There is a great demand at the public libraries in this city these days for books on gardening, vegetable cultivation books especially being in demand, according to Robert Rea, the city librarian. This demand, no doubt, indicates that many persons are raising their own vegetables because of the present high cost in the open markets.

A great part of the exposition grounds is to be transformed into a residential park. This is being done under the supervision of Mark Daniels, who has been working on the project for several months. When completed it is expected it will prove to be one of the finest residential districts in the city.

A special "Annotated List of the Wild Flowers of California" is being prepared in book form by Prof. P. B. Kennedy, president of the California State Botanical Society. The book is intended for the general public. Special emphasis is given to plants of economic importance.

The many friends of Dan MacRorie are welcoming him back from his eastern trip. He speaks in glowing terms of the spring shows in New York and elsewhere. He reports trade as being fine in the east, but had to hurry back owing to the approach of Easter.

Arthur Gleave of Gleave's Flower Shop in Santa Barbara was a visitor during the week, selecting plants for his Easter trade. He reports the demand as being very good in the south during the past season and expected a heavy Easter business.

HYDRANGEAS

We have introduced to American commerce practically all the French Hydrangeas in popular demand. It has been our persistent policy to discard superseded and inferior sorts. We believe that every sort when offered by us possesses individual distinctive merit.

Our current wholesale list contains a more extended list of varieties; at present we offer particularly good values in the varieties listed below. The stock here offered is of last July's propagation, was shifted into 3-inch pots in early October and stored in cold frames over winter; it is splendid stock to grow on into 6 and 7-inch pots for next winter's forcing.

Speak quickly if you want them, the stock is limited and this advertisement will not appear again.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co., at Beresford, had a flag raising April 7. A 16-foot flag was unfurled on a pole 70 feet above the ground. It can be seen for several miles from the nursery and is one of the largest flags on the peninsula.

The many friends of Henry Maier of the Hillsborough Nurseries will regret to hear that he has been seriously ill. The last reports were that he is now out of danger, but it will probably be some little time before he is around again.

Miss Recardie Lee Murray is proving to be one of the most consistent users of space in the daily papers in town. She is gratified with the results of her advertising campaign and reported a splendid Easter trade.

The bogus check man has been playing the old game here again. Several of the smaller stores were taken in for small amounts before the culprit was caught and placed in custody.

H. Plath says this was the best Easter in his experience, the call for ferns and other pot plants being very heavy. His shipping trade also showed a large increase.

Quite an elaborate wild flower show was held in Richmond, April 7. Much interest was manifested in the show and substantial prizes were awarded.

P. Canepa is erecting a large apartment house in San Mateo as an investment. It will be equipped with all the latest improvements. G. N.

TRADE VERY QUIET SINCE EASTER.

Trade has been very quiet since Easter, especially as far as the city demand is concerned, and the only life there is at all to the business is the out-of-town call for stock, which is good and is holding up well. Stock of all kinds is in heavy supply and the only items that are scarce are orchids and gardenias, which command good figures. Lily of the valley is cleaning up nicely at the advertised quotations but there is plenty to go around. American Beauty roses are in large supply and are obtainable in large quantities at reasonable prices. Roses in general are reaching the market in larger numbers but are not bringing anywhere near the prices that they should and are being sold in bargain lots at very low figures. Carnations are in large supply and are moving slowly at ridiculously low prices, which also applies to tulips, jonquils and daffodils. Lilies and callas are seen in large quantities at several of the stores and have to be sold at low prices to be moved. Double violets are not as plentiful as they have been and what few are arriving are none too good in quality. Good home grown violets are in brisk demand and are bringing fair prices, considering the general market conditions. Sweet peas are unusually plentiful and are to be had in large lots at very reasonable cost. Iris is being offered and is considered good property. Snapdragons, daisies, calendulas, feverfew, lupines, stocks, mignonette, pansies, forget-me-nots, home grown and southern gladioli, and other miscellaneous seasonable cut flowers are included in the many offerings and like everything else with one or two exceptions are obtainable at bargain prices. Business all through last week was the quietest that the trade has experienced for some time and while some attribute it to the usual after holiday lull, others seem to think that the war has a whole lot to do with it. Stock in all lines never was so plentiful after Easter as it was last week and the real reason for the accumulation of stock is due more to the oversupply than it is to the falling off in the demand. A few days or another week will find a marked change in the general market conditions and it is a pleasure to report that the city trade is already showing signs of improvement.

COAL COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

At a special meeting of the Florists' Club, held at the Briggs House, April 17, the committee on the coal question presented its report, recommending the purchase of a mine in the Springfield (Ill.) coal section at $600,000, for its output for a year of some 500,000 tons at $2 per ton at the mine, the freight from the mine to this city being $6 cents per ton. There was a fairly good attendance and the subject was discussed at length. No action was taken except that a few of the growers ordered one car each of this coal for trial. The committee was instructed to prepare a list of the growers in Cook county with their coal requirements and report at the next regular meeting, the figures to be used in securing supplies at reasonable prices if arrangements can be made to place a joint order or contract.

NOTES.

John A. Huebner, who is now located at 11 East Randolph street, has leased the haseament at 153 North Wabash avenue formerly occupied by Joseph Ziska & Sons for three years and will take possession in the near future. His old stand will be discontinued as soon as he moves into his new home.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. has postponed the opening of its new supply salesroom until April 28, when the trade is cordially invited to call and inspect same. George Poehlmann has charge of outfitting the place and will have everything in shape to turn over to Tim Waters and his assistants in a few more days. The Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Co. built the counter and wall cases which merit the attention of everyone, and from present indications, Poehlmann's will have a supply salesroom, second to none in the city, when it is ready for occupancy.

The Chicago Wholesale Cut Flower Association held a meeting at the Hotel Sherman last Thursday evening, April 12, when much important business was transacted. The wholesalers are working together now more than ever before and have already accomplished a great deal toward the betterment of trade conditions in general.

Allie Zech, of Zech & Mann, says that every retail and wholesale florist as well as the allied trade firms should use the Mothers' day posterette issued by the Chicago Florists' Club. He believes in helping a worthy cause along and is assisting the committee headed by Fred Lautenschlager in every way possible.

Wietor Bros. have a fine lot of young Mrs. Chas. Russell rose plants which are attracting the attention of the visitors at their greenhouses. Their stock of Red Russell is also splendid and this variety will be grown on a larger scale than ever this season.

The Rapid Wrapper Co. is receiving a large number of flattering testimonial letters from florists who used the Rapid Wrapper at Easter and who pronounce it a success in every way. The users in nearly every instance have placed additional orders for future use.

Miss Julia King has purchased the store known as The Willard Florist, 346 East Fifty-first street, from M. B. Hirsch, who has been engaged in the retail business in this city for a great many years.

Chas. Erne, of Erne & Company, is devoting his spare time to planting his garden, which every true patriot should do, especially under the existing war conditions and the high cost of living.

The Ruedlein Basket Co. is offering a very appropriate cut flower basket handsomely decorated with carnations

A. L. Vaughan & Co. is offering a very choice grade of long-stemmed American Beauty roses and iris, as well as a most complete line of other fancy seasonable stock.

The American Bulb Co. has a large sign stretched across its office on North Wabash avenue announcing that they are handling a complete line of Burpee's garden seeds.

Fred Wittbold has added an assistant manager to the Geo. Wittbold Co.'s decorating department in the shape of a baby boy who arrived at his home Friday, April 13.

Percy Jones is offering a large supply of lilac, anemones and ranunculus in addition to his usual large and complete supply of other seasonable cut flowers.

The A. L. Randall Co. is going to install a larger switchboard to handle the increased number of incoming and outgoing telephone calls.

Morris Grossberg, of A. L. Vaughan & Co., is happy as can be. It's a brand new baby girl, born April 17.

Walter Horn, with Poehlmann Bros. Co., has resigned his position to serve his country and will leave soon for Carrollton, Mo., to join his company which is a unit of the Missouri National Guard. Clarence Enders, son of John Enders, with Poehlmann Bros. Co., has enlisted in the artillery department of Company L, First Cavalry, of the Illinois National Guard. Robert Brenton, publicity director for the recent Grand Floral Festival and former advertising manager for Kennicott Bros. Co., has enlisted in the machine gun squad of the First Cavalry, Illinois National Guard, and it is understood that several other young men in the trade have signified their intention of also enlisting in the near future. A. I. Simmons, well known Sixty-third street florist, is depot quartermaster of the Illinois National Guard and will be ready to do his bit as soon as he is called upon.

Harry C. Rowe, 67 East Monroe street, is offering his store fixtures for sale. The building on the southeast corner of East Monroe street and South Wabash avenue is being remodeled, which is the reason he is selling. He is figuring on renting a store in the same building which will be ready for occupancy about September 1, but will be unable to use his present fixtures in the new place. His outfit is one of the finest in the city and can be had at a bargain. The Bohannon Floral Co. is also located in the same building, but has its main establishment on the same street in the building in the southwest corner of East Monroe and South Michigan avenue.

The Albany Nurseries, Inc., report business as brisk at their new store at 223-225 West Madison street, where a complete line of trees, shrubs, seeds and bulbs are carried. Arthur R. Phillips is the manager. In addition to their place on Madison street they operate a nursery near Libertyville and conduct a chain of retail stores in this city. This firm also does an extensive landscape business and do all this class of work for the Frederick H. Bartlett & Company, large real estate dealers.

Bassett & Washburn are cutting between 4,000 and 5,000 fancy Mrs. Chas. Russell roses every day, which will give one some idea of the large supply of stock there is available in this market at present. A person would have to have an adding machine to keep tab on the other varieties of roses that are reaching this market, not to mention the extra large supply of other miscellaneous seasonable stock.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are handling particularly fine lilies which Pyfer & Olsem are cutting in quantity and consigning exclusively to them. This firm is advertising special $10, $15, $20 and $25 assortments of cut flowers this week, owing to the unusually heavy supply of stock they are handling at present.

The Lombard Floral Co. is building two new Moninger steel greenhouses, 36x450 feet, at Lombard. This concern is incorporated for $32,000 and will grow roses for this market. Danford Abrams, J. G. Schuman, Henry Klusmeyer and George Fisher are the proprietors.

Felix Reichling has been in the employ of Peter Reinberg as manager of his wholesale establishment for four years, during which time he handled the business in a very satisfactory manner. He started his fifth year Thursday, April 12.

Mrs. Paul Klingsporn had the misfortune of fracturing her ankle when she fell down a flight of stairs at her home one day this week. To make matters worse, Paul, Jr., is suffering with a severe cold.

J. A. Budlong is featuring a large quantity of fancy Mrs. Chas. Russell roses which they have had unusually good success with this season.

Al. Lehman, with the E. C. Amling Co., has invested in a new 1917 Ford touring car.

Visitors: Michael Bloy and wife, Detroit, Mich., returning home from the Pacific coast; James Karins, representing Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia, Pa.; Walter Taepke and wife, Detroit, Mich.; A. M. Terrill, Calgary, Alberta, Can.

BILLERICA, MASS.—Milford Irving has succeeded Gustav Thommen as manager of the range of Backer & Co.

TARENTUM, PA.—Arthur Godfrey has opened a flower shop in this city.

GREATEST EASTER TRADE EVER KNOWN.

The Easter business of 1917 in this city was a record-breaker, supply and demand being the greatest ever known. The stock was of excellent quality and sales were stimulated by attractive window displays, the flower shops being the bright spots of the city. Pot lilies were in greatest demand and many more could have been sold had they been available. Contrary to the general rule, there was a good call for large plants, including rhododendrons, azaleas, hydrangeas and rambler roses. Basket arrangements and pans of plants were also popular. In cut flowers the heavy demand was for corsages, violets leading, followed by orchids and miniature roses. Carnations had a good call for assorted boxes.

NOTES.

The Doswell Floral Co. had a number of church decorations and weddings that augmented an enormous Easter trade. This firm handled over 500 lilies in addition to an immense stock of cut flowers and other plants. Bulbous stock sold out completely. H. K.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. had an exceptionally fine line of blooming plants and disposed of them easily. Hand-some azaleas and hydrangeas cleaned up entirely. A fine supply of cut stock sold equally well. They are now busy with spring weddings and funeral work. Mrs. Clem Lanternier has returned from a visit at Paulding, O.

The Flick Floral Co. sold up well on an enormous stock, which included some of the finest plants seen in this city. Pink Pearl rhododendrons, azaleas, hydrangeas, Dorothy Perkins roses, heather, and deutzias were among the attractive offerings here. The "Dutch Gardens" were also very popular.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey had a fine stock of flowering plants and cut flowers, notably roses. Their cut of orchids, while large, was not equal to the demand. A flag raising was held at this firm's range April 14 at which there were several patriotic speeches by prominent men.

The New Haven Floral Co. supplied this market with some very fine stock, including Easter lilies and Aaron Ward roses. Business was excellent both in the retail and wholesale departments.

Edgar Wenninghoff had a record sale of Easter lilies and could have sold many more. His window was one of the most attractive in the city.

The Fort Wayne Flower Shop had a splendid display of roses and bulbous stock and did an immense business.

Mrs. R. W. Doswell is in Detroit, Mich., on a business trip.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—Adam Heitz is making improvements at his establishment, 1166 Barrett avenue.

Chicago Bowling.

The florists have entered a team in the Illinois State Bowling tournament to be held in the near future. John Huebner, William Lorman, Joe Einweck, Allie Zech and Peter Olsem will bowl in the five-man team, while John Huebner and William Lorman, Allie Zech and Peter Olsem and Joe Einweck and Ernest Farley will pair off in the doubles.

J. A. BUDLONG VS. ZECH & MANN.
The J. A. Budlong force defeated the Zech & Mann team in three match games this week in a close and exciting contest by a narrow margin of 29 pins for the three games played. The Zech & Mann team redeemed some of the lost honors after the series was played. The scores for the J. A. Budlong and Zech & Mann contest are:

WHEN YOU NEED

BEAUTIES IN QUANTITY

Let us figure on your order. Our prices will interest you and the quality will more than come up to your expectations.

THE LEO NIESSEN CO., 1201-5 Race St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Philadelphia.

STOCK PLENTIFUL AND DEMAND FAIR.

It is still overcoat weather with us, but the trees are pushing their leaves into the cold world and soon all will be well. There has been considerable demand the past week, although some few are commencing to consider the war excitement as a very probable menace to business. If everybody would hustle and keep things going, a whole lot of people would not have time for anything but getting out their orders. Every man can do his bit, and keeping the best foot forward is not a bad stunt these days. The market offers plenty of stock and of very good quality. American Beauty roses are here in their spring quantity with quality plus; in fact, the rose line is complete at very moderate prices. Sweet peas are splendid in their coloring, but getting shorter in stem; they have been a great factor in the market this season. There are plenty of Easter lilies—and callas galore. Violets are about done. Cattleyas are more plentiful, while lily of the valley is equal to the demand. Carnations are none too plentiful. Perhaps they are being groomed for Mothers' day. We know of one grower at least who says he can, to a degree, control his crop in this way. Spanish iris is now in all the stocks and in good demand.

NOTES.

All signs of Easter are obliterated at the Norwood establishment of the Robert Craig Co. The houses, including the recent additions, are filled with crotons, dracaenas in variety, cyclamens from seedlings to five-inch pots, and a host of other stock, all in splendid shape. A large house filled with Otaheite oranges full of flowers which are setting quantities of fruit, is a feature. Several houses are planted with the new nephrolepis, Norwood, which in the short time it has been offered has sold better than any other fern ever introduced.

The bedding plant men are working hard to get their stock in order for the spring campaign. All is well, but geraniums appear to be scarce. Clarence Ligget, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., states that they have supplied growers for this market with over 200,000 2 to 2½-inch pot geraniums for this spring's sales.

A $24 roll of paper adorns the counter of the Jos. Heacock Co. Carl Cortis handles this very carefully. Carl always was a cautious fellow. Their spring crops are now in, all varieties being now received in quantity.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. has things down to a war basis. The paper rolls have been removed and a pile of newspapers has taken their place.

The Leo Niessen Co. is featuring American Beauty roses, Spanish iris and high grade sweet peas. Business is good for the season.

Wm. Stevens, of the Berger Bros. force, reports a fairly active week. Maryland roses, sweet peas and snapdragons have sold well.

Eugene Bernheimer finds things moving along nicely. There is a good demand for Prima Donna and September Morn rose plants.

UNITED CUT FLOWER CO., Inc., 111 W. 28th St., New York City

J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa., delivered an illustrated lecture before the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society April 8 on "Some Tendencies in American Rose Growing." His lecture was a delightful discourse, he being so familiar and full of love for the rose. The lantern slides were the most beautiful ever shown here.

Carnations are a trifle scarce with Edward Reid, but he says he will be on hand for Mothers' day with the best in town. High grade sweet peas, roses and lily of the valley are leaders here.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange is offering quantities of Ophelia, Mrs. Shawyer and other roses. Sweet peas and carnations are also seen in the higher grades. K.

New York.

EXTREME DULLNESS FOLLOWS EASTER.

It was expected that the week after Easter would be dull, and results have been fully up to expectations, if not a little more so. We have sometimes remarked that the saying, "The worst market we ever saw," was born of forgetfulness, but the market of the past week came as near to filling the bill as any we have ever seen. One instance will illustrate it. A buyer was asked eight cents, at a certain wholesale house, for special Killarneys. His reply was: "Why should I pay eight cents for Killarneys when I can buy special American Beauties for the same price?" On investigation that proved to be true. We know of one lot of 700 of these that sold at the rate of 12 cents, but there were sales of good stock at eight cents. Under these conditions it is unnecessary to go further into rose prices. Carnations have become a drug, and while a little special stock brought three cents, most of the stock that sold at all went lower. There is fine stock of lilies on the market some of which brings six to eight cents, but inferior stock is going as low as three cents. Under recent conditions the supply of lily of the valley has seldom been excessive, and as there is a constant demand for it, prices never, in our estimation, go very low. At present lily of the valley is running at $5 and $6 per 100 with a few sales of very special stock at $8. Cattleyas are slow, it being hard to get more than 50 cents per flower for the best. An immense amount of stock, including callas, snapdragons and stocks, is at the mercy of the buyers. In sweet peas, gardenias, violets, cowslips and such other stocks as can be conveniently carried in a basket or on a tray, the street men are doing valiant work, which means that they are buying them very cheap. There have been several days of clear weather, which at this time of year accounts for a great increase in the supply.

April 16.—The market continues to be in a very stagnant condition with a great accumulation of stock and no such thing as a cleanup. Much of it is good stock and it is a pity to see it go at a sacrifice, or to waste. Our quotations tell of the drop in prices from a few weeks ago.

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING.

The club met in its rooms on the evening of April 9, President Stump in the chair. Secretary Young stated that the gross receipts from the recent flower show were $44,000. A detailed statement was not made, but it was stated that results would be satisfactory. The president re-appointed the flower show committee, adding P. W. Popp. A resolution on the death of S. J. Reuter, late of Westerly, R. I., was read and adopted.

There were a number of meritorious exhibits in sweet peas and other stock. John Scheepers lectured, with stereopticon views, on tulips. The dinner committee reported a deficit, which was ordered paid.

NOTES.

George F. Fisk, who has been called the "celery king" of New York, died April 11, aged 53 years. He was born in Kalamazoo, Mich., and came to this city and established his business in 1883. He bought a large tract of land at Middletown, N. Y., which he turned into a celery farm. He is survived by a widow and five sons, all of the sons being in the celery business.

A number of the leading retail stores had fine designs for the funeral of James Buchanan Brady, known throughout the nation as "Diamond Jim" Brady. The funeral was held on the morning of April 16 at the Roman Catholic Church of St. Agnes, 43d street near Lexington avenue. He was in life a constant and liberal patron of the florists.

Several misfortunes have occurred at the store of Thomas Young, Jr., 57 West 28th street, since it was opened about a month ago. Shortly after it was opened, Warren Spaulding, the manager, was stricken with apoplexy. Now William Sullivan, who succeeded Mr. Spaulding, is laid up with an attack of grippe.

Archibald M. Henshaw, president of the Henshaw Floral Co., Inc., 127 West 28th street, has enlisted in the naval reserve and been commissioned a lieutenant. Before he took up the florist business he was a sailor and holds a master's certificate.

A patriotic decoration in the window of Malandre Brothers, Broadway and 72d street, attracted much attention on April 14-15. The leading feature was a large American flag made of natural flowers, red and white carnations and cornflowers, stars cape flowers.

J. K. Allen sold a wagon load of plants for the express company during the past week. They came from a Philadelphia firm and were refused by the consignee because they arrived too late for the Easter trade.

Guttman & Raynor, Inc., 101 West 28th street, are handling fine stock of the rose. Ulrich Brunner, which sells better than most other roses at present, as it may be called an annual.

The House of Ferns, 41 West 28th street, which for a time was short of asparagus, on account of the cold snap in Florida, is again receiving a good supply.

M. A. Bowe, 332 Fifth avenue, had the casket cover and many fine designs for the funeral of Gen. McAlpin, of the McAlpin hotel, held April 15.

Oklahoma City.

Business continues well up to the average of other years in all cut flower lines. The continued cold weather that has prevailed this spring is delaying all planting operations outdoors, however. Of course, all this business will come in a rush later. Firms who have been making special sales on hardy stock, say that their sales were unprecedented; particularly has there been a big run on hardy roses.

Mrs. Eager, of Furrow & Co., has returned from a three weeks' automobile trip through Oklahoma and Missouri. She spent Easter Sunday in Joplin, Mo., and reports having a most enjoyable time during the entire trip. The Ozark trail and the Jefferson highway are excellent roads now for overland travel and a great boon to motorists. S. S. B.

EASTER BUYING LATE BUT HEAVY.

The feature of this year's Easter business was the tremendous volume of sales on Saturday, which was the biggest single day that the trade of this city has ever enjoyed. Swarms of flower buyers thronged the shops from morning until late in the evening and florists with all their extra help had all they could handle just waiting on the public without a chance to get out orders, hence deliveries were a little delayed. The market was in splendid shape to absorb a huge demand; all seasonable plants were on hand in vast quantities and their quality was excellent. Plants of all kinds were more popular than ever before and the prices received were on the average 10 per cent higher than last year. Lilies, azaleas, tulips and hyacinths led in the selling with a lively call for rambler roses, daffodils, spireas, rhododendrons and genistas. Corsage orders and for cut flowers were more numerous than ever before. Roses, violets and sweet peas were in the greatest demand, and these were on the market in good supply with the exception of violets. Business on the whole, despite most unfavorable weather in the early part of the week, was the best ever transacted here and the gain averaged about 25 per cent over 1916.

NOTES.

The stocks of plants and cut flowers at Feninger's Flower Shop were never in such great condition to meet an unusual demand, but the way shoppers ate them up on Saturday and Sunday soon made them look sick. People seemed to have lots of money and bought a better class of plants and higher grade cut flowers than usual. It was the biggest Easter by 30 per cent this establishment ever had.

Earl Metz, of Metz & Bateman, states it was a good thing they added a large basement salesroom to the store this year, otherwise they would have been entirely unable to satisfy the swarm of people that flocked in on Saturday. Plants of all kinds sold splendidly, particularly azaleas, lilies and tulips. One of the features of their business was the great number of telegraph orders received during Easter week.

Co-operative advertising was again used by members of the Toledo Florists' Club with good results and will be used again to boost sales for Mothers' day, which is the next big flower day on the calendar.

Max Spanner never saw such a demand for plants in the entire history of his business career in this city. Saturday was the largest day's business ever transacted in this store.

Among others that the writer interviewed and who reported fine gains were the Helmar Flower Shop, Helen Patten, Harry Turvey, Koelker Bros., Kusel and F. A. Imobersteg.

Mrs. J. B. Freeman reports she was simply swamped and could not supply the demand, particularly for cut flowers; more corsage orders than ever before.

fifth annual convention, Detroit, Mich.,
June 19, 1917.

BEAN and pea stocks are reported closer sold than at any time in the past 10 years.

RECORD prices are now being made on potatoes and onions in Chicago and other markets.

OMAHA, NEB.—The Nebraska Seed Co. is boosting the garden movement by liberal seed advertising.

NEW YORK.—The auction concerns here are distributing Japan lily bulbs, auratum, album, rubrum, etc.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, April 18, were as follows: Timothy, $1.50 to $6.50 per 100 pounds.

ARNOLD RINGIER, well known to the trade, has opened offices for business on his own account at 169-75 North Wabash avenue, Chicago.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—D. I. Bushnell & Co. will shortly install a carload of new seed cleaning machinery from A. T. Ferrell & Co., Saginaw, Mich.

HOLLAND-AMERICA line earned 250 per cent on its capital stock in 1916. Royal Dutch Lloyd, which plies to South America, earned 200 per cent.

SUGGESTIONS for utilizing limited areas are embodied in Farmers' Bulletin 818, issued by the United States department of agriculture, entitled "The Small Vegetable Garden."

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, Chicago and New York, is supplying seeds for the National Garden Emergency Food Company's distribution, also for the Chicago municipal gardens.

VISITED CHICAGO: A. T. Ferrell, Saginaw, Mich., who joined his wife and daughter returning from Hot Springs, Ariz.; R. W. Pommer, of D. I. Bushnell & Co., St. Louis, Mo.

THE Oklahoma pure seed bill passed at the last session of the legislature as announced in these columns, issue of April 7, has failed to become a law for want of the governor's signature.

FRENCH BULB PRICES.—The French bulb syndicate met April 15 in annual spring conference and made run-of-the-crop prices as follows: Narcissus Paper White Grandiflora, 30 francs; White Roman hyacinths, 140 francs.

Congressional Seed Bills.

The following bills have been introduced in the sixty-fifth congress and are of interest to seedsmen:

House Bill 2352 (Mr. Byrne of South Carolina) To regulate the movement of seeds in interstate commerce—an impossible bill.

H. R. 2780 appropriating $5,000,000 for the immediate distribution of valuable seeds to farmers, through the agency of the United States department of agriculture.

S. 1727 appropriating $250,000 for the distribution before June 1, 1917, of seeds and shrubs, five-sixths of such distribution to be at the direction of senators, representatives and delegates.

CURTIS NYE SMITH.

French Bulb Outlook.

The general situation March 20 has been summed up as follows:

White Romans.—The 1916 crop was very poor, both in quality and quantity, and owing to the shortage of hands it was not possible generally speaking to properly grade the bulbs nor prepare the soil for the planting out. This meant a shorter crop for 1917 and the shortage will be greater than was anticipated, owing to the severe frosts which occurred this winter when the hyacinths were in full bloom and also to hailstorms which badly cut up the leaves. This will, of course, tell on the development of the bulbs.

Narcissus Paper White Grandiflora.—To what we have already stated concerning the size of the bulbs, namely, if the rains are insufficient, as was the case last year, the diameter of the bulbs is undergrade, which compels the buyers either to reduce their orders or to accept bulbs under size. must be added that the frost has, of course, also caused some damage to the narcissus. Considering their scarcity the demand will no doubt be brisk.

Freeseias.—These have of course suffered the most from the frosts. The foliage two weeks ago was almost dry and the bulbs had not yet bloomed. On the other hand, some of the bulbs have been frozen and it is to be feared that the others will not develop very much.

Seedsmen Oppose Illinois Legislation.

Two bills introduced in the Illinois legislature are being energetically opposed in regard to certain provisions by seedsmen of that state. Some changes have already been secured in House bill No. 791, which recently passed the house committee on agriculture, but further modifications are being sought. Representatives of a number of seed houses are working for these at Springfield. In case they are not secured, they expect to call on members of the trade in Illinois to oppose the bill in toto.

The other bill, Senate bill No. 415, has been referred to the senate committee on judiciary and judicial practice, and at the public hearing April 18 the seedsmen who are active at the state capital endeavored to secure alterations. This bill is not so far advanced as the house bill, on which efforts are being concentrated by members of the trade.

The chief objections are to the intricate and impracticable laboratory inspection required, and to the standards of germination set. The provisions cover agricultural seeds, including seeds of grasses, forage plants, flax, rape and cereals.

The Late William C. Langbridge.

It is with sincere regret that we announce to the seed trade the death of William C. Langbridge, which occurred in St. Luke's hospital, New York, April 12. For many years he traveled for the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., of Cambridge, N. Y., covering the country from coast to coast, and it is doubtful if any man in the seed trade was better known than he was. He was a big and broad man, both physically and in mind and business, and made many friends. The particulars of his last illness, so far as we can learn, are that he was calling on an aunt who lives in New York, when taken ill of dropsy, and his condition became so serious that his wife was sent for and he was removed to the hospital. Their home was in Albany, N. Y., to which city his body was removed and interment took place.

Mr. Langbridge was born in Jamaica, West Indies, in 1860 and located in New York about 1870. In his early life he was identified with the Shaker community and managed its seed business for a time, joining the forces of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co. in 1888.

Philadelphia Seed Trade.

The department stores are handling quantities of packet vegetable seeds, sold in small lots for backyard planting. The local seedsmen have demands for thousands of packets of a kind—beets, peas, radishes, lettuce, etc.

In order that their wholesale trade shall receive the best attention, the Robert Buist Co. is now discouraging all retail counter business, which this spring has almost monopolized their entire force. All large buyers are increasing their orders, this firm's business greatly exceeding that of any previous season.

The free advertising and the interesting matter of the possibilities of the little back yard patch of ground now appearing by the column in all the daily papers will encourage many to experiment and should prove of lasting benefit to the trade.

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

H. W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., President;
H. P. Thompson, Arlington, Mass., Vice-President;
S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary;
Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids, Mich., Treasurer.

Next annual convention will be held at Springfield, Mass., in 1917.

THE National Canners' Association has given $60,000 to Harvard University for purpose of investigating relation of food poisoning to canned goods.

Vegetable Prices at New York.

As a rule, all vegetables bring high prices, and that condition is likely to indefinitely prevail. The best state marrow beans have sold as high as $14.50 per 100 pounds, Chilian Marrow $10 to $10.75. Bermuda potatoes are firm at $10.50 to $13 per barrel for No. 1; Virginia $7 to $8 per barrel. Florida potatoes are arriving slowly, No. 1 being quoted at $11 and $12 per barrel. Long Island and Maine range from $9 to $10. Old yellow onions are $8 to $12, according to quality, for 160-pound bag.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, April 17.—Mushrooms, home grown, 50 to 65 cents per pound; lettuce, small cases, 17½ to 20 cents; radishes, 50 to 60 cents, dozen bunches; celery, $1.50 to $2.50, crate; tomatoes, six baskets, $4.00 to $5.50; cucumbers, per 2 dozen box, $2.00 to $3.00.

New York, April 17.—Celery, per crate, $1.00 to $3.50; cucumbers, $1.00 to $1.25 per dozen; mushrooms, $1.00 to $2.00 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, per lb., 30 to 50 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2.50 to $4.00; lettuce, per strap, $1.50 to $3.50.

Potato Notes.

World says food speculators, knowing in advance that United States government was about to bid for 5,000,000 bushels of potatoes, manipulated the market until the price is now $1 a barrel higher than a week ago, and government must pay $1,800,000 more than was expected. Government contracts for 5,000,000 pounds of beef for army have caused fresh meats to advance one cent a pound.

Eugene H. Grubb, potato expert, says there is at present an insufficient supply in this country of seed potatoes for 1917 crop. He says the potato has enabled Germany to prolong the war at least two years.

Potatoes sold April 13 in Aroostook county at $8 a barrel, an advance of $2 within a week. Less than 500,000 bushels are left in county, according to dealers, who predict higher prices.

Large amounts of potatoes are going into warehouses at New York. The wholesale price April 11 advanced $1 a barrel.

Truck Crops Conditions.

The bureau of crop estimates, United States department of agriculture has received from a special list of truck growers in 19 states reports relative to the condition of various crops April 1, as follows: Asparagus, 85; cauliflower, er, 75; celery, 73, eggplant, 70; green peppers, 76; snap beans, $1; cabbage, 63; cantaloupes, 80; cucumbers, $2; lettuce, 69; onions, 77; early Irish potatoes, $3; tomatoes, 80; green peas, $1.

Cold and rainy weather has been general in the states reporting which has delayed planting. The potato crop throughout the south is in very good condition and indications point to a good yield.

Mint Under Glass.

We have had a constant call in the winter months for mint, fresh from the plants, like parsley. This is one of the easiest things to grow, being a veritable weed, yet it offers ready money if a market can be had. It will thrive in poorer locations in greenhouses, does not require the best of light and a low temperature will do. The main trouble is to produce good healthy stools in the field so there will be plenty of vigor for forcing. To proceed, get some runners in the spring and cut into handy pieces for planting. They grow from every joint. Plant from 12 to 18 inches apart in rows upwards of 26 inches wide for horse cultivation. Keep clean, and in the fall good stools should be the result. These can be brought in any time before winter sets in and can be cut from as needed. Mint naturally grows in wet places, hence there is little danger of over-watering in the greenhouses. The market requires little bunches somewhat like parsley, to which it is a companion. It wilts much more readily than parsley when exposed for sale, hence should be plunged into cold water before shipping to cool it off and then be packed in paper-lined baskets or boxes. Some of these little known and little planted crops are often valuable for acquiring customers and gaining prestige besides being directly profitable. MARKETMAN.

Rust-Resistant Asparagus.

According to the Weekly News Letter of the United States department of agriculture, under date of April 7, it is announced that small quantities of the stock of a type of asparagus that is so resistant to rust that it is practically free from injury even when exposed to severe infection are now available for distribution by the United States department of agriculture to growers for trial only. This type has been developed by the department in co-operation with the Massachusetts experiment station. Growers who desire to avail themselves of the opportunity to try it are asked to take the matter up with their county agent or state agricultural college, with whom the department desires to co-operate to secure a fair test between it and some standard variety, such as Reading Giant, Argenteuil, or Palmetto.

In the present distribution preference will be given to those sections in which rust is a serious problem, but the new strains have been tested for other qualities than rust resistance, and it is believed that in yield, type, and quality they are superior to stocks now in common use in regions where rust is of minor importance. The seed now available for distribution is from carefully selected, pedigreed plants from the best rust-resistant parent plants found in the course of the breeding experiments which have been carried on since 1906.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

John Watson, Newark, N. Y., President;
Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President;
Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress Street,
Boston, Mass., Secretary and Counsel.
Forty-second annual convention will be held at Philadelphia, Pa., June 27-29, 1917.

NEWARK, N. Y.—The Jackson & Perkins Co. has purchased a two-ton motor truck for use in handling shipping and in taking laborers from one nursery to another.

Congressional Nursery Bills.

There have been several bills filed in the sixty-fifth congress of interest to nurserymen, as follows:

House Bill 254 by Mr. Raker for the inspection of nursery stock sent through the United States mails. A very objectionable bill.

Senate Bill 1727, by McKellar, appropriating $250,000 for the purchase and distribution, before June 1, 1917, of seeds, trees, shrubs, etc., five-sixths of such trees and shrubs to be distributed in accordance with the requests of senators, representatives and delegates in congress.

CURTIS NYE SMITH.

American Association of Nurserymen

ACTIVE FOR TRADE BETTERMENT.

How much the American Association of Nurserymen is undertaking in the interests of its members, and of the trade as a whole, is scarcely appreciated by those who are not in close touch with the work. The ambitious programme initiated at the Detroit convention two years ago is being carried out thoroughly and forcefully.

Through the committee on legislation, and the association's attorney, all legislation pertaining to nurserymen and fruit growers is examined, in order that defects and injurious provisions may be pointed out to legislators, who are usually ignorant of the practical workings of the business they seek to regulate. In this way, bills that would have seriously jeopardized nurserymen's business in certain states, have been defeated, and in other instances laws have been modified so as to make them fairer to the trade's interests.

Legal advice is rendered free to members by the association's attorney, and a collection bureau, under the secretary and attorney, is already doing excellent work, being self-sustaining. Credit reports are given, and plans are under way for a rating book to be issued yearly to members.

Another important branch that has been of great value to the members of the association is that under the committee on transportation and the traffic manager. The latter is a railroad man of years' experience who has also been a nurseryman. By attending all railroad hearings and presenting the nurseryman's side of the question effectively by means of his technical knowledge, he has rendered invaluable service in adjusting classifications, rates and similar matters.

In conjunction with committees of other organizations, the committee on nomenclature has prepared a standard horticultural nomenclature, which will be printed in the new edition of Bailey's Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture, now on the press. Similarly, trade terms, grades, descriptions and usages are being defined and standardized, so that measurements of caliper and the like will be uniform throughout the trade.

Co-operation is being secured by the association in such important matters as publicity, reports of stock conditions and supply, hail insurance, and arbitration of difficulties and misunderstandings between members. In the last department a number of cases have been passed upon, and the adjustment was in every case accepted by the parties on both sides gracefully and amicably. This is of immense value in preventing the publicity and hard feelings so damaging to both parties in a lawsuit.

John Watson, president of the association, is enthusiastic over the benefits already gained for members of the organization. In order to gain prestige and strength for greater achievements and to extend the advantages over a larger proportion of the trade, he is sending out a very complete statement of the association's programme to nurserymen who are not now members, with the expectation that they will want to lend it their support.

It is interesting to note how far the association had advanced along the lines of trade co-operation advocated lately by Chairman Hurley, of the federal trade commission, in his book, "The Awakening of Business." It should be a matter of pride to nurserymen that they are so far in the van, and a stimulus to continued co-operative progress.

NORWOOD

Has Made an Extraordinary Success.

In only three weeks all of the large stock of NORWOOD that will be ready this spring has been engaged. Here are the facts:

NORWOOD—A Distinct Novelty in Nephrolepis Ferns:—The most beautiful of the crested type. The fronds are heavily crested, but do not unite as in many varieties of this class; each is held separate and apart by the strong and wiry midrib, which even in a small pot gives the plant a symmetrical and finished appearance. This is not just a variation of this very prolific family, but distinctly different, a very decided novelty that immediately attracts attention. It was one of the features of the New York Show, where it was awarded a Silver Medal as a new and meritorious variety.

Having booked orders for 50,000 plants for June delivery, we are now accepting orders for August 15 delivery. Strong plants out of 2½-inch pots, $25.00 per 100; $200.00 per 1000. We will fill orders in rotation as received.

We are now booking orders for our New Seedling SUPERB—$12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

SUPERB is a seedling of Gloriosa and Enchantress. It has the good stem of Gloriosa and the fine growing habit of Enchantress. The color is a fresh pink, and it keeps its color at all seasons. The flowers average about three inches, are very full, and generally receive full score on substance. The flowers are all perfect and do not split. In the four years we have grown it, it has proved the best commercial variety, barring none.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The regular meeting of the above society was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, N. Y., April 11. President James McCarthy occupied the chair. One petition for active membership was received. The president appointed Henry Gaut, Robt. Jones and Geo. Platt to act as judges for the monthly exhibits and their awards were as follows: Pan of bulbs, John W. Everitt, first, with a well grown pan of Tulip Couleur Carnival; pot of Easter lily, John W. Everitt, first, with a beautiful pot of Liliun formosum; vase of Lady Hillington and Ophelia roses exhibited by John W. Everitt awarded special mention.

Robt. Jones, chairman of executive committee, read the schedule for the annual tulip show to be held in the Glen Cove Neighborhood House some time in May, date to be announced later. The schedules for the annual rose show to be held in June and the sweet pea show to be held in July were also read and adopted.

An essay by Arno H. Nehrling entitled "Herbaceous Perennials We Should Grow," read by Harry Goodband, proved very interesting and instructive. A letter of thanks was ordered sent to the author.

Exhibits for our next meeting, to be held May 9, include 12 gladioli, three heads of lettuce and a vase of outdoor flowers.

HARRY GOODBAND, Cor. Sec'y.

QUICKEST STEAM AND WATER HEATERS IN THE WORLD

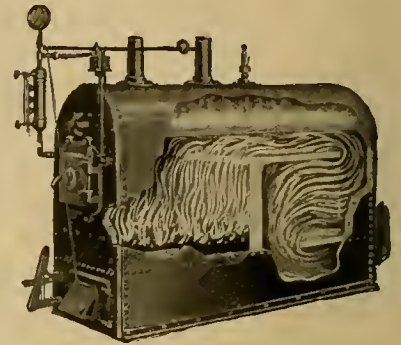

The Kroeschell

is making the most wonderful greenhouse heating record in the world. Florists who have used other makes are constantly giving the Kroeschell the highest praise.

13,468,320 sq. ft. of glass was equipped with the Kroeschell Boiler during the past five years.

The Kroeschell

is used by hundreds of The American Florists' readers and mighty is their praise. The year of 1916 brought an enormous number of new customers who saw our boilers in operation at other places. We attribute the large sales of this season to the good work the Kroeschell Boiler is doing everywhere.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Begonia Gloire De Lorraine.

The plants of Begonia Gloire de Lorraine, both the young rooted stock and the older plants, will now begin to make active growth. There is still time to propagate much stock; many growers prefer the May rooted plants to those propagated earlier, for the plants start right off into growth at this time while those rooted earlier grow very slowly during the late winter and early spring months. The young shoots that break from the old plants make fine cuttings at this time, and if the plants are in good health are just as good as the leaf cuttings made earlier. As soon as rooted they should be potted in a light, fibrous loam in 2 1/4-inch pots, and placed in a light, well ventilated house, but should be protected from all chilling draughts.
They cannot be successfully grown in a stuffy-moist temperature and to have strong, healthy plants should not be forced in too warm a temperature.
They will require a house in which the night temperature does not fall below 60° and should be given all the air possible without chilling during pleasant, bright days, carefully avoiding drafts. They will need to be watered carefully, for the roots are very fine and are growing slowly yet, and over-watering quickly shows in the growth of the plant. It is now a good time to procure young stock if the grower is not supplied, for those making a specialty of this plant will have the best of stock at this time.

Gladiolus.

The gladioli that are being forced for spring blooming will soon begin to open their flowers, and to have good clean stock they will require attention.
The spikes should first of all be kept erect, for if they get bent and crooked half their value is gone, and this will occur very quickly on the bright sunny days when the plant leans over, so they should be kept tied either to stakes or wires to prevent this. The spike should be cut when the first flower opens and placed in water and the other flowers opened in the office or store room. These flowers spot very quickly if water is sprinkled upon them in the greenhouse and at this season of the year syringing on bright days is a necessity or red spider is sure to obtain a foothold, and if these pests become once well established it is almost impossible to eradicate them.

Considerable discussion is often heard as to whether the corms of gladiolus forced are of any value another year.
If the plant is not cut too far down on the stem and the corms are given an opportunity to thoroughly ripen there is no doubt but that the bulbs may be grown another year and good results obtained, but if the plant is cut off clear down to the ground the corm has no chance to make its full growth or to ripen and the corms will be practically worthless. Corms that are forced this year, and the spike cut so as to leave three or more leaves, if properly ripened can be planted outside another year and the following erly.

Preparations for Memorial Day.

With the Easter stock out of the way, there will be room available for the plants that have of necessity been crowded more closely together for the last few weeks, and the next great day before the grower is Memorial day. In those sections of the country where the late frosts are passed the bedding stock must be ready for planting out at that time, and the demand will be for plants to flower, for the customers will desire plants that will make a good showing by May 30, and the stock must be grown with that object in view to have a good sale. The geraniums and other blooming plants should be placed in their blooming pots, spaced out and given a good sunny location that they may be full of bloom by the last of May. It is next to impossible to sell plants that are not in flower at Memorial day. The production of flowers for that day must also receive prompt attention. Much of the floral work for Memorial day is what is called "cheap" work, that is, flowers that make a great show and are not expensive. So although there are many roses and carnations used, yet large quantities of the cheaper flowers are employed to fill in and make the sprays and bouquets larger. Early outdoors flowers and blooming shrubbery can be used, but in some sections these cannot be depended upon, so flowers must be grown in the houses. Stocks make a splendid flower for this purpose and should be benched at once. The plants should now be about three or four inches high and growing rapidly. Candytuft is grown in large quantities by some growers for Memorial day. Seedlings can be transplanted in early April and brought into flower the latter part of May. Spiraea, both as a pot plant and for cut flowers, are very useful at this time; six to eight weeks will bring them into flower at this season. There are other annuals that can be raised for Memorial day blooming, but the two mentioned are grown in largest quantities.

Asparagus Plumosus and Sprengeri.

Small stock of Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri are now a necessity with all plantsmen, for they are freely used in fern dishes and in plant baskets, being very satisfactory plants for house culture. Fresh seed can now be obtained and the stock grown on through the summer, which will make fine stock for the next winter. The seed will germinate more readily and evenly if soaked in lukewarm water placed in a warm location for 24 hours before planting. Instead of sowing the seed broadcast it is better to sow them about three-quarters of an inch apart and they can then be allowed to remain in the flats until they are strong enough to transplant. Do not cover the seed too deeply; an eighth of an inch of soil sifted over the seed is ample. The first potting must be carefully done, for they make a long tap root with very few small roots and the soil does not adhere to it, and in the young stage this root is easily broken. A warm house with plenty of moisture and careful watering with a slight shade is all they require after being potted. Overwatering will always cause the fronds to take on a yellowish hue.

Handy Shading Device.

The Leedle Rosary of Springfield, O., has a very practical device for protecting their summer propagating frames from the rays of the sun. It is very simple, consisting of a neatly made frame the size of the sash, to which a sheet of unbleached muslin is securely tacked. This then slides in a skeleton framework standing five feet above the sash and projecting three feet either side. By sliding, the full shadow of the screen is always on the glass, its height, however, admitting all the indirect light. In cloudy or rainy weather and late in the day, the screens are kept in the shed, it taking but a few moments to put them in place.

PELIHAM BAY PARK, N. Y.—The fete of the International Garden Club will be held on its grounds here, May 12. Florists and private gardeners desiring to make displays should apply for details to Miss H. Johnson, secretary, 100 West Eighty-second street, New York.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Klft, Philadelphia, Pa.

Palmer & Son's New Store.

Lacking nothing in completeness of arrangement, beautiful in every detail of its decoration, the new Delaware avenue flower shop of W. J. Palmer & Son, Buffalo, N. Y., was opened to the public, April 21, and the handsome establishment was admired by thousands.

The store proper, the decorations of which are entirely in white, is 30 feet wide and 100 feet deep, a center door, with broad, low windows down to the floor, offering splendid opportunity for effective display. A vaulted, ceiling part way, the balance beamed, extends back over a beautiful conservatory, 25x75 feet, with fountain and sunken basin, with side beds for display. At the back and separated by a partition is the rockery, which is also a feature, ferns forming the center with running water adding to the pleasing effect. At the rear, the space is devoted to flowering and foliage plants of the varieties to be found in an up-to-date establishment of this kind. A spacious garage in connection offers opportunity for quick loading.

In the flower shop a handsome wall case extending along one side, displays baskets, ribbons, vases and accessories of the latest design, while opposite is the flower case, 30 feet in length of the latest construction. Separated by a latticed partition is the workroom, equipped with zinc covered tables, hidden from the customers, the cash desk and office being located at one end.

The basement lacks nothing in the way of convenient arrangement, with spacious compartments for storage of boxes, paper and other materials. Here also are installed the heating, lighting and refrigerating systems, with a separate heating plant for the conservatory.

The new store will be under the management of W. H. Grever, who with Mr. Palmer welcomed the visitors, each of whom was presented with a souvenir. Enhancing the beautiful display, congratulatory baskets, bunches of roses and other arrangements were sent by S. A. Anderson, the Lenox Flower Shop, the W. F. Kasting Co. and others. Situated as it is on what is called the "Fifth Avenue" of Buffalo, the new shop, one of the finest in the city, is strictly in keeping with its surroundings.

BISON.

Waiting on Trade.

Every person who visits a flower shop is a possible customer—10 per cent of those who call are strangers; it is their first appearance. On the surface they are just looking around, but the chances are that the stock is being inspected; they are not just satisfied with what their regular florist had to offer in some special plant or flower, and think perhaps they may find a better assortment here. An experienced salesman will soon learn their object; the best showing of the stock, which he is quick to see may not be of the quality or size desired, then, if interest is not aroused in other possible substitutes stress is laid on the new lot expected that afternoon or early tomorrow, of which sample will be sent entirely on approval, the name and address often being obtained in this way. Possibly the visitor would prefer to call and see and make the selection there. Something else, choice, and possibly rare, should be called to the attention to help make a favorable impression. Wont you wear a flower? This is the last card to play, and visitor leaves with a very pleasant impression of the courteous treatment received. This handling will be found much more effective than the absent treatment of "Oh, she's just looking, she don't want to buy anything." Another stranger comes with a request to be shown a pandanus. There are none in stock. Choice Scottii ferns, dracenas or short made up palms, make excellent substitutes, however, and if their good keeping qualities, much better than the pandanus, are extolled, a sale is probably effected; or, if not, then the order, if possible, is taken for the pandanus to be delivered the following day.

To those who want something as a birthday or other gift, but are not decided, the salesman should first try and get their ideas as to price. A statement that we have choice plants at $3, $4, $5, $6, $7.50 up to $10 will generally get them to call to see something for one of the figures, or "we want something nice," which is cue enough. With cut flowers, there is more opportunity, as if a dozen roses at $3 are ordered, there are always vases of other pretty flowers in sight, such as a bunch of violets, Sweetheart roses or gardenias for the box, that might be worn. Mignonette, short snapdragons or stevias, which would arrange nicely in the vases, are often taken with the roses when the suggestion is made. It is comparatively easy to add a dollar or two to the purchase in this way.

Some customers are very trying; what you offer is never as good as their own selection; they are not satisfied until nearly all in the case is out on the counter, and then may say "they don't look fresh." It is best to humor them, however, and never give up trying to please; in nine cases out of 10 the sale will be made, but if any annoyance or resentment is shown, the opportunity is most likely lost.

A committee appointed to select a design requires very delicate handling; as a rule, the amount they have to spend, is their secret; it may be $10 or perhaps $50. They have probably secured several estimates. A good plan is to make the most of photos of designs which have been made for funerals of prominent persons. This makes an impression as to ability; then if something appears to strike some member favorably the price obtained is mentioned and "is that about what you would like?" will often get them to unconsciously state their price. To be handy with a pencil, so as to quickly sketch up an idea they have, is very helpful—many orders are secured in this way.

Good sales clerks, men or women, are always alert to suggest this or that to their customer.—"Isn't this pretty? We are selling a lot of these." "Japanese fern dishes are just the thing now,—this is a new line. Beautiful patterns, aren't they?" and so on. This, of course, must not be overdone, but sales have frequently been made by having the customer's attention called to something just as they were leaving. "Yes, that is very pretty, send me one of those with the rest."

Some florists never allow a lady to leave the shop without wearing a flower and there should be always a posy to gladden the heart of the little child.

The Bargain Table.

There are quite a number of articles, such as fancy baskets, vases, pottery, fern dishes, articles of bric-a-brac, etc., that do not seem to move along with other goods of the store.

It is an invariable rule in some establishments that no stock other than standard shall be carried over from one season to another; when anything shows a want of appreciation by the public and is always left in the selection, it must receive special attention and by all the little devices known to salesmen, must be kept to the front and forced as it were, on the customers. As a last resort down comes the price, lower and lower regardless of cost, the object being to save all that is possible of the investment before it gets to the "junk pile."

A bargain table near the front of the store, on which to give this class of goods prominence, can be kept attractively arranged, as there is nothing objectionable with this particular line, except that for some reason it does not sell, but by giving it especial attention the various articles are worked off and the money saved for investment in something that promises a quicker return. It is not necessary that the bargain table be at all times a feature, but in the weekly rearranging of the store with new plants and other stock, such a table will fit in to advantage and may earn more for the space it occupies than some quite promising displays.

Summer Crops to Follow Bedding Plants.

Now is the time to plan for the intensive use of greenhouse space. Many who grow a general line of bedding plants, devoting most of their energies to this stock and having long waits between seasons, could add materially to their income by working in flowering pot plants that are in good demand during the winter.

When the first rush of the bedding season is waning, the open frames outside is the place for the balance of the stock, where on the cool damp ground it will not dry out as fast as on the bare tables of the houses. This table space is to be filled at once with soil, and asters that are well advanced planted, from which in August and September, a crop of flowers can be cut that will bring the top market price. Boston ferns are another crop that could immediately follow the bedding plant space of the tables. young stock planted out on the tables May 15 to June 1, making splendid value for early fall sales.

Chrysanthemums, planted out on benches to attain a quick growth, lifted and finished in pots, make better and bushier plants carry a greater abundance and more perfect flowers than when brought along altogether in pots. The most effective use of this space is obtained by planning to have the various young stocks well advanced and the bench space ready at the earliest possible moment.

Being the first on the market in the fall with your products, either in finished plants or flowers, means a lot both in price and prestige.

Cleveland, O., Wholesale Trade.

The cut flower stores are well served in this city with six well managed wholesale commission houses, each of which carries a good line of supplies, some of the stocks being very full and complete. Their location, so close together, at Third and High streets and on Huron road, all within a stone's throw of one another, is very convenient for the retail buyer. Selling at retail is strictly prohibited.

The Cleveland Cut Flower Co., 231 High street, has a large double store and carries a very complete line of supplies from ribbons to wire frames. Their stock of plants and cut flower baskets was large and varied. They sell the stock of a number of consignors, as well as the product of their greenhouses at Newton Falls, containing 300,000 feet of glass. Guy Bate, the sales manager, reported demand better than supply since the first of the year.

The Cleveland Plant & Flower Co., 207 High street, has a commodious corner store, very well lighted. All kinds of supplies are carried, as is also a full line of cut flowers—roses from Philadelphia, eastern violets, as well as from local consignors. Plants are also handled in quantity.

W. Q. Potter, successor to the McCallum Co., 421 High street, has a busy shop which is well stocked with supplies of all kinds. Japanese mats were a feature. A large consignment of exceptionally fresh and choice double violets came in just right for St. Valentine's day. The parcel post has been found quicker than express and not much more expensive. Bunches of pansies with flowers three inches in diameter were a feature.

The J. M. Gasser Co.'s wholesale business is carried on at 221 Huron road, one block from High street. It handles stock from the Rocky River range of 340,000 feet of glass as well as from local consignors. A good and varied line of supplies is also carried. A commodious icebox and storage cellar is provided for the proper care of stock. James McLaughlin is manager here. He reports that supply has not been equal to the demand the entire season.

The Cleveland Florists' Exchange, which has a commodious store at 606 Huron road, carries a good stock of cut flowers. Roses and carnations are a feature. Their shelves and cases are filled with supplies of all kinds.

From an inspection of these wholesale stores and their stock, Cleveland can be called a good cut flower city where quality stock is pretty sure of a ready sale at top market prices.

Asplenium Nidus Avis.

While not of recent introduction, this unique looking fern is still unknown to many lovers of plants; it is very distinct and different from all others of this lovely and interesting family. It has not been taken up and grown more generally perhaps, on account of its tendency to black spot or leaf rot, the bottom fronds often turning brown or black, the plant, when these are cut away, presenting a naked and irregular appearance. This disease is said to be the work of minute insects, which produce a sort of fungus growth which spreads rapidly when conditions are right. If the plants are kept in a healthy growing condition, however, there is little or no danger from trouble of any kind.

The accompanying illustrations are from one of the houses of this fern at the establishment of W. K. Harris, Philadelphia, Pa., where so many previous successes with other plants have been made. J. W. Prince, the foreman and propagator here, who has long made a specialty of this rather difficult plant, claims that it is as easy to grow as a Boston fern. All it wants is the careful attention that is ordinarily given to plants of like character, such as adiantums, although it is a much more robust grower than the maidenhair. Commercially, it is a winner, as it comes into profit as soon as the character leaves are developed, well furnished plants in two and one-half inch pots are very attractive and when placed in small fancy receptacles, earn a double profit. As many plants in this and three inch pots are sold, as are grown into the larger sizes.

Several years ago H. A. Dreer, Inc., grew some of these plants into large specimens two to three feet high and the same in diameter. They were very striking and made a great hit, being all sold out as soon as offered, although but few were allotted to any one purchaser. It is a plant that can be safely recommended for the dwelling, doing quite as well as the Boston fern; the unique appearance with the glossy, leathery-like foliage, is sure to attract the attention of all visitors. Mr. Prince says that in working up a stock the essential thing is to keep it growing; it must not suffer from neglect and get a check, as this subjects the plant to the various insects and other ills which are sure to be around the corner, lying in wait for the opportune moment to attack. It is grown entirely from seed, which is sown each month in the year so as to have a continuous stock of plants in the smaller sizes for which there is always a good demand. Setting two or three plants together makes a bushy "pot full" sooner than when grown singly, but not as symmetrical a specimen, the beauty and regularity of the fronds not being as apparent as when grown singly. In the large stock seen here, some thousands of plants, there is not to be found a damaged leaf or blight of any kind. Retail florists have found this plant very useful, as it sells well in all sizes, is often used as a table centerpiece, bushy, medium-sized plants taking the place of the fernery. In made up plant baskets its striking, glossy, green leaves are a good contrast to other foliage and flowering stock. Altogether, it is a plant well worthy a place in the list of those who grow plants for the trade and also for the grower who retails his products.

Shifting Young Plants Temporarily.

When young plants are suffering for a shift which for various reasons cannot at once be given, they can be tided over the waiting period and greatly benefited by the following method. Clear a bench space, (one that they now occupy may do,) cover this with an inch of soil and well rotted manure that has been thoroughly mixed and sifted to make it short and friable. Knock the plants out of the pots and place close together on this prepared soil, where they will take hold immediately and will lift without damage, when in a couple of weeks the time and room for the stock has been found.

DOVER, DEL.—James H. Hughes purchased the range of William Shaeffer at public auction, March 17.

Joseph G. Neidinger, Philadelphia, Pa.

The rapid growth of the cut flower business has made the manufacturers and dealers in its supplies hustle to keep pace with it. Joseph G. Neidinger when just out of his teens opened a supply house in Poplar street, Philadelphia. With a good knowledge of the business and plenty of energy, he progressed rapidly and to accommodate his increasing trade he moved to 1513 Germantown avenue. This place, although large, became over-taxed, necessitating another move to his present location, 1309-11 North Second street, where he has ample quarters, in fact the largest building devoted exclusively to the florists' supply business in the country. There are five floors 38x118 feet, and a basement of the same size, making nearly 27,000 square feet of floor surface. As the ceiling of each room is 16 feet in height, there is ample shelf and gallery room capable of great expansion. The first floor contains the business offices and a reception room. In the rear is the sample or quick moving stock room, which contains a quantity of all staple and seasonable goods, and from which orders may be put up without going all over the building. These bins and shelves are replenished as they become empty. The packing room is also on this floor. On a mezzanine gallery are cases for stuffed doves, chiffons and other goods which must be kept enclosed.

The front of the second floor is a magnificent show room with cases and shelves in which goods are shown to the best advantage. The rear of this floor is filled with stock of artificial flowers and grasses. The Neidinger establishment makes a specialty of all kinds of waxed or artificial flowers, and carries an immense stock of these and metal flowers. The third floor is where the flowers are manufactured and made up. It is astonishing to see with what speed the women experts can turn them out. Another specialty is the Japanese red chenille wreath. This is wound on a papier mache form and is equal in appearance to the imported immortelle wreath. The fourth floor is the basket factory, where a large force are at all times busy on orders or stock. The stock of pedestals, easels and other staple manufactured goods here is immense. The floor above, or fifth, containing the stock, is piled high with cases of stock of all kinds.

Joseph Neidinger's forte is originality, not only in design but in methods of manufacture. By carefully systematizing his business and with the addition of machinery, he has made a number of important short cuts in methods of construction that enable him to furnish a line of his best stock to the wholesale trade.

An immense stock of wreaths and waxed flowers for Memorial day have been made ready so that orders can be filled as received. The fact that such an extensive business has been built up in twelve years shows how the demand for such supplies has grown and the ability of the proprietors to cater to it.

Soil Study at Home.

Soil fertility is one of the most popular subjects of the correspondence courses of the Ohio State University College of Agriculture. Hundreds of lessons are sent out from Columbus from month to month, and prompt responses in the return of answered papers is noted. Although the force in charge of this work is heavily taxed during the winter months, lessons on the subject of soils are available and enrollments are being taken care of. As no cost is attached to this service and anybody may enroll at any time, a great variety in age and occupation of students is found.

Mothers' Day Posterettes.

The Mothers' day publicity campaign inaugurated by the Chicago Florists' club is well under way. Thousands of posterettes and posters have been purchased by florists from every section of the country, and all orders are being delivered immediately. The Florists' Telegraph Delivery has adopted the Chicago Florists' Club Mothers' day posterette and poster as the official emblem for this campaign. The F. T. D. has placed an order to supply each and every one of its members with a quantity of Mothers' day posterettes and posters, which will be allotted in quantities of 300 posterettes and two posters, and 500 posterettes and four posters, in proportion to the annual dues paid by each member. Should any F. T. D. florist desire more posterettes and posters than allotted by the F. T. D. same may be obtained by writing immediately to the chairman of the publicity committee, F. Lautenschlager, 440 West Erie street, Chicago.

As stated previously, the profits derived from this campaign will be devoted to the purchase of a full page advertisement in a national publication, which it is estimated, will be read by over 5,000,000 people. One of the features of this advertisement will suggest that if your mother is in another city, no matter where you are, or what the distance, step into any flower store and leave your order, and fresh flowers will be delivered to your mother within a few hours through the organized and reliable telegraphic system of the F. T. D. with a guaranteed service. This will help the entire retail florists' trade.

Contract has been let to place this advertisement, and this committee plans to send proof copy of same to each and every one subscribing towards this fund. We suggest that immediately upon receipt, these proofs be displayed in some prominent place in your store. A good plan also would be to secure a copy of the magazine containing this advertisement and exhibit same in your show window. This will combine very well with our Mothers' day advertising campaign.

As yet, there are a great many florists who have not subscribed towards this movement, which is surely due to an oversight. This is a big undertaking, and therefore requires that we dispose of a very large number of posterettes and posters. Every florist can help us. A special appeal is made to those who have not as yet subscribed towards this fund. Send your order at once. In case you have no use for the posterettes and posters, you can at least help by donating a small sum towards the support of this national advertising campaign, and in consideration for same, we will send you one of the proofs also. This will help all concerned. Start putting Mothers' day posterettes on all correspondence, packages, etc., leaving your shop.

Chairman Posterette Committee.

Lawn Repairs.

The work of repairing lawns, according to specialists of the United States department of agriculture, and especially the making of a new lawn, is best performed in September in regions south of New England and north of the Potomac and Ohio rivers.

To improve an old lawn that has become run down is often more difficult than to make a new one, but if reasonably good turf exists, it can be bettered materially by reseeding and fertilizing. If the lawn is patchy, the small areas should be scratched with a steel rake, dressed with loam or compost and the seed sown on this. If large areas of the lawn have a thin covering of turf it will be advantageous to use a disc seeder. After seeding a second dressing of loam or compost should be applied and the areas rolled lightly.

In New England and the other states of the northern tier similar procedure should be adopted in renewing the lawn, but the work should be done in spring. Care should be taken in watering and mowing all new plantings of lawn grass not to disturb the young plants.

Careful attention is necessary if an established lawn is to be kept in good condition. Most lawns need an occasional application of some good fertilizer regardless of the kind of soil on which they exist. Thoroughly rotted stable manure is excellent for this purpose. Another good dressing is a mixture of manure well composted with sod and leaf mold and sifted before using. It is desirable that the material be applied in such condition that there is nothing to rake off. Coarse humus or humus dressing should never be used, as the grass is almost invariably killed in small patches beneath the lumps. The humus dressings should be applied in the autumn or winter and again in the spring. Bone meal is one of the best commercial fertilizers for the lawn. When used it should be applied in the late winter or early spring at a rate of 10 to 15 pounds to the thousand square feet.

THE CARNATION.

Planting Out Preparations.

As soon as the land becomes in condition to be properly worked, it should be made ready for planting out the young carnation plants. At this season of variable weather, changing from one extreme to the other almost every day, it behooves every grower to take advantage of each favorable opportunity to get his carnation field in shape for planting. It is none too early to commence planting where weather conditions will allow. If well hardened off before being brought from the inside, carnation plants will stand any cold weather we are likely to get after April 20. From this date on, the plants are far better off in the field than in the small pots or beds inside. Early planting gives the plants a chance to get a good hold and become strong and sturdy before the very hot weather.

It pays to take the best of pains in the preparation of the field, not only for the good of the plants, but also to make it easier to properly attend to the necessary work of cultivating, etc., while the plants are on the land. Many of the up-to-date carnation growers have blocks of land where they can change off, planting one of the blocks one year, alternating to another the following year, sowing the first block down to grass and allowing it to remain idle for a year or two. These are ideal conditions for those so favorably situated and allows the land to be plowed and prepared the fall before it is needed to be used. Land so prepared last fall should now be worked over with a harrow, breaking up the clods and making the surface as fine and level as possible. One of the most important parts of the preparation of the land is to fill in any hollow places where there is any chance for the water to stand after heavy rains, causing the plants to suffer from extreme wet conditions.

New land intended for this year's planting should receive immediate attention to get it in good shape to receive the plants, and any clods not pulverized by the plow or harrow should be broken with a spade or hoe.

Manuring the land is one of the important questions that present themselves in the preparation of the land. Fall prepared ground should have been manured at time of plowing and will not need any further manuring now. Well rotted manure only should be used on land being prepared at this time, and then only in moderate quantity; heavy manured ground is not essential for the best growth of carnation plants. Close attention to the plants' requirements along the lines of cultivating the land, keeping it clear of weeds and the topping back of the shoots are surer means of having strong, productive plants than a heavy manured land. After the plowing and other preparations have been attended to, planting should go forward without delay while the soil is freshly prepared and easy to plant in; it will not work as good after a period of drying out or rain.

The distance apart to plant must be governed to some extent according to planting space; the usual distance where the ground is available is 10 inches in the rows and 16 to 18 inches between the rows. This allows for the use of the hand cultivator between the rows, but is not far enough apart to use a horse cultivator. When the latter method is followed a greater distance both between the plants and in the rows must be allowed. Growers who have only a small amount of planting ground at their command generally follow the plan of growing their plants in beds, using a hoe to keep the beds clear of weeds and loosen up the surface soil.

Transferring the young plants from the greenhouse to the field is a job that should be carried out with as little delay as possible. Enough help should be put on the job to push it along smoothly. A good plan to follow is to have one gang in the greenhouse to knockout the plants and flat them as they are needed for the planters; then see to it that the planters are experienced enough to understand the work assigned to them and able to keep the work going steadily until it is finished up.

The young plants should be given a preliminary preparation before being transferred to the field. Topping back the shoots is one of the most important parts of this work. This should be finished up several days before the plants are planted out. The plants should be well hardened off either by transferring to the cold frames or lowering the temperature in the greenhouse; also, keep them a little on the dry side to help in this hardening off, but the soil at the roots should be well moistened up before the plants are taken to the field. Do not under any consideration plant any plants while they are dry at the roots, but water and allow them to stand an hour or two before planting.

Another important matter is to be sure the young plants are free of aphid before taking them outside; infested plants rarely become clean before they are brought inside again.

CARE OF THE OLDER PLANTS.

The plants now flowering freely require close attention to their needs. They take considerable more water than a few weeks ago and weekly syringings can be given to keep them free of red spider. Pay particular attention to the temperature and airing of the houses, especially early in the day. Do not allow the temperature to run up to a high degree before shutting off the steam, and as soon as the weather will allow, dispense with the steam altogether, with close attention to the airing and watering of the plants so that they are not extremely wet late in the day. The weather conditions will soon be such that they will be better off without any artificial heat—a cool temperature gives the flowers better substance and prolongs their season. Take advantage of favorable weather conditions to do any needed fumigating so that the plants will be clean when the weather gets warmer and not so favorable for this work.

Breeding at Arlington Farms.

With the purpose of finding the origin of the parentage of the first of the American carnations, experimental work has been carried on for the past five years at the Arlington farm greenhouses, United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. Sweet williams, Chinese pinks and varieties of dianthus have been crossed and recrossed, and while the results are interesting, nothing important has developed. Some of the commercial varieties, introductions of the past 10 years, have also been used. Results obtained have demonstrated to Mr. Mayer that it is quite possible to breed for color, he having had several seed pods from which every plant raised produced the color he desired, as all white, all red or all pink.

Many hybridizers of carnations select and cross the best types of commercial flowers, one with another. This, Mr. Mayer says, is a very slow method as the result is plants show 25 per cent bull heads, 50 per cent singles and 25 per cent commercial flowers. The scientific way is to choose the best of the bull heads and cross these on selected singles, working for color, habit of growth and free flowering qualities. These seedlings will show almost 100 per cent of commercial flowers. Commercial flowerers in singles would show about 75 per cent singles. He has recently been working for yellows. A very good pure yellow is the result, a strong vigorous grower, which produces flowers on straight wirey stems, 36 to 42 inches in length. The flowers, while of good form and size, are not in keeping with the vigor of the plant, being only about three inches in diameter. Mr. Mayer's yellow crosses now come true to color. He commences the work early in the fall, gets ripe seed in January, sows at once and flowers the plants all inside of a year. He is working as well for a hardy garden type that will stand our rigorous climate. Mr. Mayer will be glad to exchange a half dozen small plants of this unnamed yellow for a like number of any of the newer sorts, to growers who would like to try this variety. The plants have been grown inside all the year in a soil composed of muck from New Jersey and some of the western states. Portions of the bed contain pure muck and in other sections the muck is mixed with Arlington farm soils. No fertilizers of any kind are used. The most flowers appear on plants in the pure muck. Something very interesting in carnations should develop here in the next few years. K.

Wants Million Chinamen.

A subscriber of the Boston News Bureau suggests the need of a million Chinamen in this country to work the farms. He has a farm of 150 acres, 92 miles from New York, with $14,000 worth of buildings at a rental of $1,200, but the tenant whose net profit last year was $6,300 will not renew the lease for lack of help necessary to cultivate 130 acres, 20 acres being all that he and two sons can properly care for.

Floricultural Pathology at Univ. of Illinois

The work in floricultural pathology is directed along three lines—the diagnosis and suggested treatment of diseases of floricultural plants, the diagnosis of plant diseases other than floricultural ones upon a request for such information, and the experimental investigation of those diseases which at present are causing the most serious loss to the grower. A report upon some phases of this work which may have its practical application follows below:

Carnation Yellows.—Much of the conflicting evidence upon this disease among growers and pathologists is due to the similarity between "yellows," "bacteriosis" and "stigmonose." In fact, at certain stages of development it is almost impossible to distinguish between the three without recourse to the microscope and the pure culture methods of the pathologist. A report of the work upon "yellows," giving the characteristics which distinguish this disease from stigmonose and bacteriosis, may be found on page 508 of THE AMERICAN FLORIST, issue of March 24, 1917, and will also be found in the proceedings of the American Carnation Society for 1917. Since the preparation of that paper, the data which has been assembled has resulted in additional information.

If the foreing of the carnation in the early part of the season has resulted in "cropping," and the removal of all flowers has left only the basal portions of the stems, the young shoots developing at this time have always come in yellowed. The tendency to come in yellowed seems to be especially marked if cloudy weather prevails when the young shoots are making a rapid growth, although the results of this may be seen by none except the most careful observer until after the flowering buds start to form weeks after. The reason for this is that at first the yellowed areas are very inconspicuous and can hardly be seen except when held between the eye and the source of light. Later, as the leaf grows and becomes thicker, these spots do not grow in thickness with the leaf and, consequently, appear sunken and are conspicuously yellow or almost white. With an abundance of sunlight the tendency to come in yellowed seems reduced. Yellowed plants have been produced experimentally by the removal of all flowers from plants which have been allowed to crop. The removal of the flowers has resulted in the removal of a great area of leaf surface which is necessary for plant growth. The few leaves remaining on the basal portions of the branches are not sufficient to perform the normal functions of the plant. On the other hand, plants which have never cropped and have always been permitted to retain an average amount of foliage have never become yellowed. The evidence seems to indicate that yellows is an "indication" of improper treatment. The improper treatment mentioned above has produced badly yellowed plants. Other improper conditions are probably capable of producing it.

Suggestions offered for the prevention of this disease are the discarding of unusually susceptible varieties, the taking of cuttings from perfectly healthy and vigorous plants, an early and frequent pinching rather than an occasional severe pinching, the prevention of the cropping of the individual plant as well as of the plants as a whole, an avoidance of vigorous foreing during the early part of the season, and individual attention to each plant to prevent the loss of an undue amount of foliage upon the removal of all flowers.

It is thought, from the observations and the experience of many of the best growers, that an excess of water in the soil and atmosphere at a time when plants are severely or partially eut back will result in the foreing of water intended for a large leaf area into the reduced area and result in injury. This may be partially responsible for the more pronounced appearance of yellows during cloudy weather. This point, while suggestive, remains to be proven experimentally, but might well be kept in mind by the grower. While the work upon yellows is by no means completed, it is deemed wise at this time to give whatever information we have to the grower. One thing to be emphasized is that a plant must receive proper treatment, both in regard to soil fertility and methods of culture, at all stages of growth if it is hoped to keep it in a healthy condition. Disease prevention is always more logical and satisfactory than disease cure.

The Fusarium Wilt of Carnations.—This disease, known as "dry stem rot" and "branch wilt" varies in severity in different sections of the country and often becomes epidemic in nature. In the southern states this is a serious disease which, when once started, shows up year after year, being responsible for the death or failure of plants to develop after benching. In the north and east the disease is more spasmodic, but often becomes epidemic. Work here in connection with a survey of the fungi present in greenhouse soils has shown that this fusarium is present in abundance in all carnation soils. Infection, however, seldom takes place if the temperature is held as low as is consistent with the full development of the carnation and if the spacing allows ample circulation of air around each plant. The fungus is most active at high temperature—a condition to be avoided. Soil sterilization is impractical, for the fungus may be brought into the houses anew on the soil clinging to transplanted plants. However, if the disease has once become serious in a house, it is recommended that the plants transplanted to the field be placed in soil which has not been grown to carnations for some time, and that the houses and benches be thoroughly sterilized with a strong fungicide before bringing in fresh soil which has never been grown to carnations. Absolute cleanliness and the destruction of all dead parts of plants are essential for the holding of this disease in check.

This fungus is often serious as a cause of damping off in the propagating bench, as it is quite common to find 95 per cent of the dead or undeveloped cuttings attacked by this fungus. Ordinarily it need not be feared if fresh, clean sand is used in the propagating bench.

At present work is being done to determine if the fusarium which cause the wilts of tomatoes, potatoes, etc., will attack the carnation. The application may be seen, but until we have complete results, no recommendations in this direction are offered.

In addition to the above, work is being continued upon aster wilt and yellows and an attempt is being made to produce a rust resistant snapdragon. New diseases in the form of a bacterial decay of cyclamens, a crown blight of ligustrum and a disease of eanna root stock have been under observation. Serious diseases other than floricultural ones have also come to our attention.

We wish to remind you at this time that the division of floriculture of the University of Illinois is always ready to examine any diseased plants which you may send in and to suggest remedies whenever possible.

Bougainvillea Sanderiana.

Ed. AMERICAN FLORIST:

My plants of bougainvillea (Sanderiana) which I planted out last summer have thrown long shoots but no buds. Last year they produced rapid growth which I trimmed off in midsummer, and in September potted them and placed them in a cool house at 50 degrees, and about the first of the year transferred them to a house with a temperature of 60 degrees, where they made rapid growth but failed to produce flowering shoots. Any information as to cause or remedy will be appreciated.

C. D. B.

New Jersey.

In answer to C. D. B., in reference to failure to flower bougainvilleas, would be inclined to believe that his plants received too much water during the resting period of November and December. Bougainvilleas for forcing should not be removed from the pots or tubs when planted out in the spring. Knock the bottom from the pot or tub and plant to such depth that the receptacle is covered with the soil. Do not cut back after the first of September. When lifted in the fall, not later than middle of September, they should be given one size larger pot. In from three weeks to a month they will have made sufficient roots to begin their resting period. Then they should be allowed to get bone dry and remain in this condition in a temperature of 50 degrees until the first of the year. The wood is then thoroughly ripened and they may be moved into a temperature of 60 degrees and brought along with the season. After they are well in flower, if there is time for a rest in a cooler house, they will take on several darker shades of color, making them much more conspicuous.

