ROME SCENE OF GREAT CELEBRATION

City's 2676th Birthday and Labor Day Combined

Throngs in Streets; Ovation for Mussolini

Rome, April 21.—The celebration to-day of Rome's 2676th birthday was perhaps the most solemn in the history of the Eternal City. Premier Mussolini promulgated a decree establishing April 21 as Labor Day instead of May 1, and thus the traditional date of the city's foundation has become a national holiday.
A leading feature of the ceremony was the administration of the Fascist oath to the National Militia. Enthusiasm was without bounds; hundreds of thousands of people crowded the streets. Mussolini's appearance was the signal for a tumultuous outburst. Later there was a patriotic ceremony at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

INTERIM REPORT TO THE COMMONS

Committee on Agricultural Conditions Prepares Paper House to Be Heard

Ottawa, April 21.—Consideration of its interim report, which is to be presented to the Commons probably early next week, is now the chief business of the Special Commons Committee on Agricultural Conditions.
The report, it is expected, will deal chiefly with the evidence regarding alleged shipping combines brought out in the earlier sittings.
The committee will continue hearing witnesses on Monday, and is expected to take up rural credits during the coming week.
From Washington.
Washington, April 21.—(Canadian Press)—Representative Sidney Anderson, of Minnesota, who was chairman of the Congressional joint committee which investigated agricultural problems, has been invited by Chairman McMaster of the Canadian House of Commons Committee on Agricultural Conditions to appear before the committee. He is expected to visit Ottawa next week and discuss rural credits and other agricultural problems.

DIVORCE REPORTS SUBJECT OF BILL

Federal Measure to Prevent Publication of Objectionable Details

Ottawa, April 21.—Before the Senate bill to suppress publication of reports of divorce proceedings was given second and third reading in the Commons yesterday afternoon Hon. R. J. Manion, Port William, contended that the avenues of publicity should be cut to a minimum. As the father of three young sons, he did not care to have brought before their eyes reports of divorce proceedings in the papers. He thought the Senate's move was in the right direction.
The purpose of the bill is to prevent publication of objectionable details of divorce actions at the time of trial.

Spent Months on Lonely Easter Isle

Mrs. S. Routledge, Member of Archaeological Party to South Seas, Returned To-day by Liner Makura; Massive Stone Figures Dot Coastline of Volcanic Island.

The origin of the depleted race of people inhabiting Easter Island and the archaeological history of massive stone figures which dot the coastline of the volcanic island located in the South Pacific Ocean, has been the subject of exhaustive investigations by Professor and Mrs. S. Routledge, who made the cruise of exploration in the interests of the British Museum.
Professor Routledge is now lecturing on his discoveries in New Zealand. Mrs. Routledge, who is deeply interested in archaeology, arrived in Victoria to-day from the Antipodes by the liner Makura.
The inhabitants of Easter Island, which is located in the South Pacific approximately 2,000 miles west of the coast of Chile, the investigations of Prof. and Mrs. Routledge indicate, are a mixture of the Polynesian and Melanesian races. At the present time the native population of Easter Island totals 250 people.
Slave Raids.
The people of this volcanic island were originally very numerous and virile, but their numbers were sadly depleted by slave raids in the sixties, says Mrs. Routledge. It was in 1722 that the Dutch explorer Roggeveen visited Easter Island and about fifty years later Captain Cook landed there.
The island of Mangareva, to the westward of Easter, and about half-way between the latter point and Tahiti, also came within the observations of Prof. and Mrs. Routledge. The racial origin and the cultural relations of the natives of Easter and Mangareva Islands was a close study of the exploring party.
Stone Figures.
Easter Island is dotted with remarkable monuments of stone, which resemble the native burial places. These huge stones, which have been carved to resemble the face of a human being, are regarded as sentinels along the rugged coast.

SUGAR ADVANCED TO-DAY ON MARKET AT NEW YORK

LASSEN VOLCANO AGAIN IN ERUPTION

Anxiety for Settlements About California Mountain

Redding, Cal., April 21.—Lassen Peak, the only active volcano of the United States, spoke in a deep, loud, rumbling voice and exhaled great smoke clouds just before dark last evening and to-day further word of the awakened crater was awaited with some anxiety.
As dusk settled over the valley below it, the peak began breathing out the smoke in intermittent gusts, as if aided by powerful bellows. From a distance it was seen that a smoke line had been formed extending southward for about twenty miles.
There were unconfirmed reports here during the night that showers of hot rocks had been thrown down the sides of Lassen Peak and scattered about its base.
It was feared early to-day, assuming the reports to be true, that the safety of several settlements was threatened. The rumbling noises inside the crater were described as the loudest since the volcano broke a silence of centuries and went into eruption on Decoration Day in 1915. An eruption buried lava rocks with such force that several buildings were destroyed.
Residents of the valley fled and secret camps were kept.

THE CHANGED ATTITUDE

Take, for instance, such controversial topics as adult suffrage, enfranchisement of women, wholesale reductions in hours of labor, representative government in India, and notably the conferring upon Ireland of a measure of home rule more complete than any proposed by Gladstone. Any one of these measures proposed before the war would have led to heated discussion throughout the land.
The case of Ireland is, perhaps, most significant of the changed temper of the nation immediately after the great war. The conflict over Irish home rule has now culminated in a treaty accepted by the nation as a whole and acquiesced in by the most violent amongst its opponents. But fiercer political passions were stirred up by the struggle between the two camps than by any political question of modern times.
The causes underlying the conflict dealt with two of the most powerful motives which make the human heart throb—race and religion. There was an old feud between Saxon and Gael extending over at least seven centuries. It drenched the moors of Ireland with the blood of both races before a new sting was given to its hatred by the introduction of an acute religious quarrel. After the Reformation, the religious differences which rent Europe with fratricidal wars added fresh fury to racial enmities which made poor Ireland a cauldron of perpetual strife.
When Gladstone proposed to settle this raging tumult by wresting supremacy from a race which had been dominant in that island for 700 years, and a faith which had been supreme there for 400 years, and transferring it to the race and religion which all that time had been in a condition of servitude; and when, in order to attain his ends, he had to secure adherence of men of ruling blood and creed to his proposals, the passions raised were deeper and angrier than any witnessed in British politics for many a day. It led for the first time in the history of parliament to scenes of physical violence on the floor of the house.

FLOOD OVER PART OF PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE AND TRAINS DELAYED

Westend of Prairie City Under Water As Assiniboine River Rises; Peak of Flood Has Passed Brandon; Ice There Dynamited.

Winnipeg, April 21.—(Canadian Press)—The entire west end of the city of Portage la Prairie, forty miles west of here, was under water this morning and the floods was making rapid strides toward the centre of the city, being at 10 o'clock within a block of the City Hall, according to a long distance telephone message received here.
All trains, both east and westbound, are held up in the Portage yards and the Canadian National station is flooded, with the waters pouring down the tracks from the west. A bridge at the south approach to the city has been washed away and another leading to The Island, a city park, has been carried away by the swirling waters.
Residents in the west end of the city are traveling by boat this morning, with hundreds of homes isolated and conditions assuming a more serious aspect hourly. House foundations are reported to be weakening under the force of the heavy flow and it is feared some may collapse.
West of the town a large bridge across the Assiniboine to the Hood Settlement, a farming community, is threatened.
Several trains cancelled.
Winnipeg, April 21.—Flood conditions in many districts throughout Manitoba continued to-day to disorganize railway transportation, according to statements from Canadian Pacific and Canadian National officials here. In a few cases it has been necessary to cancel trains, while many others are running from two to eight hours late. Conditions at Portage la Prairie, where the water is reported to be from three to four feet deep in the railway yards, has dislocated the main-line traffic of both companies considerably, necessitating detours.
Roads Washed Out.
In the Carleton Place district the Canadian Pacific reports conditions as serious. On the main line between Douglas and Chater the roadbed is washed-out for a considerable distance, requiring cribbing and pile-driving before it can be put in proper shape again.
From numerous other subdivisions reports indicate the waters are subsiding and a resumption of traffic is expected by night.
Falling at Brandon.
Brandon, Man., April 21.—The Assiniboine River fell fifteen inches here since Friday and there is every indication of a further drop as the waters are receding from the banks of a rise at Western points have been received. Dynamite was used Friday afternoon and evening to blast the ice and in the morning the peak of the flood here seems to be over and no further damage is anticipated.

Lloyd George Says Trial of Capitalism Will Rock Britain

Now Arraigned Before Supreme Court of Nation—Eve of Great and Fundamental Changes—Political Avalanche May Be Avoided by Sound Doctrines and Elimination of Social Evils—Discusses Snowden's Move

London, April 21.—A few weeks ago I predicted that the comparative calm which has prevailed in the political seas of Britain during the past few years was coming to an end. Recent parliamentary scenes leave no doubt that the prolonged political depression is to be followed by a period of storms—it may be hurricanes.
No amount of organization or propaganda can excite a deal of feeling in an electorate over trivial and unreal issues. The war was real enough. Why the Cabinet split in 1916? Who was responsible? Should a general election have taken place in 1918 or 1919? Ought the open and declared opponents of the Government of the day to have then received government support, or at least government neutrality?
These are questions which agitate a few who are personally interested, but they leave the nation cold.

But the war was supported by men of all parties and therefore provoked no political controversy. The minority which opposed it was negligible and challenged no parliamentary discussion on the question. The treaty of peace was on the whole accepted by all parties when first submitted to parliament. The leaders of the opposition parties in the Lords and Commons at the time of its presentation offered no serious criticism of its provisions. Legislation in response to the war, although an extraordinary seasons much of it would have aroused angry passions—coming as it did after the war had exhausted emotion, passed with no more than a feeble murmur of protest.
THE CHANGED ATTITUDE
Take, for instance, such controversial topics as adult suffrage, enfranchisement of women, wholesale reductions in hours of labor, representative government in India, and notably the conferring upon Ireland of a measure of home rule more complete than any proposed by Gladstone. OMINOUS SIGNS

It shows what we may expect when there are genuine divisions of opinion which profoundly move masses of men and women in a democracy. Those who recall the tropical heat of the parliamentary debates in 1893 naturally regard their voyage through the frigid proceedings of the last parliament as they would sail through Arctic seas. That voyage is now over, and there are signs that the waters will soon be lashed into fury.
For years political controversy between parties has been suspended in the presence of a common

BIOLOGIST SPEAKS ON MARINE BORERS

Illustrates Lectures With Slides and Specimens; Interesting Address

At a well-attended joint meeting of the Engineering Institute of Canada, Victoria branch, and the Natural History Society, Dr. C. McLean Fraser, Biologist at Departure Bay, and Demonstrator of Biology at the University of British Columbia, gave a most interesting lecture illustrated by slides and specimens on the Marine Borers.

He made special reference to the borer commonly found on this coast and the damage done by them. He also dealt extensively on the Teredo and Lingnia families, which species, he explained, did great damage to wooden structures built in salt water. The temperature was also dealt with and the effects this had upon structures. Specimens supplied by the Public Works Department were shown to the interested audience. A hearty vote of thanks was extended to the speaker for his most instructive and educational address at the close of the meeting. H. M. Bigwood presided.

VICTORIA WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

Mrs. Crocker presided yesterday afternoon at the regular meeting of the Victoria Women's Institute.

Mrs. H. M. Black, convener of the Ways and Means Committee, reported in her paper on "Agriculture", and two card drives during the past month which resulted in a substantial addition to the treasury. Mrs. Black also reported on the last meeting of the Local Council of Women.

Mrs. J. R. Terry reported a visit to the tubercular ward, Jubilee Hospital on Tuesday evening last, when the patients were entertained with a concert and refreshments.

An excellent article on recent legislation was given by Mrs. F. W. Aust and indignant parents.

Many practical and timely suggestions were made by Mrs. Savory in her paper on "Agriculture". The speaker urged those present to encourage farmers on Vancouver Island and throughout B. C. by waiting until the local strawberries and new potatoes were on the market instead of paying high prices for those imported from California.

A short report was also given by Mrs. Waterhouse on "Immigration".

Rev. H. T. Archibald addressed the meeting on "What the Institute Can do to Help Social Hygiene." A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Archibald.

It was decided to donate two prizes to the Children's Day sports on May 22.

Mrs. T. Palmer thanked the President, Mrs. Crocker, and members who had so generously assisted in the Lorenz sale yesterday.

CHILDREN THROG TO REV. DR. PRICE FOR HEALING TO-DAY

Special Service Will Be Held for Babies Under Three Years of Age

There is a firm belief among Dr. Price's workers and the parents of a small child, who was wheeled to church in her cot this morning to receive a card for healing at the preparatory service, that she is already recovering the use of her limbs. Already the parents state, the child has regained the use of her limbs. It is expected by them that when she is prayed for at the children's service at the Arena to-night that she will be totally cured.

The mother of the child stated this morning that a year ago last Easter her child met with an accident which deprived her of the use of her legs about the knees. The doctors asserted she had gangrene of the knees as a result of the accident. Last Thursday, the mother continued, the plasters were taken from them, and she lay on her back with her legs a little. That afternoon she tried once again to move her limbs, having the faith that God would cure her, the mother said. And on the next day she moved her legs, the knees getting a little bit better. Dr. Price gave the little girl a card and will pray for her again.

Blind. See. A joyous father came to the platform and testified this morning that his young son was regaining his eyesight. For many years, he said, the boy had been totally blind. But Dr. Price treated him as a private case and prayed for him. "I'm afraid, daddy," the little boy said, but he had received a healing, the father asserted, for the boy described flashes of light then darkness, and then he had seen over the pit while in the church the boy pointed directly at the large colored leaded windows and told his father that they were colored.

Many Children. Hundreds of children were present this morning, while many mothers brought their babies to be healed. Dr. Price issued a large number of cards to many needy cases. One little girl had spinal trouble and was unable to walk. The other three little boys and girls had steel frames upon their limbs, while a number of cases are paralyzed. Blind, deaf and lame children were given cards, while one small child with a gaiter has faith that she will be healed.

Owing to the large number of babies being in need of healing, Dr. Price will hold a special service on Tuesday afternoon. Cards were issued to the parents of these babies this morning but no preparatory service will be held. Only one case of healing was urged in the audience this morning. A woman rose and testified to the healing of her child, which had been deaf but had recovered her hearing while the service was being conducted.

PREMIER OLIVER SPOKE CRESTON

Comparison of Rates Surprised His Audience

Special to The Times.
 Creston, B. C., April 21.—A large and thoroughly representative audience last night heard Premier Oliver's address here on the freight rate question. Both town and country were well represented in the gathering, which was presided over by R. B. Staples, Frank Putnam, president of the Creston Valley Liberal Association, also having a seat on the platform.

