CAMBRIDGE, Aug. 7, 1868.

REV. JOSEPH H. ALLEN.

DEAR SIR, — Of the details of your "Latin Grammar," I am not a competent judge; but the general plan and general execution I feel free to commend very warmly. The book seems to me to contain all that is necessary for those who do not pursue Latin beyond their Freshman year; and to contain it in so brief a form, as to give reasonable hope that a boy may become familiar with it without either overstraining his memory, or becoming disgusted with the quantity imposed on him. It is a great error to expand a text-book beyond the dimensions necessary for a clear statement of the subject. Very respectfully yours,

THOMAS HILL.

AN introductory book of exercises, to be used in connection with the grammar is in preparation, and may be expected within a year. At present, instructors who may adopt this manual for beginners, are advised to use the Latin Reader, adapting references to this grammar, as any skilful teacher can easily do.

The following corrections required to be made in early copies of this book :

PREFACE.

MANY of the best friends of classical education have long desired a manual of elementary instruction in Latin grammar,—which lies at the foundation of a classical course,—full and accurate enough to be a practical guide to the learner, but avoiding the prodigious multiplication of details, which have so overgrown that study in our ordinary school text-books.

In attempting to meet this want, we have been guided by the following principles:—

1. To admit only what is likely to be really useful information to the learner, and nothing which he will be likely to look for in the dictionary first.

2. To avoid, as far as possible, all subtleties of theory and technicalities of phrase; and to illustrate every point, as it is stated, by examples in correct Latin, uniformly rendered into the corresponding English idiom.

3. To aid the eye, by the typography and arrangement of the page, so as to make it an easy manual of reference. Every Latin word we have used is printed in a special type, cast expressly for this book, and is followed immediately (except in the section on Prosody), by its English equivalent, italicized. The quantities of roots and inflections are abundantly given throughout. In orthography, we have followed the most approved editions of the present day, adopting a few forms which may possibly be regarded as innovations, but varying less than some might desire from the past usage of our text-books.

In the classification and arrangement of paradigms we have expended a great deal of care. The classification of Nouns of the Third Declension, — which is based partly on that of Key, — seems to us to have great advantages over that commonly adopted. The exhibition of the Verb-forms will be found not only a material help to the learner by its compactness, clearness, and easiness of reference; but to have the special benefit of keeping distinctly in view the point (which teachers so often fail to make familiar) that all irregularities, or peculiarities of conjugation, are confined to the forms from the first or Present stem, while the others follow one uniform model throughout.

This volume is not, in any sense, an abridgment or compilation from previous writers. Except in some details of Prosody, we have not been directly indebted to any of those in use in our schools. Our plan has grown from our own wants and experience; and the examples have been selected, in general, from our own reading. Only in a few instances, where it seemed desirable for completeness, we have not hesitated to borrow them from other sources.

While we have omitted a great amount of matter which we think serves in many text-books merely to obscure to the learner the outlines of the language, it will be found that its leading forms and usages are very fully exhibited; at the same time much incidental illustration is given, not contained in any other school grammar within our knowledge. A book designed for reference, as a full treatise on etymology and syntax, very properly contains much material which would be out of place in a brief manual like the present. We do not believe that it is best for the learner to begin with as large a book as he may require afterwards; and besides, if principles are to be taught, and not dead rules, it is a clear advantage not to become wedded to any set form of words.

Two or three points seem to require brief explanation to teachers who have been in the habit of using the ordinary text-books.

First, the recognition of the Locative Case, which has been sometimes called the "Dative of Place." The fact we wish to recognize in the structure of the language is one which all grammarians admit; and to accept it will be to many persons a real relief from the old arbitrary and unintelligible rule.

In interpreting the Subjunctive, we have thought best to give it no separate translation in the paradigms.

To render it, as is often done, by the English Potential, is as misleading as any false step, so low down among the elements, can well be. We have accordingly illustrated its use, at the outset, by a score of select examples of Latin idiom; and trust in the Syntax to have made it as clear as is consistent with the brevity of our plan.

In simplifying the treatment of the Gerund and Gerundive, we have followed the best English authorities, from Milton's brief Latin "Accedence," to the works of Donaldson, Key, and D'Arcy Thompson. The phrase "Nominative of the Gerund," which we have employed, is easily understood; it suggests an explanation of the subject which many scholars prefer to that usually given; and it need not be taken as controverting the more common doctrine, that the form in question is the Neuter of the Future Passive Participle, used impersonally.

The Syntax of the Moods will be found relatively more full than other parts of the book; this we have thought warranted by the difficulty and peculiar obscurity of the subject. In general, we have not, as is usually done, treated the Subjunctive by itself; but have classified the usages in the different kinds of subordinate clauses, in nearly all of which either that or the Indicative may be employed in special relations. Here, as everywhere, we have derived constant assistance from Madvig's "Lateinische Sprachlehre," the best single treatise upon Latin grammar with which we are acquainted: from this we have taken more special points than from all other sources combined. We are far from claiming an entirely satisfactory treatment of the Subjunctive, which indeed has never yet been adequately analyzed, and which is much more difficult in Latin than in Greek. Conditional Sentences, however, in which we have followed the doctrine of Goodwin's "Greek Moods and Tenses," we believe will be found nowhere more fully explained than here.

In the matter of Prosody, we have given enough to enable the student to analyze for himself, and to read easily into metre, all the forms of verse in Virgil, Ovid, Horace, and (excepting a few lyrical passages) in the Dramatic writers. For instruction in the difficult art of composition in Latin verse, — should that be thought desirable, — or for exhibitions of quantity complete enough to be a sufficient guide in it, the learner must go to other sources.

In many points, both of etymology and syntax, we have availed ourselves of the counsel and guidance of Professor LANE, of Harvard University; who has greatly aided us by his care in examining the earlier proof-sheets, and by the suggestions of his very exact and thorough scholarship. In points of practical adaptation to the wants of classes, the long experience of our brother, Rev. T. P. ALLEN, of West Newton, Mass., has been a valuable guide. In the preparation of the Syntax, we are under especial obligation to Professor

J. B. FEULING, of the University of Wisconsin, who kindly read over the whole manuscript of this portion, and made many valuable suggestions.

In addition we would say, that, while this is intended to be a sufficient text-book for the learner, — at least until some more copious systematic treatise is required during a college course, — it is not claimed to be sufficient for the teacher. For his daily use in the class-room, as well as for his own more accurate information, he needs the ampler material so industriously gathered in the many excellent manuals in use. But, for ever so short a course in classical instruction, we hold that the language itself, and the literature which contains it, is the real object of study; and that every hour spent on the details of grammar, which does not directly help to this, is an injury to the student's progress, and a wrong to his intelligence.

Finally, this book is not meant for children. For most learners, we think, it would be better to wait till at least thirteen or fourteen, before attempting the systematic study of so difficult a tongue. At that age, an intelligent boy or girl, who studies it at all, ought to be led at once to those forms of it which can be readily understood and enjoyed.

PART FIRST.

FORMS OF WORDS. (ETYMOLOGY.)

1. ALPHABET.

THE Latin Alphabet is the same as the English, wanting W.

Vowels are a, e, i, o, u, y. Diphthongs are ae, oe (often written æ, œ), au, eu, and in poetry ei and ui.

Mute Consonants are p, b, f, v (labial); t, d (dental); c (k), g (palatal). Liquids are l, m, n, r. Double Consonants are x (cs), z (ds).

The Aspirate, h, is merely a silent breathing, and is not reckoned as a Consonant.

The Roman Alphabet consisted of 21 letters, viz.,

ā, b̄, c, d, e, f, g, h, i, k, l, m, n, o, p̄, q, r, s, t, u, x.

y and z were added, in words derived from Greek.

i and u, when used as consonants (having the sound of y and w), are generally written j and v; as, juvenis, a youth, for iuuenis.

k is used only in a few words, generally at the beginning, and is always followed by a.

c is usually written for k; and often for qu, (regularly when followed by u): as in cum (for quum) when; secutus (for sequutus) having followed; and more rarely, in ecus (for equus) a horse, cotidie (for quotidie) daily, and others.

In early use, u never follows u (v), but o instead: as in volt, will. Often, i is put for ii, or ji, as in obit, died; obicit, hits. Examples of variation in spelling are, -undus or -endus in gerund forms; -umus or imus in superlatives; adulescens, youth, epistula, letter, for adolescens, epistola; cena, caena, coena, supper.

The last letter of the Prepositions ab, ad, con (cum), ex, in and sub, when combined with other words, is often altered to give an even sound: as ad- or al-latus, brought, in- or im-mensus, boundless; sub- or suf-fero, sustain.

The verb est, is, is sometimes joined in spelling with the previous word, especially in the old poets, or when the two would be united by elision: as homost, he is a man, periculumst, there is danger. So vin', will? scin', know'st? for visne, scisne.

In the division of syllables, a consonant between two vowels is always written with the latter; as do-mi-nus, master: also, any combination of consonants which can be used to begin a word; as ho-spes, guest; ma-gnus, great; a-strum, star; di-xit, said.

2. PRONUNCIATION.

Among us, Latin is generally pronounced like English. But there are no silent letters, except in scanning verse, by the usage called elision.

c and g are made soft before e, i, y, and the diphthongs ae, eu, oe,; ch is always like k; es and (in plural cases) os, are pronounced as in disease, morose.

