Harding and Coolidge Lead in Weymouth by 2183

Every precinct of Weymouth gave Harding and Coolidge a plurality, and they led in the town by 2183. The totals were:

Harding and Coolidge	3256
Cox and Roosevelt	1073

It will be seen the vote was over 3 to 1 Republican, an unprecedented majority, due largely to the women who voted for the first time, but without the women the vote would have been strongly Republican.

For Governor, Cox was 180 behind Harding, but led Walsh 3076 to 1065. Weymouth went Republican for every candidate, Frothingham leading Olney for Congress 2556 to 1712. In only one precinct did Olney have a plurality.

Wright had a plurality of 2072 over Boynton for Senator.

Representative Tirrell had a walk-over, but did not receive as many votes as Harding and Coolidge.

Voters generally did not observe that they were expected to vote for two County Commissioners, which accounts for the wide difference of Merrill and Richardson, who were both candidates for reelection. Fisher, the Independent, received only 507.

Weymouth went on record as opposed to the sale of 2.75 beer, by a vote of 1859 to 2061, but adopted the Police Act 2216 to 1037.

The total vote of Weymouth was 4604, the largest in Precincts Five and Three. The largest Republican vote was in Precincts Five and One and the largest Democratic in Precincts Six and Three. Wards Five and One gave the heaviest pluralities for Harding and Coolidge.

Precinct Four was the first to forward official returns to Town Clerk Merchant at 8.16. Precinct Three followed at 9.08 and Precinct Two at 9.34. Then it was a long wait for the other precincts, as Precinct 5 did not come until 11.00, Precinct Six at 11.35, and Precinct One at 12.16.

Massachusetts gave Harding and Coolidge a tremendous plurality, made a gain of two or more Congressmen, and elected the Republican State ticket with large Republican majorities in both the Senate and the House. In this district Elwin T. Wright of Rockland, the Republican nominee, was elected Senator by a large majority.

John F. Merrill and Eván F. Richardson were reelected County Commissioners, the vote being: Merrill 44,765, Richardson 36,024, Fisher 12,057.

WEYMOUTH MAN COMMISSIONER

Governor Coolidge in naming George L. Barnes of South Weymouth as Commissioner for Savings Bank Life Insurance is peculiarly appropriate. Mr. Barnes was a member of the Reeves Committee of the Massachusetts Legislature in 1906 which recommended the establishment of the savings bank insurance system. His long legislative experience as a member of the House of Representatives for three years, and as a member of the Massachusetts Senate for two years, as well as his intimate contact with banking insurance affairs (as director of the South Weymouth Co-operative Bank; director and president of the Weymouth Trust Company; director of the Quincy Trust Company; trustee of the South Weymouth Savings Bank; director of the Dedham Mutual Fire Insurance Company, and counsel for the Massachusetts Mutual Fire Insurance Union) renders him exceptionally well qualified for the duties of his new office. As Commissioner for Savings Bank Insurance Mr. Barnes gives his services to the State without compensation, it being provided in the Savings Bank Insurance Law (passed in 1907) that the savings bank trustees having jurisdiction of this system shall serve without pay.

In the twelve years since the system was put into practical operation more than $2,000,000 have been received from policyholders in premiums, more than $348,000 have been paid in death claims; $310,000 have been paid to policyholders as dividends, and $135,899 have been paid to policyholders in cash on surrender of their policies.

The institution is non-political; non-sectarian; non-commercial; and is the only institution of its kind in the United States.

CLAPP MEMORIAL NOTES

Basketball fans will be pleased to know that Joe Mahoney, the fast forward for the C. M. A. quintet, will appear in every game, unless some unforeseen obstacle should prevent his doing so. Rumor had it that Joe could only play on Fridays. This should tend to boost the standing of the club this season.

The Ladies Bowling tournament is attracting a number of women to the C. M. A. alleys on Monday and Thursday evenings. The prize of a large turkey will be given the winner of the ten highest consecutive strings. The ten strings may be the first ten, the last ten or ten strings in the middle of the tournament.

Watertown Plan Favored For Weymouth

No one voted in favor of a city government at the open meeting of the Weymouth Board of Trade on Wednesday evening, but the 69 to 79 men and women present were unanimous for the Watertown plan of limited town meetings, that is, town meetings where the business is transacted by delegates elected for three years in the different precincts.

It was one of the best meetings held in recent years under the auspices of the Board of Trade, several women as well as men accepting the invitation, to learn of different forms of town government.

Selectman Frederick Humphrey, the president, was in the chair. He said at the outset that a change was forced upon the town, because we have no large Town Hall, and no hall that will seat over 800. It had been impossible in recent years to accommodate the men, and now we have as many more women voters. A committee on town government had reported at the last annual meeting, but no action was taken. Tonight we have a speaker from Watertown, who will be introduced by Representative Prince H. Tirrell.

Mr. Tirrell understood there were but two articles in the warrant for the special town meeting. We are not prepared to discuss a city form of government tonight, but a representative town government seemed desirable. Though Watertown form preferable to Winthrop, because the referendum was general.

Curtis Bixby, for five years on the board of Selectmen of Watertown, was then introduced. He was enthusiastic over the government of his town and explained it at length, saying that it was generally satisfactory and that marked progress had been made. When the special act of the Legislature was adopted Watertown's largest hall accommodated only 340, but now it was amply large enough to accommodate all the town meeting members and all citizens who desired to attend the meetings. Citizens were privileged to speak on improvements in which they were interested, but only the members could vote.

Watertown is small in area, only four square miles, but we have a population of 22,500 and 8700 voters. In Weymouth, as in Watertown, after nearly 300 years, it would be almost a crime to give up a town government for a city. In a city the people lost control, but not so under our form of town government.

The town is divided into six precincts with 20 town meeting members from each precinct, 19 being elected each year. Certain town officials are also members, the total being 242. For ten years the town had had a finance committee which is continued and is a valuable adjunct. All articles in the town warrant are first considered by the finance committee and then report is generally adopted. All departments are held strictly within their appropriations.

Now that the women are voting the representation will probably be changed from one in three, to one in six, and the precincts increased to ten. He favored reducing the finance committee from 21 to 7. Voters can petition within five days for a referendum on any appropriation.

Questions were asked by H. A. Day, M. Sheehy, Selectmen Hawes and Humphrey, W. A. Pratt and others. He said town affairs were carried on as in town government. He was strongly opposed to the town manager form. Did not think it successful except with an exceptional man with a strong backing of prominent citizens. Town meeting members were generally regular in attendance. He told how they were elected, how streets were laid out and improvements made, how the fire and police departments were conducted, how property was assessed etc. Thought four years long enough for Selectmen and members of school committee to serve.

Ex-Selectman E. W. Hunt and Town Counsel William Holbrook also spoke in favor of representative town meetings, and votes were then taken as above.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Bixby.

MEETING OF SELECTMEN

The Selectmen at their meeting this week received complaints that oily substances are cast upon the shores at North Weymouth, probably from the Oil plant at East Braintree. Referred to Board of Health and State Board of Health.

Complaint was also made that the Weymouth Light and Power Co. had mutilated shade trees. Hereafter permission to cut trees must be obtained from the tree warden.

Six men were appointed to check the voters as they attend the special town meeting.

The Transportation Committee was requested to have distinguishing lights placed on the Pleasant street jitney at night.

Permission was given to play football on Sundays at the Weymouth Fairgrounds.

On Wednesday the Selectmen certified to the vote of various candidates in Weymouth on Tuesday.

SHIPYARD STRIKE

The striking riveters at the Fore River shipyard have been notified by General Manager Wakenam to return to work or forfeit their jobs. It has been necessary to lay off other men because of the strike.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

British Cabinet Succeeds in Its Efforts to Settle the Coal Miners' Strike.

EMERGENCY ACT IS PASSED

Government Ready for Any Contingency—Irish Everywhere Deeply Affected by MacSwiney's Death—Prince Paul Offered Greek Throne—American Farmers' "Strike" by Holding Wheat.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

Excepting for our presidential campaign, of whose closing days there is little or nothing to say, the affairs of Great Britain supplied the most interesting and important news of the week. The strike of the coal miners, with its threats of further and greater economic troubles, added to the Irish problem, gave the British enough to worry over and these two matters continued to draw the attention, sympathetic or otherwise, of the English-speaking world.

Prime Minister Lloyd George and his cabinet were unremittent in their efforts to settle the miners' strike, and on Thursday it was announced that they had succeeded, if the miners would accept the plan. After repeated conferences with the labor leaders a tentative agreement was reached.

The settlement upon which the miners' delegates, coal mine owners, and the government are agreed is a very complicated one. Briefly the men get a sliding advance of two shillings to one shilling six pence, according to age as was originally demanded.

The miners and owners solemnly pledge to co-operate to secure an increased output of coal. National and district committees are to be established immediately to control the output and a joint national wage board will be established at the earliest possible time before March 31 for regulation of wages for the whole industry, with regard to profits of the industry and the principles on which profits should be dealt with.

The miners' executive committee was to submit the settlement to the miners' federation for approval, so the return of the men to the pits will not be delayed.

The railway men and transport workers, in view of the hopeful character of the negotiations, postponed any action looking to a sympathetic strike.

Though very optimistic, the government made ready for all contingencies by rushing through to final passage its emergency bill. This arms the government with added powers to enforce the law in case the strike continues and the rail and transport men become involved. Though it was passed by a large majority, some concessions were demanded and received by the labor party. The law as enacted provides that nothing in the act shall be construed as authorizing the proclamation of any form of compulsory military service or industrial conscription or make it an offense for any person to participate in a strike or peacefully persuade any other person to participate in a strike.

Terence MacSwiney, lord mayor of Cork, finally succeeded in starving himself to death in Brixton jail, a "martyr" in the cause of Irish freedom. The second death among the hunger strikers in prison in Cork also was recorded. These events deeply stirred all the Irish, in Ireland and America as well, and there were numerous masses and other ceremonies in connection with the deaths. The British authorities took every precaution to guard against outbreaks, and presumably they were seconded in this by the wiser among the Sinn Fein leaders. For the latter know that these would bring on more reprisals and further repression.

The coroner's inquest on MacSwiney was held Wednesday. The British jury refused to accept the position that MacSwiney was a suicide, bringing in a verdict that "The deceased died from heart failure due to a dilated heart and acute delirium, following scurvy due to exhaustion from prolonged refusal to take food." The body was then taken to St. George's cathedral in Southwark, where it lay in state. Thursday requiem high mass was said and then a tremendous throng of Irish and their sympathizers accompanied the casket to Euston station, whence it was taken to Cork. In that city arrangements were made for the final ceremonies on Sunday, and there was a great deal of uneasiness over what might occur. The authorities placed no limit on the size of the procession, forbidding only military formations. The people of Cork were said to be in sullen and threatening mood.

The Irish sympathizers in the United States are not letting up any in their activities. The other day a delegation of them, headed by Frank P. Walsh, presented to Secretary of State Colby arguments favoring the recognition of the "new republic of Ireland." Mr. Colby listened without comment, but cautioned Mr. Walsh, when reference was made to Eamonn de Valera as "president" of Ireland, that as secretary of state he could hear them only on the understanding that they were there as American citizens and not as representatives of officials of the Irish people.

"We demand recognition, not as a favor," said Mr. Walsh, "but as a right. The Irish republic is now established as a de jure and de facto government. Its stability and representative character are attested by the endorsement of the ballots of 90 per cent of the Irish people. The courts of the Irish republic are functioning daily and their decisions are respected by the entire population."

Though not so important an event as it would have been before the World War, the death of the king of Greece may lead to developments of some moment in that country. Alexander died on Monday as the result of a monkey bite. The state council at once decided that the throne should be offered to his younger brother, Prince Paul, but stipulated that if he accepted former King Constantine must formally renounce his claim to the crown. Paul let it be known that his decision must be made by his father. There is a chance that if he declines the throne will be offered to Prince Christopher, Constantine's brother, who early in the year married Mrs. William B. Leeds, an American. Still more likely, however, is the establishment of a republic, probably with Premier Venizelos as its first president.

The expected concerted movement of the Reds against Baron Wrangel in southern Russia has not developed very rapidly, possibly because the Bolsheviks are too much occupied in combating revolts within the territory which they control. The latest of these outbreaks are reported to be in the regions of Odessa, Kherson and Podolia. That the situation in the Moscow district is serious for the soviet government is indicated by the fact that Dzersjinski, president of the extraordinary executive committee, has been appointed commander in chief of all the troops there. He is the most brutal of all the Bolshevik leaders and is considered responsible for much of the Red terrorism and for many murders.

Meanwhile Wrangel continues to inflict defeats on his adversaries and to capture prisoners and material; and he does not seem to have lost any ground to the Reds.

The all-Russian soviet has ratified the peace treaty with Poland, and has given the Poles more territory than they asked for first, in return for a pledge not to help Wrangel.

Being informed by their military missions in Lithuania that large bodies of well equipped German troops were crossing into that country from East Prussia and concentrating in the Kovno region, the allies protested to Berlin, but the German foreign office replied that it was powerless to prevent the movement. It was supposed the Germans were preparing to assist the Lithuanians in an offensive against the Poles. The plan, apparently, is first to drive Zellgouski out of Vilna and then sweep southward to Suwalki, Grodno and the Ossowicze fortress. The matter of Vilna was referred to a plebiscite by the council of the League of Nations.

Last Tuesday the council adopted the plan for a permanent court of international justice recommended by The Hague committee of jurists, with the exception of the provision for obligatory jurisdiction. The plan was in large measure the work of Elihu Root. The council closed its session Thursday.

Some of the farmers of Kansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska and the Northwestern states began last week their "strike" against the low price of wheat on the Chicago board of trade. Following the instructions of their organization leaders, they are withholding their wheat from the market, and the effect of decreased receipts began to be felt at once. In the vicinity of Wichita, Kan., farmers picketed the roads, urging those on their way to the elevators to turn back.

The wheat raisers of Iowa were urged to take part in the "strike" by E. A. Cunningham, secretary of the state farm bureau, who said the Iowa wheat crop cost $1.88 a bushel to harvest and the oats crop cost 75 cents a bushel. He blamed manipulation for the recent sharp declines in prices of grain. "There is no justification for the tremendous break in the market," he said. "We believe a reaction must come. We urge every farmer to withhold his commodities."

"The situation cannot become more serious and a further decline can do nothing more than to add to the seriousness of the situation. On the other hand, a reasonable reaction would probably avoid financial ruin."

The farmers are asked by Mr. Cunningham to buy nothing but essentials. Farmers complain that they have to pay high rates to borrow money to handle the bumper crops.

Meanwhile Canadian wheat, which is coming into the United States duty free for milling purposes, is being bought in large quantities by mills and exporters in this country. The duty on Canadian wheat was taken off by President Wilson at the suggestion of Wheat Director J. H. Barnes in the effort to reduce the cost of living. It was expected that in this way our millers would be enabled to lower the price of flour; the effect was limited, however.

For the first time since he was taken ill more than a year ago President Wilson delivered a speech on Wednesday. A group of pro-league Republicans, headed by Hamilton Holt, called on him in the White House, and in response to their address he spoke, from his wheel chair, in defense of the league covenant as he brought it from Paris. In upholding article 10 he said: "It is the specific pledge of the members of the league that they will unite to resist exactly the things which Germany attempted, no matter who attempts them in the future. It is as exact a definition as could be given in general terms of the outrage which Germany would have committed if it could."

Instead of being a threat of war, he said later, article 10 is "an assurance of the concert of all the free peoples of the world in the future, as in the recent past, to see justice done and humanity protected and vindicated. This is the true, the real Americanism. This is the role of leadership and championship of the right which the leaders of the republic intended that it should play. The so-called Americanism which we hear so much prating about now is spurious and invented for party purposes only."

One sporting event closed last week and another began. In the international balloon race, in this country, the Belgian entry Belgica was declared the winner. On Saturday there was a contest between the fishing schooners Esperanto and Delawanna, the representatives respectively of the New England and Canadian fleets. The contest is officially recognized by the governments of this country and the Dominion.

RULES OF UNCLE SAM ON CIDER

THEY TELL WHAT MAY AND WHAT MAY NOT BE DONE WITH APPLE JUICE.

IF HARD, PERMIT IS NEEDED

Then It Is Classed as An Intoxicating Drink—What to Do If You Buy It Sweet and It Ferments Beyond the Volstead Limit.

By JAMES P. HORNADAY.

Washington.—"Watch your cider," is a caution put out by the internal revenue bureau, the branch of the federal government responsible for the enforcement of the prohibition legislation. "For the benefit of all concerned," the bureau has issued the following instructions:

"Section 1 of Title II of the national prohibition act defines 'intoxicating liquor' and the definition is held to include hard or fermented cider containing half of 1 per cent or more of alcohol by volume. Any person desiring to manufacture such hard or fermented cider for conversion into vinegar or for any other legal nonbeverage purpose is required to qualify by giving bond and procuring a permit. Such hard or fermented cider may be sold only in quantities of five wine gallons or more by one qualified permittee to another permittee pursuant to permit to purchase. Full instructions for the procurement and shipment of such intoxicating liquor under permit to purchase will be found in article 8 of regulations 60.

"It is illegal to possess, except in the home, cider containing one-half of 1 per cent or more alcohol by volume without a permit. If a person purchases cider for commercial use containing less than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol by volume, and such cider later develops a greater alcoholic content than permitted by law, the person so possessing such cider in good faith may apply for a permit to dispose of the same to another permittee, as above provided.

Alcohol Mustn't Increase.

"Where the alcoholic content of sweet cider is kept at all times below one-half of 1 per cent by volume, the manufacturer or vendor is not required to give bond or secure a permit either to ship or sell. Such sweet cider, however, should be sterilized or preserved and be put up in sterilized glass bottles or other similar closed containers to insure the alcoholic content remaining less than one-half of 1 per cent by volume until consumption. Cider containing less than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol by volume put up in closed containers by the manufacturer for sale as a soft drink is subject to a tax of 10 per cent of the sales price under section 628 of the revenue act of 1918."

Manufacturers who sell sweet cider in bulk containers such as barrels for use as a soft drink must pay the tax thereon and are held responsible for preserving and marketing it in such manner as will insure the alcoholic content remaining less than one-half of 1 per cent by volume until consumed. If the cider is found upon the market containing one-half of 1 per cent or more of alcohol by volume, the burden of proof is upon the manufacturer to show that such liquid contained less than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol by volume at the time it was manufactured or sold by him, or withdrawn from the place manufactured.

Rules for Sweet Cider.

As to sweet cider, the bureau says: "Sweet apple cider containing less than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol by volume may be sold in bulk containers, such as barrels, for use in the manufacture of vinegar or apple butter, without payment of tax thereon, but the vendee must furnish a written order showing the kind and quantity to be furnished and that the alcoholic content is to be less than one-half of 1 per cent by volume, and the names and addresses of the vendee and vendor, respectively. These orders must be permanently filed by the vendor in alphabetical order and be open to inspection by internal revenue and prohibition officers. A label showing the same data as the order must be affixed to each container. The entries covering such sales on the records required to be kept and the returns to be made, if any, by regulations 52 and 53, respectively, pertaining to soft drinks should be in red ink."

Sweet cider direct from the press may be sold to customers by the glass or in other open containers without payment of sales tax, provided it is not mixed or compounded with any other ingredient and is sold for consumption at the place of business of seller or in proximity to such place of business. Farmers and other persons, without obtaining permit or giving bond, may take fresh apples or other fresh fruit to a commercial mill for the purpose of having the juice expressed therefrom, and such fresh juice of the fruit containing less than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol by volume may be removed for use in the home exclusively. Dried fruits, such as raisins, may not legally be used in the manufacture of such nonintoxicating fruit juices exclusively for use in the home.

Miss Boardman's Important Job.

Men who are in touch with the trend of the times say it is evident that women will not be slow about taking an important part in government, federal, state and municipal.

It is generally understood that immediately after the November elections the women everywhere will begin to ask for places of trust, if not of profit, in the service of their government. Privately many of the men politicians frown on this new manifestation, but they admit that publicly they will have to recognize the right of women to insist on their share of the appointive offices. In the near future, it is predicted, the women will insist on and obtain their share of the elective offices.

The outgoing administration here at Washington has shown an inclination to recognize the women without delay. The new President, whoever he may be, will have to take notice of the precedent set by his predecessor. The three important appointive places now held by women here are assistant to the attorney general, member of the civil service commission, and member of the board of commissioners for the District of Columbia. The District commissionership to which Miss Mabel Boardman was recently appointed, will, it is generally predicted, offer a genuine opportunity to test the ability of a woman to administer the affairs of an important office. The district is governed by a board of three commissioners, two of whom are appointed from civil life by the President and one of whom is detailed from the army.

Governing Capital Big Task.

Governing the capital of the nation is no unimportant task. The District of Columbia and the city of Washington, in a very real sense, belong to the people of the whole country, and so it is that the government of the District is subject to a considerable extent to the scrutiny of the whole people through their representatives in congress.

Miss Boardman brings to the office to which she has been appointed years of experience as an administrative officer of the American Red Cross. To her more than any other one person belongs the credit for the reorganization of the Red Cross, following the retirement of Clara Barton as the head of the organization. She was secretary of the Red Cross at the time of her appointment as District commissioner.

Miss Boardman believes that women should prepare themselves to take their share of civic responsibilities and for a certain degree of official service. "I believe that this official service will be more apt to function in municipal than in federal government," said she in discussing the future responsibilities of women. "Municipal affairs have a closer and more immediate contact with the home in certain of their phases. Matters of public health, schools, playgrounds, markets, and charities are all questions in which women are greatly interested. Their own experiences and training, especially when the questions concern their families and their children, will make their service of value to the community."

For Disabled Women, Also.

Any woman, no matter what her work in life, may receive training for a new occupation, if she becomes incapacitated for carrying on her former occupation. She has only to apply to the state board for vocational education in states which are co-operating with the federal government. The state boards administer the terms of the industrial rehabilitation act, but they must submit plans annually for the approval of the federal board at Washington.

"The interesting question is," said Lewis H. Carris, assistant director for industrial rehabilitation, federal board for vocational education, "how many women will need rehabilitation? The law applies to all persons, men and women, whether working for a wage or not, who need to be returned to a useful occupation. It applies to women in the hazardous occupations of industry. It also applies to women in the home."

The 1910 census showed more than 25,000,000 women not engaged in wage-earning, but probably busy in their own homes. A woman accustomed to doing her own cooking, sweeping and washing may injure her back so that she cannot continue such heavy work. She may then receive training in some trade which requires only the use of her hands and earn the money to pay somebody else to do her housework.

The statisticians dealing with this subject classify accidents as industrial, or those arising out of industry or employment; home, or those occurring in and around the home; and public, or those met in public places. They roughly estimate that one-half of all fatal accidents are public accidents; one-fourth, industrial, and one-fourth in the home, and say that of the 45,000 accidental deaths in the United States annually only one-fourth are females.

Accident insurance and workmen's compensation experience show that there are approximately 125 nonfatal but more or less disabling injuries to every fatal injury. It seems possible that women suffer as many accidents in the home as men. They would probably suffer fewer accidents in public places because they travel about less. Women in industry are a tremendously increasing number.

Mrs. Anna Lalor Burdick, agent of the federal board for vocational training for girls and women, says in her 1919-1920 annual report that today there are approximately 2,400,000 women engaged in mechanical and manufacturing pursuits. The report states further that the increase in the number of women workers in the different industries since 1916 is reported as follows: Iron and steel, 40 per cent; automobile, 300 per cent; instrument making, 200 per cent; woodworking, 100 per cent.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

CHILDREN FOR CHILDREN.

"I want to tell you a story," said Daddy, "of some various things children have done for children. I told you, if I remember rightly, of some tableaux which some children by the seashore gave for children through a fresh air fund so they could get out into the country."

"Yes," said Nancy, "you told us about that, and how we could act the tableaux and you explained to us that tableaux were like pictures where everyone stood quite still who was in the tableau to make it look like an old picture or a new picture anyone might make up and act."

"And," said Nick, "we're getting up some tableaux to be given in the Thanksgiving holidays. We're practicing now, and we're taking our time about it, you see, so the entertainment will be very fine."

"Ah," said Daddy, "tell me something about it."

"We're going to give them and turn over the money we make for dinners among the newsboys and some other children for Thanksgiving."

"Good idea," said Daddy. "I wasn't going to tell you so much of a story tonight, as I was going to give you a little free advice."

Daddy laughed, and so did Nick and Nancy.

"You've always such a nice way of letting us into the secret, Daddy," said Nick. "You don't advise us and pretend that we don't know that you know it's for our good. You tell us so quite frankly so we never mind."

Daddy smiled. "Go on, Daddy dear," said Nancy, "and tell us about the different things we could do to help other causes and the things we must not do and so forth and so on."

"In the first place," said Daddy, "you don't mind if I take up your story time with all this advice and all these suggestions? I do think they'd rather help, still—"

"No, we don't mind," said Nancy, "for you'll be telling us another kind of a story tomorrow night, and I think we might like a few suggestions about giving things, entertainments and so forth for causes. We seem to feel that we need some advice and some suggestions, Daddy."

"In the very first place of all," said Daddy, "I think it is very nice to give entertainments for the benefit and help of those who aren't so fortunate as you are."

"And I think it is lovely to think of well children helping sick children, and happy children helping to make sad children glad."

"It is nice to give entertainments in the summer to help get children out into the country where it is cool and when otherwise they would have to stay in the city.

"Out Into the Country."

"And in the winter it is fine to help give Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners for those who aren't so lucky as you are."

"But there is so much you must be careful of. Always pick out a charity which you have found out to be one of the best conducted charities where very little money goes for the expenses of getting the affair together so that practically all can go to the cause."

"I don't mean you must choose charities which are run in a big way. But you must choose those which are run without thought as to whether a needy person or a needy child thinks just as you do or not. You must help all kinds, and you must help those where the organizations at the head are such as to be above and too big for little bits of petty fights and quarrels."

"When you go into affairs of this sort you must be kind to those who are helping you and ready to give everyone their full praise."

"You mustn't think of yourself and whether you are going to make the entertainment a success. You mustn't think of yourself at all, but only of the entertainment and the cause for which it is given."

"And above all things keep pleasant throughout. Then you will make others happy, yourself happy and the cause is far more apt to gain. But don't have things every five minutes or so, for you know your people may become tired of them! But I trust children to have lots of good sense about this as about other things," Daddy ended.

Condiment for Cold Lunch.

"What condiment would you suggest for a cold lunch?" "Why not try chili sauce?"

FARM POULTRY

LARGE INFLUENCE OF MALES

Selection of Roosters to Increase Egg Production Is Urged by Poultry Specialists.

Although poultry experts have long advocated culling non-producing hens, poultry workers at the College of Agriculture at Ithaca now advise the selection of roosters to increase egg production, according to an article in the Cornell Countryman. From experiments extending back for more than a year, it has been demonstrated that it is possible to determine from appearances the males which are most likely to produce the best-paying hens.

The difference in the appearance of males is comparable to the difference in the rate of growth and the intensity with which hens lay, according to the college. Some hens can lay an egg once in every 24 hours; others are not able to produce an egg oftener than once in 48 hours, although both have the same care and feed. If one hen can lay faster than another, it indicates that she can digest large amounts of feed quickly. The experiments at this point determine also the value of males as foundations of high-producing flocks.

The Cornell workers measured several lots of males a year ago, and by observing the records of the offspring, they say that they can tell from the appearance of the rooster whether his daughters will be good layers. Members of the college staff think the results of these experiments will have as much value in developing efficient poultry flocks as the original discovery that it was possible to determine by appearance which hens were laying.

A rooster to father egg-laying offspring should grow rapidly and mature quickly. He should appear deep bodied and short legged, full in breast and abdomen with a flat, wide back. His head should be moderately short, set on a large full neck, and with prominent eyes. A good male for breeding is friendly, courageous and proud of himself, calling attention to his pride by frequent crowing.

MAKE HEN FLOCK PROFITABLE

With Possible Exception of Leghorns Fowls Over Two Years Old Do Not Pay to Keep.

It seldom pays to keep hens for laying after they are two and one-half years old. This may not be true of Leghorns but is generally so of most other breeds. Hens older than this may return some profit but younger hens will return greater profits. In this day of high-priced feed, culling will make poultry more profitable.

VARIETY OF FEED ESSENTIAL

Every Flock of Hens Must Be Supplied With Necessary Material to Manufacture Eggs.

Every flock of hens is an egg factory. Like any other factory the flock can be given the best materials in the world to work on and still fail to produce enough to pay for running the plant. Good feed in sufficient variety is necessary for egg production, but the ability to manufacture eggs from feed must be there first.

COLONY HOUSE IS PREFERRED

Give Poultryman Chance to Raise His Fowls Under Ideal Conditions—Must Keep Clean.

Colony houses on free range give the poultryman a chance to raise his birds under ideal conditions. But the same sanitary precautions must be taken as with laying houses. The small houses must be frequently cleaned and sprayed and the roosts painted with kerosene or some lice paint to keep down the red mites.

NO PROFIT IN POOR LAYERS

Unprofitable Producers Should Be Culled Out to Save High-Priced Feed and Labor.

It pays to cull out the poor layers any time, to save the feed and labor they cost, but to make a profit on them it is best to cull in late summer or early fall, before the rush of spring chickens lowers the market price of old hens.

Is there any Preference in Tubes

WHEN an experienced motorist starts out to buy a tube, results and not reasons are what he is interested in.

What a tube has done means more to his way of thinking than how it is made or what kind of rubber it is made of.

Balance mere tube technicalities any time against the earned reputation of an organization like the United States Rubber Company, and it is easy to see where experienced motorists get their preference for U. S. Red Tubes.

CLUB and SOCIAL

MONDAY CLUB

Once more the Monday Club has held its annual Guest Night, and the one of Nov. 1 was certainly a happy one to judge by faces. Masonic hall itself gave a pleasant welcome, having graceful baskets of flowers hung to the light fixtures with ribbons of green, and the cases for uniforms all banked with green boughs. DeNeill's orchestra played at intervals while people were gathering, and being shown seats by the ushers. Mrs. Charles Hollis, Mrs. Henry Thiden, Mrs. Harry Beare, Mrs. Henry Cottill, Mrs. Arthur Bryant and Mrs. Walter Thompson.

Then the president, Mrs. Jewell, smilingly welcomed the guests with a few pleasant words, and introduced Mrs. Pray, who in turn introduced Mr. Whitney, who was to entertain the guests and members. He certainly did entertain them, for he took a four-act play, "A Square Deal" with a "too good to be true" hero, who did utterly impossible things while surrounded by a group of people of widely diversified ways, and put them before the listeners in their proper characters, so one felt as if a book had come to life.

After the entertainment all were invited to the banquet hall below which was also prettily dressed, and were served ice-cream and fancy cookies. Then came the dancing and the floor was filled with bright dresses and sombre suits. At some future Guest Night, when women have lifted some of the cares of State from the shoulders of weary men, the men may find time to choose "Satin doublet and silken hose, plumed hat and buckled shoe", so the hall may be still brighter, but this year people were satisfied with things as they appeared. The evening was warm and the dancers appreciated the punch which was served them by Mrs. Bicknell and her assistants.

"A good night, a good crowd, and a good time" was the spoken opinion of one guest and the thought of many others.

This was the pleasure, but a real work of the club for civic betterment will be helped by the first of the course of lectures on Civic affairs, which will be given at the home of Mrs. Abbie Beals, North Weymouth, on Friday afternoon at 2.30. It is hoped many women club members or otherwise will secure tickets for the course and attend all the meetings.

A few Weymouth friends of Mrs. Henry Lowell, formerly of South Weymouth, assisted her to observe her birthday Oct. 29, at the home of Mrs. John Greenwood of Park street, Dorchester, among them being Mrs. Lottie Tirrell, Mrs. May Vary and Mrs. Abbie Bradford.

A very pretty home wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Loud, 47 Torrey street, South Weymouth, when Miss Ruth A. Wheeler, a former student at Framingham Normal school, was married to Frank E. Loud Jr. The bride was attended by Miss Helen Sawyer of Roxbury. The best man was Newton G. Loud, a brother of the groom. The double ring service was used. Rev. Mr. Reid, Miss Wheeler's pastor from Lexington, and formerly of Fairhaven, performed the ceremony. The happy couple received beautiful remembrances from their many friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Loud took the train Sunday night for a trip thru Washington, D. C., New Orleans and on to California, where they will make an extended visit with the bride's parents in the town of Brea, whence they went about eight years ago on account of ill-health.

On the program of the Old Colony Club at its regular meeting yesterday was a report of the Biennial at Des Moines by Mrs. Boyd F. Bowles of the Wollaston Club. It was illustrated by views which included different cities and towns en route.

The Halloween party held at the home of Miss Helen Ries, Chard street, East Weymouth, under the auspices of the Y. P. S. C. E., Weymouth Heights, was very successful, each and every one having a jolly good time.

Miss Eunice Pratt Holbrook and Julius Tharp were married Thursday evening, Oct. 28, by the Rev. Ora A. Price at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Stever at Lovell's Corner. The bride wore white silk messaline and georgette crepe, her tulle veil held in place by lilies of the valley, and she carried a bouquet of white carnations. Miss Louise Pogue, who was the only attendant, was in blue chiffon and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. John J. Kileyne was the best man. The rooms were prettily decorated with autumn foliage, chrysanthemums, and crepe paper. A reception followed immediately after the ceremony.

Avery on Monday, Oct. 11, Mrs. Irving, the State president, gave a very interesting address, telling of the summer convention at Des Moines and of attending the convention of the American Legion at Cleveland. Another feature of the afternoon program was the reading of reports by the various committees of their summer's work. Of special interest were the descriptions of the work for the Legionnaires at Parker Hill, given by Mrs. Billings and Mrs. Beale, and of that done for those at Braintree Highlands hospital given by Mrs. Caulfield. Samples of the work done by the men at Parker Hill were shown.

The next meeting will be on Nov. 8 at 2 P. M., at All Souls Parish House. Lieut. Lovell Edson, who was at Ellington Field, Texas, will tell of his training as an aviator and will illustrate his talk by radiographic pictures.

"When Doctors Disagree"

EVERY POUND OF BEEF USED IF SURPLUS IS PRESERVED AT HOME

Meats for Canning Must Be Handled in as Cleanly Way as Possible.

Before country housewives learned how to can meat, their families ate "fresh" at butchering time until they were surfeited. The rest was then salted, cured, or smoked, and except a few chickens and a little fresh meat bought in the summer it was what the family ate until the next butchering season. Home meat canning, as advocated by the United States department of agriculture, has changed this condition. Those housekeepers who put in to cans the surplus fresh meat at butchering time are enabled to distribute it over 12 months. Canning is equally valuable for use with surplus chickens. It is better economy to can the cockerels and surplus pullets when they reach maturity than it is to feed them all winter.

Meat Canning Popular.
Canning meat in some sections of the country has become almost as common a practice as canning fruits and vegetables. The housewife finds that a can of meat, which requires only reheating to be ready to serve, is a great convenience when company arrives unexpectedly or on hot summer days when the heat of the stove for a long period becomes almost intolerable. Canned meat also makes possible a more varied diet and lessens the country family's dependence upon cured, salted and smoked meat, the constant and exclusive use of which means monotony and less wholesomeness.

Sound Meat and Cleanliness.
The essential thing in meat canning is care—care that the meat is unspiced, care in scrupulous cleanliness, and utmost care in following directions.

For canning of meats a steam-pressure canner is recommended. It should be able to develop at least 250 degrees of heat, or 15 pounds of steam pressure. If tin cans are used they should be packed to within one-half inch from the top, be properly exhausted and sealed. Glass jars may be filled to within one-half inch, the edge wiped clean, rubber ring placed in position, top put on and springs adjusted but not tightened; screw tops turned only a little more than halfway airtight.

Put the jars on the rack above water in the bottom of the canner. Leave the pet cock open until live steam is escaping, then close it and count time from the moment the required pressure is reached, which for meats should be 15 pounds, corresponding to 250 degrees Fahrenheit.

Meats are ready for preparation for the canner as soon as the animal heat has disappeared. For home canning the meats should be cooked first—fried, boiled, roasted, baked or stewed—just as would be done for immediate service. This preserves not only the meat, but the home-cooked flavor as well.

Every Bit of Beef Useful.
Select the meat intended for roasting, slice that wanted for steak, and that which is not suitable for either roast or steak can be utilized for goulash or stew, or can be chopped into sausage meat, formed into little cakes, fried and canned in that form. The meat left clinging to the bones may be utilized when the bones are boiled for soup stock. It is well to cut the bones at several places for this purpose.

For the roast beef, select the piece of meat wanted, trim and wipe it with a damp cloth, heat some grease in a roasting pan, put in the meat and sear quickly, turning it so the sides are seared. As soon as well seared, sprinkle with salt and pepper to taste, add some water to the grease in the roasting pan, baste frequently and roast until nicely brown. Cook until the meat is done. It should not be red in center, but it need not be entirely tender. Slice the meat and pack in the cans to within one-half inch of the top, add the gravy from the roasting pan with boiling water until it partially covers the meat. Leave at least one-fourth inch space between the liquid and the top of can. Partially seal glass jars, seal tin cans and process in steam pressure cooker one hour at 15 pounds pressure.

To can beefsteak, sear quickly the sliced steak on both sides. When it is nicely browned pack it in the cans, fill the jars to within one-half inch of the top with hot gravy made from the pan grease, with hot water added. Process in the steam-pressure cooker one hour at 15 pounds pressure. Seal the glass jars immediately on removal from the cooker.

Same Method for Pork.
Pork is canned in the same way as beef. Suitable-sized pieces are baked or fried, packed in jars with meat stock or boiling water to within one-quarter inch of the top, and the jar is processed one hour at 15 pounds pressure in a pressure cooker. Spareribs sawed and cut into suitable pieces, fried or baked until slightly done, are excellent if canned, as is sausage shaped into cakes, fried, packed, and covered with a liquid made of part fat and part water.

The time tables given in the foregoing directions are for one quart jars. The time required for processing pint jars is ten minutes less, and for two-quart jars 15 minutes more than the time given for quart jars.

FAMOUS ATHLETES ENTER IN PHILADELPHIA POSTS' MEET

Over the top (of the hurdles), Meanix, Barron and Loomis, of Olympic fame in the 220-yard low hurdles which Barron won, Yeomen (F) of Post 50, Philadelphia, sending the cinders flying in the 75-yard dash.

With winners in the Olympic games and other famous athletes entered in many of the events, the first annual track and field meet of the Philadelphia posts of the American Legion presented an array of stars that made athletic history in the city. Legion posts from Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts and other states were represented in the events open only to members of the veterans' organization.

More than 8,000 persons attended the meet which was staged at Franklin field, University of Pennsylvania. One of the most novel events on the program was the 75-yard dash for yeomen (F) of Post 50, Philadelphia, which was won by Miss Marie Baxter in 11 1/5 seconds. J. W. Driscoll, a Boston Legionnaire, captured first place in the national Legion 600-yard run.

An undress race exhibition given by members of Prince-Forbes post of West Philadelphia and a tug-of-war between Prince-Forbes post and the State Fencibles post also were on the program. Another event with a military flavor, the bugle competition, was won by Richard Singer of Philadelphia, a bugler of 20 year's experience. He is sixty-five years old and served overseas with the motor mechanics.

Practically all the leading athletic clubs within a day's journey of Philadelphia were represented at the Legion meet. The trophy for the team winning the most points was awarded to the Meadowbrook club of Philadelphia.

DONNED THE BLUE CHAPEAU

LEGION MEN ON STRIKE DUTY

Ex-Service Boys Aided in Maintaining Order in Recent Disturbance at Denver, Colo.

American Legion men have again played a part in maintaining law and order during a strike, without taking part in the controversy. During the disturbance in Denver which accompanied the tramway walkout, Legionnaires extended their assistance in directing traffic, patrolling the residence district and doing general guard duty. In the course of this service one Legionnaire was attacked by thugs and badly beaten.

The Legionnaires were mobilized for duty immediately following receipt of an appeal from Governor Shoup. A statement was issued declaring that the Legionnaires "will be used in no capacity except the maintenance of law and order in the community, and not in any manner bearing upon the controversy between the tramway company and its employees."

That this decision was adhered to is indicated in editorial comment by Denver newspapers which complimented the veterans on their usefulness. "The American Legion made it perfectly clear that it was out for the purpose of maintaining law and order," said one paper, while another asserted that "Denver owes him (the Legion man) an everlasting debt of gratitude."

A number of persons were killed and injured in riots during the strike.

RED MAN APPEALS FOR AID

Indian Preacher Urges That Land Belonging to His Tribe Be Not Opened for Settlement.

Reverend Whitefeather, Indian preacher and veteran of the World war, has appealed to the American Legion Weekly for the protection of the land that belongs to his tribe, following a proposal to open up the reservation near Stillwater, Nev., for settlement.

"Make a law that no white man or Mexican can take our land or marry in this tribe," he wrote. "Put all poor Indians in good shape, and I know that the government will be well paid in the long run. We have no lazy Indians here at all. The white man would like to see us poor Indians give up our land and work for them. A man, no matter who he is, if he works out for others is the loser."

