FRANCIS PRESTON VENABLE

UPON assuming the taxing duties of the presidency of this institution in 1900, the distinguished scholar to whom this volume is fittingly dedicated, bodied an image of the University in words eloquent of the ideals which have animated him in its direction:

"A shining light in the darkness, clearly and patiently directing the course of those who would travel the pathway to knowledge and the higher life; a center of gracious and helpful influence streaming out into the whole land; a strong foundation unmoved by frenzied passion, by the shifting sands of political change, by the bigotry of ignorance, or the selfish bias of wealth; a treasure which cannot be bought or sold away from the people, by whom and for whom it was created; a loving mother of many noble sons, whom it is her pride to help and nourish and lead upwards to the light."

The son of a father, distinguished like himself for scientific attainment and executive skill, Colonel Charles S. Venable, Aide to General R. E. Lee in the Confederate Army, Professor of Mathematics in the University of Virginia and sometime Chairman of the Faculty, he was born in Prince Edward County, Va., November 17, 1856. Shortly after his graduation from the University of Virginia in 1877, he exhibited that inclination to the study of science which has marked his entire career. Following a year's work of graduate study at his Alma Mater in chemistry, natural philosophy, and mineralogy, he pursued studies in chemistry abroad at Bonn, at Gottingen, where he received the degrees of M.A. and Ph.D., and later at Berlin.

At the age of twenty-three, while still a student at Bonn, he was called to take charge of the school of chemistry at this university which then boasted a faculty of only seven professors, two instructors, and some one hundred and fifty students. During the two decades of his service in this capacity, he built up, through the sheer force of personality and the volume and excellence of creative contributions to science, the strongest department of chemistry in any Southern university. During this period he published more than three score papers in the chief scientific journals; and won high repute for his published books—Qualitative Analysis, Short History of Chemistry, The History of the Periodic Law, with which his name is particularly associated, Inorganic Chemistry According to the Periodic Law (in conjunction with Professor J. L. Howe), and A Study of the Atom. Recognition of his contributions to science in the field of chemistry came in the form of elections to various high posts in scientific societies—in this country and abroad. Successively Councilor of the American Chemical Society, fellow of the London Chemical Society and the American Association for the Advancement of Science, member of the Deutsche Chemische Gesellschaft and the American Philosophical Society, he was in 1905 elected to the post of highest honor in his profession in this country, President of the

1916—UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA—1916

American Chemical Society. High honorary degrees,—notably Doctor of Laws by the University of Pennsylvania and Doctor of Science by Lafayette, among others,—were conferred upon him in recognition of his eminence as scientist.

As the successor of Dr. Alderman, he was unanimously elected to the presidency of this University on May 5, 1900. It was self-confessedly from a sense of a higher call for service that he gave up his life work to undertake the less congenial duties of the presidency. During the fourteen years of his incumbency as president, he saw grow and rise to splendid proportions the University to the upbuilding of which he had dedicated himself. Endowed with natural ability as an organizer, a confirmed believer in the efficiency which connotes scholarship, he set vigorously to work to build a memorable foundation and stable substructure for the destined greater University of the future. The material progress and numerical advance achieved during his administration indubitably wrought the transformation of the institution from a college into a university. During his administration, the number of students increased from five hundred to nine hundred, approximately; of faculty from thirty-five to eighty-seven, of buildings from ten to twenty-four; of courses offered from one hundred and eleven to three hundred and forty four. The value of the plant trebled, and the endowment was well nigh doubled. In addition to the widening of the meaning of the function of the university in a democratic state, the enlargement of its activities through the definite organization of the graduate school and schools of applied science and education, President Venable threw the weight of his influence toward the stimulation of research in the University, and in a measure throughout the entire South. It was through his efforts, aided by a faculty of high and varied abilities, that this institution came to assume a position in the forefront of American State Universities, and won an enviable reputation for the soundness and authenticity of its scholarship.

Today as the occupant of a chair of chemistry, the science which he has so genuinely furthered in America, a chair appropriately named in his honor, he gives lavishly of his genial personality and wide learning to the instruction of youth—a task to which he has already allotted the best years of a lifetime. Though young in years and young in spirit, may he realize the enviable distinction already almost achieved, of the longest term of continuous service ever rendered to this ancient and honorable institution.

ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

THE YEAR IN PERSPECTIVE

THE year 1915 will always be known in the annals of the University as the year of the inauguration of President Edward Kidder Graham. This does not mean that it was not a great year for the University in many respects, but this event eclipses the others in importance and serves as a central occasion around which the other happenings of the year may be grouped. The influence of President Graham and the spirit of the new régime were manifest in all the affairs of the year. Everywhere there was an air of optimism, a spirit of growth, and a deeper sense of college loyalty. For the first time in history the enrollment passed the thousand mark. The enlargement of the extension service, and especially the service performed to the State through the "University News Letter," have done much to link the life of the University more closely with the life of the State. The spirit of service has manifested itself among the students on the campus, and has extended itself to the Chapel Hill community, chiefly through the influence of the Y. M. C. A.

The year 1915 has also been one of great productiveness in scholarship on the part of the faculty of the University. The "Studies in Philology" has been changed from an annual to a quarterly journal and, along with the "James Sprunt Historical Publications" and the "Journal of the Elisha Mitchell Society," has given the University a high place in scholarly research. The election of Prof. Chas. H. Herty to the presidency of the American Chemical Society has again brought great honor to the University, and the recent re-election of Dr. Herty to this office comes as an unprecedented honor.

Noted lecturers during the year appeared before the faculty and students. Dr. John Dewey, of Columbia University, delivered the McNair Lectures for the year, taking as his general theme: "German Philosophy and Politics." Since, these lectures have been published in a book, which has, perhaps, created as much interest as any book in this field for the year. During the month of March Ex-president William Howard Taft delighted the members of the University with a series of lectures on "The Presidency: Its Powers, Duties, Responsibilities and Limitations." Dr. John R. Mott, the largest man in the religious world today, held a series of meetings which resulted in a permanent uplift of the campus and community.

The inaugural ceremonies were impressive and inspiring. Over one hundred colleges and universities and many of the learned societies had delegates present. A luncheon in Swain Hall, served to more than six hundred people, was one of the most interesting features of the day. The leading addresses were delivered by President Frank J. Goodnow, of Johns Hopkins, President Edwin A. Alderman, of Virginia, and President George H. Denny, of Alabama. President Lowell, of Harvard, was to be present, but was prevented at the last moment from coming. Many noted men of the State, including Governor Locke Craig, Secretary Josephus Daniels, and Justices of the Supreme Court were also present and took part in the ceremonies. President Graham, in his usual charming style, discussed the place and purpose of education in a democracy, his theme being "Education in Service."

The English Poet, Alfred Noyes, visited the "Hill" in November, and for the second time charmed the students with readings from his own poems. Prof. Benjamin Sledd, of Wake Forest, also gave an interesting lecture during the fall on his experiences abroad in war-time.

The High School Debating Union brought to Chapel Hill in April the largest number of debaters in its history. The final contest for the Aycock Cup, held in Memorial Hall, was unusually interesting, two young ladies from Wilson High School, Misses Lalla Rookh Fleming and Ethel Gardner, winning the coveted honor.

The fall of 1915 has enrolled the largest number of students, with a registration of 1123 in the first term. All the activities of the University have undergone a similar expansion. Extra-curriculum activities, such as the Dramatic Club, Glee Club and Orchestra, have given performances with credit, both in Chapel Hill and throughout the State.

The handsome stadium, given by Colonel Isaac Emerson, of Baltimore, to the University, was completed in the late fall. The field has been carefully graded, a cinder track constructed, and, in fact, everything has been done to give Carolina one of the best athletic fields in the country. The spring games of baseball will first open this field for use.

The library has grown greatly during the year, some 3500 volumes having been added. More than 600 periodicals are now received. The scholarly life among the students has been stimulated in many new ways. Honors courses, or Reading for Honors, have been introduced to encourage spontaneous reading and study on the part of good students. A fine esprit de corps has been established among the students, and a deeper loyalty to Alma Mater.

SENIOR CLASS POEM, '16

Comrades, we ride today from Camelot—
Our Camelot, builded ethereal, fair,
Body of our hopes; our hearts' own wild desire;
Scene of our happy joustings, where through toil,
We struggled to learn the knightly art,
And forged bonds that hold across the world;
City of our hearts, rising like a dream
From ivied walls, towering oaks,
Hills, and murmuring stream.
We leave you, Camelot, and like the mist
That vanishes away in the morning sun,
The airy towers vanish as we part,
Save that in each heart thy form is fixed;
Save that the ivy walls and crowned hills remain
For others to build on their bodied dreams,
But we must ride away.
Up from the valley—up o'er the hills—
A trumpet call, a shimmering gleam,
The quest!—the quest!—to prove for us our aims,
To seek anew the Grail.
Burst is the chrysalis, we would not linger
Its vesture to finger in idle tears.
We ride! We ride—eager for the fight,
Mindful of our trusts to be good Knights and true,
Our bond that holds throughout the years
Through toils that try the stoutest heart
To love the hearts that speed us,
The hands that trained our hands in might,
To brave through the tasks that face us,
We ride, Comrades, to the fight.

Age 24 Weight 170 Height 5 feet 11 inches

All hail to the senior of the treasury, i e. he is treasurer; there is no treasury. A. V. is a man who gives proof of true greatness of moderat.ion. With the composure of a workman tha will not be ashamed, he has lived and worked with us, and can be counted on as a public spirited citizen of the campus.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN AULD
Baltimore, Md.

Age 23 Weight 145 Height 5 feet 9 inches

Freshman English Prize; Editor-in-Chief Magazine, Spring Term; Phi Society (4); Σ Υ; Φ Β Κ.

We have been knowing "Ben" now for four years and haven't found any bad habit in him yet. He dotes on Horace's Philosophy and on literature. Though you wouldn't think it, they say he's "who" with the ladies and that he's only waiting for his sheepskin before he—guess the rest. B. F. is a good all-round man and has the best wishes of the entire class.

WILLIAM JONATHAN CAPEHART
Roxobel, N. C.

Age 19 Weight 128 Height 5 feet 8½ inches

Oak Ridge Club; Phi Society; Tennis Association; Varsity Tennis Team (4); Κ Α.

It took William a good while to mature, for he was in short trousers when he arrived. But he aged in wood, took lots of good medicine (ask him for his pet variety!), and in his Senior year assumed dignity and composure. He is a king on a tennis court, where he spent most of his afternoons, and was runner up in his third year, and champion of the University in his fourth.

LAWRENCE CORBIN BARBER
Asheville, N. C.

Age 23 Weight 140 Height 5 feet 10  $\frac{1}{2}$  inches

Chemical Journal Club; Buncombe County Club; Band (1, 2, 3, 4); President Band Association (3); Assistant in Chemistry (3, 4); German Club;  $\Phi \Delta \Theta$ .

For four years "Larry" has aspired to be a second Jimmie Bell, but now, having used up many liters of chemicals (including some  $C_2H_5OH$ ), he has about decided that he wants to settle down. He has had a "sneaky feelin'" once or twice before, but managed to live it down after a trip to Florida.

With his past experience as a Chemist in Brunswick, Ga., Canton, N. C., and as assistant in the Lab. at Carolina, we predict a great future for him, if his scientific propensities are not hampered by his strong romantic tendency. Larry is a good hand with the women (though jealous ones claim that this is because of his reputation as an expensive present giver and "good time" shower). Besides this he can work when he wants to.

HOKE BARRYMORE BLACK
Greenville, S. C.

Age 21 Weight 145 Height 5 feet 9 inches

Freshman Debater; Di Society; Y. M. C. A.; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet (3); President South Carolina Club (2) and (4); Tennis Association; Commencement Marshal; Assistant Manager Baseball; Varsity Manager Baseball; Amphoterothern; German Club;  $\Lambda \tau \Omega$ .

Hoke Black first made himself known as a contestant in the Di Society's 1912 Freshman Debate. It was either on this occasion or very shortly afterward that Hoke publicly advocated pacifism. Since then his attachment to Mr. Bryan's policies has become so sincere that he is looked upon in the University as arbitration's chief exponent. Together with the ex-Secretary, Hoke is ambitious and occupies a position in politics. Between platform engagements he busies himself sufficiently with his books to stand well in his classes. On no occasion is he too much engaged, however, to greet a passer-by with some pleasant word.

JAMES CORNARO BLAINE
Franklin, N. C.

Age 23 Weight 136 Height 5 feet 9 inches

Di Society; Macon County Club; Y. M. C. A.;
Assistant in Library.

"J. C.," usually but unreasonably, known as "Mary," is the enduring and sympathetic friend of every one. Industry, wit, and cheerfulness are the treasures of this rich classmate. May his investments yield large incomes.

