CORRIGENDUM.

IN the description of No. 40 (La Sainte Abbaye, etc.) the suggested identification of the 'Jacques', who has written his name on the backs of the pictured pages, with Jacques d'Armagnac is shown by Mr G. F. Warner to be impossible.

The portion of the MS. now in the British Museum, Mr Warner tells us, was formerly in the possession of a Mrs Sowerby, and belonged before that to Bachelin-De Florenne (so written).

The genealogical and heraldic investigations connected with several of the MSS. in this Catalogue, particularly nos. 12, 15, 22, 25, 26, 27, 33, 35, are largely the work of Mr J. A. Herbert, of the British Museum.

The MS. was in the Tempsford Hall Library.

2. BIBLIA SACRA.

Purchased from B. Quaritch, March 1893.

Uterine vellum,  $5\frac{5}{8} \times 3\frac{9}{16}$ , ff. 578, double columns of 45 lines. Cent. xiii (1260).

Binding, original wooden boards, with fragment of blue silk cover: formerly had two clasps.

Collation:  $i^2 \parallel a^{24} b^{24} c^{24}$  (23 supplied later)  $d^{24}-n^{24}$  (11-15 supplied)  $o^{24}-x^{24} y^{20} \parallel A^{24} B^{22}$  (+ 22\*)  $C^4 D^2$ .

The supplied leaves are of a thicker vellum, and are well written in a paler ink, by a hand of cent. xv. The writing of the original scribe is most beautiful; the ornament good, but the pictures too small to be successful.

A Litany at the end of the volume, which will be described in detail, seems to point to Fécamp as the place where the book was written.

In the Litany we have :

Apostle, Marcialis : Martyrs, Benignus, Romanus, Antoninus, Cucuphas, Symphorian, Leger, Golgonius, Frothmundus, Edmund, Gemini (Les Saints Jumeaux of Langres) : Confessors, Taurinus, Mello, Aquilinus, Julian, Audoen, Romanus, Wulfram, Patrick, Laudus, Flavian, Candidus, "Loddoni," Edward, John, Philibert, Columban, Wandregisil, Walaric, Cuthman, Sydonius, Majolus : Virgins, Petronilla, Anastasia, Austroberta, Pascasia, Genovefa, Affra, Berta, Moderana.

Of these, Romanus may be the Antwerp martyr of 14 March or the Roman martyr of 9 August. Antoninus of Plaisance 5 July. Cucuphas 25 July.

Golgonius ? = Gorgonius of Tours, 11 March.

Frothmundus of Coutances, 24 October.

Taurinus is of Évreux, Mello of Rouen, Aquilinus of Évreux.

Flavian may be of Châlon-sur-Saône or of Autun, Candidus of Maestricht (?): Loddoni ? = St Louis : Walaric of Picardy, 1 April : Cuthman is the rarest of all. He is a strange saint who lived at Steyning in Sussex (the Bollandists wrongly say in Normandy), and also was honoured at Fécamp, which had lands at Steyning.

Another point which shows that the Litany is for monastic use is the fact that St Benedict is invoked twice.

The occurrence of Cuthman seems to fix the provenance to Fécamp: but it is certain that the book comes from somewhere in Normandy: Frothmund, Taurinus, Mello, Aquilinus, Romanus Conf., Laudus, Austroberta are all Norman saints.

Prologue. Genesis—2 Macc.

(The Prayer of Manasses follows 2 Par. without a break.

Ezra, Nehem. (Esdr. ii.), 1 Esdras (Esdr. iii.).

Gallican Psalter.

The Prayer of Solomon follows Eccclus.)

Ev., Paul., Act., Cath., Apoc.

On many of the illuminated pages the arms of Bentivoglio occur, with the eagle displayed, granted to the family by the Emperor Maximilian: as far as I can see they are in every case painted in over an erasure. Certain grotesque figures have also been inserted in the borders, in a very much more developed style than the pictures of the original artist, who was, I take it, either a Franciscan, or employed by a Franciscan house.

The series of subjects is very much that which occurs in the French Bibles: but the artist is here an Italian. The execution is heavy but good. The burnished gold, of which there is a good deal, has cracked off to a considerable extent.

1. f. 5. Prologue. Initial. A monk seated at a desk gives a scroll to small figure in pink on R.

In the border are two medallions without backgrounds:

2. St Francis kneels with hands out at the foot of a rugged pink crag: above it is a six-winged seraph—not, as is usual, on a cross. This represents St Francis receiving the stigmata: his hands are pierced.

3. St Francis standing: a tree on R. Under it stands a stork: on it are three birds: two more fly towards it from R. This is St Francis preaching to the birds: his hands are pierced.

The arms are inserted in a medallion: and two fine nude figures of men are also inserted.

4. f. 9. Genesis. Initial with nine subjects, eight in medallions (a—g, i): the other (h) under a trefoiled arch: the grounds alternately gold and blue.

a. Christ half-length (as in the others) holds globe, divided horizontally into blue and brown.

b. He stands between clouds.

c. A tree on His R.

d. Hand raised to sun and moon in cloud.

e. Bird on L. hand, two beasts on R.

f. Adam reclining on R.

g. He stands blessing.

h. The Crucifixion, with the Virgin and St John.

i. The Paschal Lamb, cross-nimbed, with long double cross.

There are two medallions in the border: between them a large blue horned owl.

5. Tree in centre with human-headed serpent coiled round it: Adam on L. Eve gives him the apple: on R. Adam and Eve look up to Christ's head in the sky.

6. L. an angel in yellow over red with raised hand: tree in centre: on R. Adam and Eve walk to R.

The arms and two baboons, well drawn, are inserted in the R. border.

7. f. 30. Exodus. Moses seated, nimbed, talks to two men on R.

In the lower margin are two half-lengths of Franciscan friars each holding a scroll with what are meant for musical notes.

Below, two half-lengths of nimbed prophets with scrolls.

12. f. 103 b. Judges. Below, Joshua lies in bed, head to L. A turbaned man holds his hand, four other men raise their hands toward the head of Christ above on L. In the border two half-lengths of men. A cock and a red and black beetle inserted.

13. f. 115. Ruth. At the foot of a dark rock Naomi carrying a child and leading another who has a stick, to R.: at the top, Elimelech in hat, hairy garment and pink tunic, stick over shoulder with white cloth on it, looks down: tree on R.

On f. 2 a, in a minute hand of cent. xiii, is an explanation of some of the hard words in Jerome's Prologue. It begins:

6. OTTENBEUERN COLLECTARIUS.

Purchased from B. Quaritch, May 1895.

Vellum, 11½ × 8, ff. 151, 18 lines to a page. Cent. xii.

Collation: a<sup>8</sup>-f<sup>8</sup> g<sup>8</sup> (+ two inserted slips) h<sup>8</sup>-n<sup>8</sup> o<sup>8</sup> (wants 3) p<sup>8</sup>-s<sup>8</sup> t<sup>2</sup> v<sup>4</sup> x<sup>2</sup>.

This volume was formerly in the Library of the Duke of Hamilton. It was sold to the Berlin Museum in 1883, and resold at Sotheby's in 1889 (lot 6). On the fly-leaf is the signature HB, no. 316 (or 516), marking the source as the Hamilton Collection.

Its previous history is rather a matter of inference. On the lower margin of f. 1 is written "Monasterii Ottoburani," in a hand of cent. xvii. This stands for the Abbey of Ottenbeuern, in Bavaria. We shall see more clearly from the contents that the book must have belonged from the first to this establishment (see on miniature no. 18). One fact which we know about the history of the abbey is that in 1152 it suffered from fire, and that the then abbot Isengrim had some fine volumes written to replace those that had been destroyed.

Mr Singer and Sir William Tite were the successive possessors of a Lectionary which was apparently of the same date and style as the book before us, and, again, closely resembled a Gradual in the Didot Collection, which contained clear evidence that it was an Ottenbeuern Book.

Some Annales Ottoburani, which Abbot Isengrim wrote himself, are printed in Pertz's Monumenta (xvii. 311 sqq.). The fire is mentioned, but not the books.

Contents :

On the recto of the first leaf (which is not numbered) is a kalendar, or Paschal table, in red and black, which has been carefully erased.

On the verso of the last page is a similar table, which has also suffered from being glued to a binding.

On the verso of the first leaf is a full-page painting which will be described in its place.

On f. 1 begins the text.

1. Capitula for the year, beginning

Deus pacis sanctificet nos, etc.

Rubr. Istud capitulum dicendum est dominicis diebus aduentus d. ad uesperas q. v. ad matutinas et ad iii<sup>am</sup>. Ecce dies uenient.

Rubr. Istud dicendum est in dominicis diebus et aliis lectionum xii.

This part of the book ends on f. 49 with the capitula priuatis diebus.

Then follow, without any special division,

2. Preces and Orationes for the year, beginning,

Rubr. Preces in aduentu domini et in xl<sup>ma</sup> priuatis diebus ad uesperas et ad matutinas.

Oremus pro omni gradu ecclesie. Sacerd.

Pro pastore nostro. Beatus qui intelligit s(uper).

Only the opening words of the response are given.

In the Preces are two inserted slips of much later date.

The Orationes begin on f. 50 b.

Rubr. Dominica prima in aduentu domini ad utramque v(esp.) ad mat. et iii.

Excita quaesumus domine.

For the Sunday before Christmas eleven Orationes are given, and then (f. 52 b) the note: Iluc usque gregoriane. Item alie unde supra.

The last of the "Gregorian" prayers is Preces populi tui. The first of those that follow is Festinantes omnipotens deus in occursum.

The fifteenth and last is Deus qui conspicis nos ex nostra infirmitate destitui.

f. 115 (old numeration) is gone. It contained Orationes for the feasts of SS. Claudius and Martin.

On f. 100 in the Oratio for the "Septem Fratres" (i.e. the seven sons of St Felicitas) the names of Felix and Alexander are in red capitals. (See under miniature, no. 18.)

On f. 102 b (In uigilia S. Laurentii), the name Othmari is written in the margin as an alternative to Laurentii, and the words confessoris atque abbatis as alternative to martyris. St Othmar's feast is 16 November.

Similarly on 105 b Alexandri is alternative to Agapiti, and on 106 <sup>o</sup>Cunrado is written over Augustino.

On f. 109 four lines in the Oratio for St Maurice have been re-written in cent. xv.

S. Gallus (f. 110 b) is among the saints who point in the direction of Germany or Switzerland.

On f. 99 b is a Collect for St Kilian (of Würzburg).

On f. 115 the name Thimotheus is alternative to Andreas.

On f. 120 b (Collects for Virgins, not Martyrs) the names Walpurgis and Braxedis are in the margin.

The Collects for the Dedication of the Church are followed by

The last line of f. 142 b is written by the late xvth cent. hand.

The history is this. Quire s ends with the Collect pro fratribus defunctis. The original hand finished the page with the words in tui nominis confessione discesserunt.

In cent. xv it was desired to insert here two leaves containing Preces et Collecte in diebus exequiarum dicende. Therefore the xvth cent. scribe wrote on the last leaf of quire s the last words of the Collect pro fratribus defunctis, which run thus :

and inserted his two leaves, which now form quire t.

These contain

Preces et collecte in diebus exequiarum dicende . . . . .	f. 143
For various classes of persons,
Oratio generalis pro omnibus benefactoribus in uigilia uigilie natiuitatis habenda . . . . .	144 b
Sanctorum tuorum intercessionibus . . . . .	144 b

Next after these came four original leaves (now quire v) containing

(a)	The original ending of the Collect pro fratribus defunctis , viz. sanctorum tuorum numero facias aggregari. Per. . . .	f. 145
(b)	Other Collects for the dead . . . . .	145
(c)	Pro redeuntibus . . . . .	146
	Pro abbatibus . . . . .	146
	Pro abbate et priore . . . . .	146 b
	De coquina egredientibus preces . . . . .	146 b
	Coquinam ingredientibus . . . . .	147
	Benedictio prioris et cellerarii . . . . .	147
	Quando absoluitur . . . . .	147 b
(d)	f. 148 was an original leaf of the volume, but was blank: it now contains in the later hand,
	Pro ebdomadario coquine exeunte . . . . .	148
	Benedictio lectoris mense . . . . .	148 b
	In primo nocturno absolucio . . . . .	148 b

We now come to the present quire x. Of this f. 1 is new, f. 2 old. The latter, as has been said, had once a Paschal table on the verso; I think there was also some matter of the same kind on the recto. These leaves contain

In secundo nocturno absolucio . . . . .	f. 149
In tercio nocturno absolucio . . . . .	149
Followed by other absolutions for the nocturns, and rubrics, ending on f. 150 nisi quod feria 4 <sup>ta</sup> et sabbato prima benedictio est Cuius festum coli(mus) .

The writing of this volume is a fine, tall, upright, minuscule. The ink is very black. In the rubrics rustic capitals are often used.

The plain initials are as a rule in red. In the more elaborate ones blue and green grounds are the commonest. Gold and silver are freely used: and there are examples of interlaced ornament which seem like survivals of Celtic art.

I proceed to describe the paintings.

Part I.

1. Facing f. 1. Full-page. Gold ground, framed with classical leaf-ornament in pink, blue, scarlet, green. The inner border of the frame is in silver, the outer one in gold.

Subject. Our Lord seated, full-face, blessing, in a green mandorla. He wears a pink robe, with ornaments of gold and scarlet over a bluish-white robe. He is seated on a white and silver throne covered with a scarlet carpet. The right hand is raised to bless, the left holds a golden book with two clasps, on His kneecap. His nimbus is blue, with a gold cross. He is bearded.

In the spandrels formed by the mandorla are the heads of the four Evangelistic creatures, issuing from green leaf-ornaments. Their nimbi are dark red (nos. 1 and 3), and light red (nos. 2 and 4).

There is a fine initial D, in gold and silver on blue, and on the opposite page the rest of the word Deus is in fine capitals on a green ground.

On f. 4 is another exceptionally large and fine initial.

2. f. 20 b. Capitula for Easter. Half-page. Without ground or framework; this is the case with all the subsequent pictures.

The angel and the women.

The Tomb stretches across the front of the picture. The outside is light red, with flecks or markings of darker red, white, and blue. The rim of it is blue with darker markings, and the inside is yellow, also with markings. The angel is seated at the L. end, on the lid, which slopes upward in air, and is green with yellow and red markings. He faces R., and points to the women and to the linen grave-clothes, which stand in an upright heap, huddled together, in the centre.

The women stand in a row on R. Their clothes are light red, blue, green, and brown. The first (from L.) wipes her eye with her R. hand, and holds a vase with her L. arm and a censer in her L. hand. The next has a censer, and the third swings a censer on the fingers of her R. hand, and holds a red vase in her L. The censers are green and globe-shaped: they are perforated, and each has three chains.

The nimbi are plain red circles.

3. f. 24 b. In uigilia Ascensionis. Almost full page. The Ascension. In a blue framework of classical ornament: no ground. Above four angels support a mandorla in which Christ stands, full-face, bearded, holding a long cross-staff and blessing. Below in centre under an arch of blue drapery stands the Virgin, full-face, old, with hands apart before her. On either side of the arch are two rows of six apostles: Paul on the R., Peter (with key) and John on the L. are recognisable. The mandorla is coloured as in No. 7.

4. f. 26 b. Three-quarter page. Pentecost. A red hexagonal enclosure of stone or brick, enclosing two tall blue towers with conical brown roofs, which are joined by a red-tiled roof with a ball at each end. Under this stand twelve apostles, Peter with key in the centre and Paul on R. of him. Above, beneath the roof, the Dove (coloured blue) descends vertically head downwards: red flames proceed from its mouth, and it has a plain cross-nimbus.

5. f. 29. Nativity of St John Baptist. Half-page. Lateral view of a Church: at the R. end are two yellow towers with conical red cross, and between them an apse (coloured blue): near the L. end is a door. The side-wall of the Church is removed and in it are two figures: L. Zacharias, his head muffled in a blue garment, swings a blue censer over the altar, which is red, and is half-covered with a blue cloth with patterns: from R. the angel bends forward and speaks, with hands extended.

6. f. 30. St Peter's Day. On L. Christ seated on a green throne with yellow-brown carpet on it. He has cross-nimbus (green) and red over blue robe: with His R. hand He is blessing, and in His L. holds one end of a roll inscribed petre amas me?

On R. St Peter, in blue over yellow, holds his key and the other end of the scroll in his L. hand and gesticulates with his R. His part of the scroll is inscribed tu scis domine quia amo te.

Part II.

7. f. 33. Assumption of the Virgin. Half-page. Two angels in air support a mandorla, in which the Virgin stands full-face, with hands apart before her breast. She has a three-peaked crown (red), long plaited hair, and a blue robe, over red, over white, and black shoes. Her nimbus is plain. The angels have green nimbi, blue and brown wings, and red and green robes. The mandorla is green and yellow, with white rings on it.

8. f. 36. In fest. S. Michaelis. In text. St Michael in a long shirt of mail over red robe, and holding a yellow shield, semé with stars, thrusts a white spear into the mouth of a dragon, two-legged, serpent-tailed, with a body of blue, green and yellow and a head resembling that of a cat.

On L. behind the wall stands a crowd of figures in four rows: four in the front row, six in the next, six in the third, nine in the last. The four foremost hold palms, and the two nearest to the Lamb are a Bishop in chasuble and mitre, and a king in a three-peaked crown.

10. f. 47. Capitula. In dedicatione templi. Half-page. A walled city, with a towered building at either end, between which stand two angels, who are seen half-length over the wall. There is a door in the wall immediately before them.

This illustrates the Capitulum, Vidi ciuitatem sanctam Hierusalem nouam, and represents the New Jerusalem.

The wall is of red bricks, or stones, with white markings, and consists of three courses below the battlements.

The door is arched and coloured blue, and has three bands of foliated iron-work across it.

The towered buildings are cylindrical, and consist of two stages: the lower is of blue stones with white markings, and is roofed with red tiles, in one case, scale-shaped: the upper is of timber, yellow, and has a conical roof of scale-shaped tiles, ending in a ball on a rod.

The Angels are in yellow and white robes, and have green wings and long hair, and plain nimbi.

11. f. 54 b. Christmas Eve. One-third of the page. The nativity. On the L. sits Joseph, bearded, head leaning on hand, on a chair with back and cushion. In the centre is the Child with cross-nimbus, in swaddling-clothes, in a yellow drapery which is knotted round two green posts, and supported by a third. Behind Him are seen the heads of the ox and ass who are eating green grass.

On the R., on a pink bed which extends partly across the front of the manger, lies the Virgin, her head on a yellow pillow, her R. hand on the pink coverlet, her L. hand raised.

12. f. 59 b. Epiphany. Half-page. On L. the three kings. Two stand on L. in pink patterned mantles with blue and white lining over yellow and blue tunics. They hold two green bowls, one of which contains white objects, the other yellow discs. Their crowns are three-peaked and (as always) coloured pink. The third king, similarly attired, is about to kneel on one knee, and presents a green vessel with yellow discs in it. His crown is of the Imperial type: a band, whence rise three uprights, crossed by an arch halfway up them.

On the R. the Virgin, with a like crown, sits on a blue throne with green carpet and extends her R. hand: the Child in a light robe sits on her L. arm and extends both hands. Over her head is the star, red, with five points.

13. f. 76 b. Easter. Two-thirds of the page. Illustrates the Collect: "O God, who by thine only begotten Son hast overcome death and opened unto us the gate of everlasting life."

On the L. Christ steps out of a square brown tomb with green rim, yellow inside. In His R. hand He holds a long staff with a pink banner upon it, which He thrusts into the mouth of a prostrate dragon (blue, and serpentine, with two horns, two ears, and no legs) which extends across the page. His L. hand is on the shoulder of a man. This man, in blue tunic and brown hose with white spots or buttons, is being thrust by Christ through a half-open door (square) in a battlemented wall. He has a broken green rope round his neck, is beardless, and looks back at Christ.

To R. of the wall above is a line of red flames: on the R. and along the front are mountains. Within the enclosure thus framed are two trees, one yellow and one blue, with fruit, and between them a green cross with four equal arms and a disc at the intersection. The enclosure is Paradise, the trees are those of Knowledge and of Life, and the cross represents the four rivers. The band round the man's neck shews that he has just been released from Hades.

14. f. 86 b. Ascension Day. Half-page. In the centre is a mandorla (yellow frame and green ground) in which is Christ, blessing, and holding a long cross-staff, with a banner (green, with brown pattern). On L. is the sun (a red face with rayed border); on R. the Moon (a disc divided into a red crescent and a blue face); on R. and L. below are four half-lengths of men and women, full-face, praying, in very odd attitudes.

15. f. 88 b. Whit-Sunday. Half-page (text above and below). Three figures. On L. a Bishop in pink chasuble, yellow dalmatic, blue alb, blue mitre, holding crosier and book.

In the centre a female in a long shirt of mail over a yellow robe, holding a two-bladed sword, the Dove at her L. ear. She has a three-peaked crown.

On R. a King in similar crown, pink mantle, blue tunic, yellow hose, bearded, holding a yellow foliated sceptre, and an orb.

17. f. 98. SS. Peter and Paul. Half-page. On L. is St Peter, bound by ropes, head downwards, to a green cross. He is fully robed. On R. the headless body of St Paul with joined hands falls forward to L. Blood (not milk, as in the legend) flows from his neck. Above him stands an executioner, in yellow tunic with girdle, and cap, who sheathes his sword with his R. hand and holds up the bleeding head of St Paul in his L. Both Apostles are in pink mantles over blue.

18. f. 100. The Seven Brothers. Two-thirds of page. Eight nimbed figures, standing, hold palms. These are St Felicitas and her seven sons, Januarius, Felix, Philip, Silvanus, Alexander, Vitalis, Martialis. They are thus arranged. L., three sons, C., Felicitas, R., four sons. All the sons wear mantles, tunics, and hose, and are beardless. The tunic of the third from R. is vandyked at the edge. The linings of the mantles are mottled and marked in blue and white.

Below on the R. margin is the figure of a monk, with short beard, and dark-brown habit. In his R. hand he holds up a book with two clasps and an ornamented cover. In his L. is a scroll inscribed :

Alexandre p (i.e. pater) bone suscipe quod tibi fidus
Seruus reinfr (i.e. Reinfridus) fert, et iuuet hunc tua mater.

Pro mercede s > ui      uester petit hic oper > ator
Ut procul ira t >      de sit sibi iuris · am >
Præmia sint tecum nisi sit tua gratia secum.

There are two or three facts to be gathered from this page.

First, that the scribe or illustrator of this book was Reinfrid.

Next that he offers the book to an Alexander.

Thirdly (from the fact that the names of the two saints, Alexander and Felix, are written in red capitals in the text), that these saints were of special importance to the church for which the book was written.

Now the monastery of Ottenbeuern was dedicated to St Alexander. Evidently then it is Alexander the son of Felicitas who was the patron of it, and this picture really decides the question of the provenance of the book in favour of the abbey of St Alexander at Ottenbeuern.

19. f. 104. Assumption of the Virgin. Two-thirds of a page. On a light-coloured throne with green carpet sits Jesse (his robe inscribed Jesse). He has a long beard. In each hand he holds a scroll. From his body springs a yellow tree with seven branches, three on each side and one in the centre at the top. On each of the side-branches sits a blue and white dove with red eyes and a label in its beak. From a cloud at the top a seventh dove descends vertically on the topmost branch. There are numerous inscriptions, viz.

(2) On the cloud at top: timor.

(3) On the scroll in Jesse's L. hand: rorate celi desuper et nubes pluant iustum aperiat terra et germinet saluatorem.

(4) In the margin: Jesse et uirga de uentre eius proc<edens> et septem dona dei.

21. f. 109 b. Michaelmas. In text. St Michael in long mail-shirt over yellow robe, with red shield, and sword, strikes at antichrist, who is falling forward (so that his back only is seen) off a green throne with yellow carpet. Two small black devils are falling with him. Below him are flames. He is winged (one wing only is drawn).

In the margin: angelus cum dracone. The artist has not obeyed this direction; probably because Michael and the Dragon had been already represented in no. 8.

22. f. 115 b. For several Apostles. One-third of a page. On a long yellow bench, of which the ends are fixed into two red uprights with ornamented tops, sit the Twelve Apostles. John, Peter (with key), and Paul, are in the centre. There are four Apostles on the L., and five on the R., of these.

In the margin: Apostolos. The accusative case shews that some verb like pinge or scribe was to be understood.

23. f. 116 b. For several Martyrs. Half-page. Three figures, full-face.

On L. is a Virgin with long hair and palm (green).

In centre a king in three-peaked crown, holding palm and orb.

On R. a deacon, tonsured and beardless, in dalmatic and alb, with palm.

In margin: Martyres cum palmis.

24. f. 117 b. For one Martyr. One-third of the page. A single figure, beardless, long-haired, in red mantle fastened at the R. shoulder, blue tunic, red hose. He holds a palm in each hand.

In margin: <ma>rtyr vnus cum duabus palmis.

25. f. 119. For several Confessors. One-third of the page. Two figures, full-face, nimbed. The one on the L. has a grey beard and is tonsured. He wears a pink chasuble with green orphrey and a blue alb and holds a blue chalice with hemispherical bowl, globular stem, and conical base, with a paten on the top, and two lines of ornament round the bowl.

The other is a Bishop, in blue mitre, yellow chasuble, red dalmatic with blue border, and blue alb. He holds a similar chalice, slightly larger. Both are blessing.

In pale ink on the margin is a direction to the artist, mutilated by the binder. This is one of a number of similar directions which have survived in this volume; and their occurrence, always noteworthy, is particularly interesting in so old a MS.

The one before us runs thus: confessores cum ca <licibus>.

26. f. 120 b. For several Virgins. Quarter of a page. Two Virgins (in pink over blue, and blue over yellow), each holding a green spotted palm, and a blue bottle-shaped lamp whence rises a red flame.

In the margin: <uir>gines cum lampadibus.

27. f. 121. Dedication of a Church. One-third of the page. View of a Church from the west end. It is of blue stone with brown tiled roof. At the end are two tall red towers with conical roofs and arched doors, an apse between. The doors in the side-walls are open and visible; they are red, with scrolled iron hinges. Between the towers, hanging from the wall of the apse by three chains, is a large light-coloured censer, globe-shaped, with perforations.

In the margin: templum cum thuribu <lo> subtus pendente.

7. MISSAL OF LESNES ABBEY.

Formerly belonged to J. B. Yates, Esq.

Vellum,  $12\frac{3}{8} \times 9\frac{1}{4}$ , ff. 196, varying number of lines to a page.
Cent. xiii (early).

Written in England.

Modern English binding (cir. 1830).

The hand is a fine tall minuscule, in very black ink. The quality of the ornaments and drawing is only fairly good, though very interesting and effective.

The leaves at either end have been damaged, probably by wet, and are carefully restored.

The history of the book will appear as we proceed. It shows itself to have belonged to the Austin Canons of the Virgin and St Thomas of Lesnes, or Westwood, in the parish of Erith in Kent. This house, founded by Richard de Lucy in 1178, was given with 17 other monasteries to Cardinal Wolsey by Henry VIII., to endow his Colleges at Oxford and Ipswich. At Wolsey's fall it reverted to the king, and so fell into private hands.

There are several volumes from its library among the MSS. at Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge, as well as in other collections.

This last is in a smaller hand and ends imperfectly :

Aue sancti spiritus sacrarium O quam mira.

Probably not more than two leaves are wanting to the volume.

The pictures in this volume are confined to a series of initials on gold grounds, of which the execution is, as has been said, rather rough. They are as follows :

There is a good decorative initial on the same page.

2. f. 16. Christmas Day. On L. the Virgin in bed. Joseph at her feet : above, the Child in a manger (blue), head to L., the ox and ass looking over it.

3. f. 18 b. St Thomas of Canterbury. The three knights on L. in shirts of mail, peaked helmets, kite-shaped shields and swords ; the foremost smites the head of St Thomas, who kneels in dark chasuble over alb.

4. f. 20 b. Epiphany. St John Baptist, in dark robe, baptizes Christ, who stands in the heaped-up water of Jordan. Part of the gold ground is gone, disclosing a pink bed.

5. f. 73. Ordinary of the Mass. On L. Abraham, in blue and white, about to slay Isaac (in blue, with hands crossed and bound), looks to L. A half-angel appearing points downwards to a white ram.

6. f. 73. Initial to Preface. Two angels, in pink over white, support a mandorla, in which Christ is seated, blessing, and holding a book.

7. f. 76. Missae in Priuatis diebus, etc. A tonsured Priest (face R.) in chasuble and alb, with hands raised: on R. a white-draped altar.

