CARNATIONS.

Belle Washburn, the new red carnation with an unbeatable record behind it. Winner two years in succession of the American Carnation Society Silver Medals, 1915 and 1916. Also winner of the S. A. F. Silver Medal, 1916, besides numerous first prizes and certificates at various shows in different parts of the country. This is purely a commercial carnation—very bright, clear red, large flower, non-splitable calyx, long stem and just as free blooming as Enchantress, of which it is a seedling. Prices of rooted cuttings ready for immediate delivery, 25 or less at the rate of $8.00 per 100; 50 and less than 100 at $6.00 per 100. Orders of 100, and less than 250, $5.00 per 100, and orders of 250 or more at the rate of $45.00 per 1,000. All cuttings guaranteed strictly first class. Bassett & Washburn, 178 N. Wabash Ave., Chicago.

THAT COMPOST PILE

It's time for you to give this most important question prompt attention.

Do you know that one ton of Magic Composting Fertilizer, guaranteed to analyze 2.75 to 3 per cent Ammonia, 3 per cent Phosphoric Acid and 1 per cent Potash, will go as far as five tons of ordinary Manure?

HERE ARE THE REASONS:

Magic Composting Fertilizer	Original Stable Manure
Plant Food..... 7 per cent.....	*1½ per cent
Humus..... 85 "	23½ "
Undecomposed Matter.. 5 "	15 "
Moisture..... 3 "	60 "

*In dry state 2 to 3.5 per cent.

Note carefully: If you use Magic Composting Fertilizer, you will save four-fifths of the expense involved in the hauling and hauling of Stable Manure.

SAVES MONEY, LABOR, TIME.

Many of the large, as well as the small, successful Growers of Flowers and Vegetables, have been using Magic Composting Fertilizer instead of Stable Manure for years, and pronounce it a big saver of time, labor and money—three all important factors to all Growers.

Write for sample and prices. Special quotations on carload lots, bulk shipment.

Be sure and send for our famous fertilizer charts.

ILLINOIS STATE FLORISTS' ASSOCIATION.

Twelfth Annual Meeting and Exhibition, Champaign, March 6-7, 1917.

Heavy Demand For Education.

The twelfth annual meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association was held in Floricultural Hall, University of Illinois, Champaign, March 6, President C. W. Johnson in the chair. Prof. J. C. Blair, of the Horticultural Department, welcomed the visitors and told of the great development in the demand for education in all horticultural lines, this being especially marked in landscape gardening and floriculture. Many students desiring instruction in floriculture have had to be turned away because of lack of accommodation and help in this work. In this great wealthy state it would seem to be only necessary to mention the needs of the university in these important departments to have them promptly supplied by the legislators or others with whom this great duty to the people rests.

President Johnson then delivered his address and this was followed by the reports of Secretary J. F. Ammann and Treasurer F. L. Washburn, F. W. Muncie on fertilizer work and E. M. R. Lamkey on pathological investigations. Prof. H. B. Dornier, of the department of floriculture, in his description of the instructional work at the university gave an excellent account of the graduates of his department, showing that with one exception, all were holding highly satisfactory positions in commercial lines and emphasized Prof. Blair's reference to the inadequacy of the facilities at their command.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: I. L. Pillsbury, Galesburg, president; W. J. Keimel, Elmhurst, vice-president; J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, secretary; F. L. Washburn, Bloomington, treasurer. Galesburg was suggested for the next fall exhibition of the association and the proposed amendment to the by-laws was lost. Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago and New York, exhibited some fine blooms of its new cannas, Yellow King Humbert and Firebird.

The visitors from outside points included: Albert F. Amling, Maywood; Ernst C. Amling, Maywood; J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville; M. Barker, Chicago; F. E. Bonham, Macomb; Peter Britz, Danville; J. B. Deamud, New York; Albert T. Hey, Maywood; Geo. W. Jacobs, Canton; Harry Johnson, Bloomington; W. J. Keimel, Elmhurst; C. W. Johnson, Chicago; Matt Mann, Chicago; I. L. Pillsbury, Galesburg; H. E. Smith, Danville, and F. L. Washburn, Bloomington.

President Johnson's Address.

We are now assembled for our twelfth annual meeting. A year ago we had a very successful meeting at Moline in the extreme western part of the state, and now we meet again here at Urbana under the auspices of the department of horticulture of the University of Illinois. I am sure every member joins me in expressing our appreciation of the privilege we have in meeting here at this institution. Here at Urbana we come in touch with the work that is being undertaken by the University of Illinois to solve some of the problems which we as individuals have to contend with in our work connected with the cultivation of plants and flowers. Not only this, but the work being carried out along the lines of landscape gardening affords much of interest to the landscape gardener as well as to the retail florist, whose business is partly of this order.

Every florist of this state, whether he is a grower or a retailer, should feel it his duty to take a great deal of interest in what is being done here for floriculture, and the Illinois State Florists' Association as a body should never be neglectful in giving its aid and support to those in charge of the work. The young men who are devoting four years of their life to be specially trained in the work we represent, are going to be a power, not only in the business, but also in the societies allied thereto.

As your president it gives me pleasure to congratulate you on your efforts of the past year. It has been a fruitful one. At Bloomington last November our first fall flower show was held—a flower show that was remarkable in many ways. First and foremost, it was well supported by the members not only by their presence but by contributing largely of exhibits. Every part of the state was well represented; not only the members with large establishments to make their selection from, but those not so well equipped did their part by either sending or bringing along an exhibit. The exhibits were of the highest order, receiving much commendation by the visiting public, and we are proud to say that every exhibit was contributed for the good of the cause without any chance of remuneration, it being a free-will show in every respect.

I feel it my duty to call the attention of the members of the association to the good work done by our fellow members, the Washburn brothers, of Bloomington, in their efforts to make the show the success it was, and to them we owe a vote of thanks. The Commercial Club of Bloomington was also untiring in its efforts to make our visit both pleasant and profitable, and to them we owe our thanks.

The purpose of the meeting at this time is the nomination and election of officers, to hear reports of the work of the different departments by the professors in charge and to transact such other business as may come before the association. I ask your active participation in all the details of the meeting, which will not only help the association, but be of mutual benefit to every member.

I would suggest for your consideration and discussion the various diseases and insects which attack plants. The Carnation Yellows is still an unsolved problem, though good work is being done to get at the bottom of the trouble. Every year some fresh disease or insect seems to come to the front. At the last meeting of the Chrysanthemum Society of America held in Philadelphia last November a member spoke of the trouble growers of his vicinity were having with a form of clondrosporium or fungoid growth which, commencing at the bottom of the chrysanthemum plant, quickly rises upward, covering the under surface of the leaves with a varnish-like coating that closes up the pores and stops all growth. Another member spoke of the gall fly, which attacked his plants very seriously. Experiences of the members with these or any other difficulties should be brought before the meeting and freely discussed for the benefit of all.

To the officers and members, I extend my thanks and appreciation for their support during my two terms as your president, and trust the same will be extended to my successor. Our association has done a lot of good for the florists of Illinois, but each year brings its new responsibilities, needing the support and co-operation of every one interested in our business.

In these troublesome times it is indeed a pleasure to again meet and shake hands with our fellow craftsmen—friends who have worked together the best part of our lives for the good of our common cause. With this I close.

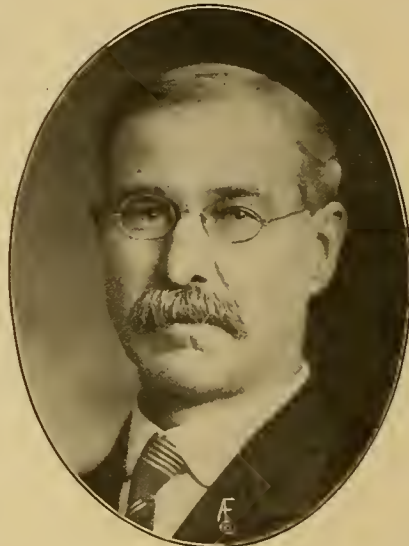

Secretary Ammann's Report.

The one great event in the history of the association was the fall flower show held at Bloomington, Ill., in November. This was indeed one great success. There were 40 exhibitors, and all donated the flowers, as the show was non-competitive, and all but one or two prepaid the express on flowers sent to the show. This truly shows a spirit of good fellowship, and yet I doubt if any better advertising medium for flowers could be had than such a show. Six certificates of merit were awarded. The attendance was unusually large. Over 100 members attended the banquet. We hope now that the fall show and good fellowship meetings will come to be an annual affair.

The association is now the proud owner of 200 vases, the executive committee having purchased them from the A. L. Randall Co. at a very liberal reduction from the regular price.

Five life memberships have been added to our list, making our present life membership 58, which, together with an annual membership of 239, and an honorary membership of four, makes the total membership 301. The receipts for the year were $127; disbursements, $157.38.

Rose and Carnation Production.

Report of Prof. F. W. Muncie, Associate in Floricultural Chemistry, Illinois Agricultural Experiment Station, Urbana, to the Illinois State Florists' Association, in annual session, March 6.

Report of Prof. F. W. Muncie, Associate in Floricultural Chemistry, Illinois Agricultural Experiment Station, Urbana, to the Illinois State Florists' Association, in annual session, March 6.

A bulletin from the Illinois agricultural experiment station which has just come from the press on "The Use of Commercial Fertilizers for Roses," embodies the information contained in my report of March 7, 1917, with practical suggestions to florists. This report contains further experiments along the same line and uncovers a new line of promise in the study of variability of production by roses and carnations.

Is Acid Phosphate Superior to Bone Meal?—In the bulletin above and in a number of papers which I have read before this association and one before the American Carnation Society, I have advocated the use of acid phosphate as a thoroughly safe and effective form of fertilizer for supplying phosphorus to rose and carnation plants. In no previous paper have I been able to recommend acid phosphate as superior to bone meal, although I have been rather widely quoted to that effect and a number of growers are trying out acid phosphate in comparison with bone meal. In order to test out this point, two sets, 144 rose plants of each of the varieties Richmond and Killarney, are being grown during the present season, one set being fertilized with acid phosphate at the rate of 80 pounds per 100 cubic feet of soil, the other with an equal money value of bone meal, calculated to be 42.8 pounds per 100 cubic feet on the basis of acid phosphate and bone meal costing $15 and $28 per ton, respectively. Each of the fertilizers costs more today, but the ratio of cost of one to the other is about the same. The plants are two-year-old stock. I will let the results speak for themselves.

The advantage in favor of acid phosphate is about 2½ flowers per plant, which I consider a rather remarkable endorsement of acid phosphate, since the figures represent the production only from September 15 to December 18, 1916.

The Illinois agricultural experiment station, if these figures are verified by the results of the remainder of the year, will be able to make a second recommendation of practical importance to the rose grower, viz., that with an equal investment for fertilizer, acid phosphate will yield much the larger returns.

Will Phosphatic Fertilizer Increase the Carnation Crop?—In a discussion about a year ago before the American Carnation Society, I stated that no extensive experiments had ever been published showing that phosphatic fertilizer would increase the crop of carnations, but I believed on general principles that it might well do so. I am able to give you the results of experiments with White Enchantress and Champion, the figures being for flowers picked from September 15 to December 18, 1916. (acid phosphate used at rate of 80 pounds per 100 cubic feet of soil).

SOME PROMINENT MEN IDENTIFIED WITH THE ILLINOIS STATE FLORISTS' ASS'N CONVENTION AT CHAMPAIGN, MARCH 6-7.

The increase with acid phosphate fertilization is around one flower per two plants, which appears more significant when stated as an increase of 500 flowers per each 1000 plants in the bench. If these results are borne out by the rest of the experiment, I will consider the point raised as settled in favor of fertilization with acid phosphate, although apparently carnations are not the heavy feeders roses are, nor receive such marked benefit by fertilization.

Variability in Production of Roses and Carnations.—In studying the production of some 1,700 rose and 1,400 carnation plants during the present year, some data of great interest and fundamental importance to florists have resulted. I will include enough of them here for sake of illustration and comment on their significance. The figures below are for the production of flowers by Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty, Killarney and White Killarney plants from September 15 to December 18, 1916, each plant being considered separately and arranged in the table according to the number of flowers produced as indicated in the first column at the left.

After discarding that portion of the column in each case which contains less than ten plants, there remains a portion near the center where the production varies as much as one hundred per cent. Thus with Ophelia, 13 plants produced 16 flowers, while 11 plants produced only eight flowers. If it were possible to raise the average production from the level of eight to that of sixteen, an increase in production of one hundred per cent would result, and that without further investment for greenhouses or labor. Since an increase of twenty per cent by the use of a fertilizer is considered large, the importance of the question relative to those relating to the use of fertilizers is apparent.

Possible causes of this variability are (1) relative location on the bench with respect to illumination, drying out, or temperature, (2) imperfections or poor quality of manetti stock, although some results obtained previously on own-root stock showed me that this cannot be the sole cause, (3) variable vigor and productiveness of plants due to conditions of growth previous to their being set in the bench, and (4) variability of vigor and productiveness in the plants from which the scions of these plants were taken. This seems to me to be the fundamental question; whether plants obtained by the growth of scions from high-producing plants will themselves be high-producers in comparison to those plants whose "parents" (if I may thus loosely term them) were low producers; and so fundamental and practical a question is it that you may expect results to be reported at some future meeting on this subject. Carnations show a similar variability and what I have said above for roses applies to them, also, with the exception of course of the possible influence of manetti roots.

Rose Growing for Cut Blooms.

Paper by Frank J. Knecht, Fort Wayne, Ind., read at a meeting of the Fort Wayne Florists' Club, February 22, 1917.

In undertaking to address you upon the subject, "Rose Growing," it is my wish to confine the subject strictly to growing roses on their own roots for cut blooms. I can only offer you the results of my own practice and observations and shall be as brief as possible. The subject, one of considerable importance to the trade, is surrounded by many different conditions—soils, fertilizer and treatment. This would seem to account for the somewhat divided opinions held by some growers. I can give no more information on the subject than most of you and would have preferred being a listener, rather than a speaker, but I hope to suggest to your minds, points of interest that, through discussion, may be of value to us all. To avoid confusion, and to make my essay clear, I propose to treat of roses on their own roots.

the point to the large grower. My roses produce just as many flowers to the plant on their own roots as the grafts, and I believe they are better; the important thing is to have good stock to plant. We place our cuttings in the sand about January 1 and keep right on through February.

As soon as they are rooted, we pot them in 2½-inch pots, shade them a few days and then expose to full sun. When ready, shift them. The next work is to get your bench in good order for the young stock. Give the bench a good lime wash. Have the bottom of bench about ¾ inch between boards for drainage. Place on this bottom some good manure, or green sod will answer well; then fill your bench with good sod soil. I think sod soil is better, but it should be of a heavy nature, not too stiff, or it will not drain well in the dark days of winter. If your soil is in good condition, press it down before planting the stock.

Only water around the plants when they are newly planted, until they show signs of growing, then I water the whole bed. After they are growing well I water heavily. Spray them well on all bright days. As soon as the buds appear I pinch them until the plants are built up to strong plants, but I do not allow all the buds to mature. Pinching must be practiced right along to give you stronger stock and a more uniform cut. In the cutting of the flowers I aim to leave two to three eyes.

The temperature I carry for the most varieties I grow is 56 to 60 degrees, Russell, of course, excepted, GERANIUM BARNEY.

At T. J. Kirchner's, Cleveland, O.

First. Why do we want to graft a rose that will do well on its own roots? I, myself, believe that the roses that are grown today for cut blooms do better on their own roots than on grafts. I have tried them both, but it seems that there has been a sort of a craze on the subject of grafts for some time, and a graft it is for the large grower, who gets double the price for stock he sells to the small grower. This is which requires a high temperature for any results in winter, and I question whether there is any profit in growing Russell unless you have from 5,000 to 10,000 plants. I have grown some very fine Russells with 3½ to 4 foot stems right through the holiday season, but they were pinched with that end in view. We also have a bench of grafted Russell, but they have not done as well as own root stock.

Ophelia is a beautiful rose, produces good; so is Mrs. Shawyer. We have cut some very fine blooms of both. Hoosier Beauty is also a good one, but leave it to the Killarney to pay the bills and build more new houses than any of the other varieties. This has been my experience and I now leave the subject open for further discussion.

WITH THE GROWERS

T. J. Kirchner, Cleveland, O.

T. J. Kirchner, at Sixty-seventh street and Quincy avenue, Cleveland, O., opposite the Woodland Cemetery, and with greenhouses in South Euclid, has some 30,000 square feet, erected by the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., of Chicago, large quantities of bedding plants being grown, a specialty being made of geraniums in four-inch pots for the cemetery trade, their annual sale of this size being 75,000. The accompanying illustrations show that they are wonderfully well grown.

Funeral work is a specialty with Mr. Kirchner, anywhere from 35 to 50 pieces going out every day, and in very busy times he has sent as many as 100. From 15 to 20 door wreaths go up every day. This is a large, bronze magnolia wreath with a generous ribbon bow of a color in keeping with the age of the deceased. This wreath appears to be the universal door crepe in the west.

Nearly all funeral sprays in this section are made curved in form. Commencing at the front with one flower, roses and all kinds of flowers in sprays are made up in the same form. Mr. Kirchner had a number of these sprays made up to go out at the time of our visit. There is no frame, just a carving, made as they are arranged, nearly all being wrapped with wire bobbins, and heavily backed with leucothoe or ferns. Great quantities of all kinds of designs were seen mossed up, the night man being kept busy with this work. Baskets of flowers for funerals are also largely used here. They are of the simplest kind with feet and high handles, which when loosely filled and tied with a chiffon bow are very showy, more quickly arranged, and more profitable. Mr. Kirchner found, than designs. Three delivery cars and two Ford touring cars for calling on customers and putting up the door crepe wreaths, show the magnitude of the business. Mr. Kirchner, who is always on the job, is one of the active, compelling kind, with a personality that inspires confidence and convinces the visitor that he is in the right place and the order is at once given.

A very large business is done at Christmas—the wreaths for the graves—and at Easter with plants for the decoration of the same. Hundreds of beds and vases in lots are planted with foliage and flowering plants for summer.

At Springfield, O.

Schmidt & Botley Co., Inc., an important factor in the trade here, have 60,000 feet of glass; also a large nursery in addition, in which is grown shrubbery, strawberry plants and herbaceous stock for their catalogue trade. As do most other growers here, they specialize in roses, and have a splendid stock of the little summer babies in one and one-half and two-inch pots, that are grown here for the catalogue trade. House after house of this stock in splendid condition is shifted in February from one and one-half-inch pots to two and two and one-half-inch pots. A block of Baby Doll, several thousand in extent, and several others, all grown from 250 plants of last spring's planting, show how rapidly stock is increased by these methods, and incidentally how quickly these catalogue men get onto new things. Sales of roses here now amount to over 250,000 a year.

GERANIUM BEAUTY OF POITEVINE.

At T. J. Kirchner's, Cleveland, O.

Black spot affects young stock as much as the stronger forcing plants. Getting them too wet, with dull cloudy weather, is almost sure to bring it. All kinds of washes have been tried without effect, while two or three days of bright sunshine works wonders and is the only cure.

Immense stocks of all kinds of bedding plants are grown; whole houses of stock plants from which cuttings are being taken provide a hundred thousand or more of this or that, according to the demand. Rex and other ornamental and flowering begonias are largely grown. Over 25,000 of the Rex type were sold last season. Cannas and dahlias are specialties, and so one might go on. A large storage shed, a commodious structure, is filled with shrubbery; hardy phloxes, a block of 75,000 herbaceous stock, strawberry plants, etc., all at hand for early southern orders, which begin coming strong in February.

SPRINGFIELD FLORAL CO.

The Springfield Floral Co. is a fern nursery, growing mostly Roosevelt and Boston, with a few Teddy Jr., and Whitmani. Most of the stock is grown planted out on tables. The mother plants are well mulched with manure, in which the runners quickly take hold. Asparagus, also a specialty, is grown on tables and lifted, being as satisfactory, and indeed making a quicker growth than when grown in pots without this bother and expense. Over 100,000 were handled last year. Much of the stock is sold through ten-cent and department stores, who prefer the stock wrapped to that in pots. Soil is first removed, the roots packed with damp sphagnum, then wrapped in oil or thick waxed paper, then with white, and bound with a gummed paper tape. This is quickly done when one becomes expert and makes a neat-looking package that will stand upright. The southern trade is already asking for this stock, and when the season is on, they can hardly get it out fast enough. Prices obtained are very satisfactory. The above plan might be adopted to dispose of surplus stocks by many of the trade convenient to or within shipping distance of large cities. Over 300,000 ferns are annually sold from this 50,000 feet of glass, which W. M. Campbell, the manager, says is hardly enough to supply their increasing demand.

GEORGE H. MELLEN CO.

The George H. Mellen Co. has a very orderly place of 110,000 square feet of glass. Their output is over one million plants annually. This is a retail catalogue trade, although any surplus is generally sold to the trade. Roses are a feature—about 450,000 are required to fill their orders. House after house was devoted to dormant two-inch stock, looking in very good shape. Chrysanthemums are also leaders, 250,000 being grown. Coleus is another quantity stock, rooted cuttings selling first to the trade in February and March. A large house was filled with stock plants. Moonvines are seen in quantity, all grown from cuttings, which give better satisfaction than seedlings. Scarlet sage is also grown the same way and for the same reason. A bed of stock rubbers or Ficus elastica is covered with a step stage, in winter, as they are then dormant, and this allows a double use of the space. A house was given to begonias for stock. The propagating house was perfect in heat regulation for the various stocks to be grown. Two 70-horse power boilers with the vacuum system furnish an abundance of heat. Clifford Raden is the very efficient foreman of this large establishment. The southern trade is now on and blocks of stock were seen selected to go out.

Mealy bug has regular visiting periods here as elsewhere, being quite partial to coleus. A touch of wood alcohol with a small camel's hair brush is instantly fatal. Let us hope it will be equally as effective to scale.

THE LEEDLE ROSARY.

The Leedle Rosary, the only establishment here which forces roses for cut flowers, has 75,000 feet of glass planted to Ophelia, the Killarneys, Hoosier Beauty and Rhea Reid. All the varieties look very well, particularly Ophelia. Rhea Reid seems perfectly at home here and pays as well, if not better, than any other sort. A low cement bed, having straight sides with an inside shoulder six inches above the ground, on which a board bottom is laid, looks ideal, but like many other perfect things, is a wee-bit too expensive for practical use. Business has been very good this season, the demand exceeding the supply. Chas. L. Leedle is president of the company.

Boston Notes.

G. A. Severy & Co., florists and decorators, removed last autumn to more commodious quarters at 355 Boylston street. They, in addition to their florist business, are the selling agents for the Massachusetts General Hospital cement goods. The authorities of that hospital employ physically handicapped men, thus enabling them to be partly self-supporting while under treatment or until they are able to resume their former occupations. At Severy & Co.'s we noticed an interesting exhibit of garden furniture, such as sundials, seats, bird baths, jardinieres, and bird houses; also, window boxes, flower pots and "Peter Rabbits." Buying such goods is a higher form of benevolence than giving money to street beggars, most of whom are frauds.

Henry R. Comley, 6 Park street, who is handling exclusively a new carnation for Littlefield & Wyman of North Abington, Mass., is receiving fine stock of it. It was formerly Seedling No. 48, but has recently been named Eastern Beauty. It is entitled to be called a novelty, and also a valuable acquisition to the carnation family. The center of the flower is a bright pink, shading to white on the edges. Every flower is on a fine stem and we are informed that they are excellent keepers.

Boston having a clear title to Bunker Hill monument, the Old South church, the "sacred codfish" and other places and things of historic interest, is dutifully patriotic. Therefore, when we visited there on Washington's birthday, we found a general suspension of business, and many people wending their way toward the State House to attend the reception by Governor and Mrs. McCall, a most worthy couple, it should be remarked.

A. G. Pembroke, who formerly sold stock for his brother, A. A. Pembroke, the carnation grower of North Beverly, now sells for the Rawson Conservatories, of Arlington, in the rooms of the Boston Flower Exchange Market, Winthrop square and Otis street. The Rawson Conservatories were formerly vegetable houses, but in recent years have been devoted to carnations and general stock.

We found our old and esteemed friend, W. Rosenthal of the Boston Cut Flower Co., 14 Bromfield street, happy and busy as usual. The clever Mrs. Rosenthal is active in this business, she and her husband being an admirable team.

Thomas F. Galvin's Park street store is attractive and seemingly prosperous.

Among the staff we noticed a number of familiar faces, faces of men who have been with Galvin for many years, which indicates that he is a good employer.

The irrepressible, unquenchable and enterprising Penn. of 124 Tremont street, is, as usual, showing fine stock and an abundance of it, in cut flowers and plants. There are other good florists, but we know of but one Penn.

The store of the Houghton-Gorney Co. is a very attractive feature of the old Park Street church, at 119 Tremont street. It is under the clever management of Ellis Gorney.

W. H. Elliott is on an extended trip to the Pacific coast. He will visit many points of interest in California and other states and is expected to be absent for two or three months.

The New England Florist Supply Co., 276-278 Devonshire street, has a commodious store, well stocked with a great variety of supplies, and reports good business.

Harry Quint's store in the Hotel Brunswick corner, 520 Boylston street, is an attractive feature of that section, baskets and other supplies for florists, their cut flowers being sold in the Flower Exchange Market.

McAlpine & McDonald, 256 Devonshire street, are handling a fine line of

CLUB MEETING.

At the March meeting of the florists' club, Fred A. Danker called attention to the fact that the April meeting would fall in Easter week and suggested that it be held on March 29, the last Thursday in the month. The motion was seconded and unanimously carried. It was believed that the attendance at the next meeting, if held on the regular date, would be very small as the members would be busy with Easter business. William Newport, chairman of the club's exhibition committee, announced that at the meeting on March 29 there will be an exhibition of Easter stock, to which the growers and retailers are asked to make contributions. An effort will be made to bring out a first-class display. Chairman Newport announced plans for an exhibition to be held at the meeting in June, when it is expected that a special display of coleus and other bedding plants will be held. Four new members were elected: George W. Cohen, of Cohen & Hiller, ribbons, 874 Broadway, New York; Howard Menand, Cemetery avenue; Theodore Gazetas and Gustav Couchell of the Arkay Flower Shop, Albany. One application was received to be voted upon at the next meeting.

Fred A. Danker gave an interesting account of his trip as a delegate to the meeting of the New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs held at Ithaca, February 15. As a result of this meeting it was resolved to further the plan to construct a horticultural building at the state fair grounds, Syracuse, and to seek an appropriation this year to begin the work. A few days after the meeting, President F. R. Pierson, of the federation, Fred A. Danker, and a representative of the vegetable growers from western New York, called upon Lieutenant Governor Edward Schoeneck in regard to the plan, and he spoke in favor of it. They then called upon State Architect Lewis F. Pilcher, who was also well disposed and asked President Pierson for information in regard to the probable size, and details of the building desired. In making their calls upon state officers, the committee found that the way had been paved for them by Charles S. Wilson, state commissioner of agriculture, who is in favor of the plan. The horticultural building will be, it is proposed, one of the largest and most handsome on the state fair grounds and perhaps in the country. President Pierson is anxious to secure an appropriation of about $70,000 with which to begin the work next summer. Other appropriations to complete the building in the summer of 1918 could, it is believed, be obtained from the legislature a year hence. The horticultural building will probably be named Whitman hall, after Governor Charles S. Whitman. It will be used for horticultural and floricultural displays at the state fair.

Mr. Danker reported that the February meeting of the state federation was one of the best in attendance in some time; 35 delegates represented florists' clubs of the state with the exception of Utica, which now has no florists' club. The federation plans to hold a meeting at the flower show in New York this month; one in June at Syracuse during the exhibit of the local rose society, and one next September at Syracuse during the state fair.

THE SUPPLY IS GOOD.

The supply of the stock in the last few days was good. The surplus is increasing and prices are slowly, but surely, declining. It has been a wonderful season, so far as the steadiness of prices is concerned ever since the Christmas holidays. This is the first serious recession in value. The retailers have not complained of the high rates, because the public seemed to understand the situation. There were few special American Beauties shipped to the market last week. For the best $5 was obtainable. This is an average price. There were no Russels to speak of, and the few which reached the market were short. The arrivals of all other varieties are larger and prices of Ophelia, Sunburst, the Killarneys and Richmond are falling—$8 to $10 for the best was the price quoted by the leading wholesalers. Some of the short-stemmed blooms were offered at $20 per 1,000. There was not an excessive supply of high-grade carnations last week. The best easily held at $3 per 100. The lower quality stock sold at $15 to $20 per 1,000. Orchids are very scarce and brought $6 per dozen. The lily of the valley situation is about the same—$6 per 100 for the best—and the retailers are now accustomed to this price. Lilies are scarce and of very poor quality. Callas and rubrums are plentiful, with good demand for the first at 12½ cents; the last at 8 cents. Violets are most abundant and the prices for the surplus are low. Sweet peas are plentiful and the price is still high. Same are of very good quality. Daffodils, tulips, freezias and Paper Whites are in very good supply. The southern daffodils have started to come in, but the quality is very poor. Greens cleaned up well.

NOTES.

A mass meeting of all interested in the floral industry was called by St. Louis Associated Retailers in Mission inn for March 5. Mrs. Ella Grant Wilson of Cleveland was the speaker of the evening.

The spring flower show committee is waiting for the opening day on March 15. Everything seems to be ready and the space for the exhibitors is practically sold out.

Larger offices in the Chemical building have been secured by Charles W. Fullgraf, landscape architect.

TRADE SLACKENS WITH COMING OF LENT.

After a very good fall and winter season, the first slump in business came with the arrival of Lent, when the demand shut off all at once, no one seeming to care for flowers at any price. The street men, however, found a market, one party disposing of 18,000 carnations, Saturday, March 3. Sweet peas are very plentiful and of good quality, but rather short stemmed. Tulips and daffodils go at buyer's prices. Asparagus is very scarce and brings top price.

NOTES.

Miscellaneous Easter stock at the range of James Glass looks well timed. Mr. Glass is at present a hospital patient, but encouraging reports give hopes of his rapid recovery.

W. McKissick, of the Leo Niessen Co., reports a very good trade during the entire season up to a week ago. Flowers are cleaning up much better now.

Matthew Richmond has just finished his crop of asparagus, 3,000 bunches being supplied when the market was bare. He is, unfortunately, laid up with rheumatism.

Manager Perry of the Exchange had satisfactory business until a week ago. There are less flowers and a better demand this week, however.

Erdman & Ulrich have a splendid lot of Easter plants, of which hydrangeas, spiraeas, and lilies are features.

A cut-rate flower shop opened March 3 at 124 North Liberty street. Opening business was encouraging.

Michael Hilpert had a splendid cut of sweet peas. Boston ferns are a specialty here.

W. C. Erdman makes a specialty of primulas. His obeonica are fine. K.

GOOD SUPPLY AND FAIR DEMAND.

Mild sunny weather during the past week has brought in a good supply of flowers of all kinds, and although the advent of Lent has caused a slight diminution in the volume of business, transient trade has been excellent. Carnations are of good quality and are lower in price on account of the abundant supply. Roses are much better than they have been for some time and the red varieties bring good figures. Bulbous stock is plentiful and violets are first class. Sweet peas are much in demand.

CLUB MEETING.

The florists' association held its monthly meeting, February 12, the topic for discussion being "Palm Renting," with a view to raising the price when loaned for weddings and other decorations, the present charges being insufficient to offset losses resulting from exposure in severe weather. Letters were read from the leading florists of Cleveland, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Kansas City, New York and other points showing that prices for this service had been raised in these cities in the past few years. A committee was appointed to take up the matter and prepare a uniform scale.

It was decided to hold a peony show in Convention hall in June and the following committee was appointed to make the necessary arrangements: John Dunbar, chairman; Chas. Vick, E. P. Wilson, Colin T. Ogston, Geo. B. Hart, M. R. Graves and Geo. Charleston.

H. V. Tanner gave an illustrated talk on "Credit Co-Operation," which proved very interesting. At the close of the meeting a pig roast, the generous gift of Geo. B. Hart, was served. He was tendered a vote of thanks by all present.

NOTES.

Charles Felton, of Buffalo, spent February 21 in this city and in the evening spoke at a dinner given by several local florists. He told of the progress already made by the new Buffalo Retail Florists' Association. Local florists are considering the organization of a similar body.

J. B. Keller Sons had a splendid advertisement in the local papers last week under the caption, "For the Lenten Season," suggesting flowers for friends who were in trouble or who needed cheer.

H. E. Wilson recently had a charming Dutch window, beds of tulips and hyacinths being prominent in the display. A Dutch maid in native dress gave a touch of color and added effectiveness.

E. C. Kaelber had a splendid Washington's birthday window, the portrait of "the father of his country" being arranged with cherry trees and American flags.

George T. Boucher has a fine lot of flowering plants on display, including specimen Chorizema cordata, which are attracting much attention.

Chester Ament has purchased the range of the late Fred W. Vick on Ridgeway avenue, and is now occupying the Vick residence.

The Rochester Floral Co. had an attractive spring window recently, yellow birds and daffodils being predominant.

At the H. E. Wilson greenhouses, rambler roses, lilac, azaleas and deutzias are in good condition for Easter.

Visitors: James J. Bates, Oakfield, N. Y.; Herbert Hecht, representing Wertheimer Bros., New York.

E. C. Armbrust, accompanied by Mrs. Armbrust, has returned from Buffalo, where they spent the week-end.

Paul Campers of the Rosary Flower Shop reports a steadily increasing business.

Richard Teute, of Pittsford, is ill with appendicitis. CHESTER.

Oyster Bay Horticultural Society.

The regular meeting of the Oyster Bay Horticultural Society was held in Fireman's hall, Oyster Bay, N. Y., February 28, 1917. The president, William Eccles, called the meeting to order at 7:30. Mr. Eccles was later called away and he appointed Lyman F. Ayer to preside. There were a large number of members present. Also the exhibits were quite numerous. The judges for the evening were Robert Wright, William Ford and John McCulloch. Their decisions were as follows: Joseph Robinson, superintendent to W. R. Coe, first for the society's prize, which called for 50 violets, and Duncan Beaton was awarded first prize for three vases of sweet peas, three varieties, 12 sprays each. Mrs. L. C. Tiffany received special mention for three pots of Beauty of Nice stocks. Frank Kyle, superintendent to C. Tiffany, received special mention for pot of genista; also honorable mention for vase of narcissus, variety, Admiration. John Sorosick, superintendent to John A. Garver, received honorable mention for one vase of carnations. John T. Ingram received honorable mention for two vases of narcissi. Joseph Robinson received honorable mention for vase of stocks and vase of freesias and special mention for vase of wallflowers.

Robeth Wright and James Duthie were selected to attend the annual Davey Tree Expert Company's convention, at Kent, Ohio, March 5 to 10. The amended by-laws were read and adopted and 200 copies were ordered printed. William Ford read a very practical paper on the cultivation of roses under glass, for which he was given a hearty vote of thanks. Exhibits for the society prize at the next meeting will be calceolarias, lilies and three heads of lettuce. Four new active members were elected and one honorary member, and four more applications were received.

George B. Wilson reported that he expected to start shortly for Lake Forest, Ill., to take charge of an estate there, and regretted to leave his friends here and felt that among the pleasant memories of his life in Oyster Bay, would be the associations he had enjoyed in the society. John Sorosick replied in his usual pleasant manner and regretted the loss of Mr. Wilson, who has dwelt long among us, and the fruits of his labor will linger and his genial manner and good fellowship we will miss, but promise that he will make many friends wherever he goes. His ingenious nature and his ability as a gardener will assure his success in his new undertaking. We wish him every success.

HEAVY RAINS SHORTEN SUPPLY.

The past week has been one of continual rain and wind; in fact, it was the heaviest storm of the season. It had the effect of shortening up the supply of flowers in all lines. The demand was steady and all stock cleaned up well, without, however, any advances in prices. The Mardi Gras ball at the beginning of the week called for great quantities of flowers and nearly every florist in town shared in this. The call for orchids was very good and stock sold readily at very good figures. Roses have not been so plentiful as in past weeks. The quality is very fine as a rule and prices received are satisfactory. Carnations are in large supply with prices for good stock still holding at last week's figures. Owing to the large amount of funeral work recently, great quantities of white carnations are being used, and this cleans up the market in fairly good shape. Great quantities of out-door grown narcissi are coming in daily from the district across the bay. The demand is very good, although large quantities are moved at low figures. The violets that are coming in are all of splendid quality. There seems to be no let up in quantity and prices remain about the same. The shipping trade in this flower still continues and has a very beneficial effect on this market. Bulbous stock of every description is daily becoming more plentiful, tulips and Dutch hyacinths being the most plentiful. Freesias are still coming along in large quantities and large lots are absorbed in each day's business. There are plenty of lilies of splendid quality, most of which are bringing good figures. Snapdragons are in limited supply, and what stock reaches the market is quickly disposed of. Plenty of cut cyclamens are used daily. Lily of the valley is a little more plentiful recently, but there is not enough stock to supply the demand. The same is true of gardenias. The demand for ferns and asparagus is very good with not enough to go around. The demand for pot plants is rather limited at present.

NOTES.

The Menlo Park Horticultural Society has decided to hold a spring flower show. At the last meeting it reconsidered its decision not to hold a show, and one will be held at a date to be given out shortly. Owing to the unusually severe winter, many plants, hitherto hardy in this section, were destroyed and it was not thought advisable to hold a spring show. With the opening up of warmer weather, the damage has not proved as bad as at first anticipated. Large portions of the schedule will be devoted to sweet peas. This society has many splendid growers of this popular annual and as there will be no sweet pea show in this city, we may expect to see a splendid one at Menlo Park. From present indications there is going to be a very large increase in the quantity of chrysanthemums to be grown this season. Most of this stock is the product of Japanese growers. Owing to the large quantities shipped east last season, and the prices received for the same, there will be many more grown than formerly. Some of the standard shipping varieties, such as Crocus, will probably be in short supply as many of the growers report their stock plants being killed by the heavy frosts this winter. Since the issuance of their chrysanthemum catalogue, the Lynch Nursery Company, at Menlo Park, reports a heavy demand for chrysanthemum plants. Like some more of the growers, this firm lost many stock plants by frost during the winter. Anticipating such a condition, they had a great number under glass, so that all demands are being taken care of. They are still shipping splendid snapdragon stock daily, chiefly yellow, Nelrose and Keystone.

All the acacia trees, in the different cities and towns along the state highways, are now in full bloom. Nearly every auto party entering this city in the afternoons and evenings are loaded with great quantities of these fragrant flowers. So severe have the depredations of these motorists become, that the different towns are advocating laws to make it a misdemeanor to mutilate these splendid trees.

Even the modest violet has not escaped the movies. This week the "Pathe Weekly" is showing the great violet fields at Colma at the leading picture houses throughout the country. The famous fields are visited by many thousand visitors every week. The daily papers have also been devoting a great deal of space to pictures and "write-ups" of the different violet gardens.

Henry Goertzheim, of the Redwood City Nursery, is erecting a retail store on his property at Redwood City. He has a splendid location on the state highway leading from this city to San Jose and hopes to increase his business very materially. All of Mr. Goertzheim's cut has been disposed of in this market.

The funeral of General Frederick Funston called for an elaborate display of flowers. Most of the designs were large ones and very beautiful. All of the prominent downtown stores were very busy on this work on the last two days of the week. Many telegraphic orders from all parts of the country were filled.

Podesta & Baldocchi report themselves as well pleased with the results of their advertising in the daily papers. They especially emphasize the delivery of flowers by telegraph.

M. H. Ebel, of Sacramento, was a visitor during the week and reports business as being very good during the past month.

GOOD SUPPLY AND BUSINESS FAIR.

There is an adequate supply of stock in the market. The demand is more active than it was at the beginning of Lent, and as a result business is fair. Roses, including American Beauties, are in a good supply. The carnation cut is heavier than it was and is now sufficient for all present requirements. Sweet peas continue plentiful. Easter lilies have become scarce. Tulips, jonquils, daffodils and hyacinths generally find a fair market. Other offerings include lily of the valley, orchids, snapdragons, callas and rubrum lilies. Smilax has become very scarce, while the supply of asparagus plumosus and Sprengerii is still limited.

The regular meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society will be held Monday evening, March 13, at Hotel Gibson.

NOTES.

E. G. Gillett and wife have returned from their visit to Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Ohmer at West Palm Beach, Fla. Mr. Gillett is very enthusiastic about Mr. Ohmer's place there and reports that the latter escaped the recent frosts in that state.

C. E. Critchell has been getting in a large supply of novelty baskets for Easter.

J. A. Peterson and wife have been spending the past month in Florida.

L. H. Kyrk has been initiated into the Rotary Club of this city.

TRADE SHOWS IMPROVEMENT.

With the scarcity of cut flowers lifted to some extent, and a more liberal supply of bulbous stock, trade can be said to be fair. Roses and carnations remain scarce, however, the continued cold weather since the first of the year making it impossible to keep the temperature up to the required point. On top of this we are now threatened with a coal famine. Soft coal is now quoted at $10 per ton; hard $15, but no delivery is assured.

NOTES.

There is a movement on foot to approach the provincial government for assistance to hold a horticultural exhibition in this city. The plan is supported by the Montreal Horticultural Society, the Montreal Gardeners and Florists' Club, the vegetable growers' and bee keepers' associations, the pomological society and Macdonald college.

Tom McHugh read a paper on poinsettias at the recent meeting of the florists' club and J. Luck is on the programme for an address on flowering shrubs at the next meeting.

Mr. Vander Bekken, representing Carters Tested Seeds, Boston, Mass., and London, Eng., has been elected a member of the Montreal Gardeners and Florists' Club.

The Dominion Floral Co. lost a number of plants during the recent cold weather when the landlord failed to keep the premises properly heated, it is alleged.

Wm. Cotter of the Montreal Floral Exchange has been called to the sick bed of his father who has suffered a paralytic stroke.

William C. Hall has been elected councillor of the town of Montreal, West.

RAFFIA.—French exporters of raffia report all stock requisitioned by the government and state they can not export now.

PIPE.—Announcement comes from Pittsburgh that all makers of steel and iron pipe have advanced prices from $4 to $6 a ton.

LOSSES from freezing this winter by wholesale plantmen and nurserymen have been heavy and shipments week of March 5 with a temperature of only five degrees above zero have added to the long list. The ledger balance July first will surely show the need of higher prices on many such stocks, or some remedy for or preventive against such losses another season. Should not warm car insurance service be installed on trunk lines?

Personal.

Michael Bloy, formerly of Detroit, Mich., who is spending a well earned vacation in California, writes saying he is greatly enjoying the beautiful climate and sunshine of that state.

Chicago Fall Show.

The North Shore Horticultural Society, New Trier Horticultural Society and the Lake Geneva Gardeners' & Foremen's Association have plans under way for a fall exhibition to be held at the Art Institute, Chicago, next November.

Bailey's Cyclopaedia of Horticulture.

We understand that the sixth and final volume of Prof. L. H. Bailey's Standard Cyclopaedia of Horticulture will be ready about March 28, completing one of the greatest undertakings in American horticulture. We can supply this work complete, six volumes, at $6 per volume.

Prof. Bailey is making a trip to China for recreation and investigation.

Rainbow Freesias.

Our editorial desk was brightened and the office perfumed a few days ago with a fine assortment of Rainbow freesias received from Alois Frey, of Crown Point, Ind. The flowers were of exquisite coloring, sprays were of yellow and bright orange shading to old gold, soft lilac tones with blotches of blue, others shading from light to deep pink. A very beautiful strain of large flowers borne on long, stiff stems. The flowers have kept remarkably well.

Society of American Florists.

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETING.

The executive board of the Society of American Florists will meet at the Hotel Biltmore, New York, March 16-17, the opening session at 9:00 a. m. of the first day. Any committee or member of the society desiring to present business for the action of the board should communicate with the secretary, John Young, 53 West Twenty-eighth street, New York, immediately.

The National Flower Show Committee will meet at the same place March 17.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Ohio Boiler Law Affects Toledo Growers.

Growers of greenhouse stock in the vicinity of Toledo, O., are praying for relief from the Boiler Operators' Law which is being enforced by the state officials. In a recent communication, George Bayer, well-known grower of cut flowers and vegetables of Toledo, reports notwithstanding the fact that resolutions were passed to amend the law and make boilers in greenhouses exempt, and two state representatives had agreed to introduce the amendment, they together with three other representatives refused to introduce same, claiming it to be class legislation. The conditions at present are such that it will be impossible to secure any relief until the next session of the legislature.

Under the law a local grower and one of his firemen have been arrested. As to conditions of safety at the plant in question, which stands isolated, every safety device is installed and every precaution taken to safeguard life and property. The boilers are insured and are operated in a manner satisfactory to the insurance company. There is no question as to the ability or reliability of the fireman who was arrested, to operate this range, the action being taken because he lacked a license, which he could not obtain due to some technicality, notwithstanding the fact that he knows the location and use of every valve. Many legislators received requests from growers to present this amendment and support it and had it been acted upon good would have resulted. Growers are now working to get together to fight the cases of arrests similar to those mentioned above and the prospects for such co-operation seem good.

Association of Kew Gardeners in America.

Plans are being made for the second annual banquet and reunion of the Association of Kew Gardeners in America, to be held at "Shanley's," 117 West 42nd street, New York, March 16, the second day of the spring flower show in that city. The tickets are $2 per plate and all Kew men are urged to attend, accompanied by their ladies or a friend interested in horticulture. Further particulars may be had by addressing Secretary S. R. Candler, P. O. Box 278, Southampton, N. Y.

Express Service Improvement.

American Florist Co.,
Chicago, Ill.

For almost two years I worked a lone hand on bettering shipping conditions connected with the different express companies. It was slow work and taxed my patience, but I managed. About six months ago I brought this up at a meeting of our retail florist association, and received from our association and also from the Greek-American Florists' Association, a letter, giving me authority to close any agreement which might further our interest, the interest of retail florists. We will have a meeting in New York, Friday or Saturday, March 16 or 17. The presidents of the different express companies are willing to do anything possible to protect our shippings, to further our business, and I will have to give them a few days' notice for what day they should arrange, so that they can give us their time. Any florist club or retail florist association who desires to send a delegate to this meeting, should write me immediately. I will very gladly submit to the different delegates what I have done in this matter heretofore. We can form a committee, elect a chairman in advance of this committee, and instead of representing the few hundred florists of New York, we can derive benefits for all the florists in the United States.

"Hamburg Late White" Chrysanthemum

CERTIFICATE OF MERIT awarded by Chrysanthemum Society of America.

PICTURE was taken Dec. 10, 1916, and will give a good idea of the symmetrical form of flowers of "Hamburg Late White." These flowers were cut from plants grown from single stems and planted six inches each way.

"HAMBURG LATE WHITE" is pure white under all weather conditions, and is a sport of Maud Dean white, but has no trace of pink, as the original.

The average grower of chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle, and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. "Hamburg Late White" has been grown for the last four years, and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but for late white, one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November, by taking an early bud, but by selecting later buds, most of the flowers are cut during December, and would advise to select a late bud, as the later buds come somewhat fuller, and by selecting late buds, flowers can be had as late as the middle of January.

Keeping qualities are excellent, and where a light, graceful white flower is wanted, "Hamburg Late White" cannot be surpassed.

"Hamburg Late White" will be disseminated in the Spring of 1917. Plants will be ready April 1st, 1917, and all orders will be filled in rotation.

BIG OVERSUPPLY AND PRICES LOW.

We now have the first glut this market has seen for several years. All kinds of stock is piling up, but most of it is moved at some price. Most people have plenty of money to spend and Pittsburgh is always a good flower town, so there is no reason why all the flowers received in this market can not be disposed of. Roses are very plentiful, also daffodils and tulips. Carnations are coming in quantity, but stiff in price. Better than most markets at present. Some very good sweet peas are being received, which find ready sale. American Beauties are not so plentiful and is the only flower holding up in price. Greens are very scarce.

NOTES.

The truck of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. collided with a truck of a department store March 3. Both drivers were thrown from their machines and slightly injured.

Messrs. Langhans and Ussinger have returned from their trip to New York, where they purchased some new novelties for their supply department.

The McCallum Co.'s exhibit of Japanese goods at the Colonial-Annex hotel proved quite a success.

Martin Reukauf, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, was in the city last week.

Al. Vick, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., will start on the road next week.

BEST FEBRUARY BUSINESS IN YEARS.

The first real snow of the season fell here March 3, followed by a cold snap. The reports from both retailers and wholesalers for the month of February indicate the largest business for that month in history, funeral work being a big factor and hospital orders also a runner up. Stock during the past week appears to be somewhat more plentiful and prices have fallen in consequence. Roses are more plentiful and in some varieties the price is as low as four cents, wholesale, while carnations vary in price and at times are almost a glut. Sweet peas and bulbous stock of all kinds are arriving from all points in large quantities. Pot plants are in heavy demand and in many cases the greenhouses are sold out and growers are looking high and low for stock.

NOTES.

W. J. Barnes enjoyed a good run on funeral work during the past week. Hospital flowers and pot plants were also good sellers. His supply of the latter are getting quite low, however. He is now cutting heavily on carnations and all kinds of bulbous stock.

The trade will regret to hear of the death of August Luther, one of the oldest florists and gardeners in this city, who passed away February 24. He is survived by a son, August Luther, Jr., a florist on East Twenty-seventh street.

The Alpha Floral Co. had one of its Ford delivery cars stolen during the past week. They had been in service only three weeks. This firm reports the biggest February business in the history of the store.

T. J. Noll & Co. report good stock plentiful with roses, carnations, sweet peas and bulbous stock the leaders. Shipping business is heavy.

The Peterson Floral Co. is displaying good stock both in cut stock and pot plants. Trade is unusually good for the time of the year.

H. Kusik & Co. report splendid business with most lines of stock plentiful. The wire business is holding up to a high mark.

The Rosary reports business exceptionally good for the season. Funeral work and decorations have been strong factors.

The Oakwood Farm & Floral Co. are cutting heavily in bulbous stock, carnations and sweet peas.

John Stevens is making heavy cuts of carnations and the crop will grow in volume for a while.

EXCELLENT SUPPLY AND GOOD DEMAND.

Business during the past week has been exceedingly brisk with funeral work most in demand. There has been a good call for flowers for weddings and dinners. Hospital orders also helped out. Fine weather has had a noticeable effect and stock of fine quality is seen in quantity, roses being especially good. Russell is quite perfect and is fast taking the place of American Beauty. Carnations are in good supply and prices hold up well.

NOTES.

The Flick Floral Co. recently sent out two handsome basket covers arranged with Shawyer roses and violets and Easter lilies and Sunburst roses.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are cutting heavily on Easter lilies and carnations. Their orchid crop is off at present.

The Doswell Floral Co. has a fine window of lavender sweet peas, jonquils, hyacinths and violets this week.

STOCK IS PLENTIFUL.

Stock of all kinds is in large supply and there is now plenty of everything to go around at reasonable prices. Roses are reaching the market in larger quantities, especially Mrs. Chas. Russell, which appear to be in large crop with some of the growers, judging from the extra heavy receipts. Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, White Killarney, Double White Killarney and Killarney Queen are also in heavier supply and some very fine stock is obtainable in these varieties. Roses in general are reaching the market in fine condition and are moving well, although prices are not as high as they might be. American Beauty roses are cleaning up nicely every day at good prices, notwithstanding the increased supply, and are still considered good property. Carnations are very plentiful and are being sold in large lots at greatly reduced figures. Sweet peas are seen in large supply everywhere and are in good demand, but are not bringing as good prices as they have been the past few weeks. Tulips are to be had in quantity at bargain prices and the same holds true for bulbous stock in general with the exception of freesia and Paper White narcissus, which appear to be in somewhat short supply. Orchids are none too plentiful and find a ready market, as do gardenias. Lilies and callas are in good supply but find ready buyers and there is hardly ever a surplus of either. Violets are obtainable in large quantities at low prices and are being sold on the streets at ridiculously low figures. Lily of the valley is holding its own at the advertised quotations. Calendulas are quite a factor in the market and are becoming more popular right along. Mignonette, stevia, forget-me-nots, snapdragons, daisies, pansies and other miscellaneous seasonable stock is to be had in quantity and at times clean up well. Greens of all kinds are in good demand and while now and then certain items are scarce there is nearly always enough of everything to go around. The out-of-town demand was not as heavy last week as it might have been, but the city trade showed signs of improvement, and while the market is heavily loaded right now a few brisk days would find it cleaned up completely in certain lines.

NOTES.

The Rapid Wrapper Co., manufacturers of the Rapid Wrapper and other time-saving wrapping devices is now open for business at 56 East Randolph street on the same floor with Percy Jones, Inc., dealers in wholesale cut flowers and greens. This firm has a proposition that every florist should look into, for it will bear investigation and save money for every buyer. With a special sample outfit, including a handsome ornamental adjustable pedestal and 100 assorted sizes of wrappers made from No. 1 30-lb. Kraft paper, costing only $6 complete, a boy or girl can wrap a plant of any description in six seconds and make such a clean job of it that anyone doing a plant business cannot possibly afford to be without one. The wrappers are so made that they can be placed on the bottom of the stand, after which the plant is set on the pedestal, then all that is necessary to do up the plant is to draw the bag-like wrapper over it, pull the strings attached to it together, tie them, and the parcel is ready for delivery. Less paper is necessary than in the old style of wrapping and the wrappers are so inexpensive that they cost less than the old newspapers that are ordinarily used for this purpose. Wrappers for any sized plant or basket are carried in stock and the Rapid Wrapper Co. is in a position to make deliveries from its factories within ten days. The new wrapping system has been given a thorough test and the writer, who has had the opportunity of witnessing several demonstrations, advises everyone interested in saving money, time and labor to investigate this proposition as early as possible, especially before the Easter rush.

The Chicago Wholesale Cut Flower Association held an adjourned meeting in the Grey room of the Hotel Sherman, Thursday evening, March 1, at 6:30 o'clock, when practically every house doing a wholesale business in this city was represented. The principal business of the evening after the appetites of the twenty-nine present were satisfied was the adoption of the by-laws. A committee consisting of Allie Zech, A. T. Pyfer, Chas. Erne, Fred Hoerber and C. Guza, was elected and will act with the board of directors in dealing with any problem that may arise and can be dealt with. so that the trade in general will profit by any action that may be taken. The next regular meeting of the association will be held Thursday, March 15, at 6:30 p. m.

This firm's grower has had splendid success with this variety and judging from the heavy shipments he is making right along it is all and more that the J. D. Poehlmann Bros. Co. is busy getting things in shape at its new supply quarters on the second floor of the Stewart building adjoining the present place at 72-74 East Randolph street. An arch will be cut through the wall which will connect the cut-flower section with the supply department. The change is one that the firm has had in mind for some time and will no doubt result in a large increase in sales, besides being an added convenience to their ever growing list of customers.

C. L. Washburn made a trip through Bassett & Washburn's greenhouses last Sunday, March 4, to get a line on their supply for Easter. Roses will be in good crop with them, but carnations will be none to plentiful compared to former years. The supply of American Beauty roses will be quite large, especially in the short and medium grades.

J. A. Budlong is supplying their trade with a choice line of roses in a large number of varieties. Manager Schupp is advising Budlong's customers to place their orders for cut lilies well in advance this year, so as to avoid any disappointment at the eleventh hour.

The firm of Percy Jones is more than pleased with business, for both the city and out-of-town demand so far during Lent is away ahead of last year. Green goods are in large supply at this establishment, especially galax, leucothoe, and ferns.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. report business as very good so far during Lent, and have no complaint whatever to offer. Orchids are in good supply at this establishment but clean up nicely every day.

Peter Reinberg filled an order this week for a New York house calling for a car of rose plants. The demand for carnation cuttings is very brisk and every mail is bringing new orders.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club will be held at the Hotel Morrison, Thursday evening, March 8, at 8 p. m., preceded by a chicken dinner at 6 p. m., price $1.50 per plate.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is handling a tremendous supply of fancy carnations, in addition to a large quantity of roses and bulbous stock.

Matt Mann represented Zech & Mann at the annual meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association, held at Champaign, March 6-7.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are showing a fine grade of lilies and will have a large quantity of cut blooms to offer for Easter.

J. E. Pollworth says that Kennicott Bros. Co. has added a lily of the valley grower to its list of consignors.

Arthur Pisternick of the Bassett & Washburn force, will join the ranks of the benedicts in the near future.

H. N. Bruns and wife and daughter have returned home from a very pleasant visit in California.

Robert Newcomb of the American Bulb Co. is back from an extended business trip.

Professor H. B. Dorner, of Champaign, was a visitor this week.

NEWPORT, R. I.—T. J. Gibson has added another house to his range.

 AMPLE SUPPLY BUT PRICES LOW.
 The past week saw a full supply of all the cut flowers to be had now, and while a large amount was moved, business, due to Lent, was not as brisk as desirable, consequently prices dropped a little in some lines in order to stimulate sales as much as possible. Green goods, due to the frosts in the south, from which the main supply comes, is a very scarce article.

CLUB MEETING.
 The regular meeting, held March 1, brought out the best attendance for many a day, also a fine exhibition of carnation cut blooms. While efforts were made to have a large assortment of new varieties on hand, only two out-of-town firms responded, namely, J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., with a vase of Superb, and Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill., with 50 Nebraska, the latter on long stiff stems with flowers of good size, calyx and red color, were greatly admired and praised by all. Superb, a salmon pink, was in a class by itself as to color, and showed up well as to stiff stem and quality of bloom. The center of interest was a vase of 25 Pink Sensation, grown by Otto Sylvester & Sons, of Oconomowoc, and they were finished off to perfection, the blooms measuring four inches across; they simply were a revelation in the carnation class. This firm also exhibited three red seedlings, all the same variety, which were very large and full of substance. In the dark pink class, a vase of grand Good Cheer on extra long stiff stems brought forth a surprise. These were grown by the Greenwood Carnation Co., of North Milwaukee, who also exhibited a fine vase of Nancy, a few Pink Sensation and numerous good-sized seedlings, the work of Leon B. Thorpe, the grower in charge. The Schroeder Floral Co. showed Nancy, Akehurst, Princess Dagmar and a bunch of Nic Zweifel's new red, Edna. The latter is a pleasing shade of red, of good size and borne on long stiff stems. The C. C. Pollworth Co. showed well grown C. W. Ward, Beacon and several sports from Ward, from which we expect to hear more later. The Mueller Greenhouse Co., North Milwaukee, sent a bunch each of their famous Beacon and White Wonder. The Heitman-Ostreicher Co. had Enchantress, Victory, White Wonder and their Winsor-pink seedling, named Troubadour, on exhibition. The latter is a very pleasing shade, of good size with long wiry stems. This firm has been growing this variety for three years and claims that it never splits. The White Wonder were of good size and the stems stiff. A. Reinhardt of North Milwaukee showed White Enchantress and Beacon to good advantage. Our treasurer, James Livingstone, gardener for Fred Vogel, Jr., displayed six seedlings of a cerise color, which owing to the fact that they were cut tight, did not show up to full advantage. In looking at them now, three days after the meeting, they do more justice to the grower. Mr. Livingstone also showed three extra fine hybrid amaryllis seedlings of three different shades, which caught the eye of everybody present. The flowers measured nine and a half inches across, and looked as though they were artificial. They certainly were beauties. Quite a few visitors were present, and we hope in time to have some of them become members of the club.

NOTES.

On the afternoon of March 4, soot in the smoke pipe at the Schroeder Floral Co. exploded and in a very short time the whole shed was a mass of flames and the greenhouses filled with smoke. Due to a strong north wind the flames soon broke the glass of the house adjoining the shed, and consequently froze the plants in the three benches at that end of the first house. Although there were two of the firm on the place, it all came so quickly that it was impossible to even save the Monday cut of about 1,500 carnations. At this writing, 24 hours after the fire, the damage is estimated at from $700 to $800. Time can only prove whether the stock suffered more than at present estimated. Mr. Adams of the Jno. C. Moninger Co., Chicago, made a record trip here to assist the Schroeder Floral Co. on March 5th to make repairs on the greenhouses.

J. F. Fox President

At this writing the Humboldt avenue greenhouses of the Holton & Hunkel Co. are filled to the brim, so to speak, with thousands of lilies, azaleas, rhododendrons, spireas, genistas, etc., all in prime condition. From reports, the lilies especially are better than they ever had them before.

Frederick Ernst and wife have the sympathy of the trade in the death of Mrs. Louise Thal, mother of Mrs. Ernst, who died March 3 at the age of nearly 63 years; while she had been ailing for some time, the end came rather unexpectedly. Interment was at Union cemetery, March 6.

J. F. Fox, accompanied by his mother, returned the latter part of last week from a pleasure and business trip of two weeks, spent in New York and other large eastern cities.

The list of special prizes, consisting of gold medals for flowering bulbs, at the March exhibition in 1918, provides for collections of foreign grown bulbs to be flowered here and exhibited under the name of the foreign grower. The schedule calls for hyacinths, narcissi, tulips and a collection of spring flowering bulbous, fibrous or tuberous-rooted plants, other than the above. Similar prizes are also offered for exhibits of spring-flowering bulbs that have been produced in the United States and are to be exhibited under the name of the producer. If desired, the bulbs may be flowered in the vicinity of Boston.

Liberal money prizes, together with gold and silver medals, are offered for an iris garden for year 1919; rose garden, 1920; collection of lilacs in 1921, and for a fruit garden in 1922.

Tarrytown Horticultural Society.

The monthly meeting of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society was held in the Corporation building, Tarrytown, N. Y., Wednesday evening, February 21, President Joseph Bradley, in the chair, There was a good turn out of members, and a fine display was on the exhibition table.

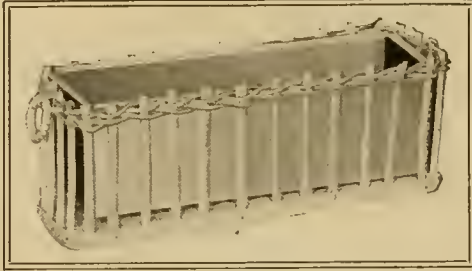

Judges J. Featherstone, Mooney, and Grant awarded prizes as follows: For two vases roses, Sunburst, and Ophelia, J. Strutheway, first; J. Elliot, second; Abel Weeks, third. For pot of Chorizema ilicifolium, Wm. Jamieson, first. Honorable mention was given James Currie, for a vase of antirrhinums, calla lilies and cinerarias. President Bradley spoke on the growing of bulbous stock and the exhibitors gave some information on the growing of their exhibits. It was arranged to hold the annual fall show, November 7-9.

The next monthly meeting, March 21, will be Ladies' night. For this meeting a prize is offered for a display of flowers cut from bulbous stock.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY BETTER THAN EVER.

St. Valentine's day has taken its place in the foremost rank of the distinctive flower days of the year if one is to judge from the favorable reports of the business done on that day in this city. The majority of florists approached gave the impression that it was the best valentine business on record, both as regards the quantity of stock sold and the quality. Despite the heavy demand, the market was in excellent shape up to the very last minute to take care of all demands. Bulbous stock was plentiful and sold unusually well; also all the cut flowers that are favorites on this day. Great quantities of violets were shipped in and easily led in the selling. Sweet peas were good seconds and cleaned up. Roses, particularly the better grades, sold easily. Many unique and tasty valentine novelties were displayed in florists' windows and these were eagerly sought by the public and proved great favorites. Funeral work and social occasion decorations continue heavy, with the result that February is breaking all records.

NOTES.

Bob Blake, designer and decorator for Mrs. J. B. Freeman on Superior street, scored another distinct hit with his valentine window display. It was one of the most attractive windows this artist has ever arranged and made the business of that day leap to unusual heights at this flower shop. Blake knows the value and the beauty of simplicity and does not overcrowd his window. The background was painted a pure white. In the right hand corner a fountain bordered with red carnations played, and back of this a large Cupid shot arrows toward a pyramid of dainty maids and handsome valentine novelties, placed well to the front of the window.

During one of the very coldest nights of the winter, O. B. Wisner, florist of East Delaware avenue, had some serious boiler trouble that resulted in the freezing of the entire stock in his range. His fellow florists sympathize with him, because he has had a hard fight as it is to survive, and are doing everything possible to aid him in his misfortune.

Schramm Bros. made a splendid gain on St. Valentine's day and ascribe their success to the advertising that was done. Thousands of beautiful folders were mailed to a selected list, and liberal newspaper space was used.

GREEN

Cyaceine Flower Coloring for St. Patrick's Day

We have handled this coloring for the past three years and find it to be the most satisfactory green coloring in the market and have never known it to injure flowers in any way, not even destroying their fragrance.

We offer this to you at 50c per package (enough for one or two quarts and will color from 100 to 300 carnations) or three packages for $1.25 postpaid.

Special discounts on large quantities.

It is impossible to get any more coloring imported, therefore order early.

Max Spanner is more than gratified with his valentine trade and cleaned out a big stock of cut flowers and novelties. He is located on one of the most traveled corners in the city and does a big business with transients.

Harry Heinel, rose grower, is back on the job again after a protracted lay-off due to a near attack of pneumonia. Harry sent in some excellent roses for the valentine demand.

SUPPLY GREATLY EXCEEDS DEMAND.

The market is full of flowers; the growers appear to have all gotten a move on at one time, with the result that the supply greatly exceeds the demand. Lent, stormy weather, disturbing war news, the higher cost of living bugaboo, etc., are all disturbing factors, which, taken with the difficulty of handling the increased shipments, has forced prices to a very unsatisfactory level. The quality of the stock is fine, but in lines that are most plentiful, such as all kinds of bulbous stock, carnations, freesias, sweet peas and violets, quantity has overcome quality and the man who can find an outlet for large lots fills his car at his own price.

Of the quantity flowers, sweet peas sell as well, if not better, than any other item; in fact, they lead in demand. They were never better than at present. Cattleyas are to be had in quantity and sell fairly well, as does lily of the valley and lilac. Asparagus and maiden hair fern is good stock. Whether the coming of the Florida product kept local asparagus growers out of the cultivation of this necessary green is hard to say, but the fact is, that this market could stand a much larger supply at current prices. Snapdragon, which will be a factor from now on, is fairly plentiful and in good demand.

February 5.—Rose shipments are much lighter than last week. Lily of the valley is also scarce. Other flowers are in good supply, without much demand.

NOTES.

The getting together of such a large body of representative growers who specialize in bedding plants, as that held last week in the florists' club room, was most gratifying to those who desire to see the business raised to a higher plane, in which more efficient methods and better prices shall be dominant features. Ten dollars per hundred was the agreed price for four-inch pot geraniums, as the result of a similar gathering held in old Horticultural hall over 25 years ago. Robert Craig was one of the leading spirits in the agitation. His convincing argument was "You drop down to seven dollars, but by common consent nobody goes any lower. Now why not stop at $10? Make this the minimum price and then you will have something over at the end of the season." This helped matters for a while, but prices soon resumed the old level and after which the wise ones used their table space for more profitable stock. Bedding plants are sold for about six weeks in the spring, cut flowers are for sale the year round; there are periods, however, when the market becomes greatly overstocked. Why do not the growers, their agents, the wholesalers, and the retailers of this city get together and plan better methods of handling this surplus? Make flowers popular by offering them at a price that will make sure their complete consumption, a clean sweep of all the stock for special sales, until there comes a cry for more. Not half the flowers are sold in this city that could be handled if they were placed attractively before possible buyers at quick moving prices. Street men handle thousands of dollars worth of surplus stock. Their customers for the most part are people who seldom buy in stores, and others, connoisseurs; both classes of which are attracted by the low prices. In such a market as is afforded by this city with a population of over a million and a half inhabitants, a wonderful volume of business could be worked up at low rates which at the same time would show a very satisfactory profit to all concerned.

Rose festival preparations are progressing nicely. Two hundred oilcloth signs, three feet by four, are now placed on wholesale and retail florists' cars and wagons and make a good showing. The window card, with a large picture in colors of two Los Angeles roses, and the announcement of the show, is ready, and thousands have been distributed. Last Sunday's papers all gave the show liberal reading notices. The Bellevue-Stratford, one of the finest hotels in the country, will be official headquarters at the time of the exhibition. It is high class, but moderate in price. Reservations can be made direct to the hotel or to E. J. Fancourt, 1619 Ludlow street.

The March meeting of the florists' club was very well attended. The feature of the evening was the discussion on the efficiency of the express companies in the delivery of cut flowers. The Wells Fargo Co. sent one of their traffic managers, who spoke at length on various phases of the business and its difficulties, which brought out the experiences of the members.

"Linc" Brown, of Cleveland, who is on a visit here, has been showing the boys that he has not forgotten how to bowl. He helped win much of the "Siller" in the case of which the boys are so proud.

E. Bernheimer is booking orders for Prima Donna roses. Carnations and sweet peas are a feature. September Morn, a sport of Prima Donna, looks good.

The Robert Craig Co. is growing a splendid line of Easter stock, their roses, French hydrangeas, and lilies, look especially fine.

J. Otto Thilow's experiences in the Hawaiian Islands would make a most delightful evening at one of the florists' club meetings.

Edward Reid claims that "if it's Reid's it's right," which holds good with carnations, roses, lily of the valley, or what not.

The Leo Niessen Co. is featuring snapdragons, acacias and roses in quantity lots. Cattleyas and gardenias are also leaders.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange is proud of its high grade roses. Bulbous stock is also a feature here.

Berger Brothers are strong on sweet peas, callas, daisies and My Maryland roses. Very fine pussy willows are a feature here.

BIG DROP IN PRICES.

Josh Billings wrote: "When a man begins to go down hill, it seems as though all nature is greased for the occasion." That saying is applicable to the wholesale business at present; as it is now on the toboggan slide. American Beauties have taken a drop in price and are likely to go lower. Prices on all tea roses are growing weaker, and while our table of quotations is for fresh stock, there are sales of surplus stock on which there are no fixed prices, the main idea being to clean up, which is hard to do. Lilies, carnations, sweet peas and a great stock of tulips and narcissi are going cheap. There is some good stock of Darwin tulips on the market that brings a fair price. Dealers in violets are glad to unload at $2 per 1000. The shortage of Florida asparagus would be felt on a live market, but under present conditions the home grown stock supplies the demand.

March 5.—The wholesale market of the past week was the worst that this district has experienced for a long time, not excepting summer dullness. This week opened with cheerless prospects. Snow fell throughout the day and night of March 4, and though much of it melted as it fell there is enough left to keep the streets in had condition, with consequent detriment to business. The dullness is not so much on account of a great supply of stock, though the supply is considerable, as the light buying. All indications point to a bad market from now to Easter. The indications are that there will be a good supply of lilies and other pot stock for Easter and there can be little doubt as to a plentiful supply of cut flowers.

GREEK-AMERICAN FLORISTS BANQUET.

A noteworthy event of the past week was the entertainment and ball of the Greek-American Florists' Association at the Terrace Garden, 58th street and Lexington avenue, on the night of February 28. It was a most successful affair, at least 2,000 persons being present. The wholesale district and the growers of neighboring towns were well represented. The entertainment consisted of exhibition and Spanish dances, musical acts and acrobatic and juggling acts, after which the floor was cleared for the grand march and dancing in general. About 300 couples took part in the grand march, which was led by the Greek Consul and President Sakelos of the association. The hall was very handsomely decorated, the American flag being everywhere prominent and many natural flowers being used. The committee of arrangements, which deserves much credit, follows: G. Hanges, chairman; S. Sakas, D. J. Pappas, M. Rovatzos and Chris. Pappas. The officers of the association are: Constantine Sakelos, president; Peter Theopine, vice-president; George Rondires, treasurer; C. Thomas, secretary, and M. Andriopulos, assistant secretary.

NOTES.

D. C. Arnold & Co., Inc., have retired from the wholesale business at 112 West 28th street and the store has been taken by Clarence Slinn, now at 123 West 28th street, who will sell the stock from the greenhouses, located at Babylon, L. I. It is further stated that D. C. Arnold has sold his interest in the greenhouses to H. W. Thomas, former secretary of D. C. Arnold & Co., Inc., and that he will hereafter conduct the business.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held in its rooms in the Grand Opera House building on the evening of March 12. It will be "rose night" and good exhibits are expected. Various committees will report. As the spring show will open March 15 in the Grand Central Palace, this should be an important and interesting meeting.

Otto A. Mensel, who for several years has conducted a retail store at 771 Second avenue, has opened another at 397 Lexington avenue near the Grand Central Station. A large hotel is being constructed just opposite, and it is a good location.

American Seed Trade Association.
Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., President;
F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., First
Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fifth annual convention, Detroit, Mich.,
June 19, 1917.

VISITED NEW YORK: A. T. Ferrell, of A. T. Ferrell & Co., Saginaw, Mich.

CHILIAN nitrate producers are reported as attempting a price combine.

POTATO prices have eased off 50 cents per bushel, probably due in part to reduced consumption.

RUSSIAN grown sugar beet seed is coming through, taking the place of that formerly supplied by Germany.

RUSH CITY, MINN.—A seed store will be opened in the near future by R. E.
Killmer of the North Star State Nurseries.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade March 7 were as follows: Timothy, $4.50 to $6.00 per 100 pounds.

ONION SETS at Chicago in moderate-sized lots to dealers are selling, March 7, at $4.75 per bushel for reds and yellows and $5.50 for whites.

THIS is the time of the year when the call of the wild makes a man linger long and lovingly in front of the seed store window.—Chicago Daily News.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—Morris & Snow
Seed Co., Inc., report this is their biggest year. They have been obliged to add to the working force in both seed and nursery departments.

GLOUCESTER man who inserted an advertisement in local paper that he would pay $5 for largest potato submitted to him received 6½ barrels from contestants for the prize.—Boston News Bureau.

CANTON, O.—John J. Garland, whose resignation as secretary of the Wisconsin agricultural experiment station was announced in our issue of February 24, has taken a position with the Holmes-Letherman Seed Co. of this city.

OTTAWA reports that Canada had virtually decided to prohibit exportation of potatoes caused considerable concern among Aroostook county shippers who have stock stored across the border. The potato market was sluggish at $6 a barrel, March 2, compared with $9 to $9.50 the week before.

American Seed Trade Association.

THE DETROIT MEETING.

The annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association will be held at the Hotel Pontchartrain, as per illustration herewith, Detroit, Mich.,
June 19. President Kirby B. White urges members to make reservations at once. Rooms reserved now will be held by number, thus minimizing the possibility of error and disappointment. Detroit hotels are usually filled in June, so early attention is almost certain to be necessary to get what members want.

Keeping Paper White Narcissus Bulbs.

As a cutflower, Paper Whites are among the best in the bulbous section. Many growers fail, however, to get much from them in the way of returns for the custom is to plant the bulbs immediately on arrival and place outside until danger from frost, when they must be brought in. It is then difficult to keep them dormant for any great length of time, and in consequence the market is frequently overstocked and poor returns are the rule.

A. T. Simmons, of Painesville, O., carries his stock as late as Easter by keeping the dry bulbs in open-topped boxes in a cool shed where there is no danger of frost. The bulbs March 1 showed green shoots half to an inch long, but there was no root action and they seemed as firm and plump as on arrival. By this method it is possible to keep tab on the market and get in after the glut is over and avoid this ruinous competition.

Dreer's New White Canna Eureka

TWO DISTINCT CANNAS—The Last Introductions Received from Germany in the Autumn of 1914

Lahneck. In this variety we have an entirely distinct departure and advance in the assortment of pink Cannas. First of all we have in Lahneck a free grower, producing an abundance of trusses on erect stalks, well above the foliage. The color is difficult to describe and convey an adequate impression of its worth. It is fundamentally rosy, but throughout the flowers there are lines and shadings of scarlet-carmine hues that add much to their brightness. Add to this a narrow pale-gold border and you may form a slight conception of the beauty of this novelty. 75 cts. each; $7.50 per dozen.

For a complete list of Standard Varieties of Cannas see our current Wholesale List.

HENRY A. DREER, 714 and 716 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

The above prices are intended for the Trade only

CANNAS

Our Own Introductions

Eureka. We consider this the best white flowering Canna for all purposes to which Cannas are devoted. It is of robust constitution, growing four feet high, forming sturdy, shapely plants very quickly. Its free flowering tendency can be readily understood when we chronicle the fact that a small plant set out May 15th, three months later carried 15 immense heads of flowers. These are of a creamy-white, changing in full sun to a pure white. $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

Favorite. There have been many yellow Cannas spotted with carmine or crimson that were good; it is, therefore, particularly interesting to find a variety that in every way eclipses its many predecessors and for which we have singled out this sort. The color is a rich, deep golden-yellow, produced on tall stems high above the foliage. The red dots, which are not too pronounced, add to the piquancy of the flower, without detracting from the golden mass effect. 5 feet. 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.; $25.00 per 100.

Orange Bedder. A particularly attractive bedding variety of a bright orange with just sufficient scarlet suffusion to intensify the dazzling mass of color when the wide branching stems are covered with flowers. $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

The Gem. An entirely distinct spotted variety. The immense trusses of flowers are borne on upright branching stems well above the foliage, and are of deep cream or straw-yellow, spotted with deep carmine. $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

One each of the above 4 varieties for 75 cts.

Scharfenstein. Another variety that is sure to take a place among the standard sorts as quickly as it becomes known. The beautifully formed, large round florets are produced in compact but graceful trusses well above the green foliage. The color is a unique light red salmon with orange and carmine suffusions that altogether forms a most attractive addition to the range of colors found in Cannas. You will like Scharfenstein. 75 cts. each; $7.50 per dozen.

MONTGOMERY, ALA.—Recent frosts in this vicinity completely destroyed pea, bean, potato and similar crops.

FROM reports received from a truck crop specialist the condition of the Bermuda onion crop in Texas, February 1, 1917, was 87 per cent compared with 85 on the corresponding date last year. Following the cold wave, February 1-6, the condition dropped to 68 by February 10, and was reported to be nearly 70 per cent February 15.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, Mar. 6.—Mushrooms, home grown, 50 to 60 cents per pound; lettuce, small cases, 27½ to 30 cents; radishes, 50 to 60 cents, dozen bunches; celery, 75 cents to $1.50, open crate; tomatoes, six baskets, $3.00 to $4.75; cucumbers, per 2 dozen box, $1.50 to $2.50.

New York, Mar. 6.—Celery, per crate, $2.00 to $4.00; cucumbers, 60 cents to $1.50 per dozen; mushrooms, 75 cents to $1.75 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, per lb., 10 to 25 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2.00 to $4.00; lettuce, per strap, $1.00 to $3.75.

Mushroom Pests and Their Control.

The subject of pests which attack cultivated mushrooms, especially in warm weather, is covered in Farmers' Bulletin 789, entitled, "Mushroom Pests and How to Control Them," issued by the United States department of agriculture. Among the injurious forms named in the order of their importance as generally injurious are mushroom maggots, the mushroom mite, spring-tails, sowbugs, slugs and crickets. Remedies are named in each case together with suggestions as to construction of the mushroom houses, preparation of compost, etc.

Maine Potato Notes.

Potatoes dropped, to $6 a barrel at Fort Fairfield, Me., February 26, with few sales. Most dealers offered only $5 to $5.50. Most farmers have ceased hauling to market and are waiting for the former $9 level. Buyers estimate that there are now 2,275,000 to 3,000,000 barrels of potatoes in Aroostook county.

Oscar Frommell, so-called "potato king," says he has 20,000 barrels of potatoes in storage in Maine which cost him from $2 to $9 a barrel. Three years ago he lost $60,000 on potatoes, but this year he expects to make up the loss, predicting potatoes will go to $40 a barrel.

The bottom has dropped out of Aroostook potato market. Farmers are hoarding supplies for return to phenomenal figures of last week, which buyers say will never come. Prices at Caribou February 27 were as low as $5 a barrel.

We are now booking orders for our New Seedling SUPERB— $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

SUPERB is a seedling of Gloriosa and Enchantress. It has the good stem of Gloriosa and the fine growing habit of Enchantress. The color is a fresh pink, and it keeps its color at all seasons. The flowers average about three inches, are very full, and generally receive full acre on substance. The flowers are all perfect and do not split. In the four years we have grown it, it has proved the best commercial variety, barring none.

FIVE degrees above zero, March 5, just to catch a few more careless shippers of perishable plants in open freight cars, and finish a long list of such misfortunes in 1917.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J.—At the annual meeting of the New Jersey Association of Nurserymen, held in this city February 14, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Carl H. Flemer, Springfield, president; J. D. Elsele, Riverton, vice-president; A. F. Meisky, of the Elizabeth Nursery Co., secretary-treasurer.

New Trees and Plants for America.

In an interesting article in the 1916 year book of the United States department of agriculture, P. H. Dorsett describes recent tree importations from China, which are being propagated and tested in the government gardens in Florida, California, Washington and Maryland, and are given trials as well by interested experimenters throughout the country.

The jujube, will, it is thought, prove commercially profitable in California and the semiarid south and southwest. It is a very good fresh fruit, and when prepared with cane sugar, has as delicate a flavor as many dates.

The Chinese pistache is recommended as a shade tree, as it lives to a great age. It is thought the variety from central Asia, which bears the nuts used in the coloring and flowering of ice cream and candy, can be grown as well in the San Joaquin and Sacramento valleys in California. Chinese chestnuts, because of their power to resist the chestnut bark disease, so prevalent here, may prove exceptionally valuable. The persimmons of China, can, without doubt, be grown commercially in California and southern sections of the country. In China and Japan, dried persimmons are a staple and valuable food. An early sweet cherry from Tanghsi, China, is likely to prove profitable to growers for the eastern markets.

New vegetables are also being tested in the plant introduction gardens. The chayote, from tropical America, is a vine-producing, pear-shaped fruit in abundance in the fall. Its flavor resembles squash or vegetable marrow. It may be stored and used throughout the winter. The udo is a recommended salad plant that will grow anywhere in the United States. Treatment is similar to asparagus, both in growth and cooking.

Buffalo.

OVERSUPPLY MOVED AT SALES.

Trade is no more active than last week, but there is a good supply of flowers, with calendulas, sweet peas and snapdragons of fine quality. Roses are plentiful and carnations are becoming a drug. Bulbous stock as is usual at this time is plentiful with varying prices. Violets are moved at Saturday sales at 50 cents per bunch. Daffodils and tulips are sold at 75 cents on that day, the market being relieved and the oversupply handled without indiscriminate slaughter of prices.

NOTES.

One of S. A. Anderson's employes, upon entering the store Sunday, detected smoke, which, upon investigation, he discovered came from the upper floors, the fire evidently being due to crossed wires in a photograph gallery. The prompt response of the fire department prevented a total loss of the building, although the photograph gallery suffered a loss of $5,000; covered by insurance. S. A. Anderson's damage was through water and business was not interrupted. W. J. Palmer & Son offered the use of their store which was gratefully appreciated.

The Lenox Flower Shop has moved to its new store on Delaware avenue, which thoroughfare is now known as this city's "Fifth avenue."

W. J. Palmer & Son are decorating and will be located in their new store on Delaware avenue before Easter.

Visitors: Paul Berkowitz and M. Greenlaw, Philadelphia, Pa.; Frank Mahoney, Rochester. BISON.

THE BOOK OF GLADIOLUS

THE first authoritative book on this bulb ever printed in America, or possibly the world, issued April 1, 1911. This 120-page book, written by Matthew Crawford and Dr. Van Fleet, contains many chapters covering all sides of growing, propagating, storing, etc., and also some pages of valuable cultural notes gathered from reliable sources. A necessity for both amateur and grower. The book is bound in cloth and fully illustrated.

LOW PRICES CRUSHING GROWERS.

Will You Help Raise Them ?

In our issue of February 17, page 232, under the caption, "Will You Do It This Spring?" we called attention to the necessity of raising prices of bedding stock this spring, due to the heavy increase in labor and fuel costs, both of which are about 50 per cent above normal and will reach even higher figures from present indications. Added to these, the increased cost of food-stuffs, clothing and like items, it must be apparent to the wise grower that a substantial advance over former prices must be made—and maintained—before the bedding plant industry, already the poorest paid branch of the trade, will show a profit instead of loss. This increase is justifiable. More than that, it is immediately necessary. You cannot sell "gold dollars for 90 cents" and stay in business.

At a meeting of about 100 prominent plant growers of Philadelphia and vicinity, held February 21, mention of which was made in our issue of March 3, page 352, growing conditions extending over many years up to the present time were reviewed by Robert Craig, Jr., and following the discussion which was entered into by such well-known plantmen as A. R. Burton, Harry Betts, Wm. Didden, Ashman brothers and A. M. Campbell among others, it was the consensus of opinion that prices on all lines of bedding stock must be increased, the greatly advanced cost of labor, fuel, pots, etc., making it impossible to sell now at the old prices and make a profit.

Since the appearance of our article of February 17, we have received a number of communications from interested growers in various parts of the United States, some of which are reproduced herewith, and believing that a general interchange of ideas on this important subject will prove of benefit, we shall be glad to hear from others interested.

It is no longer a question of "Can we get higher prices for this class of stock?" It is now a recognized fact that we must get higher prices or—get out of business. Bedding stock has for some years been sold so close to the actual cost of production that it is no longer a safe proposition financially. This applies to both the wholesale and the retail end of the business. In some sections the retail price has been gradually raised to a point, where in normal years, it pays a reasonable profit. In these few sections it might be the part of wisdom to take the smaller profit which this season will bring, and hope for better things another year.

Ninety per cent of the bedding plants sold, are sold too cheap under normal conditions, and under the extraordinary influences now existing the price will have to be materially advanced this spring. This increase in prices is like a surgical operation; not a pleasant thing to look forward to, but an absolute necessity to save our lives. Do not let the fact that there may be one or two retail growers in your section who will refuse to raise their prices deter you from getting what is justly due you for your stock. These price cutters will gradually decrease and go out of business, possibly be hunting a job from the man who has vision enough to establish his prices on a paying basis.

Do not let the idea enter your head that working yourself and your family half to death will enable you to overcome the present high costs and enable you to sell at the old prices. We are all at times compelled to work over-time and hard, but no business will stand the perpetual grind that would be required of us to keep up our end at the old figures.

I am optimistic and do not believe present conditions are going to last indefinitely, but of one thing we are sure, and that is that coal contracts for next winter are being signed up at exactly double this winter's prices—and they were not low this winter. There is no prospect of much change in the labor situation, and prices for materials of all sorts are not coming down to their former level for some time, if they ever reach that level again. In view of all these indisputable facts, the wholesaler will be compelled to charge more for his stock next season than he did this one. Why should not the retailer add his quota to his selling price and be able to meet all these extra costs and at the same time have a living profit from his sales?

A living profit is sort of a flexible term, but it must be understood and made by all of us if we expect to continue in business and give our customers the satisfaction that will increase the volume of our business. Without this living profit we can not make any progress, and without progression we can not exist. Why should we be timid in asking a living profit on our goods when every other business is demanding it of us?

Analyze the increased cost of your plants so that when your customer comes, you can explain the added cost of fuel, the high price for labor, the doubling and trebling of the price on your pots and all other sundries. Properly enlightened, 95 per cent of your customers will see the justness of your increase in price—and buy. The other five per cent will hunt up your price-cutting competitor (may his tribe decrease) and you will be better off without their trade.

For the good of the trade, ginger up, go to it, and don't be afraid to ask what your stock is worth.

Lancaster, Pa. ALBERT M. HERR.

Referring to your recent editorial note on better prices for bedding plants, you are surely on the right side of the question. The need of better prices on most items is obvious—but how to get them—there's the rub.

