NEW BOOKS IN THE NARBERTH LIBRARY

Winston Churchill's New Novel

The popularity of the Narberth Free Public Library continues to increase. New books are being added steadily. People who have started to borrow books come back week after week, and new readers are taking out books every few days.

From a few hundred books—hidden away on shelves on the second floor of the Y. M. C. A. Community Center, the library has grown to over 1,400 volumes in the course of a few short months.

For the benefit of readers the Library Committee, headed by H. C. Gara and assisted by Secretary Hampton, have completed four lists or catalogues, viz.:

(1) By numbers as published in Our Town, which is on file at the library.

(2) By title.

(3) By author.

(4) By classified topics.

The latter index should be of special interest to parents, teachers and students generally. There are many fine, reliable reference books of various kinds in our library, and by means of this new topical index it is possible to find, in a minute or so whatever book or books there are dealing with the particular subject in which you are interested. Parents, particularly, are asked to bear in mind this new feature, as it will be a great help to the children when school opens in the fall.

Your Favorite Authors.

If you want to get a book by your favorite author it is only necessary for you to consult the index by authors and you can tell in an instant whether there are any such books in the library. Try this. Of course you won't find every book you ever heard of, but you'll be surprised at the good books by well known authors that are on the shelves.

By the way, Winston Churchill's newest novel, "A Far Country," has been added this week. It's a great story and one of the newest books most in demand at the Philadelphia libraries.

The balance of $13.75 was turned over to the general Fourth of July fund and is noted in Treasurer Stokes' report.

It is also very gratifying to call attention to the item of $32.20, the amount of the general surplus which was contributed to the Holiday House. A goodly number of city children will be made happier and healthier for the outings which the money will provide. Mention should also be made of the Yarnell Paint Company's contribution of the galvanized iron primer used in treating the flag pole to protect it from the weather.

And finally, Chairman Dold, of the Fourth of July and Flag Pole Committees, desires Our Town to express his appreciation of the assistance rendered by the members of his committees, the Narberth ball team and every one else who help in any way.

CIVIC ASSOCIATION TO CO-OPERATE WITH COUNCIL

The directors of The Civic Association, at the regular monthly meeting held Tuesday evening, appointed two committees to confer with Councils. Dr. O. J. Snyder was authorized to meet the members of Councils and arrange some plan by which ashes may be removed from the cellars of those residents who haven't the facilities for doing this work, and Fletcher W. Stites was named to cooperate with Councils with a view to making practical use of the information contained in the district reports made each month by the directors of the association.

NARBERTH CONTINUES CHAMPIONSHIP MARCH

Stites and Gilmore Local Stars

Narberth came to itself again after two defeats at the hands of Cape May and won from Overbrook in a Main Line League game by the score of 4-2. Narberth's first run was the gift of Pitcher Packey, who with three men on bases, issued a pass to Bob Gilmore, which enabled Walter Humphries to score the first run of the game.

Narberth scored another run in the fifth inning on Gilmore's base on balls, Stites' hit which advanced him to third, and Conway's error on Fleck's grounder. The Narberth bats got busy again in the seventh inning and scored two more to put the game on ice, when Gene Davis led off with a single, was advanced to second on Stites' third hit of the game, reached third on Fleck's fielder's choice which caught Stites at second, Fleck immediately stole second and Walter Humphries scored them both with a slashing double to deep center.

Gilmore, Narberth's famous pitcher, had another good day, with 13 strike-outs to his credit.

The features of the game were the hitting of Stites for Narberth, and Levan for Overbrook, both having three hits; while the fielding honors were carried off by Levan, Pat O'Brien's right fielder. The score:

NARBROOK IS PROGRESSING.

Many Visitors View the Model Community Each Sunday.

It is getting to be quite the habit for Narberth folk to make a visit to Narbrook each Sunday to note the progress being made from week to week.

Thus far the east and west drives are clearly defined and the cinder foundation for the cement sidewalks is nearly all laid on the east drive.