Reverend Whitefeather is a member of the Fallon (Nev.) post of the Legion. During the war he served with the Three Hundred and Sixty-fourth machine gun battalion.

COOL FOOD WITHOUT ICE NOT DIFFICULT

Window Box Is Especially Useful in Winter Months.

Cellar Is Utilized by Many People as Air There Is of About Proper Temperature—Perforated Shelves Are Handy.

In ice chests food is chilled by artificially cold air; naturally cold air can also be used in many ways for the preservation of food. A simple way of keeping food cold, especially in winter, is by means of a window box. The most convenient kind fits on the window ledge close up to the window, preferably on the north side of the house. It should be dust and fly proof and some arrangement for ventilation should be made.

The air in the cellar is cool and is utilized by many people for cooling food. A shaft made of wood or wood and plaster and extending from the cellar through the roof is a device for utilizing the cool air of the cellar, which is particularly adapted to a cool, dry climate. Wire or perforated shelves are fitted into the shaft at convenient heights where it passes through the kitchen or pantry. In front of the shelves should be placed a door opening from the shaft. As the air in the upper part of the shaft grows warmer, the cool air from the cellar is drawn up, this constant upward movement of cool air cooling the food on the shelves. Where there is no suitable cellar the shaft may open through the ground. Both ends of the shaft should be screened.—United States Department of Agriculture.

BECOME A FRESH-AIR CRANK

When Your Rooms Get Stale, Stuffy and Foul Smelling Open All Doors and Windows.

When you come in from outdoors and find the air in your rooms stale and stuffy and foul smelling, open the windows wide and let in plenty of fresh air from outside. Open the door, too, so that the fresh air can freely enter.

Become a fresh-air crank—even at the risk of being disliked. Better a lifeless hothouse invalid.

Do all you can to avoid crowds in closed or poorly ventilated rooms. Not only does the bad air lower your resistance, but you are in danger of catching disease from others.

Don't ride in a crowded street car when you are going only a short distance. Walk!

Walk a mile in the open air twice a day. It will add ten years to your life; if you don't believe it, try it and see.

Keep the windows of your bedroom wide open, day and night, even in winter. You can't overdose yourself with fresh air, and disease germs can't endure it.

Cabbage and onions are more easily digested if not cooked too long.

Lamb at its best should be basted almost continually while being baked.

Haveled yarn from wornout garments, cut into bits, makes a soft filler for pincushions and sofa pillows.

Scotland's River System.

If there be one place north of the Tweed where, at a single glance, one may view and comprehend the chief river system of Scotland, Stirling is that place. From this point one notes the main streams, the affluents, and the gathering of the waters, which make the Clyde, the Forth and the Tay. He can then realize how great and important in the political and economic history of Scotland has been that great central valley, which stretches from the North sea to the waters of the Atlantic Ocean.—William Elliot Griffiths, in "Bonnie Scotland."

Nostalgia.

A young Swedish girl was very homesick. "You ought to be contented, and not fret for your old home, Ina," said her mistress, as she looked at the dim eyes of the girl. "You are earning good wages, your work is light, every one is kind to you, and you have plenty of friends here." "Yes, ma'am," said the girl. "But it is not the place where I do be that makes me vera homesick; it is the place where I don't be."

South China's Administrative City.

Canton is the chief Chinese administrative and commercial city of South China. It is situated inland from Hongkong, 95 miles by water and 112 miles by rail, and is located in the fertile Canton delta country, in which converge the West, North and East rivers. In foreign trade Canton ranks third among Chinese ports, being exceeded in volume by Shanghai and Dairen.

Little Sympathy for Him.

"Reedin' 'bout what dem soldier men went through," said Uncle Eben, "is g'raeter make it mighty hard to sympathize wif de man dat complains 'bout a little thing like a hot day."

Paper Backing for Pictures.

To paste new paper backings on framed pictures, the paper, cut to the proper size, should first be floated in a pan of water until it is entirely wet. The paste should be applied to the frame, and the paper, from which the actual drops of water have been wiped, should be pressed into place upon the frame. As the paper dries it will shrink, making it a smoothly stretched backing.

Jolly Little Chipmunk.

The place the chipmunk fills is small and inconsequent but his sylvan "chirrup" plays a minor strain in the wordless diapason which the mighty blue soul of nature is forever singing in her forests; solemn and consoling to heal earth's scars; jubilant and glad for the free of heart. Intoning ever some clear sweet note of mystic melody for those who listen, to awaken a dreaming bliss or to thrill an untried fiber into unwinning life.

Oil Creaking Shoes.

Have you a pair of shoes that take creaking spells much too frequently for your comfort and pleasure? If you have, simply put a small quantity of linseed oil in a shallow dish or pan and stand the shoe in it for a few hours. This treatment will not only effectually prevent the shoes from continuing in their creaking ways, but it will also make the soles last longer.

Great Care Taken of Silk.

Silk is the most costly of all fibers, and in the raw state represents a value so great as to be guarded in its transportation like a shipment of bullion. It is shipped from coast to coast in special, solid express trains, under strong guard, the shipments ranging in value from $5,000,000 to $25,000,000.

HATS OF RIBBON

Very Wide Decorations Are Better for Fall Headgear.

Material Gives an All-Over Shaggy Appearance to Smart Toques and Turbans.

The latest millinery offerings might be said to have but one thing in common, and that is generally soft, unstudied effect, which is preserved, no matter what the material or the trimming. After that, writes a fashion correspondent, it is safe to say that over fifty per cent of the newest hats are of velvet, of either Lyons or panne, some of both; that ribbon hats are almost as common and often more interesting than velvet, and that felt, leather and lace are generously represented. The duvetyne displayed late in the summer is scarcely noticeable now, except in combination or as trimming.

The hats displayed in the Paris openings are now beginning to leave their mark upon the American styles, and the combination of American workmanship which understands the American woman's needs with that dashing originality of the French results in some very beautiful specimens of the designer's art. Three things characterize the latest millinery shapes. One is that soft, draped effects are particularly stressed; the second that trimmings droop, rather than spring upward, and, thirdly, that the uneven brim, especially the Harlequin shape, which widens at the sides, turns up from the face and shows a narrow rim in back, is sure to be very popular.

Speaking of ribbon hats, it is interesting to note the new ribbons manufactured for their use. The very wide ribbons running from five to ten inches, are better for the purpose of the puffed and draped hats than the narrower ribbons of the spring. There are some fascinating new shaggy ribbons, "shredded wheat" ribbons they have been called, and others with frayed edges, which, when used, give an all-over shaggy appearance to smart toques and turbans. The cre ribbons are also very good, especially the newer ones made to resemble leather. Among these latter two novelties have reached this side of the ocean—one is a snakeskin ribbon, and the other frogskin.

For everyday wear this coat with its simple but modish lines is just the thing. The collar is cut on the season's most stylish mode. It is large and could be used for a bonnet or as a protection for the hat in rainy weather.

Imitations are not scorned by the fashionable milliner. She now condescends to use some of the new plushes instead of fur, one in particular, in a taupe gray, realistically made to resemble squirrel. There is a new "wingspring" feather trimming, sometimes imitated by such almost undreamed-of things as elephants' whiskers and other strong, curled hairs or metal threads. Coq plumes are to be expected in a season when trimming is trained to droop, and even these are occasionally imitated by pleated strands of silk, or given a metallic touch by having their tips gilded or bronzed. Coq is not used in the natural color alone, but is found in fascinating jades and rusts. Cre satin and fallie imitate the gloss of fine leather to the point of deceit.

Novelties in Fur Neckpieces.
Greater variety and more detail in design will be seen in fur neck pieces this winter, furriers say. "Leading sellers," they declare, "will doubtless be the well-known animal scarf and the plain scarf, but in the newer styles there are numberless moderate-sized choker ties, the general construction of which is a scarf varying from fifteen inches to a yard long, with a slash toward one end for the other end to pass through. Another piece has a short choker collar with two wide pointed ends which lie flat against the front of the coat in reverse fashion.

Honors Are Divided.
Honors are divided between the short box coat and redingote in suits.

CHIC FROCK FOR DEBUTANTE

This is a winsome dance frock for the debutante; it is of silver and blue brocade; a garland of rosebuds draped from the right shoulder with long corsage rose adds to its richness.

Posies Are Used on Gowns

Beflowered Frocks Promise to Be Favored Especially for Evening Wear This Winter.

Two kinds of flowers are being used at the moment for trimmings; they will also be worn during the winter months, especially for evening dresses. There is natural type of garden flower as well as the very fanciful one in velvet and satin, of extraordinary size and shades, such as belong to the realm of fairy tales. Many garlands fall from the waistline, and are softly mounted to allow a supple and graceful movement when walking or dancing, and they will add a nice touch of color to our dresses. There are big flowers, or small nosegays, made with faded tones and mixed shades. Some flowers are made in two colors; for instance, pink taffeta and beige pongee, with each petal cut in the two materials and placed one over the other; the petals are not sewn, but curled and pressed together, in order to effect the same waves and folds which give a fairy lightness to the flowers.

A motif at the girdle has been very much favored for a considerable time now. It is sometimes a feather pouf or a cluster of fruit, or one or two velvet flowers of fresh hue.

There are some gowns which are not only trimmed with beads, but are entirely made of them. Long fringes of beads entirely cover the slip underneath, being held by the girdle. An effect of contrasting shades is generally sought after. If, for instance, the slip is of black satin or crepe, the glass tubes are white.

Talking of beads leads to thoughts of real pearls; they are no longer worn screwed on the ear, but hang at the end of a thin thread glittering with small diamonds. Many women wind their pearl necklaces round their arms, and some others hang them across the breast from one side to the other. But the classical string of pearls that encircles the neck always remains the most lovely.

A Good Silver Polish.
The basis of most prepared silver polish is French whiting, a fine white powder. It is much cheaper to buy the whiting and make your own silver polish. Wash the silver in hot soap-suds and wipe it. Lay a paper on the table. Put some of the whiting in a saucer and add enough ammonia or diluted alcohol to make a paste. Rub this over the silver with a soft cloth and lay the silver on a paper to dry. When you have finished this rub the whiting off with a clean soft cloth. Then polish the silver with a chamois skin.

Much Hand Work on This Coat.
Navy silk duvetyne, with an invisible stripe weave, is ornamented with hand made flowers of black braid, the centers of black velvet. A short cape, the edges picoted, swings from the shoulders.

Youthful and Smart.
The wide belt and Eton jacket effect is youthful and smart.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

A vegetable dish which is well liked and may be prepared with either fresh or canned tomatoes is—

Scalloped Tomato and Green pepper.—Take about half the bulk of tomato in soft, fine bread crumbs.

For a cupful of crumbs, melt one-fourth of a cupful of butter, put one or two tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan, mix the rest of the butter through the bread crumbs. To the butter in the saucepan, add a slice of thinly sliced onion and half a small green pepper shredded fine. Stir and cook until softened, then mix through the crumbs. Arrange the tomatoes and prepared crumbs in alternate layers in a baking dish, sprinkling each layer of tomatoes with salt and pepper. Have the last layer of crumbs; bake twenty minutes.

Russian Salad Dressing.—Mix together one-fourth of a cupful of olive oil, one teaspoonful of vinegar, one-fourth teaspoonful each of mustard and salt, one-half teaspoonful of paprika and one-fourth cupful of chili sauce; then gradually, using the egg beater, add one-half cupful of mayonnaise dressing.

Pot-Roasted Pork Chops.—Choose chops with only a medium amount of fat and somewhat thicker than usual. After browning the chops on each side in a frying pan, add an onion cut fine and pepper and salt. Cover with water and let simmer on the back of the stove for an hour and a half. Add a little flour to thicken the gravy, and serve. The flour if added while the chops are browning, will be of better flavor.

Pecan Sausages.—Mix together three-fourths of a cupful of hot cooked cream of wheat, one-fourth of a cupful of finely crushed pecan meats, half a teaspoonful each of powdered thyme and sage; mix all thoroughly, then add one egg beaten light and form into shape to resemble link sausages. Place in a pan well greased, and bake twenty minutes. Serve with bananas cut in halves and then in quarters crosswise, rolled in flour and fried on both sides in hot fat. Serve with a cupful of tomato or cream sauce.

We must fight our way onward. We must be brave. There are obstacles to be met and we must meet and crush them.—David Copperfield.

HOW TO PREPARE RICE.

The black man's recipe to dress rice runs: "Wash him well, much wash in cold water; the rice flour make him stick. Water boil already fast. Throw him in; rice can't burn, water shake him too much. Boil quarter of an hour or little more; rub one rice in thumb and finger; if all rub away, him quite done. Put rice in collander, hot water run away; pour cupful of cold water on him, put back rice in saucepan, keep him covered near the fire, then rice all ready. Eat him up!"—Gertrude Morrison, in American Cookery.

Rice may be used as a substitute for vegetables, as a thickening for soup, an addition to bread sponge, a salad, a main dish, a dessert. These are but a few of the many accomplishments of this dainty food.

Wild rice is obtained in abundance in many of our states and those who have been treated to this wholesome cereal like it very much. It is very similar to the tame rice except it is not polished, which leaves the food value (which in the tame rice is polished away) that is so important in the growth and health of the young.

Rice With Meat.—Take two cupfuls of boiled rice, one cupful of chopped fresh meat, browned in a tablespoonful of sweet fat; remove the meat, add a small onion finely minced, a teaspoonful of minced parsley or half of a small green pepper cooked in the same fat. Place a layer of the cooked rice in a baking dish, cover with a layer of the onion and pepper. Repeat until the rice and meat are used, cover with one cupful of tomato and bake slowly for an hour.

Baked Rice and Codfish.—Take one and one-half cupfuls of well-washed rice, one cupful of water and four cupfuls of milk. Add the water and the milk gradually to the rice while cooking and cook half an hour. Remove from the stove and add one cupful of rich milk, two well-beaten eggs and three cupfuls of shredded codfish, pepper and salt to taste. Bake in a moderate oven forty-five minutes. Serve with drawn butter sauce.

Baked Rice Pudding.—Take one-quarter of a cupful of well-washed rice, one cupful of milk, sugar and nutmeg or cinnamon to taste, one-half cupful or less of raisins. Bake in a slow oven, stirring occasionally during the first hour of baking, for three hours.

For Holiday Time

An unusually pretty breakfast cap is here offered as a suggestion for a gift. It is a spirited model made of taffeta silk and almost covered with crisp, plaited frills of taffeta ribbon. Such a cap requires a crinoline support and a lining of thin silk.

Holiday Red and Green

This Christmas candle shade is made of red and green crepe paper and decorated at the top with a spray of holly and holly berries. The paper is cut in petals, the under ones in red and the outside ones in green.

For Holding Pins

The baby will be served and his mother delighted at Christmas time with little gifts convenient for holding safety pins. A doll and a basket are shown in the picture each suspended by ribbons for hanging them. Little rings attached to the feet, hands and belt of the doll accommodate pins of several sizes. There are assorted pins in the basket.

To Welcome the Baby

Two lovely gifts, with which to welcome the stork, are suggested. They are a little cap of georgette crepe and a silk-lined and ribbon-trimmed basket containing everything the baby needs for his toilette.

Keep The Egg Basket Full!

The feed elements that make whites of eggs are entirely different from those that make yolks. When hens aren't fed both the white and yolk making elements, they can't keep the egg basket full. The usual method of feeding mostly grain makes yolks but not enough whites to complete the eggs.

Missouri Experiment Station tests prove that 100 lbs. of wheat, corn, oats, barley and kaffir corn make (above bodily maintenance) an average of 224 yolks to 154 whites. Based on data from the same experiments, Purina formulas produce, (above bodily maintenance) as follows:

	Yolks	Whites
Purina Hen Chow	247.49	142.11
Purina Chicken Chowder	182.05	282.55
Combined Ration	429.54	424.66

These Purina chows not only make a practically equal number of whites and yolks but more of both than ordinary chows.

Note that Purina Chicken Chowder contains the necessary white-forming elements to balance up the yolk-making grain ration. That's why it makes hens lay so heavily. Instead of the yolks being absorbed by the hen's system, Purina Chicken Chowder makes the whites to complete the eggs and they are laid. Thus we can absolutely guarantee more eggs or money back on Purina Chicken Chowder if fed with Purina Hen Chow as directed. You take no risk.

The editor of the Gazette and Transcript visited every precinct of Weymouth on election day, and was impressed with the enthusiasm of the new women voters. They not only voted, but they were out early and saw that all their sisters voted. In some precincts women cast the first votes before 6 A. M. and during the day their committees served in relays as checkers of the women as they voted, which accounts for the large percentage of women to vote.

The Board of Registrars were in session all day at the office of the Town Clerk. Because of the big registration they had more work than usual as some names were accidentally omitted from the lists, while others who had not been assessed were indignant because their names had been dropped.

The election officers had more difficulty than usual in finding names upon the voting lists because there was a man's list and a woman's list, and also one or two additional typewritten lists.

In Precinct One Gladys Rolfe of 318 Commercial street was the first to vote immediately after the polls opened at 5.45 A. M. Mrs. Eddie Sampson was chairman of the women's committee. All the morning the election officers were busy, as there was a constant string of voters. The ballot-box went on a strike and did not record the vote correctly. Ansel Burrell, 88 years of age, was probably the oldest man to vote. No ballots were counted before 2 o'clock.

In Precinct 2 a woman was also first to vote, Lizzie Lincoln, and women also had check books. In this precinct the voters had difficulty in finding the place to deposit their ballots as the box was turned back to the voters and they could not see the opening in the box or the number on the register; in most cases the election officer took the ballot and put it into the box. The voting was particularly heavy the first three hours. Counting commenced at noon.

In Precinct 3 there were 13 booths and all were filled most of the time. Emma F. Harris cast the first vote, and at 11 A. M. 557 votes had been cast. Women as well as men were at work at the polls to get out a big vote for their candidates and were much interested.

In Precinct 4 Arthur C. White was the first to vote, and Nellie S. Howard the first woman. Some women went to the South Weymouth precinct first, and one found it necessary to make a trip to the Registrars to find out why her name was not on the list; she returned later and voted. There was a steady vote all the morning, and about 425 had voted at 11 A. M.

In Precinct 5 Mrs. Philip Crooker and a gentleman had a race to cast the first ballot, but Mrs. Crooker knew just how she was going to vote and made record time. Counting of the ballots commenced early with a double team.

In Precinct 6 James Brazil was the first to vote, and Annie Morey the first woman. No ballots were counted before 3 o'clock. At that hour 718 had been cast, a big number for that precinct.

The complete vote for all candidates is given below:

EVANSTON, ILL., LIBRARY ON WHEELS

In recent years the automobile has been put to various uses, the latest being the "library on wheels." Books and papers of various kinds are now delivered and collected to homes and places of industry by the Evanston, Ill. public library. The photograph shows a group of children making a selection of the different volumes carried by an automobile.

SAYS CAR RUNS BEST AT NIGHT

Authority on Engineering Explains Effect of Cool Atmosphere on Motor.

COMBUSTION MORE PERFECT

Evening Air Estimated to Make Difference of About 5 Per Cent in Power of Engine—Produces More Powerful Impulse.

Speaking in a general sense, a motor ought to run better at night than in the daytime. Whether it does so or not has been a matter of argument between motorists ever since motorists existed, and one readily remembers columns of discussion that lasted for years in almost all the early automobile magazines.

Really, the thing is very simple, says that engineering authority, A. Ludlow Clayton, in Motor Life. One is liable to forget that two things are burned in a gasoline motor—gasoline and air. Neither can burn without the other. Also to get the best and most powerful combustion the proportions of gasoline to air cannot vary very much. To one cylinder full of air just so much gasoline and no more can be added.

Cylinder Full of Air.

To one cylinder full of air! What is a cylinder full? The answer is that it all depends upon what you fill it from. Everybody knows that when driving in very high altitudes the rarefied air causes a noticeable loss of power; anyone who has driven at 5,000 feet elevation cannot fail to have observed this.

Now, the real reason for the loss of power is that owing to the rarefying effect of the altitude, the piston can only suck in a smaller amount of air which will only carry with it a smaller amount of gasoline, and so will only produce a more feeble explosion. Of course, the volume of air taken in on the suction stroke is just the same whatever the altitude, but its weight is less in proportion as the altitude increases and the ratio for best combustion is between the weight of the fuel and the weight of the air necessary to insure reasonably complete combustion.

Heat Rarefies Air.

Other things have the same effect as altitude. For instance, heat rarefies air by expanding it so that on a hot day the air charge which an engine can breathe in is smaller in weight than it would be on a cold day. In testing airplane engines it is an invariable practice to make an allowance for the temperature of the atmosphere because the difference in power is quite appreciable. With a 300 horsepower engine a variation of 15 horsepower or more can easily occur by reason of nothing else but change in the air temperature.

Here is one of the principal reasons why an automobile motor does run better at night. Night air is almost always cooler than day air, so at night the engine can get a heavier charge and so produce a more powerful impulse at each explosion.

WINDSHIELD LIABLE TO LEAK

Where Water Seeps Through Between Two Panes Trouble May Be Obviated by Lapping Them.

With the slanting type of windshield water is liable to leak through the slight opening between the two panes of glass when a heavy storm is encountered. This trouble may be obviated by making one of the panes overlap the other, which, of course, calls for the fitting of a new upper or lower half.

Fender Noise.

When vibration has caused a more or less extensive crack in a fender there results a sharp, cracking noise that is very annoying and often is difficult to locate.

ANTI-SKID CHAIN INVENTED

Flat Plates With Lugs or Projections Serve to Prevent Slipping of Motor Vehicle.

In illustrating and describing an anti-skid device, the invention of E. Benjestorf, Fernwood, Saskatchewan, Canada, the Scientific American says: In connection with tire chains for the wheels of motor vehicles the inventor provides relatively flat plates with lugs or projections which serve to prevent skidding of the vehicle. Owing to the fact that short lengths of chain pass between the lugs the possibility of clogging of the lugs with mud is removed.

TO KEEP WINDSHIELD CLEAR

New York Chauffeur Utilizes Piece of Chamois Skin and Clean Rag or Paper.

Louis George, who has for twelve years been a chauffeur in New York, writes that for the last two years he has been keeping his windshield clear on rainy days in a very simple manner. When the windshield is first wet he takes a piece of chamois skin, a clean rag or, if he has nothing else handy, a piece of newspaper, and rubs the glass with it, pressing quite hard, and he says the glass stays clear so long as the rain lasts.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

Keep watch on the spokes of the wheels, especially if the car is an old one. If the spokes can be shaken, tighten the bolts on the flanges of the hub.

In cases of chronically squeaky springs, try jacking up the car so that the weight is removed from the springs and then soaking these latter with kerosene.

Five gallons of kerosene containing one pound of commercial sulphuric ether will serve almost as well as gasoline as fuel for the modern automobile engine.

Motortrucks in New York state, with a capacity of one ton or more, must hereafter be equipped with mirrors so that the driver may have a view of the road behind him.

The finish of the car, the lustrous enamel and varnish, need tender handling in the early months of their service, or their beauty may be permanently destroyed.

Washing soda, kerosene and plain soap and water should be the cleaning agents used by the car owners for cleaning parts, tools, etc., about the garage.

Ammonia generates a heavy vapor that tends to seek the floor. In case of a gasoline fire this vapor settles on the flames, keeping off the air and smothering the fire.

In Louisville, Ky., no person under sixteen years of age is allowed to operate a motorcar, unless accompanied by the owner or a person more than twenty-one years of age.

In the thermo-siphon cooling system it is important to keep the radiator full or nearly so, in order that there may be adequate resistance to keep the water forcing its way forward.

A slightly tapering bolt with a number of steel washers under the head so that by removing one or more the bolt may be tightened in its bearings makes an admirable steering gear connection.

ON THE FUNNY SIDE

MAKING THE MOST OF IT.

"A humorist died the other day." "Did he leave an estate?" "Only one joke, which he bequeathed to his son." "Not much of an inheritance." "But he explained in his will that if the joke were expanded into a musical comedy, made the theme of a Chautauqua lecture and worked over from time to time and sold to the magazines, it would provide his heir with a comfortable income." — Birmingham Age-Herald.

Something Else Again.

"What's a bosun?" asked the young woman who was getting her first glimpse of salt water. "Why," replied the young man who was having the same experience, but wished to appear well versed in nautical matters, "it's one of those funnel-shaped things on ships to get fresh air through."

TRYING IT ON THE BULLDOG Her Husband: For heaven's sake! What have you been doing to the dog's face? Mrs. Plainsmith: It's a new wrinkle eradicator. I thought I'd try it on Hector and if it did him any good I'd use it myself.

My Luck.

If money grew on trees, I would not be well-heeled. For some would own a patch of woods. And I a barren field.

Reconciling Them.

"Tommy," said Mr. Figg sternly, "I hung a motto in your room to the effect that little boys should be seen and not heard." "Yes, sir." "What did you do with it?" "I—I took it down to the deaf and dumb orphan asylum." — Pearson's.

The Rear Seat Driver.

"How did the accident happen?" "Well, you see the wife was riding with me and I guess she must have neglected to tell me there was another car coming. It's queer, too, because I could always depend on her to warn me of everything."

His Brutality.

"So she is going to apply for divorce on the ground of mental cruelty. Did her husband treat her so badly?" "My dear, a man couldn't have treated a woman worse. He never gave her any good reason for finding fault with him."

HER MUSICAL CHOICE "So your daughter is musical?" "Yes." "Is she going in for classical works?" "No. Jazzical."

Would Be Silent.

Some people deem it policy To think before they speak. If some other men did likewise They'd be silent for a week.

His Specialty.

"That big sailor over there is boasting that he had a record in boxing." "So he had; he boxed the compass."

Heroic Measures.

Wife—I'd ten times sooner stay at home than go on a visit to the Boreas. Hub—Then why are you going? Wife—It's the only way. If I don't they will visit us.

The Proverbs Exemplified.

Young Wife—How do you like my cooking, dear? Don't you think I have begun well? Hub (turning over the viands)—Er—yes. Well done, half done, you know.

Buildings of Famous Fort Sullivan to Be Razed

Uncle Sam's Far East frontier fortress, known as Fort Sullivan, was built 113 years ago at Eastport, Me., and will soon be razed, as the dilapidated wooden buildings have been condemned by the city council and the owners notified to remove them at an early date. The fort was occupied by United States troops until late in the war of 1812, when a British fleet arrived in the harbor from Halifax and captured the fort without firing a shot. They occupied it for nearly two years until the exact frontier boundary was adjusted by England and the United States. The fort was later occupied by United States troops until 1875, when it was abandoned and the old building sold to private parties to be used for dwellings.

It is only on rare occasions that a woman attends a funeral in Mexico. More than 75 per cent of the pictures shown in British motion picture theaters are American productions.

MODEL BECOMES ARTIST

Mile. Fernande Barry, an artist's model of Paris, suddenly deserted her platform a while ago and set up an easel of her own. Since then she has painted seven pictures, and five of them were accepted this year by the Salon d'Automne, making the young woman famous overnight.

Odd Things We Use In Our Business

There is a good deal more to providing telephone service than merely stringing a wire from pole to pole and connecting the instrument in a house or office.

We use a great variety of materials in vast quantities. A few of the odd things required in large amounts, are:

- | | | |
|---------------|---------|-----------|
| Silk | Paper | Glass |
| Rubber | Wood | Beeswax |
| Cotton Yarn | Clay | Thread |
| Paraffin | Brass | Steel |
| Porcelain | Lead | Copper |
| Solder | Tape | Zinc |
| Acid | Webbing | Oakum |
| Plaster Paris | Linen | Vermilion |

These materials are used in the manufacture of cables, switchboards and telephone instruments, and under present conditions are extremely hard to obtain. We ask your friendly co-operation until the materials required in rendering telephone service may be produced, transported and installed.

NEW TELEPHONES
"What is the reason the telephone company cannot install more new telephones in Weymouth?" was asked of District Manager Crossly yesterday.
"There is only one reason—lack of cable," he replied. "If we could get enough of it to supply our needs, it would only be a little while before people who have been waiting a long time in Weymouth would receive."
"At the present time we have over 100 uncompleted orders. Our cable problem is not local to greater Boston or New England, but is general throughout the United States.
"Although our progress is slow, we are making some improvements in the situation all the time, and I want the people of Weymouth to realize that we are doing everything we can to remedy a situation that is as unsatisfactory to us as it is to those who are waiting for service."
"I want the people to know that we are absolutely fair with everybody and that orders for service are being filled in the order of their application, provided we have the necessary facilities."

There Can Be No Doubt About the Results in Weymouth.

All doubt is removed.

What better proof can be had?

DOAN'S ALWAYS RELIABLE.
Two years later Mr. Hewett said: "I still use Doan's Kidney Pills when I have need of a kidney medicine. They always give me excellent relief and I recommend them whenever I get a chance."

SALVATION ARMY HERE.

The second meeting of the Public Open Forum being conducted by the Union Men's club of Weymouth and Braintree, held last Sunday evening in Union church was of an unusual nature and of unusual interest. Col. W. A. McIntyre, commanding the New England division of the Salvation Army was the speaker, supported by a galaxy of Salvation Army men and lassies and by the entire Boston staff brass band of 32 pieces.
Col. McIntyre conducted the service in true Salvation Army style and supported by the splendid music put his message across straight from the shoulder and without any frills. His plea for a vote "NO" on the 2:75 beer referendum had doubled force when he called on different members of the Band to get up and tell how they were saved from the liquor saloon.
Col. McIntyre's message was not confined to the temperance question however, for he presented to the large audience which packed the church auditorium and adjoining Sunday school rooms, the work of the "Army" in uplifting men, and closed with an appeal to any in the assembly to accept the Christian life.
Other speakers included Maj. James Crawford, New England secretary; Capt. John Seaver, superintendent of work for hotel men; and Maj. Thomas Hughes, Capt. William Trevelick entertained with concertina solos and a trio of Salvation Army lassies, comprising Mrs. Crawford, Mrs. Trevelick, and Mrs. Cuard sang Gospel songs. The Brass Band, which gave many splendid and inspiring selections was led by Lieut. William Allison.
Herbert J. Walsh, president of the Union Men's club presided and presented Col. McIntyre and the Band.

The Forum committee of the Union Men's club arranged for an itinerary for the Salvation Army Band, which included meetings at Quincy at 3 o'clock, North Weymouth at 4, East Weymouth at 5; with the cooperation of the Quincy Salvation Army, the Pilgrim Congregational church, the First Church at Weymouth Heights, the East Weymouth Methodist and Congregational churches. A dozen automobiles were furnished for transportation from Boston and back. Support was secured to the Salvation Army at Union church by the following committee of ladies: Mrs. Charles Jordan, Mrs. George Walker, Mrs. Herbert J. Walsh, Mrs. Fred Tarbox and Mrs. Charles C. Temple.

When Run-Down

Auburn, N. Y.—"All of Dr. Pierce's medicines that I have taken have proved very satisfactory. I took 'Favorite Prescription' when I was run-down and in a very nervous condition and found it excellent as a builder and especially good in relieving me of all nervousness. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is an excellent tonic and blood medicine as well. I have taken both of the above mentioned remedies of Dr. Pierce's and have found them good."

MRS. C. H. MINOR, 16 Cornell St.

Good looks in woman do not depend upon age, but upon health. You never see a good-looking woman who is weak, run-down. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best women's tonic there is. It is 50 years old, and its age testifies to its goodness.

What She Hunted.

"Do you ever go hunting?" asked a friend. "No, but my wife does," was the reply. "Your wife?" "Yes." "What for?" "Oh, for burglars, or fire, or paragon, or trouble, or my salary; it's always hard to tell in advance."—Houston Post.

Don't Go From Bad to Worse!

Are you always weak, miserable and half-sick? Then it's time you found out what is wrong. Kidney weakness causes much suffering from backache, lameness, stiffness and rheumatic pains, and if neglected, brings danger of serious troubles—dizziness, gravel and Bright's disease. Don't delay. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. They have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

A Massachusetts Case

Mrs. A. H. Roy, 12 Morse Ave., Ware, Mass., says: "A cold which settled in my kidneys brought on backache. My back pained and when hanging up clothes sharp pains would take me in my left side. I had a dull ache in the back of my head. One of the family told me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. One box gave fine relief."

BIG ULCER ALL HEALED

"Here is another letter that makes me happy," says Peterson of Buffalo. "One that I would rather have than a thousand dollars. Money isn't everything in this world. There is many a big hearted, rich man who would give all he has on earth to be able to produce a remedy with such mighty healing power as Peterson's Ointment, to sell at all druggists for 25 cents a large box."

Dear Sirs:—I was an untold sufferer from old running sores and ulcers. I had tried almost everything without any relief from pain. A friend told me of your wonderful ointment and the first box took away the pain that had not left me before in years, and after using just nine dollars' worth of the salve I am cured. The ulcer was 4 inches by 2 1/2 inches, is all healed and I can walk. Never, never will I be without Peterson's again. "You may use this to recommend your ointment, if you wish. I can say enough to praise it."—Yours truly, Mrs. Albert Southcott, Medina, N. Y. Mail orders filled by Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.

SPEAKER CALLS TURN ON McMULLIN

McMULLIN Photo by Western Newspaper Union. TRIS SPEAKER MAILS

An incident that carried a foreboding of evil to Fred McMullin, one of the indicted White Sox players, occurred in Cleveland just before the second game of the recent critical series with the Indians. Mails, the big left-hander who humbled the Chicago club in a 2 to 0 pitchers' battle with Red Faber, sat in the corner of the Cleveland dugout as the White Sox players came up the cement stairway leading to the clubhouse runway. "We'll knock you loose from your job this afternoon!" Mails refused to answer, a custom that is discreet in the case of a youngster just "breaking in," especially during such an important series. Tris Speaker, the Cleveland manager, heard a part of the conversation and asked Mails what McMullin had said. Mails told him, and Tris immediately walked over to McMullin. "Won't Be a Witness. "You've got a lot of gall—trying to break a kid's nerve," he said. "When you birds get back to Chicago and you feel like talking, you can do a lot of it before the grand jury, and your role won't be that of a witness, either!"

TOWNSEND PUZZLES FAN

In a double header with the Giants recently a Boston fan thought he was seeing things. Toward the tail end of the first game the announcer told the crowd Townsend was pitching for Boston. A strapping big right-hander mounted the slab. Late in the second game the announcer made the same speech and a big left-hander began throwing them over. "Say, have I got 'em" the fan inquired. "That guy was in there pitching right-handed in the first game and now he's throwing left-handed." The fan didn't have 'em. Ira Townsend, a right-hander, was in the first game, and Leo Townsend, a southpaw, was in the second. Both are rookies and not related.

MADE PRIZE BONEHEAD PLAY

Credit Given to Miah Murray, Catcher of Wooster Club—Story Told by Bancroft.

Frank Bancroft, business manager of the Cincinnati Reds and pilot of the 1884 champion Grays, declares that the prize bonehead play was by Miah Murray, who was catching for his Wooster club 35 years ago.

With a runner on first, Murray made a wonderful catch of a foul fly against the stand. The crowd broke into roar of applause and Murray, doffing his cap, bowed right and left. The runner, sizing up the situation, lit out from first, kept right on running hard, and came all the way home while the crowd was waving and screaming all in vain.

POLO MATCHES NEXT SEASON

The dates for the international polo matches next year between America and Great Britain have been set for June 18, 22 and 25, according to an announcement made in London. The American Polo association has agreed to the dates. The matches will be played on the famous field at Hurlingham, the scene of many international matches. Col. H. A. Tompkinson, Lord Dalmeny, Lord Wodehouse and Maj. V. N. Lockett make up the British four. The American team has not been chosen.

BIG MONEY MADE IN BOXING

Recent Show at Madison Square Garden Drew $46,784—Dundee Pulled Down $13,000.

The recent boxing show held by Tex Rickard at the Madison Square garden, New York, which reopened the game there, drew $46,784. Of this sum the state received 5 per cent, or $2,337.40. Joe Welling took a straight guarantee of $6,000. Johnny Dundee received a percentage and pulled down almost $13,000.

GEERS LEADS CHARMED LIFE

Noted Driver Has Been Thrown From Innumerable Sulkies and Trampled On by Horses.

Old "Pop" Geers has been thrown out of more sulkies and trampled under the feet of more flying steeds than any other man in America, and yet he lives to tell the tale! "Pop" Geers is the sole survivor, almost, of a fast disappearing clan. He has been up there in the sulky seat for several decades, piloting the old harness boys around a various assortment of tracks and the tricks he has turned in his day would fill volumes of books. What he doesn't know about the harness game isn't knowable, that's all.

Just the other day they tried again to kill "Pop" by running into him and later a horse he was driving stumbled and fell, throwing him out into the field. The old boy reported for duty, however, and demonstrated once more that he leads a charmed life.

Some Orioles.

The Baltimore Orioles, who copped in the International league, went through the season never losing more than two games in a row and finished with an unfinished string of 25 wins.

Penn Gets Barron. Harold E. Barron, the Olympic hurdler, who ran second to Earl Thomson at Antwerp, has re-entered Penn State. He left school in 1917 to enter military service.

Stock Raising in WESTERN CANADA

is as profitable as grain growing. Successes as wonderful as those from growing wheat, oats, barley, and flax have been made in raising Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Hogs. Bright, sunny climate, nutritive grasses, good water, enormous fodder crops—these spell success to the farmer and stock raiser. And remember, you can buy on easy terms. Farm Land at $15 to $30 An Acre. Land equal to that which through many years has yielded from 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre—grazing land convenient to good grain farms at proportionately low prices. These lands have every rural convenience; good schools, churches, roads, tele-phones, etc., close to live towns and good markets. If you want to get back to the farm, or to farm on a larger scale than is possible under your present conditions, investigate what Western Canada has to offer you. YES, a very material difference in the coal bill is noticeable when you heat your house the selective way—each room as you need it. Instead of "rushing" your regular heater a half hour every morning, or when you want to use a room that isn't quite comfortable, use a Perfection Oil Heater. It will give you just the heat you need where you want it most—more quickly and economically. Thousands of people discover every year that a Perfection pays for itself many times—in the coal it saves, as well as in comfort and convenience.

The portable radiator You probably wish the radiator in one of your rooms was in a different, more cozy corner—or nearer a window. A Perfection will solve your problem. A boy or girl can carry it anywhere, for it is light, though substantially built. It is also an ornament to any room—easy to fill, light and extinguish—always ready to give the few more degrees of heat needed to make a comfortable room cozy. Progressive hardware, housefurnishing and department stores sell the Perfection. Ask your dealer to show you one. Sold in blue or black finish, with or without nicked trimmings. COOK WITH GAS 12 MONTHS OF THE YEAR

Have you considered the comparative costs of cooking with coal and cooking with gas?

The average family can easily do all their cooking with 3,000 cubic feet of gas per month at a cost of $6.21 net. This is much less than the cost of one half of a ton of coal and very few families can do all their cooking with this amount.

In other words, it actually costs less in dollars and cents to cook with gas than with coal, to say nothing of the advantage of gas because of its convenience and because of the labor saved.

Gas is always available any time of day or night. Turn a cock and light the gas and you have the heat you desire. Turn off and all expense is stopped.

The hour used each morning in cleaning out the ashes and kindling the fire and waiting for it to come up is saved if you cook with gas.

The time spent in lagging coal and cleaning up the attendant dirt and dust, of ash and coal is saved if you use gas.

And besides gas is actually cheaper.

Think this over carefully and do not start your coal range this fall.

NORFOLK CLUB EVENTS

The third annual banquet of the Norfolk Club of South Weymouth will be held this evening in Fogg Opera House, and the wide-awake committee expect to make it the biggest ever. The speaker of the evening will be Hon. Michael J. Murray, associate justice of the Boston Municipal Court, who is always entertaining. Tommy Butler, the South Boston songbird, has been secured for solo numbers, and Charles A. Vinal will lead community singing.

Next Tuesday evening the Norfolk Club invites all citizens of Weymouth to an open forum at Fogg Opera House, when changes in local town government will be considered. Well informed speakers have been secured to enlighten the voters and questions may be asked from the floor. Payson Dana, a civil service commissioner of Massachusetts, and formerly chairman of the Brookline board of Selectmen, will explain the representative form of government in Brookline. Francis J. Foley, chairman of the finance committee of Norwood for five years after the adoption of the "Norwood Plan" will talk on the town manager form of government in Norwood, and W. B. Hamner, general manager of the town of Norwood, will give some of his experiences.

The Norfolk Club will entertain the Franklin Club of Abington Nov. 15, and on Thanksgiving Eve will give an assembly.

ABIGAIL ADAMS HALL

Katherine B. Elnes of Medfield, the 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Elnes, has been awarded a prize of $25 by the trustees of the Massachusetts Agricultural College for the most fitting name for the proposed girls' dormitory to be erected at the college, who have accepted the name Abigail Adams Hall, as suggested by the Elnes girl, in honor of Abigail Smith Adams, the wife of President John Adams, who was born in Weymouth.

Katherine, who is a sophomore at the Medfield High school, was one of several contestants to choose the name Abigail Adams Hall, but her letter telling the reasons for her choice was considered the best by the trustees and by Miss Edna L. Skinner, dean of women.

