LE NOUVEAU BOYER.

PREMIÈRE PARTIE

FRANÇAIS-ANGLAIS.

CIRCULAIRE

DU MINISTRE DE L'INSTRUCTION PUBLIQUE.

MONSIEUR LE RECTEUR,

Le Conseil royal, dans sa séance du 25 janvier dernier, a décidé que le Dictionnaire anglais-français et français-anglais, ou le Nouveau Boyer, par Hamonière, publié par M. Charles Hingray, méritait d'être particulièrement recommandé pour l'étude de la langue anglaise dans les collèges. Je vous adresse un exemplaire de cet ouvrage. A l'avantage de n'offrir que des définitions et des exemples d'un très bon choix, il joint celui d'une exécution typographique dont la pureté et l'exactitude sont d'autant plus dignes de remarque, que le prix en est moins élevé que celui des ouvrages du même genre. Je vous invite, M. le Recteur, à donner connaissance de ce Dictionnaire aux principaux chefs d'établissement de votre Académie. Je ne doute pas de leur empressement à favoriser l'usage d'un livre dont le mérite est attesté par les plus honorables suffrages.

Recevez, etc.

Le ministre de l'instruction publique.

Pour ampliation :

VILLEMAIN.

COURS DE THÈMES ANGLAIS, divisé en deux parties, dont la première contient soixante-dix-neuf thèmes sur les différentes parties du discours; et la seconde, soixante et onze thèmes gradués, extraits des meilleurs auteurs français; tels que La Rochefoucauld, Fénelon, Buffon, Marmontel, Mesd. de Sévigné et de Maintenon, etc., etc. : le tout accompagné de notes grammaticales pour faciliter l'application des règles de la grammaire anglaise, et apprendre promptement à traduire le français en bon anglais, par Hamonière; ouvrage élémentaire, qui peut s'adapter à toutes les grammaires anglaises et en être le complément. 1 vol. in-12, br. 3 fr.

ABREGÉ

DE LA

GRAMMAIRE ANGLAISE.

LA langue anglaise se compose de dix espèces de mots, savoir : l'Article, le Substantif, l'Adjectif, le Pronom, le Verbe, le Participe, l'Adverbe, la Préposition, la Conjonction et l'Interjection.

ARTICLE.

Il y a deux articles en anglais, savoir : l'article défini the, qui répond à le, la, les ; et l'article indéfini a, qui se change en an avant une voyelle ou un h muet, et qui répond à un ou une en français.

ARTICLE DÉFINI.

SINGULIER.

The man, l'homme.
The woman, la femme.
The garden, le jardin.
The flower, la fleur.
The book, le livre.

PLURIEL.

The men, les hommes.
The women, les femmes.
The gardens, les jardins.
The flowers, les fleurs.
The books, les livres.

ARTICLE INDÉFINI.

An umpire, un arbitre.
An ell, une aune.

An hospital, un hôpital.
An herb, une herbe.
An heir, un héritier.
An hour, une heure.
An history, une histoire.

Avant le mot one, avant un w, un y, un u long, un h muet suivi d'un u long ou un e suivi d'un u long, on emploie a au lieu de an.

Many a one, plus d'un.
Such a one, un tel.
A war, une guerre.
A wonder, une merveille.
A week, une semaine.

A year, une année.
A yard, une cour.

A usage, un usage.

A husband, un mari.
A humour, un caprice.

A eunuch, un eunuque.

SUBSTANTIF.

Il y a en anglais comme en français deux sortes de substantifs, savoir le substantif commun, c'est-à-dire celui qui convient à tous les individus d'une même espèce, et le substantif propre, c'est-à-dire celui qui ne s'applique qu'à un individu d'une espèce particulière.

SUBSTANTIF COMMUN.

Yard, cour.
Street, rue.
Eye, œil.
House, maison.
Ditch, fossé.

Mother, mère.
Baptism, baptême.
Cook, cuisinier.
Dilemma, dilemme.
Death, mort.