Mr. Oliver devoted the early part of his talk to features that were of local importance, a statement of the lumber and fruit rates in British Columbia as compared with the same rates in Eastern Canada coming as a distinct surprise to the audience, while his comparison of carrying charges on such commodities as sugar, tea and rice were even more surprising.

Not Political.

Mr. Oliver very strongly refuted the charge made by Mr. Carvell, chairman of the Railway Commission, to F. A. Starkley of the Associated Boards of Trade of British Columbia, that the Premier's fight on freight rates was political by sketching the history of the present agitation, which was started within a month after the provincial election in 1920, and as the present Legislature had in less than other two years to run, the Premier failed to see any reason for the classing of it as a political move either by Mr. Carvell or the party presiding at Creston.

Figures given by the Premier indicated that in 1921 about 6,000,000 bushels of grain moved westward while of last year's crop already 17,000,000 bushels had been handled at Vancouver. In discussing the grain handling matter with railway employees he had found that this business had meant almost steady employment to train crews this winter that a year ago were idle.

At Cranbrook he had found the added employment feature of the western grain trade was warmly endorsed by the C. P. R. employees.

In closing the Premier made a strong appeal for equalization of freight rates on behalf of this Province, holding that the true spirit of Canadian patriotism could not be fostered were the discrimination against British Columbia permitted to continue.

Visit Welcomed.

The Premier had a unique reception to his visit to Creston, amongst the favors shown him being a request to speak at a Presbyterian tea, at which he discussed British Columbia legislation affecting women.

At noon yesterday he was a guest at a Board of Trade luncheon at the Creston Hotel. The morning was spent in the soldier's settlement at Camp Lister, where he received a deputation of soldier farmers.

A delegation from the Canyon local of the United Farmers had a conference with him, amongst other things, urging that in the Government's immigration policy slight be made in favor of the many hundred acres owned by the Land Settlement Board near Canyon City.

WATER ON SIDES OF CITY

Large Area in Manitoba Under Water

Winnipeg, April 21.—(Canadian Press)—A swirling torrent of water fed by the Assiniboine River and the district southwest, which was inundated early this morning when the river banks broke, is descending on Portage la Prairie, sixty miles west of this city, to-day, and early this afternoon the city was virtually surrounded by water with the west end of the city, where the water is four feet deep on some streets, are held prisoners in their homes, railway trains are held up with water up to the axles, the stations are flooded, and flood waters are fast filling the basements in the downtown section of the city.

Unless the situation is relieved within the next few hours every street in the city will be inundated. The water is coming principally from the west along the railway lines.

WATER ON SIDES OF CITY

Many acres of farmlands in the vicinity of Portage have been flooded and residents in some cases had to desert their homes last night and take refuge in the trees. The water is threatening the fast moving waters and already one leading to the island, a park has been broken up, leaving two men and valuable livestock marooned on the island.

Headly, twelve miles west of this city, and Elia, where great damage resulted to farm lands last night, reported the Assiniboine rising steadily, with a two-foot advance overnight. It will have to come up four feet in most places before the danger point is reached, although some low-lying land in the vicinity of Elia has already been under water. To the southwest of the city many hundreds of acres, principally hay land, are under water in the Stone-wall and Stony Mountain districts.

Headly is now under water, and the municipalities in the outskirts of this city with the water running off gradually.

The situation along the Red River in Winnipeg was more favorable to-day with a rise of only three inches reported overnight. Blasting operations are now being started, to break up ice jams brought about by the improvement.

All over the territory south and east from Brandon and Portage la Prairie to Morris, Sanford, Oak Bluff and Spring great inundation prevails and after a period of inspection, Hon. Wm. Green, Provincial Minister of Public Works, declared to-day that the peak had not been reached.

Don't let diapers irritate your baby's skin

NO matter how carefully you bathe and powder him—if his diapers are washed with harsh soap—his tender skin will suffer.
 The diaper rash that is the source of such severe suffering to babies is caused by this very thing—washing diapers with harsh or impure soaps.

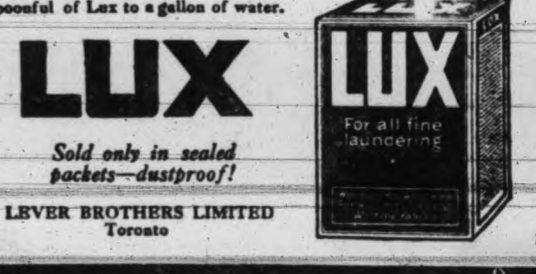

Safe for all his little clothes
 Keep your baby's diapers soft and comfortable. Wash them in pure, safe Lux suds and thoroughly rinse.

There is no free alkali in Lux to stick to them and make them irritating. No harmful ingredient to inflame the sensitive skin. These pure flakes are safe for all the clothes that touch his tender skin.

Use Lux for your baby's soft woolen shirts and bands, his petticoats and dresses, his diapers and socks.

To keep diapers from irritating

To prepare for washing: Remove all solid matter immediately—put to soak in cold water. If diapers are simply wet place in a covered pail and let soak in cold water.
 To wash: Whisk two tablespoonsful of Lux into a tub of water in a tub of very hot water. Let diapers soak for a few minutes then dip up and down—pressing—suds repeatedly through them. Thoroughly rinse in three waters. Boil diapers once a week, using one tablespoonful of Lux to a gallon of water.

BIBLE SOCIETY MET IN WINNIPEG

A. M. Donovan, of Toronto, Was Elected President

Winnipeg, April 21.—The Canadian Bible Society concluded the business of its general meeting here yesterday with the election of officers, A. M. Donovan, B. A., of Toronto, being chosen president for 1923. N. W. Noyles, K. C., LL.D., who had filled the office for many years, was made honorary president.

Sir James Aikins, Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba, who addressed the meeting, which was attended by delegates from the auxiliaries of the Dominion, announced his intention of contributing to the general fund to be expended in Manitoba the sum of $1,000 a year for five years. The financial statement showed that the total income for 1922 was $245,151, and the expenditure $205,254, and that there had been contributed to the parent society in London $113,105.

DWELLS ON NEED OF IMMIGRATION

Canada Must Have Many Permanent Settlers, Says Senator Beaubien

Ottawa, April 21.—That Canada must "import bone and sinew to build up the nation," and also that she must get the right kind of immigrants, was stressed in the Senate yesterday afternoon by Senator C. P. Beaubien, who was calling attention of the Government to the nations enjoying the most favored nation clause without any adequate compensation being given to Canada. Dealing with the need of immigrants, Senator Beaubien said Canada needed men who would become bona-fide settlers and not mere transients. Of an increase in population by immigration and births in the decade 1911-1912 totalling 3, $11,800, Canada had lost 2,248,949, which meant that in addition to forfeiting the entire increase by immigration, she had lost 273,956 of her natural-born, he said.

Trade Treaties.
Canada must use every possible means to develop her foreign trade, and the best means was by the negotiation of good trade treaties. Canada's importations per head were four times greater than the per capita importations of the United States. To foreign producers, Canada was worth a market of 30,000,000 people. Great Britain had opened the road for the denunciation of these treaties by Canada. The treaties mentioned by Senator Beaubien were with Spain, Argentina, Colombia, Norway, Russia, Sweden, Switzerland and Venezuela. Sir George Foster adjourned the debate.

danger. Reaction was inevitable, and the greater the suppression the more violent the rebound. That does not, however, altogether account for the ominous visibilities of a coming struggle unprecedented in its gravity. Fundamental issues have been raised of such moment to millions that they cannot be settled without a struggle that will rock society.

AN UNEASY FEELING.

The scene enacted in the Commons a few days ago was by no means as exciting as that which some of us witnessed in 1892. But it gave me an uneasy feeling that the period of calm is definitely over and that parliament henceforth must expect gusts and gales—and worse. Emotions are once more welling up, and there are signs of a great stir coming in British politics. The cause is easily explained. The sense of exhaustion is passing away, and issues containing a serious challenge to the privileges and rights of powerful classes in the community, and vital to the interests of all classes, have been raised by one of the great political parties that divide Britain.

SNOWDEN'S CHALLENGE.

The momentous character of that challenge may be gathered from the terms of the motion submitted by Mr. Philip Snowden to the judgment of the House of Commons: "That in view of the failure of the capitalist system to adequately utilize and organize natural resources and productive power, or to provide a necessary standard of life for vast numbers of the population, and believing that the cause of this failure lies in private ownership and control of means of production and distribution, this House declares that legislative effort should be directed to gradual supersession of the capitalist system by an industrial and social order based on public ownership and democratic control of instruments of production and distribution. This motion will receive the full support of the members of the Labour Party. A few men outside the Socialist Party who have acquainted themselves with the publications of this party were quite prepared for this demand of complete change in the organization of society. And as they saw that party grow with startling rapidity, they knew we should not have long to wait before these subversive ideas would be formulated in the House of Commons.

SURPRISE AND SHOCK.

Still, even for students of socialist literature, the actual introduction of the resolution on behalf of the second largest party in the state came as a surprise and a shock. Too much credit was given to the restraining influence of the trade union section of the party. Sir Lynden Maccaisey, in his informing book on "Labor Policy, False and True," points out that it was in 1885 that the first avowed advocates of this proposal for the abolition of private property and for nationalization of all means of production and distribution first stood for parliament. There were only two candidates standing on this platform, and they polled 32 and 29 votes respectively.

At the last election the aggregate socialist poll reached the imposing figure of 4,211,011 votes. The party that secured a majority of members in the House of Commons polled only 5,467,871 votes. Mr. Ramsey MacDonald states categorically that he knows that independent Liberal members—exclusive of their leaders—favor nationalization and a capital levy. If that be an accurate statement of the views of the majority of these gentlemen and of those who elect them, nearly one-half of the British electorate are already prepared to assent to Socialist proposals—which is the purport of Mr. Philip Snowden's motion.

GREAT CHANGES COMING.

On that assumption we are on the eve of greater and more fundamental changes affecting the lives of every class and condition of men and women than has yet been seen in this country. Hence the new sense of struggle with which the political atmosphere is palpating. Capitalism is to be arraigned before the supreme court of the nation, condemned, sentenced and executed by instalments—Chinese fashion. The composition of that court is not to-day favorable to the prosecution. But who will be the judges after the next general election?

It is customary in a political controversy to state that the election which is for the moment impending will be the most epoch-making in history. Without exaggeration, the next British election may well turn out to be so. The British people, with their inherited political instinct, are beginning to realize that grave decisions must then be taken. Hence the greater keenness shown by the voters at by-elections—hence the new interest taken by the public in the proceedings of parliament.

APATHY AND INDIFFERENCE.

There is still a good deal of apathy and indifference. The average comfortable citizen is still inclined to think these Socialist schemes so crazy as to be impossible. They cannot believe that 21,000,000 of sane people can possibly contemplate giving their sanction to such fanatical ideas. There are two cardinal facts which are constantly overlooked by the complacent. The men and women who have no property for the State to seize constitute an overwhelming majority of the electors of the country. The second fact to note is the great preponderance of the industrial population over the staid and more stolid agricultural population. America, in spite of its gigantic manufacturing and distributing industries, still remains sixty per cent. of its population on the land. The same proportion of the French and Italian populations is agrarian. Barely ten per cent. of British workers are engaged in cultivating the soil. Most of our workers breathe and have their being in the crowded and excitable atmosphere of factories, workshops and mines. The air is filled with germs of all kinds, and isolation in these thronging areas is impossible. Hence the rapidity with which the fever has spread. Can it be arrested? ALL MUST SEE DANGER AHEAD.

Nothing will be done until the danger is visible to every eye. To vary the metaphor, no one will believe in the flood until it is upon us. Trained weather prophets who forecast its coming will be laughed at or told they have a personal or party interest in ark building. It is an old tale—as old as the dawn of history. "As in the days before the flood they were eating and drinking and knew not until the flood came and took them all away."

HOW TO AVOID IT.

The trouble can only be averted in two ways. One is systematic inculcation of sound doctrines of economic truth into the minds of the working people of this country. The second, and more important, is the rooting out of social evils which furnish the revolutionary with striking and indelible lessons of the failure of the capitalist system as an agent of human happiness. Without the latter the former effort will be futile. Arguments in favor of the existing order will be refuted by glaring and painful facts. Meanwhile, let the champions of that order take note of the efforts put forth by the Socialists to advertise their eagerness to redress the wrongs of the ex-service men, and to soften the asperities of discipline for the soldier.

The Socialist leaders have shrewdly taken note of the causes that produced the overthrow of their Italian brethren, and they mean to take such steps as will ensure that if Fascism comes in Britain it will be an ally and not a foe.

THE SOLDIER SETTLEMENT BOARD.

Governments in these troublous times get used to complaints and receive them with equanimity. They will sometimes admit that a few of the grumbles are legitimate; but for the most part they put them down to disappointments from which Opposition forces consider they are suffering. On this account it must be a matter of satisfaction for the Prime Minister and his colleagues at Ottawa to learn that out of the 450 soldier settlers from whom Miss Agnes McPhail has heard only about half a dozen had any complaint about the Soldiers' Settlement Board or the operation of the Act. Here is a condition which may be taken to indicate that good buying and judicious location—not forgetting an insistence on the settlers standing on their own legs as soon as possible—has brought reward.

It goes without saying that new applications from ex-service men will, from the nature of the case, come to an end in a short time. On the other hand it would seem to be good business to keep the organization intact until a substantial part of the outstanding loans, amounting to something like $100,000,000, have been repaid. It might even be a definite economy to use the well tried and effective machinery of the Board as part of the permanent system that shall be adopted as soon as the larger influx of new settlers begins. It has accomplished splendid results in the case of ex-soldiers. If it can perform similarly successful service with the rank and file—with the assistance of British financial aid and contributions from the settlers themselves—it would justify its existence. Much better get a thousand new people who will succeed than twice the number of indifferent ones. The former would be some excellent immigration agents themselves.

LABOR AMBITIOUS IN LUDLOW.

British Labor was obviously ambitious to contest the Ludlow division of Shropshire. It surely never expected to win it and it will neither be surprised nor particularly disappointed because it will remain in the Tory column. It might not have been safe to have considered it as a foregone conclusion that Lord Windsor's successor would not change the political representation of the riding. Liverpool was a glaring example of a conversion that surprised the Laborites themselves as well as other political prophets; but it must have been obvious to Mr. Ramsay MacDonald that of all the constituencies in Great Britain he could not have selected one that held less promise for the official Opposition candidate—recent Labor successes in four by-elections notwithstanding. The whole of the Western section of the Ludlow riding is essentially rural and at no point is industry sufficiently represented to warrant anything but a slender hope on Labor's part. As a matter of fact the division of votes on this occasion fairly represents the political complexion of the district—what it has been for years and what it bids fair to remain under the present distribution of seats in the County.

