WikiCite

WIKIMEDIA
FOUNDATION

WikiCite

- WikiCite is a proposal to build a bibliographic database in Wikidata to serve all Wikimedia projects.
- Creates, refines and uses data models for works cited as references across Wikimedia projects (books, articles, data, court cases, patents etc.).
- Citation graph between works, coordinated with OpenCitations and the Initiative for Open Citations.
- Tools (e.g. ShEx), workflows (e.g. Zotero translators) and pilot corpora (e.g. on Zika virus).
- Two meetings organized so far; 94 participants at WikiCite 2017.

Wikimedia Foundation highlights

- AbuseFilter conversation -- The Anti-Harassment Tools team began a structured conversation about the AbuseFilter tool on both Meta and English Wikipedia. This is an important preparation stage for prioritizing work to be done by the team and gathering input from users who write and manage filters.
- Event documentation from Developer Relations -- The Developer Relations team has finished a three week project to document and organize guidelines and resources around Wikimedia Hackathons. The resource is meant to be a guide for anyone who's interested in organizing a hackathon or learning more about how to participate at one, however event organizers working on other types of events should find it useful as well.
- Community Engagement Insights -- Individual graphics are available, but the report is still being finalized. Some data was shared with Wikimedia Foundation staff recently; we will be hosting a complete presentation of the report to communities a few weeks after Wikimania.
- Wikimedia Resource Center -- After processing feedback from community members, we redesigned the space and launched version 2.0. Resources are now filtered by user types, and we enabled contributions from anyone.

Coming up in August

- Wikimania 2017 - August 9 - 13. The 13th annual Wikimania conference will be in Montreal next month. Preconference programming also includes the Hackathon, Learning Days, WikiConference North America, Wikiproject Med Conference, WMCON follow up day, and an edit-a-thon for First Nations on Wikipedia.

A tall, white, cylindrical lighthouse stands on a dark, rocky cliff overlooking the ocean. The sky is filled with large, white, fluffy clouds, with patches of blue visible. The lighthouse has a red-tiled roof and several windows. The ocean is dark blue with white foam from waves crashing against the rocks. The overall scene is dramatic and scenic.

Why We Read Wikipedia

Philipp Singer*, Florian Lemmerich*, Robert West,
Leila Zia, Ellery Wulczyn, Markus Strohmaier, Jure Leskovec

The readers

Every second, 6000 Wikipedia pages are viewed by people --
And we don't know why!

Providing educational content and effectively disseminating it requires understanding the needs and motivations of the people behind these pageviews.

The grand survey

- Duration: 1 week
- Sampling rate: 1 out of 50
- English Wikipedia, mobile and desktop
- On article pages and to those with DNT off
- Participants: 29,372

Information need

Prior knowledge

Prior knowledge

Users who report familiarity with articles and topics read:

- spare-time oriented topics, such as sports, 21st century, TV/movies/novels
- popular articles
- longer articles
- articles that are more central in the link network

Motivation

Motivation: work/school

Those motivated by work or school projects:

- read articles about war & history, mathematics, technology, biology, chemistry, literature & arts
- read topics that are related to academic and professional activities than to leisure
- stay longer on an individual page
- are more likely to use external search engines
- use Wikipedia desktop version

Motivation: bored/rand.

Those who are bored or are randomly exploring Wikipedia:

- read articles about sports, 21st century, TV/movie/novels
- read topics that are more spare-time oriented
- spend only little time on individual articles
- come to Wikipedia more often
- switch topics frequently
- are more likely to use internal navigation

Key takeaway

English Wikipedia is read in a wide variety of use cases -- readers differ in their motivation triggers, depth of information, and prior familiarity

Next steps

- Robustness of observations and prevalence across languages: Arabic, Bengali, Chinese, Dutch, English, German, Hebrew, Hindi, Hungarian, Japanese, Romanian, Russian, Spanish, and Ukrainian (250K+)

Where we are in the process:

- Audit
- Discovery
- Design
- Develop
- Deploy

What is Discovery?

