PRELUDIUM

The nameless shadowy female rose from out the breast of Orc:
Her snaky hair writhing in the winds of Enitharmon:
And thus her voice arose.

O mother Enitharmon wilt thou bring forth other sons?
To cause my name to vanish, that my place may not be found.
For I am rent with travel,
Like the dark cloud disburdened in the day of dismal thunder.

My roots are brandish'd in the heavens, my fruits in earth beneath.
Surge, fear, and labour into life, first born & first consum'd!
Consum'd and consuming!
Then why shouldst thou accursed mother bring me into life?

I wear my turban of thick clouds around my labring head:
And fold the sheety waters as a cradle round my limbs.
Yet the red sun and moon,
And all the overflow'g stars rain down prolific pains.

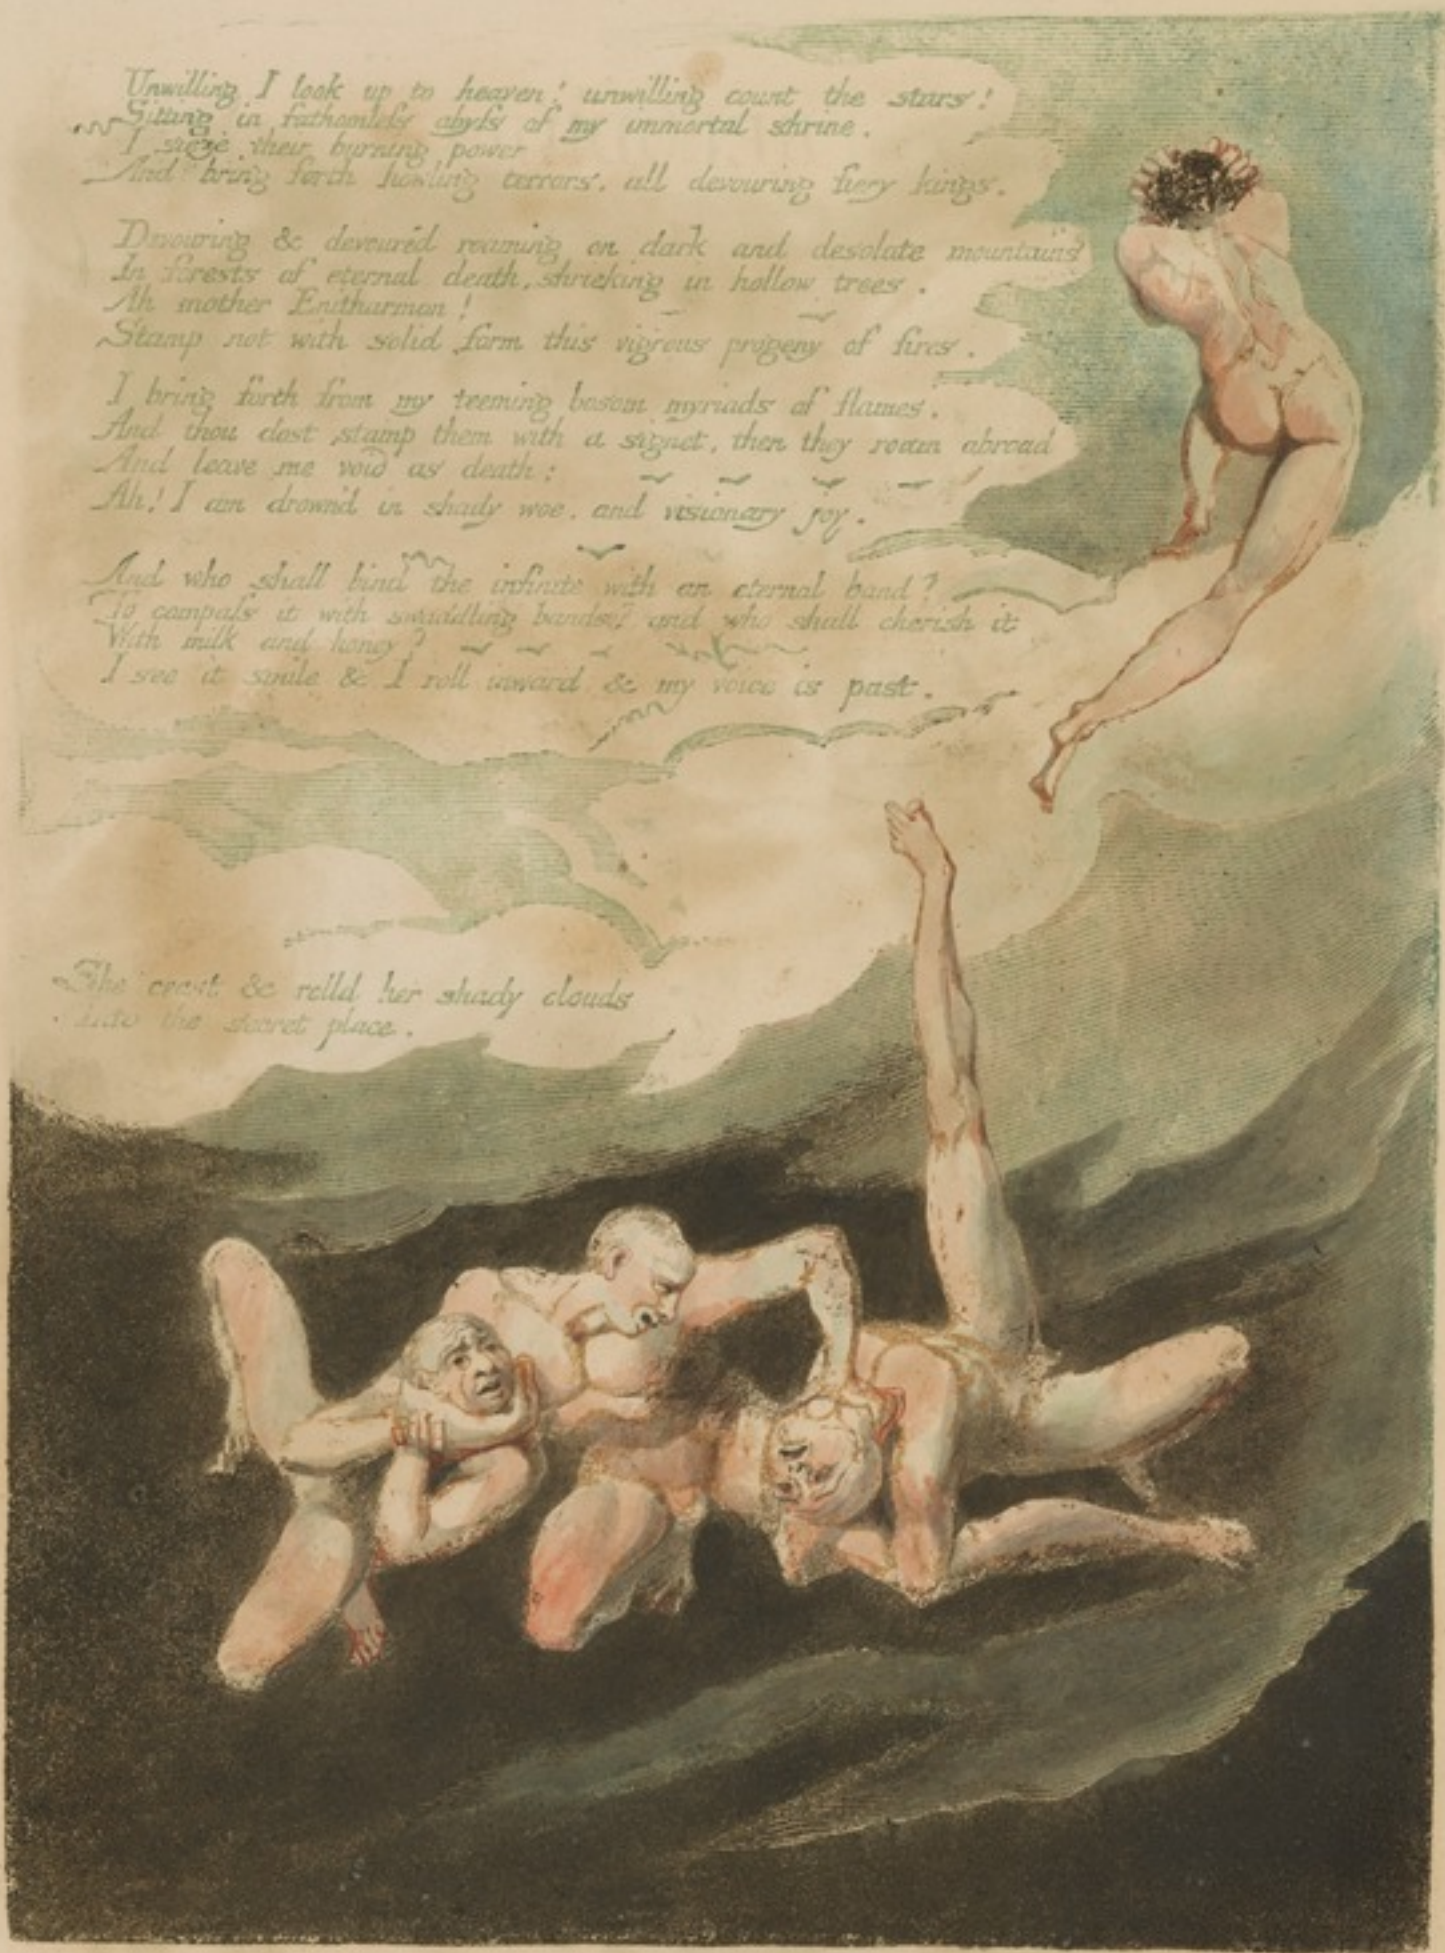

Unwilling I look up to heaven; unwilling count the stars!
Sitting in fathomless abyss of my immortal shrine,
I seize their burning power
And bring forth howling terrors, all devouring fiery kings.

Devouring & devoured roaming on dark and desolate mountains
In forests of eternal death, shrieking in hollow trees.
Ah mother Enitharmon!
Stamp not with solid form this vigorous progeny of fires.

I bring forth from my teeming bosom myriads of flames,
And thou dost stamp them with a signet, then they roan abroad
And leave me void as death:
Ah! I am drownd in shady woe, and visionary joy.