The roadbed for the drive that circles the natural amphitheatre is ready for cinders and macadam which will be laid as soon as the sewer question is settled and conduits set.

The service road back of the lots on the circle has already received its cinder foundation and is nearly complete to this stage the entire length of the development, except at the outlet of the artificial pond on Mr. Artman's estate which is yet to be bridged.

Work of moving and resetting the fences on the Williams tract—part of which was purchased for Narbrook—has been completed and the entrance road from Price avenue is being laid out.

Settlement for the last part of land that composes the tract has been made and deeds are now being prepared for the lot owners.

One or two of the lot owners are so anxious to commence building that they will probably start immediately they secure their deeds.

If you have not "looked the park over," better walk around and see the wonderful transformation that is taking place. Be sure to go around the "circle" when you view the tract. It's worth while.

THANKS THE YOUNG LADIES.

The members of the Narberth Athletic Club extend a vote of thanks to the young ladies of Narberth who assisted in making the lawn fete of July 10th a success.

By Henry C. Howes, Jr., President.

UNION TWILIGHT SERVICE.

In spite of the cloudy weather last Sunday evening, about 160 people gathered for the twilight service on the lawn at the corner of Windsor and Forrest avenues. Unfortunately, rain came before the service was quite finished and it was necessary for Rev. E. L. Swift to discontinue his address.

The special feature of the evening was the music rendered by the Young Men's Christian Association Glee Club. Two selections were rendered, one a duet by Messrs. Stites and Dennis, and the other a bass solo by D. D. Stickney, with chorus by the club. We expect to have this club sing at several of the meetings this summer.

These union twilight meetings seem to be more attractive this year than ever. Come next Sunday evening at 6.30 and enjoy a short, interesting service in the open. Mrs. Charles R. Jones will sing and Rev. C. G. Koppel will deliver the address.

BRANCH BANK NEARLY READY.

Observant Narberth citizens have noticed the new lettering on the glass in the window of the store in the Arcade formerly occupied by W. T. Harris.

It is the harbinger of the fact that the Merion Title and Trust Company's local branch will soon be ready to receive deposits.

Sometime ago public sentiment was sounded, and many local people signed papers to the effect that they would support such a branch, if it were opened.

The enterprise should prove a great accommodation to local merchants and householders and deserves support of our borough as a whole—official and otherwise.

UNCLAIMED LETTERS.

Letters addressed to the following named persons remain unclaimed in the Narberth post office:

Miss Jessie P. Johnstone, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Miller, Miss Marguerite Conrad.

Edward S. Haws, P. M.

Ninth Grade—Second Prize. "HOW THE CUP WAS WON."

By Mildred Harris.

Morning dawned, a most dreary, colorless morning. To-day was to be the Freshmen and Junior track meet, and one thing after another had happened until now it seemed as though there was no hope for us Freshmen. Our college was a co-ed and for years it had been our custom to have the meet. One large, silver loving cup was the only prize. This had been in the college for four years and had been won twice by each class and this year the class winning it was to keep it. Hope was fast leaving us however for our best jumper, Bill Jameson had been called home suddenly, and I, the captain, had succeeded in spraining my ankle. What we were to do was the question.

There was a knock at my door. "Come," I called, and in walked Mary Creighton, our manager. She was without a doubt the last person I wanted to talk to. She was always so calm and quiet and I always lost my temper. "Well," she began, "What are you going to do?" "Do," I replied, "what do you think? I can't run and Bill can not be here, we can not do anything but throw in the subs and take a chance."

"Subs," she returned sarcastically, "why girls could do better than those subs."

By this time my temper was lost entirely. "Well if you can do any better I would like to see you that is all," I said. "Very well, leave it to me, but don't stamp your foot so hard it will make it worse." And with this announcement she left me. I was puzzled. What did she mean? I could not imagine and I did not find out until after the meet.

The field was gay with pennants and people; the sun had come out and every one was smiling except me. I was still puzzled, and angry at myself for having to sit down with a crutch instead of running. It was decided that there should be only three events, the one mile run, pole vault and high jump.