8. f. 76. Initial to Preface. The Paschal Lamb, with cross, staff, and white banner; in a medallion, surrounded with scroll-work.

9. f. 80. Canon of the Mass. Above, a gold quatrefoil on blue ground. Christ throned, blessing, with book. In the spandrels the Evangelistic emblems; the Man holds a book. Below, the Crucifixion, with the Virgin and St John. The Cross is green: four nails are used.

10. f. 83 b. In Priuatis diebus, etc. A Lamb, on gold ground.

11. f. 86. Easter Day. Above, an Angel seated full-face on rock, with sword upright. Below, the three Maries, with vases, look and point at the tomb among rocks. It is green, spotted with black; a linen cloth hangs over the side.

12. f. 86. Christ, with white banner, stands in Hell-mouth. Nude figures (souls) on L. supplicate Him.

13. f. 92 b. Ascension Day. Above, Christ seated in mandorla, blessing, with book. Below, the Virgin full-face; on either side, a group of Apostles looking up.

14. f. 94 b. Whitsunday. Above, five white doves descending vertically from a cloud.

Below, a sixth dove descending upon a group of seated Apostles, two of whom have books.

It seems as if there should be seven doves, to typify the seven gifts of the Spirit. I do not know any other instance of such a representation of the scene at Pentecost.

15. f. 112. Dedication of the Church. A Bishop (half-length) with mitre, chasuble, and crosier, looks at a Church on R. At the angle, seemingly, of this building, is a tall slender tower, with conical top and arched doorway, in five stages, which are coloured thus (from bottom), blue, scarlet, green, blue, yellow: stages 2 and 3 have each two windows, the top two one window each. The body of the Church has no windows: there is a ball on the gable.

16. f. 113 b. St Andrew. A half-length figure, with book (?).

17. f. 113 b. St Nicholas. A half-length Bishop, with mitre, chasuble, and crosier, blessing.

18. f. 118 b. Purification. The Virgin holds the Child, in a white robe, blessing. Simeon nimbed, in blue, with covered head, stands behind a white altar, and is about to take the Child.

19. f. 120 b. Annunciation. Two figures, both standing. The Virgin on R. with book.

20. f. 128. St John Baptist. Half-length, bare-headed, with book, blessing.

21. f. 129. SS. Peter and Paul. Half-lengths, Paul bald, with book, Peter with key.

22. f. 136 b. Assumption. In front, the Virgin lying dead on a bed. At her head seven apostles in two rows: a space in the centre: at her feet on R. six apostles in three rows.

23. f. 138 b. St Augustine. Half-length, as Bishop, with mitre, chasuble, and crosier, blessing.

On 140 b is a remarkable decorative Initial to the Nativity of the Virgin.

24. f. 142 b. Michaelmas. St Michael, in pink robe over white, with circular shield, thrusts a spear into the mouth of a dragon, winged, with pointed ears and serpent-tail, legless.

25. f. 148. St Martin. Half-length, resembling no. 19.

We will now extract from the volume such notices as serve to throw light upon its history and provenance.

On the recto of the fly-leaf, in a hand of cent. xiii, is an obviously forged Papal letter :

A few very faint notes on the contents of the book follow, beginning :

Missa ad pestilentiam.

In the Kalendar I note :

Mar. 1, 2, 3. The feasts of SS. David, Chad, Winwaloc, have been inserted in cent. xv as feasts of nine lessons.

Mar. 4. (Cent. xv.) Agenda est memoria pro animabus Bogonis de Lodelaw (Ludlow), Agnetis uxoris eius, Domini Willelmi Vanham et Johanne uxoris eius.

Apr. 30. St Erkenwald (of London).

June 10. S. Ithamari Ep. et Conf. .ix. lect. (inserted in red in cent. xiv or xv).

This is the Bishop of Rochester who died in 656. The feast points to Rochester diocese.

June 17. St Botulfi Abb. (in red).

July. The Translation of St Thomas of Canterbury (7 July) is not entered.

Sept. 4. The Octave of St Augustine is in red.

Oct. 11. The Translation of St Augustine is in red ; and on the same day St Ethelburga (a London saint) is marked.

The usual English Saints also occur.

In the Proprium de Tempore we see that the Feast of St Thomas of Canterbury is honoured with a pictured initial.

In the Proprium Sanctorum SS. Perpetua and Felicitas and not St Thomas Aquinas occur.

In the Canon of the Mass, on the margin of f. 82, are inserted the names of certain benefactors to be commemorated, viz. :

Roberti Bardelbi.
 Philippe comitisse Merch.
 Willelmi de Sard'.
 Johannis de Boreford { large hand.
 Henrici de Northwode }
 Roysie de Boreford.
 Rogeri de Waltham.
 Willelmi Fainte (? Faunce).
 Willelmi de Langeford.
 ———
 Galfridus de Luce.
 Katerina uxor eius.
 Elizabet Luci.
 ———
 Ricardi Chaundeler.
 Margaret ? de Lucy.

The name of Lucy is suggestive in connexion with Richard de Lucy the founder of Lesnes Abbey.

On f. 130, in the margin, in a late xvth cent. hand, is Require collecta de translacione b. Thome martiris post Ev<an>gell : que scripta sunt post Offic. pro defunctis.

The Feast of St Augustine has a pictured initial.

In the Missa de sanctis loci et de reliquiis (f. 155) are two slips pasted on the margin (and there was once a third), with the names of the Saints to be specially mentioned. They are, Johannis Baptiste, Petri, Pauli, Augustini, Nicholai, Martini.

On f. 182 b, in the lower margin, is added a note of the Office for St Ithamar (cent. xiv, xv): S̄c̄i Ithamari Officium, Statuit. Graduale, Ecce <sacer>dos. Alleluia, Disposui. Offertorium, Deside<rium>. Communio, Fidelis <s>eruus.

There are, lastly, Sequences for St Thomas of Canterbury and St Augustine.

All these data point to an Augustinian house, which had a special devotion to St Thomas, was near London, and in Rochester diocese. A Dame Alice de Liesnes is mentioned on the fly-leaf; and this serves to clinch the matter. All the other facts suit Lesnes Abbey: and I think the provenance may be considered fairly certain.

A few names of cent. xvi are in the volume, viz.:

f. 68 b. Rycharde Hoglay.

f. 86. An imperfect name. Gill W.

f. 117. The hunte blue horne today in the morne or that the day dide Apere to the foreste we went yt was our entent to hunte the falow deyre.

Aspicias ut ueniunt ad candida tecta columbe

Accipiet nullas sordida turris suas (l. aves?).

Stephen Prematt (?).

John Kaye.

On 116 b is a rude sketch of a man in trunk hose, with the name —ering Gill.

f. 79 b is blank.

A folio between 79 and 80 is gone.

III. f. 80 consists of twelve lines of writing in black capitals on gold ground. Each line of writing is followed by a strip of equal length and breadth, alternately of blue and red, thickly spotted with white. In several cases on the red ground, and under the white mottling, is a foliage ornament in black. The text of this page runs as follows :

CENA domini quando cenauit cum discipulis suis
 Parasceve dominus noster Iesus Christus crucifixus est
 Sabbato dominus noster quieuit in sepulcro
 Resurrectio domini nostri IESV XRISTI
 Ascensio domini nostri IIESV CHRISTI AD CELOS
 Adventus spiritus sancti in discipulos domini nostri IIESV Christi.

These must, I think, be the titles of six subjects represented on the now lost leaf.

ff. 80 b, 81 are blank.

IV. Regula S. Benedicti . . . . .	81 b
Prol. inc. Obsculta o fili p̄cepta magistri.

These words occupy the whole page, three-fourths of which is taken up by the magnificent initial O: the rest is in capitals on gold ground.

The Rule is written in double columns of 28 lines: the hand is larger than in the preceding quire, save the Capitula, which are in the smaller hand, and in one column.

The Capitula begin on f. 84 b, i–lxii remain.

The folio between 85 and 86 is gone. f. 86 is blank.

f. 86 b is like 81 b, a large initial M, followed by one line of gold capitals on blue ground mottled with white, the rest being in black capitals on gold ground, Monachorum / quattuor esse genera / ma ni fe stum est /.

The Rule ends with c. lxxiii, on f. 132 b,

In the Martyrology the names of the months (at the beginning of each) and the principal feasts are written in black capitals on gold ground. The feasts so distinguished are :

Feb. Purificatio S. Marie.

Mar. S. Benedicti Abbatis.

June (iii. Idus: on silver). Eodem die Nat. S. Onufrii Anachor(ete).

(xv. Kal. Jul.) In the margin, in red, is: In Lipparis Translacio S. Bartholomei Apostoli.

Aug. Transfiguratio Domini.

Dec. (Nonas). In margin, in red: Eodem die S. Pelini Ep. et M.

Nat. S. Nýcolai Episcopi.

Natiuitas D. N. Jesu Christi secundum carnem.

S. Johannis Apostoli et Evang.

Sanctorum Innocentium.

The forms of profession on f. 73 contain the words :

In hoc uenerabili monasterio S. Bartholomei apostoli (rubr.).

The MS therefore belonged to a monastery of St Bartholomew in Italy. The one which suits best with the date of the book is that of St Bartholomew in Carbonaria. There are two others, that of Lipari, and that of Penna in the diocese of Naples: but the latter was not founded till 1116.

The decoration of this remarkable volume consists of a large number of initials. In the Martyrology each month has such an initial. The Rule of St Benedict has two, each of which occupies almost a whole page: each chapter of the Rule, and each of the Lectiones which follow, has a smaller one. These initials are of two kinds. One is geometrical, consisting of wheel-like designs, without animal forms: an example of this, which is the least common of the two, may be seen on f. 131 b. The other consists of interlaced work, with the addition, in nearly every case, of forms of animals. These animals are most commonly round-eared and blunt-headed beasts, which may be called dogs. Their bodies are usually pink or white, outlined in red, and they have three toes on each foot, coloured green. Occasionally horned dragons occur, and also creatures which may be meant for fish. Human faces are of very rare occurrence, and the complete human form, I believe, is never found.

The colours employed are, gold, dark blue, light blue, red, green, pink, yellow, white, purple. The gold is not burnished. The dark blue is a very fine colour.

Of the two full page initials the first is that to the Prologue of the Rule of St Benedict (f. 81 b). It is an O, in the form of a quatrefoil. The circumference is  $\frac{7}{8}$  of an inch broad, and is divided into panels of interlaced work. Within, the ground is dark blue, covered with gold interlacings, outlined with red, and full of the pink and white beasts described above. The gold interlacings spring from four heads of beasts at the top and bottom. There are ten pairs of beasts in this letter, four outside, arranged in horse-shoe form, four inside in horse-shoe form, and two more inside less closely connected.

The second large initial is that to the Text of the Rule (f. 87 b). It is an M, in the form of a pair of horse-shoe arches, consisting, like the O, of a series of panels. The bases of the outer columns are large dragons' heads. The ground of the interior is gold, and the interlacings are light brown, blue, and green. At top and bottom of the central column is a pair of beasts, and within are eleven pairs of white beasts.

The general effect of these letters, if somewhat barbaric, is exceedingly striking. The same form of decoration (in particular the white animals) occurs in works written by the eleventh century scribe Grimoald, of Monte-Cassino, of which facsimiles are given in Miniature dei Codici Cassinesi (I. Cod. 109, 25): there they are combined with figure-subjects.

Successive owners of the book in recent times have been C. Wilson, Surgeon (motto, Semper vigilans), Charles Wilson Brown (motto, Floreat majestas), and William Gale. The book-plates of the first two were in the volume. It was purchased by Mr Quaritch at the sale of Edwin H. Lawrence's books.

The following is Mr Kearney's description of this volume in one of Mr Quaritch's Catalogues:

"HORÆ B. V. M. etc. small 4to. illuminated manuscript on vellum, with 12 exquisite miniatures painted on chequered backgrounds, a beautiful ivy-leaf border to every page, and several hundreds of brilliant initials and capitals; blue morocco gilt, from the library of Mr Edwin H. Lawrence. Bourges about 1390-1400

One of the most beautiful books of its kind in existence. The local origin of the volume is shown by the names in the Litany of three Archbishops of Bourges (Ursin, Guillaume, Austregisil) following together immediately after Ambrose, Gregory, and Bernard. Coupling this evidence with the manifest age of the MS., we are able to assume that it was executed by one of the illuminators who worked for the Duc de Berry. The extreme beauty of the paintings, the richness and softness of the colouring, and the particular excellence of the face-drawing, lead to a very allowable conjecture that they were the work either of Andrieu Beauneveu or Jacquemart Hesdin. The book is not absolutely perfect, one leaf at least being deficient. The Calendar, which, like several others of the period, is densely crowded with names and full of errors, is in French, as well as the two sets of Prayers at the end, which begin 'Doulce Dame' and 'Biau Sire Dieux.' Following these there is a final hymn—

Sainte vraye crois aouree
 Qui du corps dieu fus aournee
 Et de sa sueour fus arousee
 Et de son sanc enluminee
 Par ta vertu, par ta puissance
 Deffen mon corps de mescheance
 Et si motroie par ton playsir
 Que ie puisse confes morir. Amen.

St Ives (of Brittany, if the entry is correct) appears in gold in the Calendar, and he is the first of the three (Ives, Julian, Fiacre) who follow St Bernard in the commemoration of Saints in the text; but he takes in the Litany a lower place than the three Archbishops of Bourges."

My own remarks are as follows :

In the Kalendar (19 May) S. Yues, in gold. The Assumption (in gold) is called "Notre dame miaoust." 29 Aug., "S. iehan decolasce," in gold.

The Memoriae are unusually numerous. They include all the Apostles and Evangelists: among Martyrs are George, Maurice, Eustace; Confessors include Maurus, Germanus, Maturin, Yvo, Julian, Fiacre; Virgins, Geneviève, Radegund, Oportuna.

In the Litany we have: Martyrs, Quintin; Confessors, Ursin, Guillermus, Austregisil, Yvo, Germanus, Sulpicius, Remy, Gildard; Virgins, Syria, Valeria, Radegund, Oportuna, Genovefa, Ursina, Avia, Elizabeth.

The use is of Paris. The Memoriae point to Paris so far as the peculiar saints are concerned: but the Litany indicates Bourges. Ursin, William, Austregisil, Sulpicius, and Ursina are all from there. Syria is sister of St Fiacre. I do not attribute much importance to the occurrence of St Yvo, who is the least local of Breton saints.

The miniatures are as follows:

1. f. 45. Lauds of the Virgin. The Visitation. Chequered ground of gold, blue and pink. The Virgin on L. in blue over vermilion. Elizabeth in pink over green, and white head-dress. A tree on a rock on R.

2. f. 57 b. Prime. The Virgin reclining, head to L., on a scarlet bed under the stable-roof. Joseph with stick seated at her feet. Trees on rock beyond. In front on L. the Child nude sits up in a basket and touches the ear of the kneeling ass. The ox is just beyond. Chequered ground.

3. f. 64 b. Tierce. Blue ground with stars. Two shepherds, one on L. seated with bagpipe, the other startled, both look up. Demi-angel with scroll Anuncio vobis gaudium. Three hills behind, two with trees. Sheep in front.

4. f. 70. Sext. Chequer. The Virgin and nude Child on a scarlet seat with white cushion on R. Three kings on L. are kneeling, with globular gold cups. Star in a blue cloud.

5. f. 75. None. Chequer. The Virgin and Child and nimbed maid with basket of doves and candle approach the altar from L. Simeon on R. in pink with peaked red mitre holds out his hands.

6. f. 80. Vespers. Chequer. The Flight, to R. Joseph with stick and bundle leads them. Tree on rock behind.

7. f. 88. Compline. Chequer. Coronation of the Virgin. The Virgin (on L.) and Christ seated on a wooden backless seat. She is crowned, and bends toward Him. He has orb, and pink mantle over yellow robe, and blesses her.

8. f. 94. Seven Psalms. Chequer. Christ seated full-face on a pink stone throne with green carpet over it. He has an orb and blesses a chalice with host which stands on the R. arm of the throne. Below the text an angel with trumpet, flying, is cleverly sketched. In the border are two half-length prophets with scrolls: (1) above, Ne reminiscaris domine delicta nostra; (2) below, rubbed: ...ei domine non (?).

9. f. 116. Hours of the Cross. Chequer. The Crucifixion. The Virgin on L. St John on R. in scarlet over pink.

10. f. 133. Vigils of the Dead. Red ground with gold pattern in squares. A funeral. On R. the coffin covered with a black pall, patterned in gold, four candles about it, and a cross at one end. Beyond it two priests in copes of black and gold like the pall read from a book on a wooden lectern. One is bare-headed, the other has an almuce. On L. is a group of four or five mourners in black cloaks.

11. f. 240. xv joys. Chequer. The Virgin (blue over scarlet) and the nude Child. Seated on a wooden seat without back.

12. f. 245. vii requests. Chequer. Rubbed. Christ in a pink mantle, crowned with thorns, showing his wounds, seated full-face on a rainbow, blessing.

In the Litany: Martial is among Apostles; Confessors are headed by Mary Magdalen and Mary of Egypt, and include Mamertus, Veranus, Luppis; Virgins, Genovefa, Elizabeth.

These saints point to the neighbourhood of Angers and Le Mans. The use is Roman.

The artistic excellence of the pictures is very considerable. A stippled pale purple, a bluish white, and a light vermilion are characteristic colours.

The Kalendar is illustrated with 24 miniatures of oblong form on the margin of the leaf.

1. January. In a room, back to stone fire-place, at table. A page in red boots, sword at side, brings a bird on a dish from R.
2. Aquarius. Nude, empties wooden vessel into a stream in landscape.

23. December. A man standing over a slaughtered hog in a walled yard: a woman collects the blood from the throat in a basin.
24. Capricornus. A demi-goat with jointed tail for the lower part of him. A walled town or fort behind.
25. f. 7. In text. Sequentiae of the Gospels. St John in white on a small round island. He writes on a scroll: the eagle holds the ink bottle in his beak. Water, land and buildings behind.
26. f. 7 b. In text. St Luke in canopied chair with desk fitted across the arms: ox with green wings couching: books on the green pavement.
27. f. 8 b. In text. St Matthew in room sits under circular canopy: scroll on knee. He looks at an open book held by a standing angel in white.

28. f. 9. In text. St Mark on a low seat in a windowed room writes on a scroll on his knee. A green-winged lion watches him.

29. f. 10. Full page. Obsecro te, Domina. In a portico open to R., outside of which is a view with castled rocks, sits the Virgin in blue, holding the nude Child on her lap. Over her head is a circular canopy. Before her kneels a beardless man with joined hands. He kneels on a cushion of black and gold and red. He wears plate-armour, a surcoat blazoned with armorial bearings, gold spurs, and a sword at his side. His visored helmet is on the ground at the R. lower corner. Behind him are two angels in dalmatics (brown and green): one has a harp, the other a lute. The arms on the knight's surcoat are those of Anjou (second branch) as borne by René I., quarterly with Lorraine. Charles II., Duke of Lorraine, whose daughter Isabel married René I. in 1420, quartered the arms of Anjou with his own after that date. He left no male issue, but only two daughters. The owner of this book might conceivably be Charles II. (only he seems in the picture too young), or René I. (1408-1474), or one of his sons, preferably Jean I. (1426-1471). The face does not agree with the portraits of René. M. Labitte states that the portrait is that of René II. of Lorraine.

30. f. 13. Full page. Hours of the Virgin. Matins. In two parts. Upper half: Against a background of red angels bounded by a half-circle of blue cloud, the Trinity on a plain gold throne. The Father in triple crown and white robe, with orb: the Son in white, holding the cross. Both are covered by one purple mantle and hold a book open between them. The Dove is between their heads, facing L.: a ray seems to go from its head to the lips of the Son. In air on either side is an angel, one with a straight trumpet, the other with a lute. In front on blue clouds kneels an angel with sceptre, his back almost towards the spectator. This is Gabriel being commissioned to go to the Virgin. On R. and L. are two pairs of females. On L. Mercy and Truth join hands: on R. Justice with sword kisses Peace, who holds a cubical stone or book inscribed Pax.

Lower half. The Annunciation. Under a gold cornice supported by a shaft in centre, and one at either end: on each shaft is a statuette of a prophet. On L. the Virgin in lilac kneels at carved wooden desk draped with blue: a book on it. Behind her is a seat draped with red, and a white cushion on it. The Dove on rays flies to her head. On R. Gabriel kneels with sceptre and long scroll (much rubbed) inscribed in red, Ave—tecum. Before him is a blue lily pot: open door behind him.

31. f. 22.  $\frac{3}{4}$  page. Lauds. The Visitation: three figures in white and pale purple. Joseph on L., the Virgin, Elizabeth. On R. an archway into a courtyard. Large towered building behind. Mound and trees on L.

32. f. 27 b. Prime. Yard in front of thatched shed. The Virgin and Joseph adore the Child, who lies on a cloth on the ground. The ox and ass adore: two shepherds look over the wall. Hill with sheep, and distant town.

33. f. 30 Tierce. Four shepherds and four women with joined hands dance in a ring. Behind on L. a shepherd stands playing bagpipes: sheep behind centre, beyond them water and trees. In air two demi-angels hold a scroll inscribed Gloria in altissimis deo.

34. f. 32 b. Sext. The scene exactly as in 32. The Virgin sits by the shed on L.: the nude Child on her knee puts His hands into an open box of gold held by aged kneeling king whose crown (on a peaked red turban) lies on the ground: the two other kings (one young) stand holding covered gold vessels: the cavalcade seen beyond the wall. Landscape as in 32, without the sheep.

35. f. 34 b. None. Under cusped gold arch. The Presentation. The Virgin, with a white cloth over her hands, kneels facing R. Beyond her kneels Salome with candle and basket : Joseph removing his cap stands behind. In centre background an attendant with candle : the wall behind is wainscotted and has four windows. On R. the altar, red frontal and white cloth, end towards the spectator. R. of it Simeon, mitred and nimbed, holds the Child.

36. f. 37. Vespers. The Flight. The Virgin with the Child in a gold robe, on the ass, which is led to R. by Joseph who has stick but no bundle. Salome follows with basket on head. On a hill behind, a gold idol falls from a column. On L. a walled city with huge round towers.

37. f. 41. Compline. The Virgin kneels between two angels. Behind her is a long low seat with carved panelled back, over which an angel leans holding a crown. Above it a background of red angels. On R. on a throne with two steps the Son is seated with triple crown and book, blessing. All the draperies are pale purple.

38. f. 47. Full page. Seven Psalms. In a stone-vaulted building with windows, apsidal termination, and green-tiled pavement. In the apse is a seat draped with purple and a white cushion on it. In front on L. stands an organ, with double row of pipes (nine in a row) blown by a servant on L. with bellows : a man in scarlet cap, and pale purple mantle over gold robe plays it. A small dog watches him. On R. two men, one in scarlet boots with lute, the other with harp. Behind them a crowd of eight people, one playing a trumpet, one a pipe, and one a fiddle. Beyond the organ (on L.) is seen a gold shrine with canopied figures on sides and end, elevated on four tall pillars, its narrow end to R. This is meant for the Ark. Facing it, under a circular canopy hung from the roof, kneels David, in crown and blue turban, ermine, pale purple and gold. Before him is a table draped with red and blue, and a book on it.

39. f. 56. Full page. Hours of the Holy Ghost. In a church-like building, with traceried windows and apse, and green and pink tiled pavement, is a ring-shaped wooden seat, on and behind which are eighteen figures, the Apostles and six others, all looking up, and many with books. In the centre of the circle, under a round canopy, the Virgin in blue kneels with book. Over her head is the Dove, rayed.

40. f. 58. Full page. Office of the Dead. In the background a battle-scene of horse and foot, with trumpeters, banners, and men in plate-armour. In front, corpses are being stripped and buried in earth-graves. The picture is not divided by any artificial line, but evidently represents two distinct moments. It is unusual in subject, and of admirable execution.

The use is of Rome.

There is at the beginning the book-plate of the Abbé Fauvel, with the inscription : Ex libris D. D. Abbatis Fauvel. No. 112.

I take the following particulars from a pamphlet published by Messrs Ellis and Elvey (from whom the manuscript was bought), and from notes by Mr J. A. Herbert and Mr Yates Thompson.

“That this beautiful volume was executed for Jean Comte de Dunois, the Bastard of Orleans, there can be no question. The portrait of the owner occurs in three miniatures. The first is in the calendar for January. In the second of these (f. 22 b) he is seen kneeling at a prie-dieu in the act of prayer to the Virgin and Child ; he wears his armour and a robe of blue covered with fleurs-de-lys with the ‘label’ (the arms of the Duchy of Orleans), and the baton sinister of bastardy. His arms with the same devices are seen suspended over the arras and supported by an angel. In the third miniature, that representing the Resurrection (f. 32 b), the owner is conspicuous amongst the saints ascending to heaven on the right hand of the throne ; he is being conducted by his patron saint, St John the Evangelist, to the Regions of the Blest. The identity of St John is indicated in the usual conventional manner by the poisoned chalice in his hand, and his presence in immediate support of the owner proves that the latter’s name was Jean.

“The arms with the ‘label’ and the baton sinister occur throughout the volume in places far too numerous to mention, so that we have it conclusively demonstrated that the book was undoubtedly executed for a bastard of the house of Orleans, named Jean ; and, further, from the fact of his always being represented in armour, he would probably be a distinguished soldier. The only personage of that period (circa 1450) corresponding to all these particulars was Jean Comte de Dunois, natural son of Louis Duc d'Orléans, the son of Charles V. of France, commonly called the Bastard of Orleans. This celebrated soldier, the companion in arms of the Maid of Orleans, achieved such victories over the English that he was nicknamed 'le Fleau des Anglois,' and was hailed as 'le Camille des François! le Restaurateur de la Monarchie! le Conservateur de l'Estat!'

"In a Histoire de Charles VII., by Jean Chartier, Paris, 1661, folio, there is a large portrait of Dunois, and a full account of all his achievements is given. His arms are engraved under the portrait, and are the same as those found in this manuscript, except that the baton is dexter instead of sinister. They are described by Chartier as 'd'azur à trois fleurs-de-lys d'or, au lambel d'argent de trois pièces, & à vne cottice aussi d'argent en barre, autrement perie en bande.'" (E. and E.)

"The volume was sold to me (through Messrs Ellis and Elvey) by a Mr Musgrave, who says it has been in his family for several generations, having been brought to England from Paris about the end of the last century. It is quite possible that it may have belonged to Louis XII. as stated in writing on the last page, he having been a great friend of Dunois' eldest son. The Abbé Fauvel was a Norman ecclesiastic in the early part of the last century. In 1769 the book formed part of the Collection of the well known collector Gaignat, and in his sale, of which M. Morgand has a priced catalogue dated 1769, it was sold for 30 francs. M. Gruel, whose volume on bindings is much valued, says the binding is undoubtedly by Le Gascon, the initials D. I. and F. G. being added later. The s fermée appears very widely and miscellaneously in bindings of this period. Nobody knows exactly what it means.

"M. Paul Durrieu, of the Louvre (Conservateur adjoint au Musée), is most enthusiastic as to the merits of the book, and classes it with the Bedford Missal at the British Museum, and the Salisbury Missal in the Bibliothèque Nationale. It was evidently produced in Paris after its capture by Dunois in 1436, at which time the making of the Salisbury Missal was interrupted, and it was left in its present unfinished state. I have examined both the Bedford and the Salisbury Missals and find that both the writing and illumination of this volume have more in common with the Salisbury than with the Bedford. There is one illumination in the Bedford Missal (of the Crucifixion) which is the work of another hand (like that on folio 120 of 'the Betrayal' here<sup>1</sup>) and is in greyer and more sombre colours than the rest.

"As to the portrait of Dunois there is none known of any value. It is quite possible that those in this book are the only contemporary portraits in existence." (H. Y. T.)

Dunois was born in 1403 and died 'comblé d'honneurs et de biens' in 1471. He was son of Louis de France, Duc d'Orléans (assassinated 22 Nov. 1407) and Mariette d'Enguien, wife of Aubert de Cany a knight of Picardy. He was legitimised in 1458 or a few years earlier, as we learn from the 'Histoire du Conte de Dunois,' by the Abbé Bordas 'revue par Achille Guena' published at Châteaudun 1850. He always preferred the title of Bastard of Orleans.

The miniatures, which are of extraordinary excellence, are as follows :

1. January. The owner seated at table; four servants attending. The arras is painted with the owner's arms (az. seme of fleurs-de-lys or, a label of three points and baton sinister arg.). The same arms are over the mantel-piece; on L. is a buffet, and there is also a white dog.