HERBERT VICTOR BAILEY
Neuse, N. C.

Age 25 Weight 155 Height 6 feet

Phi Society; Wake County Club; Y. M. C. A.

"Vic" is another of those unsanctified inhabitants of the Y. M. C. A. tenement. If industry, cheerfulness, and sympathy could be measured with a tape measure, he would have to pay a whale of a tailor's bill.

EDWIN BROWNING BORDEN, Jr.
Goldsboro, N. C.

Age 21 Weight 155 Height 5 feet 10 inches

Wayne County Club; German Club; Leader Gorgon's Head Dance (4); Coop; Gorgon's Head; K. A.

"Pres" was imported from V. M. I. and entered school as Junior. He was straightway taken into several organizations, and among other things was elected president of the Corn Club, (the requisites for membership are absolutely secret among the few members and always carefully concealed!). Things haven't worried him very much, for he has taken all pretty easily. Guitaring and glee clubbing came as a kind of imposition in his Senior year. His happiest days were those when the Hill was decorated with fine feathered birds and the nights consumed in dance and phantasy.

HUBERT MORSE BLALOCK
Raleigh, N. C.

Age 21 Weight 150 Height 6 feet 1 inch

Dramatic Club (2); Secretary-Treasurer Wake County Club (3); Class Football Team (3); Representative in State Peace Contest (3); Junior Orator (3); Winner of Carr Medal (3); Commencement Debater (3); Graduate Student at the Johns Hopkins University, 1915-'16; Hopkins-Carolina-Virginia Debater, '16; Phi Society; Satyr; T. K. A.

Hubert entered with the class of 1916 before he obtained a high school diploma, and after a year's obscurity he emerged in our Sophomore year a leader of his class. He is one of the best of students, as is evinced by the fact that he completed his Bachelor's course in three years. Compelling in oratory, persuasive in forensics, affable in manner, we find in Hubert a happy synthesis of the best qualities of a discriminating aesthete, a born gentleman and a true scholar.

ROBERT THOMAS BRYAN, Jr.
Shanghai, China

Age 22 Weight 140 Height 5 feet 8 inches

University Southern California; Junior Orator; Junior Banquet Speaker; Y. M. C. A.; Phi Society; Assistant Law Librarian; Candidate for LL.B.; Attorney at Law; II K  $\Phi$ .

"Bob" is truly a typical barrister. He possesses a unique talent and voluminous desire to argue, and will engage any one, any time, upon any subject. "Bob" always manoeuvres so as to place the burden of proof on his adversary, keeping always himself on the defense. Even though out-argued, Bob never has yet given up. It is always a "distinction without a difference" with him. The title role of "Bull Artist" was given Bob when he first came amongst us, and he holds it triumphantly still. However, notwithstanding all of Bob's mishaps, we wish him great success, and predict that some day he will bob up a big lawyer.

FRANCIS FOSTER BRADSHAW

Age 22 Weight 155 Height 5 feet 10½ inches

Y. M. C. A.; Di Society; Tennis Association; Orange County Club (2, 3); President (2); North Carolina Club (3); Assistant Business Manager Tar Heel (3); Vice-President Class (3); Greater Council (3); Eben Alexander Greek Prize (3); Virginia-Hopkins Debate; Business Manager Tar Heel (4); Class President (4); Y. "He is such a kid, but I like him," says Mrs. Jones of Infirmary fame. Yes, we all like him, because he is a healthy combination of ability and loveableness. He is given to long, Puritanical moralizings as culture for his soul, but he bubbles over in spite of them all. Reason, he says, rules the universe. He persecutes his body with all sorts of fantastic exercises, and rejoices at a bad cold as another opportunity to experiment with remedies. He goes into raptures over the dissection of a fishing worm, and then revels in the expanse of cosmic reasoning.

A. T. is the latest of the Mohicans. He said he would do it and he "done" it, but we still stand by him—though he is no longer alone. When "Cas" marries industry to his wit, success will be a "pud."

W. Borden Cobb is a thoroughly likeable fellow who has never taken studying seriously because he never had to. Being unlucky on first Math. ruined him for Phi Beta Kappa, but ever since he has drifted along with "1's" and "2's" in a most unconcerned manner. Borden specialized in Geology under his Cousin Collier, but is still interested in other things than fossils and dinosaurs. For Borden is quite a genius at the social stun and has had many and varied experiences with ladies who afterward married. Along with his ever-present smile, grace and courtesy, Borden has been one of our best dancers, and through his college life has held to the cleanest standards and highest ideals. Whatever his life work he dreams of a "bungalow for two."

From the mountains of Buncombe to the triassic sea of Orange is a considerable jump for any one; but "Zeke" Cowan did it, and proved his adaptability to climate and locality by thriving in Chapel Hill. He brought with him certain qualities which enabled him to make the transition successfully—high character, even-tempered geniality, naturalness, good judgment, and a certain picturesqueness of expression, together with feet which have displayed their agility in basketball and class football, as well as the dance. To some extent he is a practitioner of the Laissez-Faire policy and an advocate of the languages as opposed to science. Wherever he may settle he will be liked.

GEORGE HERMAN COOPER
China Grove, N. C.

Age 21    Weight 150    Height 5 feet 9 inches

Y. M. C. A.; North Carolina Club; Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society; Murphey Club (Educational); Rowan County Club; Tennis Association; Class Baseball; First two years at Roanoke College.

He has been with us only two years. We forgive his former mistake because of his noble attempt to retrieve it. He has entered heartily into our life here, and we regret that he did not arrive sooner.

OSBORNE LEROUX GOFORTH
Durham, N. C.

Age 24    Weight 165    Height 6 feet 2½ inches

Di Society; Y. M. C. A.; Durham County Club; Tennis Association; Freshman Debate; North Carolina Club; Benedict; B Φ.

We've always wondered how one man could engage in a half dozen business enterprises and still find time enough to attend a few classes. But this is what Osborne Leroux has done. Business man and student in one seems to prosper in both. He's bound to succeed in life.

RUSH FLOYD CROUSE
Sparta, N. C.

Age 23 Weight 145 Height 5 feet 8 inches

Di Society; Y. M. C. A.; President A. W. A. Club (4); Y. M. C. A. Cabinet (4); Class Secretary (3); Greater Council (4); Freshman Debate; Soph-Junior Debate (3); Junior Debate (3).

"Floyd," a philosopher from the mountains, one of Horace's pets, and therefore an influential man on the campus. He is one of our best debaters and a hard working student. In his Junior year he passed off twenty-four hours of work, made two inter-society debates and won them. Floyd is always ready to give his opinion about anything, and then is able to support it. He takes an active part in all college activities, and looks after all sides of life, moral, mental, and physical. He is an all-round man and will still keep climbing.

CHARLIE RUFUS DANIEL

Age 21 Weight 160 Height 5 feet 8 inches

Football Squad (3, 4); Baseball Squad (3); Y. M. C. A.; Phi Society; German Club; Coach of Class Football Teams (3); Coop; Gimgoul; K. A.

Daniel—well, he has made us think better of Wake Forest than we ever did before, because he came from there, and is a very pleasant sort of a gentleman. He showed how he stood morally, when he told the Athletic Committee that he had received a right good salary for playing summer baseball—we admire him for that. Charlie enjoyed popularity in many ways—as class football coach, a good athlete, a fine fellow—and, when the dances come off, doesn't seem to be put aside in the least (see Randolph-Macon Women's School Catalogue).

DOUGLAS BEAMAN DARDEN
Fremont, N. C.

Age 21 Weight 145 Height 5 feet 11 inches

Phi Society; German Club; Y. M. C. A.; Σ X.

"Doug" has made in his four year's stay here as many true, genuine friends as anybody in the class. He is quiet and not very self-assertive, but if you dig beneath the crust you will find him a corking good fellow. He is one of the few chaps who ever had a boot on Johnny Booker.

FRED HYAMS DEATON

JAMES GILLESPIE DICKSON
Raeford, N. C.

Age 22 Weight 160 Height 5 feet 10 inches

As a matter of fact Dickson was scheduled to get his sheepskin with his fellow-classmates of 1915; but he tried a little experience in the world and then came back to the Hill to join 1916. We don't see much of Dickson—for a man who sticks to close, steady work and who takes life rather seriously doesn't spend much time loafing. Dickson does his work well and displays a perseverance and sincere interest in his work that spell the qualities of a successful man.

CHARLES NELSON DOBBINS
Yadkinville, N. C.

Age 21 Weight 158 Height 5 feet 10  $\frac{1}{2}$  inches

Yadkin County Club; Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society; Geological Journal Club.

"Dob" is a diamond in the rough. It has taken him four years to find out that he could have made Phi Beta Kappa. Never mind, he will make 1's and 2's out in life, and that's more than the most of us will do. As a self-helping and self-respecting student and jolly companion, this classmate has been a companion to us all.

"Jo," alias "Di," is one of the unassuming "big" men of the class. Big in body, big in character, and big in heart, he fills a big place in the life of the campus and in the heart of each of us. With strength, gentleness, and unselfishness, he is truly a gentleman. May he always have friends as true as himself.

LEE HENRY EDWARDS
Holly Springs, N. C.

Y. M. C. A.; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet (3, 4); Phi Society; Wake County Club; Student Council; Greater Council; Assistant in Physics (3, 4).

"Lee," the patriarch of the Freshmen, is also the old reliable of the whole campus. He has "done" everything in college from the measles to the boarding houses. He is one of the stoutest pillars of the Y. M. C. A., and an untiring guide of the erring ones in Physics I lab. Lee has that faithfulness and sincerity which will make a place for him in the hearts of all, and his will be the joy of whole-souled service.

GRAHAM BURWELL EDGERTON
Louisburg, N. C.

Age 22 Weight 140 Height 5 feet 11 inches

Y. M. C. A.; Tennis Association; Secretary Franklin County Club; German Club; Chemical Club; Journal Club; Trinity Club; Manager of Yackety Yack;  $\Phi \Delta \Omega$ .

"Prof.," after a year at Trinity, decided to give up college, so he taught school somewhere in the backwoods long enough to acquire his nickname and to decide that teaching was not his life work. He then came to Carolina, where he haunted the Chemistry building for two years before concluding that he was eminently fitted for a business man. We believe his last diagnosis of his talents to be the correct one, for he squeezes a dollar until the eagle screams for mercy. Prof. is not tight, though, and his efficient management of this book foretells his success in his chosen occupation.

FRANCIS OSBORNE CLARKSON
Charlotte, N. C.

Age 20 Weight 128 Height 5 feet 5 inches

"Hecuba, fairest of the daughters of Iliad," "Heck" for short, might be the favorite subject of encomium. To us who know him, however, all that we would like to say would be superfluous; to a stranger it would sound extravagant. His sincerity of purpose and purity of character have sweetened the life of the entire campus, and in the heart of every one who knows him he has a "non-refillable" corner.

CLYDE LATHROP FORE

Clyde is a man who has found that the best way to pass four years of C. E. and all the Math., etc., appertaining therunto is to stick steadily to it. But, with Math. out of his way, there is not a more jolly or agreeable companion to be found. He has fallen for the ladies very suddenly several times, but very soon forgot all about them. We expect to see Clyde some day as a leader in bridge-building and a good road constructor.

FRANK HODGES COOPER

Washington, N. C.

Age 21    Weight 155    Height 6 feet

Beaufort County Club (1, 2), President (3); Phi Society; Assistant in Library (2, 3, 4); Editor Magazine (4); Assistant Business Manager Tar Heel (3); Class Treasurer (3); Class Football (3, 4); Y. M. C. A.; International Polity Club; Colonial Dames Prize 1915 (3); Historical Society; Commencement Marshal 1915.

We expect Frank's enterprise and boldness of thought and expression to carry him far in his chosen field. He has developed his natural ability by a heavy course of work in spite of the demands of the Library and his other outside work. Frank has ability and energy.

WALTER LEON GOLDSTON, Jr.

Age 21 Weight 140 Height 5 feet 9  $\frac{1}{2}$  inches

He is one of those rare individuals who are happy to attend diligently to their own business. He may be seen regularly going to an early breakfast, from an earlier lab., and is rarely seen outside that workshop unless he calls on you for your shoes. His is a life of cheerful, unfaltering persistence, and this will be the reward thereof—success and a consciousness of work well done.

SEDDON GOODE, Jr.

Age 22 Weight 160 Height 6 feet 1 inch

Coming to us from Wake Forest to join 1916 in his Junior year, Sed soon ran up against "Feet" Norris, and he has been with him ever since. Sed takes law, but this does not prevent him from finding time to run over to Durham occasionally. He is frank, good-natured, and can't fail to have friends wherever he goes.

