BUSINESS ECONOMY

Conserve the National Resources.
Eliminate Waste in Your Business.
Begin Now to Do Your Share—
It Will Help You and Others.

One of the biggest items of expense in the greenhouse business is the heating question. Why then for fancy's sake or otherwise do you sit silently by and watch the unnecessary losses of fuel go on day by day?

It is your money that is lost—the waste harms everyone. Stop! Stop!! Stop!!!

Many practical growers have solved this vital question.

You can do so, too.

The remedy is simple.

READ WHAT OUR CUSTOMERS SAY

A Record For the Winter of 1916-1917.

Mr. Wendel is surely pleased with his No. 14 Kroeschell Boiler—it is a PEACH, that is all there is to it. We surely had some winter, which we all know.

Our houses have never been below 52°, and it was not necessary to force our boiler. Best of all we saved two cartloads of coal over a year ago. (Signed)

CROWN POINT FLORAL CO., Crown Point, Ind.
Hans Jepsen, Grower.

Kroeschell Uses Only One-Half the Coal.

Have taken out return tubular boiler which used one-half more coal than the Kroeschell boiler—it is so easy to regulate that in a few minutes I can run up the temperature by opening drafts. (Signed)

FRANK A. WAENER, Tiffin, Ohio.

Kroeschell Does the Work of Two Boilers—Saves Fuel

Your boiler does the work of two tubular boilers—saves fuel, needs less attention, as the fire lasts much longer—is easily cleaned. (Signed) S. E. MUNTZ, Duquque, Iowa.

BOSTON OUTDOOR SHOW

Exhibition of Massachusetts Horticultural Society, Opened June 1, Will Continue Three Weeks.

Finest of Its Kind Ever Staged.

In 1873 the Massachusetts Horticultural Society held an outdoor exhibition on the Boston Common. Records declare, and it also lingers in the memory of the oldest members, that it was a most successful flower show. Last year it was decided to repeat this effort, but on a much larger scale, and preparations were at once begun to insure the finest exhibition of its kind ever seen in America. A guarantee fund of $12,000 was at once underwritten by the trustees of the society and a special committee was appointed to arrange all detail and manage the event. Thomas Allen, a trustee of the society and chairman of the Boston art commission, was made general manager, with John K. M. L. Farquhar, Thomas Roland, President R. M. Saltonstall and Charles S. Sargent, assistants. This committee was fortunate in being able to get a vacant, grass-covered plot opposite the Museum of Fine Arts on Huntington avenue, containing three and one-half acres, but none too large for requirements.

In the center, R. & J. Farquhar & Co. staged a rock and aquatic garden covering one-fourth of an acre and around the boundary lines of the entire plot were erected seven marquees or tents ranging in size from 40x80 feet to 60x100 feet. Intervening spaces contained displays of conifers and beds of blooming plants. There were also a number of trade displays of garden accessories and furniture, all arranged in garden effect with the aid of evergreens and shrubbery. James Wheeler superintended the installation of the various exhibits and it is to his credit and ability as a manager that everything was in place and the grounds in perfect order Friday noon, when the Red Cross Society took charge. The admission for this day and evening was $5 and there was a very good attendance, notwithstanding threatening weather and occasional showers, over 1,000 tickets being sold.

This exhibition is unique from the fact that there is no printed schedule or list of prizes—no competition. It is an outdoor display, experimental in a sense, to which the members of the society were asked to contribute, and to which they responded heartily and in good measure. They have set an example here that can in a measure be duplicated in like or less degree in all the large cities of the country. With its garden setting and surroundings the plants in the tents are given a natural effect, that has great advantages over the ordinary exhibition table.

The Rock and Water Garden.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co.'s rock and water garden was fully up to the high standard of their efforts at previous exhibitions. A large irregular shaped lake or pond somewhat crescent in form was bridged in the center with a high arched structure of Japanese style. The earth removed from the excavation was piled high, graded and artistically built over with rocks of various sizes. The whole was then planted with all the recognized favorites for such beauty spots. On top of one miniature mountain, viburnums six feet tall were used with good effect to increase the height, while for the same purpose stately arbor vitas adorned the mound across the lake. Dwarf evergreens were also used to good advantage as were Azalea Kaempferi, nicely in flower. Spirea Japonica was showy, while quantities of violas and other rock garden flowering plants added their touch of color. The water garden was well filled with water lilies and other aquatic plants, but "Old Sol" had not encouraged them to much activity. A large fountain with bronze dancing figures and two cascades falling over the rocks gave life and motion to the picture.

The Outdoor Display.

To the right on entering the grounds a bed of Ghent azaleas was conspicuous and in front of the administration tent was a setting of two beds of the Japanese variety. Then came the exhibit of garden accessories of Philip L. Carbone. This occupied considerable space, the arrangement being artistic with growing evergreens, Italian statuary, vases, urns, seats, tables, a sun dial, gazing globe, bird baths, etc., many of them large, handsome pieces. A bed of Chinese piceas, dwarf varieties recently imported by R. & J. Farquhar & Co., was very attractive.

A most showy bit of color was the immense bed of pansies of William Sim of Cliftondale. This was 22 feet in diameter and contained 1,700 plants. The center of the bed was in black, then came purple, lavender, bronze and yellow in the order named, the whole bordered with a wide band of white with yellow and bluish tints in the center. The flowers were extra large, the entire bed making a fine showing.

Penn. The Florist, made a display of garden ornaments, included in which were terra cotta tables and chairs, fountains, benches, a sundial, bird baths, statuary, vases and jardinières filled with hydrangeas and pink roses. A large border figure of a water nymph riding on dolphins was a feature. Planted evergreens added to the garden effect. At the left of the entrance was a group of conifers containing 120 varieties, many of them quite large specimens, six to eight feet in height. This was said to be the largest and finest collection ever exhibited in this country. They were all planted in the sod and the arrangement was most effective. These were from the Blue Hill Nursery of J. H. Heurlin, Braintree, Mass. E. A. Clark exhibited a group of well flowered hydrangeas.

The Wm. W. Edgar Co., of Waverley, planted a large curved bed of Poitevine geraniums in standards. Heliotropes in like shape were in the center while the surface was covered with short Mrs. Sander double white daisies. Faulkner Farms filled a large bed with campanulas in variety, large plants splendidly flowered.

The Orchids.

The orchid marquee, which contained a most superb collection of these greenhouse favorites, was one that none of the visitors missed. Newcomers were hardly in the grounds before they asked, "Where are the orchids?" The various exhibits were staged on both sides of a large mound in the center of the tent. A profusion of palms and ferns served as a background. The orchids were arranged rather closely, there not being sufficient room to show them individually. They made a grand display, however, and the great beauty of the many wonderful cattleyas, Brasso-cattleyas, odontoglossums, lœlias, miltonias, oncidiums and other rare varieties, were much admired. The Julius Roehrs Co., Arthur W. Cooley, Ernest B. Dane, Faulkner Farms, F. J. Dolansky, Mrs. G. Weld and J. T. Butterworth, were the exhibitors in this class. Amongst the notable plants was Odontoda Gladys, a new variety exhibited by Arthur W. Cooley, imported two years ago from Lowe & Sons of London. This carried one large and several smaller spikes of beautifully mottled flowers of a golden brown.

Many fine odontoglossums were conspicuous in this exhibit, with pink tinted spots. It was most striking in appearance. Faulkner Farms staged a miltonia with eight spikes of extra large, well colored flowers which was very conspicuous. F. J. Dolansky's cattleyas were large and well colored, while J. T. Butterworth's giant form of Cattleya-mossiae with three blooms, each nine inches across, attracted great attention. Julius Roehrs' collection contained 240 plants, a number of them large and some quite rare. A large plant of Dendrobium chryso-toxum, was full of its bright yellow flowers, while miltonias and Brasso-cattleyas were also features.

Thomas Roland's Rose Garden.

Thomas Roland's rose garden, which completely filled a large tent, was one of the distinctive features. This contained from 1,200 to 1,500 plants with such profusion of buds and flowers that the enclosure was a blaze of color. The center space contained three large beds, one 15 feet in diameter, filled with a number of varieties, bordered with Hiawatha, while 12-foot beds at either end were filled, one with Ophelia and the other with Mrs. Aaron Ward.

A border bed, 6 feet in width, completely encircling the tent, contained over 1,200 six-inch plants of varieties Teschendorf, Baby Rambler, White Dorothy Perkins and others.

At either end of the garden was a summer house with seats, while fine cut stone covered the large oval walk. This was a beautiful exhibit, Mr. Roland adding another to his many successes.

Rhododendrons.

Two large marquees contained rhododendrons, magnificent plants, but at the opening only contained buds of promise, as none were in flower, only here and there showing color. It was thought, however, that a few sunny days would open them out and they would be at their best for the second and third week of the show. The plants staged by Mrs. Samuel C. Lawrence, magnificent specimens in three to four-foot tubs, plants 10 to 12 feet in diameter, filled the center of one large tent, while the sides contained the Waterer and Crisp collections of new and choice varieties. The Waterer exhibit was of plants sent over last autumn especially for this exhibition.

A large double marquee, 100x110 feet, was required for the Walter Hunnewell collection of rhododendrons, of which there were 125 specimens, all planted in the sod. These had been lifted and wintered in pits to be in the best possible condition at this time. They were splendidly budded and will make a grand showing when in flower. Most of them range from four to six feet in diameter and quite a number are considerably larger. Two large specimens in tubs are 10 to 12 feet in height. A large central group and one at each end was the arrangement.

Pot Plants.

On either side of a wide path in one enclosure were staged hardy hybrid new type Spirea Japonica crosses with Davidii. These were from the Mount Desert Nurseries in Maine. Notable varieties were Gloriosa, a new fine large fluffy pink; Moerheimii, a white with a loose-branching spike of flowers, very distinct; Vesta, Ceres, Venus, Rose Perle, Opal, Juno, Carminea and Silver White, a wonderful collection. Lupinus Moerheimii was another Mount Desert novelty, exceptionally well flowered. Limonium (Statice) Suworowii alba, a pure white variety, made a fine showing. There were some three dozen plants in six-inch pots with spikes of bloom two to three feet. These were from Faulkner Farms. President Saltonstall staged splendidly flowered single petunias in large pots, each containing hundreds of flowers; also, a large block of Spirea Japonica. One of the marquees contained Professor Charles S. Sargent's collection of azaleas, superb plants just bursting into flower. There were over 100 specimens. The colors were arranged by Thomas Allen so as to get the best effect ranging from white to bright red. This display was so beautiful that many visitors took a second walk around them before leaving the tent.

Other Interesting Features.

A tent filled with specimen Rhynchospermum jasminoides, standard wistarias in tubs and dwarf Chinese azaleas, arranged in beds bordered by very well flowered plants of Calceolaria Stewartii, was another very interesting spot. The wistarias were only in bud but looked most promising. The calceolarias were superb plants, some of them four feet in diameter covered with a perfect cloud of blossoms. The wistarias, rhynchospermums and azaleas, were from Prof. Sargent, while Mrs. C. G. Weld and Edwin S. Webster staged the calceolarias. Hybrid calceolarias were also a feature here.

Taken in its entirety, this is one of the most practical flowering plant exhibitions ever held in this country, a great credit to the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

Honorary Awards.

Honorary awards were made as follows: Gold medals—James Wheeler in recognition of his services in installing the exhibits; R. & J. Farquhar & Co., rock garden; Thos. Roland, rose garden; Prof. Chas. Sargent, azaleas and wistarias; John Waterer & Son, Crisp & Co., T. D. Hatfield and Mrs. Samuel C. Lawrence for rhododendrons; J. H. Heurlin, collection of conifers; Arthur M. Cooley, Ernest B. Dane and Julius Roehrs Co., orchids. Silver medals—Mrs. Chas. G. Weld, Edwin S. Webster and Faulkner Farms for various exhibits; F. J. Dolansky, orchids. Honorable mention—E. A. Clark, Stephen M. Weld and Mrs. Wm. Edgar for various exhibits. Certificates of merit—Philip L. Carbone, Penn. The Florist, and J. Whittier for garden accessories and ornaments.

Bedding Plant Surplus.

With the season for bedding plants nearing a close, it is a good plan to get all the odds and ends together, arrange them to show to the best advantage and, if necessary, price them at slightly lower figures.

There is scarcely a small yard but what could find room for a dozen more plants in variety; something they did not have or were enticed to purchase because they appeared cheap. Seed stores in the retail districts work off a lot of plant baskets; cheap, small chip affairs, but which, with their assortment of plants, look very inviting. The average bedding plant grower can make up a lot of such collections that if packed in a little sphagnum, well watered and stood for a day or two in the greenhouse, will present a very salable appearance. Very often an ad in the daily papers calling attention to this surplus stock, at prices about half that of the first selection, will bring customers or inquiries and much of the stock that would otherwise go to waste is turned to profit. Department stores have been found very useful in working off surplus or overgrown stock. They will buy plants of any kind that have saleable value if offered in quantity. One instance is known to us of a grower with a number of asters in flower in pots, which were not moving very fast. Taking a sample to a department store, he offered them at the regular price by the hundred. They bought several hundred, which were sent in early the next day. Before the wagon returned, a duplicate lot was ordered, and by the time the week was out they had purchased the entire stock.

tional and international rose growing. There is no quarrel in discussing rose growing or anything else that God has grown with the Germans. Can there be any better way—a rose in our hands will prove more efficient than the dove of peace? Mr. McFarland's remarks were loudly applauded.

Hon. Carl Vrooman, assistant secretary of the department of agriculture, said the department greatly appreciates the work the society was doing. The rose was the most beautiful emblem of the sanity of beauty. People at this stirring time must keep minds and emotions rational. The country was entering a crisis much more serious than most people realize. Every thought and aspiration is undergoing a change. Business must go on as rational and our life as beautiful as before. Some examples of vegetables taking the place of flowers were good for certain reasons, but there must be flowers. Still, he added, if he had to choose between flowers and vegetables for the table the food would come first. Wm. F. Gude, who followed Mr. Vrooman, said he was glad to see so many lovers of the rose, who must be lovers, or they would not have been in attendance. He took a great interest in the garden and hoped much for it in the future.

Cars were then taken for a delightful ride through beautiful Arlington cemetery and a portion of the park, including the Zoo, to "Twin Oaks," the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Bell, whose beautiful rose garden was a revelation to many. It is one of the most beautiful estates in the country. Mrs. Bell graciously received the visitors and took pleasure in going about the garden and discussing varieties with them. After refreshments, a ride was taken to the Ebbitt House, where a luncheon on the rotary plan was served. There were 40 persons at the table. President Pennock called on a member for a few words. President-elect Benjamin Hammond said he felt sure that his prediction that the garden would become a popular place for all the honeymoon couples who would visit Washington in the years to come would come true. They would then go home and plant roses for a garden of their own. A rose bush in a garden was sure to have an uplifting influence. Sixty per cent of all flowers grown in a commercial way were roses.

Prof. E. A. White, secretary-elect, predicted a bright future for the society and hoped to be able to secure a largely increased membership, as the rose is an emblem of peace and should not be neglected and there was no reason why the society should not grow to be as large, if not the largest, in the world. Dr. Shoemaker, president of the Federated Societies of Washington, assured the members that this body would do all possible to co-operate with them in furthering the work of the national garden.

E. G. Hill was introduced as "our old friend," but said he still felt youthful. He seconded what Mr. McFarland had said and was glad it had been said at this time and place. He said he felt that growers of roses were co-laborers with Him who creates things that are beautiful. Dr. Bell, in speaking of the telephone, had said: "See what God has brought us," and that we should say and feel we are co-workers with God. Pointing to vases of Red Radiance, Mr. Hill asked: "Who was the painter who mixed the color, the scent and other attributes and well defined organs of the flower? the Creator, that

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Annual Inspection of Washington Test Garden, June 4.

Garden in Fine Condition.

The meeting of the American Rose Society at the Arlington rose test gardens at Washington, D. C., Monday, June 4, was most delightful. The party assembled at Gude Brothers' store on F street, from whence, at 10:30 a. m., they motored to the garden. Seven of the 10 autos were driven by members of the Gude family. The day was perfect, in great contrast to the very showery weather of these occasions for the past two years.

With the exception of the hybrid teas, which for some reason had not wintered well, the garden was in fine condition. The pillar and rambler types are now of a size to produce quantities of flowers, the arches and border arbors being gay with their clouds of blossoms. Many of the hybrid class were showy with their profuse bloom. The sweet briars and others of the single type were seen in wonderful growth and flower. The rugosas had flowered freely and still continued a mass of bloom. The summer house was covered with the rose. Dr. Van Fleet. This was full of buds just opening.

After an inspection and tour of the garden, President S. S. Pennock opened the meeting, using the mound of the summer house as a platform, from which he introduced the speakers. After offering congratulations on the grand weather and the beautiful surroundings, he presented Prof. Corbett of the United States department of agriculture, who welcomed the visitors, and explained that this was a trial garden from which the department, working in conjunction with the American Rose Society, hoped to acquire a safe and sane list of varieties that would do well in this locality. Because certain kinds did not do well here, it does not condemn them, he contended, as they might grow to perfection elsewhere.

J. Horace McFarland, of Harrisburg, Pa., was introduced as being one of the most active workers in the society, and who was doing wonderful work in creating love for the rose. His address was on "The Significance of the National Test Gardens." A number of persons, he stated, appear to think now that we are in the midst of war such subjects as the cultivation of the rose should not be discussed.

He differed with such views. To keep up the standard of right living, with such ideal surroundings as rose gardens gave us and to discuss the subject, was not only proper, but wise—and also necessary. He called attention to the fact that we all need renewed vigor to help us stand for the democracy of the world. Even Hon. Arthur Balfour, who was in this country recently on most important business, found time to rest and take his mind off his mission by means of a game of golf. President Wilson, in spite of his many responsible duties, also keeps himself in trim by getting away from the burden every day and renews his vigor by walks and golf. Men in the trenches at the front are given seeds, which they sow and care for. They are frequently relieved and their environs changed so as to renew their strength and keep them bright and alert. Making home surroundings pleasant, the speaker added, was in the highest degree patriotic work. The thing that most of us must do is to keep up the land. We are talking of an army of 5,000,000 men out of a population of 100,000,000. What are the rest of the 95,000,000 to do? We must live and do out best, but how is tearing up our rose garden and flower beds going to help? The government, in order that national life shall not go backward, is calling attention to all the national parks and their recreational use this year. Why not tear up all the parks and plant corn and potatoes? Why not? Well, because we are not (if you will excuse the expression) a nation of fools. They are growing roses in Germany and carrying on activities other than the war, as is evidenced by perusal of educational journals. The rose is international. We are brothers with England in glorifying the rose. The name rose is the same in all languages, but perhaps two universal words for the world's flower. We want American roses to popularize them in this country. Guernsey Hill was working on the forcing rose, while Dr. Van Fleet was producing hardy varieties for the door yard. Nine million roses were imported in one year from Europe, but that was only one for every five homes. Life will be sweeter and better when we can get one for each. Enough to satisfy that great need will require na-we co-workers might benefit by working and producing beautiful roses for the garden and greenhouse." A man to grow roses successfully must first have then in his heart. I love the rose and have done just a little bit in producing with them. We can grow roses here regardless of Europe. His rose, Gen. McArthur, is planted in every rose garden in Europe. In conclusion he praised the work of Dr. Van Fleet, M. H. Walsh and John Cook. He urged that new roses be grown scientifically not in a shipshod manner. Let us all work and enter this great field of beauty. Mr. McFarland urged each of the 1,500 members to bring in just one and the membership would at once jump to 3,000. We want those with roses in their hearts and then they will get in the garden.

Dr. E. N. Mills, of Syracuse, spoke of the great work of their rose society which has an average attendance at the monthly meetings of 125. He hoped the national society would come to his city in two years. George Field told of the Bancroft rose garden. It was voted to give a suitably inscribed flag pin to Dr. Van Fleet, after which the party dispersed.

The Vote of Thanks.

For every man who works there are
A dozen who will let him;
They'll scullin' bask within the shade
The while his duties fret him.
And when his arduous tasks are done
From out the idle ranks
There promptly steps a grateful one
To move a vote of thanks.

Where more than three foregathered are
In meeting, club or lodge,
Some cheerful soul must do the work
That all the others dodge.
Someone for all must toil and plan,
Someone the money banks,
For which the shirkers to a man
Will move a vote of thanks,
But not its work to do,
The glory of the game they want.

The many spend their hours in ease,
While busy are the few;
Untroubled here on earth they live,
The strength that's in their shanks
They save, to those who toil, to give
A rising vote of thanks.

Some day when all the work is done
And rest has settled down,
Perhaps the weary toiler then
Will wear a golden crown,
Upon his breast many medals flash
And at the heavenly banks
Perhaps they'll even let him cash
Those rising votes of thanks.

Rose Disease Investigations.

Last year in response to a letter from President Pennock of the American Rose Society, 32 florists very generously contributed toward the investigations in rose diseases which were carried on by Dr. L. M. Massey of the department of plant pathology at Cornell University. Dr. Massey has put in considerable work on this problem during the past year and has several lines of investigation well under way. It is the feeling of the officers of the American Rose Society that Dr. Massey should continue his work during the coming year, as was outlined in the project of a year ago. At that time it was stated that it was expected the investigation would be on a two-year agreement. Last year the American Rose Society pledged itself to support Dr. Massey while in the field one-fourth of the time, and that the cost would not exceed $1,000, of which sum $500 the first year and $250 the second year would be for traveling and other special expenses. The rest of the expenses of the investigation have been borne by Cornell University.

Dr. Massey carries on the major part of the outside work during his vacation periods, when he is free from college duties, and can visit commercial ranges. Laboratory research is carried on during the college year.

In this issue there follows a preliminary report of Dr. Massey's work. It will be understood from the nature of the project that definite results cannot be given in so short a time. It seems, however, that Dr. Massey's work during the past year has opened up some wonderfully valuable lines of investigation which should be continued.

It is hoped that a large number of men interested in rose growing who did not contribute to the work last year may feel interested to do their part this year. All subscriptions should be sent to E. A. White, secretary American Rose Society, Ithaca, New York.

REPORT OF THE PATHOLOGIST.

The investigations covered more or less briefly in this report were begun August 1, 1916. During the first four months much time was spent in visiting rose plantings in the northeastern United States, making a survey of diseases. This seemed desirable in order to acquaint us with the various diseases, together with their range and the extent of injury caused by them in this country. With these facts in mind suitable plants and materials have been collected for experiments now under way which will prove of the greatest value to growers of roses.

The gardens and greenhouses of about 50 rose growers have been visited. The number and extent of the diseases present have been noted and specimens taken for further study. Probably an equal number of growers have also materially aided the work by sending in specimens. These specimens have been examined and the growers advised as to the cause and control of the disease so far as our present knowledge and experience allow. If the trouble proved to be new, of unusual interest or of a serious nature, special work has been started to determine the unknown facts regarding the disease.

Old Diseases Noted—The survey and correspondence with growers have shown the most important rose diseases in order of importance to be (1) black spot, (2) mildew, (3) crown gall, (4) stem canker, (5) Phyllosticta leaf spot, (6) rust, (7) bud rot, (8) other leaf spots. Practically all of these diseases are always present and take yearly tolls of surpassing magnitude from the growers. It is not uncommon to find gardens and houses with all the plants completely defoliated by ravages of the leaf spot diseases, especially black spot, thus making the plants unsightly and so reducing their vitality that they are susceptible to attacks of other fungi, from which roses are ordinarily immune, and to frost injury. It is unnecessary to mention the damage done by mildew, while there is an ever-increasing demand for information relating to crown gall, stem canker, rust and bud rot. Unfortunately very little is known regarding the control of most of these diseases; and many points remain to be investigated concerning the control of such common and well-known diseases as black spot and mildew.

New Diseases Noted—A new, and what appears to be one of the most important, diseases of the rose has been observed by the writer in visits to rose houses. We are calling it the "crown canker." Specimens have been sent to the department by growers from many parts of eastern United States and from as far west as Missouri. It was first observed by the writer in September, 1916, but talks with growers indicate that the disease has been present for possibly four or five years. All varieties seem to be susceptible to the disease. The plant is attacked just below the surface of the soil and, although the disease advances slowly, the death of the plant is sure with an ever-decreasing number and quality of flowers.

This disease, which has never been described, is considered of such importance that a large part of the writer's time is being devoted to a study of the life history of the causal fungus and the development of a method of control. Several large growers have stated that unless help is obtained they will be forced out of business. With the disease already known to be present in the houses of 10 large growers, it is safe to assume that other growers have plants similarly affected and that the disease will be widely distributed and increase rapidly in importance. Steps must be taken immediately to control this disease. Not only is it important that growers who already have the disease shall be furnished with control methods, but it is even of greater importance that the method of dissemination of the fungus be worked out in order that the further spread of the disease be checked.

What appear to be other new diseases than the one mentioned above have been brought to the writer's attention, but too little progress has yet been made in this investigation to give definite statements at this time.

Black Spot—It is planned to conduct extensive experiments for the control of this disease during the coming season. Plants at the Cornell test garden and at Chase Brothers' nursery, Honeoye Falls, New York, will be treated with various fungicides along the lines of recent developments in plant disease control. One of the most important fungicides to be tried is that of finely ground sulphur applied in the form of dust. Suitable plants have been obtained and are now growing in the greenhouse at Cornell for similar experiments for the control of black spot under glass.

Mildew—Experiments for the control of mildew through the use of finely ground sulphur used as a dust on both indoor and outdoor roses.

Phyllosticta Leaf-Spot—A study of the life history of the causal organism is now being made. This is one of the most important leaf-spot diseases of ramblers, and methods of control will be tried during the coming season.

Crown Gall—Some 200 healthy plants have been obtained to be inoculated with bacteria causing this disease. These plants will be grown to determine the effect of the disease upon the plant, there being a divergence of opinion as to just how much damage is done.

The New Root or Crown Disease, Crown Canker—Extensive experiments for the control of this disease are now under way. It is probable that the fungus lives in the soil and that successful treatments will be along the line of soil sterilization and the practice of sanitation in the houses. However, the effects of chemicals—lime, acid-phosphate, sulphur, etc.—upon the fungus, when applied to the soil, will be tried. Some 300 rose plants have been obtained and are now growing in the greenhouses at Cornell for these experiments. Much time is being spent in working out the life history of the causal organism, as such information is essential for a comprehensive study of control methods.

Fungi and bacteria causing other diseases of roses are being studied in culture. These organisms have been isolated from diseased material obtained from growers. Their pathogenicity will be tested and control experiments conducted where the organisms prove parasitic and the importance of the disease warrants such action.

It will be seen from the above statements that while there is but little yet to report in the line of results in control, still considerable progress has been made and the foundation laid for experiments for the control of diseases which are of extreme importance to the growers of roses. There is every reason to expect that another year's work will bring results upon which proved and definite advice may be furnished the growers for the solution of their rose-disease problems. It is hardly necessary to add that it is very essential that the work be continued, for should it be dropped at this point the work already done will amount to but little.

June Care of Indoor Roses.

Owing to a certain amount of outdoor work at this time that requires attention, there is often a certain amount of neglect noticeable in the houses. If this does not go too far, the matter will not become so very serious; at the same time, no matter how important the outside work may be there is little gained by failing to attend to the indoor roses if one is making a livelihood at growing roses under glass the year round.

In a previous article we laid considerable stress on mulching regularly throughout the season, particularly the mulching of all beds that are to be carried over, and we mention it again to keep this most important piece of work under the grower's eye, so to speak. It is the only way to keep the buds up to a salable size, and also to make the plants produce flowers in quantity and good wood to prune back to the summer, so do not be stingy with the manure. Look out for the weeds, also, for a house full of weeds will take as much or more plant food out of the mulch as the rose plants will. Firing can not be continued a great while longer, so now is the time to keep the sulphur on the pipes and also to clean out the green fly while the houses can be closed down. The young pot stock will need fumigating quite frequently and should be syringed good and hard afterwards, also on all bright days. Do not neglect to shift the young stock right along until it is time to bench same. It will be advisable to drain all the pots over the 3-inch size, and be sure that the potters are instructed to put in the drainage carefully; just a small handful of broken crock dropped in carelessly does not work, for half the time the drain hole in the pot is clogged. Two pieces the size of half a dollar, one placed on one side of the hole and the other resting on this will drain properly or one piece over the hole will do if concaved in shape. This may seem rather trivial, but there is always a right way to do anything and it does not take any longer to do it right.

The benching of the young stock can begin at any time now, and in order to have good, vigorous plants for heavy fall and winter cutting, the sooner one gets the young stock off to a good start the better. Be sure that the compost is well broken up and the manure evenly distributed. A liberal sprinkling of finely ground bone meal added to each load as it is being cut down will be a great help to the plants a little later on. Be sure that the soil is packed firmly in the beds or benches. This will call for trowel planting, and of course it will require more time in planting, but it surely pays. Remember when planting the grafted stock to remove the raffia at the splice if any still remains, and also to stake them immediately after they are planted to avoid breaking them when syringing. When removing the old soil from the solid borders, it will be advisable to loosen up the subsoil, working some bone (coarsely ground) into the subsoil before putting in the fresh filling, and a good rule is to take out enough of the old soil so that when the five inches of fresh soil is packed firmly in the beds there will be fully two inches of the siding left above the surface of the soil. This gives one a chance to water freely and to apply a mulch that will not be washed out in the walks. If the sides of the beds need repairs, do it thoroughly and leave no cracks or openings of any kind for the water to escape. A good method to employ in firming the soil in the beds is to fill the beds perfectly level without firming the soil; then pack it by walking on the soil, care being taken to cover the whole surface with short steps; then level off and the soil will then be about the proper depth from the top edges of the sides of the bench. Plant with trowel and be sure to make the hole large enough to avoid squeezing the ball when planting. Put the grafted stock low enough, so that when the beds are finally leveled the splice will be at least one inch below the surface of the soil. The own root plants should not be planted but very little deeper than they are growing in the pots, just deep enough to have the balls completely covered. All young stock should be firmed around each plant and a depression left around each plant about 10 inches in diameter. Leave them in this way for several weeks or until (by examining the soil) one finds the roots working freely: then the beds can be leveled and the water can be given to the whole bed. The advantage in planting in this way is gained by being able to water each plant individually and also to keep the soil between the plants in a perfectly fresh condition until the plants are large enough to take a general watering. When weeding, some prefer to stir the soil as soon as the weed seeds are seen germinating, or when they are very small. On a clear, hot day many weeds are destroyed in this way, but if one has plenty of help a good plan is to let the first crop of weeds get several inches high and then put several weeders to work on them and in this way, if the work is thoroughly done, there will be very few weeds to bother with later.

After planting the houses should be gone over and given a thorough cleaning. If raised benches are used, do not neglect to scrape out under them, removing any old soil or accumulation that has collected there. The cleaner one keeps the surroundings in a rose house the less one will have to spend in insecticides and repairs. And it surely has a tendency to give one's establishment a look of prosperity and the owner a certain pride when taking one through the range. Once everything around the place is put in shipshape order, it will not require a great amount of work to keep it so.

PLANT NOTES.

Dracaena Indivisa.

The seedlings of Dracaena indivisa should now be taken from the flats and potted in small pots and placed in a good moist location that they may make a good growth before the fall. A palm or fern house or one with similar temperature is the best for the small stock. The four-inch stock that was not disposed of during the spring sales can be either plunged outside or planted in a frame, where they will not demand the close attention necessary in the greenhouse. If planted out they should be potted up early, at least by September 1, when the roots are active and will quickly obtain a foothold in the new soil. They should be heavily shaded for a few days after potting or some loss of the plants may result. Any old plants that have outgrown their usefulness may be propagated, the stems cut up into small pieces and laid in a propagating bed with bottom heat where the eyes will open and young plants quickly form.

Gloxinias.

The gloxinias that were started in late winter should now be beginning to flower. After the flower beds have set they can be placed in a little shadier location and the danger of burning the foliage be obviated to a great degree. The plants should be spaced far enough apart that they do not touch and a proper circulation of air produced around the plant. If the flowers are to be used in floral work they should be cut as soon as fully open and placed in water away from draughts, and they will keep very well; these flowers are very fragile and should be handled carefully. If there are any particularly beautiful flowers that it is desired to propagate, the leaves can be rooted in the propagating bench by placing the base of the leaf in the sand to the depth of about an inch. The seedlings should be potted along for later blooming.

Freesias.

A crop of freesias, or a few plants in pots in bloom, at Christmas is a valuable asset on that holiday. In order to have them in bloom at that time the bulbs should be planted by July 1. Select the large strong bulbs, and by careful inspection many will be found on which the root eyes are beginning to swell. These will make the earliest blooming plants, and this selecting will produce plants that will all bloom at the same time. The bulbs should be planted in a good soil enriched with well rotted manure, but no fresh manure; it is a well understood principle that bulbs of all kinds do not grow well in soil full of fresh manure. Eight to ten large bulbs in a 6-inch pot will give the best results. The pots should be well watered and placed in a dark, cool place until the shoots appear above the ground, when they should be given a light location.

As soon as the growths get tall enough they should be staked and tied. By continual early selection of the bulbs, and keeping the earliest separate, an early strain can be assured.

Nephrolepis.

Probably no plant that the florist grows gives more returns for the labor spent in its culture or the space that it occupies than the Boston fern and its various sports. The old Boston is still, however, the easiest to handle and grow. The plants should be re-potted every year, and with good treatment are sure of making nice plants. Any plants that are in poor condition can be divided and with the young stock planted in a bench of good rich soil. The house should be shaded enough to assure of good color on the foliage, but not heavy enough to prevent the house being maintained at a good high temperature. During the day the house should stand at about 80 degrees with a little ventilation which should be closed down before the sun leaves the houses. The plants can be set six inches apart and the soil should be two parts loam, one part leaf mold, and one part rotted manure. The house should be frequently syringed to keep a moist atmosphere. Under these conditions fine plants can be produced from young stock in three months. In September they should be lifted and placed in 6-inch pots, if single specimens are desired, or three or four plants can be placed in a 9-inch or 10-inch pot if larger plants are wanted. In lifting the plants they can be cut around about two inches from the crown, and lifted with a trowel, leaving the runners in the bench, if the place they occupy is not wanted at once. The runners will immediately break into small plants which can be placed in flats for young stock for the next season. The finer varieties of this fern, such as Whitmani, do not submit to the lifting and potting as well, as the old Boston and better plants can be obtained by potting along into larger pots as may be required. The only insects that trouble these ferns are the brown scale, and the plants should be kept clean from these either by washing, or spraying with aphine, or a weak nicotine solution.

Oleanders.

A plant that does not receive the attention that it should is the oleander. While there probably would not be a large demand for this plant, yet it is an old time favorite, and well grown specimens in bloom are a valuable addition to a porch or lawn. They are too often so sadly neglected that they get unshapely and far from being an ornament, but a little attention to trimming them into shape after they get through blooming will keep them in good condition. They can be wintered in any cool quarters, and if brought into the heat and light in early spring will be full of bloom in June and July and a valuable decorative plant. The cuttings root easily and at any time when the plant is in growth, and grow very rapidly for a hard-wooded plant. Any florist carrying a line of assorted stock should include a few of these in the variety which he cultivates. The only insect which troubles them is the mealy bug, but a good frequent hard syringing will soon dislodge them.

Poinsettias.

The propagation of poinsettias should be pushed to the utmost at this time, for it is the plants that are rooted early in July that make the best single specimens at Christmas. Those that are rooted later in July and during August will make fine plants for pans, placing four to eight plants in a 6-inch or 8-inch pan, for they will be much shorter than those rooted early in July. The plants that were rooted earlier should now be growing nicely and should be shifted into larger pots as soon as they require it; under no circumstances allow them to become pot-bound until the bracts begin to set in November. They should be placed in the bright sun as soon as strong enough to endure it, that the growth may be short and sturdy and the leaves as close together as is possible. A long, drawn plant grown in the shade, with the leaves far apart, is not the typical plant for the holidays and does not meet with approval.

Cleaning Greenhouse Glass.

In our issue of April 21, page 744, we called attention to the great need at many ranges for a liquid that would effectively and economically remove the cloudy coatings which render many establishments unfit for forcing cut flowers, attention being called to that of P. S. Randolph & Sons at Verona, Pa., which, although four miles from a cement factory, is a sufferer, the sediment being blown over the range by prevailing winds with disastrous results.

In response, THE AMERICAN FLORIST has received several communications offering suggestions that will no doubt prove interesting, one from Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, well known growers whose immense range embraces 2,000,000 feet of glass and who for a number of years have used effectively and economically an article called "Daylite Cleaner." This is not injurious to paint or putty and easily removes cement, soot or dirt, being applied with a brush and being allowed to remain for a few moments is washed off with a hose, one man doing the work of five as compared with the old style methods. Poehlmann Bros. Co. through its supply department will be glad to furnish testimonials and other information regarding "Daylite Cleaner," which they are prepared to furnish to the trade.

J. W. Jones, who has lived in Pittsburgh, the "Smoky City," for over 20 years during which period he has been connected with Phipps conservatory, Schenley park, of which he is foreman, states that he doubts if there are any greenhouses in the United States that get more dirt and smoke than the conservatory, which is practically in the city and has to contend with iron ore and the smoke from the Baltimore & Ohio railroad which passes close by. Mr. Jones reports that the propagating houses here are cleaned twice a year, hydrofluoric acid, 48% proof, diluted in the proportion of one part acid to six parts water. Where there is no iron ore less acid would doubtless do the work. A safe plan is to try the one to six proportion and if it cuts easy keep on diluting as long as it does the work properly as too much acid will injure the glass. The solution can be mixed in an ordinary fibre bucket, the fibre not being affected by the acid. Apply, to the glass with a soft floor brush, one man applying the cleaner, another following up with the hose, the safest plan being to run the water from the ridge, care being taken not to run the water under the glass. The acid has never been found injurious to paint; in fact, if there happens to be white lead on the glass it will not remove it. There is not much danger of burning plants providing the houses are tight; if not, the plants can be covered with paper. Neither have the fumes been found injurious excepting in the case of nicotiana and asparagus. Plumousus does not seem to suffer much, but if there are any Sprengeri in a house cleaned with hydrofluoric acid, it will drop all its leaves. A carboy of the acid contains 90 pounds and costs $7.50, the first carboy to be paid for and which can be returned for credit or exchange. This method of cleaning glass, Mr. Jones adds, has proved most satisfactory both at the conservatory and by many others who have been told by him of its merits during the past 15 years. Accompanying this communication, and showing the effectiveness of the acid solution as a cleaner, was a piece of glass, half of which was as bright and clear as new, the balance covered with a hardened coating of dust of sufficient density to resemble smoked glass for solar observation.

The Whilldin Pottery Co., Philadelphia, Pa., on its show card which it distributes to florists exploiting its wares, has the following: "A successful method of cleaning the roof glass of greenhouses is adopted by Jos. Harris & Bro., Shamokin, Pa., who describe their methods as follows: 'We use a square tank, made acid-proof with wax, and thoroughly mix five gallons of water with one quart of hydrofluoric acid; this is then rubbed upon the glass with an old broom or whitewash brush. one section at a time, using plenty of water to rinse acid off, and great care has to be exercised. If the acid is too strong a frosty appearance will be given to the glass when it dries. We suggest, therefore, making tests with the acid water at various strengths, and never to proceed with the washing of the whole roof until such tests have been made and the glass dried after the test. We also urge the necessity of using rubber gloves. The acid comes in lead jugs containing 10 pounds, and the cost of cleaning will average $1.00 per 1,000 square feet.'

In a communication to us the above company states they have found this to be a tried and true cleaner and has been used by many of its customers, all agreeing that it was good. It is not for sale by the Whilldin Pottery Co. but can be obtained in five or 10-pound lead jugs from any wholesale druggist.

MT. AIRY, MD.—J. P. King will devote part of his range to roses, discontinuing part of his sweet pea section.

LEXINGTON, KY.—The heaviest hail storm in many years caused considerable damage to glass and gardens, May 22. John Fisher was one of the heavy losers.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.—Thomas L. Lowden, founder of the florist firm of Thos. L. Lowden & Sons, which is at present conducted by his sons, died here May 19, aged 76 years. He had been a resident of this city for 57 years.

Summering Azaleas.

Owing to the poor condition in which the azaleas arrived from abroad last fall, the results of this season's forcing have been, as a rule, very unsatisfactory. Nearly every grower of Easter plants has from one-half to one-third of his importation on hand, much of which stock is in good condition except for its straggly growth. These plants, if cared for properly during the summer months, can be brought into growth and make shapely, saleable plants, well set with buds, before September. All strong shoots should be trimmed back to make an even symmetrical head and a good growth obtained before being placed outside, which should not be until all danger of frost is passed. Select for their summer quarters an empty frame, which will have the sun all day long. It should be well drained, as during the hot summer months azaleas need quantities of water, a thorough soaking once a day and frequent, forceful syringing. The pots should be plunged to the depth that covers the rims with soil. The ideal material for the frames is well-rotted leaf mold.

In Belgium, all azaleas are grown in beds of leaf mold; these mounds are made up in the open field about six feet in width. Although the climate is much cooler there than in the United States, the beds are given a copious watering at least once a day. Some growers in America believe that they get better results by planting out their azaleas in beds of leaf mold and potting up in the fall. The plants must never be allowed to suffer from want of water, and should have frequent hard syringing to keep down red spider and thrip, which if they once get a hold, ruin the foliage.

The Skinner or similar watering systems are efficient methods for beds of this kind, provided the drainage is good. The plants should be taken inside in the early fall before frost, as the slightest touch will nip the buds and the season's work all goes for naught.

It is the opinion of many good growers that azaleas could be raised to as great perfection in the United States as in Belgium, the principal difficulty being the labor problem, wages and other matters of cost that enter into the work being much cheaper there than here.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.—The engagement of J. J. Sokol, well-known florist of this city, and Miss Mabel Edyth Dickinson, is announced.

CATONSVILLE, MD.—Robert W. Cook, son of Charles H. Cook, died May 14 from lockjaw which developed from an attack of quinsy.

WORCESTER, MASS.—H. R. Kinney has been appointed supervisor of public school gardens. He is widely known as secretary of the Worcester County Horticultural Society.

HAMILTON, ONT.—Major John Connon, who is convalescing here, and who has recently completed 20 years of military service, has been awarded the long-service decoration of the colonial forces.

TOTONTO, ONT.—At the May meeting of the retail florists' club, plans were made to promote May 24 as a general Decoration day. All florists in the Dominion are asked to fly a big, new Union Jack on that day.

MARKET CLEANS UP FAIRLY WELL.

Business has kept up in splendid shape during the past two weeks. There has been a continual demand for nearly all stocks and the market cleans up fairly good every day. The heavy spring cut of carnations is now over and prices are ruling a little firmer of late. The supply of roses is not as large as in former weeks and the demand is steady. The stock, as a rule, is excellent. Fine American Beauties, Russell, Ophelia and Hadley are being shown at all the stores. Some extra fine Ulrich Brunner are also coming in. This is a good seller at this season. There is a very heavy supply of Cecile Brunner, mostly outdoor stock. This variety is cheap just now, but it is of extra fine quality. Plenty of good lilies are arriving and are bringing fair prices. The cut of most bulbous stock is past, with the exception of Spanish iris and Gladioli, The Bride and Peach Blossom. Owing to the cool weather, we are receiving splendid stock of the above; in fact, the finest seen in years. Cattleyas are rather plentiful, but all find a market. Lily of the valley is more plentiful than for some time past and is firm in price. Sweet peas are arriving in larger quantities of late and selling at good figures. The Spencers are becoming more prominent and always have the call over the old type. Ranunculus and anemones are in ample supply. Some very good outdoor snapdragons are coming in daily. This popular flower is getting to be a great favorite in this market. The demand for Memorial day was very promising. There was plenty of stock to go around.

NOTES.

The success of the spring show to be given by the Menlo Park Horticultural Society, June 9-10, is now assured. The society will pay all the prize money out of its own treasury and every dollar received at the door will be given to the American Red Cross. Secretary Copp reports that all the patrons' tickets at $5.00 each have been disposed of. Sweet peas will be the great feature of this show. Among the prominent growers who have reserved space are C. C. Morse & Co., Waldo Rohnert, Braslan Seed Growers Co., and Hallowell Seed Co. The show will be exceedingly interesting to sweet pea fanciers as all the newest varieties, and also quite a few that are not yet in commerce, will be on display. The exhibition committee, headed by John M. Daly, chairman, has left nothing undone to make this show their best attempt.

The second annual dahlia show of the Park-Presidio Improvement Club will be held August 25-26 at the club's hall, 649 Eighth avenue. Prizes will be awarded for flowers grown in the Park-Presidio district. The arrangements for the show are in the hands of C. Goecker, George R. Meyerderks, Ben Schloss, Louis Kuttner and Philip Werner. The club hopes to eclipse their last summer show.

Mrs. E. Lymbery, proprietor of the well-known Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, at San Mateo, is very busy these days as the spring planting season has commenced. She is gratified with the large volume of business done this season, her correspondence being so heavy another stenographer was added to the clerical force.

Walter Bates, of the Tenneyson Nurseries, Alameda, visited many of the growers along the peninsula during the week. He reports having had a splendid season. Mr. Bates is one of our prominent chrysanthemum specialists, and is a frequent exhibitor at all the shows.

Almon Wheeler, of the Ruchl Wheeler Nurseries, of San Jose, called on the trade during the week, looking up rose orders. He is completely sold out on many varieties for fall delivery. Mr. Wheeler made the trip in his new Studebaker.

Chas. Shellyrain, manager of J. B. Boland's store, reported a very busy week preparing for the Memorial day rush. He says trade is keeping up unusually well at this store and is thoroughly satisfied at the condition of trade. G. N.

RAIN SHATTERS MEMORIAL DAY TRADE.

Had it not rained the previous day, the business for Memorial day might have been reported as one of the best for this event in many years, but the weather which continued inclement on Memorial day kept most people away from the cemeteries and the florists who were loaded up with heavy stocks prepared for a big demand, suffered. In the wholesale markets the stock received on Wednesday was offered at any price but with no buyers, the retailers still having plenty of stock on hand—and then some more. Roses, carnations, lilies, sweet peas and some peonies were the flowers in most demand. The local crop of the latter did not bloom in time for Memorial day, and with warm weather, the market will doubtless be flooded with them. Roses and carnations are now arriving in large quantities and prices have dropped. Lilies are in supply about sufficient to reach around and sweet peas are fast passing out for this year and from all reports the growers had a very successful season. Irises, larkspurs, candytuft and other outdoor flowers are coming in and find a ready sale. Yellow daisies are seen in abundance and sell at almost buyers' prices. Smilax and all greens are very scarce.

NOTES.

The funeral of Ambassador George W. Guthrie created a great demand for fancy stock May 28. A. Krongold received an order from Vice-President Thomas Marshall for a large bunch of American Beauties for that occasion.

Henry S. Pennock, of Jupiter, Fla., called on friends here last week. He was on his way to Philadelphia to visit his brother, S. S. Pennock, of that city.

Fred Reiglemier now has a fleet of four delivery trucks, two new Fords having been recently added to his equipment.

J. E. Bonsall, of Salem, O., is cutting some very fine irises and larkspurs.

Visitors: A. Rosnosky, Philadelphia, Pa.; A. C. Bottles, Morgantown, W. Va., and C. C. Tyler, Cleveland, O. M.

Lake Forest, Ill.

An interesting tulip show was held at the Gorton School Hall, June 5, under the auspices of the North Shore Horticultural Society. The principal exhibitors were Cyrus H. McCormick (W. E. Fischer, gardener), H. A. Sprague (Robt. Kuehne, gardener), D. M. Cummings (Knut Lofring, gardener), Mrs. A. D. Beran (J. F. Kily, gardener), Mrs. R. J. Thorne's (Otto Strassenburg, gardener) clusiana attracted much attention. J. Ogden Armour (Thos. W. Head, gardener) made a fine display of indoor roses and Mrs. Byron L. Smith (E. Bollinger, gardener) exhibited a fine assortment of lilacs. The exhibits of vegetables from Mrs. W. A. Yeager (W. B. Barnard, gardener) and Mrs. E. A. Russell (E. Benson, gardener) were unusually fine for this early date. Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, made a fine display of Darwin and May-flowering tulips.

Wichita, Kan.

SUPPLY ONLY LIMIT FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

Memorial day trade seems to have been limited only by the capacity of the florists to handle the business. Practically all agree that it was the best ever. There was abundance of stock in most lines and the total volume of business will probably show an increase of 25% over previous years. There was good trade in bedding stock for cemetery planting. Made-up basket arrangements and a few rustic boxes and tubs of moderate sizes sold well; also specimen plants of hydrangeas, spirea, marguerites and pelargoniums. In cut flowers, the carnations were first to show a shortage; next came peonies, which owing to lateness of crop, were in reduced supply, and barely held out with careful handling. Cape Jessamine was in fair supply, good quality, and sold well. Prepared memorial stock such as magnolia wreaths and similar goods showed increased sales. Memorial day usually marks the end of the bedding plant trade here, but, owing to the season's lateness this year, the first week in June will see quite a bit of business in that line, and taken altogether the spring season will show a good bulky total, and nothing else will do in these days of high-priced fuel, etc.

It is reported that the Baker Landscape Co. has made a deal for the Blake greenhouses on East Twelfth street. What disposition of them Mr. Baker will make is not known at this time. C.

MEMORIAL DAY TRADE DISAPPOINTS.

With the arrival of warmer weather, business has shown much improvement, both in the sales of cut stock and in the demand for bedding plants. The Memorial day trade was not as good as in former years and the shortened demand for wreaths for cemetery decoration was noticeable. Plants, also, were not as popular as usual. Because of the lateness of the season very few outdoor flowers were used, Darwin tulips and Poeticus being about the only offerings. Carnations are still very good and roses are falling in price as the summer advances. Outdoor lily of the valley is of good quality and finds ready sale. Southern peonies have arrived and there is an abundance of Spanish and German irises.

NOTES.

J. B. Keller Sons are anticipating a good business in June wedding decorations. They have pansies of an unusually fine strain which are proving very popular.

Salter Bros. are growing some good cornflowers, Darwin tulips and snapdragons at their Fairport range. Bedding plants are selling well with them.

The peony show, which was scheduled for the early part of this month, has been postponed until June 28-30, because of the lateness of the season.

The Rochester Floral Co. attracted attention to their establishment last week with a good display of Darwin tulips. CHESTER.

The Late Hilan Harrington.

Hilan Harrington, who 27 years ago established greenhouses on Vashon Island, Seattle, Wash., now conducted in connection with retail stores in that city under the name of the H. Harrington Co., died May 21, aged 66 years.

Mr. Harrington was born in Steuben county, N. Y., his early life being spent in that state, but migrated to Seattle in 1890, and until his retirement from active life in 1914, was one of that city's most prominent business men. He is survived by a widow, one daughter and two brothers.

Mattoon Man's Heavy Loss.

Supplementing the brief account of the loss sustained by growers at Mattoon, Ill., in the tornado which swept that city, May 26, given in our issue of June 2, page 1062, we are in receipt of a communication from A. D. King, one of the heaviest losers, in which he graphically describes how his entire range of 15 houses was leveled to the ground within five minutes, while he and his family were buried in the ruins of their handsome home, miraculously escaping death. All were severely bruised and Mr. King was confined to his bed for several days recovering from his injuries. The ground on which his range stood was swept so clean by the wind that not a peck of glass could be found after the storm. As regards plans for the future, he states that in preference to rebuilding, he desires to buy or rent a range that he can operate with the help of one man, and which can be added to, as he intends making vegetable growing an important factor.

Memorial Day Trade.

The 1917 Memorial day trade as reported from various centers seems to have been characterized by highly gratifying sales and also by disappointments, the latter condition seeming to prevail in a number of the larger cities, especially in the east. Generally unfavorable weather with rain at many points dampened the sentiment of many who usually visit the cemeteries, and this is attributed as the chief reason for the falling off in sales as compared with former years, together with the backward season which affects the demand for outdoor plantings. New England cities, especially Boston, report business fully up to expectations, and western cities in many instances estimate the total increase over the corresponding period of 1916 at from 10 to 25 per cent. Due to the backward season, peonies were extremely scarce, but where the demand was at all active, customers were readily satisfied with other stock, chiefly roses and carnations, which were in good supply in most localities.

General Business At Chicago.

Dun's weekly review of Chicago trade, published June 2 by R. G. Dun & Co., has the following: "Business as a whole now reflects well rounded activity, the volume exceeding the best heretofore, and seasonable weather besides adding to betterment in agriculture has favorably stimulated distributive branches, especially leading retail, the latter now rapidly losing its recent lethargy and stocks moving off freely. Demands have broadened in the heavy producing lines, prices sustain their remarkable high level, and the calls for deliveries are more urgent. Available capacity in this district to a greater extent than before is taxed with both day and night work, yet enormous outputs are inadequate to satisfy users, and it seems improbable that supplies can be augmented. Pressure is intense in iron, steel, equipment, and metal working, and while outside construction and new building show less contemplated than at this time last year there is much in progress and more growing absorption of lumber, planing mill, and quarry material."

Marshall Field & Co. in their weekly review of the dry goods trade say:

"Wholesale distribution of dry goods for the current week is running in equal volume to the corresponding period of a year ago. Road sales for immediate delivery are about the same in volume as last year, while those for future delivery continue well ahead. Customers have been in the market in smaller numbers. Collections are ahead of the same week a year ago. The market generally is strong."

Sunday Hours for Florists.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Referring to the present discussion concerning the shortening of the hours of florists on Sundays, permit me to add my voice to the discussion now going on. As I understand the situation, the present plan is to close all florists' shops on Sundays at or about the noon hour and reopen them again in the evening. This appears to me both an economic waste of time as well as a hardship. The purpose of the present move to close our shops on Sundays is to give to all florists at least a few hours to themselves in the course of the week. If the proposed plan is adopted, I can see neither gain nor advantage. We will have scarcely time enough to eat a hearty Sunday repast and take a short walk before the evening hours will necessitate a return to the store.

A far better idea would be to keep the shops open until say one or two o'clock and then close for the day. In this manner we will have the balance of the day to ourselves, and thus a genuine rest will have been secured us. The continuous rest from say two o'clock through until the next morning is a much better relief than a few hours chopped out of the middle of the day.

Furthermore, the public will soon accustom themselves to the new order of things. When they find out that all flowers and floral work desired on Sunday must be ordered before two o'clock, they will readily adopt this new order, and very little inconvenience or confusion will be caused after the first few weeks. The public today are required to attend to all of their grocery and butcher needs for Sunday, not to speak of their milk requirements, no later than Saturday, and yet no complaint is heard.

I offer my suggestion for what it may be worth in the hope that there may be other readers of your worthy magazine who may feel as I do, and who may make themselves heard, and place their views on record in your publication. CHRIS. E. ZEWAKOS.

Garden Rose Culture.

In Lesson 121, of the Cornell Reading Course for the Farm, published by the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, the subject, "The Culture of Garden Roses," is very capably and instructively handled by Professor A. C. Beal. Included in the 16 pages of this interesting booklet are numerous illustrations, including planting plans, methods of winter protection, training, etc., together with a comprehensive list of recommended varieties. While the culture of roses under glass is not discussed, much valuable information is given regarding the garden varieties, including planting, preparation of the soil, kind and grade of plants to order, care of dormant plants before setting, winter protection, pruning, propagation, etc.

SUBSCRIPTIONS for the sufferers in the recent cyclone at Mattoon and Charleston amount to some $5,000, while for those at Blackhawk, Ind., $700 has been taken up.

Personal.

Hetty Green's son, Col. E. H. R. Green, took $5,000,000 Liberty Bonds through Terrell National Bank of Texas.

American Peony Society.

The annual meeting and exhibition of the American Peony Society, scheduled to be held at Philadelphia, June 7-8, has been postponed to June 11-12, when it is expected that the blooms in that locality will be at their best.

The American Mutual Cyclone and Hail Insurance Co.

To Our Members, Special Notice:

The American Mutual Cyclone and Hail Insurance Company of which you are a member has grown and prospered beyond the greatest expectations of its founders, we now having over $3,500,000.00 of an assessable capital. A sufficient loss fund to take care of ordinary losses, not in debt a single dollar, every loss (in which the proofs have been returned to the office) are paid in full to date. The officers are proud of the condition of this company and are proud of you for helping to make this company the strong institution it now is. Now it is up to us and you to make this company Bigger, Better and Stronger. We propose to do this in the following manner:

1st. To reorganize the company under the Insurance Act of 1915 of the State of Indiana; This will place the company under the direct supervision of the insurance departments of each and every state where we have members; thus assuring you of a wider protection, including Fire on your dwellings and out-buildings as well as Cyclone and Hail on your entire plant and crops; the demand for fire insurance on this company has been very great, coming from greenhouse owners, but under the law under which we now operate, we can not protect our members against loss by fire.

2nd. This will enable us to divide the surplus profits each year with our members, by way of cash dividends or a reduction in the cost of their insurance.

3rd. The re-organization will in no way affect your present membership, but will better it, it will not cost you a single dollar more or less to consent to the re-organization, and besides, it will give us the right to have our members of each state elect one of their number to our board of directors.

This action granted by the unanimous consent of the board of directors of the American Mutual Cyclone & Hail Insurance Company, of Muncie, Indiana, and is in harmony with the resolutions passed by said board of directors at their meeting, held at the home office of said company on the 14th day of May, 1917.

Chicago.

STOCK IS VERY PLENTIFUL.
Stock is very plentiful at this writing with one or two exceptions, but is in good demand, although prices are not as high as they might be. Trade the latter part of last week was quiet, as far as the city demand was concerned, for nearly all the retailers had a good supply of stock left over from Memorial day, owing to the heavy rain all that day, and which stock was not disposed of in many instances until the following Saturday. The out-of-town demand immediately after Memorial day was exceptionally good, which meant that the florists outside of this city must have enjoyed splendid business and sold out completely in all lines, for their orders were very large and made quite a dent in the heavy local supply. The wholesalers enjoyed a splendid Memorial day trade, which was much larger than last year in nearly all instances and resulted in a grand cleanup of stock in practically all lines. There was quite a supply of stock seen in the market at noon on Memorial day, but it was from the shipments that arrived late that morning and was not left over from the previous day. Orchids are in good demand this week but the supply is short and it is impossible to fill all the orders in full. Lily of the valley is having a good call and cleans up quickly each day at the advertised quotations. American Beauty roses are good property and continue to clean up nicely at satisfactory prices. Peonies are in large supply and are obtainable in quantity at reasonable figures. The demand for sweet peas is good and the stock in this line that reaches the market is disposed of at an early hour. Lilac, gladioli, Double White Narcissus, snapdragons, tulips, roses, pansies, carnations, stocks, mignonette, daisies, irises, feverfew, calendulas, lilies, candytuft, callas and other miscellaneous stock is in large supply and while stock in general is moving well, it is coming in as fast as it goes out and there are no signs of any shortage except in those scarce items already mentioned. Ferns have advanced to $4 per 1,000 and are scarce at that figure. Bedding plants are in good demand this week and from present indications there will be no surplus to speak of if any when the season is over.

NOTES.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. has a new Sterling truck in operation at Morton Grove. August Poehlmann says that it is cheaper to operate trucks nowadays than it is to use and feed horses with oats at 80 cents per bushel and besides better results are obtained in long distance hauls. H. M. Oeser, superintendent of the palm department, is able to be about again after a long siege of illness, which his many friends are pleased to hear.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. report that the war has not affected their business any so far and that their sales are showing a steady increase right along. May was an unusually good month for them with the sales showing a great increase over those of the same period of any previous year.

Tom Kidwell, son of J. F. Kidwell, well-known grower and mayor of Downer's Grove, has joined the colors. He is in the hospital corps, and expects to leave for France in the near future.

The Chicago Florists' Club will meet at the Briggs Hotel, 188 West Randolph street, Thursday evening, June 7, at 8 o'clock.

M. C. Gunterberg is handling a good supply of peonies.

Kennicott Bros. Co. is now located in its new store in the Le Moyne building in North Wabash avenue, in which the American Bulb Co., Bassett & Washburn, Chicago Flower Growers' Association, J. A. Budling and the A. L. Randall Co. are also located. This firm reports a record breaking Memorial day trade with an increase of over $15,000 in sales over the same period of last year.

E. F. Winterson and the various members of his family have the sympathy of the trade in the death of Thomas B. Winterson, who lost his life in an automobile accident May 30. The deceased was 36 years of age and the youngest of a family of ten. He was very popular and the funeral, June 3, was largely attended. Many beautiful floral offerings were sent by the trade.

The Rapid Wrapper Co. with an office on the same floor with Percy Jones, Inc., 56 East Randolph street, is pretty well caught up with the many orders it had booked and will soon be in position to handle all the new ones as fast as they come. The demand for their plant wrapping device has been unusually heavy and given complete satisfaction to all the users.

John Michelsen says that the E. C. Amling Co. enjoyed a splendid Memorial day trade with the sales showing a 20 per cent increase over those of 1916. Russian static has been and is in brisk demand at this establishment and no trouble is experienced in disposing of the shipments as fast as Hugo Luedtke of Maywood sends them in.

Paul Klingsporn, manager of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, reports that business was very good in May with the sales for Memorial day the largest in the history of his firm. August Juergens is shipping a large supply of choice indoor grown gladioli to this house which have sold exceptionally well for this season.

C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, and wife will leave soon for California, where they will visit with O. P. Bassett and E. B. Washburn and families. E. B. Washburn, who is doing his bit for his country, is acting as drill sergeant and will participate in a large patriotic demonstration to be held at Los Angeles, Calif., July 4.

Felix Reichling reports that trade at Peter Reinberg's store is very good considering the present market conditions and that while stock is moving well fresh supplies arrive as fast as the shipments go out, so there is no shortage of any kind. The shipping trade fortunately is holding up remarkably well.

Kyle & Foerster handled a large quantity of lilac this week which sold like hot cakes and moved as quickly as it reached the store. Peonies are in large supply at this establishment and like in former seasons are a leader with them.

Wietor Bros. are cutting heavily in roses and carnations, especially Ophelia which they are growing on a large scale and is very popular with their trade. Mrs. N. J. Wietor has been on the sick list for over a week.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner report that the quality of peonies they are handling are excellent compared to last season

F. W. Haeger, of the A. L. Randall Co., who is a member of the officers' reserve training camp at Fort Sheridan, writes that Earl Poehlmann, son of August Poehlmann, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., and he are sharing the same barracks and are in the best of health. Mr. Haeger requested that his name be placed on the mailing list of THE AMERICAN FLORIST so that they can keep in touch with the trade. W. K. Palmer, of the Fleischman Floral Co. is also at Fort Sheridan. Here is hoping that the boys qualify for good positions and that they will bring back a cargo of valley pips on their return home from the battle front.

Zech & Mann are well pleased with the way their shipping trade has held up since Memorial day and also report that the city demand has been good. Allie Zech received word this week that the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co. lost a large greenhouse in the heavy wind-storm that visited Joliet the other day. The house destroyed was planted with sweet peas.

The Ohio Floral Co. had a special sale on peonies at 50 cents per dozen last Saturday, June 2. Over 100 dozen were sold, which is doing remarkably well considering that its store is located on the second floor and is practically a new stand.

Ed. Hauswirth made a trip to Oconomowoc, Wis., where he accompanied the flowers to the Kohl funeral, held last week. He says that the local florists were well represented, over 125 large designs being sent from here.

R. J. Windler, who is operating the Adam Zender greenhouses in Rogers Park, is devoting practically all of his time at the wholesale store of the Freres-Windler Co., of which he is one of the proprietors.

RECORD MEMORIAL DAY TRADE.

Weather conditions recently have been very unsatisfactory, with rain every day and plenty of it, Memorial day and the one previous being no exception. Stock was quite plentiful, barring peonies, which were exceedingly scarce, hardly any of them being in evidence. Carnations were a little better but the supply was no place near equal to requirements. Roses were the most plentiful of all flowers and of very good grade. Sweet peas, calla and Easter lilies, gladioli and jessamines made up the balance of the offerings. Wreaths of different styles went very well and made up baskets and pot plants of all descriptions sold at sight. Shipments of flowers to out-of-town points were greater than in previous years, according to the reports of the express companies.

NOTES.

T. J. Noll reports an extra heavy demand for decorations at his establishment. A full line of gladioli, roses, carnations and other stock was on hand but no peonies in quantity. Shipping trade has been better than ever.

Miss Lou Boggess reports that even the downpour of rain did not stop business coming to her shop.

The Alpha Floral Co. had a line of boys taking express shipments to the offices and depots. This firm sold out completely and report the largest business from the occasion they ever had.

A. F. Barbe had his usual big run on cemetery trade.

A. Newell had one of the heaviest shipping demands in the history of his establishment and cleaned up early. His new home in Morningside built at a cost of about $10,000 will be ready September 1.

W. J. Barnes was forced to quit selling at 10 o'clock on the day previous to Memorial day until he finished getting out local and shipping orders. He sold out to the last flower.

Samuel Murray had a great run on wreaths as well as a complete cleanup in cut stock and what pot plants were on hand. Shipping trade showed an increase.

W. L. Rock Flower Co. cut heavily on carnations and all went fine. The Memorial day business here resulted in record-breaking sales.

H. Kusik & Co. sold out completely. Roses were the chief flower for quantity. Shipping demand was better than ever before.

John Stevens reports dark, rainy weather did not help his carnation crop but still he had a good cut.

Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. fell shy of their usual cut of peonies, only about 5,000 being available.

Adolph Mohr announces the arrival of a 10-pound boy, May 27. E. J. B.

Boston.

BUSIEST MEMORIAL DAY ON RECORD.

Memorial day business is over, and all are enjoying a short rest, certainly entitled to it, as this has been the busiest Memorial day trade on record. Business has kept up remarkably well with plenty of good stock of all kinds and prices are reasonable. Outdoor flowers are just beginning to appear, and, with a few warm days, the market will be flooded with flowering shrubs.

NOTES.

We have one grower in our city who is known the country over for camellias and acacias of all varieties, Thomas Roland of Nahant. He has given his two sons to the army. The oldest, Phillip, is in France in the ambulance corps, and his second oldest boy, Robert, left last week in the hospital unit, hoping to meet his brother somewhere in France. These boys are determined to make a name for themselves the same as their father. The flower trade all wish them success and a safe voyage.

N. F. McCarthy & Co. have just received a large shipment of bay trees, the first shipment for over a year, and they look remarkably well. Their auction rooms are busy with bedding plants, and the two sale days are well patronized.

Julius A. Zinn's flower store on Park street was visited again with a fire scare—the second inside of a year; his supplies, being stored in the basement, were damaged a great deal by water.

B. A. Snyder & Co. had the best Memorial day trade on record, and, before many years, this young concern will be in line with all the largest supply houses of the country.

Henry R. Comley's store is as busy as ever with weddings. He also does a large business in bedding plants. His window box trade is larger than ever.

Wm. Phelps, who was confined to his home with stomach trouble, is about again, looking none the worse for his illness.

Wm. McAlpine and Frank McDonald of the firm of McAlpine & McDonald, MEMORIAL DAY CLEANED MARKET.

The market is well supplied with stock. Memorial day cleaned up everything, but since that time receipts have been heavy and have given us a large supply. Business is fairly good and steady. Roses are in heavy supply but unfortunately part of the receipts are badly mildewed. Carnations, too, are in a heavy supply. Easter lilies continue plentiful and some excellent callas may be had. Peonies are more than plentiful and receipts are in excess of market needs. Both gladioli and snapdragons are seen in large numbers. Other offerings are sweet peas, lily of the valley, cornflowers and sweet williams.

NOTES.

P. J. Olinger has an excellent crop of Russell with which to satisfy his June commencement demand as well as a good crop of Easter lilies. He reports shipping business as heavy.

C. E. Critchell has just received a large lot of leucothoe, unusually good for the time of the year. H.

MARKET IS DEMORALIZED.

Following a good demand early in the week, the market broke on Memorial day and since then has been in a more or less demoralized state. Carnations are getting poorer as the summer approaches and the same may be said of sweet peas, although there are not many on the market and the outdoor varieties have not made their appearance. Roses, while plentiful, are not of the best quality. This applies to all except American Beauty, which has been exceptionally good for the season. Callas and Easter lilies are plentiful and of very good quality. Peonies have arrived at last hut are about three days late and the quality is fine. Some fine gladioli are seen, especially Mrs. King, America and Panama. The glut in these has not yet started and they therefore command a fair price. There are plenty of greens of all kinds.

NOTES.

The monthly officers' meeting of the florists' club will be held at the residence of Secretary J. J. Windler the coming week, it being the intention to formulate a programme of entertainment for the summer months. At the next meeting of the club a member of the chamber of commerce will address the members on the subject of "A Liberty Loan Bond for Every Florist."

Our old friend, Alex Siegel, passed to his last rest about a week ago after an illness of 10 months. He was a congenial and friendly man, well liked by all who came in contact with him. He died fighting hard—just as he worked and played and the heartfelt sympathy of the local florists is extended to his family in their sad bereavement.

Quite a number of the county growers have put their surplus into vegetables. W. A. Rowe is the leading spirit in this new field and Phil Goebel, Jr., announces he has set out 20,000 tomato plants, while many others have from 3,000 to 5,000.

W. J. Pilcher, our premier rose grower of Kirkwood, is coming on with a fine summer cut of Russell, his specialty. He has replaced many of his Killarney, Hearst, Shawyer and Brilliant with this variety.

The Memorial day demand was disappointing this year—it was a disagreeable, rainy day and no one cared to visit the cemeteries. It seems this day has seen its best as far as the trade in this city profits.

A large funeral last week called for quantities of stock which came as a life-saver to many florists, most of whom had orders. Since then funeral work has been quite brisk.

The St. Louis county growers' dance last week was an immense success. They had a congenial crowd, everybody had a good time and the committee is to be congratulated.

The announcement is reported of the engagement of Charles Steidel, of Olivette, and Miss Mary Munson, of Hinsdale, Ill.

MEMORIAL DAY SUPPLY SHORT.

A dearth of outdoor flowers gave local florists a cleanup Memorial day trade. Stock was plentiful in everything except peonies, which did not come within one-fourth of meeting demand. Dealers found it hard to get hold of them anywhere, and they commanded the biggest prices ever known here, reaching a maximum of $3 a dozen to the consumer. Business continues very satisfactory, and florists believe that the war-economy craze has largely spent its force. Commencement, which is already on in some of the schools, is creating a good demand for roses, which is met by ample stock. Florists look for this kind of trade, together with June wedding business, to offset the bear effects of the heavy cuttings which will result from the fair, warm weather now due. Prices on all cut flowers are keeping well up to standard. There is a strong demand for blooming plants, but the supply is small. A marked feature of the trade just now is the scarcity of fern leaves. First cuttings of gladioli are now on display, at the price of $3 a dozen.

NOTE.

James Underwood, superintendent of Franklin park, and member of one of the oldest florist families in the city, claims the distinction of being father of the youngest apprentice seaman in the United States navy. After successfully passing the examination, James, Jr., was rejected because of being a year under the required age. Through the efforts of the congressman from this district a special ruling was secured permitting the lad to enlist on his sixteenth birthday. This event occurred May 31, and he left, June 4, for Norfolk, Va., to report for duty.