What we did so far:

- Talked to over 40 members of Foundation leadership, staff, contractors, community members, and external audiences
- Conducted a comparative review of sites and materials from other organizations in the same space
- Reviewed existing content on Foundation wiki and select pages on Meta

What we learned:

- You are doing work relevant to the world
- There are many, many channels of communication at Wikimedia
- Key audiences for purpose of wikimediafoundation.org: general public, (potential) donors, press, job seekers, (potential) volunteers, ally and partner organizations (anyone with common cause)
- There is a great need for accessible communication about the work

We examined how you find, organize and distribute information

IRC

gChat

Mailing lists

Facebook

WhatsApp

meta

Talk pages

Email

There are three modes for sharing information.

Documentation

You are really good at this!

Collaboration

Documentation often impedes collaboration
Participation != Collaboration

Communication

Talking about the work will help.

Documentation and collaboration are no
substitute for
communication.

The Wikimedia Foundation website has a job to do

The Wikimedia Foundation, Inc. is a nonprofit charitable organization dedicated to encouraging the growth, development and distribution of free, multilingual, educational content, and to providing the full content of these wiki-based projects to the public free of charge. The Wikimedia Foundation operates some of the largest collaboratively edited reference projects in the world, including Wikipedia, a top-ten internet property. Imagine a world in which every single human being can freely share in the sum of all knowledge. That's our commitment.

The screenshot shows the Creative Commons website homepage. At the top, there is a navigation bar with the Creative Commons logo and links for 'Global Affiliate Network', 'Search the Commons', 'CC Store', and 'Contact'. Below this, there are three main navigation options: 'Share your work', 'Use & remix', and 'What we do', followed by a 'Blog' link. A prominent green button labeled 'Donate Now' is positioned on the right side of the top navigation area. The main content area features a large heading 'State of the Commons 2016' with a sub-heading 'Help us build a vibrant, collaborative global commons'. To the right of this heading is a blue graphic with the Creative Commons logo and the text 'STATE OF THE COMMONS'. Below the heading, there is a paragraph of text: 'We're celebrating our community with this year's State of the Commons report, exploring the wide array of creativity and knowledge made freely available via CC licenses.' A red button labeled 'Discover the State of the Commons' is located below the paragraph. The middle section of the page is a blue banner with three columns of content. The first column is titled 'Share your work' and includes links for 'Choose license', 'Connect with CC', and 'Learn about public domain'. The second column is titled 'Use & remix' and includes links for 'Search', 'Explore CC platforms', and 'Search by topic'. The third column is titled 'Get involved' and includes links for 'Donate or Buy CC stuff', 'Partner with CC', and 'Program areas'. The bottom section of the page is a yellow banner with the heading 'WHAT'S HAPPENING'. Below this heading is a large graphic of a sunburst with rays of varying lengths. To the right of the graphic is a section titled 'Battle For the Net: A Day of Action to Save Net Neutrality' with a sub-heading 'Tell the FCC to protect net neutrality today'. The text below the sub-heading reads: 'Creative Commons and dozens of the world's largest web platforms are joining countless internet users and online communities to take action in support of net neutrality. Net neutrality is the principle that internet service providers should treat all online data the same, and not discriminate or charge ...'. At the bottom of this section, there is a link for 'POLICY / ADVOCACY / COPYRIGHT REFORM'.

Conferences in June and July

- Iberoconf 2017 was held in June in Buenos Aires, Argentina. It brought together affiliates from Latin America, Spain and Italy, to build a shared understanding of the value of the network and how to become stronger together.
- The group also submitted a statement letter with a plea to democratize the movement from a communications perspective, both allowing more inclusion of languages other than English in key communications and exchanges, and also promoting stories about collective impact.
- WikiWomen Camp 2017 was held in Mexico City in July, and it brought together 53 women from different countries in the Wikimedia movement, to focus on the gender gap.
