SWORN DEPOSITION

Deponent : MAKINO, Nobuaki

Having first duly sworn an oath as on attached sheet and in accordance with the procedure followed in my country I hereby depose as follows.

Affidavit

- I, MAKING. Nobuaki, make oath and say as follows:
- 1. I am in my eighty-sixth year. I am Count and holder of the First Class Order of Paulownia and senior grade of the second class Court rank.

The principal posts of my official career were:

After being accredited to Italy and Austria conjointly with Switzerland as Minister, I was appointed Minister of Education in 1906 a Privy Councillor in 1909, Minister of Agriculture and Commerce in 1918 and Minister of Foreign Affairs in 1913. In 1919, I was appointed Delegate to the Paris Peace Conference, representing Japan. I was appointed Minister of the Imperial Household in February, 1921. In March, 1925 when I resigned as Minister of the Imperial Household, I was appointed Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal. In April, the same year, I was created Count in recognition of my services. On December 26, 1935 when I resigned as Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, owing to ill health, I was accorded the honorable treatment due to the Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal. In January, 1936, I was appointed Economic Advisor to the Imperial Family, which post I still hold.

2. The post of Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal (Naidaijin) was set early in the Meiji era for the purpose of investing the late Prince SANJO, Sanetomi with a court office. It had its inception, therefore, in the creation of a court office for the sake of an eminent retiring court noble. The statute governing the organization of the office of Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal stipulated that the Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal take custody of the Privy Seal and the State Seal and -offer joji hohitsu (constant advice) to the Emperor. The statute was in force till the office of the Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal was abolished following the termination of the war. It is true that the office of Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal took charge of affixing the Privy Seal and the State Seal to documents under legal provisions, but it was nothing more or less than a formality to mark as original copies Imperial Rescripts and legislations which had already been approved by other machineries of the state. It was entirely a formalistic act. In affixing the Privy Seal or the State Seal to documents, the Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal legally had no authority or duty to examine their contents. And as a matter of fact, there was no case of such examination done, still less the Lord Leeper of the Privy Seal's refusal to affix the Privy Seal or the State Seal to documents. Therefore, the Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal was not expected to assume any responsibility for the Imperial Rescripts or legislations to which he affixed the Privy Seal or the State Seal. During my tenure of office as Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, I discharged my official duty in accordance with this guiding principle.

3. The Lord Keeper of the rivy Seal was called upon to offer aji hobitsu or advice to the Emperer on His Majesty's command In the conduct of State affairs in general, however, the Con-20 1 1 1 1 1 A stitution (old), Article 55 provides that all Ministers of State shall advise the Emperor; in matters pertaining to the High Command or the fighting services, the regulations pertaining to the Army General Staff and the Navy General Staff stipulate that the Chiefs of Staff of the Army and Navy of the fighting services shall have direct access to the Throne and offer advice to His Majesty; and in the conduct of Imperial Court affairs, the organization of the Imperial Household Department provides that the Manister of the Imperial Household advise the Emperor. The Lord Keeper of the Brivy Seal was not in a position to offer advice to the Emperor on those affarirs. As a matter of fact, during my eleven-year tenure office as Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, I never went beyond this limit in offering advice to His Majesty. If the Emperor adked the Lord Keeper of the Frivy Seal for his advice on any state matters and the Ford Keeper of the Privy Seal in obliged to give his private oppinion but it is understood that it is no concern of actual affairs. It is part of the Ford Keeper duties to relate to the Emperor any information the Lord Keeper may receive with respect to public affairs. Inasmuch as Marqu's KIDO who was Chief Secretary to me when I was Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal was fully acquainted with my way of offering joil hohitsu or advice to the Emperor, it is my firm belief, on information I have received, that he strictly observed this limit in offering advice to the Emperor during his tenure of office as Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal.

stantial services in educating the present Emperor. Prince SAICNJI thought it most impertant for the Emperor to guard his position as constitutional monarch zealously. In pursuance of this principle he guided the Emperor, vigilantly gurding against any responsibility being shifted on to the Emperor for political action taken by the Government. I pursued the same principle as the Prince. And it has been the Policy, steadfastly followed by the Imperial family since the Emperor MEIJI. The present Emperor has never rejected a petition, filed by the Government authorities. And on the strength pf my 15 year service close to the Throne, † positively believe that the present Emperor has never followed political views offered by those other than the Government authorities.