ANOTHER HOSPITAL GIFT.

In undertaking to equip and maintain a six-bed ward at the Jubilee Hospital the British Columbia Cement Company will very materially help to solve the obvious financial difficulties which must always face this and other hospital directorates until the cost of healing the sick is uniformly borne by the people as a whole. The gift is a magnificent one in itself and we shall hope that the spirit which prompted it may be emulated by other corporations and individuals who recognize the size of the responsibility which rests upon those who are able to accept it in practical fashion. It must be a source of satisfaction to the Board to learn that its efforts to improve the institution and its equipment are being so admirably seconded.

COMPLAINTS FROM NOVA SCOTIA.

A Conservative member of the Nova Scotia Legislature—there are still three Conservatives in Nova Scotia—has bethought himself of the possibility of securing political advantage by appealing to whatever latent sentiment there may be against the position of the province in Confederation. The complaint that Nova Scotia has been unfairly treated is an old one and is looked upon with some impatience by the rest of the Dominion.

W. S. Fielding was Minister of Finance from 1896 to 1911. R. L. Borden was Prime Minister from 1911 for several years. Now Mr. Fielding is Finance Minister again. Did either of these gentlemen neglect the interests of the Province that sent them to Parliament? If so, the fact is not revealed in the public accounts of Canada. The annual estimates for decades have contained numberless items in aid of more or less necessary wharves and other public works along the Atlantic Coast while at the same time British Columbia could hardly obtain a dollar.

And what about the Inter-Colonial railway? It was constructed with Federal funds. It has been a continuous source of soft jobs or soft contracts to pretty much everybody along the route. Its enormous annual deficits have been a feature of Canadian history for approximately half a century. But, instead of being grateful for this unceasing stream of gold, the beneficiaries have constantly and unblushingly demanded more.

The secret of the present discontent is probably to be found in the fact that an effort is now being made to run the Inter-Colonial on something like business principles. The employees perceive just ahead of them the prospect of being compelled to earn their pay. Small wonder if a politician out of office sees glimmerings of hope in such a situation.

The truth is that the Maritime Provinces have received treatment which may fairly be described as generous. They may have suffered to some small extent from geographical drawbacks, but the rest of the Dominion surely ought not to be held responsible for the shape of the Earth.

Nova Scotians who think their province has been ill-used might study the history of British Columbia and learn something. The existence of the Pacific Coast has long been known to Parliament in a sort of way, but only very recently has there been anything approaching adequate recognition of its claims. Even yet the recognition is none too overwhelming, but of late it has at least been sufficient to give promise of better things in the not too distant future.

Every province, however, should bear in mind that in the development of this country there is much more to be done than there is money to do it with. To the residents of each section its difficulties are pressing, while those of other sections are ignored or belittled. The Nova Scotia gentleman who wants to smash Confederation can find kindred spirits everywhere across the continent. They stir up strife but they get nowhere. They are a topic of discussion for a day or two, but they are not taken very seriously, not even by themselves.

MAKING CARELESS PEOPLE PAY.

Careless people who use the woods of this Province for their own enjoyment, and sometimes forget the elementary precautions that are necessary to prevent the destruction of the very thing that gives them so much pleasure, should take notice that the Provincial Government may take action against them to recover the cost of such fire fighting as may be occasioned by their negligence.

A case tried before Mr. Justice Morrison in Vancouver indicates how this law may operate where the workmen of a firm are considered to have been careless and their actions the cause of a fire. The Government successfully claimed $5,563 for "services rendered"—the cost of extinguishing the fire. This instance sets a precedent which will be followed by others where proof of guilt may be established.

Most people will realize that carelessness and negligence out-of-doors during the Summer weather endangers their own property. They would not dream of throwing a lighted match or a half-lighted cigarette butt into their own backyard wood pile. Why should there be such different behavior elsewhere? All that is required is a little intelligent thought. Without it one of our greatest natural possessions will be gradually destroyed.

A USEFUL BODY.

It should be possible for the Industrial Committee of the Chamber of Commerce to perform a useful service in acting as an intermediary between the investor and the legitimate seeker of capital for the expansion of local enterprise. Such a body is the logical agency for bringing the two together. It should be able to obtain all the necessary information and present it with authority and reliability. People with idle dollars might well place themselves in touch with the committee. Needless to add the latter will not starve for the want of application for assistance.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Britain's Parliament does not seem to take kindly to the Dundee member's plan to Vok-stead the country.

The Irish Free State has made application for admission to the League of Nations and Turkey will follow suit when the Lausanne Peace Treaty has been finally agreed upon. This ought to be taken as a good omen; between the two of them they have been responsible for quite a lot of strife.

It is a simple matter to talk about military intervention to put an end to the Soviet Government of Russia and all its works. But it is a horse of another color to start on the job. Invasions of Russia have not been very successful. Her size and general undeveloped condition—not to mention the distaste with which her people view interference with even their Bolshevik rulers—make a formidable geographical opponent in themselves. She will mend her ways when people and Government realize that the present method of doing business does not pay. There are already growing indications that the Moscow crowd will soon complete the bolt from their own programme. When that takes place the country's entrance into decent society should not be far off.

The Halifax Chronicle—It goes without saying, as we assured him at the time of his appointment, that Mr. L. S. And now with the pledge of co-operation of the employees of the several departments, he may undertake his task with the assurance that he will have solid backing in making his administration a success. The good will of the community will be an important aid in achieving that success.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

To the Editor:—Now that daylight saving for the city appears to be assured to commence on May 5, although not by the choice of will of the people, but by a section of the City Council, I would like once more to urge the adoption of a suggestion I put forward in these columns a few weeks ago. It was to this effect, that the school attendance hours for children be changed during the "daylight saving" period from 9 a. m. till 12 noon to 10 a. m. till 1 p. m. and from 1 p. m. till 3 p. m. to 2 p. m. till 4 p. m. This is a very reasonable change, to ask, and does not work a hardship on anybody on the other hand it gives the children ample time to sleep and get ready for school, and less time to run the streets, which is not a benefit to them or their parents. I hope this will be acted upon, as after all the growing generation are the ones to be considered. I would like other parents to join in this subject, as I am only one humble parent. J. H. ELLIS, Washington Avenue, City, April 20, 1923.

CITY STANDS BY PROMISE TO PAY HIGH INTEREST

Ask Government to Validate Illegal Interest Payments in American Money

Must Keep Faith With Bond Holders, Council Decides; May Go to People

Power will be sought by the city from the Provincial Government immediately to validate the illegal payment of interest on old city loans in New York funds when this interest should have been paid in relatively lower British and Canadian funds. The City also will seek power from the Government to continue interest payments on these loans in New York funds. Announcement to this effect was made late yesterday afternoon after the City Council in secret session, had grappled with the bond interest problem for about two hours. Payment of interest in New York funds, it was explained, must be continued to sustain the city's credit and ratify an informal and illegal promise given to bond companies years ago. "The loans in question, it was stated, were floated in 1913. Their face value was $134,000. Interest on them was to be paid in Canada or England. This was specifically provided on the face of the bonds. Bond companies handling the bonds informed the city shortly after the issue of the loans that the market for the securities in England and Canada was unsatisfactory. They urged the city to guarantee to pay interest in American funds and with this guarantee, they said, they could sell the bonds satisfactorily in New York.

Sold in U. S. A.

In response to the request of the bond companies city officials wrote a formal letter stating that interest payments would be met in American funds as well as in British or Canadian funds. This letter bore the city seal and, according to officials, was authorized by the Finance Committee. As a result the bonds were sold in the United States, and American bond holders received their interest in American funds.

Payments Illegal.

According to City Solicitor H. S. Pringle, however, these payments in American funds were quite illegal, because on the face of the bonds it is provided that interest shall be paid in Canadian or British funds. This provision regarding the payment of interest could not be changed by a letter from a city official or the Finance Committee, or even by the Council, unless the whole loan was re-issued. Mr. Pringle has told the Council.

During the war years when the Canadian dollar was at a discount in the United States, the city, of course, lost money in making interest payments in New York. If the Canadian dollar were to drop again and the city continued to pay in New York funds it would lose more money.

Must Back Up Promise.

While the City Council strongly disapproves of payment in New York funds it decided yesterday that it was necessary to back up to the limit the city's promise to pay in New York, even though that payment was illegal. Bond holders bought bonds on the strength of this promise, it was explained, and the aldermen feel that they should be protected.

If the Provincial Government refuses to validate the illegal New York payments the Council will submit the whole issue to the electors. It was announced after yesterday's meeting.

VICTORIA DEBATORS DEFEAT VANCOUVER

Upholding Newspapers, Local Normal School Representatives Win

Victoria Normal School debaters last night defeated a debating team from the Vancouver Normal School in an argument on this resolution: "Resolved, that newspapers are a greater influence for good than evil." The Victoria team, Capt. W. Ord and Miss McKenna, upheld the affirmative and were opposed by W. J. Eades and W. D. Franklin. Rev. Dr. Leslie Gray, in rendering the decision of the judges remarked that a better subject than the value of newspapers could not have been chosen. The Vancouver men, he Girardville, Que, April 20 (Special). From all over Quebec Province reports are coming telling of the continued popularity of Dodd's Kidney Pills as a remedy for all forms of kidney trouble. No place appears to be too small to furnish at least one person who is prepared to say that she owes her health to the great Canadian Kidney Remedy, Madame Jean Blais, a well-known resident here, is one of them.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me a great deal of good. I have taken many other remedies, but none of them did what the first box of Dodd's Kidney Pills did for me. I tell all my friends about them."

Dodd's Kidney Pills have become a family remedy all over the Province because people have tried them and found them good. They are purely and simply a Kidney remedy. They help rheumatism, Lumbago, Diabetes, Lame Back, Heart Disease and urinary troubles because all of these are either Kidney diseases, or are caused by the Kidneys failing to do their work.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS TO-DAY

Madrid—The ultimatum of the United States was received early this morning in English. The Spanish Government immediately broke off diplomatic relations with the United States, notifying the United States Minister to this effect before he was able to present any note.

Vancouver—The city and inlet were illuminated between the hours of twelve and two this morning by the flames of a big fire on the water front. The buildings on Blinman's wharf got light, and the fire extended to the New England Fish Company's premises adjoining. Four 200 lb. cars, filled with valuable freight, were destroyed. Some dynamite and cartridges exploded.

said, had made the most of a very difficult task in attempting to prove that newspapers were a greater force for evil than for good. The other judges were Mrs. Spofford and H. S. Fringle.

The Victorians pointed to the enormous value of newspapers in spreading information—a service without which civilization as we know it would be impossible. If there were no newspapers commerce would collapse and the world would sink backward, they asserted.

The Vancouver debaters strove to show that newspapers were controlled by evil influences, and even stated that the great news-gathering agencies were instruments of propaganda and distortion—an assertion which apparently did not much impress the judges.

C. A. Stewart, President of the Literary Society of the Normal School, presided. Miss J. Milnehall rendered a pianoforte solo and a vocal number was given by Miss Jessie Stott. George Green played the cornet. Miss N. Pownall and Miss Violet Parfitt played accompaniments.

you become disabled what about your Life Insurance?

"I have always hesitated about increasing my life insurance because of the responsibility I would have to assume for the premiums," said a man who typifies a considerable class. "I always pictured myself in some situation, perhaps disabled through an accident, where I might be unable to pay the premiums."

But you may now insure against this possibility of future inability to pay your premiums. For a small additional charge the Mutual Life of Canada will issue your policy subject to a clause which provides that in case of total and permanent disability the Company will waive further premiums. Think of it! Your life insurance is safely provided for, no matter what happens.

But that is not all there is about these new clauses. In addition, upon approval of proofs of disability, the Company not only agrees to waive future premiums but will pay $10 a month per $1,000 of assurance, so long as total disability continues.

And still further, if the policyholder should die by accident the Company will pay double the amount of life insurance named in the policy. These liberal new clauses are now optional in all old or new Mutual policies if assured be over 15 or under 55 years of age.

GENUINE MADRAS CURRY POWDER

We have to hand a supply of the famous BOANERGES & CO. MADRAS CURRY

MEAT CURRY—Cut up three to four pounds of onions in thin slices, fry in hot butter or dripping until well browned, add 1/2 full tablespoon of Madras Curry Powder and mix thoroughly off the fire, then replace on fire and add one cup of milk and mix well, stirring for five minutes, then add 1/2 tablespoon of sugar, sprinkling the same, and stirring for ten minutes, then sprinkle about a dessertspoon of salt while mixing. The fire should not be too hot.

Now add a handful of raisins, stirring well, and sprinkle a little ginger, then let simmer for another ten minutes. This is the actual curry mixture.

For a dry curry take cover off saucepan and let it go on cooking for some time longer, stirring continually to prevent burning, when the gravy will be absorbed and the curry dry.

CAPITOL

Booth Tarkington said a beautiful when he wrote "The Flirt." Offered on the screen as a Universal-Jewel production, it stands alone among photoplays of the year as the "story of the folks next door."

"The Flirt" is about folks—typical American folks of the kind who ask a blessing at the dinner table and dress up on Sunday and laugh with life through tears.

The story opens with the Madisons at the dining table. Father at the head, daughters on either side and a kid brother where we could almost reach out and box his impish little ears.

Cora, "The Flirt," begins her conquest for hearts and her quest for power. Eileen Percy plays the role brilliantly.

Laura, her sister, is established as the sacrificing girl of hidden emotions. Helen Jerome Eddy is admirably suited. George Nichols, as the father, is heroic. The unfolding of the story finds him battling against Cora's selfish greed and brutal pride for enough money to keep his home together and his name clean.

"The Flirt" perhaps will prove to be the outstanding picture of the year. It is a noteworthy production, and will be shown for the last time at the Capitol Theatre to-night.

plays at the Dominion Theatre for last times to-day. This set consists of a two-story house and gardens, complete in every detail. To construct a scene in this way means the saving of much time and expense, which would be incurred if it were necessary to transport an entire production unit to proper locations. The picture itself is a most amusing comedy, with Theodore Roberts, May McAvoy and Conrad Nagel in the featured roles.

COLUMBIA

The new Paramount picture, "Three Live Ghosts," featured Anna Q. Nilsson and Norman Kerry, is pleasing large audiences at the Columbia Theatre this week. It is a delightful picture production by George Fitzmaurice. The various roles are artistically portrayed.

