

Microscale and related macroscale models of coexistence in Phalaris arundinacea, a globally distributed grass. Each color represents the spatial extent of a distinct genotype in a microscale model using stochastic cellular automata. Each graph trace represents the population level of a corresponding genotype in a macroscale differential equation model, which lacks explicit spatial structure. (see Nelson 2014).