This talk was held during the speed geeking session the Chapter's village on Friday 20130809 at Wikimania Hongkong. It gives you some impressions on an event format we have created to bring local GLAM institutions and their supporters together with local Wikipedians. So far we only had one station on our „GLAM on Tour“. The stop was Braunschweig in middle Germany. The event started Friday night and went on until Sunday noon. But there are more to come like: Görlitz and Hamburg in this fall. For further information please get in touch with us sending an email to kultur@wikimedia.de.

Fokus of this GLAM event was the upcoming exhibition of the Braunschweigisches Landesmuseum „Die Römer kommen“ in September this year. Through the event the GLAM institution wanted to spur further articles on topics around that exhibition in the Wikipedia illustrating them with good photos. So they invited roughly 20 Wikipedians to come to the excavation site. Where they were shown about by the archeologists leading the excavation.

Back in the museum an edit-a-thon starteted. Wikipedians and scientist came together. Here a lecture is hold on Roman history in order to inspire the edition on articles. Until now 15 articles were newly edited or worked upon.

After the talk everybody had a chance to edit in the Wikipedia supported by our „musketeers“ alias Wikipedians. Young and old made itself familiar with the idea that people like themselves are writing the Wikipedia and sharing their knowledge for free.
