Dear Brethren:

This book, "Some Descendants of Richard and Sarah Wood Buss of Kent, England " is a gift to the Ogden Family History Center from the compilers, Walter R. Buss (a 2nd great-grandson) and James H. Osborne (a 3rd great-grandson). We hope it will help others.

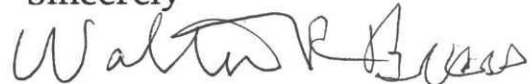

It is based on census, civil, church, and personal records from many families, printed sources, and newspapers. We know it is far from complete and that there are many descendants of Richard and Sarah's whose records have not been found to date. We know there are many errors, typographical, actual, and errors of omission and would appreciate knowing of them, though we did attempt to correct many as we redid it for the second printing.

For your information, this book contains 91 pages, 10 pages of family history, 71 pages of vital statistics, and a 10 page index. Originally, the cost was $12.00 plus postage, but this second printing cost less.

Introduction

This is the story of an English family whose decision to go to America resulted in hundreds of descendants whom we have tried to list in this volume. It is entirely likely that hundreds more exist which we were unable to locate and thereby include. It is hoped that readers of this book will supply the compilers with any data found to be missing.

Richard Buss' father was James Buss who was born about 1734 in Smarden, Kent Co., England. Richard's grandfather was James Buss Sr. who was born in Pluckley, Kent Co., England. Richard, along with his wife and children, emigrated from Kent Co., England in 1826. The place-name is derived from the Anglo-Saxon Smeredaenne, meaning literally, "butter valley and pasture," i.e. valley and pasture where there was good grazing.

We are fortunate to have several accounts of the Buss family's journey to America. The stories were handed down mostly by word of mouth and some have conflicting details. Yet they are written here verbatim so the reader will know the whole story. However, we do take as fact that Richard and Sarah and six children, William, Edward, John, Mary, Richard Jr., and George emigrated 3 June, 1826 on the ship Xenophen and landed in New York, 25 July, 1826 according to the New York passenger list for that year. Twins, Ann and Joseph, were born a year later.

The first account is from Helen Thomas writing about her grandfather, Edward Buss:

"He came to the United States on a sailing vessel six weeks out of sight of land in 1826. Edward was eighteen years old. While aboard ship he found some unfamiliar grain in the bottom of the boat and asked the captain what it was. 'That's Indian corn boy, and that's what you'll live on when you get to America!'"

The next story was provided by Ellen Morgenstern, great-granddaughter of Ann Buss:

"John Buss was born Sept. 28, 1811 in town of Egerton, Kent Co., England. His father Richard Buss, and his mother, Sarah Wood Buss were born in Smarden, Kent Co., England about 40 miles from London. Left England with parents in 1826 sailing in ship Zenophon on ocean 7 weeks. Landing in NY in Aug.. Settled on homestead (Uncle George's place) on 26th of Aug.. Prepared himself for ministry but on account of eyes was obliged to give it up."

The following is a portion of the obituary for George Buss taken from The Crescent dated December 2, 1898:

"George Buss was born in Smarden, Kent Co., England, July 4, 1820, and died at his residence in Sherman, N.Y., Nov. 25, 1898, aged 78 years, 4 months and 21 days. He was one of a family of twelve children, being the youngest son, and next to the youngest in the family. Of that family only one member, Richard Buss, of Farnham, Nebraska, is now living. In 1826 his parents with their family emigrated to America, and after a slow and tedious voyage of three months, arrived at the port of New York. In that early period of this country's history there were no railroads or other convenient modes of travel. The bridle path, and the Indian trail,- along which the lurking savage crouched, and watched his opportunity to drive back the foe from the land of his fathers,- furnished the only means by which the early settlers could reach any given point. Nothing daunted, the aged pioneer, taking his family with him, plunged into the wilderness, and on September 29th, 1826, settled in Sherman, Chautauqua Co., N.Y. There they set to work to clear the forest and build themselves a home in the New World. His family was among the early settlers of the town of Sherman. The first settlers came in 1823... In 1826...Richard Buss joined them. The subject of this sketch was then six years of age.

