

Nationwide project Miljon+

What, why, how?

Sirli Zupping, Riina Reinsalu

Miljon+ is an nationwide project to get the Estonian Wikipedia among the Wikipedia versions with over 1 million articles because our society needs a high quality free encyclopedia. So by the end of the project there should roughly be as many articles as there are Estonian language speakers.

This project involves cooperation with universities, museums, companies and other institutions. We have powerful partners to support more and more contests to upgrade Estonian Wikipedia and Miljon+ team offers free trainings sessions for those who need it.

On the Internet, Estonian is among the 40 largest languages in the world, with Estonian content on the Internet ten times more than Estonian speakers among the inhabitants of the world. The Estonian branch of Wikipedia has also been the largest contributor per capita in the world for many years. Let us then continue to do so, and let us draw up and translate articles from our professions so that this important information is available in our native language and is easily found and usable.