The Roman pronunciation of the Vowels was no doubt like the Italian. In English, for the long and short vowels respectively, it may be nearly represented thus:—

a as in father, fast; e as in rein, met; i as in machine, fill; o as in holy, wholly; u as in rude, full.

c and g were probably always sounded hard.

3. QUANTITY.

1. A vowel before another vowel is short; as, vīa, way.
2. A diphthong is long; as, fōēdus, league.
3. A syllable formed by contraction is long; as, nīl, nothing, for nīhīl.

4. A vowel before two consonants or a double consonant is long, as rēctus, straight, judēx, juror: but a short vowel before a mute followed by l or r, is common, as in volucris, bird; that is, it may be long in verse.

The sign $\bar{\quad}$ denotes that a vowel is long; \sim that it is short.

A short vowel differs from a long one not in sound but in length; as in pātēr, father, mātēr, mother.

4. ACCENT.

Words of two syllables are always accented on the Penult; as, ě'rant, they were.

Words of more than two syllables are accented on the Penult, if that is long; as, amī'cus, friend: if it is short, or common, then on the Antepenult; as, dōm'īnūs, master; al'acrīs, eager.

The Penult is the last syllable but one; the Antepenult, the last but two (paene, almost; ultima, last.)

5. INFLECTION.

1. Inflection is a change made in the ending of a word to express some change in meaning; as, vōc o, I call; vōc āt, he calls.

2. That part of the word which remains unchanged is called the Root or Stem. When a primitive form, common to Latin with other languages, it is always called the Root: thus the root of fūg a, flight, is found in the English fugitive.

3. In Latin, Nouns, Adjectives, Pronouns, Participles, are inflected to express Declension (gender, number, and case); Adjectives and Adverbs to express Comparison; Verbs to express Conjugation (voice, mood, tense, number, and person).

4. Those parts of speech which are not inflected are called Particles: they are, Prepositions, Conjunctions, and Interjections. Adverbs, especially those of time, place, and manner, are also sometimes reckoned as Particles.

6. GENDER.

1. Gender may be either natural, as pūēr, boy; puellā, girl; mālum, apple: or grammatical, as lāpīs, stone (masc.); mānūs, hand (fem.).

2. The following are general rules of gender: —

Names of Rivers (except a few ending in a) are masculine: as, Tāmēsis, the Thames; Rhōdānus, the Rhone.

Most names of Plants are feminine: as, cornus, cornel.

Indeclinable nouns, or Phrases used as nouns, are neuter; as, illud Cassiānum, "Cui bōnō fuērīt," that saying of Cassius, "For whose advantage it was."

3. Many Nouns may be either masculine or feminine, according to sex; as, exsūl, exile; bōs, ox, cow. They are said to be of Common Gender.

4. A few are always connected with adjectives in the same gender, either masculine or feminine, independent of sex; thus, ansēr, goose, is always masculine, and vulpēs, fox, feminine. They are called Epicene.

7. CASE.

There are in Latin six Cases; namely, —

1. NOMINATIVE, used as the subject of a direct proposition: as, pātēr meūs ādest, my father is here.

2. GENITIVE (of), generally denoting origin or possession; also used with many adjectives and verbs, especially those expressing emotion; as, patriūs ejūs āmicūs mīsērētūr meī, his father's friend pities me.

3. DATIVE (to or for), generally used for the indirect object after a verb or adjective: as, dēdit mīhī ensem: magnō mīhī ūsui ērāt; he gave me a sword: it was of great service to me.

4. ACCUSATIVE (towards), used as the direct object of a verb, and after most prepositions: as, dum agrum ārābāt in hortum vēnī, while he was ploughing the field I came into the garden.

5. VOCATIVE, used in direct address: as, hūc vēnī cārē mī filiōlē, come hither my dear little son.

6. ABLATIVE (by, from, with), used with many verbs and prepositions: as, īn hortō lūdēbāmūs et cultellō mē laesīt, we were playing in the garden and he hurt me with a knife.

All, excepting the nominative and vocative, are often called Oblique cases.

7. Some grammarians reckon also a Locative case, signifying the place where: it is generally the same in form with the Dative, and may be called the Dative of Place: as,

Rōmae vēl Athēnīs essē vēlim, I should like to be at Rome or Athens.

8. DECLENSION.

I. There are five Declensions of nouns in Latin, distinguished by the termination of the Genitive Singular, and by their characteristic or leading vowel. These are as follows: —

DECL.	1.	Gen. Sing.	ae,	Leading	Vowel	a
„	2.	„	ī	„	„	o
„	3.	„	īs	„	„	i
„	4.	„	ūs	„	„	u
„	5.	„	ēi	„	„	e

II. The following are general rules of declension: —

1. The vocative is always the same in form with the nominative, except in the singular of nouns in us, of the second declension.

2. In Neuters, the nominative and accusative are always alike, and in the plural end in ā.

3. Except in neuters, the accusative singular always ends in m, and the accusative plural in s.

4. In the most ancient form, the dative singular of all the declensions ends in ī; in the third declension, the locative case may end in ē or ī.

5. The dative and ablative plural are always alike.

6. The genitive plural always ends in um.

NOUNS.

9. FIRST DECLENSION. (a.)

SINGULAR.

NOMINATIVE.	stell ā,	a star.
GENITIVE.	stell ae,	of a star.
DATIVE.	stell ae,	to a star.
ACCUSATIVE.	stell ām,	a star.
VOCATIVE.	stell ā,	thou star!
ABLATIVE.	stell ā,	with a star.

PLURAL.

NOMINATIVE.	stell ae,	stars.
GENITIVE.	stell ārūm,	of stars.
DATIVE.	stell īs,	to stars.
ACCUSATIVE.	stell ās,	stars.
VOCATIVE.	stell ae,	ye stars!
ABLATIVE.	stell īs,	with stars.

1. Most nouns of the first declension are feminine.

2. The genitive and dative singular anciently ended in āi, which is occasionally found in a few words, as, aulāi, of a hall. There is also an old genitive in ās, found in paterfamilias.

3. The genitive plural, especially of compounds with cōla and gēna, signifying dwelling and descent, is sometimes contracted into ūm, as coelīcōlūm, of the heavenly ones.

4. The dative and ablative plural of dea, goddess, filia, daughter, and a few others, end in the old regular form ābūs.

5. Some Greek nouns end in ās, ēs (masc.), and ē (fem.) in the nominative, and n in the accusative; those in e have the genitive in es: as, Aenēās, acc. Aenēān, voc. Aenēā; Anchīses, gen. Anchisae, acc. Anchisen, voc. Anchise; Pēnēlōpē, Penelōpēs, Penelopēn; grammaticē or grammaticā, grammar.

10. SECOND DECLENSION. (o.)

MOST nouns of the second declension ending in ůs (ős), ěr, ěr, are masculine; those ending in ům (õn) are neuter.

SINGULAR.

	Man.	Book.	Slave.	War.
Nom.	vĭr	lĭbĕr	servŭs (ős)	bellŭm
Gen.	vĭrĭ	lĭbrĭ	servĭ	bellĭ
Dat.	vir ō	lĭbr ō	serv ō	bell ō
Acc.	vir ům	lĭbr ům	serv ům	bell ům
Voc.	vir	liber	serv ě	bell ům
Abl.	vir ō	lĭbr ō	serv ō	bell ō

PLURAL.

Nom.	vir ĭ	lĭbr ĭ	serv ĭ	bell ě
Gen.	vir ōrŭm	lĭbr ōrŭm	serv ōrŭm	bell ōrŭm
Dat.	vir ĭs	lĭbr ĭs	serv ĭs	bell ĭs
Acc.	vir ōs	lĭbr ōs	serv ōs	bell ě
Voc.	vir ĭ	lĭbr ĭ	serv ĭ	bell ě
Abl.	vir ĭs	lĭbr ĭs	serv ĭs	bell ĭs

1. Some Greek words end in ős (M.) or õn (N.); as, arctos, the Polar Bear; barbĭton, lyre. The old form ős, õn, for ůs, um, after u or v, as in servős, and the gen. pl. õn, are sometimes found.

2. Names of towns in us (os) are feminine: as, Cõrĭnthus.

3. The old form of the gen. sing. in iŭs (oius) and dative in i (oi) is found in a few adjectives (see § 16, 1). The locative singular ends in i: as, Corinthis, at Corinth.

4. The genitive of nouns in ius and ium is often written with a single i: as filĭ, of a son, ingĕ'nĭ, of genius.

5. Proper names in ius drop e in the vocative; as, Vergĭlius, voc. Vergĭ'lĭ: also filius, son, and genius, divine guardian.

6. In the gen. plur. ōrŭm is often contracted into ům or õm.

7. Deus, God, has voc. deus; plural, n. v. dei, dii, or di; dat. abl. deis, dĭis, dĭis. For the genitive plural, dĭvum or dĭvõm is often used.

8. Nouns in er generally drop e in declining, as in agĕr, agri, field: but retain it in pŭĕr, boy; gĕnĕr, son-in-law; sõcĕr, father-in-law; vespĕr, evening; and a few others.

9. Vulgus, mob; pĕlĕgŭs, sea; and vĭrus, poison, are neuter.

11. THIRD DECLENSION.

NOUNS of the third declension are classed according to their stems, whether ending in a Vowel, a Liquid, or a Mute Consonant.