BUSINESS HOLDS UP WELL.

Business has kept up well since Memorial day, due no doubt to the cool weather. According to old residents this is the coldest season, so far, ever experienced. War talk does not seem to have reduced the number of June weddings materially, though the desire to have the ceremonies and displays as unostentatious as possible seems quite noticeable, all of which will have some effect on the florists' business in general. The trade here suffered a grievous disappointment on the morning of Memorial day in the carnations that were shipped into the city. About 1,500 flowers arrived that morning in a condition totally unfit for any use. They were not sleepy,

MEMORIAL DAY TRADE GREATEST EVER.

Memorial day business this year was greater than ever before and shortage of stock was the only drawback to a highly successful holiday. The weather, unseasonably cool, is to be blamed, as there were practically no out-of-door flowers that could be used. Peonies were all shipped into the city, as no home-grown blooms were available. Carnations were also very short, and roses, although in better supply, were none too plentiful. The supply since Memorial day has become normal. Florists are busy with June weddings, and many are booked for the middle and latter part of the month. Funeral work is also plentiful and counter trade is good. The warmer weather of the past few days has again made the trade active in bedding plants. Greens are about equal to the demand.

NOTES.

There will be a meeting of the florists' club, June 13, at the store of the Doswell Floral Co., 301 West Main street. John Doswell will give a talk on "Landscape Gardening." A large attendance is desired, as there will be no more meetings until September.

Miss Helen F. Patten and Miss C. B. Flick of the Patten Flower Shop, Toledo, O., are spending several days in this city, where they came to attend the wedding of their niece, Miss Mildred Flick.

There were but eight clear days during the month of May in this locality, and 43 per cent of sunshine. The lowest temperature during the month was 33 degrees, and the highest 85 degrees.

COMMENCEMENTS MOVE ROSES.

Memorial day and numerous school commencements made quite a brisk demand during the past week, and the end is not yet, one of the large events of the coming week being the high school graduation of 150 pupils. The Russell rose has been chosen as the class flower and each young lady will carry a bunch of two dozen and the young men will each wear one bud. At the alumnae banquet flowers will also be seen in numbers. For the Memorial day observance, which was quite general, flowers from home gardens were most in evidence. Fine flowers are now arriving in this market—plenty of Easter lilies and a good quality of roses, especially Russell, which seems to have attained great perfection with all growers. American Beauty is scarce, few having any at all to offer. Gladioli are good and sweet peas are plentiful and very good stock. The plant trade continues brisk. The late hail damaged many of the flower beds and vegetables also suffered.

NOTES.

The McIntyre Floral Co. has cleaned up all the broken glass at their range, which was wrecked by the recent hail storm and are industriously at work replacing the damage. They are having some difficulty in getting glass but the range will soon be in readiness again. This firm has had an excellent commencement business.

Geny Bros. secured the order for the high school commencement bouquets. Their Russell roses are in splendid condition and they also are showing good American Beauty.

The Joy Floral Co. has a good supply of roses and lilies and is also enjoying a fine trade in bedding stock.

Windsor, Ont.

The advent of June found busy buyers in the Saturday morning market, purchases of flowering and vegetable plants for home gardens being noted on all sides. A load of ferns from the Malden Rose Gardens was quickly disposed of at the rate of two plants for 25 cents and other plants and flowers moved in large quantities.

Miss Lucretia J. Bamford of the Windsor Flower Shop is showing very fine pink and white carnations.

Chas. R. Tuson had some rare white lilies in his attractive window, June 1.

MEMORIAL DAY SUPPLY LIMITED.

The Memorial day trade in this city was marked by a scarcity of stock and while very few peonies were seen, roses and carnations sold up well and business at the markets was better than last year. American Beauties are bringing good returns but Ophelia is a little off color. Roses in general brought good prices the first part of the week, but slackened at the end. Outside reds were offered at $2.50 per 100. The carnation supply shortened, the best bringing three cents. Lily of the valley sold well at eight cents and cattleyas were quoted at 60 cents. A few fine gladioli were sold at $1 per dozen and there is a fair supply of Easter and calla lilies. Peonies are now arriving in good supply and asparagus is coming in freely. Miscellaneous offerings include Spanish iris. Shasta daisies in good supply, a few snapdragons, calendulas and pansies.

NOTES.

Hundreds of farmers, many accompanied by their families, attended farmers' day at the state college of agriculture, June 2.

Some fine French hydrangeas formed part of the display at the Baltimore Wholesale Cut Flower & Supply Co.

S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. had some choice gladioli during the week included in other good offerings.

MEMORIAL DAY TRADE DISAPPOINTMENTS.

The feature of the week was the business for Memorial day, which on the whole was disappointing. While there was a good holiday demand of considerable volume, it lacked the snap and go of other seasons. There were no local peonies with the exception of a few officinalis; nothing grown north of Washington and only half of the crop counted. Some Virginia growers from the vicinity of Richmond sent some fair stock. Prices ran as high as $12. Ordinarily with no local peonies, the market sells clean of other stock, but things were different this year. White carnations were hard to move, the colored stock having the call. There was plenty of shrubbery, which worked up well with color of any kind. For some reason there seemed an unusual crop of carnations which arrived Monday p. m., dealers say. Much of this stock could have been moved had they known it was coming. As stock appeared normal and no local peonies in sight, carnation prices were held rather high, which was not encouraging to buyers. Wednesday morning carnations could be had by the thousand at buyers' figures. Late arrivals of peonies were also offered at great reductions from the day before. With all the other stock in the market, local peonies, when they do arrive, will not prove a very profitable crop this season. There were quantities of roses, the medium grades of which moved well, but the longer stemmed stock stood on the shelves. There were also quantities of Spanish iris for which little demand developed. Snapdragons, calendulas, gladioli and other stock of like character was plentiful. Sweet peas were in good form but in volume far more arrived than could be handled. Easter lilies about held their own, but there was plenty of outside lily of the valley and cattleyas were far in excess of the demand. Memorial day appears to be the holiday of the common people; those that buy medium priced flowers. Growers should bear this in mind. The extra demand from the central city stores was very light, business being but little more than an ordinary day.

CLUB MEETING.

The feature of the June meeting of the florists' club was a wonderfully entertaining and instructive lecture by C. M. Ripley of the General Electric Co., who discussed electricity as a motive power which is certain to succeed the coal-burning locomotive of today. The construction of the Neal-electro engine was shown in detail together with moving pictures of the electric power plants driven by water power on the Missouri river; also pictures of an electrically driven train.

Fearing that the sale of Horticultural hall might be a possibility, the house committee were asked to look into the matter of securing a new meeting place in case it became necessary.

NOTES.

Spring shows by local horticultural societies are now on the tapis. The eighth annual exhibition of the Lansdowne Flower Show Association is an-

Don't Wait

Now is the time to send us a shipment of flowers and acquaint yourself with the satisfactory treatment you receive when you ship to New York's Foremost Commission House in the flower trade.

Extensive experience, ample capital, modern facilities and, in fact, everything to commend us to you.

UNITED CUT FLOWER CO., Inc., 111 W. 28th St., New York City

Arthur Niessen, who has just returned from a trip through eastern Pennsylvania towns, found the bedding plant men despondent, much stock being still on hand. A number claim that they will go more into vegetables, as bedding plants do not pay.

The bedding plant men have been very greatly handicapped by the very cold weather during almost the entire month of May. The season is fully 10 days to two weeks late. It is to be hoped that the demand will come with the warm days in June.

The Robert Craig Co. is making the first delivery of the new Norwood fern. The stock is fine. Many orders are being received for August 1 delivery at which time their second installment will be ready.

The meeting and exhibition of the American Peony Society, scheduled to be held in this city June 7-8, has been postponed until June 11-12, at which time it is believed the blooms will be at their best.

Wm. Gibson, with Mills, the Florist, Jacksonville, Fla., was in the city the past week, called here to attend the funeral of his sister. He looks well and is much pleased with Jacksonville.

Eugene Bernheimer found a good volume of business for the holiday, but at lower prices. Very good Prima Donna roses and sweet peas were features here.

The Jos. Heacock Co. found a good market for Killarney, Ward and other medium grade roses. White Killarneys were scarce. Cattleyas moved slowly.

George Hart, retail florist of Chester, Pa., a veteran of the late Mexican border war, has applied for a commission and is now at Fort Niagara.

Edward Reid found the holiday trade very good and moved a large stock at fair prices. Very good roses and sweet peas were the feature here.

Wedding accessories are now headlines with H. Bayersdorfer & Co. Paul Berkowitz has just returned from a successful trip through the west.

At Jos. G. Neidinger's they are having a breathing spell after their great Memorial day demand. Made-up wax flower designs are leaders here.

Vancouver, B. C.

Creditors of Brown Bros. & Co., Ltd., met here May 14. Twenty-seven creditors were present, representing unsecured claims of approximately $25,000. The available assets consisted solely of mortgaged lands, which in the present condition of the market would realize little more than enough to satisfy the various incumbrances. In addition, the Royal Bank of Canada, acting as trustee for the bond holders, held a debenture mortgage for a balance of $17,000 (having been reduced from $25,000), which operated as a floating charge on all the company's assets, over and above the various mortgages. A general supervision over all the company's enterprises was being exercised by the Royal Bank of Canada under the powers of the debenture mortgage. The conclusion of the creditors was to give Brown Bros. & Co., Ltd., extension of one year, to date from August 1, 1917.

TRADE NOT UP TO EXPECTATIONS.

Considering that the past week included Memorial day, business was quiet. The florists who get the most of the Memorial day business say that it was not up to expectations. The continued cool, dark and rainy weather seems to have had a depressing effect. Many of the people who have made a practice of observing Memorial day are now advanced in years and doubtless the unfavorable weather kept them at home. For the remainder of the week business was quiet up to June 2, which was a fairly good day. One of the great disappointments of Memorial day business was the slump in sweet peas. It was hard to move specimens at 75 cents per 100. This was the more surprising, as it is usually the cheaper grades of stock that sell best for this anniversary. The supply of peonies was not large, but so far as we could observe they moved freely, but not at high prices and we will here state that while this war lasts high prices need not be expected on flowers; nevertheless let us have brave hearts and stay on the job. As previously stated the weather has been unusually cool, but it is a good feature for the wholesale florists. Under the present conditions of business, if the weather had been warm through May this market would have been glutted. It must, however, be acknowledged that the weather has been hard on the growers of both cut flowers and plants. June 2 and yet many men are wearing overcoats. I do not have to ask them for I know from experience that the rose growers must keep up heat. The season has been particularly hard on the growers of bedding plants. They have been compelled to burn a lot of coal to get their stock in flower, and even at that the stock has been hard to move, as the weather has been so unfavorable that very little bedding has been done. I have tried to make the foregoing a plain statement of conditions, but not a discouraging statement. The florist business has as good a right to live as any other business and regardless of what may happen, I believe it will live.

June 4.—The market is quiet; with warmer weather the supply of stock is on the increase, but the supply of peonies is not large, prices ranging from 50 cents to $1 per dozen, the last being for special stock. There is little change in prices on staple greenhouse stocks.

NOTES.

Guttman & Raynor, Inc., have leased adequate space in the well-equipped and commodious store of the United Cut Flower Company, 111 West 28th street, which arrangement took effect June 1. This move is a clear manifestation of the trend of the times toward practical economy and the attainment of maximum efficiency, while at the same time bringing the overhead expenses down to a minimum.

The Greek-American Florists' Association will hold its eleventh annual outing at Witzel's Point View Grove, July 11. This association is to be commended for not getting "cold feet." It has always given a good and orderly outing and we have no doubt that this year's will be up to the standard.

MEMORIAL DAY TRADE BEST EVER.

A big supply of stock and a correspondingly good business is reported for Memorial day by the local trade. It was without doubt the liveliest observance of the event ever known in this city. Carnations in red and white were disposed of by the thousand and cornflowers had a lively sale and were much seen in the red, white and blue designs. The shipping trade of this city, which has increased by leaps and bounds, was especially large this year and was one of the big factors in the wholesale trade.

NOTES.

S. Murata & Co. are well pleased with the Memorial day results. Both local and out-of-town trade was very satisfactory.

The Los Angeles Floral Co. reports a good shipping trade. A large flag artistically arranged of red and white carnations and blue cornflowers was recently sent out by this firm.

Tassano Bros. are enjoying an excellent trade in greens. This firm supplies most of the flower stores and stands in this city.

The Redondo Floral Co. state that business continues to increase and is now much better than a year ago.

Wolfskill Bros. & Morris Goldenson have been busy as usual in both cut flowers and floral arrangements.

Wright's Flower Shop has been enjoying a good trade and has several good weddings booked.

O. C. Saake had orders for many elaborate Memorial day pieces.

Howard & Smith report a big out-of-town Memorial day demand.

G. H. H.

Omaha.

Memorial day business was fully as good as last year, despite the fact that peonies were missing for the first time in 30 years. At this writing, they will not be in for another five days, which will mean quite a loss to the grower. Stock is good and plentiful in other lines and trade keeps up well with plenty of weddings. Lots of rain is keeping the planting back. GRIPPE.

NEWARK, N. J.—Local florists have a plan on foot to offer prizes for window boxes to the Irvington Improvement Association.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.
Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., President;
F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., First
Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fifth annual convention, Detroit, Mich.,
June 19, 1917.

RECENT cool weather has been favorable to California seed crops.

VISITED CHICAGO: Rufus Brown, of the Pioneer-Haines Seed Co., Denver, Colo.

GILROY, CALIF.—Carl Cropp, Jr., of Chicago, is now with the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co.

A. T. FERRELL, of A. T. Ferrell & Co., Saginaw, Mich., is in the Pacific Northwest on a business trip.

GERMANS are said to be using all the Holland tulip and crocus bulbs that can be obtained in the making of bread.

CHICAGO—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, June 6, were as follows: Timothy, $5.50 to $8.00 per 100 pounds.

THE Holland-America liner Ryndam is scheduled to sail for New York by way of Halifax June 6, carrying passengers, but no mail or cargo.

SOME onion set fields on low ground in the Chicago district had to be re-sown, growers taking a long chance because of continued cool weather.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The food survey bill appropriating $14,707,000 for furnishing seed to farmers to increase food production has passed the house.

COLUMBUS, O.—The Livingston Seed Co. is doing effective advertising with miniature houses and "planted" rear yards, showing cultivation of vegetables and shrubs.

SOME Japan dealers are claiming higher prices for giganteum for next season because certain fields planted with carried over seed bulbs suffered from the wet season.

ATCHISON, KAN.—The Mangelsdorf Bros. Co. has purchased land adjoining its present establishment and is planning extensive additions to its seed cleaning department.

QUITE a number of the California seed growers are planning to attend the annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association which opens at Detroit, Mich., June 19.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, Chicago, has leased the second floor of the building east of the retail store at 31-33 West Randolph street, for much needed extension of the flower seed department.

NEW YORK.—Wm. M. Hunt & Co., consisting of Wm. M. Hunt and Harry Goldberg, both well and favorably known to the trade, have entered the seed and bulb business at 15 Park Row.

DENVER, COLO.—Bean growers of this state, anticipating an acreage three times greater than in 1916, met here
May 29, for the purpose of forming the Colorado Bean Growers' Association, the object of which will be efficient and economical handling of the crop and its distribution.

Holland Steamer Arrives.

New York, May 30.—The first liner from Holland since January 23 has arrived at an Atlantic port with 223 first, 341 second, and 974 third-class passengers, via Halifax, where it was detained two days for examination.
There were 119 Americans among the passengers, of whom 72 were survivors of submarine sinkings in the North sea and the English channel.

Fish Starts Another Bean Business.

Henry Berrien Fish, for several years manager of the Henry Fish Seed Co., and who recently severed his connection with that firm, has established a seed business in Carpinteria, Calif.
Mr. Fish, according to the Santa Barbara Morning Press, of May 19, has an enviable reputation for square dealing and his many friends will be pleased to know that they will again be able to contract their crops of seed beans to him. Mr. Fish has associated with him experienced bean men and has now several contracts here and in the northern part of the county.

The Late Frank Clifford Woods.

Frank Clifford Woods, president of the Cumberland Seed Co., Inc., of Nashville, Tenn., died at his home in that city, May 22, after an illness of several months.

The deceased was born in Shelby county, Ky., was a farmer for a number of years, later a merchant, and for some time in the seed business in Louisville, Ky., and Nashville, Tenn.
He came to Nashville from the latter city and had been president of the Cumberland Seed Co. since 1908. Mr.
Woods is survived by a widow, two sons, Cecil E. and T. Clyde Woods, of Nashville; two daughters, four brothers and one sister. He was well-known and highly respected in the community and his funeral was largely attended.

Pea Acreage in Washington.

Contracts offered by a number of prominent seedsmen have enabled pea growers of Spokane county, Wash., to increase plantings about 30,000 acres as compared with 1916, the additional seed peas sown representing an investment of approximately $339,000. Among the firms interested are: C. C. Morse & Co., San Francisco, Calif., 129,920 lbs.; Everett B. Clark Seed Co., Milford, Conn., 128,152 lbs.; D. M. Ferry
& Co., Detroit, Mich., 216,000 lbs.;
Rogers Bros. Seed Co., Alpena, Mich.,

Sugar Beet Seed.

SMALL HOPE OF EUROPEAN SUPPLY.

The American beet sugar industry has hitherto received a large portion of its beet seed from Austria and Germany, and is now likely to suffer on that account. Last July American beet sugar interests succeeded in getting on to the Rotterdam wharves about 20,000 bags of seed. It then required six months' negotiations with the British government before permission was finally secured to bring the seed overseas.
In the meantime the ruthless submarine warfare had begun, and the Dutch government, being pressed for foodstuffs, agreed with the British and German governments that her ships should sail in ballast and return to Holland with cereals, being searched on the high seas by England, and receiving immunity from attack by Germany. The beet seed was therefore dumped back on the piers, and the vessels sailed in ballast.
All hope of securing seed from Germany and Austria for this year's planting is blasted, and the obtaining of seed from Russia is slow and uncertain.

Los Angeles Seed Trade.

A twenty-year lease on a six-story building at the Los Angeles Union terminal, Seventh street and Central avenue, has been taken by the Germain Seed and Plant Company. The building will be served by private spur tracks and be bounded on two sides by private streets. The company will employ 125 persons. The concern was established in 1871 by Eugene Germain and was known as the E. Germain Company and was located near the Plaza. The company later moved to the old Mott market and then to its present location on Main street.

John Bodger, of John Bodger & Sons Co., and wife have the sympathy of many friends in the trade in the loss of their only child, a boy two and one-half years old, who died last week

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

H. W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., President; H. F. Thompson, Arlington, Mass., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids, Mich., Treasurer.

Next annual convention will be held at Springfield, Mass., in 1917.

POTATOES were received at Chicago from Australia for the first time during the last week of May, some 30 cars being shipped to one dealer.

A. FREMONT, O., court ordered city authorities to open up an alley, but when it was found that a widow had it planted with potatoes, officials refused to act.

REPORTS to the United States department of agriculture, May 15, indicate that the Bermuda onion crop in the Texas district was 70 per cent of normal as compared with 65.1 per cent May 1.

PRELIMINARY estimate of the commercial acreage of watermelons in the principal southern producing states for 1917 is given by the United States department of agriculture as 109,600, an increase of 12 per cent over 1916.

NEW YORK.—Mayor Mitchel, in a proclamation, gives warning that the law of the state provides a heavy fine and imprisonment for stealing crops or entering a garden without permission, the object of the proclamation being to especially protect the amateur gardener.

Potato Failures and Their Cause.

In one case enormous claims for loss of potato crops were filed against a smelter. Upon investigation it was found that both the potatoes and the soil of the region were highly infected with two of the most disastrous of potato troubles, rhizactonia and fusarium. A subsequent search of the seed stores in the community failed to disclose a single healthy sample of seed. Naturally the potato crops were failures. The sad part of it was that there was no need of this loss. Healthy seed procured elsewhere and planted in soil where potatoes had not been grown for several years would have given the old-time record crops, and proper treatment of the local seed would have produced infinitely larger returns.

Early Potato Acreage.

Detailed estimates in 16 states indicate the condition of the early Irish potato crop as 86 per cent on May 1, with a yield of 119 bushels per acre, as compared with 109 bushels in 1916. The acreage planted is given as 281,700 for the present year with a production of 33,516,000 bushels forecasted. Reports from California show that about 75 per cent of the crop in the Los Angeles district has been harvested and shipments will be heavy for several weeks. The crop is turning out much better than was expected, considering unfavorable weather conditions. Alameda county potatoes are running larger in size than last year and the yield is correspondingly larger. The crop, however, is about one month late.

Vegetables Destroyed in California.

Los Angeles, Calif.—H. Kanzaki, a Japanese, director in the Signal Hill Cucumber Growers' Association, was arrested on a charge of having scattered poison where it could be eaten by the stock of A. and J. Kato, wealthy Japanese produce growers of Signal Hill, near Long Beach. Kanzaki was arrested after a long chase by Capt. Hunter of the district attorney's office. He was placed in the county jail while the county grand jury was examining witnesses in connection with the investigation of the destruction of $20,000 worth of vegetables and produce and stock on the Kato ranch during the last month. The grand jury has subpoenaed the officers of the Japanese association, also the books. The Katos allege they were threatened with disaster unless they agreed to enter the association and abide by its decisions. But they preferred to remain independent, particularly as they had peculiar soil and location that made it possible for them to get the earliest cucumbers.

Watermelon Disease Control.

In Farmers' Bulletin S21, recently issued by the United States department of agriculture, diseases of watermelons found in the southeastern states are primarily dealt with, although the information is applicable wherever such troubles occur. According to government specialists there is a need of readjustment of market conditions and co-operation of buyers and shippers in controlling anthracnose and stem rot. Of the several diseases attacking watermelons in the United States, the following are the most destructive: Wilt, root-knot anthracnose and stem-end rot (blossom-end rot and ground rot). The various methods of control of these diseases are covered at considerable length in this bulletin.

CHICAGO.—William A. Peterson, proprietor of the Peterson Nursery, with offices at 30 North La Salle street, says that one of his importations of French nursery stock valued at $1,400, including transportation charges, came through in unusually poor condition this season and that over two-thirds of it was a total loss. This firm has not cut any peonies so far this season, which will give one an idea of the lateness of the season in this vicinity. Mr. Peterson's son Harold is at Lucknow, India, where he has charge of the Y. M. C. A. service of the British army.

PHILADELPHIA CONVENTION.

A most interesting programme has been arranged for the forty-second annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, which will be held at Philadelphia, Pa., June 27-29, and all indications point to a representative gathering and good attendance.

The convention will be called to order at 9:30 a. m., Wednesday, June 27, by President Watson, who, following the welcoming of the delegates to the city and the response, will deliver his annual address, after which will come the reports of the secretary and the treasurer as well as those of the committees on hail insurance, nomenclature, standardization, landscape, publicity, telegraph code and transportation. The Hon. Champ Clark, of Washington, D. C., will also address the association at this session. At the afternoon meeting, commencing at 2:30 o'clock, the reports of Counsel Curtis Nye Smith and the committees on legislation, arbitration, distribution and tariff will be held and discussed, followed by Henry B. Chase, Chase, Ala., who will speak on "Two Years Under the New Constitution," with a discussion led by Irving Rouse, Rochester, N. Y. Other interesting topics on the programme for this session are: "The Paramount Question: How to Make the Nursery Business Feed and Clothe Us and Pay Our Debts," John Dayton, Painesville, O.; "Standardization, Cooperation and Organization," J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex. A dinner for members and their ladies will be arranged for 8 p. m.

The Thursday morning session will be devoted to addresses by J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa., on "Nurserymen's Publicity," and Irving Paschall, Philadelphia, and Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa., who will speak on "Sales Promotion" and "Advertising." For the afternoon session the programme is as follows: "Prices Wholesale and Retail," by F. H. Stannard, Ottawa, Kan., and W. W. Hoopes, West Chester, Pa.; "Relations of the Wholesaler and Retailer," M. R. Cashman, Owatonna, Minn.; "Prohibition of Importation of Nursery Stock," E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; "Modern Business Efficiency and Practice," Wm. P. Stark, Neosho, Mo.; "The Future in Ornamentals," John S. Kerr, Sherman, Tex. In the evening there will be meetings of the American Nurserymen's Protective Association and the American Retail Nurserymen's Protective Association.

The Friday morning session will be opened by Hon. David F. Houston, secretary of agriculture, who will deliver an address at 9:30, followed by J. E. Baker, Fort Worth, Tex., whose topic will be "When Are Evergreens (if Ever) Dormant?" Milton Moss, Huntsville, Ala., will also speak on "Maintenance of Soil Fertility." At the afternoon session the next meeting place will be selected and officers for the ensuing year elected.

Syringa Jullianae.

The Chinese lilac has flowered in the arboretum every year since 1909, but never so abundantly as this year. In the shape of the leaves and in the long slender corolla-tube it has something in common with S. pubescens. This, however, is a native of the northern part of the empire; it blooms fully three weeks earlier here, and the flower-buds are rose color, not purple. The flowers, too, of S. Jullianae are without the strong perfume of S. pubescens which, especially in the evening, is stronger than that of the flowers of any other lilac. S. Jullianae is one of the most distinct of the numerous lilacs discovered by Wilson in western China and promises to be a useful garden plant here, if for no other reason, on account of the lateness of the flowers. It can be seen with all the other Chinese lilacs discovered by Wilson nearly opposite the plant of S. yunnanensis on the path at the top of the lilac bank.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, June 15, 1916.

TRADE CONDITIONS SATISFACTORY.

Business conditions are about as good as can be looked for at this season, with stock of all kinds plentiful, with carnations and peonies offered at buyers' prices. Outdoor flowers such as sweet williams, phloxes, ramblers, etc., are glutting the market, although outdoor sweet peas, generally plentiful at this time, are very scarce. Lily of the valley is practically a luxury.

Many employes of the local florists have joined the colors, and it is expected that by August 1 there will be many more positions to fill in this city.

G. C. D.

MENLO PARK, CALIF.—It was moved and carried by a unanimous vote that the entire proceeds from the spring flower show, to be held at Redwood City, June 9-10, be given to the American Red Cross.

BUSINESS ECONOMY

Conserve the National Resources.
Eliminate Waste in Your Business.

It Will Help You and Others.

One of the biggest items of expense in the greenhouse business is the heating question. Why then for fancy's sake or otherwise do you sit silently by and watch the unnecessary losses of fuel go on day by day?

It is your money that is lost—the waste harms everyone. Stop! Stop!! Stop!!!

Many practical growers have solved this vital question.

You can do so, too.

The remedy is simple.

READ WHAT OUR CUSTOMERS SAY

A Record For the Winter of 1916-1917.

Mr. Wendel is surely pleased with his No. 14 Kroeschell Boiler—it is a PEACH, that is all there is to it. We surely had some winter, which we all know.

Our houses have never been below 52°, and it was not necessary to force our boiler. Best of all, we saved two carloads of coal over a year ago. (Signed)

CROWN POINT FLORAL CO., Crown Point, Ind.
Hans Jepsen, Grower.

Kroeschell Uses Only One-Half the Coal.

Have taken out return tubular boiler which used one-half more coal than the Kroeschell Boiler—it is so easy to regulate that in a few minutes I can run up the temperature by opening drafts. (Signed)

FRANK A. WAGNER, Tiffin, Ohio.

Kroeschell Does the Work of Two Boilers—Saves Fuel

FAIR SUPPLY MOVES EVENLY.

There was a shortage of cut flowers for Memorial day although the supply of pot plants was equal to all demands. The cloudy days of the previous week helped to curtail greenhouse products, carnations especially being very short and good stock went as high as $10 per 100. The call for geraniums was heavy and the same was true of magnolia wreaths. These practically cleaned up in both plain and decorated. There is not an overabundance of stock on the market at present and still it cannot be said that a scarcity exists. Taken as a whole it is of good quality and the supply and demand about balance. Gladioli are beginning to come in and there is practically enough to fill all requirements.

Macnair did a landoffice business in roses and carnations, filling orders for these flowers long after the local supply was exhausted.

Walter Lowe, of Pawtuxet, has moved to a new location at 2202 Broad street.

H. A. T.

Worcester, Mass.

Florists report an increase of Memorial day business varying from 10 to 25 per cent over last year in spite of unfavorable weather, war time economy and a season fully three weeks late. For the first time in years outdoor flowers such as lilacs were not available. This caused many who formerly used homemade bouquets to rely on florists. The supply was equal to the demand and there was no special call for anything but bouquets.

Adrian Van Leenwen, prominent Worcester horticulturist, and head of the Horticultural Company, has been appointed by the mayor as a member of the newly created park and recreation board.

Herman F. A. Lange, who is associated with his father, A. H. Lange, at H. F. A. Lange's, has heeded his country's call and enlisted in the navy.

PORTLAND, ORE.—S. W. Walker, local florist, has been appointed government marine inspector, eminently qualified by 15 years' experience in shipbuilding.

The feature of the May meeting of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society was the lecture of Philip Wessels of the state college experiment station, "How to Fertilize the Home Garden."

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Pot Grown Roses.

The hybrid perpetual or rambler roses after blooming if desired to force another year, in order to bloom them early should be grown in pots during the summer. They can be pruned back after blooming and lifted, or if in pots should be repotted. This will require a good, strong soil, composed of two-thirds loam and one-third manure. When potting be sure to give good drainage and pot firmly, ramming the soil down hard. It is impossible to grow roses successfully in a loose soil. The plants should be plunged to rim of the pot outside where they can be freely watered. Avoid, if possible, placing them against the greenhouse or other building or against a fence, but plant them where they will have a free circulation of air and can be sprayed from either side. If planted against a building or in close quarters, they frequently become infected with red spider during the hot weather and it is nearly impossible to get rid of them.

Asparagus Plumosus and Sprengeri.

It is a good time now to plant, reset or renew the soil of asparagus beds, either plumosus or Sprengeri. If the beds are to be set out with young stock preparation should be started at once. Asparagus plumosus does better in solid beds, well drained, with a good rich compost about two feet deep. The plants should be set 12 to 15 inches apart and the shoots be given strings upon which to climb as soon as they begin to grow. But little cutting should be done the first year as it is necessary that the plants become well established. The old beds should be given a good mulch of half-decayed manure, and if possible, without injury to the roots, removing the top soil. Asparagus Sprengeri can be successfully grown in the bench, but also requires a good rich soil. The young stock the first year should be planted 10 to 12 inches apart, and will produce many stems that can be cut. The beds that have produced this year will require a renewal of the soil. It is better to replant than to try to renew the soil in the bench. The plants are great feeders and the bench is generally full of roots after a year's growth and it will be found difficult to keep the bench watered during the spring of the second year. If the plants are too close together they can be given more space in resetting. Good large plants will do better if set about 15 inches apart. If a mulch is attempted, care should be taken to use no fresh manure, but manure that is well rotted. The ammonia that arises from fresh manure will affect the plants, turning the foliage light, and in severe cases the foliage will become nearly white, making it worthless.

Mignonette.

To be able to cut fine spikes of mignonette in early winter will require an early start, and although it demands care and attention to germinate small seeds during hot weather, yet it will be necessary to sow seed early in July in order to have a cut in by the holiday season. A north propagating house is one of the best locations for the sowing of seeds in summer. Mignonette does not transplant from the seed flats successfully, so it is better to sow it in 2½-inch pots, five or six seeds to a pot, which can be thinned out to one or two plants as soon as they are large enough to select the strongest. Some growers prefer to sow the seed in hills in the bench, but to grow the large spikes of this flower requires a soil very heavily manured, and the constant watering often sours the soil before the plants have pushed out roots enough to absorb the water. As soon as the plants have attained a height of two or more inches the tip should be pinched or rubbed out in order that the plant will branch, and again later these branches will have to be pinched off, until there are six or eight good, strong shoots. The plants will grow in most any kind of good soil, but to get the best the compost should be about one-half partly decayed manure well mixed in the soil and this will produce splendid spikes of bloom. After the plants begin to form their leaves a careful watch must be kept for the cabbage worm; these worms are very fond of mignonette and are voracious eaters, and soon denude the plant. They are a little difficult to find, being of the same color as the leaf, but are generally found along the midrib of the leaf or on the stem. Growers who cultivate large quantities of this crop screen their ventilation with mosquito netting to keep out the moth which lays the eggs. The plants should be set about one foot apart in the bench and staked or tied in some suitable manner to keep the stems straight and erect.

Cyclamen.

The plants of cyclamen should now be growing rapidly, especially those which were grown from seed sown last fall. These plants should now be in four or five-inch pots and the foliage growing full and strong. If the plants are plunged in a frame, they should be lifted out of the soil occasionally to see that the drainage is not stopped up. There is nothing that will ruin a young growing cyclamen any quicker than to have the drainage get closed and have the soil become sodden with water. Angle worms will often cause this and if they are detected should be removed. It is very easy to find whether they are in the pots. If the soil on the top of the pot is rolled into small lumps it is a sure sign that there are worms in the soil. If there are but a few the plants can be knocked out of the pots and the worms removed; if there are many a watering of lime water will soon rid the soil of the worms. The plants that are in small pots should be potted up as fast as they require it that they may be as large as possible for the holiday season, but do not go to the other extreme and pot in too large pots. As soon as the roots get around the side of the pot shift them into the next size larger. If the plants are in the greenhouse a close watch for thrips must be kept during the summer. If the foliage is twisted when the leaf begins to unfold it is sure to be caused by insects and the plants should be sprayed with a nicotine solution. To have good plants for the holidays in full bloom they must be constantly watched and well grown.

Telegraph Delivery Billboard Advertising.

Detroit members of the Florist Telegraph Delivery have added outdoor painted bulletins to their general advertising plan. A number of large, forceful billboards on the main thoroughfares are creating considerable favorable attention. Each member is assessed a proportionate sum, paid monthly to the advertising concern, and the list of members is so arranged that each member heads the list on at least one bulletin.

To Albert Pochelon, secretary of the Florist Telegraph Delivery, is due much credit for untiring and unselfish work for the betterment of general florist business. He is very enthusiastic over the undeveloped possibilities of the florist telegraph business, and looks forward to the time when association members of other cities will adopt like methods to promote a greater interchange of business.

The bulletin shown in the illustration is 12 feet high and 50 feet long. The design is the product of the studios of Walker & Co.

Courtesy.

One of the greatest assets of a business is courteous treatment of its customers. There are natures that for some unexplainable reason are antagonistic to each other. A salesman will at times be heard to say, "I cannot wait on that woman. I have tried it several times. Nothing I do or say seems to please her. The flowers are not 'fresh' or the stems or color do not suit. I do not know what's the matter."

Some men are abrupt in their manner; they are quick to make decisions and expect the same in others. In dealing with their kind all goes well, but with persons who are uncertain as to what they want, they show their impatience; some get ruffled and lose all interest in the transaction. To be sure, some customers are very trying; they put the salesman to considerable trouble and then tell him they were just looking and will call again. A buoyant spirit has much to do with successful salesmanship. Enthusiasm is the great mainspring of business. When a man's spirits are high and he knows his stock is good, sales are almost a certainty. The customer may be vacillating; this or that does not suit her fancy. Then other things are called to her attention, finally her mind is made up and the sale is completed.

Salesmen should make a study of their various customers. Some are nearly always in a hurry and like to be approached immediately. They give their order once and are annoyed at long explanations. Others like to look about before they make up their minds. They must not be neglected, however; the salesman, even if busy, must manage to keep in touch with them.

Embarrassing situations come when the "hurry up gentleman" happens in when one is in the midst of a sale with another customer. He fidgets about, starts toward the door as if going out, and if a move is made in his direction, he tries to monopolize your attention. It takes tact and experience to hold and satisfy both.

Long experience has taught men who have been through year in and year out of storekeeping, that courtesy pays, and no matter how unreasonable requests are, or what trouble one is put to, to please customers, all their demands must receive courteous attention without shade of annoyance. It is far better to immediately take up a complaint, ascertain the customer's wishes, and arrange it to their satisfaction. This may even mean duplicating the order, but to try to put the blame where you feel sure it belongs, antagonizes and often loses the customer.

Courtesy in conversation over the telephone, with which agency at least one third of the business is now obtained, is most essential. Men often speak in a manner over the wire that they would not think of using to the same person face to face in the store. A customer who calls up to complain about a delayed order has a right to be aggrieved, but must never be answered in kind. The most courteous explanation of the delay and assurance that delivery would be made at once, together with an apology, should be the answer.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Chrysanthemum Midge or Gall Fly.

We have recently received sample plants of chrysanthemums badly infested with midge or gall fly, and have been asked for information and a remedy. This leads us to believe that there are many chrysanthemum growers who are troubled with this insect, and are not familiar with its nature, which leads us to submit this article, hoping that it may be of benefit to some.

In entomology, this little insect is known as Phopalomyia hypogaea, is of European origin, and until two years ago was unknown in this country. Doubtless it has come upon us by importation of stock. In the adult stage it is a minute fly, not as large as the winged form of aphid, and in this state deposits its eggs, which in a few days begin development and show slight swellings or galls. By opening these galls, we find a yellow colored maggot which, in the course of time, develops to the fly, and so the multiplication is continued. They deposit eggs in all parts of the plants when the growth is young and tender; upon the leaf and leaf stems, the stem of the plant, the buds, and even on subterranean shoots or root stalks, provided, of course, these are exposed to the air. Their molestations are confined to the chrysanthemum family, including both the section in which florists are most interested as well as the garden kinds. In aggravating cases they become very numerous. Stems and foliage are literally covered with these little galls, which seem to affect their development. They become stunted and distorted, and if allowed to go unchecked, the plants will not produce cuttings suitable for propagation. There seems to be but two ways to destroy them; one by careful hand-picking and burning the leaves and stems to destroy those in the larvae state, and the use of hydrocyanic acid gas to dispose of the adults, which, as previously stated, deposit the eggs. From the most competent entomologists we learn that the life cycle of this insect, as near as can be determined, is about 21 days—that is, from the time the egg is deposited until the adult dies. From this will be seen that cyaniding should be continued for approximately 30 days, or sufficiently long to permit all the eggs to be hatched. There is one point that is worthy of consideration, and that is the possibility that under certain conditions the galls do not reach the fly stage within so short a period as 21 days, especially so if the houses are kept very cold. They seem to show greater activity during the early spring from March to May, and from the middle of August to October. Our observations lead us to believe that they do not lay many eggs during the hottest and coldest parts of the year. When the operation of cyaniding is begun it is important it should be repeated every second or third night for the period stated above—say 30 days, so there is no possibility of any eggs being laid. It is unnecessary to use a very strong cyanic gas. One ounce to 6,000 or 8,000 cubic feet of space is sufficient. Those who have not used this gas should remember that the plants must be as dry as possible, and the less humidity in the air the less liability of burning the foliage.

Benching Plants for Cut Blooms.

It is best for all of these plants to be in their permanent quarters by June 15-20, and as quickly as the benches can be made ready, the planting should be followed up as closely as possible. The young plants now being held in small pots quickly commence to lose vigor if held too long in the pots at this season of the year and any extra effort put forth to hasten along the planting is well repaid by a stronger growth. Plants allowed to become hard and rootbound take a long time to recover and get into active growth again and never produce as good blooms as the plants that have been well taken care of and planted on time.

Before commencing the planting, the plants should receive attention as they need it by pinching out the side shoots, allowing the single or double growth to remain according to the method of growing to be followed; some growers run their plants entirely to single stem, while others prefer the two stems to a plant method, but whichever is the plan adopted, the side growths must be kept pinched out. The same course should be followed out with the plants already benched. All chrysanthemums naturally branch out and become bushy very quickly at this stage of their growth, and if they do not receive attention, a good deal of strength is sapped from the main stem. Another important matter is not to allow the plants to stand overcrowded together, to become weak and spindly. Should it become necessary for any reason to hold them in the pots for a while longer, it is better for them to be spaced out a little than allowed to remain crowded together and get weakened.

The emptying and filling of the benches is a necessary job, and a thorough cleaning up of all parts of the house should be considered in the same light, but it is far better to make a good job of it while the house is empty than to leave a part left undone to be finished after the benches are filled, and it is poor policy to leave a lot of rubbish laying around to be nests for all kinds of insects. Also, do not consider the houses ready for bringing in the soil until all the needed repairing of the benches is attended to. After all this work is done, give the inside of the benches a good coat of lime wash.

tion varieties which appeared in THE AMERICAN FLORIST, issue of May 5, page 845, but it applies equally as much in planting now as it did when planting May 15, and, I trust, will be as equally useful to the grower doing his planting at this time, particularly the new beginner.

When figuring on the planting, aim to care for the earlier propagated stock first, so as to get them under control. The later and younger plants can be held a little longer without suffering. The older and larger plants need also to keeping the side shoots picked out to encourage a straight stem growth. They will also need supports. This work should receive attention as quickly as the plants attain size enough to require it; also, attend to keeping the beds free of weeds and the surface open by frequent scratching with a hand scratcher.

C. W. JOHNSON.

Arlington Rose Test Garden.

The members of the American Rose Society saw a great improvement in the Arlington rose garden at Washington, D. C., over previous years, particularly in the rambler class, hundreds of which have become established and were profusely covered with buds and blossoms. The rugosas and briars were rampant in their growth and full of flowers, as were also the polyantha types. The hybrid teas had not done so well, the severe winter seemingly having been too much for them. Nowhere else in this country can such a collection of varieties be seen. A pilgrimage to this lovely spot for the annual inspection and meeting of the American Rose Society at each spring's opening is well worth while. Prof. F. L. Mulford, who planned the garden, has each class together, all correctly and conspicuously labeled. A list containing the name of every variety is furnished visitors, who in a few minutes can look up any desired kind.

Packing Cut Flowers.

Growers whose flowers get to market in good, salable condition, rate highest in the returns. Even in these days of general knowledge of how to pack and ship cut flowers, there are many lamentable failures generally caused by careless cutting and packing and shipping at inopportune times so that the flowers arrive when the market is over for the day. The stock has to be handled, potted up and is pretty sure to find a place amongst the job lot offers. Such fragile flowers as sweet peas should always be packed between layers of wax paper. They should be picked as early in the day they are to be marketed as possible. An hour in water before packing to stiffen the

The next consideration is the soil. Chrysanthemums require just as good soil as roses or any other crop to produce the best quality of blooms, and equal care and thought should be put into its preparation. Fresh porous loam, sod soil that has been previously stacked and is now well rotted, and well rotted manure are essential foundations for a good chrysanthemum compost. Mix these materials in proportion of one part of manure to three parts of soil. Be sure the manure is well rotted because fresh manure has a tendency to cause the plants to make a soft, long-jointed growth, more liable to the attack of fungus and disease. Spread a thin layer of well rotted manure over the bottom of the bench; this prevents the soil from falling through the cracks and is beneficial for the roots to work in after the plants have become established. Fill in the soil level with the top of the bench, breaking up any of the large lumps so that the bed is all of the same fine condition for planting. The question of using bonemeal, lime or limestone in the soil is a matter that must be governed according to kind of soil each grower has at his command. We have had good results by dressing our beds with bonemeal and fine limestone. After the benches are filled with soil, a thin dressing of bonemeal and limestone is spread over the surface and well worked into the soil with a fork. The bed is then leveled off, made firm, and is then ready for planting.

A good deal of the advice given in these notes is similar to that given in my article on planting the early propagated and late and exhibition varieties which appeared in THE AMERICAN FLORIST, issue of May 5, page 845, but it applies equally as much in planting now as it did when planting May 15, and, I trust, will be as equally useful to the grower doing his planting at this time, particularly the new beginner.

When figuring on the planting, aim to care for the earlier propagated stock first, so as to get them under control. The later and younger plants can be held a little longer without suffering. The older and larger plants need also to stems and fill the flowers is good practice. Many growers bunch their roses in twenty-fives and wrap each separately in paper and find they carry better and are not mussed up in selecting and counting as when sent loose.

Some growers do not take the trouble to remove the pollen from Easter lilies and a very smeary shipment is the result. Lilies should, as far as possible, be packed in full bud. They then carry much better, particularly when re-shipped, it being very difficult to guarantee a satisfactory delivery of wide-open flowers.

The packing and marketing of stock is just as important as growing it to perfection. A visit to the city now and then to see how it arrives and how one's methods compare with other growers, is well worth while.

Sterilizations of Soils.

Peter Bisset, in charge of foreign plant introductions, department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., finds that in the sterilization of soils, live steam is too severe as it kills the useful bacteria as well as the undesirable, rendering it unfit for plant culture, especially for experimental purposes. A device has been used for sterilizing purposes and found efficacious. This consists of a rounded rack of steam pipes, which is revolved through a mass of soil. By this method, the burning effects of the live steam on the soil and useful bacteria or plants is avoided, while the heat is sufficient to kill off what are styled the sinners, or objectionable matter such as weed seeds, fungus, etc.

COAL.

Coal Contracts.

The price of coal has come to be second only to the price of flowers in importance to florists. During the past winter some ranges have been compelled to close owing to difficulties in securing fuel, and controversies over coal contracts have in many cases become acute. During the present season, while contracts for next season's supply are being signed, florists should have in mind some legal points which are likely to become of importance in the present world situation.

It is the general rule that difficulty or impossibility of performance, such as shortage of supply arising out of war conditions, will not excuse non-delivery. The coal dealer may be regarded as an insurer, and if he cannot obtain the commodity, or if delivery is prevented by deficiencies in transportation, he must pay the damages. Since 1914, however, unqualified contracts have been exceptional; most coal dealers have incorporated in their contracts clauses excusing performance in case of failure of supply, car shortage, or other contingencies beyond their control. Consequently the construction of such qualified contracts is now of practical importance to greenhouse men. In this connection the recent New York case of Ducas Co. vs Bayer Co. 163 N. Y. S. 32, is of interest.

In the case cited, the buyer sued the seller for breach of a contract to deliver goods. The seller had agreed to furnish a stated quantity of goods to be furnished in a year. It was "not to be held accountable for delays caused by strikes or for any contingencies beyond their control." The European war cut off the only source of supply. The seller had enough goods to carry out its contract with the buyer, but instead of applying the goods to the buyer's contract it apportioned the supply among its regular customers according to their usual monthly requirements, regardless of whether the customers had or did not have contracts.

The decision, after stating that an interruption of commerce by a foreign war would not constitute a defence to an action on an unqualified American contract, takes up the question whether the clause with reference to "contingencies beyond their control" gives a defence. The court continues, "The contingency . . . which actually caused the non-performance of the contract was not simply the seller's inability to secure adequate supplies of goods, but its own act in distributing the supplies in the manner it did. . . . This method of distribution was not required by law, and was within the defendant's (seller's) control.

"Where a regular dealer in an article of ordinary commerce (this clearly covers our coal dealers) makes such a contract, the parties may well contemplate that he is making other similar contracts, and each particular contract will be construed with a view to this knowledge. In such a case the court may properly hold that the parties intended that, where a contingency arises beyond the seller's control which limits the supply below the amount called for by all the contracts, there should be an apportionment of this supply. On the other hand, where the circumstances are such that the buyer could not reasonably be held to have contemplated that the seller was making other contracts of a similar kind, then the courts might reasonably hold that the only contingency contemplated by the parties as an excuse for non-performance was a contingency that rendered impossible the performance of that particular contract standing alone, and might construe the rights of the parties accordingly. . . . In each case . . . the question . . . is, What did the parties contemplate in the particular contract under construction? . . .

"In this case no custom or other fact had been shown which could possibly lead the court to believe that when the parties made this contract they intended that the defendant's (seller's) express obligation should be limited by any views he might thereafter have of moral obligations to other customers. . . . In view of the fact that the defendant, . . . when the plaintiff had a right to demand performance of the contract in suit, continued to distribute its supplies to non-contract customers . . . and in view of the fact that there are no circumstances in this case which show that the parties contemplated that in case of a contingency arising which would limit the amount of goods arriving below the usual requirements of the defendant's business, the defendant should have the right to provide for the urgent needs of its regular customers, I am constrained to hold that the defendant has failed to show that the non-performance of its contract was caused by any contingency for which it was not responsible."

Under the rule of this case, coal dealers are not at liberty to apportion the available supply among all their customers at the expense of the contract customers unless exceptional facts are involved showing that such was the actual intention of the parties. They must not serve the customers who come to them during the winter unless they can do so out of the surplus that they will have after carrying out their contracts. B.

Coal Prices Watched.

The Federal Trade Commission authorizes the following statement:

In its efforts to insure that the consumer gets anthracite coal at moderate prices, the commission is requiring operators to report weekly all orders accepted, together with the prices for same. The producers of a very great proportion of the tonnage are selling their output at moderate prices, so that the high premiums charged by a number of operators during recent weeks are beginning to disappear from the market.

As a basis for publicity, within the powers of the commission, costs of production are being obtained from any operators who continue to maintain unjustifiably high prices. The commission is also getting monthly production statistics by sizes from all the anthracite mining companies, and anthracite jobbers are required to furnish the commission a weekly report, giving complete purchase and sales data and gross profits on each transaction. With this information the commission can trace all jobbed anthracite from the mines to the retail yard.

Agents are in the field keeping in close touch with the prices charged by retailers in various parts of the country, so that distribution and prices are being traced all the way from the mine to the consumer.—Official Bulletin, Washington, June 6, 1917.

Coal Situation at Chicago.

As far as the buying of domestic prepared sizes in the Chicago market was concerned, heavy demands caused little variation in prices compared with those of the preceding two weeks, although there was a slight decrease on screenings and mine run, for which the demand is fairly strong, but large orders from industrial plants are not as numerous. Nematode Disease Control.

Growers in the northeast, particularly in the New England states, are experiencing considerable losses as a result of a little known disease. The malady is due to nematodes, or eel-worms, one or more species of Aphelenchus, which have been found in this country infecting violets, strawberries, a number of varieties of begonia, and many species of ferns. The trouble affects the leaves, causing them to become discolored—usually brown—in definite areas, which may increase so as to include the entire leaf. It may also produce on strawberries and violets a slight swelling and distortion of the buds, crowns and leaves.

The cause of the disease, thread-like nematodes, from 1/30 to 1/50 of an inch in length, can be seen with slight magnification when a small piece of infected leaf or tissue is teased apart in a few drops of water on glass. Active larvae and adults can easily emerge from leaves through these natural openings, stomata, and may be carried to other plants, which they subsequently infect.

The following measures suggested by specialists of the bureau of plant industry, United States department of agriculture, as methods of control have proven helpful in preventing and in reducing losses from the disease:

1. Separate the diseased from the healthy plants; then remove from the former and burn all infected parts.
2. Allow as much ventilation and aeration as possible, and avoid wetting the foliage, as the nematode is readily spread by water.
3. Propagate by seeds or by the use of parts or all of healthy plants, using soil that has been sterilized by the use of steam or by other means.
4. Avoid all stock from infected nurseries and regions, and use disease-resistant plants whenever possible.
5. Partial success in destroying the nematodes by submerging ferns in water at a temperature of 50° C. (122° F°) for five minutes has been reported.

Pennock Golden Wedding.

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Pennock was celebrated at their home in Lansdowne, Pa., June 5. The gathering, which was confined to the family, numbered 35 persons. That the taste for flowers continues from one generation to another is shown from the occupation of the sons. Casper and George have a large rose growing establishment in Lansdowne; Herbert and Henry each have large acreages of Asparagus plumosus in Florida, which is grown for the northern market; Samuel S. is in the wholesale cut flower business in Philadelphia, while J. Lidden is one of the firm of Pennock Brothers, which business was established by his father in 1866. Another son, Aldrich J., now deceased, was a noted grower of lily of the valley, while Charles E., another son, founded the wholesale business now conducted by Samuel S. A. L. Pennock has the distinction of being the pioneer in the retarding of lily of the valley by cold storage. This was away back in the early seventies. He built in the center of an ice house a good-sized storage room, in which he stored the boxes of lily of the valley pips. It was a success from the start. The flowers for the first few years were a great novelty, bringing high prices. He is now in his ninetieth year, is clear minded and active, taking an interest in current events. He spends his winters in Florida, where the past winter he practically with his own hand, erected a summer house for the ornamentation of his lawn. The accompanying illustration is from a photograph taken at his home in Lansdowne, June 7.

Burpee's Sweet Peas.

The accompanying illustration is an interesting view of Burpee's early flowering sweet peas growing at the extensive Floradale farm of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., in Santa Barbara county, Calif. Geo. W. Kerr, a representative of this firm, who has just returned to the company's headquarters in Philadelphia, Pa., reports all Floradale crops are looking well with prospects of a good harvest. The varieties represented in the illustration include the following in the order named: Fordhook Sankey, black seeded white; Rosy Morn, carmine; Early King, a bright crimson scarlet, fully equal to the late-flowering King Edward Spencer; Early Beauty, the same color as Countess Spencer; Early Enchantress, light pink; Early Elfrida Pearson; Early Loveliness, white suffused with pink; Primrose Beauty, in color an improvement over Queen Victoria Spencer; Snow Storm, which produces blooms equally as large as the now-famous King White, and in trials thus far has proved to be the best white of all the early-flowering sweet peas; Lavender King, a rich lavender.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—Miss Recardie Lee Murray is again operating the flower stand in the Clift hotel in addition to her store on Geary street.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, PA.—Chas. Vorkeller has been enjoying a very good business during the season. He is replacing all his wooden benches with concrete.

WACO, TEX.—Wolfe, the Florist, has just closed a most prosperous season with all indications pointing to a good trade in the fall. Hail fell recently within four miles of his establishment, but local florists have suffered no damage this season.

MEMORIAL DAY TRADE TREMENDOUS.

As was expected, the florists of this city enjoyed a tremendous Memorial day business. The trade anticipated a large volume of business and prepared accordingly. There was quite a sharp advance in many items, but everything salable cleaned in fine shape. Carnations moved up to $4 per 100; the demand for whites exceeded the supply, but all other colors sold well. A great many more could have been used had they been available. The call for roses was equally heavy, and everything sold out clean. The short and cheaper grades sold in very large quantities. There was a heavy cut of outdoor stock to be disposed of, and this also sold well. Owing to the backward season, the cut of gladiolus was not near as heavy as in former years. Usually great quantities of Peach Blossom, The Bride and Blushing Bride are in for this day, but with a large number of the growers this was not the case this season. They were missed, as they figure largely in the shipping trade. Quite a lot of peonies were sold, and at very good prices. Snapdragons sold very well, as did sweet williams and delphiniums; in fact, all perennials that were in flower were in demand. Vast quantities of sweet peas found a market. Spencers, principally, now fill the cut of most growers. There were plenty of lilies to be had, and nearly all stock was used up. Growers who ship most of their stock out of this city report a very heavy demand for all varieties of flowers for Memorial day. Cattleyas are in ample supply just now, with the demand steady and prices firm. There is always a little lily of the valley to be had. The cut of outdoor flowering plants, such as hawthornes, acacias, etc., is over for the season, but the supply is equal to all demands. Good nephrolepis are in demand at this time of the year, and are none too plentiful this season.

NOTES.

Mr. Holmes, superintendent of the E. W. McLellan range at Burlingame, is a great admirer of the winter-blooming sweet pea, Yarrowa. After a thorough test with other sorts grown last winter, he has pinned his faith to this variety. The immense range over which Mr. Holmes holds sway is always in splendid shape and decidedly interesting. He is going to increase his plantings of Baby Doll and Tipperary very considerably. He is sure these roses have come to stay. All his young grafted Russell stock is in fine shape. This establishment is the home of this rose on this coast, and at no place does it succeed better or is it more largely grown. Hadley is a great rose as grown here, and the plantings of this, too, will be increased. The latest addition to this place consists of two splendid rose houses, each 48-x300 feet. Their gardenias are remarkably well grown and perfectly free of insect pests, due to constant vigilance. The genial manager of this vast concern, although a very busy man, is never too busy to greet any one in the trade and show the many interesting sights and explain his successful methods of handling the different varieties grown here. It requires two touring cars and three motor trucks to serve this establishment.

The chief topic among the trade just now is the coming sweet pea show of the Menlo Park Horticultural Society this week. This show, owing to the energetic exhibition committee, has been given a great deal of publicity in the papers of this city. The list of entries so far is far ahead of previous shows. We have been informed that the aphid is beginning to appear again this season among the seed growers, and if this is the case the exhibits from the various seedsmen may not be as extensive as at first planned. The management of the show has been placed in the capable hands of Percy Ellings.

A feature which was doubtless of much help in swelling the Memorial day sales was the publicity of the local trade, the advertising being in the form of newspaper space three columns wide by eight inches deep, the names of florists in various sections of the city, with their addresses, being classified under the names of their respective districts, of which there were six, including downtown, Polk street, Haight street, Mission, western addition and Oakland. In all 19 shops were represented.

A visit to John Carbone, of Berkeley, found our leading orchid grower very busy, but very well pleased with the way his range has produced this season. This place is the chief source of the orchid supply for this city and Oakland. All his stock was, as usual, in the very best possible condition. His collection of new hybrid Brassocattleyas is one of the finest in this country.

William McMillan Brown, of Beresford, for a number of years superintendent of the range of the MacRorie-McLaren Co. at that place, has been appointed to a similar position with the Hillsborough Nurseries, in Hillsborough, which are under the management of Henry Maier.

Henry Goertzhain, of Redwood City, was in with a fine house of Lilium giganteum for Memorial day. Henry is well pleased with his new store, and has already made many improvements in it.

BUSINESS ABOVE COMPLAINT.

Business has been rather quiet following Memorial day, but there is no complaint to make considering the season. Prices are about normal—a trifle better if anything. Asters are now showing up and gladioli are becoming quite plentiful. Sweet peas are abundant and continue of good quality. Carnations are plentiful and, of course, cheap.

NOTES.

Wolfskill Bros. & Morris Goldenson report average business with good wedding orders in sight. Excellent Ophelia roses are featured here. Andrew Bruce, who has been with this firm for some time, has joined the colors and has been ordered to the Philippine islands.

At O. C. Saake's establishment sweet peas and gladioli predominate. Trade during the past week is reported as very good with the usual amount of funeral work in evidence. Excellent Lady Alice Stanley roses were seen here.

The Redondo Floral Co. arranged a very pretty Dutch window the past week which brought them a number of orders for spring baskets. This firm is unusually busy with wedding orders.

Jack Courtney and Frank Holt, recently of the Germain Seed & Plant Co., both of whom have seen previous service, have joined the colors and have left for "somewhere."

The Broadway Florists report prices somewhat better than usual. A good variety of baskets were seen here; also excellent bouquets made for film stars recently arrived.

At Wright's Flower Shop a variety of water lilies made an attractive window display. Several flower baskets also showed Mr. Garland's artistic touch.

The L. A. Floral Co. reports a very good shipping trade since Memorial day. Gladioli, gaillardias and carnations are going out in abundance.

S. Murata & Co. are shipping asters, gladioli and sweet peas in considerable numbers. They also enjoy a good local trade.

MARKET HEAVILY OVERLOADED.

Weddings and commencements constitute the bulk of the business at present, but it would take much more than these to move the stock that is being received. Just now the market is overloaded with peonies that should have been here two weeks ago. Roses and carnations are also plentiful, but more than the wholesalers know what to do with. The street men get most of it and are in their glory. If it were not for them there would be more stock to go to the rubbish can than at any time for some years. The plantsmen are busy trying to get their stock set out between rains, of which we have had so much this year that most of them are far behind in all their work. Everything is plentiful except greens. Lilies are a drug on the market and can be bought at your own price. Irises, calendulas, larkspurs and delphiniums are now coming in and are about the only flowers in demand.

NOTES.

The florists' club held its regular meeting at the Fort Pitt hotel, June 5, but there was a small attendance, owing to the fact that most of the members were otherwise engaged, due to the inclement weather. Bedding plants was the subject.

Erdman & Ulrich, of Belair road, Abe Krongold and family left for Detroit June 10. He will leave the family there for the balance of the summer. His partner, Joe Fineberg, has recovered enough from his illness to look after business.

The Mount Vernon Floral Co. has removed to 1338 West North avenue from 1416 East Baltimore street.

Anders Rasmussen, of New Albany, Ind., was a visitor last week. He was headed for the annual meeting of the Florists' Hail Association at Newark, N. J.

Gentry & Hemling have opened a flower shop at 41 East Fort avenue.

The Cut Rate Flower Shop closed its doors June 9.

A heavy hail June 6 wrecked the range of Chas. B. Wright, of Reisterstown, destroying many plants, especially carnations.

The Arcadia Floral Co. has been incorporated with a capital stock of $5,000.

Wm. Kessler has been at home sick the last week. M.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.—Local florists report exceptionally good Memorial day demand, followed by numerous weddings.

BEACON, N. Y.—Benj. Hammond is spending a brief vacation at Lake Mohonk, N. Y., and says it is one of the rarest places for natural interest and beauty.

HARTFORD, IND.—The Hartford Floral Co. is using mostly patriotic colors in the window boxes supplied to customers this season, geraniums, ageratum and alyssum.

Boston.*HEAVY SUPPLY AND PRICES TUMBLE.

A few bright, warm days have caused a decline in prices, in some cases, quite marked. Carnations early last week sold as low as $1 and $1.50 per 100 for the best. High-grade lily of the valley was offered at $2 per 100, while Spencer sweet peas were held at $1. The best Darwin tulips ever seen in this market went at $3 per 100. The last half of the week showed business at a standstill, with the market glutted with flowers. Cattleyas are quite plentiful, but find good demand at $4 per dozen.

NOTES.

The outdoor exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society is being well patronized both day and evening. The rhododendrons, which were in bud at the opening of the show, are just breaking into bloom now, and are showing remarkably well, taking the place of the azaleas, which are about gone. One of the latest exhibits is that of B. Hammond Tracy, Wenham, Mass., who is showing the finest collection of Primulinus hybrid gladioli ever staged. These consist of pale and deep yellow, apricot, pale pink, and white with a delicate pink center. The dark, cloudy weather has held the plants in wonderful condition. The society has taken a way of interesting the children by allowing them to be admitted free, accompanied by teachers. A guide is furnished who points out the various plants and flowers. June 11 was lilac day and a number of splendid and unusual sprays were donated by Professor Sargent, of the Arboretum, for the occasion.

B. Hammond Tracy, of Wenham, Mass., the "gladiolus king," has placed on this market a large number of Primulinus hybrid bulbs and his orders are coming in very fast. He received a letter during the past week from one of his sons, now with the American ambulance corps in France.

Thomas Roland, of Nahant, is cutting heavily on Ophelia, Killarney Queen and George Elgar roses. They have the best color of any roses arriving in this city at present.

The force at Patrick Welch's store is kept quite busy. His supply of southern peonies is of the best. Shipping trade is growing steadily.

B. A. Snyder & Co. report that while local trade is somewhat quiet, shipping trade is very satisfactory.

St. Louis.*MARKET FAIRLY STEADY.

The market during the past week has been fairly steady as a whole. Peonies are arriving in large supply, with the price on best quality down to $3 per 100. Roses are quite plentiful, but of superior quality to the past couple of weeks, and consequently move more freely. Carnations have shortened up, with the quality fair for this season. Outdoor stock, such as coreopsis, daisies, cornflowers, delphiniums and gaillardias, are fine and move fairly well at clean-up prices. American Beauties have been a bit scarce, and the quality is poor. Gladioli are fine and command good figures. Fancy ferns were scarce the past week, and the retailer had to fall back on the dagger, which have been fair. In other green goods the market is well supplied, with huckleberry having a big call for decorations.

NOTES.

The picnic committee of the florists' club is going to make the occasion of the annual picnic a big advertising day for the florists. All florists are going to be asked to participate in a monster parade of decorated automobiles, preliminary to going to the picnic grounds.

Frank A. Windler was in a head-on collision with his touring car last Sunday, and when he took stock he found everybody in the machine was intact, but the auto was pretty badly damaged. A day or two later he was sporting a new Velie Chummy roadster.

Andre Bourdet, who has been foreman under his father at the Bourdet Floral Co.'s growing establishment, has enlisted in the militia, and is anxious to get to France, where his father came from during the World's fair in St. Louis.

Henry C. Ostertag, well known both as a florist and as member of the board of police commissioners, and Mrs. Minnie Spohr were married here June 8. Both have a host of friends who wish them all happiness.

Wentzell & Hecht, of Anglum, St. Louis county, and J. A. Kropp, of Creve Couer, Mo., are bringing some very fine snapdragons to this market. The consignments are handled by the Windsor Wholesale Floral Co.

The National Flower Show committee arrived in this city the latter part of the week to begin their local organization and make further arrangements about a site for the National Flower Show.

Marion Uhl Schmidt, of Grimm & Gorly's east side store, had his hands full last week at the registration. He qualified as an interpreter, being able to converse in seven languages.

Bill Smith is certainly kept busy, making trips out to his farm daily, and he is fortunate in having Will Ossek and an able corps of assistants to take care of the store.

Hy Blixen, of the Woodlawn Gardens, Edwardsville, Ill., is consigning some very fine Ophelia roses and sweet peas to C. A. Kuehn. His stock has a ready demand.

Visitors: Chairman George Asmus, Chicago; Secretary John Young, New York; Treasurer J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.; W. P. Craig, Philadelphia, Pa.; A. Farenwald, Roslyn, Pa.; Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.; Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., and President R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex., in the interest of the National Flower Show to be held in this city April 6-15, 1918.

Horticultural Society of New York.

The Horticultural Society of New York held a show in the Museum building, Bronx park, June 9-10. It was to have been primarily a peony show, but the peonies were not out in this region. In hardy flowering shrubs and trees, irises, orchids and other stock, there were good features. The Cedar Hill Nursery, of Branchville, L. I., took first prize for a collection of hardy flowering shrubs and trees, which included lilac in variety, rhododendrons and other stock. Noteworthy in this exhibit were a number of the tall flower stalks of Eremurus elivesainus. This we may add is primarily a desert plant, but their great stalks covered with flowers sometimes reach a height of six or seven feet.

Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., took first prize for 24 vases of cut orchids. James Stuart, superintendent for Mrs. F. A. Constable, Mamaroneck, N. Y., took highest honors for 12 vases cut orchids and Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., were awarded a special prize for hardy flowering stock.

The Bronx Park botanical gardens made a creditable exhibit of rhododendrons, irises and other stock.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA.—W. E. Arnold, who compiled a telegraph code for the use of florists, which was published in 1899, died in this city May 18.

OBITUARY.*M. I. O'Brien.

M. I. O'Brien, one of the best known florists in western Pennsylvania, succumbed to a long illness June 1, at his home in Sharon, Pa., aged 63 years. He was born in Ireland and came to this country with his parents at an early age, residing at Meadville for one year, and in 1866 located at Sharon, where 28 years ago he erected a range, which he owned until the time of his death. He had spent several winters in Florida for the benefit of his health, but was taken seriously ill in March and gradually failed until the end. He had many friends by whom his passing is felt with sincere sorrow, second only to that of his family, to whom he was ever a kind and dutiful husband and father.

Clarence L. Metcalf.

Clarence L. Metcalf, a retail florist of 1529 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., died June 11 of a complication of diseases, in a private hospital. His father, who died six years ago, had conducted a florist business in Brooklyn for 35 years, and on his death the son continued it.

Clarence L. Metcalf, who was 40 years old, was well known and popular, and a member of many fraternal societies including the F. & A. M. He is survived by his wife and one son, his mother and one brother. His funeral was held on the afternoon of June 13 at his late residence, 298 Hancock street, Brooklyn.

CHARITON, IA.—John H. Clark, proprietor of Clark's Fruit and Garden Seed Farm, is recovering from an attack of pneumonia.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—J. L. Kramer, late with J. B. Wiese Co., has purchased the flower store of Jos. Sangster at 1291 Jefferson street.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL.—The McDonald Greenhouse has been purchased by Morrey Everett, who will move it to his farm near this city.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—The South End Florists report excellent business at their well located store on Main street, opened a short time ago.

BUTTE, MONT.—An addition is being made to the Columbia Gardens range which will increase its area from 22,000 to 24,000 square feet.

SIDNEY, O.—The Osborne Greenhouses, north of this city, were completely wrecked by hail, May 29, the loss being estimated at $2,000.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—The Hartnett Flower Shop, formerly in the Ashton building, has removed to more commodious quarters on North Park avenue.

GREAT FALLS, MONT.—The Electric City Conservatory, Inc., has announced that commencing July 1 the business will be conducted on a strictly cash basis.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH.—The delivery truck of S. W. Coggan escaped serious damage, June 5, when the driver was forced to run it onto the sidewalk to escape a collision with another automobile.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—Mrs. Sarah Rammers, mother of Mrs. C. B. Thompson, and who has been identified with C. B. Thompson & Co., Inc., for many years, is not expected to recover from a stroke of paralysis.

PARIS GREEN.—Warnings have been issued to farmers of a probable shortage of Paris green and other chemicals used for spraying.

“GIVE the farmer a chance to brace himself and you can lean on him. You won’t have to worry about enough to eat for our people and our allies,” says the Crop Report of American Steel & Wire Co.

Peony Show Again Postponed.

The annual meeting and exhibition of the American Peony Society, originally scheduled to be held at Philadelphia, Pa., June 7-8, and postponed to June 11-12, as announced in our last week’s issue, has been again postponed to June 13-14.

Boston Outdoor Flower Show.

Those of the trade who are at all interested in horticultural exhibitions should by all means visit the great Boston outdoor, flower show, which opened June 2 and is to continue over a period of three weeks. While the description and illustrations in last week’s issue of THE AMERICAN FLORIST gave a good idea of the display on the opening day, the full realization and beauty of the show, its novel outdoor features, its tent enclosures, each devoted to a separate flower, must, however, be seen to be fully appreciated. Every large city has room for a similar exhibition in the spring of the year. With the addition of a large tent, or marquee, as they are called in England, for the display of cut flowers, and decorated spaces where new attractions could be staged continuously, but which feature was not provided for in this exhibition, there is no doubt but that such a show would be a great success.

Tornado Victim Aid.

Edwardsville, Ill., June 9, 1917.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

I am enclosing a copy of a letter received from A. D. King, Mattoon, Ill., whose range and home were wrecked by a cyclone May 26, details of which were given in your last issue, page 1114. This letter is an answer to one I felt it my duty, as secretary of the Illinois State Florists’ Association, to write to Mr. King, he being a member of our association.

I feel it is the duty of every member of our association to do something toward raising a fund to help Mr. King out.

I will thank you to publish this letter in your valuable paper, as an appeal to members of the state florists’ association to help. Contributions can be sent either to our treasurer, C. L. Washburn, at Bloomington, Ill., or to myself, and all amounts will be duly credited, published and turned over to Mr. King.

Let us, for a moment, at least, turn away from the commercial side of our business, be charitable, and follow the teachings of the one Great Master to render service to our fellow man.

J. F. AMMANN, Secy.

Illinois State Florists’ Association.

A. D. KING’S LETTER.

Mattoon, Ill., June 7, 1917.

J. F. Ammann,

Edwardsville, Ill.

I was glad to get your letter today, and I surely appreciate your kind offer for my help. I am just able to be about, as I was in the hospital, being hurt in the cyclone.

You cannot realize how badly I am hit. I had 15 houses, all stocked; had a fine trade, and was doing well. In five minutes I lost all! All my houses are flat; my home is gone; all stock gone, all supplies gone; and myself hurt. I had not even furniture or clothes left, as the rain ruined all the wind left. I enclose a small picture of one side of the greenhouses. My loss amounts to $30,000, and if I cannot get some help I cannot rebuild.