To the florist who takes the question seriously to himself, about the first soliloquy will be: "What is a fellow to do? There is So and So, my competitor, stocked up more than ever," etc. Now while this is a question each florist must decide for himself, it will be advisable to consider his competitor, and, quite likely, if he will confer with him in a heart-to-heart talk, he may find that he too will be willing to "try and make room" for a little more money, and thus they may be able to work the matter out together.

About the only way to get more for goods is to ask more—stay within reason—have the quality good, and be ready to defend the price with a good explanation. In other words, if the florist will hold up his head, ask for a fair price, and explain why, when need be, he will have an even chance for a rise in the opinion of his community—and also of receiving more adequate returns for his labor. This will be a great improvement—later he may figure on another rise and try for some real profit.

W. H. CULP.
Wichita, Kan.

Replying to your recent article in regard to the price of bedding plants, I am firmly of the opinion that the average price for this class of stock has been much too low for a number of years, and because of the increasing cost of goods in all other lines, this situation is now much worse than it has been. We have solved the question by practically going out of the bedding plant business. We found that a great many small growers, who do their own work and who, perhaps, get some help from their families, were not asking the price that we found it necessary to ask in order to show profit. I think this is largely due to the fact that such growers do not make proper allowance for the labor they put on their stock themselves or the help they get from their families. To us it seemed easier to devote our glass to some other line of stock than it was to convert the growers who were selling at too low a price.

Denver, Colo. J. A. VALENTINE.

I have read your recent editorial regarding the raising of prices on bedding plants and believe that every grower in the country realizes that there is less money in the growing of bedding plants than any other line of our trade. I am heartily in accord with the movement for a raise in the price of bedding plants. And if there is any other line of our profession that is not making sufficient money, I think it only justice for those concerns, that they should realize a fair margin on their stock. I am a strong believer in the slogan, "Live and let live," and I believe that the florists throughout the country should lend their encouragement to this movement, as it is very essential at this time, due to the hard winter that the growers had to go through.

R. C. KERR,
President Society of American Florists.

Regarding the price of bedding stock for the present year, we heartily agree with you that all such plants should be raised in price. Failing in this, it is absolutely certain that florists will grow this stock at a considerable loss. As has been intimated in your columns a number of times, the greatest weakness in the trade is the lack of realization of cost of production and a corresponding harmony in the price of the finished product. It is no wonder that so many of the growers throughout the United States are not making a better financial showing. Too many of the trade, and we speak for ourselves among the rest, have been slow to figure and realize costs as a proper basis for fixing prices. We are glad that THE AMERICAN FLORIST is taking this matter up and hope that all wide-awake florists throughout the country will study out their individual problems and profit by the correct solution of the same.

Referring to your editorial, issue of February 17, we beg to advise that all prices on bedding stock have been advanced at least 25 per cent.

Gloeckner's Tenth Anniversary.

Commemorative of the opening of his flower shop 10 years ago, now one of the most attractive establishments of its kind in Albany, N. Y., and in appreciation of the generous patronage extended to him, Gloeckner, The Florist, 97 State street, that city, is distributing a handsome brochure of eight pages devoted to flower lore, entitled "The Blue Flower". In an accompanying announcement card, Mr. Gloeckner states: "My desire in life is to be a good neighbor, to add my share to the happiness of the world and to serve faithfully those who love the beauty of flowers". From the success which has attended his business from its inception, his aim appears to have been achieved.

Decorative Helps.

There are many men of many minds—no two do things exactly alike. This holds true in all lines of business, particularly that of decorating with plants and flowers; new problems are constantly coming up, this or that effect is desired, something novel not tried out before. There is said to be "nothing new under the sun;" perhaps not, but there is such a thing as creating something new out of something old. An old dress is made to look like new; a few repairs and a coat of paint makes a wonderful difference in the appearance of the dwelling, the greenhouses, the store, the fixtures and all the appliances therein. The wagon or car, so dingy before, comes from the shop looking like new. All these are decorative helps.

To make the most of available material and arrange an effective decoration with the minimum amount of plants and flowers, one should have the proper accessories. A bushy, spreading palm, such as a latania, is at times much more effective if turned partially on its side and made to show all its foliage to the front. There are adjustable iron stands very suitable for this work, but they are heavy and bulky to carry. A very handy device is a U-shaped spring, riveted to a flat round iron base. This stands twelve inches high, over all, the inside upper ends of the flanges of this spring have two swinging clasps or crescents which face each other; an eight to a twelve-inch pot or tub can be placed in this stand, which when stood on any pedestal, high or low, that will hold the weight can be swung to any angle or faced in any direction without danger of tipping, as the center of gravity always remains the same.

The George Wittbold Co., of Chicago, who enjoy a very large decorative business, having long made a specialty of this line, have several devices, original with them, that have been found very useful. A tapering tube of light galvanized iron eight to ten inches wide at the bottom with a width of six to eight inches at the top, which is closed, ranging from two to three feet in height, is used as a plant pedestal. This is painted a dark olive or plant green. It is water tight, and when turned up can be used as a vase for long-stemmed cut flowers. A dozen of these can be stacked together, taking but little room in a car; they are also very durable, double wire rings, best described as skeleton dumb-bells, one end of which slips on and down the stand about six inches, while the other affords support for a short bushy plant. Two or three can be used at the same time, holding plants either side and in the center, an advantage at once apparent to every decorator.

A folding slat or lath screen is another very convenient and helpful appliance of considerable decorative value; this when opened out is six these bucketed baskets when to be used for church decorations. A handy pot supporter that is very useful when giving the finishing touches to a decoration, is a skeleton wire frame which can be hooked onto a pot or tub; this will hold a fern or other plant that is needed to hide a pot or fill a gap or give a desired touch of color. A green tin water tube large enough to hold lily stalks or long stemmed roses can be attached to pots or plants in the same way. A dozen or two stalks of Easter or Japanese lilies or hydrangea blooms, in these tubes, will

The Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O.

One of the most complete and largest nursery and plant growing establishments in the United States is that of the Storrs & Harrison Co. at Painesville, O. The location is ideal. There is under cultivation over 1,200 acres of land with great variety of soils, light and heavy, clay and sandy, having a frontage of over a mile on Lake Erie, where they find a sand of fine quality for their propagating benches. Forty-five good sized greenhouses are filled with bedding and herbaceous plants, large and small roses for planting out, ferns, palms, etc., in fact, everything worth while except tropical or stove plants is grown here in large quantities.

Immense storage cellars, covering some two acres of ground, are filled with great quantities of nursery stock. Hundreds of thousands of shade and fruit trees, shrubbery, hedge plants, grape vines, in fact, every item of their great nursery stock is stored systematically in or on the ground or closely together on racks, so that the filling of orders can go on the year round. It takes a large force fully two months to lift and properly store this great stock as seen in the various cellars. Each plant or tree is labeled and tied in convenient bundles for expeditious handling. While called cellars, they are all built above ground, from 16 to 20 feet in height, with walls 10 to 12 inches in thickness, with hollow air spaces. Double windows make light wells at the top, which are at times opened for ventilation. When these buildings get cold they remain in this condition all winter and they endeavor to keep a temperature of about 36°; at times it falls lower, but has never become so cold as to injure the plants.

The rose cellar contains over 200,000 field grown stock. These are laid in racks or skeleton shelves, piled as high as 10 feet, the roots covered with cedar "shingle tow," long slender wood shavings, something like excelsior, which is found to be the best packing material, as it holds moisture a long time. It is feet in height by 32 inches in width. There are four strips six feet in length six inches apart, with eight cross bars eight inches between and four inches from top and bottom, there is one clinched nail at each intersection. By pulling down on one side and pushing up on the other, this will close up like a folding gate, making a very compact trundle for transportation. It is made of $1\frac{1}{2} \times \frac{3}{8}$ inch strips of smooth wood, without knots, and painted white or green as desired. For standing against bare wall spaces, between windows, arranged in series to screen orchestras or doorways, these lattice frames will when decorated with southern smilax, be found very effective. Cut flowers in concealed vases, attached to the frames, show to very good advantage.

Light galvanized iron buckets that will fit pot covers are very useful about holiday and other busy seasons. With a palm in the center of a large basket cover that leaves five to six inches above the top of the pot or tub, which space when filled with hydrangeas, Easter lilies, spireas, or other blooming plants, ferns, vinca vines, etc., there is made a finished group that can be prepared a day or two in advance, which stands ready for instant delivery. The plants, except the palm, should be out of pots, wrapped in cheese cloth, which holds the soil together, particularly when wet. Spireas can be divided by cutting in half or in three from the bottom of the ball up; they will not wilt from this separation if kept well watered. Such an arrangement will when well watered stand in a warm church for two days without flagging.

Hydrangeas, genistas, azaleas and rambler roses, should all be fitted into lighten up a bank of green, giving the color tone that appears necessary to make the decoration a success.

Blooming Plants.

Always keep a few blooming plants about the shop. A table with a half dozen specimens in jardinières or pot covers, or perhaps the pots covered with sheet moss or crepe paper, are sure to prove attractive. A chiffon or ribbon bow gives finish and a touch of color that is worth while.

An Avenue in the Tree Storage Cellar.

used to protect the roots of trees as well. Over 600,000 Manetti stocks took up quite a space in this storage cellar.

Imported standard roses and other choice stock were seen in great beds, heeled in, the roots covered with soil, all conveniently placed for selection. The atmosphere in these storage cellars must be evenly maintained, too much moisture bringing on mildew. When necessary, a crack of air at the top, and opening of small ventilators near the ground, give a change of air in a short time.

Propagation methods in nursery stock are interesting. Blackberries are grown from root cuttings. A large number of boxes are filled with these cut roots, packed in moss; they are about two inches in length; enough to plant 10 acres were made ready. Grape vines are grown by the hundred thousand. Cuttings are made in January and February from hard wood, much of which they buy from vineyards. This is cut into six to eight inch lengths, tied in bundles and stood on the storage cellar floor on moss. As soon as the ground is open in the spring, these cuttings are buried a foot deep in soil, where they calous, and in early May are planted in nursery rows where they soon take root, making good plants by fall.

In the greenhouses, much of the young nursery stock is rooted; in a house of herbaceous phlox, the center bench held plants for cuttings, while the side stages were beds of roots that had been trimmed from the larger stock plants. These rootlets were sprouting freely and soon make stocky little plants. A house of arbor vitæ cuttings and another of grafted stock on the native American, were taking nicely. Great quantities of bedding plants, coleus, geraniums, cannas, etc., are grown by the houseful. Several were filled with canna roots that had been divided and were shooting up vigorously. King Humbert was said to be scarce. A house of fuchsias was looking well. A very good demand was noted for the old favorite. Boston and Scotti ferns were quantity plants. They are never able to supply the demand. Several houses were filled with this stock. Asparagus Sprengeri and plumosus were large items, always in demand. Sprengeri, planted in the field in summer, makes a fine root growth.

Quite a lot of roses in from four to six-inch pots are grown for their retail catalogue trade, which is a large part of their business. A number of very strong plants of the new California rose, Los Angeles, just received from there, was in the assortment. Much of the imported English stock had arrived in had condition this fall. Manetti made it all right, though a number of large cases in the storage cellars, which had arrived frozen in a solid mass, were being slowly thawed out.

Palms are a feature, several large houses being filled with Kentia Forsteriana and Belmoreana from seedlings up to made-up plants in 10-inch tubs. One of the palm houses, still apparently in good condition, was erected over 45 years ago and the hot water apparatus and cast-iron pipe are still giving as good service as any on the place.

The nursery stock is one of the largest in the United States. Pears, of which they have an immense quantity in all the popular varieties, grow especially well with them, the soil and climate seeming to be exactly right. Peaches cover tens of acres, over one million trees being budded each season. So one might run on about the quantities of this great nursery.

In the busy spring and fall seasons as many as 140 cars have been loaded with stock in a week; sidings from two railway systems are laid into their packing sheds; over 400,000 feet of lumber is required each season for packing boxes.

They are famous for their field grown roses. Last season over 57 acres were devoted to field roses, over 600,000 of which they bud on Manetti.

Robert George.

Gen. Mgr., Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O.

Japanese Multiflora stocks are used for the hybrid teas. Six acres were planted with French and other hydrangeas for pot culture. Thirty thousand H. arborescens were not enough, and one could scarcely see across the white ocean of the paniculata field when in flower. Planting machines, plows, diggers, and all up-to-date machinery for expediting the work have been added as they proved efficient.

This business, which has grown to such large proportions, was founded in 1854. Two small greenhouses and a few acres formed the nucleus of the now great establishment. Officers are W. C. Harrison, president; Robert George, vice-president and general manager; J. H. Dayton, secretary and treasurer; C. H. Shumaker, assistant treasurer. Edward B. George is superintendent of the greenhouses and assistant general manager. Robert George, the general manager, has been associated with the company for 48 years and is still actively engaged; his great energy and knowledge of the business have had much to do with its success. He is ably supported by his son "Ed," as everybody knows him, who has energy plus and is very well versed in all the details of the business.

At Cleveland, O.

A. Graham & Son have quite an extensive range of glass at 12319 Euclid avenue, where carnations fill a large space. Easter and Christmas plants are largely grown for the store and the large cemetery trade at Lakewood. Dorothy Perkins roses trained to a wreath form are especially popular for lot decoration. Large quantities of bulbous stock are forced here. Lilacs are also a specialty. Mr. and Mrs. Adam Graham and their two daughters are wintering in the Isle of Pines.

Frank Friedley, of the Friedley Co., who now conducts the Eadie Greenhouses of over 100,000 feet of glass on Shaw avenue, is well pleased with the season and the outlook. Easter lilies are a specialty. Mr. Friedley has great success with giganteum lilies and here is the formula: Get them into cold storage as soon as possible, keep them there until December 20, then pot and keep in temperature of 60 degrees, not under, but on top of table in full light. His stock of 15,000, which looks very well, was planted from December 20-24. It showed above the soil January 8, covered the pots January 23; by parting foliage buds in sight, large enough to be counted on February 10 (as they come from this point in six weeks, and it is seven to Easter) he feels he is on the safe side with this important crop. Planting on arrival and potting outside to get root action is, he believes, a mistake—the great point is to get the bulb thoroughly ripened before starting, and there is then no trouble with roots or disease. The present stock plants knocked out showed the pot to be full of healthy white roots. When the buds were well formed he gave a little top dressing of tankage. A large quantity of bulbs is forced here. Lily of the valley is also a feature. Splendid field grown French hydrangeas appeared in fine shape for Easter.

At Baltimore, Md.

There are a number of greenhouse men in and about this city who are alive to their opportunities, keeping in touch at all times with the market and producing a percentage of high-grade stock that insures close to top-notch prices. Erdman & Ulrich, out on Belair road, have several large sections of well arranged houses. Their specialties are chrysanthemums, Easter plants, bulbous stock and bedding plants, cannas being a quantity item. Dahlias are also a feature, being extensively grown. Although their business is largely wholesale they always arrange displays of dahlias in the fall and with Easter plants for Palm Sunday. Their very commodious packing shed is decorated with palms, ferns, etc., in addition to the flowers and blooming plants. Over 5,000 persons visit their place on each of these occasions. General publicity, and the pleasure it gives the visitors, they feel amply repays them for their trouble. A rose range is forced to get the Christmas crop and then dried off and rested for six weeks to come in again at Easter. The varieties are the Killarneys. Results are satisfactory under this resting system.

W. C. Erdman, also on Belair road, grows quantities of callas. These are not rested, but planted out of doors, lifted in the fall and planted into six-inch pots the last of August. When he used to dry them off, he lost a good many from rot. Luminosa begonias are a quantity stock. Several houses of carnations looked well; young plants in four-inch pots, planted outside below the level of the soil, had grown well and lifted without check in the fall. He has found an electric motor much cheaper than gasoline for pumping water.

Michael Hilpert, another of the Belair road colony, has almost 60,000 feet of glass, which is managed in as economic a manner as possible to save labor. The authorities at Washington, who are trying to get a standard cost for heating greenhouses, found from data furnished by him, that his average cost for the season of seven months was $11\frac{1}{2}$ cents per thousand feet of glass covered area in each 24 hours, at a night temperature of 60° , while many growers could not do better than 13 cents per thousand. He uses a return tubular boiler, steam and gravity system. All his flow or heating pipes additional room and a quick, stocky growth. Mr. Hilpert never works his men overtime, not even at holidays; his practice is to plan ahead, and by having everything ready, it is possible by working under pressure to get everything out in the regular hours.

Carnations, calandulas, snapdragon and asparagus are specials with Matthew Richmond, who has several detached ranges in this community of growers. Pot cinerarias are also a feature of which he has several houses filled with splendid plants. Several eas and roses. A large house of snapdragons is a feature. Rust is avoided by keeping all water from the foliage, spraying with nicotine being relied upon to keep down the insects.

F. C. Bauer, in the Govans district, has a compact range of houses, connected by a commodious shed that are conducted very efficiently, one crop following another immediately room is available. Roses for cuttings are grown on benches in summer; cuttings rooted inside when the wood is ripe in the fall. Stock plants are potted and wintered outside and come on for spring sales. Christmas stock follows the roses and is later used for callas from pit frames outside. A portion of the calla stock is grown in a novel way. Four bulbs in the early fall are planted together in eight-inch pots; these are then stood in 12-inch tubs kept filled with water, where they thrive and produce wonderfully, each pot carrying five to six buds in sight all the season. A large house of Radiance roses are grown on rather high benches, underneath which were large plants of aspidistras, giving him a velvet crop that cost nothing for space and were always more or less in demand at good money. Mr. Bauer has a novel idea of conserving the path or walk space in greenhouses. For purposes of watering or gathering crops this is in use but a short time each day, and he thinks that a bench might be arranged to slide under the stationary tables to open the path and back again to the light, thus adding at least 20 per cent to the efficiency of a house. He had made a Crimson Rambler rose over the porch to bloom all summer by budding its long shoots with eyes from the short growing, ever-blooming baby type. The first spring buds he pinched off so as not to conflict with the rambler; these soon came on again and gave a fine crop of flowers all summer. This is quite a stunt and might be worked commercially in many places.

Isaac H. Moss has a very well appointed place on Bellona avenue and a large nursery at Govans. There was a house of specimen palms, an extensive range of roses, several houses of varied stock, of which callas were a feature; a bed of potted plants, some 200 feet in length, being filled with flowers.

Fifty-Acre Field of Roses.

are overhead, only the returns being brought down. One of his economies is a one-inch hose with which he can water twice as fast as the $\frac{3}{4}$ size. In France, of which country Mr. Hilpert is a native, the gardeners use a two-inch hose with a rose, because it is so much quicker and he has found the one inch a great time saver. He has advanced ideas about watering. No plant suffers from too much water, that is fresh water, but if stagnant, yes. It is a great mistake to withhold water from plants that are not doing well; what they want is more water and plenty of it, to wash out the stale water and other impurities in the soil. Carnations, sweet peas, callas, everything, would do better with much more water than they usually get. He has cured rot in callas by washing it out with the hose. Calla bulbs never rot near a dripping spigot. Table ferns are a feature, being economically grown in quantity. A partition between two houses is of glass. Along the sill at the back of the side table are standing at intervals, varieties of ferns in from four to six-inch pots full of seed bearing fronds. when the house is watered, these get a dash with the hose and the seed is carried down to the ground under the bench, where an abundant stock of young plants are always to be found. Nothing could be more simple or a better intensive use made of greenhouse space. Under a side bench was a bed of Asparagus plumosus, from which quite a crop is cut during the season. All his geranium cuttings are obtained from stock plants in pots along the walk under a bench. The plants had been there for three years. Shelf space over benches he found of great advantage, particularly for young Boston ferns, giving narrow sash houses 12x175 feet are planted with asparagus plumosus, which has been growing here for a number of years; it is tied to short strings and grown to be at its best in January and February, when in the scarcity of that time it readily brings 50 cents a bunch, all strings being cut up and sold as sprays; 900 bunches is about the product of one house. The calandulas, grown cool in ground beds, are wonderfully fine.

James Glass, a neighbor, makes a specialty of Easter stock, having several houses of lilies, hydrangeas, spir-

PLANT NOTES.

Seeds for March Sowing.

The middle of March is the proper time for the sowing of the main crop of summer annuals. The seedsmen have seen that the growers have the catalogues, and the lists of the wants for the year should be made out at once, if not already done, and the seeds procured and sown. How often have we seen good growers spending valuable time during the busy days of May and June hunting for some small stock that could have been easily grown, but was neglected at the proper time. It is a good time now to look back at the sales of the last year or two and note what lines of stock were in short supply or were carelessly omitted. Such matters as this are the little things that count in a successful business, for the time taken in hunting up and procuring the cheaper kinds of stock during the busy season more than eats up all the profit received in handling it. The seeds that should be sown now are almost endless in variety, and they include asters, Phlox Drummondii, zinnias, marigolds, balsams, antirrhinums, begonias, calendulas, celosias, cobæas, cosmos, gauras, mignonette, nicotianas, nasturtiums, petunias, salpiglossis, ricinus, salvias, scabiosa, stocks, thunbergias and others that may be demanded. With the exception of Cobæa scandens, mignonette and ricinus, which should be sown in pots, these can all be sown in flats, and as soon as large enough, transplanted to pots or spaced in flats, and good stock be had for summer bedding.

Iceland Poppies.

A beautiful cut flower for summer use not often grown is the Iceland poppy. While it is a perennial, yet it can be treated as an annual if the seed is sown early and the plants transplanted. Seeds sown in March will bloom the coming summer, and the varieties of color range through the yellow and orange to white. The petals have a peculiar satiny texture and are beautifully crumpled, and if the flowers are picked in the early morning they will stand in water for a long time and are very decorative. There are few annuals that will attract more attention than a vase of these lovely poppies arranged with appropriate green, and besides they have a delicious fragrance. They are easily grown, and if the flowers are kept picked will continue to bloom all summer. Another poppy that can be grown for cut flowers is the Shirley poppy, but the flowers do not last as well as the Iceland poppies.

Camellias.

While it is a question if the camellia will ever become as popular as it was years ago, yet there seems to be a growing demand for the blooms of the "Japonica" as it was so familiarly known to the grandparents of the present generation, and the flowers are well adapted to certain classes of work or occasions. A few dwarf plants are now also seen in flower in some of the stores. They are easily grown, the prime requisite being a cool house, one with a night temperature of 45 degrees to 50 degrees, and the constant care throughout the year that all hard-wooded plants require. The large specimens which are grown for cut blooms may be planted in the ground of the house, first spading in a quantity of leaf-mold and rotted cow manure. The smaller plants are generally grown in pots, firmly planted in the same kind of soil, with plenty of drainage. They do not need repotting often and when done the shift should be to only one size larger, and this should be done just after the plant is through flowering, for it then starts to make its growth for another season. When the growth starts the plants should be given plenty of water and frequently syringed; in fact, careful watering is the one thing necessary in their culture. They should never become dry, and during the hot days of summer frequent syringings are required, which also greatly assists in keeping down mealy bug and scale, the only two insects to which the plant is subject. The cause of the buds dropping, which will sometimes occur, can invariably be traced to the plant becoming dry some time during its growth. During the summer, heavy shade over the plants will be required and an abundance of air should be provided at this time.

Lilacs for Easter.

A large variety of blooming plants can be grown for Easter, and dwarf, shapely lilacs are appreciated by all flower lovers, and the cut sprays have now become a standard winter flower. For the pot plants the imported budded stock is preferable, but for cut blooms any lilac may be lifted and they force quickly and easily in a warm house. The varieties most grown for pot plants are Marie Lagraye, white, and Charles X, purple. Four weeks in a temperature of 65 degrees will bring them into flower. The plants when placed in the greenhouse should be syringed several times a day in order to assist the buds to swell and kept in a dark place. As soon as the buds begin to open the plants can be placed in full sunlight. The common lilac can be forced in the same manner. A bush, which is well set with flower buds, and these are easily distinguished from the leaf buds, can be lifted and planted in a bench and will furnish fine sprays of flowers. If the plant is kept shaded from the sun by spreading a heavy cloth over it the flowers of the purple varieties will be white when forced. The plants will require plenty of water, for they make but little root growth and bloom upon the vitality which has been stored.

Rambler Roses.

The plants of rambler roses that are intended for Easter blooming should now be showing color and if they are not, they will require quite a little forcing to have them in the best of condition for that date. If the plants are at all potbound, watering with liquid manure will be of great assistance to them and stimulate the flowers and make them much larger and an addition of soot to this will intensify the color. The plants will often, when setting the buds, make long growths from the base of the plants; these should be cut out, for they are taking much strength that should go into the flowers. These canes can be made into cuttings and propagated and will make small plants for next year's growing or can be planted outside and grown on for stock for the future.

There is always a good demand for well-grown pot ramblers for Memorial day and early June, and plants started now will be in the best of condition at that time. They can be started in a cool house and frequently syringed until the eyes break, when they can be moved into warmed quarters and full sunlight. For June decoration there is nothing better in blooming plants than Crimson Rambler and the other rambler roses and hydrangeas; they make a beautiful combination and are also very decorative for porches.

The Rapid Wrapper Co.

The Rapid Wrapper Co., manufacturer of the Rapid Wrapper and other time-saving wrapping devices, with headquarters at 56 East Randolph street, Chicago, on the same floor with Percy Jones, Inc., wholesale florists, is having such a tremendous call for its specialty that it is impossible to fill all the orders immediately, but the outlook is that all Easter orders will be filled complete within 10 to 15 days. With a special sample outfit, including a handsome ornamental adjustable pedestal and 100 assorted sizes of wrappers, made from No. 1, 30-lb. Kraft paper, costing only $6 complete, a boy or girl can wrap a plant of any description in about six seconds. The Rapid Wrapper Co. has had several growers trying out the Rapid Wrapper for several months, and only after a thorough test decided that it was an article of merit and one that every florist could use to good advantage. In order to wrap a plant all that is necessary to do is to place the plant on the pedestal, draw the wrapper up and tie the strings that are attached to it, together, and the plant is ready for delivery. The wrappers are made in all sizes and cost less than the old newspapers that are ordinarily used for this purpose, and besides, there is no danger of bruising the plant like there is in the old way. One of the largest plant growers in the west has ordered six outfits, and if they stand the test, which they are bound to do, he will use this style of wrapping exclusively in the future. The feature, outside of being the greatest time and money saving wrapping device for the florist that appealed to this plant grower, was the fact that after the plant was wrapped the soil was all in the pot and not in the paper, always objectionable in the past. Further particulars regarding the Rapid Rapper may be had on application, and illustrations showing a plant before and after it is wrapped appear in the advertisement elsewhere in this issue.

Chicago Novelty Show.

The exhibition of novelties and other flowers in connection with the regular March meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club brought out a good attendance, which was augmented on this occasion by Prof. H. B. Dorner and a large delegation of his floricultural students from the state university at Champaign. President W. H. Amling presided for the first time since his election, his health being much improved and, after thanking the members for the honor conferred upon him, in a brief but well considered address, called upon them to unite in making this the banner year of the club in attendance and accomplishment. John Sinner, M. C. Wright, Arthur M. Luedtke, Geo. F. Kastelnik and Chas. Niemann were elected to membership and T. E. Waters was reinstated. The proposals for membership included H. G. MacLellan, Hammond, Ind.; E. A. Bebb, Morgan Park, and Eugene G. Bowen, 3167 Broadway. Announcement was made of the coming exhibitions at New York, March 15-22; St. Louis, March 15-17; Philadelphia, March 20-23, and Boston, March 21-25. Chairman Lautenschlager of the St. Valentine's day posterette committee reported progress and was allowed $100 for his services on this committee. The report shows sales of posterettes and posters to the amount of $1,761.60, expenses (not including the chairman's remuneration), $572.76, outstanding, $117.85.

A letter was read from Mrs. Lyman A. Walton, president of the Chicago Chapter of the Wild Flower Preservation Society of America, asking for the co-operation of the club in the work of this organization. Prof. H. B. Dorner, of the state university floricultural department, who spoke on this subject, said the florists were not much to blame for the destruction of our native flowers as they greatly preferred to sell the more expensive cultivated kinds, but urged the members to assist the preservers of native flowers in every way possible and the club voted to co-operate.

President Amling appointed the following committees to report on the exhibits: Roses, Ernst Amling, Joseph Kohout and W. J. Keimel; carnations, Prof. H. B. Dorner, W. F. Duntemann and Fred Schramm; bulbous and other stock, Ed Goldenstein, A. H. Schneider and A. Erickson.

The chicken dinner was voted a great success, the ladies in attendance including Mrs. C. L. Washburn, Mrs. A. Lange, Mrs. Allie Zech, Mrs. Herbert Stone and Miss O'Connell. The speakers included Fred Lautenschlager, P. J. Foley and Prof. Dorner.

University of Illinois Inspection Trip.

Seventeen members of the Floricultural Club of the University of Illinois visited Chicago on an inspection trip, March 8-11. On Thursday evening, March 8, they were the guests of the Chicago Florists' Club at a chicken dinner and later at their monthly meeting. The spirit of good fellowship so evident at this gathering made a lasting impression upon the visitors. An interesting novelty exhibition was held in conjunction with this meeting.

On March 9 several of the leading wholesale and retail stores were visited. A thorough inspection was made of the immense A. L. Randall Company supply house, where they were shown the manufacture of many florist novelties. After taking luncheon with P. J. Foley, a visit was paid to the Vaughan Greenhouses at Western Springs, where the students were given an opportunity of seeing the large and varied stock required for a catalogue trade. Later in the afternoon, the Gregg Station greenhouses of Bassett & Washburn were visited and the boys were shown about by the genial Andrew Benson. In addition to the well-grown stock, the well designed packing houses and boiler plant were points of especial interest.

On Saturday morning the first stop was made at the Robey street establishment of Peter Reinberg. The party was shown about the place by Emil Reichling, who called to the attention of the members the methods of propagating and growing used at this place. The next stop was made at the notable establishment of the Pochlmann Bros. at Morton Grove. Here the party had the pleasure of going through the plant, cutflower and orchid departments with the hospitable August Pochlmann. After luncheon the party proceeded to Plant B, where they were shown about by Adolph Pochlmann. Of especial interest here were the large vats where the fertilizer was prepared for this immense rose establishment. Late in the afternoon the party arrived at Frank Oechslin's, where was seen a large assortment of excellently grown decorative plants. Mr. Oechslin explained many interesting points concerning the culture of these plants.

The opportunity of visiting this large number of places was made possible through the courtesy of Adolph Pochlmann, August Pochlmann, Herman Bruns, and the Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Company, who placed their automobiles at the disposal of the visitors. A. G. H.

State Florists' Association of Indiana.

The monthly meeting of the above association was held at Lafayette, March 7 and was a large and representative gathering. After an inspection of the large and perfectly conducted range of the F. Dorner & Sons Co. the party motored to the Lafayette club, where billiards, pool, etc., were indulged in, followed by a splendid luncheon. When the last course had been disposed of, President Irwin Bertermann called the business meeting to order and made a strong talk on the necessity of raising the prices of both flowers and floral work. He was followed by Walter Coles of Kokomo, Mr. Haugh, formerly of Anderson, Fred Dorner and others, who cited many instances where it had been demonstrated that quality, service, reputation, etc., were the essential factors in the business, price being secondary. Fred Dorner emphatically stated that the time to increase prices was now and advocated a raise of 15 per cent on everything, although increased cost of growing, supplies, etc., in some instances was 100 per cent.

Mr. Haugh, for 21 years a member of the association, was unanimously elected an honorary member, as was J. D. Carmody of Evansville. Mr. Haugh is arranging to locate in the south. Mr. Fischer, representing Hilmer V. Swenson Co., addressed the meeting on the subject of "Co-operative Advertising for Mothers' Day."

After the meeting, the entire party visited Purdue University, where the faculty took pleasure in showing the visitors what that institution was doing for the advancement of floriculture.

The Messrs. Dorner are to be congratulated on the splendid manner in which the details of the meeting were carried out under their able direction, for which the visitors tendered them a hearty vote of thanks. At the close of the meeting, wholesalers and retailers alike, signified their intention of raising prices and there is reason to feel that general benefit will result.

The feature of the April meeting, which will be held at Indianapolis, will be an address on "Store Salesmanship." A. H.

New York Florists' Club.

The club met in its rooms in the Grand Opera House building on the night of March 12, President Stumpp in the chair. There was a very large attendance. Charles Weathered, for the flower show committee, reported a very promising outlook for the show, which opens March 15. Arthur Herrington read a memorial on the late Samuel Batcheler.

A. L. Miller reported over 300 tickets sold for the dinner, which will be at the Biltmore hotel on the night of March 17.

James McHutchison made an extended address in opposition to the proposed quarantine law, in congress, against the importation of nursery stock. The club will co-operate with the Society of American Florists in this matter, a motion to that effect being carried.

Max Schling and others spoke on "Shipping of Cut Flower and Plant Stock by Express." This matter, we understand, will be laid before the executive committee of the Society of American Florists.

A number of exceptionally fine exhibits were staged, as follows: Robert Simpson, Clifton, N. J., vase of roses, sport of J. L. Mock; S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, Pa., vase of roses, sport of Sunburst; P. J. Smith, New York, vase of one dozen Hadley roses, grown by A. S. Burns, Spring Valley, N. Y. It is safe to say that this was the finest vase of any red rose ever exhibited in this city. The stems were at least four feet in length, and stout and the buds were correspondingly good. A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., exhibited a vase of the rose Mrs. Wm. Randolph Hearst. Edward Towill, Roslyn, Pa., exhibited a vase of the seedling rose, Golden Gem, yellow. Weber & Don, New York, staged a vase of Matchless forcing mignonette. Peter Beuerlin, Elmhurst, N. Y., exhibited Tulips White Hawk, La Reine, Flamingo, Herman Schoelzel and Ophir D'Or, and Narcissus Glory of Sassenheim. Alfred Demeusey, Brooklyn, N. Y., showed his sport of Carnation Enchantress.

Seventeen names were proposed for membership. Chairman Kessler and his associates on the house committee furnished ample refreshments.

New members were elected as follows: A. W. McMillan, Hudson Heights, N. J.; Eugene K. Baumann, Rahway, N. J.; L. C. L., Smith, Long Island City; Chas. Guillioz, Southampton, N. Y.; John P. Gilbanks, William Kather, Willard Kervan, Frank R. Martin, J. M. Millert, Costas Sakelos, J. J. Fellouris, Sun Fukura and C. W. Feld, New York.

The following awards were made on the exhibits:

Rose Hadley, by P. J. Smith; committee recommended cultural certificate; "excellent vase of roses." Rose, sport of J. K. L. Mock, by Robert Simpson, 86 points. Rose Golden Gem, by Edward Towill; committee would like to see it again; thanks of the club, Rose, Mrs. Wm. Randolph Hearst, by A. N. Pierson, Inc.; thanks of club. Rose, sport of Sunburst, by S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., committee would like to see it again; thanks of club. Carnation, sport of Enchantress, by Alfred Demeusey; committee would like to see it again; thanks of club. Tulips and narcissus by Peter Beuerlin, thanks of club. A. F. F.

Fort Wayne, Ind.

With the advent of warmer weather the supply of stock has increased. Roses are in exceptionally good supply, Mrs. George Shawyer being the leader. Carnations are plentiful and the same is true of bulbous stock. Funeral work has been in the lead for the past week and there has been an overwhelming demand for Easter and calla lilies. Flowers for hospital purposes are also having a heavy call.

NOTES.

W. J. Vesey commenced the construction of his range in South Fort Wayne 25 years ago, six houses being erected at that time. This establishment, now conducted under the firm name of W. J. & M. S. Vesey, has 30 houses devoted to roses, carnations, chrysanthemums and a variety of bulbous and bedding stock. Six houses are now devoted to orchids exclusively.

The Flick Floral Co. is having its store redecorated in ivory. A large screen is being designed for the rear of the shop and an electrical fountain from A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, will be installed and add much to the attractiveness of the establishment.

Visitors: I. M. Bayersdorfer, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia; J. E. Quallich and Orlando F. Bayyalia, representing A. L. Randall Co., Chicago. H. K.

FAIR SUPPLY AND MODERATE DEMAND.

The market is fairly well supplied with stock of all kinds and business is fair. Roses are in a large and excellent supply. American Beauties are rather scarce, the few that are available being of a poor quality. Sweet peas are plentiful and generally prove good property. The price they are bringing, however, is rather low. Excellent daffodils, jonquils, hyacinths and tulips may be had. Easter lilies are in a fair supply. Other offerings include callas, rubrum lilies, snapdragons, lily of the valley and violets.

NOTES.

The monthly meeting of the florists' society was held March 12, at the Hotel Gilson. Only routine business was transacted.

P. J. Olinger's greenhouses were not touched by the recent tornado which struck New Castle, Ind.

C. E. Critchell has received another lot of plant and tumbler baskets for his Easter trade.

Hardesty & Co. have been showing some excellent azaleas in their windows this week.

The Wm. Murphy Co. has been receiving outdoor daffodils from the south.

Miss Mae Carroll is at Miami, Fla. H.

Kansas City, Mo.

RECORD-BREAKING BUSINESS FOR LENT.

Another big week's business has just closed, adding a new record for the Lenten season. The bulk of the demand is for funeral orders, an exceptionally large number of deaths being recorded. The demand in other lines has also been very good. Cut stock in roses, carnations, lilies, sweet peas and bulbous stock is plentiful and prices are reasonable. Pot plants of cinerarias, rhododendrons, primroses, azaleas and the bulbous varieties are meeting with a record-breaking call. The same is true of made-up baskets.

NOTES.

W. J. Barnes reports one of the busiest weeks for the season in the history of his establishment, with heavy demand for funeral work and hospital flowers. Pot plants of all kinds sell well and he has had numerous decorations for spring openings in the stores.

Henry Kusik, of H. Kusik & Co., has purchased a Buick automobile. Henry is now doing all in his power to learn the "safety first" system in its control. Business is good with this firm and seasonable stock is plentiful.

Mr. Elberfield of the Alpha Floral Co. will soon start to erect his new home on his 20-acre tract west of Overland park. He will also pay some attention to raising fancy Leghorn chickens.

T. J. Noll & Co. are enjoying a good out-of-town trade and are well supplied with stock of good quality. This firm is now showing a fine line of baskets and Easter novelties.

Pot plants and made-up baskets in large variety are seen at the Wm. L. Rock Flower Co.'s establishment. The call for funeral flowers and decorations is unusually brisk.

A. F. Barbe reports good general business. He is cutting fine carnations and a variety of bulbous stock. His cut of roses this winter has been unusually large.

Miss Jennie Murray is making preparations for a big Easter trade and is having a good call for funeral and hospital flowers in addition to pot plants.

Arthur Newell says business is good in all departments, but especially heavy as far as funeral work is concerned.

Fred Fromholt reports funeral work keeps his stock well cleaned up daily.

LENTEN MARKET CONDITIONS NORMAL.

The second week in Lent was a great improvement over the week previous. Due to much dark weather, roses and sweet peas especially shortened up greatly, while it affected most lines. By the end of the week market conditions were quite normal and we trust they will continue so for some time. The green goods situation has improved enough so that all orders can again be filled.

NOTES.

The season of the spring openings of the larger dry goods stores was started by the T. A. Chapman Co., who had their windows ornamented with foliage plants and beds of blooming spring stock last week, the work of the A. F. Kellner Co. This week the majority of the other larger stores follow suit and it kept the Kellner force on the jump to meet all the demands. One of the windows, with birch bark boxes filled with pink begonias, trailing vincas in bloom, with golden privets as a background, made a very delicate and attractive effect.

After submitting to four operations since December 19 for stomach trouble, and during which time he suffered much but still had hopes for recovery, Alfred F. Schiller passed away at St. Joseph's hospital March 8, aged 45 years. After making mushroom growing his business for some time, he opened a flower store at 27th and Center streets a few years ago. Being inexperienced, it was a big task, which made it all the harder to meet competition. He is survived by his wife and two children, Raymond and Robert. The funeral was held March 12, with services at Forest Home chapel, after which the body was cremated. Being of a genial disposition, he was beloved by all who knew him, and the many floral tributes proved that he had many friends who mourn his demise.

Question: Due to the higher cost of overhead expenses since last summer, will the selling price of bedding stock remain the same it has been for the past five years? Now is the time to think it over.

In the report of the local florists' club carnation night in the last issue, the writer unintentionally forgot to mention that Gust A. Pohl showed a vase of well grown mixed carnations.

Philadelphia Notes.

The christening ceremony at the opening of the rose festival may have to be omitted, as it seems so difficult to secure a sufficient quantity of a seedling sort with which to make a demonstration. Among the 25 varieties of roses in pots that will be used in the H. A. Dreer exhibit will be some of the famous Los Angeles, said to be one of the finest varieties ever introduced. The plants are all larger and better flowered than those of last spring, which is saying a great deal.

The Robert Craig Co. reported that $7.75 is the price for anthracite coal and $9.00 per ton for bituminous. Some growers have had to pay as high as $10.00 for the bituminous, while for next season's delivery prices are not certain and contracts will not be given for more than half the season's order.

A Japanese store has been opened at 35 North 8th street, the arrangement of which would be an eye opener to many retail dealers. All kinds of Jap bric-a-brac in rose bowls, etc., is displayed and how so much stock can be gotten in this small store is worth seeing.

Pennock Brothers are displaying their Easter tubs and baskets. The tubs are painted white with flower decorations. They are very chic. Pink ramblers, blue hyacinths and blue ribbons were the combination.

J. Otto Thilow had an interesting article on "Vegetables for the Back Door Garden," in the Evening Telegraph, March 8. It was a timely and well written treatise on the best vegetables and their culture.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. are making a hit with their new art fibre ribbon, very appropriate for decorating Easter plants and baskets. Orders for Easter stock are coming in from all parts of the country.

Michaelson Brothers, of 55th and Walnut streets, have opened a retail store on 52nd street below Walnut, where in this hustling thoroughfare they expect to greatly increase their business.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co. have never had so much business. An all night force now provides a 24-hour service, the first time in the history of the business that this has been found necessary.

Wm. A. Baker, eldest son of Wm. J. Baker, died in Allegheny City, March 4. Mr. Baker was at one time active in his father's business and became noted as a most efficient salesman.

The Leo Niessen Co. is featuring roses, their growers making a very good showing. Acacia and high grade sweet peas are also seen in quantity.

Orange blossoms from the Wm. A. Leonard greenhouses in Landsdowne are the feature of the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange.

Alfred M. Campbell is proud of his fine stock of Easter lily plants. James Boyle, a poinsettia specialist, is now with Mr. Campbell.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. received the first North Carolina arbutus on Monday last. Very fine stock it was.

Edward Reid is featuring high grade sweet peas, carnations, and lily of the valley. Choice cattleyas are also in stock.

Columbus Florists' Association.

That the new Columbus Florists' Association is going to meet the needs permanently of co-operation among members of the local trade, was evidenced by another large and interesting meeting held at the Neil house, March 12. The principal feature was the reading of a paper on "Advertising," by Walter Stephens, vice-president of the organization. It was a carefully-prepared effort, going into the various phases of florists' publicity. With regard to advertising for special days, Mr. Stephens challenged the argument so often put up by dealers, to the effect that inasmuch as they had all they could do anyway at such times the boosting process was a waste of money. He showed how any kind of attractive advertising made a cumulative impression on the public and helped to increase the demand for flowers all the year around. Growing out of a discussion of this paper, a committee was appointed, with Mr. Stephens as chairman, to take up the question of co-operative advertising for Easter and report at the next meeting.

Another subject discussed was the unnecessary hardship fastened upon greenhouse owners by a recent enactment of the Ohio legislature requiring two licensed boiler tenders. The point was brought out that through proper organized effort this measure might have been defeated, and that only through co-operation could trade abuses of any nature be combated. The association now has between 30 and 40 members, and meets twice a month. The educational feature will be kept prominent, a paper to be read on each occasion. At a previous meeting, R. F. Winter gave an instructive address on "Sweet Peas."

STOCK PLentiful WITH FAIR MOVEMENT.

Stock is quite plentiful in all varieties and grades. Short roses for funeral work are moving nicely, but long grades are not so plentiful. Bulbous stock is moving better but continues quite abundant. Sweet peas, lily of the valley, violets, etc., are in heavy supply just now, and "sweet pea blankets" are frequent orders. Carnations are cleaning up daily. White have been rather scarce. Asparagus is still short of the demand. Snapdragons and freesias are good stock. Calendulas are having a good call. Business in general the past week has shown marked improvement.

NOTES.

Claude Tyler and family, of North Olmstead, O., are visiting relatives at Milwaukee, Wis.

A. M. Coe, of North Olmstead, O., is still confined to his bed on account of illness.

MANY growers do not seem to appreciate the fact that bulbs are the better for a rest and being ripened by a touch of frost before planting. Success along these lines has been fully demonstrated by a number of lily specialists.

Moon Vines from Cuttings.

The Storrs & Harrison Co. Painesville, Ohio, force a lot of moon vines for cuttings. Propagation is rapid in this way. It is claimed of the plants grown from cuttings, that they flower much quicker than those raised from seed.

Philadelphia Rose Festival.

TIME OF STAGING.

The rose festival of the American Rose Society at Philadelphia, Pa., will open at 2:00 p. m., Tuesday, March 20.

Staging must be finished by 12:00 noon each day. Exhibits of commercial cut roses and plants are to be staged March 20, non-commercial exhibits of roses will be staged March 21, and the rose display is scheduled for Thursday, March 22.

American Rose Society.

The executive committee met in Philadelphia, March 7. The minutes of the last meeting were read, and the roses presented for registration, which had been referred to a committee, were ordered registered and published.

Edward Towill, Roslyn, Pa., registered a new seedling yellow rose, Golden Gem, a cross of Lady Hillingdon and H. Kirk; color, golden yellow; strong stem and free bloomer.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., registered three rose novelties to be disseminated in 1918, as follows:

Mrs. Belmont Tiffany (Hybrid tea), a sport from Sunburst. Color, golden yellow, shading to apricot-orange at the base of the petals, the whole suffused in delicate pink—a distinct and glorified Sunburst.

Mrs. Charles Bell (Hybrid tea), a sport from Radiance. Color, light or shell-pink on a salmon-shaded background. Superior in growth to Radiance, being equally vigorous but more robust in habit.

Elizabeth Zeigler (Wichuraiana hybrid), a sport from Dorothy Perkins, but quite distinct. Color, deep rose-pink. Equally vigorous and free in flowering.

E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., registered:

Columbia, a large habited upright grower with large size foliage, producing long stiff stems, and bearing a big flower of bright pink which deepens as the flower matures.

Double Ophelia, very similar to the parent in everything save the fullness of the flower, this variety having twice as many petals as the parent; very clear and brilliant in color.

Rose Premier, may be described as a Mrs. Russell, of very easy culture and magnificent in size, form and foliage, and with a perfectly erect stem; deep rose pink.

Mary Hill, of Sunburst type, improved in habit, foliage and growth, with immense bud and flower, of cream color with deep orange center.

A communication was received from Portland, Ore., in regard to the rose test garden, and the resolution as adopted at the February meeting is:

Resolved, that the application made by the Portland association, national rose test garden, be hereby accepted, and that the executive committee of the American Rose Society does hereby officially designate Portland, Ore., as the site for the official rose test garden of the Pacific Northwest, and as a committee representing the American Rose Society, the following gentlemen of that city are appointed to fill the position: J. A. Currey, 1943 North 13th street; A. J. Clark, 287 Morrison street; Alfred Tucker, 376 North 32nd street.

A committee was appointed to revise the rules of registration for new roses and to prepare a uniform form for registration purposes. The committee appointed was J. Horace McFarland, Geo. C. Thomas, Jr., and Wallace R. Pierson.

The list of gentlemen accepting the position of judges was read, and the following designations were made, judges to report at noon, March 20:

Group of 100 cut blooms—J. H. Dunlop, Toronto, Ont.; Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit, Mich.; Patrick Welsh, Boston, Mass.

For class of 50 cut blooms—Frank H. Traendly, New York; George Asmus, Chicago; Eugene Dalledouze, Brooklyn, N. Y.

For class of 25 blooms—Fred Burki, Pittsburgh, Pa.; F. C. W. Brown, Cleveland, O.; S. A. Anderson, Buffalo, N. Y.

For rose plants—A. B. Cartledge, Philadelphia, Pa.; Admiral Aaron Ward, Roslyn, N. Y.; J. H. Small, Washington, D. C.

For best display of cut roses by commercial growers on Thursday, March 22—A. B. Cartledge, Philadelphia, Pa.; Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit, Mich.; J. H. Dunlop, Toronto, Ont.

For exhibit by private growers, Wednesday, March 21—12 of each variety and six hybrid perpetuals—Alexander B. Scott, Sharon Hill, Pa.; J. P. Habermehl, Philadelphia, Pa.; Geo. Morrison, Baltimore, Md.

L. J. Reuter was appointed a committee on behalf of the American Rose Society to perfect arrangements in the matter of an outdoor rose show to be held July 4 at Newport, R. I.

BENJAMIN HAMMOND, Sec'y.

Exhibition Opportunities.

For those who can spare the time, a rare opportunity is presented to view the best of this season's horticulture in the three great shows of New York, Philadelphia and Boston. They dovetail together nicely, the New York show opening March 15, running with new features until March 25. Philadelphia's exhibition opens on March 20 for four days, while Boston, beginning March 21, continues for five days. In addition to the rock and rose gardens, grouping of plants, and the exceptional quality of the cut flowers, all varieties of which are now at their best, the principal retailers of each city will be represented with examples of their work, showing the latest up-to-date ideas in arrangement and color combinations.

Any one who wants to keep in touch with the evolutions of the business should not miss these fine exhibitions and the chance to meet the best men in all branches of the craft.

The St. Louis show, March 15-17, affords similar opportunities to the western trade.

New York Federation of Societies.

There will be a meeting of the New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs in the secretary's office at the New York flower show, in Grand Central Palace, at 4 p. m., Monday, March 19. The various affiliated societies are requested to appoint delegates to attend this meeting, for important matters concerning legislation regarding a horticultural building at the state fair grounds in Syracuse, are to be considered.

E. A. WHITE, Sec'y.

New Castle Tornado.

A severe storm visited the well known rose growing center, New Castle, Ind., March 11, doing considerable damage to the greenhouse property in that vicinity. Current reports are to the effect that the houses of F. J. Benthey & Co. are leveled and those of the Heller Bros. Co. seriously damaged, most of the other establishments suffering more or less loss of glass. It is understood the Benthey property is covered by insurance.

Dreer's New White Cannas Eureka

CANNAS

Our Own Introductions

Eureka. We consider this the best white flowering Cannas for all purposes to which Cannas are devoted. It is of robust constitution, growing four feet high, forming sturdy, shapely plants very quickly. Its free flowering tendency can be readily understood when we chronicle the fact that a small plant set out May 15th, three months later carried 15 immense heads of flowers. These are of a creamy-white, changing in full sun to a pure white. $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

Favorite. There have been many yellow Cannas spotted with carmine or crimson that were good; it is, therefore, particularly interesting to find a variety that in every way eclipses its many predecessors and for which we have singled out this sort. The color is a rich, deep golden-yellow, produced on tall stems high above the foliage. The red dots, which are not too pronounced, add to the piquancy of the flower, without detracting from the golden mass effect. 5 feet. 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.; $25.00 per 100.

Orange Bedder. A particularly attractive bedding variety of a bright orange with just sufficient scarlet suffusion to intensify the dazzling mass of color when the wide branching stems are covered with flowers. $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

The Gem. An entirely distinct spotted variety. The immense trusses of flowers are borne on upright branching stems well above the foliage, and are of deep cream or straw-yellow, spotted with deep carmine. $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

One each of the above 4 varieties for 75 cts.

TWO DISTINCT CANNAS—The Last Introductions Received from Germany in the Autumn of 1914

Lahneck. In this variety we have an entirely distinct departure and advance in the assortment of pink Cannas. First of all we have in Lahneck a free grower, producing an abundance of trusses on erect stalks, well above the foliage. The color is difficult to describe and convey an adequate impression of its worth. It is fundamentally rosy, but throughout the flowers there are lines and shadings of scarlet-carmine hues that add much to their brightness. Add to this a narrow pale-gold border and you may form a slight conception of the beauty of this novelty. 75 cts. each; $7.50 per dozen.

Scharfenstein. Another variety that is sure to take a place among the standard sorts as quickly as it becomes known. The beautifully formed, large round florets are produced in compact but graceful trusses well above the green foliage. The color is a unique light red salmon with orange and carmine suffusions that altogether forms a most attractive addition to the range of colors found in Cannas. You will like Scharfenstein. 75 cts. each; $7.50 per dozen.

For a complete list of Standard Varieties of Cannas see our current Wholesale List.

The regular meeting of the above society was held March 6 with John Lamont, superintendent of the J. A. Skinner estate, South Hadley, Mass. The chief business transacted was the adoption of a revised constitution and by-laws. The president was requested to convey the best wishes of the club to Prof. A. H. Nehrling for success in his business venture. All those who know him regret his leaving this locality. James Whiting gave a practical talk on chrysanthemums, which afforded both pleasure and profit, Mr. Whiting being notably successful with these plants at the M. A. C. greenhouses. H. E. Downer exhibited Lucifer and White Lady narcissi, large spikes of hyacinths in variety and Trillium grandiflorum.

"Hamburg Late White" Chrysanthemum

CERTIFICATE OF MERIT awarded by Chrysanthemum Society of America.

PICTURE was taken Dec. 10, 1916, and will give a good idea of the symmetrical form of flowers of "Hamburg Late White." These flowers were cut from plants grown from single stems and planted six inches each way.

"HAMBURG LATE WHITE" is pure white under all weather conditions, and is a sport of Maud Dean white, but has no trace of pink, as the original.

The average grower of chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle, and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. "Hamburg Late White" has been grown for the last four years, and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but for late white, one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November, by taking an early bud, but by selecting later buds, most of the flowers are cut during December, and would advise to select a late bud, as the later buds come somewhat fuller, and by selecting late buds, flowers can be had as late as the middle of January.

Keeping qualities are excellent, and where a light, graceful white flower is wanted, "Hamburg Late White" cannot be surpassed.

"Hamburg Late White" will be disseminated in the Spring of 1917. Plants will be ready for April delivery, and all orders will be filled in rotation.

EFFECT OF LENT SLIGHTLY FELT.

The mid-Lenten season is giving a severe test to the stability of the florist business, but the popularity of flowers is being easily maintained and the proof given that the people's love for the beautiful product of the green-houses is not seasonable, but continuous. The great variety of plants and cut flowers that are available during this penitential period is largely responsible for the people's interest and indulgence in them. The bulbous stock in both cut flowers and plants was never more abundant and attractive than at present and no real glut in any item is afflicting the market. Funeral work during the past week or 10 days has been especially heavy and some very expensive pieces have been sent out by some of the retailers. Anticipations of a banner Easter trade is shared by all the florists, and already extensive preparations are being made to properly care for it. The growers are booking heavy orders and already some of them report all stock sold of many items carried. This is true notably of Easter lilies and azaleas, and the limited stock of rhododendrons is also exhausted. The present heavy demands on the bulbous plants will leave only a fair supply for Easter, and the usual surplus after that big day will this year be happily avoided. The advent of spring is keenly cherished by the growers, many of whom experienced great hardships and anxiety due to the coal shortage; happily, though, none have sustained actual loss by freezing, though many were compelled to run a portion of their glass cold throughout the winter.

CLUB MEETING.

The club meeting, Thursday evening, March 8, was well attended. President E. A. Fetters was in the chair and compelled everyone present to plainly declare himself on the project of a flower show during Lent. Some were much in favor of it, but could see insurmountable difficulties in the way of a successful result, even with a meritorious show, as the time would be too short to properly advise the public and a fully compensating publicity of the florists' efforts would be in great doubt and the project was abandoned. A. Pochelon, who was appointed to secure speakers for the club on the subject of publicity, reported the engagement of two Cleveland experts to address the members after Easter. Frank Danzer, A. Pochelon and H. Forster were ap-

TRADE SHOWS SIGNS OF IMPROVEMENT.

Business the past week was a trifle better than it was the previous one and the market is gradually becoming steadier, although prices are not as good as they might be. The supply of American Beauty roses is steadily increasing but the demand seems to keep pace with the supply, consequently they are bringing very satisfactory prices considering the general market conditions. Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are very plentiful but are moving well at good prices and clean up as nicely as can be expected. The receipts of roses in general are gradually increasing and very fancy stock in all the varieties grown in this vicinity are obtainable at very reasonable figures. Ophelia, especially are reaching the market in larger quantities and there is no scarcity in any of the varieties offered, although at times one or two seem to move better than others. Carnations are in large supply and are to be had in quantity at bargain prices, but seem to be stiffening somewhat in price at this writing. Lilies are more numerous and the same holds true for callas. Sweet peas are in as large a supply as ever and have had a good call the past week owing to the warmer weather and the increased demand for corsages. Violets have moved better the past few days than they have for several weeks, but prices are nothing to speak of. Lily of the valley is holding its own and so are orchids and gardenias, which are off crop at present. Tulips, jonquils and daffodils are to be had in quantity at low figures. Freesias are not as plentiful as they have been and the same holds true for Paper White narcissus. Daisies, mignonette, snapdragons, feverfew and forget-me-nots are in good supply and some very choice southern gladioli are being offered. Greens are in good demand and certain items like Asparagus plumosus nanus and A. Sprengeri are considered good property. Blooming plants are seen featured in quantity everywhere and many large advance orders have already been placed. From present indications there will be a large supply of both cut flowers and plants for Easter, but it is advisable for everyone to place their orders well in advance, for if the demand is as brisk as in former years a grand clean-up in almost all lines may be expected.

NOTES.

The Chicago Feed & Fertilizer Company announces that its H. E. Humiston, who for the past year has been its special representative, calling on the florists and gardeners' trade, has been appointed manager of the florists' and gardeners' fertilizer department. In assuming management of this department, Mr. Humiston will continue to call on the trade and will be pleased to take up personally all inquiries pertaining to the use of fertilizers suitable for florists and gardeners.

A little baby boy named Robert Arnold Newcomb arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Newcomb at Honolulu, February 22. Bob feels greatly honored that his brother and wife should name the young patriot after him instead of the father of our country.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. report that telegrams from out-of-town points calling for stock were plentiful March 12, which was one of the best shipping days they have experienced for some time. This house is now booking advance orders for Easter.

Wiltgen & Freres have just installed a new safe and now have a splendidly equipped wholesale establishment. They have done nicely since they started in business and are gradually adding new growers as well as customers to their list.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner are manufacturing their own corsage shields, bridal bouquet holders, etc., for which they report a brisk demand. This house is handling a good supply of fancy blue sweet peas.

W. J. Smart, representing Knight & Struck, New York, called on the trade here this week, leaving March 13 for St. Louis, Mo., to attend the big spring flower show now being held in that city.

The E. C. Amling Co. is offering southern grown gladioli in the varieties Pink Beauty, Halley and Primulinus.

The Rapid Wrapper Co., manufacturer of the Rapid Wrapper, has received such an exceptionally large number of orders the past week that it has found it impossible to supply anywhere near the demand, which was much greater than anticipated, and overtaxed the capacity of their factory. This concern is so heavily overloaded with orders on Rapid Wrappers, especially on the sizes for Easter plants, that it will cause a delay from ten to fifteen days in shipping. Orders, however, will be filled in the order they have been received and every effort will be made to fill all Easter orders complete. Every florist should have one of these wrapping outfits, for it is the greatest time and money saving wrapping device the florists ever had an opportunity to buy.

George Fisher and M. W. Fisher, who are doing business under the name of George Fisher & Brother, florists, have rented the corner store on the main floor of the building they now occupy at 183 North Wabash avenue. The store will be fitted up immediately and should be ready for occupancy about April 1.

Wietor Bros. are cutting a fine supply of roses and carnations in all the leading varieties and report business as unusually good this week. The crops at the greenhouses are in splendid condition and extra large cuts are in sight for Easter.

H. Van Gelder, manager of Percy Jones, Inc., is suffering from a severe cold, but is attending to his duties as usual. This firm has had exceptionally good business so far this week, with an extra heavy out-of-town demand.

Kennicott Bros. Co. is pleased with its steady increase in its shipping business. J. E. Pollworth reports that March 12 was the best shipping day the concern ever had outside of the holidays.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are showing a large quantity of fancy lilies and report that they will have an extra large supply to offer for Easter.

C. Schlueter, of the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., who has been on the sick list for the past two weeks, is progressing slowly.

Mrs. Irene Williams, of the Atlas Floral Co., visited Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s greenhouse at Morton Grove, March 9.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is booking a large number of plant orders for Easter and from present indications will clean up quickly in all lines, for the early demand is extra heavy. Lilies, azaleas, hydrangeas, rambler roses, rhododendrons, lilacs, spirea and all other seasonable blooming stock is in large supply with them and the quality throughout would be difficult to improve upon. The supply department will occupy its new store on the second floor of the Stewart building for Easter and a special effort is being made to secure the store below on the main floor, which would greatly facilitate matters during the heaviest rush.

R. Williams, of Williams & Co., South Bend, Ind., was here this week, buying stock for Easter. He reports business good this season with a heavy run on funeral work. Mr. Williams and Lou Bunt of the Ernst Weinhoeber Co., are old chums and had a most pleasant visit with each other this week. They both went to school together at Trenarren, St. Austell, England.

F. Benthley made a trip to New Castle, Ind., March 11, to inspect the Benthley greenhouses, which were destroyed by the tornado on the afternoon of that day. The Benthley range according to reports received here, suffered much damage, but was fully covered by insurance. This range consists of over 100,000 square feet of glass.

E. C. Amling and family celebrated California Orange Day, March 10, at Orange, Calif., and remembered their many friends in this city with a postal in honor of the occasion. Mr. Amling writes that autoing through the mountains is greater sport than paddling down the Mississippi river in a canoe.

Anton Then has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his mother, whose death occurred Monday, March 12. She was 86 years of age and well-known to the trade in this vicinity. The funeral was held Thursday morning, March 15.

Fred Lautenschlager, representing the Kroeschell Bros. Co., has gone east to attend the New York, Philadelphia and Boston shows.

A. Dettman, of Dettman & Son, Milwaukee, Wis., visited friends here this week.

CHICAGO, ILL.

The western delegation for the semi-annual meeting of the S. A. F. executive committee and the eastern shows left March 14 on the Twentieth Century, including R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex., D. MacRorie, San Francisco, Calif., J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb., Frank Stuppy, St. Joseph, Mo., and Paul R. Klingsporn, W. J. Keimel, Ernst C. Amling, R. Salm, Paul Weiss, Wm. Graham and L. R. Bohannon, of this city. George Asmus expects to have recovered his health sufficiently to leave Friday, March 16, on the same train. The travelers were entertained at the Kaiserhof by the florists' club, previous to their departure. J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, it is understood, left from St. Louis, Mo.

Vaughan's Seed Store has had unusually heavy business in gladioli and cannas this season.

Pittsburgh, Pa.

BAD WEATHER AFFECTS BUSINESS.

The cold weather and heavy snow the first part of the week had its effects on business, but at that stock moves well in spite of the over supply of all flowers. Many sweet peas are coming in and sell at low prices. They are the finest this market has had for some time. The common varieties do not sell at all since the fancy Spencers are so plentiful. Carnations and roses hold their own. Tulips and daffodils are here in abundance and can be bought at almost any price; only the fancy varieties sell at a price, and not many of them. Greens are very scarce.

CLUB MEETING.

The lecture on "The Rio Grand and Cliff Dwellers of the Canyon of Colorado" was very well attended. The views shown and the talk by Prof. Jennings were very interesting to all. The meeting was well attended by ladies. A light lunch was served. It is planned to hold many more such affairs during the year. President Becherer, of Dixmont, had some very fine hyacinths at the meeting. The McCallum Co. showed a light colored yellow daisy, which was well thought of. D. T. Tyler, gardener for Mr. Armstrong, showed a very fine white cyclamen with 64 open flowers. Jas. Murphy, gardener for H. L. Mason of Sewickley, staged some fine plants of stocks and schizanthus. The next meeting will be held the first Tuesday of April. Easter plants and flowers will be the subject.

NOTES.

The Garden Club of Allegheny County has issued their final schedule of the Pittsburgh flower show, June 13-16, 1917. Some very large prizes are offered for commercial and private growers. Additional prize list and extra blank can be had by addressing Miss Priscilla S. Guthrie, 537 William Penn place, Pittsburgh, Pa. Arthur Herrington is manager of the show.

Harry Walthers of Youngstown, O., was in the city buying Easter plants and supplies.

Milton Alexander called on the trade this week.

SPECIAL SALES MOVE OVERSUPPLY.

Business during the past week has been good, stimulated by mild, sunny weather. Cut daffodils, tulips, jonquils and narcissi are flooding the market, and in order to move the oversupply week-end sales are being held. Violets are also being disposed of in large numbers at the Saturday sales. Roses are improving, but the prices continue high. Carnations are of excellent quality and are selling well. Lily of the valley is scarce, but Harrisii and calla lilies are in ample supply. In blooming plants there are azaleas, rhododendrons, cinerarias, lilac, primroses and all kinds of bulbous stock.

NOTES.

Mayor Edgerton, the Rochester Florists' Association and the Chamber of Commerce will give a floral exposition at Exposition park some time in September (date to be announced later), in which amateur florists as well as professionals will be given an opportunity to display the results of their skill. Mayor Edgerton has offered a silver cup for the best general amateur display. The florists' association is also offering a number of attractive prizes. The city of Rochester has for several years been noted far and wide for the floral beauty of the home grounds of its people. While this is the first time the mayor has actively led in the movement for still greater attractiveness of the homes in the matter of floral adornment, he has always given the movement his hearty support.

Maria Beatty Copsey, wife of Albert Copsey, died at her home, Lake avenue boulevard, March 7. Besides her husband, she leaves one daughter, May E., and two sons, Walter B. and A. Victor.

E. C. Kaerber recently had a pleasing window decoration, prominent in which was a handsome basket of yellow acacia and a fountain filled with daffodils and other flowers.

Arthur Beyers has been visiting relatives and friends in Buffalo and Erie.

Cut Flowers For Easter

It will be the best Easter we have ever had. Provide for a good supply and you cannot do better than let us supply you.

THE LEO NIESSEN CO., 1201-5 Race St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Philadelphia.

MARKET CONDITIONS MUCH IMPROVED.

The bright days of the past week have helped a lot and conditions are much better than a week ago. There is not much increase in the demand, but the street men have been out in force, and while they only pay about one-third price, yet they clean out the boxes and give the next week a good start. Roses are off crop, there being none too many of any kind. American Beauties are gaining, the fore-runner of the spring flowers that come so plentifully in April. The quantity stocks now are Easter and calla lilies; longiflorums appear to be overstocked with all the dealers. Daffodils are another quantity flower, as are sweet peas, although these meet with a fair demand. The quality is very fine. There are plenty of violets, but they appear to be losing their popularity; surely there will always be violets. Gardenias are offered on the street at low prices. Cattleyas of first quality are fairly plentiful, while lily of the valley easily meets the demand. The carnation section is well stocked, quality excellent and demand moderate. The fellow with a house of good asparagus has a miniature gold mine; it is very scarce and there is nothing in sight as a substitute.

THE ROSE FESTIVAL.

As time nears for the great rose festival, there is greater activity all along the line. The final schedule offers large prizes for the 200 square feet of space to be filled with arranged vases to be judged by a scale, the points to be 50 for quality, 20 for varieties and 30 for accessories. Thirty points for the ornamental "fixin's" looks like a good many, but the way such an exhibit is set up has much to do with the good impression that turns the needle toward first place and perhaps it is well to so emphasize this point. Gold, silver and bronze medals are to be awarded in addition to the liberal cash prizes in this division. The waltz written by Victor Herbert for the festival is called "The American Rose" and is said to be one of his best compositions. The smoker to be given in honor of the visitors on the evening of Wednesday, March 21, is scheduled for the Adelphia hotel roof garden.

NOTES.

J. Otto Thilow describes his trip to Honolulu as most delightful. A hedge of night blooming cereus 500 feet in length, full of flowers, was a remarkable sight, as were hedges of begonias in full flower, while Begonia venusta over gate posts and fences was gorgeous in its clouds of orange-colored blossoms. Farleyense was most luxurious in greenhouses without any artificial heat. The whole island was a paradise of tropical glory.

Samuel Sproul's Locust Flower Shop on 60th street, opened a little over a year ago, has been obliged to enlarge its facilities and has annexed the adjoining store. Things certainly look prosperous here. A new Pullman delivery car is a beauty. Mr. Sproul is a hard worker and we congratulate him on his great success.

Don't Wait

Now is the time to send us a shipment of flowers and acquaint yourself with the satisfactory treatment you receive when you ship to New York's Foremost Commission House in the flower trade.

Extensive experience, ample capital, modern facilities and, in fact, everything to commend us to you.

Special opportunity for a couple of Good Rose Growers who are looking for best returns. Our present demand is larger than our supply.

MARKET SHOWS LITTLE ACTIVITY.

There has been but little change in the condition of business since our last notes were written. The weather became more favorable toward the last of the past week, March 10 being like a spring day. On that day there was a little more activity in the wholesale district, as is usually the case on a Saturday. Carnations rallied slightly, good stock bringing $3 per 100 and a few fancies, $4. The best special American Beauties wholesale at the rate of 75 cents each. In this connection we would like to ask the growers of American Beauties if they consider mere length of stem, regardless of quality in stem or flower, as a diploma for a "special?" If that is the rule, it would seem that the rule should be changed. Next to American Beauty, the Hadley bring the highest price, and there is fine stock of it on the market. In the other varieties of roses a few specials wholesale at the rate of 10 and 12 cents, but much more goes at from six to eight cents, and down to one cent for shortest grades. Aside from what are used in funeral work, violets are almost exclusively in the hands of the street men, who buy them at from 10 to 20 cents per 100. There is an immense stock of yellow narcissus on the market and going very cheap. There is some movement in the best tulips, but they are so cheap that few will buy the inferior stock. The best snapdragons bring fair prices, but inferior stock is hard to move, and the same can be said of sweet peas. In cattleyas, gardenias, lilies and lily of the valley, there is but little change, but it is hard to clean up on any stock. There is good lilac on the market with a fair demand.

March 12.—There is no noteworthy change in the condition of business. A large amount of stock is arriving, and fair and mild weather promises an increase before the end of the week.

We are all anxious to learn how our florist friends of New Castle, Ind., fared in the great storm.

NOTES.

It has been stated, on what seems to be good authority, that the Jews of this city who are interested in the Jewish philanthropic societies, will hereafter contribute money they would have spent in sending flowers to funerals to the philanthropic societies. A prominent Jew connected with the philanthropic movement, is quoted as saying that he regards the practice of spending large sums of money for floral tributes for the dead as distinctly un-Jewish and in exceedingly bad taste. "Un-Jewish" is interesting. We suppose that we will soon hear of something that is un-German or un-Turkish. In the meantime, we could enumerate a number of practices that are bad taste and un-American.

Calling recently at the range of Anton Schultheis, College Point, we found a fine stock that will be ready for the Easter trade. As we have sometimes remarked, he is an all-around grower and all his stock is in good condition; but if he has a specialty, it is certainly pot roses. Dorothy Perkins, Tausendschoen and different varieties of baby ramblers are all grown to perfection, and there is a great stock which is already well sold out. Hydrangeas, heather, lilac, rhododendrons and many other good features were noted. A large stock of yellow (English) primroses is very attractive. In cut stock, he is strong on Easter lilies, rubrums and lily of the valley.

William Lackey, head gardener on the estate of Daniel Guggenheim, at Elberon, N. J., was shot dead on the night of March 11 by a man supposed to be on the place for the purpose of robbery. Two men were noticed prowling about and Lackey and his assistant started after them. One turned and fired with the result stated. William Lackey was well known in this city, where he had exhibited and taken numerous prizes at the flower shows. He was a member of the National Association of Gardeners and of the Elberon Horticultural Society. He is survived by his wife.

Alfred Kottmiller, 426 Madison avenue, was busy during the past week, having arranged a large amount of funeral work, also a number of decorations. For the funeral of Col. Barbour, a prominent business man, he made up four large standing wreaths. His exhibit for the flower show is expected to be elaborate.

John Tryforos, of Tryforos Brothers, who have stores both on Willis avenue and East 125th street, spent two weeks of February, visiting friends at Barre and Burlington, Vt. He says the temperature was 22 degrees below zero when he arrived there. He returned in time for the Greek-American ball.

The United Cut Flower Co., Inc., 111 West 28th street, is now handling a fine variety of stock with increasing sales. D. J. Pappas, who is at the head of this company, is a florist of many years' experience and is ably assisted by Ben. Ezechel, also an experienced man.

Mrs. Cora Foddy, wife of William H. Foddy, in point of service one of the oldest florists of Brooklyn, died of pneumonia, March 7, at the family home, 8 Seventh avenue, Brooklyn, in her sixty-second year. She is survived by her husband and several children.

Charles R. Jaeger, who recently removed his retail business from 2109 to 2136 Seventh avenue, is well pleased with the new location and reports an increase in business. He is about to erect a conservatory in the rear of his store.

Suhrer & Gay, retailers of 31 East 125th street, report good business, which has been but little affected by Lent. They have a good store which they keep well stocked.

A. A. ARNOLD PAPER BOX CO.,

1302-1308 W. Division St.,

CHICAGO

make a store attractive and is a good designer and decorator.

Mr. Bridgeman, of J. H. Small & Sons' Madison avenue store, spent a week at their Washington store, assisting in the work attending the inauguration festivities.

Mrs. Retta E. Rankin, of the House of Ferns, 41 West 28th street, has been unfortunate in having her supply of asparagus temporarily cut off since the cold snap in Florida.

Peter F. McKenney, Fifth avenue and 42nd street, arranged fine designs for the funeral of Congressman Conry of this city, who died recently at the national capital.

Young & Nugent, 42 West 28th street, have recently had fine features in window decorations, cattleyas and other flowers and flowering plants being used.

The Florist Chauffeurs' Association will give a ball at Bryant hall, 725 Sixth avenue, Saturday evening, March 31.

Andrew Eckrich, who now conducts a retail store at 924 Madison avenue, reports a prosperous business.

GLADIOLUS AMERICA and King Humbert canna are scarce this season.

ONION SETS at Chicago have gone off in price to $4.50 for colors and $5.00 for whites.

A. COLYN, Voorhout, Holland, says
75 per cent of the marketable Dutch bulbs now come to America.

DES MOINES, IA.—Free government seeds filling 11 large mail sacks have been received here for distribution.

SEEDSMEN have heard that a lot of Saynor's tools were on the S. S. Celtic and delayed. The arrival date is now uncertain.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade March 14 were as
100 pounds.

Jr., of John Bodger & Sons Co., has returned from a successful eastern trip.
—Mr. Morris, of the Morris & Snow Seed Co., Inc., has been confined to his home for several days on account of illness.

POTATO planting is epidemic in California, according to John Lewis Childs, of Floral Park, N. Y., who recently returned from the Pacific coast, saying some residents in the fashionable resorts have plowed their handsome front yards for this crop.

PEAS will be planted in the state of Washington this year for well known trade firms as follows: At Latah and Tekoa, 219,060 pounds; Mica Park, the Leonard Seed Co., left for Springfield March 14 to represent the Chicago trade.

John Lewis Childs, Floral Park, N.
Y., returned from California much earlier than usual on account of the unprecedented rush in his mail order business. Mr. Childs says recent weather on the Pacific coast has been very favorable to the seed growers whose work this year will be unusually heavy because of greatly increased business.

SEEDS EXEMPT IN RAILROAD EMBARGO.

Carriers have been directed, through the Car Service Committee, to make a general exemption from all embar-goes of seeds, and urgent efforts are being made to secure adequate supply of empty cars to provide for their transportation.

Wherever cars are seriously delayed by reason of accumulations or on account of other causes notify Francis

French Bulbs.

Toulon, March 10.—One of the French bulb experts writes as follows regarding the coming bulb crop: "I fear the frosty winter has set back the growth of bulbs in general, especially the freesias, of which the crop probably will be deficient. The Roman hyacinths also will be scarce, this bulb decreasing gradually year by year from disease and the small quantities replanted last year do not lead us to expect any considerable crop even if the weather continues favorable to harvest time. So far as Narcissus Paper White Grandiflora is concerned, this having been the most important bulb crop during the past few years and in heavy demand last year, the quantity replanted in 1916 seems to be sufficient if needs are normal and the weather favorable. The development of these bulbs depends mainly on the rainfall in April and May. If the rains are insufficient, as was the case last year, the diameter of the bulbs is under grade, which compels the buyers either to reduce their orders or to accept bulbs under size."

Burpee's Seeds Grow

NEW ASTER AMERICAN BEAUTY

American grown Aster seed is now acknowledged to be so vastly superior to European grown seed that there is no reason why European grown seed should be at all considered. Even in the Early Queen of the market type American grown seed has been found superior to European. The Royal and Crego types closely follow Queen of the Market, and these are followed by the Late Branching types.

Burpee's New American Beauty Aster is in type of growth and form of flower similar to the Late Branching, but differs in, that all the large blossoms are produced on much longer and heavier stems. In some instances stems measure more than two feet in length. It has the longest blooming period of any Aster that we know of. The large double flowers are of a bright carmine-rose almost identical with the World's Famous American Beauty Rose.

Mr. Fred Howard of Howard & Smith, Los Angeles, California, writes March 29, 1916, in reference to American Beauty Aster, "It is in my opinion one of the most remarkable Asters which has come under my notice. The plants attain a height of some four feet, and the flowers are borne singly at the ends of stems which attain a length of thirty to thirty-six inches. The most remarkable feature to be noted regarding this Aster is the length of time which it remains in flower. The plants at our nursery came into bloom during the month of July, and we were still cutting from them late in September. It is unlikely that they would come into bloom so early under Eastern conditions, but if they come in later I have no doubt the season during which they flower would be equivalent. The stems are absolutely non-lateral branching. The flowers attain an enormous size owing to the fact that the entire sap flow is diverted to the one terminal bud or flower. The color is a distinct shade of carmine-rose. The addition of new colors to this new type of Asters will in my opinion prove to be a strain of great merit."

Burpee's American Beauty Aster is illustrated in color on the front cover of Burpee's Annual for 1917, and now that we have harvested a little more seed than was estimated we have decided to offer it to the Florist Trade. This Superb Aster should have a place in every Aster field. It will certainly prove its superior merit.

Packet containing 40 seeds, 10 cents; packet of 120 seeds, 25 cents; trade packet, 1000 seeds, $1.25.

FLOWER SEEDS FOR FLORISTS

Florists and Market Gardeners, in addition to Burpee's Annual, should have Burpee's Blue List, the Market Growers' Handbook. This is a wholesale price list for commercial planters. Write for this today. A post card will bring it.

Potatoes From Canada Not Embargoed.

An authoritative statement from Ottawa, Canada, is to the effect that the Canadian government will not place an embargo on the export of potatoes. There is said to be a scarcity in Ontario, but a plentiful supply in other provinces.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, Mar. 13.—Mushrooms, home grown, 50 to 60 cents per pound; lettuce, small cases, 27½ to 30 cents; radishes, 50 to 60 cents, dozen bunches; celery, 75 cents to $1.50, open crate; tomatoes, six baskets, $3.50 to $4.75; cucumbers, per 2 dozen box, $1.50 to $2.50.

New York, Mar. 13.—Celery, per crate, $1.50 to $5.00; cucumbers, 60 cents to $1.75 per dozen; mushrooms, $1.00 to $2.00 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, per lb., 10 to 25 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2.00 to $4.00; lettuce, per strap, $3.00 to $5.00.

Vegetable Crop Prospect in Bermuda.

Prospects for green-vegetable crops in Bermuda, principally beets, carrots, kale, lettuce and parsley, for the current year are not as good as usual, according to United States Commerce Reports, January 30, 1917. It is reported that there is less land under cultivation in green vegetables this year than last, due to the fact that farmers are planting more land in potatoes.

Green vegetables, valued as follows, were shipped from Bermuda to the United States in 1916: Beets, $23,718; carrots, $25,614; kale, $2,112; lettuce, $10,873; parsley, $40,127. It is estimated the various crops mentioned will approximate two-thirds to three-fourths of last year's production.

Vegetable Prices at New York.

Potato prices remain about the same as last week. The best grades of Maine range from $8.25 to $8.50 per 180 pounds.

Beans continue high, marrow selling at $13 per 100 pounds. Kidneys range from $11.75 to $13; Chilean Imperials, $9.75 to $10.50; South American Browns, many of poor quality, $6.50 to $7.25.

Old white onions, per 100 pounds, $7 to $9; Old red, $7 to $8; Old yellow, $6.50 to $8.25.

In a statement issued March 7, after two days' investigation of market conditions, Commissioner of Weights and Measures J. J. Hartigan said in part: "Never in the history of New York City have so many potatoes from all sections of the country been received. Heretofore it has been the custom for dealers to rely upon New York State, Maine, Virginia and Bermuda for potatoes. Carloads of potatoes are arriving from Wisconsin, Idaho, Oregon, Washington, Georgia and South Carolina."

He believes that advantage has been taken of consumers by "certain" wholesale dealers. A. F. F.

Rooted Carnation Cuttings Immediate Delivery.

We are now booking orders for our New Seedling SUPERB—$12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

SUPERB is a seedling of Gloriosa and Enchantress. It has the good stem of Gloriosa and the fine growing habit of Enchantress. The color is a flesh pink, and it keeps its color at all seasons. The flowers average about three inches, are very full, and generally receive full score on substance. The flowers are all perfect and do not split. In the four years we have grown it, it has proved the best commercial variety, barring none.

Shade Trees.

The Massachusetts agricultural experiment station, Amherst, has issued Bulletin No. 170, entitled, "Shade Trees, Characteristics, Adaptation, Diseases and Care, an interesting volume of 264 pages profusely illustrated. Included in the contents are the following subjects: Requirements of shade trees and adaptability to climatic conditions, susceptibility to diseases, etc.; Street and roadside trees; Root characteristics; Soil conditions, texture, etc.; Effects of light and shade; Transplanting; Tree surgery; Tree guards; Diseases of trees and their treatment; Winter injuries; Injurious chemical substances; Effects of illuminating gas on trees; Electrical injuries; Spraying; Valuation of shade trees and codified shade tree laws of the state.

Ants on Lawns.

In Farmers' Bulletin 740, recently issued by the United States department of agriculture attention is called to the fact that although the common garden or lawn ants which build their little crater nests around houses are distinct species from the true house ants, they may find their way into the house. Their colonies may be destroyed by drenching the nests with boiling water or injecting a small quantity of kerosene or coal oil into them. Where larger areas are affected it is sometimes advisable to spray the lawns with kerosene emulsion or with a very strong soap wash prepared by dissolving any common laundry soap in water at the rate of one-half pound to one pound of soap to a gallon of water. Another method is to inject bisulphide of carbon into the nests, the quantity of the chemical depending upon the size of the nest. After the bisulphide of carbon has been injected, the entrance to the nest should be closed by the foot in order to retain the chemical, which will then penetrate slowly through the underground channel and kill the ants. Although its fumes are disagreeable, they are not poisonous to man and the higher animals.

GERANIUMS

This time we are offering General Grant, which is without doubt one of the best Scarlet Bedders we have. True, it is an old variety, but is it not a fact that old varieties are like old music—among the best? Some of the other good red sorts are John Doyle, Ornela, E. H. Trego, S. A. Nutt, Col. Thomas, etc.; also white sorts, at $2.00 per 100, $18.50 per 1,000 for 2-in., and $3.00 per 100, $25.00 per 1,000 for 3-in. Single Geraniums in a good assortment, also Scented Geraniums, including Apple, Rose, Nutmeg, etc., at $2.00 per 100 for 2-in., $3.00 per 100 for 3-in. Maryland Geranium, $4.00 per 100, $25.00 per 1,000. We see no reason for recalling anything we have ever claimed for Maryland.

MISCELLANEOUS PLANTS.

2-in., $2.00 per 100, $18.50 per 1,000; 3-in., $3.00 per 100, $25.00 per 1,000. If Trees Could Talk.

If trees could talk, the tales they'd tell Would surely be worth listening to.
The trees that form the shady dell,
Where lovers their fond vows renew;
The trees that guard the home, the street
Where children play and elders rest;
What varied tales would they repeat
Of hopes deferred or hearts oppressed,
Of happy lives divinely blest.

If trees could talk, how oft we'd hear
Of gross mistreatment, lack of care,
Borne patiently for many a year,
While thoughtless mortals unaware
Of how trees suffer, why they fall,
Put forth no effort to repair.
The foes that constantly assail.
Sad tales like this we know full well,
A myriad suffering trees would tell.

If trees could talk, methinks their words
Would sound a protest loud and stern
For loss of their good friends, the birds,
And make a plea for their return.
Trees need the birds and so do we.
In the incessant fight to stay
The foes that so persistently
On flowers and fruit and foliage prey,
Our allies, vigilant, are they.

Trees cannot talk, and yet, to him
Who truly loves, these friends of man,
Their every leaf and flower and limb
Is vocal. Since the world began
The trees have been our steadfast friends,
And our well being constantly
Upon their life and growth depends.
How faithful then our care should be,
How fondly should we love the tree.
—Frank L. Bruer in Tree Talk.

THE SPRING FLOWER SHOWS.

Success Attends New York, St. Louis and Philadelphia Events.

American Rose Society.

A MOST FINISHED FLOWER SHOW.

This magnificent exhibition, said by competent judges to be the most finished and best arranged flower show ever held in this country, opened its doors to the public, Tuesday afternoon, March 20. Except for the few large palms used for decorative effect, the entire display was of roses in pots and vases of cut blooms. The features on high lights were first, the quality of the magnificent vases of roses in all varieties having never been equalled.

The society's rose garden was the finest indoor display of its kind ever staged in America, while the rose garden and greenhouse of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, was another strong feature, over 171 varieties of roses being planted in the garden while the King house in the center was also filled with excellent stock in pots. The name, Dreer, was displayed in electric lights over the greenhouse. Green grass bordered the garden beds. It was truly a wonderful rose collection.

The exhibit of A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., consisting of rambler and baby rambler roses, was perfect in every detail from the tall standards to the baby plants that covered the ground.

The central rose garden of the society, covering 1,200 square feet, was really the feature of the show. In the center was a large pool containing water lilies with a fine marble figure surrounded by callas in flower. Six large gothic columns, three on each side, supported pergolas covered with Tausendschon, border beds being arranged with Teschendorf and Mrs. Cutbush, with tall standards of well flowered Tausendschon placed at intervals adding to the fine effect. The path and outside border was of grass. Several garden statues completed this beautiful display, which was built by J. J. Haber-mehl's Sons, Philadelphia.

The cut roses were staged in the society's new vases of white wicker with green painted liners. They were at once the handsomest and most practical flower receptacles ever used for the purpose. Geometrical spaces had been laid out on the floor with sheet moss and in these were arranged the various classes. The entries of 100 blooms each were superb, the five best vases being Hadley, Mrs. Russell, Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty and American Beauty. One hundred Mavourneen were splendid.

Mrs. Paul Euler, Miss Cynthia Forde,
September Morn, Mrs. Bayard Thayer, Hilda, a new red unnamed seedling, exhibited by Robert Scott & Son, Sharon Hill, Pa., Golden Gem, Ned Collette Martines, Lady Alice Stanley, and the Bradford Flower Co.'s new pink, which received a certificate, were among newer sorts, of which there were vases of from 50 to 100 blooms.