I. VOWEL STEMS. (i.)

	Ship (F.)	Cloud (F.)	Sea (N.)
SING. N.	nāvīs	nūbēs	mārē

D.	navībūs	nubibus	maribus
Ac.	navēs (īs)	nubes (is)	maria
V.	navēs	nubes	maria
Ab.	navībūs.	nubibus	maribus

1. A few nouns in āl and ār are properly neuters of adjectives in ālis, (omitting the final e), and belong to this class. They are declined like mare: as, ānīmāl, ālis, pl. animalia, living thing (from anima, breath); calcār, āris, spur (from calx, heel).

2. The old forms of sing. acc. in īm, and abl. in ī, and of the plur. acc. in īs, are found in many words. In Adjectives of this form the nom. sing. īs and abl. ī are always used.

3. Several names of towns, as Praenestě, Caerě, and the mountain Soracte (N.), have the ablative ě. Sometimes, also, marě, sea, and rěte, net.

4. A few nouns, as cānis, dog, jūvēnis, youth, have the genitive plural in ūm.

5. Vīs, force, has acc. vim, abl. vī, plur. vīrēs, vīrium, vīrībūs.

6. Greek proper names in īs have acc. im, and voc. ī; as, Alexīs, Alexim, Alexī.

II. LIQUID STEMS. (l, n, r.)

	Exile (M.F.)	Rank (M.)	Honor (M.)	Father (M.)
SIN. N. V.	exsŭl	ordo	hŏnŏr (ŏs)	pătĕr
G.	exsŭl ĭs	ordĭn is	honŏr is	patr is
D.	exsul ĭ	ordin i	honor i	patr i
Ac.	exsul em	ordin em	honor ěm	patr em
Ab.	exsul ě	ordin e	honor e	patr e
PL. N.A.V.	exsul ěs	ordin es	honor es	patr es
G.	exsul um	ordin um	honor um	patr um
D. Ab.	exsul ĭbŭs	ordin ibus	honor ibus	patr ibus
	Name (N.)	Work (N.)	Body (N.)	Leg (N.)
SIN. N. V.	nŏmĕn	ŏpŭs	corpŭs	crŭs
G.	nomĭn ĭs	opĕr is	corpŏr is	crŭr is
D.	nomin ĭ	oper i	corpor i	crur i
Ac.	nomĕn	opus	corpus	crus
Ab.	nomin ě	oper e	corpor e	crur e
PL. N. A. V.	nomin ě	oper ě	corpor ě	crur a
G.	nomin ŭm	oper um	corpor um	crur um
D. Ab.	nomin ĭbŭs	oper ibus	corpor ibus	crur ibus

III. MUTE STEMS.

Nouns whose stem ends in a Mute Consonant generally form the Nominative Singular by adding s.

1. If the Mute is a Labial, (b, m, p), s is added simply with or without change of vowel: as,

	City (F.)	Chief (M.)	Winter (F.)
SIN. N. V.	urbs	princeps	hiems (ps)
G.	urb ĭs	princĭp is	hiĕm is
D.	urb ĭ	princĭp i	hiem i
Ac.	urb ěm	princĭp em	hiem em
Ab.	urb ě	princĭp e	hiem e
PL. N. A. V.	urb ěs	princĭp es	hiem es
G.	urb ium	princĭp um	hiem um
D. Ab.	urb ĭbŭs	princĭp ibus	hiem ibus

2. If the Mute is a Dental (d, t), it is suppressed before s; in Neuters, s is not added: as,

	Stone (M.)	Companion (M.)	Heart (N.)	Tooth (M.)
SIN. N. V.	lāpīs	cōmēs	cōr	dens
G.	lapīd īs	comīt is	cord is	dent is
D.	lapid ī	comit i	cord i	dent i
Ac.	lapid em	comit em	cor	dent em
Ab.	lapid ě	comit e	cord e	dent e
PL. N. A. V.	lapid ēs	comit es	cord ā	dent es
G.	lapid um	comit um		dent ium
D. Ab.	lapid ībus	comit ibus	cord ibus	dent ibus

3. If the Mute is a Palatal (c, g), it is combined with s in x: as,

	Nut (F.)	King (M.)	Juror (M.)	Rower (M.)
SIN. N. V.	nux	rex	jūdex	rēmex
G.	nūc īs	rēg is	judīc is	remīg is
D.	nuc ī	reg i	judic i	remig i
Ac.	nuc em	reg em	judic em	remig em
Ab.	nuc ě	reg e	judic e	remig e
PL. N. A. V.	nuc ēs	reg es	judic es	remig es
G.	nuc um	reg um	judic um	remig um
D. Ab.	nuc ībus	reg ibus	judic ibus	remig ibus

4. Peculiar forms are —

	Night (F.)	Snow (F.)	Flesh (F.)	Bone (N.)	Old Man.
SIN. N. V.	nox	nix	cāro	ōs	sēnex
G.	noctīs	nīvis	carnis	ossis	senīs
D.	noctī	nivi	carni	ossi	seni
Ac.	noctem	nivem	carnem	os	senem
Ab.	noctě	nive	carne	osse	sene
PL. N. A. V.	noctēs	nives	carnes	ossa	senes
G.	noctium		carnium	ossium	senum
D. Ab.	noctībus	nivibus	carnibus	ossibus	senibus āēr (M.), air, has the accusative aĕrā.

mĕl, honey, and fĕl, gall (N.), have the gen. mellis, fellis.

lāc, (N.) milk, has gen. lactis.

5. Irregular forms are — ītēr, itīnēris (N.), journey.

jēcūr, jecōris or jecīnōris (N.), liver.

bōs, bōvis; pl. g. boum, D. bōbus, būbus (M. F.), ox, cow.

sūpellex, supellectīlis (F.), furniture.

lampās, lampādos, or is, acc. lampadā, lamp, (F.)

Jūppītēr, Jōvis.

IV. GENERAL RULES OF THE THIRD DECLENSION.

Nouns ending in o, or, os, er, and es (increasing) are masculine;

those in as, es (not increasing), io, ys, x, and s preceded by a consonant, also in do, go, io, are feminine;

those in a, e, i, y, c, l, n, t, ar, ur, us, are neuter.

A noun is said to increase, when in any case it has more syllables than in the nominative singular. In such case, the penult is called the Increment of the noun.

Increments of nouns in a and o (M. F.), are generally long; those in e, o (N.), i, u, and y, short.

The locative case is sometimes written with ě, especially in poetry: as, Karthagině (for Karthagini), at Carthage.

Many nouns, especially those of one syllable, ending in two consonants or a double consonant, make the genitive plural in ium: as cliens, client; urbs, city; nox, night.

12. FOURTH DECLENSION. (u.)

	Car (M.)	Needle (F.)	Knee (N.)
SIN. N. V.	currūs	áčūs	gěnū
G.	curr ūs	acūs	genū (ūs)
D.	curr uī (ū)	acu i	genū
Ac.	curr um	acu m	genū
Ab.	curr ū	acū	genū
PL. N. A. V.	curr ūs	acūs	genu a
G.	curr uŭm	acu um	genu um
D. Ab.	curr ūbūs	acū bus	genū bus

1. Most nouns of the fourth declension are formed from the supine stem of verbs: as, cantus, song, from cāno; vīsus, sight, from vīdeo.

2. Dŏmus, house, has ablative singular domo, genitive plural domŏrum, or domuum; accusative plural, domos: domi, less frequently domui, (locative) means at home.

13. FIFTH DECLENSION. (e.)

The only complete nouns of this declension are dies, day, and res, thing. They are thus declined: —

	Day (M.)	Thing (F.)
SINGULAR N. V.	diēs	rēs
G.	diē i	rē i
D.	diē i	rē i
Ac.	diē m	re m
Ab.	diē	rē
PLURAL N. A. V.	diēs	rēs
G.	diē rum	rē rum
D. Ab.	diē bus	rē bus

Most nouns of the fifth declension want the plural.

Dies is often feminine in the singular in phrases indicating a fixed time: as constitūtā die, on the set day.

The termination of the nominative singular is generally ies.

14. IRREGULAR NOUNS.

I. DEFECTIVE.

1. Wanting the singular: as, lībĕri, children; arma, weapons; pĕnātes, household gods.

2. Wanting the nominative: as, dāpis, of food; frūgis, of fruit (plural complete).

3. Found only in one or two cases: as, fors, forte, chance; vicis (gen.), vicem, vice, vices, vicibus, change or turn; sponte (suā sponte, of his own accord); injussu, without orders.

4. Indeclinable: as, fās, right; nĕfās, wrong; pondŏ, pound.

II. VARIABLE.

1. Many nouns vary in meaning as they are found in the singular or plural : as, aedes, is (F.), temple .	aedes, ium, house .

auxīlium (N.), help .	auxilia, auxiliaries .
carcer (M.), dungeon .	carcēres, barriers (of a race- castra, camp . [course.]
castrum (N.), fort .	copiae, troops .
cōpia (F.), plenty .	fines, bounds, territory .
finis (M.), end .	gratiae, thanks .
grātia (F.), favor .	impedimenta, baggage .
impēdimentum (N.), hinderance .	litterae, epistle .
littēra (F.), letter (of alphabet.)	loci, passages in books .
lōcus (M.), place [pl. loca (N.)]	opes, resources, wealth .
ōpis (F. gen.), help .	plāgae, snares .
plāga (F.), region [plāga, blow].	sales, witticisms .
sāl (M. or N.), salt .

sestertius (M.) means the sum of $2\frac{1}{2}$ asses, = about 4 cents.

sestertium (N.) means the sum of 1000 sestertii, = about $40.

decies sestertium means the sum of 1000 sestertia, = $40,000.