Katherine explains that her choice of the name was made after reading about Abigail Adams in James Morison's "John Adams and Abby", published in the Boston Globe on March 6 in his series, "Five minutes a Day with Our Presidents." The letter follows:

"Mrs. Abigail Adams gave us American women and girls a wonderful example in 1787. This example should be followed especially by Massachusetts. Abigail Adams was born in Weymouth, a town not far from Medfield, located near Braintree in Norfolk County.

"Someone might say, what is the example? She was the first lady interested in farming, or the first farm-ette of Braintree and Massachusetts.

"In 1787 her husband, President John Adams, went to France; she remained at home. She controlled the affairs of the household and farm, and there let every reader look at her and see a picture of a true mother of the Revolution. She is a farmer cultivating the land and discussing the weather and crops, a merchant reporting prices current and the rates of exchange; attending many other affairs; a mother who did valuable work."

"James Morgan of the Boston Globe describes her in these words:

"This mother of the republic had to stay at home to rock the cradle, cook and patch for four little Adamses, and to tend the farm; milking and churning, knitting and darning, teaching and praying, tolling and saving, she supported the family, inspired her husband in his progress to the Presidency, and reared a son to follow in the father's footsteps."

"All this a hard working farmer's wife must do. To Abigail Adams alone belongs the glory of being one of the most interesting women in 'Farming' or 'Country Life.'

"Now one easily can guess what name I suggest. It is 'Abigail Adams Hall.'

"KATHERINE B. EHNES."

NEGLECTED NEWSPAPERS

[Rochester (N. Y.) Herald]

The public is enabled to sense the seriousness of the newspaper situation as it sees the disappearance, one after another, of old established journals due to the high price of labor and materials, especially of newspaper. In the same neighborhood in Indiana last Saturday two daily newspapers gave up the ghost. One was a Republican daily 20 years old, and the other a Democratic daily established in the 70's and published continuously, and both worthy of a long life.

There are communities which neglect their newspapers, as though patronage were a matter of no personal concern. These communities do not awaken to a sense of their responsibilities until too late. Since the outbreak of the war hundreds of small newspapers have disappeared, due to increased costs and indifferent patronage. A community that stands aloof while the village weekly is in its last throes, can hardly escape a feeling of self-contempt in the contemplation of the wreck.

A business man, to be successful today, MUST ADVERTISE—that is keep his goods before the public in a bright and pleasing way.

MILITARY FUNERAL RALPH TALBOT

The funeral of Lieut. Ralph Talbot, a member of the Aviation section of the United States Marine Corps, whose body arrived in Weymouth Saturday evening, was held from G. A. R. hall Sunday afternoon. Lieut. Talbot was killed on the Belgian front Oct. 20, 1918, when his bombing plane was shot down by the Germans.

The funeral services were of military character and were held under the auspices of Weymouth Post, American Legion. Relatives, friends and former comrades attended in large numbers. There were delegations from Reynolds Post 58, G. A. R., Reynolds Women's Relief Corps, Gen. James L. Bates Camp, S. V., Ladies Auxiliary, S. V., Dorothea L. Dix ten, Daughters of Veterans.

The body lay in state from 9 A. M. until 2 P. M., members of the Legion acting as a guard of honor. The casket was covered with an American flag and there were many floral tributes.

The services were conducted by Rev. William Hyde of the Trinity Episcopal church. A quartet composed of W. H. Smith, V. W. Munroe, G. R. Young and N. M. Miller, sang "Still, Still With Thee," "Saviour," "Comfort Me," and "Abide With Me."

Commander Thomas J. MacDonald and Adjutant Pasquale Santacroce read the ritual of the American Legion. Under escort of 50 members of the Weymouth Post, American Legion, and the post band of 25 pieces the body was escorted to Weymouth Center. There an automobile cortege escorted the remains to Mt. Wollaston cemetery, Quincy.

The pallbearers were Theodore E. Delorey, George C. Smith, Minot L. Matthewson, J. Clark Boyle, Frank Delorey and William Dwyer.

At Quincy the Post members and band marched to the cemetery. At the grave there was a service conducted by Rev. William Hyde of Weymouth, during which the band softly played "Nearer, My God To Thee." Following the committal service the soldier's farewell, "three rounds blank" and Taps was given. As the casket was being lowered into the grave the drums beat the long roll.

Lieut. Talbot was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Talbot of Quincy, who have made their home in Weymouth for many years. Lieut. Talbot was a graduate of the Weymouth High school he worked afternoons at the office of the Gazette and Transcript where he showed wonderful ability as a writer.

Many Quincy friends of the family were at the cemetery to attend the burial services.

W. R. C. INSPECTION

Reynolds Women's Relief Corps was inspected on Tuesday by Mrs. Bertha W. Walker of Wollaston, deputy inspector and staff. The officers of the corps gave a good exhibition of the work, one of the new members being Mrs. Clara B. Wooten, daughter of Mrs. Mary Brassil, the president. Members of Reynolds Post, G. A. R. were guests at the dinner served at 6 P. M. by Mrs. Caroline Sewall, Mrs. Mary B. White, Mrs. Adeline Wildes, Mrs. Jennie Callahan, Mrs. Sadie Wolfe, Mrs. Ella Litchfield, Mrs. Adeline McDonald, Mrs. Margaret Green. In the evening there was an entertainment, which included readings and solo dancing by Miss Helen Ashton, piano solos by Miss Evelyn Ashton and vocal numbers by Mrs. Evelyn Sherman Philbrook and Mrs. Alice B. Merrill, and addresses by guests and members. Mrs. Mary R. Flint was the accompanist.

COMMUNITY ASSOCIATION

A large and enthusiastic audience attended the mass meeting held in the Community Association headquarters in the Union church building Wednesday evening to listen to an outline of the aims and objectives of the local organization.

The principal speaker for the evening was George W. Millett of Norwood who took a prominent part in developing a similar organization in that town and told of the beneficial effect which they have derived as a result.

Hon. George L. Barnes gave a short address on the need of an association of this kind and Miss Grace Simmons, principal of the Edward B. Nevin school, who was unanimously elected as fifth member of the council, explained the benefits which would be of advantage to the school children through this medium.

Albert E. Brown, a concert singer of note and one of the greatest organizers and song leaders in the country, who was also song leader for the Republican National convention led the community singing.

An opportunity was given for asking and answering questions and it was explained that the organization exists for the purpose of enriching the life of the entire community. The plans are already under way for a series of interesting activities during the winter and the outlook for the future development of the organization is very encouraging. John F. Robinson, president of the Association was in the chair.

CONFIRMATION

Sunday, Nov. 14, Rt. Rev. Samuel Babcock, D. D., Suffragan Bishop of Massachusetts will visit Trinity church Weymouth, and will preach and administer Confirmation. The service will be at 10.45 A. M. All are welcome.

TOWN FUNDS ARE GETTING LOW

Voters will be surprised to learn that there are 14 articles in the warrant for the special town meeting, in Rockland, Hingham, Braintree, Plymouth, Dedham and other large towns. It is customary to advertise all warrants in the local papers, but not so in Weymouth, which resorts to the practice of small towns which have no newspapers.

In a town of 15,000, which has aspirations of becoming a city, the poster stuck up in a few local stores is not sufficient notice to the 5300 voters.

In addition to the articles on a change of government, there are articles calling for appropriations of over $43,000 for various purposes, the reconstruction of Union street, purchase of estate for almshouse, additional appropriations for schools, highways, poor, police, and interest, and $2400 for installing a compressed-air system for the fire alarm whistle. In all there are 14 articles.

NORFOLK CLUB FORUM

In our report of the Norfolk Club Forum on page 12, two paragraphs were accidentally omitted. These should follow the second paragraph:

Mr. Dana explained the provisions. Each of the nine precincts elects 27 town meeting members (9 each year). We now have about 15,000 voters, with the women, and propose to amend the act to allow women to fill offices and serve as town meeting members. They serve without pay, take their duties seriously, and are regular in attendance. Selectmen and town officials are more careful in their votes and actions, and the new form of government had been a success. It was similar to that in Newport, R. I., and an improvement on the commission form in Galveston and elsewhere.

In reply to questions he told how each precinct nominates its town meeting members, only 30 names being required. In all with town officials there are 263 town meeting members. Admitted taxes were higher than years ago, being $17.30. Believed money had been expended more efficiently, and appropriations were more carefully made. We have a committee of 30 to consider articles in warrant; they are chosen by the voters. Referendum has not been invoked under our present charter. Voters, as well as town meeting members show an interest and attend town meetings.

GENTLEMEN'S NIGHT AUX. K. G. B. C.

The annual gentlemen's night of the L. A. K. B. C. was observed Saturday evening in G. A. R. hall, East Weymouth. At 6 o'clock a banquet was served in the lower hall. Covers were laid for 125. The hall and tables were elaborately decorated with flags, cut flowers and autumn leaves. Mrs. Hannah Abbott was chairman with the following corps of assistants: Alice Horton, Agnes Abbott, Grace Walker, Bertha Bailey, Salko Parker, Lou Miller, Kate Holbrook, Ethel Hayden, Gertrude Souther, Sadie Miller and Bertha Leach.

The menu consisted of baked beans, cold ham, escalloped oysters, salads, rolls, coffee, cakes and ices. Cigars were passed to the gentlemen and lollypops to the ladies.

After the banquet the company adjourned to the upper hall, where a musical entertainment was provided. Incidental music was furnished by the Elite Orchestra, Lydia Hattan, manager; reading by Miss Hazel Hollis; violin solo by Miss Emma Savoie; vocal solo by Miss Helen Orr and cornet solo, Miss Gertrude Price and vocal solo by Charles Price.

It has been the custom of the ladies of the auxiliary to present the Boat Club with a neat sum of money at the gentlemen's night to be added to the club building fund. This year the president, Mrs. Agnes Abbott, in a few well chosen words, told the guests of their decision not to withdraw the funds from the bank unless needed for building purposes, when they would be at the disposal of the committee.

Dancing in the lower hall followed the entertainment. Music was by the Ladies orchestra.

TEACHERS ENTERTAINED

The Teachers Association, School Committee, Superintendent of Schools and a few special guests, the party numbering nearly one hundred, were charmingly entertained by the teachers of the Nevin, Shaw, Pratt and Pond schools in the assembly hall of the Edward B. Nevin school, South Weymouth, last Friday evening. The rooms and hall were effectively decorated with autumn leaves, fruit, flowers, cornstalks and other products of the field.

A receiving line of ghosts received in a darkened room made weird by Halloween decorations and ghost choruses. A series of unique indoor games followed. Delicious refreshments consisting of ices, cakes and punch were served.

The committee in charge consisted of Miss Simmons, Miss Tomlinson, Miss Rockwood, Miss O'Connor, Miss Hallahan, Miss Tirrell, Miss Blenis, Miss Collins, Miss Chessman of the Edward B. Nevin school; Miss Holbrook, Miss Sampson, Miss Hatt, Miss Waterman of the Shaw school; Miss Hanson, Miss Long, Miss Holbrook, Mrs. Harris of the Pratt school and Miss Pratt of the Pond school.

The evening passed only too quickly and the affair was voted to be one of the most pleasing social events the association has enjoyed.

PRESENTATION

On Wednesday evening, Nov. 3, some 25 members of the Church of the Holy Ghost, Whitman, accompanied by the pastor, Rev. James H. Hamilton, were entertained at the home of Mrs. Nellie T. Carroll of Tower avenue, South Weymouth. Mrs. Carroll recently resigned as organist of the church after 14 years service, in recognition of which the choir presented her with a handsome table lamp and an electric toaster, the presentation speech being made by Frank Kirby. Father Hamilton made a few remarks which were followed by three cheers for Mrs. Carroll. Refreshments were served and a most enjoyable evening was brought to a close with music.

BELOVED PASTOR

The 65th birthday of Rev. John B. Holland of the Sacred Heart church was generally observed on Monday. The children attended holy mass at 8.30. Later the parochial school gave him a reception with exercises in each grade. The children pleased to present him a large pen-graving of himself for the school hall. In return he gave the children a holiday. In the evening the Promoters of the League of the Sacred Heart attended Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, the Edward B. Nevin school, South Weymouth, last Friday evening. The pastor was presented a purse of gold.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Victory of Republican Ticket in National Election Reaches Amazing Proportions.

SOLID SOUTH IS CRACKED

President-Elect Harding Goes on Vacation Trip—Amateur Cabinet Makers Busy—Strike of British Coal Miners is Called Off.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

Never before in American history has a major political party suffered a defeat comparable to that sustained by the Democrats on November 2. The result was far more than a Republican victory—it was brought about by the defection of many Democratic votes. Harding and Coolidge carried every state of the North and West, and even cracked the solid South, for Tennessee, New Mexico and Oklahoma all went Republican. Senator Harding consequently will have 404 votes in the electoral college, to 127 for Governor in 1912, when the Republican party was split, Wilson received 435 electoral votes, but he fell far short of a majority of the popular vote. This year Harding has a popular majority of large proportions, and his plurality approaches the seven million mark. In many states the pluralities by which the Republican ticket won were stupendous, and in the southern states where it was beaten the Republican vote showed large increases over previous elections.

Everyone professes satisfaction over the fact that the Republicans also have won complete control of congress. As one Democratic paper puts it: "For whatever good the next administration does it will have full credit; it cannot escape blame for whatever is bad." The jubilation of the Republicans may be tempered by the reflection that their majority of more than 150 in the house leaves the way open for factional disputes. Of the next senate the Republicans will have 58 members and the Democrats 38.

Just why the American people did all this is open to several opinions. Those who believed with President Wilson that the election was a "solemn referendum" on the League of Nations issue assert that it was opposition to the league covenant that caused the landslide, but really those who hold this view are few. Others aver it was due to the proverbial fondness of the American electorate for a "change." There can be no disputing that the people were determined to have a change from the Wilson policies and methods. This determination, in the mind of the writer, was the main spring of their action. As for the League of Nations, probably most of them want some such an association for the prevention of future wars, but evidently they are willing to trust Mr. Harding and his associates with the task of formulating it, and do not feel that the job need be done in a rush.

All the nation watched with interest to see what the women would do on election day. The Democrats counted on them to rally to the defense of the league covenant and to save the Cox ticket from defeat. But an analysis of the vote shows that they did no such thing. Instead they only helped to swell the Republican pluralities in the North and West, and in the South comparatively few of them went to the polls.

Among the notable developments of the election was the extraordinary run made by Governor Smith of New York, Democratic candidate for re-election. Although the empire state gave Harding a plurality of about 1,200,000, Smith was beaten by Miller by only about 70,000. This was a remarkable achievement, and in the minds of many politicians it marks Smith as the logical national leader of the Democratic party.

Another thing worthy of mention and consideration is the heavy increase in the Socialist vote. The total may reach two millions. It was especially heavy, of course, in the large cities. Probably many of the votes for Debs were cast by Democrats.

In addition to Messrs. Cox and Roosevelt, many an eminent Democrat was swept to defeat by the avalanche. There is widespread regret that Senator Chamberlain of Oregon was not successful, for he has been a capable, hard-working and independent member of the upper house, and is one of the staunchest Americans in public life. Other Democratic senators who failed of re-election include Mark Smith of Arizona, Phelan of California, Nugent of Idaho, Henderson of Nevada and Johnson of South Dakota.

In the congressional elections there were many surprises. One of these was the defeat of Champ Clark in Missouri. Oklahoma sends a woman, Alice M. Robertson, Republican, to Washington. In Wisconsin Victor Berger, twice expelled from the house because of his conviction for conspiracy against the government during the war, was defeated by W. H. Stafford, Republican. Texas elected one Republican congressman, H. M. Wurzbach having decisively defeated Carlos Bee, brother-in-law of Postmaster General Burleson. Myer London, Socialist of Sycamore, N. Y., defeated Representative Goldfogle. Many of the states will send solid Republican delegations to Washington.

On Saturday Senator Harding left Marion for a vacation in Texas and a trip to Panama. He expects to return home about December 6, and then may go to some Gulf Coast resort for the winter. He has not given out any intimations as to the makeup of his cabinet, but of course the amateur cabinet builders are busy. Many of them believe either Ellhu Root or Senator Lodge will be secretary of state—probably the former. Others who are "prominently mentioned" are ex-Senator Sutherland of Utah for attorney general, ex-Senator Weeks of Massachusetts for secretary of the treasury or secretary of the navy, Frank Vanderlip for the treasury post, General Wood for secretary of war, Governor Lowden of Illinois for secretary of commerce, Chairman Will Hays or John T. Adams of Iowa for postmaster general, and Congressman Nolan of California for secretary of labor. Some think Raymond Robins may be offered the last mentioned place, but this is unlikely. Herbert Hoover also has been talked of for a cabinet appointment, but this would be very displeasing to Senator Hiram Johnson. Objections to making an army man secretary of war, added to pre-convention irritations, may keep General Wood out of the cabinet.

For the important place of secretary to the President, four names are commonly mentioned—George Christian, Harding's secretary while in the senate; Judson Welliver, a newspaper correspondent, who has handled publicity at Marion; Fred Starek, former representative of an Ohio newspaper at Washington, and Richard Washburn Child, former editor of Collier's Weekly, who has been aiding Harding at Marion in the writing of his speeches.

William J. Bryan, arriving in Chicago on a lecturing tour, made a contribution to the gaiety of nations. He issued a statement calling on President Wilson to resign immediately, yielding the presidency to Vice President Marshall with the understanding that Mr. Marshall should appoint Senator Harding secretary of state. Then, Mr. Bryan said, Marshall should resign, which would make Harding the acting President. For some time there have been hints that President Wilson might resign in the event of a Republican victory. The rest of the proposed program is Mr. Bryan's own idea.

What the European press thinks of the election is interesting. The papers of London comment on the decisive rejection of the Wilson policies, and the Times regards the election as a distinct warning to Bolsheviks and extremists of all kinds. The newspapers of Paris all agree that Harding's victory is a bad defeat for the League of Nations as established by the Wilson covenant, and the Echo de Paris expresses hope that "the discussion which will be started on relations between the United States and the League of Nations will provide occasion to repair some of the faults committed at Versailles."

The French editors are unanimous in the belief that the result of the election will in no way prejudice the traditional Franco-American friendship, though some of them are a bit disturbed concerning the tariff. In Germany the press comments joyfully on the "personal defeat" sustained by President Wilson and finds comfort in Harding's election as presaging early restoration of normal relations between Germany and the United States; but the editors warn their readers not to be too optimistic.

California, besides giving Harding a fat plurality, overwhelmingly indorsed the anti-alien land law against which the Japanese government has been protesting so vigorously. This action insures that in the future no alien who is not eligible to citizenship under federal naturalization laws may own or lease agricultural land within the state: It does not affect existing ownership or titles.

Cuba, also, elected a new president on November 2. The successful man was Dr. Alfredo Zayas, who defeated Jose Miguel Gomez.

There was an election, too, in Scotland on the prohibition proposition. Thirty-six towns voted against any change in the present law, which permits the sale of liquor; ten voted dry, and one voted in favor of a reduction in licenses.

Prince Paul has not yet accepted the throne of Greece, and there is talk now of offering it to Prince Charles, count of Flanders, second son of King Albert of Belgium. Premier Venizelos has said publicly that he is willing that the return of Constantine to the throne be made an issue in the coming elections. France, it is known, would not permit the restoration of Constantine if she could prevent it.

As was foreseen, the strike of British coal miners came to an end. The executive of the miners declared it off under the terms agreed upon with the government and ordered the men back to work immediately. The miners had declared against the acceptance of the terms by a majority of 8,459, but this was far short of the two-thirds majority necessary to permit the issuance of a strike order and the leaders ruled it was not enough therefore, to continue the strike.

The Irish, Labor Liberals and young Tories in the British house of commons made another attempt to force a parliamentary inquiry into the reprisals in Ireland, but were again defeated by the government forces. There were indications, however, that the government was on the verge of starting negotiations for an Irish settlement that might succeed. Meanwhile murders and reprisals are increasing in number and ferocity. Sir Hamar Greenwood announced that during October 22 police and 14 soldiers were murdered, and 28 police and 30 soldiers wounded. Sir Hamar also told the house that nine Irish constables had just been arrested in connection with the reprisals, two of them being charged with murder. The most serious black and tan reprisals lately were in Tralee and Granard, where damages estimated at $5,000,000 were caused by the raiders. Ballymote, County Sligo, also, was almost entirely ruined by crown forces.

Baron Wrangel is having his troubles in southern Russia, for five Bolshevik armies are attacking him. They have driven his forces back on some fronts, and, what is more serious, have captured the town of Perekop on the narrow isthmus which provides the only practicable route into the Crimean peninsula. Wrangel at last accounts was holding the isthmus with his seven-mile trench system. Loss of this would cut his armies in two.

The result of the international fishing schooner races off Halifax is worth recording. Both races were won by the American entry, Esperanto of Gloucester, by the skill and daring of her captain and crew.

Practice Kindness Now.

There are kindnesses, hospitalities, public and private duties, and fellowship in the civic and social life of one's calling and station which help to make our sojourn here satisfying and gratifying. These should not be postponed nor stinted. "I expect to pass through life but once. If, therefore, there be any kindness I can show or any good thing I can do to any fellow-being, let me do it now, and not defer or neglect it, as I shall not pass this way again." This always timely text is usually attributed to William Penn.—Humphrey J. Desmond.

Scandinavia.

Scandinavia is the classic name of the great peninsula of north Europe which comprises the kingdoms of Norway and Sweden. In a historical sense the term includes Denmark and Iceland, and in a literary sense the writings of all these countries and those of the Swedish race in Finland. A Scandinavian may, therefore, be either a Norwegian or a Swede.

And Not Be Blue.

When you know a man to be yellow it is just as well to draw the color line.—Cartoons Magazine.

Wastes Time on Trifles.

I have a friend, a most estimable man, who is so conscientious about doing little things to a complete finish that he never allows himself to neglect details of the most trifling nature. The result is that, although he is a tremendous worker, his energies are so exhausted on trifles that he has very little strength or time for important things that need his attention.—Orison Swett Marden in Chicago Daily News.

Are You Fond of Hiking?

We are told that there is an old Greek legend that Eoelides, several centuries before the time of Christ, in Attica, established a pedestrian record that has never since been beaten. Eoelides was a messenger who, being sent from Athens to bring some holy fire from Delphos, made the journey there and back—125 miles in all—on the same day.

Value of Ton of Gold.

The mint value of gold does not vary, but remains constant at $20.67183462 per troy ounce, or $18,84151 avoirdupois. Basing a calculation upon this value, a ton of gold would be equivalent to $602,928.

Honesty Prevalent in China.

Honesty is a prevailing virtue among most Chinamen. Some of them in their native towns and cities leave their places of business unguarded while they go off for an hour or more. Should customers arrive in the meantime they find the prices of goods plainly marked, select what they want and leave the money for them.

With Reservations.

Our pastor remarked in his searching way yesterday that he often fears some members of his flock, if they prayed exactly as they feel, would phrase it this way: Lead us not into temptation, unless the chance is exceptionally good and no one's around.—Ohio State Journal.

Worth Cultivating.

Is it not a thing divine to have a smile which, none know how, has the power to lighten the weight of that enormous chain which all the living in common drag behind them?—Victor Hugo.

Prohibition is believed to explain the notable decrease of inmates in Massachusetts penal institutions, in some of which there has been a 100-per-cent thinning out of "wet" offenders, according to the prison census made public by the Massachusetts Prison Association. Jails in some places have been closed while others harbor only half the number of pre-prohibition inmates, according to the report. The population of prisons on July 1, 1919, when prohibition went into effect, was 3,615, but at the end of the first three months it had fallen to 2,896—a decrease of 719. During the year ending September 30, 1920, there has been a further loss of 544, leaving the number 2,352, a decrease of 1,263 or 34 per cent, as compared with July 1 last year.

DAISY AND POPLAR.

"Hello, Poplar," said the little Daisy growing beneath the poplar tree. "It is time for me to go to sleep for the winter. In fact it is very strange that I should be around here now."

"Yes, Daisy," said Poplar tree, "it does seem strange to have you out so late. Why is it?"

"Well," said the Daisy, "you know every year our Daisy Queen asks old Mother Nature if some of us can be around later than usual."

"She asks us if we can come out when most of the daisies are gone. She doesn't ask for all of us for of course we have our time of the year—early—when the June flowers are about."

"But some of us are allowed to come out later, and I was allowed to be out so very, very late this year."

"It is really the autumn now, but here I still am. Mr. Sun has been so kind though and he has helped me along."

"For as you see I am all, all alone. I'm the only daisy growing here. Yes, myself."

"Have you been lonely?" asked the Poplar tree.

"No, dear Poplar, I have not been lonely. I have enjoyed looking up at you. I love to see a tree standing so straight with its head high in the air as if it could look the bright sun even in the face."

"And I have always wanted to come and visit a poplar tree, so it was a special treat when old Mother Nature and the Queen of the Daisies let me come."

"Did I ever tell you about the way we are used for a little game called, 'She loves me, she loves me not?'"

"You never did," said the Poplar. "We've never talked a great deal, you know, for I am always looking upwards. And it was only when a few of my leaves and branches bent and swayed just a little in the breeze that we saw you."

"But do not think that we were not glad to see you and that I am not honored to have you there. I am, I am, indeed. I am very proud to think that you wanted to call on me, but I don't look about me as much as I should."

"It is the way I've been brought up. I've been brought up to look upward rather than downward. I've been taught to look up at the sun and at the sky and to smile and move my leaves ever so slightly in the warm breezes."

"But I am glad to see you, very glad, indeed," the Poplar tree ended. "And oh," it added, after a moment, "I do want to hear your story about the little game. I am waiting eagerly to hear it."

"Well," said the Daisy, "children will take daisies and will tear off the petals one by one. They will mention a person's name or they will think of a person they want to find out about—whether the person loves them or not, you see."

"For instance, Mr. Poplar, just suppose I wanted to find out if you loved me. I would take another daisy—if I could—and when I pulled off the first petal I would say, 'She loves me'—for that is the way they always start off, and at the second petal, I would say, 'She loves me not.'"

"In your case, of course, I would say 'He loves me,' or 'he loves me not,' or 'the Poplar tree loves me,' or 'the Poplar tree loves me not.'"

"Then when one has come to the last petal that last decides the whole thing. If the last petal comes out with saying 'He loves me,' then it means he does; and if it comes out 'He loves me not,' then it means that he does not."

"From the first petal right until every petal is off, one must keep saying 'She loves me, she loves me not,' the first speech to the first petal, the second to the second petal, the first speech to the third petal and so on right in turn until they are all gone."

"Isn't that an interesting game they have played with us?" the Daisy asked. "But I will tell you a secret, Mr. Poplar. We don't always come out just the way we should to make it just right, for sometimes we like to have our little Daisy jokes, you see."

Would Mend His Knee.

Three-year-old Ralph had fallen and hurt his knee, and as he sat in his little chair rubbing the injured part he suddenly looked up and said: "Mama, did God make me?"

"Yes, dear," replied his mother. "Well, then, continued the youthful philosopher, 'if he's got any pieces left I wish he'd mend my knee.'"

There is Something in a Tube besides Rubber

WHAT every motorist hasn't yet found out is that you can't always judge the quality of a tube by the kind of materials that go into it.

U. S. Red Tubes contain the pick of the world's rubber—more and more of it coming from the United States Rubber Company's own plantations in Sumatra.

But what gives them their quality is the United States Rubber Company's manufacturing experience—longer and more varied than that of any other rubber organization.

The Goddess Vesta.

Vesta was the goddess of the home and fire, and her temple was the oldest in Rome. It contained no image of the goddess, but had a fire which was rekindled by friction on the Roman New Year and attended constantly by the vestal virgins.

The Oldest Piano.

The oldest piano in existence was made by Cristofori in the year 1720, and is still in good condition. But its sound is more like that of a harp than a piano, for its wires, instead of being struck by hammers are plucked by points of quill or of hard leather.

To Clean Papered Window.

To remove stained paper from glass use lye. Dissolve in water and apply with an old sponge, being careful not to burn your hands. Leave on for a few minutes and scrape off with a knife. Another way is to wet the paper well with common ammonia or boiling hot vinegar.

When.

Answering the question, "When is a woman old?" a famous tragedienne wrote: "The concealed never; the unhappy too soon, and the wise at the right time."—Boston Transcript.

Elephant Labor a Necessity.

It is said that Siam's teak forests could not be worked without the assistance of elephants, as hauling machines could not be used in the inaccessible places where teak trees grow. An elephant can handle from fifty to seventy logs in a season.

In the Fertile Caucasus.

The richest part of Caucasian Armenia is the valley of Arax, which, with artificial irrigation, produces excellent grapes and other fruit and vegetables, as well as rice, cotton and corn.

ODD FELLOWS OPERA HOUSE Robert Louis Stevenson's powerful story, "Dr Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," has been translated to the screen with John Barrymore in the leading role and will be shown at the Odd Fellows Opera House, East Weymouth, next Monday. This is declared to be one of the most remarkable pictures ever filmed, and the performance of Mr. Barrymore, it is claimed, is a worthy companion to that of Richard Mansfield, who appeared in the same part in the stage version of the story.

The plot, as is well known, has as its central figure a young London physician, Dr. Jekyll, whose tenderheartedness is exceeded only by his all-absorbing interest in his chosen profession and his scientific investigations. He is in love with an innocent, beautiful girl, Miss Carew. Her father, Sir George Carew, is a famous man about town. Dr. Jekyll is persuaded by Sir George to accompany him to a low music hall. From this experience, Jekyll is led to experiment with a liquid that will separate the good and evil in a man into two distinct bodies. He evolves such a drug, administers it to himself and becomes not only Jekyll, the doctor-philanthropist, but also Hyde, a mis-shapen, evil brute. Gradually the Hyde side of his character over-masters Jekyll and after strikingly dramatic scenes, he succumbs. Only after his death is the dual character of his personality revealed.

Martha Mansfield is Mr. Barrymore's leading woman, and the picture, which is a Paramount Arteract, was directed by John S. Robertson.

The Ladies Auxiliary to the Sons of Veterans was inspected Monday evening by Mrs. Mabel Ham, P. N. S. Members of allied organizations were guests. A supper was served under the direction of Mrs. Margaret Higgins and Mrs. Hannah Abbott.

SENIORITY OF G. A. R. HOLDS

Praise of Principles Embodied in Message From Spanish War Veterans and American Legion.

Recognition of the seniority of the Grand Army of the Republic among ex-service organizations and praise of its principles are embodied in a recent message from representatives of the United Spanish War Veterans and The American Legion.

The statement, which is signed by Thomas J. Cunningham of the United Spanish War Veterans, and Dr. T. Victor Keene of The American Legion, is as follows:

"The representatives of the United Spanish War Veterans and The American Legion, appointed by their respective national commanders, extend to you hearty greetings. At a joint meeting called by your past commander-in-chief, Col. C. N. Adams, a declaration of principles was unanimously adopted. It was agreed that one of our nation's most valuable institutions for the teaching of patriotism has been the Grand Army ceremonies in many localities, and it was believed that a wider recognition by all of the national veteran groups in a formal manner of the opportunity so afforded would result in mutual good and profit.

"The younger veteran groups desire the Grand Army to clearly and definitely understand that we recognize their seniority, and hold the Grand Army, composed as it is of our fathers and grandfathers, in reverent affection. We hold it a splendid thing to be permitted to aid and help the Grand Army in its work during its life; and when the Grand Army shall be no more, with the appreciation that all men who have seen service feel for brothers in arms, to continue the customs and honor the memory of the Grand Army as we will our own."

LEGION MEN AS LIFE-SAVERS

Members of Havana Post Lend Aid in Protecting Bathers at the Playa de Marianao.

Bathers on the beach at Havana now are placing reliance for their safety on members of The American Legion who are doing duty as life-savers. As the laws of Cuba do not compel the public beaches to supply life guards Havana post of the Legion offered the services of 20 of its members, who had qualified for the American Red Cross life saving corps, and excellent work has been done by them at the Playa de Marianao, where they are stationed. Havana post numbers 112 members and has long been active in the life of the city. In the Mardi Gras parade Legion floats were entered and aroused much favorable comment. The post is planning to take charge of the American celebration of Armistice day in Havana.

20,000 IN LINE OF MARCH

Ex-Service Men Representing Every State and Far-Off Outposts at Cleveland Convention.

Twenty thousand ex-service men, representing every state in the Union and far-off outposts where the Stars and Stripes flies, swung through the streets of Cleveland, O., in the great opening parade at the second annual convention of The American Legion.

Leading the parade were hundreds of disabled veterans of the World war in automobiles, while behind them came 31 winners of the Congressional Medal of Honor. For two solid miles the sidewalks and stands were packed with cheering spectators as the veterans passed in review.

Frequent picturesque incidents served to lend color to the parade as the long column of olive-drab and navy blue tramped down the line of march. Le Roy Williams, a Grand Army of the Republic veteran, who won the Congressional Medal of Honor at the battle of Cold Harbor, joined the medal of honor men and marched the entire route. A huge flag that stretched across the street, borne by Legionnaires of Akron, O., was showered with coins by the spectators until more than $5,000 was in its folds.

The delegates from Paris, Cuba, Panama, Hawaii, Porto Rico, Mexico and the Philippine Islands, who had traveled thousands of miles to attend the convention, received a tremendous ovation from the crowd. Army nurses and former yeomanettes came in for their share of the applause, and a sensation was created by the Montana delegation, which appeared in leather chaps, spurs and sombreros.

More than 300,000 spectators viewed the parade, which was declared to be the greatest spectacle ever staged in Cleveland.

The honor of being the youngest commander of a post of The American Legion is borne off by Edward J. Whitehead, who directs the destinies of Leonard Dethman post, of Wolf Point, Mont. He is twenty-two years of age. His fellow Legionnaires are enthusiastic over the way in which he took over the post when its activities were at a low ebb and brought it to a high point of usefulness and efficiency.

TRIBUTE TO WORLD WAR MEN

Pamphlet is Being Distributed by French Government to American Participants in Conflict.

"And you yourselves? You have taken part in the greatest adventure upon which humanity has so far ever been launched. You have seen your friends fall by your side; you have yourselves, perhaps, been face to face with death.

"The American army was great because the men in it were moved to be their best. Though you disperse as soon as you touch the shores of the United States, a common determination will hold you together, it will bind you in fraternal union to the comrades in arms by whose side you fought in France. In 1776 Americans conquered for the liberty of their own country. In this war you have helped to win the freedom of the universe."

These stirring passages are excerpts from the souvenir pamphlet being distributed by the French government to each American soldier, sailor and marine who served overseas during the World war. The pamphlet contains autographed photographs of high officials of the French government and brief accounts of some of the important episodes of the war.

The adjutant general of the army has appealed to The American Legion to aid in the distribution of the pamphlet which is being carried out through the various army recruiting stations.

(© 1920 Western Newspaper Union)

All great deeds are built of small efforts upon a foundation of labor.

The ancient fathers lived on frugal fare—
Roots, cressets, herbs—avoiding viands rare.—Gualdo.

SOME TOOTHsome DISHES.

It is customary to allow the following salad to stand for an hour to season, but as the dressing wicks the cucumbers and draws out the moisture from the tomatoes, it is preferable to serve at once:

Andalusian Salad.—Cut stale bread into slices and the slices into half-inch cubes. Sprinkle a layer of these cubes in a salad bowl and cover with French dressing, using three tablespoonfuls of oil to one of vinegar; add very thin slices of Spanish onion, ripe tomatoes, and cucumbers; pour on more dressing, add some shredded red peppers and another layer of bread cubes and vegetables. Finish with cubes of bread over the top.

Molded Custard.—Soften one-fourth of a package of gelatine in one-fourth of a cupful of cold milk. Make a soft custard with three egg yolks, one-third of a cupful of sugar and half a teaspoonful of salt. Add the softened gelatine, stir until dissolved and let cool; add half a teaspoonful of vanilla extract and strain into a mold.

Caramel Marshmallow Parfait.—Cut twenty marshmallows into four pieces each; add one-third of a cupful of maraschino cherries cut into thin slices; pour over them four tablespoonfuls of maraschino sirup and let stand an hour or longer. Cook two-thirds of a cupful of sugar to a caramel. Add two-thirds of a cupful of water, cover and cook until a sirup is formed; uncover and cook until reduced to one cupful; add two tablespoonfuls of sugar, and when dissolved pour the whole in a fine stream, beating constantly meanwhile, on the white of a stiffly beaten egg; beat occasionally until cold; fold in the marshmallows and cherries and one and one-half cupfuls of cream beaten stiff. Turn into a three-pint melon mold; cover with paper and press the cover in place over the paper, which should extend on all sides. Pack in ice and salt, equal measures, and let stand three hours.

Dutch Rice Pudding.—Mix one cupful of rice in two cupfuls of milk, add one tablespoonful of butter, the yolks of four eggs, the juice of half a lemon, one cupful of sugar, nutmeg to taste, half a cupful of chopped raisins, half a cupful of nuts and the whites of the eggs beaten stiff and folded in. Bake in a well-buttered pudding dish until well done. Serve cold.

"The best aristocracy of which any man can boast is a long line of healthy, honest and industrious ancestors."
"He who prides himself upon his ancestry is like potatoes—all that is good of them is under ground."

LET US MAKE FRUIT CAKE.

In the fall, when the nuts are fresh and the thought turns toward the cool weather to come, when rich cakes are enjoyed, is the time when we look over our stores to see if all the ingredients are present; for a fruit cake well made and baked is a treasure like a bank account, always ready to be called upon in an emergency. In the following group, if you cannot find one which you will be urged to try, you will be hard to suit:

Wedding Cake.—Take one pound of butter, one pound of sugar, twelve eggs, one pound of flour, two teaspoonfuls of cinnamon, three-quarters of a teaspoonful each of nutmeg, allspice and mace, one-half teaspoonful of clove, three pounds of raisins, seeded and cut in pieces, one pound of currants, one pound of citron, thinly sliced and cut in strips, one pound of figs, finely chopped, three tablespoonfuls of vanilla, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice. Cream the butter, add the sugar gradually and beat thoroughly. Separate the yolks from the whites of eggs, beat the yolks until thick and lemon colored, the whites until stiff and dry and add to the first mixture. Add flour (excepting one-third of a cupful, which is reserved to dredge the fruit), mixed and sifted with the spices, vanilla and lemon juice. Less vanilla may be used and any rich fruit substituted. Then add the fruit, except the citron, dredged with the reserved flour. Dredge the citron with flour and put it in layers between the cake mixture when putting in the pan. Steam three hours in deep buttered pans, well covered with greased paper, then bake one and one-half hours in a slow oven. Cake cooked this way is moist and keeps well without becoming dry or soggy.

Cakes, if to be frosted, should never have the frosting put on until the day before using. Fruit cake of this kind is much better six weeks or even months after baking, as the spices and flavors have then had time to flavor the whole mixture.

Short-Sighted Humanity.
We all dread a bodily paralysis and would make use of every contrivance to avoid it but none of us is troubled about a paralysis of the soul.—Epictetus.

NO OLD SHOES
"Did you throw any old shoes at the bride?"
"No. Didn't have a pair that I felt I could afford to throw away nowadays."

For Afternoon or Evening

THERE are a good many women who have no use for more than one or two frocks for formal wear and who are sensible enough to buy only what they can use, no matter how ample their means. These women want conservative styles, equal to serving for both afternoon and evening. They rely on accessories to tone up such gowns to the requirements of any dressy function.

With the return of nets and dyed laces to favor and the perennial black lace and satin dress there are offered two very safe choices. And there are added to these in the new displays, very handsome frocks in silver cloth embroidered with jet, in duvetyne combined with metallic and other brocades, in velvings draped over satin and, more than all, embroidered frocks in which silk or glittering beads brighten up quiet colors on crepe de chine, satin, charmeuse or wool fabrics.

Two frocks that will prove an enduring joy to their wearers and serve for any sort of formal wear are shown in the picture. At the left a brown net with large dots is made up with satin to match and worn over a satin slip with accordion-plaited skirt. Bands of picot-edged ribbon alternate with rows of dots on it and the skirt is suspended from a yoke of satin corded at the edge to give it a flare. The wide girde is of satin, and there is a short, folded vestee of it and folds of satin finish the sleeves.

Black charmeuse and chantilly lace flouncing make the dignified frock at the right of the picture. The lace forms a long overdress extending across the sides and back of the full satin skirt. The sleeves and underbodice are of lace and the satin overblouse affords an example of a new and much admired neckline. Even in evening dresses the low décolletage is being replaced by a straight neckline. The girde of this dress is worth noticing, for it is very pretty and new. American Beauty in color it is made of wide, soft satin ribbon twisted and wound with a twisted silver ribbon into a rope that encircles the waist and is looped and knotted at the left side.

WITH THE FUNNY MEN

Strange.
"There's one thing I can't understand about these spirit communications," remarked Mr. Brown as he finished reading the account of a highly successful seance.
"What's that, John, dear?" asked his wife.
"Why, you never hear of a departed soul having gone any other place except straight to heaven."

Only One Obstacle.
Her Suitor—You surprise me! I did not think you would interpose any objection to my marriage to your daughter. Why, I thought you liked me!
Her Father—I do, my boy. But there is one thing insuperable in the way.
"What in the world—"
"My daughter doesn't like you."—Stray Stories.