The christening of Edward Towill's pink seedling in honor of Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury was the opening feature the first night. The ceremony was performed with clear water by her daughter, Mrs. F. Cromwell. W. F. Therkindson presented the ladies. The rose, a fine light pink, was exhibited in a $3,500 vase.

The Joseph Heacock Co., Philadelphia, broke a record by winning 13 first prizes with 10 entries, the sweepstake prizes for the best vase in the 100 class, the 50 and also the 25 class being awarded to this firm for their entries of Hadley.

The attendance on the first day and evening was very satisfactory and the committees believe that financial success is assured.

The various retail exhibits which lined the sides of the hall were of the greatest interest to the visitors.

Henry F. Michell Co.'s garden of roses, flowering shrubs, lily of the valley, etc., surrounded with a paling, was conspicuous and well conceived. Next to this was Pennock Bros.' retail display of splendidly arranged baskets and floral conceits, each with an individuality in design and arrangement which will be described more fully later. The design of this booth and the arrangement of the various features was wonderfully complete.

S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, Pa.
President American Rose Society.

Harry O. May, Summit, N. J.
Treasurer American Rose Society.

Prof. E. A. White, Ithaca, N. Y.
Secretary-Elect American Rose Society.

The double space of J. J. Habermehl's Sons was splendidly filled, their beautiful plant and cut flower creations being featured against a well made background of hemlock trimmed in hedgelike effect.

Gude Bros. Co., Washington, D. C., made a replica of the table decorations they recently arranged in that city for a dinner tendered Vice-President Marshall. It was indeed beautiful and fit for such a distinguished guest. On the opposite side of the hall John Kuhn, a local retailer, had an elaborate dinner decoration.

John Gracey's space contained a country-side scene with landscape dotted with miniature dwellings. From his store and greenhouse, in the rear, ran a telegraph line, exploiting telegraph delivery.

The London Flower Shop featured flower holders and vases, baskets and watering pots with flowers and floral bric-a-brac, all nicely arranged on low tables with velvet cloths.

Polyana baskets and vases were the feature in the Charles Henry Fox exhibit. They were beautifully filled with choice roses.

Charles Grakelow had a very attractive exhibit in front of a latticed background. A handsome basket of Shawyer roses and a decorated table were features.

A handsomely set and decorated table with a tall vase of snapdragon and pink roses was the center of the J. Wolff Moore exhibit, which was changed each day.

The Marvin Co., Wilkes-Barre, Pa., arranged a fine table decoration, surmounted with a canopy of smilax and red roses.

J. Wolff, Jr., decorated his space with well made baskets of choice flowers.

Nelson Geiger used pot roses, palms and vases of superb roses. All were nicely arranged.

Harry Betz' space was filled with splendidly arranged flowering plants. The general effect was very pleasing.

THE JUDGES' DINNER.

The dinner tendered to the judges and visiting members of the trade was given at the Bellevue Stratford hotel. There were over 60 in the party. After a very good menu, President Pennock called on Robert Craig, who recalled the past and predicted a great future for the queen of flowers. Wm. F. Gude spoke of the melting pot where, at these gatherings, experiences were thrown in and new ideas and inspirations created. He spoke in glowing terms of the exhibition. W. F. Therkildson, John Dunlop, George Asmus and Admiral Ward all spoke in glowing terms of the wonderful display and the efforts that President Pennock had made for success which he declared in turn was to be credited to his fellow workers, one of whom, Wm. Kleinheinz, was given the honor of a toast.

Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y.
President-Elect American Rose Society.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the American Rose Society was held at the Bellevue-Stratford hotel, Wednesday, March 21. President S. S. Pennock read his address, which proved a very able paper and the reports of the secretary and the treasurer were presented. The next annual meeting will be held in St. Louis, April 6-15, 1918, in connection with the Fifth National Flower Show of the Society of American Florists. It was also decided to hold a summer meeting and exhibition at Hartford, Conn., during the week of June 20.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y., president; William L. Rock, Kansas City, Mo., vice-president; Professor E. A. White, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., secretary; Harry O. May, Summit, N. J., treasurer. Executive committee: For three years, Admiral Aaron Ward, J. A. Carey and George C. Thomas; two years, W. J. Keimel; one year, John H. Dunlop. Honorary vice-presidents: J. Horace McFarland, Dr. E. N. Mills, Dr. Robert Huey and W. G. McKendrick. K.

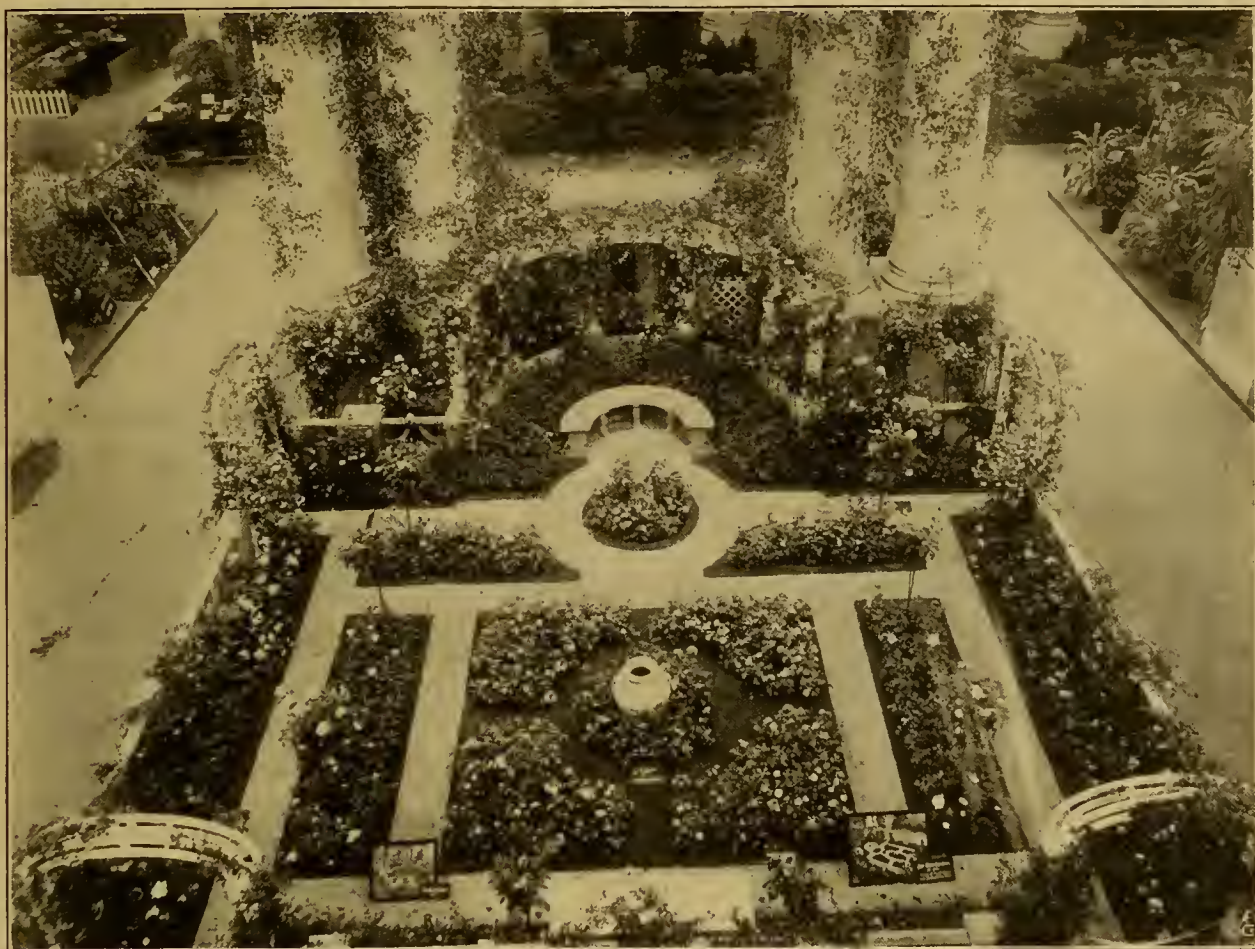

New York Flower Show.

BRILLIANT AND SUCCESSFUL EXHIBITION.

This wonderful display opened March 15, in the Grand Central Palace, Forty-sixth street and Lexington avenue, and continued with numerous additions daily in the cut-flower displays and decorations until the night of March 22. In all its features it was a credit to the Horticultural Society of New York and the New York Florist Club, under whose combined auspices it was given. T. A. Havemeyer, chairman, and Frederick R. Newbold, treasurer of the horticultural society, with John Young, secretary, and the able committees of the florists' club, gave much thought and time during the past year to working out the details, which repeated their success of last season. Manager Arthur Herrington was also a great factor in his masterly handling of the various exhibits, arranged to present a finished and symmetrical display. There was nothing of an ordinary character called for in the schedule. All were feature items—something of merit.

PROMINENT FEATURES.

The high lights were, first, the beautiful rose gardens, which were not much ahead, in the interest of the visitors, of the arranged spaces of the private growers, covering 300 square feet, which were gorgeous in their masses of color. The rock gardens were another important feature, although the grand collections of orchids should probably take precedence. The groups from the city parks in New York and Brooklyn, and the foliage and flowering plants from private estates, the large collection of spring flowering bulbs, together with many beautiful booths of the seedsmen and retail florists and other trade exhibits, taxed the building to its utmost to provide the necessary room. The attendance was very good from the opening day. Friday, March 16, was very stormy, but the visitors crowded the hall at times uncomfortably and were unanimous in their interest and delighted expressions.

NEW YORK SPRING FLOWER SHOW.

THE ROSE GARDENS.

There were but two entries for the rose garden as against four last year, but these were each masterpieces in their different schools. The space contained 600 square feet, 100 more than last season. Each followed much the same ideals as seen in several entries in former shows, F. R. Pierson Co.'s being of the finished formal Italian style, while that of A. N. Pierson, Inc., suggested the rustic garden of the country estate, with its summer house and rustic-covered benches.

F. R. Pierson Co.'s space was enclosed with a sanded, light brown fence of geometric design with arched entrances at the front and also opening on the sides near the rear in front of the large curved pergola and bench, in front of which stood a sundial. The center grass plot contained an urn, around which were planted roses. Four corner beds curved around this center. Two straight grass-bordered paths led from the main entrances to the rear. At the end of each stood elegant Italian vases valued at $100 each. Tausendschon roses covered the fence, while the borders were filled with hybrids and hybrid teas, with standard white baby ramblers rising at intervals. Mrs. Ward, Ellen Poulsen, Orleans, Pharasias and Rodhutte were the baby Rambler type used. The arches over the gates and the rear pergola were all covered with full-flowered ramblers, Dorothy Perkins in front and Excelsa in the rear.

The garden of A. N. Pierson, Inc., was surrounded with a rustic fence with curved gothic corner gates. In each corner of the enclosure was a canopied and rose-covered rustic bench. On a mound in the rear stood a good-sized rustic summer house thatched with straw. The new red sport of Dorothy Perkins, Elizabeth Zeigler topped this arbor and the sides of the mound. Well-flowered Tausendschon covered the fence and corner benches, while in the border beds were hybrids, Mrs. Laing, Cecile Brunner and Magna Charta. The center beds in the grass plot around a central fountain, contained George Elgar, Baby Tausendschon and Ellen Poulsen. A center path, divided around the fountain, led to the summer house, in front of which stood a sundial.

Both of these gardens were faultless, and there was much deliberation before the judges finally reached a decision.

John Scheeper & Co.'s garden of Dutch bulbs, covering 500 square feet, had as its central feature, a fountain. Around this were beds of hyacinths. Next to the white ivy-covered pale fence was a wide border of narcissi, daffodils and tulips. Pyramid box trees at intervals around the fence, and an arched trellis over a garden seat in the rear, completed this attractive entry.

PRIVATE GROWERS' GARDENS.

The displays that, perhaps next to the rose gardens, attracted most attention were the beautifully decorated spaces of 300 square feet filled with the choicest and most varied flowering plants and bulbs of Nature's garden—only orchids were barred. These were all arranged to face one way and show from the front. Mrs. H. Darlington, P. W. Popp, gardener, won first; a carpet of Primula Malacoides, through which a divided path led to where a stream came tumbling down over rocks into a pool. This rockwork was surmounted with lilacs, azaleas, Azalea mollis, wisterias, clarkias, buddleias, rambler roses, etc. This grouping extended also along the sides of the space, sloping toward the front. Yellow callas, lilies and bulbous stock, dentzias, short rambler roses, and a sweet alyssum border were the principal flowers in this display.

W. B. Thompson, R. Johnston, gardener, won second with a very full exhibit. The features were Acacia pubescens, an arch of Frau Karl Druschki roses, Easter lilies, rambler roses, azaleas, cinerarias and yellow callas around a large white wistaria, hyacinths and primulas. Many specimen plants were featured in this group to give relief. A white latticed fence was effective.

F. E. Lewis' entry won third. It was a dream in its arrangement and color effect. A high lattice at the rear contained a large mirror, so concealed that the beautiful vista presented, although but a replica of the garden, appeared as an adjoining space. The alyssum-bordered gravel path from the entrance around the central pyramid of sweet peas was effective. The whole was enclosed in a low, white, latticed fence.

There were four other entries in this class, Adolph Lewisohn's being quite elaborate with its statuary and fountain. Buddleias, standard pink geraniums, calendulas, daisies, primulas, forget-me-nots and many other flowers were all artistically arranged. That such a display should not get a premium illustrated the high standard the art has reached.

THE RETAIL BOOTHS.

F. R. Pierson Co. occupied a space opposite the elevator to the left of the entrance. Here, on low-bench tables, stained olive green with green velvet bands and spreads, was displayed the latest in rose bowls, vases, flower-holders and baskets, some of them artistically filled. Higher tables contained ornamental vases in various shapes, filled with Francis Scott Key, Ophelia, Rosalind, their dark sport of Ophelia, and other choice roses. These made a fine showing. Large pots of maidenhair and fancy ferns of the Boston type were used effectively. The space was enclosed with an ornamental fence and high white fluted columns, surmounted with electric light globes.

George E. M. Stumpp made his usual elaborate display of everything in floral bric-a-brac and holders for the arrangement of cut flowers. Large and expensive bowls were a feature. A picture frame with a tin "canvas," containing in the rear a holder for water, enabled one to become at once a painter of flowers and be able to change the picture at will. The backgrounds come in various colors. The booth and the entire display was very artistic.

Max Schling had an enclosed space to resemble a flower shop, with two glass doors, a large show window, and sign over the top—"Max Schling, The Place of Art." On the green velvet floor of the window were displayed a number of vases and baskets, filled in his unique style with Sunburst roses and lavender pansies. The orange gerbera was arranged with scarlet anthuriums and imantophyllums in a handsome bowl-like vase. Another tall vase was filled with long spray orchids of odontoglossums, miltonias, phalaenopsis and a few red roses—a very rich arrangement. A low vase of yellow callas and foliage was striking. The interior walls were decorated with standard baby ramblers, the pot concealed and the branches spread out and tacked against the surface to resemble a raised decoration. It was all very pretty and "Schling-like." On a large velvet-covered space of about 100 square feet, Mr. Schling made an exhibit showing how flowers can be artistically arranged with the aid of such plebeian materials as flower pots and saucers. Small pots were covered with moss, and, containing tumblers for water, held all short-stemmed flowers to advantage. A large, shallow, round tray, with the aid of a few pieces of rock, a little moss, a tumbler and pot saucer, was soon made to resemble an expensive rose bowl. Vases of flowers showed correct and incorrect methods of arranging. Cheap boxes, made of bark and filled with plants, were also a feature.

A winter garden of conifers, junipers, pines, retinosporas, spruces and other hardy stock was arranged by G. E. M. Stumpp to advertise his landscape department. It was well conceived. A long horizontal branch from a weeping birch very effectively carried the sign. F. R. Pierson Co. staged a variety group of 25 choice hardy evergreens, which won first prize.

A few plants of Adiantum redotum, the native maidenhair in the Cromwell Gardens' rockery, were very striking. It would seem as if there should be a place for this plant commercially, or for the fronds in cut-flower work.

THE SWEET PEAS.

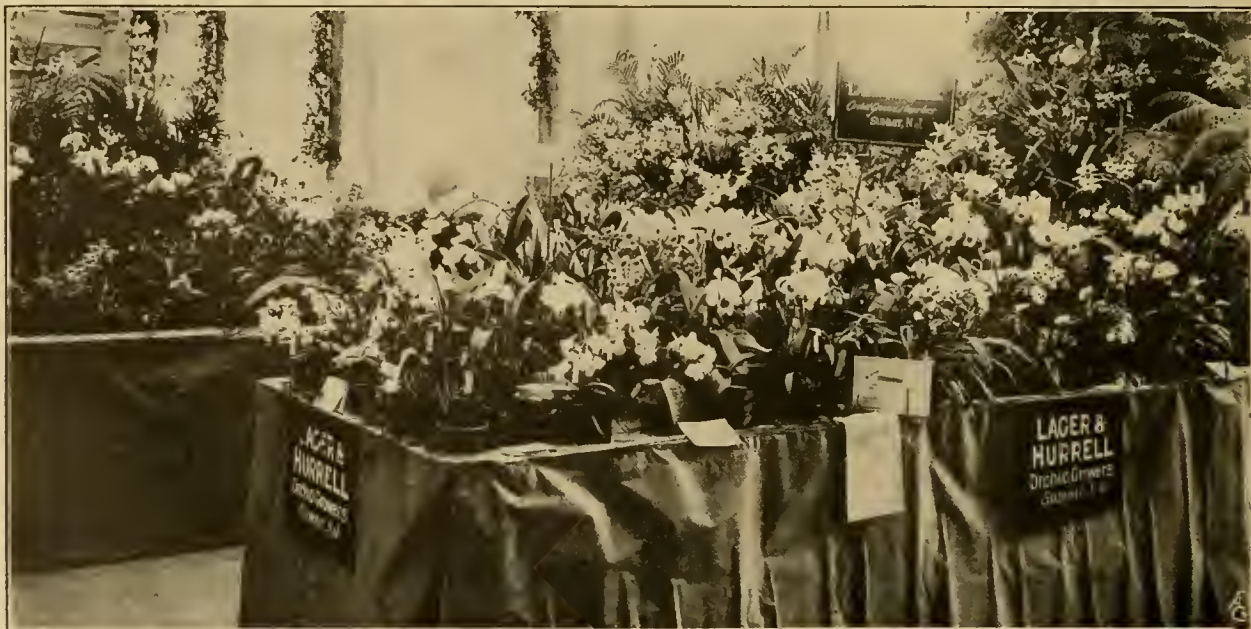

Friday was sweet pea day. There were six entries for the dinner table decoration, five of which followed the time-honored decorative scheme of the tall slender silver vase for the center, and small vases at intervals below inside the plate line. While this makes a pretty table, surely there are other equally effective ways in which sweet peas may be arranged. The schedule allows all kinds of foliage and whatever accessories are necessary to carry out the artist's design. The display of cut sweet peas contained many vases of fine quality flowers, those from Castle Gould being especially noteworthy. Early Morning Star, a deep pink, Concord Peak, apple blossom pink in color, and Early Heather Bell, were all superb flowers. One hundred sprays of Yarrowa were exceptionally fine.

J. H. Flagler, Greenwich, and J. H. Palbos, Seacliff, N. Y., made important exhibits, showing well-grown flowers. Charles A. Zvolanek, Bound Brook, N. J., won the award for display covering 100 square feet, with a fine collection of standard and new varieties, none of which, however, were named, a loss to him, one would say, in advertising value.

Selah Van Ripen, Dundee Lake, N. J., won all the prizes for 100 flowers each of the fine varieties exhibited. They were certainly high-grade in all respects.

CUT ROSES.

The display of cut roses covering 200 square feet, which has become one of the important and most artistic features of the show, was quite equal to that of last year. There were but two exhibitors, F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., and A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn. The F. R. Pierson

GENERAL VIEW OF THE ST. LOUIS SPRING FLOWER SHOW.

Co.'s exhibit won out, although the judges must have felt like resigning before making a decision, as the group arranged by A. N. Pierson, Inc., was quite the equal of the other in quality of flowers and effective arrangement, so that no doubt perfection in some of the small details won the decision. Manager Herrington found it impossible to place these beautiful features in the main hall and they were staged the full width of the hall apart at the front. F. R. Pierson Co.'s exhibit contained in the foreground, one low basket vase of 200 Killarney Queen, one low vase of 75 Double White Killarney, two tall end vases with about 75 Francis Scott Key in each, grand flowers, too; rear high vases with about 75 Ophelia in each; one vase of 150 Heesier Beauty and another of about the same size of Richmond; a vase of 100 Mrs. Shower and one mixed vase. Each vase was perfect in arrangement for its position. A border of large pots of Adiantum cuneatum outlined the space.

The arrangement of the roses in the separate vases of the A. N. Pierson, Inc., exhibit and their artistic grouping with the aid of velvet cloths, cibotiums, Farleyense and asparagus sprays, was very effective. There were nearly 1,000 roses, which included two vases of Sunburst, four of Ophelia, two of Shawyer, two of White Killarney, superb flowers; one mixed of Killarney and Lady Alice Stanley, and three of Killarney Queen.

In the private growers' entries of cut roses in vases of 12 each, there were 30 separate exhibits, some of them, notably a vase of Mrs. Lawson, from J. B. Duke, Somerville, N. J., were exceptionally fine. Excellent flowers of Double White Killarney and Radiance were also shown.

The Darwin tulips in the exhibit of Mrs. Paul Whitney, Manhasset, N. Y., showed exceptional culture.

THE PRIVATE ESTATES.

It is readily acknowledged that the private estates contributed largely toward the success of the show, both in fine stock and painstaking arrangement. The grand sweepstakes prize, a special cup, presented by Mrs. D. Willis Martin, president of the Garden Club of America, for the most artistically arranged exhibit in the show, went to Mrs. A. M. Booth, Great Neck, N. Y. This exhibit was judged by a committee of ladies, members of the Garden Club of America, and appointed by the president of the club. Our illustration shows a first prize winning group, arranged by P. W. Popp, gardener to Mrs. H. Darlington, Mamaroneck, N. Y. Other estates winning first prizes were: F. E. Lewis, for acacias, bougainvilleas, chorzemas, ericas and astilbes; Mrs. F. A. Constable, for specimen acacia, 25 cyclamen plants and foliage plants; Howard Gould, for amaryllis plants; W. B. Thompson, for specimen azaleas, cinerarias, schizanthus, dracenas and foliage plants; Mrs. J. C. Brady, for specimen azaleas and cut roses; A. Lewisohn, for cyclamen plants and cut roses; Percy Chubb, for specimen heilotrope, rhododendron plants, 12 plants Primula obovata and cut mignonette, and stocks; Ralph Pullitzer, for six plants cineraria hybrid, 12 plants Primula Malacoides; D. G. Reid, for specimen cythus, bay trees, and table of cut orchids; Jas. Macdonald, for specimen wistaria, and a variety of hyacinths in pans, three first prizes; Mrs. H. McK. Twombly, Adiantum Farleyense; J. B. Cobb, for Adiantum cuneatum; Mrs. Oliver Hoyt, Stamford, Conn., for Adiantum; Westbrook Garden, Oakdale, N. Y., for hyacinths; Mrs. J. Murray Mitchell, for 12 pots of lilies; Mrs. Payne Whitney, for narcissi, tulips and lily of the valley, six first prizes; A. N. Cooley, first for group of orchid plants, covering 50 square feet, Clement Moore, second; Col. H. H. Rogers, four first prizes for different varieties of orchid plants; Louis Strauss, for orchids in variety; Samuel Untermeyer, six first prizes, orchids in variety; F. E. Lewis, four first prizes for pot roses; J. B. Duke, first prize for American Beauty and Mrs. Chas. Russell roses; Mrs. Payne Whitney, first for Hadley and Sunburst; W. E. Griswold, Lenox, Mass., first for Radiance; Westbrook Gardens, two first prizes for antirrhinum; Mrs. J. H. Flagler, first for 25 spikes antirrhinum, asserted; Mrs. E. L. Boyer, first for 12 spikes of wall-flowers.

ORCHIDS.

The orchids were, as usual, a most attractive section. The Julius Roehrs Co., and Lager & Hurrell each had interesting exhibits containing rare varieties of cattleyas, *phalaenopsis cymbidium*s, *oncidium*s, *miltonia*s, etc. A. N. Cooley, Pittsfield, Mass., staged a very choice collection of *odontoglossum*s, phalaenopsis and a splendid cymbidium with fine spikes of bloom. Clement Moore, of Hackensack, N. J., kept up to his reputation with well-flowered *dendrobium*s, *Brassocattleya*s, laelias, *cattleya*s, *miltonia*s, etc., nicely arranged with ferns and asparagus. There were quite a few entries for hybrid *cattleya*s, which plants, with their large beautiful flowers, attracted much attention.

The various *Brassocattleya*s, the jewels of the orchid family, of which there were quite a number of plants on exhibition, should be better staged. If all were gotten together, nicely arranged with ferns and featured, they would attract great attention, and their full value as exhibits of importance be secured.

Most beautiful were the tables of cut orchids arranged for effect. There were four entries on round tables four feet in diameter; everything choice in bloom at this season, both in single flowers and sprays, were artistically arranged, but each was much too crowded—six-foot tables with the same flowers, to allow for more green and space to show the individual beauty of the flowers, would have been much better. These tables were not well placed, being visible from only one side. In fact, this entire section was poorly planned for the proper display of these important flowers. Huddling them together on paper-covered step-staged tables is artificial and very unlike their natural environment. Why not prepare a forest setting or wood scene, with trees, ferns, moss, etc.? Without great expense this could be made as attractive, or even more so than the beautiful rose gardens that have done so much to popularize the recent shows.

ATTRACTIVELY STAGED CYCLAMEN.

An admiring throng surrounded at all times the wonderfully-flowered cyclamen of F. A. Constable, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., J. Stuart, gardener. The petals of the white flowers measured three and three-eighths inches in length, the full flower seven inches in diameter. Two 2-year-old plants contained over 200 flowers each. There were 25 plants in all shades of color. Adiantum, and short crocuses were used to good advantage among the pots to set off the exhibit.

A. Lewisohn's exhibit of 25 cyclamen plants, which won second prize, was also of high quality and beautifully staged. All the pots were covered with Japanese moss, antique baskets, standing on a moss-covered low table 18 inches from the floor. Pots of maidenhair among the plants and variegated vincas, hanging down in front, showed a distinct step in the advance in staging.

THE ROCK GARDENS.

The rock gardens were not quite so elaborate as those of last season, although they were much admired. To get the various plants that belong to these interesting garden spots in flower at this time, requires skill of a high order. Dwarf white and purple iris, double ranunculus, bluebells, crocuses, primroses, funkias, laurel, Daphne Cneorum, azaleas, amoena type, white dielytra, hepatica, snowdrops, etc., were seen in the various rockeries. A. N. Pierson, Inc., won first, Bobbink & Atkins, second; Julius Roehrs Co., third.

Mrs. H. Darlington, Mamaroneck, and Mrs. A. M. Booth, of Great Neck, were competitors in the 200 square feet of bulbous flowering plants, hyacinths, tulips, lilies, etc. Both made very complete and showy displays, which, however, would have been more effective had each color been kept separate.

FERNS.

F. R. Pierson Co.'s display of ferns of the Boston type contained many sports. They were all handsome specimens.

The Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia, Pa., had a table of their new plumed fern, Norwood, a decided novelty and considered by good judges a splendid commercial variety. Fritz Dressel, Hoboken, N. J., also exhibited a new variety, much like the well-known Giatrixii.

Cromwell Gardens staged a sport from the glory of Mordrecht, a form with heavier fronds, and a number of A. Farleyense of such superb quality as has never been seen here before. There were also several fine specimens of other adiantums, nephrolepis and cibotiums for the specimen prizes.

LILACS.

Large and well-flowered lilacs were staged by several exhibitors and made a fine showing. Rhododendrons were scarce, F. R. Pierson Co. and Bobbink & Atkins making the only entries. The Secaucus Exotic Nursery, Secaucus, N. J., staged two very handsome Phoenix Roebelenii.

Madsen & Christiansen, Wood Ridge, N. J., exhibited several very well-flowered specimens of standard genistas.

Joseph Manda had a rustic booth with an exhibition of cattleya plants, as they are received from their native woods; also, orchids of various kinds in flower.

CONSERVATORY GARDEN.

The flowering and foliage stove and greenhouse plants, arranged as in a large conservatory, by the Julius Roehrs Co., was most attractive. In the foreground was a low or half circle bed of selaginella, in the center of which was a variegated pineapple. Around this was a curved path, which was banked on the outer circle with choice palms and foliage plants, through which blossomed pots of amaryllis, Gloriosa lilies, genistas, etc. A fountain of lycopodium and narrow grasses was also a feature.

Pot rambler roses were not very conspicuous, although there were some private entries and F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown and Cromwell Gardens staged some fine plants.

CITY PARKS' EXHIBITS.

Prospect park, Brooklyn, made a large display of cactus plants, many of them 10 feet in height; as arranged with interesting low-growing specimens, they attracted much attention. The park department of New York filled 500 square feet with the choicest of their greenhouse stock, in foliage plants and well-flowered azaleas. These were nicely arranged and brought forth much favorable comment from the visitors.

NEW YORK SPRING FLOWER SHOW.

Prize Group of Flowering Plants Exhibited by Mrs. H. Darlington, Mamaroneck, N. Y., P. W. Popp, Gardener.

IMANTOPHYLLUM.

One of the handsomest specimens of this greenhouse favorite ever exhibited in this city was staged by H. McK. Twombly. It was in a large tub and contained 25 fine heads of its brilliant orange-colored flowers.

CARNATIONS.

Strout's, Biddeford, Me., won first prize in the display of carnations, covering 150 square feet. There were four vases of Matchless, two of Pocahontas and two of Beacon, containing in all 1,500 flowers. These were arranged with white pine foliage, which also covered the floor and bordered the space. The jars, which held the carnations, were concealed in pine bark pedestals. As these flowers were grown in the atmosphere of the pine tree state, they were so arranged in this unique manner.

THE BALCONY.

On the wide balcony were staged many interesting exhibits. The north aisle tables contained entries of very fine amaryllis, those from the Gould estate being exceptionally choice. Tulips, hyacinths, narcissi, lily of the valley and other bulbous flowers were also features here.

Vases of cut mignonette and stock jellies were attractive. Some of the sprays of mignonette were three inches in diameter. This was from August Sauter, Nyack, N. Y.

Groups of pot Easter lilies were seen along the balcony railing. H. Fred Byxbee, Norwalk, Conn., exhibited several vases of Daphne odorata with a card attached: "The plants from which this was cut have been frozen every night this winter."

The Lexington avenue aisle contained large plants of schizanthus; a number of them were from six to eight feet in diameter. Cineraria stellata in large plants was also a feature here. The south aisle contained Primulas, obconica and Malacoides, real exhibition stock. Some very fine cyclamen and hybrid cinerarias, of which there were a number of entries, were also conspicuous.

MISCELLANEOUS EXHIBITS.

W. B. Thompson was an important exhibitor. The handsome crotons, specimen dracaenas and arrangements of other ornamental foliage plants seen at various points in the hall were ideal in their cultural perfection.

Madsen & Christensen exhibited very well-grown marguerites, winning first with six fine plants.

F. A. Dressel won first with hydrangeas, a collection of the French varieties covering 150 square feet, well-grown plants with high-colored flowers. A nephrolepis, sport of Giatrixii was also from this exhibitor.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., won the silver medal for best new rose not in commerce with Elizabeth Zeigler, their red sport of Dorothy Perkins.

Alois Frey, Crown Point, Ind., staged a number of vases of his new Rainbow freesia, very striking in orange, pink, lavender, red and other shades of color.

THE RED CROSS TEA GARDEN.

George E. M. Stump added to his fame as a decorator in the fitting up of this important adjunct to the show. The walls and ceiling were covered with light blue cheesecloth. Instead of the large iron supports in the center of the room, there were tree trunks with seats at the base and leafy branches from the top, which almost covered the ceiling.

From these were suspended Jap. lanterns. A number of booths, or separate open front spaces, were along the sides, in which tea was served.

OTHER INTERESTING EXHIBITS.

J. R. DeLewar, Glen Cove, N. Y., sent a number of very well-flowered Acacia pubescens, genistas and foliage plants. A handsome plant of bottle brush, full of its red brush-like blossoms, was prominent. This group was not for competition.

There were several private grower entries for single specimen foliage plants and also the groups of some covering 100 square feet, which brought out some fine specimens.

Bobbink & Atkins' exhibit of forced shrubbery contained lilac, flowering apples, forsythias, double-flowering almonds, planes, laurels, Ghent azaleas, etc. Their classic booth across the aisle was very well decorated. A wall fountain was a feature here.

Hon. Paul Norburg, of Washington, D. C., exhibited on a rustic support, a number of baskets of Begonias Cincinnati and Mrs. Peterson. They were well flowered and very showy.

While in numbers the private growers were in the majority, the commercial growers made fine exhibits and took numerous prizes. In addition to first prizes for the rose garden and display of cut roses, F. R. Pierson Co. took numerous first prizes for ferns.

In the orchid competition, honors were divided between Lager & Hurrell and the Julius Roehrs Co. A. R. Pierson, Inc., took first prize for the best new rose (pot) not in commerce, record on rose garden, and other prizes for specimen pot roses. Other first prize winners were: Bobbink & Atkins, foliage and flowering plants; Knight & Struck, acacias; Madsen & Christensen, cytisus and marguerites; F. H. Dressel, hydrangeas; Marius Mutillod, palms; Wm. H. Siebrecht, lily of the valley in pans; Selah Van Riper, sweet peas; Chas. A. Zvolanek, sweet peas, 100 square feet; August Sauter took first for mignonette; Wm. R. Nicholson, second; F. H. Polbos took second on sweet peas, 100 square feet.

For the display of cut roses staged Saturday, March 17, covering 200 square feet and containing not less than 500 nor more than 1,000 blooms, decorative green of any kind, including plants, permitted, quality of bloom, artistic arrangement, and general effect to be considered in making award. F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., captured the first prize, $250.

John Scheepers & Co., Inc., took first for Dutch bulb garden.

FLORISTS' CLUB BANQUET.

The annual banquet of the New York Florists' Club, who had as guests the members of the S. A. F. executive committee, was held Saturday evening, March 17, in the ballroom of the Biltmore hotel. It was the largest affair of the kind ever held by the club, there being over 250 members, their ladies and guests in attendance. There were 32 tables at which members were seated, while officers of the club and the S. A. F. committee were placed at a head table the width of the room. After a substantial dinner, the coffee being served in novel clay flowerpot cups and saucers, President Stumpp, following a felicitous address, introduced Prof. Ward of the New York Botanical Gardens, who, in his address, emphasized the inspiration and renewed life that comes into, and is associated with a love for flowers, particularly when seeing such perfection as in the present exhibition. Former president Henry Weston was then presented with a token of the club's esteem, for which he thanked them and predicted a great future for the organization.

President Kerr brought greetings from the scene of the late convention and had received great inspiration from the show, which he would take back to Houston to renew the interest there.

W. F. Gude, Washington, D. C., after referring graciously to the ladies present, spoke of the fear some had of the danger of commercializing Mother's day, which he declared absurd. It was the beautiful sentiment of the day which found expression in flowers. He said there was no more magnificent thought or sentiment than that of love for one's mother, and no better way to express it than with gifts of lovely flowers, either given to or placed in memory of one's mother.

Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit, Mich., told of the great work the F. T. D was doing in the sale of flowers, its membership having increased threefold in the past year and was a most important factor in the sale of flowers all over the country. Increased facilities for the quick handling of flowers are made effective by the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, of which every live florist in the country should become a member, as it increases his business and revenue for little or no outlay.

Dancing was indulged in between courses in the dinner, and at 11:00 p. m. a huge basket of flowers, seven feet in height, was pushed into the center of the floor, from which emerged two accomplished mam'sell dancers, who gave an exhibition of the very latest in terpsichorean art.

EXPRESS REGULATION.

An important meeting of large shippers of plants and cut flowers with representatives of the leading express companies was held at 120 Broadway, New York, Friday, March 16. This meeting was arranged for after conferences with these officials by Max Schling, who has been working to get an improved express service for some time. Those of the trade present were:

Wm. F. Gude, Washington, D. C.; R. Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md.; Max Schling, New York; Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit, Mich.; W. C. Brown, of the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, Ohio; L. R. Bohannon, Chicago; Paul Klingsporn, Chicago; S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, and A. Langhans, Wheeling, West Va. The party received very courteous treatment at the hands of the officials, who declared they would do all in their power to perfect a system of expediting the delivery of cut flowers and plants. A proposal was made that a conspicuous double tag of a color that would at once be recognized by all express employes, be furnished, which would give the package right of way, protection from frost and instant delivery at destination. A portion of the tag with number was to be given to shipper so as to facilitate the search for delayed shipment. On account of the very acute strike situation, which had so suddenly developed, the officials asked for another meeting in the near future, when things become settled. They feel sure that a system can be worked out, by means of which all perishable stock will have preference en route and immediate delivery at destination.

NOTES.

The combined headquarters of the New York Horticultural Society and the New York Botanical Garden was an interesting spot. The botanical garden displayed a collection of native wild flowers of this section, which had been forced into bloom; all were labeled and made a very interesting display. Handsome baskets of flowers to decorate this booth had been received from M. A. Bowe, Chas. A. Dards, and H. A. Bunyard. They were all beautifully arranged. The Mrs. D. Willis Martin prize for most artistically arranged exhibit in the show was won by the private growers' display of flowering plants, staged by Mrs. A. M. Booth, Great Neck, N. Y.

The Western Union Telegraph Co. went the F. T. D. one better in its well-arranged booth in the front of the main floor. Literature, advertising and explaining easy methods for quick delivery of flowers by their system to all parts of the country, was freely circulated.

F. R. Pierson wore a continuous smile, as with one exception he was awarded the first prize in every class in which he exhibited.

St. Louis Spring Flower Show.

A MOST SUCCESSFUL EXHIBITION.

The spring flower show under the auspices of the St. Louis Flower Show Association, Inc., at the Armory, March 15-18, was a most excellent exhibition in every way, and especially worthy of credit as a local affair as far as the exhibitors were concerned, few entries being made by growers distant from St. Louis or vicinity. The management of the show expresses itself as being much gratified with the attendance and the interest taken in the affair by the public, this being the first general flower show held in that city for a number of years. The various committees of the flower show association, composed of members of all branches of the local trade, have worked concertedly and untiringly for months for the success of the event, and the result of their efforts unquestionably will be reflected in the Fifth National Flower Show, which will be held at St. Louis, April 6-15, 1918.

The Armory hall lent itself splendidly to effective floral decoration, the heavy oak rafters overhead draped with green adding a rustic effect that in the perspective was in pleasing contrast with the many bright-colored flowers in the floor groups. Entering at the main door, the garden effect, which was carried out extensively, was most striking, a large electric fountain in the center with a garden seat and tall white lattice arranged with palms and ferns as a background was suggestive of festive occasions, while wide, winding paths led in all directions past bed after bed of flowering and foliage plants, all splendidly grown and of almost every seasonable variety.

The displays of the Missouri Botanical Garden, St. Louis, of which there were a number placed most effectively in various parts of the hall, were especially worthy of mention as were also the several exhibits of the city park department. The botanical garden display, which doubtless attracted the greatest attention, was the superb collection of orchid plants grown by G. H. Pring, occupying 100 square feet of space and in which nearly 50 varieties were represented. One of the interesting features here was a bucket orchid, a native of the West Indies, which the visitors viewed with much interest and curiosity. This display easily captured first honors. Occupying another space near the entrance, there was a splendid collection of Draena Massangeana in the center of which was a beautiful specimen of D. glomerata, a native of the Congo and grown for the botanical garden by Mr. Pring. These were also in the blue ribbon class, as was a specimen stag's horn fern in the same group. A splendid carpet bed arranged by A. B. McIntyre was awarded first prize and Max Schiller added to the botanical garden's list of high marks with firsts for pyramidal boxtrees and a collection of trained box trees in varied styles.

The park department had an excellent circular bed of flowering and foliage plants in variety arranged with grasses, surrounding the large electric fountain, while close at hand were two beds ablaze with color, largely bulbous stock. Bulbous flowers also marked the edge of the circular path around the fountain, four beds being in the form of quarter circles, other paths leading in each of the four directions in the hall dividing them. These were in competition, the honors being shared by the Bourdet Floral Company and George B. Windler. Tulips in striking colors were seen here.

A fine display of evergreens occupying three sections and extending across the entire south end of the hall was arranged by the H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Company, St. Louis. For the best general display of evergreens this firm was awarded first honors; also first for best collection of junipers and second for its exhibit of firs and spruces.

FLOWERING PLANTS.

In the flowering plant section, the Bourdet Floral Company was a strong contender in many classes, being awarded first prizes for genistas, rhododendrons, both specimen plants and arranged for effect, spireas in variety, collection of hyacinths, tulips and best display of lilies staged for effect; also, second honors for azaleas and collection of 20 lilac plants. The first prize for flowering plants arranged for effect to occupy 100 square feet, no bulbous plants allowed, was awarded to William Schray & Sons, who also won blue ribbons for hyacinths in 10-inch pans.

THE CARNATION DISPLAY.

The carnation display, which was staged on the opening day, brought forth a number of excellent entries, among the outstanding varieties being Enchantress Supreme, White Enchantress, Nebraska, Merry Christmas and Washington. The summary of the awards is as follows: Pierre Schneider, Webster Groves, Mo., and Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill., two first and one second prizes each; Alton Floral Company one first, one second and one third; Woodlawn Gardens, Edwardsville, Ill., and Bauer & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind., one first each; W. A. Rowe, Kirkwood, Mo., one first and one third; W. J. Edwards and Hugo Gross, St. Louis, two seconds each; Kirkwood & Son, St. Louis, and Widmer Floral Co., Highland, Ill., one third each. In the sweepstakes, the American Carnation Society's bronze medal was awarded to the Woodlawn Gardens for a splendid vase of Enchantress Supreme.

Not for competition, F. Dorner & Sons Co., Lafayette, Ind., staged splendid vases of Laddie and Rosalia, and the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., showed its new flesh pink, Superb, all of which met with favor.

THE ROSE SECTION.

While the competition for honors in the rose section was not spirited, the entries, staged Friday, were all excellent, with Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill., easily in the lead, their splendid vases of 100 blooms each of White Killarney, Ophelia and Mrs. Charles Russell being superb and at all times surrounded by admiring throngs. A vase of 50 Hoosier Beauty, also an easy winner of first honors in the red class, showed splendid culture. This firm captured first prizes in seven out of eight cases. A. S. Cerny, of St. Louis, and W. J. Pilcher staged excellent vases of White Killarney, Light Pink Killarney and Killarney Brilliant, the first named grower capturing one first and two second prizes, the Pilcher entries receiving second honor in two classes.

F. Dorner & Sons Co., Lafayette, Ind., staged excellent vases of Rose Marie and seedling No. 1 (11), not in competition, and the table of splendidly grown Shawyer, Sunburst, Hoosier Beauty, Ophelia, White Killarney, Mrs. Aaron Ward, and Mrs. Charles Russell, among others displayed by the J. F. Ammann Co., Edwardsville, Ill., also non-competitive, and which received honorable mention, attracted well-deserved attention on Saturday.

THE SWEET PEA SECTION.

The competition in the sweet pea section brought out entries in eleven classes, many good blooms being shown, awards being made as follows: Hugo Gross, four firsts, one second and one third prize; A. F. Kopp, two firsts; W. A. Rowe, three seconds and one third; Joseph Hauser, one first, one second and one third; Chas. Meier and O. C. May, one first each.

THE RETAILERS' SECTION.

At probably no other show of its size has there been greater interest taken by local retailers. This section occupied the entire south end of the hall, table decorations, basket arrangements, etc., being changed daily. This was a pleasing feature with the public. The display of Grimm & Gorly was one of the bright spots here, the effect being a pergola in white, an arrangement of decorative plants forming the background for a Randall electric fountain. White garden furniture looked inviting, while a basket of splendid sweet peas, a trellis box of lilies and other flowers added charm and distinctiveness.

The St. Louis Retail Florists' Association arranged a decoration in the form of a rest room, which was in very good taste, basket arrangements and plants being placed attractively. Floral arrangements by members of the association were featured here.

The display of F. C. Weber, at one corner of the hall, a miniature summer house with fountain and bisque figures, birds, etc., was cleverly done. A background of palms and ferns made an excellent contrast for fancy baskets and plants in decorated pots, etc.

Seruggs, Vandervoort & Barney had a large room devoted to a well-arranged display of foliage plants, fancy baskets, bird houses, etc.

Mullanphy Florists were well up in front with excellent table decorations, corsages and flowers arranged for personal adornment. Their rose-trimmed arch, a first prize winner, was a clever conceit.

Especially attractive arrangements in various forms were seen displayed by the following among others: Grimm & Gorly, F. H. Weber, Windler's Flowers, Jos. Witek, Ayres Floral Co., Mullanphy Florists, Wm. Schray & Sons, J. W. Boern, Bergsterman Floral Co., Windler Floral Co., Tom Carr, The Blossom Shop and Mrs. Rose Schoenle.

Stix, Baer & Fuller had a display of baskets, novelties and foliage and flowering plants.

The four old-fashioned wells in the corners of the hall added a touch of nature to the garden effect and the buckets suspended from the top offered excellent receptacles for cut-flower and plant arrangements.

SUMMARY OF AWARDS.

The following is a list of the principal prize winners and a summary of the awards: Missouri Botanical Garden (G. H. Pring, Max Schiller and A. B. McIntyre, gardeners), 18 first prizes; Bourdet Floral Co., 13 firsts and five seconds; Wm. Schray & Sons, 13 firsts and 13 seconds; Gullett & Sons, nine firsts and one second; W. A. Rowe, seven firsts, four seconds and one third; Hugo Gross, four firsts, four seconds and one third; H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co., five firsts, two seconds and one third; A. F. Kopp, three firsts; Woodlawn Gardens, two first, one third and A. C. S. bronze medal; Alton Floral Co., one first, one second and one third; Pierre Schneider, two firsts and one second; A. S. Cerny, one first and two seconds; Baur & Steinkamp, one first; W. H. Kruse, two firsts and one second; Phil Goebel, Jr., two firsts; F. H. Weber, one first and two seconds; Jos. Hauser, two firsts, one second and one third; Koenig Floral Co., one first; C. B. Nicholson, one first; St. Louis Wholesale Growers Co., one second; St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co., one second; Wm. Meier, Jr., one second; Chas. Meier, one second; W. J. Edwards, two seconds; Widmer Floral Co., two thirds; W. J. Pilcher, two seconds; O. C. May, one second; T. Kirkwood & Son, one third; Mullanphy Florists, six firsts and one second; Windler's Flowers, one first and one second; Joseph Witek, three firsts and three seconds; Windler Floral Co., one first; Ayres Floral Co., one first and silver medal; Bergsterman Floral Co., one second; Tom Carr, one second.

NOTES.

Texas was well represented among the visitors, among those noted being T. J. Wolfe and Annie Wolfe Brigance, Waco; J. E. McAdam, Fort Worth, and H. F. Greve, Dallas. J. W. Furrow, Guthrie, Okla., T. H. Joy and wife, Nashville, Tenn., and Mrs. B. F. Kramer, Jackson, Tenn., were also among the southern visitors.

There were many inquiries for George Asmus and C. W. Johnson, who were unable to attend. The local "boys" regretted that both of these able showmen had to miss seeing the sample of what St. Louis can do in 1918.

The judging was in most capable hands, A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind., Fred Dorner, Lafayette, Ind., and J. S. Wilson, Des Moines, Ia., officiating. Their work was eminently satisfactory.

The exhibits of the children of the public schools was very interesting, among the features being miniature vegetable and landscape gardens, home garden plans, etc.

The lecture programme was well attended, among the speakers on different subjects being L. P. Jenson, Alexander Lurie, George H. Pring and Miss Blattner.

Executive Secretary Ohlweiler and his staff were never too busy to render any possible service with that sincere courtesy that is not soon forgotten.

Friday and Saturday mornings, the show was thrown open to the school children, between four and five thousand attending each day.

The Western Union Telegraph Company, at its booth, called attention to its "Flowers by Telegraph" service.

The Russian tea room was inviting, offering rest and refreshments, with dancing in the evening.

TRADE EXHIBITS.

The trade exhibits were an interesting feature of the show. These were advantageously placed in spacious ante-rooms adjoining the main hall, and offered excellent opportunity for display. The large majority of the firms represented at the show report very satisfactory business. The following were on hand:

The American Bulb Co., Chicago, had a well staged exhibit of Japanese and American grown bulbs and an assortment of novelties. Robert Newcomb in charge.

American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, section showing construction of 36-foot model steel frame greenhouse, ventilating device, large photographs and literature; P. L. McKee and H. Nichols.

H. Eayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., had an up-to-date assortment of novelties; Martin Reukauf.

Burlington Willow-ware Co., Burlington, Ia., basket novelties; A. F. Longren.

The Chicago Feed & Fertilizer Co., exhibit of "Magic" fertilizers, charts and literature; L. V. Mahoney and H. E. Humiston.

The Davey Tree Expert Co., Kent, Ohio, had an interesting exhibit of photographs of tree surgery; E. S. Lyons.

A. T. De La Mare Co. New York, horticultural publications; James Marton.

Knight & Struck Co., New York, heather, chorizemas and colored freesias; W. J. Smart.

Lion & Co., New York, display of novelties for Easter in ribbons and chiffons; M. H. Levine.

Lord & Burnham Co., New York and Chicago, latest design in iron-frame, curved cave greenhouse construction; section of commercial house, literature; M. C. Wright and H. G. Miller.

John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, details of greenhouse construction, cast-iron boiler, greenhouse fittings and ventilating apparatus; R. E. Kurowski and C. P. Guion.

Poehlmann Bros Co., Chicago, flowering and decorative plants, baskets and novelties; T. E. Waters and Gus. Martial.

A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, electric fountains, baskets and novelties; H. W. Miller and Edward Gallavan.

Schloss Bros., New York, ribbons, chiffons and novelties; Julius Dilhoff.

St. Louis Seed Co., plants, seeds, bulbs, garden accessories and aquaria; Martin Moran.

J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., Carnation Superb.

Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago and New York, Cannas Fire Bird and Yellow King Humbert, crotons, palms, ferns, seeds, bulbs and supplies; Carl Vaughan and George Mohn.

The Crape Myrtle.

(Lagerstromia Indica)

We have somewhere noted an inquiry as to the propagation and growing of crape myrtle. Those who have traveled in the southern states in the blooming season of the crape myrtle, from June till near the end of summer, must have been delighted with its beauty and its profusion on many home grounds. It has been said that it is to the south what the lilac is to the north, but on account of the more enduring quality of its bloom, and as believed by many, its superior beauty, it is more ornamental than the lilac. To the mind of the writer, there is nothing finer in the line of flowering shrubs than a crape myrtle, 15 or 20 feet in height, and covered with pink flowers. There are varieties of different colors, some being white, but it is probable that the pink is the most popular.

It thrives as far north as Washington, D. C., but of course does not bloom so early as in the Gulf states. It is also hardy in parts of Maryland, but if grown north of there it must be protected in winter. Though we have never seen it done, it has been said that in the north the plants may be lifted in the fall and kept in a cellar, being replanted in the spring, but it does not appear that any great success would attend such methods, unless with small plants. It cannot be grown at all north of Long Island. It can be propagated from cuttings of the ripe wood. A. F. F.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—Milton A. Reimers, of the well-known florist firm of E. G. Reimers & Son Co., Inc. of this city, and Miss Nora Ward Hamilton, of Lexington and Frankfort, were married March 10.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—The Eastern Wreath Manufacturing Company has been granted a charter to deal in florist supplies. The directors are Louis Shatkin, Charles Smith and James J. McGovern; capital $25,000.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Klft, Philadelphia, Pa.

Easter Preparedness in the Shop.

The busiest season of the year in the retail store is approaching, and for the man who plans ahead, and all successful men do, it is none too soon to make out one's list, order the stock and get the best selection before the choice articles have been picked out by his more enterprising brothers in the trade.

Every systematic man will have the story of last year's business written out, with the variety and quantities of the stock handled, how it sold, what, if any, of this or that was left on hand. His record will show who among the growers sent in the best lilies, or where the choicest ramblers came from, and also a note that he was too late in ordering his heather, a plant of which the stock is always limited. He will possibly have set down something about the novelties that he handled a few of last year, and of which he could have sold many more. These are to be looked up in time so as to secure a better supply.

Now is the time to decide on the color and style of the plant basket he will feature; it is better to have an exclusive pattern or color in several sizes than a great variety, some of which may be difficult to fill. Plant baskets should have ample space for the roots; the more or less skeleton frame patterns, fitted with tins of straight or only slightly tapering sides, allowing the fullest possible soil capacity, are much less expensive than the more closely woven style, and the fact that much of the inside tin shows is no disadvantage, as it is enameled in some soft shade that blends or works in with the colors of the framework of the basket, producing a striking effect. The supply man will also thank you for the early order and give you at the same time much better service. Baskets in two-tone shades of blue look very well when planted with pink, or with some shades of yellow, while pink or light green toned baskets are wonderfully effective with white and blue hydrangeas or hyacinths.

For the Easter trade always select the higher grade hyacinths; they cost half as much again as the cheaper sizes, but there is no comparison in the effect on the character of the work.

Do not attempt to fill the plant baskets at the store during Easter week. Have this done by your grower the week before. If this is not possible, your basket stock should be gathered at one place where you can get a portion of a cool house and have the work done by the store force. The grower will water and care for, and possibly, with the aid of your men, deliver the baskets as required. The stock is always in much better shape and more satisfactory to the customer than that hastily gotten together the night before filling, and which generally begins to go back the next day. An important feature of having this work out of the way is that the time of skilled men is then available for other important work, which cannot be arranged for before.

Easter always brings a demand for wreaths, crosses and clusters for cemetery or grave decoration. The forms may be mossed up and those of the prepared magnolia or oak leaves made up in quantity from now on; to have to arrange these during Easter week is nothing short of a crime. All preparedness work of this kind should be started right now, keeping all hands busy during every spare moment, so that it shall be taken out of the grind of the Easter rush.

The corrugated and folding boxes, if any are required, should be ordered at once, as freight deliveries are not to be depended on these days, and a month too early is better than a day too late. The supply of tags and tag envelopes may be running low. How many men have found out to their sorrow that just in the midst of this busy time they were entirely out?

The advertising, the cards or circulars to customers, should now be planned; it is all very well to expect all you can do anyhow, but customers appreciate the invitation to call and inspect the stock and a little word or two relative to its variety and quality is easily worth while and pretty sure to secure excellent results.

There are many other details that a perusal of last year's story will bring to mind. If an extra store is necessary, look around and see what there is available. Get a line on the extra help. Students of schools and universities, who do not go home during the Easter holidays, are nearly always ready to earn a few extra dollars at that time and generally make very efficient help.

Crepe paper covers in various sizes, to fix the standard pots, may be made ready. They should be made over empty pots of the various sizes, the edges folded and pinned together. When laid flat and packed away, each size by itself, they are ready for instant use when the busy time arrives. Just a narrow ribbon tied around the crepe the color of the flower in the pot gives a touch of color and a very pretty finish.

Decorating the Easter Stock.

With the extra help absolutely necessary at this time, there should be added to the decorative department a couple of girls whose business it is to cover pots with crepe paper or mats, tie ribbons and chiffons, etc.

Green crepe paper adds much to the appearance of a plant and seems positively necessary for pans of hyacinths, tulips and daffodils that are so great a factor in every florist's stock. A narrow ribbon around the pan, of the color, or to contrast or blend well with the flowers, and tied with a small bow, gives a finish that adds much to its market value.

An ordinary flat of tulips, with the mud washed off the bottom and bound with crepe paper or a Japanese mat cut to be fitted nicely to the box and tied with a ribbon, looks very swell. A single arch of several sprays of pussy willows from one corner to the other or a double arch from each corner, finished in the center with a chiffon bow, should add at least 50 per cent to its selling value.

Many plants as they come from the greenhouse are a bit one sided or stand rather high in the pot, leaving a naked and unsightly stem, as is the case with lilacs or rhododendrons. The appearance of such stock can be helped very materially with the aid of short, leafy, laurel branches; stuck in the pot, these resemble the natural foliage, and in connection with a high paper or mat the plant can be given a very finished, symmetrical appearance.

A pale blue ribbon bow on a light pink rhododendron, placed in lieu of a flower so as to balance or hide an imperfection, gives it a great boost for the delivery department. Many other plants can be helped in much the same way—pussy willow sprays, bird sticks, butterflies, and other nick-nacks all have their effect as selling points to persons who do not know just what they want.

When the plant baskets are given the finishing touches with the pussy willow sprays, ribbons, butterflies, birds, bird sticks and the like, a bunch or two of laurel or a leucothoe spray or two will help round them out. Tubes of water to hold a lily stalk, snapdragon or a few roses that can be added to give a finishing touch will often, if suggested, be sanctioned by the customer and the sale increased in this way.

The Flower Shop at Easter.

WATERING.

Keeping the stock watered is very important—plants that are more or less wilted are never salable. If delivered in apparently good condition, but dry, after a night in the warm house, the plant looks a wreck, and has to be made good. Be on the safe side—detail a man whose business it is to see that all plants and plant arrangements are kept constantly wet.

CRATED BOXES.

Have a stock of crated boxes in various sizes ready for express shipments. A man can pack six cases while he is making one. Every minute saved is worth 10 at this busy time.

AVOIDING SHIPPING DELAYS.

Always notify consignee that the box is coming. The street number, as given, may be wrong, north instead of south; the postman rectifies the mistake at once, the express companies take longer. An inquiry for the delayed package solves the trouble. The losses through errors of this kind in the delivery of funeral flowers, where even minutes count, are frequent and expensive, and every precaution should be taken to avoid them.

SPECIAL DELIVERY SPACE.

In all such rush times, a special delivery space should be provided, where all boxes and packages to take trains and for immediate messenger service should be placed. Getting such orders mixed up with the bulk of "any time today" packages is almost sure to cause great annoyance and loss.

PHONE SERVICE.

A competent person should be on duty at the phones to answer quickly, take orders or call the persons wanted, and see that they come; or get the customers' numbers, so that they may be called later. Such system is a great help when the rush is on.

EXTRA BOYS.

A good force of boys for immediate and suburban deliveries is a great help. Give them instructions and money, relative to telephoning the store in case of wrong numbers. Many an error can in this way be corrected and another long trip avoided.

CEMETERY PLANS.

Have plans of all cemeteries on file. Always attach lot and section number to directions. Many orders for pieces to be placed on graves are for persons recently deceased, sometimes without headstones, and in lots under another name. Getting the exact data with the order is important.

PROTECTION TO LILIES.

Strips of tissue paper four inches in width and long enough to wrap together the four or five lilies on a plant afford great protection during delivery. A light rubber band holds the paper in place.

WATERING CARDS.

Watering directions or cards with "water this plant twice daily" should be attached to rambler roses, hydrangeas, azaleas, and many other plants. Short cultural instructions, as to light, heated rooms, cases of extreme wilting, necessitating placing the pot in a bucket of water, etc., can be printed on the card, which likely remains on the plant and has considerable advertising value.

A Nineteen-Seventeen Shop.

KNOBLE BROS., CLEVELAND, O.

Eleven years ago Herman P. Knoble was a traveling salesman for a hardware firm. In looking for a store to go into business for himself in the same line, he found at 1836 West Twenty-fifth street a florist who wanted to sell out. Almost on the spur of the moment he bought the lease and business, and although without technical knowledge of flowers, he had the business instinct so essential to success and soon became convinced that handling flowers was better than hardware. Later his brother, O. C. Knoble, became associated with him and they now have one of the most successful and progressive stores in Cleveland. Herman P., who is known to many of the trade from his active work in the F. T. D., has energy plus; with his ear to the ground, his eyes always open, he is ever on the alert, keeping up-to-the-minute in all that is best in modern retailing. His large show window, his conveniently arranged store with greenhouses in the rear, is a model retail shop. The decorations are in soft grey tones, which make a good background for the greens and more or less gay colors of the stock.

Asking Messrs. Knoble to what they attributed their success, the reply was, "keeping everlastingly at it." Advertising and special sales had been a great factor. In the first years, there was no stability to prices in Cleveland. A $10 funeral order meant a load of palms thrown in. Now this is all changed. Palms are always extra, and if kept over until the next day a 50 per cent advance is charged. Their minimum priced spray is now $3; it used to be $2 and it is hoped some of these days to see it higher. To meet the higher cost of living and almost everything handled in the business, they had raised prices—just had to—and have had few complaints from this action.

In advertising they use the Sunday and evening papers. They keep posted on the market at all times and run specials to enliven dull seasons whenever possible. Stock however, must always be fresh and offered at a price that shows a marked difference below the ordinary figures. Mr. Knoble believes that 8 per cent of the gross business can be safely, if judiciously spent, used for advertising, depending somewhat on the location of the store, which if in a central retail district, a part of the high rent would have to come from the amount set aside for advertising. They also use a system of illustrated seasonable circulars eight months of the year, sending 5,000 each time, and find them very effective. In all designs or made up pieces, the cost of the flowers used must not exceed 1/3 the price for the finished article. Many men thought when they sold for $2 what had cost them $1 that they were making 100 per cent, which was a great mistake. Much more is expected of the florist now than formerly, fancy boxes, wax paper, tape, ribbons, pins, automobile delivery, uniformed messengers, elegant store fixtures, telephone service, all of which mean greatly increased expenses over the service of only a few years ago. Florists ought to consider these overhead charges, keep a strict account and find just what the percentage of cost is to the volume of business.

The telephone is a great factor to them in securing trade, their slogan is—"Our store is as close to you as the nearest telephone." From 55 to 60 per cent of their business comes over the phone. "Shop over the phone" is always emphasized in all their ads.

Mr. Knoble believes the time spent in helping in civic affairs of one's city is good advertising. It adds prestige and gets one acquainted with influential people, who reciprocate when they want anything in your line.

This firm has made a specialty of Boston ferns, always having something nice in this line to offer and has found them a very good plant for special sales.

An advertising scheme that was well worked and profitable was the buying of the entire crop of a six acre peony farm. When in flower, they prevailed on the editor of the paper in which most of their ads were carried to photo and write up this show which he did; people streamed out to see the display, they sold the flowers at the field to be carried away for 50 cents a dozen, but at the store they cost $1 to $1.50 a dozen. Last year they sold 114,000 flowers.

For their pot plants, they have five different printed watering tags. Begonias read: "Water every 48 hours"; cyclamen—"Every 24 hours"; hydrangeas and similar stock—"Water twice daily," etc. These are appreciated by the customers.

Paper White narcissus bulbs have been great sellers the past season. They have been able to dispose of all their old fern dishes, shallow bowls, etc., when filled with these bulbs. They flower quickly and surely with all who have tried them.

They are strong believers in window decoration and feature all floral holidays and many others, trying always to keep it attractive, and at times of special sales filled with these feature plants or flowers.

All orders are taken on a triplicate machine, one of the slips being stamped at the cash register to show amount of sale paid or charge. The original charge slips for the week are mailed to customers on Friday night of the week of purchase. The first copy is filed for record, while the third goes to the shipping clerk with the articles, who sees that the order and card are correct. This latter slip is narrower than the others and does not contain prices, but has a line for receipt, which when signed is returned by the chauffeur and filed for reference. The card accompanying orders is enclosed in a tag envelope with a wax paper opening so that it can be seen that it is correct. The charge sheet sent to customers is folded so that the address can be read, when sealed, in a wax covered open faced envelope.

They open accounts with almost all who make such request without question and their losses from bad bills have so far been less than 1/2 of 1 per cent annually.

They find the F. T. D. a good business asset, as last year their trade from this source coming and going was close to $3,500.

To give an idea of the extent of the business three good sized motor cars were in active service all through the busy season. At the time of my visit, the stock was in and displayed for St. Valentine's day; a large line of plants, the pots all nicely decorated with crepe and ribbon the color of the flowers. A. L. Randall Co.'s easel hearts, and H. Boyersdorfer & Co.'s "kiddies" were conspicuous in the cut flower arrangements, the large show window with its velvet draperies being filled with these and other valentine novelties. Truly a live and up-to-date store.

Modern Methods in Retailing Flowers.

THE J. M. GASSER CO., CLEVELAND.

Cleveland, the sixth city in the United States in point of population, is noted for its live and progressive florists, whose recent flower shows have been noted achievements, while for local newspaper publicity, to make flowers popular and increase their sale, they spend annually a sum of $2,500.

One of the most progressive firms is the J. M. Gasser Co., whose elegant store in the heart of the retail district, is ably managed by F. C. W. Brown, one of the brightest men in the trade, who came to the company with an experience of 25 years in several of the largest stores of the United States and Canada, in all of which he had always served with credit as artist or manager. A series of photographs of designs and other arrangements of flowers made and photographed by Mr. Brown, for he is an expert photographer as well as floral artist, are the standard of the retail trade. In speaking of obtaining business, Mr. Brown said: "We follow the line of least resistance. We aim to keep the best and most varied line of flowers that, in addition to those grown at our own large range, the market affords. Blooming and foliage plants are also a feature, of which we carry a large stock, displayed always in jardinières or pots decorated with crepe paper. We are great believers in publicity—our show window is one of our greatest factors in this line. Here we feature all holidays; also, many local and national happenings. The day after the European war broke out, we displayed a battleship in our window, which was a great drawing card. Our present feature of all the greenhouses and other buildings in miniature giving a birds-eye view of our nurseries at Rocky River, has attracted much attention. We always have a reserve special for our window when there is nothing particular to be featured. We join in the co-operative publicity work of the trade and also use considerable newspaper space, but always to enliven dull times, never at holidays, such as Christmas or Easter, when we always have all we can do.

"Week end specials at bargain prices have done much to build up our business. These are always genuine reductions, at least one-third below current prices. The advertisement does not appear in the paper until the morning of the sale. While held frequently, they are not regular, and only on the Saturdays when we are sure of having the stock offered in quantity. Our offer is never for less than one dollar's worth. A dollar box is a bargain because of its containing two or more dozen carnations or roses as the case may be. We do not deliver less than one dollar's worth; if the purchase is 75 cents, we charge 25 cents for delivery; if 85 cents, 15 cents, and so on to make the dollar. There is no deviation from this rule. Orders purchased after five p. m. to be sent at once are charged 25 cents for delivery. We close at six o'clock sharp, except before holidays. We feel we lose little, if any, business by this early closing and gain the respect of the people we are trying to serve."

When asked if special sales lowered the dignity of the store, Mr. Brown replied that this was not the case. The sales of high class stock such as American Beauty roses, orchids, gardenias, etc., had increased very materially, and more than kept pace with the other gains of the business. Special sales, when possible, and advertised, induced people to buy and enjoy flowers when they otherwise would not think of purchasing on account of the expense. Prices were always normal at other times, which customers did not object to, as the more or less frequent bargains offered gave the store the name of being liberal. A dollar bunch of violets was an advertised valentine special, which while good value for the money, was generally passed over for the better corsage at $1.50 or $2, but it brought many inquiries and gave the desired impression that Gasser's flowers were not high priced.

Customers are always greeted by salesmen, who go forward to meet them in a courteous but not obtrusive manner. Orders must always be so plainly written down in every particular that they can be put up by any other clerk in the store. In the window dressing, in the decorations, the designs, basket work, or other arrangements, no single individual is known. It is a Gasser's creation, not made by Smith of Gasser's, but by one of Gasser's artists, each as capable as another to take or fill orders.

In all kinds of bric-a-brac, flower containers, baskets, etc., now so generally carried in all stores, a safe plan in purchasing is that if the article is priced to sell for $1 it should be capable of containing or holding $2 worth of flowers. If it will not stand this test, pass it by, as it is likely to become dead stock or at least is not profitable to carry.

New ideas of the store force so that each shall take an added interest in the business, are being constantly tried out, originality in design and floral arrangement is always welcome, as are also methods that tend to improve the service. The telephone is now indispensable, at least half the business being received over the wire; the most careful attention is given to these orders so that patrons may learn to depend on everything being as satisfactory as if selections were made in person.

The accounts are all kept by the library bureau card system, which has been found much more satisfactory than the old time ledgers. Speaking in a general way, anyone can open an account with the Gasser Co. Their losses from bad bills is not 1/2 of one per cent per annum. An investigation of the great majority of the poor accounts generally shows that no amount of precaution would have saved the loss. They never bring suit. When an account is 60 days old, it is placed in a "tickler" or separate box and a letter campaign for its collection started. Various dates are specified and if no return by that time, another stronger letter goes forward and so on until it is paid. This regular work generally brings the desired result.

Mr. Brown is much encouraged by the steady increase of the business. A new house 60x400 feet is going up the coming summer as an addition to the greenhouse range, to be followed by a similar structure in 1918.

ORLAND, CALIF.—Rose day, which was celebrated February 17, was very successful and orders for rose stock have been pouring in at a rapid rate.

PLANT NOTES.

Cyclamens.

The plants of cyclamen grown from seed sown last fall will now be nice, stocky little plants if properly grown and should be large enough to transplant to 2 1/2 or 3-inch pots. The soil should be live fibrous loam with about one-third leaf mold, and in mixing a liberal sprinkling of sand should be included. In potting, the small bulb should be so placed that the soil just covers it; many leave the bulb out of the soil, but best results are obtained with the young stock to leave the bulb in the soil. Later after the bulb has grown large and mature, this is not so necessary. The plants should be placed in a cool house and if possible near the glass and where they can have all the ventilation possible. Just as soon as safe they should be removed to frames outside and plunged in the soil even with the rim of the pot. The cyclamen will not tolerate poor drainage and if anything happens to block the drainage the plant quickly sickens. This sometimes happens where the pots are sunk in the soil and is often caused by angle worms. Where these are seen or the appearance of lumps on the top of the soil denotes their presence, they should be removed at once. In the final potting, be sure and place plenty of crocks in the bottom of the pot.

Salvias.

There are few more popular plants for bedding purposes than the salvia and when properly grown they are a great ornament to a garden either as beds by themselves or as an edging for cannas or other tall plants, the dwarf varieties being especially adapted to this purpose. To make a showing in mid-summer the plants should be started early either by cuttings or seeds so that the plants at this time should be large enough for a 3-inch pot and should have been pinched back at least once and beginning to branch. These can be potted into 4-inch pots in April and will be showing bud by the time for planting them outside in June. Such plants of course cannot be sold as cheaply as the late-sown seedlings that are grown closely together, and allowed to run up to a single stem, but it will not take so many of the former plants to fill the same space and the bed will be in flower through the summer and fall while with the latter too often there is no bloom until just before frost, and when the first frosts are early the plants are not in bloom but a few weeks. The early plants are much more satisfactory to the customer and will cost but little more owing to the larger space which they will cover during the season.

Bedding Plants.

The plants for bedding out in the spring will take not only much of the plantsman's time, but will keep demanding more room, for the growth from now on will be rapid and unless constantly watched and cared for the plants will quickly get crowded and much of the stock injured. The final shift of the geraniums in the northern section of the country may be delayed until the first of April, but the plants should not be allowed to get badly potbound, and they should be given plenty of growing room. The propagating bed should be full of cuttings of the more rapid growing plants and the seedlings will have to be potted as soon as of proper size. The cannas and other bulbs that have been started should be potted and given good location for growing on. Now is the time to take account of stock and see of what kinds there is going to be a shortage and of what there will probably be an over supply and obtain the first and dispose of the second. This is the time to buy, for the stocks are large and shipments can be guaranteed, and the prices are low compared to what they will be a month hence. The amount of stock that annually goes to waste is large and a little foresight will prevent much of it. Every summer some growers throw away thousands of plants that have cost much in labor and should have made returns. Auction sales in some sections are the means of disposing of much of this stock, but this is generally at low prices. This stock can most all of it be disposed of by a little judicious advertising and letting the other fellows know where it can be obtained. An attendant at any plant sale in early spring will find many growers looking for all kinds of stock. It is often quite difficult to know just how much of each kind of bedding stock is wanted, but as soon as an over supply is noted let the other growers know where they can obtain it, and place a price on it that will guarantee a sale. It is much better to move it at some price than to throw it away. The wide-awake, up-to-date growers clean up their stock every year.

Geraniums.

At the approach of spring the geraniums and other bedding stock will make rapid growth and from those which are large enough a top cutting may be taken now. While these cuttings will not make good-sized plants for bedding out, yet they can be grown on for stock plants for another year. It is time now to take account of the stock on hand and look over the amount that has been required in the past, and if it is found that there will be a probable shortage of any varieties procure them at once. They can be obtained at this time, either small plants or rooted cuttings, at low prices. Many growers lose every year by putting off their buying too late when the prices have advanced to such a figure that there is no profit in handling them. It is seldom that one who has much bedding to do, has geraniums enough, especially of S. A. Nutt or Alphonse Ricard, and this is the time to procure the stock, and if a grower has any room to spare it is good business to stock up with these varieties, for there is a guaranteed sale for all well grown plants in May. The plants that are now in 3-inch pots will require going over often and spacing out, that well-grown stocky plants may be had. If crowded now, tall, weak, spindly plants are too often the result, and when grown in this way are not fit to make a good showing in the bed when planted.

Sweet Peas.

A sowing of sweet peas made in pots late in March which can be transplanted outside as soon as all danger from late frosts is passed, will give a crop of these flowers two or three weeks earlier than the seed sown in the ground. There is generally a time in late June and early July that the sweet peas in the greenhouses come very poor, owing to the excessive heat under glass and the infection of red spider, and the early sowings outside are not yet in flower. Five or six seeds sown in a 3-inch pot and these placed on the sill or window ledge or on a hanging shelf will make nice stock for planting out after the middle of April and the advantage of those started in the greenhouse over the ones sown in the cold ground will be quickly seen upon trial. They can be grown so that they will take but little valuable room under glass and the extra expense of this and the labor in transplanting them will be more than recompensed by having fine flowers at a time when most of the stock is in poor condition.

The plants that are growing inside will require considerable attention as the sun increases in power; the growth is very rapid and the vines must be kept erect or crooked flower stems will be the result. They should be gone over every day, and where the growing shoots are getting away from the supports they should be fastened to them.

THE ROSE.

March Care.

February, being one of the months that usually puts renewed vigor into the plants, March ushers us into a very busy time, as the plants that show vigorous growth will at this time require a good substantial feeding, that can now be safely applied as a mulch. And we are inclined to believe that there is nothing that will take the place of rather fresh cow manure for this purpose. Break the manure up finely and apply about two full handfuls on each side of a four-row bed, which is about four handfuls to the row; leave the manure in a ridge so it can be washed in with the hose. This can be best accomplished by using a nozzle on the hose that will spread the water about three inches with considerable force, which will level off the mulch nicely and wash the proper amount of the liquid out of the mulch without wasting it.

Care should be exercised in having the soil in the proper condition to take the feeding; do not have it too dry, if burned foliage is to be avoided; try to strike it at the happy medium. It will be found safer a little on the wet side than for it to be too dry. One should be sure to wash the mulch into the soil, as fast as it is being applied or at least do not have any of the mulch carried over till the next day that has not been watered in, as the house will be filled with the ammonia fumes, which will cause a heavy loss of foliage, unless a liberal amount of air is carried during the night, and again it will be a waste of the ammonia, which we are trying to feed to the plants. It is advisable and quite necessary to carry a little crack of air in the houses the first night following the application of a mulch. If the weather is cold, a half inch will suffice and this can be increased according to the weather conditions outside. We would suggest removing any of the old mulch that still remains on the beds before applying the fresh mulch. Time will be saved by tying the plants before mulching, at least all of the growth that hangs over the walks.

The young stock that has been grafted or rooted and potted off, should have a good sunny bench, and cared for by someone that is a careful waterer. It will often be found necessary to go over the lot of young stock and spout the driest of the pots before giving them a general watering. The young stock should be watered with the can for at least several weeks after potting, using the hose only for spraying them.

Easter is rapidly approaching, and the grower has not any too much time to get the plants tied and the other work attended to in order to be in at the finish with prime stock. Be sure to carefully rub out all of the side shoots from the pinched growths that have been timed for Easter, and by going through the houses frequently, paying strict attention to what is required, many of the little important details of rose growing are noticed in time and taken care of. Do not neglect to fumigate lightly, yet frequently, at this season. We have found that by using a good grade of 40% nicotine solution, diluted to half strength, applied early in the morning to the steam pipes (side coils preferred), with the ordinary pint size oil can, going up one side and returning on the other side, applying the liquid as fast as one can walk, will do more to keep the fly down than any other method we have ever used, and this method will not be found any more expensive in the long run than the use of the fumigating papers which often fail to give the desired results, even when using an extra amount. We are satisfied that the liquid is to be preferred. After carefully testing both methods, and if used in the right manner (and that is as a preventive) the cost of fumigating is cut in half compared with the use of any fumigating material if one waits until the green fly has a slight foothold. One application every 10 days, as prescribed above, keeps our range absolutely clean of green fly.

As the days grow considerably longer, and now that we have good strong sunshine, when it does shine, the fires should be banked as early as possible and vigorous syringing is also necessary, getting at it as early as the temperature permits; also increase the amount of air, allowing plenty in good weather and avoid a stuffy atmosphere in the houses. Do not be afraid to make repeated journeys around to the ventilating machines, for in order to ventilate properly, the air should be increased gradually up to the warmest part of the day, and reduced just as carefully, avoiding sudden and extreme changes at all times.

E.

Summer Struck Cuttings.

More young roses are raised in Springfield, O., than in all the rest of the country combined. They are for the most part grown and sold from 1½-inch and 2½-inch pots, but are strong, stocky little one-year-old plants, which, though small, have great vitality. About two-thirds of the stock is grown for the trade; the balance is grown and kept as small as possible so as to be sent in packages of one dozen or more, at low rates of postage, to supply what is known as the catalogue plant trade, which has been worked up and centers in this city.

How these are grown is very interesting. As early in the spring as there is room, in March or early April, if possible, tables in low-roofed greenhouses are planted with this small 2½-inch stock, which after its long rest in cold houses at a temperature of 36° to 38°, is eager to get away and in the warm houses, with the root room, as they say here, "just goes crazy." Even in the small pots, when a mild spell sets in they will make shoots six to eight inches long in three days.

After a couple of months, the first cuttings are taken; the wood must be just right, not too soft nor too hard. All propagating is done outside in frames. Good fresh manure (it must be fresh and hot), is packed down good and hard until a foot thick at first; later in the season less will answer. Four inches of sand is then packed down hard on top of this and given a watering. Rose cuttings are then placed in small trench rows, made with a putty knife, and well packed in with sand. This is then given a light watering to settle the sand and covered with the 3x6 sash, which is about 10 inches above the cuttings. Over the bed, about four feet in height, is arranged shading cloth to let in as much light as possible, but keep out the sun. No further watering or ventilation is given. The moisture and heat from the manure keeps the bed steaming hot, often up to 125° in extreme summer weather, but the roses appear to like it, and in from three weeks to 30 days and in the late fall three to four weeks they are rooted and ready to be potted up. They are put into thumb or one and one-half-inch pots, placed in the greenhouses and shaded for a few days, and are then able to take care of themselves. Some pot at once into 2½-inch pots to save another handling.

Generally three crops are taken from these summer houses, the last batch of cuttings going into the frames early in October, from which they are often not potted until December. At times they freeze solid in the bed, but come out later all right; when danger threatens the frame is covered with manure.

These small roses are wintered in cold houses, kept preferably at 36° to 38°, but the pots often freeze solid, which does not appear to injure the stock in the least. From January on, this stock is given a shift into a 2-inch or 2½-inch pot, and as spring approaches, as early as March, make splendid thrifty stock, breaking freely from the bottom.

Cuttings of outside Rambler roses and others of the Cochet type, from wood in the field will also root in these manure frames, very good "strikes" resulting, and make splendid stocky plants that get away fast in early spring.

All the Springfield growers claim that these summer struck cuttings are much better than those taken in winter, as they are established plants before they go to rest, and after this period, wake up with a sturdy vitality and reserve power that is entirely lacking in the cuttings made from forced winter growth.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y.—The many friends of Lawrence Cotter, of the Lakeview Rose Gardens, will regret to learn that the condition of his health, poor for some considerable time, is now extremely critical.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Propagating.

Good strong stock plants are an important factor in working up a big stock of healthy young plants, success in this respect depending greatly on having a good supply of clean sturdy cuttings ready to go in the propagating bed at such times as they are needed. At the time the stock plants are taken from the benches after being through flowering, the general rule is to get them out of the way as soon as possible, and in many cases without any consideration for their future welfare. Then, if they begin to go back, the trouble is often laid to some disease instead of poor quarters or lack of care. Every cutting taken from a stock plant and worked up into a growing plant, is just as much an important product of any establishment as are cut flowers or flowering plants and should be considered accordingly. Make it a point now to overhaul the stock plants, cleaning off any diseased or decayed foliage, and if they are set over thick in the flats or benches, spread them apart, working some fresh, clean soil down between the plants to encourage quick root action. They need light, airy quarters with plenty of ventilation on every favorable occasion and must not be over-watered. Much better cuttings are produced when the stools are held a little to the dry side; not enough to cause the shoots to wilt, but to such a degree that they will not become drawn out and soft. A part of the care of chrysanthemums that needs the closest attention at all times is to keep the plants free of insects, and the new shoots coming up from the stool of the stock plants need even closer watching than at any other time; owing to the close growth near the ground the insects are hard to dislodge. An occasional fumigating, followed up with light sprayings of the nicotine preparations, will keep the shoots clean and encourage their growth. Chrysanthemums belong to the list of plants that do best in a cool temperature, and forcing of any description should be carefully avoided. Better cuttings, better plants, and more successful results can be obtained when the plants are grown cool from start to finish.

Every precaution should be taken in preparing the propagating beds and providing fresh, clean sand as is taken with any other plant. Chrysanthemum cuttings root easily when given the proper attention, but they rebel quickly at any careless methods, and one of the most important considerations is to keep the cuttings crisp at all times and not allow them to wilt down. This is very easily done by proper shading and spraying, guarding against draughts, and maintaining a cool temperature.

The very early varieties and slow growers should be the first to receive our attention. To be successful with the early varieties and have them matured at their proper season, it is important that they be propagated and planted early. Growers who do well with that old variety, Ivory, and consider it one of the best paying whites for October 15-25, are now putting in the cuttings. Ivory is one of the best of the very old varieties, but it needs to be propagated early and grown on without a check to be successful with it. The same is true with nearly all the dwarf varieties. Among the varieties that should be propagated now are Pink Ivory and White Ivory, good commercial varieties for October 15-25; Golden Glow and Smith's Advance, early yellow and white for September flowering; Polly Rose and Early Snow, two good white varieties for the first week of October; Early Frost, a fine, early white lasting in good condition over a long period; Alice Day, extra fine, early white introduction of 1916, ready to cut October 10-15, a fine commercial variety in every respect; Crystal Gem, a large fancy white for early October; Oconto, one of the best second early white varieties; Antigone, a fine white of good form; Monrovia and Comoleta, two good early yellow varieties; Golden Queen, a fine early yellow, one of the best of the early varieties of any color. Blooms of Golden Queen realized highest market prices last October.

Early Rose, pink introduction of 1916, dwarf grower, is a fine early pink variety; October Queen, pure, glistening white, introduction of 1916, large flower, one of the most promising varieties of last year; Tiger, good commercial yellow of close incurved form, splendid grower; Unaka, incurved pink, grown largely as the earliest pink variety; Calumet, light bronze, sold particularly well during October 1916—a fine, large flower.

Josephine Foley is a splendid white variety in season the last of October or early November; is good enough as a commercial proposition to propagate all the stock one can get of it. A grand incurved white, strong grower and good keeper. One of the very best white commercial or exhibition chrysanthemums.

In addition to the early varieties, the exhibition sorts and all others of slow dwarf growth should receive attention and the cuttings put into the sand as soon as they are available. Prepare to take the cuttings out of the sand as soon as they become rooted and not allow them to become drawn and wirey at the roots from remaining in the propagating bed too long. A fresh loam soil is best suited to young plants for the first potting. Do not crowd them at all, but let them grow along as naturally as possible.

Soya Bean Oil.

Soya bean oil from Japan, worth $2,000,000, was recently received at Tacoma, Wash., in two cargoes and forwarded to one of the large soap manufacturers of the country by a special train of thirty tank cars. Soya bean oil, which is growing in favor with soap manufacturers in America, is used in England as part of a process of manufacturing lard, or is used without being mixed as a lard or cooking oil. The consignment just shipped is the largest of the kind ever received in the United States.

DETROIT, MICH., March 15.—The plan of growing flowers of Lilium giganteum on shares in the interest of the importing jobber and the local grower is said to be started here. We have already called attention to the unfairness of such a combination to smaller local growers, who buy the bulbs outright and pay for them.

FLORISTS' FERNS.

Spring Care of Seedlings.

With the approach of spring, the fern grower finds work enough at hand, for the young stock begins to move along more rapidly, and is soon in condition to take up all space that may have been vacated by the winter trade.

As the seedling ferns form their first fronds, they become fit for pricking out in small clumps into shallow trays or boxes, these boxes containing from 1½ to 2 inches of light soil, the usual custom among trade growers being to put about 200 clumps of the seedlings to a box. The boxes are then placed in a lightly shaded greenhouse, carefully watered, and kept free from weeds, and in a few weeks the strong growing species will make growth enough to prepare them for potting off, the various pterises being among those of most rapid growth.

The holly fern, Cyrtomium falcatum, and its improved variety, C. Rochfordianum, and also the favorite table fern, Aspidium tsussimense, are considerably slower in growth than the pteris, and cannot be greatly hurried by the application of extra heat, for both of these excellent ferns are almost hardy, and too much heat in the greenhouse is almost sure to bring about an attack of thrips.

Astonishing quantities of some of these ferns are prepared for the market by some of the fern specialists of the present day, the stocks in some instances running up to hundreds of thousands and even millions, and when speaking of such quantities few persons realize the amount of labor involved in the preparation of such a stock. The bird's nest fern, Thamnopteris nidus, or Asplenium nidus, as it is variously called, is another plant that has come to the front commercially in the past few years, and is not only a good seller and a fairly rapid grower, but is also a very good house plant, though like all other ferns, is more satisfactory in a dwelling that is lighted by electricity than in one in which gas is the illuminant.

In the earlier days of this fern, the growers seem to have found some difficulty in keeping the foliage in good condition, black patches and spotting, perhaps brought about by careless watering and insufficient heat, being much in evidence, but now the plants are grown in a rather light and open compost, with plenty of drainage material, given a night temperature of 60° to 64° and plenty of water, and from October to March get full sunshine, with the result that more or less of these attractive specimens are seen in all the better class florists' shops. Snails are rather partial to the tender young fronds of the bird's nest fern, just as they are of those of the maidenheads, but most of the growers use enough slaked lime on their benches to discourage frequent visits from the snails. A dusting of the lime under the benches from time to time is also a good practice, and helps to purify the atmosphere in addition to keeping down worms and snails.