2. Sometimes a noun in combination with an adjective takes a special signification, both parts being regularly inflected : as, jusjūrandum, jurisjurandi, oath.

15. PROPER NAMES.

A Roman had regularly three names. Thus, in the name Marcus Tullius Cicero, we have—

Marcus, the praenomen, or personal name ;

Tullius, the nomen ; i.e., name of the Gens, or house, whose original head was Tullus ; this name is an adjective ;

Cicero, the cognomen, or family name, often in its origin a nickname,—in this case from cicer, a vetch, or small pea.

Women had no personal names, but were known only by that of their gens. Thus the wife of Cicero was Terentia, and his daughter Tullia. A younger sister would have been called Tullia secunda, and so on.

ADJECTIVES.

16. INFLECTION.

ADJECTIVES are declined like Nouns; and are either of the First and Second Declension, or of the Third.

I. Adjectives of the first and second declension are thus declined:—

	M.	F.	N.
SING. N.	cār ūs	cār ā	cār um, Dear.
G.	car ī	car ae	car ī
D.	car ō	car ae	car ō
Ac.	car um	car am	car um
V.	car ě	car ā	car um
Ab.	car ō	car ā	car ō
PLUR. N.	car ī	car ae	car ā
G.	car ōrum	car ārum	car ōrum
D.	car īs	car īs	car īs
Ac.	car ōs	car ās	car ā
V.	car ī	car ae	car ā
Ab.	car īs	car īs	car īs

The singular of adjectives in er is thus declined:—

	Free.			Black.
	M.	F.	N.	M.	F.	N.
N.	libĕr	libĕra	libĕr um	nĭger	nĭgra	nĭgrum
G.	libĕr i	liber ae	liber i	nigr i	nig rae	nigr i
D.	liber o	liber as	liber o	nigr o	nig rae	nigr o
Ac.	liber um	liber am	liber um	nigr um	nig ram	nigr um
V.	liber	liber a	liber um	niger	nig ra	nigr um
Ab.	liber o	liber a	liber o	niger	nig ra	nigr o

(Plural like carus.)

The following have the genitive singular in ius, and the dative in i, in all the genders:—

ālius, other.	nullus, no.	ullus, any (with negatives).
alter, other (of two).	sōlus, alone.	ūnus, one.
neuter, neither.	tōtus, whole.	ūter, which (of two).

II. Adjectives of the third declension are thus declined:—

SINGULAR.

	Wise.	Short.	N.	Better.	N.
N.	sāpiens	brēvis, breve		mēliōr,	meliūs
G.	sapientis	brevis		meliōr is
D.	sapienti	brevi		melior i
Ac.	sapientem, N. sapiens	brevem, N. e		meliozem, melius
Ab.	sapiente, or i	brevi		melioze or i

PLURAL.

N. Ac.	sapientes, sapientia	breves, N. ia	meliores, N. ora
G.	sapientium	brevium	meliorum
D. Ab.	sapientibus	brevibus	melioribus

A few adjectives of this declension have the nom. sing. masc. in er: as, M. ācēr, F. acris, N. acre, keen. Otherwise they are declined like brevis.

Adjectives of one termination include those in ns, with a few others: as, vētūs, old; pār, equal; fēlix, fortunate. They all have two forms in the accusative singular, and in the nom. acc. and voc. plural: as, pārem, par; pāres, paria.

17. COMPARISON.

I. The Comparative degree adds ior, ius to the stem, and is declined as melior; the Superlative adds issīmus, a, um, and is declined as carus. Thus:—

car us, dear; carior, dearer; carissīmus, dearest.

Adjectives in er form the superlative by adding rimus to the nominative: as, nīger, black; nigrior, blacker; nigerrīmus, blackest.

Six adjectives, fācīlis, difficīlis, easy, hard; sīmīlis, dissīmīlis, like, unlike; grācīlis, slender; hūmīlis, low, form the superlative by adding līmus to the stem: as, facillīmus.

Compounds ending in dīcus, saying, fīcus, doing, and vōlus, willing, are compared from the corresponding participles in ns : as, maledīcus, slanderos ; maledicentior, maledicentissimus.

malefīcus, mischievous ; maleficentior, maleficentissimus.
malevōlus, spiteful ; malevolentior, malevolentissimus.

Adjectives in us preceded by a vowel, are generally compared by means of the adverbs māgīs, more, and maxime, most : as, īdōneus, fit ; magis idoneus, maxime idoneus.

II. The following are compared irregularly : — bōnus, mēlior, optīmus, good, better, best.

mālus, pējor, pessimus, bad, worse, worst.
magnus, mājōr, maximus, great, greater, greatest.
parvus, mīnōr, minimus, small, less, least.
multum, plūs, (N.) plurimum, much, more, most.
multi, plūres, plurimi, many, more, most.
nēquam (indecl.), nequior, nequissimus, worthless.
frūgi (indecl.), frugālior, frugalissimus, discreet.

III. The following comparatives and superlatives, denoting order in place or time, are formed from certain prepositions : — [citra, this side] cītērior, citīmus, nearer, nearest.

 [extra, outside] extērior, extrēmus, outer, outmost.
 [infra, below] infērior, inifimus or īmus, lower, lowest.
 [intra, within] intērior, intīmus, inner, inmost.
 [post, after] postērior, postrēmus or postūmus, latter, last.
 [prae, before] prīor, prīmus, former, first.
 [prōpe, near] propior, proximus, nearer, next.
 [supra, above] sūpērior, suprēmus or summus, higher, highest.
 [ultra, beyond] ultērior, ultīmus, farther, farthest.

The positives infērus, extērus, &c., are rarely used as adjectives. But the plurals extēri, foreigners ; postēri, posterity ; supēri, the heavenly gods, and infēri, those below, are common.

From the nouns jūvēnis, youth, sēnex, old man, are formed the comparatives jūnior, younger, senior, older. For the superlative the phrase minimus or maximus natu is used, the noun natu being often understood: as, maximus fratrum, the eldest of the brothers.

senior fratrum would mean the elder of the two.

IV. Some adjectives want the positive: as, dētērior, deterřimus, worse, worst.

pōtior, potissimus, more, and most preferable.

Some want the comparative: as,

falsus, falsissimus, false, most false.

inclītus (inclūtus), inclitissimus, famous.

Some want the superlative: as,

ōpīmus, opimior, rich.

V. 1. The Comparative often denotes a considerable or excessive degree of a quality: as, brēvior, rather short; audācior, too bold. It is used instead of the superlative where only two are spoken of: as, mēlior imperatorum, the best of the (two) commanders.

2. The comparative takes the ablative, or quam, than: as, tribus unciis altior est fratre (or quam frater), he is three inches taller than his brother. (See § 54, v.)

3. Comparison between adjectives is expressed by comparatives with quam: as, lātius quam altius est flūmen, the stream is rather broad than deep.

4. The Superlative (of eminence) often denotes a very high degree of a quality: as, maximus numerus, a very great number.

5. The superlative with quam indicates the very highest degree of a quality: as, quam plurimi, as many as possible.

18. NUMERALS.

I. CARDINAL AND ORDINAL.

1.	ūnus, una, unum	prīmus a um, first	I.
2.	duō, duae, duo	sēcundus, alter, second	II.
3.	trēs, tria	tertius, third	III.
4.	quattuōr	quartus, fourth	IV.
5.	quinquē	quintus	V.
6.	sex	sextus	VI.
7.	septem	septīmus	VII.
8.	octō	octāvus	VIII.
9.	nōvem	nōnus	IX.
10.	dēcem	dēcīmus	X.
11.	undēcim	undēcīmus	XI.
12.	duōdecim	duōdēcīmus	XII.
13.	tredecim	tertius decimus	XIII.
14.	quattuordecim	quartus decimus	XIV.
15.	quindecim	quintus decimus	XV.
16.	sēdecim	sextus decimus	XVI.
17.	septendecim	septimus decimus	XVII.
18.	duōdēviginti	duodevīcesīmus	XVIII.
19.	undēviginti	undēvīcesīmus	XIX.
20.	vīgintī	vīcēsīmus	XX.
30.	trīginta	trīcēsīmus	XXX.
40.	quadrāginta	quadrāgesīmus	XL.
50.	quinguāginta	quinguāgesīmus	L or L.
60.	sexāginta	sexāgesīmus	LX.
70.	septuāginta	septuāgesīmus	LXX.
80.	octōginta	octōgesīmus	LXXX.
90.	nōnāginta	nōnāgesīmus	XC.
100.	centum	centesīmus	C.
200.	dūcenti, ae, a	dūcentesīmus	CC.
300.	trēcenti	trēcentesīmus	CCC.
400.	quadrīngenti	quadrīngentesīmus	CCCC.
500.	quīngenti	quīngentesīmus	IO, or D.
600.	sexcenti	sexcentesīmus	DC.
700.	septīngenti	septīngentesīmus	DCC.
800.	octīngenti	octīngentesīmus	DCCC.
900.	nongenti	nongentesīmus	DCCCC.
1000.	mille	millēsīmus	CIO, or M.
10,000.	decem mīlia	decies millesīmus	CCIOO.