Nurse, nourrice.
Prince, prince.
Country, pays.
Bird, oiseau.
Member, membre.

SUBSTANTIF PROPRE.

Thomas , Thomas.	Cornelia , Cornélie.	London , Londres.
Matthew , Matthieu.	Switzerland , Suisse.	Lyons , Lyon.
Cato , Caton.	Morocco , Maroc.	Africa , Afrique.

Le pluriel des substantifs anglais se forme ordinairement en ajoutant s au singulier, ou bien es lorsque les mots se terminent en s, z, x, sh et ch.

SINGULIER.	PLURIEL.	SINGULIER.	PLURIEL.
Prince , prince,	princes .	Witness , témoin,	witnesses .
House , maison,	houses .	Box , boîte,	boxes .
Son , fils,	sons .	Bush , buisson,	bushes .
Buzz , bourdonnement	buzzes .	Wish , désir,	wishes .
Glass , verre,	glasses .	Impeach , empêchement,	impeaches .

Les substantifs qui ont la terminaison en f et fe, la changent, pour le pluriel, en ves.

SINGULIER.	PLURIEL.
Calf , veau,	calves .
Half , moitié,	halves .
Loaf , pain,	loaves .
Life , vie,	lives .

EXCEPTION. Les substantifs en ff forment leur pluriel régulièrement. Par exemple, ruff, fraise, fait au pluriel ruffs.

Les substantifs en y précédé d'une consonne forment leur pluriel en changeant y en ies, et lorsque l'y est précédé d'une voyelle, en ajoutant s au singulier.

SINGULIER.	PLURIEL.	SINGULIER.	PLURIEL.
Lady , dame,	ladies .	Boy , garçon,	boys .
Body , corps,	bodies .	Day , jour,	days .
Cry , cri,	cries .	Valley , vallée,	valleys .

N. B. Voyez, pour les substantifs irréguliers, les tables qui suivent cet aperçu.

ADJECTIF.

Les adjectifs anglais précèdent toujours le substantif, sans que leur terminaison varie jamais. Little signifie en même temps petit, petite, petits, petites.

The good father , le bon père.	A blue coat , un habit bleu.
The good fathers , les bons pères.	Blue coats , habits bleus.

DEGRÉS DE COMPARAISON.

Il y a trois degrés de comparaison : le positif, qui exprime la qualité d'un objet ; le comparatif et le superlatif, qui augmentent ou diminuent le positif au plus haut comme au plus bas degré. Ainsi soit wise, sage :

1 ^{er} degré. Positif.	Wise , sage.
2 ^e degré. Comparatif.	Wiser , plus sage. Less wise , moins sage.
3 ^e degré. Superlatif.	The wisest , le plus sage. The least wise , le moins sage.

FORMATION DU COMPARATIF ET DU SUPERLATIF.

Lorsque l'adjectif est d'une syllabe, comme great, grand, on forme le comparatif de supériorité en ajoutant la finale er, ou simplement r quand il se termine par un e muet, et le superlatif de supériorité en remplaçant er ou r par est ou st.

Great , grand,	greater ,	greatest .
Kind , bon,	kinder ,	kindest .
Sweet , doux,	sweeter ,	sweetest .
Sly , rusé,	slier ,	sliest .
White , blanc,	whiter ,	whitest .
Big , gros,	bigger ,	biggest .

Quand l'adjectif est de plusieurs syllabes, on le fait précéder de l'adverbe more, plus, pour former le comparatif, et de most, le plus, pour le superlatif.

Fearful ,	craintif,	more fearful ,	the most fearful .
Opulent ,	opulent,	more opulent ,	the most opulent .
Ambitious ,	ambitieux,	more ambitious ,	the most ambitious .

Le comparatif et le superlatif d'infériorité se forment en plaçant devant l'adjectif le mot less, moins, pour le comparatif, et least, le moins, pour le superlatif.

Pretty ,	joli,	less pretty ,	the least pretty .
Polite ,	poli,	less polite ,	the least polite .
Lovely ,	aimable,	less lovely ,	the least lovely .