If you can help me by sending an appeal to the association, I will surely appreciate it. If I get along alright, so I can attend to business, I can make it a go. I have five children to feed.

My wife and one little girl were hurt, but are getting along alright.

I hope you will never have such a terrible storm hit your place. If you do, I shall surely help you out.

Florists’ Hall Association.

The directors of the Florists’ Hall Association of America held a meeting at Trenton, N. J., June 6, 1917, at which initial action was taken for the extension of their corporate existence for another 30 years under the terms of the laws of New Jersey, as passed by the New Jersey legislature last winter. They also approved of and will recommend a new set of by-laws drawn by J. A. Valentine of Denver, Colo., which improves upon and puts in legal form the by-laws used for the past 30 years.

The proposition of cyclone insurance, submitted by Anders Rasmussen, of New Albany, Ind., was not taken up for the reason that the law under which the Florists’ Hall Insurance reorganized only recognizes hail as the form of destruction to be insured against. The annual meeting of the association will be held at Newark, N. J., August 20, 1917, at 2 p. m.

JOHN G. ESLER, Sec’y.

Horticultural Hall, Philadelphia, Sold

Horticultural hall, Philadelphia, Pa., the elegant headquarters of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, and for the past quarter-century the home of the Florists’ Club of Philadelphia, announcement of negotiations for the sale of which was made in our issue of May 5, page 814, has passed to other hands, all details having been settled and the transfer consummated. The purchase price is said to be $600,000, and it is understood the property will be remodeled for theatrical purposes. The building was erected in 1896 and has been the scene of many flower exhibitions and like events, but as a business proposition it was a failure and only in a few instances returned interest on the investment.

Horticulturists’ Examinations.

The bureau of plant industry, United States department of agriculture, will hold an examination for the positions of horticulturist and assistant horticulturist, work to include investigations in the improvement of potato raising, salaries $2,100 to $2,500 and $1,800 to $2,000, respectively. For further particulars and application blanks, address the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Crop Conditions in West.

President Earling, of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, is quoted as authority for the statement that crop conditions and prospects in the west are fine. The wheat acreage has increased nearly 25 per cent, and crops in general in Montana, Oregon and Washington look exceptionally good. There is considerable apprehension, however, over a scarcity of labor at harvesting time.

Gude-Gilbert.

Adolph Gude, Jr., son of Adolph Gude and nephew of Wm. F. Gude, of Gude Bros. Co., Washington, D. C., and himself connected with that firm, and Miss Inez Gilbert were married, May 23.

DEMAND RATHER QUIET.

Business was quiet the past week when stock in almost all lines was in oversupply and sold in large quantities to whoever would buy it at ridiculously low bargain prices. The department stores had special sales on peonies, roses and carnations almost all week and offered them at prices that the retail florists could not buy them at. While the quality of some of the stock offered by the department stores was nothing to speak of the majority of it compared favorably with that seen in many of the leading retail stores. The special offerings in the department stores put quite a crimp in the sales of the retailers, who nearly all report a quiet week and claim that it is impossible to meet such unfair competition. The market at this writing is heavily loaded with stock but the supply seems to be gradually shortening up and it would not be at all surprising if another few days would find quite a change for the better in regard to the general market condition. The supply of southern peonies is nearly exhausted but the local ones are now coming in crop and are obtainable in good supply in the early varieties. American Beauty and Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are in good supply and are moving well at fairly good prices compared to what other stock is bringing. Roses in general are in large supply, especially Ophelia, which are arriving in splendid condition. Orchids are selling nicely at high prices, which holds true for lily of the valley, which cleans up nicely each day. Lilies and callas are in good supply and so are gladioli, which are attracting the attention of the buyers. Sweet peas have seen their best days and while they are in good supply many of the dealers are none too anxious to place them on shipping orders. Iris is not as plentiful as it has been, which also applies to snapdragons, stocks, feverfews and daisies. Double White narcissus, calendulas, pansies and candytuft are to be had in quantity, but the supply of mignonette, lilac and tulips is practically exhausted. Russian statice is in good demand and is being used to a large extent in window decorations, especially in the loop district. Greens of all kinds are in good demand, especially smilax and ferns, which are bringing high prices. Good ferns are scarce at $1 per 1,000 and at times during the week it is almost impossible to secure enough stock to fill all the orders in full. Some shipments of ferns from Wisconsin commonly called "snowbirds," have made their appearance but not in any great supply.

Chicago Florists' Club.

The regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club was held at the Briggs House June 7, President Amling in the chair. H. E. Humiston, H. V. Swenson and Frank Felke were elected to membership, and Edward Eisner, 5414 Carpenter street, made application for membership. The matter of picnic this summer was laid on the table.

The transportation committee presented fares and schedules to New York for the convention of the Society of American Florists to be held in that city, August 21-24. The New York Central railroad was chosen as the club route to the convention city, and full details of the trip will be announced at the next meeting.

Chairman Lautenschlager, of the garden movement committee, announced that the work of this body proposed at the previous meeting had been abandoned owing to the lack of financial support. Mr. Lautenschlager also gave a partial report on the work of his committee on St. Valentine's day and Mothers' day publicity.

The co-operative advertising of flowers by the wholesale and retail trade in local newspapers to offset arguments of ignorant agitators against the use of flowers as luxuries was endorsed by the club and $150 appropriated as the club's contribution to the fund being raised for this purpose, this amount to be equally divided on three advertisements.

John Young, secretary of the Society of American Florists, was a welcome visitor, en route to St. Louis, whither he was accompanied by Chairman Asmus of the National Flower Show committee, to further arrangements for the annual meeting and convention of the national society in that city April 6-15, 1918.

Maywood, Ill.

On June 6, local florists to the number of 13, all superstitious proof, and all that could possibly manage to get away from their duties, left for a three-days fishing trip to Lake Marie. In the party were: Henry and Erwin Wehrman, Walter Burhop, Ernst Amling, Hugo Luedtke, Carl Hausermann, Wm. Collatz, Walter F. Paul, and Walter A. Amling, Paul Weiss and Emil Schmake. The following day, a party of well-known Chicago florists visited the Maywood crew, among them being E. C. Amling, H. N. Bruns, John Michelson and Herman Wendland. As the lake was very rough none of the party made heavy catches with the exception of H. N. Bruns who made a good haul. Friday morning the fish were biting—biting so good that the fishermen had to leave that evening as their machines were loaded to capacity with the finny tribe. Henry Wehrman made the biggest strike—an eight-pound pickerel.

Both Carl Hausermann, Sr., and Carl Jr., have purchased new Velie cars.

Arthur Feuffer, formerly manager for Henry Wehrman, has rented a range at Lyons and will grow vegetables.

Chicago Retailers' Association.

If the plans of the Chicago Retailers' Association, which were outlined at a meeting of that organization at the Hotel Morrison in that city recently, by President F. W. Hardcastle, credit manager for Maurice L. Rothschild, are carried out, Chicago will be a most uncomfortable place for the fake advertiser, the bad check passer, the shoplifter and others who make a practice of preying upon retailers.

"The two outstanding features of the association," said the speaker, "are the credit rating bureau, whereby members will obtain accurate and reliable information as to responsibility along that line, and the vigilance bureau, which will keep a watchful eye upon fake schemes of all kinds and co-operate in the apprehension and conviction of those who defraud members of the association. These losses annually amount to a large sum, which saved, could be put into legitimate advertising. It is planned to have members refer all unknown solicitors, doubtful advertising and other schemes to the vigilance committee, by whom they will be carefully investigated, but it is believed that nine out of 10 of the promoters of things questionable, will never take their propositions that far, nor will they bother their intended victims further. The plan is working very successfully in other cities and Chicago is certainly in need of such a money-saving agency.

"We now have under way a complete plan of organization into which we are inviting all the retailers of Chicago in all lines of business. It is planned to do a great amount of educational work in the way of classes in salesmanship for employes, vocational education and other matters of benefit to both employers and employes. It is proposed to do in an organized and orderly way what the individual retailer cannot accomplish himself,

Holyoke and Northampton Club.

The regular meeting of the Holyoke and Northampton Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held at Butler & Ullman's greenhouses, Northampton, June 5, with a good attendance. There was some discussion regarding the fall flower show and it was decided to co-operate with the garden committee of the Holyoke chamber of commerce, which is planning an exhibition of garden produce. More than 1,000 home gardens and an equal number of school gardens have been started in that city and vicinity and about 600 school gardens are reported in Northampton. Several members of the club are assisting in this work. A committee has been named to arrange a schedule of exhibits, no cash premiums to be offered.

G. H. Sinclair gave a talk on the culture of hydrangeas as pot plants. Darwin and May flowering tulips in variety were shown by Sinclair & Son and by Gallivan Bros. Butler & Ullman arranged a miscellaneous exhibit consisting of Spanish iris, ixias, centaureas and delphiniums. H. E. D.

BIG SUPPLY AND REDUCED PRICES.

While the demand since Memorial day has not been any too brisk, still, at least for the past week, the supply has been so plentiful in all lines that the prices had to be reduced in order to make room for the next lot. This state of affairs was noticeable in all lines, including roses, carnations, Easter lilies, snapdragons, etc.; the end of the week saw the last outdoor lily of the valley, this to be followed this week by irises, snowballs, and spiræas. With quite a bit of funeral and wedding work, and the approach of the commencement exercises, we have hopes that the near future will bring the desired results. The bedding season has just about begun, due no doubt to the cool weather which has prevailed since the first of the month. From present indications, this work will extend over a later period than for some years past.

CLUB MEETING.

We can again report a good attendance at the florists' club meeting held June 7; while no special subject for the evening was scheduled, still the meeting was a lively one. The entertainment committee, instead of arranging the annual basket picnic near the city, was instructed to get busy on a picnic via automobiles to some more distant point. The name of Lake Geneva has been proposed. While the former picnics were always most enjoyable affairs for those who attended, it always meant a whole lot of work for one or two to solicit prizes and make other arrangements and then the members proper did not participate. Why all this work and worry for a lot of strangers, mostly children? Quite a discussion followed on the subject of "Co-operation of All Who Handle or Grow Flowers." It was the consensus of opinion of those present that due to the war, conditions this coming season will be somewhat more perplexing and difficult, and only by the hearty co-operation of all, can we expect to hold the old and stimulate new business. A committee of three was appointed by the chair, who will ornament one city block with flower boxes, as an example to show what can and should be done to still add to our reputation as a beautiful city.

NOTES.

We regret to report that J. F. Sievers, superintendent of the Milwaukee County Agricultural School, has resigned to take effect September 1. Mr. Sievers delivered several lectures before the local florists' club, which owing to his thorough knowledge were highly interesting and instructive. Being liberal in giving good advice to those who asked for it, we all lose a friend.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. says business the end of last and the opening of this week was quite satisfactory. The bedding stock, with the exception of vincas, is pretty well disposed of.

Wm. Malaney, bookkeeper for Gust Rusch & Co., was quietly married to Miss Charlotte McCarthy last week. After a short wedding trip he is back again in the harness.

H. W. Koerner, the dahlia and gladiolus specialist, reports considerable damage to stock due to the recent frost. He cut a few of his early red peonies last week.

Wm. Eschrich is cutting some especially fine Darwin tulips. Had the weather been favorable, it would have been a fine Memorial day crop.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. is daily cutting a fine lot of roses. They comment on the quality of carnations being consigned to them daily.

Wm. Lubliner, proprietor of the Majestic building flower shop, is rejoicing over the arrival of the first born—a boy.

MARKET CONDITIONS VERY SATISFACTORY.

Weather conditions have been satisfactory and the supply of stock has been equal to the demand. June weddings have been most numerous and commencements, funeral work and Corpus Christi celebrations in the various churches have made big inroads upon the supply. We have had plenty of rain, but the high temperatures that prevailed helped considerably to increase the receipts. Landscape work has also been very active, owing to the lateness of the season, and the demand for bedding plants and porch and window boxes is greater than ever.

NOTES.

A beautiful church wedding, June 6, was that of Miss Mildred Louise Flick, daughter of Mrs. Alice Flick-Shive, to Mr. Charles Buchanan. The bridal bouquet was composed of white spray orchids and lily of the valley, made with a shower of lily of the valley. The matron of honor carried a large arm bouquet of Sunburst roses and adiantum. The decorations at the church and house were very elaborate. Miss Helen Patten and Miss C. B. Flick of the Patten Flower Shop, Toledo, O., were in the city to attend the wedding.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey have been busy with landscape work. They have just finished a big job at the summer home of Gene Stratton Porter, the well known novelist, at Rome City, Ind. Many varieties of shrubs and hedge plants were used.

Edgar Wenninghoff reports a fine demand for porch baskets and boxes, and a good general demand for bedding plants. Wedding orders have been very numerous at this establishment.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. are receiving some fine Spencer sweet peas from their greenhouses. Wedding work and funerals have kept the store force busy at this establishment.

MUCH STOCK AT LOW PRICES.

During the early part of last week there were several storms accompanied by heavy wind storms and rains, with some hail, but the latter did not do much damage. A heavy market exists and prices are much lower than usual. Roses are plentiful and good stock for the season, while carnations are holding up exceptionally well. Peonies are everywhere and are offered at low prices—the lowest in some instances ever known in this city, and in some varieties the quality was never equaled. Gladioli are a little more plentiful, with snapdragons and sweet peas in about their usual supply. Weddings and commencements have been very numerous and called for much good stock.

NOTES.

Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. had a big run of wedding and graduation work, one large order being that of the cut flowers for the Westport high school. This firm is cutting fine peonies and carnations.

W. J. Barnes had the contract for the palms at several high school commencements. Corsages, funeral work and commencement bouquets have also been features of the demand during the past week.

A. Elberfeld, of the Alpha Floral Co., will occupy his new home about June 22. At present he has a force at work setting out plants for summer flowers.

H. Kusik & Co. handled a large quantity of roses at low prices and sold out daily. Carnations, lilies and sweet peas made up the remainder of the offerings.

A. Newell reports a fine run on cor-will occupy his new home about June 22. At present he has a force at work setting out plants for summer flowers.

George M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. are cutting heavily on peonies, roses and carnations. Business is better than could be expected.

The hail last week did damage as follows: M. Echolson, 100 lights; Peter Martin, 275 lights; Wm. Foith, 200 lights.

Samuel Murray is spending two weeks at Clinton, N. Y., in the interests of the Florists' Hall Association.

A. Newell reports a fine run on corsage work. He has his usual good share of commencement orders.

MARKET BADLY OVERCROWDED.

The market is heavily overcrowded with stock. Daily receipts continue strong, but serve only to increase the accumulation already on hand. The call for flowers for the high school commencement exercises this week is excellent, but hardly strong enough to clear the market except perhaps in a color such as red or pink. Shipping business is only fair. Prices are very low, but even then do not cause stock to move. Roses are very plentiful and include some fancy blooms in Russell, Ophelia, Ward and Hoosier Beauty. Carnations are plentiful and peonies are in a supply so heavy that the market is glutted with them. All of the blooms that should have been in for or before Memorial day are now arriving and overloading a market that would be well stocked without them. Easter lilies are in a good supply. Gladioli offerings are fairly large and are also good. Sweet peas continue plentiful, but some are beginning to show signs of the approach of the end of the season. Other offerings are callas, snapdragons, larkspurs, mignonette, cornflowers and some lily of the valley. New fern is having a strong call.

NOTES.

P. J. Olinger has an excellent cut of Radium carnations and Richmond roses as well as Maryland and Ophelia, with which to satisfy the commencement demand this week. He and his wife have as their guest, Miss Anna Weiland, Mrs. Olinger's sister, of Evanston, Ill.

The Liberty Loan was the subject of discussion at the June meeting of the florists' club. Three of those present volunteered to subscribe for $500 worth each of the bonds, but President John J. The president named the members present a committee to visit those who did not attend, and Edward P. Tracey of The Rosery was instructed to visit one of the local banks to learn what terms it would offer to the club in making its subscription. Charles Schwake, importer, 90-92 West Broadway, New IMMENSE SURPLUS WITH DEMAND DEAD.

The past week has been just one of the kind that "happens along" about this time of year, variously styled as "nothing doing," "very bum," etc. The market was greatly overstocked, carnations being particularly plentiful, with scarcely any demand. Very good looking stock sold on the street at 15 cents a bunch of 25, while from wagons piled high with thousands the price was 10 cents a bunch, the wholesale price for these job lots being a nickel. "What could you expect?" said one of the wholesalers, "with such an avalanche of peonies coming in every day?" Three dollars seemed about the best price, although a few select brought $4, but $2 and $1 a hundred, to clean them up, was not uncommon. Roses were also plentiful, all kinds except Russell and Kaiserin are losing all their good qualities and the beds will soon be put to rest. It was almost impossible to move the small bunch stock—calendulas, daisies, etc. Cornflowers are now fine and sell well. Larkspur is now in full crop outside and has taken the place of snapdragon. Outdoor sweet peas from frames and violet houses with the sash off, are now of the best and move fairly well. Cattleyas are plentiful, as is outside lily of the valley from Newport. Southern gladioli appear to carry very well, but have to fight for a place along with the others in the surplus.

NEIGHBORHOOD FLOWER SHOWS.

The neighborhood spring flower shows have been taking place during the past week. The Lansdowne Flower Show Association, of which S. S. Pennock is president, had a wonderfully fine display at the Twentieth Century Club Auditorium, Saturday, June 9. The tables of cut roses were exceptionally fine. All the latest hybrid teas, and in fact all the standard varieties, were to be seen in the hundreds of vases which held the entries in this department. There was a splendid showing of all the garden flowers in season. A feature was made-up baskets of cut flowers, which for arrangement and color combination, were excellent. A vase of Mrs. Shawyer showed this variety to be an excellent garden rose; the flowers were wonderful in size and coloring. The gem of the show was an unnamed seedling, of fine form, very robust in growth, in form something like Los Angeles, but a longer bud. It is a pink, shaded with red, a hybrid tea cross, exhibited by Geo. C. Thomas, the noted amateur rosarian. A fine flower show was held in Chester, Pa., last week while the Moorestown Improvement Association exhibition took place in the town hall on June 12.

NOTES.

The June weddings and school commencements have made things lively with H. Bayersdorfer & Co. the past week. Fancy bouquet papers, bridesmaids' baskets and other wedding accessories, as well as all kinds of cut-flower baskets, have been in good demand. They have broken a doorway through into the large building, 1129 Arch street, which will give them much needed office and show room.

Fred Archer has several large violet frames filled with sweet peas. As the violets go out, the sweet pea vines are well up, and when the sash is removed, make a rapid growth, coming in three weeks ahead of the outdoor stock. His stock is being handled by the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange.

An immense stock of flowers comes to the Leo Niessen Co.'s market these June days, which keeps the entire force of 50 men in action to get away with it. They manage it somehow, and are ready each day for the new shipments. Peonies, carnations, sweet peas and roses are features.

Business is not bad from the street men's point of view; they are selling flowers by the wagon load, is what the Sage of Ranstead street has to report of the market. The Reid brand roses and sweet peas are now offered in quantity lots.

Don't Wait

Now is the time to send us a shipment of flowers and acquaint yourself with the satisfactory treatment you receive when you ship to New York's Foremost Commission House in the flower trade.

Extensive experience, ample capital, modern facilities and, in fact, everything to commend us to you.

UNITED CUT FLOWER CO., Inc., 111 W. 28th St., New York City

"A fair business until Wednesday, and after that very punky," is the way Carl Korts of the Jos. Heacock Co., puts it. Their roses appear to be working overtime, judging from the large shipments.

Paris daisies and extra choice pyrethrum features with the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange. Roses are handled here in large quantities. John Cunningham is no longer with them.

L. P. Vollers has given up the flower business for a time, having joined the colors as a cavalryman. As a graduate of a military academy, he is well prepared for his new duties.

The exhibition of the American Peony Society, which was to be held here June 7-8, but which was postponed to June 11-12, has been again advanced to June 13-14.

"All we can do to handle it," is the report of Berger Bros., in speaking of the great surplus of flowers. Maryland roses, gladioli and fine sweet peas are features here.

Eugene Bernheimer says that peonies knocked the market last week, making it one of the slowest of the season for inside flowers.

E. G. Hill and his grandson, Master Guernsey Mann, of Richmond, Ind., spent several days in this city the past week.

PRICES AT BOTTOM LEVEL.

For the present, at least, nothing definite in prices can be quoted. The peonies, which were held back by the cool weather, are now arriving in great volume. They are selling cheap and making all other stocks cheap. One dollar per 100 seems to be a fair price, and they can be bought as low as 50 cents per 100; it is simply a question of moving them. Carnations are running at prices from 50 cents to $1 per 100; American Beauties, special, at from $10 to $20 per 100; the tea roses at a correspondingly low rate; cattleyas at from 25 to 40 cents per flower. In the various minor stocks there are no prices, it being simply an effort to unload.

June 11.—The market is in a bad condition. There was heavy rain in the early morning hours, and it has not yet cleared, the atmosphere being what is generally termed sultry and "sticky." American Beauties are not so plentiful, but even what there are move slowly. In other roses the market is glutted. We quote the general range of prices. In some varieties and very special stock there may be a few sales higher than our quotations; on the other hand, there are sales at so much—and that is not much—for the box. In carnations, the street peddlers seem to be the heaviest buyers; they carry them from the wholesale stores by the armful and load them on their carts. And those fellows have nerve; they would sell in front of the executive mansion, if allowed to do so. As a review, it may be said that it is the peonies that have brought about this condition. There is a little good peony stock that brings $2 per 100, but tens of thousands of them are in cold storage and thousands will be lost, although the street men are also handling them.

NOTES.

Recently visiting the convention garden, we found men from A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., busy planting. They have set out over a dozen different varieties and their roses look well. In another section we found several beds of cannas, but the cool weather has retarded their growth. What the garden will need from now on will be heat, water and careful attention. No man or set of men can guarantee the heat, but the watering and attention should be easy.

Rear Admiral Aaron Ward, U. S. N., retired, and Mrs. Ward, will hold their annual rose party and exhibition at their estate, Willowmere, Roslyn, L. I., June 16-21, from three to six each afternoon. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the American Ambulance Hospital in France.

A. F. Faulkner has just heard from his cousin, John Fraser, who was with the Canadian troops in France. In a recent battle he was grazed and by the explosion of a shell buried up to his neck in a shell crater and wounded in the lungs. He is now improving in a hospital.

Edgar Hall, manager of the Hyde Park Floral Co., Austin, Tex., and his son, Fred H. Hall, were in this city June 6, calling on A. F. Boddington. Another visitor was Gustave X. Amrhyn, superintendent of parks of New Haven, Conn.

Jos. G. Leikens opened his Newport, R. I., store June 4. On June 5 he had a large amount of work for the funeral of Elisha Dyer, in his time a prominent banker and son of a former governor of Rhode Island.

Mrs. Minier, who has been bookkeeper in Malandre Brothers' store for several years, has been absent for several weeks on account of illness. She is a clever and efficient young woman and has many friends.

During the past week the department of parks has been doing good work in bedding. We believe that convention visitors will be favorably impressed with the work of Superintendent Ward's men.

Samuel Murray, of 1017 Grand avenue, Kansas City, spent several days of the past week in this city. Long a resident of that thriving city of the west, he is an authority on the horticultural features.

P. G. Panos, Fifth avenue and 125th street, has given up his store. He says that under the present conditions of business, rent is too high. He is likely to find another location as he is an industrious worker.

Registration day, June 5, passed off very quietly in the wholesale district, and not one of the boys shirked, and there was a large number of them who were eligible for the draft.

Edward Gibb, 2110 Seventh avenue, Alhambra Theatre building, has closed his store and says he got out "clean." He will rest for two months and may then seek another location.

James Gazetas, the Bronx Park Florist, 2772 Webster avenue, has a neat store and it is always a pleasure to call on him as he is always cheerful and optimistic.

L. Gluck, of Lexington avenue and Twenty-third street, had a fine wedding decoration, June 9, in the Swedish church. Many flowering plants were used.

New York Florists' Club.

The club met in its rooms in the Grand Opera House building on the night of June 11, President Stumpp in the chair, with a good attendance.

E. C. Vick, whose committee had met in the afternoon, made an exhaustive report on the estimated cost of entertainment of visitors to the S. A. F. convention. Patrick O'Mara presented a resolution to abandon the entertainment on account of war conditions. After a lengthy discussion, in which Mr. O'Mara, F. R. Pierson, W. A. Manda, P. B. Rigby, C. H. Totty, John G. Esler, Emil Schloss, Chas. Schenck and others participated, it was decided to have no entertainment other than a theater party for the ladies of the members attending.

A motion was carried that the club invest $5000 of its funds in Liberty bonds. It was also voted to donate $1000 to the Red Cross.

Appropriate resolutions on the death of Peter L. Bogart were read and adopted. Notice was given of the bereavement of W. E. Maynard, a member of the club, by the death of a daughter.

The following were elected to membership: S. Kahn, New Springville, S. I.; John Featherstone, Tarrytown, N. Y.; D. J. Pappas, 111 West Twenty-eighth street; Fred Bergman, 341 Madison avenue; Eric Otto, 341 Madison avenue, and Reo M. Guido, 341 Madison avenue, New York.

J. Otto Thilow, of Philadelphia, took the club on a delightful trip through Hawaii in his illustrated lecture on "Life and Flora of Hawaii." His lecture was an agreeable ending of a somewhat heated meeting. He was given a standing vote of thanks. On account of the approaching S. A. F. convention, the club will break its rule and hold a July meeting. The Garden Magazine exhibited a collection of irises and P. W. Popp exhibited a plant of Nierembergia gracilis, both exhibits receiving votes of thanks.

Among those present at the meeting were E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., and Samuel Murray, of Kansas City, Mo.

BUSINESS VERY QUIET.

The supply is plentiful and prices are low as can be expected at this time of the year. Peonies are arriving in large numbers and are offered at buyers' prices. Business has taken quite a drop and now that summer weather is here, some of the stores are closing at 6 p. m.

NOTES.

Z. D. Blackstone has been very busy the past week with wedding decorations, and his farm on the Potomac is taking considerable of his time.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. is receiving some exceptionally fine lilies and delphiniums.

G. C. D.

Rochester, N. Y.

AMPLE SUPPLY OF GOOD STOCK.

The market is well supplied although stock of the outdoor varieties has practically passed. A few peonies and lilacs are now arriving. Carnations are wonderful for June and the same is true of roses. Sweet peas are unusually good. A few Gladiolus America of extra good quality are to be had. Outdoor lily of the valley is also excellent. Harrisii lilies are plentiful. American Beauty at this writing is not very good, the buds being small and imperfect. Flowering plants are scarce.

NOTES.

Joe Cannon, well-known to the trade here, is recovering from an operation at his home in Wilkes-Barre and will soon be able to return to his position with S. A. Anderson at Buffalo.

The Wilson Wholesale Floral Co. opened its doors for business June 9. The first day gave promise of a growing business.

Some of the best white carnations seen in this market are coming from Chester Ament on Ridgeway avenue.

Wm. Baker, formerly of Buffalo, was here calling on the local trade this week. He may locate in this city.

Schuyler Arnold, of Spencerport, is supplying aster seedlings which are strong and thrifty.

The New York Florist is having a big call for bedding stock. Hanging baskets are a feature here.

Salter Bros. have a display of cut Solomon's seal, which is interesting to the public.

Hugo Teute is disposing of some excellent hybrid rose bushes.

CHESTER.

WAUKEGAN, ILL.—John Landis, formerly with the Meredith Flower & Vegetable Co., of Libertyville, is now with Theo. Meyer, local florist.

DAYTON, O.—The Montgomery County Horticultural Society held its June meeting at the Dayton State Hospital. The programme included a number of interesting papers and there were excellent exhibits of flowers and vegetables.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., President; F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., First Vice-President; L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fifth annual convention, Detroit, Mich., June 19, 1917.

TURNIP, it is said, will yield little or no seed in 1917 and dealers are advancing prices now.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE employees, Chicago, have taken liberty bonds to the value of $3,000 on the installment plan.

JUNE 13 the retail seedsmen continue busy, east and west, the demand being mostly for seeds and plants of vegetables.

There will be very little planting of seed beans in Michigan before June 20 unless warm weather comes in advance of that date.

ROCKY FORD, COLO.—Conditions for muskmelon and cucumber crops have been rather favorable, but acreage, as compared with business booked, is rather light.

VISITED CHICAGO: G. W. Kerr, with W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., returning from California; Geo. C. Thompson, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

BOSTON, MASS.—The Jos. Breck & Sons, Corp., had a conspicuous advertisement in recent issues of the local newspapers thanking patrons for their forbearance through a trying season.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district are doing well, much improved by warmer weather. Some smut is appearing, and there has been some damage done by maggots and windstorms.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—John C. Bodger, of John Bodger & Sons Co., and wife left June 12 for the annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association, to be held at Detroit June 19-21.

TARIFF.—From present indications it is not considered likely that congress will interfere with the tariff at this session. If any change is made it is highly improbable that the old ad valorem duty will be revived.

THE W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, reports its business this season heavier than ever experienced. The volume far exceeds any former record. Sales have been largely on those seeds which go to produce foods. Sales on bulbs, flower seeds and other ornamentals have probably been less than normal. One noticeable feature is the "first-timers" who have sought information and purchased seeds. The vegetable plant demand has been and is still of unusual strength with really first-class stock extremely scarce.

Tag Ruling for Shipments in Bags.

The Department of Commerce, in a ruling effective June 4, has notified New York seedsmen that due to the fact that many delays and losses have occurred due to tags simply tied onto bags being torn off in transit, express companies will, after that date, receive only such shipments where tags are sewed on bags of seed with duplicates of such tags inside the bags. The same ruling also specifies that all plants for express shipment shall be crated.

LAWRENCE S. PAYN, representative of Simon Louis Freres & Co., well known to the American trade, regrets that on account of present conditions and difficulties of travel, he is compelled to forego the pleasure of meeting his many American friends this season. The forces of the allies have been increased by the addition of a fine boy and girl to his family. Vive les jumeaux.

Iowa Seed Dealers' Association.

The annual meeting of the Iowa Seed Dealers' Association, held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, Des Moines, June 12, was an interesting and well attended gathering. The well-balanced programme included a number of well-known speakers, among them being Professors H. D. Hughes and A. T. Irwin of the Iowa State College, Ames, their topics being "Seed Purity and Seed Laws" and "The Shortage of Vegetable Seed," respectively, both of which proved very interesting and timely. A feature of the meeting, also, was a discussion upon the necessity of having seed growers exempted from draft to increase production. The business meeting was followed by a banquet and an auto ride in the evening. On Wednesday an inspection trip was made to the Iowa State College.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: F. H. Page, Des Moines, president; C. E. Atherton, Deep River, vice-president; A. M. Eldridge, Shenandoah, secretary; John T. Hamilton, Cedar Rapids, treasurer. Among those in attendance were: W. C. Grote, Council Bluffs; A. M. Eldridge and T. F. Fennell, Shenandoah; John T. Hamilton, Cedar Rapids; C. E. Atherton and wife, Deep River; E. M. Cole, Pella; J. M. Jensen and Jas. Galloway, Waterloo; B. S. Billings and wife, Marshalltown; G. L. Kurtzweil and wife, M. Kurtzweil and wife, E. T. Pierce and wife, Miss McMillen, F. H. Page and O. Lorenz, Des Moines; J. T. Hoffer, Nora Springs; J. F. Sinn, Clarinda; G. H. Cummins, Sioux City; W. H. Talbot, Osceola; Guy E. Graves, Chariton; M. Shipley, Lamoni, and Albert Weiss, Denison.

A. M. ELDRIDGE, Sec'y.

California Seed Crops.

San Jose.—The California Seed Growers' Association, Inc., reports on seed crops as follows:

"A good acreage of beet is looking well and an average crop in general is anticipated. Radish is disappointing, the early planting having been badly damaged by cold weather and replanting delayed by heavy rains. The crop will be poor and not to be depended upon. Parsnip acreage is limited and crop only fair; anticipated delivery not over 50 per cent. Salsify is looking good. Onion is in splendid condition, with no evidence of mildew and a fairly good crop should be harvested. Mustard appears in fairly good condition, but a very heavy crop is not expected. Parsley looks promising, with the exception of Hamburg Turnip Rooted, which is a failure. All the leading varieties of carrot show up well. Celery is estimated as a good crop. A dry spring has damaged endive and it has been hard to get a good stand. Lettuce is doing very well with the exception of New York and Wonderful, which show very poor stands. Other leading varieties promise good crops. Sweet peas are poor, with delivery estimated at 30 to 40 per cent.

"Regarding the crop for 1918 the association reports that adequate preparations are being made to efficiently handle beet, carrot, parsley, parsnip, salsify and celery, a sufficient stock of all varieties being on hand, and the intention is to plant a much larger acreage. The supply of onion bulbs for next fall's planting will be abundant and there will be the usual good acreages of lettuce, mustard, radish and sweet peas."

French Bulb Conditions.

French growers are reported as unwilling to accept the risk of export in case shipping difficulties arise. They are reported as saying to the French jobbers, that bulbs bought must be paid for whether shipping facilities permit export or not, and some of them are adding a demand for payment on account, as earnest money, confirming a definite purchase of the goods, regardless of exporting facilities. Neither the French jobber, who handles such deals on a limited commission, nor the American importer, can really afford to purchase bulbs, which under certain conditions, cannot be moved forward. Some French jobbers are declining business.

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

H. W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., President; H. F. Thompson, Arlington, Mass., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids, Mich., Treasurer.

Next annual convention will be held at Springfield, Mass., in 1917.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—It is reported that Churchill Downs, the famous race track here, will be planted with potatoes, which will be given to the government.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, June 12. — Mushrooms, home grown, No. 1, 50 to 75 cents per carton; lettuce, cases, 10 to 15 cents; radishes, $1.00 per hundred bunches; celery, $2 to $2.50 per crate; tomatoes, six baskets, $1.50 to $2.00; cucumbers, per dozen, $1.00 to $1.50.

New York, June 12. — Celery, per crate, $1.25 to $2.50; cucumbers, $3 to $3.50 per basket; mushrooms, $1 to $2 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, 10 to 15 cents per pound; radishes, per hundred bunches, 50 cents to $1; lettuce, per basket, 25 cents to $1.50; rhubarb, per dozen bunches, 75 cents to $1.25.

Fruit Crop in California Large.

J. W. McClymonds, vice-president and general manager of the Pacific Fruit Express, and one of the best posted men in the west on horticultural conditions, estimates that the California orange crop will be ten per cent more than last year, and the melon crop in the Imperial Valley will run from 25 to 30 per cent heavier. Turlock melons will be about the same as last season.

Deciduous tree fruit will be about the same as in 1916, but California grapes will be much heavier.

Twenty-seven thousand cars of citrus fruit have been handled so far with the indications pointing to all carriers loading about 50,000 cars.

The Pacific Fruit Express is getting ready to handle the canteloupe crop of the Imperial Valley which will start about May 25. The acreage has been increased from 4,000 to 13,000. The P. F. E. expect to handle 6,000 cars.

The deciduous fruit movement will mingle with the Southern California canteloupe crop. The green fruit crop will probably call for 15,000 cars.

Garden Movement Restricts Demand.

The effects of the home garden movement are now apparent to the market gardener—in the result that he finds a greatly restricted demand for his products, so much so that prices for outdoor-grown vegetables have declined in this vicinity (Ohio) to a point where marketing is unprofitable. This in the face of enormously increased cost of production is certainly a severe strain. Taking the heaviest item of producing costs—seeds, fertilizers, labor and horse-feed,—these have soared to new levels while the products have never sold more slowly nor at lower figures. Last week's local quotations were: Spinach, bu., 25 cents; radishes, doz. bunches, 8-10 cents; lettuce, per lb., 2-3 cents; asparagus, doz. bunches, 50 cents. This means that large areas will never be marketed at all, being a total loss. We write this to show that it is unsafe for a business man to take somebody else's advice too freely. The slogan has been: "Produce all you can!" But where we have a constant agitation for government control of food prices, the aim is always to limit high prices and no attempt is ever made to reimburse the farmer for the low limits. Under present conditions it would have been a sane and sensible thing to do for our government officials to guarantee a minimum price. As it is, production will be greatly discouraged and another return to high levels is the result. In our own case, we expected present conditions, hence planted very sparingly of perishable vegetables. We have at this time fully three-fourths of our acreage in field corn, a crop which we have not produced at all for many years. We also curtailed the production of bedding plants and more than doubled our output of vegetable plants, which, of course, sold readily at advanced prices. What the home gardener will do in the future is hard to predict; at any rate, it will pay the commercial man to keep his ear close to the ground and listen before he plunges headlong. In this locality there does not seem to be a vacant lot nor empty back yard, while large areas have been prepared under co-operative management. Next year we may look for an overproduction of vegetable-plants, a scarcity of bedding stock, and a better market for green products.

Birches and Elms Dying.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Some elms, 50 to 70 years old, and cut-leaf white birches are dying off on our college campus. What special care can be given now to save the trees?

Illinois.

E. A. H.

The birch is a very short-lived tree at its best. In this locality an age of 15 to 20 years is considered its limit, and of late the ravages of the bronze birch borers cut down this average considerably more. It is hard to say what might be the cause without being familiar with the conditions.

The elm at the age of 50 to 70 years should be in its prime, if conditions are favorable. Hard-packed soil, without a chance to aerate, lack of fertile soil or moisture tend to shorten the life of any tree. In the first instance the remedy would be to loosen up the soil around the tree as far out from the trunk as the branches go and dig in some well rotted cow manure, not only for the sake of the fertilizing but also to keep the soil in a porous condition, and after the grounds are seeded down again a light mulch of well rotted horse manure should be applied—not thick enough to prevent the grass from coming through, but enough to keep the soil from hardening too much by constant tramping.

If the digging up is not practicable for some reason, holes may be made with a crowbar to a depth of eighteen inches and about two feet apart; then some fertilizer like sheep manure, bone meal, dried blood, etc., may be dropped in these holes and followed by copious waterings. For stimulant, a careful application of nitrate of soda will often cause such trees to rally, and then make use of the above mentioned fertilizers.

In the way of trimming, the trees may be in need of a thorough cleaning and a vigorous topping back to stimulate new growth. If such is the case, any big wound or stub caused by such work should be well treated and examined from time to time. The new growth that will form at the stubs should be thinned out in about two or three years, and the ones to be left carefully selected, in order to give the tree a good shape. Topping is usually tabooed by tree experts, but if done right it is the means of saving many trees.

E. MEYER.

Double-Flowered Cherries.

Small plants covered with flowers of two of the handsomest of the double-flowered Japanese cherries can be seen in the cherry collection on the right-hand side of the Forest Hills road. They are varieties of Prunus serrulata, var. sachalinensis, the so-called Sargent cherry, and are named fugenzo and albo-rosea. The first has rose-pink flowers and bronze-colored young leaves, and is believed to be one of the most beautiful of all double-flowered cherries. This plant has become common in English gardens under the name of "James H. Veitch." In Japan it is called "kofugen" or "benifugen." The form albo-rosea has pink flower-buds which become quite white as the flowers open. Like those of the form fugenzo, the flowers have two green leafy carpels in the center and these distinguish these two varieties from all the other Japanese double-flowered cherries. There are 12 other double-flowered forms of the Sargent cherry among the 75 varieties of different species of cherries cultivated by the Japanese for the beauty of their flowers and introduced into the arboretum by Wilson two years ago. In the last 50 years many attempts have been made to cultivate some of these plants in the United States and Europe, but with no great success, and they are now imported in considerable numbers every year into the United States from Japanese nurseries. Such plants, however, are short-lived and unsatisfactory, and from studies of these cherries in Japan Mr. Wilson became convinced that it was the stock on which they were worked in Japan as well as in the United States and Europe that was the cause of their failure, and that the only hardy, long-lived reliable stock for them was the wild type of the Sargent cherry. If his conclusions are correct, there seems no reason why these double-flowered forms should not grow here to be large and long lived trees. The double-flowered Japanese cherries bloom later than the trees with single flowers and in normal seasons just before or with the lilacs; they remain in flower for several days, and if they prove really successful when the proper stock is used on which to graft them, the beauty and interest of the spring gardens of the United States will be greatly increased.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, June 9, 1917.

SAN DIEGO, CALIF.—The marriage is announced of Miss Rosa Marguerite Benard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Benard, to Peter Alexander Becker, June 1.

WEST ORANGE, N. J.—The New Jersey Floricultural Society has elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Joseph A. Manda, president; Rev. L. H. Lighthipe, vice-president; Edward A. Manda, treasurer; George W. Strange, secretary.

BUSINESS ECONOMY

Conserve the National Resources.
Eliminate Waste in Your Business.

It Will Help You and Others.

One of the biggest items of expense in the greenhouse business is the heating question. Why then for fancy's sake or otherwise do you sit silently by and watch the unnecessary losses of fuel go on day by day?

It is your money that is lost—the waste harms everyone. Stop! Stop!! Stop!!!

Many practical growers have solved this vital question.

You can do so, too.

The remedy is simple.

READ WHAT OUR CUSTOMERS SAY

A Record For the Winter of 1916-1917.

Mr. Wendel is surely pleased with his No. 14 Kroeschell Boiler—it is a PEACH, that is all there is to it. We surely had some winter, which we all know.

Our houses have never been below 52°, and it was not necessary to force our boiler. Best of all, we saved two carloads of coal over a year ago. (Signed)

CROWN POINT FLORAL CO., Crown Point, Ind.
Haas Jepsen, Grower.

Kroeschell Uses Only One-Half the Coal.

Have taken out return tubular boiler which used one-half more coal than the Kroeschell Boiler—it is so easy to regulate that in a few minutes I can run up the temperature by opening drafts. (Signed)

FRANK A. WAGNER, Tiffin, Ohio.

Kroeschell Does the Work of Two Boilers—Saves Fuel

Your boiler does the work of two tubular boilers—saves fuel, needs less attention, as the fire lasts much longer—is easily cleaned. (Signed) S. E. MUNTZ, Dubuque, Iowa.

AMERICAN PEONY SOCIETY.

Fourteenth Annual Meeting at Philadelphia, Pa., June 13-14, 1917.
Cleveland Chosen for 1918.

Splendid Show in Every Respect.

The annual meeting of the American Peony Society was held in conjunction with the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society in the hall of that organization, Philadelphia, Pa., June 13-14. The members of the Flower Show Association of the Main Line were also large exhibitors and worked hard to make the event a success. The first dates set were originally June 7-8, postponed to June 11-12, and finally advanced to June 13-14. The exhibition was one of the best, and in some respects the finest of its kind ever held in this city. The upper hall of the horticultural society was completely filled with collections of 100 separate varieties, one to a vase. These were staged on low tables and labeled so that visitors had no difficulty in distinguishing the varieties. The vases of 25, of which there were quite a large number, were given floor spaces. These were very showy and conspicuous. The entries containing varieties of six, and other classes of three each, contained wonderfully fine flowers—very much the best that have ever been shown in Philadelphia. When asked how the show compared with those previously held by the society in other cities, Secretary Saunders stated that while there might have been larger collections, this one was above the average in excellence. He praised the amateurs who had done nobly and added that the collections staged by James Boyd, E. K. Schultz and A. H. Scott were equal in quality to any that had ever been exhibited before the society. The first named captured first with nearly all of his entries, even in competition with professional classes and winning the blue ribbon for 100 separate varieties in both events.

The largest display was that of H. F. Michell Co., Inc., Philadelphia, who staged over 50 vases, each containing 25 blooms. These were in the north foyer and made a fine showing. Henry A. Dreer, Inc., also of Philadelphia, staged a collection of new varieties, many of them very meritorious. These occupied a position in the south foyer.

Across the end of the hall, in front of the platform, the singles and specimen flowers attracted much attention. Prominent among these was a huge flower of a superb creamy white, eight inches in diameter and six inches in depth. This was Le Cygne, exhibited by James Boyd. Another handsome, sensational loose-tasseled white, at least eight inches in diameter, was named Jubilee. This was staged by Mrs. L. R. Bonnewitz, Van Wert, O. Walter Faxton was another very attractive flower of a most exquisite shade of pink. It was voted by many the most attractive flower in the hall. La Fee was another huge flower of a light shade of pink, a prize bloom in any collection. Martha Bullock is another of the giant pinks, very double but strong stemmed and stood up well. Sarah Bernhardt is of medium size, but a beautiful shade of pink. Baroness Schroeder is a superb medium white of fine form.

The Japanese singles were attractive with their varied colors, each with a full center of yellow stamens.

In Secretary Saunders' collection were several Japanese tree peonies, singles, of wonderful colorings, with great centers of yellow stamens. One of a shrimp pink was very striking.

A genuine novelty was the hybrid tree peony, La Lorraine, a very double flower of medium size, of a bright canary yellow with red at the base of the petals. This attracted great attention.

The quality of the peonies in the various collections was exceptional when we consider that each specimen was a separate variety. The general excellence was attributed to the cool and backward spring, which has been most favorable for the development of the flowers. Among the varieties that stood out prominently were the following singles: The Moor, very dark red; Matteau, a large white; Lady Margeret Stanley, a good red; Madeline, light pink; Hon. Alfred Deaken, a large rose pink; Major Loder, Esther Smith and Somegonoko. Secretary Saunders exhibited a canary yellow and two unnamed seedlings.

In the double rose and bomb classes, prominent varieties were James Boyd's collections—Le Cygne, Sarah Bernhard, Therese, Martha Bullock, Enchantress, Mary Brand, La Perle, Roy Blas, Grover Cleveland, Reine Hortense, Claire Dubois, Avalanche, McLe Page, Baroness Schroeder and Adolphe Roussier. Bertram Farr's exhibit—Gen. Buller, Waterloo, Goliath, Lorch, Geo. Washington and Pierre Reigoux. Exhibit of Elmer Schultz—Gen. Bertrand, Le Cygne, Mme. Lemoine, Marchioness of Lonsdale, Philomele and Jules Elie. Exhibit of Arthur H. Scott—Jules Elie, Mount Blanc, King of England, Susanne, Goliath, La Fee.

A feature was a number of baskets and vases filled with peonies arranged for effect. These various exhibits were quite artistic, handle baskets, vase baskets and low shallow bowls being filled with choice blooms.

Several collections of outdoor cut-flowers and hardy perennials added variety. A vase of campanulas with flower spikes four feet in length from W. S. Ellis, Bryn Mawr, was most noteworthy. On Thursday, exhibits of roses filled a large table the length of the hall. There were several splendid collections, showing good flowers and length of stem, features that are secured by attention to disbudding, pruning, etc. There were also noticed the very latest varieties, showing many of the gardeners alert to get the best and keep their lists up to date.

The judges were A. H. Fewkes, Newtown Highlands, Mass.; Professor A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y., and W. H. Thurlow, West Newbury, Mass.

The Business Meeting.

The annual meeting of the society was held in the lecture room in Horticultural hall, at 8 p. m., Wednesday. The attendance was made up of active members of the society, who took great interest in the proceedings.

President Farr had prepared no formal address, but gave an interesting account of the work of the society for the past year, and called attention to the progress made. The trial grounds at Washington and at Cornell were fully three weeks apart in their blooming periods which permitted an inspection of both gardens and comparisons that were most valuable and a great help to the nomenclature committees. The exhibition, he thought, should always be held at a center between the far south and extreme north so as to get as many exhibitors and varieties at the show as possible. The very late varieties were seldom seen at the shows. The society's bulletin, or "Book of the Peony," is coming along gradually. It will list some 500 varieties, giving names and colors according to the color chart. It represents an immense amount of work, which is being done mostly by Secretary Saunders. The various bulletins issued from time to time by the society have done a wonderful amount of good, especially the last, giving the pronunciation of the French names.

The present exhibition he said was very gratifying; it contained as many flowers as at any previous show, but there were more competitors in the various classes, while there never had been better quality. The demand for peonies was undoubtedly growing; they were being largely planted in private and public grounds. There were now some 500 distinct varieties, which the work of the nomenclature committees had arranged in such order that names of varieties could be depended on. Looking back, not so very far, 70 per cent true was a good average in any list, while from Holland one could not expect more than 50 per cent. Now the names should soon be 99 per cent, all due to the work of the society. He advised local exhibitions to knit together the peony lovers of the various sections of the country. A recent issue of a horticultural trade journal had published an account of peony diseases, which he thought entirely too drastic, as it gave a wrong impression of a whole crop being in danger of contagion. He believed the trouble to be mostly local, as he could plant a row of infected roots alternately with a row of healthy plants and would have no fear of their getting diseased. Many growers cut their plants too severely in trying to get long stems, which has a tendency to make the stems rot and ruin the buds for next year. Some years, fungus and rot were worse than others, owing to climatic conditions. Nodules seen on roots need not cause alarm.

Secretary A. P. Saunders had no formal report. He spoke of the difficult work and the progress made on the peony manual, or book, that was in course of preparation and which they hoped to get out this year. Four hundred and sixty-two descriptions of varieties were now ready. The matter of blanket membership of garden clubs had not been thought advisable, it being decided that all memberships should be personal. The membership of the society was now 200. The matter of the occasional bulletins was becoming quite popular and many applications were being made for them; $100 was the appropriation last year. It would take $150 this year, which amount was granted on motion of a member.

Treasurer J. H. Humphreys read his report which showed a healthy state of affairs, there being some $1,700 on hand and no debts. Five hundred dollars of this was voted to be invested in Liberty Bonds.

Election of Officers.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

James Boyd, Haverford, Pa., president; A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y., secretary; J. H. Humphreys, Philadelphia, Pa., treasurer. Directors—B. H. Farr, Wyomissing, Pa., three years; L. R. Bonnewitz, Van Wert, O., two years; Arthur H. Hewkes, Newtown, Highlands, Mass., one year.

Cleveland was selected as the next place of meeting with open date.

Section vice-presidents are: Northeast, A. M. Brund, Fairbault, Minn.; Eastern, A. H. Fewkes, Newtown, Highlands, Mass.; Middle states, J. P. Baldwin, Gates Mills, O.; Southwest, J. F. Rosenfield, Omaha, Neb. It was decided to give these section vice-presidents the right to select two judges, which three shall have the power to issue preliminary certificates to seedlings that are brought before them. An engraved certificate of a reward of merit was determined upon to be awarded for new varieties.

The charge for life membership was reduced from $50 to $25.

If 25 members, who intend holding a local peony show, will apply for it, the society will give a silver medal and $25 towards a prize schedule.

Some beautiful pictures by Lemoine of new peonies were passed around for inspection of the members.

It was voted that members in arrears three years would be dropped from the roll if after one month from notification by the secretary they did not pay up.

Reports of the trial or test gardens were made by Prof. Mulford of Washington and Prof. Beale of Cornell. Both made a plea for new varieties. A list of all the sorts now in the gardens will be sent to members who desire to contribute, so as to avoid duplications.

Adolph Muller, Norristown, Pa., was elected a life member.

In discussing the article describing diseases of the peony, Mr. Brown of the Cottage Gardens Co. thought it very much overdrawn. There is a great deal of fallacy in much that is said of diseases. The peony needs cultivation, and should be changed from one location to another every four years. Rhubarb would show fungus much the same, if left too long in one place. Plants that do not flower should be taken up, the best eyes selected and replanted and would come out all right. He believes it best not to talk about a disease if you do not know a remedy for it.

The President-Elect.

James T. Boyd is a peony enthusiast in every sense of the word, having one of the best amateur collections in point of number and quality of new varieties in the country. He has a large estate at Haverford, Pa., on

Manuring and Production of Roses.

Some few years back there was one settled and proven fact about roses, about which all growers were apparently of one mind, and that was that the best results in forcing for flowers was to be obtained only by the use of cow manure as a fertilizer. When this conclusion was reached a great demand sprung up all over the country for cow manure, and it was found difficult to get. Farmers were loth to sell it, and as they controlled the output, the growers found themselves up against it. There seemed no way out, but to become cattle farmers, which a number of the large growers did. The Budlong Rose Co., A. N. Pierson, Inc., Reuter & Son, the Joseph Heacock Co. and others purchased cows and ran a dairy business on the side, so as to be sure of a good supply of the precious manure. Some of the herds grew to considerable size. The Messrs. Budlong, who were among the first to install the dairy, discovered after a time that they had come to conclusions too quickly, and after further tests with horse droppings they proved to themselves that the horse manure gave the best results. As this was also much cheaper than the other, being always readily obtained, the dairy was soon disposed of, and good fresh horse manure became the standard fertilizer. We say good and fresh because the well-rotted is tabooed, the fresh article being placed on the beds and immediately soaked with the hose by a man who follows closely the manuring gang. The loose straw kind is preferred, as it acts as a mulch. By spring time this gradually decaying mulch has reached a depth of six inches, and is found filled with the roots of the roses.

L. J. Reuter, of Westerly, R. I., a very enthusiastic admirer of the Budlong system, followed suit with his cattle, sold them, and is using horse manure exclusively. He says that the houses are kept very warm at Budlong's, two rows of pipes being on when the glass outside registers as much as 90°. Watering was done twice daily. The cut roses are declared to keep as well if not better than any others in the New York market, where most of the product was sold. W. F. Gude, who had visited the Budlong place several times, declared he believed the Budlong houses produced more money returns per square foot than any similar establishment in the country. He had never seen such results with others of the large growers. Mr. Reuter, who is a very careful grower, with a close watch on returns, permitted the use of his compilations of the cut per plant and the price obtained from October last to May 1 of this season, which is as follows:

The Frances Scott Key he considers the best and most profitable rose, but neither it nor Mock show up well in this statement, as he cut them down in February for stock. He treats his roses somewhat differently from some growers, to get a good cut in July, August and September, as he has a good summer trade at the New England resorts.

He stated as an interesting fact that the Budlong Rose Co. was increasing their My Maryland stock, while many growers were discarding it to make room for some of the newcomers. Their great success he attributed to being on the job all the time, knowing just what each variety paid, and in this way keeping in close touch with the market.

Hill's New Seedling Roses.

The E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., is offering two new Ophelia seedling roses for delivery in 1918. The new varieties are described as follows:

Columbia—It is a free, easy grower with beautiful foliage, the leaves spaced just right to please a cut-flower grower, and to form a fine setting for the bloom. A "rose without a thorn" almost. Thornless for 10 to 12 inches below the flower, as well as very few thorns on the lower stem. The color is a true pink, about the shade of a perfect Shawyer, deepening as it opens to glowing pink; a peculiarity of the variety is that the shades all become more intense until the full maturity of the open flower is reached. It is one of the big roses, takes on a wonderful depth, and is as lasting as Russell, and as full of petals. Being fully "double" makes it a fine summer rose, while it is free in bloom and easy of management throughout the year, and absolutely free from mildew.

Double Ophelia—Very similar to Ophelia, of which it is a seedling, is the double Ophelia; this is another big rose, with twice as many petals as the parent, opening freely into a beautifully finished form.

Peony Jubilee.

Rose Los Angeles.

The new rose, Los Angeles, has made a wonderful growth with all who have tried it. Howard & Smith, of Los Angeles, Calif., are using a stock that is neither manetti nor multiflora. Growers do not know whether to attribute the great vigor to the stock, the California climate, or the strength of the variety. This variety, planted in the trial beds of the Henry A. Dreer Co. has come through the past very severe winter in splendid shape, demonstrating its hardiness in all the eastern states.

JAPANESE SINGLE PEONIES.

Summer Hydrangeas.

Throughout the eastern states and at all seashore resorts, the hydrangea is a great favorite. Many large plants are grown in tubs which can be used to advantage in porch approaches, steps, landings, along driveways and on the lawn. In certain soils the colors vary, coming in some localities different shades of blue and in others pink predominates.

The best results are from plants grown during the summer in tubs when they must not suffer from water during the growing season. Late in the fall they are kept on the dry side. A storage shed, cold greenhouse, or a well protected frame will keep them nicely over the winter. They are to be brought on with the season; in fact, keep as dormant as possible so as not to be at their best until they are wanted for the summer decoration. This is good stock to carry, the demand coming in at a time when there is not much stirring in other branches of trade.

H. Otaksa is the old-time reliable variety which produces immense heads of bloom particularly if manure water is given as the flowers begin to open. There is more variety in the newer sorts of the hortensis type, some of the French varieties being very fine. The heads of bloom are, however, not quite so large nor the stems as stiff as in the Otaksa. The flowering season of H. paniculata, which adorns so many lawns, can be considerably lengthened, if as soon as the buds appear, one half of them are pinched out. The result is that a retarded crop of flowers appears, two smaller heads to a stem, instead of one large one. These, opening out pure white among the earlier blossoms, which will then be changing color, give a very pleasing effect.

National Flower Show.

There was a meeting of the National Flower Show Committee at the Jefferson hotel, St. Louis, Mo., June 8-9 to complete arrangements for the 1918 National Flower Show to be held in that city April 6-15. There were present; George Asmus, Chicago, chairman; John Young, New York, secretary; J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb., treasurer; Patrick Welch, Boston, Mass.; Adolph Farenwald, Roslyn, Pa.; Robert C. Kerr, Houston, Texas, president of the S. A. F., and A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind., secretary of the American Carnation Society.

While the Coliseum building, where it was originally intended to house the show, was still available, it was, in the opinion of the committee, entirely too small for the purposes of the exhibition, and for the meetings and the convention of the S. A. F., which will be held at the same time. It was finally decided to lease Moolah Temple, 3821 Lindell boulevard, and also the adjoining vacant lot, 155x300 feet, upon which a temporary building will be erected for the flower show. This temporary building will be connected, by a passageway, to the second or lower floor of the Temple, where the trade exhibits will be located.

At no previous National Flower Show were conditions more adequate for exhibits in the trade section. The floor space dimensions are about 100x200 feet, and the quarters at present are used as the dining hall for the members of the Temple after their sessions. The main floor, about 75x200 feet, is expected to be used for exhibits and displays of retail florists. The business meetings of the society will be held in one of the side rooms on this floor.

The lot upon which the temporary building which is to house the National Flower Show will be erected is located at McPherson and Van de Venter avenues, one of the best residential sections of the city. As the exhibits in the temporary building will be placed on the bare ground, there will be no danger of damaging any hardwood floors, consequently, there will be unsurpassed water facilities.

The decision of the society to hold the convention and national flower show at the same time, in the spring, is approved by the S. A. F. members in all sections of the country, and even at this early date, before the floor plans have been issued, exhibitors are reserving space in the trade section, so the outlook is very encouraging as to the financial success of the exhibition. From now until the date of the show, there will be erected on the site of the temporary building a huge sign board, to be used for publicity purposes.

The schedule committee will meet at an early date, to revise the schedule already issued, which was compiled to meet the somewhat limited space afforded by the floor area of the Coliseum. The new arrangements insure ample room for the exhibits of rock gardens, rose gardens, and other displays, if it is decided to have such exhibits. The committee also held a conference with George W. Simmons, head of the American Red Cross in St. Louis, and it may be that the Red Cross organization will co-operate in the entertainment plans, if such course does not conflict with their rules and regulations, on lines similar to those followed by the organization at the New York show.

The committee is grateful for the many courtesies extended during their session, by the local florists' interests, especially to Messrs. D. S. Geddis, F. H. Meinhardt, Wm. C. Smith, and Frank Gorly, who were indefatigable in their efforts to assist the committee in their work.

Now that the question of the building for the exhibition has been decided upon, the work of the show will be pushed with vigor. The Flower Show Committee will, of course, consult the St. Louis Florists' Club, and local florist interests before going ahead with any of the arrangements, and the wishes of these bodies will be considered wherever possible. With every one working in a spirit of harmony, there is no question but what the Fifth National Flower Show will be as successful as any held in the past.

The following have placed their names on the guarantors' list, and the total subscribed is a few hundred dollars less than the $10,000 required, so if you are interested we would ask that you send in your subscription promptly so that the list may be closed:

Come Into the Garden, Maude.

Come into the garden, Maude;
'Tis all of the fashion now;
We've got to know the hang of a hoe
And the pull of a jitnew plow.

Yes, come to the garden, Maude,
Where carrots and things are grown;
Our duty is clear to the country, dear,
It's not for ourselves alone.

There's work in the garden, Maude,
For the folks who are left behind,
The boys who fight have an appetite
And prices have vaulted out of sight,
And filler is hard to find.

Philadelphia Nurseries.

The forty-second annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, which will be held at Philadelphia, Pa., June 27-29, promises to be one of the most successful meetings ever held by that organization. Early advices assured a good attendance, which as the days draw nearer give promise of being a record-breaker.

The committee on arrangements has received more space reservations than at any previous convention. Chairman Albert F. Meehan says that the numerous exhibits will pack the display room, large as it is, but that all will be accommodated.

The business as planned for the meeting touches all matters of interest to the trade, there being 25 live topics on the programme, many of them in the hands of committees during the past season for special investigation. The meetings and exhibition will be held at the Hotel Adelphia, the entire second floor being reserved for the meeting, exhibition and committee rooms.

As a place of interest to be viewed by nurserymen, the delegates will find the "City of Brotherly Love" well worth a visit. Fairmount Park is famous for its beautiful avenues of trees. Its natural scenery, to be found at its best along the banks of the beautiful Wissahicken, is ideal to see and is alone worth a visit to this city. At the upper end of the Wissahicken drive is the entrance to the Andorra Nursery of some eleven hundred acres, where is to be seen one of the finest collections of ornamental evergreens, fencing shrubs, lawn and shade trees to be found in America. Some things here are grown in large blocks; one of 40,000 dogwood has just been transplanted—they are four to five years old. Very large pin oaks, 25 years old, have been transplanted the past winter and are full of growth, looking none the worse for their removal. There are many acres of choice evergreens in all sizes, a number of the blocks being protected from the dust of the highways by rows of tall pines. An avenue of Cryptomeria Lobbia compacta planted either side of one of the nursery avenues is a beautiful sight. Rhododendrons are largely grown, they seeming to be at home on the protected slopes. Magnificent specimen retinosporas, Colorado blue spruce and other fancy evergreens in large sizes are to be seen in quantity.

Thomas Meehan & Sons, Inc., at Dresher, have nurseries embracing 225 acres which will be found very interesting. This firm grows only for the trade, handling, in addition to a large acreage, European-grown evergreens, rhododendrons, etc. A creek furnishes a well from which water is pumped through a 2½-inch pipe for a distance at its entire length of 3,500 feet. The extreme height to which the water is raised is 100 feet. A five-horse power gasoline engine furnishes the power for the pump. A system of storage in which the stock in the fall is packed closely in bins and entirely covered, tops and roots, with shingle tow, is original with Mr. Meehan. The storage house is 70x200 feet, built of hollow tile, the erecting all done by his own men. The temperature is kept fairly regular, getting down at times to 28, which freezing does no harm to the stock and also prevents mildew. Japanese Snowball is a specialty, over 25,000 being grown each year. Thomas Meehan & Sons, Inc., also have a splendid assortment of ornamental nursery stock in their 40-acre nursery at Church and Chew streets, Germantown. Their business here is almost entirely retail, they maintaining a large force of men in landscape work, planting and laying out private estates.

Hoopes Brother & Thomas Co.'s nursery at West Chester, Pa., embraces eight hundred acres. Peach trees are a specialty, over 1,000,000 being grown annually. A perfected Colorado blue spruce called Hoopesii is grown in quantity. There is a large collection of general nursery stock. This is also the home of the climbing roses Christine Wright, Purity and the Climbing American Beauty, three of the best of the ramblers.

The Morris Nursery Co., Inc., also at West Chester, has 300 acres, largely given to ornamental evergreen and other plants for lawn adornment, of which the collections here are large and varied.

Adolph Muehler, of Norristown, has a tract of 50 acres. He specializes in privet, having 150,000 now in stock. Thirty acres are given to evergreens, irises, herbaceous phlox and Euonymus vegetus are also largely grown.

A. E. Wohlert, Narberth, Pa., grows ornamental evergreens and a large variety of stock for his landscape business. His is a very interesting place to visit.

Andrew O'Connell, of Overbrook, Pa., specializes in street shade trees, having one of the largest stocks of planes in the country. Imported European evergreens are also a feature.

Menlo Park Horticultural Society Show.

The spring show of the Menlo Park Horticultural Society held in Forresters' hall, June 9-10, was a splendid success in every way. Rarely has such a fine showing of spring flowers been seen here. Owing to the unsettled conditions prevailing just now all over the country the attendance was hardly as large as had been anticipated, but nevertheless a large sum will be netted the American Red Cross owing to the support the society received from its wealthy patrons. Sweet peas, as was expected, formed the center of interest, and a finer lot of stock could not be wished for. It showed that the growers of this, the most popular of all annuals, know how to get results. Nearly all the stock was grown on the cordon system. The length of stem produced, and the size of the individual flowers, was wonderful. Many of the stems were 25½ inches long. All the latest novelties were shown, many of which were decided improvements on existing varieties. King White, long the acknowledged leader in whites, had to give way before that superb novelty, Narvic. The most striking sweet pea in the entire show was a vase of The President. This magnificent novelty, being an entirely new color in sweet peas, attracted the most attention. King Alfred and Barbara might be specially mentioned as being out of the ordinary. Robert Sydenham also is a grand variety. Cherub and Dobbie's Cream showed up in wonderful shape, as did also Dobbie's Frilled, a lovely shade of pink with bold flowers well placed on splendid stems. The principal winner in the sweet pea classes this year proved to be David V. Tuttle, gardener to Mrs. E. S. Heller, of Menlo Park. All of his stock was good, and the fact that he carried off most of the first prizes in the face of the very keenest kind of competition speaks volumes for his ability as a grower. John Aitken, who headed the list of winners last spring, was unable to show in many classes, owing to the ravages of disease among his plants. David Bassett had his usual grand showing of all that was best in sweet peas and carried off many prizes. Rudolph Sloma's blossoms were grown in ordinary garden culture and not on cordons, but at that it would be hard to find better grown stock. Chas. Ulrich also showed extremely well grown flowers, as did David Patterson. Secretary Copp made a very excellent showing and was well up among the prize winners. George Nunn, gardener to Sig. Stern, was a large exhibitor and won many prizes in the open classes and also with perennials. W. McLaren, a new exhibitor from San Mateo, won six out of seven entries, a very good showing.

The Lynch Nursery Company, of Menlo Park, showed fine vases of carnations but not for competition. Their displays of Matchless and Benora were especially fine. The Leonard Coates Nursery Co. showed large vases of Romneya Coulteri, which attracted much attention as did the splendid manner in which they were staged. It also showed Fremontia Californica, thought by many to be the handsomest native shrub. David Bassett's vase of Carpentaria, or tree anemone, called forth much favorable comment. This is also a native shrub, being an evergreen. Its flowers are pure white, very large with clusters of golden stamens and quite fragrant. There were large entries in the perennial classes, all of which were greatly admired.

The judges were Eric James, Chas. Letts and James T. Lynch. G. N.

Garden Club of Michigan Show.

The ladies of the Garden Club of Michigan held their annual exhibition of tulips in the Arts and Crafts building, Detroit, June 6. Entries in all classes were numerous, competition was keen and in several cases the judges found decision difficult. Some wonderful new varieties were shown and the exhibitors seemed to have spared no expense in securing bulbs that would produce prize-winning blooms.

One notable exhibit was that of Mrs. Benjamin S. Warren in the class for six varieties of the Cottage type. She showed such splendid sorts as Mrs. Kerrell, a fine salmon pink; King Fisher, a particularly fine striped; the exquisite pink, John Ruskin, and a pale primrose, called Solferino. Unfortunately these flowers were not fully matured and the award went to Mrs. J. S. Newberry for another splendid collection. This same lady staged 54 vases of Cottage and Darwin varieties in the class calling for 15 or more kinds. This was the most talked of display in the entire show.

A noticeable flower was the breeder, King Louis XIV, staged by Mrs. Charles DuCharme, which captured first prize for the best purple, while first honors for the best yellow went to Avis Kennicott, exhibited by Mrs. Newberry; second prize to Mrs. Douglas for vase of Gesneriana Lutea. In the collection of five varieties of Darwins, the blue ribbon went to Mrs. McMillan, among the outstanding being Pride of Haarlem, Clara Butt and Zulu. This exhibitor was also first for collection of breeder varieties.

One garden with a frontage of 100 feet had no less than 25,000 blooms, many of them varieties of recent introduction. In many of the garden arrangements the great masses of contrasting color were most striking. Next year it is proposed to rent a large hall which will give ample space for the proper display of a greatly increased number of entries.

The noteworthy varieties exhibited included: Cottage—Daybreak, heliotrope with cream edge; Mrs. Kerrell, salmon pink; King Fisher, purple and white striped; John Ruskin, lavender, pink and yellow, very large; Solferino, primrose; Hammer Hales, flaming orange; Pride of Inglescombe; Yellow Picotee, yellow, edged red; Sir Harry, pink; Avis Kennicott, bright yellow; Red Standard, bright crimson; Scarlet Emperor, flaming scarlet with black and white base; Orange King, orange red with yellow edge. Breeder—Lucifer, bright orange and red; Louis XIV, purple and bronze. Darwin—The Dove, gray with white edge; Harry Veitch, deep crimson black base, white margin.

Among the leading prize winners were the following: Mrs. T. H. Newberry, five firsts and four seconds; Mrs. Benjamin S. Warren, two firsts and two seconds; Mrs. McMillan, three firsts; Miss Hendrie and Mrs. Charles Du Charme, two firsts each; Mrs. H. M. Jewett, two seconds; Mrs. John Newberry, one first and two second; Mrs. Douglas, one first and one second; Mrs. Robert Redfield, two firsts; Baroness Von Heuter, Mrs. Alex Alger, Jr., Mrs. E. Tappey, one first each; Mrs. H. Muir, one second.

Coal Situation at New York.

There will be plenty of coal next fall and winter and prices will be fair if the predictions of Francis S. Peabody come true. He is the chairman of the coal production committee of the Council of National Defence and he met a committee from the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce and other interested persons in the office of Williams & Peters, No. 1 Broadway, June 16. He believes that drastic action will be taken, both by Congress and the Federal Trade Commission to insure to consumers an adequate supply of coal at reasonable prices. In this connection it should be stated that United States Senator Calder, who is a Brooklyn man, appeared before the Federal Trade Commission the past week and made a vigorous appeal for action to regulate coal prices.

At the meeting it was stated by Mr. Peabody and D. P. Smelser, examiner of the Federal Trade Commission, that in their opinion no individual, interest or factor was entirely responsible for the present situation. The point made was that the coal industry has not become adjusted to war conditions. As soon as it becomes adjusted and the force that may be necessary is brought to bear upon the few who may seek excessive profits, relief will come.

Mr. Peabody said that we are suffering from a "buyers' panic," and he advised men who want coal for next October to wait a month or so, when he thinks they will not only get the coal but get it cheaper, and that consumers of anthracite have nothing to fear from export of coal, because anthracite has not been and will not be exported. We shall have to export much bituminous coal, especially to Italy, France and the Argentine—to the last country because we cannot get essential nitrates from it unless we send coal—but there will be sufficient bituminous coal to meet all demands, so export should not cause a shortage of anthracite.

Both Mr. Peabody and Mr. Smelser said there was no ground for the forebodings of retail dealers who have been predicting $15 to $20 a ton for coal.