1. Unus a um has genitive unīus, dative uni (§ 16, I.).
2. Duo (also ambo, both) is thus declined:—

	M.	F.	N.
Nom.	duo	duae	duo
Gen.	duorum	duarum	duorum
D. Ab.	duobus	duabus	duobus
Ac.	duos, duo	duas	duo

3. Tres is declined regularly, like the plural of brevis (§ 16). The other cardinal numbers up to centum (100) are indeclinable. Mille is indeclinable as an adjective; but when several thousands are spoken of, the noun milia is used, declined like the plural of mare (§ 11, I.), the noun described being put in the genitive plural: as, cum decem milibus milītum, with ten thousand men.

4. The numeral adverbs are: sēmēl, once; bīs, twice; tēr, thrice; quātēr, four times. Those of higher numbers end in iens or iēs: as, quinq̄iens (or quinq̄ies), decies, milies, &c.

II. DISTRIBUTIVE.

1. singūli	12. duōdēni	200. dūcēni
2. bīni	13. terni dēni, &c.	300. trēcēni
3. terni	20. vīcēni	400. quādringēni
4. quāterni	30. trīcēni	500. quingēni
5. quīni	40. quādrāgēni	600. sescēni
6. sēni	50. quinq̄uagēni	700. septingēni
7. septēni	60. sexāgēni	800. octingēni
8. octōni	70. septuāgēni	900. nongēni
9. nōvēni	80. octōgēni	1000. millēni
10. dēni	90. nōnāgēni	2000. bis milleni
11. undēni	100. centēni	10,000. decies milleni

Distributives are used, —

1. As in the phrase singulas binis navibus obiciēbant, they matched the ships one against every two. — Cæs. B.C., I. 58.

2. Instead of cardinals, when the noun is plural in form but singular in meaning: as, bina castra, two camps: (duo castra would mean two forts): but una castra, one camp.

3. In multiplication: as, bis bīna, twice two; quater septenis diebus; i. e., in four weeks.

P R O N O U N S .

19. PERSONAL AND REFLECTIVE.

I. The personal pronouns ego, I, and tu, thou, are thus declined : —

	FIRST PERSON.	SECOND PERSON.
	I.	thou (you.)
SING. N.	ěgŏ	tū
G.	meī	tūī
D.	mīhi (mī)	tībi
Ac.	mē	tē
Ab.	mē	tē
PLUR. N. Ac.	nōs	vōs
G.	{ nostrum nostrī	{ vestrum (vostrum) vestrī (vostri)
D. Ab.	nōbīs	vōbīs

II. The personal pronouns of the first and second persons are used also reflectively : as, ipse te laudās, you praise yourself.

The reflexive pronoun of the third person, himself, herself, themselves, is thus declined : —

G. suī D. sībi Ac. and Ab. sē, or sēsē

It regularly refers to the subject of the sentence.

III. The genitives nostrum, vestrum, are used partitive-ly : as, unusquisque vestrum, each one of you ; mei, tui, sui, nostrī and vestrī are used objectively : as, mēmōr sis nostrī, be mindful of us.

For the genitive of possession, the adjective pronouns meus (voc. masc. mi), tuus, suus, noster, vester, are always used, declined as in § 16, I.: as, mi fili, my son; cum amīcis meis, with my friends.

They agree with genitives in such phrases as tuam ipsius patriam prodidisti, you have betrayed your own fatherland; suo sōlius pericūlo, at his own peril only. — Cic. Cat., IV. 11.

The preposition cum, with, is joined enclitically with the ablative of the personal pronouns: thus, nobiscum ambūlat, he is walking with us.

20. DEMONSTRATIVE.

I. The demonstrative pronouns hic, this; is, iste, ille, that; and ipse, self, are thus declined: —

SINGULAR.

N.	hic	haec	hoc	īs	eā	īd
G.		hūjūs			ējus
D.		huīc			eī
Ac.	hunc	hanc	hoc	eum	eam	īd
Ab.	hōc	hāc	hōc	eō	eā	eō

PLURAL.

N.	hī	hae	haec	iī (eī)	eae	eā
G.	hōrum	hārum	hōrum	eōrum	eārum	eōrum
D. Ab.		hīs		eīs	or iīs
Ac.	hōs	hās	haec	eōs	eās	eā

Nom.	iste	ista	istud	Gen.	istīus	Dat.	isti
„	ille	illa	illud	„	illīus	„	illi
„	ipse	ipsa	ipsum	„	ipsīus	„	ipsi

Remainder as carus, in § 16, I.

II. Hic is sometimes called the demonstrative of the first person; iste (used especially in reference to the person spoken to, and frequently implying contempt), the demonstrative of the second person; ille (referring to more remote objects, and used especially of those celebrated or well known), the demonstrative of the third person. Ille and hic are often used as “the former” and “the latter.” Hic, or hic hōmo, is sometimes equivalent to ego, I: as, tu si hic sis, if you were I. — Ter. Andr. 310.

Is is used especially in reference to something just mentioned, or as antecedent to the relative qui, who. It is used oftener than the other demonstratives as a personal pronoun of the third person, and is sometimes nearly equivalent to the article a or the: as, eum quem esse hostem compēristi, one whom you have found to be a public enemy. — Cic. Cat. I. 11.

habētis eum consūlem qui . . . non dubītet, you have a consul who will not hesitate. — Id. IV. 11.

Ipse, self, the intensive pronoun, is frequently joined with another pronoun: as, nos ipsi, or nosmetipsi, we ourselves; or it may be used independently in either person: as, ipsi adestis, you are yourselves present. Often it may be translated very: as, ipsi colles clāmant, the very hills cry out.

Īdem, eādem, īdem, the same, is declined like is; m being generally changed to n before d in the accusative; as, eundem.

21. RELATIVE.

I. The relative pronoun qui, who, is thus declined: —

	SINGULAR.			PLURAL.
N.	quī	quae	quōd	quī	quae	quae (quā)
G.	cūjus (quoius)			quōrum	quārum	quōrum
D.	cuī (quoi)			quībūs or quīs
Ac.	quem	quam	quōd	quōs	quās	quae
Ab.	quō	quā	quō	quībūs

II. Qui, who, is also used as an interrogative; but when used substantively, the nominative singular is quīs quae quīd: as, quīs adest? who is here? quīd ais? what do you say?

As an adjective, qui is sometimes, and quod always, used: as, qui (or quis) homo est? what man is it? quod bellum tum gērēbātur? what war was then waging?

Quantus, how great; quālis, of what kind; quōt, how many, and the like, are also used both as relative and interrogative, corresponding to tantus, so great; tālis, such; tōt, so many.

The relative is often used in Latin where we must use the demonstrative in English: as, quae cum itā sint, since these things are so.

The preposition cum, with, is affixed to the ablative of qui, as to the personal pronouns: as, quocum, quibuscum, with whom.

The conjunction ac, atque, is often used as a relative, in such phrases as, — pro eo ac mēreor, according to what I deserve. — Cic.

ālīter ac nos vellēmus, different from what we would. — Id.

III. The indefinite relative quicumque, whoever, is declined like qui. So quisquam, quivīs, quilibēt, any one; quisquē, each; quidam, a certain one.

Quisquīs, whoever, rarely occurs except in the forms quisquis quidquīd (quicquīd), and quōquō.

Aliquis, some one; sīquīs, if any; nēquis, lest any; ecquis numquis, whether any, are like quis, but have quā for quae: as, siquā bellā gērenda ērunt, if any wars shall have to be waged.

22. CORRELATIVES.

1. These are demonstrative, relative, interrogative, and indefinite; the demonstratives generally commence with t or i; the relatives and interrogatives (which are alike) with qu; the indefinites with ālī: as, tantus, so great; quantus, as or how great; aliquantus, of some size.

ibi, there; (hic, istic, illic); ūbi, where; ālicūbi, somewhere.

eo, thither; (huc, illuc); quo, whither; aliquo, to some place.

indē, thence; (hinc, illinc); undē, whence; aliundē, from some place.

tum, then; quum (quom, or cum), when; quando? when? aliquando, at some time, or at length.

tot, so many; quōt, as or how many; āliquōt, a number of.

These last are indeclinable: as, per tot annos, tot proeliis, tot impērātōres, so many commanders, for so many years, in so many battles. — Cic.

2. Alter . . . alter (where only two are spoken of), and ālius . . . ālius, one . . . another, are used as correlatives in such phrases as — alter ārāt, alter sērīt, one ploughs, the other sows.

alii mē laudant, alii culpant, some praise me, others blame.

alius aliūd āmāt, one likes one thing, and one another.

hī fratres inter sē āmant alter altērum, these brothers love one another.

23. STRUCTURE.

1. Latin verbs have two VOICES, viz. Active and Passive; — four MOODS, viz. Indicative, Subjunctive, Imperative, Infinitive; — four PARTICIPLES, viz. the Present and Future Active, the Perfect Passive, and the Gerundive; — two VERBAL NOUNS, viz. the Gerund and the Supine; — six TENSES, viz. Present, Imperfect, Perfect, Pluperfect, Future, and Future Perfect; — six PERSONS, three in the singular and three in the plural.

