The Creeping Kaffir.

The sun was shining brightly down on the farmyard, and under a large willow tree a number of rooibekkjes small, red beaked birds—were feeding. Suddenly a Kaffir appeared and fell on his knees about ten yards behind the birds. He crept a yard nearer, but if I had not been watching him very closely I could have sworn that he did not move. The man seemed to be all in one piece. He moved entirely, not in sections of knees and legs and arms and upper body. Then he winked at me, so certain was he of the success

THE FIRST CLOCKS. One at Padua That Was a Wonder of Mechanism It was, we are told, in 1309 that the first clock known to the world was placed in the tower of San Eustargio, in Milan.

The greatest astonishment and admiration were manifested by crowds who flocked to see the timepiece. In 1344 a clock was installed in the pal-ace of the nobles at Padua. This was a wonder of mechanism indeed, for be sides indicating the hours it showed the course of the sun, the revolutions of the planets the various phases of the moon, the months and the fetes of the year.

The period of the evolution from the clock to the watch was seventy-one years--not so very long, all things considered-and the record of the first watch is 1380. A half century later an alarm clock made its appearance. This, we are told, was looked upon

This, we are told, was looked upon by the people of that age as "un in-strument prodigieux." The fortunate possessor of this clock was Andrea Alciato, a councillor of Milan. The chroniclers have placed on record that this clock sounded a bell at a stated hour and at the same bell at a stated hour, and at the same time a little wax candle was lighted automatically. How this was done we are not told, but it must not be overlooked that until about seventy years ago we had no means of obtaining a light other than the tinder box, so that the Milanese must have been centuries ahead of us in this respect. Not much progress was made with the watch until 1740, when the second hand was added .-- London Globe

The Skin of My Teeth In the book of Job appears the sen tence, "I am escaped with the skin of my teeth," which is modernized "by the skin of my teeth" and gives the idea of a narrow escape, one so close as to be just by the thickness of the skin on the teeth, which is so thin that no microscopist has yot been able to find it. "To cast in the teeth" means to throw defiant reproaches or insults spitefully, as one would cast a stone at the exposed teeth of a snarling dog. "Tooth and nail" denotes the manner of an action full of frenzied fury, typified by biting and scratching, as when two belligerent cats make the fur fly.