JAMES ARCHIBALD HARDISON, Jr.
Wadesboro, N. C.

Age 19 Weight 152 Height 5 feet 9½ inches

Class Baseball (1); Varsity Baseball (2, 3); Class Football (4); German Club; Associate Editor Yackety Yack; Coop; K Σ.

Jim has caused many people to think of himself and nails simultaneously, but closer friends have found that he is not so bad as that. An unruffled countenance and an unruffled voice when about the campus are really disguises. Jim played baseball a couple of years (an art inherited probably from his roommate, Jim Leak), attended most of his classes, made lots of friends, and passed four happy years among his kind—the boys.

JAMES FRANK HACKLER
Sparta, N. C.

Age 21 Weight 150 Height 5 feet 7½ inches

Di Society; Y. M. C. "Hack," the only original aborigine of the Blue Ridge, is something of a live wire, as is shown by his various activities in every phase of college life. His hobbies are politics and "bull." He is an all-round fellow, a "good egg," and liked by every one. We predict for him at least a judgeship in his chosen profession of law.

JAMES LEFTWICH HARRISON
Raleigh, N. C.

Age 20 Weight 156 Height 5 feet 11 inches

Wake County Club; Phi Society; Y. M. C. A.; Assistant Manager Dramatic Club (3); Manager (4); Class Track Team (1, 2, 3, 4); Captain of Class Track (2, 3); Class Football (4); Class Basketball (4); Commencement Marshal; Varsity Track (1, 2, 3, 4); Satyr; German Club; Ω Δ; Δ K E.

Jimmy is a serious, nice looking boy, who works rather hard for what he gets. He chased an elusive N. C. on the track for three years. He displayed his histrionic talent in "Arms and the Man," and proved his managerial ability by taking the cast of "The Witching Hour" through a successful season. He is a good dancer, a conscientious, clean youth, and a gentleman.

LESLIE JAMES FARMER
Wilson, N. C.

Age 23 Weight 140 Height 5 feet 9 inches

Wilson County Club; Chemical Journal Club; Tennis Association; Λ X Σ.

Leslie J. Farmer, answers to Bill, Dill, or "L. J." A man of few words, but a man who says more in his few words than others do in many. He has become a fixture in the Chemistry laboratory, and thrives on the fumes of chemicals. He is one of the few who can mix chemical formulas with English literature successfully. "Dill" is horribly fond of musical comedies.

HUGH BRYAN HESTER
Hester, N. C.

Age 20 Weight 135 Height 5 feet 7 inches

Phi Society; Junior Orator; Manager Class Baseball (2, 3); Class Football (3); Manager Senior Stunt; Manager of Yackety Yack (4); President Oak Ridge Club (4); Class Baseball (1, 2, 3); Amphoterthen; German Club; Banquet Speaker (3); President Granville County Club (3); International Polity Club (4).

Although a light-weight physically, Hugh tips the scales of intellectuality and fine fellowship. An orator of considerable fame, he is the delight of every class smoker and banquet, where his apt repartee has branded him as a college wit. Once during his Freshman year, Hugh forgot himself and studied quite diligently. Since then, however, he has adjusted himself better to college life—makes good grades but never lets work interfere with his college activities. He manages the Yackety Yack, runs the Phi Society, and for a diversion, manages the Senior Football team and takes a weekly trip to Durham. One of the best eggs in college, Hugh makes friends of all he meets and keeps them with consummate grace.

Here is the scholar of the class. Yet withal he is rather a man devoted to scholarship. The Y. M. C. A., the literary society, and the University Magazine have all moved through his versatile interest and intense application. A disciple of the Renaissance, Robert's most essential quality is humanity, which shines from his face with all the intensity of the intense life within. He gives perpetual testimony to the fundamental soundness of life and can be counted on to inject wholesome sanity into any situation. Happy is the man who can be scholar, financier, poet, debater, and writer, and still be an intense man. All this is Robert.

“Glenn” is a devoted citizen of Orange County. With the aid of a bicycle he has attended the University without ever leaving home. This, however, has not prevented him from making his place on the campus, on the track, and on the football field.

If there ever was a good boy in these United States, Roy must be a brother to him. One of the finest hearts and two of the most pleasant dispositions we have ever known reside in the Roy Home-wood—an All-Southern end and a holder of the Carolina record for the hammer throw. He has raised so much hell at times in the South building that the devil has dreamed of deposition, impeachment, and things like that. He is 170 pounds of energy, determination, and agreeableness, put together in a Cadillac-eight combination.

JOHN MANNING HUSKE

Johnny, in his day, was a king on the class football or baseball field. For four years he was a mercury-vapor arc light in football of the class circles. Almost an exile during his last two years while he roomed and ate away from the campus, he deprived us of some pleasant company. But steady habits and jovial relations kept him in our hearts and minds until the final day when he, like us, could see only a white piece of sheepskin—but, Johnny, boy, we've a few more years yet on this earth, and we'll all be sticking together pretty close.

If he says he will do a thing he will do it. He walks squarely with one foot exactly before the other. Calmness and decision rest on his brow even in the midst of turmoil. Don't be alarmed at the solemnity of his brow; he is just a kid in spite of himself. Withal he is true blue.

Di Society; Secretary Buncombe County Club (3), President (4); Y. M. C. A. (1); Assistant Business Manager University Magazine (3), Business Manager (4); International Polity Club.

Heavy entrance conditions and First Math. early brought out "Tank's" fighting qualities and showed his everlasting determination to stick to the job. He won over those handicaps, and, also, has the distinctive honor of working every cent of his way through college. Wade also showed his ability as a student by making "2's" in his Senior year. '16 expects to hear from him.

"Brother Hobbs" is another late arrival. His innate shyness and modesty have prevented us from knowing him as well as we would have desired. From what we know, however, we can recommend him as a model of courtesy and industry.

Age 21 Weight 140 Height 5 feet 10  $\frac{1}{2}$  inches

There is not a member of 1916 who has a more cosmopolitan turn of mind than Herschel. His extensive reading in many fields of literature, coupled with his ability to master subjects, have in him produced a genuine scholar of whom the class is proud. His information is extensive and valuable, and his keen perception and accurate judgment of men make him a most intelligent appreciator of the subtleties of life. He is a man whose stay on the Carolina campus will not be forgotten soon, for he is the sort of chap who in future years will be a constructive force in whatever community he may live. He will be what the world calls a success, too.

"Mac" has made a creditable record in spite of his short stature and hyperbola legs. As Junior President and third baseman on the 'Varsity we can easily recall this Kinston king. He was always busy—perhaps he was ambitious. At any rate there were lots of things—class football, Tar Heel, Yackety Yack, and others—which felt the influence of friend Mac. Since this is a place for criticism as well as praise, here goes: Mac, old scout, don't you ever get off any more of those college puns! Stay with 'em boy, and make 'em hit every time.

THOMAS ATKINSON JONES, Jr.

Tom really ought to have graduated with '13, but he fell from grace at the end of the Freshman year, and did not return to college the following fall. The loss is all on the side of '13, for Tom is one of the best fellows on the roster of '16. He is a gentleman of varied interests, and his literary ability has been recognized. Tom is the sort of chap that will swim on top wherever he goes, and we wish for him the best of luck.

They called him "John Haywood" until he got here, and then we changed it to "Johnny." He can pass all his work without cracking a book, but missed getting his N. C. after four years of hard work. He has a genial smile, a pleasing personality, and consequently plenty of friends, tho some say he is hard to know. He keeps his room as neat as a pin, admires the ladies, and is one of the handsomest men in the class.

"Bill" Joyner is another of these individuals who may be caught early in the morning or late at night going to or returning from "lab." But this habit has not prevented his representing his class in athletics. Speed and endurance belong to few, and happy is he who possesses both. Bill will deserve all the success he gets.

"J. A. K.," the long man of the Senior class, always puts people in a good humor when he's around. We don't know whether it is what he says or the way he says it, but he always manages to make his cheerful nature felt by others. J. A. spends his time in various ways—studying and attending the Di Society being two of his usual occupations.

“Bill” is a good Florida man who is also a good Carolina man. He often gets large boxes from his sunny state, and then there is general rejoicing through the Carr Barn. “Tom” was one of the first members of 1916 to acquire prominence on the University campus. Even as a Freshman there was a glamour of romance surrounding him, for Tom had been abroad—England, France, Italy—he had taken them all in. He has always been one of the class's strong men. Possessed of a literary nature, he early turned his attention to the literary side of college life. As Associate Editor, Managing Editor, and Editor-in-Chief of the Tar Heel, he has had ample opportunity to demonstrate his ability as a writer and a thinker. An exponent of culture, a man immovable in his convictions, and a Chesterfield in his manners, we honor the president of our Sophomore year.

“Meb” Long can do more things better than anybody else in college. Whether it be a football, basketball, accordion, guitar, examination, or a freezer of ice cream, he can handle it so as to excite admiration. Yet in all his activities has Meb ever considered anything more important than studying, and is, consequently, a member of Phi Beta Kappa. It is because there are combined in him such high qualities of character, scholarship and sportsmanship that he is one of the most admired and best liked men in college.

Behold here is another of those early birds. "Maggie" talks fast, thinks fast, works fast, and thus succeeds in graduating ahead of time. Apparently his ambition is to be a scholar and a gentleman. We can testify that he bids fair to achieve both.

"Fatty" Cowell rightfully called him "Pee Wee." We call him "Kenetts," "Admiral," or "Lovey." Each speaks volumes of his many friends. An A.B. was not enough for him in four years, so in his Senior year he took medicine. The height of Eagle Tower does not measure his ambitions. Watch "Admiral." Although of diminutive stature, he has great capabilities.

Feet? Somebody said if Feet ever died standing up they would never get him down. But Feet, boy, don't let your feet worry you; it is the little things that count! Feet played class football, substituted for the Varsity nine, and enjoyed lots of chin-music with his classmates, but the climax of his career was the managership of the football team. Financial worry caused him to grow long and slim (contrast Charlie Woolen). Wisconsin? But that is not his fault. He's down from the Alligator State. And, old fellow, if the alligators ever begin to prefer light meat to dark meat, there'll be a welcome waiting you in this Carolina of ours.

Give "Bob" a guitar and a male audience (exceptions at times of course), and it is just like putting a nickel in the slot. You could spend a few of the most pleasant hours of your life listening to a few of his unique songs. Page is a bunch of concentrated fun when he is feeling good naturally, and when he is feeling good artificially he is a joy-stick of dynamite with nitroglycerine trimmings—"Hein, esh down street!" He studies on the second Friday of each month, passes his work, and enjoys life pretty healthy. Bob played some right good class basketball and tennis—plays by moods somewhat. Newt has had as much fun as any man in college; and has yet to be asked to leave school for failure in his work.

J. Merrill Parker, genuine athlete, uncompromising Christian and true friend. In any of these fields he could "back up a line." For three years Merrill played fullback for Carolina, and it was agreed by all that he could back up a line better than any fullback of recent years. Although hailing from Alligator Land there could be found no man who was more loyal to Carolina, who played harder for the game and the team and less for personal glory.

As President of the Y. M. C. A. Merrill could run interference for a campaign and call signals that spoke of progress. As head of the Christian work on the campus there wasn't one who could say that he was not backing up this line, too.

David Thomas Tayloe, better known as "Cap'n Dave," twice elected captain of the football team,—his name synonymous with "Football." Beginning in such a disastrous year as the classic "66 to 0" he has been reducing the Thanksgiving score every year. "Dave" went through Georgia in his Junior year like Sherman, and made the Georgians feel about Tayloe as Sherman did about war. He easily made All-Southern and was the hero of Atlanta for a year.

"Dave" has been a popular captain with a host of friends, and is now trying to learn to call signals out of a pharmacopeia, and has gone into opening up human anatomy in a more detailed way than was afforded on the gridiron. An athlete of unusual ability, "Dave" has made proud history for Carolina, and she honors his name.

This classmate blew in four years ago from the Raleigh High School. While a mere high school lad he learned to recite Shakespeare's Macbeth backwards, under the brilliant tutelage of Frank Graham, and since his entrance into the University he has made good in all of his work. The strenuousness of second year Medicine has not been very hard on him, for he gets away with it in easy fashion—and the fact that he does is only an index to his capacity as a worker.

His excellent general knowledge and his interest in all things worth while make him an interesting companion. He enjoys the reputation of being one of the literary lights of the campus, and has in his college career acquired a well-rounded, scholarly education. Two years on the class football field, a summer in the wheat fields of Kansas, and "Claib" became a full-fledged member of the Varsity squad. "Claib" takes football as seriously as he does his class work. In fact he puts everything he's got into everything he takes up. He was class treasurer in his Sophomore year, and succeeded so well that the class would have elected him Senior treasurer but for his refusing to take that coveted office again. Notwithstanding his serious mien, "Claib" has a smile and a pleasant word for everybody and is, in reality, one of the most popular men on the campus.