"After the death of his parents, the deceased bought the interest of the heirs in the estate, so that the old homestead became his property and remained in his possession [sic] until his death."

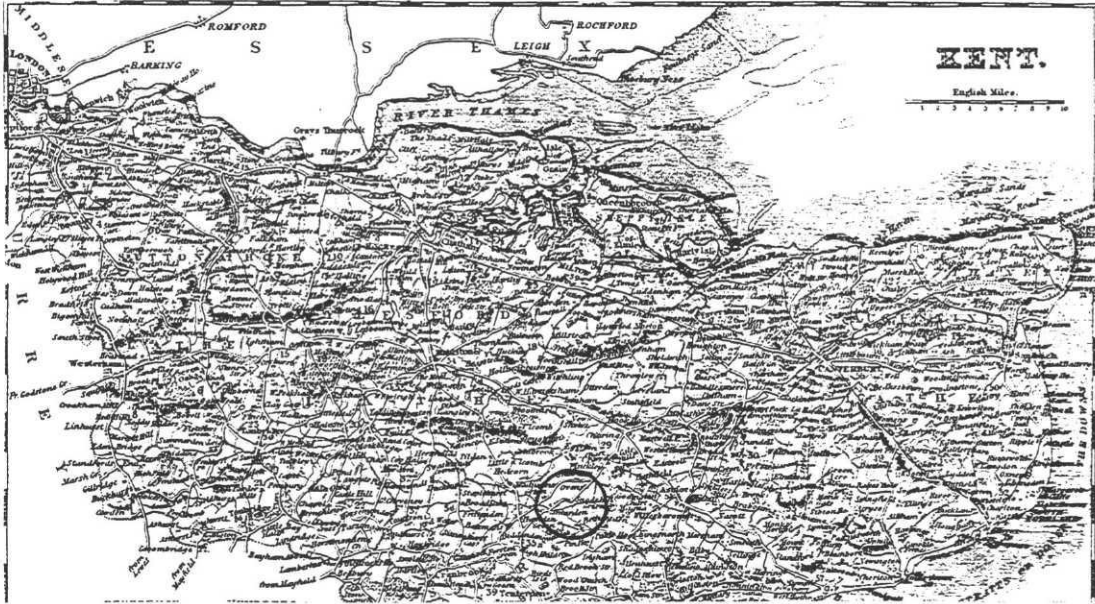

The village of Smarden, Kent Co., England. Smarden Church is in the background.