On L. at top, souls flying up, and one carried by an angel. Below this, St John Evangelist with cup and palm, and Dunois kneeling at a prie-dieu. 47. f. 120. Matins of the Passion. The Betrayal. A very subdued tone of colour is employed in this picture in order to give a twilight effect. It is extremely beautiful: but I do not on the whole agree with the suggestion that it is by a different artist.

A beautiful river-view with towers, bridge and island, behind. This view (and the man looking at it) is identical with that in the Van Eyck Vierge au donateur in the Louvre, which was painted by Jan van Eyck for Rollin, Chancellor of Burgundy, and was shortly afterwards in Autun Cathedral.

The Kalendar :

- 17 Jan. St Anthoine inserted in bright red in a later hand.
 25 June. St Eloy in gold.
 3 Aug. Inv. of St Stephen in gold.
 25 Aug. St Loys in gold.
 1 Sept. St Leu. St Gille in gold.
 3 Nov. St Marcel in gold.

The Litany. Martyr: St Quiriacus. Doctors: Anthony, Gerald, Leonard. Virgin: Radegundis.

The Memoriae include SS. Adrian, Anthony, Giles, Susanna.

The use is Roman.

Marks of ownership. In the borders occur thrice the arms of Burgundy with a bar sinister, and also a badge of a burning fire-place (barbacane), and the motto Nul ne si (= s'y) frote. M. Labitte says "Olivier de la Marche, poète et chroniqueur contemporain à la Cour de Bourgogne, décrit ainsi, dans ses mémoires, la housse que le cheval du Grand Bâtard portait au Pas d'armes tenu à Bruges en 1468, à l'occasion du mariage de Charles le Téméraire avec Marguerite d'York: 'Saillet le chevalier à l'arbre d'Or, son cheval couvert de velours tanné, à grandes barbaccanes de fil d'or en brodure et lettres de mesme à sa devise, et d'icelles barbaccanes issoyent flammes de feu.' The owner has a special devotion to St Anthony (and to St Barbara, a patroness of soldiers). He is rightly taken, from these indications, to be the "Grand Bastard de Bourgogne." Antoine, Comte de la Roche en Ardenne, son of Philip the Good, Duke of Burgundy († 1467), and of Jeanne de Prelle, and natural brother of Charles the Bold: he distinguished himself greatly in the siege of Ceuta. He was born in 1421 and died in 1504. The Seigneurs de Beures were descended from him.

There is also the modern book-plate of C. Pieters, Esq. with the collector's motto on an open book: Matth. cap. xxv. ite ad vendentes et emite vobis. At the Pieters sale at Ghent, May 1864, this volume was knocked down to M. Didot for 4085 frs.

The pictures in this book are numerous and interesting: some of them, especially the illustrations of the Evangelists' lives, are quite uncommon. They are of very fair and careful execution, not of marked excellence: the decorative work does not rise above the average.

On ff. 194, 194 b, are entries recording the marriage of “Jacob de Bregilles et Claire sa femme” on 21 Sept. 1442, the births of “mon filz Jehan” at Brussels on 20 June, 1450, of “ma fille Ysabeau filleulle de ma dame la Duchesse de Bourgone” at Brussels on 19 May, 1452, of “ma fille Phillipote filleulle de monsieur le Dug de Bourgongne nomme Philippes” [Philip the Good, 1419—1467] on 12 Sept. 1458, and of “ma fille Ysabeau” on 19 Nov. 1459, “et la tint sur les fons ma dame la Contesse de Charoloys.” In the margins of f. 194 b are three other entries, in different ink and by another hand, the first of them copied from another Book of Hours (“dautres heures en parchemin sans couverture et neantmoins entieres”) and recording the birth of “mon filz Girard” on 5 June, 1454, and the other two noting the birth of “ma fille Jehanne, filleule de Madame la Presidente de Bourgonne,” on 8 April, 1461, and the death of Jaquot de Bregilles on 25 Jan. 1474 [5], “en sa maison a Bruxelles.”

Flanders, or North-Eastern France. Borders of ivy-leaves, birds, strawberries, etc., on a white ground; and 31 miniatures in  camaïeu-gris  touched with gold, flesh-tints, and subdued colouring.

M. Paul Durrieu has given the following important note:

“Le Christ en croix (fo. 27) est de la main de Guillaume Vrelant, un des meilleurs miniaturistes de Bruges. On peut comparer avec les grisailles de la Vie de Ste-Catherine à la Bibliothèque Nationale de Paris, ayant appartenu aux ducs de Bourgogne.

De même la Pentecôte (fo. 35).”

The pictures are as follows :

- 1 (initial). f. 13. St John writing, in Patmos; eagle holding his ink-pot.
- 2 (init.). f. 14 b. St Luke, with palette, painting the Virgin's portrait. She stands beyond, crowned, full-face; ox.
- 3 (init.). f. 16 b. St Matthew in high cap sitting at a table; angel on R.
- 4 (init.). f. 18 b. St Mark writing at a fine double desk; lion.
- 5 (init.). f. 19 b. Madonna and Child, full-face, throned.

7 (half-page). f. 35. Pentecost. Virgin seated in the middle. All the Apostles kneel, including Peter and Paul, in front.

8 (half-page). f. 42. Annunciation. The Virgin on R. Gabriel in cope with sceptre. Notice some gilt leather hangings, excellently done.

9 (init.). f. 55. Visitation. Elizabeth on R.

10 (init.). f. 68 b. Mary and Joseph adoring the Infant Christ.

11 (init.). f. 74. Angel and two Shepherds: one has a pipe. Blank scroll.

12 (init.). f. 79. Adoration of the Magi. Joseph is not there.

13 (init.). f. 84. Presentation. The Virgin and two women: Simeon (not nimbed) and a priest on R.

14 (init.). f. 89. Flight into Egypt. Joseph's back nearly turned: he looks to L.

15 (init.). f. 97 b. Coronation of the Virgin. Two figures only; the Virgin kneels to Christ, who is throned in a pillared hall, and has orb and rich crown.

16 (half-page). f. 105. There is more colour in this than in the other miniatures. David facing R. and holding a harp kneels before a canopied sideboard of which the ledge is covered with a white cloth. It has on it four flagons of various sizes, a tumbler, and two apples (?), also two plates on a shelf. David's crown is on a stool beyond. Behind him is some arras. Over an embattled wall with a door in it, which forms the background, is seen the Father in the sky, half-length, with tiara and orb. Landscape.

17 (half-page). f. 127. Raising of Lazarus. Lazarus, nude and beardless, is rising out of an earth grave with stone lid, near a building: beyond is the elaborate apse of a church, and a landscape. Immediately behind Christ is Judas, red-haired and without nimbus, and two nimbed Apostles. A beardless man (or not impossibly Martha) kneels in surprise behind Lazarus.

18 (init.). f. 180. The Trinity. An Italian Trinity, the Father in imperial crown.

19 (init.). f. 180 b. St John Baptist, carrying a book and Agnus Dei.

20 (init.). f. 181. St John the Evangelist; cup and serpent.

29 (init.). f. 190. St Elizabeth of Thuringia holding a crown.

30 (init.). f. 190 b. St Apollonia; pincers and tooth.

31 (init.). f. 191 b. St Mary Magdalene; alabaster jar.

The Kalendar has no distinctive Saints in red. At June 16 in the margin a hand of cent. xvi has written Saint Vcorle.

The Litany is equally undistinctive: and the use is Roman.

In the Memoriae are three pages left blank between All Saints and St Barbara.

The name of the owner is not inserted in the prayer Obsecro te.

All this seems to indicate that the book was not written specially for any individual, but was an unusually fine "shop copy": for unusually fine it is.

Some further account of the prayers, etc., at the end may be given.

The Carol on f. 192 b begins thus :

Puer nobis nascitur
 Rector angelorum
 In hoc mundo pascitur
 Dominus dominorum
 In presepe ponitur
 Sub feno asinorum
 Cognouerunt dominum
 Christum regem celorum.

It ends:

Nos de tali gaudio
 Cantemus in choro
 In cordis et organo

The use is of Paris.

Every page is bordered (ivy-leaves, flowers, strawberries, and sometimes grotesques, occur).

Inside the cover is the inscription: 'Le Roy.'

In the Kalendar :

Genevieve, and of course Denis, in gold.

In the Litany :

Martyrs : Denis, Maurice, Eustace, Lucian (of Beauvais), Quintin, Firmin, Eutropius. Confessors : Germanus, Louis, Maur, Fiacre. Virgin : Genevieve.

Among the Memoriae :

Supplicius is almost always written for Sulpicius, who may be of Bourges, or Bayeux. Venicia I do not find.

The binding is morocco, with gold tooling, powdered with tears: in the centre of each cover the Cross, crown of thorns, etc. It is bordered with the instruments of the Passion, viz.: mitred head of Caiaphas, pierced feet, two scourges crossed, seamless coat, three rouleaux of money, hand with cup, bust of Christ, bleeding heart with lance-head, open hand, crown of thorns and crossed sticks, crossed gauntlets, three dice, bust of Pilate, ewer, towel and basin, three nails tied together, arm with sword and ear, lantern, reed, ladder and lance, two cressets (?), cross, crown, lance and reed, hammers, sudarium, bulrush in clasped hands, bust of centurion, tomb with three jars on the lid, bust of Judas with bag at neck, cock, column and scourges.

It is of late xvth cent., and was not improbably done for Henry III., or for some member of the order of Pénitents blancs, which he founded in 1583.

The miniatures are of an excellent order. One (no. 35) is by a different hand, and with the leaf on which it is, appears to be a slightly—very slightly—later insertion, but was most likely done at the same establishment as the rest of the book. The volume is partly written to order, which would account for the remarkable series of Memoriae: but the nucleus of it is shop work of a very good quality.

“The execution of No. 35 is so inferior, especially in the matter of gilding, that it has very likely been inserted during the present century. The facts concerning the provenance of this book are somewhat curious. It belonged to the Comte de Lignerolles and after his death was sold by auction to M. Lortic, but returned because No. 35 was falsifié. It was then put up again to auction and sold at about half the previous price to M. Belin, from whom I had it. The custom in France is that illuminated books are sold as perfect unless the imperfection is specified." H. Y. T.

The Kalendar-pictures occupy the bottom outer corners of the pages.

1. January, in a cap, tippet, and gown, on a carved settle, back to a fire-place, with fire-dogs; seated, face L., at a table with white-patterned cloth, flagon, salt-cellar, knife, etc. He raises a bowl to his mouth; a servant enters from L. with a dish.

37. f. 111. Hours of the Cross. Three compartments (one and two). a. Below, on L., Christ in centre, Judas kissing Him. Soldiers on R. lay hands on Him. In front Malchus bleeding, and on L. Peter sheathing his sword.

On R., in the doorway, a man gives alms from purse at his waist to three beggars.

Below, Purgatory, the air full of sparks: red hot souls in flames: two more souls falling. On L. one rising out of it, and another received by two angels: this group encroaches on the upper scene.

40. f. 164 b. Fifteen Joys. Seemingly by the inferior artist. Above, the Virgin crowned and the Child, on a rich throne, on a crescent: starry sky, small angels all round.

Below, the Entombment: Joseph and Nicodemus at the head and feet; the Virgin embracing the body. St John weeping: two nimbed women.

41. f. 170. Seven Requests. By the inferior artist. The Father and Son, with one red mantle about them, on a very rich gold throne. The Father on R. with tiara and orb. The Son blessing. The Dove between them: they hold an open book, inscribed, Ego sum alpha et  $\omega$  pri] . is et solus mo. The halo is like that in no. 35. Below, in front, is a crowd of blue angels, and similar angels are about the top.

42. f. 176. Memoriae. St James. Above, he is seen over a wall between two buildings, preaching to a crowd of people on the nearer side of the wall.

Below, he is precipitated from the top of a wall by two men, one of whom pushes him with a stick. He is still arguing. On R. three men receive him with staves. On L. a surprised crowd.

This is the Martyrdom of St James the Less; but the Memoria is for St James the Great.

44. f. 186. St Germanus. Four compartments. a. On L. a man on a white horse places a boar's head on the branches of a tree already hung with heads of wolves and boars. On R. a bishop in a red cope, attended by an ecclesiastic, speaks to him.

b. The same bishop with two attendants points to a fire on R. in which a green tree is burning: a man stirs it on L.

This is the story of the pine at Auxerre on which Germanus, before his religious life began, used to hang the heads of beasts killed by him when hunting. St Amatre, the bishop of Auxerre, objected to this practice, and cut the tree down and burnt it while Germanus was away. A bit of this scene is in a window at Argentan.

b. A bishop kneels, facing L., before a draped altar with gold retable of the Crucifixion, and green riddles. A crowd of devils in air. One larger devil is detached from the main body.

The bishop is Turpin, who saw the crowd of devils passing, and questioned one of them as to his destination, and, having heard that he was going to Charlemagne's death-bed, made him promise to tell him how he had sped, on his way back.

c. Charlemagne, on L., throned under a canopy of blue with gold fleurs-de-lys. In front of him hangs the shield of the Empire, impaled with that of France, so as to obscure half of each coat. He wears an imperial crown and a red mantle, and has sceptre and open book. Before him is a Pope, in tiara and blue cope, reading from a large book, supported on the head of a small clerk in an alb. On R. are two deacons in red dalmatics.

47. f. 193. St Mary Magdalene. Three compartments (two and one). a. Below. The feast at Bethany. A table, at which are seated Christ (in centre), three Apostles on L., two Apostles and Lazarus (nimbed) on R. Magdalene kneels on the nearer side, and touches Christ's feet.

On f. 2 is: 'Da Livraria do M<sup>to</sup> Rd<sup>o</sup> Paole Agostinho Biaz Per<sup>a</sup> Colmieiro.'

The prayers and devotions are unusually miscellaneous. Some of them are probably not often found. A few extracts may be given. The Prayer to the Angels on p. 55 is not usual. It begins:

In nomine patris, &c. Amen. Et in septem ordinibus angelorum qui assistunt ante claritatem dei. Michael defensor animarum. Gabriel curator earum. Raphael representator oracionum ad dominum. Uriel super ignem. Sanel super aquas. Burmel super quadrupes & aduersos. Barachiel super omnes fructus terre.

The charm against bleeding (it has no rubric, but is obviously of this nature) on 56 b is:

Sanctus zacharias propheta interfectus fuit inter templum et altare, cuius sanguis coagulatus est in testimonium [In nomine] domini nostri Ihesu Christi cessa (the MS. has lesa corruptly) sanguis ✠ cessa sanguis ✠ cessa sanguis. In nomine patris, etc. Amen.

The hymn to the three Maries is a mark, I think, of some connexion with the South of France. SS. Maria Jacobi and Maria Salome are said to be buried in the Camargue (Bouches du Rhône).

The Litany in verse gives us the following saints :

Martial (after Barnabas); Martyrs: Leger, Eustace, Quentin; Confessors: Firmin, Severin, Lubin, Supplicius, William, Amator, Gatian (Gracian), Maurilius; Virgins: Radegund (Raagon), 'Cedile,' Opportuna, Genevieve, the Eleven Thousand.

Among the Memoriae the following are noticeable :

Urban, Yves, Hubert, Quentin, Avia, Anthony of Padua.

I should conjecture that Lubin, Supplicius, Gatian, Maurilius may be taken as pointing to the locality where the book was written (N. W. France): while Amator (of Roc Amadour) and the Maries may indicate that the owner had made pilgrimages to the shrines of Southern France.

The pictures are large and good, though they belong to the period when fluid gold was used in excess to heighten all the lights.

The borders of line and leaf-work mainly present a rather speckled appearance.

1. f. 1. Sequences of the Gospels. St John sits writing on a book on his knee: he is on an island with two trees. Hills and castles, water and ships, behind. On L. the eagle, with spread wings, holds a writing-case in his beak: by him is the inkstand, upset by a hook, held by a devil seen on R. of St John.

2. f. 2 b. St Luke, in a hexagonal building with red roof, sits facing R. He leans back and mends his pen. His book is on an easel before him. Beyond, the ox. In C. is a desk, in three stages, with books on it: on a shelf is a wide-mouthed glass vessel, upside down; this indicates the physician.

3. f. 4. St Matthew, in a very similar domed building: a scroll on his knee. He is beardless, and is dipping his pen in an ink-bottle held by an angel in white, with coloured wings. A desk and a shelf with books are seen behind.

4. f. 5 b. St Mark, in a turretted building, sits in a high chair, by which is the lion. He writes on a scroll upon a desk resting on the arms of the chair. A desk in three stages, a book-shelf, and a bed, are seen behind. The sky is starry.

5. f. 7. Hours of the Cross. The Crucifixion, with title. Starry sky. On L. the Virgin with St John, and another woman. On R. two rebel men and three soldiers.

6. f. 10. Hours of the Holy Ghost. In a gold building, with green columns, the Virgin throned on a huge seat in the centre; a book on her lap, her hands joined. The Apostles kneel on either side. Above the throne is the dove, and scattered flames fill the air.

7. f. 23. Memoriae. St John Baptist, in a red robe over a long hair robe, holds a couching Lamb with flag (gold cross on red), and points to it. Hills, trees, and towers behind.

8. f. 24. St Christopher, in red robe tucked up, with staff. The Child, with orb on his shoulders, crosses a river to R. On the R. bank is a hermit in black, with lantern. Starry sky.

9. f. 25. St Sebastian, full-face, hands bound behind him to a tree; six arrows in him, an archer on each side. Behind are buildings forming three sides of a square.

10. f. 26. St Urban, in tiara (white), red chasuble, blue dalmatic, alb, maniple (white with black crosses), holds a key and an open book. He stands in a room with waggon-roof of wood. Books on a shelf on R.

11. f. 27. SS. Peter and Paul in a hexagonal domed building. Peter with key and open book, Paul with sword and open book, both in red and blue.

12. f. 28. St Yves in a building. He wears a black cap and a white robe without belt, with a black collar, and holds a closed book and a roll. On R. a bench with a book and large roll on it, and a shelf above with three books. Arras at the back.

13. f. 29. St Hubert (rubbed). He rides to R. on a white horse, caparisoned in red: two greyhounds running. He is bare-headed, has a horn slung across him, and wears blue hose and shoes with spurs. On the R., among trees, is seen the head of the stag, with the crucifix between its horns.

14. f. 30. St Quentin. In a building; he sits nude, full-face, in C. On a wooden seat, with canopy of red arras, with gold fleurs-de-lys, and arms ending in posts. Through slits in these posts his hands are passed. Nails are thrust under each finger-nail, and a man on either side is hammering a nail into his shoulder. There is bogus Hebrew writing on the cornice of the canopy.

15. f. 31. St James the Great, bare-headed, in red dalmatic over blue robe, a hat on his back, a scrip and pilgrim's staff, stands reading in a landscape. A spoon and something else are stuck in his hat.

16. f. 32. St Anne. In a hexagonal building. She sits full-face. The Virgin, crowned, stands on R., and touches a book on her knee.

17. f. 33. St Katherine, crowned, in blue mantle over red and white robe, stands reading in a domed building. A sword leans against the wall on R., and the fragments of wheels lie on the floor.

18. f. 34. St Barbara (rubbed). Stands reading. Behind her is a stream bridged by a plank, and beyond it two masses of castellated building.

19. f. 35. St Margaret, in a building, emerges from the back of a quadruped with a light-coloured belly and short tail. She holds a small cross: her skirt is in the beast's mouth.

20. f. 36. St Mary Magdalene stands in a hexagonal domed building, holding out a casket. She is dressed in red over green.

21. f. 37. St Apollonia stands out of doors, holding a tooth in a pair of pincers; on L. and behind are castles.

22. f. 38. St Avia. On L. a square tower with a grille of iron round the window. Inside it St Avia is seen. Outside stands the Virgin in blue, holding up a round of bread to her, and attended by an angel in pale pink with gay wings, who holds a cup and flagon. Tower and tree behind. Starry sky, and birds flying.

23. f. 39. St Anthony of Padua. He stands in a building, clothed in a brown (Franciscan) habit with knotted cord girdle, the ends hanging down, and points to an open book. On R. a bench with books, and a shelf above it with more books, and a string of seven large black beads.

24. f. 40. All Saints. Under a hexagonal stone canopy with open sides: the Virgin, seated in the midst on a seat covered and canopied with red arras, gold-starred; she reads a book. On L. sits a row of male saints (apostles), and on R. a row of females. None have any attributes. On the cornice of the arras canopy is Aue Maria gracia plena dom.

25. f. 60. Hymns to the Three Marias. In a hexagonal domed building the Virgin, seated on an arrassed throne in the centre, holds the Child. On L. sits Maria Salome with open book: beyond her are the two boys, John with palm, James with gold staff. On R. Maria Jacobi, seated with open book, her three sons beyond her (James, Jude, and Judas) with joined hands.

The volume formerly belonged to the Marquis de Valero de Uzzia.

M. Paul Durrieu gives the following note: "Très beau livre d'heures, peint par Jacques de Besançon, enlumineur Parisien vers 1475—1485."

The use is of Paris.

In the Kalendar SS. Genevieve, Louis, Leu, Denis, Marcel are in gold. Suffrages for "nostre congregacionis fratres et sorores, parentes amicos et benefactores nostros" (ff. 146 b, 173, 224 b) may indicate a connexion with a religious house. Every page is bordered. The miniatures are good, but not very unusual in treatment.

They are as follows:

1. f. 13. Sequences of the Gospels. St John on Patmos, full-face, writes In principio etc. on a scroll. Eagle on L. Town behind.

2. f. 15. St Luke writes at a desk on the arms of his chair; the parchment has weights to stretch it: bookshelves on R.: winged ox.

3. f. 17 b. St Matthew writes In illo tempore: angel kneels with ink. He has a wooden footstool. A desk in three stages is by him.

4. f. 20. St Mark in cap writes on a screw-desk. By him is a desk in three stages with a lamp hanging at top: and the lion.

5. f. 22. Obscuro te. The Virgin and Child ( $\frac{3}{4}$  length) on a crescent, surrounded by wavy rays. The Child sucks her breast. Background of arras and blue angels.

6. f. 27 b. O intemerata. In a room, in which is a handsome bed, the Virgin sits on the floor on L. and holds out her hands to the Child who walks, supported by an angel. A view out of window on L.

7. f. 33. Matins of the Virgin. Annunciation. The Virgin on L. with book at desk. The Dove on a ray. Gabriel in dalmatic kneels with scroll (ave—tecum). Above the rich roof is the Father with orb.

8. f. 65 b. Lauds. Visitation. The Virgin is attended by a maid in a curious hat.

9. f. 81. Prime. The Virgin and Joseph (kneeling with candle) adore the Child (nude on the ground). The ox and ass on L.: there is a small three-legged table with jug, cake, and saucer.

10. f. 89. Tierce. Two shepherds, one looks up, one falls back: a bag-pipe on the ground: dog and sheep. Two angels with scroll in air: puer natus est nobis est fillius da.

11. f. 95. Sext. Adoration. The Virgin and Child under stable roof on L.: one king kneels, two stand. Star above.

12. f. 100. None. Presentation. Simeon full-face behind a round altar, in tall mitre, supports the Child. On R. the Virgin and Anna nimbed: on L. Joseph and another.

13. f. 107. Vespers. The Flight, to R. A maid follows, with a basket of eggs on her head.

14. f. 116. Compline. The Father in tiara on R. Kneeling Virgin, an angel holds her train. Behind is a carved bench over which leans one of a mass of red angels, holding a crown.

15. f. 124. Seven Psalms. David kneels, face R. Harp on L. The Father in the sky. On R. is a building shewing canopy, and table with book on it.

16. f. 148. Hours of the Cross. The Crucifixion with title: sun and moon in the sky. On L. the Virgin swoons: John and three nimbed women. On R. the Centurion with scroll (Vere—iste) and a crowd of soldiers. Skull and bone at foot of the Cross. In some ways this is the best picture in the book.

17. f. 156*b*. Hours of the Holy Ghost. Pentecost. The Virgin and Apostles kneel in a Church, with desk and lectern. The Dove in air surrounded with wavy flames.

19. f. 226. xv Joys. The Virgin and Child full-face, under a red canopy: an angel on L. stands playing a straight trumpet: one on R. kneels and offers a gold lute to the Child.

The Kalendar marks S. Martial in gold on 3 July, and S. Romain on 23 October. The Litany has: Apostle, S. Martial: Disciple, S. Ursin: Martyrs, SS. Victor, Eutropius: Confessors, Mello, Romanus, Audoen, Ausbert, Leobin, Fiacre: Virgins, Austreberta, Honorina, Veronica.

The use is of Rouen.

As is commonly the case in Rouen books, the pictures of the Evangelists are all on one page.

The character of the work I should describe as very excellent shop-work. The grotesques (mostly birds or bird-like forms), which occur in almost every border, are above the average. The painting of jewels in some of the borders, is also clever: the small miniatures illustrating the Hours of the Cross are remarkable for minuteness.

The Kalendar has an almost square miniature at the bottom of each page, and a border on the outer side of the page, with grotesques and foliage on dead gold.

1. January. A man in blue gown and black hat sits at table on a wooden settle, back to the fire, raising a vessel to his mouth: a page in furred gown and cap brings in a dish.

2. Aquarius. Nude: stands in a stream emptying two vessels.

The Child Christ, nude, seated on a red cushion, supports the cross: blue starred ground. Boar hunt in border.
26. f. 25. Hours of the Virgin. Matins. The Annunciation, in a pillared Church. The Virgin kneels on L. in front of a circular curtained canopy, the curtains held back by two small angels: on the cornice is ECCE ANCILLA DOMINI. Low desk with book on it. The pictures are excellent late work, the borders not above the average: they are divided into geometrical compartments.

21. November. With staff about to beat an oak tree: three hogs feeding.
 22. Sagittarius. A centaur with white horse's body shoots, back to L.
 23. December. In a court-yard paved with round stones, wall and buildings behind, a man, with knife, has just slaughtered a hog: a boy has his hands on the carcase: a woman collects the blood: all kneeling.

24. Capricornus. White goat with white snail-termination, in landscape.

After this the miniatures mostly occupy almost the whole page and have a columned or architectural frame of some kind. The page is usually thus arranged: (a) a  $\frac{3}{4}$  page picture, (b) two or three lines of text, (c) a predella-picture below text.

25. f. 13*b*. Sequences of the Gospels. Large picture. (A) St John on a small island writing, full-face. Eagle on R. Water and ships and land behind. In air, Christ half-length surrounded by blue angels.

41. B. Two groups of Apostles, R. and L. half-lengths, look up at the Virgin, who is ascending into heaven: only the lower part of her blue robe is seen and the treatment is just like that of the Ascension; only that subject is not appropriate here.

42. f. 57. Obsecro te Domina. A. A Pietà. The Virgin seated in the centre with the body of Christ across her knees: on L. St John supports the head, and a nimbed woman kneels: on R. kneel the Magdalen with casket, and another nimbed woman.

46. f. 65. Seven Psalms. A. In the fore-ground Joab in gold armour on a horse whose gold housings are inscribed GOAB rides to R. with lance and pierces the breast of Absalom, who hangs by his hair to a tree. 49. B. In a classical church. On L. two Priests in funeral copes, one reading from book, a surpliced clerk behind. On R. is the coped lid, black and gold, of a coffin and beyond it four mourners in black cloaks with deep hoods which hide their faces. A crowd of figures behind. All are half-lengths.

50. f. 109. Hours of the Cross. A. The Crucifixion. Christ on the Cross in the centre, crowned with thorns: title on the cross. On L. the Virgin, St John, and a group of holy women. ## In the Litany :

Martyrs: S. Herenee (Irenaeus) first in order, SS. Abdon et Sennes, Urban, Armemundus (? Annemundus), Adrian, Lazarus; Confessors: Euchirius, Claude, Philibert; Virgins: Brigida, Christina.

There are Memoriae of SS. Adrian, Claude, Nicetius, and the Three Maries.

The place assigned to Irenaeus, and the occurrence of Eucherius, Annemundus and Nicetius point distinctly to Lyons as the source of the book.

The use is Roman.

The work is most admirable: the hand is Roman. There are no borders save on the pictured pages. All the pictures are excellent. But the artist is a Frenchman under Italian influence and not an Italian.

1. f. 7. Initial to Adoro te. The Father half-length, seated, in purple robe and imperial crown, holds before Him the Crucified Son: the Dove is upon the top of the Cross. Gold ground.

3. f. 10. Similar border on gold ground. In text. St Luke, dipping his pen, at a table in a panelled room. Ox-head seen on L.

4. f. 11. Similar border, green ground. In text. St Matthew mending his pen. Seroll on knee. Angel in air on R.

5. f. 12. Similar border, blue ground. In text. St Mark, adjusting his spectacles: book on table: lion's head seen beyond it.