Hammond Urges Thrift Gardens.

Benjamin Hammond, the well-known insecticide manufacturer of Beacon, N. Y., emphasizes the cry of the day, "Go to Work and Make a Garden," in the Fishkill Standard of April 21. A full page in that publication is devoted to the topic, well illustrated with views of home, school and vacant lot gardening activities in Beacon and other towns, in both the United States and Canada. In summarizing, attention is called to the fact that a "Thrift Garden," properly cultivated, in a back yard 25 by 50 feet, at a cost not exceeding $2 for seeds and $5 for fertilizer, will: Very materially reduce the cost of living; supply a family of six with fresh vegetables throughout the season; yield in cash value produce worth from $50 to $100 per season; provide profitable and wholesome exercise for mind and body; make a more contented people; teach preparedness and economy, and conserve the nation's resources.

Cincinnati.LOW PRICES WITH DEMAND FAIR.

There is a glut of all kinds of stock in this market. The demand is fair but is not strong enough to take up all or even a substantial part of the week's receipts, and as a result, low prices are the rule. Roses and carnations are both very plentiful and neither has been able to maintain good prices. Sweet peas are in a heavy supply that is so large that in spite of the fact that this flower is meeting with a fair demand, only the very best are sold at all readily. Easter lilies and callas are also plentiful. Snapdragon is in a good supply but sells only fairly well. Some excellent lily of the valley may be had. Other offerings include gladioli, marguerites, a few daffodils and Narcissus Poeticus.

NOTES.

E. G. Gillett has been on the sick list for several days. During his absence from his office Wm. Mayhall is taking charge of the business.

C. E. Critchell has been getting in some excellent plumosus and Sprengeri from his consignors in the south.

Paul Naber, formerly with C. E. Critchell, has enlisted in the United States navy.

Geo. Klotter has been cutting some excellent Narcissus Poeticus. H.

Washington, D. C.GOOD BUSINESS FOLLOWS EASTER.

With Easter over and the trade in general satisfied with the volume of the business there is another cause for congratulations in the fact that there has been no lull in sales during the past week, there being many weddings and receptions. Naturally the retailer is smiling. Roses of all kinds can be had at very reasonable prices and carnations are extra fine at prices to suit all. Good orchids and violets are the only short items.

NOTES.

The Connecticut avenue florists, especially George H. Cooke and the DuPont Floral Co., were more than pleased with their business at Easter as they were cleaned out Saturday evening.

W. Kimmell, son of W. W. Kimmell, the well-known Fourteenth street florist, was a visitor last week. He is now with the Eddystone Ammunition Co. at Eddystone, Pa.

Louis Bowdler, one of the Fourteenth street florists, has closed his store for the summer. He will reopen in another location in the fall.

Miss Ballinger, who has been store manager for Z. D. Blackstone for the past three years, resigned her position April 14.

Jack Carrick, formerly with O. A. C. Oehmler Floral Co., is now with Z. D. Blackstone. G. C. D.

Toronto Retail Florists' Association.

At a well attended and enthusiastic meeting held in Dunlop's hall April 13, the Toronto Retail Florists' Association was formed and the following officers elected to serve during the ensuing year: George M. Geraghty, president; S. A. Frost, vice-president; B. L. Hill, 716 Yonge street, secretary; J. A. Neal, treasurer. The executive committee consists of the officers and H. G. Dillenuth, J. J. Higgins and S. A. McFadden.

Twenty-five of the local trade paid up their dues for the year, $2.00, at this meeting, and others promised to support the organization with their membership. The second Monday of each month was chosen as the date of meeting, the next to be held in Dunlop's hall May 14. Harmonious business relations and adjustment of grievances, advertising, and other matters tending to betterment of local conditions will be among the objects of the new organization.

At the conclusion of the business session J. H. Dunlop tendered a supper to celebrate the association's formation, for which he was tendered, a hearty vote of thanks.

Pittsburgh, Pa.STOCK GOES AT BUYERS' PRICES.

This market is experiencing the heaviest glut in several years. Quantities of all kinds of flowers are being received, especially roses and sweet peas, which can be bought at any price. After the day's business is over the street fakirs are called in and the balance unloaded to them at whatever price can be obtained. What would the wholesale houses do if the street fakirs would not buy what was left? It seems as though they are a great help to the grower as well as the wholesale man. Business has been rather quiet, especially the shipping trade, as the out-of-town buyers are scarce and far between. Everyone is shipping loads of stock and everyone who has glass is cutting enough to supply their local trade. Most of the sweet peas received are in very poor condition, due to the warm weather. They arrive in such a heated condition that they are usually unsalable and many are thrown away. Snapdragons are almost the same way. Violets are about over for this season. Lilies are so plentiful that they go in job lots at very low prices. Carnations are also on the decline. Greens still continue to be scarce, especially smilax.

NOTES.

The Allegheny County Garden Club has decided to give the net proceeds of their flower show to the Red Cross Society. This feature alone should make it very interesting to the flower-loving population of Pittsburgh. Great preparations are being made for a wonderful display of garden flowers and vegetables next June.

John Manos, who has been sick for some time, is slowly improving at Mt. Clemens, Mich.

Miss Katherine Friel is now with the Arcadia Flower Shop in Jenkins Arcade.

De Forest Ludwig is expected home from his honeymoon about May 1. It is reported that Joe Jordan is soon to take unto himself a wife. M.

Columbus, O.HEAVY SUPPLY WITH WEAK SALES.

Trade is "spotty," some florists reporting very fair patronage, and others ready to admit that it is dull. The Easter cleanup has practically eliminated pot plants from the retail market, throwing the burden upon cut flowers, nearly all varieties of which are at or near the glut stage. So far prices have been affected in the wholesale more than in the retail trade. Carnations, which still bring 75 cents a dozen from the consumer, can be bought of the grower as low as two cents a bloom. Good rose stock has been selling to the trade at from four to eight cents a bloom. Sweet peas are likewise plentiful and cheap. Flower displays in the general public markets the past week have been large, but with trade rather disappointing, even at bargain prices. People seemed to be confining their purchases to eatables. The wave of abnormal economy which has struck the country is having its effect upon the flower trade, but florists look for a reaction in the near future. With the better class of home-owners, bedding is exciting more than ordinary interest, and the season is expected to be a good one. On the other hand, stock will be scarce and high, due to the unfavorable growing conditions of last summer, geraniums and cannas being among the worst sufferers. The bedding season has started in ahead of the usual time.

NOTES.

Frank Miller, manager of the Columbus Floral Company, and Robert Beuhler, former greenhouse superintendent of the Institution for Feeble-Minded Youth, are two Columbus florists that are still on the disabled list. The former has so far recovered from an accident sustained some weeks ago, that he is expected to leave the hospital this week. Mr. Beuhler shows some improvement from the stomach trouble from which he has been suffering.

In a home-beautiful page being run weekly in a local newspaper, the florist trade is represented by the Munk Floral Company. J.

Fort Wayne, Ind.SMALL DEMAND WITH HEAVY SUPPLY.

Business in cut flowers during the past week has been quiet with stock plentiful, especially roses, lilies and carnations and there are also some fine Darwin tulips to be seen. There was a moderate call for funeral work and a few weddings. The landscape men are being kept busy following the advent of warm weather and many flower and vegetable gardens are being planted.

CLUB MEETING.

The April meeting of the florists' club was held at the homestead of Judge W. J. Vesey, April 18. Preparations for the Mothers' day trade were discussed and it was decided to run a half-page co-operative advertisement in the daily press and to use posters in shop windows and posterettes on every plant, package, etc., sent out. Miss Marguerite Flick was appointed chairman of the publicity committee. The May meeting will be held with Ed. Wenninghoff.

The Flick Floral Co. had an elaborate wedding decoration last week for both the church and the house. This firm also arranged 16 bouquets for the bridal party.

A. J. Lanternier had a patriotic window last week in which the American flag played an important part. H. K.

Oklahoma City.GOOD GENERAL DEMAND.

Local florists report that business is very good indeed, not only in the cut flower departments, but in all lines of outdoor work as well, for the planting season is in full swing now, and is likely to continue for some time as the weather has not yet become very warm. We have had a plentiful downfall of rain during the week which seemed to start everybody in the notion of planting something.

Probably in no city in the country is the florist trade so well advertised as it is here. The daily papers are used regularly at all times, and this spring we notice that Furrow & Co. have gone into bill-board advertising quite extensively, all of which is good business for the trade. Time was when retail florists thought that regular advertising was an unnecessary feature, and thousands of dollars worth of flowers were thrown away every year. S. S. B.

SAVANNAH, GA.—A. C. Oelschig & Sons' 1917 Easter trade was very satisfactory, the increase over last year's sales during the same period being 10 per cent. Prices were also better. Stock was plentiful, with a strong demand for lilies and roses.

CLEANING-UP DAY has been fixed as May 1 in many cities of the United States, and whenever our florist and nursery friends have an opportunity they should seek to aid such a movement in their home town or city.

CONTINUED war conditions will render the importation of florists' stocks more difficult and the quality of seeds, bulbs, plants and other supplies received from abroad so uncertain that growers and dealers must rely more and more upon their own resources until peace is restored.

Head Gardener Wilson.

White House employes secured permission from the Department of Justice, April 17, to use one-half acre of vacant land in the down-town section of the capital for gardening purposes. The department of agriculture has been asked to assist in the selection of seeds, and the President will probably assist in the formal breaking of the ground.

Memorial Day.

The effect of the great wave of patriotism that has been aroused and is holding the country at the present time cannot but have a favorable influence on the celebration of Memorial day. It behooves the trade to foster and encourage this in every possible way. Almost the entire demand is for cemetery decoration. The survivors of the Grand Army of the Republic, of the Civil war are fast passing away, but the beautiful custom of the decoration of the graves of the heroes, should never be allowed to die out.

Plant Names Standardized.

We have received from Harlan P. Kelsey, secretary of the American Joint Committee on Horticultural Nomenclature, copy of the official code of standardized plant names, which seems to be a step in the right direction. The committee under whose supervision this code was produced represents the American Association of Nurserymen, Ornamental Growers' Association, American Society of Landscape Architects, American Pharmaceutical Association and the American Association of Park Superintendents, and while the members of these organizations are doubtless eminently qualified for this work in their respective lines, it seems to us that a number of important trade bodies have been overlooked in the selection of the committee, such for example as the Society of American Florists, American Seed Trade Association, American Pomological Society and the Canadian Horticultural Association. Any attempt to standardize commercial plant names, however, must be considered worthy and probably the present publication can be used as a basis for a more extended code covering all branches of the trade.

Mothers' Day and the S. A. F.

O. J. Olson, of St. Paul, Minn., member of the Mothers' day committee of the Society of American Florists, which also includes E. J. Fancourt, Philadelphia, Pa.; Karl P. Baum, Nashville, Tenn.; Henry Greve, Dallas, Tex.; Chas. P. Mueller, Wichita, Kan.; C. W. Eichling, New Orleans, La.; Chas. J. Graham, Cleveland, O.; R. E. Schiller, Chicago; F. H. Holton, Milwaukee, Wis., and Irwin Bertermann, Indianapolis, Ind., has sent us a copy of the subjoined communication which will be sent out by the committee through the office of Secretary John Young during the present week, with the hope that the response in the aid of this deserving movement, which, with proper co-operation, offers such great possibilities, will be both generous and general:

"To the Florists of America:

"You are aware of the great benefits which every florist has derived from the establishment of Mothers' day. Last year the board of directors of the Society of American Florists appealed for subscriptions to a fund to be placed at the disposal of the National Mothers' Day Association, of which Miss Anna Jarvis, the originator of Mothers' day, is the head. There was a very liberal response from a few of the more prominent members in the trade, but this appeal was not responded to as generally as it should have been. This year it is hoped that every one who benefits from the sale of flowers or accessories for Mothers' day will evidence their appreciation of what has already been done and the big possibilities that Miss Jarvis has opened to the florist trade by subscribing to this fund promptly.

"We owe Miss Jarvis a great deal, as the Mothers' day sale of flowers bids fair to surpass any other day in the year. Her work now is mainly to perpetuate and get this day thoroughly established. Miss Jarvis has devoted her time and funds in the effort to make Mothers' day universally recognized and to perpetuate it for all time. Miss Jarvis, by reason of being the originator, is in a position to command more publicity for Mothers' day than money can buy, and it is for this reason that you should do your share, whether small or large, to help this united effort for a fund that will get results.

"You will find enclosed a subscription blank which covers a period of three years. Kindly write in the amount that you feel that you can give, sign and return to John Young, secretary, 53 West 28th street, New York, with check for the first year. If for any reason you do not want to subscribe for this period, you may cross out and send your subscription for the current year only. Do this now, as the committee desires to get as early results as possible, and, if a sufficient fund is realized, the Mothers' day committee has in mind a publicity campaign which will help eliminate some of the undesirable features which are experienced in the sale of flowers for this occasion. Your prompt attention to this will be greatly appreciated."

Cash Payments.

A well-known wholesale cut flower merchant, in speaking of credits, declared that all must come to the system of monthly payments. He cited the practice of the wholesale produce dealers, who have adopted a rule that no matter how gilt-edged a customer is in the rate books, if his bill is not paid by the tenth of the month, all future dealings are for spot cash until his account is cleaned up. He stated this was now the rule adopted by his house. The check for all monthly bills must be in hand by the tenth of the month following; if not, then "spot cash" for all purchases.

This is not a reflection on the customers credit, but they have made this a rule and it must be lived up to by all who desire to deal with them. He claimed that unlimited credit had been the cause of the downfall of many a good business. The proprietor worked hard, was ambitious, but did not give the time to the financial part of the business that he should. Several cases were cited where men who were thousands behind, had been by the cash payment system, made to look closer to their own collections. They had also become more careful buyers and watchful of their overhead charges, all of which had greatly benefited their business. Almost all business is now being done on a cash basis and retail florists should see to it and notify customers as do the department stores, that prices are based on cash payments, but are carried to the first of the month for their convenience.

Lancaster County Florists' Club.

The visiting committee of this club, consisting of Willis Girvin, Ira Landis and Lemon Landis, arranged a trip to Lititz, April 19, leaving Lancaster at 2 p. m. There are 52 other florists members of this club. One florist, the writer, two builders, T. J. Nolan and Dennis Connor, and one store man, J. DeBarry Heinitsh, made the trip; it is to be surmised that in these strenuous times of loyalty, the rest forgot their loyalty to the club and are concentrating it all on the war proposition.

On account of the smallness of the party and the extreme heat of the day, we did not get to the establishment of Fred Spinner, who is at the extreme end of Lititz and some walk from the car line, but a telephone call revealed the fact that he is as usual doing a land office business in vegetable plants along with the flowering plant end of it. He is one of those quiet unassuming fellows who does not say much, but accomplishes a great deal.

C. S. Loeffler, along the car line, received the honor of our visit; he has quite an establishment and one well worth a trip to see. Yellow daisies are a leading feature here and he has cut about 65,000 of them. Snapdragons are the second largest crop and they have been cutting since October from Keystone and the giant varieties and the same plants are producing good stock yet. Silver Pink is just coming into crop and will be discarded for next season. A trial on forcing Spanish iris has turned out fairly well, but he finds that about 40 per cent. do not bloom the first year.

A new sweet pea here was one of the sensations of the trip. It is lavender in color, blooms early, and is in full vigor right now when all the other varieties in the same house are what might be called down and out. In addition to its early and continuous blooming, it produces very long stemmed flowers with, in the majority of cases, four flowers to a stem. Mr. Loeffler is saving all the seed he can get of it. Mrs. Loeffler, as hostess, treated us to a bowl of delightful punch, genuine Lititz pretzels, Lititz fudge and cakes enough for a crowd of 20 people, and the other 16 can only imagine what they missed, as both Mr. and Mrs. Loeffler make ideal hosts.

On the way back to Lancaster a stop was made at the establishment of Enos Kohr, where as usual, we found carnations in the pink of perfection, foliage clean to the bottom of the plants and the top a sea of buds and flowers. Mr. Kohr grows only three varieties, and it is due to this elimination of varieties that has turned his place into the establishment it is, for I do not believe that there is one plant on the place that has not produced its full quota of flowers. One bed of Alice will be turned into a house of it next season. The other varieties he grows are Mrs. C. W. Ward and Matchless. Just how many he has I did not find out, but it must be over 100,000 plants. His house of young stock, from which they have just commenced planting into the field, is given to carnations only and run accordingly so that he has full control of temperature, etc., and the result is the finest lot of carnation plants that I think I ever saw. They are planted into soil on benches direct from the sand bed and topped quite low. Here as everywhere, the coal and labor proposition is a serious one for next winter, and along with it, the serious proposition of how to get a little more money out of the place.

At 7:30 sharp the club meeting was called to order with only a fair attendance of the members. The matter of not getting our empty flower boxes returned was brought up, and it will be given to our attorney along with other claims against the express company. A general discussion on the inferior quality of the boxes sent out the past year was indulged in, and Elmer Weaver, of Ronks, Pa., was appointed a committee of one to get prices and samples from the different makers and submit them to the members to make up a club order of a carload or more. J. Wade Gale gave us a very interesting paper on "Carnations," interspersed with witty personals and lots of good cultural features, the one strong point he brought out being that he attributed his success to the fact that he tops often instead of trying to make a clean up at one time, and believes in allowing the young plants to have some foliage for the production of roots. His paper was fully appreciated by everyone present, but in the rush to get the business through by a very tired president, the vote of thanks was overlooked. It was decided to hold our picnic in June, with time and place fixed at our May meeting. The president appointed Harry K. Rohrer, Lemon Landis and J.

DeBarry Heinitsh, a committee to arrange said picnic. The programme committee reported having secured Richard Vincent, Jr., to give us an illustrated lecture on dahlias for the May meeting with an invitation to the ladies to attend. On motion made by the sole florist visitor for April, the visiting trips were abolished until next fall.

ACTIVE DEMAND FOR FUNERAL WORK.

Changeable weather with a moderate demand for flowers has been the rule in this city since Easter, which was marked by a very prosperous trade notwithstanding the excitement due to war conditions and all local florists are well pleased with the general results. Weddings, which are always numerous after Easter, have been no exception this year, but the florists, caterers and dressmakers are not benefited, as quiet ceremonies are the order of the day. General trade, however, is very good. The supply of all flowers is equal to requirements and the quality is of the very best. Plants that should have been in for Easter are now being used in window decorations.

NOTES.

The installation of officers of the florists' club took place April 16. President Elbers has surrounded himself with a good lot of men and a most successful year is predicted by all for this organization.

Greenhouse men are all busy with spring stock. Warm weather is all that is lacking to enable outside work to be done.

The Lenox Flower Shop presents a very attractive appearance fully in keeping with its location on Delaware avenue, which has been rightly called the "Fifth Avenue" of this city.

Visitors: Martin Reukauf, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; E. I. Mepstead and Miss Scrim, of Ottawa, Ont.

Nashville, Tenn.

TRADE SHOWS GENERAL IMPROVEMENT.

Each day since Easter, the trade has seemed to improve and the stock that is coming in is of very fine quality, especially roses and carnations, which are in the lead in the call. There are some very fine Easter lilies, too, that are always in demand. The presence of Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of the President, in this city for a song recital for the benefit of the Red Cross Society fund, was the occasion of a series of elegant social functions and many complimentary floral offerings, one of the handsomest being a bunch of five dozen American Beauties sent by the postoffice employes.

NOTES.

One of the most interesting items of news in floral circles is the announcement of the Joy Floral Company of the opening of a branch store in Chattanooga. They have for some time past done a large wholesale business there, and seeing an opening, decided to enter the field. They will be located at 721 Market street and the store will be under the supervision of Herbert H. Harrison, who has been with the firm for about twelve years. For the present the supply will be sent from the Nashville greenhouses, which are of ample capacity to supply it, and the erection of greenhouses there will be considered in the future. There are three concerns already in Chattanooga, but no flower stores, and the Joys propose to fill this want.

The bedding plant trade is in full operation, as it is now late enough to plant out any kind of flower. The small growers completely infest the daily market house, and from wagons on the outside one can get a fine assortment of flowers at a slightly lower price than from the flower stores. An enormous trade is done, and the small grower reaps the benefit of his year's hard work.

BUSINESS SHOWS IMPROVEMENT.

Business is showing signs of improvement at this writing, especially as far as the out-of-town demand is concerned, and from present indications it appears as if the market is gradually stiffening as was predicted in THE AMERICAN FLORIST last week. Trade was very quiet then and large quantities of stock of all kinds were moved in large lots at ridiculously low prices to whoever would buy it. The department stores were heavy purchasers and came in handy in moving whatever surplus there was. Prices on stock in general were very low and it seemed to be a race with the dealers as to who could sell the cheapest and unload the quickest. While trade is better this week and prices are higher there is plenty of everything to go around although at times certain items clean up completely at good figures. American Beauty roses are in better demand than they were last week, especially in the medium and longer stemmed grades, and the same holds true for Mrs. Chas. Russell. Some especially fine Ophelia, Sunburst, Champ Weiland, My Maryland, Killarney, White Killarney and Killarney Brilliant are to be had at very reasonable figures in large lots and the same holds true for roses in general which appear to be gradually going off crop. Carnations are in large supply and are moving a trifle better but are not bringing anywhere near the prices that they should. Lily of the valley and orchids are good property and the same holds true for iris which is selling at very good prices considering the present market conditions. Sweet peas are in large supply and in good demand but violets appear to be about done. Snapdragons are plentiful enough to more than supply the demand and so are lilies and callas. Home grown and southern gladioli, tulips, jonquils, daisies, sweet alyssum, lupines, anemones, cornflowers, ranunculus, feverfews, pansies, forget-me-nots, narcissi, freesias, gardenias, trailing arbutus, lilac and many other miscellaneous seasonable flowers are included in the shipments and give the retail florists a splendid opportunity to make a big showing at very little cost and a good many of them are quick to take advantage of an overloaded market, judging from their window displays this week. Greens of all kinds are selling nicely especially smilax which is in unusually brisk demand. The outlook for stock for Mothers' day, Sunday, May 13, is none too encouraging and if the out-of-town and local buyers care to take a tip from the writer they will place their orders immediately for what they need, otherwise they are liable to meet with disappointment for the demand promises to be heavier than ever this year. Don't forget. Place your orders early. Do it now.

NOTES.

Miss Florence Smyth, daughter of W. J. Smyth, well-known retail florist, and Everett Williams, were united in marriage last Saturday, April 21. The Smyth home at 6541 Yale avenue, where the wedding ceremony was held, was beautifully decorated with lilies, pink roses and wild smilax.

Kennicott Bros. Co. has leased the entire space in the LeMoyné building at 174 North Wabash avenue, formerly occupied by the E. C. Amling Co., which gives them 3600 square feet of floor space in addition to its present quarters of practically the same size.

H. G. McLellan, with Ove Gnatt, Hammond, Ind., underwent an operation for appendicitis at Lakeside hospital, Monday, April 23.

The nation's need is efficiency

—Rapid Rappers wrap right

Pat. May, 1916—Trade Mark Registered.

THE nation's need, the florists' need today is efficiency—non-wastefulness. In offering the Rapid Rapper to the trade we have overcome one of the florists' greatest enemies, wasteful wrapping.

The Rapid Rapper has no drawbacks. It was made to eliminate the florists' wrapping problems, to wrap plants and baskets quicker, cheaper and better—and it does. There are no deterrents, nothing to in any way hinder its efficiency.

The Rapid Rapper is so simple that any child can easily and quickly wrap your plants and baskets without causing any damage to the blooms, and at the same time use less than one-half the paper required by the old method. No more wasting your time or that of your valuable assistants here. The Rapid Rapper assures perfect protection to the plant or basket and an attractive package which you will be proud to deliver, your customer proud to receive.

"The Art of Wrapping," an interesting booklet, illustrated and containing full details and prices, is ready. Send for it today.

Peter Reinberg has 50,000 carnations already planted out in the field. Peter Schowboe, who succeeded Emil Reichling as foreman at the Reinberg greenhouses, has the planting in the greenhouses also well under way, 25 houses of Mrs. Chas. Russell, 10 houses of Ophelia, 10 houses of Champ Weiland and 15 houses of Milady roses already being benched. This firm is cutting heavily in roses, particularly fancy Ophelia and Mrs. Chas. Russell.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. report a brisk demand for iris in all colors which they are handling in quantity. Mr. Vaughan is very enthusiastic over the outlook for Mothers' day, for his growers will nearly all be in heavy crop with both roses and carnations and the early demand indicates that the buying will be very heavy. Mrs. W. S. Evans, of LaSalle, was a welcome visitor at this establishment this week.

Allie Zech says that Zech & Mann have had a big call for the Mothers' day posters and posterettes issued by the Chicago Florists' Club since their advertisement appeared last week and that every mail is bringing in new orders.

Joe Erringer, of the Zech & Mann force, has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his father whose death occurred this week. The boys at Zech & Mann's were represented at the funeral in the shape of beautiful pillows.

Daniel H. McNulty, brother of Miss Marguerite McNulty, with Peter Reinberg, who is now located at Seattle, Wash., has joined the engineer corps of the Washington National Guard.

John Nylof and C. H. Janssen, with Swanson's, Inc., Minneapolis, Minn., spent several days here this week visiting the leading commercial greenhouses and retail establishments.

The wholesalers in general are to be complimented for holding the prices down on carnations for Mothers' day this year which will do more to encourage the retail florists to buy heavier than any other form of advertising. There is no use of asking high prices just because one can get it, for the minute it is done you kill the goose that lays the golden egg. The retail florists should reciprocate by ordering assorted colors and not insist upon white altogether.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. report a large number of inquiries for carnations for Mothers' day in lots of 2,000 up to 9,000 and from present indications the demand promises to be heavier than ever this year. Mr. Pyfer says the supply of stock will be large as far as his firm is concerned, but is advising everyone to place their orders well in advance so as to avoid any possible disappointment.

Bassett & Washburn have had an unusually heavy out-of-town demand for stock this week, especially on Monday, April 23, when over 15 pages of orders were filled. The city demand is showing signs of improvement but is not anywhere near as brisk as it should be.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. cordially invite the trade to attend the grand opening of its new salesroom, Saturday, April 28. In addition to a magnificent display of florists' supplies, Manager Waters has one of Buchbinder Bros. celebrated refrigerators on show.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is busy booking orders for Mothers' day and while the early demand is mostly for carnations, roses are also having a good call and an early cleanup in both lines is in sight.

The retail florists are planning on organizing again in the near future and it is understood that the main object of the association will be to ask the wholesalers to discontinue their "red violet" business.

Henry M. Hirsh had the order for the opening of the Clark confectionery store this week which consisted of a large beautiful horseshoe of American Beauty roses and white carnations on an easel.

There is some talk in the wholesale market in regard to keeping the stores open until 11 p. m. Saturday nights and closing all day Sunday. This is a move in the right direction and no doubt can be accomplished through the Chicago Wholesale Cut Flower Association. The majority of the dealers seem to be in favor of the movement and all that is necessary to start the ball a rolling is for a couple of the leading houses to declare themselves. Who will be the first to sign the petition?

M. C. Gunterberg warns the trade to be on the lookout for the fellow with a bogus check for he attempted to pass one on her this week for $25 made out to the Cottage Grove Bank. The old dodge, calling for $20 worth of flowers and receiving $5 back, did not work this trip for she immediately called up the bank, who confirmed her suspicion that he was a crook. While she was telephoning he made his getaway.

Wietor Bros. are cutting a splendid supply of Ophelia roses, which they are growing in quantity and are moving nicely considering the general market conditions. N. J. Wietor reports a brisk demand for young rose stock and rooted carnation cuttings with, new orders continually arriving.

Miss May Schultz, with J. A. Budlong, is back from a delightful visit to Miami, Fla. The boys at Budlong's are rather inclined to believe that Miss May is going to leave them soon and remark that they would not be at all surprised to hear the tinkle of the wedding bells in the near future.

The A. L. Randall Co. is booking orders for a new victrola operated by an electric unit which will sell in the neighborhood of $125 each. Many of Mr. Randall's friends have ordered one of the new machines, which they consider a bargain at the price mentioned.

The Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Co. is shipping material for four new houses, 36x500 feet, to the Ohio Greenhouse Co., Rocky River, O. The contract includes the heating system, boilers and everything else with the exception of the glass.

Fred Lenke, who has been engaged in the violet growing business at Park Ridge for many years, died last week. He was well and favorably known to members of the trade, who unite in extending the bereaved family their heartfelt sympathy.

F. F. Benthey has returned from a visit to New Castle, Ind., where work on the new Benthey houses is well under way. One Moninger house is about completed and ready for planting and the other is well on the road to completion.

Percy Jones, Inc., has been very busy with shipping orders all week, and, judging from the large number of boxes going out of this establishment every day, this firm is getting more than its share of business during these quiet times.

H. C. Rowe will be associated with the Bohannon Floral Co., 75 East Monroe street, on and after May 1, consequently he will give up the idea of opening a store again in the fall, as was mentioned in our last issue.

L. Hoeckner, with Peter Reinberg, has returned from a pleasant visit at St. Louis, Mo., where he called on the wholesale and several of the retail florists.

The Garland Manufacturing Co. is building another house, 86x900, for Davis & Steiner to be erected at Ottawa.

Visitors: Samuel Seligman, with Wertheimer Bros., New York; A. Hartnett, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Julius Dillorf, with Schloss Bros., New York.

WARM WEATHER BRINGS HEAVY SUPPLY.

The spring season, with its warm weather and rains, was officially ushered in last week to the satisfaction of all, except a number of florists, whose stock was rushed in in a hurry, and with only a moderate demand, business was not satisfactory. Every line, including roses, carnations, and especially sweet peas, felt the depression. Just to what cause one can attribute the dull times is hard to figure out. This week started off with rain and much cooler weather, so there are hopes of a gradual improvement.

NOTES.

S. Deltmann, of A. M. Deltmann & Son, who operate a range at 417 Auer avenue, is back home after having submitted to a successful operation at a local hospital recently. It will take him some time to again regain his full strength and he has our best wishes for a speedy recovery.

To judge from the way advance shipping orders are coming in at the local wholesale houses, one has every

AVERAGE RECEIPTS BUT PRICES LOW.

The past week saw perhaps the largest supply of flowers of all kinds on the local market since last summer. There were immense quantities of roses and bulbous stock, much of which was cleaned up on Saturday to the street merchants, and while the week's receipts average well throughout, prices in most cases were low and "dollar boxes" and "sales" were the order of the day. Carnations, although quite plentiful, fared much better for the good stock, which cleaned up nicely, while seconds and "sleepy stock" went to the street. Violets are moving slowly, but are of excellent quality. Lily of the valley has been short of the demand. Sweet peas are in good supply, the better grades especially selling up. Snapdragons are plentiful and have dropped in price, white dragging a little. Iris is in good demand, but limited in supply. Callandulas, forget-me-nots, stocks and daisies arrive daily. Roses of all kinds were received in a much open condition last week, making it difficult to fill orders without sorting over. Greens of all kinds are plentiful.

NOTES.

A. C. Hottes, agricultural expert from the Ohio State University, gave several lectures in local schools on war gardens, preparing soils, and fertilizers. He paid the local wholesale florists a visit also, as he is very much interested in flowers.

Fred Ponting, florist and vegetable gardener of Eddy road, died suddenly April 19 of heart failure.

MARKET EXPERIENCES GLUT.

The market during the past week has been overcrowded; in fact, a glut prevails, although it does not seem to be as bad as a year ago. Prices are a little better. Bulbous stock is about done for, especially as to quality. Jonquils and hyacinths are watery and do not keep. Darwin tulips are somewhat better. Sweet peas are fine and are quoted from $5 per 1,000 for the best to $1.50 per 1,000 for the shorts. Roses are good, but move only in large lots at cleanup prices. Snapdragons move slowly. Lilies are a glut with lots of them going to waste. Carnations are very good with prices down to $7.50 per 1,000 on the lowest grades. In green goods the market holds its own, with fancy ferns up to $4 per 1,000.

NOTES.

Walter Young, of the firm of C. Young & Sons, was married to Miss Peet, a South Side belle, at St. Margaret's church. He was attended as best man by his brother, Chas. C. Young. He has the well wishes and congratulations of many friends.

Miss Martha Kniess, with Windler's Flowers, has been seen in the neighborhood of the First Regiment armory lately, and it is rumored she is ambitious to become a Red Cross nurse.

W. A. Rowe entertained a large number of his florist friends at his greenhouses on South Denny road, Kirkwood, April 21 with an "old-fashioned barn dance." Everybody had a great time.

Rich. Tubbessing, of Ayers Floral Co., has been elected secretary of the Retail Florist Association, account of vacancy caused by Marion Uhl Schmidt's resignation.

A. S. Cerny, of Kirkwood, is going to build additional glass this summer. He grows first-class roses, which are consigned to Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co.

The county growers are making arrangements for a large crowd to attend the next florists' club meeting at the Eleven Mile house as their guests.

Oscar May is planning to build a new home this summer. He has been getting bids and figures, and intends letting the contract at an early date.

BIG SUPPLY, AND PRICES SUFFER.

Market conditions have changed since our last report, with prices lower. Roses are of good quality for the season but are moving at sacrifice figures, some being sold in dry goods stores on Saturday at one cent each. Carnations are plentiful but the quality does not improve. Sweet peas and lilies are holding their own and are both good property. The few pot plants available sell at sight. Bedding stock is beginning to move and a number of beds and boxes have been planted.

NOTES.

T. J. Noll & Co. disposed of 20,000 roses last week in addition to a large supply of carnations and other stock. Lilies and sweet peas are quite plentiful here. Stock in general is reported as moving quite well.

W. J. Barnes is finishing up his shrubs and making preparations for spring work as a number of his orders start early. His geraniums, salvias, coleus and vincas are the best he ever had.

Wm. Foith's bedding stock is in fine condition and he has started selling earlier than ever before. He will have a heavy supply of carnations and sweet peas for Mothers' day.

The Rosery is bringing in a few late bulbs. Business in all lines is reported good. Orders for decorations are increasing and corsage work is heavy.

The Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. is having a good business with plenty of stock to meet the demand. Funeral work and wedding orders are factors.

Jas. Payne has a fine line of bedding stock and anticipates a big season. He is looking for a new location and will move his range about August 1.

H. Kusik & Co. report heavy receipts but an active demand has kept it well cleaned up. A new line of ribbons and chiffons is being featured here.

The Oakwood Farm Floral Co. is cutting carnations in large numbers. John Stevens' cut also amounts to thousands daily.

THE LEO NIESSEN CO., 1201-5 Race St., Philadelphia, Pa.

MARKET GREATLY OVERSTOCKED.

This is the season of our discontent; that is, to judge from the faces of the directors of the various commission houses. When I ventured to ask as to the state of business, I was informed that it was "rotten", "it was the worst ever", "never had such a week" and other more or less despairing statements of last week's business. There is a greatly overstocked market, due in part to the mild weather and a lack of social events for the time being. All the early weddings are over and such events will now be spasmodic until the advent of June. The quality of the roses is excellent. American Beauties are now plentiful and usually back up the stock of the street vendors. All these gentry carry an abundant supply and appear to be doing a rushing business. Carnations, due to the warmer weather, are a bit soft but still look very fair. Sweet peas are a great factor; they form a goodly portion of all the stocks and sell as well as anything on the market. Spanish iris is a favorite with many and some very good stock is seen. Calandulas and all that class of flowers are very plentiful. Lilac is scarce as are cattleyas and lily of the valley. With a very few exceptions it is a buyer's market, but as one of the sellers put it, "nobody wants to buy, so what's the use?"

NOTES.

Clarence Ligget, in charge of the S. S. Pennock-Mechan Co.'s plant department, also their credit man, thinks that growers could find a solution to many of their difficulties if they would adopt or figure out a cost system. Four-fifths of all men in the florist's trade appear to run their business on the guesswork plan. Geraniums are being sold, four-inch pot quality, as low as $7 a hundred by some growers. This stock costs from $2.50 to $3 per hundred in two-inch pots. The four-inch pot costs 50 per cent. more than last season, and it takes a month or six weeks of attention and good greenhouse space to get it to a salable size. Then it is sold for seven to eight cents. The same growers would not think of selling a hyacinth plant for less than 10 cents. The bulbs do not cost as much as the small geranium, are outside all winter, have a week or 10 days in the house, and would not be salable after Easter, yet the grower holds for 10 cents and gets it. Why he does not do this for his geraniums, for which he has a much longer selling period, is a mystery. If growers would keep some kind of a record of their expenditures, they would soon be able to tell just what it cost to grow this or that plant. Better prices would then prevail, as few would sell at a loss. Overhead charges include all the little, everyday expenses, which added to pots, fuel, delivery, salaries, telephone, rent or interest, taxes, etc., make up the cost of maintaining or conducting the business, all of which must be paid out of the sale of the products of the place.

All who desire to know about business management should attend the May meeting of the florists' club,

Don't Wait

Now is the time to send us a shipment of flowers and acquaint yourself with the satisfactory treatment you receive when you ship to New York's Foremost Commission House in the flower trade.

Extensive experience, ample capital, modern facilities and, in fact, everything to commend us to you.

Special opportunity for a couple of Good Rose Growers who are looking for best returns. Our present demand is larger than our supply.

UNITED CUT FLOWER CO., Inc., 111 W. 28th St., New York City

Tuesday next, when they will hear an essay by the vice-president of the Fourth Street National bank, a first-class business exponent and certified accountant. They will also receive a pamphlet on how to figure out overhead charges. This is issued by the United States government. Surely this will secure a record attendance. Come and bring all you think will be interested.

Berger Brothers are about to move into the central wholesale district in the neighborhood of Sixteenth and Chestnut streets. Ludlow and Ranstead streets, above and below Sixteenth, house six wholesale firms, with two below Sixteenth on Sansom street, about one block away. The Messrs. Berger bought a property across from their present location for their future occupancy, but have rented this and will move uptown as soon as they can find a suitable building.

Edward Reid views the situation complacently. Seeing the glut first, he worked up an out-of-town demand, which called for from six to eight thousand roses a day last week, as well as quantities of other flowers.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange is carrying an immense stock these days. They think some growers need reforming. One sent in 25 callas for Easter and 3,000 the past week.

Eugene Bernheimer is handling quantities of sweet peas. Carnations are also a feature. An immense crop of roses is showing at the Florex Gardens at North Wales.

Orchids are scarce with the Jos. Heacock Co., but the situation will be normal in a couple of weeks. Roses were very plentiful the past week, but are now off crop again.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. are having a great run on their new tricolor novelty baskets, cradles, etc. Their "Near-to-Nature" white carnation for Mothers' day is seen in quantity.

The Leo Niessen Co. is handling quantities of American Beauties. Irises, snapdragons and high-grade sweet peas are also features.

Jos. P. Neidinger is having a great run on magnolia wreaths for Memorial day. Cycas leaf sprays, decorated with carnations, are also a feature.

The Robert Craig Co. is already shipping young plants of cyclamen. The stock this season is very fine. K.

Providence, R. I.

BRISK BUSINESS AT FAIRLY GOOD PRICES.

Trade during the past week has been active and the majority of the stores have been busy. Roses have been quite plentiful and while a cleanup cannot be reported, generous numbers were disposed of at satisfactory figures. Carnations are also plentiful and are priced low. Pot geraniums are beginning to come in and the quality is good. Bulbous stock is about finished up and other stock is taking its place.

NOTES.

M. Iannotti of Thornton is improving rapidly after an illness of five weeks and is able to be about again.

The gardeners and outside men are putting on some big forces to take care of their work.

Wm. Hay is preparing for extensive improvements at his range at Oak-lawn. H. A. T.

New York.

SLOW DEMAND BECOMES MORE NOTICEABLE.

In the wholesale district the general feeling is that the business of the past week was slower than that of the preceding one. American Beauties made a slight recovery, not from an increased demand, but from a lighter supply. Sales of all the other roses and carnations are extremely slow. The spring flowers are telling heavily against roses and carnations. A trip among the retailers has recently shown that in table decorations, spring flowers such as tulips, narcissi and irises are being largely used. The same is true of baskets, many of which are made up by the retailers. In these newsletters, the writer has heretofore refrained from discussing war; but we are now in war, and a big one. The florists, like the rest of the people, are Americans, and if hardship or the necessity of sacrifice shall come, we believe that they will fulfill the obligation to their country like true patriots. We take this up now, partly because there are some people in the business who are growing timid. A curtailing of luxuries is inevitable, and doubtless it will be felt in our business; but we have no idea that the business will be ruined. This thought has just come to mind: Every summer there is dumped on this market an immense surplus of outdoor flowers which does not sell for much more than pays the express charges. Now is the time for the people who own the land and grow such stock to consider. They should cut a lot of it out and grow vegetables, and by so doing they would not only help their country, but also benefit themselves. The reasons for such a course are obvious and need not be here restated. We also believe that such a course would in the long run help the cut flower trade. We trust that the foregoing will be received by our readers in the spirit in which it is written. Getting back to immediate conditions, while there have been a number of clear days, enough to bring in a large supply of greenhouse stock, the weather has been generally cool. The carnation growers are busy preparing, but little or no planting has yet been done. There is a movement in stock that will be needed in spring planting, but largely in the nature of preparing. From present indications, good geraniums will not be plentiful and will go higher.

April 23.—There is considerable buying in the wholesale district this morning, but nearly all stocks are going cheap. The weather is clear and warm and an even heavier supply of stock may be expected for the remainder of the week. However, there does not seem to be any cause for alarm. A great amount of spring stock will soon be out of the way, which will be favorable to the roses and carnations—as long as the carnations last. As elsewhere stated, we do not believe that the florist business will suffer to any great extent, therefore let every florist stand pat and keep a stiff upper lip.

NOTES.

There are some retail stores that do not stop with a fine display at the holidays, but keep it up all the year. The C. A. Dards store, Madison avenue and Forty-fourth street, is such a one.

At this store we recently noticed an admirable window decoration. Two large pots of pink rambler roses were so placed as to form an arch, which was filled in with flowering hydrangeas, daisies and ferns. In the foreground was a beautiful display of oncidiums, yellow snapdragons and other flowers.

Hentz & Nash, in the rooms of the New York Cut Flower Co., are handling a good, light pink rose, which has been named Bedford Belle. It is a sport of Double White Killarney and originated in the range of the Bedford Flower Co., Bedford Hills, N. Y.

The sympathy of the trade is extended to Maurice Klemmian, purchasing agent for Myer, Madison avenue and 58th street, whose wife died April 17 of cancer, after a lingering illness of three years and six months.

When the traveling public buys flowers it would not appear that business is very bad. Alexander M. Westwood, the florist at the Pennsylvania Terminal, advises us that his business was never better.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held on the night of May 14. It is expected that important matters will be discussed and there should be a large attendance.

Coal is going up, but that should not greatly worry the florists at present; it may come down again by midsummer. The number and variety of excuses that are from time to time put forward for raising the price of coal would be amusing were they not so shameful. At one time we hear that the miners will not work; at another there is a scarcity of cars, and the stock excuse now seems to be, that everybody wants to buy coal at the same time. Coal is now costing the consumer in this city on an average of $1 a ton more than was paid in April of last year. At the office of one of the big coal companies of this city the following statement was made: "With four or five months of summer ahead, when comparatively little coal is used and a great deal is produced, the price should be lower. It is the government's intention to exempt the miner from military duty, so that the mines may be operated; and the miners will undoubtedly work all summer, as they did last year."

Alexander McConnell, Fifth avenue and Forty-ninth street, who is also proprietor of the Woodside Nurseries, New Rochelle, N. Y., has handed us his latest catalogue of new hybrid tea roses and collection of roses for garden culture. It is a handsome booklet, and on the cover we find this touching sentiment from a poem by Felicia Hemans:

"How much of memory dwells amid thy bloom,
 Roses! ever-increasing beauty for thy dower;
 The bridal day—the festival—the tomb—
 Thou hast thy part in each, thou statliest flower."

Reed & Keller, the supply men of West Twenty-fifth street, are fellows of infinite variety. If there is nothing new on the map, the immediately start something. Bill Reed is the inventor, and just as soon as he invents something good, Keller starts out and persuades the trade that it is the greatest thing on earth; the same being business. Joking aside, we wish to call attention to their new line of bird houses, which are unique and clever, and deserve the attention of the trade.

J. H. Small & Sons, Madison avenue and Fifty-second street, have not yet filled the boxes that are a spring attraction on the front of their store, but they have something else that attracts much attention. Two large American flags have been flung to the breeze.

On April 19, Alexander McConnell had a fine wedding decoration, and as a commentary on keeping customers, it may be stated that when the parents of the bride were married, 27 years ago, he furnished their wedding decoration.

Max Schling, 22 West Fifty-ninth street, who it is needless to add, is well known in the trade, has been busy, but has found time to make up for his show window a handsome floral representation of the American flag.

Miss Cadieux, of the Cadieux Co., 37 West Twenty-eighth street, reports business as encouraging. This firm succeeded Woodrow & Marketos, formerly in the plant trade at the above number.

Alfred Kottmiller, 426 Madison avenue, is one of the active men among the younger generation of florists and has recently been quite busy with decorations for dinners and luncheons.

fifth annual convention, Detroit, Mich.,
June 19, 1917.

VISITED CHICAGO: John T. Buckbee, Rockford, Ill.

IDAHO pea beans have advanced 60 cents per bushel this month.

J. C. VAUGHAN celebrated another birthday anniversary this week.

VISITED NEW YORK.—W. R. Hastings, of H. G. Hastings Co., Atlanta, Ga.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, April 25, were as follows: Timothy, $4.50 to $6.50 per 100 pounds.

HOUSTON, TEX.—O. P. Jackson & Co., Inc., report the demand continues later than usual, many yards being planted to vegetables.

LAKE FOREST, ILL.—Augmented by much new land being devoted to cultivation in this vicinity, D. D. P. Rey is having an unprecedented call for vegetable seeds.

PHILADELPHIA reports this week jobbing white onion sets at $10 per bushel, New York equally high, retail price 40 cents per quart, sets measuring about 25 quarts to the bushel.

NEW YORK.—Frank Weedruff, of S. D. Weedruff & Sons, says there are plenty of potatoes if they would pay the price, $10 and $11 per barrel. He also quoted onion sets at $5 and $7 per bushel.

BEAN growers are seeking new localities, free from anthracnose and weevil, and yielding 8 to 1 or better. Growers are investigating the northwestern states as well as various valleys on the Pacific coast.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—Three Japanese steamship lines, the Osaka Shosen Kaisha, Toyo Kisenkaisha and Nippon Yusen Kaisha, announced April 17 that freight rates eastbound across the Pacific have been advanced 20 to 30 per cent.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—Court Dallwig, while well prepared to take care of his regular patrons, is of the opinion that the seed situation in 1918 will be a serious problem. G. H. Hunkel & Co., and Currie Bros. Co. report very active counter trade, stimulated by back yard gardening activity.

Beet Sugar Production.

Seventy-four factories in the United States, whose average length of campaign was 80 days produced 820,657 short tons of beet sugar, the average extraction being 13.86 per cent. While the production was about 54,000 tons less than in 1915, it was 169,000 more than the average yearly output during 1910-1914. The area harvested amounted to 665,308 acres with an average of 8.90 tons at an average price of $6.12 per ton, as against $5.67 in 1915.

French Bulb Prices.

Various prices so far indicated by cable on French bulbs are shown in the following extracts from different offers:

One grower offers Narcissus Paper White Grandiflora, everything included from 12 to 15 cm., 26 francs; 13 cm. and up, 30 francs; 14 cm. and up, 34 francs.

A second grower offers Narcissus Paper White Grandiflora, 13 cm. and up, 30 francs; white Roman hyacinths, 12-15 cm., 140 francs.

A third grower quotes white Roman hyacinths, 12 cm. and up, 133 francs; Narcissus Paper White Grandiflora, 12 cm. and up, 33 francs; Trumpet Major, 43 francs; Grand Soleil d'Or, 82 francs.

A fourth grower quotes white Roman hyacinths, 12 cm. and up, 145 francs; Narcissus Paper White Grandiflora, 12 cm. and up, 30 francs; 13 cm. and up, 35 francs; 14 cm. and up, 43 francs; Trumpet Major, 40 francs; Grand Soleil d'Or, 80 francs.

In the absence of quotations on freesias, it is evident that the French crop will be light.

Philadelphia Seed Trade.

The seed trade is right in the midst of the local spring rush—and rush it is with a vengeance. Nothing can be done in the way of getting out orders during store hours, as every available employe is required for the counter trade, and after-closing hours most of them stay until midnight getting out the mail and other orders that have run behind.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., are rushed from morning until night. The seed business here is immense, while the Riverton force is turning out tremendous lots of plants, roses especially being in great demand. This firm reports a record-breaking business in March.

The writer counted 102 customers in the H. F. Michell Co.'s store, standing two deep in front of the long counters, while 25 others were selecting stock from the display on the front pavement. It was a wonderful sight.

The Robert Buist Co. was obliged recently to close its store for one day and whiten the windows to try and catch up in their work. The employes also worked all day Sunday, the first time in this firm's experience.

I. N. Simon & Son are fortunate in having quite a few onion sets. White Portugal are priced at $2.75 per peck. This has been this firm's greatest year.

The Moore Seed Co. is offering tomatoes and peppers in pets; a little early to put them out, but they are selling. A great business here is the report.

The Stokes Seed Store never before had such a busy season. Onion sets are out of the market and stocks of many seed items are depleted.

P. B. Mingle & Co. still have good stocks of peas and beans, but many items here are in limited supply.

Chicago Seed Trade.

The retail seed trade had its record day Saturday, April 21. Most of the firms engaged in this line are working, day and night shifts and some of them employ a large Sunday force. The heaviest demand is for vegetable seeds, potatoes and onion sets, and the supply of some items is running very low. All other departments are unusually active.

Leonard H. Vaughan, of Vaughan's Seed Store, is receiving congratulations this week on the arrival of another son, April 22, the fourth boy in this family of five.

C. D. Coventry has been elected secretary of the W. W. Barnard Co. and W. K. Partridge is now in charge of the retail department.

New York Seed Trade.

Reports of the increased business in the seed trade run from 50 to 150 per cent. F. W. Bruggerhof, of J. M. Thorburn & Co., said that business was very satisfactory, adding that they could have sold more if the stock had been obtainable. Vaughan's Seed Store was packed like a department store on a sale day, this store doing a good business in vegetable plants, as well as general stock. The A. T. Boddington Co., Inc., Weeber & Den, Peter Henderson & Co., Elliott & Sens, the Stumpp & Walter Co., the McNiff Horticultural Co., and Peck & Duggan all gave flattering reports.

H. W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., President; H. F. Thompson, Arlington, Mass., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids, Mich., Treasurer.

Next annual convention will be held at Springfield, Mass., in 1917.

SWEET POTATO TRIUMPH is the variety recommended for canning by the Polytechnic Institute at Auburn, Ala.

OTTAWA, ONT.—A vacant lot association, which offers small areas plowed and harrowed, has been formed in this city.

THE Virginia truck experiment station, Norfolk, has issued Bulletin 22 covering investigations of sweet potato diseases.

THE record for a yield of celery per acre is said to be held by a California grower, who produced $1,100 worth from a one-acre field.

PARKVILLE, MO.—A range of houses and 100,000 square feet of ground to be devoted to growing vegetables for city markets are planned at Park College.

THE standard barrel of the United States should contain 7,056 cubic inches, with 28½-inch staves and 17½-inch heads, head material not thicker than 2/5 of an inch.

EVANSVILLE, IND.—Melon growers of the Ohio valley and southern states held a two-day meeting here April 20-21, among the important matters discussed being reductions in demurrage rates on consignments and combating diseases.

BULLETIN No. 477, entitled "Marketing and Distribution of Strawberries in 1915," issued by the United States department of agriculture, treats of observations made by the office of markets and rural organizations of the department at shipping points and in markets.

Railroad Truck Gardening

In addition to systematic assistance in locating and distributing seeds and fertilizers, and recruiting labor which can be spared from other employment, the Baltimore & Ohio railroad has assigned 128 employees of its traffic and commercial development departments to assist in promoting farm and truck garden production. Owners of vacant land, in and near cities along the line, will be urged to use it for vegetable gardens and will be given assistance.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

CHICAGO, April 24 — Mushrooms, home grown, 50 to 75 cents per pound; lettuce, small cases, 17½ to 20 cents; radishes, 50 to 60 cents, dozen bunches; celery, $1.50 to $2.50, crate; tomatoes, six baskets, $3.50 to $4.50; cucumbers, per 2-dozen box, $1.00 to $2.00.

NEW YORK, April 24.—Celery, per crate, $1.00 to $2.50; cucumbers, 50 cents to $1.00; mushrooms, 75 cents to $1.50 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, per lb., 30 to 50 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2.00 to $3.00; lettuce, per strap, $1.50 to $3.50.

Strawberry Growing.

Under the title, "Strawberry Growing," S. W. Fletcher, professor of horticulture at Pennsylvania State College, presents a work of 325 pages, profusely illustrated, which is not only a practical guide to strawberry culture, but also a history of the evolution of this important fruit in America from the Colonial days to the present time. The author has freely incorporated the experiences of other authorities in the text, included in which are chapters devoted to locations, soils, planting, fertilization and irrigation, training the plants, pollinization, picking, packing and marketing, insects and diseases, factors that enter into the cost of production, yields, profits, varieties, etc. The book is now ready and may be had at THE AMERICAN FLORIST office, price $1.75.

Vegetables at Philadelphia.

A look through the wholesale produce markets shows a very full supply. Vegetables from southern states, including Florida potatoes, which latter is very good looking stock, are seen in all the wholesale houses, most of it in good shape. Dealers report that, with the exception of potatoes, prices are not above normal; in fact, on some things, hardly maintained.

Prices are as follows: Jersey sweet potatoes, best grade, $1.50 ¾ bushel; old potatoes, $3.00 and $3.65 per bushel; new Florida potatoes, $11.50 barrel of three bushels; Florida cucumbers, $3.25 for basket containing 7/8 bushel; Florida asparagus, from $2.25 to $4.50 per crate of 12 bunches; southern salad, $3.50 for crate of four dozen bunches.

Florida vegetables were quoted: Egg plants, crate of one dozen, $3.75; string beans, basket, 28 quarts, $1.75; cabbage, large crate, $9.25; peppers, $4.50 crate; squash, $1.25 basket; tomatoes, six baskets to case, containing in all 144 fruit, $4 to $4.50; Bermuda onions, $4.25 per bushel; Florida strawberries, 15 to 30 cents quart; New Jersey spinach, 85 cents per basket.

Vegetable Prices at New York.

On the produce market it is almost impossible to secure state marrow beans, and if good stock was to be had, it would sell readily at from $15 to $15.50 per 100 lbs. Chilian marrows bring from $11 to $12. Limas $15.50 to $17.75. Choice pea beans are selling up to $15 and $15.25. The cheapest beans on the market are South American brown at $7 to $8. Far Eastern red marrows and Chilian imperials $10 to $11.

As the old potatoes grow scarcer prices are going up, quotations being as follows:

Callicarpa Purpurea

A splendid berried Shrub, growing from 2½ to 3 feet high, with its branches gracefully recurving; these are covered in August with tiny pink flowers; which are followed in September by great masses of violet-purple berries borne in clusters from the axil of every leaflet and remain on the plant a long time. It is not only a useful decorative plant for the lawn and garden in the fall, but the cut branches will be found most valuable material for the florist and decorator. Strong bushy plants, 15 inches high, which will fruit freely the first season.

Canna YELLOW KING HUMBERT

(Emund's Queen Helen)

The Best Canna Novelty

This sport of King Humbert has the same habit of growth in the plants but with very dark green foliage and flower stalks excelling those of the King Humbert. The flowers are rich deep yellow, well spotted with red. Some plants occasionally give a scarlet or a scarlet-striped flower which is an effective and striking variation. In a bed or border the mass of trusses excel those of any other variety we know of.

We give below the opinion of a Canna expert on this novelty.

W. W. COLES says: "This variety at a distance of one-half mile loomed up above everything else, and it was at first difficult to believe that a Canna could make such a beautiful showing at that distance. When this variety becomes known, I feel sure it will fill a place among the Yellow Cannas fully as important as King Humbert has among the reds."

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

John Watson, Newark, N. Y., President; Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President; Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress Street, Boston, Mass., Secretary and Counsel. Forty-second annual convention will be held at Philadelphia, Pa., June 27-29, 1917.

FARMERS' Bulletin 804 of the United States department of agriculture, recently issued, contains 42 pages with numerous illustrations and treats of aphids injurious to orchard fruits, currant, gooseberry and grape.

The Cottonwood Borer.

As described in Bulletin No. 424, contributed by the Bureau of Entomology, of the United States department of Agriculture, the cottonwood borer is quite a destructive insect, laying its eggs under the bark or in the trunk of trees at, or just below, the surface of the ground. The larva hatches out and boring into the trunk causes such damage that a storm will break it off. Young trees appear the most subject to its ravages. A fine wire screen at the base of the tree is recommended as a prevention.

Trillium With Double Flowers.

D. J. Talcott, Madison, O., has discovered a double flower of Trillium grandiflorum, according to the American Botanist, which consists entirely of petals, 21 in all. Not only have all the other floral parts been turned into petals but the flower has acquired two extra whorls of three parts each. The whole flower is quite rose-like and would make a desirable addition to the garden. The rhizome which produced this specimen bore two other flowers of the same kind and was found in a colony of the regular type. Mr. Talcott writes that he has experimented with trillium rhizomes and finds that they will grow from divisions as readily as irises do.

Cornus Mas.

The Cornelian cherry (Cornus Mas) is one of the earliest trees or arborescent shrubs to flower here. The flowers are light yellow and are borne in clusters in the axils of the unfolding leaves, and although individually small, are produced in such numbers that the branches are covered with them. They are followed by bright red, lustrous, oblong fruit the size of a small olive. The flower-buds and the flowers of this little tree are not injured by cold. The habit of this plant is good. The foliage is dark green and abundant, and the fruit, although somewhat hidden by the leaves, is handsome. The Cornelian cherry is a native of most European countries and of western Siberia, and has been an inhabitant of gardens for more than 300 years. In the United States it was probably more generally planted in the first half of the last century than it is at present, although there are not many early flowering tree hardy in this climate which are better worth a place in the garden. In the arboretum it can be seen in the cornel group near the junction of the Meadow and Bussey Hill roads.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, May 5, 1916.

Westchester and Fairfield Hort. Society.

The monthly meeting of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society was held in Hubbard's hall, Greenwich, Conn., April 13. President Wm. Whitton in the chair. For the exhibits of the evening the judges made the following awards: Cultural certificates to A. Biskhie for four very fine plants of hydrangeas, and to Wm. Graham for five plants of schizanthus; high commendation to Robt. Grunert for vase of carnations and three vases of tulips; to Fred Metzler for vase of Chrysanthemum Seven Oaks; to Jas. Linane for plant of calceolaria, and to C. Hakanson for vase of sweet peas. The thanks of the society were accorded to John Andrews for a plant of begonia, to Robt. Grunert for a vase of chrysanthemums, to Wm. Whitton for a plant of schizanthus and a vase of carnations, and to P. W. Popp for a standard rhododendron. The first prize for the most meritorious exhibit was awarded to A. Biskhie for four plants of hydrangeas, second honors to Wm. Graham for display of schizanthus, and third to Robt. Grunert for a vase of carnations. H. B. Read, of Conyer's Farm, Greenwich, gave a very interesting lecture on "Fruit Farming," which was much enjoyed by all the members present. ALEX CLARKSON, Secy.

KOKOMO, IND.—Cole's Flower Shop attributes a slight decrease in 1917 Easter sales as compared with those of a year ago to the fact that business was very quiet during the week, coming heavy on Saturday and Sunday with a shortage of lilies and an insufficient supply of roses and sweet peas, more of which could have been disposed of. Carnations were least in demand but sold readily when other lines were exhausted.

NORWOOD

Has Made an Extraordinary Success

In only three weeks all of the large stock of NORWOOD that will be ready this spring has been engaged. Here are the facts:

Norwood—A Distinct Novelty in Nephrolepis Ferns:—The most beautiful of the crested type. The fronds are heavily crested, but do not unite as in many varieties of this class; each is held separate and apart by the strong and wiry midrib, which even in a small pot gives the plant a symmetrical and finished appearance. This is not just a variation of this very prolific family, but distinctly different, a very decided novelty that immediately attracts attention. It was one of the features of the New York Show, where it was awarded a Silver Medal as a new and meritorious variety.

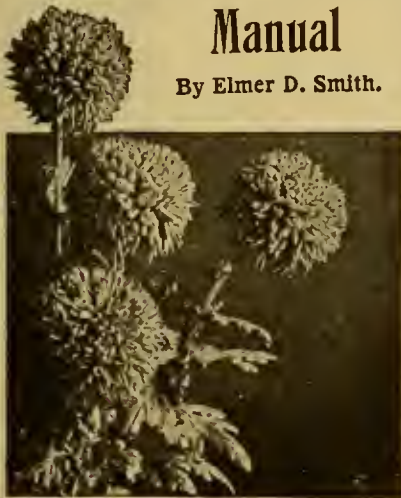

Having booked orders for 50,000 plants for June delivery, we are now accepting orders for August 15 delivery. Strong plants out of 2½-inch pots, $25.00 per 100, $200.00 per 1000. We will fill orders in rotation as received.

USUAL AFTER EASTER LULL CONTINUES.

The sale of flowers has fallen off during the past week, but the demand for trees, shrubs and perennials is on with a rush, stimulated by warm weather. Landscape work of all kinds is booming. In cut flowers, roses are exceptionally good but prices are low and carnations are being disposed of at a sacrifice. Bulbous stock is plentiful, much of it going to waste. Lilies and snapdragons are overabundant. Great quantities of gardenias are arriving from the east and are selling at low figures.

NOTES.

Geo. T. Boucher is installing two new Isko refrigerators. The air is electrically cooled by a new process. He had the decorations for the firemen's ball last week. The arrangement was very elaborate. Trade is good at this establishment, the bulk of it being funeral work.

Edwin C. Kaelber continues to attract much attention to his establishment with his fine window displays. His latest, with nasturtiums and white snapdragons arranged in black vases of various designs with a large center vase on black plush, was stunning.

Salter Bros. had an unusually fine decoration at the Genesee Valley club on the occasion of the birthday dinner tendered to Mayor Edgerton, the centerpiece being a reproduction of Cobb's Hill reservoir, brilliantly illuminated with miniature electric lamps.

John Hall, secretary of the Western New York Horticultural Society, has finished compiling the report of the proceedings of the sixty-second annual meeting of that organization. It will be mailed to all members.

David Scott, of Corfu, N. Y., is cutting continuously on sweet peas. His crop will last until June. He also disposes of fine snapdragons in quantity in this city.

Chester Ament, who has taken over the F. W. Vick greenhouses, has a fine lot of budding plants coming along.

The Budlong Rose Co., Auburn, R. I., is sending fine roses and gardenias to this market.

CHESTER.

NEWCASTLE, IND.—The effects of the recent cyclone are fast disappearing and several of the damaged ranges will soon be in operation.

BRISTOL, TENN.—P. S. Wise, proprietor of the Fairmont Gardens, reports this year's Easter far beyond his expectations with sales 30 per cent better than for the same period last year. The business came late and the force was taxed to its utmost to get orders filled on time.

LONDON, ONT.—Due to unfavorable weather conditions, the Easter trade of 1917 was a disappointment to both growers and retailers. As far as sales for extra quality flowers were concerned, there was no increase over an ordinary Saturday. There was a better demand for plants.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—S. A. Anderson had an excellent Easter business with prices better than during the 1916 period. The demand was for one variety rather than an assortment as in other years. Lilies, rambler roses and azaleas in pots sold especially well and baskets of the same plants were popular.

GETTING MEMORIAL DAY BUSINESS

THROUGH MOTHERS' DAY ORDERS.

A Great Opportunity.

Two weeks and a half after Mothers' day is Memorial day. That means the florist must get busy on preparations for the latter holiday before he has had time to count his profits from the first. Indeed, he should not wait for Mothers' day to pass before beginning work for Memorial day business. If he commences now, he can use the earlier day as a means of getting orders for the later one. All signs point to this coming Memorial day as a record-breaker for florists. This country has declared war and is making preparations for military activities. Although there is yet something of an apathy, a sort of disbelief that this country has actually abandoned its position as a peaceable neutral, and is engaging in the conflict that has torn the old world for nearly three years, gradually a thrill of patriotism, a realization of that deep, abiding obligation to flag and country, is entering the soul of the nation.

Harking Back to '61.

With the growth of this feeling comes the remembrance of the soldiers who gave their lives for their country in previous wars. Examples of heroism and sacrifice on the part of those in European armies today cause us to hark back to the days of '61 and the deeds of the soldiers in the war from which rose the everlasting monument of Memorial day. Hence, on May 30, the sympathy felt by the people of this country for the combatants abroad, and the spirit that stirs them at the thought of our boys and our colors soon mixing in the strife, will loose in greater force than ever before the flood of reverence and veneration that is the meed of fallen patriots on that day. Those who in previous years have carried flowers to the dead on Memorial day will be more generous this year, and thousands who have neglected this remembrance formerly will follow the impulse brought by the present martial stir and purchase flowers.

The florists have this opportunity, which is theirs to cultivate. This year, of all years, the members of the trade who use whatever means of publicity there is at their service to remind the public of this day and its present great significance will reap a rich reward.

Early Start Important.

An early start is important for the accomplishment of large results. Mothers' day offers a splendid beginning. Persons who respond to the sentiment of this day are the sort who will be good customers Memorial day.

An appeal to those who buy flowers for or in memory of their mothers, no matter how small or insignificant their purchase, is surest of results in Memorial day sales. And the buyer of a white carnation for the second Sunday in May will spend many times the cost of it for the thirtieth of the month. Advertising directed at this class of customers will surely pay.

A simple method of obtaining effective publicity to this end is the enclosing of a small card or slip in each order that goes out for Mothers' day. Or this is printed a few lines calling attention to the nearness of the great day of patriotic remembrance and inviting the placing of early orders to be filled May 30. This is a small and inexpensive way of advertising, but is certain to secure results. There is no doubt that such cards will be read, and the chances are immensely favorable for their bringing in orders. The persons who buy flowers for Mothers' day follow an impulse of sentiment—affection for one's parent. They are, therefore, altogether likely to respond to an appeal to another form of sentiment—veneration for the soldier dead. Through the use of a card or slip such as suggested the many small sales for Mothers' day can be made the forerunners of much larger orders for Memorial day.

Herewith is shown a card worded in a way calculated to carry home the particular significance of Memorial day this year, and connect with it in an unobtrusive manner the suggestion for early orders.

those who have had the same removal experience.

The sign, "Florist," is frequently the only name used to designate whose flowers are sold, or whom to address as the proprietor. Such shops are to be found in many cities. His good name should be a man's proudest possession. Certainly it is a most valuable trade mark. The fact that it may have little weight at the start is nothing; the greatest firms in the country have risen from very insignificant beginnings and every man from the day he swings his sign, should endeavor to make his name and business synonymous. His flowers are Dahlias in Baskets and Design Work.

With the coming of the dahlia just as the aster is waning, there is furnished an addition to the fall flowers that for variety of form and brilliancy of color is unexcelled. Many are of real autumn tints in their various shades of yellow and reddish shades of orange, of which that beautiful variety, Minnie McCullough, is a good example. The beautifully shaded pink, Sylvia, and the rich, bright rose pink, Delice, the pink and white cactus, Kriemhilde, and the light pink and full flowered, Dorothy Peacock, are all in every way desirable for cut flower work. Lyndhurst, a fiery scarlet cactus, and Jack Rose, a crimson, are splendid flowers of their color. The whites are perfect in their purity of color and form. Storm King is a medium to large type, while Snow Clad is a fully formed pompon, very useful in design work. The long-stemmed singles come in great variety of color and are fine for basket or in cluster work.

Dahlias are at their best from the fifteenth of September until about the middle of October, during which season they should be taken up by the retail stores, and if given the proper handling and publicity, will help materially in the opening of the season.

Very effective window decorations with the different types in connection with ferns and autumn leaves, can be arranged at comparatively little expense. They make up nicely in baskets, as nearly all the varieties are now disbudded and are to be had with good length of stem. An arrangement of all one variety makes a solid and striking color effect. Minnie McCullough, with autumn leaves in a two-toned brown basket, looks stunning. A large high-handled basket filled with the long-stemmed singles in a variety of colors is striking. Tumbler baskets, all of a color, a small ribbon of the same shade or showing a good contrast, are good sellers. A window full, with a number suspended at various heights, is sure to attract, and with the aid of a price card many sales are made.

Beautiful and very satisfactory clusters are made with a number of the longer-stemmed varieties. Singles are especially appropriate for this work. A number of the varieties have quite thick stems, but a portion of these can be removed; then the flowers with stems wired when necessary can be tied in separate clusters, which, nicely arranged together, will present, for a medium or large piece, a beautiful spray-like effect. To finish an extra sized cluster of any flower, it is often necessary to stem a few of the flowers and place in here and there, which is also a good rule in the dahlia cluster, giving a more graceful effect.

There is no more effective flower for the table than the dahlia. Many of the large decorative type are especially suited for this purpose. Nothing could be more gorgeous than a table of the large red Minnie Burgle, arranged in one or more low vases in the center. If a large long table, a tall center vase with two low bowls at either end with graceful curving sprays on the cloth toward the center made of smaller flowers of the same color and autumn leaves is effective.

The Day of the Honored Dead

In the presence of a great national crisis like that which confronted the patriots of '61, American citizens today feel more deeply than ever before their debt to those who gave their lives for this country nearly three-score years ago.

We shall be better able to give the superior attention and service which we wish to offer for this occasion, if you will inform us at your earliest convenience what you desire in flowers for Memorial Day.

A card enclosed with Mothers' Day orders to get Memorial Day business.

Posters to enforce this appeal might be prepared and placed in conspicuous positions in the florist's shop during the day or two preceding Mothers' day. Customers who come in to make purchases will be able to read them in the few moments they wait.

Big Sales Sure This Year.

These are early suggestions for the florist to advertise Memorial day as a flower day of unusual importance this year. The trade cannot make their publicity too strong or too plentiful. Whatever efforts and money are expended for this purpose are bound to be repaid over and over again. Early and steady work will make this year's Memorial day sales rise to a mark that will surpass all previous ones for May 30, and set a record that will necessitate high shooting to reach in coming seasons.

Hold Your Name and Personality.

It is a problem to many why a man going into business as a florist should try to build up a trade under any name other than his own. The Oak Square Flower Shop is opened on Oak Square, they rent a portion of a building, when the lease runs out, they cannot renew, must move and have to go possibly a block or more away, off the square. There are numerous instances of this kind all over the country of Smith's flowers—the best in the market. The arrangement, so beautifully done, was by Smith's artists. W. Atlee Burpee built up a great seed business. His seeds were always Burpee's seeds, the best that grew.

The sign, florist, on a wagon, has no advertising value; it boosts no particular man's business. On the store front, it stands as the striped pole of the barber shop, designating only the character of the business.

A strong feature is that of credit and responsibility. Any man, making an honest bid for business, should bank all on his name. I am responsible; this is my business, I will pay the bills. It may be difficult to establish ownership of the Oak Square Flower Shop; this business is perhaps strong financially, but if not, when trouble comes the few assets, as shown in the inventory, are scarcely sufficient to pay the overdue rent. For this reason all firms doing business under nom de plumes lack that business solidity that is so necessary to good credit ratings.

Flowers are just flowers, but the flowers coming from the leading shops of any of the large cities, are given a special value by the name on the box, the reputation of the house being a guarantee that anything sent out by them is the best of its kind.

Put the name out, stand back of it; keep it to the front by fair dealing and the best for your trade the market affords.

For a large round table, a wreath of the flowers and autumn leaves, arranged on the cloth just inside the plate line and a tall vase of the same rising from the center, will present a very showy decoration.

For design work dahlias will be found very useful. The medium-sized and pompon whites, stemmed short, are as good as white carnations for making a solid surface. For the decoration of magnolia wreaths, all colors are available, and the skillful designer will have no difficulty in making his creations striking and beautiful. There are many color combinations in the various shades of white, pink, reds and orange that, arranged in wreath form with autumn leaves, are as effective, and even more noticeable, than any other flower of the season. They also blend well and make up nicely with galax leaves. A solid white dahlia wreath, with a tracing of some of the shaded pink varieties, if nicely made, is sure to get its share of approbation.

Just because the dahlia is an out-of-door flower, is no reason why it should be sold cheap, particularly in all forms of arrangement and design work. The skill and time of the artist should count for at least one-third of the price of all floral arrangements, and if, as is possible in the work with the dahlia, that a ten-dollar effect can be produced with flowers that only cost two, so much the better. Such a profit is strictly legitimate. K.

Hill-Bertermann Merge Ind'pl's Interests.

In view of the constantly growing business of Bertermann Bros. Co., Indianapolis, Ind., and the E. G. Hill Co., of Richmond, Ind., it was deemed a good move by the heads of both firms that the interests of the E. G. Hill Floral Co. in Indianapolis, be taken over. E. G. Hill believes that his firm's business in the new rose line will warrant their activities in the future for this purpose only.

The Bertermann Bros. Co. is duly equipped for a much larger business in Indianapolis. The E. G. Hill Floral Co.'s interests consist of a model store and a first-class business. The operation of the two stores will continue under the same heads, same equipment and same good service for an indefinite period. The Hill rose stock will still be brought from Richmond, and this will be aided very much by a part of the Bertermann output in East Washington street and Cumberland. With the combined patronage of both places, the new arrangement will give Indianapolis one of the largest firms in the middle west.

A Last Glance.

It is always well before closing time to take a look at tomorrow's orders. Such a glance often help things very materially. It may be that something has to be gotten ready for an early train and a flower is needed for the work, the stock of which had all been sold and has to come from Brown 10 miles out, who gets in early, but who may or may not bring it along unless it is ordered. A 'phone message straightens this out and trouble is avoided. With this precaution, things will often be brought to mind that would otherwise be overlooked and thus save much annoyance and delay. K.

PLANT NOTES.

Asters.

The early and midseason asters should be planted out as early as the season will allow. If the plants are hardened off for two or three weeks in a cold frame and gradually given night air as soon as safe, they will endure the outside temperature much better than those carried directly from the warm greenhouse. The land should be prepared at once, and while asters will grow on almost any piece of ground the success or failure depends much on the proper preparation of the soil. Land that was manured last fall and plowed is by far the best, and all that will be required in the spring is a shallow plowing or disking and then leveled. It is well not to level off too large a tract at once, for heavy rains occur at this season which pack the soil down hard. Before planting give the young plants a thorough watering and if in boxes or the bench cut through the rows with a knife a day before planting. Lay the field out in rows from 15 to 20 inches apart, giving the branching varieties the greater distance, with a wider space every fifth or sixth row to provide a walk when cutting the flowers, and set the plants from 12 to 18 inches apart. Plant with a trowel, for the plants set in a dibbled hole will not take hold as quickly, and with the early asters the slight difference in time taken in planting is more than made up in the early blooming; the dibble packs the soil around the plant and the roots do not grow into it as freely, and the roots are also contracted in the small hole made by the dibble. As soon as the field is planted, if possible, give the plants a good watering and then cultivate lightly with a wheel hoe to loosen up the soil.

Rambler Roses.

The rambler roses for Memorial day will demand constant attention, for at this season of the year aphid and red spider increase very rapidly if the conditions are propitious. It is far better to keep these insects down by proper culture than to be obliged to resort to measures to kill them. Give the plants all the ventilation possible, but drafts will often cause mildew on the soft foliage, so these must be guarded against especially, and low ventilation, such as open doors with the wind drawing through the houses. Syringe thoroughly on bright days. There is no better prevention for red spider than a good syringing that will reach the under side of the leaves, which will quickly break up the colonies of spiders that gather there. If the plants require fumigation it should be light, for often the young foliage is very tender and heavy fumigation with smoke quickly burns it. Where the pots are full of roots a watering with liquid manure or a mulch of sheep manure mixed with sifted soil will be found very beneficial and will add a lustre to the foliage and deepen the color of the flowers.