He Has Our Sympathy.
"So Helen Strongmind is to be married to Mr. Wurm?"
"Not exactly. Helen says he is to be married to her."
"Oh, yes, of course. She's asked you to be her bridesmaid, hasn't she?"
"No, she asked me to be her 'best woman.'"

Absurdities in Attire.
"I must say," remarked the derisive person, "that a man looks ludicrous in the clothes his wife goes out and buys for him."
"Maybe," replied Mr. Growcher.
"But not any more ludicrous in my opinion, than his wife does in the clothes she goes out and buys for herself."

That's Different.
Redd—Thought you told me that was a ten-horsepower automobile of yours?
Greene—So I did.
"Well, I can't believe it."
"Why not?"
"Because, I noticed it took only one horse to pull it back home today!"

NO OLD SHOES
"Did you throw any old shoes at the bride?"
"No. Didn't have a pair that I felt I could afford to throw away nowadays."

The Purina System of Feeding keeps the flock laying in the fall and the winter, because it supplies plenty of material for whites as well as for yolks. This enables the hen to make complete eggs of all the yolks that develop in her body.

When a grain ration is fed there is not enough protein for whites. Many yolks that form are not laid, but are eventually absorbed back into the system as fat.

Third Annual Dinner Of The Norfolk Club

It is said to be a fact, that more members of the Norfolk Club attended church on Sunday than usual, because, two nights previously they had listened to Judge Michael J. Murry and applauded the sentiments he advanced. It was the annual banquet of the club, held in Fogg Opera House, and Mr. Murray was the principal speaker. No subject was assigned him, and he did not announce one, but "right living" was the theme. As one man remarked it was the best sermon he had listened to for 20 years.

Judge Murray noted at the outset that many changes had taken place since he spoke in the same hall 25 years ago. It is not so much what we say, as what we do. Patriotism is essential. It is just as essential in Weymouth today as years ago, if we are to be good citizens. Thoughtlessness and carelessness are doing things to weaken rather than strengthen citizenship. All love a manly man—one who is honest and just. Too many forget some old-fashioned truths. The Pilgrims regulated their lines by the Ten Commandments; old-fashioned some will say, but so is truth. They laid their foundation pretty well; strong personal characteristics. Hard to find better examples of the manly man than the good old New Englander. One of the best things that could happen here today would be to have churches of all denominations filled every Sunday.

No man has a right to do less than a man's work. Every man is doing something every day to help or hurt his country. The speaker cited several things that did not cause the World War, but said it was hate of one nation for another. Here in the United States we have a little Europe; we are a cosmopolitan country; but there never was a time when the people of Massachusetts were more American.

Men have differences with one another who do not take time to study the other fellow. Let us be fair and honorable. I have never believed in woman's suffrage, because woman has a place of her own. But my heart was touched on Tuesday when my wife and daughter took up the duty of government. Now every woman should vote. Some men vote for a man because he is a good fellow, or because he belongs to "my church", or "my club", but not so with women. They will be exponents of good government.

Let men refrain from doing things in the dark. There is one union to which we all should be loyal, the union of the United States of America. I do object to the planting of feuds here that belong on the other side of the ocean. But let us do what we can for the betterment of our fellow man.

The members met at 7 P. M. in the club-rooms and good fellowship prevailed. The banquet was served by members of the club, who provided an excellent menu:

- Roast Turkey
- Lobster Salad
- Mashed Potatoes
- Turnip
- Onions
- Squash
- Celery
- Cranberry Sauce
- Lettuce
- Frozen Pudding
- Cake
- Coffee
- Rolls
- Cigars

Before partaking of the feast all stood and sang the Star Spangled Banner. President Elliot Veazle extended the welcome. At intervals during the evening there was community singing led by Charles A. Vinal, with Bob Hyatt at the piano.

Town Counsel William J. Holbrook introduced the speaker of the evening. The president also introduced Wichert, the chairman of the entertainment committee, who was received with applause. He made several announcements; one of which was that the club-rooms are now open two afternoons a week to the ladies.

Tommy Butler "the South Boston songbird" sang two groups of songs in his own inimitable style. One of his best was "The Rosary."

Hon. George L. Barnes was asked to speak, and after telling his ginning experience, he touched on the change of town government. We have reached a point when we have got to have some change, especially with the added women vote. He urged a large attendance at the meeting next week, and favored a town government by representation, as in Brookline.

Three cheers were given to Judge Murray, the speaker of the evening.

MEETING OF SELECTMEN

An unusually large number of jurors were drawn by the Selectmen on Tuesday because of the South Braintree hold-up case before the Superior Criminal court at Dedham, viz: George H. Wise, William A. Burt, John Ryan, Fred Barter, James B. Ford, John Reidy, Albert W. Poulin, Alfred F. Blackwell, Altonio Caro, George H. Walker and Jacob B. Denbroeder.

The Selectmen at their regular meeting decided that the Tufts lecture course should be held this year in the High School hall, under the direction of Supt. Parker T. Pearson.

The board received notice this week of the death Nov. 2 at Tewksbury of Quong Lee, formerly proprietor of a laundry at East Weymouth.

SALE OF CANDY

Editor Gazette and Transcript: Thru your newsy weekly sheet I desire to express my indignation of the practice in vogue by the local schools of giving the children candy to sell on the streets and at the homes of our townspeople. The profits of these sales are spent wisely, 'tis true, but such articles needed in our schools for benefit of our children should be purchased thru some educational appropriation.

We are pestered on every drive by 7 to 10 children to buy this candy. We don't want this candy, but rather than disappoint the child we buy, and is numerous cases the candy is undesirable, being either dirty or mutilated. At other times we are forced to pay for candy which parties take from our children and promise a future payment, but overlook same. It is a public nuisance and I trust the school committee will take action to prevent these sales.

Many of our storekeepers pay a yearly license to the town in order to sell candy and this school sale is injurious to their business. It is an called for and should be stopped. May I read of more objections in your paper from parents of the school children.

"That's the way to buy heat —by the roomful!"

YES, the "roomful" is the practical way to measure heat. Sometimes you want a bedroomful, and again a bathroomful. The Perfection Oil Heater produces the heat in the room where you want it.

The warm, cheerful glow of the handsome nickel-trimmed Heater makes it a favorite in many homes that have no open fireplaces. It's a practical and most welcome gift—gives 10 hours' clean heat on a gallon of kerosene—easily carried about.

MOTERING MADE QUITE PROFITABLE

Sampling the Farmer's Produce.

Here is a new dodge planned and followed out by some brainy motorist blessed with the usual amount of vision, but with more sound sense and less pride than the average owner of a pleasure car.

Motoring can be made pleasurable and profitable. Spin along any of the state roads leading to the city, and if you're not going too fast you will notice here and there, outside certain farmhouses roughly constructed stands on which are displayed samples of the varieties of garden truck and produce raised in the immediate neighborhood.

Many farmers have snapped up the idea and its possibilities. From producer to consumer, with both parties sharing the profits which would otherwise go to the handler, marketman, middleman and thusside down the line.

Mrs. Smith, Jones or Brown, can lay in a week's supply of greenstuffs by making a ten-minute stop while on a pleasure jaunt. You can sample all you want and no charge. The truck is fresh and reasonably cheap, and charging of packing, transportation, loading and unloading, ad infinitum, are all profit in your pocket.

AIR IN TIRE IS HELD BY VALVE

Mechanism Is Strong Enough to Withhold Pressure of 70 to 125 Pounds.

SHOULD NEVER BE REMOVED

When Dirty, Corroded or Misplaced It Cannot Perform Its Functions Properly—Cap and Washer Afford Protection.

Motorists are often puzzled to know what keeps the air in the tire. A sensitive little mechanism commonly called the plunger and strong enough to hold back air pressure as high as 70 to 125 pounds to the square inch, functions here. This little valve, which consists of a plunger about an inch long, a bit of spring and rubber, is responsible for the well-being of the tire.

It is located inside the valve stem, and seats against a treaded metal core. It should never be removed unless absolutely necessary. When it is taken out it should not be replaced unless all the parts are in perfect working order.

Gets Out of Order. When inflating a tire the motorist sometimes accidentally bends the wire plunger, throwing the valve working parts out of line. Sometimes it becomes corroded; sometimes dirty or misplaced. When thus handicapped it cannot perform properly its duties of keeping the air in the tire.

At the top of the valve stem is a small cap which assists the valve by protecting it against the dust which would ordinarily collect there. This cap offers also additional protection against air leakage, for it is fitted with a rubber washer which forms an airtight seal over the stem.

But there is a third device which assists in keeping air in a tire. A lock washer fits under the dust cap, down over the valve, and seats on the part of the wheel to which the spokes are anchored. The hexagonal nut acts as a seal to prevent dirt, water and other foreign substances from creeping past to ruin the inner tube and valve base. Contrary to the usual supposition, it does not prevent the rim or tire from slipping on the wheel.

Part Are Inexpensive.

These three parts are inexpensive, and if they are found to be worn out or out of order, they can easily be replaced at a trifling expense. Almost any dealer or garage man will be able to furnish them. Failure to have them examined may cost the motorist many dollars in tire underinflation, in rim cutting, in bruises and in blow-outs.

THICKNESS GAUGE IS USEFUL

Number of Blades Hinged So That They Can Be Opened Like an Ordinary Pocket Knife.

One of the most useful little weapons for the car owner is a thickness gauge. This consists of a number of blades hinged so that they can be opened like a pocket knife. Each blade has a different thickness, and they can be used singly or in combination to determine whether various parts which should have certain clearance are properly adjusted.

POULTRY

Enables Owner to Ascertain Just Which Hens Are Laying—Requires Much Attention.

The purpose of trap-nesting the flock is to ascertain which hens lay, either for determining what record they make, or for identifying their eggs during the hatching season so that pedigree records are possible. Trap-nesting requires a considerable amount of attention, but is a valuable aid in developing a flock of poultry along lines of breeding for egg production.

A trap-nest is a laying nest so arranged that after a hen enters it she is confined until released by the attendant. One trap-nest should be provided for each four hens kept in flocks of 50 or more, while more trap-nests are necessary in smaller flocks. The hens are marked with numbered bands and a record is kept of their egg production. The nests should be visited at least four times daily, and preferably much more often, frequent trips being especially necessary when the hens are laying freely and during hot weather.

The trap-nest may be attached to the underside of the dropping board with the front facing the pen, and arranged so that it can easily be removed, or it may be placed on the walls of the pen. If the nest is placed under the dropping board, the latter will serve as a top for the nest, and the rear of the nest may be of wire to allow good ventilation in warm weather. If the nest is placed on the wall, slats or wire should be inserted from the front of the nest to the wall at a sharp angle to prevent the hens from roosting on the nest.

Of course, it is essential to make the nests as attractive and cozy as possible, and this is accomplished by providing them with plenty of clean litter, as often as a new supply of straw is needed. Furthermore, in particularly objectionable cases it pays to clean all the litter from the floor of the house, in order to break the hens of laying promiscuously wherever they desire. By removing the straw and bedding, the floor of the house is not so attractive as a nesting spot for the hens and pullets, and hence they are forced to seek the trap-nests.

Equal Parts of Poison and Vaseline Applied to Fowl's Body Is Effective.

Body lice on fowls can be quickly and effectively eliminated by the blue ointment treatment. Get your druggist to mix equal parts of vaseline and blue or mercurial ointment. A piece the size of a pen rubbed on to the skin below the vent will kill both lice and mites. Do it this spring and fall but don't overdo it nor use it on chicks under three months old.

PLAN FOR BETTER CHICKENS

Fall Is Good Time to Obtain Few Purebred Fowls—Get Hens That Molted Late.

This fall is a good time to buy a few purebred hens if you are planning to go in for better chickens. Select hens that have not molted by the middle of October and you will probably have a group of good layers. Next spring they can be mated with a purebred rooster from a high producing strain and your foundation flock is under way.

STUDY OF MARKET DEMANDS

Poultry Raiser Should Know What Color of Eggs and Meat Will Bring Best Prices.

Every poultry raiser should make a study of the market demands. A uniform color of eggs and flesh in poultry is desirable. A mixed flock will not produce uniform eggs or meat, and eggs from such a flock are not desirable for hatching.

FURNISH HENS FRESH WATER

One of Common Causes of Digestive Troubles Among Poultry Flock Can Be Prevented.

Unclean drinking water is one of the common causes of digestive troubles in poultry during hot weather and the important point is not so much to save labor as to furnish those birds with a supply of pure fresh water at all times.

Ministers and Teachers Guests of Monday Club

On Monday, Nov. 15, came the meeting of the Monday Club for this season. All other meetings have been pleasant and entertaining, but this was a heart-stirring session for every person present.

The first speaker was Prof. Ralph Bearer of Powder Point school, Duxbury, who spoke of the adolescent boy, and one felt how well he understood his subject. He described the two-in-one boy who was shing-faced, starch-collared, quiet-mannered James on Sunday and other formal occasions, while ordinarily he was the more or less smugged, decidedly noise Jim of the "gang." He asked for understanding of the boy whose body grows so rapidly his mind cannot keep pace, for patience with all the queer ways of a boy, and his seemingly absurd notions. He urged wholesome boyish play instead of the amusements of his elders. The summing up was "don't worry, have patience, and love the boy all the time."

The talk helped each young mother to realize her boy was like other boys, and not an unusual problem that she must solve alone. The older mothers, who had gone through the time of adjustment, wished they could have heard the talk years ago.

The next speaker was Miss Mary E. Driscoll, district supervisor of New England field service for women and girls, and she spoke on "The Community's Responsibility to the Adolescent Girl." She knew her subject, felt its importance, and was so earnest in its presentation, that each listener was unusually stirred. Her story of her work among girls, the word she gave that they were not all Boston girls, but from many towns around, and this town included; the statement that the women must bear a share of the blame because they did not guard public dances and like gatherings, as they should; the plea for kindness for the girl; the warning that women must interest themselves in legislative action in order to improve conditions, made the women realize their responsibility and that they could use both influence and votes to help the work.

The entertainment was furnished by the High School Glee club, under the direction of Mr. Calderwood, and the sight and sound of the young voices and faces made Miss Driscoll's talk more touching. To many a woman came a new realization of the dangers of girlhood and a determination to guard more closely every girl and help her to a womanhood that would help better the world. The ministers and teachers of Weymouth were guests of the club at this meeting and they and club-members were served delicious coffee and accompanying dainties by Mrs. Harry Stetson and her helpers, Mrs. Perry, Mrs. Donette, Mrs. Alden and Mrs. Hoiges being in charge of the coffee urns.

The work of the club under the Civics Committee is flourishing. The first meeting at Mrs. Beals' of North Weymouth was addressed by Miss Florence Luscomb on: "Our Chief Executive and Twenty State Departments." The talk was instructive and interesting, giving information in regard to things that had been vague before. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. P. L. Alden, Whitman street, East Weymouth, at 2:30 P. M. Friday, Nov. 19. Elmer L. Curtis of Hingham will address the meeting on the subject of Civil Service, and Mrs. Harry Mattson will sing.

SOUTH WEYMOUTH FAIR

Under the auspices of the Social Aid Society connected with the Old South Union Congregational church a two-night fair was held in the Community Association headquarters in the Union church building Friday and Saturday evenings. Mrs. Freeman Putney Jr., chairman, Miss Elsie Munroe had charge of the entertainment Friday evening presenting the program entitled, "An Old-fashioned Singing School," with Miss Annie Deane musical supervisor, with about 25 voices in the chorus. Mrs. Charles Vinal, Miss Dorothea Pratt, Alan Munroe and Frank E. Loud rendered vocal selections; Miss Elsie Munroe in appropriate costume danced the Minuet, and Miss Lucia Nash gave recitations. Mrs. F. E. Loud was the accompanist. Miss Jessie Morrill had charge of the play entitled: "Scenes from Pilgrim Days" presented Saturday evening. Miss Marion Proctor dressed as Priscilla Alden, Dorothea Pratt as "Mary Chilton", Lloyd Proctor as "Miles Standish", and Alan Munroe as "John, Alden" were those who took part and dressed accordingly. The various tables were in charge of the following chairmen:

Fancy, Miss Charlotte Craibe. Apron, Mrs. Charles F. Vinson. Food, Mrs. W. S. Whitten. Bag, Mrs. S. M. Bishop. Mystery, Mrs. A. M. Newbert. Colonial lunch, Mrs. Bertram N. Loud. Candy, Mrs. B. C. Coleman, assisted by 15 members of the Philaetha Girls club.

Miss Hannah Barnes had charge of the tickets and Mrs. H. T. Spear the posters.

The attendance was large on both evenings and the affair is considered highly successful.

COMRADES BIRTHDAY PARTY

Members of Reynolds Post 58, G. A. R., were entertained on Tuesday from 4 to 7:30 at a "Comrades Birthday" party, tendered by Reynolds Women's Relief Corps, which included a reception, banquet and entertainment. The banquet was as usual excellent, and at each plate was a birthday cake and candle. By candle light all sang "Should Auld Acquaintance be Forgot." The entertainment included patriotic songs, addresses, fancy dancing etc.

COMMUNITY ASSOCIATION

It has been several years since a first-class "Lyceum Course" has been put on in South Weymouth, and lovers of the lecture and the concert of high grade will be more than pleased to know that such a course is to be given during the winter months by the Community Association of South Weymouth. For information about dates and tickets see the advertisement in this issue of the Gazette.

For two or three hours Monday it spit snow. Does it mean that we will have 15 snow storms?

Big Attractions at Annual Village Fair

Seldom has a harvest exhibit been more extensive or looked more attractive than that at the "Village Fair" of the Village Cemetery Association in the Bates Opera House on Wednesday afternoon and evening. In fact the whole hall was attractive, dressed up with pine boughs, sunflowers etc. But E. W. Hunt and his committee certainly put in a lot of work. Their exhibit not only included prize squash, pumpkin, potatoes and other vegetables and fruit, but also a live turkey weighing about 30 pounds which was a beauty, also a pen of Rhode Island Reds, a pen of guinea hens, a pen with rabbits (a mother and six young ones), a pen of Blue Offingtons, Mutt and Jeff, (two cute little pigs), new cider on draft, geese, duck etc. Mr. Hunt was assisted by C. G. Jordan, S. B. Richmond, John O. Bicknell, Bradford Denton, P. J. A. Perry, John S. Bacon, Jacob Dextheimer, Elmer Smith, Fred Thayer and others.

A tempting variety of home-made candy was offered on the candy table and found ready sale. Mrs. J. O. Bicknell was in charge, assisted by Mrs. F. W. Harris, Mrs. Charles Miller, Mrs. Wallace Bicknell, Mrs. E. W. Hunt, Mrs. Harry South and several young ladies.

The domestic table was in charge of Mrs. M. W. Gardner, Mrs. A. E. French, Mrs. G. H. Gross, Mrs. Bradford Knight and Mrs. Charles Jordan. Bridge and whist were the attractions in the afternoon and 27 tables were in play. At bridge the prizes were taken by Mrs. Alice Clapp of East Braintree, Mrs. Wiley of South Braintree, Mrs. Frank F. Prescott of Quincy, and Mrs. Goodhue of Braintree. At whist the prizes went to Mrs. Fannie Merchant, Mrs. Joseph Kelley, Mrs. George T. Fogg and Mrs. George E. Fogg.

In the evening the entertainment was provided by the Fore River Glee Club and Pietro Mordella, the piano accordion player. The Glee Club was led by E. L. Murphy, formerly of Weymouth, who has lost none of his talent for music. Mr. Mordella was a charming entertainer.

Vegetable, fruit and other articles unsold were sold at auction, and there were many spirited contests, all noting the association a goodly sum. Mrs. A. D. Tirrell is president of the association, Mrs. Frank Perry treasurer, and Mrs. Ernest Barrard secretary. Mrs. Perry was in charge of the whist.

Armistice Day Celebration in the Allied Countries—Eminent Men at Geneva for First Meeting of League of Nations Assembly—Developments in Near East.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

Takashi Hara, premier of Japan; Baron Shidehara, Japanese ambassador to the United States, and Roland Morris, American ambassador to Japan, all are hopeful, even confident, that a better understanding between the two nations will soon be brought about and that international relations are in no grave danger of being overstrained. Marquis Okuma, former premier, is by no means so optimistic since the Californians endorsed their anti-alien law. In an address before a general meeting of the Japanese Immigration association last week in Tokyo, Okuma said: "It is strange how cool the Japanese are towards a problem deciding the fate of their brothers in America."

The anti-Japanese movement in the United States, he asserted, endangers relations not only between Nippon and America, but also between Japan and other powers.

"Germany," he said, "was reduced from leadership among nations because she ignored the principles of justice and humanity, and now America, ignoring them, is setting an example that Canada and Australia will probably follow."

"Must we, one of the five great powers, remain silent when others act inhumanely and unjustly towards our nationals? That is not the way the welfare of humanity is promoted."

Premier Hara regards the California agitation as sectional and not representing the country at large, and believes that if the thinking people in both countries are careful not to let the agitation go to extremes, sound judgment eventually will prevail and the matter will be satisfactorily adjusted.

Undoubtedly it will be left to the new administration and the new senate to make the adjustment, which may take the form of a new treaty. The plan favored by Japan is that Japan shall undertake to prevent further Japanese migration to the United States and that our government shall undertake to safeguard the property rights of the Japanese already in the country. Tokyo would prefer to have this in the form of a strengthened "gentlemen's agreement," but Governor Stephens and other leaders of opinion in California maintain the Japanese question never will be settled permanently until the "gentlemen's agreement" is abrogated, Japanese excluded by statute and Japanese property-holding rights restricted, as contemplated by the California referendum measure.

Armistice day, the second anniversary of the ending of the World war, was fittingly observed by all the allied and associated nations. The ceremonies in London and Paris were especially impressive. In the presence of King George, the heads of the government and the relatives of missing soldiers, the body of an unknown warrior was interred in Westminster abbey, this being the highest honor England can pay to one of her dead; and in Whitehall the king unveiled a permanent cenotaph dedicated to "the glorious dead."

The French took the body of an unidentified soldier from the cemetery at Verdun and interred it beneath the Arc de Triomphe. President Millerand and Marshals Foch, Joffre and Petain took part in the ceremony. Then the heart of Gambetta, who brought France through the terrible days of 1870, was deposited in the Pantheon.

In the United States there were no ceremonies of a national character, but the day was generally observed with parades, memorial exercises and patriotic meetings. Former service men held a great gathering in New York and were addressed by General Nivelle, the defender of Verdun.

Crosses and medals were presented to American naval heroes by the navy department. The Red Cross took advantage of the day of celebration to start its drive for a vastly increased membership, and the response to this call was immediate and general throughout the country.

All preparations were made last week for the first meeting of the assembly of the League of Nations in Geneva November 15. Whatever may be accomplished at this session, it will be a notable gathering of great men. Every nation member of the league has sent eminent men to represent it, among them being Arthur Balfour, H. A. L. Fisher and George Barnes for Great Britain; Leon Bourgeois and Andre Tardieu for France; Tittoni for Italy; Hymans for Belgium; Paderewski for Poland; Branting for Sweden; Barons Hayashi, Ishii and Moga for Japan; Motta, Ador and Usteri for Switzerland, and accomplished statesmen for each of the Latin-American republics.

The countries not represented at the Geneva meeting, because they are not members of the league, include Germany, Austria, Bulgaria, Turkey, Russia, Mexico and the United States of America.

Statesmen and publicists of France have been especially active since the election of Senator Harding in discussing the probable revision of the treaty of Versailles and the chances of forming an association of nations which the United States would join. Ambassador Jusserand will soon return to Washington, after spending several months in Europe, and it is believed he will bring the latest views of his government on the subject of recasting the league covenant. Through him, France may renew its efforts to have the senate ratify the treaty guaranteeing protection to France against exterior aggression.

Developments of the week in the Near East were not especially favorable to the allies in several instances. First, and most important, was the news that Armenia had concluded an armistice with the Turkish nationalists, whose seat of government is in Angora. The Turks had captured Kars and Alexandropol and were moving toward Erivan. The Georgians being threatened, were mobilizing on their frontiers and hoped to save Batum. This action of the Armenians opens the way for direct junction of the nationalists and the Russian soviet forces and creates a serious condition for Great Britain, France, Italy and Greece in Asia Minor. Kemal Pasha's armies are still intact, because the allies cannot get far from the sea coasts, and his government is going ahead regardless of the fate of Constantinople and the sultan. Its authority is supreme in Anatolia and it is probable that the Turks there will elect a new sultan after separating the sultanate and the caliphate, and that thereafter a new caliph also will be chosen.

The nationalists insist that the treaty of Sevres must be revised and that Smyrna, Cilicia and part of Thrace must be returned to Turkey. France especially would oppose this, fearing that Germany would take it as a precedent and ask modification of the treaty of Versailles. The Turkish treaty has not yet been signed, the Porte having said the time for such action was unpropitious.

News of Baron Wrangel's desperate struggle against the Bolshevik armies in southern Russia is a trifle confused, but on the whole not very encouraging to his well-wishers. Dispatches from Sevastopol said the soviet forces had broken through his outer works at Perekop, but that the situation was not considered as serious. French military observers with Wrangel said he had fallen back into the Crimea and that the retreat had been conducted with notable success, the morale of his troops being unimpaired. He hopes, with proper material, to maintain his position until cold weather brings about the disintegration of the soviet armies. The Moscow government says its troops east of Perekop have crossed the Sivtch river into the Crimean peninsula.

At last Italy and Jugo-Slavia have come to an agreement in the Adriatic dispute. It was said the settlement of the Istrian frontier is in favor of Jugo-Slavia, though Monte Nevaso goes to Italy; Fiume is to be independent, with territorial contiguity to Italy; the Italians get the islands of Cherso, Lussin and Utle and suzerainty over Zara. It was understood the territorial pact would be accompanied by commercial and political agreements.

Premier Lloyd George, in an address at the inauguration of the new lord mayor of London, took occasion to warn Ireland again that the British government was determined to put an end to the campaign of assassination, and that there will be "no real peace in that island, no real conciliation, until this murder conspiracy has been shattered." He warmly defended the work of the police in Ireland, saying: "They are getting the right men. They are dispersing the terrorists. If the police need more power they shall have it."

The Irish republicans, seemingly, have accepted the challenge, for the murders of policemen and soldiers continue, and preparations are being made to meet the emergency of the threatened closing of the railway and mail systems of the island. Committees are organizing to provide food and fuel to the towns along the railroads.

Some fool friends of the Irish, in this country, sent to the British chief secretary for Ireland a threat of reprisals against Englishmen resident in the United States, "if there are any more reprisals in Ireland on and after the fourteenth day of November." The British embassy in Washington has called the attention of the State department to this and it is understood the department has started an investigation.

The Walsh congressional committee which for more than a year has been investigating the operations of the shipping board and its Emergency Fleet corporation stirred up a hornet's nest last week when it published the report of A. M. Fisher and J. E. Richardson, who had conducted inquiries for the committee. This makes broad charges of corruption of officials and employees of the corporation, graft in purchasing supplies for and in repairing government-owned merchant ships and the use of political and other influence in obtaining construction contracts and the allocation of vessels to operating companies. The board is accused of gross waste of the government funds and of failure in co-operation. In his testimony before the committee, however, Mr. Richardson said his report did not purport to fix any illegal act on any person. Charles Piez, director general of the corporation during the war, before being called before the committee entered a general denial of the charges of corruption and graft. Commander A. B. Clement, executive assistant to Admiral Benson, chairman of the board, told the committee the only real ground for criticism of the board's administration was the lack of perfect co-ordination between the different departments. Representative Walsh said Admiral Benson probably would be called on to testify. There was considerable criticism of the committee for making public, for the second time, charges against the shipping board without first giving the organization a chance to defend itself.

An interesting development of the baseball situation was the decision of the eight National league clubs and three of the American league clubs to form a twelve-club league, and the offer of the chairmanship of the new board of control to Judge K. M. Landis at an annual salary of $50,000.

At a reception held by Boston clergymen resolutions were passed to pledge support to Dr. Wilfred Grenfell, the famous Northern doctor and explorer. Dr. Grenfell is in Boston in the interests of an endowment campaign for $1,500,000 to be raised in England, Canada and the United States to aid the work in Labrador.

Headlights of standard specifications, regulated by the state registrar of motor vehicles, must be used on all automobiles beginning early in January. The result of such standardization of headlights will be a great reduction in the number of motor accidents, it is believed. Under the new ruling headlights must meet specifications as follows:

Civilization has advanced to a point where the use of war paint is no longer necessary, said Principal H. H. Gadsby of Drury High School, North Adams, Mass., in an order issued to young women students against the use of cosmetics, ainted face, bare knees and other extremes in style of dress no longer will be permitted in class rooms, according to the order.

Richard R. Flynn, commissioner of state aid and pensions, has received an opinion from the attorney-general of Massachusetts to the effect that men who were discharged from draft camps during the war for physical disability are not eligible to state or military aid. As a result, Commissioner Flynn will dismiss any such applications, of which already there have been half a dozen.

Probation officers in Massachusetts courts collected more than $1,000,000 during the year ending September 30, last according to a statement issued from the office of the state commission on probation. The exact amount, omitting three small courts which have not yet reported to the commission, was $1,030,478, an increase over last year of $223,726, and the largest annual gain since the service was established. The statement contains comparative figures showing a rapid and constant gain from 1900, in which year the total was $49,067.

Owing to the law in force in many states prohibiting first cousins from marrying each other Miss Rhoda Loise Richardson and Harry Richardson, both of Bay City, Mich., traveled across seven states before finding a place where they could be legally wed. Judge Charles L. Hibbard of the Pittsfield, Mass., district court gave the couple a permit to marry without waiting the necessary five days.

Two sentences of six months in houses of correction, two $500 fines, and several lesser fines were levied on violators of the prohibition law by Judge Clarence Hale in the United States district court, Boston, when the defendants waived jury trial and pleaded guilty to the offences with which they were charged. The first jury decision ever returned in a liquor law violation case in this federal district was one of "not guilty," in the cases of Lewis Barros and Manuel Sarra, both of New Bedford, and both charged with manufacture of intoxicating liquor. Ellery Sedgwick, editor of Atlantic Monthly, was foreman of the jury.

The special session of the Massachusetts Legislature, to pass on the codification of the laws, will not be called until after Thanksgiving. It had been assumed that the date would be about November 16, but Gov. Coolidge, on mature consideration, has decided that it would be wiser to wait until after the holiday, Nov. 25. The temptation might be strong, if the earlier date were set, to hurry the work of revision of the statutes, so as to permit of prorogation from the day before Thanksgiving until the regular session of 1921. The Governor is persuaded that the later date would be more certain to provide ample time for consideration of so important a matter.

The joint special committee on pensions, an unpaid recess committee of the Massachusetts Legislature, has estimated that the head of every family in Boston contributes $4.29 annually to pay the pensions of retired city employees. In addition, according to its estimate, 50 cents more is paid for pensions of retired Suffolk county and state employees. The committee was appointed for the purpose of considering what changes, "if any, in the present laws should be made to make the present pension systems of the commonwealth more uniform and equitable, and also the question as to whether or not all such pensions should be placed upon a contributory basis."

The New England potato crop suffered a shrinkage of about 6 per cent, and was reduced in quality as the result of rot during October, according to the report of V. A. Sanders, field agent of the bureau of crop estimates of the United States department of agriculture. The crop is now estimated at 34,950,000 bushels, compared with the five-year average of 34,778,000 bushels, and 35,080,000 in 1919. The net average yield in the Aroostook region is estimated at 130 bushels per acre, with production at 15,750,000 bushels, a loss of nearly a million bushels in October. The total Maine crop is reported reduced to 21,240,000 bushels from 23,128,000 estimated last month and a five-year average of 23,309,000.

Ways and means of increasing earnings of New England railroads were discussed at a conference in Washington of railroad representatives, shippers and state railroad commissioners. Spokesmen for the New England lines declares that on the basis of the September and October returns from the advanced freight and passenger rates recently authorized by the interstate commerce commission, the roads in that section stood to lose heavily. A proposal to ask the commission for a further increase in rates for New England was considered, but it was decided to lay before the commission a plan by which those roads would receive a greater return from the joint through rates from the eastern trunk lines entering New England.

One of the first congressional bills to which Mrs. Arthur G. Rotch, legislative chairman of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters, will call the attention of the women of the State is the Sheppard-Towner bill. This bill has for its object the public protection of maternity and infancy. It provides for instruction in the hygiene of maternity and infancy and the household arts essential to the well-being mother and child; it provides for consultation centers and medical and nursing care for mothers and infants at home or at a hospital.

IN ANOTHER KEY

A HOPELESS CASE.

A teacher could not get a little girl to remember the number four. She would count, "1, 2, 3, 5." Finally in desperation the teacher asked her if she had a cat at home. The little girl said she did.

"Then run along home and count the cat's feet, then come back and tell me how many she has," said the teacher.

The little girl returned to the school-room promptly.

"Well, did you count the cat's feet?" asked the teacher.

"Yes, ma'am."

"How many has it?"

"Two in the front and two in the back."—Kansas City Star.

ANOTHER

She—I was a fool to marry you.
He—No doubt; but I am not willing to let you bear all the blame. I asked you to.

At the Zoo.
See the critters at the zoo
See the panther and the bear;
Then the thought occurs to you,
What expensive furs they wear!

The Other Kind.
"I hear food is going to take a drop all over the country."
"That is more than the consumer can do unless he goes outside the three-mile limit."

Satisfactory.
"Is your husband voracious in his appetite, madam?"
"Not a bit of it, doctor. He'll eat anything and everything as long and as fast as he kin git it."

At the Club.
"How far have you proceeded in your discussion of intimate domestic problems?"
"We have just gone through the trousers pocket matter."

Naturally.
"What are the best export places for cork?"
"I suppose it's where they have the largest floating populations."

Porch Ascent.
Knicker—Did he begin at the bottom of the ladder?
Bocker—No, you might say he started at the bottom of the front steps.

Contrary Hopes.
"Funny, isn't it, when a man throws his hat into the ring—"
"Well?"
"He wants a square deal."

FAIR

Fortune Teller—You will marry a rich man who will give you a princely allowance. Two dollars, please.
Customer—I'll pay you out of my allowance. Good day.

Good Idea.
To have no notion is a bore
To all us writing men,
I'll go into a notion store
And fill my fountain pen.

Familiar Appeal.
"Do you believe you can get women to understand a blanket ballot?"
"Sure, if it is marked down."

Mistook Its Sex.
"Bings has a clever parrot that remarked the other day it wasn't worth while talking when you had nothing to say."
"Then what does he call it Sally for?"

Certainly.
Fair Playgoer (to friend examining poster of famous play being performed by equally famous actor)—Whose Hamlet do you like best, dear?
Friend—Oh, Shakespeare's, by all means.

Could Be Better.

A writer says it was probably a bagpipe instead of a fiddle that Nero played while Rome was burning, taking this position presumably on the fact that nearly all historians agree the music was rotten. It is for this reason we have stuck to the fiddle theory. Nero was a punk musician, and walls of the bagpipe are sweetness itself compared to the sound of the violin in the hands of a well-meaning amateur.

True Courage.

True courage has so little to do with anger that there lies always the strongest suspicion against it where this passion is highest. The true courage is cool and calm. The bravest of men have the least of a brutal, bullying insolence, and in the very time of danger are the most serene.

Wheel's Progression.

The use of the wheel goes back to the dark ages. The first wheels were made of solid blocks of wood cut from the trunks of trees. Many changes were made before the modern wheel was evolved.

Metal Pen Result of Accident.

Some 80 years ago Joseph Gillitt was a working jeweler in Birmingham, England. One day, he accidentally split one of his fine steel tools, and being suddenly required to sign a receipt, and not finding a pen handy, he used the split tool as a substitute. This happy accident is said to have led to the idea of making pens of metal.

"Pieces of Eight"

These are gold pieces which were coined early in the seventeenth century at the Amsterdam mint, the Netherlands being under Spanish rule at the time. They were worth eight Spanish reals, or about one Spanish Peruvian dollar, and were coined at the time that Spain was at the height of its power and prosperity.

Merely a Memory.

What's become of the amateur social scientists who used to prove beyond the shadow of a question that thieves are the product of an economic system which fails to provide work for all?—Indianapolis News.

Moving Done by Porters.

In Tunis there are no moving vans nor carts, many of the narrow streets being impassable. Household belongings are changed from place to place by porters, who most any day may be seen staggering under chests of drawers and other heavy pieces of furniture. On occasion the porters will even transport, in huge baskets, persons who may be sick, or otherwise incapacitated.

Make Address Sure.

When wrapping magazines for the mail, the important thing is to make sure that the magazine and its wrapper will not part company. Lay a cord lengthwise inside the magazine, and after sealing and addressing the wrapper, tie the cord once the long way and once around the middle of the roll.

Difficult Climbing.

Another reason why we have never climbed very far up the ladder of fame is because we have to come down every little while and tell some groundling we'll pay him Tuesday.—Dallas News.

WEYMOUTH-BRAINTREE

The new Pilgrim highway milestones are supposed to have at the top, the name of the town where located, but one of the Weymouth stones has strayed away and is located in Quincy avenue in Braintree. Many people find it difficult to locate the Weymouth and Braintree boundary, but it is just south of the Bates Opera House block, between Washington and Norfolk Squares.

CLAPP MEMORIAL NOTES

Just watch those C. M. A. athletes clean up in their series of games along the South Shore and throughout the New England states. Can you imagine the local quintet of last year with the added weight and ability that will be supplied by none other than Galvarisky, one of the headlines of the fast Rumford team.

The Thanksgiving turkey, which will be awarded the winner in the bowling tournament for the ladies, is still strutting around the barnyard with an air of unconcern. Perhaps he hasn't seen the records that are being broken by this year's class.

John Gannon and Joe Mahoney will have to keep travelling to keep in the lead of Galvarisky. The Curtin clan are bound to clean up this season no matter who the opponents are. Bring on your champions and let them taste defeat at the hands of the local quintet, say we.

Have the North Cohasset boys broken up their organization? Rumor has it that they have all joined the National Guard at Hingham. Well they couldn't come up to the standard made by the C. M. A. anyhow, so what's the use of wasting their time.

Just how many can the C. M. A. gym hold, when in a pinch? There is certain to be a large crowd at every game this fall and winter, yes and spring, too. They'll have to play some of their games at the Hingham Armory it would seem. That's the only hall in the eastern part of the State that can hold the record-breaking crowds that are sure to turn out.

The C. M. A. wrestlers are training for a few bouts. Warren will take part in a number of exhibitions within a few weeks.

The athletic field looks deserted with the passing of football. The High school will wind up its series of games in a few days and then basketball will be in full sway.

The folk dances and gymnastics are proving a great drawing card at the C. M. A. hall. Better go up there and see Doc Fabyan. He declares that it is the only thing for grammar and High school girls. And under a competent director too.

A great many new boxers are making their appearance along the South Shore these days. Rumor has it that Charlie Cotter has found a new champion in the heavyweight division. He is going to spring him on the local fight fans shortly over at the Quincy Boxing club. By the way, how many of you are going to attend that Webb-Ramsey bout to be held at the Quincy club on Dec. 27. Ramsey is reported to be in training. If this is true there should be a wonderful battle for the fans.

THE PILGRIMS

The Pageant of Progress, staged by the Recreation Department of the city of Oakland, California, Oct. 30 and 31, had a real New England flavor. In episode one, was the forest primeval, then the spirit of the Pioneer, the Pilgrims, the Colonists, the great forefathers, great wars, peace, hand of fellowship to people from other countries, then Progress, Prosperity and in the last episode the years bring back the Pilgrims—"They builded better than they knew."

Among those impersonated were Myles Standish, George Washington, John Hancock, Samuel Adams, Abraham Lincoln, Priscilla Alden, Anne Hutchinson, Mary Chilton, Mary Dyes and Ann Bradstreet.

THREE SISTERS MARRIED

That father in Braintree who brought up a large family, gave three of his daughters a grand wedding one day, and presented each with a substantial present in cash as a wedding gift, certainly improved his opportunities and prospered. Mr. and Mrs. Martin Melicorda, the parents of the brides, are among the prominent Italian residents of South Braintree.

W. R. C. NOTES

The next regular meeting of Corps 102 will be held on Friday evening, Nov. 25, at 7:30 o'clock. The president desires a large attendance at this meeting, as arrangements will be made for the next supper.

It was very disappointing to her many friends that senior department president Mrs. Ella F. Long was unable to attend "Comrades Day" at G. A. R. hall on Tuesday.

Several members of Corps 102 visited the Parker Hill hospital and spent two hours with the World War veterans. They are cheerful and are well cared for and appreciate every little act of kindness.

TOWN BRIEFS

Supt. of Streets Irving Johnson was one of the speakers on Thursday at the quarterly meeting of the Massachusetts Highway Association. Secretary McCarthy in his invitation wrote: "Knowing that the roads in Weymouth were extremely well taken care of during the severe storms of last winter, the president has presumed that you would not be adverse to telling how you did it." The subject of the meeting was "Snow Control."

—A bill has been filed with the clerk of the Legislature of 1921 for the consideration of the cities and towns within 12 miles of the State House.