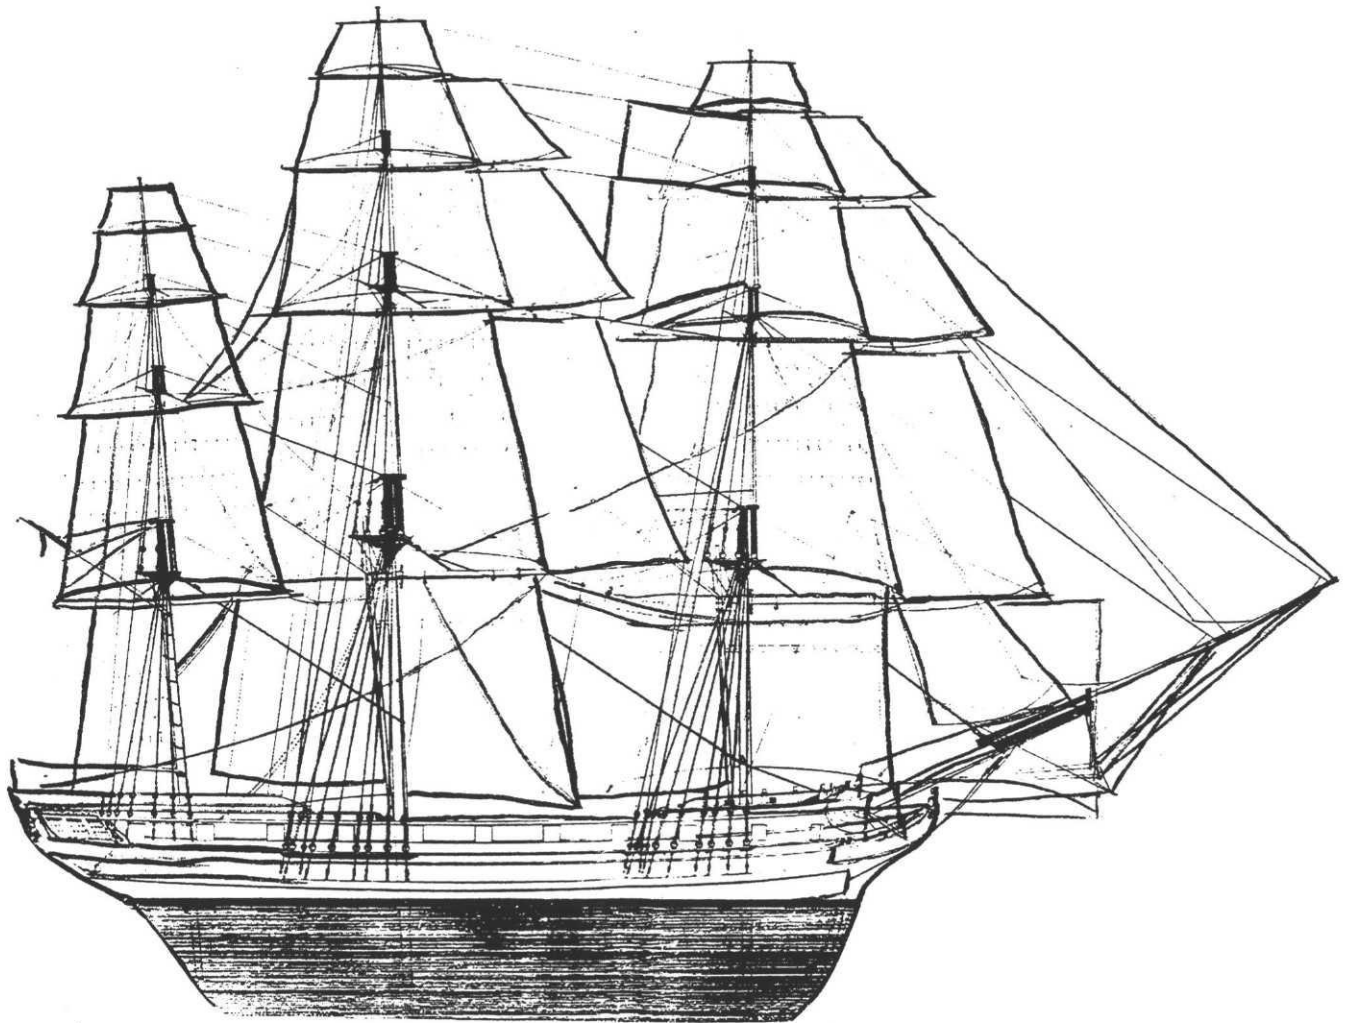

At left is the tombstone of James and Elizabeth Buss- the parents of Richard Buss. It is located in the Smarden Churchyard.

It reads:

 April the 23d 1806. Aged 72 Years.
 also Elizabeth Buss, died
 February the 15th 1814, Aged 78 Years.

This illustration depicts what the Xenophon probably looked like. The ship was named for the Greek historian and military leader. According to "The Register of Shipping for 1826," the Xenophon's description was, "Built in America in 1810, and owned by the Holland Land Co.. It was a ship of 369 tons, single deck with beams, sheathed in copper to the high water mark."

The next account is from Mabel Reed, the granddaughter of George Buss:

"Mabel Reed was the daughter of Edgar O. Buss and Henrietta Coville Buss. Her great-grandfather [Richard Buss] was one of the original Sherman settlers. They [Richard and family] took up residence near the present Walter Freeman place. He [George Buss] was one of fourteen [sic] children who came here in 1826 by way of the Erie Canal after it first opened. The home he [Richard] built remained in the Buss family for ninety years. He [Richard] came seeking a means of support for his family, and for religious reasons. They became farmers and all of their descendants have followed that occupation."