Primulas.

For plants of both P. sinensis and obconica for blooming next spring, May is the best time to sow the seed, which germinates very readily at this time, but if this is delayed until June it will often be found quite difficult to get the seed to start well, and as the young seedlings grow very slowly they will require constant attention during the warm weather, for a few hours' sun when they are dry will cause the loss of all the plants. The soil should be sifted in a fine sieve, as the seed is very small and they should not be covered with the soil, but sown thinly on the soil when loose and then pressed well shaded. Many growers wrap a piece of paraffine paper around the glass that is placed on the seed pan. This allows plenty of light to germinate the seed and will prevent the direct rays of the sun from burning up the young seedlings when they start to grow. As these young plants grow very slowly some soils will often become caked or scaly, and if this occurs the top should be carefully broken up to allow the air to enter. As soon as three or four leaves are formed pot in 2½-inch pots, not too deeply, but yet deep enough to have them stand erect. They should then be placed in a cool house and much of the success of their culture depends upon the care and watering in their early growth. They are a moisture-loving plant and should never become dry, yet they are easily over-watered and will not make a good growth if continually kept soaked; frequent and light waterings are the best. A lightly shaded frame with the pots plunged in the soil and the sash lifted at top and bottom for a free circulation of air is the best location for summer culture.

Pansies.

The sale of pansy plants will soon be at its height and there is nothing that the florist or grower sells upon keep the stock replenished. There are many patrons who will be well satisfied with a good selection already placed in a basket, who will take an hour of a salesman's time in making their choice out of a frame. Any late seedlings should be planted in the frames at once, and these will make fine plants for late May or June planting when the older plants are either sold or have become too large for bedding purposes.

Horticultural Hall, Philadelphia, Sold.

Horticultural hall, the elegant home of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society on Broad street, Philadelphia, Pa., has been sold for the sum of $550,000. There are some details that have to be straightened out before the sale is finally consummated. The property is at present leased to a syndicate of bondholders who erected the present building; this arrangement has yet nine years to run. The building, however, does not pay and the bondholders are anxious to have the sale confirmed and are rapidly getting the consent of all holders to approve the transaction. With this in hand, they will turn over the lease to the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, who will ask the court to permit the sale and approve the investment of the full amount in approved securities, the interest to be used for the benefit of the society. It is estimated that the annual income from this source will be from $16,000 to $18,000. With this sum in hand, the society will become a factor of importance in the horticultural world, enabling it to greatly extend its work, hold fine exhibitions and otherwise extend its usefulness. It is proposed to return to the bondholders the $200,000 which they put into the building, by investing a portion of the principal and paying them the interest until the amount of the principal has been paid, which will be in about 20 years.

The first building belonging to the society was erected in 1867. This was destroyed by fire in 1881. It was rebuilt and again burned down in 1893. Wm. L. Schaffer, the president of the society in 1881, bought the property when it was sold to satisfy a large mortgage. Immediately after occurred the first fire. In 1884 Mr. Schaffer died; he had been a member of the society for 34 years and its president for 17. He left all his property to his sister, who in 1887 presented the hall to the society as a memorial to her brother. When the second fire occurred there was no money for reconstruction, and according to the deed of trust, no encumbrance could be placed on the property. It was then leased for 30 years to a syndicate, who erected the present beautiful building. While the society was allowed the use of a room for its office and library, and the free use of the hall for all its exhibitions, it received no revenue from the property.

As a business venture the building proved a failure, and in only a few periods returned the syndicate interest on their money. K.

flat with a board. Watering should be done with a very fine rose on the can so as not to wash the seeds or soil. At this season of the year the seed will germinate readily in almost any greenhouse, but it is well to cover the seed pan or box with glass to prevent too rapid evaporation and until the plants begin to make growth keep the pots

The better way is to have boxes or baskets holding a dozen plants all made up for the customer. CHRYSANTHEMUMS Planting.

COMMERCIAL SECTION.

After deciding on the amount of space to be allotted to growing commercial cut blooms, the next consideration is to figure out the number of plants needed to fill the space, and plan to have them on hand when the time comes for planting.

The early varieties should receive first attention; these can be planted into their permanent quarters as soon as the benches can be made ready for them. The quicker the early flowering sorts are now planted, the better it will be, not only for the plants at this period but the longer growing season gives them a chance to develop their growth more fully and mature the blooms in their proper season. This not only applies to the very early varieties, Golden Glow and Smith's Advance, but also to the varieties that are in season during October. Well grown chrysanthemum blooms bring a better price during the early part of October than at any other time in their season, especially when the dahlias, cosmos and other outdoor flowers are cut off by early frosts. Consequently any effort put in to encourage growth and early development will be well repaid.

Quality of the stock planted counts for much in the culture of chrysanthemums, especially with the early flowering varieties; to be successful, strong, vigorous, free-growing plants are essential. Clean, sturdy plants from February or early March cuttings now in 2½ or 3-inch pots are best for early planting and should be planted by themselves separate from the later struck and smaller plants. By mapping out the plantings according to the size of the plants, their dates of maturing as well as the height and character of their growth, better results can be obtained than if the tall and dwarf growers and the early and late propagated plants are sandwiched in together.

If the benches are not available for planting until after Memorial day, then it will be necessary to give the early propagated stock a shift into larger pots so as to carry them through the month of May in good shape. Growers are sometimes tempted, when figuring that a month is a short time for the plants to remain in the pots they are in and let them remain with the idea that they are saving labor and money, but this is a serious mistake, for, whereas, the plant growth during March and April has been rapid, it will be more so during May and the plants are very liable to get beyond control, especially if the care of them is neglected in any way, which is very apt to be the case when every hand is busily engaged with outdoor spring work.

LATE PROPAGATION.

I presume more cuttings intended for commercial purposes are now in the propagating beds than at any other time, the month of April being considered by many growers to be the best time for propagating for commercial cut flower growing.

Cuttings in the sand now require close attention as to watering, airing and syringing to prevent wilting, and as soon as they become rooted, pot them up, shade for a few days, then encourage them to make a sturdy growth by paying close attention to their requirements.

The advice given for the earlies also applies to the mid-season varieties. If they can be planted during May it to throw out more branches; then if heavier plants are needed, more top-ping back can be done later on, but I have found that three to five shoots from the early break is plenty for any plant of pompon or single to carry. They will branch out again naturally later in the season, giving them all the is better for them, but if it is necessary to carry them along to June before their permanent quarters become available, then extra care must be exercised so that they do not get hard and woody by being held too long in small pots. We are not able to plant any of our chrysanthemums until the spring stock is out of the way, which means, in other words, the middle of June. The early part of May the plants are shifted into 3½ or 4-inch pots, potted firmly, allowed a little space between each plant for a free circulation of air and particular attention paid that they are not given an over-abundance of water to cause a soft growth. By being particular in this respect, and to the airing and keeping down the aphids, we are able to carry them over a very busy period in good shape until the benches are ready in June.

This section is much easier to handle at this season. Cuttings can still be put in to any quantity needed. They require to be kept well sprayed to prevent wilting, and will root in a short while. After having become rooted, pot them up and treat the same as the other chrysanthemums, and when they are established in the small pots, pinch out the top of the plant to cause it branches they can properly develop. Pompon and single varieties are more susceptible to mildew than the large flowered sorts, consequently they need a light, airy house or bench to grow them in. They pay well when well grown, but poor stock becomes a drug on the market very quickly.

EXHIBITION VARIETIES.

Growing exhibition chrysanthemums, either cut blooms or plants, is a science attained only after years of study, and means a close attention to every detail of the plant's requirements to be able to make a success of it. Early propagation is the rule, and as the plants need it, shift them along into the larger size pots. A large number of the plants for exhibition cut blooms are grown in pots and should be ready by the latter part of May for their final potting into 8 or 9-inch pots. Good live fresh soil is necessary for this class of plants, and they must be firmly potted and given the best location on the place. It is useless to go into growing exhibition cut blooms of chrysanthemums unless the grower is willing to cater to their every need. After the plants are well established in their permanent quarters and attain size enough to need supports, attend to this part of the work without delay so that the stems will not become crooked and the plants suffer.

SOIL.

Chrysanthemums are heavy feeders and require a fresh live soil, but it is a mistake to treat them to an overabundance of fresh cattle manure while in the early stages of their growth. It is far better to furnish them with a live fresh soil of one part well rotted manure to three parts of loam that has stood over winter in the compost pile the same as intended for roses and carnations. Additional fertilizer can then be given throughout the season as the plants become in need of it. C. W. JOHNSON.

Hardy Perennials for Cutting.

Paper by A. A. Leach delivered before the Pittsburgh, Pa., Florists' and Gardeners' Club.

The great virtues of this class of plants as garden flowers are now established facts and no garden can be called complete unless it contains at least some of them. Their permanency, their brilliancy when in bloom, and their ability to lend themselves equally well to the landscape or to decorative work as cut flowers make them almost indispensable at a time when the greenhouse cut flowers are taking a much needed rest. In naming a limited number of kinds one has to omit many having claims for inclusion in the list, but for all-around usefulness the following is my choice of twelve:

1. Pyrethrum hybridum or Persian daisy, probably so called from the Greek pyr-fire, referring to the acrid roots of this genus. Their pretty, fernlike foliage in the spring followed by the profusion of brilliant double and single blooms in summer, are unequaled as cut flowers and for house decoration. There is almost nothing so artistic and attractive as a vase of these flowers. They are of very simple culture and very hardy.

2. The paeonia, according to the old Greek legend, was named after the physician, Paeon, who used the plant to cure plants of a wound inflicted by Hercules. The paeonia (although its flowering season is very short) is probably one of the best hardy plants for cut flowers, bearing large and handsome flowers deliciously rose scented. The paeonia season can be extended fully two weeks by cutting the buds when just showing color, wrapping tightly in wax paper with the stem end open, put into deep vases and then into cold storage. The water in the vases should be changed frequently.

3. Coreopsis grandiflora, from the Greek koris, a bug, and ophis, like, referring to the appearance of the seed, is a most serviceable hardy plant of large daisy-like golden flowers on 2-foot to 2½-foot stems, blooming profusely from June until late autumn uninterruptedly, particularly so if the flowers are constantly cut. As a cut flower to last, this is one of the best.

4. Veronica Speedwell, cancerwort, from a medieval name of doubtful origin, probably from hiera eicon, a sacred image, in allusion to the legend of the sacred handkerchief from St. Veronica. This is a splendid class of plants which give us some of our most useful material for the hardy border and, because of its rich shades of blue, furnishes us with a rare color and is unexcelled for cutting purposes.

5. Gaillardia grandiflora—Blanket Flower—was named after M. Gaillard, a French patron of botany. These showy plants are covered with flowers from June until frost, a feature quite rare with perennials. The daisy-like flowers of unusual colorings produce a fine effect in the border and are excellent for cut flower purposes, having good self-supporting stems and lasting a long time in water. The flowers should be kept cut to insure a continuity of bloom and strong plants.

6. Physostegia—False Dragon Head American Heather. From Greek, physos, a bladder, and stege, a covering; referring to the inflated fruiting calyx. Tall perennials, native to this country, at its best during August, a month which gives us few choice perennials to cut from, and this is a splendid one for cutting.

7. Centaurea Montana (cornflower), named after a centaur, who, it is fabled, cured a wound in the foot of another centaur caused by the arrow of Hercules. This is a good subject of easy culture, being effective in the border and invaluable for cutting, bearing large, blue flowers from June until August.

8. Chrysanthemum maximum (Shasta daisy or Giant Moonpenny daisy), absolutely hardy and of easy culture, but to obtain the best results the flowering shoots, which appear soon after the spring growth of foliage, should be removed until midsummer, after which the flowers will be much larger and better stems and form one of the finest cutting materials.

9. Scabiosa Caucasica (pincushion flower), from Latin scabies, the itch, which disease the common specie is said to cure, are very handsome border plants which produce a succession of flowers from June until frost that are very serviceable for cutting purposes.

10. Anemone Japonica (windflower), from Anemos, wind. The anemones divide themselves into the Alpine or spring and summer varieties, and the Japanese varieties, which is one of the most gorgeous of the hardy perennials as well as one of the most useful, as they bloom from August until frost kills them; these are of inestimable value as cut flowers. The Alpine varieties are also good for cutting, but quite short of stem and perhaps not so good as the Japanese in this respect.

11. Delphinium (larkspur); from Greek delphin, in reference to the resemblance of the flower to a dolphin. The delphinium is one of the loveliest blue flowers in existence; its range of shades and throat markings are unapproached by any others ranging from the palest blue to the darkest indigo and violet. They are of the easiest culture, being very hardy. The spikes are superb for cutting purposes, and if cut to within a few inches of the ground immediately after blooming another bloom may be obtained at the end of the summer.

12. Helianthus orgyalis (willow leaved or sky rocket sunflower), so called from the brilliant color of the flowers. This is probably one of the finest of the sunflowers. It is rather tall growing, ranging from six to 10 feet, but a specimen plant. Has all the appearance of a fountain of yellow flowers, which are cosmos like in appearance and three inches across and lasting well as cut blooms in September and October.

OVAL BASKET OF DAHLIAS.

FLORISTS' PALMS.

Spring Care of the Stock.

The Easter rush of 1917, having now become a part of history, it is a good time for the palm stock to be thoroughly inspected and worked over, for in many establishments space is decidedly at a premium until the Easter trade has removed some of the flowering stock. And at the time of this overhauling of the palms, it is very much in order to clean any of them that may be in need of it, for the spring months are an especial breeding season for insects, and if the grower can make time to dip, or spray, or clean all such stock at this season there will be much less trouble from these pests later on.

It is understood that the majority of growers are confronted with the labor problem at the present time, and this will affect the thoroughness with which some of these ordinary operations of the grower's year are performed, but in the palm stock an effort must be made to keep the plants clean, for otherwise the results of the season are likely to prove a loss rather than a gain.

Imperfect leaves, spotted foliage, and other blemishes are the results secured by allowing the insects to have their own way, and although these warnings have been offered many times before, yet there are still lots of such stock to be seen. Thrips are among the most insidious insects the palm grower has to contend with, for they are so small that one has to look quite carefully to find them, unless they are already in quantity, and the injury they do to leaves by their punctures is usually a permanent one. Nicotine and soap in solution form probably the best and safest remedy for thrips, and may be used with a spray pump as a preventive measure at regular intervals. Sulphur and soap form a good mixture for the spray pump in case any appearance of red spider is found on the palms, the solution being made in the proportion of half an ounce of whale-oil soap and a quarter-ounce of sulphur to one gallon of water, the mixture being boiled together long enough to dissolve the soap, and then cooled off before using. Some palms will stand a stronger solution than that above noted, but for general use it is safer to keep within these limits.

The question of potting soil is also of some interest at this time, and the best foundation for this is found in rotted sod, just as it is in the case of many other plant families. As all palms do not grow under precisely the same conditions, it is up to the grower to note the individual characteristics of the various species he handles, and to govern himself accordingly in his soil problems, but among the few species that are grown commercially there are not very many special soils required, and for many of them a simple mixture of rotted sod and stable manure will prove sufficient, provided, that proper growing conditions and reasonable care are given after the potting.

The first light shading applied to the glass in the latter part of February may not prove sufficient in the brilliant sunshine of the month of May, and to keep the plants in color a fresh coat may be needed, this second shading usually sufficing for the season.

The older stock having been repotted and spaced out, and so far as possible the house or houses in which they are grown being cleaned, and all rubbish removed, in short, a clean job having been made of the larger plants, we now get to the young stock, and seedlings in particular.

Generally speaking, palm seedlings are potted off into 2-inch or 2¼-inch pots when they have the first leaf fully formed, though on account of unavoidable delays, such as lack of space, or lack of labor, or something of that character, the seedlings sometimes have to wait their turn. It is unfortunate when these delays occur, for the young plants are likely to have overgrown roots, and in such a case the roots are frequently broken in potting, this breakage resulting in a serious increase in the infant mortality in the palm stock. Broken roots cause more loss among the young plants than anything else, so it is surely worth while to be careful in the potting.

With the world-wide disturbances of trade conditions and shipping facilities, owing to the great war, the question of palm seeds and import supplies of these plants seems problematical, and if such conditions prevail much longer it may mean a considerable shortage in some lines. And as we do not produce these seeds to a marketable extent in the United States, it is no use to pat ourselves on the back and say we will grow our own supply, for the tropics have our noble country beaten to a frazzle in the matter of producing a regular crop of palm nuts, be it ivory nuts, cocoanuts, or simply kentia nuts, and even more unfortunately, we have not the merchant marine to go after them with.

Flowering Shrubs.

Paper by Julius Luck, Montreal, Que., read at a meeting of the Montreal Gardeners' and Florists' Club, March 5, 1917.

The varieties of flowering shrubs that can be grown successfully and those that are perfectly hardy in the vicinity of Montreal are not very many. When we compare our nurserymen's lists with those from countries favored with a milder climate, we note the absence of some very useful and beautiful sorts. The varieties that can be successfully planted and are perfectly hardy are, however, quite numerous enough to fill our requirements.

Our public parks have not planted shrubs as extensively and with the same system as those of some countries situated in a milder climate, and private parks are, so to speak, non-planted; there are some natural ones with a few shrubs put in at random, therefore flowering shrubs are mostly used for the ornamentation of city and suburban homes. For this purpose more shrubs are used than any other, and if the proper varieties are chosen, the grouping properly executed and the coloring of the foliage, flowers and berries considered, a very unsightly building can be made to look very attractive at least from the outside.

Ornamental and, to a certain extent, shade trees can be used in conjunction with flowering shrubs; also perennials and vines, if properly grouped so as not to interfere with one another, will greatly enhance the whole appearance of the planting.

To properly arrange the plants requires an intimate knowledge of the shrub or tree; whether they will put up ultimate height, habit and color of the with some shade or require the full sunlight; if they are adaptable for grouping or for single specimen or hedges. To describe all this goes beyond the scope of this paper, but any gardener with a knowledge of plant life, if given a free hand, would hardly fail to make the planting a success.

Flowering shrubs will grow in almost any kind of soil, and there are enough varieties which will grow in almost any position if the right ones are chosen. There are no diseases or insect pests which are not easily combated by the average gardener. Green fly or aphids are kept down by nicotine extracts applied with a fine spray in liquid form, and any leaf-eating bug, grub or caterpillar can be gotten rid of by spraying with either Paris green or arsenate of lead. If a shrub is badly diseased it does not pay to doctor with it; throw it out and plant a healthy one. The above remarks apply not only to flowering shrubs, but also to trees, roses, vines and perennials.

PROPAGATION.

The majority of the varieties of flowering shrubs are propagated from cuttings, either soft or hard woods, according to the variety. This was done entirely in France or Belgium for this country's trade, but since transportation difficulties have increased a good beginning has been made here. Soft wood cuttings are made either in the cutting bench or in frames and hard wood cuttings in the nursery. Some varieties, like the lilac or snowberry, are best propagated from suckers. Thorns, flowering crab, prunuses and named lilacs are sometimes budded or grafted. The berried varieties, like the barberry, buckthorn and elderberry are best grown from seed.

FEEDING.

No growing plant benefits and appreciates a good fertilizer more than the flower shrub. It is wonderful how, in a few inches of earth, they will grow and flower if given an annual top dressing of well-rotted manure applied in the fall and dug in the spring. This, if given several good soakings during the dry season, will keep them in good condition.

PRUNING.

The early flowering varieties should be pruned immediately after flowering. Cut out all the wood that has flowered and cut out entirely some of the old and weak wood. This will give them a chance to make young and strong wood immediately, which will flower the next season. Flowering shrubs should never be pruned to globular or any unnaural form; neither should they be pruned more than once the same season, for, as a rule, early flowering shrubs will flower on the current year's growth.

Late flowering shrubs can be pruned either in the fall or early spring. Fall pruning is preferable. Prune severely; the less wood they carry the less they will suffer from snow breakage. Severe pruning will also cause them to break away stronger, which will produce stronger and larger flowers.

Pruning lilacs is somewhat different. Remove right after flowering all spent flowers and remove some old wood and suckers. No heading back is advisable.

The most useful varieties to plant in this locality are:

- Althea Rose of Sharon, not always hardy.
- Berberis vulgaris, common barberry.
- Berberis Japonica, fine for hedging and edging.
- Berberis purpurea.
- Cydonia, Japan quince.
- Dentzia gracilis, Lemoinei and Pride of Rochester.
- Hydrangea paniculata grandiflora.
- Hydrangea arborescens.
- Lilac, common purple and white (Springa).
- Lilac, named varieties. The best known are: Charles X, purple; Mme. Lemoine, double white; Mme. Le Graye, single white; Mme. Casimir Perier, double white; Pres. Gievry, double blue; Louis Spath, double red.
- Lonicera Tartarica (Honeysuckle).
- Lonicera rosea.
- Lonicera Japonica Morrowii.
- Philadelphus coronarius (Mock Orange).
- Philadelphus coronarius aurea, yellow leaves.
- Philadelphus Lemoinei erecta.
- Prunus triloba, double flower plum.
- Spiraea Van Houttei.
- Spiraea Anthony Waterer.
- Spiraea opulifolia, best hedge plant.
- Symphoricarpos racemosus (Snowberry).
- Symphoricarpos vulgaris (Indian currant).
- Wetelia rosea.
- Viburnum Opulus (high bush cranberry).
- Viburnum Opulus sterile (Snowball).
- Viburnum Lentago.
- Viburnum ulmifolium (Japanese).
- Caragana (Siberian tea).
- Cornus red dog wood.
- Forsythia (Golden Bell).
- Ligustrum (privet).
- Prunus (flowering crab).
- Rhus Cotinus (Smoke bush).
- Ribes (flowering currant).
- Rosa Rugosa and rubifolia.
- Sambucus (Elderberry).
- Crataegus (flowering thorn).
- Daphne Purple Fringe.

Chicago Posterette Publicity.

The first co-operative florists' advertisement is off the press—it will occupy full page space in the Literary Digest, issue of May 5, 1917. A copy of the magazine containing this advertisement will be mailed to every one who has purchased posterettes and posters issued by the Chicago Florists' Club. This campaign of advertising involved a great deal of expense, and as same is for the general good of the trade at large, every one should subscribe towards this campaign. Florists who have purchased other Mothers' day posterettes should also contribute as our national magazine advertisement combines with every special form of Mothers' day advertising, consequently every one in the trade will profit thereby, and therefore every one should subscribe. Growers, wholesalers and retailers who have not as yet sent in their contribution, should do so promptly. Make all checks payable to O. H. Amling, Treasurer, and forward same to F. Lautenschlager, 440 West Erie street, Chicago, chairman.

SPECIAL CLUB MEETING.

A special meeting of the florists' club was held April 26 for the purpose of discussing fully Mothers' day advertising, and to receive the report of the committee appointed at a previous meeting to solicit subscriptions to a fund for that purpose. This committee, with their assistants, in six autos during the day covered the entire city, and also Mt. Clemens, and no florist escaped the earnest solicitation of the energetic committee, full of determination to raise the largest sum for advertising in a co-operative way ever before collected, here or possibly elsewhere. The six divisions of collectors were headed by leaders, designated captains. They were Thomas Browne, A. J. Stahelin, Robt. Jean, E. A. Fetters, J. K. Stock and J. F. Sullivan. The exact amount collected and subscribed was $1,081.50. Herman Knoble and Mrs. Ella Grant Wilson, Cleveland, had been invited to address the meeting, and this feature had the effect of bringing out a big attendance, which included many ladies. The committee in charge had the clubroom handsomely decorated with flowers and American flags; the dining tables were heavily laden with the finest flowers of the season, and music added completeness to the largest and most important meeting the club has held for a very long time.

Herman Knoble, whom the retail trade of the country seems to regard as authority on the art of advertising as it should be applied to retail florists, addressed the meeting at great length, relating the experience of the trade in Cleveland in their efforts to successfully reach the buying public to the maximum limit. His able presentation of the subject left no doubt in the minds of his hearers as to his accurate knowledge of the most successful methods of advertising florists' stock to the general public. The discussion following his address led to a disclosure of the loose system or, rather, lack of system, practiced by too many florists. Mr. Knoble stated that he considered eight and a half per cent of the average florist's gross sales should be spent for advertising, and this item, together with other overhead expenses, would reach to fully forty per cent, or more, with most florists situated in large cities, where the delivery item alone will reach as much as 38 cents for each package sent out. Great applause greeted the conclusion of Mr. Knoble's address, replete as it was with food for thought and analysis of the retail end of the business. Mrs. Ella Grant Wilson then addressed the members on the same subject. She displayed upon the walls of the room over fifty pages of the daily papers of Cleveland devoted entirely to flowers, their diversified use, the latest styles of arrangement, and description of plants and cultural instructions on the same. These, she said, she succeeded, after many difficulties, in having published in the interests of the trade in that city. These write-ups on floral subjects, she said, were most important in developing publicity that results remuneratively for the florists, but they can only be had in conjunction with display advertising and handled by clever teamwork of the advertisers themselves.

Pittsburgh, Pa.MARKET CONDITIONS SHOW IMPROVEMENT.

Friday and Saturday of last week proved somewhat different from the early part of the week. Stock was actually scarce at the end in comparison to what this market has been receiving. It looks as if prices will be much better from now on, as we all hope the awful glut is over. The growers will be better satisfied. Sweet peas are showing the effect of the warm weather, although some very good ones are coming to this market. Roses were never better and are bringing better prices than they were. Carnations are still good and clean up well each day. The market is overloaded with lilies, also callas. Greens seem more plentiful, except smilax. American Beauties are very much in demand at fair prices. Many outdoor daffodils are seen on the market at very low figures, mostly local stock.

NOTES.

Albert Brigg has been running a special sale every Saturday, which seems quite popular at his new North Side store.

A very interesting subject will come up before the florists' club on Tuesday. The officers request a large attendance.

Randolph-McClements had several large weddings last week, which kept the entire force working overtime.

Carl Voelker has the sympathy of the trade in the death of his mother, who died April 27.

Chas. Patton, of Sewickley, is cutting some very nice pink snapdragons and daffodils.

Dave Hill has discontinued his East Liberty branch. M.

Baltimore, Md.WEDDINGS HELP WEAK DEMAND.

Business in the wholesale flower district is not very active, but a number of weddings are helping the demand somewhat. Carnations are arriving in large numbers with limited sales at from $1.50 to $2.50 per 100. In bulbous stock there are plenty of jonquills, a large supply of callas and a few Spanish irises. Tulips and hyacinths are about over, although a few are seen. In miscellaneous stock, there is an abundance of calendulas and antirrhinums and a moderate supply of white and yellow daisies. Asparagus continues scarce, but conditions are improving. Lily of the valley can be had in moderate quantities at from $4 to $6 per 100. American Beauty roses are seen in large numbers, which the present demand does not absorb. Special grades sell at from 10 to 35 cents per bloom. Short-stemmed roses are glutting the market, but longer stock is moving in very good shape. The first peonies of the season have arrived and are offered at $1 per dozen.

NOTES.

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carl Vrooman at a meeting here April 27, which was attended by many men and women of this city who are seriously dealing with the matter of food conservation, made an earnest plea for war rations to make the food supply go as far as possible.

The street fakirs seem to be having a hard time of it. They are allowed to stand on Lexington street only on market days, for which they have to pay $2.50 per day, due to the new minor privilege tax ordinance.

Local newspapers and others throughout the state are conducting an earnest campaign to get men to go to the farms.

Joseph J. Gowdy, representing Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., called on the trade recently.

Miss White is now connected with the Flower Mart on Madison avenue.

Edwin A. Seidewitz has resigned as president of the Rotary Club.

Some very fine snapdragons are being cut by M. Richmond.

John Simon has added a new auto to his delivery service.

C. C. S.

St. Louis.BIG SUPPLY, MUCH OF POOR QUALITY.

The market during the past week was very poor. Flowers of all kinds were piled on the counters and the supply seemed to continue to increase until Friday when there was some relief, due to dark weather. Roses alone seem to hold up in good shape. Sweet peas are getting shorter with the exception of Yarrowa, which is fine. The quality of Spanish iris is exceptionally good. Lily of the valley has been quite poor but commands the same price as first-class stock. Bulbous offerings are of poor quality with the exception of Darwin tulips. Lilies sold as low as $2 and $2.50 per 100. Fancy ferns are scarce, high in price and poor in quality. Other greens are plentiful enough to meet requirements.

NOTES.

Grimm & Gorly, the Mullanphy Florists, and Fred Foster had sales on carnations last week. There was a heavy supply on the market, selling at prices as low as $2.50 per 1,000. Geo. Brenner, who succeeded Alex. Siegel, also had sales on carnations, sweet peas and jonquills.

Arthur Beyer has been busy getting a junior florists' club started. This is to be a social auxiliary of the St. Louis Florists' Club.

A number of the stores had reduced prices on funeral work; as it is easy to make clean-up sales with the present price of flowers.

With the advent of warm weather the boys at the wholesale houses are beginning to think of Sunday fishing trips.

The prospects for Mothers' day are good and all of the trade anticipate good business.

Visitor: Morris Levine, New York. J. J. W.

Rochester, N. Y.HEAVY SUPPLY, WITH WEAK SALES.

Stock of all kinds is very plentiful, but trade appears to be at a standstill which compares with the lethargy of midsummer. Outdoor work is rushing, but there is very little counter trade. Violets have disappeared, but excellent orchid sweet peas have come on to take their place. Snapdragons are very good, as are yellow daisies. The assortment of flowering plants is very limited.

NOTES.

J. B. Keller Sons had a very handsome table decoration in their window last week, dinner novelties being displayed. A fountain banked with pot roses added to the general attractiveness, and the display was much admired.

The Lamberton conservatory at Highland park is ablaze with color, flowers of many varieties in sharp contrast. The cactus house is very interesting. In the park the floral display is also very attractive.

Seth T. Bush, president of the Western New York State Horticultural Society, has been elected director of food and machinery of the state.

Salters Bros. have decorated the Hotel Powers with palms, ferns and tropical plants, the effect being very attractive.

Dewey Lester has resumed his duties at the Rochester Floral Co.

Visitor: Robert Shock, representing M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

CHESTER.

Kansas City, Mo.MARKET WELL SUPPLIED WITH STOCK.

Stock on the market is changing daily in quantity and quality, with prices ranging from three to 12 cents, Ophelia leading in the demand. Carnations are very plentiful and the quality holds up very well. Sweet peas are also seen in numbers in all of the different grades and the Butterfly variety is playing a big part in made-up work. Lilies are plentiful and reasonable in price and the outside lilac now being received in quantity makes a new and very effective flower. Pot plants are becoming more scarce daily. While the trade is making preparations for a big business in spring bedding stock, they are at the same time getting ready for the largest Mothers' day sales in history.

NOTES.

H. Kusik & Co. are handling quantities of good roses, carnations, lilies, snapdragons and sweet peas. Green goods here are getting more plentiful and orders for wire work are on the increase.

W. J. Barnes reports funeral work somewhat heavier than in the previous week and his force has been busy getting ready for deliveries of bedding stock.

T. J. Noll & Co. are handling a full line of good stock. Supplies are moving well and the shipping trade is very satisfactory.

W. L. Rock Flower Co. reports excellent trade, with a good run on funeral work. Decorating is also showing daily improvement.

Samuel Murray attracted much attention to his window recently with a fine display of calceolarias.

E. J. B.

Oklahoma City.BIG DEMAND FOR ROSES.

Business continues satisfactory both in cut flowers and bedding plants. There has been a great run on hardy roses this spring. The Stiles Co. has been making special efforts along the rose line and has disposed of a very large number. People here are beginning to appreciate the fact that roses can be grown outdoors and are buying accordingly. For a long time it was believed that roses could not be grown here on account of the hot dry summer, but all that nonsense has now been dispelled. Retailers are having difficulty in getting fresh carnations shipped to them. Arrivals show symptoms of age and will not last. Is it possible that carnations are being held up at this early date in order that there may be on hand a large supply for Mothers' day?

S. S. B.

The Late James McClane.

James McClane, one of Philadelphia's oldest retailers, passed away April 23. His store was at 2013 South Fifth street, which business will be continued by his sons. Mr. McClane was a florist of the old school. His specialty was funeral work. A man highly respected by all who knew him, he was a hard worker and one of the best-known buyers on the market. At his funeral, which was largely attended, there were great quantities of flowers.

K.

NEW ALBANY, IND.—Anders Rasmussen has placed a contract for a 110-foot tile stack and is planning to erect a 3,000-ton coal bin.

PORTLAND, ORE.—The Holden Floral Co. is planning to add one house to its range which will be devoted to roses exclusively.

American Dahlia Society.

The American Dahlia Society, in conjunction with the American Institute of the City of New York, will hold an exhibition of dahlias in the Engineering Society building, 25-33 West Thirty-ninth street, New York, September 25-27. Further information may be had upon application to William A. Eagleson, Secretary, Board of Managers, 322 West Twenty-third street, New York.

American Peony Society.

The American Peony Society will hold its annual exhibition in conjunction with the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society in Horticultural hall, Philadelphia, Pa., June 7-8. All indications point to this being the largest and finest show of peonies ever held in the United States. The executive committee of the national society has held several meetings in Horticultural hall the present week, perfecting the schedule, adopting window advertising cards and other details of the show. The members of the committee are: James Boyd, Haverford, Pa.; A. H. Scott, Oak Lane, Pa., and E. K. Schultz, Philadelphia.

Plant Names Standardized.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

In your issue of April 28 I note an editorial on the 1917 official code of standardized plant names prepared by the American Joint Committee on Horticultural Nomenclature. In this you state that a number of important trade bodies have been overlooked in the selection of the committee.

I would like to correct this statement and advise you that every effort has been made to have the Society of American Florists and the American Seed Trade Association join with the committee, and while they have been interested, they have not taken active measures to help in this work. The American Joint Committee on Horticultural Nomenclature will, I believe, welcome any horticultural organization willing to assist in this very important work. We have just begun and the greatest work of common names lies ahead of us. All assistance will be very welcome.

HARLAND P. KELSEY, Sec'y.

American Rose Society.

An executive committee meeting of the American Rose Society was held in New York April 24. Fourteen retailers exhibited at the Philadelphia rose festival, and their exhibits were so attractive and well put up that a special vote of thanks was passed to them. The gentlemen so represented were: Pennock Bros., Gude Bros., Chas. Henry Fox, Harry Betts, V. I. Ridenour, Julius Wolf, Jr., T. N. Geiger, J. J. Habermehl's Sons, Ira G. Marvin, John C. Gracey, John Kuhn, London Flower Shop, J. Wolf Moore, Chas. Grakelow.

The secretary reported a large number of complimentary letters received commending the excellence of the Rose Annual for 1917. L. J. Reuter reported progress in regard to the outdoor exhibition of roses to be held July 4 at Newport, R. I.

President S. S. Pennock appointed as rose garden committees the following: Central Committee—Admiral Aaron Ward, Roslyn, N. Y.; Louis J. Reuter, Westerly, R. I.; Geo. C. Thomas, Jr., Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, Pa. Hartford, Conn., Committee—J. F. Huss, Hartford, Conn.; Alex. Cummings, Jr., Cromwell, Conn.; Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn. Arlington Rose Garden—Robt. Pyle, West Grove, Pa.; F. L. Mulford, Washington, D. C.; Wm. F. Gude, Washington, D. C.; Dr. D. W. Shoemaker, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. C. W. Wetmore, president Capitol Garden Club, Washington, D. C. Ithaca, N. Y., Committee—C. A. Beals, Ithaca, N. Y.; Rev. E. A. Mills, Syracuse, N. Y.; Prof. E.

A. White, Ithaca, N. Y. Minneapolis, Minn., Committee—Theo. Wirth, superintendent of parks; Olaf J. Olson, St. Paul, Minn.; Hugh Will.

The secretary reported several requests for medals for local societies, and it was suggested that a medal for this purpose, different from the official medal, be used, and the following committee was appointed to take charge of this: S. S. Pennock, J. Horace McFarland and Prof. E. A. White.

The question was discussed of making one uniform rate for membership, instead of the present associate and active members, so as to make it possible to keep up the publication of so good a book, and also occasionally send some other interesting matter to members.

A report on the Philadelphia exhibition was given in part, and a final accounting will be rendered shortly.

BENJAMIN HAMMOND, Sec'y.

Business Prospects.

Since the United States has entered the war, business has halted owing to fears of oppressive taxation. Previously there had been ideas of activity resulting from the inflation that always follows the financial measures necessary to carry on war. Such ideas were chilled, however, by the talk of carrying on the war cheaply, and what with the intimations about conscripting industries and so levying taxes as to pay as we go, there has been a pall of gloom thrown over business. Probably we have swung too far into pessimism, as previously we had done into optimism.

Now, no economist will pretend that war is ever inherently a benefit. If it were, we should be at war all the time. War may be a benefit for the correction of evil, just as is a surgical operation, but nobody submits himself to the latter unless he is obliged to, and either a war or a surgical operation is a costly thing which would be avoided unless something worse were likely to result. But in the case of war it has been the common experience that during the progress of it there has been great industrial activity and apparent prosperity.

As to what is going to happen to business in the United States in the immediate future, it is likely that out of the confusion of the moment some fundamental conditions will emerge. Common sense will prevail, as generally it does. This means that industries will not be so unduly throttled by taxation that they cannot be carried on, for if that were to happen, we could not carry on the war itself. The expenditure of large sums of borrowed money is bound to produce activity. There is no reason to foresee that we are going to reverse the experiences of the past. On the contrary, there is every reason to expect that business in the United States at war will follow the course of business in Great Britain at war, which has been active, as everyone knows. Inasmuch as our method of financing will probably be planned according to British precedents, it is likely that our industrial experiences will be similar. We are not to expect a boom, however, for our prices were already at a high—too high—level and readjustment downward was impending anyhow; but we may expect a continuance of activity and a high level of prices.—Chicago Association of Commerce.

MARKET CLEANS UP FAIRLY WELL.

Business has been very good the past week and the market was fairly well cleaned up in all lines, Saturday, April 28. American Beauty roses are in good demand owing to being in shorter supply and the fancy grades are now selling at $4 per dozen and up. Roses in general are selling much better, especially in the short and medium grades, which is due principally to the fact that they are gradually going off crop. The fancy grades are moving well but are not bringing the prices that they should. Carnations are in good supply and while they are moving nicely, prices are not as high as one would expect considering the advance on other items. Tulips are about done and there is very little call for what few are arriving. Sweet peas are selling quickly at greatly advanced prices and there is hardly ever a surplus when the stores close at night. Lilies and callas are still in oversupply but the receipts are gradually diminishing and another week will find quite a change in regard to these two items. Violets are practically off the market but what good stock there is offered finds ready buyers. Pansies have sold nicely the past week and the same holds true for daisies, especially in the longer stemmed grades. Orchids and lily of the valley are holding their own and at times are found to be very scarce. Miscellaneous stock is in better demand and at times certain items are scarce. Iris, calendulas, home grown and southern gladioli, jonquils, sweet alyssum, lupines, anemones, cornflowers, ranunculus, feverfew, forget-me-nots, narcissi, freesias, gardenias, snapdragons, strawflowers, stocks, lilac, trailing arbutus and other seasonable flowers are included in the many offerings which give the buyer a large variety to select from. Greens are in good demand, especially smilax, which has not been any too plentiful for some time. The early demand for Mothers' day, Sunday, May 13, is very heavy and from present indications stock in general will be in short supply on this occasion. All the buyers who have not yet arranged for their supply will do well to place their orders immediately, otherwise they are likely to meet with disappointment. Do it now.

NOTES.

Kyle & Foerster received a shipment of peonies, Monday, April 30, consisting of Old Rose and Festiva Maxima, which to the writer's knowledge were the first to reach this market this season. The stock was of fine quality and found ready buyers.

CARNATIONS

Good Supply of White, Pink and Red.

While we will have a good supply of Carnations, there will not be enough flowers to supply the demand so push roses on that day. You will find that the public in a great many cases prefer them to carnations, so make allowance for the scarcity of carnations and substitute roses. They will move just as quickly. Make up your order for us today.

WIETOR BROS.

162 N. Wabash Ave., L. D. Phone Randolph 2081 CHICAGO

H. B. Kennicott and J. E. Pollworth, of Kennicott Bros. Co., made a trip to the southern part of the state this week to look over the peony situation. Mr. Kennicott brings back the report that the crops in the district they visited are not a bit backward and that the cuts promise to be fully as large if not greater than last season.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is more than pleased with business the past week and is looking forward to the best ever Mothers' day trade. Manager Klingsporn is somewhat handicapped owing to the absence of his able assistant, Michael Fink, who is temporarily looking after the late John Fink greenhouses.

The John C. Moninger Co. is furnishing the material for four new vegetable houses, 34x400 feet, for M. F. Cutting, of Cleveland, O. The contract includes everything but the glass. The Moninger Co. also supplied the material for Dr. Eiche's new range at Lincoln, Neb., consisting of seven houses, 35x200 feet.

Miss Adele Block, of Milwaukee, Wis., and Sidney Buchbinder, sales manager for Buchbinder Bros., manufacturers of florists' refrigerators and store fixtures, will be married in the Cream City Sunday, June 10. Their engagement was announced six months ago.

Edward Schulz, of the Weiland & Risch force, has joined the colors and will leave for Jefferson barracks, near St. Louis, Mo., this week, to receive the necessary training with other infantry before starting for the firing line.

Peter Nepper has placed an order with Kroeschell Bros. Co. for a new Kroeschell hot-water boiler to be installed in his range in Murphy avenue, now being operated by Pyfer & Olsem, of Wilmette.

H. E. Philpott, of Winnipeg, Can., was a visitor at A. T. Pyfer & Co.'s store Monday, April 30. He left the following day for Minneapolis, Minn., where Mrs. Philpott continues to be seriously ill.

Wm. F. Schofield, 734 North State street, celebrated his thirty-eighth birthday Saturday, April 28. Mr. Schofield has been engaged in the retail business in this city over 20 years.

August Dresel, of Graff & Dresel, 2135 Clybourn avenue, is able to be about again after undergoing an operation at the German-American Hospital.

A. E. Turner, of Rosin & Turner, Mosinee, Wis., called on the trade here this week. He reports a heavy snowfall in his district, April 25.

The Chicago Florists' Club will meet at the Briggs hotel, 188 West Randolph street, next Thursday evening, April 10, at 8 o'clock.

Henry C. Dunn is opening a new store this week at 807 North State street under the name of Dunn's Flower Shop.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner are having a good call for iris in blue, white and yellow, which they are handling in quantity.

Ed. Vilter of the J. A. Budlong force, says that he has enlisted in the First Cavalry of the Illinois National Guard.

Percy Jones, Inc., is busy packing shipping orders everytime one visits this establishment and no complaint is ever heard from Manager Van Gelder in regard to the war affecting their wholesale cut flower business. The outlook for Mothers' day never was so good as this year and while the reports are to the effect that stock in general will be scarce this firm expects to fill all its orders in full.

Peter Reinberg is having a tremen-ous call for stock for Mothers' day, according to Felix Reichling, with carnations as usual, having the call. Roses are also in good demand at this house and will no doubt clean up early, owing to the general scarcity of carnations.

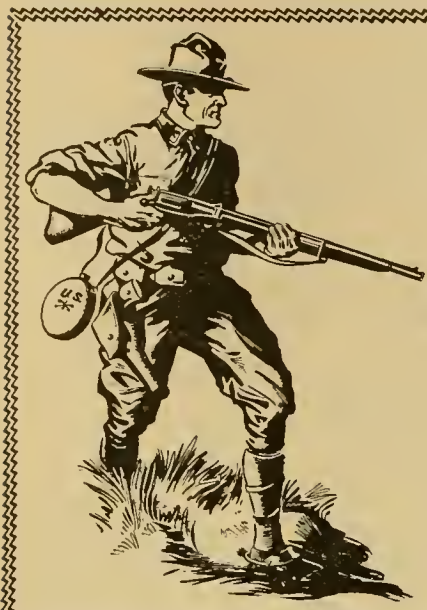

Dr. J. B. Buchbinder has enlisted in the army and will have charge of a hospital base. He is brother of Sidney Buchbinder, of Buchbinder Bros.

Erne & Co. have booked many nice advance orders for Mothers' day for carnations, which are in exceptionally heavy demand, and, as in former years, the call is strong for white.

Nate Lewis has opened a wholesale and retail establishment on North Wabash avenue in the quarters formerly occupied by George Fischer & Brother. Irving Stein is manager.

John W. Fink, 2632 Herndon street, died suddenly in New York last Thursday, April 26, his brother, Michael, being called east to identify the body. He was engaged in the growing business and operated a range of greenhouses on Herndon street for many years, the output of which was consigned to the local market. He was a member of the Chicago Florists' Club and was well and favorably known to many of the local trade, who were greatly surprised as well as grieved to hear of his sudden death. He was 34 years of age and leaves a wife and three children, Joe, Helen and Walter. The funeral, which was held Wednesday, May 2, from the late residence to St. Joseph's church, Belden and Southport avenues, was largely attended and the floral tributes from the trade and friends of the family were many and beautiful. Burial was at St. Adalbert's cemetery.

Mrs. J. A. Budlong has returned from a most pleasant visit at Miami, Fla., and Miss Schupp is home from a delightful stay at Lake Geneva, Wis. Miss Schultz has kindly tipped the writer off to the fact that she is not the only one in the trade that is going to take a matrimonial voyage, and while she does not mention any names it is someone who has visited the well-known Florida resort recently.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. has noticed a great increase in its supply sales since the opening of its new salesrooms adjoining the cut flower department. Otto W. Freese says that some action ought to be taken by the wholesalers whereby it would be impossible for the department stores to offer roses at such ridiculously low prices as they did last week.

Wietor Bros. are busy planting and have their Ophelia and Sunburst all benched. Seven houses of American Beauty roses are in and all their Mrs. Chas. Russell are practically planted. Four houses each of Killarney and White Killarney have been benched and one house has been planted to carnations.

Bassett & Washburn report business so brisk this week that they are having trouble in filling all their orders in full. Mr. Washburn says that a few sunshiny days will relieve the situation to a large extent and that the shortage is due more to unfavorable weather than to the increased demand.

John Sinner is now devoting most of his time at Sinner Bros.' greenhouses, which have needed his attention for some time. He will devote his entire time to the growing business if he can dispose of his lease on his downtown store, which is one of the best located wholesale stands in the city.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are receiving their share of orders for Mothers' day and from present indications the demand on this occasion will be the heaviest ever. Stock of all kinds is in large supply at this establishment, particularly iris, which is meeting with very good sale.

R. E. Kurowski, general manager of the John C. Moninger Company, through the Illinois Manufacturers' Association offered to build a government greenhouse free. He said the prospect of a food stringency prompted the offer.

Zech & Mann have had a very busy week with a heavy out-of-town call for stock. Orders for Mothers' day are plentiful, especially for carnations and roses. Lilies are in exceptionally large supply at this establishment.

C. W. Johnson gave a talk on "Home Gardening" at the Morgan Park Methodist Episcopal Church, April 26. A pageant of flowers represented by children was a feature of the evening.

Max Awizzus is back on the job at E. C. Amling Co.'s store, after being on the sick list for several days with a sore throat.

Raymond Gottry, of the staff of THE AMERICAN FLORIST, enlisted and left for Jefferson barracks, St. Louis, Mo., April 30.

Gustave Raedlein, of the Raedlein Basket Co., has been on the sick list for nearly a month with stomach trouble.

H. E. Humiston, of the Chicago Feed & Fertilizer Co., leaves this week to call on the trade in the east.

Visitors: Walter Mott, representing Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y.; Samuel Seligman, representing Wertheimer Bros., New York.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—Numerous improvements are being made at the A. Wiegand's Sons Co.'s farm.

MEMPHIS, TENN.—Local florists furnished flowers free on May 1, which were sold by young ladies in a button-hole bouquet campaign to aid the third annual city beautiful campaign of the Nineteenth Century Club.

Cincinnati.

Business is much better than last week. Stock has shortened somewhat, while the demand is steady. Shipping business, particularly in greens, wire-work and supplies, is very active. The rose supply has shortened very considerably and now is not very much more than is necessary to take care of present daily wants. The daily cut of carnations, too, has shortened. Easter lilies continue plentiful and include some excellent stock. Some splendid callas may also be had. Sweet peas are plentiful. The first peonies are in the market. They were from South Carolina. Snapdragons are in a good supply. Other offerings include irises, gladioli, Poeticus, outdoor tulips, lilac, lily of the valley and orchids.

NOTES.

To L. H. Kyrk belongs the honor of having the first peonies of the season. They came into his place last week from South Carolina and found a good market.

E. G. Gillett is again back at his business, having recovered fully from his recent illness.

C. E. Critchell has been having an unusually strong call for ferns.

Visitors: Sam Seligman, New York; Norval Kiger and wife, Marietta, O.; Wm. Rodgers, Dayton, O., and Martin Weber and wife, Brookville, Ind.

SHORTENED SUPPLY BENEFITS MARKET.

The supply of stock has shortened considerably. Particularly was this true of sweet peas and carnations. Roses of all kinds continue to arrive in quantity sufficient for all demands. There are a few outdoor daffodils and Darwin tulips arriving daily. Snapdragons, although not quite so plentiful as last week, still arrive in good supply, and the demand is good, the stock being the best varieties and colors, and considerable quantities are sold cheap for window displays. Easter and calla lilies are still plentiful, but mostly short stems, while the demand is not over-brisk. Violets have about run out and a few more days will see the last of the doubles for this season. Lily of the valley has been more plentiful with a good demand. Calendulas are good stock. Daisies, irises, stocks, bachelor buttons, nasturtiums and ageratums are part of the daily receipts. Orchids are not very plentiful. Greens of all kinds are sufficient.

NOTES.

J. W. Stranahan, 10312 Euclid avenue, manager of The Studio Flower Shoppe, is having difficulty in carrying on his business. His liabilities after one year's operations are $2,500, with no assets worth mentioning. At a meeting of the creditors Monday, April 23, a new company was proposed, which would pay Stranahan's indebtedness by a 365-day note for 50 per cent of claims with interest at six per cent; also, the creditors are supposed to extend the new company credit and co-operation. The creditors have so far not accepted the proposition.

Miss Christine Cliff, perhaps the youngest woman florist in the city, began selling flowers when a mere slip of a girl and was familiarly known among her customers as "The Flower Girl."

From delivering her own flowers in a basket she has built up a business consisting at the present time of three stores with automobile delivery. She owns and operates the Penn Square Flower Store at Fifty-fifth street and Euclid avenue, a stand in the East Forty-sixth street market and the Christine Floral Co. at 7720 Hough avenue.

"What effect will the war have on the florists' business?" was discussed at the last meeting of the florists' club. All seemed optimistic and predicted continued prosperity. At the next meeting Monday evening, May 7, H. P. Merrick, of the Lord & Burnham Co., will give a talk on "Greenhouse Construction." Mothers' day business will also be discussed and a large attendance is looked for.

If the "vegetable war garden" craze continues it is bound to cause a shortage of outdoor flowers, particularly among the amateur growers of sweet peas, etc.

HEAVY RECEIPTS AND LIMITED MOVEMENT.

The week of April 14-21 was thought to be about the limit, but the past six days shaded it a trifle. The early part, or the first four days, kept everyone busy on the receiving end, but the sales people, strive as they might, found it very hard to move anything. The stock was of good quality but it could not be sold. On Friday and Saturday there was a little stir, but taken altogether the results were anything but satisfactory. American Beauty roses are now off crop and will be a bit scarce for a couple of weeks. All other roses are somewhat limited in supply, but there is still more than enough to go around. Prices are fairly well maintained, although quantity lots are offered low. There has been a great plethora of carnations; the ice boxes were emptied out on Saturday and sold by the wagon load to the hucksters at merely nominal prices. Southern lilac and peonies from North Carolina are in. One of the commission men, in speaking of his great stock of snapdragon, said the growers were afraid the rust would carry off their plants. "I almost wish it had," he added, "for we get about four times as much now as we can handle." Easter lilies and callas are also suffering from overproduction. Cattleyas are more plentiful, but command high figures, selling at 50 to 75 cents, while lily of the valley is all sold long before it is received. There will be very little lily of the valley in this market during May, and after the June weddings, likely none at all.

CLUB MEETING.

The May meeting of the florists' club was quite well attended, the feature being the paper of W. K. Hardt, vice-president of the Fourth Street National Bank. The essay was very comprehensive, explaining in detail the system of bank credits and the necessity of a good and true trial balance in securing recognition at the bank. The great necessity of getting a correct account of overhead charges to enable one to know the proper percentage to add to the invoice cost of goods was considered by the speaker as most important. Double entry bookkeeping, Mr. Hardt stated, was just as simple as single entry, infinitely better, and absolutely necessary in modern storekeeping. This valuable paper will appear in an early issue. Each member was presented with a copy of a pamphlet, "A System of Accounts for Retail Merchants," issued by the Federal Trade Commission of the government, which Mr. Hardt stated was one of the most valuable papers ever published by the government.

NOTES.

Arthur Niessen, in speaking of the hysteria due to the present war conditions, in which so much is said about economizing, thinks it a great mistake to uphold such a movement. Newspapers are giving columns to such matter, and yet are soliciting advertisements from the very firms from whom, in an indirect way, they are asking the people to withdraw support. There are certain things classed as luxuries, such as flowers, flower beds and beautiful lawns, that have grown to be a part

Don't Wait

Now is the time to send us a shipment of flowers and acquaint yourself with the satisfactory treatment you receive when you ship to New York's Foremost Commission House in the flower trade.

Extensive experience, ample capital, modern facilities and, in fact, everything to commend us to you.

Special opportunity for a couple of Good Rose Growers who are looking for best returns. Our present demand is larger than our supply.

UNITED CUT FLOWER CO., Inc., 111 W. 28th St., New York City

of everyday life. To plow up these beautiful surroundings of the home and plant potatoes and other vegetables is the height of folly. There are thousands of acres of good tillable land within 50 miles of Philadelphia, which if it is necessary should be at once planted before disturbing the beautiful lawns of our parks and homes.

There is a rumor that Horticultural Hall has been sold for a sum of about $600,000. There have been several near sales reported of which Secretary Rush says this is another sample. From another source, it is said the sale is positive, only lacking the final papers.

A. Leuthy, of Boston, Mass., agreeably surprised his many friends in this city by a presentation of Mrs. Leuthy. Many have twitted him in former years on his lonesome state, but all is now well, and he appeared the happiest man alive.

When Edward Reid was asked for the good news his answer was, "No good news for this week; Friday and Saturday were better than the rest, but that is not saying much." Cattleys and good sweet peas were features here.

There was lily of the valley at the Leo Niessen Co.'s, but all sold. Their grower is getting very low and it is almost being forced to order. All lines of stock were full. A good Saturday wound up a dull week.

Skibbage is a new one, not yet in Webster's. Clarence Watson says it covers the flowers, snapped off roses and carnations that accumulate and when gotten together are called "skibbage."

The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange is strong on roses. Sweet peas and carnations are also quantity stock. They about managed to break even this week, is the report.

Nelson Geiger, the Thirteenth street retailer, has placed a new Rush car on the street—Rush in name as well as in service. He finds it a great time saver.

Preparations for a big Memorial day business are keeping things lively with H. Bayersdorfer & Co. Their tricolor novelties are taking all over the country.

Jos. G. Neidinger has been compelled to turn down orders, the press of work for Memorial day being the largest he has ever had.

Lots of stock but little demand at Eugene Bernheimer's. A few good flowers of the old Queen of Edgely were interesting.

Berger Bros. are strong on Easter lilies, carnations and snagdragons. Inquiries for Mothers' day flowers are coming in.

The Jos. Heacock Co. has had a lively sale on palms for spring delivery. K.

MANHATTAN, KAN.—Henry Moore has disposed of his range to C. A. Scott, former state forester.

PETERBORO, ONT.—The Peterboro Floral Co. and Jordan Bros. report an excellent Easter business, the only disappointment being a limited supply in some lines. Everything of good quality met with ready sales, lilies being most in demand.

New York.

BUSINESS GOOD IN SPOTS.

Business in the wholesale district was very quiet during the past week. Saturday, April 28, was a fairly good day, but one swallow does not make a summer. The arrival of stock was not particularly heavy, but the demand was light. In American Beauties, the supply of good stock was small and good; special stock went up to 40 cents per flower. The market for tea roses and carnations was very weak. The best cattleyas brought from 50 to 75 cents each. Lilies were very slow, six cents being the best offering for choice stock. Lilac is now arriving from the south, and for the next few weeks will be a factor in the market.

April 30.—Business was very quiet today and the supply of stock keeps ahead of the demand. The southern lilac is now a factor in the market.

NOTES.

The Plant Market, which in past years has had a varied existence, is now well located under the Queensborough bridge, the entrance being on 60th street. A. F. Dwyer, well known through his connection with H. C. Steinhoff's range at West Hoboken, N. J., is superintendent. A number of years ago, the late John Birnie and others got permission to erect a large tent on Washington street, which for a time served as a plant market. Again, for a year or two, it had another location under the Queensborough bridge, from where it was removed to the old Fulton market, for two years. The market opens at 2 a. m. and business is about over by 6 a. m. Calling recently, we found a quantity of fine stock. Charles Hunt, of Port Richmond, Staten Island, is sending in exceptionally fine geraniums and fuchsias; he had for this spring 100,000 geraniums. Others who sell stock are Paul Reikert, North Bergen, N. J., who has pot roses; H. C. Steinhoff, West Hoboken, who has hydrangeas and other stock, and John Birnie, West Hoboken, with geraniums, English ivies and other plants.

The sympathy of the trade is extended to Miss Durkins, private secretary to Joseph S. Fenrich, who recently lost a sister by death. During Miss Durkins' absence from the store, Mrs. Fenrich ably assisted in the office work.

Joseph Vock, who for a number of years has sold stock for Wm. H. Siebrecht in the Cut Flower Exchange, has just recovered from a serious illness and will hereafter engage in outdoor work.

All the retail stores that we have noticed are displaying the national colors. On the Plaza hotel the Stars and Stripes, the British and the French flags are floating side by side.

C. A. Ladiges, who is the florist of Amsterdam avenue, advises us that war talk does not frighten him. He expects business to go on much as it has been going.

Peter Wagner, of Flatbush, in addition to his activities in ferns and flowering plants, has or had, 500,000 tomato plants for the spring trade.

At the Henry Hessian range, on April 24, we found great activity in planting carnations in the field and have never seen finer stock.

BAD WEATHER CAUSES DROP IN SALES.

The usual April conditions seem to have governed the trade during the month. Quite warm weather following Easter caused a little spurt in the demand for bedding stock, and raw, cold, rainy conditions during the last week caused a falling off in all lines. The general trade outlook is problematic. With the high cost of everyday necessities, the war agitation, and with the daily press full of plans for personal and domestic economy, there may result a breadth of retrenchment that may reach the florist, especially in the circles of the moderately circumstanced, and there are many such in the western florist's list of customers. Probably this possibility has had much to do with the lack of advance in the retail prices of bedding stock. However, everybody seems fixed to do business to full capacity and a fairly optimistic spirit seems to prevail. This is of course helped by the local conditions prevailing in the community's business and financial circles, which are very prosperous and growing rapidly. Wichita glass devoted to garden crops has, so far as known, paid quite well the past season, and more glass will probably be devoted thereto next season. The growth of the city is causing the erection of many new homes. Some are quite pretentious and have given opportunity for landscape work more or less extensive.

NOTES.

The nation-wide agitation to grow something to eat is succeeding to the extent that those florists who also supply vegetable garden plants have no trouble with a surplus. C. A. Rose, the dean of the trade in Wichita, still carries this line, as also does Roy Hanchett. Both have all they can do. Roy has lately joined the "Benedicts" with the approval and best wishes of his many friends in the trade and out of it.

The Baker Landscape Co. has had a very good season, having, in addition to the local business, some very nice contracts for the grounds of the United States government buildings in a number of cities in Kansas and Oklahoma.

The landscape department of Chas. P. Mueller has been busy taking care of quite an extensive job in Oklahoma, besides a good run of local work. W. H. Culp & Co. also have been quite busy with this line of work.

Chas. P. Mueller has installed a new flower case of large capacity in his Main street store.

TRADE GENERALLY SATISFACTORY.

A number of spring weddings occasioned an improved demand during the past week. Counter sales were also good and the call for funeral work was brisk. The supply of stock has shortened, due to dark weather, the receipts of carnations being particularly limited. Roses are moderately plentiful. Easter lilies and callas are the exceptions, being available in large numbers. Great preparations in advertising are being made by the florists' club for Mothers' day, and a big business is also expected for Memorial day.

NOTES.

A large shipment of orchid plants in 10 different varieties has been received

The Flick Floral Co. is featuring some handsome mountain laurel plants at its retail store. This firm arranged more than 20 bouquets for the spring ballet dancers, April 27.

There will be an important meeting of the florists' club May 9, at the store of Ed. Wenninghoff, at which President W. J. Vesey, Jr., desires a large attendance.

The New Haven Floral Co., New Haven, Ind., is shipping excellent carnations. The callas from this establishment are also seen here.

The American flag designed in straw-flowers was a prominent feature in the attractive window decoration of the Doswell Floral Co. last week.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.
Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., President;
F. W. Belgiano, Washington, D. C., First
Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fifth annual convention, Detroit, Mich.,
June 19, 1917.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—L. L. May has been confined to his home the past eight weeks.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, May 2, were as follows: Timothy, $5.50 to $7.50 per 100 pounds.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—W. Atlee Burpee & Co. have caught up on their orders and resumed the regular employees' Saturday half-holiday April 28. Howard M. Earl's two sons, John H. and Douglas, have joined the colors and expect to begin training this week.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—The new warehouse of Northrup, King & Co., containing all the latest improvements for the handling and storage of seeds, is making rapid progress. President Massie's handsome new residence on Lake of the Isles boulevard is almost completed.

BALTIMORE, MD.—J. Belgiano & Son, well-known seedsmen, have subscribed $1,000, being among the first contributors to a $10,000 fund to secure seeds which will be distributed to Maryland farmers unable to finance themselves, payment to be made when crops are disposed of.

THE Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, reports an unusually brisk season with a heavy demand for peas, beans and sweet corn. Peas are practically cleaned up and what surplus of corn and beans remain will probably be disposed of before the season closes. This firm reports that the canners have greatly increased their acreage this year.

Western Canners.

The Western Canners' Association held its annual meeting at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, April 27-28, when the following officers were elected: W. J. Sears, Chillicothe, O., president; W. A. Miskimen, Heopston, Ill., vice-president; F. M. Shook, Columbus, O., secretary and treasurer. The meeting was well attended and plans for the coming year were discussed. The seed trade was represented by S. F. Leonard, Edward Leonard and Albert H. Smith, of the Leonard Seed Co., and Arnold Ringier, Chicago.

Commission Box Dealers Meet.

A meeting of the Commission Box Seed Dealers of the United States was held at the Sherman House, Chicago, May 1, to consider their interests for the coming season with relation to present strong demand and short supply. The firms represented included D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich.; C. C. Morse & Co., San Francisco, Calif.; Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn.; John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis.; Farmer Seed & Nursery Co., Faribault, Minn.; S. M. Isbell & Co., Jackson, Mich.; M. G. Madson Seed Co., Manitowoc, Wis.

CONGRESS has under consideration the control of certain food crop seeds with a view to improve distribution.

California Seed Crops.

Los Angeles, April 23.—John Bodger & Sons Co. reports the crop prospects are not as good as they were a month ago. They have had no rain since the first of March, and the moisture has gone down so deep that it is hard to get stands, and they have had to irrigate before planting, which will bring the crop out very late, and unless they get very favorable growing weather from now on they can not look for a normal crop on a great many important items. Three or four days of severe winds have blown away large quantities of their best flower seed stocks.

Sweet peas have made very good growth and are looking well, but irrigation has already been necessary. The aphid has come again in large numbers and no idea of prospects on this crop can be had before the extent of the aphid damage is shown.

Asters are coming along all right, although a little late.

Seed Situation Committee.

A committee on seed stocks has been appointed by the secretary of agriculture to secure full information in regard to the available supplies of seed for staple food crops and to devise methods of meeting shortages in particular regions. The committee will inventory and ascertain the amount and price of the seeds available and will consider questions relating to the growing and distribution of seed stocks. Among the crops with which the committee will work are corn, wheat, oats, barley, rye, potatoes, flax, beans, peas, soy beans, kafir corn and sorghum.

The committee consists of the following members: R. A. Oakley, chairman, Agronomist, Forage Crop Investigations, Bureau of Plant Industry; L. M. Estabrook, Chief of Bureau of Crop Estimates; William A. Wheeler, specialist in marketing seeds, Office of Markets and Rural Organization; John E. W. Tracy, Assistant Superintendent of Testing Gardens, Bureau of Plant Industry; William Stuart, Horticulturist, Bureau of Plant Industry; C. P. Hartley, Physiologist in Charge of Corn Investigations, Bureau of Plant Industry; A. J. Pieters, Agronomist, Forage Crop Investigations, Bureau of Plant Industry; C. W. Western Seedsmen's Association.

The annual meeting of the Western Seedsmen's Association was held at the Hotel Martin, Sioux City, Iowa, April 28. The attendance included H. A. Johns, of the Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co., Sioux City, Ia.; C. C. Massie and G. C. Thompson, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn.; J. C. Robinson, of the J. C. Robinson Seed Co., Waterloo, Neb.; C. R. Chesmore, of the Chesmore-Eastlake Mer. Co., St. Joseph, Mo.; H. P. Webster, Independence, Ia.; H. W. Buckbee, Rockford, Ill.; Gurney, Jr., of the Gurney Seed & Nursery Co., Yankton, S. D.; Fred Windheim, of the Nebraska Seed Co., Omaha, Neb.; F. P. Quick, of the Griswold Seed Co., Lincoln, Neb., and A. Mangelsdorf, of Mangelsdorf Bros. Co., Atchison, Kan. Messages regretting their inability to attend were received from J. C. Vaughan, Chicago, and others.

Resolutions to co-operate in the plans to increase food crops this year were adopted. A movement was inaugurated to advise farmers and stockmen to plant early 90-day corn wherever suitable ground is available, this to be used for feeding hogs early in the fall. The plan is to let the corn grow until July 1 and turn the live stock into the field until the crop is consumed. The cost of this crop is about 30 cents a bushel, compared with waiting until October or November for the regular harvest, when the same crop is worth at least 60 cents a bushel.

Mr. Robinson reported that alfalfa and clover had been badly winter-killed in Nebraska and that the latter will be so scarce in the state this year that the florists will be using the flower as a great rarity in decorative work. In the absence of sorghum, which appears to be quite scarce, farmers are advised to replace the alfalfa with millet. This will afford a useful crop. About the first of August the land will be cleared and will be ready for another crop. Alfalfa or winter wheat can then be grown to good advantage on the same land, and thus the farmer derives the benefit of an extra crop.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: H. A. Johns, Sioux City, Ia., president; C. C. Massie, Minneapolis, Minn., vice-president; H. G. Windheim, Omaha, Neb., secretary; H. P. Webster, Independence, Ia., treasurer.

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

H. W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., President; H. P. Thompson, Arlington, Mass., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids, Mich., Treasurer.

Next annual convention will be held at Springfield, Mass., in 1917.

DEDHAM, MASS.—The lawn in front of Henry B. Endicott's home here, comprising ten and one-half acres, will be transformed into a vegetable garden.

SHIPMENTS of strawberries from southern states for the period April 1-20 were 680 cars, as compared with 688 cars for the corresponding period of 1916.

THE standard barrel of the United States should contain 7,056 cubic inches, with 28½-inch staves and 17¼-inch heads, head material not thicker than 2/5 of an inch.

PADUCAH, KY.—G. R. Noble, well-known florist of this city, has offered 10,000 tomato plants to be given to anyone in the city or county, through the board of trade, to aid in increased food production.

"CUCUMBER and Canteloupe Insect Control" is the title of Farmers' leaflet No. 17, issued by the extension service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, covering three important types of pests that need to be guarded against.

Potato Crop in Canary Islands.

The winter potato crop in the Canary Islands, despite unfavorable planting conditions in November, has been gathered. Final returns indicate a yield slightly in excess of 5,000 tons with prices ranging as high as $2.10 per 100 pounds. The price for the past six months has been double that obtained for the 1915 crop.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

CHICAGO, May 1.—Mushrooms, home grown, 50 to 75 cents per pound; lettuce, small cases, 15 to 17½ cents; radishes, 50 to 60 cents, dozen bunches; celery, $2.50, crate; tomatoes, six baskets, $3.50 to $4.50; cucumbers, per 2-dozen box, $1.00 to $1.50.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Celery, per crate, 50 cents to $1.50; cucumbers, 40 to 60 cents; mushrooms, 75 cents to $1.75 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, per lb., 20 to 35 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $1.00 to $2.50; lettuce, per strap, $1.50 to $3.50.

Vegetable Shipments from Southern States

The largest shipment of onions from Texas ever made in one day as far as known was on April 19, when 179 cars were sent out of that state. Altogether 1,367 cars of onions have been shipped from Texas during the present season.

Shipments of new potatoes from Florida during the week ending April 20 increased from 15 to 20 cars a day. The total shipments of both old and new potatoes during the period April 1-20 amounted to 5,072 cars. Tomato shipments from the same state during the same period were 225 cars, less than one-sixth of the number shipped for the same period in 1916.

Strawberry Acreage and Production.

Detailed estimates from eight states give a basis for the following forecast of strawberry production in 1917: Acreage to be picked, 62,700; condition, April 1st, 80 per cent; production, 4,606,850 crates. Production in 1916 amounted to 5,118,750 crates, the acreage picked being 65,900.

Callicarpa Purpurea

A splendid berried Shrub, growing from 2½ to 3 feet high, with its branches gracefully recurving; these are covered in August with tiny pink flowers which are followed in September by great masses of violet-purple berries borne in clusters from the axil of every leaflet and remain on the plant a long time. It is not only a useful decorative plant for the lawn and garden in the fall, but the cut branches will be found most valuable material for the florist and decorator. Strong bushy plants, 15 inches high, which will fruit freely the first season.

For Florists

RUTH FORBES

A beautiful, clear pink, without shading; a strong vigorous grower, producing mammoth flowers in great abundance. For table decoration, especially under artificial light where the effect is indescribable. It has no equal. Distinctly in the Prize Medal Class it has won instant recognition, wherever shown. Divided field-grown roots, $15 per 100.

The Denison

Originated by us and winner of Silver Medal at the Panama-Pacific Exposition; also awarded First-Class Certificates of Merit by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and the American Institute of New York, is another splendid florists' variety. The pure rosy pink flowers are six inches in diameter, with sharp petals, long stems and light green foliage. It is an early bloomer, very floriferous, fine keeper, and does not show center. Price, $4 per doz.

Francis A. Butts Originated by us: a seedling of great possibilities; produces immense flowers seven to eight inches in diameter on exceptionally strong stems, over two feet long without a leaf; color, flesh white, with a delicate edge pure lavender, which as the flower opens bleaches to pure white, making it a flower of rare beauty. We consider this the best decorative seedling we have ever produced among the thousands we have grown. It was awarded a Silver Medal at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. Price, $4 per doz.

WELLINGTON, KAN.—Charles Worden, head of the well-known nursery firm of Worden & Co., died here recently.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—Mrs. Mary Hanselmann, wife of Joseph Hanselmann, well-known nurseryman of this city, died recently of heart failure, aged 68 years.

BOSTON, MASS.—A field class for those wishing a knowledge of New England trees and shrubs will be held at the Arnold Arboretum on Saturdays during this spring and summer. Applications should be made to J. G. Jack, East Walpole, Mass. The fee for the course is $5.

Holland Nursery Stock Shipments Delayed

Boskoop, March 24.—There has been no opportunity to ship nursery stock this winter, no cargo steamers having sailed from Rotterdam to New York since January 15, and it is doubtful if there will be a passenger steamer sailing in the near future. During the months of December and January the weather was ideal for shipping plants, but during February and until the middle of March severe conditions with about a foot of frost in the ground prevented digging and shipping in good time, even had opportunity offered.

Trees of Size.

Atlanta, Ga., April 22.—In a recent contest in which a prize was offered by the American Genetic Association for the largest shade tree in the United States the chief contestant from Georgia was a sassafras tree seven feet around. The prize was won by a valley oak in California 37 feet 6 inches in circumference and 126 feet high.

The largest living elm is at Wethersfield, Conn., 28 feet in circumference and 100 feet high. It is estimated to be 250 years old. A chestnut in North Carolina is 33 feet 4 inches; a white birch in Massachusetts, 12 feet 6 inches; a pecan in Louisiana, 19 feet 6 inches, and a cattaipa in Arkansas, 16 feet. The tallest tree found was a yellow poplar in North Carolina, which is 198 feet high.

Pines.

Among the exotic pines the three Japanese species, Pinus parviflora, P. thunbergii and P. densiflora, have all grown well here in this climate for nearly 30 years and are still handsome and attractive trees of much promise. The Scotch pine (Pinus sylvestris) and the Austrian pine (P. nigra) are perfectly hardy and grow rapidly in this climate, but they are comparatively short lived trees here and do not promise to be so valuable as the Japanese species. The white pine of the Balkan peninsula (Pinus peuce) is very hardy here, producing its cones freely, and now promises to be a large and valuable tree. The Swiss pine (P. cembra) is hardy but grows very slowly but it is possible that the form of this tree from central Siberia may prove more successful in this climate. The Asiatic representative of this pine, Pinus koraiensis, from eastern Siberia, Korea and Japan, grows well here and produces its cones freely. Of the pines of western America Pinus flexilis of the Rocky Mountain region grows slowly in the arboretum but is healthy and perfectly hardy, as are the two white pines, P. Lambertiana, the great sugar pine of California and Oregon, and P. monticola, which ranges from Idaho to the coast of British Columbia and to the high Sierras of California.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, November, 1916.

LENOX, MASS., April 21.—The Garden Club, which was organized to develop the esthetic element in gardening, has voted to turn its efforts to the practical side of gardening, and its members will grow flowers in small quantities and devote the remaining parts of their gardens to the production of vegetables.

NORWOOD

Has Made an Extraordinary Success

In only three weeks all of the large stock of NORWOOD that will be ready this spring has been engaged. Here are the facts:

Norwood—A Distinct Novelty in Nephrolepis Ferns:—The most beautiful of the crested type. The fronds are heavily crested, but do not unite as in many varieties of this class; each is held separate and apart by the strong and wiry midrib, which even in a small pot gives the plant a symmetrical and finished appearance. This is not just a variation of this very prolific family, but distinctly different, a very decided novelty that immediately attracts attention. It was one of the features of the New York Show, where it was awarded a Silver Medal as a new and meritorious variety.

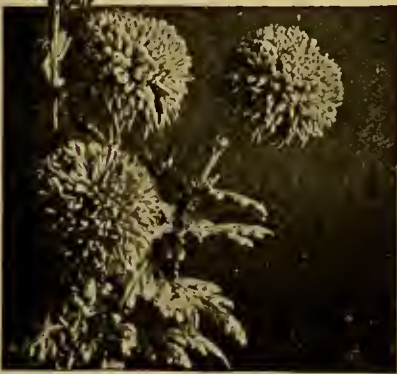

Having booked orders for 50,000 plants for June delivery, we are now accepting orders for August 15 delivery. Strong plants out of 2½-inch pots, $25.00 per 100, $200.00 per 1000. We will fill orders in rotation as received.

We are now booking orders for our New Seedling SUPERB— $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

SUPERB is a seedling of Gloriosa and Enchantress. It has the good stem of Gloriosa and the fine growing habit of Enchantress. The color is a deep pink, and it keeps its color at all seasons. The flowers average about three inches, are very full, and generally receive full score on substance. The flowers are all perfect and do not split. In the four years we have grown it, it has proved the best commercial variety, barring none.

