

RESURRECTION DAY IS DESCRIBED BY MR. EDMONDS

Presbyterian Divine Talks On Days of the Crucifixion

Rev. W. E. Edmonds preached an Easter day sermon at the Presbyterian church from the words, "He is not here, He is risen. He said in part: "The saddest day the world ever saw was that day between the crucifixion and the resurrection. All the hope of this old earth were locked in that tomb with a dead Saviour. Those disciples felt "this is the end."

Verdugo, down to the company of several hundred persons who had gathered in the wonderful morning air to worship and do honor to the risen Lord, Jesus Christ.

BURBANK TO TEST SEWER BOND ISSUE

Date of Election Set for May 16 by Town Trustees

May 16 is the day which the city board of trustees has set for the election on the issuance of bonds for a sewer. This step was taken at the last meeting held Tuesday night. It will be a special election to submit to the voters the proposition of incurring indebtedness for the acquisition, construction and completion of a sewer farm and the acquisition of the lands necessary, upon which to construct the sewer plant. This matter was submitted in the form of an ordinance which passed unanimously on first reading. It has been about a year since the city voted on sewer bonds and while they were passed, a technicality prevented completion of the plans.

The newly elected trustees will be sworn into office Monday night at a special meeting and the following night will be ready to take up their duties.

At the board meeting the application was received for the position of building, plumbing and electrical inspector, filed by H. A. Stolper. The matter was laid over for action by the new board. Eby & Boone were before the board in reference to the improvement of the intersections of Santa Anita, Verdugo, Tujunga and Angeleno avenues with Tenth and Eleventh streets, and stated they would do this work for $1472. The matter was laid over.

JOHNSON DESIGNS MAYO FACTORY

New Burbank Industry Is Ready to Begin Operations on Completion

Plans which have been drawn by A. J. Johnson for the factory for Mayo, Inc., have been accepted and it is expected that work will begin for this building soon, as it is understood that the construction work must be completed within 60 days. Hubbs & Goodrich are assisting in the financing of the building and will do the work of putting up the plant, which will be located at First street and Tujunga avenue. Hollow tile will be the material used and the size will be 50x50 feet with offices and work rooms and a ladies' rest room. The officers of the company say they will employ 30 to 40 women when they begin operating.

The plant here is a finishing factory, putting out what is known as gut, used for sewing, after surgical operations. The material used is sheep intestines. The work of preparing the material will be done in Los Angeles and the refined product, which is sealed in tubes by the use of blow torches, will be brought here for the finishing process. The product is shipped not only over the entire United States but to foreign countries as well. The officers of the company say there is now $5000 worth of material in Los Angeles ready to be shipped here as soon as the factory can be made ready.

HISTORY OF CITY TO BE WRITTEN BY OLD TIMER

J. C. Sherer, Pioneer of Glendale Is Working on Big Volume

What promises to be the finest thing of its kind ever gotten out in any city of its size in this United States is the history of Glendale and vicinity, now being written by J. C. Sherer, one of this city's "old-timers." This history will be illustrated with views, historic and modern, and will be issued in one octavo volume, printed on fine book paper, attractive and substantial, bound in half leather and gold embossed. The number of copies will be limited by the number of orders taken in advance. It is understood that more than 100 orders have been received to date, and deliveries will be made within a reasonable time after the orders are taken without designating a specific date.

There probably is no one in Glendale better equipped in every way to write a history of the city than J. C. Sherer, who has been a resident of Glendale for the past 35 years, all of which time he has been actively connected with the affairs of the community. For 20 years he was chief operator in Los Angeles for the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies, and throughout that entire time he drove to and from between his home and Los Angeles daily, the old bay mare being the means of locomotion. He was one of the organizers of the California Fruit exchange in 1894, and on June 26, 1905, he assisted in organizing the Bank of Glendale, the first banking institution in this city, and of this organization he was the first cashier. At its organization this bank was located on Glendale avenue just north of what was then Fourth street, and was later moved to the corner of Glendale avenue and Wilson, which was then Third street.