Bang! the pistol shot rang through the air and off went the eight runners, and then even I could not help smiling for Mary, with all her wisdom, had put in the subs. I could distinguish them from the others by the caps, which all Freshmen had to wear in the field sports. There was a quickening of steps as they were off for the last quarter mile stretch. Hale, a sturdy Junior, was in the lead. It was a tense moment for all, as we watched a Freshman gaining on Hale. Finally they were opposite and then the Freshman shot ahead, crossed the tape and won.

But the day was not yet won. The winning of the cup required two first places. The next event was the high jump. No Freshman could jump like Bill and so it was that the Juniors won. Then came the final and decisive event, the pole vault. First two Freshmen dropped out, then two Juniors. There were but two left. The winner of the mile race and the winner of the high jump. They both took their turn and both missed. There was a call for last try. Up went the Junior and missed! The Freshman went up for the last time and cleared the bar. A mighty cheer arose from the Freshmen. We had won! And with subs at that. How I would crow over Mary. But what had happened? Quickly grasping my crutch, I hurried to the center of the field, where a crowd was fast collecting. There lay our hero of the day, unconscious. The girls and boys were helping to revive him. I grasped the Freshman cap from his head and then I fell back astonished, for instead of the sub's black hair, I saw Mary Creighton's golden curls. There was a muffled laugh from the crowd. The joke was on me, the others had known. There was a flicker of her lashes, her eyes opened and a smile overspread her face. "I was right, captain," she murmured.

EDITORIAL NOTES

"THE LAST CALL"

OUR TOWN will gladly print any news item about any subject that is of interest to Narberth folks, but in order to meet the printing schedule, all "copy" manuscripts—must reach the editors by 6 P. M. Monday each week.

REGARDING LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

One of the main purposes of Our Town is to serve as a medium by which the citizens of Narberth may express their views and ideas on all local public questions. The editors want the folks of the borough to write letters to the paper. If you see or hear of something that you believe is worthy of praise, write a complimentary letter. If you see or hear something that you believe is detrimental to the best interests of the town, it is your privilege, and your duty, as a citizen, to voice your sentiments. Our Town may not agree with you in every instance, but we're here to print the news, regardless of our opinion.

The columns of this paper are open to all citizens, and your letters will be printed if you sign your name to your communications. It is not necessary that your name be printed if you would rather express your views under a nom de plume. That is a matter for you to decide. But we must insist that you give the editors your name. You won't find a publication of any kind that will take the least notice of or print anonymous communications. You wouldn't in your own business or personal affairs; why should a newspaper?

This editorial note is prompted at this time by the fact that Our Town received during the last week a letter commenting on the Fourth of July parade. It was unsigned and we haven't the slightest idea who wrote it. We would like to have printed that letter, but we couldn't under the circumstances.

No citizen need have any fear that Our Town will violate his or her confidences. If you write a letter to the paper and request that your name not be published, it will not be printed.

A SUGGESTION.

Editor Our Town.
Dear Sir:—Apropos of the parade on July 5th in connection with our Fourth of July celebration, it occurs to me that if we have a similar celebration next year, the parade could be made much larger and much more interesting by including a floral section, consisting of decorated vehicles of all kinds, including automobiles, motor trucks, motorcycles, bicycles, wagons and carriages, baby carriages and children's carts and express wagons.

Two or three prizes could be offered for the vehicles decorated in the most pleasing and artistic manner.

In July, our gardens are teeming with a great variety of blooms suitable for such a purpose. A floral parade is always beautiful, and nearly every family in the borough would be represented by some kind of vehicle. In this way, everybody would be interested in the success of the parade, which would doubtless attract many visitors from outside.

This is not at all suggested as a substitute for the flower show, inaugurated through the efforts of Mr. Stites, to be held earlier in the season, but as an additional opportunity for the display of our floral beauties, and incentive to the cultivation of gardens.

And even I could not help acknowledging this when the cup was presented to the Freshmen class, and some how I was glad that Bill was called home and I sprained my ankle.

A POLO GAME.

By Margaret Eyre.

