

In addition to the main causes of war, it is also important to remember that sometimes small events can escalate into serious conflicts.

Could climate change be a cause of future wars? How ?

War will not only be started due to politics ideology, resources (or) etc... it can also be caused due to climate change as climate changes occur due to global warming. The countries might start a war for land due to the weather in different regions. They will ~~get~~ capture the land for a mild & normal weather.