The next story is prefaced: "Why Richard and Sarah Wood Buss came to the U.S.A. as told by their daughter, Mary Buss Pelton, to her grandson, Frank D. DeClow. He, in turn, told it to his daughter, Dorothy DeClow Richardson who wrote it to me Aug. 28, 1942 - Edith R. Buss."

"Mary's parents were wealthy and prominent people. Her father had a friend who died leaving his little girl and her entire fortune solely in the hands of Mary's father. This fortune he invested and lost completely. He then saw it would take everything he had to replace the orphan's fortune. This, it seems, he was not required to do but voluntarily did. He could not stand it then to live in England and so made ready to leave for the United States.

"When he sold his estate, he reserved the right to drive to the London station, with his family, behind the white stallions, with the carriages and attendants as they were accustomed to do. There he bid goodbye to the last of his possessions save his family and his baggage. Little Mary Buss never could forget the last ride behind the white stallions."

The following is a portion of a letter written by Grace Ottaway, Sherman, N.Y. January 23, 1943 to Dorothy DeClow Richardson:

"I have always been intensely interested in the early history and the journey of our ancestors to America. There is hardly anyone left who can remember hearing directly incidents about the journey to America. I have talked with Ora (DeClow) and Lee (Judge Ottaway) and can tell a few things which perhaps you have not heard.

"A brother of Grandfather Buss (meaning I am sure Richard Buss, born 1777) died, and Grandfather was appointed guardian of his children and property. How many children I never heard, but as each child became of age he was paid his share of the inheritance and as the last one became of age Grandfather had to sell his home to pay him his share. Lee said this inheritance was invested in India. I had never heard that. I had the impression that it was invested in wheat. Ora says that it was the depression following the battle of Waterloo that caused the investments to fail.

"They raised wheat in England to sell in London, and our grandmother (Little Mary Buss, the child born 1814) learned to sew, making the small bags for the samples of wheat from different fields. Ora tells of Grandfather Buss coming home from London with the money from the sales. And grandmother had the house locked and would let the key down from an upper window to unlock the door.

"The Busses had a nice home in England, but I do not know of their being wealthy. It was quite a step down to become a renter after being a landowner. And they had to sell their home to pay the brother's last child. I imagine there was social unrest, because so many people were emigrating. Grandmother (Sarah Wood Buss) brought ten pounds of money sewed in the front of her dress and Mary Buss, 12 years old, had one pound, but it was changed to American money in New York City and went to help buy their farm.

"The nice teams and the big wagons that took them to London were the ones that took their wheat to market. The boys said when they reached London, 'Let us sell these horses and take the money with us.' But Grandfather said 'no it must all go back and be sold.' They had money come to them after a time but it was not as much as they expected and I think not enough to buy the farm.

"In England they lived near a factory where dishes were made and they left sets of nice dishes in the cupboards of the house to be sold.

"I have always heard of the nice black horses that they owned. Once upon a time Grandfather was invited to a wedding. Grandmother had small children and could not go but the black horse was shone and the bridle and saddle polished, and when the horse was brought to the door Grandfather wanted one of the boys to go and look after his horse but the boys said no, they were not going to be any man's servant. (You see where Americans get their independence.)

"Grandfather Buss had a brother who emigrated. I think his name was Frank, and they expected to find him in America, but they inquired and inquired, but could find no trace of him, and they concluded that this brother Frank must have gone to Australia.

"During the holidays I went to call on Mabel Buss Reed, daughter of Ed Buss, who was a son of George Buss and he lived on the old homestead. She has the Bible that came to America with his family. The front and back pages are gone, but there is some writing on the inside of the cover. There is no family record in this Bible. These names are on the cover: Wm. Pearce, son of George Pearce 1773. Richard Buss, Edgerton March 15, 1815. I think this Bible came from the Wood side of the family. It is a large Bible with large print and is bound together with leather thongs. Mabel Buss Reed said that one of her sons had the old Episcopal Prayer book but that was very fine print as many old books were.