The Brooklyn men reported coal yards in their borough practically empty and that dealers could get little. The officials replied that the records showed that as much coal as usual had gone to Brooklyn, but that consumers had stored it.

Mr. Smelser said the commission had fixed 75 cents a ton over circular prices as a fair profit for independent operators and 20 cents a ton as a fair profit for jobbers.

A bill passed the Senate on June 16 conferring on the president the authority to compel the railroads to give preference to needed freight. Louis Seibold, Washington correspondent of the New York World, writes: "In anticipation of the authority it (the bill) gives him, the President and members of his cabinet are formulating plans to head off the pyramiding of prices of coal and other articles for war and domestic use." The World is believed to be close to the administration.

OVERLOADED MARKET DROPS PRICES.

At present this market is overloaded with all kinds of flowers, and prices have dropped to the lowest they have been for a long time. This glut is always expected in June, so it is nothing out of the ordinary. Carnations are the most plentiful and are sold as low as $5 per 1,000. Roses are selling at any price the wholesalers can get, as they do not care to carry them over to the next day. The retail men have been fairly busy with weddings and funeral work. Lilies are plentiful and many remain unsold. Peonies are arriving in abundance and are offered at almost any price. The local crop will soon be over; then prices may take a slight advance. Plenty of good outdoor iris is now coming, which is used mostly for weddings. Larkspurs, calendulas, gypsophilas and other novelty outdoor flowers are selling very well. Greens still continue to be scarce.

NOTES.

The employes of the McCallum Co. are going to hold a basket picnic and outing at the Harmony Nurseries July 4. Everyone is invited, as a pleasant day is assured to all who can attend. Directions and full particulars can be had from anyone at their store.

The A. W. Smith Co. offered three prizes for the best card advertisement submitted by the high school pupils. Quite a number of very fine designs were sent in, and it was very difficult to decide the prize winner.

George Wehrheim, of Liberty avenue, has had one of the most successful years since he has been in business. Visitor: V. A. Cowgill, Salem, O. G. M.

GERMANTOWN, PA.—The C. S. Ford Co., dealers in florists' supplies, have moved from this place to Quakertown, Pa.

MODESTO, CALIF.—An important meeting of county horticultural commissioners was recently held in this city for the purpose of stimulating increased production of food products to answer war needs.

ROSES SCARCE AT GOOD PRICES.

There is quite a decided change in the market conditions over last week. Roses are scarce and demanding good prices; Russell and Crimson Queen top the list at $20 a hundred; Ophelia and Killarney Queen, 12-inch, eight cents, 15-inch, 10 cents and 18-21-inch, 12½ cents. Carnations are much cheaper—the very best $2 a hundred. On account of so much rain and cloudy weather, sweet peas are spotted and very poor. Easter lilies (the best) are only $8 a hundred. Yellow marguerites are very plentiful, with no ready buyers, and the prices are not paying the growers to cut. Feverfews, candytufts and stocks are arriving in abundance. These are cleaned up every day. Spanish iris is about done for indoors, and the frame irises not due before another week. American Beauties are very scarce and bring $4 a dozen for fancy and $6 for special. The writer noticed a large shipment of Russell roses, extra fine heads with good long stems, 30-inch grade, for $3 a dozen; 24-inch grade, $2 a dozen. These were exceptionally good color and the best seen in this city for many days.

OUTDOOR FLOWER SHOW.

The attendance at the outdoor flower show dropped off during the last week, due to continued rainy weather. The show will remain open until June 20 to allow the public to view the rhododendrons in the height of their gorgeous development; only pleasant weather is necessary to insure New England flower lovers the horticultural treat of a generation. The wisterias and hardy azaleas are worth going miles to see, while the orchids are wonderful and continue to attract attention. The Chinese conifers from the Arnold Arboretum are most curious and attract more attention than any other evergreen.

NOTES.

Carbone, Inc., has had six weddings this last week, and these have all been the short notice kind on account of war conditions. The S. S. Cretic was watched very closely by this firm, as there was a large shipment on board for them, including garden vases, boxes, jardineres, Venetian glass for table decorations and a large shipment of antique furniture for their Hyannis shop. Mr. Carbone sailed for Italy in January, expecting to arrive home in June, but the conditions of the countries are so disturbed that it will be a long time before he will be able to accomplish the work he set out to do.

Messrs. Reynold and Haas (the two busy clerks of Welch Bros Co.) are certainly making good in their new positions, and the way they have worked to build up a trade is worth mentioning. They are always courteous and willing to meet any train and any emergency.

Boston Cut Flower Co. is doing very well this season, as they specialize in $1 boxes of mixed roses. In this way, they draw attention to their other stocks of cut flowers, which are always very good and up to the minute.

Gorney Bros., on Tremont street, have had a remarkably good season, and in their window are displaying in a very clever way pond lilies of the Nymphaea Victoria variety.

B. A. Snyder & Co. report wonderfully good trade for June, and are kept very busy with out-of-town orders.

Bedding plants are going very slowly, all on account of everyone planting vegetables in their places.

Thos. F. Galvin, Inc., reports good business and quite a rush of weddings. S. K. G.

San Francisco.*NO LETUP IN BUSINESS NOTICED.

That trade is holding up very well since Memorial day is the unanimous report of the trade in general. Usually there is to be expected quite a falling off in business at this period, owing to the large exodus of the flower-buying public to the country. So far, this decline in business has not been felt to any appreciable extent. The great spring cut of outdoor flowers is about over for the season. Roses, in particular are past, and the only good stock to be had is greenhouse grown. The quality of the indoor roses is, as yet, very good, owing to the absence of very warm weather. Plenty of extra good American Beauties and Russells are coming into the market and clean up well. Cecile Brunners are not so plentiful, but there is ample to go around. Ophelia and Hadley are particularly fine, and as a rule good stock is nearly always salable. The cut of carnations is not heavy, but the call for this flower is rather slow and a great deal of poorly grown stock is offered. Orchids are about the same as they have been all winter, no over-supply and enough to go around. Peonies are still being offered, and considering the lateness of the season the quality is fine. More of this flower has been in this market this season than in former years and it is very popular. Gladioli are coming in very freely and meet with much favor. Sweet peas are now at their best. Stock arriving is quite sufficient for all demands with prices ruling about normal. Some good snapdragons are being supplied, chiefly outdoor stock. There is a generous supply of lilies of all grades. This stock has brought fair prices right along. Some very excellent statice is meeting with ready sale and owing to its excellent keeping qualities is a great favorite.

NOTES.

Jack DeWitt, who has been with the greenhouse force of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., for a long time has decided to serve Uncle Sam and has joined the aviation corps at one of the training camps. Superintendent McDonald of the MacRorie-McLaren Co.'s greenhouses is busy these days finding men to fill up the gaps in his force, owing to enlistment. Four men have already joined the colors. He has just finished putting 7,000 cyclamens into 7-inch pots. This is a grand lot of stock and will be heard from later on this season.

Quite a few in the trade went down the peninsula on Saturday to see the spring show of the Menlo Park Horticultural Society. All agree that it was a splendid effort and the hope is being entertained that the society can be prevailed upon to hold its fall chrysanthemum show in this city. As the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society has decided to hold no fall show, it would seem that there is nothing to prevent the Menlo Park Society from holding at least one fall show here. Let us hope they can be induced to come.

The Cottage Gardens Nurseries, of Eureka, are erecting 19 new houses, averaging 200 feet long, to be devoted to growing young azaleas. The young azalea plants shown at the last meeting of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society by this firm were a revelation, and Mr. Ward and his assistants are very proud of the results of their work in this direction. It is undoubtedly only a question of a short time before American florists will be using azaleas of American grown stock.

With the passing of the season, the growing of carnations at the Domoto Bros. range will cease. In their place will be planted roses, and these alone will occupy the glass area at this establishment in the future. John Gilmore, the new superintendent, is busily engaged preparing the houses for the coming season.

The co-partnership existing between Poss and Kinzeman, known as the Floral City Nursery, in San Mateo, has been dissolved. Mr. Poss has acquired the interests of his partner and is now sole owner. He is well known to the trade and also as the president of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society.

One of the most interesting sights in this city at the present time is the wonderful display of schizanthus in the greenhouses at Golden Gate park. The show of this fine plant is extra good and many thousands of enthusiastic visitors have enjoyed them during the past few weeks.

"Bob" Newcomb, of the American Bulb Co., Chicago, has been showing the trade some magnificent blooms of the new red sport of Carnation Gorgeous, which originated with Martin & Forbes Co., of Portland, Ore.

M. H. Ebel, of Sacramento, is spending a few days in town visiting his growers. He reports a splendid Memorial day business and says he had to do a lot of skirmishing to get enough stock to fill the demand.

W. B. Clarke, manager of the San Jose branch of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, has gone on a trip through the southern part of the state in the interests of his firm.

Joseph V. Metz, one of the leading florists of Buffalo, N. Y., is on a visit to this city and has been inspecting many of the adjacent growing establishments.

Mrs. C. H. Lymbery, proprietor of the Bessie Boston Dahlia Farms at San Mateo, has gone to southern California for a few weeks on a business trip.

The many friends of Frank R. Miles will regret to hear that he is confined to his bed with stomach trouble. We all wish him a quick recovery.

Rochester, N. Y.*PEONY HOLDS FULL SWAY.

The peony now holds the scepter in this market, with roses a close second. Carnations are still very plentiful, but the quality is on the wane. Roses are also getting smaller as the summer approaches. Sweet peas are poor, due to the heavy rains. Harrisii lilies are excellent and outdoor lily of the valley has been exceptionally good, but this has gone and we are again having to rely upon the forced product which is poor. Cattleyas are scarce and high in price. Gladioli are arriving in large numbers.

NOTES.

The local florists' association will hold its peony show in Convention hall June 29-30, the proceeds to be donated to the Red Cross Society. Elaborate arrangements are being made to make this one of the most brilliant events of its kind ever held here.

J. B. Keller Sons are featuring bird baths and garden urns, made of cement, and which are very attractive. They sell well. This firm has recently installed a new refrigerator.

John Dunbar attended the flower show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society at Boston and reports it was the greatest in years.

E. C. Kaelber had an elaborate wedding order which included the decoration of a large marquee.

Jacob Thomann reports a big business in bedding plants and other stock.

H. E. Wilson has added a Ford to his delivery equipment.

Mrs. Mary Kramer is visiting at Ontonagon, Mich.

E. C. Armbrust visited Buffalo June 14.

CHESTER.

Jersey City, N. J.

The range of Miss Wrege, 21 Roosevelt avenue, shows good features in plants and a good retail business is conducted at the greenhouses. There is much sympathy in the trade for this young lady. About a year ago her father and mother died within a month of each other and on Memorial day her brother died suddenly while at his work. A short time previously the foreman of the range died suddenly. She is thus greatly bereaved, but is going bravely on.

William Entenmann, the well known grower and retailer of 308 Ocean avenue, has been quite ill for nearly three months, his ailment being what is generally known as a leaking heart. He has recently placed himself under the treatment of a specialist, and is now much improved. His range and store are near New York Bay cemetery, and it was said at his store that they had an excellent Memorial day business.

Weidemann's Florist Shop, 222 Monticello avenue, which was opened last Christmas, is neat and well kept and is doing a good business.

The Flower House was recently opened at 339 Jackson avenue by H. Heckel, who has greenhouses at Ridgefield Park, N. J.

The greenhouses that were owned by the late Edward Bogie, at 490 Summit avenue, are now superintended by a brother.

James A. Sullivan, 277 Grove street, is located just opposite the City Hall and has a good class of customers.

May F. Kendall, 532 Jersey avenue, is doing a good business and is a constant buyer in the New York market.

George Vasilas, the Olympia florist, 286 Jackson avenue, has a good store and we found him busy.

Gotthardt & Son, 311 Ocean avenue, state that they have had a good business season.

Cincinnati.*BUSINESS FAIRLY GOOD.

The market is well supplied with stock of all kinds. The glut of last week, however, has passed. The first of this week business opened up fairly well. Shipping business, particularly in new ferns, is good, while local business is fair. Roses are in excellent supply and among others include some choice Wards, Russell, My Maryland and Ophelia. Carnations are plentiful but the supply is not as heavy as it was last week. Peonies are at an end for the season. Easter lilies are very plentiful. Some sweet peas may be had. Snapdragons are plentiful. Many excellent gladioli come into the market and find a pretty ready sale. Other offerings are larkspurs, cornflowers, coreopsis and lily of the valley.

H.

The Late William Knight.

William Knight, who for a number of years had been buyer for Herman Warendorff, a leading New York retailer, died June 14 of pneumonia, after a week's illness. He was a West Indian, a man of character, energy and ability and was respected by all who knew him. It was said that he never drank or used tobacco in any form, his only diversion was playing cricket, at which he was an expert. His employer always gave him Saturday afternoons off to play the game. He was 35 years old and is survived by a wife and three children.

Waretown Rod and Gun Club.

Publicity Properly Placed.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST, Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sirs:

Your ad on hydrangeas was very effective and helped me to dispose of two houses of these plants for Memorial day. We had a great many letters telling us how fine they were.

A. L. MILLER.

Jamaica, N. Y., May 28, 1917.

American Rose Society.

An executive committee meeting of the American Rose Society will be held at the City club, 313 South Broad street, Philadelphia, Pa., at 1 o'clock, June 27, during the convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, which opens in that city on that date. Anyone interested in the society as rose growers will be welcomed at this meeting, for the American Rose Society is a most excellent advertising agency for growers of roses and rose bushes.

BENJAMIN HAMMOND, Sec'y.

Dig and Don't Knock.

We hear soap box orators these days shouting "let the rich man go to war!" but there are few rich men who are not doing their share.

J. P. Morgan has offered our country his money and brains as "his bit," and his son has joined the ranks and is now wearing a uniform. Let us travel a little way down Long Island to his country home and take a peep at what was once a beautiful lawn and flower garden and there you will find a potato farm, peas and corn, above which is found flying the Stars and Stripes; also the Red Cross flag. Ask the man in charge and he will tell you it is Mr. Morgan's idea of "doing his bit," and many other Wall Street men are doing the same.

Plant Importation Restriction Protested.

At the regular meeting May 17 of the New Orleans Horticultural Society the following resolution was offered by C. W. Eichling and unanimously adopted:

Whereas, the American Forestry Association proposes to recommend to the federal horticultural board in Washington the enactment of a law prohibiting the importation of all plants, bulbs, etc., be it therefore,

Resolved that the New Orleans Horticultural Society considers such a law unnecessary and injurious to the florist business and hereby protests against the enactment of such a law. The secretary of this society is hereby requested to transmit a copy of this resolution to the legislative committee of the Society of American Florists with the request to oppose the passage of such a law.

C. W. EICHLING, Sec'y.

New York Convention Garden.

Some very active work is now in progress at the New York Botanical Garden, Bronx park, covering the layout of the Convention Garden. The backward season has been greatly in favor of the plantings, and at present it looks as though planting operations may continue for two or three weeks more. The public, too, is taking extraordinary interest in the garden, as is usual with all the work of the Botanical society, and work is being done under acute observation. Judging from the interest commonly expressed in the society's garden work, it is expected the Sunday crowd of visitors alone will run to the 75,000 mark. These visitors are not altogether flatdwellers, as one may observe when looking over the license plates on the automobile parkings of a Sunday.

The rate for planting space is very low, only 10 cents per square foot, consequently, anyone who has a specialty in the horticultural lines to exploit will lose a grand opportunity for publicity if advantage is not taken of this garden. George V. Nash, the head gardener at the Botanical garden, is giving the convention garden personal and constant supervision, a fact which speaks well for its success.

Of course, the plantings are not confined solely to novelties. Many retail florists would do well to think of the publicity they could obtain at small cost by making artistic plantings. The opportunity is here for them.

Up to date the following have secured space in the garden: Vaughan's Seed Store, W. A. Manda, John Scheepers Co., Inc., Bobbink & Atkins, A. N. Pierson, Inc., Conard & Jones Co., Henry A. Dreer, Inc., John Lewis Childs, Raymond W. Swett, Arthur T. Boddington Co., Inc., Arthur Cowee, B. Hammond Tracy, William Tricker, Thomas Meehan's Sons, A. L. Miller and R. Vincent, Jr. & Sons Co.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Coal Ashes

I have often declared that growers have not begun to realize what a valuable material they waste when they pitch away as of no use, coal ashes. There are men who spend a lot of money on sand, who could save it all, and do better also, by using this waste material in place thereof. Those who doubt this assertion should have some ashes ground in a mortar mill, sift it through a sieve with a 1-16th inch mesh, and use it for propagating purposes. Many things that are difficult to strike will callus and root easily enough in this material. Everyone who knows anything about the filtration of sewage will be aware that the coke used is inhabited by certain bacteria which keep things sweet and clean, and I am pretty certain that the same thing goes on in fine coal ashes. Give me a foot of coal ashes over the ground and I will produce the best of tomatoes by simply planting them out on top, in a trough made by sticking up on edge two six-inch boards at eight inches apart, and filling with soil in which to start the plants.—W. F. E. in Horticultural Advertiser.

Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

On account of the backwardness of the season, it is necessary to change the scheduled dates of the rose, peony and strawberry exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society from June 23-24 to Saturday and Sunday, June 30-July 1. This exhibition is one of the most interesting and brilliant of the year and is free to the public. It will be open Saturday from 12 to 6 and on Sunday from 1 to 6 o'clock.

WM. P. RICH, Sec'y.

New York Federation of Societies.

The New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs will hold a meeting in Syracuse Thursday, June 28, in connection with the annual exhibition of the Syracuse Rose Society. It is hoped that there may be a large attendance of delegates from the federated societies.

E. A. WHITE, Sec'y.

HOME GROWN PEONIES MORE PLENTIFUL.

Business has been good the past week and the market was pretty well cleaned up in all lines Saturday, June 16, not due so much to the increased demand as to the cold spell which caused a sudden shortening of stock. The weather at this writing is much warmer and there is plenty of stock of all kinds to go around. The supply of southern peonies is almost exhausted, but home-grown stock is arriving in larger quantities although the season is not yet at its height. Roses in general are in large supply and some particularly fine Sunburst, Mrs. Chas. Russell, Ophelia, Champ Weiland, Killarney, White Killarney and Killarney Brilliant are obtainable in quantity lots at reasonable prices. American Beauty roses are in good supply, but seem to clean up well every day especially in the longer stemmed grades. Carnations are seen in good supply at all the stores and while they clean up well at times there is nearly always more than enough to go around. The receipts of orchids are a trifle heavier and the same holds true for lily of the valley, which continues to be in good demand at the advertised quotations. Gladioli are to be had in quantity and some very choice stock in this line is attracting the attention of the buyers. Russian statice is having a good call and so is feverfew in the longer stemmed grades, of which some very fancy stock is now reaching the market. Lilies and callas are seen at several of the stores in large numbers, and some very choice Liliun candidum made their appearance this week. Sweet peas sold well this week and cleaned up nicely at good summer prices. Mignonette, callas, Spanish iris, calendulas, Double White narcissus, candytuft, daisies, snapdragons, stocks, pansies, gypsophila, pond lilies and other miscellaneous stock is included in the many offerings. Green goods of all kinds are in good demand and clean up quickly at high prices. New ferns are more plentiful and come in handy during the scarcity of other greens. Business so far this month has been good and the total sales show an increase over the same period of 1916, according to a majority of the wholesalers, who are quite well satisfied considering the existing conditions.

NOTES.

J. S. Pintozzi and N. Pintozzi, proprietors of the store known as the Van Buren Florist, at 37 East Van Buren street, report business as good and are well pleased with their stand which was formerly owned by Henry M. Hirsch. Louis Ancrola is now in the employ of this firm which has the only Italian retail florist establishment in the loop.

Arthur Pasternick, with the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, and Ed. Vilter, with J. A. Budlong, have resigned their positions to go farming and ranching at Wendell, Idaho.

C. D. Adams, of Cherokee, Ia., passed through here, June 15, on his way to Michigan where he will spend a few weeks fishing.

Mrs. F. Strail, of the A. Lange force, leaves next week for Twin Lakes, Mich., to spend the summer.

PERCY JONES, Inc.

Wholesale Commission Florists

56 East Randolph Street,

CHICAGO

C. L. Washburn says that June so far has been an unusually good month with Bassett & Washburn and that their sales will show a great increase over the same period of last year. The shipping trade particularly is good and holding up remarkably well. R. H. Mueller, one of Professor H. B. Dornier's students at Urbana, is learning the selling end of the wholesale business at this establishment during the vacation time.

A. T. Pyfer says that business at A. T. Pyfer & Co.'s store has been very good the past week and that the sudden cold spell which caused a quick cleanup of stock came at the right time and helped considerably to add new life to the market.

Percy Jones, Inc., is enthusiastic over business and reports that instead of their sales falling off as the days in June roll by they are showing a very satisfactory increase. The total sales for the month will show a large gain over those of June in 1916.

Zech & Mann have enjoyed very good business in June so far, according to Allie Zech, who is more than pleased with the total sales, which show a great increase over the same number of days of any previous June.

J. M. Davis, of Davenport, Ia., was a visitor at the George Wittbold Co.'s establishment this week.

Visitors: Roy F. Mills, Kansas City, Mo.; A. E. Washburn and J. R. Gee, Bloomington; T. R. Fuller, Battle Creek, Mich.; Peter Grosse, Evansville, Ind.; A. J. Lanternier, Ft. Wayne, Ind.; Herman J. C. Leity, of the New Haven Floral Co., New Haven, Ind.; J. W. Furrow, Guthrie, Okla.

Sarina, Ont.

J. Macklin & Son report a good local demand for cut flowers and decorative plants grown by them and frequently have to resort to large shipments of roses and carnations from outside points to fill orders.

Gardiner Bros. are growing many plants of the flowering varieties which meet good demand at their store here.

Columbus, O.

MARKET UNATTRACTIVE.

Plenty of stock and dull trade characterize the local florist situation. Peonies, which were a famine when needed most, came in with a rush following Memorial day, forcing prices down to as low as 50 cents a dozen for the more common varieties, the maximum on fancy blooms being $1.50. The market is lacking any special attractiveness. Gladioli displays are meager, confined to small shipments received from foreign growers. It is a common complaint that the present June wedding period is the poorest for several years. There is no lack of events in this line, which ordinarily yield florists a harvest, but people do not seem disposed to spend the money. In a general way the trade is feeling garden flowers competition keenly. Funeral work is unusually quiet. The bedding season has gone by fits and starts, with a flood of business when the weather was favorable, followed by lack of interest on the part of the public at other times. As the season has been cold and wet, as a rule, much of the bedding trade has gone by default. Porch decoration is slow for the same reason. Fern leaves remain scarce.

NOTES.

The Columbus Florists' Association, organized several months ago, held a formal banquet at the Neil House on the evening of June 14. Forty covers were laid, a number of guests outside of the organization being present. Prof. Alfred C. Hottes, head of the floricultural department, Ohio State University, and president of the association, acted as toastmaster. Colonel John Y. Bassell, who is in charge of the Columbus Conventions and Publicity Association, was one of the speakers, and urged that florists of other towns should be organized into a state body and a convention held. Columbus, he said, should be known as a florists' city. A former head of the state mine inspection department, John M. Roan, predicted that Ohio never again would enjoy the low coal prices it did before the increases of the past year. While advances had been due in great measure to the excitability of the public in buying large quantities for fear the supply would be exhausted, a permanent higher level had been reached through natural causes. Another speaker was A. Ward Clutch, of the county auditor's office. The affair was a fine success, and will add prestige to the association and increase its membership.

A two-days' rose show was put on by the Columbus Horticultural Society June 16-17 at the sales rooms of the Cadillac Company. Both in displays and number of visitors the show was a success. Several florists had exhibits, but prizes were open to amateurs only. There were 10 sections of roses, one of peonies and one of irises.

TRADE NOT AFFECTED BY WARM WEATHER.

Summer temperatures are the rule at last, but the flower business does not seem to have been affected with the heat as yet, as the storemen say that trade is quite satisfactory. Things growing out of doors are in much need of rain, as precipitation is several inches below the normal for this date.

NOTES.

Miss Lucy H. Butterfield, daughter of the correspondent, was married to Mr. Otto Rose in St. Paul's Cathedral, this city, June 11. The Stiles Co. furnished the flowers and church decoration.

No information is to be had at this time as to how many local florists will attend the S. A. F. convention in New York.

The Stiles Co. is reglazing its range of glass, which was so severely damaged by the hailstorm a short time ago.

J. C. Angel is moving his range from Fifth street and Western avenue to West Twentieth street.

J. W. Furrow, of Furrow & Co., is in Chicago on a business trip.

Visitor: S. B. McKee, Chicago, representing the American Greenhouse Manufacturing Co. S. S. B.

MARYSVILLE, O.—Alphonse Peters, formerly of Lancaster, Pa., is now with the Marysville Floral Co.

EVANSVILLE, IND.—Peter Grosse, of Blackman's Greenhouses, spent the greater part of the week of June 16 in Chicago as a delegate to the skat tournament, carrying off one of the much coveted trophies. George Blackman expects to attend the S. A. F. convention at New York next August.

BIG SUPPLY BUT GOOD RETAIL TRADE

With the summer close at hand, seasonable stock is beginning to appear, such as gladioli, extra fine gypsophilas, larkspurs and delphiniums, many at their very best and they work in well for sprays and basket work. Calendulas, bachelors' buttons and marguerites among the cheaper flowers also are "doing their bit" in different lines of work. There are quite a few snapdragons to be seen and some are really classy stock. Sweet peas are still arriving on this market but do not seem to have the staying qualities. Easter lilies are more plentiful but move slowly. For small work pansies and forget-me-nots are seen often. Carnations are plentiful and move well. Some fancy stock shipped from Colorado makes a fine showing, but the home grown supply is getting smaller every day. Roses at times are a drug on the market and have sold as low as one cent each, although Russell and Ophelia bring fancy prices. The wholesalers report stock is not moving very fast and they are compelled to let much of it go at buyers' prices. The supply in all lines is heavy. The report from retailers is about the same throughout the city; funeral work a little heavier, quite a number of decorations and a heavy call for flowers for hospitals as well as for baskets of spring flowers. Pot plants are scarce.

NOTE.

A number of the local trade led by Henry Kusik, one of our leading wholesalers, piled into the latter's Buick, June 14, and journeyed to the range of John Klaus on the Philip P. Toll farm at Greenwood, Mo. The houses are of Lord & Burnham construction and are up-to-date in every way. The rose stock, which is the specialty here, looked very fine. There are 4,500 Ophelia, 1,200 White Killarney and 1,800 Russell, the stock having come from the Pehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago. The houses have cement walks and cypress benches on concrete posts. Water drains from the roof to a tank with a capacity of 44,000 gallons, which is divided so that 37,000 gallons are available for water and the balance is devoted to manure water. A connection is also made to a lake on the property. Two older houses are devoted to carnations and chrysanthemums. This is the beginning of what will probably be one of

BIG SUPPLY OF ALL STOCKS.

The month of June is the "month of roses," but this June has been the month of all kinds of flowers. It is the first real glut since last summer and stock of all kinds and grades is very plentiful. Roses of all kinds, with the possible exception of American Beauties, are in tremendous supply, and peonies, too, are now, and have been, quite plentiful. Carnations are plentiful and cheaper in price; also they show the effects of a long, hard season. Easter lilies did not move any too well. Larkspurs, as usual, are in good demand. They come in dark blue, light blue, pink and white. The supply is good. Outdoor field daisies have had a good call, especially for commencement exercises. Indoor gladioli are good stock and in good demand. America, Holly and American Beauty predominate, also a few red varieties. Calendulas, bachelor buttons, coreopsis and snapdragons are part of the daily receipts. Lily of the valley has not been very plentiful. Greens of all kinds are plentiful. Southern dagger and fancy fern are on the market. At least two of our leading florists report they have had a number of wedding orders for the latter part of June cancelled since our last writing. Several of these orders included church decorations of good size.

A WEEK OF GOOD BUSINESS.

A steady market maintained during the past week. The only stock that seemed to be in oversupply was carnations of the poorer grade, which, however, are cleaned up at bargain sales. Russell, Ophelia and Sunburst roses are fine and have a good demand. The Killarneys all seem to be badly mildewed and the flowers small. Outdoor sweet peas are coming in quite freely, are of good quality and move readily at fair prices. Snapdragons are fine with a good call. Callas and Harrisii lilies are plentiful and the price naturally low. Candidum lilies showed on the market the past week and these are extra fine this year, with the price too low for the quality. Gladioli are not coming in very heavy as yet, but we can look for a glut in these shortly. Peonies are just about over with. Other outdoor stock, such as coreopsis, corn flowers, gaillardias, etc., are plentiful, but have a steady call. Fancy ferns have been very scarce, with very few daggers to take their place. The new fancy ferns are eagerly looked for. In other greens the market is well supplied.

NOTES.

The June meeting of the florists' club was held at the Missouri Pottery & Supply Co.'s plant, where everyone was much interested in the making of machine turned pots. This concern has an up-to-date plant, and with such facilities naturally are able to turn out a good article. They are rushed to their full capacity, filling orders from every part of the country. The attendance at the meeting numbered about 75. The committee appointed about a year ago to ascertain the approximate estimate of money invested in the flower industry in St. Louis reported their investigation showed that about one and three-quarter million dollars was invested in our business. The old publicity committee was discharged and the president announced he would name the new committee before the next meeting. The picnic committee reported favorable progress, also that they intended to have a monster parade of decorated automobiles to precede the trip to the picnic grounds. The picnic is to be held at Romona park. A member of the Chamber of Commerce then addressed the meeting on the subject of Liberty Bonds and took subscriptions totaling $1,500 in small amounts. The hosts then served a sumptuous lunch. Everybody had such a good time that they were loath to leave.

The two Steidle establishments and A. S. Cerny of St. Louis county are sending in some very good Ophelia, which have a good call on account of their being home-grown stock.

The St. Louis Wholesalers' Association has sent notices to its patrons announcing summer closing hours—Saturday at 5 p. m., and Sunday noon.

HEAVY SUPPLY MOVES WELL.

The market was heavily laden with stock last week on account of the continued sunshine and warm temperatures. But there was an excellent demand that moved everything on the market, and there was no glut of anything. High school and normal school commencements and an unprecedented number of June weddings created the greater part of the demand, while funeral work and counter trade was also very active. Shipping trade has been up to par.

NOTES.

The florists' club held its meeting, June 13, at the Doswell Floral Co.'s store, 301 West Main street. In the absence of the president, W. J. Vesey, Jr., the chairman of the programme committee, Mrs. Richard Blossom, presided. The club decided to have its annual picnic, Wednesday, July 11. The party will go in automobiles to a nearby lake and take a basket lunch. The paper for the evening was: "The Art and Science of Landscape Gardening," by John H. Doswell, which proved interesting and entertaining. There was a good attendance.

The Doswell Floral Co. had a larger number of weddings during May and June this year than during any previous year of their business. They are cutting some excellent Ophelia, Shawyer and Richmond roses.

The Flick Floral Co. had the decorations for the opening of the Steele-Myers new department store. This firm has had a large number of wedding and funeral orders the past week.

Herman Leitz, of the New Haven Floral Co., New Haven, Ind., and Clem Lanternier, of this city, have returned from a week's business trip to Chicago.

Ralph Tinkham, of J. F. Sullivan's store, Detroit, Mich., is visiting friends in this city for several weeks.

BIG ACCUMULATION AND POOR DEMAND.
 Very little that is encouraging to the grower can be said of last week's market; it was thought the bottom had been reached the week before, but it appears that the past six days took a stab at the record and set a new mark in the accumulation and poor demand. Peonies added their weight in no small measure, and it was all the market could do to stagger along under the load; and carnations, nobody ever saw so many before; talk about growers giving up the carnation, this must be a mistake. Even Samuel Lilley, one of our carnation experts, says he never saw the like—and it is hard to surprise "Sammy." Easter lilies were another stunner. Why growers hit the peony market with such quantities is a problem. Every wholesale house in town had them by the thousand. Southern gladioli are offered in quantity and hurt the price of the indoor stock, which is fine. Sweet peas of good quality from frames and violet houses with the sash off are excellent and a few from the fields or garden rows are making their appearance. Roses there are of fairly good quality, 10 to 1, as compared with the demand. Very fine Russels, but local American Beauties are falling rapidly. Eastern stock of this rose is coming and the quality is fine. Lily of the valley is the one flower that, on account of the limited quantity, holds the price. Cattleyas are far too plentiful for anything like a standard figure. In addition, cornflowers, gaillardias, larkspurs, pyrethrums and other outdoor stock fairly flood the market. Anything like standard prices is impossible; it is clearly a buyers' market and but few of them avail themselves of the opportunity. Friday and Saturday are "dump days," when push carts, one and two-horse open wagons and a car or two back up at the wholesalers' curbs and make off piled to the gunnels. It is a case of the more they take the better—never mind the price.

NOTES.

Leo Niessen, in speaking of the great quantities of flowers in the market the past two weeks, says that the months of May and June are the most difficult in which to foretell crops on account of the uncertainty of the weather. Had peonies hit Memorial day, the overstock at this time would likely not have been serious. Their growers' estimates for both Mothers' and Memorial days were from 40 to 60 per cent short of the mark, due entirely to weather conditions, which they could not foresee. Carnations, roses in quantity, cattleyas and lily of the valley are features here.

The peony show of the H. F. Michell Co., Inc., of flowers from their fields at Andalusia was fully up to the Michell standard. Arranged about the store in every available space were over 150 vases, many of them filled with the choicest and newest varieties. It was a great success artistically and productive of much business, as obliging clerks were seen busy all day long taking orders for fall delivery.

We had the peony enthusiasts with us last week. They came from New York, Massachusetts, Ohio, and farther west. This city scored again, however, the experts saying they had never at any previous exhibition seen flowers of such quality as those staged in the displays of the amateur growers of this city.

The alterations uniting the two buildings of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., 1129-1131 Arch street, are nearly completed. The office force will occupy the new building, giving much needed space for the display room.

Walter Davis of the plant department of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. reports Russell and Ophelia rose stock very scarce. Some kinds of chrysanthemums are also almost out of the market.

Don't Wait

Now is the time to send us a shipment of flowers and acquaint yourself with the satisfactory treatment you receive when you ship to New York's Foremost Commission House in the flower trade.

Extensive experience, ample capital, modern facilities and, in fact, everything to commend us to you.

UNITED CUT FLOWER CO., Inc., 111 W. 28th St., New York City

The Jos. Heacock Co. is changing about 20 per cent of their rose stock at Roefels. Out goes Hillingdon, Hoosier Beauty, Killarney Brilliant and Canadian Queen, to be succeeded by more Mrs. Ward, Hadley and Ophelia. White and Pink Killarney, 21,000 of them, hold their own against all comers, always to be depended on, and particularly in the winter, when other sorts are so fickle.

The H. A. Dreer rose gardens have been at their best the past week. An inspection of these trial grounds is a treat that no rose lover should miss. All the new ones are sure to be on trial and the best of these that are considered standard.

Chas. Zimmer, of Collingswood, who is strong in bedding plants, reports the season rounding up about the same as last year. A good seashore demand the past two weeks has been a great factor.

"The worst is over and we look for a more settled market next week," is the good word from the Berger Brothers. Callas, Maryland roses and high grade sweet peas are leading stocks here.

Eastern Beauties are a feature of Edward Reid's stock. Maryland and Ophelia roses are also headliners. Too much stock and not enough demand is the situation as he sees it.

Eugene Bernheimer hopes soon to see a change for the better. He is quite sure it cannot get any worse. Prima Donna roses, sweet peas and carnations are featured here.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange is handling quantities of roses. Leonard's Ophelias are exceptionally fine. Choice sweet peas are handled in quantity.

M. J. Callahan has been busy with weddings, commencements and a run of funeral work. His large Market street window is always very attractive.

Charles E. Schokelman has returned to his old love, the M. Rice Co. An interest in the firm will add zest to his endeavors, if that is possible.

John Welsh Young's "Henry C." helps a lot in early morning deliveries. His Maryland roses are the finest seen in this market for some time.

John Callahan is with the Leo Niesen Co. K.

Washington, D. C.

STOCK PLENTIFUL BUT DEMAND WEAKENS.

Business in general shows quite a falling off. Stock is plentiful for the season, but is not up to standard. Receipts from the north are such that they must be used up at once, as they will not hold. Carnations are about as good as can be expected. Sweet peas are very poor.

F. H. Kramer, one of the pioneer florists of this city, is about to convert his conservatory into one of the finest confectionery establishments in the south. Flowers and a large fish aquarium will also be prominent features.

G. C. D.

EVERGREEN, N. Y.—The establishment of John Sauer, including stock, horses, wagons, etc., will be sold by the Elliott Auction Co., of New York, July 6.

New York.

BUSINESS VERY DULL.

Business was dull during the past week, but that is nothing new. The most noteworthy feature in the wholesale district was the immense stock of peonies that came in from Pennsylvania, a large part of which was practically unsalable; at least no retail store would have them. The first lots of peonies that came in were good, but for the past week they have been a nuisance. By the time a few cases were unpacked the floor of a store looked like the ground under an apple tree when the blossoms are falling. The push cart men handled some of such stock, but much of it went to the "dead" carts. Under these conditions it does not appear that they can last long. We do not mean that there is no good stock on the market; the above describes the condition of much that is arriving. Prices on all stocks are greatly depressed, and tea roses, carnations, sweet peas and various other stocks continue to be handled by the street men. The wholesale market of this city seems to parallel the conduct of the little girl of whom it was said that: "When she was good, she was very good; but when she was bad, she was horrid." It does not appear that present conditions can last long; there will be improvement when the peonies are gone. The supply of American Beauties is not heavy, and the wholesale price for specials of the best quality is at the rate of $30 per 100. The cool weather has kept the carnations in good shape, but there are enough good peonies on the market to keep the carnations in the background for the present. However, the weather now is against the peonies. The forenoon of June 14 was foggy and sultry, the sun breaking through at noon. About 2 p. m. a most violent rainstorm struck the city, accompanied with thunder and lightning, and continued until night. Outdoor stock must have been badly battered; and we look for an increase in the supply of poor peonies within the next few days.

June 18—There was some improvement in conditions in the wholesale district June 16 and a more cheerful feeling is evident this morning, but there is no great revival. Some of the greenhouse roses are doing better, as will be noted in our quotations. Peony stock from this state, Rhode Island and Connecticut is now arriving freely and some of it is very good, wholesaling at 50 cents per dozen and higher in a few special varieties. In addition to peonies, there is considerable of other outdoor herbaceous stock on the market. The General Jacqueminot and Rambler roses are also in large supply. Carnations are very plentiful and though a few go above $1 per 100, from 50 cents to $1 is nearer the figure.

NOTES.

In late years the tendency among the retailers of this city has been to remove up town, and most of them are now above Forty-second street; but there are yet a few good downtown stores. We recently visited Fleischman's downtown store which is finely located in the Hudson Terminal station, Church and Cortlandt streets. There is ample space and good facilities for display, which are used to the best advantage, and the store is always well stocked. It is managed by Alexander Kupperman, and Mrs. Williams is the bookkeeper, both having had many years of experience in the florist business.

B. S. Slinn, Jr., the wholesaler of the Cut Flower Exchange, is now handling exceptionally fine peonies that come from upstate, and in the present condition of the peony market they bring exceptionally good prices. In this connection it may be stated that one fault with some of the peony growers is that they try to grow too many. Peonies need swift and careful handling and packing. It has come to be the fashion in some quarters to make the express company the "goat," but the express companies do not deserve all the blame.

Frank Traendly and S. Mason, the Brooklyn retailer, and several friends went on an automobile trip, June 15, to Blue Point, L. I., where there is a large colony of carnation growers.

H. E. Froment is serving on a jury in the state supreme court.

A man named August Bamberger has been arrested and will be placed on trial at an early date in the Court of Special Sessions for obtaining money under false pretenses. It is stated that his methods were to go to homes where there had been death, get an order for funeral work and secure a payment in advance, usually $5 or $10. At one place he represented himself as an employe of some well known florist; at another he would claim a different employer, all depending on the locality he was working. Among those whom he claimed were his employers were Alexander J. Frank, of 1608 First avenue, and C. L. Bartels, of 417 Tremont avenue, and we understand that it was the last named who finally caused his arrest.

The past-presidents of the New York Florists' Club held their semi-annual meeting at the office of Traendly & Schenck on the evening of June 12. After the meeting they dined at a popular restaurant. Later, being chap-eroned, guarded or something like that, by Frank Traendly, they occupied boxes and witnessed the show at the Winter Garden. For the benefit of the uninformed, we will here state that the Winter Garden must not be confounded with Billy Sunday's Tabernacle, as the performances are different. The following past-presidents were in the party: Alex. S. Burns, W. A. Manda, Walter F. Sheridan, A. L. Miller, Chas. H. Totty, Joseph A. Manda, Henry Weston and Frank Traendly.

One of the interesting figures in the florist business of this city is Simon Hefehe, now 74 years old, and who has been located at 3361 Third avenue for 56 years. Both he and his wife, who was born in the same year as her husband, are in good health and are yet active in the business. They formerly had a number of greenhouses, but all but one were taken down a few years ago and the land sold. With this one greenhouse and their store, Mr. and Mrs. Hefehe employ their time and are happy. They reared a family of three sons and two daughters and gave each one a good education.

Frank Nielsen, who has a retail store at 17 East 28th street, has embarked in another enterprise. He has formed a partnership with Miss Emmy Steffen, and they have opened a store at 30 East 42d street, near Madison avenue. Miss Steffen, who is a popular young lady, will conduct this store. It is a good location and should be successful. He retains the store at 17 East 28th street.

Mrs. Peter F. McKenny, wife of the well known retailer of Fifth avenue and 42d street, was taken to the French hospital June 13 and underwent an operation for appendicitis. She is now said to be rapidly recovering. Mrs. McKenny is a clever and interesting young woman and has an interesting family, and her many friends wish her a speedy restoration to health.

Philip F. Kessler, the wholesaler of the Cut Flower Exchange, is receiving an average of 25,000 Gen. Jacqueminot roses each day. Old "Jack" has passed the half-century mark, but is yet popular and sells fast. Every day Phil banks a roll of bills large enough to choke a mule.

John Curry, the retailer of 1118 Lexington avenue, is serving on a jury, and a part of his store is also being used as a place of registration. Miss Goetz, one of his designers, is acting as a registration clerk. In the meantime Harry A. Reinach is looking after the business of the store.

William Burns, the retailer of 846 Sixth avenue, has posted a notice in his store to the effect that hereafter it will be closed Sundays. He has given space in his store to a body of officials and clerks of his district who are taking the state military census.

G. Straub, who has been connected with the florist business in this city and elsewhere for a number of years, is now buying quite heavily in the wholesale district for several retail stores and seems to be making good.

James A. Vroudos now conducts the Claridge Flower Shop, 157 West 44th street. He is an experienced florist and popular in the trade and will doubtless make a success of it, as the location is a good one.

E. G. Hill of Richmond, Ind., after attending the meeting of the florists' club, spent several days of the past week in this city. He was accompanied by a grandson, a very lively and interesting little chap.

John Kessler, a brother to William Kessler, of 113 West 28th street, and well known in the wholesale district, is now in charge of the plant department at the John Wannamaker store.

W. A. Bladel Sons, 402 West 23d street, have recently been quite busy. They had two fine wedding decorations and a large amount of funeral work.

Harry Goldfarb, who left the store of N. Christatos, Sixth avenue and 58th street, six months ago, has been re-employed there.

Joseph S. Fenrich, 51 West 28th street, is receiving fine Spencer sweet peas from Persson Brothers of Irvington, N. J.

J. J. Coan, 115 West 28th street, who has been ill, is greatly improved and resting at Atlantic City.

J. W. Hauser, 571 Madison avenue, had two wedding decorations in one day of the past week.

The Flower Basket Shop, 147 West 44th street, has been closed and the store is for rent.

John Eigenbrod, of Badgley & Bishop's staff, is serving on a jury in the federal court.

SUPPLY NONE TOO SATISFACTORY.

This week will end the peony crop which has been glutting the market, and which will prove a great benefit to local florists. Carnations are in heavy supply and are offered at from $1 to $2 per 100. American Beauty roses have been a little scarce, while other varieties are not moving any too well at prices ranging from $2 to $6 per 100. Cattleyas are in fair supply at prices ranging from 50 to 75 cents each. Easter lilies are coming in heavier, the best being quoted at $10 per 100. Lily of the valley is very poor, but some of it brings as high as $8 per 100. Sweet peas are in poor condition and cannot be held over night.

NOTES.

William Feast was appointed chairman of a committee of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association to receive subscriptions for the Liberty Loan. It is understood this committee collected nearly $14,000—a very good showing.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club met June 10, the principal business of the evening being the topic, "Boosting the Liberty Loan." Following a patriotic speech by Robert L. Graham, the club purchased bonds to the amount of $400.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Thirty-Fifth Annual Convention, Detroit, Mich., June 19-21.

The Opening Session.

The thirty-fifth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association opened Tuesday morning, June 19, at the Hotel Pontchartrain, Detroit, Mich., the attendance being the largest on record and many declare it the most successful meeting the association has ever held. President Kirby B. White opened the proceedings and introduced Wilber Brotherton, of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., who welcomed the visitors warmly. In his remarks, he referred to the great growth and commercial development of the "City of the Straits" since the association held its meeting there in 1908. The seed trade of the city or state, extensive as it is, was not touched upon, but the natural attractiveness of the city and its commercial importance was dwelt upon and listened to with interest. Past President Watson S. Woodruff, of Orange, Conn., in response, and in behalf of the association, was unstinted in his praise of what he termed the center of the seed trade as well as the automobile industry of the United States. Secretary C. E. Kendel rendered his report, which was brief and related chiefly to the membership, which is showing a steady growth. His report as treasurer was also presented and both were formally received. The address of President White then followed.

At the conclusion of the president's address, which was well received, there was a proposal of a resolution of united support of the President of the United States, pledging the best efforts of the organization in all ways. On motion of Watson S. Woodruff, the president's suggestions, contained in his address, were referred to the executive committee with power to make recommendations covering its salient points. The committee on postal laws made a report which was brief, owing to the few changes in the laws respecting the carriage of seeds. Vice-president L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis., chairman of the committee on experiment stations, read his report, which embraced the responses from 31 stations in the United States and two in Canada. This was very interesting and gave a review of the work of the several stations in making improvements in the varieties of field seeds and determining those best suited to their respective localities. It was noted that in nearly every instance the stations treated the subject of the seed of wheat as of major importance, even the southern states not overlooking it. On motion of David Burpee, Philadelphia, the report was accepted. The membership committee reported 25 applications duly posted. Alling Woodruff, in speaking for the younger members, voiced approval of President White's address as to not asking exemption from military service.

A feature of this session, and suggested by Watson S. Woodruff, was the requirement of every person in the meeting rising one after the other and giving his name and address, and this, President White designated as the official introduction of members. The president then announced the appointment of J. L. Hunt on the membership committee in place of H. G. Hastings, who was unavoidably absent. Leonard H. Vaughan, Lee Gillespie and J. A. Jossman were named as the banquet committee.

President American Seed Trade Association.

At the afternoon session the address of Hon. George H. Clark, of the seed commission of the Dominion of Canada was listened to with much interest, the subject being "Voluntary Seed Control." This was a well prepared effort and at the conclusion of the discussion which followed, a resolution was adopted requesting the secretary of agriculture to give Canadian seedsmen the benefit of the department's analyses of seeds, thus reciprocating a similar courtesy already enjoyed by seedsmen of the United States at the hands of the Canadian institutions having this important work in charge. Dr. L. R. Jones, plant pathologist of the University of Wisconsin, read a paper on "Disease Resistance in Plants." This was accompanied by stereopticon views which depicted plainly the points of the essayist, who insistently warned his hearers of the great danger of the distribution of plant diseases which could be avoided by close scrutiny, and by the honesty of dealers and seed growers. He said that half of the wheat shortage as officially reported last year, was due to a specific disease or rust in that important cereal. Corn, he added, was at present free from disease, but this crop in the Orient is infested and the disease may appear in this country if the most vigilant measures are not adopted and maintained. At the conclusion of this masterly address, J. M. Lupton of Mattituck, N. Y., offered a resolution of appreciation, which was unanimously adopted. David Burpee, Linnaeus Allen and Edward Leonard were named as the auditing committee.

On Tuesday evening the members and their ladies were delightfully entertained at the home of Lem W. Bowen, president of D. M. Ferry & Co. On Wednesday, following the executive session, visitors enjoyed an automobile ride in the afternoon and a boat ride and informal dinner in the evening. On Thursday the programme includes a trolley ride in the morning and the convention will close with the executive session in the afternoon.

President White's Address.

The thirty-fifth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association comes at the close of one of the most eventful years in the history of the seed business. It comes also at the beginning of a year that may be even more fateful for us as seedsmen and citizens. It is therefore with a feeling of solemnity and unusual responsibility that I address you.

It is natural, that as we reconvene, our thoughts should first turn to the vacant places in our ranks. W. C. Langbridge, Walter P. Stokes, John A. Salzer and H. K. White are missed by their many friends. The appropriate committee will prepare resolutions formally voicing the feeling of the association regarding our loss.

The material affairs of the association have on the whole prospered. We have suffered comparatively little from the attacks of legislators. An unusually large crop of unusually stupid bills (the exact number is 118) has received the attention of our state correspondents and under the able direction of the attorney and the legislative committee they have as a rule been satisfactorily met. If any laxness has appeared it has not been at headquarters.

The trend of the year has been toward centralizing more than ever before the responsibility for directing the association's legislative defense. The task has grown to such proportions that it takes up too much time for any seedsman to administer its details. The association ought never again to impose upon anyone the volume of work it gave to Mr. Scarlett and Mr. Boyles. Therefore upon our attorney and his assistants should be placed increasingly each year this great burden.

In this connection I desire to say that my opportunity as an official to observe the work of the attorney's office has impressed upon me the enlargement of the duties he has been called upon to assume. From a small beginning our needs have grown to require not merely the occasional attention of a lawyer in general practice, but the direction of a specialist and trained assistants, all of whom give their time to the needs of seedsmen and nurserymen. The function performed by our attorney is most important and should continue to expand. Every year's experience adds to his value and to the volume of the work it is found desirable to give him. I recommend that Curtis Nye Smith be retained in this position.

As time has developed the complexities of seed control, it is gratifying to see how nearly those that administer and those who work under seed laws have approached a common ideal and common opinions as to what constitutes legitimate seed legislation. I hope and believe that before this convention ends the convention of the Official Seed Analysts, sitting in Detroit this week, will have aligned that association with us in vigorous support of the Uniform State Bill.

The action of the Secretary of Agriculture in requesting seedsmen to mark seeds of field and forage crops as to purity and viability has met with almost universal compliance. It will be observed that this practice of voluntary marking is in effect the same as the European system of voluntary control. There is no criminal liability, but there is every incentive for the vendor to have the label represent both accuracy in analysis and a high grade of seeds. It is possible that voluntary control, which has been the sole system in Europe, will prove equally satisfactory here.

I desire especially to commend the work of the committee on government charges. It is ably discharging the duty you imposed upon it. Our association is pledged both to approval of publicity of the department of agriculture's findings and to vigilance in the defense of its members, whether it be against unfairness from without or treachery from within. If the name of a member appears in a government report as adulterating or misbranding seeds, it is obvious that action must result. If the government report is unfair, as such reports have sometimes been thought to be, the accused member is entitled to the united support of the trade in remedying the wrong. If on the other hand the report is true, this association demands that the facts be presented to it, through its committee, for such discipline as may be just and necessary. This association, and each of its members, cannot escape sharing in the disgrace any member may bring upon himself. I recommend that the committee on government charges continue to receive your cordial support and co-operation.

This interdependence of the entire trade is more and more being recognized, not merely as a liability but in even greater degree as an asset. It is only necessary that we become conscious of our solidarity to make it profitable. The truth that the highest common good is also the individual's highest good, once grasped, is a mighty factor in individual success. Every aid to solidarity is therefore to be welcomed. I commend to the association as one of the best means of fostering solidarity the confidential "Seedsman's Bulletin." I recommend further that a committee be appointed to report on extending the field of the bulletin to cover garden seed crop reporting and the announcement of the range of ruling wholesale prices of garden seeds. This course is not as revolutionary as it may sound. I submit that every seedsman would find it easier to get a fair price for his goods if all seedsmen knew more about fundamental conditions of supply. In the face of great shortage, seeds are often sold at less than replacement value. Obviously this condition is harmful. It would be to the advantage of those who know of shortages to share this knowledge with those who lack facilities for getting news quickly. The office of the "Seedsman's Bulletin" might be made a clearing house of crop reports. From this office news could be obtained by telegraph or mail at any time and all information would be accessible to any member. Confidential reports of this association to association members would carry greater weight than information received elsewhere because the reporting agency would be quite disinterested. Moreover, the association would have access to all sources of knowledge. Each member might then if he chose make his vision of general supply world wide.

In recommending that the bulletin carry in its columns the range of ruling wholesale prices I advise that names be omitted. High, low and average prices could be given for leading articles. For example: Early Jersey Wakefield Cabbage might be quoted as low as $1.00 per lb. and as high as $4.00, with an average of $2.50 per lb. The range of prices, particularly when the service has been in existence long enough to afford comparisons of one year with another, would be a valuable guide and enable individuals to get their prices into line with those of the trade as a whole. I believe the reporting of crop and market conditions if properly conducted would be worth much more than it would cost.

I recommend that a committee be appointed or elected to advise the association with regard to the compensation of each of its employees. Many factors should be taken into account in this connection. If the present ratio between service and pay is not right there should be proper readjustment. If readjustment entails increasing the dues let us remember that the power of the association does not lie in its being cheap.

The power of the association, it would perhaps be trite to say, lies in its exemplification of the principles of justice, wisdom and even taste. The coming year will be a period of trial to us all. The war has forced upon us problems involving our financial existence, our private honor and our public duty. With regard to the obligation of contracts between members I advise that the convention take no stand. The contracting parties are the only ones concerned except insofar as the good name of all is affected by the conduct of each. With regard to our public duty I recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

"To the President and the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States:

"At the thirty-fifth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association it was unanimously resolved that the President of the United States and the Secretary of Agriculture be tendered the support of this association in all reasonable measures designed to prosecute the war with the utmost vigor. We count ourselves fortunate to be able to do our full share in supplying men and money, but our greatest service may well be in maintaining under extraordinary strain the machinery of producing and distributing the seeds without which agriculture must fail. Because we realize in some measure the magnitude of the task to which our country is committed, we are the more earnest in pledging to it our entire resources. The seed trade is happy to be able to say that it can and will meet whatever disturbances in its organization may arise from the draft or voluntary enlistment of its younger men. We propose to do our best to fight and to save and to work for the one great event of complete victory."

Treasurer's Report.

The report of Secretary-Treasurer C. E. Kendel showed the finances of the association to be in excellent condition. To the balance on hand, June, 1916, there were added the following: Initiation fees, $500; dues for the year, $2,865; contributions, $100; interest fund, $58.72. The disbursements for the year were $3,383.31; balance on hand, $1,527.14.

The total membership, including three honorary, is 196.

Different kinds of seeds and grains, and, different conditions of the seeds or grains, call for varying strength of the air blast used in separating the dust, chaff, and light shrunken seeds or grain from the heavy, perfect seeds and grain. The "Clipper" Variable Air Regulator gives exact control of the air blast at every desired point. "From a Zephyr to a Hurricane" (and every intermediate point between) exactly describes the range of air blast that can be secured by this mechanical device. We can produce a blast strong enough to blow out the heaviest grain, or peas or beans, and by an adjustment requiring but an instant, reduce the blast sufficient for handling the lightest seeds such as timothy, red top or blue grass.

Voluntary Seed Control.

Synopsis of an address by George H. Clark, Canadian Seed Commissioner, delivered at the thirty-fifth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association, Detroit, Mich., June 19-21, 1917.

Inasmuch as most agricultural countries now have seed control, those that are without it tend to become the dumping ground for cheap, low grade seeds. Although seed control by legislation helps to correct some of these disadvantages to agriculture, permanent improvement is a problem so complex as presented in the business of the seedsmen, that relief must come from constructive rather than from coercive measures.

Extensive plans for co-operation looking to constructive improvement in the production and commerce of seeds, have been proposed by the officers of the federal department of agriculture at Washington, and accepted by the seedsmen. This Mr. Clark states will ultimately provide a national system of seed control, much to the permanent benefit of agriculture. This action on the part of the federal department of agriculture will naturally tend toward a uniform system of seed control throughout North America.

Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association

An interesting meeting of the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association was held at the Hotel Pontchartrain, Detroit, Mich., June 18-19, the present officers, who are as follows, being re-elected for the ensuing year: A. E. Reynolds, Crawfordsville, Ind., president; C. C. Massie, Minneapolis, Minn., vice-president; Wm. R. Jossman, Detroit, Mich., secretary-treasurer. The present board of directors was also continued, as was the chairman of the standing committee with full power to select his own colleagues, and Curtis Nye Smith was asked to continue as counsel. Under the new constitution and by-laws measures were taken for the establishment of an efficient arbitration committee. The president and the board of directors were authorized to call a mid-winter meeting and Geo. E. Hayes extended an invitation on behalf of Louisville, Ky. The Philadelphia Seed Co. was elected to membership. Upon motion of Curtis Nye Smith, a resolution was unanimously adopted to the effect that the association does not approve of asking exemption of seedsmen, as a class, from performance of duty as soldiers if called upon. An interesting feature of the meeting was an address by W. A. Wheeler, specialist in seed marketing, United States department of agriculture, on "Keeping Records of Seed Stocks." On Monday evening, as guests of the Caughey-Jossman Co., the visitors were entertained with a trolley ride and a dinner at Lakeside Inn for which a vote of thanks was rendered for the much enjoyed courtesy.

Dutch Freight Coming.

Under the new arrangements the resumed overseas trade has within the last weeks resumed an activity which has been unknown for months. Dozens of grain ships arrive weekly, and dozens depart in ballast or the purpose of bringing grain. Thousands of tons of cargoes for America have been lying at Rotterdam, congesting the warehouses, unable to be shipped largely because of the difficulties Germany placed in the way of Holland for overseas trade, and these were really the first ships to sail with cargoes. The cargo of the Amsteldyk consists mainly of sugar beet seed which was unloaded from the Noordam just before she sailed May 15. Otherwise the cargoes are miscellaneous. The American legation at The Hague has been especially active in making arrangements and obtaining concessions for the shipment of these goods. Great anxiety and uncertainty reigns in Rotterdam shipping circles and even at the Holland-America Line as to whether Germany will consider all cargoes bound for America contraband.—New York Times.

The Elliott Nursery Co., Pittsburg, Pa., advised customers as follows June 15: "Some of our customers have the impression that bulb orders cannot be filled this year unless they were received by June 10. This is not so. At this date all orders received have been sent to Holland by messenger, but since our bulb catalogue was issued, the situation has cleared up greatly. Holland has arranged with England to have her ships sail directly to the United States without calling at an English port as formerly. This keeps them out of the danger zone and enables them to make much better time and permits us to receive orders quite as late as usual and assure our customers of delivery in ample time for planting.

The Holland-America line, writing June 12, states: "We have no information regarding the prospects of bulbs and nursery stock being allowed to come forward by the time that the season for these commodities begins."

Bodger's California Seed Farms.

Through the courtesy of John Bodger, Jr., of John Bodger & Sons Co., Los Angeles, Calif., our local representative recently visited the firm's seed farms, the sight of 350 acres in full bloom, especially the field of about 100 acres of mixed Spencer sweet peas, being something never to be forgotten. The stand was excellent and employes were busy roguing. It was agreed that the crop this year was very good and damage from the aphid is scarcely noticeable. Numerous improvements have been made at this, the original farm, where sweet peas are the great specialty, the warehouse capacity having been increased, allowing an additional floor and the installation of an elevator of late type. In addition a modern 13-room residence has been erected which is occupied by Walter Bodger, in charge of the growing end of the business of this progressive firm.

After luncheon the party visited another 300-acre tract devoted to assorted flower seeds, including cornflowers, calendulas, sweet alyssum, mignonette, stocks, etc., which were found to be in excellent condition. At another ranch, asters hold full sway, another specialty to which this firm usually devotes from 80 to 100 acres, and of which we hope to have more to say when their blooming season arrives.

At all points during the trip everything was systematized, well in hand, and reflected the modern business methods which have characterized the steady growth and enviable reputation of this firm.

Hot Weather Hurts California Crops.

GILROY, June 20. — The Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co. advises that maximum temperatures for the past week have averaged over 100° and that seed crops have been reduced 10 to 20 per cent.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—Wood, Stubbs & Co. report trade increased to some extent by the backyard gardening movement.

FLOWERFIELD, N. Y.—John Lewis Childs, Inc., reports business for the season 80 per cent greater than in any previous year.

MARBLEHEAD, MASS.—James J. H. Gregory & Son report a very backward season, excessive rainfall making planting of much land impossible.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Wm. Henry Maule Co. reports increased demand for all vegetable seeds as compared with 1916 sales, the number of purchases for small gardens being noticeable. The lateness of the season at the time many orders were sent in was also manifest.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, Chicago, has had an unprecedented demand for all vegetable seeds and plants, with the increase more notable in eastern than western orders. The call for flower seeds and ornamental plants has fallen off. Business for the year, to date, shows a general increase of 10 per cent over the corresponding period of 1916.

ONION SETS.—So far maggots have done little or no damage to crops in the Chicago district. The weather has been favorable and the fields generally at this time are looking better than last year. Outside dealers are inquiring for prices, but no growers or jobbers are inclined to make them now. Experienced jobbers in country towns predict an increased demand for next season.

Ker's Famous Aigburth Amaryllis

(R. P. Ker & Sons, Aigburth, Liverpool, Eng., in Bankruptcy.)

THIS strain of Amaryllis (Hippeastrum) has won first class honors wherever exhibited. The total honors awarded exceed the total of those given to all other strains in the whole of Europe.

44 gold medals and numerous other premier awards made at the most notable exhibitions in

|           |         |
|-----------|---------|
| London    | Antwerp |
| Petrograd | Ghent   |
| Brussels  |         |

connote this strain as one of unparalleled excellence.

The buyer of this strain will inherit, not only the existing medals, etc., but the far more valuable premier position as owner of the finest race of flowers extant.

THE buyer will receive, in addition to the magnificent stock of nearly 13,000 bulbs, and many thousands of seedlings, the priceless pedigree records which have been assiduously kept by Mr. F. P. Ker. These records are of inestimable value as a guide to future hybridization, as well as to the influence of the different species, varieties and forms upon actual results.

The present status of the Amaryllis, important as it is, is only of small account compared with the brilliant future ahead. $15.00 to $20.00 per bulb is gladly paid for good varieties and this figure is certain to be exceeded.

THE stock is in a perfectly healthy condition and consists of at least 620 large named flowered bulbs, 2350 10% flowering bulbs 3½ and 4½ years old,

7400 2½ to 3½ year old bulbs,
2350 1½ to 2½ year old bulbs

and a huge quantity of seedlings. 95 per cent of the entire stock is accurately labeled with parentage to correspond with stock book, the remaining 5 per cent are "sure good" also.

Offers are invited by the trustee for the whole or part of the stock. Arrangements can be made for attention until growth is finished and the bulbs are ripened and dry ready for shipment.

This advertisement will appear almost simultaneously in the American and the English press.

Offers are to be made to the trustee

Harold Sadler, Esq., Messrs. Finney Son & Sadler,

31 North John Street, Liverpool, England.

U. S. A. tenders should be cabled, address "Abatement,"

Liverpool. This advertisement will NOT be repeated.

Storm Damage in New Jersey.

A severe rainstorm which visited New York City and vicinity June 14 was in some localities accompanied by hail, and it is reported that in sections of New Jersey thousands of young tomato, cabbage and cauliflower plants were destroyed. A brisk demand for stock for replanting was felt June 16.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, June 19. — Mushrooms, home grown, No. 1, 50 to 75 cents per carton; lettuce, cases 7½ to 10 cents; radishes, 75 cents to $1 per hundred bunches; celery, $2 to $2.50 per crate; tomatoes, four baskets, $1 to $1.40; cucumbers, per crate, $1.25 to $1.50.

New York, June 19.—Celery, per crate, $1.25 to $2.50; cucumbers, $3 to $3.50 per basket; mushrooms, $1.50 to $3.50 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, 6 to 10 cents per pound; radishes, per hundred bunches, 50 cents to $1; lettuce, per basket, 25 cents to $1.50; rhubarb, per dozen bunches, 75 cents to $1.25.

Planting Dates.

June 20 makes the great dividing line between early and late gardening plantings for most of the northern localities. This applies to a large variety of subjects. We could almost go so far as to state that most planting operations should be concluded this month. This includes late cabbage, cauliflower, celery, tomatoes, peppers and potatoes in plants, and rutabagas, beets, carrots, cucumbers, sweet corn and pole beans in seeds.

We often run across instructions to the effect that celery and cabbage can be planted up to August 15, but this is misleading. An old trucker once said to the writer: "I never saw a good crop of cabbage or celery from plants set after July 4," which is exactly our experience. In a natural way, June is a spring month and July a summer month, and anything we can get under way in June has a better lease on life than later on. The intense heat of July has a discouraging effect on young stock. Take this warning and speed up operations.

Late cabbage will receive much attention this year. The ever-popular Danish Ball Head is not such a success as it should be far away from the oceans or lakes; hence inland, avoid it. Better use our American sorts where heat is intense and long-continued. Where diseases trouble, Autumn King will often succeed where others fail as this kind has a strong constitution. If belated plantings must be made, use Succession or All Seasons as these head up earlier, yet have ample size for market. As a late cauliflower, Dry Weather is the best if a good strain of seed is procured.

MARKETMAN.

Standard Container Ruling.

QUANTITY OF FOOD MUST BE STATED.
The fact that a standard container has been used as a food package does not in itself relieve the shipper from stating the quantity of the contents, as required by the net weight amendment. The position of the United States department of agriculture is shown in the following statement just made public:

"Numerous inquiries have come to the bureau of chemistry regarding the requirements of the net weight amendment to the food and drugs act as applied to food products in standard barrels and to small fruits in Climax baskets, and other standard containers, in view of the requirements of the standard barrel act (March 4, 1915), and the standard container act (August 31, 1916). The bureau is of the opinion that these laws in no wise conflict in their requirements, and that in case of food in package form, even though standard containers are used, it is necessary to mark the packages with the quantity of the contents. It will be noted that paragraph (e) Regulation 29, as amended by food inspection decision 168, admits of the use of the term "one United States standard barrel" as a unit of dry measure for use upon standard barrels which are filled to capacity with food products.

"This ruling is not intended to revoke the previous public announcement to the effect that, pending a determination of the question whether the net weight amendment applies to berries in small open containers, the department will not recommend proceedings under the act solely upon the ground that the individual containers bear no statement of the quantity of the contents. As previously announced, however, the department is of the opinion that crates containing berries, peaches and tomatoes in small open containers, constitute food in package form, and the law requires that the crates be marked with a statement of the quantity of the contents, which statement should include the number of small containers and the quantity of the contents of each."

Cast Iron Boilers Waste Fuel

I had a cast iron 8-section boiler before, but was afraid it would crack to pieces. The Kroeschell Boiler is certainly a fuel-saver. My coal bill to heat 5000 sq. ft. of glass surface with your boiler is less than last winter's coal bill, when I had only 2050 sq. ft. of glass, heated with the 8-section cast iron boiler.

Your boiler burns any kind of fuel. I would not have any other boiler than the Kroeschell, and will recommend whenever I get a chance.

WEATHER CONDITIONS HURT BUSINESS.

The weather in this vicinity is—wet, wetter, wettest—or any other grammatical word or phrase that can be used to express rain. In consequence, outdoor stock is not what it should be and greenhouse stock has a tired look, with the possible exception of roses. Carnations are good but for their keeping qualities, the result of the damp weather. Sweet peas are also affected to some extent by the variations in temperature. Business, however, has been as good as could be expected under the conditions, and several weddings last week kept the trade fairly busy, although the majority of these functions now are small affairs, and many that promised good decorative orders were canceled, and after the ceremonies at the church the groom left immediately for some military camp. Work in the greenhouses has been very strenuous this spring. Cemetery planting, as well as that for lawns and verandah boxes, have been much delayed owing to rains, and when one fair day comes everybody in the business is called.

NOTES.

The monthly meeting of the florists' club was held June 5, and President Elbers was greeted by one of the best attendances in many months, showing that the members are trying to aid him in his endeavors to make the club a live wire in this city. An interesting and instructive talk on "Roses for Summer Growing" was given by Chas. T. Guenther, of Hamburg, N. Y., and Wm. Wells, of R. W. Pomeroy's estate, who spoke on "Orchids," was listened to most attentively, his theme being of interest to both grower and retailer alike. President Elbers brought in the names of six of the city's most prominent citizens as associate members and put it up to the members to each bring in at least one active or associate member at the next meeting. The entertainment committee was given authority to make arrangements for the annual outing. State Vice-President Eiss of the S. A. F. urged a large delegation from this city at the New York convention.

The summer vacation period which starts in July, with the usual dullness at that time of the year, has revived the talk of early closing of the stores each evening, and possibly at noon on Sunday, which will be an innovation in

BUSINESS STILL FORGING AHEAD.

Ever since Memorial day business has been going ahead in a very encouraging manner considering conditions. Memorial day this year was on a par with last year and June has so far exceeded all expectations. The unseasonably cold and rainy weather had delayed spring planting, but those florists who have ranges in connection with their stores now report that bedding stock of all kinds is moving out at a lively rate and all indications point to a very satisfactory cleanup. Many ornamental vases and urns are also being sold. Funeral work continues heavy and with an unusual number of June weddings and graduations helps to make things lively.

CLUB MEETING

The June meeting of the Toledo Florists' Club was very well attended and many interesting topics were discussed. The coal situation is worrying many of the members with large houses, and they are doing their best to lay in a large supply now. The question of the annual picnic was brought up and it was decided to have another florists' club outing at Ottawa park in the early part of July.

NOTES.

Scrann Brothers report that business is breaking all records in funeral work, wedding decorations and spring planting orders. This firm has just completed a big decoration at Toledo Beach, a popular summer resort on Lake Erie. A contract has also been let to repaint and redecorate their entire building on Cherry street, includ-

Resists Rot

California Redwood is noted for its resistance to rot when in contact with the soil and moisture. That's why it was selected for the boxes that made up the world-famous Mesembryanthemum hedge around the grounds of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, San Francisco, 1915.

Boxes of Mesembryanthemum were stacked up on their sides to the desired height and shape, forming a beautiful living wall, more pleasing than any ordinary hedge and of far greater height.

This use of Redwood contains a valuable suggestion to florists and landscape gardeners—both as to the novel construction of the hedge, and the permanence of Redwood.

Harry Heintl, who makes a specialty of extra fine Ophelia roses, has been having trouble this season with the labor problem, which has handicapped him considerably. Due to increasing costs of doing business, Harry did not hold his annual "five-cent sale" of geraniums this year.