And who shall bind the infinite with an eternal band?
To compass it with swaddling bands; and who shall cherish it
With milk and honey?
I see it soile & I roll inward, & my voice is past.

She creak & rellid her shady clouds
Into the secret place.

PROPHECY

The deep of winter came,
What time the secret child
Descended thro' the orient gates of the eternal day:
Your ceas'd, & all the troops like shadows fled to their abodes.

Then Enitharmon saw her sons & daughters rise around.
Like pearly clouds they meet together in the crystal house:
And Lias, palester of the moon, joy'd in the peaceful night:
Thus speaking while his numerous sons shook their bright fiery wings

Again the night is come
That strong Urthona takes his rest,
And Urezen unbos'd from chains
Glees like a meteor in the distant north
Stretch forth your hands and strike the elemental strings:
Awake the Wanders of the deep.

The shrill winds wake!
Till all the sons of Uryen look out and envy Los:
Seize all the spirits of life and mind
Their warbling joys to our loud strings
Bind all the nourishing sweets of earth
To give us bliss, that we may drink the sparkling wine of Los
And let us laugh at war,
Despising toil and care,
Because the days and nights of joy in lucky hours renew.

Arise O Ore from thy deep den,
First born of Enitharmon rise!
And we will crown thy head with garlands of the ruddy vine;