"Another thing I want to mention about the old Bible. On shipboard the sailors worked and Sunday was not different from any other day. But Grandmother (Sarah Buss) would go up on deck with her Bible, and the sailors would say, 'Here comes the Parson with her big book.' I have heard my grandmother repeat this a great many times."

The last account is the most interesting and descriptive. It was told to Mabel Newell by Grace Ottaway and written by Ellen Brancke. It is titled:

Some Incidents in the lives of the Richard Buss Family

"They left England June 3, 1826, landed in New York August 3, 1826, on the Zenophen, a slow moving vessel and were seven weeks on the way.

"They lived in the days of long ago. The conveniences of today were unknown in England. The little education the school had were for the boys; the girls went to a dames school kept by Maude Tuttle. On rainy days the children played in the attic where brass trimmed harnesses were stored. Smuggling was carried on in those days and one day a cask of wine was found hidden under a shock of wheat.

"In the kitchen there would be a piece of chalk as large as a milk pail on the table to be used as scouring. Chalk hills and caves were used by smugglers. Laws in England were different- a tax was placed on windows so if you weren't using a room the windows were boarded up to escape the tax.

"There were a great many hedges in England. Once as Grandfather Buss was returning from London, following the sale of wheat, a man's arm reached from each side of the road to grab his horse's bridle. He put spurs to his horse and galloped safely home. One night when Grandfather reached home late at night, he rapped on the door and Grandmother opened an upstairs window and lowered the key tied to a string.

"Grandfather was invited to a wedding and he brushed and curried the horse and polished the saddle and bridle, but his son who was asked to act as groom said he would be no man's groom.

"The Buss family attended the Church of England until they became dissatisfied.

"Grandfather's brother died and left children and Grandfather was appointed administrator of the estate. In investing the children's money he suffered loss. As the last child became of age, Grandfather sold his farm to make good this child's inheritance. The sale forced him to become a renter instead of an owner. This changed his standing in the community. At that time England was thickly populated and poor people had little opportunity to advance. In order to better their position he decided to come to America, leaving sets of nice dishes to be sold. They went to London in the big family coach and team to take passage to America. Edward wanted to sell the coach and team but his father said they should be sold with the farm.

"When they reached London, they hired someone to outfit them for the journey. They were provided with dried fruits, salt, meats, ship biscuits and a large bag of cooked potatoes. They sponsored two boarders, paid for their food. They never saw them again after they reached America.

"On ship board there were caged animals being brought to New York City Zoo. A zebra died and was buried in the sea to the interest of the children. They especially loved the monkeys. The ship was provided with bunks in which they slept. The little ones were placed at the back so they would not fall out. The chests which they brought were placed in front of the bunks. The ship was overtaken by a faster sailing vessel who passed them with band playing and flags flying. They purchased sea food and water from her. When they reached New York this ship was in quarantine and they sailed up the river past her.

"Sundays the work went right on but Grandmother Buss took her Bible and went on deck and read it. The Busses were in New York two weeks making arrangements for the trip across the state by canal. While in New York Mary saw a bed on the first floor of a house. It was the first time she had seen a bed on the first floor.

"An agent brought them food to eat and made arrangements for their trip by canal. To the young people who had been shut up on a ship for seven weeks the canal trip was a wonderful adventure. The boat was towed by mules or horses. When the boat went near the shore the children would jump to the land and run along side on the tow path. Sometimes the boat swung to the opposite bank and they would have to walk until it swung back. There were many bridges across the canal, some quite near the top of the boat. As the boat neared one of these low bridges, someone would call out, 'Low Bridge' to warn the passengers not to come up while they were going under a low bridge. The story is told that while a canal boat was passing under a low bridge a woman came up from below and the bridge cut her head square off. The children picked ears of corn along the tow path, the first they had ever seen since it did not grow in England.