The Musbach sisters, who started in business about a year ago on Oliver street, report that trade was very satisfactory during their first year. Helen is managing the business, having had many years of experience as a florist with Max Spanner.

Miss Helen Patten has had an unusual number of June weddings and graduation work. She will leave shortly to recuperate at Portland, Me. She is well pleased with the business transacted during the first half of the year.

Paul Timm is about through with his spring planting orders, of which he had many this season, including several large building decorations in the downtown district.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Pansies.

For winter blooming the seed of pansies should be sown early. Procure a strain of seed that will produce large flowers, and unless they are to be grown in considerable quantities mixed colors are to be preferred. To obtain plants enough for winter blooming it will be better to plant the seed in flats and place them in a cool shady location in the house, where they are much more easily cared for than out in the open. If such a location is not to be had they can be sown in a cold frame and a sash that is quite heavily shaded placed over them until the plants begin to grow. As soon as large enough they should be planted in a cold frame until the bench is made ready, about the middle of September, in the house. The soil for winter growing should be good, and of the richest, in order to obtain large flowers, and the house in which they are planted should be maintained at a cool temperature, about 45 degrees at night, after settled fall and winter weather commences. Pansies are not, as a rule, troubled much with insect pests, but sometimes in the fall in the houses they are attacked by green fly and they are quickly checked in their growth if the aphid gets a good hold upon them. A careful watch should be maintained, and if they are found to be infested with aphid constant spraying with nicotine solutions will keep the insects down.

Office Housecleaning.

Nearly all growing establishments at the present day have what is termed the office, and during the busy season, in many places, but little attention is given to keep it in a tidy condition. Now is the time, after the carnations are housed and before the fall work commences, to have a thorough cleaning up of the office and workroom and get them in readiness for the coming season. Get all the papers filed away in proper shape and fix up all accounts as far as possible, and thereby get rid of much of the worry and trouble. Clean up the workroom and give it a clean coat of paint, and straighten out the supplies. If the stock of baskets has grown dirty get a little gold paint and give them a coat of this, which will certainly make them more attractive than the dingy supplies too often seen hanging on the walls or standing around. The florist too seldom appreciates how the customer likes to trade in a clean, up-to-date place, and often endeavors to excuse the dirty appearance by remarking: "It is impossible where so much dirt is handled to keep the place clean." Such a one is only fooling himself. The present-day customers, of whom many are ladies, know better; they see other places that are kept neat and clean, and they cannot be imposed upon with such tales. Now is the time to get everything shipshape for the fall and winter trade.

Fancy Leaved Caladiums.

It will soon be found difficult to obtain the quality of flowers necessary to maintain a fine window display, so attractive plants will be required, and the show houses leading from the store or office will need something with bright color to attract attention. The fancy leaved caladiums are beautiful plants for this purpose, and should now be nice plants in four or five-inch pots. Nice plants can be grown in these sizes and they are easily arranged in a bed of green sheet moss and are very attractive. For the young stock now coming on a very light house is an absolute necessity to obtain the highly colored leaves, and almost a full exposure to the rays of the sun. While the plants delight in a moist atmosphere, this must not be obtained by heavy shading, but by frequent syringing and damping down the walks and under the benches. The temperature should be kept warm and close, never dropping below 60 degrees at night, even if a little fire heat is required. They will require copious watering to keep the beautiful leaves in good condition, and considerable feeding to bring the high colors and large, full leaves. Should flower buds form they should be immediately removed, for they will check the growth of the leaves.

Roman Hyacinths.

The first bulbs to arrive will be the Roman hyacinths, and everything should be in readiness to properly care for them as soon as received. When the cases arrive the bulbs should be placed in a cool, dry place; if packed in bags they should be spread out either in flats or shallow boxes and placed where they will neither be too moist nor yet in too dry and warm a location. While it is too early to plant for the winter blooming, still a succession of plantings may be made every week until cool weather, when the balance can be planted up. Almost any soil will grow bulbs successfully but fine results are obtained with soil that has been thrown out from the carnation or rose benches and has lain out over winter to allow it to sweeten a little. When a fall pot plant is wanted a few of the hyacinth bulbs can be planted in bulb pots, but in growing for cut flowers flats are to be preferred, for they are much more economically handled and do not require as much care. In planting the bulbs cover the bottom of the flats with about an inch of soil, placing the bulbs on this quite closely together, yet not touching, as can be done with other bulbs. The flat should then be filled with soil, which should be packed between the bulbs with the ends of the fingers. They should then be given a good watering, enough to wet the soil all the way through and settle it around the bulb. The flats should be placed outside and covered to the depth of about three inches with sand or coal ashes or something that will lie close enough to prevent drying out. A label should be placed at the end with the date of planting, so that the several plantings will be kept separate and can be readily moved into the houses. In four to six weeks they should be well enough rooted to bring them into the house, where they can be placed under a bench until they begin to throw up their flowering spikes.

Anemone Japonica.

One of the most useful perennials for the fall is the Anemone Japonica. It blooms at a time when flowers are very scarce, and if planted where it can be protected from the early frosts will produce quantities of bloom that can be made of use in all classes of floral work. The successful blooming of this plant depends much upon its summer culture. If the season is dry it will require constant watering, in fact, a good soaking. It is a good plan to place the hose in a bed of this and let the water run until the ground is thoroughly wet, and do this as often as may be required. It will amply repay in the long strong shoots, full of blooms, that will be produced in the fall. The florist not possessing a good stock of this beautiful perennial should procure some of it and plant a bed for fall cutting.

Delphiniums.

This perennial has become quite a popular cut flower for summer use and is very decorative and showy. Those that have a stock can increase the plants of the better varieties by propagation at this time. When the plants bloom those that produce the best spikes and are of the best colors should be marked. After the blooms are cut the small growths that break from the stem are very easily rooted. Prepare a bed in a shaded frame and insert the cuttings, watering heavily when first put in. They will need frequent syringing during the hot weather and will root in three to four weeks, when they can be either potted or planted in a frame where they can be given attention. As soon as well established they can be planted in their permanent location, but should be given a little protection during the first winter by throwing a little old straw or some such material over them.

Compost Pile.

The extra help that is so often employed during the spring trade can be utilized for a few days before they are let go, in getting together a good compost pile, and there is no better time of the year than the present to do this.

Colonial Bridal Bouquet.

Design by Students in Floriculture, University of Illinois, Urbana.

The sod can be taken off now after the mowing with no great amount of grass upon it, and if stacked at this time the warm summer days will soon rot the sod and make the pile fine and mellow. So many growers will spend their money for coal and labor and skimp on that most necessary thing for good product, the soil upon which the plant depends for its culture, and again put the matter off until the fall when the days are cold, the soil too often full of moisture, and the hauling poor, which makes the work more expensive and in the end not having as good an article for the succeeding year. It is not necessary to stack the manure with the pile at this time, but if ground bone is to be used it is better to sprinkle it into the pile now. Bone dissolves slowly and the earlier it is incorporated in the soil the better, and it also helps the rotting of the sod. Take advantage of the slack time with both the men and teams and get the compost pile up at once.

Bougainvilleas.

The plants of bougainvilleas that are through blooming should be cut back into shape and potted in preparation for the next season's growth. Much depends upon the summer care of all hard-wooded stock if nice specimens are to be grown. They should be plunged outside in a frame or placed in full sun in a light airy house. Outside culture is far preferable for all this class of stock in order that a good strong growth, well furnished with foliage, may be assured. Be sure that they never get too dry. The great danger of all hard-wooded stock is letting it dry out, for it does not show it as quickly as the softer growing plants, but the check is more severe and the plants seldom fully recover from it. The young stock rooted earlier should be placed in a similar location, and kept well pinched back into shape, until enough shoots have been obtained to insure a good shapely plant, when they can be allowed to grow freely, but any extra strong leaders are better cut back during the season. Any chance flowers that show should be picked off at once, that a good strong stocky plant may be obtained and the strength all retained for that purpose.

Asparagus Baskets.

There is always a good call for hanging baskets of Asparagus Sprengeri and there is nothing more decorative in a store or greenhouse than these beautiful baskets when well put up and when they are growing nicely. The young 3-inch stock will make nice basket work. The wire basket frame should be of good size, eight inches in diameter at least. Line the outside with green sheet moss, which makes a much better appearance than sphagnum, and then fill with good rich soil and plant the young plants in this. The basket, after planting, should be placed in a warm, moist house to encourage rapid growth; a house with a temperature such as palms are grown in is about right. They should be frequently syringed, and as soon as the long fronds have made a good growth they can be removed to lighter and cooler quarters.

COLUMBUS, O.—Declaring her to have been one of the best boosters for the recent rose show of the Columbus Horticultural Society, that organization, following its recent exhibition, presented a crippled newsgirl, who sells papers on the principal thoroughfare of this city, with a huge bunch of Killarney Brilliant roses.

ERIE, PA.—The Erie Floral Co. will discontinue business July 1. The range, which was owned for the past 12 years by the late Wm. F. Kasting, has been taken over by a lettuce grower. Henry J. Wise, who retires as manager, will take a much-needed vacation of a month, after which he will be open for an engagement.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.

Florist Business as an Occupation.

For the young man who is looking for a chance to develop his business talents, the raising and selling of plants, flowers or seeds, offers a great field, in which success depends entirely on his ability and perseverance. A practical knowledge is of such great assistance that it should always be sought through employment with a good firm engaged in the branch of the business which has been selected to pursue.

The cultivation of plants and flowers as a business, while it is constantly increasing, is by many with more or less experience considered too slavish and confining, which is on the principle that almost any trade but the one in which you are engaged is better. Every line of endeavor requires attention and very close application if one is to succeed. The physician selects a profession which, when he has acquired a practice, never gives him a moment that he can call his own. There are any number of similar instances in the various trades that are almost as exacting and confining. Many of the successful growers of today, whose ratings run into six figures, started with very little capital except energy and their knowledge of the business. By their skill, they produced the best in the market for which highest prices were obtained. In their early days the stories of sacrifices and privations necessary to meet bills and lay aside money for improvements, is but a repetition of that which is happening today to other men, who, filled with a like ambition, are climbing the same difficult hill, hoping to attain an even greater success.

In all the large towns and cities of the country there are to be found many successful men engaged in the various branches of the trade, who by close application and good business methods have a standing in their community quite the equal of that of any other profession. American cities are of rapid growth, in which the increase in the value of real estate is of great benefit. The florist takes up several acres necessary for the business in the suburbs where the land is cheap. With his business he is able to carry the ground, until finally it becomes valuable for building lots and is sold at a handsome profit that enables him to retire with a competence. Very often capital acquired in this manner is used in the construction of a much larger range farther out in which the sons, who have been taken into the firm, are interested.

The business of the retail grower in the suburbs, which is one of the largest branches of the craft, often engages the entire family, who, living on the place, as they grow up seem to fall in naturally and are of great assistance in building up the establishment. The girls do the bookkeeping and are also good store assistants. A number of the best artists of the day are women who have learned the business in this way. In many cases, where the founder of the establishment has been struck down in his prime, the business has been carried on successfully by his wife, assisted with the aid of the children, who later assumed the burden and achieved success. In the principal cities are many elegant flower shops in which a large and profitable business is carried on quite the equal of other branches of trade of the same magnitude.

Palmer's Red Cross Campaign.

Buffalo, N. Y., was allotted $1,500,000 as its quota in the national Red Cross campaign, but due to the co-operation of business men, the fund approached the $2,000,000 mark. The active work of W. J. Palmer & Son, the well-known florists of that city, was a feature of the campaign of lively interest. The illustrations herewith show the front of one of the Palmer flower shops with girls in Red Cross uniforms, selling flowers for personal wear, in behalf of the Red Cross Society. The entire proceeds of the sidewalk sales went into the fund.

Bankers and longshoremen alike wore the carnations from Palmer's, showing that they each did a bit more for the "mercy campaign," which finished Monday night with a "jollification dinner" held at Hotel Statler, 400 workers being seated. It was W. J. Palmer & Son's intention to give each worker a carnation, so the four nurses were furnished with a good armful and passed through the banquet room. They were rewarded with many a one-dollar bill. The final act was by Miss Mildred Lowe, Palmer's office girl, who, standing on a chair, auctioned a bunch of carnations, which brought $150. W. J. Palmer & Son's total collections amounted to $465.66.

Opportunity.

"How's trade?" "Oh, fair; one can't expect much these days." The answer also described the appearance of this man's store; in fact, the word "fair" would better apply after the removal of a few passe plants and a general tidying up had taken place.

Conducting a retail cut flower shop is, in some respects, like the publishing of a daily newspaper, each succeeding issue of which must be up-to-date, with every item of news well displayed. Nobody wants yesterday's paper, bright as it was. It is today's extra with the latest happenings that is in demand.

Each day in the flower shop should show something different from the day before. Customers note changes and speak of them; it would be almost impossible to display a new plant or flower each day, but of the very many stocks on hand, this or that can be put forward or changed around so as to present a new arrangement or color scheme. Advantage should be taken of displaying the first of the various seasonable flowers as they come into the market—feature them in the show windows and in the store before their novelty wears off and they become common. There are many people of many minds, and one is never sure of just what is going to "take," but the store, large or small, in which is to be seen something a little different, a trifle out of the ordinary, will find such features profitable.

Every convenient time is an opportunity—when trade is only fair, an opportunity is presented to make it better. New customers mean more trade, better business; to attract them pay more attention to the window display. How does the front look and the sign? Perhaps both would be the better for a touch of paint. Good clothes are said to make the man; they certainly help, and a bright appearing front is a great asset to a store. The window should always be at top notch efficiency; it is worthy of the best thought. More strangers are brought into the store through the fine window displays than by any other means. With some firms this is their sole method of advertising—their windows are kept so attractive that people walk blocks out of their way to see and enjoy them.

Next to the windows the interior of the store should be always clean and inviting, with the stock on hand displayed to the best advantage. This applies to the small as well as to the large shop. A half hour devoted to the rearrangement of carelessly placed plants, pedestals, vases, etc., and the removal of stock past its best, on the counter or in the ice box, often makes a wonderful difference in the appearance of the store.

Opportunity is presented in the various seasons of plenty, when flowers can be purchased in lots at quite low prices. Advantage should always be taken at such times to have sales at special prices, which, while seemingly low, afford a good profit. New customers are frequently added to the list by such offerings. The cash feature of these specials is an important item, as casual buyers just passing, attracted by the display, generally pay cash, but wherever possible the name and address should be secured and placed on the mailing list. Penny stamp card notices of such events have splendid advertising value. They are sure to be read, and if the telephone feature is kept prominently to the front, many orders come in over the wire.

All floral holidays afford opportunity to reach the people and secure new trade that should not be overlooked. Planning out the window display and its arrangement should be done well in advance. Many have found such decorations very good business bringers, well worth the time and expenditure. Nicely lettered cards calling attention to the various window features should always be conspicuously displayed. Persons will stop to read the card that might not otherwise be attracted. Prices, particularly of special sales, should always be prominent, as they are the silent salesmen, always on the job, doing good work, but drawing no salary.

London Flower Show.

The latest show of the Royal Horticultural Society on June 5 was quite an interesting affair. The weather was glorious, and a large number of visitors attended to admire the exhibits and to gladden the hearts of the exhibitors with numerous orders. It may be said that the shows are now held in the old drill hall of the London Scottish Volunteers near St. James park, instead of the society's own hall in Vincent square, owing to the military authorities having taken over the latter. The building, of course, is not so commodious nor so pleasant looking, but it is on the whole much more conveniently get-at-able and was used for show purposes several years after the society was ejected from South Kensington.

Among the exhibits was a fine display of large flowering clematis from Roses were in strong evidence from E. J. Hicks, Twyford; W. Paul & Sons, Waltham Cross, and Frank Cant & Co. of Colchester, all of whom staged very fine groups. Conspicuous in the Hicks group was Miss Alice De Rothschild, which may be described as dwarf growing; Marechal H. Neil, Madam Edouard Herriot, the deep crimson single Princess Mary, and the bright pink Queen of the Belgians.

A very conspicuous exhibit was that of E. Gifford of Hornchurch, Essex, who showed a fine mass of the pure white Raeonia albiflora, which attracted much attention. This is likely to sell well as a cut flower, and may be noted by florists. Dobbie & Co., Edinburgh, made a conspicuous hit with their collection of snapdragons, sweet peas and columbines, all of which were remarkably well grown, and excellently staged by Mr. Ireland, and won the society's gold medal. Mr. Douglas, of Bookham, was in evidence with his lovely border carnations, of which he still seems to be the leading grower. Allwood Bros., Haywards Heath, displayed the American varieties in their usual perfection.

Irises were shown by Wallace & Co., Colchester, in great abundance—practically all hybrid varieties of the bearded irises, such as Germanica, variegata, squalens and pallida. Some lovely forms have been obtained by crossing these and among them may be noted Rhein Nixe, Ossian, Queen Mary, Iris King, Isolene, Prosper-Laugier, Troost and others—really all charming, free flowering garden plants.

Orchids were shown by Low & Co. of Bush Hill Park, Sanders & Sons of St. Albans, and Armstrong & Brown of Tunbridge Wells, and included the species and hybrids of cattleyas, odontoglossums, milltonias, etc.

A good display of lilacs was sent by Mr. Notcutt of Woodbridge, Suffolk, Piper & Sons, Barnes. This firm also exhibited several plants of the pink and purple Cytisus Dallimorei, and the beautiful climbing or scrambling shrub, with drooping red flowers, called Actinidia Henryi, to which an award of merit was given.

while H. B. May, Edmonton, sent a nice collection of hardy ferns. Barr & Sons staged a collection of beautifully grown vegetables, and Cutbush & Sons, Highgate, flowering shrubs, rock plants, etc.

Peterson's Peonies.

It is well worth one's time to visit the Peterson Nursery, Chicago, this week for over three acres of peonies, consisting of more than 50 varieties, are almost in full bloom and are indeed a wonderful sight to behold. The season is unusual this year and about two and one-half weeks late, so it is possible to inspect more varieties right at this period than would be the case at another time. The first stock was cut June 21 and about 7,500 to 12,000 blooms per day are now being shipped to the Chicago wholesale cut flower market, which means that the crop is at present about at its height. Only varieties that have been given a thorough test are offered for sale, which makes it possible for the company to replace with three every plant blooming untrue to description. To fully cover the system that Mr. Peterson has in operation in testing and marketing his varieties would take several pages and it would be then impossible to explain the method as thoroughly and clearly as the proprietor does to the many trade visitors who make a special effort to visit his fields at every possible occasion during the blooming period. As fast as a better variety in any color or class is found than what is now in his collection the old one is discarded, so his list is kept up to the minute at all times. Grandiflora nivea plena, Festina Maxima, Madame de Verneville, Duchesse de Nemours and Alba sulfurea occupy first place in the early white class, while Madame Emile Lemoine, Madame Crousse, Monsieur Dupont and Avalanche so far seem to be the best midseason varieties. In the late white varieties Baroness Schroeder, Couronne d'Or and Marie Lemoine are the leaders, and in the early pale pink class, the same holds true for Octavie Demay, Therese, Delicatissima, Golden Harvest and Eugene Verdier. Marie Crousse, Venus, Albert Crousse and Pierre Ducharte lead in the pale pink midseason sorts and in the late pale pink class Milton Hill and Grandiflora are recommended. Edulis Superba, Alexandriana, Monsieur Jules Elie, Lamartine and Modestie Guerin have given good satisfaction in the early deep pink varieties and the same holds true for Madame Ducler, Princess Beatrice, Docteur Bretonneau, Triomphe de l'Exposition de Lille and Queen Emma in the midseason class. Claire Dubois and Livingstone are two good late deep pinks and Monsieur Martin Cahuzac, Karl Rosenfeld, Augustin d'Hour, Madame Gaudichau and Pierre Dessert are fine early reds. Monsieur Krelage, Felix Crousse and Prince Prosper d'Arenberg are this firm's best midseason reds and same applies to Delachei, Eugene Bigot and General Davoust in the late blooming red class. Mikado, a beautiful late single red, of which the supply is limited, attracts much attention and so does Albiflora. The Bride, or La France, a late single white. In addition to peonies this firm has a splendid collection of irises covering several acres. Elmer Erickson, son of August Erickson, who has been foreman for 36 years, is of great assistance to Mr. Peterson in showing the visitors through the fields when they come in such large numbers that he is unable to handle them all himself. Their 1917 price list of peonies and irises is now on the press and will be ready for mailing in a few days. All trade prices will be watched with interest this year, owing to the present existing conditions and while some varieties may advance in price, others will be listed below the figures quoted last season.

Odontioda Gladys.

The accompanying illustration is of the new and rare Odontioda Gladys, a cross between Odontioda Bradshawia and Odontoglossum Pescatorei. This was sent out by Lowe & Son of London two years ago and is now in the collection of Arthur N. Cooley, Pittsfield, Mass. The separate florets are of good size, with bronzy, chocolate spots on a light golden brown ground. It was staged in Mr. Cooley's collection at the recent Boston outdoor show together with a number of well-flowered odontoglossums and other choice orchids and attracted great attention.

Mealy Bug.

ED AMERICAN FLORIST:

I am at a loss to know what to do for mealy bug. I have tried fumigating, nicotene spray and Aphine spray without result. They are principally on coleus. I would like some information as to how to get rid of them.

H. M. F.

Michigan.

The most effective means that the writer had found to rid coleus of mealy bug is cold water. Before putting the cuttings in the sand they should be carefully examined for any signs of mealy bug; if any are found the cuttings are dipped in ice cold water and the mealy bug rubbed off with the thumb and finger. The same process is followed when the rooted cuttings are taken from the sand. Then, after the young plants are well established in the pot, they are well syringed every week or so. By attending closely to this we are able to keep them clean while in the house. It is after they are planted outdoors that we have most of the trouble, especially when the plants are growing where it is at all shaded.

FLORISTS' PALMS.

Work for the Early Summer Months.

The months of May, June and July cover a busy period in the palm houses, from the fact that there is always more or less of an accumulation of work after the spring trade is over, and the sooner this work can be done the better it is for the stock.

The unusually cool and dark weather during May has retarded the growth of some stock, and made it necessary to continue fire heat longer than is required in the majority of seasons, but from this time forward really warm weather may be looked for, with the result that the growth of the palms will rapidly go ahead. But the fact that the weather is, or has been, cold this spring need not hold back the grower in making his preparations for the summer growth of the stock, for root action among the palms renews its activity at very nearly the same date each season, providing that normal growing temperatures are maintained in the greenhouses, the chief difference being found in slower leaf growth in a cold and cloudy season.

One of the first requisites during this period of more active growth is an abundance of water, both at the root and overhead, but with this abundant watering there must also be good drainage, for these plants will not thrive with stagnant water surrounding the roots. Frequent and vigorous syringing is also required to keep down the insects, for even some of the scale insects when in their youthful and unattached condition may be destroyed by a good pressure of water carefully applied, and thrips and red spider will also find their position untenable under such treatments. But black and brown scale insects that have settled down on the leaves cannot be removed by syringing, and will endure more than one dipping in soap solution without suffering greatly therefrom. This dipping process is a good measure to precede the repotting and may be used as a preventive measure, even if but few insects are visible.

The question of keeping the stock clean is simply that of keeping everlastingly at it, a thing that is very difficult to do during busy shipping periods, as for example, in spring and fall, and particularly so when the supply of labor is rather behind the demand, as seems to have been the case in many places during the past year or two.

It is not an easy matter to lay down rules to be followed in repotting, owing to the variations in size and condition of the plants from one lot of seed, but if the stock is selected carefully before potting in such a manner that a batch of one size is handled at a time it is much easier for the potters and gives a much better effect on the bench after the stock is rearranged. Potting should be firm, without ramming to such a degree that the water cannot get through freely, and some drainage material, either crocks or cinders, should be used in all pots from the 4-inch size upwards.

Few of the chemical fertilizers have much value to the palm grower, the most satisfactory manure for this purpose being that from the stable, but not in a very fresh condition.

Made-up specimens still seem most in favor in the kentia market, and to provide such stock requires a goodly number of plants, for the majority of these specimens are formed from four plants put together in a tub or pot, the ultimate result depending very largely on the taste of the man who does the work, for he not only has to arrange his plants in the tub for immediate effect, but also must take into consideration the effect that will be had from the new leaves that may be starting. Then these plants must be put in the tub without too much bruising of the roots, else some of them will suffer afterwards. It is also very necessary that these plants shall be thoroughly watered after potting, so that the old balls and also the new soil may be moistened through. For the first two or three weeks after potting close attention to syringing and ventilation will be required to get the plants re-established and started away properly. Later in the season much more air and light should be given in order to give the foliage that good texture and firm character that appeals to the decorator, and the kentias are decidedly the palms that the decorator is looking for. Various species that have been used to some extent in the past are seldom seen in quantity now, and among these was Phoenix canariensis, a fine palm for some classes of work, and one that at one period was imported in considerable quantities from Europe.

Nowadays one sees but few phoenix, with the exception of that very beautiful dwarf variety, P. Roebelenii, and even in that case the market seems less fully supplied now than it was two or three years ago, a fact that is less due to a falling off in popularity than to a reduction of seed supply. There is at present no special means used to conserve and regulate the supply of phoenix seeds, as has been done in the case of the kentias, so it seems probable this difficulty may continue for a time, unless some new source of supply be discovered. Defective packing and long distance shipments are two contributing causes to the failure or low percentage of germination of many of the palm seeds received by growers, and undoubtedly cause considerable losses each year.

Cocos seed is very variable in quality, and those who grow this useful palm in quantity have to invest in much larger quantities of this seed than would be required if one could get it in such a growing condition as the seeds of livistonas, for example. Much areca seed is also worthless when it reaches the grower, and yet there is an occasional shipment that will germinate 90 per cent.

So, between war expenses, poor seeds and other high charges, it seems reasonable that some items in the palm list should bring the grower a slightly higher price than once obtained.

TORONTO, ONT.—The W. J. Lawrence Floral Co., Ltd., 152 Roselawn avenue, has been granted a charter with a capital stock of $75,000, to conduct business as wholesale and retail florists and market gardeners.

Plant Supply for Fall.

Can the almost complete cessation of plant exports from Europe be met and overcome by American growers, many of whom, while large importers in the past, are now inclined to view the situation as merely inconvenient, and will they, as they seem to believe at present, be able to supply all reasonable demands? There will be some azaleas, as at least half of the stock imported last fall came through in good condition but did not flower; this can be summered here very nicely and will find a good market next spring.

In trying to get a line on this important situation the writer visited a number of the prominent growers in the vicinity of Philadelphia, Pa., the first being the great establishment of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Riverton, N. J., and where J. G. Eisele, the director-in-chief of this great nursery and without doubt one of the greatest palm specialists in America, gave assurance that there was nothing alarming in the situation. This firm is well prepared to take care of all of its customers, having a full line of everything in palms, ferns and other decorative plants. When asked if he expected any importations during the coming fall, he replied that one man's guess was as good as another's.

OTHER GROWERS OPTIMISTIC.

The Jos. Heacock Co., Philadelphia, is as well stocked as usual at this season, although they have enjoyed an unusually good spring trade. Their stock, all home-grown, is in hand to supply their usual demands for the next three years. There is also an allowance to meet the increasing demand. This firm has always sold out, notwithstanding the foreign competition, and feels that it is now in a better condition than ever.

Mark Mills, of W. K. Harris, Philadelphia, reports no importations this fall. No azaleas or other European stock had been ordered. This firm felt that they could fill their houses with American grown stock, nearly all of it their own production. Hydrangeas had sold very well the past season, being taken in preference to the poorly flowered azaleas. He felt sure the florists of this country could stand alone.

A. Leuthy & Co., of Boston, Mass., the senior member of which firm has been visiting growers in this city recently, is positive that shipments from abroad will be made this fall. There are lots of palms in Belgium, as, where they are grown, in Ghent and Bruges, there has been no fighting. He is sure they will take advantage of whatever opportunity presents to turn them into money.

The firm of Godfrey Aschmann, Philadelphia, had a large order of araucarias, aspidistras and palms to have landed this spring, but has received word not to expect them. Foreign salesmen are taking conditional orders, but Mr. Aschmann thinks it will be well not to count on much this fall.

The Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia, feels it will be able to take care of the trade as usual, their home-grown stock here being larger than ordinarily grown. As to foreign importations, the azalea and hulf men promise deliveries, but whether they can make good or not is anybody's guess.

Flower Show Innovation.

An innovation in the way of flower shows, which met with considerable success, was tried in New Brunswick, N. J., April 12-15, 1917. Instead of having the flowers all grouped together in one large building or room, according to the conventional method of holding flower shows, exhibits were placed in various store windows along George street, the main business street of the city. The purpose of employing this new and very novel method of displaying the flowers was to attract the notice not only of those who would be willing to take the trouble to visit a show held in a special building, but also of those who are not interested in flowers or their cultivation and whose attention could be gotten only by placing the flowers where their eyes could not fail to fall upon them often during the walk to and from business or at other times during the day.

Judging from the number of people who might be seen gathered around the windows in which the different exhibits were placed, this original method of displaying flowers was very successfully introduced. And besides the success attending it as a flower show, another phase of it is worthy of note—its advertising value. No difficulty was experienced in obtaining the use of store windows in which to place the exhibits, and it is certain that should another such event take place many more merchants would be willing and anxious to offer the use of their windows.

Another advantage of this method was that it gave one the opportunity of appreciating the beauty and attractiveness of the individual blooms. After visiting a flower show of the kind usually held one retains but an impression of a riot of confused and mingled beauty, with no distinct and vivid remembrance of individual flowers or plants. Seeing the various exhibits one at a time, however, with the name of each bloom plainly written on a card attached to it, one is able to remember those which appear most attractive for reference when planning a home garden.

Boston Yellow Daisies.

Boston is noted for many things, not the least of which is the excellence of its yellow daisies. James Wheeler, whose greenhouses are near Natick Junction, on the Worcester trolley road, 17 miles from Boston, has long made a specialty of the yellow daisy, and his product always commands the top price in the market. He has always received first prize at the exhibitions for the great excellence of his perfected strain. At present his stock consists of about 10,000 plants, 6,500 of which are in one-half of a large house, 60x300 feet, and were set out last fall and are now four feet in height. They are in beds on the ground about six inches in depth with board sides.

The cuttings are rooted through the late winter and spring months, those for his own use being grown during the summer in a shaded house kept as cool as possible. These are planted in the beds in early September and encouraged to make as much growth as possible. There is no drying off to throw them into flower. They are kept on the go all the time. As they get up they are staked much the same as carnations, except that the wires are farther apart. The house is very light with continuous sun from early until late. Some plants grow much stronger than others, which latter, while apparently coming blind, will take on a new growth and bloom profusely. Mr. Wheeler is very particular in the selection of his cuttings and this continued for a period of years has resulted in a perfected strain of giant flowers with long stems that seem like another variety.

A house just commencing to come in, which was planted during the last week of November, contains 3,500 plants. As the days lengthen and the sun gets stronger, every shoot produces perfect flowers. Last year, during the week preceding Memorial day, he picked 60,000 flowers from 6,500 plants. This year, with two houses, he expects his crop to be 100,000. They are graded in four sizes. He has often had flowers with stems 24 inches in length. They are grown at a carnation temperature; in fact, half of one end of the house is planted to carnations, which are as wonderful as the daisies. Benora has never been done better anywhere, the flowers being wonderfully fine. Alice has flowered freely, averaging up to 12 flowers to a plant up to March 15. Nancy is a favored sort, better than Delight and much easier to root, 6,000 cuttings having been taken and rooted from 500 plants this winter. Mr. Wheeler plants his carnations seven inches apart each way in the bed; they were the picture of health.

About 50,000 rooted daisy cuttings are now in stock. The illustration close up is of one large plant four feet in height, showing 25 open flowers. The general view is of a house planted with rooted cuttings January 1, the photo taken May 6.

Providence, R. I.

WEEK'S BUSINESS VERY SATISFACTORY.

With graduations and numerous weddings the trade has been quite busy during the past week. There seem to have been more flowers used at graduations this year than in several years. Stock is plentiful and of good quality, with the exception of carnations. A number of growers are commencing to clean out their houses as the flowers are not worth growing, and at this writing are bringing very low prices. Sweet peas are poor and bachelor buttons, which are now very good, are selling well. Peonies have started to come in and the quality is excellent. The season for them in this vicinity this year is extremely late, but all growers seem to have good crops. The outdoor men report a good season, all having been kept busy.

NOTES.

The flower show of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society has been postponed to a later date on account of the backward season, there being no outdoor stock worthy of display.

T. O'Connor had orders for quantities of good stock at an elaborate wedding during the past week.

Cincinnati.

SUPPLY SHORTENS; BUSINESS FAIR.

The supply of stock in this market is not nearly as large as it was a fortnight ago, but still it is large enough to take care of all present needs. Business is fair. Roses are in heavy supply. Generally the offerings are of a good quality, but sometimes considerable mildewed stock comes into the wholesale houses. The carnation supply has slackened very considerably. Easter lilies are fairly plentiful, and as the supply lets up, will be good property. Some excellent gladioli are arriving. Lily of the valley has been meeting with a good, but at times, unsteady demand. Other offerings are sweet peas, snapdragons, cornflowers, and coreopsis.

NOTES.

COAL supplies for next winter should be secured now. A prominent dealer says June 15 to July 15 is the best time for florists to buy.

STREET PEDDLERS.—Acting upon protests of florists of Wilmington, Del., the chief of police will stop street merchants from Philadelphia, who pay no licenses, from selling on the streets.

JULY FOURTH.

As the American Florist will go to press next week one day earlier than usual on account of the holiday, advertisers and correspondents will oblige by sending in their copy as early as possible.

Tornado Victim Aid.

In an editorial under the above caption in our issue of June 16, page 1162, we called attention to a letter from Secretary J. F. Ammann of the Illinois State Florists' Association, who asked for aid for A. D. King of Mattoon, Ill., whose range was completely destroyed by a tornado on May 26, details of which were reported in these columns. In a more recent communication Secretary Ammann writes as follows:

"After further communication with A. D. King of Mattoon, Ill., he writes me that he has no stock left. So, if any florist can spare him some chrysanthemum or carnation plants, or any other stock, I would suggest that they write to Mr. King what can be spared, so that he can select what he can use best. Many, I am sure, who cannot contribute cash will cheerfully give a few plants to a fellow craftsman in distress."

Woman's National Gardening Association.

The Mid-West branch of the Woman's National Farm and Gardening Association is encouraging women interested in rural life to take the summer courses in farm and garden work at the state universities in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan or Wisconsin, or at such centers as the School for Horticulture at Lake Forest, Ill.

A short course in practical gardening at a state university is valuable. In the middle Atlantic states the following offer practical instruction in gardening: Columbia University, New York; New York Botanical Garden, Bronx park; the woman's section of the Navy League, co-operating with the New York School of Agriculture, Farmingdale, L. I.; New York College of Agriculture, Ithaca; Alfred University, Alfred, N. Y.; Connecticut Agricultural College, Storrs; Delaware College, Newark; Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst, and the School of Horticulture, Ambler, Pa. Many of the courses are extensive in the branches of farming, animal husbandry and farm home canning, preserving vegetables, fruits, etc.

Miss Lena M. McCauley, of the publicity committee, 1653 Monadnock building, Chicago, states that during the past month that office has had over 50 letters from women asking for work on farms. Iowa has thousands of women earning a living on farms and Illinois and the middle west invites them to their opportunities.

A meeting of the association will be held at the Art Institute, Chicago, July 7, at 2 p. m., at which the subject, "Direct Marketing—From Producer to Consumer," will be discussed. Arrangements are being made for the first national conference to be held in Chicago October 4-5.

Fowler-Palmer.

A very pretty home wedding took place at the residence of W. J. Palmer, the well-known florist of Buffalo, N. Y., June 16, the occasion being the marriage of Mildred Lucille, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Palmer, to Raymond P. Fowler, a member of the American ambulance corps in France. The conservatory where the ceremony was performed was resplendent with bloom, and the stairway which the bridal party descended, had been transformed into a bower of June flowers leading to the chancel. The glass walls were curtained with smilax, while from the ceiling many beautiful orchids were suspended.

The Girl With the Hoe.

Girls and young women are taking the war in earnest. At Farmingdale, L. I., the state farming school is attended by 40 young women, who do all the work there is to be done about the farm. They are learning to operate tractors, handle horses, care for livestock and chickens, and to rise early in the morning.

Miss Virginia Gildersleeve, dean of Barnard College, who attended the opening exercises of the school, stated that she believed there is an urgent need for an employment bureau where farmers may apply for capable woman farm hands. Miss Gildersleeve was frank. "I am ashamed to confess that I don't know a carrot from a turnip," she said, "but I do think that women can and will make a success of this work. Comprising intellectual, scientific and muscular exertion, it should be ideal work."

But the girls have the Liberty Spirit of 1917. They sing at their work to the tune of "Tipperary":

It's a hard job to plant potatoes—
 It's a darn sight worse to hoe;
 It's a hard job to weed tomatoes,
 When the pesky things do grow;
 Farewell to all the bright lights,
 Good-bye, old Broadway—
 We are all out here to serve our country,
 And you bet we'll stay.

Coal Situation at Chicago.

There is a slight possibility that the approaching warm weather may cause a weakness in some coals. General warnings have been issued however that a coal famine is a possibility, the keynote to the situation being the car shortage. In central Illinois, many mines are sold up a month ahead. In smokeless not enough can be taken out to fill contract orders. In the Indiana field, there was a slight drop for a few days, but prices rallied quickly on heavy buying. Quotations in effect June 23 were as follows:

WARM WEATHER DEPRESSES BUSINESS.

The weather during the past week has been unusually warm and it has had a rather depressing effect on business. The forepart of the week there was quite a call for stock for graduation exercises, but otherwise trade may be said to be quiet. Very large quantities of stock are coming along and prices change from day to day, but the wholesalers, as a rule, do not turn down any reasonable offer made for stock. The quality of most stock, especially roses, has suffered considerably from the effects of the heat. Carnations are much inferior in quality to those offered a few weeks ago. The demand for them is light. Roses can be had in any quantity desired and at low figures. Sweet peas are deteriorating rapidly these warm days, the red varieties and the different shades of orange in particular showing their inability to stand the sun's rays, except where protected by cheese cloth. The street vendors are showing a great variety of stock just now and a large part of the daily cut finds its way to them. Large quantities of gladioli are being sent in, particularly Mrs. Francis King, America and Panama. They all give a very bright appearance to the various stores. The quality is particularly good this year, owing to the cool growing season. Peonies are gone and so is Spanish iris. Large quantities of delphiniums, gaillardias and coreopsis are seen, all of which may be had at bargain prices. Quite a few watonias are on hand. They are of excellent quality and are proving very popular. There are sufficient orchids and gardenias to meet all requirements.

NOTES.

The Menlo Park Horticultural Society has turned over approximately $500 to the American Red Cross, same being the proceeds of the sweet pea show. The exhibition committee was instructed to make inquiries as to the advisability of holding their annual chrysanthemum show in this city at either the St. Francis or Palace hotel. They are to report at the next meeting. The society appointed a committee to take charge of the arrangements for the annual picnic, which will be held very shortly.

With three dahlia shows already under way in this city, it would seem that the fanciers of this popular flower will be very much in evidence this season. President T. A. Burns of the Dahlia Society of California is leaving nothing undone to make the two shows his society will give, successful. Two splendid managers have been selected in Angelo J. Rossi and Leslie Doolittle. This society is affiliated with the American Dahlia Society and will receive an annual A. D. S. medal for competition.

The American Florist flower shop, Chas. Haffenbach, proprietor, always has a very attractive window display. Mr. Haffenbach has a very desirable trade in this section of the city and reports himself as well pleased with his season's business. He is an enthusiastic motorist and when his business affairs permit is often on trips throughout the state.

The chrysanthemum growers are much pleased with the warm spell and are now busily engaged in covering all their stock with cheese cloth houses. Stock in general is in very good shape. The acreage planted is somewhat larger than that of last season. The greater part of the chrysanthemum cut will find its way to northern and eastern points.

Albert Brownell, president and general manager of the Portland Wholesale Nursery Company, is spending some time in this city on a visit. His firm is one of the well-known northern growers of fruit and ornamental trees doing a large business in this state.

Julius Eppstein says he is gratified at the way business has held up at his store. While not one of the largest, it is always stocked with the very best of everything in the cut flower line, particular attention being paid to orchids, gardenias and lily of the valley.

Owing to the uncertainty of the coal supply the Lynch Nursery Company at Menlo Park is changing its heating system to fuel oil instead of coal. This is expected to prove a much more economical way than by using coal.

W. Snyders, representing P. Van Nes, of Boskoop, Holland, has been calling on the nurserymen in this vicinity on his annual trip. He left for home during the week.

BUSINESS DURING JUNE VERY GOOD.

Unusual activity in retail circles marks the fast approaching close of the fiscal season with florists. Weddings and the school commencements are, as heretofore, requiring a great many flowers, but while weddings are perhaps more numerous than during the same period a year ago, it is noted that elaborate decorations are unusual this year because of unusual conditions. Happily, in other branches of the business this curtailment is not so perceptible and some dealers claim a marked increase, notably in outdoor planting, which has consumed all the available stock locally grown, and in some items outside markets were reached to meet the demand. Local grown peonies are now with us in great quantities and yet no surplus is noted on the market. Lilies, gladioli, roses and an improvement in the quality of carnations coming in is the substance of the seasonable supply, which gives promise to continue for some time yet with favorable weather.

NOTES.

On June 22 members of the florists' club to the number of 27 enjoyed a fishing outing at Algonac, Mich., on the St. Clair river. A special car on the Rapid Railway was engaged and destination was reached about noon, when under the guidance of Wm. Digger several row boats were launched with the party and the lines baited for the fine fish the river at this point is noted for. At the conclusion of the day's effort and pleasure a fish supper was served at the Park hotel and the return to the city made at a late hour. Varying were the results with the would-be fishermen, but John Klang, J. K. Stock and Jos. Streit were able to make quite a showing of their catch on the return trip, but some of the less fortunate declare that the Indians of Walpole Island, near the fishing scene, who convoyed the trio named, were responsible for their apparent good luck, but the whole party enjoyed themselves immensely and another similar outing is planned for early in July. This time, however, the boys will be the guests of A. H. Plumb, who early in the season extended the invitation. Mr. Plumb has a summer home on the river, near Algonac, and a most enjoyable time is contemplated by the visitors.

A new floral store will be opened in the Hodges building on Griswold street July 1. The enterprise will be conducted by a New York man and a local partner.

The seedsmen's convention, held here last week, brought many visitors who had friends among the local florists, who aided in their entertainment while here.

Philip Breitmeyer and wife left June 17 for an extended visit with their married daughter at Lewiston, Mont.

J. A. Bissinger, Lansing, Mich., who is a member of the local club, joined the fishing party here last week.

BIG SUPPLY AND SLACK DEMAND.

Market conditions were very slow during the past week, owing to an oversupply of nearly every kind of greenhouse grown stock, and a slack demand that was unable to keep the large supply moving. The latter part of the week, conditions improved somewhat, owing to the large high school dance which called for numerous corsages, and the Red Cross campaign, which ended June 23, and for which several florists had orders for hundreds of carnations. Counter trade has been only moderately good, and there is a lull in funeral work.

NOTES.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are using part of their glass for the cultivation of vegetables this season, and are devoting two houses to tomato plants. These are from five to six feet high, and the fruit is wholesaling at 15 cents per pound. They are also growing several hundred muskmelon plants. This firm is replanting roses, and their carnation cut is very large. Some excellent gloxinias were noted here.

The Doswell Floral Co. is receiving quantities of roses and carnations from their greenhouses. Weddings have been numerous here, and counter trade holds up well. Miss Bon Silene Doswell will leave soon for St. Louis, Mo., for a visit of some weeks with her sister, Mrs. H. J. Wickman, who was formerly Miss Rhoda Doswell.

Markey Bros. are displaying some fine plants, including begonias, gloxinias, and fuchsias in their show window. They report a good trade this month, with weddings taking the lead.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. sold several hundred carnations for the Red Cross campaign here on last Saturday. They report trade as very good, with weddings creating an excellent demand.

Some fine hydrangeas were noted at the store of Edgar Wenninghoff. He reports trade good in wedding work and corsages. A good variety of cut flowers was on display here.

Mrs. Mary Patten, of this city, is spending several weeks in Toledo, O., where she is the guest of her daughter, Miss Helen Patten, of the Patten Flower Shop.

Miss Marguerite Flick, of the Flick Flower Shop, is spending several days at a house party at Sylvan lake, Rome City, Ind.

Fredericton, N. B.

This locality is experiencing the worst weather conditions in 40 years. Sunless, wet weather has been the rule and crops are three weeks behind. Farmers cannot get on their land except in very dry positions. The prospects are certainly gloomy. The only thing that looks well is the grass. With the weeks divided into two days of fair weather and five days of rain, the gardens are growing up with weeds and little can be done. Unless an open, dry, warm period comes soon there will be no normal harvest. The demand for funeral work and cut flowers has been about as usual.

PEONIES ARE IN LARGE SUPPLY.

Stock is very plentiful, especially home-grown peonies, which are arriving in larger numbers and are seen in quantity at all the stores. The quality of the peonies in general now offered in this market is good and choice stock can be had in quantity lots at very reasonable prices. American Beauty roses are in good supply and so are Mrs. Chas. Russell, Ophelia, Sunburst, My Maryland, Champ Weiland, Killarney, White Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, Milady, Richmond, Rhea Reid and all the other varieties grown for this market are to be had in quantity and there is hardly ever a scarcity in any one item. Carnations are plentiful and are moving fairly well, considering the present market conditions. Orchids continue to be in good demand and clean up nicely every day. Lily of the valley is holding its own at the advertised quotations. Lilies are seen in large supply at several of the stores, but the receipts of callas are nothing to speak of. Sweet peas are still arriving in good supply and at times clean up nicely. Snapdragons, daisies, feverfews, statice, calendulas, gladioli, candytufts, gypsophilas, coreopsis, pond lilies and other miscellaneous indoor and outdoor stock is included in the daily shipments. New ferns are more plentiful and have dropped considerably in price. Business has been good the past week and the majority of the wholesalers report that the total sales for June will show a great increase over those of the same month of last year. The cold weather has helped business considerably and it is surprising how well the out-of-town demand is holding up.

JUNE BUSINESS SHOWS USUAL AVERAGE.

Business for June will show about the average total for the month, the cool late spring probably accounting for a little more than usual of belated June planting of flower beds and veranda boxes. Funeral work has kept up well and has been the mainstay for business, with fair local supplies to take care of the demand. June weddings have probably been more numerous than usual, but few of them meant much for the florist. The instances where the contracting parties have surprised their friends by announcement of their wedding, have been so numerous as to call for newspaper comment. War influence, most likely. The weather for June has been genuine summer and undesirably dry. A steadily accumulating deficiency of rainfall since last autumn makes the condition a really serious one, affecting both farming interests and florists. The prospects for summer trade are problematic. The war's various influences will probably shorten up the casual social demand, while the funeral demand will likely be unaffected. Summer flower crops are still in fair condition, ample in quantity planted, but much depends upon moderate summer temperature. Even artificial watering does not avail much against continued high temperature and hot winds. Indoor plantings of chrysanthemums are looking well—and about the usual quantities are being provided. C.

GREAT FALLS, MONT.—The spring trade has been excellent this year, with all florists enjoying capacity business, according to the Electric City Conservatory. Sales at this establishment are reported 54 per cent better than in May, 1916, Memorial day trade showing a gain of 10 per cent.

LOW PRICES RULED BY OVERSUPPLY.

Weather conditions during the past few weeks have caused stocks of all kinds to come into this market in great quantities, much of it selling at very low prices and the street peddlers were well supplied. Roses are very plentiful and in most cases wide open, especially the Killarneys; Ophelia and Russell, however, are seen in good form.

Home-grown carnations do not amount to much, but the Colorado stock is excellent with fine stems and big flowers. Lilies are plentiful. Other stocks of cheaper grade, such as larkspurs, delphiniums, gypsophilas, bachelor buttons, sweet peas and calendulas, make up the balance of the offerings.

NOTES.

H. Kusik & Co. are handling an immense supply of roses and report prices the lowest ever. The stock of Colorado carnations here is of very fine quality. They are arranging for a new line of supplies and a carload of sphagnum moss is being received.

A. F. Barbe reports a season of excellent business in bedding stock, much of the surplus cleaning up nicely.

Biederman & Son report hedging stock about cleaned up. Orders for weddings have been numerous.

CHICAGO'S LARGEST DEALERS IN DECORATIVE GREENS.

W. J. Barnes had an exceptionally good week of bedding plant business. The demand for porch boxes is coming along nicely. Funeral work and wedding orders are also up to standard.

Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. reports stock cheap and plentiful. A fine showing of hydrangeas is being made at the store. The chrysanthemum houses are all planted.

T. J. Noll & Co. report a glutted market, and even at the lowest prices on record much stock is going to waste.

Ed Humfeld has his chrysanthemums all planted. He reports the best spring business he ever had.

A. Newell has all the trade that can be expected with a heavy run on funeral orders.

August Luther has purchased a new Ford auto. E. J. B.

TRADE BETTER THAN FOR SOME TIME.

Business conditions for the past week were good and considerable better than for some time past. Beginning about the middle of the month a shortage of roses had a tendency to give the other lines of cut flowers a better show, and with an increased demand for weddings, funerals, and especially school closing exercises, the market was kept in a healthy condition the best part of the time. Good sweet peas were not overplentiful and brought good prices. Due to the continual cool weather, especially at night, the supply in most lines was held in check for the time being. Now that the schools are closed, the exodus of those fortunate enough to have summer homes will again have its effects in that business will shortly assume its regular summer gait, and as the outdoor planting season of bedding stock is practically over, one must admit that either the demand was not ahead of last year or that more of that line of stock was produced, for everyone has just a little more left than in former seasons. This can be blamed partially to the backward season, which is fully two to three weeks behind, plus the uncertain business conditions and higher cost of most everything you look at or touch. But it is not nearly so bad but what it might be a good deal worse.

NOTES.

We regret to announce that Harrison E. Mann, better known among the craft as "Harry," for four years previous to last fall an employe of Gust. Rusch & Co., died June 18, at the age of 28 years. About eight years ago, he entered the employ of Nic Zweifel, then at North Milwaukee, where he remained for about three years, later joining the Rusch Co.'s force. Early last summer he opened a retail store at 2440 Vliet street, but by fall, due to ill health, was forced to abandon all work. The funeral was held June 20, with interment at Union cemetery. He is survived by his mother and a brother, his wife having died about a year ago. Harry was a good natured lad, always smiling and trying to help everyone be happy, and in his parting we lose a friend.

The worst rain and electrical storm since the establishment of the local weather bureau swept over this city and the surrounding country from 11:45 p. m. to 4 a. m. June 22-23, doing damage which will run up into the hundred thousands of dollars. The official report states that 5.8 inches of water fell, and consequently all low lands are under water, bridges washed away, railway tracks and beds damaged so as to hinder proper transportation and putting a good many telephones out of commission. While many a florist's cellar was flooded, we have not up to this time heard of serious loss among the local craft.

C. C. Pollworth returned June 24 from a pleasant and successful week's fishing trip, spent at Pelican Lake, with several large muskelonge and pike as evidence. He returned after the severe storm and reports that one of their boiler pits contained so much water that it nearly extinguished the fires.

The Wauwatosa Floral Co. found a wooden bridge and plenty of timber on their premises after the storm on Saturday last; the owner has not claimed it to date.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. reports shipping to date very satisfactory; June 25 was an exceptionally good day, everything cleaning up fine.

Emil Schmitz & Sons, florists, on the south side, report all their outdoor vegetable crops under water at this time.

GOOD SUPPLY, GOOD QUALITY, PRICES LOW.

The market during the past week was quiet. Everything in flowers was in good supply and of good seasonable quality. Sweet peas are the only real glut. Outdoor stock to date has been very fine and plenty of it, but on account of the oversupply, cleans up only in large bargain sales. Carnations are just about holding their own on account of the heat. Roses, such as Russell, Ophelia, Sunburst and Hoosier Beauty, are extra fine, but the Killarneys are very poor. American Beauties are also poor, with a light demand. Callas and lilies are plentiful and the price low. All outdoor stock, such as coreopsis, larkspurs, gaillardias, cornflowers, etc., is beginning to suffer from the continued heat. New fancy ferns have arrived on the market and still command the high water mark price. Other green are good and equal to requirements.

NOTES.

Oscar May, of Kirkwood, has announced a "big party" for some Saturday night in the near future at his place. He says he decided to have an evening party in preference to Sunday afternoon, because so many of the boys have sore arms on Monday from playing ball. Our opinion is, he is only looking for an alibi, because he can't play ball—but can he dance? Ask him.

W. A. Rowe, of Kirkwood, is going to discontinue his retail business entirely, beginning July 1, as it takes too much of his time from his ever-increasing greenhouse trade. Kirkwood would be a good location for some up-to-date retail man, as the business is there, and it just needs some one to get it.

Geo. H. Angermueller has been getting in some very fine carnations, which would be a great credit to a grower in midwinter. They have a ready sale. Mr. Angermueller intends to go East to attend the S. A. F. convention and buy new novelties in the supply line, which he goes into so heavily.

Some fine window displays are seen here these days, with the great variety of outdoor stock to be had. These displays of outdoor flowers create quite a demand, and aside from this, also make a big demand for the plantsmen to furnish perennials for old-fashioned gardens.

The downtown florists are featuring special sales on sweet peas at five cents per bunch, and from reports they are disposing of tremendous quantities.

Geo. B. Windler has worked up a nice retail trade at his greenhouses on Delore avenue the past few years, and he states it is improving by leaps and bounds.

BUSINESS GOOD DESPITE SUMMER EXODUS.

With the approach of summer the annual hegra to the cooler spots has already commenced, but that has not affected good business among the local florists, and dealers have had all they could do to furnish an adequate supply of flowers. Roses and carnations are getting very small, but they answer their purpose very well, especially in funeral designs, but in this line of work there is little doing. Ophelia is about the best rose in this market at present, with Russell a good second. There are some Killarneys, both pink and white, but they are small in size. Sweet peas are plentiful and Japanese iris finds a place in funeral work. Bermuda lilies, hardy white hydrangeas, as well as candytuft and like small flowers, are numerous. Bedding plants are still plentiful and the demand is good, although the best selling is over.

NOTES.

During the recent canvass for the Red Cross fund a young couple said they had no money, but would gladly give a beautiful hydrangea which they prized very highly. This was accepted and was put up at auction. It was "knocked down" at $40 and the purchaser promptly donated it back, and then, following a brisk period of bidding, it was finally sold for $140. It was a fine plant, with about 15 well-developed blooms.

The Joy Floral Co. opened its Chattanooga branch with a splendid showing and good business from the start. Three thousand roses and carnations were distributed as souvenirs. Mrs. Thomas C. Joy and Miss Lillian Joy are visiting in that city.

MARKET CONDITIONS MUCH BRIGHTER.

Market conditions have greatly improved over last week. Roses are scarce and command good prices. Carnations are plentiful and bring $1.50 a hundred, with the exception of where large quantities are sold, and then $10 a thousand is big money. The local crop of peonies is just coming in, and has the preference over southern grown stock and sells for $6 to $12 a hundred. Sweet peas are moving well and holding at $1 a hundred. Plenty of outdoor lily of the valley is arriving and selling as high as $4 a hundred. Francis King and America gladioli are coming in slowly and call for good prices.

NOTES.

Ernest Borowski last reported improving very slowly. The doctors say four months more before he will be able to get out of the hospital. They are to have an X-ray examination to find out just how badly he is hurt. The autoist who ran into his machine was sent to jail for three months.

The attendance for the outdoor flower show was booked as 10,000 paid admissions. This does not include the first day, which was given over to the Red Cross, which receipts were far greater than the remainder.

Paul Richwagon still ships to market his wonderful pink snapdragon, Virginia, and it is the best he has ever grown—wonderful strong stems, large head and heavily flowered.

H. M. Robinson & Co. report very good business, with orders coming in for the summer trade very good—in fact, Charles Robinson says, better than last year.

William Stickle is shipping to his salesman, Nate Learned, large quantities of carnations. His best are Pink Delight, Alice, Benora, White Wonder and Matchless.

Charles Evans is cutting good Francis King gladioli and plenty of swainsonas. This flower is used quite extensively for bridal bouquets.

B. A. Snyder & Co. are remodeling their store, it being too small for the present trade. Everything looks good and business still continues.

Welch Bros. Co. reports very good business and finds plenty of stock of all descriptions for numerous customers.

Wax Bros. are having a very good season and report a heavy demand for flower seeds as well as cut flowers.

John J. Fee is cutting his last batch of Gigantum lilies. He has had a remarkably good season.

Galvin's two stores report good business, and the last week was a banner one for funeral work.

DEMAND SHOWS SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT.

Much stock of various kinds continues to arrive on the market, but business seems to be a trifle more active than last week and stock cleans up fairly well except carnations of which it is impossible to move all that come to the wholesale houses. Home-grown stock is the only kind that meets with any sale, as the shipped in flowers are hardly worth handling. Roses are still coming good and are still in good demand, as weddings are quite numerous and there are a number of commencements. Peonies are also used for these occasions. All kinds of garden flowers are seen in the store windows and make attractive displays. Lilies are being replaced to a great extent by peonies. Some very good iris is arriving and sells well. This week may wind up the glut and then the dealers and employes will have a few weeks to enjoy vacations and get in fresh condition for the fall trade, which if at all like that of 1916, will be a banner one. Nearly all the local stores are now closing at 5 p. m.

Lancaster County Florists' Association.

The June meeting of the club was not a meeting—it was a picnic held at Hershey, Pa. A special car took a party of 38 via trolley. This car was met by Harry G. Havertack, the efficient manager of the Hershey greenhouses, home grounds and the great park system connected with the Hershey chocolate establishment. Mr. Havertack piloted the party over the estate through the greenhouses and gave them a social half-hour in the Italian gardens, after which they enjoyed the many special features of the Hershey amusement park. Unfortunately, many of the automobilists did not have this pleasure of Mr. Havertack's company, as they arrived too late in the day.

That the club turned out loyally is shown by the fact that there were about 125 in attendance; the H. D. Rohrer contingent alone had 12 in their party. Three machines came from Chester county, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Marshal, senior and junior; Mr. and Mrs. Percy Bernard and Percy Bernard, Jr., the latter being perhaps the most important of the party; Mr. and Mrs. Bailey and others; one machine from Harrisburg and Mr. and Mrs. Rupp from Shiremanstown.

Then of course we had with us T. J. Nolan and Fred Cowperthwaite of the King Construction Co. and Dennis Connor of the Lord & Burnham Co.

About noon an aching void in the vicinity of the belt line took quite a number to the Hershey cafe, others to the lunch rooms in the park, and some to a quiet, shady spot with a basket of their own, with sure florists' appetites. This occupied something over an hour and was followed by a delightful band concert.

At 3 p. m. the games started promptly and came off in front of the baseball grandstand. These were of course for the children exclusively, with prizes for the winners. Unfortunately, not being there, their names are not available, but one thing worthy of special mention was a blindfold test to reach a certain point 60 feet from the start. Chas. B. Herr of Strasburg and Rutter Hess of Gap, with true sportsmanship, challenged each other, and Mr. Herr reached the goal with 99 per cent efficiency, while Mr. Hess failed to get there. This defeat by Mr. Hess will no doubt make him work that much the harder when the croquet games come off a little later in the season between Strasburg and Gap. Many of the party indulged in the bathing, which is one of the features of Hershey, and the of the fact that the city schools were not closed, barring some from going, and that the spring work was not cleaned up. Those who went deserve credit for their loyalty in disregarding these drawbacks, and will look forward to the one next summer with pleasurable anticipation. The president, H. A. Schroyer, was too busy getting out tax notices to attend and the writer was waiting for aster orders to be shipped on short notice and could not be there; neither did he care to take our two youngsters out of high school just in examination time. We hope for a later date next summer.

BRIDES AND GRADUATES CLEAN UP MARKET

June brides and the girl graduate worked well together in creating a demand that kept the local market well cleaned up. Outdoor carnations are seen in great supply and are selling on the street at four dozen for 15 cents. Gladioli are coming into prominence now and the quality is good. The first dahlias of the season have arrived. Sweet peas of the Spencer type are still looking well.

NOTES.

Wolfskill Bros. & Morris Goldenson showed the first of the dahlias this season. This firm has been very busy with graduation orders and have considerable decorating. Their stock was well cleaned up daily.

Wright's Flower Shop, Inc., has been very busy with June bride orders. Funeral work has also been making a good demand for stock, which is hard to get.

The Broadway Florists continue to enjoy the usual good trade. Carnations and sweet peas were in great supply here.

O. C. Saake has been featuring very good gladioli as well as extra good values in all the seasonable offerings.

Howard & Smith are receiving America and Mrs. King gladioli in 5,000 lots. They report good trade in general.

J. W. Wolters has been showing excellent schizanthus; also a good stock of maiden hair fern. G. H. H.

PEONIES LEAD HEAVY SUPPLY.

Stock continues to arrive in enormously large quantities, with peonies leading, but in another week all the local peonies from outdoors will be over and then we will have storage stock. Larkspurs have been in good demand and in plentiful supply, as also are gladioli. Easter lilies drag and callas are about done. Sweet peas are still arriving in quantity, but their keeping qualities this kind of weather are none too good. A fine lot of lily of the valley is now arriving. Some of the roses coming in lately have a bad case of mildew; they also arrive more or less open, which makes it difficult to fill orders without selecting and picking them over. Carnations are in full supply, but owing to the overloaded market the price has dropped accordingly. Much business is being done by the "street fakir" these days. Greens are plentiful. Business has continued good, average sales equaling and better than the same time last year, but stock is more plentiful than last June.

NOTES.

H. P. Knoble, of Knoble Bros., is busy these days cutting and sending in his peonies; it keeps his entire force, besides extra help, busy every minute. He says the flowers will all be cut in a few days now.

Walter Rokosek, of the Cleveland Florists' Exchange, has moved to his cottage near Berea, O., on the banks of Rocky River. C. F. B.

MARKET CONDITIONS SHOW IMPROVEMENT.

The wholesale cut flower trade has shown some improvement during the past week. Peonies are out of season, and the northern grown stock has stopped coming in. Carnations are not arriving in very large numbers and the demand is absorbing them daily at prices ranging from $1.50 to $2.50, with exceptionally fine stock bringing $3. Roses are a trifle scarce and prices are very satisfactory for this season of the year. Lily of the valley is off the market, the last received being of very poor quality. Some fine gladioli have been seen in the wholesale houses recently with a good demand at from five to six cents. Other offerings include antirrhinums, calendulas, daisies, irises, stocks and sweet peas. Feverfew brought in by amateurs are plentiful.

NOTES.

The Baltimore Wholesale Florists' Supply Co. has been showing very good white sweet peas for this time of the year.

SUPPLY SHORTENS, BUT DEMAND IS WEAK.

The season is waning fast, and hot weather has set in, which affects all indoor stock unfavorably. Roses show the wear and tear of this long winter campaign, nearly all varieties having had outside petals, scorched by the hot sun. American Beauties are getting smaller, with soft fringed petals that are a great handicap. Some excellent stock of this rose is now being received from eastern growers. The quantity of stock coming to the market has been almost cut in half over that of last week, but the ratio of demand continues about the same and there is nothing that can be said to be in demand. Carnations are very draggy, as are snapdragons. Greenhouse gladioli are fine, but the competition of the southern stock keeps the prices down. Led by Larkspur Belladonna, which is fine, there are quantities of outside flowers, which are surely offered cheap enough. Sweet peas are now in from the field rows—very good stock, as the cool, damp season has greatly favored them. There is enough lily of the valley, while most cattleyas seem to find purchasers at fair prices. The June weddings are about over, as are also the commencements. Business in the stores is rapidly getting down to a summer basis, with pond lilies and rock work decorations in the windows.

WARETOWN ROD AND GUN CLUB OPENING.

Commodore Westcott was favored with fine weather for the annual opening of his club house at Waretown, on Barnegat Bay, which took place June 21-22. It is a great pleasure to receive an invitation and be present at this annual gathering as a guest of the commodore. Generally the guests include men from distant cities—Chicago, Cleveland, Boston, New York, etc. This year, however, on account of press of business the only representatives outside of Philadelphia were W. F. Gude and his son Ernst of Washington, D. C. Other guests were Robert Craig, Dr. Lane, Geo. C. Watson, A. B. Cartledge, S. S. Pennock, David Rust, George Craig, James McHutchison, Charles Einerman, D. T. Connor, J. C. Trainor and Robert Kift. A number of letters of regret were received. One from J. C. Vaughan of Chicago was accompanied by two handsome silk flags, which were presented to the commodore by Robert Craig in his best style. Boating and fishing, which included delightful motor boat trips, and an inspection of the four hundred-acre farm, made the time pass only too quickly. The commodore is in fine health and never seems happier than when administering to the pleasure of his old friends. Long may he live.

NOTES.

The sale of Horticultural hall, which now seems assured, compels the florists' club to seek other quarters. The club room, with its bowling alleys, shuffle boards, pool and billiard tables, its large trophy case filled with some 50 bowling trophies, has been the home of the club for 23 years. In addition to space for all the amusement features, there was also a seating capacity for at least 150 persons. The room has been the scene of many fine club meetings, flower exhibitions and gala occasions that will long be remembered by the members. When bowling was at its height many spirited contests were fought out on its alleys. Each year there were trials to get the best men for the team to represent the club at the national tournaments of the S. A. F. Some want to continue this feature of the club life, while others say it is too expensive. A new location for future meetings is in the hands of the house committee.

The coal question is keeping to the front these days. Most growers are on the fence, not knowing whether to buy at top prices now or wait for better figures later. The Jos. Heacock Co.

Don't Wait

Now is the time to send us a shipment of flowers and acquaint yourself with the satisfactory treatment you receive when you ship to New York's Foremost Commission House in the flower trade.

Extensive experience, ample capital, modern facilities and, in fact, everything to commend us to you.

UNITED CUT FLOWER CO., Inc., 111 W. 28th St., New York City

is getting a supply in and it is coming in so rapidly that they find it difficult to prevent demurrage charges. Three dollars per ton at the mines for bituminous is considered a low price now, as against $1.65 per ton last year.

A fire supposedly caused by spontaneous combustion caused damage to the extent of about $500 in the paint room at H. Bayersdorfer & Co.'s establishment, June 27. The loss was fully covered by insurance.

A number of the craft have visited the rose gardens of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., at Riverton the past week. The roses, particularly the hybrid teas, have been exceptionally fine this season.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. are having a run on their Princess baskets. The patriotic tri-colored baskets made a great hit and there are few first-class stores that do not carry the line.

Wax flowers and made-up work, with them, is a leading department of Jos. G. Niedinger's. All hands in the basket department are busy working up stock for the coming season.

Abraham L. Pennock, now in his ninetieth year, is in the Pennsylvania hospital. It is hoped that a rest and careful medical attendance will restore his accustomed vigor.

Orchid sweet peas, gladioli and Easter and calla lilies are features of the Berger Bros. A suitable building has not as yet been found for their new location.

Eugene Bernheimer finds business fairly good these June days. Sweet peas, carnations and roses are in good supply. September Morn is a good seller.

Eastern American Beauties, choice Marylands and carnations are specialties with Edward Reid. Mr. Reid is greatly interested in the Red Cross work.

The Leo Niessen Co. is featuring out-of-door flowers and has a large assortment. Russel roses, lily of the valley and cactleyas are also headliners.

The London Flower Shop windows have been gay with outdoor flowers the past week. The June wedding season gave them some good orders.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange is featuring My Maryland and Ophelia roses. Choice sweet peas are seen in quantity.

Oklahoma City.

Storemen report that business is getting into a very summery condition. The temperature was 100 degrees in the shade, June 22, so that the present situation is easily accounted for. Aside from all that, there is something doing every day, for warm weather affects the business here less than it does in most cities.

Visitors: Phil Foley, Chicago, who made a tour of the suburbs, going as far as Norman, with George Stiles in the latter's automobile; A. S. Gray, Chicasha, Okla., and his son, William, who is a student at the University of Illinois, at Urbana, and at the present time taking his vacation.

New York.

SUPPLY INCREASES, BUT NO DEMAND.

If at the present time there is anything encouraging in the wholesale district, it is the reflection that the peonies cannot last much longer. Those that are in cold storage will not count for much after shipments cease. Hot weather during the past week brought an increased supply of nearly all stocks, but no increase in business. Special American Beauties, like "Darius Green and his flying machine," fell down, slap bang; They had previously been keeping up to 25 and 30 cents, wholesale, but a large supply from Newport, R. I., and many from nearer towns, with a very light demand, made them a drug. On Saturday, June 23, hundreds of American Beauties remained unsold. For that matter, hundreds and thousands of tea roses were left in the ice boxes, but many of the tea roses arrived too open, on account of the heat. Considering the time of year, there are good carnations on the market, though all are getting smaller, and selling cheap. In all other stocks there is a surplus, with no cleanups.

June 25.—Warm weather is bringing in an increased supply of stock, some of which is lost; a great quantity goes to the push cart men and other peddlers, and that which does move in the regular channel, sells slowly. Both American Beauties and orchids are slow, and there is an occasional lot of each that hangs on until they become unsalable. There are yet plenty of peonies and carnations, but if the hot weather keeps up, their finish will soon be at hand.

NOTES.

Peter Henderson, in his day, said or wrote something to the effect that he could make a good florist out of a good farmer. We are not aware that Hession, of 984 Madison avenue, ever practiced farming or market gardening, but he is a good florist and this year he has shown that he can combine beauty with utility. On a plot of land near his store he planted, for a customer, potatoes, beans, onions, corn, lettuce and other vegetables, bordering the plot with geraniums and button daisies. It is said by those who are taking an interest in vegetable production, to be the finest vegetable garden in this city.

Do not forget the outing of the Greek-American Florists' Association at Wetzel's Point View Grove, July 11. We can well afford to have some innocent amusement, for as James J. Montague says in the New York American:

Said the king of Greece to the king of Spain:

"Crowns are baubles and thrones are vain!"

Said the king of Spain to the king of Greece:

"I was about to speak that very same piece!"

The Washington Heights section of this city is largely residential and has a number of retail florists who have good stores. Of these, the Fort Washington Florist, Broadway and 181st street, is worthy of notice. His store is always well stocked with cut flowers, and recently he has been doing a good business in geraniums and other bedding plants.

August Bamberger, mentioned in our last issue as being under arrest for obtaining money by pretending to take funeral orders for florists, pleaded guilty, and on June 21 was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary. His mother paid into court a sum of money to be distributed as restitution to the victims of her son's rascality. He is 24 years old.

Gustav Herman, of 2014 Westchester avenue, is a good gardener as well as a florist. He has nearly two acres planted to a variety of stock. Several large beds of irises are in fine bloom, and he has many gladioli, Dahlias, asters and other flowering plants are coming on.

Calling recently on Cardasis Brothers, 4256 Broadway, we found them busy with funeral work and they stated that they had no complaint to make about business.

The Washington Heights Florists, 1402 St. Nicholas avenue, stated that June business had been good, exceeding their expectations.