THE CALIFORNIA REDWOOD ASSOCIATION,
711 New Call Building,
San Francisco, Calif.

Gentlemen:—

Perhaps you would be interested in knowing why we use Redwood for greenhouse work. We have tried various kinds of woods that we thought might be suitable for greenhouse work for the past 20 years and we have found Redwood to be the most durable and serviceable of any of them.

1. That it is less subject to decay in the severe conditions of heat and moisture existing in a greenhouse.
2. That it is less liable to warp and twist than other woods.
3. That it does not shrink or swell.
4. That it runs more uniform straight grain than the next best wood, which we consider to be cypress.
5. That it takes paint much better and the grain does not raise.
6. That it is much easier to detect and eliminate the sap on account of the heart wood being red and the sap wood white, whereas in other woods this difference in color is not noticeable so much.
7. That it has invariably been satisfactory to all our trade.

We could get other woods for less money, but would not think of using anything else as long as we can get Redwood.

We would be glad to answer any questions from any of your customers, giving further details of our experience.

Yours very truly,

Howe's
Vice-President.

Bailey's
New Standard
Cyclopedia
Of Horticulture

Six Splendid Volumes

This work is Prof. L. H. Bailey's latest and greatest achievement and will undoubtedly stand as a monument to him. This is not a revision of the old Cyclopedia but a brand new work containing features not dreamed of at the time of publication of the original cyclopedia which was a pioneer work. The old cyclopedia of Horticulture, it will be remembered was a cyclopedia in fact as well as in name, whereas the new Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture is a gardener's manual as well as a cyclopedia and contains features that make it equally adaptable to the amateur and to the professional, to the man without education or the man with high literary tastes.

Prize Winning Stock

—the kind which takes honors consistently year after year, is usually grown by the man who has spent a lifetime scientifically studying his work.

But even the most skillful veteran finds help in the convenience and dependability of the

Morehead Back-to-Boiler SYSTEM

He knows that with this inexpensive equipment installed in his plant he can always be sure of a uniform growing temperature—that he will never again be bothered with a messy steam pump.

Easily attached to your present boiler room apparatus, the "Morehead" System

Eliminates Sluggish Circulation in Your Steam Lines

at once—and thereby gives you absolute control of temperature in your greenhouses the whole year 'round.

The condensation itself is immediately returned to the boilers as feed water while it is pure and hot—thus saving a large per cent of your fuel.

To get pictures and data which show how other florists are using the "Morehead" System to help grow prize winning stock, simply write for your free copy of the latest Back-to-Boiler book. Tell us your conditions and our engineers will advise you (without obligation) how to overcome your present difficulties.

Morehead Manufacturing Company
 DEPT. "B" 400 DETROIT, MICHIGAN

The Coal Man

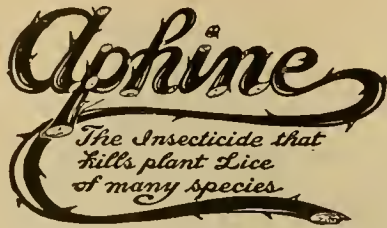

actually pays for your Morehead equipment in a few months' time, depending on conditions.

Morehead installations everywhere prove every claim we make. The results which have already been obtained in hundreds of other greenhouses can be duplicated right in your own plant.

A full and frank discussion of your conditions and how they can be benefited by the Morehead System places you under no obligation.

QUICKEST STEAM AND WATER HEATERS IN THE WORLD

The Kroeschell is making the most wonderful greenhouse heating record in the world. Florists who have used other makes are constantly giving the Kroeschell the highest praise.

13,468,320 sq. ft. of glass was equipped with the Kroeschell Boiler during the past five years.

The Kroeschell

is used by hundreds of The American Florists' readers and mighty is their praise. The year of 1916 brought an enormous number of new customers who saw our boilers in operation at other places. We attribute the large sales of this season to the good work the Kroeschell Boiler is doing everywhere.

King Greenhouses

Keep Summer With You The Whole Year Round.

On account of their sturdy, special construction, which permits of great strength with out the need of heavy shadow casting supports, these houses are so warm and sunny that they are filled with a riot of bloom and fruit when Jack Frost has stripped the garden of its beauty. The ventilating and heating systems are the result of years of experience in building for professional growers. Things just have to grow in a King.

HARDY PERENNIALS FOR AUTUMN.

Paper Read by Wm. Saville Before the Florists' Club of Philadelphia.

Some Good Things for Florists.

Before discussing the question of October glories in the hardy garden, I should like to claim a sort of "poetical license" as regards the exact time these plants are expected to be in bloom. Quite a number of subjects that one would expect to be still with us have, owing to the dry season, not had such a prolonged flowering period as usual; and, on the other hand, others are not so far advanced as might be expected. I take it that when Mr. Watson assigned this subject to me he was thinking of the autumn flowering herbaceous plants—and hardy perennials are the plants in which I am chiefly interested.

To obtain a grand effect with herbaceous plants, there is no better way of planting—to show their best form of growth and color—than the long double border, with, if possible, a grass path between, and it is this grass path that gives a greater additional charm, as not only does it make a splendid ground work for the plants, but it is always restful to the eye, and comes as a relief, on a hot summer day, from hard, sun-baked gravel. To have small beds of herbaceous plants is, as a rule, unsatisfactory; it is difficult to cover up plants that are past their best. To have the same border always bright—as well as a blaze of color—from April to October is impossible. The only way to have continued bloom in the garden is to provide separate borders for different seasons; and I think it much better not to destroy the beauty of the main border by trying to get it in partial bloom spring, summer and autumn.

When being shown around a friend's garden, one is so often told "You should have been here two weeks ago! or in a month's time." It is a curious fact—never mind what time of year one is in that garden—there is always some excuse. The reason is, too much has been attempted. The border may look fairly well in May and June; it has a hard struggle in July; and in August it "throws up the sponge" and decides not to try any more. To obtain success in the border, one must take particular care to have the ground well-prepared. If this is done properly at first, the border will last for several years, though it will, of course, require a top dressing every year, and the dividing and re-planting of some of the stronger perennials. It is extraordinary how plants that have been split up each year will withstand a drought, whereas those that have been left in position several years and have grown into hard clumps, show very early in any drought that they are in trouble.

The planting is one of those things that cannot be done in haphazard style, and before this is begun it is far better to work out a proper plan than simply to put the plants in, regardless of time of flowering and color; and, what is still more important, to choose those plants that will hide others whose period of bloom is over. Allow some of the tall plants to come boldly to the front, bearing also in mind that it is more effective to plant in long, irregular clumps than in the round clumps generally seen. The constant repetition of the same kind of plant should be avoided as much as possible. One generally has a particular favorite and likes more than one clump of it; but, as a general rule, plant a generous patch and be done with it. Plant thickly—no ground should be visible when the border season is on. In a thickly-planted border weeds have a poor chance.

It should be the aim in starting (as you enter the border from either end) to have flowers of light coloring and foliage plants of grey-glaucous or bluish leaf. As one passes to the center the color is allowed to become stronger and stronger, until in the center position we have one strong color vying with another. There is a craze (which I have not seen successfully carried out) to have borders all blue; or graduated from white to pink; to golden; to bronze and up to crimson; but, in my opinion, a mixed border is preferable.

September and October are suitable months for planting if the soil is light and friable, but in heavier land, it is safer to prepare the ground now and plant in the spring, as winter mellowing the surface and enables soil to be more closely and firmly pressed around the roots and collars of the plants. In planting it is important that the roots should be put down to full length and not be curled to fit the hole prepared for them, as it is upon these main roots that the plants rely to stand the summer drought.

We will now presume that the border has been planted. Weak growths have been thinned out, the depredations of slugs and cut-worms have been forgotten, and the plants have been properly staked at the right time. What have we to show for all this work?

The large family of Phlox decussata one might describe as opening the season of fall-flowering plants, and there is no other family that gives such tone to the border. A few of the best varieties are: Europa, W. C. Egan, Elizabeth Campbell, Gefion, Rynstrom, Rhineland, Tragedie, Wanandis, Baron von Dedem, Frau Anton Buchner and Rosamundi. These would make a good dozen. The dahlias and hardy chrysanthemums have a wide popularity. I will speak of these later.

In yellow-flowering plants we have Anthemis Kelwayi, with Helenium pumilum magnificum, Cupreums, Riverton Gem and Riverton Beauty and the large family of Helianthus, taking multiflorus fl. pl., Wooley Dod, and the stately Orgyalis, with its medium sized golden yellow flowers as examples. The red cardinal flower and tritomas, the deep blue of Echinops Ritro, the light blue of Salvia azurea, the graceful white flowers of Anemone Japonica and the various-colored giant marsh mallows (showing wonderful improvement in the size of the flowers and intensified coloring over the native rose mallow) all help to give the border that charming effect we desire. The best results are obtained with the deep blue Plumbago Larpentæ by planting it in poor soil, in a position facing south, and it is, perhaps, curious that this is not more often grown. The blooming period of the border is carried on with the help of such plants as Sedums spectabile, brilliant and atropurpureum. Penstemon Sensation, a beautiful plant bearing spikes of large gloxinia-like flowers in a great variety of bright colors, including rose, cherry, crimson, purple, lilac, etc., blooms until frost, but the plant must be given protection in winter; also Penstemon barbatus Torreyi. The newer varieties of anemones, such as Alice, Geant des Blanchés, Whirlwind, Rosca Superba and Lerely (a neat semi-double flower, three inches in diameter, of a bright silvery pink) should not be forgotten. The plants best suited for the front row are many of the silvery artemesias, the silvery foliage of Santolina incana, the grey foliage of Stachys lanata, and the glaucous leaves of Elymus glaucus (blye lyme grass).

The most precious, perhaps, of the hardy autumn flowers are the asters of our American woods, and the improved European varieties. The best of these give a delightful mass of bloom, impressive in September and October. Include the light and deep purple and pink of the amellus varieties; the white, lilac and lavender of the graceful, feathery-flowered cordifolius family; the small many-colored flowers of the heath-like ericoides section; the tall varieties of Aster Nova Angliæ; the numerous varieties of Nova Belgii (included in which are the semi-double Beauty of Colwall, the perfect form of Feltham Blue and the soft pink of St. Egwin). If the border be properly planted and staked, a sea of bloom is visible when viewed from either end, enabling us, in the dull winter months to come, to look back with satisfaction on the closing scene of autumn flowers.

To those of you who grow and retail your own plants and flowers and have little ground around your houses to spare, I would suggest that you will find it profitable to pay more attention to perennial plants. But do not treat perennials as left-overs from spring sales and expect to make a profit; because if you do you will be disappointed and apt to say "Oh, I don't see anything in growing perennials!" Give them the same attention that you do your field-grown carnations, asters, vincas, ivies or other plants from which you expect to make a profit. You know if you do not give the necessary attention to carnation plants in the field you will have very few Beacon to retail at $2.50 a dozen

December 24. I believe perennials will pay you as well as asters have paid you—this year, at any rate—but you took a chance on the asters, prepared the ground for them, kept them cultivated and clean. Why not plant a piece of that ground to peonies or delphiniums now; and when the asters are going off at the neck and the beetles are busy next summer, you can go out and cut Bella Donna or other delphiniums on three-foot stems, and you will find that your customer will take them, and also, in many cases, leave an order for plants, at least a quarter each time.

Do you know that on August 20, this year, some spikes of delphinium were sold in the New York market at $2 a dozen? They were fine spikes, I admit, but did you get the same price for Lilium speciosum at the same time? I have had 'phone calls from the wholesalers in this town; also from Atlantic City, offering me $25 for 250 spikes of Bella Donna delphinium, which convinced me that the demand was there, waiting to be supplied. I replied that we were not in the cut flower business, and diligently set to work to harvest all the seeds possible, so that you could have a chance. I read with interest the items discussing whether a four-inch geranium can be sold profitably at 10 cents straight or a dollar a dozen. Sow digitalis and campanula about a month earlier than you put your geranium cuttings in; get them into 3½-inch pots by fall; keep them in a frame all winter, with a few dry leaves over them as a protection for the foliage; give them air early in the spring; keep them nice and stocky, and hand them out to your customers at $1.50 a dozen—they will get a lot of satisfaction and you will get a better profit. Get acquainted with some of the plants I shall mention, and make your customers feel you are giving them intelligent advice when they ask for suggestions. Your customers are taking a greater interest in outdoor gardening than they ever did before. They are not going to Europe in such large numbers every year, and many of them are using the time to beautify their own grounds.

Look up some of the magazines devoted to outdoor life and country pursuits and note the number of garden clubs that have been formed. See the number of demonstrating lessons that are being given actually in the gardens of the members. Result? I will venture to say that many of the stocks of hardy plants in the larger nurseries are lower at the present time than they have been for many years. If you do grow a few more hardy plants than you dispose of in the spring, plant them out; they will give you flowers that will be acceptable before the newly-planted carnations have begun to bloom and when the first crop of roses opens up too quickly on you. They will also give you a greater variety—and one sale leads to another.

In the autumn you will have noted the flowers that have been in demand. Increase your planting by division in October or early spring. To-night I am to speak only for fall flowers, but a good plant catalogue and your own good judgment will suggest plants that you can profitably use all through the summer months. During the past few weeks, I have noted the following hardy plants, in addition to those already mentioned, and most of them are suitable for cut flowers or decorations.

Aconitum Wilsoni is a strong, stately plant, growing five feet high, with large violet blue flowers and is the latest flowering aconite. The new Anemone hupehensis, a recent introduction of merit from China, grows one foot high and produces flowers of a pleasing pale mauve rose one and one-half inches in diameter, from August until late autumn. The beautiful Artemisia lactiflora, four feet high, clothed with elegantly cut dark green foliage and terminated by panicles of hawthorn-scented creamy white spirea-like light and graceful flowers, is unlike any other plant in bloom at this time. The native boltonias, with single aster-like flowers, give a showy effect in the fall and produce literally thousands of flowers. The buddleia (or butterfly bush, as it is called) is deservedly popular with the florist. This shrub, from a young plant set out in May, will mature to full size the first season. It produces long, graceful stems which terminate in tapering panicles of beautiful lilac-colored flowers that are of miniature size and borne on a flower head which is frequently ten inches long. The second year it generally commences to flower in June and continues until nipped by severe frosts. I venture to predict that the buddleias will become one of the most popular plants ever introduced.

The shrubby Caryopteris mastacanthus (or blue spirea) is a handsome plant, about three feet high, carrying its rich lavender-colored flowers the whole length of its branches. Chelone Lyoni, with heads of purplish flowers and the white variety, glabra alba, are both useful. The free-flowering Shasta daisies, and the varieties Arcticum, Alaska and Vermorensis are among the freest flowering plants of September and October. The dense white spike of Cimicifuga simplex is appreciated, and when cut lasts in perfection a long time.

Coreopsis lanceolata, with its rich golden-yellow flowers, is invaluable for cutting and succeeds everywhere. The globular deep metallic blue heads of Echinops Ritro remain attractive a long time in a dry condition; and the finely-cut spiny foliage and beautiful amethystine blue heads of the sea holly are most ornamental. Eupatorium ageratoides, a strong, free-growing plant, with minute white flowers in dense heads, is splendid for cutting; and the pretty Eupatorium coelestinum, with light blue flowers, similar to ageratum, is in flower from August until frost. The common native purpureum maculatum (or Joe Pye weed) is useful in low ground. The gorgeous colored Gaillardia grandiflora succeeds in any soil, in a sunny position, and is in flower all the time from June on. The ornamental grasses can be used with telling effect in autumn borders. Erianthus Ravenne grows 10 to 12 feet high, and throws up numerous plumes, resembling pampas grass, and does not need the same winter protection. Eulalias, planted singly where the soil is rich and deep, take care of themselves, and grow rapidly into large specimens. All the grasses do best in a heavy soil, enriched with manure and an abundant supply of water. Among the small growing kinds, Festuca glauca has no equal and the giant reed, Arundo donax, will grow 12 to 20 feet high.

Similar in general habit to the helianthus, but commencing to flower earlier, is the heliopsis. It rarely exceeds three feet in height and is very valuable for cutting. Pitcheriana, scabra zinniaflora and the new variety, Excelsa, are some of the best sorts. The golden yellow Hypericum Moserianum is a most desirable border plant of graceful habit, with stems drooping apparently from the weight of the flowers and buds. The new variety, Hypericum patulum, var. Henri promises to be a very desirable addition to our yellow-flowered shrubs. Lobelia cardinalis and Syphilitica hybrida (a selection of our native lobelia) if planted in a moist, deep loam, are effective in September.

Lythrum alatum, a compact plant, with crimson purple flowers, has just finished blooming. Montbretias are among the brightest of the late summer flowering bulbs, and deserve to be planted extensively and protected in winter. Platycodons (blue and white) with cupped, star-shaped flowers, are closely allied to the campanulas, and when they are established each plant will have 10 or 12 stalks of lovely flowers and remain in bloom a month.

Pyrethrum uliginosum, the giant daisy, has flowers of glistening white on stems four to five feet high, and is most useful for cutting. The Golden Glow are about gone, but Rudbeckia purpurea, Morganrote, and the new variety, tubiflora, with their peculiar reddish purple flowers with remarkably large cone-shaped centers of brown, are still in their autumn glory. The Rocky Mountain Salvia azurea, with sky-blue flowers, and the much-admired variety Pitcheri, which has larger flowers of a rich gentian-blue color, also the new Salvia uniginosa, a stronger grower than the blue color, also the new Salvia uliginosa, a stronger grower than the previous ones (growing five to six feet high and producing freely flowers of a cornflower blue, with a white throat) are all splendid acquisitions in the autumn border. The carmine-colored flowers of Salvia Gregii (a native of the mountains of Texas) are particularly bright from August on.

Senecio pulcher forms a neat tuft of foliage, from which spring up—from July to October—stems carrying clusters of rosy purple flowers. To those of you who have grown the large round-leaved senecios of heavy stem and have, after a trial, consigned them to the bog, or the border of a lake, I would recommend this variety. Silphium perfoliatum, with its large single yellow flowers, is a good subject for the shrub border. Solidago (or golden rod) has finished blooming. I also hope the ragweed and hay fever have gone. The graceful pretty-flowered thalictrums, with finely-cut foliage, are great favorites, and the new variety diptercarpum, growing about four feet high and carrying flowers of lilac-mauve, brightened by the yellow stamens and anthers in September, is a novelty that merits its increasing popularity. There are few flowers that are more suitable than the tritomas (call them red hot poker, flame flowers, torch lilies or what you will). The ever-blooming Tritoma Pfitzeri, in bloom from August to October, produces a grand effect in rich orange-scarlet, planted either singly or in masses. Probably most of you will think the best effect is produced in the retailer's store, when milady exclaims "What wonderfully gorgeous flame flowers!" and immediately places an order.

If the characteristics of a popular garden plant are hardiness, dwarfness of habit, freedom of flowering, usefulness as a cut flower, and a range of coloring embracing every shade except blue and intense scarlet, then the early flowering chrysanthemum may lay claim to the distinction of being an almost perfect plant, because it possesses these qualities in a remarkable degree. It is an open question as to when the real early flowering chrysanthemum made its appearance, but there is no doubt that it was in the form pompon section, and that from this class, by judicious hybridizing and selection, the present high standard has been obtained.

Early flowering in chrysanthemums may be taken to relate to those varieties which come into bloom outdoors in a natural way by the middle of October at the latest. In 1846 a pompon variety was introduced from China, and this became the basis upon which the French raisers carried on their great work. About 1860, the late Shirley Hibbard mentions some 20 varieties mostly French grown. Afterwards came Little Bob from Cannell of Swanley, Lyon and Mme. Jolivart from France and St. Crouts from Guernsey, a white with pink tinge, which I remember seeing as a boy in full bloom early in August. The first of the large flowered or Japanese varieties is said to have been raised in Lyons about 1875-6, Mme. C. Desgranges was sent to England as a gratis plant by Lemoine in 1876. It was an excellent variety in its way, and large quantities were grown in five-inch pots for Covent Garden market 15 to 20 years ago. Sports of this variety were Gustave Wermig, Mrs. Burrell and Mrs. Hawkins, varieties also of equal importance.

This marked quite a new era in the cultivation of the early flowering chrysanthemum, and gave a great stimulus to the raising of new varieties, and such enthusiastic cultivators as Nonin, Cannell, Davis, Godfrey, Goacher, Holmes, Wells and Totty will be ever associated with this flower. While the pompons held the field for many years, it was certainly the introduction of the large-flowered varieties that popularized the outdoor early flowering chrysanthemum. Mme. C. Desgranges and its sports have been referred to, but the introduction of Mme. Marie Masse about 1891 brought about quite a revolution in the growing of this plant. A new era has dawned upon it, because we had in this an introduction of wonderful constitution, a perfect habit, and most profuse in its blooming qualities, and today it is one of the most popular varieties in general cultivation; and with its sports, Ralph Curtis, Horace Martin, and Crimson Masse, covers quite a range of coloring.

The cultivation of the early flowering chrysanthemum is of the simplest kind, and I think that the best results are obtained on moderately rich land. This quality, in addition to the fact that it succeeds in a smoky atmosphere, makes it available alike for the garden of the suburbanite and the millionaire. A mistaken impression has been given with regard to outdoor chrysanthemums, which is, that all one has to do, is to simply plant them in a bed and they will continue to improve from year to year without any further care. That they are entirely hardy and will come up in the spring in most sections is perfectly true, but the best way to produce the greatest quantity of flowers, is to take cuttings from the young plants every spring, and as soon as they are rooted, plant them out in good soil in rows about two feet apart. These can be pinched back several times to make them bushy, and then in the fall they will produce large quantities of long stemmed beautiful flowers, much superior to old stalks that have been growing for several years, and which are consequently to a greater or less extent exhausted.

PLANT NOTES.

Peonies.

The peony is one of the most important flowers to the florist during the early part of summer, and they are used in large quantities for decorations and other floral work. In cutting peonies for market, especially those that are to be shipped, it is best to cut them when the first petals unfold, and allow them to open in water. They ship much better in this condition and also last much longer. Where they are allowed to remain on the plant until open the flowers not only bruise more or less in transportation, but the petals drop more easily when the flowers are unpacked if they are open when cut and made ready for shipment. In cutting the flowers from the plant, many growers make the mistake of cutting too low. The demand of the customers is of course for long stems, but for the good of the plant there should be left two well-formed leaves upon the stem when the flower is cut off. This will allow enough foliage for the plant to continue its growth and thoroughly ripen off. Where the plant is cut back too severely the root action is injured and a diminished number of flowers will be the result in the succeeding year. Keep the plants tied up by stakes and strings outside of the row; a heavy rain when the plants are heavy with buds will often knock them down and ruin many of the flowers.

Dahlias.

Although the dahlia is of very robust growth and comparatively easy of culture, yet it is one of the most tender plants and will not stand any cold treatment, for the slightest frost will check the growth and almost invariably kill the plant back. It is, then, too early yet to plant the clumps except where all danger of late frosts has passed, but the eyes may start into growth during the warm days of May, so they should be kept in safe and warm quarters. Where the grower has a good, tight frame that is frost-proof the clumps can be taken from storage and placed in the frame and the tubers will grow plump and the eyes break ready for planting as soon as the weather grows warm enough. The place selected for growing them the coming season should, however, be prepared, the ground spaded deeply and, if not manured last fall, some well-rotted manure spaded in. Many growers do not advise heavy manuring when the clumps are planted, and especially no fresh manure, much preferring to get a fair supply in the ground the previous fall, so that the rankness will be dissipated in the soil, for too strong manure causes a rank growth and the plants do not bloom as early. With enough manure incorporated in the soil to produce a good hard growth, and not too soft, and then mulch with manure when the buds begin to set, is the manner of some of the most successful growers. The young stock that was propagated from clumps started in March should now be good, stocky little plants, and the last of the propagating should be done early in May to have good stock for June planting. Keep the young plants under safe cover and plunge the pots in soil to keep them moist and not require too frequent or too heavy watering.

Callas.

As the summer weather approaches the callas will cease producing flowers and will require a rest to prepare them for another year. They should be dried off gradually until they become "dust dry," when the roots will be thoroughly ripened. If watered, the calla will grow all the year around, but plants grown in this way will not produce as many flowers as those that are rested. Those grown in pots can be laid on their sides in the greenhouse until all danger from freezing weather is passed, when they can be removed outdoors, still placing the pots on the side in full sunlight. Those grown on the bench can be lifted with as much soil as possible and placed under the bench, where they will dry out gradually, and later planted in the full sun outside in a dry location, and as soon as thoroughly ripened shaken out and stored until wanted to start for another season. The yellow calla, Richardia Eliottiana, is being grown more largely and the blooms have been used the last winter in many elaborate decorations. The culture of these is in pots and similar to the older varieties.

Ficus Elastica.

While the rubber plants do not enjoy the popularity that they did 10 or more years ago, yet there is always more or less demand for good small plants every fall, and cuttings rooted now and given good culture can be grown to fine stock at that time. Every plantsman will have plants of Ficus elastica that have outgrown the salable size or have lost many of the lower leaves, and the tops of these can be propagated during the warm weather. The best way to root the young plants is on the plant by mousing the cut. Make an incision in the stem about half way through, in which insert a small stick about the size of a match stick to keep the cut open. Bind around the cut wet moss, which should be firmly tied on with raffia and kept wet constantly. The plant should then be placed in a warm, moist house, kept fairly close, and in two or four weeks the roots will be seen protruding from the moss. The top should then be cut off and potted in a 4-inch or 5-inch pot and grown in a warm, close house until the roots have become established in the soil. If a number of these plants are being grown, a mild hotbed can be made up outside, built up with boards so as to allow 18 inches of room between the soil and glass, and covered with a shaded sash. Plunge the pots in the soil, and if the frame is kept close, allowing air only on the warmest days, the plants will grow rapidly. As fall approaches more air can be admitted and the plants gradually hardened off, and splendid stock will be the result.

Marguerites for Winter.

To have good marguerites for winter flowers, the plants must have a good start in the spring. For large plants the stock should now be in 2½ or 3-inch pots and growing vigorously, but if the cuttings have not been made they can now be propagated in a cool bench and good-sized plants grown, or stock should be secured at once. Do not allow these plants to become pot-bound, but shift them into 4-inch pots as soon as they require it and pot very firmly. Keep the plants pinched back, that they may branch more freely, and keep all flowers and buds picked off. For many years these plants were grown in the open ground, but in some localities they have been attacked with a club root in field culture, and inside culture has become necessary for success. A cold frame in which the pots are plunged is the culture successfully practiced by many growers. In late summer they should be potted in large pots, 8-inch or 9-inch, or planted in the bench in good, rich soil, so that they will be well established for fall and winter flowering. The plants grown in pots are more prolific in flowering, and the size of the flowers can be maintained with liquid manure. Aphis should be kept down by fumigation, while the leaf miner is a very destructive insect if once firmly established, but persistent spraying with a strong nicotine solution will eradicate this pest.

Pierson's Prize Window.

The illustration shown herewith is of a window decorated by F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y., the pottery accessories used therein being the product of the Fulper Pottery Co., the arrangement receiving first prize awarded by that company in a competition in which there were many excellent entries in various parts of the country. The larger pieces in the picture were used in the splendid display of roses from the F. R. Pierson establishment at the recent New York exhibition, as were also the two garden vases, a beautiful shade of cucumber green, which were much admired in the F. R. Pierson rose garden, which was awarded first honors at the New York show.

Publicity Pointers for Florists.

One of the greatest factors for success in any line of endeavor is publicity. An ancient receipt for making hare soup began with, "First catch the hare." So that is a good axiom for this year of 1916 to have even a measure of success, one must have the goods, and in the line he carries, the best the market affords.

The production of plants and cut flowers in the United States has grown to such an extent and is rapidly assuming an importance that 25 years ago would not, even in the wildest imagination, have been thought possible. At various times in the past decade, conservative men of the trade, whose standing and opinions carried weight and were always respected, alarmed at the rapid strides as seen in the erection of great ranges of glass in different parts of the country, areas that kept increasing in frequency and size, tried to call a halt. The great danger of overproduction and its results on the markets at times forcing prices to ruinous sacrifices, was to them, ominous. They believed it was best to wait a year or two and let demand catch up with supply. As to any increase in their places, it was not to be thought of. Good advice, possibly, but the expansion hug always buzzing around, soon found a lodging in their bonnets, and as a result the largest and most up-to-date additions were added by these very conservatives and doubled the production of their plants. Keeping pace with this rapidly increasing supply, were new agencies for its disposal. It was soon found that growing cut flowers for the market was a distinct and different vocation from handling them to the best advantage when placed on sale. The records show that since the introduction of the commission merchant and his progressive methods in finding new markets for the stock, that he has been one of the most important factors in the expansion of the industry. Their business has grown by leaps and bounds, some firms having established well equipped branch houses in other quite distant cities, which, working in conjunction with their home office, are thus much better able to serve their many clients. The volume of sales with some of these large houses is said to be over a million dollars a year. Very large producers have found it advantageous to have similar organizations of skilled salesmen, men whose energies are alone given to finding markets for and getting the best price possible for the stock.

"Now then come the fellows

Who behind the counters stand,

And pour such heaps of dollars

Into the growers' hands."

The retail men, through whom all this great production must pass—what about them; have they kept the pace, hard at times, but always forward? The various other agencies of the business, who have had to depend on their patronage have at times of great stress found much fault with their methods; they were the ultimate salesmen; it was their work to handle the surplus. They should go at it in the many ways open to them; carrying larger stocks with lower prices; week-end sales; get the flowers before the people at the reduced prices in every possible way; the street men did it and there was no reason why men trained in the business, of much superior ability, should not be able to compete with them and get at least the major part of this business.

Very few men succeed in the carrying on of any line of endeavor; not one in 20 has the business instinct that is necessary to insure success. There is no exception to this rule in the flower business; it requires almost no capital to start operations as a wholesale or retail merchant. One of the largest commission florists in this country started selling flowers carrying his entire stock around in a basket. Quite a number of the most successful retailers had their first experience as street men. Where they succeeded however, hundreds have failed. There are thousands of small stores, and a great many others of long business experience, who just manage to make both ends meet. Many, from time to time, drop out on account of inability to acquire even money enough to keep their heads above water. Lack of experience, indolence, poor location and bad business methods are mainly contributory to above results.

The great majority of the retail stores of the large cities and those who grow and sell their own products at retail and who are a great factor in the final distribution, could have their business largely increased by the adoption of up-to-date methods. The question is how best to wake them up; how to open their eyes to the great possibilities that are theirs by just a little additional effort. This we think is where modern publicity methods should be introduced. The various large interests in other lines spend millions of dollars in publicity; their window cards and handsome showy lithographic figures, which together with their goods, are arranged to the best advantage in store windows all over the country by trained decorators, or are sent with minute instructions to be arranged by the local men, are away ahead of anything possible by the ordinary storekeeper in the display of the goods to be sold.

Some such methods as these, made to conform to the needs of the plant and cut flower business, would be of great assistance in awakening an interest and putting new life in many of the stores and avenues of the retail trade that sadly need them.

Take the holidays for instance. How many of the smaller dealers, yes and the larger ones too, will be found to have circularized their customers, featured the event with window cards or special decoration, calling the attention of the buying public to the occasion's observance. "Mothers' day" has the possibilities of being our greatest flower day. In some communities the trade have awakened to its importance and possibilities, but in the great majority of stores, while they are glad to get what business comes to them, no effort whatever is made to popularize it or announce its coming, by means of window cards or display of any kind. It is the same with Halloween, Washington's birthday, Valentine's day and for Paddy's day, all of which should be featured in appropriate and showy window displays, which could not but have a direct effect in the much larger use of flowers at these seasons. In times of great production, if suitable window displays were made impressing the public, with the good quality and quantity that could be had for so little money, much of the surplus would be handled and many new faces seen in the flower stores. There are a number of instances where retailers were induced to try week end and reduced price sales, where the quantity sold was extremely satisfactory; a new outlet was secured for the wholesale dealer and greatly increased business resulted for the retailer.

With a well planned national campaign of this kind, augmented with literature showing the best selling methods, suitable window cards or stickers for the glass, the price at which stock could be had in quantity, and the best way to display it, would induce many to take it up and give it a trial. Plants could be handled by much the same plan at certain seasons. With the way pointed out and some literature or show cards sent along, a trial might be obtained, which would, in some cases, prove successful and new avenues of trade opened for this branch of the business.

To be effective, such a publicity campaign should be national. Standard window cards and illustrations, long band price stickers for the windows, and literature on care of cut flowers and house plants should be gotten out in the best style in quantity. Such a movement as this is quite possible by the tax or contribution of a small amount on the business of the grower and commission or other producer or handler of plants and flowers, those particularly interested in the founding of a larger market. A half, or possibly a quarter per cent on the hundred dollars worth of business would provide a sufficient fund. Matter relating to interesting facts about plants and flowers, if properly prepared, would get access to newspapers through the various syndicates and published broadcast at no expense other than its preparation. Such literature could not help but be very advantageous to business.

Here is an opportunity for the live men of the trade to get together and boost the business. Who will take the initiative? K.

Pot Making Up-to-Date.

Florists handle thousands of pots, some of them hundreds of thousands a year, but few know how they are made. The Peters & Reed Pottery Co., of South Zanesville, O., has an ideal plant, employing over 80 people. They make a specialty of florists' red pots. A walk through their extensive warehouses shows the magnitude of their business; there, hundreds of thousands in various sizes stand stacked on a floor with a slight incline, which keeps them in position; they keep much better this way than laid down. The clay is obtained from a hill in the rear, where they have an inexhaustible supply, which is brought down in cars by gravity and dumped into pits. This is mixed with water and run over wire mesh bolting cloth, size 60 and larger, which removes all stones and other impurities. It is then in a creamy, liquid state, forced into a series of presses which extract all the water, leaving the clay firm. Mixing machines then, by the addition of water, give the necessary flexibility for handling through the moulds. It is then run through a press from which it emerges in rolls three inches in diameter. These are cut in the lengths necessary to make a four, five, six or larger sized pot. These short sections, or lumps of clay, are piled alongside the presses, and just before being placed in the mould, are dipped in oil. At each movement of the plunger, which is continuous and speeded to suit the operator, a pot is made and placed on a board which holds a dozen or more. These are dried for a time and then all mould edges made perfectly smooth. In burning they are stacked in a kiln and subjected to a heat of 2,100 degrees. This comes through an inside wall to the top of the kiln, is drawn down to the bottom, and passes out from there through a center stack. Both natural gas and coal are used as fuel. It requires from 36 to 50 hours to properly bake the ware, some pieces with glaze requiring more than others.

In addition to the plain red pots, there is also a large line of ornamental, glazed and figured ware with embossed surfaces, of various graceful designs. Also, the popular shallow rose bowls, perforated flower holders, and other fancy vases, pottery, etc., that are now an indispensable feature of the retail shops.

While many pieces of ware are made in plaster moulds with the aid of a jigger, or shoe, which, as the mould turns on a revolving wheel, forces the clay into the pattern and removes the surplus from the center, there are many other designs, such as vases, formed in sectional plaster moulds, into which the liquid clay is poured. The dry plaster absorbs the water from the clay next the mould; when the proper thickness has hardened, the balance is poured out, leaving a lining attached, which, as the mould absorbs the water, gets hard and firm. The mould is then opened and the vase or other form, with a little finishing, is ready for burning.

The various processes of coloring, mat and glossy glazing, are very interesting and some of them quite intricate, requiring several firings. To get the antique effect an even color is given, and then much of it rubbed off, which gives the two-toned shading. Some glaze is put on with an air brush, as is a portion of the color, but most of it is done by hand. What appears to be and gives an inlaid mosaic effect, is done by glaze applied carefully to portions of the surface by hand. This, when fired, changes color and has the appearance of two entirely different clays, that appear inlaid together. All pieces of fancy or glazed ware for firing have to be placed in a sagger. This is of cylindrical form in two sections, into which the pieces to be fired are placed; they must not touch one another or the sagger. All are placed on small pointed triangles of burnt clay. When the bottom portion of the sagger is filled, the top section is placed in and united with a band of clay so as to keep out the gases of the fuel. They are then piled one on the other until the kiln is full. When firing is completed the kiln must cool gradually, as if not "tempered" in this way, the ware would crack.

The establishment is fitted with the latest machinery for all phases of the work. All iron moulds and dies are turned in their own machine shop. Each season new designs in form and coloring are gotten out to meet the ever increasing demand for novelty, quite a number of which in recent years have become standard in the trade.

San Francisco.

SUPPLY HEAVY, BUT LIGHT DEMAND.

Business has been on the quiet since Easter. There has been no let up in the supply and stock is moving rather slowly. There has been a grand cut of Russell roses arriving daily. Most of the stock is, of the very best quality. There is ample supply of Hadley and Ophelia. American Beauties have not been in oversupply, but there is quite enough for the present demand. The cut of indoor roses now has a competitor in outdoor stock, which of late has arrived freely. Cecile Brunner is in large supply, principally outdoor stock, and is selling very low. Fine Ulrich Brunners and Frau Carl Gruschki can also be had, all fine, strong outdoor stock. Very few Baby Doll or Tipperary are coming in. There has been somewhat of a curtailment in the carnation supply owing to a large number of growers being off crop. At that, prices are low for good stock. Violets have about disappeared from the market after a long season. A large cut of sweet peas is coming in daily. The quality of the stock has been poor until recently, but is improving rapidly, owing to warmer weather. Large quantities of outdoor grown lilac are to be had. This red favorite has lost none of its popularity and sells readily. There is a large supply of ranunculus and anemones, also. Peonies have been very fine this season at good figures. There seems to be enough orchids to supply the rather limited demand. The same is true of gardenias. Plenty of Darwin tulips are available, but it is doubtful if the growers are finding the crop profitable this season. There is a large supply of pot plants of every description. Snapdragons are coming in and meeting with ready sale. They are bringing $3 per 100. Plenty of lilies of all grades are to be had and at very reasonable prices. The supply of greens has increased rapidly during the past few weeks, so that there is no longer a shortage in this stock.

NOTES.

The first bulletin of the Dahlia Society of California has appeared and does much credit to N. Vanderbilt, its editor. The society has planned to give two fall shows this year, with a few weeks' interval to allow for the different dahlia seasons about the bay region. The first will be virtually a San Francisco "back-yard gardeners'" show and the second will include all sections. A. J. Rossi and Leslie Doolittle have been selected as show managers. The first show will be held in the Palace hotel, September 3-5, and the second will be held at the Hotel St. Francis, September 27-29. The society now has a membership of 144. It has established a dahlia testing garden at San Rafael and has affiliated with the American Dahlia Society.

A large number of the progressive florists have started a co-operative advertising campaign in the daily papers. They have divided the city into districts and give the name and address together with the telephone number of the leading florists in each district. They have called the districts as follows: Mission, Downtown, Western Addition, Polk Street, Haight Street and Oakland. The "Directory of San Francisco's Reliable Florists," as it is called, has 19 members at present contributing to this method of publicity. There is no doubt but they will find this to be a very profitable as well as a convenient way to keep their name before the flower buying public.

At the regular meeting of the Menlo Park Horticultural Society it was decided to hold the spring show early in June. As the growing season is somewhat backward this year, it was thought that the sweet peas would be at their best at that time. As the American Sweet Pea Society will hold no show in this city this year, all exhibitors are looking forward to the Menlo Park show. It was voted at the meeting, upon motion of Percy Ellings, to donate all money received from the show, after paying expenses, to the Red Cross Society. The members have been commended for this patriotic offer and we all wish their efforts every success.

During a recent visit to the greenhouses of the Mac Rorie-McLaren Co., we found Andrew McDonald, superintendent of the greenhouses, very busy potting cyclamens. These were all grown in benches instead of pots and all the stock showed up splendidly under this method of growing. They had about 14,000 plants shifted into 4-inch pots. The trade in general is well aware of Andrew's ability as a plantsman, and we can look forward to seeing some splendid stock from this establishment next fall.

The wild flower show held at the Fairmont hotel during the past week, proved to be a great success. A bewildering array of the state's most beautiful wild flowers was on display. The bureau of forestry also made a very fine and instructive showing. The show proved to be a financial success and was largely attended by the trade in general.

Emile Serveau is sending some very fine outdoor snapdragons to his Fillmore street store from his country place at Redwood City. They are unusually fine for this time of the year. Mr. Serveau is also growing some fine Spencer sweet peas and expects to be among the winners at the Menlo show, which will be held in his home town.

The Lynch Nursery Company, of Menlo Park, is supplying the bulk of the snapdragon supply just now. Their cut of Nelrose is about over, but their Keystone stock is excellent. They intend to plant this variety much more extensively next season as it has certainly made good with them.

J. A. Axell, of the E. W. McLellan Co., reports having a large shipping trade the past week. Large quantities of stock were expressed to distant points. He is gratified at the large volume of Easter business done by his firm.

M. H. Ebel was a visitor from Sacramento during the week, with the news that he has just passed through his most successful Easter. He had plenty of stock and the demand proved unusually heavy.

Henry Avensino, of Avensino Bros., has been using snapdragons to great advantage last week in his store. He says funeral work has been an important item with them for the past week.

Emerson Knight, from the landscape department of Mark Daniels, is engaged on a very elaborate piece of work at Easton. It will probably take several years to complete the work.

Luther Burbank, of Santa Rosa, accompanied by his wife, was an interested visitor at the wild flower show and spent several days here calling upon friends in the trade.

Washington, D. C.

BUSINESS CONTINUES VERY SATISFACTORY.

Business continues good and there is no complaint from the retail shops. The supply has been ample and prices satisfactory. Carnations are offered as low as $1.25 per 100 and roses are quoted at from $2 to $10 per 100. Gladicut America is coming in from the south and finds ready sale.

NOTES.

With the British and French commission here there have been some very elaborate entertainments which have called for many handsome decorations and the florists have all had their share of this work.

A new retail firm, known as The American Florist Co., has opened for business with Miss Julia Ballinger as manager. Business is reported as good, if not better, than was expected.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. is receiving the first chrysanthemums in the city. Those that arrived May 5 were quickly disposed of.

Geo. C. Shaffer has an especially good wedding window that attracted much attention by its artistic arrangement.

Frank Bros. are supplying this market with extra fine irises and baby gladioli.

Some very fine window displays have been noticeable during the past week.

O. A. C. Oehmler is enjoying a short visit with his mother in Pittsburgh.

The florists' club has subscribed $100 to the American Red Cross.

G. C. D.

Kansas City, Mo.

CUT FLOWER SUPPLY VERY LIMITED.

The dark and rainy season of the past two weeks has caused a great shortage of cut stock, and with what arrives from outside points, the supply does not go very far in filling the demand. Roses are not plentiful and have advanced in price. Carnations are slowing up and miscellaneous stock is playing a big part in making up designs.

NOTES.

For a recent funeral Arthur Newell made a wreath 10 feet in height and five feet in diameter. Lilies, white carnations and lavender sweet peas, in cascade, were the flowers used with the base of campanulas, lilies and greens. It was the largest design of this kind turned out in the city for some time.

The Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. reports business holding its own, with orders for funeral work the leading factor. Cuts at the greenhouse are just about sufficient for their own trade.

T. J. Noll & Co. report satisfactory trade considering market conditions. Roses are scarce, carnations are slowing up, with the supply of sweet peas, lilies and lily of the valley about normal.

The Amateur Gardeners' Association will give its second annual spring show at the Hotel Muehlebach, May 26. Three awards will be offered in each of the 38 classes.

H. Kusik & Co. report a limited supply of stock at prices somewhat advanced, but expect a big supply for Mothers' day. Orders for wire work are coming in fast.

W. J. Barnes has started several of his large planting orders in locations somewhat protected from the cold.

The Late James Hassett.

James Hassett, of Davenport, Ia., well and favorably known as the proprietor of the Davenport Nursery, passed away at Mercy hospital in that city May 3, following an operation for gall stones. He leaves a widow and five children, who together with a host of friends mourn his loss.

The Tri-City Florists' Club attended the funeral in a body, and at a special meeting a committee appointed for the purpose presented the following resolutions:

Resolved, Whereas, our fellow-member, James Hassett, has passed from our midst, and in his death we have lost not only a good valued member and the public a man whose place it will be hard to fill, a loss that will be felt by all who knew him, to whom he gave readily of his advice, made valuable by long experience, be it therefore,

Resolved, That the members of the club, James Hassett, has passed from our midst, in his death we have lost not only a good and valued member and the public a man whose place it will be hard to fill, a loss that will be felt by all who knew him, to whom he gave readily of his advice, made valuable by long experience, be it therefore

Resolved, That the members of the Tri-City Florists' Club express their deep regret at his early demise, a loss that will not only be felt by this organization but by all who had the beautifying of the city of Davenport at heart, and be it further

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Tri-City Florists' Club, a copy sent to the family of the deceased, and to the trade papers.

A FACTORY price on tin foil in quantity at Chicago of about 14 cents is made. Jobbers will likely add two cents profit.

THE Massachusetts senate has ordered passed to the third reading a bill to allow the incorporation, without stock, of horticultural associations.

Licenses for Florists.

The authorities of Newport, R. I., have passed a measure requiring out-of-town florists doing business in that city during the summer months to pay a license of $50 or $75, according to the length of their stay.

Pittsburgh Flower Show Abandoned.

Due to circumstances at present affecting the country, the plans to hold a flower show in Pittsburgh, Pa., June 13-16, under the auspices of the Gardener Club of Allegheny County, have been abandoned.

PITTSBURGH FL'R. SHOW COMMITTEE, Per Arthur Herrington.

Chicago Club's Publicity Success.

Through the activities of its posterette committee the Chicago Florists' Club has been enabled to insert a full page Methers' Day advertisement in the Literary Digest of May 5. This announcement was delivered to almost 700,000 families representative of the best homes throughout the nation. Everyone in the trade should be benefited by this advertisement.

This campaign of advertising was a mighty task. First of all, we made a very late start because we felt that the National Publicity Committee of the Society of American Florists should carry on this work, and as this body met in executive meeting at New York March 20, our club did not wish to steal the national society's thunder by promoting a national campaign. A further delay was incurred by the absence of the writer who was in direct charge of this work on account of making an eastern trip just at that time. Another obstacle was encountered in a commercial Mothers' day advertising venture, and this combined with a lack of real interest increased the difficulties of the work.

The obstacles mentioned should and will be easily overcome in the future and if we all get together co-operative national advertising will become a regular fixture just as much as any other item of our business. It is the opinion of our committee that a movement of this kind should be controlled by the leader of our trade organizations, the Society of American Florists, or the Florists' Telegraph Delivery. Either of these bodies could devise ways and means for carrying on active campaigns periodically, and if the plan used by us is adopted, co-operative advertising could be made self-sustaining, likewise it would cover local advertising effectively, which would connect up with the national campaign. Our committee has learned considerable in handling this work, and we will be more than pleased to give others the benefit of our experience.

On behalf of the Chicago Florists' Club we wish to thank each and every one who so kindly contributed towards this movement, as we sincerely appreciate the willing co-operation extended.

F. LAUTENSCHLAGER,
Chairman Publicity Committee.

Daffodils Misnamed.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

I have noticed this spring, and in previous years, that daffodils when displayed in the florists' windows in Chicago, are in almost every instance, labeled jonquils. This is wrong and misleading to the general public, and from the seedsman's point of view must be a source of many complaints and unnecessary correspondence, for this reason: People who buy what they understand to be jonquils in the florists' stores (which are really varieties of large Trumpet daffodils, such as Golden Spur, Emperor, etc.), wishing to have these flowers in their own garden the following year, go to the seedsmen in the fall and purchase jonquils, and are disappointed in the spring, although not entirely dissatisfied, to find that they have received the true jonquils, which are entirely distinct from the large Trumpet daffodils.

I have read in a recent issue of the Countryside Magazine, a splendid article on some of the popular varieties of daffodils by that eminent horticulturist, Herace McFarland, and, although his article is very interesting, (he does not claim to be an authority on daffodils) he attempts to explain the difference between a jonquil and a daffodil, but does not make himself thoroughly clear.

The writer's understanding of a true jonquil is that the length of the trumpet is half as long as the length of the perianth segment. The flowers, two or three to a stem, have a distinct perfume of their own, but the real distinction lies in the foliage, which is rushleaved; that is, the cross section of the leaf will appear hollow and mere or less circular (I quote from "The Book of the Daffodil," by the Rev. E. S. Bourne, one of the greatest authorities on this subject). The large trumpet narcissi are usually considered true daffodils. Their foliage is broad and flat with a distinct mid-rib.

Would it not be a benefit to everybody if florists would try to label these flowers in a manner that would not be confusing? I suggest the following terms to be the most appropriate: Call all the large Trumpet varieties, daffodils; designate the incomparabilis, such as Sir Watkin, Stella and Barri Conspicuus, as chalice flowers, chalice-flowered narcissi, or simply narcissi; and call all poeticus types, Pheasant Eye; the Von Siens, Sulphur and Orange Phoenix, etc., simply, double daffodils. I think these terms would soon be easily understood, both by seedsmen, florists and the general public.

Perhaps some of your readers would be glad to give their opinion on the subject, and it may be a matter worthy of consideration at future florists' meetings.

E. A. HARTLAND.

Removal Notice.

Smith & Hemenway Co., Inc., well known manufacturers of "Red Devil" tools, announce the removal of their executive offices to 130-132 Coit street, Irvington, N. J., thus combining the office and factory forces. For the New York and export trade a sales office will be maintained at Room 1012, 261 Broadway, New York.

Ladies' Society of American Florists.

Miss Perle B. Fulmer, president of the Ladies' Society of American Florists, has appointed Mrs. Frank H. Traendly chairman of the New York city and also the state ladies' committees. President Fulmer's other appointments will be announced later. Members are asked to please make it a point to read the trade papers from now on.

MRS. CHARLES H. MAYNARD, Sec'y.

Gardening "Blue Laws."

Mayor Curley of Boston, Mass., is making a strong effort to have the old blue law repealed which makes it a misdemeanor for persons to work in their gardens on Sunday and will retain an attorney for any person arrested by the police on such charge. Governor McCall, it is said, is in favor of legislation to permit certain forms of gardening on Sundays as a necessity due to war conditions and high prices. Necessary labor is exempted in the provisions of the old "blue laws."

SHORT SUPPLY BRINGS REACTION.

The market experienced a decided reaction during the past week, falling from a glut to a scarcity of all kinds of stock. The best carnations, which could be bought for $7.50 per thousand, sold for $30 per thousand the last of the week. Roses also have fallen off in supply and naturally prices went up. The weather conditions have been miserable, hardly a day passing without almost a continuous rainfall. However, if we have a week of warm, bright weather now there will be plenty of stock for Mothers' day. Lilac dropped out of the market almost as suddenly as it arrived in quantity; in fact, all outdoor stock is done for. Sweet peas have been poor and are sadly in need of sunshine. Callas and HARRISII have shortened up considerably, although there is still enough for the demand. In greens, the market is well supplied. Fancy ferns are coming in better and string smilax is also greatly improved over the supply that has been arriving.

NOTES.

The local members of the St. Louis Retail Florists' Association seem to be of the opinion that four to five cents for carnations for Mothers' day should be the highest figure. They seem to think if carnations, or in fact any other flowers, are high-priced it will harm business rather than help it along, and they are seeking the co-operation of the local wholesalers.

The Missouri Botanical Garden has its new outdoor aquarium about ready now and it greatly improves the general effect coming in from the main entrance, and when Mr. Pring gets his water lilies in bloom, will be a gorgeous sight. The Garden also intends to get busy on a new entrance and driveway on the Shaw avenue side.

Vincent Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly, tells us that they are not able to take care of all the orders they have for tomato, cabbage plants, etc., on account of not being able to get the plants. To date, they have disposed of thousands of these plants. They sell them at one cent each.

The monthly meeting of the St. Louis Florist Club will be held at the Eleven-Mile House, St. Louis county, May 10. A large attendance is expected to hear the debate between F. J. Fillmore and Will Osseck. They refuse to divulge the subject.

Bedding stock seems to be moving somewhat slow this year, this evidently being due to the fact that so many people have turned their flower gardens into vegetable gardens.

Chas. Beyer, John Held and Bourdet Floral Co. have some very fine hydrangeas, which sell well in the retail stores.

CLUB MEETING.

One of the visitors at the May meeting of the florists' club was W. C. Cahill, traveling salesman for Roman J. Irwin, New York. Mr. Cahill had just returned from Canada and said that the Dominion was much like home. The display of the American flag in Montreal, especially along Catherine street and in the suburbs, was remarkable. Americans find a cordial welcome, he said, when they visit or go through in their automobiles. Business is "as usual," but growers and retailers complain of a great scarcity of help. Women have lately been used in some places with a degree of success. For the first time they have been employed within a month in some establishments to pot plants. One of these places in Montreal had two girls who in one day potted 8,000 2½-inch ferns—a creditable record. The pay of the privates who are with the Canadian forces in France is about $40 a month, and the wives of the men left behind receive assistance from a number of special organizations in the cities and provinces of the Dominion. The result is a considerable amount of money in circulation among the lower classes, with attendant benefit to the florists. People who in other days looked into the florists' windows to admire the display now enter and buy with more or less liberality. Many more plants and boxes of flowers are sold to members of soldiers' families than before the outbreak of the war. The club voted to contribute $10 to the Miss Jarvis fund for Mothers' day, and the treasurer was directed to make a remittance to John Young, secretary of the S. A. F.

NOTES.

Superintendent Philip Bender of the bureau of parks is planting 3,000 young shade trees in the city nursery on New Scotland avenue. When the trees shall have reached the age of four to five years, they will be set out in the parks and along the boulevards and new residential streets.

The cold and backward spring shows in the lack of bulbous flowers in the gardens here. A few yards show some hyacinths and daffodils, but tulips have not yet shown themselves beyond the first leaves.

Oklahoma City.

Another week of very cool weather tends to keep all outdoor work in check, but the cut flower trade continues right up to the mark, with supplies plentiful and in good condition. Retailers are featuring Mothers' day through various advertising methods and a big demand for flowers is looked for on that occasion.

Los Angeles.

SUPPLY PLENTIFUL AND VARIED.

The market at present is well stocked and the supply includes a great variety for the season. In the bulbous section Spanish iris easily leads in abundance. Carnations and roses are both in their glory and the same is true of sweet peas.

NOTES.

The Redondo Floral Co. is handling large quantities of Spanish iris. This firm finds it profitable to make a run on this grand flower. A. F. Borden is spending his spare time in raising vegetables at his Hollywood place. Mr.

Knopf reports that in spite of a heavy supply of Cecile Brunner there is a good demand.

The force at Wright's Flower Shop and many friends in and out of the trade are congratulating Messrs. Garland and Goldman on the arrival of two future junior florists at this busy establishment. Both young men and their mothers are doing well.

O. C. Saake has been showing some excellent Hoosier Beauty, Shawyer and September Morn roses in addition to a remarkable display of snapdragons. Funeral orders have been numerous here.

Howard & Smith have closed a successful flower show at which a grand display of spring blooms was in evidence. Some superb Rose Les Angeles were shown.

The Broadway Florists are as busy as ever. Plenty of stock and numerous customers make business lively here.

Wolfskill Bros. & Morris Goldenson are busy early and late on funeral designs.

G. H. H.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN.—The Joy Floral Co., of Nashville, has opened a branch store here at 721 Market street, with Herbert H. Harrison in charge.

HEAVY DEMAND FOR MOTHERS' DAY.

The demand for stock for Mothers' day is exceptionally heavy this year, especially for carnations, particularly white. Practically all the wholesale houses are refusing orders for carnations at this writing, and from the start only accepted those calling for assorted and including one-third white. The retail florists in many instances bought all the carnations they could lay their hands on as early as last week, with the intention of holding as many as they could for Mothers' day; consequently what stock was offered then cleaned up early at good prices, with fancy stock bringing as high as $3 and $4 per 100 Friday and Saturday, May 4-5. Roses are in good demand at high prices and, like carnations, are expected to clean up completely at an early hour. American Beauty roses are none too plentiful and what little stock is offered finds ready buyers at top market prices. Peonies are quite a factor in the market now and clean up quickly at very satisfactory figures. Lily of the valley and orchids continue to be in somewhat short supply and at times gardenias are none too plentiful. Sweet peas find ready buyers at high prices and have been in short supply all week. Lilies and callas are selling better and there is no great surplus when the stores close at night. Tulips are nowhere near as plentiful as they have been and the same holds true for spring stock in general. Iris is in brisk demand and there is now a good call for snapdragons, daisies, pansies, stocks, mignonette, forget-me-nots, gladioli, lupines, anemones, calendulas, lilac and other miscellaneous seasonable flowers. Greens of all kinds are in good demand, particularly smilax, which continues to bring top market prices. The weather has been more favorable for growing purposes the last few days than the week before, but there are plenty of orders to take care of all the stock that can be cut and an early clean-up in all lines may be expected, as was predicted in the last three issues of THE AMERICAN FLORIST. Some of the houses report they have already booked several large orders for Memorial day, and it is pleasing to note that the buyers in many instances are now placing their orders for the holidays well in advance so as to guard against any possible shortage that may occur. Business was very good the past week and stock of all kinds cleaned up well at satisfactory prices, but some of the dealers found it impossible to fill all their orders in full in certain lines.

NOTES.

A. Vanderpoel, 4013 Colorado avenue, had an order for the George Tatge funeral, 4453 Carroll avenue, last week, calling for a submarine, which was considered the most appropriate floral emblem to send to one who had served in the United States navy for 14 years. The boat was 36 inches long and was made of carnations and roses with green galax representing the water and a row of white sweet peas the waves, with a sprinkling of same here and there to represent the breakers. The piece attracted much favorable attention and was a credit to Mr. Vanderpoel.

Bassett & Washburn are having their share of the Mothers' day trade, but like all the other wholesalers, are having a great deal of trouble in filling their orders to the entire satisfaction of all their customers.

Fred Dietsch says that business has been good with the A. Dietsch Company this spring, and that they are now busy turning out the orders that have been booked. Among the contracts that the Dietsch Co. received this spring was a repeat order from the L. A. Budlong Co., consisting of four houses, 22x600 feet, an exact duplicate of the plant built last season.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is busy planting out 200,000 carnation plants in the field this week at Morton Grove, and at this writing the work is pretty well under way. The demand for grafted and own root rose plants is exceptionally heavy right now and more orders are arriving in large numbers every day.

William Johnson, of A. L. Vaughan & Co., has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his sister Pearl, whose death occurred last week on her twenty-first birthday. His friends in the wholesale and retail trade were well represented at the funeral by many beautiful floral offerings.

Percy Jones, Inc., is well pleased with its Mothers' day trade, which, from present indications, promises to be the best ever.

August Poehlmann, who has been on the sick list for a couple of weeks, is recuperating at the Lake View hospital.

There have been more visitors in the local wholesale market this week than there have been for some time and mostly all are here to buy stock for Mothers' day. Many orders have been received from far eastern points as well as all other sections of the country, but the heavy buying is not due so much to the expected heavy demand as it is to the great shortage of stock. One buyer says that he tried to place an order with every local wholesale house for a certain amount of stock, so as to partially guarantee his supply, knowing full well that he would be lucky if he received about one-fourth of what he ordered.

F. F. Benthey has been absent more or less at Kennicott Bros. Co.'s store this week, owing to the serious illness of Mrs. Benthey, who underwent an operation last Saturday, May 5. Later—Mrs. Benthey died Wednesday morning, May 9.

The Commercial Association has made horticulture a division of the organization and is seeking new members in this line.

Mt. Greenwood cemetery has advanced the price of pansies to 75 cents per dozen and geraniums to 20 cents each.

M. A. Leganger, of the A. L. Randall Co., is back from a business trip through the middle west.

Visitors: Ed. Gullett and C. G. Anderson, Lincoln; O. J. Eischen, of the Duluth Floral Co., Duluth, Minn.; Rolf Zeltitz, Lima, O.; Milton Alexander, representing Lion & Co., New York; Otto Ackerman, Columbus, O.; A. Holt, Kirkwood Flower Shop, Des Moines, Ia.; Dave Geddes, St. Louis, Mo.; V. Jensen, Lincoln; J. S. Wilson, Des Moines, Ia.

NEWPORT, R. I.—Ebenezer Forrest has opened a flower shop at 96 Broadway.

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y.—The Binghampton Florists' Association has been formed with the following officers: Wm. Baker, president; J. W. Beckwith, vice-president; A. M. Fancher, secretary-treasurer.

HARTFORD, CONN.—Theodore Wirth, superintendent of the Minneapolis, Minn., park system and formerly in charge of the parks here, was guest of honor at a dinner during his recent visit to this city.

MOTHERS' DAY SHORTAGE THREATENED.

Trade continues dull, the naturally slack period being given greater emphasis by the climbing cost of food products, the unusual interest in vegetable growing and the newspaper agitation for economy. This is being felt in the greatest degree on the public retail markets, which ordinarily absorb surplus of stock. A week ago carnations were such a glut that large quantities were lost. Weather conditions have now checked cuttings very materially, with the unfortunate result that there will be a great dearth of flowers for Mothers' day. One local grower who cut 15,000 blooms for this event last year expects 4,000 to be the limit on carnations. Prices, which have been down to 50 cents a dozen, are now 75 cents. From $2 to $2.50 will be the Mothers' day figure. As a substitute, roses are in quite free supply, and present prices of $1.50 a dozen and upward will prevail. Orders on western growers for white carnations are being turned down, with advice to make vigorous effort at substituting other flowers. Southern-grown peonies will sell for $1 to $1.50 a dozen. Pot plants are almost out of the market at present.

NOTES.

At the last meeting of the Columbus Florists' Association a committee was appointed to report on a new schedule of prices for hedging stock, made necessary by the increased cost of coal and labor. There was a good attendance, interest in the new organization keeping up in a gratifying manner. Herman Knoble, of Knoble Bros., Cleveland, will be invited to address the association at an early date, the meeting to be open to all members of the trade regardless of association membership.

The Fairview Greenhouse Company is to be the name of the new enterprise on the River road, promoted by Ormond Grice. The work of grading is now in progress. In addition to the four houses to be moved from the dismantled Wollman plant, new buildings are to be erected. Blooming plants are to be a large feature of the company's activities, furnishing a local source of supply much needed by florists here.

Prof. Albert C. Hottes, of Ohio State University, and president of the Columbus Florists' Association, is putting in part of his time traveling over the state on university extension work to increase production of food plants.

T. J. Ludwig, one of the fashionable florists, has made a new departure in putting in the Alfred J. Brown Seed Company's line of vegetable seeds, grown at Grand Rapids, Mich.

BUSINESS UNUSUALLY DULL.

Business during the first week of May was unusually quiet, and the cool, dark weather has caused a shortage in the supply of cut flowers, particularly carnations and roses. Funeral work has been the main demand for the past week, supplemented by a few moderately large weddings. Counter trade has been very slack. The effects of "Clean Up Week" are being felt by the local florists in the demand for flower and vegetable seeds and shrubs, and perennial plants for the garden. The advance orders for Mothers' day are already very heavy and the florists are looking forward to a record business.

NOTES.

Miss Hilda Lanternier's wedding to Roy J. Brown took place May 1, at St. Andrew's church. The church was elaborately decorated with pyramid boxwood, large palms, hydrangea and begonia plants, and American Beauties, Ophelia and Shawyer roses, while the house was decorated with roses and sprig flowers.

Ed. Wenninghoff was kept busy with the demand for flowers and wreaths for May day, as there was a general observance in the various churches of the city. He reports a good demand for funeral work. He is showing some attractive hydrangea plants and crimson Rambler roses.

The Doswell Floral Co. featured white double daisies in their window decoration last week. They report business quiet except for a few weddings and funeral work.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are having a large number of advance orders booked for Mothers' day trade. They are cutting some fine orchids of the mossie variety.

The Flick Floral Co. has an elaborate window decoration in which large marguerite plants are featured with the patriotic colors of our country.

The New Haven Floral Co. is shipping some handsome gladioli of the large variety to this city. H. K.

Cleveland, O.

GOOD MOTHERS' DAY BUSINESS EXPECTED.

The continued cold, wet and dark weather which we are experiencing has had its effect on the stock to a considerable extent. Every variety has shortened up, but the weather man has promised a few days of sunshine for this week, which will help the Mothers' day cut somewhat (if the sunshine materializes). The greenhouses are full of carnation plants in buds, and growers are praying for sunshine. Wholesalers are swamped with advance orders, and do not know just where they stand on some kinds of stock. Growers promise a good supply of carnations, snapdragons, roses, sweet peas, Darwin tulips and daffodils, besides Easter lilies, callas, swainsonas, pansies, stocks, calendulas, lily of the valley, and orchids. Asparagus and adiantum will be in good supply. Retailers have advertised freely for Mothers' day in local papers, besides window cards supplied through the advertising committee of the florists' club, and everything points to a big day if the growers can supply the stock.

AKRON, O.—The boiler house at the range of McFarlands, Florists, was destroyed by fire May 3, entailing a loss of about $2,000. The greenhouses were not damaged.

SHORT MOTHERS' DAY SUPPLY FEARED.

The market is on the short side as far as the supply of stock is concerned, and by the time the rush for Mothers' day comes in at the end of the week, the market will run shorter than ever. Times look more like those at Christmas than of a day in the month of May. The advance bookings for Mothers' day are the heaviest this city has ever known. Roses are in a short supply. Among others some excellent Killarney, Ward, Ophelia and Russell may be had. Carnations, too, are rather limited in numbers and besides are not any too good. Sweet peas continue plentiful. Easter lilies are plentiful and the same is true of snapdragons, Peonies, from the south, are in a fairly good supply. Quantities of outdoor lilac and lily of the valley may be had. Other offerings are callas, irises, stocks, gladioli and marguerites. New southern ferns have been added to the list of green goods.

NOTES.

The R. G. Kootz Floral Co. went into a receiver's hands on Saturday in an action to dissolve the partnership and wind up the business. Present statements of those in control indicate that creditors will be paid in full unless something unforeseen turns up.

Wm. Brueggemann, of P. J. Olinger's staff, is going to the Olinger greenhouses at New Castle, Ind., to help with the packing and shipping for Mothers' day from that point. Mr. Olinger has an excellent crop of Russell roses for this week.

C. E. Critchell has been getting in some excellent peonies from the south.

Visitors: Milton Alexander, New York; H. M. Gregory, Salina, O., and Earl Smith, Hinsdale, Mass. H.

Milwaukee.

BUSINESS VERY SATISFACTORY.

The tide has changed, and we are pleased to report that business for the past week was good. A good run of funeral work, plus good-sized wedding orders, kept the counters cleaned, and by the end of the week there was a noticeable shortage all around, thus boosting prices a notch or two. The dark, cold weather throughout the week decidedly curtailed the receipts of roses and carnations, and with bulbous stock nearly a thing of the past, and the quality and quantity of snapdragons on the wane, the good supply of sweet peas came in for their share of the game. The supply for Mothers' day will not be as large as anticipated the forepart of this week, that is, for the long distance shipping orders, and a few warm, bright days like Monday of this week will be a God-send for the craft at large.

NOTES.

The regular florists' club meeting, May 3, was exceptionally well attended, which no doubt made our president feel proud of his office. The best part of the evening was devoted to discussion on co-operative advertising for Mothers' day, the coal situation for the coming winter season, and the price of geraniums. Due to the active work of the press committee, who called on the local craft to help establish a fund for co-operative advertising, a neat sum was collected and promised, to be used at the discretion of the committee. The point, that if ever it was necessary for all to work hand in hand this coming fall, due to higher cost of operation, plus general conditions, in order to keep business going, was plainly laid before us. In regard to the coal question, no one could do better than to say, "get it in as early as possible." Some present thought that the prices of bedding stock ought to go up in keeping with the increased cost of production. Gust Holtz and son, Herbert, were elected to membership.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. were not cutting heavily on roses the past week, but expect a good quantity with favorable weather. Advance orders for carnations for Mothers' day are ahead of last year already.

Due to the inclement weather, the C. C. Pollworth Co. reports the sales for bedding stock slow, considering the time of the year. The cut flower business is very satisfactory.

Gust Rusch & Co. report business brisk for the past week, with orders for Mothers' day coming fast.

Visitors: Hugo Rudolph and wife, Manitowoc, Wis.

Los Angeles.

Howard & Smith held their spring cut flower show at their city store, April 26-28. In spite of the rainy weather the store was crowded with visitors viewing the cut flowers, among the most admired being their Los Angeles roses. They grow them to perfection and the display was grand. They also had all the teas and hardy roses, American Beauty, asters, tulips, snapdragons, Spanish iris, amaryllis, anemones, gladiolus, ornithogalum, ranunculus, watsonia, larkspur, sweet peas, indoor roses, lily of the valley, etc.

WHITE WOOD EASELS

Very desirable for mounting your floral designs. They add much in appearance to any design.

UNFAVORABLE WEATHER LOWERS QUALITY.
Dull, cloudy weather during almost the entire week has shortened crops considerably and lowered the quality of much of the stock. In spite of this handicap, however, there has been more than enough to supply the demand. American Beauties are off crop; they are being grown for the last week in May and first two weeks of June to catch the weddings. Spanish iris is very plentiful, but the market cannot be said to be going to the "bow-wows" while the price is $4 per hundred, with stock in demand. Carnations have been shy this week. Saturday, April 28, they sold on the street at 15 cents per dozen; May 5 they were scarce at $4 per hundred. It is hoped the dull, cold weather will retard the crop, which will, if the coming week warms up and the sun shines, bring a record crop for Mothers' day. There is not much feature to the market, except that callas, Easter lilies and sweet peas are very plentiful, the latter of fine quality. Cattleyas are offered freely, while lily of the valley is almost out of sight.

NOTES.

A beautiful Mothers' day display occupies one of the largest windows on the Chestnut street front of John Wanamaker's store. A large painting of a home scene, in which an aged woman is the principal feature, fills the rear of the window. This is illuminated with concealed lights. Two very large silk flags, with gold fringe, are beautifully draped at each end of the window. To the left is a round table with a ball of yarn and knitting needles. A pair of old-fashioned steel spectacles are lying on an open Bible. In the center of the floor is a rag carpet mat, on which is a rocking chair with a knitted shawl across the arm. A large card, three by four feet, contains the following: "Tribute to Mothers the 'World Over,' by Kate Douglas Wiggin: 'Most of all the beautiful things in life come by twos and threes, dozens and hundreds, sunsets and rainbows, brothers and sisters, aunts and cousins, but only one mother in all the wide world.'"

The full page Mothers' day ad of the Chicago Florists' Club in the Literary Digest made a fine showing. Let us hope that it will prove its worth. The other combined ads of the several florists, who are also sowing their seed broadcast, is also to be commended. It is the beginning of a great national publicity movement, in which the whole trade should and will join.

Leo Niessen, in speaking of sweet peas as a factor in the market, stated that for the Easter business, a time when sweet peas are at their best, their money value was less than 10 per cent of the total amount of business done. Spanish iris, sweet peas and carnations are leaders for the coming week.

Although Horticultural hall, the home of the florists' club for the past 25 years, has been sold, not a word was broached on the subject at the last meeting. It takes a good deal to move some people.

Eugene Bernheimer looks for a good Mothers' day business. Sweet peas, carnations and Prima Donna roses are his stock leaders.

Don't Wait

Now is the time to send us a shipment of flowers and acquaint yourself with the satisfactory treatment you receive when you ship to New York's Foremost Commission House in the flower trade.

Extensive experience, ample capital, modern facilities and, in fact, everything to commend us to you.

Special opportunity for a couple of Good Rose Growers who are looking for best returns. Our present demand is larger than our supply.

UNITED CUT FLOWER CO., Inc., 111 W. 28th St., New York City

The war was brought home to the florists of this city when it was thought that the spring show arranged for at the April meeting would have to be canceled so that all energies would be devoted to purposes of the war. Let us hope that the situation never comes to such a state as this.

Sweet peas galore, of the Reid brand, was the prominent feature with Edward Reid. "Come around next Friday and see the Mothers' day carnations," were his parting words. The best crop ever is expected.

"Fine and dandy" is the word of the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange. Carnations and choice roses are to be the leaders the coming week.

Berger Brothers report business fair, with good prospects for Mothers' day. Spanish iris, snapdragons and Easter lilies were features.

D. Edwards, of Atlantic City, N. J., was in the city one day last week and reports business at the resort as very satisfactory.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. are filled to the brim with business for Memorial day. Their tri-color baskets have had a great run.

New York.

SUPPLY SHORTENS, BUT DEMAND IS WEAK.

The situation in the wholesale cut flower district has not greatly changed since our last notes were written. A week of exceptionally cold, rainy and generally disagreeable weather, for the first week of May, has somewhat reduced the supply of stock, and is also keeping many of the best patrons of the retail florists in their city homes; therefore, we will not further criticize the weather. Business, as we see it, was a little better during the past week, not from any increase in the demand, but from a lighter supply. The call for American Beauties at this season is never heavy, and as there was a fair supply during the past week specials ranged from $20 to $35 per 100, with possibly a few sales at $40. The shorter varieties of tea roses have done a little better than during the previous week for the reasons above stated, but special stock moves slowly. The cold and dark weather has also reduced the supply of carnations, and on May 5 these were running at from $2.50 to $4 per 100, according to variety and quality. The near approach of Mothers' day has stiffened prices on whites. There is a good supply of lilies, and some special giganteums are bringing eight cents per flower, but four to six cents is what inferior qualities are selling for. There is a wide range in the quality of lily of the valley that reaches this market. Some of it sells at from $3 to $5 per 100, and is hardly worth that. There are occasional sales of special stock at from $6 to $8. A factor in lily of the valley that must be taken into account is outdoor stock from Maryland that wholesales at from $4 to $6 per 100. There is not much change in cattleyas, the best selling for 75 cents each, wholesale rates. Gardenias are not so plentiful and range from $1 to $4 per dozen, according to quality. In sweet peas, irises and various other minor stocks, there is an abundant supply and they move slowly. Violets, in the language of the prize ring, seem to have taken the count.

May 7.—The continued cool and dark weather is affecting the situation in cut flowers. As a matter of necessity, the rose growers must keep up heat, but the carnation growers are not compelled to. They take the view, that for the short time the plants will last, it is not worth while to burn coal to get a few more flowers. Under these conditions, there has been a great decline in the supply of carnations and a sharp advance in prices. Carnations are running from $3 to $5 per 100, and $6 for special Wards and whites.

NOTES.

Herman Weiss, who is a native of this city and a good American, and who has been in the wholesale business for the past 15 years, is now finely situated in his new store, 130 West 28th street, having removed from 106, same street. This store may be said to be in the heart of the wholesale district, being about midway between Sixth and Seventh avenues, and it will not be long until the Seventh avenue subway will be opened. He has made great improvements, installing a new and large ice box and other fixtures, and is carrying a good line of roses, orchids, carnations and other flowers. Among the others cornflowers are noteworthy, as he can supply them in quantity.

On May 5, Young & Nugent, the well known retailers of 42 West 28th street, arranged a very elaborate decoration in the grand ball room of the Hotel Astor. The occasion was a breakfast by the Mozart society. John B. Nugent, of the firm of Young & Nugent, is a singer and has gathered about him many people who are devoted to music. Without going into details, it is correct to state that he furnished 150 corsage bouquets and decorated 115 tables.

Lieut. Archibald M. Henshaw, of the Naval Reserve, is now kept very busy with his duties "somewhere in New York," and seldom gets to his store. He did drop in, in uniform, May 5 and made a good impression on a number of the young men in the wholesale district. During his absence, Paul Rigo is managing the store of the Henshaw Floral Co., with the stout Mr. Martin as bookkeeper and cashier.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Cut Flower Exchange was held in the assembly room of Moquin's restaurant, Sixth avenue and 28th street, May 5. Philip F. Kessler was elected a director to succeed A. S. Burns Sr., retired. Thomas Jackson—"Good Tom"—who has been manager of the market for 12 years, remains at his post. After the business was transacted, a good dinner was served.

Frank Neilsen, who has a store in the Hotel Seville, Fifth avenue and 29th street, has just filled the many window boxes of the hotel with marguerites, English ivies and vincas and the effect is fine. The marguerites were grown by Madsen & Christensen, the daisy specialists, of Wood Ridge, N. J.