ROYAL VICTORIA

Three persons, as a rule, settle the question as to whether or not a motion picture is or is not a high class production. There is the entertainment value—the producer, the star and the director. Of course, the cameraman and a good many others have a lot to do with the finished product, but in the main the responsibility devolves upon the three named.

In the case of "Suzanna," Mack Bennett's newest and greatest feature picture, which will be shown for the last time to-day at the Royal Victoria Theatre, each of the trio of producer, star and director, emphatically assert the film to represent high-water mark in their respective careers. Here, in what Mack Bennett has to say of the production:

"In all sincerity and without exaggeration, I say 'Suzanna' is the greatest achievement of my career. I feel that nothing I have ever produced approaches it from the standpoint of artistry, beauty and suspense. I am proud to have been the producer of such a picture. I shall strive to excel it, but I fear I won't succeed." And from Mabel Normand, who has the title, comes this expression as to the picture's excellence and her own part in it:

"Suzanna represents the greatest photoplay effort of my life. It is the most deliciously human story I have ever appeared in, and the character of Suzanna appeals to me more than any I have ever done. I am proud to have portrayed this character." "Suzanna is a wonderful picture," says "Dick" Jones, director, "by far the greatest thing I have ever done, either Mr. Sennett or Miss Normand has ever done. The story, the period, the characterizations, everything, in fact, adapt themselves to evolving an almost perfect motion picture. 'Suzanna' is a picture of which I am infinitely proud."

"ME AND MY GAL" IS COMEDY SENSATION AT ROYAL NEXT WEEK

Fresh from record-breaking runs in the Old Country comes the English comedy success, "Me and My Gal," a London fiasco of which the personality has taken England by storm, so much so that she is now almost a national hero over there.

Miss Betty Balfour, England's foremost comedienne, takes the part of Squire, the flower girl, and has secured such remarkable success that some of the reviewers are beginning to compare her to the famous Madame Charlie Chaplin, and others say she combines the funmaking proclivities of Chaplin with all the winsomeness of a Mary Pickford.

The film itself was naturally compared with "Alf's Button" and "The Better Ole," famous comedy successes of former days. Some hold it to be better than these past successes and others hold the opposite. The majority, however, favor "Me and My Gal," in the strength of its adding a distinct by romantic and quaint touch to the humor of "The Better Ole" and "Alf's Button."

"Me and My Gal" will have its

"PRODIGAL DAUGHTERS" COMING TO DOMINION ALL NEXT WEEK

There is a genuine novelty in the latest Paramount picture, "Prodigal Daughters," starring Gloria Swanson, which will be presented at the Dominion Theatre next week. It is a scene in the home of "Swiftie" Forbes (Gloria Swanson) of what was once a billiard and smoking room which has been converted into a small private dance parlor, with built-in buffet bar. There is an entrance through the main hall on one side through swinging, saloon-like doors. It still has a few of its former trophies such as animal heads, but these are jaded up with the collections gatherings from the cafes, unique party favors. "Prodigal Daughters" is a swift-moving, ultra-modern story with the star surrounded by an exceptional cast of supporting players, headed by Ralph Graves, one of the most popular leading men of the screen.

FLONZALEY QUARTETTE PROGRAMME FOR MONDAY NIGHT

The coming of the Flonzaley Quartette brings perfection within the reach of mortal ears and gives the listener an hour of undiluted joy. This quartette be it said without undue flight of fancy, is a model of poised perfection. Anyone observing their perfect accordance and the sheer sensuous beauty of the ensemble, can understand that he is in the presence of a very exalted kind of musical interpretation. The tonal balance, which is almost miraculous—-one in four and four in one, the exquisite purity of the intonation and the resultant ephony, these qualities would be rare indeed, but when to this is added a commanding musical intelligence, then you ask, "Is there a second string quartette like the Flonzaley?" and echo answers "Not yet!" The programme which the quartette will play at the Royal Victoria Theatre on Monday, under the local direction of Mrs. Ricardo, is as follows:

Haydn Quartette in B flat major, Opus 76, No. 4. Allegro con spirito. Adagio. Minuetto. Allegro mo' non troppo. Arnold Bax. Lento e assai espressivo (From Quartette in G major) Schumann Adagio (From Quartette in A minor, Op. 41, No. 1)

Frank Bridge, "The Londonderry Air" Josef Smetana, "Puck" Local direction—Mrs. Ricardo.

The quartette is composed of: Adolfo Betti First violin Alfred Pachon Second violin Louis Baily Cello Viola Iwan D'Archambault Violoncello

ENID BENNETT AT CAPITOL NEXT WEEK IN "ROBIN HOOD"

Something of an idea of the bigness and scope of Douglas Fairbanks' latest photoplay sensation, "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood," is contained in the following summary of facts given herewith. For this last word in cinematic heroism, which is coming to the Capitol Theatre next week, under a United Artists release, a Miriam Moss production, artists and artisans labored for months before ever a camera lens was opened.

Twenty-two experts devised and studied in the necessary research work for accurate designing of the colossal sets.

Libraries the world over were ransacked by these experts for authoritative facts ascertaining the historical data that might be presented truthfully to the period.

Hundreds of workmen labored three months to build the sets. One million feet of lumber were used in their construction.

The timber was set on board feet, would cover twenty acres of ground; if placed end to end would span a distance about five hundred miles. One carload, or about thirty tons, of nails were consumed in erecting the sets.

Two hundred and fifty tons of material went into the castle walls.

More than fifteen acres of studio property are in use for the principal sets. The King's castle set covers two and one-half acres and is 210 feet in height. The exterior is 620 feet long.

In building the castle 174,000 square feet wall board, plaster board and button lath were required.

There are eight canteen towers, each would hold 275,000 gallons. The castle is surrounded by a moat, built from historically correct specifications, broad enough and deep enough to serve as a genuine barrier against the taking of this stronghold.

The royal banquet room in the castle the largest room in the studio being larger even than the concourse of the Pennsylvania Terminal Station in New York City.

T.K.K. WILL NOT CURTAIL SERVICE

Reported Withdrawal of Two Passenger Ships Is Denied

San Francisco, April 21.—Local offices of the T. K. K. to-day announced the receipt of a cablegram from Yokohama denying that the liners Korea Maru and Siberia Maru were to be taken out of the service.

The report, originally received by a Honolulu Japanese newspaper, the Nippon Jih, was relayed to San Francisco. The reason for the curtailing of the service, as given in the Honolulu dispatch, was that the Pacific Mail has made such inroads into the Orient business that there was no longer justification for the Japanese operating its fleet of five liners.

The local offices communicated with the T. K. K. offices at Yokohama and today's denial resulted.

Twenty-five hundred bales of raw silk, which arrived yesterday afternoon on the Pacific Mail liner President Lincoln, was discharged from the vessel and loaded on express cars in record time.

The entire shipment, was aboard the train in the short time of one hour and fifteen minutes from the time the liner was warped to the pier. The silk is valued at approximately $3,000,000.

Two more shipping board freighters that were taken off the vacation flats at Boncica are to be repaired and placed in “spot” service.

The vessels are the West Camargo and West Cadron. The bids for repairs to the latter vessel will be obtained tomorrow. The work, it is said, will cost approximately $30,000.

HED BY LEAKY CONDENSER TUBES

SS. President Madison Finally Got Away To-day for the Far East

Delayed by leaky condenser tubes the Admiral Oriental liner President Madison completed repairs here this forenoon and cleared this afternoon for sea.

The repair work, which proved to be extensive, was placed with Yarrow, Ltd., of Esquimalt. A gang of men were engaged to put the faulty tubes throughout the night and during the forenoon.

The passengers took advantage of the opportunity to spend as much of the time ashore as possible.

The President Madison took out sixty first class passengers and about 200 Chinese in the storage.

To bring luck to the Chinese in the storage and to rid the ship of the devil, the Chinese members of the crew of the vessel at the departure held an Oriental ceremony. The casting of the devil adrift on a plank after the setting off an appropriate amount of fire-crackers constituted the principal part of the ritual.

CLASSES PRESENT "JULIUS CAESAR"

Fine Performance of Shakespearean Historical Drama at High School

The annual entertainment presented by the Matriculating Classes of the Victoria High School last night took the form of a play, Shakespeare's Julius Caesar.

The performance was very well received by an audience of over five hundred, and the players, who have been rehearsing for many weeks, were entirely at home in their respective roles. Criticism could only be favorable, and it is stated on good authority that the play was the best the High School has presented in a number of years.

Some of the leading characters were excellent. Cato, Cassius, Brutus, the most outstanding as a conspirator, Marcus Brutus, Maxwell Maynard, was another of the popular and very successful parts. D. J. Macdonald and J. McKay, as Julius Caesar and Mark Anthony, respectively, were exceptionally good in their difficult roles. Conversations were carried off with the best of stage manners, and the actors themselves entering so wholeheartedly into their respective roles that their acting was unforced and spontaneous.

Portia, Jennette Miller and Calpurnia, Dorthea Smith, were both particularly fine, and played the very exacting roles which were theirs with true exactness. In the difficult scene where Portia attempts to drag from her husband the seaman of his worries, both were outstanding in their accomplished technique.

In the scene at Sardis, when Brutus is visited by the spirit of Caesar, the acting was tense with the situation. The players were keyed up to such a pitch as to speak and act with the very best effect.

The play opened with a chorus dance in which Misses Gibbons, Greenwood, Sandiford and Dorothy Dean took part. This was an attractive little bit, colorfully arranged by Miss Huntley, of the High School staff. Musical numbers between the acts made the evening's performance even more entertaining. The artists included Mrs. Gordon, soprano; Miss Lucile Hall, pianist; Miss Dorothy Dean, pianist; F. Waddington, baritone, and Miss Louise de W. Moore, accompanist.

To-night's performance will begin at a quarter past eight, and the doors will open at seven forty-five. A capacity house is expected.

St. John, N. B. April 21.—The steamship Empress of Britain arrived here last night from Southampton with 700 passengers.

Dr. W. G. Deputy Minister of Immigration, returning from a departmental business in England, spoke optimistically of the prospects for a good class of settlers coming to Canada from the Old Country.

CIVIL SERVANTS TO GET MORE PAY

Most of Increase to Go to Young Ones; Taxpayers Not to Suffer

Between 300 and 350 junior civil servants are to get increases of $2.50 to $5 a month starting from April 1, as was announced at the Parliament Buildings to-day.

The increases are being made by order-in-council as a result of recommendations of Acting Premier Macleod, Hon. M. Mansson, Hon. John Hart, who have been looking into the salary question for the whole cabinet. Annual statutory increases were discontinued in 1920 when the cost of living reached its peak. Now living costs which have had a big tumble are working higher again.

Junior males and females, especially single ones, who have been two-and-one-half years in service at under $75 a month are increased to that figure. Officials whose maximum in 1920 was $75 are getting no increase, their limit as a result of the elimination of statutory increases, will get increases up to $10 a month. Most higher paid officials will get no increase, but some of them have been made all through the Government service so that there will be only a small increase to the total of civil service salaries.

KILBANE'S TITLE IN DANGER

Criqui Is Disappointed Watch Johnny Dundee If Villa Defeats Wilde Tremaine Real Menace

Who will be the next feather-weight champion? Will the aging Kilbane be able to maintain his superiority, which has been but little tested for several years.

By Billy Evans. I was in New York when Eugene Criqui arrived from France to contest for the featherweight title.

On the surface that doesn't seem to be asking very much of a champion. Going deeper into the proposition it looms up as a rather large task.

Jack Sharkey, who recently returned from abroad, says that Willie has taken much weight and had told him that he would never fight again.

Freddie Welsh, former lightweight champion, says that he has taken much weight and had told him that he would never fight again.

Such a situation would give Villa the highest possible rating in the flyweight division despite the fact that he had previously suffered defeat by Genaro.

A Few Suggestions For Your Garden

NEWS AND LOCAL CHURCHES

FORTY-NINE CASES ARE TREATED BY DR. PRICE

Man Deaf and Blind In One Eye Declares Himself Cured; Crowd of Fully Six Thousand Attends First Meeting Last Night at Arena.

Great interest was shown in the apparent cures achieved by Rev. Dr. C. S. Price at the Arena last night. There were forty-nine cases on which he placed his healing hands, and which he anointed with oil.

First Meeting Held at Arena. It was the first meeting held by Dr. Price at the Arena, and the size of the congregation showed how rapidly public interest in his mission is growing.

Her Hearing Now All Right. Dr. Price told of a lady who was deaf at the meeting the previous day. She was deaf, but during the course of the meeting the Lord touched her and her ears were opened and she now hears quite well.

Several Treated After Meeting. After the close of the meeting Dr. Price laid hands on and anointed a number of cases.

There is a greater miracle than the healing of the body," said Dr. Price, "and that is the salvation of the soul."

CENTENNIAL BIBLE CLASS PROGRESSIVE

Young Men of Church Show Activities as Crusaders

The Crusaders organization has entered upon its tenth year of history, and is one of the liveliest and perhaps the best-known of young men's clubs in the city.

Most conspicuous of its activities apart from the Bible Study Class is the "clean sport" and "no drink" crusades.

An explanation was offered by Rev. Dr. W. J. Siggeff as to the financial arrangement under which Dr. Price has come to Victoria.

Mr. George Holt, the superintendent of the Sunday School of which the Crusaders organization is a part, is cooperating with the pastor and club officers to bring the new Sunday School plant to a successful issue.

Next Sunday afternoon at 2:30, the Crusaders Bible Class will be addressed by Dr. Howard Miller.

The officers are: W. Maynard, Executive vice-president; F. Lynn, secretary and J. C. Dowds, treasurer.

LADY ELIZABETH'S ARTLESS LOVE STORY EDITED BY QUEEN MARY

DUKE OF YORK'S BRIDE-TO-BE GIVES INTIMATE PORTRAIT OF HER OWN LIFE

She Wants to Do Something Big, as the Wife of the "Industrial Prince;" Duke Is Head Over Heels in Love With Her

"You're My Little Girl Now," Queen Said, As She Tucked Scottish Lassie in Bed

HERE is the first authoritative pen picture of Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, soon to be the bride of the Duke of York and, conceivably, one day the Queen of England.

The manner in which this article was obtained is in itself an interesting story highly indicative of the simple charms of this distinguished girl. Miss Jean Bates had done a number of services in charities and war work for certain influential members of the royal household. She had known Lady Elizabeth personally for some time. Hence they were all interested in her work as a journalist. She had no difficulty in arranging to spend an afternoon with this busy bride-to-be. And this simple Scotch lassie sat down and poured out her heart to Miss Bates.