The past season was no exception to the rule of former years, that the various Boston ferns were in apparently too great supply in the autumn, and not supply enough toward spring. This is one of the conditions that seems hard to remedy, from the fact that many growers want a quick crop for summer growth in order to occupy their space, and Bostons are easy to grow and do not represent a very large outlay for stock. But when the stock is grown to five or six-inch size, and the demand for space becomes urgent, there is usually some rapid unloading, and not infrequently at bargain prices.

Adiantum "Glory of Moordrecht," commonly styled the Glory fern, has evidently come to stay as a commercial fern, both growers and dealers reporting favorably on it, the growers favoring it because it comes true from spores, even though the spores may not be gathered in great quantities, and also is reasonably easy to grow in a temperature of 65°, and the dealers soon proved that it was an excellent substitute for Adiantum Farleyense, and a much better keeper. Cibotium Schiedeii is still in strong demand in those stores where high grade plants are called for, but this is one of the ferns that cannot be grown for the same price as a nephrolepis, and therefore is not likely to become as common. It is truly lovely, and a thoroughly good window plant, but in the present stage of the game it requires much care and space and quite a lot of patience to produce a good crop of this cibotium.

Hardy ferns are being taken up to a greater extent as our gardens and gardening grow more extensive, and in a few years there doubtless will be much done in this direction, for there are many beautiful species that may be planted in permanent beds for shady places, and apart from some of the novelties it is not a very expensive line to handle.

P. TERIS.

Cement Posts and Benches.

If many florists knew the ease with which cement or concrete can be handled, it would be used to a much larger degree in greenhouse work, particularly for posts and in bench construction. The Reeser Plant Co., of Springfield, O., in a recently built house, said the row of posts used were all made in a day. A mould of the desired width and length, open top and bottom, closed at both ends, was laid on a flat board, the concrete about the consistency of mortar was filled and packed in, together with two pieces of barbed wire the length of the post, and then smoothed even with the edges of the mould. This was then removed and laid on another board and the process repeated. Before lifting the mould, a bolt was driven through a hole, clear through the post at equal distances from the top. This enabled a block to be clamped to the post which supported the back of the greenhouse bench.

The Good & Reese Co. make a cement table with tile bottom, which is supported on cement posts. The front and rear facing boards are one inch thick, four feet in length, with a 1½-inch shoulder at the bottom. These are set on edge on the posts and held in place by cross beams of cement, almost like grate bars. These rest on the shoulders on the inside of the facing boards or front and back of the table. These cross supports can be placed any distance apart to support tile cement boards or a wooden bottom. Where the sections come together, they can be fitted with cement, making a continuous front and back. Such a table is indestructible and at the same time, aside from the labor, less expensive than wood.

THE CARNATION.

Mulching and General Care.

This is the time of the year for the plants to be at their best. There is not any finer sight than a bench of carnation plants in full bloom with an abundance of buds and shoots coming along. The plants are beginning to show the effects of the better weather conditions by a stronger growth, stiffer stems and much more substance and keeping qualities to the flowers; the slow plant growth of the dark mid-winter days is rapidly being overcome by the greater strength of the sun and lengthening of the days.

Unless the plants have been highly fed up with liquid manure or by mulching, they will now be in need of some stimulation to encourage them to keep up their active growth and produce a continuous supply of good flowers. Mulching the beds with a mixture of well-rotted stable manure and fine soil is the best means of supplying the plants with plant food at this season of the year. A mulch put on the beds now, gives the surface roots new soil to work in, adding renewed vigor to the plants to carry them well into the spring months. For the plants to derive the greatest benefit from the mulch it should not be extra rough or lumpy; neither should it be put on too thick. Manure from last season that has laid outside and become well rotted, mixed with fine, loamy soil in equal proportions, makes a good mulch. If brought direct from the outside the material should be spread out on the floor of the shed or some other place where it can dry out a bit before putting it on the beds. First, go over the bed and loosen up the surface a little with a scratcher, not deep enough to injure the roots, but so that the mulch will settle well down into the bed. Spread the mulch about three-quarters of an inch thick evenly over the bed, being careful not to draw it up too thick close around the trunk of the plant. The condition of the soil in the beds when the mulch is put on is a very important matter in connection with mulching. Do not mulch when the soil is very wet or extra dry, but be sure that it is in a moderate state, then after the mulch is on, it can safely be watered in without getting the beds too wet. After mulching, extra care must be exercised in watering so that the soil does not become overwet, which at this season is a dangerous state for the plants, being very liable to start stem rot. It is best to keep the soil just moderate until the roots have worked well into the mulch.

The general routine in the caring for the plants should receive close attention. Growth is becoming heavy and more vigorous. To keep it in condition, attend to placing the shoots in the rings or wires before they have a chance of becoming crooked; also, pay particular attention to disbudding and keeping the plants free from insects.

Airing and watering are very important parts of the work. Do not allow close, high-temperature conditions to prevail in the houses at any time, but ventilate freely on all occasions when the weather will permit; an even temperature, maintained at all times, is one of the surest means of having good flowers. Free ventilation makes it necessary to watch the condition of the soil more closely for the need of watering. Examine the beds daily, watering such parts as are in need of it, and now that the houses can be ventilated more freely, together with the increased power of the sun, syringing of the plants once a week on a bright day will be very beneficial to them. Sometimes when the crop is very heavy, with the market low, growers are inclined to allow a big lot of flowers to remain on the plants rather than cut them and ship at the low price. This is a mistake, for the principal reason that thrip will very quickly make its appearance on the over-ripe flowers and it will not take long before the whole stock is infested.

Good stock for next season depends greatly on the care that is given to the young plants now in the early stages of their growth. As soon as the cuttings are well rooted, they should be taken from the sand, potted or benched, according to the method followed out in caring for them; we prefer potting our young carnation plants rather than benching or putting them in flats, believing that they retain greater vigor after planting in the field to carry them over the dry season of summer. A live fresh soil, free from green manure of any kind, is best suited for these young plants. Mix a small quantity of clean sand with it to lighten it up. Run it through a ¾-inch mesh sieve so that it will not be lumpy. Give the young plants a good location in a light, airy house, be a little careful about draughts until they get rooted in the soil, after which the best treatment for them is to air freely, maintain a cool temperature and keep the soil a little to the dry side. When the young plants have made growth enough to need topping, attend to the work on time to encourage them to make breaks and shoots, which is a most important feature to insure good well branched plants later on.

Any propagating still needed to be done should be attended to without any further delay. A cutting will need all the time between now and planting out time to grow into a strong enough young plant fit to plant out with any reasonable expectation of having it grow into a productive plant for next season's work. Therefore, get your delayed cuttings in the sand right away.

Carnation Yellows.

Paper by Professor Ernest M. R. Lankey, Department of Floriculture, University of Illinois, Urbana, delivered at the annual meeting of the American Carnation Society, Indianapolis, Ind., January 31-February 1, 1917.

Perhaps the American Carnation Society has considered the importance of plant diseases more seriously than any other similar floral organization. Plant pathologists of the very highest ability (Professors Arthur, Halstead, Atkinson, and others) have spoken to you and advised you in the treatment of many serious carnation disorders. Accordingly, I feel that I am speaking to a group of men who are versed in the methods of the pathologist, and consequently shall base that which I have to say upon an introductory consideration of "disease" in general to enable us to attack the problem of "yellows" by the use of rational and scientific methods.

First of all, we must understand exactly what we mean by a "disease." Some people regard those conditions as diseases which are caused by parasitic fungi or bacteria only. We, however, shall consider all conditions as diseases which result in plants which are not normal. But who is to tell us when a plant is normal or abnormal? We are at once able to agree that a badly rusted plant is not normal. But how about certain variegated laburnums, ligustrums and mallows (Laburnum vulgare foliis aureis and chrysophyllum, Ligustrum vulgare foliis aureo-variegatis, Abutilon Thompsonii, and Katabelia Lindemuthia)? Are those normal plants? From our (the grower's) point of view they are normal, for we grow them for their ornamental value. But from the point of view of the plant, these conditions of variegation are diseases, and infectious (but not contagious) diseases at that. These plants, if left to shift for themselves, would have a lessened chance of survival because of the reduction of green leaf material and other internal changes which accompany variegation. This consideration at once shows us that we have disease to consider from two points of view, and thus we have what are known as "absolute" and "relative" diseases. An absolute disease is one which threatens the very existence of the plant—such as rusts. A relative disease is one which threatens the cultural aim of the grower. For instance, if Abutilon Thompsonii varied toward Abutilon striatum and lost its variegation, the plant would be better adapted toward holding its own, and the plant would be well or normal; but, from the point of view of the grower of Abutilon Thompsonii the plant would be abnormal and consequently diseased, for his cultural aim has been defeated. This, then, is what we mean when we speak of relative diseases. One of the most striking examples of this type of disease may be taken from the animal world. In France, as some of you may know, the goose is prized for its large hypertrophied fatty liver. Now, this condition of the liver is pathological (diseased), but every attempt is made to rear the goose with a large and fatty liver. If the goose could speak it would say that it was sick and unable to get about as actively as formerly; but the breeder says that the goose is well as long as its liver is large and fatty, and when the goose shows signs of vigor and a return of the liver to its normal size, why, he says that the goose is sick, for it has lost much of its market value. So, often the cultural aim of the grower may be the bringing out of diseased conditions which he finds valuable, and for a time the plant survives and even flourishes because it receives the very best of attention. All this is merely cited to show that the aim of a grower, in seeking a given end, may be a thing which would threaten the very existence of a plant in nature, and the one-sided development of a plant, selected for instance for its forcing qualities, may be responsible for ills or even a sudden collapse which may show up at some later date.

In our study of a plant disease we must recognize four natural divisions. First, we describe the appearance of the diseased plant, and this division is known as pathography or symptomatology. Second, we seek the cause of the disease, and this is known as pathogeny or etiology. Third, we seek healing methods, and this is known as therapy. Fourth (and of greatest importance from our point of view), we do all in our power to prevent the occurrence of the disease. This is known as prophylaxis.

The first division, pathography, may be passed by with a few words. We describe the symptoms of a disease by saying that it forms spots of a certain form, size and color upon the leaf; that it forms pustules upon the leaves; that it forms lesions of a definite type upon the stem; that it results in a chlorosis (yellowing) of the leaves; that it results in a dwarfing or rosetting of the plant, or any one of many other innumerable symptoms.

When we know the complete pathography or symptomatology of the disease, we must next consider the cause (pathogeny or etiology). Now, in the first place, diseases may be caused by parasitic plants such as bacteria, fungi, algae, or even flowering plants. Second, they may be caused by insects, birds and mammals. Third, they may be caused by physiological factors—that is the metabolism (nutrition) of the plant may be upset by too much or too little of an enzyme, by over or underfeeding, by improper feeding, by improper watering, by the sporting of plants to form monstrosities, and by many other causes which are internal or at least find expression in the derangement of an internal process. Fourth, diseases may be caused by meteorological conditions such as hail, hot or dry winds, excessive rain, intense sunlight, drought; or they may be caused by injurious gases such as sulphur dioxide, sulphur trioxide, ethylene, illuminating gases, etc.

YELLOWs.

Now for "yellows" itself. Growers have recognized this condition of the carnation for years, but it first received scientific recognition from Doctor Peltier, who spoke of it at the Illinois State Florists' Association convention, Peoria, Ill., in 1913, and later discussed it at a meeting of this organization in St. Louis in 1916.

In our study of this disease we pursue the course outlined in the introductory paragraphs and will take up the pathography (description of symptoms) of the disease. Doctor Peltier has given you a good description of the disease and this description may be found in the proceedings of your last meeting. I will not repeat that which he has said, but will merely supplement it. True yellows appears as a mottled chlorosis (yellowing) of the leaf. This mottling is caused by indefinite irregular spots, blotches, or flecks which may coalesce to form extended yellow parallel streaks. The flecked appearance usually is found in the young leaves while the streaked appearance is found in the more mature leaves. In some few cases the spots are small and circular in outline. In varieties bearing colored flowers the yellowed areas may later become stained red or pink. The spots are always sunken (except in the very youngest of leaves), are never water-soaked, never show a watery margin, do not show a definite center, are not translucent, and show no exterior injury. In severe cases, in which the plant is dwarfed or is reduced in vigor, the production is cut down or reduced to zero. Perhaps the terms "mottle leaf," "mosaic," or "yellow fleck and streak" would be more appropriate descriptive terms than "yellows."

PATHOGENY OR ETIOLOGY OF THE DISEASE.

We now come to the cause of yellows. You will remember that I have said that diseases may be caused by fungi or bacteria, by insects, by meteorological conditions, by gases in the atmosphere or soil, and by internal physiological factors. But, in seeking the cause of "yellows" we must first eliminate other diseases which are easily mistaken for yellows. These are stigmomose and true bacteriosis.

Stigmomose, as most of you know, is a spotting of the leaves caused by injuries resulting from the feeding of aphids, thrips, and the green and red leaf hoppers. Aphid injuries, in the early stages, appear as minute translucent dots accompanied by a slight swelling of the tissue. Later, as the leaf grows, the spots may become from one to two-sixteenths of an inch in diameter. Cross sections of the leaf show that the cells of the internal tissue are greatly enlarged, distended with water, and almost colorless. The epidermal cells have collapsed to some extent. There seems to be no pronounced sinking of the tissue in the region of the spots. Thrips produce elongated spots and often destroy or chafe the epidermis of the leaf. Red spiders form very minute translucent spots and cause a collapse of the epidermal cells. Red leaf hoppers produce fairly large spots with purple margins. These spots may turn up very suddenly, as the discoloration takes place a few hours after the leaf is punctured.

True bacteriosis is not to be confused with stigmomose nor the bacteriosis of Arthur and Bolley. True bacteriosis is caused by the parasitic organism Bacterium woodsii, and in the early stages of the disease closely resembles stigmomose. In the more advanced stages of the disease the spots enlarge and become brown and sunken. The spots at first appear water-soaked, and as they enlarge they become surrounded by a narrow water-soaked margin. The spots occur upon the leaves, stems and sepals of the carnation.

True yellows is caused neither by parasitic bacteria or fungi nor by insects. Pathogenic fungi or bacteria can neither be seen in the diseased tissue nor isolated by the pure culture methods of the pathologist. Since the carnation in the greenhouse is well protected against changes in meteorological conditions (hail, dry or hot winds, extremes in temperature or rainfall, etc.), these can have very little effect upon the health of the plant. The gases of the atmosphere in the region of large cities might be expected to affect the vigor of the carnation and thus cause yellows, but, since yellows occurs in rural as well as urban districts, we eliminate this as a possible cause of the disease. You will now see that we have eliminated all the probable causes of plant disease save one. This one is the physiological cause of plant disease. Therefore, we must seek the cause of the disease within the plant itself or in some environmental factor affecting internal processes.

A study of the diseased tissue reveals the fact that the stomata (breathing pores), even in very young spots, were partially or completely closed. Now, this is an abnormal condition, for the plant not only derives oxygen for respiratory processes through these pores, but, furthermore, derives all the carbon found in the carbohydrates (sugar and starches) from the carbon dioxide of the air. We must remember that a plant uses proteid substances, starches, sugars, fats, as does the animal, but differs from the animal in that it manufactures these foods from the carbon dioxide of the air and the water and minerals of the soil. Now, if the source of carbon in the air is made unavailable or partially unavailable to the plant, the nutrition of the plant is as much upset as if all nitrogen were removed from the soil, for carbon is as essential to the growth of the plant as is nitrogen. We thus see that we are dealing with a question of nutrition depending upon the gases in the atmosphere rather than upon the minerals of the soil.

Now, starch is a product formed in the leaves from the carbon dioxide of the air and the water of the soil. Now, if the stomata were closed we would expect to obtain no test for starch in the diseased spots. This is actually what occurs, and tests made at the end of a sunny day show no starch or very little starch even in spots which are almost imperceptible to the naked eye. In a normal leaf starch accumulates during the day. Before this starch can be used by the plant and removed from the leaf, it must be changed to soluble sugars by a chemical ferment or enzyme (diastase) formed by the cells of the leaf. This change of starch to sugar takes place at night and in a healthy carnation leaf no starch can be found in the leaf during the early morning. In the diseased leaf, however, the seemingly sound tissue between spots is filled with starch, and this is often almost as abundant in the early morning as at the end of a sunny day. In some cases the starch accumulated on a sunny day has not been removed at the end of the next day. Here, then, we have a peculiar case of partial starvation in that the plant cannot freely utilize the food that it has formed. Tests show that the quantity or at least the potency of the diastase in the leaf has been reduced. This accounts for the accumulation of starch within the leaf.

A further study of the internal physiological processes of the plant reveals an excess of another chemical ferment or enzyme known by the name of oxidase. Now, oxidase is present in small amounts in the normal leaf and has its uses when present in the proper proportion, but in the diseased tissue this oxidase is in excess and interferes with other physiological functions, such as the changing of starch to sugar. An excessive occurrence of oxidase is likewise an indication that the plant (not the soil) is lacking in elaborated nitrogenous food.

Thus we find that a study of the internal structure and the physiological processes within the plant reveals three things which may produce abnormal (diseased) plants. These are a closure of the stomata, a reduction in quantity or quality of diastase, resulting in starch accumulation, and an excessive production of oxidase, which interferes with certain physiological functions. Other internal changes in the structure of diseased tissue and changes in certain physiological processes are being worked out. A further study may reveal other contributing causes or a primary inciting cause for the production of yellows.

THERAPY OR CURE OF THE DISEASE.

First, we must distinguish between curable and incurable diseases. Rusts, for instance, are incurable, for the parasitic fungus is within the plant tissue and cannot be reached by spray mixtures. True, a plant once infected with rust will be little injured and will give an almost normal production if weather conditions and growing conditions are such as to give an optimum for the growth and development of the plant. This does not mean, however, that we cannot control rusts, for we do control rust by breeding varieties which are resistant to the attacks of the fungus. Curable diseases are those such as mildews, or spot diseases in which the fungus is limited to the spot in question. In the case of the mildews the fungus lies upon the surface of the leaf, and consequently, may be killed by fumigation, sulphur dusting or spraying. In the case of the localized spot diseases the disease is kept from spreading to other parts of the plant by spraying on a poisonous mixture which coats the spores (bodies for the propagation of the fungus) and thus kills them or prevents their germination.

We have pointed out that yellows is a physiological disease which is due to something within the plant itself. We at once see that this is a condition which cannot be benefited by any external application. The fact that a carnation seems to recover, at least for a time, in the field is an indication that the cure of the disease may lie in temperature or other environmental conditions. Possibly we could cure the disease under glass by changing the temperature or moisture conditions, for we know that the rate of action of enzymes and the opening and closing of stomata is vitally affected by temperature changes. If we do this we may possibly cure the disease, but we might likewise cut down the production and quality of the blooms. This is a phase of the work which we are planning to follow up. We must remember, here, a suggestion made in the introductory paragraphs that the selection of a continuous blooming variety for its forcing qualities may have resulted, in some varieties, in a one-sided development which has now shown up in a sudden collapse of the plant. If this is true it is almost useless to attempt to cure the disease, and our hope must lie in producing varieties which will stand up under the conditions which we demand of the carnation. This, however, is a phase of the subject which comes under prevention rather than cure.

PROPHYLAXIS OR PREVENTION.

Disease prevention is always more logical and satisfactory than the treatment of diseases which we know to be preventable. It is not necessary to tell this audience how disease has been prevented by the breeding of resistant varieties and by the observance of proper sanitation in the destruction of diseased plants or diseased parts of plants. Carnation yellows appears to be an infectious (not contagious) disease but we cannot state that definitely, for we have not as yet found a variety absolutely unaffected by yellows, and until we find such a strain we cannot be absolutely certain whether the disease has been produced by the injection of the virus or has turned up "naturally" in the plant. Of course we can, and we have, used comparative methods, but these as yet are not conclusive.

We know that badly yellowed cuttings give yellowed plants. Supposedly healthy cuttings give a few yellowed plants. It would appear wise, from this, to make no cuttings from a plant which shows yellows even in the slightest degree. In our work, the seedlings of the crosses between yellowed varieties have not as yet become yellowed.

Some few of the plants made from cuttings of 1915 seedlings have become badly yellowed. This might be taken as an indication that infection occurred when the cuttings were made. In all disease work we have the probability that a seemingly healthy individual may be a carrier of disease and still not be diseased itself. This, as most of you know, is often true in diseases of man. This complicates our problem and is a thing which we might well hold in mind in the interpretation of results derived from plants which we believe to be disease free.

Gladioli and Gardenias

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Please advise the best way to force gladioli and gardenias and the best varieties for this purpose. A. C.

The number of gladioli being forced is increasing each year. They are generally grown in the same benches with carnations. The method followed is to plant the bulbs between the rows of carnations and allow them to come up between the strings or in the wire rings. If it then becomes necessary a stake is used for further support. Select good size, firm bulbs, plant in the beds during December or January and give the same treatment as the carnations. By following this course they can be had in bloom during April and May, bringing an increased revenue from the benches, but they will not pay enough to sacrifice the carnations. Use ordinary common sense judgment as to the distance apart to plant so as not to crowd the carnations. The three varieties which stand out as being most generally grown by the growers are America (pink), Augusta (white), and Mrs. Francis King (red). Chicago White is another variety that is being grown in increased quantity each year. The varieties, G. Colvillei, The Bride, white; Blushing Bride, white, tinged with pink, and Peach Blossom, light pink, are forced in large quantities, many of them in deep flats, the same as other bulbs, but larger quantities are bench grown and require the same treatment as advised for those growing in the carnation benches. To be successful with gladioli excessive forcing must be avoided, allowing the plants to grow along and develop their flowers as natural as possible.

GARDENIA CULTURE.

Cuttings of gardenias for stock for the following winter are taken after the first of the year and require three or four weeks in the sand; they are then put into small pots and finish or grow into good plants about June 1, when they are planted into 6-inch pots or set out on the bench in soil where they become well established by fall. Good soil is important and the following has been found very satisfactory: One-third compost, one-third cow manure and one-third light leaf mould. Soil of the benches should be four inches in depth. No topdressing is required during the winter, but manure water will increase the size of the flowers. The temperature is important; it should never be allowed to fall below 70 degrees at night and many failures are caused by neglect in this respect. Watering also should be very carefully done, as they are easily overwatered, which has proved to be a stumbling block to many growers. It will also probably be found advantageous to have the chill taken off of the water or have it brought up to a temperature of 70 degrees. From good healthy plants set out in June, cut flowers may be had the latter part of October and continued until spring; the foliage or shoots that usually come either side of the bud should be taken away to throw all of the strength of the shoot into the flower. If the bud appears not to develop, then one of the shoots is left to grow on and will soon set another bud. When long-stemmed flowers are desired only the strongest shoots are encouraged, all flowers on the weaker branches being cut away. The cause of falling buds or turning black at the base, or failure to open, is attributed to too much water or possibly a chill at an earlier period. The latter error is the more common, as many growers are not able to keep the house to this temperature all the time.

There is no difference in the number of flowers obtained from plants in the bed or those planted in pots; from 10 to 15 good salable flowers are taken from strong, healthy plants during a season. The mealy bug is the chief insect enemy, but if the plants are strong and healthy they seldom appear, but if they do a little of one of the nicotine preparations applied with an atomizer will generally fix them.

There is no particular selection of the wood for the cutting; any good plump shoots will do, but they should never receive a check, being kept on the jump all the time. Some growers keep their plants in for the second season; these two-year-old plants flower very profusely, but the blooms are generally smaller and do not grade very high; others prefer to start with strong young stock, and in the spring, when the season is about half over, the plants are lifted from the beds and placed in 6-inch pots and as soon as established a market is found for them.

Boston.

DEMAND SLUGGISH AND PRICES LOW.

Business has been very quiet during the past week on nearly every line of stock. Roses have been rather sluggish and move slowly at low figures. Carnations, also, have been rather low in price, the very fancy blooms commanding $3 per 100, but the average sales are at about $2. Sweet peas also passed a poor week, there being large consignments made which caused a glut on these flowers. The very finest in the city brought $1 per 100, but most of the blooms were sold at 40 and 50 cents per 100. Violets have been in fair demand, as there is not as many grown as in previous years. The price, however, is only moderate, 40 and 50 cents being about the average. Jonquils move rather slowly, but good Victorias find a fair market at one and one-half to three cents, according to quality. Yellow primroses are plentiful and cheap for this flower. Marguerites sell well when the quality justifies, but many very inferior flowers are seen for which there is no sale whatever.

NOTES.

A collection has been taken in the markets for the purchase of large American flags to be hung in front of each building. They will be unfurled Saturday, March 24, with the aid of the Boy Scouts and a band.

Ralph Wadsworth, of Wadsworth & Co., of Northboro, is the proud father of a baby girl, born March 14.

Mrs. Donald Carmichael, of Wellesley, is at Baltimore, Md., for her health.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The monthly meeting of the above society was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, N. Y., March 14. Quite a number of members were present, considering the inclement weather. President James McCarthy occupied the chair. James Holloway read a very interesting report of his recent visit to the Davey Tree Expert Co.'s convention at Kent, O. W. J. Collins, Boston, Mass., and Richard French were elected active members.

The exhibition tables were well filled with very strong entries for competition in the carnation classes. The president appointed James Duthie, Thomas Twigg and William Noonan to act as judges, and their decisions were as follows: Frank Watson, first, for 12 pink; James McCarthy, first, for 12 white and Peter McDonald, first, for 12 mixed carnations. The most meritorious exhibit for the special prize offered by P. W. Popp was won by John F. Johnson with a very fine display of polyanthus, well flowered, in 6-inch pots; certificate of culture to John W. Everitt for three heads of lettuce and special mention to Peter McDonald for a pot of antirrhinum.

It was decided, if the trustees could procure the exhibition hall, to hold our annual dahlia show Tuesday, October 9, and the chrysanthemum show November 1-2.

Exhibits for the next meeting to be held, April 11 at 7 p. m., are: One pan of bulbs, one plant of Easter lily and one plant of hydrangea in pot not to exceed 8 inches.

THIRTIETH ANNUAL BANQUET.

Before the banquet of the above society there was a business meeting, at which the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: F. C. Bauer, president; John A. Nuth, vice-president; N. F. Flitton, secretary; George Talbot, financial secretary; F. G. Burger, treasurer, and C. M. Wagner, librarian.

The tables were adorned with bouquets of carnations and roses of several varieties. Pussy willows, rubrum lilies and palms were also used to advantage.

I. H. Moses was toastmaster, and he introduced the speakers. Professor L. B. Symons of the faculty of the Maryland State College of Agriculture, spoke of inviting the florists of southern Maryland and the eastern shore to join our club. "Maryland week last year," he said, "was a success, but a greater success is expected next year."

Dr. Wood is the new president of the Maryland Horticultural Society, under whose auspices the show is held. Robert Graham then spoke of the coal shortage. The local dealers claim that there is a shortage of cars, but if you pay the price you can get the coal. He suggested, that in order to get coal cheap, the florists should combine their orders. Then the dealers would recognize such a tremendous order. Mr. Graham also spoke of THE AMERICAN FLORIST—the first florist paper. R. Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, the "grand old man" of the florist business in this state, spoke of "Maryland, My Maryland." Z. W. Stisser, the next speaker, advocated patronizing the local seed firms. A. A. Niessen, of Philadelphia, spoke of the rose festival in Philadelphia. He invited the local florists to attend the show and said they would be well repaid. Charles Wagner then spoke of growers who sold too cheap. J. A. Nuth, the vice-president elect, urged everyone to be present at the club meeting.

Wm. Ekas, one of the active young members of the club, also spoke. He suggested having one club meeting a month instead of two and for every old member to bring a new one. He urged all the growers to exhibit at the coming flower show in November, as only 15 out of 100, more or less, exhibited last year. John J. Perry, the last but not least interesting speaker, spoke of the benefit of working in harmony.

The following were present:

Westchester and Fairfield Hort. Society.

There was a splendid display on the exhibition tables and an exceptionally good attendance at the monthly meeting of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society, held in the society's rooms in Hubbard's hall, Greenwich, Conn., March 9, President Wm. Whitton in the chair. The stock displayed was all of excellent quality and the judges made the following awards: Special prize for the best display of bulbous flowers, William Whitton, first; Robert Grunnert, second. High commendation to William Graham for six plants of Cineraria stellata. High commendation: To W. J. Seeley for four Primula obconica; to Thomas Atchison for two plants of cineraria; to William Whitton for sweet peas; to John Forbes for two vases of roses; to F. Lagerstrom for vase of stocks; to Robert Grunnert for carnations, and to P. W. Popp for vase of stocks. The thanks of the society were awarded to William Graham for sweet peas; James Linane for primula, and to Thomas Atchison for two plants of cineraria. It was resolved to hold the fall show at Greenwich, the date to be decided later.

The monthly prize for the most meritorious exhibit went to William Whitton, second to Robert Grunnert, and third to P. W. Popp. John Sheepers Co., New York, donated the prizes for the display of bulbous flowers.

St. Louis Notes.

Chas. Steidel, the well-known rose grower of Olivette, St. Louis county, we are informed, has decided to discontinue Killarney. He will devote one house to Russell, another to Ophelia and nearly one complete house to White Killarney. Shawyer will also be given a good try-out.

We are informed that W. A. Rowe will add two houses, each 36x300 feet, pipe frame construction, to his range at Kirkwood, an order for same having been placed with the American Greenhouse Manufacturing Company, Chicago.

LEAF prices have dropped to $9 per 100 lbs.

SPHAGNUM is a scarce item just now, the severe winter having put an embargo on operations.

The Yearbook of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of the Massachusetts Agricultural College for 1917 is an attractive pamphlet, with illustrations, dedicated to Prof. A. H. Nehrling in appreciation of his loyalty to and sympathy for floriculture. The professor's portrait is given as frontispiece.

Mother's Day Publicity.

Chairman Lautenschlager of the Chicago Florists' Club publicity committee announces that the club will carry on a national plan of co-operative advertising for Mother's day under his direction and that further particulars will be given later.

Growing Plants Without Pots.

The Springfield Floral Co., Springfield, O., who furnish quantities of ferns and asparagus to ten cent and department stores for special sales, has found that they can dispense with pots in the growing of this stock, the stores preferring them without them. Plants are grown close together, planted out in benches, where they make a more rapid growth than in pots. In filling orders, they are lifted, the roots wrapped in damp moss with wax paper, and then with a white sheet and bound with gummed paper tape. This makes a neat package that will stand erect, presents a good appearance and is much easier handled than a pot plant.

Working Together.

The sign, "Positively No Flowers Sold at Retail" is conspicuously displayed in all the wholesale houses of Cleveland. To further show their good will towards the retail florists, liberal subscriptions are also made annually to the publicity fund, which has done so much for the exploitation of floral holidays in that city.

Carl Hagenburger of Mentor, Ohio, is of the opinion that if you believe you have a good thing stick to it. Certain lines of plants become popular and the market gets over-supplied. Many then drop out, but the man who sticks and keeps up his stock, will win out as the demand will then more than use up the limited supply.

Licensed Fireman Law Amendment.

Alfred C. Hottes, president of the Columbus, O., Florists' Association, is enlisting the support of every greenhouse owner in the state to assist in securing the amendment of the Ohio law requiring a licensed fireman for steam boilers of 30 horse power or over. President Hottes has caused a copy of the following communication to be sent to each of the representatives in the state legislature and urges every grower in the state affected by the statute to write their representative immediately asking for the support of the amendment. The communication sent to representatives by the Columbus Florists' Association is as follows: To the Senators and Representatives:

We wish to bring to your attention the great hardship inflicted upon the greenhouse owners by Section 1058-1, a law which makes it necessary to maintain a licensed boiler operator for steam boilers of thirty horse power, or over. We, therefore, take the liberty of bringing to your notice some of the difficulties encountered in complying with the law.

First, we feel it absolutely necessary that a fireman should be an experienced grower. We could recount many cases in which great losses have been incurred by employing expert boiler operators, but men ignorant of the importance of ventilation, plant humidity, the correct temperatures and the other difficulties encountered in growing the great range of plants of the modern commercial greenhouse.

Second, a great many of the establishments are not large enough to afford the expense of hiring additional licensed boiler operators. The enforcement of the present law may necessitate the closing of some of these smaller plants.

Third, many growers operate their own boilers during the day. The present law makes it impossible for a man to do this now even in cases of extreme emergency.

Fourth, many of the florists are also vegetable growers; additional boiler service would necessitate increased prices which would be added to the cost of food. Prices are sure to be raised if high priced operators are necessary.

Fifth, greenhouses need a fireman only six months during the year, consequently we cannot get capable men because we cannot offer continuous employment.

Sixth, greenhouses are located away from dense population. There is little danger to human life by explosions.

The florists and vegetable growers feel that it was not the intention of the present law to include greenhouse owners. May we urge that the following paragraph be added to Section 1058-1?

1058-1, Providing, however, that nothing herein shall apply to bona fide owners of greenhouses and hot houses.

Pernet-Ducher's New Rose Seedlings.

M. Pernet-Ducher, the famous Lyons rose hybridizer, announces six new seedlings for this year, as follows:

Mistress Bullen (Pernetiana)—Vigorous plant, branching; large flower, moderately double; color cochenille carmine, shaded yellow, passing to carmine lake. Perfectly hardy.

President Bouche (Pernetiana)—Vigorous branching plant; flower medium to large; color, coral red, shaded with carmine shrimp. Very hardy and of a quite unusual shade.

Raymond (Pernetiana)—Very vigorous plant, with upright, bushy branches; foliage glossy green; bud long; flower very large and double, elongated cup shape; exterior petals peach-blossom pink, center carmine salmon, sometimes orange carmine, deeper at the base of the petals. Absolutely hardy, this new free-blooming rose promises to be an acquisition for border planting.

Madame Caristie Martel (hybrid tea)—Vigorous, branching plant; flower very large, four to five inches in diameter, broad-petaled, globular; color, pure sulphur yellow, deeper in the center. Enormous size and purity of color are its characteristics.

Madame Meha Sabitier (hybrid tea)—Very strong and bushy grower; velvety crimson bud; flower large, double, round; color brilliant crimson, deepening as it ages; blooms freely, excellent for bedding. From an unnamed variety Chateau de Clos Vougeot.

Senorita Carmen, Cert (hybrid tea)—Vigorous plant, with straight branches; foliage bronzy green; flower large, double, cup-shaped; color Indian yellow, shaded with pale carmine pink, edges of the petals marked with bright carmine. Foliage very fine, and the graceful flowers borne on long stems.

MARKET CONDITIONS IMPROVED.

We can again see improvement in market conditions for the past week, the supply of roses and sweet peas being about equal to the demand, while violets, bulbous stock and carnations were enough to meet all requirements. Due to St. Patrick's day, white flowers were in extra demand and all orders were satisfactorily filled. The forepart of the week white carnations were scarce, the growers holding on to them for Saturday's business; the consequences were that the supply was ahead of the demand, especially when, as in some cases, the flowers were cut too tight and made a poor showing without the extra green. Wednesday morning kept those who get consignments via rail from the north Milwaukee direction guessing, for the snow and sleet storm the night before made it impossible for the transportation companies to get the stock into the market till noon or later.

NOTES.

We regret to report the death of Mrs. Ida Locker (nee Kirsch), who passed away at the family residence on North avenue, Wauwatosa, March 16, at the age of 50 years. She had been ailing for some time, having submitted to an operation shortly before Christmas. Hugo Locker, the husband, and two sons, Alfred and Arthur, who operate a greenhouse range at Wauwatosa under the name of Hugo Locker & Sons, have the sincere sympathy of the local craft in their bereavement. The funeral was held March 19, with interment at the Wauwatosa cemetery.

Herman V. Hunkel, Henry Marquardt and C. C. Pollworth were the only ones from here who attended the novelty show in connection with the recent Chicago Florists' Club meeting.

Kamp & Spinti, of North Milwaukee, have an exceptionally fine lot of Easter lilies, which will be on time for the coming holiday. They are consigning some fine light blue delphiniums and other novelties to Gust. Rusch & Co. daily.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. says it could have sold more green carnations on St. Patrick's day, as there was quite a demand at the eleventh hour. Business in their supply department has been especially brisk of late.

Mrs. Walter Holton, who was operated on for intestinal trouble a short time ago, was well enough to sit up March 19. Walter expects that she may be removed to their home by the end of this week.

John Rust, who grows numerous pot plants for Easter, will be strong on choice Tausendschoen and Dorothy Perkins roses this year.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. reports shipping trade very brisk for the past week.

PLENTIFUL SUPPLY; FAIR SALES.

Business in general has been as good as can be expected. Stock is plentiful, especially in bulbous varieties which await a market, but owing to stringent measures to keep them moving they have not become a drug on the market as yet. There has been an active demand for funeral work, the deaths of a prominent citizen of this city and the late lieutenant-governor of the state calling for a large number of flowers. Local florists all had excellent business.

ANNUAL BANQUET AND ELECTION.

The annual banquet and election of officers of the florists' club which was held at the Hofbrau, March 13, was a most enjoyable affair and a great credit to the committee in charge of arrangements. The following officers were chosen for the ensuing year: Henry Elbers, president; Mark Palmer, vice-president; Wm. Legg, secretary; Oliver Klinckenmeyer, financial secretary; Edward Stroh, treasurer; executive committee: W. J. Palmer, L. H. Neubeck and E. C. Brucker. L. H. Neubeck acted as toastmaster, the only one who can in any way fill the place of our late friend, William F. Kasting. Toasts were responded to by W. J. Palmer, Chas. Schoen and others. President-elect Elbers and the other officers made pleasing addresses of acceptance and gave assurances of their desire to aid the club in every way. An interesting lecture illustrated by lantern slides was given by Professor Walker on, "Civic Improvement," and many ideas were given on the possibility of making this city a splendid example of this work. Among the out-of-town guests were Messrs. Grimshy of Grimshy, Ont., Hamilton of London, Ont., and "Tubular Valve" Bates, who claims Rochester as his home, but Buffalo when the Lord & Burnham Co. can see prospects for a new house or boiler. He is an honorary member of the florists' club of this city and we are always glad to have him with us.

NOTES.

Several of the local trade are attending the New York and Philadelphia shows. S. A. Anderson is one of the judges at Philadelphia.

STOCK IN MORE PLENTIFUL SUPPLY.

Improved conditions prevail in the flower market and all varieties are arriving more freely than for some weeks past. Business has been very good and the plant season is opening up well. Saturday, March 17, was a fine balmy day and the market house was full of salesmen; also in wagons on the outside. All of these seemed to do a good business and there were hundreds of buyers.

NOTES.

Quite an innovation was introduced during the past week by the dry goods stores putting on sale thousands of rose plants and shrubs of all kinds. The Castner-Knott Dry Goods Company had an agent from the Chase Bros. Co., of Rochester, N. Y., put on sale 5,000 rose plants such as Crim-son Rambler, Jacqueminot, Mme. Plantier, Gruss an Teplitz, Paul Neyron, Clio, Mme. Gabriel Luizet, Mabel Morrisson, and dozens of others, filling the entire center counters. There were also shrubs of every kind, snow-balls, syringas, altheas, spireas, an infinite variety of fruit trees and 1,000 ferns. Everything was sold at the uniform price of nine cents a plant. They created quite a sensation and a very short time after the sale was opened there were buyers by the hundred, and customers went off in their automobiles laden with armsful of all the kinds to be had. The ferns came from the Springfield Floral Company of Springfield, O., and also sold at nine cents and went like "hot cakes."

Geny Bros. have just put in a new cold storage room, 5x15 feet in size. This firm had the misfortune a few weeks ago to have one of their automobile trucks run into a man, bruising him up so that he was in the city hospital a few weeks, and who has brought suit against the firm for $10,000, which is probably covered by their insurance policy. Their preparedness for Easter is of the best kind, and they will have a fine lot of flowers, plenty of Easter lilies, some azalea plants, rhododendrons, baby ramblers and the usual bulbous stock.

The Joy Floral Company will have beautiful flowers for the Easter trade, lilies leading. Roses will be on in good supply and there will be a fine lot of pot plants. Their rhododendrons are very fine. They have put on sale a fine lot of two-year-old rose plants, fresh from the gardens, which they are selling for $1.50 per dozen. Thomas H. Joy and Mrs. Joy made a visit to St. Louis the past week. Joy's St. Patrick window was quite attractive and the St. Patrick carnations had a good sale.

A notable funeral of the past week was that of Mrs. J. M. Dickinson, wife of a former secretary of war in Taft's cabinet. Mrs. Dickinson was a native of this city and died here at the home of her sister. The quantities of flowers sent to the funeral have never been surpassed here, representing hundreds of dollars and coming from many distant cities, notably Chicago, Louisville and Cincinnati.

Louis Haury, Jr., is making a fine display of geraniums and bedding plants, ferns, and vegetables. He has an establishment of his own on the Kilvington road, eight or ten miles from the establishment of Louis Haury & Sons on Heiman street. The latter still maintain their retail store on Church street and have constantly on hand a very fine display of assorted flowers.

The McIntire Floral Company always maintains a stall at the market house and sells there every Saturday, and sometimes through the week.

PLENTIFUL SUPPLY AT LOW PRICES.

Stock of all kinds is very plentiful. Great quantities of daffodils, tulips, hyacinths, narcissi and freesias are pouring into this market, and prices on these flowers are naturally low. Paper Whites are scarce at present. Carnations are plentiful and large numbers of whites were sold for coloring for St. Patrick's day. Roses are fine at present in all varieties, especially Ophelia, Maryland and Monstrosa. American Beauty is inclined to be rather scarce and is consequently high in price. Cecile Brunners, sweet peas, orchids and lily of the valley are in ample supply for corsage work.

CLUB MEETING.

The monthly meeting of the florists' association was held at Musicians' hall, March 12. About 100 were present. An increase in the price for renting palms was permanently decided upon, to go into effect at once. June 15-16 were selected as the dates for holding the peony show at Convention hall. The committee appointed to arrange the details is John Dunbar, chairman; Chas. Vick, Chas. Malloy, Nathan R. Groves, and Jos. Charlton. The exhibition will be open to amateurs as well as commercial growers. Arrangements were made for sending a delegation to the New York flower show. Sixteen are expected to make the trip. Charles H. Vick and Colin B. Ogsten of Rochester will be two of the judges. An exhibition of carnations by members of the association was also held. Nearly every variety was shown and the merits of each discussed. Refreshments were served by A. H. Secker and Hubert Stringer. Frank Kramer furnished cigars for the guests. A social hour followed.

NOTES.

J. B. Keller Sons have made important alterations in their store on Clinton avenue, among them being a daylight office on Stone street. April 1 this firm will take possession of the entire second floor of this building. They have a number of good wedding orders for the near future.

Salter Bros. are growing great quantities of bulbous stock at their range. At their store in the Powers hotel they are showing some very handsome vases of snapdragons, daffodils and carnations. Fine cyclamen and azalea plants are also featured here.

Canna YELLOW KING HUMBERT

(EMUND'S QUEEN HELEN)

The Best Canna Novelty

This sport of King Humbert has the same habit of growth in the plants but with very dark green foliage and flower stalks excelling those of the King Humbert. The flowers are rich deep yellow, well spotted with red. Some plants occasionally give a scarlet or a scarlet-striped flower which is an effective and striking variation. In a bed or border the mass of trusses excell those of any other variety we know of.

We give below the opinion of Canna experts on this novelty:

W. W. COLES says: "This variety at a distance of one half mile loomed up above everything else, and it was at first difficult to believe that a Canna could make such a beautiful showing at that distance. When this variety becomes known, I feel sure it will fill a place among the Yellow Cannas fully as important as King Humbert has among the reds."

STORRS & HARRISON say: "This is a wonderful new "sport" from King Humbert, bearing the same graceful heart-shaped leaves, but richly all-green instead of bronze; the same regal type and immense size of flower, but a brilliant Yellow instead of red, and produced much more abundantly. We predict for it a career fully equal to its red-flowered, dark-leaved parent."

GOOD & REESE say: "Immense flowers that are as large as the Orchid-flowering Cannas. Color golden-yellow evenly and distinctly spotted red. This Canna ranks right up with King Humbert. We have no hesitancy in saying there is no better Canna grown."

Price $20.00 per 100; $3.00 per doz.

PRICES FALL WITH LENTEN LULL.

Business has not been so good during the past week. As is usually the case, trade dropped off quite a bit with the coming of the Lenten season. Most of the stores realize that this is only temporary and expect trade to pick up very shortly. There seems to be more flowers just now than at any other time during the season. The prices on some varieties have taken quite a drop owing to too much stock arriving. Carnations have suffered more than any other indoor flower and can be had at almost any price. Good stock, of course, still brings good figures, but the great majority that comes in is sold for anything it will bring. There is a very heavy cut of roses, also. Prices are not being so well maintained owing to the over-supply and the curtailing of shipping orders. Many of the growers have had very little shipping since the opening of Lent. A great quantity of the short and weak necked roses find their way to the street peddlers. The supply of lily of the valley has fallen off quite sharply again and prices are firm. Cattleyas and phalenopsis are not so plentiful as heretofore, but prices remain the same. Violets are very numerous with no change in prices. Bulbous stock, especially Dutch, is getting more plentiful every day. The stock coming in is all one could wish for, but it is rather difficult to maintain good prices. Freesias are again on the scarce list and this is about the only thing that is so. Prices advanced sharply during the week with a limited supply arriving. Great quantities of acacia blooms are being received. Nearly all varieties of this popular flower can now be had. The demand for this is good. The same is true of flowering fruit trees, such as peach, cherry, quincy, etc. These may be had in all colors. Quite a lot of this stock is disposed of to the large department stores and others in the retail section for the adornment of store windows. The quality of the lily stock is excellent. The prices received have been very satisfactory thus far. In pot plants, azaleas and ericas are the favorites just now, Erica Melanthera being most in favor. Quite a few cyclamens and primulas are also being shown. Asparagus plumosus is still rather scarce and much more could be used if it were available. Ferns, also, are coming in in a limited way. With the coming of plenty of sunshine, the growers are promising a larger supply very shortly. There is no smilax to be had whatever.

NOTES.

Mrs. Henry Maier, wife of the manager of the Hillsborough Nurseries and Greenhouses, died March 2 at her home in Hillsborough from the effects of poisoning believed to have been caused by a toad stool that was cooked with mushrooms. Besides her husband, Mrs. Maier is survived by three children. She was 46 years of age and a native of Germany. The suddenness of her death was a shock to her great number of friends, and Mr. Maier has the sincere sympathy of the trade in his great loss. The funeral was largely attended by members of the trade in this city and the great number of floral designs showed in what great esteem the deceased was held.

Eric James has his usual fine lot of Easter plants coming along at his greenhouses. He will have a grand lot of baby roses, ericas and other plants ready. Mr. James is perhaps our most successful plant grower, his stock always being in demand. His establishment is always an interesting one to visit and is a model of neatness. Besides supplying this market largely, he ships quite a quantity to distant points.

The meeting place of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society has been changed. Hereafter the meetings will be held in Mt. Diablo hall, seventh floor of the Native Sons' hall, which is located on Mason street, between Geary and Post. There was a large attendance at Saturday night's meeting. President Poss was unable to be present, having been called to Napa on business.

John McLaren is contributing a series of articles to one of the daily papers on "Vegetable Growing," while Mark Daniels, former national superintendent of parks, is contributing one on "California Wild Flowers." Both are authorities on their respective subjects, which are being well received.

T. Mosco is receiving great quantities of out door grown daffodills at his Geary street store. He receives this stock every spring from the same growers in Alameda county. This store is prettily arranged and he reports that he is well pleased with the way business is keeping up.

L. McLean, head gardener for the Whitelaw Reid estate at Millbrae, has been appointed a member of the park and boulevard commission of San Mateo. Mr. McLean is a practical and experienced gardener and his services on the commission will be of distinct value to the city.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. is featuring great quantities of cut sprays of ericas in many different varieties. This is one of the store's specialties and a large lot of pot grown stock is always to be seen here. They report business as being very good for the first week of Lent.

Avansino Bros. have been making a fine show of pot grown azaleas in their OUTLOOK FOR EASTER GOOD.

Business for March thus far is holding up quite well, the weather having generally been favorable for greenhouse production, although the lack of rain is causing some anxiety among the farmers. Easter stocks are holding the stage at present with bedding stock in the wings and overflowing into the orchestra. Almost everything is looking well and the prospects are considered good for a big Easter trade. A visit among the various greenhouses gives the impression that the stocks of bedding plants are the largest ever, although there is a rumor that geraniums are a little short.

GROWERS' ATTENTION!

A Distinct Novelty — IN — Nephrolepis Ferns.
Norwood

The most beautiful of the crested type. The fronds are heavily crested, but do not unite as in many varieties of this class, each is held separate and apart by the strong and wiry midrib, which even in a small pot gives the plant a symmetrical and finished appearance.

This is not just a variation of this very prolific family, but distinctly different, a very decided novelty that immediately attracts attention.

It was one of the features of the New York Show, where it was awarded a Silver Medal as a new and meritorious variety.

Orders for 20,000 plants were booked from growers attending the Show, who will make it their leader next season.

LIMITED EASTER SUPPLY FEARED.

Active preparations for Easter week are now engaging the close attention of both growers and retailers, the former having some apprehension, due to the continuous cold weather, about the maturing of rose stock in pots and Easter lilies; even some bulbous stock, in hyacinths, tulips and daffodils are difficult to control and it is now thought there will be no surplus of the latter when the big business is over. Azaleas will be much short of the demand, which will have the tendency to develop an extra call for rhododendrons, lilacs and basket effects as well as larger sizes in lilies, which some growers are well supplied with.

CLUB MEETING.

A special meeting of the florists' club was held March 15. This meeting was called for the purpose of discussing the matter of Easter week advertising and to receive the report of the committee appointed at the previous meeting to secure banners and copies of folders announcing a special display of flowers, April 1-3, in all local retail shops. All the retailers present, as well as some of the growers, approved the work of the committee and will accordingly display banners on their delivery autos announcing the exhibition. This announcement reads: "Easter Flower Show at all Detroit Flower Shops, April 1-3." The publicity is designed to stimulate interest in Easter flowers and to prompt the early buying of them to lighten the usual heavy rush the last couple of days of the week. Further advertising of the big event in a co-operative way will not be done this year, but some individual advertising will be handled by the retailers, both by folders and the daily press. Samuel Seligman was present at the meeting and announced his re-engagement with Wertheimer Bros. Co.

NOTES.

C. H. Plumb extends an invitation to the local trade to visit his establishment Palm Sunday, to inspect his immense stock of flowering plants, which, it is expected, will be in prime condition at that time.

James Taylor, having given up his position at Grosse Pointe, has taken charge of the greenhouses and gardens of the John Dodge estate at Willowbrook Farm, near Rochester, Mich. J. F. S.

Tri-City Florists' Club.

At the March meeting of the Tri-City Florists' Club, held at the residence of R. E. DeRycke, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Arvid Anderson, president; P. G. Pearson, Henry Gaethje and James Hansson, vice-presidents; Wm. Goos, Bettendorf, Ia., corresponding secretary; C. J. Reardon, financial secretary; Wm. Knees, Sr., treasurer; R. E. DeRycke, Ludwig Stapp and Henry Pauli, trustees.

The next meeting will be held at the residence of Henry Gaethje, Rock Island, Ill., April 12.

Sensational New American Bedding Rose

“Los Angeles”

(Howard & Smith, 1917)

NEW HYBRID-TEA ROSE, LOS ANGELES.

It is a great pleasure to be able to offer such a meritorious new Rose, particularly so, one of American origin, and we believe that this splendid variety is only the forerunner of other equally good sorts "Made in America".

We have not only seen the originators' great field of it in California, but have also had the opportunity of watching the behavior of a dozen plants in our own trial beds the past Summer, under what has been one of the most trying seasons we have ever experienced and it has given a most satisfactory account of itself in strong, vigorous growth and in freedom of bloom, in which it was not equalled by any other variety in its first season after planting.

Following is the originators' description:

"Los Angeles is, by all odds, one of the finest Roses ever introduced. The growth is very vigorous and produces a continuous succession of long stemmed flowers of a luminous flame pink toned with coral and shaded with translucent gold at the base of the petals. In richness of fragrance it equals in intensity the finest Marechal Neil. The buds are long and pointed and expand into a flower of mammoth proportions, while the beauty of form and ever increasing wealth of color is maintained from the incipient bud until the last petal drops."

Unlike many of the new imported Roses, the plants are extra heavy two year old stock, which should give a full crop of flowers this season. Price, heavy two year budded plants, $1.50 each.

We make a specialty of two-year-old Roses, budded plants and such that will please your customers for spring planting. Our stock has all been potted up during the winter months, stored cool, and will be in prime condition for April and May Planting. Our list contains not only all the select standard sorts, but many new sorts offered by us exclusively in the United States. For complete list of varieties see our current Wholesale List, January to June issue, which will be mailed upon request, only to persons engaged in horticulture commercially.

MARKET STEADY AT FAIR PRICES.

The market during the past week has been fairly steady, the demand being about equal to the supply. A few items, such as sweet peas and freesias, have been very plentiful, prices on the first named varying from 75 cents to $1 per 100 for Spencers, while short stemmed stock was offered as low as $2 per 1,000. Violets are coming in good and are priced at $2.50 in 1,000 lots, the best carnations being $3 per 100, with $4 per 100 for white for St. Patrick's day. Bulbous stock is plentiful with the exception of narcissus, both white, and yellow. In roses, some very good Ophelia, Shawyer and Killarney are seen. Long American Beauties are equal to the demand, with a limited supply of short and medium grades. In greens, the market was very good during the past week.

NOTES.

The city park department placed practically its entire force at the disposal of the flower show committee, as did also the Missouri Botanical Garden. Even the students from the garden were kept busy hanging smilax and staging exhibits.

Dave Geddis and his able assistants certainly made a splendid job of the decorations at the Armory. He is now engaged in selling some of the rustic work which they built and it looks as if they would be able to dispose of all of it.

L. Jules Bourdet, state vice-president of the Society of American Florists, is busy lining up new members and expects in a short time to have the 100 or more required for representation on the S. A. F. board of directors.

Puzzle—Who was the busiest man at the flower show? Ask L. Jules Bourdet. How he managed to be on the job for 18 hours a day and still found time to stage his exhibits is hard to figure out.

The principal topic of conversation in the wholesale district is the flower show. Everybody was at the Armory doing their "bit" and it was a hard matter to find the "bosses" at their establishments.

W. J. Pilcher in charge of the trade display space at the show informs us he sold every available foot of space in that section and will have a handsome profit to show when he closes his books.

The florists' club has invited the American Rose Society to hold its 1918 meeting in this city at the time of the National Flower Show.

J. J. Beneke is undergoing a minor operation at a local hospital.

Columbus, O.

LENTEN DULLNESS NOTICEABLE.

Trade continues to slow up with the advance of the Lenten period. Outside of funeral work, hospital bouquets and pot plants, there is little doing. There is an abundance of all kinds of stock, the glut stage threatening in carnations, roses and sweet peas. Cut flowers are taking a secondary place in public favor, the long, cold winter seeming to have given a more than usual enthusiasm for flowers that are suggestive of spring. Bulbous stock is excellent, and in quantity and variety is making an imposing display at florists' shops. The effect has been to force down prices on other flowers. Carnations are now selling at 75 cents a dozen, the lowest price since before the holidays. Sweet peas, which a few weeks ago sold at $2 a hundred wholesale, are now available to the trade at $1.25. Crops coming on for the Easter trade are reported to be in very satisfactory condition.

NOTES.

Walter Engle, greenhouse manager of the Munk Floral Company, is in Chicago, where he is spending several weeks among the growers of that city and vicinity, for the purpose of becoming informed on methods and conditions. As an officer and one of the live members of the Columbus Florists' Association. Mr. Engle will address that body along the line of his investigations, upon his return.

J. F. Myers, florist, of Belvidere avenue, is confined to his home as the result of a fall a week ago from a new greenhouse which he is constructing. He suffered an injury to the spine which bids fair to incapacitate him for some days.

The Munk Floral Company, which makes a specialty of growing roses, is preparing to give increased attention to the Shawyer variety, of which some 3,000 will be set out at once.

J.

MELROSE, MASS.—One thousand gardens to lessen the cost of living are being planned by the city on lots offered by citizens for use for this purpose.

SYLVANIA, O.—The considerable tract of ground used by the Cushman Gladiolus Co. for gladiolus culture will be subdivided. Ralph Cushman and wife visited Chicago recently. E. H. Cushman and wife are expected home from Miami, Fla., this month.

"Hamburg Late White" Chrysanthemum

CERTIFICATE OF MERIT awarded by Chrysanthemum Society of America.

PICTURE was taken Dec. 10, 1916, and will give a good idea of the symmetrical form of flowers of "Hamburg Late White." These flowers were cut from plants grown from single stems and planted six inches each way.

"HAMBURG LATE WHITE" is pure white under all weather conditions, and is a sport of Maud Dean white, but has no trace of pink, as the original.

The average grower of chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle, and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. "Hamburg Late White" has been grown for the last four years, and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but for late white, one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November, by taking an early bud, but by selecting later buds, most of the flowers are cut during December, and would advise to select a late bud, as the later buds come somewhat fuller, and by selecting late buds, flowers can be had as late as the middle of January.

Keeping qualities are excellent, and where a light, graceful white flower is wanted, "Hamburg Late White" cannot be surpassed.

"Hamburg Late White" will be disseminated in the Spring of 1917. Plants will be ready for April delivery, and all orders will be filled in rotation.

BUSINESS MUCH BETTER.

Business has been very good this week and stock of all kinds has moved better than it has for some time. The shipping trade has been exceptionally good and the city demand has shown a marked improvement. American Beauty roses are arriving in large quantities but clean up nicely every day at prices ranging from $4 to $6 per dozen in the fancy grades. Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are in large supply, but are having a good call and there is hardly ever any surplus when the stores close at night. Ophelia are coming in crop with several of the growers, and while the receipts are steadily increasing, the demand is keeping pace with the supply. Richmond are in good supply, but Milady appear to be somewhat scarce. Mrs. Aaron Ward are none too plentiful, but Killarney, White Killarney and Killarney Brilliant seem to be in large supply. Sunburst are moving right along at good prices and the same holds true for Rhea Reid, Mrs. George Sawyer, Hoosier Beauty, Mrs. Moorfield Storey, Lady Alice Stanley and Hadley. My Maryland are seen at several of the houses in good supply, but there is always a ready demand for this variety. The miniature roses, Fireflame, George Elgar, Cecile Brunner and Baby Doll are in good demand. Carnations are plentiful but are selling well at good prices considering the general market condition. Lilies are seen in larger numbers and the same holds good for callas. Sweet peas are in heavy supply, but move readily at good prices. Violets are selling fairly well owing to the warmer weather, and were in heavy demand, Saturday, March 17. Orchids and gardenias are good property, and so is lily of the valley, which is in good demand at the advertised quotations. Spanish iris has made its appearance in the market, but not in any great quantity. Snapdragons, stocks, daisies, forget-me-nots, calendulas, tulips, jonquils, daffodils, freesias, gladioli, daisies, mignonette, bouvardias, pansies, stevia and other miscellaneous seasonable stock is included in the many offerings, and give the buyer a splendid variety to select from. Pussy willows are seen in large numbers everywhere, and appear to be having a good call. Greens of all kinds are in good demand notwithstanding the fact that southern stock has again made its appearance in larger supply. Easter plants are seen featured in all the retail stores and from present indications there will be a grand clean-up in this line long before the rush is over. The settling of the threatened railroad strike has been the most welcome news that the trade has received for some time, and now that everyone is feeling better over the situation nothing short of unfavorable weather can stop this from being the best Easter in years.

NOTES.

Wietor Bros. are cutting a good supply of American Beauty roses in all grades and are coming in splendid crop with Ophelia. N. J. Wietor says that the outlook for a large crop of both roses and carnations for Easter at Wietor Bros.' establishment never was more promising and is very enthusiastic over the bright outlook for the big flower day.

Emil Reichling resigned as superintendent of the Peter Reinberg greenhouses last Saturday, March 17, a position he has held for over five years. He has been in the employ of Peter Reinberg for seventeen years, and has given the most efficient service during that period. Mr. Reichling is undecided as to just what his plans are for the future, but is safe to say that a grower of his ability will not be idle for any great length of time. Peter Showbow is now filling the position at the Reinberg establishment just vacated by Mr. Reichling.

Frederick William Bryan, a pioneer real estate dealer, died March 12, at his residence, 1423 Kenilworth avenue, after an illness of less than a day. He was born on the site of the present federal building 68 years ago. He was intensely interested in gardening and active in the Horticultural Society. He is survived by his widow and a daughter, Mrs. Grant Steinson.

The Rapid Rapper Company, 56 East Randolph street, is mailing an interesting booklet called "The Art of Wrapping Plants and Floral Baskets," which will be mailed free to anyone in the trade upon request. The Rapid Rapper Company manufactures the Rapid Rapper, the greatest time-saving wrapping device known to the florist trade.

The Alpha Floral Company reports business as very good and the rush on Saturday, March 17, was so heavy that the regular force had all it could do to handle it properly. This firm always handles a large and complete line of stock and makes one of the grandest displays in the city.

Percy Jones is headquarters for green goods and is particularly strong on galax, which is none too plentiful, according to most reports received from the dealers, cut flowers are also plentiful at this house, which will have its usual large supply to offer for the big holiday.

Zech & Mann report business as good and that the outlook is very encouraging for Easter, many large advance orders already being booked. The supply of roses is steadily increasing at this busy establishment.

Frederick J. Benthey & Co., of New Castle, Ind., whose range was almost entirely destroyed by the recent tornado, have placed an order with the John C. Moninger Company for five new houses, 28x300 feet.

The Canavan Iron & Wire Works, 6124 Wentworth avenue, reports unusual demand for this firm's well-known patterns of wire wreaths and hanging baskets, notwithstanding the advanced prices.

The Raedlein Basket Company reports a brisk demand for baskets for Easter and the present indications are that the sales for this holiday will greatly exceed those of 1916.

P. J. Foley, of the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., addressed the floral students at the state university at Urbana this week on greenhouse construction.

The Garland Manufacturing Company is delivering material to Henry Standke, of Des Plaines, for a new Garland greenhouse 34x150.

The Lord & Burnham Company has moved its office from the Rookery building to the Continental & Commercial Bank building.

W. N. Rudd left this week for the state university at Urbana, where he will deliver a course of lectures on landscape gardening.

KENNICOTT

The A. L. Randall Co. has rented the building at 728 South Wabash avenue, next to the American Music Hall, consisting of seven floors and a basement, 75x178 feet, which will be used for factory purposes. The new move will give the Randall Co. the necessary room to enlarge its cut flower department, which has been crowded for space for some time and has been doing business under a great handicap. The balance of the second floor in the LeMoyné building, which they now occupy, will be devoted to office space and display rooms. The new building will give them about 150,000 additional square feet of floor space.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. cut an arch through the west wall of its cut flower department this week, which connects this section with the new supply quarters on the second floor of the Stewart building, which will be used entirely for display purposes. The plant department at Morton Grove is having a heavy call for Easter stock and the indications are that there will be an early cleanup in this line. The supply of cut flowers will be extra large this year as far as this firm is concerned, for heavy crops of both roses and carnations are in sight.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are making preparations to handle a big Easter business, which from present indications promises to be the best in years. Orchids and lilies will be in good supply with them and there promises to be a heavier supply of roses than in previous years.

Paul Klingsporn, manager of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, is expected home from the east this week. This firm will have a large supply of stock to offer for Easter, according to the reports from its growers who will all be in good crop compared to former years.

Bassett & Washburn are pleasing their trade with fancy roses and carnations and are cutting heavily in Ophelia and American Beauty roses. Mr. Washburn says that roses will be in good supply with them at Easter, but the carnation crop will be somewhat short.

Chairman Lautenschlager, of the Florists' Club publicity committee, announces that the club will carry on a national plan of co-operative advertising for Mothers' day, under his direction, and that further particulars will be given later.

J. A. Budlong is cutting a splendid grade of Mrs. Chas. Russell roses, in addition to a large and fine supply of all the other leading varieties. Manager Schupp is looking forward to a brisk Easter trade and an early clean-up in lilies.

H. M. Berner, of the American Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., is back from an eastern business trip. D. Breese, who has been directing the erecting crew, is now devoting his entire time to office affairs.

Ed. Mallison, of the Fleischman Floral Co., is doing double duty during the absence of Manager Graham, who is enjoying a visit in the east.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are cutting heavily in lilies, which they will be strong on at Easter. The shipping trade is very brisk at this establishment.

Erne & Company are showing a fine line of stock and will be strong on all lines for Easter, especially roses, lilies and carnations.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner report a good run on the fancy blue sweet peas they are offering in quantity.

Visitors: J. L. Denmead, Marshalltown, Ia.; C. H. Bookedis, and Wm. Thomas, of the E. G. Hill Floral Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

INCLEMENT WEATHER BUT GOOD BUSINESS.

Notwithstanding typical March weather—snow, rain, wind, sleet, sunshine and any other kind of weather that can be looked for this month, business has been fairly good with St. Patrick's day to help out. There was quite a demand for white carnations, as usual, and prices were good. There is plenty of stock, including sweet peas, daffodils, tulips, roses, myosotis and lilies. Greens are very scarce and will be for some time, as this market depends on southern greens and that crop has been damaged by the frost. The indications are for a very good Easter business.

NOTES.

Dr. Schaeffer of Negley avenue, donated his rare collection of orchids to Phipps conservatory in Schenley Park. It contains some very rare varieties, of which there are only a few in the country. This collection is on exhibition every day, free to the public.

The deepest sympathy of the trade is extended to Walter Faulk of the Allegheny market in the loss of his mother, and to Geo. Oles of Youngstown, O., in the loss of his father.

Word was received from Warren, Pa., that Allen Langhans had been presented with a new baby girl. The mother and baby are doing nicely.

Edw. Ashcraft is the proud father of a new baby boy. The "perfectos" are now being passed by "Ed."

ST. PATRICK'S DAY CLEANS UP MARKET.

Trade during the past week became more active as the week ended, the market cleaning up quite well following the St. Patrick's day trade. This week opened up with a steady demand and a fair supply of stock. Roses are not quite as plentiful as usual, but there are enough to meet present requirements. Carnations and sweet peas are in fair supply and there is a fair call for both. Easter lilies are plentiful and some excellent tulips, daffodils and hyacinths are to be had. Other offerings include callas and rubrums, snapdragons, single violets and primroses.

NOTES.

The Wm. Murphy Co. has been sending out numerous shipments of baskets and supplies for the Easter trade.

E. G. Gillett is receiving some excellent Easter lilies from H. Weber & Sons Co., Oakland, Md.

The Clifton Floral Co. will open a retail store at 288 Ludlow avenue in the near future.

Visitors: Chas. Dietrich, Maysville, Ky.; Wm. Thomas, Richmond, Ind.; Wm. Rodgers, Dayton, O.; N. N. Emitslof, representing Geo. Wittbold Co., Chicago; H. L. Green, Evansville, Ind.

GOOD LENTEN BUSINESS.

Business during the past week with seasonable weather and the supply of both plants and cut flowers greatly improved. The call for funeral work has been good and the spring openings of several large stores called for elaborate decorations. Carnations were in good demand for St. Patrick's day, whites bringing $5 and $6 per 100. Roses will be scarce for Easter and prices stiff. Large orders are already being booked and one grower in this vicinity has sold his entire cut.

CLUB MEETING.

The monthly meeting of the florists' club was held March 14 and was well attended. President W. J. Vesey, Jr., was in the chair. Co-operative advertising was decided upon for Mothers' day and a committee appointed to take charge of the details. Plans were also made for the second annual flower show of the club to be held this fall.

NOTES.

The Doswell Floral Co. will have some fine stock for Easter, including Tausendschon and rambler roses. This firm's sweet peas are especially fine. At their retail establishment across from the interurban station they have built up a very live out-of-town trade.

The Flick Floral Co. had the decoration of one of the large department stores in which hundreds of Easter lilies, Shawyer and Ophelia roses and spring flowers were used. Several thousand roses and spring flowers were given to the public.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey have purchased $5,500 worth of orchids which will be added to their already large collection. This firm has sold nearly $25,000 worth of orchids since last August.

Mrs. Henry Freese of the New Haven Floral Co. is suffering from an attack of tonsillitis and bronchitis and has been removed to the home of her parents in this city.

H. K.

Los Angeles, Calif.

GOOD SUPPLY BUT PRICES HOLD FIRM.

Anemones and tulips have been added to the list of bulbous stock now on the market, making the offerings quite complete. Fruit blossoms are still seen in quantity and Acacia dealbata has now taken the place of Baileyana. Violets have stiffened in price, due to the strong demand this spring. Prices in every line are firm although there is a liberal supply. Lily of the valley is still in short supply and but few orchids are seen. Most of the florists decorated for St. Patrick's day, which stimulated interest in sales for the occasion.

NOTES.

O. C. Saake had his window especially decorated for St. Patrick's day. Green carnations and real "auld sham-rocks" were features. The first delphiniums seen this season and some beautiful sprays of genistas were also displayed here. The demand for funeral work has been good.

The Redondo Floral Co. had a very attractive window of peach blossoms and September Morn roses recently which attracted much attention. A general clean-up is taking place preparatory to Easter. This firm anticipates a big trade at that time.

The Broadway Florists recently furnished another order of 5,000 bunches of violets to be given away. They report higher prices on this fragrant flower. They made big preparations for St. Patrick's day.

Wolfskill Bros. & Morris Goldenson are having a run on decorations, a recent order for a palatial home in the Wilshire district being done exclusively in peach blossoms. Funeral work has also been brisk.

Wright's Flower Shop, Inc., has been well decorated, an immense stock of flowers of all kinds being seen here, the bright colors showing in such profusion as to halt the passerby.

G. H. H.

Washington, D. C.

PRICES AFFECTED BY OVERSUPPLY.

No improvement has been noticed in the market during the past week, the supply continuing plentiful at fair prices. Roses of all kinds can be had at prices ranging from $2 to $10 per 100, with the exception of American Beauty, which while a little more plentiful than for several weeks are offered at from $3 to $7.50 per dozen. Carnations are arriving in larger numbers and the street fakirs have added them to their stocks of violets and sweet peas and the same may be said of jonquils.

NOTES.

Henry Witt is cutting some of the finest sweet peas seen in the local stores, some with stems two feet long, and the demand exceeds the cut each day.

The demand for green carnations for St. Patrick's day was greater than in former years, some of the stores reporting a sell-out before noon.

John Gutman is at present cutting excellent snapdragons and carnations, which are as good as any seen in this market.

Gude Bros. Co.'s store was resplendent last week with a fine showing of rhododendrons, lilacs and azaleas.

From reports received from growers, the supply of pot plants for Easter will be plentiful and varied.

GOOD DEMAND AT SATISFACTORY PRICES.

There was a great improvement in the market of the past week. Everything appeared to be in demand at fair prices. While roses are not in full crop, there is quite a quantity in sight, of which the quality is fine. American Beauties are not any too plentiful, but there promises to be a big cut in for Easter. Carnations are in fair supply. Sweet peas are now the quantity stock. They are extra fine, nothing any better ever having been seen in this market. Considering the quantity, they move very well. Daffodils and tulips, seen in large quantities, are active when prices favor the buyer. Violets cannot stand up against the sweet pea opposition and rule low in price. Lily of the valley is plentiful. Cattleyas are not overstocked and bring good prices. Easter and calla lilies appear equal to all demand. Asparagus in bunches has taken to itself to climb; stock sized bunches of about 25 sprays sold the past week for 60 cents. Fifty cents has heretofore been the standard, and then scarce, the bunches grew smaller, but now the price is up, helping, no doubt, to pay some growers' excess coal bill.

NOTES.

Warren Harper, of the Angora Nurseries, Chestnut Hill, has been appointed by the judges a county commissioner of Montgomery county. This is an important position and is a case of the office seeking the man, as Mr. Harper only accepted after earnest solicitation.

Many of the craft took a run over to the New York show last week, which was reported very fine. Paul Huebner, Emil Geshick and John Kuhn made up one party, who were delighted with the exhibition. Wm. Kleinheinz was one of the judges.

At this writing, the rose festival hall is in somewhat of a chaotic condition, but much stock is coming in, and everything is rounding up nicely. A. N. Pierson's roses arrived safely, which was a great relief to the committee.

Edward Dornheim has resigned his position with Berger Brothers and purchased a half interest in the greenhouses of Clarence Alvin, at Alden, Delaware county, where they will carry on a general greenhouse business.

American Beauty roses, high grade sweet peas, and lilac are specials this week with the Leo Niessen Co. Prospects for a large Easter trade are very encouraging.

Berger Brothers are featuring fine sweet peas, Maryland roses and bulbous stock. Business has been much better the past week.

Choice sweet peas and Prima Donna roses are leaders with Eugene Bernheimer, who reports a good business the past week.

R. Heron, at 18th and Chestnut street, will put a new Ford car on the street before Easter. A sure sign of prosperity.

Frances Fay, a hustling young man of considerable experience, has opened a cut flower store at 53rd and Market streets.

Don't Wait

Now is the time to send us a shipment of flowers and acquaint yourself with the satisfactory treatment you receive when you ship to New York's Foremost Commission House in the flower trade.

Extensive experience, ample capital, modern facilities and, in fact, everything to commend us to you.

Special opportunity for a couple of Good Rose Growers who are looking for best returns. Our present demand is larger than our supply.

UNITED CUT FLOWER CO., Inc., 111 W. 28th St., New York City

C. Victor Greth, late with J. Wolff, Jr., will open a flower shop, March 31, at 4910 North Broad street. This is in a newly settled neighborhood and should prove a good location.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange handled a big lot of flowers last week. Bulbous stock and choice roses are features here. Asparagus is now 60 cents a bunch.

MARKET CONDITIONS QUIET.

Business was quiet in the wholesale district during the past week. Even dyed carnations were slow, for St. Patrick's day, March 17, brought a continuous downpour of rain. The weather was so bad that the intended parade was abandoned. The market is well supplied with all kinds of stock, which moves slowly. If for a few hours there are signs of activity, there is generally a reaction when "nothing doing" is the word of the day. The flower show is creating considerable interest and has brought to the city a number of very interesting visitors from other cities, noteworthy being a number of men prominent in the Society of American Florists. From San Francisco came Ex-President MacRorie, rotund and smiling. George Asmus, of Chicago, is here and when he appears on Broadway is right in the swim, for he carries a handsome cane. Other well-known Chicago men who have dropped in are: Paul Klingsporn, L. R. Bohannon, E. C. Amling and Fred. Lautenschlager. There are a number of others, who, if strictly speaking, are not Chicago men, are near enough when at home, to be a part of its life, one of these being J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville; C. L. Baum, of Knoxville, Tenn., and D. C. Horgan of Macon, Ga., ably represent the society, while J. H. Dunlop and others represent "Our Lady of Eternal Snows." William F. and Adolphus Gude and George Hess of Washington, D. C., snatched a few hours from their vigilant watch over the nation's affairs and joined the "merrie companie." Ex-president Welch, W. R. Nicholson, S. J. Goddard, Wm. J. Stewart and others, came to represent staid and sober New England. One good feature of the flower show is that it shows us that big as New York is, there is a big world inhabited by many good people outside of it.

NOTES.

March 19.—The great rainstorm of March 17 has been followed by a cold snap; cold for this season, and a hurricane. Early this morning there was 10 degrees of frost. Business in the wholesale district has been fairly active, as there is usually something doing on a Monday morning. American Beauties are now down to 50 cents for the best specials, wholesale rates. The best cattleyas are higher, 75 cents and $1 for a few choice blooms. There is no change worthy of note in tea roses, carnations and bulbous stock, all moving slowly.

John B. Nugent, of Young & Nugent, attended the dinner of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick at the Hotel Astor, on the night of March 17, and incidentally furnished the shamrocks for the occasion. It was a most successful affair, one thousand persons, among them men of national prominence, being present.

J. W. Hauser, of 571 Madison avenue, had the casket cover and many fine designs for the funeral of ex-Lieut. Governor Wm. F. Sheehan, held at St. Patrick's cathedral, March 16. John Ross, of Mr. Hauser's staff, was in charge of the floral arrangement.

We may here remark for the benefit of the people who denounce street selling, that in this city at least, the ranks of the regular retailers are frequently recruited from among the street boys, who, if they are ambitious and saving, do not stay long on the street.

M. A. Bowe, 332 Fifth avenue, on March 16, placed on exhibition in the booth of the Horticultural Society of New York, at the flower show, a handsome basket made up of acacias, cattleyas and A. Farleyense. It was much admired by visitors.

The Lenox Florist, who for some time has conducted a stand at the corner of Lenox avenue and 125th street, opened a fine store at 312 Lenox avenue, March 3, with a cut-price sale of plants and cut flowers, which was well patronized.

J. H. Small & Sons, on March 19, arranged a large number of designs for the funeral of Ferdinand Roebbling, of Trenton, N. J., one of the builders of the first bridge connecting Manhattan and Brooklyn.

In addition to good roses the Henshaw Floral Co., Inc., 127 West 28th street, is handling about all the other stocks, in quantity, that the trade calls for.

The Growers' Cut Flower Co., 129 West 28th street, is handling exceptionally fine tulips and narcissi, grown by Peter Beuerlein of Elmhurst, N. Y.

H. E. Froment, 148 West 28th street, continues to receive a particularly fine variety of roses from the range of L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, N. J.

At the retail store of H. H. Burns, 509 Madison avenue, we have recently noticed fine work in designing and decorating.

J. J. Coan, 115 West 28th street, was very successful in cleaning up his stock of shamrocks.

fifth annual convention, Detroit, Mich.,
June 19, 1917.

CELERY of the self-blanching type is said to be losing favor with growers.

ARNOLD RINGIER, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, is expected home March 22.

VISITED CHICAGO: N. B. Keeney, of N. B. Keeney & Son, LeRoy, N. Y., westbound.

TOMATO seed, ground and pressed into loaves, is coming into considerable favor as a cattle fodder.

GLADIOLUS stocks are moving out fast and the price of America has been advanced by those who have the bulbs.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, March 21, were as follows: Timothy, $4.25 to $5.75 per 100 pounds.

PRESIDENT KIRBY B. WHITE, of the American Seed Trade Association, predicts a record breaking attendance at the Detroit meeting in June.

THE department of agriculture, at Washington, is reported having distributed all its free seeds for this season and is now turning down requests.

ONION SETS at Chicago are up again to former prices, $4.75 for colors and $5.50 for whites. Buyers fearing result of a railroad strike are asking that sets be forwarded by express.

AN advance in Pacific steamship rates is reported. Lack of eastbound tonnage is said to exist and freight rates on cheap bulky stocks like Chinese narcissus and lily bulbs are likely to be affected.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—The St. Louis Seed Co. is having a very satisfactory spring trade. Interest in home gardens indicates brisk business in this department, which is well stocked with seeds and garden accessories.

IF buyers of French bulbs are required to pay in August the present high rates, 15 per cent, for marine insurance, this alone will add about $1 per thousand to the cost of Narcissus Paper White Grandiflora.

SEEDSMEN with heavy mail trade are beginning to fear that the extraordinary demand will exhaust their stocks before counter trade begins and that counter buyers will be limited both in kinds and quality obtainable at the end of the season.

ILLINOIS SEED LAW.—At Pontiac, Ill., March 17, a committee of seedsmen met with two county agents in an attempt to so modify the proposed seed law as to make it workable. Several changes were made which will be put before the agricultural committees of both houses.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—C. C. Massie, of Northrup, King & Co., says, all conditions considered, business holds up remarkably well. He believes the season at its close will prove entirely satisfactory. L. M. King, of this firm, and wife are rejoicing in the arrival of a baby boy last week.

Field Notes on Sweet Peas.

Lester L. Morse has rendered sweet pea growers a great service by the publication of a revised and extended edition of his "Field Notes on Sweet Peas." The following from the preface to the present book shows the great value of this work: "Our first edition of 'Field Notes' was published with a total of 100 or so varieties listed. The second edition was published in 1905 with the addition of 100 or more varieties. The third edition was published in 1907, with 309 varieties listed, and to this was added in 1909 the appendix with 154 more, or a grand total of 463 names. This present issue, which covers the season of 1916, lists a grand total of all varieties, of all classes and types, of 1,870 names. These names do not represent so many distinct varieties by any means, but are names that have been given to a sweet pea by some dealer and have appeared in some printed list, either in America, Great Britain or Australia."

The new book contains 220 pages, half of which, in the large section devoted to names and descriptions of varieties, are blank for additional names and data. About a dozen names have been added on these blank pages since the appearance of the book. The contents include: "Classes or Types and History of Each;" "Color Classification and Preferred List;" "Complete List of Spencers and Grandifloras with Descriptions;" "Complete List of Early Flowering Varieties with Descriptions;" "List of Cupids;" "Mendelism;" "Culture for Exhibition;" "Culture for Ordinary Garden Use;" "Culture for East;" "Insect Troubles;" "Hints for Exhibitors."

Bean Shipments from British China.

While the volume of exports of beans from Hongkong is such as to constitute the port an independent market, it seems unlikely that this city will be of any importance in trade in beans with the United States. There are no statistics of the local imports and exports of this product, but the volume is considerable. It is confined, however, to trade in beans imported from North China and the Yangtse valley for sale to South China, Indo-China, Formosa, the Philippines, and various other portions of southeast Asia.

Since the product handled here is almost exclusively from North China, northern Chinese ports have the advantage in exports to the United States. This advantage may often be overcome by superior trade machinery and facility in financing transactions afforded by Hongkong, but as a rule the trade is likely to be direct from a northern port to the United States. At none of these places usually is there difficulty in packing beans properly for export. As a rule they are shipped in gunny bags holding 100 pounds each.

Most of the beans handled in Hongkong are of grades far inferior to those demanded in the American market. It is likely that some trade could be done in the Chinese white bean as a substitute for the American navy bean, and in the Chinese red bean as a substitute for the American red kidney bean. There are also on the market varieties known as the yellow, the black, and the green or Mongo bean. The last-mentioned class is a notable item in the export trade from Hongkong to the Philippines, shipments to the islands at present running at the rate of about $75,000 annually in value. Some beans are now shipped from Hongkong to the United States, amounting in 1915 to about $31,000, but they are imported into the United States chiefly for the use of Chinese residents.

Practically no beans of exportable varieties are produced in South China. Beans grown locally are used green, little of the ripened product getting into other than local markets.

Seeds For Factory Employes.

Prof. F. A. Waugh, of the horticultural department of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, stopped over at Chicago a few hours on St. Patrick's day on his way home from Urbana. He stated that the owners of large factories employing many hands in Massachusetts are asking the college to suggest collections of garden seeds for factory employes to plant in their yards. He is preparing such, one suitable for one-eighth acre, the other suitable for one-twentieth acre, and will take bids on 1,000 lots of each. It is expected that the factory owners will donate these seeds or supply them at cost.

New York, March 20.—Celery, per crate, $2.50 to $5.00; cucumbers, 60 cents to $1.50 per dozen; mushrooms, 75 cents to $1.75 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, per lb., 10 to 25 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2.00 to $4.00; lettuce, per strap, $3.00 to $5.50.

Cabbage Worm Control.

The common cabbage worm makes its appearance as early as March and continues until severe frosts. Its eggs are laid on cabbage and related plants, where they hatch in from four to eight days. To control this pest, Farmers' Bulletin 776 of the United States department of agriculture advises spraying the plants with a solution composed of two pounds of powdered arsenate of lead, four pounds of arsenate of lead in paste form or one pound of Paris green to fifty gallons of water, commencing as soon as the plants are set out and repeated as necessary.

Potato Disease in East.

A potato disease appearing on certain soils and apparently associated with the lack of potash in the commercial fertilizers used was prevalent last summer in various sections of the east. According to specialists of the Bureau of Plant Industry, United States department of agriculture, the trouble was largely controlled by the use of stable manure. The disease may be expected to appear again with increased severity during the coming season in many potato-growing sections, from Maine to Virginia, and probably also farther south. It was first noted in scattered fields in 1915. In 1916 it became serious and general over considerable areas. Last year the disease was first observed late in June in Maryland and Virginia, and during the latter part of July in Maine. The affected plants first develop a downward rolling of the leaf margins, accompanied by a peculiar bronzing of the surface, sometimes mistaken for spray injury. Since it occurs on unsprayed as well as on sprayed plants, it cannot be due to the corrosive action of sprays. The foliage gradually turns brown—not yellow—and the plants ripen prematurely. Death of the leaves and sudden collapse of the stems at the ground level follow. The yield, of course, is much reduced.

The disease is found more commonly on fields of early-maturing varieties, but is not restricted to them. It also appears first on early planted fields.

What is more striking is the very apparent association of the trouble with certain soil types, at least in Maine, where this relation, as well as other features of the trouble, are being investigated by the department experts in co-operation with the Maine agricultural experiment station.

Soils which originally supported the growth of soft woods, or "mixed-growth lands," developed the diseased condition in its most severe type, while the hardwood ridges showed it least or not at all. The trouble appeared first in the swales or lowlands, where the natural drainage was not so good as on the higher ridge land. When the disease appeared at all on the higher ground, it was of a less severe type.

Specific fungi are frequently found on the stems of the collapsing plants, and some of these most constantly seen belong to disease-producing groups. Their relation to the trouble is being investigated, but the present indications suggest that they are not the primary cause but have attacked the plants already seriously weakened by other agencies.

Fertilizer experiments in progress on affected fields demonstrated that the plots receiving potash showed little or no signs of the trouble, even where the other plots were entirely dead. Stable manure also held the disease in almost complete control.

Investigations of the trouble by the department are incomplete, but the present indications are that it is due to insufficient potash, or, perhaps, in some soils at least, to an excess of nitrates in the presence of a minimum potash supply. Farmers who are unable to secure potash fertilizer for their potato fields but who have stable manure may insure their crops against attack by its use. In sections where certain types of soil have been observed to suffer from the disease under discussion, and it is advisable to plant potatoes on these types next year, it is strongly recommended that potash fertilizers or stable manure be applied if either are obtainable.

Vegetables at New York.

Various causes brought about some reduction in the prices of potatoes and onions the latter part of the past week, but these reductions may be only temporary. On March 3, onions sold at from $5.50 to $7.50 per 100 pounds; retail price, 9 and 10 cents per pound. There was a considerable reduction in the lower grades of potatoes. Wholesale prices ranged from $5 to $9 for 180 pounds; the cheaper grades retailing at 5½ and 6 cents per pound. In addition to potatoes in storage in this city, March 3, there were at least 350 carloads in the New York Central and Harlem River yards. The reduction in prices is probably due to the large stock on hand; to the city-wide agitation and to the substitution of rice and other foods. A threatened embargo on the shipment of potatoes by the Canadian government is said to have given some of the Maine dealers "cold feet." They are said to have large stores of potatoes in New Brunswick, and if an embargo is enforced, they will have to be sold there. A. F. F.

YOUNGSTOWN, O.—John Walker has been in the Isle of Pines for the past two months looking after his citrus fruit interests there.

California Lemons Injured.

OXNARD, March 13.—Lemon growers of this section fear that the frosts of the past three nights have killed some of the lemon blossoms. The extent of the damage cannot be ascertained for several days. The citrus growers in the Santa Paula sections have burned their smudge pots 32 nights this season. The smudges were used only 29 nights in 1913, the year of the big freeze.

Witch Hazels.