Le comparatif d'égalité se rend par as, aussi, dans les phrases affirmatives, et par so, si, dans les phrases négatives. Si la phrase est à la fois négative et interrogative, on emploie as, aussi. Le que, dans ces trois cas, s'exprime par as. Ex.

You are as rich as they ,	Vous êtes aussi riche qu'eux.
She is not so learned as you ,	Elle n'est pas si instruite que vous.
Are they not as good as you?	Ne sont-ils pas aussi bons que vous?

N. B. Quelques adjectifs forment leurs comparatifs et superlatifs irrégulièrement. Les principaux sont :

Good ,	bon,	better ,	best .
Bad ,	mauvais,	worse ,	worst .
Little ,	peu,	less ,	least .
Much ,	beaucoup,	more ,	most .

La plupart des adjectifs anglais se forment des substantifs, en prenant différentes terminaisons. La terminaison ful signifie l'abondance de ce que le mot simple exprime ; ainsi bounty, bonté, bountiful, bon, ou plein de bonté. La terminaison less exprime la privation de ce que le substantif signifie ; ainsi blame, blâme, blameless, irréprochable. La terminaison en, ajoutée à des substantifs qui expriment la matière dont une chose est faite, en fait des adjectifs ; ainsi gold, or, golden, d'or. La terminaison ish diminue la signification d'un adjectif ; ainsi sweet, doux, sweetish, douceâtre. Cette même terminaison, ajoutée aux substantifs, en fait des adjectifs ; ainsi wolf, loup, wolfish, de loup, vorace. La terminaison ly produit le même effet.

PRONOM.

On distingue huit espèces de pronoms, savoir :

1° Les pronoms personnels :

VERBE.

Il y a trois sortes de verbes, savoir : le verbe actif, le verbe passif et le verbe neutre.

Le verbe actif exprime une action faite ou qui se fait; son régime est direct.

She loves her father, elle aime son père.

Le verbe passif exprime une action reçue ou soufferte par le sujet.

Peter is beloved by Matthew, Pierre est aimé de Matthieu.

Le verbe neutre exprime simplement l'existence, l'état, la condition ou les attributs d'un être.

I am, je suis. I sleep, je dors.

La conjugaison est l'art de varier les temps, les nombres, les personnes et les modes du verbe; et, de même qu'en français, ces variations ne peuvent se faire que par le secours des verbes auxiliaires. Les deux principaux sont to have et to be, dont nous allons donner la conjugaison ; les autres sont do, shall, will, may, can, avec leurs variations, et let ainsi que must qui ne varient pas.

Un verbe irrégulier est celui dont le prétérit et le participe passé ne se forment pas en ajoutant d ou ed à l'infinitif.

INFINITIF.	PRÉTÉRIT.	PARTICIPE.
To break ,	casser,	broke ,	broken .
To fall ,	tomber,	fell ,	fallen .
To drive ,	chasser,	drove ,	driven .

La seconde personne du prétérit au singulier prend l'addition de est, ou de st seulement après un e.

N. B. Dans le dictionnaire anglais-français, nous avons ajouté entre parenthèses le prétérit et le participe à la suite des verbes irréguliers. Quant à ceux qui, joints à des prépositions ou des particules initiales, forment des verbes composés, nous les avons omis, parce qu'ils se conjuguent comme leurs simples.

Un verbe réfléchi est celui dont le sujet agit sur lui-même et est à la fois le sujet et l'objet de l'action qu'il exprime.

He has killed himself, il s'est tué.
I dress myself, je m'habille.

Un verbe impersonnel est celui qui ne s'emploie qu'à la troisième personne du singulier.

It rains, it hails, it snows, il pleut, il grêle, il neige.
It froze, it thawed, it was cold, il gela, il dégelait, il faisait froid.

Observations sur les verbes.

Il y a trois manières différentes d'exprimer en anglais le présent de l'indicatif :

I grant, I do grant, I am granting, j'accorde.

Et quoique ces trois manières ne s'expriment que par une seule en français il faut se garder d'employer indifféremment l'une ou l'autre.