Miss Bates wrote the interview as she had received it, quoting Lady Elizabeth directly. Lady Elizabeth saw the interview when it was written out and was delighted with it. She was about to approve of it for publication as it stood, when she bethought herself that that week-end she was scheduled to spend at Sandringham with the King and Queen. She said she'd better take the interview with her.

It formed the subject of a court and family conference, and when it was returned Lady Elizabeth had realized the first duties imposed upon her as a royalty. She must never be quoted directly in a newspaper. With the highest royal authority all direct quotation marks had been removed from the article with a royal blue pencil. Lady Elizabeth had slept in Princess Mary's old room at York Cottage, Sandringham, that Saturday night, and the Queen, with tears trickling softly down her cheeks, had come and tucked her in and whispered, "You're my little girl now." But she was a royal little girl and direct quotations were not to be permitted.

The interview nevertheless is the first accurate reflection of the character of the Duke's Scottish bride. It reveals her as the girl who believes in the ghosts of Glamis Castle and who wants to share the Duke of York's social welfare work for Britain's toiling millions—not a bad character for a possible future queen.

By JEAN BATES

London, April 21.—(Special Dispatch).—Number 17 Bruton Street, the town house of Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, the future Duchess of York, is an old London house dating from about 1700.

It is by no means a palatial residence, and the big drawing room, with its chintz covered furniture, centre table littered with magazines and papers, its many bookshelves, filled with volumes that are evidently well read; its great fireplace, surmounted by a shelf on which are several pieces of rare and beautiful china, including a tall green bird with a red cherry in its bill, with its great vases of freshly cut flowers, is not different from a score of other drawing rooms in Mayfair.

The piano stands open and music sheets lie scattered about as if they had been lately used. Between the two tall windows which open onto the quiet, old fashioned street is Lady Elizabeth's little writing table piled with correspondence, and covered with photographs of her relatives and friends.

Homely comfort and extreme simplicity were everywhere indicated; it is a room where one would find warmth and peace, and there is absolutely nothing to show that it belonged to a future princess. It is as ordinary, indeed, as—in these days of casual manners—Lady Elizabeth is extraordinary, extraordinary in her gentle courtesy, her desire to please and help, her complete lack of self-consciousness and her very real unselfishness.

NOT BORN PRINCESS BUT HAS ROYAL BLOOD.

It is usual to hear praise of royalty—so much so, in fact, that people are prone to be skeptical and to accept these eulogies with shrugged shoulders and some amusement.

Who would describe a princess as plain and homely or a prince as uninteresting and stupid?

But it must be remembered that Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon was not born a princess, albeit she has some of the most ancient royal blood of Scotland in her veins, and those of us who knew her previous to her engagement to the Duke of York can vouch for it that she is really as beautiful and attractive as her descriptions led the world to believe.

Long before she entered the fierce limelight of royal life she was generally recognized as one of the prettiest and sweetest of her sex—not that she ever sought to attract attention and admiration.

Nowadays, when society women and girls all seem to want to do something superlatively well in order to render themselves conspicuous, Lady Elizabeth has been content to take life quietly. She has never courted notoriety. For example, she is a tolerable artist, but paints and draws simply for her own pleasure; she plays and sings only when she is alone or with her family, and she realizes her own limitations. She plays tennis really well, but has rarely been photographed on the tennis courts; she rides and hunts when the latter sport does not prove too expensive. She speaks French with a perfect accent, and German, but declines to call herself a linguist.

From her Dutch and Scotch ancestors she has inherited a veritable talent for all that touches upon domestic life, and as a home maker she might prove herself equal, if not superior, to the most skilled and certificated house-keeper, and, strange that these two talents should be found together, she might also easily gain a livelihood as a professional dancer if fortune were to turn unkind and, like so many princesses and princesses nowadays, she suddenly found herself confronted with the necessity of earning her own living.

GREATEST BEAUTY LIES IN HER DARK BLUE EYES.

We all have our own idea of what a princess should be like, and to me, a Celt, Lady Elizabeth recalls to memory the pictures and descriptions of the Old World princesses of our race. Slender and delicate of figure, with tiny hands and feet, a little oval face, and complexion transparent and healthily pale, raven black hair, her greatest beauty lies, nevertheless, in her eyes, which are "as darkly blue as one of the mountain lakes in her own Highlands, and are shadowed by long, black lashes and level dark eyebrows. So much for Lady Elizabeth's outward appearance, but only those who really know her can have any appreciation of her characteristic sweetness and charm.

Lovable is the word that best describes her. There is something about her that hints of strange and beautiful possibilities. Voices, like those of the youngers of many monarchies, recall certain scenes, and somehow a glance at her young face brings back to memory scenes of misty blue mountains, purple moors, and wide open spaces; and I almost thought I could hear the skirl of the pipers and the haunting sad music of the Highlands. Looking about the great castle where, as she was to have a lady-in-waiting, she gave me to understand that this did not lie with her and that no doubt it would be decided later on; but she said she will be obliged to have somebody in attendance, at least for important ceremonies.

SPENT CHILDHOOD DAYS AT SCOTTISH CASTLE

With regard to her life as a child, she laughingly declares to inquirers that there is nothing much to tell. All her earliest years were spent at Glamis and in the company of her younger brother, David, from whom she was inseparable. From their "early childhood they used to wander about the great castle where, she proudly told me, her family had lived since the year 1376. In that year it came to the House of Lyon as the dowry of Princess Johanna (Glencairn) daughter of Robert the Second of Scotland. There is not a nook or cranny in the old building with which she is not familiar and she has feasted her eyes on the personal acquaintances. Long before the first Lyon came to live in Glamis it was the scene of strange happenings and tragedies.

NOT WORRIED AT ALL ABOUT HER TITLE

One thing about her is remarkable—she does not seem to care in the least what she was going to be called, whether or not she would be given the title of "royal highness" or if she was to have a lady-in-waiting. She gave me to understand that this did not lie with her and that no doubt it would be decided later on; but she said she will be obliged to have somebody in attendance, at least for important ceremonies.

ADMITS FAMILY SECRET BUT DOESN'T KNOW IT

There are other ghosts by no means so terrifying, and Lady Elizabeth (Lady Elizabeth's married name) informed me she had often seen the figure of a little lady in gray lifting before her down the corridor and "red staircase" as it is called. "This ghost never meets one face to face, but always looks away, keeping her back turned.

As to the family secret, Lady Elizabeth declares that she does not know it, as it was only possessed by the Earl, the heir, and the family factor—a huge tomb, but this seemed to cause Lady Elizabeth considerable amusement.

KNOWS LOT ABOUT FAMILY GHOSTS

Strangely enough, the famous ghosts are not those of "the gentle Duncan," of Macbeth or his wife or of Malcolm. One of the "most disagreeable" ghosts is, in fact, one whom the family call "Beardie."

HISTORY AND MEMOIRS ARE HER PASSION

History and memoirs are the form of literature for which Lady Elizabeth has a veritable passion, but for fiction she seems to care less. Her taste in novels is far from modern—Walter Scott, Dickens and Thackeray are her favorites, and among the more recent writers Kipling and Sir James Barrie rank first. She waxes enthusiastic over Kipling, and Barrie is to her "wonderful." It is not surprising that she loves Barrie's writings, because she has something in herself which might almost be described as "Barriescque," something of the youthful joy in life and gentle, merry loveliness of Peter Pan.

REPLIES PERSONALLY TO MOST LETTERS

A warm welcome awaited her at York Cottage, where, on the Sunday morning following her first arrival, crowds of the tenants assembled to get a glimpse of her. When in residence at York Cottage their majesties live the life led by any other English country squire, and there is very little formality.

ADMISSIVE OF VISITORS

As a visitor and a future member of the royal family Lady Elizabeth was given the suite of rooms which formerly belonged to Princess Mary. These rooms are small and the furniture is covered with pretty, gray chintzes. Even here, as in London and in her country home in Herefordshire, she is obliged to spend many hours replying to the telegrams and letters of congratulation that have been poured upon her since her engagement was announced. She has a secretary, but no one but herself is permitted to reply to these letters. They come from all parts of the Empire. I was told: from people whose names even she does not know. This is characteristic of Lady Elizabeth that she thinks only of the wonderful and, to her mind, inexplicable kindness of the writers towards herself.

HAD RABBITS, DOGS, PONIES AND DOVES

The pleasures and pastimes to be found at Glamis were sufficient for the two children, David and Elizabeth, who were nicknamed "We," and were inseparable, being near of age and the youngest of many brothers and sisters. To play about in the great rooms and long corridors, to tend their rabbits, cats, dogs, ponies and doves was their great delight. There was scarcely a domestic animal that they did not possess, and from the clannish they learned all the nature secrets of the moors, lochs and hillsides.

To tramp and roam over the heather and fish in the lakes and rivers was their great pleasure. When her brother David went to school the little sister still remained at home and learned lessons with governesses, leading a singularly uneventful life.

HOLIDAYED IN ALPS, TASTED OLD MASTERS

The winter holidays were frequently spent at Bordighera with their two grandmothers, both of whom resided on the Riviera, and during these holidays Lady Elizabeth said they spent long and happy days in the Alpine mountains, starting off early in the morning on the donkeys, taking lunch with them and attended only by the donkey boys. David and his sister explored the little cities on the hills, climbed the olive shaded slopes, where they gathered wild orchids and roses and were as free as in their own Highland home.

IS EARLY RISER; FOND OF GARDENS

Lady Elizabeth's tastes in sport, amusements and life generally are as unmodern and simple as her taste in literature. She does not, as said, mean existence, to the majority of present day girls. At her London home she answers letters in the mornings and works really hard, and after this has been done she goes for a walk or does some shopping, and in the evening, apparently, she is too tired to do more than rest and talk towards herself.

DUKE'S LOVE FOR HER KINDLED AT DANCE

Lady Elizabeth has known the Duke of York for many years; as

ANCESTORS GAVE ALL TO ASSIST KING

There is a sweet, practical side to Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon's character, which, reading the family history, seems to a great extent to have come down to her from her ancestor, Earl Patrick Lyon, whose father, the second Earl, had staked all his money and possessions on the cause of the King and the Episcopacy in the civil wars and so impoverished his infant heir that at the year of his death, in 1647, he left his son practically a pauper.

FINE CABINETS AND TAPESTRIES AT CASTLE

Not a few of the rare and wonderful cabinets, tables and chairs at Glamis were placed where they are to-day by the beauty loving Earl Patrick. With regard to one especially exquisite cabinet a letter still exists written by the Earl, in which he says: "I caused to bring home a verie fine cabinet, the better is not in the kingdome these days, which I never told my wyf of till her coming home, and upon her coming into her own chamber I presented her with the keyes of the cabinet."

WARM LOVE FOR HOME AND SCOTTISH KINDRED

The warm love for home and kindred which is so marked a characteristic in the future Duchess of York is also a legacy from the men and women of her house. Again and again through the long centuries in her family records, we can read of the passionate affection which the mothers and wives of husbands and children of her house bore toward one another.

THE QUEEN AT HER DESK IN BUCKINGHAM PALACE

Speaking of the women, the Lady Elizabeth sadly regrets that she cannot bring all her clanmen and women to London to see the marriage. It will be a terrible wrench to leave her home and her people with whom she has passed the greater part of her life. The Scotch folk are inclined to be a little jealous of "the English," and now and then they feel slightly sore that the kingdom has so to speak, departed from royal Edinburgh and their own Scottish kings. But they are nevertheless delighted and proud that "a lassie" of the noble and royal house of Lyon shall marry the King's son, and they are determined to have a great ball at Glamis and light bonfires on every hilltop on the wedding night.

THE QUEEN AT HER DESK IN BUCKINGHAM PALACE

The Queen Mary, who edited the love story of her daughter-in-law-to-be, and who, with King George, struck out all the direct quotation marks, and explained to the little Scottish lassie that she can no longer allow herself to be quoted now, as she is royalty. This, the latest photograph of the Queen, was taken at her desk at Buckingham Palace just after she had edited the story of the girl whom she calls "my little girl now."

MOTORCYCLE CLUB FORMED IN CITY

The Broome City Motorcycle Club was organized last night, when fourteen members were enrolled and a big programme of sports were drawn up for the year. The new club intends to carry on where the old Victoria Motorcycle Club left off, and is making a big drive for membership. All new members may register at The Cameron Motorcycle Company's store on Yates Street, or with Dick Shanks, at 850 Johnson Street.

Gateway to Camp Ground

The summer season of the present year will find the City of Victoria and its attractive automobile camping sites on the Pacific Coast. The new camp is situated on approximately six acres of ground, the property known as Curtis Point, lying between the Gorge Road, on the Saanich side of the Inlet. Several buildings are now under construction; the work is being hurried along as much as possible, and the official opening of the camp will take place May 18, although visitors are expected to begin coming before that date.

Last year proved the popularity of the location with the large number of automobile travellers who visited the city. Situated on the brink of the Gorge waters, in the shade of towering spruce, it is not only not a picture of a beautiful point of view, but gives the visitor an opportunity to indulge in the pleasant pastime of luke-warm salt water bathing to his heart's content.

The new auto camp will be a great attraction in holding the tourists in Victoria and vicinity, for a longer period than they might otherwise remain. The Camp owes its origin to the enterprise and energy of the members of the Tourist Trade Group of the Chamber of Commerce. All of the work to date in connection with the preparation of the grounds has been done by the members of this group, and their friends. Any others, however, who are willing to help will be entirely welcome if they will put in their appearance any Wednesday or Saturday afternoon, between now and the official opening.

Vancouver, New Westminster and Victoria Bodies Will Co-operate

Provincial Wide Organization Too Costly for Immediate Benefits

At a regular meeting held in room 217 Pemberton Building last night, with President Norman A. Yarrow in the chair, the Victoria Automobile Club played its part in the laying of the corner stone upon which it is anticipated will arise the structure of an all-B.C. Motor League. This action was achieved by the passage of a resolution sponsored by a joint meeting of Vancouver, New Westminster and Victoria Automobile Clubs recently. The resolution received the unanimous support of the Victoria body.

Resolution Adopted. It reads as follows: "That the members present at this meeting recommend to their individual clubs that action be taken forthwith to form an inter-club Motor League for British Columbia, with the object of giving improved service to all members and bringing about closer co-operation in all matters of common interest.

"The activities of such a league to be carried out by Provincial Executive to consist of representatives of the respective clubs to be elected thereby.

"Meetings to be held at least every three months at places to be agreed upon.

"Expenses of delegates to be borne by their respective clubs. "The towing services of each club to be extended into the territory of the other clubs, and the club whose member receives the service to be debited with the cost thereof.