—The ponds were covered with thin ice the first of the week.

—H. L. Kincaide & Co. of Quincy will have a big piano sale next week. See page advertisement.

—C. E. Sherman & Co. of Quincy start a big sale on Saturday in piece goods, underwear, hosiery etc.

—The Boston Cash Market sold tons of sugar last Saturday, and there were many other bargains.

—Street car service was resumed in Braintree today the Selectmen having agreed to revoke the jitney licenses.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

At the first regular meeting of the month held last evening it was voted that the members should meet at the clubhouse at 8 o'clock and march in a body to the late home of Bro. John Griffin on Broad street, who died at a Boston hospital Wednesday night, and pay their last respects this evening. The funeral will take place tomorrow morning.

CROWDED OUT

Some of the regular features are crowded out this week, including the anniversary column and the farm letter. Look for them next week.

IS NAMED LEGION HISTORIAN

Eben Putnam Performed Similar Service Before the Office Was Made Permanent.

A life of singular variety and adventure has been that of Eben Putnam, new-chosen national historian of the American Legion. Mr. Putnam was born in Salem, Mass., Oct. 10, 1868. He received his education in private schools and the Cambridge high school. While he was a boy he was the companion and assistant of his father, the distinguished anthropologist, Prof. Frederic Ward Putnam, in archaeological explorations in various parts of the world.

Mr. Putnam has been deeply interested in genealogy, eugenics and New England histories, and has compiled and published a number of works on these subjects. He has conducted extensive investigations over a period of more than twenty-five years into the question of immigration. He is a member of the Society of Colonial Wars, the Sons of the American Revolution, the Military Order of Foreign Wars, and American Historical Society.

Early in the fall of 1915 Mr. Putnam became convinced that this country must enter the war eventually, and joined the training school organized in his state. He attended the Plattsburg camp the following summer and the next winter was a member of a provisional battalion of infantry. He was barred from a commission in the line because of his age, but on April 4, 1917, was commissioned a captain in the quartermaster corps. His son also was in the service.

Mr. Putnam served as assistant to the depot quartermaster in Boston and later served overseas in the fuel branch. He was discharged August 22, 1919. Mr. Putnam is a charter member of Wellesley Post No. 72 of the American Legion, and was insurance officer and post historian until he resigned to accept the post of department historian for Massachusetts, where he served also in the capacity of a member of the state executive committee. He had performed the duties of a national historian of the Legion before that office was made permanent.

TO BE GREAT WAR MEMORIAL

State of Indiana to Erect Magnificent Building to House Legion National Headquarters.

The erection of a magnificent building to house national headquarters of The American Legion in Indianapolis is assured following the action of the Indiana state legislature, which voted that the state war memorial should take the form of a structure for this purpose.

A tract of state-owned land in the center of Indianapolis, 900 feet long by 450 feet wide, will be dedicated to this project and the city has been authorized to include two additional city blocks adjoining the state properties. The result will be a splendid plaza with American Legion headquarters in the center. The land is valued at approximately $12,000,000.

The Legion building will be constructed under the control of a board of trustees appointed by the governor of Indiana. All members will be men of the Legion. Already the Indiana legislature has voted a tax levy which will yield more than $3,000,000 as an earnest of its desire to adequately house and equip national headquarters of the Legion.

SINCERE FRIEND OF LEGION

Mrs. Janette Logan Jacobs Has Been Hard Worker in Interest of Disabled Ex-Service Men.

A fearless and devoted worker in the interest of the disabled ex-service man, Mrs. Janette Logan Jacobs of New York city, has proved herself a sincere friend of the American Legion. It was Mrs. Jacobs who supplied the Legion with many of the facts which it laid before congress when it demanded the reform of the federal board for vocational education, a reform which had been carried out largely under the direction of the veterans' organization.

Post Meets in Two Towns. When Lee-Bishop post of the American Legion was organized in the two towns of Hudson and Twinsburg, a novel scheme was hit upon to avoid jealousy between the communities. The post holds its sessions in alternate places on alternate meetings.

LEGION AND LABOR QUESTION

Position of National Body, Adopted at Cleveland Meeting, Made Clear in Bulletin.

A clear and well-defined exposition of the official attitude of the American Legion toward organized labor is contained in a bulletin sent out by national headquarters of the Legion in Indianapolis, setting forth the statement on the question issued by Past National Commander D'Olier, which was adopted by the national convention as the Legion's platform in industrial difficulties. The statement follows:

"The attitude of the Legion toward organized labor is the same as its attitude toward all groups of American citizens who are interested in a square deal for all in the maintenance of law and order, and the protection of the institutions handed down to us by our forefathers. In any controversy between capital and labor, the interest of the American Legion is confined to that of the maintenance of law and order and, without taking part on either side, in case a situation should arise where life and property are endangered, it is the duty of members of the Legion to perform their full duty as citizens, according to their own conscience and understanding.

"In such a contingency it is the Legion man's duty to assist in the maintenance of law and order by acting as an individual and offering his services to the duly-constituted authorities for the maintenance of law and order. There is nothing to prevent the individual member of the Legion as an individual from taking either side in such a controversy but the Legion, as an organization will not do so."

KEEPS EYE ON LEGION MONEY

Robert H. Tyndall is Reappointed National Treasurer by the National Executive Committee.

The handling of the finances of the American Legion will continue to be directed by Robert H. Tyndall, national treasurer, who was reappointed to the position by the national executive committee. Mr. Tyndall is a native of Indianapolis, and during the war served as colonel of the One Hundred and Fiftieth Field Artillery, Forty-second ("Rainbow") division. He was in command of the regiment throughout the war and was with the army of occupation in Germany until April, 1917.

Previous to his service in the World War Mr. Tyndall had long been interested in military affairs. He enlisted in Battery A of the Indiana National Guard in October, 1897. The battery was mustered into the Twenty-seventh Indiana Volunteer Battery on May 10, 1898, becoming a part of the expeditionary forces in Porto Rico during August and September of that year. In 1900 he enlisted in the reorganized Indiana National Guard and served as corporal, sergeant, lieutenant, and captain of Battery A until 1913, when he was promoted to major of the First Battalion, Indiana Field Artillery. He served on the Mexican border from July, 1916 to January, 1917, and received the rank of colonel in April, 1917.

ASKS FOR MILITARY ESCORTS

Philadelphia County Committee Appeals to President Wilson to Provide Firing Squads.

Following advices from the adjutant general of the army to the effect that it is impracticable for the War department, without a special appropriation for transportation expenses, to provide military escorts for the burial at Philadelphia of soldier dead whose bodies are being returned from overseas, the Philadelphia county committee of the Legion has appealed to President Wilson to provide at least two firing squads for this purpose from Camp Dix or through the Frankford arsenal, at Philadelphia.

"The American Legion representatives," the letter reads, "were not satisfied with the excuse offered by the adjutant general of the army for refusing to assist in meeting this emergency. The bodies of soldier dead of the A. E. F. are being returned to Philadelphia daily, and as many as five requests a day are being received by the American Legion. The Legion, through its representatives in the county organization, took the position that it cannot avoid its responsibility to honor these men who gave their lives for their country.

"The United States army is now recruited to a strength of 300,000. It was the unanimous opinion among the Legion representatives of the 76 posts in this county, that as commander in chief of the United States army, you might consider it a privilege to assign to Philadelphia 16 men who might serve as military escorts, thus assisting the American Legion in performing a paramount patriotic duty."

The letter was signed by Romain C. Hassrick, secretary of the committee. Legionnaires as Guard of Honor. Impressive ceremonies marked the funeral of Albert F. Waid, late commander of the Department of Panama, whose body was laid to rest in the National cemetery at Arlington, Va.

Children and Books.
 It does the child no harm to make the acquaintance of books which were not written for children. In a home where the great books that have inspired or amused successive generations are accessible an active-minded child is likely at some time to get at them. If we want our children to fall in love with the better kind of books let us provide them with opportunities for meeting such books without too much formality.

Armor for the Gopher.
 "Golfers who fear snakes," says a traveler, "might try the 'tin armor' tactics resorted to by wanderers in the tropical swamp lands. It is the custom of some explorers to fasten a bright tin disk over their ankles. This gleaming spot attracts the reptiles, which invariably strike at it and nowhere else. The snake is thus rendered harmless and leaves the explorer in a position to receive a knockout blow at the intended victim's discretion.—London Chronicle.

The Wise Wife.
 A smart wife won't let her husband get up and give one of the children a drink after he goes to bed, because if she does, he will go around all the next day complaining that he was up all night and never got a wink of sleep.—Arkansaw Thomas Cat.

WOMEN CLING TO LONG LINES

ANYONE who is a student of the fashions has noted the persistent return each season of dresses that belong either to the "straight-line" or the "long-waisted" class. The goddess of our idolatry appears to have a slender silhouette, and women are not to be lured away from her worship, especially when they are choosing clothes for daytime wear, as street and afternoon frocks.

In the two handsome frocks for afternoon shown in the illustration above, there are presented two models that are interesting to women who like unbroken lines. One of them, at the left of the picture, is especially well suited to the slender or normal figure, but the other is distinctly a piece of good designing for stout women. The dress at the left employs a plain wool fabric and is made with a long-waisted bodice, which supports a long tunic of the material. The tunic is open at the front, revealing a plain under-petticoat of satin, and is handsomely embellished with embroidery and beads. There is no decoration on the bodice, but cuffs and collar of lace make a dainty finish for it.

The other dress is a loosely adjusted princess model, in which an oddly figured brocade is finished at its opening with a long band of moire ribbon. There is a little definition of a long waistline, in scant gathers across the sides and back. The skirt portion is uneven in length and the dress crosses the body from right to left at the waistline and fastens under a rosette of the moire ribbon. What especially distinguishes it is a fringe of monkey fur which follows the edge of the moire band for its entire length and makes a somewhat startling finish for the sleeves.

Dressed as She Should Be

WHEN the pretty and amusing flapper is dressed as she should be, she has a charm of her own. Usually this young person is opinionated and would like to array herself in more or less startling, not to say vampish, apparel; the gentle art of dressing appropriately is more often a matter of education than of natural good taste. As a rule, very young girls at present are overdressed, and by just so much as they are overdressed they are losers in appeal and charm.

This is less true of the daughters of families that have had generations of money and position back of them than of the newly prosperous. Certain high-class schools throughout the country dictate to their students in matters of dress, for several good reasons.

In the picture above we have the portrait of a miss of sixteen, or thereabouts, dressed as an authority in the matter of dress thinks she should be, for school or whatever occupies her day. Her skirt of soft wool in two quiet, contrasting stripes, is laid in wide but not deep plaits. It is worn with an overblouse in the same color as the dark stripe in the skirt made of a knitted wool or fiber silk, and open at the throat, where a chemisette and collar of lace enable her to keep this little outfit fresh and dainty. Her shoes, high or low, according to the climate, are substantial, with broad heels, and her hat is a soft affair of cloth covered with braided design.

THE AMERICA of TOMORROW

THE RED CROSS FOSTERS COMMUNITY HEALTH

FOURTH RED CROSS ROLL CALL WILL GIRDLE THE EARTH

Annual Enrollment of Millions of Members Now in Progress—Organization Rendering Even Greater Service Than in War Period.

The American Red Cross, which is today performing service of even greater importance than it rendered during the war period, opens its Fourth Roll Call on Thursday, November 11—Armistice Day—and will continue its mobilization of members for 1921 through November 25, Thanksgiving Day.

The Roll Call this year will girdle the earth. Not only will every man and woman in the United States be given the opportunity to enroll or renew membership, but also Americans in all outlying possessions and in lands under other flags will be enabled to pledge their allegiance to the Red Cross for another twelve-month period. Into practically every corner of the world, to places where the Red Cross really is the only link with the homeland, the appeal will be carried.

Support of People Essential

In its national aspect the purpose of the Roll Call is solely to maintain and increase the present membership of 10,000,000, not including the Junior Red Cross. There will be no appeal for a national fund in addition to what accrues from the membership dues. Primarily the American Red Cross desires to have the American people in its ranks; their moral support is essential to the accomplishment of its tasks. Many of the 3,659 Chapters will be able to continue their peacetime work and war-time obligations with funds derived from membership dues.

Other Chapters, however, must secure funds in varying amounts in addition to membership dues, or materially curtail their work, particularly those Chapters that are still carrying a heavy burden of service to the soldiers and sailors and former service men. The appeals of these Chapters for such additional amounts as their budgets require will be confined to their local communities.

There is no national membership quota set. Each Chapter and Branch will endeavor to equal or exceed its present enrollment, hoping to swing the national total back to the 20,000,000 of the war period.

Certificate for Every Member

The most popular membership is the one dollar annual membership, half of which is retained by the local Chapter for itself and its Branches to be used at home, the other half going to National headquarters for national and overseas work. The other memberships are the contributing membership of five dollars, four of which the local Chapter retains, one dollar going to National headquarters, and the sustaining or ten dollar membership, eight of which is retained for local service, two going to National headquarters. All $50 and $100 memberships go to the endowment fund.

Every man and woman who joins the Red Cross for 1921 will receive, in addition to the usual membership button and window service flag, a signed certificate of membership which will serve also as a receipt for the dues paid. Every Roll Call worker is being admonished not to fail to deliver a certificate to every individual enrolling, and those who enroll are urged to demand the certificate if the worker forgets to give it.

There is every reason to believe that the 113 Chapters of the Red Cross in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, with their 1115 Branches, will give a splendid account of themselves in this Roll Call for 1921. With a few exceptions they went into the Roll Call better organized than a year ago, and with an enthusiasm more akin to that of the emotional days of the war. They have now a clearer vision of the vast importance of the peace-time service of the Red Cross in the life of the nation.

Not all of the Chapters and Branches will carry on their Roll Call for the entire two weeks set aside for the purpose. Some will confine their efforts to a few days, opening perhaps on Armistice Day or the Monday following Roll Call Sunday, November 14, and starting in season to reach the climax of their appeal on Thanksgiving Day.

Several of the Chapters feel confident they will exceed the membership secured a year ago and they are so effectively organized there is good reason for their confidence.

New England has ranked high among the Red Cross Divisions in membership and accomplishments and her people will, it is believed, loyally continue their support of the "Greatest Mother in the World."

HOW SORRY ARE YOU

We are all sorry for the misfortunes of our fellow-men. At least most of us say so. We would be brutes not humans, could we look on the misery that overtakes nations, communities and individuals, without being touched and saddened by their tragedies.

Granted that we are sorry, the question is "how sorry are we?" Is our emotion one of words—or deeds. It is easy to say that we are sorry, but saying so proves nothing.

Some time ago in a Christian community a gathering was held in memory of a worthy citizen, who had been killed in an accident, leaving his family penniless. After the drawing-up of resolutions of sympathy from friends and neighbors, a man rose to his feet, who was regarded as the town reprobate, one whom the neighborhood looked upon as a most disreputable character. In answer to inquiring glances from those present he announced loudly:—"I'm sorry fifty dollars worth, how sorry are the rest of you?" And this unseemly interruption started the meeting upon a practical rather than a poetical tribute to the dead.

How sorry are we for the sufferers in Europe? How sorry are we for the victims of sudden disaster? How sorry are we for those who suffer in our communities for want of instruction in hygiene, and knowledge of the prevention of disease? How Sorry are we for the disabled soldiers and the pitiful little orphans that somebody must care for?

The answer is, we are not sorry simply because we say so. If we are sorry, we shall either ourselves do something to aid such sufferers and to assuage misfortune, or we shall generously support the organizations that are striving to do so. If there is any other organization that is doing more than is the Red Cross to accomplish such an end, then let us lend it our utmost aid. But if there is no other thing a work of equal magnitude, let us whole-heartedly support the American Red Cross, during the coming year, that it may be enabled to "carry on," and need not cut out of its activities in the vast human service, because we really sorry.

Town Votes in Favor Of Limited Town Meetings

Voters of Weymouth were practically unanimous against the adoption of a city charter at the special town meeting last Friday evening, and almost a unit in favor of a special act granting elective voting, limited town meetings, town meeting members, and a referendum.

In anticipation of an overcrowded hall, the Selectmen had appointed men to supervise the voting lists and exclude all non-voters, but as a matter of fact it was a small town meeting, even less than 200 which is required for a quorum. Two voters raised the point of order, that a quorum was not present, but by request withdrew the same and the business proceeded.

Hon. George L. Barnes, who generally serves as moderator sent a letter saying he would be out of town, and William J. Holbrook was unanimously elected.

Under Article 2, relative to limited town meetings B. F. Smith thought it would not be fair for a meeting attended by less than 5 per cent of the voters to decide on a change in town government, and moved that the Selectmen be instructed to put the warrant for the next town meeting three questions, viz:

1. Shall the town adopt a representative town government?
2. Shall the town adopt a city charter?
3. Shall the present form of town government be continued?

Mr. Howe offered as an amendment that the Selectmen be instructed to petition the Legislature for an Act similar to that of Watertown providing for limited town meetings etc. He had found the voters very much in favor.

Dr. Greeley moved to amend Mr. Smith's motion, by adding another question: Shall the town of Weymouth be divided?

Selectman Hawes asked that the letter from Hon. George L. Barnes be read, and permission was granted.

Mr. Barnes hoped no action would be taken until thoroughly investigated. At present he favored either the Brookline or Watertown plans, which are similar.

Representative Tirrell raised the point of order that there was nothing in the warrant relative to division of the town, and the Moderator so ruled.

Selectman Hawes moved a committee of ten to consider the article and report at a town meeting not later than the next annual town meeting.

Mr. Smith opposed, because committee would probably report in favor of some particular plan and not allow the voters any action.

Mr. Vaille thought a committee had already considered and reported. He opposed delay and favored some action.

Mr. Hawes said committee was not instructed to make any recommendation. Their report would appear in the next Town Report.

Mr. Sheehy moved as an amendment that the committee be composed of three from each precinct. Lost.

Mr. Downing moved as substitute that committee recommend one or more plans. Lost.

Representative Tirrell favored representative town meetings. At best it could not take place until a year from next March, and previous to then at least two opportunities would be given to vote thereon.

Mr. Hawes moved that committee be instructed to frame article for warrant. Lost.

The question then came on Mr. Howe's amendment.

Mr. Smith opposed, and Mr. Howe favored.

Mr. Tirrell hoped if action was taken it would be practically unanimous as meeting was small.

Mr. Vaille favored saying a limited town meeting would give Weymouth about 200 members. Within five days the voters could secure a referendum on any vote. The electorate was ready to decide tonight.

The amendment of Mr. Howe was then adopted, and a tangle arose, as the Moderator ruled that the motion of Mr. Smith, as amended, was in order. After some debate the acceptance of Mr. Howe's amendment was reconsidered, and later adopted as a substitute to Mr. Smith's motion, which disposed of the latter.

The Gazette and Transcript will print in full next week the Watertown Act. (Continued on Page 13)

We Thank Thee, Lord!

"For all thy ministries—
For morning mist and gently falling dew;
For summer rains, for winter ice and snow;
For whispering wind and purifying storm;
For the reft clouds that show the tender blue;
For the forked flash and long, tumultuous roll;
For mighty rains that wash the dim earth clean;
For the sweet promise of the seven-fold bow;
For the soft sunshine and the still, calm night;
For dimpled laughter of soft summer seas;
For latticed splendor of the sea-borne moon;
For gleaming sands and granite-fronted cliffs;
For flying spume and waves that whip the skies;
For rushing gale and for the great, glad calm;
For Might so mighty and for Love so true,
With equal mind,

We thank thee, Lord!"

—John Oxenham

Thanksgiving Hymn Well Liked at Birth But Now Forgotten

The first presidential Thanksgiving proclamation was that of President Washington in 1789 on the occasion of the adoption of the Constitution.

The great victories of Gettysburg and Vicksburg were really the cause of Lincoln's proclamation, and his example has been followed by all his successors until the annual festival has become one of our national institutions.

The proclamation of 1863 was remarkable as the first of a series, extending now over fifty years. It was also noticeable because it was the occasion of a Thanksgiving hymn by the famous Reverend Doctor Muhlenburg of St. Luke's hospital, New York city.

The hymn contains nine stanzas, with chorus, and takes up in order the various causes for thanksgiving mentioned in Mr. Lincoln's proclamation.

Give thanks, all ye people, give thanks to the Lord. Alleluia of freedom with joyful accord; Let the East and the West, North and South roll along. Sea, mountain and prairie, one thanksgiving song.

As the hymn was suggested by Mr. Lincoln's call upon the nation to give thanks, Doctor Muhlenburg spoke of it as "The President's Hymn," but would not permanently offer such a title without Mr. Lincoln's approval.

In July, 1865, Dr. Horace Bushnell published in "Hours at Home" an article attacking the well-known hymn, "America," as an unworthy and really humiliating effusion—as a political anthem.

"The hymn and air that were given to the public by Doctor Muhlenburg a short time ago appear to have missed the accident of being fairly born, and for that reason have not succeeded.

four verses that could have been omitted with advantage. Otherwise it might have stuck and would have had a fair chance of success; for the music, which we know only by the eye, and never heard in a public performance, appeared to have a look of promise."

The next known reference to this hymn occurs in connection with the observance of the fiftieth convocation of the University of Illinois, on November 20, 1913.

Preparing for Thanksgiving. Be ready for Thanksgiving by always having a list of your blessings corrected up to date.

Some Reasons Why the Farmer Should Keep Thanksgiving

Just now, apart from our knowledge of food secure, perhaps some of us feel it necessary to fall back upon the private reasons for thankfulness. Each one has some bit of personal well-being that can be brought out and rubbed up and admired just to keep our home circle happy this Thanksgiving day.

A person was once visiting a friend whose home commanded a beautiful stretch of mountain scenery. It was, in fact, a magnificent view. "What a wonderful outlook you have here," he remarked to his host.

Thousands of people who live in the country enjoy a treasure which is denied to millions of their fellowmen—the blessing of good, pure, out-of-door air, fragrant in spring and summer with perfume of flowers or new-mown hay, and in fall and winter laden with crisp, life-giving ozone.

No one enjoys more blessings and treasures of this kind than the man or woman on the farm. He or she, if inclined to be of a complaining nature, is apt to find fault that life on the farm is so hard and composed so largely of drudgery.

The average person on the farm lives better, enjoys better air to breathe, better water to drink, better food to eat, better conditions under which to work, better health than the man or woman in corresponding circumstances in the city.

Divine Lesson in the Garnering of the Golden Grain

The summer is over and the harvest is past. The sad skies, the bleak fields, the bare trees, the raw winds that whistle and groan and sob and sigh their dirges mournfully remind us that the season of fruitage has gone by and the time has come when we can only turn away, each to himself, and measure up our garnerings.

But these would be meaningless to us did she not also send a season when, at the warning touch of winter chill, we must measure our gains and consider our losses.

So it is part of the divine plan that each of us should now go apart and carefully separate the wheat from the chaff, the flowers from the weeds, and that which is good and sound and enduring from all that perishes and taints.

It were useless now to try to deceive even ourselves. Now, if at no other time, we see the vast difference in value between the picked fruit and the windfalls.

As we separate the wheat from the chaff and the sound fruit from the windfalls, so, whether we will or not, we must in the inner consciousness separate the true from the false in principles of labor and living. No man, even of three-score-and-ye, four-score and ten, has ever known this law to fail in a single season.

But grains and fruits are not all that we are garnering. Chaff and weeds are not all we ought to separate and cast away. There are things more important still. In the storehouse of the heart and mind and soul, it is not well to seek, just as carefully, though sometimes in vain, to keep only the better, the brighter, the more enduring things?

When the bleak November of life comes we shall have need of them. Dreary will be the winter to him whose granaries are empty. But drearier and more desolate still must be the winter of old age to the man or woman whose mind and heart and soul have brought from the harvest only the joys that are chaff and the virtues that are mere windfalls, attained and adhered to only through easy convenience.

When that winter comes, as it must to many of us, we shall have only ourselves to turn to, and we shall find only that which we have sown and harvested in the bright spring and golden summer—the good grain, the sound fruit, the flowers, the high impulses, the sacrifices, the loves, yes, and the cheat, the chaff, the weeds, the windfalls, the hates, the jealousies, the low passions—all these and nothing more, to sustain us or to render us desolate.

We may, if we will, make each day a cycle of all the seasons. We sow each morning and reap each noon and garner each evening the fruits of our living in this little day.

As we separate the wheat from the chaff and the sound fruit from the windfalls, so, whether we will or not,

"Think and Thank" Suggested Motto for Nation Today

"Think and Thank" was the motto upon the family crest of the great Hebrew philanthropist Sir Moses Montefiore. It would be an appropriate armorial motto for America today.

Look back at that first American Thanksgiving. Strange skies, sparse settlements, sparse larder, savage enemy, but thankful spirit! What makes the memory of the Pilgrim so precious? His thankfulness! As Howell puts it:

"It is no improper comparison that a thankful heart is like a box of precious ointment which keeps the smell long after the thing is spent."

The Pilgrim and the Puritan have passed on, but they have left us a precious possession—a Thanksgiving day and the Thanksgiving spirit. Theirs was the indomitable spirit because they "thanked God and took courage." They landed undesignedly on a "rock-bound wintry strand," but they thanked God and took courage. They found no gold, but they did find the golden grain of a first harvest and they thanked God and took courage.

Daddy Gobbler's Premonition

There once did live a turkey cock, And he was very proud; And walking with his little flock He gobbled very loud. Perhaps it may your feelings shock— He lived beneath a cloud.

He could not speak of cranberry, Nor mention pumpkin pie Without a painful reverie, While tears stood in his eye. And sage, and summer savory, They always made him sigh.

And though in June he spread his tail, And looked like Henry Eight, November always found him pale, Sans Delsarte in his gait, If anyone would see him quail, Just say "decapitate."

THE DAY OF THANKS

LOADED with all the goods the living cost allows, the home boards of the day of thanks will give full witness to the fact that the passing years do not permit to grow flaccid the long-established custom of the land.

"Sarras" Webster replied smiling. "That scoundrel makes a gamble out of an otherwise sure thing. However," he added, recalling the note received from Ricardo Ruey just before his departure from Buenaventura and reflecting that to be forewarned is to be forearmed, "we'll accept the gamble. That rascal can't live forever, and he may be eliminated before he causes us any trouble."

"What will it cost us to get this mine on a paying basis, Johnny?" "Well, back home, I'd figure on spending at least $100,000; but I dare say, taking into consideration the low cost of labor in Sobrante and the raw, natural resources of power and timber right on the ground, we ought to put this deal over for $50,000 at the outside. Praise be, I have cash enough to do the trick without calling in any help, and such being the case, we'll not waste any time but hop to the job in a hurry and make the fur fly."

"Right, Jack. What's the program?" "Well, first off, son, I'm not going to stay in this country and lose myself manufacturing this mine. That's your job, because you're young and unimportant in your profession and have the ability to get away with the job. You can afford to spend the next 15 years here, but I cannot. I can only afford to come down here every couple of years and relieve you for a vacation."

"That's the way I figured it, Jack." "All right then, Bill, let us start in by giving you your first vacation. If you're going to dig in here and make the fur fly, you've got to be in tip-top physical condition—and you are thin and gaunted and full of chills and fever. Just before I left Buenaventura I cashed a draft for $5,000 on my letter of credit at the Banco Nacional, and placed it to the credit of your account there."

"Tomorrow morning you will take your horse, one pack mule, and one mozo and ride for San Miguel de Padua, where you will take the train for Buenaventura. In Buenaventura you may do what you please, but if I were you, boy, I'd try to get married and go back to the U. S. A. for my honeymoon. And when I finally hit a town that contained some regular doctors I'd let them paw me over and reabablit me and overhaul my bearings and put me in such nice running order I'd be firing on all 12 cylinders at once."

"And when I was feeling tip-top once more I'd wire old John Stuart Webster and tell him so, after which I'd stand by for a cable from the said sordough inviting me to return and take up my labors."

Billy's wan yellow face lighted up like a sunrise on the desert. "I guess that plan's kind of poor," he announced feelingly. "You're right, Jack. I'm in rotten condition and I ought to be right before I start. Still, if I should arrange to get married before I leave, I'd like mighty well to have a good man and true see me safely over the hurdles."

"That's nice, son, but I haven't time to be your best man. Arranging the honeymoon lets me out, Bill. I'm in a hurry to finish here and get back, so the sooner we both start our respective jobs the sooner we'll finish. Have a quiet little marriage, Bill, without any fuses or feathers or voices breathing off your Eden. What are the odds, provided you get hitched properly? Besides, I'm in mortal dread of that town of Buenaventura. The sewer system is bad; it's rotten with fever; and you'd better get that girl out of it P. D. Q., and the quicker the better. Myself, I prefer to stay up here in these mountains in a temperate climate where there are no mosquitoes."

Billy saw that Webster was serious and would resent any interference in his plans. "All right, Jack," he assented. "You're the boss."

"Fine. Now, Bill, you listen to father and be guided accordingly. When you get to Buenaventura, wire the Bingham Engineering company of Denver, using my name, and tell them to add to my order given them last month and held for shipping directions, 12 dozen picks, 12 dozen shovels, 12 dozen mattocks, say six dozen axes, brush knives, a big road plow, and whatever other things you happen to think of and which would come in handy when building our road. Also, when you get to New Orleans buy a stanch three-ton motor truck. We'll need it for getting in supplies from San Miguel de Padua. Pay for the truck also, and if you go broke and cannot reach me by cable, wire Neddy Jerome at the Engineers' club in Denver and kick his eye out in my honored name."

"I guess that's about all of your job, Bill. As for me, I'll camp right here. I'll have a deal of surveying to do and I plan to sweat the booze out of that Caffeery person. I'll make Don Juan my chain man and run the tail off him. Then I'll be busy with preliminary plans, arranging for labor and so on, and when I'm idle I'll go hunting."

In conformity with this plan, therefore, Billy said good-by to his friend and packed out for San Miguel de Padua bright and early next morning. During the following ten days Webster managed to keep himself fairly busy around the camp at the mine; then for a week he hunted and fished, and finally, when that began to pall on him, his agile mind returned to business and the consideration of the possibility of a flaw in Billy's title to the claim; whereupon he suddenly decided to return to Buenaventura and investigate that title fully before proceeding to throw dollars right and left.

At the head of his little cavalcade, therefore, he rode out one morning for the railroad, whereat providence, in its inscrutable wisdom, ordained that en route he should fall in with no less a personage than Don Ricardo Luiz Ruey, nee Andrew Bowers. Ricardo was mounted, armed, and alone, and at sight of Webster he shouted with delight and spurred toward him.

"What the devil! You, Rick, the government cut-up. What are you doing in these parts?" Webster rode up and shook hands.

"Oh, I'm Robbin Hooding it around this part of the country. It is so secluded, you know, and Sarras hasn't any friends or any telegraph lines or any garrisons up this way. I heard in San Miguel de Padua that you were camped yonder, and I was on my way over to confer with you on matters of state. Met your friend, Geary, at El Buen Amigo a couple of weeks ago, just before he sailed for the United States. He was telling me you had to have a lot of tools for road building, so I cabled in a secret cipher to the Sobrantean revolutionary Junta in New Orleans to ship these tools to you immediately. They arrived on the last trip of the Atlanta and now repose in Leber's warehouse waiting for you to call and remove them."

"You scoundrel! What have you sent me?"

"A couple of hundred rifles and three machine guns, branded axes, picks, shovels, plows, and so on. I also ran in three cases of ammunition, labeled grindstones, two more cases disguised as bolts, and quite several thousand labeled nails in kegs. I should feel rather sorry for you if my friend, Sarras, should get suspicious and investigate, but I haven't any fear that he will. You see, he knows you're here on legitimate business. He has investigated and learned that you are a bona fide mining engineer of considerable reputation—and then, you know, your friend, Geary, dickered with him for the concession. The mining property you are about to develop belongs to the people, not to Sarras; yet he has bartered it away and will divert the royalty to his own pocket instead of the public treasury."

"Hum-m-m! What do you want me to do with all those munitions consigned to me?"

"Arrange with Leber to keep them there until you get ready to build your road into the mine. I want them there when my American mercenaries arrive in Buenaventura. By the way, you are going to import these mercenaries for me. They are American miners and road builders in the employ of the Honda Mining & Development company, which is to be the name of your enterprise. I hope you'll like the name, Webster. I picked it out myself."

Mounted, Armed and Alone.

"You cool scoundrel! You're making cat's paw out of me."

"That is because you happen to be so handy for my purpose. You see my plan, do you not? I'm going to attack Buenaventura from within and without. I'm going to come down on Sarras like a wolf on the fold, and the job is scheduled for next Saturday night a week."

"Look here, Rick, my boy, I have no desire to mix in the politics of this country."

"You have some desire, however, to mix in its wealth," Ricardo reminded him.

"Well?" "I'm the only man that can help you. By the way, do not order your machinery shipped until after I am seated firmly on the throne of my fathers."

"Why?" "It's been framed with Sarras to let you spend your money on that concession and get the mine in running order; then a fake suit, alleging an error in the government survey, will be filed. It will be claimed that the concession given your friend, Geary, is, by virtue of erroneous government surveys, the property of a citizen of Sobrante. The courts here do as Sarras tells them. You are to be kicked out, busted, and despairing, and your nicely equipped little mine will be taken over as a government monopoly and run for the benefit of the government, to-wit, Sarras and his satellites.

We had to cook up a dirty deal like that to save your life. Of course, now that I have warned you in time, you are safe. We schemed a proposition, however, that worked both ways. It enabled us to save you and to save us, by permitting the shipment, free of suspicion, of arms for the rebels that are to attack the city from within. Naturally I had to cache their arms within the city—and that was a hard problem until you happened along. Thank you, fairly godfather."

"My thanks are due you, Ricardo. I'm for you, first, last, and all the time, and against this Sarras outfit. By the way, how do you purpose moving your machine guns?"

"We'll have to carry them, I guess."

"Well, I'll have a small auto-truck delivered in Buenaventura by that time. You might arrange to armor it with sheet steel; and with a couple of machine guns mounted in it, and a crew of resolute Americans behind the machine guns, you could cater from one end of the city to the other and clear a path for your infantry."

"Thank you, my friend. I'll borrow the motor truck and arrange to armor it. That's a bully idea. Are you bound for Buenaventura now?" Webster nodded. "Then," Ricardo suggested, "I'll meet you in my room at El Buen Amigo next Wednesday night at 11 and explain the details of my plans to you if you care to hear them. I think they're all-right myself, but somehow I think I'd feel more certain of them if you approve them."

"I'll be there, Rick, and the day you run that outlaw Sarras off the grass you'll know why I am for you."

"Good-by, old man. You will never know how grateful you have made me."

Ruey shook hands with Webster and rode off through the timber, leaving John Stuart Webster to pursue the even tenor of his way, until at length he arrived once more in Buenaventura and sought accommodations at the Hotel Mateo. And there, as he entered the lobby and gazed through a glass door across the patio and into the veranda, he saw that which disturbed him greatly. In a big wicker rocker Dolores Ruey sat, rocking gently and busily stitching on a piece of fancy work!

Billy Geary went back to the United States, and Dolores was still in Buenaventura! Amazing! Why, what the devil did Billy mean by letting her have her own way like that? Of course, they hadn't been married, or she would not now be out there on the veranda, and, of course, they hadn't quarreled, because that was an impossibility, and, of course, Billy had departed alone for the U. S. A., else he would have returned to their camp in the hills back of San Miguel de Padua.

"Well, I know what I'm going to do," Webster decided. "I'm not going to be led into temptation while Billy's not on the job—so I'll not put up at the Hotel Mateo after all. I'll just sneak around to El Buen Amigo and fix it with that old Mother Jenks not to tip off my presence in town to Dolores Ruey until I can get the lay of the land and see what the devil has happened to all my well-laid plans."

He retreated out the front door and called a carriage, into which he was about to step, bag and baggage, when Don Juan Cafetero came rushing up in great excitement. "Sure, where are ye goin' now, sor. Is there no room for ye in the Hotel Mateo?"

"Their beds have jiggers in them, and I just remembered that," Webster fibbed. "Hop in, John, and we'll drive around to Mr. Geary's lodgings in El Buen Amigo."

"But I come t'rough the patio just now," Don Juan explained, "an' who should I meet but the young leddy." "You infernal scoundrel! Did you tell her I was in town?" "Sure I did, sor. An' why not?" "None of your infernal business. You've spoiled everything. You're a muddle-headed monkey and I've a great notion to let you get druna again. Take the baggage back into the hotel."

Don Juan Cafetero, greatly humbled and rebuffed, stepped aside and watched Webster stride back into the hotel. "God love ye, sor," he mumbled, "knowin' what I know, is it like I'd let ye make a monkey out of yer or yerself? Ye made yer plans wif' Mither Geary w/out consultin' her. Now go, ye grand big divil, an' find out why she kicked yer scheme to smithereens." And with a solemn and knowing wink at the duffle bag, Don Juan picked that article up and followed after his master.

CHAPTER XIII.

John Stuart Webster's agile brain was the repository of many conflicting emotions as he bathed, shaved, and changed from his soiled khaki field clothes to a suit of ducks before presenting himself before Dolores.

Had Billy's courage forsaken him at the last minute, with the result that he had gone back to the United States without having settled the question of Dolores' future? Had he proposed and been rejected, or had he proposed, been accepted, and had his plans for an immediate marriage vetoed by Dolores?

In either event, why had Billy failed to leave a note for him at the Hotel Mateo, or mailed him a letter to the Globo de Oro at San Miguel de Padua, advising him of the change in the plan of action outlined for him by Webster?

In the simplicity of his single-hearted devotion Webster was puzzled to understand how any woman in her right mind could fail to fall in love with Billy Geary. A man he was, from heels to hair, and a man with prospects far above the average. To Webster's way of thinking, the girl who married Billy might well count herself fortunate.

"Well, and Why Didn't You?"

Dolores greeted him with unaffected pleasure. "Well, Caliph!" she said. Just that. It made Webster sensible of a feeling of having returned to her after an absence of several years. "I'm so glad to see you, Miss Ruey," he replied, and added boldly, "particularly since I didn't expect to."

She knew what her reply would lead to; nevertheless, with that dissimulation which can only be practiced in perfection by a clever and beautiful woman, she answered with equal boldness: "Indeed! Pray why?"

"Well, for a pretty good reason, I think. A few weeks ago, after examining Billy's concession very thoroughly, I told him he was a potential millionaire. Now, while I disclaim any appearance of braggadoocio, when John Stuart Webster, E. M., makes any mine owner a report like that, he is apt to be taken very seriously. And having made Billy a potential millionaire and arranged to give him three or four months' vacation back home, I had a notion he'd present to you a very valid reason why you should accompany him."

"You are very frank, Caliph." "That's because I'm curious. He had a certain dream, and told me about it, and I did my little best to make it come true."

"I think I understand, Caliph. It would be very difficult, I think, for anybody to meet Billy without being attracted toward him. He's one of the dearest, most lovable boys in the world—and he did me the signal honor of asking me to marry him. So there!"

"Well, and why didn't you?" She smiled at his blunt insistence on forcing the issue. "For a number of excellent reasons, Caliph. In the first place, he wanted me to marry him immediately—and I wasn't ready to leave Sobrante, while Billy was. Indeed, it was highly necessary that he should leave immediately, for the sake of his health, and I had Billy's interest at heart sufficiently to insist upon it. You seem to forget that when a girl marries she must make some preparation for the event, and if she has any close relatives, such as a brother, for instance, she likes to have that relative present at the ceremony. You will recall, Caliph, that I have a brother and that you have promised to introduce me to him very shortly."

"By Judas, I never thought of that, Miss Ruey," the repentant Webster answered. "In fact, I wasn't thinking of anybody's interest in this matter but Bill's."

"Not even of mine, Caliph?" reproachfully. "That goes without saying. Could I have done anything nicer for you than fix it for Bill so he would be in position to marry you? Here you are, practically alone in the world—at least you were when Bill met you and fell in love with you—and I know that boy so well I was convinced, after meeting you, that his future happiness and yours would best be conserved if you married him. I realize this is a most unusual conversation."

"Quite to be expected of an unusual man, Caliph. And I do not think you were one bit presumptuous. It was wonderfully dear of you, and I am profoundly grateful that Billy and I have such a true, unselfish friend, whose first thought is for our happiness. Of course, you realize how bad I felt to think I couldn't accede to Billy's plan. Billy's such a dear, it quite broke my heart to disappoint him, but a little temporary unhappiness will not ruin Billy, will it? It makes me feel blue to talk about it, Caliph."

"Not at all, not at all, Miss Ruey. Bill is one of the impulsive, whirlwind kind, up in the clouds today, and down in the slough of despond tomorrow. He'll survive the shock. However, I'm glad to know everything will come out all right. Seeing you here gave me a momentary chill; I thought a cog had slipped somewhere, so I helped myself to Cupid's license and asked. A man cannot learn very much from a woman unless he asks questions, can he? I mean on the subject of love."

She smiled a little, wistful, knowing smile. "No, Caliph," she answered seriously, "somehow the Master of Things ordained that on the subject of love man must do all the talking."

"Yes, but on the other hand, woman has the last word—as usual. However, the only thing in your case and Billy's that worries me is the thought that since Bill left his magnet behind he will be drawn back here before he is in the kind of shape, physically, that I want him to be in before he relieves me on the job so I can go away."