Sampson was a snorter in his Freshman year. You should have seen him. But three years brought him back (as was the case with all of us) a prince among the Seniors! And his life as a Senior and Law Student (second title preferred) was a pleasant one. "Bev" played good short-stop with the scrubs, and later with the Junior champions; also wielded a brave tennis racket. His brain is healthy, and his body—well he ought to live to see Carolina beat Virginia. We expect to see the General's son some day holding down a job as big as he himself will probably be some day! The one incident in "Bill's" college life upon which he looks back with regret is the fact that he got a 4 on the fall term of Math. I. But just to show that he was capable of better things, Bill never made lower than 90 after Archibald's one fatal mistake; and he passed into Phi Beta Kappa near the top. But he could not be called a grind. On the contrary he has always taken an active part in class athletics, and has done much to uphold the honor of the class in football, baseball, and basketball. If grit and stick-to-it-iveness are stepping stones to success, then Bill is sure to succeed.

“Jake” is a law-abiding citizen of Goldsboro, N. C. As loco citoto is the nucleus of not infrequent remarks on Geology I, he seems to have proved the correctness of the Meteoritic hypothesis by aggregating the required number of hours in three years plus the Summer Session of 1915. Di Society: Y. M. C. A.; President South Carolina Club (3); Assistant in Zoology; German Club: B O II.

Quiet, pleasant and dignified, this product of the Palmetto State is respected by faculty and students alike. Froggy Wilson couldn't run the Zoology lab. without him. His has not been the path of glory and prominence, but rather the quiet, everyday life of a good student, a good friend and citizen. Roger is the ideal college friend—a man sober, steady, steadfast, and straight through and through.

The Seniors have only one co-ed, but she is endowed to such an extent with admirable qualities that the class feels like the proverbial rich man rather than him with half-filled coffers. Miss Watson, who is a graduate of the Normal and a teacher of marked success, could, by rights, lay greater claim to real scholarship than anybody else in the class. Attractiveness and womanly graces she possesses in greater degree than learning. Rarely has a newcomer established herself so firmly in the hearts of her class and the village as has Miss Watson within the one year that she has spent in Chapel Hill.

Hubert is one man who believes in good, steady work. He always has his work prepared, gets along well with the professors, and consequently pulls a good grade quite often. Being a student does not keep him from being a good business man. He has distinguished himself as one of the partners of the Tar Heel Tavern firm. The steady qualities he has displayed here foretell success in life.

His activities, aside from academic ones, have been concerned mainly with debating, and in that department he has always played a strong game. Politics? O, just a little. You know college elections are very interesting. Oliver has always stuck to his work pretty closely, and every one knows what part early industry plays in the latter life of a man.

"N. C." entered the class of '14, but dropped out and taught two years, and joined us in our Junior year. Since then he has been an active and prominent member of the class. "N. This enabled him in his Senior year to make himself prominent in the Law School, and to distinguish himself on the campus by becoming a "star" in Horace's philosophy. He is a genuinely good fellow. Success in life work for him is not a probability, but a certainty.

In the basement of the Alumni Building, where dynamos whirr and current can be transferred indifferently from direct to alternating, Marshall Williams is most often to be found, plotting curves or manipulating a slide rule. Marshall, together with the rest of the electrical school, will tell you that the life of an engineer is one of application. During what leisure is commensurate with the spring term of his course he plays baseball, plays with the Varsity—so well that Connie Mack has recognized in him possibilities of a league pitcher. Marshall is ambitious and has among other enviable qualities, one most essential to success, the ability to work hard.

OUR FOUR YEARS ON THE HILL

IT was late afternoon of Class Day, 1916. The sun, like a huge, round ball of fire, hung low in the western sky, and, as if wishing to prolong a perfect day, was sending out its glimmering streamers of golden light across the earth ere it slipped reluctantly behind the distant horizon. A slip of a moon, half-way across the sky, was growing brighter in the dim light of the fast fading day, impatiently awaiting its turn to charm the world of spring for a while. On the campus, now pulsing with the awakened life upon its bosom, strange scenes were being enacted! Full of life, hope, and pride, the Seniors were smoking the pipe of peace, beneath the sacred canopy of the Davie poplar. When the last smoke wreath had been spirited away by a sly summer breeze, the Seniors slowly arose and, with mingled feelings of tenderness and sadness, handed over their togas of dignity and seniority to their successors, the members of the Class of 1917.

While the last, lingering rites were being performed, which were to change them from college lads to alumni and men of the world, one Senior detached himself from the group around the poplar and, coming to the crowd of spectators, relatives and friends, standing close by, he offered his arm to a charming young woman who, as he slipped her arm through his, looked up at him with beautiful, wide-open eyes that in no way tried to conceal the pride, happiness, and unaffected tenderness lurking in their depths.

"It's about over," he said, "suppose we take a stroll around the campus. It is especially beautiful at this time of day, and if you wish, I'll tell you about the place and its charms for me."

"Oh, do!" she cried, "and tell me all that you have done here during the past four years."

"That would take too long," he replied, "and, besides, it would not be very interesting. Suppose, instead, that I tell you what we, the members of the Senior Class, have done?"

She nodded her head in assent and he began:

"Well, to go back to the very beginning, you remember what I have told you about our first arrival here. There were about two hundred and thirty-five of us who started our college careers away back there in the fall of 1912. The Sophs were rather rough on us at first, but, you know, we came just before the death knell of hazing was sounded. It was one of our number, Isaac William Rand, whose death cried out in horrible tones of shame and sorrow and put an end to hazing in the University for all time to come. No, we don't feel any rancor towards the Sophomore Class of that year. Although not many of us knew Rand—we had only been here three days—his death struck at the very heart of our sympathies, and made us cringe with horror, as well, and yet we felt that it had come about by individual lawlessness, and was not representative of the class above us or of the University. After this distressing accident we were allowed comparative freedom. Our class meetings were held with some semblance of order and freedom from outside interference, and our daily lives were allowed to proceed in their peaceful quests for Phi Beta Kappa keys and other honors much the same as though there were no Sophs on the Hill, except, of course, when it snowed. In that event, we wisely stayed in our rooms or made our passages from one building to another short and quick, stimulated in our rapid progress by countless scores of snowballs. Of course we were quite often reminded of our verdant characteristics, and we had our full quota of them.

YACKETY YACK

1916—UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA—1916

“When we came back the next year, as Sophomores, we had lost a part of our freshness and Freshman timidity, as well as about half of our former members. In spite of our thinned ranks, we carried out the usual Sophomore program—walked about the campus as though we owned it, and gave our opinions on any question at the very slightest provocation. However, we did one thing which all of us were proud of then and which we are still prouder of now—we dispensed with every vestige of the Sophs' hitherto respected and dreaded right to haze Freshmen. Even the night of our Sophomore banquet passed without any open acts of violence—something that would have been impossible a few years previous. And, having set our stamp of disapproval upon vicious frivolity, we got down to work and stuck to it for two years, which fact accounts, to a great degree, for the largeness of our class at present.

“Another vacation came and passed, and again we assembled on the Hill. This time we had shaken off the judicious pomp of Sophomore-hood, and had come back with our jaws set for a grim battle with Junior electives. We had struck the stride now, and lost ourselves for a year in rather inconspicuous but earnest endeavor. In the spring most of us came out victorious over our examinations, and went home for vacation with new class pins fastened in our waistcoats, to talk about our return to college as Seniors.

“And we did come back as Seniors seventy-five strong! We have united on this the last lap more than ever before, and this team work has accomplished much. The idea of monthly smokers was started and has been carried through with ever-increasing pleasure and success. We know each other well, and have joined hands in token of cooperation and lasting friendship, before the goal of our dreams.

“And what has 1916 contributed to Campus activities? I'll let you judge. We have turned out writers and debaters not a few, community workers almost by the score, and a whole class of solid men with a distinct and noble aim in life. Our twelve Phi Beta Kappa members rank high in their scholastic achievements, as well as in numbers, and, at least, to our interest in the highly intellectual life. We have furnished more men for the different Varsity teams, in athletics, than any other class of recent generations. During our stay here we have supplied thirteen Varsity football players, a full representation on all other teams, and five Varsity team captaincies. Some of these men have won coveted places in the University's history of athletics. Homewood, Tayloe, Parker, and Long each has a niche in our heart's hero gallery. Notwithstanding this drain upon our athletes, we have maintained class teams in all branches of athletics, which teams not infrequently came off with championship honors. We have won our track meet, taken one championship each in baseball and football, and tied up another football championship so that nobody could win it. Nor must I omit from this enumeration our college politicians. Be it understood, however, that we don't have the unscrupulous, mud-slinging kind. We have had politics enough, no doubt, but our elections have been free from all bitter factional fights. Our Freshman election resulted, as most Freshman elections do—out of a howling, unorganized convention there finally springs a president, no one knows how. Withal we did well in choosing Bryce Beard to preside over us during our period of probation and orientation. Our other three presidents were logically chosen. Tom Linn, Sophomore; Mac Lewis, Junior; and Francis Bradshaw, Senior, were all good men, well chosen, respected, and appreciated by us all.

“And now, as I look back over the four years which we have lived here, from the time when as Freshmen we met in Chapel to elect officers and choose our class colors, on through the varying stages of college life up to this the eve of our graduation, I am constrained to think that the Class of 1916 has been continually on the ‘square’ and always progressing. We have fallen into line with the new march of events the University has in recent years set in motion, and it has been our aim not only to sanction this forward movement but to add something to it. And this we have done. We have furnished many men with high ideals that have not only added something to the life of the University while they were here, but have left a legacy of true worth behind them—a spirit of helpfulness and true devotion.”

They were coming back toward the Davie poplar now, the Senior and his fair companion, and ere the last words of the narrative had been uttered, from across the moonlit campus there came to them the appealing words of the old University song, being sung ensemble for the last time by the members of the class of 1916.

Reverently the young man bared his head in the moonlight, and listened to the words which fond memory now painted and enriched with visions of a thousand glories:

Though the storms of life assail us,
Still our hearts beat true,
Nought can break the friendships formed at
Dear old N. C. U.

The young woman lightly touched his arm. "I see," she said, "that I have a rival."

"Two," he answered, "the Class of 1916, and my Alma Mater!"

JUNIOR CLASS HISTORY

IN September, 1913, we descended upon Chapel Hill some two hundred and seventy-five strong. Our ranks embraced every species of Freshmen, from the prep-school dandy to the blushing young Swain. Oliver Rand was chosen to guide us during the year of our class babyhood, and, save for the terrors of first Math. and tortures inflicted upon us at class meetings, we passed our time in peace, winning the class track championship and tying the Juniors and Sophomores for the highest honors in class football. Vacation came and went with Ernest L. Mackie as president, 160 of us returned. Again we won the championship in track and narrowly lost it in football.

Another summer has come and gone, and 137 of the class, under the leadership of J. A. Capps, are back.

Few classes have furnished more men to 'Varsity athletic teams than nineteen-seventeen has. To the eleven we have given George Tandy, Graham Ramsay, "Fatty" Cowell, and Bob Burnett; to the 'Varsity nine, Robert Watkins and Leon Shields; to the basketball team, Captain Johnson, Tandy, Tennant and Davis; to the track team, Ransom, Ramsay, Rand and Johnson; to the tennis team, A. H. Combs; and to the gym. squad, Davis, Johnson and Jones.

In scholarship nineteen-seventeen is an average class and will present the usual number of Phi Beta Kappa honors.

Nor has the class neglected its part in the religious, social, and literary life of the campus.

It is pleasant to think of the past, but it is in the present and future that we must work out our destiny. We have instituted a plan of holding "smokers" monthly in order that the members of the class might be drawn into mo...ling ties of friendship. Our aim is to present for graduation the largest class in the history of the University, and, in order to assist in carrying out this end, a committee has been appointed to aid in remaining here any classmate who, for any reason, may contemplate withdrawing before the goal is reached.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

SOPHOMORE CLASS HISTORY

WHEN, in the balmy days of September, 1914, the University once more flung wide its portals for the reception of the pressing throng, there was among those who entered a host of youth, not marked by the customary ultra-wise, sophisticated look of upper-classmen, nor yet wearing the mien of naive, untutored Freshmen. Never since Hinton James, the first student of the University, alighted from a stage coach in 1795 and stumbled up the steps of the Old East building with all his possessions in a pack on his back, had there ever come to University at any one time such an agglomeration of industry, eccentricity, ability, brains and pep.