Gilbert C. Josephson, formerly with Max Schling, and also with Henry L. Bantelman, has given up the florist business for the duration of the war and is now connected with the organization of agricultural work on Staten Island. He has had a thorough training in scientific agriculture at St. Lawrence University, Canton, N. Y. The National Emergency Produce Association of Staten Island, with which he is connected, was organized under Mayor Mitchel's food commission, of which Wm. J. Wemple is chairman. Under the supervision of Mr. Josephson and A. G. Nellis, the association has undertaken the cultivation of over 300 acres of what was formerly farm land. It has been broken and planted to staple crops, such as corn, beans, cabbage, etc. Most of the work is being done by schoolboys of this city. In this connection it may be stated, that though Staten Island is a borough of Greater New York, there is, in the interior of the island, considerable land that has never been cultivated or has been abandoned. As a residential section it is not as popular as the other boroughs, though it is well located. The probable reason is that there is no rapid transit to the island. A tunnel under the Narrows from Brooklyn has long been talked of, but the project has never taken shape.

The wholesale firm of Badgley & Bishop, Inc., 34 W. 28th street, and their employes, will, on Saturday night, June 30, celebrate Sunday closing, which will be in force July 1, by holding a social gathering at the Old Mill in Chatham. N. J. W. G. Badgley is the mayor of Chatham and will entertain. Several prominent New York florists will be guests: "Shorty" Miller, of the Subway Arcade, St. Nicholas avenue and 181st street, who the boys call the "Millionaire Florist," will be the guest of honor. We have heard of dark and desperate deeds committed at old mills, and we once read a story of one that was haunted. If any of the boys see anything that squeaks and gibbers and then vanishes, it is here on record that we have warned them.

Over two-thirds of the stockholders having consented, the charter of the Cut Flower Exchange of this city has been renewed for another 25 years. The Cut Flower Exchange was first chartered in 1892 for 25 years; therefore the old charter was about to expire. This Exchange, which is a market at Sixth avenue and 26th street, is controlled, and the stands largely occupied by growers who sell their own stock. It is open for business every day in the year, and we understand that though several of the stand holders have signed the Sunday closing agreement, it will not affect the Exchange as an organization; the market will be open as usual on Sundays.

Flushing, specializing in ericas, has retired, temporarily at least, from business. Five years ago he sold a controlling interest in the business to Knight & Struck, and until recently it has been known as the Knight & Struck Co. He held some stock in this company and remained as manager of the range until the first of this month, when he retired. He had previously disposed of his stock. H. D. Darlington is known as a specialist in the growing of ericas or heathers and in this line there are but few in this country.

On the morning of June 23, a man who later gave his name as Edward Haderach, staggered into the store of Traendly & Schenck and fell in a fit. Frank Traendly and William Bogert, of P. L. Bogart's Brothers, immediately took him in hand and administered first aid until an ambulance arrived, and it is believed they saved his life.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held July 9. It has been the custom for the club to take a vacation during July and August, so this meeting will be held in view of the approaching convention of the S. A. F.

The Claremont Florists, Broadway and 127th street, have a neat store and report good business. They also have greenhouses at Morsemere, N. J., where they force bulbs and grow sweet peas, chrysanthemums and a variety of plants.

George Allen has recently removed his retail store from 80 Audubon avenue to 564 West 168th street, where he is well located near the Broadway subway. He is a son of J. K. Allen, the pioneer wholesaler of 118 W. 28th street.

Charles Matthews, who was a salesman for E. C. Koran for a number of years, was taken to a hospital, June 22, suffering from a general breakdown. He has been in poor health for several months.

Angelo Dentale, formerly with Young & Nugent, is now devoting all his time to the wholesale business, being located in the House of Ferns, 41 West 28th street.

John B. Nugent has bought a country home at Patchogue, L. I., and is improving his health by gardening.

The engagement is announced of Miss Mae Crimmins, of Astoria, to Maurice Koenig, of Young & Nugent's staff.

A. L. Young & Co., 54 W. 28th street, are handling good stock of the peony, Festiva Maxima.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Thirty-Fifth Annual Convention, Detroit, Mich., June 19-21.

The Officers Elect:

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer.

Closing Days Full of Interest.

As stated in our issue of June 23, page 1234, the thirty-fifth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association, which opened at the Hotel Pontchartrain, Detroit, Mich., June 19, the meeting extending over three days, was most successful both in interest and attendance. Continued arrivals after the opening day confirmed the prophecy that this convention would be the largest attended in the history of the organization. It was declared by many the most successful ever held. The convention visitors were greeted with unlimited hospitality at every turn—received into the homes of the Detroit members as intimate friends, not as strangers, the general atmosphere of cordiality communicating to all and making the occasion a most enjoyable one.

Wednesday's Programme.

Following the business sessions and the hospitalities of the opening day, including the reception at the residence of Lem W. Bowen, as reported in our last week's issue, the business meeting Wednesday morning opened with an address by W. A. Wheeler, specialist in charge of seed marketing investigations, office of markets, United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C. The speaker said in part that it was not the purpose or intention of the department to do anything to upset the present channels of legitimate seed dealing, insofar as such are economic and efficient; but rather to study methods of obtaining greater economies and greater efficiency in the handling of seeds from the producer to the consumer, and that the legitimate seedsmen will be given every possible assistance and encouragement. He added that plans were being made to inaugurate a seed, grain and hay marketing reporting service for supplying to those interested, the commercial movements of such crops, which would be of particular value to dealers in these commodities in giving reliable information at all times relative to the surplus in various sections of the country and the amount available for prompt shipment. From information obtained, the department can determine where increased production should be encouraged and where further increase should be discouraged. The careful study of prices in both producing and consuming territory and the influence of all seasonal and other factors upon prices should give a basis for the correction of any evils that become apparent. The information which would be covered under the seeds section in this service includes seed grains, grass and clover seeds, beans, peas, and seeds of other legumes, forage and grain sorghums, millets, and seeds of other field and food crops. President White tendered the thanks of the convention to the speaker for his able address.

David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa.
Second Vice-Pres.-elect Am. Seed Trade Ass'n.

Committee on War Councils.

On motion of Vice-President L. L. Olds, the following resolution was adopted:

Whereas, The governors' war councils in the various states have already taken action in many directions to insure a greater food production, among those activities, four subjects are being especially urged—Seeds, power, labor and money, and

Whereas, The seed trade is best equipped to give efficient service in the proper handling of seeds; and in order to do itself justice and to forestall ill-advised action in local seed campaigns, the following recommendations are presented at this time:

Resolved, That a special committee be appointed with the following duties—First, to keep in touch so far as possible with the activities of any special war councils and to promote by necessary publicity, the use of the established channels of seed distribution. Second, to do everything possible to encourage seedsmen to perfect and improve their business to more fully meet the present emergency.

Report of Committee on Resolutions.

H. W. Wood, chairman of the committee on resolutions, offered resolutions of condolence with the families of members, deceased during the year, which were adopted by a rising vote, viz.: Walter P. Stokes, ex-president of the association; Herbert W. Johnson, one of its founders; Henry A. Salzer, prominent and active member; W. C. Langbridge, also a valued and active member, and Henry Kirk White, vice-president of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, from 1905 until his death, and director in the same company from 1879 to 1916.

Wednesday's Hospitalities.

On Wednesday afternoon members, guests and ladies were taken on an automobile drive of 40 or 50 miles through the handsome residence portions of Detroit, through Palmer and Belle Isle parks, and on their return trip were entertained at the residence of D. M. Ferry, Jr., at Grosse Pointe. Here they were received by Mrs. D. M.

SEEDSMEN'S CONVENTION AT DETROIT.
Snapshots on the Ferry Farm.

Ferry and Mr. and Mrs. Kirby B. White. Delicate refreshments were served, the following ladies assisting in the pouring: Mesdames L. W. Bowen, F. J. Sermiento, Edgar Bowen, Julian Bowen, Charles Denby, Theo. A. McGraw, W. S. Conant, E. Goodloe Edgar and Miss Edith Butler. Mr. Ferry's beautiful gardens were inspected, the rear of the premises bordering on Lake St. Clair. The visitors had had a taste of this intimate hospitality in the reception at the home of Lem W. Bowen the evening before, a home which is equaled by few in its elegant appointments. At Mr. Ferry's residence they again enjoyed the same hearty welcome.

On the return trip they passed the Water Works park and the Ford and Packard automobile plants and were taken in their automobiles direct to the steamer "Tashmoo" where the remainder of the evening was spent in a boat-ride and informal dinner, followed by an address by Dr. John Merle Coulter, Professor of Botany of the University of Chicago.

It is impossible to do justice to this address in a brief synopsis. It was considered by those capable of judging to be an extremely valuable contribution to the literature of the seed trade. The speaker held that we are not making the progress that we should make by improving varieties by mass selection, but that we are getting merely averages, whereas if we were to take individual types, following the Mendelian law, instead of getting averages which would include some minimums, some medium types, and some high types in exceptional cases, that we would get high types in every case. He discussed the law of mutation, which he illustrated by saying that the changes are so great as well as being so obscure, that this may be compared to a man falling asleep at night, and waking in the morning without any consciousness of what has taken place in the interval. With the mutation as to class you cannot account for the difference between the progeny and its parent. No one knows how to account for the changes that come by mutation. No one can make any great progress definitely except by following out individual selections in order to secure a type that is constant. The speaker admitted that most of the progress that had been made and most of the progress that would be made in the future would have to be made by mass selection. He discussed the relative influence of heredity and environment. He also pled for co-operation between growers and scientific botanists in order that further light might be thrown on the somewhat obscure and difficult subject and more definite conclusions thereby reached in the future.

Report of Committee on Customs and Tariff

Secretary Kendel read the report of the committee on customs and tariff, which, on motion, was ordered printed and referred to the incoming committee as follows:

Your committee on customs and tariff begs to report that no definite action has been taken by Congress toward changing the present tariff as affecting the seed trade. Considerable agitation, however, has been caused by the report that a war tax of 10 per cent ad valorem would be levied on all imports.

The latest information that your committee has received, however, through the chairman of the tariff committee of the American Association of Nurserymen is, that neither the democratic nor republican party is disposed to disturb the tariff at this time. Should any different information reach your committee, or any of its members, it is very important that we urge that such tax, if it be imposed, be as a specific duty. On any contrary proposition this association should record its protest in person at Washington.

Your committee desires to report that a general tariff commission has been appointed for suggesting to appropriate congressional committees desirable additions and revisions, and this commission has written us the following letter, which explains itself: (A similar letter we believe has been mailed to most American seedsmen.)

"The law charges the tariff commission with the duty of investigating the administration and operation of the customs laws. Accordingly the administrative laws are now being compiled and codified by the commission, for the purpose of suggesting to the appropriate committees of Congress desirable revisions and additions. This work has in view the removal of existing ambiguities, the elimination of obsolete and superfluous provisions, and the adjustment of the law to modern conditions.

"Your co-operation in this work is earnestly invited, and any specific suggestions which you may wish to make in the interest of simplifying the customs laws and facilitating their administration will be appreciated.

"Please make your reply to this communication to Vice-Chairman Daniel C. Roper in the inclosed official envelope (which does not require postage)."

(Signed) F. W. TAUSSIG, chairman.

It is now up to the American Seed Trade Association as a body and as individuals to formulate a clear and definite statement of any and all difficulties connected with the administration of the customs laws so far as it affects seed imports or exports, and it will be our own fault if we do not place before this body in an effective manner all our troubles so that they may be remedied in the new code.

Visit to Oakview Farm.

On Thursday morning a trip was made by trolley to the Oakview farm and trial grounds of D. M. Ferry & Co., which occupy an area about one mile square located 22 miles from Detroit, where the visitors were given an opportunity to inspect everything that was to be seen at this modern establishment. On arrival the guests were asked to check their headgear, and after this had been replaced with unique hats, turbans and grotesque head-dresses of various descriptions which transformed them into Irish dukes, French peasants, English lords and Italian courtesans, light refreshments were served, followed by a circuit of the farm in autos, each machine in charge of a guide, who explained all details in an interesting manner, among the points of interest being the water works equipped with a 66,000-gallon cistern, the fertilizer plant, the cement block factory, blacksmith shop, implement sheds, etc. At the dry house where seeds are dried by a forced hot air supply, outside weather conditions are of no consideration and the processes go on uninterruptedly day and night. After the tour of the farm the party returned to the clubhouse, where an appetizing luncheon was served in individual baskets, everything being carried out in excellent taste to the last detail. Music was furnished by a splendid orchestra and the guests were also entertained by four sprites, who on an improvised dancing floor, gave interpretive terpsichore.

At the close of the dinner, J. M. Lupton proposed a vote of thanks to D. M. Ferry & Co., which, at the suggestion of Watson S. Woodruff, was given in the form of three cheers and a tiger. A number of the gentlemen in the farther end of the pavilion about this time sang in honor of President Kirby B. White, "If You're a Friend of Mine," led by W. F. Therkildson. Mr. Therkildson next called on Theodore Cobb as the hard-working man in charge of the arrangements, who responded expressing his high appreciation of the compliment paid him, calling the attention of the company to the invitation on the menu to "Come Again." Dancing and other amusements followed.

Election of Officers.

In the election of officers, F. W. Bolgiano, of Washington, D. C., was nominated for president by David Burpee of Philadelphia, and the nomination eloquently seconded by Watson S. Woodruff, who at once moved that the rules be suspended and the election of Mr. Bolgiano be made by unanimous consent. The motion carried without a dissenting vote, and Mr. Bolgiano was declared president for the ensuing year. C. C. Massie nominated for first vice-president William G. Scarlett, of Baltimore, and on motion of H. L. Holmes, seconded by J. M. Lupton, Mr. Scarlett's election was also made by unanimous consent. Wilbur Brotherton nominated David Burpee as second vice-president, seconded by Watson S. Woodruff, and on motion of E. L. Page, the rules were suspended and Mr. Burpee elected by unanimous vote. The chair named as nominating committee to propose members of the executive and membership committees, President-elect F. W. Bolgiano, Geo. S. Green and E. L. Page. On motion of J. C. Robinson, the rules were suspended and C. E. Kendel was unanimously elected to succeed himself as secretary-treasurer.

President White read a message of greeting from Charles N. Page: "Greetings to all. Wish you a successful and enjoyable convention." On motion, the incoming president was directed to suitably acknowledge the greetings of Mr. Page. On motion of C. E. Kendel, Kirby B. White was elected as assistant secretary-treasurer.

The nominating committee recommended the election of the following, and there being no other nominations, on motion these gentlemen were unanimously elected as members of the executive and membership committees, viz.: Executive committee—Kirby B. White, E. L. Page, Charles S. Burge, Leonard H. Vaughan, Howard M. Earl. Membership committee—J. C. Robinson, B. P. Corneli, H. G. Hastings. Mr. Robinson asked that he be relieved from duty as chairman of the membership committee, but his request was not granted, and in order to make his duties less onerous, President White suggested that he have additional assistants, and on motion of S. A. Wilson, the incoming president was authorized to appoint two additional members to aid the membership committee in their labors during the coming year.

Invitations for the next convention city were received from Cincinnati, Columbus, San Francisco, New York, and Cedar Point, Ohio.

Just previous to the appointment of J. M. Lupton and Watson S. Woodruff by President White to escort President-elect Bolgiano to the chair and install him in office, the retiring president said: "The chair wishes to express his appreciation of the very cordial co-operation which everybody has extended during the past year, and to say that he has enjoyed very much serving you as best he might, and that he shall always remember the courtesy and cordiality of your support. This extends to all the committees and to each member."

President-elect Bolgiano, who was then escorted to the chair, expressed his appreciation of what he considered one of the greatest honors that had ever come to him, and pledged his best efforts to the administration of the affairs of the association during the approaching period, which he felt would be a very strenuous one. Watson S. Woodruff then rose to a point of personal privilege and asked President Bolgiano that he use his vested power and have Kirby B. White called before the tribunal, either by moral suasion or force on the part of the sergeant-at-arms. When Mr. White appeared he was presented with a handsome gold watch and chain and a new one-dollar bill. In expressing his appreciation the retiring president said: "I accept the dollar bill with great pleasure, and the watch and chain with almost as great pleasure. I will now join the ranks of the illustrious ex-presidents. It is a little like the case of the old maids, who are said to be the happiest, after all, when once they have quit struggling. Again I thank you and bid you farewell."

On motion of J. M. Lupton, the convention adjourned sine die.

The Closing Session.

At the closing session of the convention on Thursday afternoon, on the suggestion of President White, a resolution of thanks was adopted to William G. Scarlett, chairman of the legislative committee, for his tactful, diplomatic and efficient services, also to the members of the legislative committee, who have so well discharged such arduous duties.

By unanimous vote the resolution recommended for adoption in his opening address by President White was, with a slight verbal change, adopted as follows:

"At the thirty-fifth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association it was unanimously resolved: That the President of the United States and the Secretary of Agriculture be tendered the support of this association in all reasonable measures designed to prosecute the war with the utmost vigor.

"We count ourselves fortunate to be able to do our full share in supplying men and money, but our greatest service may well be in maintaining under extraordinary strain the machinery of producing and the distributing of seeds without which agriculture must fail.

"Because we realize in some measure the magnitude of the task to which our country is committed, we are the more earnest in pledging to it our entire resources."

On motion of G. J. Carpenter, seconded by A. H. Vogeler, David Burpee and others, the secretary was directed to communicate the passage of the above resolution to the President and the Secretary of Agriculture.

President White read the following telegram from H. G. Hastings: "Tell them I am sorry they cannot be with the 3,000 Rotarians here who are having a glorious time in the most inspiring convention ever held by Rotary."

The report of the committee on government charges, Charles D. Boyles, chairman, was read and made part of the record.

Mention the American Florist when writing

H. Will, Bismarck, N. D., and L. L. May, Minneapolis, Minn., in their present illness. A floral offering was ordered sent to the former on motion of Charles D. Ross.

Convention Notes.

Joe Edmundson says the convention entertainment and scenic features were beyond words. This will surprise Joe's many friends, for he was an apt pupil of the grand master of seed crop description, the late lamented Charlie Braslan, and those who recall Joe's accounts of the struggles and triumphs of California seed growers must agree that the attractions of the Detroit meeting place Eden in the shade.

Ferry's mammoth pumpkin will be so well remembered and so vividly portrayed by those who were there that those who were not will burden the mails with requests for descriptive circulars and prices for many a day to come.

Four hundred and thirty-three sat down to the dinner on the steamer Wednesday evening and equally as many visited Ferry's Oakview trial grounds Thursday forenoon.

Theo. Cobbs's unique "Well of Mystery" proved quite popular, dispensing buttermilk, lemonade, grape juice and other beverages sufficient to satisfy the thirstiest visitor.

George C. Thompson, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn., started on an extended eastern tour at the close of the convention.

John C. Bodger and wife, Los Angeles, Calif., left for New York after the meeting.

Convention members all seemed to be buyers, no sellers.

 —New York Sun.

California Crop Conditions Precarious.
C. C. Morse & Co., San Francisco, write as follows, June 19: "We consider the present time one of the most precarious for the seed crops. At the time of writing we are having one of the hottest spells we have experienced for many years, the thermometer having registered temperatures, during the last six days, ranging from 96 to 106 degrees. We expect that radish, carrot, parsnip, parsley, salsify and some varieties of onion will be below normal.
"Sweet peas have been pretty badly attacked by the aphid again, and we look for a light crop. Should the aphid quit, the crop has still time to improve a little."

Pacific Coast Cabbage Seed.
The Chas. H. Lilly Co., Seattle, Wash., writes as follows, June 13: "Weather conditions in this section are not very favorable. The season is backward, not less than three weeks later than normal. Crop of cabbage at the present time is in fair condition and we anticipate a normal crop unless something develops during the next 30 days. The expense of harvesting and handling this crop this year will be much greater than ever before, owing to labor conditions."

NEW YORK.—A. M. van der Schoot, Hillegom, Holland, arrived in this city June 20.
J. C. ROBINSON, Waterloo, Neb., reached Chicago June 22, returning from the convention city, leaving the same night for Rocky Ford, Colo., where he is building a new warehouse, 60x70 feet, rendered necessary by the greatly increased demand for his well-known seed specialties.

Market Gardeners

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

H. W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., President; H. F. Thompson, Arlington, Mass., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids, Mich., Treasurer.

Next annual convention will be held at Springfield, Mass., in 1917.

ILLINOIS has doubled her area of potatoes planted.

As a result of speculative activity it is stated the public is paying for canned goods prices twice their cost.

BOWLING GREEN, O.—The H. J. Heinz Co., of Pittsburgh, Pa., has purchased the range of W. W. Milnor. It will be devoted to growing young plants.

SARNIA, ONT.—From all indications, the fall show of the Lamberton Fruit and Vegetable Association will excel all previous exhibitions of that organization.

FARMERS' BULLETIN 796, recently issued by the United States department of agriculture, entitled "Some Common Edible and Poisonous Mushrooms," contains 24 well illustrated pages.

HIGHLAND PARK, ILL.—To stimulate interest in vegetable growing as part of war service, a county fair will be held in September by the Garden Club in place of the annual flower show.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX.—A home garden contest under the auspices of the Wolf-Marx Co. proved very successful recently. There were about 100 exhibits, the prizes ranging from $10 to $60.

WATERMELON production for 1917, as forecast June 15 by the United States department of agriculture, was 39,904,200 from 113,400 acres to be harvested, as compared with 34,197,500 from 98,500 acres in 1916.

BOISE, IDA.—The agricultural extension department of the state university has made an investigation of the potato growing districts of the state and reports a large yield in sight. All crops in the southern part of the state are in good condition.

Ready for Farm Work.

Lansing, Mich.—That 10,000 men are card-indexed and ready to leave factories and return to farms in Michigan if their help is needed in harvesting the crops was revealed recently when the Michigan food preparedness committee made public compilations.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, June 26.—Mushrooms, home grown, No. 1, 50 to 75 cents per carton; lettuce, cases 5 cents; radishes, 75 cents per hundred bunches; celery, $2.50 per crate; tomatoes, per basket, $1; cucumbers, per crate, $1.25 to $1.50.

New York, June 26.—Celery, per crate, $1.25 to $2.50; cucumbers, 50 cents to $2.50 per basket; mushrooms, $1.00 to $4.00 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, 7 to 15 cents per pound; radishes, per hundred bunches, 50 cents to $1; lettuce, per basket, 25 cents to $1; rhubarb, per dozen bunches, 75 cents to $1.25.

Fruit and Vegetable Market Review.

During the week ending June 12-13, the weekly market review issued by the office of markets and rural organizations of the United States department of agriculture showed crop conditions as follows:

With increased shipments, new potatoes dropped about 10 cents per bushel in both producing sections and market centers, jobbing prices ranging from $3.25 to $3.60 per bushel. Shipments from South Carolina and Louisiana are falling off. The price of tomatoes rose abruptly, quotations at Jacksonville, Fla., June 18 ranging from $1.20 to $1.30 per crate, an advance of from 15 to 30 cents over the previous week. Jobbing prices of Texas and Mississippi tomatoes rose in about the same proportion. Texas onions continued to decline, the jobbing price being from $1.00 to $1.40, a decline of 35 cents.

Watermelon shipments from Georgia and Texas started heavy, with Florida shipments about over. Prices ranged about $25 per car less than previous week. Strawberry shipments were 1,955 cars, 200 less than the previous week. Delaware and Maryland berries advanced two cents over the price at this date last year. The peach movement from Georgia is increasing but is less than the corresponding week in 1916. Cantaloupe shipments amounted to 472 cars, 410 more than in the previous week, but only one-third as many as in the corresponding period last year. California 45's Standards were quoted June 18 at $4.50 to $7.00, about $3 higher than a year ago.

Marketing Vegetables.

A great deal of the finest quality of vegetables depends upon the manner of handling during the progress of gathering in the field, washing and trimming for market, and exposure when offered for sale. This is true to such an extent that the very best product can be reduced to a practically worthless one in a very short time. We can never improve the product; that is we cannot add to its intrinsic value, but we can conserve. To commence with, it is of the greatest importance when the material is cut, pulled or picked. There is no question that very early or late in the day is best for most subjects; especially those subject to wilt. However, tomatoes, melons and cucumbers are better handled during the warm hours, which is also true of potatoes. Beans and peas should be picked when the vines are dry. Peas should never be washed for market as they heat readily and are soon lost. Beans are generally improved by a plunge into cold water to prevent undue wilting. A careful operator can generally arrange his plans to fill in the hours of the day to best advantage. Lettuce will never recover after wilting; hence, never expose it. Cut when crisp and wash at once; when obliged to cut in hot sun, we often sprinkle before cutting to crisp it and then cut at once and wash. Spinach will recover in water to a wonderful degree, hence, some neglect is permissible. While radishes can be plumped up in water to a great extent, they are easily damaged in flavor by any undue soaking—15 minutes being the limit. Beets recover very poorly; hence, if they are sold bunched, they need careful handling. A poor practice is to throw vegetables into water over night, as they are then unfit for food. The kind of water used is very important; all vegetables absorb water, hence a stale condition should never be tolerated here no more than in a dairy. This is especially true of such goods as are eaten without cooking. In the warm months, water is quickly tainted, hence those salespeople who expose goods for sale standing in water, make a serious mistake. Even sprinkling fountains are a detriment, as the water finally extracts the soluble proportion and damages the goods.

Boston, Mass., Secretary and Counsel.
Forty-second annual convention will be held at Philadelphia, Pa., June 27-29, 1917.

PAWTUCKET, R. I.—The city council has appropriated $3,600 for purchase of land for the extension of Slater park.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—Plans are being made by the New York State College of Forestry for its annual camp in the Adirondacks.

PLATE CITY, MO.—John Adam Durkes, well-known nurseryman and a resident here for 74 years, died June 9, aged 80 years.

EUREKA, CALIF.—G. Vanden Abeele has been appointed superintendent of Cottage Gardens Nurseries, succeeding K. Nyeland, resigned.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O.—A new shelter house 70x70 feet with kitchen attached, modern in every respect, is being erected in Thompson park.

NORTH YAKIMA, WASH.—The Yakima Horticultural Society has issued a circular to its members giving advice on storage, packing and blight of apples.

SPokane, WASH.—Among other plantings in Manito park there are nearly 800 dahlias, propagated at the city's greenhouses by Alex. Low, chief florist.

METHODS for the control of the grape-berry moth in the important Erie-Chautauqua grape belt of New York are described in Bulletin 550 of the United States department of agriculture.

VISITED CHICAGO: John M. Good, of Good & Reese Co., Springfield, O.; A. M. Brand, Fairbault, Minn.; Mrs. Wm. Crawford, La. Porte, Ind.; C. B. Knickman, representing McHutchison & Co., New York.

EVERGREEN seedlings known as Taxus cuspidata and T. baccata are free of duty as coniferous evergreen seedlings, according to a recent ruling of the board of general appraisers, in the matter of protests filed by the International Forwarding Co.

WILKES-BARRE, PA.—Chas. L. Seybold, supervisor of parks, announces that half of the 115,000 bedding plants to be used in the park system have been planted. The bulbs were very fine. Special designs for the Third Pennsylvania artillery, Red Cross, and a United States shield, are among the bedding features. Several new parks are under construction.

PEONY LORD KITCHENER, the new French variety, is described as a good strong grower of medium height. The flowers are of good shape, full, purple amaranth and violaceous red with cherry red on the border of the petals, somewhat in the way of Edouard Andre, Madame Mechin or Armandine Mechin. Lord Kitchener, as it is stated, blooms two weeks earlier than other sorts.

American Association of Nurserymen.

The forty-second annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen is in session at the Adelphia hotel, Philadelphia, Pa., as we go to press, opening on June 27 and continuing until June 29. The opening meeting was called to order by President John Watson of Newark, N. Y. A committee of the chamber of commerce was present to welcome the delegates and J. A. Cattell, who presented the keys of the city in behalf of Mayor Smith, who was unable to be present, scored a great hit with the visitors. Powell Evans of the chamber of commerce also warmly greeted the delegates in a fine address. Vice-president Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., made a splendid response for the association, followed by President Watson, who presented his address, which was one of the ablest papers ever read before the organization. A recommendation for a national arboretum, to be planted and maintained by the association, was well received. The reports of the secretary and the treasurer were then presented. Hon. Champ Clark, who was to address the meeting, sent word that he would speak later in the week. The attendance was one of the most representative and best in the association's history. Among the early arrivals who registered were: P. Ouwerkerk, Weehawken Heights, N. J.; W. D. Griffing, Macclenny, Fla.; W. A. Harrison, York,

THE BOOK OF GLADIOLUS

THE first authoritative book on this bulb ever printed in America, or possibly the world, issued April 1, 1911. This 120-page book, written by Matthew Crawford, and Dr. Van Fleet, contains many chapters covering all sides of growing, propagating, storing, etc., and also some pages of valuable cultural notes gathered from reliable sources. A necessity for both amateur and grower. The book is bound in cloth and fully illustrated.

Duckham & Pierson are pushing work on their new rose range, and as soon as the benches can be put up they are planted. Considerable planting has already been done and the entire range will be planted in good season. All the standard varieties of tea roses will be grown, with an exceptionally large area of Mrs. Charles Russell. When completed this will be an exceptionally fine range. The houses have concrete sides and the framework rests on iron sills. The range will be heated by three boilers of 200-horse power each. The land, which has been purchased by Duckham & Pierson, has been known as the Fuller tract and comprises 92 acres. It is quite probable that after they get the rose range in good order they will establish a nursery. The entire growing business will be superintended by William H. Duckham.

Charles H. Totty is yet somewhat lame from the recent attack of rheumatism, but goes to his office every day and gets about town in his automobile. His chrysanthemums are all planted and are making fine growth. He has a fine stock of roses, several of his new varieties of yellow being particularly promising. He has had an unprecedented demand for young stock for planting and is sold out.

Anthony Ruzicka, the well-known rose grower, who leased the Villa Lorraine Roseries and took possession May 1, has planted his houses almost exclusively with Ophelia, the exceptions being a few Mrs. Aaron Ward and Golden Gem. His stock is looking well. Workmen are engaged in remodeling a residence near the range for him and his family.

The range formerly conducted by Schultz Brothers, and later by Frank Abraham, has been taken over by Charles Dudley, Frank Abraham remaining with him as a grower.

We found our old friend Robert M. Schultz, who gave up the florist business several years ago on account of ill health, in Borough hall, where he holds a clerical position, and he is looking quite well. A. F. F.

Cast Iron Boilers Waste Fuel

I had a cast iron 8-section boiler before, but was afraid it would crack to pieces. The Kroeschell Boiler is certainly a fuel-saver. My coal bill to heat 5000 sq. ft. of glass surface with your boiler is less than last winter's coal bill, when I had only 2050 sq. ft. of glass, heated with the 8-section cast iron boiler.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Hydrangeas.

The young stock that was propagated this spring can be grown either for Easter blooming with a single stem or for summer blooming with three or four heads. The plants should be now potted in 4-inch pots and plunged in a frame, where they will receive attention. They should have a good rich soil and a strong, sturdy growth encouraged. For those that are to be bloomed early, as soon as the pot becomes full of roots a little liquid manure will help the formation of a good strong bud. Those that are wanted for summer blooming, the tip can be rubbed out and branches will form. Leave the plants outside until the first light frost, which will harden off the wood, and they can then be stored in a cool house or pit, where they will not freeze. Those wanted for Easter will have to be placed in heat by the first of the year.

Begonia Glorie De Lorraine.

The early rooted Begonia Gloire de Lorraine will now need shifting into 3½-inch pots, and should be given a little stronger soil than the young stock was potted in, but the manure used should be well rotted, and, where obtainable, a generous addition of leaf-mold. As the plants grow, space them out so that they will not become drawn and so that there is a good circulation of air around each plant. They will need a little shade on the glass for a few weeks yet, but it should not be too heavy. As the nights become cool it is well to close the frames down if they are outside, or if in the greenhouse close the ventilators, leaving a small crack of air on, or the house will sweat, which is not at all beneficial to begonias, as it is very apt to cause spot on the leaf. If this occurs remove the leaf at once. Care should be taken in the watering not to wet the foliage any more than possible. The later rooted stock will not need potting up until later, but all the growth possible should be obtained by giving them the best of attention. If the grower has not stock enough on hand, now is the time to purchase before the plants are shifted into large pots, when the price will be higher and the transportation charges increased.

Pyrethrums.

An early summer flower that is very showy and beautiful, ranging in colors from white to the deepest scarlet, with all the intermediate shades, is the Pyrethrum roseum, and it is being much more grown every year for cut-flower purposes. The best flowers are to be obtained by buying named varieties, but good selected seed will give fair satisfaction and many handsome flowers. The greatest trouble in growing these plants in the north is the danger of winter killing and crown rot during extremely wet spells in hot weather. Seed sown during July and August and wintered in houses or cold frames will produce plants that will flower next summer. Obtain the best seed possible and sow in flats and as soon as large enough pot in 2½-inch pots. These can be grown on in a frame until cold weather comes on, when they can be securely covered or carried into a cool house and wintered under a bench, started in March and planted out as soon as secure from frost, and will flower in June and July.

Paper White Narcissi.

The Paper White narcissi are now being received and as soon as delivered should be unpacked and spread out in flats or on shelves in a cool, dry place. If they remain in the original cases, they are apt to become moist or heated when packed closely. They should be handled carefully and not thrown around so that they become bruised or the outer covering torn off.
This covering is a great protection for the bulb, preventing it from drying.
Plan how the bulbs are to be flowered, that is, how many are to be brought forward each week, and start at once to box up the first lot and then continue the plantings at the desired intervals. The flats or boxes should be prepared at once, not only for these, but for the other bulbs. It is the general custom to use any old box that can be obtained, and they are, therefore, of different sizes and different depths. They do not pack closely when placed outside, neither do they seem to fit on the bench in an economical manner. Our experience has been, rather than to buy a mixed lot of boxes of different sizes, it is better and cheaper to purchase stock at the lumber mill and saw it into the proper length. Get one-half inch stock, three inches wide, for the sides and bottom and one-inch stock the same width for the ends. Saw the ends 12 inches long and the sides 24 inches. This will make a flat 13x24 inches by using four pieces for the bottom and will allow proper drainage. A flat of these dimensions will hold about 50 Paper White narcissi or 60 to 70 tulips, and will cost but little more in the price of the box and can be made with much less labor, and when the boxes are all of one size they can be placed upon the benches with much saving of room. As soon as the bulbs are planted in the flats they should be placed in a dark, cool place and covered with soil or ashes until rooted, when they can be brought into the houses. The early planted bulbs will require good heat to bloom them successfully, much warmer temperature than the later planted bulbs.

Sweet Scented Geraniums.

The grower who has a stock of rose or other sweet-scented geraniums can turn them to good account by planting them in a bench in the greenhouse and can obtain some fine sprays for winter cutting. The green is very much appreciated by the best trade and there is always a demand in the stores catering to that class for more of this than can be obtained. The sprays are cut 12 to 14 inches long and are used in the boxes of cut flowers. There is also a demand for the leaves, to be placed in the finger-bowls at luncheons. It is easily grown in a cool house and very rapidly makes long sprays fit to cut. The plants can be set about eight inches apart, which will give them plenty of room, provided the sprays are cut as soon as they are long enough for use.

Ivy Baskets.

The common hardy ivy is most useful as a basket plant. If never allowed to suffer for water, it presents at all times a well covered growth of glossy, star-shaped leaves. Its vines can, by pinching, be made any length or density desired to fit it for a high or low elevation. For a high ceiling, baskets should be balanced in pairs, by means of a rope over pulleys, it being very convenient to care for and water them in this way. As one is pushed up the other comes down to where it can be watered and elevated a little and allowed to drip into a bucket. Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., have been filling large ivy baskets for several years and find them salable and very satisfactory.

K.

OMAHA, NEB.—F. H. Swanson, florist, 1418 North 18th street, has been adjudged bankrupt. The final meeting of creditors has been set for July 30.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.

The Telephone.

Year after year the use of the telephone has increased to such a degree that it is now almost universal. In all shops, except those that depend principally on transient trade, at least half of the orders are received over the phone. A shop that is making any bid for business needs a double phone service; to have the store number reported "busy" very often means a lost sale, as frequently it is a commission that requires immediate attention and a competitor gets the order. Many large stores have private exchanges which connect with phones conveniently placed, greatly increasing the efficiency of the service.

Single Peonies.

At the American Peony Society's Exhibition, Philadelphia, Pa., June 13-14, 1917.

A competent person should always receive the calls. It is very annoying to customers to have to talk to boys, who do not know or are indifferent or careless in calling the person desired. Much stock on hand can be sold by phone if its good qualities are extolled by the salesman. The call is for roses or flowers of a better grade than those in the case. Others of another variety, but of the quality desired, are then recommended and in many cases accepted.

When customers are not just certain what they want, the stock that is being featured or shows a good profit is suggested, and in most cases sold. Flowers for funerals, something in a hurry, is a very frequent phone order. The piece desired will require considerable time to make up or the stock is not on hand. The salesman will then state the need of haste and recommend a decorated galax or magnolia wreath or cluster of something that is ready.

To men who know their trade, many sales can be made over the phone. At times high grade or choice flowers are in full supply on a dull day. By calling up special customers at opportune times and speaking of this fine stock of the rose that has just been received and is such a favorite with them, an order for a dozen or two is secured. Choice orchids or something special in flowering stock are also good to present in this way.

Fundamentals.

Those who desire to learn the business of selling flowers, should commence at the bottom. The most successful men in the retail stores of today, many of them owners employing large forces, started as errand boys, where they made good. As they gained experience they were advanced from one position to another until finally they became full fledged storemen, occupying first places as salesmen and designers.

Taking advantage of opportunities, and confidence gained in the successful working of the business, placed them in line for more commanding positions, such as an interest in the firm, or perhaps entire charge of an establishment; or they make the plunge and open up for themselves.

A two or three years' course in an establishment where plants are grown in variety is a great help in getting a knowledge of plants and flowers which will be of the greatest assistance to the young man who intends to take up the selling of flowers at retail. The three years of errand-boy life spent as a helper in the greenhouse, will be of much more benefit than if spent in the messenger work of the store. The ideas of plant culture, their names and the practical experience that could never be gotten from books, will in later years be found almost invaluable.

The kind of schooling a young man gets is very important. Let him seek out a place where order and system are apparent; a grower who is noted for the quality of his stock. Here he will learn business methods that will be of the greatest assistance in after life. He may have to work hard for a very exacting master whose insistence on doing things along certain lines may seem unnecessary, but which experience will prove to have been the proper way. A man well grounded in the fundamental principles of plant growing, which are gained by actual experience under the guidance of a successful grower, is splendidly equipped for almost any branch of the service.

Special Sale Opportunity.

Another of the "full market" seasons of the year is here; everything is plentiful, and a buyer with nerve and nuggets can fill his store with fresh, salable stock at his own prices.

If there is anything in special sales, now is the time to try them out. Make disposal of this stock a special feature. The windows should have showy displays of the various leaders; today roses, tomorrow carnations or sweet peas. A good feature is boxes of cut flowers, another tumbler baskets, the price of everything marked in plain figures, or with larger window cards with prices answering for all the stock. The printed card, or announcement, is an important factor in all such displays. It is a silent salesman, always on duty, liable to secure orders when least thought possible. Publicity is also a necessity. Every customer should be notified. Selected lists of names should be sent leaflets telling of the good things offered. Judicious advertising in the daily press that will tell of the great stock and the attractive prices is probably the best method. It should always have a story to tell, and be of such frequency as to get cumulative value, which is, after all, the greatest feature in advertising.

Gladioli for Cutting.

One of the most dependable of the summer flowers is the gladiolus. The indoor stock, available about the first of May, generally meets with a good reception, holding its place until the first of the summer or field flowers make their appearance. Perhaps the most popular variety is America, which, with its giant flowers and pleasing shade of pink, is a great favorite. Mrs. Francis King, with its gay showy spikes, is also much in demand, particularly for decorative work. When the summer flowers appear, there is no end to the variety of form and color—a number of pure or almost spotless white are among the most chaste flowers of the garden.

The gladiolus is most suitable for all kinds of decorative work. If properly cut, prepared and packed, they will carry long distances and arrive in good condition. The mainstay of the summer business in the retail store is the demand for funerals, and for this class of work, the gladiolus is most suitable. Sprays of pure white, pink or mixed, or used in connection with Easter lilies, or other flowers, they can be arranged into very showy and satisfactory sprays or clusters. An all-white cluster with spot of lavender sweet peas at the ribbon, is effective. Palm leaves are a great addition when something large is desired.

A small wreath of lavender pansies in the center of a double spray of America on palm leaves makes a very satisfactory piece for the top of a casket. Wreaths of the separate florets are handsome and sure of admiration. We would put a wreath of choice white gladioli against anything else at this season. The wreath, if large, can be made of all spikes, but if of medium size the separate florets should be stemmed and the frame made solid three-fourths of the way, with a raised cluster of selected short stemmed spikes, filling the balance.

As a dressing for magnolia wreaths they make a very showy piece—just a large cluster in the full part of a crescent form, or arranged in a spray to cover half the form from the narrow crescent section around to the center where a bow of ribbon makes a good finish. Choice white separate florets can be worked into a very unique bride's shower bouquet. Such selected flowers closely resemble the Dendrobium formosum, so popular for the bride's bunch. A bride's shower bouquet, made and exhibited by Max Schling, New York, at the exhibition of the American Gladiolus Society at Atlantic City, N. J., three years ago was much admired. He used small florets made from the larger ones, which, tied to the hanging ribbons, added much to the effect.

The vase baskets with high handles, now so popular, are just the thing for gladioli, very showy window decorations being made with a number of these baskets filled with choice varieties, the handles tied with appropriate ribbons.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Summer Treatment.

The plants in the benches that have been planted two or three weeks or more are now becoming well established and growing vigorously. When given close attention to their needs, it is wonderful the amount of growth chrysanthemums will make in a very short while at this season of the year. A bench of plants can be gone over, the plants supported, and their other needs attended to, and in a very few days they will need attention again; with every few joints of growth, there will be some more side shoots to pinch out and stems to support, but these parts of the work must not be neglected or they will quickly get beyond control.

The care of the soil in the benches is one of the important parts of the work; the syringing necessary to keep the plants in good shape creates ideal conditions for weed growth, and if there is any weed seed in the soil, it takes but a very little while to germinate and show itself. Remove any weeds as soon as large enough to handle before they get large enough to crowd the plants and cause them to lose their lower leaves. The hand scratcher should be kept going regularly so as to keep the surface of the beds open and allow the sun and air to penetrate the soil and prevent it from souring before the roots are able to get full control of it.

If there is one part of the work in caring for the plants in the benches that should receive first attention, it is that of attaching the supports so that the other routine of the plants' care can be more easily attended to. Every grower has his own idea of staking his plants according to the circumstances under which he has to work, but the method most generally used by growers of commercial cut chrysanthemums is the upright strings attached to wires overhead and at the bench. Stretch the overhead wire lengthways of the bench, the height above the top of the bench being determined according to the variety. Tall growers will need to have full six feet of support, while the dwarf varieties can get along with much less, but do not be too sparing with the supports; an extra foot will not do any harm. Very early planted stock being grown for extra fancy or exhibition purposes need stronger supports than string, and the wire rods or cane stakes fastened to wires at the top, the same as for roses, are most generally used. Many of these plants will grow to a height of seven or eight feet, making it necessary to figure the supports accordingly.

Chrysanthemums take an abundance of water, both at the roots and by means of syringing, especially at this period when their growth is so active, but watering can be carried or neglected to the extreme the same as at any other time. The plants do very much better when as near natural conditions of culture as possible are followed. Allow the soil to become dry enough to need watering before applying it, but do not carry it to the extreme and let it get dry enough to cause any wilting of the plants. The main point to bear in mind is to keep the soil fresh and sweet for the roots to work freely all the time. An extreme dryness as well as excessive moisture will check the root action of the plants. Frequent syringings are necessary during very hot days to maintain a moist atmosphere and keep the foliage free from red spider, but the same caution should be used in this work as with the watering, especially where there is not a free circulation of air to properly dry out the plants, also during spells of cloudy, damp weather with extreme moisture in the atmosphere.

It is now time all the planting was finished up. This not only includes the early and midseason varieties, but the late varieties and the pompon and singles as well. There is nothing to be gained by holding back the planting of the late varieties any longer. As soon as the plants are ready, they should be put into their permanent quarters.

The topping of the pompon and single varieties is one of the important parts of their culture and should be carried out according to the number of sprays desired from each plant and might be figured out as follows: Three fancy sprays per plant or six high-grade sprays per plant, and for ordinary medium stem sprays, as many as the plants will carry, according to the space allowed them on the bench, but there is nothing gained by overloading or overcrowding the plants. They must have ample space for free circulation of air to properly develop the sprays or a great many of them will not amount to very much. The plants should be gone over and given a general topping now and then as the growth commences again. Figure out the number of sprays each plant is to carry and remove the rest.

Green and black aphid and thrips quickly make their appearance, and unless the nicotine spraying is kept going regularly, they very quickly cause lots of trouble. The best plan is to have stated afternoons for this work—and attend to it regularly.

The general routine of the work, such as pinching out the side-shoots, attending to the ventilation on time, and keeping the houses clean, should receive attention as needed. And also bear in mind that chrysanthemums growing under glass do not need any shading, but require the full sunlight to bring out their best growth.

Chrysanthemum Classification.

The compilers of fall flower show premium lists are considering a number of problems at this time and perhaps one of the most important is that touching chrysanthemum classification. A number of queries on the subject recently received at this office have been answered by Elmer D. Smith, of Adrian, Mich., as follows:

"The National Chrysanthemum Society of England was the first to take up the classification of chrysanthemums and is considered authority in such matters. Its findings are accepted by the Chrysanthemum Society of America, as well as the French society.

"If we speak correctly, we should say Japanese incurved when we are referring to the large-flowered or long-petaled incurving variety. The true incurved section are shorter petaled and were formerly known as the Chinese type and would include such varieties as Major Bonnaffon, White Bonnaffon, Smith's Ideal, Chieftain and White Chieftain. In designating the Japanese varieties, they include all of the long-petaled type without regard to the form of petals, how arranged or outline of the bloom, with the exception of those which have a decided incurved form. These are known as Japanese incurved. Wm. Turner is a fine example, being very regular in outline. Other examples are Odessa, Fatouma, Ongawa, Marigold, Nakota, Elberon, Nerissa and Kewanee. Such varieties as H. E. Converse, Christy Mathewson and Lenox, while of an incurved form, are more irregular and might be entered in classes calling for Japanese incurved, but the first mentioned varieties if equally well grown would have a decided advantage, owing to their smoother and more symmetrical contour.

"There is no classification or division made for the large flowering reflexed. They are all grouped in with the Japanese. The true reflexed type, according to our authority, is a smaller flower, much the same in size as the incurved section referred to above; only the petals are decidedly reflexed and show the inner or upper surface of the petals only and should be as near ball shape as possible, the same as is required for the incurved. At present this type is very seldom grown. If you are familiar with the old variety Cullingfordii, you will have the type thoroughly fixed in your mind.

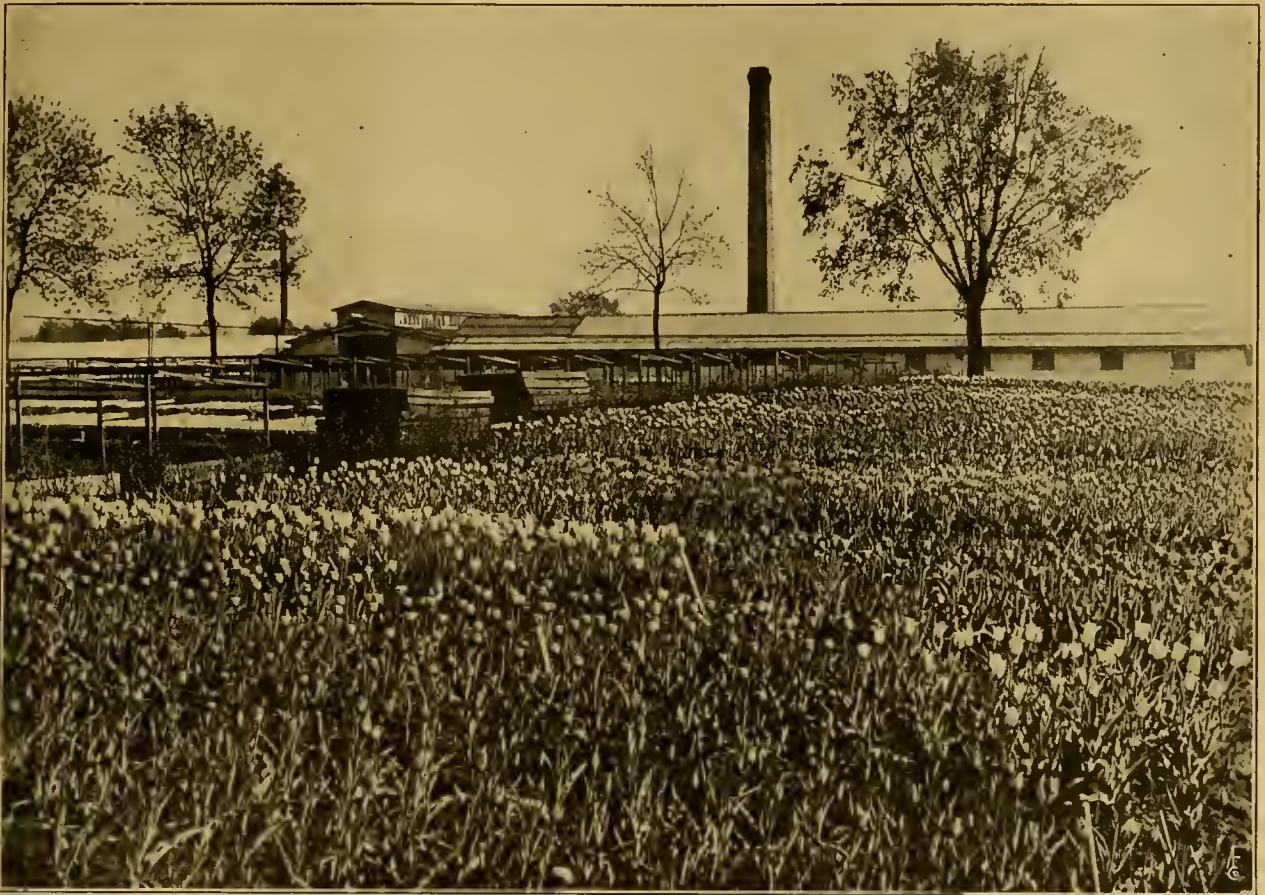

"I have exhibited chrysanthemums since 1887, and have had many schedules that were indefinite. For this reason permit me to suggest that in arranging your schedules, be very explicit. For instance, Class 399, for the best three vases, 10 blooms to the vase, for incurving Japanese, three distinct colors. You will notice I have made this incurving, rather than incurved, for the reason it is not always possible for the exhibitor to have a true incurved type, and many of the so-called Japanese do, more or less, at the center of the bloom, incurve, so that I have reversed these words, which would permit the exhibiting of any of the Japanese varieties in this class, providing they show an inclination to incurve. Then if you wish to make it easier for the exhibitors and judges, you could append the following: 'Size, finish and regular incurved form are the essential characteristics.' This would give the judges something to go by in making their decision.

"Should you desire to offer a premium for the Japanese that show an inclination to reflex, I would word the schedule much the same as the preceding, by using the word reflexing or recurving Japanese, and then put a note at the bottom that would govern the class. Why I so suggest is that there are really no true reflexed varieties grown. I am enclosing a copy of our catalogue, in which I have marked the types according to English classification. Therein you will notice Reginald Vallis, the petals of which are decidedly reflexed, is classed as a Japanese. In wording such a class, it is important that it be clothed in such form as to convey just the desired idea of what is required for the section.

"The other arrangement referred to is really optional with the management, either restricting to one entry or allowing more. Horticultural societies have always carried a general rule governing the exhibition, which reads: 'The number of entries to be made by one person for any competition shall not be limited, but no more than one prize shall be awarded to one exhibitor in the same competition for the same variety.' Should you prefer not to have the premiums go to one exhibitor, the last four words, 'for the same variety,' could be omitted. Then the exhibitor could receive only one prize in the competition.

"I hope to have made all points clear to you, but if not, please advise me and I will go into further detail. I have all of this data at my finger's end, and can tell you anything about classification that has been published regarding chrysanthemums.

TULIP TRIALS AT VAUGHAN'S GREENHOUSES, WESTERN SPRINGS, NEAR CHICAGO.

"In conclusion, let me again impress upon you the importance of having every class clothed in definite form; then the exhibitor knows just what to enter and the judges how to make the awards."

Vaughan's Tulips at Western Springs.

Vaughan's Seed Store conducted an extensive trial of tulips this spring at their trial grounds, Western Springs, Ill., as shown in the illustration herewith. About 15,000 bulbs of the Darwin and Cottage types were planted, about 60 varieties in all. The season was by no means an ideal one for these flowers, and though many reports of total and partial failures have been heard of this spring, these bulbs on the whole bloomed with less than two per cent failure, and were a magnificent sight when in full flower.

The bulbs were planted last October in beds five feet wide and 25 feet long, with six-inch spaces between the bulbs. The beds were separated by alleys eight inches deep and 18 inches wide, thus leaving the bulbs in raised beds, from which any surplus water could readily drain to the alleys. The result was that there were few or none of them rotted. Fertilizers used consisted of some old hotbed manure, dug in before planting, and a free dressing of bone meal at planting time.

The first variety to bloom was that beautiful salmon pink, Hobbema, or American Lac, a gem in Cottage tulips, which opened May 21. This was followed by the Crimson Elegans, with its peculiarly reflexed petals and vivid and lasting color. Then all the Darwins seemed to burst forth together within two or three days, the last of this class being Clara Butt. Unfortunately there was a sharp frost just as they all looked so well, and next day, as the sun opened up on them, there were many casualties, particularly Farncomb Sanders, Suzon, Nauticus and Pride of Haarlem, the outer petals of all being badly burnt. The light and very dark shades weathered it very well and the Cottage tulips seemed to be unharmed.

In the Darwin "Reds," Bartigon, Glow and Pride of Haarlem were best, both for color and lasting qualities. Clara Butt, in the pinks, stands out alone, and Gretchen is a delightful pale blush that should be planted largely. White Queen (La Candeur) is a blush changing to pure white, a unique color and splendid keeper. Zulu and Velvet King are both exquisite dark colors, the former being almost black; both kept unblemished until the petals dropped.

In the lilac and lavender shades, Dream and The Rev. H. Eubank were the favorites; the former is the taller, earlier and darker of the two, but Eubank has a perfect shape and a true pure lavender color. There were many varieties of that type of rose color with lighter edge, what might be termed the "Tonnaye" type. The two best were Massachusetts and Baron de la Tonnaye. Mme. Krelage very much resembles the former.

Coming to the Cottage or May-flowering class, here is where we get the preponderance of distinct colors, i. e., yellow, orange, crimson and scarlet, especially the first, a color which is absent in the Darwins. There are also many delightful delicate tints in this class. Mrs. Moon and Gesneriana Lutea stand out alone in true yellows; the former is the taller of the two and both are sweetly scented. Inglescombe Yellow is also an exquisite flower. Golden Spire and Sunset, with their golden and red blotched flowers, were among the most brilliant things in the whole trial. Illuminator (really the best of this Billietiana class) was the last of all to bloom, not opening until June 10.

Glare of the Garden was the finest crimson tulip in the whole trial. It is not very tall (16 inches), but for size, outline, color and lasting qualities, it is unequaled. Emerald Gem is really "a gem"—the color is a glistening orange scarlet, and it takes its name from the emerald green base, a very brilliant tulip. The Fawn and Inglescombe Pink are exquisite pink tulips, the former showing a little heliotrope and cream, while the latter is decidedly stained orange inside as it opens. Both should be largely grown and should do well under glass. One more that deserves special mention is Fairy Queen, a beautiful heliotrope and yellow that comes particularly rich and tall if planted in shade.

Sweet Peas at Fordhook.

Sweet peas were in their prime at W. Atlee Burpee & Co.'s Fordhook farms the third week in June. George W. Kerr, the sweet pea expert, who has charge of the trials, declared he had never seen them better. In a two-acre plot were planted all the choice varieties now in commerce, a number of the new English sorts, and several long rows the length of the field, of Fordhook seedlings, crosses of selected early flowering varieties, many of them on Yarrowa, all made by Mr. Kerr. These latter were very interesting, comprising many that were exceptionally rich in coloring, of strong growth, with large flowers and quantities of them.

Some very promising varieties, seedling plants of last year, from which seed had been carefully saved, had come mixed in a discouraging manner. In a half dozen plants from seed of one plant, no two varieties were alike, and none of the same color as the parent. Mr. Kerr said that seed saved from these would be very apt to revert to the parent next year; that it took from three to six years, and even longer to fix a color. It was tedious work, but when once fixed, there was no further trouble. The seed for the stock in these trials was sown in pots about the middle of January in a sweet pea house. In about six weeks they were placed in a cold frame to harden off. Early in April they are planted in the field. Some flowers were seen early in May, quite a few by May 15, and a good show of bloom by June 1. They were planted in rows, three feet apart and supported by jute twine stretched each side the rows, attached to cedar poles.

Among those growing here and sent out this year, early flowering varieties, were the following: Lavender King, best early lavender; Early King, crimson scarlet; Early Beauty, soft pink, like Countess; Zephyr, light blue; Enchantress, a fine pink, like Hercules; Primrose Beauty, black seeded yellow; Snowstorm, white seeded white, the best so far; Lustre, deep rose pink, standard suffused with orange; Sunburst, medium pink in cream ground, fine large flower; Sweet Briar, light pink, suffused with amber, much like Elfrida Pierson; Mauve Beauty, a fine mauve color, large flower; Loveliness, a picotee, large flower, pink on white ground; Blue Bird, very distinct, medium blue; Exquisite, a picotee on a cream ground, a very beautiful variety.

Summer varieties are: Jan Hamilton, fine red; Lord Kirchner, scarlet; Annie Bonass, rich rose pink; Berge, pink on cream ground, strong grower; John Porter, very free, rich orange pink; President, flaming orange scarlet, very distinct; Mrs. Routzahn, a fine cream pink, one of the best; Sincerity, a fine cerise (English); Illuminator, salmon cerise; Burpee's Frilled Pink, a fine English sort, is a beauty. A white sport, developed here, should be a wonder.

Mr. Kerr has just returned from the trial and seed grounds at Lompoc, Calif., where 100 acres are devoted to sweet peas, as much as an acre to a choice variety. The stock there he found very fine. They make a wonderful growth and are very floriferous. Several beautiful sorts have produced enough seed to permit of their being sent out next season.

NEW METHOD OF WINTERING STOCK.

A small block that will be of interest to the commercial grower of outside sweet peas was planted in October last. When about three inches in height and cold weather setting in, boards six to nine inches in width are set on edge either side of the row about eight inches apart. These are held upright with small stakes. On top of this woodwork lay panes of glass and tied with string running over the top from side to side, around tacks in the boards. This is not put on until severe weather, and then remains until the first of March, when it should be removed and the sweet peas will take care of themselves. They will flower from the middle of May on, and have a great advantage over the spring planted or unprotected stock of winter. Sweet pea growers, who will give this a trial, will find it greatly to their advantage. The accompanying illustration shows this small block, which was fairly in flower as early as May 15. Other illustrations show the luxuriance of growth at Fordhook.

Rochester Peony Show.

The peony show under the auspices of the Rochester Florists' Association was held June 29-30, with very favorable weather conditions, but owing to several counter attractions, the attendance was not up to expectations. The exhibition, however, was a beautiful one. The center of the hall was laid out in the form of a red cross, edged with white, the flowers being arranged in vases. The effect was striking. A square consisting of tables upon which were other vases of excellent blooms enclosed the cross. Other exhibits were staged at the sides of the building in the following order: J. B. Keller Sons, 50 large vases, handsome jardinières and baskets, outstanding varieties being Edulis, Superba, Baroness Rothschild and Indispensable; Ellwanger & Barry Nursery Co., 65 fine varieties, all named, among those unusually good being Jules Elie; James Vick's Sons, a splendid display of 75 named sorts; John Charlton & Sons, 75 named varieties, among the finest here being Duke of Wellington and Couronne d'Or; Geo. B. Hart, unique arrangement in low pans, giving a pleasing garden effect; Geo. T. Boucher, 37 well displayed vases; H. E. Wilson, a number of handsome baskets, arranged with a splendid color scheme; Jacob Thoman & Son, 46 baskets, the showing of La France being the finest in the exhibition. Out-of-town exhibitors were: S. C. Harris, Tarrytown, N. Y.; Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y.; T. C. Thurlow, Westbury, Mass.; E. H. Farr, Wyomissing, Pa.; R. L. Longborough, Vick & Hill, Barnard, N. Y.; L. J. Bryant & Son, Newark, N. Y.; Babcock Peony Gardens, Sugar Grove, Pa.; N. A. Hal-lower, Fruitland, N. Y.; Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y., all of the displays being excellent.

CHESTER.

WINFIELD, N. Y.—Alfred Fisher has assumed charge of the business of his father, Charles Fischer, recently deceased.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.—Byron H. Ives and wife are spending their summer vacation at Gouverneur, N. Y., the former's native place. Mr. Ives left home for the west in 1879, at the age of 20, establishing a highly successful business here.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, IA.—Owing to ill-health, Roy Wilcox has retired from the firm of J. F. Wilcox & Sons, Inc., his interest being purchased by Mrs. J. F. Wilcox, Blaine and Glen Wilcox. For the present he will devote his time to real estate and personal matters. Blaine Wilcox will succeed him as manager of the firm.

Pittsburgh, Pa.

CLOSE OF MOST SUCCESSFUL SEASON.

Taking the weather into consideration, business has kept up quite well. The past week has been very warm and some stock shows the effects of these conditions. Roses are still very good and find ready sale at from $2 to $8 per 100, especially Killarney, which are used mostly for weddings and commencements. Ophelia and Sunhurst are very seldom called for. Richmond and American Beauty are almost off the market. Peonies are still arriving from New York in large numbers, some weeks later than the local crop. Lily of the valley has been quite plentiful, more so than in any previous year, and cleans up well each day. Carnations are plentiful and most of them are disposed of to the street merchants. Delphiniums and all other outdoor flowers are selling well. Greens are more plentiful and new crop Massachusetts ferns can now be had. Last week closed one of the most successful seasons every experienced by the florists of this city.

NOTES.

Edward Weaver of Randolph & McClements is glad June is over so that he can rest up after a heavy month of wedding decorations. He will soon leave for his summer camp in the mountains.

Wm. Lux, who conducts the flower stand in the William Penn hotel, is a regular baseball fan. He can be found at the game any afternoon the home team is playing.

Dave Hill left for Erie, Pa., to spend the balance of the summer. His two sisters accompanied him on the trip.

Several of the local florists are planning to attend the S. A. F. convention, making the trip by auto.

Jack Frampton, of the Zieger Co., is sojourning at Atlantic City for a few weeks.

Ross Adgate spent July 4 with his parents at Niles, O.

CARNATIONS OUT MARKET.

There is little business in the wholesale market this week, good flowers, especially roses and carnations, being on the shady side. Very few American Beauty roses are to be had. Long stemmed roses are very scarce, but short and medium grades are plentiful. Orchids are coming in more freely now. The carnation situation is very poor. Thousands of them are being received for which sale cannot be found at any price, while the best bring from 1½ to 2½ cents each. Very little lily of the valley is obtainable and the quality is none too good. Lilies are in heavy supply, but move well at $8 per 100. There is a good demand for gladioli and the same is true of Delphinium Belladonna.

NOTES.

The Seidewitz Flower Shop on Charles street reports very satisfactory business, weddings and funeral work keeping the force busy.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. has been showing the best America gladioli the writer has seen here this year.

Albert Fiedler & Co. report brisk business. This firm has been enjoying a heavy demand for funeral work.

Chas. E. Smith & Co. have had a splendid season and are still busy with wedding flowers and funeral work.

The Hamilton Flower Store has been featuring water lilies during the past week.

The Leo Niessen Co. has been receiving daily shipments of water lilies.

Fort Wayne, Ind.*WEATHER CONDITIONS UNFAVORABLE.

Weather conditions during the last week of June were very unsatisfactory; rain fell every day of the week and in most instances heavy electrical storms prevailed. Business was not as brisk as it might have been, and the out-door flowers were damaged to quite an extent. The demand has been mostly for wedding work, with an occasional funeral order. Business is expected to be slack for the next few months, but the majority of florists are glad of a rest and the opportunity to recuperate for the fall business.

NOTES.

Among the local florists who donated carnations and roses for the Red Cross sale of flowers on the street on Friday, June 29, were: A. J. Lanternier & Co., Markey Bros., Doswell Floral Co., Frank J. Knecht, and the Flick Floral Co. Miss Alice Flick was one of the young girls who were dressed in the Red Cross uniform, selling the flowers.

The Flick Floral Co. is showing some fine out-door stock, including gaillardias, coreopsis, and Japanese iris. Wedding orders have been numerous here during the last week of June. They report an excellent demand during the month for all kinds of flowers.

Markey Bros. had some good quality carnations on display in their window. They are also showing some excellent pink hydrangea plants. Business here has been splendid all during the month of June.

The Doswell Floral Co. had an attractive window display of Ophelia and Richmond roses. They have been busy with a large number of weddings, and report the June business as highly satisfactory.

A. J. Lanternier and wife celebrated their fifty-second wedding anniversary by having a large family reunion, June 29. There were handsome decorations of roses and sweet peas about the house.

Columbus, O.*TRADE CONDITIONS VERY QUIET.

Dull trade and poverty of displays continue to characterize the retail flower market. The most pleasing feature, in points of novelty and color effect, is the gladioli, home-grown cuttings of which are beginning to appear. They are limited though, in quantity and variety, and are still too high in price for popular consumption. Roses, which are now the mainstay in cut flowers, are about equal to the demand. The present week will see about the last of the carnations. Those still in stock are of poor quality. There is an abundance of all the usual varieties of garden flowers, but flower-stands on the public markets do not find business up to old standards, owing to the absorbing interests in foodstuffs. Coreopsis, larkspurs, cornflowers, daisies and a few other garden flowers have a fair sale in florists' shops. Funeral work is erratic, but on the whole below the average in volume. This is proving a poor season for porch planting, as compared with last. The home-beautiful agitation of a year ago no longer prevails, planting enthusiasm having taken the practical form of backyard activities. Florists see little prospect of any immediate betterment in trade.

NOTES.

The work of dismantling the Woolman greenhouses, on the Hilltop, owing to the real estate having been sold for railroad purposes, is now in progress. The glass is being removed to the new plant of the Fairview Floral Company, on the river road.

Paul Hardesty, of the Hardesty Floral Company, was married June 26, to Miss Agnes Daoust, of Alpena, Mich., the ceremony having taken place at St. Bernard's church, of that city.

Rhode Island Horticultural Society.

Roses and strawberries were the features of the annual June exhibition of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, held in the ballroom of the Narragansett hotel, Providence, June 29. In addition there were many other varieties of flowers, fruits and vegetables, which attracted many visitors. One of the most striking displays was that of Roger William's park rose gardens, consisting of many varieties of outdoor roses. There was also an elaborate display of roses by amateurs.

Burke & Burns, in the professional class, attracted much attention with their exhibit of long stemmed roses, staged near the entrance, and a display of gladioli and a shower bouquet of yellow marguerites was also worthy of mention. Opposite the entrance, was a novelty table arranged by Macnair, consisting of glass dishes with figures posed on the edges, fishing and gazing into the water. Asparagus and a center of Pink Enchantress completed the pretty effect. Another-table decoration by T. J. Johnston & Co. consisted of an electrical fountain with bowls of water lilies, masses of pyrethrums, snapdragons, pine boughs, and other green. This was also most cleverly done. A fine display of palms and plants, staged by Eugene Appleton, was also among the blue ribbon entries. Excellent showings of peonies by Jas. Dillon and sweet peas by Albert Holscher also attracted attention. In the vegetable section, one of the best entries was that of J. Gerard, of Exeter, who staged 15 varieties.

The exhibition committee, who deserve credit for an excellent show, both in number of entries and varieties, consisted of Eugene Appleton, chairman; Joshua Vose, Arthur Sellow, Cornelius Hartstra, Dr. H. H. Yorke, president of the society, and Ernest K. Thomas, secretary.

Horticultural Society of New York.

An exhibition of this society will be held July 14-15, in the Museum building, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx park. Louis C. Pilat has a considerable glass area at Linden and Glen avenues and a good retail florist and seed store at 154 Main street. Near to the Pilat range are Thomas Cockburn & Sons, who have several good houses and grow a variety of stock.

C. H. Dunscomb has several houses of Lord & Burnham construction. He grows a variety of stock and seems to be prospering.

Mrs. Bradshaw, widow of H. N. Bradshaw, has decided to retire from the business.

Charles J. Weeks has recently opened a retail store at 20 Spring street.

OBITUARY.*Abraham L. Pennock.

Philadelphia lost its oldest florist in the death of Abraham L. Pennock, which occurred June 29 at his home at Lansdowne, Pa., of infirmities due to his extreme age, he being in his ninetyeth year. On June 5, Mr. and Mrs. Pennock celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, at which were 35 persons, all direct descendants, their wives and children. Mr. Pennock was an orthodox Friend and the dean of the Philadelphia florists, having established a retail business with his brother in 1861, which is now so successfully conducted by his son Lidden and A. B. Cartledge.

Abraham Pennock was the first to store lily of the valley pips for forcing the year round. He was also of an inventive mind, his hot water boiler, made in the early days of greenhouse heating, and a counter balance for ventilator shafts, being long in use. Of late years he spent his winters in southern Florida, which delightful climate he greatly enjoyed.

Mr. Pennock had a great love for flowers, and when active in the business kept well to the front. He had a large range of glass at Lansdowne, where roses and other flowers were grown for the city store. He was most cordial in his manner and always glad to give advice to others in the trade. The deceased is survived by a widow, Mrs. Anna C. Pennock; six sons, all engaged in the same calling, and three daughters. The children are: Herbert A., Casper, Samuel Sellers, J. Lidden, Henry Sellers, George L. Pennock, Mrs. Francis J. Laird, Mrs. Nathan P. Stauffer, and Mrs. Robert C. Folwell. Mr. Pennock's funeral, held July 2, was largely attended by his old friends in the trade.

Fred M. Kelly.

Fred M. Kelly, well-known florist of Kokomo, Ind., met death by drowning at Marion, Ind., June 28, the circumstances being surrounded with mystery. While the police are inclined to think that the death was an accident, they are also working on the assumption that he was waylaid and robbed, and arrests have already been made. The deceased was laid to rest in Crown Point cemetery after services at his late residence, which were largely attended. Members of the Kokomo craft were the pallbearers.

James Ivera Donlon.

James Ivera Donlon, well known to the New York trade, and employed in various branches of the business there for many years, died at the Manhattan state hospital June 27. The cause of death, like a large part of Mr. Donlon's life, is veiled in mystery. With an engaging disposition and ability of a high order in many directions, he made a large circle of friends as an attache of the New York state horticultural display, at the Chicago World's Fair in 1892-93.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH.—Florists here are buying coal at $7.50 to $9.00 per ton, taking no chances with their supply for the coming winter.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—A flower sale for the benefit of the Red Cross Society was one of the features of the summer meeting and exhibition of the Minnesota Horticultural Society, June 27.