"Do not worry on that point, Caliph. I am your ally there; between us both I think we can manage him." "Fine business! And with those few kind words we'll dismiss William until you care to talk about him again, although if you're as deep in love as Bill you'll not stay off the subject very long. Hope you haven't been into mischief."

"I haven't been idle. I've made several dresses for Mother Jenks and done a lot of fancy work and begun the study of my mother tongue. If my brother should become president of this country, it would ill become his sister not to be able to speak Spanish. By the way, Billy told me you were going to remain up in the hills quite a while yet. What brought you back to town so soon?"

"Expected I'd have some freight arriving shortly."

"How long will you remain in Buenaventura?"

Considering the fact that he was no longer subject to temptation, since the object of his temptation was now definitely promised to his friend, Billy, Webster suddenly decided to remain until the political atmosphere should be cleared, although prior to his conversation with Dolores he had cherished a definite plan to go back to the hills within 48 hours.

"I'm going back," he replied soberly, "after I have kept my promise and introduced you to your brother in the government palace. If I cannot introduce him to you there, the title to our mining concession will be clouded, in which event it will not be necessary for Billy or myself to fuss with it further."

He related to her the information gleaned from her brother two days previously.

"It's no use for an individual to fight a government despot in courts controlled by the latter," he concluded. "Your brother must win and depose the Sarras; then with the title to the property certified by the government as without a flaw, I may dare to spend $50,000 developing it."

"And if my brother doesn't win?" "I may never have an opportunity to present you to him. We mustn't be squeamish about this matter, Miss Ruey. If Ricardo doesn't turn the trick, he may go the way of his father, unless he can manage to get out of the country."

She was silent, digesting this grim alternative. "As I understand it, then, Caliph, Ricardo hopes to win his revolution when he strikes the first blow."

Melon Tidbit of Ancients.

Melons were first extensively cultivated in France early in the seventeenth century, but were known to the ancients from the commencement of our era. The Egyptians grew them. They are said to have been carried to America by Columbus, and to the Malay archipelago by the Portuguese. No other fruit is so variable in foliage and habit, or undergoes so many metamorphoses by crossing its varieties, all of which are fertile. They are grown extensively in Asia, but little care is bestowed on their cultivation, and they consequently never improve. They grow on sandbanks left dry by the falling rivers; if near a town a portion of the crop can be sold, but most of it is valueless, as it rots if taken any distance by cart or boat.

Chronic Insomnia.

"A woman," observed Mr. Henry Peck, "is never so sleepy at night as when she hears Friend Husband fumbling at the front door, keyhole, and never so wide awake as when he is trying to tiptoe up the stairs.—American Legion Weekly.

Some people get so tired by doing nothing that they are never able to do anything else.

WHY THAT LAME BACK?
That morning lameness—those sharp pains when bending or lifting, make work a burden and rest impossible. Don't be handicapped by a bad back—look to your kidneys. You will make no mistake by following this Weymouth resident's example.
Mrs. F. Harper, 46 Granite St., says: "For a long time, I was terribly troubled with my back and kidneys. I was sore and lame through the small of my back and over my hips. My back ached most of the time. My kidneys acted irregularly and annoyed me very much. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and used them. I received excellent relief and the benefit has been permanent."
OVER A YEAR LATER Mrs. Harper said: "Doan's Kidney Pills are all right and it is a pleasure to again recommend them. Doan's have always given me fine relief."
Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Harper had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y. 2152-1 (Advertisement)

THANKSGIVING WEEK SPECIALS

Manager C. R. Black announces two big super plays for Thanksgiving week by the Al Lutteringer Stock Company. The play here on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday is based on the labor situation and the position it plays with capital and every union man is requested to see this greatest of plays. Unexpected, startling and extremely dramatic is the climax of "Capital and Labor." "Capital and Labor" concerns the fortunes of Walter Louderbach and Joe Gurney. The former is a capitalist of the extreme type whose sole aim in life is the acquisition of money, even though he might be forced to grind down those who have been his stepping stones to success. The latter is an electrical genius who has never received any benefit from inventions, but has seen himself robbed of what was rightfully his by the machinations of Louderbach and his clan. Gurney is ground down and down. His favorite daughter, Elsie, who has been a companion and private secretary of Mrs. Louderbach, disappears and Gurney lays it to Nelson Louderbach. A train on which Elsie was known to have left was wrecked and Gurney believes his daughter dead.

Reduced in circumstances with only one faithful friend, he at last completes a valued invention—the perfect installation. Louderbach and William Curdie, a henchman, come to see it, and offer all kinds of inducements. Gurney is roused from his accustomed meekness and he declares that he will never sell and by means of this invention he will drive Louderbach from his home and reverse the positions of the two.

The day of triumph comes—Gurney has become successful. Louderbach, deprived of his fortune, is about to move from his palatial home which is to be used by Gurney. It is there that Gurney suffers a change of heart and he allows Louderbach to occupy the old home. Good seems to come of the act, for Elsie, who has not been killed, returned home as the in the U. S. A. forces in Russia.

bride of Nelson Louderbach, after both, one as a nurse and the other as an army officer, have been serving. On Thursday, Friday and Saturday the big Thanksgiving day offering is "Quincy Adams Sawyer." There is scarcely anyone in this broad land who has not by this time either heard or read that "best New England story—Quincy Adams Sawyer" and observed the man driving down a country road to Mason's Corner in a one-horse chaise. These same people are familiar with the words which have appeared everywhere beneath that picture, whether in the big posters on the billboard, or the book stores, or in the columns of the newspapers. "The village gossips wondered who he was, what he was, what he came for and how long he intended to stay."

This announcement is to state that he "Quincy Adams Sawyer" of book fame has now become the famous "Quincy Adams Sawyer" of play fame as well. That at least explains who he is and what he is. It is self-evident that he comes to entertain the theatre-goers who will doubtless pack the Quincy Theatre to see the dramatization of a novel that has reached the phenomenal sale of 1,000,000.

As to the length of the stay, it is limited to two performances daily as follows: The stock company will start at 3 P. M. on Thanksgiving Day and 8 P. M. evenings. Special pains have been taken in this dramatization to preserve that simple rural charm which has been so much admired by book lovers and it is promised that play-goers will find "Quincy Adams Sawyer" a rattling good homespun play of life in a Massachusetts village.

It presents unique phases of Yankee country life and has the real country atmosphere. The play is promised as one of the greatest big laughs from beginning to end, with the sweetest love story ever told. It is presented in four acts and five scenes all especially built and painted for this production. The company is a carefully selected one of the well known players, the principal characters from the book who appear in the play numbering 15.

Nervous, Weak and Run-Down

Rochester, N. Y.—"I have been greatly benefited by taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and consider it the best woman's medicine I have ever taken. I became all run-down, was extremely nervous, could not sleep at night, was tired and had a worn-out feeling all the time. I was advised to take 'Favorite Prescription' and it completely restored my health and cured me of all nervousness. I would advise women who suffer as I did to get Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription at the drug store and give it a trial. I am sure they will not regret having done so."

MRS. CHAS. KUDER,
830 Smith St.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—"For over a year I was all run-down in health from feminine weakness. Had headaches all the time and would get so dizzy I would fall. I tried different doctors and different medicines without relief. I began to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and after using one bottle I felt a little like myself. I kept on taking it until I had taken several bottles and I am feeling fine today and doing house-work for the past 6 months. I have had no trouble since."

An Unchristian Martyr

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"I dare you," Peter called tantalizingly from the far end of the foot-log to Betty, poised on the stump, whence it had been cut. She was like a butterfly, newly alighted, standing now on tiptoe, now teetering on both heels, arms wide and high above her shoulders, with bunches of red-bud flowers in each hand.

"You think I'm foolish enough not to take a dare," she flung back disdainfully, her words muffled by the noise of the swollen creek. It was late March, but warm enough for May—almost sultry, indeed—hence the red-bud flowers. The pair had been strolling through a narrow, wooded bottom where all manner of sylvan things were waking cheerily. Across the stream there was a south-looking hill slope above a low limestone bluff, starred thick in every seam and cranny with hepatics, white, pink and pale purple. Above them string-bark trees bore clusters of white stars with pointed golden hearts, as beautiful as orchids, and sweeter than spring itself. Betty wanted the white stars—wanted to pluck them herself. She was not superstitious, of course—still it was countryside belief with the unlettered that wishes made as you plucked were sure to come true.

Hence her refusal of Peter's help, her resolve to cross the stream, whether or no. Peter vowed she could never walk the log, even with his help—off coat and waistcoat to be sure, but the clinging wet shirt revealed muscles and a torso to delight any eye; moreover, his clutch of her showed giant strength. He didn't wait for her to refuse Bellew's eager invitation. "Home's nearer—going there is the best preventive of taking cold," he said almost brusquely. "It's mighty nice of you to offer us fire and shelter—thank you a lot—but wet dogs had better get to their own kennels."

Then he half-led, half-dragged Betty away, bowing airily to the pair they left. On the way to the log Betty stopped him, pointing to a flowering tree overhead, and reaching silently to twitch off low-hanging clusters of starry flowers. She was quite willing to be carried over the stream. Peter set a tentative foot on the log, then plunged down to the streamside, saying, with a grin, "We can't be weter—here goes!" then went striding steadily across. He put down his passenger unbidden, picked up her hat and flowers and started along the homeward path at nearly a dog-trot. But Betty kept up with him quite cleverly. In a whiff her color had come back, her eyes were shiny, not clouded, and her hair beginning to frame her face in adorable small tendrils. Viewing all which from the corner of his eye, he smiled whimsically, saying, "Lucky those others," nodding backward, "can't see you now, Betsy! Jack would fall in love with you all over again, and Cousin Emma want to bite herself with jealous spite. Fine as she looked in her outdoor get-up, she'd have nothing on you. Now you have, as the darkeys say, 'Done come undrowen.' Did you wish anything on her when you got the flowers?"

"Not a thing," Betsy panted, running a yard ahead of him. He caught her arm saying, sternly, "No running away, miss! Things have got to be settled right here and now."

"Oh, have they?" Betty flung over her shoulder, twisting so her face was hidden. She was all in a glow—the twinkle in Peter's eyes had betrayed him. Besides—it was about time to settle things—but she would never in the world let them be settled otherwise than as she pleased. Peter had been so long, so steadfastly her merry slave, captive as much to her elfin humor as to her beauty and womanly charm, it was delightful to have him even pretending to lord it over her. Then, too, she could take his breath whenever she chose—she smiled in think of it, but wondered a little how he would bear the surprise of his life.

Finding him silent she ran on, "I did wish things, though. Why don't you ask about them? Is your curiosity drowned the same as your new shirt?"

"No—I'm merely waiting until you'll have to tell me—or perish in the attempt not to," Peter said reflectively. Betty made a face at him.

"Wish one was—never again to see a person named Bellew," she began. Peter nodded. "Good work!"

With a silencing glance she went on severely: "Wish two, that you'd say I must marry you at Easter—" Here Peter put up imploring hands, crying, "This is so sudden. You fell in love with me same time you fell in the creek, I suppose?"

"No sir—ee," Betty laughed. "It's only you showed how well you knew what to do in emergencies. I think you'll be handy to have in the house."

"An unchristian martyr!" Peter ejaculated—with eyes that belied his speech.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT
Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble. Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions. Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store.

LOVE'S BLINDNESS

By ALICE HANDLEY.

"Good heavens, girls, am I late? Has half hour been called yet?" And Helen, all out of breath, made a hasty entrance to the dressing-room.

Irene gazed at her in the mirror as she was about to put the final touch of rouge to her dimpled cheeks to bring out the youthful charm of her demure little face.

"You had better hurry, Helen, if you intend making the opening number."

"They'll never hold the curtain for you, old dear, if you continue to hold that million dollar letter you have there very much longer," continued Vera with an air of self-importance.

"I suppose the king of Scotland sent you his will, or maybe he is coming to propose to you," sighed Vera, at the same time glancing toward Helen with her supercilious gray eyes.

"You shouldn't keep any secrets from us, Helen. It's not quite the proper thing to do, especially in polite society like ours," laughed Irene as she sauntered about the dressing-room.

"I'm not keeping any secrets—really I'm not. You see, Brother Jack wrote me he is coming on to see the performance this evening, and he has invited three of his classmates along, and I haven't seen him since the show played New Haven. Really, I'm so happy I'm sitting on the front doorsteps of heaven—covering the wonderful little smile with a huge daub of cold cream."

"Well, make the best of his visit—that's what I generally do when a sweetie of mine pops in on me unexpectedly," came a musical voice from the extreme end of the room.

"You see, girls, Jack asked me to invite the prettiest girl, the sweetest girl and the vampire of the show out to dinner with the boys after the performance. I wish I could invite all the girls then—"

"Oh, well fix that part of it all right," interrupted Ethel, a stumpy little maiden with a mass of bright red hair. Her tiny eyes never missed anything worth while. "We'll hold a voting contest between the first and second acts and in that way there won't be any hard feelings among the fair ladies of the chorus."

Between the musical numbers during the first act several of the girls grouped about back stage, plotting and planning.

"It will be a good joke on the boys," giggled Irene, with her fiery red hair and her bird-like eyes, while Vera who is voted the prettiest girl, should be 'charming,' but a typical fault finder, will be the sweetest damsel. The vampire honors go to Peggy Lea, the little country 'gal,' who joined us last week in Abbysville."

The dressing room proved a scene of merriment as the names of the chosen girls were read by the good-natured dresser, who participated in most of their schemes and fun.

The glooms of all glooms passed over Helen. She did not approve of the picked winners, although she succeeded in hiding her feelings with one of her captivating little smiles.

It was not long after the finale of the show when Jack and the boys anxiously made their appearance at the stage door.

The Mayfair Inn was their destination, a delightful, secluded spot where the fastidious banquet was in readiness to greet the merry party.

The enchanted music tickled Jack so that he could hardly keep his feet stationary. Finally he got up enough courage to ask Ethel for the next dance.

"I'm wild about your beautiful red hair, Ethel, and your eyes twinkle like stars on a moonlight night."

"Thanks, Jack; you are the first to compliment me on my beauty," as they aimlessly walked toward the table where Ned Warren was seen gazing at Peggy with sincere, soulful eyes.

PAINS NEARLY DOUBLED ME UP

Nothing Helped Me Until I Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Wyandotte, Mich.—"For the last four years I have doctored off and on without help. I have had pains every month so bad that I would nearly double up. Sometimes I could not sweep a room without stopping to rest, and everything I ate upset my stomach. Three years ago I lost a child and suffered so badly that I was out of my head at times. My bowels did not move for days and I could not eat without suffering. The doctor could not help me and one day I told my husband that I could not stand the pain any longer and sent him to the drug-store to get me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and throw the doctor's medicine away. After taking three bottles of Vegetable Compound and using two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash I could do my own housework. If it had not been for your medicine I don't know where I would be today and I am never without a bottle of it in the house. You may publish this if you like that it may help some other woman."

Back Given Out?

There's surely some reason for that lame, aching back. Likely it's your kidneys. A cold or strain oftentimes congests the kidneys and slows them up. That may be the reason for that nagging backache, those sharp pains, that tired, worn-out feeling. You may have headaches and dizzy spells, too, with annoying bladder irregularity. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. They have helped thousands. Ask your neighbor!

Occasionally sharp twinges caught me when stooping and lifting. I got two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and when I had finished them the pains and aches in my back had left, the action of my kidneys became regular and my health was better in every way."

PROFESSIONAL GAME LURES FEW PLAYERS

Little Encouragement Offered to College Stars.

Not Many Students Willing to Give Up Chance for Glory and Honor That Comes with the "Making of Varsity Team."

It shows a very altruistic spirit on the part of those who are interested in the professional football to come to an agreement in their association of which Jim Thorpe is the president not to attempt to wean any player away from a college team during its schedule.

Every now and then there is a case of a star player masquerading under an assumed name for a game or two, but the real luminaries get so much publicity that they are almost sure to be recognized, even if they play in some out-of-the-way town, says a writer in Philadelphia Record.

There is a tendency for development in the game, and possibly some day we may see a national league with representatives in the big cities, but that era seems quite a distance away yet.

SULLIVAN WANTED TO BE BASEBALL PLAYER

Didn't Offer Chance to Gather in Enough Coin.

Harry Wright, Veteran Manager, Offered Former Champion $80 to Play Ball—Had Slight Preference for First Base.

Mere accident has changed the careers of many men. John L. Sullivan, one of the greatest fighters in history ever claimed, might have won fame as a ball player.

This feature of Sullivan's career is a point that has been passed up by many who have written interesting stories of the former champion.

In the early days Sullivan was a tin-smith. He worked at his trade in Boston, and received $80 per month.

In the evenings when weather would permit, Sullivan always played ball on the commons. On one occasion while playing with one of the Boston teams, Harry Wright, veteran baseball manager, happened to be a witness of the contest.

Sullivan had no particular position on the ball field, although by some it was said he had a slight preference for first base. He loved to swing a bat and he loved the excitement of running the bases.

Farewell Reception to Rev. Dr. Ford and Wife

WHITE CHURCH (Congregational)

It was with considerable regret that many attended the farewell reception on Tuesday evening at the chapel of Taylor. During the reception delightful music was furnished by Ethel Raymond's orchestra.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Charles Gibson, assisted by several young ladies. The pourers were: Mrs. George Shaw and Mrs. Henry Hawkes. The chapel was prettily decorated with palms, chrysanthemums and greens.

Rev. Dr. Ford will preach on Sunday morning and evening for the last time; his morning subject being: "Closing the pastorate."

An ecclesiastical council has been called for next Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, to dismiss the pastor.

MORE PUBLICITY

Editor Gazette and Transcript:

Your item of "More Publicity in last Friday's issue touches upon matters of vital importance to our town's progress.

In my opinion, a large majority of our voters agree with you, namely, that upon all matters there should be an "open door" to the public.

In view of its importance, the cost of advertising all warrants for town meetings has little significance, and if there were another paper beside the Gazette, in my opinion all—every local paper should carry it. As a regular reader of your paper I feel like expressing my pleasure at the opinion you so clearly express.

Yours truly,
T. P. VAILLE.

REV. DR. E. T. FORD

the White church to their pastor and wife, who are soon to leave for Hartford, Vt. The reception was given under the auspices of Ladies Social Union, Mrs. James Ford president, from 8 to 10.30.

Rev. Dr. Ford and Mrs. Ford were assisted in receiving by Deacon and Mrs. Arthur Cunningham, and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Earle. The ushers were: Harry Horsley, Arthur Shores, Miss Florence Earle and Miss Elizabeth

LYCEUM COURSE

The first of the lectures in the Lyceum Course at South Weymouth was given Tuesday evening under the auspices of the Community Association. The advance sale of season tickets was large, but because of the storm many could not attend.

Previous to the arrival of the lecturer, who was detained by train service, Miss Jardine Davidson of Quincy delighted the audience with solos.

Mr. Robinson, the president of the Community Association, suggested that necessary funds be obtained by selling more course tickets, so that a series of free lectures on nature studies could be held for the children.

Samuel Grathwell gave an interesting lecture on the "Hoodoo." He spoke about those that were always saying: "They never had a chance." The reason was because they never tried in the right way. South Weymouth has the best village of its size in Massachusetts. Don't be a chronic kicker. If your community isn't good enough to boost, it isn't good enough to live in.

The first essential of success: "He can who thinks he can."
"Character is of more value than cash—it brings in better returns."
"Place your own self-respect before the love of your friends."
"Courage is the test of manhood—not muscle."

The Del Mar Quartet gives the second entertainment in the course Dec. 15.

OLDEST RESIDENT DEAD

William H. Bond, the oldest resident of Weymouth died at his home on Summer street Saturday aged 97 years, 2 months. Mr. Bond was born in Wayland, Sept. 16, 1823. The earlier years of his life were spent on his father's farm. In 1844 he went to Maine and for four years was with the surveying party of the old Ken-nebuk and Portland railroad, now the Maine Central. He afterwards returned to Boston and for 13 years was with the Old Colony railroad in its season ticket office.

In 1865 he commenced the manufacture of boots in this town, and carried on a large business. He retired in 1878, and the latter years of his life was engaged in farming.

In 1857 he married Miss Eliza A. Nash of this town, who died a few months ago. He is survived by four sons, William A., Francis D., Harry W., and Edwin R. Bond.

The funeral took place Monday afternoon from his late residence. Rev. J. Caleb Justice of the Union Congregational church conducted the service. The four sons acted as bearers. Interment was in the family lot at Old North cemetery.

New Masonic Lodge At South Weymouth

The storm did not prevent a large gathering at the institution of a new Masonic lodge at South Weymouth on Tuesday evening, to be known as Wessagusset lodge, A. F. & A. M. The ceremony was held at the Odd Fellows Building in Independence Square.

The meeting was opened and conducted by District Deputy Grand Master Henry D. Higgins of the 26th Masonic District. He read the dispensation from the State Body, read the roll of some 70 new members, all responding with exception of a few, and inducted the new officers into their different stations.

The officers are:
Master.—Elmir Millett.
Senior Warden.—Frederick Gilbert Bauer.
Junior Warden.—Josiah Burton Reed.

Treasurer.—Fred T. Barnes.
Secretary.—Charles H. Locke.
Chaplain.—Carl F. Elsner.
Marshal.—Burton B. Wright.

Senior Deacon.—Nathaniel A. Shaw.
Junior Deacon.—William J. Holbrook.

Senior Steward.—Charles S. Bicknell.
Junior Steward.—William F. Barnard.

Inside Sentinel.—Jacob S. Wichert.
Organist.—Henry B. Alvord.
Tyler.—Ray H. Locke.

Under new business some 21 applications for membership were read.

The lodge starts work with a splendid membership and a well known list of officers. Some 14 or 15 past masters representing Orphans Hope lodge of East Weymouth and lodges of Rockland, Whitman, Abington, Braintree and Holbrook were present to wish it God-speed.

The new lodge was recipient of many gifts, over 30, that included equipment necessary for its work. The lodges of the 26th Masonic district gave the three great lights. Other gifts were: gavel, ballot box, printing and postage for the year under dispensation.

Meetings will be held on fourth Tuesday of each month in Odd Fellows hall.

After the meeting an hour was spent in congratulating the new officers, during which icecream, cake and coffee were served, having been prepared by the ladies under direction of Mrs. Charles H. Locke.

MEETING OF SELECTMEN

The Selectmen devoted the greater part of their meeting this week to drafting a petition to the Legislature, as instructed at the recent town meeting, to enable Weymouth to elect town meeting members, that they may act upon the various articles in the town warrant. Town Counsel Holbrook was present and assisted. An Act very similar to the Watertown Act, printed in the Gazette and Transcript this week, is favored.

An effort will be made to have the petition acted upon at the special session of the Legislature in December.

It was voted to call a meeting of the Committee on Relief of the Tornado Sufferers, but as the committee is not ready to report the date has been postponed.

On petition of the Lovell's Corner Improvement Association it was voted to remove the old watering places at the corner of Washington and Pleasant street.

Complaints were received from people of North Weymouth of the objectionable odor from the Oil Works at East Braintree.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Small Nations Asserting Themselves in Meeting of the League Assembly.

HYMANS ELECTED PRESIDENT

Early Admission of Germany Seems Likely — Soviet Russia, Having Crushed Wrangel, Is in Strong Position—Greeks May Restore Constantine to Throne.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

No sooner had the assembly of the League of Nations got down to business in its first meeting in Geneva than signs of discord between the groups of large and small nations appeared. Up to date the latter have the better of the argument, and the fears of persons who thought the doings of the league would be dominated by Great Britain, France, Italy and perhaps Japan are somewhat allayed. Indeed, the representatives of those four nations were by no means in accord on all points. The Italians placed themselves in opposition to French propositions, and the various British dominions did not agree with the other country.

A most interesting development of the week was the announcement that Spain would join with Great Britain, France and Belgium in policing the Vilna zone during the plebiscite. This was looked on as possibly the beginning of the organization of a league army.

The first day, after the election of Paul Hymans of Belgium as president saw the opening scrap over the matter of admitting Germany to membership in the league. The French had objected that this subject did not appear on the agenda, but Tittoni of Italy declared the whole world demanded the admission of the enemy states and would not accept the excuse that their applications had not been received in time. Sir Robert Cecil, who represented South Africa, appeared to side with Tittoni.

It was decided that six commissions should handle the work of the assembly. The first is to take care of general organization; the second technical organization; the third the international court of justice; the fourth finance; the fifth admission of new members, and the sixth reduction of armaments, blockade and military pressure on covenant breaking states and mandates.

When these commissions were named, on Wednesday, the supporters of the immediate admission of Germany scored another victory in the election of Delegate Huneus of Chile as president of commission number 5; Doctor Blanco of Cuba was made vice president. The French were surprised and chagrined at not receiving this presidency for Viviani, but they had been already put at a disadvantage by the naming of Bourgeois as head of the third commission. It had been supposed that Great Britain, because of her naval power, would get the presidency of the commission dealing with disarmament and blockade of covenant breaking states and with mandates, but here again the smaller nations showed their independence by giving the place to Delegate Branting of Sweden. The French, Italian and English delegations won a point Tuesday when it was decided that the commissions might, if they wished, sit in camera and need keep no minutes of their sessions. Cecil protested in vain against this.

Delegate Puyrredon of the Argentine told the assembly that his delegation believed all recognized nations must belong to the league to make it effective and to avoid the danger of the organization of a rival league. He said that a formula must be found to permit the United States to come in, and demanded that the league be made more democratic by electing all the members of the council in the assembly, instead of allowing the big powers to name a majority of them, as at present.

Certain German officials have told a Berlin correspondent that Germany would not now accept membership in the league if it were offered; that she now contemplates demanding a new peace conference, or at least an interpretation and revision of the existing treaty favorable to her claims. Berlin holds that a definite sum for reparations must be fixed, and feels that the coal delivery demands are too severe and are the sole cause for unemployment and labor disturbances in Germany. The Germans also hope that the Danzig corridor will be restored to them, and that they will be given some colonial mandates.

An interesting story from Munich sets forth the imminence of a new revolution in Bavaria which is to make an independent state of that second largest state of the German confederation and the creation of a regency, probably to be followed by the selection of one of the Wittelsbach family as king. It is planned, also, that Bavaria shall enter into an agreement with France to guarantee her independence and obtain relief from her part of the German war burden. The story, which is plausible, says the real ruler of Bavaria is Doctor Escherich, founder of the Bavarian home militia, whose armed strength is about 100,000; that he is backed by the former German staff officers and monarchists, chief of whom is General Ludendorff, and that Ludendorff probably would be chosen regent. Escherich has refused to disarm his militia, and it is expected the entente will soon threaten to occupy the Ruhr basin in consequence. When this is done, according to the plot, the workers, socialists and communists will declare a general strike and in the ensuing conflict the coup d'etat will be accomplished.

Having crushed Baron Wrangel and expelled him and his troops from the Crimea, the Russian soviet government finds itself in good shape to resume negotiations for the resumption of trade with other nations. And its chances for recognition also are vastly improved. Most governments realized some time ago that Russian Bolshevism was not to be destroyed by armed opposition, especially from the outside; and nearly all except France believed that it would be useless to give aid to the factions within Russia that were in rebellion against Lenin and Trotsky. Even the leaders of the Mensheviks and other wise opponents of Bolshevism in Russia have long maintained that position and asserted that the best thing to do was to recognize the Moscow government, or at least let it alone, and that ultimately, having nothing to fight, Bolshevism must fall. It seems likely that this view of the problem will now become general.

The crushing of Wrangel was swift, once the Bolsheviks had broken through his defenses on the Perekop peninsula. His troops were driven back to Sebastopol and some 20,000 of them, together with many thousands of civilian refugees, embarked there and were carried to Constantinople and other ports. Wrangel also escaped to the Turkish capital.

The soviet forces were then directed against the Ukrainians under General Petlura, and these also were put to rout. Kiev and other cities being occupied by the Reds. There was fear in the capitals of Europe that the Russians would now renew the fight against the Poles, and certain threatening notes from Moscow to Warsaw increased the apprehension.

The Turkish nationalists have designated soviet Russia as the "warden of the Orient," according to Talaat Pasha, former vizier, and consider the treaty between Turkey and the allies invalid. With the help of the nationalists, the Russians are strengthening their hold on the country between the Black and Caspian seas, demanding more and more from the Georgians and the Armenians, and opening more completely their route to Persia, and Mesopotamia, and perhaps to India. The British have decided not to reduce their military establishment in Mesopotamia for the present.

Venzelos, premier of Greece, was badly defeated in the elections and has resigned and taken refuge in France. Admiral Coundouriotis, the regent, called George Rhalis to form a new cabinet, and when the new premier was sworn in he demanded the resignation of the admiral and made Queen Olga, mother of former King Constantine, regent. It was taken for granted that the victorious party, of which Gounaris is the head, would recall Constantine to the throne, though he says he will not return except by mandate of the Greek people in a plebiscite. Probably a majority of the civil population would vote for the restoration now, but it is believed most of the army would oppose it if given a chance to vote. There is even some talk of the troops in Asia Minor returning to prevent the recall of Constantine by force. This presumably would precipitate a civil war. France and England have been holding conversations over the Greek situation, but it was stated neither would act without the other.

The Kansas industrial court, which has been so bitterly attacked by organized labor, showed the other of its two edges last week when it called before it representatives of all flour mills in Topeka. Workmen had complained to the court that some of the mills had closed down and others were on part time, and the court wanted to know why, since such a thing cannot be done without court sanction under a necessity of life is involved. The millers agreed that the Canadian wheat shortage, the high cost of mills and cheap flour, and the curtailment of flour, such cancellation of mills which had closed or were on "part time" had acted from necessity. If the court finds the action of the millers unjustified it can order the operation of the mills on a scale which it deems just. It will be readily seen that this case is of far more than local importance in its influence on future legislation and the possible establishment of similar courts in other states.

The executive council of the American Federation of Labor is busy getting ready to start a great movement for the "humanization of industry." Its main demand will be that union contracts with employers shall include provisions for the appointment of committees of employees to co-operate with factory owners in the management of production. The program also calls for a renewal of the fight on the open shop. Among its other features are:

Repeal of existing laws and opposition to proposed laws requiring compulsory arbitration of industrial disputes.

Opposition to laws restricting the right of workers to quit work when conditions are not satisfactory.

Enactment of legislation restricting immigration from all parts of the world, especially central and south-eastern Europe, for four years at least.

A campaign of Americanization, especially in the coal fields and in industries where foreigners are employed, to offset influence of political theorists not in harmony with the present system of government.

An upholding of wage standards as long as the dollar remains at half the purchasing mark of the pre-war dollar.

In pursuance of its policies, the executive council is eliminating as many of the ultra-radical leaders in the ranks of union labor as it can. Among these is John Fitzpatrick, bitter foe of Gompers, whom the Chicago Federation of Labor continues to elect as its president.

President-Elect Harding, after brief visits in Brownsville, Tex., and New Orleans, sailed for the Canal Zone. Mr. Harding had let the Mexicans know that he could not go to Mexico City for the inauguration of General Obregon, but there was talk of his stopping at Vera Cruz for a talk with the general.

The National Farmers' union has sent to its locals throughout the country a call for a producers' strike to combat the falling prices of farm products. All farmers are appealed to to hold this year's products from the markets until "profit-making levels" are restored. The "strike" is not compulsory.

POULTRY

STANDARD BREEDS OF FOWLS

Poultry Keeper Should Select Breed Best Adapted to His Purpose and Locality.

Leaving out of consideration the breeds kept as novelties, all the standard American breeds of fowls have been made and developed on the general principle of practical quality as the foundation of breed character and value. In harmony with this principle, the common classification of breeds according to their places in the general scheme of poultry production divides them into three principal classes: laying breeds, meat breeds and general-purpose breeds—that is, breeds that are not as ready and persistent egg producers as the laying breeds, and not as meaty and as easy to fatten as the meat breeds, yet combine in one individual fowl very good laying capacity with very good table quality.

The Leghorn, Minorca, Andalusian, Ancona and Campine are well-known breeds of the laying class; the Brahma, Dorking, and Cornish of the meat class; the Plymouth Rock, Wyandotte, Rhode Island Red and Orpington of the general-purpose class.

The breeds of the laying class, with the exception of the Minorca, are relatively small, very energetic and lively, mature early, and are easily kept in good laying condition. The Minorca is of larger size and modified somewhat in the other particulars mentioned, yet has more the character of the laying class than of any other.

In the meat breeds there is not the same uniformity of type that is found in the laying breeds. The three mentioned differ decidedly. The Brahma is most popular because it is at the same time the largest and most rugged in constitution. The Dorking excels in quality of meat, but is generally considered somewhat lacking in hardness. The Cornish is rather hard headed but, being very short feathered, has its special place as a large meat-producing fowl in southern sections where the more heavily feathered Brahma does not stand the summer well.

Among the popular breeds of the general-purpose class there are also differences in type, adapting breeds to different uses. The Plymouth Rock is generally regarded as the type meeting the widest range of requirements in the general-purpose class.

The Wyandotte is a little smaller and earlier maturing, but still very well mated and easy to fatten.

The Rhode Island Red has nearly the same standards of weight as the Wyandotte, but is a more active bird, not putting on fat so readily. Consequently, it approaches the laying type and is most popular with those who want eggs and meat, but want eggs most.

The Orpington is at the other extreme in the general-purpose class, being a heavier, meatier fowl than the Plymouth Rock.

Such a list of breeds affords so wide a range of choice that poultry keepers can always select a standard breed better adapted to their locality and their purpose than any non-standard stock they can procure, say poultry specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. A flock of standard-bred fowl will have the further advantage of reproducing true to type.

MAKE PROGRESS WITH FOWLS

Select Best Individuals for Breeding Whether for Table, Show or Egg Production.

Whether the purpose of poultry breeding be for the show, for table stock or for egg producers, the best progress will be made by picking out the best individuals in the flock as breeders rather than by breeding from the flock as a whole.

COMPEL FOWLS TO EXERCISE

Thick Litter of Straw, Leaves or Something of That Kind Will Keep Birds Scratching.

In all henhouses there should be a thick litter of straw, hay, leaves or something of that kind into which the grain can be put to compel exercise. When the fowls are confined to the house, or the house and yard, they need exercise to keep in good health.

"It is either brotherhood or war, and that war will be no child's play," said the Rev. Dr. George L. Cady of New York, speaking of the attitude of the white race toward the Japanese, Chinese and Negroes, in the annual meeting of the American Missionary Association in the First Church, Springfield, Mass.

An action for damages against Danbury and Norwalk, Conn., hatters for an alleged conspiracy, which may rival in interest the famous "Danbury Hatters" case in which D. E. Leow & Co. won a decision in the Supreme Court after a 15-year legal battle, has opened in the Superior Court in Bridgeport.

A yarn has reached Augusta regarding a former resident, who was at one time a nurse at the Augusta General Hospital. It is said that Sergt. Robert A. McLean has been bequeathed a kingdom in the Philippine Islands, 40 wives and an up-to-date harem by the will of the late Sultan of lang-Liang.

Col. Frank M. Hume, who commanded the 103d infantry of the 26th division during the world war announces that he has been offered the office of treasurer of Aroostook county by Gov. Milliken of Maine and that he will accept. The office was made vacant by the recent death of Thomas P. Putnam.

A fine of $1000, the largest in the history of the United States district court, Boston, on a violation of the Volstead act, was paid by Timothy P. Collins of the Waverly Hotel, New Bedford, who pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with maintaining a common nuisance, keeping and selling intoxicating liquor.

Haji Mazman of Hudson, Mass., on a hunger strike in the City Hospital Worcester after slashing his throat with a part of a mirror in Summer street jail, where he was being held pending trial for misconduct, is in a precarious condition. He was forcibly fed with the aid a stomach tube, but did not retain the nourishment.

Small Wonder! "I trust, sir, that you have not been indiscreet enough to speak to my daughter about marriage," said the stern parent to the youth who had just asked for his daughter's hand. "I have not, sir," replied the youth, "but I was strongly tempted to do so last evening when she kissed me good night."

Appropriate. In Egypt yellow-brown, the hue of the dead leaf, is worn as the emblem of mourning.

James Jackson spent nothing in his successful campaign for State Treasurer of Massachusetts, according to a report filed with the Secretary of State. Marcus Coolidge, Democratic candidate for lieutenant-governor, spent $2859 and Louis A. Frothingham $2785 in his successful Congressional fight in the 14th District.

A number of Maine towns that have never had electric current will be so provided shortly through the development of the Central Maine Power Company. The high tension line from Farmington to Lewiston, 30 miles, was built in a month. A new high tension line from Waterville to Skowhegan and still another from Skowhegan to Gullford are being constructed.

Riveters of the Fore River plant of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation in Quincy who have been on a "vacation" for several weeks are breaking ranks, and several applied for reinstatement to the company and were taken back. About 500 left work without the sanction of the Boilermakers' Union, of which they are a part, and the company told them their services were no longer required.

Forty thousand workers had to walk to their places of employment as a result of the unexpected announcement by the Connecticut Company that trolley service on all Waterbury lines would be suspended. Six hundred trolley men were thrown out of work. The trolley company's decision to suspend service on the Waterbury lines came as a result of the failure of the Board of Aldermen to eliminate jitney competition.

The Brockton Agricultural Society has recently held the most successful Brockton Fair in the 46 years since its organization. The combined attendance for the four days and evenings exceeded 215,000. Regardless of the measure of its success, no dividends have ever been paid to its stock holders. The society functions exclusively for the agricultural, industrial and educational advantage of its many thousands of patrons, and the receipts each year, after charitable gifts have been made, are devoted to the further upbuilding of the fair, the coming year.

Worcester Polytechnic Institute announces a gift of $350,000 from the Rockefeller Benefaction in the Interest of Schools and Education as a contribution to the $2,000,000 endowment fund which the institute is raising to provide an income that will replace the $50,000 annuity from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, which was taken from Tech by the passage of the bill which prevents appropriations to any schools except those maintained wholly at public expense. The gift is made on condition that it "shall form part of a fund for $1,000,000 to increase the salaries of professors."

Returns of expenses in the recent election, so far filed at the State House, Boston, show that Governor-elect Channing Cox spent $823.69 of which $500 went to the Republican State Committee, $100 to the Republican Club of Massachusetts and $123.69 to the Republican City Committee of Boston. Lieutenant Governor-elect Aivan T. Fuller spent $1145.53; Congressman Frederick H. Gillett of Springfield, $395; Attorney General J. Weston Allen, $100; Congressman Allen T. Treadway, $111; Congressman Robert Luce, $393; Congressman Frederick W. Dallinger, $175. State Auditor Alonzo B. Cook and Sheriff John A. Keliher spent nothing.

Gov. P. W. Clement of Vermont honored a requisition of Connecticut officers to take Luman C. Beckett, wanted in New Britain, back to that city for trial on the charge of murdering Charles C. Taft, a taxi driver Beckett has just completed a term in the state prison at Windsor for assault with intent to commit robbery. It is claimed that since his committal he confessed to the killing of Taft, claiming, however, that he acted in self-defense; that Taft assaulted him while he was riding with a girl companion that the girl placed a revolver in his (Beckett's) hands and that when he made an effort to hit Taft on the head the gun exploded.

Figures submitted by the Massachusetts State Department of Labor and Industries show the percentage of unemployment in the State is the highest since 1908, although present conditions indicate that the situation is improving. In its comment the department report says: "There has been little change since September in the unemployment situation. The figures as of Sept. 30, representing unemployment in the principal industries of the State, show that the percentage of unemployed for all causes is 19.3. The estimate is based upon reports submitted by 1103 labor unions, reporting a membership of 254,000. The percentage of unemployment, in a number of industries follows: Boot and shoe, 40.9 percent; textiles 26.3 percent; building trades, 5.3 percent; transportation, 5.4 percent; iron and steel, 9 percent; printing, 2.5 percent; all other trades, 17.1 percent."

Indian Textile Workers. In North America alone there are four distinct types of spinning to be found and some half a dozen types of weaving in use by the Indian textile workers. Also they have most interesting devices for warping, for shredding, for pattern-making, and, in addition, countless secrets for dyeing.

Leather in Cow and Horse Hides. The hide of a cow represents thirty-five pounds of leather, and that of a horse a little more than half that amount.

CAP and BELLS

OBEDIENCE.

"Josh," said Farmer Cornstossel, "don't you know that children ought to obey their parents?" "Course I do, father. Only they've got to use some judgment. You know just as well as I do that if I was to do everything you tell me to when I'm running the family flivver, we'd be ditched in no time."

Impressions.

"That antagonist of yours says he is going to leave footprints in the sands of time." "He won't," replied Senator Sorghum. "His mind is in the clouds. He is an intellectual aviator. When he comes down he will leave a dent, not a footprint."

A Back-Hander.

Mrs. Scrapley—I really don't know what would happen, Richard, if ever you agreed with me on any subject. Scrapley—Something serious, probably, for we'd be dead wrong.

His Effort.

"That clumsy boy let the galley fall and he's made 'pi' of the copy of that murder story we were rushing." "Don't blame the boy. He was only breaking bad news."

Analogy.