Leo Klein, the enterprising retailer of 767 Lexington avenue, was in the parade of the Home Guards, May 5. The Home Guards is an organization that will take the place of the regular police force in an emergency, many of the policemen being soldiers.

STOCK IN LIMITED SUPPLY.

The dark, cool weather of the past week has made all flowers very short, therefore, prices have advanced considerably. Carnations are the most in demand and are bringing from $2.00 to $4.00 per 100, which seems to be a very good price for May. Roses are not quite so scarce and hold firm. American Beauties are not much in demand. Sweet peas are still plentiful and sell at fair prices. Snapdragons and irises are fine at present and sell at good figures. Novelty roses have no call at all. Lilies clean up well. Greens are more plentiful than at any time this year. Lily of the valley is coming good, but not enough to supply the demand. It looks as if stock will be scarce for Mothers' day and prices will hold very firm.

NOTES.

Notice has been sent to all the persons interested in the Pittsburgh flower show, that under the circumstances at present affecting the country, it is deemed inadvisable to continue preparations for the contemplated exhibition.

The cool backward spring weather has kept many florists from doing their early outdoor planting, but it is hoped the warm, bright days will soon be here, as all the florists are heavily booked for spring planting.

The father of R. S. Rainbow, Fair Oaks, Pa., died very suddenly April 29. Mr. Rainbow has the sympathy of the trade.

De Forest Ludwig and his bride have returned from their honeymoon and have gone to housekeeping on the north side.

G. P. Weaklen has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his youngest child, who died April 29th.

M. Kiel of East Liverpool, O., was in the city last week buying plants and florists' supplies. M.

Buffalo.

SHORTAGE IN SUPPLY NOTICEABLE.

Cold, disagreeable weather, not conducive to the supply of good stock, has been the order of the past week. Roses, however, have been plentiful and the quality is good, and while carnations have met all demands, a scarcity exists due to two reasons—cloudy weather and holding back for Mothers' day. All flowering plants of good quality find ready sale but there is a noticeable shortage. Jonquils, calendulas, daisies, snapdragons and sweet peas are of good quality but are not abundant. These are what the florists have to rely upon for cut stock. Easter lilies are coming good and fill many wants.

NOTES.

A systematic advertising campaign for Mothers' day conducted by the florists of the western part of the state, including this city and Rochester, will, it is hoped, largely increase the trade for this day and eventually make it as good as Easter or St. Valentine's day.

Local florists are endeavoring to increase the sale of flowers for commencements this year. They are to meet the principals and arrange for a systematic way of handling the flowers sent to graduates.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., President; F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., First Vice-President; L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fifth annual convention, Detroit, Mich., June 19, 1917.

ONION sets in the Chicago district are reported as making a fair showing in the fields.

"EVERY time you put up an American flag," says Dan Beard to the boy scouts, "plant beans at its base."

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, May 9, were as follows: Timothy, $5.50 to $7.50 per 100 pounds.

YANKTON, S. D.—The Gurney Seed & Nursery Co. has the contract for extensive planting of shrubbery in the parking on Douglas avenue.

VINE SEED GROWERS in the Rocky Ford, Colo., district, are demanding an advance of three cents per pound on all seeds not already so advanced.

SHENANDOAH, IA.—Henry Field, president of the Henry Field Seed Co., Inc., has moved to his summer home at Manti, three miles from this city.

LILY BULB exporters in Japan report that they will have to pay a large increase on their cases this year, the same as exporters in southern France and Holland.

CINCINNATI, O.—J. Chas. McCullough, who has just returned from the south, left May 8 for Washington to attend the conference of seedsmen with government officials on crop production.

ROSE HILL, N. Y.—The F. B. Mills Seed Co., Inc., has filed a petition in bankruptcy, listing liabilities of $100,000. An inventory is being made by Chas. A. Richardson, of Syracuse, receiver.

VISITED CHICAGO: Trimble McCullough, returning to Cincinnati O., from California, where he has disposed of his large ranch interests; H. Yoshida, representing R. Tanoi Co., Yokohama, Japan.

BALTIMORE, MD.—Chas. J. Bolgiano, of J. Bolgiano & Son, has been appointed a member of the Maryland Preparedness and Survey Commission, the object of which is to better the conditions of the farmers of the state and render aid in financing crops where necessary.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.—The McVay Seed & Floral Co. reports the seed trade shows good gain over 1916. The city officials and civic organizations are pushing the garden movement which has increased sales on small garden seed. There is a heavy demand for sorghum and cow peas.

STURGEON BAY, WIS.—The extensive pea canning factory of the Van Camp Co., located here, will not be operated this season, owing to the difficulty experienced in obtaining good seed for the 450 acres of land acquired for this purpose. Failing with peas, it was suggested the factory could be used for canning cabbage and beets, but the land suitable for these crops proved unobtainable sufficiently close to the factory.

THE recent phenomenal advance in prices of all farm products has so excited the farmers that many are refusing to take contract crops at any price, and furthermore the present agitation to force the government to establish a minimum price for beans is having certain influence. There is a strong effort being made to establish to the grower a $6 per bushel price on all beans. If this occurs it will create a serious situation.

It may interest the many friends of the Vilmorin family of Paris, France, to know that Jean de Vilmorin, the next oldest brother of Philippe de Vilmorin, has been appointed a captain in the cavalry regiment wherein he is serving at Salonica. His scarcely 19-year-old cousin Pierre de Vilmorin, the youngest son of Maurice L. de Vilmorin, has been awarded the war cross for his gallantry in a recent fight. The other members of that well known family belonging to the army are up to the present time enjoying good health.

Seedsmen Confer With Govern'm't Officials.

The Secretary of Agriculture issued the following letter May 4: "For the purpose of determining how the seed trade and the department of agriculture may co-operate in crop production the American Seed Trade Association has been requested to designate representatives to meet in conference with representatives of the department of agriculture at 10 a. m., May 10, 1917, in room 410, Bieber building, Washington, D. C. A similar letter has been sent to A. E. Reynolds, president of the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association."

On receipt of this request President Kirby B. White called a meeting of the members of the executive committee, officers and others specially interested, for Wednesday evening, May 9, at the new Willard hotel, Washington, D. C.

Frey's Freesia Suit.

Alois P. Frey, well known freesia specialist of Crown Point, Ind., according to the Los Angeles, Calif., Express of April 30, has commenced suit against Gebhard Precht, of Montebello, Calif., to restrain him from selling Rainbow freesias, alleging that through conspiracy between the defendant and others, 50,000 bulbs were obtained from land at Montebello used by Mr. Frey in growing stock of that strain. He also asks for a receiver to take care of the growing plants, and for such damages as the court may find just.

California Seed Crops.

Gilroy, April 28.—L. W. Wheeler, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., reports on seed crops as follows:

"Radish will be very short on account of frost and most of it is late, having been replanted. Carrot should make a fair crop but it is small and late. Beet is good but the acreage is small. Onion to date is good but we fear there is not sufficient moisture in the soil to pull it through and the rainy season is over. Lettuce promises half a crop, acreage large. Endive will be very late and crop not over 60 per cent. Salsify is late, small and looks like 75 per cent of a crop or less, acreage small.

"It is really much of a guess at this time, but we can not see any very good prospects. On the other hand, with the exception of radish there is nothing really bad. Mustard is poor, also parsnip and parsley. These with radish will be the shortest items, we think. Every day brings wires, cables and letters asking for prices and orders for seed, which we are unable to quote or book and we think other growers are in the same position. The situation seems to be that there will not be near enough seed raised on the coast to supply the demand and prices will go much higher as buyers today are willing to pay 50 per cent advance and more over last winter's contracting prices and we look for radish, parsnip, parsley and mustard to advance 100 per cent before fall.

"Sweet peas are very good to date but aphid has appeared and no one can foresee the end."

Iowa Seed Dealers' Association.

The annual meeting of the Iowa Seed Dealers' Association will be held at Des Moines, June 12-13. A splendid programme is in preparation and every effort is being made to make this the most successful gathering in the history of the association. The first day's sessions will be given over entirely to business, followed by splendid entertainment, to which the ladies are invited in the evening, the second day to be spent at Ames college.

Market Gardeners

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

H. W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., President;
H. F. Thompson, Arlington, Mass., Vice-
President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids, Mich., Treasurer.

Next annual convention will be held at Springfield, Mass., in 1917.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—Max Scheinux, florist, purchased land and will raise sweet potatoes.

BOSTON, MASS.—The gardens in Franklin park will be planted with potatoes under the direction of city officials.

GREENWICH, MASS.—George Pitfield, formerly connected with the Eastern Nurseries at Holliston, will enter the market gardening field here.

OTTAWA, ILL.—Ground will be broken in a few days for three houses, each 83x900 feet, for the Davis & Steiner Co., which, when completed, October 1, will give this company approximately seven acres under glass devoted to cucumbers.

ONION shipments from Texas during the week, April 24-30, were 910 cars, as compared with 505 cars during the corresponding week in 1916. Prices on April 30 were $1.40 to $1.50 per crate, 25 cents more than received by growers on the same date last year.

Strawberry Shipments.

Total shipments of strawberries in the United States during the week, April 24-30, were 551 cars, 264 cars less than in the comparable period of 1916. Average prices May 1 were as follows: Louisiana, $4.30 to $4.35 per 24-quart case; North Carolina, 15 to 20 cents per quart on 32-quart cases; Arkansas, $3.50 to $4.50 per 24-quart crate.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, May 8.—Mushrooms, home grown, 75 cents to $1.00 per pound; lettuce, small cases, 15 to 17½ cents; radishes, 50 to 60 cents, dozen bunches; celery, $2.50, crate; tomatoes, six baskets, $2.00 to $3.50; cucumbers, per 2-dozen box, $1.00 to $1.85.

New York, May 7. — Celery, per crate, 50 cents to $1.50; cucumbers, 40 to 60 cents; mushrooms, 75 cents to $1.75 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, per lb., 20 to 35 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $1.25 to $2.25; lettuce, per strap, $1.50 to $3.50.

Florida Vegetable Prices.

Average jobbing prices reported from nearly all markets on Florida tomatoes May 1 were from $3 to $3.75 per carrier. The corresponding price in 1916 was from $2 to $2.25 per six-basket carrier.

During the week of April 24-30 there were 781 cars of new potatoes shipped from that state as compared with 518 during the corresponding period last year. Prices on new Florida potatoes in the larger markets May 1 were $9 to $9.50 per barrel, or from $1 to $1.50 per barrel less than quotations on April 23.

Cabbage shipments during the week, April 24-30, were 132 cars.

Vegetable Prices at New York.

In beans but very few domestic marrows arrived May 7, and what did sold for $16.50 and $17 per 100 pounds. The stock of this variety is about exhausted. Chilian marrows are fair at $12.50 and $13.75 per 100. Choice and medium pea and small white beans are firm at from $14.75 to $16; choice white kidney, $15 and $16; Imperials, $14.50 and $15; Imperials, Chilian, $13.25 and $13.75. Lady Washington, choice, $15.50 and $15.75.

In new crops, Florida beans, tomatoes, cucumbers and potatoes are arriving in considerable quantities; also Texas onions and a variety of other fresh vegetables from California and the south, but prices are generally firm. It is the old story, the wholesalers blame the retailers and vice versa, though what the wholesalers say seems plausible. Texas onions are plentiful and have been wholesaling at $4 per 100 pounds, whereas some of the retailers have been charging 12 to 15 cents per pound.

Twenty-four cars of Florida potatoes, new crop, arrived May 5, and are moving freely at from $4 per barrel for No. 4, to $8.50 and $9 for No. 1. Old potatoes range from $7.50 to $8.25 per 165-pound bag, but the old potatoes are necessarily deteriorating.

Greenhouse Melons.

At this time of the year we wish to caution any grower who is going to try melons under glass to omit the customary manure mulch. Growers have acquired the habit of mulching freely in the summer months, using coarse manure. While this is all right for some crops, it will not do for melons. To obtain the sweetest, best flavored fruit, we should avoid animal manures during the growing season for melons. The stimulants should be confined to acid phosphate or bone meal and potash. We used to derive our potash from sulphate potash, but as this is unobtainable now, we use wood ashes, unleached. Ashes carry much lime in pure form; hence, we add lime which is desirable. For pollinating melon, there is nothing better than bees. We have often been asked why hand pollinating is less effective than bees, and the answer should be that by hand effort we often miss the critical period of pollen or pistil maturity. The busy bee in his tireless effort will visit a given flower any number of times and also bring a mixture of pollen—that is pollen from various blossoms, so that in the end he succeeds where we fail. MARKETMAN.

Vegetable Shipments in Carlots.

Total car-lot shipments of vegetables for the season reported by railroads to the United States department of agriculture to May 1 were as follows: Asparagus, 329; early cabbage, 1,078; celery (California), 572; lettuce, 1,343; new onions, 2,639; new potatoes, 1,388; Florida tomatoes, 820.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

John Watson, Newark, N. Y., President; Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President; Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress Street, Boston, Mass., Secretary and Counsel. Forty-second annual convention will be held at Philadelphia, Pa., June 27-29, 1917.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—The park commissioners have asked for an appropriation of $40,000 for a new range of glass.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—M. M. De Leponyade has purchased ground near the Orleans canal for nursery purposes.

HOUSTON, TEX.—C. L. Brock, for the past four years superintendent of parks, has been appointed chief of police of this city.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—Charles Adams, treasurer of the J. W. Adams Nursery Co., has been appointed a member of the park commission.

HOTEL ADELPHIA will be headquarters for the coming convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, to be held at Philadelphia, Pa., June 27-29.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—Park Superintendent Theo. Wirth, who has been making an exhaustive investigation of road making in the east, returned home May 6.

BULLETIN 426, issued by the New York agricultural experiment station at Geneva, is a well illustrated pamphlet devoted to cork, drouth spot and related diseases of the apple.

Apple, Tailor's Sign.

The tailor's sign in a little inland town was an apple, simply an apple. The people were amazed at it. They came in crowds to the tailor, asking him what on earth the meaning of the sign was.

The tailor, with a complacent smile, replied:

"If it hadn't been for an apple, where would the clothing business be today?" —Everybody's Magazine.

Barry Estate Valued at $788,000.

According to a transfer-tax affidavit filed with the surrogate at Rochester, N. Y., the late William Crawford Barry left an estate valued at $788,777, the bulk of which is made up of personal property and which will be divided equally among the four children of the deceased, William C., Frederic C., Arthur A. and Harriet Rose Barry Sterns. In addition to his holdings in the Ellwanger & Barry Nursery Co., of Rochester, which amounted to $28,200, Mr. Barry was a stockholder in more than 100 companies.

Forest Notes.

Balsa wood, found in Central America, is said to be the lightest known wood. It is lighter than cork and has an average specific gravity of only .104.

A wood specimen found in glacial drift and estimated by the Wisconsin state geologist to be approximately half a million years old has been identified by the forest products laboratory of the forest service as spruce.

State forests with a total of over 3,600,000 acres have been established in 13 states. Of these New York has the largest forests, which comprise 1,826,000 acres; Pennsylvania is second with 1,008,000 acres, and Wisconsin third with 400,000 acres.

Baltimore, Md.

SUPPLY IS LIMITED.

The cut flower supply has shortened very materially during the past week. Peonies make their appearance in small numbers spasmodically and there are a few single violets to be had. The double variety are coming in and are the best seen for some time for so late in the season. The wholesalers find it hard to move Easter lilies, as the demand is rather weak. The call for bulbous stock has slackened and there are some jonquils, tulips and other spring flowers that cannot find a market. A few gladioli are in the market and have been selling at $2.50 per 100. The carnation supply slackened Saturday, May 5, and all good stock moved well. The lilac receipts on that date were plentiful. Roses are none too plentiful, and plenty of funeral work makes the good white ones in the short grades few and far between. Good plumosus is at a premium and smilax is a very scarce article. Sweet peas are very plentiful. The lily of the valley situation has changed considerably. Frame stock was offered at $1.50 per 100, May 5; earlier in that week it brought $4. Daisies can be had at $1 per 100. Snapdragons have tightened in supply.

NOTES.

The Baltimore Wholesale Florists' Supply Co. reports that the past week's business was the best since Easter. They are receiving daily shipments of fine Shasta daisies from John L. Wagner of Towson, Md. Harry Glick, of this establishment, was married January 11, but kept it a secret until a few days ago.

Sol Uhfelder, of the Belvedere hotel, reports excellent business. Sol is one of the "old-boys" in the business and is a thorough hustler.

All members of the florists' club are asked to bear in mind that Monday, May 14, is the date of the next meeting.

Chas. E. Smith & Co. are receiving some fine Ward, Beacon and Enchantress, pink and white, carnations.

Many of the local florists are using the Mothers' day posters to good advantage.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. is showing the first peonies from the south.

The Cut Rate Flower Shop has been busy during the past week with funeral work.

A. G. Fiedler & Co. report business this season better than ever before.

John Cook recently returned from a Florida trip.

The Sensational New Fern . . .

NORWOOD

Has Made an Extraordinary Success

In only three weeks all of the large stock of NORWOOD that will be ready this spring has been engaged. Here are the facts:

Norwood—A Distinct Novelty in Nephrolepis Ferns.—The most beautiful of the crested type. The fronds are heavily crested, but do not unite as in many varieties of this class; each is held separate and apart by the strong and wiry midrib, which even in a small pot gives the plant a symmetrical and finished appearance. This is not just a variation of this very prolific family, but distinctly different, a very decided novelty that immediately attracts attention. It was one of the features of the New York Show, where it was awarded a Silver Medal as a new and meritorious variety.

Having booked orders for 50,000 plants for June delivery, we are now accepting orders for August 15 delivery. Strong plants out of 2½-inch pots, $25.00 per 100, $200.00 per 1000. We will fill orders in rotation as received.

Canna YELLOW KING HUMBERT

(Emund's Queen Helen)

The Best Canna Novelty

This sport of King Humbert has the same habit of growth in the plants but with very dark green foliage and flower stalks excelling those of the King Humbert. The flowers are rich deep yellow, well spotted with red. Some plants occasionally give a scarlet or a scarlet-striped flower which is an effective and striking variation. In a bed or border the mass of trusses excel those of any other variety we know of.

We give below the opinion of a Canna expert on this novelty.

W. W. COLES says: "This variety at a distance of one-half mile loomed up above everything else, and it was at first difficult to believe that a Canna could make such a beautiful showing at that distance. When this variety becomes known, I feel sure it will fill a place among the Yellow Cannas fully as important as King Humbert has among the reds."

BUSINESS SUFFERS FROM OVER-SUPPLY.

Trade in general has shown little improvement during the past week and there has been quite a slump in the cut flower market, great quantities of stock of all kinds accumulating. Sweet peas are of excellent quality and the same may be said of snapdragons. Lily of the valley is very scarce. Roses are plentiful and the quality is very good.

NOTES.

H. E. Wilson's window for Mothers' day was very attractive. The center was a large picture of mother looking at a bunch of American Beauty roses, the gift of a son. Attractive baskets and plants were also featured. Attention was also called by a card to telegraph deliveries.

CALL FOR MEMORIAL DAY PREPAREDNESS.

Greater Observance Assures Big Demand.

This, the final floral holiday of the year, will soon be here. The day when all flower beds are expected to be planted, all lawn vases and porch boxes filled; the great clean-up day of the cemetery florist, the finish of his month's campaign, when every lot shall have been put in the best possible condition, every vase filled, and the decorative pieces for the graves in place before 10 a. m. on Memorial day.

In certain parts of the country, notably the New England states, with Boston as the central point, it is the busiest day of the year, not only for the cemetery florist, but the city retail stores, the supply houses and every other branch of the business being taxed to the limit to cope with the great demand. How this great custom has been worked up, and is so conspicuous a factor in this section, is worth the careful consideration of the trade. With such a business all over the country at this time, the increase in the sale of plants and flowers as well as supplies of all kinds would be enormous.

The people of this New England center are no more patriotic than those of other equally populous states. In some way, however, the custom has grown to make decoration general, until all lots and graves are included. It has become a day of visitation by the great majority of lot owners who consider it a duty to see that flowers are placed on the graves of their loved ones.

Henry Penn, who advertises so extensively in Boston and vicinity, has had a good deal to do with exploiting Memorial day. His specialty, the decorated magnolia wreath, using artificial flowers that enable him to prepare a large stock in advance, has had an immense sale. It became so popular that the department stores edged into the field, offering poorly made up stock at very low prices.

The sentiment of Memorial day is beautiful. The prime movers of the annual custom were the members of the G. A. R. As time has passed on, however, their ranks have grown thinner and thinner, until in some communities there are but few of these defenders of the Union left. There is a love of country and patriotic fervor in the descendants of these brave men and others citizens, who should see that their graves are kept green.

The florists' trade, aside from the sentiment, has a business interest and should use every means in its power to foster and encourage the use of flowers for Memorial day. A national publicity campaign, having for its object the arousing of a new sentiment for, and an increasing in the observance of the day, could awaken an interest that, if properly nurtured, would make this a much more important occasion. The memorial feature, the idea for which the day was founded, must be kept to the front. It is fast degenerating, if not already established as a pleasure holiday, a day for baseball, regattas and other public pastimes. Were the real functions of the day re-established to any perceptible degree, the trade would surely benefit. The greater the observance the larger the demand for flowers.

The retail florist can do much in his own way with the facilities at hand to encourage the use of flowers for Memorial day. Let him commence with window decorations at least two weeks before. Pictures of Grant, Lincoln, or of army officers of local prominence, nicely displayed with neatly draped flags, stacked guns, etc., will be sure to attract attention and arouse interest in the day. A few decorated magnolia, galax or laurel wreaths, with red, white and blue ribbon, or miniature flags, pompons of tri-colored immortelles, or some with natural flowers, should prove attractive. Cycas leaves tied with patriotic ribbons and flowers are also appropriate and showy. Window cards with appropriate inscriptions are a great addition. Just the date, May 30, is significant; "The Heroes' Day," "Keep their memories green," "Renew your patriotism by a visit to the graves of the defenders of the nation," etc.

A neat pamphlet calling attention to the beautiful sentiment in remembering the defenders of the nation showing how the custom of decorating all graves on Memorial day is becoming universal throughout the country, should be sent to all customers.

A state of mind that thinks "Memorial day trade" is not worth bothering with, "or does not amount to anything any more," needs waking up. There is something wrong with the grey matter. Let such a man give it another trial, a fair chance, give the subject his best thought and work up his enthusiasm. Nothing can be accomplished with only a half push; it must be a "now, boys, altogether," and then over she goes.

Now is the time of preparation. Magnolia wreaths, which figure so largely in the demand, should be made up, or if the made-up stock work of the supply houses is depended on, a supply should be ordered at once, so as to be on hand in good time.

The peony is the great flower for Memorial day. The south finds a great market in the cooler sections of the country for peonies at this time. The crop that hits May 30 is a success, but there is little or no demand worth while for the flowers that come later. The cold storage of this stock for the day has helped very materially, and flowers held for later use after their season has passed sometimes find a market.

All kinds of shrubbery is useful for this occasion. Much of the demand is for small sprays or clusters, the limit of many customers being one dollar. A few sprays of white shrubbery with a couple of colored peonies or two or three pink or red roses or some pink weigelas gotten together in a couple of minutes, fills the bill. A number of these bunches on hand are a great help when the rush comes.

Memorial day is an event of much importance to the trade, who profit largely as they plan.

Bedding Plants.

MEMORIAL DAY PREPARATIONS.

The month of May is a tremendously busy time for those whose business it is to prepare and plant out large quantities of the different kinds of so-called bedding plants before May 30. The demand for all kinds of plants for this occasion is very heavy, but notwithstanding the sentiment that prompts the planting of plants for this date set apart as Memorial day, there is not any other time when customers seem to be as particular about the quality of the plants they purchase. Taking as an example, geraniums; unless these plants are dwarf, sturdy plants, well in flower and bud, it is a hard job to induce very many customers to purchase them at any price. A salesman may talk his head off about what they will be later on, but it will not make very much of an impression on the customer. What he or she wants is good plants in bloom to make a show from the time they are planted out. Nearly every customer has an idea they know more about these plants than the man who has grown them, and it is well to let them think so. A good salesman can get in a few suggestions in an indirect way, but he will not get very far by being antagonistic to a customer's ideas. Many of the customers like to pick out the plants themselves, especially those who do their own planting. This works out very well when all the plants on the selling benches are for sale and not needed for any special purpose or for stock. When so needed, they should be set apart in another part of the establishment, not open to customers. The same system should be adopted for all items that are in short supply. When customers come in and find you are saving some plants they are bound to be the ones they want, so it is best to be prepared for all this by keeping such stock out of the selling houses.

CARE OF THE GERANIUMS.

Well grown plants of these are now well in bloom and bud, needing ample space between each plant for their best development, and to prevent them becoming drawn and straggly. To overcrowding may be laid a great deal of the trouble many growers have in not being able to get their geraniums well in bloom. When crowded close together, the soil does not have a chance to dry out properly and the roots are in a continuous wet condition, which promotes growth and stalk to the plant, but a lack of bloom.

Judgment in the watering of the plants is another important factor in being able to get the plants well in bloom. They should be allowed to dry out well between each watering and during cloudy, damp days water only when absolutely necessary and keep the atmosphere of the houses in a general dry condition. Give the plants plenty of air on every favorable occasion and maintain a night temperature of 50 degrees with a rise of a few degrees in the daytime on cloudy days. On bright days, unless a very cold wind is blowing, ventilate abundantly.

As soon as the selling begins in earnest it is quite a job to keep the plants on the benches in good order unless they are gone over each day and straightened up so that they can be properly watered and attended to. The stock that has been in the hotbeds for a week or two should by this time have become vigorous, growing plants, especially the alternantheras, and beside keeping these well watered and attending to the airing and temperature, it may be found necessary to clip them back a little to make the plants of uniform size and shape. Long, straggling plants of alternanthera are not very good to work with. For the purpose for which they are intended, they must be of uniform shape and size to make a job of carpet bedding look good from the start. The weeds in a hotbed grow more rapidly than the plants and must be kept down to give the plants a chance. Pull any weeds out as soon as large enough to handle before they interfere with the growth of the plants.

PETUNIAS—HELIOTROPES—FUCHSIAS.

Larger sizes of these plants than the ordinary bedding size (3-inch) are demanded and are good sellers, but it is necessary to stake and neatly tie them up; there is no need to go into any elaborate tying, just a neat stake and tie as a support to prevent them lopping over is all that is required, and after tying give the plants space enough to properly shape and establish themselves.

TOPPING.

Now is the time to go over plants that need a little topping, such as achyranthes, coleus or any other soft growing foliage plants, but it must not be done to the extreme, just enough to keep the plants in shape and guard against their running up spindly and becoming poor material for planting out. It has passed the time when it is safe to top any of the flowering plants and have them recover in time for sales this month.

There is a big call for Hydrangea Otaksa when well flowered and of good form; they are used chiefly to stand at the head of graves or in front of mausoleums for Memorial day. Friends of the family take this means of showing their respect and it is not unusual for the family to have forgotten to place their order in time to have their lot planted and at the last minute order a large plant in flower placed on the lot to make a showing until the lot can be planted.

PANSIES.

These are the popular flowers this early in the season. Large numbers of fall transplanted plants in full bloom are now being sold. The best way to handle pansy plants is to place a dozen plants in the regular pansy baskets sold for that purpose and get a good supply ready for each day's sales. They are a cheap plant and it does not pay to have a salesman run out to the frames with every customer who wants a dozen plants.

COLD FRAMES.

These can be utilized to take care of many of the plants now on the greenhouse benches and thus relieve the congested condition. Sweet alyssums, verbenas, Salvia Mme. Sallerol, ageratums and lobelias can now be set out in the cold frames.

Asters, antirrhinums, calendulas, gladioli, etc., for summer cut flowers can be planted outside now. It is a good plan to get all of this work taken care of before the rush becomes so great that they have to be neglected.

SUPPLIES.

Attend to placing your order for all the supplies needed, such as cheap trowels (for sale), market baskets, wire frames for wreaths, boquet holders, etc., in plenty of time, so as to have them on hand when the call comes.

PLANT NOTES.

Small Ferns.

The fern spores that were sown in late winter should now be in condition to transplant into flats. It will be difficult to separate the plants yet into individual specimens, but little clumps can be lifted with a toothpick and planted in flats about an inch apart. The flats or boxes should not be deep; about an inch and a half of soil is sufficient. The soil should be composed of two parts of live loam and one part leaf mold, with a generous sprinkling of sand, and sifted through a fine sieve. The flats should be placed in a moist house that is well shaded, and the walks kept well wet down all through the hot weather. If a nice, warm, moist temperature is maintained, the plants themselves will not require much watering, only light sprinklings, and they will very rapidly root into the new soil and send forth their fronds. If the grower has not grown his own ferns, it is a good time now to place an order for them with the fern specialists, for they can be purchased at very low prices and they are very easily grown on, and where there are many fern dishes to be filled in the fall the difference in cost of the young plants lifted from the flats in midsummer and those purchased out of small pots in the fall is considerable; plants that will cost $3 and $4 a hundred at that time can now be obtained for one-third of that amount, and a thousand or more of this small stock does not take up much space and will be disposed of before the bench room is needed in winter.

Cinerarias.

The sowing of cinerarias is better done in June than later. Many postpone this until July, but during the extremely hot days of that month is often difficult to obtain good germination, and the seed pans or boxes will have to be watched carefully or they will become dry and the young seedlings burn off. The soil should be well shaded until the young seedlings show themselves, when the shade should be made lighter. As soon as the plants have one or two well defined leaves they should be potted in small pots and given a nice, airy position near the glass, which should be shaded, but care should be taken that the young stock does not get drawn. Always bear in mind that the one thing in growing cinerarias to be on the watch for is the aphid. These insects quickly infest these plants and rapidly suck the life out of them. Constant fumigation will keep them in check, but if not attended to regularly it will be time and money thrown away to attempt their culture. Cineraria hybrida is the variety most grown, and these are obtainable in some elegant strains with large, high-colored flowers. The Cineraria stellata is a much larger and more rapid growing plant which is very showy, but is not so well adapted for house culture when in flower.

Winter Flowering Geraniums.

With all growers having a greenhouse and doing a retail business there is in the fall a good demand for pot geraniums for house culture. Plants lifted from the open ground and potted in the fall are not very satisfactory, for the plants recover from the later transplanting slowly and go out of bloom, and often do not flower again until spring. It is better to grow plants for this purpose in pots through the summer, and these, with good culture, will bloom all winter long if in a sunny position. Cuttings taken at this time will make nice stock for this purpose, or small plants left over after the spring sales can be used. The plants should be potted firmly, so that they will make a short, stocky growth, and kept well pinched back throughout the summer, that as many branches may be procured as is possible. All buds should be picked off as soon as formed, allowing no blooms until the plants are firmly established in blooming pots, in which they should be planted the last of August. A 6-inch pot makes the best size for house culture, and the plant can be easily grown so that it will fill this size nicely. A frame outside is the most convenient and best place for growing them through the summer.

MEMORIAL DAY WREATH.

Laurel, Cycas Leaves, Red, White and Blue Immortelles and Ribbon.

Primulas.

The young primulas that were sown early should now be in 3-inch pots and be given as cool and airy a location as possible. To get the best growth on these plants, they should never be subjected to great heat, for the species are naturally a cool growing plant on the edges of the woodland in their native state. Outside in a frame with a lath covering is the best place that they can be grown, the pots sunk in the soil even to the rim. In potting these plants, they should be placed in the soil deep enough for them to stand firmly; they will not stand deep potting, but many growers do not pot them deep enough, and they frequently get turned over sideways during the watering. They must be watered carefully, and preferably with a can with a fine rose. The later sowings will have to be carried on in the houses until they are large enough to be placed outside. They will have to be shaded, but do not shade them heavily enough to cause them to get drawn.

Peonies.

The work on these plants is not finished by any means when the blooms are cut, for they must be taken care of to insure a good crop for another year. Where the plants are grown in rows the constant traveling has packed the soil down hard, and the ground should be given a good cultivation in order to lighten it up. The weeds should be kept down all summer and not allowed to rob the soil of its richness. If the plants were severely cut in harvesting the bloom, so that there is not much foliage left on the plant, it is well to spread a mulch of strawy manure on the surface. This is often the case with the officinalis varieties, which do not make the heavy growth of the later varieties, and as it is natural for the roots of the peonies to have the shade of the heavy foliage of the plants during the summer the cutting of the stems and foliage of these varieties robs the roots of this, and a mulch that will protect the ground from the hot summer sun is very beneficial, and will also reduce the labor of weeding. Any old blooms left on the plant should be cut and thrown away. Plants that have become broken down by high winds or heavy rains should be tied up in shape.

Larkspur.

Larkspur, or "poison weed," is treated of in a recent bulletin of the department of agriculture, in which it is pointed out that many losses are suffered each year by western ranchmen by reason of the stock eating the weed. There are two groups of these larkspurs in the ranges—the tall and the low varieties. The low larkspurs prefer the hills and rather dry ground, while the tall kinds grow in the canyons and gulches. Among the tall species are Delphinium barbeye and D. cucullatum. The tall larkspur is easily distinguished after it blossoms, but in the early stages is often confused with the geranium and aconite. Of the low larkspurs, D. Nelsoni is a type. It grows in considerable abundance in Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico and Utah. The root is short and tuberous and the plant never exceeds a foot in height. The blossoms are a violet blue. They appear, arranged in a loose raceme, in May.

Ardisias.

One of the most popular berried plants for Christmas is the ardisia, but it is not grown as generally as it should be, the production being left to a few plant growers, for it is of very easy culture, the only drawback being that it is of very slow growth. The seeds of the old plants are now thoroughly ripened and should be sown at this time. They germinate slowly, and should be sown about an inch apart, in rows the same distance apart, and they can be left in the seedbox until early summer and potted in 2½ or 3-inch pots and grown in a warm, lightly shaded location. They should be potted in good fibrous loam and kept in a moist, close house, that all the growth possible may be obtained at this time, for the plant naturally checks in winter. In early spring these young plants will flower and produce a crop of berries for the next winter. The plants that have been grown for three years or more have generally passed the ornamental stage, for they lose their leaves and have a "leggy" appearance. When they reach this stage the tops can be rooted and fine plants obtained. This can best be done at this time of the year by cutting into the stem and wrapping the cut with wet moss firmly tied around. Keep the plants in a warm, close atmosphere and the moss continually damp, and in four or five weeks new roots will grow in the moss, when the top can be cut off and potted, still keeping the plant in the same temperature until new growths start. This operation will not in any way interfere with the plants blooming, for they frequently set an abundance of buds while the top is making new roots. The brown scale is the greatest enemy of ardisias, even in the young stage, and they must be removed at once when found, for they sap the strength of the plant. The older plants should be frequently sponged with strong nicotine solution.

Solanums.

These little Christmas plants should not be allowed to stand around in the hot greenhouses badly potbound and drying up every day, for they will grow hard, and it cannot be expected to obtain a good plant under these conditions. They will stand lots of abuse and do fairly well, and that is the reason, probably, that they are so often neglected during the busy days. But it is much better to plant them out in the field than to carry them along in this condition. They can be easily handled in this manner, lifting them early in the fall. They will need to be kept pinched back into shape—any strong leading shoots should be cut back when they are soft. They can be planted fairly close together, and will need frequent cultivation. If there is no suitable outside location where they can be planted out, they can be plunged in a frame and potted up as it becomes necessary, but outside treatment of some kind is far preferable to the greenhouse, which is too warm, unless shaded, and they make better growth and bloom more freely in the bright sunlight.

Memorial Day Spray.

Cycas, Flags, Immortelles and Tricolor Ribbon.

WITH THE GROWERS

Washington, D. C., Growers.

Gude Brothers Co., Inc., who reconstructed a large portion of their Anacostia range, have a splendid line of all kinds of florists' stock. American Beauty, Ophelia, Mock, Radiance, red and pink, Killarney, Ward, Richmond and Sweetheart roses in large lots, all in splendid condition, are seen here; also gardenias by the houseful, ranges of sweet peas, and while violets are now done, a crop of gladioli is coming on between the rows. Between the houses, which are built 12 feet apart, is a frame, or bed, in which during the summer months are grown chrysanthemums. A cheesecloth shading and one steam-pipe around the frame at the bottom, ward off the danger from early frosts. A Skinner system pipe over the center of the bed provides an easy method for watering. Taft roses are forced for summer and fall cutting and then lifted, cut back and two or three plants are placed together in an 8-inch pot. Brought on in a cool house, their condition at this time, covered with a wonderful crop of flowers and buds, clothed with heavy foliage, they are as handsome as any pot rose on the list. An interesting bench was one in which freesias had been forced for three years without lifting; the crop obtained from these during their season was phenomenal. The warm weather of the week before Easter had made it necessary to find a cool spot for some of the forward stock. On the Saturday before Palm Sunday a storage shed was erected. The lumber, pecky cypress boards, 16 feet in length, was ordered in the morning and in two and one-half hours after its arrival, a double-pitch shed 30x100 feet, 16 feet high at the ridge, had been completed and was immediately filled. It has been found most satisfactory. The story of Red Radiance, which by the way is their most profitable rose, is interesting. Wm. F. Gude noticed on the floor in the work room where the stock was being graded, a red bud that looked familiar and yet he could not place it. It was red, but not a Richmond. He finally concluded it was a sport of Radiance. There were just two cuttings on the short stem, which were placed in the bed. Only one grew, and from this their entire stock of this valuable variety has been propagated. The plant from which this bud was taken was never found. The coal question here is serious, as at the prices quoted for next season, their supply will cost them $15,000 more than for that of the past winter. It takes over 5,000 tons for their two ranges.

Memorial Day Spray.

Cycas, Ruscus and Waxed Pink Roses. These are Sold in Boston, Mass., by the Thousand.

Clark Bros., whose establishment adjoints that of Gude Brothers Co., make a specialty of Kaiserin and President Carnot roses; these are grown cool, the first large house coming in heavy crop for Easter and followed later by a house without heat ready about the third week in May and for Memorial day. The plants in both ranges showed extreme vigor.

One of the noted cut flower growers of this city is Theodore Dieterich, whose greenhouses are at Congress Heights, D. C. His specialties are chrysanthemums, followed by sweet peas for several houses, one of lupines, and several filled with calendulas. Wallflowers filled a good part of another house. Violets are also a specialty, being grown in wide, high houses with side ventilation. The violets from this place are noted for their great excellence. A large house of King construction has been up a long time; one of the first to go up in this neighborhood, Mr. Dieterich said it was most satisfactory and had paid for itself several times over. A wonderful crop of orchid sweet peas had been grown in this house this season. When asked where he was going to erect the new house this summer, Mr. Dieterich said he had not built for quite awhile and that he had all he could manage with comfort. He thought it foolish to grow more stock than could be done well. He firmly believes that all men in this business should be specialists; they should study the plants they grow, and do them better than the average. Then they were reasonably sure of a good market at top prices. Chrysanthemums, singles and pompons, are grown outside in frames; these are covered with sash on a frame work in the fall as cool nights came on, and were all cut out before the killing frosts arrived. Beds of larkspur, belladonna and cornflower are protected during the winter in frames, coming a week or two in advance by this method. A large field of peonies appeared to have wintered well. A very interesting feature was the beds of forsythia. Nowhere else has the writer seen it done so well. The first branches cut outside are put in early in January and brought along in the open greenhouse at a temperature 50°. This takes a month to flower out. As the season advances it opens much quicker. The treatment is to cut everything away close to the ground while the wood is dormant. Then, in the spring, a number of strong shoots are thrown up, which attain a growth before fall of from four to six feet. These become closely set with flower buds, which, when open, are long golden plumes, very much better than the twiggy, nursery branches that are usually seen. Theodore Dieterich is certainly a model grower.

J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, O.

In the early '80s, the founder of the business that bears his name, was a hustler for Uncle Sam, carrying letters to the people of Cleveland and doing it well. Having a love for flowers, he gradually worked into the business in a retail way, was encouraged, resigned his government position, and in 1885 built greenhouses at Rocky River, on the outskirts of the city, which establishment has grown, until with the completion of a new Lord & Burnham house, 60x400 feet, the glass area will be 346,000 square feet. There are in the main, two large ranges, connected with a commodious shed, one devoted to carnations, and the other to roses. Several of the houses are, however, devoted to a variety of cut flowers, as are needed in addition to the other stock for their wholesale and the large retail business of the city store. F. C. Bartels is superintendent, a grower of superior ability, as evidenced by the general excellence of the stock in all the houses. The whole establishment is ideal in arrangement. The carnation range consists of nine houses, each 27x300 feet, built ridge and furrow without divisions. The gutters are nine feet in height with 14 feet to the ridge. Were the gutters two feet higher, it is thought all shade would be eliminated. The carnation benches, five feet in width, stand 36 inches in height with bottoms of 4-inch drain tile laid crossways, close together, supported on 2x4-inch planks lengthways of the bed. Steam pipes run under each bench near the ground. A record board for each variety hangs at the central cross aisle and from this the writer copied the actual results as shown by the leading varieties of this range up to February 1, which is interesting:

| Var.        | No.  | Oct. | Nov. | Dec. | Jan. | Total | Ave. |
|-------------|------|------|------|------|------|-------|------|
| Winsor      | 2959 | 582  | 5489 | 7282 | 3226 | 16579 | 5    |
| Mrs. Ward   | 1780 | 277  | 1269 | 2420 | 3044 | 7010  | 5    |
| Pk. Delight | 3690 | 2675 | 5937 | 4720 | 5430 | 17862 | 4½   |
| Wh. Wonder  | 4900 | 3463 | 6549 | 7510 | 8700 | 26222 | 5½   |
| Alice       | 3550 | 993  | 2866 | 3432 | 5742 | 13033 | 4½   |

The stock is all in fine condition, and from now on should produce great quantities of flowers. There were several other varieties, among them Enchantress, which is marked to go, as it splits so in dark weather. A partial remedy for this and some other ills of the carnation, Mr. Bartels said, would be found in watering with water not lower than the temperature of the houses. When asked for the coming red, he pointed out a bench of Belle Washburn, which was going strong and producing fine flowers. He said he believed it had a great future. He also favored Thenanthos, which had greatly impressed him when he saw it growing last fall. A splendid batch of young carnation plants for next year was a feature. He favored the first shoot that came after the flower had been picked, for his cuttings. The strings to support the plants were criss-crossed, leaving diamond-shaped openings which he liked much better than the straight across the bed plan and were easier to run.

The rose range on the opposite side of the bed is of nine houses, 30x300 feet, built ridge and furrow plan without divisions. Killarney, Ophelia, Sawyer, Richmond and Ward are the varieties. A great crop had been taken at the holidays and the plants were getting away nicely again. Quite a quantity of flowers were showing. Ophelia looked particularly well, all the roses are planted in ground beds, raised one foot above the walks. Planks 2x12 inches are set on edge and held in place by short sections of 1-inch pipe driven into the ground. This was then filled and packed solidly, preferably with clay. Four-inch drain pipes were then laid across the bed, close together, the ends coming out to the walk. A 6-inch board formed the edge of the table and held the soil, which was placed directly on the tile. The steam pipes along the walk, just below the tile, kept warm air circulating through the pipes, which admits of plenty of water for the beds without injury to the plants.

The ends of the rose beds, next to the cross aisle, which contained the steam mains, were planted with asparagus as it was too warm here for the roses. Two large houses were planted with the California maiden hair fern, which has done wonderfully well here. Several houses of sweet peas, in various stages, were looking very well, particularly the one now in full flower. The vines are loaded with flowers and are at least 10 feet high. There were houses of Easter and formosum lilies; the latter, of this year's importation, had been benefited by a rest in cold storage, which had helped to ripen the bulbs and they came faster and more evenly than the stock planted on arrival. Callas, snapdragons, stocks, mignonette and baby and field gladioli were seen by the houseful. All stock is grown on tiled benches, which Mr. Bartels says is the only kind. Pink Japanese lilies are also largely grown. Lily of the valley and bulbous plants are forced in quantity. A house of cattleyas was a feature. Natural gas from two wells on the place supplies heat for the carnation range, but coal has to be used under the other boilers. This is an ideal establishment, producing something of interest for every month of the year.

Macaw Bros., Norwood, Pa.

As fern specialists, the Macaw Brothers shine—in fact, they fairly glisten. Their six-inch pot Scottii bring 75 cents; no such finished stock is seen anywhere else. Their larger sizes at twice the money and more, are relatively as fine. This is not said to boost the firm but to encourage others to do the same, but it requires care and attention. The endeavor here is to have every plant salable, for as Duncan Macaw says, it is the lad that cleans up, that makes the money.

Asparagus plumosus sprays for cutting are a feature here. A large house is completely filled; planted in the ground, plants in six-foot beds are set 10 inches apart. They are allowed to get a good growth before cutting and never so thinned out as to injure the plants. By careful cultivation, the bed is kept up to a growing condition at all times. To cut too severely checks the plants and they take a good while to recover, particularly in the dull winter months. This, it is said, is the trouble with many growers. The beds are renewed every two years. They are dried off the last of June and given a thorough cleaning. There is little sale from July to October. Care must be taken when a heavy crop is on, as in dull, damp weather it is apt to rot. Many fern plants are finished in this house, being suspended over the walks and some of the beds.

Gardenias are another specialty with which success has crowned this firm's efforts. Two crops a year of well-flowered plants in pots, at Easter and Christmas, have found a ready market as pot plants. Their young stock for next season is coming strong.

In speaking of additions, Mr. Macaw said it was a mistake to erect an additional house, unless business pushes one to it. Having more stock than the houses will hold, may mean there is something wrong with the sales department. In this case it would only make matters worse to grow more stock when it was not being sold. Having to throw out a lot of plants because there was no market for them is bad business. Grow stock for which there is a demand, see that it is well finished and hits the market at the right time; then, if you do not have enough, it is time to consider increasing your facilities.

Accounts and Credit of Retailers.

Paper by W. K. Harlt, read before the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, Pa.

It is a well-recognized and deplorable fact that the great majority of small retail merchants, because of the willful lack of accounting methods, have no accurate knowledge of their business. The fact that so many of them succeed in spite of their lack of proper accounting control is most surprising. An astonishingly large number have no record of the business transacted, other than that contained in what is virtually nothing more than a book of memoranda. The situation is doubtless the direct result of the great preponderance of cash sales. Recently one of a group of business men, engaged in conversation related an incident in which his wife ordered flowers over the telephone, with the request that the purchase be charged. Not receiving a statement at the beginning of the following month, she called at the shop of the florist to know why her bill had not been sent. The merchant, unable to give a prompt answer, after searching vainly among numerous unfiled papers, located a

British Gleanings.

Frank Ellis Bunting, son of Isaac Bunting, the well known lily bulb exporter, of Yokohama, Japan, was killed in action at the front in France, April 11.

James Stredwick, the well known dahlia specialist of St. Leonards-on-Sea, Eng., died during Eastertide.

memorandum book, and thumbing over pages, ultimately came across the name of the customer and the details of the purchase. Upon stating that the bill amounted to $3.50 and payment being tendered in cash, the florist took a pencil and with several hurriedly drawn lines eliminated all trace of the entry. The patron of the shop was not given a receipt, and the only evidence of the transaction was an erased pencil notation. This was the extent of the bookkeeping employed.

An adequate system of accounts is absolutely essential if a merchant is to survive the keen competition which is universal today. Unless the owner or proprietor of the business is supplied periodically with a summary of the exact status of his affairs, it is not possible for him to conduct his enterprise upon sound business principles. Such information can be had only through proper bookkeeping methods. Not only without these facts is the retailer unable to determine whether or not he is showing progress in these days of highly specialized undertakings, but it is not so easy to obtain necessary credit unless the seeker of such credit is in a position to exhibit a properly prepared financial statement or balance sheet. This is especially true where bank credit or accommodation is sought, and it is becoming more and more general in the trade.

Credit is based on the ability, willingness and intention of the obligor to pay. That is to say, the elements of credit are character, technically referred to as the moral hazard, and financial responsibility. The value of the moral hazard is in the main determined by the reputation he may have among his fellows for strictly fulfilling all of his contracts, both as to purchases and sales. Special attention is likewise given to character and habits. If the moral hazard be rated at 100 per cent, the next determining factor in granting credit is the ability to pay as determined by the balance sheet or financial exhibit. The readiness or willingness with which the stated values are accepted by the credit grantor is determined largely by the estimate of the moral hazard. The preparation of the balance sheet, however, must be made directly from the books of account. If proper records are maintained and a complete accounting of all transactions kept, it is a very simple and ordinary operation to set up or prepare a statement. It will be readily appreciated, therefore, that the merchant with a proper realization of the functions of accountancy in retail trade has a decided advantage over his competitor, and by reason of his ability to show in figures the exact status of his affairs, other things being equal, he is in a much better position to command credit.

A further and very advantageous employment of accounts is in the determination of costs. To this end the retail merchant can very well afford to install a simple and modest cost-keeping system. This can readily be done by the use of cards, upon which detailed accounts of the different lines of merchandise handled may be kept. To properly determine costs, it is vital that each commodity sold bears its proportionate share of overhead expense. Too often the retailer in pricing his goods figures the invoice value and adds thereto what in his judgment represents a desirable profit, but ignores in his computation the overhead or general expense, which is just as much an element of cost as the price paid for the material.

The number of failures among the retail trade is most appalling, and by far the greater majority is traceable directly to the lack of efficient bookkeeping methods. The sooner the small merchant awakens to a realization of this fact, just so soon will he be able to successfully compete with his fellow merchants in these days of extreme specialization and keen effort in business endeavor.

American Dahlia Society.

A meeting of the executive committee of this society was held at the Grand hotel, New York, May 10. President Richard Vincent, Jr., occupied the chair, and there were present Geo. L. Stillman, Geo. W. Kerr, Jas. Duthie, J. J. Lane and J. Harrison Dick, secretary.

The minutes of the March meeting were read and approved. Arising out of these, it was proposed that a rule, making it essential that all flowers exhibited in the competitive classes at the society's exhibition must be grown by the exhibitor, this rule not to apply to non-competitive displays, be inserted in the rules of the schedule governing the next show. The statement of accounts was passed.

The coming New York show was discussed. This will be held in conjunction with the American Institute at the Engineering building, September 25-27. It was resolved on motion of J. J. Lane, seconded by Geo. L. Stillman, and carried, that an appropriation be made for the use of the show committee for necessary expenses, show committee to comprise the president and secretary. It was agreed that seven silver and five bronze medals be struck for the needs of the society and its affiliated organizations.

The secretary was empowered to produce an eight-page bulletin for use in the middle of July. It was agreed

An invitation from Professor Hall to have the classification committee and interested members visit the dahlia trials at Geneva, N. Y., in September was favorably considered. Discussion was taken on the desirability of publishing Prof. Hall's list of 6,400 dahlia names with classification and descriptions. An estimate for the printing of this as a 48-page pamphlet and cover in seven-point type had been given, the figure being $350 for 1,000 copies. It was the expressed opinion that as the society's funds did not warrant this expenditure, and as such a list would require to be periodically revised, its publication was not justified by the society. Moreover, it had before it a proposition from Mr. Lane, representing the Doubleday Page Co., that there was a possibility of that company publishing a special dahlia manual, an amplification of part of the June issue of the New Country Life, which will be largely devoted to dahlias, and Professor Hall's list may possibly be included as part of such separate manual. It was resolved therefore that the society could not see its way clear to publish the list now.

This is the last committee meeting that will be held before the show.

J. HARRISON DICK, Sec'y.

American Carnation Society.

To Florists of the Central States:

I feel somewhat diffident about bringing this subject to the attention of the florists, but I believe that when the argument is started a great many of my fellow craftsmen will join in, and help make the plan a success. The time is opportune and conditions make it imperative that the florists as a body take some concerted action toward bettering conditions throughout the trade. There is no need at this time for me to go into details regarding the different woes now confronting all florists, no matter in what branch of trade they are interested.

Practically all commercial enterprises have at some time during the past 12 months adjusted selling prices and introduced economic measures. Through lack of concerted action the florists have done nothing to counteract the tremendous increase in the cost of materials used in our vast business.

It seems unbelievable that the florists have taken no action along this line. Many millions of dollars are invested in the central states for the production of plants and flowers. Taking as a whole, the glass area in Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Ohio represents a vast amount of glass covered acreage. Why should the people representing this enormous investment simply drift along hoping conditions will make their own adjustments? Conditions do not adjust themselves, so we must do the adjusting, and I firmly believe that unless the florists get together at once many failures and thousands of dollars in losses will be the result in the very near future.

We should have adjustments on wholesale and retail prices, shipping conditions, such as prompt deliveries, charges for packing and crating material, which party is responsible for goods consigned and numerous other questions.

Would not a co-operative meeting to be held in the very near future be of interest to all in the trade? Would not that be the proper and prompt way of getting together, to discuss these vital questions and make adjustments to the betterment of all in the trade?

If the men prominent in the trade will do their share in helping to make this meeting a success, I feel confident that only good results will come from such a gathering.

I believe we should have a meeting as soon as possible, and having studied the different questions and conditions pertaining to the trade at this time, an ideal time to get together would be June 19-20. As we all look to Chicago as a market center, I think the meeting should be held in that city. Chicago is easily accessible from all points and we should have a large attendance. The final details of the meeting will be published in an early issue of the trade papers. Should everyone reading this letter attend, what a wonderful meeting we should have and which would assuredly bring excellent results.

I wish you would all pitch in and help me with this gigantic problem. Do not forget the date of the meeting, June 19-20, in the city of Chicago.

W. J. VESEY, JR.,

Pres. American Carnation Society.

Trade Terms.

The trade press reaching us from the other side has for the last week or two contained a warm correspondence on the subject at the head of these notes, or rather we should explain, not so much what trade terms should be, but who is entitled to receive them. The subject was debated at a recent nurserymen's conference, but apparently without being fully thrashed out, possibly owing to the presence of too many of those to whom the subject was not a pleasant one. Be this as it may, the matter is not being allowed to drop, and retail nurserymen are writing, giving chapter and verse, of offers of nursery stock made by wholesale houses to various purchasers with no claim to any connection with the trade, at trade terms, and in some cases even lower.

This evil is not unknown among ourselves, in all branches of the trade, but just now attention is being concentrated on the seed branch. Some years ago a movement was started among farmers to buy their seeds, manures, etc., in bulk, through the secretaries of their associations, at wholesale rates, and distribute same to the members at cost prices. Now the same game is being tried by every little paltry association of allotment holders round our large towns. The government also has taken a hand in the game and recently empowered municipal and other councils to supply small holders with seeds, implements, etc. Some may say that this last is only a war measure and will be dropped after the war. We trust it may, but it must be remembered that these changes bring into existence batches of officials whose salaries depend on the maintenance of the system, not to mention other emoluments that usually follow all the various departments of government trading, and all these people will fight to the death for their living. These officials, too, are always trying to improve their position by enlarging the scope of their operations, so that the business has a tendency to grow and spread in unexpected directions. A notable instance is the supplying of small holders in Ireland with fruit trees at cost prices, which has now spread to such an extent that county gentlemen and other large owners are supplied by the authorities at cost price, not only with fruit trees, but forest trees and even ornamental shrubs and trees.

To go back to the seed trade, the vital question for seedsmen is whether the state of things we have outlined is to go on, and get worse, or whether a united effort should be made to improve matters, and confine the seed trade of the country to its legitimate channels. We believe the mischief can be scotched, if not entirely done away with; but this can only be done if there is a strong disposition of the whole body of seedsmen to work together, and under the term "seedsmen" we should include both the wholesale and retail sections. The interests of both bodies are identical in the long run, and it is of vital importance that both bodies should work together in this matter.

We strongly recommend all seedsmen to follow carefully what is being done by the association in this question, and to back up the horticultural trades' council by supplying any information they think may be useful, and strengthening its hands in every possible way.—Horticultural Advertiser (British).

Palmer & Son's New Store.

In our issue of April 28, page 790, we announced the opening of W. J. Palmer & Son's beautiful new flower shop on Delaware avenue, Buffalo, N. Y., an establishment well befitting its location on a thoroughfare that has come to be known as the "Fifth Avenue" of that city, as will be seen from the two illustrations presented herewith. The store, which is 100 feet in depth with a width of 30 feet, with broad, low windows reaching to the floor, is decorated entirely in white, the fixtures to correspond, being unsurpassed as to beauty and efficiency.

The handsome conservatory, adjoining the store, is a feature much admired by all visitors. In the center is forming the center and running water adds a touch of nature to the effect.

With complete heating, lighting and ventilating plants and spacious storage rooms in the basement, a garage at the rear conveniently located for loading and up-to-date workrooms with every facility for prompt execution of orders, this splendid establishment does itself proud.

It would not be fitting to pass without mention, the Lord & Burnham Co., New York, who installed the model heating and ventilating systems; Jewett & Co., Buffalo, who supplied the 30 foot flower case of the latest design, and the William Henrichs Sons Co., also of Buffalo, who installed the attractive fixtures and wall cases.

National Association of Gardeners.

The winners of the assistant gardeners' essay contest, for which President William N. Craig offered three prizes in gold—$25, $15 and $10—have been announced by the judges as follows: First—"Rock Gardening," by Marcel M. Twinney, second assistant greenhouse gardener to J. Ogden Armour, Lake Forest, Ill; second—"Hardy Fruits," by Frederick W. Bateman, assistant in charge of greenhouses of Mrs. P. Boettger Estate, Riverside-on-Hudson, N. Y.; third—"Garden Chemistry in Soil Cultivation," by William S. Gillies, assistant gardener to R. H. Boggs, Sewickley, Pa.

The directors of the association have decided on the first week in December as the 1917 convention date. Chicago was voted the convention city at the annual meeting held in Washington last December.

President Thomas W. Head reports that much interest is being manifested in the first annual convention of the association to be held in a western city among the members of the gardening profession located in the West, while a good-sized delegation from the eastern states is looked for. Many eastern members have already

MOTHER'S DAY SUPPLY RUNS SHORT EARLY.

The volume of business for Mother's day was far beyond all expectations. Cut flowers of all kinds sold at sight and the supply ran short early in the day. Carnations were in short supply, and while in most cases not up to standard, they were most popular, although roses moved exceptionally well after the carnations were exhausted. Ophelia, Richmond and American Beauty were the favorites. Sweet peas were much sought after and they sold out early. Easter and calla lilies, gladioli, lilac, irises, Darwin tulips, snapdragons and pansies made up the balance of the cut flower line. Made-up baskets and pot plants sold better than in any previous year.

NOTES.

W. L. Rock Flower Co. were crowded to the capacity of their establishment and the force were delivering as late as Sunday evening. Both local and shipping business was extremely heavy. It was this firm's greatest Mothers' day business.

H. Kusik & Co. report the greatest Mothers' day sales in their history, and could not supply the heavy demand notwithstanding large receipts of carnations, sweet peas and roses. Shipping trade showed a big increase over other years.

Mrs. T. A. Mosely, of Kansas City, Kan., sold out completely, with pot plants and baskets in good demand after the cut flower supply was exhausted.

W. J. Barnes had a record-breaking business and his supply of carnations and roses went short early. Large numbers of pot plants were sold.

T. J. Noll & Co. sold stock as fast as it could be unpacked. Shipping orders were much better than a year ago.

In addition to a surprising Mother's day demand, the Peterson Floral Co. had a big rush of funeral orders.

Cincinnati.*MOTHERS' DAY SUPPLY LIMITED.

Mothers' day business was good, but had the stock been available, it would have been very much better. Everything in the cut-flower line sold at good prices, while orders for as much stock as came into the market were turned down because of the lack of stock with which to fill them. On Tuesday of this week the weather turned much warmer and should result in bringing in much needed stock in better quantities than are available at the time of this writing. Roses are in a fair supply, but many more could be used if they were at hand. The carnation cut is short of requirements. Easter lilies and callas are plentiful. Some outdoor bulbous stock in the shape of irises, daffodils and Narcissus Poeticus is available. Sweet peas are fairly abundant. Peonies are more plentiful than they were. Other offerings include snapdragons, gladioli, lily of the valley and marguerites.

NOTES.

According to present indications, creditors of the R. G. Kootz Floral Co. will receive at least a very substantial per cent of their claims, if not the full amount due them.

Baltimore, Md.*SUPPLY IS LIMITED.

The early part of the week finds the flower supply very limited. There are plenty of sweet peas, but carnations are at a premium. In bulbous stock there are callas, Spanish iris and gladioli in moderate supply. Cattleyas are scarce and the price has increased to $1. Gardenias are fairly plentiful. Roses are one of the short items, and bring very good prices. There is a moderate supply of American Beauty, the best being offered at 35 cents each. Outdoor lily of the valley is offered at $1 per 100, the frame product bringing $3. In miscellaneous stock there is a moderate supply of calendulas and daisies, and a few forget-me-nots are to be seen. Snap-dragon receipts have slackened considerably.

NOTES.

Local growers have consolidated their orders for coal, believing that the coal dealers will give more prompt attention to an order of this size rather than a number of smaller ones. Isaac Foss, of Govanstown, said he would stop growing rather than pay the exorbitant coal prices asked of him by some dealers.

Pittsburgh, Pa.*BUSINESS 100 PER CENT BETTER.

Mothers' day trade was very satisfactory this year, as there was plenty of good stock to be had and prices were good. Carnations, of course, had the call, but any flower sold well. From all reports, there was about 100 per cent increase in sales over last year. The indications at the early part of the week were that stock would be rather scarce, which caused some retailers to buy ahead heavily, but by the end of the week there was plenty for everyone. On Sunday there was an ample supply of roses and American Beauties, but they were held over, as the demand was gone. No carnations could be found on Sunday. The retailers sold carnations at from $1.50 to $3 per dozen, which is a very good price. The business was injured to some extent by a heavy rain storm on Sunday. Most all the street stores were loaded and expected to clean up Sunday.

Al Niggel has recovered from his recent illness and is able to do some farming at his home in Wildwood. Edw. Ludwig has charge of the farm and greenhouse at Mars, Pa.

The cool weather we have had all during this month has kept the plantsmen from doing any outside work. They will all be rushed when the warm weather does come.

The florists' and gardeners' association held an interesting meeting at the Fort Pitt hotel, May 1. The displays on the exhibition tables were worthy of mention.

The home of E. J. McCallum at Allison Park was slightly damaged by fire May 8.

Al Morrison, of Mars, Pa., had a large cut of white carnations for Mothers' day.

J. B. Murdock & Co. cut over 19,000 carnations last week, mostly white.

Wm. McCauley, of A. W. Smith's, has joined the naval reserves.

Joseph Jordan is to be married on May 22. M.

Cleveland, O.*MOTHERS HONORED TO LIMIT OF SUPPLY.

All the prophecies of the "wise men" who knew about Mothers' day business beforehand came true. It was a big day for growers, wholesalers and retailers. Plants and cut flowers sold equally well, and while the supply was good, it was not as large as last year, and far below the demand. A few long stemmed American Beauties and orchids were all you could find on the local market Sunday noon. Stock, too, was uniformly good in quality and prices ruled about the same as last year. White carnations were perhaps the best sellers, but other stock sold equally as fast; in fact, there was not much choice, as retailers generally ordered about everything on the bill. Snapdragon was in big supply, all colors, and of excellent quality. Sweet peas were plentiful, some of the best varieties bringing $2 per hundred. Darwin tulips, daffodils, baby gladioli, calendulas, stocks and irises were part of the receipts. Good lily of the valley was scarce. Orchids did not move, as well as expected, neither did long American Beauties. Perhaps the boys do not think it worth while to spend as much on mother as they do for sweetheart on Valentine's day. Greens were plentiful. Monday, May 14, was rather "slim picking" on the wholesale market, as growers had cut quite close, and not enough stock to make shipments early was to be had.

N. A. Elder, one of the sales force of the Lord & Burnham Co.'s Cleveland office, left May 12 for Fort Benjamin Harrison to join the officers' reserve corps. V. A. Morgan, formerly of Cleveland, and now of the Lord & Burnham's Detroit office, is a first lieutenant of the Fifth Ohio and will leave with them as soon as called.

Terre Haute, Ind.*TRADE SWAMPED WITH ENORMOUS DEMAND.

The Mother's day business in this city was the largest ever known, and nearly all of the trade were entirely unprepared to meet the tremendous demand, especially for cut flowers. There was little left to sell after the rush of Saturday was over. Carnations led the call, with a good movement in all bright flowers. The florists' club pushed the event for three weeks with co-operative advertisements in the newspapers and every package that went out of the stores carried a posterette. Carnations sold at $1.25 and $1.50 per dozen, roses $1.50 to $3. Hydrangeas, large pot geraniums and baby rambler roses all sold well.

Cold, unseasonable weather has hampered the planting of bedding stock very much. Heavy rains have prevented the planting out of carnations and it has been necessary to fire at all times. N. B. S.

Rochester, N. Y.*BIG WEEK'S DEMAND FOR MOTHERS' DAY.

A wonderful volume of business is reported by all for Mothers' day. Advance orders came in early and the number of telegraph and mail orders were far ahead of last year. Carnations of good quality were scarce, the red varieties being a minus quantity and prices ruled high. Roses were in good supply and snapdragons in various colors were great favorites. Pot plants, especially hydrangeas, spiraeas, hyacinths and primroses, sold well.

NOTES.

The Mothers' day window of the Rochester Floral Co. was a clever arrangement featuring the efficiency of telegraph delivery of flowers.

The sympathy of the trade is extended to E. P. Wilson and Mrs. Wilson because of the death of Mrs. Wilson's mother, May 9.

J. B. Keller Sons recently had a handsome window of garden craft boxes attractively filled with pansies marguerites, etc.

F. R. Bohnke reports business far ahead of previous years. He has added a handsome Ford car to his delivery service.

E. C. Kaelber used a large wax figure in an attractive window arrangement calling attention to Mothers' day.

H. E. Bates of the Lord & Burnham Co. has returned from a business trip to western Pennsylvania.

White Bros., of Medina, are shipping excellent carnations to this market.

H. E. Wilson reports an exceptionally good Mothers' day trade.

Visitor: R. E. Blackshaw, representing A. L. Randall Co., Chicago. CHESTER.

LARGE SUPPLY AND DEMAND MODERATE.

The market remains in much the same condition as reported last week. Stock of all kinds is in large supply with the demand rather moderate. The supply of the leading varieties is more than enough to satisfy the demand and prices are ruling low. The quality as a rule is splendid and the stock is clean, but the cut is too heavy just now for the market to absorb. Carnations are going off crop somewhat, but it has not brought about any rise in prices. Sweet peas are about the only item of which more could be used. Good sweet peas are bringing $1 per dozen bunches in the open market, principally the old grandiflora type. Owing to the very low prices received during the past few seasons, the majority of the growers discontinued the growing of this flower. Very few Spencers are to be seen, and from all accounts, the supply of sweet peas is going to be short all season. There is an immense cut of outdoor Cecile Brunners coming in, all of the finest quality. The supply of spring blooming bulbs is dwindling gradually. Some very fine Spanish iris are being received, but are not bringing very remunerative figures. There seem to be enough orchids and gardenias for the demand. The supply of greenhouse grown snapdragon is about over. This has proved a good seller this season. A few peonies are still to be had, but not in any great quantity. Delphiniums of splendid quality, all outdoor grown stock, are plentiful. A large number of perennials will be in very soon, owing to the favorable weather. There was quite a call for white carnations for Mothers' day business. The supply of good pot plants is getting rather limited. Greens of all kinds are in ample supply at steady prices.

NOTES.

Alexander H. Davidson, superintendent of Cypress Lawn cemetery and one of the best known gardeners in this city, was struck by an automobile last week and died several days later at St. Luke's hospital. The deceased was an old resident of this city and universally esteemed by all his friends among the trade. Mr. Davidson had charge of Cypress Lawn cemetery for years and it was largely through his efforts that it is considered one of the most beautiful on this coast. Mr. Davidson was a native of Scotland, 55 years old. He is survived by a widow and one daughter.

The ceremonies in connection with the planting of the Burbank dahlia in the plaza at the Oakland city hall, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, took place May 6. After he had finished planting the "Oakland" dahlia, which he has given to Oakland as its official flower, Luther Burbank was the guest of honor of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce at the Hotel Oakland, where he was presented with an illuminated and engrossed parchment by the chamber in appreciation of his gift.

The chrysanthemum growers are now busily engaged in planting out stock for the coming season. The quantity being put out is considered larger than last season. Owing to the severe winter, many standard varieties will be in short supply, but their places will no doubt be taken with some of the newer varieties.

G. H. Hecke, state commissioner of horticulture, has issued a warning to all county commissioners of horticulture concerning the Japanese persimmon pest, a serious fungus disease and a serious insect pest. Hecke warns every California county commissioner to be on guard against the pest.

Frank G. Cuthbertson, of C. C. Morse & Co., is a busy man these days. He is at San Juan, where the new winter flowering Spencer sweet peas are now in full bloom. Some wonderful improvements are expected this year and vast trials are being made at this farm.

Frank Walters, the well known tree seed specialist of Los Angeles, is spending some time in this city and vicinity. He reports having had a very busy season in the south. Mr. Walters, before locating in the south, was connected with a large nursery in Menlo Park.

The annual rose carnival of the city of Santa Rosa is expected to surpass all former efforts in this line when it opens next week. The proceeds are to be devoted to the Red Cross. Mayor Rolph of this city will open the festival.

Ernst H. Trevve, of the MacRorie-McLaren nurseries, has left with his regiment for Douglas, Arizona. He spent several days calling upon friends in the trade before his departure.

Robt. Hughes has departed for the east to make his residence. Ned Hughes was connected with the exposition staff during the fair.

HEAVY SALES CHARACTERIZE MOTHERS DAY

The Mothers' day demand in this city was never better than this year. White carnations sold at sight and stock of all kinds cleaned up early. Carnations sold at wholesale at $10 per 100 for whites, with prices for other colors varying from four to eight cents each. Roses were quoted from four to 12 cents, with sweet peas bringing $1 and $1.50 per 100. Outside daffodils were among the offerings and sold well. Many of these, together with arbutus, were sold by street merchants on Saturday. Outside stock seems slow this year, there being little call for bedding plants. Cold, rainy weather has also had its bad effect.

NOTES.

In his annual garden contest, open to the mill villages of the state, Governor Beeckman has offered the following prizes in three classes: For village improvement, flag and flagpole; for best home garden, silver cup and $10, first, and a second prize of $5; for best vegetable garden, $5.

Among the numerous window displays that attracted many admiring glances from passersby was that of T. J. Johnston & Co., and it doubtless brought additional business as a result.

Professor E. K. Thomas of the state college will deliver an address on "Gardening" this week.

Madison, N. J.

Duckham & Pierson are pushing work on their new rose houses and will have them ready for June planting. There are five of these houses, each 61x500 feet. The members of this firm are well known and popular, and both have done something for the trade. As a private gardener, William Duckham established the fact that he is a man of fine character. Everybody who has been attending shows for the past 20 years knows his reputation as a grower. Along the line of greenhouse building, his partner, Lincoln Pierson, is equally well known. As the originator of the Pierson-U Bar greenhouse he conferred a lasting service upon the growers. When their stock is ready for the market it will be sold by Joseph S. Fenrich of New York.

OBITUARY.

William P. Brinton.

William P. Brinton died May 6, at his home in Christiania, Pa., in the eighty-third year of his age. He had been a resident of Christiania all his life, his ancestors, who were members of the Society of Friends, came to this continent with William Penn. His wife, who was Mary E. Cooper, of Bird-in-Hand, Pa., died in 1903, and he is survived by one son, Maurice J. Brinton, who succeeded him in the florist business several years ago. Five daughters also survive the deceased.

He was an active member of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, carrying on in his earlier years quite an extensive nursery business, and later on entering the florist business, of which he made a decided success, enlarging the plant until it has become one of the large ranges in the locality. He served as a lieutenant of volunteers when the Confederates attempted to cross the Susquehanna during the Civil War. During the 70's and 80's he appeared on the stump for his party, the republicans, being a man of sterling integrity and an able fighter for what he believed to be right.

The funeral took place Wednesday, May 9, with interment at the Sadsbury Friends' burial ground. The Lancaster County Florists' Club sent a wreath of flowers, and sincerely sympathize with our fellow member, Maurice J. Brinton, and the family in his loss.

ALBERT M. HERR.

William McCrae Thompson.

William McCrae Thompson, of Lansdowne, Pa., died May 9 of a complication of diseases. He leaves a wife and one daughter. Mr. Thompson was a well known member of the trade in Philadelphia. He learned the retail business with Robert Crawford, Jr., where he spent a number of years, later going into business on his own account at Thirteenth below Walnut streets. For the past 15 years he has been a valued employe of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co.

VANCOUVER, B. C.—A meeting of creditors of Brown Bros., Ltd., was held May 14.

EAST SUDBURY, MASS.—The business of C. A. Johnson, florist, who died May 4, will be continued by his son.

OMAHA, NEB.—Employes of Hess & Svoboda who so desire may use the firm's surplus land for vegetable growing.

OMAHA, NEB.—C. A. Baldwin, proprietor of The Fernery, has leased an adjoining store to take care of his rapidly growing business.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—Fred Cole has opened a store at 95 Snow street, where in addition to plants, he will have fruit trees and shrubs.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The tulip show under the auspices of the Takoma branch library, May 9, was a most successful event, twenty-three awards being made in 118 entries. Peter Bissett of the department of agriculture acted as judge.

RIVER FALLS, WIS.—H. B. Wieland, of the River Falls Floral Co., says his eldest son and foreman have joined the colors and more of the help will go soon. Brothers, sisters and cousins representing 10 families are now doing war duty, making it very difficult to carry on the business.

THE old Iowa blue laws are to be enforced prohibiting the Sunday sale of flowers among other commodities.

THE Mothers' day business was greatly helped by the extensive publicity given in the general press and liberal advertising by the florists in their local newspapers.

WHITE CARNATIONS sold at Philadelphia, Pa., May 12, the Saturday preceding Mothers' day at 12 to 15 cents, wholesale. It will be recalled that this city is the home of Miss Jarvis, the founder of the day.

THE latest issue of Vaughan's "Pointers for Planters" has come to hand, containing many valuable and timely suggestions for the trade, as well as the amateur. This issue contains eight pages and may be had for the asking at the firm's Chicago and New York stores.

Yearbook of Agriculture.

We are in receipt of the Yearbook of Agriculture for 1916, an attractive volume of 783 pages, well bound and illustrated. The contents include "Color as an Indication of the Picking Maturity of Fruits and Vegetables" by L. C. Corbett; "The Plant-Introduction Gardens of the Department of Agriculture" by P. H. Dorsett; "Some American Vegetable Food Oils, Their Sources and Methods of Production" by H. S. Bailey; "The Dasheen; Its Uses and Culture," by Robert A. Young; "Suppression of the Gypsy and Brown-Tail Moths and Its Value to States Not Infested," by A. F. Burgess; "Business Essentials for Co-operative Fruit and Vegetable Canneries," by W. H. Kerr; "Co-operative Work for Eradicating Citrus Canker," by Karl F. Kellerman; "the Practical Use of the Insect Enemies of Injurious Insects," by Frederick W. Brown; "The Present Status of the Sugarbeet Industry in the United States," by C. O. Townsend; "Development and Localization of Truck Crops in the United States" by Fred J. Blair.

Mothers' Day Business.

The unprecedented call for flowers and plants of all kinds for Mothers' day, 1917, reported by the trade from all parts of the United States, gives indication that this event will in a few years take its place in the front rank with Christmas and Easter as a great flower day. Publicity, this year, played a greater part than ever before, and its value in stimulating interest is readily apparent in the greatly increased volume of sales as compared with Mothers' days of previous years. Co-operative advertising was done by the members of the trade in many cities and the national publicity with a full page advertisement in the Literary Digest made possible by the sales of posters and posterettes under the direction of the Chicago Florists' Club, were important factors to the splendid result.

