TREADHAVEN CREEK, in the E. part of Maryland, flows through Talbot county, and communicates with the mouth or estuary of Choptank river. It is navigable at high tide to Easton, about 12 miles.

TREDFYFFRIN, a township of Chester co., Pennsylvania, about 18 miles N. W. by W. from Philadelphia, intersected by the Philadelphia and Columbia railroad. Population, 127.

TREBLEVILLE, a post-office of Monroe co., Pennsylvania.

TREICHLERSVILLE, a small post-village of Lehigh co., Pennsylvania, on the road leading from Allentown to Mauch Chunk.

TREMAINVILLE, a post-office of Lucas co., Ohio.

TREMONT, a post-office of Hancock co., Me.

TREMONT, a post-township in the S. W. part of Schuylkill co., Pennsylvania. Population, 1191.

TREMONT, a thriving post-village in the above township, 15 miles W. S. W. from Pottsville. It is surrounded by a hilly region, which contains abundance of anthracite coal, and the inhabitants of the village are mostly employed in the coal business. Tremont has grown up since 1844. The Mine Hill railroad connects it with the Reading railroad, at Schuylkill Haven. Population in 1853, about 1000.

TREMONT, a post-office of Union co., Ark.

TREMONT, a post-village of Clarke co., Ohio, 50 miles W. from Columbus.

TREMONT, a thriving post-village, capital of Tazewell co., Illinois, is pleasantly situated on a prairie, 57 miles N. by E. from Springfield. It contains a court house, and several churches.

TREMONT, a township in Buchanan co., Missouri. Population, 882.

TREMPALEAU, a small river of Wisconsin, rises in La Crosse co., and flows into the Mississippi.

TREMPALEAU, a post-office of La Crosse co., Wisconsin.

TRENT, a small river of North Carolina, which rises in Lenoir co., and flows eastward, until it falls into the Neuse at Newbern.

TRENTON, a township in Hancock co., Maine, at the head of Frenchman's bay, 75 miles E. from Augusta. Population, 1205.

TRENTON, a post-township of Oneida co., New York, 12 miles N. from Utica. It contains Trenton Falls, on West Canada creek. Population, 3540.

TRENTON, a city, capital of New Jersey, and seat of justice of Mercer county, is situated on the left bank of the Delaware, at the head of steamboat navigation, 30 miles N. E. from Philadelphia, and 57 miles S. W. from New York. Lat. 40° 14' N., lon. 74° 46' 30" W. The Assunpink creek separates the city proper from South Trenton, which has several thousand inhabitants. The city is regularly planned, and well built, on a moderately uneven surface. Many of the finest residences are situated on State street, which runs parallel with the river, and is crossed at right angles by Main street, the principal thoroughfare of business. The capitol, fronting on State street, is a handsome stone building, 100 feet by 60, commanding a fine view of the river in both directions. The county court house, in South Trenton, is built of stuccoed brick, with a portico in the Grecian style. Trenton is the seat of the State Lunatic Asylum, founded in 1848, and of the State Penitentiary. The former is a well-conducted institution, situated 2 or 3 miles above the city, and has about 200 patients. The number of prisoners in the penitentiary, January 1, 1852, was 207. The city is lighted with gas. It contains a town hall, a state library, 2 banks, with an aggregate capital of $310,000, and 17 churches, viz. 4 Presbyterian, 4 Methodist, 2 Baptist, 2 Episcopal, 2 Friends, 1 Lutheran, and 2 Roman Catholic. Four newspapers are published here, two of which are issued daily. A substantial covered bridge, 1100 feet in length, crosses the Delaware at this place. The Delaware and Raritan canal passes through the town, connecting it with New York and Philadelphia. The following railroads meet at this point:—The Philadelphia and Trenton; the Camden and Amboy branch, leading to New York; and the Belvidere and Delaware, which, when finished, will extend northward along the river, about 60 miles, to Belvidere. The Trenton Branch railroad, 6 miles long, connects with the Camden and Amboy railroad at Bordentown. Trenton possesses abundant water-power, and is becoming one of the first manufacturing towns of the state. It contains 4 paper mills, several iron foundries, a large manufactory of locomotives, 1 axe factory, 2 wire factories, 2 rolling mills, one of which carries on more extensive operations than any other in the state, a number of flouring mills and saw mills, and various other establishments. The former villages of Bloomsbury, Lambertson, and Mill Hill have been incorporated with the borough of South Trenton. The vicinity of Trenton was settled by Phineas Pemberton and others about the year 1680, and the present name was given about 1720, in honor of Colonel William Trent, speaker of the house of assembly. The place was selected as the capital of New Jersey in 1790, and incorporated in 1792. On December 26th, 1777, was fought the battle of Trenton, at which General Washington defeated the enemy, and took 1000 Hessians prisoners. Population in 1840, 4035; in 1850, 6460.

TRENTON, a post-village, capital of Jones co., North Carolina, on the Trent river, 100 miles S. E. from Raleigh. It is situated in a level and sandy region, in which tar and turpentine are procured.

TRENTON, a post-village, capital of Dade co., Georgia, 230 miles N. W. from Milledgeville. Population, about 200.

TRENTON, a post-village in Jackson co., Alabama, 177 miles N. E. from Tuscaloosa.

TRENTON, a thriving post-village of Washita parish, Louisiana, on the W. bank of Washita river, 2 miles above Monroe. It is a depôt for cotton, and contains 8 stores, 4 warehouses, and a steam saw and grist mill.

TRENTON, a thriving post-village, capital of Gibson co., Tennessee, on Forked Deer river, and on the route of the Mobile and Ohio railroad, 130 miles W. from Nashville. It has a bank, 5 churches, 12 stores, a newspaper office, and a large cotton factory. Large quantities of lumber are exported from this place.

TRENTON, a post-village of Todd co., Kentucky, about 190 miles S. W. from Frankfort. It contains 1 church and several stores.

TRENTON, a post-village of Butler co., Ohio, on the Cincinnati and Dayton railroad, 8 miles N. E. from Hamilton.

TRENTON, a township in the S. E. part of Delaware co., Ohio. Population, 1238.

TRENTON, a village of Tuscarawas co., Ohio, on the Ohio canal, 98 miles E. N. E. from Columbus.

TRENTON, a post-village of Wayne co., Michigan, on the W. bank of Detroit river, 17 miles below Detroit.

TRENTON, a post-office of Randolph co., Ind.

TRENTON, a small village of Knox co., Illinois, on Spoon river, 90 miles N. N. W. from Springfield.

TRENTON, a township in Will co., Illinois. Population, 240.

TRENTON, a post-village, capital of Grundy co., Missouri, near the Crooked fork of Grand river, about 150 miles N. W. from Jefferson City.

TRENTON, a post-village in Henry co., Iowa, 45 miles S. by W. from Iowa City.

TRENTON, a township in the N. W. part of Dodge co., Wisconsin. Population, 997.

TRENTON, a township in the central part of Washington co., Wisconsin.

TRENTON, a post-village in the above township, 50 miles N. E. from Madison. Pop., 75.

TRENTON FALLS, a post-village of Oneida co., New York, on West Canada creek, 15 miles N. by E. from Utica. Here are 6 falls within a course of 2 miles, with an aggregate descent of 312 feet. The creek flows through a narrow ravine, between perpendicular walls of fine, compact limestone, which, in some places, are nearly 150 feet high. These cascades are more remarkable for the wildness and variety of scenery than for the volume of water which they present. The height of the principal fall is estimated at 100 feet. There is a good hotel in the vicinity. The Utica and Black River railroad (unfinished) passes very near the village.

TRESCOTT, a township in Washington co., Maine, on the Atlantic coast, 80 miles E. from Bangor. Population, 782.

TREVILLIAN'S DEPÔT, a post-village of Louisa co., Virginia, on the Central railroad, 67 miles from Richmond.

TREXLERSTOWN, a post-village of Lehigh co., Pennsylvania, 8 miles W. S. W. from Allentown.

TRIADELPHIA, a manufacturing post-village of Montgomery co., Maryland, on the Patuxent river, 50 miles N. W. from Annapolis.

TRIADELPHIA, a post-office of Ohio co., Va.

TRIADELPHIA, a post-office of Morgan co., O.

TRIADELPHIA IRON WORKS, a small village of Lancaster co., Pennsylvania.

TRIANA, a post-village of Madison co., Alabama, on the right bank of Tennessee river, 15 miles S. W. from Huntsville.

TRIANGLE, a post-township of Broome co., New York, 15 miles N. from Binghamton. Population, 1728.

TRIBE'S HILL, a post-village of Montgomery co., New York, on the Central railroad, 38 miles N. W. from Albany.

TRICE'S STORE, a post-office of Orange co., North Carolina.

TRIGG, a county in the S. W. part of Kentucky, bordering on Tennessee, contains an area estimated at 530 square miles. The Tennessee river touches its W. border, and it is also drained by the Cumberland and Little rivers. The surface is hilly and undulating; a part of the soil is fertile. Tobacco, Indian corn, and oats are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 604,515 bushels of corn; 87,090 of oats, and 1,653,485 pounds of tobacco. Cattle, horses, mules, and hogs are also exported. It contained 18 churches, 631 pupils attending public schools, and 135 attending academies or other schools. Limestone, iron ore, and stone coal are found. Formed in 1820, and named in honor of Colonel Stephen Trigg, who was slain by the Indians at the battle of Blue Licks. Capital, Cadiz. Population, 10,129; of whom 7332 were free, and 2797, slaves.

TRIMBLE, a county in the N. part of Kentucky, bordering on the Ohio river, contains about 150 square miles. The surface is mostly hilly, and the soil fertile. Tobacco and Indian corn are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 286,795 bushels of corn; 19,516 of wheat; 30,754 of oats, and 454,722 pounds of tobacco. It contained 14 churches, and 320 pupils attending public schools. Organized in 1836. Capital, Bedford. Population, 5963; of whom 5022 were free, and 941, slaves.

TRIMBLE, a post-township in Athens co., Ohio. Population, 924.

TRINEVILLE, a post-office of Guilford co., North Carolina.

TRINIDAD, or TRINIDAD CITY, a post-town of Klamath co., in the N. N. W. part of California, at the head of Trinidad bay, is situated on the road from Benicia to Klamath, 245 miles in a straight line N. N. W. from San Francisco.

TRINITY, a county in the N. W. part of California, has an area estimated at above 3500 square miles. It is bounded on the W. by the Pacific, and on the E. by the Coast Range, and is drained by Eel creek, and several other smaller streams. The surface in the E. and W. portions is uneven or mountainous. Mount Linn, in the S. E. part, is the principal elevation; soil fertile, especially along the streams. But little attention has yet been paid to agriculture—mining and trading being the principal occupations of the inhabitants. Barley, potatoes, mules, and horses are the staples. In 1852 it produced 220 bushels of barley, and 125 of potatoes. There were 459 mules and 94 horses. The amount of capital invested in merchandise was $186,117; in placer mining, $34,440, and in other mining, $28,820. County seat not yet established. Population, 1764.

TRINITY, a post-office of Morgan co., Ala.

TRINITY, a thriving post-village of Catahoula parish, Louisiana, on the W. bank of the Black river, at the confluence of the Texas and Washita rivers, 12 miles below Harrisonburg. It contains 1 church, 4 stores besides groceries, 1 steam mill, and a Masonic lodge. Incorporated in 1850. Population in 1853, about 500.

TRINITY, a small village of Alexander co., Illinois, on the Ohio river, at the mouth of Cash river.

TRINITY RIVER, of Texas, is formed by two main branches, the Elm fork and the West fork, which unite a few miles above Dallas Court House. It flows in a general south-eastward direction, nearly parallel with the Brazos, and falls into the N. extremity of Galveston bay, about 40 miles N. from Galveston city. The length of the main stream is estimated at 550 miles. It is a fine, navigable river, affording more extensive facilities for that purpose than any other in the state. The navigation is always good for steamboats to Liberty, about 90 miles from the Gulf; during the rainy season, i. e. from February to May, inclusive, they make regular passages to the upper part of Houston county, a distance of about 350 miles, and in some cases they have ascended as far as 500 miles. This river flows through an alluvial plain, which has but a slight declivity towards the Gulf of Mexico, and presents no great inequalities of surface. The valley of the Trinity is especially fertile, and is occupied by plantations of cotton, maize, sugar, and rice. Timber is found here in greater variety and abundance than in the western parts of the state. Branches.—The Elm fork rises in the N. part of Cook county, within a few miles of Red river, and pursues a south-easterly course of about 150 miles. The West fork rises in Cook county, flows south-eastward through the Cross Timbers to Tarrant county, and thence eastward till it unites with the other branch, after a course of nearly equal length.

TRINITY RIVER, rises in the E. part of Klamath co., California, near the foot of the Coast Range, and running first south-westerly, and then north-westerly, falls into the Klamath river in about 41° 20' N. lat. Gold is found in abundance on this river, miners averaging $7 per day.

TRINITY SPRINGS, a post-office of Martin co., Indiana.

TRION, a post-office of Tuscaloosa co., Ala.

TRION, a post-office of Jefferson co., Tenn.

TRION FACTORY, a post-office of Chattooga co., Georgia.

TRIPLETT, a post-office of Fleming co., Ky.

TRIPOLI, a post-office of Tishomingo co., Mississippi.

TRIUNE, a post-office of Williamson co., Tenn.

TRIVOLI, a post-village of Peoria co., Illinois, about 17 miles W. from Peoria.

TROUBLE HILL, a post-office of Scott co., Ark.

TROUBLESOME, a post-office of Rockingham co., North Carolina.

TROUBLESOME, a post-office of Clinch co., Ga.

TROUBLESOME CREEK, a post-office of Lewis co., Missouri.

TROUP, a county in the W. part of Georgia, bordering on Alabama, contains about 370 square miles. It is drained by the Chattahoochee river and its affluents. The surface is broken; the soil is generally fertile, but in some parts much worn. Cotton, Indian corn, and wheat are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 14,481 bales of cotton; 687,205 bushels of corn; 120,302 of oats, and 142,884 of sweet potatoes. There were 3 tanneries, 1 woollen factory, 1 flour mill, and 1 saw mill. It contained 32 churches and 1 newspaper office; 1440 pupils attending public schools, and 558 attending academies or other schools. Troup county is remarkable for the general diffusion of education. Granite and other rocks suitable for building are abundant. It is intersected by the Atlanta and La Grange railroad. Organized in 1826, and named in honor of George M. Troup, United States senator from Georgia. Capital, La Grange. Population, 16,879, of whom 7831 were free, and 9048, slaves.

TROUP FACTORY, a post-village of Troup co., Ga., about 32 miles N. from Columbus.

TROUBSBURG, a post-township of Steuben co., New York, 30 miles S. S. W. from Bath. Population, 1754.

TROUPVILLE, a post-village, capital of Lowndes county, Georgia, on the Withlacoochee river, 180 miles S. from Milledgeville. It has 2 churches, 4 stores, and 3 hotels.

TROUSDALE, a post-office of Warren co., Tennessee.

TROUF CREEK, of Pennsylvania, enters a branch of Sinnemahoning creek, in Elk county.

TROUF CREEK, a post-office of Delaware co., New York.

TROUT CREEK, a post-office of St. Clair co., Alabama.

TROUT RIVER, a post-office of Franklin co., New York.

TROUT RUN, a post-village of Lycoming co., Pennsylvania, on the Williamsport and Elmira railroad, 15 miles N. from Williamsport.

TROUT RUN, a post-office of Winneshiek co., Iowa.

TROWBRIDGE, a township in the S. E. part of Allegan co., Michigan. Population, 313.

TROWBRIDGE, a post-office of Racine co., Wis.

TROY, a post-township in Waldo co., Maine, 38 miles N. E. from Augusta. Pop., 1484.

TROY, a post-village in Cheshire co., New Hampshire, on the Cheshire railroad, 45 miles S. W. from Concord. Population of the township, 759.

TROY, a post-township in Orleans co., Vermont, 50 miles N. by E. from Montpelier. Population, 1008.

TROY, a city, and capital of Rensselaer county, New York, is situated on both sides of the Hudson river, at the mouth of the Poestenkill creek, at the head of steamboat navigation, 6 miles above Albany, and 151 miles N. from New York. Lat. 42° 44' N., lon. 73° 40' W. The principal portion of the city is on the eastern bank of the river, over which communication is kept up by a bridge and ferry-boats. The site is an alluvial plain, terminated on the eastern side by an eminence named Mount Ida, which rises directly in the rear of the southern part, and commands a beautiful and extensive view of the city and the Hudson river, and of the neighboring towns. Mount Olympus, in the N. part of the town, is a bare mass of rock about 200 feet high. The limits of the city extend about 3 miles along the river, and 1 mile from E. to W. It is laid out with much regularity, and is handsomely built. The streets are 60 feet wide, and cross each other at right angles, excepting River street, which follows the curve of the river, and is the principal thoroughfare of business. A number of those streets which extend parallel with the general direction of the river, terminate at their northern extremity in River street—a circumstance which imparts variety to the perspective, and increases the facilities of intercourse between that street and other parts of the city. The streets are generally well paved, lighted with gas, and bordered with shade-trees. River street is lined with large warehouses and hotels. Congress and Ferry streets are also appropriated to business purposes. The finest residences are situated on First, Second, and Third streets, and around Seminary and Washington Parks.

The latter park was recently laid out in the southern part of the city. Among the public buildings, the court house, the Episcopal Church of St. Paul, and one of the Presbyterian churches, deserve particular mention. The court house is a fine marble edifice in the Doric style. St. Paul's church is a costly Gothic building of stone. Among the principal hotels are the American, the Mansion House, the Troy House, the Northern Hotel, the National Temperance, and Washington Hall. There are 2 substantial brick market houses. The Rensselaer Institute of this place affords a scientific and practical education to young men; and the Troy Female Institute is among the most celebrated in the country: it was established here by Mrs. Willard in 1821. The city contains a Lyceum with a valuable collection of natural history. The various denominations have over 20 churches. One or two daily, and four weekly newspapers are issued. The city has 11 banks, aggregate capital, above $2,000,000. It is supplied with good water from the river.

Troy is favorably situated for commerce. Many of the boats which arrive by the Erie and Champlain canals here discharge their cargoes on board of large barges, to be towed down the river, and receive in exchange cargoes of merchandise passing northward or westward. This transhipment constitutes the principal commercial business of the place. Four railroads meet at this point, viz. the Hudson River, the Troy and Boston, the Schenectady and Troy, and the Rensselaer and Saratoga railroads, which, with their several extensions, connect it with New York, Boston, Montreal, Buffalo, &c. Among the recent improvements is the Union railroad, connecting the four lines above named, and passing through the back part of the city, with a large passenger station, common to the four, on Sixth street. A dam across the river renders it navigable for sloops to Lansingburg. Steamboats of the first class ply daily between this place and New York. The Hudson river and the Poestenkill and Wynantskill furnish an ample supply of water-power, which is used in manufactories of various kinds. The city contains numerous flouring mills, paper mills, cotton factories, woollen factories, tanneries, breweries, iron foundries, machine shops, rolling mills, and forges. Nails, stoves, railway cars, brushes, leather, stoneware, and other articles are produced in considerable quantities. West Troy, on the W. bank of the river, is situated in Albany county, on the Albany Northern railroad. It contains a bank and a large arsenal of the United States. Population in 1850, 7564; in 1853, about 9000. Troy was incorporated as a village in 1801; as a city in 1816. Population in 1820, 5264; in 1830, 11,405; in 1840, 19,334; and in 1850, 28,785; or including the western suburb, 36,349.

Troy, a small village of Morris co., New Jersey, on the Parcipany river, 8 miles N. E. from Morristown, contains a forge and 2 mills.

TROY, a village of Alleghany county, Pennsylvania, one mile N. from Pittsburg. It is pleasantly situated on a high hill, and is composed chiefly of country seats.

TROY, a post-township in the W. part of Bradford co., Pennsylvania. Pop., 1418.

TROY, a post-borough in the above township, on Sugar creek, and on the Williamsport and Elmira railroad, (unfinished,) about 18 miles W. from Towanda. It has several stores and a newspaper office. Population in 1850, 480.

TROY, a township of Crawford co., Pennsylvania, about 19 miles E. from Meadville. Population, 740.

TROY, a village of Jefferson co., Pennsylvania, on the Redbank creek, 5 miles below Brookville. Population, near 200.

TROY, a post-village, capital of Montgomery co., North Carolina, about 80 miles W. S. W. from Raleigh. It contains a court house, jail, and 1 or 2 hotels.

TROY, a post-office of Cherokee co., Georgia, about 12 miles S. E. from Canton.

TROY, a village of Harris co., Georgia, on Mulberry creek, about 120 miles W. by S. from Milledgeville. It contains a manufactory of wooden ware, and several mills.

TROY, a thriving post-village, capital of Pike co., Alabama, near the Conecuh river, 50 miles S. E. from Montgomery.

TROY, a post-village of Yallobusha co., Mississippi, on the Yallobusha river, 119 miles N. from Jackson.

TROY, a post-office of Freestone co., Texas.

TROY, a post-village, capital of Obion co., Tennessee, on a small affluent of Obion river, 150 miles W. from Nashville.

TROY, a township in the N. part of Ashland co., Ohio. Population, 848.

TROY, a township forming the S. E. extremity of Athens co., Ohio. Pop., 1421.

TROY, or HOCKINGSFORD, a village of Athens co., Ohio, on the Ohio river, at the mouth of the Hocking, about 25 miles below Marietta, has about 200 inhabitants.

TROY, a township in the N. W. part of Delaware co., Ohio. Population, 976.

TROY, a township in the S. E. part of Geauga co., Ohio, intersected by Cuyahoga river. Population, 1163.

TROY, a beautiful and flourishing post-village, capital of Miami county, Ohio, on the W. bank of the Great Miami river, and on the Miami canal, 68 miles W. from Columbus. The Dayton and Michigan railroad, now in progress, passes through it. The village is regularly built with broad and straight streets. It contains a court house, town hall, 6 churches, 1 bank, 1 academy, and 2 newspaper offices. The Miami river, which affords an extensive hydraulic power at this place, is a beautiful and rapid stream, flowing through a very fertile and highly cultivated valley. There are 9 or 10 large warehouses on the bank of the canal, for receiving and forwarding produce. Population in 1850, 1956.

Troy, a township in Morrow co., Ohio. Population, 640.

Troy, a township in the W. part of Richland co., Ohio, intersected by the Columbus and Lake Erie railroad. Population, 1542.

Troy, a township in the N. E. part of Wood co., Ohio. Population, 559.

Troy, a post-township in the S. E. part of Oakland co., Michigan. Population, 1426.

Troy, a township in De Kalb co., Indiana. Population, 392.

Troy, a township in Fountain co., Indiana. Population, 1181.

Troy, a post-township in Perry co., Indiana. Population, 1570.

Troy, a post-village of Perry co., Indiana, is pleasantly situated on the Ohio, at the mouth of Anderson river, 63 miles above Evansville. First settled in 1811. Pop. in 1851, about 500.

Troy, a small village of Fulton co., Illinois, on Spoon river, 44 miles W. from Peoria. It has an improved water-power.

Troy, a small post-village of Madison co., Illinois, about 22 miles S. E. from Alton.

Troy, a small village of Daviess co., Mo.

Troy, a post-village, capital of Lincoln co., Missouri, near Cuivre river, about 60 miles W. N. W. from St. Louis. It has a brick court house, a jail, and several hundred inhabitants.

Troy, a small village of Madison co., Mo.

Troy, a post-village of Davis co., Iowa, about 90 miles S. S. W. of Iowa City.

Troy, a post-village of Walworth co., Wisconsin, on the plank-road from Milwaukee to Janesville, 34 miles S. W. from the former.

TROY CENTRE, a post-village of Waldo co., Maine, about 37 miles N. E. from Augusta.

TROY CENTRE, a post-village of Walworth co., Wisconsin, about 32 miles S. W. from Milwaukee.

TROY GROVE, a post-village of La Salle co., Ill., about 80 miles W. S. W. from Chicago.

TROY LAKE, a post-village in East Troy township, Walworth co., Wisconsin, 54 miles S. E. from Madison.

TROY MILLS, a post-office of Fulton co., Ill.

TROY'S STORE, a post-office of Randolph co., North Carolina.

TRUAGO, a village in Wayne co., Michigan, on Detroit river, 15 miles S. S. W. from Detroit.

TRUCKSVILLE, a post-office of Luzerne co., Pennsylvania.

TRUITSVILLE, a post-office of Greenup co., Kentucky.

TRUMANSBURG, a post-village of Ulysses township, Tompkins county, New York, 12 miles N. W. from Ithaca. It is pleasantly situated 1 or 2 miles W. from Cayuga lake, and contains several churches and factories. Population, estimated at 900.

TRUMBAURSVILLE, a post-office of Bucks co., Pennsylvania.

TRUMBULL, a county in the N. E. part of Ohio, bordering on Pennsylvania, contains about 625 square miles. It is intersected by Mahoning and Grand rivers, and also drained by the Musquito, Pymatuning, and Meander creeks. The surface is undulating, and partly covered with forests. The soil is good, well watered, and adapted to dairy farming. Wheat, Indian corn, and oats are raised for home consumption. The chief articles of export are cheese, butter, wool, and live stock. There is a very extensive cheese dairy at Gustavus. In 1850 this county produced 121,068 bushels of wheat; 302,906 of corn; 235,048 of oats, and 710,113 pounds of butter. It contained 73 churches, 3 newspaper offices, 14,904 pupils attending public schools, and 186 attending academies or other schools. Iron ore and stone coal are abundant in the S. part. The streams afford extensive water-power. The county is intersected by the Pennsylvania and Ohio canal, and by the Cleveland and Mahoning (projected) railroad. Capital, Warren. Population, 30,490.

TRUMBULL, a post-township in Fairfield co., Connecticut, about 25 miles W. by S. from New Haven intersected by the Housatonic railroad. Population, 1309.

TRUMBULL, a post-township in the W. part of Ashtabula co., Ohio. Population, 805.

TRUMBULL CORNER, a post-office of Tompkins co., New York.

TRUMBULL LONG HILL, a post-village in Trumbull township, Fairfield co., Connecticut, 18 miles W. by S. from New Haven, very conspicuous from the ocean.

TRUNDLE'S CROSS ROADS, a post-office of Sevier co., Tennessee.

TRURO, a post-township in Barnstable co., Massachusetts, occupying the northern part of Cape Cod, about 110 miles by land, and 55 by water S. E. from Boston. The inhabitants derive their chief support from the fisheries. In 1852, 52 vessels (tons, 3626) and 581 men and boys were employed in the mackerel fishery. The mackerel inspected for the year amounted to 2540 $\frac{3}{4}$ barrels. In the great gale of 1841 this town lost 57 men, whose homes were within a circuit of 2 miles; 27 of them were married, and only 8 were more than 30 years of age. The population at that time was about 1900; the number of widows, 105. Population in 1850, 2051.

TRURO, a township in the S. E. part of Franklin co., Ohio. Population, 2153.

TRURO, a post-office of Knox co., Illinois.

TRUSS, a post-office of Jefferson co., Ala.

TRUXTON, a post-village in Truxton township, Cortland co., New York, on Tioughnioga river, 28 miles S. from Syracuse. It contains 2 or 3 churches, and several mills. Population of the township, 3623.

TRUXTON, a post-village of Bureau co., Illinois, about 70 miles W. S. W. from Chicago.

TRYON, a post-office of Rutherford co., North Carolina.

TRYON FACTORY. See TRION FACTORY.

TUCKAHOE creek, a small stream of New Jersey, forms the boundary between Atlantic county on the right, and Cumberland and Cape May counties on the left, and falls into Great Egg Harbor bay.

TUCKAHOE, a small river in the E. part of Maryland, rises in Queen Anne county, and flows southward, forming the boundary between Caroline and Talbot counties, until it enters the Choptank river.

TUCKAHOE, a post-office of Westchester co., New York.

TUCKAHOE, a flourishing post-village of New Jersey, on the line between Atlantic and Cape May counties, and on both sides of Tuckahoe creek, 16 miles in a straight line N. by E. from Cape May Court House. It has 2 churches, and several stores. Population, about 600.

TUCKAHOE, a post-office of Jefferson co., Tennessee.

TUCKALEECHE COVE, a post-office of Blount co., Tennessee.

TUCKASAGA, a post-village in Mecklenburg co., North Carolina, 169 miles W. S. W. from Raleigh.

TUCKASAW creek, of Georgia, called also TUSCAHATCHEE, enters the Ocmulgee river in Pulaski county.

TUCKER, a township in Clark co., Arkansas. Population, 265.

TUCKER'S CABIN, a small village of Henry co., Ga., 80 miles N. W. from Milledgeville.

TUCKER'S ISLAND LIGHT, near Absecon inlet, Jersey Shore.

TUCKERTON, a post-village and port of entry of Burlington county, New Jersey, on Little Egg Harbour bay, about 60 miles S. S. E. from Trenton. It contains 2 or 3 churches, and several stores. The shipping of the district, June, 1852, amounted to an aggregate of 7561 $\frac{3}{4}$ tons enrolled and licensed; all of which were employed in the coasting trade. During the same year 5 schooners were built here.

TUERTO, a village in the interior of New Mexico, near the southern base of the Placer mountain, 30 miles S. S. W. from Santa Fe.

TUFTONBOROUGH, a post-township in Carroll co., New Hampshire, on the E. side of Lake Winnipiseogee, 45 miles N. N. E. from Concord. Population, 1305.

TUGALOO river, one of the branches of the Savannah, rises near the S. frontier of North Carolina, and flowing first S. W., and then S. E. along the boundary between South Carolina and Georgia, unites with the Kiowee near Andersonville. The name of Chattooga is applied to the upper part of this river.

TUGALOO CREEK, Ala. See SUCKERNOCHEE.

TUG RIVER, a post-office of Tazewell county, Virginia.

TULARE, (too-lá're,) a large county in the E. S. E. part of California, has an area estimated at above 12,000 square miles. It is bounded on the S. W. by the Coast Range, and is drained by King's river, and several smaller streams flowing into Tule lake, and by Kern river flowing into Kern lake. The surface in the central part is broken by the mountain range of the Sierra Nevada, but between this and the Coast range lies the beautiful and fertile valley of the San Joaquin. The soil of this valley is very productive, though but little attention has yet been paid to agriculture. In 1852 there were 83 mules, 74 horses, and 108 working oxen. The county derived its name from the Tule lake, which lies chiefly within its border. County seat not yet established. Population, 8575; of whom 8400 were Indians.

TULE (too'le, or too'lay, i. e. a "bulrush") lake in California, is included within the limits of Tulare county, about midway between the Coast Range and the Sierra Nevada. Length, from 30 to 40 miles; greatest breadth, about 22 miles. The outlet joins San Joaquin river. Kern lake, perhaps 20 miles farther S. is sometimes called the upper or smaller Bulrush lake. The valley in which these two lakes are situated is said to be one of the most fertile and beautiful to be found on the globe.

TULE LAKE, a small lake of Yolo county, towards the N. W. part of California, is about half a mile long and a quarter of a mile wide.

TULIP CREEK, of Arkansas, enters the Washita river, a few miles above Camden.

TULIP, a post-township in Dallas co., Arkansas. Population, 514.

TULLAHOMA, a post-village and important railroad station of Coffee county, Tennessee, on Rock creek, 70 miles S. E. from Nashville. The Nashville and Chattanooga railroad here intersects the McMinnville and Manchester railroad, which will probably render it a place of much business. Laid out in 1851.

TULL'S CREEK, a post-office of Currituck co., North Carolina.

TULLY, a post-village in Tully township, Onondaga co., New York, about 20 miles S. from Syracuse. A plank-road extends to Syracuse. Population of the township, 1559.

TULLY, a township forming the N. E. extremity of Marion co., Ohio, intersected by the W. branch of Whetstone river. Pop. 736.

TULLY, a post-township forming the N. W. extremity of Van Wert co., Ohio. Pop., 242.

TULLY, a thriving post-village of Lewis county, Missouri, on the Mississippi river, 192 miles above St. Louis. A large quantity of pork and other produce is shipped at this point. It contains 2 churches, 6 stores, and 2 steam mills. Laid out in 1833. Population, about 600.

TULLYTOWN, a post-village of Bucks co., Pennsylvania, on the Philadelphia and Trenton railroad, 5 or 6 miles S. W. of Trenton. Population, 234.

TULLY VALLEY, a post-village of Onondaga co., N. Y., about 130 miles W. from Albany.

TULLYVILLE, a post-office of Monroe co., Arkansas.

TULPEHOCKEN CREEK, of Pennsylvania, rises in Lebanon county, and flows into the Schuylkill river, near Reading. Its general course is E. S. E.

TULPEHOCKEN, a post-township of Berks co., Pennsylvania, about 20 miles S. by W. from Pottsville. Population, 1803.

TUMBLING CREEK, in the W. central part of Tennessee, flows S. W., and enters Duck river, on its right bank, in Humphreys county.

TUMBLING CREEK, a post-office of Tazewell co., Virginia.

TUMBLING SHOALS, a post-office of Laurens district, South Carolina.

TUMLINSON, a township in Scott co., Arkansas. Population, 350.

TUMLINSONVILLE, a post-office of Scott co., Arkansas.

TUNA, New York. See TUNUNGWANT.

TUNAMAGUONT, a thriving village of McKean co., Pennsylvania, on a creek of its own name, about 220 miles N. W. from Harrisburg. It has an active trade, principally in lumber.

TUNBRIDGE, a post-township in Orange co., Vermont, 28 miles S. by E. from Montpelier, intersected by a branch of White river. It contains 3 small villages, the principal of which is at the centre. The others are called the Upper and the Lower villages. Population, 1786.

TUNICA, a county in the N. W. part of Mississippi, bordering on the Mississippi river, which separates it from Arkansas, has an area of about 750 square miles. It is drained by Tunica and Coldwater rivers. The surface is flat, and some parts subject to be overflowed. Indian corn and cotton are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 94,735 bushels of corn; 7270 of sweet potatoes, and 717 bales of cotton. It contained 1 church, and 41 pupils attending public schools. Capital, Austin. Population, 1314, of whom 397 were free, and 917, slaves.

TUNICA, a post-office of West Feliciana parish, Louisiana.

TUNKHANNOCK creek, in the N. E. part of Pennsylvania, flows south-westward, and falls into the North branch of Susquehanna river, at Tunkhannock.

TUNKHANNOCK, a thriving post-borough, capital of Wyoming co., Pa., on the surveyed route of the North Pennsylvania railroad on the North branch of Susquehanna river, at the mouth of Tunkhannock creek, 145 miles N. E. from Harrisburg. The North Branch canal passes through the place, by means of which lumber, grain, &c. are exported. It contains, besides the county buildings, several churches and mills of different kinds. Two newspapers are issued here. Population in 1850, 561.

TUNKHANNOCK MOUNTAIN, Pennsylvania, occupies the N. E. part of Wyoming county.

TUNNEL, a post-office of Indiana co., Pa.

TUNNEL, a post-office of Franklin co., Tenn.

TUNNELL HILL, a post-village of Whitfield co., Georgia.

TUNNELL'S STORE, a post-office of Sussex co., Delaware.

TUNUNGWANT, or TUNA, a post-village of Cattaraugus co., New York, on the Alleghany river, and on the New York and Erie railroad, 416 miles from New York city.

TUOLUMNE (two'lum-ne) river, of California, rises at the foot of the Sierra Nevada, in the E. part of Tuolumne county, and flowing in a general W. S. W. course, falls into the San Joaquin, about 40 miles above Stockton. It is navigable for small steamboats to Empire City, near 30 miles from its mouth.

TUOLUMNE, a county in the N. central part of California, has an area estimated at above 3000 square miles. It is partly bounded on the S. W. by the Coast Range, on the N. E. by the Sierra Nevada, and partly on the N. W. by the Stanislaus river, and is drained by the San Joaquin and Tuolumne rivers, which afford some water-power. The surface in the E. and W. parts is rough and mountainous; the middle section comprises the beautiful and fertile valley of the San Joaquin. Potatoes, hay, cattle, and horses are the staples. In 1852 it produced 1200 bushels of potatoes, and 1650 tons of hay. There were 4818 beef cattle, and 1726 horses. The amount of capital employed in placer mining was $76,085; in quartz mining, $49,900, and in other mining operations, $1900. The San Joaquin river is navigable for moderate sized steamboats through the county. Named from the Tuolumne river, whose whole course lies within it. Capital, Sonora. Population, 17,657.

TUOLUMNE, a town of Tuolumne co., California, on the right bank of the Tuolumne river, about 7 miles above its entrance into the San Joaquin.

TUPPER'S PLAINS, a post-office of Meigs co., O.

TURBETT, a township of Juniata co., Pennsylvania, on the right side of the West branch of the Susquehanna, and intersected by the Pennsylvania railroad, 7 miles S. W. from Mifflintown.

TURBOT, a township of Northumberland co., Pennsylvania, intersected by the Sunbury and Erie railroad, about 13 miles N. from Sunbury. Population, including Milton, 2693.

TURBOTVILLE, a post-office of Northumberland co., Pennsylvania.

TUREAUD, a post-office of Ascension parish, Louisiana.

TURIN, a post-township in the S. central part of Lewis co., New York, on Black river. Population, 1826.

TURIN, a post-village in the above township, about 45 miles N. by W. from Utica. It contains several churches and mills.

TURKEY, a post-office of Monmouth co., N. J.

TURKEY COVE, a post-office of Lee co., Va.

TURKEY CREEK, of South Carolina, flows through Chester district into Broad river.

TURKEY CREEK, of Louisiana, rises on the

W. border of Madison parish, and flowing south-westward, unites with Bœuf bayou, at the S. extremity of Franklin parish.

TURKEY CREEK, of Henry county, Ohio, flows into the Maumee river.

TURKEY CREEK, a post-office of Buncombe co., N. C., 271 miles from Raleigh.

TURKEY CREEK, a township in Kosciusko co., Indiana. Population, 590.

TURKEY CREEK, a post-office of Steuben co., Indiana.

TURKEY CREEK, a post-village of Benton co., Missouri, about 75 miles W. S. W. from Jefferson City.

TURKEYFOOT, a former township of Somerset co., Pennsylvania, now divided into Upper and Lower Turkeyfoot, which see.

TURKEYFOOT, a post-office of Somerset co., Pennsylvania.

TURKEYFOOT, a post-village of Scott co., Kentucky, 22 miles N. from Lexington.

TURKEY GROVE, a post-office of Dane co., Wisconsin.

TURKEY HILL, a small village of Lancaster co., Pennsylvania.

TURKEY LAKE, in the N. E. part of Kosciusko co., Indiana, is about 12 miles in length.

TURKEY RIVER, of Iowa, is formed by two forks which unite in Fayette county, and after a south-easterly course, it falls into the Mississippi in Clayton county. The two forks are called the North and the Middle. Another stream, called the South fork, enters the river from the W., about 18 miles from its mouth.

TURKEY TOWN, a post-village of Cherokee co., Alabama, near the Coosa river, 128 miles N. E. from Tuscaloosa.

TURKEYTOWN CREEK, of Alabama, enters the Coosa river, from the right in Cherokee county.

TURMAN, a township in Sullivan co., Indiana. Population, 1396.

TURMAN'S CREEK, Indiana, flows through Sullivan county into the Wabash river, 6 miles above Merom.

TURMAN'S CREEK, a post-office of Sullivan co., Indiana.

TURNBACK, a township in Dade co., Missouri. Population, 312.

TURNBACK, a small post-village of Dade co., Missouri, about 140 miles S. W. from Jefferson City.

TURNBULL, a post-village in Monroe co., Alabama, 80 miles S. W. from Montgomery.

TURNER, a post-township in Oxford co., Maine, 26 miles W. S. W. from Augusta, on the W. side of the Androscoggin river. Population, 2536.

TURNER CREEK, a post-office of Potter co., Pennsylvania.

TURNER'S, formerly CENTREVILLE, a post-village of Orange co., New York, on the New York and Erie railroad, 57 miles from New York city.

TURNER'S STORE, a post-office of Caroline co., Virginia.

TURNERSVILLE, a post-office of Crawford co., Pennsylvania.

TURNERSVILLE, a small post-village of Robertson co., Tennessee, 35 miles N. W. from Nashville.

TURNERSVILLE, a post-office of Lincoln co., Kentucky.

TURNOUT, a railroad station in Cattaraugus co., New York, on the New York and Erie railroad, 444 miles from New York city.

TURNTPIKE CREEK, of Telfair co., Georgia, unites with Sugar creek near its mouth.

TURNS, a post-office of Monroe co., Pa.

TURPENTINE, a small village of Burlington co., New Jersey, about 1 mile E. from Mount Holly.

TURTLE, a township in the S. E. part of Rock co., Wisconsin. Population, 966.

TURTLE CREEK, of Pennsylvania, enters the Monongahela in Alleghany county.

TURTLE CREEK, of Wisconsin, rises in Walworth co., and flows into Rock river near Beloit, Rock county.

TURTLE CREEK, a post-village of Alleghany county, Pennsylvania, on a stream of its own name, and on the Pennsylvania railroad, 12 miles E. by S. from Pittsburg. A plank-road extends from this place through Brad-dock's Field to Pittsburg.

TURTLE CREEK, a township in the central part of Shelby co., Ohio. Population, 792.

TURTLE CREEK, a township in the central part of Warren co., Ohio. Population, 3342.

TURTLETOWN, a post-office of Cherokee co., North Carolina.

TUSCAHATCHEE. See TUCKASAW.

TUSCAHOMA, a post-village of Choctaw co., Alabama, on the Tombigbee river.

TUSCAHOMA, a post-village in Tallahatchee co., Mississippi, on Yallobusha river, 105 miles N. by E. from Jackson.

TUSCALAMETA creek, of Mississippi, enters Pearl river from the E. in Scott county.

TUSCALOOSA river. See BLACK WARRIOR.

TUSCALOOSA, a county in the N. W. central part of Alabama, has an area of 1620 square miles. It is intersected by the Black Warrior river, dividing it into nearly equal parts, and also by Sipsey or New river. The surface is hilly or uneven; the soil is remarkably fertile. Cotton, Indian corn, and sweet potatoes are the staples. In 1850 there were raised 73,561 bales of cotton, (being the greatest quantity produced in any one county in the United States;) 626,452 bushels of corn; 114,035 of sweet potatoes, and 50,271 of oats. There were 5 tanneries, 2 cotton factories, 1 iron forge, and 1 paper mill. It contained 53 churches, 3 newspaper offices; 404 pupils attending public schools, and 150 attending academies or other schools. Extensive beds of iron ore, stone coal, and carboniferous limestone are found in it. Steam-boats navigate the Black Warrior river from its mouth to Tuscaloosa, the county seat. A plank-road extends to Montgomery. Population, 18,056; of whom 10,579 were free, and 7477, slaves.

TUSCALOOSA, a thriving town, capital of Tuscaloosa co., Alabama, on the left bank of the Black Warrior river, at the head of steamboat navigation, 125 miles N. W. from Montgomery, and 818 from Washington. Lat. 33° 12' N., lon. 87° 42' W. It was formerly the capital of Alabama, and is still one of the principal towns of the state, remarkable for its literary institutions, as well as its active trade. It is the seat of the University of Alabama, founded in 1831, having 9 instructors, 135 under-graduates, and a library of 8000 volumes. The buildings of the University, which are beautifully situated half a mile from the river, cost not less than $150,000. The president's residence cost $35,000. The State Lunatic Asylum is established at this place. Tuscaloosa contains a handsome court house, a number of churches, a United States land-office, 3 or 4 newspaper offices, and several academies or seminaries. The manufacture of cotton and iron is carried on in the vicinity. Large quantities of cotton are shipped here by steamboats to Mobile. A plank-road connects this town with Montgomery, and a branch railroad is projected to the Mobile and Ohio railroad. Population in 1853, estimated at 3500.

TUSCARAWAS, a small river of Ohio, rises in the N. E. part of the state, and uniting with the Walhonding river at Coshocton, forms the Muskingum.

TUSCARAWAS, a county in the E. part of Ohio, contains about 520 square miles. It is intersected by the Tuscarawas river, and also drained by Sugar and Stillwater creeks. The surface is generally undulating, except some level land in the vicinity of the larger streams. The soil is excellent, and in many parts under high cultivation. Wheat, Indian corn, oats, hay, wool, cattle, and swine are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 350,773 bushels of wheat; 402,761 of corn; 278,500 of oats, and 176,200 pounds of wool. There were 87 churches, 3 newspaper offices; 6927 pupils attending public schools, and 824 attending academies or other schools. The county contains deposits of stone coal and iron, which are thought to be inexhaustible, but have not yet been worked to much extent. The coal is of good quality, and easily accessible by means of the Ohio canal. The streams furnish abundant water-power. The county is intersected by the Steubenville and Indiana railroad, and the Cleveland Medina and Tuscarawas railroad, unfinished. Capital, New Philadelphia. Population, 31,761.

TUSCARAWAS, a township in the E. part of Coshocton co., Ohio, intersected by Muskingum river and Ohio canal. Pop., 741.

TUSCARAWAS, a township in the S. W. part of Stark co., Ohio. Population, 2041.

TUSCARAWAS, a post-village in Tuscarawas co., Ohio, 108 miles E. from Columbus.

TUSCARORA, a creek of Niagara co., New York, falls into the W. end of Lake Ontario.

TUSCARORA, a creek of Pennsylvania, enters the Juniata river a little below Millintown.

TUSCARORA, a creek in the N. N. E. part of Virginia, flows through Berkeley co., passes by Martinsburg, and falls into the Potomac, or into some small affluent of that river. It affords fine water-power.

TUSCARORA, a post-office of Livingston co., New York.

TUSCARORA, an Indian village of Niagara co., New York, 2½ miles E. from Lewiston.

TUSCARORA, a township of Juniata co., Pennsylvania, about 16 miles S. S. W. from Millintown.

TUSCARORA, a post-village of Schuylkill co., Pennsylvania, on the Schuylkill river, 73 miles N. E. from Harrisburg. It is connected with Pottsville by a branch railroad, on which coal is transported. Pop. in 1853, about 650.

TUSCARORA, a small post-village of Lee co., Iowa, 70 miles S. from Iowa City.

TUSCARORA MOUNTAIN, Pennsylvania, extends from the Juniata river south-westward along the N. W. border of Perry county, and thence southward, under the name of Cove mountain, into Maryland.

TUSCOLA, a new county in the E. part of Michigan, has an area of about 700 square miles. It is bounded on the N. W. by Saginaw bay, and is intersected by Cass river, an affluent of the Saginaw. The census of 1850 assigns it a population of 291, but gives no returns of the productions. County seat not yet located.

TUSCOLA, a post-township in the N. W. part of Livingston co., Michigan. Pop., 544.

TUSCOLA, a small post-village of Livingston co., Michigan, about 30 miles E. from Lansing.

TUSCUMBIA, a thriving post-village of Franklin co., Alabama, is situated 1 mile S. from the Tennessee river, and 111 miles N. from Tuscaloosa. Steamboats from the Ohio river can ascend to this place in the higher stages of water. Two newspapers are published here. A railroad about 45 miles long extends eastward to Decatur, and forms part of the route of the Memphis and Charleston railroad, which is here intersected by the New Orleans and Nashville railroad, not yet finished.

TUSCUMBIA, a post-village, capital of Miller co., Missouri, on the right bank of the Osage river, 35 miles S. S. W. from Jefferson City.

TUSKEGEE, a flourishing post-village, capital of Macon co., Alabama, 40 miles E. by N. from Montgomery. It has several flourishing seminaries, 3 newspaper offices, and numerous stores.

TUSQUITA, a post-office of Cherokee co., N. C.

TUSSEY'S MOUNTAIN, Pennsylvania, one of the smaller ridges of the Appalachian chain, traverses Bedford county in its whole length from S. W. to N. E., and forms the greater part of the boundary between Blair and Huntingdon, and may be traced through Centre county towards the West branch of the Susquehanna.

TUTHILL, a small post-village in the S. part of Ulster co., New Jersey.

TUTTLE'S CORNERS, a post-office of Sussex co., New Jersey.

TWALITY PLAINS, a post-office of Washington co., Oregon.

TWELVE MILE, a post-office of Pickens district, South Carolina.

TWELVE MILE, a post-office of Cass co., Ind. TWELVE MILE CREEK, of South Carolina, flows into Saluda river, in Lexington district, about 12 miles above Columbia.

TWELVE MILE CREEK, of Pickens district, South Carolina, flows into Kiowee river, about 12 miles S. from the Court House.

TWELVE MILE CREEK, a post-office of Steuben co., New York.

TWELVE MILE PRAIRIE, a post-village of St. Clair co., Illinois, about 38 miles S. S. E. from Altou.

TWELVE MILE STAND, a post-office of Warren co., Ohio.

TWENTY-SIX MILE CREEK, of Anderson district, South Carolina, flows south-westward into Kiowee river.

TWIGGS, a county in the S. central part of Georgia, has an area of 400 square miles. The Ocmulgee river forms its W. boundary, and it is drained by Big Sandy, Turkey, and other creeks. The surface in the upper or northern part is broken. The soil is of limestone formation, and in some places is productive. Cotton, Indian corn, wheat, and sweet potatoes are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 9689 bales of cotton; 379,537 bushels of corn; and 76,323 of sweet potatoes. There were 210 pupils attending public schools. It contains extensive beds of limestone, and burrstone is found. The Ocmulgee river is navigable by steamboats, and the Central railroad passes along the northern border. Organized in 1809, and named in honor of General John Twiggs, Capital, Marion. Population, 8179; of whom 3559 were free, and 4620, slaves.

TWIN, a township in the S. E. part of Darke co., Ohio. Population, 1400.

TWIN, a township in the E. part of Preble co., Ohio. Population, 1950.

TWIN, a township in the S. W. part of Ross co., Ohio. Population, 2230.

TWIN RIVERS, of Manitowoc co., Wisconsin, are two small streams which rise in the E. part of the state, and enter Lake Michigan at the same point.

TWINSBURG, a post-township forming the N. E. extremity of Summit co., Ohio, intersected by the Cleveland and Pittsburg railroad. Population, 1281.

TWINSBURG, a post-village of Summit co., Ohio, 143 miles N. E. from Columbus. It has 4 churches, and a flourishing seminary with 150 pupils.

TWO BAYOU, a post-office of Washita co., Arkansas.

TWO LICK CREEK, of Indiana co., Pennsylvania, flows into Yellow creek.

TWO MILE BRANCH, a post-office of Smyth co., Virginia.

TWO MILE CREEK, a post-office of Davis co., Kentucky.

TWO MILE PRAIRIE, a post-office of Pulaski co., Indiana.

TWO RIVERS, a small post-village of Pike co., Pennsylvania, near the junction of the Lackawaxen with the Delaware.

TWO RIVERS, a post-village in Manitowoc co., Wisconsin, on the shore of Lake Michigan, 15 miles E. by N. from Manitowoc. This place has a large trade in lumber, fish, and leather. Population, 927.

TWO TAVERNS, a post-office of Adams co., Pa. TWYMAN'S STORE, a post-office of Spottsylvania co., Virginia.

TYBEE ISLAND, in Tybee bay, the S. side of the entrance to Savannah river, Georgia. At its N. end is a fixed light, 80 feet high. Lat. 32° N., lon. 80° 52' W.

TYE RIVER, a small stream in the S. E. central part of Virginia, rises at the base of the Blue Ridge, flows south-eastward through Nelson co., and enters James river. It furnishes motive-power for mills.

TYE RIVER MILLS, a post-office of Nelson co., Virginia, 128 miles W. from Richmond.

TYE RIVER WAREHOUSE, a post-office of Nelson co., Virginia.

TYGART'S CREEK, a post-office of Greenup co., Kentucky.

TYGART'S VALLEY RIVER, in the north-west part of Virginia, rises in Randolph county, among the Greenbrier mountains, passes through Barbour and Taylor counties, and unites with the West fork of the Monongahela, 1 mile south from Fairmont, in Marion county. Its general direction is northward; its whole length is estimated at 150 miles. It is navigable by small boats in the lower part of its course.

TYLER, a county in the N. W. part of Virginia, is situated on the Ohio river, some 50 miles below Wheeling; area 390 square miles. The Ohio river forms its north-western boundary, separating it from the State of Ohio, and it is intersected by Middle Island creek. The surface is hilly and broken, and partly covered with forests of good timber. The soil is excellent, well watered, and adapted to wool growing. Indian corn, wheat, oats, hay, and live stock are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 130,014 bushels of corn; 15,100 of wheat; 27,544 of oats, and 1737 tons of hay. There were 9 saw mills, 4 flour mills, 3 tanneries; 7 churches, and 145 pupils attending public schools. The county contains abundance of stone coal, iron ore, and good building stone; limestone is one of the principal rocks. Large quantities of ore resembling zinc are found. Middle Island creek is a fine mill stream. The county is intersected by three good turnpike-roads. Organized in 1814, and named in honor of John Tyler, governor of Virginia, in 1810. Capital, Middlebourn. Population, 5498; of whom 5460 were free, and 38, slaves.

TYLER, a county in the E. part of Texas, has an area of about 1200 square miles. The Neches river forms its boundary on the N. and E., and the Big Sandy creek on the S. The surface has but little elevation. The soil produces Indian corn, sweet potatoes, cotton, rice, and sugar. In 1850 this county yielded 35,099 bushels of corn; 12,320 of sweet potatoes; 184 bales of cotton; 5260 pounds of rice; 4945 pounds of butter, and 33 hogsheads of sugar. There were 35 pupils attending public schools, and 25 attending another school. Capital, Woodville. Pop., 1884, of whom 1476 were free, and 418, slaves.

TYLER, a post-village, capital of Smith co., Texas, about 220 miles N. from Galveston.

TYLER, a post-village of Winnebago co., Illinois, about 65 miles E. from Galena.

TYLER MOUNTAIN, a post-office of Kanawha co., Virginia.

TYLERSBURG, a post-office of Clarion co., Pa.

TYLER'S MILLS, a post-office of Orangeburg district, South Carolina.

TYLERSPORT, a post-office of Montgomery co., Pennsylvania.

TYLERSVILLE, a small post-village of Clarion co., Pennsylvania, about 85 miles N. N. E. from Pittsburg.

TYLERSVILLE, a small village of Clinton co., Pa., 10 miles S. by E. from Lock Haven.

TYLERSVILLE, a post-office of Laurens district, South Carolina.

TYMOCHTE creek, of Ohio, enters the Sandusky river, in Wyandot county.

TYMOCHTE, a post-township in the N. E. part of Wyandot co., Ohio. Pop., 1818.

TYMOCHTE, a post-village in the above township, on Tymochte creek, 75 miles N. by W. from Columbus.

TYNGSBOROUGH, a post-village in Middlesex co., Massachusetts, on Merrimack river, and the Nashua and Lowell railroad, 32 miles N. W. from Boston, contains 1 or 2 churches, and an academy. Pop. of the township, 799.

TYRE, a post-township forming the N. E. extremity of Seneca co., New York, on the Seneca river and the Erie canal. Pop., 1356.

TYRE SPRINGS, a post-office of Sumner co., Tennessee.

TYRINGHAM, a post-township in Berkshire co., Massachusetts, 126 miles W. by S. from Boston. Population, 821.

TYRONE, a post-village in Tyrone township, Steuben co., New York, 18 miles E. N. E. from Bath. Pop. of the township, 1894.

TYRONE, a township of Adams co., Pennsylvania, about 11 miles N. N. E. from Gettysburg. Population, 789.

TYRONE, a post-township of Blair co., Pennsylvania, about 15 miles N. N. E. from Hollidaysburg. Population, 1068.

TYRONE, a thriving post-village in the above township, on the Little Juniata river, and on the Central railroad, 117 miles W. by N. from Harrisburg. This village, which was commenced in 1849, is an important depot on the railroad, and is improving rapidly. The trade and travel of Centre and Clearfield counties meet the railroad at this point, from which a plank-road, about 30 miles long, has been laid to the Bald Eagle navigation. There is a large iron forge in operation here.

TYRONE, a township of Fayette co., Pa., 15 miles N. by E. from Uniontown. Pop., 1419.

TYRONE, a township of Perry co., Pennsylvania, about 8 miles S. by W. from Bloomfield. Population, 1069.

TYRONE, a village in Wilkes co., Georgia, 55 miles N. E. by N. from Milledgeville.

TYRONE, a post-office of Coshocton co., O.

TYRONE, a post-township forming the N. E. extremity of Livingston co., Mich. Pop., 867.

TYRONE MILLS, a post-office of Fayette co., Pennsylvania.

TYRREL, a county in the E. part of North Carolina, bordering on Albemarle and Pamlico sounds: area estimated at 320 square miles. It is intersected by Alligator river. The surface is level, and the soil sandy. A large part of it is covered with swamps, and forests of cypress, red cedar, and pine, which supply articles of export, in the form of shingles, staves, turpentine, and tar. In 1850 the county produced 149,385 bushels of corn, and 20,745 of sweet potatoes. It contained 1 corn and flour mill, 2 saw mills, and 21 shingle mills: 12 churches, and 400 pupils attending public schools. This county, one of the original precincts, was formed in 1729, and named in honor of Sir John Tyrrel, the proprietor of this part of the province. Capital, Columbia. Pop., 5183; of whom 3431 were free, and 1702, slaves.

TYRRELL, a small post-village of Venango co., Pennsylvania.

TYSON'S FURNACE, a post-office of Windsor co., Vermont.

TYSONVILLE, a small village of Gibson co., Tennessee, 15 miles N. from Trenton.

U

UCHEE creek, of Columbia co., Georgia, flows into the Savannah river.

UCHEE, a post-village of Russell co., Alabama, about 68 miles E. from Montgomery.

UCHEE ANNA, or EUCHEE ANNA, a post-village, capital of Walton co., Florida, about 120 miles W. from Tallahassee. It contains a court house, and several stores.

UDINA, a post-office of Kane co., Illinois.

UFFINGTON, a post-office of Monongalia co., Virginia.

UFOIKEE CREEK, of Alabama, flows through Macon co., into Tallapoosa river, about 10 miles W. by N. from Tuskegee.

UHAREE, or UWHARIE, a small river of North Carolina, which flows through Randolph and Montgomery counties, and enters the Yadkin, a few miles below the Narrows.

UHLERSVILLE, a post-office of Northampton co., Pennsylvania.

UHLERVILLE, a small village in the N. part of Bucks co., Pennsylvania, on the Delaware river.

UHRICKSVILLE, a thriving post-village of Mill township, Tuscarawas county, Ohio, on Stillwater creek, about 100 miles N. E. from Columbus. It is at the head of slackwater navigation, a few miles from the Ohio canal. Population in 1853, about 900.

ULAO, a post-office of Washington co., Wis.

ULCOFAUHACHEE, or ALCOFAUHALCHEE, a small river in the N. central part of Georgia, rises in Gwinett county, flows southward, and enters the Ocmulgee river, on the boundary between Butts and Jasper counties. It is sometimes called the Alcovy.

ULSTER, a county in the E. S. E. part of New York, has an area of about 1150 square miles. It is bounded on the E. by the Hudson river, and is drained by Rondout, Walkill, Neversink, and Shawangunk rivers, and by Esopus creek, which supply motive-power. The surface is generally uneven and mountainous, the Catskill and Shawangunk ridges traversing the county. The soil is usually productive where not too rugged for cultivation. Indian corn, oats, potatoes, and grass are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 333,057 bushels of corn; 827,899 of oats; 234,324 of potatoes; 67,407 tons of hay, and 1,211,650 pounds of butter. There were 41 flour mills, 90 saw mills, 3 paper mills, 2 powder mills, 8 hydraulic cement factories, 1 cotton and 4 woollen factories, and 37 tanneries. It contained 81 churches, 5 newspaper offices, 8389 pupils attending public schools, and 557 attending academies and other schools. Iron ore, limestone, slate, and marl are abundant, and lead, plumbago, coal, and alum have been found. The Hudson river is navigable for ships along its entire eastern border. The county is intersected by the Delaware and Hudson canal. Named from Ulster, a province in Ireland. Capital, Kingston. Population, 59,384.

ULSTER, New York. See SAUGERTIES.

ULSTER, a post-township of Bradford co., Pennsylvania, on the right bank of the North branch of the Susquehanna river, and on the North Branch canal. Population, 1082.

ULSTERVILLE, a post-village of Ulster co., N. Y., about 90 miles S. S. W. from Albany.

ULTIMA THULE, a post-office of Sevier co., Arkansas.

ULYSSES, a township of Tompkins co., New York, on the W. side of Cayuga lake, 9 miles N W from Ithaca. Population, 3122.

ULYSSES, a post-township of Potter co., Pennsylvania, about 15 miles N. E. by E. from Coudersport. Population, 699.

ULYSSES CENTRE, a post-office of Potter co., Pennsylvania.

UMBAGOG lake, of New England, is situated partly in Oxford county, Maine, and partly in Coos county, New Hampshire. Its length is about 12 miles, and its breadth varies from 1 to 5 miles. The outlet unites with the Margalloway river to form the Androscoggin.

UMCOLCUS, a post-office of Aroostook co., Me.

UMPQUA, a county in the W. part of Oregon, has an area estimated at above 1500 square miles. It is bounded on the W. by the Pacific, and is drained by the Umpqua river, from which it derives its name. This county was formed since 1850, and consequently the census of that year gives us no information respecting it.

UMPQUA CITY, a post-village of Umpqua co., Oregon, on the Umpqua river, a short distance above its mouth, about 100 miles S. S. W. from Salem.

UNADILLA RIVER, near the centre of New York, forms the boundary between Otsego county on the left, and Madison and Chenango counties on the right. It flows into the East branch of the Susquehanna river.

UNADILLA, a post-township forming the S. W. extremity of Otsego co., New York, on the E. side of Unadilla river. Population, 2463.

UNADILLA, a post-village in the above township, on the Susquehanna river, about 100 miles W. S. W. from Albany. It contains a bank, and several mills and stores.

UNADILLA, a post-township forming the S. W. extremity of Livingston co., Michigan. Population, 1027.

UNADILLA, a post-village in the above township, on Portage river, about 33 miles S. E. from Lansing, has 1 or 2 mills.

UNADILLA CENTRE, a post-village of Otsego co., New York, about 30 miles S. W. from Cooperstown.

UNADILLA FORKS, a post-village of Otsego co., New York, on the Unadilla river, at the junction of its branches, about 85 miles W. by N. from Albany. It contains several mills and factories.

UNAKA, or UNIKA MOUNTAINS, a name given to a portion of the Appalachian mountains, dividing North Carolina from Tennessee, and situated S. W. from the Tennessee river.

UNCASVILLE, a post-village of Montville township, New London co., Connecticut, on the reservation of the Mohegan Indians, and near the New London, Palmer, and Willimantic railroad, about 6 miles N. from New London. Name derived from Uncas, a celebrated Indian chief.

UNDERHILL, a post-township in Chittenden co., Vermont, 33 miles N. W. from Montpelier. Population, 1599.

UNDERHILL CENTRE, a post-office of Chittenden co., Vermont.

UNDERWOOD, a post-office of Hopkins co., Ky.

UNDERWOODS, a post-office of Marion co., O.

UNION, a county in the E. central part of Pennsylvania, has an area of 550 square miles. The entire eastern boundary is formed by the Susquehanna river, together with its West branch. Penn's creek flows through the middle of the county, which is drained also by Buffalo, White Deer, and Middle creeks. The surface is diversified by minor rides of the Alleghany mountains, the names of which are Buffalo, Nittany, Shade, and Jack's mountains. The soil of the valleys, especially that of Buffalo creek, is extremely fertile. Wheat is the staple product; Indian corn, hay, butter, oats, pork, and beef are also exported. In 1850 this county produced 353,095 bushels of wheat; 180,563 of corn; 232,332 of oats; 20,811 tons of hay, and 377,190 pounds of butter. There were 39 flour and grist mills, 9 saw mills, 9 manufactories of coaches, 9 of cabinet ware, and 2 of farming implements, 4 woollen factories, 3 boat-yards, 8 iron foundries and 21 tanneries. It contained 40 churches, 8 newspaper offices, 7463 pupils attending public schools, and 225 attending academies or other schools. Iron and limestone are the most valuable minerals. The creek affords motive-power for numerous mills and factories. The Susquehanna canal passes along the E. border. Formed in 1813. Capital, New Berlin. Population, 26,083.

UNION, a county in the S. part of North Carolina, bordering on South Carolina: area estimated at 350 square miles. It is drained by Richardson's and Warsaw creeks. The surface is undulating or hilly; a portion of the soil is productive. Wheat, Indian corn, and cotton are cultivated; lumber and tar are procured from the forests. In 1850 this county produced 59,856 bushels of wheat; 39,875 of corn, and 2264 bales of cotton. It contained 23 churches, 1038 pupils attending public schools, and 50 attending an academy. Granite underlies a part of the surface, and extensive beds of slate suitable for building are found in other parts. Several rich gold mines are worked, and it is stated that lumps have been found worth from $2000 to $3000 each. Hones or whetstones of fine quality are found eight miles from Monroe. According to some accounts, General Andrew Jackson was born in this county, about a quarter of a mile from the border of South Carolina. Formed in the year 1842, from parts of Anson and Mecklenburg counties. Capital, Monroe. Population, 10,051; of whom 8069 were free, and 1982, slaves.

UNION, a district in the N. part of South Carolina, contains about 500 square miles. It is bounded on the E. by the Broad river, on the S. by the Ennoree, and intersected by the Pacolet and Tyger rivers. The surface is hilly, the soil productive, and well watered. Cotton, Indian corn, wheat, oats, sweet potatoes, cattle, and swine are the staples. In 1850 the district produced 14,156 bales of cotton; 655,078 bushels of corn; 68,826 of wheat; 99,739 of oats, and 47,127 of sweet potatoes. There were 8 tanneries, 1 iron foundry, 25 grist mills, and 4 saw and planing mills. It contained 40 churches, 285 pupils attending public schools, and 348 attending academies or other schools. This district is remarkable for mineral wealth: one gold mine is worked with profit; iron ore of fine quality is found in immense quantities; and granite is one of the principal rocks. It is intersected by the Spartanburg and Union railroad. The streams furnish motive-power for mills, &c. Capital, Unionville. Population, 19,852; of whom 9460 were free, and 10,392, slaves.

UNION, a county in the N. part of Georgia, bordering on North Carolina, has an area of 630 square miles. It is drained by the head streams of the Hiawassee, Notley, and Toccoa rivers, which flow north-westward to the Tennessee river. The county is traversed by the Blue Ridge, several peaks of which are distinguished by the names of Ivy Log, Cooper's, Track Rock, and Round Top mountains. Pilot mountain, situated in the N. E. part, is said to be very difficult of ascent; the north-west side, according to White's Statistics, is 400 yards perpendicular. Indian corn, rye, oats, and sweet potatoes are the staples: the highlands produce good pasture. In 1850 there were raised 274,345 bushels of corn; 40,428 of oats, and 30,867 of sweet potatoes. It contained 1 forge, 2 tanneries; 12 churches, and 275 pupils attending public schools. Union county abounds in valuable minerals, particularly iron, granite, marble, and gold. Several mines of gold are worked, which are said to be rich; and a few diamonds have been found. Organized in 1832. Capital, Blairsville. Population, 7234; of whom 6956 were free, and 278, slaves.

UNION, a parish in the N. part of Louisiana, bordering on Arkansas, contains about 1000 square miles. It is bounded on the E. by Washita river, and intersected by its affluents, the D'Arbonne and Lutre bayous. The surface is diversified by pine-clad hills of moderate height. The soil is sandy and fertile, producing cotton and Indian corn. In 1850 there were raised 5213 bales of cotton; 292,095 bushels of corn, and 105,820 of sweet potatoes. It contained 11 churches, 1 newspaper office, 514 pupils attending public schools, and 125 attending other schools. Extensive forests of pine, oak, and hickory are found here. The Washita is navigated by steamboats on the border of the parish, and the D'Arbonne is navigable to Farmersville, the seat of justice. Population, 8203; of whom 4778 were free, and 3425, slaves.

UNION, a county in the S. part of Arkansas, bordering on Louisiana: area about 1230 square miles. It is bounded on the N. W. by Washita river, and drained by Sulphur creek, and the North fork of the Bayou D'Arbonne. The surface is moderately hilly; the soil is sandy and productive. Cotton and Indian corn are the staples. In 1850 it produced 7037 bales of cotton; 341,406 bushels of corn; 93,660 of sweet potatoes, and 33,861 pounds of butter. The quantity of sweet potatoes was the greatest produced in any one county of the state; and the quantity of cotton greater than in any except Chicot county. It contained 14 churches, and 1 newspaper office. The Washita river is navigable by steamboats. In 1850, Union was the most populous county in the state. Capital, El Dorado. Population, 10,298; of whom 5531 were free, and 4767, slaves.

UNION, a county in the N. W. part of Kentucky, bordering on the Ohio river, which separates it from Indiana and Illinois, has an area estimated at 350 square miles. The Ohio river washes the whole western, and part of the northern border: Tradewater creek forms its boundary on the S. W., and Highland creek on the N. E. The surface is level, undulating, and hilly; the soil is good. Indian corn, oats, tobacco, and hemp are the staples. Cattle, horses, and swine are also exported. In 1850 this county produced 680,640 bushels of corn; 11,994 of wheat; 50,045 of oats, and 494,784 pounds of tobacco. It contained 18 churches, 1284 pupils attending public schools, and 71 attending academies or other schools. Extensive beds of bituminous coal and several sulphur and chalybeate springs are found in it. Formed in 1811. Capital, Morganfield. Population, 9012; of whom 6720 were free, and 2292, slaves.

UNION, a county in the W. central part of Ohio, contains about 445 square miles. It is drained by Darby, Mill, Rush, and Boques creeks, affluents of the Scioto river. The surface is generally level, and heavily timbered, except some prairies of small extent: the soil is very fertile. Indian corn, wheat, grass, dairy products, and pork are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 624,898 bushels of corn; 26,563 of wheat, and 16,969 tons of hay. It contained 26 churches, 1 newspaper office, 3279 pupils attending public schools, and 32 attending an academy. Valuable limestone quarries are worked in the eastern part. Three railroads are in course of construction in the county, the Springfield and Mansfield, the Columbus and Urbanna, and the Marysville and Bellefontaine. Capital, Marysville. Population, 12,204.

UNION, a county in the E. part of Indiana, bordering on Ohio, contains 168 square miles. It is drained by the East Fork of Whitewater river. The surface is level in the E., and undulating in the W., and the soil is uniformly good. The exports consist of wheat, corn, oats, pork, cattle, and horses. In 1850 it produced 631,515 bushels of corn; 58,862 of wheat; 52,930 of oats, and 3665 tons of hay. It contained 27 churches, 1678 pupils attending public schools, and 130 attending other schools. The underlying rock is the blue or Trenton limestone. Union county is liberally supplied with water-power. It is intersected by 1 or 2 railroads leading to Cincinnati. Capital, Liberty. Population, 6944.

UNION, a county near the S. extremity of Illinois, has an area of about 320 square miles. The Mississippi river forms its western boundary, and the county is drained by Clear creek. The surface is diversified, and in some parts hilly; the soil is fertile. Indian corn, wheat, oats, cattle, and pork are the staples. In 1850 it produced 314,705 bushels of corn; 31,902 of wheat, and 42,249 of oats. It contained 27 churches, 1 newspaper office, and 1300 pupils attending public schools. This county is rich in minerals, among which are iron, lead, stone coal, chalk, porcelain clay, alum, and copperas. Saltpetre caves are numerous. The lead mines have not been much explored; the beds of coal and porcelain are extensive. The route of the Central railroad passes through the county. Capital, Jonesborough. Pop., 7615.

UNION, a county in the S. S. W. part of Iowa, has an area of 432 square miles. It is drained by the Crooked fork of Grand river, and several of its affluents. The soil is said to be fertile, but is mostly uncultivated. The census gives us no information respecting this county, which has but few inhabitants. Capital, not yet established.

UNION, a post-township in Lincoln co., Maine, 28 miles S. E. from Augusta. Population, 1974.

UNION, a post-office of Carroll co., N. H.

UNION, a post-township in Tolland co., Connecticut, 33 miles N. E. from Hartford. Population, 729.

UNION, a small village in Providence co., Rhode Island, about 15 miles N. by W. from Providence.

UNION, a thriving post-village of Broome co., New York, in the valley of the Nanticoke creek, and one-half mile from the Union station of the New York and Erie railroad, 233 miles from New York city. Settled in 1789, by Judge Mersereau. Population of the village, about 1200; of the township, 2143.

UNION, a township of Camden co., New Jersey, on the Delaware river, about 4 miles S. from Camden. Population, 1095.

UNION, a post-township in Essex co., New Jersey, about 46 miles N. E. from Trenton. Population, 1662.

UNION, or CONNECTICUT FARMS, a post-village in the above township, about 50 miles N. E. from Trenton.

UNION, a township forming the S. E. extremity of Adams co., Pa. Population, 952.

UNION, a township forming the N. W. extremity of Bedford co., Pennsylvania. Population, 1291.

UNION, a township in the S. E. part of Berks co., Pennsylvania, on the right bank of the Schuylkill river. Pop., 1665.

UNION, a township of Clearfield co., Pennsylvania. Population, 262.

UNION, a new township of Erie co., Pennsylvania. Population, 1076.

UNION, a township of Fayette co., Pennsylvania, contains the county seat. Pop., 5206.

UNION, a township of Huntingdon co., Pa., 8 miles S. from Huntingdon. Pop., 631.

UNION, a new township of Jefferson co., Pennsylvania. Population, 597.

UNION, a township forming the N. E. extremity of Lebanon co., Pa. Pop., 1590.

UNION, a township of Luzerne co., Pennsylvania, on the right bank of the North branch of the Susquehanna river, about 14 miles W. from Wilkesbarre. Pop., 1308.

UNION, a township of Mifflin co., Pennsylvania, about 8 miles N. W. from Lewistown. Population, 1284.

UNION, a township forming the N. extremity of Schuylkill co., Pennsylvania, intersected by the Catawissa railroad. Population, 1064.

UNION, a township forming the S. E. extremity of Tioga co., Pa. Population, 825.

UNION, a township of Union co., Pennsylvania, on the right bank of the Susquehanna river, opposite Sunbury, contains New Berlin, the county seat. Population, 1452.

UNION, a small village of Union co., Pa.

UNION, a township of Washington co., Pennsylvania, about 15 miles S. from Pittsburgh. Population, 1192.

UNION, a small village of Washington co., Pa.

UNION, a post-office of York co., Pa.

UNION, a handsome post-village, capital of Monroe co., Virginia, 208 miles W. from Richmond. It contains 2 or 3 churches. Population, about 500.

UNION, a thriving village of Randolph co., North Carolina, on Deep river, a few miles from Ashborough. It has a fine water-power and a cotton factory.

UNION, a post-office of Washington co., N. C.

UNION, a post-village of Greene co., Alabama, 33 miles S. S. W. from Tuscaloosa.

UNION, a small village of Jefferson co., Miss.

UNION, a post-village of Newton co., Mississippi, 75 miles E. from Jackson.

UNION, a township in Ashley co., Arkansas. Population, 192.

UNION, a township in Conway co., Arkansas. Population, 319.

UNION, a post-township in Fulton co., Arkansas. Population, 363.

UNION, a township in Greene co., Arkansas. Population, 473.

UNION, a township in Independence co., Arkansas. Population, 256.

UNION, a township in Izard co., Arkansas. Population, 440.

UNION, a township in Lafayette co., Arkansas. Population, 550.

UNION, a township in Lawrence co., Arkansas. Population, 530.

UNION, a township in Marion co., Arkansas. Population, 543.

UNION, a township in Newton co., Arkansas. Population, 163.

UNION, a township in Van Buren co., Arkansas. Population, 258.

UNION, a township in White co., Arkansas. Population, 244.

UNION, a post-office of Boone co., Ky.

UNION, a township in the N. W. central part of Belmont co., Ohio. Population, 1872.

UNION, a township in the S. part of Brown co., Ohio, on the Ohio river. Pop., 4379.

UNION, a township forming the S. E. extremity of Butler county, Ohio, intersected by the Cincinnati, Hamilton, and Dayton railroad. It contains the village of Ripley. Population, 2173.

UNION, a township in the S. central part of Carroll co., Ohio. Population, 804.

UNION, a township in the S. E. part of Champaign co., Ohio. Population, 1646.

UNION, a township in the W. part of Clermont co., Ohio. Population, 1800.

UNION, a township in the central part of Clinton co., Ohio, contains Wilmington, the county seat. Population, 3558.

UNION, a township in the central part of Fayette co., Ohio, contains the county seat. Population, 2392.

UNION, a township in the W. part of Hancock co., Ohio. Population, 1150.

UNION, a township in the N. W. part of Highland co., Ohio. Population, 1408.

UNION, a township in the E. part of Knox co., Ohio, partly intersected by the Walhonding and Vernon rivers. Population, 1192.

UNION, a township in the S. E. part of Lawrence co., Ohio, on the Ohio river. Population, 1318.

UNION, a township in the S. part of Licking co., Ohio, partly intersected by the Ohio canal. Population, 2368.

UNION, a township in the S. part of Logan co., Ohio. Population, 804.

UNION, a township in the W. part of Madison co., Ohio, intersected by the Columbus and Xenia railroad. Population, 2160.

UNION, a township forming the N. E. extremity of Mercer co., Ohio, intersected by St. Mary's river. Population, 746.

UNION, a township forming the S. W. extremity of Miami co., Ohio, intersected by Miami river. Population, 2227.

UNION, a township in Monroe co., Ohio. Population, 1930.

UNION, a post-village of Montgomery co., O.

UNION, a township in the W. part of Morgan co., Ohio. Population, 1795.

UNION, a township in the E. part of Muskingum co., Ohio. Population, 1559.

UNION, a township in Pike co., Ohio. Population, 564.

UNION, a township in Putnam co., Ohio. Population, 515.

UNION, a township in the N. central part of Ross co., Ohio, on the W. side of Scioto river, and intersected by the Ohio canal. Population, 2666.

UNION, a township in the W. part of Scioto co., Ohio, on the W. side of Scioto river. Population, 605.

UNION, a township in the E. part of Tuscarawas co., Ohio. Population, 944.

UNION, a township forming the S. W. extremity of Union co., Ohio. Pop., 1205.

UNION, a township in Van Wert co., Ohio. Population, 84.

UNION, a township in the central part of Warren co., Ohio, intersected by the Little Miami railroad and the Miami canal.

UNION, or UNION VILLAGE, a Shaker village in the above township, about 30 miles N. N. W. from Cincinnati. Population, 548.

UNION, a township in the central part of Washington co., Ohio, intersected by the Muskingum river. Population, 1165.

UNION, a township in the N. part of Branch co., Michigan. Population, 1271.

UNION, a post-village of Cass co., Michigan, 160 miles W. S. W. from Detroit.

UNION, a township in Adams co., Indiana. Population, 412.

UNION, a township in Bartholomew co., Indiana. Population, 588.

UNION, a township in Crawford co., Indiana. Population, 622.

UNION, a township in De Kalb co., Indiana. Population, 778.

UNION, a township in Delaware co., Indiana. Population, 1012.

UNION, a township in Elkhart co., Indiana. Population, 632.

UNION, a township in Fulton co., Indiana. Population, 734.

UNION, a township in Grant co., Indiana. Population, 544.

UNION, a township in Hancock co., Indiana. Population, 522.

UNION, a township in Johnson co., Indiana. Population, 1227.

UNION, a township in La Porte co., Indiana. Population, 808.

UNION, a township in Madison co., Indiana. Population, 623.

UNION, a township in Miami co., Indiana. Population, 812.

UNION, a township in Montgomery co., Indiana. Population, 5627.

UNION, a township in Parke co., Indiana. Population, 1188.

UNION, a township in Perry co., Indiana. Population, 747.

UNION, a post-office of Pike co., Indiana.

UNION, a township in Porter co., Indiana. Population, 487.

UNION, a village and important railroad station of Randolph county, Indiana, on the eastern boundary of the state, 85 miles E. N. E. from Indianapolis. Six or seven railroads meet at this point, viz. the Indianapolis and Bellefontaine and the Bellefontaine and Indiana; the Columbus, Piqua, and Indiana; the Greenville and Miami, the Marion and Missisinnewa, and the Cincinnati, Union, and Fort Wayne. The first, second, and fourth are finished. The post-office is Union City. Laid out in 1849.

UNION, a township in Rush co., Indiana. Population, 1179.

UNION, a township in St. Joseph co., Ind.

UNION, a township in Shelby co., Indiana.

UNION, a township in Union co., Indiana. Population, 673.

UNION, a township in Wells co., Indiana. Population, 567.

UNION, a small post-village of Champaign co., Ill., 105 miles E. by N. from Springfield.

UNION, a township in Fulton co., Illinois. Population, 916.

UNION, a small village of McHenry co., Illinois, on the Galena and Chicago Union railroad, 62 miles N. W. from Chicago.

UNION, a post-village, capital of Franklin co., Missouri, on the Pacific railroad, (unfinished,) 55 miles W. from St. Louis. The Bourbeuse river, which passes near the village, affords fine water-power. Rich mines of copper, iron, and lead are worked in the county. Union has one newspaper office.

UNION, a township in Marion co., Missouri. Population, 988.

UNION, a township in Randolph co., Missouri. Population, 504.

UNION, a township in St. Genevieve co., Missouri. Population, 898.

UNION, a township in Washington co., Missouri. Population, 1761.

UNION, a post-office of Van Buren co., Iowa.

UNION, a post-township forming the N. W. extremity of Rock co., Wisconsin. Pop., 1050.

UNION, a post-village in the above township, 22 miles S. by E. from Madison.

UNION, a post-office of Santa Clara co., Cal.

UNION BRIDGE, a post-office of Carroll co., Maryland.

UNION BRIDGE, a post-office of Titus co., Texas.

UNION CENTRE, a post-office of Broome co., New York.

UNION CITY, a post-village of Branch co., Michigan, on the St. Joseph's river, at the mouth of Coldwater river, at the head of navigation, 115 miles W. by S. from Detroit. It contains an iron foundry and several mills.

UNION CITY, Randolph co., Indiana. See UNION.

UNION CHURCH, a post-office of Jefferson co., Mississippi.

UNION CORNERS, a post-office of Livingston co., New York.

UNION CORNERS, a post-village in Van Buren co., Iowa, on St. Fox river, 90 miles S. S. W. from Iowa City.

UNION CROSS ROADS, a small village of Gloucester co., New Jersey, about 4 miles S. E. from Woodbury.

UNION CROSS ROADS, a post-office in Union parish, Louisiana.

UNIONDALE, a post-office of Susquehanna co., Pennsylvania.

UNION DEPÔT, a village of Dauphin co., Pa., about 30 miles N. from Harrisburg.

UNION DISTRICT, a post-office of Washtenaw co., Michigan.

UNION FALLS, a post-village of Clinton co., New York, on Saranac river, about 160 miles N. from Albany.

UNION FURNACE, a post-office of Huntingdon co., Pennsylvania.

UNION GROVE, a post-office of Prince George co., Virginia.

UNION GROVE, a post-office of Whitesides co., Illinois.

UNION GROVE, a post-office of Racine co., Wisconsin.

UNION HALL, a small post-village of Franklin co., Virginia, 200 miles W. S. W. from Richmond.

UNION LEVEL, a post-office of Mecklenburg co., Virginia.

UNION LINE, a post-office of Spartanburg district, South Carolina.

UNION MEETING HOUSE, a post-office of Baltimore co., Maryland.

UNION MILLS, a post-village of Fulton co., New York, 40 miles N. N. W. from Albany.

UNION MILLS, a post-village of Erie co., Pennsylvania, on French creek, and on the Sunbury and Erie railroad, 22 miles S. E. from Erie.

UNION MILLS, a post-village in Carroll co., Md., 65 miles N. N. W. from Annapolis.

UNION MILLS, a post-village of Fluvanna county, Virginia, on the Rivanna river, 75 miles N. W. from Richmond. The river affords water-power, which is used in a cotton factory and several mills.

UNION MILLS, a post-office of Heard co., Ga.

UNION MILLS, a flourishing post-village of La Porte co., Indiana, 11 miles S. S. W. from La Porte.

UNION MILLS, a thriving post-village of Mahaska county, Iowa, on the Des Moines river, about 10 miles W. from Oskaloosa.

UNION PLAIN, a post-office of Brown co., O.

UNION POINT, a small post-village of Greene co., Georgia, on the Georgia railroad, at its junction with the Athens branch, 48 miles N. by E. from Milledgeville.

UNION POINT, a post-office of Concordia parish, Louisiana.

UNION POINT, a post-office of Union co., Illinois, on the Ohio, about 80 miles W. by S. from Shawneetown.

UNION PRAIRIE, a post-office of Allomakee co., Iowa.

UNION RIVER, of Hancock co., Maine, falls into the Atlantic ocean opposite Mount Desert Island. It has numerous tributaries, and in some parts is rapid, affording fine mill seats.

UNION SETTLEMENT, a post-office of Oswego co., New York.

UNION SOCIETY, a post-office of Greene co., New York.

UNION SPRINGS, a post-village in Springport township, Cayuga county, New York, is beautifully situated on the E. shore of Cayuga lake, 10 miles S. W. from Auburn. It contains 1 Catholic and 5 Protestant churches, a newspaper office, a female seminary, 9 dry-goods stores, 2 flouring mills, 2 steam saw and planing mills, 2 lumber-yards, 1 machine shop, 1 foundry, and 1 manufactory of farming implements and other articles. There are within the limits of the village several springs, supplying motive-power to two mills, the waters of which never vary in quantity, even in seasons of the greatest drought; hence it has been supposed that they issue from a subterranean channel communicating with Owasco lake, 10 miles distant, the surface of which is said to be some 200 feet above the level of the springs. Quarries of limestone and gypsum are worked at this place. Plank-roads connect it with Auburn and Levanna, and a steam ferry-boat plies across the lake. Population in 1853, about 1000.

UNION SPRINGS, a post-village of Macon co., Alabama, on the Girard and Mobile railroad, about 40 miles S. E. from Montgomery.

UNION SPRINGS, a post-office of Harrison co., Texas.

UNION SPRINGS, a post-office of Union co., Arkansas.

UNION SQUARE, a post-village of Oswego co., New York, on Salmon creek, 12 miles E. from Oswego.

UNION SQUARE, a post-village of Montgomery co., Pa., 92 miles E. from Harrisburg.

UNION STAR, a post-office of Breckenridge co., Kentucky.

UNIONTOWN, a flourishing post-borough of Union township, capital of Fayette county, Pennsylvania, is pleasantly situated on the National road, about 55 miles S. by E. from Pittsburg. It is compactly built, and contains a neat court house, 7 brick churches, 1 academy, 1 female seminary, and Madison College. Three or four newspapers are published here. The surrounding country is fertile and populous. The abundance of stone coal in this vicinity renders it an advantageous site for manufactories, of which there are several in operation. Population in 1850, 2333; in 1853, about 2700.

UNIONTOWN, a village of Lycoming county, Pennsylvania, on the Susquehanna river, 12 miles S. from Williamsport. It contained in 1851, 4 stores, and near 200 inhabitants.

UNIONTOWN, a post-village of Carroll co., Maryland, 40 miles N. W. from Baltimore. Population in 1850, 356.

UNIONTOWN, a post-village in Perry co.,

Alabama, on the Alabama and Mississippi railroad, 60 miles S. from Tuscaloosa. Population, estimated at 600.

UNIONTOWN, a post-village of Union co., Kentucky, on the Ohio river, 244 miles below Louisville, has several stores.

UNIONTOWN, a post-village of Belmont co., Ohio, 114 miles E. from Columbus. Population, about 300.

UNIONTOWN, a post-village of Stark co., Ohio, 132 miles N. E. from Columbus. Population in 1850, 245.

UNIONTOWN, a small post-village of Wells co., Ind., 112 miles N. E. from Indianapolis.

UNIONTOWN, a post-village of Knox co., Illinois, on the Peoria and Oquawka railroad, 26 miles W. from Peoria.

UNIONTOWN, a post-office of Indian Territory, Missouri.

UNIONTOWN, a post-town of Trinity co., in the N. N. W. part of California, is situated on Humboldt harbor and on the main road from Benicia to Klamath, 235 miles in a straight line N. N. W. from San Francisco.

UNION VAL, a township of Dutchess co., New York, 12 miles E. from Poughkeepsie. Population, 1552.

UNION VALLEY, a post-office of Cortland co., New York.

UNION VILLAGE, a post-village in Orange co., Vt., 46 miles S. E. from Montpelier.

UNION VILLAGE, a post-village of Broome co., New York, about 20 miles N. by W. from Binghamton.

UNION VILLAGE, a post-village of Washington county, New York, on the Battenkill river, about 35 miles N. N. E. from Albany. It contains several churches, an academy, a bank, and has manufactures of cotton, wool, iron, and other articles.

UNION VILLAGE, a post-village in Northumberland co., Virginia, 88 miles E. N. E. from Richmond.

UNION VILLAGE, Warren co., Ohio. See UNION.

UNIONVILLE, a post-village of Hartford co., Connecticut, on the Collinsville branch of the New Haven and Northampton railroad, about 17 miles S. W. by W. from Hartford. It contains 1 church, and 2 stores.

UNIONVILLE, a post-village of Orange co., New York, about 120 miles S. S. W. from Albany.

UNIONVILLE, formerly WRANGLEBOROUGH, a small village of Atlantic co., New Jersey, is situated on Nacote creek, about 13 miles E. N. E. from May's Landing.

UNIONVILLE, a flourishing post-village of Centre county, Pennsylvania, is situated in Bald Eagle valley, 6 miles W. from Bellefonte. A plank-road connects it with the Central railroad at Tyrone. It contained in 1851, 3 stores, 1 flour mill, and 1 tannery. The name of the post-office is FLEMING.

UNIONVILLE, a handsome and thriving post-village of Chester county, Pennsylvania, 35 miles W. by S. from Philadelphia. It is well built, and surrounded by a rich and highly cultivated country. It contains 3 churches, 2 boarding-schools of respectable patronage, 5 stores, and about 300 inhabitants.

UNIONVILLE, a small village of Lehigh co., Pennsylvania, 9 miles from Allentown.

UNIONVILLE, a post-village in Frederick co., Md., 67 miles N. W. from Annapolis.

UNIONVILLE, a post-village, capital of Union district, South Carolina, 70 miles N. N. W. from Columbia. The surrounding country is hilly, and contains an abundance of granite and iron ore. The Spartanburg and Union railroad passes through it, connecting it with the Greenville and Columbia railroad.

UNIONVILLE, a post-village in Monroe co., Georgia, 55 miles W. by N. from Milledgeville.

UNIONVILLE, a post-office of Blount co., Alabama.

UNIONVILLE, a post-office of Cass co., Tex.

UNIONVILLE, a post-village in Bedford co., Tennessee, 46 miles S. S. E. from Nashville.

UNIONVILLE, a post-village of Lake co., Ohio, near the Cleveland and Erie railroad, 184 miles N. E. from Columbus. It is one of the largest villages in the county. Population, estimated at 700.

UNIONVILLE, a small village of Morgan co., Ohio.

UNIONVILLE, a post-village of Monroe co., Indiana, 8 or 9 miles N. E. from Bloomington.

UNIONVILLE, a post-village of Appanoose co., Iowa, about 120 miles S. W. from Iowa City.

UNIONVILLE CENTRE, a post-village of Union co., Ohio, on Big Darby creek, 25 miles N. W. from Columbus.

UNIPOLIS, a post-office of Auglaize co., O.

UNISON, a post-village of Loudon co., Virginia, 16 miles S. W. from Leesburg, contains 3 churches, and several stores.

UNISON, a post-office of Delaware co., Ohio.

UNITARIA, a post-office of Broome co., New York.

UNITED STATES, THE, a federal republic, occupying more than half the territory of the temperate zone, in North America, lies between 24° 30' and 49° N. lat., and between 66° 50' and 124° 30' W. lon., and is bounded on the N. by British America, from which it is partly separated by the lakes Superior, Huron, St. Clair, Erie, and Ontario, and by the river St. Lawrence; E. and N. E. by the British province of New Brunswick and by the Atlantic ocean; S. by the Gulf of Mexico and the Mexican republic, from which it is chiefly separated by the Rio Grande del Norte and Gila rivers; and on the W. by the Pacific ocean. The territory of the United States now forms nearly a parallelogram of about 2400 miles in mean length from E. to W., and about 1300 miles in average breadth from N. to S. The extreme length, however, is nearly 2700 miles, and its greatest breadth about 1600. The domain of the United States has been more than doubled since the formation of the confederacy, by the acquisition, in 1803, of the Territory of Louisiana; by the purchase of Florida, in 1819; by the annexation of Texas, in 1846, and by the conquest of California and New Mexico, in 1848. The whole forms an area, according to the estimate of Colonel Abert, chief of the Topographical Bureau, at Washington, of 2,988,153 square miles, nearly equalling in extent that of the continent of Europe. The same authority assigns 778,266 square miles of this area to the Pacific slope, 1,237,311 to the Mississippi valley, and 967,576 to the Atlantic slope. The census report of Mr. Kennedy, however, estimates the entire area at 3,230,572 square miles.

Population.—In no region of the globe, ancient or modern, under one government, and intermingling among each other in the daily offices of public and private life, was there ever a population composed of such varied elements as in the United States—English, Irish, German, Scotch, French, and Welsh, besides a small admixture from every other state in Europe, from the West Indies and South America, from Africa, Asia, and even from the isles of the Pacific. Though the English or Anglo-Saxon is undoubtedly the stem, and that race founded the principal colonies, and gives tone to the customs, manners, and laws of the country, yet, so large is the infusion from other stocks, (estimated at 5,000,000 by the Hon. Edward Everett,) as to make the national characteristics, both of physiognomy and manners, essentially distinct from the English, though still bearing a strong resemblance to them. At the taking of the first census after the formation of the present government of the United States, in 1790, the inhabitants numbered 3,929,827; 5,305,941, in 1800; 7,239,814, in 1810; 9,638,191, in 1820; 12,866,020, in 1830; 17,069,453, in 1840; 23,263,488, in 1850; of whom 9,920,157 (California not included) were white males; 9,498,769 white females; 202,688 free colored males; 218,983 free colored females; 1,600,794 male slaves, and 1,599,155 female slaves. The population was distributed as follows:—In the New England, or Eastern States, 2,728,106; in the Middle States, 6,573,305; in the Southern States, 6,270,667; in the Western States, 7,382,426, and in the territories, California and District of Columbia, 308,984. Of the entire population, 19,553,928 were whites; 433,643, free colored, and 3,204,347, slaves. The regular increase of the population, including the large accession by emigration, (now amounting to nearly 400,000 a year,) is remarkable, forming about an average of 35 per cent. for each of the 6 decennial periods that have occurred since 1790, for the white population, while the free colored has diminished from a ratio of 82·2 per cent. between 1790 and 1800, to 10·96 per cent. between 1840 and 1850. The slaves, however, have increased by an average of nearly 30 per cent. for each decennial period. Of the white population in 1850, 17,737,578 were born in the United States, and 2,210,839, in foreign countries: viz. 961,719, in Ireland; 573,225, in Germany; 278,675, in England; 141,711, in British America; 70,550, in Scotland; 54,069, in France; 29,868, in Wales; 13,358, in Switzerland; 13,317, in Mexico; 12,678, in Norway; 10,549, in Prussia, and 9848, in Holland. According to estimates given by Mr. Kennedy, in his census reports, the total number of foreigners, and descendants of foreigners, since 1790, (living in 1850,) was 4,304,416. Of the entire population, 9717 were deaf and dumb, of whom 143 were free colored, and 489, slaves; 9702 were blind, of whom 494 were free colored, and 1211, slaves; 15,768 were insane, of whom 321 were free colored, and 291, slaves; 15,706, idiotic, of whom 436 were free colored, and 1040, slaves. A remarkable coincidence will be observed between the number of those who are idiotic and those who are insane, and between the blind and deaf and dumb, there being a difference of only 15 between the latter, and 62 between the former, in the whole United States. Of 134,972 paupers, who received public aid in the year ending June 1, 1850, more than half, viz. 68,538 were foreigners. These were supported at an average expense of nearly $22 for each pauper. In the same period there occurred 320,433 deaths, or about 14 in every one thousand persons.—See Table of Population, APPENDIX.

Divisions.—There are in the confederacy 31 states, and (including the District of Columbia) 7 organized and one unorganized territory. These have been hitherto grouped as follows:—6 New England States, viz. Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut, containing 63,272 square miles; 5 Middle States, viz. New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and Maryland, containing 111,796 square miles; 9 Southern States, viz. Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Texas, containing about 629,750 square miles; and 11 Western States, viz. Tennessee, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Missouri, Arkansas, and California, containing 493,117 square miles. Besides these there are the six organized Territories, viz. Minnesota, Indian Territory, New Mexico, Utah, Oregon, and Washington. The last three lying west of the Rocky Mountains, which intersect New Mexico. The District of Columbia is a small territory set apart as the seat of the national government.

The above is the usual, but not very philosophical classification of the states. The following arrangement, (being essentially the same as that suggested by Mr. Kennedy,) based on the climate and productions of the different states, and on the habits and pursuits of their inhabitants, is, in our judgment, far preferable to the old classification:—1. The six New England States; 2. Six Middle States, including Maryland, Delaware, and Ohio; 3. Seven Coast Planting States, including South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Texas; 4. Six Central Slave States: Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri, and Arkansas; 5. Five North-western Agricultural States: Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Iowa; California.

“There are points of agreement in the general characteristics of the States combined in the foregoing groups, which warrant the mode of arrangement adopted. Maryland is classed, as heretofore, with the Middle States, because its leading interests appear to connect it rather with the commercial and manufacturing section to which it is here assigned, than with the purely agricultural States. Ohio is placed in the same connection for nearly similar reasons.

“There seems to be a marked propriety in setting off the new Agricultural States of the North-west by themselves, as a preliminary to the comparison of their progress with other portions of the Union. The occupations which give employment to the people of the central range of states south of the line of the Potomac, distinguish them to some extent from that division to which we have given the appellation of the Coast Planting States. In the latter, cotton, sugar, and rice are the great staples, the cultivation of which is so absorbing as to stamp its impress on the character of the people. The industry of the central states is more diversified, the surface of the country is more broken, the modes of cultivation are different, and the minuter divisions of labor create more numerous and less accordant interests.”—As a state, California stands by herself; by climate and position, she is associated with the territories of the Pacific slope.

Cities and Towns.—The progress of the cities of the United States, as a mass, has been without a parallel in the history of the world. Some cities in the old world, favored by imperial caprice and power, may have had, for a short period, a more rapid rise than those of the American confederacy, but in the aggregate, we have no example of such an amazing extension and growth of towns as this republic exhibits. At the first census, in 1790, there was but one city (Philadelphia) numbering 40,000 inhabitants, in the Union. St. Louis and New Orleans were mere villages, Pittsburg was but a frontier fort, the site of Cincinnati had merely been chosen, and the name of Buffalo did not exist. In 1850 there were considerably more than 100 cities and towns with populations exceeding 5000 each, viz. New York, 650,000; Philadelphia, 410,000; Boston, 212,000; Baltimore, 170,000; New Orleans, 130,000;

Cincinnati, 115,000; Pittsburg, 84,000; St. Louis, 78,000; Albany, 51,000; Louisville, Charleston, Buffalo, Providence, and Washington, between 40,000 and 45,000; Newark, Rochester, Troy, and Lowell, between 30,000 and 40,000; Chicago, Richmond, San Francisco, Syracuse, Norfolk, (including Portsmouth,) Detroit, Cleveland, (including Ohio City,) Portland, Salem, New Haven, Milwaukee, and Mobile, between 20,000 and 30,000; Columbus, (Ohio,) Utica, Worcester, New Bedford, Hartford, Savannah, and Reading, between 15,000 and 20,000; Bangor, Manchester, Poughkeepsie, Petersburg, Lynn, Wilmington, (Delaware,) Springfield, (Massachusetts,) Oswego, Lockport, Lancaster, Newburg, Paterson, Wheeling, Dayton, Nashville, Kingston, (New York,) Norwich, (Connecticut,) Fall River, Taunton, New Brunswick, between 10,000 and 15,000; and Augusta, (Maine,) Bath, Gardiner, Portsmouth, (New Hampshire,) Concord, (New Hampshire,) Dover, (New Hampshire,) Nashua, Burlington, (Vermont,) Newburyport, Andover, Gloucester, Lawrence, Marblehead, Northampton, Fitchburg, Newport, (Rhode Island,) Pawtucket, New London, Bridgeport, Middletown, (Connecticut,) Plattsburg, Ogdensburg, Schenectady, Rome, Auburn, Geneva, Canandaigua, Ithaca, Owego, Hudson, Catskill, Fishkill, Elizabethtown, Rahway, Trenton, (New Jersey,) Camden, (New Jersey,) Easton, (Pennsylvania,) Pottsville, Norristown, Harrisburg, York, Erie, Cumberland, Fredericktown, Lynchburg, Wilmington, (North Carolina,) Columbia, (South Carolina,) Augusta, (Georgia,) Columbus, (Georgia,) Sacramento City, Stockton, Racine, Quincy, Peoria, New Albany, Indianapolis, Madison, Terre Haute, Sandusky, Zanesville, Chillicothe, Steubenville, Springfield, (Ohio,) Xenia, Covington, Newport, (Kentucky,) Lexington, (Kentucky,) Memphis, and Georgetown, (District of Columbia,) between 5000 and 10,000. This relation is now considerably altered, but as we have no official reports, and only partial and local census, we have taken the only one which could give a just comparison as to the populousness and importance of the different towns. Some twenty of the above towns might be named as being distinguished even in this country for their amazing progress, but our limits compel us to pass the greater part in silence. We will, however, cite three or four as striking examples of that rapid increase which, as we have before observed, is without parallel in the history of the world. Cincinnati had in 1840, 46,338 inhabitants; in 1850, 115,438; and in 1853, 160,186, the population doubling itself about every 7 or 8 years—a rate of increase which, if continued, would in about 30 years from the present time, give the city a population of above 2,000,000. St. Louis had in 1840, 16,469; in 1850, 77,850; and in 1853, about 100,000, the population doubling itself about every 5 years; so that, increasing in the same ratio, it would amount in 25 years to above 3,000,000. Chicago had in 1840 a population of 4853; in 1850, 29,963; in 1853, between 50,000 and 60,000, doubling itself about every 4 years; at which ratio of increase it would have in 28 years a population of more than 6,000,000. It may be said that there is but little probability that the same ratio of increase will continue beyond a few years. While we freely admit that the future progress of these cities may depend on circumstances which cannot now be foreseen or controlled, we may observe, that in the case of Cincinnati certainly, and probably of Chicago, the ratio of increase was less between 1840 and 1850 than between 1850 and 1853; and no one would be justified in saying that the annual ratio of increase may not be greater for the next 10 than for the last 3 years.

There are 84 distinct harbors or ports of entry for foreign merchandise, viz. 57 on the Atlantic, 4 on the Pacific, 8 on the Gulf of Mexico, and 15 on the shores of the great lakes.

Face of the Country.—In an extent of country reaching from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean, and through 24° of lat., we might expect to find every variety of surface—mountain, plain, and valley. Topographically considered, the United States are divided by the Alleghany mountains in the E., and the Rocky mountains in the W., into three grand sections: 1. The Atlantic or Alleghany slope; 2. The Pacific or Rocky mountain slope; and, 3. The Mississippi valley. The first, lying between the Alleghany range and the Atlantic ocean, commences in the E. part of Maine, and extends (with a breadth varying from 80 to over 300 miles) to Alabama. This region, near the sea, is generally bordered by a belt of alluvial sand, and, where uncultivated, usually covered with a growth of pine and cedar. Farther inland the country becomes hilly, and gradually merges into the Appalachian chain of mountains. The rivers of this section mostly run in a S. or S. E. direction, with lengths varying from 100 to 600 miles, and are ascended by the tide to the hilly country, a distance of from 50 to 150 miles, to which points they are generally navigated by the smaller ocean craft and steamboats. In some South-eastern States, steamboats ascend above tide-water, when the rivers are full, in spring and fall. The second section includes all the country lying W. of the Rocky mountains, and between them and the Pacific, occupying a tract of 600 miles in breadth, which is intersected by various mountain ranges of great elevation. The third and largest section, called the Mississippi valley, occupies that vast region lying between the Alleghany mountains on the E., and the Rocky mountains on the W., extending through 18° of lat., with a breadth of from about 1000 to 1800 miles. A high table-land, in the form of an inverted basin, terminates this valley on the N. From its highest points, about 1900 feet, or an average of 1450 feet in elevation, the streams descend towards every point of the compass, some seeking the ocean through Hudson's bay and the great lakes, and others through the Missouri and Mississippi rivers and the Gulf of Mexico. This plateau covers Minnesota, the northern part of Wisconsin, and the N. W. portion of Iowa. The middle sections of the state of Ohio have an elevation of 1000 feet above the Gulf of Mexico. Outlying ridges of the Alleghany chain extend into Eastern Kentucky and Tennessee. The western slope of the valley ascends by an almost imperceptible rise to the height of 7000 feet, forming the elevated base of the more rugged prominences of the Rocky mountains. A low range, or rather belt, called the Ozark mountains, traverses portions of Indian Territory, Arkansas, and Missouri. Another low range, called the Black hills, runs through the E. and S. parts of the Territory of Missouri. The country adjacent to the shores of the Mississippi, below the mouth of the Ohio, is mostly low and level, and a large portion of it is overflowed on every great rise of that river. Immediately adjoining the Gulf of Mexico, it is one great marsh.

Mountains.—The Rocky mountains are decidedly the most important in the United States. They are, in reality, a part of the great chain which extends from the Polar sea, under various names, to the Straits of Magellan, in South America. Commencing at the Pacific coast and journeying eastward, we come (in some parts at once) upon a chain of mountains stretching from the Straits of Juan de Fuca to about the 34° of N. lat., where it joins the Sierra Nevada in the S. part of California. These mountains are sometimes broken into scattered groups, some of which extend at right angles to the coast, but as a range they run parallel to the Pacific. They do not generally rise to an elevation of more than 2000 or 2500 feet. Mount Olympus, however, in the N. W. part of Washington Territory, is said to attain a height of 8197 feet; Mount St. John's 8000, Mount Ripley 7500, and Mount Diabolo 3780 feet, all in California. Proceeding east, we come upon a lofty chain, bearing the name of Cascade Range, in Washington and Oregon Territories, and Sierra Nevada in California. The greatest ascertained heights in the United States are in this chain. Mount Shasta, Mount St. Helen's, Mount Hood, and Mount Rainier, rear their snowy summits to heights varying from 12,000 to 14,000 feet, and some parts of the Sierra Nevada are said to attain about the height of Mount Blanc, in Savoy, (15,500 feet.) This chain may be said to extend from Russian America to the southern extremity of Old California, at an average distance from the sea of from 100 to 1500 miles, and to have a mean elevation of 5000 or 6000 feet. As we extend our journey towards the Atlantic coast, we pass irregular groups of mountains, some reaching the snow-line, and having various appellations, such as Blue, Humboldt, and Wahsatch mountains, and occupying the great basin between the Cascade and Rocky mountains. The latter run also parallel to the Pacific, at distances varying from 450 to 850 miles, within the territory of the United States, and attain, in Fremont's peak, (the highest known summit,) an elevation of 13,570 feet. Having crossed this, (the dividing ridge between the waters flowing into the Pacific and those flowing into the Gulf of Mexico,) we descend by a long slope, of nearly 1000 miles, to the Mississippi river, the grand recipient of the streams between the Alleghany and the Rocky mountains. Ascending from the left bank of the Mississippi, we come first, in Kentucky and Tennessee, upon outlying ridges of the great Appalachian range, which extends, with various interruptions, from Maine to Alabama. This is not a high range, though Mount Katahdin, in Maine, Mount Washington, in New Hampshire, Mount Mansfield, in Vermont, and Mount Tahawag or Mount Marcy, in New York, reach severally the heights of 5000, 6234, 4280, and 5300 feet. South of New York this chain and its outlying ridges are mostly within an elevation of 2000 feet, though the peaks of Otter and White Top, in the S. part of Virginia, and Black Mountain, (the highest land E. of the Mississippi,) range from 4000 to 6476 feet, but in no case do the summits reach the line of perpetual snow. For descriptions of the various ridges, bearing different local names, see the several states.

Minerals.—The United States contains within its limits almost every variety of mineral wealth, from the gold of California to the coal of the Alleghany mountains and the Mississippi valley. The well-known fact of the discovery of the rich gold deposits in California, in the latter part of 1847, with the successive discoveries which greet us on every arrival from San Francisco, leaves but little to be said on the subject of this precious metal that would much enlighten the public mind. Gold is also believed to exist in large quantities in New Mexico, and mines are said to have been worked there extensively by the Spaniards, but the natives guard the secret of their locality with jealous silence. This precious metal occurs in a narrow belt of schistose rocks, extending from Maryland to Alabama. Small quantities of the ore have even been found as far N. as New Hampshire and Maine; but the richest mines, and those which have been most extensively wrought are in North and South Carolina and Georgia. According to an estimate kindly made for this work, by Mr. Eckfeldt, of the Philadelphia mint, the total gold product of the United States, from other sources than California, (i. e. mostly from the region between Maryland and Alabama,) since the first discovery of those deposits, amounts to $16,500,000. The invention of the quartz-crusher seems likely to give additional value to the Alleghany mining region, by diminishing the expense of extracting the ore. The gold deposited at the various mints of the United States, since the discovery of the gold mines of California, amounted to $44,177 in 1848; $6,147,509 in 1849; $36,074,062 in 1850; $55,938,232 in 1851; and in 1852 the gold coinage was $53,747,187, making in five years a total of about $152,000,000, nearly all of which came from California. There had been received from California, at all the mints, down to Oct. 31, 1853, $203,886,025.97. In the first ten months of 1853, there were deposited $46,146,714 in gold. Silver mines, reported to be of great richness, have been discovered in New Mexico, and still more recently in Stanley county, North Carolina. Some of the ore from Lake Superior copper mines recently proved quite rich in silver. In Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, lead mines have been discovered, yielding in some instances $500 of silver to the ton of ore. Near Middletown, Connecticut, there is also a lead mine, highly argentiferous. Quicksilver, to the amount of 9047 flasks, was exported from San Francisco during the first six months of 1853.

Public attention has recently been excited by the vast quantities of copper found to exist in various parts of the Union. The richest and purest mines are on the shores of Lake Superior, in the upper peninsula of Michigan, where native copper has been chiselled out in masses sometimes weighing several tons. Mines of copper of great richness have also been opened in North Carolina, Connecticut, and East Tennessee, while it exists in greater or less abundance in various other parts of the United States. The great lead district occupying the north-western portion of Illinois, and the adjoining country in Wisconsin and Iowa, is for richness perhaps unsurpassed on the globe. The shipments from this region are stated at about 42,000,000 pounds annually. Mines rich in the same mineral are worked also in Missouri, Connecticut, New York, and Pennsylvania. But the existence of lead is not limited to the localities named, being more or less abundant in other parts of the Union. Very rich mines of zinc are worked in New Jersey; the same mineral is also found largely mixed with the lead ore of the Galena district, in Arkansas, in Pennsylvania, and other states. Bismuth, antimony, and cobalt are all found in Connecticut: cobalt is abundant; it is found also in Maryland. Iron is widely diffused, but especially abundant in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, and East Tennessee—almost co-existent with the coal so necessary in fusing and working it. Of the earthy minerals, coal, the most useful, is also the most abundant. The great anthracite bed in Eastern Pennsylvania already mines and sends to market more than 5,000,000 tons annually, and is capable of increasing that amount to any conceivable demand. Small quantities of this species of coal have been found in some of the New England States and in New York, and a larger deposit in North Carolina. A great bed of bituminous coal, commencing on the western slope of the Alleghany mountains, in Pennsylvania, extends in a wide belt through the western part of that state, through Ohio, Western Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, and into North Alabama. Insulated bituminous coalfields exist in the counties around and W. of Richmond, Virginia, and in some of the central counties of North Carolina. In the latter state the coal sometimes assumes a semi-bituminous, and in others an anthracite character. The great bituminous coalfield of the Western States occupies a large portion of Missouri, Iowa, and Illinois, where it exists in inexhaustible abundance. Coal is also found on the borders of Arkansas and Indian Territory, and recent report says in Washington and Oregon. Mr. Taylor, in his excellent work on the coal regions, estimates the coal areas of the United States, at 44,000 square miles for Illinois; 21,195 for Virginia; 15,437 for Pennsylvania; 13,500 for Kentucky; 11,900 for Ohio; 7700 for Indiana; 6000 for Missouri; 5000 for Michigan; 4300 for Tennessee; 3400 for Alabama; 550 for Maryland, and 150 for Georgia—total, 133,132 square miles. Copious salt springs abound in Central New York, Western Pennsylvania, and Virginia, and to some extent in various other localities. Medicinal mineral springs exist in many places, but those of the greatest repute are the Saratoga, Sharon, New Lebanon, and Avon springs, in New York; the Bedford springs, in Pennsylvania; the different sulphur springs, in Virginia, and the Blue Lick springs in Kentucky. Extensive beds of gypsum are found in New York, Maine, Virginia, and other states; but perhaps the largest bed of this mineral in the world extends from the Arkansas river, in Indian Territory, to the Rio Grande, in Texas, through a space of 300 miles. Building materials of an ornamental character are abundant, viz. marble, fine granite, sandstone, and breccia, or conglomerates. Porphyry is found in the vicinity of Boston, and on the St. Croix river, between Minnesota and Wisconsin. Professor Owen says—“I caused a piece of the St. Croix porphyry to be cut and polished; it cuts easily, and its colors show beautifully;” it differs, he says, but little from the Norway porphyry, but that it polishes unequally.

Bays, Rivers, &c.—In our articles on the states, we have so fully described the great waters of the United States, that we shall confine ourselves here to such as have a national importance. Perhaps no portion of the globe is more favored with navigable waters, both external and internal, than the United States. Washed on the E. by the Atlantic, on the S. by the Gulf of Mexico, on the W. by the Pacific, and on the N. by the great Lakes Superior, Michigan, Huron, Erie, and Ontario, it presents a line of navigable coast of scarcely less than 7000 miles in extent; but if we follow the sinuosities of the coasts, and include the bays and sounds, we have, according to the documents of the Coast Survey, independent of the lake coast, a shore line of 12,609 miles; of which 6861 are on the Atlantic; 2281 on the Pacific; and 3647 on the Gulf coast; 9247 miles of island coast, and 11,213 miles of river shore lines to the head of tide. That part of the Gulf of Mexico which is included within our territory has an extent from E. to W. of 1000 miles, with a coast line of near 2000 miles. Of ocean line, in steps of 10 miles, according to the same authority, there are on the Atlantic 2059 miles; on the Pacific, 1405; and on the Gulf, 1643 miles—giving a total seacoast of 5107 miles. The lakes can scarcely present a coast line of less than 4000 miles within the United States.

The interior is veined by some of the grandest rivers on the earth. Almost exactly through its middle, from the summit of the great table-land of Minnesota, runs the Mississippi for 3000 miles, like the trunk of a great tree, with its roots in the Gulf of Mexico, and its branches extending E. to the Alleghanies, and westward to the Rocky mountains, receiving the tribute of perhaps 100 important streams, some of them, such as the Missouri, Arkansas, and Red rivers, from the W., and the Ohio from the E., rivers of the first class in point of magnitude and the volume of water rolled down their channels. These rivers are severally, in the order named, about 2900, 2000, 1200, and 1000 miles in length; while many of the secondary tributaries have courses of from 300 to 1000 miles. The country drained by the Mississippi reaches from Western New York and Pennsylvania on the E., to the summits of the Rocky mountains on the W., and from the 49th parallel of latitude to the Gulf of Mexico. The rivers of the Alleghany slope of the most importance are, beginning in Maine, the Penobscot, Kennebec, Connecticut, Hudson, Delaware, Susquehanna, Potomac, Chowan, Roanoke, Pamlico (or Tar river), Neuse, Cape Fear, Great Pedee, Santee, Savannah, and Altamaha, all rivers of at least 300, and some 600 miles in length, and all more or less navigable, some for vessels of the largest class, 100 miles or more, and all emptying themselves directly into the Atlantic, or into bays opening into that ocean.

The southern slope, tending to the Gulf of Mexico, has also several large rivers independent of the Mississippi, viz. the Appalachicola, Mobile, and their large tributaries on the E. of the Mississippi, and the Sabine, Trinity, Brazos, Colorado, and Rio Grande del Norte on the W. of that river. These streams vary in length, including their main affluents, from 300 to 1800 miles, and are navigable by steamboats to various points under 500 miles. The Rio Grande forms the boundary between Texas and Mexico. The Pacific slope has but one great river breaking through the Cascade mountains into the ocean. This is the Columbia, a stream of 1500 miles in length, and with several important affluents having courses of from 300 to 800 miles. If we except the straits of Juan de Fuca, there is but one other great opening into the territory of the United States on the Pacific border, viz. the channel or strait, 1 or 2 miles in width, leading into the bay of San Francisco, which receives the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers, each about 300 miles in length. The most important bays on the Atlantic coast are Massachusetts, Cape Cod, Buzzard, Raritan, Delaware, and Chesapeake bays; and on the Pacific the bay of San Francisco and the straits of Juan de Fuca, leading into Puget's sound, and having one of the best harbors in the world. Long Island, Albemarle, and Pamlico sounds, varying from 60 to 120 miles in length, are all on the Atlantic coast, the first washing the shores of Connecticut, and the last two that of North Carolina. The whole of the United States N. of the 42d parallel of latitude is dotted over with beautifully transparent sheets of water of varying sizes, from a few miles in circuit, to those majestic inland seas which separate British America from the United States, and which chiefly merit notice in a national point of view. There are five of these, viz. Lakes Ontario, Erie, Huron, Superior, and Michigan, the latter only being wholly within the limits of the United States. These inland seas are navigated by steamers of the highest tonnage, and by sailing vessels of large capacity, affording a continuous navigation of 1100 miles, and, by aid of the Welland canal around the Falls of Niagara, and that around the Saut St. Mary, (which will soon be completed,) will afford an inland ship navigation of near 2000 miles. These lakes cover areas of from 6300 to 32,000 square miles each, or a total of 90,000 square miles.

Climate.—A region so vast as that of the United States must necessarily include almost every variety of climate, from the long and frigid winters of the North, to the almost tropical regions of the South. It is a well known fact that the temperature of Western Europe is about 10 degrees milder than in the same latitudes in Eastern North America; while California has a climate as mild as that of Italy, indeed partaking rather of the character of the tropical regions, especially in the south, with its wet and dry seasons. Again, on the plateaus of Utah and New Mexico, we find a climate similar to that of the plains of Tartary. The summers of the Northern part of the United States are as fierce and ardent as those of Italy, while the winters are scarcely less frigid than those of Sweden and Norway. N. of 42° the climate is especially suited to the winter grains; that of the states between 36° and 42° favors the winter grains and Indian corn as staples; and that S., of 36° produces cotton, rice, sugar, Indian corn, and some of the tropical fruits. The temperature of the North-eastern States is rendered disagreeable by the chilling winds from the Atlantic in the spring months, causing diseases of the lungs, which swell the bills of mortality in that region beyond those of any section of the Union except Louisiana. Being shielded by no great chain of mountains towards the N., the great ice-plains of British America pour upon the United States, upon every considerable augmentation of heat in the regions S. of them, their cold blasts, causing sudden variations to be the unpleasant characteristic of the climate of the Northern and Central United States. Nor are the Southern States entirely free from these sudden changes, when periods of unusually cold weather and unseasonable frosts not infrequently destroy the orange-buds of Florida, and the cotton-blossoms of the other Southern States. The Central States have frequently in the same winter a mixture of the mildness of an Italian with the frigidity of a Russian winter. The great reservoir of cold winds at the North acts particularly unfavourably on the fruits of the Middle and Western States, as, tempted by the early springs belonging to the latitude, they put forth their blossoms in March or April, only too often to have them nipped by these ice-blasts that, in the same latitude of Europe, would be warded off by the great mountain barrier between them and the frigid regions. There are local causes affecting the climate of particular districts that must always be taken into consideration. The lakes, for example, mitigate to some degree the temperature of the regions bordering on them, while the elevated table-lands of New Mexico, Utah, and Eastern Oregon are rendered cooler and drier than the same parallels elsewhere. In connection with climate, it will be proper to speak of the diseases incident to the different sections of the United States. In the settling of all new countries, the breaking up of the sod leads to miasmatic exhalations, producing agues and fevers that are not to be considered climatic, as they rapidly diminish as the country becomes settled. The old Romans dreaded, it is said, the agues of Spain as much as we do those of the Western States. "He had a fever when he was in Spain, and I did mark how he did shake." At present we may say the prevailing diseases of the West are intermittent and bilious fevers and dysenteries; of the South, bilious fevers, with occasional desolating visitations of the yellow fever in the Gulf States. The cholera has generally been more fatal in the Mississippi valley than in other parts of the Union. The most fatal diseases in the New England and some of the Northern and Middle States are consumption and other affections of the lungs. The census tables show the greatest ratio of deaths in the year ending June 1st, 1850, to have been in Louisiana, (about 23 to each 1000 persons,) and the least in Wisconsin, (about 9 to each 1000 persons.) In Vermont, Iowa, Florida, Georgia, Michigan, Tennessee, North Carolina, Alabama, South Carolina, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Maine, Delaware, New Jersey, Virginia, New Hampshire, Illinois, and Arkansas, the ratio of deaths was the lowest, and in the order in which they are named, viz. from Vermont, about 10 to the 1000, to Arkansas, about $14\frac{1}{2}$ to 1000 persons. The ratio of deaths was highest in the order named, in the following states, viz. Massachusetts, Missouri, Maryland, Connecticut, Kentucky, Rhode Island, Ohio, Mississippi, Texas, and New York; being from about $19\frac{1}{2}$ in Massachusetts, to about $14\frac{1}{2}$ to the 1000 in New York. It is proper to remark in regard to Florida, which is in winter a great resort for invalids from the North, the catalogue of deaths may not have fairly represented the character of the state. It is estimated by competent judges to be equal in healthfulness to any of the United States.

Soil and Productions.—The same, or even greater diversity prevails in regard to soil than climate, from the rich alluvions of the great Mississippi valley, (where the mould is often several, and sometimes 25 feet deep,) to the barren plains of New Mexico, Utah, Oregon, and Indian Territories. The agricultural capabilities of the Mississippi valley are believed to be unequalled on the globe, if perhaps we except the valley of the Amazon, in South America. A belt of land of tertiary formation coasts the Atlantic from Long Island to the Gulf of Mexico, (inclusive of both,) which is about 60 miles in width, and mostly covered with pine and cedar, not very productive in its natural state, but easily improved by marl and other manures. The coasts of Massachusetts and Maine are rough and unproductive, and New England generally, and North-eastern New York, are rough and difficult of tillage, being better adapted to grazing than culture. The slopes of the Alleghany and the hilly region at their feet are generally productive, especially in the valleys; while the Pacific water-shed has comparatively but a small portion of cultivable land; but in that portion W. of the Cascade mountains, as in the valleys of the Willamette, Sacramento, San Joaquin, and other smaller rivers near the coast, the fertility is great; but the slopes of the Rocky mountains are generally a barren lava, through which the rivers cut their way to great depths, without fertile valleys to border them. The census tables report for the whole United States 118,457,622 acres of improved land, (about 5 acres to each individual,) and 184,621,348 unimproved, producing 592,326,612 bushels of Indian corn; 146,567,879 of oats; 100,503,899 of wheat; 14,188,639 of rye; 8,956,916 of buckwheat; 5,167,016 of barley; 562,312 of flaxseed; 885,790 of grass-seeds; 65,796,975 of Irish, and 38,259,196 of sweet potatoes; 9,219,975 of peas and beans; 215,312,710 pounds of rice; 199,752,646 of tobacco; 987,449,600 of cotton; 52,789,174 of wool; 313,266,962 of butter; 105,535,219 of cheese; 3,496,029 of hops; 7,715,961 of flax; 10,843 of silk cocoons; 34,249,886 of maple, and 247,581,000 of cane sugar; 14,853,857 of beeswax and honey; 13,838,579 tons of hay; 35,093 of hemp; 12,700,606 gallons of molasses; live stock, valued at $543,969,420, including 4,335,358 horses; 559,229 asses; 6,392,044 milch cows; 1,699,241 working oxen; 10,268,856 other cattle; 21,721,814 sheep; and 30,316,608 swine. The greatest amount of live stock was in New York; the greatest wheat-growing states (in the order named) were Pennsylvania, Ohio, New York, Virginia, and Illinois; rye, Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut; Indian corn, Ohio, Kentucky, Illinois, Indiana, and Tennessee, (but if we regard population, only Illinois;) oats, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Virginia, Illinois, Kentucky, and Tennessee; rice, South Carolina, (more than two-thirds of the whole;) tobacco, Virginia, Kentucky, Maryland, Tennessee, Missouri, North Carolina, and Ohio; cotton, Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, South Carolina, Tennessee, and Louisiana; wool, Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania, Vermont, Virginia, and Indiana, (but in proportion to population, Vermont would stand first;) peas and beans, North Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi, South Carolina, and New York; Irish potatoes, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Vermont, and New Hampshire, (but in proportion to population, Vermont is first;) sweet potatoes, Georgia, Alabama, North Carolina, Mississippi, South Carolina, and Tennessee; barley, New York, (nearly three-fourths of the whole;) buckwheat, New York, Pennsylvania, and Ohio, (three-fourths of the whole;) orchard products, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and New Jersey, (the latter first in proportion to population;) wine, California, Ohio, and Pennsylvania; products of market gardens, New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, and New Jersey, (the latter greatest in proportion to population;) butter, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Vermont, (the latter first in proportion to population;) cheese, New York, Ohio, Vermont, Massachusetts, and Connecticut; hay, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Vermont, Maine, and Massachusetts, (the New England States greatest in proportion to population;) grass seeds, Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, and New Jersey, (the last greatest in proportion to population;) hops, New York, (five-sevenths of the whole;) hemp, Kentucky and Missouri, (nineteen-twentieths of the whole;) flax, Kentucky, (twice the amount of any state,) Virginia, New York, North Carolina, Indiana, Pennsylvania, and Missouri; maple sugar, New York, Vermont, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, and Pennsylvania, (Vermont first in proportion to population;) cane sugar, Louisiana, (nineteen-twentieths of the whole;) molasses, Louisiana, (five-sixths of the whole,) Texas, and Florida; and beeswax and honey, New York, Missouri, Kentucky, and Tennessee. It will be seen by this summary that the Middle and Western States are most productive in wheat, rye, and oats; the Southern and Western in Indian corn; the Southern in rice; the territory between 34° and 41° lat. in tobacco; cotton wholly produced S. of 38°; wool and Irish potatoes, mostly N. of 34°; sweet potatoes, mostly S. of 40°; barley, apples, and pears, mostly N. of 38°; peaches, mostly S. of 41°; hemp, hops, and flax, N. of 34°; cane sugar, oranges, figs, bananas, &c., S. of 33°. For further particulars, see articles on the different states: also Table of Agricultural Products, APPENDIX.