2. The future and future perfect are wanting in the subjunctive mood; and the perfect, pluperfect, and future perfect in the passive voice: their places being supplied by participles, combined with corresponding tenses of the verb esse, to be.

3. The passive voice has often a reflective meaning: as, cingitur gladium, he girds on his (own) sword.
vēlāmur cāpita, we veil our heads. — Virg. Æn. III. 545.

24. MOODS.

I. The Indicative Mood is used for direct assertion or interrogation.

II. The Subjunctive Mood is used for dependent propositions and indirect questions. It is generally translated by the English indicative, especially when preceded by particles expressing condition or result; sometimes by the potential, may, might, or would, especially after particles expressing motive or purpose.

Examples of the use of the subjunctive in dependent constructions are as follows: —

nescio quid scribam, I know not what to write. (§ 67, I. 1.)

nescio quid scribas, I know not what you are writing.

ūt scribam, non est sātis, though I write, it is not enough. (§ 61, 2.)

sine scribam, let me write. (§ 64, IV.)

licet scribas, you may write.

cave scribas, do not write. (§ 58, III.)

non is sum qui scribam, I am not the one to write. (§ 65, I.)

vereor ne scribat, I fear he will write. (§ 64, III.)

vereor ut scribat, I fear he will not write.

sunt qui pūtent, there are some who think. (§ 65, IV. 2.)

nemo est quin putet, there is none but thinks.

sēdet (sedēbat) illic, tamquam scribat (scribēret), he sits (sat) yonder as if he were writing. (§ 61, I.)

si haec sciret, non veniret, if he knew this, he would not come.

sī haec cognoscat, non vēniat, if he should find this out, he would not come. (§ 65, IV. 1.)

nisi haec cognovisset, non vēnisset, if he had not found this out, he would not have come. (§ 65, IV. 2.)

vēnit ut vīdēret, he came to see. (§ 64, I.)

ēvēnit ut videret, it turned out that he saw. (§ 70, II.)

tam prōpē erat ut videret, he was so near as to see. (§ 65, I.)

quis non gaudeat haec videns? who would not be glad to see this? (§ 60, 3.)

cum domum rediisset, mortuus est, when he had returned home, he died. (§ 62, I.)

An Indirect Question is an assertion in which a question is implied, without being expressed: thus — quīs adest? who is here? is a direct question; but dīc mihi quis adsit, tell me who is here, is an indirect question.

III. 1. The Imperative present is used as in English; but its place is often supplied (always in the first person) by the present or perfect subjunctive: as, nē crēde cōlōri, do not trust complexion. (§ 58, III.)

dum vīvīmus vīvāmus, while we live let us live.

Not with the Imperative is nē; and nor, nēve.

2. The future is used especially for edicts and laws: as, regi imperii duo sunt, iique consules appellantur, there shall be two of kingly authority, and they shall be called consuls. — Cic. Leg. III. 3.

hominem mortuum in urbe ne sepelito neve urito, a dead man in the city thou shalt not bury nor burn. — XII. Tab. in Cic.

IV. The Infinitive is used — 1. As the Object of a Verb: as, audire non possum, I cannot hear.

2. With a Subject-Accusative, especially after Verbs of knowing, thinking, and telling: as, dixit me adesse, he said that I was present.

3. As an Indeclinable Noun (with or without a subject-accusative), when it is often rendered in English by the participial noun: as, vivere est cogitare, living is thinking.

25. PARTICIPLES.

I. The Present Participle ends in ns (corresponding to our participle in ing), and is declined like sapiens, § 16, II.

When used as an adjective, the ablative singular ends in i: as, florenti urbe potitur, he takes a flourishing city; but,

florente urbe, while the city flourished.

The Future Active Participle (generally expressing purpose) ends in urus. The Perfect Passive Participle ends in us, and the Gerundive (sometimes called the Future Passive Participle), in us; they are declined like carus (§ 16, I.).

The Gerundive either (1) has the meaning of ought or must: as, delenda est Carthago, Carthage must be destroyed; or (2) is used to govern the noun it agrees with: as, Carthaginis delendae causam, for the sake of destroying Carthage.

II. The use of these participles is seen in the following examples: — tē id dīcentem audīvi, I heard you say that.

sāpientia Dei omnia gūbernantis, the wisdom of God, who governs all.

Cūrio ad fōcum sēdenti, to Curius as he sat by the fire.

Romā profectus Athēnas vēnit, he set out from Rome and came to Athens.

Romam vēnit lūdos spectāturus, or, ad spectandos ludos, he came to Rome to see the games.

bōna pēto semper dūrātūra, I seek goods that will last forever.

rēluctante nātūrā, invītus lābor est, if nature refuses, toil is vain.

anno post exactos reges decimo, ab urbe condītā ducentē-sīmo quinquagesimo quarto, the tenth year after the kings' banishment, and the 251th from the founding of the city.

And the Perfect Participle in English must often be rendered by other constructions in Latin : as, cum Romam rediisset, in fōrum vēnit, having returned to Rome, he came into the forum.

equitātu praemisso, subsēquēbātūr omnibus cōpiis, having sent forward the cavalry, he followed close with all his forces. — Cæs. B.G. II. 19.

· 26. GERUND AND SUPINE.

I. The Gerund is inflected as a Neuter Noun of the Second Declension. Its use is as follows : —

N. scribendum est mihi, I have to write.

G. lābor scribendi, the task of writing.

D. ūtile scribendo, serviceable for writing.

Ac. inter scribendum, while writing.

Ab. scribendo respondit, he answered by writing.

But with a direct object, the Gerundive is usually employed : as,

N. scribenda est mihi epistōla, I have to write a letter.

G. labor scribendae epistōlae, the task of writing a letter.

This is the regular way in Latin of expressing ought or must.

II. The Former Supine is in form the accusative, and the Latter Supine the ablative, of a verbal noun of the fourth declension.

The Former is used after verbs of motion, especially in dialogue or familiar speech: as, hūc vēnit consultum, he has come hither to consult; the Latter after certain adjectives: as, horribile dictu, shocking to tell. The latter is found only in a few verbs.

27. TENSES.

I. The Present tense expresses an action or state as now continuing; as, vōco, I am calling; vocor, I am [being] called, i. e. some one is now calling me.

It is sometimes used, as in English, to give life to narrative: as, Caesar convōcat suos, Cæsar summons his men; and may sometimes be rendered by the Perfect in English: as, jamdiu te vōco, I have been long calling you.

II. The Imperfect is used to tell a condition of things formerly existing. Hence it is employed —

1. In Descriptions: as, ērant omnīno itīnēra duo . . . mons altissimus impendēbat, there were in all two ways . . . a very high mountain overhung. — Cæs. B.G. I. 6.

2. To relate a Continued or Repeated Action: as, saepē dicēbat, he would often say; mīrābar, I used to wonder.

3. To state the Circumstances attending an action or event: as, dum haec gērēbantur, while this was going on.

III. The Perfect is used to tell an action or event occurring at a given time in the past. Hence it is employed —

1. In Narration (perfect aorist, indefinite, or historical): as, vēni, vīdi, vīci, I came, saw, conquered.

2. After ūt, ūbi, posteaquam or postquam, when, (with a leading verb in a past tense), as equivalent to the pluperfect: as, ūbi haec dixit, abiit, when he had said this, he went away.

3. It is also used to relate a past act or state in reference to the present time (perfect definite or relative): as, pāter te jam vocāvit, your father has already called you.

4. In the subjunctive, it usually follows a leading verb in the present; as, nescio utrum itā evēnerit necne, I don't know whether it happened (or has happened) so or not.

In Latin, and in all languages derived from Latin, there are two past tenses, — the Perfect, or Preterite, which is used for narration, to tell the main fact, and the Imperfect, which is used for description, or to state the attending circumstances: as, dum Cicēro domi mănēbat, Caesar interfectus est, while Cicero staid at home, Cæsar was slain.

The Gothic languages, including English, have only one Past tense.

IV. The Future and Future Perfect are used, though with greater accuracy, like the corresponding tenses in English: as, cum audivēro, scribam, when I [shall] have heard, I will write.

V. Tenses are distributed in these two classes, —

1. PRIMARY, including Present, Perfect [Definite], and Future.
2. SECONDARY, including Imperfect, Perfect [Historical], and Pluperfect.

VI. The Perfect, Pluperfect, and Future Perfect, of the Active Voice, are derived from a stem (wanting in the Passive), which is usually formed by adding v [u] or s, with or without a connecting vowel, to the Stem of the Present; this is called the Second or Perfect Stem: as, voc o, vocav i; — dic o, dix i.

In the Passive, these tenses are supplied by adding the corresponding tenses of esse, to be, to the Perfect Participle. This participle is derived from the third or Supine stem, which is usually formed by adding t, with or without a connecting vowel, to the present stem: as, vocāti sūmus, we have been called.

haec dicta erunt, this will have been said.

The Perfect (definite), Pluperfect, and Future Perfect are called the tenses of Completed Action.

28. PERSONAL ENDINGS.

The terminations of the persons are as follows :—

ACTIVE.		PASSIVE.
S. 1. m [o, i]	P. 1. mus	S. 1. r	P. 1. mur
2. s [ti]	2. tis	2. ris, re	2. mīni
3. t	3. nt	3. tur	3. ntur

All Latin words in common use, ending in t, — except at, but; et, and; ut, that; cāput, head; dumtaxat, however; licet, although, and Indefinites in -libet, — are in the third person of verbs; all ending in nt are in the third person plural.