The earliest of the witch hazels, Hamamelis vernalis, a native of southern Missouri and of Arkansas, opened its first flowers during the last week of December and these were followed in January and February by the flowers of the Chinese and Japanese species which were not affected by a temperature of several degrees below zero. In the size and color of its flowers and in foliage, the Chinese H. mollis is the handsomest of these winter-flowering shrubs. It is hardy, fast-growing and free-flowering, and might well find a place in every garden where it can be seen from the windows of country or city houses. Unfortunately this shrub is still difficult to obtain from American nurseries.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, May 5, 1916.

Pruning Shade Trees.

Because fruit trees are pruned and there is a tendency to prune all trees, it is inadvisable in many cases, according to R. B. Cruickshank of the Ohio State University College of Agriculture. Except when trees are just planted or when dead or broken wood should be removed, hard maples, various oaks, hickories, ashes, elms and other hardwood trees require no pruning and are better off without it. The poplar, soft maple, box-elder and other soft woods are the ones generally topped, in an effort to prevent breaking of the limbs. In some cases this is a good practice. The danger arises from the fact that the work is often improperly done.

Pruning back too far means that wounds are made which do not heal over and which become a point of decay. Heavy cutting also causes slender, sappy growth which is liable to be more injured by wind and snow than the limbs which are cut off.

Where it seems necessary to prune trees, make the wounds as small as possible and do not leave stubs. Large cuts may be avoided and the same end achieved by cutting a little farther out on the branch and making two or three small wounds instead of one large one. Pruning is best done before the buds swell in the spring.

THE BOOK OF GLADIOLUS

THE first authoritative book on this bulb ever printed in America, or possibly the world, issued April 1, 1911. This 120-page book, written by Matthew Crawford and Dr. Van Fleet, contains many chapters covering all sides of growing, propagating, storing, etc., and also some pages of valuable cultural notes gathered from reliable sources. A necessity for both amateur and grower. The book is bound in cloth and fully illustrated.

GOOD ST. PATRICK'S DAY TRADE.

Business the early part of last week was marked by the usual Lenten dullness, but St. Patrick's day trade was very brisk during the last three days. Shamrocks in one-inch pots sold well and more could have been disposed of had they been available. Notwithstanding a rainy day it was a profitable one for the florists. Stock is bringing somewhat better prices than a week ago and wholesalers feel that the worst of the slump is over. Roses are excellent in quality and nearly all varieties sell well. Carnations are holding up, and as they are slowly going off crop prices hold firm. The supply of bulbous flowers is excessively large and they sell cheaply. Lily of the valley meets poor demand. The call for pot plants is good.

NOTES.

The St. Patrick's day windows were quite attractive this year, those in some of the stores being rather elaborate. Spring decorations in the department stores have kept some of the trade busy.

Cassidy & Co. are doing well in their new store. Their excellent window displays are much admired.

The greenhouses of James B. Canning were slightly damaged by fire last week.

“Be sure you’re right-- then go ahead”

So said Admiral Dewey to Gridley on that never-to-be-forgotten day in May 1898.

Just seven small words—all the wisdom of the ages compressed into seven small words.

Make it your motto—W. A. Rowe did.

That’s why the W. A. Rowe Floral Company, of Kirkwood, Missouri, ranks as one of the twelve cylinder greenhouse establishments of the middle west. When he wanted to build last summer he looked, found and examined—he made sure he was right, then went ahead and put in his order for AGMCO houses.

And then?

He went ahead and grew stock in them that made his office ring with the Cash Register Rag and took the first prize at the St. Louis Spring Flower Show last week.

And then?

Knowing beyond a doubt that he was right, he put in a REPEAT ORDER March 16, for two more AGMCO houses.

These new houses will be of the improved AGMCO pipe frame construction, 36x300 feet each.

Yesterday is gone forever—tomorrow never comes. So get busy and write TODAY—it’s the ONLY time of which you’re SURE.

BEST TRADE IN SEVERAL YEARS.

This practically is the first season in three years that local florists are reporting satisfactory business and proving it with a smile. Stock is none too plentiful and it keeps many in the trade on the jump trying to get enough flowers to take care of orders. "Where can I get a few hundred carnations?" or "Do you know where I can find a thousand or two thousand calceolarias?" are daily questions. Never before has there been a better promise of good business conditions. With the assurance that this city is to have a permanent army post which will add at least 15,000 soldiers to the population there is bound to be an increase in trade in all lines and the florists will benefit in proportion, if not to as great an extent as the fellow who supplies potatoes to the garrison. Still we are satisfied that we are able to trade a dozen carnations for some cash to hand over to someone else for a pound of beans, two slices of bacon or a few eggs. Carnations are selling well this season and the same can be said of roses, the local grown stock of the latter coming in first class, disproving the old theory that good roses could not be grown here. Plants are selling exceptionally well at fairly good prices. Bulbous stock is plentiful and of good quality. Crocuses are seen in bloom in several places. All roses, shrubs and fruit trees have come through the winter unharmed. Shipping business has been very good since the first of the year, with not enough stock at times to satisfy buyers, some of whom have been adding the following postscript: "Please try to fill this order complete." The annual rose show promises to eclipse all former similar events. Remember you are invited to join us in enjoying this fete.

THE BUILDING SEASON

is rapidly approaching and now is the time to decide on just what kind of houses to build when you add to your range. You will find that it will pay you to choose Dietsch Houses, because they are practical in every respect and represent the most for the least money. Conservative Growers who have carefully compared our material and construction, and built Dietsch Houses according to Dietsch Plans have always placed their orders with us when enlarging their original Dietsch plant.

QUICKEST STEAM —AND— WATER HEATERS IN THE WORLD is making the most wonderful greenhouse heating record in the world. Florists who have used other makes are constantly giving the Kroeschell the highest praise.

13,468,320 sq. ft. of glass was equipped with the Kroeschell Boiler during the past five years.

The Kroeschell

is used by hundreds of American Florists' readers and mighty is their praise. The year of 1916 brought an enormous number of new customers who saw our boilers in operation at other places. We attribute the large sales of this season to the good work the Kroeschell Boiler is doing everywhere.

BOSTON SPRING SHOW.

Massachusetts Horticultural Society Exhibition, March 21-25, 1917.

Successful Beyond All Expectations.

Horticultural hall, Boston, Mass., elegant as it is in its many appointments, has its limitations, which was demonstrated in the housing of this year's great spring show, which opened Wednesday, March 21, taxing the building to its utmost, a large room in the basement, called the banquet hall, being used for a portion of the bulb and fruit display. With such a wealth of material, it was one of the best, in quality and perfection, in a number of various classes, as compared with the other recent exhibitions.

The features were the large acacia exhibit of Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass., the Flemish garden of R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston, the orchid displays and the splendid quality and variety of the spring flowering bulbs. These, together with the general excellence of the entries in all the classes, made this one of the best exhibitions ever held by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

Thos. Roland's acacias occupied the stage and space in front. All the varieties were well flowered, a number being quite tall; the most conspicuous were three fine specimen pubescens. The group was beautifully arranged, forming an exhibition in itself.

The Flemish garden of R. & J. Farquhar & Co., arranged in the rear of the hall, was a simple but beautiful garden. Tall arbor vines formed a dark green background. In a lattice rose-covered arch, in the rear, an electric fountain was in operation. A hank of flowering shrubs, Azaleas mollis, rhododendrons, lilacs, forsythias and genistas formed the sides and rear, while the front was enclosed with a low, white picket fence. A wide path around a center grass plot was paved with large, square red tile. Inside this path was a heavy border of hyacinths. In the center was a Winged Mercury. In front of the shrubbery in the borders, were hyacinths, daffodils and tulips. Four good-sized figures of cupids were features of this artistic garden. This was awarded the society's gold medal.

The orchids were displayed in the room to the right of the main hall. While the quality was superb, they were, for the most part, crowded; these exhibits filled all the side tables around the room, and while very beautifully arranged in the conventional manner of raised banks on tables, interspersed with ferns, there were enough to have filled the whole room had the space been given them. To have turned this room into a miniature tropical wood or forest, with the aid of tree trunks, tree ferns, mossy mounds and a few artificial or natural pools, and exhibited the orchid plants as they grow in their native habitat, would add much to their beauty and effectiveness as a feature of the show. Frank J. Dolansky's first prize orchid group contained many splendid cattleyas, phalenopsis, dendrobiums, odontoglossums, etc., all arranged with Farleyense—an exhibit well deserving the first prize it received. The Julius Roehr's Co., Rutherford, N. J., displayed their orchids in a large, velvet-covered frame, illuminated with concealed electric lights, odontoglossums, cattleyas and C-Brassia, cyripediums, lœlia, miltonias, etc., all arranged as if in a picture. A gold medal was awarded this fine collection. Ernest B. Dane won second with display of orchid plants, a very rich and beautiful group, in which Mardevilla coccinea, with its brilliant red flowers, was conspicuous. Phalenopsis, odontoglossums, cyripediums and cattleyas were also features. Smithii ferns made a pretty border. J. W. Butterworth won first for the best six with well flowered specimens in which a large, white Lœlia anceps was noteworthy. Mrs. C. G. Weld also staged a group of orchids, mostly cattleyas, which made a fine showing and won a silver medal.

In the cut orchid classes, the T. J. Dolansky entry, displayed in vases and baskets, won first, while Ernest B. Dane's exhibit, arranged in glass vases, mostly cattleyas, came second.

Specimen plants of well flowered orchids were staged by F. J. Dolansky, a cattleya with 20 blooms; also a Cymbidium traicyanum with fine spikes of chocolate colored stripes on a green ground. A. W. Preston staged an orange colored Kelia. Miss Cornelia Warren exhibited a Dendrobium nobile with 18 flower spikes and a cattleya with 18 blooms; also a Coclogyne cristata with quantities of flowers.

Thos. Roland had a large table filled with ericas in four- and six-inch pots, were large exhibitors in these private grower classes. Faulkner Farm staged splendidly flowered lilac and a superb strain of schizanthus. The special prize offered by Zandbergen Bros., Valdenburg, Holland, for collection of bulbs in pots or pans, was won by the Weld Garden. Wm. Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., won a silver medal for his bed of ariculas, old favorites made new, which showed unique and rich colorings. His collection of English primulas, polyanthus hybrids, with their large clusters of flowers in various

There were several exhibits of Primulas, obconica and Malacoides, very well flowered and showy.

In the Flemish Garden was a pan of a new daffodil of the Emperor type, named Farquharii, quite distinct and beautiful, named in honor of this famous firm by M. Van Waveren & Sons, of Holland.

The display of cyclamens, which filled a large, low table, showed high culture and the finest strains in cultivation. A fringed lilac was remarkable for size and beauty of flower. These were all from private growers. Specimen genistas, azaleas, fuchsias, amaryllis, cinerarias, hybrid and stellata, the latter in collections of six and twelve, were all splendidly grown and made beauty spots everywhere.

The Cut Flowers.

A table of carnations, of which vases of Pink Sensation and Laddie were features, was much admired; the quality of these was exceptional. A silver medal was awarded F. Dorner & Sons Co., Lafayette, Ind., for Carnation Laddie, which was grown and staged by S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., who also exhibited a vase of his Doris. Littlefield & Wyman, North Abington, Mass., won first for red with Belle Washburn, introduced by Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, Eastern Beauty, a bright, suffused pink on white ground, a medium-sized flower, looks to be every grower's flower. It has all the earmarks of a good variety in the store. Greenfield, a cerise pink, from E. A. Richards, Greenfield, Mass., is a striking color. A. A. Pembroke's vases of 50 each of Pink Sensation, Rosette, and Delight, and James Wheeler's 50 Benora were exceptionally fine. Strout's, of Biddeford, Me., staged very fine Matchless, winning first, and was awarded honorable mention for seedling Snow White, while Littlefield & Wyman's Miss Theo was at its best. Some cut roses of good quality were seen. Waban Rose Conservatories, Natick, Mass., won first for vases of Mrs. Bayard Thayer, Lady Alice Stanley and Hadley. A. N. Pierson's Cromwell Gardens captured first with Ophelia and Hoosier Beauty, and a exceptionally well flowered. This exhibit won a silver medal.

Two large tables of spring flowering plants were very attractive. The Weld Garden's exhibit contained all the spring bulbs, Darwin tulips being a feature. Phoenix Roebelenii was used as a background. This won first prize. Mrs. J. L. Gardner won second with a fine collection of similar spring flowering plants. A row of pots of bushy asparagus was the background. These were two beautiful and strong features of this section. Bulbous stock in pans filled several low tables. The quality of the various entries was superb, the judges having hard work to make their decisions.

The large groups of foliage and flowering plants are always features of the main hall. They cover 200 square feet each. A. M. Davenport, Watertown, Mass., won first, and second was awarded to W. W. Edgar Co., Waverley, Mass. These groups contained the best of everything in seasonable flowering and foliage plants, and both were a great credit to the firms who entered them. There were a number of other groups, A. N. Davenport winning in the forced shrubs display covering 100 square feet. First for 100 square feet of astilbes, white and pink, six varieties, was won by the W. W. Edgar Co., who also won first for a 100 foot space of French hydrangeas. First for a group of azaleas, 200 square feet, was won by A. W. Davenport, W. W. Edgar Co., second. There were a number of similar groups staged by private growers, which contained high quality plants. Miss Cornelia Warren, Faulkner Farm, Mrs. C. G. Weld and Weld Garden shades of yellow and red were very striking. These were in low beds in front of the Flemish garden. A first prize for six plants, and a silver medal for the entire display was his reward.

Statice Suworowi, a very valuable florist plant, was exhibited by Mrs. Chas. Van Brunt. This bore, completely flowered, long, slender spikes of bloom, which would be ideal in plant basket work. It was awarded a gratuity.

first class certificate for Rose Elizabeth Zeigler, McAlpine Bros, Exeter, N. H., staged a vase of high quality American Beauty. A pretty seedling pink rose from C. Holbrow, Brighton, Mass., received honorable mention.

M. A. Patten & Co., Tewksbury, Mass., staged a vase of Godfrey callas, flowers as large as C. Aethiopica, but perfect in shape and color. There were also fine vases of mignonette and snapdragons staged by Wm. R. Nicholson, Framingham, Mass. Mrs. C. G. Weld was also a large exhibitor of mignonette, snapdragons, freesias, and in other cut flower classes. James Wheeler, Natick, Mass., won first with his unapproachable yellow daisies.

The sweet pea exhibit was rather meagre, Thos. Roland winning first with three entries; Burt, The Florist, taking three firsts and one second. Edward Bingham and Wm. Sim competed for the 100 Princess of Wales violets, and won in the order named.

The retail florists made a number of quite elaborate displays of their work in floral arrangements, baskets of plants and cut flowers, among them Penn, The Florist, the Boston Cutflower Co., H. R. Comley, Houghton & Gorney Co., Caplan, The Florist, and Irishorpe Farm. Penn's great variety of arranged baskets and boxes was up to date. The Houghton & Gorney Co. featured baskets of colonial bouquets. The Boston Cutflower Co. staged baskets and vases of flowers and decorated a table, while the feature of H. R. Comley's space was a decorated table, vases and baskets of flowers. Irishorpe Farm's table contained baskets and vases of cut flowers.

The attendance at the show broke all records, except those of the national exhibition. Four times as many visitors as ever attended any individual display of the society paid their way into this show. This is due to the publicity work of Mr. Campbell, an advertising expert. Previously $300 was the publicity fund for an exhibition. Mr. Campbell threw up his hands at this—nothing less than $2,000 would do. Finally he made the proposition that as their best receipts had been $1,700 he would put up the $2,000 himself, the society to receive the first $2,000 of the receipts; the next $2,000, if taken in, to pay the advertising bills and after that anything over to be paid to Mr. Campbell for his services and risk in guaranteeing the advertising fund. By Thursday night all expenses, including the advertising bills, had been met, so that all the money received Friday, Saturday and Sunday, estimated as nearly $4,000, will go to Mr. Campbell. Everybody is delighted with the result, as there never has been such interest aroused in a local exhibition before. What a glorious opportunity is offered to the florists of the country by this exhibition of what can be done by well managed publicity. The same result is possible in every large city of the land, followed by a wave of enthusiasm and interest in flowers and plants, the value of which is incalculable.

The Dinner.

President R. M. Saltonstall, of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, gave the judges, workers and visitors a luncheon at the Hotel Somerset on Thursday of show week which was much enjoyed. There were about 50 present, many leading lights and all earnest workers in the cause. President Saltonstall voiced his appreciation of the great success of the exhibition from every standpoint and the brilliant future ahead for the society if all pulled together as they had done this time. He praised the work of Superintendent Wheeler and all who had done so much to make the show a success. Superintendent Wheeler said that this great success was due as much to the little fellows as well as the big ones, as all fitted in to make the best foundation.

John K. M. L. Farquhar praised the president, who was anything but a figurehead, stating he was a hustler, and by his enthusiasm, inspired others. He spoke of great things to be done in Boston special flower shows to be held in the near future. He praised the work of Mr. Campbell of publicity fame, whose work in this respect had brought the large attendance. Mr. Campbell gave a short talk on the possibilities of telling people what you had as proved in the present case, when four times that of any previous attendance would be the record of this show. Mothers' day was referred to as a great possibility, but nothing worth while was being done to exploit it. He is certainly a leader of the live-wire brethren. Chas. S. Strout told of the popularity of the national carnation shows and their educational value to all who attend. Next year's convention and exhibition at Boston, he predicted, would be the best ever. Wm. N. Craig said he believed the spring show the most successful of the year. Members who wore the red information badge had been kept busy answering questions, to the great satisfaction of the visitors. P. Rich, Henry Penn and President Methven of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, also spoke. K.

There was a large attendance on Sunday, March 18, to view the general display. No entries were staged on that day. The attendance on the remaining days of the show was good.

There was an interesting competition in cut roses March 19, much good stock being shown. L. A. Noe, Madison, N. J., took first prize for 100 American Beauty, while F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., was awarded first for 100 Killarney Queen, first for 50 Mrs. Chas. Russell, first for 50 Ophelia, first for 50 Francis Scott Key and first for 50 Richmond.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., took first for 50 Mrs. Geo. Sawyer, first for 50 Pink Killarney, first for 50 White Killarney, first for 50 Sunburst and first for 50 Mrs. Aaron Ward. A. S. Burns, Jr., Spring Valley, N. Y., won first for 50 Hadley. L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, N. J., won the blue ribbon for 50 Jonkheer J. L. Mock. F. R. Pierson Co. took a silver medal for 25 of an undisseeded variety and first for the best new rose not in commerce January, 1917, both captured by Rosalind, an Ophelia sport. Considering other features of the show, the number of entries in cut flowers was small. W. E. Jackson, West Summit, N. J., secured second honors for 50 Ophelia, also for 50 Jonkheer J. L. Mock.

CARNATIONS.

The Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., took first for 100 whites with Crystal White, first for 100 light pink with Cottage Maid and first for 100 dark pink. On the foregoing entries there were no seconds. The same firm also took first for 100 scarlet, M. Matherson, Baldwin, N. Y., winning second. W. D. Howard, Milford, Mass., was first for 100 crimson. Emil F. Lieker, Lansdowne, Pa., took first honors for 100 variegated. Herman Schwarz, Central Park, L. I., N. Y., captured first for 50 light pink; Alfred Demeusey, Brooklyn, second. G. F. Neipp, Chatham, N. J., was first for 50 dark pink with C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., second. W. R. Nicholson, Framingham, Mass., took first for 50 red, with C. H. Totty second. The latter won first for 50 white and W. R. Nicholson was awarded a silver medal for new variety not in commerce.

For table decorations by New York retail florists, A. T. Bunyard, 413 Madison avenue, was first; Max Schling, 22 West 59th street, second, and Alfred Kottmiller, 426 Madison avenue, third.

The New York Sun gave to the Horticultural Society of New York and the New York Florists' Club a silver trophy to be offered for the exhibit most helpful to amateur gardeners. The trophy was made by the Gorham Company, is 18¾ inches long, 8¾ inches wide, 9 inches high, of sterling silver, of substantial weight, with applied border, hand engraved, and was won by Max Schling with a meritorious exhibit, showing table and vase arrangements.

For most artistic dinner table decoration set for eight arranged by private growers, decoration to be renewed on second day, first honors went to Mrs. H. Darlington, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; Mrs. N. Strauss, also of Mamaroneck, being second, and W. B. Thompson, Yonkers, N. Y., third. Sweet peas were not permitted in this decoration.

In the trade section gold medals were awarded to F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., for general display;

George E. M. Stumpp and Max Schling, New York, for retail displays; Clement Moore, Hackensack, N. Y., for orchids. The following received silver medals: A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, supplies; A. T. Boddington Co., Inc., New York, seeds, bulbs and plants; A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., general display; Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia, plants; Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., general display; Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, general display; Joseph Manda, West Orange, N. J., orchids; Weeber & Don, New York, seeds, bulbs and plants; Stumpp & Walter Co., New York, seeds, bulbs and plants; Alois Frey, Crown Point, Ind., Rainbow free-sias. Certificates of merit were awarded to R. J. Irwin, New York, and H. Fred Byxbee, Norwalk, Conn.

The following received honorable mention for various exhibits: Ralph Pulitzer, Manhasset, N. Y.; Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J.; Hon. Paul Warburg, Washington, D. C.; H. Fred Byxbee, Norwalk, Conn.; Chas. L. Doerrer, Westfield, N. J.; Mrs. Payne Whitney, Manhasset, N. Y.; A. N. Cooley, Pittsfield, Mass.; Marius Mutilod, Secaucus, N. J.; Mrs. N. Strauss, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; E. F. Hutton, Bay Shore, N. Y.; Clement Moore, Hackensack, N. J., and Col. H. H. Rogers, Tuxedo Park, N. Y.

In the competition among private estates with carnations, on March 20, three first prizes were taken by D. G. Reid, Irvington, N. Y.; one first by Mrs. E. C. Converse, Greenwich, Conn.; one first by S. M. & A. Colgate, Orange, N. J.; one first by W. E. Reis, Greenwich, Conn.; one first by Mrs. S. Hermann, Tarrytown, N. Y., and one first by Mrs. Payne Whitney, Manhasset, N. Y. Percy Chubb, Glen Cove, N. Y., took first for vase of 150 blooms, with decorative green.

Other awards for various plants were as follows: J. R. De Lamar, Glen Cove, L. I., gold medal; New York Park Department, J. Cabot Ward, commissioner, gold medal; Brooklyn Park Department, R. V. Kottmiller, Vanderbilt Hotel, New York City.

JOS. HEACOCK CO.'S PRIZE HADLEYS AT THE PHILADELPHIA ROSE SHOW.

American Rose Society.

GREAT ADVANCE IN FLORAL EXHIBITIONS.

All of the visiting craft were unanimous in their favorable impressions of the exhibition of the American Rose Society, held at Philadelphia, Pa., March 20-23, a preliminary account of which was given in our issue of March 24, pages 459-460, the consensus of opinion being that it was the most finished and complete display of roses ever seen in this country, the garden-like effect in the arrangement of the exhibition spaces, uniform wicker-covered vases, magnificent rose garden, retail florists' tastefully arranged booths and the exceptional quality of the cut blooms all combining to make a distinct step in advance in floral exhibitions.

A distinct and much admired feature was the small exhibit of the hybrid tea rose, Golden Emblem, as shown by Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia. This is sensational in the bright yellow color of its well formed flowers and the glossy, varnished effect of its foliage. It is from the nurseries of Alex. McGready & Son, Portadown, Ireland. Henry A. Dreer, Inc., will introduce it in this country next season.

The Joseph Heacock Co.'s prize winning vase of 100 Hadley was given the place of honor in the main aisle at the entrance and was wonderfully effective. Referring to this exhibit, Robert Craig said: "Nothing to equal these magnificent roses has ever been seen in this country."

George Burton's vase of American Beauty, H. O. May's Mrs. Charles Russell, A. N. Pierson's Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty and White Killarney, John Andre's Killarney and John Stephenson's Son's Sunburst, each vase containing 100 blooms, were all notable for their wonderful perfection, and as they opened out, growing to immense size the second and third days, were truly gorgeous.

The rose garden of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., containing over 171 varieties of roses, all prominently labeled, was at all times surrounded by admiring visitors, many of them taking notes of the varieties.

The decoration of the hall, covering the side walls and canoping the arched ceiling with light blue cheese cloth and southern smilax, completely transformed the dingy interior and made a most satisfactory setting for the exhibits.

Covering the floor spaces as laid out in the plan with green sheet moss and outlining the edges with 6-inch Scotti ferns in pots made a fine setting for the vases of roses, all of which were placed directly on the floor. After judging, the vases were arranged so that each space presented an attractive group.

NOTES.

It has been demonstrated in this show, that for such an elaborate display, the hall must be at least twice as large. To insure an attendance that will provide a sufficient revenue to defray expenses, there should be sufficient room to accommodate them. On Thursday, with an attendance of 7,000 there was not room to accommodate more than half this number, in the evening the congestion being very uncomfortable.

The greatest interest appeared to be in the feature displays such as the H. A. Dreer garden, the rose garden and the retailers' exhibits, which were crowded at all times. The cut rose displays were grand looking, even more beautiful the last day than on the first as they had gradually opened out and were many of them of extraordinary size.

As everything was in such good shape on Friday, it was decided to extend the exhibition over Saturday. It was indeed fortunate that the time set for the show was last week instead of this, as the order calling out the militia would have required the use of the armory and a very quick selection of another hall would have had to be made.

The smoker, in honor of the visitors, at the Adelphi hotel, Wednesday, March 20, was a great success. About 300 of the local brethren, together with some 75 guests, spent several happy hours. Chairman Grakelov was in his element as toastmaster and manager. After a good vaudeville programme speeches were made by Wm F. Gude, Wallace Pierson, A. Farenwald, S. S. Pennock and others. Martin Gannon was the pianist, while Chas. Marabella sang several songs. It was a great night. K.

Credit Man's Hard Lines.

When the credit man makes a mistake it is good-night. But when a plumber makes a mistake he charges twice for it; when the lawyer makes a mistake it's just what he wanted, because he has a chance to try the case again; when the carpenter makes a mistake it's just what he expected, because the chances are 10 to 1 he never learned his trade; when a doctor makes a mistake he buries it; when a judge makes a mistake it becomes the law of the land; when a preacher makes a mistake nobody knows the difference, and when an electrician makes a mistake he blames it on the induction, the meaning of which nobody knows. But the poor credit man has no excuse.—Pittsburgh Credit Bulletin.

Society of American Florists.

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETING.

The mid-Lent meeting of the board of directors of this society was held at the Hotel Biltmore, New York, Friday and Saturday, March 16-17. The following directors were present:

R. C. Kerr, Houston, Texas, president; A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y., vice-president; John Young, New York, secretary; J. J. Hess, Omaha, Nebraska, treasurer; Wm. R. Nicholson, Framingham, Mass.; Wm. J. Keimel, Elmhurst, Ill.; William F. Gude, Washington, D. C., Washington representative; Charles L. Baum, Knoxville, Tenn.; Frank N. Stuppy, St. Joseph, Mo.; George W. Hess, Washington, D. C.; George Asmus, Chicago; S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, Pa.; J. E. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.; George E. M. Stumpp, New York; A. Farenwald, Roslyn, Pa.; Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco, Calif.; Paul R. Klingsporn, Chicago, and Ex-President Patrick Welch, Boston, Mass., who was present on the invitation of President Kerr. William H. Amling, of Chicago, director through his office as president of the Chicago Florists' Club, through illness, was unable to be present and the club's credentials delegating Paul R. Klingsporn as a substitute director were, on motion, accepted. Credentials from the various affiliated bodies covering the directors appointed by them were presented and, on motion, accepted, and the directors duly seated. President Kerr announced that he had exercised the privilege of inviting the members of the National Flower Show Committee to sit at the meetings of the board.

Secretary Young reported that O. J. Olson, St. Paul, Minn., had agreed to act as chairman of the committee on Mothers' day. He also read a letter from E. J. Fancourt, a member of the committee, reporting an interview recently had with Miss Jarvis in Philadelphia, and that she had arranged to consider the matter of the best assistance the committee could render to advance the Mothers' day movement. Mr. Fancourt expressed the opinion that if a proper campaign was started, at least $5,000 could be raised for the work, and suggested that the society might be willing to advance the sum of $1,000 to start such a campaign, which could not be started without considerable opening expenses. Some discussion ensued, which very generally endorsed the idea of supporting Miss Jarvis in her work, and finally the board directed that an advance of $1,000 be made to the committee, or as much thereof as might be necessary.

The project of the establishment of a national credit and collection bureau was discussed at some length and, in order that the committee in charge of the project might have something definite upon which to work, on motion of J. J. Hess, the president was directed to appoint a committee of three to draft suggestions in the matter, to be endorsed by the board, if found acceptable. President Kerr appointed the following as such committee: S. S. Pennock, W. J. Keimel and G. E. M. Stumpp, with the latter as chairman.

There was no report from the committee on development of American products. The committee on school gardens reported progress.

The report of the committee on tariff and legislation being called for, was presented by James McHutchison of the committee, who was introduced by Mr. Gude, the chairman, in an address in which he appealed for prompt action by the board on the recommendations embodied in the report. The report was practically a "brief" on the proposed legislation to prohibit imports of plants, plant products and bulbs from all sources. The committee on the bill seeking this prohibition had, the report stated, agreed to defer legislative action pending a conference with the florists' and nurserymen's legislative committees, to be held probably next June or July. The details of the proposed legislation had, said the report, been published in the trade papers, consequently need not be further commented upon, but the committee requested from the board full power to represent the S. A. F. at the conference, and that power be extended to the committee to add to its body three members, and to share with the nurserymen the expense of employing a qualified man to assist in the protection of the interests of both bodies. A number of letters from interested growers and much printed matter was presented with the report.

The following resolutions were then offered by Mr. Gude:

Whereas, It has come to our notice that an effort is to be made to introduce legislation into Congress, seeking to prohibit at some future time the importation of plants, bulbs, plant products and nursery stock of all kinds from every source; and

Whereas, The executive committee of the Society of American Florists consider such measures not only unnecessary but injurious to the welfare of its members and of the whole horticultural trade of the United States; therefore Be it resolved, That the chairman of the legislative committee of the S. A. F. be empowered, and he is hereby empowered, to oppose the proposed legislation, to act according to his judgment in the interests of our organization at the forthcoming conference, to get what assistance he can from any of its members, and to share with the nurserymen's legislative committee the expense of employing a trained man to help protect our joint interests."

The resolutions were, after a hard discussion, adopted without change.

Secretary Young presented correspondence regarding movements in Ohio and Maine requiring the licensing of firemen employed in greenhouse establishments. Mr. Gude criticised such requirements as absolutely nonsensical and believed they should be opposed by the society. Maine was following the precedent set by Ohio, and a bill was before a committee of its legislature seeking the licensing of firemen in charge of low pressure heating plants. He offered the following resolution, which was passed:

Resolved, That the Society of American Florists absolutely oppose the legislation proposed in the state of Maine compelling the employment of a licensed fireman for the firing of greenhouse boilers carrying less than 10 pounds' pressure, as being injurious to the welfare of the horticultural trade; and that this society deprecates the laws already passed in Ohio or other states, as highly detrimental to the horticultural interests affected by them.

Mr. Gude also offered the following resolution:

Whereas, Several of the states of the United States have enacted statutes relative to the inspection of stock, which renders it practically impossible to send commercial shipments into such states; it is therefore

Resolved, That the Society of American Florists through its tariff and legislative committee use its power and influence to secure the enactment of uniform inspection laws throughout the United States.

This resolution was also carried.

The report of the committee on trade directory which, at the Houston convention, was referred to the board of directors for action, was taken up for discussion, and the board decided that the matter should be deferred until after some system had been established by the proposed bureau of national credits and collections.

Secretary Young presented his financial report for the year 1916. The report showed that $7,794.63 had been received during the year, and the accompanying report of the auditors, Edmonds & Bouton, Inc., New York, showed that this money had all been properly accounted for. It was seen that 293 new annual members had been secured and 41 life members. A financial statement for 1917, to March 10, showed receipts of $2,714.75; the addition of 59 new annual members and 32 life members. The secretary also presented the report of the auditors on the National Flower Show accounts, covering receipts, as shown by the secretary's books, amounting to $62,301.

President Kerr asked Mr. Young whether he had noticed any increase or decrease in the society's membership in the last two months. The secretary stated that the society had more members in good standing than it ever had, as could be seen by the records, which spoke very well for the conventions held in the west and south.

The secretary then made a report on the arrangements made for the convention to be held in New York next August. The main hall of the Grand Central Palace had been secured for the trade exhibition, at the low rental of $500, and the meeting hall for $100, a total of $600. As a comparison, he instanced the cost of similar accommodations at Minneapolis, which was $1,200. Orders for space in the trade exhibition already booked approximated $3,000, but the floor plans showed available space to the amount of $8,000, all of which space he believed would be disposed of. The floor plans had been sent out, and copies would be sent to anyone interested.

an "inside" garden, was discussed and the required authority ordered to be granted.

After votes of thanks to the botanist, pathologist and entomologist, adjournment was taken for the luncheon tendered by the New York Florists' Club.

The board reconvened at 2:00 p. m. Secretary Young was excused, so that he could attend to some pressing business at the flower show.

Appreciating the greatly increased duties of the secretary in connection with the work of the society, the board

Adjournment was here taken until Saturday morning at 9:30.

The meeting opened on Saturday morning promptly at 9:30. Thomas Roland, of the national flower show committee, was in attendance at this session.

Treasurer J. J. Hess presented his report covering the period July 15 to December 31, 1916; also the auditor's certification of audit.

The board authorized the treasurer to invest as much of the general and permanent funds, and all other funds he could consistently spare at this time in gilt-edge first mortgages on real estate; such investments to be made with the approval of the president and the secretary.

On motion, the bond of the treasurer was increased to $30,000, and that of the secretary to $10,000.

The appropriations of last year were continued, excepting that the appropriation for the stenographic report of the convention was left in the hands of the secretary. The appropriation for the tariff and legislative committee was already decided upon.

A prolonged discussion took place as to the advisability of so amending the by-laws that the secretary be elected by the board of directors instead of by the convention as at present. Pros and cons were very carefully considered, and there appeared to be much unanimity of opinion. Finally, the following resolution was passed by a unanimous vote:

Whereas, This board of directors is held responsible for the government of the affairs of the society, and

Whereas, The constitution and by-laws have been amended that all directors be elected to office by the members at large instead of appointment by the president, therefore

Be it resolved, That Section 2 of the constitution and by-laws be amended so that the secretary be elected by the board of directors for a term of one year at the mid-Lent meeting of the board.

The term "mileage" employed in the constitution and by-laws was discussed in order that a proper construction should be placed on it by the board. After the views of each member had been taken, it was, on motion, decided that the definition of "mileage" should be the nearest distance between the place where a director lived and where a meeting was to be held, and that the compensation or rate be seven cents per mile one way.

ERNEST B. DANE'S PRIZE GROUP OF ORCHIDS AT THE BOSTON SPRING SHOW.

Through the kind offices of the New York Botanical Society, the Convention Garden had been laid out in the Botanical Garden, Bronx park. Blueprints of the planting space had been prepared, and would be distributed within a few days. He predicted a great success for the garden. Already about 20 applications for planting space had been received. The members of the board, later, inspected the convention quarters.

At this point a motion was carried unanimously thanking Secretary Young for his efficient conduct of the secretary's office during the past year.

A petition from the St. Louis Florists' Club asking that the board of directors change the convention date for 1918 to the period in spring when the National Flower Show would be held, was considered, and the change, by motion, approved, in accordance with power conferred under the amended by-laws. Mr. Gude stated that he had obtained the opinion of counsel in Washington on the legality of this procedure, and it was confirmed.

It was, on motion, decided to recommend to the incoming president the reappointment of the entomologist for the next ensuing year, in order that he may complete the special work enumerated in his report to the Houston convention.

On motion, Dr. Britton, on whom the superintendence of the Convention Garden devolved, was authorized to draw upon the society for money required for the prosecution of the work on the garden, as needed, to the extent of $1,000; the same to be deducted from the income from space.

A letter from Theodore Wirth, chairman of the convention garden committee, asking that, in the event of National Flower Show dates being adopted for the St. Louis convention, he be authorized to arrange, if possible, for ordered an increase in his salary amounting to $500. The question of a stipend to be paid the chairman of the National Flower Show Committee for his services in connection with the Fourth National Flower Show, Philadelphia, referred to the board at the Houston convention, it was directed that the same be $1,000. It was also resolved that such officer hereafter be granted 10 per cent of the net proceeds of a National Flower Show and that members of the committee be allowed $5 per day as subsistence from the time they leave home until they return, when on national flower show business.

DOLANSKY'S FIRST PRIZE ORCHID GROUP AT THE BOSTON SPRING SHOW

After consideration of the matter of procuring essays for reading at the next convention, it was decided that the convention programme be left in the hands of the vice-president and secretary.

An appropriation of $1,000 was made to the Florists' Telegraph Delivery for publicity purposes.

The balance of the session was devoted to a discussion of the working conditions of the national flower show committee, the individual efforts of its members, the absence of a proper appreciation of the time expended on

After further discussion of a few matters informally, the board adjourned sine die. The members of the board in the evening were again the guests of the New York Florists' Club, at the club's banquet at the Hotel Biltmore.

Boston Florists' Visit to W. W. Edgar Co.

Quite a good contingent of the Boston Florists' and Gardeners' Club paid their annual visit to the greenhouses of the Wm. W. Edgar Co., at Waveruted the success of the Boston show to the work of all; the trade was a necessity on account of their practical ideas. Three-fourths of the present show was commercial.

W. N. Craig praised the general excellence of the Easter stock and spoke of the pleasure it gave the members to come in a body to see it. Mr. Kennedy said that if the members worked together in the future as this year, no city in the United States could beat Boston in the excellence of its flower shows. W. J. Stewart said that the press, like all other agencies in the business, could not stand still and were keeping well up, and in fact forging ahead. Nothing that stood still could progress; the society was taking on new life and he felt sure would keep up the good work. Robert Cameron thought that artistic arrangement should count for a higher number of points in the judging scale than was usually given. Superintendent Borsch said he hoped the visit had been beneficial to the members, whom he was always glad to see, and hoped they would take home pleasant recollections of their visit.

Peter Fisher, Fred Lautenschlager and others also made short addresses.

BUSINESS SLOW, WITH STOCK PLENTIFUL.

Business during the past week has been quiet, with the exception of funeral work, which, however, was not enough to clean up the crowded conditions of the market. Sweet peas and bulbous stock particularly are being received in large quantities and move only at clean-up prices. Roses hold up fairly well, with the quality very good. Violets are coming in soft and, if the warm weather continues, will have very little market value for Easter. Callas and Easter lilies are coming in pretty heavily, but seem to clean up well. Quite a few snapdragons are seen, of exceptional quality, and are bringing very good prices. Greens of all kinds clean up well, with fancy ferns becoming poorer as the season advances.

the project by them, and the sacrifices of personal interests incurred during the progress of such work. The discussion was led by Mr. Asmus, who made a lengthy address dealing with the subject in various details. The board then adjourned for luncheon, the guests of the New York Florists' Club, to meet again at 3:00 p. m.

President Kerr called the afternoon meeting to order promptly. The report of the sub-committee on national credits and collections bureau was called for, but the committee could only report progress. The work to be done in starting the bureau was, however, discussed at some length, and the matter of the election of a chairman of the standing committee was settled by the appointment by President Kerr of Patrick Welch, of Boston, to be the chairman.

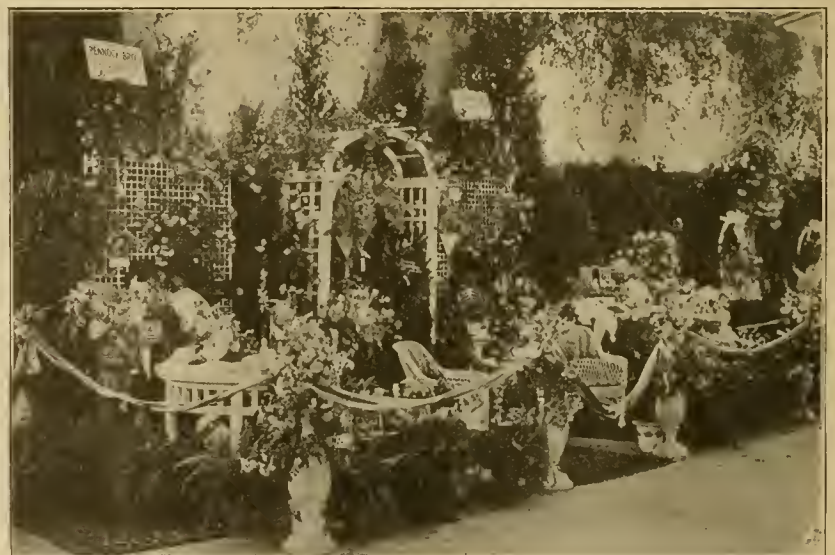

The board, at the request of Chairman Asmus, of the national flower show committee, authorized payment of mileage of representatives of the urban and carnation societies when called to meetings of the committee.

The committee on final resolutions, George W. Hess, chairman, William R. Nicholson and Daniel MacRorie, then presented the following resolution, which was adopted by a rising and unanimous vote:

Whereas, At the Mid-Lent session of the executive board of the S. A. F., the visiting members and others in attendance have enjoyed the greatest courtesy and hospitality at the hands of the New York Florists' Club; therefore

Be it resolved, That we tender to our hosts our most heartfelt thanks for all the attention paid to us. We also thank the management of the flower show for courtesies extended. We further desire to heartily thank Vice-President Miller for his kind invitation to visit the Long Island florists on Sunday.

Fifteen thousand pots of lilies looked timed to the day; nothing could be better leaved or budded. Easter Greeting pelargoniums were a feature. After an inspection of the houses and stock, all gathered in the large shed where after a generous luncheon Mrs. Edgar welcomed the members and hoped these annual visits would be continued as it gave her so much pleasure to see them. GOOD SUPPLY AND SATISFACTORY SALES.

The past week's business has been very satisfactory; stock of all kinds was in good supply, and the demand all that could be asked for, with several good-sized funerals on Saturday and Sunday to help dispose of the surplus. Street fakirs, too, had considerable stock to sell, the unusual accumulation and left-overs throughout the week. Some of the following were leaders and favorites: Snapdragons, all colors; long American Beauties, pink stocks, Easter lilies, lily of the valley, orchids, sweet peas and violets. Bulbous stock remains plentiful. Carnations, roses, etc., are in big supply. Asparagus arrives only in limited quantity. Adiantum is plentiful.

Walter Rokusek, formerly with the J. M. Gasser Co.'s wholesale store, is now one of the sales force of the Cleveland Florists Exchange. Van Fisk, of the Gasser Co.'s retail store, is now with the Schoen Floral Co., 1268 Euclid avenue.

The Schoen Floral Co. will hold its formal opening Thursday, March 29. C. F. B.

BUSINESS VERY SATISFACTORY.

The flower trade has been very good this year in all branches, the stores having all the business they can possibly attend to. Bulbous stock and azaleas are the chief objects of attraction, and it might be added that the quality of the hyacinths coming in is far superior to the general run seen in previous years. Spring is very backward this year, and all gardening operations are held up in consequence. Florists report much landscape work on hand, but the work is held up by winds and cold weather.

NOTES.

This city was visited by a severe hailstorm March 21 and much greenhouse glass was broken, among the principal sufferers being the Stiles Co., who lost about 10,000 feet. This was fully covered by insurance, however.

Clyde Batten, of the Stiles Co.'s staff, has been doing jury duty this week. He thinks there should be a law passed to exempt florists from such service. S. S. B.

PLENTIFUL EASTER SUPPLY IN SIGHT.

Although typical changeable March weather prevails at this writing, still the supply for Easter promises to be heavy. Many large orders have been booked and more are coming in from day to day. Easter lilies and callas are each in a good supply although some of the local growers of lilies will scarcely get their crop in in time for the holiday. Carnations have become more plentiful than they were. Roses are in a fair supply. Sweet peas are plentiful and most of them are of high quality. Excellent tulips, jonquils, daffodils and hyacinths may be had. Some good snapdragons are coming into the market. Other offerings include lily of the valley and single violets. Green goods are plentiful.

New York Federation of Societies.

A meeting of the New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs was held at 101 Park avenue, New York, Monday, March 19, at four o'clock. President F. R. Pierson presided at this meeting. The following clubs were represented by delegates: New York Florists' Club, New York Horticultural Society, New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association, Albany Horticultural Society, Rochester Florists' Club, Buffalo Florists' Club, Tarrytown Horticultural Society, Syracuse Florists' Association. A report of the last meeting was read and approved. President F. R. Pierson reported regarding a joint meeting of delegates from the federation and from the New York Vegetable Growers' Association, which was held in Albany, February 22. This joint committee had a conference with the lieutenant-governor, the chairman of the finance committee and the chairman of the ways and means committee regarding an appropriation for a horticultural building at the New York state fair grounds. President Pierson reported that the governor was keenly interested in the building and that the committee was anxious to do everything possible to obtain it, but changing the race track and the necessity for new buildings for horses and swine, together with the financial situation in the state this year, seemed to make it impossible that an appropriation be made for the whole amount. It was hoped that a sufficient appropriation at least might be made to have the plans drawn and the construction on part of the building begun. The committee discussed plans with the state architect and these plans provided for a building large enough to accommodate the exhibits of fruits, vegetables, flowers and farm crops.

President Pierson also reported that his committee had decided that because of the financial situation in the state this year, the money for the investigational range of greenhouses at Cornell University should not be asked for.

Charles Vick, of Rochester, Anton Schultheis, of College Point, and Fred Danker, of Albany, were appointed on a committee to confer with the commissioner of agriculture and the superintendent of the flower exhibit at the New York state fair regarding the adjustment of a more satisfactory premium list for flowers and plants.

The Late Lawrence Cotter.

Lawrence Cotter, of Jamestown, N. Y., died at his home in that city, March 24, after a prolonged illness. The passing of this accomplished plantsman leaves a vacancy which will be hard to fill, as he possessed a large store of practical knowledge of the business which was ever free to those who sought it. His sterling character, keen wit and genial companionship made him a host of friends, by whom he was greatly beloved. For upwards of 30 years he held a prominent place among the commercial growers of the east and most of the originators of novelties in his line felt safe only when their products had secured the approval of his well trained eye and unflinching judgment. He was very successful as a rose grower and among the first to grow Crimson Rambler and other rose plants in fine form for spring business.

Mr. Cotter was a native of Ireland and served at Besborough and other famous gardens in that country. Coming to the United States while still a young man, he located in the vicinity of Boston, Mass., being for a number of years with T. W. Dee, at Mt. Auburn and later had charge of Wm. E. Doyle's Cambridge greenhouses. He then made the Whitten establishment at Dorchester famous for its roses and high grade plant stock and during his later years was manager of the Lakeview Rose Gardens at Jamestown, where he is succeeded by his son Charles. Another son, William Cotter, is the well known manager of the Montreal Florists' Exchange, in Canada.

Protest Against Plant Imports Legislation.

Information regarding legislation relating to proposed prohibition of imports of plants, plant products and bulbs from all sources.

At the regular meeting of the New York Florists' Club March 12 the following resolution was adopted unanimously:

That the New York Florists' Club protests against the proposed legislation which seeks to stop imports of plants, plant products and bulbs, as being injurious to business, without giving any benefit to the public welfare, and that it looks to the legislative committee of the S. A. F. to oppose it.

That the secretary be instructed to send a copy of this resolution to the executive committee of the S. A. F. prior to their meeting on March 16, asking them to give full power to the legislative committee.

On March 12 at their regular meeting the New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association adopted practically the same resolution as the above.

At the special meeting of the legislative committee of the S. A. F., held at the Hotel Biltmore March 15, the subject was discussed from all angles. A few representative growers, such as Julius Roehrs, J. D. Eisele, Wallace R. Pierson, A. L. Miller, Adolph Gude and others, were invited and a course of action was decided upon, one of the members being delegated to present the matter to the executive committee of the S. A. F.

On March 16 the executive committee of the S. A. F. adopted unanimously the following resolution:

Whereas, It has come to our notice that an effort is to be made to introduce legislation into congress seeking to prohibit at some future time the importation of plants, bulbs, plant products and nursery stock of all kinds from every source, and

Whereas, The executive committee of the S. A. F. considers such measures not only unnecessary, but injurious to the welfare of its members and to the whole horticultural trade of the United States; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the chairman of the legislative committee of the S. A. F. be empowered and is hereby empowered to oppose the proposed legislation, to act according to his judgment in the interests of our organization at the forthcoming conference, to get what assistance he can from any of its members, and to share with the nurserymen's legislative committee the expense of employing a trained man to help protect our joint interests.

The legislative committee of the S. A. F. is now empowered and prepared to meet the committee in charge of the proposed measure at a conference which will probably be called late in June.

New Albany Cyclone.

A terrific cyclone, which visited New Albany, Ind., about three o'clock on the afternoon of March 23, resulting in great loss of life and much property damage, wrecked the establishments of many of the growers of that city and vicinity.

Anders Rasmussen, the leading grower in the locality, had three-fourths of his range completely demolished and chimneys blown down, so that the houses that survived the storm could not be heated. Over 200,000 feet of glass were broken. The total loss at this establishment is estimated to be nearly $100,000.

At the range of the F. Walker Co., the property damage was comparatively small, but Earl C. Walker and his wife were both severely hurt, the two-story house in which they resided being completely wrecked and blown away, even the piano being carried off by the gale.

F. H. Hustedt was in his greenhouses at the time of the storm and while the range was not injured, the heavy wind blew the rain through the laps of the glass with sufficient force to break off carnation buds.

The following ranges were totally wrecked: D. L. Swift, 10,000 feet of glass; A. F. Aebersold, 8,000 feet; Louis Gueltieg, 5,000 feet; Frank Pont- rich and John Laden, 2,000 feet each.

Thrift Gardens.

The National Clean-Up and Paint-Up Campaign Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., has added "Thrift Gardens" to its activities to enable its seven thousand communities to fight "H. C. L."—high cost of living. The February bulletin of the Missouri Botanical gardens, or Shaw's Gardens, as they are more widely known, gives cultural directions, best vegetables, amount and variety of seeds required for these "thrift" or home-yard gardens. A space 25x50 or its equivalent in square feet, that gets the sun, is sufficient ground to raise vegetables for a family of six, cash value of products ranging from $50 to $100, depending on the intensive culture.

Gladiolus Bulletins.

Two bulletins just issued by the Cornell University Experiment Station at Ithaca, N. Y., contain much information of interest to gladiolus growers. One of the bulletins by Alvin C. Beal is entitled, "Botany, History and Evolution of the Gladiolus" and the other, "Culture and Hybridization of the Gladiolus," is by Alfred C. Hottes. We hope to refer to these bulletins again at greater length, but we may say in passing that a hurried perusal conveys the idea that much of the very important work of the late E. V. Hallock in the crossing and selection of the gladiolus has been overlooked.

Pittsburgh Flower Show.

The preliminary schedule of the Pittsburgh flower show, which will be held under the auspices of the Garden Club of Allegheny county, in Motor Square Garden, Baum boulevard, June 13-16, has been issued. Arthur Herrington of Madison, N. J., who has successfully managed a number of large exhibitions, including the recent New York spring show, will be in charge of the Pittsburgh show and has already prepared the plans. Premium lists may be had upon application to Miss Priscilla Guthrie, 537 William Penn place, Pittsburgh.

American Rose Annual.

The annual of the American Rose Society for 1917, edited by J. Horace McFarland, is an attractive volume of 159 pages, handsomely illustrated, with interesting and valuable information for rosarians, amateur as well as commercial. Lovers of the rose who have not received a copy should do so before the supply is exhausted, by sending $1 for associate membership to Prof. E. A. White, Ithaca, N. Y.

BIG EASTER TRADE ANTICIPATED.

With stock of all kinds coming on in splendid shape, the trade is looking forward to a great Easter business. Should anything be needed in addition to the sentiment of the day to stimulate buying, it will be found in the unusual fine quality. One of the old-time growing firms, which has over 4,000 pot lilies, states that never before in its experience has this flower been so beautiful. Former prices of 25 cents a bloom will prevail. In every variety of pot plants quality is exceptionally high. If anything, the weather has been too favorable, and the retarding process is being used. The more fashionable shops have laid in big stocks of baskets, which include new designs of rare attractiveness. Business has improved somewhat during the past week. Bulbous stock is the mainstay. A threatened glut has caused florists to push sales, even at a sacrifice of price. Some few losses of stock have occurred. That aristocrat of pot plants, the hydrangea, is making its first appearance, and seems as near perfection as could be desired. Prices are from $2 to $3. In cut flowers, the several fancy varieties of sweet peas, notably the orchid flowering, are the easy favorite, selling for 50 cents a bunch. With their luxuriance and wide range of colors, they form the most conspicuous feature of florists' displays. Carnations at 75 cents a dozen, and roses at $1.50 a dozen and upward, are somewhat in excess of demand. Church decorations, incident to confirmation services, have helped to liven up business.

CLUB MEETING.

Another enthusiastic meeting of the Columbus Florists' Association was held at the Neil house, the evening of March 26. The chief feature was an address by Walter Engle, greenhouse manager of the Munk Floral Company, giving an account of what he saw at the big ranges in Chicago and Milwaukee during a trip of several weeks from which he had just returned. His description of the magnitude and characteristics of floriculture in those markets awoke large interest, and brought out questions and discussions. Another star card, but one not down on the bills, was an address from Mr. Klyn, of the well-known firm of Westerbik & Klyn, Holland, who happened to be in Columbus on a business errand, and who was brought to the meeting by one of the members. He went into the intricacies of bulb-growing both from the cultural and commercial standpoints, and answered many questions put to him by his audience. It was the belief of the speaker that owing to uncertainty of vessel service, a number of varieties would be out of the market in this country next season. As the next regular meeting night falls on the day after Easter, it was decided to postpone it.

NOTES.

James McKeller, for a number of years manager of the retail department of the Fifth Avenue Floral Company, will start in business under his own name. He takes over the room at 44 North High street, to be vacated by the company mentioned April 1, the latter company combining its retail activities at the new quarters, 120 East Broad street, recently opened. Mr. McKeller will dispose of his interest in the Fifth Avenue Floral Company, and there will be no connection

Canna YELLOW KING HUMBERT

(Emund's Queen Helen)

The Best Canna Novelty

This sport of King Humbert has the same habit of growth in the plants but with very dark green foliage and flower stalks excelling those of the King Humbert. The flowers are rich deep yellow, well spotted with red. Some plants occasionally give a scarlet or a scarlet striped flower which is an effective and striking variation. In a bed or border the mass of trusses excel those of any other variety we know of.

We give below the opinion of Canna experts on this novelty:

W. W. COLES says: "This variety at a distance of one half mile looked up above everything else, and it was at first difficult to believe that a Canna could make such a beautiful showing at that distance. When this variety becomes known, I feel sure it will fill a place among the Yellow Cannas fully as important as King Humbert has among the reds."

STORRS & HARRISON say: "This is a wonderful new 'sport' from King Humbert, bearing the same graceful heart-shaped leaves, but richly all green instead of bronze; the same regal type and immense size of flower, but a brilliant Yellow instead of red, and produced much more abundantly. We predict for it a career fully equal to its red-flowered, dark-leaved parent."

GOOD & REESE say: "Immense flowers that are as large as the Orchid-flowering Cannas. Color golden-yellow evenly and distinctly spotted red. This Canna ranks right up with King Humbert. We have no hesitancy in saying there is no better Canna grown."

Price $20.00 per 100; $3.00 per doz.

Sensational New American Bedding Rose "Los Angeles"

(Howard & Smith, 1917)

It is a great pleasure to be able to offer such a meritorious new Rose, particularly so, one of American origin, and we believe that this splendid variety is only the fore-runner of other equally good sorts "Made in America".

We have not only seen the originators' great field of it in California, but have also had the opportunity of watching the behavior of a dozen plants in our own trial beds the past Summer, under what has been one of the most trying seasons we have ever experienced and it has given a most satisfactory account of itself in strong, vigorous growth and in freedom of bloom, in which it was not equalled by any other variety in its first season after planting.

Following is the originators' description:

"Los Angeles is, by all odds, one of the finest Roses ever introduced. The growth is very vigorous and produces a continuous succession of long stemmed flowers of a luminous flame pink toned with coral and shaded with translucent gold at the base of the petals. In richness of fragrance it equals in intensity the finest Marechal Neil. The buds are long and pointed and expand into a flower of mammoth proportions, while the beauty of form and ever increasing wealth of color is maintained from the incipient bud until the last petal drops."

Unlike many of the new imported Roses, the plants are extra heavy two year old stock, which should give a full crop of flowers this season. Price, heavy two year budded plants, $1.50 each.

NEW HYBRID-TEA ROSE, LOS ANGELES.

We make a specialty of two-year-old Roses, budded plants and such that will please your customers for spring planting. Our stock has all been potted up during the winter months, stored cool, and will be in prime condition for April and May Planting. Our list contains not only all the select standard sorts, but many new sorts offered by us exclusively in the United States. For complete list of varieties see our current Wholesale List, January to June issue, which will be mailed upon request, only to persons engaged in horticulture commercially.

STOCK OF ALL KINDS IS PLENTIFUL.
Stock of all kinds is plentiful at this writing, which is due partly to the warmer weather and the general lull in trade. American Beauty roses are reaching the market in larger supply but continue to clean up nicely each day at good prices. Mrs. Chas. Russell, Killarney, White Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, Ophelia, Sunburst, My Maryland, Richmond, Rhea Reid, Milady, Hoosier Beauty, Hadley and all the other varieties grown for this market are arriving in larger quantities and are being sold at very reasonable figures. Carnations are more numerous and are obtainable at bargain prices. Bulbous stock is in exceptionally large supply and is hard to move at anywhere near reasonable figures, and from the looks of the many offerings, much of this stock intended for Easter was pushed along by the warmer weather and consequently has affected prices on roses and carnations. Lily of the valley is more plentiful this week than it has been for some time and while prices are holding quite firm they have had a tendency to drop the past few days. Lilies are reaching the market in large numbers and the same holds true for callas of which some very choice blooms are being offered. Orchids do not appear to be in too heavy supply and the same may be said of gardenias. Snapdragons are quite a factor in the market now and the quality of some of the stock that is being offered is all that could be desired. Sweet peas are plentiful like everything else, and have suffered in price along with all the other offerings. Lupines, anemones, Spanish iris, violets, calendulas, stocks, daisies, pansies, feverfew, forget-me-nots, strawflowers, mignonette, gladioli, pussy willows and other miscellaneous seasonable stock, give the buyer a large variety to select from. The retailers are taking advantage of the situation and are making unusually large displays owing to the reasonable prices on stock. Easter plants are in good demand and everything points to an early cleanup in this line. Greens are good property and continue to clean up at good prices right along. From present indications cut flowers will be in large supply for Easter if the weather is at all favorable and while the offerings will be unusually heavy this year it would not be at all surprising if the market cleaned up completely in most lines before the rush is over.

NOTES.

D. E. Freres and R. J. Windler will open a new wholesale commission house Monday, April 2, in room 218, Atlas block, 30 East Randolph street, under the firm name of The Freres-Windler Co. Both are experienced in the wholesale business and are well known to the trade. D. E. Freres has been engaged in the wholesale commission business in the great central market for the past nine years, operating under his name in the quarters that the Freres-Windler Co. will occupy. R. J. Windler is conducting the Adam Zender greenhouses in Rogers Park, consisting of 100,000 square feet of glass devoted principally to the growing of roses, the output of which will hereafter be handled exclusively by his firm. The new company will also sell the output of the growers that D. E. Freres is now handling and will open for business with a complete line of stock.

Paul Klingsporn, manager of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, who attended the New York and Philadelphia flower shows, speaks in glowing terms of both of the exhibitions and reports having had a most delightful time. Mr. Klingsporn believes that the eastern growers have it over the western growers when it comes to producing exhibition stock, but that the west has a shade the better of it so far as commercial stock is concerned.

Louis Duris, formerly with the Central Floral Co., Detroit, Mich., is now manager of the Central Floral Co., 132 North State Street. Peter Papes will manage the Detroit store and Peter Duris, who has been in charge of the local establishment up to the sponsibility and permit him to spend more time in the wholesale market.

The Rapid Rapper Co. will be better equipped to handle local business after April 2 when the new manager assumes charge. This firm has just received 10,000 pedestals from its factory but the demand for Rapid Wrappers has been so heavy the last few weeks that over half of them have already been sold.

Peter Reinberg is in good crop with Mrs. Chas. Russell roses and the outlook is that he will have a large supply of this variety to offer at Easter in addition to all the other varieties grown at the Reinberg establishment.

Mrs. H. C. Blewitt, wife of the well-known sweet pea specialist, of Des Plaines, died last week. She was well known personally in this vicinity and the many floral tributes from the trade that were seen at the funeral last Sunday, March 25, shows the high esteem in which the Blewitt family is held. Their many friends in the trade extend their sympathy to the bereaved family in the loss of a loving wife and mother.

C. L. Washburn says that roses are selling splendidly compared to carnations and bulbous stock at Bassett & Washburn's store, but at that, prices are not as high as they should be. The supply of American Beauty roses is steadily increasing at this establishment and large cuts are in sight for Easter. George Manos, the Union Depot Florist, and wife, who recently returned from an extended visit in Florida, believe more in the future possibilities of this city than they do of the southern state for they are negotiating for the purchase of a large west side business block.

Allie Zech visited several of Zech & Mann's many growers this week, bringing back the report that stock in general will be plentiful with them at Easter.

George Wienhoeber had a pretty window display of spring flowers this week in which Rainbow freesias, tulips and snapdragons played an important part.

Chas. Erne, of Erne & Company, saw a robin Sunday, March 25, which he is confident was the first one to arrive from the warmer clime.

Mrs. Williams is again attending to her duties at the Atlas Floral Co.'s store, after being on the sick list for over a week.

Percy Jones is showing a large quantity of strawflowers in addition to a complete line of all seasonable stock.

Robt. Newcomb, of the American Bulb Co., left last week for Kansas City and St. Louis.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. has had a large number of visitors at its greenhouses this week inspecting the stock of Easter plants which is the largest and finest in years. The demand so far has been surprisingly good and an early cleanup is bound to be the result before the big day arrives. T. E. Waters of the supply department is suffering from a severe cold.

A. F. Kohr, the veteran pot manufacturer of 2934-38 North Leavitt street, desirous of retiring in his declining years, is offering his excellent business for sale. This should be a good opportunity for the right man as the demand for good flower pots is constantly increasing.

Henry Wieter, who spends most of his time at the Wieter Bros. large range of greenhouses was a visitor at their wholesale establishment this week. Wieter Bros are cutting a fine supply of roses and carnations which will be in heavy crop with them at Easter.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are cutting heavily in lilies and will be in full crop at Easter. Mr. Pyfer says that pot lilies have sold unusually well this year and that Pyfer & Olsem, of Wilmette, are not worrying about selling what few remain unsold.

Arthur Leidiger, of the Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., Milwaukee, Wis., was a visitor March 22. He reports business as very good for the past season and is very optimistic in regard to the Easter trade.

The Cleveland Florists' Exchange, 660 Huron Rd., CLEVELAND, OHIO.

Erne & Company will have a large quantity of cut lilies to offer for Easter in the short and medium grades, but the present indications are that the longer stemmed stock will be scarce.

Louis Wittbold says that the George Wittbold Co. is having an unusually heavy demand for Easter stock. Hyacinths and daffodils particularly have had a splendid call this season.

J. A. Budlong is in good crop with lily of the valley and unless there is an extra heavy Easter demand this year they will have plenty to supply all their customers with.

Wiltgen & Freres are now handling the output of 10 growers, which is doing remarkably well considering the short time they have been in business.

O. P. Bassett, senior member of the firm of Bassett & Washburn, will celebrate his eighty-second birthday anniversary April 2 at Pasadena, Calif.

H. B. Kennicott and wife returned home Sunday, March 25, from a most pleasant visit at Clearwater, Fla.

FUNERAL WORK BULK OF TRADE.

Funeral work has constituted the bulk of the florist's demand, and there have been a few notably large weddings. The supply of stock is exceptionally large owing to the warm weather.

NOTES.

W. J. & M. S. Vessey had the decorations and bouquets for an elaborate wedding last week, in which large numbers of Easter lilies, Shawyer roses and spring bulbous flowers were used in the decoration of both the church and the house.

Beauties==Gardenias==Roses

Are items that we can recommend to you for your Easter business.

Let us quote you prices on your requirements.

THE LEO NIESSEN CO., 1201-5 Race St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Philadelphia.

BUSINESS IMPROVEMENT CONTINUES.

Business during the past week was a continuation of the increased demand noted the week before. Roses are in crops that are being shaped for Easter, but there is sufficient for the present demand; the quality is excellent, American Beauty being particularly fine. Carnations are in good supply and sell well. Cattleyas are shortening up as is lily of the valley. Sweet peas are a great factor; they are superb in quality, and considering the quantity received daily, are selling very well. Daffodils and all bulbous stock are in over supply, prices ruling low. Calla and Easter lilies are very plentiful. Asparagus, is the only scarce item. More of this should be planted for next season.

NOTES.

Godfrey Aschmann's large stock of Easter plants looks timed to the minute. Hydrangeas are seen in large quantities, very well flowered. Easter lilies also stand out in perfection. Azaleas are as always a feature here and quantities of well-budded stock are seen. Spiræas, with their feathery spikes and cinerarias of a splendid strain, together with a large stock of Dutch bulbs, round out an Easter stock that is up-to-date in every item.

All the retailers who took part in the exhibits at the rose festival are much satisfied with their reception by the public. Pennock Brothers feel that the interest as shown by the constant crowds in front of their exhibit cannot fail but attract people to their store.

The Robert Craig Co.'s Easter lilies have hit it to the day—a splendid lot. Hydrangeas and rambler roses are also in fine form. September Morn, the new light pink sport of Prima Donna, is handled daily by E. Bernheimer, who says it is one of his best sellers.

Alfred Campbell, the uncrowned king of the daffodil, ran off 40,000 Emperor on last Friday and Saturday. This is about a record for this city. The price averaged $15 per thousand.

The Leo Niessen Co. is grooming a great crop of American Beauty roses for Easter. The quality of the advance flowers is fine. Superb sweet peas are a feature here.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. are greatly rushed with their Easter orders. Lustre ribbon and crepe papers are in great demand as are Easter plant baskets.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange is fortunate in its asparagus supply, of which scarce article they carry quite a stock.

Wonderful sweet peas are leaders with Edward Reid. Sunburst and Shawyer roses are in good supply here. J. Jensen, of Lancaster avenue, has joined the florists' auto club and sports a nifty looking Ford delivery car.

Berger Bros. are handling quantities of spring bulbs. Calla and Easter lilies are features.

Don't Wait

Now is the time to send us a shipment of flowers and acquaint yourself with the satisfactory treatment you receive when you ship to New York's Foremost Commission House in the flower trade.

Extensive experience, ample capital, modern facilities and, in fact, everything to commend us to you.

Special opportunity for a couple of Good Rose Growers who are looking for best returns. Our present demand is larger than our supply.

UNITED CUT FLOWER CO., Inc., 111 W. 28th St., New York City

New York.

GOOD SUPPLY, BUT DEMAND WEAK.

Business continues quiet, and the dealers have concluded that the people are saving their money for Easter. The market is well supplied with all kinds of stock, and though the best brings fair prices, for the season, there is always a remnant that is hard to dispose of, very noticeable in yellow narcissus and violets. Good roses cannot be said to be very cheap, nor are they likely to be for some time to come. Easter is the greatest holiday in the florist business, if it is permissible to call it a holiday, rather than a religious festival. There is a class of people who scoff at old customs and try to introduce new ones, but the disposition of the masses to observe Christmas and Easter seems to be deeply rooted and to grow stronger as the years go by. We therefore cheerfully look forward to a great Easter trade in plants and cut flowers. In the retail stores many fine plants, particularly pot roses, are already seen. The supply of good azaleas is likely to be limited, but we believe the plantsmen have generally foreseen such a contingency and prepared for it with an increased supply of other stock.

March 26.—There was considerable activity in the market for a few hours this morning, but it could not be called a cleanup. The weather is spring-like and an increased supply of stock may be expected for this week. As will be seen by our quotations, there is but little change in prices.

NOTES.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held in its rooms in the Grand Opera House building, Eighth avenue and 23d street, on the night of April 9. It is expected that a statement will be made relating to the recent flower show and that other matters of importance will be discussed.

Mrs. Rae L. Friedman, who for a number of years has conducted a retail store at 292 Grand street, died March 22, aged 34 years. She was born in this city, her father being the late A. Lehmann, a florist for many years in business at the above address.

In the rooms of the New York Cut Flower Co. Joseph A. Millang is handling fine roses, such as took prizes at the show, from the range of the F. R. Pierson Co., and also prize winning carnations from the Cottage Gardens Co.

At the Dards store, Madison avenue and 44th street, there is a particularly fine window display in fancy flower bowls and baskets filled with choice stock. Business continues good at this store.

Fine orchids, gardenias and roses are now seen daily at the store of Thomas Young, Jr., 57 West 28th street, which have been grown at his Beechwood Heights Nurseries, Bound Brook, N. J.

At the wholesale store of William P. Ford, 107 West 28th street, we have recently noticed fine stock in Hadley and other roses, carnations, sweet peas and a great variety of other fine stock.

J. Changuris now conducts both the Central Park Flower Market, 980 Sixth avenue, and the store of the Orchid Florist Co., 106 West 57th street.

CHAS. SCHWAKE & CO., Inc., 90-92 West Broadway, New York.

Herman Warendorff, whose main store is in the Ansonia hotel, Broadway and 73d street, has opened his fifth retail store, March 24, at 2351 Broadway, near 86th street.

The Cathedral Florists, Broadway and 110th street, who have been very successful with two retail stores, have taken another store and stocked it with fine confectionery.

Exceptionally fine stocks of the best varieties of roses continue to arrive at Traendly & Schenck's, 436 Sixth avenue, from the range of Robert Simpson, Clifton, N. J.

A bronze flower bowl worth $100 was stolen from A. T. Bunyard, an exhibitor at the flower show, on the last day of the show.

N. Christatos, Sixth avenue and 58th street, is showing fine stock in pot plants, particularly roses and rhododendrons.

At the store of the Grand Street Florist, 237 Grand street, we have recently noticed fine features in design work.

Goldstein & Futterman, 102 West 28th street, are receiving exceptionally fine stock of Spanish iris.

J. J. Coan, 115 West 28th street, has a fine stock of azaleas and other plants for Easter.

Harry Goldfarb, formerly with N. Christatos, is now with the Orchid Florist Co.

Clarence Slinn, 112 West 28th street, will be headquarters for Easter violets. A. F. F.

SPLENDID ST. PATRICK'S DAY TRADE.
St. Patrick's day business was probably better than ever this year. Not only were more shamrocks sold at higher prices than usual but there was a brisk trade in cut flowers and plants. Green carnations and Poeticus narcissus, highly colored and unattractive looking, were in big demand. Green ribbon and green pot covers were largely used and it is safe to say that few shamrocks in 5-inch pots were disposed of that did not have either a green ribbon or bow attached. Everyone now looks forward to a great Easter trade and the growers seem well prepared despite the severe winter and shortage of coal which will cause high prices in some lines. Lilies are remarkably healthy and hydrangeas, primulas, lilacs, thorns, cinerarias and bulbous stock are all looking first class.

NOTES.

Signs of spring are in the air—but there is from three to four feet of snow on the ground.

McKenna, Ltd., have a fine lot of Easter lilies ready. Single stems with 14 buds and blooms were seen; also the best spræa seen here.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.
Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., President;
P. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., First
Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fifth annual convention, Detroit, Mich.,
June 19, 1917.

VISITED NEW YORK: A. J. Brown, of the A. J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich., and wife.

THE Department of Agriculture, at Washington, D. C., is preparing a card catalogue of seedsmen.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, March 28, were as follows: Timothy, $4.25 to $5.75 per 100 pounds.

ARNOLD RINGIER, secretary of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, has severed his connection with this firm, after 27 years of service.

EMIL FARDEL'S strain of colored freesias, said to be superior to any other, is being offered to the trade by the Knight & Struck Co., New York.

VISITED CHICAGO: H. A. Johns, of the Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co., Sioux City, Ia.; A. E. Bather, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

ONION SETS at Chicago went off a little the past week, values running about 25 cents per bushel lower. Stock is mostly in the hands of the dealers.

WENHAM, MASS.—B. Hammond Tracy, Jr., who sailed recently to join the American ambulance corps in France, has arrived safely at Bordeaux.

TORONTO, ONT.—The Steele-Briggs Seed Co. say that mail orders have been considerably in excess of other years with bright prospects for later business.

NEW YORK.—Peter Henderson & Co.'s full page in the Sunday Times was among the recent advertisements of seedsmen in this city using the general press.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA.—Theo. Cobb, representing D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich., is making a tour of the state and the trade may look for some good new fish stories on his return.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—The St. Louis Seed Co. reports good demand for seeds for home gardening, with the volume of business two weeks ahead of last year. Seed potatoes in this market are selling from $2.75 to $3 per bushel, with heavy demand.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF., March 23.—Morris & Snow, who were burned out in the Rosslyn hotel fire of last week, are located for a time at least at 526 South Main street. The goods saved are valued at $5,000 out of a $22,000 stock and carried $9,000 insurance. The greatest loss was in business, for the seed trade never was so good here as it is this season.

J. S. MICHAEL, of the Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co., will celebrate the Fifty-eighth anniversary of his birthday, April 3. He was born at Sir Johns Run, W. Va., and started the Sioux City Nursery, with H. A. Johns and G. H. Cummings in 1884. The concern was incorporated a year later and the name changed to the Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—James Vick's Sons say the business this season shows a greater increase than that of any year in their experience. Contracting for this year's crop of their flower seed specialties will be closed within a few days. To offset labor troubles they are installing another tractor and a motor truck with a larger and better equipment.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—For the first time in 40 years W. Atlee Burpee & Co. have found it necessary to put on a 24-hour force this season, in other words, working night and day. In former years they have worked at night, but never an all-night force. The increase in orders up to the present time has been approximately 90 per cent, this firm never before experiencing such a rush of business.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—Chris. Reuter, about May 1, expects to move into his new building, which affords capacity for 25 carloads and equipped as one of the best modern seed stores in the south. Mr. Reuter reports a most successful season thus far, the demand for both garden and field seeds being enormous. A succession of frosts compelled the gardeners to replant several times. The large expansion of the mail order business is doubtless due to the increased number of home gardens.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, Chicago, reports on business to date as follows: "The first 10 weeks of 1917 business has shown a very gratifying increase, both over our counters and through the mails, although the season has been very cold and is now late. The gardening spirit has taken possession of all who have available ground to till, while newspapers and public welfare organizations, official and unofficial, have taken up gardening as a relief for the high cost of living. The high prices of vegetables this winter, particularly potatoes, onions and cabbage, have evidently appealed to all such planters to grow more another year. The public press, both east and west, is booming the garden movement all the seedsman can ask for. The anxiety is just now, can the average seedsman's force handle the rush of business when spring opens and will the limited stocks hold out?"

Seed Car Delays.

Secretary C. E. Kendel, of the American Seed Trade Association, writes as follows:

"Cars of seeds unreasonably delayed in transit should be reported to the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington, D. C., instead of to the District Attorney of Pennsylvania. Send details to insure prompt action."

Trans-Pacific Rates Up.

Steamship companies in the Pacific Conference have made a 25 per cent increase on freight rates on all cargoes except rice and silk from Hongkong to the Pacific coast of the United States, as a result of the increasing trade. The basic rate on freight from Hongkong to the United States usually is rice. Recently this charge has been $10 per ton. The advance is to be 50 per cent, making it $15 per ton.

Sugar Beet Seed Production.

According to the United States department of agriculture, preliminary returns indicate that the area used for growing sugar beets for seed in the United States in 1916 was 5,268 acres and the production of seed was 5,211,000 pounds, an average yield per acre of slightly less than 1,000 pounds. The areas and production are as follows: California, Idaho and Utah, 2,178 acres, 1,628,000 pounds; Colorado, Kansas, Montana and Nebraska, 2,725 acres, 3,455,000 pounds; Michigan and Ohio, 365 acres, 128,000 pounds.

The annual imports of sugar beet seed for the five years ending June 30, 1916, averaged 12,275,330 pounds, valued at $1,075,207.

Canners' Acreage.

The number of factories reporting for 1915 and 1916, with total acreage reported, the product from which was manufactured as reported to the Bureau of Crop Estimates, no account being taken of the tonnage bought outside of contracts, was as follows: Corn, 324 factories with 216,151 acres in 1916 as compared with 194,188 acres in 1915; peas, 202 factories and 86,294 acres as against 99,632 acres; tomatoes, 905 factories and 164,466 acres as against 126,520 acres in 1915.

Farm Value of Seeds.

The estimated farm value of important seeds, November 15, according to the monthly crop report of the United States department of agriculture for December, 1916, was as follows: Clover, as sold, $9.20; as bought, $10.87; timothy, as sold, $2.25; as bought, $3.05. Prices on the corresponding date in 1915 were: Clover, as sold, $9.67; as bought, $10.25; timothy, as sold, $2.91; as bought, $3.09.

"Hamburg Late White" Chrysanthemum

CERTIFICATE OF MERIT awarded by Chrysanthemum Society of America.

PICTURE was taken Dec. 10, 1916, and will give a good idea of the symmetrical form of flowers of "Hamburg Late White." These flowers were cut from plants grown from single stems and planted six inches each way.

"HAMBURG LATE WHITE" is pure white under all weather conditions, and is a sport of Maud Dean white, but has no trace of pink, as the original.

The average grower of chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle, and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. "Hamburg Late White" has been grown for the last four years, and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but for late white, one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November, by taking an early bud, but by selecting later buds, most of the flowers are cut during December, and would advise to select a late bud, as the later buds come somewhat fuller, and by selecting late buds, flowers can be had as late as the middle of January.

Keeping qualities are excellent, and where a light, graceful white flower is wanted, "Hamburg Late White" cannot be surpassed.

"Hamburg Late White" will be disseminated in the Spring of 1917. Plants will be ready for April delivery, and all orders will be filled in rotation.

H. W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., President;
H. F. Thompson, Arlington, Mass., Vice-President;
S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary;
Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids, Mich., Treasurer.

Next annual convention will be held at Springfield, Mass., in 1917.

OKLAHOMA CITY.—Hageman & Carter suffered a loss of about $2,000, during a severe hailstorm, March 21.

ATTLEBORO, MASS.—The Mossberg Manufacturing Co. will supply its several hundred employes with land for garden purposes and will award prizes at the end of the season for the best results.

THE acreage planted to early potatoes in the six principal early potato sections of the south is estimated to be 198,000, as compared with 161,000 in 1916. Planting has increased in all sections except eastern Texas.

STRAWBERRY acreage in Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas, is estimated to be 24,800 acres in 1917 as compared with 27,400 acres in 1916, a decrease of 9.5 per cent. As a result of the March freeze the crop will be about 15 to 20 days late in moving this year.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, March 27.—Mushrooms, home grown, 50 to 60 cents per pound; lettuce, small cases, 30 to 32½ cents; radishes, 50 to 60 cents, dozen bunches; celery, 75 cents to $1.50, open crate; tomatoes, six baskets, $4.50; cucumbers, per 2 dozen box, $2.00 to $3.00.

New York, March 27.—Celery, per crate, $2.50 to $5.00; cucumbers, 60 cents to $1.50 per dozen; mushrooms, 90 cents to $1.85 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, per lb., 10 to 25 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2.00 to $5.00; lettuce, per strap, $3.00 to $5.00.

Color Test for Apples and Tomatoes.

The value of color as a guide to the picker in determining the time for gathering apples and tomatoes is pointed out in an article in the forthcoming Yearbook of the United States department of agriculture. The economic result of placing immature apples in storage, says the author, is loss of color; loss in color also occurs when immature tomatoes are processed.

Immature apples picked when some of the leaf green is still present on the shaded side of the fruit develop in storage the baked-apple appearance characteristic of scalded fruit, not attractive.

In the case of tomatoes intended for canning or catsup, only mature fruit will yield a product of the deep red color so much prized by the market. On the other hand, half-ripened red tomatoes will yield a product varying from straw color through the shades of red. The producer, however, should bear in mind that with many varieties the green color persists to some extent until the fruit is too dead-ripe to be marketed without risk of decay. Soundness, of course, should never be sacrificed to obtain the desired color.

Truck Crop Acreage in California.

A truck crop specialist of the United States department of agriculture recently completed a tour of inspection of the truck areas in Imperial county March 1 and reports as follows: Cantaloupes, 12,700 acres as compared with 8,490 acres in 1916; 75 per cent of total acreage planted; estimated condition 95 per cent. Bermuda onions, estimated at 635 acres, condition 85 per cent. Early Irish potatoes, 400 acres, with estimated condition 100 per cent. Green peas, 925 acres, condition 90 per cent; March frost damage from 10 to 30 per cent. Lettuce, 960 acres, condition 85 per cent. Miscellaneous truck: Watermelons, 565 acres; summer squash, 250 acres; strawberries, 125 acres; asparagus, 283 acres; condition varying from 90 to 100 per cent.

The acreage of early Irish potatoes in the San Gabriel valley, San Fernando and Los Angeles districts and Orange county is estimated to be 8,700 this year.

Vegetable Prices at New York.

There was a fair supply of old potatoes March 26, but much of the stock has deteriorated from holding and prices vary. Florida stock slow in arriving. Prices are as follows.

Beans continue high. There have been sales of state marrows at $13 per 100 pounds. There is a good supply of Chilean stock marrows, at $9.50 to $10.50 per 100 pounds.

The highest price for onions is $6 to $8 per 100 pounds for old white and old yellow; old red, $4 to $7 per 100 pounds. A. F. F.

Onion Growing in Indiana.

"Commercial Onion Growing" is the title of Circular No. 57 by C. B. Sayre, issued by the Purdue University agricultural experiment station, Lafayette, Ind., dealing with the crop grown very extensively on the muck soils in northern Indiana. The circular treats of the requirements especially important in onion growing, among which are good drainage and thorough preparation of the soil before planting. The statement is made that the best growers average over 500 bushels per acre which sell at an average of 40 cents per bushel, the cost of production being about $75 per acre. In 1914 the crop in northern Indiana amounted to 2,210,325 bushels.

Rooted Carnation Cuttings Immediate Delivery.

We are now booking orders for our New Seedling SUPERB— $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

SUPERB is a seedling of Gloriosa and Enchantress. It has the good stem of Gloriosa and the fine growing habit of Enchantress. The color is a fresh pink, and it keeps its color at all seasons. The flowers average about three inches, are very full, and generally receive full score on substance. The flowers are all perfect and do not split. In the four years we have grown it, it has proved the best commercial variety, barring none.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

John Watson, Newark, N. Y., President; Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President; Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress Street, Boston, Mass., Secretary and Counsel. Forty-second annual convention will be held at Philadelphia, Pa., June 27-29, 1917.

BATAVIA, N. Y.—A new city park to cost $50,000, with appropriate floral features, is to be laid out in this city.

HEMET, CALIF.—C. Howard, E. Lindquist and Gertrude Howard have incorporated the Howard Rose Co. with a capital stock of $5,000.

SAN FERNANDO, CALIF.—The Walker-Hubbard Nursery Co. has been incorporated by T. J. Walker, J. L. Walker, C. D. Hubbard and others; capital stock, $75,000.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—The Onondaga Fruit Growers' Association will cooperate with the florists' clubs of the state in an effort to secure a new horticultural building at the state fair.

WOODMONT, CONN.—The Elm City Nursery Company Woodmont Nurseries, Inc., will proceed at once with the development of its extensive new property here, as the New Haven railroad's plans, which would have taken all of this land, have been changed.

Tree Planting for Paper.

Bangor, Me., March 22.—In the last five years Julius Shutt, head of the forestry department of the Pejepscot Paper Co., Lisbon Falls, has planted and raised 750,000 trees, 500,000 of which have been transplanted in land owned by the company, as the paper makers, themselves among the greatest consumers of timber, are now foremost in preserving the forests.

White Pine Blister Rust Quarantine.

The secretary of agriculture deeming it necessary in order to effectively prevent the introduction into the United States of white pine blister rust by extending the provisions of notice of Quarantine No. 7, of May 21, 1913, to forbid importation of currant and gooseberry plants from Europe and Asia, a public hearing will be held at the department of agriculture, room 410 Bieher building, Washington, D. C., at 10 o'clock a. m., April 10, 1917, in order that all persons interested may be present, either in person or by attorney.

To prohibit or regulate the movement of five-leaved pine stock and currant and gooseberry stock to other states from Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Wisconsin and Minnesota, where the white pine blister rust exists, it seems advisable, according to the secretary of agriculture, to consider the establishment of a quarantine either at the line of the western boundary of North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas or at the western boundary of Minnesota, Iowa, Arkansas and Louisiana, or at the Mississippi river, or at some other line within these states.

Service

Metropolitan Greenhouse Service the utmost in efficiency and—results.

No matter what the initial cost of a greenhouse amounts to, it is in every instance a good investment, provided the revenue results are proportionate, and the cost of maintenance remains at a minimum. But no matter how little the initial cost, it is far too much for unsatisfactory returns, with constantly increasing upkeep and repair expenses.

Therefore, as the quality of materials used in the construction of all greenhouses is, after all, a matter of contract specifications, this organization bases its claims upon the high character of its labor and its constant endeavor to render a service which is at all times the utmost in efficiency, economy and results.

The reliability of this organization has been conclusively proven by the fact that it has not merely sustained, but heightened its prestige for so long a period.

Penna. Horticultural Society.

The feature of the spring exhibition of the Penna. Horticulture Society held on March 20-22, was the general excellence of the tulips and hyacinths, which reached a standard that was probably better than at any previous show. The Darwin tulips were exceptional in their size and coloring. Narcissi in variety were also a feature. Collections of crocuses were showy, as were wall flowers in pots. Primula obconica in splendid strains were very well done. Spiraea Japonica in assortment, both pink and white, were seen in great profusion of bloom. Henry A. Dreer, Inc., staged 30 tubs of French hydrangeas, nearly all different, that were exceptionally well flowered. Each variety was conspicuously labelled. Ing, there being several entries. It is to be hoped that all future exhibitions will be under the combined auspices of the horticultural society and the florists' club, each lending assistance to the other in their work. K.

HOUSTON, TEX.—T. D. Long, representing Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, was a visitor here, March 14, on his way from Denver. He reports trade good at all points.

BEDDING PLANT NOTES.

The Hotbeds.

An essential as well as a most useful adjunct to any establishment growing bedding plants is a well arranged row or two of hotbeds. It matters not whether the output is large or small, the hotbed should be considered a necessary part of the establishment. Many of the so-called bedding plants require more bottom heat than can be given them on a greenhouse bench to bring them to a satisfactory condition for planting out by the latter part of May or early June. Another very important consideration regarding hotbeds is that they take care of a large number of plants, thus relieving the greenhouse benches, certainly an important feature at this time when every foot of bench space is overcrowded with Easter stock and other flowering plants.