As I approached the Polo Field, my first impression was of the extreme neatness of the exterior. As far as I could see, no refuse of any kind, not even the smallest piece of paper, cluttered the ground. Even the white fence, surrounding the oval grounds, was spotless, as though it had received a good scrubbing that afternoon.

If the exterior was delightful to me, the interior was even more so. Imagine a vast expanse of level ground, covered with such a wonderful, velvety carpet of grass that not a flaw could be detected in it anywhere; add to that the spotlessly white, picket fence, and you have a good picture of my first, hasty impression of the field.

It was early in the afternoon, but already the stands were fast filling with people as I took my seat. Even fitting background for this building, rose the gently sloping lawn of the Country Club, its grass shadowed by the tall, dignified trees, into a deep and mellow green.

By craning my neck, I was able to see the long line of automobiles ranged outside the field, like hungry monsters lying in wait for their prey. The sun shone brightly upon their ebony sides, touching their brasswork into points of light, like myriad diamonds.

Soon the creaking of a gate was heard and the ponies entered, their glossy coats glistening in the sun's rays as they paced slowly down the field, to take up their positions near the club house. They were followed shortly by the horsemen, who entered amidst a burst of applause from the audience. After a few minutes of preliminary practice, they gathered in the center of the field, awaiting the signal to begin the game.

A hush of expectancy settled upon the chattering crowd, the straw hats on the fence struggled for a better view; the gong sounded, and from the referee's hand flashed a white ball. The game was on!

A sudden scramble and the ball bounded down the field. The men, in their green and orange shirts and white trousers, made a beautiful picture as they raced down the field on their spirited mounts.

For the next two or three minutes nothing was heard save the click of mallet on ball, the pound of the horses' hoofs and their heavy breathing as they dashed down the field, the jingle and rattle of harness and the sharp cries of the players.

At the end of the period each player changed his horse, which was led out by a groom.

The game did not last long, because the periods were very short, and as I left the field I turned for one last look at the grounds. The field, which had been so alive with color a short time ago, was now almost deserted. The glamor and tinsel of the afternoon gone, the merciful night was drawing down her curtain to shield the empty stands and the muddy and broken field.

A MOONLIGHT SNOW SCENE.

By Marion Swift.

As I approached the brow of the hill and gazed at the transfigured scene before and below me I was inspired with a sense of wonder and delight. The moon, in all its golden glory, flooded the landscape with soft, melting rays. The tall pines on the brow of an adjoining hill stood out as solemn spectres against the leaden-gray sky, in which were scattered

NARBERTH WOMAN HAS GARDEN OF WEEDS AND WILD FLOWERS

Strange to Say, Mrs. Norman Jeffries Prefers These "Obnoxious" Plants to the Gentler Varieties One is Accustomed to See Cherished About a Home

Weeds and wild flowers to the average person suggest only one descriptive word—"obnoxious." A weed is something to be gotten rid of, by hook or crook, says the Evening Ledger in the course of an interesting article on a unique garden achievement attained by a Narberth woman.

A wild flower is not much better than a weed. It can be tolerated, however, in its proper place—the woods, the field or on mountain sides. But in a cultivated garden, adjacent to one's home, heaven preserves us from the weeds and the wild flowers, or give us the strength and the perseverance to pull them out when they make their unwelcome appearance. This is the average person's attitude.

It's not the attitude of Mrs. Norman Jeffries. Weeds and wild flowers to this botanist of Narberth are among the loveliest things that grow, and why any one who can have a weed and wild flower garden would of her own free will have one of the cultivated plants is more than she can understand.

In the rear of her attractive home at 219 Narberth avenue there is an acre and a quarter of ground which, before she got to work on it, three years ago, was nothing but a chicken run. Now it is a marvelous profusion of wonderfully fragrant weeds and wild flowers, many of which Mrs. Jeffries has collected from the picturesque environs of Narberth, although some have been brought down from the woods of New Hampshire, where she is accustomed to spend the summer months.

Paths Wind Through Garden.