The pictures are from this point usually arranged two on a page, as main subject and predella, separated by a few lines of text.

6. f. 13. Passio sec. Iohannem. Frame of gold architecture, with marble panels and statues.

A. The Betrayal. The kiss of Judas takes place in the foreground. On L. lies Malchus, and Peter sheathes his sword: Christ is holding the ear of Malchus in His hand. Two Apostles are seen departing on L. Soldiers with spears, one with a cresset and another with a lantern, are seen behind, and on a hillock. The garden rail and gate on R. Dark sky with stars.

The lights of lantern and cresset are used with some skill.

7. B. Two soldiers bring Christ, in purple, with bound hands, before a bearded judge in peaked cap, on a throne (Annas or Herod). Other soldiers follow.

8. f. 20. Hours of the Virgin. Matins. A. The Annunciation. Two light windows in the centre background, through which the Dove enters on rays. The angel advances from L. with sceptre, and points up. The Virgin sits with book on lap and hands apart.

9. B. The Fall. A grove of slender trees, in the midst of which is a gold fountain and various golden animals (lion, camel, etc.) walking about. In front the human-headed serpent, coiled round a tree, addresses Eve on R. Adam on L., with hand to throat, looks downward. This attitude alludes to the traditional origin of the "Adam's apple" in the human throat.

10. f. 32. Lauds. A. The Visitation. A court-yard in front of an open gold pavilion with three arched openings. Elizabeth kneels on one knee on R. The Virgin hastens to her from L. A maid enters through an arch on L., carrying a basket or trunk. On R., leaning one hand on a low wall, is Zacharias with a staff. In the centre opening of the pavilion is seen the Birth of John Baptist. Elizabeth is in bed, the Virgin and another stand beside her. At the foot of the bed is a nurse holding the swaddled child.

11. B. In a paved hall, Zacharias sits on a high-backed seat and writes at a sloping desk on a table, facing R. On a flight of three steps on R. a nurse stands, holding the swaddled child, John Baptist.

12. f. 40. Matins of the Cross. A. The Crucified Christ in the centre, with title on Cross. Magdalen kneels at the foot, her casket near her. On L. a group of the Virgin, John, and other women: on R. the centurion with bannered lance, in gold armour, and other soldiers. Blue hills and a stormy sunset sky behind.

13. B. In front of a rugged cavern two soldiers cast dice on the seamless garment: a third on R., leaning on his sword, watches them.

14. f. 41 b. Prime of the Virgin. A. Under a ruinous shed, with holes in the roof. In centre, the cradle with the Child, feet towards the spectator. On L. of it kneels Joseph with staff, between the ox and ass: on R. the Virgin. At the further end, four shepherds, one kneeling on one knee, cap in hand, two looking over the wattles, the fourth approaching.

In the background a hill with trees and sheep; two shepherds sit looking up at a blue demi-angel in air, holding a scroll. Gloria.

15. B. Joseph, in broad hat, leads a saddled ass to L. towards a red-brick building with white stone facings; in the doorway of this stands a woman with hands out. Beyond the ass is the Virgin, standing: the ox follows the ass. Trees behind.

16. f. 45. Tierce. A. The Circumcision. In a broad, paved, classical cloister. Joseph kneels, with candle: the Child is on a nurse's lap, a maid attending: the Virgin and another woman are further off, behind: a good many men are walking and standing in the cloister.

17. B. The procession to the Temple. Joseph walks first, to L., holding a candle. The nurse, with the swaddled Child, and a maid, follow: then the Virgin and another maid. On the R. is the stable, with a hurdle to keep in the ox and ass.

18. f. 48 b. Sext. A. The cavalcade of the Magi: soldiers, horses and camels, winding down a long road: a noble city in the background. In the foreground ride the three kings: one points to the star in the sky. On R. is a negro on foot, with a lance. On L. are trees.

19. B. The Magi, dismounted, adore. The Virgin and Child are seated on the ground by the stable on R. The two foremost kings kneel. A group of servants is seen on L.

20. f. 51 b. None. A. The Presentation. The golden altar, with white cloth, raised on a gold foot-pace, stands with the end towards the spectator. It has a red canopy and green curtains. On R. of it Simeon, mitred and nimbed, stands, bending forward with joined hands. On L. the Virgin approaches with the Child. Beyond is Joseph, nimbed, with the doves in a basket, and beyond him are Anna and another woman.

21. B. In a room: on L., Joseph kneels on one knee, with the doves. The Virgin sits on the floor, facing R., and holds the Child on a white pillow. On R. a nurse, facing L., kneels and swathes it with a long linen band. A cradle and bed on R.

22. f. 54 b. Vespers. A. The Massacre of the Innocents. In centre is a clump of trees: blue hills behind. In front of the trees is a group of five horsemen, namely, three soldiers, a counsellor, and Herod, in a gold robe, on a white horse. On R. a foot-soldier attacks a mother: and so does one on L.: this latter threatens him with a distaff. In front, another soldier falls over a mother with a child, and another woman in R. corner tears her hair over her dead child. Four swaddled babies, wounded and bleeding, lie about the foreground.

23. B. Joseph leads an ass, on which are the Virgin and Child, to R. along a winding road in a pretty landscape dotted with trees.

24. f. 60. Compline. A. The Virgin lies dying on a red bed with brown curtains, her head to R. St Peter, in white with a blue stole crossed under his R. arm, puts a candle in her hand. At the foot of the bed an Apostle holds a Crucifix. In the foreground sit three Apostles, two on L. weeping and praying, one on a bench on R. reading. In the background, a group of six or seven Apostles.

25. B. Funeral of the Virgin. Two men carry the coffin (a gold shrine) on poles, toward R. Two or three Jews in furred capes follow. Under the coffin two younger men kneel, and stretch out their arms, which have no hands: on the nearer side, two detached hands cleave to the coffin. These are Jews who had tried to upset the bier, and whose hands were miraculously smitten off. To R. an apostle is seen walking on. Trees and rocks behind.

26. f. 70 b. Office of the Dead. Vespers. A. Dives and Lazarus. The court-yard of a fine red-brick house, with white stone facings and blue roof. A square tower at the angle. An arch in a stone embattled wall at the back leads into a street of red-roofed houses. In the court on R. is a pavilion of trellis-work with open lower story, elevated on two stone steps. In this are Dives and his wife, seated at table. Facing them is Lazarus, in pink tunic and torn white hose: a broad hat on his head, a white sack over his shoulder, a wooden keg at his belt, a clapper in his hand. He is noseless, and ugly to look upon. A black dog smells at his legs, a rough dog in foreground looks at him, and a collared greyhound bounds forward to attack him. A page runs down the steps of the pavilion to drive him off. Another servant in foreground, who wears high scarlet boots above the knee, with yellow insides, urges on the dogs, and holds his nose. Three other figures stand in doorways, and in the court, and a woman is seen under the entrance arch.

This is a particularly excellent picture.

27. B. Dives, nude, is extended on his back among flames, in a crowd of hideous devils, nine in number. He points to his mouth. In air on L. is Abraham, nimbed, half-length, holding the soul of Lazarus, a nude child, on his arm.

28. f. 75 b. Office of the Dead. Matins. A. Job, white-haired, in a white loin-cloth, sits on a heap of straw on L., a bowl by him. Behind him are the ruins of his house and some trees. On R. a friend kneels on one knee, leaning on a T-shaped stick, and talks: behind him stands his wife, who addresses another friend, whose hands are clasped in grief.

29. B. A landscape, with a wooded hill on L. and open country on R. In centre, Job lies on straw. Two devils, of hideous aspect, one of whom clutches his arm, are beating him with sticks.

30. f. 99 b. Seven Psalms. A. In front, on R., stands Goliath, swaying to his fall, with the stone in his forehead. He wears gold plate armour over a shirt of mail, and carries a halberd. A red shield lies on the ground behind him. On L. David, in a handsome tunic, holds a sling in his R. hand and a shepherd's staff in his L., and bends slightly forward, looking at him. A rocky, wooded hill rises behind, and on L. of it is seen a crowd of horse and foot soldiers, with a castled hill behind.

31. B. In a paved hall: on L. Samuel, in blue and yellow, aged, pours a horn of oil on the head of David, who kneels, with shepherd's staff on his arm. Behind him kneel the aged Jesse and seven brothers.

From this point the pictures are mostly initials, and the figures half-length.

32. f. 111. O Dulcissime Domine. Initial. Half-length of Christ, blessing, with orb. Gold ground.

33. f. 113 b. Memoriae. St Michael, in gold armour, with cross-staff, on a dragon.

34. f. 114. St John Baptist, between two trees, points to R.

35. f. 114 b. A group of Prophets, nimbed, the foremost with a scroll.

36. f. 114 b. St James the Great, with scrip, scalloped hat, bourdon, and rosary.

37. f. 115. A group of Apostles: Peter in front, with open book.

38. f. 115 b. A group of Martyrs: Stephen in front, with open book.
 39. f. 115 b. St Stephen, in dalmatic, stone on head, hands extended upward.
 40. f. 116. St Sebastian, bound to tree, in white loin-cloth, six arrows in him.
 41. f. 116. St Laurence, in dalmatic, with book and gridiron, faces R.
 42. f. 116 b. St Adrian, in gold armour, with sword and anvil and hammer thereon.
 43. f. 117. St Christopher, with staff, and Child Christ, with orb on his shoulder, walks to R. and looks back.
 44. f. 117. St Claude, in chasuble, mitre, and pastoral staff, faces L. and blesses a shrouded corpse whose head is seen.
 45. f. 117 b. St Anthony, face L., in dark habit with gold T on shoulder, staff and rosary.
 46. f. 118. St Nicholas, in mitre, chasuble and pastoral staff, faces R. toward three nude children in a tub.
 47. f. 118. St Roch, as pilgrim: an angel on L. touches the plague-sore on his thigh: dog's head on R.
 48. f. 118 b. St Nicetius, full-face, in cope, mitre, and pastoral staff, blessing.
 49. f. 119. St Anne, seated, face R., with open book: the Virgin at her knee, reading it.
 50. f. 119 b. St Mary Magdalen, full-face, with casket of blue and white ware.
 51. f. 119 b. The Three Marias, with caskets, in a group.

The Matins of the Holy Ghost do not seem to occur in this volume.

Marks of ownership. At the beginning is an inscription in Spanish of cent. xvi or xvii which appears to be signed Fray Pedro: but I cannot give any satisfactory reading of it. At the end is another xviiith cent. entry: Son de Don Antonio Villadiego de montoya.

The work is extremely good: the figure-drawing hard but minute and interesting: colour excellent. The black or dark backgrounds to many of the borders are most effective.

The most minute work appears perhaps in the illustrations of the Kalendar.

Use, etc. Of Saints commemorated there are few who point to any special locality. In March S. Gertrude (twice), Mar. 19 Iohannes heremita, Ap. 2 Quincianus Martyr, 18 Eleutherius Conf., May 13 Servacius M., July 18 Arnulphus Ep., Sept. 16 Lambert, Oct. 23 Severinus, point to Flanders. In the Litany there is really nothing, unless it be the occurrence of S. Ursula, which is in the least characteristic.

Illustrations:

Kalendar. Borders of dead gold, with flowers of real forms intermixed with conventional ones. Much rubbed and cut. The sign of the Zodiac is on the R. margin, the occupation of the month on the lower margin.

Jan. 1. Aquarius, nude, empties flagon into stream.

2. Interior. Fire-place on R. Man in blue seated at it and turning round to aid a page in red who comes in with a dish. A table is laid between them: at the back is a buffet with plate.

22. A man beating an oak tree with a staff. Two pigs feed.

24. In a building: a man about to kill an ox with an axe or mallet, another man bends over it holding its halter.

25. f. 13*b.* Houres of the Virgin. Matins. Full-page. The border has a dark, almost black background with scroll-work and grotesque monsters, in admirable style.

The Annunciation. The Virgin kneels in front on R. at a table. At some distance behind her is a fine arras, black on gold: and nearer on the extreme R. is a draped altar with retable. In centre foreground is a jar (on which is a double-headed eagle in blue) with a lily in it. Gabriel in red and green cope over alb kneels on L. with scroll (Aue—tecum) in both hands. In a court seen through an open door at the end of a passage, Joseph is seated. Rays from above strike to the Virgin's ear: the Dove, if there, is hardly traceable.

26. f. 27*b.* Lauds. Full-page with similar border. The Visitation. A court-yard with low wall in front of a house on R. The door of the house is canopied and has two statues at the sides. The Virgin in blue is on L. Elizabeth in a reverential attitude on

R., in red and green. Rays from above. The background is a pleasant landscape with river, boatman, rocks and tower.

27. f. 30*b*. Prime. Full-page, bordered. The Nativity. The stable extends across the picture: it is a wooden building with rich dormer windows and no walls: a low wattle behind. The Virgin kneels on L. under a rich arras of red on gold, held up by an angel in air. Beyond her are the ox and ass. In front of her the Child, nude on the ground. Joseph kneels on R. of a shaft. The star above. The country behind is snowy. There is a winding river in the far distance, and three figures nearer.

28. f. 40*b*. Tierce. Full-page, bordered. The angel and shepherds. In the centre foreground a shepherd seated on the ground with a bag-pipe is almost falling backward (to L.) and looking up: his hat lies on L., a dog at his feet on R. On R. and L. behind him are two shepherds with crooks, looking up: in C. a woman sits on the ground and spins, and just in front of her is a collared greyhound. A few sheep in the middle distance: the background a crowded view of green trees, a road with horsemen, a town, water and rocks. In air on L. is a small angel with scroll (Gloria in excelsis).

29. f. 44*b*. Sext. Full-page, bordered. Adoration of the Magi. The stable as in no. 27. Snowy country, with buildings seen at the back. In front on L. sits the Virgin with the nude Child. The eldest king, his crown on the ground by him, kneels. His mantle is red with ermine cape: he is booted. The two other kings in brown and green mantles stand behind him, one raising his crown: neither is black: both hold covered gold vessels. Behind the Virgin is a white bed, beyond which Joseph stands holding a cup with opened lid, full of gold pieces.

30. f. 48*b*. None. Full-page, bordered with grey foliage, and grotesques, on dark ground. The Presentation. Interior of the Temple paved with dark and white marble in squares. On R. is a side-chapel where the figures are. Simeon, mitred and nimbed, is behind a draped altar on which he holds the Child. Four men are near him: on L. of the altar kneels the Virgin in blue, and beyond her Joseph, who is not nimbed. Behind on L. is Salome the midwife (remark her cap), nimbed, with candle and basket of doves, and beyond her is a view up the main aisle shewing the altar, with retablo of a crowned (or mitred) figure: beyond Simeon is a good piece of arras, in gold on brown.

31. f. 52*b*. Vespers. Full-page, bordered. The Massacre of the Innocents. In front is a portico open on L. to the street. On R. Herod in blue is throned under a red and gold canopy. Before him are three soldiers in plate armour with coloured doublets, and two mothers with children. One of these is prostrate, and a soldier straddles over her. Behind is an arras of black on gold, and on L. is a view up the street, with a soldier pursuing a woman.

32. f. 58*b*. Compline. Full-page, bordered. The Flight into Egypt. In the foreground a watted hurdle crosses the picture: behind it are the Virgin and Child on the ass, and Joseph. In the middle distance a rock and green trees: on L. of it three soldiers (one on horseback) talk to a husbandman. Rocks and buildings behind.

33. f. 63*b*. Office of the Virgin in Advent. Full-page, bordered. Coronation of the Virgin. She kneels on L. An angel in air crowns her. On R. the Son, throned under a wooden canopy, in triple crown. Behind, a vacant throne with canopy of arras held up by two angels in air. A black and gold arras crosses the picture behind it, and over that are two angels with musical instruments.

34. f. 83*b*. Seven Psalms and Litany. Full-page: the border has no background. David's penitence. He kneels bare-headed facing R. under a rich portico with a clock in the roof. His crown and harp (in case) lie on the ground. In the middle distance is a wall with a peacock on it: R. of this is a pigeon house with a cat on the sill of the opening. Rocks and trees in the back-ground, and two armed men, one attacking the other. In air is an angel with a sword: and in an opening in the clouds behind is the Father in red, in an imperial crown.

35. f. 99 b. Vigiliae Mortuorum. Full-page with black border. Raising of Lazarus. In front Lazarus, nude, seems to be standing in a stone coffin, in which lies his shroud. Peter on R. is untying his hands. At the foot of the coffin stands a workman with a spade. Christ and Mary, three Apostles and three Jews form a group behind and to R. of the workman. Behind them is seen a church with open door: showing altar and retable with figure of Moses. On R. is a view of the gravelled churchyard path and street beyond.

36. f. 138 b. Memoriae. St Nicholas. Full-page, bordered. In front on L. kneels the owner of the book in grey gown over red doublet: he is black-haired and beardless. A book and cap lie on the ground. The scene is a wooden building without side walls. In centre stands St Nicholas full-face, blessing, in red cope lined with green, blue dalmatic, alb, mitre, crosier: behind him an arras of black on gold, on R. three nude youths in a tub. Outside on L. is seen a ship with men on the rigging, and on R. buildings.

37. f. 140 b. St Katherine. Full-page with excellent border. St Katherine in ermine jacket over a light-red robe kneels facing R.: an executioner with lowered sword behind her. In front and on R. lie and fall seven wounded men. Beyond them is the knived wheel. Two angels in air are cutting at it with swords. On L. the Emperor Maxentius and a group of five doctors. Buildings behind them. Stormy sky.

38. f. 143 b. Psalter of St Jerome. Full-page: the border has dark ground and light scroll-work. St Jerome kneels in white shirt: a stone in his R. hand, his breast bleeding. On R. is a tall crucifix among rocks, and an angel in air. In front on R., the saint's red hat and dark habit. On L., the lion. Trees, rocks, and a city in the distance.

39. f. 160 b. Passion according to St John. Full-page: leaves, flowers and grotesques in borders. St John seated in a room with wooden coved roof, under a canopy with figures in niches. He faces R. and has a desk with a book on it before him. A small angel in air points him to the door; outside are seen (a) in the extreme distance the agony, with cup on hillock, an angel in air: (b) nearer, Christ bearing the Cross, with three soldiers: (c) to R. on a hill the Crucifixion, with the thieves, and a group of soldiers: (d) under the hill, the Entombment: (e) nearest, the Virgin and St John seated on the ground.

The selection of Saints in Kalendar, Litany and Memoriae is very curious.

In the Litany: Martyrs, Quintin, Livinus (Ghent), George Gereon Maurice: Confessors, Amandus Vedastus Audomar (St Omer) Bertinus (St Omer) Winnoc Louis Bavo (Ghent): Virgins, Ursula Amelberga (Ghent) Walburgis (Mons) Dorothy Dimpna (Gheel) Cita Gertrude Aldegundis (Ghent).

We find some names from Brittany, Tours, and England: but the most characteristic point to Flanders, and there seems a preponderance in favour of Ghent. We are probably dealing with a book written at Bruges, for some one at Ghent who had connexions with Western France.

As to the owners, whose portraits we have: their arms have not as yet been identified, but their initials occur in various parts of the book, in the borders. On 38 b the initials P. J. occur, connected by a true lovers' knot, and again on 67 b, 70, 72, 74, 76, 252 b, 264 b, 266, 270, 271, 277, 278.

On p. 252 is a skull and a scroll a good deal rubbed. I read it ". . . vadit (?) p. . . it mors impia m . . . n (?)."

The book was written for a man whose Christian name began with P. From the fact that a statuette of St Peter is in the background of his picture I infer that his name was Pierre. The lady's name was most likely Jeanne.

The work is of good quality. Each page has a strip of border, mostly natural flowers, birds, caterpillars, shells, and occasionally grotesques on various coloured grounds, with a great deal of fluid gold.

The pictures have either never existed or have been removed.

At present we have at the beginning two full-page pictures of the owner and his wife, in a very good style :

1. The owner, a young and handsome man, beardless, with reddish hair, in plate-armour and a red cap : his L. hand on his sword-hilt, his R. pointing towards his wife. He stands turned rather towards R. in a room. On the floor on R. lie his helmet and scutcheon. Behind these is the mast of a ship with crow's-nest, yard and sail. On the wall above, a statuette in gold, of St Peter. On L. a prayer-desk covered with a red cloth, and an open book on it : a window behind through which is seen a courtyard with brick buildings and two small figures.

2. The lady turned to L. and looking down : in a red dress edged with ermine, over blue : black head-dress, gold girdle. On the floor on L. her shield on a blue cushion, by it a prayer-desk with green cloth and a red and gold book. An arch and yellow portière on R. Out of the window are seen a stone building, and a battlemented wall of a garden with large trees.

The man's shield is or, three bends azure ; in chief, gules, a fesse argent ; the helmet has a coronet with jewels. The lady's shield is bendy sinister, of ten, gules and or surmounted by a coronet.

The only other pictures are the Kalendar series, which occupy two arched compartments at the beginning of each month.

1. January. Sits in a room, turning towards the fire ; a round table with white cloth on L. on which is a joint and other things ; a flagon by the fire. Behind, a buttery-hatch.

2. Aquarius. Nude, kneeling and emptying two bottles into a stream. Rocks behind.

3. February. Stands back to a fire, holding up his gown. Stone chimney, and fire-dogs. A bed with red curtains behind.

4. Pisces. In a stream : rocks behind.

5. March. Kneels and presses the earth round the roots of a young tree in an orchard : a spade by him. Behind, a house, and a man on a ladder engaged in tending a vine on a trellis (?).

6. Aries. In landscape.

7. April. A woman kneeling in a garden with several plots : she is by a patch of green stuff, which she is gathering into a basket (? weeding). In the distance a man with a pole over his shoulder on which hangs a hare : two dogs running : a castle and snowy fields behind.

8. Taurus. In snowy landscape.

9. May. A man in blue with a large white feather on hat, on a brown horse ; a lady behind him on a pillion, carrying a large branch of hawthorn. They are riding past a house on L.

10. Gemini. Two nude children in a landscape.

11. June. Cutting hay with scythe : the fields in the distance are white.

12. Cancer. A scarlet cray-fish in landscape (continued from 11) : white fields.

13. July. Reaping with sickle : a stick in L. hand.

14. Leo. In a castle court.

15. August. Threshing in a barn : a man in the distance carrying a sheaf.

16. Virgo. In scarlet and ermine over blue, walks beside a castle-mound : she holds a cup.

17. September. Sowing: the seed in a white apron: a sack on L. Landscape with castle.
18. Libra. Held by a lady who stands in a room.
19. October. Treads grapes in a vat: the juice flows into a tub: on R. another pours from a wooden jug into a cask.
20. Scorpius. In a room.
21. November. In yellow boots beating an oak with a stick: hogs on R. and L.
22. Sagittarius. A centaur shooting back to R. Trees and mountains behind.
23. December. Kneels on a pig whose throat he has cut with a knife. His wife also kneeling holds a pan for the blood: a street with trees at the end is seen behind.
24. Capricornus. A goat in a landscape.

These Kalendar pictures are of good quality, and more interesting than the ordinary type.

22. HORÆ (FIRMIAN).

Purchased from P. Janiello, Naples, July 1894.

Vellum,  $7\frac{7}{8} \times 5\frac{1}{2}$ , ff. 237. 20 lines to a page, cent. xv (1490).

Hours of the Virgin, etc., in Latin, executed for Nicholas von Firmian, one of an ancient Tyrolese family. In 1497 he and his brother Vigil ("Hofmeister" to the Empress Bianca Maria) were raised by the Emperor Maximilian to the "Reichs-Pannerherrstand." He married: 1st, Dorothea, daughter and heiress of John von Cronmetz (and his descendants quartered the arms of Cronmetz with those of Firmian); 2nd, Anna von Liechtenstein; 3rd, Paula de Caballis. By his first wife he had one son, George (b. 1479, created Freiherr in 1526), and two daughters, Catharine (b. 1477, married Leonard, Baron of Völs or Velss, belonging to a Tyrolese branch of the Colonna family) and Helena (b. 1478, married Gaudentius Botsch). Nicholas died in 1510: see Bucelinus, Germania, vol. ii. (pedigrees of Firmian and Botsch); Brandis, Ehren-Kränzlein, 1702, pp. 47, 55, 76, 100; Siebmacher, Wappenbuch, new ed., Bd. i. Abtheilung iii. (Nürnberg, 1887), p. 73.

Marks of ownership. Among the pictures the following throw light on this subject :

45. Man and lady kneeling, before a Bishop blessing them. Above the man are the arms of Firmian and Cronmetz, quarterly; above the lady is a coat of arms, gules, a horse rampant argent, over all on a fess azure, three mullets or (for Caballis?). The figures appear, therefore, to be intended for George von Firmian and his wife Catharine de Caballis; or perhaps for Nicholas (after his first wife's death) and his third wife, Paula de Caballis. f. 144 b.

69. Knight and lady, kneeling before a figure of St George; behind the knight is a boy, and behind the lady are two girls. Over the heads of knight and lady are the arms of Firmian and Cronmetz respectively, identifying the figures as those of Nicholas von Firmian and his first wife, Dorothea von Cronmetz, and their children George, Helena and Catharine (see description above). In the lower border are the arms, perhaps painted in later, of Botsch and Völs or Velss, the families into which the two daughters married (see above, and also Brandis, Ehren-Kränzlein, pp. 94, 100). f. 231 b.

Binding: original, of brown leather, stamped twice on each cover with a single panel-stamp, consisting of two compartments, with three angels in each, playing on musical instruments, the whole enclosed within a rectangular border with the legend "Domine exaudi oracionem meam. et clamor meus ad te veniat." With silver-gilt clasps, having in enamel the arms of Firmian, Cronmetz, Caballis, Völs, Botsch, and another (per bend nebuly, or and gules), and with the following initials engraved: G M. L P on one clasp, and M H. Z W on the other. Inside the cover is written: "Dises buech gehert mir Magdalena Victoria Frey Frau von Firmian" (perhaps the wife of John Nicholas, great-grandson of George von Firmian, who died 1646).

Wolfgang, Udalric, Gothard; Monks: Gwillhelmus, Nicolas de (Tolentino), Alexius; Virgins: Ottilia, Ursula, Maxencia, Monica.

The Memoriæ include Claudius and Anthony.

The use is Roman.

The book belongs to the diocese of Trent: for Vigilius, the most characteristic of the Saints, was Bishop of Trent, and his mother, Maxentia, also suffered there.

The miniatures are in what I should imagine to be a Northern Flemish style: the borders have natural flowers (including columbines) and insects.

There is a certain flatness about the figures, but the work is very interesting and careful.

The Kalendar pictures are in each case treated as a continuous scene upon which the text is laid. The Zodiacal sign is in a medallion at the top.

The MS. was sold in 1889 at the Hamilton Sale in London. It is written in an Italian hand, but all the decorations are of fine French-Flemish work. The borders have dead-gold grounds and consist of naturalistic fruits, flowers, etc. The columbine is not unfrequent. The figure-drawing is very good of its kind, and the whole book exceedingly pretty.

The use is Roman.

Sept. 9.	Gorgonius M.
17.	Lambert.
Oct. 14.	Donatius Ep. in red. (Bruges?)
Nov. 19.	Elizabeth vidue.
Dec. 1.	Eligius Ep. in red.
14.	Nichasius Ep. in red.
17.	Lazarus M.

In the Litany, Martyrs: Adrian, Maurice, Eustace, George, Eutropius, Quintinus; Confessors: Nichasius, Remigius, Marcellus, Eligius, Julian, Leobinus, Hubert; Virgins: Genovefa, Ursula.

In the Kalendar every page is bordered. Each month occupies two pages and the miniatures are in the lower margin. The Zodiacal sign is always on a deep blue ground.

1. January. Warms himself at a fire: a one-legged table, laid, behind him.
2. Aquarius nude empties pitcher.
3. February. Hooded and warmly clad stands chopping wood in a grove.
4. Pisces.
5. March. Stands in a courtyard with a trellis, holding up a stick. I cannot see what he is doing with it.
6. Aries.
7. April. Carrying a long stick over his shoulder and a hawk on his hand.
8. Taurus.
9. May. Stands playing a lute in a courtyard. There is a branch in front of the house door, and a lady's head is seen at the window.
10. Gemini, half-length with wreaths.
11. June in a hat, about to mow with a sickle. Note the hedge, and gate of the field.
12. Cancer.
13. July, in shirt and hat, reaping with a scythe.
14. Leo.
15. August, in a barn with openings in the sides, about to thresh.
16. Virgo, half-length with palm.
17. September, in the wine-vat.
18. Libra.
19. October, sowing from a napkin at his neck: a bag of seed by him.
20. Scorpius.
21. November beating oak: pigs beneath. Note the gate of the field with a weight to keep it shut.
22. Sagittarius, centaur shooting backwards.
23. December. In a courtyard, stands over a pig lying on burning straw (?). He has an implement in his raised hand.
24. Capricorn, a goat.
25. f. 14 b. De beate Veronice Christi (sic). Full-page. A bust of Christ; full-face. He holds a crystal orb, wears a red cope and tunic, and blesses. The picture is exceedingly good. It is of the type of the Quintin Matsys' Salvator Mundi. The opposite page is bordered; so also in the case of the other full-page paintings.
26. f. 17 b. Hours of the Cross. The Crucifixion with the Virgin and St John. The title on the cross. A landscape behind.