Growers who have the proper facilities are now using steam-heated hotbeds, which are very much more handy and greatly to be preferred over the manure-heated beds. We have a number of steam-heated hotbeds which have been in use several years. The frames are made strong to stand the weather of summer and winter. They are constructed of 2x12-inch lumber for the sides and front with an extra 2x6-inch plank at the back to give the slope, making them 18 inches deep at the back and 12 inches in front. A cross plank is fitted in at every fourth sash so that if desired each section can be aired or operated separately. The beds are the regulation width and are fitted with three lines of 1½-inch steam pipes, one in the center and the others about 6 inches from the back and front of the frames. The pipes are laid in trenches about 15 inches below the surface of the beds and covered in with soil even with the rest of the bed. Right at this point, it may be well to mention that if the steam pipes are laid too near the top of the beds the heat will be too severe for the plants. The main object to bear in mind is to provide for a uniform, steady, bottom heat. These three lines of pipe are fitted with a header at each end of the frames and a valve attached at the end for turning on or off the steam as required. At the other end of the frame a small valve is placed to serve as a drain to the pipes. This valve is kept open a little all the time to provide a free circulation, the pipes having no direct return to the boiler. After the steam has been turned on these frames for a day or two to thoroughly warm up the soil, a steady bottom heat of between 75 and 80 degrees, or more if desired, can be maintained.

Manure-Heated Hotbeds.

Fresh horse manure that has been turned over two or three times to regulate the material and prevent it burning out in one place, should be selected. Place a solid bed of the manure inside the frame, making it thick enough so that after it is well pressed down there will be a bed of manure of at least 12 inches deep. Then bank up manure around the outside of the frame level with the top. After this has been done, put on the sash and allow the excessive heat to spend itself out before putting any plants in the bed. As soon as the heat of the bed settles down to between 75 and 80 degrees, the plants can be put in. For plunging small pots of alternanthera or other plants, first place a layer of fine soil about three inches thick, pressing the small pots down into it to their rims. For setting flats of plants, place a thinner layer of soil, pressing it down firmly, then scatter a little air-slaked lime over the bed before placing in the flats.

If it is the intention to place the plants direct into the beds in the frames, then make up a bed of the fine soil on top of the manure from 4 to 5 inches thick.

Airing and Watering

Airing and watering are two very important parts of operating hotbeds. Unless the weather is very cold and stormy a crack of air should be given every day, and during moderate weather it can be left on all night, especially after the plants begin to get near the required size, but it should be borne in mind that the early use of the hot-bed is to hurry the plants along to a sufficient size, after which they can be hardened off by ample ventilation in time for planting out. Excessive watering should be guarded against; the plants will need watering regularly, but an excessive amount of moisture in the frames will quickly cause damping off of any young seedlings or plants.

Alternantheras.

Alternantheras are the most important plants for which the hotbed is particularly built, especially at the greenhouses connected with the large cemeteries where large numbers of these plants are needed. Plants carried over winter in small pots are shaken out the latter part of March, repotted in fresh light soil, and plunged in the hotbed. Two and 2½-inch pots are used—the smaller the pot, the larger number of plants a frame will hold. Cuttings of alternanthera taken now, placed in the sand with a good bottom heat, and kept fairly moist, will root in a very few days. After they are rooted, pot them up and plunge in the hotbed. They will make plants fit for planting out in plenty of time for Memorial day. Besides the alternantheras, the hotbeds are especially useful for such plants as Vernon begonias, centaureas, ageratums, lobelias and others of a similar character, particularly when they are a little backward. After they have attained the required size, it is easy to harden them off by removing the sash when the weather permits.

Geraniums.

These plants should now be commencing to get well rooted in 4-inch pots to be sure of having them in first-class condition for sale by the middle of May. If they are not yet in 4-inch pots, no time should be lost in attending to the work. Do not top geraniums after April 1 and expect them to be good blooming plants by May 15 or you are very likely to be disappointed. Cuttings can be taken from plants intended for later work, but those for May planting should be allowed to come along. Plenty of room for each plant is one of the main considerations in growing good geraniums. They also delight in a cool temperature with plenty of fresh air on every favorable occasion.

Repotting.

The month of April can be said to be a time of continuous repotting for those who have anything to do with growing of bedding plants, but it is a needed work. Bedding plants of any description should never be allowed to become root-bound, especially at the time of planting outdoors; they go ahead much better when the roots are in an active growing condition.

Echeverias.

The best way to handle these plants is in flats, because they can then be set on shelves where they will require very little attention beyond an occasional watering. Go over the plants in the early part of April, cleaning off the old leaves and repot in fresh soil. Do not leave the plants out of the soil any longer than is necessary to make the transfer.

Cold Frames for Pansies.

Pansies now in flats should be transplanted into the cold frames as soon as settled weather conditions prevail. Cold frames are also the best place for the young carnation plants after the first week of April, so as to thoroughly harden them off for planting later in the month.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.

After Easter.

With the passing of the busy Easter season, there must be no letup in the efforts to keep the store attractive and in readiness for the weddings, commencements and other business that is due at this time. Any plants that are left over and yet in salable condition should be kept well to the front and made as presentable as possible, as quite frequently belated out-of-town orders arrive, or customers desire to send a plant or two to persons that they had overlooked. Much of this, if any, left over plant stock, can be used in wedding decorations; even that returned from the churches, if well cared for, still retains considerable that is useful when used in connection with other plants.

Now is the opportunity to push spring window boxes; pansies and daisies are sure to give satisfaction for the next month, until all danger of frost is over. If kept to the front, with a showing of various styles of boxes, some filled, many orders will be obtained.

Now that stock is plentiful, considerable thought should be given to the sale of flowers in quantity at popular prices. It is the experience of many who have tried these week-end or special sales of flowers, most plentiful at the time, that they were good business bringers, attracting the attention of strangers and others, who, while having no particular use for flowers at the time, were induced to purchase because of the low prices. While all customers are to be shown the utmost courtesy, to the stranger is due, if possible, a little more attention. An effort should be made to impress the special advantages of dealing at this store which should always on special sale days be especially attractive. An effort should be made to obtain the address of the strangers by offers to send the package home or from a desire to "have you on our mailing list, so that notices of our special sales will be sure to reach you."

Commencements will soon be due, and a good share of this business can be obtained by a little looking ahead. The names of the graduates in all the schools are available. With these in hand it is possible to work up quite a business. Frequently the bouquets for class day exercises are quite pretentious. The placing of the order is generally put in the hands of a committee, which may with the influence of good salesmanship, be interested and the order secured.

An opportunity to make the store doubly attractive is presented in the decoration of the front with boxes of blooming plants. The advertising value of a well dressed store front is deserving of all the attention that can be given it. Not only are people attracted by display, and impressed that "this is Smith's cut-flower store," but the boxes offer a suggestion of something that they might use to advantage in the decoration of their own windows or porches.

The old saying that "the shoemaker's children are the worst shod" should never apply to the florist, whose place of business and home grounds must always reflect his skill and set an example to others of what is possible in decorative effects in plants and flowers.

Easter Trade Preparations.

Paper by David Walker, read at a meeting of the Kentucky Society of Florists at Louisville, March 7.

April 8 being Easter, it behooves us to be up and doing. The first and most vital point in efficiency being preparedness, let us not be caught napping in the eleventh hour. We should have everything necessary ready and at the fingers' ends. Preparedness embraces a large scope of small details, namely the early ordering of stock, the having on hand of lots of boxes made up, designs mossed, plants trimmed, baskets filled, an extra tube and casing for your delivery machines, plenty of wrapping paper, twine, stationery, change in the register and plenty of extra help. In the hustle, bustle and worry of the last hours of Easter trade, the florist who looked far enough ahead into these minor details fares best with the customer and also himself. At this season of the year, traggood stock to show them at fairly reasonable patrons are plentiful, so have reasonable prices, which, tendered with courteous attention, may be the means of a lasting regular customer. If your neighbor can afford to buy good stock and gets new trade by it, you had better think it over; a reasonable profit on small orders holds customers and is more profitable in the long run than a big profit once. Wires, stakes and other tools of the trade are necessary, but keep them out of sight. In other words, clear the deck for action.

Anything out of the ordinary, such as novelties in basketware and basket arrangements, draws attention and creates a lasting impression. Make constant changes in your windows, as customers soon tire of the same thing. Try the effect of something out of the ordinary, such as a fine specimen plant, and let it be sufficiently distinct.

Hydrangeas are most satisfactory sellers. They last well and give satisfaction. Pansies and maiden hair make up an artistic thought and are inexpensive. A striking contrast in ribbon or plants is all right, but a poor match in the same color is bad. The white matting baskets are fine for filling with hyacinths and choice bulbous stock.

American Beauties have a fine effect in plain Roman ware of a tall pattern, there being no flowers painted on this to conflict with and sometimes spoil the effect of the roses. Jonquils and forget-me-nots, loosely arranged, make a very pretty table decoration or bouquet.

As far as possible, as the weather gets warmer, make deliveries early in the morning or late in the day. Always aim to have your flowering plants in bloom when you are trying to sell them, as it will be of little use entering into a lengthy argument with a customer in regard to superior or equal merits of a plant not in flower. The average customer considers such the same as buying a cat in a sack. They want to see a flowering plant in good bloom. Poor plants are not desirable at any time, but when unfortunately a number are on hand they can be sold at lower prices than those that are asked for good plants. They should be disposed of in that way, but they should never be mixed in with choice plants and delivered to a customer who pays for good stock.

The rush in quest of the dollar within reach should not detract at the present time from staple articles, which, if given the care they deserve, will amply repay for the trouble later on. Cyclamens when well grown are good sellers, but poor ones are hard to dispose of at any price, so put the good ones where they can be seen and store the others away out of the way and save room and bad impressions on your prospective buyer.

Less ribbon on Easter plants and more artistic grouping works up nicely and helps to move off stock that might go bad. Newspapers, thoroughly soaked for several days before use, make an excellent packing material for cut flowers.

Although hardy plants forced, spiraea must not be stood about in dry or drafty positions.

Although many flowers are used with violets in corsages, they are supposed to be best when used alone. Never forget to use tinfoil when making your corsages, as a pair of soiled gloves or a ruined waist or coat may mean a lost customer. When possible, use the foliage of lily of the valley with the flowers, as no other green is so suitable.

There is a scope for originality even in such a small matter as decorating an Easter azalea, which, when carrying a full head of flowers in the somewhat dry atmosphere of the store, must be kept well moist at the roots. Tell customers to keep these as well as spiraea well watered or in a saucer of water.

When plants or baskets are ordered, find out the customer's pleasure in regard to time and manner of delivery and comply therewith. In the rush of the next few weeks something might be overlooked, but under no circumstances let yourself be short of room. Made-up baskets should not be arranged in jumbles, but should have plenty of room, with an eye to harmony. Look up last Easter's orders and be prepared for a similar demand. Too much stock in the windows and not enough in the ice box is almost as bad as opposite conditions.

Though very effective by daylight, be very careful how you associate blue and yellow flowers for decorations by artificial light. Orchids require perhaps more careful arranging than any other flowers, but they are very beautiful when properly handled.

Well established pansies in small flat dishes are excellent Easter plants. The colors are diversified and the flowers last well in good condition.

Birchbark boxes and different sorts of baskets are peculiarly well adapted for showing such plants as Primula obconica. Keep flowers in water until the last minute before required for use or delivery, as it is impossible to tell how they may be treated when they reach their destination.

Treat your customer as well if he spends a dollar as if he had spent ten. Consider no transaction closed until the buyer is thoroughly satisfied. Do not persuade the people to buy something they do not want, as it is far better to have an assortment and they will find something they do want.

Make a few mistakes as possible, and be willing to rectify those unavoidable. Be liberal, honest and friendly, with courtesy as a motto and good cheer an asset.

Have a homelike atmosphere about your place, with polite and courteous salespeople. Your main idea must be to serve as well as to sell, and if these specifications are carried out thoroughly I believe this Easter will be a Waterloo to previous Easter records.

American Rose Society.

President Pennock's Address.

ANNUAL MEETING, PHILA., PA., MARCH 21.

A year ago we were holding our annual exhibition and meeting as part of the National Flower Show. The American Rose Society contributed very largely in making this event such a wonderful success, as it was through the combined efforts of our officers and members that there was staged one of the greatest exhibitions of roses ever held in this country. In view of what the American Rose Society had accomplished, it was decided—after very careful consideration—to hold in Philadelphia, March, 1917, a show of our own, composed entirely of roses, not only to further our interests, but also as an educational feature and an uplift to the society in placing it in the prominent position it so richly deserves among the important societies of our country. Everyone visiting our show at the First Regiment armory cannot help but realize how well and how faithfully those in charge have worked to bring about the splendid results in making this exhibition the wonderful success it is, a show we can all well be proud of; a band of men who worked and pulled together with but one object in view—Success; and I want to take this opportunity as your president for the society to thank not only the officers and chairmen, but every member who so faithfully worked to make this show a success. It has never been my pleasure to be associated with any group of men who threw their hearts and souls into an undertaking with more vim and energy than you have. May this show be the inspiration and forerunner of many successful exhibitions in the future.

This is primarily a display that appeals more to the commercial man than to the amateur, yet there are many points that interest and deal directly with the amateur—the rose gardens, the cut roses, grown commercially I know, but many of them splendid garden roses, as well as many other, to them, interesting features. The society in demonstrating that an annual spring show of its own can be held on a large scale, the question arises in my mind why it would not be possible to hold in June a national out-door rose festival annually, conducting it on a large scale, bringing exhibits from all leading rosarians within a radius of overnight trips or less, thus gathering together amateurs and their roses from all over the country—an event that would be looked forward to and sought for by groups of rose lovers in every city, whether small or large. We have with us amateurs, members that are enthusiastic, willing and well able to undertake the carrying on of an annual festival of this character. I should be very glad indeed to have a discussion on this subject at this meeting, and some definite steps taken toward establishing such an annual affair. I am sure we have many amateurs, some right here in Philadelphia, who would be willing to throw their efforts into a movement of this nature. This, with our spring show, should increase our membership as nothing else will or could; so I hope everyone, particularly our commercial men, will give this your very earnest support, making for the advancement of the rose, both from a garden and a commercial standpoint—"A Rose for Every Home; A Bush for Every Garden."

The membership of the society has materially increased in both the active and associate classes. In addition to a healthy growth in the active membership there has resulted an increase in associate membership to at least 20 times the number recorded one year ago, and this increase is continuing, I am glad to say. Last fall the society made a proposition to several rose catalogue men, some taking advantage of it, some turning it down. The firms who went into this partnership arrangement, I am sure, are well paid for the effort. I know the society feels the proposition has been a splendid help, and is more than grateful to these firms for their hearty co-operation. To those who are not familiar with this agreement a word of explanation is in order. The dues were payable to the firm soliciting the membership, they retaining half the amount. This as a business proposition—on the surface—looks like poor business, but from the viewpoint of future membership I believe it one of the best moves ever made by the society—a member once, a member always.

While on this membership business I should like to recommend a readjusting of the membership dues, not only the active but the associate and affiliated as well. Instead of having two classes as we now have, active and associate memberships, I would suggest that we merge them and have only the active membership. This would give the associate member, who at present is not eligible to vote or take part in any proceedings, all the rights of membership. Also, instead of active members paying $3 annually and associates $1, that the dues for all be $2.

Our affiliated members at present are paying 25 cents. This, I think, with all we are doing at present and all we are planning for the future for these members, should be $1, they receiving the "Annual" and any other literature which may be issued; also admissions to any shows; these "Annuals" to be shipped in bulk to the affiliated society, and not distributed individually by the rose society. I hope these recommendations on membership dues will meet with your approval, and that same will be brought up for discussion at this meeting.

The favorable reception accorded to the 1916 Rose Annual is the best comment on the success of this attempt. The editor of the Annual, J. Horace McFarland, found ready and cheerful co-operation among the members of the society who could afford proper help. It is believed that the articles presented in the 1916 Annual on possibilities in rose-breeding; on the rose species available from China and elsewhere; on America's efforts in rose-breeding and rose-growing; on the diseases and insects which affect roses; on rose popularity in various parts of the United States and Canada; on rose organizations, and on roses grown for cut flowers, were of such value that the volume will long remain a standard reference book, comparing favorably with the best issues of the National Rose Society of England.

As an illustration of how this Annual was received not only in this country, but in Europe as well, I want to read you from a letter of May 26, 1916, from Joseph J. Lane, of the Garden Magazine:

"I had the pleasure of being one of those present at the meeting of the American Rose Society during the Philadelphia Flower Show in 1916, because I joined the society two or three days before. I tell you frankly that the reason I joined the American Rose Society was to get a copy of the Rose Annual, and to affiliate myself with an organization which was so enthusiastically going about its work. The majority of the horticultural organizations, as a rule, solicit you for your dues, and never think of making any plans for you to get something back for your money. I am glad to say that in receiving a copy of the Rose Annual I have received sufficient to pay me for my entire dues. Next year I want you to solicit us good and hard for advertising in this book. The Garden Magazine and Country Life in America, also some of our garden books, should be in there, and I will do everything in my power to see that they are."

The heading of a column and a half article in the Gardener's Chronicle of July 8, 1916, an English publication, starts off in this fashion:

"The American Rose Society and Mr. McFarland, its editor, are to be congratulated on the issue of the first Annual under the auspices of the society. This forms a volume of some 150 pages, the last 10 of which are devoted to accounts of rose shows."

Then it goes on, giving a thorough resumé of the book in its many phases. These are but two instances of many showing how wonderfully the Annual of 1916 was received, indeed a volume to be proud of.

In the late spring of 1916 a fund for research work in rose diseases was started. A liberal response to the call for subscriptions from interested rose-growers all over the country made it possible for the officers to arrange through Dr. H. H. Whetzel, the pathologist of Cornell University, for the employment of Dr. L. M. Massey to undertake the disease study desired. The university itself bears an important part of the cost of the work. Dr. Massey began work in the early fall, and his accomplishments up to date have been most gratifying, even though it was not expected that there would be any particular result for at.

least a year. For example: his investigation of the new trouble which besets cut flower rose growers—a form of crown root-gall—is likely to result in the early checking of a disease which certainly, under previously existing conditions, might easily have put many growers entirely out of business. It is most important that every grower, particularly the commercial man, should take careful note of the disease. Dr. Massey has also taken up carefully the study of the difficult black-spot, and in the 1917 Annual will be found his article bearing on this most important subject. The research fund was solicited largely through personal effort, and it is my sincere hope that the subscriptions will be renewed and extended, so that the work may be carried on for another year, or as much longer as is necessary to keep the members of the society fully informed as to rose diseases, and as to the best means for combating them.

The Nursery Trade.—It seems that here is an opportunity where the nurserymen are not taking advantage of their opportunities, in coming in and being represented more strongly in the society. I would like to quote from a letter of February 17, 1917, received from John Watson, president of the American Association of Nurserymen:

"I am a member of the American Rose Society, but a poor one, and a member of the committee for the Cornell garden. I especially regret not having been able to do anything for the garden except to send some rose-plants and to ask my friends among the foreign rose growers to do likewise. The war has so seriously handicapped them that they have not sent as many plants as they could have sent under normal conditions. No society of its kind is of greater importance to the nursery trade than the American Rose Society, for it has so much to do. I was writing Mr. McFarland the other day regretting the backwardness of American growers in hybridizing. While we have many new seedlings, they are nearly all forcing varieties, except the Wichuraiana hybrids, which have been overdone. Some years ago, when at Mr. Lambert's in Treves, I was interested in his enthusiasm for his plans to produce a race of hardy ever-blooming climbers. You know in his Trier he produced an almost ever-blooming rambler. He will go the rest of the way, I feel sure. Then there are the rugosas, which we are leaving untouched, the easiest to cross, while the results so far have given us the best we have in hardy roses like Amelie Gravereaux, Madam Lucien Villeminot, Conrad F. Meyer and Nova Zembla. That race is what we must look to in America: hardiness, ever-blooming habit, good foliage and fragrance. Our hybridizers all seem to be working on forcing roses, of which we have an abundance. We must look to the hardy, out-door roses, just as the British growers devote themselves to the hybrid teas. It is amazing that the American nurserymen are doing nothing for the rose and nothing for the American Rose Society."

From this you will see how one of our prominent fellow nurserymen feels not only about the society, but the introducing of new roses of American origin as well. It would not only give me great pleasure, but immense satisfaction to have the nurserymen and their interests more closely allied with the society, and I hope we may have their fuller support in the future.

Rose Test Gardens.—Our work in the past of the rose-test gardens is too well known for me to go over it at this time. These test gardens, I am glad to say, are bringing good results, but not as good as we would like to have in the way of records, of how the gardens are being kept up, as these are of great importance. These test gardens are going to be one of the very valuable assets of the society, not only in the actual garden tests, but in the records of the roses. May we look forward to only a few years hence when every city of any size will take hold and foster a rose garden such as Portland, Oregon, is undertaking at this time, which is called "The Portland Association National Rose Test Garden," a wonderful movement not only for Portland, but for the rose society, and the rose business in general, which is being backed by such bodies as the Chamber of Commerce, city council and 97 other organizations. Think of it, 99 distinct organizations! This spells progress in the broadest sense of the word, and to my mind should be an incentive for every other city in this country.

I want to read you a quotation from Horticulture of July 15, 1916:

"We have heard from a number of places where municipal rose gardens are being established this year, or are being planned. It is only a question of time, and that not very long, until a rose garden will be regarded as an indispensable feature of every public park, and private estates generally will follow suit. Until the advent of the hardy hybrid teas and ever-blooming polyanthas there was little inducement for the making of rose gardens in the northern and eastern United States. Now there is abundant recompense for all the labor and attention incident to the proper planting and care of the queen of flowers, and with prospects as they now appear, the garden rose industry is only in its infancy in this country. In the effort to improve and add to the number of forcing roses American rosarians have been in the past concentrating all their thoughts on a single ideal and, no doubt, hundreds of their seedlings have been thrown away because they failed to measure up to the forcing rose standard, which, had they been given an opportunity to qualify, would have proved invaluable as garden varieties. With the rapidly developing demand for the latter comes a new incentive to rose hybridizing in this country, and we shall be surprised and disappointed if American grown varieties do not in the very near future outstrip and out-class for garden use the foreign productions upon which we have hitherto been so largely dependent."

Here is a thought for every American hybridizer to consider thoroughly, and possibly make a profit out of a seeming loss.

Another recommendation which I wish to make is that the editor and advertising manager of the Annual be made ex-officio members of the executive committee. This, I think, is an important matter and well worth your serious consideration, as the Annual will be of more vital importance to the society each year. In conclusion I want to add a word of praise for Benjamin Hammond, who has labored long and faithfully as secretary of the society. His has been a labor of love, not remuneration, and I think we cannot feel too kindly towards him, realizing, as we do, that to him, more than to any other one man, is due the standing of the American Rose Society today.

Secretary Hammond's Report.

The year past has seen a large advance in the popular interest in the American Rose Society. "There is no success like success." The first rose show held under the auspices of the American Rose Society was in New York in 1899 and was backed by a goodly number of patronesses. The ladies took hold to make the exhibition a success and from that time to this there has not been a season when we have not had a fine rose show, and at this eighteenth successive annual meeting we can report a great increase of associate members; that is, persons not engaged as florists or nurserymen. Our total membership is 1,092, as follows: Fifty-five life members, 138 active members and 899 associate members, these coming from the states of Washington, Oregon, California, New Mexico, Texas, Louisiana, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, Washington, D. C., Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Maine, Vermont, Massachusetts, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas, Tennessee, Kentucky, West Virginia, Nebraska, Colorado, Oklahoma, Utah, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Idaho, and in Canada, Quebec, Nova Scotia, Ontario, Manitoba and British Columbia; also London, England, Denmark, Cuba, San Domingo and Mexico. This large increase within the year past is to be attributed mainly to the service rendered by J. Horace McFarland, who gave the society the benefit of his publishing company in the printing and make-up of the Annual for 1916, a book of decided merit. The funds at the disposal of the society had never permitted us to embark in the issuing of such an excellent book. Mr. McFarland in 1915 offered to do it, and if there was a loss on the actual cost he would stand one-half the deficit with the society. There has been no deficit on the outcome so far.

The present year solicitation slips were sent out by various seed houses, nurserymen and florists in their catalogues and these returns are mainly responsible for the marked increase of amateur members. The record gives us one addition to the life membership list, Mrs. Elizabeth C. T. Miller. The life membership fund now is $3,200 and this is a most important fund to have grow. A society for permanence needs a substantial basis. Last year we expressed the hope to see our membership grow and this hope is materializing.

During the past year two of our life members have died, Wm. C. Barry of Rochester, N. Y., who was the second president of the society, and S. J. Reuter of Westery, R. I., both men of character and standing.

The executive committee have had 14 separate meetings during the past year, the details of which have been published in the trade and other papers for general information.

An effort was made to have special investigations of the diseases of roses made, and an arrangement was made with Dr. Lewis M. Massey of the College of Agriculture, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., to take up the work.

A new rose test garden has been established for the Pacific northwest at Portland, Ore. Application was received for Bellingham, Wash., and from an agricultural college in Texas, but we were not able to provide for more than one this year.

Several new roses were offered for registration and are recorded in the Annual just published. In the registration of roses there has not been any formal rule of description hitherto. To bring about a full and clear description for a registration, the executive committee appointed a committee to present such form for adoption in future use. The demand for medals of this society for prizes at summer shows has been granted to affiliated societies. The interest in local June rose shows is becoming more general.

The society visited officially the Washington test garden and the Cornell test garden at Ithaca, N. Y. At Newport, R. I., a special effort is being made to have an excellent outdoor display on July 4 next. The American Rose Society tries to encourage these local shows. At Barrytown-on-the-Hudson the usual rose show was held. This local show has been for many years past an event well attended by local people and a society medal was presented. The present exhibition is the first time in five years when the American Rose Society has held a show entirely alone. The people of Philadelphia have shown much interest and the guarantors of an insurance for expenses and prizes number 71.

The growth and development of the society has reached a point where the future seems assured, and the detail work is steadily increasing to such an extent that your secretary, who has filled the position to the best of his ability since 1905, is obliged to decline re-election to the office, and I may truthfully say that the work done by all officers and others concerned has brought the American Rose Society to its present position, and may its motto, "A Rose for Every Home and a Bush for Every Garden," become a fixed fact in this country of ours—"The Land of the Free and the Home of the Brave."

WITH THE GROWERS

At Painesville, O.

The 40 acres comprising the nursery of Martin Kohankie are filled with selected stock—plants that will do well the country over. His specialties are hardy perennials and a few of the best flowering shrubs. New things must be tried and true before they get into the quantity list of this celebrated grower. A number of very beautiful flowering plants are at their best in but a limited section of country, owing mainly to favorable climatic conditions. He does not catalogue such stock, as he wants his customers to have all he offers do well with them. His business is practically wholesale, most of the stock being sold in larger quantities. Meehan's Marvel mallows are a leader, always giving satisfaction. Peonies are largely grown, just a few varieties, each distinctive. The new hardy aster, Climax, is said to be the finest of these beautiful fall plants. Phlox are grown by the acre; in fact, his list comprizes all the standard perennials. When asked if there were not a number of perennials that would force for cut flowers or as pot plants, he said there were quite a few that he felt it would pay growers of novelties to give a trial, and he saw no reason why they would not force as well as the larkspur, which has been so successfully done the past few years. The newer types of the long-spurred aquilegia or columbine were very beautiful, and if well grown, would find a ready sale in all good stores. Hypericum Moserianum is a distinctly showy and beautiful plant, very free flowering, separate florets being 2 to 2½ inches in diameter, of a rich golden yellow with yellow stamens and crimson anthers. This would force easily and make a beautiful pot plant. The hemerocallis of the newer and much improved forms, and the Coreopsis grandiflora, with its showy shades of yellow, would make two very good forcing plants. As a florist flower for summer cutting, he strongly recommended Achillea Boule de Nieve, as much better than The Pearl, the best white summer flower. Mr. Kohankie's only difficulty is in working up stock for his orders, more than half of which are received before shipping time. Business is increasing so fast that it is hard to keep the stock up to the demand.

W. B. Cole has 400 acres in nursery stock, handling this large quantity both wholesale and retail. This place is among the pioneers of Painesville, being founded in 1881. Specialties are shade trees, shrubbery, and field grown roses. Shrubbery is principally grown from hard wood cuttings in prepared beds of fine sandy soil. He finds they make much better plants than those grown from soft wooded cuttings. Blackberries are raised from root cuttings, the roots being the surplus that are cut from the shipping plants, as these are only a year old and this continues from year to year. The result is finally stock that will not produce fruit. Careful nurserymen now have a block of an acre or two of blackberries grown for the roots and roots from these produce plants that fruit abundantly. Mr. Cole is the second largest grower of nursery stock in the state.

Henry Kohankie & Son have a rapidly growing business and occupy 300 acres of land. Their specialty is ornamental evergreen shade and lawn trees. They also handle hardy herbaceous plants and garden roses for landscape work, their trade being largely with landscape architects. As a leader they grow large quantities of Magnolia glauca, which native tree, when grown in the nursery, will move safely and is indispensable in landscape work. In their specialties they aim to have all things listed grown in quantity, as it was very annoying to run out of stock and turn down, at times, a good customer, compelling him to go elsewhere. Magnolia trees, to move safely, should be grown on their own roots. Most of these are now imported from Holland. The Chinese magnolias, grown on Acuminata stock, would not move after two years old, and then had to be destroyed. Mr. Kohankie stated that thirty to thirty-five firms had about 2,500 acres devoted to nursery stock in the neighborhood of Painesville, and that this competition had been very beneficial in that it is now known as the center of the nursery trade of the United States and is the Mecca for all buyers of this class of stock.

Labeling Plants in Exhibits.

At the recent New York show, the Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., introduced a system by which it was possible to quickly ascertain the name of any plant in a large collection. A small wire rod in each pot supported a numbered card which, while not conspicuous, was legible and readily seen from the aisle. Printed slips, containing the names of all the varieties in the collection, numbered as in the display, were given to visitors, who could mark the names that attracted them and keep for future reference. This is an excellent idea which worked out to the great satisfaction of the visitors.

PORTLAND, ORE.—Geo. Betz has opened a store on Grand avenue, stock for which will be supplied by his Woodmeer range.

PLANT NOTES.

Hydrangeas.

There are very few plants that are generally grown that show more variance in their culture or in the returns to the grower than the hydrangeas, especially those that are grown for summer blooming. In looking over the stocks in the several markets one will often see the extremes of these plants grown in the same sized pot: one with eight to ten heads of bloom, short and stocky with fine foliage, an ornament on any porch or in any yard; and the other tall and long jointed, with two or three heads of bloom and five or six branches with no flowers and the foliage thin and small; the former bringing the grower $2.00 to $2.50 and the latter hardly averaging 75 cents. Yet these two plants have practically cost the grower the same amount of labor. These plants grow rapidly and must have plenty of room, an abundance of sun and lots of nourishment. It is useless to try to grow a good plant when they are crowded together. Many growers finish these plants by raising the pots over the benches of bedding plants that do not now require the full amount of sun, placing the hydrangeas about four feet apart in the center of the bench and standing the pot on a stand two feet above the other plants. This gives the hydrangeas a fine location. When the plants have set their buds the pots will probably be full of roots and a watering of liquid manure once or twice a week will greatly assist them in finishing up the flower and keep the foliage in good color. To grow good hydrangeas they must have plenty of food, room enough to grow shapely and for the air to circulate all around the plant and a light, well ventilated location. Under these conditions they are easily grown and are remunerative to the grower.

Lilium Longiflorum.

Among the best flowers for greenhouse culture during the summer months is the Lilium lancifolium, of varieties rubrum, roseum album and Melpomene. While these varieties can all be grown outside, yet under those conditions they rarely give perfect flowers and they also tarnish quickly in the direct rays of the sun or under heavy rains, and to have flowers that can be used for decorative work or designs it is far better to grow them under glass. Those that are to bloom in July should have been started in March, but for August blooming they can be planted now. One of the easiest ways to grow these bulbs is to plant them in boxes from four to six inches deep, not too large, but of a size that one man can handle when filled with soil. Do not fill the boxes too full when planting the bulbs, for like all lilies they throw out roots at the surface, so it is well to leave room for top dressing later. Grow them in a cool, shady location and after the spikes begin to grow give them plenty of water and keep them tied erect to stakes. Constant fumigation will be necessary to keep the green fly in check. This is in no way forcing these bulbs, and if properly dried off after blooming the bulbs may be grown year after year and a good crop of flowers obtained.

Freecias.

Although the freecias are a cheap bulb they should not be thrown away, for it takes but little attention to ripen them off after they are through blooming and as good bulbs can be procured as those that are purchased. The freecia is a native of southern Africa, so they are blooming at the natural season when flowered in midwinter in the north. But the bulbs must be allowed to mature their growth and then dried off gradually. The pots or boxes in which they are grown can then be placed in full sunlight and allowed to become very dry. A shelf near the glass makes an admirable place on which to place them after the growth has finished and no more watering is required, but they must not stand where any drip from the roof on a stormy day is liable to keep them moist. They can be shaken out in June and the bulbs started, as it is comparatively easy to select the flowering bulbs and store in a dry place until wanted for planting. For Christmas blooming the bulbs should be started early in July and a succession of plantings until September will give the grower flowers until the following spring.

Gypsophila Paniculata.

There are few summer flowers that are of more use to the florist having a local trade than the gypsophila, for it lightens up work beautifully and greatly aids in softening the appearance of the summer flowers, many of which have a coarse look in floral work, and in bouquets, sprays and basket work the sprays are particularly useful. The grower not possessing a good bed of this should procure stock at once and plant them in a good, sunny position, and after once becoming established they require no further attention than to keep the bed free from weeds and occasionally cultivated. Seed can be now sown and as soon as large enough transplanted in rows outside where they can remain until another spring, when they can be again transplanted to permanent quarters, but to have plants that will bloom this year it will be necessary to procure older stock. The double form of this plant is even more beautiful than the single for some purposes, and its lasting qualities make it more valuable for a cut flower than the older variety.

Celosia Plumosa.

The plants of Celosia plumosa or the ostrich plume celosia are of very easy culture and make very showy plants for either the garden or the greenhouse. They form pyramidal bushes and the yellow and red plumes which resemble ostrich feathers stand gracefully above the foliage. While they make showy plants for the garden, finer specimens are grown under glass, and they make very showy plants in the late summer and fall. Seed sown in April will make fine plants for culture during the summer, but like all the celosias the young seedlings damp off easily. As soon as large enough they should be potted in good light soil in 2½-inch pots and later shifted to 4-inch to grow large plants to 6-inch pots. They should be grown in a good, strong light, for if shaded the plants will become drawn and the dwarf, compact plants are more desirable. C. plumosa aurea, the orange ostrich plume, and C. plumosa coccinea, the crimson ostrich plume, are the two best of the older varieties, and Pride of Castle Gould, a new introduction of the last few years, is the best of all the ostrich plume varieties and can be obtained in many colors.

Some eight months ago, the writer published in the trade press an account of the nephrolepis collection at the Brooklyn Botanic Garden, together with a suggestion for a means of co-operation between the garden and florists which would be of mutual benefit. The offer made in behalf of the garden was to send out small plants of named varieties from a list then published as far as duplicates were available, the purpose being to aid florists in the building up of collections and testing new varieties. Second, the garden offered to act as a bureau of information regarding these ferns, and, in this connection, offered to send out copies of a reprint of the nephrolepis article from the New Standard Cyclopaedia of Horticulture. Florists were asked in return to send information to correct or supplement the statements in the article, and also to send plants of varieties not on the list. The present statement is in the nature of a report on the results obtained with a further offer of co-operation on the same lines as before.

About 200 copies of the nephrolepis article have been sent out, the great majority to commercial growers. Several hundred small plants have been distributed in lots varying from five to 30 different kinds, according to what was available. These have gone to all corners of the United States, and applications have come from Australia and New Zealand. A considerable number of florists have thus been able to build up collections for exhibition purposes, and at least one grower expects to add one form so obtained to the list offered in a mail order catalogue.

The nephrolepis investigation work at the garden has also profited. The collection of nephrolepis forms has more than doubled. The list previously published included 40 named sports of N. exaltata Bostoniensis. The present list includes 70. Of varieties of other species, 15 names were given before. Now there are 50 names. It should be noted that I say "50 names," not 50 varieties. Some of these names are undoubtedly synonyms. The list of actually distinct forms may not be more than 30, but it is yet impossible certainly to determine the proper names for these varieties or the exact number of different kinds. The difficulty in correctly classifying these forms is due in part to carelessness and inaccuracy on the part of growers and others and in part to the fact that the classification of the original species of nephrolepis is an unusually difficult problem.

Besides the named varieties a considerable number of unnamed kinds have been sent in for experimental growing to the number of at least 50. When full grown plants of all kinds are developed it will undoubtedly be found that some of these unnamed forms are duplicates of varieties already in the trade. It is safe to say, however, that the present living collection at the garden includes at least 125 distinct varieties of nephrolepis.

About 30 of this increase of 60 odd kinds have been obtained by purchase from English and French growers. The remainder have been received through the co-operation of American growers and botanic gardens. The United States bureau of plant industry through its office of foreign introduction is now co-operating through its agents in all parts of the tropics, who are collecting specimens of the wild forms to be grown and compared with the types under cultivation.

The writer has continued his visits to commercial establishments through the aid of a grant of $100 from the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Growers in Columbus and Springfield, O., and in and about Boston, New York, and Philadelphia have been visited, some of them several times. A great deal of valuable information has been gained in this way. A partial scientific report of the study of these plants has been published in the May number of the bulletin of the Torrey Botanic Club, and reprinted as Contributions Number 13 of the Brooklyn Botanic Garden. Further reports are in preparation.

In the meantime the facilities of the collection continue to be available for the benefit of florists. Small plants of named varieties will be sent on application as far as the stock of duplicates allows. Definite applications for few and specific varieties will receive preference over general application but all will be served as far as possible. If general applications are made for the purpose of building up collections of varieties, the request for specimens should include a list of the kinds already being grown to avoid duplication.

Not all the varieties listed here are available for distribution, although there is a much larger assortment than last year. Some have only recently been received from England and there has been insufficient time for propagation of small plants. Others, especially some in the second group, are very slow to reproduce, or so large and require so much space that it has not been possible to give them bench room. In general, the varieties in the second group are mostly of little commercial value in the United States except for large collections.

Perhaps the collection can find its greatest value for florists as a clearing house of information about nephrolepis forms. How this might work out was suggested recently by a well known grower of the New York district. As president of one of the local growers' associations he received occasional requests for an opinion as to the value and distinctiveness of some supposedly new form of nephrolepis sent in by some florist of the district. The only means of answering such a question would be by reference to some practically complete collection of these forms. The writer will be glad to answer questions along this line and regarding any other phase of interest in connection with these ferns. Visitors are welcome at any time.

HEAVY OUT-OF-TOWN DEMAND.
 The market is well supplied with stock and the end of the week should show even larger quantities, sufficient to meet the requirements of the largest volume of Easter business the trade in this city has ever experienced, the out-of-town demand being very heavy. Roses are in good supply and excellent American Beauties may be had. Carnations are also plentiful and generally are of good quality. The sweet pea receipts are also ample to meet all requirements, and have a fairly good call. Jonquils, daffodils, hyacinths and tulips are also in fair supply. Callas are fairly plentiful. Other offerings include excellent snapdragons, gladioli, lily of the valley, violets, marguerites and a few primroses. Greens are plentiful.

NOTES.

Louis Roth arranged a very pretty wedding decoration at the Hotel Alms last week which was very favorably commented upon.
 Roy Rudolph and Miss Irene Markus will be married April 18, at the Evanston Presbyterian church.
 H. W. Meckstroh has opened a new flower store in Clifton under the name of the Clifton Floral Co.
 The regular meeting of the florists' society will be held Monday, April 9, at the Hotel Gibson.
 C. E. Critchell has been showing American Beauties of excellent quality.
 Visitors: Wm. Rodgers, Dayton, O.; Mrs. J. J. Lampert and Floyd Anderson, Xenia, O.; Miss Fannie White and O. Honaker, Lexington, Ky.; H. C. Schults, Roanoke, Va.; Clark Marion, Overpeck, O. H.

Horticultural Society of New York.

The fall exhibition of this society will be held November 8-11 at the American Museum of Natural History. A schedule of classes and premiums for this exhibition is now being prepared and will be ready for distribution shortly. The following classes and premiums, open to all, for chrysanthemum plants have already been decided upon:

Specimen bushes, not less than 14-inch pots:

	First	Second

Worcester, Mass.

Heralded by an attractive full-page advertisement in the daily press, Randall's new flower shop at 22 Pearl street, Worcester, Mass., opened its doors to the public, March 31, and the handsome establishment, up-to-date in every appointment, planned by Frederick Coulson, architect, was thronged during the day and evening with admiring visitors. There was a gorgeous display of cut flowers and blooming plants and floral souvenirs were presented. If a successful opening is an omen of a flourishing business, this beautiful store, transformed to meet the steadily growing trade, year after year, will be a very busy establishment.

The Late Arthur Martin Kirby.

Arthur Martin Kirby, long connected with Peter Henderson & Co., well-known New York seedsmen, who for a number of years compiled the catalogues of that firm, at which work he was considered one of the most adept in the United States, died suddenly at his home in Montclair, N. J., March 26, aged 58 years.

Mr. Kirby was born in Ohio in 1859, but his family moved to Martinsburg, West Va., shortly after the civil war. In 1876 he entered the employ of Peter Henderson at the greenhouses in Jersey City and later was placed in charge of the flower-seed, bulb and implement department of Peter Henderson & Co., continuing in their employ until the time of his death.

He was extremely fond of flowers and maintained a very interesting garden at his home, where he tried out many new varieties from all sources. He was a versatile writer, with a strong power of imagination and his descriptive matter, particularly on flowers and bulbs, was most effective in his catalogue work. He was also the author of "Narcissus, Daffodils, and How to Grow Them." Mr. Kirby was very partial to sweet peas and was considered an authority on varieties. He was elected vice-president of the American Sweet Pea Society in 1914. He was a genial, companionable man, although he was not actively identified to any great extent with horticultural organizations. He was very popular with his fellow-workmen. Mr. Kirby was married and leaves twin daughters and one grandchild.

PATRICK O'MARA.

NEW ALBANY, IND.—Felix Losson has entered into partnership with his father, the firm to be known as Joseph Losson & Son.

DALLAS, TEX.—The Texas Seed & Floral Co., the Lang Floral & Nursery Co. and Alex Miller suffered glass damage from hail February 23.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—Mrs. O. J. Olson, wife of the well-known member of the firm of Holm & Olson, underwent a successful operation at a local hospital and is improving rapidly.

CHIFFON is still a scarce item with the florist supply jobbers.

THE publicity given the garden movement is noteworthy. More than 20 weekly newspapers in leading Illinois cities are running gardening articles regularly.

LATEST Dutch reports, unconfirmed, are that freight steamers are coming to America in ballast to load provisions for return trips. If the above is true the spring bulbs and nursery stock expected will not come forward.

New York Flower Show Correction.

In Class 310 calling for climbing pink specimen rose, first prize was awarded to A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.; F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., second, instead of vice versa as previously reported through an error on the part of the jurors judging this class, and was in no way caused by either of the exhibitors involved.

Association of Kew Gardeners in America.

Members, their ladies and horticultural friends to the number of about 30 attended the second annual banquet of the Association of Kew Gardeners in America, at Shanley's, New York, March 16, the event proving a most enjoyable affair. During the business meeting several important matters were discussed and the present officers re-elected as follows: Montague Free, president; James McPherson, vice-president; S. R. Candler, Southampton, N. Y., secretary-treasurer.

Flowers From Cuba.

Under date of January 26, 1917, the following communication recommending the placing of restrictions on cut flowers from Cuba was sent to the Secretary of the Treasury by Secretary D. F. Houston of the United States department of agriculture:

"It has been brought to the attention of this department by the state plant board of Florida that there is considerable danger of importing plant pests with cut flowers, especially roses, from Cuba. The rules and regulations under the Plant Quarantine Act of August 20, 1912, governing the importation into the United States of all plants covered under the definition of nursery stock in this act prohibit the entry of such stock unless a permit therefor has been granted by this department and unless the invoice is accompanied by an original certificate and each container bears a copy certificate issued by a duly authorized official of the country from which it is exported, stating that the nursery stock covered by the certificate has been thoroughly inspected by him or under his direction, and found or believed to be free from injurious plant diseases and insect pests. Cut roses and other cut flowers of woody perennial plants are included in the definition of nursery stock. You are therefore respectfully requested to issue the necessary instructions to customs officials in the state of Florida to refuse entry to roses and other cut flowers of woody perennial plants, except under permit and upon compliance with the other conditions governing entry as set forth above.

"There is no objection to allowing passengers from Havana to bring cut flowers aboard ship, but it is recommended that the inspectors at Havana be instructed to notify passengers that such flowers must not be landed; and that the inspectors at the Florida ports be instructed not to allow the flowers to be brought ashore. The horticultural inspectors of the state of Florida, who are also collaborators of this department, stationed at the various Florida ports of entry, will be glad to assist in the enforcement of these instructions."

Pursuant to the above, the treasury department issued the following instructions to Florida customs officers under date of February 7, 1917:

"The Collector of Customs, Tampa, Fla.
"Sir: I enclose herewith for your information and guidance a copy of a letter received from the department of agriculture under date of January 26, calling attention to the fact that the state plant board of Florida has stated that there is considerable danger of importing plant pests with cut flowers, especially roses, from Cuba.

"You will, as suggested by the secretary of agriculture, refuse entry to roses and other cut flowers of woody perennial plants except under permit and upon compliance with the other conditions governing entry, as set forth in his letter.

"It will be noted that there is no objection to allowing passengers from Havana to bring cut flowers aboard ship, but it is recommended that the passengers be notified that such flowers must not be landed.

JAMES W. BEVANS,
Acting Chief Division of Customs."

Hollyhock Rust Control.

According to plant disease specialists at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., April is the time to take the first steps in combating hollyhock rust. Just as soon as the frost is out of the ground, examine each plant carefully and cut off close to the ground all large old leaves that have overwintered, leaving only the central heart with the small young green foliage. All old leaves and stems should be burned. It is on the old leaves and partly developed large leaves that the pathogene or disease causing organism winters, ready to affect the new leaves as fast as they appear. Next, examine the lawn or garden for a distance of from 50 to 100 feet in every direction and remove all mallows, which is a persistent and difficult weed to eradicate on account of its long stock-like root. This plant harbors the rust fungus, and is particularly favorable to it, as the disease can develop on it without killing it, and the fungus will spread from these to the hollyhock plants at every opportunity.

During the first six or eight weeks of the growing season, the hollyhocks should be examined carefully two or three times a week for any evidence of yellow rust pustules which will appear on the leaves, the leaf stems and on the stalks when the plants begin to make shoots, examining particularly the first set of leaves which develop. If yellow pustules appear on the leaves the whole leaf should be cut off. It will not be sufficient to pull off the leaf leaving the old petiole, because the fungus may be in that also. The plants may at first look rather ragged, but if they are to come through in good shape later even a large leaf with only one rust spot upon it should be destroyed. Spraying and dusting of plants with insecticides has been tried but the results have never been very satisfactory.

Lancaster County Florists' Association.

Having a notification from the Reading florists that they were coming to visit us, we had been hoping for good weather and good roads, but Dame Nature would not have it that way, and instead of the delightful automobile trips we had planned, we were reduced to trolley service. J. Stanley Giles, John Downing, J. C. Bauder, Fulmer Lauck, Layton Butts, Frederick Frank, Alfred Loudon and Lee P. Arnold were the visitors and were met by Elmer Weaver, Harry Rohrer, B. F. Barr and the writer, and after lunch were taken to the M. J. Brinton establishment at Christiana by trolley with some 18 of our own boys as company. Mr. Brinton is the bulb king of this section and his place was quite an eye-opener to our visitors. He grows about 50,000 Spanish iris, about a quarter of a million lily bulbs and other stock in proportion, all of which is handled with the knowledge and care that produces 100 per cent results; of course there are some bulbs come blind, but that is the fault of the bulb. A batch of 3,000 gladioli produced less than 100 spikes; they were cold storage stock, and the small percentage of bloom is ascribed to this fact. They did, however, make excellent bulbs, but the production of bulbs in a greenhouse is an expensive proposition. Mr. Brinton, in addition to his bulb houses, has a block of Lord & Burnham houses devoted to carnations, and while not as good as he has had them on previous occasions, they were the envy of some of the growers looking them over, especially his Supreme. After the trip through the houses, Mr. Brinton acted as host and gave us a treat in a temperance cafe, where we spent a very enjoyable half hour waiting for our car.

Unfortunately on account of the time at our disposal we had to skip a number of places along this Christiana route, and places that our visitors would have enjoyed every much, but with only a few hours to do it in we had to jump from Christiana to Elmer and Chas. M. Weaver's at Ronk's, where sweet peas were to be seen in houses that made you tired to walk from end to end. Charles is the sweet pea grower and has some very good stock, houses being planted at different times coming along to keep the high quality of the cut. He also has a house of mignonette that has produced some grand stock, but is now being torn out to make room for his asters, of which he grows too many to count, all of them the early varieties. At Elmer's, we found a fine lot of seedling carnations, houses of the older varieties, and a good big batch of young stock. One of the carnation houses is not a carnation house—it is a sweet pea house with carnations. The carnations did fairly well before the sweet peas reached their six foot height, but are now beginning to suffer from the shade.

Getting back to Lancaster, a hurried trip was made to the B. F. Barr greenhouses, where we found the usual variety of stock being grown for store purposes, all of it being high in quality and superabundant for store needs. The sweet peas here, while not so numerous as at Weaver's, were the finest we saw all day. The new packing and warehouse building came in for its share of appreciation.

From Barr's we cut loose from business and went to the B. P. O. E. for a dinner ordered by H. A. Schroyer and A. M. Herr, and 18 of us ate a beefsteak dinner that could not be beaten for quality anywhere this side of the Atlantic. H. A. Schroyer entertained the visitors by roasting Chas. B. Herr and myself, and with a few good political stories.

The next call was the Chamber of Commerce rooms, where the meeting was called to order promptly at 7:30, and remarks were made by the visitors acknowledging their appreciation of their visit and inviting us to Reading. After seeing them on the car for home the meeting readjourned and Thomas Fries gave a very instructive talk on bulbs and other stock for Easter. He was given the thanks of the club. Albert M. Herr gave a resume of the proceedings of the Philadelphia club as we call their express meeting, and it was sincerely hoped that the New York meeting on March 16 will bring results. The question of coal prices was brought up, and there is not any one who has contracted at a less price than twice what he paid for this season's supply, many of them paying even more than double. If we do not raise our prices then we should adopt for our motto, Shakespeare's quotation, "What fools we mortals be." When you go to the coal man he says: "I'm sorry, but this is the price for next season." You are also sorry, but you sign your contract all the same. Why not say to your customer: "I'm sorry, but I will have to have this extra few cents for my plants this season in order to meet my own expenses"? If they really want the plant or flowers, they will readily pay the slight increase, the same as they are doing all along the line, and if they do not you are better off not to sell for your last year's price, which, in spite of all you can say or do, is a price that represents actual loss. George F. Leonard, of The Kentucky Tobacco Products Co., Louisville, gave a very interesting talk on Nico Fume, its uses, etc. For the next meeting J. Wade Galey will give us a paper on carnations. ALBERT M. HERR.

GOOD EASTER TRADE IN SIGHT.

Business is fair. The demand has kept up steadily, and generally has taken up most offerings in good order. The supply for the Easter trade seems to be adequate. Roses are in fair supply and carnations are more plentiful. Sweet peas are abundant, and prove to be a good seller. The supply of bulbous stock at times is larger than the market can easily take care of. Callas are short on this market but there is a good supply of Easter lilies. Some excellent snapdragons are arriving. Asparagus is very scarce. Pot stock for Easter is looking good, and prices are normal. Made up pans and baskets will sell well this year. There will be a large variety of foliage and blooming plants to select from and it looks as though the supply will exceed the demand.

NOTES.

Mrs. M. F. Pollock, who moved from her location on Franklin street, is now on Beacon avenue, and has larger quarters and a better location.

Westminster Greenhouses have an exceptionally fine showing of pot stock for the Easter trade. H. A. T.

Sensational New American Bedding Rose

"Los Angeles"

(Howard & Smith, 1917)

NEW HYBRID-TEA ROSE, LOS ANGELES.

It is a great pleasure to be able to offer such a meritorious new Rose, particularly so, one of American origin, and we believe that this splendid variety is only the forerunner of other equally good sorts "Made in America".

We have not only seen the originators' great field of it in California, but have also had the opportunity of watching the behavior of a dozen plants in our own trial beds the past Summer, under what has been one of the most trying seasons we have ever experienced and it has given a most satisfactory account of itself in strong, vigorous growth and in freedom of bloom, in which it was not equalled by any other variety in its first season after planting.

Following is the originators' description:

"Los Angeles is, by all odds, one of the finest Roses ever introduced. The growth is very vigorous and produces a continuous succession of long stemmed flowers of a luminous flame pink toned with coral and shaded with translucent gold at the base of the petals. In richness of fragrance it equals in intensity the finest Marechal Neil. The buds are long and pointed and expand into a flower of mammoth proportions, while the beauty of form and ever increasing wealth of color is maintained from the incipient bud until the last petal drops."

Unlike many of the new imported Roses, the plants are extra heavy two year old stock, which should give a full crop of flowers this season. Price, heavy two year budded plants, $1.50 each.

We make a specialty of two-year-old Roses, budded plants and such that will please your customers for spring planting. Our stock has all been potted up during the winter months, stored cool, and will be in prime condition for April and May Planting. Our list contains not only all the select standard sorts, but many new sorts offered by us exclusively in the United States. For complete list of varieties see our current Wholesale List, January to June issue, which will be mailed upon request, only to persons engaged in horticulture commercially.

WARM WEATHER FORCES IN OVERSUPPLY.

Business during the month of March proved a record-breaker, surpassing all expectations and beyond all preparations. The demand for funeral work was very heavy as the death rate was the highest in the history of the city. The demand in other lines was also better than is usual during the Lenten period. During the past week the warm weather caused an increase in the supply of cut stock and many pot plants for Easter appear to be too forward and soft, especially lilies, thousands of which are wide open a week before time. Cut roses show improvement and prices are reasonable. Carnations and sweet peas are a drug on the market and the quality is not as good as might be desired. Bulbous stock of all kinds is coming from all directions, owing to the fact that the growers cannot hold it back.

NOTES.

Charles Thomas, formerly with Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co., has taken over the shares in the Rosery formerly owned by Ed. Ellsworth. The name Rosery will be continued. Mr. Ellsworth has also sold his farm at Independence to H. A. Delaney of Fall City, Neb., who will erect a range of glass on part of the property and raise hardy plants. Mr. Ellsworth will make his home at Forest Lake, where he will erect glass and grow for the wholesale trade.

W. J. Barnes reports the largest month's business in his history, especially in funeral work. This has helped to use up bulbous stock in large quantities, which brought good prices. His carnation crop has been exceptionally large and pot plants are fine. For Easter he will have a big line of plants and made-up baskets.

Easter supplies, especially in the basket line, are moving fast at the establishment of T. J. Noll & Co. Cut stock also sells well and the supply is plentiful. Preparations have been made for an exceptionally large Easter trade.

George M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. will have a fine line of pot plants for Easter. They have sold out their surplus of lilies and are now cutting plenty of carnations and roses, with American Beauty in better supply.

Samuel Murray will have one of the largest and choicest lines of Easter stock he has ever shown his patrons. Pot plants of all kinds, made-up baskets and novelties will be attractive features here as usual.

Captain Walter R. Barnes, son of W. J. Barnes, is once more doing military duty, as the local regiment has been called out. Captain Barnes is in command of Company K, Third Missouri.

Arthur Newell has added to his force E. C. Vossler, formerly of the Kimball Floral Co., Oskaloosa, Ia. Big preparations for Easter have been made at this establishment.

H. Kusik & Co. received a fine line of baskets and Easter supplies last week. The flower supply here is plentiful and moves fairly well.

Fred Fromholt has received a new Ford delivery car. Business has been far beyond his expectations.

STOCK PLENTIFUL WITH GOOD DEMAND.

Business quickly recovered from the dullness experienced during the beginning of Lent and trade may be said to be about normal again. There is plenty of stock of every description to be had. There is hardly a shortage in anything in the cut flower line. Roses are in large supply but prices have held fairly well in some cases, such as Russell and American Beauty, but other varieties are in such large supply that prices are ruling rather low. Carnations are still in over-supply. The St. Patrick's day demand cleaned up all the whites that were available. It seems that the coloring of white varieties has come to stay as far as this market is concerned. There was quite a large call for whites for the shipping trade also. The warm weather has knocked the color a bit on many of the pink and red varieties. There is quite a quantity of cut lilies arriving, but very few in pots as yet. They are of unusually good quality this season, showing that a fine grade of bulbs have been used. Prices are firm at about last week's figures. There is a very large supply of bulbous stock. Hyacinths, tulips, and daffodils can be had in any quantity. The supply of freesias is about done, the amount arriving now being very small. Violets are arriving in very large quantities, with prices about as usual, the street vendors disposing of enormous quantities daily. Sweet peas are daily becoming more plentiful. The warm weather is having a good effect on the quality of the flowers. Very few of the winter flowering Spencers are to be seen, but these, when in the market, bring a much better figure than the old winter flowering varieties. Orchids and gardenias are plentiful with no great call for them just at present. Vast quantities of flowering fruit blooms are to be had in any color. Acacias are shortening up rapidly, owing to the warm weather. There is a fine display of pot plants at all the stores, azaleas being especially favored. Some grand Azalea Hinodegerii are to be had. This beautiful evergreen azalea is very popular in this state, both for pot work and outdoor planting. Well grown ramblers, cyclamen and primulas are here in plenty. Erica Melanthera, splendidly grown, is seen in all the windows. Greens are becoming more plentiful with pleasant weather. Adiantums are perhaps the only item of which more could be used if the supply was not so short.

Canna YELLOW KING HUMBERT

(Emund's Queen Helen)

The Best Canna Novelty

This sport of King Humbert has the same habit of growth in the plants but with very dark green foliage and flower stalks excelling those of the King Humbert. The flowers are rich deep yellow, well spotted with red. Some plants occasionally give a scarlet or a scarlet-striped flower which is an effective and striking variation. In a bed or border the mass of trusses excel those of any other variety we know of.

We give below the opinion of Canna experts on this novelty:

W. W. COLES says: "This variety at a distance of one-half mile loomed up above everything else, and it was at first difficult to believe that a Canna could make such a beautiful showing at that distance. When this variety becomes known, I feel sure it will fill a place among the Yellow Cannas fully as important as King Humbert has among the reds."

STORRS & HARRISON say: "This is a wonderful new 'sport' from King Humbert, bearing the same graceful heart-shaped leaves, but richly all green instead of bronze; the same regal type and immense size of flower, but a brilliant Yellow instead of red, and produced much more abundantly. We predict for it a career fully equal to its red-flowered, dark-leaved parent."

GOOD & REESE say: "Immense flowers that are as large as the Orchid-flowering Cannas. Color golden-yellow evenly and distinctly spotted red. This Canna ranks right up with King Humbert. We have no hesitancy in saying there is no better Canna grown."

Price $20.00 per 100; $3.00 per doz.

NOTES.

The co-operation of the United States board of forestry has been secured for the great wild flower fete, to be held at the Fairmont hotel, April 24-28. One of its features will be its display of California trees, each tree of which will be labeled in order that those wishing to become acquainted with the various species of tree growth indigenous to this state may find the study greatly simplified. Mary Alice King will supply a miniature wild flower garden in one section of the Norman room, where the fete will be held. Carl Purdy, the well known California wild plant specialist, will also stage a large exhibit. Professor P. B. Kennedy, of the University of California, is planning an extensive and scientifically classified display of the state's flora. Mark Daniels, former national superintendent of parks, is director of the show, assisted by C. K. Bovestell, Jr. The daily papers are giving the show their hearty support and its success seems assured.

This state officially recognized the worth and work of Luther Burbank at Sacramento on March 7, which was his sixty-eighth birthday. An excellent picture of Mr. Burbank, surrounded by large quantities of flowers, was placed on view by Senator H. W. Slater, who hails from Burbank's home town. Senator Slater, on the invitation of Lieut.-Governor Stephens, spoke of the distinction offered California by numbering Burbank among its citizens. He called attention to the fact that throughout California thousands of school children would plant trees and shrubs in honor of Burbank. Burbank was forwarded a handsome rose-embossed birthday book, which contained the autographs of Governor Johnson, Lieut.-Governor Stephens, and the members of the senate. It was emblazoned with the great seal of the state of California.

A meeting of the California Dahlia Growers' Association was held last week at the Palace hotel to decide upon show dates and to discuss ways and means for bringing about amalgamation with the California Dahlia Society. Among those advocating the union were: A. W. Porter, T. A. Burns, Jessie Seal, A. Twitchell and C. S. Quick, secretary of the association. No decision was reached, however. It was decided to hold a dahlia show at the Palace hotel, with a charge for admission, in September, two weeks before the California Dahlia Society show at the Hotel St. Francis.

The various large nurseries near this city are doing a large volume of business this season. Roses, in particular, have cleaned up well, there being hardly any good stock left over. The demand for large ornamentals is unusually heavy. The same has been true of many fruit tree stocks. All things considered, it is proving one of the best planting seasons in years.

Daniel MacRorie left for an extended eastern trip a few days ago. He expects to be away for several weeks. His firm is very busy just at present and have added a new 5-ton White truck to their delivery service. T. Fenton is still on the sick list and the nursery is under the watchful eye of Andrew McDonald.

EARLY EASTER DEMAND IS GOOD.

The early Easter demand is good at this writing and much heavier than last year. Stock of all kinds is plentiful and from present indications there will be plenty of nearly everything to go around, although it would not be at all surprising if the market cleaned up completely before the rush is over, which, of course, will depend largely upon the local demand. With favorable weather the local demand should exceed all expectations, for plants are unusually scarce and while the retail florists are pretty heavily stocked at present an early clean-up may be expected, consequently cut flowers will be pushed more than in former years and with the reasonable prices that are prevailing everyone feels like taking a change and when large displays are made the public cannot resist the temptation to buy. The quality of the cut flowers in general that are being offered is all that one could desire. American Beauty roses are in exceptionally large supply this year in the medium and longer stemmed grades and are in good demand owing to their splendid quality. Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are in good supply but an early cleanup is in sight for this variety. Ophelia is in good crop but is selling well and is always a favorite with the buyers. Killarney, White Killarney, Killarney Brilliant and all the other varieties grown for this market are arriving in large quantities, including a splendid grade of My Maryland and Champ Weiland. The miniature roses Baby Doll, Cecile Brunner, George Elgar and Fireflame appear to be plentiful but should clean up early. Carnations are more plentiful for Easter than was at first expected, but are selling well and seem to be cleaning up as nicely as can be expected. Orchids are in good supply but that there will be no surplus, is the general opinion of all the dealers. Gardenias should move quickly. Lily of the valley is in large supply and will no doubt be disposed of early, but the demand the past week on this item has been rather weak, consequently it was sold at lower prices than at any other time this season. Lilies and callas are good property and are commanding high prices. Snapdragons are seen in large quantities at several of the stores, but the demand seems to keep pace with the supply. Sweet peas are in brisk demand and will probably be in short supply before the end of the week, for the dealers do not appear to be any too anxious to accept too many orders just yet. Violets are more plentiful than last Easter but everyone expects to experience an early clean-up on first-class stock. Spanish iris is to be had but not in any great quantities. Calendulas, mignonette, daisies, freesias, anemones, lupines, pansies, forget-me-nots and other miscellaneous seasonal stock is included in the many offerings and is having a good call. Bulbous stock is in good supply, especially tulips and southern jonquils. Taken all in all, the offerings in cut flowers is complete in almost every respect and the supply is large with prices reasonable. Plants of all kinds have been in exceptionally heavy demand and cleaned up early, particularly lilies and azaleas, which had the best call. Many of the growers were unable to fill all their orders in full and report the most satisfactory cleanup in years. Business for the month of March has not been nearly as good as it might be and the general report is that sales are about 20 to 25 per cent behind those of the same month of 1916.

NOTES.

A. Lange had a splendid quarter page advertisement in the Rotogravure section of the Chicago Sunday Tribune, April 1, devoted entirely to cut Easter lilies quoted at $1.50, $2.00 and $3.00 per dozen, according to the length of stems. The W. W. Barnard Co. also had a quarter page in the Rotogravure section featuring vegetable seeds. Vaughan's Seed Store's four column advertisement, twelve inches deep, well up in the front section of the same issue, was cleverly prepared and attracted much favorable attention.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. never had such a heavy demand for Easter plants as it did this year and sold out completely in all lines as early as last week. Lilies and azaleas had the best call, with ramblers roses, hydrangeas and rhododendrons a close second. Palms also are moving quickly, and, judging from the heavy demand this firm is experiencing for cut flowers and supplies, this will be the best Easter that this company has experienced in years.

Percy Jones' establishment had a narrow escape from being destroyed by fire last Saturday, March 31, when a blaze broke out at noon in the kitchen of the Perfecto underneath. The smoke was so thick in the Percy Jones establishment that it could be cut with a knife, but outside of a little unpleasantness no real damage was experienced.

The well-known wholesale firm of Zech & Mann was twelve years old Thursday, March 29. The total sales the past year were the largest in the history of the firm, which is due principally to the able management of Allie Zech, who is always on the job early and late, looking after the wants of their many customers.

Matt Mann, Herman Schiller, R. J. Windler and Charles Hunt visited Alois P. Frey's Rose Lawn Nurseries, at Crown Point, Ind., Friday, March 30, making the trip by auto in Mr. Hunt's machine. The Rose Lawn Nurseries are better known as the home of the Rainbow freesias.

Peter Reinberg is well pleased with the outlook for Easter for the early demand has been exceptionally heavy and compares most favorably with that of last year. Manager Felix Reichling is confident of a grand cleanup in all lines before the rush is over.

F. G. Hely is now manager of The Rapid Wrapper Co., 56 East Randolph street, manufacturers of the Rapid Rapper, the greatest time-saving wrapping device known to the florists' trade. The local sales branch of The Rapid Wrapper Co. has been incorporated for $25,000.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is handling a large supply of Narcissus Poeticus in addition to a complete line of all other seasonable stock. The Easter demand is exceptionally heavy at this establishment and everything points to a record-breaking trade.

H. E. Philpott, of Winnipeg, Can., is helping out A. T. Pyfer & Co. during the Easter rush. Mrs. Philpott is seriously ill at Minneapolis, Minn., where she has been under the care of a physician since January.

Kennicott Bros. Co. is rapidly building up a nice shipping trade and the report at this house is that the out-of-town demand last week was exceptionally good and away head of the same week of last year.

Nicholas Lemperis is the proud father of a baby girl who gladdened his home on April 1. He does the buying in the wholesale market for Mangel, the Palmer House Florist.

J. A. Budlong reports a heavy out-of-town demand for stock for Easter, and everything indicates that the city trade will also be exceptionally heavy owing to the scarcity of plants.

A. Miller, of the American Bulb Company, has returned from a business trip to St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minn. He reports a scarcity of lilies in the twin cities for Easter.

O. A. & L. A. Tenner report a brisk demand for Spanish iris, which they are handling in addition to a large quantity of fancy snapdragons and other seasonable stock.

Fred Lautenschlager, with Kroeschell Bros. Co., is home from the east, where he represented his firm at the recent New York, Philadelphia and Boston flower shows.

F. O. Franzen has several nice orders booked for landscape gardening which he will give his personal attention to as soon as he is through with the Easter rush.

E. C. Pruner is home from a most successful trip through the southwest. Joe Marks, with A. Henderson & Co., is back from a southern trip.

TRADE EXTREMELY QUIET.

Business during the past week has been very slow, even funeral work being slack. This of course is caused by the "lull before the storm," as it were, the latter part of Lent always being slow. Roses of all kinds are plentiful and very good in quality. The cheaper grades move only at clean-up prices. Carnations are plentiful, but already show the effects of warm weather. Violets are soft and have no keeping qualities. Sweet peas are fine, and while they are coming in heavy, seem to move every day. This speaks well for Easter, as sweet peas are by far the biggest seller for Easter cut flowers and corsages. Callas and Easter lilies are a glut. Bulbous stock also crowds the counters. Greens of all kinds are none too plentiful.

NOTES.

The Retail Florists' Association had its monthly meeting March 26 with a large attendance. The principal business transacted was the adoption of a new constitution and by-laws. The new president, F. H. Weber, is getting into swing in a hurry.

G. H. Angermueller had to get busy himself the past week packing shipments of supplies for the Easter trade, especially with Harry (Spitz) Schlecter hobbling around with a lame foot.

The local retailers all seem to take a special pride in their window displays. No matter what section of town you go to, the window displays always are attractive.

Ed Westman, of Scruggs-Vandervoort & Barney, states he has 10,000 pots of lilies which he is going to sell at 50 cents per pot as an advertising

One of the daily newspapers had a half-page illustrated article in the Sunday edition March 25 on the Easter corsage and how necessary it was.

Some big decorations are booked for Holy Thursday and Easter according to reports from a number of retailers, feature for Easter.

INDICATIONS OF SHORT EASTER SUPPLY.

The past week's business was quiet, and the florists took advantage of this condition to make extensive preparations for Easter. The weather has been very warm and has affected the greenhouse stock to a great extent. Flowers in general will not be very plentiful for Easter; roses especially will be at a premium, while Easter lilies will only be in moderate supply and will retail at 30 cents per bloom on the plants. In all pot and bulbous plants the prices will be correspondingly higher.

NOTES.

The gardening movement has been taken up in Fort Wayne by the public schools. Advertising is carried in the local papers with printed coupons which entitle the holder to the privilege of working vacant lots for gardening purposes the entire summer. Last year one thousand children cultivated gardens, one small boy netting a profit of $150 on one city lot and doing all the work himself.

Harry Doswell, landscape architect, is drawing plans to landscape Harrison Hill, an exclusive real estate addition.

Edgar Wenninghoff is driving a new Ford touring car and expects to do a large Easter business.

H. K.

MANKATO, MINN.—The Windmill Floral Co. will make extensive alterations at its establishment this spring.

LONDON, ONT.—After a careful survey of the large ranges in this vicinity, it is estimated that the supply of stock for Easter will be 30 to 40 per cent below normal this year.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—Holm & Olson are planning to erect a large cold storage warehouse to care for their increasing spring and fall trade and guard against climatic conditions.

TRADE UNAFFECTED BY LENT.

The Lenten season has had no effect on the trade in this city; if anything, the demand during the past few weeks has been better than at any time since the holidays, increased by an unusual number of funerals, among them being those of a number of prominent residents. The weather is fine and the supply of flowers seems sufficient to meet all demands.

NOTES.

Geny Bros. arranged a handsome floral flag 2x3 feet which was presented to Ex-President Taft upon the occasion of his visit to this city recently. It was presented by the Knights of Columbus and was a very artistic piece of work. This firm is cutting some very good American Beauty at present and will have a plentiful supply of roses of all kinds for the Easter trade. Violets are done for and so are the azaleas, but there will be a nice lot of rhododendrons at this establishment.

Thomas H. Joy and wife have returned from St. Louis, where they attended the spring flower show. The Joy Floral Co. is cutting fine roses of all kinds, especially the Killarneys, Ophelia, Richmond, Ward and Cecile Brunner. This firm will have a fine line of plants for Easter, among them Spiraea Gladstone and a complete line of bulbous stock.

Mrs. Brown, the widow of Joe Brown, is still running the business, although she has not settled definitely on her future plans. She is at present superintending the work of several capable men and is meeting with good success. Trade has been good and she has a fine lot of stock that will be in right for Easter.

C. H. Tritchler is in the market every Saturday with a fine wagonload of blooming plants. Mr. Wain, of Stainback avenue, is also there with pot hyacinths of excellent quality.

Mr. Donahue, who was responsible for the large stock of rose plants and shrubbery put on sale here a few days ago, has sold out the entire stock except a few fruit trees.

MARKET BADLY OVERSTOCKED.

Poor weather and an overload of stock has crippled business considerably. The market has been flooded with all kinds of stock, especially lilies, callas and bulbous stock of all kinds. Some dealers claim the disagreeable weather had something to do with the decline in business; others say it was due, and now is the time. The outlook is there will not be a great deal of excitement in the flower business much before Easter. But taking it all as a whole, we will not complain very much as this has been a very good season all through and everyone seems satisfied. Carnations are still holding up well, the best selling at $3 per 100 and the mediums at $15 per 1,000. Roses still hold up in price and will continue until Easter, but we do not look for an advance much over present figures. Bulbous stock, such as tulips and daffodils, are sold at remarkably low prices. Lilies are very plentiful at present and many are sold at $6 per 100, the top price being $8. Many callas are arriving and suffer the same fate as the Longiflorum lilies. Sweet peas are cleaning up each day at fair prices. Snapdragons and yellow daisies are coming good and sell readily. Smilax and all other greens are very scarce.

NOTES.

Nearly all of the local plantsmen are sold out of good azaleas. The John Bader Co. sent out a card notifying the trade that it was sold up on azaleas, but has plenty of other good stock to offer.

The McCallum Co. is offering some very fine lilies and sweet peas to the trade this Easter. The supply department has been kept busy rushing orders out in time for Easter.

John Harris and John Manos, who have been on the sick list for the past two weeks, will soon be on the job again. George Marshall is back again after a brief illness.

George Wessenauer of Sewickley is preparing for a large Easter business this year. It is remarkable how he has increased his business in that select suburb.

Randolph & McClements have some very good blooming plants, but they will use them all for their retail business.

Ahe Krongold is making a fine display of plants and cut flowers in his new location on Liberty avenue.

With a scarcity of good plants for Easter, the cut flower business should see an increase this year.

Jos. Thomas of Greensburg has a fine lot of hydrangeas he is offering the trade this year.

H. J. Irwin has opened a new store in Monesson, Pa.

CLUB MEETING.

Brevity marked the meeting of the florists' club on the evening of March 29. Out of respect to Frederick Henkes, formerly president of the club, the meeting was adjourned after a few minutes' session and all boarded automobiles for the home of Mr. Henkes at Newtonville to express their sympathies on account of the death of his oldest son, Frederick J. Henkes, who was ill four days with erysipelas. The young man was 19 years old and was actively engaged in helping his father and uncles to conduct their business of wholesale florists. For the meeting, Roman J. Irwin of New York sent some exhibits of new carnations. Three were from S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., and two from the Cottage Gardens Co., Inc., Queens, N. Y. The three specimens grown by Mr. Goddard were: Laddie, a salmon pink, to be introduced in 1918; Doris, dark red; Rosalia, dark pink, introduced in 1917. The Cottage Gardens Co. contributed Crystal White, to be introduced in 1918, and Cottage Maid, light pink, to be introduced this year. The five varieties were favorably commented upon and had good points in four qualifications—size, color and length and strength of stem. Some violets, double and white, made up into a design were shown by James Snyder, a grower of Rhinebeck.

NOTE.

Among the recent visitors to the city was Patrick Welch, president of Welch Brothers Company of Boston. He was on his way from Montreal and stopped over to visit the Albany Cut Flower Exchange, in which he has an interest. Mr. Welch said he found business in Montreal and Albany quiet, but the prospects for Easter were good, judged by the orders the retailers have placed with the wholesale house in Montreal and the one in Albany. The retailers have ordered full lines in a wide variety.

R. D.

Oklahoma City.

Flower stores are already putting on their Easter garb with rambler roses and bulbous plants in profusion. Storemen say that the prospects for a big trade are assured; never before were there so many orders placed in advance.

NOTES.

The five and ten-cent stores are handling a large amount of small plant stock, and this includes not only hardy plants but small palms and ferns as well. One of the dry goods stores has been trying out special Saturday sales of roses and carnations. Whether this will be a permanent feature or not remains to be seen.

THE LEO NIESSEN CO., 1201-5 Race St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Philadelphia.

EASTER MARKET CONDITIONS EXCELLENT. Conditions appear especially favorable to a full supply in all lines of cut flowers for Easter. The temperature of the past week has been a trifle above normal, helpful to the backward crops and such that air can be freely given to hold those that are forward. The past week's business has been satisfactory; there has been a fairly active demand with no oversupply of stock. American Beauties are more plentiful. Other roses are also gaining and the quality all along the line is fine. Carnations are about equal to the demand, most of them grade high. Sweet peas are a distinct factor; quantity and quality have never been exceeded in this city. The market has somehow adjusted itself to the influx of this wonderful flower. Three years ago it would have been impossible to move the shipments that are now received and handled without trouble. Carnations are probably the flower that has suffered most in the competition, as many growers have planted at least a part of the space formerly occupied by carnations with sweet peas. Easter lilies are now, and will for the coming week be in full supply. Callas are also plentiful. Cattleyas will be the choice flower; $1.00 to $1.25 each is the quoted price for Easter delivery. The supply of lily of the valley is about normal. There will be quantities of violets—they are still favored as a corsage flower for Easter Sunday, particularly with a few gardenias, which latter will be in good supply. There is every indication of a good Easter trade. Nearly all the growers are sold out. Hydrangeas are good stock, as azaleas this season are not half a crop; in some cases whole shipments will have to be summered and grown on for next season. This is owing to the long delays en-voyage last fall. Rhododendrons arrived safely and many fine lots are seen, particularly Pink Pearl, a house full of specimen plants of this variety at W. K. Harris' being exceptionally well flowered. Spiraeas are seen in fine shape in all the stocks. America, a rich pink, is a special with W. K. Harris. This variety should rank high in all future Easter stocks.

CLUB MEETING.

There was a fair attendance at the meeting of the florists' club, held April 3, the feature of the evening being the wonderfully interesting account given by J. Otto Thilow of his recent trip to the Hawaiian Islands. The speaker was in his best vein and gave a glowing description of the wonderful flora of these beautiful islands. The club decided to accept the invitation of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society to join that body in a spring exhibition next year that would eclipse anything ever before held in this city.

NOTES.

The artistic success of the rose festival is still uppermost in the minds of those who worked so hard to bring it about. The advanced ideas which were so well carried out, such as the garden effect of the exhibits as a whole, the covering of the floor of the exhibition spaces with moss and growing ferns,

Don't Wait

Now is the time to send us a shipment of flowers and acquaint yourself with the satisfactory treatment you receive when you ship to New York's Foremost Commission House in the flower trade.

Extensive experience, ample capital, modern facilities and, in fact, everything to commend us to you.

Special opportunity for a couple of Good Rose Growers who are looking for best returns. Our present demand is larger than our supply.

UNITED CUT FLOWER CO., Inc., 111 W. 28th St., New York City

forming a natural green background, the elimination of the exhibition tables, the universal basket covered vase in suitable sizes, together with the elaborate decoration of the hall, are all steps forward, setting a standard that will undoubtedly be adopted in all the large exhibitions of the country.

Robert Jamison, the man responsible for the seven-foot Hadleys of the Jos. Heacock Co. at the rose festival, and any other grower with like success in raising the standard of the forcing roses, should have some kind of recognition at the hands of the society. Such good work is deserving of great praise and a little remembrance.

Edward Reid is set for a big Easter and the large orders coming in look as if he would have the time of his life getting through. Easter lilies, carnations and tip top roses are the specialties, with cattleyas and lily of the valley on the side.

An effort has been made by all growers to boost prices for Easter plants, by which it is hoped to get back some of the excess coal and labor expense of the past winter. As they are for the most part sold out, it is to be hoped that the slight advance went through; an appreciation such as this will be sure to put vim and ginger into preparations for next year.

The nomads of the street gentry are now forbidden access to the shopping district of Walnut, Chestnut and Market streets. It is also contrary to law to rent space on the sidewalk, but quite a number of stationary flower cases or stands are operating in the crowded shopping centers.

An extra force and night work is now the condition with Jos. G. Neidinger, the next two months being his busiest of the year. Magnolia wreaths and waxed flowers for their decoration are strong features here.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. had a wonderful Easter business. Now it is, get ready for Memorial day. Magnolia leaves and wreaths for the cemetery are generally handled in great quantities.

Easter lilies, callas, high grade sweet peas and bulbous stock together with a line of tea roses are the feature of the Berger Brothers' line for Easter. Business has been good the past week.

The Leo Niessen Co. is prepared for their largest Easter business. American Beauty roses, Easter lilies and the finest sweet peas they have ever handled, will be the leaders.

High-grade roses in all the popular varieties are features of the stock of the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange. They expect a great Easter business.

Secretary Rust reports a very good attendance at the spring show, notwithstanding the great attractions of the rose festival held at the same time.

Sweet peas of exceptional quality are the feature with E. Bernheimer. Prima Donna and September Morn roses are selling well.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. has taken an additional store at 1638-40 Market street to handle its Easter plant stock. The plant business of this firm is rapidly assuming large proportions.

Mild weather during the past week brought an increased supply of stock to market and the movement in the wholesale district has been slow. With Easter near at hand, there should be an awakening soon, but at this writing everything moves slowly. American Beauties have been more plentiful and the best have been hard to move at the wholesale rate of 40 cents. In tea roses there is an abundant supply and briefly stated, everything is plentiful. The street boys are now active and are handling quite a line of stock. Plants, as a matter of course, are the leading features in the retail stores and will continue to be until near the end of the week.

LULL BEFORE EASTER RUSH.

Just before the Easter rush, trade in general has been affected by a lull. Of course there is funeral work and orders of various kinds, but business is not what it should be at this time. Stock is abundant, especially bulbous flowers, and pot plants are in good supply. Calla and Harrisii lilies are in over supply and have begun to accumulate. Rose receipts are heavy and prices have dropped. Sweet peas of excellent quality are received in numbers far greater than requirements. Carnations are pale in color and are beginning to show the effect of the sunny weather by brittle stems and over production.

NOTES.

At H. P. Neun's range, Mr. Thomann, the foreman, is producing some excellent Primula obconica, lilac and azalea plants. Mrs. A. F. Keyes of this firm has returned from a trip to Cincinnati, Toledo, Cleveland and points west, where she called on many florist stores.

Charles Curtice, of Irondequoit, is growing fine orchid sweet peas nine feet in height. His stock this year is better than ever and he is booking large orders for Easter. He has 1,000 Easter Greeting pelargoniums right on time.

The Rochester Floral Co. has added another office at the rear of the store; also a balcony fitted with counters and cases, which will prove an advantage during the Easter rush. Paul Kennedy is now in the employ of this firm.

H. E. Wilson has a fine lot of pot plants for the Easter trade. Miss Ethel Phillips, bookkeeper at this establishment for a number of years, and a very popular young woman, was married April 3.

E. C. Kaelber is competing for the prize offered by the Fulper Vasecraft Co., and arranged ten different styles of vases filled with choice flowers, which made a very pleasing display.

George T. Boucher is arranging some very handsome window displays. One of rhododendron plants with large vases of daffodils was especially effective.

W. A. Dawson, of Willimantic, Conn., has introduced his new carnation, Red Wing, in this city and the blooms are finding favor with the trade.

The trials which the experiment station at Cornell University are making here with Geo. B. Hart's refrigeration system are proving satisfactory.

Salter Bros. have renovated and re-decorated the interior of their lower store. They have been doing a great deal of funeral work lately.

Paul Campers, of the Rosery Flower Shop, is having a heavy call for funeral work and reports a steadily increasing cut flower trade.

David Scott, of Corfu, is producing fine giant snapdragons and long-stemmed orchid sweet peas, for which there is a good demand.

George Kramer has returned from Buffalo, where he attended the funeral of the father of Henry Krauss, of S. A. Anderson's force.

Hugo Teute's plants are in fine condition for Easter. He is disposing of large quantities of primroses.

J. B. Keller Sons have been very busy with funeral work, many of the designs being elaborate. CHESTER.

ROCKFORD, ILL.—Mrs. Caroline Miller
Brown, mother of Mrs. H. W. Buck-bee, died here March 28.

ATLANTA, GA.—H. G. Hastings & Co. report February 26, the last Monday of the month, as a big mail order day this season.

PARIS, Ky.—Spears & Sons, bluegrass seed dealers, have purchased 350 acres of land near Escondida, Bourbon county.

FRENCH BULB prices, according to a Dutch report, are 30 francs for Narcissus Paper White Grandiflora and 120 francs for White Roman hyacinths.

OKLAHOMA CITY.—A pure seed bill was passed at the last session of the legislature. Attorneys for the seedsmen have petitioned the governor to withhold his signature.

MARCH weather has been favorable for the mail order seed trade. The rush of this business, which overcrowded most houses, has been steaded by the moderately cool weather.

ONION SETS at Chicago are selling at from $4.75 to $5.25 per bushel. Some printed quotation cards show higher prices but actual sales on South Water street do not confirm any higher figures than given above April 4.

NEW YORK.—J. B. Deamud at Vaughan's Seed Store reports new high records in mail and counter trade.—Submarine warfare has evidently crippled the auction sales of imported nursery stock and spring bulbs in this city.

PACIFIC FREIGHT RATES.—Regarding the possibility of increased ocean freight rates on the Pacific it is stated by a concern doing large business on that ocean that the amount of tonnage available is greater than last year and the rates logically should not be advanced.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the United States Beet Seed Co., held at the Congress Hotel, Chicago, last month (March), T. R. Cutler, vice-president and general manager of the Utah-Idaho Sugar Co., was elected president of the seed company to succeed H. H. Rolapp, the former president.

VISITED CHICAGO: C. W. Scott, New York, and S. Suzuki, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., the latter enroute to Japan; R. G. Lyon and W. W. Freeborn, of H. G. Hastings & Co., Atlanta, Ga.; G. W. Taylor, Georgetown, Ky.;
R. E. Brotherton, of the Peninsula Seed Co., Port Huron, Mich., enroute to Seattle and the Washington pea district.

FARMER'S Bulletin 773, entitled "Corn Growing Under Droughty Conditions," issued by the United States department of agriculture, shows in a general way how crop failures may be made less frequent in semi-arid regions.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—The J. Steckler
Seed Co. reports that the seed business this year is very much greater than that of 1916. While some of the individual purchases are not as large as last year, the volume of sales is largely increased.

The Late Arthur Martin Kirby.

See Obituary, Page 641.

California Seed Crop.

San Francisco, March 24.—C. C.
Morse & Co., report as follows: "The demand for seeds this season to date compared with 1916, is in every case greater, in many instances showing an increase of over 50 per cent. On many varieties of sweet peas, and on mixtures also, the demand has increased, though we hardly expected the demand to be as good for sweet peas. We are fully booked up for all of our lines and have been for some time, and every day we are forced to refuse many customers.

"The growing season in California this year is very backward, and we figure at the present time that all crops are at least a month behind normal.
This is accounted for by the very cold, dry weather experienced in January, and by the fact that a large acreage had to be replanted. We have had ample rain for the crop, but we will not object to one or two showers in April.

"Our most serious trouble at the present time is the question of labor, as the wages demanded by common field hands are now 50 per cent higher than they were a year ago."

Seed Catalogues.

Seed catalogues are not always so discreet. I do not know why it is, but there is something restless about their effect; one does not sit down to be soothed by them at the end of a distracting day. Perhaps it is the very principle of life and growth on which they depend, the leaping pulse of the awakening year which beats through their pages; perhaps it is the anticipation of all the pains one will have to take with those seeds to make them amount to anything. At any rate, Christopher and I never sit down to Burpee or Henderson without a distinct summoning of resolution; and we never get up without having ordered twice as many seeds as our garden will accommodate. Seed catalogues are dangerous. They go to one's head.—Scribner's for April.

Sugar Beet Seed.