Tortuous paths of beaten earth wind about the garden and to be transported to this lovely retreat of fragrance and beauty on a hot summer afternoon furnishes the proof that is necessary for her contention that weeds and wild flowers have unlimited possibilities for the home garden.

Masses of beautiful pink honeysuckle mingle its sweet perfume with lavender, thyme and wild hyssop. The ethereal Queen's Lace Handkerchief, otherwise known as the wild carrot, rub elbows with the stately foxglove. Butterfly weed, wild violets, field asters, wild Scotch rose, English sweetbriars, golden rod, spice bushes, wild huckleberry bushes, bees' balm, yarrow, penny-royal, camomile, tarragon, all find a place in Mrs. Jeffries' unusual garden and make it a spot worth going a day's journey to see.

"Why, right here in Pennsylvania, in fact right in the woods adjacent to Narberth, a great diversity of the most desirable wild flowers can be found," said Mrs. Jeffries. "Of course, to transplant them successfully it is necessary to know a little about the plants, whether they thrive best in sunlight or shade and the kind of earth they require. A good plan is to bring along some of the earth in which they were found growing, but most of the plants which grow wild are by their very nature hardy and no difficulty is likely to be encountered in the transplanting."

Mrs. Jeffries, starting forth in search of new wild flowers for her garden, is a familiar sight to her neighbors. Her horse is hitched to an old express wagon bought for this purpose, and, reins in hand, she drives into the highways and byways and comes back with specimens.

The result of these expeditions is a garden of almost unbelievable beauty with practically no expense. Just by way of contrast, to show that wild flowers and weeds are the prettiest after all, Mrs. Jeffries has reserved one plot in her garden for the cultivation of the usual garden flower. Only hardy plants, however, the perennials, which do not have to be replanted from season to season, find their way into this spot. Of the delicate flowers which require a great deal of attention and are only short-lived, she will have none.

"They are for hot houses," she said, "and not for the average garden. I see a greater beauty in the weeds and wild flowers than in those which have to be forced and cultivated."

try, I will go on being gentle, and in my warm rippling murmur, a comfort to all."

THE VALUE OF ATHLETICS IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

By Estelle Cohic.

Athletics should form an important part in the curriculum of every public school, large or small. To-day, we are proud to say that this is generally the case. In the first place athletics are a valuable asset to the moral training of any young person. Through them, our young people learn self-control, a sense of duty and a high code of honor. All of which things are essential in later life.

In addition to the moral training which athletics offer, is the chance for physical development. The people who consider athletics a waste of time are much mistaken. They forget past history, they forget that the Olympic Festival of the ancient Greeks has defied time and exists to-day. Of what good is all the book-knowledge in the world if we are not healthy? How can we even hope to possess strong bodies and minds if we do not know how to breathe properly? Our health usually determines the length of our lives. Can we afford to neglect it?

Can we neglect athletics in our school when they produce the spirit which binds it together? A school without athletics is like an automobile without gasoline—it has no power. The spirit of unity and good fellowship, which athletics bring into every school, determine whether that school shall be an important factor in the community or merely a necessity. After an athletic victory, a school is like a large family rejoicing over a hard-earned treasure. The WAYNE, 6; PAOLI, 1.

The Paoli Men's Club suffered another defeat in a Main Line League game on the Paoli's grounds Saturday, administered by the Wayne Club by the score of 6 to 1. Manager Houck elected Rube Longacre for the twirl and he proved a puzzle to the home club, holding them down to four singles, while the visitors connected with Ramsey for seven safe drives, including three doubles and aided by the erratic fielding gives the verdict. The fielding of Kingston, Wright and Cass, with the hitting of Brooks, featured. Score:

LOCAL BOYS LOSE TWO TO CAPE MAY TEAM.

Narberth, champions of the Main Line League, lost both games on their trip to Cape May last week. The first game was anything but Narberth's, but the second game was a pitchers' battle between Murray for Narberth and Gibson for Cape May. While Narberth's pitcher had the better half of the duel, odds were against us, and Cape May scored the only run of the game. Irwin received a base on balls, immediately stole second, was advanced to third on Cornog's out and scored on Harry Simpson's error. The squeeze play was tried, but Matchett missed the ball and Harry dropped the pitch, which enabled Doc Irwin to score the only run of the game.

