10,000 in both pink and a pure white of his own, all used for cutting. Sweet peas have almost taken the place of carnations, and if his rows were stretched end to end the writer would not like to walk their length in one day; he does not talk sweet peas by the 1,000, it is by the 10,000—not every one a gem, but enough gems among them to make his average mighty high, and yet he knows nothing about sweet peas, for, at the meeting in the evening, he said he had nothing to say. In carnations, he had principally Enchantress Supreme and Matchless, with a few very fine Victory. One bed of some 8,000 Matchless in his big King houses was extra good.

In the evening the attendance was not quite up to the mark and the exhibition way off from what it should have been, but was very good considering the condition of the weather. Exhibits of sweet peas were staged by Frank L. Kohr, Phares Hostetter, B. F. Barr and T. J. Nolan brought a bunch from E. P. Hostetter's King house to show what such a house could produce. Having been disappointed in getting the essayist expected, the writer read an article on "Sweet Peas Under Glass," and the subject was so well covered in the article that the discussion following amounted to practically nothing. The writer also gave a resume of the Indianapolis carnation meeting and show and answered many questions as to varieties, etc. The president granted a recess of five minutes when a box of cigars was passed around among those present by Ed. C. Beck to celebrate the arrival of a new girl at his house.

In the question box was one on the coal situation for next season, but the minute co-operative buying is mentioned there is a sudden freeze-up over what had previously been a very cordial assembly, and it will take a harder situation than the present one to get real intelligent co-operation started. It is to be hoped that our sons, or at least our grandsons, will have wiser heads on their shoulders. We are, however, getting together on a few things and invite the attention of the florists in general and the S. A. F. in particular to some things that are going to emanate from Lancaster shortly. At the next meeting, March 15, "Easter Plants," by Thomas Fries, will be the feature.

GOOD SUPPLY OF EXCELLENT QUALITY.

Funeral work and counter trade now consume a large portion of the stock offered for sale in this market. There is a wealth of flowers, the variety and color being among the best of the year's offerings. Bulbous stock is arriving in earnest, especially jonquils, tulips, narcissi and Dutch hyacinths. Other offerings include roses, carnations, violets, sweet peas, etc. Several of the growers are making fine showings of pot plants.

NOTES.

John Marshall, of Fruit Hill, had heavy cuts of good violets for the valentine trade and his sweet peas, also of good quality, sold out without trouble.

Cassidy, the Florist, in the Strand theatre on Washington street, will remove to a new location on Dorrance street.

Geo. Johnson & Son, 521 Elmwood avenue, have sold their nursery and forestry business to Hugo DeWild.

Olney Williams is in good crop with daffodils and carnations, for which there are ready buyers.

The florists are already making preparations for a good Easter business.

Joseph Kopelman is rapidly recovering from his recent illness.

Burke & Burns have been making good deliveries of violets.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

John Watson, Newark, N. Y., President; Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President; Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress Street, Boston, Mass., Secretary and Counsel. Forty-second annual convention will be held at Philadelphia, Pa., June 27-29, 1917.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—John Allan, for many years superintendent of Cornelius Vanderbilt's estate, died February 15, aged 85 years.

COHASSET, MASS.—Cyrus R. Keene, veteran proprietor of the South Shore Nursery, a resident of this city for many years, died February 17, aged 88 years.

ACCORDING to the United States forestry service, the slash pine, a little known but valuable tree, is fast replacing the longleaf pine in the South. Its growth is more rapid and its yield of turpentine larger. The wood is said to be the heaviest, hardest and strongest coniferous wood grown in this country.

Nursery Stock Reappraised.

The board of United States general appraisers has made the following re-appraisements of nursery stock entered November 20, 1916, by D. Van der Vis & Son, Boskoop, Holland: Rhododendron seedlings, 15-18 inches, entered at eight cents, advanced to 12 cents; similar stock, two feet, entered at 12 cents, advanced to 20 cents. Magnolia, six feet, entered at 20 cents, advanced to 30 cents. Pyramid boxwood, four feet, entered at 20 cents, advanced to 35 cents.

The Ohio Nurserymen's Association.