While the carnation held undisputed claim as first in popularity, with white as usual most in demand, the fact that the public is coming to a realization that this event is a flower day, not a carnation day alone, is evidenced by the fact that in nearly every instance, a complete cleanup is the report, with a greater demand than ever before for flowering plants. Weather conditions in many sections were unfavorable, resulting in a shortened supply and higher prices. In some Eastern markets this was especially true, as high as $15 being recorded for the best carnations, while anything salable easily brought $8. Other cut flower stock was in fairly good supply and with moderate prices, found quick buyers.

War Brings Increased Business.

Greater business activity, not panic and a collapse of the market in any line, is to be expected during the war, according to A. W. Shaw, chairman of the commercial economy board of the Council of National Defense, in the Official Bulletin, Washington, D. C., issue of May 12. Readjustments and more economic organization of various industries must be made, in order to fill the gaps made by the withdrawal of men for fighting and to meet increased operating costs. But there is no fear of any slackening in demand.

"No matter how much individual economy in consumption is practiced," says Mr. Shaw, "British experience has shown that inevitably war wages increase the purchasing capacity of large classes of the people, thus expanding the market on a broad scale. Besides this, the men who have been withdrawn from productive work have to be fed and clothed as usual, increasing the proportionate demand for goods from those left in business. Added to all this, the foreign demand will continue to grow as the war progresses."

London department stores and retail houses show a gain in profit of from 5 to 50 per cent in 1916 as compared with 1915, in spite of increased operating costs, which in some lines rose as much as 40 per cent.

Systematic attention to details of management and elimination of waste must be relied upon to overcome the difficulties of readjustment. The commercial economy board hopes to assist in the adoption of improved business methods, and is now engaged in securing information through questionnaires and personal investigation, from which suggestions may be made as to the elimination of waste and more compact organization. When conclusions of value have been reached in regard to methods in a particular industry, they will be placed before the entire trade by means of individual letters, articles in trade publications and other forms of publicity.

"No merchant," says Mr. Shaw, "who faces the situation squarely, courageously and imaginatively need fear the war readjustment. Whatever disorganization comes can, with the proper treatment, be passed over with comparative smoothness and speed."

Personal.

Wm. H. Elliott, of Boston, Mass. and daughter, Ruth, passed through Chicago last week enroute to Washington, D. C., returning from California. Mr. Elliott was greatly impressed with the development and possibilities of the west.

Miss Margaret Rudd, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Rudd, left Chicago, May 16, with one of the Red Cross units for the front in France. Miss Rudd's paternal grandfather gave his life for America in the Civil War.

MANAGER GEORGE ASMUS of Schiller's stores, Chicago, says that 90 per cent of the flowers sold go to the masses of the people and only 10 per cent to the wealthy citizens of this country. Further, he says, the masses for the most part pay cash while the wealthy buyers in many cases take from 30 to 365 days and are quite exacting in their requirements.

MOTHERS' DAY SWEEPS MARKET CLEAN.

Mothers' day business here was a record breaker, far exceeding that of a year ago, which excelled all previous years for the same event. A splendid campaign of publicity was carried on throughout the previous 10 days, increasing in extent every day as the big day itself approached. Throughout the week the daily papers alternately kept display advertisements of cleverly worded exploitation of the increasing popularity of Mothers' day, and these issues were profusely illustrated with figures of mothers receiving flowers from children and grown persons, embracing the youngest to the older, and associated with this form of publicity was the laudation of the day and all it implies in the reading columns. This work was so well and extensively done that it was little wonder that everyone was thinking of "Mother" when the day devoted to her honor was upon us. And, how was the trade thus developed cared for by the florists? And what were the results commercially, from the combined efforts of the club members and some others who worked hard co-operatively to build up the popularity of the day to such an extent that it may well be compared with Christmas and Easter trade? All must answer that it was a success, and were it possible to provide a greater supply of stock, it would have been still more remunerative and satisfactory. Never before was this market so completely sold out; not the wholesale house and growers alone, but the stock of every retailer was entirely consumed by the people, who clamored for flowers or plants of some kind to gladden the hearts of thousands of honored mothers. Wisely the florists have by all means trained the public to believe in the propriety of a flower or plant of any kind for this occasion, and while it is true the call for carnations was incessant, nevertheless it was easily diverted to many of the suitable substitutes that every store was well supplied with. In cut flowers, roses were probably the most popular, though the prices of these were comparatively high and bulbous stock filled the demand for cheaper flowers and happily there was a good supply of this class of stock embracing splendid daffodils, tulips and hyacinths. The supply of carnations was soon exhausted, though the retail price was maintained rigidly in most stores at $2 a dozen. Sweet peas were very popular and thousands of them were sold. Snapdragon, too, sold well and a good supply of high grade Russell roses at four to six and even eight dollars a dozen found plenty of buyers. Lilies were in fair supply, and with all the items on the list, sold out to the last flower. Rose plants were popular and the stock was fine, though far short of the demand in supply. The cold weather prevailing the previous two weeks made it possible for the growers to retard a big supply of bulbous plants that found speedy sale, and even the modest geranium was sought and adorned many of the poorer homes. The clear weather prevailing the last days of the week contributed largely to the success of the event, which will be long remembered by the local trade for its many favorable features culminating with the most satisfactory results.

BANNER MOTHERS' DAY TRADE.

Mothers' day business from all accounts seems to have been exceptionally good, with carnations in the lead and sweet peas a close second in popularity. All stock came in for more or less demand and it was noticeable that the general public paid less attention to particular colors than in former years. While the wholesale price of carnations was high the retailers contented themselves with moderate prices and a smaller profit rather than scare customers away with a charge of $2 a dozen, and in the majority of cases the volume of sales and usual profit reached a general average on sales of other items. Pot plants had an unusual call this year, and the only reason more were not sold is that they were not to be had. All in all, Mothers' day, 1917, will be remembered as a big day—and still brighter prospects in coming years. The market during the past week was tight almost to a scarcity. Carnations jumped from practically nowhere to $3 and $4 per 100, and increased to $6 and $8 for Mothers' day. Roses also shortened in supply but there were enough of them to meet requirements. Sweet peas have been getting scarcer due to unfavorable weather conditions. A few jonquils and Poeticus narcissus hold up well considering the season. It is fine and not nearly plentiful enough. It has been a fine money maker this year. The market is well supplied with greens of good quality.

NOTES.

The florists' club held its monthly meeting, May 10, as guests of the county growers at the Eleven-Mile House, about 30 members being present. The committee appointed for the purpose, reported that their investigations showed about one and one-fourth million dollars invested in the florist business in St. Louis and St. Louis county. The trustees were instructed to arrange for the annual picnic. F. J. Filmore read an account of a trip he and some of his brother florists took to a convention some years ago and it was enjoyed immensely because of its wit and humor. Paul Reden, of the Missouri Pottery & Supply Co., invited the club to hold their next meeting at his establishment in South St. Louis.

The sympathy of the trade is extended to W. A. Rowe of Kirkwood, whose mother-in-law was burned to death recently. Her clothes caught fire accidentally.

The county growers' association announce a dance at the Eleven-Mile House on Manchester road, May 26.

GOOD STOCK IN AMPLE SUPPLY.

Conditions in the market during the past week have remained unchanged with stock quite plentiful and of good quality. The advance orders for Mothers' day were very good and a heavy Memorial day trade is looked forward to.

NOTES.

Andrew Bruce, head salesman for Wolfskill Bros. and Morris Goldenson, has resigned his position and will enter the cavalry. His many friends assure him of their best wishes. Albert Goldenson will have the store management henceforth.

Wright's Flower Shop is well supplied with good stock. There are many first offerings including Mexican poppies, scabiosas, watsonias, gladioli, gaillardias and sweet williams. There is the usual amount of funeral work.

Redondo Floral Co. recently had a very attractive window of delphiniums and Easter lilies. Irises are moving well, many being used in funeral work. Mothers' day business was better than a year ago.

The Broadway Florists are doing considerable shipping. An immense quantity of carnations are shown at all times and thousand are sold daily.

O. C. Saake is showing extra long stemmed roses and carnations.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The monthly meeting of the above society was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, N. Y., May 9, President James McCarthy occupying the chair. Alex. Sherriffs was elected to active membership. The chairman of the executive committee reported all arrangements complete for the annual tulip show to be held at the Glen Cove neighborhood house, May 23. An interesting schedule has been compiled which will be mailed to any intending exhibitor on request.

The president appointed Thos. Henderson, Geo. Ashworth and John T. Everitt as judges of the monthly exhibits and their awards were as follows: Three heads of Big Boston lettuce, Joe Mastroine, first; vase of cut flowers with vase of Prunus Pissardii, Harry Goodband, first; vase of salpiglossis, John F. Johnson, first.

An essay by Edwin H. Costich, New York, entitled, "Distinctive American Plants," was ably read by Robert Jones and a letter of thanks was ordered sent to the author.

Exhibits for the next meeting will be 12 gladioli, three heads of cauliflower and a bunch of asparagus.

EXTRA HEAVY MOTHERS' DAY DEMAND.

The demand for stock for Mothers' day was extra heavy this year and some of the dealers report that their total sales exceed those of last Easter and Christmas, which were remarkably good and greater than in former years. Stock in all lines cleaned up completely at an early hour, especially carnations, which, as usual, had the best call. Roses were in brisk demand at high prices and sold quickly in all varieties, with the exception of fancy long stemmed Mrs. Chas. Russell, which should have brought more money. American Beauty roses had a good call and cleaned up completely, but prices on fancy stock were not as high as one would expect during a tight market, which was probably due to a certain extent to the large supply of long-stemmed Mrs. Chas. Russell that were offered. The demand for iris was very heavy and the same holds true for snapdragons, which were quite plentiful. Tulips, jonquils, daffodils and daisies moved surprisingly well and it was impossible to supply the demand for sweet peas, which had an exceptionally heavy call. Orchids, gardenias, pansies, lily of the valley, calendulas, candytuft, gladioli, mignonette, forget-me-nots, freesias, peonies, lilac, anemones, statice and other miscellaneous seasonable cut flowers had a good call, and like all the other offerings, cleaned up completely before the rush was over. The out-of-town demand was very heavy and orders were filled from all sections of the country, including the east, which called for a large quantity of stock. The city trade was very good and there was no stock left to offer. Many orders from out-of-town points were refused early in the week, for it was impossible for the local market to supply anywhere near the extra heavy demand. Taking everything into consideration, the Mothers' day demand from the wholesalers' and growers' standpoint was very satisfactory and exceeded all expectations. The outlook for a large supply of stock for Memorial day is very encouraging, but from present indications the demand promises to be heavier than ever and an early cleanup in all lines may be looked for. The writer advised all the retail florists to place their orders well in advance for Mothers' day in these columns four weeks ago and in every issue after that, so as to guarantee their supply, and nearly all those who did so, were pretty well taken care of and have no complaint to make. Everyone will do well to place his order for Memorial day as early as possible, for many orders have already been booked and everything points to a heavier than usual demand. Play safe, order early. Do it now.

NOTES.

A. L. Randall Co., who recently leased from the estate of Wilson Blair the seven-story and basement structure at 729 South Wabash avenue, 78x172 feet, in extent, between Seventh and Eighth streets, for a term of years from June 1, 1917, at an aggregate rental of $107,400, has subleased the store and basement of the building to the Studebaker corporation for a term of years at a total rental of $15,000. Mention of the Randall Co. leasing the property first appeared in THE AMERICAN FLORIST over a month ago.

Matt Mann and Charlie Hunt helped out the regular force at Zech & Mann's store during the Mother's day rush which was the heaviest that this firm ever experienced. Allie Zech says that their sales so far during May are away ahead of the same period of last year and that the total sales for this month promise to be the largest in the history of the firm.

O. J. Friedman, 516 South Michigan avenue, always has a fine showing of stock at his store and is using a large quantity of iris and anemones in his work lately. His able assistant, Victor Bergmann, is a firm believer in variety, and most of his arrangements consist of the many novelties obtainable in the local market.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. report a record-breaking Mother's day trade with the sales for the week showing a gain of more than $2,000 over the same period of 1916. Their out-of-town demand was exceptionally heavy and their city trade was surprisingly good.

Chas. Erne says that Erne & Company's Mother's day trade this year was the best ever, with a complete cleanup in all lines of stock.

Bernhard J. Delinke, 3802 West Chicago avenue, is back from a business trip to Milwaukee, Wis.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. enjoyed a splendid Mother's day trade and cleaned up completely in all lines at an early hour with total sales for the week showing a large increase over that of the same period in 1916. The supply department has a large quantity of made-up wreaths on hand for Memorial day and is prepared to fill all orders for same on short notice.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is receiving a large quantity of fancy Mrs. Chas. Russell roses from Stielow Bros. Co., of Niles Center, which are in good demand, owing to their splendid quality. The Mothers' day trade at this, their home, was a record breaker and everything points to a banner Memorial day trade.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner report that their local crops of peonies are about three weeks late and will not cut much of a figure in the Memorial day supply. They are, however, receiving a large quantity of peonies from southern points and expect to have enough to supply all their customers from now until the end of the season.

Peter Reinberg's sales for Mothers' day were ahead of those of last Easter, according to Manager Reichling, who adds that it was the best ever. The call from out-of-town points was tremendous and it was impossible to supply anywhere near the demand, although their regular customers were well taken care of.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. never had such a big Mothers' day business as it did this year, nor did they ever experience such a complete cleanup in all lines. Their shipping trade was particularly heavy and kept the entire force on the jump to get out all the orders on time.

Percy Jones, Inc., had its share of the Mothers' day business, with the sales showing a wonderful increase over any previous year. This firm is handling a large quantity of fancy candytuft which is sold almost as quickly as it is unpacked.

Wietor Bros. will be in full crop with roses and carnations for Memorial day, but expect an early cleanup in all lines for stock in general promises to be somewhat scarce. This firm is more than satisfied with their Mothers' day trade, which exceeded all expectations.

Philip J. Schupp, manager of the firm of J. A. Budlong, believes that stock will be nearly as scarce for Memorial day as it was for Mothers' day, so he is advising all their customers to place their orders well in advance, so as to guarantee their supply.

Hoerher Bros. are supplying their customers with a fancy grade of candytuft in addition to their usual fine line of roses and other stock. This firm experienced a most satisfactory Mothers' day trade.

John Michelsen says that the E. C. Amling Co.'s Mothers' day trade was very satisfactory in every respect. This firm will have their usual large supply of peonies to offer for Memorial day.

August Poehlmann, who has been receiving treatment at the Lake View hospital, is able to be about again, much to the gratification of his many friends in the trade.

Bassett & Washburn are in good crop with American Beauty and Mrs. George Sawyer roses, which are both in good demand, owing to the scarcity of stock in these varieties.

William Garland, youngest son of Mrs. George Garland, formerly of Des Plaines, joined the ranks of the benedicts this week.

Michael Freres says that Wiltgen & Freres are more than pleased with their first Mothers' day trade.

PEONIES—GLADIOLI—BOXWOOD

Every indication points to a record breaking demand on all stock for Memorial Day and of course the PEONY will as always be the leading flower in demand. We want to warn you however that as far as we can see after carefully going over all the local crops none of these will be in before June and therefore you will have to depend upon the Southern crop for your supply.

As you know we have always handled the largest amount of Peonies and the best quality in the whole country barring no section, and while our Southern crop will be of normal supply it is only just starting to arrive and will without a doubt be of exceptionally fine grade. With the large local crops off the market and this exceptionally heavy demand we would strongly advise ordering at once if you want to be protected and be sure of your supply. Prices will be no higher than other years that is four, six and eight cents each.

Don't forget to order your Boxwood at the same time, and if you wish we will ship it ahead so that you can get ready to take care of the big rush and not be losing sales by having to wait for stock at the last minute. We will have plenty to go around at $7.50 per case of 50 pounds.

Last but not least we have made arrangements to handle a wonderfully large crop of GLADIOLI this month and they will come in just right for Memorial Day. We want you to order some of these right away and see for yourself just what they are like for we know absolutely you cannot go wrong if you arrange for a large supply of this fancy stock.

J. E. Pollworth, of Kennicott Bros. Co., left May 10 to call on the trade in St. Louis and Kansas City, Mo.; San Antonio, Dallas and Fort Worth, Texas; New Orleans, La., and other important cut-flower buying centers enroute. H. B. Kennicott says that their sales for Mothers' day week were the best ever and larger than those of their best week preceding Memorial day, which is doing remarkably well considering that the last named week is always their biggest of the year, owing to the large supply of flowers that they handle.

F. F. Benthley has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his wife, who died Wednesday morning, May 9, mention of which was made in our last issue. The funeral was held Friday, May 11, and the many floral offerings in evidence showed the high esteem in which the Benthley family is held by the local trade.

Nick Thinnis came near being minus a Super-six, which three fellows tried to get away with when he left it standing in front of Kennicott Bros. Co.'s store, Friday, May 11. After striking a garbage can and getting stalled the crooks lost their nerve and beat it just as the theft was discovered.

The Alpha Floral Co. had a large showing of stock at its South Wabash avenue store all during last week when stock was scarce and sold at a premium. Andrew Chronis is a firm believer in this kind of advertising and had over 25,000 roses on display one day during the recent glut.

Wm. Van Dame, president of the Rapid Wrapper Co., who recently underwent an operation, is recuperating at Excelsior Springs, Mo. He is so determined to recover his health that he will circle the globe if necessary.

At Vaughan's Seed Store there is a good movement of gladiolus and all spring bulbs. Trade in cannas, geraniums and other bedding stock is just starting, and there is brisk demand for all kinds of vegetable plants.

A. Lange showed the writer a copy of last week's issue of the Ottumwa Courier, of Ottumwa, Ia., in which carnations were offered for Mothers' day at 25 cents per dozen by a department store in that city.

The heavy advertising that Schiller did for Mothers' day brought good results. All three of their stores report an exceptionally fine business, with the total sales away head of the same period of last year.

The Chicago Wholesale Cut Flower Association will meet at Quincy No. 9, 150 West Randolph street, Thursday evening, May 17, at 6:30 p. m. A Dutch luncheon will be served.

Etta A. Nott, of Charleston, a buyer in this market, has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of her mother, whose death occurred on Mothers' day, Sunday, May 13.

T. E. Waters, manager of Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s cut flower department, and A. F. Longren are back from a business trip to Burlington, Ia.

W. K. Palmer, of the Fleischman Floral Co., is receiving military training at the Officers' Reserve Camp at Fort Sheridan.

Joe Marks, with A. Henderson & Co., is back from a successful western trip.

John Kruchten is bothered considerably with rheumatism this week.

Visitors: Alois P. Frey, Crown Point, Ind.; W. L. Peglow, with the Kaber Co., LaPorte, Ind.; Thomas Heaven, Benton Harbor, Mich.; Dr. A. J. Knapp, Evansville, Ind.; Chas. Graham, Cleveland, O.

Chicago Florists' Club.

The regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club was held at the Briggs House May 10, President Amling in the chair. There was a large attendance and much interest was shown in the various matters discussed. Most of the members expressed themselves as being deeply concerned as to the coal situation. A number of dealers in this commodity gave some valuable statistics and information regarding the coal business. George D. Stahmer, of the Fort Dearborn Coal Co., who was spokesman for the coal men, gave a very clear and comprehensive account of the difficulties of the situation. Among other things he stated that many florists were not using the particular kinds and sizes of coal best adapted to their requirements and in this way sometimes pay more than is necessary. Much of the difficulty in obtaining coal the past winter he said was due to car shortage and the service in this respect is not likely to be greatly improved in the near future. Mr. Stahmer considered the present about the poorest time of the year to buy coal as railroads and factories are stocking coal now, using every available car in this work. He thought the best time for florists to buy is from the middle of June to the middle of July. Peter Reinberg did not agree with Mr. Stahmer on this point and thought that under present conditions, no one knowing what the morrow may bring, the florists should cover their coal needs as early as possible. Mr. Stahmer further recommended in general the use of small coal in preference to lump and thought it would be very foolish to consider such propositions as the buying of a mine or its output at the present high prices. E. A. Ollinger, in a later motion, killed off the mine idea and suggested the propriety of every greenhouse man taking care of his own coal needs by contract or on the market as early as possible.

F. Lautenschlager had a number of speakers on hand representing the city in the widespread garden movement, and the speakers called attention to the difficulty experienced in obtaining vegetable plants at this late date to meet the demands of the numerous volunteers who wish to join in the important work of food production. It was suggested that the florists operating greenhouses could aid in producing a supply of such plants as tomatoes, cabbage, celery, etc., if each sowed only a flat or two of seed under glass and advised the city authorities when they had the plants ready for distribution without charge for seed or growing. Peter Reinberg spoke in favor of the movement, stating he had already started to help the work by providing the land and a quantity of potatoes and strongly urged members to do what lies in their power to make the city's efforts successful. A resolution was adopted pledging the club's support and F. Lautenschlager was appointed chairman of the committee

Reinhold Schiller introduced Benj. E. Gage, representing the Association of Commerce. Mr. Gage said that the new Subdivision 76 of his association included the florists, seedsmen and nurserymen of the city and urged the members in those trades to join the association as by membership in this body they could secure much by co-operation of the association as a whole which would be difficult to obtain otherwise in legislation, the promotion of flower shows, etc. The officers of the subdivision are Reinhold Schiller, chairman; Leonard H. Gage. Mr. Schiller was appointed chairman of the club committee to secure members for the new sub-division.

F. Lautenschlager reported progress in the publicity work, saying that while the St. Valentine's day posterette had been quite a financial success, the Mothers' day posterette had been saved from failure by the Florists' Telegraph Delivery in its generous order placed on the suggestion of George Asmus, for which Mr. Asmus and the Florists' Telegraph Delivery were accorded a vote of thanks. The profits from the posterette sales enabled the committee to place an attractive full page Mothers' day advertisement in the Literary Digest of May 5 for the benefit of the trade of the entire country.

Frank Feike, of Grosse Point, was nominated for membership.

Garden Movement in Chicago.

At a meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club held at the Briggs House May 10, the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, That the Chicago Florists' Club, in the spirit of patriotism and civic duty, does hereby endorse and encourage the furthering of the work now being carried on by the Garden Bureau of Chicago; and, be it further

"Resolved, That this organization does hereby offer its assistance and cooperation by pledging that its members will raise garden products of such kind and in such quantity as may be practicable, and donate same to the public under the direction of a committee appointed for the purpose by this organization."

This work will be in the hands of the following committee: F. Lautenschlager, chairman; Peter Reinberg, H. N. Bruns, Paul Klingsporn and George Mohr.

The plan of action is outlined as follows: Growers who wish to help this movement should arrange at once to sow a few flats of vegetable seeds, such as lettuce, tomatoes, peppers, beets, cabbage, egg plant and other varieties of vegetable plants that are easily transplanted. When these plants are ready for replanting notify F. Lautenschlager, 440 West Erie street, Chicago, who will make arrangements to have them delivered to the chief of the Garden Bureau of Chicago for distribution among persons who will plant community gardens. Every grower can help.

F. LAUTENSCHLAGER.

PORTLAND, ORE.—Oscar Johnson has discontinued his retail store and will devote his entire time to growing nursery and greenhouse stock.

HOUSTON, TEX.—The R. C. Kerr Floral Co. furnished nearly six auto loads of flowers for the funeral of Mrs. J. S. Rice, wife of one of this city's most prominent citizens.

MIAMI, FLA.—Victor Abel, formerly prominent florist of this city, is making an extended northern trip with his wife visiting Chicago and St. Louis. Mr. Abel is now engaged in the real estate business here on an extensive scale.

DWIGHT, ILL.—Fire of unknown origin destroyed two of the three houses together with the furnace room and work shop in the residence at the Dwight Greenhouses, May 4, entailing a loss of $2,000, partially covered by insurance.

ADVERTISING BRINGS GOOD RETURNS.

The Mothers' day demand this year surpassed the record of any previous year. Co-operative advertising was used in the daily papers under the direction of a committee of the florists' club, and the posters sent out by the Chicago Florists' Club were quite prominently displayed in the store windows. The supply of carnations and roses sold out quickly. Spring flowers had a good call and pot plants were disposed of in large numbers. The cool weather of last week shortened the supply in general, but the temperature has moderated since Mothers' day and the trade now looks forward to a booming bedding season.

NOTES.

The monthly meeting of the florists' club was held May 14, with President W. J. Vesey, Jr., in the chair. Mr. Hildebrand, of the American Mutual Cyclone and Hail Insurance Co., of Muncie, Ind., gave a talk on cyclone insurance which was followed by a discussion. The price of bedding stock, particularly geraniums, was discussed and most of the florists are in favor of raising the prices. Edgar Wenninghof read an interesting paper on "Winning the Trade."

The Flick Floral Co. reports a record sale of cut flowers and blooming plants for Mothers' day. This firm has recently joined the Florists' Telegraph Delivery and their out-of-town business was enormous. Miss Mildred Flick, of this firm, is to be a June bride.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. sold out completely. They have several large wedding orders booked for the near future.

Wanted! Peony Growers!

GROWERS of high grade Peonies will find it to their interest to consign their stock to us. Our trade demands the best, consequently we realize the highest market prices. Start shipping as soon as your stock is ready to cut, or write immediately for further particulars. All returns made weekly.

Edgar Wenninghof says business was better than for any previous Mothers' day. He had an excellent call for pot plants.

Markey Bros. sold out clean by Sunday noon and had to close their doors. Their pot plants were exceptionally fine. H. K.

A GOOD SELLER

The time is ripe to push this Fernery on Stand. Each year the demand has increased for this popular basket for use in the home, on the lawn or on the porch. Order a few today —you will be surprised how quickly they will sell when filled properly and placed on display in an attractive place.

MOTHERS' DAY TRADE SHOWS GOOD GAIN.
 Taking it all in all, the past week was one of the most satisfactory, if not the best, periods in the flower season thus far. As reported in the last issue, owing to the unfavorable weather conditions, stock was so much retarded as to cause a shortage commencing the fore part of the week. Shipping orders came rushing in daily, and then the unusually heavy local demand had the wholesale houses cleaned up by noon on Mothers' day. Everything in the form of a cut flower was easily disposed of after the regular supply of roses, carnations, sweet peas, snapdragons and bulbous stock was exhausted. The weather throughout the week was very favorable, but could not bring on the expected supply, which otherwise would have been available. It might also be added that the call for plants in pots, either flowering or ornamental, was very good, as quite a few were heard to remark: "With the advanced prices on cut flowers, I prefer a plant, which lasts so much longer." To sum up the whole situation "in a nutshell," we can report Mothers' day business as very fine, with a decided increase over any other year.

NOTES.

Fred Holton is a busy man these days, being on the committee for the Shriners' ball to be given at the Auditorium May 19, the proceeds to go to the Red Cross fund. The A. F. Kellner Co. will have charge of the decorations. The latter firm reports indoor decorations as numerous as ever, and greatly hindering them in their outdoor work. While the writer has spent the past 13 years in and around Milwaukee, this is the first season that carnation growers were forced, due to unfavorable soil and weather conditions, to begin field operations as late as May 7; still the week was ideal, and with a few more good days the bulk of the stock will "be out."

In touching upon the advertising done in the daily newspapers, we are pleased to report that all the retailers approached contributed their mites cheerfully, thus proving that the time has come so that now we can say: "They are all getting together now to boost the business."

At the Holton & Hunkel Co. it was found necessary to cut shipping orders as early as Wednesday, in order to give all the regular customers at least some stock. A large lot of hyacinths and numerous other pot plants at the Humboldt avenue range was cleaned up in the rush.

Gust Rusch & Co. report that the Cudahy Floral Co. was right on time with their rose crop for Mothers' day, which came in mighty handy, considering that the other lines of stock were far short of the demand.

To report for the retailers interviewed, they all have the same to say—"Business was ahead of expectations and exceeded any other Mothers' day in the past."

The C. C. Pollworth Co. attributes the success of last week's business to the co-operative work done by the press committee of the florists' club.

Last week the 140 employes of the Forest Home cemetery struck for an eight-hour day, plus an increase in wages. Same was granted.

Visitor: John Roratzos, of New York Floral Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

LIMITED SUPPLY FOR MOTHERS' DAY.

Mothers' day business was the event of the week. Prices were influenced from the start, as telegrams and letters came pouring in with orders and requests for prices. In most cases, there was disappointment, as flowers, particularly carnations, were never so scarce for this event. A few of the venture-some ones skurried over to New York and were able for large cash payments to secure some very good white carnations which were fed to the anxious ones at $12 to $15 per 100, the latter being the price for Matchless. Ten dollars was easily obtained for all home-grown white that were at all salable. Few of any color sold for less than eight dollars. In all other lines there was a like scarcity, with quite an advance in prices. The dark, dull and cold weather of the past two weeks seemed to hold the stock stationery on the plants, while all concerned were hoping against hope for a little sunshine. In the final days of the week the dealers were at their wits ends to make ends meet, dividing the meagre stock as equitably as possible. The demand was unquestionably larger than ever before and the volume of business would have been 50 per cent greater than last season had the stock been available to supply it. White roses were popular, and at their low price as compared with carnations, were by many, taken in preference. In all the smaller stores, paper white carnations, a very good looking imitation, sold for 10 cents each. These were taken in preference to the fresh flowers at 25 cents, which had to be asked to let the dealer out. While all are ready to take the Mothers' day trade that comes to them, only a few do anything to boost the day. None of the large stores in the center of the city featured the event in their windows; two had a Mothers' day picture, but the rest nothing referring to the day. If 25 other retail lines of trade had been furnished vases of flowers to place in their windows together with Mothers' day cards, scarcely one would have refused. The advertising value of such a display would certainly be worth much more than it would cost for the flowers. Why does not the trade of this city get together on matters of such interest to themselves?

NOTES.

Jos. G. Neidinger, in speaking of advancing prices, stated that tin, such as is used to make basket containers, which used to cost $6 per case, was now $20, and only to be had after a wait of three to four months. Wax stock used in making flowers had also gone up 125 per cent. Paints and other materials had also greatly advanced in price.

The Rittenhouse flower market will be held in Rittenhouse square May 23. This is an annual charity event at which quantities of plants and flowers, all donated, are sold for the benefit of local hospitals. It is patterned after the flower markets of Paris.

C. C. McDermott, the Lord & Burnham Co.'s chief in this city, is much pleased with the outlook. Many inquiries are being received for new work

Don't Wait

Now is the time to send us a shipment of flowers and acquaint yourself with the satisfactory treatment you receive when you ship to New York's Foremost Commission House in the flower trade.

Extensive experience, ample capital, modern facilities and, in fact, everything to commend us to you.

Special opportunity for a couple of Good Rose Growers who are looking for best returns. Our present demand is larger than our supply.

UNITED CUT FLOWER CO., Inc., 111 W. 28th St., New York City

from men, who in spite of the unsettled conditions, feel encouraged to go ahead.

Berger Brothers could have handled a much greater volume of business had the weather man treated their growers to a little more sunshine the past week. Roses, sweet peas and carnations were the specials.

Mothers' day demand was more than equal to the supply with the Leo Nielsen Co. Everything excepting a few high class roses sold up clean. American Beauty roses of fine quality are leaders here.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists Exchange had a good Mother's day trade. White carnations were not scarce here if one had the price. Roses and sweet peas were handled in quantity.

The Joseph Heacock Co. had the best cut of roses May 12 that had been recorded for two weeks. It was due to the mild weather of the previous day which opened up the buds.

Paul Berkowitz, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., is on a trip through the New England states. Their tricolor national baskets for Memorial day are having a great run.

"Could not begin to get enough stock," was the word at Bernheimer's. There was more demand than ever before.

Edward Reid reported everything sold up; could have handled twice as much had the stock come in. K.

TRADE FOR MOTHERS' DAY FAIR.

The Mothers' day business was very fair for the wholesalers, because the unseasonable cool and dark weather seems to have reduced the supply of carnations, at least in the eastern states. We did not observe that the local demands for white carnations was heavy, but buyers came in from neighboring cities, which put up the price. Good whites went to $8 per 100 with a few sales at $10. Ward and other good varieties ran from $6 to $8. The weather of the past week has been a continuation of what we have had since the first of May. The supply of cut stock has been greatly reduced, but there is more than enough to supply all demands. American Beauties are very slow at from $15 to $25 per 100. There is an abundant supply of other roses. Lilies are a little off crop and good stock brings eight cents per flower. In cattlyeas and various other stocks, there is an abundant supply.

CLUB METING.

The monthly meeting of the florists' club was held in its rooms in the Grand Opera House building on the evening of May 14. It was announced that the next flower show will be held in the Grand Central Palace, March 14-21, 1918. A very able committee will be in charge. The reports from various committees showed that everything was progressing most favorably, especially in regard to the convention of the S. A. F., which will be held here August 21-24.

A standard Vim chassis, mounted with a special body for florists, is being shown by the Manhattan Motors Corporation for service as a light delivery truck.

RECORD-BREAKING SEASON'S BUSINESS.

All branches of the trade, without exception, are unanimous in their opinion that the past has been as good, if not their best season ever. A record-breaking Memorial day business is confidently expected and great preparations are being made to secure stock enough for all demands. Those who handle the magnolia wreaths trimmed with artificial flowers have them in from 500 to 4,000 lots. They range in price at retail from $1 to $1.50 and $2; some bring as much as $4, but the quantity is the $1.50 size. While there was great demand, particularly for carnations, for Mothers' day, comparatively few of the retailers featured the occasion in their windows. There were a few of the Chicago Florists' club posterettes to be seen, and a cooperative ad had been run in one issue of the Boston Post, occupying a space 6x9 inches, costing about $150, paid for by money collected from all branches of the trade. Patrick Welsh, in speaking of the growers and wholesalers contributing to this fund to create a demand for flowers, said the retailers would not pay the price that the present scarcity and the demand had created; as the market stood, carnations were worth, mixed and all white, $8 to $10 per hundred, but the retailers "squealed" so that he felt it was like throwing money away to help boost such an event. Of course, other stock was helped to an extent, but it was the carnation that was wanted first or nothing doing with the rest. Six to eight dollars was the price last season, but the market quantity is at least 40 per cent behind that of a year ago. The two cutflower markets were objects of interest to the buyers of flowers. From 6:30 until 7:30 a. m. there is one grand push and hustle, the buyers hurrying from one stall to another looking for this or that flower. Carnations were the leaders, and with only 60 per cent of a crop, and the usual or even larger demand, prices soared. Six dollars was high last year, but by common consent prices advanced to $8, and this figure soon became general for all mixed, with $10 for all white. There were quantities of other flowers, which, in the case of roses, advanced from 25 to 50 per cent, but with most of the other stock, much of which is sold in bunches and is produced in quantity, prices were normal, with a very good cleanup.

NOTES.

The coming outdoor show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society is, Secretary Rich says, to be the horticultural event of the year. The grounds are enclosed. The R. & J. Farquhar & Co. rock garden and lily pond is in course of construction and other features are also well advanced. The first day's receipts are to go to the Red Cross Society. Tickets, $5 each.

David and Edward J. Welsh, 280 Devonshire street, had a splendid trade for their first season, with a most encouraging outlook. A great stock of magnolia wreaths with artificial flower trimming was on hand for the rush. Their large ice box was filled with a fine stock at Mothers' day, among which was a good proportion of carnations.

Welsh Bros. Co. carried a very good stock of roses, sweet peas, candytuft and daffodils as well as carnations for Mothers' day. New crop dagger ferns were a feature. A splendid business was the result.

B. A. Snyder & Co., 278 Devonshire street, deal largely in supplies and carry a good line of cut flowers. Very good carnations in quantity were a feature. A great Memorial day business was expected.

McAlpine & McDonald, with both supplies and cut flowers, were kept very busy. Ophelia and other choice roses were in good supply.

H. M. Robinson & Co. was in the midst of a great rush in supplies and cut flowers that would last until after Memorial day.

The retail cutflower stores of Boston are as high class as any in the country. It would be hard to find three more elegant flower palaces than those of Philip L. Carbone, Thos. F. Galvin, Inc., and Penn. The Florist. Penn's Mothers' day window was exceedingly attractive. A figure of a middle-aged mother, seated in a chair, receiving a bunch of sweet peas from her 10-year-old daughter, was the centerpiece. On the floor of the window were placed in small easels a number of good-sized photographs, principally full figures of elderly ladies. On a larger easel was a draped picture of Whistler's mother in a frame. There were palms and daisies in pots as a background. Also, about the window, were made up baskets of cut flowers. The inscription underneath the Whistler frame was "Be thoughtful of your loving mother—Send her a box of flowers for Mothers' day." Thos. F. Galvin's Park street store, with its elegant show windows, the magnificent interior, commodious flower case, handsome statuary and appointments, is a model of perfection and utility. A very good season, and business still keeping up, was the report. Julius A. Zinn, a few doors further up Park street, had enjoyed a good season. A prominent sign read: "This is a Reciprocity Store." A black interior to the ice case was novel. Mr. Zinn contended that the flowers showed up much better than with a white or mirrored ground. Henry R. Comley, 6 Park street, featured a vegetable garden as a window attraction. His Eastern Beauty carnation, a white with a dash of pink in the center, is a novelty. It would sell in any competition. A very good business was the good word.

AND VICINITY

We handle a larger, more complete, and finer supply of Cut Flowers and Plants than any other Retail Florist in this city, consequently we can give you unequalled service at all times. Another point to be taken into consideration is that we are located in the heart of the Great Chicago loop, close to the wholesale cut flower market, depots, leading hotels, theaters, restaurants, etc., making it possible for us to guarantee quick delivery and proper filling of each and every order on short notice.

Carbone's beautiful collection of everything in handsome statuary, garden furniture, cut flower bowls and vases, jardinières, etc., as well as the best in flowering and foliage plants and cut flowers is a veritable palace of beauty. Displayed wherever possible with plants and flowers best suited to them, and all artistically arranged on the street and mezzanine floors of his combined stores, everything was set off to the best possible advantage—a great source of artistic inspiration.

The Hoffman Flower Store was nicely decorated. Blooming plants are a feature. Examples of made-up work were conspicuous.

Oklahoma City.

DEMAND FOR MOTHERS' DAY HEAVY.

Business on Mothers' day was the largest ever experienced for the occasion. Everything in cut flowers sold out satisfactorily; not only was the local trade heavy but there were many telegraphic orders handled.

Mann, the florist on the south side, has had a trailer built for his Ford which seems a great convenience for bringing his plants and flowers to market. He conducts a store on California avenue which he supplies entirely from his own establishment.

The Stiles Co. has finished planting carnations in the field. The weather so far has been very favorable for the plants. S. S. B.

CALIFORNIA will more than double her acreage of small table beans this year.

PARCEL POST service between the United States and Norway has been suspended.

It is estimated that 734,000 pounds of beans are held in storage in Lynchburg, Va., by speculators.

CALIFORNIA jobbers in calla bulbs say it does not pay to collect, cure and ship them east at present trade prices.

ONION SETS are practically sold out in the Chicago district. The new crop is coming up in the fields, but needs rain.

THE board of directors of the Wholesale Seedsmen's League will meet Tuesday, May 22, at the Hardware Club, New York.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, May 16, were as follows: Timothy, $5.50 to $7.75 per 100 pounds.

THE backyard garden craze is said to have used up all the surplus lettuce seed in California. Nothing will be available but the 1917 crop.

ONE thousand bushels of No. 1 hard spring wheat were recently sold in Chicago for delivery in New England at $3.75 per bushel, for seeding purposes.

THE export of seeds of carrot, cauliflower, kohlrabi, mangold, parsnip, onion, Swede turnip and peas is now prohibited in England except by special license.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—S. Murata & Co. report lively demand in clover and blue grass. The counter trade at the Germain Seed & Plant Co. has been the largest in its history.

CHARLES G. WEBER, who with Alexander L. Don, formed the firm of Weeber & Don, New York, in 1890, and from which he retired from active interest in 1901, died at his home in Brooklyn, May 8, aged 74 years.

CHAS. JOHNSON, the veteran seedsmen, returned this week to his old home at Marietta, Pa., from Berkeley, Calif. Mr. Johnson accompanied his wife to California some years ago, going there for the benefit of her health. Mrs. Johnson died April 21, in her sixty-fifth year.

THE tuberose growers of North Carolina are now devoting their land to food crops. A freight rate to Europe of $10 per barrel, and new ocean travel conditions, has proved prohibitive there to the export of this stock this season, and the prospects of its continuance has evidently led the growers to change to food crops.

Seedsmen and Agricultural Dep't Meeting

At the meeting of seedsmen and representatives of the department of agriculture, held at Washington, D. C., last week, the seedsmen present agreed as a war measure to mark packages containing 10 pounds or more of field and forage seeds in such manner as to show:

1. Name of seedsmen.
2. Kind of seed.
3. Proportion of pure live seed present, with month and year of germination test.
4. Country or locality of origin in the case of the following imported seeds: Beans, soy beans, Turkestan alfalfa and red clover from Southern Europe and Chile.

All information either to be on labels securely attached or to be stenciled directly on sacks or other containers.

Among those present were representatives of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; F. W. Bolgiano & Co., Washington, D. C.; Crabb, Reynolds, Taylor Co., Crawfordsville, Ind.; D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich.; Illinois Seed Co., Chicago, Ill.; J. Chas. McCullough, Cincinnati, O.; Wm. Henry Maule Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn.; Nungesser-Dickinson Seed Co., New York; Everett R. Peacock Co., Chicago; Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y.; T. W. Wood & Sons, Richmond, Va.; Wood, Stubbs & Co., Louisville, Ky.

Both the American Seed Trade Association and the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association will be asked by their presidents to conform with the practice.

Canary Island Onion Seed Crop Prospects.

The outlook at this date for the Canary Island onion seed crop is excellent, as both to quality and quantity, according to data supplied the consulate by leading growers. The 1917 crop has suffered little from the "blight," which in recent years has done much damage. As regards quantity this year's crop is said to be very large, planting having been much stimulated by the success of last season's record crop, when the exports to the United States reached a value of $84,314. Favorable growing conditions have prevailed, especially as regards rainfall for the large "secano" or un-irrigated onion seed acreage. Present estimates appear to indicate seed in excess of the 74,987 pounds produced last year.

Conditions seem to indicate the probability of falling prices as soon as the effects of a large crop are felt in the market. A stock of the 1916 white or "wax" seed is reported to exist, and buyers would do well to carefully specify in all contracts for strictly 1917 seed, as year-old seed, it is claimed, fails to give as good results as the strictly fresh article.

Owing to the unusual conditions governing international trade the balance of exchange is heavily against the dollar and in favor of the peseta. Consequently, American buyers should, when possible, have all prices specified in terms of United States coin. It has also been suggested as advantageous for American buyers to agree to settle only after their purchases have been actually put on board ship in a Canary Island port. Many contracts already made have placed all the risk of failure to secure ocean carriage entirely on the American buyer. Yet with prospects of abundant seed, it might be possible for buyers to arrange payment only after actual embarkment on board ship.

Shipments of seed via Liverpool are not possible this season, and the only available route would appear to be via Havana, Cuba, or San Juan, Porto Rico. Even here there are now scheduled but two ships per month, as compared with four during the onion-crop season of last year.

The only remaining possible route would be via Cadiz, Spain, where transshipment to New York might be secured; but this route is not regarded favorably here because of the chances of having the merchandise damaged by delays at the intermediate port, a point especially to be avoided by southern buyers, who must make close connections in order to suit the early planting needs of that important onion-growing section.

NEW YORK—The MacNiff Horticultural Co. has bought the entire stock of the Cyphers Incubator Co., corner Barclay and Church streets, and after June 1 will be the sole representatives of the concern in this city. On completion of alterations this firm claims it will have the largest seed, plant and poultry supply salesrooms in the world.

 California Onion Seed in Bermuda.

In November, 1915, a trade letter was received at the Hamilton consulate from an onion-seed firm in California. This letter was brought to the attention of the director of agriculture of Bermuda, with the result that two pounds of seed were ordered at once by cable. These seeds were planted at the agricultural station, with such satisfactory results that a local firm was induced to accept the agency in Bermuda for the sale of California onion seed. The director of agriculture states he anticipates that California will be the source toward which Bermuda will look in future for its supply of onion seed. The following statement is from the Bermuda Colonist and Daily News:

"We have on exhibition in our office a number of onions grown from imported California seed. The bulbs are exceptionally fine in appearance, being good and solid with plenty of thickness in proportion to diameter, but the point that will interest the Bermuda farmer the most and possibly affect the future of the Bermuda onion industry is the fact that the seed germinates very rapidly and tests have shown 98 per cent fertility. From the time of setting out the young plants to reaping the crop the time elapsed was four days less than three months to produce onions averaging about seven ounces apiece. Local tests have shown that seeds come practically true to type, not one per cent showing silver skins, and less than one-half of one per cent showing any trace of red."

Smoot Attacks Seed Dealers.

Some days ago the newspapers reported Senator Smoot's speech telling how the recent agitation for home gardens was being capitalized by "some dealers." Senator Smoot was reported as saying: "A friend of mine proceeded to dig up his back yard and then went to purchase seed. He bought this seed in packages at five cents per package. In one there were eight peas, although the picture on the package showed nine in a pod; in another 13 beet seed and in a third were 15 radish seed. At this rate radish seed would cost $25 or $30 a pound. If this is to be the universal practice millions will be wasted on seed. I shall call the attention of the secretary of agriculture to the matter."

By all means do so, Senator, and give the secretary of agriculture the name of the seed concern that puts up packets of seeds of this kind. Several New York seedsmen have called the attention of the Sun to Senator Smoot's remarks and his reflections upon the seed trade. The seedsmen think that Senator Smoot should have investigated the matter before placing a statement of this kind before the public, the inference being that the practice was general, which is not the case. The name of the firm putting up such packets as referred to should have been given, as it was very likely some small and obscure concern. None of the seedsmen who advertise in the Sun put up any such light weight packets, and gardeners know it. Deal with reliable seedsmen, Senator, like Vaughan, Burnee, Dreer, James Vick's Sons, Weeber & Don, Boddington, Thorburn and any of the others who advertise in the Sun and fair treatment can be depended on. A Sun reporter last week bought enough seeds to start a good sized farm, but nowhere found evidence of overcharging. Five cent packets of beet and radish seeds contained nearer a hundred than the number named by Mr. Smoot, while each nickel expended for peas brought a quarter of a pint. Dealers denied indignantly that any extortion is being practiced.—New York Sun.

FIELD SEEDS

The "Clipper" Variable Air Regulator

under control and entirely free from fluctuation is one of the most essential and important considerations in cleaning seeds and grains.

Different kinds of seeds and grains, and, different conditions of the seeds or grains, call for varying strength of the air blast used in separating the dust, chaff, and light shrunken seeds or grain from the heavy, perfect seeds and grain. The "Clipper" Variable Air Regulator gives exact control of the air blast at every desired point. "From a Zephyr to a Hurricane" (and every intermediate point between) exactly describes the range of air blast that can be secured by this mechanical device. We can produce a blast strong enough to blow out the heaviest grain, or peas or beans, and by an adjustment requiring but an instant, reduce the blast sufficient for handling the lightest seeds such as timothy, red top or blue grass.

Bermuda Onion Production.

Reports received from correspondents of United States department of agriculture, from all sections of the Bermuda onion district of Texas, indicate a general condition May 1, 1917, of 65.1 per cent of normal, as compared with a general condition of 67.8 per cent on April 15, 1917, a decrease of 2.7 points, which forecasts a yield of about 234 crates per acre, or a total production of 2,819,700 crates, the equivalent of 6,077 cars of 464 crates each, or 5,422 cars of 520 crates each. On April 1, 1917, the condition of the crop was reported as 68.5 per cent of normal, which indicated a yield of about 246 crates per acre, or a total production of 2,964,300 crates, the equivalent of 6,388 cars of 464 crates each, or 5,700 cars of 520 crates each. No change in this forecast was indicated by the condition of the crop on April 15, 1917.

New Zealand Spinach.

We have had excellent results from our New Zealand spinach under glass as a forcing vegetable, and now wish to call attention to the merits of this plant as a summer crop. It will stand the summer's heat and furnish continuous cutting when the common spinach is out of business. We hesitated at first to push this spinach, believing it would not sell, but as a winter crop it was fairly easy to invite people to try it. To this end, we often handed out free samples to interested parties until the demand exceeded the supply. Now after the customers are educated to use it, we will have less trouble to introduce it as a hot weather crop.

There is in our locality an enormous demand for spinach in summer; so much so, that about July 1, when the common spinach fails owing to heat, the market is often wide open. This spinach is a vigorous growing, spreading plant of easy culture. It needs plenty of room—say from 18 inches upwards. Rows could be laid out for horse cultivation and the plants spaced closer in the rows. To cut for market, we trim off the side branches and allow the main plant to recover. This way a comparatively small area furnishes a big supply. MARKETMAN.

Vegetable Shipments from the South.

Rail shipments of new potatoes from Florida during the week, May 1-7, were 837 cars, as compared with 227 cars during the corresponding period last year, the total shipments for this season to date amounting to 2,359 cars. F. O. B. prices on carlots of new potatoes at Hastings, Fla., remain firm at $7.75 to $8.00 per barrel and $6.75 to $7.00 per 150-pound sack.

Shipments of Bermuda onions from Texas during the above period averaged nearly 100 cars per day; total shipments for the season, to May 7, amounted to 3,312 cars, only 377 cars less than during the comparable season in 1916. First grade yellows are quoted at Laredo at $1.40 to $1.50 per crate, an advance of about 30 cents per crate over prices last year on the same date.

Tomato shipments from Florida for the week of May 1-7 were 563 cars, as compared with 325 cars in the corresponding period last year; total shipments this season to date amount to 1,293 cars. The average price is from $1.50 to $1.60 per six-basket carrier.

Fungoid and Insect Pests.

"Fungoid and Insect Pests of the Farm," by F. R. Petherbridge M. A., biological adviser, School of Agriculture, Cambridge, a book of 174 pages, well illustrated, has been recently published by the Cambridge University Press for those wishing to acquire practical knowledge of the commoner forms of farm and garden pests and economical means of control. Included in its contents are chapters devoted to potato diseases and allied diseases, finger and toe and wart diseases, mil-dews, ergot and clover sickness, rusts, smuts, butterflies and moths, beetles, flies, aphides, sawflies and eelworms. The book may be had at the office of THE AMERICAN FLORIST, price $1.25.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

John Watson, Newark, N. Y., President; Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President; Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress Street, Boston, Mass., Secretary and Counsel.

Forty-second annual convention will be held at Philadelphia, Pa., June 27-29, 1917.

ROSEDALE, KAN.—Gerald L. Holsinger, nurseryman, has been appointed a lieutenant in the navy.

FREEPORT, ILL.—The contract for plants and shrubs for beautifying the city park system has been awarded to the Freeport Floral Co.

COLUMBUS, O.—The Upper Arlington Co. is planting a carload of shrubbery received from the Bay City Nursery Co. in the parkways of its subdivision.

ESPARTO, CALIF.—Robert McCloud is in a hospital at Woodland suffering from a fractured skull and other serious injuries, the result of a run-away.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—David Campbell will continue in the position of superintendent of parks under Frank Westcott, recently appointed park commissioner.

THERE is a tree in California which produces fruit valued at $3,000 annually, according to report. It is an avocado pear tree and is insured for $30,000.

EUREKA, CALIF.—At the annual meeting of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Chas. Willis Ward was elected president; R. T. Brown, vice-president and S. E. Bergstrom, secretary-treasurer. The capital stock was increased from $75,000 to $300,000, all paid up.

NILES, CALIF.—The California Nursery Co. has enjoyed one of its busiest seasons, with an exceptional demand for evergreens. The supply of large sizes in many items was short. Heavy sales of fruit stocks are anticipated, due to the high prices offered for crops.

SAN JOSE, CALIF.—A feature of the tulip and iris show held here May 4-5, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce was the exhibit of 10,000 of the first named flowers staged by the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Eureka, Calif., under the direction of W. B. Clarke, manager.

Forsythias.

It is three years since the forsythias have bloomed as they are blooming this year, for last year and the year before many of the flower-buds of some of the species were killed in the arboretum by severe winter cold. This year the flower-buds are uninjured and the flowers of many of the plants are now at their best. Those of the Servian F. europaea, however, will not open for a few days. Apart from the value of all the species as garden plants, forsythia is of special interest to gardeners for, like syringa and philadelphus, it is a genus whose species hybridize freely and produce new seedling forms which are often superior to the parents. The hybrid forsythias are probably all natural, that is, they have probably all appeared without man's assistance, and those which are now known appear to have been produced by the crossing of F. viridissima with F. suspensa or its variety, Fortunei. The general name of these plants is Forsythia intermedia and there are several forms. Those in the arboretum collection are planted at the rear of the large mass of forsythias on the bank at the base of the Bussey Hill road, below the lilac collection. The handsomest of them is F. intermedia spectabilis, and of all the forsythias which have been grown in the arboretum this is the most beautiful. The flowers are larger than those of its parents, and deep bright yellow. This plant was sent to the arboretum from Germany several years ago. Other distinct and handsome forms of the hybrid are var. primulina and var. pallida; the former has pale primrose colored flowers and appeared as a seedling in the arboretum a few years ago. The var. pallida has pale straw-colored flowers which are paler than those of other forsythias. The flower-buds of these hybrids appear to suffer less from extreme cold than those of either of their parents, at least in the arboretum, and the buds of the different forms of F. intermedia have never been injured by cold.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, May 8, 1917.

Heart-Rot of Oaks.

In a reprint from the Journal of Agricultural Research, the United States department of agriculture calls attention to the fact that Polyporus dryophilus is one of the chief causes of deterioration of the oaks in the western United States. In Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, the piped rot produced by this fungus is very common, and among other species the white oak is commonly attacked. The first indication is a discoloration of the heartwood, which assumes a water-soaked appearance. In the chestnut oak the diseased wood is hazel in color. The fungus, as far as known, gains entrance in the wood of the host trees only through wounds in which the heartwood is exposed, the most common point being a broken or dead limb, although it enters freely through fire scars and other basal wounds.

Trees diseased with heart-rot should not be left standing for seed. Trees in the wood lot should be inspected annually, and all such as are affected with heart-rot should be removed. If the trunk of a tree so affected is struck with an ax it does not ring with a clear sound.

GRAND JUNCTION, COLO.—Francis X. Goeschl, of the Grand Junction Floral Co., was adjudged a bankrupt April 30. The first meeting of creditors will be held at the office of Charles W. Taylor, Referee in Bankruptcy, Glenwood Springs, Colo., May 22.

Rooted Carnation Cuttings Immediate Delivery.

We are now booking orders for our New Seedling SUPERB— $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

SUPERB is a seedling of Gloriosa and Enchantress. It has the good stem of Gloriosa and the fine growing habit of Enchantress. The color is a flesh pink, and it keeps its color at all seasons. The flowers average about three inches, are very full, and generally receive full score on substance. The flowers are all perfect and do not split. In the four years we have grown it, it has proved the best commercial variety, barring none.

AVIATOR If you want Scarlet Carnations for Christmas, grow Aviator. $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

Sewickley Horticultural Society.
 The regular meeting of the above society was held May 8, President Barnet in the chair. The schedule as presented by the committee for the September exhibition was adopted.
 The following motion was carried: That we, the Sewickley Horticultural Society, view with hearty approval the efforts being made by the Women's Club of Sewickley in the active work they have undertaken in the cultivation of vacant lots in Sewickley and its environs and offer them our hearty co-operation in the undertaking if acceptable to that organization.
 M. Curran and Wm. Thompson exhibited fine specimens of herbaceous calceolaria and J. Barnet displayed vases of persica in variety.
JOHN CARMAN, Sec'y.

PARKERSBURG, WEST VA.—The flower store of J. W. Dudley & Son recently presented a patriotic window display that was greatly admired. A large plaque with the profile of President Wilson surrounded by choice blooms was draped with a continuous silk ribbon flag which made a background at all points that was an inspiration.

THE BOOK OF GLADIOLUS

THE first authoritative book on this bulb ever printed in America, or possibly the world, issued April 1, 1911. This 120-page book, written by Matthew Crawford and Dr. Van Fleet, contains many chapters covering all sides of growing, propagating, storing, etc., and also some pages of valuable cultural notes gathered from reliable sources. A necessity for both amateur and grower. The book is bound in cloth and fully illustrated.

COLD WEATHER SHORTENS SUPPLY.

Cool weather for this season of the year, and for an unusually long period, has had the effect of shortening the supply of stock, and bedding plants have had little opportunity to come on. Vegetable gardens are also backward. Business has been very good with a daily cleanup at prices somewhat advanced. Carnations were scarce and Mothers' day was confronted with a decided deficiency in supply, with no relief to be had from the northern markets. The selling price was $1.50 per dozen and roses advanced from $2.50 to $3.50. Peonies are coming into flower and are very fine and luxuriant, many of them being much in demand in the northern markets. Outdoor lily of the valley, almost equal in quality to the forced variety, is quite abundant. The sale of bedding plants is tremendous and everybody is doing a thriving business. The cold weather and high winds are causing the porch and window boxes to suffer. Rain is badly needed.

NOTES.

B. F. Woodward, superintendent of Mount Olivet cemetery, died recently aged 90 years. The cemetery greenhouses are now maintained solely for the purpose of supplying lot-owners with bedding plants, no other trade being catered to.

The Joy Floral Co. has been shipping fine peonies to Chicago and other points for several days. T. H. Joy has returned from a trip to various points in the state with the local Boosters' club.

Chas. Tritchler has been doing a fine plant business. M. C. D.

Garland Vegetable House, 84x900 Feet

This is the third order that this concern has placed with us during the last three years, which speaks well for the Garland Greenhouses. The first order was for a large vegetable house to be erected at Ottawa, 76 x 900 feet, and the second order was for 13 vegetable houses, which are now being operated at Streator. The last order will be an addition to their Ottawa range.

If you are planning on building any vegetable, plant or cut flower houses this season, it will be worth your while to get in touch with us. Garland houses are recognized by most growers as the best kind to build.

WAR AND JUNE WEDDINGS.

What Will the Month Bring Forth?

Simplicity will not Affect Floral Features.

The approach of the month of brides raises in florists' minds the question of how much the business which the month of June usually brings, will be affected by the war. Some view with apprehension the tendency to diminish the eclat with which marriages, particularly in June, are wont to be celebrated, and to curtail the social affairs that accompany these ceremonies. It is well, however, to remember in this connection that it is the one extraordinary occurrence which attracts our attention, while dozens, yea hundreds, of usual incidents transpire without getting our notice. Though the society pages of the daily newspapers just now play up the weddings where simplicity is substituted for extravagance, the florist knows from his own order books that plenty of ceremonies are being carried out in the customary elaborate fashion.

To overcome the unsettling effect of the newspapers' disturbing war-talk, London commercial houses two years ago advertised, "Business as Usual During the War." And it is remarkable, in view of the panic expected by some people upon the outbreak of hostilities, that many London retail shops have done business not merely "as usual," but with an increase of profit.

Weddings as Usual.

So, too, there will be weddings as usual during the period of the war. The class that rushed to the marriage-license bureau instead of to the enlisting office is not the sort which brings the florist profits. Nor are those who go through the ceremony on the spur of the moment, when the man prepares to leave for the front, the kind to contribute to any extent to the florist's coffers. Moreover, both these groups include relatively a very small number of people.

Society weddings are, if we believe the daily papers, being celebrated without the elaborate festivities that are customary. Yet, when one stops to think about it, these extremely "simple" affairs are the most expensive. It would not do for any society pair to give color to talk that they are doing the thing in simple manner in order to avoid expense. For, on the contrary, they are only doing it to be in tone with the solemn seriousness of the crisis which the country is facing. This they must make quite apparent, say they in their minds. So they have everything "simple yet elegant," "plain yet costly," as the story-books phrase it, and spend even more than they would otherwise, rather than less.

The Florist's Influence.

This the florist must bear in mind, and when he is preparing his advertising for June brides and bridegrooms, leave out anything which might be construed to mean that any economy is being practiced in weddings at present, particularly in the matter of flowers. The man who complains of dull business, usually does a dull business, while he who is eternally optimistic and says, "Never was better," takes the trade away from him. The human race has a marked and ineradicable desire to climb into the band-wagon and follow the procession. Why not, then, start the parade up the hill, rather than down?

Whether he understands it or not, the florist has it in his power to influence trade one way or another. The salesman who, when he sees a look of doubt in his customer's eyes, hastily says: "Now here is something a little cheaper," ends by cultivating a cheap trade, while the salesman who, in similar circumstances, says: "Perhaps you are interested in something better," is bound to raise the level of his sales prices in the long run.

Bridal Preparedness.

An additional reason why florists should go after June wedding orders with as great expectations as in other years, is that families which patronize this trade for such an occasion, prepare for a large bill of expenses. An affair that comes but once (as a rule) in a lifetime is not the one on which they will stint themselves. Nor is the bridegroom, because the cost of living is ascending, at all likely to try to trim expenses when he orders the bride's bouquet. He may decide that, with gasoline rising buoyantly in cost, he can only afford a fiver this year instead of the seven-passenger car he contemplated previously, for another year he will be better able to get the more expensive machine, but he can never make up for skimping on his wedding expenditures. Moreover, marriage assumes an added seriousness in time of war, since this aspect of life is unconsciously associated with that other phase which war so greatly magnifies.

Getting the Business.

For these various reasons the florist who employs the means available to him for securing June wedding orders will find his efforts amply repaid. There are many ways open. Newspaper advertising and window displays are common, and very useful. The wide-awake florist who knows what is going on in a social way in his locality can use the additional methods of circularization and direct solicitation. Here is where that always handy but not enough employed device, the card index system, comes in well. The many little facts that the salesman learns when he sells an order are wedges for further business, if they are jotted down on a card under the customer's name, and so made available for use when the proper time comes. The announcement of a marriage date months ago becomes now the key to securing an order, provided the florist has filed that information.

Wedding Accessories.

With the advent of the spring wedding season, it is well to be supplied with all the latest up-to-date accessories. A good display of such material has its effect in securing orders, as "Here it is" makes a far better impression than, "We will get it for you."

One of the most important pieces of such furniture is the kneeling stool, or prie dieu. This is useful at the home wedding, as nicely decorated it is the cynosure of all eyes, just before the arrival of the bridal party. Behind this the clergyman stands waiting. After the ceremony it is pushed back against the palms, in front of which the bride and groom receive.

Frequently the bridal procession is through the parlor in which are gathered the guests. Ribbon posts and wicker stands, with a ring at the top through which the ribbon is passed, are used to form an aisle. Shepherd crooks stuck into flat round disc foundations, make good ribbon supports. These stand five to six feet in height; the ribbon is tied to each, together with a spray of a half dozen roses or lilies. These crooks present a very good and novel appearance for this purpose.

Tall floor vases are almost sure to be needed for the wedding decoration. To live up groups of palms, there is nothing better; also, for chrysanthemums, lilies, long stemmed roses, peonies, etc.

Heavy white cord or rope, with generous tassels, is often used in marking the aisle in place of the ribbon and is quite effective.

Canopy frames are good stock to carry. The practical decorator can get up a canopy with the aid of smilax and strings of asparagus. To show the family, however, before the decision as to just what form the decoration will take, a frame work has its advantages.

Shepherd's Staff of Roses and Apple Blossoms.

By Z. D. Blackstone, Washington, D. C.

Bridesmaids' baskets, of which there are a number of patterns, some with handles, others low, while the folding hats are carried by the ribbon bows. Shepherds' crooks, tied with bunches of flowers and gay ribbons, take the place of bunches and baskets. A basket with a long stick which rests on the floor and relieves the maid of its weight during the ceremony, is said to be practical, although it would appear rather awkward to manage. At the church, when the ceremony is not performed at the chancel rail, but at the head of the center aisle below the pulpit platform, the prie dieu is a necessity.

To mark the section set aside for the families and relatives of the contracting couple, a pair of gates are often placed in the aisle, these being opened and closed by small boys dressed as pages.

Standards to hold large baskets or bouquets of flowers are effective on either side of the middle aisle. These should stand high so as not to obstruct the view of the bridal party. Decorated arches are also used in place of the standards with good effect.

A roll of white muslin of a width to almost cover the aisle adds a finishing touch that is well worth while. One end of this is tacked evenly to the floor at the extreme front end of the aisle and lies behind the prie dieu, rolled up on a round stick which projects a foot on either end. When the guests are seated, and as the bridal party are arriving, this is carried by two men, unrolling as they walk, to the front of the church where it is stretched out and with a tack or two fastened to the floor.

On either a carpet or tiled floor this clean white covering protects the fine dresses of the bride and her maids, and as an added feature is well worth the slight additional trouble and expense.

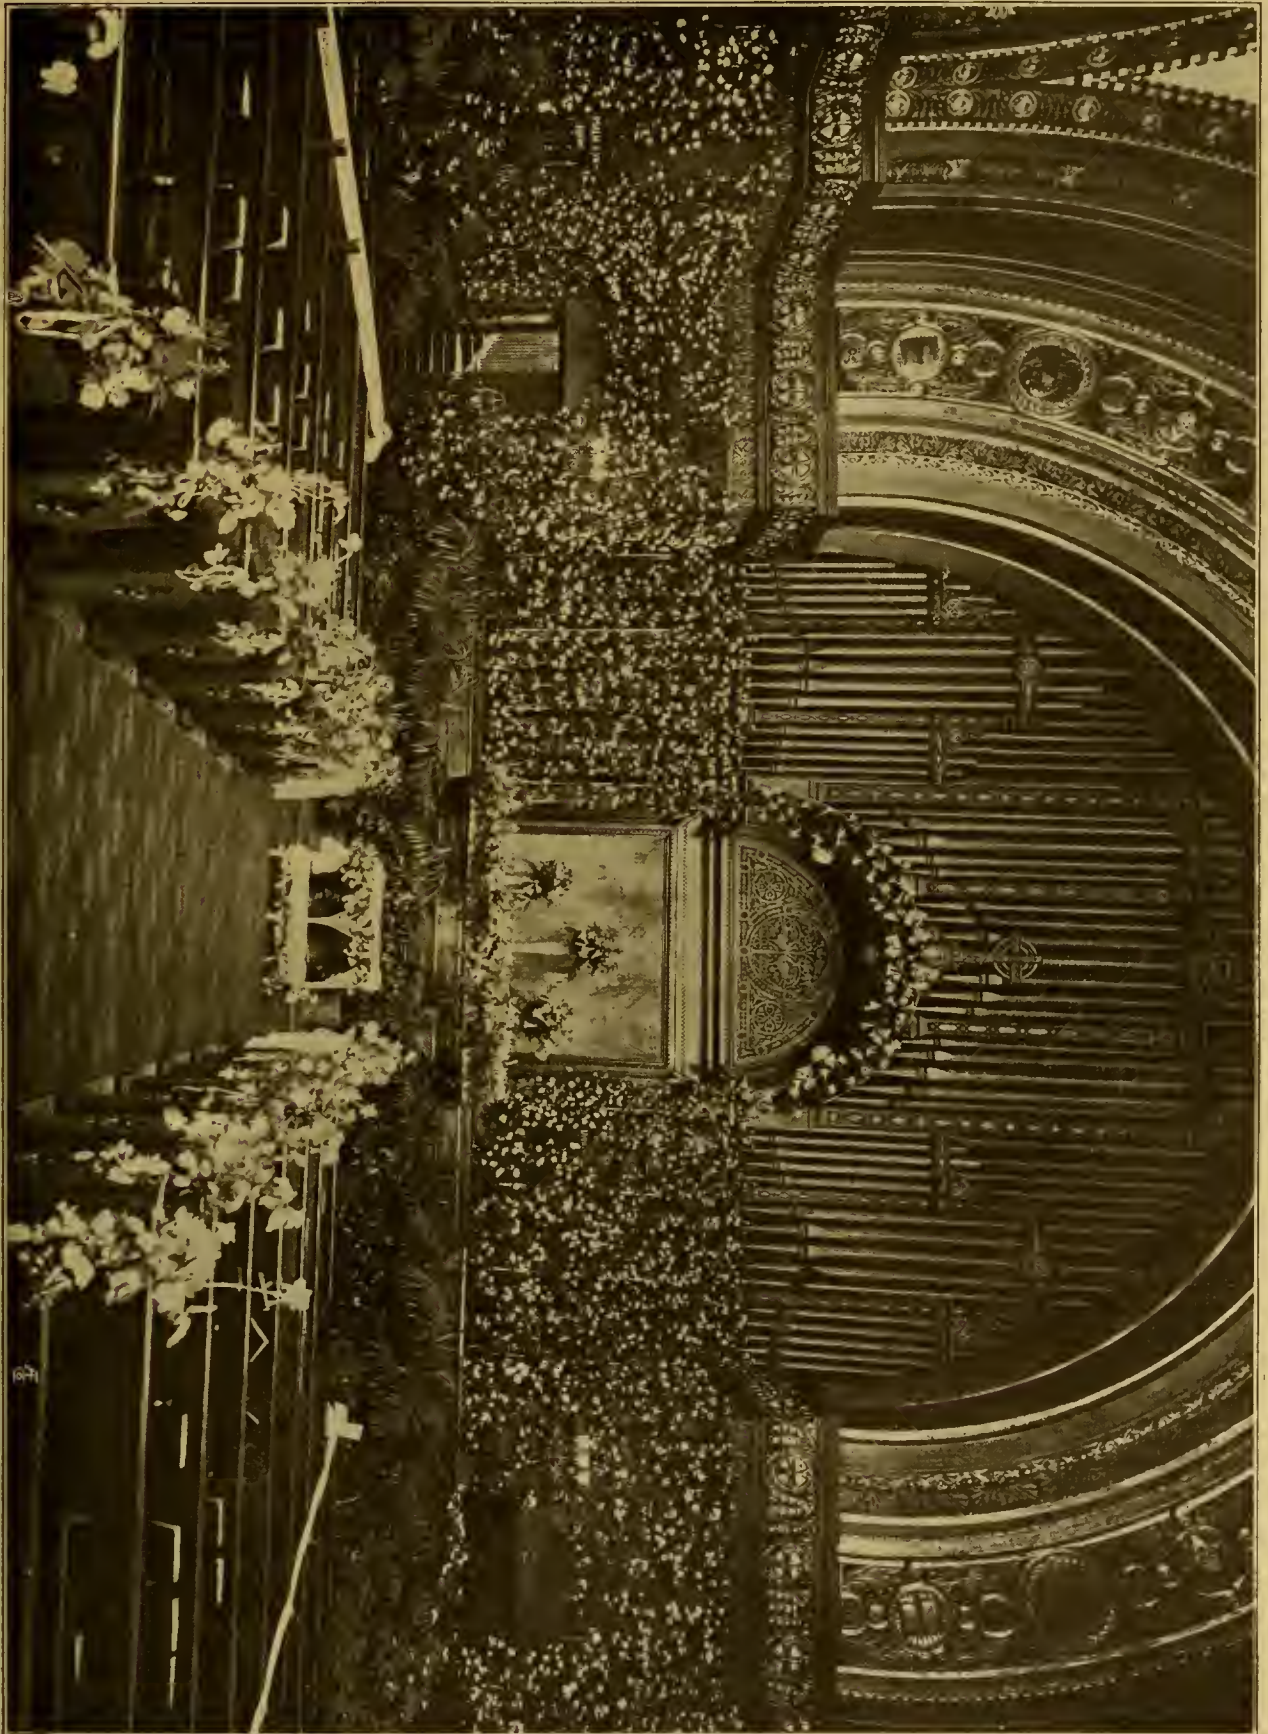

All the florist supply houses carry these "helps," each firm presenting something new each season. Ideas worked out by their factory force, or gotten up to order for some of their trade and put into commerce in this way.

Church Decoration.

The decoration of the church for the wedding is an important branch of the business. In public such a wedding is always more or less elaborate and in most cases gives the artist an opportunity to add to his laurels and at the same time increase substantially his bank account.

There are as many different ways in which the decorations can be arranged as there are changes of architecture in the churches. In many buildings the platform on which stands the pulpit is high, and the ceremony is performed at the head of the middle aisle on the main floor directly in front of the pulpit. In this case the platform not being used, is banked with palms. In many churches the front of the platform contains a wooden or sometimes a stone bannister or railing, which will support mossed boards or shelves of cut flowers with drapings of greens and flowers to the floor. If the platform is without the railing and is three or four feet in height, a ledge or border of potted flowering plants and cut flowers can be arranged to fall over the edge with the taller palms as a background. There is a general rule to be followed in decorations of large buildings of this character, and that is that everything is to work in together for the general effect; there are certain points to be emphasized, but it is the view that spreads out before one and that is seen at once, that pleases. With the ceremony at the head of the aisle it is nearly always necessary to remove a few of the front pews to make room for the bridal party. A raised platform one foot high, made solid and covered with denim or crash, places the ceremony within the view of all the guests, and is well worth the small additional expense. On this is placed the kneeling stool, which should be well decorated, as it is the central point to which all eyes are turned.

CHURCH WEDDING DECORATION OF LILIES AND WHITE AND PINK ROSES.

The treatment of the main aisle is important. This may be decorated with bunches of flowers and ribbon at ends of every pew or at intervals, or only on the pews reserved for the family and special guests. From one to two arches, or more, placed at regular intervals over the whole length of the aisle make an elaborate showing. Another beautiful effect is with standards of cut flowers on either side of the aisle at intervals; these can be more or less elaborate. Iron plant stands about three feet high make a good foundation on which to place tall American Beauty wicker vases which, when filled, make fine standards. Quite tall stands mossed up to resemble tree trunks with a cybotium fern at the top are very effective. If all these are considered too heavy, one-inch poles painted or wrapped with white cheese cloth with a more or less elaborate tree or basket of ferns at the top, or just a bunch of long-stemmed roses and a bow of ribbon or chiffon tied to the pole will be found very decorative. Arches or canopies are sometimes erected at the place where the ceremony is to be performed. The old-time bell is now seldom used, but can be suspended from the arch or canopy.

In the churches where the choristers' pews occupy the front of the chancel the pew ends fronting the audience should be decorated with baskets of cut flowers and green or heavy garlands of the same, all arranged so as not to hide the view of the ceremony at the altar. The rear of the chancel each side of the altar will contain the palms in this case, and tall American Beauty wicker vases of cut flowers will relieve the somber green. The altar vases should be well filled with choice blooms and the font with a handsome fern or a basket of long-stemmed flowers of the season. The window ledges can also be banked with foliage and blooming plants, and add much to the effect. In many churches columns are to be reckoned with, and these can be garlanded or made to support a climbing rose. Wrap the column with a stout green cord, using small blocks to leave a space behind the cord and fill this with short branches of laurel. This can be done the day before. Have a lot of roses, stemmed loosely, several together, and as late as possible stick them through the green. If nicely done, the effect of the climbing rose is well brought out, particularly if a pot cover mossed and filled with bunches is placed on a pedestal and the bush appears to be growing from this.

After the company have assembled the ushers should tie them in with the strip of ribbon across the pew ends. This, by the way, is best done by having the right lengths of ribbon wound on two round sticks about a foot in length. These sticks are painted white or wrapped with ribbon. These rolls are placed in the last reserved pews on each side of the aisles with the loose end of the ribbon securely fastened. With this preparation it is but the work of a moment for two ushers to walk to the rear and fasten the ribbon to the extreme end pews. Another last minute touch that is worth the trouble is made with a roll of white muslin the length of the middle aisle and from 36 to 48 inches in width. This is rolled on a stick which projects six inches or more from either end so that it may be carried. The loose end is tacked to the floor or platform where the ceremony takes place and left rolled up. Just as the bridal party are arriving and the guests are all seated two of the ushers or two boys selected for the work pick up the roll and carry it down the aisle, the roll unwinding as they proceed, and the other end is then quickly drawn taut and tacked to the floor strip of the front door. This gives a finished path that adds much to the bridal procession.

Floriculture at Iowa State College.