Narberth threatened to score several times with the bases full and no one out, but couldn't bang out the necessary hit.

The local boys outhit Cape May two to one. Flick Stites banded out three hits and Gene Davis got two more.

ELMWOOD WINS SLUGGING MATCH FROM MICHELL TEAM.

Last Saturday the Elmwood Field Club and the Henry F. Michell A. A., of Philadelphia, played a regular old-fashioned game of baseball, in which plenty of hitting and running were the main features.

Owing to the absence of Cummer, Rutter was selected to do the twirling, but the visitors were quite keen with their batting eyes, and tallied up thirteen hits in six innings, when Wilder, for our Elmwood boys, stepped in the box and checked their walloping ball. Jacobs caught the game, but an injured hand compelled him to be overcautious. Lardie Davis' absence was very much needed in his regular place. Mills and McDonald were tried out and both played creditable games. While the score shows evidence of a hit and run game, yet every moment was exciting and interesting, particularly in the ninth inning, when the Elmwood boys went to bat with one run against them.

Next Saturday the Girard Field Club will journey to Sullivan Field to meet our strong second team, our Elmwood Field Club. The scores:

NEWS OF THE MAIN LINE FISHING CLUB.

Samuel Laird, of Narberth, has just been elected a member of the club. Charles Verna again visited Fortescue and had probably the largest individual catch of the season, landing at least eighty-five fish, consisting of weakfish, croakers and king fish. The largest weakfish caught that day weighed 9-14 pounds on the scales of Captain Charles Garrison. William H. Cohic, another member, conducted a party of Pennsylvania Railroad men to Cape Charles on Friday last and returned with a large catch. He was particularly lucky in landing a large sheepshead. This fish, while at one time plentiful in Jersey waters, is now rarely found north of Old Point Comfort. Messrs. Vernon, Harbert and Claghorn visited Hammonton on Saturday and were fortunate in bringing home rainbow trout, black bass, etc.

PREPARE THE PAPER IN THE DARK ROOM BY BRUSHING IT OVER WITH A TEN-PERCENT SOLUTION OF BICROMATE OF POTASH, OR PLACE THE SOLUTION IN A PORCELAIN TRAY, AND FLOAT THE PAPER ON THE SURFACE OF THE LIQUID. DRY THE PAPER IN THE DARK. YOU CAN PREPARE A NUMBER OF SHEETS AT ONE TIME, AND STORE THEM IN A TIN BOX, IF YOU PUT WITH THEM A SMALL PIECE OF CALCIUM CHLORIDE, TO ABSORB MOISTURE.

TRY THIS WITH NARBERTH FLOWERS.

The juices of certain flowers are sensitive to light, and when expressed, spread on paper and dried, the paper thus prepared can be used in the same way as any photographic printing-out paper. This curious printing process—called the anthotype, which means a flower sketch—was devised by Sir John Herschel, who found that not only are the juices of flowers sensitive to the chemical action of light, but that the green coloring matter of plants has the same quality. You can obtain the juices of flowers by bruising in a china bowl or similar receptacle the petals of fresh flowers, adding a little alcohol, and squeezing the pulp through fine muslin. Spread on paper the liquid that you thus obtain. It is ready for use as soon as it is dry. Bear in mind, however, that you must coat the paper by artificial light, and dry it in the dark. To obtain chlorophyll, the green coloring matter of plants, chop the leaves of juicy plants, cover them with warm alcohol for ten minutes, and then strain the effusion through muslin. When you expose the paper to the sunlight under a negative, the action of the light fades, or bleaches, the unprotected parts of the paper. The simple print is not permanent, but you can make a permanent picture in this way: Prepare the paper in the dark room by brushing it over with a ten-percent solution of bichromate of potash, or place the solution in a porcelain tray, and float the paper on the surface of the liquid. Dry the paper in the dark. You can prepare a number of sheets at one time, and store them in a tin box, if you put with them a small piece of calcium chloride, to absorb moisture. To the juice of the flowers add a little liquid glue or solution of gum arabic, and apply it to the paper by long sweeping strokes of a flat camel's hair brush, drawn first one way of the paper, and then at right angles. Do it by artificial light, and dry the paper in the dark. Print under a negative until the image shows distinctly, then immerse the print in tepid water until the white becomes clear. The color of a print made in this way does not always correspond with the color of the flower from which it was made. The depth of tone depends on the color of the flower used. Crimson and scarlet blossoms, like the peony and the morning-glory, give strong tones; the blues, lavenders and purples are more delicate. The experiment is all the more interesting from the fact that you cannot foretell just what color the print will be.—Youth's Companion.