For now thou art bound;
And I may see thee in the hour of bliss, my eldest born.

The horrent Demon rose, surrounded with red stars of fire,
Whirling about in furious circles round the immortal hind.

Then Enitharmon down descended into his red light,
And thus her voice rose to her children, the distant heavens reply.

Now comes the night of Ecitharions joy
Who shall I call? Who shall I send?
That Woman, lovely Woman! may have dominion?
Aise O Rustrah thee I call, & Palamabron thee.
Go, tell the human race that Wamans love is Sin:
That an Eternal life awaits the worms of sixty winters
In an allegorical, abode where existence hath never come:
Forbid all Joy, so from her childhood shall the little female
Spread nets in every secret path.
My weary eyelids draw towards the evening, my bliss is yet but new.

Arise O Rintrah eldest born; second to none but Orc:
O lion Rintrah raise thy fury from thy forests black:
Bring Palamabron horned priest, skipping upon the mountains:
And silent Elynitria the silver bowed queen:
Rintrah where hast thou hid thy bride:
Weeps she in desert shades?
Alas my Rintrah! bring the lovely jealous Ocalythron.

Arise my son: bring all thy brethren O thou king of fire,
Prince of the sun I see thee with thy innumerable race:
Thick as the summer stars:
But each ramping his golden mane shakes,
And thine eyes rejoice because of strength O Rintrah furious king.