Forest Trees.—No country on the globe can boast of so many species of noble forest trees as are found within the territory of the United States. East of the Rocky mountains we meet with the various species of oak, including the white and black oak, the chestnut oak, the live oak, and post oak; the white and yellow pine, the former sometimes attaining a height of near 200 feet; the chestnut; the black walnut; the tulip tree or poplar, one of the noblest in the American forests, not unfrequently attaining a height of from 120 to 130 feet, with a diameter of from 5 to 7 or 8 feet; the different kinds of maple, among which is the sugar maple, from the sap of which is obtained, by boiling, a sugar of a peculiar character and most delicious taste; the elm, one species of which, (the ulmus Americana,) Michaux regarded as the most magnificent tree of the American sylva; the magnolia, which, when in flower, gives to the forests of the South the appearance of a gigantic and magnificent flower garden; the red cedar, remarkable for its durability; the huge cypress, growing in the swampy and low lands of the Southern States.

The forests of California and Oregon surpass those of every other region in the prodigious magnitude of their trees. The redwood (a species of cypress) of California, is sometimes found more than 20 feet in diameter, and of a proportionate height. The pine trees growing on the mountain slopes of Oregon are said not unfrequently to attain a height of near 300 feet, with diameters varying from 8 to 20 feet. For a more particular enumeration of the different trees, with their localities, the reader is referred to the articles on the several states.

Animals.—The domestic animals were wholly introduced from Europe after the discovery of America. The wild animals are the moose and caribou, or reindeer, (rare,) the black bear, panther or cougar, deer, wolf, and wildcat in the N.; grizzly bear, Rocky mountain goat, sheep, and antelope on the slopes of the Rocky mountains; buffalo, (once general on the plains of the Mississippi valley, now W. of the Mississippi,) prairie-dog, (a burrowing animal,) fox, beaver, muskrat, marmot, squirrel, rabbit, weasel, skunk, opossum, racoon, and wolverine. Among birds there are turkey-buzzards, golden and bald eagle, black vulture, wild turkey, (peculiar to America,) grouse, canvassback and other wild ducks, flamingoes, cranes, spoonbills, pheasants, partridges or quails, hawks, owls, pelicans, &c. Among reptiles, alligators, (in the South,) rattlesnakes and various other snakes, salamanders, tortoises, lizards, &c. Among fish, the shark, codfish, salmon, salmon trout, whitefish, (the latter two in the great lakes,) mackerel, shad, herring, halibut, sheepshead, trout, rockfish, bass, maskelonge, &c. &c.; and among shell-fish, oysters, clams, crabs, lobsters, terrapins, and turtles.

Manufactures.—This country, when under the government of Great Britain, was almost wholly agricultural; but her manufactures are fast taking the relative stand they occupy in Europe, compared with the other two great divisions of industrial employment, viz. agriculture and commerce. Even the South now regularly exports to the North coarse cotton stuffs and yarns. According to Mr. Kennedy's census tables, there were employed in the United States in 1850, in establishments producing more than $500 each, a capital of $530,000,000, and 1,050,000 hands, consuming raw material worth $550,000,000, and producing manufactured articles valued at $1,020,300,000. There were 1694 establishments engaged in the manufacture of cotton, employing $74,501,031 capital, and 33,150 male and 59,136 female hands, consuming raw material worth $34,835,056, producing 763,678,407 yards of stuffs, and 27,860,340 pounds of yarn, valued at $61,869,184; 1559 woollen manufactories, employing $28,118,650 capital, and 22,678 male and 16,574 female hands, consuming raw material worth $25,755,988, and producing 82,206,652 yards of stuffs, and 4,294,326 pounds of yarn, valued at $43,207,555; 2190 forges, furnaces, &c., employing $49,258,006 capital, and 57,021 male hands, consuming raw material worth $27,049,753, and producing 1,165,544 tons of wrought, cast, and pig iron, valued at $54,604,006; there were invested in the manufacture of malt and of spirituous liquors, $8,334,254, employing 5487 hands, and consuming 3,787,195 bushels of barley, 11,067,761 of corn, 2,143,927 of rye, 56,517 of oats, 526,840 of apples, 61,675 hogsheds of molasses, and 1294 tons of hops, producing 1,177,924 barrels of ale, &c., 42,133,955 gallons of whiskey and high wines, and 6,500,500 gallons of rum; and 6263 tanneries, employing $18,900,557 capital, and 20,909 male and 102 female hands, consuming raw material worth $19,613,237, and producing 12,557,940 sides, and 2,653,865 skins of tanned leather, valued at $32,861,796. The New England States are most extensively engaged in the manufacture of cottons and woollens, and the Middle States and Ohio in the manufacture of iron and spirituous and malt liquors. Though we have no further statistical reports from the census, it may be proper to give some of what are well known to be important branches of this species of industry, viz. shoes, hats, cabinet ware, and furniture, combs, cutlery, hollow ware, sugar-making and refining, carriage and harness-making, wagons, carts, and agricultural implements, (the latter, in 1850, amounting in value to $151,569,675,) cheap clocks, pottery, glass, chemicals, dye-stuffs, locomotives, and steam-engines, (extensively exported,) chandeliers, gas-fixtures, &c. &c.

Internal Improvements—Railways, Canals, and Telegraph Lines.—In a new and sparsely settled country the highways of communication are apt to be poor, and the inhabitants, for a time, settle on the great rivers, and other navigable waters, extending their rough roads (often little more than paths) as occasion demands. The first great internal improvement in this country was the Philadelphia and Pittsburg turnpike, completed about the close of the last century. Previous to the introduction of railways, or the anticipation of their introduction, Congress commenced a great National road from Washington to St. Louis, the eastern portion of which only has been completed, the introduction of railways having superseded its necessity. Washington early urged the improvement of the navigation of the Potomac and the James river, and had his plans been vigorously seconded by his native state, possibly Norfolk would have been the commercial emporium of the United States, for which it has probably greater natural advantages than any other city in the Union; but the genius of De Witt Clinton, by the opening of the Erie and Hudson canal in 1824, has secured that advantage for the metropolis of his native state. Pennsylvania and Maryland were little behind New York in their zeal in the construction of canals, but not with equally favorable results. Ohio and Indiana led the way in the West, but the introduction of railways seems likely to supersede canals, as a means of transport, and few new enterprises of that kind are, we believe, now undertaken. Though it is scarcely a quarter of a century since the first iron rail was laid, there were in January 1st, 1853, in the United States, 18,266 miles of completed railway, and 12,681 in course of construction: to which several thousand miles of road, projected since the commencement of the year, might be added. The greatest amount of completed railway (2123 miles) is in New York: next, the giant of the West, Ohio, (scarcely attained to the years of a human life,) has 1385; then follows Pennsylvania, with 1244; Massachusetts, with 1140, (relatively, the greatest in the Union,) and Georgia, (the greatest S. of the Potomac,) with 857. With the exception of a few miles in Virginia, there are connected lines of railway from Waterville in Maine to Montgomery in Alabama, and ere long the chain will be complete to New Orleans. Connected lines also unite Boston, New York, and Philadelphia, with Chicago, Cincinnati, Terre Haute, Alton, and intermediate places, and perhaps before this work reaches the reader, the connection will be complete to Galena and Rock Island. Charleston and Savannah lack not many miles of grasping their iron arms the commerce of the Mississippi at Memphis. The same places have extended another of these arms to Nashville, eagerly stretching to seize the trade of La Belle Rivière, (the Ohio;) and roads are projected and partly completed that will unite the Gulf of Mexico with the great lakes, and soon the inhabitants of the South may exchange their grateful and pleasant fruits, for the pure and cooling ices of the lakes streams of the North, and the people of New York pass in two days from the middle of the temperate to the verge of the torrid zone. From the share it occupies in the minds of the leading men of the nation, it seems highly probable that the period is not distant when the shores of the Atlantic and Pacific will be united by railway. The prominent lines of communication between the east and the Mississippi valley, now are by the Albany, Buffalo, and the Lake Shore railroads; the New York and Erie railway, through the S. counties of New York; the Pennsylvania Central railroad, from Philadelphia to Pittsburg, and the Baltimore and Ohio railroad from Baltimore to Wheeling. To these will, in a short time, be added a line of railway from Richmond to E. Tennessee, and also to some point on the Ohio river, and others from Charleston and Savannah to Memphis, Nashville, and perhaps St. Louis and Louisville or Cincinnati. The New York and Erie and the Pennsylvania canals may be added to the highways of commerce between the E. and W. Under this heading properly come the lines of electric telegraph, of which the aggregate length in January, 1853, was 16,735 miles, and of wire, 23,281 miles.

Commerce.—The commercial progress of our republic is scarcely less astonishing than the increase of its population and the growth of its hundred cities. The official reports of the year ending June 30th, 1852, give the total tonnage of the United States at 1,899,448²/₃ registered tonnage; 2,238,992²/₅ enrolled tonnage; total, 4,138,440⁴/₇. Registered tonnage in the whale fishery, 193,797⁷/₃; 2,008,021⁴/₈ enrolled and licensed in the coasting trade; in the cod fisheries, 102,659³/₇, and 72,546¹/₃ in the mackerel fishery. Showing an increase in the total tonnage from 1842, when it was 2,092,390, to 1852, when it was 4,138,439, of more than 2,000,000 tons, and considerably more than treble since 1815, when it was 1,368,127 tons. In 1852 there were entered from foreign ports 19,571 vessels, with a total tonnage of 5,292,880, of which 2,057,358 was foreign; the whole manned by 213,826 men and 2841 boys; cleared in the same period, 19,325 vessels, with a total tonnage of 5,278,165, of which 2,047,575 was foreign, manned by 211,465 men and 3290 boys. There were built in the same period 255 ships, 79 brigs, 584 schooners, 267 sloops and canal-boats, and 259 steamers, making an aggregate of 1444 vessels, with a total tonnage of 351,493¹/₇. Of the registered tonnage 79,704³/₉, and of the enrolled and licensed 563,536³/₉ tons were employed in steam navigation. Total value of imports for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1852, $212,945,442; for the year ending June 30th, 1853, $267,678,647; the exports for 1852 amounted to $209,658,366; for 1853, $230,452,250, of which $27,486,875 was in gold and silver coin. We give below some of the leading articles of imports for 1852:

Free of duty.

Teas.....	28,578,352 lbs.
Coffee.....	193,698,556 "
Guano.....	50,054 tons.
Specie and bullion.....	$5,505,044
Copper in plates for shipping.....	6,10,755
Copper ore.....	257,357
Sheathing metal.....	604,809

Leading articles paying duties.

Woolen manufactures to the amount of.....	$17,573,094
Cotton " " " ".....	19,689,496
Silk " " " ".....	21,940,499
Silk and worsted " " " ".....	1,667,513
Flax manufactures.....	8,515,709
Iron " more than.....	8,000,000
" pig, bar and rolled, &c., over.....	11,000,000
Steel " " " ".....	1,700,000
Copper manufactures " " " ".....	1,600,000
Tin manufactures amounting to more than	3,200,000
Lead " " " ".....	1,284,000
Chronometers, clocks, and watches ".....	2,800,000
Glass manufactures nearly.....	1,500,000
Leather and manufactures of leather nearly	2,700,000
China, porcelain, japan, stone, gilt, and other ware.....	3,750,000
Furs, and manufactures of, nearly.....	1,200,000
Unmanufactured wool " ".....	1,100,000
Raw hides and skins.....	4,823,119
Wood, manufactured.....	1,930,711

Ready-made clothing, and articles of wear	1,368,512
Wines, brandies, ale, and other liquors, more than.....	4,000,000
Molasses.....	3,595,127
Sugar, over.....	14,700,000
Fruits, such as almonds, currants, figs,
dates, raisins, and nuts, nearly.....	1,500,000
Saltpetre.....	1,085,236
Spices, ginger, &c., more than.....	1,150,000
Tobacco in all forms, more than.....	3,500,000
Salt.....	1,112,137
Breadstuffs and grain, more than.....	1,700,000

The leading articles of export for the fiscal year, 1852, were

Products of the fisheries.....	$ 2,282,342
" " forest.....	7,864,220
" " agriculture (animal).....	6,323,439
" " " (vegetable).....	26,210,027
Cotton.....	87,965,732
Tobacco.....	10,031,283
Manufactures of cotton.....	7,672,151
" miscellaneous.....	18,862,931
(Some of the leading articles under the last heading are manufactures of iron, snuff and tobacco, candles, soap, furniture, spirits, leather, boots and shoes, wearing apparel, books and maps.)
Gold and silver coin.....	37,437,887

There were exported in the year ending August 31, 1853, to Great Britain, 1,736,860 bales of cotton; to France, 426,723 bales; to North of Europe, 193,636; total, 2,528,400 bales; being an increase of 84,754 over 1852; consumed at home 671,009; grand total of cotton produced 3,354,052 bales. Total flour exported, 1,593,901 barrels; wheat, 4,803,189 bushels; Indian corn, 1,425,278; being an increase over 1852, of 166,459 barrels of flour, 2,064,767 bushels of wheat, and a diminution of 61,520 of Indian corn. The hog crop produced in the Western States, exclusive of Arkansas and Wisconsin, is put down at 2,049,005 animals, producing 404,712,990 pounds of pork, being an increase over the previous year of 79,696,350 pounds, or 24 per cent. The exports of tobacco from New Orleans alone was 64,076 hogsheads, of which 52.20 per cent. were to Great Britain, 13.11 to France, and 3.57 to North of Europe. Tobacco inspected in Virginia, 40,567 hogsheads. Export of sugar and molasses from New Orleans by sea, 121,875 hogsheads and barrels, but mostly hogsheads.

The following table from Andrews's Report, will exhibit, in their order, the respective values of the exports of domestic produce during the years 1850-51-52:

Cotton.....	$272,265,665
Manufactures of all kinds.....	51,376,348
Flour.....	29,492,044
Tobacco.....	29,201,556
Pork, hogs, lard, &c.....	15,683,772
Lumber, &c.....	15,054,113
Rice.....	7,273,513
Beef, hides, tallow, &c.....	4,795,645
Butter and cheese.....	3,119,506
Skins and furs.....	2,628,732
Fish.....	1,391,475

There arrived (in 1852) by New York canals at tide-water, on the Hudson river, produce valued at \$66,893,102; and at New Orleans, via the Mississippi river, \$108,051,708, and in 1853, at 134,233,735. Property going (in 1852) from tide-water on the Hudson, \$118,896,444, and \$38,874,782 up the Mississippi. Among the items of domestic trade, lumber and coal form a large fraction. The great sources of the former article are the pineries about the head waters of the Mississippi river, in Maine; in Southern New York, in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Oregon, and Washington Territories. The lumber trade of Bangor, Albany, the lake ports, and from the upper waters of the Mississippi and Susquehanna rivers, sums up an annual total exceeding 1400,000,000 feet, besides great quantities of staves, shingles, lath, &c. The steam marine of the United States is immense, amounting in 1852, according to Andrews' Report, to 1390 vessels, with an aggregate tonnage of 417,226 $\frac{2}{3}$, of which 96 (tonnage, 91,475 $\frac{2}{3}$) were ocean steamers; 529 were coast steamers, (tonnage 121,025 $\frac{1}{2}$); 765 were interior steamers, (tonnage, 204,725 $\frac{1}{2}$), of which 601 (tonnage, 135,559 $\frac{1}{2}$) were on the rivers. The whole steam marine was manned by 29,377 men, boys, &c.; and 39,204,691 passengers were carried, of whom 32,418,107 were carried in ferry-boats; 6,786,584 in other steam vessels, and 190,993 were ocean passengers. Such is the outline of the commerce of the United States, which has elements of increase unknown in any former period, or in any other nation. A new country, a virgin soil, the precious metals in unprecedented abundance, coal, iron, copper, zinc, gypsum, lime, and most of the useful minerals in profusion, her coasts indented with bays, her northern border washed by nearly 2000 miles of inland seas, navigable by vessels of any tonnage, her great interior traversed from N. to S. by the Mississippi, receiving tributaries from 1000 miles to the E. and to the W., with 3000 miles of canal, and soon to have 30,000 miles of railway; with an emigration now approaching half a million annually, with schools and a teeming press to spread intelligence and quicken enterprise; with unbounded liberty of action to stimulate exertion; with new regions opened daily to market by iron roads, what is there to set a limit to the extension of a commerce as far beyond present, as the present has gone beyond past conception. The acquisition of California, too, has opened a new field to commerce on the greatest ocean of the globe, on one of whose bays a city, with twice the population of Philadelphia or New York at the era of the Revolution, has sprung into existence in the short space of five years, and a place that previous to 1848 was known only as a refreshing station for ships, has become a commercial town of the first rank—holding regular intercourse with China, Australia, the different ports of South America, of Europe, and the isles of the Pacific, and, as we have elsewhere remarked, seems destined to become a second Alexandria in the overland commerce of the East to Europe. By a recent treaty with the Argentine Republic, the Rio de la Plata has been opened to the commerce of the United States.

Scientific, Literary, and Educational Institutions.—Beyond the appropriations of public lands for endowing schools and colleges in the several states, the subject of general education does not appear to come properly within the sphere of the duties of the federal government. Though there are no national educational institutions, strictly so called, the government of the Union has in various ways shown a disposition to promote the cause of science, as far as can be done within its constitutional limits. The National Observatory at Washington is promoting not only the cause of astronomical knowledge, but its active head, Lieutenant Maury, is gaining a world-wide reputation by his study of the laws that govern the tides, currents, and winds of the different oceans and seas, on which subjects he from time to time publishes the results of his investigations. An exploring expedition was fitted out by the general government under the administration of Mr. Van Buren. It sailed August, 1838, visiting the coasts of South America, the N. W. coast of America, the islands of the Pacific, and the coasts of Asia and Africa, surveying harbors, determining latitudes and longitudes, and the altitudes of mountains, making geological researches, collecting specimens of natural history in every department, &c. The collections of natural history form an extensive and valuable museum, which is to be deposited in the Smithsonian Institute. The exploring expedition added a new continent to the geography of the world, by the discovery of an Antarctic mainland. An expedition, sent out by the United States government, under Commodore Perry, entered the port of Jeddo, in Japan, in the summer of 1853, was favorably received, and negotiations commenced which may result in opening an entirely new field to American commerce and enterprise. The Smithsonian Institute, at Washington, (see WASHINGTON,) though founded by the private munificence of a foreigner, is a national institution, "for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men," which is under the direction of the Government of the United States. The library of Congress, now numbering 50,000 volumes, the Military Academy at West Point, and the Naval Academy at Annapolis, are the other principal institutions of this class that are of a national character. For a notice of these two institutions the reader is referred to the heads of their respective localities. Coast surveys on the shores of both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, and military, topographical, and geological surveys, especially of the new territories, have been and are being made under the direction of the competent heads of their respective bureaux.

The names of Professor A. D. Bache, at the head of the coast survey, and of Colonel J. J. Abert, of the topographical bureau, are well known to the scientific world; as are those also of Colonels Fremont, Emory, Simpson, and Stansbury, and that of Captain Wilkes of the exploring expedition; all of whom have published valuable journals of their proceedings. Professor David Dale Owen's report on the geology of Iowa, Wisconsin, and Minnesota, under the direction of the commissioner of the land-office, is also an invaluable contribution to science. It accords with the genius of our people to rely rather on individual enterprise than on governmental action; and the reliance has been justly placed, as scarcely a week passes but our journals inform us of some wealthy individual endowing a college or professorship, or founding a library; or, at least, making liberal bequests for scientific and literary objects.

When it is considered that we have been a nation scarcely beyond the period of an ordinary life, and have not yet finished cutting down our forests and clearing our lands, and that almost the entire energies of our people have hitherto been directed to procuring a subsistence and erecting habitations; we surely have no cause to blush if our literature has not equalled that which has grown up in Europe under the fostering care of a wealthy aristocracy, amid institutions which had been enriched with all the choicest productions extant of ancient and modern learning, long before the white man had fixed his dwelling on any part of our vast domain. Our country has indeed just ground to glory, that in spite of all the disadvantages alluded to, she has produced so many names illustrious in science, literature, and art—names which posterity, whether in the Old or New World, will not willingly let die.

Public Schools.—The local statistics of education in each state will be found in their appropriate place. It will, however, be proper here to make some observations on a system of instruction designed to fit the masses of our citizens for the enjoyment of their privileges and fulfilment of their duties as freemen.

Our general system of public instruction, originated with the pilgrim fathers of New England; where, as early as 1628, provision was made for the education of "every child" in the settlements. It 1637 a school was ordered to be provided for every neighborhood of 50 families and another for a higher grade of instruction for every 100 families. A sum sufficient to maintain these schools was raised annually by a town tax, voluntarily imposed, and each school district drew its proportion of the whole sum for its own school or schools. Thus the property of the town was made liable for the education of the children. In most of the States a public school fund supplies in part the means of instruction.

In 1850, there were in the United States 3,411,597 pupils (including those of California as given in the census of 1852,) attending public schools, under the care of 89,129 teachers; 270,426 pupils attending academies or private schools, taught by 11,575 teachers; number of students in colleges about 17,250, instructed by 1325 professors and tutors; of the above, 5100 were medical, and 1350, theological students. It is estimated that there are in the various Sabbath-schools, including the schools of the Sunday-School Union, from 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 pupils.

Churches, Religious Denominations, &c.—The total number of churches, of all the different denominations, was, in 1850, 36,011. Of these, 12,467 were Methodist; 8791 Baptist; 5584 Presbyterian; 1674 Congregational; 1422 Episcopal; 1203 Lutheran; 1112 Roman Catholic; 812 Christian; 714 Friends, 619 Union; 494 Universalist; 361 Free; 327 German Reformed; 324 Dutch Reformed; 243 Unitarian, besides those of numerous minor sects. Total accommodations of the churches of all the different sects, 13,849,896: total value of church property, $86,416,639. See Table of Religions, APPENDIX.

The Press.—Closely connected with the literary institutions of the United States is the public press, the most efficient instrument for the diffusion of general intelligence, and the most powerful engine, whether to promote or undermine the great interests of morality and religion. The following table will show the number of daily, weekly, monthly, and other issues, with the aggregate circulation of each class:—

	No.	Circulation.	No. of copies printed ann'y.
Dailies.....	350	750,000	235,000,000
Tri-weeklies.....	150	75,000	11,700,000
Semi-weeklies.....	125	80,000	8,320,000
Weeklies.....	2000	2,875,000	149,500,000
Semi-monthlies.....	50	300,000	7,200,000
Monthlies.....	100	900,000	10,800,000
Quarterlies.....	25	20,000	80,000
	2500	5,000,000	422,600,000

The number of post-offices, November 1st, 1852, was 21,191; aggregate length of post-roads, 214,284 miles; annual transportation, 58,985,728 miles; gross receipts for the fiscal year, 1852, $6,925,971.28; expenditures, $7,108,459.04. Total number of letters sent by mail, 95,790,524; number of newspapers and packages, nearly 115,000,000; letters sent by ocean steamers, more than 6,000,000. For Rates of Postage, see APPENDIX.

Public Institutions, Dock Yards, &c.—The United States Government have a naval asylum at Philadelphia, (which see,) and marine hospitals at Portland, Boston, (or near it,) New York, Norfolk, San Francisco, Vicksburg, Napoleon, (Arkansas,) St. Louis, Chicago, Cleveland, Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Louisville, Evansville, and at some other points.

Some of these are now in course of construction. There are navy-yards at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, at Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Norfolk, Pensacola, Memphis, and Benicia. There is a mother mint at Philadelphia, and branches at Charlotte, North Carolina, Dahlonga, Georgia, and at San Francisco. An assaying house is about being built in New York. The other principal erections are custom houses, (many of them of great architectural merit,) forts, arsenals, armories, post-offices, treasury and sub-treasury offices, lighthouses, buoys, &c., the offices of state, war, navy, treasury, general post-office, patent office, &c., at Washington. There were 19 arsenals, and more than 100 forts and barracks, in 1852, scattered over different parts of the Union.

The navy contained, in 1852, 11 ships of the line, mounting from 74 to 120 guns; 12 first-class frigates, mounting 44 guns each; 2 second class, 36 each; 21 sloops of war, of from 16 to 20 guns each; 4 brigs, of 10 guns each; 3 schooners, of 1 and 2 each; 5 steam frigates, 6 to 10 guns each; 4 first-class steamers, 1 to 10 each; 7 second-class, and 5 storeships and brigs. The Mississippi steam frigate carries Paixhan guns. The navy list contains 6 commodores, commanders of squadrons; 1 commander to each of the 9 navy yards; a governor of the naval asylum; a superintendent of the naval academy; 68 captains; 97 commanders; 325 lieutenants; 148 surgeons, of every grade; 64 pursers; 24 chaplains; 12 professors of mathematics; 31 masters; 205 passed midshipmen; 262 midshipmen, &c. &c. The captains' pay varies from $2500 to $4500; the commanders', from $1800 to $2500; lieutenants', $1200 to $1500; surgeons', from $1000 to $2700; assistant surgeons', from $650 to $1200; pursers', from $1500 to $3000; chaplains', from $1000 to $1500; midshipmen's, from $300 to $750; other officers, from $400 to $2000. The marine corps has its head-quarters at Washington, and is composed of 15 captains, 40 lieutenants, and about 1100 men—commissioned officers and privates.

According to the army register for 1852, there were 765 general officers; 2489 general staff officers; 15,576 field officers, &c.; 58,190 company officers; 76,920 commissioned officers, and 2,124,953 privates of every grade in the militia. The regular army, however, only amounted to 896 commissioned officers, and 10,129 privates.

Government.—The government of the United States is a confederation of independent sovereignties, delegating a portion of their power to a central government, whose edicts and laws, so far as granted constitutionally, are always paramount to state authority, but all powers not expressly conceded by that constitution are tacitly reserved to the states. The governmental power of the American confederacy is divided into legislative, judicial, and executive. The executive power is lodged in a president and vice-president, elected for four years by electors chosen by popular vote in each state. The electors being equal to the number of senators and members of the house of representatives for each state at the time of said election. For example, Pennsylvania, having at the present time (1853) 25 members in the national house of representatives, and each state having 2 senators, is entitled to 27 electoral votes for president and vice-president. A majority of the whole number of electoral votes is necessary to a choice, and if no person has a majority, then, from the three highest on the list, the house of representatives, voting by states, (each state having but one vote, and a majority of all the states being necessary to an election,) shall proceed to choose a president—but if no candidate receives a majority before the 4th of March next following, then the vice-president shall act as president. If no candidate for vice-president has a majority of all the electoral votes, then from the two highest numbers on the list the senate shall proceed to choose the vice-president, but a majority of the whole number shall be necessary to a choice. The president is commander-in-chief of the army and navy of the United States, and has power of reprieve and pardon for offences against the United States, except in cases of impeachment. He has power (provided two-thirds of the senate concur) to make treaties, and to nominate the members of his cabinet, foreign ministers, and other officers of the United States, to the senate for its approval or disapproval. Of some inferior offices he has the absolute appointment. The president may also remove any officer, subject to his appointment, at his pleasure. The judiciary consists at present of one supreme court, 9 circuit and 47 district courts. The supreme court is presided over by a chief and 8 associate justices, who hold their appointments during life or good behaviour. The supreme court holds one session annually, commencing on the first Monday in December. A circuit court is held twice a year in each state, by one judge of the supreme court, and the district judge of the state or district in which the court is held. The district courts are held by special judges, mostly one for each district, but sometimes one judge may have two or even three districts under his charge. In most cases each state constitutes a district, but New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, and California are divided into two, and Alabama, Tennessee, and Iowa into three districts each. The United States courts have jurisdiction in all cases of law and equity arising under the constitution and laws of the United States, and treaties made under their authority, in all cases concerning foreign ministers and agents; in all cases of marine jurisdiction; in all controversies in which the United States shall be a party; in controversies between states, or between a state and citizen of another state; between citizens of different states; between citizens of the same, claiming lands under grants of different states, and between a state and citizens thereof, and foreign states, citizens, or subjects.

The legislative power is exercised by a Congress composed of two branches, a senate and house of representatives. The senate is composed of two members from each state, chosen by the legislature thereof, for six years, so that one-third shall retire at the close of every second year. The house of representatives is composed of members chosen every second year by the people of the several states, and the electors in each state shall have the qualifications requisite for the most numerous branch of the state legislature. A senator must be at least 30 years of age, and must have been 9 years a citizen of the United States, and a representative be 25 years of age, have been 7 years a citizen of the United States, and a resident of the state in which he shall be chosen. Representatives and electoral votes for president are apportioned according to the whole number of free persons and three-fifths of all others, (except Indians.) The population necessary to form a constituency for a member of the house of representatives, is determined by act of Congress, and is usually increased after the taking of each census, being a little over 30,000 between 1790 and 1800; but had risen to 70,680 between 1840 and 1850, and is about 90,000 under the 7th or last census. Those states, however, that have fractions of population of more than half the requisite number, send an additional member; but each state, whatever its population, must have at least one member. The number of representatives in the 34th Congress is 234, besides delegates from each territory, who speak, but do not vote. The senate represents the states in their sovereign capacity, and the house of representatives (as its name implies) the people. Congress has power to lay and collect taxes and imposts, to borrow money, to pay debts, to regulate commerce with foreign nations and among the several states and with the Indians, to coin money and regulate its value, to fix a standard of weights and measures, to punish counterfeiting, to establish post-offices and post-roads, to grant patents for inventions and copyrights for books, &c., to punish piracies, &c. on the high seas, and offences against the laws of nations, to declare war, and to provide and maintain an army and navy, to provide for calling forth the militia to execute the laws of the Union, and to suppress invasions and rebellions, to exercise exclusive jurisdiction over the District of Columbia, and over all places where forts, arsenals, magazines, dock-yards, &c. have been legally established. All bills for raising revenue and for taxation must originate in the house of representatives. A bill must have received a majority of the votes necessary to form a quorum in each house, and have received the signature of the president before it can become a law; but if the president objects to a bill, or part of its provisions, he must send his objections in writing to the house in which it originated, when that house proceeds to vote on it, and if two-thirds of both houses sustain the bill, it is a law, without the approbation of the president; or if the president does not return it in ten days, exclusive of Sabbaths, it is a law in like manner, provided Congress remain in session so long after the bill has been sent to the president. A census of the people, products, &c. of the several states is taken by order of Congress every tenth year; the seventh having been taken in 1850. The vice-president is ex-officio president of the senate, and, in case of the death or disability of the president, becomes president of the United States. In case of the death or disability of both, the speaker (pro tempore) of the senate, who is usually elected towards the close of each session, with reference to such a contingency, shall be the president. In the event of the death, refusal to serve, or any other disability, of all the three named above, the speaker of the house of representatives shall be president. The last officer presides in the popular branch, and on the assembling of every new Congress, (a Congress continues two years, or the period for which the members of the house of representatives are elected,) a new speaker is elected. The senate is a high court for the trial of impeachments; on the trial of the president of the United States, the chief-justice shall preside, but its decisions only extend to removals from office. In each district of the United States courts there is a prosecuting attorney and a marshal. The territories are ruled by a governor appointed by the president, but they elect their own legislature.

Salaries.—The president of the United States receives $25,000 a year, and has the use of the executive mansion at Washington. The vice-president receives $8000; the judges of the supreme court $4000, except the chief-justice, who receives $4500; members of Congress $8 a day; the secretaries of state, treasury, war, navy, interior, the postmaster-general and attorney-general each $8000 per annum; the foreign ministers of the first rank, i. e. ministers plenipotentiary, $9000, with an outfit of $9000; those of the second grade, i. e. ministers resident, $6000, with an outfit of $6000; of the third rank, i. e. chargés d'affaires, $4500, with an outfit of $4500; consuls receive their emoluments in fees.

Revenue, Finances, &c.—The revenue of the United States has been mostly derived from imports on foreign merchandise, and from the sale of public lands, but direct taxes have occasionally been levied. The revenue has increased (with occasional depressions) with considerable regularity, from $3,652,014, in 1792, to $61,353,924, in 1853. Of this revenue, $58,931,865 were from the customs. The expenditures have varied in the same period from $1,877,904 to $57,631,667; of which $17,174,955 were for the civil list. The smallest revenue was in 1792, and the greatest in 1853; the greatest expenditures were in 1847 and 1849, during, and at the close of the Mexican war; and the least in 1793. The smallest expenditure for the civil list and foreign intercourse, was $472,450, in 1793, and the greatest, $17,872,967, in 1851; the least expenditures for the military establishment was $944,958, in 1803; the greatest, (in the Mexican war,) $41,281,606, in 1847; the least expenditure for the navy was $53, in 1792, and the greatest, $10,891,639, in 1853. The total expenditures for the year ending June 30, 1853, amounted to $43,543,419. The public debt has varied from $75,463,476, in 1791, to $65,131,692, January 1, 1853, but in October, $61,066,139. The smallest debt was $37,513, in 1836; the greatest, $127,334,934, in 1816. Total individual debt of the states, (independent of the United States debt,) $201,541,624. The assessed value of property in 1850 was $5,988,149,407; true or estimated value, $7,068,157,779; estimated value in 1852, $7,846,706,697. The coinage of the United States mint, since its establishment in 1792 up to 1851, has been—gold, $179,945,427.50; silver, $78,221,961.90; copper, $1,395,846.45,—making a total of 392,238,087 pieces, and $253,563,235.85. The gold coinage of 1852 was $53,747,187, and for the first 9 months of 1853, $32,000,901. Of silver, for the same 9 months, $4,854,861 were coined. The last two items were at the Philadelphia mint alone. The banking capital of all the states, in 1851, amounted to $248,803,061; circulation $150,052,000, and specie to $50,000,000.

History.—The earliest settled portion of the present territory of the United States was Florida, about the year 1565; but as this state was not acquired till 1819, and was, moreover, not an English settlement, it is usual to date the commencement of the settlement of the colonies which formed the nucleus of the present confederation, from the settlement of Jamestown, in Virginia, in 1607. The order of the settlement of the other original states (i.e. states of the Revolution) was, New York, by the Dutch, at Fort Orange, (now Albany,) in 1614; Massachusetts, at Plymouth, in 1620; New Hampshire and Maine, in 1623; New Jersey, about 1624; Delaware, about 1627; Connecticut, in 1633; Maryland, in 1634–5;

Rhode Island, in 1636; North Carolina, (permanently) between 1640–50; South Carolina, about 1670; Pennsylvania, 1682, and Georgia, in 1733. These were all English settlements, (though with admixtures from Germany, Ireland, and Scotland,) except New Jersey and Delaware; the former by Dutch, Swedes, and English, and the latter by Swedes.

For an account of the wars with the Indians, and of separate colonial matters, see histories of each state. The first contest in which the colonies unitedly and generally took part was the old French and Indian war, as it was called, which commenced so disastrously with the defeat of General Braddock, near the present city of Pittsburg, and in which Washington, by his prudence and bravery, saved the army from utter destruction. But the contest raged most severely in New York (which see) and in Canada. This war was concluded by the Peace of Paris, in 1763: the interval between which, and the skirmish at Lexington, April 19, 1775, (the actual commencement of the Revolution,) was little else than a contest with the mother country concerning disputed rights, in which the colonies contended for representation in parliament as the only terms on which they would consent to taxation by that body; while the imperial government maintained the absolute right to impose taxes without consulting the colonies. A series of events followed the skirmish mentioned above, in many of which the colonial chief was frequently brought almost to the verge of despair. We are not expected here to give more than a brief outline, which we will endeavor to do succinctly, by an enumeration of the principal events of each campaign. The battle of Lexington, though unfavorable to the Americans, taught the British it was no mere sedition they had attempted to put down, but that they had to contend with men animated by a firm purpose, whom one defeat, or a series of defeats, was not likely to divert from a course, not undertaken without a full estimate of its difficulties. The taking of Ticonderoga and Crown Point by the Americans, in May; the battle of Bunker Hill, near Boston, in June, in which the Americans retreated for want of ammunition; the investment of Boston by Washington, and the unsuccessful expeditions of Arnold and Schuyler to Quebec, in the autumn, the former by way of the Kennebec river, and the latter by way of Lake Champlain—were the principal events of the opening campaign of 1775. That of 1776 commenced with the evacuation of Boston by the British troops in March, and was followed by their repulse from Sullivan's island, before Charleston, in June; by the Declaration of Independence, at Philadelphia, July 4; by the disastrous battle of Flatbush, on Long Island, in August; by the skirmish at Whiteplains, north of New York, in September; by the loss of Forts Washington and Lee, and of 2000 prisoners; by

Washington's retreat across New Jersey, and by the successful passage of the Delaware, and the surprise and capture of 900 Hessians, at Trenton, on the morning of Dec. 26th. The latter event revived the drooping spirits of the Americans, and following up their success, Washington, in the early part of January, opened the campaign in 1777, by driving the British from Princeton, New Jersey; after which he took up his winter quarters at Morristown, in the same state. In April, Governor Tryon took and burnt Danbury, in Connecticut; Burgoyne invaded New York, from Canada, and took Fort Ticonderoga, in July; Colonel Baum is defeated by General Stark, near Bennington, in August; the Americans are defeated by Cornwallis, at Brandywine, September 11, and the British take possession of Philadelphia; Gates defeats Burgoyne at the battles of Stillwater and Saratoga, September 19 and October 7, and on the 16th. Burgoyne surrenders with 5790 men; Washington is repulsed by Howe, at Germantown, and soon after retires to winter quarters, at Valley Forge, where the army suffer greatly from cold, hunger, want of clothing, and suitable barracks, and from consequent disease. The successful defence, by the Americans, of Fort Mercer, at Red Bank, 6 miles below Philadelphia, and the opening of the navigation, by the British, to Philadelphia, closed the campaign of 1777. February 6, 1778, France formed a treaty of alliance with the United States; the British army evacuates Philadelphia, June 18th, and is defeated at Monmouth, the 28th of the same month; Sullivan besieges Newport, August 15, but raises the siege on the 28th, and has a skirmish with Pigot, whom he routs, on the following day; the massacre of Wyoming takes place in July; Savannah is taken by the British, December 29; in the same month, Washington goes into winter quarters at Middlebrook, and terminates the campaign of 1778; about one-fourth of Lincoln's army in the South, destroyed by the British, in March, 1779; in May, Charleston is invested by the British, who retire on the approach of Lincoln; skirmish at Stono Ferry, June 20; Stono Point taken by the British, June 1, and retaken by Wayne, July 15; in the same month, Tryon invades Connecticut, burns the shipping at New Haven, and the villages of Fairfield and Norwalk; August 29th, Sullivan defeats the Tories and savages in New York; September 24th, the French fleet and the American army invest Savannah, but are repulsed, October 9. Paul Jones gains in the autumn of this year a splendid naval victory in the British seas. The army goes into winter quarters at West Point and Morristown, and thus closes the campaign of 1779. Charleston besieged by Sir H. Clinton, in April, 1780, surrenders May 12th, and Clinton becomes master of the greater part of the South; August 6th, Sumter defeats the British at Hanging Rock; but the Americans are defeated at Camden, August 16th, and at Fishing creek on the 18th; Arnold attempts to betray West Point September 21st, but is discovered, and flies; the British defeated at King's mountain in South Carolina October 7, and Cornwallis retreats. The campaign of 1781 is opened by the defeat of the British at Cowpens, January 17th, and is followed by the rout of the Americans at Guilford Court House in March, and at Hobkirk's Hill in April; Forts Marion and Lee surrender in May to the Americans, and Augusta in June; Greene routs the British at Eutaw Springs; an indecisive engagement takes place between the British and French fleets off Cape Henry, in March; Forts Trumbull and Griswold taken, (the garrison of the latter slaughtered,) and New London burned by Arnold in September; and finally the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown, October 19th, 1781, puts an end to the active operations of the war, and leads to an acknowledgment by Great Britain of the independence of the United States, in 1783. A political event of more importance perhaps never took place on our globe, or one more truly revolutionary in its effects upon systems of government throughout the world, or more pregnant with promises of future benefit to the human race. The government that carried the nation through the trying scenes of the Revolution was a simple confederation of states, represented by members elected by the legislature of each of the 13 separate sovereignties. This, but for the patriotism and virtue of the people, would have been wholly inefficient, and depended for its effectiveness on the willing obedience of the great mass of the population. This government endured from 1777 to 1787, when a convention of delegates, representing all the states, framed the present constitution, which went into operation March 4th, 1789, by the inauguration of the wise and patriotic Washington as president. An experience of more than 60 years under this Constitution has more than realized the favorable predictions of its most zealous supporters. It has proved itself the best adapted to the ruling of an extensive region of any government ever framed, inasmuch as its action is confined to matters of general interest, while each region governs itself in local affairs. Indeed, its wide extent has in some instances proved an especial safeguard, and prevented wars and rebellion from sectional excitement. While different localities have been several times agitated to the point of rebellion or warfare, the rest of the nation, remote from the disturbed region, have remained calm and determined in the support of the central authority.

The disturbed state of Europe, consequent upon the breaking out of the French revolution, acted favorably for the development of the resources of the United States, exhausted by a long war, as it not only created a market for her agricultural products, but gave her a large portion of the carrying trade of the world. The principal events following the establishment of the government of 1789, were the treaty with the Creek Indians, in 1790; the admission of Vermont into the confederacy in 1791, and of Kentucky in 1792; the insurrection in Pennsylvania to resist the duty on distilled spirits, and the defeat of the northwest Indians by General Wayne, in 1794; Tennessee admitted in 1796; death of Washington in 1799; seat of government removed to the District of Columbia in 1800; Ohio admitted in 1802; Louisiana purchased in 1803; Tripoli bombarded by Commodore Preble, and Hamilton shot by Burr, in 1804; Burr tried for conspiracy in 1807; Harrison defeats the Indians in Indiana in 1811; war declared against Great Britain in 1812, on account of violations of neutrality, and the search of our ships for British subjects; capitol at Washington burned by the British, 1814; peace concluded February, 1815; and war with Algiers the same year; Indiana admitted in 1816; Seminole war in 1817; Illinois admitted in 1818; Alabama admitted, and Florida ceded by Spain in 1819; Maine admitted in 1820, and Missouri in 1821; General Lafayette visits America, and is received with great marks of respect, in 1824; cholera breaks out, and Black Hawk's war occurs, in 1832; Arkansas admitted, Wisconsin becomes a territory, and great fire in New York, in 1835; Texas achieves her independence of Mexico in 1836; Michigan admitted in 1837; Texas admitted, and war breaks out in consequence with Mexico, and Iowa admitted, in 1846; peace with Mexico, acquisition of Upper California and New Mexico, and admission of Wisconsin, in 1848; admission of California, and creation of the territories of New Mexico and Utah, all in 1850. Such is a brief chronicle of the principal events of a nation's history, now one of the first powers on the globe; whose friendship is sought, and enmity avoided, by the most potent rulers of Europe. The 14th president now peaceably and harmoniously directs the national affairs of a confederacy of 31 states, reaching from the middle of the temperate to the torrid zone, and from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean. Our government has been tried under all circumstances, (but that of famine,) rebellion, pestilence, war, strong party dissensions, and jarring sectional interests, and has come out stronger than ever through them all. Presidents have died, and the legal substitutes have succeeded to their power, without the slightest breath of commotion. Disappointed aspirants have sometimes endeavored to create dissension, but have only sunk themselves into contempt and neglect. The forests fall beneath the settler's axe, the bowels of the earth are searched for mineral wealth, railways are laid down, canals opened, rivers deepened, commerce extended, schools and colleges founded, books disseminated, cities built, populations, invited by our free institutions, swarm from other lands in sufficient numbers to form a state for each cycle of the earth, and thus expand and extend the area of freedom, truth and light; and, with the blessing of Him without whom no increase is given, seem destined to revolutionize the world.

UNITIA, a post-office of Blount co., Tenn.

UNITY, a post-township in Waldo county, Maine, 33 miles N. E. from Augusta. Population, 1557.

UNITY, a post-township in Sullivan county, New Hampshire, 40 miles W. by N. from Concord. Population, 961.

UNITY, a post-office of Crawford co., Pa.

UNITY, a township of Westmoreland co., Pennsylvania, about 7 miles E. from Greensburg. Population, 2527.

UNITY, a small post-village of Montgomery co., Maryland, 30 miles W. by S. from Baltimore.

UNITY, a post-township forming the N. E. extremity of Columbiana co., Ohio, intersected by the Ohio and Pennsylvania railroad. Population, 2095.

UNITY, a post-village in the above township, about 35 miles N. from Steubenville. Population, about 400.

UNITY, a post-village of Alexander co., Illinois, on Cash river, 225 miles S. from Springfield, and about 15 miles from the mouth of the Ohio river.

UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA, a post-office of Albemarle co., Virginia. See CHARLOTTESVILLE.

UPATOI CREEK, of Georgia, flows southwestward through Muscogee county, and enters Chattahoochee river, 8 or 9 miles S. from Columbus.

UPATOIE, a post-village of Muscogee co., Georgia, about 18 miles E. N. E. from Columbus.

UPDEGRAFF'S, a post-office of Jefferson co., Ohio.

UPHAUPEE, a post-office of Macon co., Ala.

UPLAND, a thriving village of West Marlborough township, Chester co., Pennsylvania, 38 miles W. by S. from Philadelphia.

UPLAND, a post-office of Mason co., Va.

UPLANDS, a thriving post-village of Delaware county, Pennsylvania, on Chester creek, about 2 miles from its mouth, and 92 miles E. S. E. from Harrisburg. It has several mills or factories moved by water-power. Population, from 200 to 500.

UPPER, a township of Cape May co., New Jersey, 13 miles N. E. from Cape May Court House. Population, 1341.

UPPER, a township in Crawford co., Arkansas. Population, 524.

UPPER, a township in the S. W. part of Lawrence co., Ohio, on the Ohio river. Population, 2494.

UPPER ALLEN, a township of Cumberland co., Pennsylvania, on the right bank of the Susquehanna river, about 12 miles E. by S. from Carlisle. Population, 1220.

UPPER ALLOWAY'S CREEK, a post-township of Salem co., New Jersey, 72 miles S. by W. from Trenton. Population, 2530.

UPPER ALTON, a post-village of Madison co., Illinois, 2½ miles E. from Alton. It is the seat of Shurtleff College. See ALTON.

UPPER AQUEBOGUE, a post-village of Suffolk co., New York, about 75 miles E. by N. from New York city.

UPPER AUGUSTA, a township of Northumberland co., Pa., contains Sunbury, the county seat, on the left side of the Susquehanna. Population, including Sunbury, 2080.

UPPER BERN, a township of Berks co., Pennsylvania, intersected by the Philadelphia and Pottsville railroad, 17 miles N. N. W. from Reading. Population, 1747.

UPPER BLACK EDDY, a post-office of Bucks co., Pennsylvania.

UPPER CHICHESTER, a township of Delaware co., Pennsylvania, 5 miles W. from Chester. Population, 531.

UPPERCO, a post-office of Baltimore co., Md.

UPPER CROSS ROADS, a post-office of Harford co., Maryland.

UPPER DARBY, a post-township of Delaware co., Pennsylvania, about 9 miles W. from Philadelphia. Population, 2044.

UPPER DICKINSON, a township of Cumberland co., Pennsylvania, about 12 miles S. W. from Carlisle. Population, 2219.

UPPER DUBLIN, a post-township of Montgomery co., Pennsylvania, 15 miles N. from Philadelphia. Population, 1330.

UPPER EMBARRAS, a post-office of Coles co., Illinois.

UPPER FALLS, a post-office of Windsor co., Vermont.

UPPER FALLS, a post-office of Baltimore co., Maryland.

UPPER FALLS OF COAL, a post-office of Kanawha co., Virginia.

UPPER FOURCHE, a township in Yell co., Arkansas. Population, 530.

UPPER FREEHOLD, a township of Monmouth co., New Jersey, about 15 miles S. W. from Freehold. Population, 2566.

UPPER GILMANTON, a post-office of Belknap co., New Hampshire.

UPPER GLOUCESTER, a post-office of Cumberland co., Maryland.

UPPER HAMBURG, a thriving post-village of Hardin co., Tennessee, on the left bank of Tennessee river, 130 miles S. W. from Nashville. It has several warehouses.

UPPER HANOVER, a township forming the N. extremity of Montgomery co., Pennsylvania. Population, 1741.

UPPER HUNTING CREEK, a post-village in Caroline co., Md., 57 miles E. from Annapolis.

UPPER IOWA, a small river which rises in the S. E. part of Minnesota, and passing into Iowa, flows first south-easterly, then north-easterly, and empties itself into the Mississippi river in Allomakee county.

UPPER JAY, a post-office of Essex co., N. Y.

UPPER LEACOCK, a township of Lancaster co., Pennsylvania, 7 miles E. by N. from Lancaster. Population, 1886.

UPPER LISLE, a post-office of Broome co., New York.

UPPER MACUNGIE, a township of Lehigh co., Pennsylvania, about 10 miles W. by S. from Allentown. Population, 2035.

UPPER MAHANTANGO, a post-township forming the W. extremity of Schuylkill co., Pennsylvania. Population, 1654.

UPPER MAHONNY, a township of Northumberland co., Pennsylvania, 14 miles S. E. from Sunbury. Population, 1268.

UPPER MAKEFIELD, a township of Bucks county, Pennsylvania, on the right bank of the Delaware river, intersected by the Delaware canal, 10 miles E. by S. from Doylestown. Population, 1701.

UPPER MARLBOROUGH, a post-village, capital of Prince George co., Maryland, a few miles W. from the Patuxent river, and 17 miles E. S. E. from Washington. A newspaper is published here.

UPPER MIDDLETOWN, a village in Middlesex co., Conn., on Connecticut river, 15 miles S. from Hartford, contains several churches.

UPPER MIDDLETOWN, a post-village of Fayette co., Pennsylvania, on Redstone creek, about 40 miles S. S. E. from Pittsburgh.

UPPER MILFORD, a township forming the S. extremity of Lehigh co., Pennsylvania. Population, 3259.

UPPER MOUNT BETHEL, a township forming the N. extremity of Northampton co., Pennsylvania, on the Delaware river. Pop., 2855.

UPPER NAZARETH, a township of Northampton co., Pennsylvania, 8 miles W. N. W. from Easton. Population, 708.

UPPER OKAW, a township in Coles co., Illinois. Population, 657.

UPPER OXFORD, a township of Chester co., Pennsylvania, 22 miles S. S. W. from West Chester. Population, 1021.

UPPER PAXTON, a township forming the N. W. extremity of Dauphin co., Pennsylvania. Population, 1690.

UPPER PEACH TREE, a post-office of Wilcox co., Alabama.

UPPER PENN'S NECK, New Jersey. See PENN'S NECK.

UPPER PROVIDENCE, a township of Delaware co., Pennsylvania, about 15 miles W. from Philadelphia. Population, 778.

UPPER PROVIDENCE, a township of Montgomery co., Pennsylvania, intersected by the Philadelphia and Reading railroad, 10 miles W. by N. from Norristown. Pop., 2457.

UPPER RED HOOK, a post-village of Dutchess co., New York, about 15 miles S. from Catskill.

UPPER ST. CLAIR, a post-township of Alle-ghany co., Pennsylvania, about 9 miles W. by S. from Pittsburg. Population, 1626.

UPPER SALFORD, a township of Montgomery co., Pennsylvania, 15 miles N. by W. from Norristown. Population, 1440.

UPPER SANDUSKY, a flourishing post-village of Crane township, and capital of Wyandot county, Ohio, on the left bank of Sandusky river, and on the Ohio and Indiana railroad, 63 miles N. by W. from Columbus. It was formerly the chief town of the Wyandot Indians, who ceded their land to the United States in 1843. Three miles N. of the town is the battle-ground, where Colonel Crawford was defeated by the Indians in 1783. The village is beautifully situated, and is rapidly improving. Population in 1850, 780.

UPPER SAUCON, a township of Lehigh co., Pennsylvania, about 6 miles S. from Allentown. Population, 2372.

UPPER STILLWATER, a post-village in Penobscot co., Maine, on Penobscot river, and on the Bangor and Piscataquis railroad, 9 miles N. from Bangor.

UPPER STRASBURG, a post-village in Franklin co., Pennsylvania, about 10 miles N. N. W. from Chambersburg.

UPPER SWATARA, a township of Dauphin county, Pennsylvania, on the left bank of the Susquehanna river, intersected by the Pennsylvania canal, and by the Lancaster and Harrisburg railroad. Population, 1239.

UPPER THREE CREEK, of Barnwell district, South Carolina, flows S. W. into the Savannah river.

UPPER TOWAMENSING, a township of Carbon co., Pennsylvania, on the left bank of the Lehigh river, 4 miles below Mauch Chunk. Population, 1628.

UPPER TRACT, a post-office of Pendleton co., Virginia.

UPPER TRAPPE, a post-office of Somerset co., Maryland.

UPPER TULPEHOCKEN, a township of Berks co., Pennsylvania, 19 miles N. W. from Reading. Population, 1983.

UPPER TURKEYFOOT, a township of Somerset co., Pennsylvania, about 13 miles S. W. from Somerset. Population, 952.

UPPER TYGART, a post-office of Carter co., Kentucky.

UPPERVILLE, a post-village of Fauquier co., Virginia, is situated at the foot of the Blue Ridge, on the turnpike from Winchester to Alexandria, 135 miles N. by W. from Richmond. It is surrounded by a fine farming district, and contains 3 churches, and about 700 inhabitants.

UPPER YARMOUTH, a post-village in Cumberland co., Maine, 35 miles S. W. by S. from Augusta.

UPSHUR, a new county in the N. W. central part of Virginia, on the W. fork of the Monongahela river.

UPSHUR, a county in the N. E. part of Texas, contains about 950 square miles. The Sabine river bounds it on the S., and the Big Cypress bayou on the N. The soil is generally rich. Cotton, wheat, Indian corn, grass, and cattle are the staples. The county is well timbered with oak, hickory, &c. It produced in 1850, 673 bales of cotton; 90,495 bushels of corn, and 26,736 pounds of butter. There were 131 pupils attending public schools. Formed in 1846, from part of Harrison county. An active immigration is directed to this section of Texas. Named in honor of Abel P. Upshur, secretary of state under President Tyler. Capital, Gilmer. Population, 3394; of whom 2712 were free, and 682, slaves.

UPSHUR, a thriving post-village of Preble co., Ohio, on the Western turnpike, about 50 miles N. by W. from Cincinnati.

URSON, a county in the W. central part of Georgia, contains 384 square miles. The Flint river bounds it on the S. W., and it is drained by Potato creek. The surface is diversified by hills, some of which rise about 800 feet above the level of Flint river. The soil is mostly fertile, especially near the river. Cotton and Indian corn are the staples. In 1850 the county produced 7443 bales of cotton; 343,017 bushels of corn, and 68,709 of sweet potatoes. It contained 3 cotton factories, 4 grist mills, and 4 saw mills; 21 churches, 650 pupils attending public schools, and 125 attending other schools. The county is liberally supplied with water-power. Organized in 1824, and named in honor of Stephen Upson, an eminent lawyer of Georgia. Capital, Thomaston. Pop., 9424, of whom 4720 were free, and 4704, slaves.

URSONVILLE, a post-village in Susquehanna co., Pa, 180 miles N. N. E. from Harrisburg.

UPTON, a township in Worcester co., Massachusetts, 33 miles W. S. W. from Boston. Population, 2023.

UPTON, a post-village in Franklin co., Pennsylvania, 13 miles S. W. from Chambersburg.

UPTON, a post-office of Van Buren co., Io.

UPTON, a post-office of Dodge co., Wis.

URBANA, a small village of Monroe co., Iowa, 10 miles S. E. from Albia, the county seat.

URBANA, a small village of Jackson co., Illinois, about 50 miles S. S. E. from Kaskaskia.

URBANA, a township of Steuben co., New York, at the S. end of Crooked lake, 5 miles N. E. from Bath. Population, 2079.

URBANA, a post-village in Frederick co., Maryland, 76 miles N. W. from Annapolis.

URBANA, a post-village, capital of Middlesex co., Virginia, on Urbana creek, about 84 miles E. by N. from Richmond.

URBANA, a post-township in the S. part of Champaign co., Ohio, intersected by the Mad River and Lake Erie railroad. Population, 3414.

URBANA, a beautiful post-village in the above township, and capital of Champaign county, on the Mad River and Lake Erie railroad, 2 or 3 miles E. from Mad river, and 42 miles W. from Columbus. The new Swedenborgian college, situated at this place, has about 100 students. Urbanna contains 1 bank, 2 newspaper offices, 1 foundry, and 1 woollen factory. The Columbus and Piqua railroad (unfinished) intersects the above-named road at this point. The first house was built in 1806. Pop. in 1850, 2020; 1853, about 3000.

URBANNA, a post-village, capital of Champagne co., Illinois, on the Salt Fork of Vermilion river, and on the Chicago branch of the Central railroad, 92 miles E. by N. from Springfield. It is situated near the border of a large and fertile prairie.

URBANNA, a small post-village of Hickory co., Missouri, about 80 miles S. W. from Jefferson City.

URREVILLE, a post-office of Kent co., Md.

URSA, a small post-village of Adams co., Illinois, 114 miles W. from Springfield.

USQUEBAUGH, a post-office of Washington co., Rhode Island.

UTAH, originally a part of the territory of Upper California, ceded to the United States by the treaty with Mexico in 1848, was erected into a separate territory in 1850. It is bounded on the N. by Oregon; E. by Indian Territory and New Mexico; S. by New Mexico, and W. by California. The Rocky mountains separate it from Indian Territory, and the Sierra Nevada partly from California. It lies between 37° and 42° N. lat., and between 105° 30' or 106° and 120° W. lon., being about 700 miles in extreme length from E to W., and 347 miles broad from N. to S., and including an area of 187,923 square miles, or 120,270,720 acres, of which only 16,333 were improved in 1850.

Population.—The population is principally composed of Mormons, who settled there in 1847, after their expulsion from Missouri and Illinois. Continual accessions of this new sect are arriving from all parts of the Union and from Europe. According to the national census of 1850, there were 11,380 inhabitants; of whom 6022 were white males; 3508 white females; 119 colored males; 87 colored females, and 26 slaves. This population was divided into 2322 families, occupying the same number of dwellings. Orson Pratt, a dignitary of the sect of Mormons, estimates the population in 1853 at from 30,000 to 35,000, exclusive of Indians, of whom there are several tribes in a very degraded state, subsisting mostly on roots, berries, fish, &c., and living generally in caves or bushes, but sometimes in wigwags or tents, and going nearly naked. Of the civilized population, in 1850, 1381 were born in the territory; 7974 in other parts of the Union; 1056 in England; 106 in Ireland; 232 in Scotland; 125 in Wales; and 471 in other countries. In the year ending June 1st, 1850, there occurred 239 deaths, or more than 21 in every 1000 persons. Of the entire population, 2 were blind; 3, insane, and 2, idiotic.

Counties.—Utah is divided into 12 counties, viz. Davis, Deseret, Great Salt Lake, Green River, Iron, Juab, Millard, San Pete, Tooele, Utah, Weber, and Washington. Capital, Fillmore City.

Cities and Towns.—The principal towns and villages are Great Salt Lake City, population from 8000 to 10,000, Brownsville, Ogden, Lehi, Provo, Springville, Néphi, Manti, Fillmore, Parovan, and Cedar City. These towns are mostly built of adobes or unburnt bricks, and are named (with the exception of Salt Lake City) in order, proceeding from N. to S., and scattered over a space of nearly 300 miles, mostly near the base of the Wahsatch mountains. A building is being erected for the state capitol at Fillmore City.

Face of the Country, Geology, &c.—This extensive region is generally an elevated and barren table-land, and divided into unequal portions by the Sierra Madre mountains, but having the larger to the W. of them. The western section, known as the Great or Fremont Basin, is hemmed in by mountains on all sides, having the Blue mountains of Oregon on the N., the Wahsatch mountains on the E., the Sierra Nevada on the W., and a nameless mountain or mountains on the S. This basin has an extent of about 500 miles from E. to W., by 350 miles from N. to S., and a general elevation of from 4000 to 5000 feet above the level of the sea, "with its own system of lakes and rivers, but having no communication with the ocean." The eastern portion is covered with a white incrustation of saline and alkaline matter, and the western with a mixture of salt, sand, and clay, in which animals sink to their knees. Several detached mountains traverse this basin, the principal of which are the Humboldt River mountains, which run from N. to S. near the centre of the basin, and are elevated from 2000 to 5000 feet above the surrounding country. The Wahsatch mountains rise from 4000 to 7000 feet above the neighboring valleys, and some reach the height of perpetual snow. Some of the valleys in the southern part of the settled country have an elevation of about 6000 feet above the level of the sea. A great valley, more sterile even than the western section, occupies the region between the Wahsatch and the Rocky mountains.

Of the geology of Utah as yet very little is known. It appears, however, that volcanic rocks are found in various parts. Basalt occurs on the slopes of the mountains in many places. "The Boiling Springs" referred to on the next page, and the hot springs in the valley of Bear river, and in other sections, indicate the proximity of volcanic fires. See ROCKY MOUNTAINS.

Lakes and Rivers.—Great Salt lake is the prominent object to be considered in treating of the waters of Utah. This extensive and peculiar sheet of water lies N. E. from the centre of the territory, is about 70 miles long and 30 miles wide, with no visible outlet. The water is so highly saline that no living thing can exist in it, and by the evaporation in hot weather, leaves on its shores a thick incrustation of salt. According to Fremont's analysis of some of the salt of this lake, there were in 100 parts, 97.80 chloride of sodium, or common salt; sulphate of lime, 1.12; chloride of magnesium, .24; and sulphate of soda, .23. About 25 miles S. of this, and communicating with it by the river Jordan, is Utah lake, a body of fresh water about 85 miles in length. It is stored with trout and other fish. These lakes are elevated from 4200 to 4500 feet above the sea. Pyramid lake, on the slope of the Sierra Nevada mountains, is, according to Fremont, about 700 feet higher than Great Salt lake, and receives its name from a pyramidal rock which rises from the midst of its waters. In the interior are several small lakes, which are the recipients of the streams of the interior basin, and are often mere sinks or sloughs. The most important of these known are Nicollet lake, about the middle of the territory, and Lake Ashley, perhaps 70 miles S. of it. Near the eastern base of the Sierra Nevada mountains are also several lakes, which receive the waters of the eastern slope of these mountains. The principal of these are Mud, Pyramid, Carson's, and Walker's lakes. About 50 miles E. of Pyramid lake is Humboldt's lake, formed by the waters of a river of the same name. These lakes have evidently no outlet but by evaporation, which in some instances, in hot weather, reduces them to mere marshes or sinks. As before stated, the rivers of Fremont's basin have no apparent connection with the ocean, but all either discharge themselves into the interior lakes, or are absorbed by the sands of the deserts. The largest of these streams is the Humboldt river, having its sources in the western declivities of the mountain of that name, and flows S. W. about 300 miles into the lake above described. One of the overland routes to California is along this river, whose shores afford a precarious pasturage for the animals of the caravans. The Nicollet river rises in the S. part of the territory, flows N., and then W. for nearly the same distance as the Humboldt, and empties itself into Nicollet lake. In the N. E. part of the basin Bear river enters the territory from Oregon, and is the principal tributary of Great Salt lake. The Colorado is formed by the junction of the Green and Grand rivers in the S. portion of the eastern basin or valley, and thence flows S. W. into New Mexico. The Grand river, the most eastern branch, rising in the Rocky mountains, flows S. W. to meet Green river, which is the larger tributary, and has its sources in the S. E. part of Oregon. These streams and their affluents drain the entire eastern division of Utah.

The former has a course of about 300, and the latter of about 400 miles.

Objects of Interest to Tourists.—Of these there is no scarcity in this widely extended territory. Among the mountain fastnesses and gorges of the Rocky, Wahsatch, Humboldt, Sierra Nevada, and other mountains, there probably exist scenes yet unrevealed to civilized eyes, equal in interest to any that have been discovered. But our business is with known facts rather than conjecture. Among the most remarkable objects of this region is the Great Salt lake. In the saltiness of its waters; in the circumstance of its having no outlet, and being fed from another smaller and fresh-water lake, (with which it is connected by a stream called the "Jordan,") and in the rugged and repulsive character of some portions of the surrounding region, it bears a remarkable resemblance to the Dead Sea of Palestine. Instead, however, of lying 1000 feet below, it is more than 4000 feet above the level of the sea; its waters, moreover, being an almost pure solution of common salt, are free from that pungency and nauseous taste which characterize those of the Dead Sea. The Pyramid lake, already referred to, embosomed in the Sierra Nevada mountains, with the singular pyramidal mount rising from its transparent waters to the height of perhaps 600 feet, and walled in by almost perpendicular precipices, in some places 3000 feet high, has nothing, we believe, similar to it within the borders of the United States. The Boiling Springs, in about 117° 30' W. lon., and 39° N. lat., are described by Fremont as boiling up at irregular intervals with much noise. The largest basin he represents as being several hundred feet in circumference, and having a circular space at one end 15 feet in diameter, entirely occupied with boiling water. A pole 16 feet in length was entirely submerged on thrusting it down near the centre. The temperature of the water near the edge was 206°. The same authority describes an appearance similar to the mirages of the great deserts of the Old World. In travelling over the salt deserts of the Fremont Basin, they saw their party reflected in the air, probably, as Fremont suggests, from saline particles floating in the atmosphere. Near Brown's Hole, in the neighborhood of Green river, in lat. about 41°, lon. 109° W., are a number of narrow cañons or gorges, with nearly perpendicular walls from 600 to 800, and even 1500 feet in height, presenting scenes of great wildness and grandeur.

Climate.—As elsewhere remarked, the climate of the great plateau between the Rocky and Sierra Nevada mountains seems to partake of the characteristics of the great Tartar plains of Asia. According to Orson Pratt, the midsummer is dry and hot, the heat ranging at midday from 90° to 105°, but with cool mornings and evenings, refreshed with mountain breezes. The winters are mild, snow seldom falling more than a few inches deep in the valleys, nor does it lie long. Spring and autumn, though mild, are subject to sudden changes, and the wind is very variable, shifting almost every day to every point of the compass. Rain seldom falls between April and October, but when heavy showers do come, they are generally accompanied by thunder and hail, and sometimes with strong winds. Dr. Bernhisel and Mr. Snow say that the climate of Great Salt Lake city, in lat. 40° 45' N., is milder and drier than in the same parallel on the Atlantic coast, and the temperature more uniform, the thermometer rarely descending to zero. During three years, according to observation, the highest point attained by the thermometer was 100° above, and the lowest 5° below zero. The variation between the temperature of day and night, in midsummer, is from 20° to 40°. Frosts in Utah valley fall as late as the last of May, and as early as the first of September.

Soil and Productions.—A very small portion, comparatively, of Utah can ever be made available in producing food for man or beast. The few fertile spots are found in the valleys watered by the pure streams flowing from the neighboring mountains, and at the bases of most of the mountains is a strip of fertile land. The line of Mormon settlements occupy the valleys from N. to S., lying near the western base of the Wahsatch mountains. These are highly fertile. Irrigation, however, is necessary even here to successful husbandry; but large portions of the valleys themselves are too remote from streams to profit by irrigation.

Bear, Great Salt Lake, Utah, Yuab, South, Sevier and Land Pitch valleys, are the principal agricultural districts. The upper portion of the valleys of the Green and Grand rivers, is represented as "incapable of supporting any population whatever. The Uintah and Green river valleys, lying lower down on the tributaries of the Colorado, are, however, not so sterile."

Wheat, rye, barley, buckwheat, Indian corn, and the garden vegetables of the Middle States are the products of Utah. There is a fine bunch-grass, which, owing to the dryness of the climate, does not decay, that furnishes fodder for the cattle during winter, without being cured. The Indian corn and vines are liable to be caught by early and late frosts. The experiments in rearing fruits do not appear yet to have been sufficiently tested to pronounce definitely as to the congeniality of the climate with their healthful production: peaches and other fruits have, however, been raised. In 1850 there were in Utah, 16,333 acres of improved land, divided into 926 farms, producing 107,702 bushels of wheat; 210 of rye; 9899 of Indian corn; 10,900 of oats; 289 of peas and beans; 43,968 of Irish potatoes; 60 of sweet do; 1799 of barley, and 332 of buckwheat; 70 lbs. tobacco; 9222 of wool; 83,309 of butter, and 30,998 of cheese; live stock valued at $546,968; market produce at $23,868; slaughtered animals, at $67,985; and 4805 tons of hay, besides small quantities of grass-seeds, hops, flax, molasses, beeswax and honey.

Forest Trees.—Timber is scarce throughout this territory, except on the mountains, and is principally composed of pine and fir trees. There are some groves of cottonwood and box-elder in the bottoms of the principal streams, and a scrub cedar also in some of the valleys. Wood, both for building and fuel, is expensive.

Animals.—This region is scarcely more fruitful in animal than vegetable life, but elk, deer, antelopes, grizzly bears, mountain sheep, foxes, and wolves are found. Waterfowl are abundant on the lakes, and trout and very fine salmon in the mountain streams.

Manufactures.—Much progress in manufactures is hardly to be expected in so youthful a settlement; but Mr. Pratt represents them as starting up with vigor, particularly the manufacture of flour, and the more necessary implements of husbandry and housewifery, and the cheaper stuffs for clothing. The great distance from supplies from abroad, and the great cost of transport, must per force encourage home manufactures. The census of 1850 reports only 16 establishments, producing each $500 annually. Homemade manufactures were produced in the same year, of the value of $1391.

Commerce.—The trade of Utah is pretty much confined to traffic with the overland emigrants to California. They find also a ready sale for their live stock in the same state. It is possible that a trade down the Colorado river with California may be opened at some future day, as recent explorers report that river navigable for steamers of light draft above the Rio Virgen in New Mexico.

According to a correspondent of Colonel Benton's, Captain Gunnison has discovered a pass through the Rocky mountains, or a portion of them called the Sierra Blanco, which will form a much better route to California than the one now traversed by Salt Lake city. The route referred to would run through the south portion of Utah, and passing Little Salt lake, enter California by Walker's Pass, in the S. E. part of that state.

Education.—The American spirit seems to pervade the people of Utah on the all-important subject of education. According to Mr. Pratt, "great attention is being paid to the erection of school-houses, and the education of youth. It is in contemplation to erect a magnificent university, in which the higher departments of science will be extensively taught."

Religion.—According to the census report, there were 9 churches in Utah in 1850—it is presumed all Mormon, though they are reported under the heading of minor sects. Number of individuals to each church, 1264; value of church property, $5100. One-tenth of their property is required by their canons to be given to the church. Measures have been taken for the erection of a vast temple at Salt Lake City.

Government.—The government of Utah is similar to that of other territories. See MINNESOTA.

History.—The materials for a history of Utah are very meagre. As has elsewhere been stated, it was a part of the territory of Upper California, acquired from Mexico by the treaty of 1848, after the conclusion of the late war with that country. Previous to 1847, when the Mormons commenced directing their steps thither, it had been in possession of the miserable tribes that gained a most precarious living from its churlish soil—undisturbed, except by the occasional visits of exploring parties or roaming trappers and hunters.

UTAH, a county in the E. part of Utah Territory, has an area estimated at above 6000 square miles. It is drained by Grand and White rivers, and by Green river, which also intersects it. Utah lake is situated in the W. part. The soil in the western portion is very fertile. In 1850 it produced 13,142 bushels of wheat; 5882 of potatoes; 17,970 pounds of butter, and 1127 tons of hay. It contained 2 churches and 4 academies or other schools. Capital, Provo City. Population, 2026; of whom 2000 were free, and 26, slaves.

UTAH, a post-office of Lucas co., Ohio.

UTAH, a post-office of La Grange co., Ind.

UTAH, a post-office of Warren co., Illinois.

UTAH LAKE, in the N. central part of Utah Territory, is in about lat. 40° 20' N., lon. 112° W.; it is the source of the Jordan river. Length, about 30 miles; greatest breadth, 10 miles. The water is said to be fresh.

UTAH LAKE, a post-office of Utah co., Utah Territory.

UTICA, a handsome city of Oneida county, New York, on the Mohawk river, Erie canal, and Central railroad, 95 miles W. N. W. from Albany, 56 E. of Syracuse, and 383 from Washington. Lat. 43° 6' 49" N., lon. 75° 13' W. It is pleasantly situated on the S. bank of the Mohawk, and is regularly laid out. The site is nearly level, with a gentle declivity towards the N. The greater part of the public buildings and mercantile houses are situated on Genesee street. The streets are wide, and the houses mostly well built, of brick or stone. Among the principal hotels are Bagg's hotel, the National, the Franklin, the Central, the Eagle, and the Broad-street House. A new city hall, of Milwaukee brick, is in course of erection on Genesee street. The city contains about 20 churches, of the various denominations, several flourishing academies and seminaries, 1 or 2 public libraries, and a mechanics' association. Four daily and five weekly newspapers are published here, besides several monthly periodicals; in addition to the above, 4 weekly papers are issued from the offices of the dailies. There are 5 banks, with an aggregate capital of $1,610,000, and several insurance offices. The state lunatic asylum, situated 1 mile W. from the centre of the city, consists of several large and expensive buildings of stone. The number of patients on the 1st January, 1851, was 449, of whom 226 were males, and 223, females. The streets, stores, &c. are lighted with gas. The Erie canal, here 70 feet wide, and the Central railroad, pass through the centre of the city, connecting it with Albany and Buffalo. The Chenango canal, 97 miles long, extends from Utica to Binghamton; the Utica and Black River railroad, commenced in 1853, is in course of construction to Clayton, on the St. Lawrence river, and another railroad is extending from Utica to Binghamton. Plank-roads and turnpike-roads radiate towards all parts of the surrounding country. Handsome bridges cross the canal at several points in the city. Utica is surrounded by a highly productive and populous country, and is a place of extensive trade. The manufactures of the city are also important and flourishing. There are 2 cotton factories, several woollen factories, 1 rolling mill, 1 large manufactory of locks, employing about 200 hands, several iron foundries and tanneries, and a manufactory of railway cars. In 1794 there were only 3 or 4 houses in the place. It was incorporated as a village in 1817, and as a city in 1830. Pop. in 1820, 2972; in 1830, 8323; in 1840, 12,782; in 1850, 17,565, and in 1853, about 20,000.

UTICA, a thriving post-village of Venango co., Pennsylvania, on French creek, and on the Franklin canal, 75 miles N. from Pittsburgh. It contains several mills, and manufactories of iron and wool.

UTICA, a post-village in Hinds co., Mississippi, 38 miles W. from Jackson.

UTICA, a thriving post-village of Licking co., Ohio, on the railroad between Sandusky and Newark, 12 miles N. from the latter. Population in 1853, about 700.

UTICA, a thriving post-village of Macomb county, Michigan, on Clinton river, 20 miles N. from Detroit, and 10 miles W. N. W. from Mount Clemens. The river furnishes excellent water-power for mills in which flour is manufactured. Utica is situated in a rich farming region, and has an active trade. It contains several churches. Pop., about 1000.

UTICA, a post-township in Clarke co., Indiana. Population, 1538.

UTICA, a pleasant post-village of Clarke co., Indiana, on the Ohio river, 7 miles above Louisville, in Kentucky, and 114 miles S. by E. from Indianapolis. Pop., about 300.

UTICA, a small village of Fulton co., Illinois, about 20 miles S. W. from Peoria.

UTICA, a village of La Salle co., Illinois, on the Illinois river and canal, 9 or 10 miles W. from Ottawa. About $50,000 worth of produce was shipped here in 1852.

UTICA, a small post-village of Livingston co., Missouri, on the right bank of Grand river, 70 miles N. E. from Independence.

UTICA, a post-office of Van Buren co., Iowa.

UTICA, a post-office of Dane co., Wisconsin.

UTICA, a township in the S. part of Winnebago co., Wisconsin. Population, 630.

UTICA MILLS, a post-office of Frederick co., Maryland.

UTOY, a post-office of De Kalb co., Georgia, 185 miles W. from Augusta.

UTTER'S CORNERS, a post-village of Walworth co., Wis., 45 miles S. E. from Madison. It has a Methodist church, 1 store, and a hotel.

UVALDE, a new county in the S. W. part of Texas, has an area of 1480 square miles. It is intersected by Rio Frio, and bounded on the W. by the Nueces river. This county is not included in the census of 1850. County seat not yet located.

UWCHLAN, yook'lan, a post-township of Chester co., Pennsylvania, about 9 miles N. N. W. from Westchester. Population, 1528.

UXBRIDGE, a post-township of Worcester co., Mass., on the Blackstone river, and on the Providence and Worcester railroad, contains several small villages, the principal of which, a station on the above railroad, 18 miles S. S. E. from Worcester, has 2 or 3 churches, and a bank. Population, 2457.

V

VAIL'S CROSS ROADS, a post-office of Morrow co., Ohio.

VAIL'S MILLS, a post-office of Fulton co., New York.

VALATIE, a post-village of Columbia co., New York, at the junction of Valatie and Kinderhook creeks, about 20 miles S. by E. from Albany. It contains manufactories of cotton goods, machinery, and other articles.

VALCOUR ISLAND, New York, situated in Lake Champlain, about 6 miles S. from Plattsburg.

VALEENE, a small post-village of Orange co., Indiana, 104 miles S. from Indianapolis.

VALE MILLS, a post-office of Giles co., Tennessee.

VALENCIA, a county in the S. E. part of New Mexico, bordering on Texas. It is bounded on the W. by the Rio Grande, and drained by several small affluents of that stream. Indian corn and wheat are the staples. In 1850 this county produced more corn, peas, beans, and wine than any other in the territory. It yielded in that year 157,795 bushels of corn; 42,983 of wheat; 8115 of peas and beans, and 1973 gallons of wine. It contained 7 churches. Capital, Valencia. Population, 14,189.

VALENCIA, a village and capital of Valencia co., New Mexico, on the left bank of the Rio del Norte, 80 miles S. S. W. from Santa Fe.

VALENTIA, a post-office of Shelby co., Ohio.

VALLECITO, a mining town of Calaveras co., California, about 5 miles N. from the Stanislaus river; average wages, six dollars a day. Population in 1853, about 1600.

VALLE CRUCIS, a post-office of Ashe co., North Carolina.

VALLEJO, val-yá'ho, or val-lá'ho, the former capital of California, is situated on the N. side of the entrance of the strait connecting San Pablo and Suisun bays. It was named in honor of General Vallejo, who agreed to give to the state a quantity of land and a large sum of money towards the erection of the public buildings, &c. The steamboats running between San Francisco and Sacramento pass Vallejo on their route.

VALLENS, a post-office of Summit co., Ohio

VALLEY, a township of Montour co., Pennsylvania, 3 miles N. from Danville. Pop., 760.

VALLEY, a post-office of Tazewell co., Va.

VALLEY, a post-office of Bexar co., Texas.

VALLEY, a post-office of Washington co., Io.

VALLEY FALLS, a manufacturing post-village in Smithfield township, Providence co., Rhode Island, 7 miles N. by E. from Providence. It contains extensive manufactories of print goods, 2 or 3 churches, and near 1000 inhabitants.

VALLEY FALLS, a post-office of Marion co. Va.

VALLEY FARM, a post-office of Jackson co., Indiana.

VALLEY FORGE, a thriving post-village on the line between Chester and Montgomery counties, Pennsylvania, on the right bank of the Schuylkill river, and on the Reading railroad, 6 miles above Norristown. It is situated at the mouth of Valley creek, and contains a cotton factory. It is memorable for the sufferings of Washington's army, during the winter of 1777-8.

VALLEY FORGE, a post-office of Jasper co., Missouri.

VALLEY GROVE, a post-office of Monroe co., Arkansas.

VALLEY HEAD, a post-office of Randolph co., Virginia.

VALLEY HEAD, a post-office of De Kalb co., Alabama, about 200 miles N. by E. from Montgomery.

VALLEY PLACE, a village of Harris co., Georgia, 32 miles N. N. E. from Columbus.

VALLEY PRAIRIE, a post-office of Barry co., Missouri.

VALLEYTOWN, a post-office of Cherokee co., North Carolina.

VALLONIA, a small post-village of Jackson co., Indiana, 74 miles S. from Indianapolis.

VALLONIA SPRINGS, a post-office of Broome co., New York.

VALPARAISO, a post-village, capital of Porter co., Indiana, on the Chicago and Fort Wayne railroad, and on Salt creek, 50 miles S. E. from Chicago. It contains a court house, 2 or 3 churches, and a newspaper office.

VALVERDE, a village in the interior of the Territory of New Mexico, on the left bank of the Rio del Norte.

VAN BUREN, a county in the N. central part of Arkansas, contains 1260 square miles. It is drained by Little Red river. The soil of the river bottoms is fertile, and adapted to cotton, Indian corn, and wheat. The forests contain oak, hickory, ash, and other valuable timber. In 1850 this county produced 154,565 bushels of corn; 12,631 of oats, and 13,555 pounds of butter. There were 174 pupils attending public schools. Capital, Clinton. Population, 2864; of whom 2761 were free, and 103, slaves.

VAN BUREN, a county in the E. central part of Tennessee: area estimated at 850 square miles. It is drained by the Caney fork of Cumberland river. The surface is mountainous. The county is well timbered and contains stone coal. The staples are Indian corn, oats, and butter. In 1850 it produced 131,890 bushels of corn; 11,800 of oats; 23,886 pounds of butter, and 4634 of wool. It contained 3 churches, 505 pupils attending public schools, and 35 attending other schools. A railroad is projected through the county. Capital, Spencer. Population, 2674; of whom 2499 were free, and 175, slaves.

VAN BUREN, a county in the S. W. part of Michigan, bordering on Lake Michigan, contains 633 square miles. It is traversed by the Pawpaw river and its branches, and also drained by Dowagiac river, and the South branch of Black river. The surface is nearly level, and the soil fertile. About half of the county is heavily timbered, and the remainder consists of plains, with a sparse growth of oaks. Indian corn, wheat, oats, potatoes, hay, pork, and butter are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 131,890 bushels of corn; 75,083 of wheat; 34,388 of oats; 49,991 of potatoes, and 3582 tons of hay. It contained 2 churches, 1 newspaper office, and 1567 pupils attending public schools. Water-power is abundant on the streams, and the Pawpaw is navigable from its mouth to the county seat. It is intersected by the Michigan Central railroad. Capital, Pawpaw. Population, 5800.

VAN BUREN COUNTY, Missouri. See CASS.

VAN BUREN, a county in the S. E. part of Iowa, bordering on Missouri, has an area of 468 square miles. The Des Moines river flows diagonally through the county in a south-east direction, dividing it into nearly equal parts. It is also drained by Fox river, and by Indian, Chequest, and Lick creeks. The surface is diversified by prairies and forests. The soil is exceedingly rich and well watered. Indian corn, oats, wool, and butter are the staples. In 1850, Van Buren county produced a greater quantity of oats and wool than any other of the state. There were 595,082 bushels of corn; 166,608 of oats; 40,858 pounds of wool; 173,097 of butter, and 4168 tons of hay. It contained 7 churches, 1 newspaper office, and 2000 pupils attending public schools. Valuable mines of stone coal have been opened in the county. The streams afford water-power. Public works are in progress for improving the navigation of the Des Moines. The county is traversed by a plank-road leading to Keokuk. In respect to population, Van Buren is the third county in the state. Capital, Keosauque. Population, 12,270.

VAN BUREN, a post-office of Aroostook co., Maine.

VAN BUREN, a post-township of Onondaga co., New York, on the S. side of Seneca river, intersected by the Rochester and Syracuse railroad. Population, 3873.

VAN BUREN, a post-office of Washington co., Pennsylvania.

VAN BUREN, a post-village of De Kalb co., Alabama, 150 miles N. from Montgomery.

VAN BUREN, a post-village in Itawamba co., Mississippi, near Tombigbee river, about 200 miles N. E. from Jackson.

VAN BUREN, a post-township in Crawford co., Arkansas. Population, 833.

VAN BUREN, a flourishing post-village, capital of Crawford county, Arkansas, is finely situated on the left (N.) bank of Arkansas river, 160 miles W. N. W. from Little Rock, and 5 miles E. from the Indian Territory. It is one of the most commercial places in the whole state—the annual sales amounting to more than a million dollars. An extensive jobbing business is done here, in supplying the smaller places of the surrounding country. It has a cotton factory in successful operation, with an engine of 65 horse-power, and a steam flouring mill making 50 barrels per day of the finest flour. The village contains 4 churches, including 1 Methodist and 1 Presbyterian, both fine brick edifices. Two newspapers are published here. Stone coal is found in the vicinity. Laid out about 1841. Population in 1853, about 1600.

VAN BUREN, a township in Newton co., Arkansas. Population, 319.

VAN BUREN, a township in Union co., Arkansas. Population, 1242.

VAN BUREN, a post-village of Hardeman co., Tennessee, 172 miles from Nashville.

VAN BUREN, a post-office of Anderson co., Kentucky.

VAN BUREN, a township in Darke co., Ohio. Population, 780.

VAN BUREN, a post-township in the S. W. part of Hancock co., Ohio. Population, 536.

VAN BUREN, a small post-village of Hancock co., Ohio, about 100 miles N. N. W. from Columbus.

VAN BUREN, a township in Montgomery co., Ohio. Population, 1345.

VAN BUREN, a township forming the N. E. extremity of Putnam co., Ohio. Pop., 172.

VAN BUREN, a township in the N. W. part of Shelby co., Ohio. Population, 629.

VAN BUREN, a township in the S. W. part of Wayne co., Michigan, intersected by Huron river. Population, 1470.

VAN BUREN, a township in Brown co., Indiana. Population, 717.

VAN BUREN, a post-township in Clay co., Indiana. Population, 867.

VAN BUREN, a township in Daviess co., Indiana. Population, 653.

VAN BUREN, a township in Fountain co., Indiana. Population, 1296.

VAN BUREN, a township in Grant co., Indiana. Population, 525.

VAN BUREN, a township in Kosciusko co., Indiana. Population, 822.

VAN BUREN, a township in Madison co., Indiana. Population, 407.

VAN BUREN, a township in Monroe co., Indiana. Population, 1026.

VAN BUREN, a township in Pulaski co., Indiana. Population, 336.

VAN BUREN, a township in Shelby co., Indiana. Population, 817.

VAN BUREN, a post-office of De Kalb co., Illinois.

VAN BUREN, a post-village, capital of Ripley co., Missouri, on Current river, 140 miles S. E. by S. from Jefferson City.

VAN BUREN CENTRE, a post-village of Onondaga co., New York, about 150 miles W. by N. from Albany.

VAN BUREN FURNACE, a post-office of Sheandoah co., Virginia.

VAN BUREN HARBOR, a post-village of Chautauque co., New York, on Lake Erie, 5 miles S. W. from Dunkirk.

VAN BURENSBURG, a small post-village of Montgomery co., Illinois.

VANCEBURG, a post-village of Lewis co., Kentucky, on the Ohio river, 20 miles above Maysville, contains several stores, and about 200 inhabitants. There is a quarry of slate and of limestone in the vicinity.

VANCEBURG, a post-village of Winnebago county, Illinois, near the Chicago and Galena railroad, about 15 miles W. from Rockford.

VANCE'S FERRY, a post-village of Orangeburg district, South Carolina.

VANCEVILLE, a small post-village of Washington co., Pennsylvania.

VAN CLEVESVILLE, a post-office of Berkeley co., Virginia.

VANCLUSE, a small village of Edgefield district, South Carolina.

VANDALIA, a post-village of Montgomery co., Ohio. Population, 228.

VANDALIA, a post-village of Cass co., Michigan, has grown up since 1850.

VANDALIA, a post-office of Owen co., Ind.

VANDALIA, a post-village, capital of Fayette co., Illinois, and the former capital of the state, is situated on the Kaskaskia river, where it is crossed by the National road, 80 miles S. S. E. from Springfield. It was laid out in 1818, and remained the seat of government until 1836, during which period it continued to flourish, and the population increased to 2000. After the removal of the seat of government to Springfield, the prosperity of Vandalia declined, and the number of inhabitants was reduced to 500, or less. Within 3 or 4 years, however, an improvement has taken place in the condition and prospects of the village, and property has risen in value nearly 50 per cent. At this point the Central railroad intersects the Atlantic and Mississippi railroad, now in progress. A newspaper is published here. Population in 1853, about 1000.

VANDEBURG, a county in the S. W. part of Indiana, contains 216 square miles. It is bounded on the S. by the Ohio river, which separates it from Kentucky. The surface is mostly undulating, except the river bottoms, which occupy about one-fifth of its area, and are highly productive. Indian corn, wheat, oats, and grass are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 408,075 bushels of corn; 19,079 of wheat; 36,719 of oats, and 2337 tons of hay. It contained 20 churches, 6 newspaper offices; 1280 pupils attending public schools, and 180 attending academies or other schools. An abundance of bituminous coal is found. The Wabash and Erie canal, 459 miles in length, terminates at Evansville, and the county is traversed by the Evansville and Illinois railroad and the Evansville Straight Line railroad, (unfinished.) Organized in 1818, and named in honor of Henry Vandenburg, who was a judge of the first court formed in Indiana. Capital, Evansville. Population, 11,414.

VANDERGRIF'S, a post-office of Knox co., Tennessee.

VAN DEUSENVILLE, a post-village in Berkshire co., Massachusetts, on the Housatonic river and railroad, 115 miles W. by S. from Boston. The Albany Branch railroad terminates at this place.

VANDYKE'S MILL, a post-office of Spencer co., Kentucky.

VANETTENVILLE, a post-village of Chemung co., New York, 15 miles E. N. E. from Elmira. It contains 2 churches.

VAN HILL, a post-office of Hawkins co., Tenn.

VAN HISEVILLE, a post-office of Mercer co., New Jersey.

VAN HOOK'S STORE, a post-office of Person co., North Carolina.

VAN HORNESVILLE, a post-office of Herkimer co., New York.

VAN LUE, a thriving post-village of Hancock co., Ohio, on the Findlay Branch railroad, about 90 miles N. N. W. from Columbus. Population, about 300.

VAN METER'S, a small village of White co., Arkansas.

VANNOY'S MILL, a small post-village of Pike co., Missouri.

VANN'S VALLEY, a post-office of Floyd co., Georgia, about 15 miles S. W. from Rome.

VANN'S VALLEY, a post-office of Delaware co., Ohio.

VAN RENSSELAER, a township in Ottawa co., Ohio. Population, 186.

VAN WERT, a county in the W. part of Ohio, bordering on Indiana, contains about 390 square miles. It is drained by the St. Mary's and Little Auglaize rivers. The surface is level, and covered with a great variety of timber. The soil is a fertile loam, with a substratum of blue marl, impervious to water. The land requires draining in some parts. Indian corn, wheat, oats, and grass are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 67,175 bushels of corn; 31,900 of wheat; 12,257 of oats, and 2371 tons of hay. It contained 5 churches, 2 newspaper offices, and 1762 pupils attending public schools. The Miami canal passes along the eastern border of the county, which is intersected by the Ohio and Indiana railroad. Organized in 1820, and named in honor of Isaac Van Wert, one of the militiamen who captured Major André. Capital, Van Wert. Population, 4813.

VAN WERT, a post-village, capital of Paulding co., Georgia, on the Euharlee creek, 150 miles N. W. from Milledgeville. It has 1 church, 1 academy, and 2 or 3 stores.

VAN WERT, a post-village, capital of Van Wert co., Ohio, near the Ohio and Indiana railroad, 136 miles N. W. from Columbus. It is pleasantly situated on a sandy ridge extending E. and W. This ridge is raised about 20 feet above the plain, and forms an excellent road. Van Wert contains several stores and mills, and 2 newspaper offices. Laid out in 1837. Pop. estimated at 1000.

VAN ZANDT, a county in the N. E. central part of Texas, has an area of about 620 square miles. It is drained by the sources of the Neches, and bounded on the N. E. by the Sabine river. The soil produces Indian corn, sweet potatoes, and butter. In 1850 this county yielded 30,920 bushels of corn; 8486 of sweet potatoes; 16,040 pounds of butter, and 1646 of wool. Named in honor of Isaac Van Zandt, member of the Texan Congress. Capital, Jordan's. Pop., 1348, of whom 1308 were free, and 40, slaves.

VARENNES, a post-village in Anderson district, South Carolina, about 100 miles N. W. by W. from Columbia.

VARICK, a post-township of Seneca co., New York, extending from Cayuga lake on the E. to Seneca lake on the W., about 165 miles W. by N. from Albany. Pop., 1872.

VARIETY MILLS, a post-office of Nelson co., Virginia, 112 miles W. by N. from Richmond.

VARMINTOWN, a little village of Monmouth co., New Jersey, 15 miles S. E. from Trenton.

VARNA, a post-village of Tompkins co., New York, on Fall creek, 5 miles E. from Ithaca. It contains several mills and stores.

VARNELL's, a station on the East Tennessee and Georgia railroad, 9 miles N. by E. from Dalton, Georgia.

VAROQUA, a post-village, capital of Badaxe co., Wisconsin, about 100 miles W. N. W. from Madison. It was chosen as the county seat in 1852.

VARYSBURG, a post-village of Wyoming co., New York, on Tonewanda creek, 30 miles E. by S. from Buffalo. It contains 2 or 3 churches and several mills.

VASSALBOROUGH, a post-village in Kennebec co., Maine, on the E. side of Kennebec river, 14 miles N. by E. from Augusta. It is the centre of an active trade, and by means of a lock and a dam across the Kennebec at Augusta, vessels are enabled to ascend the river to this place. Population, 3099.

VASSAR, a post-office of Tuscola co., Mich.

VAUGHANVILLE, a post-office of Newberry district, South Carolina.

VAUGHNSVILLE, a post-office of Putnam co. O.

VAUGHN VALLEY, a post-office of Rutherford co., Tennessee.

VAUGNE, a township in Jefferson co., Arkansas. Population, 1122.

VAUXHALL, a little village of Essex co., New Jersey, 7 miles W. from Newark.

VEALTOWN, a small village of Somerset co., New Jersey, about 10 miles N. of Somerville.

VEASEY, a township in Drew co., Arkansas. Population, 576.

VEGA, a post-office of Henry co., Iowa.

VELASCO, a post-village of Brazoria co., Texas, at the mouth of the Brazos river, about 45 miles S. W. from Galveston, and 30 miles by water S. E. from Brazoria. It has a landing for steamboats, but is said to be not improving.

VENANGO, a county in the N. W. part of Pennsylvania, has an area of 850 square miles. Alleghany river flows through the middle of the county in a S. W. direction; French creek (called by the Indians Venango creek) enters that river near the county seat; it is also drained by Oil, Teonista, and Racoon creeks. The surface is broken; the streams flow through narrow valleys, which are separated from the uplands by steep and rugged hills. The soil of the uplands is moderately fertile, and adapted to pasturage. Wheat, Indian corn, oats, and grass are the staples. In 1850 Venango county produced 98,189 bushels of wheat; 109,042 of corn; 255,146 of oats; 319,870 pounds of butter; 14,678 of maple sugar, and 15,663 tons of hay. There were 31 saw mills, 9 flour and grist mills, 12 iron furnaces, 1 iron forge, 2 woollen factories, 1 nail factory, 3 farming-implement manufactories, and 6 tanneries. It contained 19 churches, 2 newspaper offices, and 4643 pupils attending public schools. Iron ore, stone coal, and limestone are the most valuable mineral products. The creeks furnish copious and permanent motive-power. Alleghany river is navigable for steamboats, and a branch of the state canal extends from the county seat to Meadville. Organized in 1800, and named from Venango creek. Capital, Franklin. Population, 18,310.

VENANGO, a township forming the N. E. extremity of Butler co., Pa. Pop., 1473.

VENANGO, a small village of Butler co., Pa.

VENANGO, a post-township of Crawford co., Pennsylvania, intersected by French creek, 12 miles N. by E. from Meadville. Pop., 1607.

VENANGO, a township of Erie co., Pa., about 14 miles E. S. E. from Erie. Pop., 1019.

VENANGO CREEK, Pa. See FRENCH CREEK.

VENICE, a post-township of Cayuga co., New York, intersected by the Lake Ontario, Auburn, and Ithaca railroad, 16 miles S. from Auburn. Population, 2028.

VENICE, a post-office of Washington co., Pa.

VENICE, a post-village of Erie co., Ohio, on Sandusky bay, and on the Junction railroad, 2 miles W. from Sandusky city. It has water-power and flouring mills.

VENICE, a township forming the S. E. extremity of Seneca co., Ohio. Pop., 1830.

VENICE, a township in the E. part of Shiawassee co., Michigan, partly intersected by the Shiawassee river. Population, 183.

VENICE, a post-village of Madison co., Ill., on the Mississippi river, 6 miles above St. Louis.

VERA CRUZ, a post-office of Wells co., Ind.

VERBANK, a post-office of Dutchess co., N. Y.

VERDIERVILLE, a post-office of Orange co., Virginia.

VERDON, a post-village of Hanover co., Virginia, on Little river, 30 miles N. from Richmond. It has a cotton factory.

VERGENNES, a city of Addison county, Vermont, on the Otter creek, 7 miles from its entrance into Lake Champlain, and on the Rutland and Burlington railroad, 22 miles S. from Burlington. The creek is here about 500 feet wide, and navigable for the largest vessels on the lake. Two islands opposite the city divide the stream into three channels, which have three distinct sets of falls, affording an hydraulic power equal to the best in the state. During the war and non-intercourse with Great Britain, extensive iron manufactories were put in operation at these falls, and among other things produced was 177 tons of cannon-shot. In 1816 most of the iron-works were suspended, and have since only in part been resumed. Vergennes enjoys admirable advantages for ship-building. The flotilla, commanded by Commodore McDonough, at the battle in which the British fleet on Lake Champlain were captured, September 11, 1814, was fitted out at this place. The city is beautifully situated, and contains 3 or 4 churches, a bank, a newspaper office, and 18 or 20 stores. A United States arsenal, the only military establishment in the state belonging to the general government, was erected here in 1828. The principal edifice (of stone) is 80 feet by 36, and 3 stories high, and with the others is enclosed by about 28 acres of grounds. Arms and other munitions of war to the value of about $85,000, belonging to the United States, and of upwards of $30,000 to the State of Vermont, are constantly stored in the buildings. Settled in 1766, by Donald McIntosh, who was a native of Scotland, and had been in the battle of Culloden. Incorporated as a city October 23, 1783. Population, 1878.

VERGENNES, a post-township in the E. part of Kent co., Michigan, intersected by Flat river. Population, 876.

VERGENNES, a post-village of Jackson co., Illinois, about 10 miles N. from Murphysborough.

VERMILION, a parish in the S. W. part of Louisiana, bordering on the Gulf of Mexico, contains about 1850 square miles. It is drained by Vermilion and Mermentau rivers. The surface is flat, and partly occupied by prairies and marshes. The soil is adapted to sugar and Indian corn. In 1850 this parish produced 871 hogsheads of sugar; 31,720 gallons of molasses, and 46,061 bushels of corn. It contained 1 church, and 314 pupils attending public schools. The Vermilion is navigable by steamboats. Capital, Vermilion Court House. Population, 3409; of whom 2342 were free, and 1067, slaves.

VERMILION, a county in the W. part of Indiana, bordering on Illinois, contains about 290 square miles. It is bounded on the E. by the Wabash, and drained by the Vermilion river. The surface is mostly level; the soil varies from sandy to clayey, and is very fertile. About one-third of its area is a beautiful prairie, which produces abundant crops of wheat, corn, oats, grass, &c. In 1850 this county yielded 701,770 bushels of corn; 45,144 of wheat; 90,711 of oats, and 2829 tons of hay. It contained 17 churches, 1 newspaper office, and 550 pupils attending public schools. Extensive mines of coal and iron ore are found. On the border of a prairie in Helt township, there is a conical mound, which is 60 feet high, and about 600 yards in circuit at the base. The county is intersected by the Indiana and Illinois Central railroad, unfinished. Capital, Newport. Population, 8661.

VERMILION, a county in the E. part of Illinois, bordering on Indiana, has an area estimated at 1200 square miles. It is drained by the Vermilion river (affluent of the Wabash) and by its branches, the Salt fork, Middle fork, and North fork, which unite near the middle of the county; the Little Vermilion river flows through the S. part. The surface is generally level; the soil is deep, fertile, and durable. The county contains a large portion of prairie, with plenty of timber distributed along the streams. Indian corn, wheat, oats, wool, butter, potatoes, and pork are the staples. In 1850 it produced 1,475,195 bushels of corn; 46,301 wheat; 168,976 of oats, and 178,586 pounds of butter. It contained 25 churches, 2 newspaper offices, 70 pupils attending public schools, and 200 attending an academy. A plank-road connects Danville with the Wabash river and canal. A railroad is in progress through the county, leading to Springfield and Lafayette. Vermilion river affords valuable water-power. Stone coal abounds on the banks of the river. Capital, Danville. Population, 11,492.

VERMILION, a post-office of Oswego co., New York.

VERMILION, a township in the S. central part of Ashland co., Ohio. Population, 2018.

VERMILION, a thriving post-village and shipping port of Erie co., Ohio, on Lake Erie, at the mouth of Vermilion river, and on the Junction railroad, 21 miles E. from Sandusky city. The value of imports in 1851, $150,000; of exports, $207,200; total, $357,200.

VERMILION, a township in Vermilion co., Indiana. Population, 1851.

VERMILION BAY, in the S. part of Louisiana, communicates through Cote Blanche bay with the Gulf of Mexico. Length about 20 miles.

VERMILION RIVER, of Louisiana, rises near Opelousas, and flows southward through Lafayette and Vermilion parishes, into the bay of its own name. It is bordered by fertile prairies, and plantations of sugar and cotton, and is navigable by small steamboats about 80 miles from its mouth.

VERMILION RIVER, of Ohio, a small stream which flows into Lake Erie, near the N. E. extremity of Erie county.

VERMILION RIVER, in the N. central part of Illinois, falls into the Illinois river, 3 or 4 miles above Peru.

VERMILION RIVER, of Illinois and Indiana, is formed by three branches, the North, Middle, and South, which unite near Danville, Illinois. It then flows south-eastward, and enters the Wabash, about 8 miles below Perryville, in Indiana. It is navigable to Danville, a distance of 30 miles. The Little Vermilion river enters the Wabash, 4 or 5 miles below.

VERMILION RIVER, of Minnesota Territory, falls into the Missouri, about 80 miles in a straight line N. W. from the mouth of Sioux river.

VERMILIONVILLE, a post-village, capital of Lafayette parish, Louisiana, on Bayou Vermilion, about 60 miles W. by S. from Baton Rouge. The bayou is navigable by small steamers. A newspaper is issued here.

VERMILIONVILLE, a township in the W. part of Eaton co., Michigan, intersected by the Big fork of Thornapple river. Population, 324.

VERMONT, (named from the French, Monts Verts, or Verts Monts, i. e. Green Mountains, the principal mountain range in the state.)

the most north-western, and last settled of the New England States. It lies between about 42° 44' and 45° N. lat., and 71° 25' and 73° 26' W. lon., and is bounded N. by Canada East; E. by New Hampshire, from which it is separated by the Connecticut river; S. by Massachusetts, and W. by New York and Lake Champlain. Length from N. to S., about 150 miles, and greatest breadth from E. to W., about 85, or about 35 in its narrowest part at the south; including an area of about 10,212 square miles, or 6,535,680 acres, of which 2,601,409 were improved, in 1850.

Population.—The population, like that of the other New England States, is mainly composed of the descendants of the English race. Though the figures do not show a very rapid increase in Vermont, her population has had a steady growth; while, at the same time, it has contributed in a large ratio to peopling other states with a portion of their most intelligent, virtuous, and enterprising citizens. In 1790, Vermont had 85,416 inhabitants; 150,465, in 1800; 217,713, in 1810; 235,764, in 1820; 280,652, in 1830; 291,948, in 1840; 314,120, in 1850, of whom 159,374 were white males, 153,528 white females; 366 colored males, and 343 colored females. This population was divided into 63,475 families, occupying 56,327 dwellings. Of the entire population 232,086 were born in the state; 48,830, in other states of the Union; 1546, in England; 15,377, in Ireland; 1102, in Scotland and Wales; 14,470, in British America; 218, in Germany; 40, in France; 78, in other countries, and 323, whose places of birth were unknown—giving a ratio of about 10½ per cent. of foreign birth, while Vermont contributed about 63,000 inhabitants to other states. In the year ending June 1, 1850, there occurred in Vermont 3132 deaths, or less than 10 in every thousand persons—the smallest ratio in the United States. In the same period, 3654 paupers received aid, of whom 1611 were foreigners, at an expense of nearly $33 for each pauper. Of 144 deaf and dumb, 1 was colored; of 138 blind, none were colored; of 552 insane, none were colored, and of 281 idiotic, one was colored.

Counties.—The state is divided into 14 counties, viz. Addison, Bennington, Caledonia, Chittenden, Essex, Franklin, Grand Isle, Lamoille, Orleans, Orange, Rutland, Washington, Windham, and Windsor. Montpelier is the capital.

Cities and Towns.—Vermont has no very large towns, the principal are Burlington, with 6110 population; Bennington, 3923; Brattleboro, 3816; Montpelier, 3757; Middlebury, 3517; besides Rutland, St. Albans, St. Johnsbury, Vergennes, Windsor, Newbury, Norwich, and many others.

Face of the Country, Mountains, &c.—The Green mountain range traverses the whole extent of this state from N. to S., dividing it into nearly equal portions. These mountains, which give name to the state, attain their greatest elevation (4359 feet) in Mount Mansfield, 20 miles N. W. of Montpelier. South of the capital the range separates into two ridges, the higher, but more broken, taking a nearly N. direction and the other extending N. E. almost parallel with the Connecticut, but at some distance from it. This ridge, though lower and of easier ascent than the western, is continuous, while the western is broken by the passage of the Onion, Lamoille, and Missisquoi rivers. From the point of separation southward, the mountains are not divided by the passage of any considerable stream. They approach the western boundary in this direction. Ascutney mountain, (3320 feet,) near the Connecticut river, in Windsor county, is famous for its picturesque views. The other principal peaks are Killington's, near Rutland, 3675 feet high; the Camel's Hump, 17 miles W. of Montpelier, 4188 feet, and the Nose and Chin, in Mansfield mountain. The mountains are generally clothed with the evergreen fir, spruce, and hemlock, and hence their name. The southern part of the range divides the rivers flowing into the Hudson from those emptying into the Connecticut; a portion of the triangle between the northern ridges is drained by Lake Memphremagog, and the W. and N. W. portion by Lake Champlain.

Geology.—The greater portion of the state is of primary formation, though the valleys of the rivers are mostly alluvion, and the shores of Lake Champlain transition formation. On the western side of the mountains the rocks are principally old red sandstone, graywacke, limestone, calciferous sandstone, and granular quartz, containing iron ore and manganese; hornblende, mica slate, granite, and gneiss form the body of the mountains; serpentine occurs both in the southern and northern part of the state. Along the Connecticut is a continuous bed of clay slate. A bed of granite crosses the Connecticut at Bellows Falls, and also forms Ascutney mountain. There is an extensive deposit of primitive limestone in Caledonia county. The eastern slope of the mountains is composed mostly of hornblende rock, gneiss, granite, and clay slate.

Minerals.—Iron is found in abundance—the best in the southern part of the state. Vast quantities of copperas are made from iron pyrites, or sulphuret of iron, in Stratford. Of other metals there are found titanium, oxide of manganese, lead, magnetic iron ore, plumbago, and zinc. Granite suitable for building stone in abundance, and vast beds of fine marble are found. The marble quarries at Middlebury are particularly celebrated. A black variety of this beautiful building material is extensively quarried at Swanton, on Lake Champlain. A fine oilstone is manufactured into hones, from a small island in Lake Memphremagog. Slate quarries are worked on the Connecticut. Kaolin (porcelain clay) of excellent quality, limestone, steatite, talc, and marl, all exist in this state. Fine white marble is found all along the base of the Green mountains, for 50 miles above and below Rutland, at which town an extensive trade in it is carried on. Manganese and slate are mined and quarried in the same vicinity.

Rivers, Lakes, and Islands.—The large and beautiful Lake Champlain, so famous in the brief history of our country, from the naval events that have taken place on it, and the battles on its shores, bounds the state on the W. for 105 miles, (its entire length being about 115, and breadth from 1 to 15 miles,) separating it for that distance from New York. Its shores are bold and picturesque, though inferior to Lake George, whose waters it receives. It is navigable for steamboats of the largest class, and is in the main line of travel from Montreal to New York. Lake Memphremagog is the next in size on the N. boundary, but lies mostly in Canada; it is about 30 miles in length, and 2 or 3 in width. There are several smaller lakes, and among them Dunmore, in the W., Austin and Bombazine in the S.W., and Long Pond in the N. W. The latter is somewhat celebrated for an irruption of its banks, in 1810, by which a large extent of country was devastated, and trees and dwellings swept away. An attempt had been made to tap the lake when this disaster occurred. Vermont, though well watered, has no large rivers with their courses entirely within the state; the Connecticut, however, washes its eastern boundary for its whole extent. The mountains dividing the state nearly through the middle, the Connecticut river receives the streams from the eastern, and Lake Champlain and the Hudson those of the western slope, after short and for the most part rapid courses. The Otter creek, Onion, Lamoille, and Missisquoi, (or -quoi,) all empty into Lake Champlain, after courses of from 70 to 100 miles each, and are the largest rivers whose courses are within the state. The rivers, abounding in falls and rapids, are well adapted for mill sites; but are, on the same account, navigable for but short distances; even the Connecticut itself is only available for traffic by means of canals and locks, by which boats ascend 250 miles above Hartford. This river was once famous for its abundance of salmon, but they have disappeared; shad are, however, still taken. The islands of North and South Hero, and Lamoille island, in Lake Champlain; with several smaller islands, constitute the county of Grand Island.

Objects of Interest to Tourists.—Vermont abounds in picturesque and sublime scenery, and will well reward the lover of nature for the toil and expense of perambulating its mountains and valleys. Among the more striking objects, in addition to the principal mountain summits already referred to, are the falls of the Clyde in Charleston, descent 100 feet in 40 rods; falls of the Winoski, falls of the Missisque or Missisco, in Highgate; McConnell's falls, in the Lamoille river, in Johnson; falls of the Passumisc in Lydon; the Great falls also on the Lamoille, in Milton, descent 150 feet in 50 rods; Below's falls in the Connecticut, in the S. E. part of the state, is the grandest object of the kind in Vermont; Black River falls, in Springfield; the falls of the Missisco, in Troy, 70 feet perpendicular, and the falls of Otter creek, in Vergennes, are all picturesque objects. We question if any city in the Union, at least E. of the Rocky mountains, can present a grander or more beautiful panorama than is to be witnessed from the cupola of the Vermont University at Burlington. If you look towards the west, you have beneath you the beautiful town of Burlington, with the no less beautiful lake Champlain, stretching N. and S. as far as the eye can reach, and laving on the west the feet of the blue Adirondack mountains of New York, which stretch, ridge after ridge, beyond the reach of vision. Turning to the E., you have the Mansfield mountain (the highest in Vermont) on the N. E., and Camel's Hump to the S. E., all in clear perspective, while the whole mountain range, of which they form a part, shuts out the eastern horizon. Lake Willoughby, N. of St. Johnsbury, is becoming a fashionable resort for its picturesque scenery.

Climate.—The climate of Vermont is severe, and the winters long; yet it is one of the healthiest states in the Union. The extremes of temperature ranged, in 1851, from 17° below zero to 92° above. The cold of winter is, however, more steady than in the other New England States, and the springs are not chilled by the raw winds from the Ocean, especially W. of the mountains. Frosts fall early in September, though the winters do not regularly begin till December; but when they do set in, they generally continue to April without much thaw. According to the observations made by J. B. Wheeler, at Montpelier, in 1851, there were 115 clear, 221 cloudy, 18 rainy, and 11 snowy days. During the year there fell 7.75 feet of snow. For two years, the most that fell in any one month was 50 inches in December, 1850, and 30 inches in November, 1851. Mean noon temperature of January, 21°; February, 24°; March, 32°; April, 41°; May, 51°; June, 57°; July, 63°; August, 60°; September, 57°; October, 48°; November, 30°; and December, 17°; mean for the year, 42°; greatest average heat in July, 73°; least, 22°, in December; lowest average at sunrise in December, 11°; warmest noon, June 30th and September 10th, 84°; coldest noon January 30, 8°.

Soil and Productions.—Though a mountainous state, Vermont has a large portion of cultivable soil, and the valleys of the rivers have a rich, fertile, alluvial deposit. The rougher and mountainous portions afford excellent pasture for cattle, and especially for sheep, and Vermont produced more wool, live stock, maple sugar, butter, cheese, hay, hops, and Irish potatoes, in 1850, (in proportion to population) than any state in the Union. It also produced large quantities of Indian corn, oats, wheat, rye, peas, beans, fruits, grass-seeds, beeswax, and honey, besides considerable barley, market products, and wine, molasses, and silk cocoons. According to the census of 1850, there were in Vermont 2,601,409 acres of improved land, which was divided into 29,687 farms, or about 80 acres to each farm. On these were produced 535,955 bushels of wheat; 176,233 of rye; 2,032,396 of Indian corn; 2,307,734 of oats; 104,649 of peas and beans; 4,951,014 of Irish potatoes; 42,150 of barley; 209,819 of buckwheat; 15,696 of grass seeds; 3,400,717 pounds of wool; 12,137,980 of butter; 8,720,834 of cheese; 288,023 of hops; 6,349,357 of maple sugar; 249,422 of beeswax and honey; 866,153 tons of hay; value of slaughtered animals, $1,861,336; of live stock, $12,643,228; of market products, $18,853, and of orchard products, $315,255.

Forest Trees.—The principal forest-trees on the mountains are hemlock, fir, and spruce; on the lower tracts, oak, pine, hickory, sugar maple, elm, butternut, beech, basswood, and birch; and in the swamps, cedar.

Manufactures.—Though Vermont is not so extensively engaged in manufactures as most of the other New England States, it has water-power enough to supply the Union. In 1850 there were in the state 1835 manufacturing establishments, producing each $500 and upward annually. Nine of these were cotton factories, employing $202,500 capital, and 94 male and 147 female hands, consuming $114,415 worth of raw material, and producing 1,651,000 yards of stuffs, 53,050 pounds of yarn, valued at $196,100; 72 woollen, employing $886,300 capital, and 683 male and 710 female hands, consuming $830,684 worth of raw material, and producing 2,830,400 yards of stuffs, valued at $1,579,161; 37 forges, furnaces, &c., employing $415,920 capital, and employing 530 male hands, consuming raw material worth $266,572, and producing wrought, cast, and pig iron, valued at $692,817; $7000 were invested in the manufacture of malt liquors, consuming 2500 bushels of barley, and producing 800 barrels of ale; and 152 tanneries, employing $346,256 capital, consuming raw material worth $357,946, and producing leather valued at $587,466. St. Johnsbury is one of the most extensive manufactures of patent weighing-scales in the United States. Homemade manufactures of the value of $510,998 were fabricated in 1850.

Commerce.—All the commerce connected with navigation in this state is carried on by way of Lake Champlain. The exports of Vermont for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1852, amounted in value to \$388,113, imports to \$192,593; tonnage entered, 60,488; cleared, 57,579; owned in the state, 5656, $\frac{5}{8}$. According to Andrews' invaluable report, the Canadian trade of the Vermont district amounted, in 1851, to \$1,933,989, employing 695 vessels, with a tonnage of 91,967. There were 3950 vessels entered in 1851 in both foreign and coasting trade. The enrolled tonnage was 3240 tons of steam, and 692 tons of sailing vessels. The aggregate value of the trade on both shores of the lake amounted to \$26,390,895, and the tonnage to 197,500. As the tonnage of the vessels entering on the New York side was 4208 to 3932 on the Vermont side, the inference is, that the greater moiety of the trade was in the Champlain or New York district. The lumber trade forms a large portion of the commerce with Canada, but this probably passes mostly down to the Hudson river.

Internal Improvements.—Vermont is crossed by two lines of railway from Boston to Burlington, one, entering the state at the mouth of the White river, and traversing its valley with that of the Onion, meets the more southern road (which enters the state at Belows' Falls, and coasts the shores of Otter Creek river) about 6 miles E. of Burlington, when the united roads pass on to Rouse's Point, at the head of Lake Champlain, from whence other roads lead to Montreal and Ogdensburg. Branch roads connect Troy, Schenectady, Bennington, Saratoga, and Whitehall with the Rutland road, at the village of Rutland. A railroad from Portland to Montreal passes through the N. E. of Vermont for about 35 miles. Other roads, coasting the Connecticut river below the mouth of the Passumpsic, connect St. Johnsbury and all the lower towns on the Connecticut with Hartford, New Haven, and New York. In January, 1853, this small state had 427 miles of completed railway, enough to traverse its entire extent nearly three times.—See APPENDIX. Two fine railroad bridges cross the two arms at the head of Lake Champlain.

Education.—Vermont, in common with the other New England States, pays great attention to her common schools: 90,110 pupils attended her schools in the year 1850-51, at a total cost of $217,402.33. Public money distributed for the support of schools, $90,893.91. There are 3 colleges with 218, and 2 medical schools, with 194 students.—See Table of Colleges, APPENDIX. There is a large number of flourishing academies throughout the state.

Public Institutions.—Among the benevolent institutions stands conspicuous the Asylum for the Insane, at Brattleborough. From the time of its being opened in 1836, to August, 1851, it had received 1746 patients, of whom 818 have been restored to the use of their reason. The number of patients in the year ending August 1st, 1851, was 335. The Vermont state prison is at Windsor, and had confined within its walls, September 1st, 1850, 91 prisoners, of whom 35 had been admitted within the year. Receipts, $7380.80; expenditures, $7374.60.

Religious Denominations.—Of the 564 churches in Vermont in 1850, there belonged to the different sects of Baptists, 88; to the Christians, 7; to the Congregationalists, 168; to the Episcopalians, 25; to the Free Church, 1; to the Friends, 7; to the Methodists, 123; to the Presbyterians, 10; to the Roman Catholics, 8; to the Reformed Catholics, 1; to the Second Advent, 2; to the Union Church, 88; to the Unitarians, 2; and to the Universalists, 34. There was 1 church to every 564 persons. Value of church property, $1,213,126.

Government, Finances, &c.—A governor, lieutenant-governor, senate, and house of representatives, are each elected annually by popular vote. The governor receives a salary of $750 per annum, and the lieutenant-governor, who is ex officio president of the senate, $4 per diem during the sessions of the legislature. There are 30 senators and 230 representatives, who each receive $2 per diem during the sessions of the legislature. Vermont is entitled to 3 members in the national house of representatives, and to 5 electoral votes for president. The judiciary consists—1. Of a supreme court, composed of 3 judges, which holds a session in each county annually; 2. Of county courts, which are held in 4 circuits; and 3. Of a court of chancery, which holds two stated sessions annually in each county. An appeal from the chancellor's court lies to the supreme court. Salaries of judges, $1375. The assessed value of real estate in 1850 was $71,671,651; estimated value, $92,205,049. Public debt, none. Ordinary expenses, about $80,000, exclusive of debt and schools. In October, 1852, Vermont had 32 banks, with an aggregate capital of $27,21,168; a circulation of $3,779,131.70; and $176,379.66 in specie.

History.—Vermont was first settled by some emigrants from Massachusetts, at Fort Dummer, now Brattleborough, in 1724. The French erected a fort on the E. side of the southern extremity of Lake Champlain, in 1731, but soon deserted and destroyed it. Vermont was long claimed both by New York and New Hampshire, which, though decided by the king as belonging to New York, created difficulties and troubles for the settlers until the breaking out of the Revolution, which event gave Vermont an opportunity to assume her place as an independent state, though even then Congress had considerable difficulty in inducing New York to relinquish her claims and acquiesce in the admission of Vermont into the confederacy as an independent state; this event, however, was finally consummated, March 4th, 1791. In this state took place the battle of Bennington, August 16th, 1777, in which the British were defeated in two engagements. The soldiers of Vermont were distinguished in the Revolution under the sobriquet of the Green Mountain boys. Vermont was the first new member of the American confederacy added to the original thirteen of the Revolution.

VERMONT, a post-office of Chautauque co., New York.

VERMONT, a small post-village of Howard co., Indiana, on Wildcat river, 6 miles E. from Kokomo.

VERMONT, a post-township in Fulton co., Illinois. Population, 1564.

VERMONT, a thriving post-village of Fulton co., Ill., about 60 miles N. W. from Springfield.

VERMONT, a post-village in Cooper co., Mo., about 40 miles W. N. W. from Jefferson City.

VERMONT SETTLEMENT, a post-village of Will co., Illinois, 36 miles S. W. from Chicago.

VERMONTVILLE, a post-village of Eaton co., Michigan, on the Thornapple river, about 30 miles W. S. W. from Lansing.

VERNAL, a post-village of Wyoming co., New York, 38 miles E. from Buffalo.

VERNAL, a post-village of Greene co., Miss.

VERNON, a new county in the W. part of Missouri, bordering on the Indian Territory. It is intersected by the Osage and South Grand rivers, and also drained by the Deepwater and Miami creeks. This county is not included in the census of 1850. The soil and productions are similar to those of Cass and Bates counties, out of which it was formed. County seat not yet located.

VERNON, a post-township in Windham co., Vermont, on the W. side of Connecticut river, about 65 miles S. by W. from Concord, intersected by the Connecticut River railroad. Population, 821.

VERNON, a post-township of Tolland co., Connecticut, intersected by the Hartford, Providence, and Fishkill railroad, 15 miles E. by N. from Hartford, and drained by the Hockanum and the Sankerooson, which afford water-power. Besides the village at the centre, it contains the manufacturing village of Rockville; 4 churches, and various manufactories of woollen and cotton goods, with an aggregate capital of $500,000. Population of the township, 2900.

VERNON, a post-township in the S. W. part of Oneida co., New York, drained by Oneida creek. Population, 3093.

VERNON, a post-village in the above township, 16 miles W. from Utica. It contains 3 or 4 churches, an academy, a newspaper office, a bank, and several stores. Population, estimated at 900.

VERNON, a township in the N. E. corner of Sussex co., New Jersey. Population, 2619.

VERNON, a post-village in the above township, about 40 miles N. N. W. from Trenton, contains 2 stores, 2 mills, and a church.

VERNON, a township of Crawford co., Pennsylvania, on the right bank of French creek, about 3 miles W. from Meadville. Pop., 570.

VERNON, a post-village in Kent co., Delaware, 32 miles S. S. W. from Dover.

VERNON, a post-village of Troup co., Georgia, on the Chattahoochee river, 6 miles W. from La Grange.

VERNON, a post-village, capital of Washington co., Florida, on Holmes' creek, which flows through a fertile valley of the same name, 110 miles W. from Tallahassee.

VERNON, a post-village in Autauga co., Alabama, on the Alabama river, 25 miles W. from Montgomery.

VERNON, a post-village of Madison co., Mississippi, on the Big Black river, 25 miles N. N. W. from Jackson.

VERNON, a post-office of Jackson parish. La.

VERNON, a post-village of Hickman co., Tennessee, on Piney creek, 50 miles S. W. from Nashville. The creek affords extensive water-power.

VERNON, a township in Clinton co., Ohio. Population, 1468.

VERNON, a township in Crawford co., Ohio. Population, 1276.

VERNON, a township in the S. E. part of Scioto co., Ohio. Population, 1105.

VERNON, a post-township in the N. E. part of Trumbull co., Ohio. Population, 828.

VERNON, a post-township in the S. E. part of Shiawassee co., Michigan, partly intersected by the Shiawassee river. Pop., 674.

VERNON, a township in Hancock co., Indiana. Population, 908.

VERNON, a township in Jackson co., Indiana. Population, 604.

VERNON, a post-township in Jennings co., Indiana. Population, 3023.

VERNON, a post-village in the above township, capital of Jennings county, Indiana, on the Madison and Indianapolis railroad, where it is crossed by the Cincinnati and St. Louis railroad, 66 miles S. S. E. from Indianapolis. It is beautifully situated on the Vernon fork of the Muscakituck river, by which it is almost entirely encircled. A newspaper is published here. Pop., estimated at 1000.

VERNON, a township of Washington co., Indiana. Population, 1792.

VERNON, a post-village of Crawford co., Illinois, about 16 miles N. by W. from Vincennes, in Indiana.

VERNON, a township of Lake co., Illinois. Population, 959.

VERNON, a post-office of Van Buren co., Io.

VERNON, a post-township in the S. E. part of Waukesha co., Wisconsin. Pop., 889.

VERNON, a post-village in the above township, about 24 miles S. W. from Milwaukee, contains 1 hotel and a wagon shop.