Scarcely had the Red-tapists gone through the motions and the Bursar relieved them of all their cash when this unprecedented mass of 278 souls began to adjust itself to the new conditions and grind out a real history. At its first meeting in Gerrard Hall late in the fall of 1914, which had a religious turn judging from the unprecedented use of hymn books and the excessive number of sinners baptized, "Buzz" Tennent was elected to lead the flock, while "Tubby" Price was singled out to pass around the collection plate. With such leaders in charge the Class of '18 soon found itself forging ahead in all phases of University activity. The football season came, and two letter men and a brace of scrubs was its contribution. In basketball it caged every other team on the Hill save the 'Varsity, and walked off with the class championship. Four track men and one baseball artist hail from its ranks. But its influence was not confined to athletics alone. It soon had a goodly number of standard bearers in the Y. M. C. A., while not infrequently the calm of the literary societies is broken by the sonorous tones of some of the more Demosthenesian of its number. In dramatics '18 holds a controlling interest. And, if it remains seasonable, it is expecting a good crop of Phi Beta Kappas. An instance of its social prestige is found in the delightful hop given by the class during Junior Week.

As for the future, '18 is planning to make even a bigger record next year and to muster up over a hundred veterans for the final charge. Beyond that—?—?

1916

REYNOLD TATUM ALLEN
Kinston, N. C.

Age 22 Weight 158 Height 5 feet 8 inches

A. B. Degree; Varsity Football ('13 and '14); Scrub Football ('13); Commencement Marshal ('13); Assistant Editor Yackety Yack ('14).

"Red," a man who has never been rattled. Is as steady under an attack from Prof. McGhee's Court-Law as he is in a Virginia-Carolina Football game. "Red's" generalship as a quarterback in 1914 was a material asset in Carolina's string of victories. He is also a good scrub baseball player. Holds everything that comes around the "Keystone" sack. We believe "Red" is very fond of the ladies, although he flatly denies that he is. A man with his ability and personality must have a place at the top in any profession.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN AYCOCK
Fremont, N. C.

Age 22 Weight 153 Height 5 feet 10 inches

Class Baseball (1, 2); Varsity Baseball (3, 4); Wayne County Club; Phi Society; Vice President Law Class; Greater Council.

Here is a true son of Carolina. Six years spent under the fostering care of the University has given him poise without conceit, and qualification without affectation. "Ben" is one of the reliable kind. He is more modest than most girls, but not at all feminine. On occasion he can pitch a no-hit game of ball, but no one would ever know it if he waited for Ben to tell him. We count on him to make a career that will add luster to the great name he bears and reflect credit on Alma Mater.

MARVIN KEY BLOUNT
Bethel, N. C.

Age 23 Weight 165 Height 5 feet 8 $\frac{1}{2}$  inches

A.B. Degree: Randolph-Macon College; Sub Football ('15, '16); President Pitt County Club ('14, '15, '16); German Club; Scrub Baseball ('14, '15); Passed Supreme Court Examination, February, 1916; Pan-Hellenic Council;  $\Phi$   $\Delta$   $\Theta$ .

"Marvin" came to us from Randolph-Macon College, and a worthy son he has made us. He plays football and baseball, and, in addition to this, looks after his studies and the girls. Can make Vernon Castle look awkward when it comes to the foxtrot. Takes a little trip when he feels restless, and we might say that he is a little inclined to be restless. He is truly a representative man. We predict for him a bright future.

PARIS CLEVELAND GARDNER
Shelby, N. C.

Age 26 Weight 189 Height 5 feet 9 $\frac{3}{4}$  inches

President Cleveland County Club; President Piedmont High School Club; Y. M. C. A.

"Cleve" dropped in on us a few years ago, hung up his hat, and has been at work ever since. He is an exponent of the theories of Horace and swears by the faculty of the Law School. Give him the other side of an argument, no matter what the subject may be, and he never surrenders. He is of the type of man who will make his mark in the world.

CHARLES LEE COGGIN
Salisbury, N. C.

Age 25 Weight 150 Height 5 feet 9  $\frac{1}{2}$  inches

Dramatic Club (1, 2, 3, 4); President Dramatic Club (4), Vice-President (3); Vice-President Law Class, Junior and Senior; Vice-President Rowan County Club (3), President (4); Band (1, 2); Cheer Leader (3, 4); Vice-President Athletic Association (4); Secretary Sophomore Class (2); Di Society; Satyrs.

"Charlie," alias "Carley," "Scroggins." Pleasant, pleasing, likable, almost lovable; in truth, his is a personality well deserving many desirable adjectives. As a cheer leader he is peerless. In the Dramatic Club his unusual histrionic talent is recognized and appreciated. Need we mention his popularity after often naming his characteristics? Add to these a mania for argument, and you are convinced that here is a man to be reckoned with.

R. T. BRYAN, Jr.
Shanghai, China

Age 23 Weight 145 Height 5 feet 6 inches

Pan-Hellenic Council Representative; Assistant Law Librarian; Y. M. C. A.; Phi Society; Duplin County Club; German Club; Candidate for A.B.;  $\Phi$  X II; II K  $\Phi$ .

"Bob" is truly a typical barrister. He possesses a unique talent and voluminous desire to argue, and will engage any one, any time, upon any subject. "Bob" always manoeuvres so as to place the burden of proof on his adversary, keeping always himself on the defense. Even though out-argued, Bob never has yet given up. It is always a "distinction without a difference" with him. The title role of "Bull Artist" was given Bob when he first came amongst us, and, he holds it triumphantly still. However, notwithstanding all of Bob's mishaps, we wish him great success, and predict that some day he will bob up a big lawyer.

JULIAN GILLIAM HART
Winston-Salem, N. C.

Age 23 Weight 155 Height 5 feet 7 inches

Captain Freshman Baseball Team; Class Football (2, 3, 4); Class Championship Team (4); Phi Society; Surry County Club; Forsyth County Club; Musical Association; Varsity Baseball (2); Wearer of N. C.; German Club; Pan-Hellenic Council.

"Speed," "Flivver." He is the best looking man in the Senior Law Class, therefore a "Hart" smasher. Passed the Supreme Court in August, but is back with us getting his degree. A good student, good athlete, and good fellow—a rare combination. Plays Varsity baseball and has made himself famous on the class football field. A man sure to make a success in all phases of life.

OSCAR LEACH
Raeford, N. C.

Age 28 Weight 150 Height 5 feet 11 inches

Y. M. C. A.; Phi Society; President Law Class ('14-'15); Business Manager Yackety Yack ('14-'15); President Athletic Association ('14-'15 and '15-'16); Athletic Council ('14-'15 and '15-'16); Student Council ('15-'16); Greater Council ('15-'16); German Club; Amphotheroth; Golden Fleece.

"Oscar" is generally known to be the most reliable man in the University. His common sense and willingness to do things have won him a place in nearly every college organization. He has the unique distinction of being the first man to serve three consecutive years on the Student Council. His intellect, affability, ambition, and trustworthiness will win for "Oscar" a prominent place in the practice of law.

OSCAR NEWTON LOVELACE
Mooresboro, N. C.

Age 27 Weight 179 Height 6 feet 2 inches

Fresh-Soph Debater; Di Society; Cleveland County Club; Y. M. C. A.

Oratory is "Lovely's" specialty. His next door neighbor says he begins operations each morning with a speech to an imaginary jury and concludes at night with a mighty argument for woman suffrage. The Legislature may expect him at an early date. He will lend honor to the profession, and his ability and common sense will make him a large factor in the community in which he resides.

ERNEST GRANT MICK
Weaverville, N. C.

Age 27 Weight 170 Height 5 feet 10 inches

Graduate of Weaver College; Buncombe County Club; Winner of Clark Prize for Examination, February 1916.

"Jedge" is one of these all-wool and a yard-wide kind of fellows. He came down from the mountains, established himself a beat between the law building and the drug store, and has walked it since. As to his feats in the legal realm, well, he won the Clark prize for the best paper on the February Bar Examination. A forcible speaker, and a good mixer, he cannot help but rise in his chosen profession.

JOHN DAFFIN ODUM
Rocky Mount, N. C.

Age 22 Weight 170 Height 5 feet 2 inches

Phi Society; Y. M. C. A.; Athletic Association; Tennis Association; North Carolina Club; Manager Sophomore Hop; Secretary-Treasurer Nash-Edgecombe Club; German Club; Moot Court.

“Johnnie,” “Modo,” “Red,” “Fatty.” Glad we are that Johnnie has seen fit to come back and finish his course with us. Klutz is certainly glad because Johnnie bought as many magazines as any man in college. But he did not neglect his work by any means. Will argue law any time of the day. Likes the girls and says he is going to marry a pretty one some day. After capturing his license he took a trip to the city (N. Y.) to recuperate. In Johnnie we are giving you one who will surely make good.

ENOCH SPENCER SIMMONS
Washington, N. C.

Age 20 Weight 150 Height 5 feet 11 inches

Y. M. C. A.; Phi Society; Glee Club (1, 3, 4); Quartet (3, 4); German Club; Beaufort County Club; Brotherhood of St. Andrew; Tennis Association; Dramatic Association; Dramatic Club Vaudeville; Class Football (1, 3); Assistant Cheer Leader (4); Scrap Iron Quartet; Σ X.

We are wont to think of him as a transplanted Swiss, who gives vent to his spirit in the yodels of his native heath. But weirder than his yodels are the tales that he spins. A contradiction in terms may be had in his natural brilliancy and his class record; due to his tolerance of the latter and his enthusiasm toward all else in college life. Withal, he is a happy combination, distinct as a student and promising in the profession he has chosen, which so aptly befits his nature.

RICHARD HARVEY SHUFORD
Hickory, N. C.

Age 22      Weight 150      Height 6 feet

B.A. Lenoir College '13; Graduate Club ('13-14); Bryan Prize ('14); President Burke-Catawba County Club ('14-15); President Senior Law Class ('15-16).

Here's to our president. "Dick" has shown his ability by winning the prize for being the best student in law at the University for the past two years. Law is like one long novel to "Dick." His roommate has to shake him up some nights and remind him that it is time to go to bed. He is an authority on the subject of insurance, and will probably specialize in that branch of the law. One can easily picture "Dick" as a judge. There is no doubt that his consistent work, coupled with his ability and attractive personality, will make of him a man of which the University may well be proud.

ALLEN ZOLLICOFFER
Weldon, N. C.

Age 22      Weight 150      Height 6 feet

Varsity Baseball Squad (1, 3); Class Football (2, 3, 4); All-Class Football (2); Wearer of N. C.; Vice-President Halifax County Club (1); President (2); German Club; Y. M. C. A.; Phi Society; Δ K E.

"Zollie," "Coffer," "Slat."—Energetic, broadminded and of high ideals he has ever stood for the best in college life. Sprang into the limelight in his Freshman year as a baseball star and has remained there ever since—one of Carolina's dependable players. "Zollie" is also a class football star—but, best of all, he is about the biggest "lady-killer" we have in this University. While we hate to lose him, we surely expect to hear from him later.

ALMAN BYRON BUTLER
Roseboro, N. C.

Age 22 Weight 165 Height 5 feet 11 inches

Vice-President Pharmaceutical Society; Sampson County Club.

"But" is a studious fellow, has his fun, but never lets it interfere with his work. He is especially gifted in Chemistry. Finding unknowns in Chemistry 31-32 is only play with him. He has a good church record, not having missed Sunday School since being on the Hill. He is held in high esteem by his classmates.

CLARENCE MASON MILLER
Rock Hill, S. C.

Age 21 Weight 130 Height 5 feet 5 inches

Pharmaceutical Society.

Clarence, who is better known as "Crap," comes to us from South Carolina, full of hope and ambition. He is an active, hustling, hard-working member of the class. These qualities have won for him the respect of our class. We predict for him a bright future, with his own "fair one."

NEEDHAM B. HERRING
Wilson, N. C.

Age 20 Weight 160 Height 5 feet 11 inches

Secretary Pharmaceutical Society; Class Secretary and Treasurer; Wilson County Club; Y. M. C. A.

"Needy" is the youngest member of the class and is one of the most popular. Although youthful he is not a baby, but is one of the steadiest and most progressive in our ranks. He is generally to be found working in the Chemistry Laboratories with his fellow-members of the "Pharmaceutical Trio," viz., Fishel and Wiggins. His genial and frank disposition, along with his democratic spirit, has won for him a warm place in our hearts. We predict for our esteemed classmate great success in his chosen vocation.

ARTHUR LEVI FISHEL
Winston-Salem, N. C.

Age 22 Weight 150 Height 5 feet 11 inches

Ph.G. ('15); Winner Gilpin Langdon Prize; Assistant Instructor in Materia Medica; Assistant in Pharmacy Laboratory; President William Simpson Pharmaceutical Society, and Candidate for Ph.D. Degree.