"Mary Buss was twelve years old when they came to America. On ship board she offered to read to the steerage passengers from the family's New Testament. She went each day to read to them and they greeted her with 'Here comes our big girl with the little book,' or 'Here comes the parson.'

"On reaching Buffalo they proceeded up the lake shore to the home of a brother-in-law, who was hospitable to all people coming from England. The inspector at the port of entry looked over their luggage and said, 'what ho, guns.' Grandfather said he had a gun and each boy had a gun. The boys were William, John and Edward, two small boys, Richard and George, and one daughter, Mary. Four children remained in England at Smarden, Kent County. In England the hired maids did the milking and the children had little donkeys for playmates.

"After bargaining with the Holland Land Co. they secured land in Sherman. Grandfather and the boys cut and scored logs and then the neighbors gathered all around for the raising. Once in six months they bought a barrel of salt and a barrel of molasses, bringing them from town by ox team.

"On July 4, 1827 twins Ann and Joseph were born. Joseph died. They were the first children after seven years and Grandmother never regained her health. Mary took over the household tasks, and the boys shot deer meat.

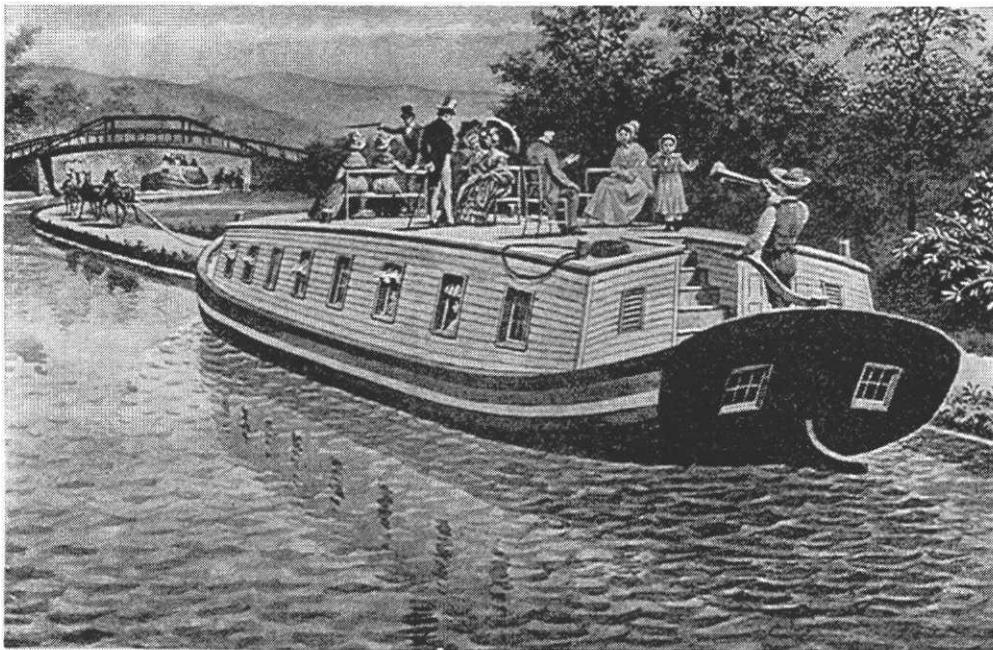

"On his way home from town Grandfather saw a bear with two cubs. He hurried home to tell the boys to get their guns but the bears were gone when they got back.

"One night while returning from prayer meeting the young people were chased by a wild cat, snarling and jumping from tree to tree. When they got home the boys got their guns and shot at the cat. All the young people stayed at the Buss home until the next morning.

"One night the young people hitched the oxen to the bob sled to go to prayer meeting in the school house, but found the school burned to the ground."