VERNON, a small post-town of Sutter co., California, is situated at the confluence of Sacramento and Feather rivers, on the main road from Sacramento city to Shasta, about 105 miles N. N. E. from San Francisco.

VERNON CENTRE, a post-village of Oneida co., New York, 105 miles W. by N. from Albany.

VERNON RIVER, a small stream of Ohio, which rises in the N. central part of the state, and flowing through Knox county, enters the Walhonding river in Coshocton county. It is also called Owl creek.

VERONA, or VERONA CENTRE, a post-village in Verona township, Oneida county, New York, on the Erie Canal, 13 miles W. by S. from Rome. It contains several churches and stores. Pop. of the township, 5570.

VERONA, a post-village in Boone co., Kentucky, 53 miles N. from Frankfort.

VERONA, a village in Vanderburg co., Indiana, on the right bank of the Ohio, 165 miles S. W. by S. from Indianapolis.

VERONA, a post-township in the N. part of Dane co., Wisconsin. Population, 364.

VERONA DEPÔT, a post-village of Oneida co., New York, on the Central railroad, 30 miles E. from Syracuse.

VERONA MILLS, a post-office of Oneida co., New York.

VEROQUA, Wisconsin. See VAROQUA.

VERPLANCK'S, a post-village and station of Westchester co., New York, on the Hudson River railroad, about 40 miles from New York.

VERRET lake, Louisiana, situated in Assumption parish, is connected by a short outlet with Grand river and Lake Chetimaches. Length, about 10 miles.

VERSAILLES, a post-office of Cattaraugus co., New York.

VERSAILLES, a township of Alleghany co., Pennsylvania, on the left bank of the Monongahela river, about 13 miles S. E. from Pittsburg. Population, 1659.

VERSAILLES, a post-office of Rutherford co., Tennessee.

VERSAILLES, a beautiful post-village, capital of Woodford co., Kentucky, on the turnpike from Frankfort to Lexington, 13 miles S. E. from the former. It is surrounded by a rich and highly cultivated region, and contains a handsome brick court house, a bank, 4 churches, a large seminary, a woollen factory, and several bagging factories. It is supplied with pure water issuing from a cave or natural conduit, which extends under the foundations of the houses.

VERSAILLES, a village of Darke co., Ohio, on the Bellefontaine and Indiana railroad, about 90 miles N. from Cincinnati.

VERSAILLES, a thriving post-village, capital of Ripley county, Indiana, on Laughery creek, and on the Cincinnati and St. Louis railroad, (in progress.) 70 miles S. E. from Indianapolis. It is situated in a rich farming region, and has considerable trade, which is facilitated by a plank-road leading from Madison to Greensburg. A weekly newspaper is published here.

VERSAILLES, a post-village in Brown co. Illinois, 60 miles W. by N. from Springfield.

VERSAILLES, a post-village, capital of Morgan county, Missouri, 40 miles W. S. W. from Jefferson City. Laid out in 1836. It is situated in a beautiful and fertile country, on one of the proposed routes of the Pacific railroad.

VERSHIRE, a post-township in Orange co., Vermont, 25 miles S. E. by S. from Montpelier. Population, 1071.

VESPER, a post-office of Onondaga co., N. Y.

VESPERA, a small village of Tallahatchie co., Mississippi.

VESTAL, a township forming the S. W. extremity of Broome co., New York, on the Susquehanna river. Population, 2054.

VESTAL CENTRE, a post-office of Broome co., New York.

VESTAL FURNACE, a post-office of Broome co., New York.

VESUVIUS FURNACE, a post-office of Lincoln co., North Carolina, 162 miles W. from Raleigh.

VETERAN, a township of Chemung co., New York, 10 miles N. by E. from Elmira, intersected by the Canandaigua and Elmira railroad. Population, 2698.

VETO, a post-office of Washington co., O.

VEVAY, a township in the W. central part of Ingham co., Michigan. Population, 781.

VEVAY, a neat and thriving post-village, capital of Switzerland co., Indiana, is beautifully situated on the Ohio river, 70 miles below Cincinnati. It was settled in 1813 by a company of Swiss emigrants, who cultivate the grape extensively and with success. The navigation of the river and the fertility of the adjoining country render it a place of active business. Two newspapers are issued here. Pop. in 1853, estimated at 1800.

VICKERY'S CREEK, of Georgia, enters the Chattahoochee in the N. E. part of Cobb county.

VICKERY'S CREEK, a post-village of Forsyth county, Georgia, 115 miles N. W. from Milledgeville.

VICKSBURG, a city and port of entry, capital of Warren county, Mississippi, is situated on the Mississippi river, 400 miles above New Orleans, and 50 miles W. from Jackson, with which it is connected by the Vicksburg and Brandon railroad. The situation is elevated, the ground uneven, and the city is not compactly built. It contains, besides the county buildings, 4 or 5 churches, and several academies for both sexes. Three newspapers are published here. Vicksburg is the most commercial place on the river between Natchez and Memphis, and is an important mart for cotton; of which article about 100,000 bales are annually exported. The greater part of this is received by railroad. Steamboats ply regularly between this place and New Orleans. The Vicksburg and Brandon railroad is to be extended eastward to Selma, in Alabama. Another railroad has been surveyed from Vicksburg to Marshall, in Texas, via Shreveport. The tonnage of this port, June, 1852, was 215 $\frac{3}{4}$ tons enrolled and licensed and employed in steam navigation. The receipts of cotton by railroad for 3 years were as follows: in 1850, 49,722 bales; in 1851, 62,134, and in 1852, 88,732. Population in 1840, 3104; in 1850, 3678.

VICKSVILLE, a post-office of Southampton co., Virginia.

VICTOR, a post-village in Victor township, Ontario county, New York, on a branch of the Central railroad, 20 miles S. E. from Rochester. It contains several churches and stores. Population of the township, 2230.

VICTOR, a post-township in the E. part of Clinton co., Michigan. Population, 277.

VICTORIA, a county in the S. part of Texas, has an area of about 775 square miles. It is intersected by the Guadalupe river, bounded on the S. W. by Coleta creek, and also drained by Garcitas creek. The surface has but little elevation above the sea; the soil is represented to be fertile. A portion of the county is prairie. Cotton, sugar cane, and Indian corn are the staples. In 1850 this county yielded 54,110 bushels of corn; 1050 of sweet potatoes; 270 bales of cotton, and 120 hogsheads of sugar. It contained 1 newspaper office, and 71 pupils attending academies or other schools. Capital, Victoria. Population, 2019; of whom 1448 were free and 571, slaves.

VICTORIA, a post-village in Bolivar co. Mississippi.

VICTORIA, a post-village, capital of Victoria co., Texas, on the left bank of Guadalupe river, about 120 miles S. S. E. from Austin. It contains 1 newspaper office, and several stores.

VICTORIA, a small post-village of Knox co., Illinois, about 45 miles N. W. from Peoria.

VICTORIA, a post-office of Daviess co., Mo.

VICTORY, a township in Essex co., Vermont, about 45 miles N. E. of Montpelier. Pop., 168.

VICTORY, a post-village in Victory township, Cayuga co., New York, near the Lake Ontario, Auburn, and Ithaca railroad, 22 miles N. by W. from Auburn. Population of the township, 2298.

VICTORY, a post-office of Wayne co., Tenn.

VICTORY MILLS, a post-office of Saratoga co., New York.

VIDALIA, a post-village, capital of Concordia parish, Louisiana, on the right bank of the Mississippi river, opposite Natchez, and about 150 miles above Baton Rouge. During the Spanish dominion it was called the Post of Concordia. It contains 1 tavern, and 1 newspaper office.

VIENNA, a post-township in Kennebec co., Maine, 22 miles N. W. from Augusta. Population, 851.

VIENNA, a post-township in the N. W. part of Oneida co., New York, on Oneida lake. It contains a village of the same name. Population, 3393.

VIENNA, a thriving village of Phelps township, Ontario co., New York, on the Canandaigua outlet, at its junction with Flint creek, and on a branch of the Central railroad, 7 miles N. N. W. from Geneva. It is divided into East and West Vienna, and contains 3 or 4 churches, several hotels, numerous stores, and manufactories of flour, iron, and other articles. Pop. estimated at 1600.

VIENNA, a post-village of Warren co., New Jersey, on Pequest river, about 48 miles N. by W. from Trenton.

VIENNA, a post-village of Dorchester co., Maryland, on Nanticoke river, 68 miles S. E. from Annapolis.

VIENNA, a village in Forsyth co., North Carolina, 115 miles W. N. W. from Raleigh.

VIENNA, a post-village, capital of Dooly co., Georgia, 95 miles S. W. from Milledgeville, is situated in a level region, containing extensive pine forests. Pop. about 100.

VIENNA, a post-village in Pickens co., Alabama, on Tombigbee river, near the mouth of Sipsey river, 135 miles N. W. by W. from Montgomery.

VIENNA, a post-office of Jackson parish, Louisiana.

VIENNA, a post-village of Clarke co., Ohio, 34 miles W. from Columbus. The post-office is called Vienna Cross Roads.

VIENNA, a post-township in the S. E. part of Trumbull co., Ohio. Population, 1007.

VIENNA, a township in the N. W. part of Genesee co., Michigan. Population, 390.

VIENNA, a post-village in Macomb co., Michigan.

VIENNA, a post-township in Scott co., Indiana. Population, 1654.

VIENNA, a post-village of Scott co., Indiana, on the Jeffersonville and Columbus railroad, 8 miles W. from Lexington.

VIENNA, a township in Grundy co., Illinois. Population, 258.

VIENNA, a post-village, capital of Johnson co., Illinois, 190 miles S. by E. of Springfield. Population in 1853, about 200.

VIENNA, a township in the N. part of Dane co., Wisconsin. Population, 253.

VIENNA, a post-village in Spring Prairie township, Walworth co., Wisconsin, 55 miles S. E. from Madison.

VIENNA CROSS ROADS, Ohio. See VIENNA.

VIGO, a county in the W. part of Indiana, bordering on Illinois, contains 400 square miles. It is drained by the Wabash river. The surface is level or gently undulating, and is mostly occupied by majestic forests and beautiful prairies. The land, with small exceptions, is rich and well cultivated. Wheat, Indian corn, oats, pork, and beef are the staples. In 1850 this county yielded 996,481 bushels of corn; 58,598 of wheat; 90,826 of oats, and 3978 tons of hay. It contained 32 churches, 6 newspaper offices, 1259 pupils attending public schools, and 247 attending academies or other schools.

The county contains rich mines of coal, and quarries of limestone and freestone. It is intersected by the Wabash and Erie canal, the Terre Haute and Richmond railroad, the Evansville and Illinois railroad, and Alton and Terre Haute railroad, meet at the county seat. Organized in 1818, and named in honor of Colonel Francis Vigo, a native of Sardinia, and a citizen of Vincennes. Capital, Terre Haute. Population, 15,289.

VILLAGE, a township in Jackson co., Arkansas. Population, 782.

VILLAGE, a village in Wapello co., Iowa, 80 miles S. W. from Iowa City.

VILLAGE GREEN, a post-village of Delaware co., Pa., 4 miles W. N. W. from Chester.

VILLAGE SPRINGS, a post-office of Blount co., Alabama.

VILLAMONT, a township in Arkansas co., Arkansas. Population, 162.

VILLANOVA, a post-township of Chautauque co., New York, 15 miles E. S. E. from Dunkirk. Population, 1536.

VILLANOW, a post-office of Walker co., Georgia, 205 miles N. W. from Milledgeville.

VILLA RICA, a pleasant post-village of Carroll county, Georgia, 147 miles W. N. W. from Milledgeville. It is a place of some importance, on account of its gold mines, and has several pounding mills in operation. The amount of business done here in a year exceeds $100,000.

VILLE PLATTE, a post-office of St. Landry parish, Louisiana.

VILLULA, a small post-village of Russell co., Alabama, contains 2 stores.

VINALHAVEN, a township of Waldo co., Maine, occupying an island in Penobscot bay, 54 miles S. E. from Augusta. Pop., 1252.

VINCENNES, a pleasant town, capital of Knox county, Indiana, is situated on the left bank of the Wabash river, 120 miles S. W. from Indianapolis, and 56 miles N. from Evansville. Lat. 38° 43' N., lon. 87° 25' W. Vincennes is the oldest town in the state, and possesses more historical interest than any other place in Indiana. It was settled by a colony of French emigrants from Canada, about the year 1735. For several generations they were the only tenants of these vast solitudes, excepting the tribes of savages, with whom they lived on friendly terms. It was the seat of the territorial government until 1813, when it was removed to Corydon. Many of the present inhabitants are of French descent. The situation is very pleasant, having a large prairie in the vicinity, the soil of which is highly productive. The river is navigable by steamboats in this part of its course. The Cincinnati and St. Louis railroad (now in progress) here intersects the Evansville and Illinois railroad. Vincennes is the seat of a Catholic bishopric, and has a large cathedral, and 6 or 8 Protestant churches. It contains 2 banks, and 2 or 3 newspaper offices. Pop. in 1850, 2070.

VINCENT, a post-office of Chester co., Pa.

VINCENTTOWN, a post-village of Burlington county, New Jersey, on the South branch of Rancocus creek, 5 miles S. S. E. from Mount Holly. It contains 3 or 4 churches, 3 mills, several stores, and about 100 dwellings, which are chiefly on a single street.

VINEGAR HILL, a post-office of Joe Daviess co., Illinois.

VINE GROVE, a post-office of Washington co., Texas.

VINEYARD, Vermont. See LA MOTTE.

VINEYARD, a post-office of Irwin co., Ga.

VINEYARD, a township in Washington co., Arkansas. Population, 711.

VINEYARD MILLS, a post-office of Huntingdon co., Pennsylvania.

VINEY GROVE, a post-office of Lincoln co., Tennessee.

VINLAND, a post-township in the N. part of Winnebago co., Wisconsin. Pop., 750.

VINLAND, a small post-village of Winnebago co., Wisconsin.

VINTON, a county in the S. part of Ohio, has an area of about 414 square miles. It is intersected by Salt and Racoon creeks, which flow nearly southward. The surface is undulating and well timbered; the soil is highly productive. Indian corn, wheat, oats, hay, wool, and live stock are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 249,899 bushels of corn; 27,099 of wheat; 45,161 of oats; 6357 tons of hay, and 33,788 pounds of wool. There were 18 churches, 1 newspaper office, and 2358 pupils attending public schools. Vinton county contains large deposits of iron and stone coal, which have not been worked hitherto, but have now become easily accessible by means of the Marietta and Cincinnati railroad, which passes through them, and is nearly completed. Formed in 1850, by a division of five adjoining counties. Capital, McArthurstown. Population, 9353.

VINTON, a village of Lowndes co., Miss.

VINTON, a post-village in Gallia co., Ohio, on a branch of Racoon creek, about 60 miles S. W. from Marietta.

VINTON, a township in the S. E. part of Vinton co., Ohio. Population, 460.

VINTON, a small post-village, capital of Benton co., Iowa, about 55 miles N. W. from Iowa City. Its origin is very recent.

VIOLA, a post-office of Delaware co., Iowa.

VIOLET, a township forming the N. W. extremity of Fairfield co., Ohio. Pop., 1344.

VIOLY, a post-office of Blount co., Ala.

VIRDEN, a post-village of Macoupin co., Illinois, on the Chicago and Mississippi railroad, 50 miles N. N. E. from Alton.

VIRGIL, a post-village in Virgil township, Cortland co., New York, about 40 miles S. from Syracuse. It contains several churches and stores. Population of the township, 2410.

VIRGIL, a post-village of Fulton co., Illinois, about 50 miles W. by S. from Peoria.

VIRGIL, a township in Kane co., Illinois. Population, 634.

VIRGINIA, one of the original states of the United States, is bounded on the N. by Ohio, Pennsylvania and Maryland; E. by Maryland and the Atlantic ocean; S. by North Carolina and Tennessee, and W. by Kentucky and Ohio. It is separated from Ohio by the river of the same name; from Maryland by the Potomac river, and from Kentucky partly by the Cumberland mountains and the Big Sandy river. Virginia is very irregular in outline, with a narrow projection extending N. between the Ohio river and the W. boundary of Pennsylvania. It lies between 36° 30' and 40° 38' N. lat., and between 75° 10' and 83° 30' W. lon., being about 425 miles in its greatest length from E. to W., (but a line through the middle would extend about 350 miles,) and 210 in breadth, exclusive of the projection mentioned above, or 280 miles with it, including an area of about 61,352 square miles, or 29,265,280 acres, only 10,360,135 of which were improved in 1850.

Population.—The white population of Virginia is mainly of British origin, and until a recent period was very slightly affected by admixture from other sources. The Virginians have always prided themselves on their purity of descent, and "one of the first families of Virginia," has become a proverb. In 1790, this state numbered 748,308 inhabitants; 820,200 in 1800; 974,622 in 1810; 1,065,379 in 1820; 1,211,405 in 1830; 1,239,797 in 1840, and 1,421,661 in 1850; of whom 451,522 were white males; 443,752 white females; 25,843 free colored males; 27,986 females; 240,566 male slaves, and 231,962 female slaves. This population was divided into 167,530 families, occupying 165,815 dwellings. Of the white population, 872,823 were born in the state; 52,972 in other states; 2998 in England; 11,643 in Ireland; 1120 in Scotland and Wales; 235 in British America; 5511 in Germany; 321 in France; 566 in other countries, and 585 whose places of birth were unknown—giving about 2½ per cent. of foreign births of the whole white population. In the year ending June 1st, 1850, occurred 19,053 deaths, or about 13 persons in every 1000; and in the same period, 5118 paupers received aid, of whom 185 were foreigners, at an expense of nearly $30 for each pauper. Of 711 deaf and dumb, 18 were free colored, and 112 slaves; of 996 blind, 121 were free colored, and 339 slaves; of 1026 insane, 46 were free colored, and 58 slaves, and of 1285 idiotic, 120 were free colored, and 220 slaves.

Counties.—Virginia is divided into 140 counties, viz. Accomac, Alexandria, Albemarle, Alleghany, Amherst, Amelia, Appomattox, Augusta, Barbour, Bath, Bedford, Berkeley, Boone, Botetourt, Braxton, Brooke, Brunswick, Buckingham, Cabell, Carroll, Campbell, Caroline, Charlotte, Charles City, Chesterfield, Clarke, Craig, Culpepper, Cumberland, Dinwiddie, Doddridge, Elizabeth City, Essex, Fauquier, Fairfax, Fayette, Fluvanna, Floyd, Franklin, Frederic, Giles, Gilmer, Gloucester, Goochland, Grayson, Greenbrier, Greene, Greensville, Halifax, Hampshire, Hancock, Hanover, Hardy, Harrison, Henry, Henrico, Highland, Isle of Wight, Jackson, James City, Jefferson, Kanawha, King George, King William, King and Queen, Lancaster, Lee, Lewis, Logan, Loudon, Louisa, Lunenburg, Madison, Marion, Marshall, Mason, Matthews, Mecklenburg, Mercer, Middlesex, Monongalia, Monroe, Montgomery, Morgan, Nansemond, Nelson, New Kent, Nicholas, Northumberland, Northampton, Norfolk, Nottaway, Ohio, Orange, Page, Patrick, Pendleton, Pittsylvania, Pleasants, Pocahontas, Powhatan, Preston, Prince Edward, Princess Anne, Prince George, Prince William, Pulaski, Putnam, Raleigh, Randolph, Rappahannock, Richmond, Ritchie, Roanoke, Rockbridge, Rockingham, Russell, Scott, Shenandoah, Smythe, Southampton, Spotsylvania, Stafford, Surry, Sussex, Taylor, Tazewell, Tyler, Upshur, Warren, Warwick, Washington, Wayne, Westmoreland, Wetzell, Wirt, Wood, Wyoming, Wythe, York. Capital, Richmond.

Cities and Towns.—The principal towns of Virginia are Richmond, population, 27,482; Norfolk, 14,323, (including Portsmouth and Gosport, nearly 23,000;) Petersburg, 14,010; Wheeling, 11,391; Alexandria, 8752; Portsmouth, 8626; Lynchburg, 8071, and Fredericksburg, 4062.

Face of the Country and Mountains.—No state in the confederacy presents a greater variety of surface than Virginia, from the mountains of the interior, and the rugged hills E. and W. of them, to the rich alluvions of the rivers, and the sandy flats on the seacoast. This state has probably a greater extent of mountainous country within its limits than anyone E. of the Rocky mountains, though they do not attain so great an elevation as in New Hampshire and North Carolina. White Top, in Grayson county, the highest land in Virginia, is elevated about 6000 feet above the level of the sea. The state is usually divided into four sections. First, the tide-water district containing 37 counties, bordering on the Atlantic and Chesapeake bay, is generally level, not more than 60 feet above tide, even in its highest parts. 2. Passing W., we come to a more elevated tract, called by some the Piedmont (foot of the mountain) district, containing 32 counties. This is more varied, as well as more elevated in surface than the district we have just left. 3. The valley district, containing 19 counties, is entered by ascending the Blue Ridge, (the outlier of the great Alleghany chain on the E.) which passes from Maryland into Virginia, near Harper's Ferry, about 50 miles N. W. from Washington. This district is crossed by the different ridges of the great Appalachian chain, known by various local names, and including extensive valleys of fertile land between them; and 4th, the Trans-Alleghany district, containing 49 counties, and (as its name implies) lying W. of the mountains. This portion is mostly hilly and broken, or occupied with outlying spurs of the Alleghanies.

The mountains extend across the middle of the state, in a S. W. and N. E. direction, and occupy a belt of perhaps from 80 to 100 miles in width. As before stated, the Blue Ridge forms the eastern barrier of the mountainous region, and the Laurel, Greenbrier, and Great Flat Top mountains the western. Between these last and the Blue Ridge lie the Great North, Short, Mill, Jackson's, Peters', Potts', Walker's, Iron, North Branch, and Cheat mountains. Next to White Top, the highest known summit is the Peaks of Otter, between Bedford and Botetourt counties, which is 4200 feet above the level of the sea. The Cumberland mountains are on the boundary between Kentucky and Virginia. The valley district is in fact a table-land, elevated from 1200 to 1500 feet above tide-water.

Geology.—A tract of the tertiary formation occupies the S. E. part of Virginia, from the sea and bay coast to a line slightly diverging S. W. from the N. W. angle of King George county, on the Potomac, passing near Richmond, and leaving the state near the S. W. angle of Brunswick county. This is succeeded by a wide belt of primary formation, reaching to the base of the Blue Ridge mountains. Two narrow belts of new red sandstone, having the same S. W. trend, come to the surface in several parts of this great primary bed. West of the Blue Ridge, a narrow rim of Potsdam sandstone crops out, succeeded by a zone of Black river, Birdseye and Trenton limestone, having near the middle of it the towns of Winchester, Staunton, and Lexington. This in turn is followed by various groups, (extending in the same direction to the western mountain ridge,) viz. of gray sandstone, Hamilton group, including Tully limestone, (this group contains shales of various colors, greywacke, pyrites, producing rock and limestone shales,) Helderberg limestone, Portage and Chemung groups, (flagstones, shales, and thin bedded sandstones,) Medina sandstone, (consisting of variegated sandstones and marl, and giving origin to brine springs,) and the carboniferous limestone. The great Pennsylvania and Ohio bituminous coalfield occupies the space between the western slope of the mountains and the Ohio river and the State of Kentucky.

Minerals.—Virginia is rich in minerals of the more useful sort, and some of the precious metals. Her list of mineral treasures includes gold, copper, iron, lead, plumbago, coal, salt, gypsum, (in vast beds,) porcelain clay, fine granite, slate, marble, soapstone, lime, water-lime, and fire-clay. The most productive gold mines are in Fluvanna and Buckingham counties, and have proved rather expensive working hitherto, but recent reports from that district say that by the aid of the quartz-crusher, at the Wyckoff mine, 102½ pennyweights of fine metal was extracted from about a ton of earth and rock. The Marshall mine, in Spottsylvania county, is said to have yielded $300,000. This gold is extracted from a portion of an auriferous region reaching from the Rappahannock river to the Coosa, in Alabama. The copper mines of Virginia, in the same district, are also beginning to attract much attention, and companies have been formed to extract the ore; but the greatest sources of wealth of Virginia, as well as elsewhere, are her homelier minerals, coal and iron, which exist in inexhaustible quantities. Vast fields of bituminous coal abound in the counties around Richmond, and on the North Potomac and W. of the Alleghany mountains. Large beds of anthracite are found also beyond the Great valley. An inexhaustible supply of coal exists on the Kanawha and its tributaries, and a vein of cannel coal, far superior in thickness to any found in England, has recently been discovered in the same region. A great variety of mineral springs, sulphur, warm and chalybeate, are found in the Valley district, about the middle of the state. Copious salt springs abound in the Kanawha and in the S. W. counties, and the completion of the Virginia and Tennessee railroad, must greatly enhance the value of these.

Bays, Rivers, and Islands.—There are no large lakes in Virginia. Chesapeake bay, which has its outlet in this state, though more than half its length is in Maryland, receives the waters of most of the rivers on the Atlantic slope of Virginia, viz. the Potomac, navigable for the largest ships to Alexandria, 100 miles from the bay; the Rappahannock, navigable to Fredericksburg for vessels of 140 tons; the York and its branches, navigable to Yorktown, 40 miles, for large ships; the James and its principal affluent, the Appomattox, the former navigable to Richmond, and the latter to Petersburg, for vessels of 100 tons. The Chowan and Roanoke, with their numerous affluents, rise in the S. of the state, and find an outlet in Albe-marle sound, in North Carolina. The Shenandoah, South and North branch, (affluents of the Potomac,) drain the northern portion of the valleys of the Alleghanies, and the head-waters of the James, the central. The Monongahela, Little Kanawha, Great Kanawha, Guyandot, and Big Sandy rivers, drain the N. W. slope of the state, and empty into the Ohio. The Great Kanawha is navigable 60 miles for steamboats. The Holston and Clinch, with their smaller branches, have their sources in the S. W. of Virginia, and pass off into Tennessee, to join the river of that name. There are a few small but unimportant islands off the S. E. coast of Virginia.

Objects of Interest to Tourists.—Virginia abounds in objects of this class. Among the mountains of her central counties, between the Blue Ridge on the E. and the Alleghany on the W., are found the noted medicinal springs of Virginia, the most celebrated of which are Berkeley Springs, in Morgan county; Capon, in Hampshire; Shannondale, in Jefferson; White Sulphur, in Fauquier; Rawley's, in Rockingham; Augusta, in Augusta; Bath, Alum, Warm, and Hot Springs, in Bath; Alum, in Rockbridge; Dibbrell's, in Botetourt; White Sulphur and Blue Sulphur, in Greenbrier; Red, Sweet, Salt Sulphur, and Red Sulphur, in Monroe, and White Sulphur Springs, in Grayson county. The White Sulphur Spring (of Greenbrier county, the most celebrated) is impregnated most strongly with carbonic and nitrogen gases, and with sulphates of lime and magnesia, and carbonate of lime; the principal ingredients of the Salt Sulphur Springs are sulphates of lime, soda, and magnesia, and carbonates of lime and magnesia, and of gaseous matter, nitrogen, carbonic acid, and sulphuretted hydrogen; the Red Sweet Springs, sulphates of lime, magnesia, and soda, and carbonates of lime and magnesium, and of gaseous matter, carbonic acid and nitrogen; and warm sulphur, muriate of lime, sulphates of lime and magnesia, and carbonate of lime; of gaseous matter, nitrogen, carbonic acid, and sulphuretted hydrogen. Temperature, about 100°; temperature of the hot springs, 100° to 107°. In all cases we only give the prominent ingredients. There are also to be found in this region, commencing at the north, the far-famed passage of the Potomac through the Blue Ridge, at Harper's Ferry, so eulogized by Jefferson; Wyers' or Wier's cave, Madison cave, and the Chimneys, in Augusta county; the celebrated Natural Bridge, in Rockbridge county; Peaks of Otter, in Bedford, and White Top mountain, in Grayson county; the Buffalo Knob, in Floyd county; the Natural Tunnel, in Scott county, through which a stream passes under an arch of 70 feet in elevation, with twice that thickness of superincumbent earth; Peak Knob and Glass Windows, (elevations of peculiar formation,) in Pulaski county; the Hawk's Nest, on New river, in Fayette county, and the Falls of the Potomac, a few miles above Georgetown, District Columbia. When Virginia's railroads shall have been sufficiently completed to make her springs, her mountains, her caves, waterfalls, natural bridges, &c. as accessible as those of New York, she can scarcely fail to share largely with that state the prosperity that attends extensive travel of wealthy pleasure-seekers and valetudinarians. Though Virginia has no Niagara, yet her springs are situated among mountains abounding in picturesque scenery, and are good resting-places from whence to make excursions among the mountains, or to visit the caves and other objects of interest. Wier's cave, one of these objects, 17 miles N. E. of Staunton, extends about 2500 feet beneath the earth, and is hung with sparkling stalactites. Madison, in the same neighborhood, and Blowing and Saltpetre caves, 40 miles N. W. of them, are smaller, but interesting objects. But the great natural lions of Virginia are the Hawk's Nest, 9 miles from White Sulphur Springs, on New river, where there is a perpendicular cliff of 1000 feet above the river, declared by Miss Martineau to have produced a greater effect on her mind than Niagara itself; and the world-renowned Natural Bridge, over Cedar creek, in Rockbridge county, formed probably either by the action of water during the long course of ages on the subjacent rock, or by some convulsion of the earth. The fissure is about 90 feet wide; the height of the under side of the arch, 200, and of the upper side, 240 feet above the water. High up on this rock, carved by his own hand, the loftier name of Washington, stands engraved. Though less noted, the Peaks of Otter are spoken of by Jefferson as affording one of the grandest views in our country. Looking from its summit (4300 feet) to the E. and S. E., you have before you the whole extent of country to the shores of the Atlantic. In Alleghany county is the highest cataract in the state, but the body of water is not great. In Giles county is a small lake, elevated 3700 feet, which is 600 feet deep. But we can only afford space to say that of the numerous springs, the White Sulphur, in Greenbrier county, is the most in repute, and of course the most visited. The waters of the different springs contain lime, sulphur, soda, magnesia, iron, iodine, and phosphorus.

Climate.—There is necessarily from its topography, great variety in the climate of Virginia. In the low country, near the coast, it is hot and unhealthy in summer, and bilious and intermittent fevers prevail in autumn. It is mild, however, in winter, but liable to be visited by long droughts in summer. The central or mountain counties have a cool and salubrious temperature, with warm days, it is true, but the nights are cool and refreshing. West of the mountains, though some degrees cooler than on the coast in winter, the summers in parts are very hot.

Soil and Productions.—Washington pronounced the central counties of Virginia to be the finest agricultural district in the United States, (of course, as he knew it,) and Daniel Webster declared, in a public speech in the Shenandoah valley, that he had seen no finer farming land in his European travel, than in that valley. Virginia, with a better system of culture, has every element of industrial greatness; a climate equally removed from the extremes of the north and the south; a soil with every variety, from the light sands of the south-east, (favorable to the peach, sweet potato, melon, and other fruits,) to the rich alluvions of the river bottoms and mountain valleys, favorable to wheat, Indian corn, tobacco, and even, in some parts, to cotton and rice; mountain pastures, capable of supporting large flocks of sheep, and herds of cattle and swine; the finest harbor on the Atlantic coast; navigable rivers, abounding in shell and fin fish, furrowing her plains and valleys on the east and on the west, and affording, besides, immense water-power; and with the most useful minerals in abundance, what needs she but for her people to will it, to make her the leading state of the confederacy, and one of the most desirable to reside in? The emigration that has commenced from the North to the wornout lands of Virginia, is a proof of her advantages in agriculture. According to an address of E. Ruffin, Esq., of Virginia, the tide-water lands of that state have increased in value $17,000,000 in twelve years. In the culture of tobacco, Virginia has always surpassed every other state in the Union, and was also the first state in which its culture was practised by civilized men to any considerable extent. It was even used for a time as the currency of the country. Virginia is the second state in the Union in the amount of flax produced. The other great staples of Virginia are Indian corn, wheat, (of which it stands fourth in amount,) oats, live stock, and butter. She also produces largely rye, wool, peas, beans, Irish and sweet potatoes, buckwheat, fruits, market products, cheese, hay, grass-seeds, flax, maple sugar, beeswax, and honey, besides some rice, cotton, barley, wine, hops, hemp, silk, and molasses. In 1850, Virginia had 77,013 farms, occupying 10,360,135 acres of improved land, (about 130 to each farm,) and producing 11,232,616 bushels of wheat; 458,930 of rye; 35,254,319 of Indian corn; 521,581 of peas and beans; 1,316,933 of Irish potatoes; 1,813,671 of sweet potatoes; 214,898 of buckwheat; 53,155 of grass-seeds; 52,318 of flaxseed; 56,803,218 pounds of tobacco; 2,860,765 of wool; 11,089,359 of butter; 436,298 of cheese; 999,450 of flax; 1,227,665 of maple sugar; 880,767 of beeswax and honey; 369,698 tons of hay; live stock, valued at $33,656,659, (fourth in the Union;) orchard products, $177,137, and produce of market gardens, $183,047. According to a state census in 1851, there were produced 14,516,950 bushels of wheat; 35,538,582 of Indian corn; 53,333 of flaxseed; 66,516,492 pounds of tobacco; 11,126,785 of butter; 2,850,909 of wool; 1,223,905 of maple sugar; 370,117 tons of hay; 4599 of hemp; and wood, oysters, fish, peas, beans, potatoes, garden vegetables, fruits, &c. worth $5,000,000, making a total value of $86,000,000.

Manufactures.—As is generally the case in the Southern States, Virginia is less engaged in manufactures than in agriculture, though the former branch of industry is yearly claiming more attention and enlisting more capital; and Virginia, if true to herself in applying her vast natural resources of coal, iron, copper, and abundant water-power, must soon range herself among the manufacturing states. There were in 1850, in this state, 4433 manufacturing establishments producing each $500 and upwards annually; of which 27 were cotton factories, employing $1,908,900 capital, and 1275 male and 1688 female hands, consuming raw material worth $823,375, and producing stuffs of the value of $1,486,334; 121 woollen establishments, employing $392,640 capital, and 478 male and 190 female hands, consuming $488,899 worth of raw material, and producing stuffs valued at $841,013; 122 furnaces, forges, &c., employing $1,776,171 capital, and 3220 male hands, consuming raw material worth $1,046,809, and producing castings, pig iron, &c. valued at $2,451,335; $100,915 capital were invested in the manufacture of malt and spirituous liquors, employing 123 hands, and producing 5500 barrels of ale, beer, &c., and 879,440 gallons of whiskey, wine, &c. There were 341 tanneries, employing $676,983 capital, consuming raw material worth $498,926, and producing leather valued at $894,877; and home-made manufactures were produced, valued at $2,156,312.

Internal Improvements.—Though Virginia has not kept pace with her older and larger sister states in works of internal improvement, she has at length become fully impressed with their importance, and railroads have been projected in every direction. In January, 1853, she had 624 miles of railroad completed, and 610 in course of construction. The great Southern line, passing from Aquia creek, through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, has about 150 miles of its track in this state. Roads are completed from Winchester to Harper's Ferry; from Alexandria to Culpepper and Markham; from Petersburg to City Point, and nearly to Farmville; from Richmond to Keesville, to Gordonville, and Charlottesville, and to Mechem's river, a few miles E. of Staunton; and from Lynchburg to Salem. Most of these form parts of one or other of the great lines crossing the state, the principal of which are the Virginia Central, intended to unite Richmond with some point on the Ohio, at or near Guyandotte; the Virginia and Tennessee railroad, connecting Lynchburg (and indirectly Richmond, Petersburg, and Norfolk) with Knoxville, in Tennessee, and, by uniting with other lines, to Memphis and intermediate points; and the Southside railroad, to connect with Charlotte, and from thence with Charleston, South Carolina. A line connects Norfolk with the great Southern railroad, at Weldon, North Carolina. The Baltimore and Ohio has a large portion of its track in this state, not only after it leaves the Maryland boundary on the N. W., but it often takes the Virginia side of the Potomac before reaching Cumberland. It has its terminus at Wheeling, in this state; but another branch to Parkersburg, much lower down on the Ohio, is in progress. According to the Richmond Times, Virginia had, about the middle of the present year, (1853,) 1027 miles of railroad completed, and 1413 more authorized by law. Virginia was, we believe, among the very first to propose opening a communication with the West by canal, a project in which Washington took great interest, if he was not the projector, which we believe. In 1834 was commenced the James River and Kanawha canal, designed to connect Richmond with the navigable waters of the Great Kanawha. This work is now completed from Richmond through Lynchburg to Buchanan, a distance of 196½ miles, and is in progress to Covington, 30 miles farther west. This canal has already cost $10,714,306. Dismal Swamp canal is partly in this state. The legislature has appropriated $4,000,000 and upwards for railroad purposes. The state has invested $9,480,159.48 in works of internal improvement not completed, and $1,409,986.94 in works which yield no income.

Commerce.—Compared with her advantages, both as to harbors and rivers, as well as to products, Virginia's direct foreign trade is small, her commerce being mainly carried on through the ports and the shipping of the North. Her imports for the fiscal year 1852 amounted to $735,858, and her exports to $2,721,707; nearly half of which was carried in foreign bottoms. The tonnage entered for the same year was 50,605, and cleared, 66,473; tonnage of several districts, 68,269½, of which 14,643¾ only was registered tonnage; vessels built, 40, aggregate tonnage, 3,779½, of which 10 were steamers, and the rest schooners and smaller vessels. In 1852 there were inspected 51,806 hogshheads of tobacco, and exported, 13,771—6000 less than in 1849. But the great trade of Virginia is the coasting trade, which consists in the export of her tobacco, Indian corn, wheat, coal, flour, wood, oysters, &c. In 1852 there were delivered at Richmond by the different public works, property valued at $10,660,422, of which more than $7,000,000 were transported by the James River and Kanawha canal. There were inspected at Richmond 450,000 barrels of flour in 1853, of which 114,853 were exported to foreign ports.

Education.—Virginia has no general free school system, but makes an appropriation for the instruction of the poor. The appropriation for primary schools in 1852 was $75,000, and the annuity to the University of Virginia is $15,000. The number of public schools in 1850 was 2654, and of academies, 579. The number of poor children in 126 counties was 72,876, of whom only 31,635 were sent to school, on whose education

$68,135 were expended. Including the University of Virginia, there are 10 colleges in the state, with an aggregate of 1039 students, and 63,120 volumes on the shelves of their libraries. Of these, the most flourishing and most numerous attended is the university, which had in 1853, more than 500 students. There are in Virginia also 3 theological seminaries, with an aggregate of 119 students, and 10,000 volumes in their libraries; 2 law schools, with 113 students; and 3 medical schools, with 186 students.—See Table of Colleges, APPENDIX.

Religious Denominations.—Of the 2336 churches in Virginia in 1850, there belonged to the different sects of the Baptists, 639; to the Christians, 16; to the Episcopalians, 167; to the Free Church, 107; to the Friends, 14; to the German Reformed, 9; to the Lutherans, 50; to the Methodists, 1002; to the Presbyterians, 236; to the Roman Catholics, 17; and to the Union Church, 47. The rest were divided among the Evangelists, Independents, Jews, Mariners, Mennonites, Moravians, New Church, Seceders, Tunkers, and Universalists—making 1 church to every 608 inhabitants. Total value of church property, $2,849,176.

Public Institutions.—At Staunton are the Institution for the Deaf, Dumb, and Blind, and the Western Insane Asylum, both state institutions. The Eastern Insane Asylum is at Williamsburg, and the state penitentiary at Richmond; but we know of no statistics of these institutions.

Government, Finances, &c.—The executive power is vested in a governor, elected by the people for 4 years, and receiving a salary of $5000 per annum. The governor cannot be elected for two terms successively. A lieutenant-governor, who is also president of the senate, is elected in like manner and for the same period, and receives $8 per day during the sessions of the legislature. The secretary of the commonwealth, the treasurer, and auditor, are each elected for 2 years by the legislature on joint ballot. Three commissioners of public works, from as many districts, are elected for 6 years, so that one shall go out every second year. The senate, apportioned on the basis of property and taxation combined, consists of 50 members, elected for 4 years, so that one-half shall go out every second year. The house of representatives, apportioned on the basis of white population, consists of 152 members, chosen for 2 years. The sessions of the legislature are biennial. The legislature may not continue in session more than 90 days without the consent of three-fifths of the members, and then but for 30 days longer. A reapportionment must take place in 1865, and every 10 years thereafter. The judiciary consists—1. Of a supreme court of appeals, composed of 5 judges, elected by the voters of each of the 5 sections into which the state is divided, for 12 years; 2. Of district courts, composed of the judges of the circuits for each section, and the judge of the supreme court for that section; 3. Of 11 circuit courts, each presided over by a judge, elected by the people of his particular circuit, for 8 years. Every white male citizen, 21 years old, a resident of the state for 2 years, and of the county, city, or town in which he votes for 12 months next preceding an election, may vote. Virginia is entitled to 13 members in the national house of representatives, and to 15 electoral votes for president. According to the report of the second auditor of the board of public works, the state debt of Virginia was $18,041,775.50; but of this, $8,121,500 is represented by productive investments. In 1852, the school fund was $1,192,666; productive property, $7,060,565; unproductive property, $6,052,266; ordinary expenses, exclusive of debt and school, $600,000; income for 1851-2, $1,129,526; assessed value of property in 1850, $381,376,660; estimated value, $430,701,082. The estimated value in 1852 was $465,000,000.

Banking Institutions.—The banks of Virginia had in December, 1852, an aggregate capital of $10,583,700; a circulation of $12,020,378.41; and $3,238,874.98 in coin.

History.—Virginia is the oldest of the permanent settlements made by the English, and the oldest of the thirteen states that confederated at the Revolution. It was settled by a party of English, led by the celebrated Captain John Smith, in 1607, and had in its earlier career great difficulties to contend with, in the shape of famine, disease, and the hostilities of the natives, often incited to depredations by worthless settlers. Bacon's rebellion, the most serious of these disturbances, broke out in the autumn of 1676. A party who were discontented with Berkeley for refusing to commission Bacon to lead them against the savages who had invaded the white settlements, slaughtering and burning, as was their custom, chose Bacon for their commander, despite the governor, who, on Bacon's return from a successful foray against the Indians, declared him a rebel. The people rose again, put Bacon at their head, and commenced a civil war against the governor, in which Jamestown was burnt, and the total defeat of the governor's party was only prevented by the death of Bacon. Berkeley put to death many of the adherents of Bacon's party. In 1677, Virginia obtained a new charter, depriving her of some of her former privileges, as a punishment for the rebellion. It was, however, soon after annulled by Charles II. on account of the discontents of the people. In 1752, Washington, then a young man, was sent by Governor Dinwiddie as an envoy to the French commander at Fort Du Quesne, (Pittsburg,) and two years after, at the head of 400 men, defeated the French party at the Great Meadows, but was obliged to capitulate shortly after to nearly a quadruple force. In 1755, Washington served as a colonel in Braddock's army, and saved it from utter ruin. Virginia took an active part in the events leading to, and in the conduct of the war of the Revolution, and gave to the army and to the nation that illustrious chief whose wisdom and firmness not only conducted us through the perils of a seven years' war, but also contributed so greatly to establish our government on a firm basis. Besides Washington, several eminent statesmen and officers were natives of Virginia; among them were Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, the two Lees, Patrick Henry, Chief-Justice Marshall, and a number of others. On her soil occurred several events of the Revolution; prominent among them, the surrender at Yorktown in October, 1781, which in reality put an end to the war. Washington died, December 14th, 1799. Alexandria capitulated to the British, August 27th, 1814. Nat Turner headed a negro insurrection in 1831, in which a number of whites were massacred. Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, and Tyler, all presidents of the United States, were citizens of Virginia; and President Harrison also was a native of this state, though not a citizen at the period of his election. A constitution was formed in 1776, suited to the changed circumstances of the state as a republic, which was remodelled in 1830, and again in 1851.

VIRGINIA, a township in the S. W. part of Coshocton co., Ohio. Population, 1236.

VIRGINIA, a small post-village of Cass co., Illinois, 13 miles E. by S. from Beardstown.

VIRGINIA GROVE, a post-office of Louisa co., Iowa, about 40 miles S. S. E. of Iowa City.

VIRGINIA MILLS, a post-office of Buckingham co., Virginia.

VIRGINIA MINES, a post-village of Franklin co., Missouri, on the Maramec river, about 50 miles W. S. W. from St. Louis.

VIRGINIA SETTLEMENT, a small village of Wayne co., Missouri.

VIRGINSVILLE, a post-village of Berks co., Pennsylvania, 68 miles E. from Harrisburg.

VISCHER'S FERRY, a post-village of Saratoga co., New York, about 16 miles N. by W. from Albany.

VISTA, a post-village of Westchester co., N. Y., about 120 miles S. by E. from Albany.

VISTA RIDGE, a post-office of Carroll parish, Louisiana.

VOAK, a post-office of Yates co., N. Y.

VOGANSVILLE, a post-office of Lancaster co., Pennsylvania.

VOLCANO, a post-village of Calaveras co., California, 50 miles E. N. E. from Stockton.

VOLGA CITY, a post-office of Clayton co., Iowa.

VOLINIA, a post-township of Cass co., Michigan, 10 miles N. by E. from Cassopolis. Population, 607.

VOLNEY, a township of Oswego co., New York, on Oswego river, intersected by the Oswego canal, 24 miles N. N. W. from Syracuse. Population, exclusive of Fulton village, 2966.

VOLNEY, a post-office of Logan co., Ky.

VOLUNTOWN, a post-township of Windham co., Connecticut, 56 miles E. S. E. from Hartford. Population, 1064.

VOLUSIA, a post-village of Chautauque co., N. Y., about 340 miles W. by S. from Albany.

VOLUSIA, a post-village of Marion co., Fla., on St. John's river, a little above Lake George, about 200 miles E. S. E. from Tallahassee.

VUE DE L'EAU, a post-office of Bristol co., Massachusetts.

W

WABASH, an important river of Indiana and Illinois, rises in Mercer county, Ohio, near the W. boundary of the state. It flows north-westward to Huntington, Indiana, then pursues a westerly course to Carroll county; from this point it flows south-westward, passing by Lafayette and Attica, until it approaches within 8 or 10 miles from the W. border of Indiana; here it turns toward the south, and passing by Covington and Terre Haute, strikes the boundary of Indiana and Illinois a few miles below the latter town. From this point its general direction is S. S. W., and it continues to form the boundary between the two states until it enters the Ohio, about 140 miles above the mouth of the latter, in lat. 37° 50' N., and lon. 88° W. It is the largest river which intersects the State of Indiana, and the principal affluent of the Ohio from the N. The whole length is estimated at 550 miles, for more than 300 of which it is navigable by steamboats in high water. The Wabash and Erie canal follows the course of this river from Huntington to Terre Haute, a distance of 180 miles. Stonecoal is found nearly everywhere along its banks, below Lafayette.

WABASH, a county towards the N. E. part of Indiana, contains 420 square miles. It is drained by the Wabash, Salamonie, and El rivers. The surface is pleasantly diversified and the soil fertile. A large portion of the county is covered with heavy timber. Wheat, corn, oats, and pork are the staples. In 1850 this county yielded 434,962 bushels of corn; 117,803 of wheat; 28,047 of oats, and 4107 tons of hay. It contains 11 churches, 2 newspaper offices, and 1366 pupils attending public schools. The county is intersected by the Wabash and Erie canal, and by the Lake Erie, Wabash, and St. Louis railroad, (unfinished.) The streams furnish an extensive water-power. Capital, Wabash. Pop., 12,128.

WABASH, a county in the E. S. E. part of Illinois, bordering on Indiana, is among the smallest counties of the state: area, 110 square miles. The Wabash river, from which its name is derived, forms its boundary on the E. and S., and Bonpas creek flows along the western border until it enters that river. The county contains some prairie and is partly covered with forests; the soil is good. Indian corn, wheat, oats, grass, and pork are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 320,000 bushels of corn; 12,438 of wheat; 44,895 of oats, and 2222 tons of hay. It contained 11 churches, 1 newspaper office, and 750 pupils attending public schools. The rapids of Wabash river afford abundant water-power, near Mount Carmel, the county seat. Population, 4690.

WABASH, a township in Darke co., Ohio. Population, 309.

WABASH, a township in Adams co., Indiana. Population, 410.

WABASH, a township in Fountain co., Indiana. Population, 1300.

WABASH, a township in Gibson co., Indiana. Population, 311.

WABASH, a township in Tippecanoe co., Indiana. Population, 1196.

WABASH, a flourishing post-village, capital of Wabash county, Indiana, on the river of its own name, and on the Wabash and Erie canal, 90 miles N. N. E. from Indianapolis. It is situated in a rich farming country, which is rapidly improving. The Lake Erie, Wabash, and St. Louis railroad will pass through it, and the Cincinnati Western railroad is extending in this direction. Settled in 1835. Two newspapers are published here. Population in 1853, about 1800.

WABASH, a township in Coles co., Illinois. Population, 746.

WABASH, a township in Cumberland co., Illinois. Population, 123.

WABASH, a post-village of Wayne co., Illinois, on the Little Wabash river, about 70 miles S. E. from Vandalia.

WABASH AND ERIE CANAL.—See Table of Canals, APPENDIX.

WABASHAW, a county in the S. E. part of Minnesota, contains nearly a thousand square miles. It is bounded on the N. E. by the Mississippi river, on the S. W. by the Miniska river, and drained by the Waxi Oju. The surface is undulating and the soil fertile. Indian corn, oats, potatoes, and grass are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 1885 bushels of corn; 1000 of oats, and 7105 of potatoes. Capital, Wabashaw. Pop., 243.

WABASHAW, a post-village, capital of Wabashaw county, Minnesota, on the right bank of the Mississippi, opposite the mouth of the Chipewa river, 90 miles below St. Paul.

WABASH VALLEY, a post-office of Clark co., Illinois.

WABINCK river, Wisconsin, rises near the centre of Waupacca co., and flowing S. E. enters Wolf river.

WACAROOTIE, a post-office of Marion co., Indiana.

WACCAMAW, a river which rises in the S. part of North Carolina, and flowing south-westward through Horry district, South Carolina, unites with the Great Pedee at Georgetown. These rivers here form an estuary called Winyaw bay.

WACHUSETT MOUNTAIN, in Princeton township, Worcester co., Massachusetts, has an elevation of above 2000 feet. The view from its summit is extensive, and exceedingly picturesque.

WACHUSETT VILLAGE, a post-office of Worcester, Massachusetts.

WACO, a post-village, capital of McLennan co., Tex., on the right bank of the Brazos river.

WACOOCHIEE, a post-village of Russell co., Alabama, 65 miles E. by N. from Montgomery.

WAGOUSTA, a post-village of Clinton co., Michigan, on the Looking-glass river, about 11 miles N. W. from Lansing. It has 2 mills, and 2 stores.

WACO VILLAGE, a post-office of Milam co., Texas.

WADDAM'S GROVE, a post-township in Stephenson co., Illinois.

WADDINGTON, a post-village of St. Lawrence co., New York, on the St. Lawrence river, about 18 miles E. N. E. from Ogdensburg. It contains stores and mills of various kinds.

WADE'S, a post-office of Bedford co., Va.

WADESBOROUGH, a flourishing post-village, capital of Anson county, North Carolina, 120 miles S. W. from Raleigh, and 14 miles W. from the Yadkin river. It is surrounded by a productive cotton region, and is the centre of an active trade. A company has been formed to construct a plank-road from this place to Cheraw, South Carolina, 24 miles distant. The Bank of Wadesborough was chartered in 1850-1, capital $200,000. Two newspapers are published here. Incorporated in 1825. Population in 1853, about 1500.

WADESBOROUGH, a post-village of Callaway co., Ky., about 250 miles W. S. W. of Frankfort, was formerly the county seat.

WADESTOWN, a post-office of Monongalia co., Virginia.

WADESVILLE, a post-office of Clarke co., Va.

WADHAM'S MILLS, a post-village of Essex co., New York, on Boquet river, 9 or 10 miles E. from Elizabethtown.

WADING RIVER, a small stream of Burlington co., New Jersey, flows southward into Little Egg Harbour river.

WADING RIVER, a post-village of Suffolk co., New York, near Long Island sound.

WADLEY'S FALLS, a post-village in Strafford co., New Hampshire, 36 miles E. from Concord.

WADSWORTH, a post-township forming the S. E. extremity of Medina co., Ohio. Population, 1622.

WADSWORTH, a post-village in the above township, 12 miles S. E. from Medina.

WAERTOWN, New Jersey. See WARETOWN.

WAGONER'S RIPPLE, a post-office of Adams co., Ohio.

WAGONTOWN, a post-village of Chester co., Pa., 62 miles E. S. E. from Harrisburg.

WAGRAM, a post-office of Accomack co., Virginia.

WAHAGBOUSY, a post-office of Mills co., Iowa.

WAHALACK, or WAHOLOCK, a post-village of Kemper co., Mississippi.

WAH-A-TOY-A, or SPANISH PEAKS, a range of the Rocky mountains, in the eastern part of Utah Territory. Latitude about 37° 25' N., lon. 105° 10' W.

WAHKON, a new county in the W. part of Iowa, has an area of 760 square miles. Missouri river forms its boundary on the W., and the Little Sioux river flows through the S. E. part. This county is not included in the census of 1850. County seat not located.

WAHLAUGAS river, in the N. part of Maine, has its origin in a chain of small lakes in Piscataquis county, and flowing in a general northerly course, falls into the Wal-loostook river, near its union with the St. François.

WAHOLOCK. See WAHALACK.

WAHOO, a post-office of Madison co., Iowa.

WAHSATCH MOUNTAINS, a range in the E. central part of Utah Territory, extending nearly N. and S. immediately W. of Green river. The highest summits vary from 8000 to 11,000 feet in height.

WAH-TA-WAH, a post-office of Adair co., Io.

WAILSBOROUGH, a post-office of Bartholomew co., Indiana.

WAIT, a post-office of Washington co., Me.

WAITSBURG, a village of Pulaski co., Kentucky, on the Cumberland river, at the head of steamboat navigation, 96 miles S. from Frankfort.

WAITSFIELD, a post-township in Washington co., Vermont, 12 miles S. W. from Montpelier. Population, 1021.

WAIT'S RIVER, a mill stream of Orange co., Vermont, falls into the Connecticut river.

WAKASSA, a post-office of Levy co., Florida, on Wakassassa river.

WAKATOMICA, a post-office of Coshocton co., Ohio, 65 miles N. E. from Columbus.

WAKE, a county in the central part of North Carolina: area, estimated at 950 square miles. It is intersected by the Neuse and Little rivers. The surface is hilly; the soil is generally fertile. Indian corn, oats, and cotton are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 681,390 bushels of corn; 80,087 of oats, and 2059 bales of cotton. There were 8 corn and flour mills, 7 grist mills, 11 saw mills, 1 iron foundry, 2 tanneries, and 16 tar and turpentine manufactories. It contained 33 churches, 10 newspaper offices, 2001 pupils attending public schools, and 450 attending academies and other schools. The rocks which underlie the surface are primary, including granite and plumbago. The county is intersected by the North Carolina Central railroad, and in part by the Raleigh and Gaston railroad. Wake county is the most populous in the state. It was formed in 1770, and derived its name from the maiden name of Governor Tryon's wife. Capital, Raleigh. Population, 24,888; of whom 15,479 were free, and 9,409, slaves.

WAKEFIELD, a post-township in Carroll co., New Hampshire, 35 miles N. E. from Concord, intersected by the Great Falls and Conway railroad, contains Lovwell's or Lovell's pond, celebrated in the early Indian wars. Population, 1,405.

WAKEFIELD, a post-village in Washington co., Rhode Island, 30 miles S. by W. from Providence, contains 1 or 2 churches, and 2 banks.

WAKEFIELD, a post-village in Carroll co., Maryland, 68 miles N. N. W. from Annapolis.

WAKEFIELD, a post-village in Wake co., North Carolina, 25 miles N. E. by E. from Raleigh.

WAKEFIELD, a post-office of Outagamie co., Wisconsin.

WAKEMAN, a post-township forming the N. E. extremity of Huron co., Ohio, intersected by the Vermilion river, and the Cleveland, Norwalk, and Toledo railroad. Pop., 704.

WAKESHMA, a post-township forming the S. E. extremity of Kalamazoo co., Michigan. Population, 128.

WAKULLA, a small river of Florida, flowing into an arm of Appalachee bay.

WAKULLA, a county of Florida, bordering on Appalachee bay, contains 576 square miles. The Ocklockonnee river forms its W. boundary, and it is drained by the Wakulla and St. Mark's rivers, branches of the Appalachee. The surface is somewhat uneven, and partly covered with pine timber. Indian corn, sugar, and cotton are cultivated. In 1850 this county produced 40,216 bushels of corn, and 14,126 of sweet potatoes. There were 2 turpentine distilleries, 1 newspaper office, 20 pupils attending a public school, and 22 attending another school. The county is traversed by a railroad connecting Tallahassee with St. Mark's, the county seat. Population, 1055; of whom 1165 were free, and 790, slaves.

WALBRIDGEVILLE, a small village of Bennington township, Bennington county, Vermont, about 4 miles N. W. of Bennington Centre, on the Walloomscoik river. Besides other manufactories it has 2 or 3 extensive paper mills.

WALCOTT, a post-office of Greene co., Ark.

WALDEBOROUGH, a post-office of Livingston parish, Louisiana.

WALDEN, a post-township in Caledonia co., Vermont, 22 miles N. N. E. from Montpelier. Population, 910.

WALDEN, a post-village of Orange co., New York, on Wallkill river, about 90 miles S. by W. from Albany. It contains several mills and stores.

WALDEN, a township in Stephenson co., Illinois. Population, 1160.

WALDEN'S CREEK, a post-office of Sevier co., Tennessee.

WALDENSVILLE, a post-office of Schoharie co., New York.

WALDO, a county in the S. part of Maine, has an area of about 812 square miles. The navigable river Penobscot, and the bay of this name, form the greater part of its eastern boundary, affording a great number of excellent harbors, and invaluable advantages for navigation and for fisheries. The surface is generally undulating, and the soil moderately fertile. Indian corn, oats, potatoes, and grass are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 130,899 bushels of corn; 246,738 of oats; 232,340 of potatoes; 69,552 tons of hay, and 926,791 pounds of butter. There were 47 cod and mackerel fisheries, 2 woollen factories, 3 foundries, 18 grist mills, 12 lime-kilns, 16 ship-yards, 18 stove and spoke manufactories, 4 wool-carding mills, 17 tanneries, and 67 saw and planing mills. It contained 61 churches, 2 newspaper offices; 17,934 pupils attending public schools, and 214 attending academies or other schools. Capital, Belfast. Population, 47,230.

WALDO, a post-township in Waldo co., Me., 35 miles E. by N. from Augusta. Pop., 812.

WALDO, a small post-village of Delaware co., Ohio, on the Olentangy river, 36 miles N. from Columbus.

WALDO, a post-village in a township of the same name, in Marion co., Ohio, 36 miles N. by W. from Columbus. Population, about 300; of the township, 773.

WALDO, a small post-village of Wright co., Missouri.

WALDEBOROUGH, a post-town and port of entry of Lincoln county, Maine, at the entrance of Muscongus river into Muscongus bay, about 55 miles N. E. by E. from Portland. The shipping of this district, (which comprises several ports,) June 30, 1852, according to the custom-house returns, exceeded that of any other in the state, the registered tonnage being 46,481 $\frac{1}{3}$ tons, and the enrolled and licensed, 66,226 $\frac{6}{5}$ tons; total, 112,707 $\frac{2}{3}$ tons. Of the enrolled and licensed tonnage, 61,473 $\frac{5}{8}$ tons were employed in the coast trade, 1785 $\frac{7}{8}$ tons in the cod fishery, and 210 $\frac{1}{5}$ tons in steam navigation. The shipbuilding of the district, both in regard to the number of vessels admeasured, and their aggregate burthen, according to the same report, exceeded that of any other in the United States, New York alone excepted. This department comprised 58 vessels, viz. 31 ships, 6 brigs, 20 schooners, and 1 sloop, with an aggregate burthen of 27,793 $\frac{3}{4}$ tons. The town contains numerous stores, several churches, and a bank. Population of the township in 1830, 3115; in 1840, 3661, and in 1850, 4199.

WALDRON, a post-office of Scott co., Ark.

WALDWIC, a township forming the S. E. extremity of Iowa co., Wisconsin.

WALES, a post-township in Kennebec co., Me., 17 miles S. W. from Augusta. Pop., 612.

WALES, a post-village in Hampden co., Massachusetts, 65 miles W. S. W. from Boston, contains 2 or 3 churches and several factories. Population of the township, 711.

WALES, a post-township of Erie co., New York, about 22 miles E. S. E. from Buffalo. Population, 2124.

WALES, a post-township in St. Clair co., Michigan. Population, 189.

WALES, a small post-village of Ogle co., Ill.

WALES CENTRE, a post-office of Erie co., New York.

WALESKA, a post-office of Floyd co., Ga.

WALESVILLE, a manufacturing post-village of Oneida co., New York.

WALHONDING river, of Ohio, also called the MOHICAN, and WHITE WOMAN river, is formed by several forks, which unite near Londonville. It then flows south-easterly, and joins the Tuscarawas at Coshocton to form the Muskingum.

WALHONDING, a post-office of Coshocton co., Ohio.

WALKER, a county in the N. W. part of Georgia, bordering on Tennessee and Alabama, has an area of 696 square miles. It is drained by the sources of the Chickamauga river, an affluent of the Tennessee, and by the Chattooga river, an affluent of the Coosa; also by Peavine, Rocky, and other creeks. The surface is traversed by several mountain ridges, abounding in magnificent scenery. The most considerable of these are called Taylor's Ridge, Pigeon, White-oak, and Look-out mountains. The soil of the valleys is fertile. Indian corn, wheat, rye, oats, and potatoes are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 371,760 bushels of corn; 51,969 of oats, and 40,501 of sweet potatoes. It contained 1 iron furnace, 21 churches, and 984 pupils attending public schools. It abounds in mineral springs and valuable minerals, including stone coal, fine marble, limestone, gypsum, and lead. The Red Sulphur Springs and Gordon's Springs are watering-places of some celebrity. The county is intersected by the Western and Atlantic railroad. It was named in honor of Freeman Walker, United States senator from Georgia. Capital, Lafayette. Population, 13,109, of whom 11,445 were free, and 1664, slaves.

WALKER, a county in the N. W. part of Alabama, has an area estimated at 800 square miles. It is traversed by the Mulberry fork of Black Warrior river. The surface is mountainous, presenting many wild and picturesque gorges: the highlands afford excellent pasturage, and are separated by beautiful and fertile valleys. In 1850 the county produced 592 bales of cotton; 202,476 bushels of corn, and 27,806 of sweet potatoes. There were 4 collieries, 5 grist and saw mills, 1 pottery, and 1 tannery. It contained 19 churches, and 45 pupils attending public schools. A large part of the county is covered with forests of pine, oak, and other timber. A natural bridge has been found in this county, which is said to rival that of Rockbridge, Virginia. Capital, Jasper. Population, 5124; of whom 4858 were free, and 266, slaves.

WALKER, a county in the E. central part of Texas, contains about 950 square miles. The Trinity river bounds it on the N., and the San Jacinto rises within its limits. The surface is an alluvial plain. Much of the soil is very fertile. Cotton and Indian corn are the staples. In 1850 it produced 873 bales of cotton; 102,475 bushels of corn, and 6 hogsheads of sugar. It contained several churches, 2 newspaper offices; 161 pupils attending public schools, and 91 attending academies or other schools. The Trinity river is navigable when the water is high, and the produce of the county is exported by steamboats. Named in honor of Robert J. Walker, secretary of the treasury under President Polk. Capital, Huntsville. Population, 3964; of whom 2663 were free, and 1301, slaves.

WALKER, a post-township of Centre co., Pennsylvania, about 10 miles E. from Bellefonte. Population, 1221.

WALKER, a township of Huntingdon co., Pennsylvania, on the right bank of the Juniata river, opposite Huntingdon. Population, 1108.

WALKER, a township of Juniata co., Pennsylvania, on the left bank of the Juniata river, intersected by the Pennsylvania Central railroad, and by the Pennsylvania canal.

WALKER, a new township of McKean co., Pennsylvania, 13 miles S. E. from Smethport.

WALKER, a post-office of Wakulla co., Fla.

WALKER, a township in the W. part of Kent co., Michigan, intersected by Grand river. Population, 823.

WALKER, a township in Rush co., Indiana. Population, 1030.

WALKER'S, a post-office of Colleton district, South Carolina.

WALKER'S, a post-office of Crittenden co., Ky.

WALKER'S BRANCH, a small village of Lincoln co., Georgia.

WALKER'S CHURCH, a post-office of Appomattox co., Virginia.

WALKER'S CREEK, in the S. W. part of Virginia, rises in Wythe co., flows north-eastward, and enters New river in Giles county.

WALKER'S FORD, a small village of Randolph co., Georgia.

WALKER'S GROVE, a post-office of Fulton co., Illinois.

WALKER'S IRONWORKS, a small village of Wayne co., Tennessee.

WALKER'S LAKE, in the south-western part of Utah Territory, in lat. about 38° 45' N., lon. 118° 20' W. It receives the waters of Walker's river, but has no outlet. Length, above 30 miles; greatest breadth, about 10 miles.

WALKER'S MILLS, a post-office of Alleghany co., Pennsylvania.

WALKER'S MOUNTAIN, Virginia.

WALKER'S NECK, a post-office of Brown co., Illinois, about 75 miles W. by S. from Springfield.

WALKER'S RIVER rises in Calaveras co., California, and flows first north-easterly, passing into Utah Territory, then taking a S. E. course, it falls into Walker's lake.

WALKERSVILLE, a thriving post-village of Centre co., Pennsylvania, in Half-moon Valley, 100 miles N. W. from Harrisburg, contains 4 stores.

WALKERSVILLE, a post-village in Frederick co., Maryland, 81 miles N. W. from Annapolis.

WALKERSVILLE, a post-village of Union co., North Carolina, 194 miles S. W. from Raleigh.

WALKERTON, a post-office of King and Queen co., Virginia, on the Mattaponi river, 30 miles N. E. from Richmond.

WALKERTOWN, a small village of Chester co., Pa., on the Philadelphia and Columbia railroad, 29 miles W. from Philadelphia.

WALKERTOWN, a post-village of Forsyth co., North Carolina.

WALKERVILLE, a post-office of Lycoming co., Pennsylvania.

WALLABOUT BAY, King's co., Long Island, New York, a semicircular bay setting up from the East river, on the E. side of Brooklyn. See BROOKLYN, p. 146.

WALLACE, a post-office of Chester co., Pa.

WALLACE, a post-office of Harrison co., Va.

WALLACE, a post-village in Jones co., Georgia, 20 miles S. W. from Milledgeville.

WALLACE, a township in Independence co., Arkansas. Population, 460.

WALLACE, a post-village in Fountain co., Indiana.

WALLACE, a post-office of Iowa co., Wis.

WALLACE CREEK, a post-office of Independence co., Arkansas.

WALLACE'S CROSS ROADS, a post-office of Anderson co., Tennessee.

WALLACEVILLE, a post-office of Venango co., Pennsylvania.

WALLACEVILLE, a small village of Washington co., Pennsylvania.

WALDEN'S RIDGE, a post-office of Marion co., Tennessee.

WALLAWALLA river rises in the N. part of Oregon, and flowing in a W. N. W. direction, falls into the Columbia at Fort Wallawalla, in Washington Territory. The emigrants' route to Oregon City follows this river for nearly its whole course.

WALLED LAKE, a post-office of Oakland co., Michigan.

WALLENPAUPACK CREEK, in the N. E. part of Pennsylvania, enters the Lackawaxen a few miles below Honesdale.

WALLER, a small post-village of Ross co., Ohio, 6 miles from Chillicothe.

WALLINGFORD, a post-township in Rutland co., Vermont, intersected by the Western Vermont railroad, 62 miles S. S. W. from Montpelier. Population, 1688.

WALLINGFORD, a post-village of New Haven county, Connecticut, on the Hartford and New Haven railroad, 11 miles N. by E. from New Haven. It has a beautiful situation on elevated ground, with broad, straight streets, finely shaded. It contains 4 churches, several stores, and a flourishing school. Manufactures have recently been introduced, and are now in a very thriving condition. Population of the township, 2595.

WALLINGFORD, a post-village of Will co., Illinois, about 160 miles N. E. from Springfield.

WALLING'S FERRY, a post-office of Rusk co., Texas.

WALKKILL river rises in the northern part of New Jersey, flows in a N. N. E. course, receiving the Shawangunk and Rondout rivers, and falls into the Hudson, about 20 miles N. of Poughkeepsie.

WALKKILL, a township in the N. W. part of Orange co., New York, intersected by the New York and Erie railroad. Pop., 4942.

WALLONIA, a post-village of Trigg co., Kentucky, on Muddy creek, 8 miles N. from Cadiz.

WALLOOMSCOIK RIVER rises in Bennington co., Vermont, and falls into the Hoosack river, in New York.

WALLOOSTOOK RIVER, Maine, is formed by two small branches, called the North-west and the South-west branches, in Somerset county, and flowing in a general north-easterly course, unites with the St. François to form the St. John's river.

WALL'S STORE, a post-office of Amite co. Miss.

WALLSVILLE, a post-office of Luzerne co., Pa.

WALLUM POND, a small village in Burrillville township, Providence co., Rhode Island, about 25 miles N. W. of Providence. It contained 1 cotton mill, with 33 looms.

WALNFORD, a post-office of Monmouth co., New Jersey.

WALNUT, a post-office of Juniata co., Pa.

WALNUT, a township in Phillips co., Arkansas. Population, 541.

WALNUT, a township forming the N. E. extremity of Fairfield co., Ohio, intersected by the Ohio canal. Population, 2130.

WALNUT, a township in the S. part of Gallia co., Ohio. Population, 905.

WALNUT, a township in Pickaway co., Ohio. Population, 1840.

WALNUT, a township in Montgomery co., Indiana. Population, 1059.

WALNUT, a post-village in Jefferson co., Iowa, 55 miles S. W. by W. of Iowa City.

WALNUT BEND, a post-office of Phillips co., Arkansas.

WALNUT BOTTOM, a post-office of Cumberland co., Pennsylvania.

WALNUT BOTTOM, a post-office of Henderson co., Kentucky.

WALNUT CAMP, a small post-village of Poinsett co., Arkansas.

WALNUT COVE, a post-village of Stokes co., North Carolina.

WALNUT CREEK, of Georgia, flows southward from Jones co., and enters the Ocmulgee river at Macon.

WALNUT CREEK, of Bastrop co., Texas, enters the Colorado from the right, a few miles below the county seat.

WALNUT CREEK, a post-office of Buncombe co., North Carolina.

WALNUT CREEK, a post-township in the E. part of Holmes co., Ohio. Population, 1077.

WALNUT CREEK, a post-office of Grant co., Indiana.

WALNUT FIELD, a small village of Sullivan co., Tennessee.

WALNUT FLAT, a post-village of Lincoln co., Kentucky, has 1 church, and about 100 inhabitants.

WALNUT FOREST, a post-village of Greene co., Missouri, about 115 miles S. S. W. from Jefferson City.

WALNUT FORK, a post-office of Jones co., Io.

WALNUT GROVE, a post-office of Morris co., New Jersey.

WALNUT GROVE, a post-office of Kanawha co., Virginia, 330 miles W. by N. from Richmond.

WALNUT GROVE, a post-office of Orange co., North Carolina.

WALNUT GROVE, a post-village of Spartanburg district, South Carolina.

WALNUT GROVE, a post-office Walton co., Georgia.

WALNUT GROVE, a post-office of Blount co., Alabama.

WALNUT GROVE, a post-office of Independence co., Arkansas.

WALNUT GROVE, a post-office of Overton co., Tennessee.

WALNUT GROVE, a post-office of Knox co., Illinois, about 45 miles N. W. from Peoria.

WALNUT GROVE, a post-office of Scott co., Iowa.

WALNUT HILL, a post-office of Lee co., Virginia.

WALNUT HILL, a post-office of Franklin co., Georgia, 110 miles N. from Milledgeville.

WALNUT HILL, a post-office of Rapides parish, Louisiana.

WALNUT HILL, a post-office of Panola co., Texas.

WALNUT HILL, a post-office of Lafayette co., Arkansas.

WALNUT HILL, a post-office of Fayette co., Kentucky.

WALNUT HILL, a post-office of Hamilton co., Ohio.

WALNUT HILL, a post-village of Marion co., Illinois, on the road from Salem to Chester, 12 miles from the former, has about 200 inhabitants.

WALNUT HILL, a post-office of Buchanan co., Missouri.

WALNUT LANE, a post-village of Yadkin co., North Carolina.

WALNUT PEAK, a post-office of Tishemingo co., Mississippi.

WALNUT POST, a post-office of Lauderdale co., Tennessee.

WALNUT RIDGE, a post-office of Phillips co., Arkansas.

WALNUT RIDGE, a post-office of Washington co., Indiana.

WALNUT SPRINGS, a post-office of Greene co., Wisconsin.

WALNUT VALLEY, a post-office of Warren co., New Jersey.

WALNUT VALLEY, a post-office of Marion co., Tennessee.

WALNUT VALLEY, a post-office of Madison co., Kentucky.

WALPACK, a township of Sussex co., New Jersey, on the Delaware river, about 70 miles N. by W. from Trenton. It is drained by the Flatkill river. Population, 783.

WALPOLE, a post-township in Cheshire co., New Hampshire, on the E. side of Connecticut river, 44 miles W. S. W. from Concord. The Cheshire railroad runs along the Connecticut, having a station at Walpole village. There are also 2 other villages in this township. Population, 2034.

WALPOLE, a post-township and station in Norfolk co., Massachusetts, watered by Neponset river, 17 miles S. W. by S. from Boston. The Norfolk County railroad passes through Walpole, a village in this township. Population, 1929.

WALPOLE, a post-office of Hancock co., Ind.

WALPOLE EAST, a post-office of Norfolk co., Massachusetts.

WALSER'S MILL, a post-office of Davidson co., North Carolina.

WALSHVILLE, a post-office of Pitt co., N. C.

WALTERBOROUGH, a post-village, capital of Colleton district, South Carolina, 99 miles S. by E. from Columbia. It is situated in a level and fertile district.

WALTHAM, a post-township in Hancock co., Maine, 25 miles S. E. from Bangor. Population, 324.

WALTHAM, a township in Addison co., Vermont, on the E. side of Otter creek, 33 miles W. S. W. from Montpelier. Population, 270.

WALTHAM, a beautiful and flourishing post-village of Middlesex county, Massachusetts, on the Fitchburg railroad, 10 miles W. by N. from Boston. It is built principally on one extended street, upwards of a mile in length, and contains numerous stores, several fine churches, and a bank. Many of the inhabitants do business in Boston. Prospect Hill, nearly 500 feet in height, a short distance from the village, affords an extensive view of the surrounding country with Boston and its harbor seen in the distance. Population of the township in 1830, 1857; in 1840, 2504, and in 1850, 4464.

WALTHAM, a post-office of La Salle co., Ill.

WALTHOURVILLE, a post-village of Liberty co., Georgia, about 44 miles S. W. from Savannah, is the largest place in the county. It has 2 flourishing academies, 2 churches, and 2 stores.

WALTON, a county in the N. central part of Georgia, has an area of 390 square miles. The Appalachian river flows along its N. E. border; it is intersected by the Alcovy, (Ulcofauhachee,) a branch of the Ocmulgee, and also drained by Cornish, Bay, and other creeks. The surface is elevated and uneven; the soil is derived from primary rocks, and is moderately fertile excepting the higher ridges. Cotton, Indian corn, wheat, oats, and sweet potatoes are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 5599 bales of cotton; 426,516 bushels of corn; 92,660 of oats, and 103,178 of sweet potatoes. There were 13 flour mills, 12 saw mills, 3 distilleries, 3 coach manufactories, and 3 tanneries. It contained 32 churches; 680 pupils attending public schools, and 160 attending academies or other schools. The county contains an abundance of granite and iron, and small quantities of gold have been found in it. It is intersected in the southern part by the Georgia railroad. Named in honor of George Walton, who was governor of Georgia in 1780. Capital, Monroe. Population, 10,821, of whom 6912 were free, and 3909, slaves.

WALTON, a county in the N. W. part of Florida, bordering on Alabama and on the Gulf of Mexico, has an area of about 1800 square miles. It is bounded on the E. by the Choctawhatchee river, and intersected by the Yellow-water; the southern border is washed by Choctawhatchee bay, navigable by steamboats. The surface is nearly level, and partly covered with pine; the soil is generally poor. Indian corn, molasses, and potatoes are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 28,920 bushels of corn; 12,375 of sweet potatoes, and 2433 gallons of molasses. There were 45 pupils attending public schools. Capital, Uchee Anna. Population, 1817, of whom 1481 were free, and 336, slaves.

WALTON, a post-village in Walton township, Delaware co., New York, on the Delaware river, about 90 miles W. S. W. from Albany. It contains several churches and mills. Population of the township, 2271.

WALTON, a post-office of Kanawha co., Va.

WALTON, a post-office of Newberry district, South Carolina.

WALTON, a post-village of Boone co., Kentucky, 20 miles S. W. from Covington, contains 2 tobacco factories and about 200 inhabitants.

WALTON, a post-township in the S. W. part of Eaton co., Michigan. Population, 464.

WALTONHAM, a post-village in St. Louis co., Missouri, 12 miles N. W. from St. Louis.

WALTON'S FORD, a post-office of Habersham co., Georgia.

WALT'S HILLS, a post-office of Westmoreland co., Pennsylvania.

WALTZ, a township in Wabash co., Indiana. Population, 1856.

WALWORTH, a county in the S. S. E. part of Wisconsin, bordering on Illinois, has an area of 576 square miles. It is drained by Honey, Sugar, and Geneva creeks, affluents of Pishtaka river, and by Turtle and White-water creeks, affluents of Rock river. Lake Geneva, in the S. part of the county, is 8 miles long, besides which there are 23 smaller lakes. The surface is undulating and diversified with forests, prairies, and "oak openings." There are no steep hills, and but little waste land in the county. The soil is of limestone formation, highly productive, and well watered. Wheat, Indian corn, oats, barley, hay, potatoes, butter, cattle, and swine are the staples. By the census of 1850, Walworth county produced more hay than any other county in the state, and more wheat, corn, and butter than any other excepting Rock county, and more barley than any county in the United States except Waukesha county, Wisconsin. There were raised in that year 655,704 bushels of wheat; 215,242 of corn; 378,059 of oats; 31,599 of barley; 27,193 tons of hay, and 333,012 pounds of butter. It contained 22 churches, 1 newspaper office, and 5140 pupils attending public schools. This county is liberally supplied with water-power. It is intersected by the Milwaukee and Mississippi railroad, by the Racine and Janesville railroad, and has plank-roads leading to Milwaukee and Racine. Capital, Elkhorn. Population, 17,862.

WALWORTH, a post-village in Walworth township, Wayne co., New York, 18 miles E. from Rochester. It contains 2 or 3 churches. Population of the township, 1981.

WALWORTH, a post-township in the S. part of Walworth co., Wisconsin. Pop., 987.

WALWORTH, a post-village in the above township, 53 miles S. E. of Madison.

WANPSSVILLE, a post-village of Madison co., New York, on the Central railroad, 23 miles E. from Syracuse.

WANCONDA, a post-office of Lake co., Ill.

WANEKUNA, a post-office of Winnebago co., Wisconsin.

WANTAGE, a township of Sussex co., New Jersey, bordering on New York, and intersected by the Walkill river, about 52 miles N. W. from Jersey City. Population, 3934.

WAPANCONETTA, a post-village of Duchouquet township, capital of Auglaize co., Ohio, on the Auglaize river, and on the Dayton and Michigan railroad, 95 miles W. N. W. from Columbus. The river is navigable for keel-boats as high as this point. The Society of Friends had a mission here for many years, among the Shawnee Indians. The village contains, besides the county buildings, 2 or 3 churches, and several stores.

WAPANSEE, a township in Grundy co., Illinois. Population, 217.

WAPELLO, a county in the S. S. E. part of Iowa, has an area of 452 square miles. The River des Moines flows diagonally through the middle of the county, in a S. E. direction; it is also drained by Cedar and Avery's creeks. The surface is slightly undulating; the soil is highly productive. Grain of various kinds, grass, and pork are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 589,395 bushels of Indian corn; 53,169 of wheat; 72,405 of oats; 24,388 pounds of wool, and 114,268 of butter. It contained 2 churches, 2 newspaper offices, and 1567 pupils attending public schools. Stonecoal is found along Des Moines river, and limestone underlies a part of the surface. The river affords valuable water-power at the county seat. Organized in 1842-3. Capital, Ottumwa. Population, 8471.

WAPELLO, a post-village, capital of Louisa county, Iowa, on the right bank of the Iowa river, about 12 miles from its mouth, 42 miles S. S. E. from Iowa City, and 5 miles W. from the Mississippi river. The Iowa river is navigable for steamboats during three months in the year, and affords motive-power at this place to a large flouring mill, saw mill, and carding machine. A weekly newspaper is published here. Laid out in 1839. Population in 1853, estimated at 800.

WAPPANOCCA, a township in Crittenden co., Arkansas. Population, 462.

WAPPINGER'S CREEK, of Dutchess co., in the E. S. E. part of New York, falls into the Hudson river, 8 miles below Poughkeepsie.

WAPPINGER'S FALLS, a post-office, Dutchess co., New York.

WAPSIPINICON RIVER, of Iowa. Rising near the N. boundary of the state, it flows south-eastward, and enters the Mississippi about 25 miles above Davenport. Length estimated at 200 miles.

WAPWALOPEN creek, of Luzerne co., Pennsylvania, flows into the Susquehanna.

WAQUOIT, a post-office of Barnstable co., Massachusetts.

WARAJU river, in the southern part of Minnesota Territory, falls into St. Peter's river, W. of Marrah Tankah Lake. Length, about 80 miles.

WARLOW, a small village of St. Clair co., Mo., about 90 miles S. E. from Independence.

WARD, a township in Yell co., Arkansas. Population, 124.

WARD, a township in the E. part of Hocking co., Ohio. Population, 823.

WARD, a township in Randolph co., Indiana. Population, 1399.

WARDBOROUGH, a post-office of Warren co., New York.

WARDENSVILLE, a post-office of Hardy co., Virginia.

WARDSBOROUGH, a post-township in Windham co., Vermont, 93 miles S. by W. from Montpelier, drained by branches of West river. Population, 1125.

WARD'S CROSS ROADS, a post-office of Wilson co., Tennessee.

WARD'S GROVE, a post-village in Jo Daviess co., Illinois, 140 miles N. W. by W. from Chicago.

WARDVILLE, a post-office of Johnson co., Arkansas.

WARE, a county in the S. E. part of Georgia, bordering on Florida, contains about 1600 square miles. It is traversed in the northern part by Santilla river, and also drained by the Little Santilla river and Hurricane creek. The surface is level or flat, and extensively occupied by swamps. The Okefinokee swamp in the S. E. part is 30 miles long and 17 broad. The soil is sandy and light. Cotton, sugar cane, Indian corn, oranges, and figs flourish, and the palmetto is indigenous in this region. In 1850 this county produced 394 bales of cotton; 68,270 bushels of corn, and 44,552 of sweet potatoes. It contained 15 churches, and 95 pupils attending public schools. Capital, Wareborough. Population, 3888; of whom 3600 were free, and 288, slaves.

WARE, a flourishing post-village in Hampshire co., Massachusetts, 64 miles W. by S. from Boston, near Ware river and branches, which affords good water-power. It is delightfully situated in the midst of varied and picturesque scenery, and contains a bank, a newspaper office, and several stores. Population of the township in 1840, 1890; in 1850, 3785.

WAR EAGLE, a post-township in Madison co., Arkansas. Population, 985.

WAREHAM, a post-village in Plymouth co., Massachusetts, on the Cape Cod Branch railroad, 40 miles S. E. by S. from Boston. Contains 1 bank and the Tremont ironworks. Population of the township, 3186.

WAREHOUSE POINT, a thriving manufacturing post-village in East Windsor township, Hartford co., Connecticut, on the E. side of Connecticut river, and on the New Haven, Hartford and Springfield railroad, 14 miles N. by E. from Hartford.

WARE RIVER rises near the centre of Massachusetts, in Worcester co., and falls into the Connecticut river, in Hampden co.

WARESBOROUGH, a post-village, capital of Ware co., Georgia, 163 miles S. E. from Milledgeville, is situated on the Brunswick and Florida railroad, (unfinished,) and contains a court house, tavern, and a store.

WARETOWN, or WAERTOWN, a village of Stafford township, Ocean co., New Jersey, is situated on the shore of Barnegat bay, nearly opposite the inlet of that name, about 12 miles S. by E. from Tom's River. It has 2 churches, 3 stores, and several elegant dwellings. The inhabitants are largely engaged in navigation.

WARIELDBURG, a post-village in Carroll co., Maryland, 55 miles N. W. from Annapolis.

WARFORDSBURG, a post-village of Fulton co., Pa., 85 miles S. W. from Harrisburg.

WAR GAP, a post-office of Hawkins co., Tennessee.

WAR HILL, a post-office of Hall co., Ga.

WARFORK, a post-office of Oregon co., Mo.
 WARMINSTER, a township of Bucks co., Pennsylvania, about 8 miles S. from Doylestown. Population, 1007.

WARMINSTER, a small post-village of Nelson co., Virginia, on the James river, 100 miles W. from Richmond.

WARM SPRINGS, called also BATH COURT HOUSE, a post-village, capital of Bath county, Virginia, 170 miles W. N. W. from Richmond, is situated in a narrow valley, between two mountain ridges. The springs are much frequented during the summer season by invalids and others. The temperature of the water at all seasons is 98°, without the slightest change. The largest spring is 40 feet in diameter. Fine buildings have been erected for the accommodation of visitors. These improvements, together with the salubrity of the air, and the romantic character of the scenery, render this one of the most attractive watering-places in the state. The water contains muriate of lime, sulphate of lime, carbonate of lime, and sulphate of magnesia.

WARM SPRINGS, a post-village of Buncombe co., North Carolina, on the French Broad river, about 290 miles W. from Raleigh, and near the E. base of the Iron mountain. This is a popular and delightful place of resort, and worthy the attention of the tourist. A turnpike extends from the village toward Greenville, South Carolina, passing along the margin of the river, which is enclosed by steep and lofty eminences.

WARM SPRINGS, a post-village of Meriwether co., Georgia, 36 miles N. N. E. from Columbus. The spring at this place is one of the greatest wonders in Georgia. It has a temperature of 90 degrees, and discharges 1400 gallons per minute. Fine bathing houses have been erected here.

WARNER, a post-township in Merrimack co., New Hampshire, 16 miles W. by N. from Concord, intersected by Warner river and the Connecticut and Merrimack River railroad. It contains 5 or 6 stores and a bank. Population of the township, 2038.

WARNER'S LANDING, a post-office of Crawford co., Wisconsin.

WARNERSVILLE, a small village of Columbia co., Pennsylvania.

WARNERVILLE, a post-office of Schoharie co., New York.

WARNERVILLE, a post-office of Meriwether co., Georgia.

WARNERVILLE, a post-office of Livingston co., Michigan.

WARPOLE, a post-office of Wyandott co., O.

WARREN, a county in the E. N. E. part of New York, has an area of about 850 square miles. It is partly bounded on the E. by Lake George, (the southern portion of which extends into it,) intersected by the Hudson river, which forms part of the southern boundary, and also drained by Schróon river. These streams furnish valuable water-power.

The surface is uneven, and in many parts mountainous, and usually covered with a heavy growth of timber. The soil is generally of an inferior quality. Indian corn, potatoes, and grass are the principal productions. In 1850 it yielded 95,410 bushels of corn; 150,176 of potatoes; 22,353 tons of hay; 464,175 pounds of butter, and 52,247 of wool. There were 9 flour and grist mills, 64 saw mills, 2 iron foundries, 1 woollen factory, 11 tanneries, and 9 cooper shops. It contained 30 churches, 3 newspaper offices, 5178 pupils attending public schools, and 384 attending academies or other schools. This county abounds in excellent iron ore; limestone, blacklead, and marl are also found. Organized in 1813, having previously formed part of Washington county, and named in honor of General Joseph Warren, who fell at the battle of Bunker Hill. Capital, Caldwell. Population, 17,199.

WARREN, a county in the N. W. part of New Jersey, has an area of about 550 square miles. It is bounded on the W. by the Delaware, and on the S. E. by the Musconetcong river, and is drained by Paulinskill and Pequest rivers, and Pobatcong creek, affluents of the Delaware. The streams of this county afford valuable water power. The surface is uneven and mountainous, with Scott's mountain and the Jenny Jump mountain in the S. E., and the Blue mountain in the N. W. The soil is various; that of the valley is fertilized by the decomposition of limestone rock, mingling with sand, loam, and clay, washed from the mountains, and is usually highly productive; on the more elevated portions it is generally better adapted to grazing than tillage. Indian corn, wheat, rye, oats, hay, and butter are the staples. In 1850, this county produced 781,025 bushels of corn; 198,760 of wheat; 224,176 of rye; 230,966 of oats; 22,628 tons of hay, and 793,259 pounds of butter. The quantity of wheat was the greatest produced by any county in the state. There were 1 cotton factory, 12 distilleries, 6 woollen factories, 8 foundries, 2 furnaces, 44 flour mills, 28 grist mills, 36 saw mills, 4 plaster mills, 3 linseed-oil manufactories, 3 slate quarries, 7 tanneries, 16 cooper establishments, 1 cordage manufactory, 21 manufactories of coaches, 42 of boots and shoes, and 14 of cabinet-ware. It contained 48 churches, 2 newspaper offices; 4295 pupils attending public schools, and 677 attending academies or other schools. Magnetic iron ore, brown hematite, bog iron ore, zinc, manganese, marble, scapstone, and roofing slate are abundant. The Delaware is navigable for small boats along the W. border. The New Jersey Central railroad and the Morris canal intersect this county. Organized in 1824, having been formed from part of Sussex county. Capital, Belvidere. Population, 22,358.

WARREN, a county in the N. N. W. part of Pennsylvania, bordering on New York, has an area of 800 square miles. It is intersected by the Alleghany river, and drained also by the Conewango, Brokenstraw, Teonesta, and Kenjua creeks. The surface is hilly and in some parts broken and rocky; the soil is generally good in the N. part of the county, and along the large streams. Lumber is the chief article of export; the pine, oak, and chestnut abound in the S. part, and the beech and sugar-maple in the N. Indian corn, oats, potatoes, hay, and butter are the staples; and some maple sugar is also made. In 1850 this county produced 83,398 bushels of corn; 156,480 of oats; 97,237 of potatoes; 20,990 tons of hay, and 335,725 pounds of butter. There were 143 saw mills, 7 flour and grist mills, 3 woollen factories, 2 iron foundries, and 4 tanneries. It contained 18 churches, 3 newspaper offices, 4003 pupils attending public schools, and 40 attending an academy. The creeks afford abundant motive-power. Small boats navigate the Alleghany river. The Sunbury and Erie railroad, and the Alleghany Valley railroad will pass through the county. Organized in 1819. Capital, Warren. Population, 13,671.
1227

WARREN, a county in the N. E. part of Virginia, has an area of about 250 square miles. It is intersected by the Shenandoah river, and also drained by the N. fork of the same. The county occupies part of the great valley bounded on the S. E. by the Blue Ridge. The surface is hilly; the soil mostly good and well watered. Wheat, Indian corn, oats, hay, and live stock are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 145,354 bushels of wheat; 128,875 of corn; 25,906 of oats; 2119 tons of hay, and 64,185 pounds of butter. There were 40 flour, grist, and saw mills, 6 distilleries, and 3 tanneries. It contained 13 churches, and 484 pupils attending academies and other schools. Limestone, copper, iron, and manganese are abundant. It is amply supplied with water-power. The wealth of the county has recently been increased by several public works, viz. the Manassa's Gap railroad, extending to Alexandria; a plank-road from the county seat to Winchester, and two or three turnpikes. Organized in 1836. Capital, Front Royal. Population, 6607; of whom 4859 were free, and 1748, slaves.

WARREN, a county in the N. part of North Carolina, bordering on Virginia: area estimated at 480 square miles. Warren river forms its boundary on the N. W., Roanoke river flows through the N. E. part; it is also drained by Fishing creek. The surface is undulating; the soil fertile. Tobacco is the chief article of export. In 1850 this county produced 349,502 bushels of corn; 34,474 of wheat; 88,474 of oats; 2,430,730 pounds of tobacco, and 50,304 of butter. There were 8 corn and flour mills, 4 saw mills, 2 distilleries, and 3 tanneries. It contained 21 churches, 1 newspaper office, 1486 pupils attending public schools, and 261 attending academies or other schools. It is intersected by the Raleigh and Gaston railroad and the Roanoke valley railroad. The county contains valuable mineral springs. Formed in 1779. Capital, Warrenton. Population, 13,912; of whom 5045 were free, and 8867, slaves.

WARREN, a county in the N. E. central part of Georgia, has an area of 400 square miles. The Ogeechee river forms its S. W. boundary, and it is also drained by Rocky Comfort creek. The surface is uneven; the soil is moderately fertile. Indian corn, sweet potatoes, and cotton are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 428,364 bushels of corn; 123,825 of sweet potatoes, and 9994 bales of cotton. There were 10 grist mills, 10 saw mills, 1 woollen factory, and 2 tanneries. It contained 27 churches, 470 pupils attending public schools, and 121 attending academies and other schools. Granite and soapstone are abundant. The Ogeechee furnishes motive-power for mills. The county is intersected by the Georgia railroad. Capital, Warrenton. Population, 12,425, of whom 6317 were free, and 6103 slaves.

WARREN, a county in the W. part of Mississippi, bordering on Louisiana, has an area of about 725 square miles. It is bounded on the W. by the Mississippi river, on the S. E. by the Big Black, and intersected by the Yazoo river. The surface is generally level and low, except in the vicinity of Vicksburg, where the Walnut Hills rise several hundred feet above the river. The soil is alluvial and very fertile, producing cotton and Indian corn in profusion. In 1850 this county produced 451,875 bushels of corn; 71,374 of sweet potatoes; 23,319 of peas and beans, and 18,513 bales of cotton. It contained 11 churches, 2 newspaper offices, 708 pupils attending public schools, and 65 attending academies or other schools. The county is intersected by the Vicksburg and Brandon railroad. Capital, Vicksburg. Pop., 18,120; of whom 6024 were free, and 12,096, slaves.

WARREN, a county in the S. E. part of Tennessee: area estimated at 550 square miles. Collins river flows through the county into the Caney fork of Cumberland river, and the Caney fork washes its N. E. border. The surface is hilly or mountainous. Indian corn, oats and cattle are the staples. In 1850 the county produced 474,705 bushels of corn; 87,298 of oats; 78,833 pounds of butter, and 16,454 of wool. It contained 10 churches, 780 pupils attending public schools, and 187 attending academies and other schools. A railroad is in progress which will connect the county with the Nashville and Chattanooga railroad. Capital, McMinnville. Pop., 10,179; of whom 8469 were free, and 1710, slaves.

WARREN, a county in the S. S. W. part of Kentucky, contains 560 square miles. It is drained by Big Barren river, an affluent of Green river, which flows along the northern border. The surface is undulating, the soil resting on a substratum of clay and limestone, is well adapted to farming. The staples are corn, wheat, tobacco, and pork. In 1850 this county produced 1,031,545 bushels of corn; 33,473 of wheat, and 1,401,751 pounds of tobacco. It contained 22 churches, 1 newspaper office, 1100 pupils attending public schools, and 140 attending academies or other schools. The river has lately been improved by the construction of dams and locks which render it navigable at all times. The limestone formation of this region presents several extensive caverns; and the county contains numerous monumental mounds. It is traversed by the Louisville and Nashville railroad. Capital, Bowling Green. Population, 15,123; of whom 10,806 were free, and 4317, slaves.

WARREN, a county in the S. W. part of Ohio, has an area of 446 square miles. It is intersected by the Little Miami river, and also drained by Caesar's, Todd's, and Clear creeks. The Great Miami touches the N. W. extremity of the county. The surface is rolling; the soil is of limestone formation, remarkably fertile, and highly cultivated. Indian corn, wheat, oats, hay, butter, cattle, and swine are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 1,886,836 bushels of corn; 251,606 of wheat; 258,208 of oats; 14,201 tons of hay, and 592,746 pounds of butter. It contained 60 churches, 3 newspaper offices, 4117 pupils attending public schools, and 625 attending academies or other schools. The rock which underlies this part of the state is the blue limestone. The streams furnish extensive water-power. The county is intersected by the Cincinnati and Dayton railroad, by the Little Miami railroad, and in part by the Zanesville and Wilmington railroad. Capital, Lebanon. Pop., 25,561.

WARREN, a county in the W. part of Indiana, bordering on Illinois, contains about 364 square miles. The Wabash river forms the S. E. boundary. The surface is mostly undulating, and nearly half of the county is occupied by the Grand Prairie, the soil of which is a sandy loam and highly productive. The river is bordered by a strip of timber about 6 miles wide, and by bluffs which vary from 60 to 200 feet in height. The exports consist of grain, pork, cattle, horses, and mules. In 1850 this county produced 1,024,386 bushels of corn; 21,068 of wheat; 95,442 of oats, and 5900 tons of hay. It contained 8 churches, 1 newspaper office, and 1700 pupils attending public schools. Public improvements: Lake Erie, Wabash and St. Louis railroad, and the Wabash and Erie canal. Organized in 1828. Capital, Williamsport. Population, 7387.

WARREN, a county in the W. part of Illinois, has an area of 540 square miles. It is traversed by Henderson river, and also drained by Ellison's and Swan creeks. The surface is nearly level; the soil highly productive. The county contains extensive prairies and is liberally supplied with timber. Indian corn, wheat, oats, hay, wool, and pork are the staples. In 1850 it produced 1,021,542 bushels of corn; 122,645 of wheat; 174,396 of oats; 51,277 pounds of wool, and 8293 tons of hay. It contained 13 churches, 1 newspaper office, and 409 pupils attending public schools. Stonecoal and limestone are the most valuable minerals of the county. It is intersected by the Military Tract railroad, and by the Peoria and Oquawka railroad. Capital, Monmouth. Pop., 8176.

WARREN, a county in the E. part of Missouri, contains about 400 square miles. The Missouri river forms the boundary on the S. S. W., and the county is drained by Perque, Massies, Smith's, Charette, and Bear creeks. A range of bluffs extends along the river, leaving a fertile bottom, from 1 to 5 miles in width. Indian corn, wheat, oats, tobacco, and butter are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 365,496 bushels of corn; 35,732 of wheat; 52,831 of oats; 431,000 pounds of tobacco, and 65,907 of butter. It contained 20 churches. Limestone and sandstone, suitable for building, are abundant. Capital, Warrenton. Population, 5860; of whom 4925 were free, and 935, slaves.

WARREN, a new county in the S. central part of Iowa, has an area of 432 square miles. It is traversed by South river, an affluent of the Des Moines, and by the Prairie branch of Middle river, and also drained by Squaw, Otter, and other creeks. The surface is divided between prairies and woodlands: the soil is productive. Indian corn, butter, and wool are the staples. In 1850, Warren county produced 23,920 bushels of corn; 633 of wheat, 1242 pounds of wool, and 5530 of butter. There were 115 pupils attending public schools. Stonecoal is said to be abundant. Capital, Indianola. Population, 961.

WARREN, a post-village, and one of the capitals of Lincoln county, Maine, 38 miles S. E. by E. from Augusta. It is a place of considerable manufactures, and is located favorably for navigation. A superior quality of limestone is found in the vicinity in great abundance. Pop. of the township, 2428.

WARREN, a post-township in Grafton co., New Hampshire, 55 miles N. N. W. from Concord, watered by the N. branch of Baker's river, and intersected by the Boston, Concord, and Montreal railroad. Pop., 872.

WARREN, a post-township in Washington co., Vermont, 16 miles S. W. by S. from Montpelier, drained by Mud river. Population, 962.

WARREN, a manufacturing post-village in Worcester co., Massachusetts, on Chicopee river, and on the Western railroad, 73 miles W. by S. from Boston. It contains 2 or 3 churches and several stores. Population of the township, 1776.

WARREN, a post-village in Bristol co., Rhode Island, on the E. side of Narraganset bay, 10 miles S. by E. from Providence, has a good harbor, contains several churches, 2 banks, an academy, and 1 newspaper office. Population of the township, 3103.

WARREN, a pleasant post-village of Litchfield co., Connecticut, 40 miles W. from Hartford, contains a church and a boarding-school for boys. Population, 831.

WARREN, a post-township forming the S. extremity of Herkimer co., New York. Population, 1756.

WARREN, a township of Somerset co., New Jersey, on the right bank of the Passaic river, about 35 miles N. N. E. from Trenton. Population, 2148.

WARREN, a post-township forming the N. E. extremity of Bradford co., Pennsylvania. Population, 1573.

WARREN, a township forming the S. W. extremity of Franklin co., Pa. Pop., 616.

WARREN, a thriving post-borough of Warren county, Pennsylvania, on the right bank of the Alleghany river, at the junction of the Conewango creek, and on the Sunbury and Erie railroad, about 120 miles N. N. E. from Pittsburg. It is handsomely situated on a small plain 40 feet above the level of the river. The streets are wide, straight, and rectangular, and the houses are generally of wood. The streams above named are navigable for boats, and afford extensive water-power. It contains besides the county buildings, an academy, 2 newspaper offices, and numerous mills. The Alleghany Valley railroad, when finished, will connect it with Pittsburg. Population in 1850, 1013.

WARREN, a post-village in Baltimore co., Maryland, 45 miles N. from Annapolis.

WARREN, a post-village of Albemarle co., Virginia, on James river, about 88 miles above Richmond.

WARREN, a small post-village of Fannin co., Texas, on Red river, about 12 miles N. W. from Bonham.

WARREN, a post-township in Bradley co., Arkansas. Population, 679.

WARREN, a post-village, capital of Bradley co., Arkansas, 3 miles W. from Saline river, and about 100 miles S. by E. from Little Rock.

WARREN, a township in the W. part of Belmont co., Ohio, on the Ohio Central railroad. Population, 1917.

WARREN, a township forming the S. E. extremity of Jefferson co., Ohio, intersected by the Wellsville and Wheeling railroad. Population, 1918.

WARREN, a post-township in the S. W. part of Trumbull co., Ohio, situated on the Mahoning river. Population, 2957.

WARREN, a handsome post-village in the above township, capital of Trumbull county, on the Mahoning river, 160 miles N. E. from Columbus, and 60 miles from Cleveland. The Pennsylvania and Ohio canal connects it with Lake Erie and the Ohio river. Iron ore and stonecoal are abundant in the vicinity, and immense quantities of cheese are exported from the county. The village contained in 1851, 6 churches, 1 bank, 3 newspaper offices, 20 stores, 2 foundries, 2 machine shops, 1 oil mill, 1 fulling mill, and 2 flouring mills. Population in 1853, about 3000.

WARREN, a township in Tuscarawas co., Ohio. Population, 1140.

WARREN, a township in the S. part of Washington co., Ohio. Population, 1461.

WARREN, a post-township forming the S. W. extremity of Macomb co., Mich. Pop., 700.

WARREN, a township in Clinton co., Indiana. Population, 779.

WARREN, a thriving post-village of Huntington co., Indiana, on the Salamonie river, 85 miles N. E. from Indianapolis. Population in 1853, 300.

WARREN, a township in Marion co., Indiana. Population, 1610.

WARREN, a township in Putnam co., Indiana. Population, 1084.

WARREN, a township in St. Joseph co., Indiana. Population, 561.

WARREN, a township in Warren co., Indiana. Population, 1553.

WARREN, a thriving post-village of Henderson co., Illinois, about 120 miles N. W. from Springfield. It is the terminus of a plank-road leading to Burlington, Iowa.

WARREN, a post-village in Jo Daviess co., Illinois, 145 miles N. W. by W. from Chicago.

WARREN, a township in Lake co., Illinois. Population, 1007.

WARREN, a post-township in Marion co., Missouri. Population, 1720.

WARREN, a post-village in Marion co., Missouri, 95 miles N. N. E. from Jefferson City.

WARREN, a post-office of Lee co., Iowa.

WARREN, a small post-village of Rock co., Wisconsin.

WARREN, a township in the S. E. part of Waushara co., Wisconsin.

WARRENHAM, a post-office of Bradford co., Pennsylvania.

WARREN RIVER, a small stream, rises in Bristol county, Massachusetts, and falls into Narraganset bay in Rhode Island.

WARRENSBURG, a post-township of Warren co., New York, on the Hudson river. Population, 1874.

WARRENSBURG, a post-village in the above township, on Schroon river, about 65 miles N. from Albany. It contains several churches and mills.

WARRENSBURG, a post-village in Greene co., Tennessee, on Nolichucky river, 235 miles E. by S. from Nashville.

WARRENSBURG, a post-village, capital of Johnson co., Missouri, on the Black river, near the mouth of Post Oak creek, 98 miles W. by N. from Jefferson City. Population in 1850, 241.

WARREN'S RIVER, of North Carolina, is a small stream which forms the boundary between Warren and Granville counties, and enters the Roanoke river from the S. near the N. border of the state.

WARRENSVILLE, a post-office of Lycoming co., Pennsylvania.

WARRENSVILLE, a post-village of Cuyahoga co., Ohio, 154 miles N. N. E. from Columbus.

WARRENSVILLE, a post-village in Du Page co., Illinois, 30 miles W. by S. from Chicago.

WARRENSVILLE, a post-village in Mahaska co., Iowa, on Skunk river, 80 miles W. by S. from Iowa City.

WARREN TAVERN, a post-office of Chester co., Pennsylvania.

WARRENTON, a beautiful town, capital of Fauquier county, Virginia, on the turnpike from Alexandria to Charlottesville, 100 miles N. by W. from Richmond. It is surrounded by a beautiful and productive country, and has an active business. A branch railroad connects the town with the Orange and Alexandria railroad, 10 miles distant. Warrenton contains a handsome court house, 3 or 4 churches, 2 academies, and 2 newspaper offices. Population, about 1500.

WARRENTON, a thriving post-village, capital of Warren county, North Carolina, on the Gaston and Raleigh railroad, 24 miles W. S. W. from Gaston, and 63 miles by railroad N. N. E. from Raleigh. It is situated near the source of Fishing creek, a branch of Tar river. It has, besides the county buildings, 2 or 3 churches, a newspaper office, and several stores. Population in 1850, 1242.

WARRENTON, a post-village in Abbeville district, S. C., 103 miles W. from Columbia.

WARRENTON, a pleasant and flourishing post-village, capital of Warren county, Georgia, on Goulden's creek, 42 miles W. from Augusta, and 3 miles S. from the Georgia railroad, with which it is connected by a branch railroad. The court house is built of brick, and the jail of granite. It contains 2 or 3 churches, 2 academies, and 5 dry-goods stores.

WARRENTON, a post-village, capital of Marshall co., Alabama, a few miles S. from Tennessee river, and 135 miles N. E. from Tuscaloosa. It contains a court house and several stores.

WARRENTON, a post-village of Warren co., Mississippi, on the Mississippi river, 8 miles below Vicksburg. It contains 4 stores. Population, about 250.

WARRENTON, a post-village of Warren co., Kentucky, on Barren river, about 150 miles S. W. from Frankfort. The river has been rendered navigable to this point.

WARRENTON, a post-village of Jefferson co.,

Ohio, on the Ohio river, about 11 miles below Steubenville.

WARRENTON, a small post-village of Gibson co., Indiana, 14 miles S. from Princeton.

WARRENTON, a thriving post-village, capital of Warren county, Missouri, 75 miles E. N. E. from Jefferson City, and 14 miles N. from the Missouri river. It contains a steam flouring mill and saw mill, a manufactory of tobacco, and several stores.

WARRENTON SPRINGS, a post-office of Fauquier co., Virginia.

WARRENTOWN, a village of Armstrong co., Pennsylvania, on the Kiskiminetas river and Pennsylvania canal, 47 miles by water E. N. E. from Pittsburg.

WARRENTOWN, a post-office of Somerset co., New Jersey.

WARRENTOWN, a post-township in the N. E. part of Cuyahoga co., Ohio. The Cleveland and Pittsburg railroad passes through the township. Population, 1410.

WARRICK, a county in the S. W. part of Indiana, bordering on the Ohio river, contains 336 square miles. It is drained by Big Pigeon and Little Pigeon creeks. The surface is mostly undulating, and the soil productive. In the vicinity of the Ohio especially the land is very rich. The chief staples are wheat, corn, oats, grass, and tobacco. In 1850 this county produced 415,061 bushels of corn; 38,479 of wheat; 39,991 of oats, and 2074½ tons of hay. It contained 19 churches, 1 newspaper office, 985 pupils attending public schools, and 40 attending an academy. Coal is abundant, but not much used as yet. The county is traversed by the Wabash and Erie canal. Organized in 1813, and named in honor of Captain Jacob Warrick, who fell at the battle of Tippecanoe. Capital, Booneville. Population, 8811.

WARRINGTON, a post-township of Bucks co., Pennsylvania, about 6 miles S. W. from Doylestown. Population, 761.

WARRINGTON, a township of York co., Pennsylvania, about 14 miles N. W. from York. Population, 1510.

WARRINGTON, a post-office of Escambia co., Florida.

WARRINGTON, a small post-village of Hancock co., Indiana, about 12 miles N. E. from Greenfield.

WARRIOR CREEK, a post-office of Wilkes co., North Carolina.

WARRIOR'S BRIDGE, a small village of Choctaw co., Alabama.

WARRIOR'S LANDING, a small village of Lewis co., Kentucky.

WARRIOR'S MARK, a post-township forming the N. W. extremity of Huntingdon co., Pennsylvania. Population, 1188.

WARRIOR'S MARK, a post-village in the above township, about 105 miles W. N. W. from Harrisburg.

WARRIOR STAND, a post-office of Macon co., Alabama.

WARSAW, a post-village in Warsaw township, and capital of Wyoming county, New York, on Allen's creek, and on the Buffalo and New York City railroad, 48 miles E. by S. from Buffalo. The public buildings are neat and commodious. It contains 4 churches, a bank, 2 hotels, a large Union school house, a woollen factory, a carpet factory, and a flouring mill. Two newspapers are published here. Settled in 1803. Population of the township, 2624.

WARSAW, a township in the S. part of Forest co., Pennsylvania.

WARSAW, a post-township of Jefferson co., Pennsylvania, about 7 miles N. E. from Brookville. Population, 870.

WARSAW, a post-village, capital of Richmond co., Virginia, 70 miles N. E. from Richmond, about 3 miles from the Rappahannock river. It contains several stores and about 30 dwellings.

WARSAW, a post-village of Duplin co., North Carolina, on the railroad from Weldon to Wilmington, 55 miles N. from the latter.

WARSAW, a post-village in Forsyth co., Georgia, near Chattahoochee river, 90 miles N. W. from Milledgeville.

WARSAW, a post-office of Sumter co., Ala.

WARSAW, a post-office of Franklin par., La.

WARSAW, a pleasant post-village, capital of Gallatin co., Kentucky, on the Ohio river, 50 miles below Cincinnati. It has a large flouring mill and several tobacco factories; also 2 or 3 churches, and 1 newspaper office. It was formerly called Fredericksburg. Population, estimated at 1000.

WARSAW, a post-village of Coshocton co., Ohio, on the Walhonding river and canal, 83 miles E. N. E. from Columbus.

WARSAW, a thriving post-village, capital of Kosciusko co., Indiana, on Tippecanoe river, 110 miles N. by E. from Indianapolis. A plank-road extends to Fort Wayne, and it is also in the route of the railroad projected between Fort Wayne and Chicago. Two newspapers are published here. Pop. in 1853, 500.

WARSAW, a flourishing river port of Hancock county, Illinois, is finely situated on the Mississippi river, at the foot of the Lower Rapids, 115 miles W. N. W. from Springfield. The site of the town is high and beautiful, and its position is favorable for trade. The largest steamers ascend the river to the Lower Rapids. Warsaw does a large exporting and importing business, and is rapidly increasing in population. It is the W. terminus of the Lafayette and Warsaw railroad, not yet finished. Plank-roads are being extended into various parts of the country. One newspaper is published here. Population in 1853, about 3000.

WARSAW, a post-village, capital of Benton co., Missouri, on the left or N. bank of Osage river, 80 miles W. S. W. from Jefferson City. It contains a court house, jail, a number of stores, and 2 newspaper offices.

WARSAW PRAIRIE, a post-office of Henderson co., Texas.

WARTHEN'S STORE, a post-office of Washington co., Ga., 134 miles N. W. from Savannah.

WARTRACE DEPÔT, a post-village of Bedford co., Tenn., on the Nashville and Chattanooga railroad, 55 miles S. by E. from Nashville.

WARTSBURG, a small village of Morgan co., Tennessee.

WARWICK, a county in the S. E. part of Virginia, containing about 50 square miles, is situated on a peninsula between Chesapeake bay and the mouth of James river, the latter of which washes its W. border. The surface is slightly diversified; the soil is alluvial. The productions are wheat, Indian corn, and sweet potatoes. In 1850 there were raised 61,340 bushels of corn; 10,252 of wheat, and 9844 of sweet potatoes. It contained 2 churches, and 54 pupils attending public schools. Oysters and firewood (oak and pine) are important articles of export. Capital, Warwick. Population, 1546, of whom 641 were free, and 905, slaves.

WARWICK, a post-township in Franklin co., Massachusetts, 72 miles W. N. W. from Boston. Population, 1021.

WARWICK, a large and populous post-township of Kent county, Rhode Island, bordering on Narraganset bay, and intersected by the Stonington and Providence railroad, 10 miles S. by W. from Providence. It contains several manufacturing villages, 2 banks, and a newspaper office. The flourishing village of Apponaug is situated at the head of an arm of the Narraganset, which sets up nearly 5 miles from the bay, and affords facilities for navigation. About a mile from this village is a huge rock, so nicely balanced upon another, that a boy 14 years of age can set it in motion, producing a noise heard sometimes to the distance of 6 and even 8 miles. From the resemblance which the noise thus produced has to a drum, the rock has been denominated "Drum Rock." Population of the township in 1830, 5529; in 1840, 6726; and in 1850, 7740.

WARWICK, a post-village of Warwick township, Orange co., New York, about 110 miles S. by W. from Albany. It contains 2 or 3 churches, several stores, and about 500 inhabitants. Pop. of the township, 4902.

WARWICK, a township of Bucks co., Pennsylvania, 5 miles S. from Doylestown. Population, 1234.

WARWICK, a township of Chester co., Pennsylvania, about 17 miles N. W. by N. from West Chester. Population, 1391.

WARWICK, a township of Lancaster co., Pennsylvania, on Conestoga creek, about 9 miles N. by E. from Lancaster. Pop., 2252.

WARWICK, a small village in the above township, 20 miles N. from Lancaster.

WARWICK, a small post-village of Cecil co., Maryland, 73 miles N. E. from Annapolis.

WARWICK, a small and handsome village, capital of Warwick co., Virginia, is situated near the mouth of James river, about 80 miles E. N. E. from Richmond.

WARWICK, a post-office of Dooly co., Ga.

WARWICK, a township in the E. central part of Tuscarawas co., Ohio, intersected by the Ohio canal. Population, 1195.

WARWICK NECK, a point of land projecting into Narraganset bay from Kent county, Rhode Island. Near its southern extremity, at the entrance to East Greenwich harbor, is a lighthouse showing a fixed light. Lat. $41^{\circ} 34' 12''$ N., lon. $71^{\circ} 27'$ W.

WAKWICK NECK, a post-office of Kent co., Rhode Island.

WASHA, a lake of Louisiana, about 12 miles S. W. from New Orleans, is connected by several bayous with the Gulf of Mexico. Length, 12 miles.

WASHBOURNE PRAIRIE, a post-office of Barry co., Missouri, about 185 miles S. by E. from Independence.

WASHBURN, a township in Scott co., Arkansas. Population, 377.

WASHBURN, a post-office of Marshall co., Ill.

WASHINGTON, a territory formed by act of Congress in 1853, from the N. part of Oregon Territory, occupies the extreme N. W. portion of the domain of the United States. It is bounded on the N. by the straits of Juan de Fuca (which separate it from Vancouver's island) and British America, E. by the Rocky mountains, S. by Oregon, (the Columbia river forming about half the boundary line,) and W. by the Pacific ocean. It lies (with the exception of a small bend in the Columbia river,) between 46° and 49° N. lat., and between 110° and 125° W. lon.; being about 600 miles in its greatest length, from E. to W., and about 209 in width from N. to S., forming nearly a parallelogram, with an area of perhaps 120,000 square miles, or 76,800,000 acres.

Population.—Of its population we have no separate statistics. There are several tribes of Indians who are friendly, and those on Puget's sound may be said to be civilized. They are in constant intercourse with the whites, farming and raising potatoes, which with the salmon constitute their food.

Counties.—There are 7 counties, viz. Clarke, Island, Jefferson, Lewis, Pacific, Pierce, and Thurston.

Towns.—Olympia, the capital, is situated at the head of Puget's sound. The other more important towns or settlements are Nesqually, Steilacoom, New York, Seattle, Port Townsend, and New Dungeness on Puget's sound, and Admiralty inlet; Pacific City, Cathlamet, Monticello, Fort Vancouver and Cascade City, on the Columbia river; Cowlitz Farms and Wabassport, on or near the Cowlitz river, and Pennscove on Whidby's Island.

Face of the Country and Mountains.—The same general description of the surface as given in Oregon will apply to Washington, except that the Blue mountain range is more broken and scattered N. of the Columbia river. The principal peaks of the Cascade Range in this division are Mount St. Helen's, Mount Adams, Mount Rainier, and Mount Baker. Mount Olympus, the highest peak of the Coast Range, has an elevation of 8197 feet. Most of these peaks are clothed with perpetual snow. Mount St. Helen's and Mount Rainier have been respectively estimated at 13,300 and 12,000 feet elevation.

Minerals.—There has been little opportunity as yet to develop the mineral resources of this new territory. Coal has, however, been discovered on or near Bellingham bay, accompanied by the new red sandstone, which furnishes a fine building material.

Rivers, Bays, Sounds, and Islands.—Washington shares with Oregon the great river of the Pacific slope, the Columbia, which enters the territory from British America and crosses it first in a S. W., and then in a S. direction, till it arrives a little below the 46° N. lat. when it turns westwardly and forms the S. boundary from the point just named to its mouth in the Pacific ocean. This river divides Washington Territory into two parts, having the larger portion on the E. The Okanagan from British America is its principal branch on the N., and Yakima in the southern part of the territory: both of these rivers enter the Columbia from the W. On the E., proceeding in order southwardly, its tributaries are the Flathead or Clarke's, Spokane, Saptin or Lewis, and Wallawalla rivers. The Clarke's and Lewis are large rivers, having their sources in the Rocky mountains; all run in a N. W. direction. The Lewis and Wallawalla have the principal part of their courses in Oregon. The Spokane drains the middle of the E. division; McGillivray's or Flatbow, drains the N. E. part of Washington, and joins the Columbia in British America. The Cowlitz, the principal branch of the Columbia W. of the Cascade Range, has a course of perhaps 100 miles. Chekalis or Chickalees, about 130 miles long, is the only river of importance discharging its waters directly into the Pacific from this territory, except the Columbia. The Straits of Juan de Fuca, between Washington and Vancouver's Island, connect the Pacific ocean with Admiralty inlet, Puget's sound, and Hood's canal, all arms of a great bay extending about 60 or 70 miles in a S. direction from the Gulf of Georgia, and all navigable for the largest ships, which may moor to the very banks, such is the precipitousness of its shores. Gray's harbor, an expansion at the mouth of the Chekalis river, in about 47° N. lat., has capacity for only a small amount of shipping. The Columbia, though navigable for ocean craft to the Cascades, is much obstructed near its mouth by sandbars and shallows, which make the navigation difficult, and have caused the loss of many vessels.

The rest of this, as well as other rivers in Washington, are only navigable by boats and canoes, being much obstructed by rapids and falls. The principal of these are Kettle falls in the Columbia river, just below the mouth of Clarke's river. Shoalwater bay, S. of Gray's harbor, opens into the Pacific by a narrow inlet. Bellingham bay is an arm of the Gulf of Georgia near the N. W. extremity of Washington. A large lake, surrounded by extensive prairies, is reported to have been found some 10 or 20 miles back from the bay. Elliott bay is on the E. side of Admiralty inlet. There are several lakes in Washington, mostly in the eastern portion, near the foot of the Rocky mountains, among which is Flathead lake, one of the sources of Clarke's river, and Lake Kullspelm, an expansion of the same river. The rivers of Washington, particularly W. of the Cascade mountains, having their sources in those snowy summits, are liable to sudden floods, which inundate the lowlands on their shores. The rapids and falls abound in splendid sites for mill seats. Cape Flattery, the entrance of Juan de Fuca straits, and Cape Disappointment, within the entrance of the Columbia river, are the principal capes. There are no large islands on this coast. The most important is Destruction, or Isle of Grief, about 40 miles S. of Cape Flattery. In Admiralty inlet is Whidby's Island, about 40 miles long and covered with fertile prairies, and noted for its deer. It has sufficient timber, but a scarcity of water. North-west of it are the Arroo Islands, so valuable for their fisheries.

Objects of Interest to Tourists.—Washington shares with Oregon the grand scenery on the Columbia, the Cascades, the Dalles, and other interesting points. Here the lofty summits of Mount St. Helen's, Mount Adams, Mount Rainier, and Mount Baker rear their snowy peaks from the Cascade Range, and Mount Olympus from the Coast mountains.

Climate, Soil, and Productions.—The climate is very similar to that of Oregon, with some variations caused by difference of latitude and local peculiarities. The same may be said of the soil. The Cowlitz valley is the most fertile portion of this territory, in which agriculture has been attempted. The Chehalis valley on the W. is said to have 400,000 acres of excellent prairie and heavily timbered land. The country immediately around Puget's sound is represented as sandy and unfertile, but producing large fir and cedar trees. On going, however, some distance back from the sound, you come upon fine prairies and forests, and small lakes filled with fine fish and skirted with timber. Whidby's Island is also very fertile, but deficient in water. There are reported to be rich valleys on the streams flowing into Bellingham bay. The valley of the Duwamish river, which flows into Elliott bay, is very fertile, and is rapidly settling. The lowlands bordering on the streams are very productive, and covered densely with timber. Mr. T. Winthrop, of New York, who left that region in Sept., 1853, speaks of the country between Puget's sound and the Cascade mountains as heavily timbered, chiefly with fir, with some scattered prairies and dry barrens, the latter covered with pebbles of trap rock, and sparsely wooded with oak. Across the mountains, the land is open prairie, well watered, with small and thinly wooded valleys. The country to the N. of this, belonging to the Flatheads, Mr. W. reports as more abundant in timber and well adapted to settlements. A correspondent of the New York Tribune estimates the arable land in Washington Territory W. of the Columbia river, at 22,000 square miles.

Forest Trees.—Washington abounds in fine timber. Here is the same species of gigantic fir-tree which is found in Oregon and California, attaining a height of 300 feet, or near it. The hills and valleys in the E. part of the territory, immediately W. of the Rocky Mountains, are stated to be covered with a heavy growth of the finest timber. The forest-trees around Puget's sound are especially large, and comprise yellow fir, cedar, maple, oak, ash, spruce, hemlock, and alder. A recent correspondent states that there are at least twelve saw mills at work, and eighteen more in course of construction, and that there is lumber enough ready to freight a dozen ships. The cedar tree of this region is represented as different in some respects from either the red or white of New England, though resembling both.

Animals.—The forests abound in game and wild animals; among the latter are the elk, deer, bear, fox, otter, beaver, muskrat, and rabbit; and among birds, swans, geese, brant, gulls, ducks, eagles, grouse, pheasants, partridges, woodcock, hawks, ravens, and robins. Perhaps no region on the globe more abounds in fish than Washington. This is especially true of Puget's sound and the adjoining waters. Cod, mackerel, halibut, herring, and flounders; and of shell-fish the oyster, crab, clam, lobster, and many other species are found. The salmon resort to the Columbia and its tributaries in immense shoals.

Internal Improvements.—The opening of a road from Wallawalla on the Columbia river, to Olympia on Puget's sound, is now agitating the public of Washington. The emigrants, says Mr. Winthrop, partially succeeded last summer (1853) in cutting a road through the pass of the Cascade mountains N. of Mount Rainier. The exploring party under Governor Stevens have recently found, near the sources of Maria's river, a pass suitable for a railroad, estimated to be 2500 feet lower than the South Pass of Fremont. The same party state that they found on the W. side of the Rocky Mountains, beautiful rivers, and valleys of extraordinary fertility, covered with a luxuriant growth of magnificent forest trees.

WASHINGTON, a county forming the S. E. extremity of Maine, has an area of about 2700 square miles. It is separated from New Brunswick on the E. and N. E. by the St. Croix river, and bounded on the S. by the Atlantic. It is drained by the Schoodic and East and West Machias rivers, and contains numerous lakes, the most important of which are Schoodic and Bascankegun lakes. The seacoast of about 50 miles extent abounds in bays and inlets, which afford excellent harbors. The surface is undulating, and the soil fertile, especially in the interior. Potatoes, oats, wool, and grass are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 144,183 bushels of potatoes; 85,710 of oats; 20,942 tons of hay; 35,252 pounds of wool, and 401,508 of butter. There were 12 grist mills, 2 plaster mills, 1 rolling mill, 120 saw and planing, and 19 shingle mills, 28 ship-yards, 2 machine shops, and 8 tanneries. It contained 46 churches, 3 newspaper offices, 12,946 pupils attending public schools, and 286 attending other schools. The Calais and Barring and the Franklin railroads are within the county; the St. Croix is navigable along its border to Calais, 28 miles from the mouth of the river. Named in honor of the immortal Washington. Capital, Machias. Pop., 38,811.