La première, I grant, exprime simplement l'action :

I grant, he sings, they play, j'accorde, il chante, ils jouent.

La seconde, I do grant, exprime l'action positivement, avec force, avec affirmation :

We do love our country, nous aimons notre pays.

La troisième, I am granting, désigne que l'action se passe au moment où l'on en parle :

She is running in the garden, elle court dans le jardin.

Il y a aussi trois manières d'exprimer le passé de l'indicatif :

I granted, I did grant, I was granting, j'accordais.

La première indique que l'action se fit dans un temps déterminé qui est écoulé :

I saw him last night, je l'ai vu hier soir.

La seconde exprime l'action positivement ou avec force :

He did write this word, il a écrit ce mot-ci.

La troisième s'emploie pour exprimer que l'action se passait quand une autre arriva

They were studying when the master entered, ils étudiaient quand le maître entra.

Do et did s'emploient rarement dans le sens affirmatif ; on ne s'en sert que dans les phrases négatives et interrogatives, ou pour éviter la répétition du verbe principal de la phrase, en répondant à une question ; dans ce dernier cas, on l'emploie seul, ainsi que shall, will, may, have et be :

I do know that he is a worthy man, je sais que c'est un digne homme.

He does not know you, il ne vous connaît pas.

She did not speak well, elle ne parlait pas bien.

Do they walk fastly? marchent-ils vite?

Do they laugh at me? se moquent-ils de moi?

No, they do not. non (ils ne se moquent pas de vous).

Did they not see us? ne nous voyaient-ils pas?

Yes they did oui (ils nous voyaient).

Remarques sur les prépositions et les adverbes.

Tout verbe anglais qui suit la préposition to s'exprime par l'infinitif, et après les autres prépositions il s'exprime par le participe présent :

I am right to do it, j'ai raison de le faire.

You hinder him from setting out, vous l'empêchez de partir

I rejoice at seeing you, je me réjouis de vous voir.

N. B. Quant aux verbes suivis de prépositions, comme la signification de ces particules dépend de leur position et des mots qui les précèdent, voyez la table qui suit cet aperçu.

On distingue neuf sortes d'adverbes : adverbes de temps, de lieu, de quantité, de qualité, d'affirmation, de négation, de doute, de comparaison ou d'interrogation ; mais on peut faire de presque tous les adjectifs anglais des adverbes en ajoutant ly, comme on les forme en français en ajoutant ment.

Polite, poli, politely, poliment.
Pretty, joli, prettily, joliment.

PRINCIPALES RÈGLES DE LA SYNTAXE.

1. Le verbe s'accorde avec son sujet en nombre et en personne. Ex.

I sing,	Je chante.
You are well,	Vous allez bien.
Thou art undone,	Tu es perdu.
The children are playing,	Les enfants sont à jouer.

2. Lorsque deux ou plusieurs noms au singulier sont joints par une conjonction copulative exprimée ou sous-entendue, les verbes, noms ou pronoms qui s'y rapportent se mettent au pluriel. Ex.

Peter and Thomas are gone; they were the best soldiers in the army. Pierre et Thomas sont partis; c'étaient les meilleurs soldats de l'armée.

3. Lorsqu'une conjonction disjonctive se trouve entre deux ou plusieurs noms au singulier, les verbes, noms ou pronoms qui s'y rapportent se mettent au singulier. Ex.

The ignorance or negligence of your son has caused that mistake L'ignorance ou la négligence de votre fils est cause de cette erreur.

4. Un nom collectif s'accorde aussi bien avec le singulier qu'avec le pluriel; néanmoins il faut bien examiner si le mot renferme une idée d'unité ou de multiplicité. Ex.

The house is dissolved.	La chambre est dissoute.
The council were divided in their sentiments.	Le conseil était partagé dans ses opinions.