"Pop, is a man who steals autos an autojack?" "Yes, son." "Then is a man who steals boots a bootjack?"

WILL NEED IT

"The next man I marry will have to have money." "He certainly will. If he is going to try to provide you with all the things you have asked me to get."

Terrorism.

"The 'terrorist,' if he would prove an influential elf. Before he tries to make a move Must be scareproof himself."

Too Much.

"Can't you put some ginger in that scene?" "Why, don't you see where all the characters are going on a wild carouse on ginger ale?"

It's Extent.

"That dentist's practice is spreading, isn't it?" "I should say so. It covers aches."

Fully Understood.

"Have you any difficulty in getting the proper diet for the invalid?" "No, indeed; the doctor has ordered some of that prepared desecrated food."

How He Learned.

"You're a very careful driver." "Yes, ma'am. When I learned to drive there were always three women in the back seat telling me what to do."

In the "O" Zone.

"What is your age?" "Twenty-two summers, judge." "You must have been living in a cold climate."—Cartoons Magazine.

The Net Result.

"When you started this drive for such a large amount, did you succeed in raising anything?" "Sure; I raised Cain."

Applying the Screws.

"We've raised the rents on your flats all we can." "Isn't there any way of demanding a bonus?"—Browning's Magazine.

Feminine Determination.

"I forbid any further extravagance in this house-furnishing business. I want you to understand, madam, that I put my foot down on any new carpets." "All right, John, dear; they'll be there to put it down on."

Too Numerous.

"It's wrong for a man to keep a card index of his enemies." "It is indeed," said Senator Snorts-worthy. "And if he happens to be in politics, it's impossible."

Mrs. Dow is prominent in club work there and conducts classes in Parliamentary law as a diversion. She was formerly secretary of the New England association which holds regular sessions and has a large membership in the "Sunshine City."

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Guertin were married 20 years Thanksgiving Day and they celebrated the event by entertaining a party of 30 friends and relatives at dinner at their home, 15 Congress street. The guests came from Boston, Brockton, Upton and the Weymouths. Following the dinner there was a program of vocal and instrumental music. Mr. and Mrs. Guertin received a number of hand some reminders of the occasion.

—The annual dramatic given by the Old Colony Club is to be held Tuesday evening, Nov. 30, in the Fogg Opera House entitled: "Clarice", under the direction of Miss Charlotte Craibe. Music is to be furnished by the club orchestra.

W. veterans, that was donated by the S. of V. Auxiliary No. 31 of Weymouth. Relief Corps No. 9 of Charlestown and the W. W. V. aides of the department, W. R. C.

We regret to report the illness of past president Mrs. Estelle Richards. Mrs. Sara Schlinper and president Mrs. Brassill.

Mrs. Caulfield, P. L. is recovering rapidly from serious burns she unfortunately met with.

Comrade Tower and wife and Comrade Gardner and wife are some better. Past commander Pease is able to take short walks every pleasant day.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

On the invitation of the Clapp Memorial Association a representative of the Council was to meet with representatives of other lodges in Weymouth, and arrange a bowling schedule for the winter season, but for some unknown reason only one other lodge besides the K. of C. sent a representative to the meeting, so the plan fell through. As there are some good bowlers in the Council they are naturally disappointed at the outcome. There would seem to be no better way to create friendly rivalry between the various lodges than competition in sport. Card experts of all kinds, checker wizards, pool devotees and billiard enthusiasts are numbered among the membership, and any lodge in Weymouth desiring to test their abilities along those lines, doubtless will be accommodated. Of course baseball consists of only the "stove league" in the winter, but many a hot old game is replayed in the off-season, which makes food for conversation.

The first of a series of "get-together" socials was held Tuesday evening at the club-house in Commercial Square. The hall was prettily decorated with naval flags of the International code, obtained by Deputy Grand Knight T. J. Kelly. The affair was delightfully informal and many knights and ladies were present, despite the inclement weather. There was dancing from 8 to 12, interspersed with readings by Miss Marion Hus bands of Weymouth, and solos by Miss Agnes Donovan of Rockland, accompanied by her sister, Miss Helen Donovan, pianist. The Black and White Four of Weymouth told jokes and also sang. James Dondero, the well known minstrel of South Weymouth, sang in the parlor at an impromptu gathering, accompanied by William Hannigan of East Braintree, pianist. Refreshments consisting of ice cream and cake were served by lady friends of the Council.

CATHOLIC CLUB CONCERT

A fine program was presented at the Bates Opera House last Friday evening at the annual concert of the Catholic Club of Weymouth, and it delighted a large audience. The Smalley Trio was assisted by soloists and a reader, and several of the numbers were encored.

The home paper deserves well of the Weymouth people.—ADVERTISE.

DEVICES REDUCE AMOUNT OF WORK

Daily Attention to Carpets Tends Greatly to Lighten Periodic Cleaning.

REMOVABLE RUGS ARE HANDY

Arrangement of House, Wide Selection of Furnishings and Use of Labor-Saving Contrivances Assist Housekeepers.

Changed living conditions have brought changes in house-cleaning methods. When houses were less completely heated, and parts of them were closed during the cold months, spring house-cleaning was necessary to get the closed rooms ready for use during the warm months, and fall house-cleaning was necessary to prepare the house for winter. Nowadays, all the rooms in most houses are used and kept clean throughout the year, and upheavals in spring and fall are no longer necessary. Moreover, the increasing use of removable rugs and some of the new cleaning devices make it much easier to take the dirt out day by day or week by week. Not all housekeepers realize how much the work of keeping things clean can be lightened by choosing the right things and handling them in the right way. This is not merely a matter of labor-saving devices like vacuum cleaners, but depends partly on how the house is planned, what furnishings and furnishings are used, and how the work of caring for them is organized.

Daily Care of Carpets.

For the daily care of woolen or cotton carpets and rugs, a carpet sweeper is very good, because it takes up lint and coarse dirt without raising the dust. For more thorough cleaning some other appliance must be used, as Vacuum Cleaner Removes Dirt Easily and the Air Is Not Filled With the Dust.

The brushes of the carpet sweeper do not go deep enough into the carpet to remove fine dirt. A vacuum cleaner is excellent, but if that is not available, effort should be made to find some other thorough but comparatively dustless process. Using a dampened broom and scattering left-over tea leaves, bits of crumpled, dampened newspaper, or one of the commercial sweeping preparations on the carpet before sweeping, helps to prevent dust from flying. These dampened materials must be used with caution, however, or stains will result, especially on delicately colored carpets. Wiping a carpet with a dampened cloth after sweeping removes more dust and freshens the carpet. Small rugs should be cleaned out of doors, if possible, preferably on the dry grass or dry snow. They should be placed right side down, beaten with a flat carpet beater, swept, turned over, and swept again. Hanging rugs over a line while they are being cleaned, or holding them by the corners and shaking them, strains them badly; it may break the threads or loosen the bindings and cause the ends to ravel.

Using Soap and Water on Rugs.

Practically all rugs, after thorough beating, may be cleaned with soap and water. Rag rugs may be washed like any other heavy material but they must be rinsed thoroughly. Sometimes it is easier to rinse a heavy, wet rug with a hose than in a tub. Other rugs can be placed on a table and scrubbed with a brush and mild soap suds. As each section is cleaned, it should be rinsed thoroughly and the water should be changed as it becomes discolored. Rugs washed by this method are clean, but they may shrink and lose their shape and the colors may fade and run. Oriental rugs with very long, thick pile should not be thus cleaned unless they can be dried quickly and thoroughly; if moisture remains in the depth of the pile it may rot the threads. United States Department of Agriculture household specialists suggest.

Fine smooth mattings should be swept with a soft brush and dusted with a dry mop, or if necessary they may be washed with a cloth tightly wrung out of warm water, and wiped dry with another cloth. All grass and fiber floor coverings should be taken up occasionally to remove the dirt which sifts through in spite of frequent cleaning.

FRUIT JUICES HANDY FOR WINTER JELLIES

Pressure of Work During Hot Season Is Relieved.

Besides Being Excellent for Jelly and Homemade Drinks Juices Are Recommended for Use in Gelatin, Ice Cream, Etc.

The juice of such fruits as the grape, currant, blackberry, strawberry, raspberry, elderberry and cherry makes delicious, wholesome drinks. Fruit juices also may be canned and made into jelly when it is wanted during the winter. Winter jelly making relieves the pressure of work during the hot and busy fruit season. Sugar need not be added until the juice is served or until the jelly is made.

The following directions are given by the United States Department of Agriculture: Extract the juice by boiling the fruit with a very little water and strain through a jelly bag. To prepare the juice for canning pour it into bottles or jars which have been boiled for 15 minutes. Put these on a false bottom in a hot-water bath. This may be a commercial canner or a container large enough to hold sufficient water. The water should reach the necks of the bottles and the shoulders of the jars. A cotton stopper may be pressed into the neck of the bottle and left during the processing period, or a cork, after being boiled, may be put in lightly.

If jars are used as containers put boiled tops in place and half seal. Process for 30 minutes at the simmering point. Remove, put stoppers of bottles in tightly, and when cool dip the top of the bottle into melted paraffin or sealing wax. Equal parts of rosin and beeswax make a good wax. Finish tightening the tops of the jars as soon as they are removed from the bath. Test for leaks and store in a dry, dark, cool place.

Aside from their use in making jelly and as a base for home-made drinks these fruit juices are excellent for use in gelatin, sauces, ice creams, sherbets, and other desserts. Those which are to be used in this way will have a better flavor if sugar is added before they are bottled.

GOOD LESSON FOR BEGINNER

Specialists Outline Plan for Determining When Dough Is Ready to Be Put in Pans.

Beginners often have difficulty in telling whether the dough is ready to be divided into loaves and put into pans. A good rule is to measure its volume, say home economics specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. When it is ready to be made into loaves, the dough for each loaf, if made out of hard-wheat flour, should amount to three pints; if made from soft flour, to about 2 1/2 pints.

The levels to which these masses of dough will reach in the mixing bowl can easily be determined beforehand and marked. For illustration: If one loaf of bread is to be made, before mixing it put three pints of water into the mixing bowl and mark the point to which the water comes. This will indicate the height to which the dough should rise.

When recipes direct that dough be allowed to double or treble in volume, it is convenient to have a measuring glass to determine the expansion. An ordinary tumbler will do, but a glass of smaller diameter, like a small jelly glass, is better. Before the dough is set to rise tear off a small piece and pack it in the glass. Note the height to which it comes and mark the place it will reach when its volume has doubled or trebled, as the case may be. Put this beside the large loaves of bread and use it as an indicator.

CHEESE AND POTATO DISHES

Excellent Luncheon or Supper Dishes Tested in Kitchen of Department of Agriculture.

The following excellent luncheon or supper dish is one tested in the experimental kitchen of the United States Department of Agriculture:

- 1 cupful of mashed potatoes.
1 egg.
1/4 teaspoonful of salt.
1/2 cupful of grated cheese.

Beat the potatoes and milk together until thoroughly mixed. Add the egg and the salt and beat thoroughly. Finally add the cheese. Bake in muffin tins in a slow oven ten or fifteen minutes.

A similar dish may be made by scooping out the inside of a baked potato and mixing it with cheese, as above. Fill the potato skin shell with the mixture, return to the oven, and bake until light brown.

MOHAWK INDIANS IN BONUS PARADE HELD IN NEW YORK CITY

Mohawk Indians in Tribal Feathers—All of Them Yanks.

With seventy-five thousand former service men in line and headed by a flying column of automobiles bearing hundreds of wounded soldiers, the recent bonus parade in New York city presented an impressive spectacle as platoon after platoon of uniformed marchers swept down Fifth avenue amid a tumult of cheers. Thousands of members of the American Legion were in the ranks and posts sent delegations from Connecticut and New Jersey to participate in the formation.

Many striking groups appeared in the parade, one of them being a band of Mohawk Indians in tribal feathers and wampum, all of them Yanks who had fought overseas.

Another feature was a huge gun mounted on a decorated truck which by a compressed air device fired rounds of circulars urging the bonus for ex-service men.

Ninety bands along the line of march played such airs of war days as "Over There" and "Madelon" as the former doughboys and gobs stepped out behind them.

BOLLES AS MESS SERGEANT IN BRONCHO-BUSTING GAME

National Adjutant Proves Cleverness in Roasting Corn and Potatoes in Mud Coating.

There's plenty of work concerned with the job of being the national adjutant of the American Legion, but still, Lemuel Bolles of Seattle, Wash., who recently was reappointed to the office, finds time now and then in which to get away from the duties of his position. At a picnic of the national headquarters staff outside of Indianapolis a while ago, Mr. Bolles played the part of a mess sergeant to perfection, evolving a new way of cooking corn and potatoes that brought praise from all. His system consisted of coating the corn and "spuds" with mud and then burying them in the embers of a fire until they were done to a turn. Here he is seen preparing the picnic meal with the assistance of Miss Pearl Burnett.

Mr. Bolles, who was one of the original delegates to the Paris caucus of the American Legion, served as a lieutenant colonel on the general staff of the first army corps from May, 1918, to March, 1919. Before the war he had served in all grades up to and including that of captain in the infantry of the Washington National Guard. He was assistant adjutant general of the state of Washington in 1916-1917. When the Washington National Guard was mobilized Mr. Bolles joined the forty-first division at Camp Greene, N. C., and went overseas with that outfit.

On his return to the United States he assisted in the organization of the American Legion in preparation for the Minneapolis convention and was later appointed national adjutant by Past Commander Franklin D'Olier.

Women Furnish Luncheon.

Luncheon, served in real country style, was furnished by the Women's auxiliary of Charles A. Cusick post of the American Legion, West New York, N. J., when the post went on an automobile excursion to Greenwood Lake. Following the luncheon a baseball game was played.

Bonds for New Home.

Twenty-dollar bonds, bearing six per cent interest and redeemable within five years, were sold in order to raise funds for a building for Stanley Dengler post of the American Legion, Creasona, Pa. The post now has a large stone house for its home and has 108 out of 111 possible members enrolled in the Legion.

Legionnaires Prove to Be Pastmasters of the Art at Casper (Wyo.) Stampede.

The Wild West of broncho-busting, steer-roping and reckless riding, burst into new life at the American Legion stampede held at Casper, Wyo., when untamed horses and longhorns were brought into town for the Legionnaires to master in an exhibition rivaling the famous Cheyenne frontier days.

Old timers in the cattle country, who were inclined to scoff at the pretentiousness of the projected stampede, remained to cheer themselves hoarse when the opening day came, and the Legionnaires with rowels and quirts proved themselves the masters of the "bad-acting" bronchos and subdued rambunctious steers in bulldogging contests.

The stampede was a success financially, and will become an annual event with the Legionnaires of Casper.

THE FRATERNITY OF PEOPLES

Goal to Which Veterans of World War Are Striving, Paris Post Adjutant Declares.

The "fraternity of peoples" was depicted as the goal toward which veterans of the World War in all countries are striving, in an address by Arthur W. Kipling, adjutant of Paris post, American Legion, to the annual convention of the "Union Nationale des Combattants" at the Trocadero.

Mr. Kipling greeted the French veterans in the name of the veterans of America, and explained that he had been designated to represent the American ex-service men at the gathering of their comrades.

"The effort which you are making today, my French comrades," he said, "is identical with the effort which the American Legion is making in the United States. We all seek the recovery of the race, by the young men of the race, for humanity's sake, and so that our efforts may end in the fraternity of peoples, it depends upon us, former combatants in the great war, to understand each other and if necessary to speak frankly while looking each other squarely in the eye."

Andre Lefevre, French minister of war, presided at the convention and addresses were also delivered by Gen. Leon Durand and Charles Bertrand, a deputy. Captain Torse, a blinded veteran, spoke for Britain's former soldiers and officers of the Belgian and Italian armies carriers' messages from ex-service men of their countries.

Midwinter Presents Its Hats

WHILE the last bright days of Indian summer still linger and make us forget that winter is just around the corner, milliners have opportunity to get midwinter hats ready for its coming. In November the story of the season's styles concludes with a last, brilliant chapter; for nothing is too rich or gorgeous to be used in the headgear with which women face the height of their social gaieties in the depth of winter. Milliners add handsome dance caps and glittering coiffure ornaments to their stocks, making these contributions to the glory of the holidays. After Christmas it is indeed "the dead of winter" in the millinery shop, with the emphasis on "dead," unless the pilgrims that are going South buy resort hats in their home towns—and it is the part of wisdom and economy to do this.

For those who stay at home and face the storms and snows, there is a bravery of lovely hats that laugh at such weather. Many of them made of furs, moleskin, seal, squirrel and mink, find themselves much favored of milliners. A great many have fur brims and crowns of rich metallic brocades showing gold or silver figures on a satin ground. Others have fur brims and crowns made of brilliant feathers, and there are many with crowns of velvet either plain or embroidered. An unusual hat of moleskin and ribbon at the upper left in the picture has a crown made of strips of the fur and of striped ribbon woven together. For trimming there are loops of ribbon edged with fur.

The hat at the right is made of a beautiful fabric that looks like the skin of a peach and much chenille is used in its trimming. A great favorite in turbans holds the center of the picture employing velvet in two colors. The last development of the tam at the lower left, reveals it in two colors, made of velvet and having a plaque of feathers over it. The last hat is a stately model with velvet crown and satin coronet covered with a design in gold braid and heavy silk floss.

Wraps Inspired by New Fabrics

THE manufacturers of those durable, rich pile fabrics that have been given as many names as there are varieties in their weaving, are to be credited with inspiring some of the handsomest wraps of the present season. The fabrics vary, but are classed under a descriptive name that fits them perfectly—as "woven furs." They are very warm and easy to sew and they are as beautiful as natural furs, for which reasons designers of wraps have been inspired to show what can be done with them. They reveal also in cloths that are similar to duvetyne, as holliva, peachskin and heavy wool velours. Both kinds of fabrics look particularly well with fur trimmings; both are supple and cozy looking and it is hard to choose between them. Durability is on the side of the woven furs, perhaps, while cloths present a little wider range of color.

Without any fear of odious comparisons, two wraps are presented above—one of woven fur (at the right) and the other of duvetyne. The first wrap has a long silky nap and is as dark as sealskin. It is a coat having the back cut longer than the front and a wide sash of the fabric. The sash ends support furry balls on a silk cord. For the big collar, deep cuffs and border across the front, Australian opossum does its part toward placing this coat among the aristocrats in wraps.

The wrap at the left is like a full, short mantle hanging longer at the front and back than at the sides. It hangs in toward the waistline at the back, but quite straight at the front. There are no sleeves, merely slits at each side through which the arms are thrust. The very wide border at the bottom of the wrap and the huge collar are made of gray krummer fur, forming a lovely contrast with the deep, clear blue of the cloth.

Care Would Save Many.

Preference for Black.

Rust is a color used quite extensively in millinery for fall; gray, tete de negre and navy also are good, but there is a strong preference for black.

Christmas Toys the Boys Can Make

By A. NEELY HALL

(Copyright by A. Neely Hall.)

When painted in bright colors, the toys shown in the illustrations will be as pleasing to those young relatives whom you wish to remember on Christmas, as any similar toys in stores.

The auto truck shown in Fig. 1 has a cigar-box body 5 inches wide, 8 inches long and 2 inches deep. Cut wooden strips A (Fig. 2) 1 inch wide and 1 inch thick, by the length of the box, and nail them to the box bottom close to the sides. Screw screw-eye axle bearings B into these strips. The screw-eyes should be 1/4 inch in diameter, because the wheel axles C (Fig. 3) must be of this diameter to fit the holes of the spool wheels D. The wheels are spool ends.

Remove the rear end of the box and hinge it to the box bottom (E, Fig. 2), for an end gate.

Fig. 4 shows a detail of front platform, F, dashboard G, steering-post H, and steering-wheel I—a spoolend. Fasten these pieces as indicated. Fit seat J across the box top, and seat back K to its edge. Nail canopy supports L to the seat back and box sides, and tack the canopy M to the supports near the top.

The clown turner (Fig. 6) is made to perform upon his turning-pole by squeezing the lower end of the uprights. The squeezing causes a pair of threads F (Fig. 11) to untwist then twist, and the untwisting and twisting makes the clown turn.

Fig. 7 shows dimensions for uprights A and connecting block B. Fasten B between strips A as shown.

Patterns for the clown are shown in Figs. 8, 9 and 10. Cut the body members out of cigar-box wood, punch holes where indicated, and with pieces of hairpins or other small wire, pivot the arms and legs to the body. Pierce a small hole through each hand, and whittle the ends of a match to fit in the holes. The match (E, Fig. 7) forms the turning-pole. With a coarse needle pierce a pair of holes through the arms at the wrists, and another pair through uprights A near the top. Run heavy linen threads through the holes in the wrists, and twist their ends (F, Fig. 11), then run the ends through the holes in uprights A, and tie. The threads must be twisted when the clown hangs down (Fig. 11), untwisted when he has swung up over the pole.

The top in Fig. 12 requires little description. A pencil with a blunt point (A, Fig. 13) pushed through a spool whittled cone-shaped (B), forms the spinning point, and a shoe-polish can (C), pierced to push over the pencil end and rest upon the spool end, completes the top. The top is spun by twirling the pencil between the palms, in one direction, then the other alternately (Fig. 12).

Christmas Circus

Crepe paper offers any number of good opportunities for making Christmas gifts, especially for the children. Printed figures of wild, or of domestic animals, are cut out, to make menageries or familiar barnyard friends, that delight the youngsters. The pictures are pasted over stiff cardboard and then cut out, following the outline of the animal, but leaving a straight piece to provide a support.

Pretty Breakfast Caps

Every dear lady, young or old, has a right to expect that Santa Claus will bring her a pretty new breakfast cap. Three of this year's models, all easy to make, are shown in the picture and they employ ribbons, net laces and flowers, as usual.

The Christmas Candle

Every Christmas brings its new candle and lamp shades that do so much to make the house gay and please their recipients. Parchment, silk, ribbons and crepe paper are used for making these gifts. The lovely shade pictured is made of crepe paper.

Gift Bags of Ribbons

Plain satin, satin with pleat edges and handsome brocaded ribbons in great variety, or silks go to make up the lovely shopping and opera bags designed for the holidays. Mountings of metal or composition, to harmonize with the patters, and ornaments, including silk cord, beads, pendants and silk-covered forms, are all at hand to help in the finishing of these gifts.

The December (Christmas) number of Scribner's has rather more than the usual holiday flavor this year. There are several Christmas poems, and Henry van Dyke, in his department known as "Guide-Posts and Camp-Fires," writes delightfully of "Christmas Greens," recalling the old Yuletide customs of England, and asking the question, "Do you think the World War has spoiled Christmas?"—to which he emphatically replies in the negative.

ANNIVERSARY COLUMN

Again this week the anniversary column, the farm letter and other features are crowded out. After eight pages had been printed, another page "Ad" was received from Henry L. Kincaide & Co. and something had to lay over one week. The piano announcement, however, is of interest.

The general public are cordially invited to attend the third of the series of Public Open Forums next Sunday evening at 7 o'clock in the auditorium of Union church. The speaker is Prof. David D. Vaughan of Boston University, who comes with his message on: "The World-Sweep of Democracy."

No man upon the lecture platform has had a more genuine call than David D. Vaughan. He knows both books and men. For seven years he was newsboy on the streets of Chicago. He worked his way thru the Richard Crane Technical High school and Northwestern University. He was pastor of the parish back of the stockyards—the Upton Sinclair Jungle District, where his entire congregation were out in the big stock yards strike. Vaughan's message is forceful and fearless, uncompromising, yet charitable—not controlled by the dead hand of the past. Modern, progressive, broad, practical, logical, virile, interesting.

Don't fail to hear Vaughan, the newspapers have recently been full of him. Come and ask questions. These public forums are being given by the Union Men's club of Weymouth and Braintree. Special music.

The Lovell's Corner Improvement Association held a "mug social" in the Community Building Monday evening. Community singing and a duet by Miss Marion White and Mrs. David Hughes, accompanied by Mrs. Garold Kelso, were enjoyed. Charles Clough gave several recitations. The prize for guessing the largest number "mugs" correctly was won by Miss Alma Blanchard and Miss Helen Markarian. Games were played and a very enjoyable evening was spent by all. A good collection of mugs, plates and platters were brought as entrance fees.
—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Turner and daughter Jeanette and Oswald Charwood spent the holiday with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fish of North Attleboro.

Full Text of Town Meeting Act of Watertown

Now that the voters of Weymouth have authorized the Selectmen to petition the Legislature for a town meeting act similar to that of Watertown, the full text of the Watertown act will be of interest to the voters, men and women, who are not fully acquainted with its provisions. Chapter 265 of the Special Acts of the Legislature of 1919, adopted by the voters of Watertown, provides for precinct voting, limited town meetings, town meeting members, a referendum, and an annual moderator. The Gazette and Transcript prints it in full:

An Act to provide for precinct voting, limited town meetings, town meeting members, a referendum and an annual Moderator in the town of Watertown.

Whereas, it appears to the general court that the town of Watertown contains more than twelve thousand inhabitants, and that the majority of the inhabitants of the town, present and voting in a town meeting, duly warned and holden for the purpose, on the third day of April, nineteen hundred and nineteen, voted to instruct the Selectmen of the town to petition the general court for the enactment of the legislation herein contained, in accordance with Article II of the amendments to the constitution, therefore

Voting Precinct

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Section 1. Upon the acceptance of this act by the town of Watertown as hereinafter provided the Selectmen of the town shall forthwith divide the territory thereof into not less than five nor more than ten voting precincts, each of which shall be plainly designated, and shall contain not less than three hundred nor more than one thousand male voters. All precincts shall contain approximately an equal number of male voters. The precincts shall be so established as to consist of compact and contiguous territory, to be bounded, as far as possible, by the centre line of known streets and ways and by other well defined limits. Their boundaries shall be reviewed and, if need be, wholly or partly revised, by the Selectmen, in January, once in five years, or in January of any year when directed by a vote of the town meeting.

The Selectmen shall, within ten days after any establishment or revision of the precincts, file a report of their doings with the town clerk, the registrars of voters, and the assessors, with a map or maps or description of the precincts and the names and residences of the male voters therein. The Selectmen shall also cause to be posted in the town hall a map or maps or description of the precincts as established or revised from time to time, with the names and residences of the registered male voters therein; and they shall also cause to be posted in at least three public places in each precinct a map or description of that precinct, with the names and residences of the male voters therein. The division of the town into voting precincts and any revision of such precincts shall take effect upon the date of the filing of the report thereof by the Selectmen with the town clerk.

Whenever the precincts are established or revised, the town clerk shall forthwith give written notice thereof to the secretary of the commonwealth, stating the number and designation of the precincts. The provisions of chapter eight hundred and thirty-five of the acts of nineteen hundred and thirteen, and any amendments thereof, relating to precinct voting at elections, so far as the same are not inconsistent with this act, shall apply to all elections and primaries in the town upon the establishment of voting precincts as hereinbefore provided.

Town Meeting Members

Section 2. The male voters in every precinct shall, at the first annual town election held after the establishment of the precincts and at the first ensuing annual town election following any precinct revision and conformably to the laws relative to elections not inconsistent with this act, elect by ballot six per cent of the male voters in the precinct, other than the officers designated in section three of this act as town meeting members-at-large, such elected voters to be members of the town meeting for the term of one year, one of the term of two years and one of the term of three years. The term of the annual town meeting shall thereafter, except as otherwise provided herein, at each annual town election the male voters of each precinct in the town shall, in like manner, elect two per cent of their number to be town meeting members of the town for the term of three years, and shall at such election fill for the unexpired term or terms any vacancies then existing in the number of town meeting members in their respective precincts.

Upon every revision of the precincts, or of any of them, the terms of office of all town meeting members from every such revised precinct shall cease upon the election of their successors, and at the first ensuing annual town election there shall be an entirely new election of town meeting members in every precinct so revised, as well as in any new precinct or precincts established. The town clerk shall, after every election of town meeting members, forthwith notify each member by mail of his election.

Limited Town Meetings

Section 3. Any town meeting held under the provisions of this act, except as otherwise provided herein, shall, at and after the first annual election held under this act, be limited to the voters elected under section two together with the following, designated at town meeting members at large; namely, any member of the general court of the commonwealth from the town; the moderator, the town clerk, the selectmen, the town treasurer, the town counsel, the town collector of taxes, the town auditor, the chairman of the school committee, the chairman of the trustees of the public library, the chairman of the board of health, the chairman of the park commission, the chairman of the water commissioners, the tree warden, the chairman of the planning board, the chairman of the assessors of taxes, the chairman of the playground commission, and the members of the finance committee.

The town clerk shall notify the town meeting members of the time and place at which town meetings are to be held, the notices to be sent by mail at least seven days before the meeting. The town meeting members, as aforesaid, shall be the judges of the election, and qualification of their members. A majority of the town meeting members shall constitute a quorum for doing business; but a less

Mr. Garville entertained the audience with his magic and interesting tricks in a very clever manner, and everyone agreed he was the best magician they had ever seen.

Following the entertainment a sale of ice-cream was carried on, Miss M. M. Hunt being chairman of this committee. The whole affair proved to be a great success, and the ladies are to be congratulated on the large sum realized.

A Royal Thanksgiving Feast by R. Ray Baker

ALTHOUGH Mrs. Ralph Slocum was a determined, resourceful young woman, she was stumped. It seemed that she was destined soon to be a widow, if she had not already reached that stage in life's journey.

Yes, it was a gloomy Thanksgiving day, although the sun was shining blisteringly. Her husband had disappeared, and the chances were 100 to 1 against ever seeing him again.

She sat on the deck of the steam yacht Crystal and tried to reason a way out of the dilemma—a happy way out. One course would be to hoist anchor and steam away. But that would not be the happy way, because it would leave Ralph in the clutches of the cannibals.

The event that had brought her to distraction occurred the previous afternoon about 4 o'clock. They had just arrived at the island and Ralph had insisted on going ashore.

Margaret realized a sense of foreboding as her husband set off in the little boat with Samson Brown, one of the sailors.

Margaret saw her husband land and help Samson draw the boat where the waves could not touch it; then they both disappeared into the forest. She sat on the deck and watched and waited, still harassed by that feeling of foreboding.

The sun was a half circle on the horizon when she saw Samson stagger out from among the trees and push the small boat into the water, leaping in. This action seemed to take the seem practical, so she sat on deck and thought, and thought. "Perhaps Samson went crazy and dreamed it," she told herself. "Maybe Ralph will turn up all right. He's the most resourceful person in the world."

But the inactivity drove her nearly to distraction. Finally she told Joe to get ready and row her ashore. The others protested, saying she was taking her life in her hands. But she was determined.

"All right, ma'am," one of them said. "It's up to you. We'd be glad to go along and help, only the odds are too heavy."

Joe rowed her ashore and they followed a faint path into the woods. The underbrush was not so dense as it appeared from the deck of the yacht, and they made fair progress, presently arriving at a clearing. Here they paused, for the ground showed signs of a struggle, with numerous prints from bare feet.

She was kneeling to examine these prints, when Joe suddenly cried: "Look out!"

The next instant she and Joe were the center of a howling, cavoring vortex of black humanity. Their arms and feet were tied and they were carried into the forest.

Swung across the shoulders of a black man, Margaret gave herself up for lost; but she didn't care much.

"If Ralph's dead I don't want to live," she told herself, and hoped it would soon be over with. The only thing that made her shudder now was the thought of being served at the king's Thanksgiving feast.

After being carried about two miles through the jungle, the party emerged in an immense clearing dotted with bamboo huts, with an exceptionally large one in the center. The prisoners were placed in a hut on the outskirts and guards with spears stationed at the doors.

Presently the black man who had been the leader of the captors appeared, cut the thongs from their feet and surprised the prisoners with these words of English:

"Now we take you to king."

In a short time they were ushered into the largest of the huts, in which was a rudely constructed throne, about which were grouped several natives in fantastic costume, made of skins and feathers.

The king appeared through the door, walking with a Broadway stride. He mounted the throne with a majestic air and surveyed the captives. Margaret stared at him for a moment in astonishment, then threw herself at his feet, and clasped him in her arms.

"Ralph! Ralph!" she sobbed. "What can this—what does it all mean?" She stepped back down from the throne and looked up at him, wondering.

He was clad like the natives, only his attire was more fantastic and picturesque.

"It means," he said, simply, "that I pulled a few stunts in magic that showed the old king up and he lost his job—and I am now ruler of Kondo island. I had to either be a king or be eaten by one, and it didn't take one long to decide. I'm about to resign, though, as soon as we have our Thanksgiving dinner—and a royal one it is. It's in the next hut."

She grimaced. "Cannibal stew?" she inquired. "No, wild turkey. I ordered them prepared when messengers brought word that a white woman and man had been captured. Come to the royal feast—you and Joe—and we'll discuss a way of downsizing this kingdom."

PROCLAMATION INVOLVES WORK

It has been customary in recent years for the Department of State to draft each Thanksgiving proclamation.

After the draft has been O. K'd by the President it is handed to the State department's expert penman, who in his copper-plate chirography writes it upon a large sheet of excellent parchment, which is sent to the President for his signature, and then returned to the State department to be signed by the secretary of state.

Next it must be impressed with the great seal of the United States, whose custodian will refuse to place it even upon so important a document unless authorized to do so by a formal warrant signed by the President, for the use of the great seal or the possession of an impression thereof without the Chief Executive's written authority is a grave offense, punishable by law. Indeed, the great seal—which was made by a jeweler at a cost of $10,000 and which is kept locked in a great rosewood case—is the most sacred instrument used by the government.

Having had this hallowed cipher of the republic pressed into it, the new Thanksgiving proclamation is filed away in the State department archives, later to be bound in its chronological order, with other accumulated proclamations.

Uncle Sam takes all of these technical pains merely to retain the handsomely written proclamation as his own souvenir. But before the instrument has been filed away a typewritten copy is sent to the State department's official printer, who has a shop of his own in the basement of our foreign office. His printed copies are given to the newspapers or to anyone who wishes.

Each of the state governors must also be sent an exact copy, but the department's strict code of etiquette demands that these copies must not be printed. They are typewritten and signed by the President's and secretary of state's own hands. Each governor then seconds this move of the President in appointing the annual feast day of thanks and prayer and, in their turn, the mayors of cities now generally second the move of their governors.

By such indirect means does the prompting of the nation's thanks theoretically reach the people, who actually receive it directly from the President himself through that eliminator of red-tape delays—the daily newspaper. In some localities the bishops receive the proclamation from the governors and hand it down in circular form to the lesser clergy, who read it from their pulpits upon the Sabbath following its issuance. In parts of New England it is still the custom to read the proclamation from the pulpit on two successive Sundays.

These infinite pains are taken, despite the fact that there is nothing in the federal statute authorizing a President to set apart such a holy day. But the proclamations make the holiday legal.

Right Thanksgiving Spirit.

We once saw a little card tacked up before the eyes of a busy man. He could see it every time he raised his eyes from his desk. On it he had written: "Get your pleasure out of your work or you will never know what pleasure is." That attitude will help us to get the right Thanksgiving spirit into our hearts. Let's forget that we have pictured happiness in terms of idleness and sloth. It's just the other way. This Thanksgiving day will be a good time to get the new angle of vision.—Farmers' Guide.

Carry Thanksgiving Cheer.

Carry a little Thanksgiving cheer into some home less fortunate than your own between now and Thanksgiving. Besides the circle of relatives and intimate friends who are to be your guests on Thanksgiving, invite some lonely girl, too far from home to think of returning to the family festival. Make a happy Thanksgiving for others and you will not lack gladness.

BLESSINGS MORE THAN MATERIAL

In other times a Thanksgiving editorial was a motley of statistics and boastfulness. We had grown so many million bushels of grain; our cattle on the thousand hills had increased so many hundredfold; our clearing-house statistics had never been surpassed; our per capita wealth was the greatest in the world; indeed, our thankfulness was lost in the glorification of the gift.

We were like the people of whom the Prophet Habakkuk spoke, who had caught much fish in their nets and gathered them in their drags, "therefore they sacrifice unto their net, and burn incense unto their drag; because by them their portion is fat, and their meat plenteous." Of gratitude to a Giver, of thankful recognition of forces which we did not create, but without whose co-operation we should have been as nothing, there was less than ought to have been.

All this was due, of course, not so much to human ingratitude as to human thoughtlessness. To thank is to think. The farther back we think the farther back we thank. If our thought ceases with our own contribution to our welfare, our thanks cease with ourselves. If our appraisal stops with our material increase, our thanks become material and insensible change into boasting. We sacrifice unto our great industries and burn incense unto our skill, and there our homage rests.

But in this Thanksgiving day we have such incentive to thought as the world has never seen before, and the blessings which challenge us are such as do not lend themselves to material appraisal. The chief blessings of the day are spiritual; their very names put them a world apart from the things which are quoted on the market or measured in the scales of physical worth. Justice, Righteousness and Peace, these are the exalted values in which we feel our true riches to be, and for these the entire race of men, whether they keep Thanksgiving today or not, are most devoutly thankful.—Exchange.

NOVEMBER'S COME.

Hey, you swelled-up turkey feller! Struttin' round so big and proud, Pretty quick I guess you beller. Won't be goin' quite so loud. Say, I'd run and hide, I bet you, And I'd leave off eatin' some, Else the choppin' block 'll get you— Don't you know November's come?

Don't you know that Grandma's makin' Leads of mince and pumpkin pie? Don't you smell those goodies cookin'? Can't you see 'em? Where's your eyes?

Tell that rooster there that's crowing, Cute folks now are keepin' mum; They don't show how fat they're growing. When they know November's come.

"Gobble! gobble!" oh, no matter! Pretty quick you'll change your tune; You'll be dead and in a platter. And I'll gobble pretty soon. 'F I was you I'd stop my puffin.' And I'd look most awful glum— Hope they give you lots of stuffin'— Ain't you glad November's come? —Joseph C. Lincoln

CHINESE HAVE DAY OF THANKS

The moon feast is one of the most popular and widely spread of all the Chinese pagan festivals. It has many of the characteristics of the ancient moon-worship ceremonies of Syria and Phoenicia, and it comes as near to being a thanksgiving festival as any heathen feast could ever expect to be, celebrating the ingathering of the harvest. To the masses of the Chinese, however, there appears to be but a faint idea of genuine thanksgiving connected with this moon feast. It is simply the remnant of an ancient institution, coming down from the remotest antiquity as a meaningless act of nature worship. It is possible that in the beginning, among the early Chinese people, the moon festival may have been less pagan and more characterized by feelings of thankful rejoicing than it is at present. However that may be, no wiser choice could have been made by the missionaries in China toward establishing a genuine national Thanksgiving feast than the selection of the day of the popular moon feast.

The moon feast was first proclaimed a thanksgiving festival in 1906 at Wuchang, where the large church was filled with a well-ordered crowd of Chinese, celebrating for the first time the newly appointed thanksgiving day. The sacred building was beautifully adorned with offerings of staple articles of Chinese diet, like beans, rice, millet and other grains, not to speak of pomegranates, pears, apples, wine, salt and flour.

Wuchang is a great city of nearly a million inhabitants, situated far up the Yang-tse-Kiang, in the heart of China. Its central position, among the teeming myriads of heathen Chinese, renders it a good point for the spread of helpful and uplifting ideas and truths, and in view of the readiness of the Chinese at home to adopt the best things presented to them for their own good, it is expected that the old moon feast will be gradually adopted, in its newly baptized form, as the national thanksgiving day among the 2,000,000 or 3,000,000 of Chinese at present under the influence of Christianity, and in this way also gradually become the national thanksgiving day among the votaries of Buddhism, Confucianism, and Taoism, in the course of their emancipation from the grosser features of these time-honored religions.

It is neither sensible nor grateful to speak of teeming granaries, of increasing trade, of new mines, of oil, of iron or of gas as if these things were wealth in themselves. They are only wealth when man strikes the rock and its waters flow. And this man must be not the savage man who cares only for his own personal appetite. It must be man, the child of God, seeking a future better than today, determined to bring in a nobler age than that which he lives in.—Edward Everett Hale.

The Glad Old Days.

Ah, for the age of Colonial holiday, Oh, for the time when Thanksgiving was young! Don't you repine for the old way and jolly way. Tinkle of tankard and spurting of bung? Didn't the welkin resound with a jolly gay. Didn't the firelight vanquish the snow?

Don't you feel sore for the bright days of yore. Regard for the truth must elicit a NO. Those, to be sure, were the days of festivity. Days when they dared to put brandy in mince. Eating, however, was but one activity—

WEALTH WAITS THE GARNERING

To every man there will come his daily bread in answer to his daily prayer, though it come from the milling of wheat or be the salmon caught at the falls of the Spokane, without let or hindrance from any power of earth. If there is food in plenty in one region, as by the fall of an avalanche down a mountain, it will certainly seek consumption in another region. And this the American boy and girl owe to the good Providence and to the brave men who made this country one and have kept it one.

It is too much the blindness of our time to speak as if such a simple business as daily food came to us as a matter of course. There is, indeed, a careless habit in which Americans often speak.