WASHINGTON, a county in the N. central part of Vermont, has an area of about 580 square miles. It is watered chiefly by Onion river and its branches, which furnish abundant water-power. The surface is rough and uneven, and in some parts mountainous. It lies chiefly between the E. and W. ranges of the Green mountains. The soil is generally fertile. Potatoes, oats, maple sugar, and grass are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 446,551 bushels of potatoes; 208,554 of oats; 54,959 tons of hay; 970,363 pounds of butter, and 765,429 of maple sugar. There were 4 woollen factories, 3 foundries, 3 machine shops, 3 flour mills, 1 paper mill, 18 saw mills, 7 starch-works, and 5 tanneries. It contained 42 churches, 6 newspaper offices, 7466 pupils attending public schools, and 281 attending academies or other schools. The railroad connecting Concord and Burlington passes through this county. Organized in 1810 under the name of Jefferson, which in 1814 was exchanged for that which it now bears. Capital, Montpelier. Population, 24,654.

WASHINGTON, a county forming the S. E. extremity of Rhode Island, has an area of about 340 square miles. It is bounded on the E. by Narraganset bay, and S. by the Atlantic ocean, and is drained chiefly by the Pawcatuck river (forming part of its western border) and its branches, which furnish valuable water-power. It has several good harbors, which afford great facilities for navigation and the fisheries. The surface is uneven, and in the W. part hilly. The soil is fertile, and well adapted to grazing. Indian corn, oats, potatoes, and grass are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 142,581 bushels of corn; 56,339 of oats; 154,012 of potatoes; 16,041 tons of hay, and 162,449 pounds of butter. There were 22 cotton, and 24 woollen factories, 5 machine shops, 2 grist and 8 saw mills, 4 shingle factories, 1 brass foundry, 1 ship-yard, 1 manufactory of silverware and jewelry and 5 tanneries. It contained 44 churches, and 3277 pupils attending public schools. The railroad connecting Stonington and Boston traverses the county. Capital, South Kingston. Population, 16,430.

WASHINGTON, a county in the E. part of New York, bordering on Lake Champlain, contains about 800 square miles. It is partly bounded on the W. by the Hudson, and on the N. W. by Lake George. It is drained by the Hoosick, Pawlet, and Poultney rivers, with Batten kill and Wood creek, which all afford valuable water-power. The surface in the N. part, around Lake George, is rough and mountainous; in the southern portions, moderately uneven. The soil in the more level parts is generally fertile; in the N. well adapted to grazing. Wool, Indian corn, oats, potatoes, and butter are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 510,295 bushels of corn; 580,754 of oats; 526,263 of potatoes; 89,752 tons of hay; 457,053 pounds of wool, (the greatest quantity raised in any county of the state except Ontario,) and 1,451,516 pounds of butter. There were 20 flour and grist mills, 51 saw mills, 7 iron foundries, 2 cotton and 10 woollen mills, 2 iron furnaces, 2 paper mills, and 1 planing mill. It contained 84 churches, 7 newspaper offices, 18,793 pupils attending public schools, and 700 attending academies or other schools. Iron ore, slate, marble, water limestone, marl, and some lead and copper, are among its mineral treasures. Lake Champlain is navigable along part of its border. The county is intersected by the Champlain canal, by the Saratoga and Washington railroad, and the Rutland and Washington railroad. Washington county received its present name in 1784, having previously been called Charlotte. Capitals, Salem and Sandy Hill. Pop., 44,750.

WASHINGTON, a county in the W. S. W. part of Pennsylvania, bordering on Virginia, has an area of 850 square miles. The Monongahela forms its E. boundary; Chartier's and Racoon creeks rise in the county and flow into the Ohio river; the S. part is drained also by branches of Wheeling and Tenmile creeks. The surface is elevated and traversed by deep ravines, formed by the water-courses; the uplands are generally undulating. The soil is almost uniformly productive, and is well cultivated. Indian corn, wheat, oats, hay, wool, cattle, and pork are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 801,540 bushels of corn; 558,182 of wheat; 855,943 of oats; 41,269 tons of hay; 933,167 pounds of wool, (the greatest quantity produced by any county of the United States,) and 860,563 pounds of butter. There were 67 flour and grist mills, 19 collieries, 2 glass factories, 19 saw mills, 2 boat-yards, 2 iron foundries, 6 manufactories of farming implements, and 25 tanneries. It contained 101 churches, 4 newspaper offices; 9181 pupils attending public schools, and 284 attending academies or other schools. Bituminous coal is abundant; limestone and sandstone are the principal rocks. The county is liberally supplied with water-power. The Monongahela is navigable by steamboats along the border. It is intersected by the National road, and by the Hempfield railroad, not yet finished. Organized in 1781. Capital, Washington. Population, 44,939.

WASHINGTON, a county in the N. part of Maryland, bordering on Pennsylvania, has an area of about 480 square miles. The Potomac forms its S. W. boundary and separates it from Virginia, and it is intersected by Antietam, Conecocheague, and Licking creeks. The surface is broken by hills of moderate height, the Blue Ridge, or South mountain, extending along the eastern border. The soils are of limestone and slate formation; the former is highly productive. Wheat, Indian corn, rye, oats, hay, and butter are the staples. In 1850 the county produced 809,093 bushels of wheat, (more than any other county in the state,) 368,056 of corn; 102,869 of oats, and 341,798 pounds of butter. It contained 59 flouring mills, 3 woollen factories, 2 iron foundries, 2 iron furnaces, and 1 rolling mill; also 63 churches, 9 newspaper offices; 3435 pupils attending public schools, and 122 attending others schools. Limestone and iron are the most valuable minerals. The river and creeks furnish abundant water-power, which is used in several cotton factories, erected since 1850. The Chesapeake and Ohio canal passes along the border, and the Franklin railroad terminates at Hagerstown, the county seat. Population, 30,848; of whom 28,758 were free, and 2090, slaves.

WASHINGTON, a county, coextensive with the District of Columbia, which see.

WASHINGTON, a county in the S. S. W. part of Virginia, bordering on Tennessee, has an area of 484 square miles. It is intersected by the North, Middle, and South forks of Holston river, dividing it into three fertile valleys, branches of the great valley of Virginia. The Clinch mountain forms the N. W. boundary, and the county is traversed by Walker's mountain. Indian corn, wheat, oats, grass, and maple sugar are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 438,900 bushels of corn; 69,264 of wheat; 249,674 of oats, and 153,044 pounds of butter. There were 25 flour, grist, and saw mills, 5 salt-works, 2 iron furnaces, and 2 tanneries. It contained 33 churches, 1512 pupils attending public schools, and 194 attending academies or other schools. This county is no less remarkable for its valuable minerals than for its fertile soil and excellent pastures. Limestone, gypsum, iron, and stone coal are abundant, and large quantities of salt are procured on the N. E. border. The Virginia and Tennessee railroad, is now in progress through the county. Capital, Abingdon. Population, 14,612; of whom 12,481 were free, and 2131, slaves.

WASHINGTON, a county in the E. part of North Carolina, at the mouth of Roanoke river; area estimated at 400 square miles. Albemarle sound washes its N. border. The surface is level, and much of it is covered by swamps, which produce cypress and red cedar. Indian corn, wheat, and grass are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 218,468 bushels of corn; 15,352 of wheat, and 1103 $\frac{3}{4}$ tons of hay. There were 3 grist mills, 6 saw mills, 5 shingle mills, and 1 ship-yard. It contained 9 churches, 1 newspaper office; 1178 pupils attending public schools, and 139 attending academies or other schools. Formed from Tyrrell in 1799. Capital, Plymouth. Population, 5664; of whom 3449 were free, and 2215, slaves.

WASHINGTON, a county in the E. central part of Georgia, contains about 700 square miles. It is bounded on the S. W. by the Oconee river; the Ogeechee washes its north-eastern border, and it is drained by the Ohoopee river and Buffalo creek. The surface in some parts is hilly, in others level. The soil is calcareous and generally fertile. Cotton, Indian corn, oats, and sweet potatoes are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 7445 bales of cotton; 446,730 of corn; 11,261 of oats, and 112,576 of sweet potatoes. There were 2 coach manufactories, 1 flour mill, and 1 tannery. It contained 31 churches, 1 newspaper office; 450 pupils attending public schools, and 115 attending academies or other schools. Extensive caves occur near the county seat, containing the remains of huge animals, and fossils in endless variety: opal, jasper, agate, and chalcodony have been found near this locality, and the county contains an abundance of limestone and burrstone. It is intersected by the Central railroad. Capital, Saundersville. Population, 11,766; of whom 6028 were free, and 5738, slaves.

WASHINGTON, a county in the W. part of Florida, bordering on the Gulf of Mexico, has an area of 1550 square miles. It is bounded on the E. by the Appalachicola river, on the W. by the Choctawhatchee, and intersected by the Chipola river, and by Holmes' creek. The Bay of St. Andrew's, on the southern coast, forms a good harbor. The surface is somewhat uneven; the soil not very productive. Indian corn, cotton, sugar, and sweet potatoes are cultivated. In 1850 this county produced 54,231 bushels of corn; 107 bales of cotton, and 16,477 bushels of sweet potatoes. There were 2 tanneries, 1 saw mill, and 1 boot and shoe manufactory. It contained 45 pupils attending public schools. Capital, Vernon. Population, 1950; of whom 1446 were free, and 504, slaves.

WASHINGTON, a county in the W. S. W. part of Alabama, bordering on Mississippi, has an area of about 960 square miles. The Tombigbee river forms its entire E. boundary. The surface is uneven. The soil is sandy, and rather poor. Indian corn and cotton are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 988 bales of cotton; 101,483 bushels of corn; 35,339 of sweet potatoes, and 44,300 pounds of rice. There were 120 pupils attending public schools. The Tombigbee is navigated by steamboats on the E. border, and the Mobile and Ohio railroad passes near the W. border. Capital, Old Washington. Population, 2713; of whom 1217 were free, and 1496, slaves.

WASHINGTON, a county in the W. part of Mississippi, bordering on the Mississippi, which separates it from Arkansas, has an area of about 1520 square miles. Sunflower river flows through the county. The surface is a level plain; the soil is alluvial and fertile, but a part of it is subject to inundation. Cotton is the staple. In 1850 this county produced 26,178 bales of cotton; 424,600 bushels of corn, and 22,315 of sweet potatoes. It contained 2 churches. Capital, Greenville. Population, 3389; of whom 553 were free, and 7836, slaves.

WASHINGTON, a parish in the E. part of Louisiana, bordering on Mississippi, contains about 850 square miles. It is bounded on the E. by Pearl river, and intersected by Bogue Chitto. The surface is nearly level, or undulating. The soil is sandy, and produces the pine. Cotton and Indian corn are cultivated along the streams. In 1850 there were raised 693 bales of cotton; 69,790 bushels of corn, and 159,750 pounds of rice. It contained 9 churches, and 500 pupils attending public schools. Capital, Franklinton. Population, 3408; of whom 2371 were free, and 1037, slaves.

WASHINGTON, a county in the S. E. central part of Texas, has an area of about 825 square miles. The Brazos river bounds it on the E. and the Yegua creek on the N. The surface is undulating; the soil is mostly a deep and fertile loam. Cotton, Indian corn, grass, sweet potatoes, and butter are the staples. In 1850 it produced 4008 bales of cotton; 161,743 bushels of corn; 23,999 of sweet potatoes; 101,300 pounds of butter, and 9 hogsheads of sugar. It contained 5 churches, 2 newspaper offices; 115 pupils attending public schools, and 240 attending academies or other schools. The live oak and red cedar are abundant along the Brazos river. Produce is exported by the river in steamboats, which ascend to Washington. This county is one of the oldest and most thickly settled in Texas. The independence of the republic was declared here in 1836. Capital, Brenham. Population, 5973, of whom 3156 were free, and 2817, slaves.

WASHINGTON, a county in the N. W. part of Arkansas, bordering on the territory of the Cherokee nation, contains about 900 square miles. It is drained by the branches or head streams of the White river, and by the Illinois, an affluent of the Arkansas. The surface is diversified by hills and valleys, which produce wheat, Indian corn, pasture, and fruit in abundance. Many cattle and swine are exported. In 1850 there were raised 557,757 bushels of corn; 34,472 of wheat; 136,086 of oats, and 103,496 pounds of butter. The produce of corn, oats, and wheat was greater than of any other county in the state, and that of butter the greatest with the exception of Pope county. There were 3 flour and grist mills, 1 saw mill, 1 cotton-ginning mill, and 5 tanneries. It contained 14 churches, 915 pupils attending public schools, and 116 attending other schools. An active emigration is directed to this county, which is already among the most populous of the state. Capital, Fayetteville. Population, 9849; of whom 8650 were free, and 1199, slaves.

WASHINGTON, a county in the N. E. part of Tennessee, bordering on North Carolina: area, estimated at 500 square miles. It is intersected by the Nolichucky river, and the Watauga river forms its N. E. boundary. The surface is finely diversified by mountains and valleys; the soil of the latter is highly productive, well watered, and much improved. Wheat, Indian corn, oats, and pork are the staples. Iron is exported from the mines of the county, which are very extensive. In 1850 it produced 395,742 bushels of corn; 201,568 of oats; 96,967 of wheat, and 151,030 pounds of butter. It contained 14 churches, 1 newspaper office, 1625 pupils attending public schools, and 250 attending academies and other schools. The streams furnish abundant water-power. It is traversed by the East Tennessee and Virginia railroad, unfinished. Washington county is among the oldest in the state, having been settled before the Revolution. Capital, Jonesborough. Population, 13,861, of whom 12,931 were free, and 930, slaves.

WASHINGTON, a county near the centre of Kentucky, has an area estimated at 550 square miles. Chaplain's fork of Salt river flows through the N. part of the county, and also forms its boundary on the N. W. The surface is undulating and well timbered; the soil is calcareous and fertile. Wheat, Indian corn, hemp, and oats are the staples. The chief exports are hemp, cattle, and pork. In 1850 this county produced 824,925 bushels of corn; 28,653 of wheat, and 117,651 of oats. It contained 22 churches, 1325 pupils attending public schools, and 170 attending academies and other schools. The underlying rock is a fine limestone, valuable for building. Organized in 1792. Capital, Springfield. Population, 12,194, of whom 9149 were free, and 3045, slaves.

WASHINGTON, a county in the S. E. part of Ohio, bordering on Ohio river, which separates it from Virginia, contains about 650 square miles. It is intersected by the Muskingum and Little Muskingum rivers. The surface is finely diversified; the soil is productive. Wheat, Indian corn, oats, and pork are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 79,615 bushels of wheat; 474,464 of corn; 130,433 of oats, and 540,392 pounds of tobacco. It contained 58 churches, 2 newspaper offices, 5258 pupils attending public schools, and 987 attending academies or other schools. Bituminous coal is abundant, and iron ore is found. Several railroads will intersect the county, or terminate in it, viz. the Cincinnati and Marietta, the Hillsborough and Belpre, and the Columbus and Hocking Valley railroad. The streams afford motive-power, which is used extensively in manufactories. This county has the distinction of being the oldest in the state; it was settled in 1786, by natives of New England. Capital, Marietta. Population, 29,540.

WASHINGTON, a county in the S. part of Indiana, contains 540 square miles. It is drained by the Blue river and Lost river, and bounded on the N. by the Muscakituck, and the E. fork of White river. A range of hills, called the "Knobs," extend near the E. border. The other portions of it are undulating, and have a fertile soil. Cavernous limestone and sandstone underlie the surface. The Lost river of this county enters a subterranean channel, and after flowing a considerable distance, returns to the surface. Indian corn, wheat, oats, and grass are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 756,001 bushels of corn; 103,262 of wheat; 215,595 of oats, (the greatest quantity produced by any county in the state,) and 6131 tons of hay. It contained 40 churches, 4 newspaper offices, 2575 pupils attending public schools, and 90 attending academies or other schools. The county is intersected by the New Albany and Salem railroad. Organized in 1813. Capital, Salem. Population, 17,040.

WASHINGTON, a county in the S. part of Illinois, has an area of 525 square miles. The Kaskaskia river washes its N. W. border, and the county is drained by Elk, Beau-coup, and Crooked creeks. The surface is nearly level, and consists partly of prairie, and partly of timber land. The soil in some parts is productive. Indian corn, wheat, oats, cattle, and swine are the staples. In 1850 the county produced 467,690 bushels of corn; 12,080 of wheat; 133,268 of oats, and 159,365 pounds of butter. It contained 11 churches, and 1000 pupils attending public schools. The route of the Central railroad passes through the county. Capital, Nashville. Population, 6953.

WASHINGTON, a county in the E. S. E. part of Missouri, has an area of 1000 square miles. The Maramec river washes its N. W. border. The Big river rises in the county, and forms part of the N. E. boundary; it is also drained by the head streams of the Big Black river, and by Courtois and Indian creeks. The surface is generally hilly and broken, and covered with forests. Indian corn, wheat, oats, hay, and butter are the staples of agriculture. In 1850 the county produced 334,348 bushels of corn; 30,279 of wheat; 79,112 of oats, and 69,639 pounds of butter. It contained 10 churches, and 400 pupils attending public schools. The county is chiefly remarkable for its mineral resources. Iron and lead are the most abundant. The Iron mountain, on the S. E. border, is described as "literally a mountain of magnetic iron ore," rising about 300 feet above the plain, and measuring a mile and a half across the summit. Numerous lead mines have been opened near Potosi. Silver, copper, plumbago, copperas, chalk, and limestone are also found. A railroad is progressing from St. Louis to the Iron mountain. Capital, Potosi. Population, 8811, of whom 7736 were free, and 1075, slaves.

WASHINGTON, a county in the S. E. part of Iowa, has an area of 570 square miles. The Iowa river washes the N. E. border, the Skunk river intersects the S. W. part, and the English river flows through the northern part into the Iowa. The surface is diversified by rolling prairies and groves of timber, which are generally distributed along the large streams; the soil is good, and well watered. Indian corn, wool, and butter are the staples. In 1850 there were raised 277,205 bushels of corn; 30,767 of wheat; 37,654 of oats, and 12,977 pounds of wool. It contained 3 churches, and 962 pupils attending public schools. The streams of this county afford motive-power for mills. A railroad is projected through the county from Keokuk to Dubuque. Capital, Washington. Pop., 4957.

WASHINGTON, a county in the E. S. E. part of Wisconsin, has an area of about 430 square miles. It is intersected by Milwaukee river, and also drained by Ossin and Rubicon rivers, small affluents of Rock river, and by Cedar and Sauk creeks. The surface is undulating or nearly level; the soil is based on limestone, and is very productive. Previous to the settlement, which commenced in 1836, the county was covered with dense forests. Wheat, Indian corn, oats, potatoes, hay, butter, cattle, and swine are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 123,806 bushels of wheat; 102,859 of oats; 34,524 of corn; 10,078 of barley; 123,252 of potatoes; 3261 tons of hay, and 171,822 pounds of butter. It contained 11 churches, 1 newspaper office, and 1748 pupils attending public schools. The limestone which underlies the surface is a good material for building. A mine of iron ore has been opened in the township of Hartford. The county is copiously supplied with water-power. Public Works: Milwaukee and Fond du Lac railroad. In 1850 the population of the county was 19,485, but since that time the limits have been reduced by the formation of Ozaukee county. Capital, West Bend.

WASHINGTON, a county in the E. part of Minnesota, contains about 370 square miles. It is bounded on the S. by the Mississippi river, and on the E. by the St. Croix, which separates it from Wisconsin. The surface is somewhat diversified, and the soil fertile. Lumber, Indian corn, oats, barley, potatoes, and hay are the staples. In 1850 the county produced 11,830 bushels of corn; 23,262 of oats; 1196 of barley; 9340 of potatoes, and 755 tons of hay; the quantities of corn, oats, barley, and potatoes being the greatest produced by any one county in the territory. It contained 1 church. Capital, Stillwater. Population, 1056.

WASHINGTON, the most southern county of Utah Territory, bordering on New Mexico, has an area estimated at above 10,000 square miles. It is intersected by the Rio Colorado, and by the Rio San Juan and others of its tributaries. This county was formed from part of Iron county since 1850, and consequently the census gives us no information respecting it.

WASHINGTON, a county in the N. W. part of Oregon, has an area estimated at above 1000 square miles. It is bounded on the E. by the Columbia and Willamette rivers, and drained by a small affluent of the latter. The soil is generally fertile. Wheat, oats, potatoes, and butter are the staples. In 1850 the county produced 21,431 bushels of wheat; 3932 of oats; 8075 of potatoes, and 26,085 pounds of butter. There were 128 pupils attending academies and other schools. Population, 2651.

WASHINGTON, a post-township in Lincoln co., Maine, 22 miles E. S. E. from Augusta. Population, 1756.

WASHINGTON, a post-township in Sullivan co., New Hampshire, 29 miles W. by S. from Concord, drained by Ashuelot and Contoocook rivers. Population, 1054.

WASHINGTON, a post-township in Orange co., Vermont, 18 miles S. E. by S. from Montpelier. Population, 1348.

WASHINGTON, a post-village in Berkshire co., Massachusetts, on the Western railroad, 138 miles W. by N. from Boston. Population of the township, 953.

WASHINGTON, a manufacturing post-village in Litchfield co., Connecticut, 33 miles W. by S. from Hartford, contains 3 or 4 churches. Population of the township, 1802.

WASHINGTON, a post-township of Dutchess co., New York, about 70 miles S. from Albany. Population, 2805.

WASHINGTON, a township of Bergen co., New Jersey, bordering on New York and on the Passaic river, about 25 miles N. from Jersey City. Population, 1804.

WASHINGTON, a township of Burlington co., New Jersey, on the right side of the Little Egg Harbor river, 45 miles S. by E. from Trenton. Population, 2010.

WASHINGTON, a township of Camden co., New Jersey, about 20 miles S. S. E. from Camden. Population, 2114.

WASHINGTON, a village of Middlesex co., New Jersey, on the left bank of South river, 10 miles S. W. from Perth Amboy, contains 4 stores, and about 50 dwellings. Steamboats ply between this place and New York during the summer.

WASHINGTON, a township of Morris co., New Jersey, 45 miles N. from Trenton. Population, 2502.

WASHINGTON, a post-village of Morris co., New Jersey. See GERMAN VALLEY.

WASHINGTON, a post-village of Warren co., New Jersey, about half a mile N. from the Morris canal, contains 2 churches, several stores, and about 50 dwellings.

WASHINGTON, a township of Berks co., Pennsylvania, about 20 miles E. from Reading. Population, 1154.

WASHINGTON, a township of Butler co., Pennsylvania, about 16 miles N. by E. from Butler. Population, 1003.

WASHINGTON, a township of Cambria co., Pennsylvania, intersected by the Pennsylvania railroad, and by the Alleghany Portage railroad, 13 miles W. from Hollidaysburg. Population, 1691.

WASHINGTON, a township of Clarion co., Pennsylvania, about 9 miles N. by W. from Clarion. Population, 1227.

WASHINGTON, a township of Dauphin co., Pennsylvania, about 21 miles N. by E. from Harrisburg. Population, 839.

WASHINGTON, a township of Erie co., Pennsylvania, about 17 miles S. from Erie.

WASHINGTON, a township forming the N. W. extremity of Fayette co., Pa., on the left side of the Monongahela river. Pop., 1276.

WASHINGTON, a township forming the S. E. extremity of Franklin co., Pennsylvania. Population, 2477.

WASHINGTON, a township of Greene co., Pennsylvania, about 7 miles N. from Waynesburg. Population, 914.

WASHINGTON, a small village of Greene co., Pennsylvania.

WASHINGTON, a township of Indiana co., Pennsylvania, about 8 miles N. W. from Indiana. Population, 1111.

WASHINGTON, a township of Jefferson co., Pennsylvania, intersected by the route of the Sunbury and Erie railroad, about 13 miles E. from Brookville.

WASHINGTON, a post-borough of Lancaster co., Pennsylvania, on the E. bank of the Susquehanna river, about 3 miles below Columbia. It has 2 churches, and several stores. Incorporated in 1827. Population in 1850, 582.

WASHINGTON, a township forming the N. E. extremity of Lehigh co., Pennsylvania, on the left bank of the Lehigh river. Population, 1493.

WASHINGTON, a township of Lycoming co., Pennsylvania, intersected by the route of the Sunbury and Erie railroad. Pop., 2138.

WASHINGTON, a township of Union co., Pennsylvania, about 9 miles S. from New Berlin. Population, 1238.

WASHINGTON, a pleasant and flourishing town, capital of Washington county, Pennsylvania, on the National road, and on the Hempfield railroad, 25 miles S. W. from Pittsburg. The Hempfield railroad (not yet finished) extends from Wheeling to the Central railroad at Greensburg. The town is distinguished for its literary institutions, and the elegance of its public buildings, among which are the court house, a number of well-built churches, a female seminary, a bank, and the edifice of Washington College. The latter is a flourishing institution, founded in 1806. Threenewspapers are published here. Incorporated in 1810. Pop. in 1850, 2662.

WASHINGTON, a township of Westmoreland co., Pennsylvania, about 24 miles E. from Pittsburg. Population, 2076.

WASHINGTON, a township of Wyoming co., Pennsylvania, about 28 miles N. by W. from Wilkesbarre. Population, 1675.

WASHINGTON, a township of York co., Pennsylvania, about 16 miles W. from York. Population, 1339.

WASHINGTON, a city, the political metropolis of the United States, is finely located between the Potomac river, and a tributary called the East branch. The Observatory lies in 38° 53' 32" N. Lat., and 77° 3' W. lon. from Greenwich; it is itself a meridian, and many of our maps reckon their longitude from this city. Its distances from the principal cities of the United States are, on the N. and N. E. from Baltimore, 38 miles; Philadelphia, 136; New York, 226; Albany, 376; Boston, 432, and Portland, 542 miles; on the N. W., and W., from Buffalo, 376; Detroit, 526; Milwaukee, 700; Chicago, 763; San Francisco, about 2000, (in an air line;) St. Louis, 856; Louisville, 590; Cincinnati, 497; and Pittsburg, 223 miles; and on the S. and S. W., from Richmond, 122; Wilmington, (N. C.) 416; Charleston, 544; Mobile, 1033; New Orleans, 1203; and Nashville, 714 miles.

Population.—The resident population of Washington in 1850 was 40,001. But this number is greatly increased during the sessions of Congress, by the accession not only of the members and their families, but of visitors and persons spending the winter or a portion of it here, for the purpose of enjoying the society and gayety of the capital. Though the growth of Washington has not been rapid, it has been steady, and the city has increased within the past few years in a considerably greater ratio than heretofore. There seems no reason to doubt, that as the nation grows in wealth, and the public buildings and collections of art and science accumulate, (as they are rapidly doing,) they will draw after them persons of wealth, leisure, and literary and scientific attainments, who will seek this central point, (agreeable in its latitude for a winter residence,) to spend their wealth, and enjoy the advantages of the best society of the republic congregated from all quarters, and having the additional charm of variety and novelty.

General Aspect.—Though not a seven-hilled city, Washington has, as well as Rome, its Capitoline Hill, commanding views scarcely less striking than that of the Eternal City. It is situated on the left bank of the Potomac river, between two small tributaries, the one on the E., called the East Branch, and the one on the W., called Rock creek. The latter separates it from Georgetown. The general altitude of the city plot is 40 feet above the river, but this is diversified by irregular elevations, which serve to give variety and commanding sites for the public buildings. The plot is slightly amphitheatrical, the President's House on the W. standing on one of the sides, and the Capitol on the other, while the space between verges towards a point near the river. The President's House and the Capitol stand centrally with regard to the whole, though situated at the distance of 1 mile from each other, the former 44 feet above the Potomac, and the latter 72 feet. The summit of the hill on which the Capitol stands is the commencement of a plain, stretching E., while that to the N. of the President's House tends westward. Perhaps, no better commendation can be given to the locality of Washington than that of its having been chosen by him whose name it bears. When the streets shall have been lined with buildings, few cities can ever have presented a grander view than that which will be offered to the spectator from the western steps of the Capitol, looking towards the President's House, with Pennsylvania Avenue stretching before him for more than a mile, with a breadth of 160 feet, the view terminated on the west by the colonnade of the Treasury buildings and the palatial residence of the nation's chief magistrate. On his left, towards the river, (itself more than a mile in width,) is an extensive park, enclosing the Smithsonian Institute, with its picturesque towers, and the lofty column reared to the memory of Washington. On the right he will have beneath him the General Post-Office, the Patent-Office, the City Hall, and doubtless still more splendid public and many sumptuous private dwellings, which may have been erected ere another generation passes away. Nor would Washington lack commercial facilities, but for the still greater advantages possessed by its older sister cities. Its natural advantages in this respect are probably not surpassed by any capital in Europe; but our country so abounds in fine localities for commercial cities, that those of Washington are thrown into the background. Its capabilities as a port may be inferred from the fact that a navy-yard is located here. The plan of the city is unique, and every thing is laid out on a scale that shows an anticipation of a great metropolis; and though these anticipations have not yet been realized, they are entirely within the probabilities of the future. The city plot, which lies on the W. border of the 60 square miles which now constitute the District of Columbia, extends $4\frac{1}{2}$ miles in a N. W. and S. E. direction, and about $2\frac{1}{2}$ in a N. E. and S. W. direction, covering an area of nearly 11 square miles. A very small portion of this, however, is as yet built upon. The whole site is traversed by streets running E. and W. and N. and S., crossing each other at right angles. The streets that run N. and S. are numbered E. and W. from North and South Capitol street, (whose name will indicate its position,) and are called, for example, East and West Second or Third streets: while those running E. and W. are numbered from East Capitol street, and are named alphabetically, N. or S., A, B, or C street, &c. The plot is again subdivided by wide avenues, named from the 15 states existing when the site of the capital was chosen. These avenues run in a S. E. and N. W., or in a S. W. and N. E. direction, often, but not always parallel to each other, and their points of section forming large open spaces. Four of these avenues and North and South and East and West Capitol streets, intersect each other at the Capitol grounds, and 5 avenues and a number of streets at the park around the president's house. It will be readily seen, if this plan should be filled up, that, combined with its undulating grounds, surrounding hills, public buildings, park, monuments, &c., it will give a coup d'œil unequalled for magnificence in modern times. Pennsylvania Avenue, between the Capitol and President's House, is the only one that is densely built upon for any considerable extent. The streets are from 70 to 110 feet in width, and the avenues from 130 to 160 feet.

Public Buildings.—In this respect alone does Washington at present fulfil the ideas entertained of a great metropolis. The Capitol, President's House, Treasury Buildings, Patent-Office, Post-Office, and Smithsonian Institute, are structures that would grace any city. First of these, in architectural merit and in point of interest, is the Capitol, containing the halls of the national legislature, Supreme Court room, &c. This building is situated on an eminence (looking towards the W.) of 72 feet above tide-water, and consists at present of a centre building and two wings, making a total length of 352 feet, and of 121 feet depth at the wings. The central building contains a rotunda 96 feet in diameter, and the same in height, crowned by a magnificent dome 145 feet from the ground. The wings are also surmounted by flat domes. The eastern front, including steps, projects 65 feet, and is graced by a portico of 22 Corinthian columns, 30 feet in height, and forming a colonnade 160 feet in length, presenting one of the most commanding fronts in the United States. The western front projects 83 feet, including the steps, and is embellished with a recessed portico of 10 columns. This front, though not so imposing in itself as the eastern, commands the finest view anywhere to be had in Washington, overlooking all the central and western portion of the city, and all the principal public buildings. Near the western entrance to the Capitol stands a monument, erected by the officers of the navy to the memory of their brother officers who fell in the war with Tripoli. It is of marble, rising out of a pool or basin of water, and is 40 feet high. On the steps of the E. front of the Capitol, among other works of art, is a noble statue of Columbus, supporting a globe in his outstretched arm. The interior of the western projection contains the library of Congress, a considerable portion of which was burned in the winter of 1851-2. Previous to that event it numbered 50,000 volumes. It has been rebuilt fire-proof. On entering the rotunda, the first objects that strike the attention are the paintings which adorn the walls. Of these, at present seven in number, four are by Trumbull, the subjects of which are: 1. The Declaration of Independence. 2. The Surrender of General Burgoyne. 3. The Surrender of Lord Cornwallis. 4. General Washington resigning his commission at Anapolis. The subjects of the remaining pictures are the Embarkation of the Pilgrims from Leyden, by Weir; the Landing of Columbus, by Vanderlyn, and the Baptism of Pocahontas, by Chapman. Surrounding the rotunda are a number of chambers, passages, committee rooms, rooms for the President, members of cabinet, &c. The Senate chamber is on the second floor of the N. wing, of which, however, it occupies less than half the area, and is of a semicircular form, 75 feet long and 45 high. A gallery for spectators, supported by iron or bronze pillars, surrounds the semicircle, and fronting the president's chair, which stands in the middle of the chord of the semicircle. In the rear of the president's chair is a loggia, under a gallery supported by Ionic columns of conglomerate or Potomac marble. In this gallery sit the reporters, in front of the senators, while the spectators' gallery is at their backs. The hall of representatives is on the second floor of the S. wing, and is also semicircular, but much larger than the Senate chamber, being 96 feet long, 60 high, and surrounded by 24 Corinthian columns of Potomac marble, with capitals of Italian marble. The galleries are similar in their arrangement to those of the Senate chamber. Over the speaker's chair is placed a statue of Liberty, supported by an eagle with spread wings. In front of the chair, and immediately above the main entrance is a figure representing History recording the events of the nation. The Capitol is now in process of being greatly enlarged, the corner stone of the new portion having been laid by President Fillmore, July 4th, 1851. The Supreme Court room is under the Senate chamber. The whole cost of the building, as it now stands, (1853,) was \$1,800,000, but the extension will cost several millions more. The original structure was commenced in 1793, and had not been completed, when, by an act of Vandalism, it was burnt in 1814, and was not entirely finished till 1828. The grounds around the Capitol are handsomely laid out, and planted with trees and shrubbery, presenting, during the spring and summer, a scene of exquisite beauty. The extensions will comprehend two wings, 238 by 140 feet, which are to be surrounded on three sides by colonnades, and to communicate on the fourth by corridors 44 feet long, and 50 wide, with the main building. The whole will be 751 feet long, and cover an area of $3\frac{1}{2}$ acres. The grounds around the Capitol embrace from 23 to 30 acres, forming an oblong on three sides, and a semicircle on the W. About the centre of the grounds, on the eastern front, is a colossal statue of Washington, by Greenough. The material of the Capitol is a porous stone, of a light yellow, painted white. On a beautiful lawn of 20 acres, gently sloping towards the Potomac, and elevated 44 feet above it, stands the President's House. The grounds belonging to this residence interrupt Pennsylvania Avenue at a distance of about 1 mile N. W. from the Capitol. The President's Mansion has a front of 170 feet by 86 feet deep, is 2 stories high, and built of freestone, painted white. The N. front has a portico ornamented with 4 Ionic columns facing Pennsylvania Avenue, and 3 at the sides; under this, carriages drive to deposit their visitors. The Potomac front has a circular colonnade of 6 Ionic columns. In the centre of the N. lawn is a statue of Jefferson, and across Pennsylvania Avenue, also on the N. side of the building, in the centre of Lafayette square, is a bronze equestrian statue to General Jackson, placed there in January, 1853. In the same enclosure with the Executive Mansion are the edifices appropriated to the State, Treasury, War, and Navy departments. The State and Treasury buildings are directly E. of the President's House, and those of War and Navy W. of it. The State Department is a plain, brick structure, 160 feet long, 55 wide, and two stories high, in which are employed nineteen clerks, two messengers, and five watchmen. The department contains a large library of books, maps, charts, &c., and in the copyright bureau are deposited from 10,000 to 12,000 volumes of works copyrighted in the United States. Immediately S. of the State Department is the Treasury Department, occupying an imposing edifice of stone, 340 feet long, and 170 wide, and, when completed, will be 457 in length. The east front (on the N. bend of Pennsylvania Avenue, caused by the interruption from the park around the President's House) has a colonnade of Ionic columns, 300 feet long, and, when the north and south wings are added, will number 42 columns. The N. and S. ends of the building will also have projecting porticos. This edifice has about 150 apartments, in which are employed, besides the secretary and his assistant, 3 auditors, 2 treasurers, 1 register, one commissioner of customs, about 300 clerks, and perhaps 30 other employees. The building of the War Department is precisely similar to that of the State, and is the head-quarters of the army officers. In it are employed, besides officers, 92 clerks, and other employees. The Navy Department, in the rear of the War, employs more than 40 clerks, besides messengers, &c. The Indian bureau is also in this building. The Pension-Office is a very large but plain structure, immediately west of the Navy Department. About halfway between the Capitol and President's House, north from Pennsylvania Avenue, fronting E street, is the structure occupied by the General Post-Office, one of the finest edifices in Washington. It is of white marble, 204 feet long, and 102 deep, contains over 80 rooms, and employs, besides the postmaster-general, his 3 assistants, more than 50 clerks, and the sixth auditor, with over 100 clerks. Occupying the square between 8th, 9th, and F and G streets, is the building of the Department of the Interior, or Home Department, generally called (from one of its bureaus) the Patent-Office. This edifice is not yet finished; but, when completed, will not be surpassed by any in Washington for extent or elegance, if we except the Capitol. Here are deposited models of every machine or invention that is patented; here also are at present the cabinets of natural history collected by the exploring expedition, relics of Washington and Franklin, presents from foreign potentates, &c. Here are employed about 150 clerks, and more than 20 subordinates. This building, which is partly of freestone and partly of marble, has a central portico of 8 Doric columns. Two blocks E. of the Patent-Office is the City Hall, a stuccoed building, 200 feet long, on Judiciary Square, devoted to city councils, mayor's office, courts, &c. South from Pennsylvania Avenue, W. of the Capitol, and S. E. from the President's House, on a gently rising ground, in the midst of the new park now being laid out, stands the Smithsonian Institute, one of the noblest institutions and finest structures in Washington. The edifice is 450 feet long by 140 wide, is built of red sandstone, in the Romanesque or Norman style, embellished by 9 towers of from 75 to 150 feet in height, and when viewed from Capitol hill, has an imposing effect. In the building will be provided a lecture room, sufficiently capacious to seat from 1200 to 2000 persons, a museum for objects of natural history 200 feet long, one of the best supplied laboratories in the United States, a gallery for paintings and statuary 120 feet long, and a room capable of containing a library of 100,000 volumes, and actually numbering 21,701, in 1853; of which 4539 were copyright works. This institution was endowed by James Smithson, Esq., an Englishman, who left to the United States \$515,169, (according to the words of the will,) "to found at Washington an establishment for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men." Smithson died in 1829, and in 1846 was commenced the structure which has been built by the interest accumulating up to that time, viz. \$242,129. The fund yields an annual income of more than \$30,000. The will makes no restriction as to the kind of knowledge to be promulgated. Works on ethnology and antiquities have already been published by the institution. As soon as the building is ready to receive it, the cabinets collected by the exploring expedition will be transferred thither. The officers of the institution are the President and Vice-President of the United States, members of the cabinet, chief-justice, commissioners of the Patent-Office, and the Mayor of Washington, besides a board of regents, who elect a chancellor, secretary, and executive committee. The active literary and scientific duties of the institution fall upon the secretary (at present, Professor Henry) and his assistant secretaries, (now Professor Jewett and Professor Baird.) On the proposed new park, about halfway between the President's House and the capitol, has also been commenced a colossal monument to Washington, to be erected by voluntary contributions of the people. The plan contemplates, as a base, a circular temple, 250 feet in diameter and 100 feet high; from the centre of which is to rise a shaft 70 feet square, to the height of 600 feet above the ground, and to be cased in marble. The base is intended to be the Westminster Abbey of the United States, to contain the statues of the Revolutionary worthies, and in the centre the remains of Washington. The temple at the base will be entirely surrounded by a colonnade of 30 pillars in the Doric style, 45 feet high and 12 in diameter, surmounted by an entablature of 20 feet, which is in turn to be surmounted by a balustrade of 15 feet in height. Each state furnishes a block of native stone or other material, (Michigan, copper,) with an inscription, which is inserted in the interior, to be read by all coming ages. A triumphal car, with a statue of Washington, is to stand over the grand entrance. The column has at present (1853) only reached the height of about 150 feet. If completed according to the original plan, this will form the most magnificent monument erected in ancient or modern times. The design, however, has been severely criticised, and the great height of the column, receding so suddenly from a wide base, has been strongly objected to. The National Observatory, one of the institutions most creditable to the government, occupies a commanding site on the banks of the Potomac, S. W. from the President's House. The Observatory is under the direction of Lieutenant Maury, of the navy. Besides the astronomical observations constantly made here, chronometers, for the use of the navy, are thoroughly tested, researches made as to tides, currents, &c., and longitudes determined with greater accuracy by the aid of the electric telegraph. The largest telescope is a 14-foot refractor; smaller telescopes are constantly employed searching the heavens for comets. Precisely at 12 o'clock mean time, each day, a black ball is let fall from the flagstaff of the Observatory, by which the inhabitants of Washington may regulate their time. The Arsenal, on Greenleaf's Point, at the junction of the E. Branch with the Potomac, is one of the principal arsenals of construction in the United States.

About 1½ miles N. E. from the arsenal, and the same distance S. E. of the Capitol, on the East Branch, is the Navy-Yard, which covers about 20 acres, enclosed by a wall. This is one of the most extensive yards in the Union, and employs more than 400 hands in the manufacture of anchors, chain cables, steam engines and boilers, pyrotechnics, in brass and iron foundries, &c. &c. The National Cemetery, or congressional burying-ground, is situated about 1 mile E. of the Capitol, on an elevation commanding fine views of the surrounding country, which is beautified with trees and shrubbery. Here have been deposited, for a short time at least, the remains of some of the most distinguished men in the nation, and here are erected cenotaphs to all members of Congress dying while in office.

The buildings of the Coast Survey do not in themselves deserve any notice, but the operations carried on here under the superintendence of Professor A. D. Bache, a name well known to science, are of the most important nature. Here are transacted the computing, drawing, engraving, electrotyping, printing, instrument-making, &c., connected with the coast surveys, and the construction of standard weights and measures, &c.

Hotels.—In a city thronged as Washington is with visitors and a floating population, hotels and boarding-houses must be numerous, and the inducements are to make them of the first class. The most prominent are Brown's, (which is very capacious, being the largest in Washington, with a front of white marble,) the National, Willard's, Gadsby's, the United States, Potomac, Irving, and Tyler's hotels, all of which are on Pennsylvania Avenue.

Libraries and Educational Institutions.—The National Institute holds its meetings at the Patent-Office, and has for its object the culture of science generally. It has a library of 4000 volumes, which is open to the public, besides a cabinet of medals and coins. Peter Force, Esq., has a private library of 50,000 volumes: a rare, if not the only, instance of so large a private collection of books in our country. Mr. Corcoran, the wealthy banker, has a fine gallery of paintings, which is open to the public on Tuesdays and Fridays. The National Medical College, established in 1823, is a flourishing institution, with a faculty of 7 professors. The Columbia College is located on high ground, just without the city limits, and directly N. of the President's House, commanding a magnificent view of the city, the Potomac, and the surrounding country. This college was incorporated in 1821, and had in 1850 for its faculty, besides the president, 12 professors and tutors, and 100 students on its lists. There were in Washington in 1852, four free schools, supported at an annual expense of $12,000, besides a great number of excellent private academies, boarding, and day schools.

Churches.—There were, in 1852, about 40 churches in Washington, of which 4 were Baptist, 4 Catholic, 5 Episcopalian, one Friends' meeting-house, 2 Lutheran, 7 Methodist, 6 Presbyterian, one Unitarian, and about 6 colored churches. Among the finest of the churches is Trinity; it is of mixed Gothic and Eastern orders, with a front of red sandstone, situated on W. Third street.

Charitable Institutions.—On the same grounds with the City Hall, a capacious edifice is being erected for the hospital, which at present occupies a building on East street. A hospital for the insane has also lately been commenced.

Public Squares and Parks.—We condense the following from Miss Lynch's description of Washington:—The open waste lying between the Capitol, the President's House, and the Potomac, is about to be converted into a national park, upon a plan proposed by the lamented A. J. Downing. The area contains about 150 acres, and the principal entrance is to be through a superb marble gateway, in the form of a triumphal arch, which is to stand at the western side of Pennsylvania Avenue. From this gateway a series of carriage drives, forty feet wide, crossing the canal by a suspension bridge, will lead in gracefully curved lines beneath lofty shade-trees, forming a carriage drive between 5 or 6 miles in circuit. The grounds will include the Smithsonian Institute and Washington's monument. The parks round the President's House and the Capitol have already been mentioned. Lafayette park, on the N. side of Pennsylvania Avenue, in front of the executive mansion, is laid out and planted with shrubbery, &c., and contains, as we have elsewhere stated, a bronze equestrian statue of President Jackson. To avoid the unpleasant angularity, caused by the peculiar intersection of the streets, open spaces are to be left at these points, which are to be laid out and planted with trees, &c. There are extensive grounds around the city hall, called Judiciary Square.

Railroads, &c.—Washington communicates with the S. and S. W. by steamboat to Aquia creek, 55 miles below Washington, and thence by the Fredericksburg Richmond and Potomac railroads. A branch road running north to Baltimore connects with the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

Objects of Interest in the Vicinity.—Fifteen miles south of Washington, on the Potomac, is Mount Vernon, once the home, and now the tomb of Washington. Thirteen miles above Georgetown are the Great Falls of the Potomac, thought by many to equal, in wildness and picturesque interest, any in the country. The Little Falls, which have in all a descent of 15 feet are only 3 miles above Georgetown. The latter was a favourite fishing resort of Daniel Webster. Measures are being taken to supply Washington with water from one of these falls.

Washington contains 10 banks and about 14 newspaper offices, 5 or 6 of which issue dailies. For manufactures and commerce, see DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

History.—The site for the capital was selected at the original suggestion of President Washington, and by an act of Congress, July 16, 1790, the District of Columbia was formed. The corner-stone of the Capitol was laid by General Washington himself, September 18th, 1793, and in 1800 the seat of government was removed hither from Philadelphia. The census of 1800 gave the population at 3210, which had increased to 8208, in 1810. In 1814, the city was taken by the British, when the Capitol, President's House, and the library of Congress were either wholly destroyed or greatly injured by fire, and other public works defaced. In 1820 the population was 12,247; 18,827 in 1830, and 23,364 in 1840. In 1846 was passed the act establishing the Smithsonian Institute; in 1850 the slave trade was abolished in the District of Columbia; and in 1851 the foundations were laid for the extension of the Capitol.

WASHINGTON, a post-village, capital of Rappahannock county, Virginia, 120 miles N. W. from Richmond. It is beautifully situated at the S. E. foot of the Blue ridge, and on one of the branches of the Rappahannock river. It contains 1 or 2 churches, 1 academy, and several stores. Population, about 400.

WASHINGTON, a post-village, capital of Beaufort county, North Carolina, on the left bank of Tar river, 127 miles E. by S. from Raleigh, and about 40 miles from Pamlico sound. Vessels drawing 8 feet of water ascend to this village, and smaller boats to Tarborough. It has 2 banks, capital 300,000, several stores, and a newspaper office. Population estimated at 1400.

WASHINGTON, a handsome post-village, capital of Wilkes county, Georgia, is situated on the dividing ridge between the Broad and Little rivers, 53 miles W. N. W. from Augusta. It has an active business, and contains a court house, 4 churches, 1 bank, and a newspaper office. A branch railroad about 20 miles long extends southward to the Georgia railroad.

WASHINGTON, a post-village in Autauga co., Alabama, on Alabama river, 12 miles W. by N. from Montgomery.

WASHINGTON, a post-village of Adams co., Mississippi, about 80 miles W. S. W. from Jackson. It contains 2 or 3 churches, and several seminaries.

WASHINGTON, a thriving post-village of St. Landry parish, Louisiana, on the Courtableau bayou, at the head of steamboat navigation, and on the New Orleans Opelousas and Western railroad, 7 miles N. from Opelousas.

WASHINGTON, a flourishing post-village of Washington county, Texas, on the right bank of the Brazos river, at the mouth of the Navasoto, 65 miles N. W. from Houston, and 120 miles E. from Austin city. The Independence of Texas was proclaimed in 1836, at this place, which was the capital of the republic at the time of annexation to the United States, and for several years previous. It is favorably situated for trade, being at the head of steamboat navigation on the Brazos. The river flows through a fertile planting region, in which cotton, maize, and rice are produced, and the live oak and red cedar are abundant. It contained in 1851, 1 academy, 2 female schools, 20 stores, and 3 newspaper offices.

WASHINGTON, a township in Conway co., Arkansas. Population, 325.

WASHINGTON, a post-village, capital of Hempstead county, Arkansas, 125 miles S. W. from Little Rock. It has a court house, a jail, a United States land-office, a male and female seminary, and a newspaper office. Population in 1850, 469.

WASHINGTON, a township in Independence co., Arkansas. Population, 465.

WASHINGTON, a township in Lawrence co., Arkansas. Population, 519.

WASHINGTON, a township in Sevier co., Arkansas. Population, 465.

WASHINGTON, a township in Washitaw co., Arkansas. Population, 469.

WASHINGTON, a post-village, capital of Rhea co., Tennessee, on the right bank of the Tennessee river, 134 miles E. S. E. from Nashville.

WASHINGTON, a post-village, capital of Mason county, Kentucky, on the railroad from Maysville to Lexington, 3½ miles S. W. from the former. It is beautifully situated in a rich and well-improved country. It contains 3 churches. Population, about 700.

WASHINGTON, a township in the S. W. part of Auglaize co., Ohio. Population, 688.

WASHINGTON, a township in the S. E. part of Belmont co., Ohio, has 1 bank. Population, 1532.

WASHINGTON, a township in the N. E. part of Brown co., Ohio. Population, 987.

WASHINGTON, a township in the E. central part of Carroll co., Ohio, intersected by the Carrollton Branch railroad. Pop., 1020.

WASHINGTON, a township in the S. W. part of Clermont co., Ohio, bounded on the S. by the Ohio river. Population, 2540.

WASHINGTON, a township in the S. part of Clinton co., Ohio. Population, 1216.

WASHINGTON, a township in the S. W. part of Columbiana co., Ohio, intersected by the Cleveland and Pittsburg railroad. Population, 1201.

WASHINGTON, a township in the S. W. part of Coshocton co., Ohio. Population, 998.

WASHINGTON, a township in the W. part of Darke co., Ohio. Population, 1250.

WASHINGTON, a township in the N. part of Defiance co., Ohio. Population, 428.

WASHINGTON, a post-village, capital of Fayette county, Ohio, on Paint creek, and on the Zanesville and Wilmington railroad, 37 miles S. W. from Columbus. It has several churches, 1 academy, a newspaper office, 2 woolen factories, and several mills. Laid out in 1811. Population, 569.

WASHINGTON, a township forming the N. W. extremity of Franklin co., Ohio. Scioto river bounds it on the E. Population, 1270.

WASHINGTON, a post-township forming the N. E. extremity of Guernsey co., Ohio. Population, 2216.

WASHINGTON, a post-village of Guernsey county, Ohio, on the National road, 32 miles E. by N. from Zanesville. It is situated in a fertile country, and has an active business. It contains 1 Catholic and 4 Protestant churches, 1 bank, and a woolen factory. Population, estimated at 1200.

WASHINGTON, a township forming the N. E. extremity of Hancock co., Ohio. Pop., 1222.

WASHINGTON, a township in the N. W. part of Hardin co., Ohio. Population, 391.

WASHINGTON, a township in the S. W. part of Harrison co., Ohio, intersected by one of the head branches of Tuscarawas river. Population, 1255.

WASHINGTON, a township in Henry co., Ohio. Population, 532.

WASHINGTON, a township in the S. part of Hocking co., Ohio. Population, 1640.

WASHINGTON, a township forming the N. W. extremity of Holmes co., Ohio, intersected by Muddy fork of Walhonding river. Population, 1468.

WASHINGTON, a township in the N. part of Jackson co., Ohio. Population, 756.

WASHINGTON, a township in Lawrence co., Ohio. Population, 646.

WASHINGTON, a township in the N. part of Licking county, Ohio, intersected by the North fork of Licking river, and the Columbus and Lake Erie railroad. Population, 1783.

WASHINGTON, a township in Logan co., Ohio. Population, 668.

WASHINGTON, a township in Lucas co., Ohio. Population, 1161.

WASHINGTON, a township in the W. part of Mercer co., Ohio, partly intersected by the Wabash river. Population, 456.

WASHINGTON, a township in the N. part of Miami co., Ohio, intersected by the Miami canal. It contains the village of Piqua. Population, 4158.

WASHINGTON, a township in the S. part of Monroe co., Ohio. Population, 865.

WASHINGTON, a township in the S. W. part of Montgomery co., Ohio. Pop., 1825.

WASHINGTON, a township in the N. part of Morrow co., Ohio, intersected by the Cleveland, Columbus, and Cincinnati railroad. Population, 1187.

WASHINGTON, a township in the central part of Muskingum co., Ohio, intersected by Muskingum river. Population, 1380.

WASHINGTON, a township in the central part of Paulding co., Ohio. Population, 155.

WASHINGTON, a township in the E. part of Pickaway co., Ohio. Population, 1099.

WASHINGTON, a township in the N. central part of Preble co., Ohio. Population, 3060.

WASHINGTON, a township forming the S. E. extremity of Richland co., Ohio, intersected by the Clear fork of Walhonding river, and the Columbus and Lake Erie railroad. Population, 2003.

WASHINGTON, a village of Richland co., Ohio.

WASHINGTON, a township in the W. central part of Sandusky co., Ohio, intersected by the Cleveland, Norwalk, and Toledo railroad. Population, 1499.

WASHINGTON, a township in the S. part of Scioto co., Ohio, on the N. side of the Ohio river, and the W. side of the Scioto, intersected by the Ohio canal. Population, 706.

WASHINGTON, a township in Shelby co., Ohio, intersected by the Miami river and the Miami canal. Population, 1261.

WASHINGTON, a township in the E. part of Stark co., Ohio, intersected by the Ohio and Pennsylvania railroad. Population, 2066.

WASHINGTON, a township in the S. part of Tuscarawas co., Ohio. Population, 1091.

WASHINGTON, a township in Union co., Ohio. Population, 333.

WASHINGTON, a township in the E. part of Van Wert co., Ohio, intersected by Little Auglaize river and the Miami canal. Population, 355.

WASHINGTON, a township in the W. part of Wood co., Ohio, on the right side of Maumee river. Population, 504.

WASHINGTON, a post-township in the N. W. part of Macomb co., Michigan. Pop., 1452.

WASHINGTON, a township in Adams co., Indiana. Population, 548.

WASHINGTON, a township in Allen co., Indiana. Population, 1305.

WASHINGTON, a township in Blackford co., Indiana. Population, 470.

WASHINGTON, a township in Brown co., Indiana. Population, 1249.

WASHINGTON, a township in Carroll co., Indiana. Population, 1302.

WASHINGTON, a township in Cass co., Indiana. Population, 799.

WASHINGTON, a township in Clarke co., Indiana. Population, 1101.

WASHINGTON, a township in Clay co., Indiana. Population, 1426.

WASHINGTON, a township in Clinton co., Indiana. Population, 770.

WASHINGTON, a post-township in Daviess co., Indiana. Population, 2578.

WASHINGTON, a post-village in the above township, capital of Daviess co., Indiana, on the Ohio and Mississippi railroad, unfinished. 106 miles S. W. from Indianapolis, and 3 miles E. from the Wabash and Erie canal. It is the principal place of business in the county, and contains 3 or 4 churches, a newspaper office, and a land office. Population in 1853, estimated at 1200.

WASHINGTON, a township in Decatur co., Indiana. Population, 1994.

WASHINGTON, a township in Delaware co., Indiana. Population, 757.

WASHINGTON, a township in Elkhart co., Indiana. Population, 810.

WASHINGTON, a township in Gibson co., Indiana. Population, 754.

WASHINGTON, a township in Grant co., Indiana. Population, 1007.

WASHINGTON, a township in Greene co., Indiana. Population, 420.

WASHINGTON, a township in Hamilton co., Indiana. Population, 1840.

WASHINGTON, a township in Hendricks co., Indiana. Population, 1488.

WASHINGTON, a township in Jackson co., Indiana. Population, 856.

WASHINGTON, a township in Jay co., Indiana. Population, 345.

WASHINGTON, a township in Kosciusko co., Indiana. Population, 733.

WASHINGTON, a township in Marion co., Indiana. Population, 1830.

WASHINGTON, a township in Miami co., Indiana. Population, 966.

WASHINGTON, a township in Monroe co., Indiana. Population, 740.

WASHINGTON, a township in Morgan co., Indiana. Population, 2427.

WASHINGTON, a township in Noble co., Indiana. Population, 645.

WASHINGTON, a township in Owen co., Indiana. Population, 1708.

WASHINGTON, a township in Parke co., Indiana. Population, 1198.

WASHINGTON, a township in Pike co., Ind.

WASHINGTON, a township in Porter co., Indiana. Population, 429.

WASHINGTON, a township in Putnam co., Indiana. Population, 2129.

WASHINGTON, a township in Randolph co., Indiana. Population, 1558.

WASHINGTON, a township in Ripley co., Indiana. Population, 1195.

WASHINGTON, a township in Rush co., Indiana. Population, 1075.

WASHINGTON, a township in Shelby co., Indiana. Population, 1148.

WASHINGTON, a township in Starke co., Indiana. Population, 88.

WASHINGTON, a township in Tippecanoe co., Indiana. Population, 861.

WASHINGTON, a township in Warren co., Indiana. Population, 796.

WASHINGTON, a township in Washington co., Indiana. Population, 2098.

WASHINGTON, a township in Wayne co., Indiana. Population, 1540.

WASHINGTON, a thriving post-village of Wayne co., Indiana, on the railroad from Richmond to Newcastle, about 12 miles N. W. from the former. Population in 1850, 283.

WASHINGTON, a post-village in Tazewell co., Illinois, 71 miles N. from Springfield.

WASHINGTON, a small village of Woodford co., Illinois, about 10 miles E. by N. from Peoria.

WASHINGTON, a township in Buchanan co., Missouri. Population, 4301.

WASHINGTON, a thriving post-village of Franklin co., Missouri, is situated on the Missouri river, 60 miles by the road W. from St. Louis. It is the principal depôt for the produce which is exported from the county.

WASHINGTON, a township in Lawrence co., Missouri. Population, 1641.

WASHINGTON, a township in Osage co., Missouri. Population, 1093.

WASHINGTON, a post-village in Henry co., Iowa, 60 miles S. by W. from Iowa City.

WASHINGTON, a thriving post-village, capital of Washington county, Iowa, is situated on a prairie, about 30 miles S. S. W. from Iowa City, and 7 miles N. from Skunk river. The Dubuque and Keokuk projected railroad passes through the place. It contains a court house, and several stores.

WASHINGTON, a township near the central part of Greene co., Wisconsin. Pop., 317.

WASHINGTON, a town of Yolo co., California, has 4 hotels, 2 stores, and 3 laundries.

WASHINGTON BUTTE, a post-office of Linn co., Oregon.

WASHINGTON COLLEGE, a post-office of Washington co., Tennessee.

WASHINGTON HEIGHTS, a post-office of New York co., New York.

WASHINGTON HOLLOW, a post-village of Dutchess co., New York, 14 miles E. N. E. from Poughkeepsie.

WASHINGTON LAKE, of Yolo county, towards the N. W. part of California, is about 3 miles long by half a mile wide.

WASHINGTON MILLS, a post-office of Oneida co., New York.

WASHINGTON SOUTH YUBA, a post-office of Nevada co., California.

WASHINGTONVILLE, a village of Orange co., New York, on the Newburg Branch railroad, 12 miles S. W. from Newburg.

WASHINGTONVILLE, a village in the N. part of Oswego co., New York.

WASHINGTONVILLE, a small post-village of Montour co., Pennsylvania, about 75 miles N. by E. from Harrisburg.

WASHINGTONVILLE, a post-office of Baltimore co., Maryland.

WASHINGTONVILLE, a small village of Columbiana co., Ohio, 162 miles N. E. from Columbus.

WASHITA, formerly OUACHITA (wosh'e-taw'), a river of Arkansas and Louisiana, is formed by three branches, the North, Middle, and South forks, which unite in Montgomery county, in the W. part of the state. It flows in a general south-easterly course until it crosses the N. boundary of Louisiana. Below this its direction is nearly southward, and it falls into Red river by three channels, about 30 miles from its mouth. Its length is estimated at above 500 miles. The portion of this river below the mouth of the Tensas is sometimes called Black river. It is regularly navigated by large steamboats to Camden, in Arkansas, about 300 miles from its mouth, and smaller boats sometimes ascend as far as Rockport. The chief towns on its banks are Camden, on the right, and Monroe, on the left bank. Branches.—The Middle, or main branch, rises in Polk county and flows eastward. The North, or Muddy fork, rises in Yell county and flows S. E. The South, or Brushy fork, rises near the E. border of Polk county and flows eastward.

WASHITA, a parish in the N. part of Louisiana, contains 735 square miles. It is intersected by Washita river, and drained by Boeuf, and Bartholomew bayous. The surface is diversified by pine-clad hills. The soil in some parts is fertile, especially along the river. The staples are cotton and Indian corn. In 1850 the parish produced 3486 bales of cotton, and 128,000 bushels of corn. There were 2 saw and planing mills, and 1 tin and sheet-iron ware manufactory; 1 church, 1 newspaper office; 604 pupils attending public schools, and 15 attending another school. The parish contains extensive forests of pine, oak, and hickory. All of the streams above named are navigable by steamboats. A railroad is projected through the parish from Vicksburg to Shreveport. Capital, Monroe. Population, 5008; of whom 2300 were free, and 2708, slaves.

WASHITA, a county in the S. central part of Arkansas, is intersected by the Washita river, navigable by large steamboats. The surface is diversified by hills of moderate height. The soil is mostly sandy and fertile. The staples are cotton and Indian corn. In 1850 it produced 3302 bales of cotton; 290,696 bushels of corn; 56,988 of peas and beans; 75,291 of sweet potatoes, and 42,223 pounds of butter. It contained 2 machine shops, and 1 newspaper office; 90 pupils attending academies or other schools. Washita county is among the most populous of the state, and is rapidly filling up with emigrants. Capital, Camden. Pop., 9591; of whom 6289 were free, and 3304, slaves.

WASHITA CITY. See OUACHITA CITY.

WASHOUGAL, a post-office of Clark co., Oregon.

WASHTENAW, a county in the S. E. part of Michigan, has an area of 720 square miles. It is intersected by Huron river, and by the North branch of the Raisin; the East branch of Grand river (called by the Indians, Wash-tenong) rises in the county, which is also drained by the sources of Macon river, and by Saline and Stony creeks. The surface is agreeably diversified with prairies, oak-openings, (plains producing a scattered growth of oaks free from underbrush,) and dense forests. The soil is a deep and fertile sandy loam. Wheat, Indian corn, oats, potatoes, hay, wool, and pork are staples. In 1850 it produced 528,042 bushels of wheat; 389,218 of corn; 211,465 of oats; 40,387 tons of hay, and 250,775 pounds of wool. The produce of wheat, hay, and wool was greater than that of any other county in the state excepting Oakland. It contained 44 churches, 4 newspaper offices; 8302 pupils attending public schools, and 225 attending other schools. The streams afford extensive water-power. The county is intersected by the Michigan Central railroad. Capital, Ann Arbor. Population, 28,567.

WASSAIC, a post-village and station of Dutchess co., New York, on the Harlem railroad, 85 miles from New York.

WASSAU. See WAUSAU.

WASSEMOM RIVER, Wisconsin. See PEKATONIGA.

WASSONVILLE, a small post-village in the N. part of Washington co., Iowa, situated on or near the English river.

WATAB, a small post-village of Benton co., Minnesota, on the E. bank of the Mississippi, 100 miles above St. Anthony. It was laid out in 1850, and has some trade with the Indians.

WATAUGA RIVER, of North Carolina and Tennessee, rises at the base of the Blue Ridge, in Watauga county, North Carolina. After passing through a mountain range, which forms the W. boundary of that state, it flows in a W. N. W. direction, and enters the Holston river in Tennessee, about 12 miles N. from Jonesborough. It is navigable by small boats from its mouth to Elizabethtown, and 6 miles higher. The motive-power which it affords is very abundant, and is employed in the manufacture of iron.

WATAUGA, a county in the N. W. part of North Carolina, bordering on Tennessee: area, estimated at 550 square miles. It is drained by Watauga river, from which it derives its name. The county is a mountainous region, having the Stone or Yellow mountain on the N. W. border. The soil in the valleys is fertile, producing Indian corn and pasture for cattle. In 1850 this county produced 69,211 bushels of corn; 54,747 of oats, and 2774 tons of hay. There was 1 iron forge. It contained 6 churches, and 520 pupils attending public schools. Organized in 1849. Capital, Boone. Population, 3400, of whom 3271 were free, and 129, slaves.

WATAUGA BEND, a post-office of Washington co., Tennessee.

WATCH HILL POINT, the E. side of the entrance to Fisher's Island sound, about 2 miles S. E. from Stonington, Connecticut. On it is a revolving light 50 feet above the level of the sea. Lat. 41° 18' 12" N., lon. 71° 52' W.

WATNSAW, a post-office of Monroe co., Ark.

WATERBOROUGH, a post-township in York co., Maine, 65 miles S. E. from Augusta. It is intersected by the York and Cumberland railroad, and drained by the head branches of the Monsum and Little Ossipee rivers. Population, 1989.

WATERBOROUGH, a post-village of Chautauque co., New York, on Conewango creek, about 10 miles E. N. E. from Jamestown.

WATERBOROUGH CENTRE, a post-office of York co., Maine.

WATERBURG, a post-office of Tompkins co., New York.

WATERBURY, a thriving post-village in Washington co., Vermont, near Onion river, and on the Vermont Central railroad, 12 miles W. N. W. of Montpelier. A plank road here intersects with the railroad, securing to the place the trade of the back country. The village contains 4 churches and 10 stores. Population of the township, 2352.

WATERBURY, a beautiful and flourishing city of New Haven county, Connecticut, on the Naugatuck railroad, and on the route of the Hartford, Providence, and Fish-kill railroad, which will be completed to this place by July, 1854, about 28 miles S. W. from Hartford, 21 miles N. W. by N. from New Haven, 82 miles N. E. from New York. It is delightfully situated in the Naugatuck Valley, the site extending eastward from the stream, up a graceful slope occupied with numerous tasteful residences. The dwellings generally are remarkable for their neatness, and are usually adorned with shade-trees, flower-gardens, and shrubbery. In the centre is a beautiful public square. There are now 7 churches in the city, several of which are elegant structures. St. John's, (Episcopal,) situated on the principal street, near the upper part of Centre square, is one of the most splendid church edifices in New England. It is built of granite, in the Norman style, and was dedicated in 1848. A new Methodist Episcopal church has been erected the present season. It has two towers, and makes a very fine appearance. The Second Congregational Society are at the present time (Nov., 1853) erecting a splendid brick edifice. Among the other buildings deserving of notice, may be mentioned the Scovill House, a hotel of the first class, fronting Centre square; Hotchkiss block, an elegant brick row, in which are seven fine stores, and several of the factory buildings. There are 2 banks, the Waterbury bank, with a capital of over half a million, and the City bank, recently established, also a savings' institution, and 2 building associations. Great attention has of late been paid to the subject of education; and by a vote of the inhabitants, the public schools are now free. A commodious brick building has been erected for a high-school, with arrangements to accommodate over 200 pupils. The whole number of pupils in attendance upon the various schools of the city, is about 1100. A flourishing institution, called the Young Men's Institute, now numbers 400 members, and is provided with regular courses of lectures, and a library of 600 volumes. There are also several benevolent and other societies in the place. Two newspapers are published, one of which, The American, is of 9 years standing.

Waterbury has long been distinguished for its varied and extensive manufactures. The business of making gilt buttons was commenced here as early as 1802, by Abel Porter, Daniel Clark, and others. It was not carried on to any considerable extent, however, till after the war of 1812, when the proprietors, having procured suitable machinery from England, extended their operations—rolling brass and copper, and making copper and brass wire, not only for their own consumption but for the general market. The second rolling mill and button factory was erected in 1824. At that time, the whole amount of capital employed in manufactures in the town was less than $100,000. There are now in operation 6 rolling mills, and another in course of erection, employing a capital of from $100,000 to $300,000 each. There are also about 40 joint-stock associations in the place, 8 of which have each a capital of over $150,000, the others from $125,000 down to $10,000, making in the aggregate a capital of $4,400,000. Of this $1,000,000 has been added since January, 1853. The raw copper annually used in the mills for manufacturing rolled copper and brass, brass and copper wire, tubing, German silver, plate brass, &c., is estimated at 2300 tons, and a third of that amount of spelter. The number of persons employed in the factories is estimated at 3000. A vast amount of metal is worked up into daguerreotype plates, brass butts, gilt and brass buttons, brass kettles, hooks and eyes, pins, umbrella trimmings, rings, &c. The pin factory here is one of the most extensive in the country. There are also manufactories of india-rubber suspenders and webbing, Florentine or covered buttons, felt cloth, pocket-cutlery, porcelain ware, cotton gins, machinery, files, castings, &c. The business prospects of Waterbury were never more promising than at present. Over 200 houses have been erected the past season, and there is a probability of an enlarged increase for years to come. Population in 1830, 3071; in 1840, 3668; in 1850, 5137; in 1853, estimated at 7000.

WATEREE, a river of South Carolina: rising in the W. part of North Carolina, it flows first eastward and then southward, under the name of Catawba, which it retains until it passes Rocky mount, near the S. E. extremity of Chester district, South Carolina; then flowing S. E. and S., it passes by Camden, and unites with the Congaree at the S. E. extremity of Richland district. The river formed is called the Santee. Steamboats can ascend to Camden, more than 200 miles from the sea.

WATEREE CREEK, of Fairfield dis., South Carolina, enters the Wateree river from the right, near the S. extremity of Lancaster district.

WATEREE, a post-office of Richland district, South Carolina.

WATERFORD, a post-township in Oxford co., Maine, 54 miles W. by S. from Augusta. Crooked river flows through its N. E. border. Population, 1448.

WATERFORD, a post-township in Caledonia co., Vermont, bounded on the S. E. by Connecticut river, and intersected by the Connecticut and Passumpsic Rivers railroad, 45 miles E. N. E. from Montpelier. Population, 1412.

WATERFORD, a post-village in New London co., Connecticut, near the coast, and on the New Haven and New London railroad, 44 miles E. by N. from New Haven. Population of the township, 2259.

WATERFORD, a post-village of Saratoga county, New York, is situated on the W. bank of the Hudson river, a little above the mouth of the Mohawk, and 10 miles above Albany. A bridge across the Hudson connects it with Lansingburg. The river is navigable by means of lockage to this point. The Albany Northern railroad, and the Champlain canal pass through it. Waterford contains several churches, an academy, a bank, a newspaper office, several flouring mills, and a variety of manufactories, in which cotton goods, machinery, and other articles are made. Population of the township, 2633; of the village, about 2000.

WATERFORD, a township of Camden co., New Jersey, about 87 miles S. by W. from Trenton. Population, 1638.

WATERFORD, a post-township of Erie co., Pennsylvania, about 15 miles S. by E. from Erie. Population, 1545.

WATERFORD, a flourishing post-borough in the above township, on the Sunbury and Erie railroad, and on Le Bœuf creek, 15 miles S. E. from Erie. It is surrounded by a fine grazing country, and has considerable trade in lumber and the products of the dairy. The creek furnishes water-power for several mills. A plank-road connects the town with Erie and Meadville. Pop. in 1850, 498.

WATERFORD, a post-village of Juniata co., Pennsylvania, on Tuscarora creek, 60 miles W. from Harrisburg.

WATERFORD, a small village of Westmoreland co., Pennsylvania, 55 miles E. by S. from Pittsburg.

WATERFORD, a thriving post-village of Loudon co., Virginia, on Kittoctan creek, 156 miles N. from Richmond, contains 2 churches and several mills. Pop., estimated at 500.

WATERFORD, a post-village of Marshall co., Mississippi, near the route of the Central railroad, and 9 miles S. from Holly Springs.

WATERFORD, a post-village in Gibson co., Tenn., 121 miles W. by S. from Nashville.

WATERFORD, a post-office of Spencer co., Kentucky.

WATERFORD, a village of Knox co., Ohio, on a branch of Vernon river, 12 miles N. W. from Mount Vernon. It has 2 mills and 1 church.

WATERFORD, a post-township forming the N. N. W. extremity of Washington co., Ohio, intersected by Muskingum river. Pop., 1690.

WATERFORD, a small village of Berrien co., Michigan, on the Pawpaw river, 10 miles E. from Lake Michigan.

WATERFORD, a post-township in the central part of Oakland co., Michigan. Pop., 1086.

WATERFORD, a thriving village of Elkhart co., Indiana, on the Elkhart river, 2½ miles S. from Gosheu. The water-power of the river is used in a flouring mill, saw mill, and carding machine.

WATERFORD, a post-office of La Porte co., Ind., 6 miles S. by E. from Michigan City.

WATERFORD, a township in Fulton co., Illinois. Population, 265.

WATERFORD, a post-village of Fulton co., Illinois, on Spoon river, about 50 miles N. W. from Springfield.

WATERFORD, a thriving post-village of Racine county, Wisconsin, on the Pishtaka or Fox river, 25 miles S. W. from Milwaukee, with which it is connected by a plank-road. It has valuable water-power, and contains 2 flouring mills, 3 saw mills, a woollen factory, 4 stores, and several hotels. Population in 1853, about 550.

WATERFORD CENTRE, a post-office of Oakland co., Michigan.

WATERFORDVILLE, a village of Camden co., New Jersey, about 5 miles E. from Camden, on Waterford creek, contains a glass factory.

WATERFORD WORKS, a post-office of Camden co., New Jersey.

WATERLOO, a post-village of Seneca county, New York, is pleasantly situated on both sides of the outlet of Seneca lake, and on the Auburn and Canandaigua Branch of the Central railroad, 20 miles W. from Auburn.

It contains a beautiful court house, an academy, 1 Catholic and 5 Protestant churches, a bank, a public hall, 1 newspaper office, about 30 stores, 9 hotels, 3 foundries with machine shops, 6 flouring and grist mills, 1 steam cotton mill, 2 large manufactories of shawls and woollen goods, 1 of morocco, and a dry-dock and boat-yard. The outlet furnishes water-power, and is used as part of the Cayuga and Seneca canal. Incorporated in 1824. Population in 1853, about 3500; of the township in 1850, 3795.

WATERLOO, a post-office of Sussex co., N. J.

WATERLOO, a village of Franklin co., Pennsylvania, 58 miles S. W. from Harrisburg, has about 150 inhabitants.

WATERLOO, a post-village of Juniata co., Pennsylvania, 69 miles W. from Harrisburg.

WATERLOO, a small village of Venango co., Pa.

WATERLOO, a post-village of Fauquier co., Virginia, on the Rappahannock river, 63 miles W. S. W. from Washington. It contains 2 stores and 1 mill.

WATERLOO, a small village of Guilford co., North Carolina.

WATERLOO, a post-village in Granville co., North Carolina, 50 miles N. from Raleigh.

WATERLOO, a post-village in Laurens district, South Carolina, 65 miles N. W. by W. from Columbia.

WATERLOO, a post-village of Lauderdale co., Alabama, on the right bank of Tennessee river, 26 miles W. from Florence.

WATERLOO, a post-village in Pointe Coupée parish, Louisiana, on the W. bank of Mississippi river, 20 miles N. W. by W. from Baton Rouge.

WATERLOO, a post-office of Pulaski co., Ky.

WATERLOO, a township in the W. part of Athens co., Ohio. Population, 1016.

WATERLOO, a village of Fairfield co., Ohio, on the Ohio and Erie canal, about 18 miles S. E. from Columbus.

WATERLOO, a small village of Fayette co., Ohio, on Deer creek, 100 miles E. N. E. from Cincinnati.

WATERLOO, a post-office of Lawrence co., O.

WATERLOO, a post-township forming the N. E. extremity of Jackson co., Michigan. Population, 1090.

WATERLOO, a post-township in Fayette co., Indiana. Population, 833.

WATERLOO, a post-village of Fayette co., Indiana, on the W. fork of Whitewater river, 7 miles N. E. from Connersville.

WATERLOO, a post-village, capital of Monroe co., Illinois, about 22 miles S. from St. Louis. It contains a court house, and a newspaper office.

WATERLOO, a small post-village of Clark co., Missouri, about 12 miles N. W. from Alexandria, was formerly the capital of the county.

WATERLOO, a post-office of Black Hawk co., Iowa.

WATERLOO, a township in the S. part of Grand co., Wisconsin.

WATERLOO, a township forming the N. W. extremity of Jefferson co., Wis. Pop., 831.

WATERLOO, a post-village in the above township, 20 miles E. by N. of Madison, contains 1 church, 2 hotels, 4 stores, 1 manufactory of pumps, 1 of fanning mills, and 1 of ploughs. Population, about 300.

WATERLOO, a small village of Rock co., Wis.

WATERMELON, a post-office of Tatnall co. Ga.

WATERPORT, a post-office of Orleans co., N. Y.

WATERPROOF, a flourishing post-village of Tensas parish, Louisiana, on the right or W. bank of the Mississippi river, 17 miles S. of St. Joseph. It has a good landing.

WATER STREET, a village of Morris co., New Jersey, on the Whippany river, about 45 miles N. N. E. from Trenton.

WATER STREET, a small post-village of Huntingdon co., Pennsylvania, on the Juniata river, 100 miles W. N. W. from Harrisburg.

WATERTOWN, a post-township in Middlesex co., Massachusetts, intersected by the Fitchburg railroad, 8 miles W. by N. from Boston. Charles river, which washes its southern border, affords water-power, and is navigable for vessels of six feet draught. It contains various manufactories, a United States arsenal, and Mr. Cushing's beautiful garden, comprising 60 acres. The arsenal is situated on the N. bank of the river, near the village, and covers 40 acres of ground. The village is very pleasant, and connected with the Fitchburg railroad at West Cambridge by the Watertown Branch railroad. Population in 1840, 1810; in 1850, 2837.

WATERTOWN, a post-township in Litchfield county, Connecticut, on the W. side of Naugatuck river and railroad, 30 miles W. S. W. from Hartford. The manufacture of silk thread, umbrella trimmings, sewing machines, hooks and eyes, &c. are carried on to some extent. Near its centre is a pleasant village. Population, 1533.

WATERTOWN, a flourishing post-borough, capital of Jefferson county, New York, is situated in Watertown township, on the left or S. bank of Black river, and on the Rome and Watertown railroad, about 160 miles W. N. W. from Albany, and 86 miles by railroad N. N. W. from Utica. It is the southern terminus of the Potsdam and Watertown railroad, 75 miles long, which connects with the Northern railroad at Stockholm. It contains a stone court house and jail, a state arsenal of brick, 6 banks, with an aggregate capital of $600,000, 9 or 10 churches, and several academies.

Five or six newspapers are published in the borough. The river, which is here 60 yards wide, is crossed by a bridge. There is a fall of about 24 feet opposite the town, and rapids for 3 or 4 miles below, from which almost unlimited water-power may be derived with facility. The manufactories of this place are various and extensive, producing woollen and cotton goods, paper, flour, machinery, iron ware, farming implements, leather, lumber, and other articles. Laid out in 1805. Pop. of the township in 1840, 5027; in 1850, 7201.

WATERTOWN, a post-township in the W. part of Washington co., Ohio. Pop., 1373.

WATERTOWN, a township in the S. part of Clinton co., Michigan, intersected by Looking-glass river. Population, 315.

WATERTOWN, a post-township in the N. part of Jefferson co., Wisconsin. Pop., 1850.

WATERTOWN, a city of Wisconsin, on the line between Dodge and Jefferson counties, on Rock river, and on the Fond du Lac and Rock River railroad, 40 miles E. by N. from Madison. It is finely situated on both sides of the river, at the Great Bend, where its course is changed from N. W. to nearly due S. The rapids above the town have a fall of 24 feet, from which abundant water-power may be derived. Watertown is the largest place in the county. It contains several churches, 2 or 3 newspaper offices, 1 bank, 2 select schools, 6 dry-good stores, about 20 other stores, and a variety of manufactories, among which are 3 flouring mills, 4 saw mills, 1 iron foundry with a machine shop, 1 pottery, 1 woollen factory, 4 manufactories of farming implements, 6 of wagons, and 5 of cabinet ware. A plank-road extends to Milwaukee, and railroads are in progress to Milwaukee and Madison. Settled in 1836. Population in 1850, 1451; in 1853, about 4000.

WATERVALE, a post-village of Onondaga co., New York, about 13 miles S. E. from Syracuse.

WATER VALLEY, a post-office of Erie co. N. Y.

WATER VALLEY, a post-office of Yallobusha co., Mississippi.

WATERVILLE, a post-village in Carroll co., New Hampshire, 48 miles N. E. from Concord.

WATERTOWN, a flourishing post-village of Kennebec co., Maine, on the right bank of the Kennebec river, at the Ticonic falls, (18 feet in height,) and at the northern terminus of the Androscoggin and Kennebec railroad, 82 miles N. N. E. from Portland. The Kennebec and Penobscot railroad, now in course of construction, will connect it with Bangor, and it is also to be the terminus of the Kennebec and Portland railroad. The water-power afforded by the Ticonic falls and others in the vicinity is very great, and might easily be made available to almost any extent; only a small part of it is at present employed. There are here in operation numerous mills for grinding grain and plaster, sawing lumber, carding, &c. There are also various manufactories, principally of machinery, castings, and farming implements. An important trade is carried on with the surrounding country and through the Kennebec river, which, by means of a dam and locks at Augusta, is navigable to the foot of the falls opposite. The village contains 4 or 5 churches, 2 banks, 2 newspaper offices, and about 30 stores. It is the seat of Waterville college, a flourishing institution, under the direction of the Baptists. Population of the township in 1840, 2971; in 1850, 3965.

WATERVILLE, a township in Grafton co., N. H., 54 miles N. from Concord. Pop., 42.

WATERVILLE, a post-village in Lamoiile co., Vermont, about 40 miles N. W. by N. from Montpelier, contains 1 church, 1 academy, 2 taverns, 2 stores, and a number of shops. Population of the township, 753.

WATERVILLE, a thriving post-village of New Haven co., Connecticut, on the Naugatuck river and railroad, 28 miles N. N. W. from New Haven. It is chiefly noted for the manufacture of pocket cutlery.

WATERVILLE, a post-village in Sangerfield township, Oneida county, New York, on a branch of Oriskany creek, 45 miles E. S. E. from Syracuse. It contains several churches, an academy, a bank, and manufactories of woollen goods, flour, machinery, and other articles.

WATERVILLE, a village of Delaware co., Pennsylvania, on Ridley creek, about 4 miles S. by E. from Media.

WATERVILLE, a post-office of Lycoming co., Pennsylvania.

WATERVILLE, a post-township in the S. W. part of Lucas co., Ohio. Population, 953.

WATERVILLE, a post-village in Lucas co., Ohio, on the left bank of the Maumee river, and on the Wabash and Erie canal, 14 miles above Toledo.

WATERVILLE, a post-village of Waukesha co., Wisconsin, 18 miles W. from Milwaukee.

WATERVLIET, a township forming the N. E. extremity of Albany co., New York, on the W. side of the Hudson river, opposite Troy. It is intersected by the Erie canal, and by three railroads which terminate at Albany or Troy. Pop., including West Troy, 12,446.

WATERVLIET, a post-office of Berrien co., Michigan.

WATERVLIET CENTRE, a post-office of Albany co., New York.

WATKINS, New York. See JEFFERSON.

WATKINSVILLE, a small village of Goochland co., Virginia, 36 miles W. from Richmond.

WATKINSVILLE, a post-village, capital of Clarke co., Georgia, 64 miles N. by W. from Milledgeville. It contains a court house, 2 churches, 2 schools, and 2 stores.

WATKINSVILLE, a post-village of Union co., Ohio, 9 miles from Marysville.

WATONWAN river has its source in a small lake in the S. part of Minnesota Territory, and running first N. E. and then easterly, empties itself into Blue Earth river, near 44° N. lat., and 94° 12' W. lon. Length, estimated at 80 miles.

WATSON, a post-township in the E. part of Lewis co., New York. Population, 1138.

WATSON, a township of Lycoming co., Pennsylvania, about 18 miles W. by N. from Williamsport. Population, 270.

WATSON, a township in the S. E. part of Allegan co., Michigan. Population, 313.

WATSON, a post-office of Marshall co., Miss.

WATSON'S BRIDGE, a post-office of Moore co., North Carolina.

WATSONTOWN, a post-village of Northumberland co., Pennsylvania, on the W. branch of the Susquehanna, 18 miles above Sunbury.

WATTS, a new township of Perry co., Pennsylvania. Population, 460.

WATTSBOROUGH, a post-office of Lunenburg co., Virginia, 97 miles S. W. from Richmond.

WATTSBURG, a thriving post-borough of Erie county, Pennsylvania, on French creek, 18 miles S. E. from Erie. It has several saw mills and grist mills. A plank-road connects it with Erie. Population, 227.

WATTS MILLS, a post-office Westmoreland co., Pennsylvania.

WATTS MILLS, a post-office of Appanoose co., Iowa.

WATTSVILLE, a post-office of Carroll co., O.

WAUBESEPINICON, a village in Scott co., Iowa, on Wapsipinicon river, 60 miles E. by N. from Iowa City.

WAUCOUSTA, a post-office of Fond du Lac co., Wisconsin.

WAUHATCHEE, a post-village of Dade co., Georgia, 240 miles N. W. from Milledgeville.

WAUKAU, a post-village in Rushford township, Winnebago county, Wisconsin, on the outlet of Rush lake, about 60 miles N. E. of Madison. It contains 3 hotels, 7 stores, and 5 mills. Population in 1853, 500.

WAUHOO, a post-office of Vigo co., Ind.

WAUKEENAH, a post-office of Jefferson co., Florida.

WAUKEGAN, formerly LITTLEFORT, a flourishing post-village, capital of Lake county, Illinois, on the W. shore of Lake Michigan, and on the Chicago and Milwaukee railroad, 44 miles N. by W. from Chicago, and 50 miles S. from Milwaukee. The lake is about 80 miles wide opposite this place. The principal part of the village is built on a bluff which rises rather abruptly to the height of 50 feet, from which extensive views of water scenery may be obtained. Between the bluff and the shore there is a flat tract of ground about 400 yards wide, which is occupied by gardens, dwellings, and warehouses. Waukegan is a place of active trade, and is rapidly increasing in extent and business. Steamboats make frequent and regular passages from this town to Chicago, and other ports on the lake. The number of steamboat arrivals in 1850, was 1095. The exports in 1851 were valued at $283,107, and the imports at 69,081; total, $352,188. It contained in that year 6 churches, 1 academy, 2 book stores, 27 dry-goods stores, 2 newspaper offices, 2 steam flouring mills, and one bank shops. Pop. in 1850, 2949; in 1853, about 4500.

WAUKESHA, a county in the S. E. part of Wisconsin, contains 576 square miles. It is drained by the Pishtaka or Fox river, and by the Bark river, both of which rise within its borders; and it is sprinkled with numerous small lakes, none of which is above 4 miles in length. The surface is undulating; the soil is calcareous and highly productive. The greater part of the county consists of prairies and oak-openings. Wheat, oats, barley, potatoes, and butter are the staples. The produce of the county in 1850 was 312,658 bushels of wheat; 248,392 of oats; 119,154 of potatoes; 317,649 pounds of butter, and 52,369 bushels of barley, (the greatest quantity raised in any county in the United States.) It contained 19 churches, 1 newspaper office, 5435 pupils attending public schools, and 156 attending academies and other schools. The rock which is found near the surface is the blue limestone, an excellent building material. The county is traversed by the Milwaukee and Mississippi and the Milwaukee and La Crosse railroads, and by numerous plank-roads. Capital, Waukesha. Population, 19,258.

WAUKESHA, a township in the central part of Waukesha county, Wisconsin. Pop., 2314.

WAUKESHA, formerly PRAIRIEVILLE, a flourishing post-village, capital of Waukesha county, Wisconsin, on the Pishtaka or Fox river, and on the Milwaukee and Mississippi railroad, 18 miles W. from Milwaukee, and 60 miles E. from Madison. Plank-roads have been laid in several directions from the village. These facilities for trade, together with the water-power of the river, and the fertility of the adjacent land, render this a place of active business. It is situated at the extremity of a beautiful prairie. The court house and jail are built of Waukeshalimestone, a superior article, quarried in the immediate vicinity. There are 6 churches, an academy, 1 or 2 newspaper offices, and an institution styled Carroll College, incorporated in 1846. The village contains 8 dry-goods stores, over 12 other stores, an iron foundry, a machine shop, and car factory, 4 hotels, a flouring mill, a carding mill, and 4 saddle and harness shops. Incorporated in 1852. Population in 1853, estimated at 4000.

WAUKSÄIK, a post-office of Cook co., Ill.

WAUPACCA, a small river of Wisconsin, flows into Wolf river in Waupaca county.

WAUPACCA, a county in the N. central part of Wisconsin, contains 720 square miles. It is drained by Waupaca, Wolf, and Embarras rivers. The surface is uneven, and partly occupied with forests. Organized in 1851, and therefore not included in the census of 1850. Capital, Mukwa.

WAUPACCA, a post-township near the central part of Waupacca co., Wisconsin.

WAUPUN, a post-township in the S. part of Fond du Lac co., Wisconsin. Pop., 882.

WAUPUN, a thriving post-village in the above township, on the line between Fond du Lac and Dodge counties, and on the Fond du Lac and Madison railroad, (unfinished,) 74 miles N. E. from Madison, is a place of importance, as the site of the State prison. It has 2 churches, 9 stores, and 2 mills. Population in 1853, about 500.

WAUSAU, or WASSAU, formerly BIG BULL FALLS, a post-village, capital of Marathon co., Wisconsin, on the Wisconsin river, 175 miles N. from Madison. Large quantities of lumber are procured here annually, and sent down the river by rafts. It contains 5 stores, 4 flour mills, and 9 saw mills. It has a migratory population, estimated at from 300 to 600.

WAUSHARA, a county in the central part of Wisconsin, contains about 650 square miles. It is drained by the Neenah, White, and Pine rivers. Organized in 1852. Capital, Sacramento.

WAUSHARA, a township forming the S. E. extremity of Waushara co., Wisconsin, on Neenah river. It contains the county seat.

WAUSHARA, a post-village of Dodge co., Wisconsin, 43 miles N. N. E. of Madison, contains 2 churches, 3 hotels, 6 stores, and 2 mills. Population, 400.

WAUTOMA, a post-township near the central part of Waushara co., Wisconsin.

WAUWATOSA, a post-township in the N. E. part of Milwaukee co., Wisconsin. Pop., 2500.

WAUWATOSA, a post-village in the above township, on the Milwaukee and Mississippi railroad, 5 miles W. from Milwaukee, contains 2 or 3 churches, 2 hotels, 1 flour and 1 saw mill, and 4 stores.

WAVELAND, a pleasant post-village of Montgomery co., Indiana, about 15 miles S. W. from Crawfordsville. Pop., about 300.

WAVERLY, a thriving post-village of Tioga co., New York, on the Chemung river, and on the New York and Erie railroad, 17 miles E. S. E. from Elmira. It is an important railroad station, with several hotels and stores. The surveyed route of the North Pennsylvania railroad terminates here.

WAVERLY, a small village of Bradford co., Pennsylvania.

WAVERLY, a post-office of Luzerne co., Pa. See ABINGTON CENTRE.

WAVERLY, a small village of Troup co., Ga.

WAVERLY, a post-office of Chambers co., Ala.

WAVERLY, a post-office of Lowndes co., Mis.

WAVERLY, a post-village, capital of Humphrey's co., Tennessee, 66 miles W. from Nashville. It has several stores, and about 300 inhabitants.

WAVERLY, a thriving post-village of Peepee township, Pike co., Ohio, on the Ohio canal, and on the W. bank of the Scioto river, 61 miles S. from Columbus. Pop. in 1850, 643

WAVERLY, a post-township in the N. E. central part of Van Buren co., Michigan, intersected by the North branch of Pawpaw river. Population, 186.

WAVERLY, a village of Morgan co., Indiana, on the West fork of White river, 18 miles S. S. W. from Indianapolis.

WAVERLY, a post-village of Morgan co., Illinois, about 30 miles S. W. from Springfield.

WAVERLY, a thriving village of Lafayette co., Missouri, on the right bank of the Missouri river, 23 miles below Lexington. Laid out in 1843. Population in 1853, about 500.

WAVERLY HALL, a post-office of Harris co., Georgia, about 10 miles S. E. from Hamilton.

WAWARSING, a post-township in the S. W. part of Ulster co., New York, intersected by Rondout creek, and by the Delaware and Hudson canal. Population, 6459.

WAWEWANTET river, a small stream of Plymouth co., in the E. part of Massachusetts, flows into Buttermilk bay.

WAW-PE-CONG, a post-office of Miami co., Ind.

WAXAHACHIE creek, of Texas, flows S. E. through the middle of Ellis co., and unites with Pecan creek in Navarro county.

WAXAHACHIE, a thriving post-village, capital of Ellis co., Texas, about 20 miles W. from Trinity river, and 190 miles N. by E. from Austin city. It contained, in 1851, a church, a flourishing school, a Masonic hall, and 2 dry-goods stores. Laid out in 1850.

WAXHAW creek, rises in North Carolina, and flows S. W. through Lancaster district of South Carolina, into Catawba river.

WAXHAW, or WAXSAW, a settlement in the S. W. part of Union co., North Carolina, on a creek of the same name. It is the oldest and most wealthy settlement in the county, and is noted as the birth-place of General Andrew Jackson, who is said to have been born one-quarter of a mile from the boundary between North and South Carolina.

WAXHAW, a post-office of Lancaster district, South Carolina.

WAX, a post-office of Ripley co., Indiana.

WAYLAND, a post-township in Middlesex co., Massachusetts, 16 miles W. by N. from Boston. Cochituate lake, from which Boston is supplied with water, lies partly on its southern boundary. Population, 1115.

WAYLAND, a township in the N. W. part of Steuben co., New York, intersected by the Buffalo and Corning railroad. Pop., 2067.

WAYLAND, a post-office of Allegan co., Mich.

WAYLAND DEPÔT, a post-office of Steuben co., New York.

WAYLANDSEURG, a post-village of Culpepper co., Virginia, on Crooked creek, 102 miles N. N. W. from Richmond. It contains 2 mills.

WAYLAND'S SPRINGS, a thriving village of Lawrence co., Tennessee, 95 miles S. S. W. from Nashville. The medicinal springs at this place have lately attracted public attention.

WAYMANVILLE, a village of Upson co., Georgia, 68 miles W. by S. from Milledgeville. It has 2 cotton factories, which employ above 100 operatives.

WAYMART, a post-borough of Wayne co., Pennsylvania, on the turnpike from Easton to Belmont, 9 or 10 miles W. by N. from Honesdale. Incorporated in 1851. Pop., 300.

WAYNE, a county in the N. W. central part of New York, has an area of about 600 square miles. It is bounded on the N. by Lake Ontario, and is drained by Clyde river, with its two principal branches, Canandaigua Outlet and Mud creek, and by several smaller streams, which afford valuable water-power. The surface is undulating, and the soil very fertile. Wheat, Indian corn, oats, fruit, and grass are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 660,739 bushels of corn; 614,041 of wheat; 518,051 of oats; 54,034 tons of hay, and 1,367,867 pounds of butter. There were 24 flour and grist mills, 52 saw mills, 1 glass factory, 8 machine shops, 3 iron furnaces, 1 cordage factory, 8 iron foundries, and 12 tanneries. It contained 63 churches, and 7 newspaper offices; 13,801 pupils attending public schools, and 467 attending academies or other schools. Iron ore, water limestone, and gypsum are found; also sulphur and weak salt springs. It has a lake coast of about 35 miles, and comprises Sodus, East, and Port Bays, which afford facilities for the lake trade. It is intersected by the Erie canal, and by the Rochester and Syracuse Direct railroad, and the Sodus Point and Southern railroad. Organized in 1823, having been formed out of portions of Ontario and Seneca counties, and named in honor of General Anthony Wayne. Capital, Lyons. Population, 44,953.

WAYNE, a county forming the N. E. extremity of Pennsylvania, bordering on New York, has an area of 700 square miles. The Delaware river forms its boundary on the east and north-east. It is also drained by Lackawaxen, Dyberry, Starucca, and Equinunk creeks. The surface is elevated and hilly, having a high ridge, named Moosic mountain, near the W. border. Lumber is the chief article of export, a large part of the county being covered with forests. Indian corn, oats, potatoes, hay, and butter are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 50,577 bushels of corn; 96,094 of oats; 130,338 of potatoes; 25,380 tons of hay, and 391,814 pounds of butter. There were 99 saw mills, 9 flour and grist mills, 7 manufactories of farming implements, and 1 of glass, and 10 tanneries. It contained 32 churches, 2 newspaper offices; 3829 pupils attending public schools, and 378 attending academies and other schools. The surface rocks are sandstone and red shale. The New York and Erie railroad passes along the E. border. The canal and railroad of the Delaware and Hudson Canal company traverse the county. Organized in 1798. Capital, Honesdale. Population, 21,890.

WAYNE, a county in the W. part of Virginia, has an area estimated at 500 square miles. The Ohio river forms its boundary on the N., separating it from Ohio, and the Sandy river separates it from Kentucky on the W.; it is also drained by Twelvepole creek. The surface is broken by numerous hills or ridges, and mostly covered with forests. The soil is productive. Indian corn, oats, and grass are the staples. The highlands abound in stone coal. Ginsing is one of the articles of export. In 1850 the county produced 226,800 bushels of corn; 27,785 of oats, and 36,555 pounds of butter. There were 6 saw mills, 1 wool-carding mill, and 2 tanneries. It contained 9 churches, and 203 pupils attending public schools. Formed in 1842, out of part of Cabell county. Capital, Wayne Court House. Population, 4760; of whom 4571 were free, and 189, slaves.

WAYNE, a county in the E. central part of North Carolina: area estimated at 450 square miles. It is traversed by the Neuse river, navigable for steamboats, and bounded on the N. N. E. by the Contented creek. The surface is nearly level; the soil is generally sandy, and fertile near the river. Indian corn is the staple of the farms; tar, turpentine, and other products of the pine are procured from the forests and exported. In 1850 this county produced 480,240 bushels of corn; 157,662 of sweet potatoes, and 20,709 of oats. There were 4 saw mills, 51 tar and turpentine manufactories, and 10 turpentine distilleries. It contained 23 churches, 2 newspaper offices; 1498 pupils attending public schools, and 226 attending academies or other schools. It is intersected by the Weldon and Wilmington railroad, and the North Carolina Central railroad. Capital, Goldsborough. Pop., 13,486; of whom 8466 were free, and 5020, slaves.

WAYNE, a county in the S. E. part of Georgia, has an area of 750 square miles. It is bounded on the N. E. by the Altamaha, navigable by steamboats, and intersected in the southern part by Santilla river. The surface is nearly level, and mostly covered with pine woods. The soil is sandy and generally sterile. Cotton, Indian corn, sweet potatoes, and pine lumber are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 87 bales of cotton; 21,545 bushels of corn, and 24,433 of sweet potatoes. It contained 31 churches, 42 pupils attending public schools, and 18 attending academies or other schools. Capital, Waynesville. Population, 1499; of whom 1093 were free, and 406, slaves.

WAYNE, a county in the E. S. E. part of Mississippi, bordering on Alabama, has an area of about 870 square miles. It is intersected by the Chickasawhay river. The surface is uneven; the soil is sandy, and is said to be rather inferior. The county contains forests of pine. Cotton and cattle are the staples. In 1850 it produced 1217 bales of cotton; 84,280 bushels of corn, and 37,605 of sweet potatoes. There were 9 churches.

It is intersected by the Mobile and Ohio railroad. Capital, Winchester. Pop., 2892; of whom 1499 were free, and 1893, slaves.

WAYNE, a county in the S. S. W. part of Tennessee, bordering on Alabama: area estimated at 750 square miles. The Tennessee river washes the N. W. border; it is also drained by Cypress and Reinses creeks. The surface is hilly, and the soil productive. Indian corn, grass, and pork are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 458,148 bushels of corn; 41,070 of oats; 47,912 pounds of butter, and 11,649 of wool. It contains 16 churches, 825 attending public schools, and 65 attending other schools. The surplus produce of the county is exported by steamboats on the Tennessee river. The Nashville and South Western railroad is projected through the county. Iron ore is found. Capital, Waynesborough. Population, 8170; of whom 7240 were free, and 930, slaves.

WAYNE, a county in the S. part of Kentucky, bordering on Tennessee: area estimated at 700 square miles. It is drained by Beaver and Otter creeks, and South fork, affluents of Cumberland river, which forms its northern boundary. The surface is diversified with hills and valleys; the latter of which have a fertile soil, based on limestone. Horses, mules, cattle, and hogs are the chief articles of export. In 1850 this county produced 495,409 bushels of corn; 104,498 of oats, and 24,501 pounds of wool. It contained 16 churches, and 1484 pupils attending public schools. Extensive beds of coal and iron ore are found. The Cumberland river is navigable for about 8 months in the year, and the county is liberally supplied with water-power. Organized in 1800. Capital, Monticello. Population, 8692; of whom 7862 were free, and 830, slaves.

WAYNE, a county in the N. E. central part of Ohio, has an area of 550 square miles. It is traversed from N. to S. by Killbuck creek, and the Muddy fork of the Walhonding river, and also drained by Chippewa river and Sugar creek. The surface is generally rolling. The soil is a deep clayey loam, remarkably fertile, and under good cultivation. Wheat, Indian corn, oats, hay, wool, butter, and live stock are the staples. By the census of 1850 this county produced more oats than any other county in the state, and more wheat and butter than any other county excepting Stark. There were raised in that year 571,377 bushels of wheat; 827,460 of corn; 427,319 of oats; 41,722 tons of hay; 1,027,923 pounds of butter, and 25,511 of wool. It contained 70 churches, 2 newspaper offices; 13,927 pupils attending public schools, and 240 attending academies or other schools. Large mines of stonecoal have been opened in the eastern, and quarries of limestone in the southern part of the county. It is intersected by the Pennsylvania and Ohio, the Cleveland and Zanesville, and the Cleveland Medina and Tuscarawas railroads. Capital, Wooster. Pop., 32,981.

WAYNE, a county in the S. E. part of Michigan, bordering on Lakes Erie and St. Clair, and on Detroit river, which separates it from Canada West: area about 600 square miles. It is bounded on the S. W. by Huron river, and also drained by Rouge river, and its North, Middle, and South branches, and by Campbell's and Brownstown creeks. The general surface is level, excepting the western part, which is rather undulating. The soil contains a large proportion of clay, and is very productive. Nearly all the surface was originally covered with dense forests. Wheat, Indian corn, oats, potatoes, hay, and butter are the staples. In 1850 the county produced 106,876 bushels of wheat; 283,559 of corn; 234,007 of oats; 130,442 of potatoes, and 28,187 tons of hay. It contained 50 churches, 9 newspaper offices; 7083 pupils attending public schools, and 80 attending other schools. Limestone of fine quality is procured in the S. E. part, near Detroit river; sulphur springs are also found in the same vicinity. The Rouge river and its branches furnish motive-power for mills. The county is intersected by the Central railroad, by the Detroit and Pontiac railroad, and by several plank-roads. Wayne county is the most populous and important in the state. Capital, Detroit. Population, 42,756.

WAYNE, a county in the E. part of Indiana, bordering on Ohio, contains 400 square miles. It is drained by the several forks of Whitewater river. The surface is agreeably diversified by gentle undulations. The soil is mostly a rich loam based on clay and limestone, and is so highly cultivated that this is regarded the model county of the state. The principal articles of export are wheat, flour, corn, oats, pork, beef, and the products of the dairy. In 1850 this county produced 1,398,455 bushels of corn; 163,667 of wheat; 207,295 of oats, and 11,377 tons of hay. It contained 68 churches, 5 newspaper offices; 2467 pupils attending public schools, and 230 attending academies or other schools. Blue limestone underlies the surface. The county is abundantly supplied with water-power, which is extensively used in manufactures. The Whitewater canal extends from this county to the Ohio river. The other public improvements are the Indiana Central, the Richmond and Newcastle, and the Hamilton, Eaton and Richmond railroads, and the National road. Wayne county is the most populous and wealthy in the state. Capital, Richmond. Population, 25,320.

WAYNE, a county in the S. E. part of Illinois, has an area of 670 square miles. It is intersected in the E. part by the Little Wash river, in the S. W. part by the Skillet fork of that river, and also drained by Elm creek. The county is extensively covered with forests, and contains prairies of moderate size. The soil is productive. Indian corn, oats, potatoes, cattle, pork, and butter are the staples. In 1850 it produced 301,935 bushels of corn; 28,613 of oats, and 458 tons of hay. It contained 21 churches. Capital, Fairfield. Population, 6825.

WAYNE, a county in the S. E. part of Missouri, has an area of 750 square miles. It is traversed by the St. Francis, Big Black, and Castor rivers, all of which flow south-eastward, and also drained by Beaver, Brushy, and Big creeks. The soil in some parts is fertile. Indian corn, wheat, oats, hay, cattle, and swine are the staples. In 1850 the county produced 253,138 bushels of corn; 10,072 of wheat; 21,678 of oats, and 221 tons of hay. It contained 5 churches, and 250 pupils attending public schools. Capital, Greenville. Population, 4518; of whom 4158 were free, and 360, slaves.

WAYNE, a county in the S. part of Iowa, bordering on Missouri, has an area of 500 square miles. It is drained by the S. fork of Chariton river, and by the sources of Medicine and Locust creeks, which flow southward. This county is said to be fertile and well watered, but deficient in timber. Indian corn, oats, and butter are the staples. In 1850, it produced 14,415 bushels of corn; 3126 of oats, and 2940 pounds of butter. The S. fork of the Chariton affords motive-power for mills. Organized about the year 1850. Capital, Springfield. Population, 340.

WAYNE, a post-township in Kennebec co., Maine, 12 miles W. from Augusta. Population, 1367.

WAYNE, a post-township of Steuben co., New York, on Crooked lake, 12 miles N. E. from Bath, contains a village of the same name. Population, 1347.

WAYNE, a township of Armstrong co., Pennsylvania, about 12 miles E. from Kitzaning. Population, 1348.

WAYNE, a township of Clinton co., Pennsylvania, on the right bank of the Susquehanna river, about 5 miles E. from Lock Haven. Population, 396.

WAYNE, a township forming the S. E. extremity of Crawford co., Pennsylvania, intersected by the Pennsylvania canal. Population, 882.

WAYNE, a post-township of Erie co., Pennsylvania, about 27 miles S. E. by S. from Erie. Population, 1122.

WAYNE, a township of Greene co., Pennsylvania, about 10 miles S. from Waynesburg. Population, 1258.

WAYNE, a township of Lawrence co., Pennsylvania, on the Beaver river, and intersected by the Beaver and Erie canal, 14 miles N. from Beaver. Population, 756.

WAYNE, a township of Mifflin co., Pennsylvania, intersected by the Juniata river and the Pennsylvania railroad, about 19 miles S. W. from Lewistown. Population, 1201.

WAYNE, a township of Schuylkill co., Pennsylvania, about 10 miles S. W. from Pottsville. Population, 1968.

WAYNE, a post-office of Phillips co., Ark.

WAYNE, a township in the W. part of Adams co., Ohio. Population, 1682.

WAYNE, a township in the S. E. part of Ashtabula co., Ohio. Population, 899.

WAYNE, a township forming the N. E. extremity of Auglaize co., Ohio. Pop., 671.

WAYNE, a township in the S. part of Belmont co., Ohio. Population, 1918.

WAYNE, a township in the N. part of Butler co., Ohio. Population, 1502.

WAYNE, a township in the N. E. part of Champaign co., Ohio. Population, 1429.

WAYNE, a township forming the N. E. extremity of Clermont co., Ohio, intersected by the Hillsborough and Cincinnati railroad. Population, 1394.

WAYNE, a township in the E. part of Clinton co., Ohio. Population, 1435.

WAYNE, a township in the S. part of Columbiana co., Ohio. Population, 977.

WAYNE, a township forming the N. E. extremity of Darke co., Ohio. Pop., 1162.

WAYNE, a township forming the S. E. extremity of Fayette co., Ohio. Pop., 1243.

WAYNE, a township in the W. part of Jefferson co., Ohio, intersected by the Steubenville and Indiana railroad. Pop., 1801.

WAYNE, a township in the W. part of Knox co., Ohio. Population, 1152.

WAYNE, a township in the W. part of Monroe co., Ohio. Population, 1177.

WAYNE, a township forming the N. E. extremity of Montgomery co., Ohio, intersected by the Miami canal. Population, 1090.

WAYNE, a township in the S. central part of Muskingum co., Ohio, intersected by the Muskingum river. Population, 1440.

WAYNE, a township in the S. part of Pickaway co., Ohio, on the W. side of the Scioto river, intersected by the Ohio canal. Pop. 644.

WAYNE, a township in Scioto co., Ohio. Population, 219.

WAYNE, a township forming the N. W. extremity of Tuscarawas co., Ohio, intersected by the Cleveland, Medina and Tuscarawas railroad. Population, 2342.

WAYNE, a township forming the N. E. extremity of Warren co., Ohio, intersected by the Little Miami railroad. It contains the villages of Waynesville and Corwin. Pop., 4081.

WAYNE, a township in the central part of Wayne co., Ohio, bordering on the Ohio and Pennsylvania railroad. Population, 2079.

WAYNE, a township in the N. part of Cass co., Michigan, intersected by the Michigan Central railroad. Population, 682.

WAYNE, a post-office of Wayne co., Mich.

WAYNE, a township in Allen co., Indiana, intersected by several railroads. It contains Fort Wayne, the county seat. Pop., 5282.

WAYNE, a township in Bartholomew co., Indiana. Population, 789.

WAYNE, a township in Fulton co., Indiana. Population, 590.

WAYNE, a township in Hamilton co., Indiana. Population, 955.

WAYNE, a township in Henry co., Indiana. Population, 2075.

WAYNE, a township in Jay co., Indiana. Population, 513.

WAYNE, a township in Kosciusko co., Indiana. Population, 734.

WAYNE, a township in Marion co., Indiana. Population, 2323.

WAYNE, a township in Montgomery co., Indiana, 1249.

WAYNE, a township in Noble co., Indiana. Population, 624.

WAYNE, a township in Owen co., Indiana. Population, 1138.

WAYNE, a township in Randolph co., Indiana. Population, 1136.

WAYNE, a township in Wayne co., Indiana, intersected by the Central railroad and others. It contains the village of Richmond. Population, 4959.

WAYNE, a township in Stephenson co., Illinois. Population, 444.

WAYNE, a township in Buchanan co., Missouri. Population, 336.

WAYNE, a post-office of Henry co., Iowa.

WAYNE, a township forming the S. W. extremity of Lafayette co., Wisconsin. Population, 336.

WAYNE, a township forming the N. E. extremity of Washington co., Wisconsin. Population, 714.

WAYNE CENTRE, a post-office of Dupage co., Illinois.

WAYNE CITY, a village of Jackson co., Missouri, on the right bank of the Missouri river. It is the landing-place for Independence, from which it is 4 or 5 miles distant.

WAYNE COURT HOUSE, capital of Wayne co., Virginia, 275 miles in a direct line W. from Richmond. Laid out in 1842.

WAYNE FOUR CORNERS, a post-office of Steuben co., New York.

WAYNESBOROUGH, a pleasant post-borough of Washington township, Franklin county, Pennsylvania, on the turnpike leading from Mercersburg to Baltimore, 57 miles S. W. from Harrisburg. It is one of the principal towns of the county, containing a number of fine churches, and a newspaper office. The houses are chiefly built of stone. The surrounding country is of limestone formation, fertile, and highly cultivated. Population in 1850, 1019.

WAYNESBOROUGH, a post-village of Augusta county, Virginia, on or near the Central railroad, and on the South river, at the W. base of the Blue Ridge, 103 miles W. N. W. from Richmond. The village contains 2 or 3 churches, and an academy. Population-estimated at 600.

WAYNESBOROUGH, a post-village of Wayne county, North Carolina, on the left bank of the Neuse river, below the mouth of Little river, and on the North Carolina railroad, 51 miles S. E. from Raleigh, and about 1 mile W. from the Weldon and Wilmington railroad. It was formerly the county seat. Two or three newspapers are issued here.

WAYNESBOROUGH, a post-village, capital of Burke county, Georgia, 30 miles S. from Augusta. It contains, besides the county buildings, 2 churches, an academy, and several stores. A railroad extends from this village to the Central railroad at Millen, and in the opposite direction to Augusta.

WAYNESBOROUGH, a post-village, capital of Wayne co., Tennessee, 90 miles S. W. from Nashville, is situated in a hilly and fertile country, and has several stores.

WAYNESBURG, a village of Chester co., Pennsylvania, 48 miles W. by N. from Philadelphia, with which it is connected by a turnpike.

WAYNESBURG, a thriving town of Franklin township, and capital of Greene county, Pennsylvania, 45 miles S. by W. from Pittsburg. It is situated in a pleasant valley, which has a fertile soil. It contains a handsome court house, 5 or 6 churches, 1 seminary on one bank, and a college under the direction of the Cumberland Presbyterians. Two newspapers are published here. Population, in 1850, 852; in 1853, about 1200.

WAYNESBURG, a small village of Mifflin co., Pennsylvania.

WAYNESBURG, a post-village of Lincoln co., Kentucky, 64 miles S. from Frankfort, has 3 stores.

WAYNESBURG, a post-village of Sandy township, Stark county, Ohio, on the Sandy and Beaver canal, 12 miles S. E. from Canton. It is surrounded by a rich country, from which large quantities of wheat are exported. Population estimated at 800.

WAYNESBURG, a thriving village in Congress township, Wayne co., Ohio, 18 miles N. W. from Wooster.

WAYNESBURG, a small village of Decatur co., Indiana, 14 miles S. W. from Greenfield.

WAYNESFIELD, a post-village of Auglaize co., Ohio.

WAYNESFIELD, a township of Lucas co., Ohio, on the left side of Maumee river, and intersected by the Wabash and Erie canal. It contains Maumee city, the county seat. Population, 2371.

WAYNESVILLE, a post-village, capital of Haywood county, North Carolina, on the Western turnpike, 285 miles W. from Raleigh. It is situated between the Blue Ridge and Iron mountain, in an elevated and hilly region.

WAYNESVILLE, a post-village, capital of Wayne co., Georgia, 176 miles S. E. from Milledgeville. It has a church, academy, and 1 store.

WAYNESVILLE, a thriving post-village of Wayne township, Warren county, Ohio, on the Little Miami river, and near the railroad of that name, 37 miles N. N. E. from Cincinnati. It is a place of active trade, and has a newspaper office, a woollen factory, and several mills in operation. Laid out in 1802. Population in 1850, 756.

WAYNESVILLE, a post-village of De Witt co., Illinois, near the Chicago and Mississippi railroad, 12 miles N. W. of Clinton. It has 8 or 10 stores, and about 450 inhabitants.

WAYNESVILLE, a small post-village, capital of Pulaski county, Missouri, on a fork of the Gasconade river, 80 miles S. from Jefferson City. It has an active trade in pine lumber.

WAYNETOWN, a small post-village of Montgomery co., Indiana, 10 miles W. N. W. from Crawfordsville.

WAYNMANVILLE, a post-office of Upson co. Ga.

WAYPORT, a small village of Monroe co., Indiana, 8 miles N. from Bloomington.

WEA CREEK, of Indiana, enters the Wabash river from the S., 4 miles below Lafayette.

WEA or WEATON, a village in Tippecanoe co., Indiana, near the Wabash river, on the Wabash and Erie canal, 70 miles N. W. from Indianapolis.

WEAKLEY, a county in the N. N. W. part of Tennessee, bordering on Kentucky: area estimated at 600 square miles. It is intersected by several forks of Obion river. The surface is nearly level; the soil is fertile. Indian corn, tobacco, and pork are the staples. In 1850 it produced 736,930 bushels of corn; 2,228,990 pounds of tobacco, and 85,464 of butter. It contained 9 churches, 2 newspaper offices, 83 pupils attending public schools, and 40 attending other schools. The Nashville and Mississippi railroad will pass through the county, and the Mobile and Ohio railroad near the western border. Capital, Dresden. Population, 14,608; of whom 11,538 were free, and 3170, slaves.

WEAKLEY, a post-office of Smith co., Texas.

WEARE, a post-township in Hillsborough co., New Hampshire, 14 miles S. W. from Concord, intersected by the Merrimack and Connecticut River railroad. It contains the villages of East Ware and North Ware, both on the railroad, and various manufactories. Pop., 2435.

WEARE'S COVE, a post-office of Sevier co., Tennessee.

WEASEL, a village of Essex co., New Jersey, on the right bank of the Passaic river, 60 miles N. E. from Trenton, contains about 40 dwellings.

WEATHERLY, a post-office of Carbon co., Pa.

WEATHERSFIELD, a post-township in Windsor co., Vermont, 65 miles S. by E. from Montpelier, on Connecticut river, intersected by the Black river, which affords water-power. It contains the manufacturing village of Perkinsville and 2 or 3 others. Ascutney mountain is situated on its northern boundary. Population, 1851.

WEATHERSFIELD, a township in the S. part of Trumbull co., Ohio, intersected by the Mahoning river. Population, 1717.

WEATHERSFIELD, a thriving village of Henry co., Illinois, 55 miles N. N. W. from Peoria.

WEATHERSFIELD CENTRE, a post-office of Windsor co., Vermont.

WEAVERSVILLE, a post-village of Northampton co., Pennsylvania, 100 miles E. N. E. from Harrisburg.

WEAVERSVILLE, a post-office of Fauquier co., Va., 114 miles N. by W. from Richmond.

WEAVERVILLE, or WEAVERSVILLE, a post-town of Trinity co., California, near one of the branches of Trinity river. Population in 1853, about 2500. The votes polled September 7th of this year amounted to 545.

WEBB, a county in the S. part of Texas, bordering on the Rio del Norte river, which separates it from Mexico, has an area of about 3135 square miles. The Nueces river forms its boundary on the N. The land is adapted to cotton, sugar-cane, and corn, but its cultivation is hindered by frequent inroads of the Indians. The chief business of the inhabitants is the raising of horses and cattle. This county is not included in the census of 1850. Named in honor of Judge James Webb, formerly of Florida. Capital, Laredo.

WEBBER'S PRAIRIE, a post-office of Travis co., Texas, 18 miles E. by S. from Austin.

WEBB'S BROOK, a post-office of Hancock co., Maine.

WEBB'S FORD, a post-office of Rutherford co., North Carolina.

WEBB'S MILLS, a post-office of Chemung co., New York.

WEBB'S MILLS, a post-office of Ritchie co., Virginia.

WEBB'S PRAIRIE, a post-office of Franklin co., Illinois.

WEBBSVILLE, a small village of Newton co., Georgia.

WEBER, a county in the N. W. part of Utah Territory, has an area estimated at about 12,000 square miles. It is bounded on the N. by Oregon, and on the W. by California, and is drained by Bear river, and other smaller streams. A large portion of the Great Salt lake lies within its borders. In 1850 it produced 5505 bushels of wheat; 1413 of potatoes, and 5796 pounds of butter. It contained in that year 2 academies. Capital not yet established. Population, 1186.

WEBER RIVER, rises in Salt lake county, Utah, and flowing first N. W. and then S. W., falls into the Great Salt lake. It forms part of the boundary between Davis and Weber counties.

WEBSTER, a new county of Iowa, comprising the late counties of Risley and Yell. It lies a little N. and W. of the central part of the state, and is 48 miles long, and 24 wide, with an area of 1150 square miles. It is drained by the Des Moines river, and the Ligard and Boone branches of the same stream. The centre of the county is about 145 miles N. W. from Iowa city. The population is unknown, the county having been formed since the census of 1850.

WEBSTER, a post-township in Lincoln co., Maine, 20 miles S. W. from Augusta. Population, 1110.

WEBSTER, a post-township in Worcester co., Massachusetts, intersected by the Norwich and Worcester railroad, 55 miles W. S. W. from Boston. The principal villages are Webster and North Webster, both on the railroad. The streams afford excellent water-power, which is largely employed in manufactures. Population of the township in 1840, 1043; in 1850, 2371.

WEBSTER, a post-township forming the N. E. extremity of Monroe co., New York, on Lake Ontario. Population, 2446.

WEBSTER, a small post-village of Westmoreland co., Pennsylvania, on the Monongahela river, 20 miles S. W. from Greensburg.

WEBSTER, a post-village of Jackson co., North Carolina, on a small branch of the Tennessee river.

WEBSTER, a post-office of Winston co., Miss.

WEBSTER, a post-office of Breckenridge co., Kentucky.

WEBSTER, a small post-village of Darke co., Ohio.

WEBSTER, a township in Wood co., Ohio. Population, 237.

WEBSTER, a post-township in the N. part of Washtenaw co., Michigan, partly intersected by the Huron river. Population, 924.

WEBSTER, a village of Kosciusko co., Indiana, on Tippecanoe river, about 120 miles N. by E. from Indianapolis.

WEBSTER, a post-office of Wayne co., Ind.

WEBSTER, a post-office of Hancock co., Ill.

WEBSTER, a post-office of Oregon co., Mo.

WEBSTER, a small village of Washington co., Missouri, about 75 miles S. W. from St. Louis.

WEBSTER, a small town of Sacramento co., California, on the right bank of the Sacramento river, about 20 miles below Sacramento city.

WEBSTER'S MILLS, a small post-village of Fulton co., Pennsylvania.

WEEDOWEE, a post-village, capital of Randolph co., Alabama, at the confluence of the Tallapoosa and Little Tallapoosa rivers, about 150 miles E. from Tuscaloosa. The county seat was located here quite recently.

WEED'S CORNERS, a post-office of Walworth co., Wisconsin.

WEEDSPORT, a post-village in Brutus township, Cayuga co., New York, on the Erie canal, and the Rochester and Syracuse Direct railroad, 24 miles W. from Syracuse. It contains 2 or 3 churches, and a number of stores and warehouses.

WEEKS' MILLS, a post-office of Kennebec co., Maine.

WEELAUNEE, a post-office of Winnebago co., Wisconsin.

WEeping WILLOW, a post-office of Davis co., Iowa.

WEEVAKATKEE creek, Alabama, flows southward through Coosa county into Coosa river.

WEEVAKAVILLE, a post-village in Talladega co., Alabama, 107 miles E. from Tuscaloosa.

WEEGEE, a post-office of Belmont co., Ohio.

WEGATCHIE, a post-office of St. Lawrence co., New York.

WEGUOC a post-office of Jasper co., Ind.

WEHADKEE, a post-office of Randolph co., Alabama.

WEHOGA, a post-office of Benton co., Ala.

WEIR'S BRIDGE, a post-village and watering place of Belknap county, New Hampshire, on Lake Winnipiseogee, on the Boston, Concord, and Montreal railroad, 30 miles N. E. from Concord.

WEISENBURG, a post-township of Lehigh co., Pennsylvania, about 12 miles W. from Allentown. Population, 1762.

WEISESBURG, a post-village in Baltimore co., Maryland, 50 miles N. by W. from Annapolis.

WEISSPORT, a post-village of Carbon co., Pennsylvania, on the Lehigh river, 3 or 4 miles below Mauch Chunk.

WELAKA, a post-village of Putnam co., Florida, on St. John's river.

WELBORN, or WELBOURN, a township in Conway co., Arkansas. Population, 544.

WELCH'S MILLS, a post-office of Cabarrus co., North Carolina.

WELCHVILLE, a post-office of Oxford co., Maine.

WELCHER'S MILL, a post-office of Roane co., Tennessee.

WELD, a post-township of Franklin co., Maine, about 44 miles N. W. from Augusta. Population, 995.

WELDON, a thriving post-village of Halifax county, North Carolina, on the right bank of Roanoke river, at the head of steamboat navigation, 95 miles N. E. from Raleigh. Four railroads meet here, viz. the Wilmington and Raleigh, the Seaboard and Roanoke, the Gaston and Raleigh, and the Petersburg railroad. Two newspapers are published. A canal has been made around the falls, by which batteaux can ascend to Danville.

WELDON RIVER, rising in the S. part of Iowa, flows southward through Decatur co., into Missouri, and enters the Crooked fork of Grand river, in Grundy county, near Trenton.

WELD'S FERRY, or WELD'S LANDING, a post-village in Dubuque co., Iowa, on the W. bank of Mississippi river, 12 miles N. by W. from Dubuque.

WELLBORN, a post-village, capital of Coffee co., Alabama, about 70 miles in a direct line S. by E. from Montgomery. It is a new place, and contains but few dwellings.

WELLBORN'S MILLS, a post-office of Houston co., Georgia.

WELLER, a township in Richland co., Ohio. Population, 1290.

WELLERSBURG, a thriving post-village of Somerset co., Pennsylvania, on the plank-road from Cumberland to West Newton, 128 miles W. S. W. from Harrisburg. Population, about 250.

WELLERVILLE, a post-office of Crawford co., Ohio.

WELLFLEET, a post-township of Barnstable co., Massachusetts, on the northern part of the peninsula of Cape Cod, 65 miles by water and 100 by land S. E. from Boston. The village is situated on the W. side of the peninsula, at the head of Wellfleet Bay, which affords good anchorage for vessels being protected from the sea by several islands. The mackerel fishery is more extensively carried on here than at any other port of Massachusetts, Gloucester only excepted. In 1851, 79 vessels (tons, 5411) and 852 men and boys were employed in the mackerel fishery alone; the inspections for the year amounted to 11,367½ barrels. Pop. of the township, 2411.