"Fish" is a whale in scholarship achievement, who has never met his "Jonah." He is an associate of "Weary Willie" Wiggins, which has meant much to both of them. After graduating with first honors last June, he led the State Board. As a reward for his achievement he was given an assistant's place in the Pharmacy Laboratory. With his Ph.C. and P.D. degrees and an inherent ingenuity, we predict for him success.

JESSE ELI TURLINGTON
Benson, N. C.

Age 25 Weight 130 Height 5 feet 10  $\frac{1}{2}$  inches

Y. M. C. A.; Cabinet; President of Class; Student Council; Greater Council; Phi Society; President Pharmaceutical Society; Associate Editor Carolina Journal of Pharmacy; Assistant in Pharmacy Laboratory; Johnston County Club; K  $\Psi$ .

Jesse, or "Doc," cast his lot with us after two years of literary work. He is one of the best all-round students in the class. He has won friends in every department of the college. He passed the Board in June and continues to lead in his class. Besides holding numerous offices in class and society, he shines in religious activities. His spare hours are spent with ? ? Ask "Cupid."

ROGER DERICK SANFORD
Laurinburg, N. C.

Age 23 Weight 170 Height 5 feet 10 inches

Pharmaceutical Society.

"Dudly" comes back to us from the class of '13. By his sterling qualities he has won the friendship and admiration of our class. His habits are strictly moral; with this and his admirable disposition, he fills the requirements of the southern gentleman to the very letter. He is a man not of words, but of action and many thoughts. These qualities will procure for him a successful future in the advancement of his profession.

WILLIAM W. WIGGINS
Coats, N. C.

Age 21      Weight 150      Height 6 feet

Pharmaceutical Society, Vice-President Pharmaceutical Society; Business Manager Carolina Journal of Pharmacy.

"Bill," "Weary," or "Willie," for he goes by most any name, is the man who comes to us from Coats, and from whom great things are expected. As a reward for good work during his first year "Bill" was made business manager of the Journal. In this capacity he has indeed made good. He does not confine himself to this, however, for "Bill" is quite a star among the ladies, or at least this is the opinion of those who know him. He is a good mixer, and stands well among his classmates.

LOWRY REED WILSON
Gastonia, N. C.

Age 23      Weight 142      Height 5 feet 9 inches

Y. M. C. A.; Di Society; Vice-President Senior Pharmaceutical Class; Greater Council; Treasurer Pharmaceutical Society; Gaston County Club.

"Peg" first entered the University with Class '13, but dropped out to work one year, and then came back to get his degree. Sickness in the early spring, however, caused him to leave school again. He is back this year, still "pegging" away for the desired end. In spite of his hard luck and special fondness for the Pickwick, we feel sure that he will reach it. Such persistence, we feel sure, will win for him the success he so well deserves.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

IT has been the policy of the Y. M. C. A. during the past year to exemplify, as far as possible, the value of living a clean, pure, Christian life. In its efforts, however, to reach the practical University man, it has organized its forces into various social activities, ranging from the mill and Sunday School districts about the University to suffering Belgium across the Atlantic. But, various as were these activities, we do not feel that its forces have been spent in trying to cover too large an area. Probably more men have been engaged in effectual service this year than at any previous time and, as far as statistical results are concerned, probably more has been accomplished. In all this work, however, we have tried not to lose sight of the main issue, the sine qua non of the Y. M. C. A., the lining up of men with truly Christian ideals. A partial summation will serve to make these statements clearer.

Several of the weekly meetings during the fall were given over entirely to such fundamental concerns as Prayer, the Bible, and the place of Christ in a college man's life, others to discussions of college problems, and the remaining to men of the calibre of Dr. W. S. Rankin, of Raleigh, E. E. Barnett and Frank Graham. Bible study was introduced by Dr. O. E. Brown, of Vanderbilt, and soon had an enrollment of three hundred men studying for the maintenance of Christian ideals on the Campus. The Student Volunteer Band began the year with a membership of two, and has increased it to six, all of whom are planning to do deputation work this spring. Marion Fowler, with the aid of fifteen men, has permanently established a night school at Carrboro, running five nights in the week, with an enrollment of seventy-five. Barney Pitts has a similar record for the negro night schools. In the seven rural Sunday Schools Francis Bradshaw has kept an average of thirty men busy each Sunday, teaching, singing or giving some form of entertainment.

Francis Clarkson, at the head of the Lyceum course, decided to offer fewer and better attractions. The success of his efforts was well attested by the attendance and the satisfaction with both the "Servant in the House" and the "Fuller Sisters."

This year the old Book Exchange, under the direction of Gardner Hudson, was given better and larger quarters in the Y. M. C. A. building in connection with the new Exchange, established by the University. The new Exchange, in half a year, returned through its ten per cent dividends enough to pay one man's expenses through a college year. During the spring Francis Miller, with several Southern Secretaries, came and brought a message of a stronger Christianity and left an indelible impression upon Campus life. But by far the greatest single achievement of the year has been the handling of the moonlight schools by Thomas Boushall, our busy Secretary. In this work eighty men were actively engaged either in teaching or giving lantern lectures. A total enrollment of 218 was realized and twelve out of sixteen illiterates were taught to read and write.

It is through just such unselfish service, that the Y. M. C. A. has tried to bring the men of the University to realize the scope of the larger life, and when it has fully done this it will feel that it has accomplished its purpose.

J. M. P., President.

THE UNIVERSITY ANNUAL

THE first attempt of the students of the University to publish an annual was in 1890, when a volume entitled the "Hellenian" appeared, which was published by the fraternities. Styles in college annuals have much changed, as a comparison of the first "Hellenian" with a modern "Yackety Yack" will show; yet this first annual of the University is now very interesting, for it gives us a few glimpses of college life twenty-five years ago at the University.

The annual of the University continued to be published by the fraternities under the name of the "Hellenian" for eleven years—from 1890 until 1901. The "Hellenian" of 1895 is especially interesting to us now because it records the Centennial Celebration of the opening of the University. The "Hellenians" were usually bound in white and blue. They were much smaller books than the present "Yackety Yack," but every "Hellenian" is an interesting step in the evolution of the college annual.

In 1901 the fraternities, finding that the financial responsibility of publishing the annual was becoming too great, combined with the two literary societies to publish the annual. It was agreed that the Chief Editor should successively be elected by the fraternities, the Dialectic Society and the Philanthropic Society, and that two business managers should be elected each year, one from each of the two remaining organizations. The new annual was to be published under the name of "Yackety Yack."

The first "Yackety Yack" was quite a departure from the "Hellenian" models. It was an entirely new type of book, there was a greater variety of cartoons and illustrations, and it was chiefly interesting because it showed the life of the University as a whole. Since 1901 fifteen volumes of "Yackety Yack" have been published. Some of the "Yackety Yacks" have ranked with the best American college annuals. Each "Yackety Yack" has been a contribution to the records of the University, each number giving a personal and intimate view of the student life of the campus of the successive school years.

THE YEAR IN ATHLETICS

THE baseball season of 1915 was a remarkable one. The combination of individuals which made up the team of that season was unusual, and the evidence of that fact is plainly disclosed in the record left behind. The significance of victory in a heavy majority of the early-season games was almost obliterated by the startling returns from the games played on the northern trip. Losing only to Princeton and Virginia, and winning against four other teams, the Navy, and Washington and Lee included, during that week, climaxed the already successful season.

The series to Virginia was lost, and, to a few enthusiasts, this alone is the index to the success or failure of a season. But to the broader Carolina man, whose vision is not blighted by too much of the beat-Virginia spirit, the whole bulk of the season's scores is permeated with the atmosphere of success.

Carolina won all three of the track meets in which she participated during 1915. The fact that no ultra-state colleges were met limits her established supremacy to North Carolina.

The meets with Elon and Wake Forest resulted in overwhelming victories for Carolina. The opposing teams were credited, in one case with not a single first place, and in the other, with a small minority of points. The State meet, in which all the State colleges competed, was won by Carolina, with a majority of first places, supplemented by a few seconds and thirds.

A prominent feature of the season was the establishing of two new State records and one new University record. Woolcott high-jumped 5 feet 9, and Wright broad-jumped 22 feet 6, breaking both State jumping records. Homewood, by throwing the hammer 116 feet, excelled the greatest throw made by any former Carolina athlete.

The football season of 1915 presents an enigma to Carolina that will probably never be solved. Exactly the same material which won positive success in the previous season, strengthened by a few new men of ability, and coached under almost the same conditions, was unable to make a record to approach that of the preceding year. The season was a mystery. There was an element somewhere which conceived failure, an element which some attempted to attribute to the coaching, others to a lack of training, others to factions among the players, and still others to different causes or a combination of causes. That there was an element of failure was evident; its true nature was concealed.

In the opening game of the season against Citadel, Carolina won, 14 to 7; her supporters expected a walk over. She won the next game over Wake Forest, 35 to 0; this was a surprise. Indeed, a close game, by all, and even a defeat, by a few, had been predicted.

YACKETY YACK

1916 - UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA - 1916

Then followed in rapid succession a 38 to 0 defeat by Georgetown, a 23 to 3 defeat by Georgia Tech, and a 3 to 3 tie with V. M. I. Carolina supporters were discouraged, and made criticisms, some just, some rash, some insulting—all unnecessary.

On November 6 a slight reaction set in and Carolina, through pure determination, won over Clemson, 9 to 7. Broad dissatisfaction was expressed that the score was not greater.

The Davidson game a week later created surprise, admiration and speculation. Carolina seemed to be coming into her own, and the element of failure seemed to disappear. A 41 to 6 victory over any Davidson team, and an unusually good one at that, brought praise from many sources. The tide seemed to be changing.

Finally, on Thanksgiving in Richmond, eleven Carolina men, with a record of doubt behind them, almost balanced that debit of defeats, and contributed their part in probably the greatest chapter of the Carolina-Virginia classic since 1905. Virginia—Yale's conqueror, Harvard's respected opponent, and Vanderbilt's superior by some thirty points—placed on the field that day the team that many accept as the superior of any previous eleven from the institution. And Carolina sent eleven men, crushed a few weeks before by Georgetown and Georgia Tech, and bruised by the criticism of impulsive alumni. Virginia scored first during the last five minutes of the third quarter, again in the fourth quarter. Carolina lost to Virginia, 14 to 0—and the season remains a mystery.

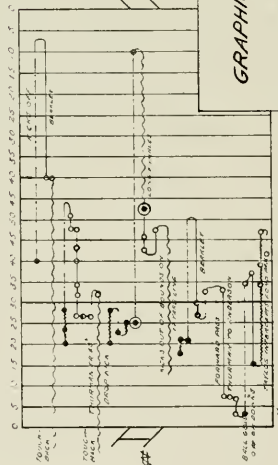

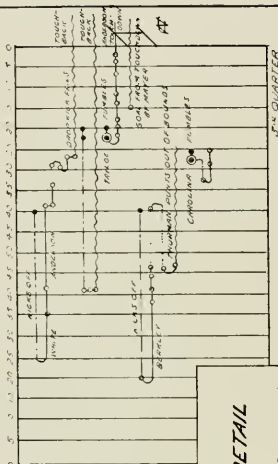

The basketball season is almost a repetition of the football story. Material was abundant, composed of the previous year's five, all the scrubs, and a few new candidates. Prospects were promising. The first game was lost to Durham Y. M. C. A. The next few games were won. Then the most important State game was lost to Wake Forest by a few points.

On the Virginia trip four important games were lost, to Virginia, V. P. I., Roanoke College, and Washington and Lee. Against V. M. I. Carolina won by two points over the team which was probably the most clever team played on the trip. The results are difficult to explain.

The remainder of the season, like the football season, was successful, and almost served to balance the earlier defeats; it was marked by victories over Davidson, Elon, and Guilford.

THE TEAM

Taylor ..... Left Halfback

"Dave," for two years our captain, has shown himself very capable of the generalship of our teams. Great ground gainer too. Chosen All South Atlantic halfback last year.

Reid ..... Fullback

Ed has developed wonderfully this year. He is a great offensive player, both in line plunging and on receiving forward passes, and is equally good on defensive work.

Homewood ..... Right End

Homewood has won fame by his hard tackling and his steady consistent playing—Chosen All South Atlantic this year.

Tandy ..... Center

"Yank," too, certainly does great work. He outplays the opposing center in every game. Picked as All South Atlantic center this year.

Boshamer ..... Right Tackle

"Boss" a "hard," consistent player, gets into every play and fights to a finish.

Long ..... Quarterback

"Meb" has shown great "stuff" this year in the use of his toe. Has outdistanced his opponent in every game and is an excellent passer.