He remained with the bank until he purchased the Glendale News from E. M. McClure on January 1, 1907. He was editor and publisher of a local weekly newspaper for six years, and after disposing of the paper he was in the real estate business for one year. In 1914 he became city clerk of Glendale and occupied that position until taking over the duties of city treasurer, which position he now occupies.

Mr. Sherer knows Glendale. He has seen it grow from a little country village, when every one knew every one else, to a thriving city of almost 30,000, which is growing so rapidly that it is now impossible for any one to keep pace with new arrivals.

Mr. Sherer stated this morning that his work of compiling this work will be completed possibly two months, after which the work of publication will be hurried to completion. Mr. Sherer requests of the old-timers of Glendale and vicinity any reminiscences of their early experiences, which he will be pleased to edit into a chapter of the work under the heading of "Reminiscences."

and Hyperion streets in Los Angeles. He was missed from his home, 3018 Rowena avenue, Tuesday, and the police were notified, searching for 24 hours before finding the body. Chief Deputy Coroner McDonald ordered the body sent here to the Fillbach parlors.

BANK EXECUTIVE DISCUSSES THE EGG PLAN

Austin O. Martin of First National Tells of New Organization

A movement tending to a better method of distribution for the surplus eggs produced on the Pacific coast has recently culminated in the formation of the Pacific Egg Producers, a selling agency for the marketing of Pacific coast eggs.

This new organization consists of the following five co-operative associations, which have been marketing the eggs of their local producer members for some time: Washington Co-operative Egg and Poultry Association of Seattle, Wash., serving the principal poultry districts of the state; Pacific Co-operative Poultry Producers of Portland, Ore., serving poultrymen in Oregon and Idaho; Poultry Producers of Central California of San Francisco, Inc., with members chiefly in Sonoma, Marin, San Francisco, Alameda, Santa Cruz, and San Benito counties of California; Poultry Producers of Southern California, Inc., with territory including producers in Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, and Northern San Diego counties; and Poultry Producers of San Diego, Inc., serving San Diego county poultry producers.

The largest of these associations is that at San Francisco, which includes the famous Petaluma district in Sonoma county. The Washington association is the second largest and is growing fast; while the one at Los Angeles is third in size. The San Diego and Portland associations are about the same size, being somewhat smaller than the others.

An agreement has been entered into by which all the eggs handled by the associations mentioned above, which are to be marketed through this general selling agency. By exporting its product to the markets outside of the district in which they are produced. The aim of this new organization is to secure a better distribution of the surplus product for the members of the several associations, thus benefitting both producer and consumer, as well as economizing in the marketing operations by handling this export business by one large selling agency, rather than through five smaller ones as has been the case in the past few years.

The formation of Pacific Egg Producers is of especial interest to the Pacific-Southwest because of the location of two of the five associations on the coast in this section, the Poultry Producers of Southern California, Inc., being in Los Angeles, and the Poultry Producers of San Diego, Inc., being in San Diego. The local association handled 4,700,000 dozen eggs last year; and production in Southern California counties is increasing rapidly.

This increase in production emphasizes the importance of developing new markets along with which must go improvement of the pack and stabilization of the market; if poultry producers are to continue to receive remunerative prices for their product. Every effort is being made by these co-operative organizations to maintain a high-grade and quality of product and to furnish good, fresh eggs at a reasonable price throughout the year. The new organization which is just being formed will undoubtedly do much to stimulate and improve the egg producing industry of the Pacific Southwest, as well as of the whole Pacific coast.

The general office of the agency is located in San Francisco and the business is being conducted on a purely co-operative basis, along lines similar to the California Fruit Growers' Exchange. The agency will receive its first consignments from the member associations in the first few days of April.

It was but a few years ago that the Pacific coast furnished a market for many carloads of eggs from the middle west. But at the present time an ever increasing surplus of eggs from the three Pacific coast states is being shipped to the eastern markets, of which New York city is the largest. The quantity absorbed in New York city alone during 1921 totaled many hundred carloads; while the above five associations shipped approximately 300,000 cases with a value of $3,600,000 to all eastern markets. The combined product of producers handled by these associations last year approximated ten million dollars.