WELLINGTON, a post-township in Piscataquis co., Maine, 50 miles N. by E. from Augusta. Population, 600.

WELLINGTON, a small post-village of Morgan co., Georgia, about 110 miles W. from Augusta.

WELLINGTON, a post-township in the S. W. part of Lorain co., Ohio, intersected by the W. branch of Black river. Pop., 1556.

WELLINGTON, a post-village and railway station in the above township, on the Cleveland and Columbus railroad, 36 miles S. W. from Cleveland.

WELLINGTON, a post-office of Lake co., Ill.

WELLINGTON, a post-village in Lafayette co., Missouri, on the S. bank of Missouri river, 115 miles N. W. from Jefferson City.

WELLS, a county in the E. N. E. part of Indiana, contains 380 square miles. It is intersected by the Wabash river. The surface is undulating or nearly level, and the soil is fertile. There are a few small prairies in the county: the other parts produce the oak, hickory, beech, ash, and sugar-maple. Indian corn, wheat, oats, and hay are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 148,565 bushels of corn; 50,289 of wheat; 20,089 of oats, and 2757 tons of hay. It contained 9 churches, 2 newspaper offices, and 1510 pupils attending public schools. It is traversed by the Fort Wayne and Muncie railroad, not yet finished. Capital, Bluffton. Population, 6152.

WELLS, a post-township of York co., Maine, bordering on the Atlantic and intersected by the Portland, Saco, and Portsmouth railroad. Population, 2945.

WELLS, a post-township in Rutland co., Vermont, 68 miles S. S. W. from Montpelier. Population, 804.

WELLS, a post-township of Hamilton co., New York, about 84 miles N. N. W. from Albany. Population, 486.

WELLS, a township forming the N. E. extremity of Bradford co., Pennsylvania. Population, 1113.

WELLS, a small village of Bradford co., Pennsylvania.

WELLS, a new township of Fulton co., Pennsylvania. Population, 420.

WELLS, a township of Jefferson co., Ohio, on the W. side of Ohio river, opposite Wheeling. It is intersected by the Central Ohio, Marietta and Cincinnati, and several other railroads. Population, 1822.

WELLS, a township in Laporte co., Indiana. Population, 638.

WELLSBOROUGH, a post-borough, capital of Tioga county, Pennsylvania, 145 miles N. by W. from Harrisburg. It is neatly built, and contains a stone court house, several churches, and an academy. Two or three newspapers are issued here. Laid out in 1806, and incorporated in 1830. Population in 1850, 620.

WELLSBURG, a post-village of Chemung co., New York, on the Chemung river, and on the New York and Erie railroad, 276 miles from New York city.

WELLSBURG, a small village of Erie co., Pennsylvania, 26 miles S. W. from Erie.

WELLSBURG, a thriving post-village, capital of Brooke co., Virginia, is beautifully situated on the Ohio river, 16 miles above Wheeling. It contains 5 churches, 2 academies, 1 bank, 2 newspaper offices, 1 manufactory of cotton, 2 of glass, 1 of woollen goods, 2 of stone ware, 6 flour mills, and 1 paper mill. Rich mines of coal are worked in the vicinity. Pop. in 1853, about 3000.

WELLSBURG, a small post-village of St. Charles co., Missouri, about 38 miles W. N. W. from St. Louis.

WELLS' CORNERS, a post-office of Orange co., New York.

WELLS' CORNERS, a post-office of Erie co., Pennsylvania.

WELLSMITH, a post-office of Union co., Ga.

WELLS' DÉPÔT, a post-office of York co., Maine, on the Portland, Saco and Portsmouth railroads, 28 miles S. W. from Portland.

WELLS' MILLS, a thriving post-village of Appanoose co., Iowa, on the Chariton river, several miles S. E. from Centreville.

WELLS' RIVER, in the W. central part of Vermont, rises in Caledonia county, and falls into the Connecticut river in Orange county. It affords some fine mill seats.

WELLS' RIVER, a thriving post-village of Orange co., Vermont, on the right bank of the Connecticut, at the mouth of Wells' River, and on the Connecticut and Passumpsic Rivers railroad, 30 miles E. by S. from Montpelier. The Merrimack and Connecticut Rivers railroad will here cross the Connecticut. It is a place of active trade, and contains a bank and various manufactories, for which Wells' River affords good water-power.

WELLSVILLE, a post-village of Scio township, Alleghany county, New York, on the E. bank of the Genesee river, and on the New York and Erie railroad, 367 miles from New York city. A plank-road connects it with Coudersport in Pennsylvania. The railroad station is called Genesee. The inhabitants are extensively engaged in the lumber trade. Pop., about 600.

WELLSVILLE, a post-office of York co., Pa.

WELLSVILLE, a thriving post-village of Yellow Creek township, Columbiana county, Ohio, on the Ohio river, 52 miles below Pittsburg. It is at the terminus of the Pittsburg and Cleveland railroad, which is to be extended southward to Wheeling. It has an active trade, and contains several steam mills. A newspaper is issued here. Population in 1850, 1546.

WELLVILLE, a post-office of Nottoway co., Virginia.

WELSHFIELD, a post-office of Geauga co., O.

WELSH RUN, a post-office of Franklin co., Pennsylvania.

WELTON, a post-office of Clinton co., Iowa.

WENDELL, a post-township in Sullivan co., New Hampshire, 33 miles N. W. from Concord. Population, 789.

WENDELL, a post-township of Franklin co., Massachusetts, intersected by the Vermont and Massachusetts railroad, about 40 miles N. by E. from Springfield. Population, 920.

WENDELL'S DÉPÔT, a post-office of Franklin co., Massachusetts, on the Vermont and Massachusetts railroad, 40 miles W. by N. from Fitchburg.

WENHAM, a post-township of Essex co., Massachusetts, intersected by the Eastern railroad, 21 miles N. by E. from Boston. The manufacture of boots and shoes is an important branch of business. Wenham pond furnishes large quantities of ice for exportation. Population, 977.

WENLOCK, a township in Essex co., Vermont, 55 miles N. E. of Montpelier. Pop., 26.

WENTWORTH, a post-township in Grafton co., New Hampshire, intersected by the Boston, Concord, and Montreal railroad, 50 miles N. N. W. from Concord. Population, 1197.

WENTWORTH, a post-village, capital of Rockingham co., North Carolina, 106 miles N. W. from Raleigh. Pop., about 300.

WENTWORTH, a post-village in Lake co., Illinois, on Des Plaines river, 40 miles N. N. W. from Chicago.

WENTWORTH'S LOCATION, a post-township in Coos co., New Hampshire. Population, 55.

WERTEMBERG, Pennsylvania. See WURTEMBERG.

WESAW, a township in the S. W. part of Berrien co., Michigan.

WESCOSVILLE, a post-office of Lehigh co., Pennsylvania.

WESLEY, a post-township in Washington

co., Maine, 120 miles E. N. E. from Augusta. Population, 329.

WESLEY, a post-village of Venango co., Pennsylvania, 60 miles N. from Pittsburg.

WESLEY, a small village of Haywood co., Tennessee, 190 miles W. S. W. from Nashville.

WESLEY, a small village of Tipton co., Tenn.

WESLEY, a post-village of Hickman co., Ky.

WESLEY, a post-township in the W. part of Washington co., Ohio. Population, 1560.

WESLEY, a post-village in the above township, 16 miles W. from Marietta.

WESLEY, a post-village in Fulton co., Indiana, 107 miles N. from Indianapolis.

WESLEY CHAPEL, a post-office of Tippecanoe co., Indiana.

WESLEY CITY, a post-village of Tazewell co., Illinois, on the left bank of the Illinois river, 4 miles below Peoria. The produce shipped here in 1852, was estimated at $150,000.

WESLEYVILLE, a post-village of Erie co., Pennsylvania, on the Ridge road, 5 miles E. from Erie, and 2 miles from the lake. Population, about 200.

WESOBULGA, a post-office of Randolph co., Alabama.

WEST, a township of Huntingdon co., Pennsylvania, about 8 miles N. from Huntingdon, intersected by the Pennsylvania or Central railroad. Population, 1464.

WEST, a township forming the W. S. W. extremity of Columbiana co., Ohio, intersected by the Sandy and Beaver canal, and the Cleveland and Pittsburg railroad. Pop., 2110.

WEST ACTON, a post-village of Acton township, Middlesex co., Massachusetts, on the Boston and Fitchburg railroad, 27 miles N.W. from Boston.

WEST ADDISON, a post-village of Steuben co., New York, about 230 miles W. by S. from Albany.

WEST ALBANY, a village of Orleans co., Vermont, about 35 miles N. E. by N. from Montpelier.

WEST ALBURG, a post-office of Grand Isle co., Vermont, on Lake Champlain, opposite Rouse's Point, and on the Vermont Central railroad, 77 miles N. W. from Montpelier.

WEST ALEXANDER, a post-village of Preble co., Ohio, on the Dayton turnpike, and on Twin creek, 90 miles W. from Columbus. It has some water-power.

WEST ALEXANDRIA, a post-village of Washington co., Pennsylvania, on the National road, 17 miles W. S. W. from Washington.

WEST ALMOND, a post-township of Alleghany county, New York, about 78 miles S. by W. from Rochester. Population, 976.

WEST ALTON, a post-village in Belknap co., New Hampshire, near the Cochecho railroad, 25 miles N. E. by N. from Concord.

WEST AMESBURY, a post-village of Amesbury township, Essex co., Massachusetts, near the Merrimack river, 41 miles N. N. E. from Boston.

WEST AMWELL, a township in Hunterdon co., New Jersey, about 15 miles N. W. from Trenton.

WEST ANDOVER, a post-village of Merrimack co., New Hampshire, on the Northern railroad, 33 miles N. W. by N. from Concord.

WEST ANDOVER, a post-office of Ashtabula co., Ohio.

WEST ANSON, a post-office of Somerset co., Maine.

WEST ARLINGTON, a post-village in Bennington co., Vermont, 100 miles S. S. W. from Montpelier.

WEST ASHFORD, a post-office of Windham co., Connecticut, 30 miles E. N. E. of Hartford.

WEST AUBURN, a post-office of Susquehanna co., Pennsylvania.

WEST AURORA, a post-office of Erie co., N. Y.

WEST AUSABLE, a post-office of Clinton co., New York.

WEST AVON, a post-office of Hartford co., Connecticut.

WEST BAINBRIDGE, a post-office of Chenequo co., New York.

WEST BALDWIN, a post-office of Cumberland co., Maine.

WEST BALTIMORE, a post-village of Montgomery co., Ohio.

WEST BARNSTABLE, a post-village in Barnstable co., Massachusetts, 65 miles S. E. from Boston.

WEST BARRE, a post-office of Orleans co., New York.

WEST BARRE, a post-office of Huntingdon co., Pennsylvania.

WEST BARRE, a post-office of Fulton co., O.

WEST BATAVIA, a post-office of Genesee co., New York.

WEST BATON ROUGE, a parish in the S. E. central part of Louisiana, on the W. bank of the Mississippi river: area about 240 square miles. The surface is a level plain, which is partly subject to be overflowed. The arable land is mostly confined to the margin of the river, which is elevated a few feet above the general surface. The soil produces sugar and Indian corn in abundance. In 1850 there were raised 7920 hogsheads of sugar; 518,870 gallons of molasses, and 151,750 bushels of corn. There were two saw and planing mills and 7 coopering shops. It contained 2 churches, 250 pupils attending public schools, and 50 attending academies or other schools. Population, 6270; of whom 1920 were free, and 4350, slaves.

WEST BEAVER, a township forming the S. W. extremity of Union co., Pennsylvania. Population, 1192.

WEST BEAVER, a small village of Union co., Pennsylvania.

WEST BEAVER, a post-office of Columbiana co., Ohio.

WEST BECKET, a post-office of Berkshire co., Massachusetts.

WEST BEDFORD, a post-village of Coshocton co., Ohio, 73 miles E. N. E. from Columbus.

WEST BEDFORD, a village in White co., Ind., 95 miles N. W. by N. from Indianapolis.

WEST BEND, a post-office of Polk co., Mo.

WEST BEND, a township in the central part of Washington co., Wisconsin. Pop. 672.

WEST BEND, a thriving post-village in the above township, and capital of Washington county, Wisconsin, on the Milwaukee river, and on the Milwaukee and Fond du Lac plank-road, about 20 miles W. from Lake Michigan, and 35 miles N. N. W. from Milwaukee city. The river affords fine water-power. The village is situated in a rich farming district, which is improving rapidly, and is on the Milwaukee and Fond du Lac railroad, (unfinished;) it contains 1 or 2 churches, 2 mills, and numerous stores. Population in 1853, about 600.

WEST BERGEN, a post-village of Genesee co., New York, on the Rochester and Buffalo railroad, 22 miles W. S. W. from Rochester.

WEST BERKSHIRE, a post-office of Franklin co., Vermont.

WEST BERLIN, a post-office of Rensselaer co., New York.

WEST BERLIN, a post-office of St. Clair co., Michigan.

WEST BETHANY, a post-office of Genesee co., New York.

WEST BETHEL, a post-village of Oxford co., Maine, on the Atlantic and St. Lawrence railroad, 74 miles N. W. by N. from Portland.

WEST BETHLEHEM, a township of Washington co., Pennsylvania, about 32 miles S. by W. from Pittsburg. Population, 2114.

WEST BLOOMFIELD, a post-village of Ontario county, New York, situated in West Bloomfield township, on the Canandaigua and Niagara Falls railroad, 16 miles W. from Canandaigua. It contains several churches. Population of the township, 1698.

WEST BLOOMFIELD, a post-village of Essex co., New Jersey, about 6 miles N. W. from Newark.

WEST BLOOMFIELD, a post-township in the S. central part of Oakland co., Michigan, intersected by the Michigan Central railroad. Population, 1086.

WEST BOLTON, a post-office of Chittenden co., Vermont.

WESTBOROUGH, a post-township of Worcester co., Massachusetts, intersected by the Boston and Worcester railroad, 32 miles W. by S. from Boston. The village is pleasantly situated on the railroad, and contains 3 churches and several stores. It is noted for the manufacture of sleighs; boots and shoes are also manufactured to some extent. A State Reform School is located in the township, on the borders of a beautiful sheet of water, about 2 miles west from the village. The institution occupies a spacious brick edifice, standing in the midst of extensive and highly cultivated grounds. The garden comprises the slope between the building and the water's edge. During the year 1852, the capacity of the institution was greatly increased by extensive additions made to the main building. (See Public Institutions, page 677.) A capacious water-cure establishment is at present being fitted up about half a mile E. of the Reform School, between it and the village. A handsome building for a high-school is now in course of erection here. Pop. 2371.

WESTBOROUGH, a post-village of Clinton co., Ohio, on the Cincinnati and Hillsborough railroad.

WEST BOSCAWEN, a post-office of Merrimack co., New Hampshire.

WEST BOXFORD, a post-office of Essex co., Massachusetts.

WEST BOYLSTON, a post-township in Worcester co., Massachusetts, 40 miles W. by N. from Boston, intersected by the Fitchburg and Worcester railroad. Population, 1749.

WEST BRADFORD, a township of Chester co., Pennsylvania, about 6 miles W. from West Chester. Population, 1585.

WEST BRAINTREE, a post-office of Orange co., Vermont.

WEST BRANCH, a post-village of Oneida co., New York, on a branch of the Mohawk river, 10 or 11 miles N. from Rome.

WEST BRANCH, a township of Potter co., Pennsylvania, about 24 miles E. S. E. from Coudersport. Population, 92.

WEST BRANDYWINE, a township of Chester co., Pennsylvania, about 12 miles W. by N. from West Chester.

WEST BRATTLEBOROUGH, a post-village in Windham co., Vermont, 115 miles S. from Montpelier.

WEST BREWSTER, a post-office of Barnstable co., Massachusetts,

WEST BRIDGETON, a post-office of Cumberland co., Maine.

WEST BRIDGEWATER, a post-township in Plymouth co., Massachusetts, on Fall River railroad, 26 miles S. from Boston. Pop., 1447.

WEST BRIGHTON, a post-office of Monroe co., New York.

WESTBROOK, a township in Cumberland county, Maine, intersected by the Presumpscot river, which affords extensive water-power, employed in manufacturing. It contains several villages, the principal of which is Saccarappa, on the York and Cumberland railroad, 7 miles N. by W. from Portland. The township contains 1 bank. Pop., 4852.

WESTBROOK, a post-village in Middlesex co., Connecticut, on Long Island sound, and on the New Haven and New London railroad, 28 miles E. of New Haven. It contains 3 or 4 churches, 3 stores and an academy. Population of the township, 1202.

WESTBROOK, a post-office of Delaware co., New York.

WESTBROOK, a post-office of Bladen co., N.C.

WEST BROOKFIELD, a post-township of Worcester co., Mass., on the Western railroad, 69 miles W. by S. from Boston. Pop., 1344.

WEST BROOKFIELD, a post-office of Stark co., Ohio.

WEST BROOKVILLE, a post-office of Hancock co., Maine, 52 miles E. from Augusta.

WEST BROOKVILLE, a post-office of Sullivan co., New York.

WEST BROWNSVILLE, a post-village of Washington co., Pennsylvania, on the Monongahela river, opposite Brownsville. Pop., 477.

WEST BRUNSWICK, a township in the S. E. part of Schuylkill co., Pennsylvania, intersected by the Reading railroad. Population, 1693.

WEST BUFFALO, a township of Union co., Pennsylvania, about 24 miles S. by W. from Williamsport. Population, 1007.

WEST BUFFALO, a small village of Union co., Pennsylvania.

WEST BUFFALO, a post-office of Scott co., Io.

WEST BURLINGTON, a post-office of Otsego co., New York.

WEST BURLINGTON, a small post-village of Bradford co., Pennsylvania.

WESTBURY, a post-office of Wayne co., N. Y.

WEST BUTLER, a post-office of Wayne co., New York.

WEST BUXTON, a post-office of York co., Me.

WEST CAIRO, a post-office of Allen co., Ohio.

WEST CALN, a township of Chester co., Pennsylvania, about 16 miles W. by N. from West Chester. Population, 1508.

WEST CAMBRIDGE, a post-township of Middlesex county, Massachusetts, 6 miles N. W. from Boston. The principal village is on the Fitchburg railroad, from which diverges the Lexington and West Cambridge Branch railroad. It is built principally on one extended street, and contains 3 or 4 churches and several stores. Population in 1840, 1363; in 1850, 2202.

WEST CAMDEN, a post-office of Waldo co. Me.

WEST CAMDEN, a post-village of Oneida co., New York, on the Watertown and Rome railroad, 25 miles W. N. W. from Rome.

WEST CAMERON, a post-office of Steuben co., New York.

WEST CAMP, a post-village of Ulster co., New York, on the W. bank of the Hudson river, 42 miles below Albany.

WEST CAMPTON, a post-office of Grafton co., New Hampshire, 45 miles N. by W. from Concord.

WEST CANAAN, a post-office of Grafton co., New Hampshire, on the Northern railroad, 56 miles N. W. from Concord.

WEST CANAAN, a post-village in Madison co., Ohio, 22 miles W. by N. from Columbus.

WEST CANADA CREEK, of Herkimer county, in the N. E. central part of New York, after forming a small part of the boundary between Oneida and Herkimer counties, falls into the Mohawk river at Herkimer. The noted Trenton falls are on this stream.

WEST CANDOR, a post-office of Tioga co., New York.

WEST CARLISLE, a post-village of Coshocton co., Ohio, about 64 miles E. N. E. from Columbus. It has several hundred inhabitants.

WEST CARLTON, a post-village in the N. part of Orleans co., New York.

WEST CAYUTA, a post-village of Chemung co., New York, 15 miles N. E. from Elmira.

WEST CHARLESTON, a post-village in Penobscot co., Maine, 70 miles N. E. by N. from Augusta.

WEST CHARLESTON, a post-village in Orleans co., Vermont, near Clyde river, 55 miles N. E. by N. from Montpelier.

WEST CHARLESTON, a post-village of Miami co., Ohio, about 11 miles S. by E. from Troy.

WEST CHARLTON, a post-village of Saratoga co., New York, about 30 miles N. N. W. from Albany.

WEST CHAZY, a small post-village in Champlain township, Clinton co., New York, on the Plattsburgh and Montreal railroad, 10 miles N. from Plattsburgh.

WEST CHELMSFORD, a post-office of Middlesex co., Massachusetts, 25 miles N. W. from Boston.

WEST CHESHIRE, a post-office of New Haven co., Connecticut, about 17 miles N. from New Haven.

WESTCHESTER, a county in the S. E. part of New York, bordering on Connecticut and Long Island sound, has an area of about 500 square miles. It is bounded on the W. by the Hudson, and is drained by Croton, Bronx, and Harlem rivers, which turn numerous mills. The surface is hilly, and in the N. W. broken by the highlands. The soil is generally very fertile. Indian corn, oats, potatoes, and grass are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 445,333 bushels of corn; 279,158 of oats; 439,941 of potatoes; 79,646 tons of hay, and 1,547,504 pounds of butter. There were 37 flour mills, 17 saw mills, 2 patent-medicine manufactories, 10 iron foundries, 8 carpet factories, 3 cotton and 3 woollen factories, and 3 chemical works. It contained 122 churches. 5 newspaper offices, 8975 pupils attending public schools, and 1181 attending academies and other schools. Large quantities of marble are found in Mount Pleasant, and some copper has been discovered. The Hudson river is navigable for ships along the entire border. The Hudson River railroad, the Harlem railroad, and the New York and New Haven railroad, all pass through this county, and the aqueduct which supplies the city of New York with water from the Croton river, partly intersects it. Organized in 1788. Seats of justice, White Plains and Bedford. Population, 58,263.

WESTCHESTER, a post-village in New London co., Connecticut, 25 miles S. E. from Hartford.

WESTCHESTER, a post-village of New York, in the township and county of its own name, 12 miles N. E. from New York. It contains several churches. Sloops ascend Westchester creek to this village. Pop. of the township, 2492.

WEST CHESTER, a post-borough, capital of Chester county, Pennsylvania, is finely situated on elevated ground, 26 miles W. from Philadelphia. This place is remarkable for the beauty of its situation, the excellence of its schools, and the elegance of its public buildings. The private houses are nearly all built of brick, and much taste is displayed in the embellishment of the adjoining grounds. The court house is a beautiful and substantial edifice, recently erected, in the Corinthian style, with six noble columns in front. Opposite to this is the Chester County Bank, a Doric structure of white marble, which would be creditable to any city in the Union. The town also contains several fine churches, a cabinet of natural sciences, and a horticultural hall. Some of these are built of a kind of stone found in the vicinity, which has a greenish tint, and is admirably adapted to the Gothic style of architecture. The bank has a capital of $225,000. The educational institutions include an academy and a number of boarding schools, which are generally well conducted and flourishing. Bolmar's boarding school for boys is a very large and extensively patronized institution. The buildings and other improvements probably cost $50,000. The town is supplied with good water from a spring in the vicinity, and is lighted with gas. Three newspapers are published here. A branch railroad connects West Chester with the Philadelphia and Columbia railroad, and a more direct railroad to Philadelphia is in course of construction. Population in 1850, 3172; in 1853, about 4500.

WEST CHESTER, a post-village of Butler co., Ohio, 106 miles W. S. W. from Columbus.

WEST CHESTER, a township in Porter co., Indiana. Population, 360.

WEST CHESTERFIELD, a post-office of Hampshire co., Massachusetts.

WEST CLAREMONT, a post-office of Sullivan co., New Hampshire.

WEST CLARKSVILLE, a post-office of Alleghany co., New York.

WEST CLIMAX, a post-office of Kalamazoo co., Michigan.

WEST COLESVILLE, a post-office of Broome co., New York.

WEST COLUMBIA, a thriving post-village of Mason co., Virginia, on the Ohio river, 160 miles below Wheeling. It owes its growth and importance to the valuable salt springs recently found here: 5 or 6 wells have been sunk, and several furnaces put in operation. Laid out about 1850.

WEST CONCORD, a post-village of Merrimack co., New Hampshire, on the Northern railroad, with a station on the Merrimack and Connecticut Rivers railroad, 3 miles N. W. from Concord. It contains manufactories of cottons, flannels and other articles.

WEST CONCORD, a post-village in Concord township, Essex co., Vermont, on Moose river, about 37 miles N. E. by E. from Montpelier, and 7 miles E. from the depôt at St. Johnsbury. The Moose river affords excellent water-power. This village has risen out of the woods within the last 6 years, and is now the largest and most flourishing in the county. It contains an iron foundry, an extensive machine shop, a pail factory, shingle and clap-board machines, large grain and lumber mills, a church, and 2 stores.

WEST CONCORD, a post-office of Erie co., N. Y.

WEST CONESUS, a post-office of Livingston co., New York.

WEST CONEQUENESSING, a township of Butler co., Pennsylvania, about 12 miles W. from Butler. Population, 1376.

WEST CONSTABLE, a post-office of Franklin co., New York.

WEST CORINNA, a post-office of Penobscot co., Maine.

WEST CORNWALL, a post-office of Addison co., Vermont.

WEST CORNWALL, a thriving post-village in Cornwall township, Litchfield co., Connecticut, on the Housatonic river and railroad, about 37 miles W. by N. from Hartford. It contains 1 or 2 churches, a blast furnace and a number of manufactories.

WEST CREEK, a post-office of Ocean co., N. J.

WEST CREEK, a post-township in Lake co., Indiana. Population, 411.

WEST CUMBERLAND, a post-office of Cumberland co., Maine.

WEST DALE, a village of Delaware co., Pennsylvania, on Crum creek, and on the Philadelphia and West Chester railroad, 10 miles W. S. W. from Philadelphia.

WEST DANBY, a post-office of Tompkins co., New York.

WEST DANVILLE, a post-office of Cumberland co., Maine.

WEST DAVENPORT, a post-office of Delaware co., New York.

WEST DAY, a post-village of Saratoga co., New York, on Sacondaga river, about 50 miles N. by W. from Albany.

WEST DEDHAM, a post-village in Norfolk co., Massachusetts, on the Norfolk County railroad, 12 miles S. W. from Boston.

WEST DEER, a township of Alleghany co., Pennsylvania, about 14 miles N. by E. from Pittsburg. Population, 1716.

WEST DENNIS, a post-village in Dennis township, Barnstable co., Massachusetts, near the western shore of Cape Cod peninsula, about 75 miles S. by E. from Boston. The inhabitants of Dennis are extensively engaged in the mackerel fisheries. In 1851, 47 vessels (tons, 3096) and 858 men and boys were employed in this species of industry. During the year, 10,029½ barrels of mackerel were inspected.

WEST DERBY, a post-village of Derby township, Orleans co., Vermont, on the E. shore of Memphremagog lake, and Banks of Clyde river, about 55 miles N. E. by N. from Montpelier.

WEST DONEGAL, a township of Lancaster co., Pennsylvania, on the Lancaster and Harrisburg railroad, about 20 miles W. N. W. from Lancaster. Population, 1156.

WEST DOVER, a post-office of Piscataquis co., Maine.

WEST DOVER, a post-office of Windham co., Vermont.

WEST DRESDEN, a post-office of Yates co., New York.

WEST DRYDEN, a post-village of Tompkins co., New York, about 170 miles W. by N. from Albany.

WEST DUBLIN, a small village of Fulton co., Pennsylvania.

WEST DUMMERSTON, a post-office of Windham co., Vermont.

WEST DURHAM, a post-office of Cumberland co., Maine.

WEST DUXBURY, a post-office of Plymouth co., Massachusetts.

WEST EARL, a township of Lancaster co., Pennsylvania, on the Conestoga creek, about 11 miles N. E. from Lancaster. Pop., 1672.

WEST EATON, a post-office of Madison co., New York.

WEST EATON, a post-office of Wyoming co., Pennsylvania.

WESTECUNE, a village of Ocean co., New Jersey, on Little Egg Harbor bay, 50 miles S. E. from Trenton, contains 2 stores.

WEST EDMESTON, a post-village of Otsego co., New York, 28 miles S. from Utica.

WEST ELIZABETH, a post-village of Jefferson township, Alleghany co., Pennsylvania, on the left bank of the Monongahela river, 20 miles by water S. from Pittsburg, and opposite Elizabeth borough. Glass is manufactured here. Pop. in 1851, about 500.

WEST ELKTON, a small post-village of Preble co., Ohio, on Elk creek.

WEST ELLERY, a post-office of Chautauque co., New York.

WEST ELY, a post-village of Marion co., Missouri, about 90 miles N. N. E. from Jefferson City.

WEST EMBDEN, a post-office of Somerset co., Maine.

WEST END, a post-office of Bedford co., Pa.

WEST ENFIELD, a post-office of Penobscot co., Maine.

WEST ENFIELD, a post-office of Grafton co., New Hampshire.

WEST ENOSBURG, a post-office of Franklin co., Vermont.

WESTERLOO, a post-township of Albany co., New York, about 20 miles S. W. from Albany. Population, 2860.

WESTERLY, a thriving post-village of Washington co., Rhode Island, on the Pawcatuck river, the boundary between Rhode Island and Connecticut, and on the Stonington and Providence railroad, 45 miles S. W. from Providence. The inhabitants are extensively engaged in cotton and other manufactures. Ship building and the coast trade is also carried on, for which the river affords facilities, being navigable for vessels of from 40 to 50 tons burden. The village contains 3 or 4 churches, 3 banks and about 15 stores. Population of the township, in 1840, 1912; in 1850, 2763.

WESTERMAN'S MILLS, a post-office of Baltimore co., Maryland.

WESTERN, a township of Oneida co., New York, 110 miles W. N. W. from Albany, intersected by the Black River canal. Pop., 2516.

WESTERN, a post-office of Poweshiek co., Io.

WESTERN FORD, a post-office of Randolph co., Va., 240 miles N. W. from Richmond.

WESTERNPORT, a post-village of Alleghany co., Maryland, on the Potomac river, 24 miles S. W. from Cumberland.

WESTERN SARATOGA, a post-village of Union co., Illinois, 142 miles S. from Springfield, owes its rise to a medicinal spring which attracts numerous visitors in the warm season.

WESTERN STAR, a post-office of Summit co., Ohio, 122 miles N. E. from Columbus.

WESTERNVILLE, a post-village of Oneida co., New York, on the Mohawk river, and on the Black River canal, 8 or 9 miles N. N. E. from Rome.

WESTERVILLE, a post-village of Franklin co., Ohio, 14 miles N. E. from Columbus.

WEST EXETER, a post-office of Otsego co., New York.

WEST FAIRFIELD, a post-office of Westmoreland co., Pennsylvania.

WEST FAIRLEE, a post-township of Orange co., Vermont, 29 miles S. E. from Montpelier. Population, 596.

WEST FAIRVIEW, a post-office of Cumberland co., Pennsylvania.

WESTFALL, a post-township of Pike co., Pennsylvania, on the Delaware river, about 68 miles E. by N. from Wilkesbarre. Pop. 567.

WEST FALLOWFIELD, a township of Chester co., Pennsylvania, about 20 miles W. by S. from West Chester. Population, 2290.

WEST FALLOWFIELD, a township of Crawford co., Pennsylvania, about 14 miles S. W. from Meadville, intersected by the Beaver and Erie canal. Population, 654.

WEST FALLS, a post-office of Erie co., N. Y.

WEST FALMOUTH, a post-office of Cumberland co., Maine.

WEST FALMOUTH, a post-office of Barnstable co., Massachusetts.

WEST FARMINGTON, a post-office of Ontario co., New York.

WEST FARMS, a post-township of Westchester co., New York, borders on the East river, and is intersected by the Harlem railroad. Population, 4436.

WEST FARMS, a post-village in the above township, on Bronx river, at the head of sloop navigation, 12 miles N. by E. from New York. It contains 3 or 4 churches, and several factories and mills.

WEST FAYETTE, a post-office of Seneca co., New York.

WEST FELICIANA, a parish of Louisiana, bordering on Mississippi, and on the E. bank of Mississippi river, contains 480 square miles. It is intersected by Bayou Sarah. The surface is gently undulating; the soil is fertile. Cotton, sugar, and Indian corn are the staples. In 1850 the parish produced 18,291 bales of cotton; 4767 hogsheads of sugar; 395,612 gallons of molasses, and 360,585 bushels of corn. There were 8 sugar mills, 93 grist mills, 24 saw and planing mills, and 1 coachmanufactory. It contained 7 churches; 170 pupils attending public schools, and 130 attending other schools. The parish is intersected by a railroad from Woodville to the Mississippi river. Capital, St. Francisville. Population, 13,245, of whom 2579 were free, and 10,666, slaves.

WESTFIELD, a post-township in Orleans co., Vermont, 44 miles N. from Montpelier. Population, 502.

WESTFIELD, a flourishing post-village of Hampden co., Massachusetts, on the Westfield river, and on the Western railroad, 10 miles W. N. W. from Springfield. It is delightfully situated in a plain bordered with beautiful hills. In the centre is a fine public square, around which are situated the principal stores. The village contains 2 or 3 churches, a town house, 2 banks, 2 newspaper offices, and one of the state normal schools. The inhabitants are engaged in manufactures of various kinds, the principal of which are whips. Population in 1840, 3526; in 1850, 4181.

WESTFIELD, a post-village in Westfield township, Chautauque co., New York, on Chautauque creek, and on the Buffalo and State Line railroad, 57 miles W. S. W. from Buffalo, and 1 or 2 miles from Lake Erie. It contains 3 or 4 churches, an academy, 2 banks, a newspaper office, several flouring mills, and other factories. Population of the township, 3100.

WESTFIELD, a township of Richmond co., New York, forms the S. W. extremity of Staten Island, and contains Richmond, the county seat. Population, 2943.

WESTFIELD, a village of Burlington county, N. J., about 22 miles S. W. from Trenton.

WESTFIELD, a township of Essex co., New Jersey, 13 miles W. S. W. from Newark. Population, 1575.

WESTFIELD, a post-village in the above township, on the New Jersey Central railroad, 36 miles N. N. E. from Trenton.

WESTFIELD, a post-township of Tioga co., Pennsylvania, about 16 miles N. W. from Wellsborough. Population, 1348.

WESTFIELD, a township in the S. part of Medina co., Ohio. Population, 1122.

WESTFIELD, a post-township forming the S. W. extremity of Morrow co., Ohio, intersected by the East branch of Whetstone river, and by the Cleveland, Columbus, and Cincinnati railroad. Population, 1414.

WESTFIELD, a post-township in Hamilton co., Indiana. Population, 215.

WESTFIELD, a post-village of Hamilton co., Indiana, 6 miles W. from Noblesville.

WESTFIELD, a small post-village of Clarke co., Illinois.

WESTFIELD, a post-office of Fayette co., Io. WESTFIELD, a post-township in the N. E. part of Marquette co., Wisconsin.

WESTFIELD, a small village of Sauk co., Wis.

WESTFIELD RIVER is formed by the junction of its North, Middle, and West branches, which unite in Hampden county, in the W. part of Massachusetts, and falls into the Connecticut near Springfield. The railroad from Springfield to Albany passes along this stream for about 20 miles. Branches.—The North branch rises in Hampshire county, as also does the Middle branch, which flows into it; the West branch rises in Berkshire; the North branch, after uniting with the Middle, joins the West branch in Hampden county.

WEST FINDLEY, a post-township forming the S. W. extremity of Washington co., Pennsylvania. Population, 1213.

WEST FITCHBURG, a post-village of Worcester co., Massachusetts, on the Vermont and Massachusetts railroad, 43 W. N. W. from Boston.

WEST FLORENCE, a post-village of Preble co., Ohio, on Fourmile creek, 100 miles W. by S. from Columbus.

WESTFORD, a post-township in Chittenden co., Vermont, 31 miles N. W. from Montpelier. Population, 1458.

WESTFORD, a post-village in Middlesex co., Massachusetts, near the Stony Brook railroad, 27 miles N. W. by W. from Boston, contains 2 or 3 churches and an academy. Population of the township, 1473.

WESTFORD, a post-village in Windham co., Connecticut, on Mount Hope river, 30 miles N. E. by E. from Hartford.

WESTFORD, a post-township of Otsego co., New York, 8 miles S. E. from Cooperstown. Population, 1423.

WEST FORK, a post-office of Overton co. Tenn.

WEST FORT ANN, a post-office of Washington co., New York.

WEST FOWLER, a post-office of St. Lawrence co., New York.

WEST FOXBOROUGH, a post-office of Norfolk co., Massachusetts.

WEST FRANKLIN, a post-office of Bradford co., Pennsylvania.

WEST FRANKLIN, a post-village in Posey co., Indiana, on the N. bank of Ohio river, 170 miles S. W. from Indianapolis.

WEST FREEDOM, a post-office of Waldo co., Maine.

WEST FREEMAN, a post-office of Franklin co., Maine.

WEST FULTON, a post-office of Schoharie co., New York.

WEST FULTON, a post-village of Itawamba co., Mississippi.

WEST GAINES, a post-office of Orleans co., New York.

WEST GALWAY, a post-office of Fulton co. N. Y.

WEST GARLAND, a post-office of Penobscot co., Maine.

WEST GENESEE, a post-village of Alleghany co., N. Y., about 70 miles S. S. E. from Buffalo.

WEST GENESEE, a township in Genesee co., Michigan. Population, 232.

WEST GEORGIA, a post-office of Franklin co., Vermont.

WEST GILBOA, a post-office of Schoharie co., New York.

WEST GILEAD, a village of Morrow county, Ohio, on the railroad which connects Cleveland with Columbus, 42 miles N. from the latter. It was laid out in 1851, and contains several warehouses.

WEST GIRARD, a village of Erie co., Pennsylvania, on Elk creek, 17 miles S. W. from Erie, and 2 miles from Lake Erie.

WEST GLENBURN, a post-office of Penobscot co., Maine.

WEST GLOUCESTER, a post-office of Cumberland co., Maine.

WEST GLOUCESTER, a manufacturing post-village of Gloucester township, Providence county, Rhode Island, on the route of the proposed Woonsocket Union railroad, about 22 miles N. W. from Providence.

WEST GLOVER, a recently sprung up village in Glover township, Orleans co., Vermont, about 35 miles N. E. by N. from Montpelier. It contains a church, an unusually fine school-house, and several mills.

WEST GORHAM, a post-office of Cumberland co., Maine.

WEST GOSHEN, a post-village of Litchfield co., Connecticut, about 35 miles W. by N. from Hartford. It contains a Methodist church and several mills and factories.

WEST GOSHEN, a township of Chester co., Pennsylvania, contains West Chester, the county seat. The Philadelphia and West Chester railroad terminates in it. Pop., 4112.

WEST GOULDSBOROUGH, a post-office of Hancock co., Maine.

WEST GRANBY, a post-office of Hartford co., Connecticut.

WEST GRANVILLE, a post-village in Hampden co., Massachusetts, 110 miles W. S. W. from Boston.

WEST GREAT WORKS, a post-office of Penobscot co., Maine.

WEST GREECE, a post-office of Monroe co., New York.

WEST GREENFIELD, a post-office of Saratoga co., New York.

WEST GREENFIELD, a township in La Grange co., Indiana. Population, 457.

WEST GREENVILLE, sometimes called GREENVILLE, a thriving post-borough of Mercer county, Pennsylvania, on Shenango creek, on the Erie Extension canal, and on the Pittsburg and Erie railroad, (unfinished,) 75 miles N. by W. from Pittsburg. It contains several churches and manufactories, in which steam and water-power are used. Population in 1850, 1036.

WEST GREENWICH, a post-township in Kent co., Rhode Island, 22 miles W. N. W. from Newport. The streams afford water-power, employed for cotton and other mills. Population, 1350.

WEST GREENWICH CENTRE, a post-office of Kent co., Rhode Island.

WEST GREENWOOD, a post-office of Steuben co., New York.

WEST GROTON, a post-village of Middlesex co., Massachusetts, on the Peterborough and Shirley railroad, 39 miles W. N. W. of Boston.

WEST GROTON, a post-office of Tompkins co., New York.

WEST GROVE, a post-office of Chester co., Pennsylvania.

WEST HADLEY, a post-office of Saratoga co., New York.

WEST HALIFAX, a post-office of Windham co., Vermont.

WEST HAMILTON, a small village of La Porte co., Indiana, on the Michigan Southern railroad, 4 or 5 miles N. E. from La Porte.

WESTHAM LOCKS, a post-office of Henrico co., Virginia.

WEST HAMPDEN, a post-office of Penobscot co., Maine.

WEST HAMPTON, a post-township in Hampshire co., Massachusetts, 95 miles W. from Boston. Population, 602.

WEST HANOVER, a post-township of Dauphin co., Pennsylvania, about 11 miles N. E. from Harrisburg. Population, 897.

WEST HARFORD, a post-office of Susquehanna co., Pennsylvania.

WEST HARPETH, a post-office of Williamson co., Tennessee.

WEST HARPSWELL, a post-office of Cumberland co., Maine.

WEST HARTFORD, a post-village of Windsor co., Vermont, on the White river which affords water-power, and on the Vermont Central railroad, 56 miles S. E. from Montpelier. Manufacturing is carried on here to some extent.

WEST HARTFORD, a post-village in Hartford co., Connecticut, 5 miles W. from Hartford.

WEST HARTLAND, a post-office of Somerset co., Maine.

WEST HARTLAND, a post-village in Hartford co., Connecticut, 25 miles N. W. from Hartford. It contains a Congregational church.

WEST HARWICK, a post-office of Barnstable co., Massachusetts.

WEST HAVEN, a post-township in Rutland co., Vermont, on Lake Champlain, 60 miles S. W. by S. from Montpelier. Pop., 718.

WEST HAVEN, a post-village of New Haven county, Connecticut, on the New York and New Haven railroad, 5 miles S. W. from New Haven. It contains a church and an academy.

WEST HAVERFORD, a post-office of Delaware co., Pennsylvania.

WEST HAWLEY, a post-office of Franklin co., Massachusetts.

WEST HEBRON, a post-village of Washington co., New York, 22 miles S. from Whitehall.

WEST HEBRON, a post-village in McHenry co., Illinois, 70 miles N. W. by N. from Chicago.

WEST HEMLOCK, a township of Montour co., Pennsylvania, about 18 miles N. E. from Sunbury. Population, 193.

WEST HEMPFIELD, a township of Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, on the Susquehanna river, about 10 miles W. by N. from Lancaster. It is traversed by the Philadelphia and Columbia railroad. Pop., 2724.

WEST HENNEPIN, a small village of Bureau county, Illinois, on the Illinois river, nearly opposite Hennepin.

WEST HENRIETTA, a post-office of Monroe co., New York.

WEST HILLS, a post-office of Suffolk co., New York.

WEST HINSDALE, a village of Cattaraugus co., New York, about 50 miles S. S. E. from Buffalo.

WEST HOBOKEN, a small post-village of Hudson co., New Jersey, 2 miles N. from Hoboken Landing.

WEST HURLEY, a post-office of Ulster co., New York.

WEST JEFFERSON, a post-village in Lincoln co., Maine, 16 miles S. E. from Augusta.

WEST JEFFERSON, a thriving post-village of Madison co., Ohio, on the National road, and on the Columbus and Xenia railroad, 15 miles W. from Columbus. It has 1 or 2 churches and 1 academy. Population, 436.

WEST JERSEY, a post-office of Stark co., Ill.

WEST JUNIUS, a post-office of Seneca co., New York.

WEST KENDALL, a post-office of Orleans co., New York.

WEST KILL, a post-village of Greene co., New York, about 60 miles S. W. from Albany. It contains several mills.

WEST KILLINGLY, or DANIELSONVILLE, a flourishing post-village in Killingly township, Windham county, Connecticut, on the W. side of Quinebaug river, and on the Norwich and Worcester railroad, 32 miles N. E. by N. from Norwich. It contains 2 churches, 1 newspaper office, 1 bank with a capital of $100,000, 5 cotton mills, 1 woollen mill, 1 batting mill, 1 iron foundry, 1 planing mill, 16 dry-goods and grocery stores, 3 drug stores, besides other establishments. Pop., about 2500.

WEST KINDERHOOK, a post-office of Tipton co., Indiana.

WEST LACKAWANNOCK, a township in the S. W. part of Mercer co., Pennsylvania. Population, 1123.

WEST LAFAYETTE, a post-office of Coshoccon co., Ohio.

WEST LANCASTER, a post-village of Fayette co., Ohio, near Rattlesnake creek, 12 miles N. W. from Washington, the county seat.

WESTLAND, a post-village in Halifax co., North Carolina, 86 miles N. E. from Raleigh.

WESTLAND, a township in the S. E. part of Guernsey co., Ohio. Population, 1126.

WESTLAND, a post-office of Hancock co., Indiana.

WEST LAWRENS, a post-office of Otsego co., New York.

WEST LEBANON, a post-office of York co., Maine.

WEST LEBANON, a post-village and important railway station of Grafton co., New Hampshire, on the left bank of the Connecticut, at the confluence of Muscomy river, 69 miles N. W. from Concord. The Northern railroad connects at this point with the Vermont Central and the Connecticut and Passumpsic Rivers railroads.

WEST LEBANON, a post-village of Indiana co., Pennsylvania, 35 miles in direct line E. by N. from Pittsburg.

WEST LEBANON, a post-office of Wayne co., Ohio.

WEST LEBANON, a post-village in Warren co., Indiana, 80 miles N. W. by W. from Indianapolis.

WEST LE ROX, a post-office of Calhoun co., Michigan.

WEST LEVANT, a post-office of Penobscot co., Maine.

WEST LEXINGTON, a post-village in the W. part of Greene co., New York.

WEST LEYDEN, a post-village of Lewis co., New York, 35 miles N. by W. from Utica.

WEST LIBERTY, a post-village in Ohio county, Virginia, about 10 miles N. E. from Wheeling.

WEST LIBERTY, a post-office of Liberty co., Texas.

WEST LIBERTY, a post-village, capital of Morgan co., Kentucky, on Licking river, 107 miles E. by S. from Frankfort. It has a court house, 2 churches, and several stores.

WEST LIBERTY, a village of Crawford co., Ohio, 66 miles N. from Columbus.

WEST LIBERTY, a thriving post-village and station in Liberty township, Logan co., Ohio, on the Mad River and Lake Erie railroad, 48 miles N. N. E. from Dayton. It has a valuable water-power furnished by Mad river, and contains a newspaper office. Pop. in 1851, 600.

WEST LIBERTY, a post-office of Muscatine co., Iowa.

WEST LIMA, a township in La Grange co., Indiana. Population, 306.

WEST LITTLETON, a post-office of Middlesex co., Massachusetts.

WEST LODI, a post-office of Seneca co., O.

WEST LOWVILLE, a post-office of Lewis co., New York.

WEST LUBEC, a post-office of Washington co., Maine.

WEST MACEDON, a post-office of Wayne co., New York.

WEST MADAWASKA, a post-office of Aroostook co., Maine.

WEST MAHONING, a township forming the N. W. extremity of Indiana co., Pennsylvania. Population, 1030.

WEST MANCHESTER, a post-office of Alleghany co., Pennsylvania. See Manchester.

WEST MANCHESTER, a township of York co., Pennsylvania. Population, 1361.

WEST MARLBOROUGH, a township of Chester co., Pennsylvania, about 11 miles S. W. from West Chester. Population, 1130.

WEST MARTINSBURG, a post-village of Lewis co., New York, about 60 miles E. N. E. from Oswego.

WEST MEDFORD, a post-village of Middlesex co., Massachusetts, on the Boston and Lowell railroad, 5 miles N. N. W. from Boston.

WEST MEDWAY, a post-office of Norfolk co., Massachusetts.

WEST MENDON, a village of Monroe co., New York, on Honeoye creek, 15 miles S. from Rochester.

WEST MEREDITH, a post-office of Delaware co., New York.

WEST MERIDEN, a flourishing post-village of New Haven co., Connecticut, on the Quinnepeac river, and on the Hartford and New Haven railroad, 17 miles N. by E. from New Haven, and half a mile West from the old village. It contains a large and beautiful church, a high-school with a handsome building delightfully situated, an insurance office, a newspaper office, and several fine stores. In the village and vicinity are numerous manufactories, among which may be mentioned a large establishment for making ivory combs, a foundry, and a machine shop. Tinware and various kinds of hardware are extensively manufactured. Pop. in 1853, about 1500.

WEST MIDDLEBOROUGH, a village in Plymouth co., Massachusetts, about 40 miles from South Boston.

WEST MIDDLEBURG, a post-village of Logan co., Ohio, 56 miles N. W. by N. from Columbus.

WEST MIDDLESEX, a post-office of Mercer co., Pennsylvania.

WEST MIDDLETOWN, a post-borough of Washington co., Pennsylvania, about 13 miles N. W. from Washington, the county town. It contains several stores. Pop. in 1850, 326.

WEST MILFORD, a post-township of Passaic co., New Jersey, bordering on New York, about 40 miles N. W. from Jersey City. Population, 2624.

WEST MILFORD, a post-office of Harrison co., Virginia.

WEST MILLBURY, a post-office of Worcester co., Massachusetts, 40 miles W. S. W. from Boston.

WEST MILL CREEK, a post-office of Erie co., Pennsylvania.

WEST MILL GROVE, a post-office of Wood co., Ohio.

WEST MILTON, a post-office of Strafford co., New Hampshire.

WEST MILTON, a post-village of Chittenden co., Vermont.

WEST MILTON, a post-village of Saratoga co., New York, 31 miles N. from Albany.

WEST MILTON, a small village of Union co., Pennsylvania.

WEST MILTON, a post-office of Miami co., Ohio.

WEST MINOT, a post-office of Cumberland co., Maine.

WESTMINSTER, a post-township of Windham co., Vermont, on the W. side of the Connecticut river, 82 miles S. by E. from Montpelier. The principal village is delightfully situated on the right bank of the Connecticut, and on the Vermont Valley railroad, 4 miles S. from Bellows Falls. The main street, which is perfectly level, crosses a tableland about a mile in diameter, considerably elevated above the river, and also above the meadows by which it is approached on the N. and S.; the whole enclosed by a semicircle of hills which touch the Connecticut about 2 miles above and below the village. In early times the courts of justice and several sessions of the legislature were held here. Pop., 1721.

WESTMINSTER, a post-village of Worcester co., Massachusetts, on the Vermont and Massachusetts railroad, 48 miles W. by N. from Boston. It contains 3 or 4 churches and several stores. Population of the township 1914.

WESTMINSTER, a post-village in Windham co., Connecticut, near Little river, 40 miles E. by S. from Hartford.

WESTMINSTER, a thriving post-village, capital of Carroll co., Maryland, is situated near the source of Patapsco river, 58 miles N. N. W. from Annapolis. It contains a court house, 2 newspaper offices, 2 churches, 2 banks, and a number of stores. The Westminster Branch railroad connects it with the Baltimore and Susquehanna railroad. Pop. in 1850, 835.

WESTMINSTER, a post-village of Guilford co., North Carolina, 98 miles W. by N. from Raleigh.

WESTMINSTER, a post-village of Allen co., Ohio, 92 miles N. W. from Columbus. Pop., 300.

WESTMINSTER, a post-office of Shelby co., Illinois.

WESTMINSTER WEST, a post-village of Windham co., Vermont, 95 miles S. by E. from Montpelier.

WEST MONROE, a post-township of Oswego co., New York, on Oneida lake, 20 miles N. by E. from Syracuse.

WESTMORE, a township of Orleans co., Vermont, about 40 miles N. E. from Montpelier. Population, 152.

WESTMORELAND, a county in the S. W. part of Pennsylvania, contains about 1000 square miles. It is bounded on the N. W. by the Alleghany river, on the N. E. by the Conemaugh and Kiskiminetas, and intersected by the Youghiogheny river; it is drained also by the Loyalhanna river, and by Jacobs and Big Sewickly creeks. The surface in the S. E. is mountainous, and in the other parts diversified by hills of moderate height. A high ridge, called Laurel Hill, forms the S. E. boundary, and Chestnut Ridge extends across the county in a N. E. and S. W. direction. Excepting these ridges, the soil is nearly all arable, fertile and well watered, producing wheat of superior quality. Indian corn, wheat, oats, hay, and butter are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 839,711 bushels of corn; 668,476 of wheat; 1,161,656 of oats; 48,024 tons of hay, and 1,711,854 pounds of butter. There were 92 flour and grist mills, 74 saw mills, 23 salt furnaces, 12 coal mines, 28 manufactories of cabinet ware, 14 of farming implements, 10 woolen factories, 8 wool-carding mills, 3 iron foundries, 5 furnaces, and 55 tanneries. It contained 101 churches, 4 newspaper offices, 13,112 pupils attending public schools, and 181 attending academies or other schools. Beds of stone-coal, from 3 to 9 feet in thickness, extend over nearly the whole area. Iron ore is procured in the S. E., and salt in the N. part. Limestone and slate are among the principal rocks. The Central railroad passes through the county, and the Hempfield railroad, not yet finished, has its eastern terminus at the county seat. The Pennsylvania canal passes along the northern border. Organized in 1773, and named from Westmoreland county, England. Capital, Greensburg. Pop., 51,726.

WESTMORELAND, a county in the E. part of Virginia, bordering on the Potomac river, which separates it from Maryland, has an area of about 170 square miles. It occupies part of the northern neck, a peninsula formed by the Potomac and Rappahannock rivers, the former of which washes the county on the N. E., and the latter on the S. W. It is penetrated by inlets from the Potomac, named Nomini bay, and Pope's and Monroe creeks. The surface is somewhat diversified by hills, and partly covered with forests of pine and cedar. The soil near the rivers is fertile. Indian corn, wheat, and oats are cultivated. The waters abound with fish and oysters, and firewood is one of the chief exports. In 1850 this county produced 269,115 bushels of corn; 82,774 of wheat, and 7897 of oats. It contained 1 wheelwright establishment, 2 coach and 1 saddle manufactory, and 1 tannery; 13 churches, and 300 pupils attending public schools. Westmoreland county is distinguished as the birth-place of two presidents of the republic, Washington and Monroe, and also of Richard Henry Lee. The spot on which Washington was born, half a mile from the Potomac, is marked with a stone bearing this inscription, "Here, on the 11th of February, (O. S.,) 1732, George Washington was born." Capital, Westmoreland Court House. Pop., 8080; of whom 4523 were free, and 3557, slaves.

WESTMORELAND, a post-township, in Cheshire co., New Hampshire, on the east side of Connecticut river, and intersected by the Cheshire railroad, about 52 miles S. W. by W. from Concord. Population, 1678.

WESTMORELAND, a post-township of Oneida co., New York, 12 miles W. from Utica. Population, 3291.

WESTMORELAND COURT HOUSE, a village, capital of Westmoreland co., Virginia, 65 miles N. E. from Richmond.

WESTMORELAND DEPÔT, a post-office of Cheshire co., New Hampshire.

WESTMORELANDVILLE, a post-office of Lauderdale co., Alabama.

WEST NANTICOKE, a post-office of Luzerne co., Pennsylvania.

WEST NANTMEAL, a township of Chester co., Pennsylvania, about 15 miles N. W. from West Chester. Population, 1803.

WEST NEEDHAM, a post-village in Norfolk co., Massachusetts, on the Boston and Worcester railroad, 15 miles S. W. by W. from Boston.

WEST NEWARK, a post-office of Tioga co., New York.

WEST NEWBURY, a post-township of Essex co., Massachusetts, on the south side of Merrimack river, about 34 miles N. by E. from Boston. Population, 1746.

WEST NEWFIELD, a post-office of York co., Maine.

WEST NEWPORT, a post-office of Orleans co., Vermont.

WEST NEWSTEAD, a post-office of Erie co., New York.

WEST NEWTON, a thriving post-village in Middlesex co., Massachusetts, on the Boston and Worcester railroad, 9 miles W. from Boston. It contains a state normal school for young ladies.

WEST NEWTON, a thriving post-borough of Westmoreland co., Pennsylvania, on the right bank of the Youghiogheny river, and on the Hempfield railroad, about 25 miles S. E. from Pittsburg. It is at the terminus of a plank-road leading to Cumberland, Maryland.

WEST NEWTON, a post-office of Allen co., O.

WEST NILES, a post-office of Cayuga co., New York.

WEST NORFOLK, a post-village of Litchfield co., Connecticut, 35 miles N. W. by W. from Hartford.

WEST NORTHWOOD, a post-office of Rockingham co., New Hampshire.

WEST NORTHFIELD, a post-office of Franklin co., Massachusetts.

WEST NOTTINGHAM, a township forming the S. W. extremity of Chester co., Pennsylvania. Population, 721.

WEST OGDEN, a post-office of Lenawee co., Michigan.

WESTON, a post-township in Aroostook co., Maine, 135 miles N. E. from Augusta. Population, 293.

WESTON, a post-village in Windsor co., Vermont, 68 miles S. from Montpelier, contains 2 or 3 churches, and a number of manufactories. Population of the township, 950.

WESTON, a post-township in Middlesex co., Massachusetts, intersected by the Fitchburg and the Boston and Worcester railroads, 12 miles W. from Boston. Population, 1205.

WESTON, a post-village in Fairfield co., Connecticut, 55 miles S. W. from Hartford, contains 1 or 2 churches and an academy. Population, 1056.

WESTON, a post-office of Steuben co., N. Y.

WESTON, a post-village of Somerset co., New Jersey, on the left side of the Millstone river, about 22 miles N. N. E. from Trenton.

WESTON, a post-village, capital of Lewis county, Virginia, on the W. fork of Monongahela river, 278 miles N. W. from Richmond. The hills in this vicinity abound in coal. Weston is connected by turnpike with Fairmont. The village has 1 bank. Pop. about 300.

WESTON, a post-township in the W. part of Wood co., Ohio, on the W. side of Maumee river. Population, 546.

WESTON, a post-village of Jo Daviess co., Illinois, on Apple creek, 15 miles S. E. from Galena. It has lead mines in the vicinity.

WESTON, a flourishing post-village and river port of Platte county, Missouri, on the Missouri river, 200 miles by the road W. N. W. from Jefferson City, and 3 miles above Fort Leavenworth. It is one of most important and commercial towns on the Missouri river. The frontier position of Weston renders it a favorable starting point for the emigrants to California, &c.: the vast extent of this emigration, for a few years past, has greatly increased the activity of trade, and opened a ready market for cattle, provisions, &c., at excessively high prices. One or two newspapers are published here. First settled in 1838. Population in 1851, about 2500.

WEST ONEONTA, a post-office of Otsego co., New York.

WEST ONONDAGA, a post-office of Onondaga co., New York.

WEST OSSISPEE, a post-village of Carroll co., New Hampshire, on the right bank of a small stream falling into Ossipee lake, 42 miles N. by E. from Concord.

WEST OTIS, a post-village of Berkshire co., Massachusetts, 110 miles W. by S. from Boston.

WEST PARSONFIELD, a post-village of York co., Me., 80 miles S. W. by W. from Augusta.

WEST PAWLET, a post-village of Rutland co., Vermont, about 30 miles S. W. from Rutland. It contains a Baptist and an Episcopal church.

WEST PENN, a post-township forming the S. E. extremity of Schuylkill co., Pennsylvania. Population, 2411.

WEST PENNSBOROUGH, a township of Cumberland co., Pennsylvania, intersected by the Cumberland Valley railroad, about 8 miles W. from Carlisle. Population, 2040.

WEST PERRYSBURG, a post-office of Cattaraugus co., New York.

WEST PERTH, a post-office of Fulton co., New York.

WEST PERU, a post-office of Oxford co., Maine.

WESTPHALIA, a post-township in the W. part of Clinton co., Michigan. Pop., 618.

WESTPHALIA, a post-village of Osage co., Missouri, on Marais creek, about 15 miles S. E. from Jefferson City.

WEST PHILADELPHIA, a post-borough or district of Philadelphia co., Pennsylvania, on the W. bank of the Schuylkill, opposite Philadelphia, with which it is connected by two bridges. The corporate limits include nearly two miles of river front, and extend westward a mile or more. The ground is high and undulating, and affords good sites for buildings. Washington or Market street extends E. and W. through the middle of the town, and meets the river at Market-street Bridge. About a quarter of a mile from the river the Lancaster turnpike and the Darby road diverge obliquely from Market street, the former tending towards the W. N. W. and the latter towards the S. W. Parallel with Market street on the S. are Chestnut or James street, Walnut or Andrew street, Locust, Spruce, and Pine streets. The new town hall on Washington street is a 5-storied brick building, with an iron front. The beautiful villages of Hamilton and Mantua are included in the corporate limits. Numerous elegant residences have been erected within a few years. The town is lighted with gas and supplied with good water from the Schuylkill, raised by 2 steam engines to the top of an iron stand-pipe situated on Blockley or Sixth street, in the N. part of the district. The pipe is 5 feet in diameter, and 130 feet high, or 230 feet above the level of the river, and is composed of thick boiler plates of wrought iron. The works are capable of supplying 1,000,000 gallons daily, and can raise the water 100 feet above the highest ground in the district, and more than 200 feet above the lowest. The tower will be surrounded by a spiral stairway of iron in order that the public may enjoy the delightful view which the summit commands. In the W. part of the district is situated the Pennsylvania Hospital for the Insane, a fine stone edifice, opened in 1841. The main building, together with the wings, present a front of 436 feet, the central part of which is ornamented with an elegant Doric portico. The interior arrangements are unsurpassed for convenience, and the institution is under excellent management. See PHILADELPHIA, page 914. The depot of the Westchester railroad is to be established here. A variety of manufactures are produced in the borough, of which the following are the principal articles, locomotives, iron castings, white lead, chemicals, glass, and cotton goods. Population in 1850, 5,577.

WEST PIERPONT, a post-office of Ashtabula co., Ohio.

WEST PIKE, a post-office of Potter co., Pennsylvania.

WEST PIKELAND, a township of Chester co., Pennsylvania, about 9 miles N. from Westchester. Population, 881.

WEST PIKE RUN, a township of Washington co., Pennsylvania, about 30 miles S. from Pittsburg. Population, 1166.

WEST PITTSFIELD, a post-village of Berkshire co., Massachusetts, about 50 miles N. W. from Springfield.

WEST PLAINS, a post-village of Oregon co., Missouri, about 140 miles S. by E. from Jefferson City.

WEST PLATTSBURG, a post-office of Clinton co., New York.

WEST PLYMOUTH, a post-village of Grafton co., New Hampshire, 40 miles N. by W. from Concord.

WEST POINT, the site of the United States Military Academy, is situated in Cornwall township, Orange co., New York, on the right bank of the Hudson, 52 miles N. of the city of New York. The natural strength of the place led to its selection for a fortress in the Revolution, and Fort Putnam, erected at that period, crowns a hill of 598 feet elevation above the river, commanding a view probably equal in picturesqueness to any in the highlands. The buildings of the academy occupy a plateau elevated 188 feet above the Hudson, and covering an area of about one mile in circuit, with ample room for the necessary structures, for military evolutions, and the practice of gunnery. The approach from the river on the E. is interrupted by a nearly perpendicular bank or wall, while on the W. and S. W. the place is defended by a rampart of high and rugged hills. The same causes that render it so strong as a fortress make it, in point of scenery, second to none in the country. As the visitor sits in the piazza of the hotel which stands on the brow of the third terrace, he has before him towards the N. the finest known pass in any river in the world; while the whole N. W. and S. W. horizon is shut out from the view by highlands and mountains of from 600 to 1500 feet in height. Towards the E. are beautiful promenades on the summit of the rocks that overlook the river. The view from the ruins of old Fort Putnam is perhaps unequalled in its peculiar beauties. The Catskill and other mountains may command more extensive prospects, but none have such a river as the Hudson immediately at their feet, or such a pass as that through the highlands within the scope of distinct vision. Fort Putnam is on a spur of the highlands, extending towards the S. or S. W., and surrounded on three sides by deep ravines and steep descents. On the plateau named above, were Fort Clinton and the other works that constituted the fortress at the period of the Revolution, defended by redoubts on the summits of the hills, of which Fort Putnam was the chief. Arnold was in command of this fortress when, in 1780, he entered into a base conspiracy with Major Andre to surrender it into the hands of the British. Here, too, the patriot Kosciusko held a command, and a small plateau or ledge on the side of the precipice leading down to the river is known as Kosciusko's garden. At the top of the stairs descending to this garden is a cenotaph to his memory, (a conspicuous object ascending the river,) erected by the cadets of 1828, at an expense of $5000. The Military Academy was established by Congress in 1802, and is wholly supported by the general government. The education given is gratuitous, so far as money is concerned; but each cadet must give 8 years' service to the government, unless sooner released. The corps of cadets must not exceed 250 at any one time, and the candidates for admission must not be under 14 or over 21 years of age. The corps must spend three months of each year in encampment. The course of study, which is full and thorough in the mathematics and all that pertains to the military art, embraces 4 years. This institution has sent forth a body of able engineers, under some of whom valuable topographical surveys have been made of our new and unsettled territory. During the Revolution, a heavy chain was stretched across the river, which is here very narrow, to prevent the passage of the enemy's ships.

WEST POINT, a post-village in Orange co., North Carolina.

WEST POINT, a thriving post-village in Troup county, Georgia, on both sides of the Chattahoochee river, at the junction of the La Grange railroad with the Montgomery and West Point railroad, 87 miles S. W. from Atlanta, and about 40 miles above Columbus. It has an active business, and is a depôt for the cotton which is exported from the vicinity.

WEST POINT, a post-office of Lowndes co., Mississippi.

WEST POINT, a post-office of White co., Arkansas.

WEST POINT, a thriving post-village of Lawrence co., Tennessee, 95 miles S. W. from Nashville.

WEST POINT, a post-village in Hardin co., Kentucky, on the Ohio, at the mouth of the Salt river, 20 miles S. W. from Louisville. It has an extensive boat-yard and several stores.

WEST POINT, a post-village of Columbiana co., Ohio, 158 miles N. E. from Columbus.

WEST POINT, a thriving post-village, of Tippecanoe co., Indiana, 10 miles S. W. from Lafayette. It is pleasantly situated on the border of Wea prairie. Population estimated at 500.

WEST POINT, a township in the N. W. part of Stephenson co., Illinois, intersected by the Illinois Central railroad. Population, 250.

WEST POINT, a post-village in the above township, 135 miles N. W. by W. from Chicago.

WEST POINT, a post-village of Cass co., Missouri, about 24 miles S. W. from Harrisonville. It has some trade with the Indians.

WEST POINT, a beautiful post-village of Lee co., Iowa, on the Dubuque and Keokuk railroad, (projected,) 24 miles N. of Keokuk. It is pleasantly situated in a populous and fertile farming district, and contains an academy and 6 stores. Pop., about 1000.

WEST POINT, a township forming the S. W. extremity of Columbia co., Wisconsin. Population, 197.

WEST POLAND, a post-office of Cumberland co., Maine.

WESTPORT, a township in Lincoln co., Maine, occupying an island at the mouth of the Sheepscot river, 28 miles S. by E. from Augusta. Population, 761.

WESTPORT, a post-village in Cheshire co., New Hampshire, on the Ashuelot railroad, 50 miles S. W. by W. from Concord.

WESTPORT, a post-township in Bristol co., Massachusetts, 55 miles S. from Boston. The village is situated on both sides of the Acoasett river, near its entrance into the mouth of Buzzards' bay. It contains 3 or 4 churches and several stores. The inhabitants are extensively engaged in the whaling business. Population, 2795.

WESTPORT, a post-township in Fairfield co., Connecticut, on Long Island sound, intersected by the New York and New Haven railroad, 28 miles S. W. from New Haven. The village is situated on the railroad, and on both sides of the Saugatuck river, about 2½ miles from its mouth. It is the seat of an active and rapidly increasing business, and contains 2 or 3 churches, 1 bank, and about 15 stores. Population, 2651.

WESTPORT, a post-township of Essex co., New York, on the W. side of Lake Champlain. Population, 2352.

WESTPORT, a post-village in the above township, on Lake Champlain, about 110 miles N. by E. from Albany. It contains several churches, and 1 or 2 newspaper offices.

WESTPORT, a post-office of Clinton co., Pennsylvania.

WESTPORT, a post-village of Oldham co., Kentucky, on the Ohio river, 43 miles W. N. W. from Frankfort, was formerly the county seat.

WESTPORT, a post-village in Decatur co., Ind., 60 miles S. E. by S. from Indianapolis.

WESTPORT, a small village of Parke co., Indiana, on the Wabash river and canal, 75 miles W. from Indianapolis.

WESTPORT, a thriving post-village of Jackson co., Missouri, 4 miles S. from the Missouri river, and 175 miles W. by N. from Jefferson City.

WESTPORT, a township near the central part of Dane co., Wisconsin. Pop., 202.

WESTPORT POINT, a post-office of Bristol co., Massachusetts.

WESTPORT RIVER, a small stream of Bristol county, in the S. S. E. part of Massachusetts, discharges its waters into the Atlantic, a few miles E. of the Rhode Island boundary.

WEST POTSDAM, a post-office of St. Lawrence co., New York.

WEST POULTNEY, a thriving post-village of Rutland co., Vermont, about 60 miles S. W. from Montpelier. It contains a bank, 4 or 5 stores, and a flourishing institution called the Troy Conference Academy, founded in 1834. The buildings are of brick, 4 stories high, and arranged to accommodate 200 pupils in the boarding department, and an additional 200 in the department of instruction. The institution enjoys a high rank, and the number of pupils annually instructed ranges from 300 to 400. Cost of the buildings and grounds about $40,000.

WEST PRAIRIE, a post-village in Stoddard co., Missouri, about 28 miles W. N. W. from New Madrid.

WEST PROVIDENCE, a township of Bedford co., Pennsylvania, about 9 miles E. from Bedford. Population, 1410.

WEST QUODDY HEAD, Maine, a point at the W. entrance of Passamaquoddy bay.

WEST RANDOLPH, a post-office of Orange co., Vermont.

WEST REDDING, a post-office of Fairfield co., Connecticut.

WEST RICHMOND, a post-village of Ontario co., N. Y., about 220 miles W. from Albany.

WEST RIPLEY, a post-office of Somerset co., Maine.

WEST RIVER, rises in Windsor county, in the S. S. E. part of Vermont, and running in a S. E. course, falls into the Connecticut river.

WEST RIVER, a small stream in New Haven county, in the S. part of Connecticut, falls into Long Island sound at New Haven.

WEST RIVER, a post-office of Anne Arundel co., Maryland.

WEST RIVER, a post-office of Jackson co., Michigan.

WEST RIVER, a township in Randolph co., Indiana. Population, 1192.

WEST ROCHESTER, a post-office of Windsor co., Vermont.

WEST ROSENDALE, a post-office of Fond du Lac co., Wisconsin.

WEST ROXBURY, a post-township of Norfolk co., Massachusetts, intersected by the Dedham Branch railroad, 6 miles S. W. from Boston. It was taken from Roxbury in 1852, and contains the villages of West Roxbury and Jamaica Plains.

WEST RUMNEY, a post-village of Grafton co., New Hampshire, on the right bank of Baker's river, and on the Boston, Concord and Montreal railroad, 59 miles N. W. by W. from Concord.

WEST RUPERT, a post-village of Bennington co., Vermont, on the Rutland and Washington railroad, 38 miles S. W. from Rutland.

WEST RUSH, a post-village of Monroe co., New York, on the Canandaigua and Niagara Falls railroad, 31 miles E. from Batavia.

WEST RUSHVILLE, a post-village of Fairfield co., Ohio, on the Zanesville and Maysville turnpike, about 148 miles E. N. E. from Cincinnati.

WEST RUTLAND, a thriving post-village in Rutland co., Vermont, on Otter Creek, and on the Rutland and Washington railroad, 4 miles W. N. W. from Rutland. In the vicinity are extensive marble quarries of the finest quality, the working of which affords employment to about 500 persons. The annual product amounts in value to about $500,000.

WEST RUTLAND, a post-village of Worcester co., Massachusetts, about 50 miles W. from Boston.

WEST SALEM, a post-township, part of Mercer co., Pennsylvania, intersected by the Beaver and Erie canal, about 15 miles N. W. from Mercer. Population, 2571.

WEST SALEM, a post-office of Wayne co., O.

WEST SALEM, a post-office of Morgan co., Indiana.

WEST SALISBURY, a post-office of Addison co., Vermont.

WEST SAND LAKE, a post-village of Rensselaer co., New York, about 10 miles E. from Albany.

WEST SANDWICH, a post-village in Barnstable co., Massachusetts, on the Cape Cod Branch railroad, 55 miles S. E. from Boston.

WEST SCHUYLER, a post-office of Herkimer co., New York.

WEST SCITUATE, a post-village in Plymouth co., Massachusetts, 22 miles S. E. from Boston.

WEST SEDGEWICK, a post-office of Hancock co., Maine.

WEST SENECA, a post-office of Erie co., N.Y.

WEST SHANDAKEN, a post-office of Ulster co., New York.

WEST SHONGO, a post-office of Alleghany co., New York.

WEST SIDNEY, a post-village of Kennebec co., Maine, 7 miles N. by W. from Augusta.

WEST'S MILLS, a post-office of Franklin co., Maine.

WEST SOMERS, a post-village of Westchester co., New York, about 115 miles S. from Albany.

WEST SOMERSET, a post-office of Niagara co., New York.

WEST SOUTHOLD, a post-office of Suffolk co., New York.

WEST SPRING CREEK, a post-office of Warren co., Pennsylvania.

WEST SPRINGFIELD, a thriving post-village of Hampden co., Massachusetts, on the Western railroad, 100 miles W. by S. from Boston, and 100 miles S. E. from Albany. It is situated on the left bank of the Connecticut, opposite Springfield, with which it is connected by 2 bridges, (one for the Western railroad,) and several steam-ferries. The streets are broad and finely shaded with lofty elms.

Westfield river, which enters the Connecticut a short distance below, affords water-power. Population of the township, 2979.

WEST SPRINGFIELD, a post-village of Erie co., Pennsylvania, on the Conneaut creek, 26 miles S. W. from Erie.

WEST SPRINGFIELD, a post-office of Shelby co., Missouri.

WEST STAFFORD, a parish and post-office of Stafford township, Tolland co., Connecticut, about 25 miles N. E. from Hartford.

WEST STEPHENTOWN, a post-office of Rensselaer co., New York.

WEST STERLING, a post-office of Worcester co., Massachusetts.

WEST STEWARTSTOWN, a post-office of Coos co., New Hampshire.

WEST STOCKBRIDGE, a post-township of Berkshire co., Massachusetts, bordering on New York, by railroad 160 miles W. from Boston. Three railroads meet at the State-line station, viz., the West Stockbridge, the Western, and the Hudson and Berkshire railroads. The principal village on the Stockbridge railroad, it contains 2 or 3 churches, and about 1000 inhabitants. In the township are extensive beds of iron ore and inexhaustible quarries of marble. Population, 1713.

WEST STOCKHOLM, a post-village of St. Lawrence co., New York, about 30 miles E. from Ogdensburg.

WEST SOFFIELD, a post-office of Hartford co., Connecticut.

WEST SULLIVAN, a post-office of Hancock co., Maine.

WEST SUTTON, a post-village in Worcester co., Massachusetts, 45 miles S. W. by W. from Boston, contains 2 or 3 churches, and several stores.

WEST SUMNER, a post-office of Oxford co., Maine.

WEST SUMNERSTON, a post-office of Windham co., Vermont.

WEST SWANZEY, a post-office of Cheshire co., New Hampshire.

WEST TAGHKANIC, a post-office of Columbia co., New York.

WEST THERESA, a post-office of Jefferson co., New York.

WEST THORNTON, a post-office of Grafton co., New Hampshire.

WEST TISBURY, a post-village in Duke's co., Massachusetts, 75 miles S. S. E. from Boston, contains 2 or 3 churches, and several stores.

WEST TOPSHAM, a post-office of Orange co., Vermont.

WESTTOWN, a post-village of Orange co., New York, about 60 miles N. W. from New York.

WESTTOWN, a township of Chester co., Pennsylvania, about 23 miles W. from Philadelphia. It contains a large and flourishing boarding-school for pupils of both sexes, under the direction of the Society of Friends. The buildings are surrounded by grounds in the highest state of improvement, and covering an area of about 600 acres. The view from the summit of the principal building is remarkably beautiful and picturesque. There are in the institution accommodations for about 250 scholars. Population of the township, 789.

WEST TOWNSEND, a post-village of Middlesex co., Massachusetts, on a branch of Nashua river, and on the Peterboro' and Shirley railroad, 47 miles N. W. from Boston. It is the seat of a flourishing female seminary.

WEST TOWNSEND, a post-office of Sandusky co., Ohio.

WEST TOWNSHEND, a post-village of Windham co., Vermont, about 30 miles N. E. from Bennington.

WEST TOWNSHIP, a post-office of Albany co., New York.

WEST TRENTON, a post-village in Hancock co., Maine, 70 miles E. by N. from Augusta.

WEST TROUPSBURG, a post-village of Steuben co., New York, 28 miles S. W. from Bath.

WEST TROY, a post-village of Albany co., New York. See TROY.

WEST TURIN, a township forming the S. extremity of Lewis co., New York, bordering on Black river. Population, 3793.

WEST TYRE, a post-office of Seneca co., N. Y.

WEST UNION, a post-office of Steuben co., New York.

WEST UNION, a post-village, capital of Doddridge co., Virginia, on Middle Island creek, and on the turnpike from Winchester to Parkersburg, 300 miles N. W. from Richmond. Lumber is exported from this vicinity by flatboats and rafts.

WEST UNION, a village of Marshall county, Virginia, 12 miles S. E. from Wheeling.

WEST UNION, a post-office of Pickens district, South Carolina.

WEST UNION, a post-village, capital of Adams co., Ohio, on the Maysville and Zanesville turnpike, 84 miles in a direct line S. S. W. from Columbus. It is pleasantly situated on a ridge, several hundred feet above the level of the Ohio. The court house is a substantial stone edifice, built by Ex-governor Metcalf, of Kentucky, who bears the soubriquet of "Stone Hammer," from the occupation of his early life. Two newspapers are published here. Laid out in 1804. Population in 1850, 462.

WEST UNION, a thriving post-village of Fayette co., Indiana, 65 miles E. S. E. from Indianapolis.

WEST UNION, a post-village in Knox co., Indiana, 110 miles S. W. by W. from Indianapolis.

WEST UNION, a small village of Parke co., Indiana, on the Wabash and Erie canal, 68 miles W. from Indianapolis.

WEST UNION, a thriving post-village, capital of Fayette co., Iowa, 60 miles N. W. from Dubuque, and 40 miles W. from Clayton, the nearest landing on the Mississippi.

WEST UNITY, a post-office of Williams co., O.

WEST VAN BUREN, a post-office of Aroostook co., Maine.

WEST VAN BUREN, a township in La Grange co., Indiana. Population, 434.

WEST VERMILION, a post-office of Erie co., O.

WEST VIENNA, a post-village of Oneida co., New York, 125 miles W. N. W. from Albany.

WEST VIEW, a post-village of Augusta co., Virginia, 6 miles W. from Staunton. It has 2 stores.

WEST VIEW, a post-office of Hamilton co., Tennessee.

WESTVILLE, a thriving post-village in New Haven township and county, Connecticut, about 2½ miles N. from the state house. It is surrounded with varied and romantic scenery, being situated at the southern base of West Rock, which presents a steep and rugged precipice nearly 400 feet in height. The inhabitants are extensively engaged in manufactures of various kinds, chiefly of hardware. Pop. in 1850, 871; in 1853, about 1100.

WESTVILLE, a township of Franklin co., New York, 8 miles N. N. W. from Malone. Population, 1301.

WESTVILLE, a post-village of Otsego co., New York, about 65 miles W. from Albany. It has several mills and stores.

WESTVILLE, a small village of Gloucester co., New Jersey.

WESTVILLE, a post-village, capital of Simpson co., Mississippi, 40 miles S. S. E. from Jackson.

WESTVILLE, a post-village of Champaign co., Ohio, 48 miles W. from Columbus.

WESTVILLE, a small village of Columbiana co., Ohio, 165 miles N. E. from Columbus.

WESTVILLE, a thriving post-village of Preble co., Ohio, on the Western turnpike, 104 miles W. by S. from Columbus. The post-office is New Westville.

WESTVILLE, a post-village of Laporte co., Indiana, on the New Albany and Salem railroad, 12 miles S. from Michigan city.

WEST VINCENT, a post-township of Chester co., Pennsylvania, about 12 miles N. from West Chester. Population, 1350.

WEST WALWORTH, a post-office of Wayne co., New York.

WEST WARDSBOROUGH, a post-office of Windham co., Vermont.

WEST WAREHAM, a post-village in Plymouth co., Massachusetts, on the Cape Cod Branch railroad, near Buzzard's bay, 45 miles S. S. E. from Boston. In the village and vicinity are numerous manufactories of ironware.

WEST WARREN, a small village of Monongalia co., Virginia.

WEST WASHINGTON, a post-office of Lincoln co., Maine.

WEST WATERVILLE, a post-village in Kennebec co., Maine, on the Androscoggin and Kennebec railroad, 14 miles N. from Augusta.

WEST WEBSTER, a post-office of Monroe co., New York.

WEST WHEELING, a village of Belmont co.,

Ohio, on the Ohio river, opposite Wheeling. Several railroads meet at this point. Population in 1850, 438.

WEST WHITELAND, a post-township of Chester co., Pennsylvania, intersected by the Philadelphia and Columbia railroad, and by the Chester Valley railroad, about 5 miles N. from West Chester. Population, 1141.

WEST WILLIAMSFIELD, a post-office of Ash-tabula co., Ohio.

WEST WILLINGTON, a post-office of Tolland co., Connecticut.

WEST WILTON, a village of Franklin co., Maine, about 30 miles N. W. from Augusta.

WEST WINCHESTER, a manufacturing post-village of Cheshire co., New Hampshire, on the Ashuelot railroad, near Ashuelot river, 50 miles S. W. from Concord.

WEST WINDHAM, a post-office of Rockingham co., New Hampshire.

WEST WINDHAM, a post-village of Bradford co., Pennsylvania, 152 miles N. by E. from Harrisburg.

WEST WINDSOR, a post-village of Broome co., New York, about 130 miles W. S. W. from Albany.

WEST WINDSOR, a township of Mercer co., New Jersey, about 17 miles S. W. from New Brunswick. Population, 1596.

WEST WINDSOR, a post-village of Richland co., Ohio, 67 miles N. N. E. from Columbus.

WEST WINDSOR, a post-office of Eaton co., Michigan.

WEST WINFIELD, a post-village of Herkimer co., New York, about 15 miles S. by E. from Utica.

WEST WINSTEAD, Litchfield co., Connecticut. See WINSTEAD.

WESTWOOD, a small post-village of Woodford co., Ill., about 33 miles E. from Peoria.

WEST WOODSTOCK, a post-village in Woodstock township, Windham co., Connecticut, about 44 miles N. E. by E. from Hartford. It contains 1 church.

WEST WOODVILLE, a post-village of Clermont co., O., 89 miles S. W. from Columbus.

WEST WORTHINGTON, a post-village of Hampshire co., Massachusetts, about 100 miles W. from Boston.

WEST WRENTHAM, a post-village of Norfolk co., Massachusetts, about 30 miles S. W. by S. from Boston.

WEST WYNTON, a post-office of Calhoun co., Florida.

WEST YARMOUTH, a post-village in Barnstable co., Massachusetts, 60 miles S. E. from Boston.

WEST YORK, a post-office of St. Joseph co., Indiana.

WEST YORKSHIRE, a post-office of Cattaraugus co., New York.

WEST ZANESVILLE, Ohio. See ZANESVILLE.

WET GLAIZE, a post-office of Camden co., Mo., about 52 miles S. S. W. from Jefferson.

WETHERDVILLE, a post-office of Baltimore co., Maryland.

WETHERSFIELD, a post-township of Hartford co., Connecticut, on the right bank of Connecticut river, about $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles S. from Hartford. Large quantities of onions and some tobacco are raised here for exportation. The village stands in a beautiful plain bordering the river, and has broad streets finely shaded with elms. It contains 3 churches, an academy, a female seminary, and a number of handsome dwellings. Wethersfield is the seat of the Connecticut State Prison. See CONNECTICUT, page 275.

WETHERSFIELD, a post-township of Wyoming co., New York, 8 miles S. W. from Warsaw. Population, 1489.

WETHERSFIELD, a post-village in Henry co., Illinois, near the Central Military Tract railroad, 110 miles N. by W. from Springfield.

WETHERSFIELD SPRINGS, a post-village of Wyoming co., New York, about 250 miles W. from Albany. It has several churches and stores.

WETUMPKA, a flourishing city and river port of Coosa county, Alabama, is situated on the Coosa river, at the head of navigation, 14 miles N. from Montgomery, and about 10 miles from the Alabama river. The situation is advantageous both for trade and for manufactures. The Alabama is one of the best streams in the Union for steamboat navigation; it is never closed by ice like the northern rivers, nor obstructed by snags and sawyers like those of the south-west. The fall of the Coosa is sufficient to afford an abundant water-power, which, however, has not been improved to much extent. Wetumpka is the principal market for the cotton produced in Coosa county and several adjoining counties. About 30,000 bales were shipped here in 1851. The city has 4 or 5 churches, several flourishing seminaries, a newspaper office, and is the seat of the State penitentiary. A plank-road extends from this place to the Tennessee river, near Gunter's Landing, which is about 150 miles distant. Population in 1853, about 3500.

WETUMPKA CREEK, of Alabama, enters the Euche creek in Russell county.

WETZEL, a new county in the N. W. part of Virginia, bordering on Pennsylvania, and on the Ohio river, which separates it from the State of Ohio: area, about 250 square miles. It is drained by Fishing creek and branches. The surface is exceedingly hilly; the soil of the river bottoms is excellent, and of the uplands moderately fertile. Indian corn, wheat, oats, hay, cattle, and pork are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 124,198 bushels of corn; 12,162 of wheat; 22,266 of oats; 1440 tons of hay, and 46,327 pounds of butter. It contained 5 saw mills, 2 saddlery shops, and 78 pupils attending public schools. The county contains stone coal. The Baltimore and Ohio railroad passes along the N. E. border. Formed a few years ago out of part of Tyler county. Capital, New Martinsville.

Population, 4284, of whom 4267 were free, and 17, slaves.

WEVERTON, a flourishing post-village of Frederick county, Maryland, is situated on the Potomac river, and on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, 80 miles W. from Baltimore, and 2 miles from Harper's Ferry. It stands near the foot of the Blue Ridge, and is surrounded by highly picturesque scenery. The abundant water-power of the river is employed in manufactories of cotton, wool, nails, and files. The Chesapeake and Ohio canal passes through the place. It originated about 1848. Population in 1852, about 2500.

WEXFORD, a new unorganized county in the N. W. part of Michigan, contains about 576 square miles. It is intersected by the Manistee river. The surface has but little elevation above Lake Michigan. This county is not named in the census of 1850.

WEXFORD, a post-office of Alleghany co., Pa.

WEXFORD, a post-office of Allomakee co., Io.

WEYAUWEGO, a township in the S. part of Waupaca co., Wisconsin, contains a post-village of the same name.

WEYBRIDGE, a post-township of Addison co., Vermont, on the S. side of Otter creek, about 35 miles S. W. by W. from Montpelier. Population, 804.

WEYBRIDGE LOWER FALLS, a post-office of Addison co., Vermont.

WEYMOUTH, a post-township of Norfolk co., Massachusetts, bordering on Boston harbor, and intersected by the South Shore branch of the Old Colony railroad, 12 miles S. S. E. from Boston. Two estuaries or arms of Boston harbor, called Fore and Back rivers, afford facilities for navigation. There are several pleasant villages in the township, the principal of which are Weymouth Landing, or Washington Square, and South Weymouth. The former, at the head of Fore river, is a place of active trade, having several hundred tons of shipping, and a bank with a capital of $100,000. The manufacture of boots and shoes is extensively carried on. Population in 1840, 3738; in 1850, 5369.

WEYMOUTH, a post-township of Atlantic co., New Jersey, about 55 miles S. from Trenton. Population, 1032.

WEYMOUTH, a thriving post-village in Hamilton township, Atlantic co., New Jersey, about 6 miles N. W. of May's Landing. It has a church, 2 mills, and about 40 houses.

WEYMOUTH, a post-office of Medina co., O.

WHALE'S BACK, a small island at the E. side of the entrance to Portsmouth harbor, New Hampshire. On it is a lighthouse 68 feet high, containing two fixed lights, one 10 feet above the other. Lat. 43° 2' 30" N., lon. 70° 42' 45" W.

WHALEYSVILLE, a thriving post-village of Worcester co., Maryland, on the Pocomoke river, 115 miles S. E. by E. from Annapolis. It is a place of active business, and contains 3 stores.

WHALLONSBURG, a post-office of Essex co., New York.

WHARTON, a county in the S. E. part of Texas, has an area of 1080 square miles. It is intersected by the Colorado river, bounded on the N. E. by the San Bernard, and drained by Mustang and Sandy creeks. The surface has but little elevation. The soil produces cotton, Indian corn, sweet potatoes, and sugar-cane. In 1850 this county yielded 103,700 bushels of corn; 35,690 of sweet potatoes; 2892 bales of cotton; 2235 pounds of butter, and 317 hogheads of sugar. Named in honor of the Wharton family of Texas. Capital, Wharton. Population, 1752, of whom 510 were free, and 1242, slaves.

WHARTON, a township of Fayette co., Pennsylvania, about 11 miles S. E. from Uniontown. The National road intersects the township. Population, 1853.

WHARTON, a post-township of Potter co., Pennsylvania, about 40 miles N. W. from Lock Haven. Population, 232.

WHARTON, a post-village, capital of Wharton co., Texas, on the Colorado river, 50 miles by stage route N. from Matagorda.

WHARTON, a post-office of Noble co., Ohio.

WHARTONSBURG, a post-village of Wyandott co., Ohio, on the Mad River and Lake Erie railroad, about 60 miles S. W. from Sandusky.

WHATELY, a post-township in Franklin co., Massachusetts, on Connecticut river, and intersected by Connecticut River railroad, 88 miles W. by N. from Boston. Pop., 1101.

WHAYPAW, a small river of Marathon co., Wisconsin, which flows into Wisconsin river, on its right bank.

WHEATFIELD, a township of Niagara co., New York, intersected by the Canandaigua and Niagara Falls railroad, and the Buffalo and Niagara railroad, 12 miles N. from Buffalo. Population, 2659.

WHEATFIELD, a township forming the S. E. extremity of Indiana co., Pennsylvania, on the Pennsylvania canal. Population, 2387.

WHEATFIELD, a township of Perry co., Pennsylvania, intersected by the Pennsylvania railroad and canal, 6 miles E. from Bloomfield. Population, 678.

WHEATFIELD, a post-township in the central part of Ingham co., Michigan. Population, 231.

WHEATLAND, a post-township of Monroe co., New York, on the Genesee river, 15 miles W. S. W. from Rochester. It is traversed by the Genesee canal. Pop., 2916.

WHEATLAND, a post-office of Loudon co., Va.

WHEATLAND, a township in the E. part of Hillsdale co., Michigan. Population, 1358.

WHEATLAND, a post-office of Ionia co., Mich.

WHEATLAND, a township in the N. W. part of Will co., Illinois, intersected by Des Plaines river and the Illinois and Michigan canal. Population, 749.

WHEATLAND, a township forming the S. W. extremity of Kenosha co., Wis. Pop., 1193.

WHEATLAND, a post-village in the above township, about 70 miles S. E. from Madison.

WHEATLAND CENTRE, a post-office of Hillsdale co., Michigan.

WHEATLEY, a post-office of Fauquier co., Va.

WHEATON, a post-village of Dupage co., Illinois, on the Galena and Chicago railroad, 25 miles W. from Chicago.

WHEAT RIDGE, a post-office of Adams co., O.

WHEATVILLE, a post-office of Genesee co., New York.

WHEELER, a post-office of Steuben co., N. Y.

WHEELERSBURG, a post-village of Scioto co., Ohio, near the Ohio river, 9 miles E. from Portsmouth. Pop. in 1853, about 700.

WHEELING, a city and port of entry of Virginia, and capital of Ohio county, is finely situated on the E. bank of the Ohio river, and on both sides of Wheeling creek, 92 miles below Pittsburg, 365 miles above Cincinnati, 350 miles N. W. from Richmond, and about 630 feet above the level of the sea. Lat. 40° 7' N., lon. 80° 42' W. The site is a narrow alluvial tract, overlooked by precipitous hills, and extending about 2 miles along the river. Wheeling is the most important place on the river between Pittsburg and Cincinnati, and in respect to trade, manufactures, and population, the most considerable town of Western Virginia. It contains a fine court house, about 14 churches, 2 academies, 3 banks aggregate capital above $1,400,000, and a savings' institution. Four or five newspapers are published here. The town is supplied with water raised from the river by machinery. The National road crosses the river at Zane's Island, opposite the city, by a beautiful wire suspension bridge, the span of which is one of the longest in the world, measuring 1010 feet. The height of the towers is 153 feet above low-water mark, and 60 feet above the abutments. The bridge is supported by 12 wire cables, each 1380 feet in length and 4 inches in diameter. The cost of this structure is estimated at $210,000. Wheeling is the western terminus of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, 380 miles long, finished in 1853, and of the Hempfield railroad, which joins the Pennsylvania railroad at Greensburg. The Cleveland and Pittsburg railroad is to be extended from Wells-ville to this city, and the Central Ohio, and the Cincinnati and Marietta railroad, when finished, will open a direct communication with the Western States. In 1852, 38 steamboats were owned in this place, with an aggregate tonnage of 6843 tons. During the same year, 10 steamboats and 2 other vessels were built, with a burthen of 1746 tons. The hills which rise in the immediate vicinity contain inexhaustible beds of coal, which supply fuel at a small expense to the numerous manufactories of Wheeling. In 1850 it contained 4 iron foundries, 3 forges, 3 manufactories of nails, 5 of glass ware, 2 or 3 of cotton goods, 3 of paper, 1 of steam engines,

1 of silk goods, and 2 of wire. Flour, wool-len goods, whitelead, and other articles are also produced here. Wheeling became the capital of the county in 1797. In 1802 it contained about 70 houses. Population in 1820, 1567; in 1830, 5221; in 1840, 7885; and in 1850, 11,391, exclusive of West Wheeling, which had 438 inhabitants.

WHEELING, a post-village in Holmes co., Mississippi, near Big Black river, 75 miles N. N. E. from Jackson.

WHEELING, a township in the N. part of Belmont co., Ohio. Population, 1218.

WHEELING, a township forming the N. W. extremity of Guernsey co., Ohio, intersected by Wills creek. Population, 1159.

WHEELING, a small post-village of Delaware co., Indiana, on the Mississinewa river, about 15 miles N. N. W. from Muncie.

WHEELING, a post-village of Cook co., Illinois, on the Des Plaines river, about 25 miles N. W. from Chicago.

WHEELING, a post-office of Madison co., Io.

WHEELING CREEK rises by two branches, the North and South forks, in Washington and Greene counties, Pennsylvania, and falls into the Ohio river at Wheeling, Virginia.

WHEELING'S FORD, a village in Cass co., Iowa, on Nishnabotona river, about 200 miles W. by S. from Iowa City.

WHEELING VALLEY, a post-office of Marshall co., Virginia.

WHEELOCK, a post-township in Caledonia co., Vermont, 29 miles N. E. from Montpelier. Population, 855.

WHEELOCK, a post-office of Robertson co., Texas.

WHEELOCK, a post-office of Choctaw Nation, Arkansas.

WHETSTONE, a post-village of Pickens district, South Carolina.

WHETSTONE, a township in the W. part of Crawford co., Ohio. Population, 1657.

WHETSTONE, a post-office of Morrow co., O.

WHETSTONE RIVER, Ohio. See OLENTANGY RIVER.

WHIDBY'S ISLAND, a large island at the N. W. extremity of Washington Territory, E. of Vancouver's Island. It is near 50 miles long, and from 3 to 10 miles wide. It contains a number of extensive and fertile prairies, and is becoming settled rapidly. The only objection to it is the scarcity of water, which, however, can always be obtained by digging. Whidby's Island is included in Island county, of which the seat of justice is at Penn's Cove, a thriving settlement near the middle of the island.

WHIGVILLE, a post-office of Noble co., O.

WHIGVILLE, a post-office of Lapeer co., Mich.

WHIPPANY, or WHIPPONONG, a manufacturing village of Morris county, New Jersey, on Whippany river, about 52 miles N. by E. from Trenton. It contains 2 churches, 1 clothing, 5 cotton, and 3 paper mills, and 3 stores. Population, estimated at 800.

WHIPPY SWAMP, a post-village of Beaufort district, South Carolina.

WHIPSTOWN, a post-office of Perry co., O.

WHISKEY RUN, a township in Crawford co., Indiana. Population, 930.

WHITAKER'S BLUFF, a post-office of Wayne co., Tennessee.

WHITCOMB, a post-office of Franklin co., Ind.

WHITE, a county situated in the N. E. central part of Arkansas, contains 1050 square miles. It is intersected by Little Red river and Bayou des Arc, affluents of White river, which forms the E. boundary of the county. The surface is occupied by forests of cypress, cedar, ash, walnut, &c., and by plantations of Indian corn and cotton. In 1850 this county produced 110,935 bushels of Indian corn; 5596 of oats; 262 bales of cotton, and 14,235 pounds of butter. White river is navigated at all seasons, on the border of the county, by steamboats, in which staves and other lumber are exported. Capital, Searcy. Population, 2619, of whom 2311 were free, and 308, slaves.

WHITE, a county in the E. central part of Tennessee, has an area estimated at 700 square miles. The Caney fork of Cumberland river forms its boundary on the S. and W., and it is also watered by Falling Water and other creeks. The surface is hilly, and partly covered with forests. Indian corn, grass, and pork are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 599,015 bushels of corn; 59,407 of oats; 119,508 pounds of butter, and 23,537 of wool. It contained 21 churches, 1 newspaper office, 2500 pupils attending public schools, and 58 attending other schools. The streams furnish water-power for mills. The South-western railroad is in progress through the county. Capital, Sparta. Population, 11,444; of whom 10,230 were free, and 1214, slaves.

WHITE, a county in the N. W. part of Indiana, contains about 500 square miles. It is drained by the Tippecanoe river, which affords abundant water-power. The surface is nearly level, and the soil highly productive. About two-thirds of the area is occupied by prairies, some of which are dry and undulating. The staples are wheat, Indian corn, oats, and grass. In 1850 this county produced 373,013 bushels of corn; 32,930 of wheat; 36,266 of oats, and 3917 tons of hay. It contained 8 churches, 1 newspaper office, and 1600 pupils attending public schools. It is intersected by the New Albany and Salem railroad. Organized in 1834. Capital, Monticello. Population, 4761.

WHITE, a county in the S. E. part of Illinois, bordering on Indiana, has an area of about 500 square miles. It is bounded on the E. by the Wabash river, intersected by the Little Wabash, and also drained by the Skillet fork of the Little Wabash. The county is well timbered, and has several small prairies. The soil is excellent. Wheat, oats, tobacco, cattle, and pork are among the staples. In 1850 the county produced 708,815 bushels of corn; 15,293 of wheat; 54,278 of oats, and 146,369 pounds of butter. It contained 19 churches, and 1000 pupils attending public schools. The Wabash river is navigable by steamboats on the border. The Little Wabash affords valuable water-power at Carmi. It is traversed by the Wabash Valley railroad, (unfinished.) A plank-road extends from Graysville to Albion. Named in honor of Colonel White, who formerly resided in this section of the state. Capital, Carmi. Population, 8925.

WHITE, a township forming the N. E. extremity of Cambria co., Pennsylvania. Population, 667.

WHITE, a township of Indiana co., Pennsylvania, contains Indiana, the county seat. Population, 2251.

WHITE, a township of Ashley co., Arkansas. Population, 648.

WHITE, a township of Newton co., Arkansas. Population, 242.

WHITE, a township of Pike co., Arkansas. Population, 205.

WHITE, a township of Polk co., Arkansas. Population, 326.

WHITEASH, a post-office of Alleghany co., Pennsylvania.

WHITEBREAST RIVER, a small stream of Marion co., Iowa, falls into the Des Moines river.

WHITEBREAST, a post-office of Clark co., Io.

WHITECHIMNEYS, a post-office of Caroline co., Virginia.

WHITECLAY CREEK a branch of Christiana creek, rises in Chester co., Pennsylvania, and unites with the other branches about 6 miles W. from Wilmington.

WHITECOTTAGE, a post-office of Shelby co., Texas.

WHITECOTTAGE, a post-office of Muskingum co., Ohio.

WHITECOTTAGE, a post-office of Harrison co., Indiana.

WHITE CREEK, of Missouri, flows southward into the river One Hundred and Two, near the S. border of Nodaway co.

WHITE CREEK, a post-village of Washington co., New York, situated in Whitecreek township, and on a creek of that name, 33 miles N. N. E. from Albany. It contains 2 or 3 churches and several stores. Population of the township, 2994.

WHITECROSS, a post-office of Orange co., North Carolina.

WHITEDAY, a post-office of Monongalia co., Virginia.

WHITEDAY GLADES, a post-office of Marion co., Virginia.

WHITDEER, a post-village of Lycoming co., Pennsylvania, 78 miles N. from Harrisburg.

WHITDEER, a township forming the N. E. extremity of Union co., Pennsylvania, on the Susquehanna river. Population, 1537.

WHITEDEER MILLS, a post-office of Union co., Pennsylvania.

WHITE EARTH RIVER, of Missouri Territory, rises in British America, and crossing the N. boundary of the United States, joins the Missouri in about 103° 10' W. lon. Length about 200 miles.

WHITE EYE PLAINS, a post-office of Coshoc-ton co., Ohio.

WHITE EYES, a township in the E. part of Coshoc-ton co., Ohio. Pop., 1132.

WHITEFIELD, a township in Lincoln co., Maine, intersected by Sheepscot river, which affords good water-power, 12 miles S. E. from Augusta. Population, 2158.

WHITEFIELD, a post-township in Coos co., New Hampshire, 88 miles N. from Concord. Population, 857.

WHITEFIELD, a post-office of Oktibbeha co., Mississippi.

WHITEFIELD, a post-office of Marshall co., Illinois.

WHITEFORD, a post-office of Lucas co., O.

WHITEFORD, a township forming the S. E. extremity of Monroe co., Michigan, intersected by the Erie and Kalamazoo railroad. Population, 696.

WHITEGATE, a post-office of Giles co., Virginia.

WHITEHALL, a flourishing post-village of Washington co., New York, is beautifully situated in Whitehall township, at the head or S. extremity of Lake Champlain, and on the Saratoga and Washington railroad, 77 miles N. by E. from Albany. The Champlain canal terminates here, connecting the village with Troy. Five steamboats ply daily to the ports on the lake during the summer. Pawlet river and Wood creek enter the lake at this place, and furnish extensive water-power. It contains 4 or 5 churches, 2 banks, 2 newspaper offices, and has an extensive trade with Canada. Machinery, woollen goods, flour, lumber, and other articles are manufactured. A railroad is projected from this place to Plattsburg. Population of the township, 4726; of the village, about 4000.

WHITEHALL, a post-office of Hunterdon co., New Jersey.

WHITEHALL, a small village of Columbia co., Pennsylvania.

WHITEHALL, a small village of Lancaster co., Pennsylvania.

WHITEHALL, a post-office of Montour co., Pennsylvania.

WHITEHALL, a post-office of Baltimore co., Maryland.

WHITEHALL, a small post-village of Frederrick co., Virginia.

WHITEHALL, a post-village in Mecklenburg co., North Carolina, 166 miles W. S. W from Raleigh.

WHITEHALL, a thriving village of Wayne co., North Carolina, on the Neuse river. Turpentine is shipped here in steamboats.

WHITEHALL, a post-office of Madison co., Ky.

WHITEHALL, a post-office of Owen co., Ind.

WHITEHALL, a thriving post-village of Greene co., Illinois, is situated on a prairie of its own name, about 60 miles W. S. W. from Springfield.

WHITEHALLVILLE, a post-office of Bucks co., Pennsylvania.

WHITE HARE, a small post-village of Cedar co., Missouri, about 110 miles S. S. E. from Independence.

WHITE HAVEN, a flourishing post-borough of Denison township, Luzerne co., Pennsylvania, on the Lehigh river, 25 miles above Mauch Chunk. A railroad 20 miles long connects it with Wilkesbarre. The town carries on an active trade in coal and lumber. In 1850, 40,000,000 feet of lumber were shipped at this place.

WHITE HAVEN, a post-village in Somerset co., Maryland, on the Wicomico river, 70 miles S. E. from Annapolis.

WHITEHEAD, a small island, lying S. W. of the W. entrance to Penobscot bay. On it is a white fixed light, 58 feet above the level of the sea, having a bell attached to it weighing 1000 lbs. In foggy weather this is struck three times a minute. Lat. 43° 52' N., lon. 69° 2' W.

WHITE HILL, a village of Burlington co., New Jersey, on the Delaware, contains 10 or 12 dwellings.

WHITE HILL, a post-office of Union co., North Carolina.

WHITE HILL, a post-office of Giles co., Tennessee.

WHITE HOUSE, a post-village of Hunterdon co., N. J., on Rockaway creek, and on the New Jersey Central railroad, about 30 miles N. by E. from Trenton, contains a church, a mill, 2 stores, and an academy.

WHITE HOUSE, a post-office of Cumberland co., Pennsylvania.

WHITE HOUSE, a post-office of Mecklenburg co., Virginia.

WHITE HOUSE, a post-office of Randolph co., North Carolina.

WHITE HOUSE, a post-office of Henry co., Georgia, 7 miles N. E. from McDonough.

WHITE HOUSE, a post-office of Warren co., Mississippi.

WHITE HOUSE, a post-office of Williamson co., Tennessee.

WHITE LAKE, a post-office of Sullivan co., New York.

WHITE LAKE, a post-township in the W. central part of Oakland co., Michigan. Population, 904.

WHITELEY, a post-township of Greene co., Pennsylvania, about 7 miles S. E. from Waynesburg.

WHITELEY, a small post-village of Greene co., Pennsylvania.

WHITELEY'S, a post-office of Newton co., Arkansas.

WHITELEYSBURG, a village in Kent co., Delaware, 16 miles S. W. from Dover.

WHITELICK CREEK, Indiana, rises in Boone co., and flowing southward, enters the W. fork of White river, 7 miles above Martinsville.

WHITEMARSH, a post-township of Montgomery co., Pennsylvania, intersected by the Philadelphia and Norristown railroad, 6 miles S. E. from Norristown. Pop., 2408.

WHITEMARSH, a post-office of Columbus co., North Carolina.

WHITE MILLS, a post-office of Wayne co., Pennsylvania.

WHITE MOUNTAIN, a post-office of Coos co., New Hampshire.

WHITE MOUNTAINS, the name of a group in the N. central part of New Hampshire, being included chiefly within the limits of Coos and Grafton counties. The principal summit, Mount Washington, rises 6234 feet above the level of the sea. The other summits are, Mount Adams, having an elevation of about 5760 feet; Mount Jefferson, 5660 feet; Mount Madison, 5420 feet; Mount Monroe, 5310 feet; Mount Franklin, 4850 feet; and Mount Lafayette, 4720 feet. For a more particular description, see NEW HAMPSHIRE.

WHITE OAK, a post-office of Ritchie co., Va.

WHITE OAK, a small village of Polk co., N. C.

WHITE OAK, a village of Fairfield district, South Carolina, on the Charlotte and South Carolina railroad, 46 miles N. from Columbia.

WHITE OAK, a post-village of Columbia co., Georgia, 28 miles W. from Augusta.

WHITE OAK, a post-office of Hopkins co., Texas.

WHITE OAK, a township in Franklin co., Arkansas. Population, 1052.

WHITE OAK, a post-office of Humphreys co., Tennessee.

WHITE OAK, a small village of Bath co., Ky.

WHITE OAK, a township in the S. W. part of Highland co., Ohio. Population, 1012.

WHITE OAK, a post-township in the E. part of Ingham co., Michigan. Population, 508.

WHITE OAK, a township in Jefferson co., Indiana. Population, 512.

WHITE OAK BAYOU, of Texas, flows eastward through Titus co., and enters Sulphur fork of Red river, at the N. E. extremity of that county.

WHITE OAK CREEK, of Georgia, flows through Meriwether county into Flint river.

WHITE OAK CREEK, in the N. part of Tennessee, enters New river on the E. border of Fentress county.

WHITE OAK CREEK, of West Tennessee, flows eastward and enters Tennessee river in Hardin county.

WHITE OAK CREEK, of Ohio, rises in Highland co. and enters the Ohio river about 8 miles below Ripley.

WHITE OAK GROVE, a post-office of Dubois co., Indiana.

WHITE OAK GROVE, a small post-village of Ogle co., Illinois.

WHITE OAK GROVE, a post-office of Greene co., Missouri, about 128 miles S. S. W. from Jefferson City.

WHITE OAK HILL, a post-office of Fleming co., Kentucky.

WHITE OAK POINT, a post-office of Warren co., Iowa.

WHITE OAK SPRINGS, a small village of Sullivan co., Tennessee.

WHITE OAK SPRINGS, a small post-village of Brown co., Illinois.

WHITE OAK SPRINGS, a township in the S. part of Lafayette co., Wisconsin. Pop., 482.

WHITE OAK SPRINGS, a post-village in the above township, about 60 miles S. W. from Madison, contains 1 hotel, 4 stores, and about 300 inhabitants. Lead ore abounds in its vicinity.

WHITE PATH, a post-office of Gilmer co., Ga.

WHITE PIGEON, a post-township in the S. part of St. Joseph co., Michigan. Pop., 795.

WHITE PIGEON, a thriving post-village in the above township, on the creek of the same name, and on the Michigan Southern railroad, 120 miles E. from Chicago. It is surrounded by a productive farming region, and has an active business. Population in 1853, about 600.

WHITE PLAINS, a post-village, semi-capital of Westchester county, New York, situated in White Plains township, on the Harlem railroad, 26 miles N. N. E. from New York. It contains, besides the county buildings, 5 or 6 churches and several seminaries. A noted battle of the Revolution was fought in the vicinity, Oct. 28th, 1776. Population of the township, 1414.

WHITE PLAINS, a post-office of Brunswick co., Virginia.

WHITE PLAINS, a post-office of Cleveland co., North Carolina.

WHITE PLAINS, a small village of Anderson district, South Carolina.

WHITE PLAINS, a post-village of Greene co., Georgia, about 30 miles N. N. E. from Milledgeville. It has a church and several stores.

WHITE PLAINS, a post-village of Benton co., Alabama, in Choctolocco valley, 7 miles E. by S. from Jacksonville.

WHITE PLAINS, a post-office of Jackson co., Tennessee.

WHITE POND, a post-office of Barnwell district, South Carolina.

WHITE POST, a post-village of Clarke co., Virginia, 12 miles S. E. from Winchester, is pleasantly situated a few miles from the Blue Ridge.

WHITE POST, a post-township in Pulaski co., Indiana. Population, 108.

WHITE RIVER rises in Addison county, Vermont, and flowing in a winding course through Windsor county, falls into the Connecticut river. On the N. it receives three tributaries, called the First, Second, and Third branches, which afford some fine mill seats.

WHITE RIVER, of Arkansas and Missouri, is formed by three small branches which rise among the Ozark mountains, and unite a few miles E. from Fayetteville, Arkansas. It flows first north-easterly into Missouri, and after making a circuit of about 100 miles, returns into Arkansas, and pursues a south-easterly course to the mouth of Black river, which is its largest affluent. From this point its direction is nearly southward, until it enters the Mississippi, 15 miles above the mouth of the Arkansas. The whole length probably exceeds 800 miles. It is navigable by steamboats, in all stages of water, to the mouth of Black river, 350 miles, and during a large portion of the year they can ascend to Batesville, about 50 miles higher. The navigation is not obstructed by ice in ordinary seasons. Below Batesville the channel is about 4 feet deep throughout the year. The country through which it flows is generally fertile, and adapted to Indian corn and cotton. Pine forests are found on its banks above Batesville, and cypress swamps along the lower part of its course.

Branches.—James fork rises near the E. border of Green county, Missouri, and flowing south-westerly, enters the White river in Taney county. Big North fork rises in the S. part of Missouri, and flows southward through Fulton county, Arkansas, into the main stream. Bryant's fork enters the Big North fork in Ozark county, Missouri. Little North fork rises in Ozark county, Missouri, and enters White river in Marion county, Arkansas. Buffalo fork rises in Newton county, Arkansas, and enters White river from the right at the S. E. extremity of Marion county. All of these are more properly affluents than branches.

WHITE RIVER, of Michigan, rises in Newaygo co., and flows south-westward through Oceana co. into Lake Michigan.

WHITE RIVER, of Indiana, is formed by two branches, called the East and West fork, which unite at the S. W. extremity of Daviess county, 5 miles N. E. from Petersburg. After a south-westerly course of 40 or 50 miles, it falls into the Wabash, 100 miles (by water) from its mouth, and nearly opposite Mount Carmel, Illinois.

Branches.—The West fork, which is the longest branch, rises in Randolph county, near the E. border of the state, and pursues a south-westward course of about 300 miles nearly through the middle of the state. The chief towns which it passes from its source downward are Muncie, Anderson, Indianapolis, Martinsville, and Bloomfield. It flows through a fertile farming region, the surface of which is nearly level. In high water, boats of light draught ascend this branch to Martinsville, about 200 miles from the mouth of White river. The East fork, called also Driftwood fork, rises in Henry county, and flowing south-westward, passes by Newcastle, Shelbyville, Columbus, and Rockford. Its length is estimated at 250 miles. It is navigable by flat-boats to Rockford during a few months of the year. This stream is commonly called Blue river, until it passes the mouth of Sugar creek, near Edinburg.

WHITE RIVER, of Utah, rises in San Pete co., and flowing westerly, falls into Green river, in Utah county.

WHITE RIVER, a township in Benton co., Arkansas. Population, 385.

WHITE RIVER, a post-office of Desha co., Ark.

WHITE RIVER, a township in Independence co., Arkansas. Population, 1098.

WHITE RIVER, a township in Izard co., Arkansas. Population, 221.

WHITE RIVER, a township in Marion co., Arkansas. Population, 261.

WHITE RIVER, a township in Prairie co., Arkansas. Population, 99.

WHITE RIVER, a township in Washington co., Arkansas. Population, 695.

WHITE RIVER, a township in Gibson co., Indiana. Population, 731.

WHITE RIVER, a township in Hamilton co., Indiana. Population, 1492.

WHITE RIVER, a township in Johnson co., Indiana. Population, 1547.

WHITE RIVER, a post-office of Morgan co., Indiana.

WHITE RIVER, a township in Randolph co., Indiana. Population, 2260.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, a post-office of Windsor co., Vermont.

WHITE ROAD, a post-office of Forsyth co., North Carolina.

WHITE ROCK, a post-office of Yancey co., North Carolina.

WHITE ROCK, a post-office of Navarro co., Texas.

WHITE ROCK, a township in Franklin co., Arkansas. Population, 159.

WHITE ROCK, a post-village in Ogle co., Illinois, 90 miles W. by N. from Chicago.

WHITE ROCK CREEK, of Texas, rises in Houston county, and flows into the Trinity river from the left in Trinity county.

WHITE ROCK CREEK, of Dallas county, Texas, enters the Trinity river from the left, a few miles below Dallas Court House.

WHITESBOROUGH, a handsome post-village in Whitestown township, and semi-capital of Oneida county, New York, on the Mohawk river, the Erie canal, and on the Central railroad, 4 miles N. W. from Utica. It contains churches of 4 or 5 denominations, 1 or 2 academies, a bank, and several factories. Incorporated in 1829. Population of the village estimated at 2200; population of the township, 6810.

WHITESBURG, a post-village of Madison co., Alabama, on the right bank of the Tennessee river, 11 miles S. from Huntsville.

WHITESBURG, a post-village, capital of Letcher co., Kentucky, on the N. fork of the Kentucky river, 150 miles S. E. from Frankfort. It contains a court house, and 2 churches.

WHITE'S CORNERS, a post-office of Erie co., New York.

WHITE'S CORNERS, a post-office of Potter co., Pennsylvania.

WHITE'S CREEK, a post-office of Bladen co., North Carolina.

WHITESIDES, a county in the W. N. W. part of Illinois, has an area of about 700 square miles. It is bounded on the W. by the Mississippi river, which separates it from Iowa, intersected by Rock river; and also drained by Elkhorn and Rock creeks. The county contains extensive prairies, among which groves of timber are distributed. The soil is very productive. Indian corn, wheat, oats, and hay are the staples. In 1850 the county produced 211,027 bushels of corn; 149,661 of wheat; 70,654 of oats; 8950 tons of hay, and 118,963 pounds of butter. It contained 4 churches, and 1364 pupils attending public schools. Rock river furnishes valuable water-power. The Mississippi and Rock River Junction railroad will pass through the county. Organized in 1839, and named in honor of General Samuel Whitesides, who was distinguished as a captain of rangers in the war of 1812. Capital, Stirling. Population, 5361.

WHITESIDE'S CORNERS, a post-office of Saratoga co., New York.

WHITE SPRINGS, a post-office of Hamilton co., Florida.

WHITE'S SALINES, a post-office of White co., Tennessee.

WHITE'S STORE, a post-office of Chenango co., New York.

WHITE'S STORE, a post-office of Anson co., North Carolina.

WHITE'S STORE, a small village of York district, South Carolina.

WHITE STONE, a post-office of Lancaster co., Virginia.

WHITESTOWN, Oneida co., New York. See WHITESBOROUGH.

WHITESTOWN, a post-office of Butler co., Pennsylvania.

WHITE SULPHUR, a post-office of Green co., Tennessee.

WHITE SULPHUR, a post-office of Scott co., Kentucky.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, a post-village of Greenbrier county, Virginia, on the route of the Covington and Ohio railroad, (unfinished,) 205 miles W. from Richmond, and 9 miles E. from Lewisburg. This is the most celebrated watering-place in Virginia, or perhaps in any of the Southern States. It is situated in a valley 6 or 8 miles W. from the top of the Alleghany mountains, and is surrounded by highlands and charming scenery. The principal stream discharges about 13 gallons per minute, at a uniform temperature. According to the analysis of Professor Rogers, 100 cubic inches of water contains 65.54 grains of solid matter, composed of several salts in the following proportions:—

Sulphate of lime	31.680
Sulphate of magnesia.....	8.241
Sulphate of soda.....	4.050
Carbonate of lime.....	1.530
Carbonate of magnesia.....	0.506
Chloride of magnesium.....	0.071
Chloride of calcium.....	0.010
Chloride of sodium.....	0.226
Protosulphate of iron.....	0.069
Sulphate of alumine.....	0.012
Earthy phosphates, a trace.
Azotized organic matter, blended with a large proportion of sulphur, about.....	5 grains.

The village contains several fine hotels and rows of cottages, among which are Virginia row, Baltimore row, South Carolina row, Alabama row, Louisiana row, &c. The accommodations are sufficient for 1200 or 1500 persons.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, a post-village of Merriwether co., Georgia, 118 miles W. by S. from Milledgeville.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, a post-office of Limestone co., Alabama.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, a small village of Lauderdale co., Mississippi.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, a post-village of Catahoula parish, Louisiana, about 200 miles N. W. from Baton Rouge. It is a place of resort for invalids, and contains 2 large boarding houses, 1 church, and 2 stores. First settled in 1846.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, a small village of Bath co., Kentucky.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, a small village of Union co., Kentucky.

WHITESVILLE, a post-village of Alleghany co., New York, 25 miles S. S. E. from Angelica. It contains 2 or 3 churches.

WHITESVILLE, a post-office of Halifax co., Virginia.

WHITESVILLE, a post-village, capital of Columbus co., North Carolina, 100 miles S. by W. from Raleigh. The Wilmington and Manchester railroad passes through it, 44 miles from Wilmington.

WHITESVILLE, a small village of Effingham co., Georgia, on the Central railroad, 30 miles N. W. from Savannah.

WHITESVILLE, a post-village of Harris co., Georgia, 27 miles N. from Columbus, has 150 inhabitants.

WHITESVILLE, a village in Duval co., Florida, 155 miles E. S. E. from Tallahassee.

WHITESVILLE, a post-village in Wilkinson co., Miss., 125 miles S. W. by S. from Jackson.

WHITESVILLE, a thriving post-village of Hardeman co., Tennessee, about 6 miles from Hatchee river, and 12 miles N. W. from Bolivar.

WHITESVILLE, a post-village of Daviess co., Kentucky.

WHITESVILLE, a post-office of Montgomery co., Indiana.

WHITESVILLE, a post-office of Andrew co., Missouri.

WHITE TOP, a post-office of Grayson co., Virginia.

WHITE TOP, a post-office of Sullivan co., Tennessee.

WHITE TOP MOUNTAIN. See IRON MOUNTAIN.

WHITEVILLE, a small post-village of Fayette co., Tennessee.

WHITEWATER, a post-office of Fayette co., Georgia.

WHITEWATER, a post-office of Pike co., Ala.

WHITEWATER, a township in the W. part of Hamilton co., Ohio, intersected by the Miami river and Whitewater canal. Pop., 1567.

WHITEWATER, a township in Franklin co., Indiana. Population, 1512.

WHITEWATER, a post-office of Wayne co., Indiana.

WHITEWATER, a small village of Cape Girardeau co., Missouri.

WHITEWATER, a post-township forming the N. W. extremity of Walworth co., Wisconsin. Population, 1252.

WHITEWATER, a neat and thriving post-village in the above township, on the Milwaukee and Mississippi railroad, where it is crossed by the Wisconsin Central railroad, 38 miles S. E. from Madison, and 50 miles W. S. W. from Milwaukee. An affluent of Rock river furnishes water-power here, which is employed in flouring and saw mills. The village is situated in a rich farming district, and has an active business. It contains 5 churches, an iron foundry, and a pottery. Laid out in 1840. Population in 1853, about 1200.

WHITEWATER CREEK, of Georgia, flows southward and enters Flint river on the W. border of Pike county.

WHITEWATER RIVER, of Indiana and Ohio, is formed by two branches, the East fork and West fork, which rise in the E. part of Indiana, and flowing nearly S., unite at Brookville. After a south-easterly course of a few miles it enters Ohio, and falls into the Miami 6 miles from its mouth. The main stream is about 100 yards wide, and the whole length, including the longest branch near 100 miles.

WHITEWATER RIVER, of Missouri and Arkansas, rises in the N. part of Cape Girardeau county, Missouri, and flowing first south-easterly and then southerly, divides itself into two arms, called East and West Whitewater; then mingling its waters with those of Lake St. Mary, it receives the Castor river, and after being joined by the outlet of Lake Pemisco, it falls into Big lake communicating with the St. Francis by Little river. Entire length estimated at above 250 miles. See CASTOR RIVER.

WHITEWOMAN RIVER, Ohio. See the WALHONDING.

WHITFIELD, a new county in the N. W. part of Georgia. It is drained by the Conasauga river, a branch of the Oostenaula. The surface is mountainous. The soil and productions resemble those of Murray county. The county was formed about the year 1852, by a division of Murray and Walker counties, and named in honor of the celebrated George Whitefield. It is intersected by the Western and Atlantic, and in part by the East Tennessee and Georgia railroad. Capital, Dalton.

WHITFIELD, a post-office of Lincoln co., Me.

WHITFORD, a township forming the S. W. extremity of Monroe county, Michigan, partly intersected by the Erie and Kalamazoo railroad. Population, 696.

WHITING, a post-township in Washington co., Maine, on Machias bay, 180 miles E. by N. from Augusta. Population, 470.

WHITING, a post-township in Addison co., Vermont, on Otter creek, and the Rutland and Burlington railroad, 44 miles S. W. from Montpelier. Population, 629.

WHITINGHAM, a post-township in Windham co., Vermont, 112 miles S. by W. from Montpelier. It contains a mineral spring, discovered in 1822, and extensive beds of limestone, the burning of which affords employment to a large number of persons. Population, 1380.

WHITINSVILLE, a post-village in Worcester co., Massachusetts, 40 miles W. from Boston.

WHITLEY, a county in the S. E. part of Kentucky, bordering on Tennessee: area estimated at 560 square miles. It is drained by the Cumberland river. The surface is hilly and broken. Indian corn is the staple, and pork the principal export. The county contains extensive beds of coal and iron ore. In 1850 it produced 312,918 bushels of corn; 3609 of wheat; 52,678 of oats; 11,674 pounds of tobacco; 13,916 of wool, and 48,889 of flax. It contained 42 churches, and 1197 pupils attending public schools. The falls of the Cumberland river in this county present one of the most remarkable objects in the state, having a perpendicular descent of 63 feet. It is intersected by the Danville and Knoxville railroad, (unfinished.) Capital, Williamsburg. Population, 7447; of whom 7246 were free, and 201, slaves.

WHITLEY, a county in the N. E. part of Indiana, contains 326 square miles. It is drained by the Eel river, an affluent of the Wabash. The surface varies from level to undulating; the soil is mostly a fertile sandy loam. The county contains several small prairies. Indian corn, wheat, oats, and grass are the staples. In 1850 it produced 126,049 bushels of corn; 46,669 of wheat; 20,040 of oats, and 2501 tons of hay. It contained 6 churches. It is traversed by the Fort Wayne and Chicago, and the Auburn and Eel River Railroads. Organized in 1842. Capital, Columbia. Population, 5190.

WHITLEY COURT HOUSE, Kentucky. See WILLIAMSBURG.

WHITLEY COURT HOUSE, Indiana. See COLUMBIA.

WHITLEY'S POINT, a small village of Cumberland co., Illinois.

WHITLEY'S POINT, a post-office of Moultrie co., Illinois.

WHITLEYVILLE, a post-office of Jackson co., Tennessee.

WHITLOCKSVILLE, a village of Westchester co., New York, near the Croton river and Harlem railroad, 44 miles N. N. E. from New York.