The border opposite contains a group of the instruments of the Passion, viz. (taken from A.), the cross with title, the ladder, and sponge. The nails on the wall. The cross stands in the tomb, over which lies the seamless robe. The title on the cross is remarkable. It seems to read 1 • 5 • 8 • 2. But the third figure has been meddled with: and I should prefer to read it 1502, if it stands for the date of the MS. It may not however be meant to indicate this.

Then on a bench are arranged a cresset, hammer, three dice, ewer and basin, and three pots of ointment.
27. f. 25 b. Hours of the Holy Ghost. Pentecost. The Dove, rayed, above. The Virgin (she is not in the centre) kneeling, and twelve Apostles, in various attitudes, in a classical building.

In the opposite border is a Dove with a scroll, and another scroll which seems to have the letters C. I. on it.

28. f. 32 b. Mass of the Virgin. Half-length of the Virgin in blue, young, bare-headed, holding the Child in a yellow robe. Red ground.

A chalice, peacock, strawberry etc. in the opposite border.

29, 30, 31, 32. ff. 38 b—43 b. Sequences of the Gospels. Four small square pictures (in the text) of the Evangelists writing. Pages bordered on three sides.

33. f. 45 b. Hours of the Virgin. Matins. The Annunciation. The Virgin kneels on L. by a red curtain. Gabriel in cope enters from R. Rays above.

34. f. 67 b. Lauds. The Visitation. Elizabeth on R. in red. A house (noticeably good) behind her.

35. f. 81 b. Prime. The Virgin and Joseph (in red) kneel facing. The Child between them. Ox and ass.

The borders here are composed of triangular spaces, each of which has a bird in it, cleverly done.

36. f. 87 b. Tierce. Three shepherds looking up. Rays above, but no angel.

The border opposite represents a circular wattled enclosure with gate: white rabbits are playing about.

37. f. 93 b. Sext. The Three Kings in the stable: Virgin and Child on R.

38. f. 99 b. None. The Presentation. The Virgin and Child and Joseph (nimbed, in red) on L. of the altar: behind a priest in crossed stole over alb: on R. Simeon nimbed. Green hangings behind.

39. f. 105 b. Vespers. Massacre of the Innocents. Two groups of soldiers and women: a candle on R. another house on L.

40. f. 114 b. Compline. The Flight, to R. Joseph in red. A large rock behind.

41. f. 121 b. Advent Office. The Father throned, full-face, in imperial crown, blessing and holding a crown. The Virgin kneels before Him.

42. f. 132 b. Seven Psalms. In front a trellised enclosure. Bathsheba nude stands in a stone trough by a gold conduit. Two maids kneel on R. David and another at a window behind.

The opposite border represents a circular fountain surrounded by gold arches.

43. f. 155 b. Vigils of the Dead. The Raising of Lazarus, in a cloister: Christ and Apostles on L. Mary on R. Two Jews in centre at a distance cover their faces.

44. f. 199. Obsecro te. Initial. A Pietà.

45. f. 211 b. O gloriosissima. The Virgin and Child seated on the grass in a landscape. Border of architectural character.

46. f. 214 b. Dulcissime domine. Crucifixion: title on cross. The Virgin, John, and another on L. The centurion on white horse, and others on R.

Border as in 45.

The scribe and artist of this volume is (or are) identical with the scribe and artist of a Book of Hours in the Fitzwilliam Museum (no. 153) executed in 1478 for Lorenzo Strozzi.

The colophon at the end of the volume may be usefully set side by side with that in our MS.

(The present MS.)

(Fitzwilliam 153)

Hoc opus scripsit frater Alexander Antonii Simonis de florentia ordinis fratrum heremitarum sancti Augustini et hoc cum esset bachalarius in sacra theologia in alma ciuitate et studio Neapolitano. Anno nostre salutis 1478. die uero 7 Mensis Septembris hora 23.

The present volume contains certain arms (f. 13): Party per pale, the sinister side arg. three chevrons sa., between the first two a cross gules: dexter or four bends sinister sa. over all a crescent arg. (blackened) under a label of three points gu.

The owner of these arms and of the book was Joachinus Guasconus of Florence. His name occurs in the three prayers Obsecro te (179 b), Dulcissime domine (183 b), and Festina ne tardaueris (f. 190) as follows: (1) Et mihi famulo tuo Ioachino: (2) dignare me domine Ioachinum—liberare: (3) me famulum tuum Ioachinum Guasconum custodias: (4) libera me famulum tuum Ioachinum Guasconum de florentia.

In the Strozzi Hours the name of the owner occurs in some or all of the same prayers.

In the binding is the modern book-plate of Henry Gee Barnard.

The MS. before us is less remarkable as a work of art than the Strozzi Hours: but is extremely interesting. The selection of subjects and their treatment show many coincidences with the other book.

In the Kalendar:

- 2 Aug. Festum porciuncule (the Portiuncula of St Francis) in red.
- 28 Aug. St Augustine in red.
- 10 Sept. S. Nicolai de torentino ord. S. Augustini in red.
- 30 Dec. Commem. S. Raphaelis archangeli in red.

In the Litany: Martyrs, SS. Miniatus, Alexander: Confessors, "Sancte pater noster Augustine," Zenobius: Monks, Nicolaus de torentino: Virgins, Clara, Elizabeth, Monica.

The MS. is throughout in Roman character: the smaller initials contain much of the characteristic Italian white branch-work. The borders are on a white ground in fine flourished work.

In the lower border of f. 14 are the arms of Della Rovere impaling Gonzaga, with the legend: 'Diva Dio(nora) Duci(ssa) Ur(bini)': they occur again on p. 205 with the legend 'Duci. Di. Ur.' On ff. 45 b, 96, 141 b we find the Gonzaga arms. On f. 42 b is 'Dionora Gonzaga Duc. Urbini et ce(tera)': f. 68 'Diva Lionora D.': f. 86 'Dionora Ducisa Ur.': f. 138 b 'Diva Dionora Urbini Duc.: f. 165 'D. Duc. Urbini.' The book was, therefore, executed for Dionora or Lionora, daughter of Gianfrancesco II. di Gonzaga, Marquis of Mantua.' She married, in 1509, Francesco Maria I. della Rovere, Duke of Urbino. He died in 1538, she in 1543. See Dennistoun, Memoirs of the Dukes of Urbino, ii. 304, 311, etc.; iii. 75.

The work of the original scribe is exquisite. Waagen (Art Treasures in Great Britain, iii. 431) ascribes the book to the hand of Giulio Clovio. But this is probably incorrect: see J. W. Bradley (Life of Giulio Clovio, 354). Mr Bradley, however, attributes another Book of Hours done for the same lady, and now in the Bodleian (Douce 29), to this famous artist (l. c. 281, 316).

The Hours of the Virgin are given three times over, at f. 14, f. 68, and f. 113. The last text ends with None.

The second text (B) is apparently that for use in Advent.

There is no Invitatory at Matins. The Lessons are Missus est: Quae cum audisset: Dixit autem.

The third text (C) I do not understand. In Matins it is identical with the first (A). In Lauds there are the following differences:

	A	C
Antiphon to Psalms.	Assumpta Maria uirgo In odorem Benedicta Pulchra es	O admirabile. Quando natus. Rubum. Germinauit. Ecce Maria.
Antiphon to Benedictus.	Beata dei	Mirabile.
In Tierce. One Antiphon differs.	Maria uirgo	Quando natus.
In Sext. Antiphon.	In odorem	Rubum.
In Nonc. Antiphon.	Pulchra es	Ecce Maria.

In the Kalendar there are certain rules written in verse, e.g. in January, at Epiphany:

A festo stelle numerando perforce lunam
Et <si> bissextus fuerit superadditus unus [Et] si cadit in lucem domini suppone sequentem.

- Jan. 17. S. Antonii Abb. Conf. in gold.
Feb. 1. S. Hegnatii (sic).
3. S. Blaxii (sic).
4. S. Gilberti C.

- Feb. 15. Transl. S. Antonii C.
 18. S<sup>te</sup> Constantiae in gold capitals.
 27. S. Constantii Ep. M. in gold.
 Ap. 12. S. Constantii Ep. in gold.
 May 20. S. Bernardini C. in gold.
 July 2. S. Mustiae in gold.
 15. Canonizatio b. Francisci in red.
 Sept. 26. S. Terentii M. in gold capitals. He is of Pesaro.

The Litany is short and undistinctive.

At the top is a medallion of the Father (bust and hand), blessing.

- Oct. 1. Remigi et baonis.
 15. Wulframmi Ep.
 Nov. 27. Maximi in red.
 Dec. 14. Nichasii Ep. in red.

In the Litany, Martyrs: Saturninus, Firminus, Quintin, Victor, Gentian, Crispin, Lucian, Nichasius.

Confessors (only 5 in all): Eligius, Modardus.

The martyrs are characteristic of N.E. France; to this district, or French Flanders, the MS. as a whole belongs.

The writing is of English-Dutch aspect, tall and narrow, with line-fillings in blue and gold. The decoration consists of borders and initials which have no ground, and contain rough but not ineffective drawings of birds and beasts. There are no historical subjects.

The book is bound in brown leather, each cover impressed twice with a panel-stamp, bearing the words "Iacobus gauer me ligauit" between two rows of six medallions (fleurs-de-lys, birds and monsters), the whole within a border divided by a zigzag line into triangular compartments occupied by dragons. This stamp belonged originally to James van Gavere, a Bruges binder, who died in 1465; a later namesake settled in London early in the 16th century and was working there as a bookbinder in 1535, and was probably the J. Gaver who witnessed Wynkyn de Worde's will: see Burlington Fine Arts Club, Exhibition of Bookbindings, 1891, pp. xiii, 10, 11, and South Kensington Museum, Catalogue of Bookbindings, 1894, pp. 162, 181. The same inscription occurs in an almost identical stamp (only differing from this in the arrangement of some of the medallions) on the cover of a copy of a book printed at Paris in 1494: see L. Gruel, Manuel de l'Amateur de Reliures, 1887, p. 106. The present volume was re-backed in 1786 (see entry on fly-leaf, f. 1). Several entries have been inserted in the Kalendar, in Dutch and Latin, by Charles van Houcke, who was born on 18 July 1562, and became Archdeacon of Ypres on 10 June 1589.

Marks of ownership. In the Kalendar is an entry (early xvth cent.), under March 14: "Obitus domine Elizabethe Grey vxor[is] domini Johannis Grey dominus (sic) de Blysworth." This lady was the daughter of Sir William Catesby of Ashby Ledgers, Northants, and the sister of Richard III.'s minister; her first husband was Roger Wake, Lord of the Manor of Blisworth, Northants, and her second (Roger Wake having died in 1504) was Sir John Grey, 4th son of Thomas, 1st Marquis of Dorset. She was still alive in 1509: see Baker's Northamptonshire, vol. i. p. 245, and Bridges' Northamptonshire (ed. Whalley, 1791), vol. i. pp. 335—338. The arms to which Sir John Grey was entitled have been painted in the margins, as follows: Quincy (and Ferrers of Groby), f. 112; Astley, f. 118; Grey, f. 124; Hastings, f. 137; Bonville, f. 145; Valence, f. 151; Wydville or Woodville (from his grandmother Elizabeth, Queen of Edward IV.), f. 161; Harington, f. 168.

The binding is French, late xvth cent. Brown calf, with ornamental gilt-tooling. In the centre of the covers are medallions of the Crucifixion and Annunciation respectively; these stamps, as well as one used at the corners of the covers, are to be found on books undoubtedly bound for Henri III. (J. A. H.)

In Mr Quaritch's description the following notice occurs :

"The binding was done about 1570 by the man who worked for Archbishop Parker, and sometimes for Queen Elizabeth. In binding this book he cut away the signature attached to a note written in Henry VIII.'s time beneath one of the miniatures, running thus : 'Madame, I pray you remember her that ys yours and ever sal be.' The writing is strangely like that of Henry VII. (who could not, of course, have been the writer), but also resembles that of Anne Bullen and Queen Mary to some extent. Whoever the lady was, she must have been a personage of high rank about 1530-40."

In the Kalendar I note :

- Jan. 19. Alfrani Ep. in red.
- Ap. 29. Trans. Edmundi regis.
- May 7. Johannis de beuerlaco Ep.
- June 9. Trans. Edmundi Ep.
- Aug. 31. Cuthburge V.

Some of the spellings in the Litany are rather Dutch in character, as Gildaerde, Medaerde, Maria Egypciaka. Cedda, Zwichin, and Burinus occur among Confessors.

The ornamental and picture work is as follows :

The Kalendar has a picture for each month divided vertically into two parts.

28. WINGFIELD HORAE AND PSALTER.

Purchased from B. Quaritch, Jan. 1894.

Vellum,  $11\frac{1}{8} \times 7\frac{3}{8}$ , ff. 106 + 133, 24 lines to a page: two volumes in one. Cent. xv. (1450).

Collation: i<sup>4</sup> 2<sup>4</sup> (1, 2 blank cancelled) || a<sup>6</sup> (wants 1, 6) b<sup>6</sup> c<sup>6</sup> (wants 6) d<sup>8</sup>-h<sup>8</sup> i<sup>8</sup> (wants 4, 5) k<sup>10</sup> l<sup>8</sup> m<sup>6</sup> n<sup>8</sup> o<sup>8</sup> || A<sup>8</sup>-C<sup>8</sup> D<sup>8</sup> (wants 5) E<sup>8</sup>-G<sup>8</sup> H<sup>8</sup> (wants 4) I<sup>8</sup>-Q<sup>8</sup> R<sup>8</sup> (wants 8).

On the binding and marks of ownership Mr G. F. Warner, of the British Museum, and Mr Yates Thompson have written as follows :

“Your MS. appears to consist of two manuscripts of about the same date, but the second artistically by far the best. Both, I think, must have been executed in England, but under strong French influence, the style being essentially French. The first MS. contains: 1. A calendar with no Obits. 2. Prayers to the Trinity, etc., imperfect at the beginning. 3. Rhythmical prayers or Commemorations of Saints John, George, Christopher, Thomas of Canterbury, Catherine and Mary Magdalene. 4. The fifteen Os. 5. Hours of the Virgin, Sarum Use. 6. Lauds of ditto. 7. The Seven Joys of ditto. 8. Prayers and Symbols of the Passion, etc. 9. Penitential Psalms. 10. Vigils of the Dead. 11. Commemorations Animarum. 12. Psalmi de Passione. 13. Psalterium Abbreviatum per S. Hieronymum. The second part contains the Psalter, followed by the Canticles, Te Deum, Litany, Prayers to Saints, etc. The first part contains no indications of ownership; but in the second the borders include the Stafford Knot, a Wheel Nave, a Swan crowned and chained, and an Antelope crowned and chained; all these appear to be Badges of Stafford, Dukes of Buckingham; and I infer therefore that the MS., or at least the second part of it, was written and illuminated, either for Humphrey Stafford, first Duke, who died in 1460, or for Henry his Grandson, the second Duke, who was born about 1454 and beheaded at Salisbury in 1483. The latter married Katherine Wydville, sister to Queen Elizabeth, wife of Edward IV., who after his death married Sir Richard Wingfield, whence the name of R. Wingfield, perhaps a son, on the binding.” (G. F. W.)

“Of the illuminated pages in the second part, the first, fol. 1, that of King David harping, contains no Stafford emblem, unless the red rose be held to be such. The second, fol. 19, contains the Stafford Knot once. The third, fol. 38, contains no Stafford Knot, but has the Antelope and the Wheel-nave, out of which however spring flowers instead of flames. The fourth, fol. 47 b, has both Antelope and Swan and an elaborate border of alternate Knots and Wheel-naves. The fifth, fol. 68 b, has the Knot and Nave within the initial C, and on each side of the miniature a scroll inscribed with the motto ‘Mercy and grace,’ whose presence is as yet (3 April, 1894) unexplained. The sixth and last, fol. 79 b, has a similar and more elaborate border of Stafford Knots intertwined, with Swans issuing out of Wheel-naves and the Antelope in the initial. Very beautiful red roses with their foliage abound in the borders, with larkspurs, cornflowers and pinks, as well as a variety of birds.” (H. Y. T.)

A pedigree of the Wingfield family, so far as it concerns us, is appended.

Sir John Wingfield (born about 1420) was the first who could claim the honour of royal kinship, brought into the family by his mother.

He had twelve sons, among whom were (Eldest son.) Sir John Wingfield, of Letheringham (born about 1450), father of Sir Anthony Wingfield, of Letheringham (born about 1490), father of several sons, among them Mr Richard, born about 1520.	Lewis (born about 1465), always described as father of the Marshal, Sir Richard, who founded the Powerscourts. He cannot have been his father, since the Marshal (who died in 1634) must have been born about 1560.	Sir Richard W., of Kimbolton, born about 1470, married Katherine Widdville.

--	--	--

The book may have been carried to Italy by a Catholic Wingfield about 1540. The name of Mr Richard Wingfield, impressed (in England about 1560) on the Italian binding (done about 1540), applies probably to Richard, the younger son of Sir Anthony.

Now, I would note that the second of the two volumes of which the MS. consists was written for a lady named Anne. In the prayer on f. 123 b sqq. we find (f. 125) 'ut auertas iram tuam a me famula tua Anna.' Again, a prayer on f. 128 begins, 'O domine Ihesu Christe parce michi famule tue Anne.' Moreover, all the adjectives referring to the suppliant in all these prayers are in the feminine gender. In the first volume the corresponding words are masculine, and the formula used is 'michi famulo tuo .N.' (e.g. on f. 61). In other words, volume I. was a shop-copy, and volume II. a specially ordered one.

This Anne is clearly Lady Anne Neville, 10th daughter of Ralph, first Earl of Westmoreland. She was the wife of Humphrey Stafford, the first Duke of Buckingham (1402—1460). This settles the date and destination of the second volume. The motto Mercy and grace may be connected with her.

As to the art. That of the first volume is coarse, if effective, English work: that of the second is the best kind almost that English artists in the xvth century could produce.

At the beginning is the modern book-plate of George Folliott, and a pencil note. "Sent a smaller volume to Miss Folliot Aug. 64. Missale Romanum on back. MS. in best order. Red Morocco. Aug. 3rd, 1864."

On the last leaf is a class-mark in a frame, A. vi. 3.

In the Kalendar, besides the common English saints, we have June 9. Transl. Edmundi regis, in red.

July 26. Anna (sic) matris Marie, in red. I think added by the writer of vol. II.

Aug. 6, 7. Transfiguration and Festum nominis Ihesu, added in cent. xvi.

The Memoriae in Lauds end with SS. Thomas of Canterbury (lined through), Nicholas, Magdalen, Katherine, Margaret, All Saints, Pro Pace, The Cross.

In the Litany (vol. I.) Martyrs: Thomas, Eadmund, Esworde, Oswald, Alane. Confessors: Bauo, Amande, Vedaste... Botulpe.

Virgins: Brigida, Christiana, Genovefa, ... Sexburga, Walburgis, ... Clara, Prisca, Elena, Radegundis, Fides, Spes, Caritas, Anastasia, Elyzabeth, Susanna.

In vol. II. the Litany is shorter. There are no English martyrs: among Confessors we have: Isodore, Iuliane, Gildarde, Medarde, Albane, Eusebi, Swithune, Berine: Virgins end with Prisca, Tecla, Affra, Editha. St Anne does not occur.

The Ten Saints in the Memoria on f. 123 are: Denis, Blasius, George, Christopher, Giles, Nicasius, and Martha, Katherine, Margaret, Barbara.

In the long prayer next following, the following saints are mentioned: the Four Evangelists, Gregory, Augustine, Audoen, Guthlac, Nicholas, Giles.

The pictures are as follows:

1. f. 8*b*. Half-page ('Arma domini'). Red ground with gold pattern; Christ, nude and wounded, stands in the tomb, which is pink: the Cross is behind Him.

2. f. 11*b*. Red and gold ground. St John Evangelist, in octagonal enclosure with green and black pavement. Trees and hills outside. He is in scarlet, ermine and blue, and holds a chalice with a black dragon in it.

3. f. 12*b*. St George, on white horse, pierces the eye of a green dragon. Strange landscape, with hills, trees and water. The Princess kneels far off on L. The king and queen look out of a window on R.

4. f. 13*b*. St Christopher carries Christ to L. across river. Hermit on R. bank with taper. Rocks and trees.

5. f. 14*b*. In a church with wooden roof: windows in silver. St Thomas, in chasuble, kneels on green and black pavement before an altar with silver frontal, chalice, corporal, and open book. His mitre on the foot-picce. A scarlet extinguisher-canopy above. An old man, not in armour, is about to smite him with a scimitar. A knight, in silver armour on L., draws his sword.

6. f. 15*b*. Ground and enclosure as in no. 2. St Katherine, crowned, dressed like St John (no. 2), holds palm and wheel, and sword, and stands on Maxentius.

7. f. 16*b*. Ground as in no. 2. St Mary Magdalen in green, ermine and red, supported in air by four angels in blue and scarlet. On the earth below is a casket.

8. f. 22. Hours of the Virgin: Matins. The Annunciation. The Virgin, on L., kneeling under a wooden canopy, upon a mat of rushes on a green and black pavement. A large lily pot in front. In a doorway on R. kneels Gabriel, with scroll (damaged), (Aue M)ARIA • GARCIA • PLENA. Above his head is the Father, half-length, drawn in blue.

Some of these pictures are powdered with a very coarse gold.

9. f. 26 b. Lauds. The Visitation. Two figures only, in a curious landscape, with city gate on R. and water about.

10. f. 33 b. Matins of the Cross. Initial. The Betrayal. Christ, bound, is kissed by Judas and holds Malchus' ear. Peter, on L., with raised sword.

Jerome sits on R. in red hat and red robe. The lion, on his hind legs, puts his front paws on Jerome's knee: the latter takes up a knife from the table.

The borders in vol. I. are very fair: they have grotesques of monsters, and men in blue riding lions, horses, etc.

wrists, knees, and toes. A whip at his girdle. He brandishes a bladder, and blows a pipe and dances. Two dogs look up at him gravely.

Border. Wheel-nave, two antelopes, etc.

44. f. 47 b. Saluum me fac. King David, nude, in white linen drawers and crown, stands in water, with joined hands, and looks up to R. at Christ, half-length, in cloud, among red angels. Elaborate landscape with ships, trees and flowers, and sheep and buildings. A fine picture.

Border. Wheel-naves, antelope, and swan.

Marks of Ownership. On f. 1: "Sum liber Johannis Hunt ex dono Mariæ Lusser, 1585"; in the margins of ff. 103 b—109 b are entries, in various hands, concerning the Hunt family and its alliances. From these it appears that the book was given to John Hunt (of Gayton, co. Staff., and Cold Newton, co. Leic.) by his wife Mary, daughter of Nicholas Lusher of Shooland in Putterham, co. Surrey (the Lushers were originally a Devonshire family, and settled in Surrey circ. 1500: see Manning and Bray's Hist. of Surrey, vol. II. p. 19, and the 1623 Visitation of Surrey, Brit. Mus. Add. 14311, ff. 60, 91); and that after his death in 1612 it belonged successively to his daughter Bridget (mar. 1629 to Thomas Bridgman, 1633 to George Starkey, d. 1679), to her son John Starkey (d. 1691), and to his daughter Elizabeth (mar. 1690 to Richard Sanders, d. 1723).

The word papa is erased, but not St Thomas of Canterbury's name.

In the Litany the list of Apostles is ended with SS. Marcialis, and Timotheus: Martyrs, Alban, Oswald, Eadmund: Confessors, Paulinus (Italy), John (Beverley), Wilfrid (York), William (York), Cuthbert, Swithun, Sampson, Eadmund: Virgins, Pelagia... Austroberta, Hilda (Whitby), Euerildis (York), Etheldrida. The suffrage, "Ut regi nostro et principibus nostris," occurs.

This Litany is clearly of York complexion.

Not so the Kalendar. If anything, it points to London.

The decorative work, not large in amount, is of the most admirable English xvth century kind.

1. f. 7. Beatus vir. Initial: red ground with gold flourishing. David on L. under a canopy holds a harp, which is touched by a man in a scarlet gown who kneels before him.

The border is most beautiful: it contains three or four birds of uncertain species.

There are large initials of gold and foliage, and partial borders to Dominus illuminatio, Dixi custodiam, Dixit insipiens, Saluum, Exultate, Laudate, Dixit Dominus.

A second class of smaller initials with shaded colours—orange, blue, and green—is remarkable. Among the Psalms which have these are Quid gloriaris (li) and Exaudi Deus (ci).

30. MEDICI PSALTER.

Purchased from B. Quaritch, Jan. 1894.

Psalter	. . . . .	f. 2
Hymns (a)	. . . . .	162
(b)	. . . . .	182

As to the artist and the original owner the following notices from Mr Quaritch's catalogue may be given:

It would seem that the writing and the minor pieces of decoration, as well as that of the first page, were done by the hand of Sinibaldi the Florentine (of whom Mr Bradley has given so interesting an account), while the second page must surely have been painted by Attavante. The vellum of the first two pages was stained a pale or yellowish green before the illumination began. The title, in eight lines of capital letters, is written in gold on a blue ground with a delicate border of gold branches and small red flowers. The Medici arms within wreaths are painted above and below the title; in the lower instance the shield is supported by two beautiful naked boys. These arms consist of nine red besants on a gold field, arranged thus: 1, 2, 3, 2, 1. On the opposite page, the first seven lines of the Psalter are written in gold on a blue ground. In the central compartment above it is an exquisite picture of David kneeling in the front of a green and hilly landscape. His crown lies before him on the turf, the apparition of the Almighty is seen in the sky above a grove of trees, swans are swimming on the water between the trees and the bank where the king is kneeling. The face and form of David are of a delicacy and beauty which could not be surpassed. In the encircling border there are seven compartments with miniatures; all the rest of the space is filled up with vase figures accompanied by arabesques, jewels, and bambini. Here again the Medici escutcheon as before is twice inserted. Between them is a picture of the Last Judgment in a rounded frame little more than an inch in diameter, yet containing over twenty figures without any crowding or lack of grace in the composition. The initials of the Psalms and Hymns throughout are formed as though from boughs or trunks of trees, in gold, with red flames bursting from them. This, as Mr Bradley has shown, is a device which was used by Pietro de Medici, the eldest son of Lorenzo the Magnificent.

The volume contains the book-plate of Phillip Carteret Webb (ob. 1770). It belonged in 1797 to Michael Wodhull (f. 209) and afterwards to C. W. Loscombe (ob. 1854) and Sir William Tite (ob. 1874), successively.

Binding: blue morocco with arms (a fox or squirrel passant, in chief a French regal crown between two mullets), (?) arms of Nicolas Fouquet surintendant des finances, born 1615, died 1680.

The Hymnal (f. 162) begins with

Dominicis diebus ad nocturnum hymnus
Primo dierum omnium.

Hymns for the days of the week (3 each).

Epiphany. Nuntium nobis.

Natalis B. V. M. Agatha. Benedict. Passion. Ascension. St Paul. Natales Confessorum.

p. 182. In aduentu Domini Dominica prima ad uesperas. Conditor alme. Christmas, Epiphany, Lent to Corpus Christi, Conversion of St Paul, Chair of St Peter, St John Baptist, Peter and Paul, Magdalene, Peter's Chains, Assumption, Michaelmas, All Saints, Common of Saints, Dedication, Magdalene, (Iesu redemptor omnium and Devota mente celebrem).

f. 1 b is painted a pale green. In the centre is a blue panel in a gold frame surrounded by flaming branches. At top and bottom the Medici arms supported by genii: jewelled pendants and festoons of red jewels. On the blue panel in gold capitals is:

Incipit liber psalmodum vel soliloquiorum David prophete de Christo et hymnorum.

f. 2. On a ground of the same colour as the opposite page is a gold frame enclosing the text and picture: the frame is broad on R., narrower on L., and covered with lovely arabesques, genii, jewels and flowers, and contains eight medallions.

Top. C. The Annunciation. The angel kneels on L., the Virgin seated on R. Rays from above toward her.