The most vital problem now confronting the domestic beet sugar producers is the matter of obtaining beet seed.
The domestic beet sugar producers require annually over 125,000 bags of seed in order that sufficient raw material may be furnished the various factories.
Under normal conditions this amount of seed would cost approximately $1,000,000. The figures presented at a recent meeting of the beet sugar producers show that this amount is costing, under the present conditions, over $3,000,000. The beet sugar producers have decided to increase their beet seed operations in this country to a large extent and expect within a few years to be able to supply a large part, at least, of their seed requirements with home-grown beet seed.

Springfield, Mass., in 1917.

HAWLEY, MINN.—Sixty-seven carloads of potatoes shipped from this place in 10 days previous to March 28 are estimated to have brought nearly $100,000 to local handlers as a result of high prices received for last year's tubers held by the farmers in this locality.

Onion Crop Conditions in Texas.

The condition of the Bermuda onion crop in Texas was 89 per cent, January 15, as compared with 76 per cent, January 1, according to reports received from a selected list of growers by the United States department of agriculture, bureau of crop estimates. Shipping will probably commence about the normal time—April 5-10.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, April 3.—Mushrooms, home grown, 50 to 60 cents per pound; lettuce, small cases, 35 cents; radishes, 50 to 60 cents, dozen bunches; celery, $2.50 to $3.50, crate; tomatoes, six baskets, $4.50; cucumbers, per 2 dozen box, $2.00 to $3.00.

New York, April 3.—Celery, per crate, $1.50 to $3.50; cucumbers, 60 cents to $1.50 per dozen; mushrooms, 80 cents to $1.75 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, per lb., 30 to 50 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2.50 to $5.00; lettuce, per strap, $3.00 to $5.00.

Vegetables Under Glass.

Our cauliflower sown December 5 and planted February 5 is now ready to cut. We have a fine stand and the crop is in excellent condition. The Extra Early Erfurt strain was used, but most of the seed we used was grown by ourselves last year from selected specimens, under glass.

We have had remarkable crops of Scarlet Globe radishes from home-grown seed, also produced under glass. We saved the finest colored, most perfect, and earliest radishes, potted them in 3-inch pots, and later on, when space was less valuable, benched them for seed production. The result was this whole forcing season our crops have run 100 per cent perfect—not an off color or off type and very uniform in maturity.

Our New Zealand spinach is ready to cut. We produced plants the same way as lettuce, and planted them 8x8 in lettuce houses alongside of lettuce; time of maturity about the same as lettuce; however, we will now cut every other two and then every other plant, thus reducing the plants to 16x16 inches. After that we will only cut the side shoots and allow the plants to recover. We find the buying public takes well to this spinach and it should make a valuable greenhouse crop.

Leaf lettuce is now 20 cents wholesale with supply light, hence growers are replanting houses if they can obtain plants.

MARKETMAN.

Watermelon Stem-End Rot Control.

Watermelon stem rot results in a decay of the melon, at the stem end, which usually develops during transit to market. The investigations of the United States department of agriculture have shown that the cause is a fungus which is common in many southern fields on dead stalks of cotton, corn and many weeds, as well as on decaying melons. The spores of this fungus are blown about by the wind and lodge on the moist cut end of the melon stem after it is severed from the vine, germinate and grow into the melon, which often begins to decay within three days. The methods recommended by the department of agriculture are as follows:

Cut and burn all weeds around the field and along ditch banks during the winter.

Spraying with Bordeaux mixture for anthracnose will probably help control stem-end rot.

Cut melons with long stems and load into cars with the least possible delay and with the utmost care in handling to avoid bruising. Open car ventilators.

Most important of all, apply a paste made of common starch with six per cent bluestone to the freshly cut stems as the melons are being packed in the car. It has been found that disinfecting the stems at other times is less effective, as the paste is rubbed off by handling.

Monmouth County, N. J. Hort. Society.

The monthly meeting of this society was held in the Elks home, Red Bank, N. J., March 22, with President James Kennedy in the chair. It has been decided to hold a summer show, preliminary schedules of which are now ready and will be sent out very shortly. The date will be announced some time later. The annual fall show will be held October 30-November 1, 1917, place to be announced later. George Masson of Oakhurst exhibited some very fine snapdragons, narcissi and Darwin tulips for the monthly competition. Anton Bauer showed some very fine cacteyas. Several new members were taken in at this meeting. Some very interesting remarks were made relative to the exhibits, which were greatly enjoyed by those present. The next meeting will be held Thursday, April 19, at 7:30 p. m.

American Association of Nurserymen.

John Watson, Newark, N. Y., President;
Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President;
Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress Street,
Boston, Mass., Secretary and Counsel.
Forty-second annual convention will be held at Philadelphia, Pa., June 27-29, 1917.

The peach prospects in Texas March 26 are favorable to a good crop, notwithstanding the frosts experienced earlier in the month.

DELTA, COLO.—Herbert C. Chase has added some produce trade to his nursery interests and his sales of car lots of potatoes have been good.

The Illinois nurserymen are greatly disturbed over a drastic one-man inspection law now before the legislature. Senate Bill No. 266. Every nurseryman should protest it in its present form.

White Pine Quarantine in Michigan.

L. R. Taft, state inspector of nurseries and orchards, with headquarters at East Lansing, Mich., has notified nurserymen in that state that as a protection against white pine blister rust any white pines or other five-leaved pines shipped into the state will be seized as a public nuisance and destroyed. Since currants and gooseberries are also hosts for this disease, they will also be subject to seizure, unless it can be shown that white pine blister rust has not been found within one-half mile from where the plants were grown.

Gardens Despised.

Probably there is no subject in the whole world that everybody would agree on; even the gentle art of gardening has its critics. One of the world's foremost literary men, noted for his culture and refinement, wrote as follows in reference to gardening: "A garden is an ugly thing. Even when best managed it is an assembly of unfortunate beings, pampered and bloated above their natural size; stewed and heated into diseased growth; corrupted by evil communication into speckled and inharmonious colors; torn from the soil which they loved, and of which they were the spirit and glory, to glare away their term of tormented life among the mixed and incongruous essences of each other, in earth that they know not and in air that is poison to them." Pretty strong, isn't it? And the writer was John Ruskin.—American Botanist.

Book of the Peony.

"The Book of the Peony," a well written and interesting history of this popular flower, by Mrs. Edward Harding, of New York, a practical gardener whose peony garden ranks among the finest in the United States, has just been published and gives much information—historical, descriptive and practical. Included in its 259 pages with 44 handsome illustrations in color and black and white, are chapters on the mythology, ancient and modern history of the peony; best varieties and their characteristics; extending the period of bloom; purchasing, where to plant and how to prepare the soil; planting and propagation; the tree peony—description and history, cultivation, propagation and best varieties; various species of the peony; "Diseases of the Peony," by Professor H. H. Whetzel, of Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., together with much other authoritative information with complete index. The book is handsomely bound in cloth and gilt and can be obtained at THE AMERICAN FLORIST office, price $6.

Reforestation in New York State.

As soon as the frost is out of the ground in the Adirondack region, the Delaware & Hudson Railroad Company will send 200 men from Plattsburgh, N. Y., who will plant 1,250,000 three-year-old conifers on the company's tract near Loon Lake on the Chateaugay branch of the company's railroad. The work will be done under the supervision of H. P. Bristol, the company's forester and a graduate of Cornell University. The trees will be taken from the Delaware & Hudson Company's nursery near Bluff Point, Lake Champlain, where a tract of 17½ acres is devoted to a plantation of more than 5,000,000 young deciduous and evergreen trees adapted to the climate and soil of the Adirondack region. The reforestation of the Delaware & Hudson Company's tract of 106,000 acres in the Adirondacks has been going on for several years at the rate of 1,000 acres or more than 1,000,000 trees a year. The tract extends from a point 10 miles west of Plattsburgh towards Saranac Lake, a distance of over 40 miles. It will take nearly 90 years, at the present rate of progress, to complete the company's plans for reforestation. In the meantime some of the timber will have reached maturity on the tracts first planted. These will be cleared and replanted about the time the last of the original plans are nearing completion. R. King Greenhouses

Keep Summer With You The Whole Year Round.

On account of their sturdy, special construction, which permits of great strength without the need of heavy shadow casting supports, these houses are so warm and sunny that they are filled with a riot of bloom and fruit when Jack Frost has stripped the garden of its beauty. The ventilating and heating systems are the result of years of experience in building for professional growers. Things just have to grow in a King.

Metropolitan Greenhouse Re-orders.

Re-order customers, are, after all, the greatest assets any business can boast of. Re-orders are absolute, undeniable proofs of satisfaction, in every respect—quality, economy and service.

The first greenhouse (the one in the foreground) is a portable house, which was erected for the Hicks' Nurseries, Westbury, L. I., for experimental purposes. The results obtained therein were so surprising that a second one of our patented construction, was erected, and now their third greenhouse (the one in the background) has just been completed. Notice that provision has been made to extend this house to larger proportions when desired.

These re-orders from so prominent a concern should be ample proof of this organization's satisfactory service.

Mothers' Day, Sunday, May 13.

A Brief History.

Ten years ago Miss Anna Jarvis called on one of the wholesale florists of Philadelphia, Pa., and stated that she was about to originate a custom of once a year wearing white carnations in honor of one's mother. The white carnation had been her mother's favorite flower. She had now passed away, and in her memory she had set aside the second Sunday in May, at which special services would be held in the church of which her mother had been a member. This was to be called "Mothers' day," to include not only her mother, but all mothers, in life as well as those who had passed away, the best mother who ever lived, one's own mother. Everyone was on that day to wear a white carnation.

This was the story and the object of the visit was to find out the price of white carnations in quantity. The dealer at that time, when Boston Market was the standard white, had some 35,000 white carnations on hand, which he could scarcely give away.

PRESENTED WITH FIRST FLOWERS.

Wishing her success, he presented her with a couple of hundred flowers, and after she had gone said, "Well, there goes a woman with a fad; it would be fine, though, if some way could be found to move these carnations." The first public celebration of Mothers' day was, as planned, a success.

Miss Jarvis' own circle of friends encouraged her. She at once set to work to interest pastors of churches and others in authority. Governors of states and mayors of cities were appealed to, and in nearly every instance, successfully. All agreed that they would issue proclamations, recommending the setting aside of one day in the year for the adoration of mother. In addition to this, Miss Jarvis interested the editors and wrote columns of matter for the newspapers, which was published broadcast.

ALL AT HER OWN EXPENSE.

This was all done at her own expense, her reward being the satisfaction in seeing the beautiful custom becoming so universally established.

Mothers' day is no longer a fad. The celebration of this event has been taken up in every community throughout the land. Through the efforts of Miss Jarvis it has received the official recognition of the national government. An act of Congress was passed in which it is directed that a general holiday display of flags shall be made on all public buildings and United States government stations throughout the world and on all the vessels of the navy in honor of Mothers' day.

AN OPPORTUNITY.

As flowers play such an important part in its observance, an opportunity is afforded to make this one of the greatest floral holidays of the year. While the white carnation will always be more or less associated with the day, this particular flower should never be mentioned in the store. The slogan should be all flowers; the flowers or plants your mother loved. That all flowers are appropriate will soon become generally known and result in much greater satisfaction as there will then be no necessity for higher prices.

MOTHERS' DAY WILL GROW.

Mothers' day has grown, will continue to grow, but must be encouraged and kept to the front by every known means of publicity. It is not an Easter or Christmas, but it has far greater possibilities.

When it has so become the custom to wear flowers on Mothers' day, that no one will venture on the street without them, or when a mother's grave in the cemetery without flowers will be a reproach to her children, then Mothers' day will have reached and received the recognition it deserves.

PUBLICITY.

That calling the attention to the day and its significance as a floral holiday, by concerted action of the flower trade in various cities, is worth while, has been abundantly demonstrated in a number of places. The florists in Cleveland, all branches of the trade, contribute to a publicity fund of over $2,500 a year. Their advertising has been so judiciously managed, by Ella Grant Wilson, and found so advantageous, that all the trade gladly renew their subscriptions each year.

LOCAL PUBLICITY.

There should be a scheme of publicity in every community to work up the sentiment for Mothers' day. Men have to be told and told again; they have to be shown. Mothers' day is still new to even the great majority of people. A prominent middle west retailer writes annually the Mothers' day proclamation for the mayor of his city.

Much about this beautiful custom would find a place in the reading columns of the newspapers if it were furnished them.

INDIVIDUAL EXPLOITATION.

Each retail dealer should make a special effort to exploit Mothers' day this year. Contributing to a central fund is fine, but do not rest there. Everything about the shop should reflect the important event at least two weeks ahead.

A neat circular extolling the day and explaining its significance should be mailed to every customer. Well thought out window displays with nicely printed cards will be found most effective. A picture of Whistler's mother, nicely draped and decorated with flowers, of itself makes a feature window. Hovenden's "Breaking Home Ties" is another good mother picture.

ALL FLOWERS APPROPRIATE.

In all advertising, the reference to color, as white for a mother's memory, and bright for the mother at home, is to be avoided. All flowers are beautiful, all are equally appropriate. The departed mother may have been very fond of red roses. The living parent prefers white. If their preferences are to be considered the order is reversed.

A dealer made a hit last year with his ad. "A fern for Mothers' day." He explained that it was much more lasting than cut flowers, and even if planted in the cemetery, was more satisfactory. Let all the trade, every branch, contribute for the important work of publicity for Mothers' day. The larger the trade the greater the benefits to all.

K.

Mothers' Day Posterettes.

The publicity committee of the Chicago Florists' Club has been instructed to carry on a national co-operative advertising campaign to stimulate and create a greater demand for flowers and plants of every description for Mothers' day, Sunday, May 13, 1917. This movement is strictly a national co-operative advertising proposition, whereby this committee plans to devote the net proceeds of this campaign to the purchase of a full page advertisement announcing Mothers' day in one of the leading magazines with a national circulation of 600,000 or over.

To carry out the plan as formulated will be quite an undertaking, and to do so it will be necessary to dispose of a very large number of stamps and window posters, and if every florist in this country does his share to support this movement, this committee will be able to make an announcement of this kind. Time is short—act at once. State amount of money you wish to subscribe for stamps and window posters. Forward your check immediately to F. Lautenschlager, 440 West Erie street, Chicago. Make all checks payable to O. H. Amling, treasurer, Chicago Florists' Club.

The stamps and window posters to be used in this campaign will be printed in two colors with a border of forget-me-nots. Both are works of art, and should be used by every one in the florist business. The stamps will measure 2 3/4 inches high, the window posters, same color and design as stamps, 7 3/4 inches high; stamps and window posters will be gummed and ready for use.

Mothers' Day Posterette. Issued by The Chicago Florists' Club.

Send your subscription and check at once. Also, tell every florist in your community to do so. It will help your business and theirs. Stamps, window posters and price lists will be forwarded early next week.

Address all communications to F. Lautenschlager, 440 West Erie street, Chicago.

F. LAUTENSCHLAGER, Chairman Posterette Com.

Easter in the Chicago Stores.

The Easter trade this year was good and the sales in most instances compare most favorably with those of 1916. It rained heavily nearly all day, Thursday, April 5, and for a time the outlook was very discouraging, but on Friday, Saturday and Easter Sunday the weather was splendid, although quite cold. The biggest business was done on Friday and Saturday when everything in plants was disposed of at an early hour. Lilies had the call in plants and it was impossible to fill anywhere near the demand owing to the scarcity, which was the greatest in years. Azaleas, rhododendrons, hydrangeas, rambler roses, spiraeas, lilacs, acacias, bulbous stock and everything else was in short supply and many of the dealers were disappointed by having their orders cut down from 25 to 50 per cent, even though they were placed well in advance. The shortage of plants helped the sale of cut flowers to a larger extent than at any other Easter, and while the supply was unusually large in most lines, certain items, such as orchids, gardenias, lily of the valley, violets, sweet peas, American Beauty, Mrs. Chas. Russell and in fact all red roses and the corsage varieties were scarce, consequently substitutes were used and the market was cleaned up almost completely in all lines Sunday morning, April 8. Taking everything into consideration the retail florists in general are well satisfied with their Easter business and report the most satisfactory cleanup experienced in years.

A. Lange had a magnificent showing of plants and cut flowers at his East Madison street store and had all the business that his increased force could conveniently handle. Lilies were his best sellers, but everything in plants sold up clean and the demand for cut flowers was never so heavy as it was this year. His mail order trade was surprisingly large, which must be credited to a large extent to the heavy advertising he did in the daily papers all through Easter week.

George Wienhoeber never had such a fine and complete line of plants to offer as he did this year and sold out everyone as early as Saturday afternoon when cut flowers were pushed instead, consequently the report at this establishment is that the Easter trade was the most satisfactory ever. Combination baskets and boxes of assorted blooming and foliage plants arranged in artistic style attracted the attention of the buyers at this busy place.

Mangel, the Palmer House Florist, used a large sample room on the second floor of the hotel for display purposes in addition to his store and conservatory, which were completely filled with plants of all kinds, particularly azaleas and rhododendrons, of which he had an extra fine supply. Mr. Mangel says that business was surprisingly good and that this Easter business was the best he ever had.

H. C. Rowe made as pretty a showing of plants as any of the florists at his East Monroe street store and featured fancy made up baskets of rambler roses, rhododendrons and azaleas. He disposed of all the plants he had to offer and was well satisfied with the amount of business that came his way.

The Alpha Floral Co. experienced a heavy demand for both cut flowers and plants of all kinds at its South Wabash avenue store and its place of business was crowded with customers at all times with the result that everything was sold out early and extra trips had to be made to the wholesale market for stock to fill the late orders for cut flowers that were booked. This firm made an extra large display and carried a heavy supply of stock, but the store looked pretty empty Saturday night after all the orders were filled.

The White House Florist, of which Wm. Kotsonis is proprietor, enjoyed a splendid trade and had a heavy run on plants, particularly lilies and rambler roses, which were the leaders in plants. Azaleas and all other stock cleaned up completely and the sale of cut flowers at this store exceeded all expectations.

Fleischman was on deck with the usual fine supply of plants and carried a splendid line with some of the choicest azaleas to be seen in the city. Trade was very good at this establishment and a grand clean-up was experienced long before the rush was over. R. J. Mohr assisted Manager Graham and the regular store force out the latter part of the week, when they had all the business that they could conveniently handle.

George Perdikas made a tremendous showing of lilies at both his CASKET COVER BY HOLM & OLSON, ST. PAUL, MINN.

South Wabash avenue and East Van Buren street stores, in addition to a complete line of all other plants and cut flowers. The happy smile he is wearing can mean nothing but a most satisfactory Easter trade.

J. C. Craig was more than pleased with his Easter business, which was unusually good, and sold out completely in plants at an early hour. Lilies, azaleas, spireas and bulbous stock had the call at this store.

O. J. Friedman was on deck as usual at his Michigan avenue store with one of the most magnificent displays of plants and cut flowers in the city at Easter. The azaleas, roses, acacias, heather, lilies, rhododendrons, hydrangeas, spireas and bulbous stock in his collection were of the highest quality obtainable and reminded one of a small flower show in which exhibition stock is so prominently featured. Saturday, April 7, was the banner day at this magnificent establishment.

The Central Floral Co., 132 North State street, had a wonderful Easter business with a grand clean-up in plants of all kinds. Everything sold well, especially rambler roses, lilies, azaleas, hydrangeas, spireas and bulbous stock in pots, boxes and pans. This firm also reports a big demand for cut flowers at Easter, especially for roses, jonquils, sweet peas and violets.

The Bohannon Floral Co. operated its two stores in East Monroe street at Easter and made a heavy showing of azaleas, rambler roses, lilies, heather and all other blooming stock, artistically arranged in baskets, singly and in the combination effects. Judging from the many customers seen in these two stores at various times the past week, his Easter sales should run ahead of those in 1916.

The Ohio Floral Co., located on the second floor of the Ohio building, which caters to the medium and cheaper trade, did a fine Easter business, according to Manager L. Kopp. The sales were small but the volume was large and the cash receipts for the week show that the people will patronize a second floor store if they can save money by doing so.

Victor Young & Co., 1239 North Clark street, report that their cut flower sales were very heavy and, like plants, cleaned up completely. Violets and sweet peas were in heavy demand and the total sales were so large that this concern is more than pleased with them.

The Atlas Floral Co., 32 East Randolph street, has no complaint to make in regard to its Easter business, which was very good. Cut flowers were in brisk demand and so were plants, and everything was pretty well disposed of before Sunday noon. Irene certainly had some very pretty young ladies assisting her last week, which accounted for the reason that all the young salesmen wanted to deliver her stock.

C. Frauenfelder, 3343 West Madison street, had a heavy run on plants as usual this Easter, which cleaned up more completely than in former years. Cut flowers also sold well at this establishment and orders for corsage bouquets were very numerous.

W. J. Smyth, 3101 South Michigan avenue, did a fine Easter business, with a good clean-up in plants. Made-up baskets of plants had the call at this establishment and in cut flowers the novelties took the lead in the sales.

Chas. A. Samuelson, 2134 South Michigan avenue, made a large showing of Tausendschon roses in fancy baskets in odd shapes and in all sizes. They proved to be his best sellers, but plants in general were in brisk demand and, like the roses, found ready buyers. Quality always seems to be the predominating feature in the Samuelson offerings, which accounts for his well-deserved success in the retail business.

Paul Blome & Co., 1361 North Clark street, used the George Wittbold Co.'s old store during the Easter rush, which came in handy for arranging their stock and enabled them to use their own place entirely for display purposes. Business was good at this establishment, but the individual sales were not as large as in former years, which seems to be the general report throughout the city.

Muir's Conservatories, 4647 Grand boulevard, report business as good if not better than last year, with a heavy demand for rambler roses and lilies, which cleaned up early. Taken all in all, this firm was well satisfied with the result and reports the most satisfactory cleanup in plants in years.

The J. F. Kidwell Co., 3530 South Michigan avenue, did a nice business and reports the sales almost as good as last Easter, which was a banner one. Bulbous stock, especially tulips and hyacinths, sold well and so did rambler roses and hydrangeas, which were the chief offerings in plants.

The Ernst Wienhoeber Co., 22 East Elm street, reports business as very good, with a general cleanup in plants, especially lilies, which had the call. The sales this year at this establishment were fully as good as last year, with the demand starting in later than usual, Saturday, April 7, being a particularly big day.

H. N. Bruns, 3034 West Madison street, cleaned up early in plants, with a heavy run on lilies and hyacinths. His supply of lily of the valley was extra heavy this year and many of his choice made-up boxes were featured in several of the leading loop establishments, where they attracted the attention of the buyers and were easily disposed of at high prices.

Walter W. Adams, 1021 Rush street, experienced his heaviest demand on Saturday, April 7, when the customers arrived in large numbers and turned what promised to be a poor Easter trade into one of the best ever. While everything cleaned up very satisfactorily, he, like all the other florists, was somewhat disappointed in the earlier demand.

The George Wittbold Co. reports that its heaviest demand was for azaleas and rhododendrons, and that everything on hand was disposed of, including cut flowers, which sold better than in previous years. The decorating department beautified 80 churches at Easter, in which 1900 palms alone were used.

Schiller's three stores had a splendid Easter trade and featured a large quantity of pot lilies and rambler roses as well as a complete line of other flowering plants. Up to Friday night the Easter demand at all of their establishments was a disappointment, but Saturday was a landslide and more than made up for the poor early showing with the result that it was the best clean-up ever experienced. The total sales were ahead of 1916 with a heavy call on corsage work.

Easter in Philadelphia Shops.

A tour through the principal retail stores showed from the large and elegant stocks on hand that all had faith in business conditions and expected a good old time Easter trade. George Craig's collection was ideal in its practical selection, every plant being attractive and salable. Tubs in sizes from seven to twelve inches were seen painted in white and shades of blue with gilded bands. The white tubs contained Easter lilies, the blue, pink hydrangeas. A pretty white frame lattice added value to the climbing roses. The large garage in the rear had been shelved for handling the delivery.

Robert Crawford's stock, nearly all of which was from the nursery at Secane, Pa., was in fine condition—azaleas, Easter lilies, spiræas and rhododendrons, all right up to the minute. With the aid of his two sons things were running smoothly as clock work.

J. J. Habermehl's Sons plant baskets were gorgeous, quite in keeping with the elegant surroundings of the Bellevue-Strafford hotel corridor in which they were displayed. This appeared to be a part of the store, which also contained much Easter stock. The large show window was also elaborately decorated. Their beautiful branch store in the Ritz-Carlton hotel was also in gala attire. Plant baskets in novel arrangement with chic ribbon bows were features. The case was filled with choice flowers.

Chas. Henry Fox's beautiful store was filled with up-to-date plant baskets and choice Easter plants. His polyana baskets made of hickory splint and printed in all the colors of the rainbow in separate blocks were very striking. The flower case contained sample boxes of cut flowers and a line of well made corsages in variety. All these were priced.

H. H. Battles' beautiful store stood in a splendid state of preparedness—all ready for the charge. In the window, on either side of the store, and on the stairs leading to the mezzanine floor, there were banks of well-arranged plant baskets, separate specimen plants in fancy pots and baskets and low made-up pans of lilies, etc. A new idea of Mr. Battles was utilized in making up many novel designs in plant receptacles. This was just plain corn stalks; these had passed through the Bayersdorfer factory and came out as chic a lot of baskets, jardinières, pot covers, etc., as ever decorated a store. Some were in the natural color, but most of them in various shades of dark and light blue, red, green, white, and two-toned effects, that too, were certainly stunning. They were selling fast. A feature here is that not a cut flower is visible. The store does not boast of a flower case, flowers ordinarily being displayed in vases and basket receptacles on counters, shelves and tables. At holiday times, however, they are all kept in the basement and orders taken without the flowers being seen. In the Century Flower Shop, Mr. Battles low-priced store, directly next door, which is connected in the rear, there is no fuss or feathers; no decorated effects, just a good, large, well-arranged sales-room with a fine show window. Ordinarily this shop contains quantities of low-priced baskets and quantities of cut flowers. At Easter, none are seen. Easter lilies, roses, hydrangeas, spiræas, azaleas, also a few plant baskets, completely fill all the available space. Quantities of cut flowers are sold, but all on orders, not a flower being visible. Impossible; some will say, but it is a fact nevertheless.

Pennock Bros.' beautiful store was quite up to its reputation in its elegant assortment of individual plant arrangements. The features were hand-decorated, enameled plant tubs, baskets, trellis boxes and various clever conceits, scarcely any two alike. They were all artistically filled, the color effects produced being very fetching. Rich ribbons played no small part in the color schemes. The elegant flower case, with its array of the best in the market and the commodious greenhouse in the rear, helped to make this one of the most beautiful stores in the city.

T. Nelson Geiger had an annex on Thirteenth street, opposite his store, replenishing his stock from here as sold. Azaleas, hydrangeas, lilies and bulbous stock were seen in good sizes. Business was reported good.

At the Forrest Flower Shop there was an elegant assortment of the best Easter plants in the market. A good line of plant baskets and boxes were also features.

A line of selected plants filled the store of Chas. B. Stahl. Plant baskets were well to the front. Elegant hydrangeas and Pink Pearl rhododendrons were choice pieces.

WEST PHILADELPHIA'S FINE SHOWING.

The West Philadelphia contingent were well to the front. M. J. Callahan's store and greenhouse were taxed to their capacity to hold his fine stock. Plant baskets and trellis boxes, very well arranged, made a fine showing. Herbert Steinmetz had a store full of regulation stock, business was booming here. C. I. Kent, Jr., expected a great Easter trade, his first day's sales being ahead of last year. An annex helped handle the reserve supply. The stock was fine. Miss Eva F. Fletcher's nicely arranged shop was crowded with selected, medium-priced stock, all of which looked very salable. Lesser & Son had their usual good Easter stock which was selling very well. They expected a good trade. Bulbous stock was a feature. Frank M. Ross' Fifty-second and Sixtieth street stores displayed a stock that was salable to the last pot. The lilies and hydrangeas were particularly well done. Birch bark boxes, in medium sizes, nicely filled, should sell quickly. These stores looked very bright and business-like, a feature being that every plant or basket was prominently priced. The Locust Flower Shop carried a fine line of all the best medium-priced Easter plants and the stock was nicely arranged.

Jensen's Flower Shop put up a great front. Everything in season in medium sizes was seen here. K.

EASTER TRADE.

Reports received from various sections of the country give every indication that the Easter trade of 1917 has gone down in history as a record breaker, with increased sales over the 1916 period varying from 10 to 50 per cent. Plants showed another big gain in popularity over other years, all offerings of good quality meeting with ready sale, with the lily holding its undisputed position as favorite. Rambler roses, rhododendrons, azaleas and basket arrangements moved well and in the majority of instances the plant section in the stores cleaned up early. Corsages as usual were a factor, creating an immense demand for sweet peas, many more of which could have been disposed of had they been available. Carnations and roses found favor with many in the cut flower offerings but the lilies easily held first place. Violets seem to be losing in popularity and in several instances slow sales were reported. Stocks, in general, were plentiful and of high quality at prices about the same as in previous years. Condensed reports from several cities are as follows:

KANSAS CITY, MO.—With prices not as good as last year, the Alpha Floral Co. reports the 1917 Easter trade showed an increase of about 10 per cent. The stock of both plants and cut flowers was, as a rule, equal to the demand, with the exception of Easter lilies, more of which could have been sold had they been available. The call for spiraeas was rather weak, while lilies, azaleas and basket arrangements were the leaders in popularity in the plant section. California violets moved slowly. Milady roses and sweet peas were the cut flower favorites. Trade came in late and snow interfered with delivery. The telephone business was heavy.

WICHITA, KAN.—The 1917 Easter trade was about on a par with that of previous years, with prices no better and more than sufficient cut flowers and plants to meet requirements, according to W. H. Culp & Co. Bulbous stock was the least salable, although Darwin tulips and daffodils went fairly well. In plants, Easter lilies and rambler roses were most popular, while in the cut flower section good roses, American Beauties, carnations, lilies, sweet peas and violets sold best. Dark cloudy weather with cold raw winds made Saturday a bad shopping day and doubtless shortened sales considerably.

CINCINNATI, O.—Otto Hoffmeister reports an average Easter trade with wholesale prices somewhat higher. The supply of plants was adequate, but in cut flowers more good lilies, carnations, sweet peas and roses could have been disposed of had they been on hand. The more expensive flowers were the least in demand, the call being for something of medium price. This was also true in plant sales. The quality of the stock was excellent.

SPRINGFIELD, O.—Arthur Todd reports sales 25 per cent better than last Easter, with practically no change in prices. Both plants and cut flowers were in short supply. Easter lilies had the call as usual. Roses and carnations were the least popular. The quality of the stock was excellent and everything sold out completely. It was the best Easter trade ever.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—Henry Smith reports an increase in Easter sales varying from 10 to 25 per cent over the business of 1916, with prices about the same. In plants there was a plentiful supply, with the exception of lilies and azaleas. Hyacinths were slow sellers. Bulbous stock was the least salable. In cut flowers the supply was ample, with lilies and roses leading the sales. The demand for all good stock was never better.

FORT SMITH, ARK.—Better Easter business with no advance in prices over those of a year ago are reported by George Rye. There was a plentiful supply of stock, both in plants and cut flowers. Easter lilies moved freely, but the demand for other varieties was weak. All cut flowers were good property. Business was the best ever, notwithstanding cold disagreeable weather. Plants had to be wrapped to keep from freezing.

IOWA CITY, IA.—James Aldous & Son report that with a plentiful supply of both cut flowers and plants and prices about on a par with those of 1916, this year's Easter trade was 10 per cent less than that of a year ago. Spring flowers were most in demand and the greatest call was for small plants. Easter Sunday was frosty, everything being covered with a mantle of snow which fell the previous day.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL.—According to A. Washburn & Sons the 1917 Easter trade was about 10 per cent better than that of a year ago, with prices somewhat better. The cut flower supply was equal to the call and the same may be said of plants, with the exception of lilies, which led the demand. In cut flowers there was little change from the normal sales.

DOVER, O.—C. Betscher reports a greatly increased Easter trade as compared with former years, with prices better on some lines. The supply of both cut flowers and plants was ample and bulbous stock had the call. Carnations were the most popular flowers, although the general demand was excellent. All indications point to a record spring business.

KALAMAZOO, MICH.—Volume of business and prices varied little as compared with the Easter trade of 1916 is the report of G. Van Bochove & Bro. The supply was ample in all lines, with good plants leading the call. The weather was very cold, but the trade the last two days of the week was exceptionally brisk.

MERIDIAN, MISS.—Mrs. M. G. McKinney reports volume of trade and prices about the same as for the Easter period of 1916. Stock of all kinds was plentiful. Lily plants were the best sellers and in cut flowers there was a good demand for everything on hand.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—J. J. Windler reports the Easter trade of 1917 about five per cent better than a year ago, with pot plant prices increased. In the plant section the supply was ample with the exception of Easter lilies, but the supply of cut flowers was not sufficient for requirements. Sweet peas were fast sellers, carnations being the least popular. Basket arrangements suffered in competition with well-grown plants such as roses, lilacs, hawthorns, rhododendrons, etc. Lilies and azaleas led the demand, bulbous stock moving slowly.

BANGOR, ME.—Adam Sekinger reports the 1917 Easter business showed an increase of 20 per cent over that of a year ago. Prices were better for plants and about the same for cut stock with an ample supply. Rambler roses led in popularity in the plant class, while azaleas went slow. Everything good in pots found a buyer. In cut flowers the demand for tulips was weak and there was no extra call for roses. Corsages were popular and some of the church decorations were more elaborate than in former years.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—Macnair, Florist, reports better prices existing than during the 1916 Easter period, but no increase in the volume of sales. The supply of plants was more than equal to the demand with fancy stock the least salable and azaleas and hyacinths most popular. In cut flowers, violets led in popularity. Pansies were least called for. Corsages and large basket arrangements sold easily.

BRAMPTON, ONT.—W. G. Peacock, of the Dale Estate, reports the 1917 Easter trade greater than for the past two years, with prices about the same as a year ago. The supply of pot plants was equal to the demand, and same was true of cut stock with the exception of orchids, there being a great demand from the United States for them. Everything sold well.

ROCHESTER, MINN.—The Rochester Floral Co. reports a 20 per cent increase in sales over the Easter trade of last year with prices about the same. The supply of both plants and cut stock was short of requirements. Easter lilies had the call. Other varieties went slow. Spring flowers were quite popular. Carnations were the least salable.

SEDALIA, Mo.—The Archias Floral Co. had a larger Easter trade than in 1916, with prices more satisfactory in all lines. The plant supply was adequate with the exception of lilies. All pot plants sold well and everything good in cut flowers cleaned up. Easter lilies and spring flowers sold best and all roses enjoyed a good call.

French Wartime Reverberations.

French trade papers express fears that flower shops may be closed by the government, as being devoted to "articles of luxury," regardless of the fact that many flowers from Italy and southern France are extremely cheap. Military vegetable gardens at various posts, hospitals and supply depots greatly alleviated the shortage of vegetables in 1916, their total production being 13,000,000 francs.

It is proposed that after the war growers combine to make export sales through a committee of the Horticultural Union, thus securing a uniform price and eliminating competition.

A notice has been published to the effect that many horticultural establishments in which the owners have fallen in battle will be offered for sale as soon as peace is declared.

The national school of agriculture is organizing free classes for crippled and wounded soldiers and those under treatment for injury to nerve centers.

Soldiers of the class of 1892 who make their living from the soil will be granted an entire spring furlough of 20 days.

Owing to scarcity of farm labor, a commission has been established to promote the use of agricultural machinery.

Wild Flowers in Danger.

To the Florists of the City of Chicago and Suburbs—Gentlemen:

The undersigned, representing clubs of Chicago comprising a membership of 46,491 patrons, hereby present to you the formal request that the sale of wild flowers be discontinued.

This request is made as part of a state-wide effort to prevent the extermination of the native flowers of this region.

The early flowers of spring having delicate roots and few seeds, are the species most easily destroyed and therefore are in greatest need of protection. Our fields and countryside have already been robbed of much of their value and attractiveness in the loss of the lotus, pink and yellow lady-slippers, hepatica, ferns, and mosses. Fruit trees and willows are rendered forever unsightly by the breaking of branches for city markets. Lovers of plants and gardens are alarmed at the rapid rate of devastation and are taking action in all possible directions to protect the native spring flora not only from vendors, but from amateur gardeners and from careless marauders.

It is our belief that woodland flowers are not appropriate decoration for city homes; that they rapidly perish and lose their beauty when taken from their natural surroundings. The wild flowers should be left to grow where all men, women and children may see and enjoy them in their rightful place.

We ask the co-operation of all the florist interests in this matter of public service and conservation. Pledged as we are to constructive work in city betterment and civic beauty, we believe that our patronage of the florists' work should be developed in the direction of legitimate gardening, floriculture, and house decoration; that the genuine interests both of florists and patrons will be better served when the buying and selling of garden and hot-house products shall have put an end to the commercialization of our native flowers.

With this request to the florists of Chicago and vicinity to join with us in this movement toward plant conservation, we tender our acknowledgement and grateful appreciation to the Florists' Club, and the Horticultural Society, both of Chicago, for their unqualified promises of support and co-operation.

Prepare Now for Next Year's Show.

The modern flower show is no longer just an exhibition of plants and flowers—it is a collection of the best products of the greenhouses—each exhibit perfect in itself and all so placed as to produce a complete and finished decorative effect. The size of the hall and the general plan of the exhibition are as important as the schedule and should be determined upon at the time it is made.

The recent rose festival of the American Rose Society, held in Philadelphia, Pa., an artistic triumph, was staged in a building with 22,000 square feet of floor space. While sufficiently large for the exhibits, there was not room for the visitors, the largest day's attendance, over 7,000, crowding the building so that it was almost impossible to move about. Twice this amount of space would be necessary to properly stage such an important show. Provision should be made for resting places, where visitors, after a round of the exhibition, could sit and listen to the music.

Now is the time to plan for next year's show. Everything is fresh in mind, all the details of failure or success in quality or arrangement of the exhibits, the advertising, the dates, etc. Publicity should be a most important feature. There are now men who make a business of managing large exhibitions; everybody in Boston knew that the show was very fine this year—"A Corner of Paradise" was the slogan. It was a finished exhibition, but not very much better than that of last season. The attendance was, however, four times greater than that of a year ago, because a practical publicity agent took charge of the advertising, spent $2,000 instead of $300 (last year's bill), reached the multitude, and secured their recognition in greatly increased box office receipts, which is sure to give encouragement and put inspiration into the workers for a better show next year.

Florex Gardens Changes.

David Fuerstenberg, founder, and for many years associated with The Florex Gardens, North Wales, Pa., has disposed of the major part of his interest to Raymond L. Mayhew, former vice-president, who under the new organization becomes head of the company. W. A. Geiger for the past 11 years manager for John Stephenson's Son, Philadelphia, Pa., becomes vice-president, the other officers being Eugene Bernheimer, secretary, and H. C. Geiger, treasurer. Mr. Fuerstenberg, who has reached the age of three score and ten, will remain with the company as chairman of the board of directors.

Newport, R. I.

The best Easter business in the history of the local trade is the report here, all florists averaging from 30 to 50 per cent increase in sales over former years. In plants, lilies were by far the most popular and the supply ran short early. Bulbous stock was more plentiful and practically cleaned up completely. Azaleas, rhododendrons, lilacs, ramblers, spiraeas and hydrangeas sold well. In cut blooms, lilies predominated, bringing usual prices. In violets, there was a big supply and also a heavy demand. The quality of stock in general was particularly fine and prices were about the same as in former years. The weather was all that could be desired.

OBITUARY.

August Louis Glaser.

August Louis Glaser, for many years engaged in the florist business at Dubuque, Ia., and one of the best known members of the craft of that state of which he had been a resident for nearly half a century, passed away April 5, aged 67 years.

The deceased was born in Stein, near Leipsic, Saxony, Germany, where he received his early education, and came to America shortly after his nineteenth birthday, locating almost immediately in the vicinity of Chicago, where he worked on a farm for about four years. In 1873 he went to Des Moines, Ia., where he took a position in the greenhouse of Peter Lambert, learning the business thoroughly. In 1883 he purchased a farm near Grinnell, Ia., but disposed of it shortly afterward and moved to Dubuque in 1886, where he was appointed a member of the board of directors of Linwood cemetery in 1893 and filled the position of superintendent of the burial grounds most creditably until 1901, when he resigned and entered the florist and nursery business and by good management succeeded in making his establishment one of the largest in the city.

Surviving Mr. Glaser are his widow, five sons, two daughters, one sister, two brothers and a number of grandchildren. Funeral services were held April 9, and the many beautiful floral tributes which accompanied the remains to their last resting place, bore evidence of the high esteem in which the deceased was held by a host of friends.

W. P. K.

Daniel McIntyre.

Just at the close of a successful Easter trade, the McIntyre Floral Co., Nashville, Tenn., was called upon to mourn the death of Daniel McIntyre, one of the members of the firm, who passed away Sunday morning, April 8, after suffering for more than five months with a malignant tumor. Of a vigorous and healthy constitution, he bore up well under his long illness and it was hoped by his many friends that he would be able to overcome the malady, but he succumbed to the inevitable.

He was the second son of Daniel McIntyre, Sr., who located in Nashville about the time of the Civil war and established a garden—a pioneer in growing vegetables and flowers, but he soon became a favorite with the people of that city and he was extremely successful. For many years the elder McIntyre was one of the few rose growers in that section and made quite a reputation with his Marechal Neil and Lamarque varieties.

The deceased, who was 43 years of age, is survived by his wife, Mary Miller McIntyre, and four children, the eldest 12 years of age, and his brothers, all of whom are practical growers and have met with splendid business success, the firm which was reorganized about four years ago now being recognized as one of the most prominent in the state.

Daniel McIntyre, although a modest, retiring man, was well thought of and stood high in the community. He will be missed by a wide circle of friends.

M. C. D.

Peter Layster Bogart.

It is my painful duty to record the death of Peter L. Bogart, for many years a leading retail florist of New York. He died at his home in that city April 9 after a long and distressing illness, which he bore with Christian fortitude.

Born in New York City, 59 years ago, he was one of the finest Americans that I have ever known. He was educated in the public schools and after leaving school went to work in the store of Alexander S. Burns, now retired. Later he went into business for himself at 970 Sixth avenue, where he continued for 30 years. Alexander McConnell, the dean of the retail business of New York, says: "Peter Bogart was one of the finest men I ever knew."

He is survived by three others, Walter, William and Alfred, who will continue the business, and by a sister, Miss Laura Bogart.

A. F. F.

Thomas Martin.

Thomas Martin, aged 36 years, died at his home in New York April 5 after a long illness. He was born in that part of the city that is spoken of as "Greenwich Village." When a boy in knickerbockers he went to work for the firm of Traendley & Schenck and remained with them until his health failed. He was an excellent salesman and a clever and amiable young man, and it is a fine tribute to the firm of Traendly & Schenck that they spared nothing in their efforts to restore him to health.

MOTHERS' DAY this year falls on May 13, the second Sunday of the month.

EASTER in 1918 falls on March 31, one week earlier than this year's date.

THE Florists' Telegraph Delivery has mailed attractive Mothers' day circulars to its members.

It is always bad policy to risk tender stock outdoors in advance of the usual time, without adequate facilities for protection.

THE eastern florists were fortunate in closing the Easter business before the snowstorm of April 8-9, one of the heaviest of the season in many places.

HENRY B. ENDICOTT, in an address in Dedham, Mass., said everybody in the state who has available lawn space should turn it over to the raising of food products.

Time To Raise Prices.

Forty years ago George W. Twiss, a pioneer plantsman of Rockford, Ill., sold at retail 2½-inch geranium plants at 35 cents each, ($3 per dozen to the trade). And coal now three prices.

BULBOUS STOCK of good quality was never so plentiful as during the past Easter week, selling generally at prices so low as to leave no margin of profit. This condition materially reduced the prices of other plant and cut flower stocks.

American Gladiolus Society.

The preliminary schedule of the eighth annual exhibition of the American Gladiolus Society, to be held under the auspices of the New York Botanical Society, the New York Horticultural Society and the New York Florists' Club at the Museum building, Bronx park, New York, August 23-26, has been issued. Copies may be had by addressing Henry Youell, secretary, 538 Cedar street, Syracuse, N. Y.

Society of American Florists.

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

Objections having been filed to the name "Aurora," submitted for registration of a new canna by the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa., said firm wishes to withdraw same and substitute the name "Evening Star."

As no objections have been received, public notice is hereby given that the registrations of new cannas, Snow Queen, Druid Hill, and Morning Glow, by the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove Pa., same become complete. April 7, 1917.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW COMMITTEE.

A meeting of the national flower show committee was held at the Hotel Biltmore, New York, in the afternoon of Saturday, March 17, with the following members present: George Asmus, chairman, Chicago; Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J.; A. Farenwald, Roslyn, Pa.; Patrick Welch, Boston, Mass.; Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.; John Young, secretary, New York; J. J. Hess, treasurer, Omaha, Neb.; R. C. Kerr, president S. A. F., Houston, Tex. There were also present: A. L. Miller, vice president, S. A. F., Jamaica, N. Y.; William J. Keimel, Elmhurst, Ill.; William R. Nicholson, Framingham, Mass.; J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill., president, American Carnation Society; S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, Pa., president, American Rose Society.

The business of the meeting was confined to a discussion of a proposed closer affiliation of the American Rose Society and the American Carnation Society with the work of the national flower show committee, looking to an increase in the interest attaching to national flower shows. After a thorough threshing-out of various questions, the following resolutions were passed unanimously:

That the American Rose Society and the American Carnation Society be asked and be empowered to send a delegate to attend the regular called sessions of the national flower show committee, to assist in arranging for the coming national flower show in St. Louis.

That the American Rose Society be permitted to underwrite the schedule for the rose classes to the extent of $2,500; that they be responsible for same, and, in return, will participate in any possible profits from the flower show on a pro-rata basis, after the balance of the premium list and expenses are paid. Should the exhibition show a loss, the American Rose Society will assume a pro-rata share of said loss.

That the American Carnation Society be permitted to underwrite the schedule for the carnation classes to the extent of $1,000; that they be responsible for same, and, in return, will participate in any possible profits from the flower show on a pro-rata basis, after the balance of the premium list and expenses are paid. Should the exhibition show a loss, the American Carnation Society will assume a pro-rata share of said loss.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Des Moines Autumn Flower Show.

Several of the florists of Iowa met in Des Moines March 27 for the purpose of discussing the staging of a fall flower show. At this meeting committees were organized and plans were laid for the Des Moines autumn flower show which is to be held November 8-10. Another meeting will be held April 11 to hear reports of committees and to take up further business. A guarantee fund of $2,000 or more is being raised among the florists of the state. The premium list will carry about $3,000 in prizes, as well as several special awards.

The preliminary schedules will soon be ready for distribution. It is hoped that a great many of the florists of the middle west will plan to enter in the various classes; also, that this will be one of the biggest and best fall shows the middle west has seen, but it all depends upon the co-operation of the florists of this section as to the fulfillment of this hope. These dates should be put down by the florists of the middle west as their red-letter days, and furthermore they should plan to be there with their exhibits.

The members of the executive committee are J. S. Wilson, chairman and manager; A. S. Thurston, vice-chairman; Wesley Green, secretary; A. J. Zwart, treasurer; M. J. Wragg, Jas. Denmead, H. E. Lozier. The chairmen of the other committees are: Finance, A. J. Zwart; premiums and rules, John Reardon; publicity and programme, J. S. Wilson, Jr.; trade display, J. N. Albright; guarantee fund, A. J. Zwart; decorative, Alfred Lozier; growers' and nurserymen's display, M. J. Wragg; special premiums, A. J. Zwart; lectures, A. S. Thurston; music, A. H. Wilson; reception, A. S. Thurston; admission, Wesley Green.

French Florists Prosperous.

Paris, February 8.—There is no lack of flowers in Paris and local florists are enjoying a good trade this winter, notwithstanding the fact that owing to lack of labor and high cost of coal, greenhouse grown stock is at a premium. Cut flowers from southern France, such as roses, Parma violets, Japanese lilies, etc., are both plentiful and cheap. The larger growers report that the demand is almost up to its usual standard. The supply from the Riviera is largely increased by shipments of wallflowers, violets, mimosas and carnations from the Ligurian coast. Owing to the German and Austrian markets being closed to them, Italian growers are trying to find an outlet for their product, with the result that the markets are overcrowded with large shipments from Italy, all of which can not be sold at a profit.

EASTER TRADE SHOWS BIG GAIN.

With a good market, plenty of stock and fine weather on Saturday, the Easter business was about 50 per cent more than in 1916. It looked as though the weather was going to injure business some, but it turned out grand the day before Easter. Had the weather continued like the early part of the week stock would have been of no use at all, as the first three days of the week were very warm. Sweet peas, roses and bulbous stock suffered the most. The next two days were cool with some rain, which made it look rather discouraging to the retailer, but it helped to hold stock in a much better condition. Saturday the sun came out bright and warm, which could not have been better for the dealer who had prepared for a large business and they all had a good day. Most all the stock sent out was satisfactory and very few complaints were registered. Some very poor violets were seen in this market, but the ones who bought them had to replace them with something else. Sweet peas were very much in demand and cleaned up well. Those received earlier in the week were not so good, as they showed the effects of the hot weather. They could not be held as the warm days faded them, so they had to be disposed of at any price. This helped to keep the average for the week down, to a certain extent. Carnations and roses were in good cut and cleaned up well. Lilies were plentiful, but very few were left on hand. Snapdragons, daisies and irises sold very well. Most all the plantmen cleaned up well and all report good prices. Many were sold out of all their stock very early. Smilax was very scarce.

CLUB MEETING.

We wish to make it known to the florists, that those who do not attend the florists' club meetings are missing some extremely interesting gatherings. For instance, every florist would be well benefited by hearing the three papers read at the last one. One by Jno. Costoff was on "The Twelve Best Annuals for Cut Flower Purposes." Another by A. A. Leach was headed "The Twelve Best Hardy Perennials for Cutting" and another by Neil McCallum was entitled "The Twenty-five Best Herbaceous Perennials for Border Display." By observing the number of members who were busy jotting down things in their note books, the papers read secured the attention they deserved. Something interesting and instructive is planned for each meeting, so come around and get the same benefit of your florists' club that florists in other cities are getting from theirs. At this meeting the following awards were made: Cultural certificate to the McCallum Co. for very fine White and Pink Killarney and Ophelia, grown by H. L. Blind; certificate of merit to Jas. Murphy for excellent antirrhinum; cultural certificate to Thos. E. Tyler for collection of carnations, including a sport of Benora, which everyone liked. A vote of thanks was extended Carl Becker for showing spikes five feet long of a hardy mignonette (Reseda perenius). Mr. Sample of Elliott Nurseries also brought some forced shrubs of new varieties. Messrs. Leach, Lundenth and Murphy gave their impressions of the New York show, which they had visited. Subject for next meeting is "Bedding Plants."

NOTES.

E. C. Ludwig of the North Side had the misfortune of having all his three trucks go wrong at the same time, but he managed to get his goods delivered in time.

H. A. Irwin, of Monesson, did a wonderful business for being a new man in the flower game. Funeral work has kept him busy ever since.

The truck of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. was struck by a street car, injuring the driver and boy slightly.

Abe. Krongold disposed of over 2,000 azaleas besides other plants and flowers in his Liberty avenue store.

R. J. Daschbach Co. cleaned up well on all of its fancy plants and could have disposed of many more.

Southern daffodils have made their appearance and seem to be much better than usual.

You Should Use The Rapid Rapper

Pat. May, 1916—Trade Mark Registered.

A Large Grower who bought several Pedestals and a large quantity of Rapid Rappers, says: "We never managed to get out so many packages in such short time as we did this Easter with your outfits. It took less help, did not cost us as much to wrap and less paper was used and the packages presented a neater appearance when ready for delivery. Every grower should have one." Other growers who gave our wrapping outfits a thorough test write that they are more than pleased with them.

A leading Chicago Retail Florist says that he bought one of our outfits because it looked good and after using it Easter week adds that he would not be without one regardless of cost. The early demand was quiet and the rush did not start in until Saturday, April 7, consequently all the work was crowded into one day. People that formerly did the wrapping were enabled to help on the floor for I found that one man could wrap the same number of plants with the Rapid Rapper that three men did in former years.

MAGNIFICENT STOCK SELLS FREELY.

No more perfect weather than that of Friday and Saturday ever marked the Easter-tide in this city, and while Sunday proved cloudy and much colder, it did not interfere to any great extent with the success of the business as Saturday was an ideal day for selling and everyone was out getting flowers for home decoration or as gifts to friends. There was an abundance of stock both in plants and cut flowers and it appeared as if the growers had vied with each other to see who could produce the most magnificent and most bountiful supply. Lilies were easily the best seller and there were thousands of these beautiful flowers, the price holding firm at 25 cents per bloom. There was also a fine supply of baby ramblers, ranging in price at from $3.50 to $5, both red and pink, to say nothing of the vast amount of bulbous stock in small pots, all of which moved nicely. Spiraea Japonica while not seen in large numbers was well flowered and sold well, while quite a few rhododendrons priced at from $5 to $7 attracted the generous buyer. There was a limited supply of Scotch heather which by its rarity and uncommon beauty attracted much attention and was readily disposed of at prices slightly better than those of last year. Decorated baskets were a great feature and while they were large, handsome and high-priced, they sold well. The cut flower supply was excellent. Roses were particularly accommodating and were in the richest profusion, among the leading varieties being American Beauty, both Killarneys, Ophelia, Richmond, Aaron Ward and Kaiserin. Other fine offerings included carnations, lily of the valley, orchids, sweet peas, snapdragons, calceolarias, pansies, etc., all of which in tasteful basket arrangements were very salable and there was no lack of buyers. The flower shops were beautiful to behold, with thousands of superb blooming plants placed tier upon tier and reaching to the ceiling, a large percentage of this stock being lilies.

NOTES.

The Joy Floral Co. never fails to have fine flowers and plenty of them and their establishment was a very busy place and the inroads of the buyers was early noticeable in the immense stock. Basket arrangements here showed wonderful individuality seldom seen both in make-up and selection of flowers, calceolarias, snapdragons, sweet peas, orchids and bunches of heather with lily of the valley proving most effective in many of the offerings. The cut flower stock was equally noteworthy.

The McIntyre Floral Co. had an abundance of flowers and a handsomely arranged store. Although out of the uptown district they command a large and flourishing trade and had unprecedented success with their Easter business. Splendid lilies and roses were features, particularly fine Russells, which they are producing this season.

Geny Bros.' store was a scene of great activity, dozens of clerks being kept busy. The stock here was one of the best of the day, particularly the vast number of baby ramblers, which followed the lilies in popularity. Splendid rhododendrons were also featured, the stock being unsurpassed in size and beauty.

A number of the small growers had wagon loads of plants at the market house and sold out clean by night. Among these were: Chas. Tritschler, TRADE THIRD GREATER AT NORMAL PRICES.

The general opinion locally is that this has been a splendid Easter for business. A bigger trade has been recorded than in any other year, and 30 per cent larger than last year. After a week of hard driving winds and sand storms, Sunday came a beautiful calm, cool day, with almost everybody out on parade, and seeking flowers to wear. So far as prices go, they were about the same as in other years; that is for good stock. There were American Beauty roses though that had to be sold at the wholesale price or less in order to get rid of them. These were flowers that had been too long in cold storage, and their condition was such as to cast a grave reflection on the shipper, whoever he may be. The plant trade was equally as good as the cut flower sales and a corresponding increase over the sales in other years was noted.

LARGEST EASTER TRADE IN YEARS.

During the early part of the week there was an overplus of all flowers, with indications that a big supply would be in for the Easter trade. Even up to the middle of the week prices were low on account of the large quantities of stock on the wholesalers' counters. On Thursday the weather conditions changed materially and stock shortened up so much that Easter orders were cut because of scarcity. The prices, however, were held at reasonable figures, which was quite unusual to the retailer. Cut Easter lilies were cleaned up early at the usual prices. Roses of all kinds were scarce for Easter with a big demand. Violets were very poor, but had quite a call. Sweet peas were fine, and thousands of these were used up for the Easter corsage, with prices right. Greens were in fair supply, with the exception of smilax, which was very scarce, and what there was of it was poor.

NOTES,

Saturday afternoon it started to rain, by night it developed into a cold drizzle, and Sunday morning we were greeted by a snowstorm. Toward noon the weather had moderated and the Easter promenaders began to show their corsages.

The Retail Florist Association publicity committee will now have to get busy for Mothers' day. The place for the next meeting has not yet been selected, but it will be held April 12, with very important business coming up.

Archie Williams, driver for the Schoenle Floral Co., had a close call on the night of April 7, his auto running into one standing still, without lights. Fortunately he was not seriously injured.

The sweet pea surely had the call over other flowers for the popular corsage. One florist reports using up 10,000 sweet peas in corsages alone.

The retailers say it was the biggest Easter ever, in spite of the war scare.

Sensational New American Bedding Rose

"Los Angeles"

(Howard & Smith, 1917)

NEW HYBRID-TEA ROSE, LOS ANGELES.

It is a great pleasure to be able to offer such a meritorious new Rose, particularly so, one of American origin, and we believe that this splendid variety is only the fore-runner of other equally good sorts "Made in America".

We have not only seen the originators' great field of it in California, but have also had the opportunity of watching the behavior of a dozen plants in our own trial beds the past Summer, under what has been one of the most trying seasons we have ever experienced and it has given a most satisfactory account of itself in strong, vigorous growth and in freedom of bloom, in which it was not equalled by any other variety in its first season after planting.

Following is the originators' description:

"Los Angeles is, by all odds, one of the finest Roses ever introduced. The growth is very vigorous and produces a continuous succession of long stemmed flowers of a luminous flame pink toned with coral and shaded with translucent gold at the base of the petals. In richness of fragrance it equals in intensity the finest Marechal Neil. The buds are long and pointed and expand into a flower of mammoth proportions, while the beauty of form and ever increasing wealth of color is maintained from the incipient bud until the last petal drops."

Unlike many of the new imported Roses, the plants are extra heavy two year old stock, which should give a full crop of flowers this season. Price, heavy two year budded plants, $1.50 each.

We make a specialty of two-year-old Roses, budded plants and such that will please your customers for spring planting. Our stock has all been potted up during the winter months, stored cool, and will be in prime condition for April and May Planting. Our list contains not only all the select standard sorts, but many new sorts offered by us exclusively in the United States. For complete list of varieties see our current Wholesale List, January to June issue, which will be mailed upon request, only to persons engaged in horticulture commercially.

Floriculture at Iowa State College.

A floral art exhibition and spring flower show was held at the Iowa State College, Ames, March 30-31. This was the first exhibition of its kind ever held at the college and it was well received, making a distinct impression upon people as to the real value of flowers in our daily life. Many were the expressions of delight made by the numerous visitors and among the many comments were heard such remarks as "the finest thing ever done on the college campus;" "the most novel exhibit of flowers ever seen in the state," "a truly artistic show."

The various ways in which cut flowers are used, also a great many different flower and color combinations, were on display at the exhibit, the object being to make a beautiful display, but also to educate people in the use of flowers in the home and for personal adornment. There were to be seen all types of flower arrangement from the simple bud vase up to large bridal shower bouquets of valley and gardenias. The numerous novel displays proved to be of great interest to the visitors and gave a characteristic uniqueness and originality to the show.

Among the features there was one which attracted the attention of both young and old; it was a complete set of wedding arrangements including the bridal shower bouquet, bridesmaids' shower bouquet, maid of honor bouquet, flower girl basket, boutonnières for bridegroom and ushers, and the bridal table. Other exhibits on display were numerous vase and basket arrangements, flower bowls, corages, trellis boxes, floral art frames, table decorations, stork baskets, presentation baskets, plant baskets, fern dishes, and also vases, pottery and other ornamental accessories. A large group of spring flowering plants arranged in bank-like form occasioned much admiration and many were the questions asked as to the name of the different plants used in the group.

The exhibition, which was a display of the floral work of the students, as-

EASTER TRADE BETTER THAN LAST YEAR.

The Easter trade was very good and much better than last year is the report of practically all the wholesale dealers who are more than satisfied with the amount of business that was done. The shipping trade was exceptionally heavy and the local demand was surprisingly good, although it started in much later than in former years. The heavy rain all day, Thursday, April 5, affected business a great deal, but the favorable weather that prevailed Friday, Saturday and Sunday evened things up considerably and what was at first thought would be the poorest Easter in years, as far as the local demand was concerned, turned out to be the best ever. The shortage in plants caused a heavy late demand for cut flowers and some of the wholesale houses kept open until nearly midnight, Saturday, April 7, for the accommodation of their customers. Stock in general cleaned up better than at any previous Easter, as was predicted in the market reports in the past few issues of THE AMERICAN FLORIST. American Beauty roses sold surprisingly well and cleaned up at an early hour at high prices. A large quantity of American Beauty roses was received from the east which cleaned up also at good prices, owing to the scarcity of home-grown stock. Mrs. Chas. Russell roses were in good demand, and, like American Beauty roses, cleaned up quickly. Red roses in general had the call and sold first. Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, My Maryland and other pink varieties, cleaned up nicely, and while White Killarney sold well the demand could have been much better. Orchids and gardenias were scarce and it was impossible to supply anywhere near the demand. Lily of the valley was also scarce and so were sweet peas, which brought high prices. Home-grown violets commanded good figures and while double violets had a good call and cleaned up well they did not bring the prices they should have, considering the general market conditions. Lilies never sold at such high prices at Easter as they did this year and never cleaned up so completely at such an early hour. Carnations were plentiful and sold pretty well, but $4 on fancy red and pink was considered a high average. Iris, tulips, jonquils, snapdragons and stocks found ready buyers and other miscellaneous stock in general had a good call and was pretty well disposed of before the rush was over, with the exception of one or two items. Some lilies were received from the east and found ready buyers and the same can be said of the California callas, which arrived in good condition. Taking everything into consideration, the Easter trade this year, as far as the wholesalers were concerned, was the most satisfactory in years, considering the extra large supply of stock that was handled in this market. Stock at this writing is plentiful with one or two exceptions and very fancy stock is obtainable in quantity lots at very reasonable prices. There is a good call for wedding flowers, which is not surprising when one reads that over 1,000 marriage licenses were issued one day this week and that the rush is still on, which is attributed to the fact that many of the young men are trying to evade possible military service.

Zech & Mann report business as fine and that their sales for every day of Easter week showed a big gain over the corresponding period of 1916. Their supply of cut lilies was one of the largest and finest in the city and came from the Damm Bros. greenhouses where they will be grown all through the season. Allie Zech says the quality of the lilies they offered this Easter was exceptionally fine and they never brought such high prices or cleaned up so completely as they did this year.

Chas. Fisk and wife are back from a most pleasant visit in Florida. One of the mounted policemen near the wholesale market was so glad to see him upon his return that he invited him to appear in court the Saturday before Easter for leaving his car standing in front of the LeMoyné building longer than a half hour on the day previous.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. will officially open its new supply quarters on the second floor of the Stewart building, one door west of the place it now occupies, Saturday, April 21, and a cordial invitation is extended to everyone in the trade to attend the big doings. Otto W. Frese says the Easter business at Poehlmann's this year was far ahead of 1916.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. moved the large supply of cut lilies that they had to offer for Easter at an early hour at very satisfactory prices and could have easily sold many more, for the demand was far greater than the supply. Their stock of lilies was fine and came from the Pyfer & Olsem greenhouses at Wilmette.

Wietor Bros. cut heavily in American Beauty roses last week, but experienced no trouble in disposing of all they had to offer at satisfactory prices, owing to their splendid quality. They supplied many of the wholesalers with American Beauties in addition to all their regular customers.

Wm. P. Kyle, of Kyle & Foerster, has returned from Dubuque, Ia., where he attended the funeral of the late A. L. Glaser, Monday, April 9. Mr. Glaser was well known in this market where he was a large buyer and his sudden death came as a great surprise to his many friends here.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is showing a splendid line of roses and bulbous stock this week as well as fancy orchid flowering sweet peas. The Easter trade at this establishment was remarkably good considering the extra large supply of stock that was handled.

C. L. Washburn says that they handled more stock at Bassett & Washburn's store this Easter than in former years, and while everything cleaned up splendidly prices in general were not as high consequently the increase in the total sales will not be as large as was at first expected.

Stollery Bros. have placed an order with the John C. Moninger Co. for two show houses, 12x50 feet, to be erected at their new place at 4546 Broadway. They operated both their old store on Wilson avenue and new quarters on Broadway at Easter and report a splendid trade.

The firm of J. A. Budlong had its share of the Easter trade and report a general clean-up. The only item that did not move as well as it might was carnations, especially in the white varieties, which holds good for the market in general.

Peter Reinberg's Easter business was considerably ahead of 1916, according to Felix Reichling, who says that the shipping trade particularly was extra heavy. This firm is cutting a good supply of the pretty new pink rose, Champ Weiland.

Application for incorporation has been filed for Albany Nurseries by David Jacobson, H. H. Atridiron and Arthur R. Phillips, capital stock, $10,000. They have opened a store at 223 to 225 West Madison street.

H. Van Gelder says that Percy Jones never handled such a large quantity of stock before at Easter than this year and never did such a large business or cleaned up so completely in all lines.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. enjoyed a splendid Easter business, which was the best in years. The shipping trade was very heavy and the local demand never was so good.

Schiller's issued attractive Easter circulars covering the firm's three stores, one of the offers including a combination flower and candy box for $3.

Wiltgen & Freres have added a rose grower to their list of consignors. They jokingly remark that their Easter trade this year was the best ever.

Chicago Florists' Club.

The regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club was held at Quincy, Number 9, April 5, W. J. Keimel presiding. Eugene C. Bowen, 3167 Broadway, Chicago; E. A. Bebb, Mt. Greenwood, and H. G. McLellan, Hammond, Ind., were elected to membership and introduced to the club as was M. C. Wright, manager of the Lord & Burnham Co.'s western office, who was enrolled at the March meeting.

Fred Lautenschlager, chairman of the publicity committee, submitted for examination to the members present a copy of the Mothers' day posterette to be issued soon. He reported that arrangements for the distribution of this posterette were well under way and that the committee had a plan in view to follow up this campaign with a full page advertisement in one of the leading national magazines, further particulars of which will be announced later.

T. E. Waters introduced a motion suggesting that the club hold a picnic some Sunday in July, which was referred to the good-of-the-club committee with instructions to report at the next meeting.

Anton Then suggested that the club take up the problem of devising some means whereby the growers could purchase their coal for next season at a reasonable cost with the guarantee that their orders would be filled properly. Mr. Keimel appointed a committee consisting of Anton Then, H. G. McLellan and Charles Hunt to solve the problem and report what progress had been made at the meeting in May.

Mr. Then volunteered to give the newly elected president one of his own-make wild smilax gavels similar to that presented to President Henderson in 1916 with the promise that he would have on in hand at the next meeting night.

Vaughan's Seed Store exhibited several vases of cannas including Yellow King Humbert and two fine unnamed yellow varieties.

EASTER TRADE HITS HIGH.

Easter business by common consent was a record breaker, surpassing in volume the highest point ever attained in former years by any of the local dealers. All conditions were favorable to this result and no one was disappointed. Fully 10 days before the great event of the year, indications pointed to a big demand and the growers during the past three months or more were carefully preparing for the immense anticipated trade. Following a growing custom of recent years of placing orders early in the week preceding Easter, the public thronged the florist shops for early purchases and selections for later deliveries. The weather Good Friday was cold, rainy and most disagreeable, but the next day it cleared and was most favorable to shopping. Sunday, too, was clear but cool, and never before were more flowers worn upon the streets. Of all the long list of beautiful flowering plants offered the Easter lily was supreme, as the demand was early, constant and incessant, establishing beyond doubt an ever increasing popularity of this plant. The scarcity of good azaleas may have been partly responsible for the heavy run upon the lilies, but the flower itself seemed to appeal with special force to the admiration of the public. Thousands of lilies were sold and many more could have been sold had they been available, for the market was cleaned up completely and belated lots in the hands of the growers were under high heat to enable them to come under the wire at the last moment to satisfy the eager buyers. A good stock was everywhere to be seen of spiraeas, roses, hydrangeas, genistas and a complete list of bulbous plants. Of the latter, the daffodils, though of most excellent quality, moved slowly, which was to many inexplicable when the beautiful character of the plants were considered. Some elegant specimens of rhododendrons were seen in many of the streets and shared with the azaleas a fairly good call. Pot roses were very popular and embraced some well trained Dorothy Perkins and heavy bush forms in Magna Charta, baby ramblers and other varieties. There was an ample supply of cut flowers of all kinds and the prices ruled in most cases about equal to the same period last year. Roses were an exception, as these were high in price, though the quality was also high. Carnations were fine and held firmly at $5 to $8 per hundred wholesale. Violets were only fair in quality, though some of the stock was up to standard for the season. Lily of the valley was poor, most of it, but its indispensable place in corsage bouquets enabled it to command a high price. Plant baskets, which are now most essential to every collection of Easter offerings, were seen in great numbers and embraced some very expensive arrangements which supplied the demand for the more expensive effects. Orchids enjoyed a demand that early exhausted the supply, though many shops were thought to be amply supplied before the rush began. Overjoyed as the florists were by the immense business done, they had to endure a severe test of their facilities for handling a big trade, most exacting in its requirements.

EARLY REPORTS INDICATE GOOD TRADE.

At this time of writing (Easter Monday) it is impossible to state whether business for Easter is ahead in dollars and cents of last year, but the amount of stock received and disposed of certainly showed a nice increase over the Easter of 1916. From reports it was a plant day for they could be seen all over the city in great numbers and the fact that the plant growers were sold out long before Saturday, verifies the statement. Easter lilies, both in pots and as cut flowers, took the lead and the demand soon exhausted the supply. In cut blooms, while Russell and other red roses were in great demand, the biggest call was for the smaller cut flowers such as sweet peas, violets, etc. While a week ago the supply of sweet peas was light, thus figuring on a possible shortage in this line, the supply was equal to the extra heavy demand and the stock was very fine. Due to the advance prices quoted on carnations for Easter week, that line was short the latter part of the previous week, coming into the market on Monday and Tuesday, thus causing a break which was pretty well overcome by the end of the week when the local demand was heaviest. There was the usual amount of pickled stock which helped cause the trouble. The line which fared the worst, due to overproduction, was bulbous stock, especially white tulips and daffodils.

NOTES.

We can report that the local craft was greatly displeased with the sales of Easter lilies in pots quoted by the Boston store throughout the week at 15 cents per bud and bloom; then to make matters worse, the Espenhain store offered lilies on Saturday, April 7, at 10 cents a bud or bloom. It is a Chinese puzzle to find out, considering the increased cost of production, how they can be sold at that price and still not affect the reputation and business of the legitimate flower stores.

Gust. Rusch, of Gust. Rusch & Co., was home for two weeks with tonsillitis and other throat trouble, and even though a sick man was on deck to help this Easter break all previous records. They report a full supply of all lines, thus satisfying all comers. The Cudahy Floral Co. were right on time with their roses and will be in on long-stemmed American Beauties for some time.

C. C. Pollworth, for his firm says: "Easter business very fine, having sold out completely in both pot plants and cut flowers with the exception of bulbous stock. Our growers of sweet peas were right on crop and many thousands were moved during the end of the week."

The Holton & Hunkel Co., who had a large stock of pot plants, was all sold out early and it was a mad rush to get the orders out. They handled more cut flowers than last year, but at this time could not say as to the financial end of it.

Art Leidiger, of the Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., and Aug. F. Kellner were both confined to the house with a bad cold the fore part of last week, but were fortunate enough to get around for the rush.

The club meeting, April 5, brought out a quorum in spite of the coming holiday. Not much new business out of the routine line was transacted.

The regular meeting of the Holyoke and Northampton Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held April 3 with E. J. Canning, Northampton, a goodly number of members being present. A letter was read from a preparedness committee of Holyoke inviting the co-operation of the club, and President Strugnell was appointed to represent the club on that committee. (It looks like working overtime with the hoe this summer.) Alex. Haeseler, of the Smith College greenhouses, read a paper on "Cinerarias and Primulas," which brought out a good discussion. We were pleased to welcome an old member in the person of Clark Thayer of the department of floriculture of Cornell University, who has temporarily succeeded Prof. Nehrling at the Massachusetts Agricultural College. Mr. Thayer gave an interesting account of the trials of hardy phlox which have been conducted at Cornell for the last three years. Some very fine spikes of Buxton's Silver Pink snapdragons were exhibited by G. H. Sinclair & Son. H. E. Downer showed pots of Narcissus King Alfred and Tulip Wm. Cope-land.

ALL EASTER RECORDS BROKEN.

Great records were made in this city during Easter week, both as to the amount of stock disposed of, both pot plants and cut flowers—and in the different kinds of weather, which was sunny until Saturday when it turned cold, accompanied by a four-inch fall of snow, which naturally hampered deliveries. Roses of all kinds, except fancy Russell and Milady, were plentiful and of good quality. The market was almost glutted with carnations and bulbous stock poured in from every direction. Lilies as usual held their high place and sweet peas in all grades and violets were good property. Pot plants and basket arrangements were much in evidence. Sales ran far ahead of other years and in most cases were more easily made.

NOTES.

T. J. Noll & Co. report the biggest Easter trade in their history, they having to work night and day to handle the orders. The shipping business was especially active. This firm carried a fine line of roses in nearly all varieties, lilies, orchids, sweet peas and bulbous stock.

Wm. L. Rock Flower Co., sold great numbers of roses in pots and lilies in fancy baskets. Cut stock also moved very well. Fancy boxes and corsages were featured here. Taking it all in all, it was the heaviest Easter trade in the firm's history.

The Alpha Floral Co. reports a complete cleanup, although delivery was hampered to some extent. They had a big run on lilies and violets but the demand for corsages fell off. Pot plants and baskets sold better than ever before.

W. J. Barnes had a record breaking Easter trade and disposed of immense quantities of pot plants and baskets arrangements. His big supply of carnations and bulbous stock moved to the last flower. Corsage work was a feature.

Fred Fromholt reports the sale of 1,000 pot lilies as well as many other plants in pots and baskets. He could have disposed of much more stock had it been available.

The Peterson Floral Co. found its big stock not sufficient to meet all demands. Pot plants were the favorites but cut stock also made a complete cleanup.

H. Kusik & Co. handled the largest supply of cut stock they ever had for Easter and then ran short. Shipping trade was far better than in any other year.

The usual run on Easter cemetery bouquets was noted at A. F. Barhe's. Pot plants and cut flowers sold better than ever before.

August Luther reports Easter trade far ahead of any previous year. He cleaned up well and kept his orders going out in good time.

EASTER SUPPLY AND DEMAND VERY GOOD.

Easter business was excellent. There was a good supply of all seasonable flowers in the market and all cleaned up readily. Since Easter the market has been rather light, but should open up by the end of this week. Roses are in a fair supply. Some excellent blooms in Killarney, Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty and American Beauty may be had. Carnations are in a good supply. Easter lilies are very plentiful. Sweet peas continue in good supply and have a good market. Some good tulips, jonquils and hyacinths are coming into the market. Other offerings include lily of the valley, orchids, snapdragons, some violets, callas and gladioli.

NOTES.

C. E. Critchell received an excellent lot of bulbous stock from Henry Koeser of this city for Easter.

E. G. Gillett had large quantities of excellent Easter lilies for Easter. All sold readily.

Julius Baer was very busy with funeral work immediately after the Easter rush.

GENERAL CLEANUP REPORTED.

The Easter rush is over and local florists all report a very busy time. Plants sold rapidly with the result that at an early hour Saturday night the majority of the stores were practically cleaned out of good stock. Cut flowers and corsages also fared well. Violets were scarce and sold almost on sight. Many were shipped here from the Boston markets. Plants were seen in great variety, the offerings including azaleas, rhododendrons, cyclamens, primulas, hyacinths, tulips, daffodils, lilacs, spiraeas, Easter lilies and rambler roses, together with numerous small plants. In all the trade was very good and the stock exceptionally fine. Everyone seems perfectly satisfied with the 1917 Easter sales.

ALL BRANCHES REPORT BIG EASTER TRADE.

A grand and glorious Easter trade is the sum total of the many favorable reports in all the various branches of the trade. The majority of the growers sold out everything presentable. Pot lilies particularly were in demand—not a plant with flowers left anywhere. Cut lilies also sold out; here and there a jar full of stalks and buds was all that was left. Many azaleas were left, the stock being so poorly flowered. These will be kept over for next year. Rhododendrons were well flowered and commanded good prices. Hydrangeas sold well, as did rambler roses. Hyacinths and tulips in all the stocks looked fine and were in good demand. Pink spiraea was conspicuous. There were some showy Bougainvillea thryscanthus in the best shops. The cut flower supply was ample and there was a very good demand for all high grade stock, but owing to the warm weather of the week previous much of the stock that was being held came in quite soft. Then in the cold days of the first of Easter week, the cloudy Wednesday and rainy Thursday, sweet peas did not open out. This made really good flowers scarce. Choice carnations were also scarce for the same reason. Lily of the valley brought the outside price, $8 per hundred. Cattleyas were very scarce at $1 each. Violets were plentiful, but there are now too many other corsage flowers in competition and they do not lead as in the old days.

NOTES.

J. Otto Thilow's description of his visit to the Hawaiian Islands at the April meeting of the florists' club was most entertaining and instructive. The climate is sub-tropical, temperatures ranging from 55 to 85 degrees, with very little humidity. Strawberries are grown the year round. Paul Neyron roses furnish their magnificent blooms from one year's end to the other, flowering on every new growth like tea roses in the states. The sugar cane belt is 90 miles long by 10 wide and furnishes the principle industry, with pineapples a good second. The flora was described as wonderful. There was a thousand more varieties of plants than are to be found in Jamaica. Bignonia venusta, with its profuse orange blossoms, was wonderful. Erythrina Christa-galli grew into trees 40 feet in height, completely covered with its showy flowers. Bougainvilleas were at their best and a hedge of night-blooming cereus in full flower was entrancing. Cibotiums in forest growth were one of the sights of the island. Gerbera Jamesoni grew everywhere like our common dandelion. Fancy caladiums were also very luxurious. The hibiscus were also gorgeous. The ever active volcano was one of the most wonderful sights in the world. His description of the inhabitants and life there, with no intemperance or smoking by the natives, was very interesting. Mr. Thilow would have made a great success as a public lecturer.

THE AMERICAN

172 N. Wabash Ave., CHICAGO

Announcement to All Lily Growers

This firm's attitude toward its customers has ever been that of fairness and squareness. You can rely upon us to supply you with the best Lily Bulbs the fields of Japan produce.

October, 1916, to March, 1917

we have booked orders for a total of

753,300 LILY BULBS

(With the splendid results our bulbs of the 1916 crop are giving, we should easily double this figure before delivery time arrives—and we have arranged for the stock to fill the orders.)

This fact and the picture showing the product of our "A. B. C." brand Lily Bulbs taken a week before Easter, is proof enough to you, Mr. Florist, that we should be entrusted with your initial order for Lily Bulbs. If you have already placed your order elsewhere, we recommend you giving us a trial order for a few cases Now. Our prices are very reasonable for the good quality of bulbs we sell. We are not in competition with those who sell Lilies based on price. Our efforts and arguments are based on quality. One more flower produced from one Lily Bulb will pay for three bulbs.

Our salesmen who are calling upon you, and our men who fill your orders, are men who have had practical experience in the growing end of the Florists' business, and are not connected with us for their talking ability and salesmanship, but for their knowledge of practical floriculture, which enables us to give intelligent answers to inquiries and satisfactory service.

Paper Whites

For sale to the public to grow in water.

The Paper Whites shown in this cut were flowered in bowls and glasses in our store window. Note the strong root action. We had them in the window to show Florists what good stock we sell—but why not you, Mr. Retailer, sell the bulbs to the public for flowering in water in the dwelling? It's a chance to work up a good side line. Place order now for bulbs for late summer delivery, and with the bulbs we will send a print of this photo and cultural directions for your use at cost.

We have on hand all sizes of lily bulbs in storage that we can deliver at a moment's notice in Rubrum, Auratum and Album, as well as Giganteum.

Special prices on lots of 25,000 and 50,000.

DAMM BROS. LILIES are sold by

ZECH & MANN,
30 E Randolph St., Chicago.

Ask them if there were any better Lilies this year.

George Damm, of Damm Bros., who knows and grows good lilies. A. Miller, of the American Bulb Company, who knows and sells good lily bulbs.

Don't Wait

Now is the time to send us a shipment of flowers and acquaint yourself with the satisfactory treatment you receive when you ship to New York's Foremost Commission House in the flower trade.

Extensive experience, ample capital, modern facilities and, in fact, everything to commend us to you.

Special opportunity for a couple of Good Rose Growers who are looking for best returns. Our present demand is larger than our supply.

UNITED CUT FLOWER CO., Inc., 111 W. 28th St., New York City

ing reached the age of retirement, has sold a large block of his stock to W. L. Geiger, late with John Stephenson & Son of York road, who will have entire charge of the greenhouses. The officers of the reorganized company are: R. L. Mayhew, president; W. L. Geiger, vice-president; Eugene Bernheimer, secretary; H. C. Geiger, treasurer. The past season was the most profitable in the history of the company and prospects for the future are bright. Mr. Fuerstenberg is to remain in the company as chairman of the board of directors. Harold Roberts, for several years grower in charge of the mammoth North Wales houses, goes to succeed Mr. Mayhew in the same capacity at the Stephenson greenhouses.

The wholesale houses' report of the Easter trade shows about a 10 per cent increase. The Leo Niessen Co. had at least a 10 per cent increase. There were flowers enough in all lines to go around. American Beauty roses, sweet peas and Easter lilies were the quantity flowers, but there was a good general demand and the stock to fill it.

The Robert Craig Co. experienced a wonderful Easter trade. Everything salable cleaned up. An immense stock of lilies sold out. Their new fern, Norwood, will be grown over the entire country. Spring delivery stock is all sold out—over 50,000 plants.

At the recent bazaar in Horticultural hall for the benefit of the British soldiers, a pot of English primroses at the booth of the London Flower Shop was raffled off and brought $21. Wm. Sim should have had an agency there.

Mr. Liggett stated the S. S. Pennock-Meehan plant business was away ahead of last season. Cut flowers at least 10 per cent increase was the word from this department.

Alfred Campbell was much pleased with his Easter business. His stock of 10,000 Easter lily plants sold to the last pot, while his rose plants were the feature of the market.

Fred Chesney has given up the Charles E. Meehan greenhouses at Holland, Pa., and taken a position as manager of the Crescent greenhouses at Punxsutawney, Pa.

Berger Brothers' Easter trade was fine. Everything cleaned up with the exception of a little bulbous stock. Tea roses, sweet peas and Easter lilies were specials here.

Edward Reid handled enormous quantities of sweet peas, Easter lilies, roses and lily of the valley. Business was fully 10 per cent better than last year.

Eugene Bernheimer was well pleased with his business, which was the best ever. Prima Donna roses and high grade sweet peas were his leaders.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange was in good spirits—sold up on everything and could have handled much more in some lines.

Raymond Brunswick, secretary of the M. Rice Co., was married April 11. A six weeks' honeymoon under southern skies follows.

Stuart Miller is now with the Philadelphia Cut Flower Co., where he will be glad to serve his many friends.

The Jos. H. Heacock Co.'s business was excellent—a good Easter crop of roses and a splendid demand.

EASTER WHOLESALE TRADE DISAPPOINTS.

There were disappointments in the Easter business, particularly in the wholesale district. American Beauties were slow at 40 cents for the pick of specials, whereas special Hadleys ran from 75 cents to $1. Throughout the week, up to midnight previous to Easter, it was generally supposed that there would be a heavy supply of special tea roses; but it developed that such stock was scarce, and that was the big surprise. There were calls for special Ophelias and roses of that grade, but there were few to be had. A succession of high winds seemed to have raked the greenhouses and cut down the supply. Good cut lilies and lily of the valley went well. There was a fair movement in the best cattleyas, but much inferior stock dragged. Snapdragons, which have held up well throughout the season, went dead. About the only use that can be made of them is for decorative purposes and they were put out of business by the fine pot plants. Carnations, narcissi and tulips were a drag. Four dollars per 100 was the best for carnations and many sold as low as $2. So far as we can learn, the retailers throughout the city had good business in plants. Spring is essentially a plant season and the people seem to be more interested in plants than other features, though this does not mean that cut flowers are being discarded. The trouble with cut flowers in New York is that there are too many of them.

EASTER IN THE RETAIL STORES.

The writer of these notes is not, strictly speaking, a New Yorker; in fact, getting nearer to the truth, he originated in the state that Henry Cabot Lodge—God bless the old fellow—represents in the United States Senate. But, let us forget our ancestors and talk business.

With the material at hand, the retailers of New York were well prepared to meet the demands of the Easter business. In stocking up with plants that they are never sure they can clean up on, they show themselves to be men willing to take chances to please their customers. There was much good plant stock noticed, acacias, rhododendrons, genistas, daisies and some of the roses being very noteworthy. For some reason that we cannot now explain, many of the pot roses were off color; too light, and having a faded-out look that did not appeal to customers. The growers should note this and find out the reason; for if they cannot, who else can? It has not been a warm spring; therefore, we advise them that before another Easter rolls around, they should get busy and find out a few new tricks in growing. There were many more azaleas and better ones than were expected, but the people were expecting more good roses.

Right here, we wish to advise some of our ardent advocates of flower shows who say that flower shows "educate the people," that a lot of the "people" know enough already; so let us drop the subject for the present. There were most excellent bougainvilleas—we have never seen them so good. What heather we noticed was good, but there was not as much of it as might have been expected. In hyacinths and other bulbous stock there was a reasonable supply, but such stock is a minor consideration.

At the store of David Clarke's Sons, Broadway and 75th street, we noticed a great collection of all the finest features of the season, and they were about sold out by April 7. This is an old firm that is always on the level and its customers appreciate that fact.

Alexander McConnell, Fifth avenue and 69th street, is another old-timer who holds a fine line of customers. Among other very noteworthy features, his heathers were exceptionally fine.

Hession, Madison avenue and 76th street, in addition to much other fine stock, had an exceptionally fine line of acacias.

The store of C. A. Dards, Madison avenue and 44th street, is always an attractive place to visit and never more so than at Easter. They were almost sold out by noon of April 7.

Being on Sixth avenue, is not now considered being quite with the bon ton, but W. P. Sears, Sixth avenue and 42d street, was one of the busiest little men we noticed. A. F. F.

Columbus, O.

Local florists estimate an increase in receipts of from one-fourth to one-third over last year. It was the largest Easter season ever known. Some attempt was made at advance in prices, but in the main the usual Easter rates prevailed. One reason for keeping to old precedent, in face of such an eager trade, was the heavy volume of stock. All kinds of flowers were available in most any quantity on which the dealer wanted to take chances, and this condition was taken advantage of freely. It was a great lily season, and although stocks were sold up close there was no shortage. In plants, hydrangeas were another prime favorite. The poorest sale was in some of the cheaper pot stock which have been on the market for some time. The tendency was for a good class of plants. Novelty was strongly in evidence, as was proved by the vastly increased sale of fancy baskets. Cut flowers saw an early clean-up in sweet peas and violets. One leading florist states that he could have sold 10 times the quantity which he had provided. Roses and carnations, while moving freely, were second in favor. The volume of trade was in every way satisfactory. On the other hand is the general complaint that delivery cost ate up too large a share of profits. Facing an unprecedented congestion the day preceding Easter, florists were compelled to draft into service extra delivery facilities wherever they could lay their hands on them and submit to very high rates. At that there was much disappointment to customers in the matter of promptness. Some of the florists are agitating a concerted effort to educate the public to take their purchases with them on future rush occasions. At least, it is claimed that it would be more satisfactory both for the customer and the florist if the former was treated frankly in the matter and not be allowed to go away without being warned of possible disappointment, and being given the choice of carrying their own flowers home or taking chances on delay if delivery was left with the dealer.