"That in order to carry out the work of this league throughout the province each club be requested to contribute fifty cents per capita of its membership to a common fund."

President Norman Yarrow and Secretary R. R. Webb, delegates to a joint conference at Vancouver, reported on the findings of that meeting. The conference of that nature of a central organization to receive $2 per annum from each subscribing motorist to be used for provincial-wide purposes. (B) The resolution adopted by the Victoria body calling for closer affiliation will be between existing clubs in the three cities mentioned. (C) The creation of Provincial club and the abolition of the local clubs entirely.

In view of the scattered nature of the settlements in the Province, with the vast distances, and imperfect road facilities in Winter, it was found that the cost of inauguration of a Provincial unit, at once would be too great, and its benefits hampered by the lack of adequate communication throughout the length and breadth of the Province, stated the chairman.

After due consideration had been given to every proposal a course now adopted, a resolution changing the resolution has been adopted by the New Westminster, and Vancouver Clubs also, it was stated. The Victoria delegates were thanked for their report, and the finding of the inter-city conference ratified as stated.

The resolution, stated the president, would prove to be the inception leading to the ultimate welding of the motoring section of the Province in the future. With common aims the local clubs could now act together in legislative, towing, and other reforms urged, and work as a unit in the recommendation of road and other facilities upon the authority as the case might necessitate from time to time. The watchword now was "co-operation" through the channel thus created.

Status of Members. Sponsored by H. Cuthbert Holmes, and amended at the suggestion of F. Butterfield, a resolution changing the by-laws of the local club as to membership was carried. The resolution brings into force three classes of members: Members proper, city motorists within a radius of ten miles of the city hall; out-of-town members wishing all privileges save towing within the limits of Victoria would be granted and an annual fee of $5 charged for the new membership in the first two cases the fee will be $10 straight, with full towing privileges here, and also in Vancouver and New Westminster.

The three classes of membership all include legal advice, insurance

"MADE-IN-VICTORIA" CONTEST NOW OPEN

W many articles sold over the counter or otherwise marketed can rightly be said to have been "Made-in-Victoria" products. These are the products of home enterprise, and how are they made? For the best answer to these questions a prize of $5 is offered, subject to the following simple rules. The contest will be limited to those of sixteen years of age and under. It is now open and will close May 30, by which date all entries must be in. Address all entries to The Times, Children's Page, and you may make as many entries as you wish.

The contest will be known as the "Made-in-Victoria" competition, and is composed of two parts: a list of every article made or produced in Victoria and vicinity for sale by any legitimate trader; and a review of one of these articles showing how that article is made from the raw material to the finished product. The contest awards will depend equally upon both phases of the competition, the list of home-made goods, and the story of how one of these articles is made.

For the purpose of this contest the list of "Made-in-Victoria" articles need not be confined to manufactured goods alone, but will include anything of merchantable quality produced in this city and the surrounding vicinity, including Saanich, Esquimalt, Sooke, and all sections of the Island south of the Malahat. This does not mean that the entire article must be made within these limits, but only that the actual turning out of the finished article must be done locally.

Contestants are advised to bear in mind that the competition is only open to those of the age-limit specified, and that it deals solely with articles being made in this time. What might have been made here in the past and is now obtainable locally is of little use in this competition. As there are said to be well over a hundred different articles that can rightfully claim to be "Made-in-Victoria," the subject should afford plenty of scope for our little readers of an inquiring turn of mind.

To explain more clearly what is meant, let us suppose that a contest were held for "Made-in-Victoria" articles. The contestant submitting this industry in his entry would include it in the general list of all he knows to be made locally. That done, the entrant would write a short story of how the artificial diamonds were actually made; from what material and by what process or succession of processes. To do this he would naturally have to see the artificial diamonds manufactured—so that he could get his knowledge at first hand.

Having covered that, the same entrant might wish to describe another industry—say, for example, the curing of cod-fish. The same would apply in this case. He would include fish curing in his general list, and then tell us how fish are cured, where caught, and how treated from the time the fish are taken on board until the product is retailed over the counter in the stores. Bear in mind both these examples are hypothetical cases and have no relation to your choice in the contest list.

To get the facts for your entry you will have to study the subject and ask a great many questions. The more you investigate the more interested you will become in the study, and the better will be your answer to the question. Watch the newspapers for advertisements, the store windows for their cases, and the telephone book for many a useful tip on what is being made and sold locally. Talk it over with your companions—many will know of "Made-in-Victoria" articles with which you are not acquainted.

When you have collected all the facts you will be ready to write. Take as much paper as you like for the list of articles home made, but limit your review of the making of the one article to about 300 words. Bare facts are sometimes monotonous. For instance do not say "Glass is made in Victoria. It is made of sand and in various colors." Tell how the sand becomes changed and in short what interested you in seeing it made.

Another point to remember is in the compilation of your list. Though it is true chair legs, chair backs, chair seats and chair covers are made here, most of these articles are but part of the whole production and made in a factory where many other wooden articles are turned-out. Group all these under one head, and call it by what name you will. If on the other hand you take that industry for your main story, then describe to what use the wood is put and how many different articles are made at the same plant.

An excellent start for your investigations is right in your home. Look around. Almost everything you see and use will suggest its message to you. By the time you have gone from the garden to the cellar—and through the house from cellar to attic, you will have a large list to help you in your investigations. The contest now open will not close until May 30, so that you have six weeks in which to make a study of the subject. You will find the subject one that grows in interest the more in earnest you take it.

The Made-in-Victoria contest is part of a much bigger subject, the "Know your own city" movement, for not until you know every phase of the city's life will you be a citizen in the real meaning of the word. An problems or perplexities in the course of your entry should be reported at once; for remember others will be writing for the contest too, and your problem may also be hampering them.

Scouts On Tiptoe Awaiting Chief

With the arrival of Sir Robert and Lady Baden-Powell, expected on Monday, the Boy Scout, Wolf Cub, and Girl Guide units in this city are keyed up to a pitch of eager anticipation at the thought of being reviewed by the founders of the world-wide movement. As Chief Scout, Sir Robert Baden-Powell's visit is perhaps the greatest treat for the loyal members of the movement that could be imagined. Lady Baden-Powell shares a similar place in the hearts of the members of the Guide-organization.

Sir Robert Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scout movement, to arrive here with Lady Baden-Powell on Monday.

For weeks past the arrival of the founders of Scouting has been looked forward to by everyone in the ranks of the two organizations from top to bottom, and great preparations have been made to see that everything will be in order when the day arrives.

Full details of the official itinerary of the distinguished visitors will be announced when the programme is made public.

Open Air Is Calling "Y" Boys

The indoor season of the Boys' Work Department of the Y.M.C.A. is now at a close, coming to an end with a banquet held last night, in which the clubs of the entire group took part. Each club presented its own programme to aid in swelling the fund of merry entertainment, and a very enjoyable function it proved to be. With the advent of the warmer weather the clubs are taking more and more to the outdoors. Road hikes, treasure hunts, and rambles in the woods are beginning to take the part of study hours and games indoors. The boys hope to get great pleasure out of the Beaver Lake camp site this year, and camping plans, though tentative yet, are beginning to occupy the attention of the leaders.

The entire Boys' Work Department is now busy on plans for the annual Jamboree, to be staged on May 4 and May 5, when the boys will play hosts to their parents and well-wishers in an excellent and varied entertainment. There will be a short programme in the gymnasium and another in the swimming pool, in which the boys will show a portion of the work that their training calls forth. Then the Radio club of the building will put on a special performance wherein the wonders of the air will be collected to swell the entertainment of the guests.

The programme is now in its initial stages, but the function promises to be exceptional, even in the annals of the energetic Boys' Work Department.

Poacher Lured By Fish Pond

Fresh from a mountain brook where he had fished with indifferent success for the last two weeks the kingfisher hovered in amazement over an artificial pond in a garden which happened to be in the line of his flight. For a fraction of an instant it looked like as if he had forgotten where he was going, for his wings beat the air and there was no change in his position. All of a sudden the silver white wings folded into the side of the lithe body and the fisher dropped as a plum from the sky.

Down, down, down he fell as if he had lost all control of himself. Right into the pond splashed the falling bird. Almost before the ripple caused by his descent had subsided the kingfisher reappeared and flapped up noisily from the water. In his beak now was a golden red fish, almost too highly colored to be real. Taking a perch on the branch of a nearby tree the bird engulfed the goldfish with more haste than attention to manners. For a second there was a visible swelling in his neck, and this could be followed down his gullet as the last remnants of the captive disappeared into the rapacious cavern that serves the kingfisher for a stomach.

"Ha-ha-ha-ha-ha-ha," the shrill crackling laugh rang out across the pond with a menace that should have sent all the little fish into the cover of sheltering rocks had they heard. Alas nature had not endowed them with hearing and the warning chuckle passed over their heads in vain. "Ha-ha-ha" shrilled the fisher as he again took wings. This time he rose almost perpendicularly in the air until he was over the centre of the pond, a pause, and the same swift folding of the wings followed by the diving body, took place.

A second splash rang out across the pond and a second gold fish left its sheltered home in the clenching beak of the white winged terror.

continued is not recorded, but the shrill ironic chuckle of the diver rang out, many times, and each time another goldfish had been sighted and marked down for the particular prey of the diving raider. How long this poaching might have continued is not certain, but it was evident that goldfish tickled the epicurean palate of the kingfisher.

Safety First Is No Idle Motto

How little lies between safety and a serious accident seldom flashes across the mind of the person endangered until the affair is all over. One day this week three little girls were playing on the sidewalk on a certain street where the street car attains a fair rate of speed. As they played the little ones ran and gambled over the boulevard, playing tag around the trees there.

Just as a street car was roaring past, the smallest of the trio ran away from the group and made straight for the car tracks, without having seen the on-rushing car. Before the little girl could step between the tracks, however, she changed her mind and ran off in another direction. The car roared by, while a white-faced driver, clutching his controls in the dumb shock of relief that comes when death has been very near at hand and has gone without taking its toll.

The street car was not at any time traveling at an excessive rate of speed, but with the great weight of metal from which it is made it cannot stop "dead" even when traveling quite slowly. The car in this case was traveling at a normal pace and only the driver and two adult bystanders saw what might have been and luckily was not.

The object of this tale is to show how little lies between safety and an accident. Never place yourself in a position where you could not avert an accident by yourself.

The little girl in the story could not have stopped the street car after she had seen her mistake. On the other hand, if she made a practice of never crossing the car tracks except at a street corner and then looking very carefully, she would not have been in that narrow escape. The driver of the car was taking every care in his duty, but he could not foretell that children would leave the sidewalk and dart across the street at the moment his vehicle was rushing past.

Accidents spring from doing the thing that you have done many times before, at an unlikeliest moment. Accidents lurk where your thoughts least suspect them, and for that reason never place yourself in a position where an accident could take place, either to yourself or to others.

GOOD SAMARITAN CONTEST POSTPONED

In view of the fact that the subject matter of the contest has been taken up in a wider and more general discussion in Canadian newspapers generally throughout the country, the Good Samaritan Contest is postponed. Shortly after the contest was announced, a series of articles were published dealing with this very subject. In place of the Good Samaritan Contest our little readers are asked to enter their names for a "Made-in-Victoria" competition, details of which will be found on this page. As the former contest did not ask for a return of the entries until the last of this month, very few will be affected by the change. The same prize will be awarded in the new contest, for details of which see further announcement.

MARGARET'S WISH IS FULFILLED

LLOATING through the open window the sound of the meadow lark came with its message of lighthearted joy. "All is right with the world," sang the lark as it swayed on the middle of a telephone wire between posts. The wind swayed the hundred-foot stretch of wire gently and at every second effort would nearly overbalance the bird. At such times the lark would recover its poise and sing the louder in sheer enjoyment.

Curled up on a seat at the open window sat a little girl, watching the lark as it trilled its gay carol to the fresh Spring air. "I wish I were a bird," sighed the little girl presently, "and have nothing to do but sing all day long and fly ever so high." Whether it was the warm soft breeze fanning her temples or not is not clear, but Margaret, the little girl by the window, was soon fast asleep.

She dreamed that she was floating over the tops of masses of soft billowy clouds upon which the sun danced with its iridescent rays. Rainbows shone on every side of her, and she seemed to be flying. True she could not see any wings, but there she was in the air, and she seemed to have an escort, for on her right flew a meadow lark and on the other side a flock of pigeons.

Suddenly the meadow lark spoke: "You said you wanted to fly, and now here you are," it said, "what are you going to do?" Through the bird had given its usual call Margaret seemed to understand the bird language now. "Let us fly over home," she said, and her voice seemed to be the trilling of a silver flute. Without a reply the meadow lark wheeled in the air and beckoned the little girl over his shoulder.

Together they left the flock of pigeons and flew back along the clouds until presently they sighted an open patch through which the ground loomed up as if on a relief map. Margaret saw a tiny spot of silver which the lark said was the lake near her home, and in a patch of green came here again," said Mr. Fox, trying to reach the button.

Old Madam Black Hen and the old Red Rooster stretched their necks and looked out, pushing Mrs. White Hen off the roost in their attempt to get closer to the window.

"Squawk," cried Madam Black Hen. "Cock-a-doodle-doo" cried Mr. Rooster. "It is Mr. Fox, you silly," quacked everybody, cackle and squawk at the top of their voices.

Mr. Fox was so surprised and startled that he carelessly jumped right on a steel trap. He lost only a toe and escaped, but he had a close call, for Mr. Man and the farm boy came out with their guns, and the shot whizzed very close to Mr. Fox's head.

"Ungrateful hens! After all I did for them," thought Mr. Fox as he nursed his hurt foot. "Scared away Mr. Weasel and let White Hen go home this morning when I might just as well have had her for breakfast!—And this is the reward I get for my kindness!"

Mr. Fox completely overlooked the fact that the kindness he had intended for his own benefit and not for those he pretended to protect.

FOR THE CHILDREN

The Sandman Story For To-night

MR. FOX'S KINDNESS.

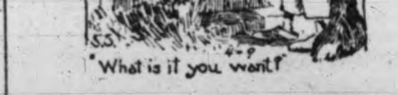

Mr. Fox one day decided it was time to change his residence. In the first place all the Mr. Dogs in that part of the country seemed to be on the hunt for Mr. Fox.

This reason Mr. Fox did not mention to his neighbor, Mr. Owl, when he said good-bye, instead he told Mr. Owl that the poultry around there did not suit his over-delicate taste and so he was moving away.

Mr. Owl was glad he was going because the barking of the dogs disturbed his rest, so he hooted "good-bye" very solemnly, and Mr. Fox was vain enough to think he was sad at parting with so fine a neighbor.