L. Half-length prophet with scroll: FEMINA CIRCUMDABIT VIRVM.

R. " " " " B(I)<sup>(P)</sup>EATZA TVA SVM.

Bottom. C. The Last Judgment. Above Christ seated with raised hand: on L. the Virgin and three Apostles (Peter with key) seated: on R. John Baptist, Paul with sword, and the other Apostles seated. Below. In centre Michael with armour and sword: on R., devils and men in flames: on L. a kneeling group, a Pope, a black monk, women and men.

R. Half-length prophet with damaged scroll: ECCE CV̄ NVBIBVS.

A half-page picture of exquisite finish. David nimbed kneels facing R. holding a triangular psalter in his hand. His crown on a 'cap of maintenance' lies on the ground. On R. is a river with swans and ducks: trees on R. and L., and a landscape with houses and castle behind. In the sky on R. is the Father holding the crucifix, above whose head is the Dove.

The text is in gold on a blue ground with line-fillings, etc., of flaming branches.

The nocturns are marked with a partial border of arabesques.

This is the first volume of a Breviary, of which the second is now in the Public Library at Verdun (no. 107). The identity of the person for whom the book was executed, as also the purport of its heraldic decorations, is amply established by the following extract from the printed description accompanying the volume, which is evidently the work of a practised hand:

“La question de l'origine et de la destination première de ce livre est plus complexe, mais de nombreux indices interprétés judicieusement permettent de la résoudre avec assez de certitude. Dès la cinquième page, on rencontre les armoiries de la maison de Tocý: ce sont celles de Jeanne DE TOCY, épouse de Thibaud, II<sup>e</sup> de ce nom, Comte DE BAR. Ces armoiries (de guenles à 3 pals de vair; au chef d'or, chargé de 4 merlettes de guenles) non seulement se répètent nombre de fois dans le cours du volume, mais encore les pièces isolées (le pal de vair et la merlette) en sont constamment employées comme motifs d'ornement des cadres de certaines pages et des garnitures des bouts des lignes. Aux pages plus richement décorées, ces armoiries alternent avec celles de la maison de Bar (d'azur semé de croissettes au picd fiché d'or, à deux bars adossés du même, brochant sur le tout), mais brisées d'un lambel de guenles à 5 pendants. Cette brisure indiquant un cadet de la famille, les armoiries ne sauraient s'appliquer au mari de Jeanne de Tocý, qui était d'ailleurs veuve depuis environ 1290 (par conséquent antérieurement à l'exécution de ce livre), ni à leur fils aîné, Henri III, Comte de Bar. Mais celui-ci eut six frères, parmi lesquels Thibaud, évêque de Liège en 1302, qui fut tué dans une sédition à Rome en 1312, et Renaud, d'abord princier de l'église de Metz, puis évêque de ce diocèse à partir de 1302. Le présent Bréviaire ayant été fait à l'usage de l'église de Verdun n'a évidemment été exécuté ni pour l'un de ces deux prélats, ni pour la comtesse de Bar, leur mère. Toutefois, comme les armoiries personnelles de celle-ci dominent partout, il est clair que ce livre de grand luxe a été fait à ses frais, pour une destination spéciale, et sans doute avec la participation de l'un de ses fils, qui nous paraît être Renaud. Il fut sûrement commencé avant 1302, date de l'élévation de celui-ci (et aussi bien de son frère Thibaud) au siège épiscopal, attendu que ce n'est qu'au verso du feuillet 226 que nous rencontrons pour la première fois les armes de Bar brisées d'un lambel avec une crosse d'évêque posée dessus dans le sens d'une bande. Or les 450 pages qui précèdent, et où les mêmes armoiries, mais sans la crosse, figurent une quarantaine de fois, représentent un travail considérable, qui dut exiger pas mal de temps. Comme, d'autre part, ces armoiries avec la crosse se trouvent partout dans le reste de l'ouvrage, il faut en conclure qu'il n'a été achevé qu'après 1302.

Reste à savoir pour qui il a été exécuté. Il y a à remarquer à cet égard ce fait exceptionnel que dans le bas d'une page richement décorée (fol. 31 r<sup>o</sup>) figure une abbesse bénédictine, avec sa crosse, à genoux et les mains jointes, et, lui faisant face, un prélat mitré, mais sans la crosse, dans une attitude semblable. Nous ne saurions y voir un simple motif de décoration, qu'on trouverait alors répété ailleurs, comme tant d'autres, sous d'autres aspects, ce qui n'est pas. Il nous semble que cette figure y a été mise intentionnellement et qu'elle a une signification, sans prétendre offrir un portrait, ce qui ne se rencontre pas dans les manuscrits de cette époque. Or il se trouve précisément que MARGUERITE DE BAR, l'une des filles de Jeanne de Tocy, Comtesse de Bar, était ABBESSE DE L'ABBAYE BÉNÉDICTINE DE SAINT-MAUR DE VERDUN, de 1291 à 1304. Cette attribution convient à merveille, et sous tous les rapports, à notre manuscrit, qui aurait été offert par la comtesse de Bar à sa fille après son élévation à la dignité d'abbesse, de concert avec le frère de celle-ci, Renaud de Bar, alors princier de l'église de Metz, puis évêque. C'est pour-quoi nous n'y voyons pas, à côté des armoiries de Jeanne de Tocv, celles de son fils aîné, Henri III, comte de Bar, le chef de sa maison alors, et qui vécut jusqu'en 1301, mais seulement celles de Renaud de Bar, le cinquième des fils, d'abord sans la crosse, puis avec cet insigne de l'autorité épiscopale.

La Comtesse de Bar pouvait se permettre le luxe d'offrir à sa fille un livre de l'importance de celui-ci. Elle était l'héritière de la branche aînée d'une maison puissante dans l'Auxerrois, le Nivernais et le Bourbonnais, qui possédait non seulement la seigneurie de Tocv et autres fiefs, mais encore le pays de Puisaye, dans le ci-devant Gâtinais orléanais, dont Saint-Fargeau était la capitale, et qui est compris aujourd'hui dans le département de l'Yonne.

Jeanne était fille unique de Jean de Tocv et d'Emme de Laval, veuve en premières noces du comte Robert d'Alençon et en secondes noces de Mathieu de Montmorency, connétable de France. Son cousin germain, Othon de Tocv, fut amiral de France (mort en 1297). Une autre branche de cette maison eut pour chef Nargeaud de Tocv, qui suivit la fortune de Pierre de Courtenay, empereur de Constantinople. Son fils Philippe devint Régent de cet empire, après la chute duquel il se retira dans le royaume de Naples, où le roi Charles I<sup>er</sup> d'Anjou lui donna la charge de grand amiral de Sicile. Le fils aîné de celui-ci, Nargeaud de Tocv, également grand amiral de Sicile, épousa une fille de Bohémond VI, prince d'Antioche, et leur fils Philipppe, dernier de sa branche, mort en 1300, était marié avec Léonore, troisième fille de Charles II d'Anjou, roi de Sicile.

D'autre part, la maison souveraine de Bar était plus importante encore. Son fondateur fut Louis, comte de Montbelliard, de Mouson et de Ferrette, vivant en 1065, qui épousa Sophie, comtesse de Bar, deuxième fille de Frédéric II, duc de la haute Lorraine, et de Mathilde de Souabe. Son successeur, Thierry I<sup>er</sup>, comte de Montbelliard, de Bar, de Mouson, de Ferrette et de Verdun, eut pour femme Ermentrude de Bourgogne. Leur fils, Renaud I<sup>er</sup>, comte de Bar, de Mouson, de Brié et de Verdun, épousa Gisle de Vaudemont, fille de Gérard d'Alsace, comte de Vaudemont, et d'Helvide de Dasbourg. La génération suivante est représentée par Renaud II, comte de Bar, époux d'Agnès de Champagne, dont le fils aîné, Thibaud I<sup>er</sup>, comte de Bar et de Luxembourg, se maria deux fois: 1<sup>o</sup> avec Laurette de Los, de laquelle il n'eut qu'une fille, Agnès de Bar, qui épousa Ferry, duc de Lorraine, fils de Ferry et de Ludomile de Pologne; 2<sup>o</sup> avec Isabeau de Bar-sur-Seine. De cette seconde union vinrent: Henri, comte de Bar, et une fille mariée avec Hugues de Châtillon, comte de Saint-Paul.

Henri II, comte de Bar, guerrier illustre, tué en Terre-Sainte en 1239, avait pour femme Philippe de Dreux, fille de Robert II, comte de Dreux, et d'Yolande de Coucy. Quatre enfants issurent de ce mariage; 1<sup>o</sup> Thibaud II, qui suit; 2<sup>o</sup> Henri; 3<sup>o</sup> Marguerite, mariée avec Henri, comte de Luxembourg; 4<sup>o</sup> Sibille, mariée: 1<sup>o</sup> avec Henri de Salm; 2<sup>o</sup> avec Louis de Los, comte de Chiny, fils d'Arnoul de Los et de Jeanne de Chiny.

Thibaud II, comte de Bar, n'eut pas d'enfants de sa première femme, Jeanne de Flandres, fille de Guillaume II, seigneur de Dampierre, et de Marguerite, comtesse de Flandres. En revanche, de son second mariage, avec Jeanne de Tocy, il eut sept fils et cinq filles.

L'aîné des fils, Henri III, comte de Bar, épousa Éléonore, fille d'Édouard I<sup>er</sup>, roi d'Angleterre. Le sixième, Érard de Bar, eut pour femme Isabeau de Lorraine, fille du duc Thibaud II. Le septième, Pierre de Bar, époux de Jeanne de Vienne, fut le père de Hugues, évêque de Verdun en 1352, auquel M. Michelant a attribué la destination première de ce manuscrit. Parmi les filles, Philippe de Bar épousa Othon IV, comte de Bourgogne; Alix de Bar devint la femme de Mathieu de Lorraine, et Marie de Bar celle de Gobert d'Aspremont.

Cet aperçu généalogique est nécessaire pour l'interprétation des nombreux blasons qui garnissent les initiales ornées du présent volume, et par lesquels on voulut rappeler toutes les grandes alliances de la maison de Bar. Il faut ajouter à cet égard que Philippe de Dreux, la mère de Thibaud II, comte de Bar, avait pour bisaïeul Louis VI, roi de France, et pour bisaïeule Adélaïde de Maurienne-Savoie, fille d'Humbert II, comte de Maurienne et de Savoie. C'est pourquoi parmi les armoiries dont nous venons de parler on trouve celles de FRANCE (d'azur semé de fleurs de lis d'or) répétées onze fois (fol. 105 v<sup>o</sup>, etc.) et celles de la SAVOIE (de gueules à la croix d'argent) répétées vingt-sept fois (fol. 97, etc.). Les armes d'ANGLETERRE (de gueules à trois léopards d'or), celles de la femme du comte de Bar, le chef de sa maison au moment de l'exécution de ce volume, sont représentées vingt-trois fois (fol. 99, etc.). Les autres armoiries rappellent les alliances suivantes :

Comtes de MONTBÉLIARD (de gueules semé de croix recroisettées au pied fiché d'or; à deux saumons adossés du même, brochants sur le tout), répétées quatre fois (fol. 102, etc.); — Comtes de CHAMPAGNE (d'azur à la bande d'argent, accompagnée de deux cotices potencées et contrepotencées d'or), répétées six fois (fol. 193, etc.); — Ducs de LORRAINE (d'or à la bande de gueules, chargée de trois alérions d'argent), répétées sept fois (fol. 217 v<sup>o</sup>, etc.); — de CHATILLON-SAINT-PAUL (de gueules à trois pals de vair; au chef d'or), répétées quatre fois (fol. 128, etc.); — de DREUX (échiqueté d'or et d'azur; à la bordure de gueules) (fol. 106); les mêmes, avec un franc-quartier d'argent (fol. 226); — de COUCY (fascé de vair et de gueules, de 6 pièces), répétées dix-sept fois (fol. 134 v<sup>o</sup>, etc.); — de CHINY (de gueules au lion d'argent) (fol. 171); — de JOINVILLE (d'azur à 3 broies d'or; au chef d'argent, chargé d'un lion issant de gueules), répétées deux fois (fol. 180, etc.); — de VIENNE (de gueules à l'aigle d'or), répétées trois fois (fol. 115, etc.); — de BRIENNE (d'azur semé de billettes d'or; au lion du même, brochant) (fol. 111); les mêmes, chargées d'une cotice de gueules (fol. 98 et 117). On trouve encore : de BAR plein (fol. 141 v<sup>o</sup>); — les mêmes armoiries avec brisures de cadets: bande de gueules (fol. 229); bordure de gueules (fol. 318). Puis: Parti de SAVOIE et de BAR (fol. 191), et Parti de BAR et de SAVOIE (fol. 220). Enfin, vient une série de blasons dont nous ne voyons pas d'application directe, et qui, en partie, peuvent n'être que de fantaisie, comme motifs de décoration. En voici la description: Échiqueté d'azur et d'or (fol. 94); — de gueules à 3 chevrons d'or (fol. 95); — de gueules à 2 bandes de vair (fol. 131); — de gueules à 3 pals de vair (fol. 141); — écartelé de gueules et d'argent (fol. 148); — d'or au lion d'azur (fol. 105); — de gueules au lion d'or, répétées six fois (fol. 114); — de gueules au lion d'or, la queue en sautoir (fol. 225); — d'azur au lion d'or, répétées six fois (fol. 174, etc.); — de gueules à la croix d'or (fol. 117 v°); — d'or à la croix de gueules (fol. 125); — d'argent à la croix de gueules (fol. 159 v°, etc.), répétées trois fois; — d'azur à l'aigle d'or (fol. 119 v°); d'or à l'aigle de sable (fol. 119 v°); — de gueules à l'aigle d'argent (fol. 333); — d'or au léopard de gueules (fol. 160 v°); — d'argent au sautoir de gueules (fol. 169 v°); — de gueules à un écusson d'argent, répétées quatre fois (fol. 173 v°, etc.); — d'azur à la croix d'or, cantonnée de 4 fleurs de lis du même (fol. 193 v°); — d'azur à la croix d'argent, cantonné de 4 fleurs de lis d'or, répétées deux fois (fol. 210, etc.).

Before proceeding to describe the Breviary in detail, one interesting point must be noted. There is in existence another manuscript written and illuminated by the same scribe and artist. This is a Pontifical in the possession of Thomas Brooke, Esq, F.S.A. It was exhibited to the Society of Antiquaries by its owner, and excellently described by the Rev. E. S. Dewick, M.A., F.S.A. His account of it, enriched with a good many photographic reproductions, will be found in Archæologia, vol. liv. 411—414. An examination of the two books puts it beyond doubt that they are the work of one and the same scribe and artist. But the evidence derived from the style of the writing and ornaments is most strikingly confirmed when we realise that, as Mr Dewick has shown, the Pontifical was written for Reinhold de Bar, Bishop of Metz (1302—1316), who was the brother of Marguerite de Bar, the owner of the Verdun Breviary. We possess, then, in the Pontifical and Breviary, two works of the same consummate artist in illumination.

Who was he? We have no clue to his name: but I see some reason to believe that he was an Englishman. This theory is not likely to be adopted unreservedly, I know: but I would adduce the following considerations, which have influenced me in forming a decision.

- (1) The character of the writing.
- (2) The habit of drawing pictures at the bottom of the pages. This seems to me characteristic of the English art of cents. xiii, xiv. Compare the Smithfield Decretals (Royal MS. 10. E. iv), Queen Mary's Prayer-Book (2 B. vii), and the Carew-Poyntz Horae (Fitzwilliam, 48).

(3) The animal grotesques.

(4) The leaves coloured in pink and white, and blue and white.

(5) The frequent recurrence of the arms of England in the Breviary; this points to a family connexion with England: and we have seen that such a connexion did exist, in the person of Eleanor, daughter of Edward I., who married Henri III. of Bar, eldest brother of Reinhold and Marguerite.

That the Breviary was begun, at least, before the Pontifical is clear from the fact already adduced, that the crosier on the shield of Bar does not appear before f. 226 v<sup>o</sup>.

We will now go through the Kalendar, Litany, Sanctoral, etc., and extract such notices of saints as show the provenance of the volume.

The artistic decorations of the volume are extraordinarily copious. They consist of the Kalendar miniatures, of an extraordinary number of historiated and heraldic initials, and of a series of grotesque and historical scenes drawn on the lower margins of the pages. The grounds of the historiated initials are gold. The delicacy and spirit of the drawing, and the beauty and freshness of the colouring, cannot be surpassed.

About eight initials and four of the pictures in the margins have been cut out.

Kalendar. Two medallions, with gold and coloured grounds on each page.

1. January, two-faced, sitting at table, on which is a sucking-pig (?) in a dish. One faec is drinking, the other eating.

32. ARMAGNAC BREVIARY. I.

From the Library of the Earl of Ashburnham (Appendix no. xli), May 1897. Bought by Lord Ashburnham in 1848.

Vellum,  $8\frac{1}{4} \times 5\frac{1}{2}$ , ff. 336, double columns of 30 lines each. Cent. xv (1420?). Binding: modern red velvet, with gold clasps studded with gems.

On the first page is a coat of arms painted over the border. It is the coat of Jean d'Armagnac, Bishop of Castres (dep<sup>t</sup> Tarn) from 1460 to about 1493. He was the brother of Jacques d'Armagnac, 'Duc de Nemours, le plus grand amateur de manuscrits du temps de Louis XI., et chez lequel étaient passés plusieurs des beaux volumes du Duc de Berri.' So says M. Delisle in a letter to Mr Yates Thompson, April 1897.

The arms are surmounted by a Bishop's hat in brown and gold.

Contents:

1. Proprium de Tempore (1st Sunday in Advent to 24th Sunday f. 1 after Pentecost).
In nomine domini incipit ordo breuiarii secundum usum uel secundum consuetudinem romane curie.
2. Historiæ from August to November . . . . . 307 b
The last rubric is:
Dominica quarta mensis nouembris ponitur liber duodecim prophetarum et legitur de eis usque ad aduentum in feriali officio.
After the Lesson from Malachi (f. 335) are:
Commemoracio de b. petro quando fit de b. paulo.
Commem. de b. paulo quando fit de b. petro.

The ornament of the book consists of: (1) a vast number of borders of 'line and leaf,' or 'ivy-leaf' pattern: no page is without one; (2) of decorative initials, on gold ground always, and filled with ivy-leaf patterns in shaded red and shaded blue for the most part; (3) of historiated initials, of which this volume contains fifteen. All the work is very careful and excellent. The pictures are also good and delicate: not strong.

1. f. 1. First Saturday in Advent. Capitulum: Fratres, scientes. Chequered ground. On L. St Paul in scarlet, with long beard, stands speaking to a group of eight seated people, some of whom are sleeping. ("It is high time to awake out of sleep.")

A bearded man, in scarlet gown with wide sleeves, kneels to him. This is the person for whom the book was done (cf. 32*. 1). According to M. Delisle this may possibly be Jean, Duc de Berri.

8. f. 56. Circumcision. Lect. I.: Festiuitatis hodiernae. Blue ground with gold pattern. On R. the Virgin, in scarlet mantle, holds the Child over a stone altar. A nimbed man, with another behind him, officiates.

The old pagination shows that 111 leaves are wanting between this portion and that just described.

St Saturnin precedes St Andrew. Special emphasis is laid upon St Agnes, both of whose feasts have pictures. Anthony of Padua and Francis are also specially honoured. St Martha has nine lessons. The two SS. Louis, the Archbishop of Toulouse and the King, both have pictures, and so has St Elizabeth of Hungary. The Litany invokes the two SS. Louis and St Elizabeth. Of these saints, Saturninus and Louis of Toulouse point to Toulouse itself, while Martha indicates that part of France, and Anthony and Francis (and Clara) show some interest in Franciscan saints. The special devotion to St Agnes I do not as yet account for.

The Sanctorale is not quite finished: three quarters of a page is left blank at the end, and the Collect for St Katherine is only half written.

In decoration, however, the book is complete, and very beautiful it is. The ivy-leaf borders are as good as any, and the miniatures, which are all small, are of exceedingly delicate execution. They all have decorative back-grounds.

1. f. 1. St Saturninus, a beardless Bishop, in mitre, chasuble, dalmatic, stole and alb, with red apparel, holding a crosier and blessing. He stands between two kneeling figures: on L. a bearded man in a gown with long and wide sleeves (cf. 32. 7); on R. a lady in furred jacket and pink dress, with gold head-dress. The back-ground a scarlet chequer.

2. f. 2. St Andrew, in dark blue: he lies on a saltire cross on flowery grass: his feet are being bound to it by two men. Scarlet ground with gold floriations.

3. f. 23. St Agnes, in blue mantle and pink dress, holding palm and book, stands in flames: a lamb leaps up to her on R. Red and gold ground.

4. f. 34 b. St Agnes (2nd feast). Her father in scarlet gown, and her mother in pink with scarlet hood, kneel facing L., by an empty coffin. In a cloud above are four half-length virgins in gold robes: one (Agnes) holds a lamb, another a palm. Blue and gold ground.

5. f. 36. The Purification. Simeon, with mitre and nimbus, on L. of altar, takes the nude Child from the Virgin, who is attended by a nimbed woman with basket of doves. Blue and gold ground.

6. f. 52 b. The Annunciation. The angel kneels on L. with scroll (Aue—plena), the Virgin stands. Red and gold ground.

7. f. 60. St George, bare-headed, in white surcoat with red cross, mounted on a grey horse, thrusts at winged dragon with his spear. A rock on L. The princess, in blue, on R. Red and gold ground.

8. f. 69. St John, nude, standing in a cask (the caldron of oil), holding cup, with serpent and palm, in his L. hand, blessing with R. Rock on L. Blue and gold ground.

9. f. 92. St John Baptist, in full pink mantle, holding a lamb with red-cross flag, and blessing. Blue and gold ground.

10. f. 101. St Peter, with key and book. St Paul, with sword, blessing. Red and gold ground.

11. f. 120. St Mary Magdalene, in pink with white head-dress, kneels, facing R., with outstretched hands. Christ, on R., in blue mantle, with resurrection cross, and raised hand. A tree behind. Red and gold ground.

12. f. 137 b. (In festo S. Marie de nue.) Pope Liberius, in scarlet cope over white robe, and train, lies on a pink bed with a white pillow. In a pink cloud in air, the Virgin and Child, half-length. Blue and gold ground, with fleurs-de-lys.

13. f. 158 b. (Assumption.) The Virgin, crowned, in pink mantle, seated, bows toward Christ, seated on R., in blue mantle; He holds an orb, and blesses. Red and gold ground.

14. f. 168 b. St Louis of Toulouse, in mitre, blue cope with gold fleurs-de-lys over Franciscan habit. He holds a crosier and a crown, and is beardless. Red and gold ground.

15. f. 172. St Louis, King. He wears a crown, a chasuble-like mantle (blue with gold fleurs-de-lys, and lined with ermine) over a scarlet tunicle (?) over a pink robe, and holds two sceptres, one (in R. hand) with a hand on the top. He is beardless. Red and gold ground.

16. f. 180. St Anne, in pink with white head-dress, lies in a white bed with scarlet coverlet. Beyond, a nimbéd nurse holds the infant Virgin. Blue and gold ground.

17. f. 199. St Michael, in scarlet mantle over pink robe, thrusts a white cross-staff into the mouth of a dark-coloured devil lying on the ground. Blue and gold ground.

18. f. 205. St Francis, in dark grey habit, kneels with extended hands, facing R. In air is the vision of Christ with scarlet wings (crossed) and wounded hands and feet. Blue and gold ground.

19. f. 218. All-Saints. A group of six standing figures, all bearded and bare-headed, save one in a scarlet mantle, which is drawn over his head. Two have books. The ground seems to be plain gold.

20. f. 232. St Elizabeth, in dark grey with white head-dress, kneels and turns back to R. She takes a pink and gold robe from the hand of an angel on R., who holds a crown. On L. is a scarlet table with open book on it. Blue and gold ground.

22. f. 244. St Katherine, crowned, in blue mantle over scarlet robe, seated facing R., holds palm and sword: a wheel on R. Red and gold ground.

24. f. 261 b. Dominus illuminatio. David, crowned, in pink and scarlet, kneels, facing R., and points to his eye. Christ's head in a blue cloud above. Gold chequer.

25. f. 270 b. Dixi custodiam. Similar. David points to his mouth. He has blue mantle, and open book. Plain gold ground, burnished: David's crown in fluid gold.

26. f. 279. Dixit insipiens. Fool, in pink mantle only, walks to R., brandishing a curved club and tossing up a ball. Gold chequer.

27. f. 287 b. Saluum me fac. David, crowned, nude, kneels, facing L., in green water. Christ appears on L. on gold ground, in blue cloud. Gold, pink, blue chequer.

28. f. 298 b. Exultate. David, crowned, in blue, sits face R., playing on three bells, hung on a "gallows," with two hammers. Gold, blue and pink chequer.

29. f. 309. Cantate. Four priests, in copes, face R., singing. On R. a book on a desk with square base. Gold, pink and blue chequer.

30. f. 320 b. Dixit Dominus. The Father and Son (in blue over scarlet) seated, support between them a white globe divided into three, on which the Dove stands with spread wings touching the mouth of each. Chequer (lozenge-shaped) as before.

31. f. 352 b. Vigils of the Dead. On a stone tomb, sloping down to L., lies a nude corpse, the hands crossed on the stomach. A scroll above: Parce michi nichil enim sunt (dies mei). Above, on L., Christ appears out of a blue cloud, blessing. Chequer as before.

33. BREVIARIUM SECUNDUM USUM ECCLESIAE ROMANAE (GENOESE).

Purchased from B. Quaritch, Dec. 1894.

Vellum,  $5\frac{1}{4} \times 3\frac{7}{8}$ , ff. 521, double columns of 29 lines. Cent. xv (1485-86). Written by Paulus Dominicus of Genoa in the house of Fregosino di Campo-Fregoso.

Binding: purple velvet; some of the nails, and faint traces of the pattern of an overlaid decoration, still remain. The volume is enclosed in a forel of embossed cuir-bouilli, a very fine specimen of Italian workmanship of late xvth or early xvith century. On one side is an 'Italian Trinity' in high relief: on the other, the sacred monogram (IHS) within a rayed circle. On the sides of the lid is O MATER DEI MEMENTO MEI: on the top, IHS. There are loops at the sides of the case for a girdle strap. The case was intended for a larger book than the present.

Marks of ownership, etc. The following colophon occurs on f. 223: Explicit breuiarium secundum consuetudinem romane ecclesie: magna cum diligentia reuisum et fideli studio emendatum: quem scripsit paulus dominicus de domoculta quondam antonii ciuis ianue. Fregosino di Campo-Fregoso was a natural son (legitimated in 1496) of Paolo, Cardinal-Archbishop and Doge of Genoa (d. 1498).

There are no large miniatures in the book, but only a certain number of borders and historiated initials, of fine execution.

Origin and History of the MS.

The Proper of Time (f. 7) is headed :

Incipit misale secundum usum fratrum ordinis b. dei genitricis Marie de monte Carmeli. extractum de approbato usu dominici sepulcri S. ierosolimitane ecclesie. In cuius finibus dictorum fratrum religio sumpsit exordium. Correctum et ordinatum secundum nouum ordinale dicti ordinis.

The Missa V Plagarum (f. 227 b) is headed :

Inc. missa quinque plagarum d. n. I. C. dicenda feria vi<sup>ta</sup>. Et concessit papa Iohannes xii<sup>us</sup> tam dicentibus quam audientibus cc<sup>m</sup> dies indulgencie.

The volume belonged without doubt to the Carmelites of Nantes, and its pictured decorations render it an unique monument of the history of the Dukes of Brittany. The following paragraphs, the first extracted from a description circulated by M. Belin, the other from a paper read by M. Durrieu before the Société nationale des Antiquaires de France (Bulletin de la Soc., 1889), when the volume appeared among the Hamilton MSS. sold in London by the German Government, will serve to give some general idea of the history of the house for which the book was written, and of its importance as a historical record.