29. ESSE.

I. The Substantive Verb esse, to be, is thus inflected. It has neither Gerund nor Supine, and only the Future Participle :—

PRINCIPAL PARTS: sum, I am; esse, to be; fui, I have been; futurus, about to be: — second stem, fu; third stem, fut.

PERFECT.	fuisse, to have been.
FUTURE.	fōřě or fütūrus esse, to be about to be.

II. Abesse, to be absent, and ădesse, to be present, are inflected in the same way with esse. The Present Participle of abesse is absens; praesens is used as the participle of adesse. The Imperative is wanting in both.

III. Posse, to be able (pōtīs esse), is thus conjugated: —

	INDICATIVE.	SUBJUNCTIVE.
PRESENT, can.	possum	possim
	pōtēs	possīs
	pōtest	possit
	possumus	possimus
	potestis	possitis

PLUPERFECT.	potuēram	potuissem
FUT. PERFECT.	potuēro
INFIN. PRES.	posse	PERF. potuisse
PARTICIPLE.	potens , able.

IV. Prodesse, to help (pro esse), is conjugated like sum, inserting d where followed by e: as, prosum, prodes, prodest, prosumus, prodestis, prosunt.

30. CONJUGATION.

I. Verbs have four regular Conjugations, distinguished by the connecting vowel of the Present Infinitive: these are —

1. ā: as, vōc ā re, to call.
2. ē: as, mōn ē re, to warn.
3. ě: as, mitt ě re, to send.
4. ī: as, aud ī re, to hear.

II. The Perfect and Supine Stems are regularly formed by adding to the Present Stem, in the several conjugations, —

- (1.) āv, āt: as, vōco vōcāre vocāvi vocātum call.
- (2.) ēv, ēt: as, dēleo delēre delēvi delētum ripe out.
- (3.) s, t: as, carpo carpēre carpsi carptum pluck.
- (4.) īv, it: as, audio audire audīvi audītum hear.

In the second conjugation ēv, ēt, are usually modified into ŭ, īt: as, moneo, monere, monui, monitum, warn.

III. The stem of the third conjugation usually ends in a consonant; this is combined with s in the same way as in nouns (§ 11, III. 1, 2, 3): as, rēgo, regere, rexi, rectum, rule.

Vowel-stems of the third conjugation end in ī or ŭ. In the former, the stem is usually lengthened in the perfect: as, fūgio, fugere, fūgi, fugitum, flee.

In these verbs the i is dropped when it would be followed by ě or ī: as,

fugīs, fugīt, fugere, fugērem;

But it is retained before ē: as in fugiēbam; also, fugiet.

A stem ending in u (v), is unchanged in the Perfect: as,

acuo	acuere	acui	acutum	sharpen.
volvo (uoluo)	volvēre	volvi	volutum	turn.

IV. The perfect stem is often formed by simply lengthening the stem-vowel: as,

(1.) jūvo	juvāre	jūvi	jutum	help.
(2.) cieo	ciēre	cīvi	citum	rouse.
(3.) fūgio	fugere	fūgi	fugitum	flee.
(4.) vēnio	venire	vēni	ventum	come.

Or by reduplicating the stem-syllable: as,

- (1.) do, dāre, dēdi, dātum, give (compounds usually in the third conjugation: as, addo, addere, addīdi, additum, add.)
- (2.) mordeo, mordere, mōmordi, morsum, bite.
- (3.) curro, currere, cūcurri, cursum, run.

Or by analogy of other conjugations: as,

(1.) sēco	secāre	secui	sectum	cut.
(2.) māneo	manēre	mansi	mansum	wait.
(3.) pēto	petere	petīvi	petitum	seek.
(4.) vincio	vincire	vinxi	vinctum	bind.

33. RULES OF CONJUGATION.

I. The Conjugations differ from one another only in the tenses formed upon the First or Present Stem.

All irregularities are either in the tenses derived from the first stem, or in the formation of the other stems; never in the terminations added to them.

The tenses formed upon the first stem in the active voice are also formed upon it in the passive.

Tenses of the second stem are inflected like the corresponding tenses of esse: as,

PERF. SING. vocavi, vocavisti, vocavit;

PLUR. vocavimus, vocavistis, vocavērunt or vocavēre.

II. In these inflections it will be observed, that —

1. The Imperfect Subjunctive is formed from the Present Infinitive by adding m; and the Pluperfect Subjunctive from the Perfect Infinitive in the same manner.

2. The passive tenses of the first stem are formed from the corresponding ones in the active, by changing m into r; or, where the active ends in o, by adding r.

3. The Imperative Passive is the same in form with the Present Infinitive Active.

III. 1. In tenses formed from the Second Stem, v between two vowels is often suppressed (syncopated), and the vowels in some cases made one; as amasse for amavisse, flestis for flevistis, audieram for audiveram. This takes place regularly in the compounds of eo, go (fourth conj.); as, abii for abivi, I went away.

2. Four verbs, dico, duco, facio, and fero, with several of their compounds, drop the vowel-termination of the Imperative, making dīc, dūc, fāc, fēr: as, dic mihi, tell me; aufer, take away.

34. FORMS OF CONJUGATION.

I. The principal parts of a verb, which determine its conjugation throughout, are the Present Indicative and Infinitive (first stem); the Perfect Indicative (second stem); and Supine (third stem): as, vōc o, vōc āre, vōcāv i, vōcāt um, call.

II. In the following examples of conjugation, to form the perfect and supine, i is to be added to the second stem, and um to the third: —

lāvo, lāv^z laut- (lōt-) wash.
sōno, sonu^z sonit- sound.
sto, stēt^z stāt- stand.
vēto, vetu^z vetit- forbid.

II.

dōceo, docu- doct- teach.
fāveo, fāv- faut- favor.
jūbeo, juss- juss- order.
mōveo, mōv- mōt- move.
sēdeo, sēd- sess- sit.
torqueo, tors- tort- twist.
vīdeo, vīd- vīs- see.

III.

āgo, ēg- act- drive.
ālo, alu- alt- (alit-) nourish.
cādo, cēcīd, cās- fall.
caedo, cēcīd- caes- kill.
cāno, cēcīn- cant- sing.
cāpio, cēp- capt- take.
cēdo, cess- cess- yield.
cingo, cinx- cinct- gird.
cōlo, colu- cult- till.
crēdo, credīd- credīt- believe.
cresco, crēv- crēt- grow.
cūpio, cupīv- cupīt- desire.
dīco, dīx- dict- say.

fēro, tūl- lāt- bear.
fīgo, fīx- fīx- fix.
fīngo, fīnx- fict- feign.
flecto, flex- flex- bend.

fundo, fūd- fūs- pour.
gēro, gess- gest- bear.
gigno, gēnu- genīt- beget.
jacio, jēc- jact- throw.
laedo, laes- laes- hurt.
mitto, mīs- miss- send.
nosco, nōv- nōt- learn.
parco, pēperc- parcīt- spare.
pārio, pēpēr- part- produce.
pasco, pāv- past- feed.
pello, pēpūl- puls- drive.
pōno, pōsu- pōsīt- put.
prēmo, press- press- press.
quaero, quaesīv- quaesīt- ask.
rāpio, rapu- rapt- snatch.
rumpo, rūp- rupt- break.

tollo, sustūl- sublāt- lift.
traho, trax- tract- drag.
veho, vex- vect- carry.
vinco, vic- vict- conquer.

IV.

āpērio, aperu- apert- open.
haurio, haus- haust- draw.
ōpērio, operu- opert- cover.
rēpērio, repēr- repert- find.
sancio, sanx- sanct- ratify.
sentio, sens- sens- feel.

35. DEPONENT VERBS.

I. Deponent Verbs have the form of the Passive Voice, with an Active or Reflective signification : as,

1. mīror	mirāri	mirātus	admire.
2. mēreor	merēri	merītus	deserve.
3. sēquor	sequi	secūtus	follow.
4. pōtior	potīri	potītus	obtain.

These verbs have the Participles, Gerunds, and Supines of both Voices : as, mirans, miraturus, miratus, mirandus. The participle in dus, however, has a Passive meaning, and hence can occur only in Transitive Verbs : as, potienda est tellus, the land must be won.

II. The Verbs audeo, dare ; fido, trust ; gaudeo, rejoice ; sōleo, be wont, have no Second or Perfect Stem, but form the Perfect, &c., after the analogy of the Passive : as, ausus est, he dared ; fisus sum, I trusted ; gavīsus est, he was glad ; soliti sumus, we were wont. They are called Semi-Deponent.

From audeo we have the subjunctive ausim. The form sōdes, an thou wilt, (for si audes), is frequent in the comic writers.