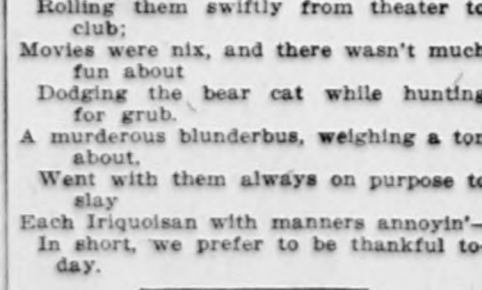

Fourth of July orators and street-corner braggers alike talk of the natural products of this country almost in the tone of the emigrants who expect to pick up a doubloon upon the sidewalk. One is tempted to ask such braggers why the country did not produce such wealth 100 years or 200 years ago.

Why was Dakota then a desert? Why were the hills of Alabama only a hiding place for a few thousand Creek Indians? Why did they not forge the iron under their feet? Why did not the Iroquois in western New York pick from their trees the peaches and the pears such as have been growing there this autumn?

The answer is this: All the wealth of America comes to her from the work of her men and women. The victory which yields it is their victory. It is the victory of spirit conquering matter. It comes in the daily miracle of daily life, where children of God, led by God, taught by God, alive in his life and fellow workers with him, carry out his designs and subdue the earth.

They are only wealth when man strikes the rock and its waters flow. And this man must be not the savage man who cares only for his own personal appetite. It must be man, the child of God, seeking a future better than today, determined to bring in a nobler age than that which he lives in.—Edward Everett Hale.

Somehow the time didn't make for long-liv-ity: Thanksgiving dinner went off with a whoop— For as Pa carved the bird a commotion was heard, And showers of arrows came down in the soup. Those were the times when they hadn't a rambout— Rolling them swiftly from theater to club; Movies were nix, and there wasn't much fun about Dodging the bear cat while hunting for grub. A murderous blunderbus, weighing a ton about. Went with them always on purpose to slay Each Iriquoisan with manners annoyin'— In short, we prefer to be thankful to-day.

Share Your Blessings. That is not true gratitude which does not seek to share its gifts with others. "Rejoice in the Lord always," says the Bible. Thanksgiving is a good day last ounce of strength, for he sank to the bottom of the skiff and lay there apparently helpless.

That was sufficient excuse for Margaret to sound an alarm that brought the crew of the Crystal stumbling and tumbling to the deck, where they at once comprehended the situation and set out in another boat to rescue Samson, whose craft was being tossed back on shore.

"What's happening? Where's Ralph?" breathed Margaret, as Samson was carried on deck, but he answered simply with a glassy stare and was taken to his bunk. He rolled his eyes queerly and opened and shut his hands repeatedly. Presently he seemed to get a grip on himself and managed to articulate:

"Cannibals got him."

While Margaret steeled herself against the wall, growing deathly pale, he went on, talking laboriously:

"We spent some time getting our bearings before he sent me to find a spring of water, while he went in a different direction to dig up some relic your father left two years ago. I found water and was starting after him on the dim path he had taken when I heard unearthly screeching from the direction he had taken. I hurried and soon arrived at the scene of trouble. About fifty black men were dancing round him, shouting and singing, and he was tied to tree with thongs. I knew I couldn't fight whole gang, so hid behind another tree and watched for opportunity to cut him loose. It didn't come, for they took him off into woods. I was scared almost to death and didn't know what to do, but thought it best to return to yacht and get help. Hope you don't think I did wrong."

Samson sank back in the bunk, sighed heavily and closed his eyes. All night he was delirious, and Margaret's condition was not much better. She realized the unfeasibility of sending the men ashore to fight the cannibals, especially at night, but was determined that some action be taken in the morning. When morning came, however, the crew refused to go—all except Joe Larson, the cook, who said he'd be willing to wade a river of blood to help Ralph.

"I think so. I dare say Ricardo hopes to take Sarros by surprise, bottle the city garrison up in the quarter and the government palace and there besiege them. Having secured nominal control of a seaport, he can import arms and ammunition; also he can recruit openly, and at his leisure hunt down the outlying garrisons. The Sarros crowd doesn't suspect his presence in Sobrante, and by a quick, savage stroke he should be able to jerk this one-horse government up by the heels in a jig time—particularly since the citizenry feel no loyalty toward the Sarros regime and are only kept in subjection through fear and lack of a leader. I'm going to play Ricardo to win, if he isn't killed in the opening row, for I'm certain he'll lead his men."

"I dare say he is greatly like his father—not afraid to die for his country," she replied presently. "I am glad to be here when he takes that risk."

"Oh, but you mustn't be here," Webster protested.

"Why?"

"Because there'll be street fighting—probably of a desperate character, and I understand your countrymen go rather war-mad and do things not sanctioned by The Hague tribunal. If there's a steamer in port at the time I'll put you aboard her until the issue is decided. I'm going to see Ricardo tomorrow night and learn the details of his plan of campaign; after that I'll be able to act intelligently."

Ricardo Rucy, with Dr. Pacheco and Colonel Caraveo, were engaged in consultation when Jack Webster, having left the Hotel Mateo via his bedroom window in order to avoid possible espionage and made his way to El Buen Amigo on foot, was announced by Mother Jenks. The three conspirators greeted him joyously, as indeed they should, for his loyal friendship had thus far been one of their principal bulwarks.

"Well," Webster inquired, after greeting them and carefully closing the door behind him, "here I am in Buenaventura, marking time and, like Mr. Micawber, waiting for something to turn up."

"You will not be required to wait long," Colonel Caraveo assured him. "Thanks to your kindly offices, the trap is already baited."

"Our friend, Rucy, has, since our first meeting, insisted on dispensing with my consent when using me to promote his enterprises, Colonel. Strange to say, I have been unable to berate him for his impudence. I was down at Leber's warehouse this afternoon. You have enough road-making tools consigned to me there to build a pretty fair highway to the gates of the government palace, I should say. I hope you have all pondered the result to me, an innocent bystander, if your enemies should take a notion to open one of those cases of shovels."

Colonel Caraveo favored him with a benignant smile. "You forget, my friend, that I am second in command in the intelligence department, and that during the absence of your particular friend, Raoul Sarros, in New Orleans, I am first in command. Since I already know what those cases contain, naturally I shall not take the trouble to investigate."

"Well, that's a comfort, Colonel. You have investigated your mining concession, Webster?" Ricardo Rucy asked.

"You bet."

"What did you find?"

"A couple of millions in sight." Ricardo shook his head slowly. "It is not in sight, old man," he reminded Webster. "Without our aid—and you cannot have our aid unless our revolution is successful, when you shall have it freely—your millions are, most positively, not in sight. If you want those millions, friend Webster, there is but one way to get them—and that is to close your eyes and play our game to the limit. I wonder if you'd go further—about $40,000 further, to be exact."

"I might, but I never go it blind for a wad like that. What's your trouble?"

"The individual in charge of the funds of the revolutionary junta in New Orleans was murdered last night; the funds were deposited to his credit as agent in a certain bank, and before the junta can obtain legal possession of them again the psychological time for their use will have passed."

"We have a steamer chartered, and 200 men, whose business it is to fight under any flag at $5 gold per day and no questions asked, are now marking time on the Isle of Pines, off the coast of Cuba, waiting for our steamer to call for them and land them, with their rifles and ammunition and six 75-millimeter field guns and some rapid-fire Maxim's, at San Bruno, some 15 miles up the coast from here."

"The guns and munitions are now in Tampa, having been shipped to our agent there on sight draft, with bill of lading attached; the steamer is chartered and en route to Tampa from Norfolk, Va., and we must pay the owners $10,000 the day she begins taking on her cargo, and $10,000 before she unloads it on lighters at San Bruno.

"We must also pay 200 men one month's pay in advance—that is, $30,000; we cannot meet this expense and still take up that sight draft now awaiting our attention in the bank at Tampa."

"In return for this favor to the provisional government of Sobrante, you shall have the note of the provisional government, signed by the provisional president, myself, and the provisional cabinet, Dr. Pacheco, Colonel Caraveo, and two other gentlemen whom you will meet in due course unless in the interim they should be killed. And as a bonus for saving this country from a brutal dictator, who is pillaging its resources for his personal profit, you shall have a deed of gift to that mining concession you and your friend, Geary, are so desirous of working; also the title shall be certified by the government and the Supreme court of Sobrante and absolutely secured to you against future aggression in the event that the new regime should be overthrown at some future date. Also you have my profound gratitude and that of my people."

"Tell me your plan of campaign," Webster suggested.

"In a secret rendezvous in the mountains I have 1,000 picked men—my father's veterans. They are armed with modern rifles and machetes. The nitrate company, which has been suffering from heavy export duties imposed by Sarros, has loaned me all the rolling stock of the railroad for one night. It will be mobilized at San Miguel de Padua by next Saturday night; my troops will arrive late the same afternoon and entrain at once."

"In the interim all telephone and telegraph communications with Buenaventura will be severed. The night previous our steamer will have discharged her cargo of men and munitions at San Bruno; a chain of outposts will at once be established and all communication with the capital will be shut off."

"On Saturday night, also, the Consolidated Fruit company's steamer, La Estrellita, will make port with 30 Americans in her staterooms. These men will be road-makers and miners imported by Mr. J. S. Webster, and in order to make certain that they will come, you have already ordered them by cable. We have arranged with the port doctor to give La Estrellita a clean bill of health the very night she arrives. Hence the ship's authorities will not be suspicious, I hope, when we remove our men after dark and house them in Leber's warehouse, where they will spend the night unpacking those spades, picks and shovels of yours and getting the factory grease off them."

"At 4 o'clock in the morning various citizens of Sobrante, with rebellion in their hearts, will begin to mobilize at Leber's warehouse, where they will be issued rifles and ammunition and where they will wait until the action is opened to the south by the detachment from San Bruno, which, having marched from San Bruno the night before, will have arrived outside the city, and will be awaiting the signal from me. I will attack from the west—cautiously."

"Now, there are 5,000 government troops in the city and in various cantonments on the outskirts. These cantonments are to be rushed and set afire; I figure that the confusion of our sudden attack will create a riot—particularly when I do something that isn't very popular as a war feature—down this way, and that is charge—and keep on coming."

"The government troops will start to fall back on the city, only to find themselves flanked by a fierce artillery fire from the San Bruno contingent; the troops from the arsenal, the guards at the palace and the Fifteenth regiment of infantry, now stationed at the Cuartel de Infanteria, next the government palace, will be dispatched post haste to repulse the attack, and 400 men, with the machine gun company waiting in Leber's warehouse, will promptly move upon them from the rear and capture the arsenal. There are a few thousand rifles and a lot of ammunition stored there; I miss my guess if, as soon as the news of its capture by the rebels spreads through the city (and I shall have men to spread it), I shall not have a few thousand volunteers eager to help overthrow Sarros."

"Once cut off from the arsenal and the palace, Sarros must fight his way out of the city in order to have the slightest chance to suppress the rebellion, for he will have no refuge in the city. And with the railroad and all the rolling stock in our hands, without a commissary for his troops, without a base of supplies, even should the government troops fight their way through, they leave the city in my hands and I'll recruit and arm my men and hunt them down like jack rabbits at my leisure. Once let the arsenal and the palace fall into my hands, once let me proclaim myself provisional president, once let the people know that Ricardo Rucy, the beloved, lives again in the person of his son, and I tell you, Webster, this country is saved. How do you like my plan of campaign?"

"It couldn't be any better if I had planned it myself. You might accept my suggestion and armor that little motor truck of mine. It arrived on yesterday's steamer."

"And some armor sheet steel with it—sheet steel already loop-holed for the barrels of the two machine guns it will carry!" Dr. Pacheco cried joyously.

"Have you provided a chauffeur, Doctor?"

"I have—likewise an armored sheet-steel closet for him to sit in while chauffeuring."

"How about that loan to the provisional government?" Ricardo demanded pointedly.

Webster did not hesitate. After all, what was money to him now? Billy had gone away, his hopes raised high, already a millionaire after the fashion of mining men, who are ever ready to count their chicks before they are hatched, provided only they see the eggs. Besides, there was Dolores. Full well Webster realized that Billy, tossed back once more into the jaws of the well-known wolf of poverty, would not have the courage upon his return to Sobrante to ask Dolores to share his poverty with him; should the revolution fail, Ricardo Rucy would be an outcast, a hunted man with a price on his head, and in no position to care for his sister, even should he survive long enough to know he had a sister. She would be alone in the world if he, John Stuart Webster, failed her now—more than ever she needed a man's strength and affection to help her navigate the tide-rips of life, for life to a woman, alone and unprotected and dependent upon her labor for the bread she must eat, must contain, at best, a full measure of terror and despair and loneliness. He pictured her through a grim professional of years of skimping and petty sacrifices—and all because he, John Stuart Webster, had hesitated to lend a dreamer and an idealist a paltry $40,000 without security.

No, there was no alternative. If his friendship for Billy was worth a sou, it was worth $40,000; if his silent, unrequited love for Dolores Rucy was worthy of her, no sacrifice on his part could be too great, provided it guaranteed her happiness.

"Rained again," he sighed. "This is only another of those numerous occasions when the tail goes with the hide. How soon do you want the money?"

Ricardo Luiz Rucy leaned forward and gazed very earnestly at John Stuart Webster. "Do you really trust me that much, my friend?" he asked feelingly. "Remember, I am asking you for $40,000 on faith."

"Old sport," John Stuart Webster answered, "you went aboard in Buenaventura harbor and took a chance among those big, liver-colored, hammer-headed sharks. And you did that because you had a cause you thought worth dying for. I never knew a man who had a cause that was worth dying for who would even espouse a cause worth swindling for. You win—only I want you to understand one thing, Ricardo: I'm not doing this for the sake of saving that mining concession the Sarros government gave my friend, Geary. I'm above doing a thing like this for money—for myself. It seems to me I must do it to guarantee the happiness of two people I love: My friend, Geary, and the girl he's going to marry. I reject your promissory note and your promise of a deed of gift for that concession, and accept only your gratitude. There are no strings to this loan, because it isn't a loan at all. It's a bet. If you lose, I'll help you get out of the country and absolve you of any indebtedness to me. However, if you should win, I know you'll reimburse me from the national treasury."

"And you do not desire a bonus?"

"Nothing that will cost the citizens of this country one penny of their heritage. I'm going to bet this money—but if, understand, not loan it. However, if you want to be a sport and grant me a little favor in return, you can."

"Fire away."

"After I give you this money, I don't want the doctor and the colonel to kiss me to show how grateful they are."

"You wonderful fellow! Jack Webster, if I had a sister I should want her to marry you."

"Show how little you'd think of your sister—staking her to a sentimental jackass. Shall I cable the money to New Orleans in the morning?"

"That will do very nicely."

"To whom shall I cable the money?"

"Send it to the Pinyuna National bank of New Orleans, with instructions to credit account No. 246, J. E. P., trustee. In this little game we are playing, my friend, it is safer to deal in numbers and initials rather than names. The local cable office leaks quite regularly."

"Very well, Ricardo, I'll attend to it first thing in the morning. Go to it and win, or there'll be several new faces whining around the devil, not the least of which will be mine. When you charge, remember you're charging."

ing for my $40,000—and go through with it. I worked rather hard for that $40,000, and if I must lose it, I do not want to do it in a half-hearted fight. Give me, at least, a bloody run for my money. I'll have a reserved seat somewhere watching the game."

"If you'll take my advice, you'll go aboard La Estrellita and stay there until the issue is decided. When the first gun is fired, it signals the open season on mining engineers who butt in on affairs of state."

"What! And me with a healthy bet down on the result? I hope I'm a better sport than that."

"You're incorrigible. Be careful, then, and don't get yourself potted by a stray bullet."

"Shall I see you fellows before the blow-off?"

"I scarcely think so."

"Then if you're through with me, I'll bid you all good-by and good luck. I'll have dinner with you in the palace Sunday evening."

"Taken."

"May I bring a guest?"

"By all means."

Webster shook hands with the trio and departed for his hotel. For the first time in many years he was heavy of heart, crushed. "Neddy Jerome was right," he soliloquized. "This is the last place on earth for me to have come to. I've made Neddy sore on me, and he's lost patience and put another man in the job he promised me; I've raised Billy's hopes sky-high and had to bet $40,000 to keep them there; I've been fool enough to fall in love with my friend's fiancée; I'm a human cat's paw, and the finest thing I can do now is to go out next Sunday morning with that machine gun company from Leber's warehouse and get killed."

CHAPTER XIV.

The following morning Webster informed Dolores fully of his interview with her brother and his conferees the night before, concealing from her only the fact that he was financing the revolution and his reasons for financing it. He was still depressed, and Dolores, observing his mood, forbore to intrude upon it. Accordingly she claimed the prerogative of her sex—a slight headache—and retreated to her room, in the privacy of which she was suddenly very much surprised to find herself weeping softly because John Stuart Webster was unhappy and didn't deserve to be.

It was impossible, however, for Webster long to remain impervious to the note of ridiculousness underlying the forthcoming tragic events. Here was a little 2x4 poverty-stricken hotbed of ignorance and intrigue calling itself a republic, a little stretch of country no larger than a couple of big western counties, about to indulge in the national pastime of civil war and unable to do it except by grace of an humble citizen of a sister republic!

Five or six thousand ignorant, ill-equipped, ill-drilled semi-brigands calling themselves soldiers, entrusted with the task of enabling one of their number to ride, horse and dog, over 1,000,000 people!

How farcical! No wonder Ricardo, with his northern viewpoint, approached his patriotic task with gaiety, almost with contempt. And when Webster recalled that the about-to-be-born provisional government had casually borrowed from him the sum of forty thousand dollars in order to turn the trick—borrowing it, forsooth, in much the same spirit as a commuter boarding his train without the necessary fare hails a neighbor and borrows ten cents—his natural optimism asserted itself and he chuckled as in fancy he heard himself telling the story to Neddy Jerome and being branded a liar for his pains.

"Well, I've had one comfort ever since I first saw that girl," he reflected philosophically. "While I've never been so unhappy in all my life before, or had to tear my soul out by the roots so often, things have been coming my way so fast from other directions that I haven't had much opportunity to dwell on the matter, and for these compensating offsets, good Lord, I thank Thee."

He was John Stuart Webster again when Dolores saw him next; during the succeeding days his mood of cheerfulness and devil-may-care indifference never left him. And throughout that period of marking time Dolores was much in his society, a condition which he told himself was not to his liking but which, nevertheless, he could not obviate without seeming indifferent to her happiness. And to permit his friend's fiancée to languish in loneliness and heart-break did not appear to John Stuart Webster as the part of a true friend or a courtly gentleman—and he remembered that she had once called him that.

They rode together in the cool of the morning; they drove together on the Malecon in the cool of the evening; chaperoned by Don Juan Cafetero and a grinning Sobrantean, they went shark fishing in Leber's launch; they played dominoes together; they discussed, throughout the long, lazy, quiet afternoons, when the remainder of their world retired for the siesta, books, art, men, women, and things.

And not once, throughout two weeks of camaraderie, did the heart-racked Webster forget for a single instant that he was the new friend, destined to become the old friend; never, to the girl's watchful eyes, did he betray the slightest disposition to establish their friendly relations on a closer basis.

Thus did the arrival of The Day find them. Toward sunset they rode out together along the bay shore and noted far out to sea the smear of smoke that marked the approach of La Estrellita—on schedule time.

"You will go aboard her tonight," Webster said very quietly to Dolores. "And you?"

"I shall go aboard with you. I have arranged with Don Juan for him to stay ashore and to come out in Leber's launch with the first reliable news of the conflict. If Ricardo wins the city, he wins the revolution, and you and I will then go ashore—to dine with him in the palace. If he loses the city, he loses the revolution, and we will both do well to remain aboard La Estrellita."

"And in that event, what will become of my brother?"

"I do not know; I forgot to ask him, but if he survives, I imagine he'll have sense enough to know he's whipped and will retreat on San Bruno, fighting a rear guard action, embark aboard the steamer that brought his men there, and escape."

"I'm worried about Mother Jenks."

"I have asked Mother Jenks to dine with us at 7:30 this evening, and have ordered a carriage to call for her. When she comes I'll tell her everything; then, if she wishes to stay ashore, let her. She's been through more than one such fracas and doesn't mind them at all, I dare say."

And in this Webster was right. Mother Jenks listened in profound silence, nodding her approval, as Webster related to her the story of the advent in the country of Ricardo Rucy and his plans, but without revealing the identity of Andrew Bowers.

At the conclusion of his recital the old publican merely said: "Gor' bl' me!"

"After a silence she added: "My sainted 'Enry used to s'y the proper hods for a white man in a bally row of this nature was 40 to 1. Gor', but how my sainted 'Enry would henjoy bein' 'ere this night to 'elp with the guns." She sighed.

"How about a little bottle of wine to drink peace to your sainted 'Enry and luck to The Cause?" Webster suggested.

"That's wot I calls talkin'," Mother Jenks responded promptly, and Webster, gazing reflectively at the old lady's beard, wondered why she had not been born a man.

Dolores, fearful for her benefactor's safety, urged Mother Jenks to accompany them out aboard La Estrellita, but the old dame indignantly refused, and when pressed for a reason gave it with the utmost frankness: "They'll be tykin' Sarros, an' when they tyke 'im they'll back him ag'in the same wall be backed my sainted 'Enry and your father against, my dear. I've a notion that your father's son'll let Mrs. Col. 'Enry Jenks come to the party."

Improved Household Bell.
Three different signal tones from an electric bell of ordinary appearance, calling the householder to the front, rear, or side door, are now made possible by the ingenious device of an Ohio manufacturer. The two electromagnetic coils of the bell have separate armatures, one of which carries the bell clapper, while the other constitutes a buzzer.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

WEYMOUTH A LEADER

The November issue of the Norfolk County Agricultural and Home Making Bulletin, has two paragraphs of local interest:

"The summer canning season is over and the fall exhibits show a very good number who have exhibited. We hope that all who have gone this far will complete the club requirement. Weymouth, with a total enrollment of 40, has completed 100% with the record sheets and stories in.

"Norfolk County was not fortunate enough to send a demonstration team to the Eastern States Exposition, but products went, if boys and girls didn't. Weymouth sent a Canning Club exhibit which took first prize. This included the menus made out and canned by individuals, a collection of jars, jams, jellies, pickles and apple products. Such slogans as: "What shall we have for dinner?" "A whole dinner in jars." "We believe in community service." "We can for the Weymouth Hospital." "A club of leaders" and others added to the interest. A booklet called "Chips from the Weymouth Canning Log Book" told of club history and records. Many people stopped to read the signs, examine jars and ask questions. Favorable comments were overheard on all sides and even the judge remarked that she couldn't find fault with a single jar. That speaks well for Miss Brass's work in Weymouth, doesn't it?"

OLD-TIME PICTURES

The Weymouth Historical Society desires pictures of old-time places and notable people for insertion in the forthcoming history of the town, and if any one has such material they will confer a favor by sending same to the Society at South Weymouth. This will be carefully preserved and returned to the owner.

DON'T RISK NEGLIGENCE

Don't neglect a constant backache, sharp, darting pains or urinary disorders. The danger of dropsy or Bright's disease is too serious to ignore. Use Doan's Kidney Pills as have your friends and neighbors. Ask your neighbor! An East Weymouth case.
B. O. Raymond, 16 Cottage St., says "A couple of years ago kidney complaint came on me. Mornings I felt tired and achy and my back pained me. When I stooped over to put on my shoes or got up from a chair, I would have a catch in my back. For a time I was unable to do much work or even get around because of the weakness in my back. The kidney secretions passed irregularly and made me get up two or three times every night. They were burning, too, and contained a brick-dust-like sediment. I had read of Doan's Kidney Pills so I got some. The first box made me feel much better so I continued using them. I was soon rid of the backache and my kidneys were acting as they should."
Two years later, Mr. Raymond said: "I think as much of Doan's Kidney Pills as ever. I use a few occasionally and they regulate my kidneys."

MAJESTIC THEATRE
The attraction at the Majestic Theatre, Boston opening Monday evening, Nov. 29, and continuing for a limited engagement will be E. Ray Goetz's new musical review of revues "Vogues and Vanities", prior to its engagement at one of New York's principal theatres. This piece described as an intimate revue, has been written by Glen MacDonough and E. Ray Goetz, who were jointly responsible last season for the American version of the great European success, "As You Were" which played through out the year at the Central Theatre, New York, under the management of Mr. Goetz, starring Sam Bernard and Irene Bordoni, previous to its present long run at the Wilbur Theatre. It is a frank paraphrase of the Parisian and London revues which have been so successful in those European capitals for several years, and in which satire is woven through the dialogue in a series of skits and parodies on other plays and types of plays, as well as international eccentricities, fads and foibles.

TREMONT THEATRE
"The Sweetheart Shop", a musical comedy that has attained pronounced success in New York and Chicago for the past seven months, will be the attraction at the Tremont next Monday night. The book and lyrics are by Anne Caldwell, who has to her credit many notable successes, including "The Night Boat" and all of the Fred Stone vehicles of the past four seasons. The music is by Dr. Hugo Felix, whose charming "Madame Sherry" and melodious "Pom Pom" are well remembered. There is a real and entertaining story told in "The Sweetheart Shop", which is an establishment for the furtherance of matrimonial bliss, a sort of marriage mart where would-be husbands and wives can meet, and where a twelve-month guarantee of the proper department of the contracting parties in each wedding consummated adds stability to the great adventure. It is all properly light, humorous and novel in situations enlivened with plenty of hilarious, refreshing and alluring melodies.

QUINCY THEATRE
The play for Thanksgiving, Friday and Saturday as announced has broken all records in regard to theatre local attractions and presents a new era in theatre attendance of the people of Quincy. There are a few tickets left for sale and the public is advised to reserve them at once by telephoning Quincy 1710. The play for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday opens up with the famous play entitled "The Heart of the Blue Ridge." Family feuds do not always end happily. Some of them are far from ever "coming out right", but in "Heart of the Blue Ridge" the weekend offering of the Al Luttinger Stock Co. there is the happiest kind of an ending. This desirable conclusion comes, however, only after the most spirited kind of action in which one young man is killed and the other members of the families that are parties to the quarrel are continually threatened with death.
Kentucky has always been deemed a land of romance. There brave men and beautiful women make their home. There, too, love runs deeper and hate waxes hotter than in any other state perhaps. It is amid the hills of Kentucky that the action of "Heart of the Blue Ridge" takes place. For the most part the story centers around Jim Leighton (Al Luttinger) and Bessie Boon (Ann Kingsley). Their families, when the two were kiddies, were friends. Then there came one of those seemingly trivial things that brought bad blood between them.
It became a case of "Shoot at Sight" with the man quickest on the draw coming off the victor. Yet notwithstanding this animosity Jim continued his love for Bessie and she though refusing to admit it, still loved him. There came a time when they were married and a youngster was born—but still the old wound did not heal among the other members of the family. The Christmas season approached and then, well it is hardly fair to tell the extremely beautiful ending the play has. Suffice it to say that the concluding picture is one of the most powerful dramatically ever offered on any stage.
Mr. Luttinger and Miss Kingsley most ably carry off the work of difficult parts in which they are cast. There are many difficult scenes, but these are all worked up in a way that proves them the high-grade actors that they are.
The feature picture for the first 3 days is the picture entitled: "The Fighting Chance" written by Robert W. Chambers and is produced by Paramount. The play for Thursday, Friday and Saturday is the great play entitled: "The Underworld", and is considered one of the most powerful plays of the underworld and based on a clerk in the Morris Banking House. Incidentally he is the heavy in the underworld. The play itself is one of the most noted melodramas ever given on the American stage.
The feature picture for the last half is Billie Burke in "Awy Goes Prudence." An unusually large crowd is expected to witness these two performances, as the advance sale has all

FROM FORTY-FIVE TO SIXTY

A Word of Help to Women of Middle Age From Mrs. Raney.

Morse, Okla.—"When I was 45 years old Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound carried me through the critical period of the Change of Life in safety. I am over 60 and have raised a family of eight children and am in fine health. My daughter and daughters-in-law recommend your Vegetable Compound and I still take it occasionally myself. You are at liberty to use my name if you wish."—Mrs. ALICE RANEY, Morse, Oklahoma.

Change of Life is one of the most critical periods of a woman's existence. This good old-fashioned root and herb remedy may be relied upon to overcome the distressing symptoms which accompany it and women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to carry women so successfully through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

"Home, James!"

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD
(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Old Mrs. Gardner, autocratic arbiter of the social destinies of three counties and a woman of tremendous will, bent upon her niece a frown of disapproval. "Virginia," she said crisply, "you are seeing altogether too much of that—that impetuous Mr. Barrows—and not enough of Courtney Van Breck."

Virginia, perched on the arm of the chair opposite her aunt's, regarded that lady thoughtfully. So nothing could escape those eagle eyes! "What are your objections to that—that Mr. Barrows, Aunt Julia?" she asked quietly.

"No money!" snapped her aunt. "How could a girl like you, my dear Virginia, think of marrying a man with no money? Especially when Courtney is ready to lay his millions at your feet?"

Virginia slipped down from the chair. "It would be silly, wouldn't it?" she acquiesced and, as though borne on her aunt's smile of satisfaction, went slowly from the room.

Beyond the reach of her aunt's eyes, Virginia leaned against one of the fluted pillars of the hall and drew a deep breath. Money—money—money! That was all she ever heard.

"Love in a Cottage!" She Sniffed.

Brown. Then she had been courted by a fairly well-to-do but unprosperous man much older than herself. She had married him and almost simultaneously he had made a fortune and died. His wife reaped the benefit.

When Virginia's parents, sudden victims of an epidemic, had died within three days of each other, a sense of duty led her aunt to have the tiny baby carried to the stately residence on Ridgely road, and there Virginia had grown up.

"After all she's done for me I just can't disregard her wishes," the girl told herself forlornly. "But I don't want Billy and his five dollars a column!"

Yet three days later Billy, white-lipped, received his answer. "She's given me everything," faltered Virginia.

Billy looked appraisingly at the Rubens above the mantel, at the tea cabinet with its priceless objects d'art, at the velvet hangings through which one glimpsed tiled vistas. Then he shook his head. "A great deal, I admit," he said, "but not quite everything." The next moment he was gone.

Virginia stood as he had left her, longing to run after him and reiterate how little the money meant to her, how it had come to seem a dreadful bogey in her life detaching her actions, how—slowly she turned upstairs to her aunt's boudoir to enter into consultation over the making of her trousseau.

For twenty-four hours before she said, "No," to Billy, she had said, "Yes," to Courtney Van Breck.

Only, if she couldn't have Billy, Courtney did as well as any other. He was older than she, but she had always known him. A few years ago he had been engaged to a woman who had quite suddenly and inexplicably married somebody else. And Virginia fancied that, on the whole, he cared no more for her than she did for him. It was evidently for them both just a "suitable marriage."

Three days before the wedding, Virginia begged a respite from dinner dances and bridal luncheons, pleading the need for rest to look her best on the great day. Aunt Julia finally yielded and packed Virginia off to a quiet little inn in the Berkshires with the elderly woman who acted as maid. She even agreed not to tell Courtney of her niece's "hiding place," figuring, perhaps, that it was a girlish whim more easy to gratify than most.

Quiet the inn in the Berkshires certainly was at that time of the season—but not so utterly forsaken that occasional motoring parties did not roll up the winding, gravelled drive for quiet chicken dinners in its famous grill.

Such a party arrived one day as Virginia came down the stairs. Face to face, she met them—Courtney and the woman to whom he had once been engaged—and the tender regard of the glance which Virginia interrupted, left no doubt of the feeling he still entertained.

Virginia stood stock still. For a minute the silence thudded. Then, with an unuttered but heart-felt "Thank heaven!" on her lips, the girl turned away, her head high.

Three months later the Gardner limousine drove slowly out of the ivy-covered gateway of the Gardner residence on Ridgely road. Severely erect on the cushioned seat sat an uncompromising figure who looked askance through the window as the scenery unrolled—first elm-shaded drives, then pavements, then a succession of irregular streets blocked out with nondescript houses.

In front of one of these the machine came slowly to a stop. "I shall be here only a few minutes," the lady said as she alighted. "Then you may drive to Mrs. Pritchard's."

She walked up the irregular path marked with borders of candytuft. "Love in a cottage!" she sniffed.

At that instant the door was flung open. "Auntie!" cried a radiant Virginia with no air of penitence whatever. "Oh, Billy!"—this to depths within. "Aunt Julia has come to see us!"

Under the jubilant welcome of the tall, smiling-eyed man and the effervescing chattering Virginia, Aunt Julia thawed a bit. How well the girl was looking!

"And this is our kitchen," cried Virginia, who was doing the honors. "At least, we call it a kitchen because it has a sink. And this is the den and very important because it is where Billy practices the wonderful editorial he is going to write some day. Isn't it so, Billy? You know he isn't with the 'Courier' now. He's got a much better position with the 'Star.' And now you must have some tea. Get the lemon in the ice box, dear, and slice it thin."

An hour later, Mrs. Julia Gardner again sat back in her richly upholstered car. She had missed her fitting and the meeting of the Juvenile Uplift Committee. But there was still time for Mrs. Delabarre's musicale and a moment at the Carillon tea. Then home and dinner and the opera and—after all, what did she do with life but go on—and on—and on—

She leaned forward to the speaking-tube, wearily. "Home, James," she said.

Provincialisms. In the provincial language of Rhode Island are many humorous expressions, one of which is the following paraphrase of a familiar adage: "There's many a slip between the upper lip and the dipper."

Deception is characterized by the idioms, "Skullduggery," "Shenanigan" and "horns-woggle." To attack an object forcibly is to go at it "full chisel" or "hell bent for election" and to be thrifty is to be "forehanded." If one is indisposed, it is possible that his liver may be "outer kilter" and one who is lazy is a "doltle-coot."

A respected citizen of a hamlet about a dozen miles from Providence commented on the sudden death of his helpmeet recently as follows: "She wan't very rugged and she et when she was het, but I guess the gals will ruggle along somehow."

THE HONEYMOON

By MARGARET A. SWEENEY.
(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"I'll not pay it—you're profiteering!" Philip Crosby was angry. "I'll get out, you can have your house, you think—"

The door slammed and Crosby stood locking through the glass at his landlord's disappearing back.

It was the Crosbys' wedding anniversary, and every year, for 15 years, Philip Crosby had celebrated the event by closing his office and taking Mrs. Crosby on a one-day "honeymoon."

This tiff with his landlord was annoying. It would upset Helen, he reflected, as he turned from the door and climbed the stairs to his wife's room.

"That was Haskins for the rent," he told her, "and he said that it would be $10 more after this month."

Mrs. Crosby, standing before her mirror, adjusting her new fall hat, was silent.

Philip Crosby's attention seemed suddenly attracted to the rug at his feet. He had caught the meaning of his wife's silence. He remembered how often—how very often—she had pleaded with him to buy a house—"a real home, Philip, a roof we can call our own." Her words had come back to him now, "a few hundred or a thousand down, Philip, and the rest as rent, and we—we can get along without a car, but we must have our own roof."

And he remembered, too, that after the arrival of the new car Helen never spoke to him again about buying a house. The subject had become taboo.

"I am ready, Philip," Crosby was brought back from his reminiscent mood by the touch of his wife's hand upon his shoulder.

"I was just wishing, Helen, that—that I had taken your advice—and—and not put so much money into that car—I—I don't blame you to—to be sore about it and—"

"Well, we won't talk about it today, Philip," Mrs. Crosby had begun to do something to her husband's tie, "we'll go along on our 'honeymoon' and forget our troubles."

Philip Crosby's face brightened, and he stooped and kissed the patient little woman who had so loyally shared his ups and downs—mostly downs, for Philip Crosby was not the kind of a man that amasses money.

"Where are you going to take me, Philip?" Helen Crosby asked as they went downstairs.

"Anywhere you say, Helen; the car is all ready. I had just finished cleaning it when old Skindint Haskins came along—we must find a house that has a garage—"

"I do wish that motorcars were built big enough to—to keep house in—it would solve the housing problem for many families," Mrs. Crosby remarked from the open doorway as she surveyed the graceful lines of the big gray car, "and—just think—some of them cost as much as a comfortable house—and their upkeep is—"

"Well, we won't talk about it today, Helen," Philip Crosby chuckled as his wife stepped into the car, "we'll go along on our 'honeymoon' and forget our troubles."

Helen Crosby laughed—they laughed easily, these two, who were all and all to each other. Her husband took his place beside her and the big car swung out into the clear September sunshine.

Came Out of Army Like a New Man

Hudson, N. Y.—“In the year 1863 my uncle, Robert Steekles, enlisted in the army and was sent South. Sleeping on the wet ground he contracted a heavy cold. He got so bad he was discharged, and came home a total wreck. He coughed night and day—could not sleep. I thought he would die. The doctors did him no good. I had always used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for bad coughs and for stomach trouble with good results so I bought a bottle and had my uncle use it. In four days after starting to use it he said to me, 'Billie there is a lump in my throat and I don't cough so much.' I told him the medicine was helping him and in a few days the lump would be gone. In six days his coughing was just about over. He used three bottles of the 'Discovery' and came out like a new man—appetite and digestion in fine shape. He was the wonder of all the neighbors, as they surely thought he had consumption.”

“My wife used Dr. Pierce's Compound Extract of Smart-Weed for quinsy sore throat. It is fine for gargle. Dr. Pierce's remedies are safe to use and save many doctors' bills.”—W. H. RIGHTMYER.

York, N.Y.—“For some length of time I have been troubled with my liver and indigestion but have received so much benefit from using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery that my health is very much improved. I would recommend this remedy to all who are troubled in the same way. I am satisfied that it will do everything claimed for it.”—JAMES MCGREGOR.

AMERICAN SHOOTERS PROVE SUPERIORITY

Records Made in Olympic Games Over Other Nations.

Riflemen From This Country Won Every Event but One and in That They Tied for First Honors— Won Two Second Places.

United States riflemen in the Olympic games in Belgium scored 43 points. The rifle shots representing 14 other nations scored only 47 points. This proves conclusively the superiority of American marksmen.

American riflemen won every event but one, and in that one they tied for first place. Not only that, but they won two second places and three third places and in one event they won first, second and third—and this against the pick of the riflemen of the world.

The trapshooters representing Uncle Sam showed representatives of Europe in the Olympic games how scatterguns should be used, when they won the first five places in the trap-shooting championship, and every man on the American team was higher than the highest shooter on any other team in the team competition.

Then the rifle shooters did the rest. Commander Osburn won the individual championship at 300 meters and Lieutenant Spooner won the championship at 600 meters. Sergeant Fisher of the Marines won the individual championship with all kinds of firearms. The free-for-all style of shooting, and the team matches at 300 and 600 meters were all won by the United States teams. The small-bore championship was also won by the United States, and N. A. Neusslein, a civilian of Washington, won the small-bore individual championship.

C., after having been in the teaching department of the art for more than thirty-five years. In those four clubs he taught and coached more than 114 amateur champs, more than 20 amateur champions of America, and three world's champions.

NO RIBS TO SPARE

All other unplayable lies on a golf course appear as nothing when contrasted with a new story emanating from the Denver Country club. A member of a foursome playing the sixth hole made a shot from the fairway in behind a bunker, but pulled his ball in the general direction of the seventh tee. The sphere bounded, struck a caddy on the head, then caromed over L. B. Bromfield, who was on the tee ready to drive, and landed in the shirt pocket of R. P. Barry, who was standing beside the tee. A fine argument resulted over the manner of playing the next shot. Several members in the group proposed that they lay Barry down with his head toward the hole and let the owner play his ball out of the pocket as best he could. Barry couldn't see the wisdom of this proposal from any angle, his principal objection being that he had no extra ribs to spare.

HORWEEN LAUDS M'MILLIN

That the Harvard captain and coaches realized the really remarkable spirit and play of the Center eleven was demonstrated by a scene which took place immediately after the game, when Captain Horween of the winning eleven went up to Capt. Alvin McMillin and, congratulating him upon his team and wonderful individual play, offered the ball used in the game as a trophy.

McMillin, dust covered and well nigh exhausted by his efforts personally to wrest victory from the Crimson, burst into tears and refused the ball, with the remark that "to the victor belongs the spoils."

The Harvard leader endeavored to persuade McMillin to accept the ball with the statement: "You deserve it. You are the greatest back-field player I ever saw."

More Wins But—

Trusty, a six-year-old plover, won eleven races last year while Man o' War copped but nine. But here's the difference: Trusty's earnings were $6,884, and the wonder horse picked up $83,325 in change.

Might Have Known That Request for Raise in Salary Would Not Give Boss Satisfaction.

A labor leader was defending strikes.

"How could men get better pay without striking for it?" he said to a New York reporter. "By asking for it, do you think?"

"I once knew a young bookkeeper who went to his boss and asked for a dollar raise. The boss flew into a terrible passion.

"But," faltered the bookkeeper, "there is nothing unreasonable, sir, in my request. Don't you remember promising me a raise after I'd been with you a year?"

"Yes," hissed the boss, "but don't you remember that I made this raise conditional on your giving me every satisfaction?"

"Oh, dear! Haven't I satisfied you, sir?" said the young bookkeeper, pitifully.

"Satisfied me?" yelled the boss, "do you think you are satisfying me when you ask me for a raise?"

Small Wonder That in This Bombastic Age He Created Something of a Sensation.
