VENEREAL DISEASE CONTROL

1. a. Rescission. Circular 56, General Headquarters, Far East Command, 1948.

b. References.

(1) Army Regulations 15-120, 30 January 1950.

(2) Section VII, Army Regulations 40-210, 25 April 1945.

(3) Army Regulations 600-900, 22 November 1949.

(4) Section III, Army Regulations 615-5, 21 July 1949.

(5) Section IV, Special Regulations 40-10-5, 16 June 1949.

(6) Section II, Training Circular 3, War Department, 1947.

(7) TB MED 230, AFM 160-3, Departments of the Army and the Air Force, 6 January 1949.

2. Objectives. The objectives for the control and management of the venereal diseases among troops include early detection and prompt treatment of those infected, reduction of venereal exposures, the appropriate application of prophylactic procedures, and curtailment of the sources of infection. The policies, methods, and procedures presented in the referenced publications are pertinent to the accomplishment of these objectives, and will be applied to the fullest extent feasible for the control of venereal disease in the Far East Command. All commanders and other responsible officers and noncommissioned officers will be completely familiar with the provisions of these references and will give strict attention to their application.

3. Detection and Treatment. Every effort will be made to detect and treat all cases of venereal disease among troops. Management of the venereal diseases, including post treatment follow up, will be in accordance with the practices prescribed in the pertinent references above.

4. Reduction of Venereal Exposures. Reduction of venereal exposures is a command responsibility and will be given continued attention by all concerned. There will be no punitive measures applied in connection with venereal disease other than as authorized in the pertinent references above. Particular emphasis will be given to the encouragement of moral responsibility and strong discipline in the individual and the development of a high state of morale in the group. In the accomplishment of these purposes, there will be full application of the Character Guidance Program. In addition, there will be continuing education and indoctrination in sex hygiene and the nature and prevention of the venereal diseases.

5. Prophylactic Measures. In accordance with current Army policy, individual prophylactic measures are provided for those who do not respond to the education and guidance afforded them but choose to expose themselves to the risk of venereal infections. For the protection of such individuals, prophylactic materials and facilities will be provided in accordance with current Department of the Army regulations. This includes free issue of individual chemical prophylactic items at unit level and through Army Control Facilities. The procurement of individual mechanical prophylactic items, with unit funds, and issue of these items to personnel on their request is authorized and encouraged. Mechanical prophylactic items will also be offered for sale in all main and branch Army and Air Force exchanges. Careful and detailed explanation and instruction in the proper use of both chemical and mechanical prophylactics will be included in the education program contemplated in paragraph 4.

6. Curtailment of Sources of Infection. a. In an effort to curtail the sources of infection, there will be strict adherence to stated policy concerning the repression of prostitution, including the establishment and enforcement of off-limits regulations when indicated. In addition, the utmost cooperation, assistance, and encouragement will be given to the civil agencies responsible for detection and treatment of the venereal diseases among civilians. As an aid to this program, a contact report will be completed at the time of venereal disease diagnosis. Through the use of these reports and by other applicable means, all available information concerning known and probable civilian sources of infection will be delivered to the local civilian health agency concerned so that such contacts may be located and brought under treatment.

b. Reports from civilian health agencies of alleged contacts among armed service personnel or employees will be investigated, indicated examinations and treatments performed, and a return report of action taken will be made to the reporting agency.

c. Provost marshals are not responsible for contact tracing and will not be furnished copies of the contact report, but should be provided with such information as is necessary for the fulfillment of their responsibilities in in the repression of prostitution, enforcement of off-limits regulations, and other disciplinary measures prescribed in the pertinent references above.

DECLASSIFIED E.O. 12065 SECTION 3-402/NNDG NO. 775 013

7. Venereal Disease Contact Report. a. In Japan, the contact report form (Inclosure 1) will be completed for each case. If the information contained in paragraph 2 or 3 of Inclosure 1 indicates that the contact can be identified and located, the report will be prepared in quadruplicate, each copy bearing the same identifying number. Each reporting unit will number its reports consecutively, beginning with number one. Copies will be distributed as follows:

(1) The original and first copy will be forwarded to the local civilian health agency. If the address of the health center district in which the contact lives is known, copies may be forwarded direct to that agency; otherwise, they will be forwarded to the prefectural health officer of the prefecture concerned. The original contact report will contain a request that it be returned within 30 days to the originating unit, through the responsible regional Civil Affairs Region, with a notation of action taken.

(2) The second copy will be sent to the health officer of the regional Civil Affairs Region concerned. (See Inclosure 2 for designation and location of such regions.)

(3) The third copy will be retained by the originating unit.

b. In the major commands outside Japan, contact report forms will be completed in the necessary number and distributed in a manner to facilitate prompt and effective action, including return to the originating unit of information concerning action taken.

c. If the information contained in the report indicates that the contact cannot be identified or located, a copy will be retained by the originating unit for the collection of information and data which may be of value. These reports may be disposed of when deemed appropriate.

d. Reports pertaining to contacts who are under military jurisdiction should be forwarded to the surgeon of the organization concerned who will be responsible for initiation of the indicated investigations, examinations, and treatments. Familial contacts will be managed in accordance with the pertinent references above.

e. All contact reports will be maintained in medical channels and will be handled with discretion and a proper regard for the nature of the information so provided.