Despite the many inconsistencies in these stories we do find much in common. Another account, which we take as fact, is from History of Chautauqua County, by Andrew Young. On page 548 it reads:

"Richard Buss, from England, settled on lot 62, in 1826, where he died in 1861. His sons were: William, original purchaser of lot 61,...Edward, who resides in Mina; John, in Hudson, Ohio, where he was many years a merchant; Richard, on lot 63; and George on the homestead. A daughter, Mary, is the wife of Ora B. Pelton, Mina; Anna, wife of Stephen Hewitt, deceased, lives with her son-in-law, Homer Ottaway, in Sherman."

Traveling on the Erie Canal when it opened in 1825. The horses are pulling the boat along a path to an approaching bridge, matching the description in the family narrative.

Unfortunately we do not have many family heirlooms or other items that once belonged to the Buss family from England. The Buss family Bible, last known to have belonged to the late Mabel Buss Reed, is now lost as are the daguerreotype portraits of Richard and Sarah Buss once in the possession of the late Grace Ottaway. And the late Elgie Babcock Russell owned a dresser she claimed belonged to Richard Buss which, hopefully, now belongs to one of her children. Below are two items that have survived.

Quilt whose names sewed on the squares include: Sarah Buss. It is now owned by Ellen Morgenstern.

Sampler produced by Sarah Wood and, in part, reads: "Sarah Wood 8 aged years May the 8 1787" It now belongs to Ellen Morgenstern.

Two pieces of china believed to have come from England with the Buss family. Once owned by Grace Ottaway; the whereabouts of the plates are now unknown.

Below are photographs of two members of the Buss family that emigrated in 1826.

SOURCES of DATA.

1. Census Records. Symbol *.
 US Censuses: 1840, 1850; 1860; 1870; 1880; 1900; 1910; 1920.
 Mainly Chautauqua Co., NY, but also other counties in NY; Warren, McKean, Erie, and other counties, PA; Summit County, OH; Ottawa County, KA; Dawson County, NE; Los Angeles and other counties, CA;, and Utah County, UT.
 New York State Censuses: 1845, 1855, 1865, 1875, 1892, 1905, 1915, 1925.
 Again mainly Chautauqua County, NY, particularly the villages and towns of Chautauqua, Mina, Portland, Ripley, Sherman, and Westfield, but also other villages, towns, and counties if needed.
 Usually census entries are a composite of information from three or more censuses. This gave an opportunity to follow changes in family makeup and location.
2. Family Records. Several types of these records. Symbol †.
 - a. Information from "Buss Family 1777-1927", a 12 page booklet published about 1926 by unknown individuals in Chautauqua County. However, the booklet is very incomplete even for that date and had several errors. Several copies exist, many with handwritten additions, corrections, and updated information.
 - b. Family group sheets and other records obtained through correspondence with descendants in NY and elsewhere now in possession of Walter R. Buss, 2820 Liberty Ave., Ogden, UT., 84403-0234 and James H. Osborne, 14723 Prairie Ave., Lawndale, CA., 90260
3. Church, cemetery, and civil records. Symbol #.
 - a. Cemetery and burial records from Mina, Portland, Ripley, Sherman, and Westfield, Chautauqua County, NY, published by the Chautauqua County Genealogical Society, P.O.Box 404. Fredonia, NY 14063, 1991-1997.
 - b. Marriage records: Chautauqua County Clerk, Mayville, NY, 1908-1935, filmed by Genealogical Society of Utah 1976. 84 reels.
 - c. Probate records, various districts in NY and elsewhere.
4. Printed records: Newspaper obituaries and clippings, marriage and birth announcements, county and town histories, etc. Symbol •.
 - a. Young, History of Chautauqua County, New York 1875.
 - b. Marriages and deaths from the Fredonia Censor
 - c. History of Dawson County, NE
 - d. Clippings, obituaries, etc. in possession of Walter R. Buss and James H. Osborne
5. Records of James H. Osborne. Symbol Δ.
6. Records of Frances Skinner, Jamestown, NY. (deceased, Oct 1997). Symbol ◇. Some in possession of Walter R. Buss. Others in possession of James H. Osborne.