It was some time before Mr. Fox came to a stopping place, and he would not have stopped there had he not heard a very doleful cackle. "Ah," thought Mr. Fox, stopping dead still, "I see no signs of a farm, but if my ears do not deceive me I hear a familiar sound."

Mr. Fox listened. Yes, he did hear something, and with steps he went in the direction from which came the sounds. "There won't be one left if it keeps on," old Madam Black Hen was saying to Mr. White Hen, "and most of your chickens gone."

'What is it you want?'

It is too bad; it is a weasel that is causing all the trouble I heard the Master telling the farm boy.

"He said if it were only Mr. Fox he could catch him, but a weasel it was hard to catch; he said something about never catching a weasel asleep, so I guess Mr. Fox must go to sleep, and the farmer catches him then."

"Is that what you think, you tough old creature?" thought Mr. Fox. "Well, I never would be caught trying to capture you, but you, my pretty white hen, you are younger, and besides I heard something about chickens. On second thought I won't take you either, but I will follow both of you to your home and see if your relatives are worthy of being carried off by so fastidious a creature as I am."

Mr. Fox was not a bit afraid of Mr. Weasel. In fact, Mr. Fox was one of the few animals that Mr. Weasel was afraid of, so that night when Mr. Weasel came to make another raid on the poultry, Mr. Fox was there before him and chased him away.

Earthquake Troubles Feathered Kingdom

With a crash that startled the life of the woods into silence the old tree fell. It had been rotting away for ages, ever since a fire swept through the bush and burned the life out of its branches and scorched its roots. Now it lay in pieces on the ground, crushing beneath it a dense mass of bracken and leaving a fine dust of powdered weed in the air.

For a while there was not a movement and then very gradually the inhabitants of the woods got over their fright and began to take up their business where it had been so harshly interrupted. Two woodpeckers were the first to make a noise about it, and they flew hurrying through the branches of distant trees to the scene. They perched on the stump of a broken branch where it reared its awkward height into the air from the fallen tree and cackled shrilly. You see they had begun to hollow out a nest in the top of that dead tree and now their weeks work was undone.

Next a hen peasant crawled out from underneath the fallen debris. She had been hatching a nest of twenty eggs almost in the path of the falling tree and with the courage of a mother had remained on the nest while the immense weight came tumbling about her ears. With dainty feet indignantly she picked a way out between the fallen pieces. For her weeks of hard work had been brought to naught, for though she might continue to nurse the eggs they would never come to life.

Perched on the tip of a wild currant bush a wren rocked excitedly backwards and forwards. "Speech-speed-ech" his sardonic little call seemed to say to the world at large. Presently the wren hopped out again and surveyed the scene from the outside.

Apparently they decided the place would do for their home, for both set to work to carry little pieces of moss and feathers from the surrounding ground. There was no noise now, no cries of "speech," nothing but the swift silent working of two diminutive little birds who by a windfall had been placed in possession of a first class modern residence.

High up on the bole of a fir tree two woodpeckers clung to the ledges of the bark and looked at one another ruefully. Suddenly they darted off in the long swooping flight of their kind and were lost to view through the overgrown glades. They sought another tree in which to start their boring operations. "Speech" called the wren after them rudely, but there was no answer save the flash of the woodpecker's back as they disappeared out of that clearing forever.

Now Sole Survivor of 1867 Parliament

Albert Hagar Recalls Old Days in Legislature; Tells of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Maiden Speech.

TO the present generation the name of Sheriff Albert Hagar, ex-M.P., of Plantagenet, Ont., is probably not a familiar one but to those whose memories carry them back to the pioneer days of fifty and sixty years ago, it will have a double significance. In addition to being the sheriff of Prescott County for 35 years and a member of the Provincial Legislature Mr. Hagar is the only surviving member of Canada's first parliament of 1867.

Mr. Hagar, who recently celebrated his ninety-sixth birthday, first became interested in politics in 1867 as an independent. In announcing his candidature for the House, dated at Plantagenet, July, 1867, Mr. Hagar stated referring to the "new dominion." "I consider it the duty of every good citizen—every well-wisher of his country—not only to give it a fair and impartial trial, but also, to the extent of his ability, and the opportunity afforded him, to assist in starting and working the machinery of the new government as harmoniously, smoothly, and economically as possible, for in this, the dawn of our new existence, fairness, and not faction, liberty and not intolerance, patriotism and not partisanship, should prevail."

In those days the House met at Ottawa in the edifice that was afterwards burned. Mr. Hagar represented Prescott for eleven years, and as a political opponent had Mr. Thomas White who was then connected with the Montreal Gazette. In the elections at the latter end of the seventies he was defeated by the small majority of three votes. Subsequently he entered provincial politics. In 1887 he was appointed sheriff for the Counties of Prescott and Russell which position he held for thirty-five years until September 1, 1922, and was then the oldest sheriff in the dominion.

His political reminiscences are naturally interesting since he was well acquainted with Sir John A. Macdonald and other notable men of that day. Mr. Hagar recalls that Sir Mackenzie Bowell and he were room mates during the session of the first parliament. "I used to drive to and from Ottawa every week end in the winter and in the summer I would go by water. I recall hearing D'Arcy McGeer, the great poet, historian, and orator, make his last speech on the very night that assassination took place. The House had adjourned shortly before midnight and D'Arcy McGeer was shot just as he entered his own door. I also heard Sir Wilfrid Laurier's first speech in the House and thought then he would make his mark."

"I was there at the time of the Pacific scandals," added Mr. Hagar. "Excitement was at a great pitch. Sir John Macdonald and Sir Donald Smith (afterwards Lord Strathcona) were having a fierce verbal battle. Sir John shook his fist in the latter's face and the House was in a real uproar."

In Mr. Hagar's opinion the statements of the sixties compare advantageously with those of the present day. Regarding this he says: "In the first parliament party lines were not clearly observed, the main idea was confederation and unity for the success of the day in that purpose. Probably there never has been a superior group of legislators."

"The grand old man," who looks uncommonly well for a man of his age, was born at Plantagenet on January 1, 1827. His parents came to Canada from the New England States in 1800 and eighteen years later they moved to Plantagenet which was then only a wilderness. On the death of his mother in 1835 he was sent to relatives at St. Johnsbury, Vt., where he received his education and at the Peabody Academy, working for his board before and after school hours.

For a man of his years Mr. Hagar is surprisingly active. He is an inveterate reader and is especially fond of good literature and poetry. He has a triple explanation of his longevity and good health—hard work, temperate living, and good sound sleep. "I have never tasted a drop of intoxicating liquor in my life," he said. "Smoke? Well, anyhow, I didn't start until between thirty and forty years of age, and it has never become a habit with me. I married late in life; that was a mistake, for one of the best things a man can do is to find a good wife, and the sooner he does it the better."

Parson's Quiet Retort
Crumphes Millionaire

Loud American Manufacturer Learnt That Rev. Dr. S. D. Chown's Sweet Smile Could Messacre.

The Rev. Dr. S. D. Chown, head of the Methodist Church for all Canada, is noted for his subtle wit.

One evening while visiting in a large American city he was entertained at dinner.

Near the minister sat a pompous millionaire manufacturer, a stout man with a loud, coarse laugh, who ate and drank a good deal and frequently embarrassed his associates with a crude joke. One of this man's yarns was levelled at our brilliant pastor whom he did not know from Adam. Sufficient it was for him that Dr. Chown's garb was clerical.

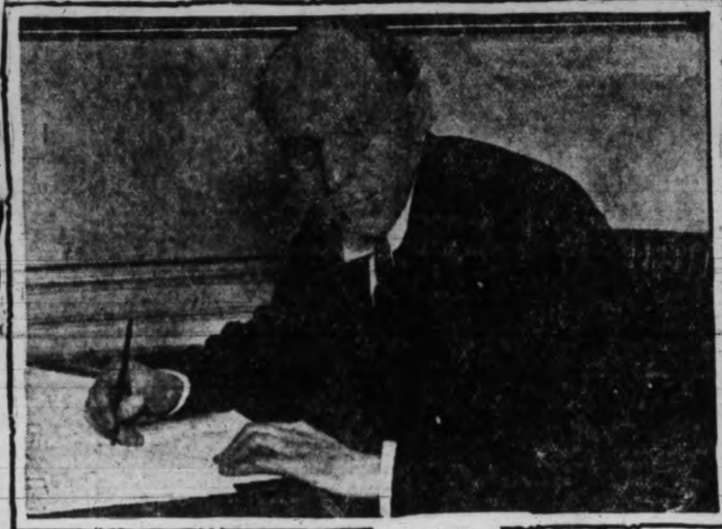

Here was a parson, consequently here was a chance to poke a little fun at the parson's trade.

"I have three sons," he began in a loud tone, judging his neighbor and winking towards the pastor, "three fine lads, they are in business. I had always said that if ever I had a stupid son I'd make a preacher of him."

The millionaire roared on his discordant laugh and the minister said to him, with a quiet smile:

"Your father thought differently from you, eh?"

A PAGE ABOUT PEOPLE
Sidelights on Men and Women in the Public Eye

OF all the members of that extraordinary family whose parliamentary career has often gained for the House of Commons the satiric title of Hotel Cecil, none make a more direct appeal to the sense of the picturesque than Lord Robert Cecil, "the apostle of the League of Nations," who is now visiting America.

A tall, bony figure, stooping at the shoulders, topped by a pale face from which a pair of feverishly bright, dark eyes look forth over a great bleated nose; a figure that sits on the parliamentary bench in the attitude of Rodin's "Thinker," or rises to speak, with a curious stiff gesture of the arms, emphasizing the points with long, thin fingers; that is Lord Robert, as one observer saw him in parliament.

He is a man who laughs seldom, but has a winning smile, whose wit is of the sarcastic order, whose oratory can become, at times, fiercely denunciatory; and yet, for all that, a very courteous and stately gentleman in all personal relations. He is strongly suspected of fanaticism; and a certain resemblance to the Savonarola type, in feature and expression, has perhaps tended to confirm the suspicion. But shrewd observers declare, on the contrary, that it is his very lack of single-minded enthusiasm which alone has prevented his entry into the first rank of leadership.

Nothing can be more characteristically British than the position of such families as the house of Cecil, families in which the deadening effects of wealth and high positions are counteracted by a series of brilliant younger sons, driven by the law of primogeniture to match themselves against the world and conquer it. In fact, a history of the Cecils, particularly in the last fifty years, might be entitled "The Triumph of the Younger Son." Salisbury, the most powerful man in the House of Commons from 1886 to 1906, was a younger son, dependent upon his own exertions, until chance gave him the marquisate, and his five sons, it is not to the present marquis, despite his distinguished career, that we turn for the greatest credit to the family.

Arrives from England.

Apostle of the League of Nations

Of this class of brilliant younger sons, Lord Robert is a most perfect example. His boyhood was passed amidst all circumstance of noble rank; but his career, and, to a large extent, his living, he had to make for himself. Where his father had chosen journalism, he chose the law, and, by the age of forty-two, had succeeded so well that he was able to retire and devote himself to the traditional vocation of his family. He betrove in free trade, he believed with some misgivings apparently in votes for women; but despite these heterodox opinions he soon outstripped his brother, the brilliant, erratic Lord Hugh, as the hope of the Conservative party. During the great budget debates he was fiercely loyal to the class in whose landed interests he had no share. He fought a losing fight gallantly, and with so little animus that the great war found him shoulder to shoulder with his former opponents. As under-secretary for foreign affairs, and later, minister of blockade, he showed tact in dealing with irate neutrals that sprang not merely from diplomacy, but also from genuinely sane and impartial view of affairs.

But the work peculiarly his own, the work which may yet make him eternally famous, began with the armistice. When the United States left the infant League of Nations on the international doorstep, Lord Robert, so to speak, adopted it. He believed in the somewhat sickly child, when his own parents had apparently given it up. His intellect, his oratory, his legal knowledge, everything he had to give was used on its behalf. Through the innumerable futile conferences where selfishness and narrowness met selfishness and narrowness, his natural tact and diplomacy were constantly in evidence, soothing, explaining, placating. For himself he asked nothing, for his country only justice. He does not even represent Great Britain, his actual status is that of delegate for South Africa. Without fear or favor he works constantly to establish a tribunal capable of protecting itself, capable of protecting the nations against war, capable, above all, of protecting the nations against themselves.

Famous Architect
Amuses Queen Mary

Sir Edwin Lutyens, in the Doll's House, Represents the King Reclining in Bed.

Sir Edwin Lutyens has just returned home from India. He is still very busy building the new Delhi, and has little time to spare for anything else. He continues, however, to superintend the ornamentation of the great doll's house, which sooner or later is to be given to the Queen by the nation. This giant toy was shown to a journalist the other day. It represents, with astonishing similitude and to the last detail, a modern English home.

One day Sir Edwin was showing the Queen the progress he was making with it. Her Majesty noticed that Sir Edwin's passion for detail had led him to represent a bedroom with a small model of the King reclining in the bed. "Rather less majestic, Sir Edwin, is it not?" queried the Queen. "Lazy majesty, I should say," quickly returned the famous architect.

Duchess of Devonshire
Most Popular Hostess

Among the many notable people who arrived in London over the week end was the Duchess of Devonshire, who has come to make all her many preparations for the forthcoming season. The Duchess, who has always been one of the most popular as well as one of the most distinguished London hostesses, will this year preside over a number of gatherings which should be of more than usual interest.

She was once asked at Chatsworth her views on the art of entertaining, and replied quite simply:

"Oh, just make people forget their ways and their own homes."

It sounds simple—and it is about as easy as it is to write simple English!

Tales of Temptation and Stories of Sin
Pour Into Dominion Parole Officer's Ears

On the Recommendation of P. W. Archibald, Dominion Parole Officer, Those Who Have Slipped by the Wayside and Truly Repented Are Given a Second Chance.

All the men who are sent to the Canadian penitentiaries are not of the criminal type. One noteworthy example of this is the case of P. W. Archibald, who has spent a great deal of the past fifteen years behind prison walls. In his case, however, his visit to each place is remarkably short, for the warden of the penitentiary in the adjoining province is always on the lookout for him.

It is as Dominion parole officer that Mr. Archibald finds himself in such demand from coast to coast. Into his ears are poured the tales of temptations, the stories of sin, and the excuses of the erring. On his recommendation men who have slipped by the wayside and truly repented, are given a second chance long before their term is expired.

Very few convicts succeed in imposing on the parole officer. The extremely small percentage of blacksliders among the pardoned ones prove this.