The Ohio Nurserymen's Association held its tenth annual meeting at the Deshler hotel, Columbus, Ohio, February 1. The attendance was larger than at any previous meeting and more than the usual interest was manifested in the discussions. The feeling seemed to be one of optimism, and that the nurserymen could expect from now on an improvement in conditions and prices. Officers of the association were re-elected as follows: T. J. Dinsmore, Troy, president; W. B. Cole, Painesville, secretary; A. R. Pickett, Clyde, treasurer.

Connecticut Nurserymen's Ass'n.

The eleventh annual meeting of the Connecticut Nurserymen's Association was held at Hotel Garde, Hartford, Conn., Wednesday, February 21. It was a very interesting session. The question of foreign importation, diseases of plants, etc., was discussed and much information relative to the latter was obtained through our being favored with addresses from such able speakers as Dr. W. E. Britton, state entomologist; Dr. Geo. B. Clinton, state botanist; W. O. Filley, state forester, F. B. Kelley and others.

Under election of officers, F. S. Baker of Cheshire, Conn., was elected president; C. F. Brainerd, of Thompsonville, vice-president; F. L. Thomas, Hall & Lewis building, Meriden, Conn., re-elected secretary, and W. W. Hunt, of Hartford, re-elected treasurer.

CANNAS

Our Own Introductions

Dreer's New White Canna Eureka

TWO DISTINCT CANNAS—The Last Introductions Received from Germany in the Autumn of 1914

Lahneck. In this variety we have an entirely distinct departure and advance in the assortment of pink Cannas. First of all we have in Lahneck a free grower, producing an abundance of trusses on erect stalks, well above the foliage. The color is difficult to describe and convey an adequate impression of its worth. It is fundamentally rosy, but throughout the flowers there are lines and shadings of scarlet-carmine hues that add much to their brightness. Add to this a narrow pale-gold border and you may form a slight conception of the beauty of this novelty. 75 cts. each; $7.50 per dozen.

For a complete list of Standard Varieties of Cannas see our current Wholesale List.

Eureka. We consider this the best white flowering Canna for all purposes to which Cannas are devoted. It is of robust constitution, growing four feet high, forming sturdy, shapely plants very quickly. Its free flowering tendency can be readily understood when we chronicle the fact that a small plant set out May 15th, three months later carried 15 immense heads of flowers. These are of a creamy-white, changing in full sun to a pure white. $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

Favorite. There have been many yellow Cannas spotted with carmine or crimson that were good; it is, therefore, particularly interesting to find a variety that in every way eclipses its many predecessors and for which we have singled out this sort. The color is a rich, deep golden-yellow, produced on tall stems high above the foliage. The red dots, which are not too pronounced, add to the piquancy of the flower, without detracting from the golden mass effect. 5 feet. 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.; $25.00 per 100.

Orange Bedder. A particularly attractive bedding variety of a bright orange with just sufficient scarlet suffusion to intensify the dazzling mass of color when the wide branching stems are covered with flowers. $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

The Gem. An entirely distinct spotted variety. The immense trusses of flowers are borne on upright branching stems well above the foliage, and are of deep cream or straw-yellow, spotted with deep carmine. $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

One each of the above 4 varieties for 75 cts.

Scharfenstein. Another variety that is sure to take a place among the standard sorts as quickly as it becomes known. The beautifully formed, large round florets are produced in compact but graceful trusses well above the green foliage. The color is a unique light red salmon with orange and carmine suffusions that altogether forms a most attractive addition to the range of colors found in Cannas. You will like Scharfenstein. 75 cts. each; $7.50 per dozen.

NEW RED ROSE

Donald MacDonald

A new Hawlmark Red Rose sent out this year by Alex Dickson & Sons

We have tested this Rose for Winter forcing for two years, and with us it produces more red roses during the winter than any Rose we have ever grown. It is not a large Rose, but has perfectly formed medium sized flowers that sell at sight. Color bright orange carmine; will not turn blue; because the base of the petals is orange. It is not a summer rose, as it has the same substance as Killarney. We build the plants up until November, and from Thanksgiving until May it is a money maker for the Rose Grower, as no pinching is necessary.