Parker ..... Fullback

Parker is the tower of defense in the backfield. He is also a good ground gainer.

Love ..... Left End

Love is there when it comes to receiving forward passes. "Throwing for a loss" is his strong point.

THE TEAM

Grimes . . . . . Left Guard

Grimes, a Freshman who has shown up well his first year, bids fair to become an important man in the line.

Tayloe, J. C. . . . . Right Guard

"Gris," a bunch of "pep," and a hard worker, is a typical football player. He plays clean ball all the way through the game.

Cowell . . . . . Left Guard

"Fatty" played the game of his life at Virginia Thanksgiving. He always goes through and gets the second defense.

Jones . . . . . Right Tackle

"Slob" showed his old-time fighting spirit in the Virginia game. A great line man.

McDonald . . . . . Quarterback

"Mack's" speed and side-stepping puts the ball over the goal line when he is called upon. Makes a great general for a team. Knows exactly what play to run.

Hines . . . . . Halfback

"Phil," a little bunch of energy and hard work, promises well to fill the vacancy at half.

Wright . . . . . Left End

"Goatie," fleet-footed left end, is there when it comes to downing the man in his tracks. He features by getting down on punts.

Ramsay . . . . . Left Tackle

"Graham," a consistent, level-headed, hard-working boy, is one of the best tackles ever seen on a southern gridiron. Chosen All South Atlantic tackle this year.

THE SEASON OF 1915

The Baseball season of 1915 was the most successful Carolina has had in the past few years. The early season started with seven 'Varsity men returned, forming a good nucleus for a great college team. Excellent new material soon found places and a well-balanced combination went forth to make the best college record in the State for the year and the best record in baseball Carolina has made for four years.

Captain Woodall was rated as the best college catcher within the bounds of the State. His presence assured strength in the battery, while at the pitching end were found the veterans Williams and Shields, who, with the acquisition of Currie, formed a most effective trio; except for two games, their pitching was almost faultless.

Pope early secured the first base position, Patterson found himself at home on second, and Bruce became the regular short stop. Lewis remained at third where he had played the year before. Bailey held down the center garden in his usual wonderful style, and Honig and Zollicoffer were placed in left and right fields respectively. Hardison and Egerton were utility men.

From the very first Carolina showed slugging ability—five men, Woodall, Bruce, Patterson, Zollicoffer, and Egerton, averaging above the coveted three hundred mark. Long hits were numerous, and in only a few games were the Carolina batsmen within five hits. Fielding records were very good, especially in the outfield.

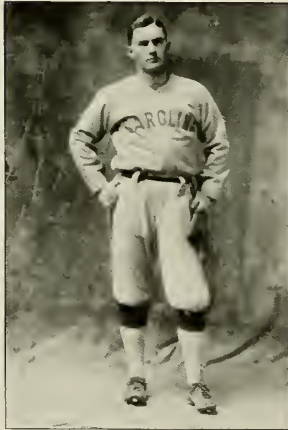

Carolina took the first baseball game she had won from Virginia in three years by winning the second game of the series, 8 to 5. Three games were taken from Wake Forest, and the one with Davidson fell to us. The trip north was more successful than usual, although losing the rubber of the Virginia series by a close margin at Charlottesville. Carolina next won three straight games on the road. In Lexington, Washington and Lee was defeated, 8 to 2, and Virginia Military Institute, 13 to 0. Next the Navy was defeated, 8 to 2. Princeton took the last road game by the score of 8 to 4. Only three college teams succeeded in handing defeat to the cub.

It was evident that Coach Doak had good material out of which to construct a team. Under his direction the team became effective in team work as well as stick work, and established an enviable record. Every man was a dependable one, and all showed up as well-balanced players. Rarely has Carolina had such a combination of baseball players. And rarely is such satisfaction ever shown by a student body as the Carolina campus showed with its team of 1915.

LOVE'S REALIZATION

"And neither the angels in heaven above,
Nor the demons down under the sea,
Can ever dissever my soul from the soul
Of the beautiful Annabel Lee."

* * * * *

It was drowsy and listless in heaven that day,
The King lay asleep on His Throne:
And the children of stars had forsaken their play
To sink at His feet with a groan.
The winds of the skies were silent and still,
Hushed like the peace of a soul;
And the scribbler of fates, who was tired of the quill,
Slumbered above his scroll.

Suddenly up through the great black night
From the world of sin and man,
Winging its way like a gleam of light,
Came a soul of the ill-starred clan.
And though it bled like one of the Lost
And sobbed with a hellish pain,
Somehow it wasn't the f-e-a-r of the Cost
Which made it sob with pain.

The Judge of Eternity opened His eyes
And heard with compassionate love
The spirit of darkness rending the skies
In its maddening sweep above.
And the angels awoke from their nonchalant mood,
And the winds that were hushed, screamed aloud:
And the hearts of the children wept, gushing with blood,
For the head of their Master was bowed.

Then all at once through a pathway of stars,
Which led to the foot of the Throne,
The demon-soul that knew no bars
Sped with a fiendish groan.
And it fell like a rose in the glare of the Sun,
And the Master of Destinies said,
"Who are you, and what have you done
In the world of the good and the bad?"

And the soul which wasn't afraid of hell
Cried in its passionate pain,
"I'm only one of your children that dwell
Where many by evil are slain.

YACKETY YACK

1916—UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA—1916

And I've drunk my draught of every sin,
Though I'm not any worse than the rest.
What do you say? Will you let me in?
Can I enter the land of the blest?"

And the brow of the Father was creased with a cloud,
And His voice was a thunderous roll:
"Ah, child of the earth— you are bold and proud,
But pride cannot save a soul.
You've wasted your life on the anvil of hell,
Your talents lie dead in the sod;
But what of the good that you've done, pray tell,
Oh, cynic of man and God?"

And the son of perdition sprang from the dust,
And his wild eyes burned with fire;
And he looked at his Judge with an infinite trust,
This c-y-n-i-c who sprang from the mire.
And the winds grew as silent as buried years,
And saints looked at saints with a nod.
As they heard him cry with a passion of tears,
"I've loved, I've loved, oh God!"

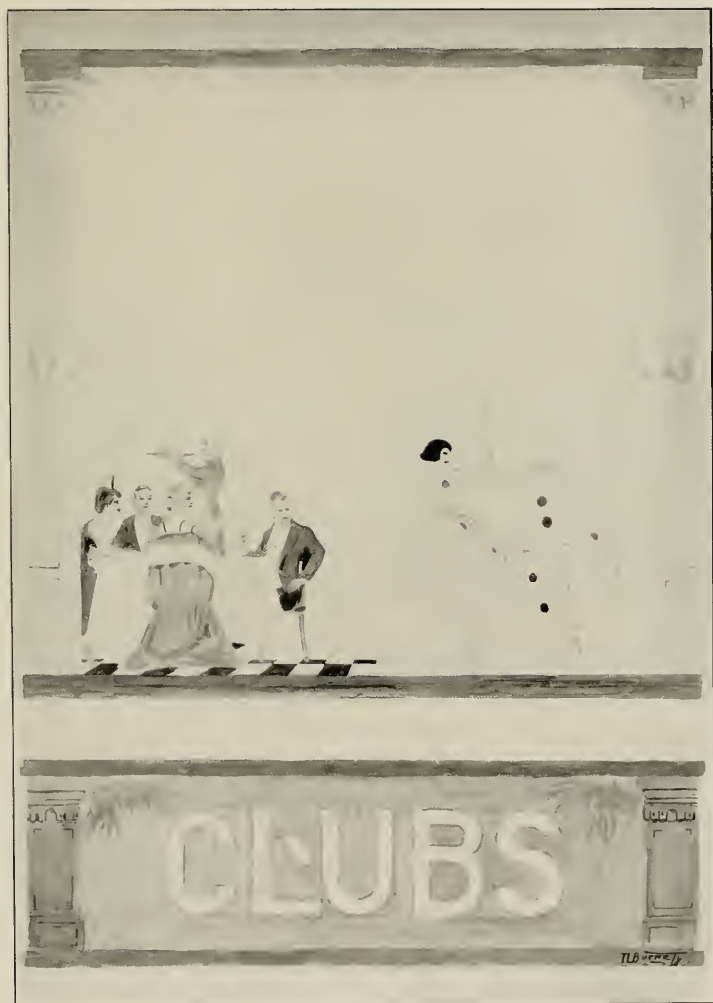

A heart sobbed out on the hush of the air
Through the throat of an angel-girl;
And she was the fairest of all the fair
Who lived in this heaven-world.
And the truth of her pain was as true as her eyes,
And it tortured the demon of blood;
He screamed, and cursed, and laughed at the skies,—
And the Reader of Souls understood.

So He gave them a star in the heart of the west,
To be forever their own.
Which hung aloft and apart from the rest,
Like a gem that had strayed from the Throne.
And He covered its meads with carpets of green,
And sowed the forests with spring,
And he wreathed with lilies the brow of the queen,
And left her alone with her king.

And there they are loving the ages away,
Poe and his Annabel Lee,
Flushed with the warmth of an endless May,
Tuned with the joys of the free.
And he dips his pen in the sunset's glow
And paints as never before,
With a passion enriched by its earthly woe,
For his beautiful bride, Lenore.

SATIRE

FOREWORD

Sarcasm is bitter invective, with malicious intent to inflict injury upon the feelings. Satire is only a playful poke in the ribs. This book is guaranteed to contain nothing worse than satire. So don't try to make a knock out of a push.

SENIORS

Dave Tayloe—Super Numerous. Dave might have made Phi Beta Kappa, only Med. students are not eligible. Some jealous ones have hinted that Dave passes more work on the football field than in the classroom; but, of course, this only goes to show how folks will talk. He is the most modest football captain you ever saw, and they say he doesn't even go out in Washington, because the home girls keep their admiring eyes glued upon him whenever he appears in public, and he is afraid it will make him stuck up.

Adam Thorpe—Zeta Sigh. With the accent on the dam. To see him is to smile. Adam is a philosopher. He believes that the Pick is mightier than the book, lets his yea be yea, and his nay be yea too; and, applying the theory of conservation of energy to his own personal affairs, he gambols along the primrose path of least resistance on all fours, and that in his Senior year. However, he is not lacking in profundity and subtlety of intellect, which is shown by his celebrated answer to the stranger seeking information concerning the University: "Yes, sir, generally we do, but as a rule we don't."

Robert House—Robert is to the spirit of our University what Mr. George Pickard is to the physical campus. He is a leader in the crusade against smoking cubebs and drinking dopes, as well as a strong supporter of the movement to prohibit selling egg sandwiches with pickles in them on Sunday. He says that the pickle is entirely unnecessary for subsistence and should rank with shakes and other luxuries which students are forbidden to indulge in on the Sabbath. Robert dominates his classes, having long since blinded all his professors and reduced them to abject submission. He is a Greek shark and a Math. Bull, quite a rare hybrid of learning. Wearer of the key.

Hugh Hester—Member of the firm of Hester & Hudson, also of Egerton & Hester, Yackety Yack managers and brokers. If you are interested in Wall Street methods of finance, just ask Hugh how he got ads for this book. Each one has a history. Hugh is small in size, but this disadvantage is offset by his large capacities (with particular reference to Swain Hall). In answer to numerous inquiries, Hugh has decided to write a monographic treatise on "How to Grow Eyelashes."

JUNIORS

- Marion Fowler—Y. M. C. A. night watchman, and Carrboro angel of enlightenment. Truly, a holy man, and one of stern and noble mein. Also a prominent committee man and general agitator of The Class.
- J. M. Ross—So hard doth he study that he is not conscious of the world around him. To see that J. M. Ross passes his work is his chief concern. But that's more than lots of them do.
- Yank Tandy—S X (Who'd 'a thought it?). 'Varsity football, Federal baseball, basketball off and on, when eligible. Only man in Chapel Hill who thinks Durham is a good town.
- Bill Allen—Keg Squeezer, Dimfool. A truly fine fellow, since he's been running for baseball manager. Weed Cutters Union. Third baseball team. 'Varsity Public Speaking.
- Red Proctor—D K E (and looks it). Red Headed League. Bane of Freshmen, especially in new dormitory, where his fame will never grow stale.
- Jim Capps—Our Serene President. 'Nough said.
- Rusty Davis—Super Numerous. Red Headed League. Shaker of the fragrant sock. "Arsenic" with women, or, in other words, a riot among the skirts. Takes a course under Horace in order to get all the dope on love.
- E. L. Mackie—Politicians Club. Red Headed League. Bell weather of the Sophomore flock. Already crowding Gabriel for his influential position.
- Graham Ramsay—Drink, Kuss, and Eat. Gorgon's Foot. Sacred Order of Fleecers. 'Varsity Football. Torchlight procession. Aspires to manage (or mismanage) the baseball team.