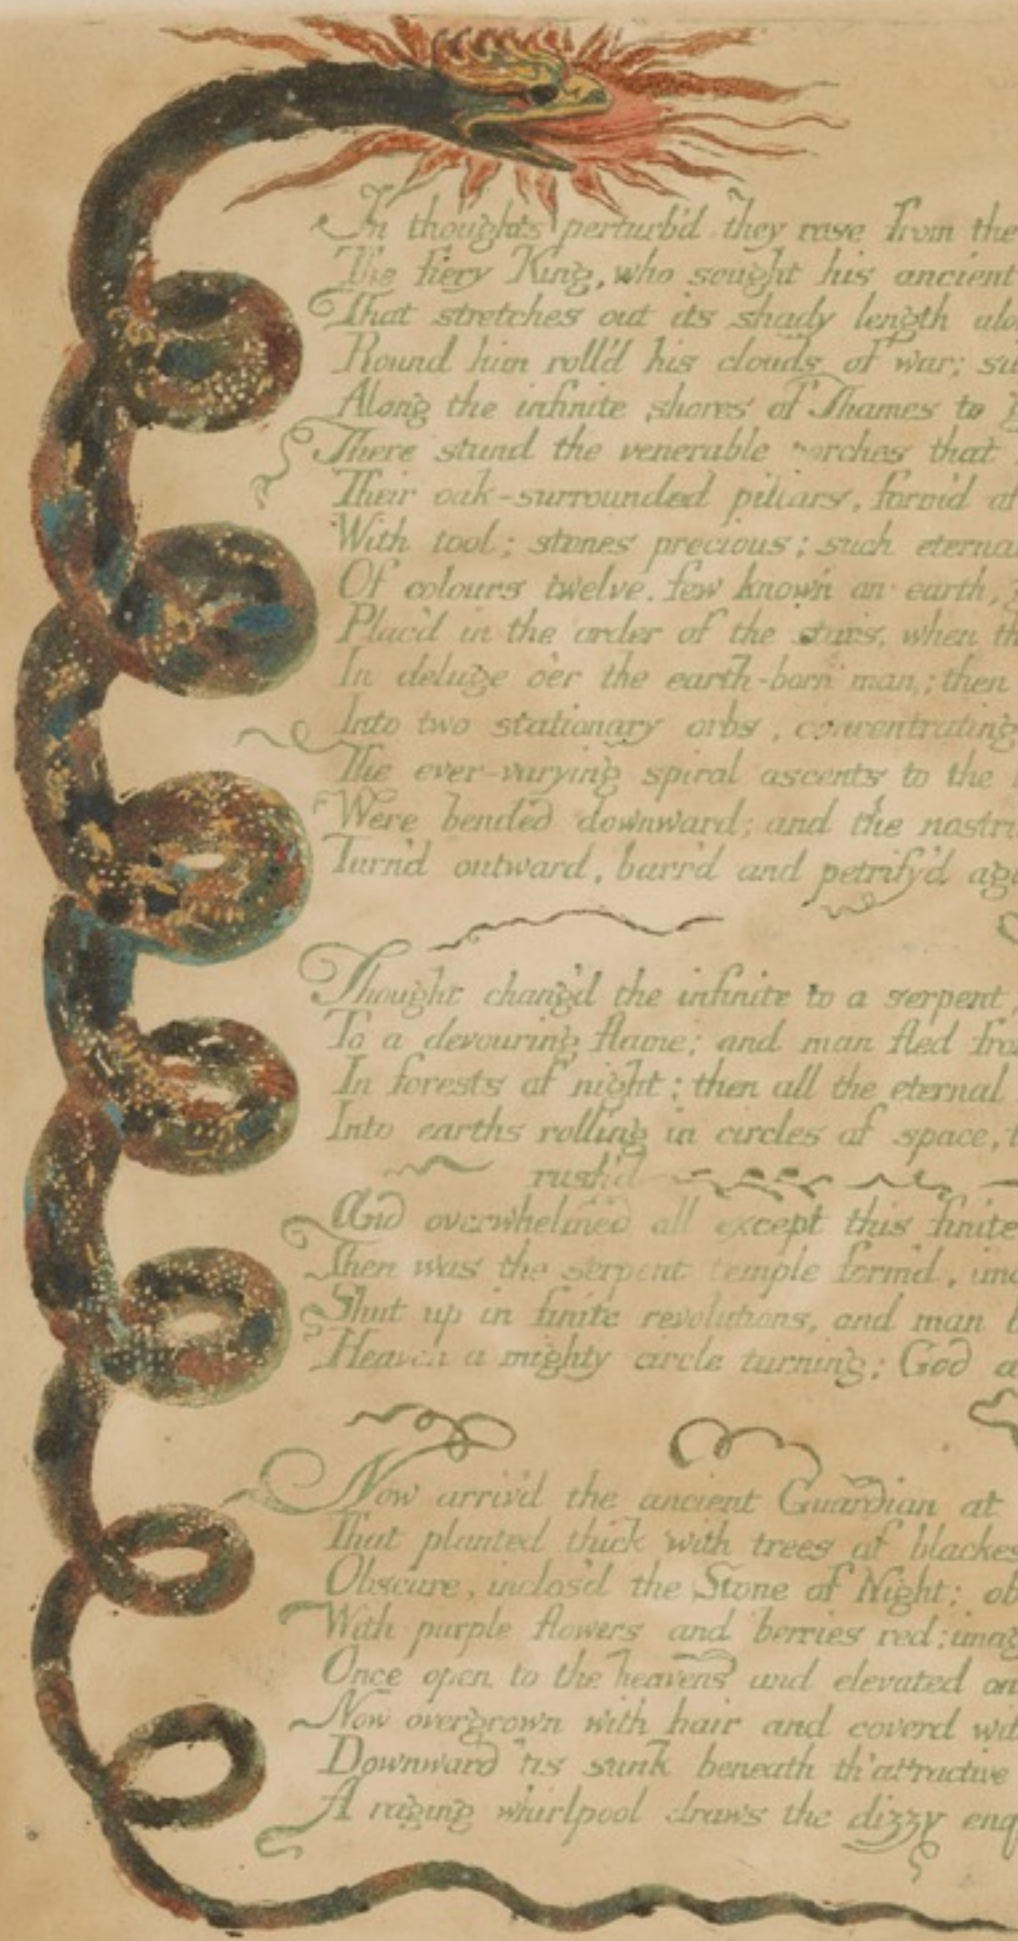

Foritharmon slept,
 Eighteen hundred years: Man was a Dream!
 The night of Nature and their harps unstrung,
 She slept in middle of her nightly song,
 Eighteen hundred years: a female dream.

Shadows of men in fleeting bands upon the winds:
 Divule the heavens of Europe:
 Tell Albions Angel smitten with his own plagues fled with his bands
 The cloud bears hard on Albions shore:
 Filled with immortal demons of futurity:
 In council gather the smitten Angels of Albion
 the cloud bears hard upon the council house: down rushing
 On the heads of Albions Angels.

One hour they lay buried beneath the ruins of that hall:
 But as the stars rise from the salt lake they arise in pair,
 In troubled mists overclouded by the terrors of struggling times

Following

In thoughts perturb'd they rose from the bright ruins silent
The fiery King, who sought his ancient temple serpent-formid
That stretches out its shady length along the Island white.
Round him roll'd his clouds of war; silent the angel went,
Along the infinite shores of Thames to golden Verulam.
There stand the venerable porches that high-towering rear
Their oak-surrounded pillars, formid of many stones, uncut
With tool; stones precious; such eternal in the heavens,
Of colours twelve, few known on earth, give light in the opaque.
Placid in the order of the stars, when the five senses whirl'd
