

EXCERPTS OF THE FIRM ESTABLISHMENT OF
"MANCHURIA FOR MANCHURIANS"

Iwano, MATSUI

4th Paragraph

In my opinion, we can never hope for the true collaboration between Japan and Manchoukuo, unless we deal with Manchoukuo in a spirit of broad-mindedness which will accelerate the voluntary and independent development of Manchoukuo. Unless the true collaboration between these two countries is soon realized, the administration based upon Greater Asia Principle will come to naught in the end. The Japan-Manchoukuo collaboration does not mean for the Japanese to interfere with Manchoukuo arbitrarily. It means, however, for these two countries to co-operate with each other for the attainment of their common aim with a mutual high regard for its voluntary independence. The more we value its independence, the more strongly united these two countries will be. The completion of administration, the development of industry, or the improvement of culture, and the execution of the foreign policy must be furthered and accelerated by Japanese people's effort for becoming true members of the new Manchoukuo State itself, its same flesh and blood, or its cells. The means of promoting the independent activities of Manchoukuo and Manchurians by narrowing, limiting, or gradually removing the administrative activities which are under the Japanese Empire's direct control and the privileged positions which have been occupied by the Japanese who have not become Manchurians, is to be considered with the exception of the military matters which have been provided in the Japan-Manchoukuo protocol. In short, deep considerations must be given by Japanese government and people in regard to the matter of strengthening and thorough spreading of the idea 'Manchurians themselves'. Furthermore, it is needless to say that we do not mean here Manchurians by the former Chinese. We do not point out, by the word, Manchurians, only the Manchurian and Mongolian tribes who have originally resided. We mean by then the Manchurian subjects who included Japanese, Koreans, and Russians who have been living in that country together with the above tribes. The continental development of the Japanese nation can be put into effect only after the Japanese residents there should devote themselves to Manchoukuo as the true Manchoukuo subjects and also with this country as their new state of Manchoukuo.