The work in the department of horticulture at the Iowa State College has been materially strengthened by the development of a major course of study in floriculture. Since Professor A. S. Thurston has taken charge of the work a number of new courses have been added and the students now have an opportunity to get a good knowledge of professional floriculture, both in theory and in practice. During the first two years of their college work the flori-cultural students are required to take work in the fundamental sciences, among which might be mentioned chemistry, botany, physics, entomology, soils and fertilizers. Students then devote the remaining two years to specialized work in floriculture, and to such other work as will supplement the floricultural courses. The following courses in floriculture are offered:

1. Greenhouse management. The management of greenhouses and the cultural requirements of crops under glass, including propagation, potting, watering, ventilation, insect and disease control and heating.
2. Greenhouse management. A combination of the preceding course, designed to give the student practical knowledge of the organization of greenhouse work and the various cultural operations and methods employed throughout the entire year.
3. Greenhouse construction. The various types of houses, their construction; principles and methods of heating; preparation of plans and specications for commercial and private ranges; estimating costs.

4. Commercial floriculture. Special consideration of the cultural requirements and methods of growing florists' bench crops and pot plants; specific problems in the establishment of detailed plans for the year in a florists

6. Floral arrangement and judging. Principles and methods of cut flower arrangement; interior decoration; the exhibiting and judging of cut flowers and plants.

7. Garden flowers. The selection, care and uses of garden flowers including annuals, herbaceous perennials, bulbs, bedding plants and roses; the nursery as an adjunct for the florist.

8. Special problems. Special investigation of cultural methods.

9. Thesis. A special subject requiring independent investigation and study; the results to be presented in the form of a written report.

10. Floricultural practice. Garden and greenhouse work.

11. Floricultural practice. Practical work in the college greenhouses in the management of houses and the growing of florists' crops.

12. Floricultural practice. A continuation of the preceding course so that the student may have a complete knowledge through practical experience of the work throughout the year.

Students are required to take in addition to the courses outlined, considerable work in landscape gardening, including three courses in landscape design, two courses in plant materials, one course in landscape architecture and one course in construction and maintenance. Plant breeding, horticultural machinery, diseases of horticultural plants, horticultural entomology, greenhouse pests, market gardening and vegetable forcing are other supplementary courses required during the last two years.

In addition to the laboratory work, three courses in floricultural practice, which are of an apprentice nature, give the student an opportunity to get a good working knowledge. In addition to these practical courses the students are required to have six months' practical experience with some commercial florist before being allowed to graduate. Course 7 in floricultural practice is given in the sophomore year and prevents misfits, as it offers an opportunity for students to find out by practical experience what floriculture is and whether or not they are adapted for this kind of work.

Philadelphia Notes.

A. Lidden Pennock, of Pennock Brothers, prepared a large plot of ground at Lansdowne and gave the use of it to the married employees of the firm, who are given a day off each week in which to plant and care for vegetables. It is divided into plots 60x75 feet, which will give each of these amateur gardeners a full supply of vegetables for the season. Success to them and we will take a look in when the melons are ripe.

It seems as if growers of geraniums who have been trying to unite in raising the wholesale price of 4-inch pot plants from $8 to $10 are having a hard time. Everything was progressing nicely, when along comes three weeks of cold, cloudy weather, with little demand, and stock is freely offered at the old prices. This is the situation in Philadelphia, May 16.

The golden wedding of Abraham L. Pennock and wife of Lansdowne, June 5, will be a notable affair. Mr. Pennock, who has passed his ninetieth year, spends his winters at Jupiter, Fla., and attributes his activity and good health to these restful periods in that delightful southern clime.

BRIDAL BOUQUET OF PANSIES.

By Max Schling, New York.

J. Otto Thilow delivered an illustrated lecture on his recent trip to Hawaii before the Botanical Society of the University of Pennsylvania, May 18. The views were beautiful and his description of the fruits and flora of the islands wonderfully interesting.

George Craig is busy getting up magnolia wreaths for Memorial day. There is no fuss about this shop, which contains a full stock nicely displayed. "Just make sure that every order is right and on time and we will then get our share," is his motto.

The H. H. Battles' store window is gay with peacock plumage, four fine specimens of the taxidermist's are filling the entire space. They made a gorgeous display. Killarney roses and sweet peas were features in the Century Flower shop.

There is a rumor of a dissolution of partnership in one of the large commission houses, the retiring member withdrawing to enable him to give his entire attention to his greenhouse interests, which are quite important.

Bedding plants are now moving fast with the Robert Craig Co., which has a splendid stock of these ornamental garden requisites. This firm expects a grand rush during the next two weeks.

Robert Crawford, Jr., has some 30,000 four-inch pot geraniums at his Seacane nurseries, all grown since Easter. He finds them in good demand. The Mothers' day business was fine.

Carl Corts, of the Jos. Heacock Co., reports stock coming strong and moving out satisfactorily. White Killarneys sell better than the pink. The shipping trade is increasing.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., are still rushed with orders. At their Riverton nurseries an immense business has been done in pot roses, of which they have had a magnificent stock.

"A very good week," said J. M. Deutcher, of the Philadelphia Wholesale Florist Exchange. A full stock of flowers is seen here. Choice roses and irises are leaders.

Victor Ridenour, of Ridge avenue, was much pleased with his Mothers' day business, which was much larger than ever. He sees great possibilities in this flower day.

A great Mothers' day rush was experienced by M. J. Callahan; the trouble was to get the flowers. An increasing call for funeral work is the feature here.

The Habermehl shop at the Bellevue-Stratford has had a busy week. John Habermehl was on the sick list for a couple of days, but is all right again.

Quality stock, the real Reid brand, and plenty of it, is Edward Reid's good word. Maryland and Ophelia roses and sweet peas were features.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. are having a great run on all kinds of stock for Memorial day. Their patriotic novelty baskets have had a big sale.

White carnations, My Maryland roses and fine snapdragons are features of the Berger Bros. stock. A good week was the report.

Eugene Beinhelmer found stock moving well the past week. Very good Prima Donna roses were seen here.

The London Flower Shop has had a very good trade since Easter. Good June weddings are already booked.

Smilax is a feature with the Philadelphia Cut Flower Co., a very good stock which finds a ready sale.

MOTHERS' DAY BETTER THAN EVER.

Although war talk, economy agitation, the Red Cross campaign and climatic conditions all claimed their share of attention, Mothers' day still held its own, and better, compared with last year, and there no longer remains an excuse for not making it a red-letter day on the calendar. While carnations still stick in the minds of a large part of the buyers, there was an excellent sale for any flower that was good, and, before the day closed, many that were only fair, were taken by buyers who preferred them to nothing. So the final clean-up was total. Except for carnations, there was very little stiffening of prices, which is well for the fixing of the custom. Plant sales were good, and many a little chap was started on the right road by spending 25- or 50 cents for a plant for mother. Made up baskets of moderate price sold well.

NOTES.

Memorial day stock promises to be short of jessamine and peonies; also, the outdoor roses, especially the various ramblers, promise to be slow, owing to the generally cool weather to date. So it is likely that there will be all the business that stock can be found to take care of.

W. H. Culp & Co. made a number of combination baskets of bright geraniums, vincas, coleus, etc., selling at from $1 to $5, and they sold clean. The fact that the plants could soon be planted out seemed to help their sale.

The backward season, with a lack of rain, is making the final results in spring bedding stock uncertain, although there seems to be about enough to keep everybody busy.

MOTHERS' DAY TO BECOME SECOND EASTER.

Mothers' day business was by far better than last year, and bids fair to be a second Easter, outrivaling St. Valentine's day. Judicious advertising, it has been demonstrated, will help the day, and all flowers and floral arrangements will be equally popular, dethroning the carnation as the "exclusive" offering for this occasion. The growers must also soon realize that carnations cannot be held back to get an inflated price for one day. It is directly up to the florist to stimulate trade with the flowers that he can best sell to the fullest measure of the customer's satisfaction, and the white carnation will play a very small part when it is explained other flowers and plants as well express the same sentiment and carry their message of love equally as well. Let us bear that in mind. Several weddings of varying proportions and a few luncheons have added a little activity to the market, but festive occasions have otherwise been limited in these times when the call of preparedness is sounded, and the florists, like all others, are doing their part to help the cause. Greenhouse men are more than busy now, cemetery, veranda boxes and other planting keeping them on the jump, and a friendly visit at this time would not mean a long conversation.

GOOD BUSINESS DESPITE RETRENCHMENT.

Business has been exceptionally good during the past week. Commencements have called for quite a quantity of stock, but the demand was not quite as large as in former years. The decorations have been cut down and the bouquets are not as elaborate. There seems to be an inclination to retrench in the purchase of higher priced flowers and basket arrangements, dividing the amount between the offering to the graduate and the Red Cross. It is a good cause, however, and every florist in this city is doing his "bit" to help. Stock of all kinds has been plentiful and prices have been satisfactory. Carnations are holding out very well and peonies are more plentiful.

NOTES.

The American Florist Co., one of the latest additions to the ranks of the local retail stores, is more than pleased with business, having had some very good decorations during the past week.

George H. Cooke has been exceptionally busy during the past week with the decorations for the commencement week at Mt. Vernon Seminary.

George C. Shaffer had the order for the decorations at the Paul Seminary, using large quantities of weigelia, spireas and white peonies.

Harry Payne, formerly manager for Mrs. Freeman, reports business at his establishment far beyond his expectations.

The Leo Niessen Co. is growing some fine peonies, also excellent gladioli.

Hall in Ontario.

A terrific hailstorm in the vicinity of London, Ont., May 19, resulted in thousands of dollars loss at the establishments of florists and gardeners. Driven before a gale of wind, hailstones as large as marbles ploughed and covered the ground, broke the glass in greenhouses into splinters and completely destroyed the tulip beds in Victoria park. This was followed by a rain and electric storm that lasted two hours with a precipitation of 1.3 inches. Among the heaviest losers were John Pawlisitz, whose range on McCleary avenue was wrecked and many plants ruined, the damage amounting to about $600, and Fred Dicks whose glass damage was large, in addition to the loss of many choice plants grown especially for the local market. The storm also brought grief to numerous amateur gardeners, much seed having been planted during the past few days. Fruit growers report considerable damage to trees in bloom. Despite this a good crop is expected.

OVERSUPPLY AND WEAK DEMAND.

The market is suffering from an oversupply; ever since the middle of the past week, receipts have been very heavy, while the demand has been rather poor. Roses are more plentiful and among others include some blooms of the highest quality. Carnations, too, are plentiful. Easter lilies are in heavy supply, which is met with a weak demand. Sweet peas are also seen in large numbers and only the best have a fair sale. A good supply of outdoor stock, including lily of the valley, peonies and corn flowers, is coming in. The daily receipts of gladioli are on the increase. To the good stock from the south some excellent cuts from the local growers are being received. Snapdragons are very plentiful.

NOTES.

E. G. Gillett's wire work department has been very busy with orders for wire designs and basket work this season.

C. E. Critchell has been receiving an excellent supply of peonies. He visited friends at Richmond, Ind., May 21.

P. J. Olinger is cutting from an excellent crop of Russell at his range.

BEDDING PLANT DEMAND DOUBLES.

Summery weather last week brought an increase of 100 per cent in bedding sales, and an especially heavy call for vegetable plants. The landscape departments are also rushed with orders. At the retail stores, business was brisk, weddings constituting the bulk of the demand. The rose supply is unusually large and carnations are plentiful. Outdoor lily of the valley is now retailing at $1 per 100. There is a good call for corsages.

NOTES.

The Vesey Floral Gardens, four miles from this city, at present planted with vegetables and fruit trees, have been sold by the owners, W. J. & M. S. Vesey, to the Doud Real Estate Agency. The Vesey firm has planted several hundred muskmelon plants in their greenhouses. They are cutting heavily on Shawyer roses at present, the average from one house being over 1,000 per day.

The Doswell Floral Co. is featuring fine Ophelia roses and sweet peas from its greenhouses. The landscape department of this firm is very busy at present.

The Flick Floral Co. is busy with decorations for pre-nuptial parties and weddings. The showing of Shawyer and Sunburst roses here is noteworthy.

SUPPLY INCREASES WITH WARM WEATHER.

The past week brought some very warm weather, and incidentally, plenty of stock of all kinds, some of it, such as sweet peas, showing the effect of the warm sunshine. These will soon be over for the year. Carnations are very fair in quality and are good sellers. It is to be hoped that they will continue until Memorial day as the weather has held the peonies back. A local crop is not looked for this year. Roses are plentiful and prices have dropped considerably. Some very good American Beauties are coming to this market, also callas and lily of the valley. The country market was filled with outdoor lily of the valley, May 19, the first seen here this year; also, some very fine lilac which hurt the sale of other flowers. Greens are still scarce, especially smilax.

Baltimore, Md.*MOTHERS' DAY ADVERTISING PULLS.

The Mothers' day demand cleaned up everything in sight. The local trade advertised freely and the results therefrom were certainly most gratifying. Following the unusual demand, stock arrived in limited quantities, although roses are now coming a little better in the shorter grades. American Beauty is moving very slowly. Irises sold well at the beginning of the week but began to lag at the end due to the very heavy supply. Carnations have a fair call. Snapdragons are being received in fair supply and thousands of outside tulips were received Friday and Saturday. The stores could not handle them all, and many went to the street. Daisies, calendulas, mignonette and other miscellaneous stock is coming in plentifully.

NOTES.

At the May meeting of the florists' and gardeners' club, Mr. Hamilton read a letter from Wm. F. Gude of Washington, D. C., in which the latter expressed the opinion that the coal situation presented a "mighty hard nut" for the florists to crack, it being not so much the question of price—but whether they could get the coal at all. Some of the members suggested burning wood, others favored hard coal, but only certain kinds of boilers are adapted to this.

Chas. E. Smith & Co. are much pleased with the volume of Mothers' day business at their establishment—an increase in sales of 150 per cent over 1916.

Charles Cook has the sympathy of the trade in the death of his son, Robert, May 15, aged 18 years.

Pierce & Co., on Howard street, at all times make their window an attractive feature.

S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. reports the Mothers' day business in its history.

Boston.*PRICES FIRM WITH GOOD DEMAND.

There has been little change in market conditions during the past week. An excellent demand followed the Mothers' day trade, with prices holding firm on all good stock, carnations being held at $5 per 100 for the best offerings. All indications point to an exceptionally heavy Memorial day demand and the trade is making every effort to be fully prepared for it.

NOTES.

The ground has been broken and plans are well under way for the outdoor flower show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in the Fenway, June 1, being the opening day, when the proceeds will be donated to the Boston chapter of the American Red Cross. To date, $2,000 worth of tickets have been sold. The grounds are being attractively laid out, and included in the many pleasing features will be the rock garden and lily pond of R. & J. Farquhar & Co.; Italian garden, arranged by Philip L. Carbone; rose garden of Thomas Roland, Nahant; display of azaleas, 60x100 feet, from the Charles Sargent estate; exhibit of rhododendrons from the Hunnewell estate; a display of wistaria, 60x100 feet, from the Sargent estate; shrubs from the Blue Hill Nurseries, Braintree, and pansies from Wm. Sim, Cliffondale.

Among the most artistic window displays seen in this city for some time were those of Philip L. Carbone, in honor of the visit of Marshal Joffre and the French mission. One window with the American flag as a background contained a large eagle with spreading wings, blue iris, and red roses being the floral features. The French window featured a large portrait of the "hero of the Marne" set in a victor's wreath of laurel, draped with the French colors.

In both the supply and outflower departments of E. A. Snyder & Co. Mothers' day business was fully up to all expectations. This firm was especially fortunate in having a good supply of carnations of excellent quality in addition to many other good offerings for the occasion. All indications point to one of the best Memorial day demands in years, and as usual, they will be well prepared.

Welsh Bros. Co., although well supplied with quality stock for Mothers' day, felt the effect of an unusually heavy demand and report a most satisfactory business in every respect. As usual, Memorial day stock will be a feature, and they expect to be well supplied to meet all requirements.

Among those reported on the sick list are William Phelps, of Lexington, who is at a local hospital undergoing an X-ray examination for stomach trouble, and C. Joseph Sloane, who is confined to his home with a severe cold. Their many friends wish both a speedy recovery.

Wm. McAlpine, manager of the New England Rose Co. is justly proud of the splendid Ophelia, both in color and size, that his firm is offering on this market. Tipperary and Mignon are also extra good, and the new rose, Crimson Queen, never showed to better advantage.

David and Edward J. Welsh report a most gratifying Mothers' day business, in keeping with the generally good business that has marked the season with them. They are looking forward to a splendid call for Memorial day and are well prepared for it in every way.

Chas. E. Evans, the "hydrangea king," reports that this has been his most successful season with Hydrangea Otaksa and baby ramblers. His Calceolaria Stewartii is superior to any other grown in this vicinity.

The New England Supply Co. reports a wonderful demand for Memorial day, the entire force working every night in getting out the orders.

Esty Bros. have finished a most profitable season with ranunculus and anemones and have started cutting their new iris.

Wm. R. Nicholson, of Framingham, is cutting his new Primulinus hybrid gladioli, also Gypsophila elegans.

Columbus, O.*MEMORIAL DAY SHORTAGE INDICATED.

With outdoor flowers generally tardy, carnations and roses constitute the mainstay of the trade. Both are prolific, but are being absorbed at staple prices. Mothers' day business was larger than last year, and more satisfactory as applying to a larger variety of flowers. The box and basket trade showed a big increase by being talked up aggressively. It is felt that the scarcity in carnations was a good thing, in giving opportunity to educate the public on more catholic buying. The snapdragon, iris and peony are latest additions to florists' stocks, but the latter are in very limited supply. It will take good weather to develop the home crop by Memorial day. The outlook is for a scarcity of all outdoor flowers for this event. A minimum price of $1.50 a dozen on peonies is prophesied, about double that of ordinary seasons. Rose cutting promises to be very heavy on all varieties grown under glass. The bedding situation is not wholly satisfactory. While some florists report business very good, others find it lagging. The cause is laid largely to vegetable-growing activity. The weather has also been unfavorable. Attempts are being made to get slightly better prices, but this is not universal. Some florists with large stocks are ready to sacrifice a little for the purpose of moving them.

NOTE.

Guy Woodrow, secretary-treasurer of the Fifth Avenue Floral Company, suffered the loss of his father, Charles F. Woodrow, on May 17, who died at the neighboring village of Briggsdale. The deceased was a half-brother of President Woodrow Wilson. When the nation's chief executive was a lad he was brought by his mother for a visit with the late Mr. Woodrow. The latter was 67 years old, and had spent his entire life in this country.

Oklahoma City.*PLANT DEMAND BREAKS ALL RECORDS.

Business has been very good this week in the cut flower line and the prospects look good for a continuance of this condition owing to graduation exercises and weddings that are in sight. The plant trade also is breaking all records, hardy roses especially being in great demand. Local peonies and sweet peas are in the market. The latter are coming from plants, the seed of which was sown last December. Spanish iris from California is a useful feature just now, arriving in very good shape. Some gladioli are also coming from the same state. Shipments of carnations from Colorado are being tried in a patented container which permits of the flowers being in water during the journey. Whether the added express charges and the returning of the empty container will be offset by the superior quality of the flowers on reaching their destination will have to be demonstrated by actual experience.

C. W. Stiles is confined to his home with an attack of malarial fever. Mrs. Eager is visiting in Missouri.

The Late Charles H. Fischer.

Charles H. Fischer, a well known grower of Winfield, which is a part of the City of New York, was found dead in his bed at his home, 116 Prospect street, Winfield, on the morning of May 17. He had previously had symptoms of heart failure, but on the night of May 16 retired, seeming to be in good health and spirits. He was in his fifty-first year and was born in New York, and in his younger years was a farmer at Maspeth, now also a part of New York.

After his marriage he took up the florist business and had continued it with success for 26 years, growing carnations and a variety of other stock. He had about 20,000 square feet of glass. He was a stockholder in the Cut Flower Exchange of New York, where he had always sold his stock. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Anna Fischer, two sons, Alfred A. and August, and by two daughters, Mrs. S. Underwood and Clara Fischer, all of Winfield.

Charles H. Fischer was a man of fine character, highly respected by his neighbors and business associates and his sudden death came as a great shock. The widow, Mrs. Anna Fischer, is a sister to Rev. F. E. Tilly, pastor of St. Jacobus' Lutheran Church of Winfield, and has been organist and director of the choir at that church, where funeral services were held on the afternoon of May 20.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A Central Garden Committee having for its object extensive plans for furthering gardening work in this city has been formed. The demand for lots for planting is much in excess of the number available.

YARRAWA sweet pea is proving a great favorite in the Chicago market this season, bringing as high as $3 per 100 wholesale this month.

DURING the coming month of June the trade should not fail to emphasize the great desirability of plants and cut flowers as wedding presents, delivered in attractive receptacles. This can be done in circulars to patrons as well as in local advertising.

Personal.

MEMORIAL DAY.

On account of the holiday next week, The American Florist will go to press on Tuesday. Advertisers and correspondents will oblige by mailing copy one day earlier than usual.

American Rose Society.

WASHINGTON MEETING DEFERRED.

It is announced that the annual outdoor meeting of the American Rose Society originally scheduled to be held June 1 at the national rose test garden at Arlington Farms, Washington, D. C., as mentioned in our issue of May 19, page 957, has been postponed to June 4.

The programme includes an inspection of the rose garden at 10 a. m., followed by a meeting at 11 a. m. at which S. S. Pennock will preside. After the address of welcome by Wm. F. Gude, there will be a response by Hon. Carl Vrooman, assistant secretary of agriculture. Among the others speakers will be the following: Dr. E. M. Mills, president Syracuse Rose Society; David Fairchild of the department of agriculture; Benjamin Hammond, secretary of the American Rose Society, and Dr. D. W. Shoemaker, representing the Citizens' Association of Washington.

Those expecting to attend will please notify Wm. F. Gude, 1214 F street, N. W., Washington, D. C., or Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa.

"Business As Usual"—Or Better.

"The prompt adoption by the American people of the 'business as usual' idea is going to enable this nation to prosecute war without experiencing a temporary depression such as England and France have recently recovered from. Modern war requires the expenditure of huge sums of money and means maximum employment and high wages for all workers. Other conditions, peculiar to this war, make it certain that this nation will enjoy a period of business and industrial activity the like of which has never been seen and which is assured whether the war lasts several months or several years.

"Continuation of the great prosperity that has ruled in this country for two years is assured. There is an abnormal demand for everything the workers of this nation can grow or manufacture. There is work at high wages for every man and woman who wants work; the earning power of the people is restricted only by physical limitations; the buying power of the public is greater than ever before. These are certain guarantees of continued prosperity and of an ever widening scope to our business and industrial life."

Mothers' Day Results.

The great value of publicity as a lever in moving and encouraging the sale of flowers, was never so forcibly demonstrated as is shown by the reports of the business for Mothers' day in Detroit, Cleveland and other western cities. Here live co-operation exists in all branches of the trade. The raising of from $750 to $1,200 to advertise this one event is a noteworthy achievement, as was the great work of a national character accomplished by the Chicago Florists' Club. The results of these efforts were in each instance productive of wonderful returns showing that people will respond when their interest is sufficiently aroused. In the large eastern cities it seemed impossible to create any enthusiasm for the day among the trade.

The florists of Boston ran a co-operative ad costing about $150 in one issue of the Boston Post. Henry Penn's advertising for the event would equal five times this amount. The great cities of New York and Philadelphia did not spend one cent for publicity, and very few, scarcely any of the large stores, featured the event in their windows in any way. One cannot criticize successful business methods, and there is no question but the leading retailers in these large business centers are successful. Why they do not collectively, or even individually call attention to the event, by window decorations, display cards, or feature it in other ways, is a problem which possibly concerns the ethics of the business. They take, however, all the trade that comes along and may some day be forced into seeing its importance as a great floral holiday.

Cleveland Flower Show.

The question has been asked several times recently regarding the possible change in our plans for conducting the annual exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, in connection with the Cleveland flower show this fall. In reply to these inquiries and for the information of the many private and commercial growers who are looking forward to exhibiting in Cleveland this fall we wish to announce that the Cleveland show will be conducted in the same manner as we originally planned early in the year.

We see no reason at this time to alter our plans; in fact, there is all the more reason for developing flower shows and other activities. In event war conditions develop and are intense in November, at the time of the Cleveland flower show, the committee will make arrangements with the Red Cross Society and hold the show for their benefit.

At this time the executive committee wishes to extend an invitation to all growers to plan on exhibiting in Cleveland. Premium lists may be secured by addressing M. A. Vinson, 402 Leader-News building, Cleveland, O.

H. P. KNOBLE,
Chairman Show Committee.

Native Flora in Danger.

The St. Louis Association of Gardeners at its regular meeting unanimously resolved to conserve the native flora of St. Louis and county. Our native flora, owing to indiscriminate collectors, is rapidly becoming in danger of extermination, especially in proximity of St. Louis. The frequent practice of picnic parties, etc., visiting the country for Sunday vacations, unfortunately become over-enthusiastic with native flowering plants to such an extent that they devastate the landscape of its beauty, with the idea of reproducing the effect in the city garden. In the majority of cases the amateur does not study the environmental factors, the result being a total loss.

The association, therefore, recommends to the people of St. Louis, that the woodland flowers should remain unmolested to their environments, allowing their beauty to be admired by all. A copy of this resolution is being sent to all garden clubs, horticultural societies and florists' clubs of St. Louis.

G. H. PRING, Publicity Secretary.

Kansas City, Mo.

TRADE IS EXCEPTIONALLY BRISK.

During the past week the market was almost glutted with roses, which arrived by the thousand, especially the Killarneys, and in many shipments they were wide open. Ophelia, Russell and Sunburst are coming in with fine buds and good long stems and American Beauty is also in fine shape. Carnations are not so good, but lilies and sweet peas are plentiful and hold a high mark in sales. Peonies have made their appearance on the market and the quality is good. With the bedding season at hand and many weddings, a heavy call for graduation bouquets and orders for Memorial day, the trade is working overtime to keep up with the demand.

NOTES.

W. J. Barnes and his force are very busy handling the bedding plant demand, enormous quantities of stock being called for. He completed the planting last week at Fairmount park and the Hillcrest golf links.

T. J. Noll & Co. are carrying a fine line of roses, lilies, carnations, sweet peas and peonies among other items. More orders have been booked in advance for Memorial day than in any previous year.

Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. reports stock plentiful in general. Business is good and there is a big call for funeral and graduation work.

H. Kusik & Co. report a plentiful supply of everything and expect to handle the greatest supply in years for Memorial day.

Chas. Thomas, of the Rosery, says he is well pleased with business. He is featuring some very fine canterbury bells.

E. Frandsen, of Independence, Mo., is building three houses, each 38x270 feet, which will be devoted to roses.

A. Newell is booking many orders for graduation bouquets and Memorial day flowers. E. J. B.

Los Angeles.

MOTHERS' DAY BECOMES FIXED OCCASION.

From all indications Mothers' day has come to stay in this city. Without exception the dealers all declare this year's trade for this occasion was greater than ever before. The call for stock was also more varied than in former years. Since Mothers' day funeral work has constituted the bulk of the demand, and with a limited call otherwise prices have been low with a plentiful supply. Memorial day trade gives promise of being excellent and a good June business is anticipated.

NOTES.

At Wright's Flower Shop excellent American Beauty, Mrs. Aaron Ward, White Killarney, Shawyer and Prima Donna roses are to be seen. An exceptionally good Mothers' day trade is the report here.

Seki Bros. & Co. have had considerable business in funeral orders. Cut flower demand is reported dull. This firm is bringing in great quantities of carnations.

A. F. Borden of the Redondo Floral Co. reports Mothers' day better than ever before. This firm has had several large funeral orders of late.

S. Murata & Co. enjoyed an excellent Mothers' day demand and a greater variety of stock was handled than in previous years.

Wolfskill Bros. & Morris Goldenson had a fine Mothers' day trade. At present they are handling a good cut of roses.

Everybody is busy at the establishment of the Broadway Florists. Carnations and sweet peas are features here.

The Los Angeles Floral Co. is sending out carnations in large numbers together with a good supply of gladioli.

Tassano Bros. are having a good wholesale business, especially in plumosus and gypsophila.

O. C. Saake reports a good Mothers' day call, enhanced by considerable funeral work. G. H. H.

Milwaukee.

HEAVY MEMORIAL DEMAND IN SIGHT.

Market conditions the forepart of last week were good, due to the fact that most stock was cut very close for Mothers' day, consequently being just about equal to the demand. The unexpected change happened; with the beginning of the week the weather gradually grew warm, until the mercury reached the 84 mark on Friday. The heat naturally rushed on the indoor crops, so that by Friday and Saturday there was a small glut of sweet peas, roses, carnations, tulips, irises, snapdragons, etc., which, with a decided drop in demand, had to be moved at bargain prices. Saturday night, the wind ushered in decidedly cooler weather, which was accompanied by rain all during Monday, and undoubtedly will decrease the supply to such an extent as to again make market conditions normal in a short time. We hope, and have reason to expect, a big run of business for Memorial day, for advance orders are being booked freely at reasonable prices. The outlook as far as the outdoor cut stock is concerned, greatly depends upon weather conditions between now and May 30.

NOTES.

We understand that Riebs Bros., whose lease on the Wm. Eschrich range expires July 1, are about to start a new place on the Cedarburg plank road, North Milwaukee, within short distance of the A. Reinhardt, Wm. Manke & Co., Greenwood Carnation Co., Fred Manke and Grunewaldt Bros. establishments.

Among a large party who helped celebrate a silver wedding anniversary, May 19, in this city, was Mrs. Joseph Poehlmann, aged 82 years, mother of the Poehlmann brothers, of Morton Grove, Ill., who makes this city her home.

Hugo Locker & Sons report having had an exceptionally heavy crop of sweet peas, irises and snapdragons for Mothers' day. Their houses are filled with a good supply of fine bedding stock at this time.

Visitors: C. Schulz, Menominee, Mich.; Rich. Haentze, Fond du Lac, Wis.; John Rindfleisch, Beloit, Wis.

SIoux CITY, IA.—George Thallas and George Cosmos, proprietors of the Olympia Flower Store, have brought suit for $6,540 damages against the Olympia Candy Company and have asked for an injunction to restrain the latter from selling flowers under that name, claiming that the name "Olympia" as relating to the sale of flowers is registered by them with the secretary of state.

EARLY MEMORIAL DAY DEMAND HEAVY.

Stock of all kinds was very plentiful last week owing to the warm weather, consequently everything was sold in large lots at extremely low prices. American Beauty roses were in large supply and very choice stock was obtainable in the longer stemmed grades at reasonable cost. Mrs. Chas. Russell roses were seen in quantity at many of the stores and like all the other stock were to be had at unusually low figures. Roses and carnations are reaching the market in large numbers but are not so plentiful at this writing as they were last week. Sweet peas are a large factor in the market now and are in good demand, but prices could be much better. Orchids are coming in crop and there is a good supply of lily of the valley. Peonies are in heavier supply but the receipts are far below those of last season at this time. Lilac, gladioli, snapdragons, candytuft, Double White narcissi, gardenias, tulips, daffodils, jonquills, pansies, daisies, calendulas, mignonette, forget-me-nots, anemones, statice, Cape Jasmines, stocks, wallflowers, poppies, white, blue, yellow and lavender iris, lilies, callas, ranunculus and other seasonable flowers are included in the many offerings. The early demand for Memorial day is heavy and all the buyers who have not yet placed their orders will do well to do so immediately for the buying promises to be heavier than usual this year. Some of the dealers think that stock in general will be very plentiful while others claim it will be scarce. From present indications it would not be at all surprising to the writer if there was an early cleanup in all lines if the weather is at all favorable. The east is calling for a large quantity of stock, particularly peonies, which are in exceptionally brisk demand. Play safe, order early. Do it now.

NOTES.

F. M. Van Gieson, sales promotion manager and landscape architect, formerly connected with the Geo. Wittbold Co., has taken charge of the horticultural department promotion work of the H. M. Van Hoesen Co., direct advertising specialists, with headquarters at 5 South Wabash avenue. Mr. Van Gieson is an expert in his line and his many friends in the trade wish him every success in his new undertaking.

Vaughan's Seed Store employes held their annual spring picnic at the Home-wood farm of the senior member of the firm, May 20. Threatening weather early in the day deterred some from making the trip but the considerable number participating greatly enjoyed the fine day in the country.

Peter Reinberg filled an order for rose plants this week which was shipped to the Juneau Florists, Geno, Alaska. The Juneau Florists have two greenhouses which are devoted principally to roses.

Practically all the local wholesale florists have signified their intention of keeping their stores open until 6 p. m., Sunday, May 27, for the accommodation of their out-of-town customers.

J. A. Budlong is having signs painted on the vacant windows of the new store that was added to their old quarters in the LeMoyné building recently.

Percy Jones, Inc., is looking forward to a record breaking Memorial day trade for orders are numerous and there promises to be plenty of stock to go around.

Samuel Seligman, representing Wertheimer Bros., New York, is calling on the trade here this week.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is more than satisfied with the early demand for Memorial day and is well prepared to handle all the late orders that arrive. Manager Klingsporn reports that business in May so far has been good and will show an increase over last year.

Kennicott Bros. Co. will have an ideal wholesale house when it moves into its new quarters in the LeMoyne building, which are practically ready for occupancy. H. B. Kennicott says that the new place will probably be used to handle the city trade for Memorial day.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is having a good call for orchids which are in splendid crop at Morton Grove, especially Cattleya Mossiae. H. M. Oeser, superintendent of the palm department, is able to be about again after being on the sick list for several weeks.

Erne & Company are handling a large quantity of lilac this week, which has been in exceptionally good demand. Their grower certainly knows how to cut his stock for it reaches the market in A1 condition.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. received the first shipment of peonies this week and if the supply continues to arrive in such large quantities they should have plenty to fill orders.

Miss Blosson Eagle, sister of Mrs. Carl Vaughan, is spending a few days in this city enroute to her home in Little Rock, Ark., from Washington, D. C.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner are handling large quantities of iris this season, which seems to gain in popularity each year.

M. C. Gunterberg is handling large quantities of peonies and will have a good supply to offer for Memorial day.

Sidney Buchbinder joined the ranks of the benedicts at Milwaukee, Wis., Sunday, May 20.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are handling a large quantity of orchids in addition to a most complete line of all other seasonable stock. The outlook for a brisk Memorial day trade at this house never was so encouraging as it is this year.

Wieter Bros. are in good crop with roses and carnations for Memorial day and will have plenty to supply all their customers with. Their Ophelia roses are particularly fine and quickly attract attention of the city buyers.

C. L. Washburn says that business at Bassett & Washburn's store so far during May has been very good and that the sales for the month will run considerably ahead of those of the same period during 1916.

F. W. Haeger, of the A. L. Randall Co., who is a member of Company F., of the Illinois National Guard, is receiving military training in the Officers' Reserve Camp at Fort Sheridan.

Ed. Leslie, of this city, who is now in the employ of Arthur Schutz, at Hammond, Ind., is the proud father of a baby boy, who arrived at his home on Mothers' day, Sunday, May 13.

Zech & Mann have booked a large number of orders for Memorial day and the early demand indicates that the total sales will greatly exceed those of 1916.

Chairman Lautenschlager, of the garden movement committee, advises that this project has been abandoned on account of insufficient financial support.

Eric Johnson, manager of the A. L. Randall Co.'s cut flower department, is the proud owner of a new seven passenger Overland touring car.

Mrs. Arthur Schutz, of Hammond, Ind., who recently underwent an operation, is reported to be dangerously ill.

E. J. Warren, with Poehlmann Bros. Co., is back from a business trip to Minneapolis, Minn.

John Kruchten has such a severe cold that he can barely speak above a whisper.

George Ball, of Glen Ellyn, is cutting heavily in sweet peas and says that the cold weather this month has been just right for the growers, which means many hundreds of dollars to them in return. He has had unusually good success with iris this season and averaged as high as 17 cents for his special fancy stock at Easter.

A. Henderson & Co. have taken another store in the same block as their present quarters with frontage on State and Lake streets for the spring plant trade.

Vaughan's Seed Store is having a record-breaking demand for all vegetable plants, cabbage, tomato and the like.

Frost in Northern Illinois, May 22-23, caused considerable damage to truck and other crops coming up.

Visitors: W. J. Vesey, Jr., Ft. Wayne, Ind.; W. A. Toole, Baraboo, Wis.; George Pandell, Ft. Wayne, Ind.; Milton Alexander, representing Lion & Co., New York.

Cleveland, O.

SUPPLY INCREASES BUT DEMAND IS GOOD.

The few warm days we have had after Mothers' day has increased the supply of stock to a great extent. Roses, in particular, are very plentiful, especially in the medium and shorter grades. Rose sales were a feature the latter part of the week. If the weather continues warm as it has been the past week, local growers of peonies expect to have a good part of their crop in for Memorial day. Stock promises to be plentiful in all lines, particularly in tulips, baby gladioli, roses and carnations. A large supply of Double White narcissus will be in for the occasion, which is good stock for bouquet work. Sweet peas, snapdragons, Easter lilies, calendulas and daisies will also be quite plentiful. There has been a healthy demand for stock the past week, considerable funeral work taking much of the supply.

NOTES.

Casper Aul, retired local florist, returned shortly from a three months' trip to Florida and the coast, where he went for his health. Mr. Aul loves to fish, and says he certainly enjoyed fishing in the ocean. He expects to go back in a short time for another long stay.

Visitor: Samuel Seligman, of Wertheimer Bros., New York.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—The Bergstermann Floral Company has been incorporated by Hulda M. and O. J. Ruff and Frank X. Hiemens; capital stock, $6,000.

BOONVILLE, IND.—One million tomato and cabbage plants were sold at cost under agreement with the local chamber of commerce by Ernest Lutz, florist, 10 times the number disposed of by him in any previous season.

BEACON, N. Y.—Benjamin Hammond, the well-known manufacturer of insecticides, is promoting a garden contest for boys and girls. Prizes are offered and each child engaged in the work will receive a certificate of merit. More than 500 children have enrolled.

PRICES HIT ROCK BOTTOM.

During the past week the market tumbled until rock-bottom prices prevailed on everything. As soon as Mothers' day was over, stock commenced to pour in. Fancy sweet peas are down to $1.50 per 1,000, and while carnations are good for the season, they clean up only at very low figures. Roses, particularly Russell, are coming in heavily, select stock being offered for 10 cents. The supply of lilies and callas is more than ample. Indoor lily of the valley is quite poor and due to a splendid cut of outdoor stock, is going begging. Some fine America and Mrs. Francis King gladioli are seen and command fair prices. The supply of greens is good and the quality excellent.

NOTES.

Harry G. Berning is receiving thousands of roses daily from Gullett & Sons' range, Lincoln, Ill. The quality of this stock is fully in keeping with the usual excellent stock to be found on the Berning counters. The Russells are especially fine.

Leo von Graffen is now with the Natural Foliage Co., manufacturers of prepared foliage of all kinds. Leo is a competent man and his services are always in demand.

Warm weather during the past week has rushed the plant growers to the limit in filling orders. Some of them are beginning to run short of stock already.

When it comes to supplies, it is hard to beat George H. Angermueller for excellence and variety. His shipping trade is of enormous proportions.

Pierre Schneider is sending to C. A. Kuehn splendid delphinium with spikes three to four feet long from his range at Webster Groves.

The Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. received some of the first peonies to reach the local market. They met with quick sale.

Miss Martha Knies, with Windler's Flowers, will undergo a minor operation at a local hospital after Memorial day.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. report quite a demand for supplies for Memorial day.

GOOD STOCK AND BRISK DEMAND.

Business has steadily increased in volume during the past two weeks, the trade being kept very busy with funeral work and a very good transient demand. The carnation supply since Mothers' day has been limited, but the quality is excellent. Roses of all kinds are first class and the supply bountiful. Sweet peas are also par excellence and meet with ready sale. Harrisii and calla lilies are plentiful. There is a great demand for red, white and blue flowers for all occasions from dinner centerpieces to corsages.

NOTES.

The monthly meeting of the florists' association on May 14 proved an interesting one, excellent papers being read by Colin T. Ogston and Amrose Secker, both bearing on timely topics, and which were much appreciated. Announcement was made that the Sunday closing bill, which affects the florists, pending at Albany, had been laid upon the table for future reference. A social session closed the evening.

S. A. Anderson and wife, of Buffalo, made an auto tour to this city last week, spending one day here.

Chester Ament, of Ridgeway avenue, has some fine pansies for which there is ready sale.

Horace J. Head has returned from a trip to Boston and other eastern points.

MARKET FAIRLY CLEAN.

The past week was quite up to the standard for the season, there being a fairly good demand; in fact, on Saturday, at the wind-up there was very little to carry over. Prices dropped on Monday to a level much below the range of Mothers' day. There was no great stock to select from, as the growers had cut so close for the demand for that occasion. The weather, while clear and warmer, was still below normal, being quite cool, which has a good effect on stock, some being of fine quality. Carnations, especially, grade high. Roses all along the line are at their best. American Beauties and Russell, the latter particularly, are noted to be the best ever offered in this market. Ophelia and Maryland are also in fine shape. White Killarneys have the call over the pink. Snapdragons are in good supply, as are yellow daisies. The same can be said of Easter lilies and callas. Cattleyas are quite equal to requirements, while lily of the valley often runs out. Sweet peas of all conceivable shades are to be had in quantity and the cool weather keeps up the quality.

NOTES.

The bedding plant men are now about to cash in. After hoping against hope all through this month with little or no demand, most of them were holding out for the little raise that was to help out in meeting last winter's rise in coal. As day after day went by, and no customers, the 10th, the 12th and the 15th, and still no movement, it was, it must be, the war, the vegetable craze, turning the flower beds into truck patches, etc. The summer temperature of May 16-19, however, worked wonders. The demand started and more geraniums were sold in these three days than in the three weeks previous. Now all feel that it will be a grand rush until Memorial day and after. While some growers are selling for $8 in four-inch pots, a number are holding out for $10 per hundred.

George B. Davis, the woodsman, who supplies the Philadelphia market with the products of the woods and clearings, has grown grey on the job, but is still in the harness and going strong. His season begins with pussy willows and loose branch laurel, which latter he supplies the season round. Tree blossoms, dogwood, arbutus and lupines are also on his list. Laurel in flower is sold in season in quantity. In the late summer, the golden rod, blue gentian and a long season of autumn leaves. Cat-tails, thistle-balls and hardy grasses, with the Christmas greens, round up his season. His old "shanksmare" has been succeeded by a "Henry C." which will add years to his life and much to his efficiency. Success and many more years to him.

A. L. Cartledge has been laid up for a month with a bad cold, which at one time was quite serious. He is, we are glad to say, about again showing little the worse for the struggle.

American Beauty roses, irises and snapdragon are features with the Leo Niessen Co. The advance guard of the peonies has arrived.

Don't Wait

Now is the time to send us a shipment of flowers and acquaint yourself with the satisfactory treatment you receive when you ship to New York's Foremost Commission House in the flower trade.

Extensive experience, ample capital, modern facilities and, in fact, everything to commend us to you.

Special opportunity for a couple of Good Rose Growers who are looking for best returns. Our present demand is larger than our supply.

New York.

SUPPLY INCREASES; DEMAND LIGHT.

Although the weather of the past week was generally dark and cool, the supply of stock continued on the increase. While the demand for carnations, largely from other cities and towns, for Mothers' day, pushed up prices, there was a speedy reaction. By, and even before the middle of the week, good carnations could be bought for $3 per 100. There was a larger supply of American Beauties on the market with a light demand. By May 17, good specials were selling at from 10 to 20 cents each, wholesale rates. Ophelia, Stanley and Mock roses are good sellers in this market and prices for special stock ranged from $6 to $8 per 100, with probably a few sales of very special Mocks at $10. Lilies, which had been in rather light supply, came in more freely and got slow at from four to six cents per flower for the average run of stock, a few giganteums bringing eight cents. A few special cattleyas brought 75 cents each, but ordinary and inferior stock ran at from 35 to 50 cents. There was a good supply of iris on the market, some of it very fine, but like all other stocks, it was slow. The tulips and narcissi are pretty well cut out, but there is an abundance of lilac, and a few peonies, from the South, have appeared on the market. There are great quantities of sweet peas, and it takes fine stock to command a good price. An exceptionally fine quality of snapdragons is occasionally seen. There are stocks and other minor varieties on the market, which do not loom large. Milder weather toward the last of the week was more favorable to the trade in geraniums and other bedding plants, which had been languishing. The near approach of Memorial day will put more life into that class of trade; but Memorial day has little effect on the retail trade of Manhattan, it being the so-called "cemetery florists" of Brooklyn, Middle Village and Woodlawn that get most of the business.

May 21.—The market is dull this morning, particularly in special stock. Selected special American Beauties are slow at $20 per 100. Cattleya gigas are slow at 50 cents each, wholesale rates. In tea roses, there is an abundant supply and they move slowly. The same can be said of all other stocks. The weather is warmer and the supply for this week will increase.

NOTES.

A full description of the patriotic decoration by Dards, Madison avenue and 44th street, New York, which appeared in our issue of May 19, did not appear with the picture and we here give it. The idea was worked out by Manager Perry of that store, and in the details he was ably assisted by his artists. The pictures of President Wilson in the center, Washington on the left and Lincoln on the right will be readily recognized. A little to the left of the center there is a battleship in harbor and in the rear a recruiting station. To the right is a fort and field camp. Cibotiums and other ferns are seen in the background. Since the photograph was taken an aeroplane has been installed, and it keeps flying and circles the field. We consider the entire scheme very clever.

We have recently noted various amusing letters in several of our contemporaries relating to a "national flower." Some of the writers want golden rod, others mountain laurel, and again the latest is the Shasta daisy. We believe that this proposition has even been considered in the congress of the United States; also, in the Society of American Florists. So far as being Americans, I assume that we are all "bear-cats" if it comes to fighting for our essential rights; but it is high time to stop this quibble about a "national flower" and similar unessential propositions. In the countries across the Atlantic, they have national churches, national flowers and nearly everything else national; but that has not prevented them from falling on each other like wolves. We can be quite "national" when every man, woman and child chooses the flower they love.

A force of floral artists from both the New York and Washington stores of J. H. Small & Sons, was in Dayton, O., on May 12, arranging an elaborate decoration for the wedding of Miss Patterson, daughter of J. H. Patterson, head of the well known National Cash Register Company. In one of the spacious rooms of the Patterson mansion, "Hills and Dales," a chapel was erected for the ceremony, and elaborately decorated with Easter lilies and cibotiums, just as a church would have been. Elsewhere, the bride received in front of a bank of blue hydrangeas and cibotiums. The piazzas of the mansion were decorated with dogwood and blue irises, interspersed with vases of American Beauty roses. The bridal bouquet was of white orchids.

B. S. Slinn, Jr., the wholesaler of the Cut Flower Exchange, has just returned from a trip of a week through Old Virginia. He advises us that he was much impressed with the developments along horticultural lines in that state. He says that in walking the main street of Richmond, it would be easy to imagine that you were on Broadway, New York. Good for Richmond! He further pays a high tribute to the hospitality of the people of Virginia.

At the funeral of Joseph H. Choate, the noted lawyer and diplomat, held at St. Bartholomew's church, May 17, there were eight carriage loads of floral designs. These were made up on the orders of the members of the French and British missions, now in this country; Governor Whitman, Mayor Mitchell, cabinet officers, senators and representatives and many other noted people.

Time flies, and as a memorial we will remind our New York readers that one year ago the present week Jonathan Nash and John Kral, of what was then the firm of Moore, Hentz & Nash, passed to their eternal rest. They died within a few days of each other. No truer hearted or better men ever did business in the wholesale district of this city.

Myer, of Madison avenue and 58th street, has made the front of his building very attractive with a succession of window boxes extending over the five stories to the roof. The boxes are filled with red geraniums, white daisies and English ivies. On the first story one long box, or a succession of boxes, covers the entire width of the building.

Arthur M. Clarke, son of Marshall Clarke, of David Clarke's Sons, Broadway and 75th street, has received a commission as captain in the Officers' Reserve Corps and is now in training at the Plattsburg camp. He was on the border last summer as a sergeant in the Seventh Regiment, N. Y. N. G.

Miss Margaret Rudd, daughter of W. N. Rudd of Morgan Park, Chicago, sailed from an American port, May 19, for France as a Red Cross nurse in Unit 12, United States Army Medical Corps and National Red Cross. Fine floral tributes were sent to Miss Rudd by friends in this city.

Joseph Trepel, the Brooklyn florist, who has half a dozen stores in that borough, has recently been very busy. On Sunday, May 20, he furnished 160,000 blooms of roses, carnations and tulips for the flower day of the Jewish national fund.

May 19 was the first really spring-like day that we have had, the temperature going up to nearly 80 degrees. A few more such days will bring in a great crop of flowers, and there are already more than enough.

Nashville, Tenn.

TRADE VERY SATISFACTORY.

Flowers have improved in both quality and quantity since the previous week and prices are again normal. Carnations are selling at $1 per dozen and roses for the most part at $2, although some varieties are higher, depending on quality. Bedding plant trade continues to thrive. Peonies are still plentiful but it is more than likely that they will be all done for before Memorial day—and most of the spring flowers with them. Business during the past week has been very good with call for a variety of stock. Funeral work has been brisk and the school commencements which start next week will bring considerable business. In this part of the country there are two Decoration days, the national on May 30 and the Confederate, June 3. The former is observed almost exclusively by placing small American flags on the graves, and for the latter flowers from the home gardens are used. Consequently little grist comes to the florists' mill on this occasion.

NOTES.

Leon Geny, of Geny Bros., is getting his summer home at Old Jefferson in readiness for the season. It will be occupied by the family and also by that of his brother, Oscar. Leon Geny will be in constant touch with the business in the city, however.

The McIntyre Floral Co. is getting in a fine lot of roses in addition to a general line of good stock. Trade has been good and their shipments of peonies to northern markets have brought good returns.

The Joy Floral Co. will open its Chattanooga store May 26. This firm is now having a fine cut of roses, American Beauty being the only scarce item. M. C. D.

HARTFORD, CONN.—With cultivation of vegetables uppermost in the public mind, the June flower show of the Connecticut Horticultural Society has been abandoned this year.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.
Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., President;
F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., First
Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fifth annual convention, Detroit, Mich.,
June 19, 1917.

PEA BEANS, handpicked, are $10.75 to $11.50 per bushel.

THE Dutch travelers in this country expect to sail for home on the S. S. Nordam about the first week in June.

THE supply of French made mushroom spawn in this country is practically exhausted, though at present little used.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, May 23, were as follows: Timothy, $5.50 to $8.00 per 100 pounds.

ANTIGO, WIS.—H. W. Albright has been appointed local representative of the Leonard Seed Co., of Chicago, in charge of its large warehouse here.

SWEDESBORO, N. J.—Edgar F. Hurff, contract grower of tomato, pepper and like seed specialties, reports growers require an advance of 25 cents per pound.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—The St. Louis Seed Co. has sold hundreds of thousands of tomato, cabbage, cauliflower and kohlrabi plants this season, completely exhausting its supply.

THE proposed increase in ocean freight rates on the Pacific for lily bulbs amounts to $4.15 per thousand on the 7 to 9 size and $6.25 per thousand on the 9 to 10 size.

FRENCH BULBS are ordinarily carried across the Atlantic by the Fabre line. The steamship Harpagus of this fleet was torpedoed May 9, 10 miles from Marseilles, capacity 7,500 tons.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—The Morris & Snow Seed Co. attracted throngs of visitors to its store recently with a splendid exhibition of irises, the collection embracing nearly 100 colors.

CARL CROPP, JR., son of the well-known secretary and treasurer of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, left for California May 21, to gain some experience in the technicalities of seed growing.

NEW YORK.—The seed stores continue to do a heavy business, particularly in vegetable and bedding plants. The unseasonable cold weather up to the middle of the month killed considerable of the early plantings.

VISITED CHICAGO: Charles Hervey Lilly, of the Chas. H. Lilly Co., Seattle, Wash.; G. W. Kerr, representing W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., en route to California; R. J. Bowen, representing J. Bolgiano & Son, Baltimore, Md.

ONION SET crops in the Chicago district are looking well. The rains this week were badly needed and their effects ideal except that the weather has been too cold. The maggot has not appeared thus far. The acreage on the whole exceeds that of last year, the plantings of independent growers in some sections exceeding that of last year about 20 per cent. Onion seed was in liberal supply this year, while last season, growers could not supply their needs.

NORTH CAROLINA growers say that crops have not done well the first half of May, very cool nights and also cool days, with two light frosts. Some planters have plowed up their cotton and replanted it, hoping to get it started at a warmer time and avoid the stunted growth brought about by such cool weather.

Wholesale Seedsmen's League.

The board of directors of the Wholesale Seedsmen's League met at the Hardware club, New York, May 22. Those in attendance included Henry W. Wood, of T. W. Wood & Sons, Richmond, Va.; John L. Hunt, of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y.; Capt. Landreth, Burnett Landreth, Jr., and L. Philip Landreth, of the David Landreth Seed Co., Bristol, Pa.; Leonard H. Vaughan, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago; Lem W. Bowen and Kirby B. White, of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich.; Henry C. Stahler, of the Robert Buist Seed Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Howard M. Earl, of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; F. W. Bruggerhof and E. E. Bruggerhof, of J. M. Thorburn & Co., New York; S. D. Willard, of Comstock, Ferre & Co., Wethersfield, Conn.; S. F. Leonard of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago.

Future prices on vegetable seeds are held in abeyance by most wholesale houses and spot prices are higher. Rutabaga brings 75 cents to one dollar, turnip 60 cents to one dollar, mangel 50 cents, collards very short. The prospects for next season's importations of vegetable seeds of all kinds from abroad are extremely doubtful.

Prospects for next crop of Danish cabbage, parsnip, parsley and radish are not good.

American Seed Trade Association.

The thirty-fifth annual convention of the association will be held at Detroit, Mich., June 19-21, the opening session beginning at 10 a. m. Tuesday. The Hotel Pontchartrain has been selected for headquarters and if your reservation has not already been made, you are urged to make it at once.

Notice is hereby given that an amendment to the by-laws has been filed with the secretary permitting change in date of holding the annual convention when necessary.

The programme includes the following addresses: "Voluntary Seed Control." Hon. George H. Clarke, Seed Commissioner, Dominion of Canada;

"Disease Resistance in Plants," Dr. L. R. Jones, Plant Pathologist, University of Wisconsin; "Crop Stealing"—Round table discussion led by H. A. Johns; Address by Dr. John Merle Coulter, Professor of Botany, University of Chicago.

Entertainment provided for the visitors includes an automobile drive Wednesday afternoon with stops at the Ford and Packard automobile plants, Belle Isle and Grosse Point, and at the residence of D. M. Ferry, Jr. At 6:30 the same evening there will be a boat ride and informal dinner aboard the Steamer "Tashmoo." On Thursday morning the party will go by trolley to Oakview Farm and Trial Grounds.

The executive session, which will be called to order at 5 p. m. Thursday, will close the convention.

C. E. KENDEL, Sec'y.

Seed Testing Opportunity.

For several years the United States department of agriculture has permitted persons interested to spend the months of July and August at the seed laboratory in Washington, D. C., to become familiar with the technique and practice of seed testing. It is expected that more persons than usual may wish to avail themselves of this privilege this year, through seedsmen voluntarily furnishing with the field crop seeds they sell, information concerning quality, including the name of the seeds, the per cent of pure live seed and in the case of certain imported seeds, the country of origin. It is therefore desired to know definitely, not later than June 15, how many and who may be expected. There will be no charge in connection with this work but each person who comes will be required to supply himself on arrival with certain equipment, including hand lenses, forceps, etc., at a total cost not exceeding $15. Any one wishing to avail himself of this opportunity to become familiar with seed testing should immediately make application to the seed laboratory, Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. It will be impossible to offer similar privileges at the branch seed laboratories maintained in co-operation with state institutions in California, Oregon, Louisiana, Missouri and Indiana.

Boston Seed Trade.

The seed stores are now having the greatest demand, especially for vegetable seeds, in their experience. Sales forces have been augmented, but nowhere have they been able to fully handle the great business that has come to them.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co. have been compelled to close their establishment at 3 p. m. Although the weather has been very backward they have had their greatest season in the sale of garden plants and shrubs of all varieties. Vegetable seeds are in wonderful demand, everyone seeming determined to have a home garden.

Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co. are so swamped with orders that they are compelled to close at 3 p. m. in order to clear the decks for the next day's rush.

The Jos. Breck & Sons Corporation was obliged to close its store for several days commencing May 8, in order to get out accumulated orders.

Narcissus Bulb Crop at Amoy.

The narcissus bulb crop for this season is estimated at 3,000,000 pieces, of which about 1,000,000 will be of the quality and size usually exported to foreign markets. Exporters report that the prices demanded so far by the Chinese dealers have been high, owing to the abnormal freight rates and the adverse exchange rate. The export to the United States in 1916 amounted to 1,151,000 bulbs, valued at $14,620.

Lima Bean Growers Watched.

Several small associations of lima bean growers said to have been speculating in violation of the anti-trust law have been closely watched by special agents of the department of justice. It was declared that these associations will be ordered to stop their speculating in beans or be prosecuted. A full report of the violations of the anti-trust law has been sent to Washington by special agent Webster.

Market Gardeners

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

H. W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., President; H. F. Thompson, Arlington, Mass., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids, Mich., Treasurer.

Next annual convention will be held at Springfield, Mass., in 1917.

THE Aetna Life Insurance Co. has notified all employes that hereafter closing hour will be four instead of 5:30 o'clock, in order that time may be given to gardening.

SHIPMENTS of strawberries in carlots reported to the United States department of agriculture, week of May 8-14, were 1,218; total this season to date, 3,585 cars, as compared with 4,824 in corresponding date last year.

Carlot Shipments of Vegetables.

During the week of May 8-14, carlot shipments of vegetables were reported by railroads to the United States department of agriculture as follows: Asparagus, 31; early cabbage, 312; celery (Florida), 92; lettuce, 165; new onions, 561; new potatoes, 1,311; tomatoes (Florida), 563.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, May 22.—Mushrooms, home grown, 75 cents to $1.00 per pound; lettuce, small cases, 30 to 32½ cents; radishes, 50 to 60 cents, dozen bunches; celery, $2.50, crate; tomatoes, six baskets, $2.00 to $3.00; cucumbers, per 2-dozen box, $1.00 to $1.75.

New York, May 22.—Celery, per crate, 50 cents to $1.50; cucumbers, 40 to 60 cents; mushrooms, 80 cents to $1.75 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, per lb., 20 to 35 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, 75 cents to $1.50; lettuce, per strap, $1.50 to $3.50.

Vegetable Prices Advance.

The weekly market review of the department of agriculture, dated May 15, reports an advance of $2 per barrel on new Florida potatoes since May 3. Prices May 14 were from $9.50 to $9.75 per barrel. To May 14, shipments of Texas onions amounted to 3,848 cars for the season. On that date first grade yellows were quoted at $1.75—$1.80 per crate, 50 cents more than on May 1 and also 50 cents higher than at the comparable time last year. Tomato prices May 14 reported from Florida points ranged from $1.75 to $2 per six-basket carrier, about the same as reported May 8. The average jobbing price of tomatoes, May 15, was from $3 to $3.50 per carrier.

Philadelphia Produce Market.

The demand for fruits and vegetables is strong at good prices. Almost everything is seen in full supply. Prices range as follows: Onions from Texas, No. 1, $2.25; No. 2, $2.00 per bushel. Canada rutabagas, $6.00 per barrel; carrots, $6.50 per barrel; Georgia cabbage, $5.00 per crate; watermelons from Florida, 50 cents, 75 cents and $1.00 each; tomatoes (Florida), $2 to $3, crate of six baskets of very good-looking fruit; southern lettuce, five-peck baskets, $2.75; string beans, $3.25; pod beans, $2.50; lima beans, $4.00 per basket; cucumbers, $3.25 per basket; Maryland strawberries, 18 cents per quart; new potatoes, $10.50 per barrel; seed potatoes—Pennsylvania, $3.25; Maine, $3.50 per bushel. K.

Lettuce Rust.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Please tell me the cause of lettuce rusting in greenhouses as per samples sent under separate cover. A. R.

Michigan.

We have had very little experience with this form of lettuce malady and do not believe it is common. However, we know of one case in our neighborhood, some years ago, and it proved exceedingly contagious, so much so, that any attempt to hold a grown crop any length of time to get a better market, proved a loss. We would recommend the closest cleanliness, digging up and burning all affected plants. If lettuce is grown in benches, they should be emptied and new soil used; if in solid beds, sterilization with steam is in order. Together with these measures must go hand in hand sound cultural methods. Lettuce requires a low temperature, constant supply of fresh air, ample moisture and plenty of plant food. The young plants should always be grown in new soil that has never had lettuce before. Strong, healthy plants is the best crop insurance. Further, make no attempt to hold crops when ready, as this invites diseases. Finally, destroy every trace of disease as soon as noticed. MARKETMAN.

Vegetable Prices at New York.

Vegetable prices on the New York market, May 21, were as follows: Potatoes—Bermuda, new, No. 1.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

John Watson, Newark, N. Y., President;
Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President;
Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress Street,
Boston, Mass., Secretary and Counsel.
Forty-second annual convention will be held at Philadelphia, Pa., June 27-29, 1917.

NASHUA, N. H.—L. B. Colby has been appointed superintendent of Woodlawn cemetery, succeeding Warwick Snow, resigned.

VIRGINIA, ILL.—F. T. Zinn of the Corn Belt Nursery & Forestry Association has been supervising landscape gardening being done in this city.

LOWELL, MASS.—The New England Nurseries, of Boston, have been awarded the contract, amounting to $417 to furnish trees and shrubs for Shedd park.

HONOLULU, CALIF.—The St. John's Nursery Co., now operating an establishment at Bangor, this state, has purchased 105 acres here and will extend its northern operations.

BRAZIL, IND.—Dwarf trees and blooming shrubs are being planted under the supervision of A. Dinkel, local florist, at the federal building. The arrangement is artistic and is being generously complimented.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—Arthur S. Rhodes, formerly assistant in forest botany at the state college of forestry, has been appointed assistant forest pathologist in the United States bureau of plant industry, Washington, D. C.

Fruit Crop in California.

California has produced a good orange yield and a record-breaking melon crop. Because of the increase of from 4,000 to 13,000 acres of cantaloupe, the shipment will be 6,000 cars. Apple and other deciduous tree fruit crops are average, but grapes are plentiful.

There are indications of a 50,000-car yield of citrus fruit. It is expected that the entire green fruit crop will call for 15,000 cars.

Barberry Spreads Black Stem Rust.

The Iowa agricultural experiment station at Ames reports in Circular 35 that during the season of 1916 a severe epidemic of black stem rust, which is spread by the European barberry bush, caused a loss of $110,000,000 in the wheat growing districts of Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Nebraska. In the four principal wheat growing provinces of Canada the damage was placed at $100,000,000.

The most practical way for reducing the ravages of this pest is to eliminate the European barberry bush, Denmark having accomplished remarkable results in doing away with it. In Iowa, two kinds of barberry are chiefly found, the European or common barberry (B. vulgaris) and the Japanese variety (B. Thunbergii). The Japanese variety is immune and does not spread the black stem rot. It is strongly urged that no further plantings of the European barberry be made. Those growing in close proximity to grain fields should be dug up and destroyed at once.

Salix Blanda.

This is the general name for the group of hybrid willows which has come into existence by the natural hybridization of the yellow-barked Salix viminalis with the Chinese weeping willow, Salix babylonica. These hybrids are large, hardy and vigorous trees, with branches as slender and pendulous as those of S. babylonica. What may be considered the typical form of S. blanda has light olive green branches. On other forms the branches are more or less tinged with yellow. The handsomest of them has bright yellow branches, especially at this season of the year, and is still without a proper name, although it is sold in nurseries as Salix babylonica aurea, S. babylonica ramulus aureis and sometimes as S. vitellina pendula, although there is a weeping form of the true S. vitellina to which this last name belongs. The yellow-barked variety of S. blanda is the handsomest of the weeping willows which can be successfully grown in the northern states where S. babylonica is not always hardy. At this time with its pale yellow unfolding leaves and yellow spikes of flower-buds this tree is an object of great beauty and one of the most attractive plants in the arboretum. S. blanda is not common in the neighborhood of Boston and probably has not been much planted in any part of the United States.

It is much less well known than the hybrid of S. babylonica and the European S. fragilis for which the general name is probably S. sepulcralis—probably, for it is often impossible to decide what is the correct name for hybrid willows, as there is still much confusion about their origin and history. To the S. fragilis babylonica hybrid belong the so-called Wisconsin weeping willow which has been largely planted in the northern states, and is a hardy and valuable tree. Its origin is not known at the arboretum. Thurber's weeping willow, named for the Massachusetts nurseryman by whom it has been distributed, is probably of the same parentage. Another hybrid known as Salix Salamoni is of the same parentage or is the result of the crossing of the European Salix alba with S. babylonica. This tree is highly esteemed in Europe but in this country is little known. It is a large, vigorous and hardy tree, with ascending branches and gracefully drooping branchlets, the whole forming a broad head of great beauty. This is a good time to examine the willow collection for many of the species, hybrids and varieties are flowering or just coming into bloom, and the flowers of willows are often very beautiful. The willow collection is arranged along the northeast border of the north meadow, and is most easily reached from the Jamaica Plain entrance of the arboretum.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, May 8, 1917.

J. D. THOMPSON CARNATION CO., Joliet, Ill.

Lancaster County Florists' Association.

May 17 was another of our red letter days with Richard Vincent, Jr., as a visitor and his illustrated lecture on "Dahlias" in the evening. President H. A. Schroyer, Secretary Frank L. Kohr, and Albert M. Herr and Elmer Weaver from the common herd, dined with Mr. Vincent at the Brunswick, after which, with the assistance of Dennis Connor, he was escorted to the club rooms, where an assemblage of some 40 members, with their wives and a few friends, were waiting to greet him.

In the regular business of the club, our attorney presented a report of the work he has accomplished so far, and we are assured better express service in every way from a local point of view, but when it comes to relief from delayed long distance shipments, there is only one source, and that is the S. A. F., whom we certainly hope to see on the job this summer.

It was decided to hold the picnic at Hershey, June 21, a date that suits the country growers all right, but as it is too near examinations, etc., for the city youngsters, they are cut out.

Mr. Vincent, in addition to the lecture proper, showed a fine lot of dahlia slides and explained them as he went along in his own inimitable style. After the lecture one of our new additions to membership, J. De Barry Heinitsch, acted as caterer and served us all with ice cream and cake. This was followed by a general conversation that lasted until almost the hour of eleven. Mr. Vincent makes an ideal entertainer, and if the president of the club had not started to turn out the lights, I suppose some of the members would be there yet, listening to his interesting reminiscences and traveling experiences.

ALBERT M. HERR.

Monmouth County Horticultural Society.

The above society is arranging for its summer show which will be held at Red Bank, N. J., June 20, the proceeds to be donated to the Red Cross. Prizes will be offered for best vase of sweet peas, collections of outdoor roses, teas and hybrid teas; hybrid perennials, perennials, annuals, vegetables and best table decoration.

At the monthly meeting of the society May 17 sweet peas and Darwin tulips were exhibited by A. Bauer and seedling dahlias by W. Waite. Wm. Turner, Malachi Tierney and Wm. Metzendorf acted as judges. Several new members were admitted.

MARSHALLTOWN, IA.—Jas. L. Denmead has just erected two new greenhouses, 28x240 feet. On April 27 Mr. Denmead moved into his new downtown store at 109 East Main street.

BUSINESS ECONOMY

Conserve the National Resources.
Eliminate Waste in Your Business.

Begin Now to Do Your Share—
It Will Help You and Others.

One of the biggest items of expense in the greenhouse business is the heating question. Why then for fancy's sake or otherwise do you sit silently by and watch the unnecessary losses of fuel go on day by day?

It is your money that is lost—the waste harms everyone. Stop! Stop!! Stop!!!

Many practical growers have solved this vital question.

You can do so, too.

The remedy is simple.

Get a Kroeschell—the boiler of unequalled fuel economy. It will pay you well.

READ WHAT OUR CUSTOMERS SAY

A Record For the Winter of 1916-1917.

Mr. Wendel is surely pleased with his No. 14 Kroeschell Boiler—it is a PEACH, that is all there is to it. We surely had some winter, which we all know.

Our houses have never been below 52°, and it was not necessary to force our boiler. Best of all we saved two carloads of coal over a year ago. (Signed)

CROWN POINT FLORAL CO., Crown Point, Ind.
Hada Jepsen, Grower.

Kroeschell Uses Only One-Half the Coal.

Have taken out return tubular boiler which used one-half more coal than the Kroeschell Boiler—it is so easy to regulate that in a few minutes I can run up the temperature by opening drafts. (Signed)

FRANK A. WAGNER, Tiffin, Ohio.

Kroeschell Does the Work of Two Boilers—Saves Fuel.

Your boiler does the work of two tubular boilers—saves fuel, needs less attention, as the fire lasts much longer—is easily cleaned. (Signed) S. E. MUNTZ, Dubuque, Iowa.

Kroeschell Bros. Co.,

Invasion.

I know that somewhere on a country way
Pink heather blooms, and where the trees were bare
Green traceries and creamy petals stray.
A sign that Spring herself has wandered there.
And when the south wind blows across the bay
It breathes the perfume of her mound hair.

Here, I have seen her gleaming yellow coat
Lighting a flower shop in a city street,
Or she has called from out the lusty throat
Of some street urchin selling violets sweet.
And in the hurdygurdy's wheezy note
I've heard the magic of her dancing feet.
—Jane McLean, in Chicago-American.

DAHLIA GROWING FOR PROFIT.

Early June is the Time to Plant if You Plan to Grow This Profitable Fall Flower.

A Side Line That Pays.

Growers who wish to take up an outside crop that is fairly certain to bring profitable returns, should try dahlias.
The time for planting them, however, is so near at hand that those who contemplate adding this line to their production must give the selection of varieties and methods of culture, speedy and serious consideration.

In the past few years these brilliant fall flowers have enjoyed such a marked success in the cut flower trade that the introduction of new varieties has been undertaken with results that are greatly encouraging to both grower and retailer. A number of specialists at Hammonton, Atco and Williamstown
Junction, N. J., have, by special culture and up-to-date methods in handling stock, made the dahlia one of the most popular of autumn flowers in the eastern markets, and worked up a demand that at times is difficult to meet.

Over 100 acres are planted with a great variety of dahlias at the Peacock Dahlia Farms, Williamstown Junction, whose owner, Lawrence K. Peacock, is known as the "Dahlia King of America." The comparatively small number of popular sorts are grown in large blocks, as thousands of a single variety are often required to fill one day's orders. They are planted out in large, level fields in the early part or middle of June, set in rows four and one-half feet apart. This spacing allows frequent harrowing, all the ground being gone over after each rain. This constant working keeps down the weeds and provides a dry mulch that is very beneficial to the plants. They are set two feet apart in the rows for special cutting, but much closer if quantity is desired, or if the tubers are being grown for stock. The ground is well manured each season, as for the best results there must be plenty of such encouragement, and with this treatment the same fields can be used again and again.

Pruning and disbudding are important in growing dahlias for cut flowers.
It is a mistake to allow the plants to become too large early in the season, since they do not stand the drought.
The wood gets hard, after which there are but few flowers. As they grow, they should be pinched to keep them low and bushy, with plenty of strong, young shoots, which carry the best flowers.

When the plants are beginning to attain good size, the top bud is cut out.
Then, as they grow in, the side shoots, or extra buds, should be removed. New shoots spring out quickly from the lower dormant buds, and soon, instead of a single stem, there are from four to six strong shoots, that give the plant a stocky appearance, and on each of which is produced a flower.
Disbudding so as to get the best blooms on long stems requires everyday attention.

Gathering and Shipping.

After the flowering season sets in, the blooms are gathered early in the day before the hot sun has time to wilt or soften them. Buckets filled with water are carried along the rows, and in them the blooms are placed as soon as cut. These are then carried to the packing shed, where they "soak" for from four to six hours. After that time they are packed in corrugated strawboard boxes, which are crated several together for shipment.

By this method the flowers are never laid down until they are packed. They are placed carefully in the boxes one layer thick—sometimes lower grade stock is packed two layers in a box.
The stem ends meet in the center, and are held down by a lath cleat nailed from the outside. When packed in this way, the blooms carry long distances without danger of being bruised.

The gathering and transporting of blooms to market, together with the expenses incident to selling, cost 50 per cent of the value received. At one time it was done for 10 per cent less, but the increasing cost of boxes, freight, salaries, etc., has raised the figure to the present mark. Economy in any direction seems impossible.

The season for continuous shipping of cut blooms in quantity begins about September 15 and lasts from three weeks to a month. During its height 45,000 to 50,000 blooms are shipped each day from the six different farms of the Peacock Dahlia Farms.

The Leo Niessen Co., of Philadelphia, have handled the entire product of the Peacock Co. for the past few years. By their improved methods of packing, obtaining orders in advance, which insured direct shipments from farm to destination, the demand has been greatly increased with flowers arriving in satisfactory condition over quite long distances.

The first tubers are gathered about October 20. After November 1 the work begins in earnest, when shipment commences. At the Peacock farms, about five acres are cleaned up each day. The entire basement of the warehouse and packing shed at Williamstown Junction contains racks and bins for the storage of tubers during the winter.

The fields of selected stock here are irrigated with surface water in shallow trenches, which has been found a satisfactory method. Though there is danger from violent wind storms, dahlia plants being so brittle that they snap off at the surface of the ground, the entire crop is grown without stakes. The pruning and pinching is relied upon to keep the stock down so that it offers as little resistance to the high winds as possible.

Leading Commercial Varieties.

Some of the best commercial varieties have been sent out by Lawrence K. Peacock, who has been engaged in hybridizing for many years. He has found merit in some of the older and almost discarded sorts, which he has brought to the front again, as in the case of Marjorie Castleton, which is of the same type as Kriemhilde, but larger and of a better color, being primrose and pink, instead of white and pink. A better variety than the famous Jack Rose is Richmond, one that Mr. Peacock is sure will become one of the best commercial sorts. Minnie Burgle, the new giant red from California, is a wonderful flower, Melody is a superb yellow, Gloire de Lyon a splendid white and Minnie McCullough the popular orange and red.

Some varieties are very prolific, but to obtain large blooms they must be disbudded. Jack Rose has produced as high as 50 good flowers to a plant. Many other varieties do as well. Tubers and rooted cuttings are equally good. Only one shoot is allowed to grow from the tuber, and this, as in the case of the cutting, is pinched to make a bushy plant.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Summer Trade Opportunities.

As summer approaches, we are all wont to slow up. It is the time for the trade to fall off—we expect it, look complacently at the diminishing receipts, and the general lethargy helps things on the downward path. Suppose that this year, when everybody is in fighting humor, we retail florists get our courage up and fight off this usual summer lassitude, with an eye for our portion of the great business that is sure to develop from the immense sums of money to be put in circulation in the next year or two. Every city and community in the land will feel this impulse, which has already started in the shipbuilding industry. Labor everywhere will be in great demand at the highest wages ever paid in this country.

The demand for flowers is controlled by sentiment; let there be a shocking accident, or sudden death from natural causes, and the sympathy of relatives, friends and business associates will find expression in flowers. It is bound to be—it is the custom, war or no war. It will be found the same for all other occasions where flowers are used to carry messages of love, joy or congratulations. That it costs more to live is nothing to people that have the money; with increased earnings comes desire for whatever the fancy sees and is found to be within reach.

The newly rich are always among the best customers of the florist, and unless all signs fail the country will soon be full of this class of liberal spenders. Now is the time to put our best foot forward, always alert for the best stock and the most efficient methods in its display.

Patriotism is in the air. Feature all national holiday events and whatever is uppermost in the public mind. The windows should always be so attractive to the passer-by as to call Halt!

A larger stock of foliage plants should adorn the store. Everything should be made to look its best, the baskets, vases and other bric-a-brac. Follow the customers to the country and sea shore with well worded and timely leaflets. Do not fail to tell them of the instantaneous delivery of flowers to any place in the country where their friends may have gone. Much business may be worked up in this way.

The florist who works assiduously to secure the summer trade is bound to keep himself and his business to the front, and has also laid a good foundation for the season's business on the return of his regular trade in the fall.

Winning the Trade.