In his earlier life Mr. Archibald was a Salvation Army officer, and the enthusiasm with which he labored on behalf of the submerged tenth is still part of his make-up. He believes in his fellow man. So many of his proteges make good that he has unceasing inspiration for his uplifting work.

Of course there are exceptions, and these are not without their humorous side. Some years ago an Indian was liberated from Fort Saskatchewan penitentiary at Mr. Archibald's suggestion. On the parole officer's next visit, he found the Indian back in the cells.

"Why, Charlie?" exclaimed Mr. Archibald, "how do you come to be here again? You promised me you would be a good man if we gave you your freedom."

Wheat to Rustle Loud
For Fiction Writer

Popular Canadian Novelist Overhears Those Who Were Taking His Name in Vain.

Robert J. C. Stead, a popular Canadian novelist and author of "The Cowpuncher" and "Neighbors," was once making an official trip through the west, observing and writing crop conditions.

It was while the train was passing through a region where the grain yield had been decidedly meagre that Mr. Stead overheard his name mentioned by a couple of farmers sitting across the aisle.

Said one: "I see the government is sending Bob Stead out to write up crop conditions."

"Yes," said the other, "they did well to choose a fiction writer for that job."

Old Ford Employee's Pay Envelope Surprise

Mr. Little Young tells the following story of Henry Ford. One day Mr. Ford was going through one of his factories. Among hundreds of others he saw an old white-haired man, tending one of the machines. Ford went up to him and said: "I'm afraid you had better get your pay and lay off."

The old employee quit, and with his job gone, sorrowfully made his way to the cashier's office. He was handed an envelope containing his pay. When he opened it there was a slip inside, saying: "Please call every week for your pay as usual."

England Discovers Canada Has Wit

Under the heading of "Canadian Candor," the columnist of the "Londoner's Log," in the London Sunday Express, has found some interesting facts about Canada. "Even in Canada," he says, "there are wits. A writer in Toronto Saturday Night, commenting on the invitation that Canada sends troops to Charnak, said: 'Brigadier-General Winter, of Ottawa, must go because, if Winter goes, can Bing be far behind? Undeserved, doubtless, but pity.'"

Plays "God Save King"
Every Day of Her Life

Thus Mary Ellen Smith, B. C. Legislator, Reminds Herself of Her Duty to England.

MARY ELLEN SMITH, M.L.A. for Vancouver in the British Columbia legislature, before all else is a patriot. Just by the way of reminding herself of her duty to England—the land of her birth—and to Canada—the land of her adoption—she starts every day of her life sharp at 8.30 a.m., by playing on the piano, "God Save the King" followed by "O Canada."

Of course she's as democratic as they make 'em—witness the fact that she topped the poll in Vancouver city with a record vote at the last provincial election. But her democracy does not in the least dim her respect for the monarchic system of the British Dominions.

For thirty years the science of government—"politics" for short—has been her business and her hobby. Her late respected husband, the Hon. Ralph Smith, one-time Labor M.P. for Nanaimo, B.C., in the Federal House and later minister of mines in the provincial cabinet, often paid tribute to the "power behind the throne" in the person of Mary Ellen. On his death in 1916 she was elected in his stead in Vancouver and there is no reason to expect a change in that seat for many moons.

A first-rate platform speaker, with a gift for smart, though dignified, repartee, she is one of the most valuable assets of Premier John Oliver. Every few months she is threatened with a cabinet job—but, rumor says, she demands a full portfolio with charge of a departmental or nothing and has refused offers of the title "Hon." unless there is a man's sized department job attached to it.

She is one of those exceptional women who can pass through the rumpus of a heated political campaign, fight her battles by her own courage and wits, and yet preserve her womanly charm and motherly dignity. And there are not many women who can do that.

Naturally, legislation affecting women and children is her chief care. She has been largely concerned with mothers' pensions and Workmen's Compensation and is keenly interested in reform of the Canadian laws of divorce.

Fame has its penalties, Mary has found. Not long ago an Italian workman, whose English was far from exact, came to her modest flat with his wife, who bore a tiny baby in her arms.

"The Italian desired a small favor at the member's hands and by way of subtle flattery opened the negotiations with the announcement:

"Dees here my boy. Benita and me we giva him this name 'Mary Ellen Antonio Giuseppe Marsalla!'"

When "Calamity Nell"
Bade a Premier Good Day

Who would ever think of the bright, bubbling Nellie McClung as "Calamity Nell." Yet that is the unbeatific name attached to her way back in 1913-14, by the Winnipeg Telegram, official organ of the Conservative party in Manitoba and of the Roblin government, then tottering toward its disgraceful end.

There was a reason for the Telegram's spitefulness. It lay in the long, strong hold Nellie McClung had on the popular mind, and in the increasing popularity of the cause of Votes for Women, of which she was the eloquent advocate. The Political Equality League of Manitoba, may have had better executive heads among its powerful membership of able men and women, but it had only one Nellie McClung on the platform. So when it was coming time for the Roblin government to appeal to the people, and despite the fact that the suffrage crowd had no kind of use for compromise, Nellie McClung went as an ambassador extraordinary to the courts of King Roblin.

Whether she went on her own, or whether she was secretly sent by the executive of the Equality League must still be wrapped in mystery, but she went. She was to sound the premier as to bringing in a woman suffrage measure if he was returned to power. If he was of an oncotic disposition doubtless—Miss McClung would have gone so far as to imply that the support of the suffragists of the province would be his, but in any case she was to find out the is of the land. As all her family and herself had been Conservatives up to the time she took up the cudgels in behalf of votes for women, Nellie, felt sure of a good reception, and was even hopeful of coming to an understanding.

She was well received and presented her case to a smiling premier, but when it came to answering arguments, or taking her at all seriously that gentleman waded her aside. As a pretty lady she was very welcome, as a political agent or representative of any power, she was not in existence. Nellie began to get mad inside, but holding herself down made one last appeal, this time in the name of "human liberty" and democratic principle.

"Madame," said the politician, "I know of no further liberty needed for women. In my opinion political enfranchisement for them will be but a step in the direction of free love and other reaches of feminism. I say, 'No.'"

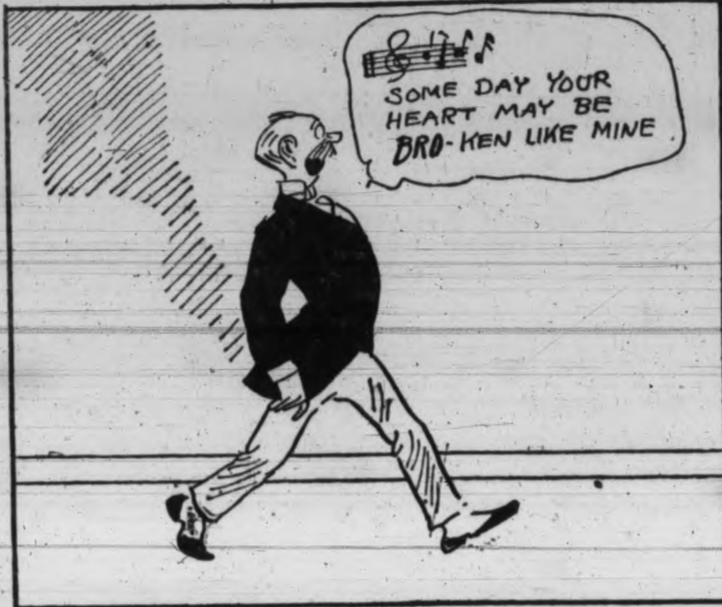

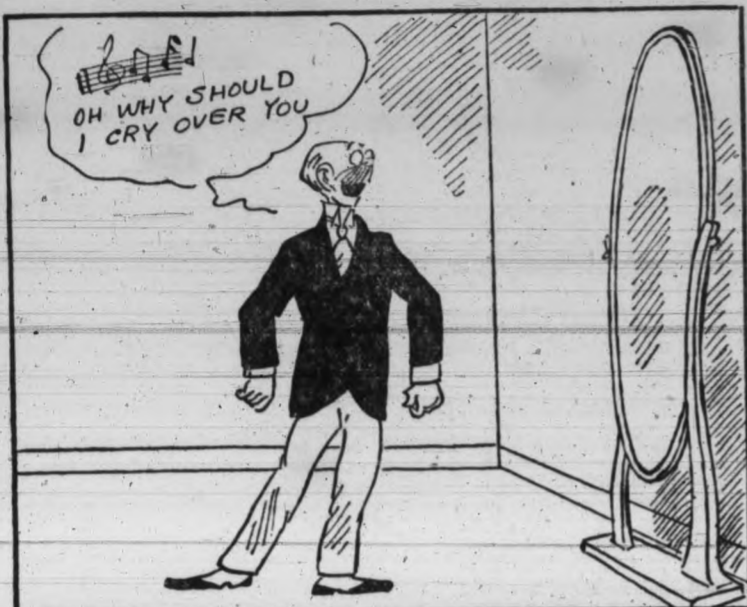

"Sir," said the now thoroughly irate and outraged Mrs. McClung, "You have insulted me and my sex. I bid you good day, but warn you that from this time on you will get nothing but the cold steel from the suffragists of Manitoba."

He did. And Nellie McClung helped on the good work so very thoroughly and effectively, that when the Roblins began to feel the tingling Telegram had to resort to the said shriek of anguish "Calamity Nell" in order to get even with one who neither spared the rod nor the Roblin.

Nellie McClung.

By now dad and Blenheim will be on the road to Red Creek; we'll beat them to it, have a lawyer and some papers all ready, and when they show up we'll just take dad out of Blenheim's hands.

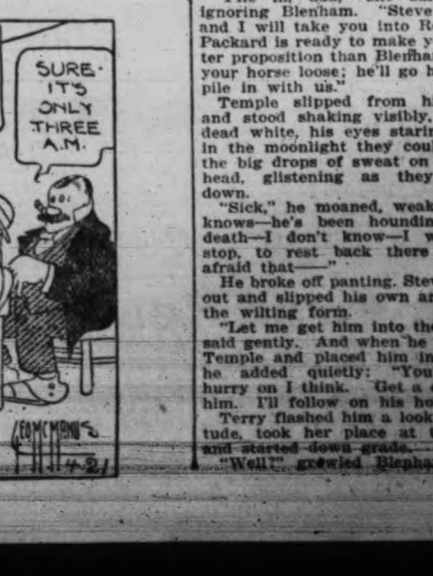

"I don't quite get you," said Steve. "I'll make dad sell out to you for eight thousand; he pockets one thousand, and with the other seven your money-grabbing, pestiferous old grand-dad is paid off. Then you and I frame a deal between us."

As Terry's car leaping over the rough road was climbing the last winding grade, with Red Creek but a couple of miles away, she and Steve saw two horsemen.

Fifty-three miles in fifty-three minutes! Guy Little was exclaiming. "In the dark. An' with the trouble. It's a record. The best you ever done it! It was fifty-three minutes, that he was, was the most upstanding heroic figure of a man that she had ever seen."

"Well," growled Blenheim, "well, that's all right, but I don't care who says it; she couldn't do it! No girl could; no Temple could. It ain't so. Call me a liar," cried Terry. "You just call me a doctor for good! Packard, and I'll slap your face for you!"

ENGINEER MAY DO DOWN PAVING WORK

The city may itself pave the extension of Johnson Street across the old Indian Reserve instead of letting a contract for the work. The City Council yesterday instructed City Engineer F. M. Preston to put in a tender on the paving work. If Mr. Preston's tender is lower than those of private firms he may be allowed to do the work with city labor.

But the Council yesterday considered the condition of streets traversed by street car tracks. The B. C. Electric Railway Company is failing to keep the street surfaces between track on many streets in proper shape, it was stated. It was explained, however, that the Company intended to effect necessary repairs when the weather is warmer.

RADIO SCHEME WELL RECEIVED

But Aldermen Want More Data on Cost of Ker's Broadcasting Plan

Alderman R. H. E. Ker's plan for the establishment of a big city radio broadcasting station here was favorably received by the City Council yesterday afternoon. The Mayor and other aldermen, however, asked Alderman Ker to secure further data on the scheme and submit it to them before they made any definite decision for or against the project.

Alderman Ker explained to the Council that practically all cities on the continent now are broadcasting news and entertainment features by radio, and this secured them valuable advertising. Victoria, he said, could reach literally millions of people through a city broadcasting station.

The station Alderman Ker had in mind, he said, would have a radius of 2,000 miles, and would connect with over 500,000 receiving sets in Western Canada and the United States. Through this system the city would secure enormous publicity, he declared.

Several aldermen expressed themselves as much impressed with the idea. The only question was the expense involved, they said. Alderman Ker will find out exactly what his scheme would cost and will inform the Council on this phase of the matter immediately.

WHAT'S THE USE.

An Irishman boarded a tramcar and sat down. After a word with the conductor he made for the door again.

An inspector, who happened to be in the car, said to him: "Surely you don't want to get off again so soon; and, besides, you haven't paid your fare."

"Oh want to go to Bent Street," said the Irishman, "and, sure, the conductor tells me there's no such place."

"Well, there isn't," said the inspector.

"Then, faith, and what's the good of my going there?"—Tit-Bits.

It is, then, only natural that the Public of Victoria should be given an opportunity to share in the success of this growing industry. The actual amount will govern the annual dividend you will receive on your investment. Organization and the solving of market and merchandising problems have made it possible. Forseeing the great markets about to be opened, the Laurel Cannery, Ltd., applied to the Provincial Government for permission to increase its capital stock to $250,000.00, an increase of $200,000.00, making it possible for the general public of Victoria to become shareholders under the new capitalization. It is an opportunity so rare, that it calls for your immediate investigation.

The Laurel Cannery Ltd. has increased its capital stock to $250,000

Its business, since establishment, has been highly satisfactory to the present shareholders. The factory has always enjoyed a full capacity production, showing a marked, steady increase, until now considerable enlargement to the factory and additional new machinery must be installed in order to take care of increase in public demand for Laurel Brand Canned Products, and to expand to other markets. It is housed in a very fine up-to-date brick factory, and the site on which it stands is surrounded by the famous Saanich and Gordon Head Orchards.

URIC ACID Does NOT Cause Rheumatism

Furthermore, I claim that "Uric Acid" is a NATURAL and NECESSARY constituent of the blood—that it is found in the body of every new-born babe—that without it we could not live. Strange statements? Yes—to you, perhaps, because you have always been told differently. But my book, "The Inner Mysteries of Rheumatism," just published, tells you the real truth about Rheumatism. Tells you the actually DOES cause it and how it is now being successfully treated in all its different forms and stages by entirely new, advanced scientific methods.