Nursery Interests and War Riches.

J. Horace McFarland, of Harrisburg, Pa., at the recent convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, held at Philadelphia, stated that Secretary McAdoo had declared the war would cost the United States $100,000,000,000, and that nearly all of this money would be spent in this country. Mr. McFarland calls attention to the fact that this almost unbelievable amount of money cannot be put in circulation without helping the nurserymen and allied interests. It is now up to everybody to put their best foot forward and plan to the best of their ability in reaching out for their share of the great business that is bound to be created with the distribution of this great wealth.

Coal Prices Cut.

Following a tentative agreement between bituminous coal operators and the committee on coal production of the Council of National Defense, June 28, coal prices will be lowered, effective July 1, the operators, representing every producing state, agreeing that the price of bituminous coal beginning with that date shall not exceed $3.50 per ton of 2,000 pounds at the mine. The jobbing margin is not to be more than 25 cents per ton, regardless of the number of middlemen the coal passes before reaching the ultimate consumer.

The operators pronounced the maximum price agreed upon a reduction from prevailing prices of from $2 to $5 a ton. On Illinois soft coal the reduction will probably range to consumers from $1 to $2 a ton. The greater cut will be on high grade eastern bituminous. A further flat cut of 50 cents was granted to the government.

Director Smith of the geological survey estimated that the reduced prices would mean that the operators would get $180,000,000 less annually for their output and that the saving to the government and the coal consuming public would be even greater. The consumer will get his coal at the mine price, plus transportation charges and 25 cents a ton.

The agreement does not affect anthracite, and the coal production committee announced that action on that problem had been postponed until after July 1 by agreement with the operators. The anthracite producers have indicated willingness to meet the government in the same spirit manifested by the bituminous men.

Dormant Stock Problems.

Two matters of great interest to the florist trade were the subject of papers read and discussed at the recent convention of the American Association of Nurserymen at Philadelphia, Pa. "Prohibition of Importation of Nursery Stock" was one, in which James McHutchison, of New York, presented the subject in a very thorough manner. There was considerable discussion, as some nurserymen think all nursery stock should be grown at home. As this subject was of such interest to florists, who import largely of azaleas, box, rhododendrons, etc., it was finally agreed to work with the committee of the Society of American Florists, who have this matter in charge.

"When Are Evergreens (if ever) Dormant?" was a subject masterly handled by J. B. Baker, Fort Worth, Tex. This subject interests florists who import azaleas, rhododendrons and conifers from abroad. Freight rates on dormant stock are about half those of live or stock considered in growth. A number of nurserymen, arbitration committees, and particularly one appointed by the department of agriculture to look into this subject, reported that evergreens and many other plants which held their foliage from one year to another, such as azaleas, rhododendrons, hollies, etc., undoubtedly had their dormant or resting period, as well as the trees that shed their leaves in winter. The importance of establishing this point is, that freight rates on trees and plants classed as dormant, are about half those rated as live and growing. Mr. Baker stated that railroads were now in many instances accepting evergreens and other like plants, as dormant during their resting period, and a committee was trying hard to get a ruling to this effect from the interstate commerce commission, which would settle the matter all over the country.

Orchid Mother Bulbs Duty Free.

Maltus & Ware of New York, representing importers of orchids, claimed that cattleyas were entitled to free entry under paragraph 210, tariff act of 1913, which, referring to bulbs, is broad enough to cover plant growths, which, though not true bulbs botanically speaking, are commercially known as bulbs. The board of United States general appraisers ruled against them, claiming orchids subject to a duty of 25 percentum ad valorem. They appealed to the United States court of customs appeals, which reversed the ruling of the appraisers as follows:

Orchid Plants, How Classifiable—Mature Mother Flowering Bulbs.—Orchid plants, known as cattleyas, which at the time of importation had already flowered, would never flower again, and were useful for no commercial purpose except propagating, and which, although not true bulbs, were known to the trade as orchid bulbs, were entitled to free entry under the proviso to paragraph 210, tariff act of 1913, as mature mother flowering bulbs imported exclusively for propagating purposes.

The board of United States general appraisers prayed for another hearing, which the court granted, and after going carefully over the testimony rendered the following decision:

We hold, first, that the goods are bulbs, because they are commercially so known and designated; second, that they are mature bulbs, because they are fully developed; third, that they are flowering bulbs, because they belong to that class of bulb which is capable of producing flowers; fourth, that they are mother bulbs, because they are capable of producing and do produce other bulbs like themselves which will flower; fifth, that they are imported exclusively for propagating purposes, because they are imported for the purpose of propagating bulbs which will flower, and are absolutely valueless for any other use.

The decision of the board of general appraisers is reversed.

WHOLESALE STORES CLOSING AT 5 P. M.

All the local wholesale stores are now closing at 5 p. m. and will continue to do so the balance of July, August and September. Stock of all kinds is very plentiful at this writing, but there appears to be a gradual shortening in some lines. The supply of home-grown peonies is rapidly decreasing and while a few remain to be cut the heaviest supply to speak of is that in cold storage. Carnations are in good supply and some very good stock for this season of the year is noticed at several of the stores. Roses in general are in large supply, especially Mrs. Chas. Russell, which are in good demand. American Beauty roses are moving well and the same holds true for Ophelia, Sunburst, Milady, Rhea Reid, My Maryland, Hoosier Beauty, Killarney Brilliant, Champ Weiland and White Killarney. The market cleaned up pretty well in all lines last Saturday, June 30, which was housecleaning day for all the dealers. Orchids are a trifle more plentiful and so is lily of the valley, but there is hardly ever any surplus to speak of in either of these two items. Lilies are in large supply and a few callas are seen. Sweet peas are still a factor in the market, but their days are numbered, and the dealer takes a big chance on placing them in shipping orders going any great distance. Calendulas, daisies, statice, pansies, delphiniums, candytuft, iris, feverfew, pond lilies, snapdragons, stocks, foxgloves, gladioli, gypsophila, coreopsis, cosmos and a long list of other miscellaneous indoor and outdoor flowers are included in the heavy daily shipments. The retail florists now have a splendid chance to feature a great va-

Peter Reinberg is one of the few in this vicinity who still continues to grow the rose, My Maryland, and judging from the stock that is now reaching the store, this variety is far from being a has-been with him.
 A. L. Vaughan & Co. are cleaning house this week and are making a number of changes, so when the fall season opens they will have more square feet of floor space at their disposal than formerly.

 Matt Mann and Jack Byers, of Zech & Mann, are some fishermen. Ask them about the big catch they made last Sunday, July 1, but stand near the door so you can make a quick getaway.

 Miss Clara Burkart, of the Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s supply department, is enjoying a well earned vacation.
 The A. L. Randall Co. has increased its capital stock from $50,000 to $300,000.

FAIR DEMAND, BUT STOCK MEDIOCRE.

The market for the week ending July 1 was in fairly good condition. Sales at the wholesale houses were good, although stock is not of the best. Russell and Sunburst roses hold up well and bring the best prices. Killarneys are poor and have practically no demand. Lily of the valley has disappeared from the market. Lilies and callas are getting scarcer, but there are still enough for requirements. Outdoor sweet peas have suffered terribly the past week and as a result are of poor grade. Shasta daisies, gaillardias and other outdoor stock is fair with a good demand. Carnations are getting smaller every day it seems, and are cleaned up only in large lots. New fancy ferns have arrived and in other greens the market is equal to the call.

NOTES.

The president of the florists' club has notified the new members of the florist publicity committee of their appointment and it certainly looks like a live committee who will accomplish a world of good for the trade. The committee consists of Wm. C. Smith, chairman; F. C. Weber, Jr., Paul Reden, A. H. Hummert and Geo. B. Windler.

The National Flower Show Committee has appointed a local committee on landscaping and improving the grounds where the 1918 National flower show will be held. The committee consists of L. P. Jensen, chairman; Wm. Strehle and L. Bauman. This is the first committee to be appointed.

J. J. Beneke, organizer and officer of the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Association, of this city, has severed his connection with this firm. He has not as yet announced any new plans for the future.

The scarcity of lily of the valley in this market has been quite serious the last few weeks, especially on short notice weddings. Quite a few florists are getting their supply shipped daily.

Oscar May had a big dance at his place in the county. His location is ideal, on a high promontory overlooking the Meramec river, and the good time enjoyed by all will not be soon forgotten.

On Saturday, June 30, this vicinity had a heavy rainfall, which came just in time, as gladioli were suffering quite a bit, as well as sweet peas and other outdoor stock.

L. Jules Bourdet is busy lining up members of the S. A. F. to attend the convention at New York next month. He hopes to take a big delegation with him.

The spring flower show committee had a meeting the past week, and hope to wind up everything before the meeting in July.

The officers of the florists' club will hold a monthly meeting the coming week at L. Jules Bourdet's place.

GOOD SUPPLY BUT SALES LIMITED.

The market is now in its usual early summer condition. There is a sufficient amount of stock for all needs, but only a small part of it is excellent in quality. The larger part of it is short. Business, though not what it might be, still is fair. Roses are plentiful. Among others are some excellent Ophelia and Ward, together with a few Russell. Maman Cochet has been added to the list. Easter lilies are excellent and plentiful. Gladioli are selling well. At times the receipts in this flower run short of actual needs. Carnations are about at an end for the summer. Only a few good ones come into the wholesale houses. Snapdragons are selling quite well. Other offerings are sweet peas, nymphaeas and feverfew.

NOTES.

C. J. Ohmer and wife, and Master James Ohmer, after a week spent as guests of E. G. Gillett and wife, left for Conway, Mich., July 2.

The annual meeting of the florists' society, together with the election of officers, will be held July 9.

Miss Laura Murphy has returned after a trip to Washington, New York and other eastern points.

Herbert Pennock, the asparagus grower of Jupiter, Fla., was in this city last week.

E. G. Gillett has been getting in some excellent late peonies from the north.

SUPPLY MOVES WELL, BUT PRICES LOW. Business conditions are very favorable, considering the summer temperature, and stock cleans up fairly well, although at low prices. Roses still arrive on the open side and nearly all sell at buyers' figures. Home grown carnations are a thing of the past, but the Colorado varieties are exceptionally good. Garden flowers are more plentiful and the quality is fast improving. They are welcomed for basket work and orders for hospitals.

NOTES.

T. J. Noll & Co. report business very good, with a heavy out-of-town demand. This firm is strong on roses, carnations, gladioli, lilies and outdoor stock.

H. Kusik & Co. report a good supply of new ferns, roses, carnations, lilies and gladioli. Business for June was 25 per cent better than last year.

The chrysanthemums at the Wm. L. Rock Floral Co.'s greenhouses are showing fine form. Arrangements are now being made for the carnations.

W. J. Barnes reports a good run on funeral, birthday, basket and hospital orders. Bedding business continues good, considering the season.

S. Bryson Ayres is cutting a fine line of outdoor flowers and has no trouble in finding a market.

A. Newell reports things are in great shape, with June showing a good increase over the average.

The Forest Hill cemetery is starting a new house south of the old range.

Charles Thomas, of The Rosery, reports very satisfactory business.

BRISK DEMAND, BUT PRICES ARE LOW.

Trade during the past week has been quite good, augmented by a good call for flowers for weddings, commencements and funerals. The demand for outdoor planting and window boxes continues excellent. #### NOTES.

E. C. Kaelber had a very effective Red Cross window last week, consisting of a shield of white mounted on an easel for the background, the rest of the design being of red. Carnations were used in the arrangement with red oriental poppies well displayed in the front of the design.

J. B. Keller Sons had a splendid Red Cross window, consisting of an immense gold frame with a cross of red carnations on a background of white. Handsome baskets and vases of choice stock were also seen to splendid advantage in the general arrangement.

Geo. T. Boucher had the order for the decorations for the Red Cross dinner, there being 50 tables in all. Red roses were used in quantity with huckleberry branches.

Thomas Sullivan has resigned his position with Geo. B. Hart, owing to ill health. He will spend some time on a farm this summer.

J. C. Brown has sold his flower stand in the Hotel Eggleston to Frank McLuis. The latter reports business very brisk.

BUSINESS FAIR, CONSIDERING SEASON.

"One does not expect much these days," was the way one of the wholesalers put it, when asked about the volume of business. "Still we are doing very well for the season." There is an abundance of stock, but the quality is low. Russell, Ophelia, Sunburst and My Maryland roses lead, and there are also some good Kaiserin. Local American Beauties are much below par. The eastern stock, however, is still very good. Carnations are failing rapidly. Two weeks more will see them out of the market. Cattleyas are plentiful—splendid quality for the low prices at which they are offered. Lily of the valley is nothing to brag of; about as good as last year's seconds, but it brings $8, and has to be ordered in advance. Outside stock is very plentiful; purple and white candytuft, feverfews, gaillardias and larkspurs are staples offered in quantity at low prices. Sweet peas are getting smaller with the hot weather, and most of the stock is short stemmed. Easter lilies have hit the market hard at a bad time. They are grown well enough to bring much better figures. Gladioli are good property, their lasting qualities making them popular for window and other decoration. Early asters are seen in limited quantities.

NOTES.

Leo Niessen is enjoying a well-deserved vacation at Ocean City. System is apparent in this busy establishment. Shipping facilities are arranged for instant service. Under the packing benches are kept stored, wooden boxes of various sizes, the corrugated being tabooed at this season. Chopped ice is close at hand in a zinc-lined box. Rope, cut the right length for the various sized boxes, is conveniently suspended; this latter saves both time and much waste. "Business good for the season," is the statement of Clarence Watson.

It is rumored now that July 10 will be the last day for the florists' club-room. There should certainly be a farewell smoker and a "getting together" of all the old members, as well as the new, to meet and sing "Auld Lang Syne" in this room where so many pleasant and profitable hours have been spent. The new meeting place has not as yet been decided on.

"I tell you, boys, we all have to take our hats off to Robert Craig. He has the finest and most varied stock of foliage plants at the Norwood Nurseries I have ever seen, and I have observed a good many. He is 70 years young and going strong. Long life to him." Mark Mills said this the other day, and his hearty manner left no doubt as to his convictions.

A fly screen door is now in action at the Eugene Bernheimer shop. There are no hald heads here, but they say they do not have time to kill them. A very good summer business, we should say.

Edward Reid, in his Home Guard uniform, has a very military bearing. A two-day encampment of the Lands-downe company, to which he belongs, last week end gave them some good experience.

Berger Bros. central market is well supplied with summer stock. Maryland roses, Easter lilies and quantities of outside flowers are the feature here. Very fair business is the good word.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. find their auto sales service to be much appreciated by the trade. The real articles are much better in selling goods than photos.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange is strong on Easter lilies and summer roses. Russells are seen here in quantity.

Ophelia and Hadley roses are leaders with the Jos. Heacock Co. There is a good demand also for White Killarney.

Don't Wait

UNITED CUT FLOWER CO., Inc., 111 W. 28th St., New York City

The delegates to the nurserymen's convention, which was a three-day session in this city the past week, sat down to a "get together" dinner the first evening. This was their only diversion. Hard and earnest work and a full attendance at every session, the combining of the morning and afternoon programme of the last day, lasting from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m., is their record. They are certainly hustlers, these tree men.

Roses in papered bundles of 25 each make a convenient and handy package. Some growers, however, will skin these packages with imperfect and short stemmed stock. This is a short-sighted policy, however, as all stock is known by its number, and the culprit is easily traced. Better play fair, boys—it pays best all the time.

We are glad to report that John Burton, who was successfully operated upon for appendicitis June 23, is rapidly recovering and hopes soon to be in his usual good health. Mrs. Edwin Lonsdale, his sister, is also in the same hospital for a slight operation. Her many friends hope for a speedy recovery.

All hands are busy at Jos. G. Neidinger's with stock for the coming season. New designs in baskets, which are kept under cover, should make a sensation this fall. K.

Yonkers, N. Y.

The New York Floral Co. has recently moved into an exceptionally fine store, the largest in Westchester county, located at the corner of Manor House square and Broadway. This firm occupies both stories of the building. There is 2,000 square feet of space in their store and 1,000 square feet in their workroom, which is on the second floor. The plate and ornamental glass, fronting the Square and Broadway, is about 500 square feet to each front. The ceiling is high and handsomely ornamented. The company fitted up the store at their own expense at a cost of nearly $5,000. A garage is in the rear of the building.

This, now a city, as near as we can estimate, of 100,000 people, has a number of good florists and nurserymen. We believe that the oldest among them, both in years and service, is Charles Ammann, who has a good nursery on the Tuckahoe road. Before removing to Yonkers, he spent many years in the retail florist business in New York.

Mrs. Fannie Milliot is well advanced in years, but she has a clever family, who conduct the business: a son manages the greenhouses and a daughter is the buyer in the wholesale district of New York. They have a good retail business.

John Goff has recently opened a good retail store at 93 Ashburton avenue, which he has named the "Ashburton Avenue Florist." He is also engaged in landscape work.

We found the McDonald Floral Co., 103 New Main street, very busy. It has a good store and a long established trade in cut flowers, floral decorations and seeds.

R. T. Broderick has a neat store at 3 Manor House square, and seems to have a good business, being a clever and companionable young man.

A. F. F.

Now is the time to send us a shipment of flowers and acquaint yourself with the satisfactory treatment you receive when you ship to New York's Foremost Commission House in the flower trade.

Extensive experience, ample capital, modern facilities and, in fact, everything to commend us to you.

New York.

TRADE DULLER THAN USUAL FOR SEASON.

Business was dull during the past week, duller than during the corresponding period of 1916. Practically all stocks, both in greenhouses and outdoors, were held back by the cold and dark weather of May and early June. When the sun did come out, it came with a vengeance, and came to stay; consequently, an immediate surplus was thrown on the market. By the time this reaches our readers, the peonies will be about finished. With the peonies, it has been, in the wholesale district, another case of: "Welcome the stranger; speed the parting guest." If this war continues for another year, and there are predictions that it will not end in three years, it would be a good plan to plough up at least half the peonies in the country and plant potatoes in their stead. You cannot eat peonies. Toward the last of the past week, the supply of American Beauties was lighter and very special stock crawled up to 25 and 30 cents. A moderate supply of cattleyas arrived, the gigas going at 40 and 50 cents, wholesale rates, but Mossias went as low as 15 and 20 cents. Lilies have been in surplus and selling for from one to three cents per flower. The supply of lily of the valley has been light and fair stock has brought $5 per 100. There is yet an abundant supply of carnations, but the hot weather is knocking them out, and as planting time will soon be at hand, it is reasonable to suppose that the supply will, very soon, be greatly reduced. The "Jack" roses have had quite a run, largely in the hands of speculators and peddlers. If there is any business worth while, good tea roses usually bring fair prices in this market, or at least, a limited number do, but the problem is to dispose of the surplus. Larkspurs and various other outdoor stocks are so plentiful that they are a nuisance; but it is the old story. If a particular stock sells fairly well one season, nearly everybody will be growing it the next. Since we are about to have a food dictator, and a drink dictator, it might not be a bad idea to have a flower dictator. As for coal, a dictator is not enough; get a razor edge on the axe. The people who are fond of saying that the newspapers are owned and controlled by the capitalists, should read more and talk less. At the very least, they will learn that many of the newspapers are not owned or controlled by the coal operators and dealers.

July 2.—After the quietest Sunday in the wholesale district within the memory of living men, all the stores being closed, there is some activity this morning, but no prices. The weather continues warm and brings in a great quantity of out-door stock. A great stock of larkspurs, feverfews and Gypsophila paniculata (baby's breath) is on the market. The prices of special American Beauties are unsteady, but 25 cents is the top and 15 cents is a good average. Irises and stocks are about out.

Association, which will be held at Witzel's Point View Grove July 11, have been completed. The elegant steamer Ajax will leave the foot of East 23rd street promptly at 10:30. The breakfast and dinner will be up to the usual high standard of other years and elaborate preparations have been made for a good time for members and guests. The vacation season is now at hand and a number of the employees of the wholesale stores are away. Miss Mabel E. Conkling, bookkeeper for Horace E. Froment, has gone to Sackett Lake, N. Y., for a month's camping. George Orth and Chris Mooney, of the same store, are away for two weeks.

Eddie Hanft, of the staff of Hentz & Nash, Inc., has returned from a vacation of two weeks at Rockaway Park.

Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., 116-118 Seventh Street, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Business in flowers for the school commencements of the past week, was not as good as it has been in former years on account of the restrictions imposed by the school authorities, but there were some fair orders. Esch, The Florist, 3279 Third avenue, made up 35 bouquets, July 1, for the graduating class at a Catholic school. They were of feverfews, with showers of red, white and blue ribbons and the effect was fine.

Alexander McConnell had the floral decorations for the wedding of Kingdon Gould, son of George Gould, and Miss Annunzita Camilla Lucci, at St. Patrick's cathedral, July 2. He also had charge of the improvements on the Flint estate, Larchmont, N. Y., preparing the grounds for lawns and planting a variety of stock.

The Essex County, N. J., Florists' Club will have an outing, August 1, at Berkley Heights, N. J. Automobiles will leave Lincoln park, Newark, early in the forenoon. The outing committee follows: R. Youill, chairman; Jas. J. McLaughlin, secretary; John F. Pfeuffer, E. Brunner, and Chas. J. Connolly.

Since we visited the convention garden, about the middle of May, we find that the warm weather has greatly improved it, particularly the cannas, which are its leading features. The gladioli and roses are also looking well.

Charles Willow, well known in the trade of this city, has recently opened a retail store at 840 Eighth avenue, under the title of the Winter Garden Florist, and reports good business.

M. Andreapoulos, the Garden Florist, 2833 Broadway, had a large funeral order, June 30. He says he has had a good season and is not worrying about summer dullness.

Mrs. Peter F. McKenny, who underwent an operation in the French hospital, some weeks ago, has so far recovered as to be able to return to her home. A. F. F.

LAGRANGE, ILL.—H. Mehl, who is conducting the nursery of the late C. W. Northrup, has made extensive improvements.

PORTLAND ORE.—The Portland Floral Society has elected the following officers for the ensuing year: E. J. Steele, president; Guy Pilkington, vice-president; R. E. Gear, treasurer; H. Nicklas, secretary.

Hackensack, N. J.

The store which was formerly known as the Birchwood Gardens, and was conducted by H. S. Mabie, of Maywood, is now the Kuhnert Floral Shop. N. S. Mabie now devotes his time to his greenhouses.

Henry Weissmann, manager of the "House of Flowers," Main and Bridge streets, now has another store at Ridgefield Park.

Mrs. M. H. Heater, formerly with the Birchwood Gardens, now has a nice store of her own at 128 Main street.

Alfred Whittle, once a well known employe of Max Schling, New York, now has a prosperous business at 196 Main street.

A. F. F.

Oklahoma City.

The weather continues very warm and seasonable, and the flower business is developing no extraordinary features. Cut gladioli are arriving from Texas, but they show no improvement over stock that is being grown in this immediate neighborhood.

Visitors: E. H. Hancock, Tulsa, Okla.; M. Tibbs, Ada, Okla.; O. O. Boston, Tulsa, Okla. S. S. B.

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer.

CALIFORNIA reports on freesia bulbs are unfavorable.

BEAN growers in Michigan and New York report their crops damaged by rain.

LOMPOC, CALIF.—Ant. C. Zvolanek says the sweet pea crop looks good, 25 per cent better than in 1916.

THE Illinois seed test bill has been vetoed by Governor Lowden, being classed with those considered unconstitutional.

CUCUMBER growing for seed in Michigan will be practically eliminated this season on account of the higher prices paid growers for other crops.

J. C. Vaughan and wife, Chicago, celebrated their fortieth wedding anniversary June 28, with a family reunion at the Homewood farm.

VISITED CHICAGO.—Carlos Jensen, representing L. Daehnfeldt, Odense, Denmark; George C. Thompson, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn., returning from the east.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy against the Cumberland Seed Co. was filed June 19 in the United States circuit court by C. E. Woods and Norman Farrell, Jr., of this city, and the Anderson-Hunter Co., of Franklin, Tenn.

NEW YORK.—The business of Jacot & Mullen has been taken over by Henry W. Doughten, who has been in their employ for the past five years. The office will now be located at 59 Pearl street.—Although it is growing late, the seed stores continue to do a good business, particularly in vegetable and bedding plants.

HOLLAND correspondence of recent date indicates that bulbs are not lucrative, now there is no market, or but a very restricted one in foreign countries. The same applies to trees and shrubs, many owning nurseries preferring to grow potatoes or other vegetables because they are more certain of finding a good market for those products.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—C. C. Morse & Co. report their seed business as being unusually good and showing a very large percentage of increase over their previous year's business. Unlike other years, the months of April and May were their best selling months and business even continued well into June, or until the hot weather set in, about June 10.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district have not been greatly affected by maggot thus far. There is some tendency towards large sets which will mean more bushels rather than small size. While the farmers are talking poor crop with but few exceptions, the fields do not bear them out. Some crops which have made a good growth will lodge and rot if the rain continues too freely.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—Sidney Courteen, son of S. G. Courteen, of the S. G. Courteen Seed Co., is now at Old Point Comfort, Va., having been commissioned a second lieutenant.

Added Support for Uniform Law.

The principal achievement of the Detroit convention from a legislative point of view was the adoption of the uniform state seed law, on which the association has been working for several years, by both the American Seed Trade Association and the Official Seed Analysts, who convened at Detroit during the same week as the seedsmen.

The approval by the Official Seed Analysts of the bill so long labored upon by the seedsmen gives it a semi-official backing that will assist materially in securing its adoption in the various states. The fight of seedsmen against unfavorable provisions in inspection and germination test laws has been long and hard because, in part, there were no recognized and authoritative standards to refer to. Something of the sort is provided by the uniform seed law, now that it has the recommendation and support of a number of organizations to whom this subject is of interest. The fight of the seedsmen is thus made easier, it is expected, in future.

Dutch Freight Coming.

In addition to the information on the above subject given in our issue of June 23, page 1238, we are indebted to Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, for the following from the Secretary of State, Washington, D. C., under date of June 19, 1917:

"In regard to shipment of nursery stock from Holland, you are informed that the department is in receipt of a cablegram dated June 14, 1917, from the American charge d'affaires at The Hague, stating that the steamships Beukelsdyk and Amsteldyk have both left Rotterdam for the United States carrying general cargo and the Sommelysdyk is expected to leave with 2,300 tons of cargo, to be followed by the Noordam with 2,000 tons. The charge d'affaires states that he is informed by the Holland-America Line that it intends to continue to send vessels with general cargo. Your correspondent in Holland will undoubtedly be able to arrange directly with the Holland-America Line for the shipment of the goods in which you are interested, and there is no necessity for any action on the part of the Department of State with reference thereto."

Nebraska Seed Crops.

Waterloo, June 9.—The crop outlook in eastern Nebraska is not especially good just at present. The corn crop was planted under very favorable conditions, but since then there has been an excess of moisture accompanied by cold weather that has injured and retarded the growth of corn in the valleys and very heavy rains have seriously washed the crops on the upland. In addition, the Elkhorn river has been out of its banks and flooded a good many hundred acres of the very best vine seed land and sweet corn land that we have. The damage has been serious. Whether the water will recede and the land dry in sufficient time to replace any of these crops is a problem. Warm, growing weather is urgently needed and must come soon or all crops will be seriously handicapped.

J. C. ROBINSON.

Fremont, June 11.—The conditions are not very encouraging on account of the cold, wet, backward spring, and difficulty in getting farmers to contract to grow seed crops. We have a fair acreage of most kinds of sweet and field corns, cucumber, pumpkin and squash contracted, but planting of corn has been delayed badly and it will require the most favorable conditions the balance of the season to insure good crops. We are short of acreage of a few kinds of sweet and some flint corn, also a few varieties of muskmelon and a number of kinds of watermelon, but have covered most others in fairly good shape, if late contracts can be planted this week. High water in many sections of Nebraska is causing late planting and replanting of many crops, but we hope the floods are over and the water will go down rapidly. Large areas of farm lands around Waterloo, Neb., have been inundated several days during the past week and all fields of listed corn and some surface planting, flooded by heavy rains with trenches full and thousands of acres covered with soil washed in and on top of corn. A favorable season from now on, and a late fall, may make a good crop.

Amendment to Association By-Laws.

On motion of S. F. Willard, the following amendment of Article III of the By-Laws was adopted:

Omit in third line "On Tuesday of the last full week of June, at such place as the executive committee may appoint," and insert "In the month of June, on such date and at such place as the executive committee may select," so that Article III as amended shall read:

There shall be an annual meeting of the association for the choice of officers and the transaction of other business, in the month of June, on such date and at such place as the executive committee may select; each member shall be notified by the secretary, through the mail of the time and place of such meeting at least 30 days in advance of said meeting. Fifteen members shall constitute a quorum.

On motion of L. B. McCausland, seconded by H. L. Holmes, a rising vote of thanks was extended to President Kirby B. White and his coadjutors for the magnificent entertainment provided by them for the visiting members, their ladies and guests.

Japanese Bulbs and Freights.

Well informed importers state that on account of the lack of facilities for freight on Pacific steamers, it is highly improbable that a normal quantity of Japanese lily bulbs will be imported this year. If the Japanese remove soon any large part of their ships from the Pacific to the Atlantic trade, as they are stated to have been requested to do, by our government, it is likely to make it impossible to get bulbs from Japan. We learn that on May 26 there were in Japanese warehouses, 100,000 tons of all kinds of freight awaiting shipment. For the past three months the experience of importers has been that when they applied for space for 100 tons of freight, they were allotted space for from five to 10 tons.

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

H. F. Thompson, Arlington, Mass., Vice-
President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky.,
Secretary; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids,
Mich., Treasurer.

Next annual convention will be held at
Springfield, Mass., in 1917.

EAST ORANGE, N. J.—There are more than 1,000 home gardens under cultivation in this vicinity.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—George Ackerman has sold his vegetable range and will devote his time to farming.

FREEMONT, ILL.—The Freemont Floral Co. is supplying the first home-grown tomatoes seen on the local market this season.

THE standard barrel of the United States should contain 7,056 cubic inches, with 28½-inch staves and 17¼-inch heads, head material not thicker than 2/5 of an inch.

WITH 48,000 acres to be harvested the commercial production of cantaloupes for 1917 is estimated by the department of agriculture at 7,788,400 crates of 45 melons each. The production in 1916 was 6,771,900 crates, harvested from 40,400 acres.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, July 2.—Mushrooms, home grown, No. 1, 50 to 75 cents per carton; lettuce, cases 5 to 10 cents; radishes, 75 cents per hundred bunches; celery, $2.50 per crate; tomatoes, per basket, $1; cucumbers, per crate, $1.50.

New York, July 2.—Celery, per crate, $1.25 to $2.50; cucumbers, 40 to 80 cents per dozen; mushrooms, $1.00 to $3.00 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, 7 to 15 cents per pound; radishes, per hundred bunches, 75 cents to $1.25; lettuce, per basket, 35 cents to $1.25; rhubarb, per dozen bunches, 75 cents to $1.25.

Carlot Shipments of Fruits and Vegetables.

Carlot shipments of fruits and vegetables reported by railroads to the United States department of agriculture for the season to June 25 were as follows: Asparagus, 765; early cabbage, 4,194; lettuce, 1,587; new onions, 5,922 (not complete); new potatoes, 17,773; tomatoes, 6,315; watermelons, 3,593; peaches, 589; strawberries, 8,954; cantaloupes, 1,958.

Onion Crop in Texas.

From reports received in the bureau of crop estimates, United States department of agriculture, showing the yield per acre of Bermuda onions in Texas, it is estimated that the total movement of Bermuda onions out of that state will be 6,885 cars of 464 crates each, the equivalent of 6,085 cars of 525 crates each, approximately the average number of crates per carload in 1917. Reports of shipments to the Office of Markets and Rural Organization department show that 5,179 cars had moved up to and including June 1, 1917.

Pollinating Tomatoes.

The spring greenhouse crop of tomatoes is constantly gaining in importance; there are each year a number of new growers, who do not realize the importance of proper pollination. And sometimes the old growers neglect this practice in the rush of work. A season like the present, cool and cloudy, is especially unfavorable to best fruit development. For success, we need in the first place, an ample supply of virile pollen, and second, its proper distribution. It will be found in practice that tomato blossoms will be defective if moisture conditions are not right. If the soil is over charged with moisture, and the plants making soft growth, success is uncertain; on the other hand, if we have grown lettuce and tomatoes together at the same time, and the lettuce has extracted all the subsoil moisture, the blossoms come lifeless and failure is certain. We must therefore be sure there is an ample supply of moisture in the soil; we should conserve this by hoeing the ground the same as outdoors; we should not sprinkle or syringe the house or foliage, for what we want is the dry house and dry atmosphere. Then if everything is all right, we should allow the houses a sharp rise in temperature from 9 a. m. to noon; this will prepare the pollen in the blossom and a sudden jar will distribute the pollen. Varieties differ in their requirements; Bonny Best is easily pollinated by the slightest jar. For such kinds we merely use a small stick and hit the strings or stakes a sharp tap to liberate the pollen; however, some varieties are more obstinate. For such we resort to snapping the blossom with the finger directly, aiming to hit the blossoms as hard as we can without knocking them off. A little observation will show how much effort is needed. Bear in mind, no pollen no fruit, lack of pollen deformed fruit.

MARKETMAN.

Fruit and Vegetable Market Review.

During the week June 20-26, the weekly market review issued by the office of markets and rural organizations of the United States department of agriculture showed crop conditions as follows:

Shipments of new potatoes amounted to 3,776 cars, the bulk coming from North Carolina, Norfolk and the eastern shore of Virginia. Jobbing prices ranged from $6 to $8.75 per barrel, a drop of $1.25 from the previous week, but $3.25 to $4.50 per barrel higher than last year. Mississippi tomatoes were quoted at from 75 cents to $1.25, 25 cents increase over the previous week and 65 cents higher than during the comparable week in 1916. Shipments to June 26 were 983 cars less than last year. Onion shipments continue to decline, the week's shipments being 191 cars, 35 cars less than the previous week. Jobbing prices were from $1 to $1.40, a decline of 10 cents. The bulk of the asparagus shipments came from New Jersey, receipts being 80 cars, 11 below the number reported the week before. The estimated acreage of early cabbage in the south is 90 per cent greater than in 1916. The week's shipments amounted to 310 cars, or 259 less than in the previous six days. Lettuce shipments amounted to 29 cars, mostly from New York, about the same quantity as the previous week, but twice as much as during the comparable period last year.

Strawberry shipments are about over. Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey berries are firm at from 12½ to 16 cents per quart, an advance of three to five cents over last year. Cantaloupe shipments are far below those of last year. Jobbing prices on California Standard 45's were $3.50 to $5.25 as compared with $1.75 to $3 a year ago. Watermelons were $45 to $65 per car higher than during the previous week.

Canned Products Sold in Advance.

Herbert C. Hoover, food controller of the Council of National Defense, in a recent address cited the canning industry as an example where the entire output of vegetables and fish for 1917 had been disposed of before it had even reached the canners. He predicted further high prices. Thousands of men, he said, who heretofore have never owned a dollar's worth of food-stuff are now speculating in necessities.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Forty-Second Annual Convention, Philadelphia, Pa., June 27-29, 1917.

The Officers Elect:

Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., President; J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex., Vice-President; Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass., Counsel and Secretary; J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia., Treas.

Place and Date of 1918 Meeting will be Decided by the Executive Committee.

Well Attended and Fruitful Meeting.

Supplementing our account of the opening session of the forty-second annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, which was held at the Adelphia hotel, Philadelphia, Pa., June 27-29, the report of the balance of the program which contained many interesting features, entered into by an attendance of goodly numbers with much interest, will be found below.

At the Wednesday morning session, Vice-President Stark, in replying to the addresses of welcome of J. A. Cattell, the mayor's personal representative, and Powell Evans, of the Chamber of Commerce, read a letter from Prince Poniatounski, of Paris, France, asking aid of the American Association of Nurserymen in furnishing fruit trees and vines to replace the ruined orchards laid waste by the Germans. The writer said that tremendous ruin had resulted, many small orchards being cut down to a foot of the ground. Trees of America are especially suited for the climate of northern France, and this appeal met with a direct response in the appointment of a committee, who will gather donations from members of the association this fall and forward them to Prince Poniatounski.

The afternoon meeting of Wednesday was called to order at 2:30 o'clock and immediately went into executive session to consider the report of Counsel Curtis Nye Smith and reports of committees as follows: Legislation, Wm. Pitkin, chairman, Rochester, N. Y.; arbitration, W. C. Reed, chairman, Vincennes, Ind.; distribution, M. R. Cashman, Owatonna, Minn.; tariff, Irvin Rouse, chairman, Rochester, N. Y.

The Banquet.

The innovation of holding the banquet on Wednesday evening, the first day of the convention, was favorably commented upon. It was called a "get together dinner." Over 300 guests were present—delegates and their ladies. In addition to a fine menu, there were a number of surprises, one following another in quick succession.

"I'm a little prairie flower,
Growing wilder every hour;
Nobody seems to cultivate me,
I'm wild! I'm wild!"

Was one of the first songs by R. C. Chase, mayor and baggage master of Chase, Ala. It made a great hit. Robert Pyle was toastmaster, and on the job every minute. A street semaphore stood in the center of the room with one of Philadelphia's finest traffic officers at the lever. This was to be used to "stop" a too effusive speaker, but several auto horns, which had been connected up electrically, were more effective. Among the speakers were: Former secretary, John Hall, Irving Paschall, Vice-President Lloyd C. Stark, J. Harrison Dick, and James Pitkin. Numerous interruptions with the auto horns gave the speakers little chance for oratory. There were a number of "skits" on the small stage—dancing with Scotch bagpipe accompaniment, dancing by little children and songs and dancing by young women, who went after the baldheads of the diners. A good magician was outdone by an Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.

Pres.-Elect American Association of Nurserymen act in which on a trellis, Burpee's sweet peas grew and blossomed out in a few minutes from seed, the flowers being distributed to the company. Exactly at eleven the curtains of the stage were drawn, disclosing Miss Columbia and Brother Jonathan, who sang the "Star Spangled Banner," in which all joined and closed one of the most pleasant features of the convention.

Thursday's Proceedings.

Thursday's session opened at 10 a. m. "Nurserymen's Publicity," with J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa., as the essayist, was splendidly handled. In his address he stated that the nurserymen, when it came to publicity, were not aggressive enough; that, if they had been Israelites, they never would have taken the promised land. It was thought by many that there was no business but the business of war; that one must close up the shop, stand on the corner and talk war. Business must go on.

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo says the war will cost ten billion dollars a year, nearly all to be put in circulation here. This means an increase of three times the present circulation of money, and how can it move and not hit the nurserymen? How? How? How? Now is the time to get into the selling business. Nursery products can and will be sold if intelligent efforts are used to place them before the public. Trees add value to the land and efficiency to the people who buy them; furnishing pleasant home surroundings makes the people better able to stand the rigors of war. The cost of publicity amounts to nothing to you. The customer pays that, but yours is the loss when a large surplus has to be burned on the brush heap. "Save the Fruit Crop" is the headline of a large ad, now running by the sugar refineries. It is costing them over $20,000, while the men who sell the fruit trees are spending practically nothing. With the proper publicity, 20,000,000 homes might plant that number of trees, an average of only one to a home. Think of it. At least 15,000,000 to 18,000,000 of trees sold in one year and none left for the brush pile. What sold the nearly $3,000,000,000 worth of Liberty Loan bonds? Patriotism? No! Publicity, and the best the government could get. The best brains and the best newspapers, and the team work organized by paid experts. It was the same with that glorious Red Cross fund. There was more patriotism here, but it was the organized publicity that was most effective. You nurserymen are creators of wealth. Miners never add to wealth; they dig up what is there, but your trees create wealth. A homeopathic dose of publicity will sell your goods. Try it!

Irving Paschall, advertising manager of the Farm Journal, spoke of sales promotion. He said it was important, first to find out why sales are not made, and second, why sales are made, and then improve methods. Research work was most important. Growers should be asked why was this grown, and why not that? It was not hard to manufacture goods, but most difficult to sell them. In his opinion an association trade mark was most essential to identify the nurseryman in the minds of the consumer. Publicity as an association was needed through newspapers and also magazines—good readable stories about nursery products. The trade papers are good mediums and are used to lift up the nurserymen, to enthruse them and the editors. Then there must be a standard of ideals, not set too high, but such as could be lived up to. It was good business practice. Cutting prices to get business never paid, nor knocking, which has a back kick to it that hurts the knocker. A publicity bureau was recommended to get out educational matter. A Hoover back yard of fruit trees would get people with limited ground interested. A $2 investment made a great hit with a man in Missouri and started many other small buyers on the same tack. A $3,000 man with some expense money should be able to put over $50,000 to $60,000 worth of publicity. The trade mark on everything should be universally used. A sales primer, or a book educating the public about trees and all products, should go out with the trade mark, and also the name of the nurseryman who sent it out as his book. It would cost each one in the trade but a small sum. With these suggestions carried out, nurserymen would then be on the way to large sales, and little if any surplus.

W. C. White, of the Agricultural Publishers' Association, said he was strong for publicity in helping sales, but while some could be put over gratis, a generous amount should be given the papers in direct advertising, as it was an unusual proposition where business men could get something for nothing. The farmer is the biggest business man on earth—he is coming rapidly to the front. He must have pleasant surroundings. The city supplies those of its inhabitants—its parks and tree-lined boulevards. The farmer, however, must plant his own. We become efficient and useful as we are encouraged to the right ways of living. The American Association of Nurserymen, he added, is not different from many who have benefited by publicity. Fruit has been successfully advertised. Why not trees? In selling you must consider the customer. Get the right angle—put yourself in his place. The farmer now pays the highest prices for pedigreed stock when he needs it. He buys from mail order houses, because they canvass him. This trade is the nurserymen's if they go after it and put it up to him in the proper way. Get together a committee of your best salesmen and start a publicity bureau. But I would go beyond that. Why do you use so much Portland cement? Because the companies have made it plain to you that it is the best thing to do. Breeders' associations have found it profitable to advertise, and so can you. Keep in mind the practical side. If a firm spends $5,000 a year, the association could do much more good with his and the other money of its members.

J. J. Hazel said he thought that the association should educate the consumer of fruit, as he was the man who bought the product, and anything that increased sales here would surely help in the sale of trees. Joseph J. Lane, Garden City, N. Y., said that now with the whole country awakened to intensive culture, was the time to sell trees. More free publicity on all such allied subjects had been given than ever before. The seed trade had done three times the business of other years. As a means he cited a gladiolus dealer who had built up a good trade by offering $1 certificates to be given as presents, good in exchange for bulbs at any time. Publicity along recognized lines he was sure would bring results.

W. F. Thirkildson thought that the nurserymen should have real publicity. He referred to the publicity methods of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., of which he is advertising manager, and gave instances of great returns from well placed news column articles. Good newspaper copy about nursery stock can be published if put up in the right way. W. Atlee Burpee & Co. had established in various cities this season 24 demonstration gardens in their name as a means of publicity. It was his belief that there should be national literature to supplement the catalogue, which of itself was not enough.

Robert Pyle, of West Grove, Pa., read a very interesting paper on "Sales Promotion," giving the experiences of the Conard & Jones Co. for a period of years. There was a danger line in advertising, he said, when it cost 50 cents in publicity to sell $1 worth; there was something wrong. This firm had found customers whose names had cost $2 each to obtain, much more profitable than others that had only cost four cents each. Good advertising was best, he added, when backed by good business management.

Henry Hicks added to the publicity knowledge, his committee recommending booklets on the advantages in adorning home-grounds by planting trees, shrubbery, etc. A dummy had been prepared, which was to be filled with easily understood information, illustrations, garden and lawn plans and lists of best trees and plants. A few pages in the back contain matter to be furnished by the nurserymen for his edition. The book is to have the endorsement of the association and also contain the name of the nursery firm ordering and paying for what they use. If adopted and ordered by the trade in quantity, the cost will be very slight.

Mr. Hicks believes the catalogue is not a solution. The booklet would, he thought, augment the nurserymen's list and get people interested. Sales could be made the year round. People should be told of the quietness of shade and how it makes the air cooler. People were hungry for the nurseryman's products and the people desired to reach most, are the middle class, not the high priced magazine clientele. He stated he favored a series of booklets, one on hedges, and others on various subjects. Such books in other lines have had general influence. A resolution that the association issue such a booklet, was adopted.

W. H. Wyman, North Abington, Mass. read a paper on the question of furnishing stock to landscape architects, and the rates of discount to which they were entitled.

H. B. Chase, Chase, Ala., showed that having two classes of members, under the new constitution which has now been in operation for two years, had worked out satisfactorily.

AMERICAN ASS'N. OF NURSERYMEN'S "GET TOGETHER DINNER" AT HOTEL ADELPHIA, PHILADELPHIA, PA., JUNE 27, 1917.

Friday's Proceedings

The Friday morning session opened with a paper by J. B. Baker, Fort Worth, Tex., entitled, "When Are Evergreens (if ever) Dormant?" This resolved itself into a matter of freight rates, the difference between dormant and growing stock being much in favor of the dormant. Railroads, for the most part, claimed evergreens to be not dormant. After many trials, they were gradually aroused to the fact that all trees are at certain seasons dormant. The United States department of agriculture had taken the matter up and their committee had decided that all trees had a dormant season, and should at that time be classed as dormant stock. This was held to include imported nursery stock, such as rhododendrons, azaleas, conifers, etc.

Hon. David F. Houston, secretary of agriculture, Washington, D. C., who was to have made an address, was unable through press of duties to fill the engagement and commissioned Prof. Lile Corbett, of the department, to address the convention. Prof. Corbett is interested in all phases of horticulture and its industries, and particularly that of the nurserymen. The zealous plantmen, who were for the most part nurserymen, brought the good fruits from the mother land, discovered and made use of the promising native fruits of the new country, and in so doing started the nucleus, from which has developed the greatest and most completely equipped and manned research system in agriculture known to the civilized world. He said he did not boast when claiming we have the best record for educational and investigational work in agriculture in the world. He paid tribute to the amateur grower and said that it was from the latter that much of the science of fruit growing had been discovered. What was needed now was worthy successors to the Messrs. Downing and Wilder, who had contributed so much to the science in their time. Nurserymen should not neglect, he added, the small buyer—the one-acre garden plot. Encourage the small plot man to grow rather than buy his fruit. The aesthetic side must be looked after—the apple of commerce must not rise above the apple of excellence. The craft must help to build up a real amateur influence in this country. Too much dependence, in his opinion, was placed in foreign countries for supplies of seed and seedling plants and stocks. These should be grown here in land set apart for this purpose. The right kind of stocks for best results were very important; the stock and scion must have a congeniality for each other which will insure a strong, vigorous and long lived plant. Very little accurate knowledge was available regarding this affinity. Congeniality of grapes was cited, the speaker declaring that in the near future orders will be given in advance for stock and scions adapted to the particular soil and location in which they are to be grown. Bud selection work was a feature with promising results. Selections were made from well fruited trees whose young stock inherited all the good qualities of the parent. Oranges and other citrus fruits had greatly improved under such culture in experiments made by the government, so much so that the citrus growers' association had sent men at its expense to help in this work. All trees in their orchards were by this method brought up to standard. He spoke of a new experimental storage plant that was now in operation in Washington to test all kinds of fruits and other products in storage. It was the largest experimental storage house in the world. A rising vote of thanks was given Dr. Corbett at the close of his fine address.

The association then went into executive session to consider questions and subjects from the previous day, and other important matters affecting the nursery business. These took up so much time that it was finally thought best to continue the session until all work was finished. At 2:30 o'clock all work and committee reports had been acted upon.

Election of Officers.

The election of officers, which was held Friday afternoon, resulted as follows: Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., president; J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex., vice-president; Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass., secretary and counsel; J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia., treasurer. The following were added to the executive committee: T. B. West, Perry, O.; E. W. Chatten, Winchester, Tenn.; C. C. Mayhew, Sherman, Tex. There was such great unanimity in the selection of all of the officers that the secretary cast the ballot for all. The place and time of the next convention was placed in the hands of the executive committee, after which the convention adjourned.

Convention Notes.

This was one of the best attended and most fruitful gatherings in the way of results ever held by the association. Friday's session continued from 10 a. m. until 3 p. m. without a break.

During the executive session, the recommendation of the president to establish a national arboretum, was taken up and acted on unanimously, a committee being appointed to get all necessary data and make arrangements for its foundation.

President John Watson was an ideal executive, handling the gavel like a veteran and keeping the business of the convention moving all the time.

The attendance was thoroughly representative, all the large firms having members present. Distance was no barrier—Maine, Texas, Oregon, Florida and nearly all intervening states being represented by live men.

A trip on Thursday afternoon to beautiful Willow Grove, and supper in the Casino, was a treat that the ladies of the convention very much enjoyed.

Additional Trade Exhibits.

In addition to the trade exhibits mentioned in our last week's report, the following were noted:

Crab-Apples at the Arnold Arboretum.

These plants for the decoration of northern gardens are of first-rate importance, and from its early days much attention has been paid at the Arboretum to the collection and study of the different species, hybrids and varieties. The flowering of the crab-apples is one of the important Arboretum events and, although the season is 10 or 12 days late, some of the Asiatic species are already in bloom and during three or four weeks apple blossoms can be seen here.

From the crab-apple of southeastern Europe and western and central Asia (Malus pumila) most of the apples of our orchards have been developed, although in some of these the blood of the crab of northern and central Europe (Malus sylvestris) can be traced. The Paradise apple is a very dwarf form of Malus pumila used by nurserymen as a stock for dwarf pomological varieties. The first of the crab-apples of eastern Asia known to Europeans (Malus baccata) was first cultivated in Europe 130 years ago. It is a native of eastern Siberia and is a tall, narrow tree with large white flowers appearing with the leaves, and fruit the size of a large pea. The Siberian crab, as it is popularly called, is a handsome, very hardy plant; its great value, however, is that, crossed with the cultivated apple tree, it has given rise to a race of apples like the Hyslop and the transcendent crabs which can be grown in regions too cold for the successful cultivation of the ordinary apple. These hybrids are known as Siberian crabs, and many named varieties can now be found in nurseries in the extreme northern part of the country. They are fast-growing, erect and shapely trees, and well worth a place in northern gardens for the beauty of their flowers and brilliant scarlet or yellow fruits which are usually oblong or ovate in shape and from an inch to an inch and a half in length. The fruit is acid but makes excellent jellies and preserves for which it is largely used. Malus baccata has been used in cold regions as a stock on which to graft the ordinary apple, but its liability to the blight which attacks pear trees reduces its value for this purpose. The largest specimen of Malus baccata in the neighborhood of Boston is standing in front of the gardener's house in the Harvard Botanic Garden in Cambridge.

One of the handsomest of the crab-apples in the Arboretum collection is a Korean variety of Malus baccata, which has been distinguished as var. Jackii. It was raised here in 1905 from seed collected by Mr. Jack, near Seoul. The plants, although still small, are shapely in habit with straight, clean stems and regularly spaced spreading branches; the leaves are thick, long-stalked, from four to six inches in length, dark dull green above and pale below; the flowers are pure white and nearly two inches in diameter, and the dark crimson shining fruits, which are often half an inch long, hang gracefully on long drooping stems. A widely distributed form of Malus baccata, the var. mandshurica, differs in its broader, more or less hairy leaves. This tree is distributed from the Amoor region to western China and Japan where it is common northward, and in Hokkaido is often found in alder woods in the neighborhood of the coast.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, May 28, 1917.

WAUPACA, WIS.—A. D. Barnes has sold a half interest in his nursery to Walter Forebrush, of Hancock.

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.—The city council has confirmed the appointment of Professor Carroll W. Doten as a member of the park commission.

CHICAGO.—Norman Peterson, son of William A. Peterson, proprietor of the Peterson Nursery, has enlisted in the ambulance corps of the United States army.

MANHATTAN, KAN.—Chas. A. Scott, who recently took charge of the range purchased by him from Henry Moore, is making extensive improvements including the addition of an evergreen nursery.

PORTLAND ORE.—Over 60 acres of the 100-acre tract of the Gill Bros. Seed Co. are devoted to dahlias, the varieties numbering about 800. This firm has recently taken up the cultivation of perennials.

WEST NEWBURY, MASS.—T. C. Thurlow's Sons report that peonies will be at their best at this firm's Cherry Hill Nurseries June 26-July 10, at which time an invitation for their inspection is extended.

FRESNO, CALIF.—Fred P. Roullard, county horticultural commissioner, will have general supervision of the agricultural and horticultural departments at the district fair this year. Premium lists are being prepared by Secretary Eberhardt.

FRESNO, CALIF.—G. H. Hecke, state horticultural commissioner, and H. S. Maddox, secretary of the state horticultural commission, are making a tour of this district in the interest of uniformity in the preparation of the rules for the enforcement of the new fruit standardization law.

Cast Iron Boilers Waste Fuel

I had a cast iron 8-section boiler before, but was afraid it would crack to pieces. The Kroeschell Boiler is certainly a fuel-saver. My coal bill to heat 6000 sq. ft. of glass surface with your boiler is less than last winter's coal bill, when I had only 2050 sq. ft. of glass, heated with the 8-section cast iron boiler.

Your boiler burns any kind of fuel. I would not have any other boiler than the Kroeschell, and will recommend whenever I get a chance.

HOW WHOLESALE HELP RETAILER.

The Old Attitude.

The credit man and a traveling salesman in the employ of a large supply house were wrangling. The former was much vexed because the house had lost several hundred dollars through the business failure of one of the latter's customers. The salesman was annoyed because he believed the money could have been saved and a good customer maintained on his feet by timely advice and assistance from the credit man.

"He had been in business for himself only four years and hadn't learned how to handle customers who didn't pay. He did first rate in other respects, and if some one had helped him study his problem, and enabled him to collect the bills due, he would be on our books yet, with everything paid up to date," declared the traveler.

"I have enough to do to collect from our own customers, let alone bothering about other people's," was the short reply of the credit man. And he expressed the sentiments of the majority of credit men of his generation.

The Change of View.

But as business men study their problems more minutely and thoroughly, they are finding that what are their customers' troubles are likewise their own troubles, or, at the least, are likely to cause them trouble. Many large concerns which sell to retail merchants —some manufacturers, some whole-salers, some jobbers, some supply houses—are comprehending more and more completely that they are in possession of a vast store of knowledge, through their experience with large numbers of retailers from year to year, which can be put at the disposal of the small merchants, to the advantage of both parties. Selling helps have been provided by manufacturers and distributors to retail merchants for many years past, in the form of folders, posters, window trims, samples, etc., etc. Now they are beginning to give help in other ways, not so concrete and tangible in first appearance, but often much more valuable and profitable in the end.

A credit man of disposition quite opposite to that of the one introduced in the first paragraph, set out to accelerate collections from delinquent customers along what were then rather novel lines.

Adopting the Personal Tone.

When the usual two or three letters, more or less forms, had been sent out unavailing, he dictated a personal communication along the following lines:

"Dear Sir: Because we assume, from our knowledge of your previous dealings and reputation, that you have every intention of meeting your indebtedness to us as soon as you are conveniently able, we believe that our failure to receive remittance from you in response to letters of (dates given) is due to causes with which we are unacquainted.

"Your patronage of this house makes us feel that we are to a degree friends of yours, and interested in your business problems from a friendly point of view, separately from any concern we have in a business way.

"If, therefore, our acquaintance with scores of merchants doing business under similar conditions to your own, and our experience with their difficulties and how they met them, can, you think, be of service to you in the solution of your problems, we shall be only too glad to give you the benefit of our information and opinions on any point you wish.

"Please write us freely on the business situation as you find it just now, and rely fully upon our confidence and desire to be of whatever assistance to you that we can."

Replies Show Causes.

The first or second communication of this sort brought a reply from the retail merchant, stating in more or less detail his own reasons for lack of success. Usually it is fairly easy to get a delinquent customer to tell his troubles, particularly if he feels he may be the gainer by so doing.

The replies the credit man received varied. Sometimes the merchant blamed an abortive attempt at advertising for his setback; sometimes he complained of the inroads of the department store upon his trade; sometimes cut prices and unfair competitive methods were given as the cause of reduced receipts and loss of business. Nine causes out of 10 belonged to the common sorts that occurred time and time again in the experience of the credit man.

Sometimes the merchant's policy was at the root of his troubles; then the credit man, in a wise and tactful way, suggested modifications. Sometimes legal points were involved and the retailer was working himself deeper in the mire when the counsel of a lawyer could soon extricate him; the remedy there was easy. In other cases, there were real and ominous financial straits; sometimes the customer could be nursed along until he weathered them safely; sometimes the statement enabled the credit man to step in for the protection of his own company and the other creditors before it was too late.

Method Saves Financially.

In all such work there is a large element of personal judgment involved, and the consultation of traveling salesmen who may have the acquaintance of the customer, of sales manager, of the head of the firm, and possibly of the attorney, together with the credit man, is advisable in cases of unusual character. The time and effort involved may appear great at first sight, but if the result is the saving of all the way from a few hundreds to perhaps several thousands of dollars in the course of a year, the expenditure is amply repaid.

At the present time, when the high cost of business is climbing higher, and the necessity of saving wherever possible is re-echoed all about us, the example of this credit man, now followed by many in the bigger fields of business, contains suggestions for the wholesalers and supply houses and dealers in general in this trade. Help keep your customers out of trouble, and you will keep out of trouble yourself.

Store Economies.

When at the end of the season the showing of the ledger's total is anything but satisfactory, or that on which some men depend to see the result of their year's labor, the balance in bank, has a very emaciated appearance, it is high time to do what should have been done before, find out what has been clogging the machinery.

First, take up purchasing of stock plants and cutflowers. When buying cutflowers, some men forget why they are in business; they purchase lavishly at times, then go to the other extreme and do not lay in enough. An excellent sheet anchor is a trash book, in which an account is made of all cutflowers that are thrown out. To keep such a record may seem quite a job, but if carefully done, covering flowers with prices, showing the kinds not sold, there is no question but the first month's report will influence the buying and help very materially to make a better showing of the balance sheet at the close of the season. Plants that go to waste should also be included.

BUYING SUPPLIES.

Considerable money goes into supplies, many of the items bought as required in small lots. This may seem economical, but it is extravagant in the end. Better prices are always quoted in quantity lots. With stock on hand, many embarrassing situations are avoided, such as having customers who are in a hurry, wait while you send out for palm leaves, ribbon, letters, a suitable box or other such articles that should be in the shop. All such items are, if cared for, good until used. A saving of at least $25 in every $100 can be made by buying in quantity over the almost retail prices of small lots, not counting the time, car fares and phone calls saved when the articles have to be frequently hurriedly ordered and sent for. The supply men, eager for business, bring out from time to time, many basket and other novelties all having more or less merit and some of which become standard goods. Judgment should be used in purchasing such novelties, as things not in demand for the trade catered to, will soon become shop worn and unsalable. Ordering too many of a kind of various goods, baskets, etc., that are considered standard, is also bad policy as they tax the shelf or case facilities and soon become shop worn. Judicious buying, keeping the stock bright and up-to-date, is one of the secrets of successful storekeeping. Pottery is difficult to handle, as is glassware, although both are necessary, but the least chip on the foot or edge stamps the article with an O. K. for the trash book. Ribbons, which are so necessary in the finishing of pieces of cutflower work, should be carefully handled. Corsage ties are complete in themselves, but the guess work in cutting ribbon from the roll nated. A sample or two of each colored ribbon, will hold their shape for a long time in the ribbon case. Paper should be economically handled, ruled lines on the wrapping table will show the length for the various sizes of boxes, so that when torn from the roll there is no waste. Wax paper should be cut the size for most of the smaller boxes or twice as much as is necessary will often be used.

Cutflower boxes should always be kept in a clean, dry place. Under a shelf back of a counter is dangerous, as careless cleaning will often spatter the ends and make junk of an otherwise good box.

PLANNING THE WORK AHEAD.

Planning the work for the next day will often make for economy. Frequently it is discovered that certain stock is required that can be ordered over the phone and will be on hand by the first delivery. Orders to go out early in the morning are gotten ready the day before, which often lessens the expense of delivery. The precaution of looking ahead and being fully prepared in many ways for each day's business means a great saving in time and money.

Delivery is an ever-growing cost that is most burdensome. As far as possible, hours of delivery should be established, orders when taken being marked early or late, morning or afternoon, and not every hour. In this way many packages will go out together. Keeping the store clean and particularly the floor is imperative. With pot plants standing about, there is always some soil waste from these. This and other dust floats about and settles on the baskets and other stock on the shelves. Every article in the store should be dusted at least once a week and the shelves for this purpose is often wasteful. The practice in many stores is to cut into correct lengths and have ready for instant use. Madeup, wired haws of wide ribbons for wreaths, clusters or spray bunches, are most convenient and economical, all waste being elimi-wiped clean. Dust laden articles are never salable.

Having things handy about the store always tends towards efficiency. The order sheets should be within reach when the order is to be put down; to have to hunt one up looks careless.

The proper sized box must be at hand; to keep the customer waiting while the boy runs down cellar after one is an annoyance—it consumes time.

A competent person should be within reach of the phones — much business is lost by careless work here. How to have this service effective every minute of the day is well worth the best planning and has much to do with swelling the profits of the year.

How many men take advantage of discounts? To save six per cent on a ribbon bill, paid within 10 days of purchase, is well worth while. Two per cent in 10 days after rendering of statement is ordinary practice, while supply houses will allow five on many lines. Open a discount page in your ledger, spot every discount opportunity, and you will be surprised at the footing at the end of the year.

Taking an inventory of every article in stock at least once a year is good economy. Books cannot be balanced without this information, but many, very many storekeepers, do not keep books that will or can be made to balance. By the inventory, however, they get an idea of what they have on hand. The damaged, shop worn or junk-like material may be repaired, some of it can be made almost like new, all of which is good economy.

The most successful men in the trade never feel satisfied; they are always on the alert, studying out economies that count for efficiency in time and money. In short, they are in business for profit and never forget it. K.

Express Service Improvement.

We are in receipt of a communication dated July 5 from Max Schling, the well-known New York florist, who has been working in the interests of the betterment of express service for florists, previous announcement of whose efforts in this good cause, extending over a period of two years, appeared in our issue of March 10, 1917, page 390. The excellent progress made by Mr. Schling since that time can be seen from his report, which is as follows:

"During exhibition week last winter the legislative committee of the Society of American Florists joined me in my efforts to secure better shipping conditions from the express companies. We had a meeting in New York in March with three vice-presidents of the express companies, for which meeting I had arranged previously, and these gentlemen, after an hour's discussion, decided to look into our complaints and try to assist us as much as possible to secure better service. Since that time I have kept working at this matter and finally, after several consultations with these gentlemen, succeeded in securing a label, a reproduction of which is shown herewith. This label is good for plant or flower shipping, and will be sent throughout the country to be placed on the bulletin boards of the different express companies, and in this way is made an official label. The cost of the label is $1.50 per thousand, and anyone desiring to secure them should write to me, enclosing additional cost of postage, as the price is net to us. They can be secured in lots of 500 or 1,000—anyway anyone wants to buy.

"This is not the only privilege I secured. We florists explained to the express companies that we would gladly pay an additional cost for securing quick service and would gladly pay for telephone calls which this quick service at times necessitates. The express companies cannot go into this matter on that basis. The interstate commerce commission does not allow them to change rates, even with our consent, and their system does not allow them to make it a rule to lay out expenses for a shipper and to collect that money, because to collect these small items they would have to go through the same routine as if they shipped a package, and in consequence the collection would cost them the same as it would cost to express a package and would require too much bookkeeping. Therefore, they decided to carry the cost of the additional telephone calls whenever necessary. I am willing to keep on working on this matter and I hope within a short time to secure a way which will insure us against any possible loss.

DAFFODILS AND YELLOW RIBBON.

Design by Students in Floriculture, University of Illinois, Urbana.

"I will bring this matter before the interested parties during convention week in New York, and therefore would like very much that any parties interested in expressage should write or call and arrange for a meeting on express matters in New York during convention week. The best way would be for the different florists in the different states or the various florists' associations to elect a delegate who would call on and work with me in conjunction. The influence of one alone never can secure as much as a body of men, each one willing to do a little work, and I am sure that if I keep on working in this direction we will be able to do some good to ourselves and to others in our business."

Hill-Bertermann Merger in Effect.

The consolidation of the Indianapolis interests of the E. G. Hill Co., of Richmond, Ind., and Bertermann Bros. Co., of the first named city, advance notice of which was made in our issue of May 5, page 843, became effective July 1. The new arrangement with the selling forces combined makes possible better service at moderate prices.

Stock Plants.

The care of the stock plants is one of the very important parts of a plant grower's work, whether his business is chiefly growing a miscellaneous stock of plants for planting out as bedding plants in the spring, or the more fancy stock for retail store trade. Many of these stock plants are now either planted in the field or in the frames. Experienced growers realize the importance of giving the stock plants the best of care at this season of the year, and pay particular attention to seeing that they are not allowed to suffer by being neglected in any way. Clean, healthy stock plants are very essential in being able to produce any line of pot plants in first class shape.

The hardier line of these plants, such as geraniums, salvias, vincas, etc., are generally planted in rows in the field and the more tender stock in frames. The work needed to be done to keep the stock in the field in good condition requires constant attention, particularly at a time like the present, when owing to the frequent rains, the work of keeping the land clean of weeds is a big job, but this work must not be neglected if the expectation of the stock plants furnishing a liberal supply of cuttings is to be realized. After the land is once cleared of weeds, the frequent use of the cultivator will keep it in good condition for the balance of the summer. Geraniums are planted in the field to produce cuttings for propagating in September, or before the first killing frosts. To obtain enough geranium cuttings to meet the needs of the business where large quantities of these plants are demanded, is always one of the problems that a grower has to contend with every fall, and while a good many cuttings can be rooted during the winter months, yet every grower knows the advantage there is in starting the season with a good big stock of healthy cuttings. Beyond the work of weeding and cultivating there is not much attention that the plants require; they grow vigorously, their principal need being enough space to develop healthy cuttings. When the weeds are allowed to smother up the plants, the cuttings become soft and result in a big loss in the propagating bed. The same rule applies to all other field grown stock plants. Give them a chance to develop and properly fulfill the purpose for which they are intended.

It is not too late to plant out any other left-over plants if there is a need of the stock, though it is better to plant these in frames so that they can be watered and encouraged along a little to give them a start. Eight to 10 weeks outside will be far better for any of these plants than carrying them in the greenhouse for that length of time.

The English ivy is always one of the short items. These plants are being used for so many purposes that the demand increases with each year. Planted out now, properly cultivated and watered when it is very dry, good strong roots with long vines can be lifted early in October. Some of the vines can be used for cutting, the rest left on the plants, which can be potted in 4 or 5-inch pots and plunged along the edges of the greenhouse benches until spring, when they will have made good strong plants for vases or window boxes.

Plants of alternanthera, dwarf ageratum, Gloire de Chatelaine and Luminosa begonias, petunias, abutilons, heliotropes, etc., planted in frames and properly cared for, will be loaded with good cuttings by September 1. The stock plants can then also be lifted, potted and taken into the greenhouse and continue in clean, fresh condition to furnish a good supply of cuttings. These plants require a light, fairly rich soil—leaf-mold, well rotted manure and fibrous sod loam in equal proportions make a fine compost. Any clay or other soil that has a tendency to bake, should be avoided.

CARE OF LEFT OVER PLANTS.

Azaleas, left over from the season before, are usually seen stuck away in some corner to become smothered with thrip, and then the grower cannot understand why they do not flower equally as well each season following the other. On the other hand, if they receive the right attention by seeing that the drainage is all right, giving them fresh soil as they need it (but not over potting) and plunged in a frame outside under a lath covering, azaleas will carry over and flower in fine shape, season after season. They must not be allowed to suffer for want of water and should be syringed thoroughly daily during very hot weather. An occasional watering with liquid manure is also very beneficial to them. Dracaena indivisa and Phormium tenax variegatum (two of the best plants for the center of vases) should also be given similar treatment as the azaleas. Large palms, bay trees and other decorative plants of a like character, are better off for a short period outdoors. This of course cannot be done with a large stock, but it is worth while for the man with a small supply. It not only is good for the plants, but gives a chance for the house to be cleaned up.

Now is the time to work up a good stock of the different varieties of this genus of ferns. Small stock from 2½, 3 or 4-inch pots, planted in a greenhouse bench, will make good stock for potting in September. They require liberal treatment in every respect. With good live soil, with plenty of space for each plant's development, with an abundance of air and the daily routine attention, good 5, 6, 7 and 8-inch plants can be worked up for winter sales. Fine short frond plants of Boston's can be had by planting strong young plants in frames in the open and lifting them before any danger of frost.

PEONY SHOW AT ROCHESTER, N. Y., JUNE 29-30.

Every encouragement should be given cyclamens to remain in good condition during the very hot weather, which is the trying period for them. After the cool weather starts in they grow much more freely. If being grown in the greenhouse, they need a light shading, plenty of ventilation and a moist atmosphere maintained at all times. Pay particular attention to the watering, syringing and repotting. When in need repot without delay, making sure that ample drainage is provided for. A large number of cyclamens are grown in frames under raised sash, which, during the very hot weather, is the best place for them, but they must be transferred to the inside before frost or severe fall storms.

The young seedlings or small plants of the different varieties of primulas should receive attention as they need it. Do not allow them to become hard or potbound, but encourage them to keep up active growth all the time. The same rule applies to cinerarias, poinsettias and begonias. The main thing to bear in mind, to be successful with these plants is, to keep them in active growth from start to finish.

Newport Hort. Society Summer Show.

Owing to a backward season the annual June show of the Newport Horticultural Society and the Newport Garden Association did not take place until July 3-4, the exhibition being held in La Fayette theater and the entire proceeds, including the prize money, being donated to the Red Cross Society. The opening day was stormy and the attendance was poor, but there were a goodly number of visitors on the second day. The exhibits were effectively staged, resulting in a handsome display. In the palm and fern classes, Vincent Astor took first for the best group, and Governor Beekman (J. B. Urquhart, Gr.) showed some handsome Farleyense. In the rose classes, Miss Fannie Foster (C. N. Bogholt, Gr.) took five firsts. Mrs. W. B. Leeds (Wm. Gray, Gr.) captured four firsts and had also the most artistically arranged display. Mrs. Emery (Andrew Doward, Gr.) was given first honors for the best collection. Gov. Beekman and Mrs. W. W. Sherman (Andrew Ramsay, Gr.) each captured a first in the hybrid tea classes. Hardy perennials and biennials were well shown by Mrs. Auchincloss (John Mahan, Gr.), and Mrs. J. T. Emery (Wm. McKay, Gr.) had the best 12 gardenias. The sweet peas were shown in 12 classes. Mrs. French Vanderbilt captured six firsts, the silver cup and the sweepstakes prize for the best vase on exhibition. William Gardiner Taylor won four firsts. Mrs. W. G. Weld (Jas. Watts, Gr.) captured two blue ribbons, the latter for the best display. In the orchid section Arthur Curtis James had a fine display arranged with ferns. Mrs. French Vanderbilt and Mrs. W. W. Sherman showed beds 4x8 feet arranged with canterbury bells, foxgloves, violas and petunias all nicely staged. Vincent Astor (Jas. Boyd, Gr.) had a remarkably fine group of calceolarias and the same is true of the groups of gloxinias and tuberous begonias exhibited by Mrs. Weld. Mrs. French Vanderbilt and Mrs. Emery divided the honors in the fruit classes. The judges were Bruce Butterton, Jas. McLeish and Richard Gardner. Among the other prize winners were: T. O. Richardson, Mrs. Sidney Webster, Mrs. Slater, H. A. C. Taylor, T. Burrows, T. Brooks and Stewart Richie.