(1) "Le couvent des Carmes de Nantes a été fondé en principe par la charte de Thibaud de Rochefort, chevalier, vicomte de Donges, du 3 février 1326 (1327 nouv. style). Mais ce n'est qu'en 1331 que ces religieux obtinrent de l'évêque de Nantes la permission de s'y établir. Ceci se passait sous le règne heureux et glorieux de Jean III, dit le Bon, duc de Bretagne, dont la mort sans postérité, en 1341, fut le signal d'une guerre longue et sanglante pour la conquête du trône, entre les branches Penthievre-Blois et de Montfort. Jean, comte de Montfort, frère consanguin du duc Jean III, mourut en 1346, en pleine lutte contre sa nièce consanguine, Jeanne de Penthievre, et l'époux de celle-ci, Charles de Blois. Ce n'est que la mort de ce dernier à la bataille d'Auray (1364), qui termina cette guerre de succession, au profit de Jean de Montfort (fils de Jean, comte de Montfort, ci-dessus, et de Jeanne de Flandre), à qui le traité de Guérande assura la couronne ducale (1365). Les historiens le désignent tantôt comme Jean V, tantôt comme Jean IV, selon qu'ils considèrent ou non son père comme souverain légitime et réel. Nous l'appellerons Jean IV.

C'est de son règne que date l'achèvement du couvent des Carmes de Nantes, dont il fut un des grands bienfaiteurs, de même que ses successeurs et descendants. C'est par lui aussi que commence la série de tableaux historiques renfermés dans le présent manuscrit et consacrés aux ducs de Bretagne.

Sous ce rapport, le volume dont nous nous occupons constitue un véritable monument, d'autant plus important qu'il est sans doute unique en son genre. Tandis que d'habitude on ne rencontre dans les missels que des peintures religieuses, et bien rarement un portrait même, à plus forte raison des sujets historiques; ici, au contraire, ce sont ces derniers qui ont le pas sur les autres. Et quels sujets! Toute une iconographie des ducs de Bretagne, avec leurs femmes et leurs enfants, pendant une période de plus d'un siècle ! Et, en plus de cela, plusieurs scènes historiques se rapportant aux Carmes de Nantes. Ce qui augmente l'intérêt de ces sujets, en dehors de leur valeur artistique, c'est qu'ils se réfèrent à des personnages qui ont joué un rôle considérable dans l'histoire du royaume de France lui-même. C'est d'abord le duc Jean IV, successivement le gendre de nos deux plus grands ennemis : d'Edouard III, roi d'Angleterre ; puis de Charles le Mauvais, roi de Navarre, et, comme tel, l'adversaire permanent, ouvert ou dissimulé, de la France. Pour le mettre à la raison, il fallut des hommes de guerre tels que Duguesclin et Olivier de Clisson.—C'est ensuite son fils, Jean V, celui-ci gendre de Charles VI et d'Isabeau de Bavière, prince versatile, qui sciemment arriva trop tard avec ses Bretons à la bataille d'Azincourt, et se mêla d'une façon néfaste à la querelle des Armagnacs et des Bourguignons.—Puis, c'est le frère de celui-ci, Arthur, connétable de Richemont, le vainqueur des Anglais à Patay et protecteur de Jeanne d'Arc.—C'est le duc François I<sup>er</sup>, le meurtrier de son frère Gilles de Bretagne.—C'est le pieux duc Pierre II, encore un frère des précédents et souverain d'un haut mérite.—C'est enfin François II, le père d'Anne de Bretagne et l'adversaire irrécyclable du roi Louis XI."

(2) "Il faudrait une longue description pour donner une idée complète de ce très curieux volume. Qu'il suffise de dire que les miniatures qui le décorent sont de diverses mains et de différentes époques; les unes datant du milieu du xv<sup>e</sup> siècle, les autres n'ayant pu être ajoutées qu'entre 1476 et 1487. Aucune de ces images n'a de valeur d'art particulière; la plupart ne sont que des ouvrages de praticiens, quelques-unes même excessivement faibles d'exécution; mais elles méritent toute l'attention par leur caractère hautement historique. On y voit, en prière devant la Vierge et les saints, plusieurs des ducs de Bretagne, ou des princes de leur famille, accompagnés de leurs femmes et de leurs enfants que des cottes d'armes ou des jupes armoriées permettent de reconnaître individuellement. Parmi eux: le duc Jean V, avec sa femme Marie d'Angleterre, puis Jean VI, François I<sup>er</sup>, le connétable Arthur de Richemont; enfin François II, avec sa seconde femme, Marguerite de Foix, et son beau-frère le cardinal de Foix. A vrai dire, les miniatures, surtout les plus anciennes, sont d'une exécution trop sommaire et dans des proportions trop réduites pour présenter des garanties d'exactitude au point de vue de la ressemblance des traits. Mais elles n'en constituent pas moins, par leur réunion, un monument unique et du plus vif intérêt pour l'iconographie de l'histoire de Bretagne."

John, 4th Duke of Brittany, born 1338, suc. 1345, died 1399, is represented twice:

1. On f. 7, with his first wife, Mary of England, youngest daughter of Edward III., who died in 1362 without issue.

Behind him is a warrior with the banner of Brittany, and another with the arms of Montfort on his coat.

2. On f. 15 b, with his third wife, Jeanne de Navarre, married in 1386. After John's death in 1399 she married Henry IV. of England.

Behind John IV. kneel his four sons, issus du dernier mariage:

1. John, afterwards John V.

2. Arthur de Richemont, afterwards Constable of France, and in 1457-8 Arthur III., Duke of Brittany.

3. Gilles de Bretagne, d. unmarried in 1412.

4. Richard, Comte d'Étampes, the father of Duke Francis II.

Behind Jeanne de Navarre kneel her three surviving daughters :

1. Marie, who married in 1396 Jean, Duc d'Alençon, died 1446.

2. Blanche, who married in 1406 Jean, 4th Comte d'Armagnac, died before 1419.

3. Marguerite, who married in 1407 Alain, 9th Vicomte de Rohan, died 1428.

John, 5th Duke of Brittany, suc. 1399, died 1442, is represented four times :

1. On f. 20*b*, with his first wife, Jeanne de France, daughter of Charles VI., married in 1396.

Behind John V. kneel his three sons :

1. Francis, afterwards Francis I., Duke of B.

2. Pierre, afterwards Pierre II., Duke of B.

3. Gilles de Bretagne, assassinated in 1450.

Behind Jeanne de France kneel her two daughters :

1. Isabeau, who married in 1430 Guy XIV., Comte de Laval, died in 1442.

2. Marguerite, died in 1421 without issue.

2. On f. 111, where John V. and his youngest brother Richard, Comte d'Étampes, Maréchal de Bretagne, are represented in prison in Chasteau-ceaux or one of the castles of Olivier, Comte de Penthièvre, who traitorously imprisoned them on the instigation of his father-in-law, Charles VI. of France (1421). The monk is possibly Frère Jean Violet, who attended him in prison. See Dom Lobineau, Histoire Générale de Bretagne, 1707, Vol. I., p. 549.

In an adjoining prison, separated by water and surmounted by the English flag, are a Queen, probably Joan the Queen Dowager of England, died 1437, widow of Henry IV., died 1413, and Arthur de Richemont, who had been taken at Agincourt 1415, and who is stated [Lobineau, Vol. I., p. 532] to have been allowed to see his mother in prison. In 1421 Joan was in Pevensey Castle, under the charge of Sir John Pelham, accused of compassing the death of the King. [Dict. Nat. Biog., Vol. XXIX., p. 395.] Henry V. died in 1422.

3. On f. 121, where John V. after his deliverance from prison is being weighed against gold, he having vowed to give his weight in gold to Our Lady of the Carmelites of Nantes when he got free. The gold was delivered duly by Mauléon and weighed by Eonnet Preseau in the presence of Jean Perion the Treasurer. The Duke weighed 380 marks and 7 oz., v. Dom Lobineau.

4. On f. 130*b*, where the same John V. is distributing precious stones to the Carmelites in fulfilment of the same vow. For a list of the ransom plate v. Maurice, Vol. II., p. 1026.

Arthur, Comte de Richemont, afterwards, 1457-1458, Arthur III., Duke of B., second brother of John V., is represented :

1. On f. 124*b*. He is known by his red lambel with three gold lions, and by his sword and fleurs de lys as Constable of France. He is at Mass.

2. On f. 229*b*, on which are represented on one side a Pope, a Cardinal and other priests, and on the other the Emperor, the King of France and Arthur III., Duke of Brittany, who succeeded his nephew Peter II. in 1457 and died 1458. He is identified by the skirt of his second wife Jeanne d'Albret, which bears the arms of Brittany parties de gueules pleins, who however died in 1444, and thus was never Duchess.

Francis I., Duke of Brittany, born 1414, suc. 1442, died 1450, eldest son of John V., is represented on f. 131*b*, where he figures twice; once on the left as heir, i.e. before 1442, with his first wife Yolande of Anjou, daughter of Duke Louis II., and their son Rouan who died young, and again with his ducal crown on, i.e. after 1442, with his second wife Isabel Stuart, the daughter of James I. of Scotland, married 1441, and their two daughters, Marguerite and Marie still unmarried, i.e. before 1455, in which year they married, the first her cousin Francis, Comte d'Étampes, afterwards Francis II., Duke of Brittany, and the second, Jean II., Vicomte de Rohan.

Pierre II., Duke of Brittany, suc. 1450, died 1457, second son of John V., appears on f. 177 b, before his accession to the dukedom, as is shown by the lambel of a younger son. Opposite to him kneels his wife Françoise d'Amboise, married in 1431, daughter of Louis V. de Thouars d'Amboise. Pierre II. died in 1457 without issue and was succeeded by his uncle Arthur de Richemont, Arthur III., Duke of Brittany, who died in 1458 without issue of any of his three wives.

Arthur III., Duke of Brittany, may possibly be represented on f. 229 b, with his second wife Jeanne d'Albret. But as she died in 1444, thirteen years before he became Duke, this is to say the least doubtful.

Francis II., Duke of Brittany, suc. 1458, died 1488, son of Richard, Comte d'Étampes, the youngest brother of John V., is represented on f. 103 b, the first of two pages added to the volume by a later hand. He is represented kneeling in the left margin with his second wife Marguerite de Foix, married in 1471, died in 1487. Their daughter was the celebrated Anne de Bretagne, born 1476, married first in 1491 to Charles VIII. and secondly in 1499 to Louis XII. (1498—1515). As no notice is taken of her existence, this page is probably prior to 1476, but subsequent to 1471.

On the opposite page is represented Pierre de Foix II., own brother to Marguerite de Foix, born 1449, first a Cordelier monk, then Abbé de S. Melaines de Rennes and Bishop of Vannes, Cardinal in 1476 and died at Naples in 1490. This page would seem to date in the year 1476 before Anne's birth. Marguerite de Bretagne, the first wife of Francis II., had been buried in the Carmelite Church. Francis in his will selected the Carmelite Church for his own burial. To his confessor, however, he expressed a preference for the Cathedral of Nantes, where Marguerite de Foix was buried. His daughter, Queen Anne, buried him in the choir of the Carmelite Church, transporting his second wife's body thither from the Cathedral.

Jean Tournemine on f. 105 is identified by his arms, écartelé d'or et d'azur. From the Dictionnaire de la Noblesse it appears that he was killed at Pontorson in 1427. Behind him kneel his two sons Gille and Jean, and opposite is his wife Jeanne de Saffré (v. Armorial at the end of Le Baud's Hist. de Bretagne, 1638), sable à trois croix recroisetées, etc. Behind Jeanne is their daughter Jacqueline, who married Jean II., Sire de Coëtquen, Chambellan du Duc François II., et Grand Maître de Bretagne. The position of this illumination seems to indicate that the volume in its final state belonged to Jacqueline de Coëtquen, whose arms are reproduced in the border.

On f. 155 b, in the left border, is a Carmelite in prayer before John the Baptist, whose shield contains three swords with the points upwards, the arms of the Family of Le Noan. Probably a member of this family was Prior of the Convent.

The borders are of line and leaf work with foliage of blue and gold, and other colours interspersed: occasionally real flowers occur, as on f. 7, where there are columbines.

The pictures are by at least three artists, none of them of the first class.

In describing them I shall, for convenience sake, repeat a good deal of what has already been set forth by Mr Yates Thompson.

In the Kalendar the sign of the Zodiac is in a medallion on the outer margin: the occupation of each month is represented in an upright oblong picture at the bottom.

1. Jan. A man seated full-face at a spread table on trestles: he holds a tumbler.

21. Nov. Man in curious hood beats oaks for four hogs.

23. Dec. Man kneels and cuts a pig's throat: another stands and disembowels a hanging pig.
24. Sol in capricorni. White goat emerging from a snail-shell.
25. f. 7. Proprium de tempore. 1st Sun. in Advent. Full border with arms of Brittany and columbines. Two pictures at the top, arched.

L. In the centre an altar with chalice and two candles: retable of the crucifixion. Over it under an arch topped with a carved wooden canopy stands the Virgin crowned, holding the nude Child. On R. a window. Arras of red with gold fleurs-de-lys. On L. kneels John IV., Duke of Brittany, beardless, in plate-armour with surcoat of the arms of Brittany. Before him lies his helmet, silver, with gold crown. His hands are joined and from them comes a scroll: Maria mater misericordie tu nos ab hoste protege. Behind him stands St John Baptist in skin garment and blue mantle, and on L. a group of knights, the foremost in a surcoat said to be of the Montfort arms (gu. a lion arg. crowned or): he holds the banner of Brittany. On R. kneels the Duchess Mary of England in heart-shaped head-dress, furred jacket of scarlet and gold, and skirt of the arms of Brittany and England party per pale. Behind her stands St Michael with processional cross.

26. The Carmelite convent at Nantes: a stone building, two sides of a rectangle with a cloistered lower story. A man on a ladder is putting blue tiles on the roof; another climbs a ladder: four more hew stones in the court. At two of the cloister openings are seen the builder with a square, and the superior in white over black, and red cap. In front a Carmelite speaks to a workman. There is a well in the court.

27. Initial. Ad te levavi. Priest in chasuble (blue) kneels at altar holding the Host: a Carmelite kneels on L with candle.

28. f. 15 b. Christmas. Large picture. In the centre an altar with chalice and book, and two candles. Above it the Virgin and Child (as in 25). On L. kneels John IV. bearded in crown and armour with surcoat of his arms. Four sons kneel behind him, similarly dressed with a label over the arms on their surcoats, and bareheaded. John has a blank scroll. Behind him stands St John Baptist with lamb on book, and behind his sons a Bishop in blue cope with crozier (? St Giles). The sons are John (afterwards John V.), Arthur de Richemont, Gilles de Bretagne and Richard, Count of Étampes.

On R. kneels the Duchess (John's 3rd wife) Jeanne de Navarre, with skirt of the arms of Brittany and Évreux. Behind her are three daughters with skirts party per pale of their husbands' arms with those of Brittany. They are Marie (m. John, Duke of Alençon), Blanche (m. Jean IV., Count of Armagnac) and Marguerite (m. Alain IX., Vic<sup>te</sup> de Rohan). Behind the mother stands St John Evangelist with chalice and dragon: behind the daughters St Katherine crowned, with fragment of wheel and palm.

29. Initial. Puer natus. Under a shed the Virgin kneels face R. The Child nude lies in manger. The ox and ass behind it. Joseph on L.

30. f. 20 b. Epiphany. Large picture. Chequered ground. In the centre, altar with chalice, and above it the Virgin and Child (as in 25). On L. kneels John V. beardless, in crown, armour and surcoat, and behind him three sons similarly habited, viz. Francis (Duke Francis I.), Peter (Duke Peter II.) and Gilles de Bretagne. Over them stands St John Baptist with lamb on book, and St Yvo in white cap and white gown.

On R. kneels the Duchess Jeanne de France (in skirt of arms of Brittany and France) and two daughters, Isabel (m. in 1430 Guy XIV., Comte de Laval: the Brittany and Laval arms are on her dress), and Margaret (d. 1421 unmarried). Over them stands Gabriel in blue dalmatic with white fleurs-de-lys holding a processional cross.

Both Duke and Duchess have blank scrolls.

31. Initial. Ecce aduenit. The Virgin and Child on L. One king kneels and offers an open gold box, and others stand with cups.

32. f. 82. Initial. Passio secundum Iohannem. The Agony: three Apostles sleep on L. Christ in blue robe kneels facing R. at a rock with a chalice on it. The Father's head is seen above.

Proper Prefaces. . Miniatures in text (ff. 97 b sqq.).

33. Epiphany. The Baptism: Christ kneels facing L. in a stream with a sharp bend in it. On R. stands John in a skin garment pouring water from a vial upon His head. On L. stands an angel with the seamless coat on his arm.

34. Lent. The Temptation: Christ sits on the ground among small trees, facing R. The devil stands opposite, horned and clawed.

35. Weekdays in Lent. The Instruments of the Passion on a paved floor: blue sky behind: cross with title, three nails, two scourges, and coat upon it: column between reed and sponge and lance: R. a head, a hand, hammer, lantern, pincers, dice, and gold pieces.

37. Ascension. Two groups of six Apostles: Christ's feet seen over mound.
38. Pentecost. Virgin and four Apostles on L. kneel: R. John and five Apostles: the Dove in a hemisphere of cloud and fire.
39. Trinity. The Father and Son throned, with cross and book: the Dove between them. In rayed circle in blue sky.
40. Feasts of Apostles. A group of Apostles: Peter in the centre in tiara with Paul on R. with sword.
41. Nativity of the Virgin. In three compartments: (a) Joachim and Anne embrace under arch, (b) Anne in bed holds the infant Virgin swaddled and crowned, (c) the Annunciation: Virgin at desk, Gabriel on L. with scroll. Ave gracia plena.
42. Canon of the Mass. ff. 103 b, 104 a have two large full-page paintings by an artist whose work only appears here in this volume.

The Crucifixion. Cross with title, and three nails. On L. the Virgin supported by John, and six others, mostly women. On R. a soldier with back turned, in gold armour, an aged man pointing at Christ, a soldier in armour and long pink gown over it, and three other soldiers. Christ's side is pierced. At the foot of the cross are two skulls, and bones. Behind is a landscape and a town with church, which has a tall central spire.

In the border. Duke Francis II. of Brittany in silver armour, surcoat of arms of Brittany, and coronet, kneels at a desk with book: behind him kneels his wife Marguerite in coronet, furred jacket, and skirt of the arms of Brittany and Foix.

43. A lozenge in a square of blue. The Father in a pink cope and train, over a dark blue robe, throned in air, holds an orb with cross, and blesses. He is surrounded by red six-winged seraphs, and below are four blue six-winged cherubs.

In the spandrels are the Evangelistic creatures holding scrolls inscribed with the names of the Evangelists.

44. f. 105. Canon of the Mass (text). Picture, arched at the top. In an apsidal church with single-light windows and blue starred vault: in the centre an altar with blue frontal: above it the Virgin and Child (as in no. 25). The space below the windows is hung with red and gold arras. On either side of the Virgin are (L.) the Church, a female figure in red holding a lance with pennon of the cross and a chalice: and (R.) the Synagogue, a female in yellow, blindfold, holding the tables of the Law, and a broken lance with pennon. In front kneel on L. Jean de Tournemine and two sons all beardless, in armour, with surcoats of their arms (quarterly or and azure), and on R. Jeanne de Saffré in heart-shaped head-dress, and skirt of Tournemine arms party per pale with Saffré. Behind her Jacqueline Coëtquen: her skirt is of Coëtquen party per pale with Tournemine. These three bearings (Tournemine, Tournemine-Saffré, and Coëtquen-Tournemine) recur in the border.

45. Initial. Te igitur. Priest in red chasuble kneels before an altar with a chalice on it, holding the Host, which is stamped with the Crucifixion, Mary and John.

46. f. 109 b. In text. Deus uncerunt gentes. A small chapel with pink roof and two windows in the side. In front of it three men in caps turned up with fur wield picks and hammers. Only one is touching the building. A fourth on a ladder with a pick is about to attack the roof. These men represent Saracens attacking the sanctuary.

f. 110 b is blank.

Quire p, containing the Canon, is of six leaves, and seems to be in a different hand. It alone contains the bearings of Tournemine. I am inclined to think it is not the quire which originally occupied this place, but a later insertion made when the original had worn out. It is certainly of Carmelite use, as is shown by the occurrence of the Psalm Deus uenerunt.

47. f. 111. Easter Mass. Large picture. On the R. are two castles, of which that on L. has four circular towers with peaked roofs. Only three of the towers of the other are seen. They are separated by a narrow stream of water. On that on R. are three flags, one of England and two of St George: the flags of the others are blank. In each are two windows, with external grilles, and at each of these four stands a prisoner with joined hands. Three of them are beardless men, the fourth a crowned woman. A drawbridge leads up to the castle on L., and a young man in a furred gown, who holds the hand of a Carmelite friar, is about to step on to the bridge. On L. of the picture is a landscape with trees, and buildings of wood and plaster, and a Carmelite stands on L. holding a pilgrim staff and facing L.

The prisoners are, on L., "John V. and his youngest brother Richard, Comte d'Étampes, Maréchal de Bretagne, who are represented in prison in Chasteau-ceaux or one of the castles of Olivier, Comte de Penthièvre, who traitorously imprisoned them on the instigation of his father-in-law Charles VI. of France (1421). The Carmelite is possibly Frère Jean Violet, who attended John in prison (Lobineau, Hist. Gén. de Bretagne, i. 559). In the castle on R. (which is evidently meant to be in England) are Joan, Queen-dowager of England, widow of Henry IV., and Arthur de Richemont, who had been taken at Agincourt, and was allowed to see his mother in prison (Lobineau, i. 532). In 1421 Joan was in Pevensey Castle, under the charge of Sir John Pelham, accused of compassing the death of Henry V. (Dict. Nat. Biogr. xxix. 395)." (H. Y. T.) The man who is stepping upon the drawbridge is presumably John V. about to enter the prison.

48. Initial. Resurrexi. Christ with cross and red banner stepping out of a pink tomb: one guard on L.

49. f. 121. Ascension Day. Large picture. Interior of a church with two windows (that on R. traceried, that on L. filled with chequer): the space below hung with arras of blue with gold fleurs-de-lys. In the centre the Virgin and Child (as in no. 25) above an altar on which are four gold vessels of various shapes. On the L. is a large pair of balances with flat square scales: in the L. scale kneels John V. wearing only a surcoat of his arms: in the R. is a heap of gold vessels of many forms. Between the scales stands a man in a red gown, and on L. five other men, some holding the Duke's clothes. A Carmelite adjusts the gold plate in the R. scale. On R. stand six Carmelites: the very small ones stand in front of the rest. This represents John V. paying a vow he had made to our Lady of Carmel during his captivity, namely, that if delivered he would pay the Carmelites of Nantes his weight in gold. He was weighed in presence of Eonnet Preseau and Jean Perion, treasurer, against 380 marks 7 ounces of gold and jewellery. The gold and jewels were given as a pledge only and were subsequently redeemed for lands of the same value. The man between the scales is Eonnet Preseau.

50. Initial. Uiri Galilei. On L. the Virgin and three Apostles, on R. Peter and two Apostles, kneeling: in the centre Christ's feet seen above the Mount.

51. f. 124*b*. Whitsunday. Large picture. Church with traceried window on R. and arched recess on L. In the centre the Virgin and Child (as in 25) over an altar with two candles and book. Before an altar facing R. kneels a priest in blue chasuble holding the Host: on either side is a deacon in a blue dalmatic, kneeling; the one on L. has a candle and holds up the priest's chasuble, the other swings a censer. On R. between two blue curtains on rods kneels Arthur de Richemont in armour, with surcoat of the arms of Brittany and a label of 3 points charged with three lions or; he is girt with a sword of which the scabbard and belt bear the arms of France. This shows that he was Constable of France. Before him is a prie-dieu covered with a cloth of his arms.

On L. are five Carmelites and two boys in the same habit before a wooden lectern with open book.

52. Initial. Spiritus domini. The Virgin seated: four Apostles on L., six on R.: the Dove above.

53. f. 130*b.* Trinity. Large picture. Chequered ground and red arras. On L. the Virgin and Child (as in 25) over an altar with two candles. On the foot pace is a bucket of gold. R. of this stand five boys in the Carmelite habit. Then, on R. a page in blue facing R. holding a casket. Next, John V. in armour and surcoat giving something to a Carmelite who holds a red cap in his hand. Two others stand on R., one wearing a red cap. ### 35. HORAE (POUPINCOURT-LE BEGUE).

Bought from M. Bottini at S. Remo, Dec. 1896.

Vellum,  $5\frac{1}{2} \times 4$ , ff. 177, 15 lines to a page. Cent. xv (1460-70). Binding modern with 'Grolier' tooling; two clasps with garnets set in them.

Lan iii<sup>e</sup>. iii<sup>xx</sup> et onze le xxv<sup>e</sup> jour de Januyer fut ne guillaume doublesseye escuyer seigneur de Lyancour valet tranchant ordinaire du Roy maistre des eaux et forestz du conte de clermont en beauvoisin.

Also a press-mark at foot, E. 9., of cent. xviii.

On f. 24 b is a shield surmounted by a helmet with mantlings and crest of a maiden half-length with green wreath. The arms on the shield are azure a cross engrailed or between four red roses of five petals proper. At present the family of Thumery bear these, with this exception that their cross is quarterly or and argent.

Above are two scrolls lettered in gold: (1) poupincourt, (2) Hangest.

The same arms are on the pall in the picture of the Office of the Dead and also in the border at that place: and again impaled with other arms at the Stabat Mater (no. 25).

The following letter from Mr J. A. Herbert, of the British Museum, throws some light on the provenance. The points still requiring explanation seem to be, (1) the connexion between Hangest and Poupincourt, and (2) the absence of any arms on the male figure in miniature no. 25. If the two figures there represented are Jean de Poupincourt and Catherine Le Begue, it is unusual to find the arms of husband and wife both emblazoned on the wife's dress and nothing on the husband's.

"I think the problem is solved, allowing amply for the laxity in matters heraldic which certainly did exist in the 15th century. The shield azure, a cross engrailed or between 4 roses gules must be Poupaincourt or Popincourt, though I have not seen the roses anywhere in the heraldic books; and the other (gules semé with crosses ancrées or [or moline]) is evidently Le Begue, though the nearest approach to it that I have found is in Morant's collection (Add. 31962, f. 16 b), where argent, 3 crosses ancrées gules within a bordure engrailed azure is assigned to Le Begue of Paris.

This is the genealogy (from Anselme and from François Blanchard, Les Présidens au Mortier du Parlement de Paris, 1647, pp. 105-7).

The book was executed then, it would appear, for Jean de Poupaincourt and his wife Catherine Le Begue about 1450, and descended to their daughter Claude and so to her son Guillaume des Plessis."

The Kalendar has in gold :

Jan.	SS. Genevievc, Mor : abbé.	Sept.	S. Leu. S. Gile.
June.	S. Eloy.	Oct.	S. Denis.
Aug.	S. Loys.	Dec.	S. Eloy.

The Litany is very short and contains no characteristic saints.

The use is of Paris.

The artistic work resembles rather closely that of the Dunois Hours ; but it is less good. It might quite well be a cheaper product of the same establishment which is responsible for that MS. Evidently it was not done to a special order. The arms and the one picture containing a portrait were made when the purchaser was found.

The miniatures are as follows :

37. BIBLE FRANÇAISE (VOL. II.).

Purchased from Rev. F. K. Harford, Nov. 1896.

Vellum, 15 × 11 $\frac{1}{4}$ , ff. 318, double columns of 40 lines. Cent. xiii (1260).

Binding: English of cent. xvi, stamped leather covers boards. Two silver clasps of the same date, part of the lower one being a modern copy of the other.

Mr W. H. James Weale says of the stamps on the binding: "One occurs on a copy of Fabyan's Chronicle (London, 1559) in Hereford Cathedral Library. The other on a copy of J. Heyden's Jerusalem descripta, printed at Frankfort 1563, but certainly bound in England, as side by side with it is a roll-stamp with the Royal arms; fleur-de-lys, and portcullis. The binding of the Bible is interesting, as it proves that the two stamps were in possession of one man."

The MS. seems undoubtedly to be the second volume of Harl.

616<sup>1</sup>. It had been in the possession of the family of Harford of Frenchay, probably since 1685.

The writing is clear and good: head-lines in red and blue with flourishes: numbering of chapters in plain red and blue. Pencilled signatures (old) to quires, and occasionally pencilled guides to the rubricator, not the artist.

The pictures suggest an English hand. They are bold and rather rough, but very good.

1. f. 1. Paraboles. In two tiers. Above: under trefoiled arches. Ground, squares of gold and pink with white dots. Solomon in blue, crowned, sits on a red seat on L. holding a birch rod. Rehoboam in red sits on blue seat on R. with book on knee, and holds up his hand.

2. Arcading above. Ground lozengy of gold, and blue with white fleur-de-lys. The Judgment of Solomon. He sits on L. cross-legged with sceptre. A soldier in mail, in pink surcoat, raises his sword and holds a nude child up by the arm. The mother kneels, the other women stand on R.