WHITMIRE'S, a post-office of Newberry co., South Carolina.

WHITNEY'S CORNERS, a post-office of Jefferson co., New York.

WHITNEY'S POINT, a post-office of Broome co., New York.

WHITNEY'S VALLEY, a post-village of Alleghany co., New York, on the Buffalo and New York City railroad, 78 miles E. S. E. from Buffalo.

WHITNEYVILLE, a post-office of Washington co., Maine.

WHITNEYVILLE, a pleasant village of New Haven co., Connecticut, about 3 miles N. from New Haven. A stream flowing through the village affords water-power, which is extensively employed for the manufacture of rifles, and other fire-arms, for the United States government.

WHITNEYVILLE, a post-office of Kent co., Michigan.

WHITPAINE, a township of Montgomery co., Pennsylvania, 5 miles E. N. E. from Norristown. Population, 1351.

WHITSONTOWN, a small village of Franklin co., Arkansas.

WHITTINGTON, a post-village in Hot Springs co., Arkansas, about 40 miles W. by S. from Little Rock.

WHITTELEY, a post-village in Medina co., Ohio, 100 miles N. E. by N. from Columbus. It contains 1 steam flouring mill and several saw mills.

WHITTLE'S MILLS, a post-office of Mecklenburg co., Virginia.

WHITTON'S FERRY, a small village of Cole co., Missouri.

WHY NOT, a post-office of Lauderdale co., Mississippi.

WICK, a post-office of Tyler co., Va.

WICKAHOE, a small village of Lenoir co., North Carolina.

WICKFORD, a thriving post-village of Washington co., Rhode Island, on an arm of Narraganset bay, about 10 miles from the ocean, 20 miles S. by W. from Providence, and 3 miles E. from the Stonington and Providence railroad. It has a good harbor, and considerable shipping is employed in the coast and West India trade. The village contains 3 or 4 churches, 2 banks, and between 30 and 40 stores.

WICKLIFFE, a post-office of Lake co., O.

WICKLIFFE, a post-office of Crawford co., Indiana.

WICKLIFFE, a post-office of Jackson co., Io.

WICOMICO, a small river which rises in Sussex county, Delaware, and flows southwestward through Somerset county, Maryland, into Fishing bay, an arm of the Chesapeake. It is navigable to Salisbury.

WICOMICO CHURCH, a post-office of Northumberland co., Virginia, 98 miles N. E. from Richmond.

WICONISCO creek, of Dauphin co., Pennsylvania, flows into the Susquehanna river.

WICONISCO, a post-village and township of Dauphin county, Pennsylvania, on Wiconisco creek, about 33 miles N. from Harrisburg. Large quantities of coal are taken from the Bear mountain, near this village, and are transported by railroad to the Susquehanna river. Population of the township, 1316.

WIDEMAN'S, a post-office of Abbeville district, South Carolina.

WILBRAHAM, a post-village in Hampden co., Massachusetts, about 3 miles from the Western railroad, and 10 miles E. from Springfield. It contains 2 or 3 churches, and the Wesleyan Academy, an institution of high repute, founded in 1824. Population of the township, 2127.

WILCOX, a county in the S. W. central part of Alabama, has an area of 940 square miles. The Alabama river flows through the county, and it is also watered by Pine Barren creek. The surface is uneven, and partly occupied by prairies and forests of pine. The soil is generally fertile, producing cotton and Indian corn. In 1850 there were raised 18,709 bales of cotton; 673,446 bushels of corn, and 131,975 of sweet potatoes. There were 2 tanneries and 1 saw mill. It contained 9 churches, 153 pupils attending public schools, and 299 attending academies or other schools. The Alabama river is navigable by large steamboats through the county during the whole year. Capital, Camden. Pop., 17,352; of whom 5517 were free, and 11,835, slaves.

WILCOX, a post-office of Choctaw co., Miss.

WILCOX'S STORE, a post-village of Casey co., Kentucky.

WILCOXVILLE, a post-village in Schuyler co., Illinois, near the Illinois river, 55 miles N. W. by W. from Springfield.

WILDCAT, a post-office of Whitley co., Ky.

WILDCAT, a township in Tipton co., Indiana. Population, 211.

WILDCAT CREEK, of Indiana, rises in Howard county, and flows westward into the Washash, 4 miles above Lafayette, after a course of about 75 miles.

WILDERNESS, a post-office of Spottsylvania co., Virginia.

WILDERNESS, a small post-village of Clark co., Alabama.

WILD HAWS, a post-village of Izard co., Ark., about 20 miles N. E. from Mount Olive.

WILD RICE RIVER, a stream of Minnesota, rising in about 45° 53' N. lat., and 97° 7' W. lon., flows N. N. E. and falls into the Red River of the North. Length, near 100 miles.

WILEY'S COVE, a post-office of Searcy co., Arkansas.

WILEYVILLE, a post-office of Desha co., Arkansas.

WILKES, a county in the N. W. part of North Carolina: area estimated at 550 square miles. It is intersected by the Yadkin river. The surface is mountainous, especially towards the N. W. border, which extends near the summit of the Blue Ridge. The soil of the valleys is fertile, and the land is mostly adapted to pasturage. Indian corn is the staple. In 1850 this county produced 408,150 bushels of corn; 68,882 of oats, and 108,812 pounds of butter. There were 4 tanneries and 1 linseed-oil mill, 48 churches, and 2419 pupils attending public schools. The county contains extensive beds of iron ore. Organized in 1777, and named in honor of John Wilkes, who, as a member of the British Parliament, opposed the oppressive measures of the government towards the American colonies. Capital, Wilkesborough. Population, 12,099; of whom 10,957 were free, and 1142, slaves.

WILKES, a county in the N. E. part of Georgia, contains 390 square miles. It is drained by Broad and Little rivers, and by Dry fork and Fishing creeks. The surface is undulating, and the soil is various. The county contains some wornout land. Cotton, corn, wheat, oats, and potatoes are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 12,024 bales of cotton; 418,176 bushels of corn; 133,213 of oats, and 59,525 of sweet potatoes. The quantity of oats was the greatest produced by any county in the state. There were 3 wheelwright shops and 4 tanneries. It contained 17 churches, 1 newspaper office; 326 pupils attending public schools, and 125 attending other schools. Wilkes county contains iron ore, granite, quartz, and other minerals of the primary formation. A branch railroad is in progress from the Georgia railroad to the county seat. Formed in 1777. Capital, Washington. Population, 12,107; of whom 3826 were free, and 8281, slaves.

WILKESBARRE, a post-township of Luzerne co., Pennsylvania, contains Wilkesbarre, the county seat. Population, 6751.

WILKESBARRE, a thriving post-borough in the above township, capital of Luzerne co., Pennsylvania, on the left bank of the North branch of the Susquehanna, 110 miles N. E. from Harrisburg. It is situated in the beautiful and fertile valley of Wyoming, and commands a fine view of river and mountain scenery. It contains, besides the county buildings, several churches and academies, a bank, and 2 or 3 newspaper offices; also a large iron furnace, and other factories. A bridge across the river connects the borough with Kingston. The Lehigh and Susquehanna railroad extends southward 20 miles to Whitehaven. The North Pennsylvania railroad, now in progress, will connect Wilkes-barre directly with Philadelphia and Western New York. Another railroad is projected to the Delaware Water-Gap. The trade of the borough is facilitated by the North Branch canal, and by a plank-road leading to Scranton. Large quantities of anthracite coal are procured from the beds which surround the town, and which are among the thickest in the state. An extensive rolling mill was erected here about 1840, but its operation was suspended a few years since. Incorporated in 1806. Population in 1850, 2723.

WILKESBOROUGH, a post-village, capital of Wilkes co., North Carolina, on the Yadkin river, near its source, 170 miles W. by N. from Raleigh. Population, about 200.

WILKESBOROUGH, a post-village in McLean co., Illinois, 60 miles N. E. by N. from Springfield.

WILKESBURG, a post-office of Covington co., Mississippi.

WILKESVILLE, a small village of Gallia co., O.

WILKESVILLE, a post-township forming the S. E. extremity of Vinton co., Ohio, intersected by the Cincinnati Hillsborough and Belpre railroad. Population, 1037.

WILKESVILLE, a thriving post-village of Vinton co., Ohio, about 75 miles S. S. E. from Columbus.

WILKINS, a post-township of Alleghany co., Pennsylvania, about 9 miles E. from Pittsburg. Population, 3019.

WILKINS, a post-office of Union co., Ohio.

WILKINSBURG, a post-village of Wilkins township, Alleghany co., Pennsylvania, on the Pennsylvania railroad, 7 miles E. from Pittsburg. It has a number of stores, and about 700 inhabitants.

WILKINSON, a county in the central part of Georgia, has an area of 435 square miles. It is bounded on the N. E. by the Oconee river, intersected by Commissioner's and Big Sandy creeks, and also drained by Cedar and Turkey creeks. The surface is somewhat undulating, and extensively covered with forests of pine. On the Oconee and several creeks the land is productive, but the pine lands are not of the first quality. The soil is described as a mixture of gray sandy and "mulatto land." Cotton, Indian corn, wheat, oats, and sweet potatoes are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 4920 bales of cotton; 323,976 bushels of corn; 17,615 of oats, and 99,490 of sweet potatoes. It contained 23 churches, 1 newspaper office, and 460 pupils attending public schools. The county is intersected by the Central railroad. It contains one sulphur and chalybeate spring. Named in honor of General James Wilkinson, of Maryland. Capital, Irwinton. Population, 8212; of whom 5467 were free, and 2745, slaves.

WILKINSON, a county forming the S. W. extremity of Mississippi, bordering on Louisiana, has an area of about 700 square miles. The Mississippi river forms its boundary on the W. and the Homochitto on the N. The surface is uneven; the soil is highly productive, and is mostly occupied by plantations of cotton and Indian corn. In 1850 the county produced 504,795 bushels of corn; 19,450 of oats; 33,720 of sweet potatoes, and 26,381 bales of cotton. It contained 13 churches, 2 newspaper offices; 400 pupils attending public schools, and 169 attending academies and other schools. The county is partly intersected by the West Feliciana railroad. Capital, Woodville. Pop., 16,914; of whom 3654 were free, and 13,260, slaves.

WILKINSON, a township in Desha co., Arkansas. Population, 265.

WILKINSON'S LANDING, a small village of Perry co., Missouri.

WILKINSONVILLE, a post-village in Worcester co., Mass., 39 miles W. from Boston.

WILKINSONVILLE, a village in Chesterfield co., Virginia, 32 miles S. W. from Richmond.

WILKINSONVILLE, a post-village in Union district, South Carolina, 98 miles N. W. by N. from Columbia.

WILL, a county in the E. N. E. part of Illinois, bordering on Indiana, has an area of 1236 square miles. It is intersected by the Kankakee and Des Plaines rivers, branches of the Illinois. The surface is generally level, and destitute of timber, excepting small groves. The soil is very fertile, and much of it is under cultivation. The soil of the prairies is a deep, sandy loam, adapted to Indian corn and grass. In 1850 the county produced 527,903 bushels of Indian corn; 230,885 of wheat; 334,360 of oats; 32,043 tons of hay, and 319,054 pounds of butter. It contained 14 churches, 3 newspaper offices; 3472 pupils attending public schools, and 200 attending other schools. Quarries of building stone are worked near the county seat. The Des Plaines river furnishes water-power. The county is intersected by the Illinois and Michigan canal, by the Chicago branch of the Central railroad, the Chicago and Mississippi, and by the Chicago and Rock Island railroad. Named in honor of Conrad Will, for many years a member of the Illinois legislature. Capital, Joliet. Population, 16,703.

WILLAMETTE, or WAHLAMUTTE river, in the W. part of Oregon Territory, rises in Lane county, near the foot of the Cascade Range, and flowing first N. W., and then in a northerly direction for about 150 miles, falls into the Columbia river about 8 miles below Fort Vancouver. It is navigable for vessels of the largest class to Portland, 15 miles. Above the falls, which are 25 miles from its mouth, it is said to be navigable for small steamboats 60 miles. Commencing at the mouth of this river, and proceeding upwards, we have on the W. side the Tuality, (two'e-te,) Yam Hill, Rickreal, (rick/re-awl,) Luckimiute, Mary's, and Long Tom rivers, all rising in or at the base of the Callapooya mountains. Turning and descending on the right bank, we pass McKen-zie's, Sexton's, Coupé, Sandyam, Pudding, Clackamus, and Milwaukeee rivers, having their sources on the slopes of the Cascade Range. The chief towns on its banks are Marysville, Salem, Oregon City, and Portland. The valley of the Willamette is exceedingly beautiful and fertile, and is regarded as the garden of Oregon. One of the most remarkable features of this valley is the buttes, (pronounced bûts or butes), high, conical hills, which are generally insulated. Near the mouth of Coupé river there are two buttes, called Pisgah and Sinai, which are half a mile apart at their bases, and rise about 1000 feet above the plain, with a level country all around them for 20 miles. From one part of Willamette valley, near the Rickreal, seven peaks of the Cascade Range, crowned with everlasting snow, may be seen at once. Length, about 200 miles.

WILLAMETTE FORKS, a post-office of Linn co., Oregon.

WILLBAR, a post-office of Wilkes co., North Carolina.

WILLET, a township forming the S. E. extremity of Cortland co., New York, about 130 miles W. by S. from Albany. Pop., 923.

WILLET, a post-office of Green co., Wis.

WILLETTVILLE, a post-office of Highland co., Ohio.

WILLIAMS, a county forming the N. W. extremity of Ohio, bordering on Indiana and Michigan, has an area of about 480 square miles. It is intersected by the St. Joseph's and Tiffin rivers. The surface is level or undulating; the soil is fertile. The western part consists of "oak-openings," plains which produce a sparse growth of oaks. Indian corn, wheat, oats, potatoes, and pork are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 105,992 bushels of corn; 84,322 of wheat; 37,440 of oats, and 15,821 of potatoes. It contained 2 churches, 2 newspaper offices, and 2040 pupils attending public schools. It is traversed by the route of the Toledo and Chicago railroad. Capital, Bryan. Population, 8018.

WILLIAMS, a township forming the S. E. extremity of Northampton co., Pennsylvania, at the confluence of the Delaware and Lehigh rivers, immediately below Easton. Population, 2634.

WILLIAMS, a post-office of Christian co., Kentucky, 15 miles N. from Hopkinsville.

WILLIAMSBOROUGH, a post-village in Granville co., North Carolina, about 50 miles N. by E. from Raleigh.

WILLIAMSBURG, a district in the S. E. part of South Carolina, has an area of 1170 square miles. It is bounded on the S. W. by Santee river, on the N. E. by Lynch's creek and the Great Pedee, and intersected by the Black river. The surface is level, and partly over-spread with pine forests; the soil is generally sandy. The most fertile land is on the banks of the rivers. Cotton, rice, Indian corn, oats, and sweet potatoes are the staples. In 1850 this district produced 4298 bales of cotton; 354,543 pounds of rice; 239,713 bushels of corn; 7498 of oats, and 143,052 of sweet potatoes. It contained 17 churches, and 378 pupils attending public schools. It is intersected by the North-eastern railroad, (unfinished.) The Santee river is navigable by steamboats along the border of the district. Capital, Kingstree. Population, 12,447; of whom 3939 were free, and 8508, slaves.

WILLIAMSBERG, a post-township in Piscataquis co., Maine, 80 miles N. N. E. from Augusta. Population, 124.

WILLIAMSBERG, a post-village in Hampshire co., Massachusetts, 95 miles W. by N. from Boston. It contains 3 or 4 churches, and several manufactories. Population of the township, 1537.

WILLIAMSBERG, a city of King's county, Long Island, on the E. side of the East river, immediately opposite to New York city. The site is elevated, with a surface diversified with gentle undulations, and rising gradually as it recedes from the river. Like Brooklyn, which is immediately south, and with which it will doubtless soon be compactly joined by the rapid extension of both cities, it owes its growth and prosperity to its proximity to New York, a large portion of its residents doing business in that city during the day. Four ferries connect it with the metropolis, two running from the foot of Grand street, and two from the foot of South Seventh street. Williamsburg is regularly laid out, the streets extending parallel to the river, are numbered from the water, First, Second, Third street, &c. Those running E. and W. are named from Grand street, the great dividing line of the city; for example, the first N. of Grand street is called North First street, the first S. is named South First street, the second, South Second street, and so on, as far as South Eleventh street, next to which comes Division avenue, the dividing line between this city and Brooklyn. Bushwick creek separates the city from the township of Green Point. Grand street and South Seventh, already mentioned, are the principal thoroughfares. First street also is an active business street. The houses of Williamsburg are neatly and well built, though generally not more than two stories high. Many of the dwellings, however, especially in the newer portions of the town, are large and very handsome buildings.

Williamsburg contains 15 churches, among which are 3 Methodist, 2 Presbyterian, 1 Episcopal, 2 Catholic, 1 Baptist, 1 Universalist, 1 Congregational, 1 Dutch Reformed, and 1 German Lutheran. Of these, the most worthy of notice are—the First Baptist church, at the corner of Fifth and South Fifth streets, a very handsome edifice of free-stone, in a commanding situation, with the front facing East river; the Catholic church, a fine brick building, on Second street, between South Second and South Third streets, and the First Presbyterian, a handsome brick edifice, with a steeple and clock; like the two preceding, it is a conspicuous object from the river. The Universalist church, at the corner of Fourth and South Fifth streets, is a massive and imposing structure, with a square tower, and enclosed by grounds which are highly improved. The city contains 3 banks, 1 savings' institution, and 6 newspaper offices, three of which issue dailies. Among the institutions may be mentioned a Bible society, organized in 1845, and a medical society, established in 1852. The city is lighted with gas, and a company has recently been organized to supply it with water.

Williamsburg contains a variety of manufactures and several ship-yards. The buildings of the camphene manufactories along the river are conspicuous objects to one approaching from the water. This place was incorporated as a village in 1827, at which time there was but one ferry communicating with New York; in 1851 it was chartered as a city. Population in 1840, 5094; in 1845, 11,338; in 1850, 30,780, and in 1853, from 45,000 to 50,000.

WILLIAMSBERG, or PENN'S NECK, a village of Middlesex county, New Jersey, contains 2 churches.

WILLIAMSBERG village, New Jersey. See CEDAR CREEK.

WILLIAMSBERG, a flourishing post-borough of Blair county, Pennsylvania, on the Juniata river, and on the Pennsylvania canal, 157 miles E. from Pittsburg. It contains 4 or 5 churches, 1 woollen factory, 1 pottery, and several mills.

WILLIAMSBERG, a small village of Northampton co., Pennsylvania, about 70 miles N. from Philadelphia.

WILLIAMSBERG, a city, capital of James City county, Virginia, 60 miles E. from Richmond, and 68 miles N. W. from Norfolk. It is situated on a level plain between James and York rivers, 6 miles from each. It is the oldest incorporated town in the state, and is interesting in historic associations. It was the seat of the royal government previous to the Revolution, and afterwards capital of the state until 1779. William and Mary College, founded at this place in 1692, is the oldest literary institution in the Union, excepting Harvard University, and is at present in a flourishing condition. The library contains about 5000 volumes, and the students in attendance generally number from 100 to 150. Williamsburg is the seat of the Eastern Lunatic Asylum, which stands deservedly high for its neatness, order, and comfortable accommodations. It has about 200 patients, and a handsome edifice, with all the modern improvements in arrangement. The town contains 3 churches, Episcopalian, Baptist, and Methodist. First settled in 1632. Population, estimated at 1500.

WILLIAMSBURG, a post-village in Iredell co., N. C., 157 miles W. from Raleigh.

WILLIAMSBURG, a post-village, capital of Covington co., Mississippi, on an affluent of Leaf river, 60 miles S. E. from Jackson.

WILLIAMSBURG, a post-office of Henderson co., Tennessee.

WILLIAMSBURG, a small village of Owen co., Kentucky.

WILLIAMSBURG, a post-village, capital of Whitley county, Kentucky, on the Cumberland river, and on the route of the Danville and Knoxville railroad, 125 miles S. S. E. from Frankfort, has 1 church and several stores. Fourteen miles below, the river presents a perpendicular fall of 60 feet, which is one of the most remarkable objects in the state.

WILLIAMSBURG, a post-township in the E. part of Clermont co., Ohio. Pop., 1884.

WILLIAMSBURG, a post-village in the above township, on the E. fork of Little Miami river, 28 miles E. of Cincinnati, was formerly the county seat, and has several hundred inhabitants.

WILLIAMSBURG, a small village of Guernsey co., Ohio.

WILLIAMSBURG, a thriving village of Noble co., Ohio, near the Central Ohio railroad, about 40 miles E. from Zanesville.

WILLIAMSBURG, a pleasant village of Johnson co., Indiana, on Nineveh creek, 8 miles S. from Franklin.

WILLIAMSBURG, a post-village of Wayne co., Indiana, on a branch of Whitewater river, about 72 miles E. by N. of Indianapolis. Population, about 300.

WILLIAMSBURG, a post-village in De Kalb co., Illinois, about 60 miles W. by N. from Chicago.

WILLIAMSBURG, a small village of Shelby co., Illinois.

WILLIAMSBURG, a post-village in Callaway co., Missouri, 40 miles N. E. from Jefferson City.

WILLIAMSBURG, a small village of Macon co., Missouri.

WILLIAMS' CENTRE, a post-village of Williams co., O., 171 miles N. W. from Columbus.

WILLIAMS' COLLEGE GRANT, a township of Aroostook co., Maine. Population, 224.

WILLIAMS' CROSS ROADS, a small post-village of Choctaw co., Alabama.

WILLIAMSFIELD, a post-township forming the S. E. extremity of Ashtabula co., Ohio. Population, 932.

WILLIAMSON, a county in the central part of Texas, has an area of about 1050 square miles. It is traversed from W. to E. by San Gabriel river, and also drained by Brushy creek. The surface is diversified by prairies and woodlands. Indian corn, sweet potatoes, butter, cattle, horses, and sheep are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 57,015 bushels of corn; 2458 of sweet potatoes; 58,950 pounds of butter, and 3499 of wool. Named in honor of Judge Robert M. Williamson, member of Congress of the republic of Texas. Capital, Georgetown. Pop., 1568, of whom 1413 were free, and 155, slaves.

WILLIAMSON, a county in the central part of Tennessee: area estimated at 650 square miles. It is drained by the head branches of Harpeth river. The surface is uneven; the soil highly productive and extensively cultivated. Indian corn, wheat, tobacco, cotton, and pork are the staples. In 1850 the county produced 1,697,570 bushels of corn; 223,193 of oats; 43,854 of wheat; 5314 bales of cotton, and 1,302,209 pounds of tobacco. It contained 49 churches, 1 newspaper office; 309 pupils attending public schools, and 475 attending academies and other schools. Several turnpikes pass through the county, which is intersected by the Nashville and New Orleans railroad. This is among the most populous counties of the state. Capital, Franklin. Population, 27,201, of whom 14,337 were free, and 12,864, slaves.

WILLIAMSON, a county in the S. part of Illinois, has an area of 390 square miles. It is intersected by Big Muddy river, and also drained by the S. fork of Saline river. The county consists partly of prairie and partly of timbered land; the soil is productive. Indian corn, wheat, oats, tobacco, cattle, and swine are the staples. In 1850 it produced 235,729 bushels of corn; 6376 of wheat; 33,164 of oats, and 59,131 pounds of butter. It contained 8 churches, and 360 pupils attending public schools. Stone coal is abundant. Capital, Marion. Population, 7216.

WILLIAMSON, a post-township of Wayne co., New York, on Lake Ontario. Pop., 2380.

WILLIAMSON, a post-village in the above township, 26 miles E. by N. from Rochester.

WILLIAMSON, a post-office of Jefferson co., Kentucky.

WILLIAMSON, a post-office of Owen co., Ind.

WILLIAMSON'S MILLS, a post-village of Lexington district, South Carolina.

WILLIAMSONVILLE, a post-office of Macon co., Missouri.

WILLIAMS' PLACE, a post-office of Livingston co., New York.

WILLIAMSPORT, a flourishing town, capital of Lycoming county, Pennsylvania, is beautifully situated on the left bank of the West branch of Susquehanna river, and on the Sunbury and Erie railroad, 90 miles N. from Harrisburg, and 179 miles N. W. from Philadelphia. The Williamsport and Elmira railroad is open from this place to Ralston, 25 miles. Williamsport is a favorite place of resort in summer, on account of its healthy situation, and the beautiful scenery which surrounds it. It contains a fine brick court house, a large academy of the same material, 5 churches, 1 bank, with a capital of $100,000, and many handsome dwellings. Two newspapers are published here. The West Branch canal, which passes through the town, affords a ready access to the best markets, and large quantities of lumber and grain are shipped at this place. The creeks in the vicinity furnish good water-power; the hills contain coal and iron ore. Population in 1850, 1615; in 1853, about 2500.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pennsylvania. See MONONGAHELA CITY.

WILLIAMSPORT, a post-village of Washington county, Maryland, on the Potomac river, at the mouth of Conococheague creek, 9 miles S. W. from Hagerstown. The Chesapeake and Ohio canal passes through the place. It contains a bank, with a capital of $185,000, and numerous stores.

WILLIAMSPORT, a post-village in Hardy co., Virginia, 165 miles N. W. by N. from Richmond.

WILLIAMSPORT, or PRUNTYTOWN, capital of Taylor co., Virginia, on the E. fork of the Monongahela, about 210 miles N. W. from Richmond. It is the seat of Rector College, founded in 1839, and contains 2 churches.

WILLIAMSPORT, a village of Wood co., Virginia, on the Ohio river, opposite Marietta, Ohio. Population, about 250.

WILLIAMSPORT, a post-office of Pointe Coupée parish, Louisiana.

WILLIAMSPORT, a post-village of Maury co., Tennessee, on Duck river, about 40 miles S. W. from Nashville. Population, about 250.

WILLIAMSPORT, a thriving village of Columbiana co., Ohio, on the Sandy and Beaver canal, 163 miles N. E. from Columbus.

WILLIAMSPORT, a post-village of Pickaway co., Ohio, about 10 miles W. by S. from Circleville.

WILLIAMSPORT, a small village of Richland co., Ohio.

WILLIAMSPORT, a thriving post-village, capital of Warren co., Indiana, on the right bank of the Wabash river, 75 miles N. W. from Indianapolis. It has an active trade, which is facilitated by the Wabash and Erie canal. The railroad which is progressing from Toledo to Danville, in Illinois, will pass through this place. A newspaper is published here.

WILLIAMS' RIVER, in the E. S. E. part of Vermont, rises in Windsor co., and falls into the Connecticut about 3 miles above Belows falls.

WILLIAMS' STORE, a post-office of Berks co., Pennsylvania.

WILLIAMS' STORE, a post-office of Harde-man co., Tennessee.

WILLIAMSTON, a post-office of Anderson district, South Carolina.

WILLIAMSTON, a village in Barbour co., Ala., 65 miles S. E. by E. from Montgomery.

WILLIAMSTON, a township in the central part of Dodge co., Wisconsin.

WILLIAMSTOWN, a township in Orange co., Vermont, 11 miles S. by E. from Montpelier. Population, 1452.

WILLIAMSTOWN, a pleasant post-village of Berkshire co., Massachusetts, about 120 miles

N. W. by W. from Boston. It is the seat of Williams College, a flourishing institution, founded in 1793. The institution comprises 4 brick buildings for the accommodation of the students, a library building, an astronomical and a magnetic observatory, and a chemical laboratory. The three last have been completed within a few years. Important additions have recently been made to the chemical and philosophical apparatus. The institution is endowed to the amount of about $75,000. See Table of Colleges, APPENDIX. Population of the township, 2626.

WILLIAMSTOWN, a post-village of Oswego co., New York, on the Watertown and Rome railroad, 28 miles N. W. from Rome. Population of the township, 1121.

WILLIAMSTOWN, or SQUANKUM, a post-village of Camden co., New Jersey, 11 miles S. E. of Woodbury, contains 2 churches, 3 stores, and several glass-works.

WILLIAMSTOWN, a small village of Lancaster co., Pennsylvania.

WILLIAMSTOWN, a thriving post-village, capital of Martin co., North Carolina, on the right bank of the Roanoke river, 100 miles E. from Raleigh. The surrounding country is partly occupied by cypress swamps, which supply an article of export.

WILLIAMSTOWN, a post-village, capital of Grant co., Kentucky, on the turnpike from Covington to Lexington, 37 miles S. from Cincinnati. It contains a brick court house and 4 churches. Population, about 450.

WILLIAMSTOWN, a thriving post-village of Hancock co., Ohio, about 15 miles S. from Findlay.

WILLIAMSTOWN, a thriving post-village of Ingham co., Michigan, on Cedar river, about 20 miles E. from Lansing. It contains several stores, flouring mills, and saw mills. Population in 1853, about 600.

WILLIAMSTOWN, a village of Clay co., Indiana, on the National road, 14 miles E. N. E. from Terre Haute.

WILLIAMSTOWN, a post-village of Decatur co., Indiana, 45 miles S. E. from Indianapolis.

WILLIAMSVILLE, a post-village in Windham co., Vermont, on the South branch of West river, about 100 miles S. by E. from Montpelier. The South Branch affords water-power.

WILLIAMSVILLE, a post-village of Erie co., New York, on Ellicott's creek, 8 miles N. E. from Buffalo. It contains 1 Catholic and 3 Protestant churches, 3 or 4 stores, several flouring and saw mills, a carding machine, and a large tannery. Pop. in 1853, about 1000.

WILLIAMSVILLE, a village of Essex co., New Jersey, 5 miles N. W. of Newark.

WILLIAMSVILLE, a post-office of Elk co., Pa.

WILLIAMSVILLE, a post-village in Kent co., Delaware, 22 miles S. W. from Dover.

WILLIAMSVILLE, a post-office of Bath co., Va.

WILLIAMSVILLE, a post-village of Person co., North Carolina, on an affluent of Dan river, 65 miles N. N. W. from Raleigh.

WILLIAMSVILLE, a post-office of Dickson co., Tennessee.

WILLIAMSVILLE, a post-village of Delaware co., Ohio, 14 miles N. from Columbus.

WILLIQTOWN, a small village of Green co., Arkansas.

WILLIMANSETT, a post-village in Hampden co., Massachusetts, on the left bank of Connecticut river, and on the Connecticut River railroad, 75 miles W. by S. from Boston.

WILLIMANTIC river rises in Tolland co., Connecticut, and unites with Shetucket river, in Windham county.

WILLIMANTIC, a flourishing post-borough in Windham county, Connecticut, on the Willimantic river, where the Providence, Hartford, and Fishkill railroad intersects the New London, Willimantic, and Palmer railroad, 32 miles E. by S. from Hartford. It is also on the route of the Air-line railroad from New York to Boston, about 120 miles N. E. from the former, and 80 miles S. W. from the latter. The Willimantic is here a large stream, and has a fall of more than 100 feet in the distance of a mile, affording an extensive hydraulic power, about one-third of which is at present used. There are now in operation at these falls 8 mills, most of which are for the manufacture of cotton goods. In addition to the other advantages of the place, is an abundance of building stone, of an excellent quality, found in the vicinity. The borough contains 4 churches, a newspaper office, upwards of 20 stores, and 5 or 6 factories. Population in 1853, about 3500.

WILLING, a post-office of Alleghany co., N. Y.

WILLINGBOROUGH, a township of Burlington co., New Jersey, on the left side of the Delaware river, about 7 miles N. W. from Mount Holly. Population, 1596.

WILLINGTON, Piscataquis co., Maine. See WELLINGTON.

WILLINGTON, a post-village in Tolland co., Connecticut, near the New London, Willimantic, and Palmer railroad, 24 miles E. by N. from Hartford. It contains a Congregational and a Baptist church, and several stores. Population of the township, 1339.

WILLINGTON, a post-village in Abbeville district, South Carolina, near Savannah river, 90 miles W. by S. from Columbia.

WILLINK, a post-village of Erie co., New York, 16 miles S. E. from Buffalo.

WILLINK'S CREEK, of Niagara co., New York, falls into the W. end of Lake Ontario.

WILLISBURG, a post-office of Washington co., Kentucky.

WILLIS RIVER, a small affluent of James river, Virginia, rises in Buckingham county. Flowing eastward and north-eastward, it crosses Cumberland county, and falls into James river near Cartersville. It is navigable by boats from its mouth to Curdsville, above 30 miles.

WILLIS STORE, a post-village of Appling co., Ga., about 100 miles S. E. from Milledgeville.

WILLISTON, a post-township in Chittenden co., Vermont, intersected by the Vermont Central railroad, 30 miles W. N. W. from Montpelier. The village contains 2 or 3 churches, a town house, and an academy. Population, 1669.

WILLISTON, a post-office of Potter co., Pa.

WILLISTON, a post-village of Barnwell district, South Carolina, on the South Carolina railroad, 99 miles W. N. W. from Charleston.

WILLISTON, a village in Callaway co., Kentucky, 255 miles S. W. by W. from Frankfort.

WILLISTOWN, a township of Chester co., Pennsylvania, about 7 miles E. by N. from West Chester. Population, 1463.

WILLOUGHBY, a post-township forming the S. W. extremity of Lake co., Ohio, on the S. shore of Lake Erie. Population, 2081.

WILLOUGHBY, a pleasant post-village in the above township, on Chagrin river, and on the Cleveland and Erie railroad, 18 miles N. E. from Cleveland. The female seminary of this place is a flourishing institution. The village contains a medical university, and 2 or 3 churches.

WILLOUGHBY LAKE, a village and fashionable resort of Orleans co., Vermont, on a lake of the same name, and on the great thoroughfare just opened from Boston via St. Johnsbury to Stanstead, in Canada East. Willoughby lake is a beautiful sheet of water, nearly 5 miles in length, celebrated for its romantic scenery, about 35 miles N. E. by N. from Montpelier.

WILLOW CREEK, a post-office of Marion district, South Carolina.

WILLOW CREEK, a post-village of Lee co., Ill., about 80 miles W. by S. from Chicago.

WILLOW CREEK, a post-office of Marquette co., Wisconsin.

WILLOW DALE, a post-office of Trumbull co., Ohio.

WILLOW GROVE, a post-village of Montgomery co., Pennsylvania, on the turnpike leading from Philadelphia to Easton, 18 miles N. from the former. It contains 3 good hotels, 2 stores, and about 12 dwellings. The medicinal springs found at this place are much resorted to during the summer season.

WILLOW GROVE, a post-office of Sumter district, South Carolina.

WILLOW GROVE, a post-office of Coweta co., Georgia.

WILLOW GROVE, a post-office of Sumner co., Tennessee.

WILLOW GROVE, a small village of Crittenden co., Kentucky.

WILLOW HILL, a post-office of Jasper co., Ill.

WILLOW ISLAND, a post-office of Pleasant co., Virginia.

WILLOW RIVER, Wisconsin. See HUDSON.

WILLOW RIVER, a small stream of St. Croix co., Wisconsin, flows southwestward, and enters St. Croix Lake at Hudson.

WILLOW SPRING, a post-office of Russell co., Virginia.

WILLOW SPRING, a post-village of Claiborne co., Mississippi.

WILLOW SPRINGS, a post-township in the N. part of Lafayette co., Wisconsin. Pop., 615.

WILLOW SPRINGS, a post-village in the above township, near the Pekatonica river.

WILLOW STREET, a post-office of Lancaster co., Pennsylvania.

WILLOW TREE, a post-office of Greene co., Pennsylvania.

WILLS, a township in the E. central part of Guernsey co., Ohio. Population, 2216.

WILLSBOROUGH, a post-township of Essex co., New York, on the W. side of Lake Champlain. Population, 1932.

WILLSBOROUGH, a post-village in the above township, on Boquet river, about 140 miles N. by E. from Albany. It contains several stores and iron-works.

WILLS' CREEK, of Alabama, flows southwesterly through De Kalb co., then turns to the S. E., and enters Coosa river, near Gadsden.

WILLS' CREEK, of Ohio, rises in the S. E. part of the state, flows northwestward through Guernsey co., and enters the Muskingum river, about 10 miles S. from Coshocton.

WILLS' CREEK, a post-office of Coshocton co., Ohio.

WILLSHIRE, a post-township forming the S. W. extremity of Van Wert co., Ohio, intersected by St. Mary's river. Pop., 1220.

WILLSHIRE, a post-village in the above township, on the St. Mary's river, 133 miles W. N. W. from Columbus, contains 1 church, 2 stores, and several mills. It was settled in 1822, by Captain James Riley, with whose sufferings in Africa the public are familiar.

WILLS' MOUNTAIN, a ridge extending from the S. W. part of Bedford co., Pennsylvania, E. of Wills' creek, into Alleghany co., in Maryland.

WILLSON'S MILL, a village of Henry co., Iowa, on Skunk river, 55 miles S. by W. from Iowa City.

WILLS' POINT, a post-office of Benton co., Tennessee.

WILMINGTON, a post-township of Windham co., Vermont, 110 miles S. by W. from Montpelier. One newspaper is published here. Population, 763.

WILMINGTON, a post-township of Middlesex co., Massachusetts, intersected by the Boston and Lowell, the Boston and Maine, the Salem and Lowell railroads, and a branch railroad, 16 miles N. W. by N. from Boston. Population, 874.

WILMINGTON, a post-township of Essex co., New York, 30 miles S. W. from Plattsburg. It contains a village of the same name. Population, 1218.

WILMINGTON, or NEW WILMINGTON, a township of Lawrence co., Pennsylvania, about 30 miles N. from Beaver. Population, 1478.

WILMINGTON, a township of Mercer co., Pennsylvania. Population, 547.

WILMINGTON, a city and port of entry of New Castle county, Delaware, is situated on Christiana creek, immediately above its junction with the Brandywine, 2 miles from the Delaware river, 28 miles S. W. from Philadelphia, 70 miles E. N. E. from Baltimore, and 108 from Washington. Lat. 39° 41' N., lon. 75° 28' W. The Philadelphia, Wilmington, and Baltimore railroad passes through the place. The upper part of the city is built on the southern slope of a hill, the summit of which is about 110 feet above the tide level, and commands an extensive view of the Delaware river and of the city itself. Wilmington is regularly planned, with wide and straight streets, and is generally well built of brick. The streets running parallel to the Christiana are numbered (commencing near the creek) First, Second, Third, &c. up to Fifteenth street. The principal thoroughfare of business is Market street, which extends from the Christiana to the Brandywine, rather more than a mile, intersecting the other streets at right angles, and terminated by handsome bridges at each end. King's, French, Orange, Shipley, and other streets are parallel with Market street. The city contains 19 churches, namely, 4 Methodist, 3 Episcopal, 2 Presbyterian, 2 Baptist, 2 Friends, 1 German Lutheran, 1 Roman Catholic, and 4 African; also a town-hall, a large hospital, situated on high ground in the N. W. part of the town, and a Catholic college, which is a handsome brick building. A new custom house is now in course of construction, for which an appropriation of $250,000 was made at the last session of Congress. There are 4 banks, with an aggregate capital of $846,000, a savings' institution, and several insurance companies; 4 or 5 newspapers are published here. Wilmington has long been distinguished for its boarding-schools, of which there are 5 in the city: they are generally well conducted and liberally patronized. The streets, stores, &c., are lighted with gas, and the town is supplied with good water from the Brandywine.

Wilmington is the most populous town in the state, and is chiefly remarkable for its manufactures, of which the following are the most important productions: steam engines, railway cars, railroad wheels, iron steam-boats, locomotive and car springs, mill machinery, galvanized roofing, and other iron, cotton and woollen goods, powder, flour, carriages, and farming implements. There are about 7 iron foundries, 3 large machine shops, 2 cotton factories, several manufactories of woollen goods, 1 of farming implements, and 1 paper mill. The powder mills of Dupont & Co., about 2 miles from the town, have long been widely known. There are 7 large flouring mills on the Brandywine in this vicinity, which annually grind about one million bushels of wheat. In 1853, 218 persons were employed in the ma-manufacturing of cotton; 215 in that of cast iron and brass; 675 in that of wrought iron, steel, and machinery; 181 in the coachmanufactory; 178 in those of patent-leather, and 168 in building and repairing vessels of medium tonnage, for which the creek is navigable. Five turnpike-roads extend into the interior of the state, and a railroad, 5 miles long, connects the town with New Castle. The shipping of the district, June 30th, 1852, according to the custom house returns, amounted to an aggregate of 7010 $\frac{3}{4}$ tons, enrolled and licensed, of which 6883 $\frac{4}{5}$ were employed in the coast trade, and 137 $\frac{7}{8}$ in steam navigation. During the year, 23 vessels, (2 of them steamers,) with an aggregate burthen of 2923 $\frac{2}{3}$ tons, were admeasured. Population in 1830, 6628; in 1840, 8367; in 1850, 13,979; and April 1, 1853, it amounted to 16,163, of whom 13,976 were whites, and 2187, colored.

WILMINGTON, a small post-village of Fluvanna co., Virginia, on the Rivanna river, 55 miles W. by N. from Richmond.

WILMINGTON, a city, port of entry, and capital of New Hanover county, North Carolina, is situated on the left or E. bank of Cape Fear river, just below the entrance of its N. E. branch, 34 miles from the sea, 135 miles S. E. from Raleigh, 180 miles N. E. from Charleston, and 416 from Washington. Lat. 34° 11' N., lon. 78° 10' W. It is the largest and most commercial place in the state, the business and population having been greatly increased by the construction of the Wilmington and Raleigh railroad, which extends N. to Weldon, on the Roanoke river, 162 miles, and forms part of the great highway of travel North and South. The city has about $500,000 invested in this work, which cost $2,500,000, and is now in excellent condition. Another railroad has recently been opened from Wilmington to Manchester, in South Carolina, where it connects with the Camden Branch railroad. The length of this line is 156 miles, and the cost $1,800,000, of which $500,000 were subscribed by the citizens of Wilmington. A plank-road is extending from this city towards Onslow county. The town contains 3 banks, with an aggregate capital of $1,150,000. Five or six newspapers are published here. More than 20 steam engines are employed in the manufactories of this place, among which are seven steam saw mills, and 2 planing mills, with a capital of $275,000, producing annually about 30 million feet of lumber; 3 rice mills; 10 turpentine distilleries, working about 25 stills, capital estimated at $100,000; and several machine shops. Four mail steamers keep up a daily communication with Charleston, and 9 steamboats and 20 towboats ply from this port to Fayetteville. The whole number of steamboats on the river in 1852 was 19.

Exports for 1852, from January to December, inclusive.

Lumber, feet.....	32,336,889
Timber, ".....	3,409,016
Turpentine, bbls.....	96,667
Spirits of ditto, ".....	96,843
Resin, ".....	339,200
Tar, ".....	19,659
Pitch, ".....	7,806
Peanuts, bushels.....	93,255
Cotton goods, bales.....	4,136
Value of coastwise exports.....	$3,991,561
" foreign ditto.....	549,107
	<hr/>
	$4,540,668

It is expected that the extensive deposits of coal in Chatham county, will, by means of the Deep river improvement, now in progress, find an outlet here, and open a new source of wealth. The shipping of the district, June 30th, 1852, according to the custom house returns, amounted to an aggregate of 8385 $\frac{3}{4}$ tons registered, and 7093 $\frac{1}{2}$ tons enrolled and licensed. Of the latter, all was employed in the coast trade, and 2985 $\frac{2}{3}$ tons in steam navigation. The foreign arrivals for the year were 304, (tons, 101,353,) of which 159 (tons, 55,731,) were by American vessels. The clearances for foreign ports were 208, (tons, 39,267) of which 139 (tons, 26,206) were by American vessels. The foreign and coastwise arrivals for 1852, exclusive of the Charleston steamers and North Carolina coasters, were 753. During the year ending June 30th, 1852, 4 schooners, with an aggregate burthen of 474 $\frac{1}{2}$ tons, were admeasured. In 1819 a great fire occurred, which consumed about 200 buildings, and property valued at \$1,000,000. Population in 1830, about 3000; 1840, 4744; in 1850, 7264, and in 1853, about 10,000.

WILMINGTON, a post-township in Union co., Arkansas. Population, 866.

WILMINGTON, a small post-village of Union co., Arkansas, on the Washita river, about 100 miles in a direct line S. from Little Rock.

WILMINGTON, a village in McCracken co., Kentucky, 255 miles S. W. by W. from Frankfort.

WILMINGTON, a flourishing post-village in Union township, capital of Clinton co., Ohio, on Todd's fork of Little Miami river, 72 miles S. W. from Columbus. It is pleasantly situated on undulating ground, and is well built. It is one of the principal stations on the Zanesville Wilmington and Cincinnati railroad, now in construction. Wilmington contains, besides the county buildings, 5 or 6 churches, and 2 newspaper offices. Laid out in 1810. Population in 1850, 1238.

WILMINGTON, a post-village of Dearborn co., Indiana, 6 miles S. W. from Lawrenceburg, was formerly the county seat. It contains the county seminary. Population in 1850, 287.

WILMINGTON, a township in De Kalb co., Indiana. Population, 800.

WILMINGTON, a post-township in Will co., Illinois. Population, 1346.

WILMINGTON, a post-village of Will co., Illinois, on the Kankakee river, 152 miles N. E. from Springfield. It contains a woollen factory and several stores.

WILMINGTON ISLAND, of Chatham county, Georgia, at the mouth of the Savannah river, enclosed on the N. E. and N. W. by small outlets of the Savannah river. Length, 5 miles; greatest breadth, about 4 miles.

WILMORE, a post-office of Cambria co., Pa. WILMOT, a post-township in Merrimack co., New Hampshire, 30 miles N. W. from Concord. Population, 1272.

WILMOT, a township of Bradford co., Pennsylvania. Population, 550.

WILMOT, a post-office of Noble co., Ind.

WILMOT, a small post-village of Boone co., Illinois, about 22 miles N. E. from Rockford.

WILMOT, a post-village of Kenosha co., Wisconsin, on Pishtaka, or Fox river, about 25 miles W. from Kenosha.

WILMOT FLAT, a post-office of Merrimack co., New Hampshire.

WILMURT, a post-township of Herkimer co., New York, about 90 miles N. W. from Albany. Population, 112.

WILNA, a post-township of Jefferson co., New York, about 150 miles N. W. from Albany. It is drained by Black River and contains the village of Carthage. Pop., 2993.

WILNA, a post-village in Houston county, Ga., 50 miles S. W. by S. from Milledgeville.

WILSEVILLE, a post-village of Tioga co., New York, on the railroad between Ithaca and Owego, 14 miles N. from the latter.

WILSON, a county in the N. central part of Tennessee, has an area estimated at 550 square miles. The Cumberland river forms its entire N. boundary, and it is also drained by creeks which flow into that river. The surface is diversified by hills of moderate height. The soil is exceedingly fertile, and extensively cultivated. Wheat, Indian corn, oats, and tobacco are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 1,543,869 bushels of corn; 210,172 of oats; 1,237,305 pounds of tobacco; 253,259 of butter, and 51,813 of wool; the greatest quantity of that article raised in any county of the state. It contained 45 churches, 2 newspaper offices; 3452 pupils attending public schools, and 70 attending academies or other schools. The county is intersected by a turnpike-road leading to Nashville. Cumberland river is navigable by steamboats along the border. A large cotton factory is in successful operation at Lebanon, the county town. Population, 27,443; of whom 20,316 were free, and 7127, slaves.

WILSON, a post-township in Piscataquis co., Maine, 70 miles N. by E. from Augusta.

WILSON, a post-township of Niagara co., New York, on Lake Ontario. Pop., 2955.

WILSON, a thriving post-village and shipping port in the above township, is situated on Lake Ontario, at the mouth of Tuscarora creek, 15 miles N. N. W. from Lockport. It contains 3 churches, a large and flourishing seminary, 5 stores, 1 steam flouring mill, 2 steam lumber mills, 2 hotels, 1 iron foundry, 1 cabinet shop, and numerous other mechanic shops. Wilson Collegiate Institute, situated in this place, employs 6 teachers, and has 375 pupils. The library, together with the philosophical apparatus, cost $12,000. Here is a good harbor, which has been improved. Population in 1853, about 800.

WILSON, a post-office of Edgecombe co., North Carolina.

WILSON, a post-village, capital of Yadkin co., North Carolina. It was laid out about the year 1851, when the county was formed.

WILSON, a post-office of Anderson co., Tennessee.

WILSON, a small post-village of Marion co., Ohio.

WILSON, a township in Will co., Illinois. Population, 269.

WILSON, a township in the S. E. part of Sheboygan co., Wisconsin.

WILSON'S CREEK, of South Carolina, flows into Saluda river, near the N. extremity of Edgefield district.

WILSON'S CREEK, a post-village of Abbeville district, South Carolina.

WILSON'S CREEK, a post-office of Graves co., Kentucky.

WILSON'S CROSS ROADS, a post-office of Williamson co., Tennessee.

WILSON'S DEPÔT, a post-office of Dinwiddie co., Virginia, on the South Side railroad, 28 miles W. from Petersburg.

WILSON'S MILLS, a post-office of Oxford co., Maine.

WILSON'S MILLS, a post-office of Venango co., Pennsylvania.

WILSON'S STATION, a post-office of Clinton co., Ohio.

WILSONVILLE, a post-village of Pike co., Pennsylvania, on the Wallenpaupack creek.

WILSONVILLE, a post-village in Highland co., Virginia, 135 miles N. W. by W. from Richmond.

WILSONVILLE, a post-village in Shelby co., Alabama, 80 miles N. N. W. from Montgomery.

WILSONVILLE, a post-office of Cocke co., Tennessee.

WILSONVILLE, a post-village in Spencer co., Kentucky, 35 miles S. W. by W. from Frankfort.

WILTON, a post-township of Franklin co., Maine, on the S. side of Sandy river, about 30 miles N. W. from Augusta. Pop., 1909.

WILTON, a post-village in Hillsborough co., New Hampshire, at the terminus of the Wilton railroad, and near the Peterborough and Shirley railroad, 30 miles S. S. W. from Concord. Population of the township, 1161.

WILTON, a post-village of Fairfield co.,

Connecticut, on the Danbury and Norfolk railroad, about 30 miles S. W. by W. from New Haven. It contains 2 churches, an academy and several stores. Population of the township, 2066.

WILTON, a post-township of Saratoga co., New York, intersected by the Saratoga and Washington railroad, about 38 miles N. from Albany. Population, 1458.

WILTON, a village of Granville co., North Carolina, 34 miles N. from Raleigh.

WILTON, a post-office of Pike co., Ark.

WILTON'S UPPER MILLS, a village in Wilton township, Franklin county, Maine, on Wilton river, about 28 miles N. W. from Augusta. It contains 2 taverns, 2 churches, 2 saw mills, 1 large flour mill, 2 starch manufactories, and a number of other establishments.

WILT'S SPUR, a post-office of Patrick co., Virginia.

WINAMAC, or WINAMEC, a post-village, capital of Pulaski co., Indiana, on Tippecanoe river, and on the projected Fort Wayne and Mississippi railroad, 100 miles N. N. W. from Indianapolis.

WINANSVILLE, a village of Greene co., New York, 30 miles S. S. W. from Albany.

WINCHENDON, a post-township of Worcester co., Massachusetts, intersected by the Cheshire railroad, 54 miles W. N. W. from Boston. It is drained by Miller's river, which affords water-power. Cotton and other manufactures are produced to some extent. Pop., in 1840, 1754; in 1850, 2445.

WINCHESTER, a thriving post-village in Cheshire co., New Hampshire, on the Ashuelot river and railroad, about 55 miles S. W. from Concord, contains 3 or 4 churches, 1 bank, a number of mills and factories, chiefly woollen, and 2 newspaper offices. Population of the township, in 1840, 2065; in 1850, 3296.

WINCHESTER, a post-township of Litchfield co., Connecticut, about 30 miles N. W. of Hartford. It contains the village of Winsted, the northern terminus of the Naugatuck railroad. Population, 2179.

WINCHESTER, a thriving town, capital of Frederick county, Virginia, 150 miles N. N. W. from Richmond, and 71 miles W. by N. from Washington. It is pleasantly situated in a beautiful and fertile country, which forms part of the great valley of Virginia. With the exception of Wheeling, it is the largest town in the state W. of the Blue Ridge, which is about 20 miles distant. The plan of the town is regular: the houses are built in a compact and substantial manner, and mostly of brick and stone. The town is supplied with excellent water, which is brought in iron pipes from a spring half a mile distant. This place is the terminus of the Winchester and Potomac railroad, 30 miles long, which connects with the Baltimore and Ohio railroad at Harper's Ferry; and it has a number of turnpike-roads radiating in every direction, which attract a large amount of trade and travel. Winchester contains about 12 churches, 1 academy, 2 banks, (aggregate capital, $680,000,) 2 newspaper offices, and a Lyceum. Population in 1850, 4500.

WINCHESTER, a small village of Lenoir co., North Carolina.

WINCHESTER, a post-office of Union co., North Carolina.

WINCHESTER, a post-office of Macon co., Georgia.

WINCHESTER, a post-village, capital of Wayne co., Mississippi, on Chickasawha river, 15 miles E. S. E. from Jackson.

WINCHESTER, a thriving post-village, capital of Franklin county, Tennessee, on a small branch of Elk river, and on the Winchester and Alabama railroad, 2 miles S. from the Nashville and Chattanooga railroad, and 84 miles S. E. from Nashville. A branch of the railroad first named connects this place with Huntsville in Alabama. Since the commencement of these roads, the population of the village has rapidly increased. The tunnel which has been cut through Cumberland mountain, in Franklin county, for the passage of the Nashville and Chattanooga railroad, is one of the most magnificent works of the kind in the world. It extends 2200 feet through the solid rock, in which there is scarcely a break to be found. Winchester has 1 bank and 2 flourishing female schools.

WINCHESTER, a post-village, capital of Clarke county, Kentucky, on the Lexington and Big Sandy railroad, now in progress, 45 miles E. S. E. from Frankfort. It has an active trade, and contains 3 churches, 2 academies, and 2 hemp factories.

WINCHESTER, a township forming the N. W. extremity of Adams co., Ohio. Pop., 1693.

WINCHESTER, a thriving post-village of Adams co., Ohio, 80 miles S. S. W. from Columbus. Population, about 500.

WINCHESTER, a post-village of Guernsey co., Ohio, about 35 miles E. N. E. from Zanesville.

WINCHESTER, a village of Jackson co., Ohio, 83 miles S. S. E. from Columbus.

WINCHESTER, a thriving village of Preble co., Ohio, on Twin creek, about 40 miles N. from Cincinnati.

WINCHESTER, a flourishing post-village, capital of Randolph county, Indiana, on White river, and on the railroad from Bellefontaine to Indianapolis, 75 miles E. N. E. from the latter. It is surrounded by a rich farming district, and it is connected by plank-roads with Richmond and Fort Wayne. This is a point on the Cincinnati and Fort Wayne railroad, (unfinished,) and on the projected air-line from Indianapolis to Union. Large flouring mills and saw mills have lately been erected here. The village contains several churches, and 1 newspaper office. Population in 1853, about 1200.

WINCHESTER, a thriving post-village, capital of Scott county, Illinois, on Sandy creek, 51 miles W. by S. from Springfield. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in manufactures, for which the creek affords motive-power. Good limestone, stonecoal, and potter's clay are found at this place. It contains a number of flour mills, saw mills, tanneries, and potteries. Pop., estimated at 1000.

WINCHESTER, a post-village of Clark co., Missouri, 10 miles S. W. from Alexandria.

WINCHESTER, a post-village of Van Buren co., Iowa, about 70 miles S. by W. from Iowa City.

WINCHESTER, a post-township in the N. part of Winnebago co., Wisconsin.

WINCHESTER, a post-village of Umpqua co., Oregon, on the left bank of the Umpqua river, about 135 miles S. by W. from Salem.

WINCHESTER CENTRE, Litchfield co., Connecticut. See WINSTED.

WINCHESTER SPRINGS, a post-office of Franklin co., Tennessee.

WIND CREEK, a small post-village of Tallapoosa co., Alabama.

WIND GAP, a post-village of Northampton co., Pennsylvania, 15 miles N. N. W. from Easton. Here is an opening through the Blue mountain.

WINDHAM, a county forming the S. E. extremity of Vermont, has an area of about 850 square miles. It is bounded on the E. by the Connecticut river, and drained by the Deerfield and West rivers, and other smaller streams, which afford abundant water-power. The surface is uneven, and in the W. part mountainous. The soil along the Connecticut river is fertile, but in the western portions is better adapted to grazing than tillage. Indian corn, oats, potatoes, and grass are the staples. In 1856 this county produced 210,141 bushels of corn; 160,393 of oats; 338,295 of potatoes; 84,749 tons of hay, and 1,144,653 pounds of butter. There were 11 woollen factories, 1 cotton factory, 3 iron foundries, 3 machine shops, 6 flour mills, 3 grist mills, 5 paper mills, 26 saw mills, and 21 tanneries. It contained 65 churches, 5 newspaper offices, 8773 pupils attending public schools, and 615 attending academies and other schools. Large quantities of fine-grained granite are found in this county. Along the eastern border the Connecticut is navigable for small boats by means of canals around the different falls and rapids that occur in this portion of the river. The railroad connecting Hartford and Burlington passes through the county. Organized in 1789, under the name of Cumberland. Capital, Newfane. Population, 29,062.

WINDHAM, a county forming the N. E. extremity of Connecticut, has an area of about 620 square miles. It is drained by the Quinebaug, Shetucket, Willimantic, and Natchaug rivers, and other smaller streams, which supply motive-power to numerous mills. The inhabitants are largely engaged in manufactures. The surface is uneven and in some parts rough and rocky. The soil along the streams is very fertile, but in other portions of the county is often of an inferior quality. Indian corn, potatoes, and grass are the staples. In 1850 the county produced 240,276 bushels of corn; 297,098 of potatoes; 56,138 tons of hay; 599,004 pounds of butter, and 817,073 of cheese. There were 48 cotton and 15 woollen factories, 1 iron foundry, 4 cordage manufactories, and 1 calico-print works, 185 boot and shoe manufactories, 5 machine shops, 14 grist, 2 paper, and 82 saw and planing mills, 9 tanneries, 4 coach, 1 pin, and 2 hardware manufactories. It contained 67 churches, 3 newspaper offices, 7742 pupils attending public schools, and 528 attending academies and other schools. The county is intersected by the railroads connecting Norwich with Worcester, and New London with Palmer. Organized in 1726, having been formed out of portions of Hartford and New Loudon counties. Capital, Brooklyn. Population, 31,079.

WINDHAM, a post-township in Cumberland co., Maine, intersected by the Presumpscot river, which affords water-power, 48 miles S. W. from Augusta. Population, 2380.

WINDHAM, a post-township in Rockingham co., New Hampshire, intersected by the Manchester and Lawrence railroad, 38 miles S. S. E. from Concord. Population, 818.

WINDHAM, a post-township in Windham co., Vermont, 75 miles S. from Montpelier. Population, 763.

WINDHAM, a post-village in Windham co., Connecticut, near the New London, Willimantic, and Palmer railroad, about 30 miles E. by S. from Hartford, contains 2 churches, 1 bank, and an academy. Population of the township, 4503.

WINDHAM, a post-township of Greene co., New York, about 36 miles S. W. from Albany. Population, 2048.

WINDHAM, a post-township of Bradford co., Pennsylvania, about 14 miles N. N. E. from Towanda. Population, 957.

WINDHAM, a township forming the N. W. extremity of Wyoming co., Pennsylvania. Population, 549.

WINDHAM, a post-township in the E. part of Portage co., Ohio. Population, 808.

WINDHAM CENTRE, a post-village of Greene co., New York, near Schoharie creek, about 35 miles S. W. from Albany.

WIND HILL, a post-office of Montgomery co., North Carolina.

WIND LAKE, a post-office of Racine co., Wis.

WINDRIDGE, a post-office of Greene co., Pa.

WIND RIVER MOUNTAINS, the name given to a portion of the Rocky mountains on the E. border of Oregon Territory, near the sources of Green river. Fremont's Peak, one of the highest summits of the Rocky mountains, is situated in this range.

WINDSOR, a county in the S. E. central part of Vermont, has an area of about 1040 square miles. It is bounded on the E. by the Connecticut, and is traversed by the White river and other smaller streams, which furnish abundant water-power. The surface is generally uneven, and in the W. part mountainous. The soil is fertile. Indian corn, potatoes, wool, and grass are the staples. In 1850, the county produced 312,581 bushels of corn; 613,297 of potatoes; 118,865 tons of hay; 1,741,228 pounds of butter, and 589,305 of wool. The quantity of corn, hay, and butter was the greatest produced by any county in the state. There were 3 cotton, and 22 woollen factories, 3 foundries, 4 machine shops, 7 flour mills, 3 grist mills, 12 saw mills, 17 manufactories of boots and shoes, 7 of farming implements, and 17 tanneries. It contained 79 churches, 4 newspaper offices, 1845 pupils attending public schools, and 340 attending other schools. Steatite and limestone are found here. The Connecticut river is navigable, by means of canals round the falls, along the E. border. The county is intersected by the Rutland railroad, and also by the railroad connecting Concord and Montpelier. Organized in 1781. Capital, Woodstock. Population, 38,320.

WINDSOR, a post-township in Kennebec co., Maine, 11 miles E. by S. from Augusta. Population, 1793.

WINDSOR, a township in Hillsborough co., New Hampshire, 23 miles S. W. from Concord. Population, 172.

WINDSOR, a beautiful and flourishing post-village of Windsor county, Vermont, at the union of the Sullivan and the Vermont Central railroads, 77 miles S. S. E. from Montpelier. The site comprises the western verge of an alluvial meadow about a quarter of a mile wide, bordering on the Connecticut, and terminated on the S. and S. W. by Millbrook, and by Pulkhole Brook on the N. and N. W. The scenery is exceedingly varied and picturesque, the view embracing Ascutey mountain, only 3 miles distant. The village is handsomely and somewhat compactly built. The streets are beautifully shaded, and many of the dwellings are enclosed by highly ornamented grounds. The principal avenue is very serpentine, making as many as four considerable angles in passing from the northern to its southern limit, the effect being that not more than one-third of the village can be seen from any one point of view. Windsor is the seat of the Vermont State Prison, besides which it contains a bank, 2 newspaper offices, a seminary for young ladies and gentlemen, 3 or 4 churches, and 10 or 12 stores. It carries on an active trade by the Connecticut, and is also in the centre of one of the finest agricultural and wool-growing sections of the state. For the purpose of securing an available water-power, a dam, 360 feet in length and 42 in height, was constructed across Millbrook in 1835, about half a mile from its entrance into the Connecticut. The entire fall is 60 feet in one-third of a mile. In 1814, Windsor and West Windsor were incorporated as two distinct towns, reunited in 1815, and incorporated a second time in 1848. Population, 1928.

WINDSOR, a post-village in Berkshire co., Massachusetts, 110 miles W. by N. from Boston, contains several churches. Population of the township, 897.

WINDSOR, a post-township of Hartford county, Connecticut, bounded on the E. by the Connecticut river, and intersected by the Farmington river, 6 miles N. from Hartford. The first English settlement in the state was made here in 1633, by Captain William Holmes and others, who came from the Plymouth colony in Massachusetts. The township contains three handsome and thriving villages, viz. Windsor, Windsor Locks, and Poquannock. Almost all the inhabitants of that portion of the township which was first settled reside in Windsor village, situated on the right bank of the Connecticut, and on the New Haven, Hartford, and Springfield railroad. It is built principally on a single street upwards of 2 miles in length, parallel with the river, and beautifully shaded. Windsor has been the birth-place of several eminent men, among whom may be mentioned Roger Wolcott, governor of Connecticut, and Oliver Ellsworth, for nearly four years chief-justice of the supreme court of the United States. Population in 1840, 2283; in 1850, 3254.

WINDSOR, a post-village in Windsor township, Broome co., New York, on the Susquehanna river, about 120 miles W. S. W. from Albany. It contains several churches and stores. Population of the township, 2645.

WINDSOR, a post-office of Mercer co., N. J.

WINDSOR, a township of Berks co., Pennsylvania, about 15 miles N. from Reading. Population, 1105.

WINDSOR, or UPPER WINDSOR, a post-township of York co., Pennsylvania, about 9 miles S. E. from York. Population, 1711.

WINDSOR, a post-village, capital of Bertie co., North Carolina, on the Cashie river, an affluent of the Roanoke, 120 miles E. from Raleigh. The river is navigable for sloops as high as this village. Windsor contains 1 or 2 churches and 5 stores.

WINDSOR, a post-village of Walton co., Ga., about 80 miles N. W. from Milledgeville.

WINDSOR, a post-township forming the S. W. extremity of Ashtabula co., Ohio, intersected by Grand river. Population, 1033.

WINDSOR, a thriving post-village in the above township, 186 miles N. E. from Columbus.

WINDSOR, a township in the E. central part of Lawrence co., Ohio. Population, 1001.

WINDSOR, a township in the S. E. part of Morgan co., Ohio, intersected by Muskingum river. Population, 1592.

WINDSOR, a small village of Morgan co., O.

WINDSOR, a post-township in the E. part of Eaton co., Michigan, intersected by Grand river. Population, 253.

WINDSOR, a post-village in Randolph co., Indiana, near White river, 60 miles N. E. by E. from Indianapolis.

WINDSOR, a village in Bureau co., Illinois, 110 miles N. by E. from Springfield.

WINDSOR, a post-office of Henry co., Mo.

WINDSOR, a post-village in Windsor township, Dane co., Wisconsin, on Token creek, 10 miles N. E. from Madison.

WINDSOR, a village of Sierra co., California. Population, 210.

WINDSOR LOCKS, a post-village of Windsor township, Hartford county, Connecticut, on the right bank of the Connecticut river, where it is crossed by the New Haven, Hartford and Springfield railroad, 13 miles N. by E. from Hartford. A canal, navigable for boats of 85 tons burthen, has been cut around the rapids in the Connecticut at this place, at a cost of about $300,000, furnishing an immense hydraulic power for manufacturing purposes. This village has come into existence within the last 10 or 12 years, and contains extensive paper mills, iron and steel works, machine shops, cotton mill, foundry, &c. Population in 1853, about 1200.

WINDSORVILLE, a post-office of Hartford co., Connecticut.

WINESBURG, a post-village of Holmes co., O., about 54 miles N. N. E. from Zanesville.

WINFIELD, a post-township of Herkimer co., New York, 15 miles S. by E. from Utica. Population, 1481.

WINFIELD, a post-office of Union co., Pa.

WINFIELD, a post-office of Carroll co., Md.

WINFIELD, a post-village, capital of Putnam county, Virginia, on the Great Kanawha river, 31 miles from its mouth, and 333 miles W. by N. from Richmond. It has grown up since 1848.

WINFIELD, a post-office of Columbia co., Ga.

WINFIELD, a post-office of Clarke co., Miss.

WINFIELD, a post-village, capital of Scott co., Arkansas, about 120 miles W. from Little Rock.

WINFIELD, a post-office of Tuscarawas co., O.

WINFIELD, a post-township in Lake co., Indiana. Population, 245.

WINFIELD, a post-office of Dupage co., Ill.

WINFIELD, a post-office of Henry co., Iowa.

WING, a township in the W. part of Lucas co., Ohio. Population, 261.

WINGVILLE, a township in the E. part of Grant co., Wisconsin. Population, 1044.

WINGVILLE, or MONTFORT, a post-village in the above township, 18 miles N. E. from Lancaster. It contains 1 church, 2 stores, and about 30 dwellings.

WINHALL, a post-township in Bennington co., Vermont, 80 miles S. by W. from Montpelier. Population, 762.

WINN, a new parish in the N. central part of Louisiana, contains about 980 square miles. It is bounded on the W. and S. W. by Saline creek and Red river, and intersected by the Dugdemona river. Organized in 1853.

WINNAMAC, Indiana. See WINAMAC.

WINNEBAGO, a county in the N. part of Illinois, bordering on Wisconsin, has an area of 500 square miles. Rock river flows through the county from N. to S. receiving in its passage the Pekatonica from the W., and the Kishwaukee from the E. The surface is undulating, and presents a succession of beautiful prairies and woodlands; the prairies are highly productive, and mostly under cultivation. Wheat, Indian corn, oats, pork, and hay are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 316,586 bushels of wheat; 281,452 of corn; 188,333 of oats, and 14,444 tons of hay. It contained 9 churches, 1 newspaper office, and 2610 pupils attending public schools. Limestone of good quality is abundant along the banks of Rock river. The county is liberally supplied with water-power, which is employed in mills and factories. It is intersected by the Galena and Chicago railroad, and by a branch of that road leading to Beloit, Wisconsin. Named from the Winnebago tribe of Indians. Capital, Rockford. Population, 11,773.

WINNEBAGO, a new county in the N. part of Iowa, bordering on Minnesota, has an area of about 430 square miles. It is drained by the head waters of the Mankato and Tewapa Tankiyan rivers, tributaries of St. Peter's river. This county is not included in the census of 1850. County seat not located.

WINNEBAGO, a county in the N. E. central part of Wisconsin, contains about 430 square miles. Lake Winnebago, from which the name is derived, bounds it on the E., and it is drained by the Neenah and Wolf rivers, navigable by steamboats. There are also several smaller lakes in the county. The surface is nearly level, and is diversified by prairies and tracts of timber; the soil is calcareous and very fertile. Wheat, Indian corn, oats, and lumber are the staples. In 1850 the county produced 57,072 bushels of wheat; 34,722 of corn, and 77,795 pounds of butter. It contained 2 newspaper offices, and 1798 pupils attending public schools. The rock found near the surface is limestone. A canal is in progress from the Neenah river to the Wisconsin, which will open steam navigation from Green Bay to the Mississippi. Several plank-roads pass through the county, and a railroad is projected from Oshkosh to Milwaukee. Organized in 1842. Capital, Oshkosh. Population, 10,167.

WINNEBAGO, a post-office of Bureau co., Illinois.

WINNEBAGO, a township in the E. part of Winnebago co., Wisconsin. Population, 1627.

WINNEBAGO LAKE, Wisconsin, the largest lake in the state, is comprised within the limits of Winnebago, Calumet, and Fond du Lac counties. The line of its greatest length runs nearly due N. and S., having an extent of about 28 miles; greatest breadth, 10 or 11 miles; area, about 212 square miles. The depth is unequal, but quite sufficient for purposes of navigation. On the E. side the shore presents a remarkable feature for an extent of 15 miles, consisting of a wall of rocks, laid together as if placed by the hand of art. This wall generally rises about 5 feet above the surface of the water, and in some places extends hundreds of feet below. The surface of Lake Winnebago is estimated to be 160 feet above that of Lake Michigan. Five steamboats were employed in its navigation in 1852. The Neenah or Fox river enters the lake about midway between its extremities, and flowing from the N. end, discharges its waters into Green bay of Lake Michigan.

WINNEBAGO MARSH, Wisconsin, on Rock river, near its source, situated principally within the limits of Dodge county, is about 14 miles long, and above 5 miles wide. It is perhaps the largest marsh in the state. The river, in passing through it, is often divided into several channels, which it is sometimes impossible to trace through the high, rank grass.

WINNEBAGO RAPIDS, a small village of Winnebago co., Wisconsin.

WINNECONNA, a post-village in Winneconna township, Winnebago co., Wisconsin, on Fox river, near the mouth of Wolf river, 14 miles N. W. from Oshkosh, with which it is connected by a plank-road. Population of the township, 1948.

WINNEGANCE, a post-office of Lincoln co., Maine.

WINNESHIEK, a new county in the N. N. E. part of Iowa, bordering on Minnesota, has an area of about 600 square miles. It is intersected by the Upper Iowa and the North fork of Turkey river, affluents of the Mississippi. This county is represented as well watered and well timbered; the soil is particularly adapted to grazing. Named from a chief of the Winnebago Indians. Capital, Decorah.

WINNESHIEK, a post-office of Winneshiek co., Iowa.

WINNICUT, a small river of Rockingham co., New Hampshire, unites its waters with the Piscataqua river.

WINNIPISEOGE, pronounced and sometimes spelled Win'nipesock'ee, (written also Winnepesocket,) a large and beautiful lake of New Hampshire, lying between Carroll and Belknap counties. Its form is very irregular. The entire length is perhaps 23 miles; greatest breadth, near 10 miles. Its waters are remarkably pure, and very deep. It is said to be fed principally by springs at its bottom. It contains a multitude of islands, which, with the romantic beauty of its banks and the magnificence of the surrounding mountains render the scenery of this lake in the highest degree beautiful and picturesque. Lake Winnipiseogee is 472 feet above the level of the sea. Its waters flow through two small lakes into the Winnipiseogee river, which joins the Merrimack.

WINNIPISEOGE RIVER, in the central part of New Hampshire, forms the outlet of the lake of the same name, and running through Great bay, in Belknap county, it unites with the Pemigewasset to form the Merrimack, after constituting part of the boundary between Merrimack and Belknap counties. It affords some excellent mill seats, having a fall of about 232 feet from the lake to its junction with the Pemigewasset river.

WINNSBOROUGH, a post-village, capital of Fairfield district, South Carolina, on the Charlotte and South Carolina railroad, 38 miles N. from Columbia. It is situated in a fertile farming district. The railroad, which has lately been completed, connects it with Columbia and with Catawba river. The village has several churches and academies, 1 bank, and is the seat of the Furman Theological Seminary, under the direction of the Baptists. Two periodicals are published here.

WINNSBOROUGH, a small post-village, capital of Franklin parish, Louisiana, 200 miles N. W. from Baton Rouge.

WINONA, a post-office of Trimble co., Ky.

WINONA, a post-office of Wabasha co., Minnesota Territory.

WINOOSKI RIVER, Vt. See ONION RIVER.

WINOOSKI, a post-village on both sides of the Winooski river, 1½ miles N. E. from Burlington, Chittenden county, Vermont. The Winooski divides the townships of Burlington and Colchester, making the village of Winooski partly in each. The stream, which is crossed at this place by a substantial covered bridge, has a fall of about 20 feet. In consequence of the extensive hydraulic power thus afforded, numerous manufactories have sprung up, to which the village chiefly owes its importance.

WINSLOW, a post-township in Kennebec co., Maine, 19 miles N. N. E. from Augusta. Population, 1796.

WINSLOW, a post-village of Camden co., New Jersey, on a branch of Great Egg Harbor river, 46 miles S. by E. from Trenton, contains a church, 3 glass factories, and 50 or 60 dwellings.

WINSLOW, a township of Jefferson co., Pennsylvania, about 13 miles S. S. W. from Brookville.

WINSLOW, a post-village in Pike co., Indiana, 146 miles S. W. by S. from Indianapolis.

WINSLOW, a post-township forming the N. W. extremity of Stephenson co., Illinois. Population, 384.

WINSLOW, a post-village in the above township, 135 miles W. N. W. from Chicago.

WINSOR AND BROWN'S MILL, a small manufacturing village in West Gloucester township, Providence co., Rhode Island, about 20 miles W. by N. from Providence.

WINSPEAR, a post-office of Erie co., N. Y.

WINSTED, a post-village, the largest and most prosperous of Litchfield co., Connecticut, is situated at the northern terminus of the Naugatuck railroad, 62 miles N. by E. from Bridgeport. A lake, covering a surface of 1500 acres, has its outlet at the W. end of the village, through which the stream pursues a winding course for two miles, having a fall in this distance of more than 200 feet; thus affording a succession of never-failing water-power. The village contains 2 forges for making iron, an iron foundry, 3 extensive scythe factories, 2 machine shops, 3 tanneries, a pin factory, cutlery establishment, flouring mill, clock factory, and manufacturing of fire-irons, joiners' tools, nuts, &c. It has also a bank, recently established, with a capital of over $100,000, 4 churches, and 9 or 10 stores. Among the other edifices of the place may be mentioned the "Beardsley Hotel" and "Camp's Building" as worthy of notice for their size and elegance. There are two post-offices in the village, named "Winchester," and "West Winsted." The Society of Winsted comprises about one-third of the territory, and three-fourths of the population of Winchester township.

WINSTON, a county in the E. central part of Mississippi, has an area of about 750 square miles. It is drained by the head streams of Pearl river. The surface is undulating or nearly level; the soil is productive. Cotton and Indian corn are the staples. In 1850 it produced 326,408 bushels of corn; 34,221 of oats; 87,173 of sweet potatoes, and 18,249 pounds of beeswax and honey. It contained 14 churches, 1 newspaper office; 310 pupils attending public schools, and 55 attending other schools. Named in honor of Colonel Fountain Winston. Capital, Louisville. Population, 7956; of whom 5188 were free, and 2768, slaves.

WINSTON, a post-office of Alleghany co., Md.

WINSTON, a thriving post-village, capital of Forsyth co., North Carolina, 120 miles W. by N. from Raleigh, is separated from Salem by a single street. It was laid out in 1850, when the county was organized.

WINSTON, a post-office of Randolph co., Ala.

WINSTON, a post-office of Weakley co., Tenn.

WINSTON, a post-office of Dent co., Mo.

WINSTONVILLE, a small village of Winston co., Miss., 16 miles S. E. from Louisville.

WINTERHAM, a post-office of Amelia co., Va.

WINTER HARBOR, a post-office of Hancock co., Maine.

WINTERPOCK, a post-office of Chesterfield co., Virginia.

WINTERSEAT, a post-village of Abbeville district, South Carolina.

WINTERSSET, a post-village, capital of Madison county, Iowa, on the road leading from Fort Des Moines to Council Bluffs, 150 miles W. by S. from Iowa City.

WINTERSVILLE, a post-village of Jefferson co., Ohio, 140 miles E. by N. from Columbus.

WINTERSVILLE, post-office of Decatur co. Ind.

WINTHROP, a post-township of Kennebec co., Maine, intersected by the Androscoggin and Kennebec railroad, about 12 miles W. by N. from Augusta. The principal village is situated at the S. end of a large pond, the outlet of which affords water-power, and on the railroad, 53 miles N. by E. from Portland. It is a place of active business, and contains a bank. Pop. in 1840, 1915; in 1850, 2154.

WINTHROP, a post-office of Middlesex co. Connecticut.

WINTHROP, a post-office of Kane co., Ill.

WINTON, a post-village, capital of Hertford county, North Carolina, on the right bank of the Chowan river, 115 miles N. E. from Raleigh. It contains a court house, 2 stores, and 1 steam saw mill. The river is navigable for sloops, in which staves and tar are exported.

WINTON, a post-office of Butler co., Ohio.

WINYAW BAY, of South Carolina, is an estuary formed by the confluence of the Pedee, Black, and Waccamaw rivers, (which unite a little above Georgetown,) and communicating with the Atlantic about lat. 33° 10' N. Length, 14 miles; mean breadth, 2 miles. Large vessels can ascend to Georgetown.

WIOTA, a post-village of Lafayette county, Wisconsin, on Pekatonica river, and 37 miles E. N. E. from Galena. It has 4 stores, and about 200 inhabitants.

WIRETOWN, a post-village of Ocean co., New Jersey, 51 miles S. E. from Trenton.

WIRT, a county in the N. W. part of Virginia, has an area estimated at 200 square miles. It is intersected by the Little Kanawha river, and also drained by Hughes' river and Reedy and Spring creeks. The surface is hilly and well timbered; the soil mostly fertile. Indian corn, oats, hay, and live stock are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 98,291 bushels of corn; 22,910 of oats; 1097 tons of hay, and 25,230 pounds of butter. There were 2 grist mills and 7 saw mills. It contained 13 churches, and 600 pupils attending public schools. The Northwestern Virginia railroad, when finished, will connect the county with the Ohio river. Formed a few years ago, and named in honor of William Wirt, formerly attorney-general of the United States. Capital, Wirt Court House, or Elizabethtown. Population, 3358, of whom 3321 were free, and 32, slaves.

WIRT, a post-township of Alleghany co., New York, about 82 miles W. S. W. from Rochester. Population, 1544.

WIRT COURT HOUSE, or ELIZABETHTOWN, a post-village, capital of Wirt co., Virginia, on the Little Kanawha river, about 300 miles N. W. from Richmond.

WIRTEMBERG, a small village of Perry co., Missouri.

WISCASSETT, a post-town, port of entry, and one of the capitals of Lincoln co., Maine, on the right bank of Sheepscot river, about 12 miles from the ocean, and 45 miles E. N.

E. from Portland. The inhabitants are extensively engaged in foreign commerce, the coast trade, and the fisheries, the river affording excellent facilities, being navigable for the largest vessels, and seldom obstructed with ice. The shipping of the district, June 30, 1852, amounted to an aggregate of 6303 $\frac{6}{10}$ tons registered, and 14,416 $\frac{4}{10}$ tons enrolled and licensed—total, 20,720 $\frac{1}{10}$ tons. Of the enrolled and licensed tonnage, 8447 $\frac{4}{10}$ tons were employed in the coast trade, 4673 $\frac{4}{10}$ tons in the cod fishery, and 636 $\frac{2}{10}$ tons in the mackerel fishery. During the year, 1 ship, 6 brigs, and 9 schooners, with an aggregate burthen of 2461 $\frac{3}{10}$ tons, were admeasured. Besides the county buildings, the town contains several churches, a bank, and 10 or 12 stores. Population of the township, 2343.

WISCONSIN, (Neekoospara of the Indians,) an important river of Wisconsin, rising in a small lake called Vieux Desert, near the N. boundary of the state; it flows nearly southward to the Winnebago Portage, in Columbia county. Below this point, which is 114 miles by land from its mouth, the river pursues a south-westerly course until it enters the Mississippi, 4 miles below Prairie du Chien. The whole length is estimated at 600 miles. It is 600 yards wide at its mouth, and 400 yards at the portage. Shifting sandbars render the navigation rather difficult, but small steamers ascend as high as to Portage City, (about 200 miles by the course of the river,) and a canal is in course of construction from that place to the Neenah or Fox river, which will open uninterrupted navigation from the Mississippi to Lake Michigan, via Green bay. The Neenah river approaches within a mile and a half of the Wisconsin, at Winnebago Portage. The Wisconsin is the largest river that intersects the state. In the upper part of its course it is bordered by extensive forests of pine timber, of which large quantities are sent to market. The Little Wisconsin enters the main stream from the right, near the centre of Marathon county.

WISCONSIN, one of the recently settled states of the American confederacy, is bounded on the N. by Minnesota, Lake Superior, and the northern peninsula of Michigan, (from which it is separated in part by the Menemonee and Montreal rivers,) on the E. by Lake Michigan, S. by Illinois, and W. by Iowa and Minnesota Territory, from the former of which it is separated by the Mississippi, and from the latter (in part) by the St. Croix river. It lies between 42° 30' and 46° 55' N. lat., (if we exclude some small islands belonging to the state in Lake Superior,) and between 87° and 92° 50' W. lon., being about 285 miles in extreme length from N. to S., and about 255 in its greatest breadth from E. to W., including an area of about 53,924 square miles, or 34,511,360 acres, of which 1,045,499 were improved in 1850.

Population.—This flourishing scion of the West has had a growth unexampled even in that thriving region, having increased from 30,945 in 1840, to a population of 305,391 in 1850; of whom 164,221 were white males; 140,344 white females; 365 free colored males; and 216 free colored females. The population was divided into 33,517 families, occupying 32,962 dwellings. Of the entire population, 63,015 only were born in the state; 134,897 in other states of the confederacy; 8277 in British America; 34,519 in Germany; 775 in France; 18,952 in England; 21,043 in Ireland; 3237 in Scotland; 4319 in Wales; 4 in Spain; 4 in Portugal; 45 in Belgium; 1157 in Holland; 9 in Italy; 61 in Austria; 1244 in Prussia; 71 in Russia; 8651 in Norway; 146 in Denmark; 88 in Sweden; 3545 in Prussia; 1 in Sardinia; 1 in Greece; 17 in Asia; 1 in Africa; 9 in Mexico; 11 in Central America; 6 in South America; 20 in West Indies; 1 in Sandwich Islands; 191 in other countries, and 784 whose places of birth were unknown—showing nearly 35 per cent. of foreign birth, and exhibiting a greater variety than is usual even in the very diversified population of the other parts of the Union. It will be observed that a new element, or at least in much greater proportion than elsewhere, has been introduced by the emigration of considerable bodies of Norwegians, being about two-thirds of the whole number of that nation born in the United States. The emigration from Germany and Wales is also in greater proportion than in the other states.

Counties.—Wisconsin is divided into 43 counties, viz. Adams, Bad Axe, Brown, Calumet, Chippewa, Columbia, Crawford, Dane, Dodge, Door, Fond du Lac, Grant, Green, Iowa, Jefferson, Kenosha, Kewaunee, La Crosse, Lafayette, Lapointe, Manitowoc, Marathon, Marquette, Milwaukee, Oconto, Outagamie, Ozaukee, Pierce, Polk, Portage, Racine, Richland, Rock, St. Croix, Sauk, Shawana, Sheboygan, Walworth, Washington, Waukesha, Waupaca, Waushara, and Winnebago. Capital, Madison.

Cities and Towns.—Towns are springing up in Wisconsin as if by magic, and a region that but a few years ago was mostly an Indian hunting ground, is now dotted over with them. The principal of these are Milwaukee, population, 20,061; Racine, 5111; Kenosha, 3455; Janesville, 3451; Waukesha, 2313; Platteville, 2197, and Fond du Lac, 2014. Besides these there are Beloit, Madison, Green Bay, Ozaukee, Mineral Point, Oshkosh, Wauertown, Sheboygan, and Manitowoc, having populations of from 2000 to 4000 each.

Face of the Country.—Wisconsin may be described generally as an elevated rolling prairie, from 600 to 1200 feet above the level of the sea. The highest portion of this plateau is on the N., and forms the dividing ridge between the waters flowing S. W. into the Mississippi, and those flowing N. into Lake Superior. The southern slope is again in-errupted about the middle of the state by another ridge, giving origin to a second slope, drained by Rock river and its branches. This state has no mountains, properly so called. The descent towards Lake Superior is very abrupt, and the rivers full of rapids and falls, which interrupt navigation, but afford valuable mill sites. There is a third ridge or elevation in the S. E., dividing the watercourses of Lake Michigan from those of Green bay. Just below the second ridge, a depression crosses the state, forming the bed of the Neenah or Fox river and the Lower Wisconsin. When the rivers are unusually full, these actually communicate, though running in opposite directions, the one to the Mississippi, and the other to Lake Michigan. Limestone underlies most of the southern part of the state—the cliff limestone in the mineral districts, and the blue elsewhere. The northern part seems to be composed of primitive rocks, for the most part of granite, slate, and sandstone. Commencing a little S. of the Wisconsin, and along the Mississippi, as far back as the falls of its tributaries, sandstone, between layers of limestone, is the prevailing rock, and forms the cliffs on the Mississippi, below St. Anthony's falls, for 35 miles. The rivers in this region are much obstructed by shifting beds of this sand. From Lake Michigan westward to the other sections named, is a limestone region, in many parts well timbered, while in others a considerable portion is prairie. Underlying the blue limestone is a brown sandstone, which crops out on the sides of the hills, but no lead has ever been found in it. A section through Blue Mound would give the following result, descending vertically:—Hornstone, 410 feet; magnesian lime, or lead-bearing rock, 169 feet; saccharoid sandstone, 40 feet; sandstone, 3 feet; lower limestone, (at the level of the Wisconsin,) 190 feet. The elevations of different parts of the southern section of the state are given by Chancellor Lathrop, at Blue Mounds, 1170; head waters of the Rock river, 316; egress of the same river from the state, 128, and the portage between the Fox and Wisconsin rivers, at 223 feet above the level of Lake Michigan and the Wisconsin river.

Geology.—Following the map accompanying the geological work of Professor Owen, on the States of Iowa and Wisconsin, and the Territory of Minnesota, we should say that about half the northern part of the State of Wisconsin, resting on Lake Superior, and having its apex near the 44th degree of N. lat., and about the middle of the state, (taken in an E. and W. direction,) is covered by drift, overlying the Potsdam sandstone of New York, and metamorphic strata, with occasional protrusions of granite and other igneous rocks. Beyond this triangle, on the S. E. and S. W., the sandstone comes to the surface in a broad belt, having between it and the Mississippi, (from the St. Croix to the Wisconsin river,) a second belt of lower magnesian limestone, with the sandstone occasionally laid bare in the valleys of the streams. This same formation is continued on the S., (following the Wisconsin river on both sides,) and on the E., coasting the sandstone belt to its full extent. The limestone is followed in turn by another zone of white sandstone, containing beds of shells. Next succeeds the lead-bearing group of upper magnesian limestone, extending into Illinois and Iowa on the S. and W., and on the E. running up into the peninsula formed by Green bay and Lake Michigan, having a triangle of the Niagara limestone between it and Lake Michigan on the S. E. On the shores of Lake Superior are two beds of red clay and marl, separated by ridges of drift from 300 to 600 feet high. East of this, and just where the northern boundary leaves the lake, parallel groups of conglomerate red sandstone and slates, trap, and metamorphic slates, with beds of magnetic iron ore, granite, and quartzose rocks come to the surface.

Minerals.—Part of the great lead region extending from Illinois and Iowa is included in the S. W. part of Wisconsin, and is no less rich in the quantity and quality of its ore than in the other states where it lies. The lead is here intermingled with copper and zinc in considerable quantities, together with some silver. In Lapointe, Chippewa, St. Croix, and Iowa counties, copper is found; in Dodge county, and on the Black river and other branches of the Mississippi, good iron ore occurs. The other metallic substances are magnetic iron, iron pyrites, and graphite or plumbago. The non-metallic earths are agate, cornelians, (found on the shores of the small lakes,) bitumen, peat, marble of fine quality, lime, quartz, some gypsum, saltpetre, sulphates of barytes, porphyry, and coal in small quantities. A vein of copper ore was discovered in 1848, near the Kickapoo river, which yields about 20 per cent. of copper, but to what extent the bed runs has not been ascertained. Mines were also worked at the falls of Black river and in its vicinity, but they have been abandoned. Facts do not justify any expectation of great deposits of copper in the N. W. part of the state. A great bed of magnetic iron ore lies south of Lake Superior, near Tyler's fork of the Bad river, in strata of metamorphic slate. In 1850, 569,921 pigs of lead were shipped from Dubuque and Mineral Point; but 778,460 in 1845. Beautiful varieties of marble have been recently discovered, or made known to the public in the N. part of Wisconsin. According to Messrs. Foster and Whitney's report, they are found on the Michigan and Menomonee rivers, and afford beautiful marbles, whose prevailing color is light pink traversed by veins or seams of deep red. Others are blue and dove-colored, beautifully veined. These are susceptible of a fine polish, and some on the Menomonee are within navigable distance from New York.

Lakes and Rivers.—Besides the great Lakes Superior and Michigan, which lave its northern and eastern shores, Wisconsin has a number of small lakes. The principal of these is Lake Winnebago, S. E. from the middle of the state. It is about 28 miles long and 10 miles wide, and communicates with Green bay, (a N. W. arm of Lake Michigan,) through the Fox, or Neenah river. These small lakes are most abundant in the N. W., and are generally characterized by clear water and gravelly bottoms, often with bold picturesque shores, crowned with hemlock, spruce, and other trees. They afford excellent fish. In the shallow waters on the margins of some of them grows wild rice, an important article of food with the savages of this region. The rivers which traverse the interior flow generally in a S. W. direction, and discharge their waters into the Mississippi. The latter river runs along the S. W. border of Wisconsin for more than 200 miles. Commencing at the S., we have, in the following order, Wisconsin, Bad Axe, Black, and Chippewa rivers. Of these the most important is the Wisconsin, which has a course of probably 200 miles, almost directly S. when it flows nearly west for about 100 more. The Chippewa is about 200, and the Black 150 miles long. The Rock, Des Plaines, and Fox river (of Illinois) drain the S. E. slope of the state, and pass off into Illinois. The Fox, or Neenah, is the outlet of Winnebago lake, and connects it with Green bay. The Wolf, from the N., is the main feeder of the same lake. The Menomonee, emptying into Green bay, and the Montreal, into Lake Superior, are rapid streams, which are valuable for mill sites. They form part of the N. E. boundary. The Menomonee has a descent of 1049 feet. The St. Louis, (considered as the primary source of the St. Lawrence,) coasts this state for 20 or 30 miles on the N. W., and is full of rapids and falls in this part of its course. These rivers are not generally favorable to navigation without artificial aid. The Wisconsin may be ascended by steamboats to the rapids, where it approaches a tributary of Lake Winnebago, within a mile and a half, where a canal is being constructed, which, when completed, will open an entire inland navigation from New York to the Upper Mississippi. The Rock river is sometimes at high water ascended by boats to within the limits of Wisconsin. The Bad Axe, Black, Chippewa, and St. Croix are important channels for floating timber to market from the pine regions in the N. W. of the state. The rivers flowing into Lake Superior are small, and though unfavorable for commerce, their rapid courses make them valuable for mill sites. Colonel Long estimates that the Chippewa, Black, Wisconsin, and Rock rivers are respectively capable of a steamboat navigation of 70, 60, 180, and 250 miles, but at present they are a good deal obstructed by shifting sands and rapids.

Objects of Interest to Tourists.—Wisconsin, though young in political existence, is not behind her sister states in objects of interest, not merely for the utilitarian, but for the lover of the picturesque, and even the antiquary. Scattered over her undulating plains are found earth-works, modelled after the forms of men and animals, that are evidently the work of a race different from those who possessed the country at the period of the arrival of the Europeans. At Aztalan, in Jefferson county, is an ancient fortification, 550 yards long, 275 wide, with walls 4 or 5 feet high, and more than 20 feet thick at the base. Another work, resembling a man in a recumbent position, 120 feet long and 30 across the trunk, is to be seen near the Blue Mounds; and one resembling a turtle, 56 feet in length, at Prairieville. These artificial works are generally without order, but sometimes have a systematic arrangement, with fragments of pottery often scattered around. Some are so defaced as to make it difficult to trace the animal resemblances referred to, while others are distinctly visible. One is said to have been discovered near Cassville, resembling the extinct mastodon. Among the most striking natural objects are the Blue Mounds, in Dane county, the highest of which has an elevation of 1170 feet above the Wisconsin, and is a prominent landmark in this country of prairies. Platte and other mounds in the S. W. of the state, have various elevations of from 60 to more than 100 feet. Devil's lake, covering an area of 600 acres, occupies the summit of a mound 300 feet high. This state shares with Minnesota the beautiful lake Pepin, an expansion of the Mississippi, mostly walled in by precipitous shores, which rise at Maiden's Rock to 400 feet, (200 of which are perpendicular magnesian limestone rock,) to 500 below the outlet of the lake, and 330 above its commencement. These heights are merely given as examples, not as the only ones there are. Almost all the rivers of Wisconsin abound in rapids and falls. The most remarkable of these are a series of cascades or cataracts in the St. Louis river, extending through a space of sixteen miles, and terminating about 20 miles from its mouth. The entire descent is about 320 feet. The fall, however, at any one pitch is not more than 140 feet; but there are two others of 50 and 80 feet respectively. Quinnesec falls in the Menomonee river have one perpendicular pitch of 40 feet, and an entire descent of 134 feet in one mile and a half, besides several other rapids, where the river tosses and dashes through narrow and tortuous defiles. Among the other falls, are St. Croix, Chippewa, and Big Bull falls in the Wisconsin. The river bluffs present grand and picturesque views in many places, particularly at Mount Trempleau, on the Mississippi, in La Crosse county, where the rocks rise 500 feet perpendicularly above the river,—in Richland county, on the Wisconsin, where the banks are from 150 to 200 feet high,—and in Sank county, where it passes through a narrow gorge between cliffs of from 400 to 500 feet elevation. This state abounds in picturesque objects, in waterfalls, rapids, bluffs, and beautiful lakes, with clear water and gravelly bottoms. Grandfather Bull falls, the greatest rapids in the Wisconsin river, are in about 45° N. lat., and are a series of small cascades or rapids, breaking through a ridge of 150 feet perpendicular height, for the distance of one mile and a half. In this vicinity are a number of chalybeate springs. On the same river, near the 44th parallel of N. lat. is Petenwell Peak, an oval mass of rock, 900 feet long by 300 wide, and 200 in elevation above the neighboring country, of which it commands an extensive view. About 70 feet of this, at the top, is composed of perpendicular rock, split into towers, turrets, &c. A few miles below this is Fortification rock, which rises to the height of 100 feet or more above the general level, being perpendicular on one side, while on the other it descends by a succession of terraces to the common level. At the Dalles the Wisconsin is compressed for 5 or 6 miles between red sandstone hills, from 25 feet to 120 feet high, and an average of 100 feet asunder. Between the Dalles and the mouth of the river, the bluffs are of every variety of height under 400 feet.

Climate.—This thriving state, which has surpassed every other, except California, in the unexampled rapidity of its growth, is the theme of almost unmingled praise of the tourist and the emigrant from every part of Europe and America. Its beautiful lakes, rolling prairies, swelling uplands, and “oak openings,” (i. e. lands covered with a scattered growth of oak,) fertile soil, its fine angling, abundance of game, and healthy climate, tempt thither alike the permanent settler, the sportsman, and the lover of the picturesque. The climate, though severe, and the winters long, is more regular and more free from those frequent and unhealthy changes that prevail farther south. The lakes, too, exert a mitigating influence, the temperature being 6½° higher on the lake than on the Mississippi side. The lake shore is also more moist, but the state generally is drier than in the same parallels farther east. From records kept between 1835 and 1845, it appears the Milwaukee river was closed on an average from November 22d to March 26; and steamboats arrived at Mineral Point from February 26 to April 16, closing from November 16 to December 4. The diseases consequent upon clearing lands are less frequent, it is said, in this than other new states, owing to the open nature of the country in the oak openings. The number of deaths in the year ending June, 1850, were 2884, or less than 10 in every thousand persons—while Massachusetts had about 20.

Soil and Productions.—The country south of the middle is a fine agricultural region. In the mineral district, W. of the Pekatonica, the country is broken, but, what is unusual in mining tracts, generally well adapted to farming, and especially grazing. But probably the best agricultural section is that E. of the Pekatonica, which has more prairie land, though even here is a considerable portion of timbered land on the rivers and streams. The agricultural capabilities of the northern part of the state, around the head waters of the Black and Chippewa rivers, and the sources of the rivers emptying into Lake Superior, are small, the surface in part being covered with drift and boulders, and partly with ponds and marshes. The agricultural staples of this state are wheat, Indian corn, oats, Irish potatoes, butter, and live stock, besides considerable quantities of rye, wool, beans, peas, barley, buckwheat, maple sugar, beeswax, honey, cheese, and hay, with some sweet potatoes, tobacco, fruits, wine, grass-seeds, hops, flax, and hemp. There were in 1850, 20,177 farms in Wisconsin, containing 1,045,499 acres of improved land; and in 1850, there were produced 4,286,131 bushels of wheat; 3,414,672 of oats; 1,988,970 of Indian corn; 1,402,077 of Irish potatoes; 3,633,750 pounds of butter; 610,976 of maple sugar; 275,662 tons of hay; and live stock to the value of $4,897,385. For further particulars, see Table of Agricultural Products, APPENDIX.

Forest Trees.—There are vast forests of pine on the Upper Wisconsin, the Wolf river, and the tributaries of the Mississippi, N. of the Wisconsin. The other forest trees are spruce, tamarac, cedar, oak of different species, birch, aspen, basswood, hickory, elm, ash, hemlock, poplar, sycamore, and sugar-maple. The oak openings already described form a pleasing feature in the landscapes of Wisconsin.

The wild animals are black bears, prairie wolves, gray wolves, foxes, woodchucks, and the gopher, which is found only on the west side, near the Mississippi river. The last named animal is very destructive to the roots of fruit-trees.

Manufactures.—This youthful state has not yet had time (nor is it yet her most profitable resource) to test her manufacturing capabilities. In 1850 there were 1273 establishments, each producing $500 and upwards annually, of which 16, with a capital of $131,350, and employing 288 male hands, were engaged in the manufacture of iron, consuming raw material worth $95,186, and producing 4343 tons of pig, iron castings, &c., valued at $243,195; and 9 woolen ma-factories, employing $31,225 capital, and 25 male hands, consuming raw material worth $32,630, and producing 87,992 yards of stuff, and 74,350 pounds of yarn, worth a total value of $87,992; and $98,700, invested in manufacturing malt and spirituous liquors, consuming 91,020 bushels of barley, 29,900 of Indian corn, 9200 of rye, and 28 tons of hops, and producing 127,000 gallons of whiskey, &c., and 31,320 barrels of ale, beer, &c. The numerous rivers and streams of Wisconsin, with their frequent rapids and falls, afford great facilities for mill sites of every sort, and her forests and iron for ship and steamboat building. Mr. Hunt, in his Gazetteer, estimates the manufacture of pine lumber at 400,000,000 feet, besides which large quantities of oak and basswood are sawed into scantling, plank, lath, &c. He also gives the number of barrels of flour manufactured at 100,000, (independent of all kinds of mill stuffs in abundance,) of paper, 300,000 pounds, and of shot, 100,000 pounds annually.

Internal Improvements.—A canal is being constructed from the Wisconsin to the Fox river, with funds arising from the sale of land appropriated by the national government, though under state supervision. This, when completed, will open an uninterrupted inland navigation from New Orleans to New York. In January, 1852, there were 20 miles of railway completed, and 421 in course of construction. Plank and trunk roads are also being laid from the lake depôts towards the interior. The Milwaukee and Mississippi railway was completed, October, 1853, to Janesville; a railroad is nearly finished to connect Fond du Lac and Janesville; the Milwaukee and La Crosse railroad, extending from Milwaukee to the Mississippi river, is in progress; one also from Racine to Janesville is in course of construction; and one is nearly completed from Milwaukee to Chicago, along the lake shore. Many other railways are in course of construction, and a great number are projected: and in this youthful and vigorous state, as action follows thought with but small intervals, they will no doubt soon be commenced.

Commerce.—Wisconsin enjoys great facilities for internal trade, communicating by the great lakes with Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, and the Canadas, and by the Mississippi and its tributaries with various parts of the Mississippi valley, and even with the Atlantic ports through the Gulf of Mexico. There were 9 vessels built in Wisconsin in 1852, with a tonnage of 555 $\frac{2}{3}$. The entire tonnage of the state for the same year was 6931 $\frac{1}{2}$. Tonnage entered, 1,250,000; cleared, the same. The entire commerce of the district of Milwaukee (including the ports of Sheboygan, Port Washington, Kenosha, and Racine,) was, imports of the value of \$19,560,713, and exports, \$4,564,779. The leading articles of export were wheat and other grains, flour, hides, wool, lead, lumber, brick, ashes, beef, pork, &c. According to an article in De Bow's Review for January, 1853, there were in 1851-2 exported from the St. Croix, Chippewa, and Black rivers, in the N. W. part of Wisconsin, 61,000,000 feet of lumber; 23,000,000 feet of logs; square timber, lath, shingles, &c., valued at \$30,000; and furs and peltries worth \$200,000; making the value of exports for the western part of the state, \$1,170,000. The ports of Wisconsin in the district of Mackinac probably add at least a value of \$5,000,000 to the trade of Wisconsin. The total lumber trade of 1852 has been given at 211,000,000 feet, viz. from Black river, 15,000,000; Chippewa, 28,500,000; Green bay, 28,000,000; Manitoowoc, 24,500,000; St. Croix, 20,000,000; Wisconsin, 70,000,000; and Wolf river, 25,000,000. The total valuation of lead exported from Galena (nine-tenths of which, according to Hunt's Gazetteer of Wisconsin, was from that state) and the ports on Lake Michigan, was \$3,459,075; besides considerable quantities shipped from points on the Mississippi and Wisconsin rivers. The largest shipment of lead within the eleven years preceding 1852 was 51,114,829 pounds; the lowest, 29,424,329 pounds.

Education.—In the year ending August, 1851, there were 111,431 children in Wisconsin, of whom 79,869 attended school. There were in August, 1852, in the state, 2763 school districts, in which were 1664 school houses, mostly frame or log, and valued at $261,986.32. The capital of the school fund in December, 1852, was $819,200.50. It is expected that ere long the lands appropriated for the support of schools will form a fund of from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000. Public instruction is under the charge of a state superintendent, receiving $1000 per annum. There have been granted for the support of a state university, 46,080 acres of land. There are also other colleges and academies supported by private subscriptions, which are promising institutions.—See Table of Colleges, APPENDIX.

Religious Denominations.—In Wisconsin the most numerous religious body is the Roman Catholics, who have 57 churches; Methodists, 54; Congregationalists, 33; Baptists, 28; Presbyterians, 21; Episcopalians, 19; and Lutherans, 18. Besides these, there are some Christians, Dutch Reformed, Free Union, Universalists, &c.,—giving 1 church to every 1250 inhabitants. Value of church property, $350,600. For full particulars, see Table of Religions, APPENDIX.

Public Institutions.—The Wisconsin Institute for the Education of the Blind was opened at Janesville in 1850, and the number of pupils in December, 1851, was 16. It is supported by a tax of one-fifteenth of a mill on every dollar. A state prison has been erected at Waupun, in Fond du Lac county. There were 35 public libraries, containing an aggregate of 7163 volumes, and 2163 volumes in school libraries in 1850.

Government, Finances, Banks, &c.—The governor is elected by the people for 2 years, and receives $1250 per annum. Wisconsin has also a lieutenant-governor, elected for a like period, who is ex officio president of the senate, and receives $5 a day during the session of the legislature. The senate consists of 25 members, and the house of representatives of 82; the former elected by the people for 2 years, and the latter annually. The state has an emigrant officer resident in New York city. The judiciary consists—1. Of a supreme court, composed of 3 judges; 2. Of circuit courts, which hold two sessions a year in each county; and 3. Of county courts and justices of the peace. (Except to issue writs of mandamus, quo warranto, &c., the supreme court is only an appeal court, and has no jury trials.) All judges are elected by the people, the supreme and circuit judges for 6 years, and the county judges for 4. The supreme judges receive salaries of $2000, and the circuit judges $1500 per annum each. The assessed value of property in Wisconsin in 1850 was $26,715,525; estimated value, $42,056,595, and $46,262,254 in 1852. State debt in 1852, none. Annual expenses, exclusive of schools and debt, $20,000. There was but 1 bank in January, 1852, with a capital of $225,000, a circulation of $250,000, and $100,000 in coin.

History.—Wisconsin was visited at a very early period by the French missionaries and discoverers, and a settlement made by the French in the latter part of the seventeenth century. There was no considerable influx of emigration, however, till quite recently; but it is likely to repay amply for its tardiness, by the unexampled rapidity with which emigration flows thither, invited by its rich soil, valuable minerals, beautiful lakes, and rolling prairies. Wisconsin was formed into a territory in 1836, and admitted into the Union as an independent state in 1848.

WISCOX, a post-office of Alleghany co., N. Y.

WISEMAN, a post-village of Boone co., Missouri, about 16 miles N. N. W. from Jefferson City.

WISSENBERG, Pa. See WEISENBERG.

WISSAHICKON, or WISSAHICCON creek, of Montgomery and Philadelphia counties, Pennsylvania, enters the Schuylkill river about 6 miles above Philadelphia. The scenery along the banks of this stream is exceedingly wild and romantic. It is a favorite place of resort of the citizens of Philadelphia, who wish to breathe the pure air and enjoy the beauties of the country.

WITCHER'S CROSS ROADS, a post-office of Smith co., Tennessee.

WITHAMSVILLE, a post-village of Clermont co., Ohio, about 16 miles E. from Cincinnati.

WITHLACOOCHEE, a small river of Georgia and Florida, rises in Irwin co., Georgia, and flowing southward into Florida, enters the Suwanee at the S. W. extremity of Hamilton county.

WITHLACOOCHEE, a small river in the peninsula of Florida, forms the boundary between Marion and Levy counties on the right, and Benton county on the left, until it flows into the Gulf of Mexico.

WITTEBERG, a post-office of Somerset co., Pennsylvania.

WITTEBERG'S, a post-office of Alexander co., North Carolina.

WITTESS, a post-office of Monroe co., Ohio.

WITTSBURG, a post-office of St. Francis co., Arkansas.

WITTSVILLE, a post-office of Jefferson co., Tennessee.

WOBURN, a post-township of Middlesex co., Massachusetts, intersected by the Boston and Lowell railroad, 10 miles N. N. W. from Boston, and by the Middlesex canal, which, by means of locks, overcomes a rise in this part of its course of 45 feet. This, with the outlet of several ponds in the vicinity, affords an abundant and well-improved waterpower. The principal village, called Woburn Centre, is delightfully situated on elevated ground, and contains 3 or 4 churches, and Warren Academy, a flourishing institution founded in 1828. A branch railroad communicates with the Boston and Lowell railroad, at Winchester, 2 miles distant. Population of the township in 1840, 2993; in 1850, 3956.

WOLCOTT, a post-village in Lamoille co., Vermont, on Lamoille river, about 25 miles N. by E. from Montpelier. It contains 1 church, 1 tavern, 1 woollen factory, 1 grist mill, and a number of other establishments. Population of the township, 909.

WOLCOTT, a post-township in New Haven co., Connecticut, 22 miles S. W. from Hartford, intersected by Mad river. Pop., 603.

WOLCOTT, a post-township forming the N. E. extremity of Wayne co., New York, on Lake Ontario. Population, 2751.

WOLCOTT, or WOLCOTT VILLAGE, a flourishing village in the above township, about 160 miles W. by N. from Albany, on a small stream emptying into Lake Ontario. It contains 4 churches, 7 stores, 2 taverns, 2 saw mills, 1 woollen factory, and 1 tannery.

WOLCOTT'S MILLS, a post-office of La Grange co., Indiana.

WOLCOTTVILLE, a flourishing post-village of Litchfield county, Connecticut, on the Naugatuck river and railroad, 25 miles W. from Hartford, and 110 miles N. N. E. from New York. It contains a Congregational, an Episcopal, and a Methodist church, 7 stores, and numerous manufacturing establishments, among which may be mentioned a brass foundry, rolling mill and battery, a large woollen mill, a knitting factory, a papier-mache factory, 2 manufactories of musical instruments, one of locks, and one of carriages. The mill of the Union Manufacturing Company is a fine building, five stories high. Wolcottville was founded about the year 1810, by the late Honorable Frederick Wolcott. Its growth for the last few years has been very rapid. Population in 1853, about 1200.

WOLCOTTVILLE, a thriving village of La Grange co., Indiana, on the North fork of Elkhart river.

WOLF, a township of Lycoming co., Pennsylvania, about 14 miles E. from Williamsport. Population, 982.

WOLF, a post-office of Knox co., Ohio.

WOLF BAYOU, a post-office of Independence co., Arkansas.

WOLFBOROUGH, a post-township in Carroll co., New Hampshire, 30 miles N. E. by E. from Concord. It is intersected by Smith's river, which falls into Winnipiseogee lake, bordering the township on the S. W. The village is situated near the bridge, across the river, and contains a hotel. Pop., 2038.

WOLF CREEK, in the S. W. part of Virginia, rises in Tazewell county, flows north-eastward, and forms the boundary between Giles and Mercer counties, until it enters the Kanawha or New river.

WOLF CREEK, in the N. part of Tennessee, rises in Fentress county, and enters Obed's river near the N. border of Overton county. It furnishes valuable motive-power.

WOLF CREEK, of Montgomery county, Ohio, flows into the Miami river near Dayton.

WOLF CREEK, of Summit co., Ohio, is an affluent of Tuscarawas river.

WOLF CREEK, of Missouri, rises in Sullivan county, and flowing southward falls into the Chariton river from the right, a few miles S. E. from Keytesville.

WOLF CREEK, of Iowa, flows into the Cedar river from the right, in Black Hawk county.

WOLF CREEK, a post-township forming the S. E. extremity of Mercer co., Pennsylvania. Population, 2038.

WOLF CREEK, a post-office of Pickens co., South Carolina.

WOLF CREEK, a post-office of Choctaw co., Mississippi.

WOLF CREEK, a post-office of Lenawee co., Michigan.

WOLF ISLAND, a post-office of Mississippi co., Missouri.

WOLF LAKE, a post-office of Noble co., Ind.

WOLF RIVER, a small stream of Mississippi, flows through Hancock and Harrison counties into the Gulf of Mexico.

WOLF RIVER, a small stream of Mississippi and Tennessee, rises in Tippah county of the former state, and enters the Mississippi river at the city of Memphis. Its general course is W. N. W. Length near 100 miles.

WOLF RIVER, of Wisconsin, rises in the N.

E. part of the state, and flowing nearly southward, forms the W. boundary of Oconto county for about 100 miles, and enters Neenah or Fox river in Winnebago county. A little above its mouth it expands into Pewaugan lake, several miles in diameter. The Indian name of the river is Pewaugonee. This river is navigable by steamboats about 150 miles from its mouth.

WOLF RIVER, a post-office of Fayette co., Tennessee.

WOLF RUN, a post-office of Lycoming co., Pa.

WOLFSVILLE, a post-office of Frederick co., Maryland.

WOLFSVILLE, a post-village in Union co., N. C., 178 miles S. W. by W. from Raleigh.

WOLHOLLA, a small village of Pickens district, South Carolina.

WOMELSDORF, a post-borough of Heidelberg township, Berks county, Pennsylvania, on the turnpike from Reading to Lebanon 14 miles W. from the former. It is surrounded by fertile and well-cultivated farms, and is one of the largest towns of the county. It contains an academy and a number of stores. Population in 1850, 947.

WONANSQUA TOCKETT river, a mill stream of Providence co., Rhode Island, falls into Narragauset bay.

WOOD, a county in the N. W. part of Virginia, bordering on the Ohio river, which forms its boundary on the N. and W., separating it from the State of Ohio: area about 420 square miles. It is intersected by the Little Kanawha, and also drained by Hughes river and French and Lee's creeks. The surface is hilly and broken; the soil generally fertile. Indian corn, wheat, oats, hay, butter, and live stock are the staples. In 1850 it produced 251,715 bushels of corn; 18,790 of wheat; 59,584 of oats; 3166 tons of hay, and 73,885 pounds of butter. There were 3 saw mills, 2 iron foundries, 3 tanneries, and 1 sash manufactory. It contained 22 churches, 293 pupils attending public schools, and 130 attending other schools. Extensive beds of stone coal are found. It is intersected by two turnpike-roads, and by the North-western Virginia railroad, (not yet finished.) Capital, Parkersburg. Population, 9450; of whom 9077 were free, and 373, slaves.

WOOD, a new county in the N. E. part of Texas, has an area of about 775 square miles. The Sabine river forms its S. W. boundary, and it is intersected by the Lake fork of that river. The county contains a large proportion of prairie. It is not included in the census of 1850. Named in honor of Colonel Wood, second governor of the state. Capital, Quitman.

WOOD, a county in the N. N. W. part of Ohio, contains about 600 square miles. The Maumee river, navigable by steamboats, forms its N. W. boundary; it is intersected by Portage river, and also drained by Beaver and Toussaint creeks. The surface is nearly level, with a slight declivity towards the N. E. The land when properly drained is very productive. The county is heavily timbered. Indian corn, wheat, oats, and grass are the staples. In 1850 it produced 171,285 bushels of corn; 36,933 of wheat; 55,122 of oats, and 158,345 pounds of butter. It contained 10 churches, 2 newspaper offices, 2526 pupils attending public schools, and 350 attending academies or other schools. The county is intersected by the Dayton and Michigan railroad, the Junction or Lake Shore railroad, and by several plank-roads which terminate at Perrysburg, the capital. The salubrity of this region has been improved by the clearing and cultivation of the land. Population, 9157.

WOOD, a township in Clarke co., Indiana. Population, 1417.

WOODBERRY, a post-village of Bedford co., Pennsylvania, 15 miles N. N. E. from Bedford, contains several stores.

WOODBERRY, a township of Blair co., Pennsylvania, about 10 miles E. from Hollidaysburg. Population, 1450.

WOODBERRY, a post-office of Meriwether co., Georgia.

WOODBERRY, a post-office of Butler co., Ky.

WOODBINE, a post-office of Carroll co., Md.

WOODBINE, a post-office of Whitley co., Ky.

WOODBOROUGH, a post-office of Grayson co., Texas.

WOODBORNE, a post-village of Sullivan co., New York, on Neversink river, about 100 miles S. S. W. from Albany.

WOODBORNE, a post-village in Knox co., Tennessee, 202 miles E. by S. from Nashville.

WOODBURGE, a township in New Haven co., Connecticut, 6 miles N. W. from New Haven. Population, 912.

WOODBURGE, a post-township of Middlesex co., New Jersey, on Staten Island sound, about 38 miles N. E. from Trenton. Population, 5141.

WOODBURGE, a small village of Fayette co., Pennsylvania, 190 miles W. by S. from Harrisburg.

WOODBURGE, a township in the S. part of Hillsdale co., Michigan, intersected by a branch of Little St. Joseph's river. Population, 404.

WOODBURGE, a post-village of Cedar co., Iowa, near Cedar river, 16 miles N. E. from Iowa City.

WOODBURN, a post-village of Jefferson co., Georgia, about 70 miles E. N. E. from Milledgeville.

WOODBURN, a post-office of Warren co., Kentucky.

WOODBURN, a thriving post-village of Macoupin co., Illinois, on the road from Alton to Springfield, 15 miles from Alton.

WOODBURY, a post-township in Washington co., Vermont, 14 miles N. E. by N. from Montpelier. Population, 1070.

WOODBURY, a post township of Litchfield county, Connecticut, about 25 miles N. N. W. from New Haven. It is drained by Pompeaug river and branches, which affords water-power. The village in the centre is more than a mile in length, abounding in elegant residences, and surrounded with beautiful scenery. It has 3 or 4 churches, several stores, and a bank recently established. Hardware, woollen, and India-rubber goods are manufactured in the township, which also contains the village of Hotchkissville. Population in 1840, 1948; in 1850, 2150.

WOODBURY, a post-village, capital of Gloucester co., New Jersey, on Woodbury creek, 9 miles S. from Philadelphia. It contains 3 churches, 2 public libraries, a newspaper office, and an academy. The creek is navigable by small boats to this place. Population estimated at 1000.

WOODBURY, a former township of Bedford co., Pennsylvania, now divided into South, Middle, and North Woodbury.

WOODBURY, a post-village, capital of Cannon co., Tennessee, 50 miles E. S. E. from Nashville.

WOODBURY, a small village of Richland co., Ohio.

WOODBURY, a post-village of Wood co., Ohio, 105 miles N. W. from Columbus.

WOODBURY, a post-village of Hamilton co., Indiana, 22 miles N. E. from Indianapolis.

WOODBURY, a post-township of Cumberland co., Illinois. Population, 656.

WOODBURY, a post-village of Cumberland co., Illinois, on one of the head branches of Embarras river, and on the National road, about 100 miles S. E. by E. from Springfield.

WOODBURY, a small post-village of Wright co., Missouri, about 90 miles S. S. W. from Jefferson City.

WOODCOCK, a post-township in the N. central part of Crawford co., Pennsylvania. Population, 2288.

WOODCOCK, a post-borough in the above township, and 8 miles N. E. from Meadville. Population, (1851,) 300.

WOOD CREEK, of Oneida co., New York, empties itself into the E. end of Oneida lake.

WOOD CREEK, of Washington co., New York, falls into the head of Lake Champlain, at Whitehall.

WOODFORD, a county in the N. central part of Kentucky, has an area estimated at 250 square miles. The Kentucky river forms its entire boundary on the S. W., and the South fork of Elkhorn washes its N. E. border. The surface is gently undulating; the soil is calcareous, deep, and exceedingly fertile. The chief articles of export are horses, cattle, mules, swine, and hemp. In 1850, this county produced 812,490 bushels of corn; 2958 tons of hemp, and 45,586 pounds of wool. It contained 23 churches, 327 pupils attending public schools, and 362 attending academies and other schools. The Lexington and Frankfort railroad passes through the county, and the Kentucky river is navigable by steamboats on the border. The surface rock is Trenton limestone, a good material for building. The county is heavily timbered with hickory, ash, sugar-maple, and black walnut, which here attain a large size. Formed in 1788, and named in honor of General William Woodford, who was taken prisoner at the siege of Charleston, in 1780. Capital, Versailles. Population, 12,423, of whom 6047 were free, and 6376, slaves.

WOODFORD, a county in the N. central part of Illinois, has an area of 500 square miles. It is bounded on the W. by the Peoria Lake, an expansion of Illinois river, and drained by Mackinaw and Crow creeks. The surface presents no great inequalities; the soil is fertile. The prairies are said to be more extensive than the forests. Indian corn, wheat, oats, potatoes, and pork, are the staples. In 1850, Woodford county produced 404,244 bushels of corn; 76,770 of wheat; 50,727 of oats, and 4553 tons of hay. It contained 5 churches, 750 pupils attending public schools, and 50 attending other schools. Stonecoal is found. The Illinois river is navigable along the border. The Central railroad, when finished, will pass through the county. Capital, Metamora. Pop., 4416.

WOODFORD, a post-township of Bennington co., Vermont, about 115 miles S. W. by S. from Montpelier. It contains extensive deposits of iron ore and yellow paint or ochre. Population, 423.

WOODFORD, a village of Woodford co., Illinois, 80 miles N. by E. from Springfield.

WOODGROVE, a small village of Rowan co., North Carolina.

WOODGROVE, a post-office of Morgan co., O.

WOODHOUSE, a post-office of Meriwether co., Georgia, 102 miles W. from Milledgeville.

WOODHULL, a post-township of Steuben co., New York, 25 miles S. S. W. from Bath. Population, 1769.

WOODHULL, a post-township forming the S. W. extremity of Shiawassee co., Michigan. Population, 259.

WOODINGTON, a post-office of Darke co., O.

WOOD ISLAND, at the entrance of Saco river, Maine. On the E. side is a revolving light, 45 feet above the level of the sea, lat. 43° 27' N., lon. 70° 15' W.

WOODLAND, a post-office of Clearfield co., Pennsylvania.

WOODLAND, a post-office of Barren, co., Ky.

WOODLAND, a post-township forming the N. E. extremity of Barry co., Michigan. Population, 377.

WOODLAND, a post-office of Lawrence co., Indiana.

WOODLAND, a township in the N. part of Carroll co., Illinois, intersected by Plum river. Population, 395.

WOODLANDS, a post-office of Marshall co., Virginia.

WOODLAWN, a post-office of Cecil co., Md.

WOODLAWN, a post-office of Appomattox co., Virginia.

WOODLAWN, a post-village of Gaston co., North Carolina, 173 miles S. W. by W. from Raleigh.

WOODLAWN, a post-village of Edgefield district, South Carolina, 98 miles W. by S. from Columbia.

WOODLAWN, a post-village of Murray co., Georgia.

WOODLAWN, a post-office of Itawamba co., Mississippi.

WOODLAWN, a small post-village of Washita co., Arkansas, 15 miles W. from Camden.

WOODLAWN, a small village of Shelby co., Illinois.

WOODLAWN, a post-office of Monroe co., Missouri, about 70 miles N. from Jefferson City.

WOODPORT, a post-office of Victoria co., Texas.

WOODRIDGE'S STORE, a post-office of Christian co., Kentucky.

WOOD RIVER, a mill stream of Rhode Island, rises in Kent county, and unites with Charles river, in Washington county, to form the Pawcatuck river.

WOODRUFF'S, a post-office of Spartanburg district, South Carolina.

WOODRUFF'S CREEK, of Michigan, rises in Oakland co., and flows south-westward into Portage lake, the water of which is discharged through the Huron river.

WOOD'S, a post-office of Perry co., Tenn.

WOODSBOROUGH, a small post-village of Frederick co., Maryland, 70 miles N. W. from Annapolis.

WOODSBOROUGH, a post-village of Shelby co., Alabama, 64 miles E. from Tuscaloosa.

WOODSBOROUGH, a post-village of Montgomery co., Illinois, 66 miles S. from Springfield.

WOOD'S CORNERS, a post-office of Hillsdale co., Michigan.

WOOD'S CREEK, a small stream of Tuolumne co., California, rises among the hills at the foot of the Sierra Nevada, and flowing in a general south-west course, falls into the Tuolumne river.

WOOD'S CROSS ROADS, a post-office of Gloucester co., Virginia.

WOODSDALE, a post-office of Person co., North Carolina, 62 miles N. N. W. from Raleigh.

WOOD'S DIGGINGS, a post-office of Tuolumne co., California.

WOODSFIELD, a post-village of Centre township, and capital of Monroe co., Ohio, 120 miles E. from Columbus. It is pleasantly situated on high ground, and is surrounded by a hilly region. It contains 1 academy and a printing office. On the border of the village is a natural circular mound, 60 feet high. Population in 1853, about 600.

WOOD'S HILL, a post-office of Roane co., Tennessee.

WOOD'S HOLE, a post-village in Barnstable co., Massachusetts, at the S. W. extremity of the peninsula of Cape Cod, about 70 miles S. by E. from Boston. The harbor is well protected by islands, and is of sufficient depth for ships of the largest class. It is much frequented by vessels in tempestuous weather. Wood's Hole is a favorite place of resort to invalids and persons in quest of sea air. It contains a church and a good hotel.

WOOD SHOP, a post-office of Dale co., Alabama.

WOODSONVILLE, a post-office of Hart co., Kentucky, on Green river, opposite Mumfordsville, the county seat. It has 1 church and several stores.

WOOD'S STATION, a post-village of Walker co., Georgia.

WOODSTOCK, a post-township in Oxford co., Maine, intersected by the Atlantic and St. Lawrence railroad, 35 miles W. from Augusta. Population, 1012.

WOODSTOCK, a post-township in Grafton co., New Hampshire, 50 miles N. by W. from Concord. Population, 418.

WOODSTOCK, a post-township in Windsor co., Vermont, 55 miles S. by E. from Montpelier. Population, 3041.