And on the strength of my 15 years service class to the Threne,
I positively believe that the present Emperof has noter followed political views offered by those other than the Government authorities. On August 10, 1945, when I proceeded to the Imperial Palace to have an audiende with the Emperor, I met Marquis KIDO. On that occasion, I obtained a full impression that the Marquis was doing his best to zealously guard the Emperor's position as constitutional mona in accordance with the old tradition of the Imperial court.

5. A clear demarcation has been drawn between the Imperial Court and the Government since the Meiji Restoration of 1868. There would be no distinction between the Imperial Court and the Government should a court official close to the Throne take an active part in politics or should a high Government-official wield a powerful influence in court circles. When the late Prince ITO, HIROBUMI, then Frime Minister, concurrently assumed the post of Minister of the Imperial Household in order to reform the Imperial court which till then followed the Kyoto tradition, and again when the late rince KATSURA, Taro, then I ord Keeper of the Privy Seal accepted the Imperial command to form a succeeding Cabinet in 1910, they came in for hurricanes of popular denunciations. During my tenure of office as Lord Kaeper of the Privy Seal, , I paid special attention to observe a clear demarcation between the court and the Government. Needless to say that no less close attention was paid to this point by Marquis KIDO under me during his tenure of office

Later Frince SAIONJI became the only surviving Genro or Filder Statesman, and when he advanced in age, he sought the views of the Senior Statesman (jushin) (former Prime Ministers for information and recommended the succeeding Prime Minister after taking into consideration their views. For instance, when the SAITO Cabinet resigned, Prince SAIONJI on Imperial sanction called a meeting of the ex-premiers, Fresident of the PPivy Council, the retiring Prime Minister and the Lord Keeper of the Frivy Seel and sought their views, after which the Prince recommended Admiral ONADA to the Throne as succeeding Prime Minister on his own responsibility.

It is clear that selection of a succeeding Prime Minister has never been done by an individual's private opinion, but has been traditionally made on the basis of coordinated views of several Elder Statesman or Flder Statesman and Senior Statesman. After the death of Prince SAIONJI, The only surviving Genro or Flder Statesman, the Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal was called up upon to recommender associating Primer Minister to the Theone.

True to tradition, however, the Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal under Imperial command sought the views of the Senior Statesman, after which it was customary for him to recommend a suitable person to the Throne as succeeding Prime Minister on the basis of their views.

During my 11-year tenure of office and also during Marquis KIDO's tenure of office as Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, s selection of succeeding Prime Ministers was done through the above-mentioned phonesses then observed and submitted to the Throne. Under no diffcumstances was a succeeding Prime Ministe selected on the basis of the Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal's private view.