In deluge o'er the earth-born man; then turn'd the fluxile eyes
Into two stationary orbs, concentrating all things.
The ever-varying spiral ascents to the heavens of heavens
Were bended downward; and the nostrils gotten gates shut
Turn'd outward, bur'd and petrify'd against the infinite.

Thought chang'd the infinite to a serpent; that which pitieth:
To a devouring flame; and man fled from its face and hid
In forests of night; then all the eternal forests were divid'd
Into earths rolling in circles of space, that like an ocean
rush'd
And overwhelmed all except this finite wall of flesh.
Then was the serpent temple formid, image of infinite
Shut up in finite revolutions, and man became an angel;
Heaven a mighty circle turning; God a tyrant crown'd.

Now arriv'd the ancient Guardian at the southern porch,
That planted thick with trees of blackest leaf, & in a vale
Obscure, inclos'd the Stone of Night; oblique it stood, overhung
With purple flowers and berries red; image of that sweet souter,
Once open to the heavens and elevated on the human neck,
Now overgrown with hair and cover'd with a stony roof. Feet
Downward tis sunk beneath th'attractive north, that round the
A raging whirlpool draws the dizzy enquirer to his grave.

Albions Angel rose upon the Stone of Night.
He saw Urizen on the Atlantic:
And his brazen Book,
That Kings & Priests had copied on Earth
Expanded from North to South.