WOODSTOCK, the capital and largest village of Windsor county, is situated in the above township, on both sides of the Quechee or Otta Quechee river, near the junction of the North branch with the main stream. It is surrounded with one of the finest agricultural regions of the state, for which it is the chief centre of trade. Its manufactures are also extensive and varied. By the construction of dams across the Quechee, the stream has been made to furnish an extensive hydraulic power. The public buildings are a court house, an imposing structure, adorned with a portico, and surmounted by a lofty tower, a jail, the Vermont Medical College, and churches of 5 denominations. The medical institution was founded by Dr. Joseph A. Gallop, in 1827, under the name of the "Clinical School of Medicine," but not incorporated until 1835, at which time it received the title it now bears. In 1852, 90 students attended its lectures. In the centre of the village is a beautiful park, around which are situated the finest buildings. Two newspapers are published in Woodstock, which also contains a bank and about 20 stores. Population in 1853, about 1500.

WOODSTOCK, a post-township of Windham co., Connecticut, about 40 miles N. E. by E. from Hartford. It is drained by a branch of Quinnebaug river, called Muddy Brook, which affords water-power, employed for cotton, woollen, and other manufactures. There are 3 pleasant villages in the township, viz. Old Woodstock, North Woodstock, and West Woodstock. Old Woodstock has a handsome green in the centre, and contains 1 or 2 churches, an academy, and a bank. Population, 3381.

WOODSTOCK, a post-township of Ulster co., New York, 50 miles S. S. W. from Albany. It contains a small village of the same name. Population, 1650.

WOODSTOCK, a post-village in Howard co., Maryland, 50 miles N. W. from Annapolis.

WOODSTOCK, a beautiful post-village, capital of Shenandoah co., Virginia, is situated on the Valley turnpike, one mile from the North fork of the Shenandoah river, and 160 miles N. W. from Richmond. The surrounding country is fertile, and finely diversified. The village contains 3 or 4 churches, a newspaper office, 1 academy, a Masonic hall, and numerous stores. Population, about 1200.

WOODSTOCK, a post-village in Cherokee co., Georgia, 115 miles N. W. from Milledgeville.

WOODSTOCK, a beautiful village of Oglethorpe co., Georgia, about 55 miles N. N. E. from Milledgeville. It contains 1 church, a high-school, and a steam mill.

WOODSTOCK, a post-village of Champaign co., Ohio, on the Columbus, Piqua and Indiana railroad, 32 miles N. W. from Columbus. Population in 1853, 300.

WOODSTOCK, a post-township forming the N. W. extremity of Lenawee co., Michigan. Population, 949.

WOODSTOCK, a small village of Cass co., Ill.

WOODSTOCK, a thriving post-village, capital of McHenry co., Illinois, on the railroad connecting Chicago with Janesville and Fond du Lac, 68 miles N. W. from Chicago. It is the largest village of the county. Population in 1851, about 600.

WOODSTOCK, a township in Schuyler co., Illinois. Population, 696.

WOODSTOCK MILLS, a small village of Camden co., Georgia.

WOODSTOCK MILLS, a post-office of Nassau co., Florida.

WOODSTOWN, a post-village of Salem co., New Jersey, on the North bank of Salem creek, 55 miles S. W. by S. from Trenton. It contains 5 churches, 6 stores, 3 schools, and about 150 dwellings.

WOODSVILLE, a post-village of Mercer co., New Jersey, 13 miles N. from Trenton.

WOODVALE, a post-office of Fayette co., Pa.

WOODVIEW, a post-office of Morrow co., O.

WOODVILLE, or WOODSVILLE, a post-village in Middlesex co., Massachusetts, near the Boston and Worcester railroad, 30 miles W. S. W. from Boston.

WOODVILLE, a post-village in Litchfield co., Connecticut, 40 miles W. from Hartford.

WOODVILLE, a post-village of Jefferson co., New York, on Sandy creek, about 50 miles N. from Syracuse. It has several stores and mills.

WOODVILLE, a thriving post-village of Butler co., Pennsylvania, 20 miles N. from Pittsburg.

WOODVILLE, a post-village of Rappahannock co., Virginia, on the turnpike from Sperryville to Fairfax, 115 miles N. W. from Richmond. Population in 1853, about 300.

WOODVILLE, a small post-village of Bertie co., North Carolina.

WOODVILLE, a post-village in Perquimans co., North Carolina, 205 miles E. N. E. from Raleigh.

WOODVILLE, a small village of Abbeville district, South Carolina.

WOODVILLE, a post-village in Greene co., Georgia, on the Athens branch of the Georgia railroad, 45 miles N. by E. from Milledgeville.

WOODVILLE, a village of Henry co., Ala., on the Chattahoochee river. It has 2 stores. The post-office is called "Open Pond."

WOODVILLE, a post-village of Jackson co., Alabama, near Paint Rock river, about 160 miles N. E. from Tuscaloosa.

WOODVILLE, a post-village, capital of Wilkinson co., Mississippi, 35 miles S. from Natchez, and 15 miles E. from the Mississippi river. It is connected by railroad with St. Francisville, on the river, 29 miles S., and has considerable trade. There is a cotton factory in successful operation here. Woodville contains 3 churches, 2 academies, 1 bank, and 2 newspaper offices.

WOODVILLE, a post-village, capital of Tyler co., Texas, 108 miles in a direct line N. by E. from Galveston.

WOODVILLE, a post-office of Haywood co., Tennessee.

WOODVILLE, a post-township forming the N. W. extremity of Sandusky co., Ohio, intersected by Portage river. Population, 1237.

WOODVILLE, a post-village in the above township, on the Portage river, and on the Western Reserve and Maumee turnpike, 120 miles N. by W. from Columbus. It contains 2 churches.

WOODVILLE, a post-office of Wayne co., Mich.

WOODVILLE, a small post-village of Jackson co., Indiana, about 9 miles W. S. W. from Brownstown.

WOODVILLE, a village of Lawrence co., Indiana, on the New Albany and Salem railroad, 10 miles S. from Bedford.

WOODVILLE, a post-village in Adams co., Illinois, 95 miles W. N. W. from Springfield.

WOODVILLE, a small village of Fulton co., Illinois, about 50 miles W. from Peoria.

WOODVILLE, a small village of Jackson co., Illinois.

WOODVILLE, a post-village in Macon co., Missouri, on the South fork of Salt river, 80 miles N. by W. from Jefferson City.

WOODVILLE DEPÔT, a post-office of Albemarle co., Virginia.

WOODWARD, a post-office of Centre co., Pa.

WOODWARD, a township of Clearfield co., Pennsylvania, about 14 miles E. by S. from Clearfield. Population, 390.

WOODWARD, a township of Clinton co., Pennsylvania, on the Susquehanna, opposite Lockhaven, the county seat. Pop., 476.

WOODWARDSVILLE, a post-office of Essex co., New York.

WOODWARDSVILLE, a village of Burlington co., New Jersey, contains 2 churches, 2 stores, 4 mills, and about 70 dwellings.

WOODWORTH'S, a post-office of Granville co., North Carolina, 61 miles N. from Raleigh.

WOODYARDS, a post-office of Athens co., Ohio.

WOOLWICH, a post-township in Lincoln co., Maine, on the E. side of Kennebec river, 25 miles S. from Augusta. Population, 1420.

WOOLWICH, a township of Gloucester co., New Jersey, on the Delaware river, 11 miles S. W. from Woodbury. Population, 3265.

WOONSOCKET, a flourishing post-village of Smithfield and Cumberland townships, Providence co., Rhode Island, on both sides of the Blackstone river, and on the Providence and Worcester railroad, at the North-eastern terminus of the proposed Woonsocket Union railroad, 16 miles N. by W. from Providence. At present it comprises one principal and several smaller villages, viz. Woonsocket, Beron, Hamlet, Jencksville, Globe, and Union villages, all included under the general name of Woonsocket. There are now in operation at this point, 19 cotton mills, in which are 73,304 spindles, and 1641 looms, annually consuming 6185 bales of cotton, and 11,300 gallons of oil, producing 276,538 yards of cloth per week; also 5 woollen mills, with 9770 spindles, 227 looms, and 22 sets of cards, turning out 33,000 yards of cloth per week, and consuming annually 600,000 bales of wool, and 10,000 gallons of oil—preparations are being made the present season to increase the above to the extent of 288 looms, and 10,000 spindles—also 8 machine shops, 2 iron foundries, 1 gas manufactory, sash, blind, and planing works, 1 spool-thread factory, 1 manufactory of sewing-silk and silk fringes, 1 of gold pencils and jewellery, 1 of musical instruments, 4 of tin-plate and stoves, 3 of scythe-stones connected with an extensive quarry in the immediate vicinity, and 2 marble-yards, besides numerous other establishments.

There are in Woonsocket 7 churches, 1 high-school, 1 newspaper office, 6 banks, 1 savings' institution, 80 stores, 3 hotels, and 6 livery stables, containing about 50 horses. Annual amount of freight, 19,631 tons; value of goods manufactured and merchandise sold, $2,292,670. An eminence in the rear of Beron affords a beautiful view of the town. Many of the most elegant dwellings occupy, in groups, the extensive swells of high-land which extend in every direction above the valley of the river. Patriot Buildings (printing) is a fine specimen of architectural beauty. Woonsocket has telegraphic communication with Pawtucket and Providence. Its position on the route of the New York and Boston Air-line railroad is favorable to a rapid increase of business, and before many years the village will, without doubt, contain a large population. Population in 1853, about 6500.

WOOSTER, a post-township in the S. central part of Wayne co., Ohio. Pop., 4122.

WOOSTER, a flourishing town in the above township, capital of Wayne co., Ohio, is situated on Killbuck creek, and on the Ohio and Pennsylvania railroad, 90 miles N. E. from Columbus, and 52 miles S. by W. from Cleveland. It is well built, and surrounded by a beautiful and undulating country, of which it commands an extensive view. Wooster is the centre of an active trade, and is improving rapidly since the construction of the railroad, which forms part of a continuous line from Philadelphia to Indiana, &c. It contains 8 churches, 1 bank, 1 female seminary, and 2 newspaper offices. Carriage making is carried on here extensively. Laid out in 1808. Population in 1840, 1913; in 1850, 2797; in 1853, about 4000.

WOOSTER, a flourishing village of Scott co., Indiana, about 80 miles S. by E. from Indianapolis. Population in 1853, 300.

WORCESTER, the largest county in Massachusetts, occupies the central part of the state, extending across the entire breadth from N. to S., and has an area of about 1500 square miles. It is drained by the head waters of Miller's, Chicopee, Thames, Blackstone, Nashua, and other smaller rivers, which afford motive-power to a great number of grist and saw mills. The surface is undulating, with some hills. The soil is strong and productive. Indian corn, potatoes, and grass are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 476,107 bushels of corn; 733,261 of potatoes; 145,094 tons of hay; 1,881,823 pounds of butter, and 2,584,245 of cheese. The quantity of hay was the greatest produced by any county in the United States except Oneida county, New York, and that of corn, potatoes, butter, and cheese, was each the greatest produced by any county in the state. There were 63 cotton, 1 linen, and 48 woollen factories, and 40 manufactories of combs, 1 of carpets, and 23 of cards, 15 of edge tools, 69 of cabinet ware, 142 of boots and shoes, 14 of farming implements, 2 of cars, 33 of clothing, 11 of coaches, 7 iron foundries, 1 iron forge, 1 brass foundry, 28 machine shops, 14 paper, 104 saw, 2 powder, and 17 grist mills, 4 gunsmiths, 5 manufactories of piano-fortes, 17 of saddles and harness, 20 of sash and blinds, 30 tanneries, 30 tin and sheet-iron works, 37 wheelwrighting establishments, and 17 wooden ware manufactories, 6 quarrying, 8 stone and marble working establishments, 16 of hats and caps, and 16 brick-yards, 7 chandleries, 12 currying establishments. It contained 205 churches, 15 newspaper offices; 28,058 pupils attending public schools, and 1046 attending academies and other schools. The Blackstone canal extends from Worcester, near the centre of the county, to Providence, Rhode Island. The county is traversed in every direction by railroads, the principal of which are the Western, the Providence and Worcester, the Norwich and Worcester, the Worcester and Nashua, and the Fitchburg railroads. Organized in 1731, and named from Worcester, a county in England. Capital, Worcester. Population, 130,789.

WORCESTER, a county forming the S. E. extremity of Maryland, bordering on Delaware, and on the Atlantic ocean, has an area of about 700 square miles. It forms part of the peninsula extending into the sea, between Chesapeake and Delaware bay. Sinuexunt sound washes the S. E. border of the county, which is drained by Pocomoke and St. Martin's rivers. The surface is level. The soil is moderately fertile. Indian corn, oats, hay, and butter are the staples. It produced in 1850, 721,768 bushels of corn; 87,798 of oats; 13,800 tons of hay, and 68,039 pounds of butter. It contained 1 iron furnace, 17 grist mills, 17 saw mills, and 3 coach manufactories. There were 60 churches, and 1 newspaper office; 1719 pupils attending public schools, and 200 attending academies or other schools. The Pocomoke is navigable by sloops to the county seat, and St. Martin's river for a distance of 12 miles. Organized in 1742. Capital, Snow Hill. Population, 18,859; of whom 15,415 were free, and 3444, slaves.

WORCESTER, a post-township in Washington co., Vermont, 11 miles N. from Montpelier. Population, 702.

WORCESTER, a city and seat of justice of Worcester county, Massachusetts, is delightfully situated in the centre of one of the richest and most productive agricultural regions of the state, 45 miles W. S. W. from Boston, 43 miles N. N. W. from Providence, 45 miles S. S. W. from Nashua, and 53 miles E. N. E. from Springfield. Lat. $42^{\circ} 16' 17''$ N., lon. $71^{\circ} 48' 13''$ W. From this point diverge five important railroads, viz. the Western railroad, which connects with the railway system of the South and West; the Worcester and Nashua, communicating through other railroads with the valley of the St. Lawrence; the Boston and Worcester road, one of the first constructed in the state, having been opened in 1835; the Providence and Worcester, and the Norwich and Worcester railroads, both of which have steamboat communication with New York. To this network of railroads Worcester is chiefly indebted for her late rapid increase in wealth and population. The city is situated partly in a valley environed by beautiful hills, and partly on an elevation which rises suddenly towards the W., affording delightful sites for residences. It is handsomely laid out with streets of convenient breadth, usually intersecting each other at right angles. Main street, the principal thoroughfare and seat of business, is a broad straight avenue, nearly two miles in length, and beautifully shaded. On it are several of the churches, the banks, court house, city hall, and the largest hotels. On the E. side of the southern part of this street, is a spacious green, fronting which are two handsome churches, and a third, the Old South church, stands within the enclosure. The town is well built, principally of brick, and contains some of the finest residences in New England.

Among the institutions may be mentioned the American Antiquarian Society, founded in 1812, by the munificence of the late Isaiah Thomas, L.L.D., the editor of the first folio Bible published in the United States. The hall consists of a centre building, about 50 feet by 40, adorned with a neat Doric portico and two wings, each 28 feet long, and 21 wide. In it is deposited the society's library, of above 12,000 volumes, an extensive cabinet of antiquities, and numerous specimens of early printing. The State Lunatic Asylum, established here in 1832, occupies an elevation E. of the city. It comprises several buildings, the principal of which is 76 feet long, 40 wide, and 4 stories high, with two wings, each 96 feet by 36, and 3 stories high. Other wings are joined to these, the whole forming a complete square, enclosed by spacious and beautifully ornamented grounds. This institution is considered as one of the best in the country for the treatment of lunatics. Of the 2306 insane persons admitted during 13 years, over 1000 were discharged cured. The number of inmates, November, 1851, was 466, of whom 208 were paupers. The Roman Catholic College of the Holy Cross, formerly located here, was destroyed by fire, July 14th, 1852. On a commanding elevation, about three-fourths of a mile from the centre of the town, stands the Orcas Institute, a seminary of a high character for young ladies. The building, an elegant structure, is in a peculiar and striking style of architecture, and surrounded by delightful rural scenery. The public schools of Worcester are usually referred to as the model schools of New England. The citizens of this town were among the first to adopt what is commonly known as the graded system, comprising high-schools, grammar, intermediate, and primary schools. In the high-schools of Worcester, the pupils are instructed in all the branches usually pursued in colleges. The newspaper press comprises about 12 publications, 2 or 3 of which are dailies.

The manufactures of Worcester are various and extensive. Among the leading articles produced are cotton and woollen goods, carpeting, hollow-ware, castings, pistols, wire, railroad cars, agricultural implements, tin ware, sash and door blinds, paper, saddles, harness, trunks, locks, sieves, card presses, musical instruments, mechanics' tools, plated ware. One establishment for the manufacture of wire, turns out about 500 tons of the various sizes, including card, reed, cotton-flyer, annealed, broom, buckle, and spring wire, also all kinds of round, flat, or oval, adapted to various machine purposes. The telegraph wire manufactured at this establishment is made from foreign extra-refined iron, and is of a very superior quality. At the extensive factory of Messrs. Allen & Thurber, about 100 men are employed in the manufacture of pistols, each of which goes through some 25 hands before it is finished. About 15,000 pistols are turned out annually. The commercial facilities of Worcester have been immensely increased by the construction of the numerous railways conducting to it. Previous to the opening of the Boston and Worcester railroad, the cost of transporting merchandise from the seaboard to Worcester was $10 a ton, and the time required two days. Since that event, freight has been reduced to $2 a ton, and the time to less than three hours.

The financial institutions of Worcester are five banks, the condition of which, September, 1852, was as follows:—Amount of circulation, $645,832; Amount of specie, $59,787.20; proportion of circulation to one dollar of specie, $10.69.9; amount of circulation and deposits, $996,162.46; proportion of circulation and deposits to one dollar of specie, $16.62.9. The city has also a savings' institution. The assessed value of real and personal property in Worcester, since the year 1800, has been as follows, viz. in 1800, $296,542; 1810, $1,476,383; 1820, $2,015,750; 1830, $2,747,800; 1840, $4,288,950; '45, $6,004,050; '49, $10,750,282; '51, $11,925,055, and in '52, $12,575,566. The assessment of 1852 shows an increase over the previous year of $650,511. The rate of taxation in 1851 was $6.75 on $1000; in 1852 it was $6.50, being a reduction of 25 cents on the thousand dollars. Stephen Sailsbury paid the heaviest tax, which amounted to $3830, and his property was assessed at $589,000. By the assessment of 1849, ninety-one persons in Worcester owned property each to the value of $20,000 and upwards, and 99 persons to the value of $10,000 and upwards. The amount of appropriations by the city for all purposes in 1851, was $75,500, and in 1852, $85,700. Worcester was settled in 1713, and incorporated a city in 1848. Its Indian name was Quinisigamond. Population in 1800, 2411; 1820, 2962; 1830, 4172; 1840, 7492; 1850, 17,059, and by a local census in 1853, 20,771.

WORCESTER, a post-village of Otsego co., New York, in Worcester township, about 55 miles W. by S. from Albany. It contains several stores and mills. Population of the township, 2047.

WORCESTER, a post-township of Montgomery co., Pennsylvania, about 7 miles N. from Norristown. Population, 1453.

WORCESTER, a village in McDonough co., Illinois, 90 miles N. W. from Springfield.

WORMLEYSBURG, a post-village of Cumberland co., Pa., on the W. bank of Susquehanna river, about 1 mile S. W. from Harrisburg.

WORTH, a new county in the N. part of Iowa, bordering on Minnesota, has an area of about 430 square miles. It is drained by Lime and Shell Rock creeks, branches of English river, which rise in two small lakes in the northern part of the county. It is not included in the census of 1850. County seat not located.

WORTH, a township forming the S. E. extremity of Jefferson co., Pennsylvania. Population, 326.

WORTH, a post-township of Mercer co., Pennsylvania. Population, 1015.

WORTH, a post-office of De Kalb co., Ala.

WORTH, a post-office of Marion co., Ark.

WORTH, a post-office of Perry co., Ohio.

WORTH, a post-office of Tuscola co., Mich.

WORTH, a post-office of Dubois co., Ind.

WORTH, a township in Hancock co., Indiana. Population, 718.

WORTH, a post-office of Cook co., Illinois.

WORTHIN, a post-office of Henry co., Ind.

WORTHINGTON, a post-township of Hampshire co., Massachusetts, 100 miles W. from Boston. Population, 1134.

WORTHINGTON, a post-village of Armstrong county, Pennsylvania, 6 miles W. from Kittanning, is situated in an iron region, and has 1 or 2 furnaces in the vicinity.

WORTHINGTON, a post-village of Marion co., Virginia. Population, about 200.

WORTHINGTON, a post-village in Muhlenburg co., Kentucky, near Greene river, 155 miles S. W. by W. from Frankfort.

WORTHINGTON, a neat post-village in Franklin co., Ohio, on the Columbus and Worthington plank-road, 9 miles N. from Columbus. It contains 3 churches, an academy, and a seminary for girls. Population about 500.

WORTHINGTON, a township in Richland co., Ohio, 14 miles S. E. of Mansfield. Population, 2003.

WORTHINGTON, post-office of Greene co., Ind.

WORTHINGTON, a post-office of Jackson co., Illinois.

WORTHVILLE, a post-village of Johnson co., Indiana, on the railroad from Madison to Indianapolis, 12 miles S. S. E. from the latter.

WORTHVILLE, a post-office of Jefferson co., New York.

WORTHVILLE, a post-village of Butts co., Georgia.

WORTHVILLE, a post-office of Carroll co., Ky.

WRANGLEBOROUGH, a village, New Jersey. See UNIONVILLE.

WRENTHAM, a post-township in Norfolk co., Massachusetts, intersected by the Norfolk County railroad, 23 miles S. W. by S. from Boston. It is drained by branches of Charles and Neponset river, which afford excellent water-power. The manufactories consist chiefly of straw bonnets, and cotton goods. The principal villages are Eagle Factory village, Sheppardsville, one near the centre of the township, and another in the N. part. Population, in 1840, 2915; in 1850, 3037.

WRIGHT, a county in the S. part of Missouri, contains about 950 square miles. The Gasconade river and the Osage fork of the same rise in the county and flow northward; it is also drained by the sources of the James, Bryant's, Finley, and North forks of White river. The surface is uneven; a portion of the soil is productive. Indian corn, wheat, oats, cattle, pork, and butter are the staples. Peltry and beeswax are among the exports. In 1850 this county produced 194,695 bushels of corn; 32,730 of oats; 8631 of wheat, and 67,265 pounds of butter. It contained 1 church. The county is amply supplied with water-power. Lead, copper, and iron are said to be abundant in the vicinity of Hartsville, the county seat. Population, 3387; of whom 3305 were free, and 82, slaves.

WRIGHT, a new county towards the N. part of Iowa, has an area of 576 square miles. It is intersected in the E. by the Iowa river, and in the W. by Boone river. This county is not included in the census of 1850. Named in honor of Silas Wright, of New York. County seat not located.

WRIGHT, a township in Guernsey co., Ohio. Population, 1030.

WRIGHT, a township forming the S. E. extremity of Hillsdale co., Michigan, intersected by St. Joseph's river of the Maumee. Population, 574.

WRIGHT, a post-township in the E. part of Ottawa co., Michigan. Population, 521.

WRIGHT, a post-township in Greene co., Indiana. Population, 793.

WRIGHT'S BLUFF, a post-office of Sumter district, South Carolina.

WRIGHTSBOROUGH, a small post-village of Columbia co., Georgia, on Town creek, 40 miles W. from Augusta.

WRIGHT'S CORNERS, a post-village of Niagara co., New York, about 60 miles W. from Rochester.

WRIGHTSTOWN, a post-village of Burlington co., New Jersey, about 20 miles S. S. E. from Trenton.

WRIGHTSTOWN, a post-township in Bucks co., Pennsylvania, about 9 miles S. E. from Doylestown. Population, 821.

WRIGHTSTOWN, a post-township forming S. E. extremity of Brown co., Wisconsin.

WRIGHTSVILLE, a post-office of Clinton co., New York.

WRIGHTSVILLE, a village of Monmouth co., New Jersey, about 5 miles from Allentown.

WRIGHTSVILLE, a post-village of Warren co., Pennsylvania, on the Little Brokenstraw creek, 225 miles N. W. from Harrisburg. Population, about 400.

WRIGHTSVILLE, a flourishing post-borough of Hellam township, York county, Pennsylvania, on the right (W.) bank of the Susquehanna, opposite Columbia, and 11 miles E. N. E. from York. A branch railroad extends from this place to York. A fine bridge, about 1 mile long, upon which the railroad is laid, crosses the river at this point. A good turnpike leads to York and Chambersburg; and the Tidewater canal extends from Wrightsville to Havre de Grace, Maryland. About 10,000,000 feet of lumber are annually brought here and seasoned for the Philadelphia market, and for other towns along the railroad. Population in 1850, 1810.

WRIGHTSVILLE, a post-office of Pontotoc co., Mississippi.

WRIGHTSVILLE, a small village of Monroe co., Tennessee.

WRIGHTSVILLE, a post-village of Roane co., Tennessee, 154 miles E. by S. from Nashville.

WURTEMBERG, a post-office of Lawrence co., Pennsylvania.

WURTSBOROUGH, a post-village of Sullivan county, New York, on the Delaware and Hudson canal, about 90 miles S. S. W. from Albany. It has several churches and stores.

WYACONDA, a small river, which rises in the S. part of Iowa, and flowing S. E. through Scotland, Clark, and Lewis counties of Missouri, enters the Mississippi at La Grange.

WYACONDA, a post-office of Scotland co., Mo.

WYACONDA CREEK, of Missouri, flows eastward through Carroll county, into the Missouri.

WYALUSING creek, of Pennsylvania, enters the N. branch of the Susquehanna in Bradford county.

WYALUSING, a post-township of Bradford co., Pennsylvania, about 10 miles S. W. from Towanda. Population, 1275.

WYALUSING, a post-village of Grant county, Wisconsin, on the Mississippi river, about 100 miles W. from Madison, has an excellent steamboat landing, and contains 1 hotel and 2 stores.

WYANDOT, a county in the N. W. central part of Ohio, contains about 400 square miles. It is intersected by the Sandusky river, and also drained by the Tymochte and Brokensword creeks. The surface is level. About one-third of the county is prairie, and the remainder well timbered. The soil is uniformly productive, and adapted to corn or grass. Many cattle and sheep are raised. In 1850 it produced 349,094 bushels of corn; 75,447 of wheat, and 10,165 tons of hay. It is intersected by the Mad River and Lake Erie railroad, and by the Ohio and Indiana railroad, the latter of which is not finished. The Findlay Branch railroad also terminates in this county. This part of the state was possessed by the Wyandot Indians, from whom the name is derived. Formed in 1845, by a division of Hardin, Crawford, Hancock, and Marion counties. Capital, Upper Sandusky. Population, 11,292.

WYANDOT, an unorganized county in the N. part of Michigan: area estimated at 576 square miles. It is traversed from S. to N.

by Cheboygan river, an affluent of Lake Huron, and contains Long and Crooked lakes. The census of 1850 furnishes no returns for this county.

WYANDOT, a post-village of Wyandot co., Ohio, about 50 miles N. from Columbus.

WYANDOT, a post-office of Tippecanoe co., Indiana.

WYATT, a post-village of Lafayette co., Mississippi, on the Tallahatchie river, 14 miles N. N. W. from Oxford. Wyatt is the largest place in the county except Oxford, and has an active business. Cotton is shipped here in steamboats during high water.

WYE MILLS, a post-office of Talbot co., Maryland.

WYE river, of Maryland, an inlet of Chesapeake bay, forming part of the boundary between Queen Anne and Talbot counties.

WYKERTOWN, a post-office of Sussex co., New Jersey.

WYLESBURG, a small post-village of Charlotte co., Virginia, 18 miles S. from Marysville.

WYNANT, a post-office of Shelby co., Ohio.

WYNANT'S KILL, of Rensselaer co., New York, falls into the Hudson 2 miles below Troy.

WYNANTSKILL, a post-village of Rensselaer co., New York, on a creek of the same name, 7 miles E. N. E. from Albany.

WYNANTSVILLE, a post-office of Rensselaer co., New York.

WYNCOOP CREEK, a post-office of Chemung co., New York.

WYNN, a post-office of Franklin co., Ind.

WYOCENA, a post-township in the central part of Columbia co., Wisconsin. Pop., 406.

WYOCENA, a post-village in the above township, 30 miles N. from Madison. Pop., 150.

WYOMING, a county in the W. part of New York, has an area of about 600 square miles. It is bounded on the S. E. by the Genesee river, and drained by the head waters of Allen's, Tonnewanda, Buffalo, and Cattaraugus creeks, which turn numerous grist and saw mills. The surface is undulating; the soil is generally a moist sandy or gravelly loam, adapted to either grain or grass. Wheat, oats, wool, and grass are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 331,639 bushels of wheat; 543,977 of oats; 75,067 tons of hay; 1,200,297 pounds of butter, and 380,472 of wool. There were 29 flour and grist mills, 42 saw mills, 5 carding and fulling mills, 10 machine shops, 6 iron foundries, 6 woollen factories, and 15 pot and pearlsh factories. It contained 69 churches, 2 newspaper offices; 11,027 pupils attending public schools, and 396 attending academies or other schools. It is intersected by the Genesee Valley canal, and by the Buffalo and New York City railroad; and in part by the Batavia and Attica branch of the Central, and the Attica and Alleghany railroad. Organized in 1851, having been formed from part of Genesee county. Capital, Warsaw. Population, 31,981.

WYOMING, a county in the N. E. part of Pennsylvania, has an area of 400 square miles. It is intersected by the North Branch of Susquehanna, and also drained by the Mahoopeny, Bowman's, and Tunkhannock creeks. The surface is broken by spurs of the Alleghany mountains, forming bluffs along the river near 1000 feet in height. The most considerable ridges are called Mahoopeny, Bowman's, Tunkhannock, and Knob mountains. The soil in general is moderately fertile. Indian corn, wheat, oats, hay, and butter are the staples. Lumber is an important article of export. In 1850 this county produced 116,349 bushels of corn; 62,734 of wheat; 88,632 of oats; 9788 tons of hay, and 211,215 pounds of butter. There were 42 saw mills, 12 flour and grist mills, 4 manufactories of agricultural implements, and 1 of coaches. It contained 8 churches, 2 newspaper offices, and 2440 pupils attending public schools. It is traversed by the North Branch canal, by the Lackawanna and Western railroad, and by the route of the North Pennsylvania railroad. Formed in 1842, out of part of Luzerne, and named from the Wyoming valley. Capital, Tunkhannock. Population, 10,655.

WYOMING, a new county in the S. W. part of Virginia, has an area of 880 square miles. The Guyandotte river and the Tug fork of Sandy river rise in the county, and flow westward, the latter forming its boundary on the S. W. The surface is mountainous, and mostly covered with forests. A ridge, called the Great Flat-top mountain, extends along the south-eastern border. The soil is said to be good, and adapted to wool-growing. Indian corn, oats, butter, and peltry are the staples. In 1850 it produced 47,506 bushels of corn; 8765 of oats, and 17,197 pounds of butter. It contained 2 churches. Wyoming was formed out of part of Logan county. Capital, Wyoming Court House. Population, 1645; of whom 1584 were free, and 61, slaves.

WYOMING, a post-village of Middlebury township, Wyoming co., New York, on Allen's creek, 44 miles E. from Buffalo. It contains 3 churches, a flourishing academy, 4 stores, a flouring mill, a furnace, and a water-cure establishment.

WYOMING, a thriving post-village of Luzerne co., Pennsylvania, on the right bank of the Susquehanna river, 4 miles above Wilkesbarre, is situated in the fertile valley of its own name. Several new buildings have been erected within a few years.

WYOMING, a post-village in Dinwiddie co., Virginia, near Nottaway river, 50 miles S. by W. from Richmond.

WYOMING, a small village of Bath co., Kentucky, on Licking river, at the mouth of Slate creek, has 2 stores and 2 mills.

WYOMING, a township in the W. part of Kent co., Michigan, partly intersected by Grand river. Population, 543.

WYOMING, a small village of White co., Indiana, on Tippecanoe river, about 12 miles N. by E. from Monticello.

WYOMING, a township in Lake co., Illinois. Population, 808.

WYOMING, a post-village in Stark co., Illinois, on Spoon river, 95 miles N. by W. from Springfield.

WYOMING, a village in Muscatine co., Iowa, on Mississippi river, 40 miles S. E. by E. from Iowa City.

WYOMING, a post-township in the N. part of Iowa co., Wisconsin. Population, 206.

WYOMING COURT HOUSE, capital of Wyoming co., Virginia, about 250 miles W. from Richmond. A small place, of recent origin.

WYOMING MOUNTAIN, Pennsylvania, in Luzerne county, extends 15 or 20 miles along the S. E. bank of the Susquehanna. Its height is somewhat above 1000 feet.

WYOTA, Wisconsin. See WIOTA.

WYSOX, a post-township of Bradford co., Pennsylvania, about 3 miles N. E. from Towanda. Population, 1167.

WYSOX, a township in the S. E. part of Carroll co., Illinois. Population, 636.

WYTHE, a county in the S. S. W. part of Virginia, has an area estimated at 520 square miles. It is intersected by the Kanawha or New river, and also drained by Reed, Cripple, and Walker's creeks, and by the sources of Holston river. The greater part of the county is an elevated valley or plateau between the Iron mountain on the S. and Walker's mountain on the N. W. Walker's mountain is a sublime feature in the scenery of this region. The soil is good, well watered, and particularly adapted to grazing. In 1850 this county produced 280,652 bushels of Indian corn; 72,738 of wheat; 155,207 of oats; and 213,010 pounds of butter. There were 3 iron furnaces, 2 iron forges, 2 lead furnaces, 1 nail factory, and 3 tanneries. It contained 30 churches; 294 pupils attending public schools, and 200 attending academies or other schools. The most abundant minerals are iron ore, lead, stone coal, limestone, and gypsum. Some silver is found in connection with the lead. The county is intersected by the Virginia and Tennessee railroad. Formed in 1790, and named in honor of George Wythe, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. Capital, Wytbeville. Population, 12,024; of whom 9839 were free, and 2185, slaves.

WYTHE, a post-office of Hancock co., Ill.

WYTHEVILLE, formerly EVANSHAM, a neat and thriving post-village, capital of Wythe co., Virginia, on the main road from Baltimore to Nashville, 248 miles W. S. W. from Richmond. It is situated in an elevated valley or plateau, among the Alleghany mountains. It has considerable trade, and contains 5 or 6 churches, 1 bank, with a capital of $130,000, and 2 newspaper offices. The Virginia and Tennessee railroad passes through the place. Pop., estimated at 900.

X

XENIA, a handsome and flourishing town of Xenia township, capital of Greene county, Ohio, on the Little Miami railroad, 65 miles N. E. from Cincinnati, and 61 miles W. S. W. from Columbus. The town is regularly planned and well built, and contains many handsome residences. The court house is one of the finest buildings of its class in the state. The surrounding country has an undulating surface, and a fertile soil, and is liberally supplied with water-power, and with excellent limestone. Xenia has an active trade, and the prosperity of the place has been much augmented by the construction of railroads in various directions. Besides the line above named, the following railroads connect at this place;—the Columbus and Xenia; the Lebanon and Xenia; and the Delaware and Xenia; the last two being unfinished. The Dayton, Xenia and Belpre railroad will connect it with Dayton and Chillicothe. It contains several churches, 1 bank, and 2 newspaper offices. Population of the township in 1850, 7055; of the village in 1853, estimated at 3500.

XENIA, a small post-village of Clay co., Ill.

Y

YADKIN, a large river of North Carolina, rises at the foot of the Blue Ridge in Caldwell county. Its direction at first is E. N. E. until it approaches the E. border of Surry county, below which it flows in a south south-easterly course, and entering the State of South Carolina about 10 miles above Cheraw, takes the name of the Great Pedee, (which see.) The Yadkin is a beautiful and rapid stream, and rolls down a large volume of water, but the current is obstructed by numerous shoals and rocky rapids. The Narrows of the Yadkin, near the mouth of Uharee river, is one of the most remarkable natural objects in the state, and worthy of the attention of tourists. The waters, which a little above were spread over a channel from 400 to 600 yards wide, are here compressed within a mountain gorge, which varies from 60 to 100 feet in width, and is about 1 mile long, and 40 or 50 feet deep. Gold mines are worked in several places along this river.

YADKIN, a county in the N. W. part of North Carolina: area estimated at 310 square miles. The Yadkin river, from which it derives its name, forms its northern boundary, and Deep creek flows through it. The surface is diversified; the soil produces Indian corn, oats, and pastures. Iron ore is found in the county. formed from Surrey in 1850-51. Capital, Wilson.

YALE, a post-office of Jasper co., Illinois.

YALLOBUSHA, or YALABUSHA, a river in the N. part of Mississippi, rising in Chickasaw county, flows first nearly westward and then south-westerly to Leflore, on the W. border of Carroll county, where it unites with the Tallahatchee river to form the Yazoo. During high water, i. e. in winter, it is navigable by steamboats to Grenada, a distance of 90 miles.

YALLOBUSHA, a county in the N. central part of Mississippi, has an area of about 940 square miles. It is intersected by the navigable river Yallobusha, from which it derives its name, and also drained by its affluent the Loosascoona. The surface is nearly level; the soil is very fertile, especially in the swamp lands near the W. border. Cotton and Indian corn are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 14,314 bales of cotton; 640,775 bushels of corn; 59,335 of oats, and 65,824 of beans and peas, the greatest quantity produced by any county in the United States except Hinds county, Mississippi. It contained 38 churches, 2 newspaper offices, and 1137 pupils attending academies and other schools. It is intersected by the Mississippi Central railroad, now in progress. This county is a part of the tract called the Chickasaw Cession, which was ceded by the Indians to the state, and settled by the whites about 1836. Capital, Coffeerville. Population, 17,258; of whom 8661 were free, and 8597, slaves.

YAM HILL, a county in the N. W. part of Oregon, has an area estimated at above 750 square miles. It is bounded on the E. by the Willamette river, and on the W. by the Pacific ocean. The soil in the E. part is fertile. Wheat, oats, wool, butter and cheese are the staples. In 1850 the county produced 22,452 bushels of wheat; 5988 of oats; 33,101 pounds of wool; 34,505 of butter, and 9785 of cheese. The quantity of wool was the greatest produced by any county of the state. There were 138 pupils attending academies or other schools. Population, 1513.

YANCEY, a county in the W. part of North Carolina, bordering on Tennessee: area estimated at 380 square miles. It is intersected by Nolachucky river. The county is a mountainous region between the Blue Ridge on the E., and the Iron mountain on the N. W. Black mountain, near the S. E. border, is ascertained to be 6476 feet above the sea. The soil of the lower parts is fertile. Indian corn, grass, and potatoes are the staples. In 1850 it produced 284,016 bushels of corn; 122,544 of oats, and 87,542 pounds of butter. There were 4 saw mills, 2 tanneries, and 1 cabinet-ware manufactory. It contained 28 churches, and 1600 pupils attending public schools. Capital, Burnsville. Population, 8205; of whom 7859 were free, and 346, slaves.

YANCEY'S MILLS, a post-office of Albemarle co., Virginia.

YANCEYVILLE, a thriving post-village, capital of Caswell county, North Carolina, on County Line creek, 75 miles N. W. from Raleigh. It contains, besides the county buildings, a bank and several stores. Population in 1851, about 600.

YANHANNA, a post-office of Georgetown district, South Carolina.

YANKEE GROVE, a post-office of Cedar co., Ia.

YANKEE HILL, a post-office of Menard co., Illinois.

YANKEE JIM'S, a post-village of Placer co., California. Population in 1853, about 850.

YANKEE SETTLEMENT, a small post-village of Delaware co., Iowa, about 80 miles N. by E. from Iowa City.

YANKEE SPRINGS, a post-township in the W. part of Barry co., Michigan. Pop., 292.

YANKEETOWN, a post-office of Darke co., O.

YANTIC river, of New London co., Connecticut, unites with the Shetucket at Norwich to form the Thames. It affords valuable water-power.

YANTIC, a flourishing manufacturing post-village of New London co., Connecticut, on the Yantic river, at the falls, and on the New London, Willimantic, and Palmer railroad, 16 miles N. from New London.

YAPHANK, a post-office of Suffolk co., N. Y.

YAQUIMA, or YAKIMA river, in the W. central part of Washington Territory, rises on the slope of the Cascade Range, and falls into the Columbia river, about 15 miles above the mouth of Lewis river.

YAQUIMA BAY, on the Pacific, in Polk co., Oregon.

YARBOROUGH, a post-office of Bossier parish, Louisiana.

YARDLEYSVILLE, a post-village of Bucks co., Pennsylvania, on the Delaware river, 128 miles E. from Harrisburg, contains several stores.

YARDVILLE, a post-office of Mercer co., N. J.

YARMOUTH, a post-township of Cumberland co., Maine.

YARMOUTH, a post-township in Barnstable county, Massachusetts, extends across Cape Cod, 70 miles S. E. from Boston. The inhabitants are largely engaged in the manufacture of salt and in the fisheries. In 1851, 14 vessels and 169 men and boys were employed in the mackerel fishery. The quantity of mackerel inspected during the year, was 3235 barrels. Population, 2595.

YARMOUTH PORT, a post-village in the above township, situated on the N. shore of the peninsula. It contains 2 or 3 churches, a bank, and a newspaper office.

YATES, a county in the W. central part of New York, has an area of about 320 square miles. It is bounded on the E. by Seneca lake, and partly on the W. by Canandaigua and Crooked lakes, the latter of which extends into it, and is principally drained by the outlet of Crooked lake and Flint creek, which afford valuable water-power. The surface is undulating or hilly. The soil is generally a fertile sandy loam. Wheat, Indian corn, oats, and grass are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 483,159 bushels of wheat; 177,636 of corn; 221,021 of oats; 34,673 tons of hay, and 537,634 pounds of butter. There were 18 flour and grist mills, 28 saw mills, 5 iron foundries, 4 coach factories, 2 distilleries, 1 linseed-oil factory, and 8 tanneries. It contained 44 churches, 3 newspaper offices, 6607 pupils attending public schools, and 115 attending academies or other schools. It is traversed by the Canandaigua and Elmira railroad, and in part by the Crooked Lake canal. Organized in 1823, having been formed from part of Ontario county, and named in honor of Governor Yates, of New York. Capital, Penn Yan. Population, 20,590.

YATES, a post-township forming the N. W. extremity of Orleans co., New York, on Lake Ontario. Population, 2242.

YATESVILLE, a post-office of Yates co., N. Y.

YATESVILLE, a post-office of Lunenburg co., Virginia.

YATON, or YATTON, a post-village in Washington co., Iowa, near English river, 16 miles S. by W. from Iowa City.

YATTAYABBEE CREEK, of Henry co., Alabama, flows into the Chattahoochee river.

YAZOO river, of Mississippi, is formed by the Tallahatchie and Yallobusha rivers, which unite at Leflore, in Carroll county. It then pursues a very serpentine course, the general direction of which is S. by W., and empties itself into the Mississippi, 12 miles above Vicksburg. The length of the main stream is stated to be about 290 miles. It is a deep, narrow, and sluggish stream, traversing an alluvial plain of extreme fertility, which is mostly occupied by plantations of cotton. It is probably not surpassed in navigable qualities by any river of equal size. Steamboats navigate it from its mouth to its origin in all stages of water, and in all seasons of the year. The Tallahatchie, the largest branch, is perhaps as long as the Yazoo itself, and is navigable by steamboats more than 100 miles.

Yazoo, a county in the W. central part of Mississippi, has an area of about 760 square miles. The Big Black river forms its boundary on the S. E., and the Yazoo river, from which the name is derived, bounds it on the W. and N. W. The surface is a level, alluvial plain, the soil of which is exceedingly fertile. Cotton and Indian corn are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 22,052 bales of cotton; 556,505 bushels of corn, and 128,272 of sweet potatoes. It contained 14 churches, 543 pupils attending public schools, and 84 attending academies or other schools. The Yazoo river is navigable by steamboats at all seasons, with few exceptions, through its whole extent. The Mississippi Central railroad passes near the E. border. Capital, Yazoo City. Population, 14,418, of whom 4069 were free, and 10,349, slaves.

YAZOO CITY, a flourishing post-village, capital of Yazoo county, Mississippi, on the river of the same name, 50 miles N. N. W. from Jackson. It is situated in a rich cotton growing region, and has considerable business. About 50,000 bales of cotton are received here annually and shipped to New Orleans by steamboats, which navigate the river in all stages of water. The village contains several churches and 2 newspaper offices. Population in 1853, about 2000.

YEGUA CREEK, of Texas, an affluent of the Brazos, is formed by three branches, the First, Second, and Third Yegua, which unite on the N. boundary of Washington county. It follows that boundary until it enters the river, about 5 miles N. E. from Independence.

YELL, a county situated in the W. central part of Arkansas, contains 970 square miles. It is intersected by the Fourche La Pave and Petit Jean rivers, and the Arkansas washes its N. E. border. The surface is diversified; the soil mostly productive. Wheat, Indian corn, cotton, and cattle are the staples. In 1850 there were raised 127,335 bushels of corn; 5208 of wheat, and 68,575 pounds of butter. It contained 11 cotton-ginning mills, 2 saw mills, and 4 tanneries. There were 200 pupils attending public schools. Magazine mountain, of this county, is estimated at 2000 feet high. Capital, Danville. Pop., 3341, of whom 2917 were free, and 424, slaves.

YELL county, Iowa. SEE WEBSTER.

YELLOW BRANCH, a post-office of Campbell co., Virginia.

YELLOW BREECHES CREEK, in the S. part of Pennsylvania, forms part of the boundary between York and Cumberland counties, and enters the Susquehanna river about 4 miles below Harrisburg. It affords permanent motive-power.

YELLOW BUD, a post-office of Ross co., O.

YELLOW BUSH, a post-office of Chickasaw co., Mississippi.

YELLOW CREEK, of Pennsylvania, unites with Black Lick creek, in Indiana county.

YELLOW CREEK, of Alabama and Mississippi, flows south-westward and enters Luxapilla creek, in Lowndes county, Mississippi.

YELLOW CREEK, in the E. part of Ohio, flows through Jefferson county, and enters the Ohio river 2 or 3 miles below Wellsville.

YELLOW CREEK, of Missouri, rises in Sullivan county, and flowing southward enters Grand river from the left, on the W. border of Chariton county.

YELLOW CREEK, a post-office of Lumpkin co., Georgia.

YELLOW CREEK, a post-office of Tishomingo co. Mississippi.

YELLOW CREEK, a post-office of Knox co., Kentucky.

YELLOW CREEK, a township in the S. part of Columbiana co., Ohio, on the W. side of Ohio river, intersected by the Cleveland and Pittsburg railroad. Population, including Wellsville, 2359.

YELLOW CREEK, a post-office of Stephenson co., Illinois.

YELLOW CREEK, a small village of Chariton co., Missouri, about 85 miles N. W. from Jefferson City.

YELLOW CREEK, of Allomakee co., Iowa, falls into the Mississippi river.

YELLOW CREEK FURNACE, a post-office of Montgomery co., Tennessee.

YELLOW HEAD GROVE, a small post-village of Will co., Illinois.

YELLOW JACKET CREEK, of Troup county, Georgia, enters the Chattahoochee river, several miles W. from La Grange.

YELLOW LAKE, in Alexandria township, Jefferson co., New York, is about 3 miles long.

YELLOW MEDICINE RIVER, of Minnesota Territory, rises in about 44° 30' N. lat., and 96° 40' W. lon.; flowing at first easterly, and afterwards north-easterly, it falls into St. Peter's river, in about 44° 44' N. lat., and 95° 26' W. lon. Length, about 100 miles.

YELLOW MOUNTAIN, a post-office of Yancey co., North Carolina.

YELLOW RIVER, Georgia, a branch of the Ocmulgee, rises in Gwinnett county, and flowing southward, unites with the other branch a few miles S. from Covington.

YELLOW RIVER, of Wisconsin, rises in the N. part of the state, and flowing south-westward, falls into Chippewa river, near the middle of Chippewa county.

YELLOW RIVER, a post-office of Gwinnett co., Georgia, 21 miles E. N. E. from Atlanta.

YELLOW RIVER, a post-office of Marshall co., Indiana.

YELLOW SPRING, a post-office of Blair co., Pennsylvania.

YELLOW SPRING, a post-office of Hampshire co., Virginia.

YELLOW SPRING, a post-office of Johnson co., Indiana.

YELLOW SPRINGS, Pennsylvania. SEE CHESTER SPRINGS.

YELLOW SPRINGS, a post-office of Claiborne co., Tennessee, 233 miles from Nashville.

YELLOW SPRINGS, a post-village of Greene county, Ohio, on the Little Miami railroad, 74 miles N. E. from Cincinnati. Near the village is a chalybeate spring, which discharges about 100 gallons per minute. Valuable limestone quarries are worked in the vicinity. Population, about 250.

YELLOW SPRINGS, a post-village of Des Moines co., Iowa, 15 miles N. by W. from Burlington.

YELLOWSTONE river, the largest, though not the longest affluent of the Missouri, has its source in Sublette's lake, in about 43° 40'

N. lat., and 110° W. lon. Flowing in a general north-easterly course, it falls into the Missouri, in about 48° 5' N. lat., and 104° W. lon. At its mouth it is about 800 yds wide. Length, estimated at 1000 miles, for 700 or 800 miles of which it is said to be navigable.

YELLOWSTONE, a post-office of Paulding co., Georgia.

YELLOWSTONE, a post-office of Lafayette co., Wisconsin.

YELLOWSTONE, a post-office of Hawkins co., Tennessee.

YELLOW-WATER, a small river of Alabama and Florida, rises in Covington county, Alabama, and flows south-westward through Florida into Pensacola bay.

YELLVILLE, a small post-village, capital of Marion co., Arkansas, about 125 miles N. by W. from Little Rock.

YELVINGTON, a post-village in Daviess co., Ky., 156 miles W. S. W. from Frankfort.

YNOUSKI, a post-office of Kalamazoo co., Michigan.

YOCK-NA-PA-TAL-FA, a creek of Mississippi, rising near the E. border of Lafayette county, flows westward and enters the Tallahatchie river, near the S. boundary of Panola county.

YOCONY, a post-office of Itawamba co., Mississippi.

YOCUM STATION, a post-office of Lee co., Va.

YOCUMTOWN, a post-village of York co., Pennsylvania, 21 miles S. from Harrisburg.

YOHOGANY, a post-office of Westmoreland co., Pennsylvania.

YOLO, a county towards the N. W. part of California, has an area estimated at above 1400 square miles. It is bounded on the E. by the Sacramento river, partly on the S. W. by Puta river, and on the W. by the Coast range of mountains, and is drained by Cache creek, which flows into Clear lake. The surface in the E. part is generally level, or but slightly uneven, and in the W. rough and mountainous. The soil in the level portions, especially in the valley of the Sacramento, is very fertile. Barley, potatoes, hay, wood, cattle, and horses are the staples. In 1852 it produced 126,076 bushels of barley; 11,950 of potatoes; 6238 tons of hay, and $19,370 worth of wood. There were 9116 beef cattle, and 1808 horses. Gold is found in this county, but is not very abundant: it is principally imbedded in quartz rock. The Sacramento river is navigable along the E. border. Capital, Fremont. Population, 1307.

YONCALLA, a post-office of Umpqua co., Oregon.

YONGUESVILLE, a post-office of Fairfield district, South Carolina.

YONKERS, a thriving post-village in Yonker's township, Westchester county, New York, on the E. bank of Hudson river, and on the Hudson river railroad, 17 miles N. by E. from New York. It contains churches of 4 or 5 denominations, several seminaries, a good hotel, and numerous stores and factories. It has several landings for steamboats and vessels sailing on the river. Many merchants and others engaged in New York have fine country seats in the village and vicinity. Population in 1853, estimated at 4000. Population of the township in 1850, 4160.

YORK, a county forming the S. W. extremity of Maine, has an area of about 820 square miles. It is bounded on the N. by the Saco and Ossipee rivers, on the S. E. by the Atlantic ocean, and the Salmon Falls river runs along its S. W. border, separating it from New Hampshire. The seacoast has many good harbors, and ship building is carried on to some extent. This county has several streams, which afford valuable water-power. The surface is rough and uneven, and the soil on the seacoast rocky, but in some portions of the interior it is more fertile. Indian corn, potatoes, wool, and grass are the staples. In 1850 the county produced 227,046 bushels of corn; 511,773 of potatoes, (the greatest quantity produced in any county in the state;) 78,559 tons of hay; 1,058,704 pounds of butter, and 75,571 of wool. There were 4 manufactories of cotton, 11 of woollen, 10 of shingles, 34 of boots and shoes, and 1 of wooden ware, 3 foundries, 2 machine shops, 62 saw and planing mills, 21 grist mills, 14 ship-yards, and 31 tanneries. It contained 134 churches, 4 newspaper offices, 20,099 pupils attending public schools, and 610 attending academies or other schools. The county is intersected by the Portland, Saco, and Portsmouth railroad, and by the route of the York and Cumberland railroad, unfinished. Named from York, a county in England. Capital, Alfred. Pop., 60,098.

YORK, a county in the S. S. E. part of Pennsylvania, bordering on Maryland, has an area of 925 square miles. The Susquehanna river forms its entire boundary on the N. E.; it is also intersected by Conewago and Codorus creeks, and bounded on the N. W. by Yellow Breeches creek. The surface is diversified by minor mountain ridges, called South mountain, Conewago, and Pigeon hills. The soil is generally good, and part of it is excellent, and highly cultivated. Grain, potatoes, hay, tobacco, cattle, horses, pork, and iron are the staples. In 1850 this county produced 578,828 bushels of wheat; 707,151 of corn; 582,817 of oats; 124,867 of potatoes; 50,760 tons of hay; 418,555 pounds of tobacco, (the greatest quantity produced by any one county of the state,) and 1,082,579 of butter. There were 115 flour and grist mills, 40 saw mills, 3 paper mills, 1 steel furnace, 9 iron foundries, 2 iron forges, 8 woollen factories, 1 cotton factory, 7 manufactories of farming implements, 45 distilleries, and 37 tanneries. It contained 98 churches, 7 newspaper offices, 10,582 pupils attending public schools, and 315 attending academies and other schools. The creeks furnish extensive motive-power. Quarries of limestone, slate, and sandstone, suitable for building, are worked. The Baltimore and Susquehanna railroad connects at York with the York and Cumberland railroad. The York and Wrightsville and the Hanover Branch railroads are included in the county. Organized in 1749. Capital, York. Population, 57,450.

YORK county, Virginia, is situated in the S. E. part, at the entrance of York river into Chesapeake bay, which together form its N. E. boundary. The area is 70 square miles. The surface is nearly level or undulating, and much of the soil is fertile. The staples are Indian corn, wheat, oats, and butter. In 1850 the county produced 148,335 bushels of corn; 27,650 of wheat; 25,951 of oats, and 14,118 pounds of butter. It contained 10 pupils attending a public school, and 140 attending academies or other schools. Large numbers of oysters are propagated in York river, and exported to the Northern cities. Capital, Yorktown. Pop., 4460, of whom 2279 were free, and 2181, slaves.

YORK, a district in the N. part of South Carolina, bordering on North Carolina, has an area of about 600 square miles. The Catawba forms its boundary on the E. and N. E., the Broad river on the W., and it is drained by Buffalo, Allison's, King's, and Fishing creeks. The surface is hilly or mountainous. The most remarkable elevation is King's mountain, on the northern border, near which a victory was gained by the American troops over the British in 1780. The soil in some parts is productive. Cotton, Indian corn, wheat, oats, and sweet potatoes are the staples. In 1850 this district produced 9986 bales of cotton; 690,447 bushels of corn; 64,755 of wheat; 106,315 of oats, and 39,536 of sweet potatoes. There were 10 grist and 3 saw and planing mills, 1 iron foundry, and 5 tanneries. It contained 26 churches, 1 newspaper office, 168 pupils attending public schools, and 260 attending academies and other schools. This district contains iron ore of fine quality and in great abundance; gold is found in one or two localities; a rich deposit of manganese has recently been discovered at the foot of King's mountain, and limestone underlies a considerable part of the surface. It is intersected by the Charlotte and South Carolina railroad, and in part by the King's Mountain railroad. Capital, Yorkville. Population, 19,533, of whom 11,426 were free, and 8007, slaves.

YORK, a post-village and port of entry of York county, Maine, is situated on the N. or left bank of York river, about 45 miles S. W. from Portland, and 9 miles N. E. from Portsmouth. It is regularly laid out with streets intersecting each other at right angles, and is the seat of considerable business. It has some commercial advantages, the harbor being commodious, and the river navigable to this point ($1\frac{1}{2}$ miles from the ocean) for vessels of 250 tons burthen. The shipping of the district, June 30th, 1852, amounted to an aggregate of 1503 $\frac{3}{4}$ tons enrolled and licensed. Of this, 1232 $\frac{3}{4}$ tons were employed in the coast trade, 172 $\frac{3}{4}$ tons in the cod fishery, and the remainder in the mackerel fishery. York was incorporated in 1653, and for many years was the capital of the county. Population, 2980.

YORK, a post-township of Livingston co., New York, on the Genesee river, 6 miles N. W. from Genesee. Population, 2785.

YORK, a wealthy post-borough of York township, capital of York county, Pennsylvania, on Codorus creek, 10 miles S. W. from the Susquehanna river, 28 miles S. S. E. from Harrisburg, 24 miles W. by S. from Lancaster, 48 miles N. from Baltimore, and 92 miles from Philadelphia, with all which towns it is connected by railways. Numerous turnpikes, extending in various directions, connect this place with the principal towns of Pennsylvania and Maryland. The Baltimore and Susquehanna railroad joins here with the York and Cumberland, and the York and Wrightsville railroad. The town is neatly and substantially built, and contains many fine residences and public buildings. The most remarkable among the latter is the court house, a large edifice of granite, resembling a Grecian temple: it cost $150,000. Several of the churches are adorned with lofty spires. It contains 2 banks, with an aggregate capital of $320,000. Four newspapers are published here. York is surrounded by a populous and fertile farming region, which is well watered and highly cultivated. The Codorus creek has been made navigable from this place to its mouth by a number of dams and side-cuts. In 1777 the Continental Congress met at this place, while Philadelphia was occupied by the British army. Laid out in 1741. Population of the borough in 1850, 6863; of the township, exclusive of the borough, 1960.

YORK, a post-village in Fayette co., Ga., 87 miles W. N. W. from Milledgeville.

YORK, a small post-village of Walker co. Ala.

YORK, a township forming the N. W. extremity of Athens co., Ohio, intersected by Hocking river. Population, 1391.

YORK, a township forming the S. E. extremity of Belmont co., Ohio, on the W. side of Ohio river. Population, 1312.

YORK, a township in Darke co., Ohio. Population, 499.

YORK, a township in the N. central part of Medina co., Ohio. Population, 1211.

YORK, a township forming the N. W. extremity of Morgan co., Ohio, on the W. side of Muskingum river. Population, 1207.

YORK, a township forming the S. E. extremity of Sandusky co., Ohio, intersected by the Sandusky and Indiana, and the Cleveland, Norwalk, and Toledo railroads. Population, 1811.

YORK, a township in the central part of Tuscarawas co., Ohio. Population, 1303.

YORK, a post-township forming the N. W. extremity of Union co., Ohio. Pop., 831.

YORK, a township in the S. E. part of Van Wert co., Ohio, intersected by the Little Auglaize river. Population, 375.

YORK, a post-township in the S. E. part of Washtenaw co., Michigan. Population, 1360.

YORK, a post-office of Gibson co., Indiana.

YORK, a township in Noble co., Indiana. Population, 565.

YORK, a township in Steuben co., Indiana. Population, 489.

YORK, a township in Switzerland co., Indiana. Population, 1523.

YORK, a small village of Clarke co., Ill.

YORK, a small post-village of Crawford co., Illinois, on the Wabash river, 142 miles E. S. E. from Springfield.

YORK, a post-office of Dane co., Wisconsin.

YORKA, a post-office of Leake co., Miss.

YORK CENTRE, a post-office of Du Page co., Illinois.

YORK HAVEN, a village of York co., Pennsylvania, on the Susquehanna river, about 16 miles below Harrisburg. It is situated at the foot of the Conewago falls or rapids, which afford some water-power.

YORK MILLS, a small village in the western part of Hunterdon co., New Jersey, about 10 miles W. N. W. from Flemington.

YORK NORTH RIDGE, a post-office of Sandusky co., Ohio.

YORK RIVER, the name given to an inlet or arm of the sea, in York co., Maine. Length, about 7 miles.

YORK RIVER, in the E. part of Virginia, is formed by the union of the Pamunkey and Mattaponi rivers, at the S. E. extremity of King William county, and flowing in a southeasterly direction, falls into Chesapeake bay nearly opposite Cape Charles. It is so broad through its whole course as to present rather the appearance of a bay than of a river. Its whole length is about 40 miles, and at its mouth it is probably not less than 3 miles in width. This river divides New Kent, James City, and York counties on the right, from King and Queen and Gloucester counties on the left.

YORKSHIRE, a post-village of Yorkshire township, Cattaraugus co., New York, on Cattaraugus creek, about 35 miles S. S. E. from Buffalo. It has several stores. Population of the township, 2010.

YORK SULPHUR SPRINGS, a small post-village of Adams co., Pennsylvania, 23 miles S. W. from Harrisburg. This is an agreeable summer retreat.

YORKTOWN, a post-township of Westchester co., New York, on Croton river, 45 miles N. by E. from New York. Pop., 2273.

YORKTOWN, a port of entry and capital of York county, Virginia, is situated on the right bank of York river, 11 miles from its mouth, and 70 miles E. S. E. from Richmond. It was settled in 1705, and was once flourishing. There are now about 40 houses. The shipping of the district, June 30th, 1852, amounted to an aggregate of 5981 $\frac{3}{4}$ tons enrolled and licensed, and all employed in the coast trade. During the year, 2 vessels of 246 $\frac{1}{2}$ tons burthen were built. This locality was the theatre of one of the most important events in American history—the surrender of Lord Cornwallis to General Washington, which occurred on the 19th October, 1781.

YORKTOWN, a post-office of De Witt co., Texas.

YORKTOWN, a thriving post-village of Delaware co., Indiana, at the junction of White river and Buck creek, and on the Bellefontaine and Indianapolis railroad, 52 miles N. E. from Indianapolis. It contains 2 churches and several mills.

YORKTOWN, a post-office of Bureau co., Ill.

YORKVILLE, a post-village of New York, on the Harlem railroad, 5 miles N. from the City Hall, is a suburb of New York city. It contains several churches and factories.

YORKVILLE, a thriving post-village, capital of York district, South Carolina, 86 miles N. from Columbia. It is the northern terminus of the King's mountain railroad, which connects with the Charlotte and South Carolina railroad at Chesterville. The surrounding country abounds in valuable minerals. Yorkville contains a court house, several churches, 1 or 2 academies, and a newspaper office.

YORKVILLE, a post-village of Pickens co., Alabama, 186 miles W. N. W. from Montgomery.

YORKVILLE, a thriving post-village of Gibson co., Tennessee, 145 miles W. from Nashville. It contains several stores.

YORKVILLE, a post-office of Kalamazoo co., Michigan.

YORKVILLE, a post-village of Dearborn co., Indiana, about 84 miles S. E. from Indianapolis. Population in 1851, 300.

YORKVILLE, a village of Kendall co., Illinois, on Fox river, opposite Bristol, and 52 miles S. W. from Chicago.

YORKVILLE, a post-village of Racine co., Wisconsin, on the plank-road between Racine City and Elkhorn, 10 miles W. from the former.

YOUGH GLADES, a post-office of Alleghany co., Maryland.

YOUGHIOGHENY, yôh'-ho-gá'ne, a river which rises in Preston co., Virginia, and flowing through Maryland into Pennsylvania, enters the Monongahela 18 miles S. E. from Pittsburgh. It is rendered navigable by dams from its mouth to the Ohiopyle falls, a distance of 60 miles by water. Here the river has a perpendicular descent of 20 feet. Entire length, about 150 miles.

YOUNG, a township in the S. part of Jefferson co., Pennsylvania.

YOUNG, a township of Indiana co., Penn sylvania, about 38 miles E. by N. from Pittsburg. Population, 1513.

YOUNG, a post-office of McDonough co., Ill.
YOUNG CANE, a post-office of Union co., Georgia, 172 miles N. by W. from Milledgeville.

YOUNGER's, a post-office of Boone co., Mo.

YOUNG HICKORY, a post-office of Muskingum co., Ohio.

YOUNG HICKORY, a small post-village of Will co., Illinois.

YOUNG HICKORY, a post-office of Washington co., Wisconsin.

YOUNGMANSTOWN, Pennsylvania. See MIFFLINSBURG.

YOUNG'S CROSS ROADS, a post-office of Granville co., North Carolina, 68 miles from Raleigh.

YOUNG'S POINT, a post-office of Madison parish, Louisiana.

YOUNG'S SETTLEMENT, a post-office of Bastrop co., Texas.

YOUNG'S STORE, a post-office of Laurens district, South Carolina.

YOUNGSTOWN, a post-village in Porter township, Niagara co., New York, near the mouth of Niagara river, about 30 miles N. W. by N. from Buffalo. It contains 2 churches, 5 stores, and 1 steam flouring mill. It possesses the advantages of a very fine natural harbor, (the mouth of Niagara river,) which is open at all seasons of the year. The several lines of steamboats on Lake Ontario touch here, and a considerable foreign and coasting trade is carried on at this point. It is the northern terminus of the Lake Ontario and Niagara Falls railroad. Population in 1853, 800.

YOUNGSTOWN, a post-village of Westmoreland co., Pennsylvania, 11 miles E. from Greensburg, has 2 churches. Population, estimated at 500.

YOUNGSTOWN, a small village of Adams co., Ohio, on the plank-road from Locust Grove to Ripley, 21 miles from the latter.

YOUNGSTOWN, a flourishing post-village of Youngstown township, Mahoning co., Ohio, is beautifully situated on the Mahoning river, and on the Pennsylvania and Ohio canal, 175 miles N. E. from Columbus. It is the largest village in the county, having several churches and a bank. Coal and iron ore are abundant in the vicinity. There are 3 iron furnaces and 1 or 2 rolling mills in operation here. The Cleveland and Mahoning railroad will pass through or near it. Population of the township, 2802.

YOUNGSVILLE, a post-office of Sullivan co., New York.

YOUNGSVILLE, a thriving post-village of Warren co., Pennsylvania, on the Brokenstraw creek, and on the route of the Sunbury and Erie railroad, 10 miles W. from Warren.

YOUNGSVILLE, a post-village in Tallapoosa co., Alabama, 50 miles N. E. from Montgomery.

YOUNGSVILLE, a post-office of Adams co., O.
1324

YOUNGWOMANSTOWN, a post-village of Clinton co., Pennsylvania, on the W. branch of Susquehanna river, 18 miles N. W. from Lock Haven, the county seat.

YOUNTSVILLE, a post-village of Montgomery co., Indiana, near Sugar creek, about 50 miles W. N. W. from Indianapolis.

YPSILANTI, a post-township in the E. part of Washtenaw co., Michigan, intersected by Huron river. Population, 3051.

YPSILANTI, a thriving post-village in the above township, on the Huron river and the Central railroad, 30 miles W. by S. from Detroit. It is one of the largest places in the county, is situated in a rich and populous farming district, and has extensive water-power. Ypsilanti contains several churches, 2 newspaper offices, the state normal school, and manufactories of wool, iron, flour, &c. Population in 1853, estimated at 2500.

YREKA, a post-town of Siskiyou co., California, on an affluent of the Shasta river, about 300 miles N. from San Francisco. At the election, September 7th, the number of votes polled was 533. Population in 1853, estimated at 2500.

YUAB, or JUAB, a new county in the W. part of Utah Territory, has an area estimated at above 12,000 square miles. It is drained by the Carson and Nicollet rivers, flowing into lakes of their own names, which are included within the county. The surface is broken by the Humboldt River mountains near the centre, and by the Wahsatch mountains in the E. part. The census of 1850 gives us no information respecting this county, which was formed since that year. Capital, Nephi City.

YUBA river, of Yuba county, towards the N. part of California, is formed by the union of three branches, viz. the North, Middle, and South Yuba, which rise among the hills at the foot of the Sierra Nevada. It flows in a general S. W. course nearly through the centre of the county, and falls into Feather river near Marysville. The principal mining operations of the county are on this river.

YUBA, a county towards the N. part of California, bordering on Utah Territory, has an area of about 600 square miles. It is bounded on the W. by Feather river, and partly on the S. by Bear river, and is drained by the Yuba river with its North branch and several creeks, which afford valuable water-power. The surface in the E. part is mountainous, being crossed by the Sierra Nevada, but in the W. portion it is level, or but slightly uneven. The soil in the more level portions, especially along the streams, is very fertile. Barley, oats, hay, melons, lumber, cattle, mules, horses, and swine are the staples. In 1852 this county produced 312,876 bushels of barley; 14,377 of oats; 4008 tons of hay; 1,000,000 watermelons, and 9,050,000 feet of lumber. There were 2472 beef cattle; 1749 mules; 1601 horses, and 2500 hogs. The capital employed in quartz mining was $121,400; in placer mining, $710,900; in river mining, $1,687,150 and in merchandise and trade, $1,939,600. The amount invested in 2 quartz mills was $22,000; in 18 saw mills, $81,000, and in a flouring-mill, $8000. Gold is abundant in this county; principally in the beds of the streams, although large quantities are found in-placers. Quicksilver is also found, and about one ounce of the pure metal is obtained from a pound of rock. This county derived its name from the Yuba river, whose whole course lies within it. Capital, Marysville. Population, 22,005.

YUBA, a post-office of Hancock co., Illinois.

YUBA CITY, a post-town of Sutter co., California, is situated on the W. bank of Feather river, nearly opposite the mouth of Yuba river, 140 miles N. N. E. from San Francisco. Its proximity to several mining localities renders it a depôt for supplies.

Z

ZABRISKI, a post-office of De Witt co., Ill.

ZACHARY, a post-office of Marshall co., Ala.

ZACKVILLE, a post-office of Wirt co., Va.

ZANESFIELD, a post-village of Logan co., Ohio, on Mad river, and on the Ohio and Pennsylvania railroad, 50 miles N. W. from Columbus. It has good water-power. Population in 1851, 300.

ZANESVILLE, a handsome and flourishing city of Ohio, and seat of justice of Muskingum county, is situated on the National road, and on the Muskingum river, 80 miles from its mouth, and opposite the mouth of the Licking river. It is 54 miles E. from Columbus, and 179 miles E. N. E. from Cincinnati. Lat. 39° 57' N., lon. 81° 57' W. It is situated on the left bank of the river, which is a fine navigable stream, flowing through a beautiful, populous, and highly productive valley. The plan of the town is regular, the streets are wide, adorned with many fine buildings, and lighted with gas. The position is naturally advantageous for trade, and in respect to improved means of communication, Zanesville is not behind the progress of the age. Steamboats can ascend from the Ohio to this point, and several of them make regular passages between Zanesville and Cincinnati. The Central Ohio railroad connects it with Columbus on one hand and Wheeling on the other, the western division being now in operation; the Zanesville Wilmington and Cincinnati, about 130 miles long, terminates here, and connects with the Cleveland Zanesville and Cincinnati, which is about 100 miles long, and is in course of construction. The second line is nearly or quite finished. Since the commencement of these works the value of real estate has been much increased, and the city exhibits an aspect of new prosperity. The attention of capitalists is attracted to the advantages for manufacturing which are presented here in the abundant water-power of the river, and in the rich coal mines of the adjacent hills. The water of the river is distributed through the town from a reservoir, which contains nearly a million gallons. The Central Ohio Railroad Company have erected an iron bridge over the Muskingum. It is 538 feet in length, and contains 67 tons of wrought, and 130 tons of cast iron. The city is connected by bridges, with three suburbs on the W. bank of the river, namely, Putnam, South Zanesville, and West Zanesville. The former has a flourishing female seminary, an academy, and above 2000 inhabitants. Five or six newspapers and periodicals are published here. Zanesville contains 14 churches, and a number of well-organized public schools. It has also a free school, supported by a fund of from $300,000 to $500,000—John McIntire, one of the first settlers of the place, having bequeathed nearly all his estate for the education of the poorer children of Zanesville for ever. A suitable building has been erected, and the school is numerously attended. The town contained, in 1851, 2 banks, (capital, $200,000,) 1 cotton factory, 2 woollen factories, 1 nail factory, 2 glass works, 5 iron foundries, 1 paper mill, 5 flouring mills, 2 oil mills, and 5 newspaper offices. Zanesville was laid out in 1799. The seat of the state government was removed from Chillicothe to this place in 1810, and remained about 2 years, when Columbus was selected as the permanent capital. Population, in 1850, 10,355.

ZANESVILLE, a post-village of Montgomery co., Illinois, 35 miles S. from Springfield.

ZANVILLE, a post-office of Daviess co., Ind.

ZAVALLA, a post-office of Jasper co., Texas.

ZEBULON, a pleasant post-village, capital of Pike co., Georgia, 50 miles N. W. from Macon, was selected as the seat of justice in 1825. It contains a court house, jail, 2 churches, and 2 academies.

ZEBULON, a post-village of Pike co., Arkansas, about 90 miles S. W. by W. from Little Rock.

ZELIENOPLE, a pleasant post-village of Butler co., Pennsylvania, on Conequenessing creek, 220 miles W. by N. from Harrisburg. It has several stores. Pop., about 500.

ZENAS, a post-village of Jennings co., Indiana, 65 miles S. E. from Indianapolis.

ZENO, a post-office of York district, South Carolina.

ZERO, a post-office of Jasper co., Ill.

ZILWAUKIE, a flourishing post-village of Saginaw co., Michigan, on the Saginaw river. It has 4 steam saw mills, one of which employs 60 saws. A plank-road, 35 miles long, connects this place with Flint, in Genesee county. Population, in 1851, 500.

ZIMMERMAN, a post-office of Greene co., O.

ZIMMERMANSTOWN, a small village of Schuylkill co., Pennsylvania, about 16 miles W. from Pottsville.

ZION, a post-village of Centre co., Pennsylvania, in Nittany valley, 5 miles N. E. from Bellefonte.

ZION, a post-office of Cecil co., Md.

ZION, a post-village of Iredell co., North Carolina, 155 miles W. from Raleigh.

ZION, a post-office of Grant co., Indiana.

ZION HILL, a post-office of Amite co., Miss.

ZION HILL, a post-office of Hamilton co., Tennessee.

ZION SEMINARY, a post-office of Covington co., Mississippi.

ZIONVILLE, a post-village of Lehigh co., Pennsylvania, about 40 miles N. N. W. from Philadelphia, contains 2 churches.

ZOAR, a post-office of Erie co., New York.

ZOAR, a thriving post-village of Tuscarawas county, Ohio, on the Ohio canal, 111 miles E. N. E. from Columbus, was settled in 1818 by a community of Germans. They are noted for industry and morality, and have a community of property. The village, which is remarkable for simplicity and neatness, contains a store, a woollen factory, 2 furnaces, and several mills. They also own 9000 acres of land. The affairs of the community are managed by an agent and 3 trustees, who are elected by popular vote.

ZOAR BRIDGE, a post-village of New Haven co., Connecticut, on the Housatonic river, 18 miles N. W. by W. from New Haven.

ZOLLARSVILLE, a small post-village of Washington co., Pennsylvania.

ZUÑI, zoon-yeé, a pueblo, or Indian town, of Socorro county, New Mexico, 120 miles W. of the Rio Grande, and 170 miles S. W. from Santa Fe, lat. $35^{\circ} 2' N.$, lon. $107^{\circ} 56' W.$ It is on a small river of the same name, which flows into the Chiquito Colorado, (i. e. "Little Colorado,") a tributary of the Colorado of the West. The houses are built of stone, plastered with mud. They are terrace-shaped, each story, of which there are generally three, being smaller laterally, so that one answers in part for the platform of the one above. There are no doors or windows in the lower story: the ascent is on the outside by means of ladders, which may be drawn up so as to cut off all communication from below. This is a common mode of building here, affording security against the attacks of enemies. The inhabitants, about 2000 in number, cultivate the country in the vicinity to a considerable extent, and have large herds of sheep and droves of horses. Business transactions are carried on by barter, there being no money in use. There is in the town a Catholic church, built of adobes, 100 feet long and about 28 wide. The interior of the church is nearly destitute of furniture or ornament of any kind.

ZUÑI MOUNTAINS, a detached range in the central part of New Mexico, in lat. about $35^{\circ} N.$, lon. $108^{\circ} 20' W.$

APPENDIX.

APPENDIX.

TABLE OF RELIGIONS AND CHURCHES IN THE UNITED STATES.

Churches in Maine.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
Baptist, Regular.....	184	63,588	$327,021	Roman Catholic.....	11	6,650	20,700
“ Free Will.....	99	29,491	99,766	Second Advent.....	1	150	200
Christian.....	9	3,580	13,800	Swedenborgian or New
Congregational.....	165	67,153	526,270	Jerusalem.....	2	640	8,000
Episcopal.....	8	3,937	52,600	Union.....	83	26,087	108,670
Free.....	19	6,742	25,700	Unitarian.....	15	10,144	103,000
Friends or Quakers.....	24	7,225	14,580	Universalist.....	53	19,893	120,150
Methodist.....	171	55,111	259,695
Presbyterian.....	7	4,086	32,000	Total.....	851	304,477	$1,712,152

Churches in New Hampshire.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
Baptist, Regular.....	95	34,721	$214,600	Presbyterian.....	13	6,500	71,000
“ Free Will.....	85	27,900	104,156	Roman Catholic.....	2	1,450	20,000
Christian.....	23	7,240	30,350	Second Advent.....	4	1,100	3,000
Congregational.....	172	79,656	527,340	Union.....	32	10,450	39,350
Episcopal.....	11	4,425	41,400	Unitarian.....	13	8,380	72,800
Free.....	2	750	4,000	Universalist.....	36	14,280	83,100
Friends.....	15	4,700	15,200
Methodist.....	99	32,340	175,290	Total.....	602	233,892	$1,401,586

Churches in Vermont.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
Baptist, Regular.....	74	27,137	$138,692	Presbyterian.....	10	4,100	17,500
“ Free Will.....	12	4,200	13,150	Reformed Catholic.....	1	300	500
“ Disciples.....	2	600	2,000	Roman Catholic.....	8	4,305	42,200
Christian.....	7	2,220	12,000	Second Advent.....	2	490	300
Congregational.....	168	76,122	451,084	Union.....	88	34,550	122,800
Episcopal.....	25	10,525	81,500	Unitarian.....	2	1,000	32,000
Free.....	1	100	300	Universalist.....	34	13,325	71,750
Friends.....	7	2,550	5,500
Methodist.....	123	45,010	221,850	Total.....	564	226,444	$1,213,126

Churches in Massachusetts.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
Baptist, Regular.....	244	108,489	$1,412,550	Methodist.....	255	94,011	934,380
“ Free Will.....	16	5,226	46,600	Presbyterian.....	15	7,785	82,500
“ Six Principle.....	2	425	1,200	Restorationist.....	1	1,200	4,000
Christian.....	29	11,020	84,450	Roman Catholic.....	36	30,315	477,500
Congregational.....	439	237,237	3,279,089	Second Advent.....	4	1,050	3,950
Episcopal.....	53	23,595	697,250	Shaker.....	4	1,050	5,500
Free.....	3	1,000	11,750	Swedenborgian.....	3	1,340	66,000
Friends.....	37	13,823	108,600	Union.....	6	1,810	9,550
German Protestant.....	1	230	1,500	Unitarian.....	162	92,938	2,320,147
Jewish.....	1	200	1,200	Universalist.....	117	49,364	643,875
Liberal.....	1	350	2,500
Lutheran.....	1	450	11,193	Total.....	1430	682,908	10,205,284

Churches in Rhode' Island.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
Baptist, Regular.....	70	30,440	$312,200	Jewish.....	1	300	1,000
“ Free Will.....	13	4,236	29,700	Mariners.....	1	700	4,500
“ Seventh Day.....	7	2,950	14,800	Methodist.....	23	9,310	102,900
“ Six Principle.....	8	2,105	7,100	Roman Catholic.....	7	7,300	72,500
“ Associate.....	2	400	2,500	Second Advent.....	1	250	150
Christian.....	7	2,500	24,300	Swedenborgian.....	2	325	4,400
Congregational.....	21	11,703	178,550	Union.....	4	2,450	5,000
Episcopal.....	26	11,606	248,600	Unitarian.....	4	2,950	127,000
Free.....	2	611	5,000	Universalist.....	4	2,230	55,000
Friends.....	18	6,370	57,800
				Total.....	221	98,736	$1,252,900

Churches in Connecticut.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
African.....	2	400	$1,300	Methodist.....	178	56,625	351,550
Baptist, Regular.....	111	43,884	404,534	Presbyterian.....	17	7,500	88,700
“ Disciples of Christ.....	1	250	500	Roman Catholic.....	12	9,015	97,500
“ Seventh Day.....	1	250	1,000	Scandinavian.....	1	200	500
Christian.....	4	950	5,500	Second Advent.....	2	250	1,000
Congregational.....	252	127,320	1,657,185	Union.....	4	1,850	28,400
Episcopal.....	100	44,350	773,875	Unitarian.....	5	1,750	42,000
Free.....	1	325	800	Universalist.....	22	8,905	90,200
Friends.....	5	1,025	7,150
Mariners.....	1	400	3,200	Total.....	719	305,249	$3,554,894

Churches in New York.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
African.....	3	500	$850	Jewish.....	9	5,600	126,000
Baptist, Regular.....	696	307,419	2,155,800	Lutheran.....	80	37,870	252,200
“ Free Will.....	52	17,105	59,250	Mennonite.....	4	1,000	2,050
“ Disciples.....	9	3,150	15,700	Methodist.....	1215	478,145	2,885,543
“ Seventh Day.....	18	6,300	22,000	Moravian.....	3	482
“ Church of God.....	1	300	1,600	Presbyterian.....	662	369,314	4,347,206
Bethel.....	2	1,500	14,000	Protestant Catholic.....	1	600	2,700
Christian.....	62	20,000	79,650	Roman Catholic.....	174	122,538	1,569,375
Congregational.....	214	102,430	779,304	Seceder.....	3	1,450	9,400
Covenanter.....	4	1,250	4,000	Second Advent.....	1	150	100
Dutch Reformed.....	232	131,025	3,542,850	Shaker.....	2	1,300	23,000
Episcopal.....	275	138,945	4,110,824	Swedenborgian.....	2	450	1,400
Free.....	15	4,600	23,700	True Reformed.....	1	300	2,000
Free Protestant.....	1	300	800	Union.....	74	27,379	110,300
Friends.....	132	49,314	309,380	Unitarian.....	22	10,225	292,075
German Protestant.....	3	1,150	8,000	Universalist.....	110	52,470	327,100
German Reformed.....	1	600	15,000
Indian.....	1	100	50	Total.....	4084	1,895,211	21,096,707

Churches in New Jersey.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
African.....	6	1,200	$2,200	Lutheran.....	7	2,900	28,512
Baptist, Regular.....	103	41,625	310,000	Methodist.....	312	109,350	683,850
“ Seventh Day.....	4	1,600	16,600	Mormon.....	1	200	400
Bethel.....	1	250	1,500	Presbyterian.....	146	81,400	1,175,250
Christian.....	8	2,835	10,400	Roman Catholic.....	21	9,335	99,385
Congregational.....	8	3,500	37,700	Second Advent.....	1	200	600
Dutch Reformed.....	66	39,146	460,430	Tunker.....	2	800	1,800
Episcopal.....	51	19,447	473,409	Union.....	5	1,450	6,500
Free.....	7	2,400	7,500	Unitarian.....	2	450	1,500
Friends.....	52	25,545	207,100	Universalist.....	3	1,000	6,800
Independent.....	1	300	1,000
				Total.....	807	344,933	$3,540,436

Churches in Pennsylvania.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
African.....	12	2,425	$4,750	Lutheran.....	497	261,102	1,641,856
Baptist, Regular.....	252	105,558	718,170	Liberty.....	1	150	100
“ Free Will.....	9	2,800	5,900	Mennonite.....	86	23,870	82,400
“ Disciples.....	28	9,625	22,725	Methodist.....	882	341,126	1,722,588
“ Seventh Day.....	4	1,700	41,000	Moravian.....	10	3,567
“ Church of God.....	27	8,475	23,600	Minease.....	1	291	1,000
Bethel.....	2	1,100	6,800	Presbyterian.....	751	356,588	2,572,900
Bible Christian.....	1	350	5,400	Protestant.....	2	1,700	40,800
Calvinistic Methodist.....	1	200	500	Roman Catholic.....	139	89,251	1,084,204
Christian.....	19	6,400	24,400	Seceder.....	10	3,710	13,950
Congregational.....	9	3,100	17,250	Second Advent.....	2	550	1,700
Covenanter.....	18	6,290	41,200	Swedenborgian.....	3	1,475	11,700
Dutch Reformed.....	7	4,640	79,500	Salem.....	1	452	3,600
Episcopal.....	135	67,324	1,483,700	Schwenkfelder.....	3	1,000	3,600
Evangelical.....	4	1,100	2,800	Seaman's.....	1	900	20,000
Evangelist.....	2	1,000	5,000	Shoemaker.....	1	350	250
Free.....	22	6,400	15,050	Tunker.....	14	6,100	11,700
Friends.....	142	61,274	662,287	Union.....	80	28,300	78,325
Frontzite.....	1	150	400	Unitarian.....	4	1,630	28,000
German Reformed.....	206	105,562	643,110	Universalist.....	19	8,920	82,800
German Gospel.....	1	600	1,500	United Brethren in Christ	14	4,650	18,600
Harmonite.....	1	700	3,000	United Reformed.....	2	770	11,200
Independent.....	15	5,000	67,150	U. V. Church.....	1	263	4,000
Jewish.....	7	3,175	45,700
				Total.....	3449	1,541,765	11,301,265

Churches in Delaware.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
African.....	2	250	$400	Presbyterian.....	26	10,100	75,500
Baptist.....	12	2,975	16,300	Roman Catholic.....	3	1,630	15,000
Episcopal.....	21	7,650	78,900	Union.....	1	200	1,000
Friends.....	9	3,636	24,900
Methodist.....	106	29,300	127,845	Total.....	180	55,741	$340,345

Churches in Maryland.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
Baptist, Regular.....	43	14,250	$119,710	Moravian or United Brethren.....	1	185	32,500
“ Disciples.....	2	1,700	11,600	Presbyterian.....	57	23,235	378,300
“ Church of God.....	3	850	2,100	Roman Catholic.....	65	31,100	1,161,532
Episcopal.....	133	60,105	610,877	Methodist.....	6	14,100	8,400
Friends.....	26	7,760	114,050	Union.....	10	4,250	13,000
German Reformed.....	22	14,800	197,800	Unitarian.....	1	1,000	104,000
Jewish.....	3	1,400	41,000	Universalist.....	1	1,000	26,000
Lutheran.....	42	26,600	287,950
Mennonite.....	4	850	2,000	Total.....	898	385,103	$3,915,384
Methodist.....	479	181,715	837,665

Churches in Virginia,

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
African.....	1	300	$1,500	Lutheran.....	50	18,750	52,445
Baptist, Regular.....	591	225,039	649,493	Mariners.....	1	525	8,000
“ Disciples.....	46	16,300	37,575	Mennonite.....	6	2,250	5,550
“ Seventh Day.....	1	150	350	Methodist.....	1002	$15,763	721,003
“ Church of God.....	1	200	500	Moravian.....	1	39	2,550
Christian.....	16	4,900	7,595	New Church.....	1	100	500
Episcopal.....	167	73,884	527,150	Presbyterian.....	236	101,625	567,165
Evangelist.....	1	100	150	Roman Catholic.....	17	7,900	126,100
Free.....	107	35,025	61,900	Seceder.....	2	900	4,000
Friends.....	14	6,300	18,825	Tunker.....	8	4,400	8,200
German Reformed.....	9	3,800	16,200	Union.....	47	13,250	24,025
Independent.....	2	900	3,900	Universalist.....	1	200	500
Jewish.....	1	600	4,000
				Total.....	2329	833,191	$2,846,626

Churches in North Carolina.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
Baptist, Regular.....	533	181,922	$191,173	Lutheran.....	47	19,550	29,025
“ Free Will.....	14	4,450	3,125	Methodist.....	727	214,937	284,930
“ Disciples.....	10	4,000	4,500	Moravian.....	7	2,084
“ Anti-Mission.....	16	4,755	2,650	Presbyterian.....	143	62,730	170,030
Christian.....	29	11,600	10,575	Roman Catholic.....	4	1,400	5,990
Episcopal.....	47	14,970	112,100	Tunker.....	1	200	109
Free.....	51	14,545	15,860	Union.....	4	1,200	650
Friends.....	30	12,620	7,575
German Reformed.....	15	5,725	17,200	Total.....	1678	557,288	$855,393

Churches in South Carolina.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
Baptist, Regular.....	407	163,545	$287,938	Lutheran.....	41	14,750	109,500
“ Free Will.....	1	200	100	Mariners.....	1	500	5,000
“ Disciples.....	5	2,060	5,825	Methodist.....	467	159,920	311,168
Congregational.....	1	2,000	70,000	Presbyterian.....	125	64,465	471,125
Episcopal.....	71	28,540	615,450	Roman Catholic.....	14	6,030	78,315
Free.....	5	1,550	1,700	Seceder.....	11	3,300	12,050
Free Protestant.....	2	1,100	50,500	Unitarian.....	1	700	30,000
Friends.....	1	500	500	Universalist.....	2	650	5,600
Independent.....	5	1,720	1,875
Jewish.....	3	2,400	83,700	Total.....	1163	453,930	$2,140,346

Churches in Georgia.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
Baptist, Regular.....	648	253,744	$346,181	Friends.....	2	500	400
“ Free Will.....	2	250	200	Independent.....	1	175	100
“ Disciples.....	1	100	100	Lutheran.....	8	2,825	34,850
“ Anti-Mission.....	74	26,569	18,870	Methodist.....	735	233,143	393,743
“ Primitive.....	96	29,400	25,450	Moravian.....
Bible Christians.....	6	1,200	1,525	Presbyterian.....	92	39,996	218,505
Christian.....	5	1,710	12,050	Roman Catholic.....	8	4,250	79,500
Congregational.....	1	250	2,700	Union.....	16	7,250	21,100
Episcopal.....	19	8,975	109,910	Universalist.....	3	900	1,000
Free.....	5	1,580	2,650	Total.....	1722	612,817	$1,269,134

Churches in Florida.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
Baptist, Regular.....	37	8,400	$23,140	Presbyterian.....	14	5,700	31,500
“ Anti-Mission.....	8	2,000	2,500	Protestant.....	2	1,000	1,200
Episcopal.....	10	3,810	37,800	Roman Catholic.....	5	1,850	13,600
Free.....	1	400	400
Methodist.....	75	18,010	55,200	Total.....	152	41,170	$165,400

Churches in Alabama.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
African.....	2	600	$6,000	Lutheran.....	1	200	250
Baptist, Regular.....	421	141,950	210,342	Methodist.....	531	150,675	276,939
“ Free Will.....	3	225	245	Presbyterian.....	150	58,705	222,775
“ Disciples.....	1	400	1,590	Roman Catholic.....	5	5,200	300,000
“ Anti-Mission.....	80	16,305	15,210	Union.....	4	1,125	1,650
Christian.....	13	3,550	6,165	Unitarian.....	1	1,000	6,000
Episcopal.....	16	6,220	76,300	Universalist.....	1	250	400
Free.....	5	1,800	2,300
Independent.....	1	400	6,000	Total.....	1235	388,605	$1,122,076

Churches in Mississippi.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
Baptist, Regular.....	292	93,829	$174,842	Methodist.....	406	112,983	240,265
“ Disciples.....	2	400	400	Presbyterian.....	135	47,166	183,685
“ Anti-Mission.....	42	10,821	10,950	Roman Catholic.....	8	3,000	66,000
Christian.....	8	2,350	9,950	Union.....	1	180	400
Episcopal.....	13	4,550	66,800
Free.....	3	700	1,850	Total.....	910	275,979	$754,542

Churches in Louisiana.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
Baptist, Regular.....	71	15,085	$29,470	Methodist.....	106	30,260	236,500
“ Disciples.....	1	300	1,000	Presbyterian.....	17	9,510	149,300
Christian.....	2	1,500	61,000	Roman Catholic.....	55	37,240	1,045,650
Episcopal.....	12	4,410	57,900	Temple of the Lord.....	1	1,500	47,000
Free.....	3	675	10,430	Union.....	6	1,350	8,220
French Protestant.....	1	150	12,000	Universalist.....	1	1,000	100,000
German Reformed.....	1	500	4,000
Jewish.....	1	600	20,000	Total.....	278	104,080	$1,782,470

Churches in Texas.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
Baptist, Regular, &c.....	30	8,075	$19,790	Mormon.....	1	200	2,000
Christian.....	1	100	150	Presbyterian.....	15	6,100	19,070
Episcopal.....	5	1,025	15,100	Roman Catholic.....	13	6,760	79,700
Free.....	7	1,600	7,100	Union.....	2	350	525
German Protestant.....	2	1,300	1,000
Methodist.....	88	28,985	56,095	Total.....	164	54,495	$200,530

Churches in Ohio.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
African.....	1	300	$800	Jewish.....	3	1,300	29,000
Associate.....	8	2,950	8,975	Lutheran.....	259	90,348	259,975
Baptist, Regular.....	384	133,418	491,915	Mennonite.....	9	1,730	1,825
“ Free Will.....	22	5,300	10,100	Methodist.....	1520	539,840	1,542,181
“ Disciples.....	130	42,680	93,865	Moravian.....	3	696
“ Church of God.....	9	2,700	2,850	Mormon.....	2	5,600	30,500
Bethel.....	1	250	350	Miniese.....	1	100	100
Bible Christians.....	8	1,775	2,725	Mission.....	1	200	1,200
Christian.....	96	30,190	56,155	New Light.....	6	2,100	5,700
Congregational.....	100	41,920	207,880	Presbyterian.....	659	271,499	1,388,199
Come outer.....	1	300	500	Roman Catholic.....	130	76,215	763,307
Dutch Reformed.....	5	1,150	2,600	Reformed Protestant.....	1	500	1,700
Episcopal.....	79	31,975	367,425	River Brethren.....	2	800	1,000
Evangelical.....	4	2,100	15,900	Second Advent.....	1	250	500
Evangelist.....	1	200	200	Shakers.....	2	1,300	3,000
Emanuel.....	1	450	2,000	Swedenborgian.....	2	700	15,800
Free.....	13	5,100	9,550	Separatists of Zoar.....	1	251	300
Friends.....	94	30,866	82,175	Tunker.....	10	4,550	9,975
German Reformed.....	11	26,315	71,860	Union.....	48	18,646	37,900
German United Protestant.....	1	1,000	15,000	Unitarian.....	1	650	15,000
German Evangelist.....	1	1,000	20,000	Universalist.....	53	20,765	100,590
German Protestant.....	2	900	5,000	Zion.....	1	550	2,400
Independent.....	1	125	75
“ Israel George of Brotherly Love.....	1	200	3,000	Total.....	3735	1,898,803	$5,672,077

Churches in Indiana.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
Baptist, Regular.....	348	115,948	$182,760	Methodist.....	745	256,372	482,400
“ Free Will.....	11	3,350	4,800	Moravian.....	2	382
“ Disciples.....	53	17,035	24,025	New Light.....	7	1,050	1,645
Benevolent.....	2	472	730	Presbyterian.....	267	103,432	324,170
Christian.....	182	64,266	88,640	Roman Catholic.....	63	25,115	167,725
Congregational.....	2	1,400	8,000	Seceder.....	3	1,300	1,650
Dutch Reformed.....	4	1,025	1,650	Tunker.....	5	3,000	3,100
Episcopal.....	24	7,300	74,000	Union.....	5	1,250	2,350
Free.....	10	2,750	5,700	Unitarian.....	1	250	600
Friends.....	85	43,015	59,555	Universalist.....	15	5,050	17,800
German Reformed.....	2	550	3,500
Lutheran.....	60	18,000	36,825	Total.....	1896	672,312	$1,491,685

Churches in Illinois.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
African.....	1	200	$200	German Reformed.....	2	180	310
Baptist, Regular.....	229	80,650	184,145	Independent.....	2	1,100	3,500
“ Free Will.....	4	1,050	3,450	Lutheran.....	40	16,440	40,120
“ Disciples.....	23	6,920	13,400	Methodist.....	389	176,474	327,290
“ Separate.....	1	450	450	Moravian.....	2	224
“ United.....	8	2,550	2,650	Mormon.....	1	80	150
Christian.....	67	30,754	42,950	Presbyterian.....	198	81,529	395,130
Congregational.....	46	15,576	89,250	Protestant.....	2	330	1,800
Concord.....	1	150	200	Roman Catholic.....	58	29,000	220,400
Covenanter.....	1	400	500	Swedenborgian.....	1	140	800
Dutch Reformed.....	2	875	2,700	Tunker.....	4	1,225	2,250
Episcopal.....	27	14,000	78,350	Union.....	31	8,875	32,050
Evangelical.....	4	680	2,700	Unitarian.....	6	1,500	9,000
Evangelist.....	5	3,950	2,000	Universalist.....	4	1,300	11,500
Free.....	2	750	6,400
Friends.....	6	1,550	2,340	Total.....	1167	478,902	$1,475,985

Churches in Missouri.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
Baptist, Regular.....	244	65,322	$141,840	Lutheran.....	21	7,260	34,560
“ Free Will.....	1	100	50	Mennonite.....	1	200	420
“ Disciples.....	28	6,435	12,590	Methodist.....	200	57,350	280,245
Boatman's.....	1	500	15,000	Mormon.....	1	500	130
Christian.....	51	19,370	43,210	Presbyterian.....	108	41,750	285,970
Church of Christ.....	1	100	200	Republican.....	1	300	500
Episcopal.....	10	4,200	135,600	Rationalist.....	1	300	500
Evangelist.....	3	1,100	17,700	Roman Catholic.....	64	26,102	494,575
Free.....	13	2,350	4,400	Union.....	11	2,350	6,200
German Protestant.....	1	800	2,000	Unitarian.....	2	2,100	70,000
German Evangelical.....	6	1,200	4,800	Universalist.....	1	250	500
Independent.....	2	800	600
Jewish.....	1	400	7,000	Total.....	773	241,139	$1,558,590

Churches in Arkansas.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
Baptist, Regular.....	55	11,030	$15,855	Methodist.....	73	14,250	27,070
“ Free Will.....	1	550	100	Presbyterian.....	25	7,200	28,275
“ Disciples.....	11	2,050	3,615	Roman Catholic.....	6	1,400	6,650
“ Anti-Mission.....	6	1,100	2,300	Union.....	5	1,800	1,000
Episcopal.....	2	350	4,250
Free.....	1	200	200	Total.....	185	39,930	$89,315

Churches in Kentucky.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
African.....	1	200	$150	Methodist.....	522	167,860	462,955
Baptist, Regular.....	611	219,825	416,900	Presbyterian.....	222	99,006	492,303
“ Free Will.....	17	5,360	4,600	Protestant.....	15	3,050	8,600
“ Disciples.....	142	58,125	138,205	Republican.....	11	3,200	4,900
“ Anti-Mission.....	19	7,150	11,950	Roman Catholic.....	48	24,240	336,910
Christian.....	112	48,040	165,725	Shaker.....	3	2,000	11,000
Episcopal.....	17	7,050	112,150	Tunker.....	1	200	200
Free.....	32	8,777	13,100	Union.....	31	11,600	18,000
German Protestant.....	1	200	2,500	Unitarian.....	1	700	15,000
Jewish.....	1	600	13,000	Universalist.....	6	2,000	10,650
Lutheran.....	5	2,850	21,300
				Total.....	1818	672,033	$2,260,098

Churches in Tennessee.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
African.....	1	400	$1,000	Lutheran.....	12	3,400	2,600
Baptist, Regular.....	443	140,445	223,389	Methodist.....	831	240,353	378,511
“ Free Will.....	10	2,800	3,000	Presbyterian.....	357	132,717	365,531
“ Disciples.....	23	6,600	12,900	Protestant Evangelical.....	1	200	150
“ Baptized Saints.....	2	350	60	Roman Catholic.....	3	1,300	45,000
“ Anti-Mission.....	133	38,620	30,075	Tunker.....	1	500	300
Christian.....	57	17,800	48,295	Union.....	15	3,900	3,800
Episcopal.....	17	7,810	85,300	(Not specified).....	1	1,000	1,000
Free.....	28	6,900	6,665
Friends.....	4	1,600	1,300	Total.....	1939	606,695	$1,208,876

Churches in Michigan.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
Baptist, Regular.....	55	17,115	$82,150	Mariners.....	1	800	15,000
“ Free Will.....	3	500	1,900	Methodist.....	103	33,610	142,650
Christian.....	1	350	1,000	Moravian.....	1	200	500
Congregational.....	29	10,500	59,550	Presbyterian.....	67	22,530	142,650
Dutch Reformed.....	6	1,575	6,250	Roman Catholic.....	42	15,972	159,775
Episcopal.....	25	8,425	82,809	Union.....	3	800	1,400
Free.....	1	700	3,000	Universalist.....	6	1,210	7,100
Friends.....	7	1,400	4,850
Lutheran.....	12	3,205	12,625	Total.....	362	118,892	$723,200

Churches in California.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
Baptist.....	1	400	$5,000	Roman Catholic.....	17	7,300	230,000
Methodist.....	4	1,400	15,300
Presbyterian.....	1	500	8,000	Total.....	23	9,600	$258,300

Churches in Oregon.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
Baptist.....	1	100	$2,000	Presbyterian.....	1	200	5,000
Congregational.....	1	500	6,200	Roman Catholic.....	5	1,833	41,320
Methodist.....	1	500	22,000
				Total.....	9	3,133	$76,520

Churches in New Mexico.Churches in Utah.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
Roman Catholic.....	146	76,100	$188,200		9	4,200	$5,100

Churches in District of Columbia.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
Baptist.....	6	3,460	$29,300	Presbyterian.....	6	5,000	73,000
Episcopal.....	8	6,400	57,500	Roman Catholic.....	6	7,100	105,300
Friends.....	1	200	1,000	Unitarian.....	1	500	10,000
Lutheran.....	2	1,000	15,000
Methodist.....	16	10,400	71,900	Total.....	46	34,120	$363,000

Churches in Iowa.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
Baptist, Regular.....	11	2,617	$15,890	Lutheran.....	4	1,000	6,950
“ Free Will.....	2	180	550	Methodist.....	50	12,197	43,450
“ Disciples.....	3	700	3,100	Presbyterian.....	24	6,655	28,350
Christian.....	8	2,125	6,300	Roman Catholic.....	17	3,999	28,250
Congregational.....	14	4,725	21,550	Union.....	2	450	7,100
Episcopal.....	4	670	5,000	Universalist.....	1	200	1,600
Friends.....	5	1,550	6,300
German Reformed.....	1	200	800	Total.....	146	37,259	$175,200

Churches in Wisconsin.

Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.	Denominations.	No.	Accommodations.	Value of Property.
Baptist, Regular.....	25	8,355	$47,600	Methodist.....	54	15,008	62,430
“ Free Will.....	2	750	2,900	Moravian.....	31	7,928
“ Seventh Day.....	1	400	2,000	Norwegian.....	2	250	425
Christian.....	2	700	1,200	Presbyterian.....	21	6,000	35,500
Congregational.....	33	10,585	61,260	Roman Catholic.....	57	23,717	66,085
Dutch Reformed.....	2	550	750	Trinity.....	1	275	3,000
Episcopal.....	19	5,140	45,750	Union.....	1	400	800
Evangelical.....	2	450	3,200	Universalist.....	1	300	3,000
Free.....	2	275	250	Welsh.....	1	300	500
Lutheran.....	18	5,000	13,650	Total.....	245	78,532	$350,000

SUMMARY.

Denominations.	No. of Churches.	Aggregate accommodations.	Average accommodations.	Total value of Church Property.	Average value of Property.
Baptist.....	8,791	3,130,878	356	$10,931,332	$1,241
Christian.....	812	296,050	365	845,810	1,041
Congregational.....	1,674	795,177	475	7,973,962	4,763
Dutch Reformed.....	324	181,956	561	4,096,730	12,644
Episcopal.....	1,422	625,213	440	11,261,970	7,919
Free.....	361	108,605	300	252,255	698
Friends.....	714	282,823	396	1,709,867	2,395
*German Reformed.....	327	156,932	479	865,880	2,953
Jewish.....	31	16,575	534	371,600	11,987
*Lutheran.....	1,203	531,100	441	2,867,886	2,333
Mennonite.....	110	29,800	272	94,245	856
Methodist.....	12,467	4,209,333	337	14,636,671	1,174
†Moravian.....	31	7,928
Presbyterian.....	4,584	2,040,316	445	14,369,889	3,135
Roman Catholic.....	1,112	620,950	558	8,973,838	8,069
Swedenborgian.....	15	5,070	338	108,100	7,206
Tunker.....	52	35,075	674	46,025	885
Union.....	619	213,552	345	690,065	1,114
Unitarian.....	243	137,367	565	3,268,122	13,449
Universalist.....	494	205,462	415	1,767,015	3,576
Minor Sects.....	325	115,347	354	741,980	2,283
Total.....	35,711	13,740,639	85,973,292

* The German Reformed and Lutheran denominations use the same building in many places.

† A great error has been committed in the census with regard to the Moravian churches. It appears that the "United Brethren in Christ" have been confounded with the Moravian sect, whose proper title is the "Protestant Episcopal Church of the United Brethren." The number of Moravian churches given in the census is 331! The data for correcting the above table in this respect were furnished by competent authority, and our statement may be relied on as substantially correct. It should be observed, that instead of giving the accommodations we have given the actual number of members in the different churches.

PRODUCTIONS OF AGRICULTURE IN THE UNITED STATES.
SEVENTH CENSUS, 1850.

States and Territories.	ACRES OF LAND IN FARMS.		Cash value of farms.	Value of farm-implements and machinery.	LIVE STOCK.				Value of live stock.
	Improved.	Unimproved.			Horses.	Asses and mules.	Milk cows.	Working oxen.		Other cattle.	Sheep.	Swine.
Maine.....	2,515,707	2,515,707	$54,861,748	$2,284,557	41,721	55	123,556	83,893	125,890	451,577	54,598	$9,705,726
New Hampshire.....	1,140,426	1,140,426	55,245,097	2,314,125	34,233	19	94,277	114,900	114,900	384,756	63,457	8,871,901
Vermont.....	1,621,413	1,621,413	63,507,227	2,730,282	61,057	218	140,128	48,577	154,143	1,014,122	62,429	12,643,298
Massachusetts.....	1,222,970	1,222,970	109,076,347	3,209,584	42,210	34	130,099	46,611	83,284	188,551	81,119	9,647,710
Rhode Island.....	356,487	356,487	17,070,802	1,397,201	6,108	49	86,461	8,180	9,375	44,296	19,509	1,532,637
Connecticut.....	1,765,178	1,765,178	127,256,422	1,832,541	20,879	1	85,651	46,988	80,226	174,418	76,472	7,467,490
New York.....	12,408,968	6,710,120	554,546,642	22,084,926	447,014	963	931,324	178,909	767,400	3,453,241	1,018,252	73,570,361
New Jersey.....	1,707,991	984,955	120,237,511	4,425,503	63,955	4,089	118,376	12,070	80,485	100,488	230,370	10,679,231
Pennsylvania.....	8,628,619	6,294,728	407,876,099	14,722,541	350,398	2,259	530,224	61,527	562,139	1,822,557	1,046,306	41,900,063
Delaware.....	580,862	375,282	18,880,031	510,279	13,852	791	19,248	9,797	24,166	27,503	36,261	1,849,253
Maryland.....	2,797,905	1,836,445	87,178,545	2,463,443	75,684	5,644	86,589	34,135	98,595	177,902	332,911	7,997,634
District of Columbia.....	16,207	11,387	1,730,460	40,220	824	57	613	104	123	150	1,935	71,643
Virginia.....	10,360,135	15,792,170	216,401,441	7,021,772	272,403	21,480	317,619	89,513	669,137	1,310,004	1,820,743	33,656,659
North Carolina.....	5,453,977	15,543,010	67,891,766	3,931,532	148,093	25,259	221,799	37,309	434,402	595,249	1,312,813	17,717,647
South Carolina.....	4,073,651	12,145,049	82,431,684	4,136,354	97,171	37,483	193,244	20,507	563,935	285,551	1,065,503	15,060,015
Georgia.....	6,373,476	16,442,900	95,753,445	5,894,150	151,331	57,379	334,223	75,286	690,019	590,435	2,168,617	25,728,416
Florida.....	340,049	1,236,240	6,323,109	638,795	10,848	5,002	72,876	5,794	182,415	23,311	209,453	2,880,058
Alabama.....	4,435,614	7,702,607	64,323,224	5,125,663	128,001	59,895	227,791	66,961	433,263	371,880	1,904,540	21,690,112
Mississippi.....	3,444,358	7,046,063	54,738,634	5,762,927	113,460	54,547	214,231	83,485	436,254	304,929	1,582,734	19,403,662
Louisiana.....	1,890,025	3,939,015	73,814,298	11,576,938	89,514	44,849	105,576	54,968	414,798	110,333	597,301	11,152,275
Texas.....	639,107	14,454,069	16,398,747	2,133,673	75,419	12,364	214,758	49,982	636,805	99,998	683,514	10,246,880
Arkansas.....	781,531	1,816,684	15,295,245	1,601,296	60,197	11,859	93,131	31,239	165,329	91,256	836,727	6,647,969
Tennessee.....	5,173,173	13,808,849	97,851,212	5,960,220	270,635	75,363	290,456	86,255	414,051	811,591	3,104,800	29,975,016
Kentucky.....	11,368,270	10,372,478	154,330,262	5,169,037	315,087	65,609	247,475	62,074	442,763	1,102,121	2,861,163	29,591,387
Ohio.....	9,851,493	8,146,000	358,758,603	12,750,585	463,397	3,423	544,499	69,381	749,067	3,923,929	1,964,770	44,121,711
Michigan.....	1,923,110	7,746,879	51,872,446	2,891,371	53,506	70	99,676	55,350	119,471	746,435	206,874	8,008,734
Indiana.....	5,046,543	7,746,879	136,385,173	6,704,444	314,299	6,699	554,554	40,221	389,891	894,043	1,915,910	24,299,258
Illinois.....	5,039,545	6,997,867	96,133,290	6,405,561	267,653	10,573	230,169	76,156	541,209	1,702,511	1,702,625	18,892,590
Missouri.....	2,938,425	6,794,245	63,225,543	3,981,525	225,299	41,667	200,169	112,168	449,173	1,49,860	3,689,247	3,689,247
Iowa.....	824,682	1,911,582	16,667,567	1,172,869	38,536	754	46,730	21,892	69,025	149,960	159,276	4,897,355
Wisconsin.....	1,045,499	1,931,159	28,528,563	1,641,568	30,179	156	64,330	43,801	76,293	42,931	2,776	3,351,058
California.....	62,324	3,831,571	3,874,041	103,483	21,719	1,066	4,280	4,780	253,599	17,874	734	92,859
Minnesota Territory.....	5,035	23,546	161,948	15,981	860	14	607	635	740	740	740	740
Oregon Territory.....	132,357	290,951	2,849,170	188,423	8,045	420	9,427	8,344	24,188	15,382	30,235	1,876,189
Utah Territory.....	16,353	30,516	311,709	84,288	2,429	325	4,861	5,296	4,889	3,292	914	646,498
New Mexico Territory.....	16,201	124,301	1,653,462	77,960	5,079	8,654	10,685	12,297	10,085	377,271	7,314	1,494,029
Aggregate.....	118,437,622	184,621,348	3,270,733,098	151,599,675	4,335,358	559,229	6,392,044	1,699,241	10,268,856	21,721,814	30,316,608	543,969,420

PRODUCTIONS OF AGRICULTURE IN THE UNITED STATES—Continued.

PRODUCE DURING THE YEAR ENDING JUNE 1, 1850.
States and Territories.	Wheat, bushels of.	Rye, bushels of.	Indian Corn, bushels of.	Oats, bushels of.	Rice, pounds of.	Tobacco, pounds of.	Gilted Cotton, bales of 400 pounds each.	Wool, pounds of.	Hens and Geese, birds of.	Irish Potatoes, bushels of.	Sweet Potatoes, bushels of.	Barley, bushels of.
Maine.....	206,259	102,916	1,750,056	2,181,037	1,364,034	205,541	3,436,040	151,731
New Hampshire.....	183,117	157,370	1,573,670	973,381	50	1,108,476	70,856	4,304,919	70,256
Vermont.....	585,958	176,233	2,082,396	2,307,734	138,246	3,400,717	104,649	4,951,014	42,150
Massachusetts.....	31,211	2,436,490	2,345,490	1,165,146	855,136	43,709	3,885,384	112,385
Rhode Island.....	49	26,409	539,201	215,232	129,692	6,846	651,029	18,875
Connecticut.....	41,762	600,893	1,935,043	1,258,738	1,397,624	497,454	19,000	2,689,725	19,000
New York.....	13,121,498	4,148,182	17,885,400	26,552,814	83,189	10,071,301	71,636	15,398,362	5,623	3,855,030
New Jersey.....	1,601,190	1,255,578	8,750,704	3,378,063	310	375,396	14,174	3,207,236	5,083	6,492
Pennsylvania.....	15,367,691	4,805,160	19,835,214	21,538,166	912,951	4,481,570	55,231	9,980,732	92,172	105,584
Delaware.....	482,511	3,145,542	604,518	47,768	4,130	240,542	65,443	66
Maryland.....	4,494,680	236,014	11,104,631	2,242,151	21,407,437	480,226	12,816	764,939	208,993	745
District of Columbia.....	17,370	5,509	65,230	8,134	1,800	625	7,754	28,292	3,497	75
Virginia.....	11,239,316	458,930	85,254,319	10,170,045	17,154	56,803,218	3,947	2,880,755	621,681	1,316,933	1,813,671	25,437
North Carolina.....	2,130,102	229,563	97,911,051	4,052,078	5,465,868	11,981,786	7,840	970,738	1,654,952	620,318	5,095,700	2,733
South Carolina.....	1,066,277	53,750	16,271,494	2,322,155	159,930,613	74,286	300,401	407,253	1,036,900	136,494	4,337,469	4,583
Georgia.....	1,088,354	53,750	30,080,069	3,820,044	38,930,631	423,924	499,019	990,019	1,142,011	227,379	6,936,428	11,501
Florida.....	1,027	1,132	1,996,809	66,586	1,075,090	998,014	45,131	23,247	135,359	7,328	737,226
Alabama.....	294,044	17,261	28,794,048	2,965,697	164,990	564,429	697,118	892,701	892,701	246,001	5,475,204	3,958
Mississippi.....	137,990	9,606	22,446,552	1,503,288	2,311,252	439,600	559,619	1,072,737	261,482	4,471,795	229
Louisiana.....	417	475	10,266,373	89,637	4,425,349	26,878	178,737	109,897	161,732	95,632	1,428,453
Texas.....	41,689	3,108	5,926,611	87,176	66,897	57,596	182,595	179,332	93,548	1,323,170	4,776
Arkansas.....	199,639	8,047	8,893,939	666,183	634,179	215,936	65,346	181,629	285,738	183,832	783,149	177
Tennessee.....	1,619,381	89,163	92,276,223	7,070,086	268,584	20,148,932	194,532	1,261,378	369,321	1,407,844	2,737
Kentucky.....	2,140,822	415,073	58,675,591	8,201,311	55,301,195	66,301,195	758	2,297,403	202,574	1,492,487	998,184	65,343
Ohio.....	14,487,351	425,718	59,078,695	13,472,442	5,688	10,344,449	10,196,371	60,168	5,097,769	187,991	384,358
Michigan.....	4,925,889	105,871	5,641,420	2,866,056	2,610,287	35,773	2,359,897	1,177	75,249
Indiana.....	6,214,458	78,792	52,964,363	6,655,014	1,245	1,044,620	14	2,610,287	82,814	2,514,861	201,711	45,483
Illinois.....	9,414,575	83,364	87,646,984	10,087,241	841,394	17,113,784	2,510,113	82,814	157,433	137,433	110,795
Missouri.....	4,268,552	44,268	36,214,537	5,278,079	700	17,113,784	1,627,164	46,017	199,006	395,505	6,681
Iowa.....	1,630,581	19,916	8,686,739	1,524,345	6,041	1,268	373,898	4,775	276,120	6,243	25,093
Wisconsin.....	4,286,131	81,253	1,988,979	3,414,672	500	253,963	20,657	1,402,077	879	209,692
Minnesota.....	125	30,582	1,000	55	2,292	9,292	1,000	9,712
California.....	1,431	106	16,725	69,146	85	10,002	21,145	200	1,216
Utah Territory.....	211,493	1,061	9,918	325	29,683	6,656	91,226
Oregon Territory.....	107,702	210	6,839	70	9,222	299	43,968
New Mexico Territory.....	196,516	365,441	5	8,467	32,901	15,688	1,799
Aggregate.....	100,563,890	14,188,639	592,326,612	146,507,879	215,312,710	199,752,046	2,468,624	62,789,174	9,219,375	65,796,793	38,250,196	5,107,016

PRODUCTIONS OF AGRICULTURE IN THE UNITED STATES—Continued.

PRODUCE DURING THE YEAR ENDING JUNE 1, 1850.
States and Territories.
Maine.....	104,323
New Hampshire.....	65,265
Vermont.....	209,819
Massachusetts.....	106,895
Rhode Island.....	1,245
Connecticut.....	228,237
New York.....	8,183,955
New Jersey.....	878,934
Pennsylvania.....	2,193,692
Delaware.....	8,615
Maryland.....	103,671
District of Columbia.....	378
Virginia.....	214,898
North Carolina.....	16,704
South Carolina.....	283
Georgia.....	250
Florida.....	35
Alabama.....	348
Mississippi.....	1,121
Louisiana.....	3
Texas.....	59
Arkansas.....	175
Tennessee.....	19,427
Kentucky.....	16,007
Ohio.....	638,064
Michigan.....	472,917
Indiana.....	149,740
Illinois.....	184,504
Missouri.....	28,641
Iowa.....	52,516
Wisconsin.....	79,878
California.....	515
Minnesota.....	352
Oregon Territory.....	100
Utah Territory.....	323
New Mexico Territory.....	8,956,916
Aggregate.....	7,728,326
Value of orchard products.	$342,865
Wine, gallons of.	724
Value of produce of market gardens.	$122,387
Butter, pounds of.	9,243,811
Cheese, pounds of.	2,494,454
Hay, tons of.	755,889
Clover seed, bushels of.	9,037
Other grass seeds, bushels of.	9,214
Hops, pounds of.	40,120

PRODUCTIONS OF AGRICULTURE IN THE UNITED STATES—Continued.

States and Territories.	PRODUCE DURING THE YEAR ENDING JUNE 1, 1850.
	Hemp. Dew rotted, tons of.	Water rot'd, tons of.	Flax, pounds of.	Flax seed, bushels of.	Silk cocoons, pounds of.	Maple sugar, pounds of.	Cane sugar, hds. of 1,000 pounds.	Molasses, gallons of.	Becaw and ho- ney, pounds of.	Value homemade manufactures.	Value of animals slaughtered.
Maine.....	17,081	680	252	93,542	3,107	189,618	$513,699	$1,648,773
New Hampshire.....	7,652	189	191	1,294,863	9,811	117,140	398,456	1,624,873
Vermont.....	20,852	639	268	6,319,357	5,997	249,422	297,110	1,861,330
Massachusetts.....	11,162	72	7	196,625	4,693	69,598	293,353	2,800,324
Rhode Island.....	86	28	4	6,347	26,495	67,486
Connecticut.....	17,928	703	325	50,796	665	94,304	192,252	2,205,266
New York.....	1	3	940,577	57,953	1,774	10,857,484	56,629	1,756,190	1,280,333	13,673,983
New Jersey.....	182,965	16,625	23	2,197	954	156,694	112,781	2,638,562
Pennsylvania.....	44	529,307	41,728	285	2,326,525	50,652	839,509	749,132	8,216,848
Pelaware.....	11,174	604	50	41,248	38,121	373,065
Maryland.....	35,686	2,446	39	47,740	1,430	74,802	111,828	1,954,800
District of Columbia.....	560	2,075	9,038
Virginia.....	90	51	999,450	52,318	517	1,227,665	40,322	880,767	2,156,312	7,563,066
North Carolina.....	36	3	593,796	38,196	229	27,932	704	512,289	2,086,522	6,767,896
South Carolina.....	333	55	123	200	671	216,281	903,525	1,302,637
Georgia.....	5,387	622	813	50	1,614	732,514	1,838,968	6,339,762
Florida.....	50	6	18,971	75,582	514,685
Alabama.....	3,921	69	167	643	83,428	897,021	1,034,120	4,923,485
Mississippi.....	7	665	26	2	388	397,460	1,164,020	3,636,582
Louisiana.....	226,001	96,701	139,232	1,458,900
Texas.....	1,048	26	20	255	441,638	860,582	25,5719	1,106,082
Arkansas.....	15	9,330	18	192,338	638,217	1,162,913
Tennessee.....	456	15	12,291	821	38	1,585,657	7,223	1,033,572	3,137,810	6,401,765
Kentucky.....	16,432	141	368,131	1,923	1,923	437,195	30,070	1,158,019	2,458,128	6,462,598
Ohio.....	100	50	2,107,931	75,801	1,281	4,588,909	197,308	804,275	1,712,106	7,431,243
Michigan.....	446,882	188,880	1,552	339,292	840,347	1,928,327
Indiana.....	67	62	7,132	819	403	2,439,794	19,828	935,329	1,631,639	6,667,955
Illinois.....	83	53	581,699	33,888	387	2,821,642	180,325	935,329	1,631,639	6,667,955
Missouri.....	16,968	60	160,063	10,785	47	248,904	8,354	869,444	1,156,902	4,972,286
Iowa.....	627,160	13,696	186	178,910	6,395	1,628,972	1,674,705	3,867,106
Wisconsin.....	62,650	1,959	246	78,497	3,162	321,711	221,292	821,164
California.....	68,393	1,191	610,976	9,874	131,005	43,624	950,178
Minnesota.....	7,900	100,173
Minnesota Territory.....
Oregon Territory.....	640	2,950	2,840
Utah Territory.....	550	5	164,530
New Mexico Territory.....	67,956
Aggregate.....	33,294	1,799	7,715,961	562,312	10,843	34,249,886	217,481	12,700,606	11,833,867	27,481,399	109,486,757

COLLEGES AND PROFESSIONAL SCHOOLS IN THE UNITED STATES.

Name.	Place.	Presidents.	Found- ed.	In- struc- tors.	No. of Alumni.	No. of Minis- ters.	Stu- dents.	Volumes in Libra- ries.	Commencement.
1 Bowdoin.....	Brunswick.....Me	Leonard Woods, Jr., D.D.	1802	14	1,082	187	129	27,500	First Wednesday in September.
2 Waterville*.....	do.....do	David N. Sheldon, D.D.	1820	5	287	82	88	15,500	Second Wednesday in August.
3 Dartmouth.....	Hanover.....N. H.	Nathan Lord, D.D.	1769	10	3,710	800	287	25,000	Last Thursday in July.
4 University of Vermont.....	Burlington.....Vt.	Worthington Smith, D.D.	1791	7	472	78	107	13,000	First Wednesday in August.
5 Middlebury.....	Middlebury.....do	Benjamin Labaree, D.D.	1800	7	877	387	55	6,000	Third Wednesday in August.
6 Norwich University.....	Norwich.....do	Rev. Edward Bourne, LL.D.	1834	4	133	10	60	1,400	Third Wednesday and Thursday in August.
7 Harvard University.....	Cambridge.....Mass.	Rev. Sparks, LL.D.	1636	20	6,342	1,707	320	92,000	Third Wednesday in July.
8 Williams.....	Williamstown.....do	Mark Hopkins, D.D.	1783	8	1,317	420	208	13,751	Third Wednesday in August.
9 Amherst.....	Amherst.....do	Edward Hitchcock, D.D., LL.D.	1821	11	963	435	190	20,000	Second Thursday in August.
10 Holy Cross*.....	Worcester.....do	Rev. J. Barry.....	1843	9	Last week in August.
11 Brown University*.....	Providence.....R. I.	Francis Wayland, D.D.	1764	10	1,754	659	225	31,000	First Wednesday in September.
12 Yale.....	New Haven.....Conn.	T. D. Woolsey, D.D., LL.D.	1700	25	6,114	1,587	440	51,000	Last Thursday in July.
13 Trinity*.....	Hartford.....do	John Williams, D.D.	1824	13	300	130	79	15,000	Last Thursday in July.
14 Wesleyan University*.....	Middletown.....do	McClintock, D.D.	1831	7	402	185	110	12,000	First Wednesday in August.
15 Union.....	New York.....N. Y.	Charles King, LL.D.	1754	7	1,470	Last Wednesday in July.
16 Hamilton.....	Schenectady.....do	Eliphah North, D.D.	1795	13	2,805	630	227	15,000	Fourth Wednesday in July.
17 Madison University*.....	do.....do	Simon North, LL.D.	1812	9	784	209	132	12,000	Fourth Wednesday in July.
18 Genesee.....	Hamilton.....do	Stephen W. Taylor, LL.D.	1820	8	342	60	9,400	Third Wednesday in August.
19 University of New York.....	New York.....do	Benjamin Hale, D.D.	1825	5	131	26	42	5,400	First Wednesday in August.
20 University of Rochester*.....	do.....do	G. W. Beedree, D.D.	1850	8	320	Wednesday preceding 4th of July.
21 St. John's*.....	Rochester.....do	A. C. Kendrick, D.D., Ch. Faculty	1831	11	Second Wednesday in July.
22 College of New Jersey.....	Princeton.....N. J.	James Carnahan, D.D.	1747	15	3,184	588	250	17,500	Last Wednesday in June.
23 Rutgers.....	New Brunswick.....do	Theo. Frelinghuysen, LL.D.	1770	7	513	77	66	10,000	Fourth Wednesday in July.
24 Burlington*.....	Burlington.....do	George W. Deane, D.D., LL.D.	1846	29	September 23th.
25 University of Pennsylvania.....	Philadelphia.....Penn.	John Ludlow, D.D.	1755	7	5,142	The 15th, 16th, or 17th of July.
26 Dickinson*.....	Carlisle.....do	Charles Collins, D.D.	1783	8	673	165	179	14,100	Second Thursday in July.
27 Johnston.....	Canonsburg.....do	A. B. Brown, D.D.	1802	8	1,000	227	197	10,000	Second Wednesday in June.
28 Washington.....	Washington.....do	James Clark, D.D.	1806	8	600	Last Wednesday in September.
29 Alleghany*.....	Meadville.....do	John Parker, D.D.	1817	8	166	45	107	3,300	First Wednesday in July.
30 Pennsylvania.....	Gettysburg.....do	H. L. Baugher.....	1832	6	185	128	56	6,500	Fourth Wednesday in September.
31 Lafayette.....	Easton.....do	Howard Maccom, D.D.	1832	7	101	30	82	5,000	Third Wednesday in July.
32 Marshall.....	Meversburg.....do	Rev. W. S. F. Graham, A.M.	1849	5	155	76	58	6,000	Second Wednesday in September.
33 University at Lewisburg*.....	Newark.....do	Rever. Humphreys, D.D.	1833	6	78	42	43	7,500	Third Wednesday in August.
34 Delaware.....	Annapolis.....Md.	Rev. O. L. Jenkins, A.M.	1784	6	158	8	The 22d of February.
35 St. John's.....	Baltimore.....do	John McCaffrey, A.M.	1805	20	137	Third Tuesday in July.
36 St. Mary's*.....	Camden.....do	John B. Kerfoot, D.D.	1830	24	20	Last Wednesday in June.
37 Mount St. Mary's*.....	Washington co.....do	Rev. C. F. Chambers, Pres. of Trustees	1842	12	Last Thursday in June.
38 St. James's*.....	Washington.....do	Rev. C. H. Stonestreet.....	1789	5	August 20th.
39 Washington.....	Chestertown.....do	Rev. C. H. Bacon, D.D.	1821	10	200	Next the last of July.
40 Georgetown.....	Washington.....D. C.	Rev. John Johns.....	1821	10	Second Wednesday in July.
41 Columbian*.....	Washington.....do	Lewis S. Green, D.D.	1862	7	1,500	July 4th.
42 William and Mary*.....	Williamsburg.....Va.	1773	6	Second Wednesday in July.
43 Columbian*.....	Washington.....do	Second Wednesday in July.
44 Hampden-Sidney.....	Prince Edward co.....do	1773	6	Wednesday before 4th of July.