It is a good and safe rule to sojourn in every place as if you meant to spend your life there, never omitting an opportunity of doing a kindness, or speaking a true word, or making a friend. Ruskin.

MORE OF THE SCHOOL CHILDREN'S ESSAYS.

brotherly existing among students is due to common interest which they feel in their athletics. It is athletics that make enemies smile at each other and the victor shake hands with the defeated.

Therefore, can we ignore the thing which creates school spirit? Can we neglect the least thing which aids in forming good morals? If not, why should we not provide athletics in our public schools for accomplishing these things? What intelligent person is there, who does not see that the value of athletics is inestimable? In fact, who does not recognize them as essential?

"WHAT WE OWE TO THE COMMUNITY."
By Madeline McCoy.

"A community is a body of people living in the same place under the same conditions." Every man, woman or child residing in this community is a joint owner. Therefore each individual should take the responsibilities of the borough upon himself. Narberth is situated in one of the most beautiful sections of the State of Pennsylvania, and so the citizens should do all in their power to maintain the beauty of nature. For instance many of the residents, young and old, are oftentimes negligent and careless concerning both the private and the public property of the town. Paper and other waste particles are strewn promiscuously over the streets and lawns. These are but small affairs, therefore with but little consideration on the part of the individual, this careless indifference could be avoided.

Moreover almost each resident of the town prides himself on the appearance of his property. If people carelessly or intentionally walk on the grass, destroy the flowers, pull down the vines, they are destroying the plants and the beauty of the community.

Each one of us should appoint ourselves a committee of one to remind the careless and to reprimand those who act intentionally. For example the pupils of the Narberth Public Schools have an important role in this play. The school building is surrounded by a beautiful lawn. If the terraces are trodden down, hedges broken by heedless boys, the outward appearance of the school is spoiled. The older pupils should set a good example, which the little folks would undoubtedly follow, thus preserving the lawn.

The many little affairs which are detrimental to our town could be righted by the thoughtfulness and keen sightedness of each citizen.

With all these things in view, the populus of Narberth should do all in their power to further the new project of the "Civic Association," the community park, "Narbrook," and to be one of the chief factors in maintaining the town motto, "Narberth The Year-Round Home Town."

The proper lubrication of automobiles is of the most vital importance. Without it, trouble is sure to ensue.

Why Not Get the Best ?

PIONEER AUTO OILS have not only been thoroughly tested in a chemical and physical laboratory, but receive a thoroughly practical test under actual service conditions, by trained chemists, physicists and engineers.

Light Pioneer Auto Oil contains only 1-4 of 1 per cent. free Carbon; Medium Pioneer Auto Oil only 3-8 of 1 per cent. free Carbon, and Heavy Pioneer Auto Oil, only 44-100 of 1 per cent. of free Carbon. Hence, there is no loss of power from carbon deposits in the cylinder.

All of these oils are manufactured under strictly scientific conditions, and their tests (gravity, flash and fire-test, viscosity and carbon tests) are JUST RIGHT for the purpose of Auto Lubrication.

They are suitable for any type of water-cooled internal combustion engines and any type of lubricating system.

Special oils for air-cooled cylinders, or for very low temperatures.