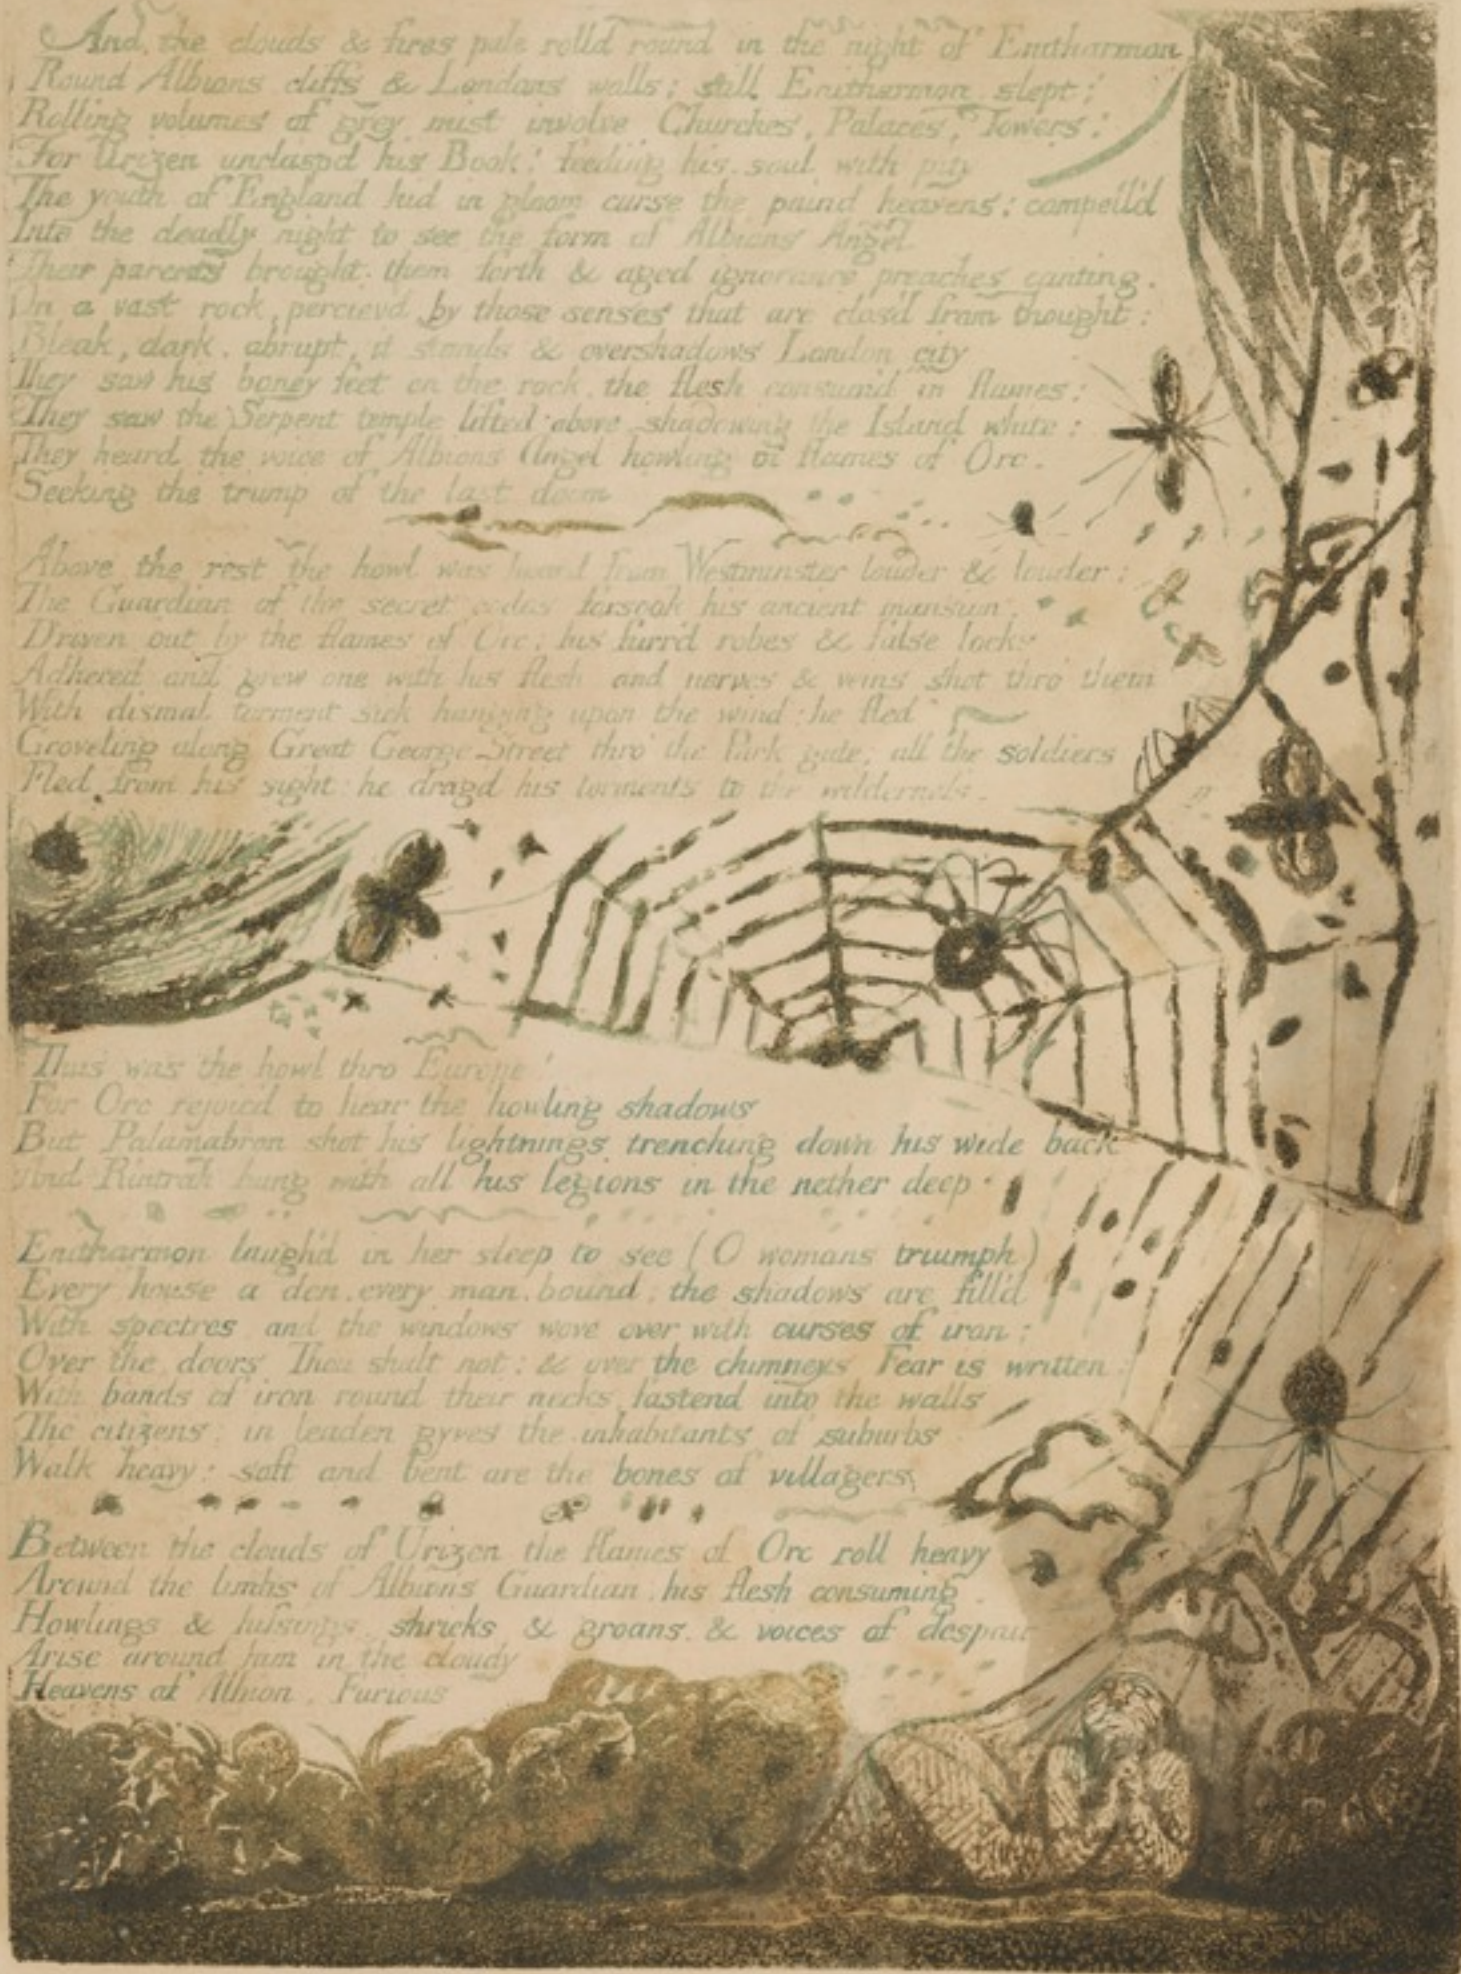

And the clouds & fires pale roll'd round in the night of Enitharmon
Round Albion's cliffs & Londons walls; still Enitharmon slept;
Rolling volumes of grey mist involve Churches, Palaces, Towers:
For Urizen unclasped his Book; feeding his soul with pity
The youth of England hid in plume curse the pained heavens; compell'd
Into the deadly night to see the form of Albion's Angel
Their parents brought them forth & aged ignorants preach'd canting
On a vast rock, perceiv'd by those senses that are cloud from thought:
Bleak, dark, abrupt, it stands & overshadows London city
They saw his bony feet on the rock, the flesh consumed in flames:
They saw the Serpent temple lifted above shadowing the Island white:
They heard the voice of Albion's Angel howling in flames of Ore.
Seeking the trump of the last doom

Above the rest the howl was heard from Westminster louder & louder:
The Guardian of the secret codes forsok his ancient mansion,
Driven out by the flames of Ore; his hurried robes & false locks
Adhered and grew one with his flesh and nerves & veins shot thro' them
With dismal torment such hanging upon the wind: he fled
Crawling along Great George Street thro' the Park gate, all the soldiers
Fled from his sight: he drag'd his torments to the wilderness.

