Souvenir Program

OF THE

WAR EXPOSITION

AND A

Memorial to the officers and men of the Ninth Regiment, who died defending our flag during the late war with Spain

ALSO

Containing a brief history of the war with Spain, principal Battleships and portraits of Admiral Dewey and Colonel Bogan.

NOTE—The Signals Flags, displayed in this programme are taken, by permission, directly from the "U. S. Naval Signal Book," and are correct. Many combination of flags have been shown as being the historic signal: "REMEMBER THE MAINE." Without authority no one has access to the Naval Signal Book and in every instance, the "International Merchant Code" was employed. This code is never used by naval vessels of the same nationality in intercommunication. The differences that have been found in two signals that were supposed to convey the same information, has been due to the that in some instances the International man-of-war signal "G. Q. T. E." meaning the "U. S. S. Maine" was displayed while in others the International Geographical Signal "B. Q. K. J.," signifying the State of Maine was presumed to have been hoisted. The Blue and White checkered flag is called in the navy the "Telegraph Flag," which when displayed with other flags means: "Use Telegraphic Dictionary in deciphering this message." The signal shown is No. 7820—"Remember." The Red and White checkered flag is called the "Cornet." When displayed by itself means: "Everybody repair on board at once." When hoisted in conjunction with other flags, means: "Below this flag is hoisted the Official U. S. Naval Number of the vessel indicated, which list consult." The Maine's Official No. was 217.

Brief History of Col. Bogan

FRED. B BOGAN was a native of Charlestown. Born Feb. 10, 1851. He was a son of Frederick and Annie (De Vey) Bogan. His education was derived from the public schools. He was a graduate of the Old Winthrop School in the Charlestown District. In 1878 he entered the City's Architects' office and in 1885 he was transferred to the Public Buildings Department, filling the position of assistant to the late Supt. Tucker. At the latter's death in 1893 Col. Bogan was appointed acting superintendent, and the following year received the appointment of Superintendent of Public Buildings. He was for many years identified with the militia of the Commonwealth, joining the 5th Regiment as a private, advancing grade by grade until he held the position of Colonel of the 9th Regiment.

His dying message was an index of a noble character: "My God, bring those brave men of my Regiment home from that place, or they will die before Sunday." In the last throes of the result of that dreadful campaign, in the tender ministrations of his own family and closest friends, in the privacy of his own fireside, there was not a word of himself or his affairs but the tender solicitude of a father for his whole command from the highest officer to the lowest private.

When President McKinley made his first call for volunteers for the army to invade Cuba, Col. Bogan went to the front with the Ninth Massachusetts Volunteers.

At the battle preceding the surrender of Santiago he was with his regiment although he had been sick from the time the regiment left the state camp at South Framingham. He would not consent to leave his regiment until he was so wasted by malarial fever that he could hardly stand and was peremptorily ordered home by the regimental surgeon.

An individuality which strengthened and enobled the humanity of man.

A friendship once gained to be envied and cherished,
such was Frederic Bogan.

..In Memoriam..

All were God's noblemen.
Each chivalric soul was proudly given,
The Nation's honor to keep pure,
To crush a Tyrant, to unbind the slave.

All dead! Grand types to emulate.
Each answered to that Final Roll,
On distant shore or far from all best loved,
That others might be free.

Such Valor lives for Aye.

The dead have left a heritage which the State and nation must share with their firesides.

To the living they have entrusted the sacredness of their valor.

War Exposition

THE PRESENTATION.

The presentation of the War Exposition management to the Ninth Regiment of the painting, "Colonel Fred B. Bogan bidding farewell to his Regiment in the trenches near Santiago" just prior to his embarkation on the Iroquois, is an expression of appreciation. The scenic artist, John G. Ohnimus has put forth the effort of his life. And in the posing of the original has expressed the pathos which the event inspires.

BROOKLYN

War Exposition

SANTIAGO DE CUBA

You are now in the walled city of Santiago de Cuba, the capital of the province of the same name, oldest city of any size in America. Havng been founded by Velasquez in 1514.

Everywhere are our national colors and our dear old flag and as you pass from tent to tent filled with the products of yankee skill, and mingle with the soldiers, sailors, daughters of the regiment and Red Cross Nurses, you become retrospective and the soft strains of music add to your mood.