7. Nothing would be a grosser mistake than to think that the Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal must have curried favor with the military on the alleged ground that the Prime Minister, recommended to the Throne by the Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal contained a high percentage of servicemen. It was at first legaly provided that the Minister of War be chosen from among Generals in active service, but the provision in question was revised under the YAMAMOTO Cabinet so as to make those on the retired list eligible for the protfolio of War. Under the HIROTA Cabinet in 1936, however, the revision was repealed and the old provision was revived at the instance of General TTRAUCHI, Hisaichi, then Minister of War, so that it was stipulated afresh that the Ministe of War be chosen from among the Generals and Lieutenant-Generals in active service. This method paved the way for the military to effect a political intervention. In case the so-called Three Big Heads of the Army, that is, the Chief of Staff of the Army, Inspector-General of Military Education and Minister of War jointly refused to recommend a succeeding War Minister, i would disable the Prime Minister designate to form a succeeding Cabinet though he was commanded by the Emperor to form a new Cabinet. Fof he could not choose the candidate from among the Generals on the retiered list while a Cabinet in formation required the acquiescence of the Army by custom. In the second SAICNJI Cabinet when I was Minister of Agriculture and Commerce, the then Minister of War WYEHARA resigned when he could not ged the assent of the Cabinet to his proposed increase of two new divisions. SAIONJI went to YAMAGATA asking his help to suggest UYFHARA's successor. The latter's reply was that he could not, under the circumstances, render useful advice. SAIONJI saw that further effort was of no avail, so he resigned. As snother example General UGAKI was commanded by the Emperor to form a new Cabinet and this proved abortive because of his inability to obtain a War Minister of his own choice. The first important condition, therefore, for selection of a succeeding Prime Minister was that the candidate in question would be able to obtain a War Minister without difficulty. Hence a high percentage of Prime Ministers selected and recommended were service men. 8. It was on October 28, 1930 that Marquis KIDO was appointed Chief Secretary to the Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, which post I was holding. His appointment was done through the intermadiary of Prince MONOYE. Prior to his appointment as Chief Secretary to the Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, Marquis KIDO was a division. al chief of the Ministry of Commerce and Industry, Marquis KIDC assisted me as Chief Secretary till December 26, 1935 when I resigned as Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal. When Prince KONCYE recommended Marquis KIDO to me as Chief Secretary to the Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, I drew his attention to the fact that a comparably young man would be hardly suitable for the post of Chief Secretary to the Lord Keeper of the Frivy Seal which was a sinecure without any routine duty to attend to and that the Chief Secretary to the Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal must be fair and impartial without any political coloring. Prince KONOYE assured me that Marquis KIDO had no politicalleaning and would be best qualified for the post, so that I chose the Marquis as Chief Seeretary. I was highly satisfied that during my tenure of office as Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, all informations gathered by Marquis KIDO as Chief Secretary were invariably impartial and neutral, not being partial to the met military or any particular political organization.

^{9.} On the strength of my obsevition of Various Mire, made in

- 9. On the strength of my observations of marquis KIDO, made in my daily contact with him as Chief Sewretary to the Lord Keeper of the Privy Seel for five years, the Marquis was clear-Headed well-developed in common sense, versed in the law and had no meen order of business abilities, Ideologically has believed in rationalism and liberalism; politically, he respecte constitutional government, his ideal being a Party Cabinet, based on a sound party system. It is not the truth that he colluded with the gumbatsu or military clique of unheld militarism and aggression.
- 10. I myself was regarded with hostility by the military and extreme nationalists as pro-British and pro-American pacifist and advocate of the status quo with the result that the rightists of servicemen and civilians attempted to assassinate me no less than four times. The first abortive attempt at my assassination was made by the Ketsu-meidan (Blood Protherhood) in March, 1932 when naval men and civilians, opposed to the London Naval Treaty, rose in arms. The second attempt was made on May 15, 1932 when the so-called May 15th indident broke out. The incident was started by those Army and Navy officers and men opposed to party politics. They attacked the official residence of the Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal and threw bombs at it. A third attempt at my assassination which also proved abortive was made by the Shimpei Tai (Gedsent troops) in 1933. The so-called godsent troops consisted of civilian rightists and servicemen, who advocated the Showa Restoration in imitation of the Meiji Restoration of 1868, denouncing liberalism and materialism.

They attempted a large-scale terroristic action; but their plot was nipped in the bud. A fourth attempt at my assassination was made when the February 26th incident broke out. A party of young Army officer at the head of their mon rowse in rebeblion in attempts to overthrow the influences already: in existence, stimulated by opposition to the London Naval Treaty and advocacy vigoraous action for settlement of the Manchurian Incident.

A squad of them attacked a hotel at YUGAWARA where I was staying and showered machine gun bullets upon it. Fortunately, however, I had a narrow escape.

Abortive as those attempts at my assassination were, they were all made during my tenure of office as Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, and after which grim fact shows in no equivocal terms that the recalcitrant elements vigilantly watched for an opportunity to get rid of the incumbent of the post of Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal as unisance. Later, when Marquis KIDO assumed the post of Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, rightists g groups attempted to assassinate him on occasions more than once

In referring to my personal affairs, in this affidavit I was prompted by the desire to clarify the traditional policy of the Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal on the one hand and on the other to show what atmosphere prevailed in Imperial court circles since the day of the Emperor Meiji, builder of modern Japan.