Thus was the howl thro' Europe
For Ore rejoic'd to hear the howling shadows
But Palamabron shot his lightnings trenching down his wide back
And Rintock hung with all his legions in the nether deep

Enitharmon laugh'd in her sleep to see (O womans triumph)
Every house a den, every man bound; the shadows are fill'd
With spectres, and the windows wove over with curses of iron;
Over the doors Thou shalt not; & over the chimneys Fear is written
With bands of iron round their necks, fasten'd into the walls
The citizens; in leaden pyres the inhabitants of suburbs
Walk heavy; salt and bent are the bones of villagers.

Between the clouds of Urizen the flames of Ore roll heavy
Around the limbs of Albion's Guardian, his flesh consuming
Howlings & hissing, shrieks & groans, & voices of despair
Arise around him in the cloudy
Heavens of Albion, Furious

The red limb'd Angel seiz'd in horror and torment;
 The Trump of the last doom; but he could not blow the iron tube!
 Thrice he assur'd presumptuous to awak' the dead to judgment.

A mighty Spirit leapt from the land of Albion,
 Nam'd Newton; he seiz'd the Trump, & blow'd the enormous blast!
 Yellow as leaves of Autumn the myriads of Angelic hosts,
 Fell thro' the wintry skies seeking their graves;
 Rattling their hollow bones in howling and lamentation.

Then Enitharmon woke nor knew that she had slept
 And eighteen hundred years were fled
 As if they had not been.
 She call'd her sons & daughters
 To the sports of night,
 Within her crystal house;
 And thus her song proceeds.

Arise Ethindus! tho' the earth-worm call;
 Let him call in vain;
 Till the night of holy shadows
 And human solitude is past!

Ethinthus queen of waters, how thou shinest in the sky:
My daughter how do I rejoice! for thy children flock around
Like the gay fishes on the wave, when the cold moon drinks the dew
Ethinthus! thou art sweet as comforts to my fainting soul:
For now thy waters warble round the feet of Enutharmon.

Manathu-Varyon! I behold thee flaming in my halls,
Light of thy mothers soul! I see thy lovely eagles round:
Thy golden wings are my delight, & thy flames of soft delusion.

Where is my luring bird of Eden! Leutha silent love!
Leutha, the many coloured bow delights upon thy wings:
Soft soul of flowers Leutha!
Sweet smiling pestilence! I see thy blushing light:
Thy daughters many changing,
Revolve like sweet perfumes ascending O Leutha silken queen!

Where is the youthful Antamon, prince of the pearl dew,
O Antamon, why wilt thou leave thy mother Enutharmon?
Alone I see thee crystal form,
Floating upon the basand air:
With unguents of gratified desire
My Antamon the seven churches of Leutha seek thy love.

I hear the soft Oothoon in Enutharmons tents:
Why wilt thou give up womans secrecy my melancholy child?
Between two moments bliss is ripe:
O Theoterman robbid of joy, I see thy salt tears flow
Down the steps of my crystal house.

Sotha & Thuralatha, secret dwellers of dreundal caves,
Arise and please the horrent fiend with your melodious songs:
Still all your thunders golden herald, & bind your horses black.
Orc! smile upon my children!
Smile son of my afflictions.
Arise O Orc and give our mountains joy of thy red light.

She ceased, for All were forth at sport beneath the solemn moon
Waking the stars of Urizen with their immortal songs,
That nature felt thro' all her pores the enormous revelry
Till morning open'd the eastern gate.
Then every one fled to his station, & Enutharmon wept.

But terrible Orc, when he beheld the morning in the east,

Shot from the heights of Enitharmon,
And in the vineyards of red France appear'd the light of his fury.

The sun glow'd fiery red;
The furious terrors flew around;
On golden chariots raging, with red wheels dropping with blood;
The Lions lash their wrathful tails;
The Tigers couch upon the prey & suck the ruddy tide;
And Enitharmon groans & cries in anguish and dismay.

Then Lo! arose his head he roard in snaky thunders clad:
And with a cry that shook all nature to the utmost pole,
Call'd all his sons to the strife of blood.