Fisher's New Range, Marysville, Kan.

The accompanying illustration shows H. R. Fisher of Marysville, Kan., in the office of his establishment consisting of about 5,000 feet of glass, all of which was recently rebuilt, and is today one of the most up-to-date establishments in that section. The material was furnished by John C. Moninger Co., Chicago. Mr. Fisher, who has had thirty years' experience in the trade, started in Marysville seven years ago with one old house 20x80 feet, with very limited finances, and has built a very successful business. He is 50 years of age and is highly thought of in both civic and fraternal circles in that city.

Penna. Hort. Society's Sweet Pea Show.

In order to interest flower lovers and have them become familiar with the advantages of membership in the organization the sweet pea exhibitions of the above society have for several years past been held in the suburban districts in the neighborhood of Philadelphia. Last year a very successful show was held at Jenkintown, while this year, Bryn Mawr was selected, where in Firemen's hall, the finest display ever staged by the society was made, July 2. It was from four days to a week late for the best flowers, the previous few days of hot weather making them smaller, but taken on the whole, the exhibition was very fine.

The largest number of vases were in the collection of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., who staged over 100 varieties with from 25 to 50 sprays to a vase. These were artistically arranged, filling the stage completely. Three conspicuous displays contained new English varieties—Faith, a light lavender; Hope, fiery red, and Charity, crimson red. Other new and superb sorts were: Frilled Pink, Beryl, Floradale Fairy and Tea Rose among many others. This was a splendid display and well worthy of the silver medal awarded it. There were four long tables the length of the hall filled with the other collections of 25 and 50 sprays and larger vases. The competition was very keen, there being an average of six entries in each class. There were also exhibits of Japanese iris and hardy perennials, the latter display being the finest and most varied at any exhibition of the society. These were given a wide space in the center of the hall. The judges were Wm. Kleinbeinz, G. W. Kerr and John Dodds. Among the principal prize winners were the following: E. C. Dale, J. W. Pepper, Thos. McKean, W. S. Ellis, Mrs. S. F. Wheeler, W. Hinckle, G. H. McFadden, S. M. Vaucelain, Mrs. S. D. Riddle, Mrs. C. H. Clark, H. J. Dean, Mrs. Ervien and Mrs. H. K. Taylor.

Rose Test Garden at Cornell University.

The roses are now in the height of perfection, being several weeks later than in previous years. An outdoor meeting of the Plant Industry Conference was held in the garden Thursday, July 5. About 40 members of the campus community were present, and the outing was most enjoyable. Professor E. A. White welcomed the members of the conference to the garden and spoke of the aims and purposes of the American Rose Society in fostering the test garden work. He was followed by Professor A. C. Beal, who spoke on the value of different species and varieties of roses and described their location in the garden plan. After a hountiful picnic supper the party inspected the beds and made careful observations of varieties.

Rose Garden at Hartford, Conn.

Hartford, being one of the "cities beautiful" of America and Elizabeth Park one of the beauty spots of Hartford, it is an omission to visit Hartford in the rose season without seeing the gardens. In an ordinary season the crimson ramblers that are prominent in the arches would have been failing by July 4, but under the cool and backward weather they were about two weeks late, and on the above date we found them just pushing out and many had not yet shown color; but there was a grand display in the beds of hybrid perpetuals and teas.

In the planting there has been a happy blending of the old and new varieties. We have not at hand the exact date on which General Jacqueminot first became known on this side of the Atlantic, but it was over 50 years ago, probably nearer 60, and it yet finds a place in the collections of fanciers. Paul Neyron is another old rose that deservedly retains its popularity and Frau Karl Druschki is another.

In the garden there is a fine collection of both old and newer varieties to choose from and we mention a few that were particularly attractive, including the above: Soleil d'Or, Ulrich Brunner, Jules Margottin, Baroness Rothschild, Mme. Charles Wood, Gloire Lyonnaise, Marchioness of Larne, Caroline Testout, H. T., Oscar Cardel, Gruss an Teplitz, H. T., and Captain Christy, H. T. There are many other good roses in the garden which is doubtless one of the best public collections in this country.

The park has many good features as well as the roses, and lovers of nature and skillful gardening should not fail to visit it.

Tacoma Rose Society Show.

The seventh annual rose show of the Tacoma Rose Society held June 29-30 was a splendid exhibition that brought together a collection of new, rare and perfect flowers that could not have been surpassed anywhere. The wild rose, the old-fashioned June rose and the moss rose were in their places alongside of the latest introductions of the greatest living rosarians, and all finding favor with someone. They were all there and the number of varieties would not fall far short of a thousand, and there were many thousands of blooms that typified every class. Especially notable was the display of yellows. When compared with the list of this color of seven years ago when the society's first show was staged, the present day showing is marvelous. Will it be possible to continue the improvement much longer? The show was a financial success and quite a neat sum was added to the Red Cross fund. The park board made an unusually fine display which reflected great credit to them, and especially to Mr. Milton who arranged and staged it. The Mitchell Nursery Co. also had a splendid display of hardy perennials. The display of 380 varieties, all of the newer introductions, grown by Carl Morrissie in his backyard, was beautiful and they were exceptionally well displayed. This was grand enough to cause a real sensation almost in any city but Tacoma. Hugh Dickson, the city's "official" rose, was truly magnificent in its numerous entries and the judges had some difficulty in picking the blue ribbon winners. H. R. Lea and J. A. Hays both staged a number of choice blooms of late varieties of direct importations. Local florists made no attempt to enter any displays as they considered it altogether a show by and for the general public.

Prominent among the successful contestants were the following: H. R. Lea, Miss Ada Bond, Mrs. J. C. Guyles, Mrs. Talmadge Hamilton, E. E. Johnson, Mrs. J. Bell, A. C. C. Gausser, Mrs. H. G. Fitch, Mrs. A. J. Brossian, Dr. J. N. Rawlins, Mrs. R. Long, N. B. Jones, Miss Lucilla Bibb, Mrs. E. G. Finehan, R. E. Mahaffy, Mrs. Paskill, C. A. Gordon, R. J. Quick, Chas. Bachman, Mrs. A. Ham, E. G. Polahan, J. H. Holman, J. W. Hays, Mrs. Dora West, G. C. Cleveland, Mrs. J. W. Brokaw and Carl Morrissie.

BUSINESS CONTINUES SATISFACTORY.

Business still holds up very well and there is plenty of good stock to supply the demand—lilies, roses, carnations and plenty of outdoor stock to take the place of greenhouse varieties. Market gardeners and farmers come to this market loaded with roses, larkspurs, feverfews, gaillardias, coreopsis, calendulas and cornflowers and the retailers are on hand early as the prices are cheap and very good window displays can be made at little cost. Funeral work continues to hold up and is the bulk of the summer business. Some peonies are still to be seen and the asters have begun to come in, but they are short in stem and the flowers are small. Some very fine gladioli are to be had but the quantity is limited. Some American Beauties are being received and they hold up well in price. Orchids are still very good but lily of the valley is scarce.

CLUB MEETING.

The regular meeting of the florists' club was held at the Fort Pitt hotel, July 5. There was a large attendance considering that this was the first meeting the club has ever held in July and the night was very warm. There will be no meeting in August. There were only two exhibits, one by Wm. Thompson of sweet peas, which was awarded a cultural certificate; the other by the club president, Carl Becherer, who staged outdoor flowers. He has been displaying some very beautiful flowers at the last few meetings, which makes these gatherings very interesting. A committee was appointed to arrange an auto trip for a visit to the parks and cemeteries of this city.

M'CALLUM CO.'S OUTING.

The outing held by the employes and friends of the McCallum Co. reminded one of the old-time picnics held by the florists years ago. There were about 450 present, including most of the club members, and everyone had a most enjoyable time. There were baskets of lunch of generous proportions and the McCallum Co. furnished plenty of ice cream. The games were as usual an interesting feature, including the ball game between the store and greenhouse forces, which the latter won, 17 to 12. Suitable prizes were awarded in all events, among the winners being the following: Girls' race, Miss Peterson; boys' race, Wm. Morgan; ladies' race, Miss Morgan; men's race, Earl Schuler; egg and spoon race, Miss M. G. Blocher; potato race, Elmer Blind.

Most of the growers present were much interested in the construction of the new house, which is of the most modern type. The coal mine and reservoir were also points of interest. Joseph Haube brought his family to the outing in his new Overland, making a trip of 65 miles each way. Al. Briggs and Orville Crissman also drove over in their machines loaded with friends and lunch baskets. Pete Hoffman, of New Galilee, was on hand to look after the girls. After the evening repast a dance was held at the home of Superintendent Morgan, which brought to a close a delightful day that will be long remembered. It is hoped by all that there will be a repetition next year.

NOTES.

There is a 9-pound son at the home of Gilbert Ludwig of the Ludwig Floral Co. The proud father was seen the other day passing the "perfectos." Clarence Phillips will leave on his vacation next week. He expects to spend the time fishing in West Virginia.

J. E. Bonsall, of Salem, is cutting some very fine larkspurs in all colors.

Baltimore, Md.

SUMMER DULLNESS NOTICEABLE.

Business is slowing up with the arrival of summer, the demand as a rule being confined to funeral work. Gladioli are arriving in limited numbers and are sold immediately. Lilies are to be had in any quantity and water lilies are more plentiful. Roses are the heaviest arrivals, but meet with scant call. Good American Beauties are hard to obtain. The supply of carnations is decreasing with prices varying from 50 cents to $2 per 100. Sweet peas that are offered are poor quality and do not move. Orchids are in moderate supply. Hollyhocks and white hydrangeas cannot be sold at any price.

NOTES.

The S. S. Pennock Co. will close during the summer at 1 o'clock on Saturdays. The stores on North Charles street are now closing at the same time.

The coal situation seems to be greatly improved. A large number of local growers are withholding orders, awaiting a further drop in price.

The street merchants are still on the job—something unusual for this time of the year.

Michael Hilpert, of Belair road, is sending in some fine ferns.

Cleveland, O.

STOCK ARRIVING IN GOOD SUPPLY.

There is quite a difference in the supply of stock on the local market today and that of last week. Roses have gone off crop and are showing the effects of summer heat. Carnations are in the same "boat," getting scarcer and smaller, and their keeping qualities are poor. Easter lilies have been very plentiful and cheap. Sweet peas, both indoor and outside stock, are arriving in large quantities. There are an abundance of all varieties of outdoor flowers on the market, larkspurs (all colors), phloxes, snapdragons, gaillardias, coreopsis, rambler roses (all colors), sweet williams, daisies and calendulas. Candidum lilies are meeting with a good demand. Storage peonies are now on the market. Lily of the valley is good and quite plentiful just now, and will continue to arrive daily throughout the summer. Greens of all kinds are plentiful.

NOTES.

The sympathy of the trade is extended to Herman Hart and family in the loss of their son, Beno L., who died suddenly June 30 at his home, 1369 West 85th street. He was buried at Riverside cemetery July 2. The deceased and his brother Al had recently taken over the business of their father, Herman Hart, one of the pioneer florists of Cleveland.

H. A. Quackenbush, 1525 Guardian building, has sued Timothy Smith, florist, East 46th street and Euclid avenue, for $25,000 damages, claiming that May 13 his skull was fractured when Smith's auto crashed into his on Carnegie avenue.

C. F. B.

Providence, R. I.

Business during the past week has been quite good, weddings and funeral orders keeping the stores busy. Stock is plentiful and prices are the lowest experienced this year. The rose crop is now very heavy. Carnations are poor, but sweet peas of excellent quality are to be had. The peony season is about over.

NOTES.

The June exhibition of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, postponed from June 22, due to the late season, was held in the Narragansett hotel June 29.

Joseph Solomon has closed his store on Empire street, but will continue the stand in Kresge's store.

John Kelly, of T. J. Johnston & Co.'s staff, is at Edgewood Beach for the summer months.

Milwaukee.*OVERSUPPLY DEPRESSES MARKET.

Due to a heavy supply of roses, plus the exceedingly large cut of local peonies, the past two weeks, market conditions reached the lowest mark thus far this season. Carnations, which are still of good quality, due to the cool weather, and Easter lilies alike suffered in the depression. The sweet peas plainly show that line of indoor stock is done for, but the outdoor grown will soon take their place. There is a good supply of delphiniums, coreopsis, Shasta daisies, gaillardias and the like to give the retailer a chance as to variety in colors. With the passing of the peonies and a shorter supply of roses, due to replanting and resting, we can see better conditions ahead in the near future.

CLUB MEETING.

The president again occupied the chair at a well attended meeting of the local florists' club July 5. A letter from the mayor asking that the club select one of its most efficient members to act as member of the city beautiful committee was taken up and Herman V. Hunkel selected to fill that office. After a lengthy discussion following the report of A. Hare as chairman of the entertainment committee, it was decided not to have a regular Sunday picnic, but instead an outing to Waukesha Beach on July 17, via electric car, to leave the terminal station at 9:30 a. m. Cars leave every hour on the half, and it is expected that those whose work will not permit them to go so early will take a later one. All florists and friends are welcome, and we hope to have a large attendance.

NOTES.

A visit to the Waukesha Floral Co., Waukesha, Wis., on July 4 found them well cleaned up on hedging stock. They report the best year ever; especially was the business done for June most satisfactory. They are fortunate in having their coal supply for the coming winter on hand. After a most strenuous season the proprietor, Fred Bliese, and family left July 5 for a week's fishing trip to Lake Poygan, Wis.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. will hold the annual picnic for its employes at Ehler's Grove, Brown Deer, July 15. This generally proves a big affair and is looked forward to with much pleasure. Fred Holton will spend his vacation next week at Beaver Lake, where his family is now enjoying the great outdoors.

Wm. Eschrich, of North Milwaukee, is right in crop on Belladonna delphiniums, which he consigns to Gust Rusch & Co. Gust Rusch reported moving his family to their summer home at Little Cedar Lake, July 7, where he also will spend most of the dull summer season.

Wm. Kennedy, superintendent of the C. C. Pollworth Co.'s greenhouses, reports unending trouble in regard to the help problem—too much coming and going to be of value in order to keep up with the work and get good results.

Mrs. McDonald, of Logansport, Ind., mother of Archie McDonald, manager of Gimbel Bros.' cut flower department, returned home after spending the past fortnight in our city visiting with her son.

Now that the spring rush is over, Rich Lietz, 1433 Fond du Lac avenue, can devote most of his time to his greenhouses at the rear of his store, which are planted to chrysanthemums.

Riebs Bros., who of late had the Wm. Eschrich greenhouses, moved to their new place on the Cedarburg Plank road June 30. Everything on this place is new.

John Kechl, of the Holton & Hunkel Co., returned July 9, having enjoyed a well earned vacation of a week.

E. O.

Boston.*DEMAND WEAKENS BUT PRICES FIRM.

The market has taken on its summer aspect with a sudden dropping off in stock, but prices are very good. America, Panama and Francis King gladioli are of the best and sell for $1 per dozen. Outdoor sweet peas are also good and bring 75 cents per 100. Centaureas are extra fine and move readily at $1 per 100. Roses are of good quality and prices are low.

NOTES.

The rose, peony and strawberry show held under the auspices of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society June 30-July 1, was a success, numerous entries being brought out by the very liberal premium list. The rose section attracted especial attention, as did also the peonies staged by Thos. Thurlow & Sons, Inc., West Newbury, Mass., and the Wellesley Nurseries, both being awarded silver medals. The vegetable section also made a creditable showing.

The insignia of the Order of Elks has been constructed from varieties of echeveria by the park department and placed in the Public Garden in honor of the Elk convention held in this city this week. A similar floral emblem is also under way for the G. A. R. convention, which is to be held in this city in August.

Wm. Thurston, general manager of the flower market, has purchased a home in Belmont, with a garage for his new Hupmobile. His family is growing and something had to be done to keep everything moving. Some live wire, this manager.

Mann Bros. are receiving large shipments of bachelor buttons daily, and in spite of the fact that sentiment has it that this is the Kaiser's favorite, ready sales are the rule at good prices.

Patrick Welch is enjoying the usual run of good sales. The lily of the valley carried here would be a credit to any establishment. It is the best coming to this city.

J. Cohen, one of the leading salesmen of the flower market, has taken up his summer abode at Hough Neck, but motors to the city each day in his new Studebaker.

The wholesale houses are feeling the summer trade, and are taking advantage of the dullness by remodeling their stores and preparing for the winter trade.

Some very fine French hydrangeas, with good foliage and extra large flowers of good color, are being received from Frank Edgar, of Waverly.

B. A. Snyder & Co. report business very good. At the time of our call, the force was rushing shipments of early morning orders.

Both of Galvin's stores report very good summer business, with plenty of funeral work and several decorations for the visiting Elks.

Wm. Nicholson of Framingham, Mass., will ship his stock to Albert Walsh, who will sell for him the balance of the summer.

Thomas Roland is cutting extra good Ophelia, Killarney Queen, Ward and Stanley roses. They find ready sale at good prices.

Andrew Christensen is cutting excellent Delphinium Bella Donna, the most perfect sprays seen in this market.

Lester Comley, son of Henry Comley, is expecting a call any day to join the hospital unit in France.

Chas. Evans, of Watertown, Mass., is sending in some of the best Mrs. Francis King gladioli seen in this market.

Wm. Penn is enjoying a five weeks' jaunt, fishing in the Maine woods.

S. K. G.

Cincinnati.*FAIR DEMAND AND AMPLE SUPPLY.

The supply in the market is sufficient for all present needs. For summer business the demand is fair, but is not strong enough to take up all receipts. There is a strong demand from out-of-town for new ferns and leucothoe. Roses are plentiful, but most of the offerings are very short stemmed. The carnations available are all small. Lilies are excellent and are in a good supply. Gladioli are seen in limited numbers, and sell well. The first asters came in the early part of this week. Other offerings are sweet peas, snapdragons, rubrum lilies and nymphaeas.

NOTES.

Visitors: Robert Schoch, representing the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Jos. Marks, representing A. Henderson & Co., Chicago; C. E. Ruch, Richmond, Ind., and Mr. and Mrs. Honaker, Lexington, Ky.

At the annual meeting of the florists' society, Wm. Schumann was re-elected president, Jas. Allen, vice-president; Alex. Ostendorp, secretary; J. Chas. Murphy, treasurer, and Gus Adrian, trustee.

C. E. Critchell was the first in the market to get in asters this year. They came in on Tuesday of this week.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange have been offering some excellent rubrum lilies.

The William Murphy Co. has been receiving some excellent gladioli from local growers.

Oklahoma City.*FUNERAL WORK MAINSTAY OF TRADE.

Most of the business that is coming the way of the florists is for funerals just now. There seems to be more of this work this summer than has been the rule in previous years. The weather has turned quite warm. Thermometers on the streets have been registering the 110 mark, not a very conducive temperature for the flower trade. As the gladioli are becoming more popular in this community, the merits of the various kinds are beginning to receive closer attention. Without going into any discussion of the different varieties at this time, we might observe that the old Brechlyensis is proving the best red to grow, and the variety, Mrs. Francis King, does not do so well as the upper buds of the spike burn and will not develop properly after the spike is cut.

Visitor: — Young, representing A. L. Randall Co., Chicago. This firm sends a man to call on the trade here about four times a year and the florists find it a great convenience to them.

S. S. E.

PORTLAND, ORE.—Local postal authorities have notified the trade that hereafter corrugated boxes must be used in all shipments of flowers.

MR. VERNON, N. Y.—The firm of George Hermann, Inc., manufacturing stakes, toothpicks and other specialties for florists, is being re-organized to meet the requirements of its increasing business.

OBITUARY.

Philippe L. de Vilmorin.

Philippe L. de Vilmorin, head of the well known firm of Vilmorin-Andrieux & Co., Paris, France, died June 30. Mr. de Vilmorin had been ill all winter in the south of France and in a letter written to a close American friend, June 18, he stated he was then too weak to stand. Mr. de Vilmorin had worked very hard for his country during the war and soon after its outbreak was assigned to duty in London as director of purchasing with a corps of some 70 assistants. It is believed his health gave way under the strain of constant application. Born in 1872, Mr. de Vilmorin succeeded to the presidency of the firm on the death of his father, the late Henri Leveque de Vilmorin, in 1899 and closely followed in his foot-steps as author, traveler and scientist in agriculture and horticulture. The great work of Philippe de Vilmorin and his predecessors is familiar to the horticultural world and his early death will be widely deplored. In the company of his father he visited the United States in 1893. Madame Henri Leveque de Vilmorin, mother of Philippe, still maintains the family traditions at Verrieres-le-Buisson, the ancestral home, and a wife with six children also survive.

The house of Vilmorin-Andrieux & Co. had its beginning early in the eighteenth century. Pierre Andrieux, botanist to the king, Louis XV, in 1724 married Claude Goeffroy, who inherited her father's seed business on the Quai de la Megisserie. He bought out and united with his wife's business that of a certain Le Fevre, which is recorded to have existed prior to 1692. The daughter of this couple, Adelaide Andrieux, married, in 1774, Philippe Victoire Leveque de Vilmorin. Upon the death of Pierre Andrieux in 1779, he became sole partner in the seed house, which has since borne the name of Vilmorin-Andrieux. Philippe Victoire de Vilmorin was one of the first members of the Royal Society of Agriculture, now the National Society of Agriculture of France, a society composed of the most distinguished men in this field. Succeeding heads of the house of Vilmorin have been chosen members of this society, and have also belonged, like the first, to the legion of honor. Pierre Philippe Andre Leveque de Vilmorin, born in 1776, succeeded his father as head of the firm, on the latter's death in 1804. His experiments with cereals and grasses, his arboretum and rich collection of American oaks, and his descriptive lists of vegetables brought him fame and many honors. He retired in 1842, leaving the business in the hands of his eldest son, Pierre Louis Francois Leveque de Vilmorin, then 27, whose development of an improved sugar beet made possible the present enormous industry utilizing that vegetable. He died in 1860, two years before his father. His widow, Mme, Elisa de Vilmorin, whose monograph on "The Strawberry and Its History," is considered a classic, took an active part in the business. The eldest of her sons, Henri Leveque de Vilmorin, born in 1843, was taken into the business in 1866, two years before her death. He wrote many books on horticultural and agricultural subjects, carried on important work in hybridization, traveled widely, speaking half a dozen languages, and addressed the seedsmen's session of the World's Fair Horticultural Congress at Chicago in 1893. He was a member of many famous societies, recipient of the Veitch medal in 1896, and belonged to the legion of honor and many foreign orders.

Philippe de Vilmorin's uncle, Maurice L. H. de Vilmorin, who has been active in the firm for over 40 years, attending specially to the foreign department, is an authority on arboriculture, has received many honors at home and abroad, and has visited the United States twice, attending the exhibitions of 1876 and 1893. The present partnership also includes Count d'Estienne, brother-in-law of Philippe de Vilmorin. These and other members of the family have been closely identified with the conduct of the business during recent years and will no doubt continue it without change along the same lines.

George Washington Hillman.

The wholesale district of New York received a great stock on the morning of July 7 when it became known that George W. Hillman, secretary and treasurer of the New York Cut Flower Co., had died suddenly the previous afternoon of heart failure. He was at his office as usual, July 6, and appeared to be in good health. After business was over for the day he returned to his home in Flushing and soon after was called away suddenly.

George W. Hillman was born in Manhattan 54 years ago. He had lived in Flushing 26 years, where he had a fine home, and in his leisure hours took great interest in his flower garden. He had been a trustee of the First Baptist church of Flushing for 25 years. A recent incident, taken in connection with his sudden death, has greatly aroused the patriotic people of Flushing. One of his sons was a clerk in the Queen's County Savings bank. A short time ago he and another young man enlisted in the Seventh Regiment, N. V. N. G. For this, it is charged, A. C. Hageman, cashier of the bank, discharged them. The incident greatly affected the father, who was intensely patriotic, and was continually on his mind. The alternate excitement and depression is believed to have hastened his death. Charges brought against Hageman by the two young men are now being investigated by the grand jury.

He had been with the New York Cut Flower Co. since its organization, 23 years ago, and for about 12 years had been its secretary and treasurer. Previous to going with the company he had been, for four or five years, business manager for the John Henderson Co. of Flushing, a firm of growers long out of business. For many years he had made his home in Flushing and took an active interest in civic and political affairs, being an ardent republican, but a strong supporter of Col. Roosevelt in his campaign as a progressive. He was a genial and kindly man, popular with his neighbors and business associates. He is survived by a widow, four daughters and three sons. His funeral was held July 9 at 3:15 p. m. at the family home, 174 Franklin place, Flushing. Many friends from New York left the Pennsylvania terminal on the 2:41 p. m. train to attend the funeral.

Frank L. Carter.

Frank Carter, who in years past afforded the Chicago florists and trade visitors so much enjoyment in his delightful vocal music, died July 9 at the Washington Boulevard hospital. He had suffered for some months from an epidemic trouble of the throat and ears. An operation made last week to relieve the intense pain in his head was followed by cerebral meningitis and death ensued closely. Mrs. Carter, long an invalid, survives. Mr. Carter was a native of England and spent some years at Rockford, Ill. Later he resided in Chicago, occupying a responsible position with the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad. He was a fine type of man, devoted to his home and ever ready to place his splendid talents at the service of any worthy cause without reward other than the pleasure he found in doing it.

Miss Alice Miller.

Miss Alice Miller, who for the last 12 years has conducted a flower store at 225 West Jefferson street, Louisville, Ky., was found dead July 9, heart disease being attributed as the cause. She was 61 years of age. The deceased was a native of Louisville and had been connected with the florist business there for the past 35 years. She is said to have been in failing health for several years. She is survived by two sisters and four brothers. The remains were placed at rest in Cave Hill cemetery, following services at Maas' chapel.

H. G. W.

Ludwig Teweles.

Ludwig Teweles, president of the L. Teweles Seed Co., one of the oldest seed houses in Milwaukee, Wis., died at his home in that city, July 8, aged 76 years.

The deceased was born in Austria and came to Milwaukee 52 years ago, opening a seed store immediately after his arrival and later admitting his five sons as business partners. These are: Hugo, vice-president of the company; Max, secretary and treasurer; Arthur, Oscar and Edwin, who, with one daughter, Mrs. H. Herz, survive.

DULUTH, MINN.—The second annual peony show will be held July 13-14.

WHEATLAND, PA.—The Wheatland Greenhouses, Geo. B. Wilson, proprietor, will be sold and the ground cleared.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.—A state wide horticultural conference was held here June 30 in the interest of food conservation.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—Plans are already under way for an elaborate spring flower show in 1918 under the auspices of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society.

SOMERVILLE, MASS.—This city has established a "punishment lot" for boys who trespass on gardens under cultivation. Offenders are required to work out their sentences.

WHEELING, W. VA.—William F. Zane, founder of the firm of W. F. Zane & Son, one of the best known florist firms in this locality, died at his home here June 17, aged 68 years.

FITCHBURG, MASS.—The flower shop at 446 Main street, for a number of years conducted by Otto Mallgrav, has changed hands, the business having been purchased by W. H. Ritter.

ASHTABULA, O.—Permission has been granted the following greenhouse establishments to lay temporary gas lines into their buildings: Tong & Weeks Floral Co., E. A. Adams & Sons, C. C. Phelps & Son, R. W. Griswold, Lake Shore Greenhouse Co., and Ashtabula Lettuce & Vegetable Co.

OSHKOSH, WIS.—The florist business established a number of years ago by the late Isaac Miles, and since his death conducted by his daughters, has been transferred by them to R. E. Pamplin, J. E. Taylor and Wm. Bucholz, former employes, who will continue to conduct the establishment under the name of The Miles Co.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co.'s Directorate.

Changed business conditions since the passing of the late W. Atlee Burpee, founder of the well-known seed firm of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., principal among these being the inability to secure seeds of some varieties from Europe, a demand that has increased approximately 100 per cent, making it necessary to work day and night for a period of three months, and a great shortage of labor, has made a reorganization of the firm's executive force necessary.

Following the death of A. Eldridge Brown, who for many years was the efficient cashier of the company, and whose death occurred shortly after that of Mr. Burpee, W. Atlee Burpee, Jr., was placed in full charge of the cashier's department, continuing in that position until at present he is acting treasurer. Mr. Bougy continues in charge of the auditing department and W. F. Therkildson directs the advertising force as heretofore. Howard M. Earl, actively identified with the Burpee interests for more than 30 years, especially in the producing end, has been appointed production manager and is now directly responsible for the economic operation of the Burpee farms. In the placing of contracts, purchase of stock, inspection of crops and the conduct of trials, Geo. W. Kerr co-operates as superintendent of trial grounds and sweet pea expert. W. Scott Carroll is now superintendent and has charge of all operating departments, including the storage and handling of all seeds after they reach the warehouses at Philadelphia. At the head of this capable organization is David Burpee, active executor and general manager.

American Rose Society.

An executive committee meeting of the American Rose Society was held at the City Club, Philadelphia, Pa., June 27. A revision of the constitution and bylaws, so as to allow for changes in membership fees, was discussed, and it was voted that the secretary should send out notices of the contemplated changes to all active members that a vote might be secured, as provided for in the constitution and by-laws, before the meeting in Cleveland next fall.

It was resolved, "That the present rules for affiliated societies be revised to make affiliation dues one dollar a year for each member of the society, provided that payment of such dues be made to the American Rose Society before February 1 of each year, so that provision might be made for the required number of annuals."

A report of the Washington rose test garden was submitted for the committee by Robert Pyle.

It was voted that a financial statement regarding the society's exhibition held in Philadelphia, March 20-24, be prepared by President Hammond and sent to all guarantors.

A. Farenwald presented the plans of the national flower show committee and asked that the American Rose Society prepare a preliminary schedule of premiums for the coming exhibition. A. Farenwald, S. S. Pennock and E. J. Fancourt were appointed on this committee.

E. A. WHITE, Sec'y.

BUSINESS GOOD FOR JULY.

Business is good for July with the total sales so far showing a favorable increase over the same period of 1916. Peonies are still a factor in the market, but the supply is rapidly decreasing and another week will about mark the end of those now in storage. Roses are in good demand, especially Mrs. Chas. Russell, which are cleaning up nicely at good prices every day. American Beauty roses are selling quickly, particularly in the longer stemmed grades, and there is hardly ever any surplus to speak of. Ophelia and Sunburst are also having a good call and there are always ready buyers for My Maryland and Champ Weiland. Double White Killarney clean up early, for the supply is limited and the same holds true to a certain extent for White Killarney, which are good property right now. Roses in general have been moving fairly well and while prices are not as high as they might be under the existing condition, no one is complaining. Carnations are in fair supply and in good demand, but the daily receipts are gradually shortening now that replanting is well under way. Gladioli sold exceptionally well the past week and fancy stock brought as high as $6.00 to $8.00 per 100. The local supply of out-door stock is at least two weeks late, and so far none have reached the market. Some of the growers expect to cut their first lot in about another week, which will strike the market about the time that the peonies are over. Orchids are still bringing high prices, which also holds good for lily of the valley. Lilies are moving pretty well and while at times there appears to be an oversupply there is always a steady demand which keeps the tables pretty well cleared. The first asters of the season made their appearance this week and are in brisk demand. There is a large quantity of miscellaneous outdoor stock in the market in addition to a good supply of other indoor flowers not already mentioned here.

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING.

The attendance at the regular meeting of the Florists' Club, held at the Briggs House July 5, was rather light. President Amling was in the chair and only routine matters needed attention. The transportation committee presented completed schedule for the trip to New York on the occasion of the annual convention of the Society of American Florists August 21-24. The local party, with others from points north, south and west who may wish to join it, will leave the La Salle street station on the New York Central Sunday, August 19, at 11:45 p. m., due New York Tuesday, August 21, at 5:05 a. m. Sleepers may be occupied to 7:00 a. m. The round trip fare is $35, tickets good 30 days; lower Pullman berths, $5; upper berths, $4, each way. Further particulars of the trip will be found elsewhere in this issue, page 1366.

A letter was read from A. D. King, Mattoon, Ill., who suffered serious loss in the recent tornado at that place. Mr. King sought the aid of brother florists in making a new start in business, everything he had being destroyed, and the secretary was instructed to send a special letter to the members requesting them to advise Mr. King direct as to any surplus plants or other materials they could supply, the case being one of real hardship.

The regular meetings of the club were suspended until October.

NOTES.

Percy Jones, Inc., closed its books for the past six months on July 1, with a splendid record, the total sales being more than those of the best twelve months the firm has ever experienced. There is no slackening in the demand, for the sales for last week were double those of the two best weeks of any summer month since Percy Jones, Inc., has been in existence.

Julius Kline, of the Wieter Bros.' store force, is back on the job, after enjoying a well earned vacation. Chas. Drissler left this week to take a special course in checker playing, so he will be able to trim the coming champions when he returns.

A. L. RANDALL COMPANY

Wholesale Cut Flowers and Florists' Supplies
WABASH AVE. AND LAKE ST., CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is having a brisk demand for chrysanthemum plants and is shipping out a large number of boxes every day. Tony Gabel, who has charge of the chrysanthemums and carnations at the greenhouses, says that the demand this season has been exceptionally heavy for Yellow Chadwick and Golden Glow. Earl Poehlmann, eldest son of August Poehlmann, is now employed in the cut flower department at the city salesrooms.

Peter Reinberg is filling orders for field grown carnation plants for immediate delivery and reports over 500,000 in the field. The stock is in extra fine condition and is the best this firm ever had. Anton Then has made arrangements with this firm to handle the exclusive sale of his field grown Thenanthos carnation plants.

Peter Miller, with the George Wienhoeber Co., has perfected a wire hook for suspending wreaths and sprays for display purposes and has applied for a patent on same. Poehlmann Bros. Co. has made arrangements with him to handle it and T. E. Waters has a number on hand for inspection in the supply department.

Swain, Nelson & Sons Co. held a peony show in their rooms, 937-41 Marquette building, July 5-7, which was largely attended and proved to be a good investment. In addition to a splendid show of peonies, they had on display other perennial flowers from their nurseries in Glenview.

The A. L. Randall Co. is strong on lilies, which they handle in quantity all through the year. Pond lilies have been in good demand at this house for window displays and are seen featured in a great many of the retail stores throughout the city.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner are pleasing their trade with a supply of peonies that will carry them through at least another week.

Curtis Kindler, of the Raedlein Basket Co. is back from a pleasant visit at Denver, Colo., and other western cities.

Miss Florence Schriener, of the office force of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, is away on her vacation.

E. C. Amling and H. N. Bruns and families are making an extended automobile trip through Michigan.

J. C. Nielsen, with Poehlmann Bros. Co., has just returned from a very satisfactory business trip.

MARKET CONDITIONS IMPROVED.

With flowers recovering from the intense heat of the past few weeks, market conditions are much improved. Dahlias are showing up very good and some excellent stock of the varieties Golden West and Minnie, Burgle are to be seen. The first good zinnias made their appearance this week.

NOTES.

The Redondo Floral Co. is featuring excellent Minnie Burgle dahlias. The force here has been quite busy with funeral work. Mr. Knopf has been taking an outing at his lemon ranch, where he is building a bungalow and garage.

Howard & Smith have been enjoying a good trade with their rose, Los Angeles, and are receiving praise from all quarters. June was a busy month at this establishment.

O. C. Saake has been making a good showing in roses, gladioli, sweet peas and zinnias. Funeral work was also much in evidence here.

At Wright's Flower Shop there were displayed large dahlias and Killarney and other roses, including Cecile Brunner.

St. Louis.

MARKET SHOWS POOR CONDITION.

The market the past week, in so far as stock was concerned, was in rather poor shape. Carnations are small and faded. Roses are in the same condition, with the possible exception of Russell, which is holding up fairly well. American Beauties have disappeared almost entirely. Gladioli are fair and command a good price. Lilies are in fair supply. Sweet peas are tightening up somewhat with the quality very poor. Shasta daisies, delphiniums, gaillardias and other outdoor hardy perennials are fairly good and have a ready call. Reports from all over the city are to the effect that business is slow, except where funeral work livens things up. Fortunately, there has been considerable of this. In greens the market is well supplied.

NOTES.

W. S. Wells, landscape gardener for Washington University for the past year and a half, has resigned his position. He has not as yet announced his plans for the future. He is also secretary of the Missouri State Florists' Association, and expects quite a delegation from St. Louis to attend the annual meeting in Columbia during the current month.

Christ, Winterich, cyclamen specialist of Defiance, Ohio, passed through this city last week, and the writer had quite a long chat with him. He was on the way home from a visit to southeastern Missouri, where he bought 200 acres of land. He is quite an enthusiast about Missouri land.

A. S. Cerny, of Kirkwood, has about finished planting his new greenhouse to Russell. He is also transplanting a lot of his old stock with Ophelia, as he intends to specialize on Ophelia, Russell, Milady and Cecile Brunner. His greatest trouble, he states, is the lack of help.

H. C. Irish, of Irish & Moskopf, who is also connected with the local school board, is looking for experienced help. He states he would be glad if anyone looking for such a position would call to see him or call him up.

F. C. Weber, Sr., and wife, have gone to the northern lakes on their annual vacation. Fred C. Weber, Jr., and his brother-in-law, Arthur Beyer, are on the job and the store is well taken care of.

Al Gumz, of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., had a fall a couple of days ago and fractured a rib. While it does not seem to be anything serious, it has laid him up for a few days.

Through an error last week the writer announced A. H. Hummert as a member of the florists' club publicity committee. It should have been W. J. Pilcher.

Miss Martha Kniest of Windler's Flowers, on South Grand avenue, has recovered from her operation and is now back on the job after an absence of a month.

Phil. Goebel, of Kirkwood, has been cutting very heavily from his snapdragons. He expects to have a large chrysanthemum crop this fall.

JEROME, IDA.—Mrs. Celia C. White, who located here two years ago, with one small house, has been obliged to increase the capacity of her establishment. This year, in addition to a good general line of flowering plants, she disposed of over 20,000 tomato plants, but only had half enough to meet the demand. Mrs. White says: "I enjoy reading THE AMERICAN FLORIST very much and it is a great help to me. I never had experience except as an amateur, but I have been successful with flowers and plants."

DEMAND ON PAR WITH LAST SUMMER.

The midsummer demand is about on a par with that of last season at this time; in fact, some of the wholesale men think it a little better. "Business better than usual" is certainly a good sign and will keep the slogan "Business as usual" hustling, if it wants to be in the running. Good roses are in demand, because, perhaps, there are so few of them. Growers are now drying off many of the beds in their preparations for next season. Eastern Beauties are still in good demand; in fact, with the exception of a few Russells, they are the only high class stock to be had. Ophelia, Sunburst, My Maryland and Kaiserin are the next best. A few fair carnations are seen, but they must soon make way on the benches for the new stock. Mrs. Ward, Matchless and Benora are the leaders. Easter and rubrum lilies of good quality are seen in quantity. These and gladioli, both indoor and outdoor stock, are much used in funeral work. Cattleyas are ahead of the demand. There is lily of the valley, if ordered ahead at top prices. Hydrangea arborescens is added to the outside flowers. There are a few asters, with plenty more in sight. Growers say there will be no such dearth as last season.

NOTES.

The express companies are combining and endeavoring to get a ruling from the interstate commerce commission that twenty-four hours is not an unreasonable delay in delivering packages of any kind. If the trade allows anything like this to be put over, it will mean there will be no certainty as to time in the arrival of shipments and no redress from the carrying companies for delays over which they have control. Leo Niessen thinks that every florists' organization in the country should get together to fight any such legislation. Everybody should get all the data they can hearing on this matter and come with it to the S. A. F. convention. They will then be in a position to back up the committee of the S. A. F. who have this matter in hand. As if this was not enough, "the worst is yet to come," for Mr. Niessen says they are also trying to get the right to place an embargo on all shipments of cut flowers and plants, when they see fit to do so, similar to that now practiced by the railroad and steamship lines, which is the cause of so much inconvenience to the trade.

The July meeting of the florists' club, while not largely attended, was interesting. The topic of the evening was the removal to other quarters. Keeping up a similar room with the various games as installed at present, was thought inadvisable. The disposal of the pool and billiard tables, shuffle boards and howling alleys was left in the hands of the house committee. The howling trophies are to be stored for the present. A room for the monthly meetings has been selected in the Parkway building. It was thought possible that when the Horticultural Society was permanently located, the florists' club might obtain the use of their room for their meetings. The August meeting was postponed. It will not be positively known whether the sale of the hall will go through until after July 15, when the option expires.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. have some surprises for the coming season, which as yet are under cover. Vacations are now in order. James Magee, the obliging salesman who has charge of their front counter, took unto himself a wife last week and is spending his honeymoon at Asbury Park.

A dealer, when asked if the great quantity of Russell roses that are being planted this year would not make them too plentiful, figured there would be a good demand, as much of the stock that was going out was the free blooming Killarney, which would shorten the supply.

Don't Wait

Now is the time to send us a shipment of flowers and acquaint yourself with the satisfactory treatment you receive when you ship to New York's Foremost Commission House in the flower trade.

Extensive experience, ample capital, modern facilities and, in fact, everything to commend us to you.

UNITED CUT FLOWER CO., Inc., 111 W. 28th St., New York City

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. has been succeeded by the S. S. Pennock Co., the change to date July 1, Charles Meehan retiring. The officers of the corporation are: S. S. Pennock, president; Percy B. Rigby, vice-president and manager of the New York store; E. J. Fancourt, second vice-president and manager of ribbon and supply department; Clarence U. Ligget, treasurer and manager of plant and bulb department; Ralph E. Faust, secretary; Alvah R. Jones, manager Philadelphia cut flower department; John G. Perry, manager Baltimore store; Otto Bauer, manager Washington store.

Edward Reid says he likes soldering, but finds time for business as usual at 1615 Ransted street, Eastern Beauties, gladioli, Easter lilies and summer flowers are leaders here.

The Bickmore greenhouses are shipping Easter and rubrum lilies of fine quality to Berger Bros. Business at this central market has the edge on that of last season at this time.

A. B. Cartledge is in St. Luke's hospital, recovering from an operation for stomach trouble. His many friends hope for a speedy recovery. His condition is very favorable.

John Burton and his sister, Mrs. Edwin Lonsdale, now in St. Timothy's hospital, at Roxboro, are much improved and expect to be able to return home next week.

G. W. Kerr, of Doylestown, attended the annual meeting and exhibition of the American Sweet Pea Society, of which he is president, at Boston, Mass., July 7-8.

At Eugene Bernheimer's, Benny Bibbs reports Prima Donna, Sunburst and Ward roses with good summer trade. Sweet peas are leading stock.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange is proud of its line of summer roses. Sweet peas are also a feature. Trade is good for the season.

John F. Graff, Jr., son-in-law of Robert Craig, died at his summer home, Ventor, N. J., July 6. His wife and one daughter survive him.

WARM WEATHER BRINGS DULL BUSINESS.

Warm weather continued throughout the past week and there was very little real business. American Beauties were very hard to move, 20 cents being top price for the best specials, and many went for 10 cents. The hot weather brought in a big supply of tea roses that were poor and they sold very cheap. Cattleyas and lilies are all too plentiful for the demand; also carnations, thought it is reasonable to suppose that many of them have been thrown out. A great amount of outdoor stock continues to arrive, phlox being added to what was enumerated a week ago. We have seen a few asters, but they are not yet plentiful or good enough to be factors. We assume that the few that now arrive are greenhouse grown. Considering the cool weather, up to the past two weeks, it is unreasonable to expect many outdoor asters before the last of this month. It will also be much better for all concerned if the asters do not come in great volume until the carnations are well out of the way.

July 9.—Since the wholesalers began to close on Sundays there is more activity on Monday morning, but everything is slow. Neither cattleyas nor lily of the valley are in surplus and they move fairly well. In roses 20 cents is top for special American Beauties. No Hadleys worth noting are arriving. Special Ophelias, Mocks, Wards and Double White Killarneys bring fair prices, but a large amount of all rose stock is arriving in poor condition. A large stock of field-grown sweet peas is on the market, the best being short and going at 35 cents per 100. A great supply of feverfews, pink rambler roses and other outdoor stocks is arriving, which goes cheap—when it does sell.

CLUB MEETING.

The club met in its hall in the Grand Opera House building on the evening of July 9, President Stump in the chair. There was a good attendance. After the reading of the minutes, there was a discussion relating to the action taken at the June meeting when all entertainment for the visiting members of the Society of American Florists to the coming convention was barred, excepting a theatre party for the ladies. W. A. Manda, who was strongly in favor of an entertainment, moved that the vote taken at the June meeting on that question be reconsidered. By a standing vote his motion was lost.

A letter was read from F. R. Newbold suggesting that the club render some assistance to the French nurserymen, whose stocks had been devastated by the war. Max Schling spoke in favor of the proposition, but said in effect that under present conditions in shipping nothing could be sent there.

The resignation of F. A. Bolles was accepted with regret. The resignation of Edward Manda, son of Joseph A. Manda, who it is understood has enlisted, was read. It was voted that any member of the club who has joined the federal service be retained as a member without payment of dues. This also applies to A. M. Henshaw, who is in the Naval Reserve. Letters were read from J. F. Ammann, Mrs. Maynard, secretary of the Ladies' Society of American Florists, and from an official of the Red Cross. W. M. Hunt and Harry Goldberg, of New York, were proposed for membership.

A. L. Miller reported on the Convention Garden. Ten thousand square feet of space have been sold and 40,000 square feet remain unsold. W. A. Manda stated that Dr. Britton, of the Bronx Botanical Garden, was disappointed at the lack of interest, but would be willing to have the club take space every year. Secretary Young suggested that retail florists of the prominence of President Stump and Max Schling, and others, take an interest in the garden.

Secretary Young moved that resolutions of sympathy be prepared and sent to the family of the late George W. Hillman, of the New York Cut Flower Co.; carried. (An obituary notice of Mr. Hillman will be found in another column.)

Prof. Hottes, of the Columbus, O., Florists' Club, gave an interesting and humorous talk.

NOTES.

Alex. M. Westwood, the Pennsylvania Terminal florist, says: "If the wholesale florists have the right to close up on Sunday on account of the labor law or any other law, so have the retailers; and if the retailers close on Sunday it means less flowers sold and will lessen the demand for the growers' product just that much. Certainly it will not increase the demand and will result in the wholesalers unloading to the peddlers every Saturday at prices that will make some growers weary. The labor law does not call for a day off for help on Sunday, but any one day of the week. I give my men every Tuesday."

The retail business at 373 Bleecker street, formerly known as Kremer Brothers, is now conducted by Harry F. Kremer, his brother having taken up another line. This business has been established for many years and

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer.

ONION SET crop prospects at Chicago continue excellent.

BRAZIL will send 11,000,000 bags of beans to the United States this year.

VISITED CHICAGO: A. A. Berry, of the A. A. Berry Seed Co., Clarinda, Ia.

DUTCH BULBS, according to cable advices recently received at New York, will be shipped this season.

LINCOLN, NEB.—In the matter of the Griswold Seed Co., bankrupt, final notice has been given to creditors for a meeting, July 18.

ARNOLD RINGIER, Chicago, who has just returned from New York, says he expects to make a tour of the Wisconsin pea districts soon.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—The American Seed Co., Ft. Worth, Tex., has leased the building at 1410 Broadway, where a branch will be established.

COUNTER seed trade, both east and west, is reported holding up well during the first third of July, practically double the business of ordinary seasons.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—Ludwig Teweles, pioneer seedsman of this city, died at his home here, July 8. Further particulars will be found in the obituary column.

THE Hoboken Shore Road, heretofore controlled by C. D. Boyles, well-known to the seed trade, has been taken over by the government on account of its great terminal value.

UNDER the title "Soybeans" the Maryland agricultural experiment station, College Point, has issued Bulletin 201, descriptive of the uses, possibilities, variety tests, cultural directions, etc., of this crop.

NEW YORK.—A seed committee of the produce exchange has been appointed for the ensuing year as follows: Marshall H. Duryea, William Jacot, O. W. F. Randolph, Ernest Wehncke and Charles Wimmer.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—For the first time in their history, W. Atlee Burpee & Co. have issued a mid-summer catalogue of 100 pages, with color plates. Sweet peas for fall sowing are given considerable attention.

WETHERSFIELD, CONN. — Comstock, Ferre & Co. report that the cold and wet weather has retarded growth, but the outlook is now more favorable and if the present good weather continues, it is believed there will be an average crop.

COGGESHALL, ESSEX, ENG.—Herbert T. King, sole proprietor of the firm of John T. King & Sons, seed growers, which dates back to 1793, was killed and his manager, J. H. Millard, seriously injured in the air raid which took place at London, June 13. The deceased, who was the second surviving son of the late John Kemp King, was 53 years of age.

Seed Growers' Latest Reports.

A Nebraska seed grower reports that the acreage does not exceed the usual one on many kinds, especially on sweet corn and melons. There will hardly be any surplus on these items even with good crops, and they may be short unless crops are unusually good in acreage contracted. Many crops are late and the coming mid-summer and late fall will have to be good to mature them.

Florida melon growers report conditions July 1 not specially favorable, but there is still time for the vines to same. Another eastern grower confirms report of poor acreage of beets owing to the loss of the roots in the trenches over winter. He reports a remarkably good stand of sweet corn, considering the unfavorable weather.

New Jersey growers report the season to be about two weeks late but with continued warm weather the crops should overcome all drawbacks. The acreage is about normal there on tomato, egg-plant, pepper, muskmelon, etc.

California growers state that the critical period for their crops is the last week in July and definite reports may be expected from them at that time.

The tomato seed crop is late. The radish outlook is rather poor; owing to the unfavorable weather and soil conditions a poor stand was obtained.

Lily Bulb Prospects in Bermuda.

According to a special report furnished by the director of agriculture of Bermuda, the acreage under lily bulb cultivation is probably a little larger this year than last. It appears that on account of the dullness of the market last season a number of the growers were not able to dispose of all their bulbs, which have been used for replanting this year. The fields of careful growers appear to be in good condition, and if there is sufficient rainfall between now and the time of gathering the bulbs, the crop should be above the average of recent years and equal, perhaps, to the good crop of last year.

Export Contracts.

The Department of Commerce has authorized this statement:

"In view of the fact that public necessity may in the future require the requisition of vessels by the government, and as this may be done quickly with but little time for adjustment, it is advisable that exporters, in making contracts for export, should state in the contracts that shipment is to be contingent on their obtaining shipping space. Attention is again called to the fact that exporters will save themselves much annoyance and possible claim for damages if a clause is inserted in bills of sale, stating that the sale is made subject to the seller's ability to secure an export permit, if such permit is required."

recover from the effects of the severe drought; estimating from present conditions the yield will be about 70 per cent. This, too, will apply to melons in Florida and Georgia, that were planted for market. The yield was about 50 per cent of a normal crop.

Puget Sound cabbage seed reports of July 2 indicate full crop prospects on Glory of Enkhuizen, Surehead, Louisville Drumhead, Autumn King, Drumhead Savoy; practical crop failure on Danish Ballhead, 40 per cent on Danish Roundhead, 60 to 80 per cent on Wakefield, Charleston, Winingstadt, All Seasons, Early Summer, Succession, Late Drumhead.

One Eastern grower reports beets only about 25 per cent of a crop, spinach and radish approximately the

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

H. W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., President;
H. F. Thompson, Arlington, Mass., Vice-
President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky.,
Secretary; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids,
Mich., Treasurer.

Next annual convention will be held at
Springfield, Mass., in 1917.

THE yield of Bermuda onions in Texas is said to have brought growers a revenue of $4,000,000.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—The city authorities are being urged to buy a tractor to be used in a war garden campaign.

ONION prices continue to decline and the movement of Texas stock, much of which is arriving in poor condition, is very slow.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, July 9.—Mushrooms, home grown, No. 1, 20 to 25 cents per carton; lettuce, cases 5 to 10 cents; radishes, $1.00 per hundred bunches; celery, $2.50 per crate; tomatoes, per basket, $1; cucumbers, per crate, $1.50.

New York, July 9.—Celery, dozen stalks, 30 to 60 cents; cucumbers, 35 to 75 cents per dozen; mushrooms, $1.00 to $1.75 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, 7 to 15 cents per pound; radishes, per hundred bunches, 75 cents to $1.25; lettuce, per basket, 20 to 60 cents; rhubarb, per dozen bunches, 75 cents to $1.25.

Retail Prices Out of Proportion.

Commissioner Hartigan of the food supply committee of New York appointed by Mayor Mitchel has declared that investigations have proved that retail prices are out of all proportion to the wholesale figures. The following table prepared by him shows the remarkable difference between retail and wholesale prices on fresh vegetables in effect at the time of investigation:

|                           |      |      |
|---------------------------|------|------|
| Potatoes (Bermuda) lb.... | 6¼c  | 10c  |

| Turnips, bunch .....      | 2c   | 5@8c |

Potato Prices at New York.

Heavy shipments of southern potatoes have been arriving and wholesale prices have dropped. On July 6, 117 carloads came in over the Pennsylvania R. R.; by Old Dominion steamer, 5,800 barrels. Only July 7 an Old Dominion steamer brought 5,800 barrels. Earlier in the week a delayed steamer unloaded 12,000 barrels from Virginia. The long trip had somewhat injured them and they sold at from $2.50 to $3.50 per barrel. For good stock, prices follow:

|                              |              |
|------------------------------|--------------|
| Bermuda, No. 1, per bbl.     | $5.00       |

CLUB MEETING.

At the July meeting of the florists' club, the principal subject of discussion was flowers at school commencements. This year the ban was placed on the delivery of flowers to graduates at the commencement exercises of the local high school, June 29. The club decided to place the subject in the hands of a committee of nine, whose business it shall be to present, through the local newspapers, and to the school commissioners, arguments to show that the florists should not be discriminated against when it comes to purchasing gifts and requisites for commencements. Frederick Goldring was of the belief that had the club taken up the matter in time the ban this year would not have been pronounced, and that something should be done or the business of the growers and retailers would be jeopardized. President John J. Haggerty named on the committee: Thomas F. Tracey, chairman; Fred Goldring, Frederick A. Danker, Byron Holmes, Edward P. Tracey, William C. Gloeckner, Robert Davidson, A. D. Wemple, and Louis H. Schaefer. The secretary was instructed to write in behalf of the club, a letter to the editor of one of the local papers, who printed an editorial in favor of the use of flowers at school commencements.

The subject of the annual clambake was discussed and the whole referred to a committee made up of Louis H. Schaefer, chairman; Edward P. Tracey, and Frederick A. Danker. The committee has full power to make arrangements and will report at the August meeting.

The club accepted the invitation of Joseph Traudt to hold the September meeting at his place, Canajoharie, Saturday, September 1. The distance, 60 miles, will be traveled in automobiles, arrangements being made to leave this city early in the afternoon. Fred A. Danker extended an invitation to hold the October meeting at his place, 744 Central avenue, and it was accepted. The July meeting was held at the establishment of Fred Goldring, Font Grove, about eight miles out of the city on a good state road. Most of the members made the trip in automobiles.

NOTES.

The city has a number of amateurs who are interested in fine gardens. The list includes: Dudley Olcott, president of the Mechanics' and Farmers' Bank, whose grounds at his Ten Broeck street home are resplendent in the early spring and summer with masses of tulips and roses; George C. Hawley, president of the Dobler Brewing Company, who has a large place on Madison avenue with one of the finest displays of select tulips in this city, and Mrs. Edward W. Visscher, who is compelled to confine her ambitions to a city lot in the rear of her home at 311 State street. A visit to the yard of Mrs. Visscher is a revelation of what can be done in a small space in the line of attaining results well worth while. Frederick A. Danker, florist, at 40-42 Maiden Lane, supplied most of the stock that adorns Mrs. Visscher's yard and brings praise from many of the owner's friends. Along the west wall there were blooming lately two or three vines of the Climbing American Beauty with a profusion and color that brought admiration from all who saw them. Besides this variety, Mrs. Visscher had vines of Tausendschon, covered with buds, not to mention Excelsa, Dorothy Perkins, and Silver Moon. In groups in one or more corners were choice peonies in full bloom: Festiva Maxima, Marie Le-moine, Mme. Forel, Dutchess de Nemours, Felix Crousse, Marie Calot, Mons. Jules Elie, and Officialis rubra were among the principal varieties. Included in the hybrid tea roses were 15 of the new Los Angeles. The garden grows also Speciosum, Auratum, and Candidum lilies, phloxes, delphiniums, and snapdragons. In the spring, the visitor sees a remarkable display of tulips, hyacinths, crocuses, and narcissi.

One of the Dutch bulb agents, A. Van Roogen, representing a house at Lisse, Holland, has assured the local trade that the outlook for the bulb business in his country this season is excellent, and that dealers need have no fear that orders given will fail of delivery. The Dutch bulb merchants, Van Roogen said, have good supplies and feel confident about their ability to deliver in this country.

Lord & Burnham Co., New York, are remodeling the houses of William Hannell, R. F. D., Watervliet, and converting them into up-to-date growing establishments through the use of their iron purlins and other specialties. Mr. Hannell has 30,000 square feet of glass. R. D.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.—The iris show of the New Haven County Horticultural Society held here June 15-16 was a complete success, both in attendance and number and quality of the displays.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., President;
J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex., Vice-President; Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress
St., Boston, Mass., Secretary and Counsel.

DEDHAM, MASS.—Francis Lazenby, formerly of Plymouth, Mass., has been placed in charge of the nursery department of W. & J. Farquhar & Co.

As a defense against foreign plant diseases, Italy has prohibited importation of certain plants and their products from France, Spain, the United States and Canada.

BELOIT, WIS.—F. M. Niquet, wife and daughter, Florence, attended the annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen at Philadelphia, Pa., June 27-29.

GOODMAN, MO.—L. A. Goodman, a prominent horticulturist of this state, for 25 years president of the Missouri Valley Horticultural Society and 10 years president of the American Pomological Society, died suddenly at his home here June 27.

COLLEGE STATION, TEX.—The summer meeting of the Texas Nurserymen's Association will be held here August 2 during the Texas farmers' congress. Full particulars regarding the meeting may be had by addressing John S. Kerr, secretary-treasurer, Sherman, Tex.

American Association of Cemetery Supts.

The thirty-first annual convention of the Association of American Cemetery Superintendents will be held at Barre, Vt., August 28-31. An exceedingly interesting programme has been arranged and the local committee have spared no pains to make this meeting one of the most successful in the history of the organization. In order to facilitate its work in making room reservations, members who will attend are requested to notify the committee of the fact, together with the number of persons in the party, as the hotels are making reservations through the committee only. Alex Hanton, superintendent of the city cemeteries at Barre, is the local member of the convention committee. W. B. Jones of Highwood cemetery, Pittsburgh, Pa., is secretary-treasurer of the association.

Lonicera Henryi.

Lonicera Henryi is a native of western China and valuable and interesting, for, with the exception of Euonymus radicans and Vinca minor, it is the only vine with evergreen leaves which is hardy in this climate. It has long, dark green, pointed leaves and auxiliary clusters of flowers which are rose color when they first open but soon become orange-red; they are without odor. On the slopes of its native mountains this plant scrambles over rocks and bushes and, like other clinging honeysuckles, it will do best when allowed to grow naturally in this way, for none of these honeysuckles are really happy when they are fastened to a trellis. There is a good specimen of this plant now covered with flowers in the bed of Chinese shrubs on the southern slope of Bussey hill.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, July, 1916.

Torrington, Conn.

We reached this city after a tiresome trip over a branch of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. Some of the branches of the N. Y., N. H. and H. seems to be like the branch road a drummer found somewhere in the south. The train was late and the drummer was fuming and fussing, when a native who was standing on the platform said: "Don't worry, stranger, the train'll be here soon fer I see the conductor's dog comin' up the track." Torrington is a city of about 25,000 souls, but if you want to leave it by the steam railroad after 6 p. m. you are stuck, for no trains leave it at night. It is a manufacturing city of considerable importance and has good business houses.

NOTES.

D. J. Castle, 271 South Main street, has four good greenhouses and grows a variety of stock.

Henry Riler, 422 Main street, has a considerable glass area and has a good local trade. A. F. F.

New Haven, Conn.

Nearly everybody that reads the newspapers associates Yale University, with its football players and oarsmen, with New Haven. It is quite natural that this should be so, for "Old Eli" is the pride and pet of New Haven. However, admirable as the university and many of its graduates are, it should also be remembered that New Haven in manufacture and other lines of commerce is a great business city. It has a number of good florists who do a thriving business. New Haven county has a wide-awake horticultural society, which will hold an exhibition in New Haven, September 19-20. We were a little unfortunate on our recent visits there in the matter of news gathering. As a matter of course, July 4 was given over to a real patriotic celebration, and it is not news that New Haven should celebrate the "Glorious Fourth" with appropriate ceremonies, unless it is to state that the patriotic spirit flamed higher this year than ever before. Dropping in again, on July 6, we found that the business men, florists included, have arranged to close their stores on Friday afternoons and give their employes a half holiday.

NOTES.

Charles Munro, who has a fine store at 974 Chapel street, has also a large glass area on Townsend avenue and grows a variety of stock. He is now paying considerable attention to ferns.

The Chapel street stores of the S. H. Moore Co. and John N. Champion & Co. are attractive and seemingly prosperous.

TRADE UNUSUALLY QUIET.

The summer season is now upon us and the usual sluggish conditions of trade prevail. The wind-up of the trade of busy June was perhaps better than a year ago, as there was no perceptible falling off until July was reached, but then suddenly all activity ceased and only the occasional funeral order serves to remind us that we are still doing some business. Accompanying the slow demand and accentuating its significance, are the heavy receipts of flowers which defy all efforts of both wholesalers and retailers to move. Chief of these in the long list of seasonable flowers is an unprecedented supply of lilies and most of them of most excellent quality. Many of these were calculated for June cutting, but the continuous cold weather of the three months required to bloom them deferred their flowering period two or three weeks.

NOTES.

Robert Rahaley, E. A. Fetters and A. Pochelon are enjoying a fishing outing on the Au Sable river at Lovell, Mich. A visit there of two weeks is contemplated. They autoed to the place from here.

In contrast with weather conditions this time last year we are now suffering with excessive rains that keep the ground saturated, prevents cultivation, and allows the rampant growth of weeds.

Frank Dolsky, of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, one of their star bowlers, was married last week, and with his bride is visiting friends in New York state.

W. L. Lindsay, florist, Tillsonburg, Ont., visited here Sunday, July 8. He reports business conditions with him very satisfactory. J. F. S.

Washington, D. C.

BUSINESS QUIET AND STOCK FAIR.

Trade is very quiet as can be expected at this season, with the quality of stock being received nothing extra. Some very good gladioli are being received, however.

NOTES.

Miss Fay West and Hubert Doty surprised their friends by motoring to Baltimore July 10, where they were married. Both are well known in the trade and have the well wishes of many friends.

Lloyd Jenkins, president of the florists' club and one of the firm of C. L. Jenkins & Son, Anacostia, D. C., was married June 18 to Miss Opie Allen.

J. Harper Heatherington, manager of the Washington Floral Co., is spending his vacation with his family at Wildwood, N. J.

Anthony Hankie is now connected with the Washington Floral Co. in the capacity of designer.

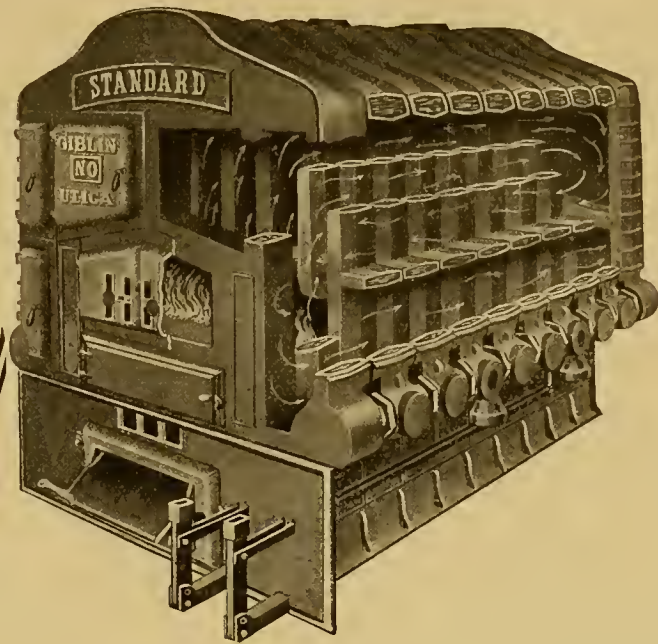

Miss Shea, bookkeeper for the S. S. Pennock Co., is enjoying a vacation of a few weeks.

STOCK SUFFERS FROM HEAT AND RAIN.

Trade has suffered greatly during the first week in July by the extremely warm temperatures and the excessive downpour of rain, 2½ inches of rain falling July 6. Both the outdoor and greenhouse-grown flowers have suffered from these weather conditions. Carnations show the effects of the heat more than any other flower. Easter and calla lilies are not so plentiful and snapdragon are only fair. Roses are good, especially the summer varieties, such as Maryland.

NOTES.

The Flick Floral Co. had several casket blankets last week. They are showing some good summer roses. This firm has one large house devoted to the culture of tomato plants this season. The plants are in flourishing condition and have been bearing for several weeks.

The wedding of Judge W. J. Vesey, prominent florist of this city, to Miss Grace Waters took place at the Trinity Episcopal church July 6. After a lengthy wedding trip, which will include Atlantic City, New York and the Cumberland mountains.

Arthur Shurtliff, landscape architect, of Boston, Mass., is in this city planning the new real estate addition, "Brookside," which will be an exclusive residence section.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. had an attractive combination of delphiniums and Ophelia roses in their window. There are several large weddings booked for next week.

Edgar Wenninghoff has some fine Japanese lilies which he uses a great deal in funeral work. Business has been about normal here.

Some handsome gloxinia plants were noted in the store of the Doswell Floral Co. Funeral work has been plentiful at this establishment.

Henry Freese, of the New Haven Floral Co., and wife, New Haven, Ind., have gone to Detroit, Mich., to spend several weeks.

The greenhouse force at F. J. Knecht's are busy transplanting chrysanthemum plants. H. K.

Port Chester, N. Y.

Paul J. Burgevin has a range of 40,000 square feet, on North Regent street, and grows a variety of stock, having a good local trade. He has been located here for many years.

Leonhard & Son have a considerable glass area and a good cut flower and seed store. They too, have been a long time in the business.

J. Smith has been located here for several years, has glass and a good store.

CLOSE OF BEST SEASON IN YEARS.

The unusually late spring has come and gone and consequently local florists have experienced an extended, spasmodic season that has left one guessing as to whether it has been good or bad. Taken as a whole, however, trade conditions during the period since the holidays have been the best in six or eight years, but now comes the dull season and judging from conditions during the past two weeks we are in for "slim pickins." However we are thankful that the price of "spuds" is on the down shoot and we can stick around and keep the Star of Hope in sight. At the present time our most beautiful perennials are in full bloom and thousands of roses throughout the city are causing strangers to exclaim in amazement. Carnations planted outside seem unusually slow in growth and asters are harder to transplant than ever before. Never such a loss in the open ground transplanting process. Very few sweet peas are being received from the outside and it is perhaps better so as the demand is very limited. Cut flowers have been unusually plentiful—too many in fact. Bedding plants have not been cleaned up as expected and boxes and baskets have not sold any too well. The sales of spring rose plants and perennials have also fallen behind.

NOTES.

H. Hinze has everything in unusually good shape, but his range is showing too many fine plants on the benches, despite an unusually good season's business.

The wholesale shipping trade at the Hayden-Watson Co. continues very good. They still have plenty of choice stock to ship.

Practically all of the growers have devoted considerable space to early tomatoes and are getting fine yields of fruit.

The Tacoma Floral Co. has practically cleaned up on everything grown to sell and reports excellent sales.

The Northwestern Floral Co. reports an erratic season, with trade varying from excellent to poor.

The California Florists report some good and some bad days, but withal a good season.

A. C. Strom has a good store at 26 Main street. We also visited his range at Southington, or Plantsville, as it is just on the line between the two towns. He bought it about 16 months ago and has made great improvements in that time, noteworthy being landscape and bedding on his grounds, which is a good advertisement for a commercial florist, but which many of them neglect. He has a great stock of asters and chrysanthemums coming on and expects to have asters on the market by the last of this month.

TRADE GOOD CONSIDERING WEATHER.

Business during the past week has held up well considering the extremely hot weather, as well as outside stock blooming in private yards. Roses are a little scarce and the quality is not up to standard, many of them being open on arrival. Colorado carnations are plentiful and the quality is extra fine. Lilies at times are a glut. Outside stock is coming in fast and prices are very low. Gladioli are showing much improvement in longer stems and heavier in flowers.

NOTES.

T. J. Noll & Co. report very good business. They are handling a good grade of roses, lilies, gladioli and all kinds of outside stock. Some of the fall supplies are being received.

Misses Mary and Elizabeth Hayden left July 8 to visit their mother at Elroy, Wis. On their return trip they will spend a few days in Chicago.

H. Kusik & Co. are handling a large line of roses in addition to other good stock. Some early asters are seen here. Business is reported good.

Among others who are enjoying vacations are Messrs. Carter, of Wm. L. Rock Flower Co., and Atkins, of the Alpha Floral Co.

A. F. Barbe has a new house, 36x100, devoted to roses. He will plant carnations in about a week. E. J. B.

Rochester, N. Y.

MARKET IS OVERSTOCKED.

Midsummer has brought a wealth of cut flowers to this market and since the busy season is over there is considerable oversupply. Roses of all kinds are very plentiful and the quality is rapidly deteriorating. American Beauties are plentiful and the quality is good, considering the season. Peonies are still arriving but the quality is very poor. Carnations are also a drug on the market. Summer flowers are much called for. Sweet peas are short stemmed and poor and the price has dropped considerably. Lily of the valley is scarce and the supply cannot be depended upon. There are scarcely any flowering plants to be had.

NOTES.

E. C. Kaelber has a very fascinating display of summer flowers, consisting of blue larkspurs and delphiniums, arranged in baskets.

Myers & Company, well-known florists of Bluffton, Ind., write as follows:
 "Regarding the line of Fertilizer you offer The Greenhouse Trade, will say we have used it the past season with very gratifying results. My only regret is that we did not begin using sooner. We used it on the carnations, greens, etc., as per your instructions and have never cut as many or as nice stuff as this season. We also used it on the roses and the crops of Ophelia beat anything around here. Our soil is a very heavy clay and your line of Fertilizer just fills the bill exactly when used with plenty of manure in the soil.
 Yours Respectfully,
