Raft of Red river .- Lieut. Seawell, of the U. 8. Engineer Corps, has been dilligently employed, with about 100 hands, since some time in August last, in clearing out a passage through and round the Raft of Red rived, pursuant to an act of Congress, appropriating $25,000 for the accomplishment of that all-important and desira-ble object. We understand he has thus far, prosecuted the work with much success, and expresses a confident hope of effecting a safe and convenient passage for boats around the Raft, before next spring. The removal of the dangerous impediments which now obstruct the navigation of Red river, is an object of the highest importance to the people of the southern section of this Territory. It is a work which must cost great labor and expense, but we do not despair of seeing it accomplished.

Col. M. Arbuckle, Commanding Officer at Cantonment Gibson, arrived in this place on Saturday evening last.

We are happy to learn from him, that the U. 8. troops under his command have enjoyed very good health during the past summer and autum. The various tribes of Indians in that quarter continue to remain in a state of peace and quietness, and there is no reason to apprehend any speedy interruption in the harmony which subs-

The Creeks have displayed a degree of industry during the past season, which would not be discreditable to a white population of the same extent. They have raised a plentiful supply of corn for their own consumption, and it is supposed have a surplus of at least 50,000 or 60,000 bushels to dispose of to the Government, for the subsistence of such new emigrants as may be sent on during the ensuing winter and spring. This command was, however, not obeyed, and the effusion of blood was avoided. According to the information of a correspondent, the General commanding the troops in the palace, appeared at the gate, and requested the besiegers to state their demands. The demands were, that the pieces of artillery ointed against the inhabitants should be removed that his serene highness would acknowledge the Chambers; and that he would endeavour to escape to England, to spend the treasures of his subjects among foreigners. The General after taking his masters instructions, returned with an answer that the Duke had given his assent to thes conditions of peace, and the crowd dispersed for the night. On Tuesday morning week, the city magistracy, alarmed at the state of things, assembled the citizens, and sent a deputation to receive the Duke's commands, in accordance with he promises which he made the previous evening. His serene Highness had now, however, recov ered his confidence, and refused to remove the cannon. The deputation forsceing the chance of a conflict in the streets between the military and the people, requested arms, and promised to maintain order along with the troop.