You have but to raise your eyes and there through the ionic marble columns, with a master hand is portrayed the action which brought about the results you are anticipating in to-day.

On the left of the painting, Col. Bogan bidding farewell to his regiment is the great Dominican Church, largest Cathedral in Cuba, near centre of city and Plaza de la Reina.

ADMIRAL GEORGE DEWEY

War Exposition

DEWEY'S GREAT VICTORY

The whole world rings with the plaudits for Commodore Dewey and his Asiatic Fleet which crept into the harbor, Sunday, May 1st under cover of darkness, not waiting for the removal of torpedoes or submarine mines, and at day break was ready with his challenge for Spanish forts and fleet. He silenced the forts and completely annihilated the fleet. This was the first naval battle in the world since the advent of the modern iron clad, and it was well for America that so brave, strategic, and skilfull a commodore was in command, and such officers and sailors. Dewey's fleet consisted of seven vessels. It was a fight both on land and sea, thus making the victory of the brave commander, officers and sailors one of the most notable in the annals of our navy. The portrayal here is the Olympia followed by the Concord in elliptic form.

War Exposition

CERVERA'S DEFEAT.

This is just as the Vizcaya turned out to sea to attack the Brooklyn and let the Colon pass between her and land, the Oregon to rear and the Brooklyn to the side of Vizcaya, the two torpedo boats, and the "Maria Teresa" and the "Oquenda" are burning on the shore. This was at 10.38 on the morning of July 3d. At 11.06 the Vizcaya lowered her colors, and at 1.15 o'clock the last ensign of Spain had been hauled down and the wonderful run of Admiral Schley's Flag Ship Brooklyn and the Oregon had closed a victory which was "big enough for all", to quote gallant Admiral Schley, who had by his steering a circle toward the enemy instead of away from him, had saved his ship to make that superb run and the magnificent victory possible.

OREGON

THE MUNICIPAL BUILDING

Here is the Municipal Building. While Old Glory was being raised, inside the building was taking place the last act in the surrender, General Shafter was receiving the sword of General Toral. That dear Spangled Banner floating up there, told of Cervera's gallant dash. Schley's great victory. The fall of Santiago. The freedom of the Island and a protecting and guiding hand for an oppressed people. This grand galaxy of scenes are sketches from photographs and personal thoughts by John G. Ohnimus, perfected and finished under his direct supervision.

One of the great attractions of the Exposition is the interesting and distinguished James P. Cummings of Hyde Park, Mass. He was one of the U. S. Marine Battalion, Co. D, and was ordered to Key West immediately upon his return from China on the Machias. He has many very interesting and valuable relics secured by his own bravery which he tries to conceal in relating his right to their possession. One of the many is a section of a Spanish national flag which was captured by him on May 11th at a point called Dora Key at the entrance to Cardenas Harbor, the attacking party under command of Ensign Willard was carried ashore in a small launch. As they neared the shore they were met by a shower of bullets from the Spaniards, who were concealed behind the signal station, they landed, drove back the Spaniards and captured the Spanish national flag and also the signal flags, connected with the station and planted the first American flag on Cuban soil. He was wounded and passed through that terrible siege of fever. He was aboard the Texas during the naval battle and was an eye witness to the destruction of Cervera's fleet. He and other fever patients were placed aboard the Texas preparatory to transportation to Key West. He has just returned from the naval hospital in Brooklyn. He can be seen at the official photographer's (Mrs Ober-Towne) tent.

One of the surviving heroes of that terrible campaign of blood and fever in Cuba, is young private Allen McIntosh, member of Troop F, 3d Regt. Cavalry Sharp Shooters. He has relics taken from the bodies of two of the enemy, shot by him, one an officer and one a sharp shooter, also a Mauser Rifle, taken from the wreck of "Maria Teresa." It was grappled for with four fish hooks, the ship was in flames at the time. $24,000 in Spanish gold was found on board. A Haversack used for carrying field rations, carried from Chickamauga, Ga. to El Caney, Cuba, was stolen by Cubans on the morning of July 1st, while going into action, recovered July 2d. Also, present is Lieutenant N. A. Ham, Ship Paymaster's Yeoman of the Monitor Wyandotte.