SEED POTATOES at Chicago sold at $3.15 per bushel in large lots early in the week.

ONION SETS at Chicago remain about the same as last week, namely, $4.75 to $5.25 per bushel.

A. KRUEH, in the April World's Work, gives several leading seed growers liberal advertising.

BEAN growers in Michigan, Montana and Idaho are experiencing difficulties in putting out their seed stock.

HOLLAND has experienced a very severe winter, but damage, if any, to the growing bulb crop is not yet known.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, April 11, were as follows: Timothy, $4.50 to $6.00 per 100 pounds.

THE next meeting of the Western Seedsmen's Association will be held at Omaha, Neb., but so far the date has not been fixed.

FREESIAS in California have been damaged by frosts of unusual duration and severity and will be short, especially in the larger sizes.

SOWING of onion seed for sets at Chicago has already begun on various warm lands in both northern and southern sections in Cook county.

A MODIFICATION of the pure seed bill drafted by the state commission has been introduced into the California legislature by Senator E. S. Rigdon of Cambria.

ANOTHER Richmond has tossed his horseshoe into the ring, the H. Frank Darrow Co., Inc., New York, offering a full line of choice and sound Japanese lily bulbs for delivery, fall of 1917.

BALTIMORE, Md.—Manager Ramsey of the vegetable seeds department of J. Bolgiano & Sons reports sales in this department three times greater than last year, due to activity in back yard and vacant lot gardening.

IN a recent bulletin of the Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., on "The Present Status of the Sugar-Beet Seed Industry in the United States," it is stated that the present seed requirements of the beet-sugar industry in this country are 150,000 sacks of 110 pounds each.

FARMERS' BULLETIN 793, entitled "Foxtail Millet, Its Culture and Utilization in the United States," issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, treats of the date, rate and method of seeding, preparation of the seed bed and comparison of varieties, together with much other interesting information.

VISITED CHICAGO: A. T. Ferrell, of A. T. Ferrell & Co., wife and daughter, Saginaw, Mich.; Dudley A. Sherwood, representing William A. Cox, San Francisco, Calif.

A CALIFORNIA correspondent writes as follows under date of March 31: "Mr. ——— has in his garden one plant of early flowering double cosmos of a crimson color now in blossom. We don't know how it happened, but it's there and has been in blossom two weeks."

Philadelphia Seed Trade.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co. are in the midst of the greatest rush they have ever experienced. There appears to be a great demand for almost every line in their catalogue, particularly vegetable seed, owing to the great exploitation by the papers of the possibilities of the back yard garden. For the first time in their experience they are running a night force.

Edward Dnngan, of the Wm. Henry Maule Co., reports an unusual demand; much the largest business they have ever had. The preparedness scare has had much to do with it. Seed potatoes are almost out of the market, as is also spinach. This firm is fairly well supplied in most other lines and believes it will be able to supply the demand after it has caught up with orders. The Robt. Buist Co. is also swamped with orders. This establishment does a very large wholesale and shipping trade and has been so interfered with by local buyers (people wanting seeds in small quantities for back yard gardens) that it had to cloud the glass in the windows and doors to attract as little attention as possible. Onion sets are now quoted at $6.75 for white and $5.50 for yellow per bushel. Many vegetable seeds are proportionately higher. Delayed freight has caused much annoyance. A car of beans from California has been on the way since January 10, and is not here yet. This firm is well prepared, however, in almost all lines except spinach, which is scarce.

Geo. D. Clark, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., reports a 50 per cent increase in the seed department. The papers have frightened the people so about the "H. C. L." that thousands are planting seeds, mostly small lots for vegetables. There will be plenty of stock to go around, however, as these small lots, numerous as they are, are not large in the aggregate or quantity of seed required to fill them. The large consumers or truckers are not increasing their plantings, because of the scarcity of labor, men, skilled or unskilled, being hard to get. Flower seeds are not having the same demand as the vegetables because they are not included in the columns and even pages of matter as seen for the last month or two in newspapers.

High cost of seeds is not so much due to the demand as the partial failure of a number of important crops last season. In other lines high prices command the best goods, but when seed potatoes, corn, beans, etc., are cheapest, the quality is of the best. When high, they are scarce and inferior stock is worked in and sells along with the best to make up the quantity.

C. W. Moore, of the Moore Seed Co., finds it hard to gauge the market, prices keep mounting so fast. White onion sets have advanced since December from $1.75 to $6.50 per bushel. Field corn has gone from $1.40 to $1.80, sugar corn from $1.60 to $10.50 per bushel. Wax beans have advanced from $6.50 to $19. Delayed freights have been a factor; a car of beans and peas from Sheboygan, Mich., shipped January 10 is still somewhere on the way.

P. B. Mingle, of P. B. Mingle & Co., finds a greatly increased demand from small buyers for all kinds of garden seeds. Some are also going into growing beans as a speculation, one man buying 150 bushels to plant his farm. There was such a demand for the onion, Prizetaker, that it was almost out of the market.

J. N. Simon & Son, whose business is largely wholesale, find all peas, beans and onion sets only to be had at advancing prices. Seed potatoes were away up—$9 to $10 per bag of 165 pounds. Prizetaker onion seed is reported almost out of the market, while herb seeds are also very scarce.

The H. F. Michell Co., Inc., are head over ears in the rush. Their counter trade keeps a very large force on the go all day. This firm is prepared for a large business, having all their warehouses filled with stock purchased in expectation of a great demand.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—There are about 4,270 acres of vacant lots within the city limits splendidly adapted to gardening.

ESTIMATED farm values of important products February 15 was as follows: Cabbage, per 100 pounds, $5.65, as compared with $1.21 in 1916; onions, per bushel, $3.58, as against $1.26 a year ago.

UNDER the title, "North American Varieties of the Strawberry," the Virginia Agricultural experiment station, Blacksburg, has issued Technical Bulletin 11, listing all varieties that have originated in North America. The list includes 1879 varietal names.

Tomato Acreage and Production.

From reports received by the Bureau of Crop Estimates, United States department of agriculture from 29 states, the commercial acreage of tomatoes in 1916 was 286,038, the average yield being 4.9 tons per acre and a total production of 1,391,701 tons. In 1915 the acreage amounted to 221,826, with a total production of 984,886 tons, the yield per acre being 4.4 tons.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, April 10.—Mushrooms, home grown, 50 to 65 cents per pound; lettuce, small cases, 35 cents; radishes, 50 to 60 cents, dozen bunches; celery, $2.00 to $3.50, crate; tomatoes, six baskets, $5.00 to $7.50; cucumbers, per 2 dozen box, $2.00 to $3.00.

New York, April 10.—Celery, per crate, $1.00 to $3.50; cucumbers, 60 cents to $1.75 per dozen; mushrooms, 75 cents to $1.60 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, per lb., 30 to 50 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2.50 to $5.00; lettuce, per strap, $2.00 to $5.00.

Tomatoes Under Glass.

Tomatoes under glass are likely to prove a valuable crop this season, owing to the great scarcity of vegetables in general. It will pay to take the best of care of them, and put more under way if space permits. Carnation growers can often resort to discarding entire houses of carnations after Easter and change with profit to tomatoes. Whenever tomatoes are benched following flowers, that is on shallow soil, say 4 or 5 inches, immediate arrangement must be made for more plant food. There is nothing better than bone meal and manure; the bone to be used as a top dressing and then worked into the soil by cultivation; later on a mulch of coarse manure will complete the programme and a heavy crop is possible. Vegetable growers often have a soil over-rich in nitrogen owing to constant applications of manure. What they need is a good application of bone meal or acid phosphate to balance conditions. As regards moisture, there are two distinct periods to observe; the first one is one of restricted moisture, in order to build up strong root systems and sturdy growth; the second period is the swelling of the fruit when ample and thorough working is necessary, both to obtain maximum yields and prevent decay of fruit by dry rot.

MARKETMAN.

The Dasheen.

The dasheen, a species of Aarum introduced by the United States department of agriculture from the Islands of Trinidad, and recommended to be grown in the southern states to supplement or as a substitute for potatoes, is meeting with favor as a food product. It contains 50 per cent more protein and 50 per cent more starch and sugar than the potato. As much as 23 pounds of corms and tubers have been produced by a plant in one season. Separate booklet 689 from United States department of agriculture year book, 1916, fully describes this new food product.

Railway Vegetable Culture.

Vegetable growing by employes on land now idle along hundreds of miles of its lines is the project advanced by the Pennsylvania railroad, so that its workers may lessen the cost of living. Thousands of acres that will not be used for railroad purposes within a year are to be loaned to employes who apply to their division superintendents. Applications have been made already by hundreds on the eastern lines, in Delaware, New Jersey, Maryland and Pennsylvania. With the plan fully matured, railroad officials say that vegetable gardens will stretch at intervals along and near the railroad ties from Chicago to the Atlantic seaboard.

Market Gardening on Broadway.

Located on Nagel avenue, New York, within a stones throw of Broadway and the Dyckman street subway station, there is a four-acre plot of ground conducted as a flower and vegetable garden by Mrs. Adolph Zerner. Manhattan real estate men have long had an eye on this property which is most desirable as an apartment house site, but the owner, who has conducted her garden here for 25 years, has refused all offers, the most recent one being $278,000. She is visited daily by many from the metropolis who come to admire the garden and purchase its products, the quality of which commands the highest market price.

Onion and Potato Prospects in Bermuda.

A special report from the Bermuda agricultural station states that the acreage under onions this year is probably slightly less than for last year. The present prospects as to quantity of yield are comparatively poor, owing to continued dry weather, but it is stated that an immediate rainfall would bring about a considerable increase in the yield, which is now estimated at 135,000 crates (approximately 128,250 bushels), of good quality.

The acreage under potatoes (second crop) is stated to be probably 15 per cent larger than for the corresponding crop of last year, but as indicated in the case of the onions the potato crop is suffering from want of rain, although with present prospects it is estimated that the yield will be about 35,000 barrels (approximately 94,000 bushels) of high quality.

THE BOOK OF GLADIOLUS

THE first authoritative book on this bulb ever printed in America, or possibly the world, issued April 1, 1911. This 120-page book, written by Matthew Crawford and Dr. Van Fleet, contains many chapters covering all sides of growing, propagating, storing, etc., and also some pages of valuable cultural notes gathered from reliable sources. A necessity for both amateur and grower. The book is bound in cloth and fully illustrated.

FIREWOOD used on farms in the United States in one year is valued at $225,000,000, the average price being $2.75 per cord.

FRESNO, CALIF.—The entire walnut crop of Mrs. R. C. Lyman of Yuba City has been purchased by George C. Roeding, who will use it for seed.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—Following a meeting held in this city March 27 it seems assured that the California Dahlia Society and the California Dahlia Growers' Association will be merged.

The scarcity of labor in New York state has caused a reduction in the reforestation of private lands. The average cost of planting trees on approximately 3,000 acres of state lands was $5.46 per 1,000.

Mulched Basins for Citrus Trees.

Bulletin 499 of the United States department of agriculture describes the results of experiments with shallow irrigation basins near citrus trees, the object being to prevent loss from mottled leaf, a disease frequently found associated with low humus content in the soil. Each basin is heavily mulched with alfalfa hay, bean straw, manure or some other organic material. The mulched basins have been found to supply organic matter to the soils badly in need of it more quickly than mulches in furrow irrigation. For a basin with an area of 150 square feet, approximately 150 pounds of alfalfa or 15 to 20 cubic feet of stable manure will be required each year to maintain an effective mulch, which is carried into the soil with the irrigation water.

Dock False-Worm Control.

An apple insect pest, which in its attack on the fruit somewhat resembles the codling moth, is described in a new professional paper of the Bureau of Entomology, Bulletin No. 265 of the United States department of agriculture. This green worm, known as the dock false-worm, is found throughout the northern section of the United States and is noticeably prevalent in the state of Washington. The insect feeds upon certain succulent plants, such as the docks, knotweeds, and bindweeds. When these occur in an orchard the worm makes its way up the trunk of the tree and burrows into the fruit, causing it to rot. There can be little or no danger from this insect in clean-cultivated orchards or in orchards where its food plants do not exist. However, where a perennial cover crop, such as alfalfa is grown, other control measures must be taken.

Efficient protection may be secured by banding the trees with cotton batting or with some sticky substance. In experiments by the department an 8-inch strip of cotton batting was placed about the trunk of each tree and tied with a cord about the middle. The upper half of the cotton band was then rolled down over the cord. Good results also were obtained by applying to the trunks of the trees a band of a commercial sticky substance one-eighth inch thick and three inches wide. The lower limbs of the trees should be kept well up from the ground, and any props used also should be banded. Bands should be put on in the latter part of August and left on until after the fruit is harvested.

C. W. Ward's Eureka, Calif., Nursery.

"Eureka plant wizard fast overthrowing supremacy of Belgium and Holland." is the way the San Francisco Chronicle of January 7, begins a full page article, with illustrations, on Charles Willis Ward's 400 acre nursery at Eureka, Humboldt county, Calif. It is stated that conditions for bulb growing at Eureka are more favorable than at Bellingham, Wash. Mention is made of the purchase by Mr. Ward of the entire bulb stock of W. J. Van Aalst, a Hollander, who, for several years had been growing bulbs at Victoria, Vancouver Island. Not only was the stock of a million bulbs purchased, but likewise Van Aalst and his family of nine were taken to Eureka, where the head of the family now superintends the bulb farm. It is stated that over 2,000,000 plants are being grown in the propagating department and 300,000 ornamental plants are in the nursery rows. We understand that azaleas, rhododendrons, ericas, araucarias, boxwoods and other plants, are included. The superintendent of the bulb farm is quoted as saying: "Our bulbs ripen here some six weeks before the Holland stock."

A. F. F.

The Grape-Leaf Folder.

Bulletin No. 419 from the Bureau of Entomology of the United States department of Agriculture describes the grape leaf folder. This is an insect that has caused considerable injury to vineyards in the past few years, particularly in the vicinity of Washington, D. C. As much as four-fifths of the foliage in a vineyard has been destroyed by this worm or larva of this insect. It has many natural enemies which help materially to keep down the pest. Spraying with arsenical preparations shortly after the blossoms have fallen is the best method of combating the insect.

We are now booking orders for our New Seedling SUPERB— $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

SUPERB is a seedling of Gloriosa and Enchantress. It has the good stem of Gloriosa and the fine growing habit of Enchantress. The color is a fresh pink, and it keeps its color at all seasons. The flowers average about three inches, are very full, and generally receive full score on substance. The flowers are all perfect and do not split. In the four years we have grown it, it has proved the best commercial variety, barring none.

YELLOW KING HUMBERT

(Emund's Queen Helen)

The Best Canna Novelty

This sport of King Humbert has the same habit of growth in the plants but with very dark green foliage and flower stalks excelling those of the King Humbert. The flowers are rich deep yellow, well spotted with red. Some plants occasionally give a scarlet or a scarlet-striped flower which is an effective and striking variation. In a bed or border the mass of trusses excel those of any other variety we know of.

W. W. COLES says: "This variety at a distance of one-half mile loomed up above everything else, and it was at first difficult to believe that a Canna could make such a beautiful showing at that distance. When this variety becomes known, I feel sure it will fill a place among the Yellow Cannas fully as important as King Humbert has among the reds."

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC., REQUIRED BY THE ACT OF CONGRESS of THE AMERICAN FLORIST, published weekly at Chicago, Ill., for Apr. 1, 1917.

OF AUGUST 24, 1912,

State of Illinois, County of Cook.
Before me, a Notary Public in and for the state and county aforesaid, personally appeared Michael Barker, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the editor and business manager of THE AMERICAN FLORIST, and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management, (and if a daily paper, the circulation, etc.,) of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, embodied in section 443, Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse of this form, to wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business managers are:

Publisher, American Florist Company, 440 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.
Editor and Business Manager—Michael Barker, 440 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.

2. That the owners are: (Give names and addresses of individual owners, or, if a corporation, give its name and the names and addresses of stockholders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of the total amount of stock.) Estate of E. Asmus, W. Hoboken, N. J.; M. Barker, 440 S. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.; W. Atlee Burpee Estate, 485 N. Fifth St., Philadelphia, Pa.; John Burton, Willow Grove Ave., Chestnut Hill, Pa.; J. D. Carmody, Evansville, Ind.; W. W. Coles, Maple Hill Rose Farms, Kokomo, Ind.; Robt. Craig, 49th and Market Sts., Philadelphia, Pa.; J. B. Deamud, 1055 Dean St., Brooklyn, N. Y.; James Dean, Freeport, L. I., N. Y.; Emesa J. Dickey, care of Byron Reed Co., 212 S. 17th St., Omaha, Neb.; Wm. Falconer, Allegheny Cemetery, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Maggie Harris, 55th St. and Springfield Ave., Philadelphia, Pa.; Mrs. Sarah Lonsdale, Lompoc, Calif.; Mrs. Catherine Mathison, Waltham, Mass.; John N. May, Summit, N. J.; F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; Isaac D. Sailer, 929 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.; Estate of Louise Schiller, 2207 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.; H. A. Siebrecht, New Rochelle, N. Y.; W. J. Stewart, 147 Summer St., Boston, Mass.; J. C. Vaughan, 31 W. Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.; Annie G. Whitnall, 4001 Harvard Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif.; C. B. Whitnall, 026 Locust St., Milwaukee, Wis.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are: (If there are none, so state.)

There are no bonds, mortgages or other securities outstanding against THE AMERICAN FLORIST.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

AMERICAN FLORIST COMPANY,

Michael Barker, Sec'y.
Sworn to and subscribed before me this 29th day of Mar., 1917.

New Park for New York City.

GIFT OF JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR.

It will doubtless surprise many people who do not live in New York, just as it surprised many who do, to learn that there is, on Manhattan Island, 57 acres of land available for a park, without a wholesale wrecking of buildings. It would not be strictly correct to call it all vacant property, for a part of it was the estate of C. K. G. Billings, a gentleman who has been a patron of horticulture. Tryon Hall, erected by Mr. Billings for a residence, is in the heart of the proposed park and stands on the highest point on Manhattan Island. It commands a view of the Hudson river for miles, of the harbor and Statue of Liberty and a wide area on Long Island, and a part of Westchester county. On the Billings estate the other buildings are such as are usually found on a gentleman's place. It is unlikely that much change will be made in the landscape features of this part of the park, as its late owner had spent large sums in improving it, having at different times employed skillful landscape architects and gardeners. James Bell, a former vice-president of the National Association of Gardeners, was for a number of years head gardener to Mr. Billings.

On the Hayes property another part of the tract, there stands an old but substantial structure known as Abbey Castle, now occupied as an inn. On the Sheaffer property at Fort Washington avenue and 198th street, A. N. Kinney has a residence and greenhouses, this being practically the only commercial range on the island.

It has been stated that independent of the first cost of the real estate, Mr. Billings has spent $2,000,000 on the Tryon Hall property. Aside from the buildings previously mentioned, there are few improvements on the other tracts, and it is said that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is likely to spend $10,000,000 on the entire properties and approaches before turning them over to the city as a park. He has been in consultation with Cabot Ward, commissioner of parks, and plans for extensive improvements have been discussed. It is stated that ferry lines will be established on the Hudson, from the park to the great interstate park on the west side of the river. The Palisade interstate park had its inception in 1900 when Colonel Roosevelt was governor of New York. He appointed a commission to acquire and hold such territory along the Palisades as was necessary for an interstate park to preserve the scenery. Governor Voorhees of New Jersey appointed a similar commission. The primary object was to stop the quarrymen who were blasting away picturesque features, but the park has, from time to time, been enlarged until it now extends to Bear mountain, within six miles of West Point. Mrs. E. H. Harriman has bought and contributed large tracts of land to the interstate park.

The site of the new park is historic ground. Near by is Fort Washington and on these heights a battle was fought in the Revolutionary war. General Washington had been repulsed in the battle of Long Island, but the Colonials held the British forces long enough to cover his retreat.

Tryon Hall takes its name from old Fort Tryon, also famous in the Revolutionary war. The boundaries of the proposed park are from Broadway to Riverside drive and from 192d street north to the drive, which turns and meets Broadway at Dyckman street. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has spent large sums for other benevolent and philanthropic purposes.

Mothers' Day, Sunday, May 13.

The Publicity Campaign.

One of the most important features of Mothers' day to the florists' trade is the expansion of the business. This occasion presents an opportunity that promises as much in the sale of plants and flowers as either Easter or Christmas. It must be developed, however, A certain amount of seed has been sown—in some soils, where cultivated, it has produced abundantly. Mothers' day is observed and has been successful because of its sentiment, its appeal to thought and love for one's mother. To increase its popularity this adoration of mother should be kept to the front. Everywhere the press from now on should contain articles bearing on this subject. Clergymen, if appealed to, would contribute such matter. They would also prepare sermons and hold Mothers' day services in their churches and Sunday schools. This is the custom with many, but there should be so much sentiment for Mothers' day created that all church services on the second Sunday in May would consist of honoring the mothers of the race.

There is no one thing that would benefit the florist industry in all its branches to a greater degree than a publicity campaign, having for its object the carrying of this beautiful sentiment into every household in the land. Each person in his own community can help, but to be successful he must have enthusiasm for the work. Only the live wires work; it is not possible to send messages over "dead" ones.

Mothers' day has been observed for a period of 10 years. While it has been proven beyond question to have great possibilities as a floral holiday, nothing in a national way has been done by the trade to build up and enhance this beautiful sentiment.

The matter of showing the appreciation of the craft to Miss Anna Jarvis, the founder of Mothers' day, was discussed at the meeting of the Society of American Florists at Rochester in 1910, at which time she received a rising vote of thanks. At the San Francisco meeting in 1915 something more substantial was proposed. This resulted in the matter being taken up by the directors at their meeting in Philadelphia, when the secretary was directed to appeal to the florists of the country to contribute to a fund to be given to Miss Jarvis as a token of their appreciation for her work in founding the day. More than $1,000 was raised in this way, which with $100 received from the sale of carnations at the national flower show in Philadelphia, has been given to Miss Jarvis.

At the Houston convention the publicity of Mothers' day was taken up. It was decided to go into the matter thoroughly in a manner that would make it most beneficial to the trade.

The Chicago Florists' Club, spurred on by its success with the St. Valentine's day posterettes, has arranged for a Mothers' day stamp and posterette to be sold to the trade, the proceeds of this sale to be used in advertising Mothers' day in a magazine of country-wide circulation.

E. J. Fancourt, of Philadelphia, Pa., proposes a national commercial Mothers' day association, to which every florist who is at all benefited by this event shall belong. The dues shall be used each year for purposes of publicity, each member to receive a handsome, framed, lithographed Mothers' day card, at cost, which will be furnished to others at a profit. The larger the membership of this association, the greater benefit will be derived from publicity.

Another proposition is, that the entire matter be placed in the hands of professional publicity men, whose business it is to exploit all kinds of enterprises and who have the open sesame to the newspapers. Under their direction, Miss Jarvis could prepare matter on this subject which she has so much at heart, which could be syndicated and receive nation-wide publicity.

For the present there appears no better plan than for the craft in each community to pool their issues in co-operative advertising, which has been so successfully done in Cleveland, Columbus, Detroit, St. Paul and in many other cities and towns all over the country.

Let the slogan be "Flowers, all flowers." Cut out the doggerel, "Flowers white and flowers bright," Who shall say that one flower is more beautiful or appropriate than another? Why is not a plant as appropriate as a flower and even more so; it is a more lasting gift, and for that reason likely to be better appreciated.

Tributes for the cemetery should be encouraged; many will feel it their duty to visit this last resting place of their loved ones to place a wreath or plant a rose. Should this become the custom, and as the sentiment grows, what a wonderful business will develop to fill this demand.

Mothers' Day Posterettes.

The publicity committee of the Chicago Florists' Club has completed arrangements with one of America's foremost advertising agencies to prepare copy for a full page advertisement, with a suitable design incorporating the theme of mothers and flowers, exploiting Mothers' day, which it is planned to use in one of the leading magazines of the country with a wide-spread circulation. The wonderful service rendered by the Florists' Telegraph Delivery will be brought out either in the text or design. There will be no signature to the advertisement as the entire atmosphere is to breathe floral sentiment to the fullest extent and it will be representative of the entire floral industry in America. This national advertising, it is expected, will be made possible by the sales of the committee's Mothers' day posters and posterettes.

If every florist does his share to support this movement, the committee will be able to make this announcement. Millions of the beautiful Mothers' day posterettes should be in circulation—the posters should be in evidence everywhere. Use the posterettes on every box of flowers and every plant that you send out. Use them on every letter you mail, on your statements and on your advertising matter. Display the posters inside and outside of the entrance to your store and greenhouses. Post them in every show window. Put them on your automobiles and delivery wagons. Use them for your street car advertisements. Everywhere, these beautiful posters and posterettes will remind the public to remember mother—with her favorite flower.

The price list of the posterettes, size 2 3/4 inches high, printed in two colors, gummed and cut ready for use, is as follows:

100 stamps$	0.75
250 "	1.50
500 "	3.00
1,000 "	5.00
2,000 "	9.00
5,000 "	21.00
10,000 "	40.00
25,000 "	95.00
50,000 "	180.00
100,000 "	350.00
500,000 "	1,500.00
1,000,000 "	2,500.00

The window poster of the same design as the posterette is 7 1/4 inches high. Prices are: Each 10 cents; per dozen, $1.00; 25 for $1.75; 50 for $3.00; 100 for $5.50; over 100, five cents each.

Distribution of posterettes and posters will commence immediately. The committee will send free of cost one window poster, price list and order blank upon application to F. Lautenschlager, 440 West Erie street, Chicago.

F. LAUTENSCHLAGER,
Chairman Publicity Committee.

Munk Floral Co., Aids Easter Publicity.

In a recent communication from Alfred C. Hottes, president of the Columbus, O., Florists' Association, our attention is called to the "Beautifying the Home" page of the Ohio State Journal of that city under date of April 4, containing among others the advertisement of the Munk Floral Co.,

Primula Eliator.
Polyanthus Grown by Wm. Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., as Easter Plant.

together with an excellent article prepared by that firm occupying a space four columns wide and 12 inches deep in the center of the page under the caption, "Flowers Plentiful for Easter." The advertisers using space on this page are in turn permitted to prepare articles suggesting features in their respective lines in keeping with the title of the page, which are published in the space mentioned without cost. Appearing as it did a few days previous to Easter, the article of the Munk Floral Co., with suggestions of appropriate flowers for home and personal adornment and others for planting, can doubtless be credited with materially assisting in bringing about the splendid increase in the Easter demand reported by the trade of that city this year.

Bouvardia Double Pink.

The double pink bouvardia, although not a new variety, is a plant whose good qualities should be more generally known. Stock in the Boston and Philadelphia markets was in great demand last season, bringing top prices. The separate florets of the trusses are quite double, of a pleasing shade of pink, and borne on straight, stout stems of from 12 to 18 inches in length. The plants are readily propagated and should be in the collection of every grower.

PLANT NOTES.

Early Roses.

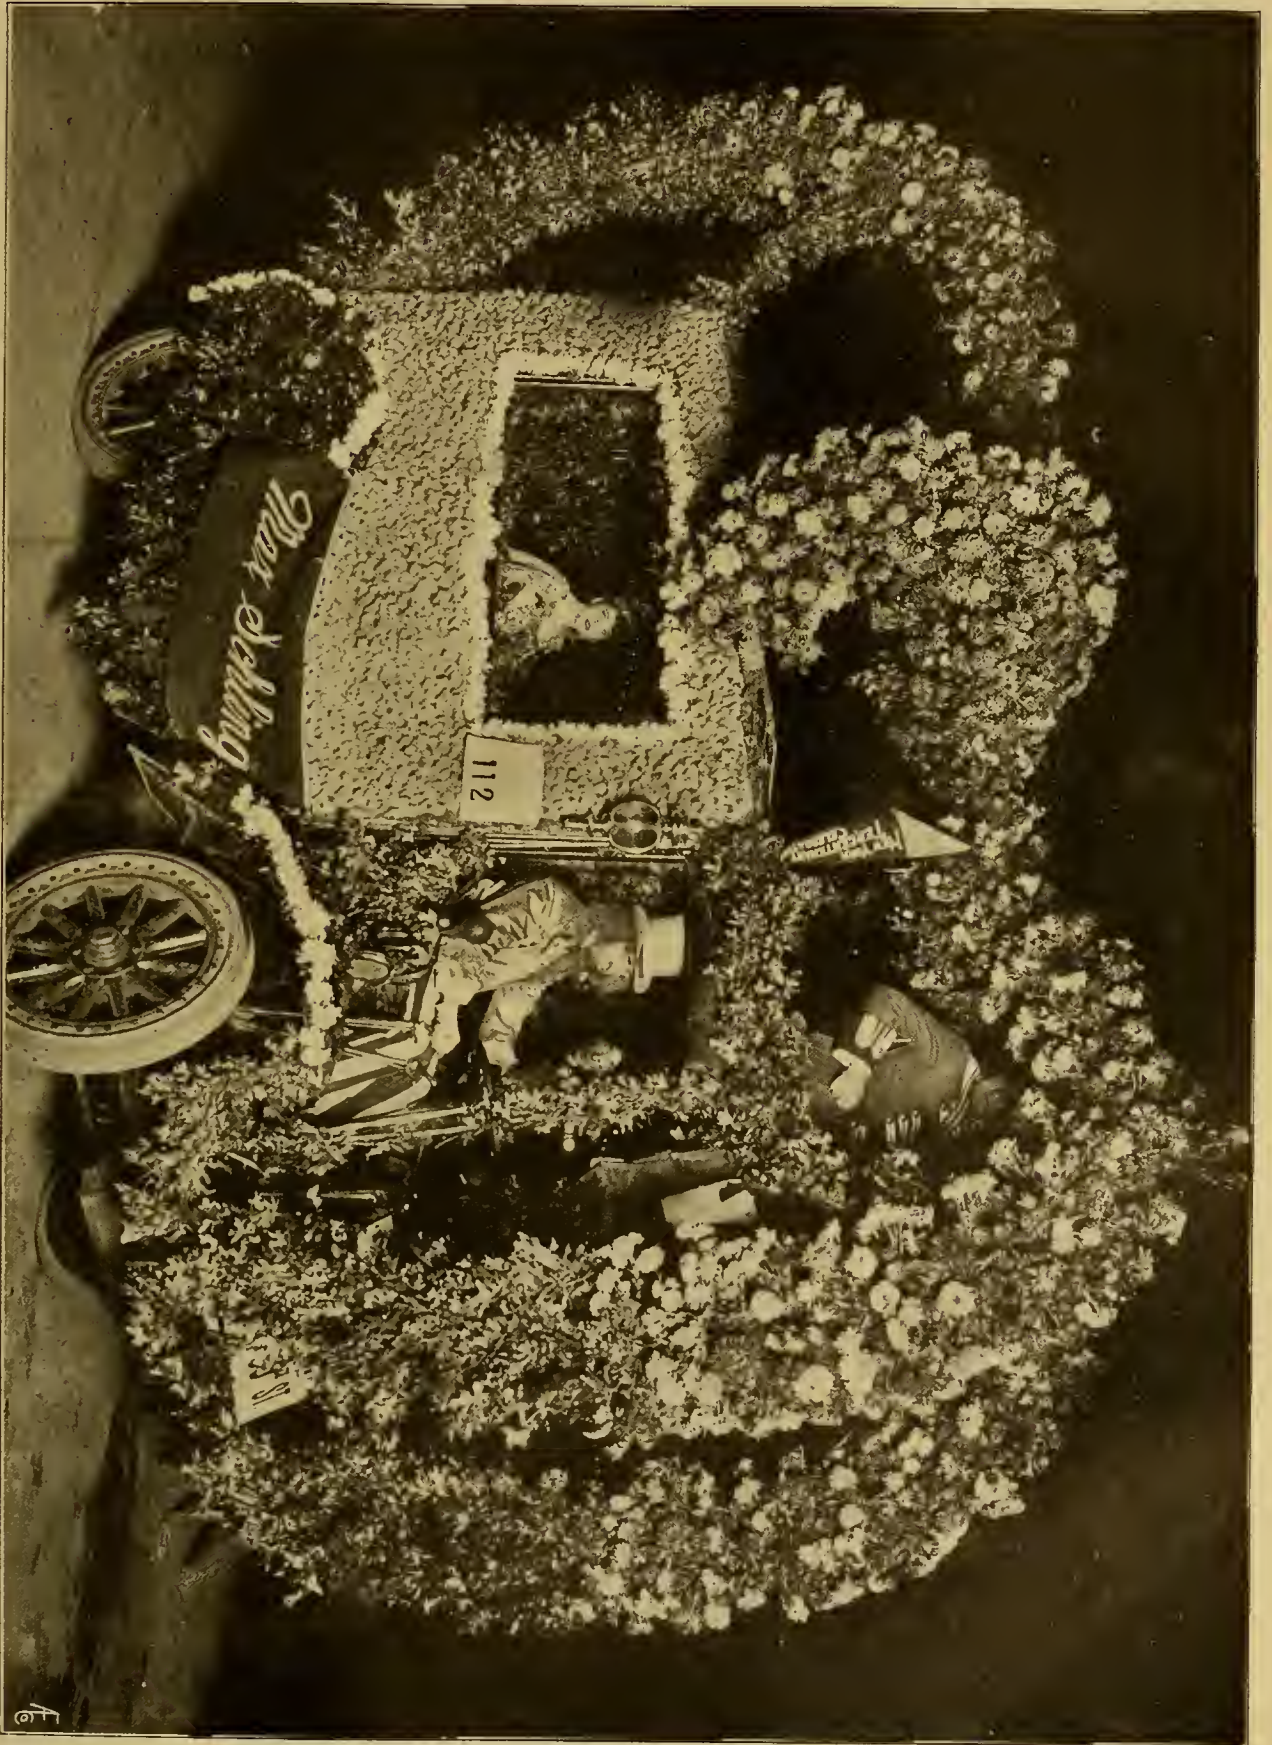

The rose bed should be pruned and then spaded as early as possible after the ground has opened and if the canes have been buried the covering should be removed and the canes cut back. To properly prune a bed of hybrid perpetual roses is a careful, painstaking piece of work. This work is too often done in a careless, haphazard manner, and by many every variety is cut back alike. To get the best results a study of the varieties is necessary, for instance, strong growing varieties like General Jacqueminot and Magna Charta can be cut back and the small wood cut out much more severely than Prince Camille de Rohan or Mme. Gabriel Luizet. When pruning it is first necessary to determine whether quantity or quality is the most to be desired. If quantity is wanted more wood can be left and six to eight eyes left on the canes. If quality is the main object this must be obtained at the expense of quantity, and the strong canes only retained and these cut to two or three eyes, depending on how the eyes are located. The top eye that is left should be pointed out from the main stem so that when the growths start they will not crowd toward the center. This will allow of plenty of room for development and a good circulation of air through the plant. After the bushes are pruned the soil should be spaded good and deep and leveled off.

Bedding Stock.

The general florist will now have his hands full with bedding stock which should now be spread out and given the necessary room. The geraniums should be spaced and if any have grown too tall to make shapely plants the tops should be cut back, but at the present day the trade wants a geranium in bloom at bedding time and very little pinching should be done after the first of April, for it will take from then until the first of June to produce a new branch with a flower. Ageratums, alternantheras, alyssums, heliotropes and like blooming plants should be kept on the move and be given good, light positions. Salvia should be kept pinched back until the latter part of the month, which should produce fine, shapely plants. The coleus should be rooted and the top rubbed out as soon as established in the pots. Seedlings should be potted or flatted, the former preferred if a price can be obtained commensurate for the extra labor, but if flatted give them room enough to develop properly. Cannas will now require a warm, light location and plenty of root room. The one great factor in growing good bedding stock is, at this season, to keep the plants moving and never allow them to get a check, for if once severely checked a good plant is an impossibility.

Potting Young Stock.

At this season of the year the plant grower will have thousands of young seedlings to pot or place in flats and as many more to shift from a small pot to a larger size, and it does not seem that any instruction in potting should be necessary, but we chanced not long ago to see a boy potting and wondered if the plants would live and we then saw in the houses many of the plants which had been potted struggling for existence. It seems to be the general idea with the young gardener that the one that can pot the most plants in a given time is the smartest, regardless of how well it is done and how the plants afterward grow. The young man whom we saw would fill the pot full and then make a hole in the soil with his finger, place the seedling in the hole and then press the top soil around the stem. The chances were that the roots of many of these plants were still hanging in an enclosed hole in the center of the pot, for the soil should have been firmed around the roots. That he could handle a large number of plants in a given time was no question, but a much better plant can be grown if the soil is made firm around the roots first and then the top firmed down. The same thing happens in transplanting where the loose soil is thrown around between the plant and the pot and the top then firmed down. A little soil should be first thrown in the bottom of the pot and the plant placed in this, then a little soil around the plant which should be firmed down, then a little more soil which can be pressed down from the top. This will take longer, but the plant will live and grow enough better to pay for the extra pains.

Peonies.

As soon as the frost is out of the ground the peony beds should be forked over and the manure mulch that was placed on them last fall should be forked or spaded in, but let this be done by a careful man, or at least not by help that knows nothing about this work. The young growths start very early and are very tender, so it is best not to fork too close to the crowns, but loosen up all the soil around the plants. It is also well to leave the stems covered as deep as they have been all winter, for a sharp frost may injure a stem that has been protected through the severe winter and then subjected to sharp cold. But the loosening of the soil to good depth will conserve the moisture and allow the air to get into the soil. If the plants were not mulched with manure in the fall it is well to spread some old manure, not fresh, on the beds before spading and fork it in.

Although the fall is the best time to transplant peonies, yet, if not done and it is desired or necessary to move them, they can be transplanted early in the spring, but this must be done before the growths are above the surface of the ground and as much soil left about the roots as possible. These plants make their young roots in the fall and if any attempt is made to shake the soil off, the roots will be broken doing this. Divisions must therefore be carefully made, so as not to disturb the roots more than possible. The dry roots that are purchased at this time are much better planted in pots or boxes until the roots are formed in the soil and later transplanted to the ground. It cannot be expected that plants of this kind will produce any flowers this year, for it will only be possible to get them established in their new location the first season.

THE ROSE.

Care of the Plants After Easter.

We all know that there are many little things that require our attention just at the time we are head over heels looking after the Easter cut and of course even on the most up-to-date ranges there may be found a few loose ends to gather up after the Easter rush. So we are just suggesting a few important things that should be given attention within the next few weeks.

In the first place, we would advise keeping the night fireman right on the job and holding him there until the real settled summer weather arrives. This may mean May 15 in some sections of the country, or June and even July in others. At the same time, we do know that a warm period of weather the latter part of April, followed by several cool, rainy days, will be about the ruination of the rose plants if the fires are not kept going. Cutting off the fires too early has ruined many chances of a good early summer cut and often injuring the plants beyond repair, so see to it that they will not get the setback from this cause.

The plants that have been heavily cropped for Easter should now be gone over and tied, as this can be now done in less than half the time it would take after new growth has accumulated. One also applies a mulch from four to six weeks ahead of the Easter cut so as to push along good strong growths for that harvest, and by all means apply another to the beds just as soon as the new growths have fairly started. Very often one sees the plants neglected after Easter, in reference to feeding particularly. Of course this is a great mistake, as the plants without feeding right along lose their vitality and the thing to do is to mulch for every crop until it is time to dry off and prune in mid summer, otherwise the stock produced will be a drug on the market. Often one has a house or a bed here and there throughout the range that is producing flowers daily, the plants being in all stages of growth. These plants will require mulching quite liberally with good cow manure about every six weeks. Washing all mulches in well as fast as they are being put on is the only practical way of getting the full value of the manure. No one can afford not to mulch and keep the plants going right through the season these days; even if it were only for the purpose of building up the strongest kind of stock for pruning and carrying over we think it would be good business. But as the flowers are kept at a better size, and the plants made to produce quantities of good stock even if sold at cut prices, there is very little doubt that the most salable stock always has the preference.

Very often we think it advisable and practicable to grow some of the varieties such as Sunburst, Shawyer and other sorts that do well on own roots (on raised benches) grown this way for one season and shifted over into solid borders into fresh soil after cropping for Easter, and again filling the raised benches with young stock (always into good fresh soil). We have found this to work to splendid advantage; in fact, the method prescribed above has with us given better results with certain vigorous varieties (adapted to growing on own roots) than any other method we have ever employed. Try it.

All young pot stock should be shifted right along as required, allowing only one growth to be made in the small pots. The grafted stocks quickly become potbound and the ties at the splice should be removed before they begin to cut into the bark. This means that they must be staked at the same time to prevent breaking off at the union when syringing. The grafts will also require copious waterings and as the days grow warmer and brighter, when the ventilators can be raised to their full height, it may be found advisable to go over the pot stock and water them twice in the forenoon.

Great care should be exercised at the change of the season, between spring and summer, in ventilating and watering. The evaporation of the soil after the artificial heat has been reduced or stopped entirely, will be very much slower, and for several weeks, or until real summer growth is made on the plants, we think it advisable to go a little slow with the amount of water applied. Heavy syringing will keep the soil fairly moist, watering only when the beds really require a thorough watering.

One can easily keep up the soaking process during the months of February and March, when many coils are being run night and day but bring on a bad dose of spots or mildew by keeping up this method in April and May. We really find at this season that it requires more skill and careful handling of the stock in order to pull them through this critical stage than perhaps any other time during the whole year, owing no doubt to the extreme change the plants are subjected to at this time.

Any soil required for refilling the houses that was not composted in the fall should be gotten ready at once;

select good stiff sod with plenty of fibre and compost, using about one load of cow manure to three of soil. Rick the soil up close to where it will be used, and pile it so it will shed water as much as possible. It should be cut down, broken up and ricked up again several times if possible before using.

Exhibition Rose Growing Expensive.

The cost of producing exhibition roses is considerable. The vase of Hadley from the Jos. Heacock Co., Wyncote, Pa., which received the first prize in its class and also the sweepstakes prize as the best vase at the Philadelphia rose festival, was said to be the handsomest vase of 100 roses ever exhibited in America. These buds at their first pinch would have brought 75 cents in the market; then by the time it took to finish these show blooms there would have been probably two more buds that would have sold for almost as much per flower. Mr. Heacock believes it would not be possible to produce such flowers under $2 each and questions whether there would be a market for them at this figure.

Nematode Disease Control.

Greenhouse men, particularly in the New England states, New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, are experiencing considerable losses as a result of the occurrence and continued spread of a little known disease, due to nematodes, or eelworms, which have been found infecting violets, strawberries, a number of varieties of begonia and many species of ferns. The trouble affects the leaves, causing them to become discolored—usually brown—in definite areas, which may increase so as to include the entire leaf. It may also produce on strawberries and violets a slight swelling and distortion of the buds, crowns and leaves.

When a small piece of infected leaf or tissue is teased apart in a few drops of water on glass, with the aid of a compound microscope, the egg, larval and adult stages of the parasite may be observed within the unbroken diseased leaves, which they enter through wounds or air pores. Active larvae and adults can easily emerge from leaves through these natural openings, stomata, and may be carried to other plants, which they subsequently infect.

The following measures suggested by specialists of the United States department of agriculture have proven helpful in preventing and in reducing losses from the disease:

Separate the diseased from the healthy plants; then remove from the former and burn all infected parts.

Allow as much ventilation and aeration as possible, and avoid wetting the foliage, as the nematode is readily spread by water.

Propagate by seeds or by the use of parts or all of healthy plants, using soil that has been sterilized by the use of steam or by other means.

Avoid all stock from infected nurseries and regions, and use disease-resistant plants whenever possible.

Partial success in destroying the nematodes by submerging ferns in water at a temperature of 50° C. (120° F.) for five minutes has been reported.

EASTER TRADE.

In our last issue, page 689, we summarized the 1917 Easter demand from early information received from different parts of the country as overshadowing all previous years in volume. Additional reports received since then from practically every section of the United States and Canada substantiate this, instances where there was not a gain of at least 10 per cent over the sales of the Easter period of 1916, which were conceded to be the most satisfactory in years, being very rare. In many cities, cold, rainy weather, and in some instances snow, interfered to some extent with shopping and deliveries, but in the majority of cases everything in the way of good stock, both cut flowers and plants, cleaned up easily at very satisfactory prices. There was a heavy plant demand with Easter lilies far in the lead as the favorite and even more popular than in former years. In addition to the condensed reports published last week, the following will prove of interest:

TERRE HAUTE, IND.—N. B. & C. E. Stover, despite very unfavorable weather conditions and a shortage of plants, report an increase of 25 per cent in Easter sales as compared with those of a year ago, prices being about the same. In the plant section daffodils seemed to be the best sellers, but everything was readily disposed of. Although the weather was bad, all deliveries were made promptly and everything was practically cleaned up by Sunday noon. While it was a good Easter and there seems to be plenty of money, everybody seems to be retrenching to a certain extent. The banks here are full of money and few loans are being made and there is a falling off in building and improvements. This firm reports that it is almost assured that local florists will raise the prices of bedding plants at least 15 per cent—not enough, but all that they think can be done at present.

FREDERICTON, N. B.—J. Bebbington & Son report the 1917 Easter sales about the same as a year ago with lower prices and a heavy demand for plants at from 25 to 50 cents, although there was the usual excellent call for lilies. Plants were plentiful and the same is true of cut flowers, the short item being carnations, of which more could have been disposed of. Violets and roses at not more than $2 per dozen and daffodils were also good property. Following a dull period of several weeks the Easter trade was better than was expected. The sale of white flowers for church decorations was quite a factor.

TORONTO, ONT.—Dunlop's report a slight increase in Easter trade over that of 1916, with prices advanced about 10 per cent. The supply of both plants and cut stock was plentiful. All plants sold well, with lilies in the lead, and cut flowers cleaned up nicely. George Geraghty, manager, says: "It is impossible to compare the 1917 trade with that of other years, due to the war. About 60,000 of the men of this city are either at the front or in training, so the real purchasers of flowers are not here. However, our overseas orders were very large as was our Florists' Telegraph Delivery business.

DALLAS, TEX.—With prices somewhat advanced over those of last year, the Lang Floral & Nursery Co. reports a nice increase in the Easter trade of 1917, especially in the volume of cash sales. There was an exceptionally heavy supply of all blooming plants. All cut flowers sold readily, but there was a shortage in lilies and carnations. Azaleas moved slowly and spiraeas were a drag. This firm had several thousand Easter Greetings, displayed in baskets, boxes and as single plants, which made a beautiful show. Some of these were nearly the size of azaleas and covered with flowers. They sold as high as $3.50.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.—With prices considerably better than a year ago the 1917 Easter trade was above the average according to the Saltford Flower Shop. The supply of pot plants was not sufficient to meet requirements, as everything of good quality and well bloomed found ready buyers. Cut flowers were plentiful, and there was a good demand for corsages. Carnations moved slowly. This firm reports a big increase in Florists' Telegraph Delivery orders this year and adds: "The F. T. D. is the greatest thing that ever happened for the florists of this country."

LAWRENCE, KAN.—There was little change in the volume of the 1917 Easter trade or in prices as compared with that of a year ago, according to A. Whitcomb & Son. Plants were in supply equal to all requirements and there were plenty of cut flowers with the exception of carnations and sales were generally good. Hyacinths did not meet with the usual demand and due to cold weather the supply of narcissi was limited. Snow fell on Saturday and Easter was cold, which interfered with business.

RALEIGH, N. C.—Perfect weather, better prices on everything except bulbous stock and a generous supply in nearly all lines, resulted in Easter sales for 1917 one-third greater than a year ago, according to J. L. O'Quinn & Co. Lilies easily held first place in plant sales while in cut stock the favorites were lily of the valley, sweet peas, violets, roses and carnations. Cash sales were the best in this firm's experience of 20 years.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—Samuel Murray recorded Easter business this year nearly 25 per cent in excess of the 1916 period. Prices were about the same as a year ago, and while the individual sales were not as large as usual, with moderately priced stock most in demand, the volume was much larger. All plants sold well and the supply was plentiful. In cut stock, violets and orchids were scarce items. There was a heavy demand for sweet peas.

DAYTONA, FLA.—Schulze & Obermaier report trade 25 per cent better than during the Easter period of 1916 with prices about the same. The demand for plants was greater than the supply, the most popular being lilies, hyacinths, tulips, azaleas, hydrangeas and heathers. There was little demand for roses in pots. In the cut flower section, lilies, carnations and roses sold best, although a plentiful supply of other varieties moved well.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.—D. E. Law reports this year's Easter sales about equal to those of 1916, with prices on lilies advanced 10 cents per bloom, other plants selling at about the same figures as in previous years. There was an ample supply of both cut stock and plants with an excellent demand for pot lilies and rose bushes. Cut lilies and sweet peas led the call in the cut flower section, carnations being least salable.

EAST AURORA, N. Y.—With prices somewhat advanced over 1916, this year's Easter trade is estimated at about 20 per cent better than a year ago. Stock was plentiful with the greatest demand for medium and small sized plants and assorted boxes of cut flowers. Rain and freezing weather the latter part of the week interfered with business and made delivery difficult, according to Fred W. Wise.

HAVERHILL, MASS.—With prices a little higher than a year ago, W. F. Abrams estimates the Easter trade of 1917 about 10 per cent more. In plants, lilies and bulbous stock was short of the demand, but the cut flower receipts were ample and everything sold well at normal prices. All in all, the trade exceeded all expectations and sales would have been better still but for inclement weather.

MONTREAL, QUE.—The most complete cleanup with none of the flower shops equipped to handle the enormous business is Julius Luck's report of the 1917 Easter trade. Prices were better than a year ago and the volume of business was about 25 per cent greater. The supply of stock was equal to the demand. Lilies were most popular in the plant line and all cut flowers sold well.

TAMPA, FLA.—The Tampa Floral Co. reports the volume of Easter sales for 1917 about equal to those of a year ago, with prices a trifle lower. The supply of plants was equal to all requirements, but cut stock was a little scarce due to the cold weather earlier in the season. Everything considered the business was satisfactory.

NEW YORK.—A greater volume of business at better prices than a year ago is Chas. A. Dard's report of the 1917 Easter trade. The supply in all lines was plentiful with roses the best sellers both in pots and cut stock. Hydrangeas moved slowly and the same was true of carnations. Trade on the whole was very satisfactory.

WATERTOWN, N. Y.—Despite cold, rainy weather which seriously interfered with business, Fred E. Avery reports Easter sales for the 1917 period about 10 per cent ahead of last year. Plants led in popularity, especially lilies, and cut flowers also sold well. Sweet peas and violets were in strong demand for corsages.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—Abele Bros. report average Easter business at normal prices. The plant supply was equal to all requirements with the exception of lilies, which led the demand both in pots and cut stock. Roses had the least call. There was a very good sale in all flowering plants.

CENTRALIA, ILL.—J. W. Ross Co. reports better Easter trade by 20 per cent and at higher prices than were received in 1916. The pot plant supply was adequate with lilies most in demand and tulips the least salable. There was a shortage of cut stock. Novelties sold well.

OGDEN, UTAH.—E. J. Hendershot & Son report an average Easter trade with prices about on a par with those of last year. The supply of both cut flowers and plants was equal to requirements, with Easter lily plants, carnations and colored roses leading in popularity in the sales.

HARTFORD, CONN.—John Coombs reports Easter business this year about one-third greater than in 1916. Prices were also better, with a good supply of stock in all lines, all of which sold readily. Bulbous stock was the least salable.

PEORIA, ILL.—B. Juerjens reports a satisfactory trade at Springdale cemetery. Both pot plants and cut flowers sold well. In the former there was a shortage of lilies.

TORONTO, ONT.—Retail sales about 10 per cent better than a year ago and prices about the same is the report of H. G. Dilleuth on the 1917 Easter trade. There was a very good supply generally in the plant line and the shortage of azaleas was taken up by hydrangeas and rhododendrons. Violets and sweet peas were the short items in the cut flower section. Pot roses and lilies sold best. Large plants were hard to move. In cut stock "something medium price" was in most demand. Unfavorable weather conditions for a few days caused some of the growers to weaken and they sold lilies as low as six cents, which enabled the cut-rate department stores to offer this stock and which they advertised extensively, at 10 cents per bloom, which no doubt affected business to a considerable extent.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—Business was greater than was anticipated or for which a number of the local stores were prepared to handle, some of the establishments closing their stores early Saturday afternoon in order to take care of deliveries. August R. Baumer estimates sales about five per cent better than during the 1916 Easter period, with prices somewhat better than a year ago. Cut stock sold out completely and more could have been disposed of. Plants selling for more than $3 moved slowly. More good azaleas and hydrangeas could have been sold had they been on hand. Small flowers for corsages were in heavy demand. There was little call for long-stemmed roses.

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO.—With prices on a par with those of 1916, the Easter trade this year was approximately 10 per cent better than a year ago, is the report of the Pikes Peak Floral Co. Stock was plentiful with the exception of pot lilies, which with bulbous stock were most popular. Primulas, genistas and ferns were slow sell-divided with no special call for divided with no special demand for any item. Early buying was noticeable with a good call for large plants and basket arrangements.

SEATTLE, WASH.—Paul E. Lange reports average Easter trade, with prices about the same as a year ago. The supply was plentiful; in fact there were too many pot lilies. They were on sale everywhere; the markets were full of them, department stores, fruit stands, drug stores sold them. They were even seen in one hardware store. They led the demand, however, with hyacinths and tulips next in popularity. In cut flowers roses and carnations had the call.

PORTLAND, ORE.—Clark Bros. report Easter sales 20 per cent better than a year ago, with usual prices prevailing. Stock was plentiful with the exception of lily of the valley. Easter lilies sold best and there was a good call for azaleas. In cut stock, corsages and roses had the preference. The weather was wet and stormy, unfavorable for transient trade and undoubtedly affected business somewhat.

COLUMBUS, O.—John R. Hellenthal had a better Easter demand than in 1916, with prices better in some lines, especially lilies and large pots of bulbous stock. The supply of plants was plentiful, and the same was true of cut flowers, with the exception of sweet peas and violets for corsage work. All good stock sold well, with an exceptionally strong demand for large pots of lilies and mixed plants.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK.—Tipton & Hurst report the 1917 Easter trade about on a par with that of last year with prices the same. The supply of cut flowers was ample, and the same may be said of pot plants with the exception of lilies, which had first call. Azaleas were poor sellers. In cut flowers the leaders were lilies, roses, carnations and sweet peas.

CLEVELAND, O.—With no material change in prices compared with those of a year ago the 1917 Easter trade showed an increase of about 10 per cent, according to the report of A. Graham & Son. There was a good supply in all lines. Rose plants led the demand, although all plants of good quality sold well. In cut flowers there was little choice.

OMAHA, NEB.—A severe snow storm the day previous to Easter had a depressing effect upon trade with the result that sales fell below the 1916 record, according to Hess & Swoboda. Prices were no better than a year ago with a plentiful supply of stock in all lines. All cut flowers sold well. Lilies sold out completely at 25 cents per bud and bloom.

SPOKANE, WASH.—Hoyt Bros. had a better Easter demand than in former years. Stock was in good supply, with prices on lilies higher than a year ago. They were the most popular flower, spiraeas' being least salable in the plant line. Everything in cut stock moved well and there was a good call for corsages.

PETERSBURG, VA.—Wm. S. Young's Easter sales this year were 50 per cent better than in 1916 with prices more satisfactory and a good supply of plants, all of which moved readily. He reports a shortage in the cut flower supply and in referring to the demand, adds: "We could have sold sun-flowers."

BATTLE CREEK, MICH.—The Easter trade of 1917 was slightly better as were prices, compared with sales a year ago. Stock was plentiful and everything sold well. Lilies were most popular in the plant section and in cut flowers the heavy call was for roses, according to the report of S. W. Coggan.

BERKELEY, CALIF.—J. A. Carbone reports that the people of this city seemed hent on having a good Easter and spent money freely. Prices were about the same as in 1916, but sales showed an increase of 20 per cent. The stock was sufficient for requirements and everything sold well.

GREELEY, COLO.—With prices showing an increase over last year, The Gardner Floral Co. recorded an increase in Easter sales for 1917 of 30 per cent over the 1916 trade. Lilies were the only short item and as usual led the demand. They seemed to be more popular than ever.

DENVER, COLO.—The Park Floral Co. had a 15 per cent better Easter trade than in 1916, with prices somewhat advanced. Stock was plentiful, with lilies selling unusually well. Good violets were scarce.

SANTA CRUZ, CALIF.—W. E. King reports: "Nothing doing; too much war talk."

JUNEAU, ALASKA.—J. P. Anderson is building two greenhouses, each 18x100 feet, and expects to do a general florists' business here.

SHERMAN, TEX.—The Texas Nursery Co. has opened a retail store at 215 North Travis street, under the name of the Home of Flowers.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The United States civil service commission will hold an examination in the near future to fill the position of assistant in plant nutrition. Blanks will be furnished by the commission upon application.

June Beetle Control.

The green June beetle, one of the common and conspicuous insects of the south, has been reported as injurious from sections of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, southward to the gulf. The work of the grubs becomes evident by the middle of August and prompt action should be taken at that time as the younger grubs are more readily exterminated. The grubs of the June beetle should not be confused with the more destructive white grubs of the brown June bugs or May beetles, the former being readily distinguishable by their habit of crawling on their backs when placed on a smooth surface.

A seven and one-half per cent kerosene emulsion has proven effective for destroying the grubs on golf greens when applied at the rate of one gallon to seven or eight square feet. Immediately after application, which can be made with a sprinkling can on small areas, the area should be thoroughly sprinkled with water to wash the emulsion in. The emulsion is prepared as follows: One-half pound of hard or one quart of soft soap, preferably fish-oil, rosin-soda, or rosin-potash soap, dissolved in one gallon of boiling water, and while hot two gallons of kerosene are added and the mixture thoroughly emulsified. This may be done most easily and thoroughly by churning for about ten minutes with a force-pump, the nozzle being turned back into the liquid. When thoroughly emulsified it will have the consistency of thick cream, and the oil will not separate out. There is great danger of injuring plants if the mixture is not well and thoroughly made. For a 7½ per cent emulsion add 2½ gallons of water to the above stock solution and thoroughly mix. It is desirable to use soft water both for the stock and as diluent, but where this is not obtainable the water should be softened by adding lye or sal-soda.

Gathering beetles by hand is the only useful method of controlling this pest when it attacks such crops as grapes.

Frequently the grubs are brought into greenhouses in the soil and become a nuisance and a pest. Soil for this purpose, which is infested or known to contain grubs, should be sterilized by steam before it is taken into the house.

Insecticides Purer.

That the insecticide and fungicide act of 1910 has resulted in marked improvement in the quality of insecticides and fungicides entering interstate commerce is shown by the annual report of the insecticide and fungicide board of the United States department of agriculture for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1916. Persistent sampling of four of the leading substances used in spraying shows a marked reduction in the number of violations of the act compared to preceding years. In 1915 only eight per cent of the samples of lead arsenate taken were in violation of the act, whereas in 1911-12, 60 per cent violated the law. Similarly the violations found in lime-sulphur solutions had fallen from 94 per cent to 14 per cent, and Bordeaux mixture from 98 per cent to 36 per cent. Only 19 per cent of the shipments of Paris green examined showed any violation, whereas in 1911-12, 28 per cent of these shipments were objectionable. While these results are probably due partly to the effect of deterrent prosecutions, they are due in even greater measure to the assistance the department's scientists have accorded to manufacturers in making their products of standard strength, and to the growing practice of the part of manufacturers of adapting themselves to improved methods and tests.

In this work during the past year, the inspectors collected 1,487 samples of different shipments. Of these, 190 were of insecticidal preparations for household use and 221 were of disinfectants, germicides, and bactericides for the prevention of diseases of human beings as well as of domestic animals. The department during the past year has given particular attention to the prevention of the sale in interstate commerce of products recommended for household use which are either impotent or the value of which is misrepresented on labels. Many samples of arsenates, Bordeaux mixtures, sulphur, and other preparations also were taken.

In preventing the importation of misbranded or adulterated insecticides, the insecticide and fungicide board collected 35 import samples. In the case of five preparations it was recommended that entry into this country be entirely forbidden or that the consignments be released only after being correctly labeled. In nine other cases it was recommended that future shipments be detained. The remaining samples complied with the law.

The board devotes considerable attention to investigational work for the determination of the value of various commercial insecticides and fungicides. It announces that it has under way tests of the merits of commercial dust and liquid sprays in the control of insects and diseases. These will include tests of articles composed of finely ground sulphur in combination with arsenate of lead, with a diluent such as finely ground lime or gypsum. The board also is investigating the value of different commercial pyrethrum powders, tobacco powders, nicotine solutions, etc., when used as sprays, dusts or fumigants. Experiments have been made to determine the action of potassium cyanid and other substances in the control of insects and plant diseases when injected into the tissues of plants.

Cleaning Greenhouse Glass.

There is a crying need for a liquid that will dissolve the soot, greases and other ingredients that make up the cloudy coatings of hundreds of greenhouse ranges, principally in the large cities, but also in quite a few instances even remote from the large centers. To be within miles of a cement factory is dangerous. P. S. Randolph & Sons, at Verona, Pa., are four miles from such an establishment, but the fumes from the works are blown over their place by prevailing winds with very disastrous results. The oil laden dust from a much traveled auto highway has been known to coat and render a greenhouse quite unfit for forcing cut flowers. Railroad and factory smoke often cause great damage. Numerous washes have been used, which are more or less effective, but the labor in the application is always tedious and expensive. One grower went to the expense of taking out the glass so that it could be soaked in solution. A cement company near Bethlehem, Pa., where dust and smoke from the works rendered a greenhouse plant unfit for purposes of the business, purchased the houses rather than have a final suit (having lost the first) go against them. Who has found a method that will work in cases of this kind? THE AMERICAN FLORIST will gladly print formulas and give full publicity to any useful information on this subject.

NEWPORT, R. I.—Henry K. Spence, head gardener on the estate of Mrs. Harold Brown, and for many years a resident of this city, was found drowned April 6.

Washington Notes.

The Louise Flower Shop, 1301 Connecticut avenue, in a building as yet unfinished, opened just in time for the Easter trade, which greatly exceeded expectations. Miss L. W. Dougherty, formerly with Geo. C. Shaffer, is the proprietress. This is a beautiful store on a projecting point with show windows on two sides of the triangle. In the rear, between the office and the cashier's desk, is a very complete refrigerator flower case. A commodious, well lighted basement with work and storage rooms is a feature. This is an ideal cut flower store.

Henry Small, referring to the probable effect of the war on the flower trade, said that there was a wave of economic hysteria now going over the country which might have a disturbing effect for a time, but normal conditions would return before long. His firm had felt this influence in the cancelling of several important orders, since the declaration of war, the reason given being that of the necessity of economy in preparedness for the future.

Gude Bros. Co. handled an immense quantity of plants, the Saturday crush being almost overwhelming. Wm. F. Gude said he never before saw so many people in the store at one time. They had made special preparations to meet their growing business with an immense stock and their store for two weeks presented a very gala appearance with splendidly flowered specimens of azaleas, rhododendrons, Easter lilies, hydrangeas, etc.

F. H. Kramer's business was immense. This applies both to the stock and the great Saturday rush which was almost more than they could handle.

George H. Cooke's business had been very good. Mr. Cooke is unfortunately seriously ill. His many friends hope that he will soon recover and resume his activities in the trade of which he is an important factor.

The national capital, where so many of its influential residents are officially connected with the government, and who at present are staggering under the great war preparations, found time, however, to visit the flower shops at Easter and all lines of trade report a splendid business.

The wholesalers report a very good Easter trade, both the Leo Niessen Co. and the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. having more trade than they cared for. Owing to the warm weather, outside bulbous stock flooded the market and was practically unsalable.

Z. D. Blakistone's business kept a large extra force on the go constantly during the Easter rush. He has found trade quiet since that time and his customers decrying the use of flowers in the face of the high cost of living.

Easter trade proved the best ever with Geo. C. Shaffer. A large extra adjoining store enabled him to carry a great stock and was of great assistance. His windows, always well decorated, are wonderfully effective.

At the beautiful Du Pont Circle Flower Shop, Mr. Mayberry reported a fine Easter trade but a falling off since, customers voicing the sentiment that they must cut down on all luxuries.

Harry Payne succeeded to the business of Mrs. J. R. Freeman, which he moved to 1303 F street, where on this busy thoroughfare he is kept on the go. A very good Easter was the report.

J. H. Small & Sons report sales quite the equal, if not better, than for any previous Easter. Plant baskets as well as well flowered individual plant specimens were the features.

Center Market florists had all they could handle. Milton Thomas and Frank Sly say they were worked to a frazzle to get through with it.

W. W. Kimmell, The Flower Store, J. Dan Blackstone, Leapley & Meyer and the Washington Floral Co. all report a satisfactory Easter.

RECEIPTS INCREASE DAILY.

This market is glutted; since Easter receipts have increased greatly each day, until by the early part of this week, we had an over-supply that even a good stiff demand could hardly move. The present demand for stock is only fair. While shipping business is fair, the larger part of it consists of greens and supplies. Roses of all kinds are extremely plentiful, and it is utterly impossible to move all that comes into the market even at low prices. Carnations are in a supply that is more than sufficient for present needs. The same is true of Easter lilies. In sweet peas, only the best are selling. Lily of the valley is plentiful. Some excellent snapdragons may be had. Some splendid single violets have been coming in from the north. Other offerings include callas, gladioli, Darwin tulips, daffodils, hyacinths and marguerites.

NOTES.

E. G. Gillett has been getting in some single violets from Michigan that are exceptionally good when the lateness of the season is considered. They have sold well.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange has been in receipt of some sweet peas that were of the very highest quality. They found a good market.

C. E. Critchell has been having some excellent daily shipments of the newer roses.

PRICES FALL UNDER OVERSUPPLY.

This market is now experiencing the first glut of the year. The wholesale houses are moving it all, but are ashamed to say at what prices. Roses are arriving in abundance and the quality is exceptionally fine. They can be bought at the buyer's own price. Carnations are holding up well considering everything, and sell at from $15 to $25 per 1,000. Sweet peas are arriving in large quantities and clean up each day at low prices. The street man is in his glory as most of the flowers are disposed of to him. Violets are almost over for this season. Spanish iris is now arriving in quantity and has dropped considerably in price. Herebefore it has held up well, but the crop seems to be on and prices have lowered. Southern daffodils are here in large supply and are disposed of to the street fakir at his own price. Lilies are flooding the market, the top prices being $6 per 100. Many are sold in job lots at any price. Some very good snapdragon is being received. Business is lively enough, but there is too much stock to ask high prices. American Beauties are very plentiful; more so than at any time this year. Greens are still scarce.

NOTES.

Most all the retail florists are advertising extensively for Mothers' day. They are using large posters for window display and the small stickers to be used on packages and stationery. These cards and stickers are very attractive, giving the date and reminding every person to send flowers on that day.

The I. S. Crall Co., of Monongahela, suffered a $10,000 loss by fire, April 6. Their packing shed and boiler house were completely destroyed. The loss is covered by insurance.

Thos. Joyce of the Pittsburgh market had a dahlia in bloom this week. He received a shipment of roots and one had sent forth a sprout with a beautiful red flower.

Jacob Elicker, for many years the leading Homestead florist, died April 10. The funeral was held from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. A. C. Miller.

The McCallum Co. has received the new rose, Dainty Maid, which takes well with the local florists. M.

Cleveland, O.

EASTER TRADE GOOD IN ALL BRANCHES.

The Easter trade locally was very satisfactory to wholesalers, growers and retailers. Stock of all kinds was plentiful, and the quality generally good, with the exception of violets, which were poor. Prices averaged about the same as last year. Plant growers also did a good business, Easter lily plants being perhaps most in demand. The weather the past week has been anything but conducive to good business—rain, snow and cold and very little sunshine was experienced. Funeral work was the mainstay and considerable stock was moved, mostly short roses, carnations, etc. Although the newspapers had from a column to a column and a half of "war bride" marriages, no great amount of flowers were used at these weddings. Sweet peas are more plentiful since Easter and of excellent quality. A fine grade of snapdragon arrives, in pink, Ward and white. Bulbous stock is still very plentiful, with only a limited demand. Some very good iris arrives daily. Daisies, calendulas, lily of the valley, etc., are good property. Asparagus is again in sufficient supply for all requirements.

NOTES.

Mrs. Richard Gamble, of 87 Burton avenue, N. E., died April 9 at the age of 75 years. Pneumonia was the cause of her death. She was born in Scotland. With her husband, she had been in the growing end of the flower business for about 22 years. They also operated a flower and plant stand in the Sheriff street market, where Mrs. Gamble was a familiar figure, as rarely did she fail to be at her stand, regardless of the weather or other conditions.

The Schoen Floral Co.'s store at 1268 Euclid avenue was entered by burglars April 11, by forcing the back door on Huron road. Some cash, stamps and car tickets were taken when the burglar rifled the desk. No further or larger losses could be ascertained at this time.

Will Kruzen, of the Smith & Fetters Co., is laid up with a very sore knee. Some time ago he fell on a nail in a board, which caused him considerable pain. He was at the store during the Easter rush and no doubt overtaxed the injured limb.

Hammond Bros., of North Olmstead, O., are cutting a very fine lot of sweet peas. Claude Tyler and A. M. Coe are sending in a fine lot of snapdragon to the Cleveland Florists' Exchange.

A. A. Hart, Lake avenue florist, is on the local "war garden committee," according to the list of names of the committee. C. F. B.

Rochester, N. Y.

SUPPLY LIMITED AFTER EASTER CLEANUP.

The market, following the Easter rush, offers a rather limited supply to draw from. Harrisii and calla lilies were both limited in number this year, and while roses were plentiful with the exception of the red varieties, which were at a premium, the heavy cut cleaned up everything. Roses at this writing are exceptionally fine in quality and violets are still quite good for so late in the season. Daffodils, tulips, Narcissus poeticus and Paper Whites are seen in limited numbers and the quality is poor. Carnations are showing the effects of warmer weather. Few good blooming plants are to be had.

NOTES.

J. B. Keller Sons report the Easter business this year greater than ever before. They also had a wedding decoration at Medina, N. Y., during the week that added to the sales sum total for the period. They are at present showing some fine Spanish iris.

H. E. Wilson's employes were all busy handling a wonderful Easter business. This firm forced some splendid mountain laurel for the occasion.

Geo. T. Boucher's volume of Easter business was exceptionally large. He finds his attractive window displays are big business getters.

E. C. Kaelber reports an excellent Easter demand with a heavy increase over last year.

Mrs. Edwin C. Armbrust is spending a few weeks with her parents at New Britain, Conn.

Paul Campus used an extra force at his establishment for the rush.

Visitors: H. G. Mathot, Boskoop, Holland; Julius Berg and Milton Selinka, New York; J. M. Phillips, Zanesville, O.

DEMAND LIGHT; MARKET STEADY.

Market conditions the past week have been fairly steady, considering the fact that business has slowed up perceptibly. Roses and carnations are of very good quality. Sweet peas continue to come in fine, and while quite a number are seen, they clean up at fair prices. Jonquils are quite plentiful, with quotations low on large lots. Good American Beauties and Russell are scarce. Extra fine Darwin tulips, stocks and snapdragons are seen daily, and move freely. Lily of the valley is none too plentiful, and what there is of it was somewhat soft. String smilax is scarce and of poor quality. Other greens are equal to the demand.

CLUB MEETING.

About 30 members assembled at W. A. Rowe's plant No. 2 on the Denny road, Kirkwood, April 12, in spite of the inclement weather. M. C. Wright of the Lord & Burnham Co., Chicago, was elected to membership, and Chas. F. A. Steidle of Olivette, Mo., applied for membership. A letter from the Chicago Florists' Club publicity committee was read and it was decided to send a copy of this letter to all members of the trade in St. Louis suggesting that they immediately send in their subscriptions to Fred Lautenschlager to help along their publicity scheme. The committee appointed some time ago to ascertain amount of investment in glass in St. Louis and vicinity, made a partial report of about $1,000,000 investment, with a few more florists to be heard from. Jos. Hauser of Webster Groves read a paper on organization and co-operation. Pierre Schneider of Webster Groves lead a discussion on wholesale prices on cut flowers, and brought out the fact that labor is getting scarcer and materials higher, without an increase in the returns on the product. After the meeting the members enjoyed the refreshments and an inspection of the greenhouses.

NOTES.

A number of plant growers in and around St. Louis have decided to stop selling geraniums in four-inch pots at $6 per hundred, and have decided that $8 per hundred will be the minimum. This seems to be a good move in view of the higher cost of production.

The County Growers' Association has invited the florists' club to hold its next meeting as their guests at the Eleven Mile House on Manchester road.

Wm. C. Smith spends a great deal of time at his farm, but he refuses to say whether he is going to grow potatoes or carnations and chrysanthemums.

We notice that the florists as a whole are continuing their fine window displays, which is always one of the best advertisements a florist has.

Some extra fine Darwin tulips are being handled by Windler Wholesale Floral Co., grown by W. A. Rowe Floral Co., Kirkwood.

H. G. Berning and C. A. Kuehn always have a nice line of stock, and make a specialty of handling quality as well as quantity.

The landscape men around St. Louis are working overtime getting their early planting and sodding done.

PLANTS BIG FACTOR IN EASTER TRADE.

The volume of the Easter trade in this city was fully 50 per cent greater than in any previous year and stock in all lines practically cleaned up. Lilies were first class and very few showed signs of too much forcing. Every plant that was in bloom sold readily. Prices were better than last year, both retail and wholesale. The smaller varieties of plants and those cheaper in price were much in demand and cleaned up almost completely. While there were no noticeable church decorations, more plants and flowers were used than in previous years. Spring flowers from outside were not a factor this year and consequently the business came to the stores.

NOTES.

This city will help solve the food problem and vacant lots in all parts of the city are being plowed and planted. The city commissioners will make no charge for sprinkling and have urged the people to grow everything that they can eat.

F. C. Smith has his establishment in fine condition and reports business about 70 per cent ahead of last year. His Easter trade showed an increase of about 85 per cent.

Miethkes Flower Shop has opened on St. Helms street opposite the Bonneville hotel. A line of decorative shrubbery is a feature.

The Hayden-Watson Co. sold out its Easter stock completely. Shipping business has been very good during the entire season.

George Vail has torn down his range on North Thirtieth street and moved to a location on the Tacoma Eastern railroad.

Stock of all kinds has not been overabundant, as the cut was well cleaned up, consequently prices have held firm.

Florists are already beginning to put in tomatoes and sacrifice other stocks, principally carnations.

The week before Easter was "Dress Up" week and flowers were used freely in store windows.

California Florists had a large supply of fine stock and a very heavy demand.

Providence, R. I.

MARKET WELL SUPPLIED.

Trade the past week has been good with floral work keeping up steadily. Stock is plentiful and the growers have no difficulty in marketing it. Roses are selling at low figures and there are quite a number of carnations on the scene, sweet peas being practically the only short item. Several weddings and banquets have kept the trade busy with decorations. From all reports received, this was "some Easter."

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

Public notice is hereby given that William E. S. Griswold, Wyndhurst, Lenox, Mass., Alfred J. Loveless, gardener, offers for registration the new Laelia-cattleya described below. Any person objecting to the registration or to the use of the proposed name is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration the same will be made three weeks from date.

Description: A hybrid between Laelia-cattleya Gigris and Laelia-cattleya Myra. Petals and sepals a rich golden yellow with dark purple lip. Flower four inches in diameter. Bulbs of medium height, slender, dark green in color. Received from England as an unnamed variety, possibly raised at Westonbirt, Col. Halford's estate. Name: Adela Griswold. April 14, 1917.

FLOWER SHOW COMMITTEE DINNER.

The labors of the joint committee of management of the 1917 national flower show, New York, were brought to a close with a business meeting and banquet at the Hotel Biltmore, Thursday evening, April 12. There was a full attendance, and the only guests were Messrs. Korbel and Colwell, the publicity agents, Arthur Herrington, exhibition manager, and William Delano, the well-known architect and landscape artist.

The menu was excellent, and the spirit of the success of the show was manifest in the discussion of this most important feature of the function. Chairman T. A. Havemeyer presided, and in the early course of the proceedings singled out Chas. H. Totty chairman of the board of jurors, by pressing upon that gentleman the acceptance of a beautiful diamond pin, a mark of appreciation by his fellow-members of his work in connection with the flower shows generally, and especially of his great ability shown in the organization of his co-workers in the difficult task of making awards. Mr. Totty, taken by surprise, made a feeble but heartfelt response, assuring the committee that his efforts had resulted from a sense of duty to his fellows and the objects of the shows, sentiments which, without doubt, actuated also the work and interest of all the other members of the committee. Record of the work of individual members of the committee was not wanting. A vote of thanks to the secretary was unanimous, as was a similar vote to Treasurer F. R. Newbold for his interest and influence, strong factors in the success of the show, also a standing vote of thanks to Chairman T. A. Havemeyer, who had given so much of his time to the work of the show.

Everybody seemed happy over the reported financial success of the Fifth National Flower Show, and several made speeches expressing their feelings in this respect, promising their best efforts to promote the 1918 show and carry it to a successful termination. The arrangement of the next show was the prime object of a discussion, which amply supplied the entertainment feature of the dinner. Each member of the committee was ripe with suggestions, and Mr. Delano capped them all with some that might be considered ultra professional. If all the ideas formulated at the dinner, as to fountains, grottoes, gardens, hanging gardens, winding paths, secluded nooks, and the like, take shape, the next show will be, indeed, a "paradise."

Richard Holloman, who is anything if not original, declared that he would have a model of the next show prepared beforehand so that there should be no danger of an idea going astray. He also announced that by the time of the next show there would be a subway station at the entrance to the Grand Central Palace, from which trains would connect with the whole subway system, facilitating travel to the show. Having thus said, Mr. Holloman waved the national flag and called upon all to sing "The Star-Spangled Banner," and the anthem was sung with spirit, although, be it related, Mr. Holloman appeared to be sponsor for the general run of the versification. The floral decorations were by George E. M. Stump.

This proceeding ended one of the most enjoyable dinners ever held in the trade, at least in New York.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Windstorm Insurance.

Anders Rasmussen, the well-known New Albany, Ind., grower who suffered a loss of about $75,000 in the cyclone which visited that city, March 23, mention of which was made in our issue of March 31, page 582, is desirous to know if it would be possible to form a windstorm insurance company for mutual protection along the lines of the Florists' Hail Association. With this in view he has sent out return postal cards to about 500 growers with the request that they reply at once giving the following information: How much have you lost by windstorms in the last 10 years? In what years did the loss occur? What is the size of your range? Iron frame? Pipe frame? Would you join a mutual company of greenhouse men if the rates could be made reasonable?

Plant Growers Benefit by Early Easter.

The early Easter of 1917 will prove a boon to the bedding plant growers, who will at once fill their empty benches with the stock waiting for a shift and pot up the seedlings from the boxes. A full month of the best growing weather should get it in the best possible condition for spring sales.

Coming Exhibitions.

CLUB MEETING.

The club meeting, April 12, was well attended and the proceedings were more interesting than usual to the members present, among whom were the more prominent growers and retailers of the city as well as the rank and file of the membership. A review of the Easter trade was the sole topic for consideration and nearly everyone took a part in the discussion, which was at times quite lively and somewhat embittered. All the speakers seemed disposed to be fair in their statements, but a few of the retailers felt aggrieved because of the poor quality of too much of the stock, particularly in flowering plants delivered by the local growers, and one of the retailers made the statement that were it not for some of the out-of-town growers sending in meritorious stock, a poor showing would be the result in our flower shops. However, some compliments were also given the growers for their efforts and though the same were mixed with the revelation of their shortcomings, they served to soothe the turbulent waters and the best of feeling later prevailed. Philip Breitmeyer, rarely seen of late at our meetings, was present and his synopsis of the Easter trade was listened to with keen interest. He deplored the tendency of some growers to use pots too small for heavy-rooted, moisture-absorbing plants; these he said should have the maximum of soil to maintain the necessary moisture without the frequent watering that the average buyer or recipient of plants will not give. He thought plant basket effects at Easter are usually, as they were this year, overdone; that the elegant specimens of azaleas, rhododendrons, roses and lilies, as well as lilacs and other choice plants available, left little room for this feature of the usual Easter stock. In this statement many of the other retailers cheerfully concurred. A. Pochelon insisted that the better flower shops should at such times by their equipment with the higher grades of stock get as far as possible from the aspects of the butcher shops and grocery stores, laden as they are with the cheaper plants, too willingly supplied by growers that should know better. All agreed that with all its unavoidable trials, it was the greatest Easter trade this city ever experienced. A special meeting of the club was held Monday evening, April 16, for the purpose of making arrangements for advertising Mothers' day. About 20 members were present and a full discussion of the subject followed. It was decided to advertise the day by several methods—banners, posters and in the daily papers, and the latter will be used to a great extent and copy will give publicity to the day and its significance without the names of florists individually, and to this end a committee, of which A. Pochelon is chairman, will solicit subscriptions to a substantial fund that will mark the highest point ever reached here for advertising in a co-operative way.

At the meeting the announcement was made of the sudden death last Sunday morning of Mrs. Harry Balsley. A resolution of condolence was unanimously adopted and suitable flowers ordered sent to the funeral, which took place from the Balsley residence, 319 Garland avenue. The trade was largely represented at the funeral and the greatest regret felt for this sad misfortune overtaking the popular "Harry." J. F. S.

CUT STOCK PLENTIFUL BUT PRICES LOW.

The local trade was well supplied with cut flowers during the past week, especially bulbous stock, which is about the last for this season. Carnations were plentiful, and in some stores sold as low as one cent each on Saturday. Roses, especially Pink and White Killarney, were also in good supply and sold at low prices. There are still some fine pot plants to be seen and when they are required sell readily.

NOTES.

W. J. Barnes is cutting heavily in bulbous stock and carnations and his trade has kept the supply limited. The demand for porch boxes and vases as well as bedding plants has been unusually heavy, but from the appearance of his large line he is well prepared.

W. L. Rock Flower Co. enjoyed a good week's business after the Easter rush. Orders for decorations are coming in daily. This firm is now cutting fine Mrs. Shawyer, Ophelia and Cecile Brunner roses, and have an excellent line of pot plants.

Biederman & Son report normal business. Bedding stock is in good shape here. This firm handles the largest line of tomato plants in this vicinity and made deliveries as early as April 2.

H. Kusik & Co. are handling a large supply of lilies, snapdragons, roses and carnations. Stock is pouring in from all directions and prices are low as a result. The supply and wire work departments are holding up well.

R. S. Brown & Sons, the largest wholesalers of bedding stock, report trade much heavier than in former years and are well sold out in some lines.

Adolph Mohr is building a bungalow near his range. He cleaned up to the last plant at Easter and could have sold more.

A. F. Barbe reports an excellent demand following the Easter rush. He is cutting good carnations and roses.

T. J. Noll & Co. are handling a large and complete line of stock. Shipping trade continues very satisfactory.

SATISFACTORY TRADE REPORTED.

The local trade is disposed to be satisfied with the 1917 Easter business. It was at least as good as a year ago and some say better. The sales of violets, sweet peas, and orchids were good; in fact, increases are reported with the larger retailers. In plants, those of moderate price, from $3 to $5 each, sold best. The demand was greatest for dwarf and climbing roses, with azaleas second. In cut flowers the public took best to Killarney, Ophelia and Ward roses. American Beauties were not so much in demand as in some other years on account of the high prices prevailing for this variety. The call for corsages was exceptional.

On Palm Sunday the public was invited to visit the greenhouses of F. A. Danker at 744 Central avenue to inspect the stock. Nothing was sold and no orders were taken. From 2,000 to 2,500 attended. Mr. Danker was awarded a first prize for the best decorated window during "Dress Up" week March 24-31.

GREATEST EASTER TRADE IN HISTORY.

All agree that the florists had one of the very best Easter trades in the history of the city. There was a great abundance of stock of all kinds. In fact, there was hardly one item of which it could be said there was a short supply. Plants were greatly to the fore and enormous quantities were disposed of. The stores have never made a finer showing than was done Easter week. They were magnificent and the quality of the pot stock offered reflects the greatest praise on our plant growers. There were plenty of lilies to supply every demand, both cut and in pots. The quality was extra fine and good prices prevailed. The stores were a riot of color with Rambler and baby ramblers, Dorothy Perkins and Lady Gay proved to be still the favorites. There was a grand supply of rhododendrons, principally Pink Pearl. The azalea stock, too, was very fine and cleaned up in fine shape. Plenty of bulbous stock in pots of all kinds was sold. Spireas and a few deutzias were also noted. Of all the pot stock roses were far in the lead when popularity is considered. The plants were trained to grow in all shapes and sizes. The call for cut flowers was also very good. There was a large supply of all seasonable stock to select from and the volume of business done in the aggregate was very large. Everything considered, the stock of roses and carnations was excellent. Prices ruled about the same as the former week with few exceptions. Some grand lilac was received and sold rapidly. Outdoor stock is now arriving in increased quantities. A few more orchids and gardenias could have been used, but they were not in oversupply. Pelicano, Rossi & Co. had a grand showing in their Kearny street store all week. Some of the ramblers were remarkable. J. B. Boland featured ramblers extensively as did Podesta & Baldochi. MacRorie & McLaren Co. showed grand rhododendrons and azaleas. The Art Floral Co. displayed lilies very extensively.

NOTES.

The California Dahlia Society and the California Dahlia Growers' Association have merged under the name of the Dahlia Society of California, thus combining activities so as to act as a unit in popularizing the dahlia in the west. The bulletin services of the two societies have been combined, and the first issue by the new organization will be ready April 19. It is a matter of much satisfaction to the trade in general that this move has been taken, and there is no doubt but that the interest in this popular flower will greatly increase. The officers of the Dahlia Society of California for 1917 are: T. A. Burns, of San Francisco, president; Pierson Durbrow, San Francisco, vice-president; F. C. Burns, San Rafael, treasurer; Newell F. Vanderbilt, San Rafael, corresponding secretary and editor; C. S. Quick, Berkeley, financial and recording secretary.

One of the most gorgeous spectacles seen in Golden Gate park in years is the magnificent bank of Azalea Hindogiri planted on the hills back of "The Lodge," the home of John McLaren. There are over 5,000 plants of this azalea now in full bloom and it presents a sight not easily forgotten. These plants were originally planted in the exposition grounds, but were placed in their permanent home after the fair was over.

W. C. Clarke, of the San Jose branch of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, reported a very heavy demand for azaleas and rhododendrons for the Easter trade. He had a fine lot of Pink Pearl, nearly all of which found ready sale. A very large lath house is now being erected on the nursery property to properly handle this class of stock. A fine three-ton White truck has been added to the delivery end of the business.

The monthly meeting of the Menlo Park Horticultural Society will be held April 10. The chief business of the evening will be the selection of the date of the spring show. The exhibition committee has prepared a rather elaborate premium list and the society expects to hold its best spring show this year. Already many valuable prizes have been offered. The show will be held in Redwood City.