5. Les pronoms s'accordent avec leurs antécédents et avec les noms qu'ils remplacent, en genre et en nombre. Ex.

This is the friend who saved me.	Voici l'ami qui m'a sauvé.
The book which you had.	Le livre que vous aviez.
The moon shines, but the light is not her own.	L'éclat que répand la lune lui est étranger.

6. Le pronom relatif étant de la même personne que l'antécédent, doit s'accorder avec le verbe. Ex.

Thou who admirest virtue	Toi qui admires la vertu.
They who speak from experience.	Ceux qui parlent par expérience.

7. Le pronom relatif est le sujet du verbe lorsqu'il n'y a pas de nominatif entre eux. Ex.

The king who governs this country.	Le roi qui gouverne ce pays.
---	------------------------------

8. Lorsqu'un nominatif se trouve placé entre le pronom relatif et le verbe, le pronom relatif est gouverné lui-même par un mot du membre de phrase où il se trouve. Ex.

He who saved me, to whom I owe my being, is glorified by me.	Celui qui m'a sauvé, celui à qui je dois l'existence, est glorifié par ma voix
---	--

9. Lorsque le pronom relatif est précédé de deux nominatifs de personnes différentes, le pronom relatif et le verbe peuvent s'accorder en personne avec l'un ou l'autre indifféremment, selon le sens de la phrase. Ex.

I am the man who protect you, or I am the man who protects you.	Je suis votre protecteur.
--	---------------------------

10. Tous les adjectifs et tous les pronoms possessifs, démonstratifs et indéfinis se rapportent à un substantif exprimé ou sous-entendu. Ex.

He is a wise as well as a learned man.	C'est un sage et savant homme.
Few submitted to reason (sous-ent. persons).	Peu d'entre eux se rangèrent à leur devoir

11. Tous les pronoms possessifs, démonstratifs et indéfinis s'accordent en nombre avec leurs substantifs. Ex.

This table, these tables	Cette table, ces tables.
Another work, other works.	Un autre ouvrage, d'autres ouvrages.

12. L'article indéfini a ou an s'accorde avec les noms au singulier seulement dans un sens individuel et collectif. Ex.

A christian, un chrétien. A thousand, un mille.

13. L'article défini the s'accorde avec les noms au pluriel ou au singulier indifféremment. Ex.

The garden, le jardin. The boxes, les boîtes

14. Pour exprimer le rapport de possession, on met au génitif possessif le nom qui en français est précédé de la préposition de; c'est-à-dire qu'on le met le premier, et à sa suite 's. Ex.

My father's house.
Virtue's reward.

La maison de mon père.
La récompense de la vertu.

15. Les verbes actifs gouvernent l'accusatif. Ex.

He supports this family.

Il soutient cette famille.

16. Les adverbes ne gouvernent point de cas, etc., mais il faut leur trouver une place convenable dans le corps de la phrase. Par exemple on les met ordinairement devant les adjectifs, après les verbes actifs ou neutres, et fréquemment entre l'auxiliaire et le verbe. Ex.

He made a very sensible discourse; he spoke unaffectedly and forcibly; and was attentively heard by the whole assembly.

Il fit un discours très-sensé; son langage pur et énergique excitait l'attention de tout l'auditoire.

17. Deux négations valent une affirmation. Ex.

Nor did they not perceive him.
His language is not ungrammatical.

Ils ne laisserent pas de l'apercevoir.
Son langage est conforme aux règles de la grammaire.

18. Les prépositions gouvernent l'accusatif. Ex.

We may be happy without riches.
I have heard a good character of her.
From him that is needy, turn not away.

On peut être heureux sans fortune.
On m'a fait d'elle un portrait avantageux.
N'abandonnez pas les malheureux.

19. Les conjonctions servent à lier les modes et les temps des verbes, ainsi que les cas des noms et des pronoms. Ex.

He and I were schoolfellows.
If you sincerely love and earnestly pursue virtue, she will be found assuredly by you and prove a rich reward.

Lui et moi, nous étions camarades de classe.
Si vous aimez sincèrement la vertu, si vous la recherchez avec ardeur, vous la trouverez assurément, et en elle une riche récompense vous est acquise.

