

Wiki4MediaFreedom edit-a-thon

A collaborative editing "marathon" aimed at boosting the availability of accurate knowledge on media freedom in Wikipedia, the largest open encyclopedia worldwide

Belgrade, Impact Hub, Gallery Room (Makedonska 21)
21st November 2016 | h 10:00am – 4:00pm

The Wiki4MediaFreedom edit-a-thon will gather media freedom activists, journalists, media experts and the community of Wikipedia editors who will work together on articles related to some of the most concerning issues affecting the media systems in Europe today, such as transparency of media ownership, media concentration, access to public information, censorship and self-censorship. Particular attention will be given to the situation in Serbia and in other South-East European countries.

The edit-a-thon is part of the Wiki4MediaFreedom initiative aiming at boosting the availability of accurate knowledge on media freedom and pluralism in Europe on Wikipedia, resulting in open-access, freely reusable quality contents for the wider public in multiple languages.

Wiki4MediaFreedom is realised in the frame of the project European Centre for Press and Media Freedom, co-founded by the European Commission.