Paper by Edgar Wenninghoff, read at the May meeting of the Fort Wayne, Ind., Florists' Club.

We florists are all striving for more business, and certainly there is no better way to secure it than to attract and interest the public by displaying the highest quality flowers. A clean and well arranged window with fresh flowers, well displayed and the setting frequently changed, is the best bid for trade the florist can make. In fact, an attractive window is the florist's most successful advertisement—a fine display in the window is an active medium in winning new customers. We want the non-flower buying public to realize more and more that flowers are always an appropriate and acceptable gift, whether it be for an occasion of rejoicing or a time of sorrow.

Plants which attract unusual attention, such as the calceolaria, blue hydrangea, yellow calla and fancy leaved caladiums, displayed in the window, arouse interest and stimulate trade. I notice these oddities are particularly interesting to the men. If we arouse and hold their interest, we have gained a good class of trade.

Invariably a great many buyers become discouraged at holidays, on account of the necessary advance in prices on cut flowers and the volume of business which makes it difficult to give the service desired by new customers. After the window display has attracted our first-time customers into the store, we must uphold our reputation by supplying only good quality flowers and the best service, and eventually they will become regular patrons. Another thing that discourages a great many purchasers of cut flowers and plants is their perishability. For this reason it is always an advantage to both the wholesaler and the retailer to sell only fresh flowers.

Dahlia Growing For Profit.
Set of Three and Five Boxes Crated for Shipment.

The newer varieties of roses have helped wonderfully in promoting the sale of cut flowers. Induce your customers to buy the better roses, considering both the lasting qualities and surpassing beauty. Convince them that the same amount of money expended for the higher quality roses, will give them better value and more satisfaction.

We cannot recall any other business in which it is so often expected that work shall be done without pay, as in the various lines of the florists' business. A great many florists are donating their time. A wreath or spray is arranged, never considering the actual time it takes to execute this work. It would be a good plan to charge more for our time, and this policy would add a great deal of dignity to the floral business. We are engaged in a business dealing in perishable goods; we must give the service and the time, so we ought to be paid accordingly. There has been no advance in the selling price of cut flowers, considering the improvement in the quality of our flowers today.

Retailer's Road to Success.

One of the most successful retail florists of the United States is William F. Gude, who manages the store end of the Gude Brothers Co., Washington, D. C. In addition, he is one of the live wires of the trade, the representative of the Society of American Florists in all matters that come before Congress or the government departments, president of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, past president of the S. A. F., and at all times taking an active part in its legislation and conventions.

In answer to my question as to the chances of a young man going into the retail store business at this time, he answered that it depended entirely on the man himself. First of all, before branching out for himself, he must have experience. If he is a graduate of the "University of Hard Knocks" so much the better; he will understand the value of a dollar and have a correct idea of its purchasing power. He will have learned to look out for the little things, the cost of which seems insignificant, but in the aggregate are an important item. He must learn how to handle perishable stock, such as flowers, so as to have the minimum of waste.

As to the amount of capital required, many men whose only assets were grit and determination and their knowledge of the business, have succeeded, while others with bank accounts and other advantages have failed. It is in the man; if he will devote his whole time to the business, concentrate his mind on the essentials, and keep a close watch on his finances, he will win out. The bookkeeping is very important. He should be able to know at the end of every month just how he stands. Many men fail from not knowing their condition until it is too late. All is not gold that glitters; many a design has been sent out in which there was no profit because the flowers were not counted up before they were put in. Goods are sold in the grocery by the pound or quart, but the florist in too many cases, just guesses—keeps on putting in flowers until it looks good enough.

When a foundation is laid, judicious advertising is a good lever to gain trade. It must be done carefully. First, have the goods, and if a bargain sale, see to it that it is a real reduction. His firm advertises every fall a $1.00 fern for 50 cents; this has been found to bring a great many people to the store, and many new customers are added to their list.

Courteous treatment always; a $25 customer or one with only 25 cents, should be treated alike. In the matter of complaints, no matter how unreasonable, it is best to at once offer a satisfactory adjustment. It is care and attention to the details that help most to build up a business. Flowers that are not absolutely fresh should never be sent out. Fair looking, second-day stock may work once in a while, but will more often trip you up, and a customer is gone. A florist should always carry a good stock; a full ice chest usually means a busy store. You cannot sell an article if it is not in stock. Mr. Gude believes in letting the people know you have the goods and at a certain price. Samples given out where they are likely to do good are worth while. It is a part of wisdom to let the people know that flowers are for the masses as well as the classes.

Great attention should be paid to the decoration of the windows. This firm's windows bring more business than any other advertising done. They are always kept novel and presentable, and filled with seasonable flowers and examples of artistic work all the time. All holidays are featured and often draw crowds to the windows at these times.

Being on time with all orders is very important; do not wait until tomorrow to get up an early order that has to be made up. Have it ready the night before. Very often delayed early funeral orders tax the facilities, and the designs that might have been prepared, throw everything late.

A bright and attractive store front has great advertising value; wherever possible pavement trees, such as box and baytrees, and window boxes should be important features. The store should at all times be kept clean and every article in salable condition.

Force the sale of things that do not seem to take; reduce the price if necessary and get rid of such stock before it becomes junk. Good stationery, tags, and cards are worth all they cost in effectiveness. As soon as it can be afforded, an automobile delivery car should be purchased. It more than pays for itself every year.

Always keep the practical close behind the artistic. A man who is all artist needs the restraining hand of a manager, for without such guidance there would soon be a store to let.

CLEVELAND, O.—The regular meeting of the local florists' club will be held in the Assembly room of the Hollenden hotel at 8 p. m. June 4. W. A. Manda, of East Orange, N. J., will deliver an address on "Orchids."

PLANT NOTES.

Cleaning Up.

The bedding season is over, the year's work is practically finished, the young stock for another year in preparation, and now is the time to clean house. Don't leave a lot of worthless stock scattered around the houses that takes a man's time to water, but what it is desired to save block all up together where it can be watered in a short time, and above all things throw out anything that has passed its usefulness. How often have we seen plants that would never have been of any value left standing in the greenhouses until fall planting; neglected, yet taking more or less room to be thrown out at last and the houses never thoroughly made ready for the coming crop. Get the plants that need care and attention all together and clean up the other houses. If the stock is grown in benches these will need repairing, and if badly decayed take them down and rebuild. Those that have cement benches are fortunate for they will only need repairs. Throw out all the old soil and clean up under the benches and in all the corners, and throw out any old rotting boards or pieces of crocks, and thus get rid of the vermin that invariably infest greenhouses. After the benches are cleaned out, give them a good, thick coat of whitewash in which sulphur was mixed when the lime was slacking. The advantage of this is too little appreciated by many growers. It costs but little and the prevention from fungus will often amount to a great deal. After the whitewash has dried throw a few ashes or a mulch of some kind on the wooden benches to protect them from the hot rays of the sun. Give the inside of the house clinkers left lying around in a moist condition, rusting the boilers. The steam boilers should either be emptied or filled, for if the water is left standing rust will form inside just above the water line and rapidly eat into the iron. These are all necessary details to be looked after at the earliest possible moment.

Canterbury Bells.

There is always a demand in the spring for something different than the flowers which the buyers have seen all through the winter and many growers have a call for some of the forced perennials. Canterbury bells are grown for this purpose and if well grown find a ready sale. Seeds sown now and grown on in pots, being shifted into larger sizes as may be required, will bloom next spring and help furnish the grower with a variety of stock. They should be grown cool during the early winter, a violet house or one of a similar temperature being about right, and then brought into a warmer house with a temperature of 50° in late winter where they will produce fine blooms for early spring. By bringing a few at a time into the warmer house a succession of bloom may be had.

Ardisia Crenulata.

The seeds of ardisia may be sown at any time during spring, and as it will take until another year to grow plants that will fruit, it is not material at which particular time they are sown. The seeds are a little slow in germinating and it is better to sow them in the manner of sowing cyclamen, about half an inch apart. In early summer they should be potted in 2½-inch pots and are better grown in a frame than in the greenhouse. In the fall when brought into the houses they should be again potted in three or four-inch pots and grown in a temperature of 50°. The plants are of a woody na-a good coat of white paint; this should be done at least every other year, for the difference in the amount of light in a clean white house and a dirty one during the dark short days is material, and the increased quality and quantity of stock will more than repay for the expense and labor. Any repairs that the heating system needs should be done at once and the boilers cleaned up ready for fall. Too often the boiler is never thoroughly cleaned out after the last firing and ashes and ture and grow slowly and should not be potted into too large pots, for it is far better to allow the roots to fill the pots before shifting. The following spring they will bloom, and should then be potted in six-inch pots and given a cool location in the houses. After the fruit has formed and grown to good size the plants should be given a good sunny position that they may take on a bright color by Christmas. If the plants are grown too warm the foliage will be thin and lack the substance and luster which makes them so much admired in the cooler grown plants, and the warmer grown stock gets chilled very easily, when the berries will drop off. The only insect which infests this plant is the brown scale, which, if not destroyed, will cover the plant stem completely. These should be carefully removed and continually guarded against. If there are any old plants that have dropped their lower leaves the top of these can be rooted in a similar manner to rooting rubbers, that is, by cutting into the stem and mossing the cut, and after the roots have appeared in the moss, the top cut off below the moss and potted.

Calceolarias.

A plant that always attracts attention and is as decorative as cineraria or other plants of that kind, and yet but little grown, is the calceolaria. The culture is very similar to that of the cineraria and is fully as easy. The seeds should be sown at once and shaded until they have produced one or two leaves when the shade should be made lighter. As soon as large enough they should be potted into small pots and shifted along into larger sizes as fast as is required. They should, as soon as well established, be given a light, airy location not shady enough for them to become drawn, but if in the full sunlight will have to be watched closely that they do not get dry. They will require cool quarters during the winter, if nice stocky plants are desired, and under this treatment fine 6-inch pot plants may be had in bloom in early spring that will surely attract attention. For the last potting a good rich soil will be required and when they begin to bloom watering with liquid manure will be beneficial. Like the cineraria they are quickly ruined by aphid and constant fumigation will be necessary. Many growers stand the plants on tobacco stems which are renewed as the strength is lost.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Chrysanthemum Midge.

The chrysanthemum midge (Diarthronomyia hypogaea F. Low.), an imported European gall fly, is now thoroughly established in the United States and is rapidly being distributed from state to state on infested chrysanthemum plants and cuttings. On the authority of California florists, this midge has been in that state for about 15 years, although the first published record was from Michigan in April, 1915. Since that date positive evidence has been secured of infested chrysanthemums grown under glass in Oregon, New Jersey, Connecticut, Indiana, Pennsylvania and Ottawa, Canada.

During the current year a number of florists have reported a total loss of their entire chrysanthemum stock, valued at several thousand dollars. Even in the case of a light infestation, the foliage is ruined for commercial purposes; whereas, in the case of a heavy infestation, the growth of the plants is completely arrested. It is obvious, therefore, that it is imperative in purchasing new plants and cuttings to insist on plants free from the chrysanthemum midge. Furthermore, even though the plants are certified to be apparently free from this pest, they should be thoroughly examined before they are placed in a house containing a collection of chrysanthemums.

Chrysanthemum Midge.

Figures 2 and 3 illustrate the galls made by the larvae or maggots of the midge. However, in the case of a recently infested plant, the galls are very small and difficult to detect and would naturally require careful examination to discover their presence. The fully developed gall averages about 3-25 inch in length and 1-25 inch in diameter at the base, and is placed at an acute angle on the surface of the plant tissue. They occur on the leaf, leaf petiole or stem, and if present in numbers cause the plant to be deformed, as shown in figure 3. Some 50 odd commercial single stem and pompon varieties have been found to be infested with this midge. In fact, practically all cultivated chrysanthemums are susceptible to attack although the degree of infestation appears to be more severe with some varieties than with others.

For the most part the adults which are about 1-12 of an inch in length, exceedingly delicate and provided with long slender legs (figure 1) emerge after midnight, and egg laying takes place very early in the morning. The life of the male midge is usually less than a day; whereas females have been kept alive from one to three days. The entire life cycle is passed in from four to six weeks, there being several generations a year with frequent overlapping of broods.

The eggs are very small, orange colored, and are deposited on the tender new growth. They hatch within five days, and the larvae or maggots, which are very small and vary in color from a transparent white to pale orange, enter the tissues of the plant in from one to three days. The interval between this period and the emergence of the adult is passed within the gall.

As yet no satisfactory method of control has been devised, although by the adoption of precautionary measures, it is possible to keep the midge out of chrysanthemum houses. As previously stated, infested plants should under no conditions be placed in a house containing non-infested chrysanthemums. In case of a light infestation, the plants in an infested house should be frequently examined, and all tops and leaves showing galls should be pinched out and destroyed and the house fumigated with tobacco paper at frequent intervals. In case of severe infestations, all plants should be burned and the houses thoroughly fumigated with hydrocyanic-acid gas before clean stock is substituted. This method of procedure has been adopted by several growers in order that they may have clean plants for distribution.

Doubtless nightly fumigation with hydrocyanic-acid gas or possibly the use of one of the nicotine papers will assist materially in controlling this midge, providing the fumigation takes place after midnight, after the adults have emerged. As the adults do not emerge until about midnight, fumigating early in the evening would be practically of no avail. It is possible, therefore, to resort to consistent nightly fumigations to destroy the adults.

The Bureau of Entomology is now making a thorough study of this insect with a view of determining practical methods of control in commercial greenhouses. A. D. BORDEN, Bureau Entomology, U. S. Dept. Agr.

August Koch's Ideas.

In growing plants for display in the Garfield park conservatories, August Koch has very practical ideas. Bulbous stock, destined to be forced for the various winter months is, after being potted, selected in the varieties and put away in cold frames outside, each lot with a number in the order they are to be taken out; they are partially covered and allowed a light freezing. The winter protection is then added, consisting of a liberal coat of manure mixed with soil. They are also protected by shutters so as to be easily taken out at any time.

Easter lilies are potted late in November—a little soil in the bottom, a cushion of sand on which is placed the bulb, over which is placed just enough soil to cover it. This makes the pot about one-third full. A light layer of sand and then the plants are placed in cold frames outside and covered with a litter of short manure and soil. They are allowed to freeze, are brought into the house the last of December, the loose soil down to the sand taken off and the pots filled with good compost. The shoot is by this time level with or a few inches above the top of the pot. They are now brought on slowly and kept in a condition to be advanced as quickly as desired. Hybrid calceolaria seedlings in small pots are kept on a raised side bench near the glass to give them the light and the benefit of a cooler atmosphere.

Begonia leaf cuttings are placed in rows an inch apart, the leaves facing the front of the bench and raised from the sand by a small stick like a tooth pick at the back. There is no damping off in this cuttings bed. Delphiniums and other herbaceous plants are found to force very successfully if grown in pots or pans during the summer. Nine-inch ¾ pans are the best. Plunged outside and well cared for, they ripen their wood, the pans getting well filled with roots. They are allowed a little frost and then brought on gradually inside, when they produce flowers quite the equal of those in the garden.

Propagation of the summer bedding grasses, such as pennisetum and others, is best done by making cuttings of the small shoots obtained from clumps given a little heat. The former plan of division of clumps was very slow and unsatisfactory. Large yellow painted labels, that stood well above the pot, were a feature here. Chrysanthemums and all such stock were marked in this conspicuous way. A zinc label, written and numbered in ink, designated every plant of slow growth, such as orchids and hardwooded plants of comparative slow growth. The numbers referred to date of acquisition and lot, by which means the local history of the plant was easily traced. The assistants in the houses are encouraged to make selections and crosses as they desire, being given credit for any new things produced. Mr. Koch believes this is a good way to give them a greater interest in the business.

HAIL.

Hail at Nashville, Tenn.

One of the most destructive hail storms in the history of the city, created havoc at Nashville and vicinity, a section that has been immune from severe storms of this kind for the past 18 years, followed by a terrific electrical display and a heavy down-pour of rain, May 26. The rainfall in the city amounted to 2.23 inches, and in some places the hail was reported as large as hens' eggs and covered the ground to a depth of two feet. In addition to glass damage, in some instances roofs were broken, trees blown down, vegetable gardens demolished and all vegetation badly damaged. Among those who suffered severe loss was the McIntyre Floral Co., both of its establishments being in the path of the storm. This firm has for many years cultivated a tract of about 10 acres southwest of the city and recently purchased 36 acres in another location on which they have erected a splendid range of eight houses, each 30x200 feet, the entire range covering more than an acre, modern in every respect with concrete benches, etc., devoted principally to roses, particularly Russell, which are grown with great success in the new houses. It was here that this firm was hardest hit. The fine range was nearly demolished, at least seven-eighths of the glass broken and the plants injured. The original range on the Hillsboro road was also damaged but not to as great an extent. Plants outside were injured but not destroyed. The Hoffatetter range nearby, a small establishment devoted to market gardening, also suffered severe damage. The McIntyre Floral Co. carried insurance but not enough to cover the total loss.

In Waverly Place, a suburb of the city, the vegetable gardens of Arnold Schmidt, comprising between five and 10 acres, were cut and slashed by the hail, while the Foster Gardens, owned by Louis Haury on the Murfreesboro road, a range of six houses 30x200, filled with all kinds of bedding plants and early vegetables, were badly damaged. He carried no insurance. Johnson Bros., in the same locality, suffered in both their greenhouses and cold frames. The private range of Dr. Brower nearby also suffered considerable loss.

On the north and west of the city, there was no damage, the ranges of Geny Bros. and the Joy Floral Co. being among the fortunate ones. The Lischey nurseries and range also escaped, as did the establishment of L. H. Haury & Sons. M. C. D.

Hail at Terre Haute, Ind.

During a severe storm that visited Terre Haute and vicinity on May 24, hail fell at four times, at noon, at 4 p. m., 6:30 p. m. and again at 8 p. m., the precipitation at 4 o'clock being the most severe. The Davis Gardens were hardest hit of the local establishments, the loss being 30,000 feet of glass, an average of 2,000 to each house. One of the new houses just finished was completely riddled. Other ranges which suffered damage were: Terre Haute Carnation Co., 2,000 lights; Cowan Bros., 1,500; L. H. Mahan, 2,000; Heintl & Weber, 1,000; John G. Heintl & Son, 500; Wm.

Dinkle & Son, 500; Thos. Stevenson, 500; Henry Graham, 800. Nearly all loss is covered by insurance.

Considerable damage was also done to growing crops, many of them being literally cut to pieces. Eastern Illinois was also hard hit but owing to communication being cut off it is hard to get authentic reports. B. S.

Hail at Newcastle, Ind.

The growers of this city were visited by a serious hail storm entailing heavy losses in glass as follows: P. Weiland, $20,000; South Park Floral Co., $1,250; Wm. Dittman, $750; P. J. Lynch, $500; Fred'k. J. Bentney & Co., $500; Kneidel, $200. In addition there was more or less damage to stock outdoors.

Tornado at Matoon, Ill.

The greenhouse losses in the recent tornado which visited this city, May 26, are estimated as follows: A. D. King, 25,000 square feet; A. L. Kirchgraber, 75 lights; J. W. Shrader, $50.

Tornado at Charleston, Ill.

Greenhouse losses in the tornado which swept this city, May 26, are reported as follows: Miss Etta Nott, 4,000 square feet; H. F. Hill, 5,000 square feet; Normal School, $200 loss.

Coal Situation at Chicago.

Buying of domestic coal continues active in the Chicago district, but energetic attempts to create storage piles have proven unsuccessful, both lake and rail shipments being small, and with the steady demand there has been no increase in stocks. The price situation in Chicago during the past week was somewhat easier, while the outside situation remained practically unchanged, quotations being as follows:

Liberty Bonds.

WHY "LIBERTY LOAN?"

The $5,000,000,000 bond issue of this year is named "The Liberty Loan of 1917" because it is to be a loan from a free people to be used in freeing the world. It is the loan of a liberty-loving people to be devoted to the establishment of liberty in Europe and on the high seas. It is the loan of the great democracy of the New World to redress the wrongs and support the cause of the democracy of the Old.

IS PURCHASE OF BONDS PATRIOTIC?

Yes; every American who subscribes to the justice of the course of the United States in entering and conducting the war we are now engaged in, should subscribe to the Liberty Loan Bond issue to the extent of his or her financial ability. Every American who subscribes to the belief that an American should stand by his or her country should subscribe to the Liberty Loan Bond issue. Every American who loves America and is jealous of America's honor should subscribe to the Liberty Loan Bond issue. The real success of the loan is to be more determined by the number of Americans participating in it, than by the amount subscribed. The spirit of the nation is going to be judged abroad, especially by our enemies, more by the number of its American men and women who support this bond issue than by the mere amount of money subscribed.

SPECIAL ADVANTAGES.

One special advantage no other bonds, national, state, municipal or corporate have, is that if the United States during the continuance of this war shall issue other bonds at a higher rate of interest, the holders of these Liberty bonds have the right to exchange their Liberty bonds for bonds bearing the higher rate of interest, dollar for dollar. They are non-taxable. If your city, county and state taxes are three mills on the dollar, a not unusual tax, these bonds are equivalent to ordinary corporate bonds or other investments bearing  $6\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. In addition, no federal tax which war conditions may later make necessary will affect these bonds. The only tax these bonds are subject to is the inheritance tax, which applies to all property of all kinds whatsoever.

EXTENSIVELY ADVERTISED.

It is not necessary to advertise these bonds to sell the whole issue, but it is earnestly desired that this loan shall be a popular loan, a loan by and from the people at large of the United States, and not alone from banks, trust companies and financiers. To that end bonds are to be issued of small denominations, and subscribers for small amounts are to be supplied before the subscribers for large amounts are granted their full subscription.

SECURITY.

The faith and honor of the United States, backed by all of the resources of the nation and the American people. A Liberty Loan Bond is a mortgage on all the resources and taxing powers of the Government and all of the resources of the American people.

PETERBORO, ONT.—Jordan & Co. report a complete clean-up for Mothers' day. Flowers to the amount of nearly $400 were also sold on the streets for the benefit of the Women's Council playground committee.

MONTREAL, QUE.—Mothers' day, with the visit of Marshall Joffre on the same date, brought forth the greatest demand for flowers in the history of the florists of this city and resulted in a grand clean-up in all quarters.

Come as the winds come, when Forests are rended,
Come as the waves come, when Navies are stranded;
Faster come, faster come,
Faster and faster,
Chief, vassel, page and groom,
Tenant and master.

Fast they come, fast they come;
See how they gather!
Wide waves the eagle plume,
Blended with heather,
Cast your plaids, draw your blades,
Forward each man set!
Pibroch of Donull Dhu
Knell for the onset!

GOOD OUTLOOK FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

Some days during the past week business was good and other days it was mediocre. Perhaps the weather had something to do with it, as we had all kinds. Stock has been plentiful, especially roses and sweet peas. American Beauties are also plentiful and are sold at very low prices. Carnations are not as numerous, but ample to meet the demand. There will be no local peonies for Memorial day as the cool weather has kept them back. They will all come along in about two weeks when it will hardly be worth while to cut and ship them, as there is only one day in which good money can be realized from them. Many growers will not cut them at all, as the prices will be so low that it will not pay. Outdoor lily of the valley is coming now in abundance and takes the place of indoor grown stock, as there is considerable difference in the price. Lilac and all other outdoor flowers are flooding the market at present, which affects the sale of other stock. Most all the plantsmen are busy now hustling out their orders of spring planting, which is a little late. Other years they had the most of it done by this time. A heavy frost May 25 has injured most of the vegetable gardens in this section. We all look for a large business for Memorial day.

NOTES.

The next meeting of the florists' club will be held June 5 at the Ft. Pitt hotel. As this will be the last meeting until September, a large attendance is requested. Bedding plants and shrubs will be the topic. Perhaps a committee will be named for the outing to be held this summer.

Thomas Carr, who has succeeded Ernest R. Bolton, as first assistant at "Greenlawn," the Heinz estate, has also been named as secretary of the Horticultural Society of Western Pennsylvania, following the latter's resignation from that position.

The employees of the Harmony Nursery Co. are planning a basket picnic and outing to be held at the nurseries July 4.

Dave Hill has the sympathy of the trade and his many friends in the loss of his father, who died May 25.

Edw. Weaver of Randolph & McClements has been on the sick list.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The annual spring show of the above society was held in the Glen Cove, N. Y., Neighborhood house, May 23, and while the quality of the blooms on the exhibition tables did not equal that of last year the competition was nevertheless keen in all classes, of which there were 27. Much credit is due Robert Jones, the hard-working manager, for his tasteful arrangement of the show. The judges were James Duthie, E. Westlake and James McCarthy, the principal prizes being awarded to the following: John F. Johnson, Jas. McDonald, Joseph Adler, William Noonan, James McCarthy, John Dombrowsky and Robert Jones. Cultural certificates were awarded to John F. Johnson for an exquisite vase of salpiglossis; James McCarthy for vase of Sweet Pea Yarrowa and to Robt. Jones for a magnificent group of French hydrangeas.

THE late season should make good late demand for bedding and window box plants.

COAL, according to a prominent dealer, is more easily obtained between June 15 and July 15 than at any other time.

LATE frosts have again caused many early planters to make haste in providing stock to replace dead and injured plants outdoors.

HAIL and tornado insurance would seem to be a good investment for greenhouse men these stormy days, but the policy should be secured before the houses are wrecked.

Iowa Blue Law.

The Merchants Bureau and the Chamber of Commerce of Council Bluffs have expressed a determination to fight enforcement of the Sunday blue law. Among the strong objectors to the law's enforcement are J. F. Wilcox & Sons, Inc., florists, who would suffer great loss if denied the privilege of making shipments on Sunday.

ANOTHER mutual hail and tornado insurance organization supported by the State Florists' Association of Indiana is seeking membership.

Detroit Florists' Publicity for Flower Days.

Through the splendid efforts of the publicity campaign committee of the florists of Detroit, Mich., of which Albert Pochelon is chairman, the fund raised by subscription amounting to more than $1,000, together with the attention given to Mothers' day advertising by florists throughout the country, resulted in a great deal of extra business to the florists of that city this year. In addition to large and small advertisements in the leading local papers, posters, posterettes and banners, prominently displayed, also played an important part. The total cost of the Mothers' day campaign was $717, leaving a fund of nearly $500 which was devoted to the Memorial day publicity, planned along similar lines as that for Mothers' day, the motto being "Memorial Day, May 30. A tribute to the loved ones—Flowers in the Home"—and which will doubtless be equally as productive of excellent results. Mr. Pochelon, in thanking the many contributors to the fund adds: "Remember, we need your co-operation, not alone in a financial way, but also in new ideas."

Society of American Florists.

LETTER TO STATE VICE-PRESIDENTS.

Houston, Tex., May 25, 1917.

State Vice-Presidents:

I am this day appointing you Chairman of the "On To New York" Convention Committee. Your duty will be to stimulate a large attendance at the convention in New York, this August.

You possibly realize that this is the most important convention we have had in years. Due to the fact that serious conditions confront our country at this time, the florists of the country should get together, and must show our co-operation with the government in the present crisis.

The florist business is looted upon by the warring nations as unnecessary business during the times of war. It is up to us to convince the people that our business is very necessary, and absolutely essential in this crisis. We should go further, and devise ways and means of growing such stock as will assist the government in food preservation. Therefore, at this convention, these various matters can be taken up and discussed.

Impress upon the members in your state, the vast importance of the coming convention, and I trust that you will take unusual interest in circularizing the members of your state. Just a suggestion—get up a state delegation, concentrating at some central location in your state, and proceed to the convention in a body.

Please advise me by return mail what I may expect from you in this work. R. C. KERR, President.

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

Public notice is hereby given that as no objection has been filed the following registration becomes complete: Laelia-Cattleya, Adela Griswold, by William E. S. Griswold, Wyndhurst, Lenox, Mass.; Alfred J. Loveless, gardener.

May 26, 1917. JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

American Peony Society Bulletin.

Bulletin of Peony News No. 4, published by the American Peony Society under date of May, 1917, contains 38 interesting and instructive pages, among the subjects covered being a report of the meeting of the directors of the society held in New York, April 11; a pronouncing list of peony names; a letter from E. Lemoine, of Nancy, France, an honorary member of the society; suggestions as to how to exhibit peonies; notes by Rev. C. S. Harrison, York, Neb., on the history of the peony in America; a review of Mrs. Edward Harding's "Book of the Peony," notice of which appeared in THE AMERICAN FLORIST, issue of April 7, page 674, and notes from the secretary's office.

American Rose Society.

ANNUAL OUTDOOR MEETING, JUNE 4.

The florists of Washington, D. C., as well as amateur rose growers in that locality look forward to a greater than ever attendance at the third annual outdoor meeting of the American Rose Society, which will be held at Arlington Farms national rose test gardens, Washington, Monday, June 4. Visitors are reminded to meet at Gude Bros. Co., 1214 F street, Northwest, at 9 a. m., where automobiles to the garden will be provided.

Those planning to attend will please notify Wm. F. Gude at the above address or Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa., chairman, national rose test garden committee.

ROBERT PYLE, Chairman.

Geranium Pest.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

A small white worm which attacks and completely eats out the heart of the plant is killing my geraniums. What can I do to eradicate the pest?
D. C.

Pennsylvania.

Try dusting the plants with Paris green mixed with very finely sifted lime or wood ashes, using just enough of the poison to lightly color the material.

C. W. JOHNSON.

The American Mutual Cyclone and Hail Insurance Co.

To Our Members, Special Notice:

The American Mutual Cyclone and Hail Insurance Company of which you are a member has grown and prospered beyond the greatest expectations of its founders, we now having over $3,500,000.00 of an assessable capital. A sufficient loss fund to take care of ordinary losses, not in debt a single dollar, every loss (in which the proofs have been returned to the office) are paid in full to date. The officers are proud of the condition of this company and are proud of you for helping to make this company the strong institution it now is. Now it is up to us and you to make this company Bigger, Better and Stronger. We propose to do this in the following manner:

1st. To reorganize the company under the Insurance Act of 1915 of the State of Indiana: This will place the company under the direct supervision of the insurance departments of each and every state where we have members; thus assuring you of a wider protection, including Fire on your dwellings and out-buildings as well as Cyclone and Hail on your entire plant and crops; the demand for fire insurance on this company has been very great, coming from greenhouse owners, but under the law under which we now operate, we can not protect our members against loss by fire.

2nd. This will enable us to divide the surplus profits each year with our members, by way of cash dividends or a reduction in the cost of their insurance.

3rd. The re-organization will in no way affect your present membership, but will better it, it will not cost you a single dollar more or less to consent to the re-organization, and besides, it will give us the right to have our members of each state elect one of their number to our board of directors.

This action granted by the unanimous consent of the board of directors of the American Mutual Cyclone & Hail Insurance Company, of Muncie, Indiana, and is in harmony with the resolutions passed by said board of directors at their meeting, held at the home office of said company on the 14th day of May, 1917.

THE AMERICAN MUTUAL CYCLONE AND HAIL INSURANCE COMPANY,
OSCAR E. ANDERSON, Sec'y.—Adv't.

MEMORIAL DAY TRADE BETTER THAN 1916.
The Memorial day trade was very good this year, with practically all the wholesalers reporting an increase in sales over 1916. The supply in general was not as large as last year, but what stock was offered brought better prices and cleaned up completely in most lines. Peonies were never so scarce for Memorial day, and never brought such high prices or cleaned up so completely at such an early hour. Carnations were in large supply, but were in brisk demand and cleaned up quickly at satisfactory figures. American Beauty roses were none too plentiful and it was impossible to supply anywhere near the demand which in itself was nothing to speak of. Roses had a good call, but the demand was principally for short and medium stemmed stock, and while the longer stemmed grades were disposed of at good figures prices could have been much better, and this is particularly true of fancy long-stemmed Mrs. Chas. Russell. Cape Jessamines were not as plentiful as in 1916 and what few were offered were disposed of at good prices. Double White narcissus, which in former years was quite a factor in the market for Memorial day, was late this season and did not cut much of a figure in the offerings. Lilac was not very plentiful compared to former years, but the supply of gladioli was considerably larger and found many buyers. Orchids and lily of the valley were scarce. Sweet peas were in good supply, but the demand for them was rather light early in the week, and while they cleaned up nicely prices were not as high as expected, although satisfactory. Miscellaneous stock sold well and, taking everything into consideration, the Memorial day trade this year was very good, with the total sales in practically almost all instances showing an increase over that of 1916. Stock in general was scarce and it was impossible for some of the wholesalers to fill anywhere near all their orders in full.

NOTES.

Bassett & Washburn had such a heavy demand for stock for Memorial day that they found it almost impossible to fill all the late orders that kept coming in. Out-of-town demand was exceptionally heavy and the late city call very satisfactory.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. enjoyed a splendid Memorial day trade and cleaned up completely in all lines of stock long before the rush was over. Both carnations and roses were in brisk demand with them and brought very satisfactory prices.

J. A. Budlong's out-of-town demand for Memorial day was very heavy and their city call exceeded all expectations. Carnations especially were in brisk demand.

Miss Frances Ludlow, of Vaughan's Seed Store flower seed department, is spending a few days with a sister in St. Louis this week, after a very heavy season.

A. Lange had a heavy call for funeral work last week, which could not have come at a more opportune time for the market conditions were all his way.

T. B. Brown, of A. Lange's force, has quit batching it since his wife returned from the west coast of Florida where they own a large farm.

W. J. Smart, formerly with Knight & Struck Co., New York, is now with the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., calling on the private trade.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association had its share of the Memorial day trade, which kept Manager Klingsporn and his able assistants busy as bees to attend to. Their supply was heavy and complete in almost every respect but roses and carnations were the leaders and sold remarkably well.

Peter Reinberg's sales for Memorial day were considerably ahead of those of 1916, according to Felix Reichling. Roses and carnations were in large crop with this concern, but no trouble was experienced in disposing of all the stock at an early hour.

Vaughan's Seed Store has an unusually fine display of tulips in the firm's trial grounds at Western Springs, this week. Sample blooms may be seen at the store, 31 West Randolph street.

Mrs. Laura T. C. Spencer, mother of Archie C. Spencer, died this week. The funeral was held Tuesday, May 29, at 2 p. m., from the late residence, 550 North Ridgeway avenue, to St. Timothy's church; Huron and Central Park avenue, with interment at Oak Ridge cemetery. There were a large number of floral offerings seen at the funeral, which consisted of many beautiful pieces from Archie's many friends in the trade.

Eric Johnson, manager of the A. L. Randall Co.'s cut flower department, was ably assisted during the heavy Memorial day rush by Frank Johnson and his able assistants, Ed. Galavan and G. Way. The boys had to work all day Sunday and late nights to handle the heaviest Memorial day cut flower demand in the history of the firm.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. enjoyed a fine Memorial day business in both the cut flower and supply departments with the total sales running away ahead of last year. This firm is cutting a good supply of orchids which are in brisk demand and have been holding up well in price in this market for the past few months.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. handled a large quantity of Cape Jessamine in addition to a complete line of all other seasonable stock for Memorial day and experienced a good cleanup in all lines. This firm's sales for the month of May are over $5,000 ahead of those of the same period during 1916.

Wietor Bros. are more than satisfied with their Memorial day trade, which was very good and resulted in an early cleanup in all lines. The demand for both roses and carnations at this house was surprisingly large owing to the great scarcity of peonies.

Mrs. Frances Spickerman, proprietor of the Sandwich Greenhouses at Sandich, in a letter to Zech & Mann, writes that she suffered considerable loss in glass breakage during the heavy hail storm which visited that city last Saturday afternoon, May 26.

O. Johnson says that the Batavia Greenhouse Co. cut its first lilac this year May 21, 10 days later than last season. Last year they cut their first peonies May 21 and this year their first shipment did not arrive until the last day of this month.

E. F. Winterson's new home at Highland Park, known as Ridgewood Farm, was almost entirely destroyed by fire which started from an overheated fireplace last Friday evening, May 25. The loss was fully covered by insurance.

Erne & Company are handling a fine supply of out-door lily of the valley, which is in good demand. This firm handled a large quantity of peonies for Memorial day, which cleaned up at an early hour.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner handled a large quantity of fancy peonies for Memorial day, which had much to do with their total cut flower sales, showing a great increase over last year.

Mention the American Florist when writing.

J. E. Pollworth, of Kennicott Bros. Co., returned from his southern trip in time to assist H. B. Kennicott and the Kennicott force with their best ever Memorial day trade.

Adolph and Chas. Benesch, of the E. F. Winterson Co., have the sympathy of the trade in the loss of their mother, whose death occurred this week.

The Chicago Florists' Club will meet at the Briggs hotel, 188 West Randolph street, next Thursday evening, June 7, at 8 o'clock.

Philips, the Florist, is now proprietor of the store at 1008 Belmont avenue.

SUPPLY INCREASES.

Clear skies have worked wonders with greenhouse stock, resulting in an abundance of flowers being thrown on the market, and conditions have taken a slump. Candytuft, feverfew and spiraea are looking extra well despite the cloudy weather of the last month. Carnations, roses and sweet peas are finding a ready market and there is very little reduction in prices.

NOTES.

John J. Cassidy, in his new location on Beacon street, formerly occupied by W. E. Doyle, has started a campaign with magnolia wreaths, arranged with real flowers, instead of the artificial ones formerly used. He has twice as many orders booked in advance as he had a year ago, showing what can be done if a little energy is exerted.

E. L. Estey, of West Roxbury, father of the "Estey boys" who have done so much for this market in the way of novelties, died recently at the age of 83 years. Many floral pieces were sent from both local markets and numerous shops in loving tribute.

Penn. The Florist, is having an especially heavy demand for Memorial day, proof that his extensive advertising pays well. He has recently added a Vim truck to his already extensive delivery equipment.

The force in the supply department at H. M. Robinson & Co., worked every night for two weeks getting up orders. At the time of the writer's visit three caravans were being loaded with express shipments.

Welch Bros. Co. is receiving large shipments of peonies from the south, which are selling rapidly. Orders are also being booked for delivery, June 1, of pale pink, white and red varieties of this flower.

Thomas F. Galvin, Inc., report especially heavy demand for Memorial day at both stores. Several elaborate June wedding decorations have already been booked.

Anticipating the best Memorial day business in their history, B. A. Snyder & Co. are contemplating adding another delivery auto to keep up with shipping orders.

Kidder Bros., of Lincoln, are cutting great quantities of irises. Their new bronze variety is looking better than ever.

Patrick Welch, in addition to a fine cut flower trade, is also having a splendid demand for florists' supplies this year. S. K. G.

MEMORIAL DAY OUTLOOK PROMISING.

Memorial day business promises to be good. There is a large supply of stock in the market and it is meeting with an unusually active demand for this day. Business during last week, however, was somewhat quiet. There was plenty of stock, but it was taken up rather slowly. Roses are plentiful and among others, include some most excellent offerings in Russell. Carnations are in a good supply. Adverse weather conditions have hit the local cut of peonies, and as a result, offerings are far below normal, both in respect to quality and quantity. Easter lilies are very plentiful, while a fair supply of callas may be had. Sweet peas are in a good supply. Snapdragons, too, are plentiful. Other offerings are Cape Jessamines, irises, cornflowers, gladioli and marguerites.

NOTES.

C. E. Critchell, who for years has made Cape Jessamine one of his Memorial day specials, has his usual large supply this year.

P. J. Olinger has an excellent large cut of roses and carnations for Memorial day business.

L. H. Kyrk is getting in some excellent roses from L. Frank & Sons, Portland, Ind.

Visitors: Gus Kohlbrandt, of E. C. Amling Co., Chicago; C. P. Brunner, Springfield, O.; Mrs. G. W. Frisch, Dayton, O.; Karl Heiser, Hamilton, O.; J. T. Heidegen, Aurora, Ind.; A. W. Ferre, representing Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, and M. Cox, representing the Sefton Manufacturing Co., Chicago. H.

NEW YORK.—A sales office of the Skinner Irrigation Co., under the management of C. H. Allender, has been opened at 131 Hudson street, this city.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—David Saunders, one of the pioneer florists of this city, having been engaged in the trade here for nearly 50 years, died May 18, aged 68 years.

YONKERS, N. Y.—The New York Floral Co. has leased more commodious quarters at Broadway and Dock street, and will remove from its present location, 10 Broadway.

BIG MEMORIAL DAY TRADE IN SIGHT.

The bulk of the offerings on the local market at present are carnations, sweet peas and gladioli, which are getting quite plentiful now, especially the baby varieties. Greens are none too plentiful. Prices continue low. Big plans are being made for Memorial day, which will without doubt produce better business than in any previous year.

NOTES.

Wolfskill Bros. & Morris Goldenson are showing some artistic wreaths arranged with statice. The usual amount of funeral work is reported.

Howard & Smith are kept busy with weddings and a fair cut flower trade, so that a falling off in nursery sales is not so noticeable.

The Redondo Floral Co. is booking some good advance orders for Memorial day. They anticipate a very heavy out-of-town demand.

Wright's Flower Shop, Inc., recently had an order for an elaborate wedding. There have also been numerous orders for funeral work.

O. C. Saake has been making an excellent display of hollyhocks and dwarf gladioli. Business is fair for the season.

The Broadway Florists are showing some Northern Beauties in the long stemmed class; also, lily of the valley. G. H. H.

DAYTON, O.—The city greenhouses are placing flower boxes on all city bridges.

SHORT MEMORIAL DAY SUPPLY INDICATED.

Last week a heavy influx of roses was a disturbing factor in the market that was already overloaded with nearly every item on the list of seasonable flowers and special sales calculated to dispose of the surplus had little effect upon the stock that continued to pile up. On the approach of Memorial day, however, indications point to a real scarcity of everything in cut flowers, and even pot plants that are usually available at this date in great quantities, are this year far short of prospective demands. Cold weather with heavy rains are alone responsible for this shortage that the Memorial day demand will make most embarrassing.

SPECIAL CLUB MEETING.

Responding to an invitation extended by Geo. W. Davis, the florist club held a well attended and enthusiastic meeting at the Davis greenhouses, Wednesday evening, May 23. This meeting was a special one, called to hear the reports of the advertising committee having in charge the publicity connected with Mothers' day. About 40 members were present, and together with the visitors, increased the party to fully 50 persons. Mrs. Davis and her daughter had prepared a splendid dinner for the guests, who enjoyed it most heartily and gave the fair hosts, who so generously provided for them a rousing cheer and vote of thanks. The dinner over, all repaired to the greenhouses to inspect the recently completed shop attached thereto and gave the same their approval for its elegant appointments, which included a new refrigerator of ample size to exhibit a choice stock of cut flowers. The size of the store room is about 15 feet square, and leading out of it are the greenhouses, where a nice stock of bedding plants were seen. The floor is of tile of a pretty design, and the two large show windows, fronting on Lincoln and Warren avenues, have low platforms fully exposing the entire interior of the store. The ceiling is finished with heavy beam work and the pure enameled white of all the wood work gives a cheerful aspect to this handsome addition to Detroit's nice flower stores. A. Pochelon, of the publicity committee, read a detailed report of the receipts and expenses of all forms of advertising done for Mothers' day, and outlined plans for continuing the work to include an extraordinary effort to popularize flowers for Memorial day. In this he was ably supported by President E. A. Fetters and most of those present. Mr. Fetters made a strong appeal for a permanent advertising fund, and efforts to that end will be instituted at once with encouraging hopes for success. Everyone present agreed that Mothers' day business was unparalleled, and many increased the amount of their subscriptions in support of their endorsement of the publicity campaign that was so eminently successful.

NOTES.

Samuel Alexander, a well-known botanist died in this city last week, aged 77 years. He was a native of Ohio and came here 40 years ago. He pursued his study chiefly in forestry, and was, at the time of his death, about to complete a treatise on the same. Mr. Alexander was much interested in our florist club, and one time delivered an interesting address to the members.

The sympathy of the local trade is extended to Herman Paulke whose wife died suddenly May 14, aged 42 years.

Morris County Society.

The executive committee of this society met at the Washington hotel, Morristown, N. J., May 18, to arrange the fall flower show schedule for this year. The entire committee of 15 was present. It was decided to hold the show in James hall, Madison, N. J., November 1-2 next. The main features of last year's schedule are retained. In common with the patriotic spirit which fills the air in the east, the committee decided to turn over the entire proceeds of the show to the American Red Cross Society. Ribbons in red, white and blue will be given in lieu of cash prizes. Every effort will be made to have the show bigger and better than ever.

FUNERAL AND WEDDING DEMAND HEAVY.

Business during the past week has been quite good, with a large number of orders for funeral work, including casket blankets and wreaths. The weather has been cool, which has retarded greenhouse stock as well as the demand for bedding plants. Weddings have been numerous and flowers have been very much in demand. The outlook for Memorial day is unusually good, with indications of a good supply, although it is believed there will be a shortage of carnations.

NOTES.

E. J. Lanternier & Co. have received their new Overland delivery truck, the second truck in service here. They have been busy with a large amount of funeral work, having sent out three large casket covers in two days. Ed. Wenninghoff had his full share of the funeral work during the past week. He is also experiencing a heavy call for cut flowers, but says the demand for bedding plants is not as great as in former years.

The Flick Floral Co. reports a heavy advance demand for Memorial day and have some handsome magnolia wreaths on display in their window. Funeral work is much in evidence here.

W. J. Vesey, Jr., spent several days in Chicago last week. The Vesey greenhouses are cutting a fine lot of Shawyer roses for Memorial day and the bedding stock is exceptionally fine.

The Doswell Floral Co. is cutting excellent Ophelia roses, snapdragons and Easter lilies. A large number of advance orders for Memorial day have been booked.

Markey Bros. are cutting fine Shawyer and Killarney roses and are showing fine blooming plants.

COMMENCEMENTS BRING GOOD DEMAND.

All indications point to a good supply of flowers for Memorial day, and should there be any great demand it can be easily met. Peonies continue plentiful with a good call and roses are coming in splendidly. In addition to Memorial day, many schools will have their closing exercises during the week, which always creates a brisk call for flowers. The Ward-Belmont, one of the larger schools and noted throughout the country, has an enrollment of more than 500 pupils and many gala days create a demand for the better grade of cut stock. This school has very handsome greenhouses of its own but they are used principally to supply bedding plants for the grounds. Palms and decorative plants are also grown, many of them being excellent.

SLOW BUSINESS DUE TO BAD WEATHER.

Cold weather and rain have made business dull just previous to Memorial day and advance orders are coming in slowly, due to the backward season. Bulbous stock is rather scarce and daffodils are practically at their end. Tulips for Memorial day will be quite plentiful, however. Roses are excellent in quality, but prices are still high and carnations are very good, indeed, with prices firm. Lily of the valley continues scarce and the same is true of orchids and gardenias. Everything points to a good Memorial day trade, although the advance sale of bedding plants has not been very heavy as yet. In blooming plants, hydrangeas, tulips, primroses, begonias and a few late ramblers are included in the offerings.

NOTES.

Under the name of the Wilson Floral Co. a new wholesale florist establishment has been opened at 40-43 Stone street, by H. E., E. P. and R. W. Wilson. A full line of florists' supplies in addition to cut flowers and plants will be handled. They have the best wishes of the trade in their new undertaking.

Two comrades of Charles Gow, direct from the French front, on furlough, called at H. E. Wilson's during the past week. Both have been wounded several times and are here recuperating, but report that Gow has gained in weight, is in fine physical condition, and is in the thick of the fight.

J. B. Keller Sons recently arranged a pleasing display of yellow and blue irises in jardiniere on pedestals. Novelty baskets in gilt filled with forget-me-nots and polyanthus are meeting with excellent sale here.

D. Lester of the Rochester Floral Co. has enlisted in the engineering corps and is now training at the barracks at Columbus, O. He expects to leave for France soon.

Geo. T. Boucher has a full line of bedding plants and perennials which he reports are selling well. He is also showing some good blue larkspurs.

E. R. Fry is enjoying good business at both stores, although the sale of bedding plants has not fairly started owing to the cold weather.

H. P. Neun has been cutting excellent snapdragons. His Dorothy Perkins roses are also very fine.

The magnolias in Oxford street are in their prime and are attracting vast throngs. CHESTER.

PLENTIFUL SUPPLY WITH FAIR DEMAND.

A plentiful supply of everything, summarizes the condition of the market at the beginning of the past week, but a shortening of the supply and an increased demand marked the closing days. Sweet peas did not move until Saturday, the best bringing a fair price. American Beauties are offered at from 10 to 25 cents. Roses were scarce on Saturday, but early in the week, wholesalers could not dispose of them. Carnations also failed to move at prices ranging from $1 to $3 per 100. Orchids are in more plentiful supply and gardenias are over with. Some lily of the valley is seen but the quality is poor. Peonies are coming slowly and command good figures. The supply of lilies is good and are priced at 10 and 12 cents per bloom. Other offerings include callas, antirrhinum, calendulas, Shasta daisies, baby gladioli and mignonette. Outside tulips have passed.

NOTES.

The Seidewitz Flower Shop has been busy with funeral work of late. This store is also supplying large contracts for window box stock.

Jesse P. King, of Mt. Airy, who formerly grew sweet peas extensively, is now devoting part of his range to roses.

Visitors: Frank McCabe, representing A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; Wm. B. Lake, Wm. Gowdy and F. J. Michell, Philadelphia; J. C. Bloxom, Hampton, Va. C. S.

Oklahoma City.

Business continues to hold up fairly well and the plant trade is growing bigger as the season advances.

NOTES.

The State Civic Association held a rose show in the Lee Huckins hotel, May 29. The date was just right for the flowers, and there was a splendid display, all from the gardens of amateurs. Our commercial men do not entuse much over these local affairs.

MARKET SUFFERS FROM OVERSUPPLY.

The past week opened in distress; quantities of flowers, much more than could be handled at any kind of a fair price, were thrown on the market, clogging the wheels and almost stalling the machinery. Thursday and Friday were cold, stock shortened up, and Saturday's demand cleared up the supply fairly well. Some dealers were satisfied with the results, but others found much of which to complain. Roses, for the most part, show a bad or mildey outside petal, particularly the Killarneys. American Beauties are getting the frilled edges so prevalent at this season of the year. Russells are good, as are Mock, which is a fine summer flower and now presents a bright showy color. Very good carnations are offered. On Saturday, prices stiffened on this stock considerably, some of it selling as high as $4. There are still quantities of sweet peas of good quality, but a trifle short in the stem. Spanish iris from the south is flooding the market. Southern peonies are also a feature. Some of the shipments from southern Virginia come in looking like bullets—they will never open. Why men who know enough to plant, cultivate and bring the stock to this condition, are not educated in the matter of when to cut, is a puzzler. It is a case of "so near and yet so far." Most growers say there will be no local peonies in this market for Memorial day. Quoted prices are $10 and $12 per hundred, most of which stock is expected from Washington and points in Virginia. Outside lily of the valley is very plentiful and the quality is fine. Cattleyas are ahead of the demand and very fine gigas and Mossia are seen. Southern peonies are offered, but are not much in demand. Easter lilies move fairly well and callas are almost over. Asparagus plumosus is and has been for a long time the best seller on the market, bringing 50 cents straight.

NOTES.

The wholesale house spoken of in last weeks notes, in which there is to be a change of management, is the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Charles Meehan withdrawing. The firm name after July 1, when Mr. Meehan retires, is to be the S. S. Pennock Co. R. E. Faust, for several years with Mr. Pennock as bookkeeper, has purchased an interest in the firm, and will take an active part in the business.

The annual exhibition of the American Peony Society to be held in Horticultural hall, which is scheduled for June 7-8, may be postponed a few days on account of the late season. It is hoped, however, that the original dates will be found right for the crop.

The Horticultural hall purchasers have been given until the middle of July in which to exercise their option. If the expense of altering the building into a theatre is not too great, the sale will go through. Architects are now working on the plans.

The Leo Niessen Co. expects a big Memorial day trade. They have made arrangements for a large stock. American Beauty roses, carnations and Spanish iris will be leaders.

Don't Wait

Now is the time to send us a shipment of flowers and acquaint yourself with the satisfactory treatment you receive when you ship to New York's Foremost Commission House in the flower trade.

Extensive experience, ample capital, modern facilities and, in fact, everything to commend us to you.

Special opportunity for a couple of Good Rose Growers who are looking for best returns. Our present demand is larger than our supply.

UNITED CUT FLOWER CO., Inc., 111 W. 28th St., New York City

Berger Brothers have had a full week—full of flowers and efforts to sell them. Many orders are coming in for Memorial day. Richard Stockton, of Stockton & Howe, Princeton, N. J., one of their large consignors, has joined the colors with a commission as colonel in the cavalry. Four houses of white Killarneys at their range are being discontinued to make room the coming season for sweet peas.

C. M. Ripley, with the General Electric Co., is to illustrate "The King of Rails" before the florists' club at the July meeting. A moving picture of the electrified portion of the Great Northern railroad, with its new motive power, and the beautiful scenery of that region, should prove very interesting.

Habermehl's window at the Bellevue-Stratford is gay with Calceolaria Stewartii, a beautiful commercial plant that should be in the list of every grower of pot plants. John Habermehl, who has been threatened with appendicitis, is about again and we are glad to say is better.

John Kuhn, of Olney, has a house of Calceolaria Stewartii that is splendidly done. This, with its clouds of brilliant yellow blossoms, is a most effective pot plant, flowering now when there is a dearth of blooming stock.

The bedding plant men while getting busy, are considerably worried over the outlook, as up to last week comparatively nothing was moved. It will take very quick action to clean up before the selling season is past.

Many of the retail florists are complaining about the many calls for all kinds of donations they are constantly being asked to contribute to this or that charity or relief bazaar for the war and other purposes.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists Exchange is trying to rent the building next door, having outgrown their present quarters. Peonies, Ophelia and other roses and carnations are features here.

M. J. Callahan finds bedding plants moving slowly on account of the backward spring, but keeps busy with funeral work. Several weddings are booked for the first week in June.

Habermehl's Ritz-Carlton shop had an effective window of all Azalea mollis, each pot artistically decorated with paper to cover the naked stems. They were very showy.

Quantities of roses, with Killarney leading, but all moved, was the word from Karl Corts with the Jos. Heacock Co. Cattleyas in quantity are a feature.

The London Flower Shop has some important June weddings. The windows are gay with blossoms arranged artistically with the latest flower holders.

Charles Fox, at the "Sign of the Rose," is pushing Mock roses, which he calls the new La France. The magic of the name of this old favorite helps a lot.

Julius Wolff, 1617 North 19th street, is reported by Wm. Dunning, the foreman, as having a great run on funeral work. No war-time let up here.

A good sale for the rose, Daily Mail, as a novelty, is reported by Eugene Bernheimer. Prima Donna and September Morn, are also features.

The patriotic novelty baskets in red, white and blue, H. Bayersdorfer & Co.'s offering for these stirring times, have had a great run.

Edward Reid predicts a good Memorial day business. Peonies, roses, carnations and sweet peas are seen here in quantity.

Jos. Neidinger is well satisfied with his Memorial day trade, the demand completely depleting a number of his standard stocks. K.

New York.

MARKET VERY QUIET.

Business was very quiet in the wholesale district during the past week; in fact, it was quiet throughout the city, for although the wholesalers and retailers sometimes have little spats, they are all in the same boat, so to speak. That is so clear that further comment is unnecessary. During the earlier days of the week, business was discouraging. There were no prices; it was simply a scramble to get rid of the stock which arrived in large quantities, but not so large but that it could have been easily disposed of if there had been any demand worth while. There was a little improvement, May 25, not in prices, but stock cleaned up a little better. It is unnecessary to go into details about prices. When American Beauties, special, go as low as $8 per 100, and Cattleya gigas at 40 cents each, wholesale, further comment is unnecessary. We note with regret, that some of our valued friends seem to have taken up the idea that because this nation is in war, we should, figuratively speaking, clothe ourselves in sackcloth and ashes and sit down and wait for death. We do not believe in any such policy. We do not intend to discuss the war further, than that there does not seem to be any reason to get chicken-hearted. Our country is prosperous; we have a government that is sound and safe, and we believe that the trouble that has been caused by food speculators will soon be checked. Therefore, let us all be of good heart and good courage.

May 28.—Relating to the prospects for Memorial day business: Orders are coming in from out of town dealers and the cemetery florists, largely for the cheaper grades of stocks, but the growers seem to think it the proper thing to hold their stock until the last minute, a proposition with which we do not agree, as it creates a congestion. For any holiday, stock should reach this market 48 hours in advance; not in great volume, but in plentiful supply. At this writing, there is no advance in prices on special American Beauties or other roses, and it is altogether improbable that there will be; it is cheaper stock that is being called for. Good carnations are up to $5 per 100, not so much on account of a great demand, but on account of the weather. Occasionally, we get a few hours of sunshine, but this morning was cold enough for an

NEW ASSOCIATION FORMED.

At a well attended meeting of wholesalers and growers, held in the rooms of the New York Cut Flower Co., May 26, the Wholesale Cut Flower and Allied Trades Association was organized. Eugene Dailedouze was elected president; W. G. Badgley, vice-president; Percy B. Rigby, secretary and Charles Schenck treasurer. It was decided, taking effect the first Sunday in July, the wholesale stores will be closed on Sundays, indefinitely or until further notice is made public. A strong committee was appointed, which will work out further plans.

NOTES.

The Heatherhome Seed & Nursery Co. was incorporated at Albany, May 22, to deal in seeds, plants, bulbs and nursery stock. The capital stock is $105,000. The incorporators are Julius Roehrs, of Rutherford, N. J., and Thomas Knight and G. F. Struck, of 258 Fifth avenue and Flushing. We are advised that when the new corporation is ready for business further announcements will be made.

Julius Dilhoff, who sells ribbons for Schloss Brothers of this city, has just returned from an extended business trip in the west. He visited Chicago, Kansas City, St. Paul, Minneapolis and other cities, and reports good business and a cheerful feeling among the florists, many of whom will be in this city for the convention of the Society of American Florists.

Margaret Manalos, six-year-old daughter of a local florist, while running from the sidewalk on Amsterdam avenue, May 27, fell under a rear wheel of an automobile in which Judge Julian W. Mack, of Chicago, who has spent most of his life in children's welfare work, was riding. Judge Mack rushed the child to a hospital, but she died within an hour.

Horace E. Froment, 148 West 28th street, continues to receive a very fine stock of roses from the range of L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, N. J. It is no reflection on any of the other wholesalers to state that he keeps good help about him, and his customers are always well treated.

Charles Schenck, of Traendly & Schenck, who was at home for a few days with a bad cold, is again on the job. Everybody missed him while he was away. He is somewhat different from Frank Traendly, but just as good a fellow, and they do good team work.

The Drakos Co., 2953 Broadway, opposite Columbia University, has two attractive stores and reports good business. J. G. Papedem, the head of this firm, is one of the able men of the retail trade of this city.

We have recently had occasion to notice the activities of Paul Meconi, Sixth avenue and 26th street, in the Coogan building. He has always fine stock, opens at 6 a. m. and gets business if anybody does.

An exhibition of peonies and other stock under the auspices of the Horticultural Society of New York will be held in the Museum building, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, June 9-10.

Frank Millang, Jr., and his brother August are taking a vacation at their country home, Yorktown Heights, N. Y. In the meantime "father" and "mother" are running the business in this city.

Though the oleander is an old plant, it is almost a novelty in a retail store. We recently noticed several fine white specimens in the store of Max Schling, 22 West 59th street.

Frank Kuebler, who is on Paul Meconi's staff, was married May 19. He is a son of W. H. Kuebler, the popular Brooklyn wholesaler.

At the store of the Gramercy Florist, 3830 Broadway, we recently noticed clever work in the filling of window boxes.

fifth annual convention, Detroit, Mich.,
June 19, 1917.

THE weather in the Chicago district is fine for the onion set crop.

VISITED CHICAGO: Edgar Bowen, of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich.

ONION SETS, white, at Chicago, May 29, sold as high as $12 per bushel wholesale.

PACIFIC OCEAN freight rate on Chinese lily bulbs was reported end of April to be $20 per 40 cubic feet.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, May 29, were as follows: Timothy, $5.50 to $8.00 per 100 pounds.

MEXICANS are reported returning to agricultural pursuits. Crops have been put in this season for the first time in five years.

CAPT. R. B. HOWE, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, has been ordered to report at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., this week for military service.

PATRIOTISM and uncertainty as to trade and crops should bring together at Detroit, June 19, one of the largest gatherings in the history of the seed trade.

BOTH French and British authorities are reported as considering the interchange of bulb importations. It is said France has prohibited bulb imports.

LEONARD H. VAUGHAN, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, who returned from New York last week, says all the eastern seedsmen have had a very active season.

PHOENIX, ARIZ.—The Arizona Seed Co. has leased a store at 24 South Center avenue, added a cut flower department and will hereafter be known as the Arizona Seed & Floral Co.

BOSTON, MASS.—J. K. M. L. Farquhar, of the firm of R. & J. Farquhar & Co., has been appointed a member of the park and recreation board, succeeding Thomas F. Galvin, resigned.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—Bruce McGill, brother of Richard McGill, of R. C. McGill & Co., has returned to this city having enlisted in the signal corps of the United States army as a student aviator.

L. W. WHEELER, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, Calif., and John C. Bodger, of John Bodger & Sons Co., Los Angeles, Calif., both expect to attend the coming convention of the American Seed Trade Association at Detroit, June 19.

BEAN GROWERS (contractors) are reported trying to hedge on orders booked early this season at low prices. Farmers do not take on acreage freely at prices expected and those who based first figures on low costs are disappointed and inclined to plead the baby act in requesting a revision of the figures which they first accepted from seed customers.

Foreign Bulb Trade of the Netherlands.

According to the official figures furnished by the General Society of Bulb Growers, the foreign bulb trade of Holland was unusually small in quantity in 1916. The exports of bulbs were not materially less than the average of preceding years, but the imports were barely 20 per cent the quantity during the last peace year. However, imports are of far less consequence to Holland than exports of bulbs.

The following table shows the imports and exports during the past three years, in kilos of 2.2 pounds each:

| Country                           | 1914Kilos.    | 1915Kilos.    | 1916Kilos.    |

The countries named in these tables are those from or to which the bulbs came or went directly, and therefore may not in every case be the country of origin or of final destination. Packages of bulbs received or transmitted by mail are not included in the tables, but they would not change the proportions or materially alter the quantities.

EFFECT OF WAR ON THE INDUSTRY.

The decline of imports was, of course, due to the war, which diverted bulb industries to other purposes in belligerent countries and limited cargo space from the United States to Holland.

The decline in the total quantity of exports was due to the smaller shipments to the British Isles, which country prohibited the importation of bulbs.

The export to the United States and Canada is totaled into one, but the records of this consulate show that only a small part went to Canada.

Although prices obtained in 1916 were apparently high in comparison with peace prices, they were in reality unsatisfactory when unfavorable rates of exchange and other war factors were taken into account. Cost of production was also unusually high in 1916. It is said that at least 2,000,000 kilos of bulbs were sold at prices below cost at the end of the season.

POOR PROSPECTS FOR THE INDUSTRY.

The prospects for 1917 are uncertain. Although the United States and Scandinavia took an unusually large quantity of bulbs in 1916, it is feared that the quantity will be unusually small in 1917. Facilities for transportation to the United States are uncertain, and the export to Scandinavian countries depends upon their doubtful ability to obtain the fuel necessary to warm the hothouses where bulbs are germinated. Further, Germany and Austria now prohibit the import of bulbs, which alone can reduce the total exports of Dutch bulbs by 20 to 30 per cent.

The situation is considered so unsatisfactory for the industry that government aid has been asked and will be extended so far as may be practicable.

The past winter was so severe that many bulbs were frozen, and the spring is so backward that the development of bulbs in the ground is seriously retarded.

Sugar Beet Acreage.

According to advices from all the American beet sugar factories total acreage contracted for 1917-18 season will be about 882,000 acres, or 100,000 acres more than estimate of beets planted in 1916. Compared with acreages harvested last year increased contracted acreage this year will amount to nearly 200,000 acres. Total sugar production of more than 1,000,000 tons is indicated, or about 200,000 tons above last year.

Will They Bring Fall Bulbs?

Holland-Lloyd Line, one of the largest Dutch steamship companies, will soon make New York a port of call for its passenger and freight steamers.

While the demand is easing up a trifle, the situation not being quite so acute, there is still great activity. Where the seeds come from to supply the demand is a mystery, but somehow and from somewhere, there appears to have been enough.

Snap and baking beans, according to the Moore Seed Co., are almost out of sight. The retail price, formerly 20 cents per quart, is now 60 cents. White skin onion sets grown at Mount Holly have advanced from $1.75 to $12 per bushel and are now about out of the market. Flower seeds, bulbs and tubers are moving slowly and it is hoped that it is the cloudy, cold weather that is holding the demand back.

Stokes Seed Store has sold an enormous quantity of vegetable seeds. Flower seeds, bulbs and tubers have suffered in contrast, but it is believed that settled weather will bring forth the usual demand for ornaments for the garden.

The Henry F. Michell Co., Inc., feel that they have done two seasons' business in one. It was "in the air" and everyone just had to plant seeds. They are still very busy at this establishment.

The Robert Buist Co. appears to have caught up to the local demand and are now working on southern foreign trade in the East Indies and South America.

Harry Michell, 2nd., has enlisted in the engineer corps. Let us hope he will return safe and sound, in time for next spring's rush at the seed counter.

Early planted lima beans have rotted in the ground. Growers, to get the early market, took a chance and now have to pay for it.

At Henry A. Dreer, Inc., trade shows but little sign of abatement, there still being a good demand for all garden seeds and plants.

P. B. Mingle & Co. offer pale limas at $10 and bush at $12 per bushel. The rush is over but there is still a good demand.

I. N. Simon & Son are still able to supply onion sets in yellow and white. The wholesale price is $13 per bushel.

WINTER FLOWERING—Spencer Type.

Trade Packets Contain one-quarter ounce.

Early Snow Flake—This is the best Early Flowering White Seeded Spencer. The blossoms are very large and of the best waved Spencer form. The flowers are borne in wonderful profusion on long stems. 25 Seeds, 25c; Trade pkt. (1/4 oz.) $1.25; oz., $4.50.

Early Heather Bell—This will be one of the most popular shades with all Florists as it will be so useful for making up for any occasion. The flowers are very large, borne in fours and threes on long stout stems and are of beautiful bold Spencer form. The color is a rich but pleasing mauve, but after standing in water the color becomes a beautiful mauve lavender. 25 seeds, 25c; Trade pkt. (1/4 oz.) $1.00; oz. $3.50 net.

Early Morning Star—Deep orange scarlet or flame color in standard with rich orange pink wings. Under artificial light it is superb. 25 seeds, 25c; Trade pkt. (1/4 oz.) $1.10; oz. $4.00 net.

Early Song Bird—The flower is the same color as "Florence Morse Spencer" and a bit lighter than "Elfrida Pearson." 25 seeds, 25c; Trade pkt. (1/4 oz.) 85c; oz. $3.00 net.

Early Melody—This is a deeper shade of pink than "Early Song Bird" on white ground, closely resembling "Countess Spencer" and near "Hercules." 25 seeds, 25c; Trade pkt. (1/4 oz.) 85c; oz. $3.00 net.

Early Spring Maid—Light pink on a cream ground and the blossoms have the same splendid characteristics of "Mrs. Hugh Dickson" for a florist's flower. 25 seeds, 25c; Trade pkt. (1/4 oz.) 85c; oz. $3.00 net.

Market Gardeners

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

H. W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., President; H. F. Thompson, Arlington, Mass., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids, Mich., Treasurer.

Next annual convention will be held at Springfield, Mass., in 1917.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.—Not less than 500 acres will be cultivated in the municipal garden planting in this city.

NEW YORK state has 8,701,964 acres planted in crops. This is about the same as eight years ago but food crops, such as corn, potatoes, and beans, have supplanted hay in many sections.

THE United States department of agriculture reports that the strawberry crop of southwestern Missouri, which was estimated to be 73 per cent May 1, has been reduced to 25 per cent in some sections by frost, May 8.

Italian Tomato Crop for 1916.

According to the Statistica Agraria the yield of tomatoes in all Italy for the year 1916 was 422,066 short tons, as compared with 407,851 tons in 1915. The yield in the Florence consular district was 91,797 tons, as compared with 107,364 tons in 1915.

The crop will be used entirely within Italy, as the export of tomato paste, into which considerable of this crop is converted, has been forbidden for nearly two years. Prices of tomato paste are high and the demand within the country is heavy. American manufacturers have nothing to fear from exports of the 1916 crop, and with the present scarcity of labor it is likely that a great demand will exist in Italy for the 1917 crop and that it can not be exported even if export were permitted, at prices that would take away the market in the United States from American manufacturers.

Mechanical Watering.

Mechanical watering, or overhead irrigation, has become quite a common practice in many parts of the country. The enormous importance of such irrigation in market gardening is conceded. However, in these notes and at this time, we wish to point out a very common abuse of the system—applying water too early in the spring. We have noticed this practice to a great extent in our own neighborhood, and from observation and experiments of our own, are pretty sure that no good can come from such methods. If good cultural methods prevail, there is at this time an ample supply of moisture in the subsoil, and the ground if anything is too cold. Any application of water will still lower the temperature and thus actually retard plant growth instead of hastening it. Further, at this time of year, a warm week is often, we may say, generally followed by a dry period; hence, if we irrigate too freely we overcharge our soil and often our crops. An excess of moisture always has a tendency to restrict root-growth and encourage top-growth, which is far from ideal. We believe a free use of cultivating tools of far greater importance early in the season, than irrigation. Of course, where seeds are sown and plants transplanted and moisture is needed, one should not hesitate to apply as much as needed to overcome the trouble, but a general soaking up is out of order. Mechanical watering requires much judgment for best results, we believe the above being one of the mistakes in practice.

MARKETMAN.

Celery Prospects in Bermuda.

According to a special report received from the director of agriculture of Bermuda, the area under celery cultivation is about 25 per cent less this year than last. On account of the irregular shapes of the fields, no estimate can be given of the actual acreage. In 1916 there were 13,288 crates of celery, valued at $21,201, exported to the United States, and it is estimated that between 80 and 90 per cent of the total celery crop is shipped annually to this country.

The variety of celery produced in the colony is known as the Golden Self-Blanching, and the bulk of the seed is imported directly from France. The crop at present is very backward and will be late in maturing. It is unlikely that any large quantity will be exported before the middle of May. The prospects of yield depend very largely upon weather conditions between now and the time of harvest. The absence of heavy rains has benefited the crop, because it has not at any time suffered from excess of standing water, as is frequently the case, but light showers from this time on would greatly benefit it.

Wireworms Underground Enemy.

Careful tillage, drainage and proper rotation of crops, are the only successful methods of control of wireworms, the young of the common snapping-beetles or click-beetles, which work entirely underground and are the most destructive and most difficult to control of all the insect foes of corn and cotton. Where sod land is to be planted to corn the following year it should be ploughed immediately after the first cutting of hay and should be deeply cultivated during the rest of the summer. Land already in corn, if badly infested, should be cultivated deeply, even at the risk of slightly root pruning the corn. If wheat is to follow, the field should be tilled thoroughly as soon as the crop is removed. In regions where wheat land is seeded for hay, any treatment of infested fields is precluded. Where wheat is not to be followed by seeding to other crops, the fields should be plowed as soon as the wheat is harvested, which will kill the worms by destroying their food supply and preventing their preparation of winter quarters. Farmers' Bulletin 725, containing additional information regarding this pest, will be mailed free of charge upon application to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

John Watson, Newark, N. Y., President;
Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President;
Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress Street,
Boston, Mass., Secretary and Counsel.
Forty-second annual convention will be held at Philadelphia, Pa., June 27-29, 1917.

HAMPTON, IA.—Fire at the nursery of John C. Ferris caused several hundred dollars damage, May 16.

MODESTO, CALIF.—State Horticultural Commissioner G. H. Hecke has issued a call for county horticultural commissioners to attend a conference here, June 6-7, at which time matters relating to the state's $150,000,000 fruit crop will be discussed.

NEWARK, N. Y.—George C. Perkins, of Jackson & Perkins Co., has left for a trip to California and other Pacific coast points, expecting to be gone five or six weeks. Mr. Perkins' son, Stuart, has entered the officers' training camp at Madison Barracks, Sackett's Harbor, N. Y., and commenced duty there last week.

Prunus Mandshurica.

This is a hardy apricot tree which grows vigorously in the arbobretum, and can now be seen in flower in the peach and apricot group on the slope above the Meadow road beyond the piece of natural woods. By some authors this tree is considered a variety of the common apricot (P. Armeniaca) but it is very distinct from that tree in the pale bark on the stem and branches and in the shape of the leaves. The flowers which have a deep, red calyx and petals faintly tinged with rose are nearly an inch across and are just now conspicuous on the leafless branches. The fruit is nearly globular, not more than an inch in diameter, yellow spotted with red, with sweet succulent flesh; it is inferior to that of cultivated form of the common apricot, but as P. mandshurica is very hardy, varieties may perhaps be developed with the fruit as good as that of the best cultivated apricots, and hardy where that tree can not be cultivated. This apricot as it now grows in the arboretum is an important addition to the group of hardy ornamental early-flowering trees.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, May 8, 1917.

Peony Fragrance.

Those who read the article on the odor of the peony by Mr. Fewkes in Bulletin No. 2 will remember that he began with the statement that few peonies, comparatively, possess a sweet odor. I hold a precisely opposite view; for to my nose the majority of double peonies have a good odor, and a large number of them are highly scented. Can I get anyone to agree with me in this?

During the past season I have made a careful study of my collection with a special view to the question of fragrance; and I offer as a result the following rather tentative remarks:

There are four distinguishable types of odor in peonies, for which I shall use the names Rose, Honey, Lemon and Bitter.

1. The rose fragrance is that which would commonly be recognized as the natural odor of the peony. It approaches the odor of a June rose, and in some cases closely resembles it. This type of fragrance exists very strongly in Edulis superba, and well developed in Dr. Bretonneau of Verdier (Lady L. Bramwell), Gigantea, Venus, Milton Hill, and in many whites, notably in Baroness Schroeder, Mme. de Verneville, Le Cygne and Festiva Maxima.

2. The honey odor characterizes those peonies with bright yellow central petals; most markedly in Philomele and Candidissima, two of the most highly scented of all peonies. I have always called this a honey odor, but was confirmed in the designation by overhearing a lady at the New York show this year exclaim as she sniffed a vase of Philomele, "Why, it smells just like honey!"

3. The lemon odor is a peculiar aromatic and fruity smell, disagreeable to some in freshly opened flowers, but becoming more acceptable as the flowers mature. Mathilde Mechin offers a most pronounced example of this type of odor; Gloire de Chas. Gombault also possesses it. It would seem, therefore, to accompany those blooms that have a mixture of salmon and pink central petals; but perhaps not all of them.

4. The bitter odor of most stamen-bearing flowers is generally considered disagreeable when the blooms are young and the odor at its strongest. This odor is sometimes and appropriately called "soapy." Almost all singles possess it in an unmitigated form, especially the single reds, in many of which it is quite repulsive. In the more double varieties, as James Kelway, Mme. A. Dessert, La Tulipe, and M. Martin Cahuzac, the odor is much less marked than in the singles, and it grows fainter as the blooms get older, so that it is not infrequently pronounced agreeable in flowers that have been open for some days. To me it is never better than indifferent.

The line of demarcation between these types of odor is not tightly drawn, but if characteristic examples of each be taken the difference is manifest enough.

I hope this attempted classification may bring comment, amplification or protest from such of our members as lead a vivid olfactory existence.—A. P. Saunders, in American Peony Society Bulletin.

Providence, R. I.

STRONG MEMORIAL DAY DEMAND.

Business during the past week has been good and the Memorial day trade is starting in with a rush. Magnolia wreaths and bouquets of wax flowers are very popular and are having a heavy call. Geraniums this year seem to be poor, yet they are bringing good prices. Carnations and cut flowers in general are scarce and the same may be said of greens. Outside daffodils are about done and the trade is now waiting for outside tulips.

Olney Williams is cutting very good Enchantress carnations. H. A. T.