The frames of the pictures and the border are pink and blue with delicate patterns in white and gold. On the border below are a dog and rabbit, a bird (hawk) on a tree, and a hare.

Initial with dragon.

3. f. 14. Ecclesiastes. Blue diapered ground: arcading above. Solomon sits on L. and speaks. On R. a beardless man in linen drawers, otherwise nude, sits on a pink garment on the ground, hand to face. Between them is a human head beardless on the ground.

On the lower margin is a rude sketch of a shield, erased or unfinished, with a bend sinister.

III. In another hand a poem in 18 stanzas of 6 lines. (336.) On 336 b in a Roman hand :

Scriptor qui scripsit cum christo uiuere possit.

For the poem see below.

The ornament and pictures are good late French work of very careful execution, but not wholly pleasing from their dead gold and rather wooden drawing. They are as follow :

1. f. 1. Three-quarter page and border. The border at top is a gold cornice: at the sides, panels of gold, initials PR in red, and thistles on blue ground, alternate: at bottom, a gold plinth and shield with angels as supporters.

The picture: in a paved loggia with marble columns and arches. Christ facing R. in centre: behind Him the Apostles (Peter and John prominent) on R., and outside a crowd of Jews sitting and standing, in turbans and peaked head-dresses, to whom Christ speaks. On a capital of a column are the letters AFEMEME.

2. f. 4 b. In text (and so always until otherwise noted). In a landscape, the Apostles in front on L.: a crowd further off. On R. Christ stands and speaks to the Apostles: He prophesies His passion (c. 2).

3. f. 8. The Transfiguration. In front the three Apostles kneel with their backs turned: on a mound in centre Christ, rayed, stands in a white robe (c. 3).

4. f. 11 b. Christ in purple on L. with raised hand: beyond Peter, Apostles, and crowd. On R. a youth (the epileptic boy) kneels, and his father stands behind him, supplicating (c. 4).

5. f. 13 b. Christ in centre between two groups of Apostles in landscape (the Apostles ask which is the greatest, c. 5).

6. f. 20 b. In a paved loggia Christ stands on L. with a white lamb on His shoulder. A crowd of Jews stand aloof on R. (The Parable of the Lost Sheep, c. 7.)

7. f. 25. A building with open ends: in the centre a pulpit in which is a man in black with white tippet and black cap preaching to a crowd of seated men. (On forgiveness, c. 8.)

8. f. 28. On R. a throne draped with blue: on it a bishop with cope, mitre and cross-staff: a number of men and women kneel on L. Two (one in the distance) have shirts of network, 'cilicia.' In one the Father half-length in glory with orb. (The Parable of the Two Servants, c. 9.)

9. f. 32. Christ followed by Apostles walks to L. A crowd follows them between hills. (On leaving one's parents, c. 10.)

10. f. 34. In a landscape. On L. a young man (the rich man) finely dressed kneels to Christ, who stands in front of the Apostles (c. 11).

15. f. 47 b. In front on stones among flames lies Dives, nude, pointing to his mouth; two devils look at him. Above on clouds on a blue throne, Abraham, bearded, in a cap, holds the soul of Lazarus, a nude child: on either side are pink angels (c. 16).

16. f. 52. In a paved hall with marble walls. Lazarus in white stands in a grave on the floor. Peter kneeling helps to release him. Mary and Martha kneel behind, and beyond them is a group of Jews, some holding their sleeves to their noses. On L. stands Christ: the Apostles beyond. The volume was formerly in the Didot collection. See M. Labitte's Catalogue, pp. 89—93. It was bought in at the Didot sale in 1879 for frs. 13100.

On each of the pictured leaves, four in number, on the back generally, near the bottom, is written, in a hand of the xvth century, the name 'Jacques.'

The owner of the name and of the book was very probably Jacques d'Armagnac, Duc de Nemours, brother of the Cardinal Jean d'Armagnac to whom belonged the Breviary described above (nos. 32, 32*).

One of many interesting points about this volume is that another part of the same book is now in the British Museum, Additional MS. No. 28162. This part of the MS. was purchased of Mr Attenborough in 1869. It is more copiously illustrated than the portion before us, but the greater part of the pictures are by the less good artist of the two who have been employed on the book. On each of the illuminated pages the same signature 'Jacques' occurs.

The Museum portion contains only the treatise 'La somme le Roy,' written in 1279 by Frère Laurent, confessor to Philippe le Hardi. This MS. has the name of 'P. Ponin, presbytere' in a hand of cent. xvii; and more recently belonged to Comte Auguste Bastard.

It consists of 146 leaves in double columns of 28 lines: and has at the beginning 10 full-page paintings representing the following subjects:

1. The giving of the Law, the Golden Calf, and Moses breaking the Tables.
2. The descent of the Holy Ghost.
3. The worship of the Beast.
4. Prudence, Temperance, Fortitude, and Justice.
5. Humility, Pride, the Penitent, the Hypocrite.
6. Love, Hatred, Jonathan and David, Saul and David.
7. Equity, Felonnie, Noah's ark, Moses and the Jews<sup>1</sup>.
8. Prowess, Idleness, David and Goliath, Industry.
9. Mercy, Avarice, Abraham and the Angels, the widow and her oil.
10. Sobriety, Gluttony, Dives and Lazarus.

The portion of the volume now to be described contains four full-page pictures, three of which are in the very highest style of French art. It is difficult to imagine anything more absolutely finished and perfect in their kind than these three pages. Besides these paintings, on which it is useless to spend more words, the initials and writing of the first three tracts are of quite first-class execution. Those of the fourth tract (f. 53 sqq.) are poor in comparison.

I proceed to describe the four paintings.

I. f. 1. The composition illustrates the ideal state of the "Sainte Abbaye." The accompanying diagram will serve to indicate the plan of it.

The border of the picture is blue and pink in alternate sections (pink at top, blue at bottom, sides half pink and half blue) with delicate white pattern.

The grounds of the different parts are mainly burnished gold with exquisite minute patterned work.

a. God, with pink cruciform nimbus, and pink mantle lined with white, over blue robe lined with scarlet. He is seated full-face with R. hand raised, and L. supporting orb with tall cross on His lap. His throne has no back: the seat is of marble, the base of scarlet with black open work and white bands. The footstool is green.

On either side a demi-angel, in white, stands in a circular blue tower and holds an incense-boat and swings a censer.

b. The Holy Ghost, as a dove, descends vertically from a cloud. He has a scarlet crossed nimbus, and holds in His beak a label: Spiritus Sanctus.

c. The Paschal Lamb, not nimbed, white, with two horns, holds in his right fore-

d—g. The Evangelistic symbols, in the spandrels of a on a blue chequered ground with red dots.

e. IOHANNES. Eagle.

f. MARCUS. Winged lion.

g. LUCAS. Winged ox.

h. The Virgin, crowned, with blue nimbus, in scarlet mantle over blue robe, seated facing R. with joined hands, on a blue and white seat, on the ends of which stand two lighted candles.

i. St Peter, with pink nimbus, in slate-coloured mantle lined with scarlet over blue robe, holding in R. hand two keys, and in L. a book, seated, face L., on a blue, red and white throne.

k—r. Angels standing in pairs under trefoiled arches and holding scrolls.

k, l. Six-winged seraphs standing on wheels. Scrolls: Sanctus deus, sanctus fortis.

m, n. Angels in white robes with delicate black lines and circles. Scrolls: Deus omnipotens; Sanctus dominus deus sabaoth.

a	u	l	o	p
c	æ		o	s
i	n

but faintly: it seems to represent an alphabet. Above them is the Divine Hand, in a pink sleeve, and with a scarlet nimbus.

u. An abbess kneeling, face L., with a red crozier in her hands: she looks up towards the Lamb. Behind her kneels a nun in lighter coloured habit.

v—y. Four small heads at the angles of the border. The two at the top are curly haired, the two below hooded.

II. f. 6 b. This picture represents two scenes: above, a Mass attended by the officers of a nunnery: below, a procession. A diagram will be of assistance in pointing out the figures.

In the upper scene we are looking at a Church, from the south side. It has a scarlet roof, with cresting, and a spire with two gold bells and weathercock on the choir, besides a silver vane at the E. end. The south wall is removed, so that we see what is going on inside. The triforium consists of single trefoiled arches.

Over the transept (which has a fine rose window) are two spires, of which one is surmounted by a silver moon, the other by a gold sun. There is no nave, but a lower porch at the W. end, over which are seen some of the domestic buildings, one of which has a round white chimney.

A. A priest (nimbed and bearded) in chasuble and alb, at altar, with joined hands. The altar is circular, and is blue with red and white bands. It has a white cloth on it, and a red chalice with corporal. Above this is a small half-length figure of Christ bending forward, blessing, and holding a scroll inscribed Ego sum vita.

B. A deacon, in blue dalmatic and alb, holding a fan (flabellum) of striped blue, red and white feathers.

C. A deacon in scarlet dalmatic, alb, maniple, hands crossed on breast.

D. A nun (the Sacristan) pulling two bell-ropes with rings at the ends.

E. The Prioress (?).

F. The Abbess, with book and red crozier.

G, H. Two more nuns, the latter with four keys (the Cellarer?): both have books.

I, K. Two more nuns with books.

L, M, N. Three nuns, whose heads appear at windows.

In the lower scene under a series of trefoiled arches (two pillars only are shown) is a procession, walking to R.

a. The Abbess, with gold book and red crozier.

b-f. Five nuns, two of whom have open books with music, and the words suscipinus deus.

g. Nimbed and bearded priest, in blue cope with gold chaperon and scarlet lining over alb with gold apparel: maniple on L. wrist.

h. Clerk, in pink alb, and maniple, bearing a gold book on a cushion.

i, k. Two nuns, carrying red candlesticks with white candles.

l. A clerk, in white alb, bearing a red processional cross with white stem.

O, P. Small heads at upper angles.

Q. A dog.

R. A rabbit.

III. f. 28. In four compartments, the two upper ones divided by a steeple with two bells in it: the ropes are seen hanging down inside.

The pictures illustrate the "states of good souls," penitence, devotion, and contemplation.

Each compartment is topped by trefoiled arches. The two upper ones have small heads in quatrefoils above these.

A. Penitence. A nun, in grey cloak over black habit, kneels, facing R., to a bearded monk in black cowl over white, who blesses her.

The heads above are those of two females in pink hoods.

B. Devotion. A nun kneels, facing R., with joined hands. Above her head a small angel descends out of a cloud, holding a candlestick with lighted candle.

On the R. is an altar with white cloth, showing a grey marble top; the rest of it scarlet, with bands of white. Upon it are two seated figures, Christ (on R.) crowning the Virgin.

In the quatrefoils are two busts of angels, one holding the sun, the other the moon.

C. Contemplation. The nun kneels, almost prostrate. Beyond her is a tree with vine-like leaves, scarlet and blue; it seems to be growing in a tub of the same colours. Above her a small demi-angel holds, by the top and one arm, a red cross with title.

On R. is an altar (yellowish with bands of scarlet): on it a white cloth and a red chalice. Above, Christ, half-length, stoops out of a cloud. He has red nimbus, and is crowned with thorns: His arms and shoulders are bare, His robe dark grey. Blood flows from His hands and side into the chalice. Scroll: Pro uita populi respice quantum tui.

D. Contemplation. The nun kneels with hands not joined. On the heads of the arches are clouds, and in these the gold sun and silver moon (with face). On the R. is an altar with white cloth and red chalice: the altar coloured as in B. Above it, in clouds, is an "Italian Trinity": the Father, with blue crossed nimbus, in grey mantle and scarlet robe, seated, supporting the Crucifix: the Dove flying down to Christ's head. Blood flows from His feet into the chalice. Scroll: Pater uerbum spiritus sanctus hii tres unum sunt.

IV. f. 52 b. This painting is by another hand; skilful and beautiful as the work is, it is not quite so delicate as in the other three paintings.

The border is of pink and blue with four-petalled flowers: and at the bottom is an inscription (as in the pictures of the British Museum portion of this volume):

DIEUX QUI FAIT LA PATER NOSTRE.

A diagram will help to show the arrangement.

a. Christ, seated full-face on a rocky eminence. Trees (three on either side) with green and scarlet leaves. He has crossed nimbus (scarlet on blue), and His mantle is pink lined with grey fur, and His robe blue. His R. hand is raised in blessing, His L. rests on a tripartite orb with tall white cross. Below His feet is a gap filled by a rock and a tree.

b, c. A group of six nimbed Apostles in two rows, facing R. The R. one in the lower row has a gold book, and is evidently St Peter. St John seems to be the L. one in the same row.

f. A band of brown rock, and two green trees.

g. A group of eight Jews, some bare-headed, one in peaked cap, another in hood, another in close white cap. They are seated on the ground, looking up and at each other, and are engaged in animated discussion.

h, i. Two curly-haired heads in eiquefoils.

k. Mask of a lion or leopard, full-face, in a quatrefoil.

The initials, large and small, which stand at the beginning of tracts or chapters in the three first tracts are beyond praise. Not so those in the last tract, which show a marked falling off.

The verso is blank.

The MS. belonged to the Monastery of S. Justina at Padua and was numbered 106 in the Library there. This we learn from various entries throughout the volume<sup>1</sup>.

On f. 1 is the number 106 (at the top), and below the text is Iste liber est monachorum congregationis S. Justine pro ipso monasterio.

See Justine de padua.

The number 106 occurs also at the end of books iii and iv of the Summa.

The colophon at the end of the Tabula is Ista summa confessorum que uocatur Johannina est monachorum congregationis que uocatur de obseruantia sancte Justine al. nunitatis pro usu fratrum monasterii S. Justine de padua 106.

At the end of the whole volume :

Expl. liber qui dicitur summa confessorum seu Ioannina. Et est Monachorum Congregationis S. Justine de padua ordinis S. Benedicti: ipsi Monasterio S. Justine patanij deputatus ac signatus in inuentario numero 106.

This monastery was one of those whose name Libri used to insert in the MSS. he had "collected" from various sources.

The pictorial decorations of this book are of the to my mind rather indifferent kind usually found in Italian MSS. of this period. They closely resemble those in the Fitzwilliam MS. no. 183, which once belonged to Libri. The main sub-divisions (all the tituli) have a head or bust in the initial. These do not merit a particular description. Besides, there are the following pictures :

1. f. 1. A picture in three tiers :

a. Gold ground. Seven figures. In the centre Christ, beardless, seated full-face with book, blessing; in red mantle over pinkish robe, a blue curtain behind Him. On His R. (spectator's left) sits St Dominic at desk, holding a lily. All the desks are of knee-hole form with wooden canopies over them.

Next to St Dominic is a mitred bishop, and on the extreme L. St Thomas Aquinas (?) with white rays round his nimbus. On the L. of Christ are two mitred bishops, and at the end is St Peter Martyr with wounded head and palm.

b. Ground half-red, half-brown with gold flourished work. Five figures at desk like those in the tier above. They are, taken from L., (1) a tonsured man in blue, facing R.; (2, 3, 4) full-face: 2 is tonsured and has tippet, 3 has red hat and white fur tippet, 4 is tonsured, in red; (5) habited as 3 faces L.

(1) On L. six men, tonsured, in two rows of three, facing R.: one has a peaked hood.

(2) In centre: five men full-face: the second is a Dominican, the others are in pink, blue, scarlet and lilac. Behind them is a green canopy, lined with green hangings.

(3) On R. six men facing L. in two rows: one has a fur tippet.

The initial has a Dominican writing on a scroll. There is a partial border to the page.

2. f. 2 b. Initial to tit. i. A Dominican with book at desk, and two other Dominicans listening.

3. f. 55 b. Initial to Liber ii. (de homicidio). Gold ground. A man in a close brown hood and slate-blue gown kneels on a tonsured man in scarlet, on rocky ground, and plunges a knife into his throat. A tree seen above.

There is a partial border to this page.

4. f. 102. Liber iii. (de qualitate ordinandorum). Initial. A bishop in mitre and red cope over white alb, seated: he holds a book and a black staff with something like a crutch-head. A tonsured man on R. speaks into his ear: the head of another is seen on L.

Partial border.

5. f. 211. Liber iv. (de sponsalibus). Initial. A tall man in olive-green bonnet, white fur tippet and scarlet gown. A youth in yellow, and a maid in blue stand in front of him: the youth puts a white ring on the third finger of the maid's right hand. A man stands on L. and a woman on R. behind the bridegroom and bride respectively.

In the tract which I have numbered 3 several of the initials contain, not busts, but grotesque figures: on f. 246 b is a prisoner with chained legs and hands bound behind him walking with bent back.

6. f. 247 b. Prologue to no. 4 (Confessionale). Initial. An ecclesiastic in scarlet habit, seated, lays a white wand on the back of a kneeling penitent in dark brown: an altar with white cloth is on L.

7. f. 256. Prologue to Tabula. Initial. A Dominican with nimbus stands holding a book.

8, 9. Two later paintings illustrating the Tables of Affinity.

8. f. 287 b. Blue ground, with two large gold stars. At the top is a venerable nimbed and bearded figure, presumably Adam, in whom the tree ends. The tree itself has a central line of nine medallions, and eight lateral branches of four medallions, inscribed with the degrees of consanguinity.

9. f. 288. Green ground with one gold star. Above, a man and woman handsomely dressed, facing each other: each lays a hand on a gold arch under which are two intersecting arches: and these last rest on medallions (22 in all) which represent degrees of affinity.

A good and early example of an Arbor Consanguinitatis illustrated in this way may be seen in a copy of the Decretals at Sidney Sussex College: see p. 123 of the present writer's Catalogue of the MSS. there.

42. WILLIAM OF TYRE. (A.)

Purchased from a member of the Didot family, June 1896.

Vellum, 13 $\frac{3}{8}$  × 9 $\frac{1}{2}$ , ff. 211, double columns of about 50 lines. Cent. xiii (1250-60).

Binding: stamped leather over boards, five bosses on each side (one is replaced).

Formerly in the Didot collection: marked on the fly-leaf (by Paulin Paris?) Man(uscrit) A. It is the earlier of the two Didot MSS. used by Paulin Paris in his Guillaume de Tyr et ses continuateurs, Paris, 1879, 2 volumes.

On the fly-leaf at the beginning is

Lyonet doureille.

The name 'Lyonnet D'oureille' also occurs in a MS. of Lancelot du Lac, etc. formerly in the Didot collection and now in the Bibliothèque Nationale (Delisle, Mélanges de Paléographie, p. 165). The name is there accompanied by the motto "Peu à peu j'atans l'eure."

At the end of the text in a hand of cent. xv is

and on the next fly-leaf a drawing of a man's head, and the lines

Vilior est humana caro quam pellis ouina

written twice.

On the second cover is a parchment label of cent. xv

Godefroy de billon qui fust lung (bis) des preux et Roy de Jerusalem.

The decorative work consists of a miniature to each book, of very good and interesting style. There is little gold: the drawing is excellent.

The conspicuous colours are light blue and orange-scarlet.

The picture to book i. is gone.

1. f. 9. Lib. ii. A number of knights in hoods and gowns and hats, on horseback, riding to R. On L. a city gate with women in it, one of the knights says farewell to one of the women. This is Godfrey of Bouillon and his train setting out.

2. f. 13*b*. Lib. iii. In front, tents. On R. a city: a bearded man in a tower. Knights in mail on L. to whom he speaks. They have a banner, red with white cross.

The siege of Nicaea.

3. f. 18*b*. Lib. iv. Knights in mail met by four bearded clerks in copes in a city gate, on R. One has a censer. Horses' heads on L. Baldwin received by the clergy at Rohez (= Rages).

4. f. 23 b. Lib. v. An assault of knights in mail on a city. Tents in front. A scene of the siege of Antioch.

5. f. 29. Lib. vi. A large battle-scene. A Bishop in mitre and mail is prominent, a Paynim has a round shield with a black dragon. This is one of the battles outside Antioch. The Bishop is most likely Adhemar of Le Puy.

6. f. 34 b. Lib. vii. In front a dead Bishop in mitre and chasuble and tunicle and alb: a crozier, and chalice on his breast. This is Adhemar of Le Puy. Over him stand a crowd of figures, L. a cross-bearer, C. an ecclesiastic in stole and alb with book inscribed dominus uobiscum. On R. one with bucket and asperge.

- (9) Anno Christi • 1371 • de mense augusti propter magnam siccitatem fuit aperta tomba Scti antonini militis que est in uisceribus terre in claustro ecclesie Scte Marie in cortina. et eadem ebdomada sequute sunt pluue in ciuitate et episcopatu placentie. Et ita erat consuetudo dictam tombam aperiri quando ciuitas et episcopatus carebant pluua congregato episcopo et clero et tandiu durabat pluua quamdiu stabat aperta illa tomba.

Apparently, to judge by this inscription, the MS. was at Piacenza at the end of cent. xiv.

The pictures and decorations of the MS. are of a very high order of interest: the colours are extremely fresh and vivid. A certain amount of damage has been sustained by the flaking off of the thick pigments.

An additional point of importance is the survival of a good many directions to the artist in the Venetian dialect. These have existed throughout: they have however been generally erased, and those which remain have survived only by accident.

Ends f. 158. O mortelz quant vous faites voz eures deuant les yeux de cellui iuge qui tout voit.

There are five paintings in the book, of excellent work.

1. f. 1. A view, probably in Paris, showing the interiors of two buildings R. and L. separated by a street leading to a bridge which may be the Pont-au-Change. The building on L. is very probably the old Palais de Justice.

It has a rich doorway with gold tracery at the top, surmounted by the shield of France supported by two gold lions. Within is seen the King beardless in ermined mantle with crown and sceptre, seated on a canopied throne draped with arras of blue, with gold fleurs-de-lys. Before him stand six councillors, three on either side. In a porch on R. are two men with maces, and a white hound runs up the steps. In the street is a horse saddled and bridled.

The building on R. has a gable with a medallion of a figure on horseback, possibly St Martin. Above this medallion is the letter M and on either side of it an N. The interior is draped in red arras with small gold flowers. The translator is seen seated at a desk with open book and hand to face. He wears a red mantle with fur tippet, and a black cap. On the further (L.) side of the desk stands a lady (Philosophy) in white with gold crown and neck-lace and white veil. Her hands rest on the book and desk. In an opening in the hangings behind, on L. is seen a woman in blue, and, further off, two men.

2. f. 31 b. Lib. II. (This and the following pictures are not by the artist of no. 1. They are extremely good, but not so good.) A landscape with rocks, river, buildings, and starry sky: on L. in front, Boethius in blue hat and red gown sits sleeping, hand to face, in a great gilt chair, over him stands Philosophy, a lady in peaked head-dress: a label above her head 'Philosophie.' She holds a short stick, and a scroll 'se iay bien entendu' (which are the opening words of her first speech in this book).

The R. of the picture is occupied by a large wheel of Fortune, a double wheel of wood on a wooden framework. On it are four crowned figures. The one on L. ascending has a scroll 'Je regneray': at top one sits with sceptre, royal mantle and scroll 'Je regne.' On R. one in blue, horizontal, has a scroll 'Je suis sans regne' and at the bottom is one, head downwards, his crown falling off, with scroll 'Jay regne.' On L. Fortune, a lady in blue, barcheaded, stands looking at them: behind her is a scroll.

3. f. 59. Lib. III. A building with courtyard paved in green and black. On L. stands Boece in red over blue, gypciere at girdle, loose gold cap, scroll 'O souverain confort.' Philosophie, in peaked head-dress and blue robe, talks to him.

The R. part of the picture is occupied with the Seven Arts personified as women, in two rows. Behind on L. (1) Rethorique with arms crossed, (2) Gramaire, with pen and book, (3) Astronomie, old, with book, pointing up to the sun and crescent moon (now black). In front on L. (4) Geometrie, kneeling with balances, (5) Arithmetique, kneeling by table with gold counters on it, (6) Logique, kneeling with scroll ergo ergo, (7) Musique kneeling with open book. Three of them have heart-shaped head-dresses.

4. f. 98. Lib. IV. A columned hall with blue vaulting: in front is a gold column with spiral ornament and a gold statuette on the top, of a turbaned man. In the centre sits Boece on an arched throne, in blue cap turned up with gold, ermined red mantle and blue robe. He holds two scrolls (1) Quant sapience: (2) O guierresse de vraye lumiere: being the opening words of the two first sentences in this book. On L. kneels Philosophie as in no. 5. On R. of the column stands a group of eight men, evidently philosophers, all beardless and bareheaded save one who has a staff and may be meant for Diogenes. This is the second best picture in the book.

5. f. 134. Lib. V. A landscape with rocks, estuary of a river, and buildings. Trees on R., a white rabbit among them, and among the rocks a badger (?). In centre on L. kneels Philosophie pointing up, with scroll Je me haste de rendre, being the beginning of her first speech. Boece on R. stands looking up with scroll Or te pri philosophie, words which occur near the beginning of the book.

Above in a half-circle composed of blue, white, and red angels is seen God throned on an arched seat of red and gold, in purple mantle and imperial crown with sceptre and orb: on a yellow background.

There are some marginal notes: a few in Italian. In the text 'ch' is common for 'c'.

The translation seems to be the 'antiqua', as opposed to that in Frater Adam's MS. (no. 47).

The decoration of the book consists of borders and initials. The borders are of a very beautiful kind, the groundwork being usually trees—pomegranates and the like—in grisaille, with gold dots, and some admixture of blue and green and pink: birds and monsters occur among the foliage.

1. f. 1. Border of pinks, etc. At the bottom two nimbed angels hold a wreath, in which, on a blue ground, is a blank space for a shield.

Initial. Aristotle (or the prologizer) bearded, in grey hood and cloak over blue robe, seated with pen and knife at a desk: in an arched recess on R. a pile of books. On L. behind the writer a curtain on a rod.

2. f. 2. Border of pomegranates with dragon, owl, and two other birds.

Initial gold, with white branch-work on red, blue and green.

 Et inanes profecto et uane prorsus fuere operationes mee mihi.

This is a very curious matter. The Preface to which the words are attached gives a summary account of a great many of Adam's predictions. The last that is narrated is his prophecy of Innocent VIII.'s election to the Papacy. Of this he says (f. 77 b, 78):

“When all the College of Cardinals was in conclave to elect a Pope, I said to every one who asked me ‘My Lord of Molfetta will be elected.’ Rumours spread from time to time among the people that one and another had been chosen—not the man of my choice. And now the Feast of St Augustine (Adam was an Augustinian friar) was dawning, and I turned my eyes on him (Augustine) and cried in anguish ‘Ah, St Augustine! am I to be deceived in my hopes on your own feast day? I cannot believe but that you will hear me to-day and help my Lord of Molfetta. I cannot, I say, believe otherwise.’ The day slipped away and evening came on. ‘Augustine,’ I said, ‘I shall really be angry with you if you do not obtain Molfetta's election. I shall be put to shame and, as I say, I shall be annoyed with you.' The same night at midnight I heard that he had been chosen and my bitterness of heart was turned to joy. And I thought to myself 'John Baptist is his name (Innocent's name was John Baptist Cibo), and to-morrow is St John Baptist's day. So John Baptist and Augustine have managed his election between them, overcome by the numberless prayers and importunities of poor brother Adam.'"

Adam, as we see by his subsequent appeal to Innocent (f. 82), thought these exertions constituted a claim on the Pope. But the added line shows that he was disappointed. He adds after the lapse of some time, no doubt:

"And all my trouble has proved absolutely vain and of none effect to me."

The presence of this note (and one or two other marginal additions) seems to me to show that the MS. is Adam's own autograph meant for presentation to Innocent VIII.

Eight Iudicia follow.

(1) Mors Angeli Zacharie . . . . . f. 78*b*

(8) Liberatio Fratris Ade a quartana in fide Jesu Christi —secutum est fidem meam diuinum munus infallibilis santatis.

6. Ad Innocentium papam reductio memorie super gratia ante papatum de quo Fr. Adam prenuntiarum mihi promissam nunc suppliciter impetrandam . . . . . 82
Gloriosissime pastor. Consueuerunt antiquorum uirorum.

Adam had predicted the papacy for Innocent, and now asks him to provide for his old age.

Ends: cunctorum in memoriam hominum notioem, 83; 83*b* is blank.

The author of these last tracts, Adam de Montaldo, who flourished about 1480, is known as the writer of a panegyric of the Doria family, printed by Muratori in his Thesaurus Rerum Italicarum (tom. xxiii); and also of a poem in heroic verse on the Passion, of which a MS. existed or exists at Leipsic. See Fabricius, Bibliotheca Latina s. vv. Adam and Montaldus. In his Iudicia in this MS. he appears as a twaddling old man—a writer of very odd Latin.

The MS. before us is decorated with a number of historiated initials, some borders, and some marginal pictures, in a very fair style, though not of the first class.