COLLEGES AND PROFESSIONAL SCHOOLS IN THE UNITED STATES—Continued.

Name.	Place.	Presidents.	Found- ed.	In- struc- tion.	No. of Alumni.	No. of Male stu- dents.	Volumes in Libra- ries.	Commencement.
St. Xavier ²	Cincinnati, Ohio.	George A. Carrel.....	1842	16	150	30	6,500	July 15th.
Ohio Wesleyan University.....	Delaware, Ohio.	Edward Thomson, M.D., D.D.....	1842	1	30	100	5,700	Second Wednesday in June.
Wittenberg.....	Springfield, Ohio.	Samuel Sprechen, D.D.....	1845	37	4,500	Third Wednesday in August.
Indiana State University.....	Bloomington, Ind.	Henry Barnard.....	1816	...	200	40	175	Wednesday next after 2d Monday in August.
Hanover.....	Bloomington, do.	T. E. Thomas, D.D.....	1852	7	147	58	4,000	First Wednesday in August.
Wabash.....	Crawfordsville, do.	Charles White, D.D.....	1854	7	74	24	43	Thursday nearest 25th of July.
Indiana Asbury University ¹	Greenfield, do.	J. W. Berry, D.D.....	1857	8	120	3	4,000	Third Wednesday in July.
Illinois.....	Jacksonville, Ill.	J. M. Sturdevant, D.D.....	1850	6	94	35	2,500	Second Thursday in June.
Shurtleiff*.....	Upper Alton, do.	Rev. N. N. Wood, D.D.....	1825	7	14	7	48	Fourth Thursday in June.
McKendree.....	Lehanon, do.	Rev. N. N. Wood, D.D.....	1825	6	75	24	7,000	First Thursday in July.
Knox.....	Galesburg, do.	Jonathan Blanchard.....	1837	7	32	5	3,300	Fourth Thursday in June.
University of St. Louis ²	St. Louis, Mo.	J. Van de Valde.....	1862	17	25	...	160	July 15th.
Mason.....	Cappe Girardeau, do.	Rev. R. Heneay.....	1851	5	13	...	7	Last Thursday in July.
St. Vincent's.....	Marion co., do.	J. Worthington Smith.....	1842	7	35	...	75	July 4th.
Missouri University.....	Columbia, do.	Rev. James Shannon.....	1837	4	17	...	20	Second Thursday in August.
St. Charles ¹	St. Charles, do.	John W. Robinson.....	1837	4	17	...	75	Third Wednesday in July.
Fayette.....	Fayette, do.	Archibald Peterson.....	1837	2	61	First Monday in October.
University of Michigan.....	Ann Arbor, Mich.	D. D. Whedon.....	1837	17	91	...	3,000	Fourth Wednesday in July.
St. Philip ²	Near Detroit, do.	Mr. Bowen.....	1839	4	800	Second Wednesday in July.
Wisconsin University.....	Madison, Wis.	John H. Lathrop, Chancellor	1848	3	26	...
Beloit.....	Beloit, Rock co., do.	Rev. Aaron L. Chapin.....	1847	6	3	...	25	...

The Colleges marked thus (*) are under the direction of the Episcopalians; thus (†) Methodists; thus (‡) Catholics. With respect to the Colleges which are unmarked, the prevailing religious influence of those that are in the New England States is Congregationalism, of most of the others, Presbyterianism.

ANNUAL COLLEGE EXPENSES.

Name.	Instruction.	Room-rent and other Coll. Exp.	Total College Charges.	Board.	Wool, Linen and Washings.
Knox.....	$24.00	$22.00	$46.00	39 weeks.....	$35.50
New Jersey.....	27.00	13.24	40.24	38 ".....	9.00
Harvard.....	75.00	15.00	90.00	40 ".....	57.00
Williams.....	30.00	9.00	39.00	39 ".....	70-90.00
Amherst.....	33.00	15.00	48.00	40 ".....	65.00
Brown.....	30.00	23.00	53.00	40 ".....	60.00
Yale.....	39.00	21.00	60.00	40 ".....	64-100.00
Wesleyan.....	36.00	11.95	47.95	39 or 39 weeks.....	58.50
Hamilton.....	26.00	14.00	40.00	38 weeks.....	88.00
New Jersey.....	60.00	23.14	83.14	40 weeks.....	80.00
Dickinson.....	33.00	14.00	47.00	43 ".....	75.25
University of Virginia.....	75.00	23.00	98.00	44 ".....	110.00
North Carolina University.....	56.00	11.00	67.00	40 ".....	90.00
Transylvania.....	40.00	12.00	52.00	40 ".....	100.00
Western Reserve.....	30.00	11.00	41.00	42 ".....	50.00

LAW SCHOOLS.

Name.	Places.	Professors.	Students.
Harvard University.....	Cambridge, Mass.....	3	124
Yale College.....	New Haven, Conn.....	2	26
University of Albany.....	Albany, N. Y.....	3	23
College of New Jersey.....	Princeton, N. J.....	3	8
Dickinson College.....	Carlisle, Pa.....	1	9
William and Mary College.....	Williamsburg, Va.....	1	32
University of Virginia.....	Charlottesville, Va.....	2	81
North Carolina University.....	Chapel Hill, N. C.....	1	10
Alabama University.....	Tuscaloosa, Ala.....	1	...
University of Louisiana.....	New Orleans, La.....	3	...
Transylvania University.....	Lexington, Ky.....	3	75
University of Louisville.....	Louisville, Ky.....	3	86
Cumberland University.....	Lebanon, Tenn.....	3	50
Cincinnati College.....	Cincinnati, Ohio.....	3	25
Indiana State University.....	Bloomington, Ind.....	2	29
Indiana Asbury University.....	Greencastle, Ind.....	1	...

THEOLOGICAL SCHOOLS.

Name.	Place.	Denominat-ion.	Commen- ced or ce- sation.	No. Pro- fes- sors.	Students year 1831-52.	Number educated.	Volumes in Library.
Bangor Theological Seminary.....	Me.	Congregational.	1816	3	37	202	7,000
Methodist General Biblical Institute.....	N. H.	Methodist.	1847	3	40	2,000
Gilmanston Theological Seminary.....	do.	Congregational.	1835	3	23	69	4,400
New Hampton Theological Seminary.....	do.	Baptist.	1825	2	36	2,000
Theological Seminary.....	Mass.	Congregational.	1807	6	87	1,006	21,259
Divinity School, Harvard University.....	do.	Congregational Unitarian.	1816	3	238	3,000
Theological Institution.....	do.	Baptist.	1825	4	201	5,500
Theological Department, Yale College.....	Conn.	Congregational.	1822	4	38	720	900
Theological Institution of Connecticut.....	do.	Congregational.	1834	3	17	151	5,000
Theological Institution, Episcopal Church.....	N. Y.	Protestant Episcopal.	1817	6	64	336	10,000
Union Theological Seminary.....	do.	Presbyterian.	1836	5	106	211	18,000
Theological Seminary of Auburn.....	do.	Presbyterian.	1821	4	30	650	6,000
Hamilton Literary and Theological Institution.....	do.	Baptist.	1820	2	12	243	8,000
Rochester Theological Seminary.....	do.	Baptist.	1850	2	29	6	3,000
Hartwick Seminary.....	do.	Lutheran.	1816	2	5	52	1,250
Theological Seminary, Associate Reformed Church.....	do.	Associate Reformed Church.	1836	1	11	143	3,200
Theological Seminary, Dutch Reformed Church.....	do.	Dutch Reformed.	1794	3	24	179	7,000
Theological Seminary, Presbyterian Church.....	N. J.	Presbyterian.	1812	5	163	1,626	11,000
Seminary, Lutheran Church.....	Penn.	Evangelical Lutheran.	1825	2	20	250	8,500
German Reformed.....	do.	German Reformed Church.	1825	2	18	121	6,000
Western Theological Seminary.....	do.	Presbyterian.	1828	2	48	252	6,000
Theological School.....	do.	Associate Church.	1792	2	33	147	2,000
Theological Seminary.....	do.	Associate Reformed.	1	3	35	85	1,500
Western Theological School.....	do.	Congregational Unitarian.	1844	4	10	9	8,000
Theological Seminary.....	do.	Reformed Presbyterian.	3	13
Episcopal Theological School of Virginia.....	Va.	Reformed Presbyterian.	1822	4	32	229	5,000
Union Theological Seminary.....	do.	Protestant Episcopal.	1824	3	20	175	4,000
Virginia Baptist Seminary.....	do.	Protestant Episcopal.	1832	3	67	1,000
Southern Theological Seminary.....	S. C.	Baptist.	1831	6	32	142	4,000
Theological Seminary.....	do.	Presbyterian.	1825	2	30	20	1,800
Turman Theological Seminary.....	do.	Lutheran.	1826	2	30	30	1,000
Merzer Theological Seminary.....	do.	Baptist.	1841	2	6	8	2,200
Howard Theological Institution.....	Ga.	Baptist.	1840	1	13	3	1,000
Western Baptist Theological Institution.....	Ala.	Baptist.	1840	1	18	9	2,000
South-west Theological Seminary.....	Ky.	Baptist.	1821	2	24	90	6,000
Lane Seminary.....	Tenn.	Presbyterian.	1829	3	36	257	10,500
Theological Department, Kenyon College.....	Ohio.	Presbyterian.	1823	4	14	30	4,900
Theological Department, Western Reserve College.....	do.	Protestant Episcopal.	1830	3	14
Granville Theological Department.....	do.	Protestant Episcopal.	1830	3	14
Oberlin Theological Department.....	do.	Baptist.	1832	2	8	500
Theological Seminary, Associate Reformed Church.....	do.	Congregational.	1835	3	22	139	300
Wittenberg.....	do.	Associate Reformed.	1839	1	12	31	1,500
Indiana Theological Seminary.....	do.	Christian.	1845	2	8
Alton Theological Seminary.....	Ind.	Presbyterian.	10
.....	Baptist.	1855

MEDICAL SCHOOLS.

Name.	Place.	Founded.	Professors.	Students.	Graduates.	Lectures commence.
Maine Medical School.....	Brunswick.....	1820	5	51	634	February 15th.
New Hampshire Medical School.....	Lancaster.....	1798	6	45	850	First week in August.
Castleton Medical College.....	Castleton.....	1818	7	104	555	Fourth Thursday in August.
Vermont Medical College.....	Woodsbrook.....	1835	7	90	332	First Thursday in March.
Medical School of Harvard University.....	Cambridge.....	1782	6	127	575	First Wednesday in November.
Berkshire Medical School.....	Pittsfield.....	1823	5	103	473	Last Thursday in September.
Medical Institute of Yale College.....	New Haven.....	1813	6	37	607	Last Thursday in September.
College of Physicians and Surgeons of New York.....	New York City.....	1807	6	219	852	First Monday in November.
Medical Institute of Geneva College.....	Geneva.....	1835	6	60	98	First Tuesday in October.
Medical Faculty of the University of New York.....	New York City.....	1837	6	421	597	Last Tuesday in October.
Albany Medical College.....	Albany.....	1839	8	114	58	First Tuesday in November.
Medical Department of the University of Pennsylvania.....	Philadelphia.....	1765	7	450	5,316	First Monday in November.
Jefferson Medical College.....	Philadelphia.....	1824	7	514	2,036	First Monday in November.
Medical Department of Pennsylvania.....	Philadelphia.....	1839	7	124	73	Second Monday in October.
Philadelphia College of Medicine.....	Philadelphia.....	1807	7	75	250	October 31st.
Washington Medical College.....	Baltimore.....	1807	6	100	909	First Monday in November.
Medical School of Columbia College.....	Baltimore.....	1825	6	25	First Monday in November.
Medical School of the University of Virginia.....	Washington.....	1825	6	40	81	First Monday in November.
Medical Department of Hampden-Sidney College.....	Charlottesville.....	1819	3	90	First Monday in October.
Winchester Medical College.....	Richmond.....	1838	7	96	40	October 13th.
Medical College of the State of South Carolina.....	Winchester.....	5	First Monday in October.
Medical College of Georgia.....	Charleston.....	1833	8	158	Second Monday in November.
Medical Department of the University of Louisiana.....	Augusta.....	1830	7	115	124	Second Monday in November.
Medical Department of the University of Nashville.....	New Orleans.....	1835	7	188	Third Monday in November.
Medical Department of Transylvania University.....	Nashville.....	1850	7	First Monday in November.
Medical Department of the University of Louisville.....	Lexington.....	1818	7	214	1,351	First Monday in November.
Western Reserve Medical College.....	Louisville.....	1837	7	202	53	First Monday in November.
Medical College of Ohio.....	Cleveland.....	1844	8	376	411	First Wednesday in November.
Western College of Homeopathic Medicine.....	Cincinnati.....	1819	8	130	331	First Monday in November.
Starling Medical College.....	Cleveland.....	1850	8	62	17	First Monday in November.
Indiana Medical College.....	Columbus.....	1847	8	124	53	First Monday in November.
Indiana Central Medical College.....	Columbus.....	1847	7	104	19	First Monday in November.
Rush Medical College.....	Laporte.....	1849	8	50	28	November 1st.
University of Michigan.....	Indianapolis.....	1819	6	70	16	First Monday in November.
Medical Department of Michigan.....	Ann Arbor.....	1837	6	95	First Wednesday in October.
Medical Department of St. Louis University.....	St. Louis.....	1836	9	72	109	November 1st.
Medical Department of Missouri University.....	Columbia.....	1840	7	92	First Monday in November.

TABLE OF POPULATION.—STATEMENT OF THE POPULATION IN EACH STATE AND TERRITORY, FROM 1790 TO 1850.

STATES.	Population in 1790.	Population in 1800.	Ratio of increase.	Population in 1810.	Ratio of increase.	Population in 1820.	Ratio of increase.	Population in 1830.	Ratio of increase.	Population in 1840.	Ratio of increase.	Population in 1850.	Ratio of increase.	Area in square miles.	No. in- habitants sq. m.	Represents to 100 Centes. No. Fract's.	Present No. of Reps.
New England States.
Maine.....	96,540	151,719	57.1	228,705	33.9	399,455	33.9	501,793	26.2	568,188	16.22	583,188	16.22	30,000	19.44	6	20,502
New Hampshire.....	141,899	183,762	29.5	214,300	16.6	244,161	13.9	269,328	10.3	291,974	5.0	317,364	11.73	9,281	34.26	3	36,771
Massachusetts.....	85,416	154,465	80.8	235,734	8.2	250,652	19.0	291,948	5.6	314,120	7.99	334,120	10.51	9,051	34.68	3	32,927
Rhode Island.....	378,717	423,245	11.7	472,040	11.5	528,287	10.9	610,408	16.6	737,089	20.8	994,489	34.81	7,801	127.49	11	497,189
Connecticut.....	69,110	69,122	77,031	11.4	83,039	7.8	97,199	17.0	108,830	11.9	147,544	35.57	1,306	132.97	10	63,813
Connecticut.....	208,141	251,022	5.4	292,942	4.3	276,232	5.0	297,167	8.1	309,978	4.1	370,791	19.61	4,671	79.33	4	89,598
Total.....	1,009,823	1,233,315	22.1	1,471,891	18.3	1,659,808	12.8	1,954,117	17.7	2,234,822	14.3	2,478,106	22.07	62,116	43.11
Middle States.
New York.....	340,120	586,756	72.5	959,049	63.4	1,272,812	43.1	1,918,608	39.7	2,428,921	26.6	3,097,394	27.52	46,000	67.33	33	4,271
New Jersey.....	184,139	211,949	15.1	245,555	15.9	277,575	13.5	320,823	15.5	373,906	16.3	449,555	16.3	8,390	58.24	5	20,811
Pennsylvania.....	434,373	602,365	38.6	810,091	34.4	1,049,458	29.5	1,248,233	28.5	1,724,033	27.9	2,311,786	31.49	46,000	50.25	25	62,242
Delaware.....	59,096	64,273	8.7	72,674	13.0	72,749	76,748	5.5	73,083	1.7	81,433	17.22	2,120	43.17
Maryland.....	319,728	341,548	6.8	380,546	11.4	407,550	7.9	447,040	9.7	470,019	5.1	583,038	24.04	3,355	62.31	0	78,232
Ohio.....	45,365	45,365	230,700	408.7	581,434	152.0	937,908	61.3	1,513,467	62.0	1,980,409	30.35	38,994	49.55	21	12,067
Total.....	1,337,456	1,892,256	38.49	2,698,675	45.09	3,767,378	39.37	5,049,355	34.24	6,983,831	30.58	8,568,713	29.72	151,760	56.36
Coast Planting States.
South Carolina.....	249,073	345,591	38.7	415,115	20.1	502,741	18.1	581,185	15.6	694,398	2.3	668,507	12.46	24,500	27.28	5	45,858
Georgia.....	82,548	162,101	96.4	252,433	55.1	240,987	35.1	516,823	51.2	691,392	33.8	905,969	31.03	68,000	15.62	8	3,478
Florida.....	34,730	54,477	56.8	87,401	60.43	59,224	1.47
Alabama.....	127,901	309,527	142.0	590,756	90.8	771,671	30.62	50,722	15.21	7	872,128
Mississippi.....	8,850	8,850	40,322	356.0	75,448	87.0	136,021	81.0	375,651	175.0	606,555	61.46	47,156	12.56	5	13,940
Louisiana.....	76,556	153,407	100.4	215,739	40.6	352,411	63.3	617,739	46.91	46,431	11.15	4	44,800
Texas.....	212,692	237,321	0.29
Total.....	331,021	510,542	55.76	784,456	51.86	1,200,484	53.03	1,794,625	49.49	2,659,085	48.16	3,170,464	33.80	24,500	52.33	8	1,865
Central Slave States.
Virginia.....	748,308	880,200	17.6	974,622	10.7	1,065,379	9.3	1,211,405	13.7	1,293,797	2.3	1,421,661	14.66	61,352	23.17	13	14,140
North Carolina.....	399,751	478,103	21.3	555,500	16.2	638,829	15.0	737,987	15.5	823,419	2.1	868,403	13.32	45,000	19.30	8	3,690
Tennessee.....	35,791	105,602	200.0	171,727	147.8	422,813	61.5	681,904	61.3	1,002,625	29.91	1,454,040	21.58	45,000	20.58	10	63,291
Kentucky.....	73,077	229,355	200.0	406,511	83.1	564,317	38.8	687,917	21.9	776,828	13.3	982,405	25.68	37,480	29.67	10	84,433
Missouri.....	29,845	66,586	219.5	140,455	113.9	383,702	173.2	628,043	77.75	67,381	10.12	7	884,088
Arkansas.....	14,273	30,388	121.9	97,574	221.1	209,639	114.85	52,119	44.01	2	3,384
Total.....	1,259,927	1,684,860	34.68	2,219,205	31.71	2,772,197	24.91	3,400,056	25.89	4,083,530	17.0	5,107,276	26.53	304,210	16.71
North-western States.
Indiana.....	4,875	24,520	403.0	147,178	500.2	343,031	133.0	685,866	99.9	988,416	44.11	32,809	29.23	11	51,106
Illinois.....	12,252	56,211	349.5	167,445	185.2	476,183	202.4	831,470	78.31	55,105	15.46	9	7,891
Michigan.....	4,762	8,896	36.8	31,039	256.6	212,267	570.9	397,054	87.33	56,243	7.97	4	27,750
Wisconsin.....	30,945	3	23,968
Iowa.....	50,914	2	4,752
Total.....	4,876	41,564	752.99	211,255	408.33	632,116	151.84	1,448,373	172.19	2,731,945	88.82	250,265	10.92

California†	14,093	24,023	36.8	33,039	37.5	39,894	29.2	43,712	23.3	165,000	188,982	2
District of Columbia	51,687	60,861.45
Territories.
Minnesota Territory	6,077	83,000
New Mexico Territory	61,547	219,774
Oregon Territory	13,293	341,463
Utah Territory	11,380	187,923
Seamen in United States service	5,318
Grand total	3,929,827	5,305,941	35.01	7,239,814	36.45	9,638,191	33.12	12,866,020	33.48	17,069,453	32.67	23,263,488	36.28	3,230,572	7.2	233

* Have the addition on account of the fractions.

† The population of California is set down at 165,000, as an approximation to the real population, which may be essentially varied by complete returns. Should the returns vary from our estimate so far as to reduce the population of California 30,000, South Carolina will be entitled to a member additional, as being next above on the list of fractions. The official returns of California will slightly affect the calculation respecting the aggregate increase of the free population for the year 1850. Ratio of representation, 93,731.

Since the foregoing note was prepared, by a special act of Congress, rendered necessary from the incompleteness of the California returns, one member in the House of Representatives has been accorded to South Carolina, in accordance with the official returns, and two members acceded to California. The whole number of members is increased to two hundred and thirty-four, which is to be the number of the representatives of the several States, to the year 1860, under the present Census.

STATEMENT OF POPULATION BY CLASSES DECENNIALLY, FROM 1790 TO 1850, INCLUSIVE.

	Population in 1790.	Population in 1800.	Ratio of increase.	Population in 1810.	Ratio of increase.	Population in 1820.	Ratio of increase.	Population in 1830.	Ratio of increase.	Population in 1840.	Ratio of increase.	Population in 1850.	Ratio of increase.
Whites	3,172,464	4,304,489	35.7	5,862,004	36.2	7,865,569	34.19	10,532,060	33.95	14,189,705	34.71	19,630,738	38.28
Free colored	59,466	108,395	82.2	186,446	72.2	233,524	25.25	319,599	36.85	386,292	20.86	428,661	10.96
Slaves	607,897	893,057	27.9	1,191,364	33.4	1,538,098	29.10	2,000,043	30.61	2,487,356	23.80	3,201,089	28.31
Seamen in United States service
Total	3,929,827	5,305,941	7,239,814	9,638,191	12,866,020	17,069,453	23,263,488
Total free	3,231,930	4,412,884	36.4	6,048,450	37.0	8,100,093	33.92	10,856,977	34.03	14,582,097	34.31	20,059,399	37.56
Total colored population, free and slaves	757,303	1,001,452	32.2	1,377,510	37.6	1,771,622	28.58	2,328,642	31.44	2,873,648	23.4	3,632,750	26.41

* Added to white population.

MILITARY POSTS IN THE UNITED STATES.

Taken, by permission, from the American Almanac, for 1854.

NOTE.—The garrisons of the posts marked thus * are given in the list as they will be after certain changes now (November 1, 1853) being made are completed.

Posts.	State or Territory.	Post-Office.	Permanent Commanders.	Garrison.
DEPARTMENT OF THE EAST.
Fort Sullivan.....	Maine.....	Eastport.....	Garrison withdrawn.
Fort Preble.....	do.....	Portland.....	Garrison withdrawn.
Fort Constitution.....	New Hampshire..	Portsmouth.....	Garrison withdrawn.
Fort Independence.....	Massachusetts....	Boston.....	Bvt. Maj. J. B. Scott, 4th art....	4th artillery.
Fort Warren.....	do.....	do.....	Not garrisoned.
Fort Adams }.....	Rhode Island.....	Newport.....	Garrison withdrawn.
Fort Wolcott }.....	Connecticut.....	New London.....	Garrison withdrawn.
Fort Trumbull.....	New York.....	New York.....	Bvt. Maj. Morris, 4th art.....	4th artillery.
Fort Hamilton.....	New York Harbor, New York,	{ do.....	Garrison withdrawn.
Fort Wood }.....		{ do.....
Fort Lafayette }.....		{ do.....
Fort Niagara.....	New York.....	Youngstown.....	Capt. J. P. McCown, 4th art....	4th artillery.
Fort Ontario.....	do.....	Oswego.....	Garrison withdrawn.
Madison Barracks.....	do.....	Sacket's Harbor..	Garrison withdrawn.
Plattsburg Barracks.....	do.....	Plattsburg.....	Garrison withdrawn.
Fort Mifflin.....	Pennsylvania.....	Philadelphia.....	Garrison withdrawn.
Carlisle Barracks.....	do.....	Carlisle.....	Garrison withdrawn.
Fort McHenry.....	Maryland.....	Baltimore.....	Bvt. Col. Gardner, 1st art.....	1st artillery.
Fort Washington.....	do.....	Fort Washington..	Garrison withdrawn.
*Fort Monroe.....	Virginia.....	Old Point Comfort	Col. Crane, 1st artillery.....	1st artillery.
Fort Johnson }.....	North Carolina..	Smithville.....	Garrison withdrawn.
Fort Caswell }.....		do.....	Beaufort.....	Garrison withdrawn.
Fort Macon.....	do.....	Charleston.....	Bvt. Col. Dimick, 1st artillery...	1st artillery.
*Fort Moultrie.....	South Carolina....	do.....	Garrison withdrawn.
Castle Pinckney }.....	Georgia.....	Savannah.....	Bvt. Maj. J. A. Haskin, 1st art..	1st artillery.
Fort Sumter }.....		do.....
Oglethorpe Barracks.....	do.....	Key West.....	Capt. I. Vogdes, 1st artillery...	1st artillery.
*Fort Capron.....	do.....	Via Tampa.....	Capt. Pratt, 2d artillery.....	2d artillery.
Key West Barracks.....	do.....	do.....	Bvt. Maj. Arnold, 2d artillery...	2d artillery.
*Fort Myers.....	do.....	Tampa.....	Bvt. Col. Munroe, 2d artillery...	2d artillery.
*Fort Meade.....	do.....	Pensacola.....	{ Bvt. Brig. Gen. J. Bankhead, } 2d artillery.	2d artillery.
*Fort Brooke.....	do.....
Fort Pickens.....	do.....	St. Augustine.....	Garrison withdrawn.
*Barrancas Bar'ks }.....	do.....	New Smyrna.....	Garrison withdrawn.
Fort McRee }.....		do.....	Mobile.....	Garrison withdrawn.
Fort Marion.....	Alabama.....	Baton Rouge.....	Lieut. Col. Erving, 2d artillery...	2d artillery.
New Smyrna.....	do.....	Fort Pike.....	Garrison withdrawn.
*Fort Morgan.....	Louisiana.....	New Orleans.....	Garrison withdrawn.
*Baton Rouge Barracks	do.....	do.....	Garrison withdrawn.
Fort Pike.....	do.....	do.....	Garrison withdrawn.
Fort Macomb.....	do.....	do.....	Garrison withdrawn.
Fort Jackson.....	do.....	do.....	Garrison withdrawn.
New Orleans Barracks..	do.....	do.....	Garrison withdrawn.
Newport Barracks.....	Kentucky.....	Newport.....	Garrison withdrawn.
Fort Brady.....	Michigan.....	Sant Ste. Marie...	Capt. Clarke, 4th artillery.....	4th artillery.
Fort Mackinac.....	do.....	Mackinac.....	Bvt. Maj. T. Williams, 4th art..	4th artillery.
Fort Gratiot.....	do.....	Fort Gratiot.....	Garrison withdrawn.
DEPARTMENT OF THE WEST.
Fort Gibson.....	Arkansas.....	Fort Gibson.....	Bvt. Lieut. Col. Bragg, 3d art....	3 art. and 7 inf.
Fort Smith.....	do.....	Fort Smith.....	Col. H. Wilson, 7th infantry...	7th infantry.
Fort Towson.....	do.....	Fort Towson.....	Bvt. Maj. D. P. Whitlog, 7th inf.	7th infantry.
Fort Washita.....	do.....	Fort Washita.....	Bvt. Maj. T. H. Holmes, 7th inf.	2 art. and 7 inf.
Fort Arbuckle.....	do.....	do.....	Capt. Simmons, 7th infantry...	7th infantry.
Fort Leavenworth.....	Missouri.....	Fort Leavenworth	Col. Fauntleroy, 1st drag.....	1 drag. and 4 art
Fort Scott.....	do.....	Fort Scott.....	Garrison withdrawn.
Fort Dodge.....	Iowa.....	Keokuk.....	Garrison withdrawn.
Fort Ripley.....	Minnesota Ter....	Fort Ripley.....	Capt. J. B. S. Todd, 6th inf.....	6th infantry.
Fort Snelling.....	do.....	Fort Snelling.....	Bvt. Col. Francis Lee, 6th inf...	1 drag. and 3 art.
Fort Ridgely.....	do.....	Trav. de Sioux....	Bvt. Maj. S. Woods, 6th inf.....	6th infantry.
Fort Riley.....	Nebraska Ter.....	{ Via Fort Lea- venworth, Mo. Via Independ- ence, Mo.	Maj. A. Cady, 6th infantry.....	6th infantry.
Fort Laramie.....	Oregon Route.....	do.....	Lieut. Garnett, 6th infantry....	6th infantry.
Fort Kearny.....	do.....	Via Austin, Iowa..	Capt. Wharton, 6th infantry...	6th infantry.
Fort Atkinson.....	Santa Fé Route....	{ Via Fort Lea- venworth, Mo.	Garrison withdrawn.
Fort Belknap.....	Texas.....	Via Waco, Texas..	Major La Motte, 5th infantry...	2 drag. and 5 inf.

† Six companies of the 3d artillery are at Fort Columbus, preparatory to embarkation for the Pacific. November 1st, 1853.

MILITARY POSTS IN THE UNITED STATES—Continued.

Posts.	State or Territory.	Post-Office.	Permanent Commanders.	Garrison.
DEPARTMENT OF TEXAS.
Fort Merrill.....	Texas.....	Via Corpus Christi	Capt. Duncan, rifles.....	Mounted rifles.
Fort Ewell.....	do.....	do.....	Bvt. Col. W. W. Loring, rifles.....	Mounted rifles.
Fort Brown.....	do.....	Brownville.....	Maj. Porter, 4th artillery.....	4th artillery.
Ringgold Barracks.....	do.....	Rio Grande City.....	Lieut. Col. Seawell, 8th inf.....	8th infantry.
Fort McIntosh.....	do.....	Laredo.....	Col. Gustavus Loomis, 5th inf.....	5th infantry.
Fort Duncan.....	do.....	Via San Antonio..	Lieut. Col. Bainbridge, 1st inf.....	1st infantry.
Fort Clark.....	do.....	do.....	Capt. King, 1st infantry.....	1st infantry.
Fort Inge.....	do.....	do.....	Maj. G. B. Crittenden.....	Mounted rifles.
Fort Mason.....	do.....	do.....	Bvt. Col. C. A. May, 2d drag.....	2d dragoons.
Fort Terrett.....	do.....	do.....	Capt. Grainger, 1st infantry.....	2 drag. and 1 inf.
Fort McAnett.....	do.....	do.....	Bvt. Lt. Col. Bomford, 8th inf.....	2 drag. and 8 inf.
Fort Chadbourne.....	do.....	do.....	Bvt. Lt. Col. Hardee, 2d drag.....	2 drag. and 8 inf.
Clear Fork of Brazos.....	do.....	Via Waco.....	Capt. Sibley, 5th infantry.....	2 drag. and 5 inf.
El Paso del Norte.....	do.....	Via San Antonio..	Bvt. Lt. Col. Alexander, 8th inf.....	8th infantry.
DEPARTMENT OF NEW MEXICO.
Fort Union.....	New Mexico.....	[Mo. Via Independence,	Capt. Macrae, 3d infantry.....	1 drag. 2 art. 3 inf.
Fort Marcy.....	do.....	do.....	Bvt. Maj. Brooks, 3d infantry.....	3d infantry.
Fort Conrad.....	do.....	do.....	Bvt. Lieut. Col. Chandler, 3d inf.....	2 drag. and 3 inf.
Fort Fillmore.....	do.....	do.....	Maj. E. Backus, 3d inf.....	2 drag. and 3 inf.
Fort Webster.....	do.....	do.....	Maj. Steen, 2d dragoons.....	1 & 2 drag. & 3 inf.
Fort Defiance.....	do.....	do.....	Bvt. Maj. Kendrick, 2 art.....	2 art. and 3 inf.
Fort Massachusetts.....	do.....	do.....	Maj. G. A. H. Blake, 1st drag.....	1 drag. and 3 inf.
Las Lunas.....	do.....	do.....	Capt. Ewell, 1st drag.....	1st dragoons.
Albuquerque.....	do.....	do.....	Bvt. Brig. Gen. Garland.....
Cantonment Burgwin.....	do.....	do.....	Lieut. Ransom, 1st drag.....	1st dragoons.
DEPARTMENT OF THE PACIFIC.*
Fort Yuma.....	California.....	Via San Diego.....	Bvt. Maj. Heintzelman, 2d inf.....	2d infantry.
Mission of San Diego.....	do.....	San Diego.....	Capt. Benton, 3d art.....	1st and 3d art.
Rancho de Jurupa.....	do.....	Via San Diego.....	Capt. C. S. Lovel, 2d inf.....	2d infantry.
Fort Miller.....	do.....	Stockton.....	Bvt. Maj. Wessels, 2d inf.....	2d infantry.
Presidio of S. Francisco	do.....	San Francisco.....	Capt. Keyes, 3d art.....	3d artillery.
Benicia Barracks.....	do.....	Benicia.....	Maj. Day, 2d inf.....	2d infantry.
Fort Reading.....	do.....	Cottonwood.....	Maj. Wright, 4th inf.....	2d and 4th inf.
Fort Jones.....	do.....	Via Yuks.....	Capt. Judah, 4th inf.....	1 drag. and 4 inf.
Fort Humboldt.....	do.....	Via San Francisco	Bvt. Lt. Col. Buchanan, 4th inf.....	4th infantry.
Fort Vancouver.....	Washington Ter..	Vancouver.....	Lieut. Col. Bonneville, 4th inf.....	4th infantry.
Fort Dalles.....	Oregon.....	Dalles of Columbia	Maj. Rains, 4th inf.....	4th infantry.
Fort Orford.....	do.....	Fort Orford.....	Capt. Smith, 1st drag.....	1st dragoons.
Stellacoom.....	Washington Ter..	Nesqually.....	Bvt. Maj. Larnard, 4th inf.....	7th infantry.
MILITARY ACADEMY.
West Point.....	New York.....	West Point.....	Bvt. Col. Lee, Engineers.
RECRUITING DEPÔTS.
Fort Columbus.....	New York.....	New York.....	Bvt. Maj. Sprague, 8th inf.
Jefferson Barracks.....	Missouri.....	Jefferson Barracks	Bvt. Maj. Ruff, mtd. rifles.
Newport Barracks.....	Newport.....	Newport.....	Bvt. Lt. Col. Hoffman, 6th inf.

MILITARY COMMANDS. †

Department of the East.

The country east of the Mississippi river; head-quarters at Baltimore, Md. Brevet Major-Gen. John E. Wool, Commander.

Department of the West.

The country west of the Mississippi river, and east of the Rocky Mountains, except the Departments of Texas and New Mexico; head-quarters at St. Louis, Mo. Brevet Major-Gen. David E. Twiggs, Commander.

Department of Texas.

The State of Texas, except the country north of the 33d degree of north latitude; head-quarters at Corpus Christi, Texas. Brevet Major-Gen. Persifer F. Smith, Commander.

Department of New Mexico.

The Territory of New Mexico, except the country west of the 110th degree of west longitude; head-quarters at Albuquerque, New Mexico. Brevet Brig. Gen. John Garland, Commander.

Department of the Pacific.

The country west of the Rocky mountains, except the Territory of Utah and the Department of New Mexico; head-quarters at San Francisco, California. Brevet Brig. Gen. E. A. Hitchcock, Commander.

* Orders have been given for the relief of the 2d infantry.

† The former arrangement of Military Geographical Divisions and Departments was abolished, and these Military Commands were substituted therefor, by a General Order dated October 31, 1853.

RAILROADS IN THE UNITED STATES.

No.	Name of Railroad, and Places connected.	Miles completed.	Miles in progress.	Total length.	When finished.	Cost.
MAINE.
1	Androscoggin, from Leeds Station, on the Androscoggin and Kennebec R. R., through Farmington to W. Central Maine	20	18
2	Androscoggin and Kennebec, from Portland to Waterville...	55	...	55	Dec. 1, 1850.	$2,064,459
3	Atlantic and St. Lawrence, from Portland to Montreal. Total length, 292 miles; length and cost to Island Pond.....	149	...	149	July 18, 1853.	5,150,278
4	Bangor and Piscataquis, from Bangor to Old Town.....	12	...	12	Dec. 10, 1846.	350,000
5	Bath Branch, from Brunswick to Bath.....	9	...	9
6	Belfast and Moosehead Lake, from Belfast to Moosehead Lake	80
7	Belfast and Waterville, from Belfast to Waterville.....	40
8	Buckfield Branch, from Mechanic Falls to Buckfield.....	13	17	30
9	Calais and Baring, from Calais to Baring.....	6	...	6	Dec. 20, 1852.	100,000
10	Calais and Baring Branch.....	5½	...	5½
11	Damariscotta, from Damariscotta Village to the head of navigation on Damariscotta river.....	8
12	European and N. American, from Portland to Halifax, N. B.*	...	8	8
13	Great Falls and South Berwick, from Great Falls to S. Berwick	9	...	9	Dec. 25, 1851.	270,000
14	Franklin, from Machiasport to Whitneyville.....	60	Nov. 1, 1852.	1,000,000
15	Kennebec and Portland, from Portland to Augusta.....	60	...	60
16	Lewiston and Topsham, from Lewiston to Topsham.....	20
17	Newport and Dexter, from Newport to Dexter.....	15
18	Penobscot and Kennebec.....
19	Portland, Saco and Portsmouth, from Portland to Portsmouth Boston and Maine. See No. 55.	52	...	52	Nov. 22, 1842.	1,459,384
20	Sebago Branch.....	...	9	9
21	York and Cumberland, from Portland to Great Falls.....	18	35	53
22	Vassalborough and China, from Vassalborough to China.....	15
23	Old Town and Lincoln, from Old Town through Lincoln to the Valley of the St. John.....	...	33	...
NEW HAMPSHIRE.
24	Atlantic and St. Lawrence See No. 3.	23	...	23	Dec. 31, 1850.	496,985
25	Ashuelot, from Keene to South Vernon.....	93	May 30, 1853.	2,540,217
26	Boston, Concord and Montreal, from Concord to Wells River Junction.....	93	...	13
27	Bristol Branch, from Franklin to Bristol.....	13	...	54	Nov. 20, 1849.	3,002,094
28	Cheshire, from South Ashburnham to Bellows Falls.....	54	...	28	Oct. 15, 1849.
29	Cocheo, from Dover to Alton Bay.....	28	...	35	Nov. 10, 1846.	1,409,098
30	Concord, from Concord to Nashua.....	35	...	26
31	Merrimaek and Connecticut Rivers, formerly Concord and Claremont, from Concord to Claremont.....	25	26	51	Oct. 14, 1851.	600,000
32	Merrimaek and Connecticut Rivers, formerly New Hampshire Central, from Manchester to Henniker.....	26	...	14	Dec. 5, 1850.	219,450
33	Contocook Valley, from Contocookville to Hillsboro' Bridge. Eastern. See No. 65.	14	...	3	Oct. 1, 1843.	60,000
34	Great Falls Branch, from Rollingsford to Great Falls.....	3	...	13	Nov. 30, 1849.	300,000
35	Great Falls and Conway, from Great Falls to Milton.....	13	...	26	Dec. 19, 1849.	717,543
36	Manchester and Lawrence, from Manchester to Lawrence.....	26	...	69	Nov. 9, 1849.	3,000,000
37	Northern, from Concord to West Lebanon.....	69	...	47	Aug. 23, 1852.	1,400,000
38	Portsmouth and Concord, from Portsmouth to Concord.....	47	...	26	Dec. 4, 1850.	673,500
39	Sullivan, from Bellows Falls to Windsor.....	26	...	15	Sept. 29, 1851.	600,000
40	White Mountains, from Wells river to Littleton.....	15
41	Wilton, from Wilton to Nashville.....	15
42	Worcester and Nashua. See No. 103.
43	Nashua and Lowell. See No. 50.
VERMONT.
44	Atlantic and St. Lawrence. See No. 3.	6	...	6
45	Bennington Branch of the Western Vermont Railroad.....	21	...	21
46	Brattleborough Branch, from Grout's Corner to Brattleboro'	7	...	7
47	Burlington Branch, from Essex Junction to Burlington.....	114		1,500,000
48	Connecticut and Passumpsic Rivers, from White River Junction to Derby Line.....	61	53	114	Dec. 1, 1851.	5,577,467
49	Rutland and Burlington, from Bellows' Falls to Burlington	120	...	11	Nov. 1, 1851.	250,000
50	Rutland and Washington, from Rutland to Castleton.....	11	...	32	Aug. 16, 1852.	700,000
51	Missisque Pay, from the Vermont Central to Island Pond..	32	...	46	Dec. 15, 1850.	1,500,000
52	Vermont and Canada, from Essex Junction to Rouse's Point	46	...	24	Dec. 20, 1851.	1,000,000
53	Vermont Valley, from Bellows' Falls to Brattleborough.....	24	...	53	June 25, 1852.	2,000,000
54	Western Vermont, from Bennington to Rutland.....	53	...	156
55	Vermont Central, from Windsor to Rouse's Point.....	156	...	156

* The commencement of this road was celebrated at St. John's on the 14th of September last, (1853.) It is also understood that the company are prepared to commence building from Bangor to Unity, a distance of 32 miles, with one line extending to Waterville, 18 miles, and another to Augusta, 30 miles; making the whole distance from Portland to Bangor, by the former route, 137½ miles, and by the latter, 122 miles. No survey has yet been made from Bangor to the state line.

RAILROADS IN THE UNITED STATES—Continued.

No.	Name of Railroad, and Places connected.	Miles completed.	Miles in progress.	Total length.	When finished.	Cost.
MASSACHUSETTS.
	Amherst and Belchertown. See No. 117.
52	Berkshire. See No. 111.
53	Boston, Barre and Gardner, from Gardner to Barre.....	26	...	26	June 24, 1835.	$1,995,249
54	Boston and Lowell, from Boston to Lowell.....	74	...	74	July 24, 1843.	4,690,452
55	Boston and Maine, from Boston to Berwick Junction.....	43	...	43	June 11, 1835.
56	Boston and Providence, from Boston to Providence.....	45	...	45	July 3, 1835.
57	Boston and Worcester, from Boston to Worcester.....	28	...	28	Jan. 31, 1848.	633,906
58	Cape Cod Branch, from Middleborough to Sandwich.....	12	...	12	Dec. 15, 1852.	400,000
59	Charles River Branch, from Boston to Newton Upper Falls.
60	Charles River.....
	Cheshire. See No. 27.
61	Connecticut River, from Springfield to South Vernon.....	50	...	50	Nov. 1, 1847.	1,801,946
62	Danvers and Georgetown, from Danvers to Georgetown.....	15
63	Dedham Branch of the Boston and Providence Railroad.....	2	...	2
64	Dorchester and Milton Branch, from Neponset to Milton Upper Mills.....	3	...	3	May 1, 1847.	129,390
65	Eastern, from Boston to Berwick Junction.....	67	...	67	Nov. 9, 1840.	3,632,340
66	Essex, from Salem to Lawrence.....	21	...	21	Mar. 1, 1849.	602,136
67	Fall River, from Fall River to South Braintree.....	42	...	42	June 9, 1845.	1,050,000
68	Fitchburg, from Boston to Fitchburg.....	50	...	50	Mar. 5, 1845.
69	Fitchburg and Worcester, from Fitchburg to Worcester.....	14	...	14	Feb. 11, 1850.	305,410
70	Grand Junction.....	7	...	7		919,397
71	Gloucester Branch, from Beverly to Gloucester.....	14	...	14
72	Harvard Branch, from Somerville to Harvard.....	1	...	1	Dec. 31, 1849.	25,701
	Hudson and Berkshire. See No. 140.
73	Lexington and W.Cambridge, from W.Cambridge to Lexington	6	...	6	Sept. 1, 1846.	240,368
74	Lancaster and Sterling Branch, from S.Acton to Feltonville	9	...	9
75	Lowell and Lawrence, from Lowell to Lawrence.....	12	...	12	July 1, 1848.	343,467
76	Marlborough Branch, from Fentonville to Marlborough.....	2½	...	2½
77	Marblehead Branch, from Salem to Marblehead.....	4	...	4
78	Medford Branch, from Malden to Medford.....	1½	...	1½
79	Medway Branch, from North Wrentham to Medway.....	5	...	5
80	Nashua and Lowell, from Nashua to Lowell.....	15	...	15	Oct. 8, 1838.	651,215
81	New Bedford and Taunton, from New Bedford to Taunton..	20	...	20	July 2, 1840.	520,475
82	Newburyport, from Newburyport to Bradford.....	15	...	15	May 23, 1850.	200,000
	New London, Willimantic and Palmer. See No. 117.
	New Haven, Hartford and Springfield. See No. 114.
	New York and Boston Air-line. See No. 118.
83	Norfolk County, from Blackstone to Dedham.....	26	...	26	April 23, 1849.	1,245,927
	Norwich and Worcester. See No. 120.....	59	...	59
84	Old Colony, from Boston to Plymouth.....	37	...	37	Nov. 10, 1845.
	New Haven and Northampton. See No. 115.
85	Bridgewater Branch, from South Abington to Bridgewater.	7	...	7
86	Peterboro' and Shirley, from Groton to Mason Village, N. H.	23	...	23	Feb. 5, 1848.
87	Pittsfield and North Adams, from Pittsfield to North Adams	19	...	19	Oct. 8, 1846.	443,678
88	Providence and Bristol.....
89	Salem and Lowell, from Salem to Lowell.....	17	...	17	Aug. 5, 1850.	343,221
90	Saugus Branch, from the Eastern Railroad to Lynn.....	9	...	9		175,000
91	South Bridge and Blackstone.....
92	South Reading Branch, from South Reading to Salem.....	9	...	9	Sept. 1, 1850.	293,760
93	South Shore, from Braintree to Cohasset.....	12	...	12	Jan. 1, 1849.	427,689
94	Stockbridge and Pittsfield.....	22	...	22	Jan. 1, 1850.	448,700
95	Stony Brook, from Groton to Chelmsford.....	13	...	13	July 1, 1848.	265,762
96	Stoughton Branch, from Stoughton to Canton.....	4	...	4	April 7, 1845.	93,433
97	Taunton Branch, from Taunton to Mansfield.....	12	...	12	Aug. 8, 1844.	307,136
98	Troy and Greenfield (continued to Boston.).....
99	Vermont and Massachusetts, from Fitchburg to Greenfield.	56	...	56
100	Ware River.....
101	Western, from Worcester to Albany.....	155	...	155	Dec. 21, 1841.	9,953,759
102	W. Stockbridge, from the State Line Station to W.Stockbridge	3	...	3	Nov. 30, 1848.	41,516
103	Worcester and Nashua, from Worcester to Nashua.....	46	...	46	Dec. 15, 1848.	1,321,945
RHODE ISLAND.
	New York and Boston Air-line. See No. 118.
104	Providence and Plainfield, from Providence to Plainfield, Conn.	...	32	32
105	Providence and Stonington, from Providence to Stonington.	50	...	50	Nov. 10, 1837.	2,614,484
106	Providence and Worcester, from Providence to Worcester...	43	...	43	Oct. 20, 1847.	1,731,498
107	Woonsocket Union, from the W. to the N. E. line of the state	18
CONNECTICUT.
108	Collinsville Branch, from Plainville to Collinsville.....	11	...	11	Dec. 31, 1851.	275,000
109	Danbury and Norwalk, from Danbury to Norwalk.....	24	...	24	May 26, 1852.	500,000
110	Hartford, Providence and Fishkill.....	50	96	146
111	Housatonic, including the Berkshire Railroad, from Bridge- port to Pittsfield.....	110	...	110	Feb. 12, 1840.	2,500,000
112	Middletown Branch, from Berlin to Middletown.....	10	...	10	Nov. 30, 1851.	250,000
113	Naugatuck, from its junction with the New York and New Haven Railroad to Winsted.....	57	...	57	Oct. 31, 1849.	1,368,152
114	New Haven, Hartford and Springfield.....	62	...	62	Nov. 30, 1841.	1,650,000
115	New Haven and Northampton.....	4*	...	45	Nov. 30, 1850.	1,500,000

RAILROADS IN THE UNITED STATES—Continued.

No.	Name of Railroad, and Places connected.	Miles completed.	Miles in progress.	Total length.	When finished.	Cost.
CONNECTICUT—Continued.
116	New Haven and New London, from N. Haven to N. London	55	...	55	June 20, 1852.	$1,380,610
117	New London, Willimantic and Palmer, (including the Amherst and Belchertown), from New London to Palmer.....	66	...	66	Sept. 1, 1850.	1,151,111
118	New York and Boston Air-line, from New York to Boston.....
119	New York and New Haven, from New York to New Haven	76	...	76	Dec. 31, 1849.	4,978,487
120	Norwich and Worcester, from Norwich to Worcester.....	59	...	59
121	New London and Stonington, from N. London to Stonington	...	10	10
122	Housatonic Branch.....	11	...	11	Dec. 31, 1850.	275,000
NEW YORK.
123	New York and Erie, from Jersey City and Piermont to Dunkirk.....	464	...	464	July 15, 1851.	31,301,806
124	Albany and Schenectady, from Albany to Schenectady.....	17	...	17	Sept. 24, 1831.	1,740,450
125	Utica and Schenectady, from Utica to Schenectady.....	78	...	78	Aug. 1, 1836.	3,971,156
126	Syracuse and Utica, from Syracuse to Utica.....	53	...	53	July 3, 1839.	2,570,982
127	Rochester and Syracuse, direct.....	80	...	80
128	Rochester, Lockport, and Niagara Falls, from Rochester to Niagara Falls.....	76	...	76	July 1, 1852.	1,375,500
129	Buffalo and Rochester, from Buffalo to Rochester.....	76	...	76	Dec. 20, 1842.	2,268,976
130	Auburn and Canandaigua Branch of Central Railroad, from Syracuse to Rochester.....	104	...	104	June 1, 1839.	...
131	Schenectady and Troy Branch of the New York Central.....	20	...	20	Dec. 20, 1842.	681,047
132	New York Central Railroad, composed of the 8 last-named lines. Consolidated in 1853.....	504	...	504	1853.	24,974,423
133	Buffalo and New York City, from Buffalo to Hornellsville.....	91	...	91	1853.	1,500,000
134	Buffalo and Conhocton Valley, or Buffalo, Corning and New York, from Corning to Batavia.....	132	...	132	2,000,000
135	Buffalo and State Line, from Buffalo to the Pennsylvania line	69	...	69	Feb. 23, 1852.	2,000,000
136	Canandaigua and Elmira, from Canandaigua to Elmira.....	67	...	67	1,851.
137	Canandaigua and Niagara Falls.....	50	47	97	3,500,000
138	Hudson River, from New York to Albany and Troy.....	150	...	150	Oct. 1, 1851.	10,345,805
139	Harlem, from New York to Chatham Four Corners.....	130	...	130	Jan. 19, 1852.	6,102,935
140	Hudson and Berkshire, from Hudson to West Stockbridge.	34	...	34	Dec. 10, 1841.	823,331
141	Long Island, from Brooklyn to Greenport.....	95	...	95	Aug. 5, 1844.	2,339,939
142	Cayuga and Susquehanna, from Ithaca to Owego.....	35	...	35	Nov. 15, 1844.	617,213
143	Northern, or Ogdensburg, from Ogdensburg to Rouse's Point	118	...	118	Oct. 1, 1850.	5,250,000
144	Oswego and Syracuse, from Oswego to Syracuse.....	85	...	85	Dec. 31, 1835.	588,678
145	Rome and Watertown, from Rome to Cape Vincent.....	97	...	97	Aug. 19, 1851.	2,000,000
146	Potsdam and Watertown, from Watertown to Northern Railroad at Stockholm.....	75
147	Buffalo and Niagara Falls, from Buffalo to Niagara Falls....	22	...	22	Oct. 31, 1837.	440,219
148	Albany Northern, from Albany to Eagle Bridge.....	32	...	32	330,000
149	Albany and Susquehanna, from Albany to Binghamton.....	...	153	153	4,350,000
150	Rensselaer and Saratoga, from Troy to Saratoga.....	25	...	25	Nov. 25, 1836.	723,565
151	Saratoga and Washington, from Saratoga to Castleton.....	52	...	52	Oct. 24, 1845.	1,889,800
152	Saratoga and Schenectady, from Saratoga to Schenectady... Troy and Bennington. See No. 41.	22	...	22	Nov. 30, 1832.	462,131
153	Sackett's Harbor and Ellsberg, from Sackett's Harbor to Pierrepont Manor.....	32	...	32	Aug. 16, 1852.	700,000
154	Sodus Point and Southern, from Sodus Point to Hall's Corners.....	17	...	17	Dec. 31, 1852.	500,000
154*	Troy and Greenfield (continued to Boston.) Rutland and Washington. See No. 46.....	...	34	34	1,250,000
155	Plattsburg and Montreal, from Plattsburg to Montreal.....	60	...	60
156	Syracuse and Binghamton, from Syracuse to Binghamton...	62	...	62
157	Utica and Binghamton, from Utica to Binghamton.....	...	80	80
158	Utica and Black River, from Utica to Clayton.....	...	95	95
159	Lake Ontario, Auburn and Ithaca, from Fairhaven to Ithaca and Owego Railroad.....	...	108	108
160	Attica and Alleghany, from Attica to the Pennsylvania line	...	80	80
161	Buffalo and Alleghany Valley, from Buffalo to the preceding	...	74	74
162	Erie City and New York, from Erie (Pa.) to the New York and Erie Railroad.....	...	30	30
163	Corning and Olean, from Corning to Olean.....	...	75	75
164	Buffalo and Pittsburg, from Buffalo to Alleghany Valley. Projected.	...	80	80
165	Newburg Branch of New York and Erie, from Newburg to Chester.....	19	...	19	Dec. 31, 1848.	500,000
166	Rochester and Lake Ontario, from Rochester to L. Ontario..	7	...	7
167	Genesee Valley, from Rochester southward.....
168	Skaneateles and Jordan, from Skaneateles to Jordan.....	5	...	5
169	Troy and Greenbush, from Troy to Greenbush.....	6	...	6
170	Saratoga and Sackett's Harbor. Projected.
171	Corning and Blossburg, from Corning to Blossburg.....	41	...	41
172	Lebanon Springs, from Bennington to Chatam Four Corners	50
173	Plattsburg and Whitehall. Projected.....	100
174	Batavia and Attica Branch.....	14	...	14
175	Buffalo and Lockport, from Buffalo to Lockport.....	22	...	22
176	Niagara Falls and Lake Ontario, from Youngstown to Suspension Bridge.....	...	12	12

RAILROADS IN THE UNITED STATES—Continued.

No.	Name of Railroad, and Places connected.	Miles completed.	Miles in progress.	Total length.	When finished.	Cost.
NEW YORK—Continued.
177	New York and Western, from New York City, through Delhi and Norwich, to Auburn in Western New York...	300?
178	Mohawk Valley.....	78
179	West Side, from New York to Albany.....
180	Rome, Clayton, and Ogdensburg. Projected. Whitehall and Plattsburg. Projected. See No. 173.
NEW JERSEY.
181	Belvidere and Delaware, from Trenton to Belvidere. Nearly finished.....	63
182	Burlington and Mount Holly, from Burlington to Mt. Holly.....	6	...	6	Dec. 31, 1850.	$75,000
183	Camden and Amboy, from Camden to Amboy.....	64	...	64	July 6, 1831.	4,327,498
184	Camden and Amboy Branch, from Trenton to New Brunswick.....	26	...	26	Nov. 30, 1840.	520,000
185	Camden and Atlantic, from Camden to Absecon.....	25	...	57	1,200,000
186	Camden and Cape May. Projected.
187	New Jersey, from Jersey City to New Brunswick.....	30	...	30	June 30, 1836.	680,000
188	New Jersey Central, from Elizabethport to Easton.....	64	...	64	July 2, 1852.	2,744,000
189	Morris and Essex, from Newark to Delaware Water Gap....	44	36	80	Dec. 26, 1851.
190	Frehold Branch of the Camden and Amboy.....
191	Flemington Branch.....	6	...	6
192	Trenton Branch, from Trenton to Bordentown.....
193	Philadelphia and Trenton, from Philadelphia to Trenton.....	30	...	30	Oct. 31, 1833.	500,000
194	Union, formerly Ramapo and Paterson, from Jersey City to the Erie Railroad at Sufferns; now used by the Erie Railroad Company.....	33	...	33
PENNSYLVANIA.
195	Pennsylvania Central, from Harrisburg to Pittsburg.....	248	...	248	1853.	13,600,000
196	Philadelphia and Reading, from Philadelphia to Pottsville..	95	...	95	Dec. 31, 1840.	17,141,987
197	Philadelphia and Columbia, from Philadelphia to Columbia	82	...	82	Sept. 20, 1832.	4,204,969
198	Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore.....	98	...	98	July 19, 1837.	6,818,832
	Philadelphia and Trenton. See No. 193.
199	Philadelphia, Germantown and Norristown.....	17	...	17	Nov. 30, 1832.	550,000
200	West Chester Branch of the Philadelphia and Columbia.....	9	...	9	250,000
201	Lancaster and Harrisburg, from Dillerville to Harrisburg....	35	...	35	Nov. 30, 1846.	1,702,528
202	Cumberland Valley, from Chambersburg to Harrisburg.....	56	...	56	Oct. 14, 1840.	1,265,143
203	Franklin, from Chambersburg to Hagerstown.....	22	...	22	Oct. 10, 1840.	500,000
204	(Baltimore and Susquehanna, from York to Baltimore.....	57	...	57	Nov. 30, 1846.
	connects with the
205	(York and Cumberland, from York to Harrisburg.....	25	...	25	Oct. 14, 1840.	3,370,282
206	Alleghany Portage, from Hollidaysburg to Johnstown.....	28	...	28	Nov. 30, 1833.	700,000
207	Alleghany Valley, from Pittsburg to Ceres, or to the New York state line.....	176
208	Beaver Meadow, from Mauch Chunk to coal mines.....	26	...	26	Oct. 31, 1837.	150,000
209	Blairsville Branch of Central Railroad.....	3	...	3	Nov. 25, 1851.	50,000
210	Carbondale and Honesdale, from Carbondale to Honesdale..	21	...	21	Oct. 24, 1837.	600,000
211	Chester Valley, from Downingtown to Norristown.....	22	...	22	1853.
212	Columbia Branch, from Columbia to the Lancaster and Harrisburg Railroad.....	18	...	18
	Corning and Blossburg. See No. 171.
213	Catawissa, Williamsport and Erie, from Milton to Easton....	...	100	100
214	Cornwall and Pine Grove, from Lebanon to Pine Grove.....	20
215	Chartier's Valley, from Pittsburg to Washington.....	...	25	25
216	Danville and Pottsville. Little used.....	Dec. 16, 1832.
217	Dauphin and Susquehanna.....	16	...	16
218	Delaware, Lehigh and Wyoming, from Wilkesbarre to the Delaware Water Gap
219	Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, from Great Bend to the Delaware Water Gap.....	50	60	110
220	Erie and North East.....	19	...	19	1852.	750,000
221	Erie and Cleveland, from Erie to Cleveland.....	95	...	95	Nov. 30, 1852.
222	Germantown Branch.....	6	3	9
223	Harrisburg and Lancaster. See No. 201.
224	Herrifield, from Wheeling to Greensburg.....	...	82	82
224	Hazleton and Lehigh, from Hazleton coal mines to Lehigh river.....	10	...	10	Dec. 6, 1840.
225	Huntingdon and Broad Top, from Huntingdon to Broad Top Mountain.....	...	26	26
226	Hollidaysburg Branch of the Central Railroad.....	6	...	6
227	Lebanon Valley, from Reading to Harrisburg.....	...	56	56
228	Lehigh and Susquehanna, from Wilkesbarre to Whitehaven	20	...	20	Dec. 1, 1840.	1,250,000
229	Little Schuylkill, from Port Clinton to Tamagua.....	20	...	20	Nov. 2, 1831.	328,500
230	Lykens Valley, from Lykens to Millersburg.....	16	...	16	Dec. 31, 1837.	170,000
231	Mahanoy and Wiconisco, from Mahanoy to Wiconisco.....	17	...	17	Nov. 30, 1850.	180,000
232	Mauch Chunk, with branches to the coal mines.....	25	...	25	June 17, 1827.	300,000
233	Mine Hill, from Schuylkill Haven to Fremont.....	12	...	12	Dec. 26, 1836.	896,817
234	Mount Carbon (near Mauch Chunk).....	7	...	7	Nov. 24, 1830.	70,000
235	Norristown, Doylestown and New Hope, from Norristown to New Hope. Projected.....	28

RAILROADS IN THE UNITED STATES—Continued.

No.	Name of Railroad, and Places connected.	Miles completed.	Miles in progress.	Total length.	When finished.	Cost.
PENNSYLVANIA—Continued.
236	Mill Creek, from Port Carbon to the coal mines.....	9	...	9	Oct. 31, 1832.	180,000
237	Nesquehoning.....	5	...	5	Dec. 19, 1840.	50,000
238	North Pennsylvania, formerly the Philadelphia, Easton and Water Gap, from Philadelphia to the New York and Erie Railroad at Waverly.....	216
239	North-western Branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad, from Blairsville to Newcastle.....	80
240	Pennsylvania Coal Company's, from the Lackawanna river to the Lackawaxen.....	47	...	47
241	Pittsburg and Erie, from Pittsburg to Erie.....	140
242	Pittsburg and Steubenville, from Pittsburg to Steubenville Ohio and Pennsylvania, from Pittsburg to Crestline. See No. 413.	...	35	35
243	Pittsburg and Connellsville, from Pittsburg to Connellsville	25
244	Pittsburg and Washington, from Pittsburg to Washington.	6
245	Philadelphia City.....	6	...	6	Nov. 21, 1840.	300,000
246	Philadelphia and Sunbury, from Philadelphia to Sunbury. In progress.....	20	...
247	Philadelphia and Baltimore, from Philadelphia to Baltimore. Projected.	6	...	6	Oct. 31, 1836.	40,000
248	Room Run.....	25	...	25	Nov. 30, 1832.	300,000
249	Schuylkill Valley and Branches.....	...	38	272
250	Sunbury and Erie, from Sunbury to Erie.....	18	...	18
251	Sunbury and Shamokin, from Sunbury to Shamokin.....	52
252	Susquehanna, from Harrisburg to Sunbury.....	7	...	7	Oct. 31, 1840.
253	Strasburg.....	15	...	15	Nov. 23, 1850.	160,000
254	Trevorton and Mahanoy.....	...	26	26
255	West Chester and Philadelphia Direct.....	25	50	75
256	Williamsport and Elmira, from Williamsport to Elmira.....	13	...	13	Dec. 19, 1840.	400,000
257	York and Wrightsville, from York to Wrightsville.....
258	Venango.....
DELAWARE.
259	Delaware Central, from Dona to Seaford.....	16	...	16	Sept. 20, 1832.
260	Newcastle and Frenchtown, from Newcastle to Frenchtown	5	...	5
261	Wilmington and Newcastle, from Wilmington to Newcastle Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore. See No. 198.
MARYLAND.
262	Baltimore and Ohio, from Baltimore to Wheeling.....	380	...	380	Jan. 1, 1853.	19,542,307
263	Washington Branch, from Baltimore to Washington.....	38	...	38		1,650,000
	Baltimore and Susquehanna. See No. 204.
264	Westminster Branch of the above.....	17	...	17
265	Annapolis and Elk Ridge, from Annapolis to Washington Branch.....	21	...	21	Dec. 31, 1846.	400,000
266	Frederick Branch of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.....	3	...	3
	Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore. See No. 198.
	Franklin, from Hagerstown to Chambersburg. See No. 203.
	Baltimore and Philadelphia. See No. 247.
VIRGINIA.
267	Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac.....	76	...	76	Dec. 26, 1840.	1,531,238
268	Petersburg and Roanoke, from Petersburg to Weldon.....	64	...	64	Oct. 31, 1833.	1,163,923
269	Richmond and Petersburg, from Richmond to Petersburg... ..	22	...	22	Dec. 20, 1840.	1,100,000
270	Virginia Central, from Richmond to Covington.....	107	83	195
271	Richmond and Danville, from Richmond to Danville.....	73	84	157
272	South Side, from Lynchburg to Petersburg.....	62	58	120		2,106,467
273	Seaboard and Roanoke, from Portsmouth to Weldon, N. C.	80	...	80		1,454,171
274	Virginia and Tennessee, from Lynchburg to Tennessee line	60	145	205		4,500,000
275	Winchester and Potomac, from Winchester to Harper's Ferry.....	32	...	32	Nov. 24, 1836.	416,532
276	Manassas Gap, from the Orange and Alexandria Railroad to the Valley of Virginia.....	27	80	107
277	Orange and Alexandria, from Alexandria to Gordonsville... ..	65	25	90
278	Alexandria and Lynchburg, from Gordonsville to Lynchburg	80
279	Warrenton Branch, from the Orange and Alexandria Railroad to Warrenton.....	10	...	10
280	Appomattox, from Petersburg to City Point.....	9	...	9	Dec. 31, 1850.	200,000
281	North-western, from Parkersburg to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.....	...	120	120
282	Greenville and Roanoke, from Hicksford to Gaston.....	21	...	21	Dec. 20, 1833.	284,438
283	Clover Hill, in Appomattox county.....	15	...	15	Aug. 15, 1852.	220,000
284	Petersburg and Norfolk. Projected.....	78
285	Covington and Ohio, from Covington to Guyandotte.....	200
286	Roanoke Valley, from Clarksville to the Gaston and Raleigh Railroad.....	24	...	24	1853.
287	Blue Ridge.....	...	17
288	Chesterfield, from Richmond to the coal mines.....	12	...	12	July 6, 1832.	150,000
289	Alexandria, Loudon and Hampshire.....
290	Tuckahoe and James River.....	5	...	5	Sept. 15, 1852.	100,000

RAILROADS IN THE UNITED STATES—Continued.

No.	Name of Railroad, and Places connected.	Miles completed.	Miles in progress.	Total length.	When finished.	Cost.
NORTH CAROLINA.
291	Wilmington and Raleigh, from Wilmington to Weldon.....	162	...	162	Nov. 30, 1850.	$2,500,000
292	Gaston and Raleigh, from Gaston to Raleigh.....	87	...	87	Dec. 31, 1850.	1,606,000
293	Wilmington and Manchester, from Wilmington to Manchester. Nearly finished.....	156	1,800,000
294	North Carolina Central, from Goldsborough to Charlotte.....	...	223	223	3,000,000
295	Charlotte and South Carolina, from Charlotte to Columbia. Roanoke Valley. See No. 286.	110	...	110	983,412
296	Goldsborough and Beaufort (extension of the North Carolina Central).....	...	90	90
297	Salisbury Branch of the Central Railroad, from Salisbury to the Tennessee line.....	...	150	150
298	Fayetteville and Western.....	50
299	Gaston and Weldon, from Gaston to Weldon.....	13	...	13
	Wilmington and Weldon. See No. 291.
SOUTH CAROLINA.
300	South Carolina, from Charleston to Hamburg.....	137	...	137	Oct. 2, 1833.	} Includ'g branch's { 7,002,396
301	Columbia Branch of the above, from Columbia to Branchville	67	...	67
302	Greenville and Columbia, from Greenville to Columbia.....	143	...	143	1853.
303	Camden Branch, from Camden to the Columbia Branch.....	37	...	37
304	Spartanburg and Union, from Spartanburg to the Greenville and Columbia Railroad.....	...	42	70	1,000,000
305	King's Mountain, from Yorkville to Chesterville.....	22	...	22	Oct. 31, 1851.	500,000
306	Cheraw and Darlington, from Cheraw to Florence.....	...	40	40
307	Abbeville Branch of the Greenville and Columbia.....	12	...	12
308	Anderson Branch of the same.....	10	...	10
309	Laurens, from Laurens Court House to Newberry.....	15	16	31	1853.
	Charlotte and South Carolina, from Charlotte to Columbia. See No. 295.
	Wilmington and Manchester. See No. 293.
310	North Eastern, from Charleston to the Wilmington and Manchester Railroad.....	...	50	103
311	Rabun Gap, from the Greenville and Columbia Railroad to Knoxville.....	170
GEORGIA.
312	Georgia Central, from Savannah to Macon.....	191	...	191	Nov. 30, 1843.	3,373,132
313	Georgia, from Augusta to Atlanta.....	170	...	170	Oct. 13, 1843.	3,100,000
314	Macon and Western, from Atlanta to Macon.....	101	...	101	Dec. 26, 1844.	1,596,283
315	Western and Atlantic, from Atlanta to Chattanooga.....	140	...	140	Nov. 19, 1850.	3,000,000
316	Muscogee, from Columbus to Fort Valley.....	71	...	71	1853.
317	South Western, from Macon to Oglethorpe.....	50	...	50	Dec. 20, 1851.	743,525
318	Atlanta and Lagrange, from Atlanta to West Point.....	87	...	87	1853.
319	Waynesborough and Augusta, or Burke County Railroad, from Augusta to the Central Railroad at Millen.....	52	...	52	1853.
320	Athens Branch of the Georgia Railroad.....	40	...	40	Dec. 31, 1840.	800,000
321	East Tennessee and Georgia, from Dalton to Knoxville.....	80	30	110
322	Rome Branch, from Rome to Kingston.....	20	...	20	Oct. 23, 1850.	200,000
323	Milledgeville and Gordon, from Milledgeville to Gordon.....	17	...	17	Nov. 24, 1851.	350,000
324	Washington Branch of the Georgia Railroad.....	...	17	17
325	Eatonton, from Eatonton to Milledgeville.....	...	22	22
326	Warrenton Branch of the Georgia Railroad.....	4	...	4
327	Brunswick and Florida, from Brunswick to Pensacola.....	...	130	130
328	Air-line, from Savannah to Albany or Pensacola. Projected Rabun Gap. See No. 311.	180
329	Macon and Warrenton. Projected.....	80
FLORIDA.
330	Tallahassee and St. Mark's, from Tallahassee to St. Mark's. Brunswick and Florida, from Brunswick to Pensacola. See No. 327.	26	...	26	Nov. 30, 1846.	120,000
	Alabama and Florida. See No. 338.
	Savannah and Pensacola. See No. 328.
ALABAMA.
331	Alabama and Tennessee River, from Selma to Gunter's Landing.....	55	145	200
332	Montgomery and West Point, from Montgomery to W. Point	88	...	88	Dec. 31, 1851.	1,330,960
333	Memphis and Charleston, from Memphis to the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad.....	93	188	281	} Est. from 10 to 15 } millions.
334	Mobile and Ohio, from Mobile to Cairo.....	33	461	494
334*	Alabama and Mississippi, from Selma to Brandon, Miss.....	...	200	200
335	Girard and Mobile, from Girard to Mobile.....	...	52	220
336	Winchester and Alabama, from the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad, near Winchester, to Huntsville.....	...	50	50
337	Tuscumbia and Decatur, merged in the Memphis and Charleston.....	46	...	46	Nov. 30, 1832.	650,000
338	Alabama and Florida, from Montgomery to Mobile or Pensacola. Projected.....	160
339	Wills' Valley, from Chattanooga to Gadsden. Projected.....	80

RAILROADS IN THE UNITED STATES—Continued.

No.	Name of Railroad, and Places connected.	Miles completed.	Miles in progress.	Total length.	When finished.	Cost.
ALABAMA—Continued.
	Tennessee and Alabama, from Nashville to Tennessee river. See No. 375.....	112
340	Tuscaloosa Branch of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad. Mobile and New Orleans. See No. 348.....	135
MISSISSIPPI.
341	Mississippi Central, from Cantou to the Tennessee line.....	...	180	180
342	New Orleans, Jackson and Northern, from New Orleans to Florence, Alabama. (Capital, $8,000,000.).....	...	410	410
343	Mobile and Ohio, from Mobile to Cairo.....	33	461	494
344	Memphis and Charleston. See No. 331. Vicksburg, Jackson and Brandon, or Southern, (to be ex- tended eastward to Selma).....	60	...	60	Nov. 30, 1846.	$950,000
	Alabama and Mississippi, from Selma to Brandon. See No. 332.
345	West Feliciana, from Woodville to Bayou Sarah.....	26	...	26
346	Natchez and Malcolm, from Natchez to Malcolm.....	...	30	30
347	Raymond Branch of the Vicksburg, Jackson and Braudon.. Southern. See No. 344.	7	...	7	Dec. 31, 1851.	120,000
348	Mobile and New Orleans.....	...	135	135
LOUISIANA.
349	Mexican Gulf, from New Orleans to Proctorsville.....	27	...	27	Oct. 31, 1850.
350	New Orleans and Carrollton, from N. Orleans to Carrollton. Milneburg and Lake Pontchartrain, from Milneburg to Lake Pontchartrain.....	6	...	6	Dec. 31, 1851.
352	New Orleans, Opelousas and Western. Is under contract from New Orleans to Washington, (173 miles,) and will be extended to Texas. Organized May, 1852, with a capital of $6,000,000.....	...	173	173	April 16, 1831.	60,000
353	West Feliciana, from Woodville to Bayou Sarah. See No. 345. Clinton and Port Hudson, from Clinton to Port Hudson....	24	...	24	Nov. 30, 1850.	200,000
	New Orleans, Jackson and Northern, from New Orleans to the Tennessee river at Florence, Alabama. See No. 342....	410
354	Vicksburg, Louisiana and Texas, (about 200 miles in La.) New Orleans and Mobile. See No. 348.....	135
TEXAS.
355	Central Texas, from Galveston to Red river.....	450
356	San Antonio and Mexican Gulf, from San Antonio to Saluria	150
357	Henderson and Bolivar Point, from Henderson to Bolivar Point.....	200
358	Houston and Austin, from Houston to Austin.....	200
359	Henderson and Fulton, from Henderson to Fulton.
360	Harrisburg and Brazos, from Harrisburg to Brazos.....	6	72
361	Galveston and Houston, from Galveston to Houston.
ARKANSAS.
362	Memphis and Little Rock, from Memphis to Little Rock.....	155
363	Little Rock and Fulton, from Little Rock to Fulton.....	150
364	Little Rock and Fort Smith.....	140
TENNESSEE.
365	Nashville and Chattanooga, from Nashville to Chattanooga Memphis and Charleston, from Memphis to the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad. See No. 333.	151	...	151	1853.	3,246,881
366	Memphis and Louisville, (185 miles in Tennessee.).....	353
367	Nashville and Henderson, from Nashville to Henderson.....	...	150	150
368	Nashville and South-western, from Nashville to the Ten- nessee river. Projected.
369	Nashville and Louisville, from Nashville to Louisville.....	...	180	180
370	Nashville and Mississippi River.....	180
	East Tennessee and Georgia, from Knoxville to Dalton. See No. 318.
371	East Tennessee and Virginia, from Knoxville to state line.....	...	120	120
372	Chattanooga and Cleveland, from Chattanooga to Cleveland	30
373	McMinnville and Manchester, from McMinnville to Florence Winchester and Alabama. See No. 336.
374	Nashville and Memphis, from Nashville to Memphis.....	220
375	Nashville and Southern, connects with the New Orleans, Jackson and Northern Railroad at Florence or Tusculmbia Mobile and Ohio. See No. 343.	112
376	Memphis Clarksville and Louisville, from Memphis to Bowling Green. Projected.....	250
	South-western, from McMinnville to Danville. See No. 390. Rabun Gap, from Knoxville to South Carolina. See No. 311. Tennessee and Alabama, appears to be the same as the Nashville and Southern. See No. 375.....	112
	Knoxville and Danville. See No. 388*.

RAILROADS IN THE UNITED STATES—Continued.

No.	Name of Railroad, and Places connected.	Miles completed.	Miles in progress.	Total length.	When finished.	Cost.
KENTUCKY.
377	Louisville and Frankfort, from Louisville to Frankfort.....	65	...	65	Nov. 30, 1851.	$1,200,000
	Louisville and Nashville. See No. 365.
	Louisville and Memphis. See No. 362.....	353
378	Louisville and Covington, from Louisville to Covington.....	100
379	Shelby, from Louisville to Frankfort.....	...	50	50
380	Covington and Lexington, from Covington to Lexington....	38	58	96		3,156,228
381	Maysville and Lexington, from Maysville to Paris.....	50
382	Maysville and Big Sandy, from Maysville to Big Sandy.....	90
383	Lexington and Big Sandy, from Lexington to the mouth of the Big Sandy.....	...	125	125
384	Lexington and Danville, from Lexington to Danville.....	...	36	36		1,235,326
385	Lexington and Frankfort, from Lexington to Frankfort.....	28	...	28	Dec. 31, 1840.	551,226
386	Louisville and Newport, from Newport to the Louisville and Frankfort Railroad.....	...	72	72
387	Louisville and Danville, from Louisville to Danville.
388	Henderson and Nashville. See No. 363.....	...	150	150
	Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville. See No. 372.
	Mobile and Ohio, from Mobile to Ohio. See No. 339.
388*	Danville and Knoxville, from Danville to Knoxville.....	150
389	Danville and Nashville, from Danville to Nashville.....	160
390	South-western extends from Danville through Middle Tennes- see, and connects with the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad, near Winchester.....	200
OHIO.
391	Mad River and Lake Erie, from Sandusky to Dayton.....	153	...	153	Dec. 10, 1847.	4,110,148
392	Sandusky, Mansfield and Newark.....	116	...	116	Nov. 11, 1851.	2,800,000
393	Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati, from Cleveland to Cincinnati.....	135	...	135	April 1, 1851.	3,655,000
394	Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton, from Cincinnati to Day- ton.....	60	...	60	Sept. 30, 1851.	2,659,653
395	Little Miami, from Cincinnati to Springfield.....	84	...	84	Oct. 15, 1847.	2,634,157
396	Columbus and Xenia, from Columbus to Xenia.....	55	...	55	Feb. 28, 1850.	1,257,714
397	Dayton and Western, from Dayton to state line.....	36	...	36	Nov. 30, 1852.	925,000
398	Dayton and Michigan, from Dayton to Toledo.....	...	190	190
399	Dayton Short Line, from Dayton to Cincinnati.....	...	52	52		2,400,000
400	Greenville and Miami, from Greenville to Miami.....	37	...	37	Oct. 20, 1852.	740,000
401	Springfield and Xenia, from Springfield to Xenia.....	20	...	20	Nov. 19, 1852.	400,000
402	Springfield, Mount Vernon and Pittsburg, from Springfield to Loudonville.....	110
403	Bellefontaine and Indiana, from Gallion to Union.....	118	...	118	1853.
404	Columbus, Piqua and Indiana, from Columbus to Union. Nearly finished.....	46	56	102
405	Central Ohio, from Columbus to Wheeling.....	59	71	130
406	Stuebenville and Indiana, from Steubenville to Columbus...	130
407	Columbus and Bellefontaine, from Columbus to Bellefon- taine.....
408	Columbus and Parkersburg, or Columbus and Hocking Valley.....	...	90	90
	Ohio and Mississippi or Cincinnati and St. Louis. Nearly half finished. See No. 469.....	...	336	336
409	Cincinnati and Marietta, from Cincinnati to Wheeling, (stock subscribed $3,717,000).....	...	237	237
410	Cincinnati, Hillsborough and Belpre.....	60	140	200
	Cincinnati, Union and Fort Wayne, from Union to Fort Wayne. See No. 431.....	...	65	65
411	Cincinnati Western, from Cincinnati to New Castle in Ind.	...	75	75		2,500,000
412	Cincinnati and Fort Wayne. Under contract.....	150		4,500,000
413	Ohio and Pennsylvania, from Pittsburg to Crestline.....	187	...	187	1853.	4,000,000
414	Ohio and Indiana, from Crestline to Fort Wayne. Nearly finished.....	40	105	145
415	Cleveland and Pittsburg, from Cleveland to the Ohio at Wellsville.....	100	...	100
416	Cleveland, Painesville and Ashtabula, from Cleveland to Ashtabula.....	71	...	71	Nov. 10, 1852.	1,500,000
417	Cleveland and Mahoning, from Cleveland to New Castle Pennsylvania.....	...	80	80
418	Cleveland, Zanesville and Cincinnati, formerly Akron Branch, from Hudson to Zanesville.....	...	100	100
419	Cleveland, Norwalk and Toledo, from Grafton to Toledo....	87	...	87	Dec. 31, 1852.
420	Cleveland, Medina and Tuscarawas, from Grafton to Wheeling.....	...	110	110
421	Zanesville, Wilmington and Cincinnati, from Zanesville to Morrow.....	130	...	130	1853.
422	Junction Ohio or Lake Shore from Toledo to Cleveland.....	...	110	110
423	Air-line from Toledo to Chicago.....	...	220	220
424	Toledo and Illinois, from Toledo to the west line of Ohio, or to Fort Wayne.....	...	80	80
425	Hamilton, Eaton and Richmond, from Hamilton to Rich- mond.....	45	...	45	1852.

RAILROADS IN THE UNITED STATES—Continued.

No.	Name of Railroad, and Places connected.	Miles completed.	Miles in progress.	Total length.	When finished.	Cost.
OHIO—Continued.
426	Dayton, Xenia and Belpre, from Dayton to Chillicothe.....	90
	Columbus and Hocking Valley. See No. 408.
427	Scioto and Hocking Valley, from Portsmouth to Newark...	45	80	125
428	Sandusky and Indiana, from Sandusky to Tiffin.....	33	...	33
429	Findlay Branch of Mad River and Lake Erie.....	16	...	16	Nov. 24, 1851.
430	Pittsburg, Maysville and Cincinnati, from Cambridge to Maysville.....	150
431	Fremont and Indiana, from Fremont to Lima.....	...	70	70
432	Cincinnati, Lebanon and Xenia. With an extension to Delaware.....	112
433	Iron, from Ironton to Jackson.....	13	...	40
MICHIGAN.
434	Michigan Central, from Detroit to Chicago.....	280	...	280	Dec. 31, 1851.	$8,614,193
435	Michigan Southern, from Monroe to Chicago, (including the Northern Indiana).....	250	...	250	Sept. 30, 1851.	6,430,246
436	Detroit and Pontiac, from Detroit to Pontiac.....	25	...	25	Nov. 30, 1840.	300,000
437	Erie and Kalamazoo, from Toledo to Adrian.....	32	...	32	Oct. 31, 1840.	350,000
438	Oakland and Ottawa, from Pontiac to Grand Haven.....	...	160	160
439	Detroit and St. Louis, straight line. Projected.
440	Port Huron and Lake Michigan.....	210
441	Cincinnati, New Castle and Michigan, from Grand Haven to Indiana.
442	Jackson Branch of the Michigan Southern, will connect Jackson with the Michigan Southern, or Toledo, (under contract).....	...	30	30
443	Fort Wayne and Northern, from Fort Wayne to Grand Rapids.....	150
444	Indianapolis and Grand Rapids. Projected.....	225
445	Cincinnati and Mackinaw. Projected.
446	Dayton and Lansing. Projected.
447	Tecumseh Branch of Michigan Southern.....	10	...	10
448	Constantine Branch of Michigan Southern.....	4	...	4
INDIANA.
449	Madison and Indianapolis, from Madison to Indianapolis...	86	...	86	Dec. 31, 1848.	2,000,000
450	New Albany and Salem, from New Albany to Michigan city.....	262	25	287	5,210,000
451	Central Indiana, from Indianapolis to state line.....	72	...	72	1853.
452	Indianapolis and Cincinnati, formerly Lawrenceburg and Upper Mississippi, from Lawrenceburg to Indianapolis...	90	...	90	1853.
453	Indianapolis and Bellefontaine, from Indianapolis to Union.....	84	...	84	1853.
454	Terre Haute and Richmond, from Terre Haute to Indianapolis.....	72	...	72	Feb. 16, 1852.	1,500,000
455	Evansville and Illinois, from Evansville to Vincennes.....	50	...	50
456	Terre Haute and Vincennes, from Terre Haute to Vincennes	...	50	50
457	Jeffersonville, from Jeffersonville to Indianapolis.....	77	20	107	1,860,000
458	New Castle and Richmond, from New Castle to Richmond...	...	50	50
459	Peru and Indianapolis, from Peru to Indianapolis.....	40	32	72
460	Shelbyville and Knightstown, from Shelbyville to Knightstown.....	27	...	27	Dec. 20, 1851.	540,000
461	Rushville and Shelbyville, from Rushville to Shelbyville...	20	...	20	Nov. 19, 1851.	400,000
462	Shelbyville Lateral.....	16	...	16	Oct. 24, 1850.	320,000
463	Martinsville, from Martinsville to Franklin.....	24	...	24	Dec. 24, 1852.	500,000
464	Lafayette and Indianapolis, from Lafayette to Indianapolis. Northern Indiana, and Michigan Southern, from Chicago to Monroe. See No. 435.....	64	...	64	Nov. 30, 1852.	1,000,000
465	Cincinnati, Logansport and Chicago, from Chicago to Anderson.....	243	Nov. 30, 1851.
466	Fort Wayne and Chicago, from Fort Wayne to Chicago. Capital $2,500,000.....	...	150	150	2,500,000
467	Fort Wayne and Southern, from Fort Wayne to the falls of Ohio.....	...	64	200
	Ohio and Indiana, from Fort Wayne to Crestline. See No. 414.
	Cincinnati and Fort Wayne, from Cincinnati to Fort Wayne. See No. 412.....	...	150	150
468	Cincinnati and Indianapolis Straight Line.....	90
469	Wabash Valley, or Paducah and Vincennes.....	125
470	Gosport Branch of New Albany and Salem.
471	Ohio and Mississippi, from Cincinnati to St. Louis. Nearly half finished.....	...	336	336
472	Indiana South Western from Indianapolis to Vincennes.....	100
473	Aurora and Indianapolis Broad Gauge.....	90
474	Indiana and Illinois central, from Indianapolis to Hannibal in Missouri.....	290	290
475	Auburn and Eel River, from Auburn to Logansport.....	90
476	Evansville and Indianapolis Straight Line, from Evansville to Union.....	225

RAILROADS IN THE UNITED STATES—Continued.

No.	Name of Railroad, and Places connected.	Miles completed.	Miles in progress.	Total length.	When finished.	Cost.
INDIANA—Continued.
477	Lake Erie, Wabash and St. Louis, from Fort Wayne to Danville, Illinois.....	165
478	Junction, from Hamilton, O., to Connersville or Indianapolis
479	Logansport and Pacific, from Logansport to Middleport in Illinois.....	75
	Cincinnati Western. See No. 411.
480	Marion and Mississinewa Valley, from Union to Marion.....	50
481	Marion and Chicago, from Marion to Chicago.....	150
482	Vincennes and Indianapolis, from Vincennes to Indianapolis	100
483	Cincinnati Union and Fort Wayne, from Fort Wayne to Union.....	...	65	65
484	Crawfordsville, Logansport and Northern Indiana.
485	Fort Wayne and Mississippi, from Fort Wayne to New Boston, to be extended thence to Council Bluffs. Fort Wayne and Northern. See No. 443. Indianapolis and Grand Rapids. See No 444.
ILLINOIS.
486	Alton and Terre Haute, from Alton to Terre Haute.....	...	170	170
487	Chicago and Mississippi, from Chicago to Alton.....	132	125	257
488	Chicago and Galena Union, from Chicago to Freeport.....	120	...	150
489	Chicago and Rock Island, from Chicago to Rock Island.....	155	25	180
490	Chicago and Milwaukee, or Lake Shore.....	...	92	92
	Chicago and Fort Wayne. See No 466.	...	150	150
	Chicago, Logansport and Cincinnati. See No. 465.
491	Aurora and Chicago Extension from Aurora to the Central Military Tract Railroad.....	56	...	56
492	Central Illinois, from Cairo to Peru, with Branches to Chicago and Dubuque.....	120	...	700		$17,500,000
493	Illinois and Wisconsin from Chicago to Janesville or to the south line of Wisconsin.
494	Chicago, St. Charles and Mississippi Air-line..... Lake Shore. See No. 490.	135
495	Central Military Tract, including the Northern Cross from Quincy to the Central Railroad in La Salle county.....	...	180	180
496	Beloit Branch of the Galena and Chicago.....	21	...	21	1853.
497	Savannah Branch from Savannah to Freeport.....	35
498	Mississippi and Rock River Junction, from Fulton to Sycamore.....	80
499	Fox River Valley Branch of Chicago and Galena from Elgin to Geneva.....	...	40	40
500	Wabash Valley, or Paducah and Vincennes.....	...	125	125
501	Sangamon and Massac, from Springfield to Ohio River.....	200
502	Indiana and Illinois Central from Hannibal in Missouri to Indianapolis.....	...	290	290
503	Peoria and Oquawka, from Peoria to Burlington, Iowa.....	...	80	80
504	Extension of the Peoria and Oquawka from Peoria to Middleport.....	...	100	100
505	Peoria and Bureau Valley, from Peoria northward.
506	Atlantic and Mississippi from Terre Haute to St. Louis.....	160
507	Lafayette and Warsaw, from Lafayette to Warsaw.....	240
508	Sangamon and Morgan, (forming part of the Great Western Central) from Springfield to Naples.....	55	Oct. 20, 1851.	1,000,000
509	Alton and New Albany. Projected.
510	Alton and Jacksonville. Projected. Ohio and Mississippi from Cincinnati to St. Louis. See No. 469. Michigan Central. See No. 434. Michigan Southern. See No 435.
511	Belleville and Illinois town.....	14	...	14
512	Joliet and Terre Haute, from Joliet to Terre Haute.....	...	150	150
513	St. Charles Branch of the Galena and Chicago.....	7	...	7	Nov. 26, 1850.
514	Chicago, Sterling and Mississippi. Projected.
515	Belleville and Murphysboro, from Belleville to Central Railroad.....	60
MISSOURI.
516	Pacific from St. Louis to Independence.....	37	88	280		8,000,000
517	St. Louis and Iron Mountain. Projected.....	63
518	St. Louis and Northern.....	200
519	Hannibal and St. Joseph.....	...	210	210
520	South-western Branch of Pacific from St. Louis to Springfield and Neesho.....	310
IOWA.
521	Lyons Iowa Central, from Lyons to Council Bluffs.....	...	100	300
522	Dubuque and Keokuk, from Dubuque to Keokuk.....	150
523	Burlington and Missouri River. Projected.
524	Davenport and Iowa City. Projected. St. Louis and Northern. See No. 518.

RAILROADS IN THE UNITED STATES—Continued.

No.	Name of Railroad, and Places connected.	Miles completed.	Miles in progress.	Total length.	When finished.	Cost.
WISCONSIN.
525	Milwaukee and Mississippi, to Prairie du Chien.....	70	130	200
	Milwaukee and Chicago or Lake Shore. Nearly finished. See No. 490.....	...	92	92
526	Milwaukee and La Crosse, from Milwaukee to La Crosse. In progress.....	210
527	Milwaukee and Green Bay, from Milwaukee to Green Bay.
528	Rock River Valley Union, from Fond du Lac to Janesville or to the North line of Illinois.....	...	90	90
529	Racine, Janesville and Mississippi. In progress.....	160
530	Mineral Point, Branch of Galena and Chicago. Nearly finished.....	...	33	32
531	Milwaukee, Fond du Lac and Oshkash, from Milwaukee to Oshkash.....	90
532	Madison and Beloit, from Madison to Beloit. In progress...	45
533	Kenosha and Beloit. Has been surveyed.
534	Madison and Janesville, from Madison to Janesville.....	...	35	35
535	Wisconsin Central, is to extend from the South line of the state northward, through Walworth, Jefferson, and Dodge counties. Illinois and Wisconsin, from Chicago to Janesville, or to the South line of Wisconsin.....	...	95	95
536	Milwaukee and Watertown. Nearly finished.....	...	46	46
537	Milwaukee and Fond du Lac Air-line. Projected.....	60
538	Madison and La Crosse, from Madison to La Crosse.....	115
539	South-western, or Southern Wisconsin, from Janesville to Galena.

LIST OF THE PRINCIPAL CANALS IN THE UNITED STATES, NOW IN USE.

Name of Canal, and Places connected.	Miles in length.	Name of Canal, and Places connected.	Miles in length.
NEW YORK.
Erie, from Albany to Buffalo.....	364	Delaware and Chesapeake, from Delaware City to Chesapeake bay.....	14
Champlain, from Albany to Whitehall.....	73
Chenango, from Utica to Binghamton.....	96
Black River, from Rome to Booneville.....	87
Chemung, from Seneca lake to Knoxville.....	33
Cayuga and Seneca, from Erie canal to Seneca lake	21
Oswego, from Syracuse to Oswego.....	38
Crooked Lake, from Dresden to Crooked lake.....	8
Genesee Valley, from Rochester to Danville. To be extended to the Alleghany river.....	52
Delaware and Hudson, from Honesdale to Eddy- ville.....	108
Sodus, from Sodus bay to the Erie canal, about...	16
NEW JERSEY.
Morris, from Jersey City to Easton.....	102
Delaware and Raritan, from New Brunswick to Bordentown.....	43
Salem.....	3 or 4
PENNSYLVANIA.
Pennsylvania, from Columbia to Pittsburg.....	312
Susquehanna Division, from Duncan's Island to Northumberland.....	40
North Branch, from Northumberland to Wya- lusing.....	124
West Branch, from Northumberland to Far- randsville.....	75
Delaware Division, from Easton to Bristol.....	60
Beaver and Erie, from Beaver to Erie.....	136
Schuylkill Navigation, from Phila. to Port Carbon	108
Lehigh Navigation, from Easton to Whitehaven or Stoddardsville, about.....	84
Union, from Reading to Middletown.....	82
Tidewater, from Wrightsville to Havre de Grace.	45
Franklin Branch of the Beaver and Erie.....	22
DELAWARE.
MARYLAND.
Chesapeake and Ohio, from Georgetown to Cum- berland.....			191
VIRGINIA.
James River and Kanawha, from Richmond to Buchanan.....			196
Dismal Swamp, from Norfolk to New Lebanon...			23
SOUTH CAROLINA.
Santee, from Cooper to Santee river.....			22
OHIO.
Ohio, from Portsmouth to Cleveland.....			309
Miami, from Cincinnati to the Wabash and Erie.....			181
Ohio and Pennsylvania, from Akron to Beaver...			88
Walhonding, from Roscoe to Rochester.....			25
Hocking, from Athens to Carroll.....			56
Sandy and Beaver, from Bolivar to the Ohio river.....			76
INDIANA.
Wabash and Erie, from Toledo to Evansville.....			467
Whitewater, from Cambridge to Cincinnati.....			68
ILLINOIS.
Illinois and Michigan, from Chicago to Peru.....			100

INDEX TO THE TABLE OF RAILROADS.

	No.		No.
Abberville Branch, (S. C.).....	307	Burlington and Missouri River.....	523
Akron Branch.....	418	Burlington and Mount Holly.....	182
Alabama and Florida.....	338	Burlington Branch.....	43
Alabama and Mississippi.....	334*	Calais and Barre.....	9
Alabama and Tennessee River.....	331	Calais and Baring Branch.....	10
Albany and Schenectady.....	124	Camden and Amboy.....	183
Albany and Susquehanna.....	149	Camden and Amboy Branch.....	184
Albany Northern.....	148	Camden and Atlantic.....	185
Alexandria and Lynchburg.....	278	Camden and Cape May.....	186
Alexandria, London and Hampshire.....	289	Camden Branch of South Carolina.....	303
Alleghany Portage.....	206	Canandaigua and Elmira.....	136
Alleghany Valley.....	207	Canandaigua and Niagara Falls.....	137
Alton and Chicago.....	487	Cape Cod Branch.....	58
Alton and Jacksonville.....	510	Carbondale and Honesdale.....	210
Alton and New Albany.....	509	Catawissa, Williamsport and Erie.....	213
Alton and Terre Haute.....	486	Cayuga and Susquehanna.....	142
Amherst and Belchertown.....	117	Central Delaware.....	259
Anderson Branch, (S. C.).....	308	Central Georgia.....	312
Androscooggin.....	1	Central Illinois.....	492
Androscooggin and Kennebec.....	2	Central Indiana.....	451
Annapolis and Elk Ridge.....	265	Central Military Tract.....	495
Appomattox.....	280	Central Michigan.....	434
Ashuelot.....	24	Central Mississippi.....	341
Athens Branch.....	320	Central New Jersey.....	188
Atlanta and La Grange.....	318	Central New York.....	132
Atlantic and Mississippi.....	506	Central New Hampshire.....	31
Atlantic and St. Lawrence.....	3	Central North Carolina.....	294
Attica and Alleghany.....	160	Central Pennsylvania.....	195
Auburn and Canandaigua.....	130	Central Ohio.....	405
Auburn and Eel River.....	475	Central Indiana.....	255
Augusta and Waynesborough.....	319	Central Texas.....	270
Aurora Branch of the Galena and Chicago.....	491	Central Virginia.....	535
Aurora Extension.....	491	Central Wisconsin.....	60
Aurora and Indianapolis Broad Gauge.....	473	Charles River.....	59
Baltimore and Ohio.....	262	Charles River Branch.....	333
Baltimore and Philadelphia.....	247	Charleston and Memphis.....	295
Baltimore and Susquehanna.....	204	Charlotte and South Carolina.....	215
Bangor and Piscataquis.....	4	Chartiers Valley.....	372
Batavia and Attica.....	174	Chattanooga and Cleveland.....	306
Bath Branch.....	5	Cheraw and Darlington.....	27
Beaufort and Goldsborough.....	296	Cheshire.....	288
Beaver Meadow.....	208	Chesterfield, (Va.).....	211
Belfast and Moosehead Lake.....	6	Chester Valley.....	488
Belfast and Waterville.....	7	Chicago and Galena.....	466
Bellefontaine and Indiana.....	403	Chicago and Fort Wayne.....	490
Belleville and Illinois town.....	511	Chicago and Milwaukee.....	487
Belleville and Murphysborough.....	515	Chicago and Mississippi.....	489
Beloit and Kenosha.....	533	Chicago and Rock Island.....	465
Beloit and Madison.....	532	Chicago, Logansport and Cincinnati.....	481
Beloit and Milwaukee.....	496	Chicago and Marion.....	494
Beloit Branch of the Galena and Chicago.....	181	Chicago, St. Charles and Mississippi Air-line.....	423
Belvidere and Delaware.....	41	Chicago and Toledo Air-line.....	514
Bennington Branch.....	111	Chicago, Sterling and Mississippi.....	394
Berkshire.....	156	Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton.....	410
Binghamton and Syracuse.....	157	Cincinnati, Hillsborough and Belpre.....	399
Binghamton and Utica.....	209	Cincinnati and Dayton Short Line.....	452 and 463
Blairsville Branch.....	287	Cincinnati and Indianapolis.....	412
Blue Ridge.....	54	Cincinnati and Fort Wayne.....	432
Boston and Lowell.....	55	Cincinnati, Lebanon and Xenia.....	409
Boston and Maine.....	56	Cincinnati and Marietta.....	445
Boston and Providence.....	57	Cincinnati and Mackinaw.....	441
Boston and Worcester.....	53	Cincinnati, Newcastle and Michigan.....	471
Boston, Barre and Gardner.....	25	Cincinnati and Portsmouth.....	483
Boston, Concord and Montreal.....	118	Cincinnati and St. Louis, or Ohio and Mississippi.....	411
Boston and New York Air-line.....	42	Cincinnati, Union and Fort Wayne.....	468
Brattleborough Branch.....	26	Cincinnati Western.....	393
Bristol Branch.....	327	Cincinnati and Indianapolis Short Line.....	221
Brunswick and Florida.....	8	Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati.....	417
Buckfield Branch.....	161	Cleveland and Erie.....	419
Buffalo and Alleghany Valley.....	134	Cleveland and Mahoning.....	415
Buffalo and Conchocton Valley.....	175	Cleveland and Norwalk and Toledo.....	420
Buffalo and Lockport.....	123	Cleveland and Pittsburg.....	416
Buffalo and Niagara Falls.....	147	Cleveland, Medina and Tuscarawas.....	418
Buffalo and New York City.....	164	Cleveland, Painesville and Ashtabula.....	553
Buffalo and Pittsburg.....	129	Cleveland, Zanesville and Cincinnati.....	283
Buffalo and Rochester.....	135	Clinton and Port Hudson.....	23
Buffalo and State Line.....	134	Clover Hill.....	108
Buffalo, Corning and New York.....	307	Coheco.....	210
	418	Collinsville Branch.....	182
	338		43
	334*		9
	331		10
	124		183
	149		184
	148		185
	278		186
	289		303
	206		136
	207		137
	487		58
	510		210
	509		213
	486		142
	117		259
	308		312
	1		492
	2		451
	265		495
	280		434
	24		341
	320		188
	318		132
	506		31
	3		294
	160		195
	130		405
	475		255
	319		270
	491		535
	491		60
	473		59
	262		333
	247		295
	204		215
	4		372
	174		306
	5		27
	296		288
	208		211
	6		488
	7		466
	403		490
	511		487
	515		489
	533		465
	532		481
	496		494
	181		423
	41		514
	111		394
	156		410
	157		399
	209		452 and 463
	287		412
	54		432
	55		409
	56		445
	57		441
	53		471
	25		483
	118		411
	42		468
	26		393
	327		221
	8		417
	161		419
	134		415
	175		420
	123		416
	147		418
	164		553
	129		283
	135		23
	134		108

	No.		No.
Columbia Branch, (Pa.)	212	Georgia Central	312
Columbia Branch, (S. C.)	301	Germantown Branch	222
Columbus and Xenia	396	Gerard and Mobile	335
Columbus and Bellefontaine	407	Gloucester Branch	71
Columbus and Hocking Valley, or Columbus and Parkersburg	408	Goldsborough and Beaufort	296
Columbus, Piqua and Indiana	404	Gosport Branch of the New Albany and Salem	470
Concord	29	Grand Junction	70
Concord and Claremont	30	Great Falls and Conway	34
Connecticut River	61	Great Falls Branch	33
Connecticut and Passumpsic Rivers	44	Great Falls and South Berwick	13
Connorsville Junction	478	Great Western Central	568
Constantine Branch	448	Greenville and Columbia	302
Contocook Valley	32	Greenville and Roanoke	282
Corning and Blossburg	171	Greenville and Miami	400
Corning and Olean	163	Hamilton, Eaton and Richmond	425
Corwall and Pine Grove	214	Hannibal and St. Joseph	519
Covington and Lexington	380	Harlem	139
Covington and Ohio	285	Harrisburg and Brazos	380
Crawfordsville, Logansport and Northern Indiana	484	Harrisburg and Lancaster	201
Cumberland Valley	202	Hartford, Providence and Fishkill	110
Damariscotta	11	Harvard Branch	72
Danbury and Norwalk	109	Hazleton and Lehigh	224
Danvers and Georgetown	62	Hempfield	223
Danville and Richmond	271	Henderson and Bolivar Point	357
Danville and Knoxville	389	Henderson and Fulton	359
Danville and Lexington	384	Henderson and Nashville	367
Danville and Louisville	387	Holidaysburg Branch	226
Danville and Nashville	389	Housatonic	111
Danville and Pottsville	216	Housatonic Branch	122
Dayton and Michigan	398	Houston and Austin	358
Dayton Short Line	399	Houston and Galveston	361
Dayton and Western	397	Hudson and Berkshire	140
Dayton, Xenia and Belpre	426	Hudson River	138
Dayton and Lansing	446	Huntingdon and Broad Top	225
Dauphin and Susquehanna	217	Illinois Central	492
Davenport and Iowa City	524	Illinois Coal	..
Dedham Branch	63	Illinois and Wisconsin	493
Detroit and Pontiac	436	Indiana and Illinois Central	474
Detroit and St. Louis Straight Line	438	Indiana and Ohio. See Ohio and Indiana	414
Delaware Central	259	Indiana Central	451
Delaware, Lackawanna and Western	219	Indiana South-western	472
Delaware, Lehigh and Wyoming	218	Indianapolis and Cincinnati	452
Dorchester and Milton	64	Indianapolis and Bellefontaine	453
Dubuque and Keokuk	522	Indianapolis and Evansville Straight Line	476
Eastern	65	Indianapolis and Grand Rapids	444
East Tennessee and Georgia	321	Indianapolis and Lafayette	404
East Tennessee and Virginia	371	Indianapolis and Madison	449
Eatonton	325	Indianapolis and Peru	459
Elmira and Canandaigua	136	Iron, (Ohio)	433
Elmira and Williamsport	257	Iron Mountain and St. Louis	517
Erie and Cleveland	221	Ithaca and Owego	142
Erie and Kalamazoo	437	Jackson Branch, (Mich.)	444
Erie and North-east	220	Jacksonville and Alton	510
Erie City and New York	162	Janesville and Fond du Lac. See Rock River Valley	528
Erie, (N. Y.)	123	Janesville and Madison	534
Essex	66	Janesville and Racine	529
European and North American	12	Jeffersonville	457
Evansville and Illinois	455	Joliet and Terre Haute	512
Evansville and Indianapolis Straight Line	476	Junction, (Ohio)	422
Fall River	67	Junction, (Ind.)	478
Fayetteville and Western	298	Kennebec and Penobscot	18
Findley Branch	429	Kennebec and Portland	15
Fitchburg	68	Kenosha and Beloit	533
Fitchburg and Worcester	69	King's Mountain	305
Flemington Branch	191	Knoxville and Danville	388*
Fond du Lac and Janesville. See Rock River Valley Union.		Knightstown and Shelbyville	460
Fond du Lac and Milwaukee	537	Lackawanna and Western, now Delaware, Lackawanna and Western	219
Fort Wayne and Chicago	466	Lacrosse and Milwaukee	526
Fort Wayne and Cincinnati	483	Lafayette and Indianapolis	464
Fort Wayne and Mississippi	485	Lafayette and Warsaw	507
Fort Wayne and Northern	443	Lafayette, Indiana and Bloomington, the same as the above.
Fort Wayne and Southern	467	Lagrange and Atlanta	318
Fox River Valley	499	Lake Erie, Wabash, and St. Louis	477
Franklin, (Me.)	14	Lake Ontario, Auburn and Ithaca	159
Franklin, (Pa.)	203	Lake Shore, (Ill. and Wis.)	490
Frederick Branch	266	Lake Shore, (Ohio)	422
Freehold Branch	190	Lancaster and Harrisburg	201
Fremont and Indiana	431	Lancaster and Sterling Branch	74
Galena and Chicago Union	488	Lansing and Dayton	416
Galveston and Houston	361	Laurens, (S. C.)	309
Galveston and Red River	355	Lawrence and Manchester	35
Gaston and Raleigh	292	Lawrenceburg and Mississippi	452
Gaston and Weldon	299	Lebanon Springs	172
Genesee Valley	167	Lebanon Valley	227
Georgia	313	Lehigh and Susquehanna	223

	No.		No.
Lewiston and Topsham.....	16	Nashville and Henderson.....	367
Lewiston Branch, (N. Y.).....	...	Nashville and Louisville.....	369
Lexington and Big Sandy.....	383	Nashville and Memphis.....	374
Lexington and Covington.....	380	Nashville and Mississippi.....	370
Lexington and Danville.....	384	Nashville and New Orleans, or Nashville and Southern.....	375
Lexington and Frankfort.....	385	Nashville and South-western.....	368
Lexington and Maysville.....	381	Natchez and Malcolm.....	346
Lexington and West Cambridge.....	73	Naugatuck.....	113
Little Miami.....	395	New Albany and Salem.....	450
Little Rock and Fort Smith.....	364	New Bedford and Taunton.....	81
Little Rock and Fulton.....	363	Newburg Branch.....	165
Little Rock and Memphis.....	362	Newburyport.....	82
Little Schuylkill.....	229	Newcastle and Frenchtown.....	260
Lockport and Buffalo.....	175	Newcastle and Richmond.....	43
Logansport and Pacific.....	479	New Hampshire Central.....	31
Long Island.....	141	New Haven and New London.....	116
Louisville and Covington.....	378	New Haven and Northampton.....	115
Louisville and Danville.....	387	New Haven, Hartford and Springfield.....	114
Louisville and Frankfort.....	377	New Jersey.....	187
Louisville and Memphis.....	366	New Jersey Central.....	188
Louisville and Nashville.....	369	New London and Stonington.....	121
Louisville and Newport.....	386	New London, Willimantic and Palmer.....	117
Louisville, Clarksville and Memphis.....	376	New Orleans and Carrollton.....	350
Lowell and Boston.....	54	New Orleans and Lake Pontchartrain.....	351
Lowell and Lawrence.....	75	New Orleans and Mobile.....	348
Lyken's Valley.....	280	New Orleans, Jackson and Northern.....	342
Lynchburg and Alexandria.....	278	New Orleans, Opelousas and Western.....	352
Lyons Iowa Central.....	521	Newport and Dexter.....	17
McMinnville and Manchester.....	373	Newtown Branch.....	...
Macon and Western.....	314	New York and Boston Air-line.....	118
Macon and Warrenton.....	329	New York and Erie.....	123
Madison and Beloit.....	532	New York and New Haven.....	119
Madison and Indianapolis.....	449	New York and Western.....	177
Madison and Janesville.....	534	Niagara Falls and Lake Ontario.....	176
Madison and La Crosse.....	533	Norfolk and Petersburg.....	284
Mad River and Lake Erie.....	391	Norfolk County.....	83
Mahoning and Cleveland.....	417	Norristown, Doylestown and New Hope.....	235
Mahanoy and Wisconsin.....	231	North Carolina Central.....	294
Manassas Gap.....	276	North-eastern, (S. C.).....	310
Manchester and Lawrence.....	35	Northern, (N. H.).....	36
Manchester and McMinnville.....	373	Northern, (N. Y.).....	143
Manchester and Wilmington.....	293	Northern Indiana.....	435
Marblehead Branch.....	277	North Pennsylvania.....	238
Marion and Chicago.....	481	North-western Pennsylvania.....	239
Marion and Missisippewa Valley.....	480	North-western Virginia.....	281
Marlborough Branch.....	76	Norwich and Worcester.....	120
Mauch Chunk.....	232	Oakland and Ottawa.....	438
Maysville and Big Sandy.....	382	Ogdensburg or Northern.....	143
Maysville and Lexington.....	381	Ohio and Indiana.....	414
Medford Branch.....	78	Ohio and Mississippi.....	471
Medway Branch.....	79	Ohio and Pennsylvania.....	413
Memphis and Charleston.....	333	Ohio Central.....	405
Memphis and Little Rock.....	362	Old Colony.....	84
Memphis and Louisville.....	366	Old Town and Lincoln.....	23
Memphis and Nashville.....	374	Olean and Corning.....	163
Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville.....	376	Orange and Alexandria.....	277
Merrimack and Connecticut Rivers.....	30 and 31	Oswego and Syracuse.....	144
Mexican Gulf.....	349	Ottawa and Oakland.....	438
Michigan Central.....	434	Pacific, (Mo.).....	516
Michigan Southern.....	435	Paducah and Vincennes.....	469
Middletown Branch.....	112	Parkersburg and Columbus.....	408
Milledgeville and Gordon.....	323	Paterson and Ramapo. See Union.....	191
Milneburg and Lake Pontchartrain.....	351	Pennsylvania Central.....	195
Milwaukee and Chicago.....	490	Pennsylvania Coal Company's.....	240
Milwaukee and Fond Du Lac.....	537	Penobscot and Kennebec.....	18
Milwaukee, Fond du Lac and Oshkosh.....	531	Peoria and Oquawka.....	503
Milwaukee and Green Bay.....	527	Peoria and Bureau Valley.....	505
Milwaukee and La Crosse.....	526	Peru and Indianapolis.....	459
Milwaukee and Watertown.....	536	Peterborough and Shirley.....	86
Mine Hill.....	233	Petersburg and Norfolk.....	284
Mineral Point Branch.....	530	Petersburg and Richmond.....	260
Mississippi Central.....	341	Petersburg and Roanoke.....	268
Mississippi and Rock River Junction.....	498	Philadelphia and Baltimore.....	247
Mobile and Girard.....	335	Philadelphia and Columbia.....	197
Mobile and New Orleans.....	348	Philadelphia and Reading.....	196
Mobile and Ohio.....	343	Philadelphia and Saunbury.....	246
Mohawk Valley.....	178	Philadelphia and Trenton.....	193
Montgomery and West Point.....	332	Philadelphia and Westchester Direct.....	255
Montreal and Plattsburg.....	155	Philadelphia City.....	243
Morris and Essex.....	189	Philadelphia, Easton and Water Gap, changed to North Pennsylvania.....	238
Mount Carbon.....	234	Philadelphia, Germantown and Norristown.....	199
Muscogee.....	316	Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore.....	198
Nashua and Lowell.....	80	Pittsburg and Cleveland.....	415
Nashville and Alabama. See Nashville and South- western.....	368	Pittsburg and Connelville.....	243
Nashville and Chattanooga.....	365

	No.		No.
Pittsburg and Erie.....	241	Spartanburg and Union.....	304
Pittsburg and Steubenville.....	242	Springfield and Xenia.....	401
Pittsburg and Washington.....	244	Springfield, Mount Vernon and Pittsburg.....	402
Pittsburg, Maysville and Cincinnati.....	430	Steubenville and Indiana.....	406
Plainfield now New Haven and Northampton.....	115	Stockbridge and Pittsfield.....	94
Port Huron and Lake Michigan.....	440	Stonington and Providence.....	105
Portland, Saco and Portsmouth.....	19	Stony Brook.....	95
Portsmouth and Concord.....	37	Stoughton Branch.....	96
Portsmouth and Roanoke. See Seaboard and Roanoke.		Strasburg.....	253
Potsdam and Watertown.....	146	Sullivan.....	38
Providence and Boston.....	56	Sunbury and Erie.....	250
Providence and Bristol.....	88	Sunbury and Shamokin.....	251
Providence and Plainfield.....	104	Susquehanna.....	252
Providence and Stonington.....	105	Syracuse and Binghamton.....	156
Providence and Worcester.....	106	Syracuse and Oswego.....	144
Rabun Gap.....	311	Syracuse and Rochester.....	127
Racine, Janesville, and Mississippi.....	529	Syracuse and Utica.....	126
Raleigh and Gaston.....	292	Tallahassee and St. Mark's.....	350
Raleigh and Wilmington.....	291	Taunton and New Bedford.....	81
Ramapo and Paterson. See Union.....	194	Taunton Branch.....	97
Raymond Branch.....	347	Tecumseh Branch.....	447
Reading. See Philadelphia and Reading.....	196	Tennessee and Alabama. See Nashville and Southern.....	375
Rensselaer and Saratoga.....	150	Terre Haute and Alton.....	456
Richmond and Danville.....	271	Terre Haute and Alton, called, also, Terre Haute and Richmond.....	454
Richmond and Newcastle.....	458	Terre Haute and Joliet.....	512
Richmond and Petersburg.....	269	Terre Haute and Vincennes.....	456
Richmond, Eaton and Hamilton.....	425	Texas Central.....	355
Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac.....	267	Toledo and Chicago Air-line.....	423
Roanoke Valley.....	286	Toledo and Illinois.....	424
Rochester and Buffalo.....	129	Toledo, Norwalk and Cleveland.....	419
Rochester and Lake Ontario.....	166	Trenton Branch.....	192
Rochester and Syracuse Direct.....	127	Trenton and Philadelphia.....	193
Rochester, Lockport and Niagara Falls.....	123	Trevorton and Mahanoy.....	254
Rock Island and Chicago.....	489	Troy and Bennington.....	41
Rock River Valley Union.....	523	Troy and Boston.....	98
Rome and Watertown.....	145	Troy and Greenbush.....	169
Rome Branch (Ga.).....	322	Troy and Greenfield.....	88
Rome, Clayton and Ogdensburg.....	180	Troy and Schenectady.....	131
Room Run.....	248	Tuscaloosa Branch.....	340
Rushville and Shelbyville.....	461	Tusculumbia and Decatur.....	337
Rutland and Burlington.....	45	Union, (N. J.).....	194
Rutland and Washington.....	46	Utica and Binghamton.....	157
Sackett's Harbor and Ellisburg.....	153	Utica and Black River.....	168
Sackett's Harbor and Saratoga.....	170	Utica and Syracuse.....	126
Saint Andrew's and Quebec.....	...	Utica and Schenectady.....	225
St. Joseph and Hannibal.....	619	Vassalborough and China.....	22
St. Charles Branch.....	513	Venango.....	258
St. Lawrence and Atlantic.....	3	Vermont Central.....	51
St. Louis and Cincinnati.....	471	Vermont and Massachusetts.....	99
St. Louis and Iron Mountain.....	517	Vermont Valley.....	49
St. Louis and Northern.....	518	Vermont and Canada.....	48
Salem and Lowell.....	89	Vicksburg, Louisiana and Texas.....	354
Salisbury Branch of the North Carolina.....	297	Vicksburg and Brandon.....	344
San Antonio and Mexican Gulf.....	356	Vincennes and Indianapolis.....	482
Sandusky and Indiana.....	428	Vincennes and Paducah.....	500
Sandusky and Mansfield.....	392	Vincennes and Terre Haute.....	456
Sangamon and Morgan.....	508	Virginia Central.....	270
Saratoga and Sackett's Harbor.....	170	Virginia and Tennessee.....	274
Saratoga and Schenectady.....	152	Wabash Valley.....	500
Saratoga and Washington.....	151	Ware River.....	100
Saugus Branch.....	90	Warrenton Branch, (Va.).....	279
Savannah and Pensacola Air-line.....	328	Warrenton Branch, (Ga.).....	324
Savannah Branch.....	497	Warrenton and Macon.....	329
Schenectady and Albany.....	124	Warsaw and Lafayette.....	507
Schenectady and Troy.....	131	Washington Branch, (Md.).....	263
Schuykill Valley.....	219	Washington Branch, (Ga.).....	324
Scioto and Hocking Valley.....	427	Watertown and Rome.....	145
Seaboard and Roanoke.....	273	Watertown and Potsdam.....	146
Sebago Branch.....	20	Waynesborough and Augusta.....	319
Shelby (Ky.).....	379	Weldon and Wilmington.....	291
Shelbyville and Rushville.....	461	Weldon and Gaston.....	299
Shelbyville and Knightstown.....	460	Western, (Mass.).....	101
Shelbyville Lateral.....	462	Western and Atlantic.....	315
Skaneateles and Jordan.....	168	Western Vermont.....	50
Sodus Point and Southern.....	154	West Chester and Philadelphia.....	255
Southbridge and Blackstone.....	91	West Chester Branch.....	200
South Carolina.....	300	West Stockbridge.....	102
Southern Mississippi.....	344	West Side.....	179
South Side.....	272	West Feliciana.....	345
South Shore.....	93	Westminster Branch.....	264
South-western of Georgia.....	317	Whitehall and Plattsburg.....	173
South-western of Kentucky and Tennessee.....	390	White Mountains.....	39
South-western of Wisconsin.....	539	Williamsport and Elmira.....	256
South-western of Missouri.....	520	Wills Valley.....	339
South Reading Branch.....	92	Wilmington and Raleigh.....	291

	No.		No.
Wilmington and Manchester.....	293	Xenia and Columbus.....	396
Wilmington and Newcastle.....	261	Xenia and Delaware.....	452
Wilmington and Weldon.....	291	Xenia, Lebanon and Cincinnati.....	432
Wilton.....	40	Xenia and Springfield.....	401
Winchester and Potomac.....	275	York and Cumberland, (Me.).....	21
Winchester and Alabama.....	336	York and Cumberland, (Pa.).....	205
Wisconsin Central.....	535	York and Wrightsville.....	257
Woonsocket Union.....	107	Zanesville, Wilmington and Cincinnati.....	421
Worcester and Nashua.....	103

RATES OF POSTAGE WITHIN THE UNITED STATES.

- For a single letter sent, not exceeding 3000 miles, if prepaid..... 3 cents.
- If not prepaid..... 5 cents.
- Sent over 3000 miles, if prepaid..... 6 cents.
- If not prepaid..... 10 cents.

- For such a letter, conveyed wholly or in part by sea to or from a foreign country, (except all cases where different rates have been or shall be established by postal arrangements,) sent not exceeding 2500 miles..... 10 cents.
- Sent over 2500 miles..... 20 cents.

For a double letter there shall be charged double the above rates; for a treble letter, treble the above rates, &c. Every letter or parcel not exceeding half an ounce (avoirdupois) in weight is a single letter, and every additional weight of half an ounce or of less than half an ounce is charged with an additional single postage. When advertised, one cent additional is charged on each letter. For a letter delivered by a carrier, there is an additional charge of not exceeding one or two cents.

- For drop letters (not to be mailed) each..... 1 cent.
- For all letters or package (ship letters) conveyed by any vessel not employed in conveying the mail..... 2 cents.

To this charge of 2 cents is added 4 cents, when the letters are not transmitted through the mail, but are delivered at the post-office where deposited; and the ordinary rates of United States postage are added when the letter is transmitted through the mails.

- Each newspaper, periodical, unsealed circular, or other article of printed matter, not exceeding three ounces in weight, to any part of the United States..... 1 cent.

- For every additional ounce or fraction of an ounce..... 1 cent.

If the postage on any newspaper or periodical is paid quarterly or yearly in advance, at the office where the same is either mailed or delivered, then half the above rates are charged. Newspapers and periodicals not weighing over one and a half ounces, circulated in the State where published, are likewise charged but half of the above rates.

Small newspapers and periodicals, published monthly or oftener, and pamphlets not containing more than sixteen octavo pages each, when sent in single packages weighing at least eight ounces, to one address, and prepaid by affixing postage stamps thereto, shall be charged only half a cent for each ounce or fraction of an ounce, notwithstanding the postage calculated on each separate article of such package would exceed that amount. The postage on all transient matter, unless prepaid, shall be charged double the first-mentioned rates.

Books, bound or unbound, not weighing over four pounds, shall be deemed mailable matter, and shall pay,

- For all distances under 3000 miles per ounce.. 1 cent.
- For all distances over 3000 miles..... 2 cents.

Fifty per cent. shall be added in all cases when not prepaid. All printed matter chargeable by weight shall be weighed when dry. The publishers of newspapers and periodicals may send to each other from their respective offices of publication, free of postage, one copy of each publication; and may also send to each actual subscriber, inclosed in their publications, bills and receipts for the same, free of postage. The publishers of weekly newspapers may send to each actual subscriber within the county where their papers are printed and published one copy thereof free of postage.

No printed matter shall be sent at the above rates, unless either without any wrapper, or with one open at the ends or sides, so that the character of the matter may be seen without removing the wrapper; or if any written or printed communication is put on the same after its publication, or upon the cover or wrapper, except the name and address of the person to whom the same is sent; or if any thing else is enclosed in such printed paper. If these conditions are not complied with, letter postage shall be charged.

The establishment of private expresses for the conveyance of any letters, packets, or packages of letters, or other matter transmittible in the United States mail (newspapers, pamphlets, magazines, and periodicals excepted), from one city, town, or other place, to any other city, town, or place in the United States, between which the United States mail is regularly transported, is prohibited. Contractors may carry newspapers out of the mails for sale or distribution among subscribers. A penalty of $5000 is imposed on any person taking letters through or over any part of the United States, for the purpose of being sent out of the United States without the payment of postage.

Letters addressed to different persons cannot be enclosed in the same envelope or package, under a penalty of ten dollars, unless addressed to foreign countries.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

0 011 272 296 8