20. Quelques conjonctions régissent l'indicatif, d'autres le subjonctif. Règle générale : lorsque la phrase exprime un doute, il faut employer le subjonctif. Ex.

He will not be pardoned, unless he repent.

Il n'obtiendra son pardon que par son repentir.

Mais lorsque la phrase est positive, l'indicatif suffit. Ex.

He is healthy because he is temperate.

C'est à sa tempérance qu'il doit sa bonne santé.

21. Le nom ou le pronom qui suit une comparaison n'est pas gouverné par la conjonction than ou as, mais par le verbe avec lequel il s'accorde ou par la préposition exprimée ou sous-entendue. Ex.

They loved him more than me (c'est-à-dire more than they loved me).

Ils l'aimaient mieux que moi.

The sentiment is well expressed by Plato, but much better by Solomon than him (c'est-à-dire than by him).

Ce sentiment est bien exprimé par Platon, mais mieux encore par Salomon.

22. Pour éviter des répétitions désagréables et pour exprimer ses idées en peu de mots, on emploie souvent l'ellipse. Ainsi au lieu de dire : he was a learned man, he was a wise man and he was a good man, on dit, par le moyen de l'ellipse : he was a learned, wise and good man, c'était un homme dont la science égalait la sagesse et la bonté.

AVERTISSEMENT.

Le Nouveau Boyer a paru depuis huit ans avec le suffrage de l'Université et sans qu'on ait jugé nécessaire de lui appliquer un système de prononciation de la langue anglaise. A l'époque de la première publication, les philologues les plus distingués furent consultés pour savoir s'il fallait, ou non, accompagner la partie anglaise et française d'une prononciation figurée, qui indiquât par l'emploi des lettres disposées selon la prononciation française, les sons similaires des mots anglais; tous pensèrent que ce moyen ne pouvait reproduire le son avec assez d'exactitude, et que l'oreille devait être formée à reconnaître et à retenir les sons par la parole du maître, que le secours indirect qu'on pouvait tirer de la représentation des sons exposait les élèves à contracter de mauvaises habitudes de prononciation. On avait également reconnu impossible l'adoption du système de Walker, si ingénieux et si utile aux Anglais, mais inapplicable en France, car pour réaliser chez nous la pensée de Walker, il nous faudrait avant tout connaître la prononciation et la valeur des lettres dans la place qu'il leur assigne à chacune, et c'est précisément pour arriver au même résultat, mais nous le reconnaissons, avec moins de précision, que les Anglais, que nous avons admis la prononciation figurée.

A Paris et dans les grandes villes où d'habiles professeurs d'anglais, anglais d'origine pour la plupart, forment l'oreille des élèves en les habituant à prononcer eux-mêmes et à reconnaître le mot qu'ils savent déjà prononcer, on devrait se passer de toute autre indication moins vraie que le son lui-même. Mais en province, privés de maîtres anglais, les élèves devaient réclamer avec instance l'application du seul moyen de se faire une idée de la prononciation anglaise, et nous avons cru devoir céder à une demande si souvent répétée; des expériences ont été faites et l'on s'est convaincu de l'utilité de ce mode pratique, à l'aide duquel l'on peut et l'on doit d'ailleurs appeler les théories grammaticales avec plus de sûreté et de profit qu'on le faisait en l'absence de cette représentation du son figuré par les lettres, dont la valeur nous est bien familière.

Le Dictionnaire de la prononciation figurée contient d'abord tous les mots qui se trouvent dans la partie anglaise-française du Nouveau Boyer (on s'est toutefois abstenu de répéter les mots dérivés), de plus un grand nombre de mots usuels qui ne doivent pas figurer dans un abrégé. Ce livre était déjà placé au premier rang des ouvrages classiques. Son utilité a été constatée chaque année par de nombreux tirages, mais l'importante amélioration dont nous l'enrichissons aujourd'hui satisfera enfin les personnes qui réclamaient en l'absence du maître un auxiliaire qui pût à peu près le remplacer.