DI SOCIETY

Named Dialectic because its members, coming from the western portion of the State, speak the peculiar "hillbilly" dialect. The Di hall is home to a frontiersman from the mountains at any time, especially Saturday night. The fellow members are so anxious that each man avail himself of the privilege that they soak you about four bits if you don't. The organization is one of brotherly love, in fact the members would "Di" for each other. Freshmen from the west receive their first training in politics running for office in this society. Its color is blue, signifying the utter innocence of Freshmen who fall for the bull of the membership committee, and allow themselves to be roped in.

Members proudly point to the oil paintings of distinguished alumni which decorate the walls. Most of them date from ante-bellum days. (See Phi Society for further particulars).

PHI SOCIETY

So called satirically because of the malevolence of its founders, who were quite the opposite of philanthropists in leaving such a destroyer of Saturday nights to posterity. Much like the Di Society in many respects, except that it chooses its victims from the ranks of unfortunate sandlappers, who aspire to emulate W. J. Bryan and Bill Umstead.

The meetings are conducted on a fixed and unvarying plan, as follows—

1. President calls to order.
2. Secretary calls roll.
3. Secretary reads fines imposed for absence from meeting one week previous.
4. First Censor reads fines for failure to attend meeting two weeks previous.
5. Second Censor reads fines imposed for absence three weeks previous.
6. Second Censor reads list of men fined for absence from meeting one month previous.
7. )
8. ) First and Second Censors read in order fines imposed on members who were
9. ) present, but failed to serve on program during past month.
10. )
11. Treasurer reports condition of finances.
12. Various committees make reports.
13. Secretary reads subject for discussion and First Censor reads names of those expected to serve on program (merely as a matter of formality).
14. Impeachment proceedings are instituted against those who have not paid fines.
15. Proposed Society banquet postponed, due to high price of lemons and ginger snaps.
16. Meeting adjourns.

FRATERNITIES

- Δ K E—Drink, Kuss, and Eat. Originally composed of men who were by no means tenderfeet, this fraternity now has two factions, the hard, and the less hard. The former, headed by Zollie, is putting up a game fight to maintain the original Deke standards. The softening influence of song is having its effect, however. The Dekes always sing vesper hymns by torchlight to comfort their woebegone goats the night after initiation.
- K A—Knights of Ananias. Naturally, the membership is rather large. In fact, this organization has commonly been mistaken for a Sunday School, and members are often spoken of as Baracas. Appollo Belvidere Mustachio Otto Metz is an eminent member. The Corn Club, (Big Borden, Pres.), is an offshoot of K A proper.
- ϕ Δ ()—Funny Damn Things (R. E. L. Cook, for example). S. Goode for instance. This fraternity is a strong advocate of preparedness, as signified by the sword and shield which is worn as a badge. In order to keep pace with modern methods, it has been decided to replace the sword and shield with a field gun and earthworks.
- K Σ—Keg Squeezers. This fraternity was originated at Bologne, in 1400 (so were sausages). It was transplanted into America by Chris. Columbus, in 1492. The custom of taking beer from kegs, which was in vogue among the pioneer members, has never been abandoned, out of respect and reverence.
- B O Π—Best Things Possible. This fraternity is one of very high ideals, as seen by the name. In fact, Herschel Johnston says it is one of the three to which he would consent to belong. The other one varies, according to whom he is talking to.
- A T Ω—All Tough Ones. Absolutely no Willy boys need apply for membership. Very strong in South Carolina. In fact, they are stronger there than anywhere else. The Black Brothers, Priestly Conyers, and Pete Poge are among the more prominent wooly ones.
- Σ A E—Soft And Easy. Conversation rarely rises above a whisper in the Σ A E House. Everything is orderly and quiet, except when Bill Ervin forgets himself and kicks up a little fuss. He is promptly silenced by Tom Linn.
- Σ N—Super Numerous. The sacred emblem is the snake, in homage to Snake Simmons, tenor in the Scrap Iron Quartette. Σ N has recently decided to introduce a country club feature for those who do not play football, and has laid off a golf course back of the library.

CLUBS

A DORMITORY EPISODE

WHAT IS A CLUB?

A quasi organization founded by Herschel V. Johnston, who has a hobby for designing badges, and wears them gracefully and modestly.

Its object is to promote either politics or dances.

It means much to the treasurer.

It has no capital and no assets.

It has large liabilities.

DRAGS

R. E. L. Cook: "How do you like my moustache?"

She: "I think it is horrid."

R. E. L. C.: "Perhaps it will grow on you."

She: "Oh Robert, you are always thinking of such absurd things."

He: "I would kiss you if we were not in a canoe."

She: "Sir! I wish to be taken ashore instantly."

WONDERFUL MAN

He (declaiming): "Roll on, thou dark blue ocean, roll."

Week-Old bride: "Oh, Edward, it's doing it!"

First Med. Student: "Do you think we will get a quiz tomorrow?"

Second Med. student: "I know it."

"Why?"

"Charley Mangum is wearing his dark glasses."

One of Dr. Wigglestick's Third History papers states that Julius Caesar introduced Christianity into England, 55 B. C.

Johnny Odom, one rainy Sunday afternoon: "Bring out the ginger ale and cheese crackers and pickles."

Buck Wimberly: "Sh-h! here comes a student councilman."

Belle: "I never judge a man by his clothes."

Jack: "But you judge a woman by hers."

Belle: "True, dear, but a man may have other qualities, you know."

You will have to get ahead of a hustler before you can get in his way.

She: "The man I marry must be handsome, witty, cultivated, courteous, kindly, considerate, and above all, of high moral character."

He: "In view of the fact that it is leap year, I find myself constrained to ask you if I am to regard your words in the light of a proposal?"

We are going to the masquerade ball disguised as Kappa Sigmas.

How will you manage it?

Get on a jag.

Have you ever noticed Clyde Fore—and aft?

Professor Bernard: "Mr. Jenkins, what are paradigms?"

Mr. Jenkins: "Twenty cents."

Piggy Parker: "I've changed my mind."

Professor Horatio Williams: "Does the new one work better?"

Buzz Tennant contemplates starting a stock farm. He has the following animals in his possession: a "charley horse," two fat calves, a Latin pony, and a German jack.

JUSTIFICATIONS

"Nemo, why are you taking so many courses in Geology?"

"Well, I'm going into the real estate business, and I thought I ought to know something about land. What are you taking two of Wagstaff's history courses for?"

"Insomnia. I never could sleep in broad daylight before."

The nearest we came to having a scrap on the campus last year was when the following took place, according to an eye witness. The Freshmen from North Carolina and South Carolina were bragging on their respective states.

"Why they tell me," said the Tar Heel, "that the population of South Carolina is over half negro."

"Don't get personal now," warned the Cole L. Blease protege, doubling up his fists. Bystanders intervened.

The question has recently come up as to whether the Dramatic Club should allow the same boys to impersonate female characters for more than one year. The argument that it tends to make them effeminate has been answered, however, by the counterclaim that in these days of women's rights, men should cultivate effeminacy in order to be masculine. So Bruce Webb's day is not yet done.

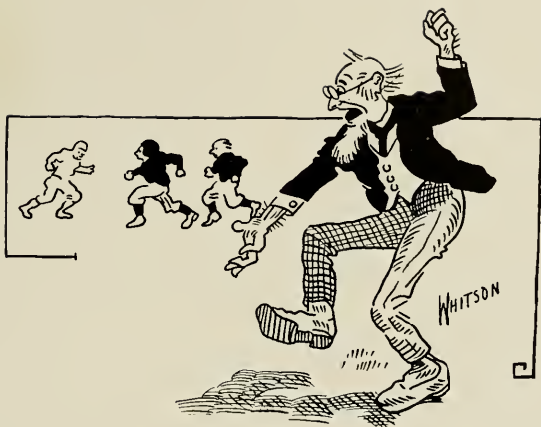

One way to be famous is to hobble around on crutches during the football season.

SOME SLOW

"Yes," said the "Widow." "I spent the entire evening in the Arboretum telling him that he had a terrible reputation for kissing girls against their will."

"And what did he do?"

"He sat there like a booby and denied it."

"THE OLD PEP"

POEMS AND NEAR POEMS

THE CHAPEL HILL GIRL

I come from haunts of puff and cream;
 I make a sudden sally
 In snowy dress o'er campus green
 To make the students rally.

With many a curl my hair I fret
 While perfume round me hovers,—
 To win on shady walks the smiles
 Of many happy lovers.

I chatter over D. K. E.'s;
 I babble over Betas;
 I sow sweet smiles that yield much fruit
 At dances with the Thetas.

Tho to them all I make my bow,
 To Freshmen I'm most clever;
 For Freshmen come and Seniors go,
 While I stay on forever.

---

A lady as proud as old Lucifer
 Is tired of her husband's abucifer.
 If she ever gets free
 She says she will see
 That love doesn't again make a gucifer.

WAIL OF THE CO-ED

Tell me not in joyous measures
That among a thousand boys
Co-ed life is full of pleasures
As the days are full of joys.

In the churches not a prayer
For her soul is offered up;
Pastors meet her with a stare,
Offer not a friendly cup.

"Gentlemen," on class she's called
"Fellows," "men," or "boys," at church;
Though she's inwardly appalled,
There's no help in such a lurch.

From class tables richly spread,
Crumbs that fall are left to her—
She can only bow her head,
Take the crumbs without demur.

Let her then this lesson learn—
When she yearns for further knowledge;
Mind and heart for wisdom burn,
Let her seek a woman's college!

---

Tobacco is a filthy weed;
I like it.
It satisfies no normal need;
I like it.
It makes you thin, it makes you lean,
It takes the hair right off your bean,
It's the worst darn stuff I've ever seen—
I like it.

OUR OPINION

In The Sketch Book, Washington Irving uses an old quotation, "If that severe doom of Synesius be true—"It is a greater offense to steal dead men's labor, than their clothes, what shall become of most writers?" We feel the same way about this publication, and if the dream Irving describes were to come true we should have past editors and managers let loose upon us and stripping us of our stolen garments. But as we can't all be original we can fix up some of the same old material so as to please, we hope, the eyes of the present college generation.

We feel a certain pleasure in perpetuating ourselves in a volume,—a kind of paternal pride, if the offspring be a handsome fellow; otherwise we run the risk of becoming notorious rather than famous.

The Staff has worked splendidly and with willingness—that is, some of them have. However, for the benefit of coming editors we recommend that the societies and fraternities use care in selecting the men who are to represent them on the Board by electing only those who will honor the organization they represent by consistent labor.

Having perused, with pleasure, we trust, thus far the pages of this book, we wish you to continue even through the advertisements, which we are sure will be to your advantage as well as to those who advertise with us.

Cy Thompson Says: DO YOU KNOW HOW TO GROW OLD?

To know how to grow old, it has been said, is the master work of wisdom and the most difficult chapter in the great art of fine living.

From youth to the autumn of life there are two paths. Prudence and wisdom are requisites for the way of success, while shiftlessness drives a vast army of stragglers along the highway of indifference and ultimate failure.

More than half a century of statistics informs us that only three men in every one hundred are self-supporting at the age of 65, and that ninety-seven out of every one hundred are absolutely dependent upon others for the common necessities of life when they reach this milestone. This would indicate that only 3 per cent of the 50,000,000 men in the United States know how to grow old successfully.

From 16 to 25 years of age has been termed the "wild oats" period. It is during this period that the egotistical son thinks that he knows more than his father.

During this second period of this anthropologic evolution, from 25 to 35 years of age, he begins to realize that he knows very little.

From 35 to 40 is known as the crystallization period; and if the individual has not worked out the formula for success at 40 there is little hope for him.

During the next half decade, from 40 to 45, more than 74 per cent of all men meet with reverses which result in the loss of their entire accumulations. The age of 45 is said to be the danger line in every man's life.

At the age of 50 only one in every 5,000 men is able to recover his financial footing and independence. At 60 more than 95 per cent of all men are dependent upon their daily earnings, their children, other relatives, or charity for support.

And, finally, when this struggling army of humanity reaches 65 the barometer of success indicates that only three in every one hundred have made ample provision for an independent future.

It is an early start on the right road in life that gives some men such a seemingly large advantage over others; but this is nothing more than an early acquaintance with thrift.

One agency especially designed to help the young man fill his storehouse for the future is life insurance. The young man who wisely provides himself with an endowment maturing at age 65, or at any age at which he seeks retirement, need not fear the future. If you will now line up with the New England, this fine old legal reserve ship will help you to weather all of life's storms, and the policy will serve as a passport to the harbor of independence. The opportunity is now open to you, tomorrow may be too late. Delays are dangerous. Write today.