III. The following list contains some of the most important Deponents, including many which form the Supine stem irregularly. The Infinitives are all regular : — amplect or , -i, plex- embrace.	nasc or , -i, nāt- be born.

cōn or , -āri, conātus , try.	nīt or , -i, nīs- or nix- lean.
expēr ior , -īri, expert- test.	oblīvisc or , -i, oblīt- forget.
fāte or , -ēri, fass- confess.	ord ior , -īri, ors- begin.
fru or , -i, fruct- enjoy.	ōr ior , -īri, ortus , oriturus (or- ēris, -ītur, -ērer), arise.
fung or , -i, funct- perform.	pācisc or , -i, pact- bargain.
grād ior , -i, gress- step.	pāt ior , -i, pass- suffer.
lāb or , -i, laps- glide, fall.	pollic eor , -ēri, pollicīt- promise.
lōqu or , -i, locūt- speak.	prōficisc or , -i, profect- go. mēt ior , -īri, mensus , measure.	quēr or , -i, quest- complain.
mīsēr eor , -ēri, miserīt- or mi- sert- pity.	reor , rēri , rātus , reckon.
mōr ior , -i, (-īri), mortuus , mo- riturus , (moribundus), die.	tu eor , -ēri, tuītus , protect.
	ūt or , -i, ūsus , employ.

36. DERIVATIVE VERBS.

I. INCHOATIVE or INCEPTIVE VERBS are formed by adding the termination scō to the stem and connecting vowel of their primitives: as, from cāleo, I am warm, calesco, I grow warm. They are of the Third Conjugation, and are found only in the tenses of the First or Present Stem.

II. INTENSIVES are formed by adding the terminations of the first conjugation to the third stem of certain verbs: as, dicto, dictate, from dīco (dictum), say.

III. FREQUENTATIVES are formed by adding īto to the first stem of verbs of the first conjugation, īto or o to the third stem of those of the third, and inflecting as in the first: as, clāmīto, I keep shouting; dictītat, he keeps saying.

IV. DESIDERATIVES, expressing a wish, end in ūrīo, and are of the fourth conjugation: as, ēsūrīo (from ēdo, eat), I am hungry.

37. IRREGULAR VERBS.

[For esse and its derivatives see § 29.]

I. Vōlo, velle, volui, wish (no third stem).

IND. PR. vōlo vīs vult vōlūmus vultis vōlunt.

SUBJ. PR. vēlim. IMPERF. vellem.

Other tenses are regular. There is no Imperative. The form sīs for si vis, if you please, is often found after imperatives: as, cāve sis mentiaris, take care you don't lie. Cic. Mil. 22.

II. Nōlo (non volo), nolle, nolui, to be unwilling.

IND. PR. nōlo nonvis nonvult nōlūmus nonvultis nōlunt.

SUBJ. PR. nōlim. IMPERF. nollem.

IMPERATIVE. nōlī nolīto nolīte nolitōte nolunto.

The rest regular. No third stem.

III. Mālo (magis volo), malle, malui, prefer.

IND. PR. mālo māvis māvult mālūmus māvultis mālunt.

SUBJ. PR. mālim. IMPERF. malle.

The rest regular; no Imperative or third stem.

IV. Fĕro, ferre, tŭli, lātum, bear.

ACTIVE: IND. PRES. fĕro fers fert ferĭmus fertis fĕrunt.
 SUBJ. IMP. ferrem. IMPERAT. fer ferto ferte fertōte ferunto.

PASSIVE: IND. PRES. feror ferris fertur ferĭmur, &c.
 SUBJ. IMP. ferrer. IMPERAT. ferre fertor ferimini feruntor.
 INFINITIVE. ferri, latus esse.
 PARTICIPLES. ferens laturus latus ferendus.

The rest regular.

V. Edo, eat, is a regular verb of the third conjugation, with the following forms like those of esse:—

IND. PRES. ĕs est estis. SUBJ. (PRES. edim). IMPERF. essem.
 IMPERAT. ĕs esto estĕ estote. INFIN. esse.

VI. Eo, ĩre, ĩvi, ĩtum, go.

IND. PRES. eo ĩs it ĩmus ĩtis eunt.
 IMPERF. ĩbam. FUT. ĩbo ĩbis ĩbit ĩbĭmus ĩbĭtis ĩbunt.
 SUBJ. PR. eam. IMPERF. ĩrem.
 IMPERAT. ĩ ĩto ĩte ĩtōte eunto.
 PART. PRES. iens, euntis. FUT. ĩtŭrus. GER. eundum.

VII. Făcio, facĕre, fĕci, factum, make, is inflected regularly in the Active; having also the peculiar forms faxo (fut. perf.) and faxim (subj. perf.). It has no Passive tenses formed upon the present stem, but uses instead fio, be made, or become, which is inflected as a regular verb of the Fourth Conjugation, but has the infinitive fiĕri and the subjunctive imperfect fiĕrem: thus,—fio fiĕri factus sum.

Compounds of facio with prepositions, change ă into ĭ in the first stem, and into e in the third, and form their passive regularly: as, conficĭo conficere confĕci confectum, finish.

Other compounds retain the a, and have fio in the Passive: as,
 ACT. bĕnĕ-facio, (-fa'cis), -fĕci, -factum. PASS. bĕnĕfio, benefit.

VIII. Queo, I can, and nequeo, I cannot, are conjugated like eo. They are rarely used except in the present: as, queo quis quit, quĭre, quĭvi.

38. DEFECTIVE VERBS.

I. Coepi, began; ōdi, hate; and mēmīni, remember, have no first stem. Incīpio, begin, is used as a present for coepi; odi and memini, though perfect in form, have the present signification, and are hence called Preteritive Verbs. They are inflected regularly in the tenses derived from the second stem. Other parts of these verbs are —

1. Coeptus (used with the Passive Infinitive: as, urbs coepta est obsīdēri, the city began to be beset); coepturus, about to begin.

2. Osus osurus, both Active in their signification.

3. IMPERATIVE. memento mēmentōte, remember.

II. Aio, say, has the forms — ais ait aiunt, aiebam, &c.; aias aiat aiant, aiens.

III. Inquam, quoth I (used in quotations: as, inquit, quoth he), has the following forms: —

PR. IND. inquam inquis inquit inquīmus inquītis inquit.

IMPERF. inquirebas. PERF. inquisti inquit.

FUT. inquies inquiet. IMPERAT. inque inquito.

IV. Fāri, speak, forms the periphrastic tenses regularly: as, fātus sum, &c. It has also —

IND. PR. fātur. FUT. fābor, fabitur.

IMPERAT. fāre. INFIN. fāri. SUPINE. fātu.

Certain other forms occur in Compounds.

V. The following are found chiefly in the Imperative: —

1. salvē, salvēte, hail. (salveo.)

2. āvē, āvētē, āvēto, hail, or farewell. (aveo.)

3. cēdo, cette, grant, pray. 4. āpāge, begone!

39. IMPERSONAL VERBS.

These are found only in the third person singular, without any personal subject, this being often supplied by an infinitive or other grammatical construction. The most usual verbs of this class are such as the following: —

1. Lībēt (lūbēt), it pleases; licēt, it is permitted, with infinitive subject and dative of person: as, libet mihi lēgēre, licet tibi lūdēre, I like to read, you may play.

2. Mīsērēt, it grieves, pūdet, it shames, taedet, it wearies, pīget, it disgusts, with acc. of person and gen. of object: as, miseret me cāsus tui, I am sorry for your mishap.

3. Accīdit, it happens; restat, it remains; having a phrase or clause as subject: as, persaepe ēvēnit ut ūtīlitas cum hōnestāte certet, it often happens that gain is at variance with honor. (§ 70, II.)

4. Pluit, it rains; ningit, it snows; grandīnat, it hails.

5. The passive of Neuter Verbs, or those governing the Dative: as, pugnātur, there is fighting; parcītur mihi, I am spared.

40. PERIPHRASTIC FORMS.

I. The participle in rus may be used with any mood or tense of sum, forming the Periphrastic Future Active: as, cum venturus sit, since he is about to come.

II. The participle in dus (Gerundive) may be used in the same way to denote duty or propriety: as, vēra dīcenda sunt, the truth must be told.

The Gerundive of neuter verbs is often used impersonally (called the Nominative of the Gerund): as, pugnandum est nōbis, we must fight.

41. ADVERBS.

I. Adverbs are regularly formed from adjectives of the first and second declensions by adding ē to the stem; from those of the third by adding ter or īter: as, cārus, dear, care; sāpiens, wise, sapienter; brēvis, short, brēviter; audax, bold, audāciter, or audacter.

The Comparative of an adverb thus formed is the neuter of the corresponding adjective; the superlative changes us of the adjective into ē: as, cāre, carius, carissime, dearly.

sāpienter, sapientius, sapientissime, wisely.

brēviter, brevius, brevissime, shortly.

fācīliter (or facilē), facilius, facillime, easily.

bēnē (for bōnē), mēlius, optime, well, better, best.

māle, pējus, pessime, ill, worse, worst.

So compare the adverbs —

diu, diutius, diutissime, long (in time).

sēcus, sēcius, otherwise.

II. The following adverbs require special explanation : —

1. Etiam, also, is stronger than quōque, and precedes the emphatic word, while quōque follows it: as, terret etiam nos, ac mīnātur, us also he terrifies and threatens.

— Cic. Ros. Am. 40.

hoc quōque maleficium, this crime likewise. — Id.

2. Nunc, now, points definitely to the present time; jam, already, has a reference to the past, and with negatives means no longer. A similar relation exists between tunc and tum: as, nunc jam aperte rempublicam pētis, now at last you openly attack the commonwealth. — Cic. Cat. I. 5.

— Id. II. 4.

nunc quīdem delēta est, tunc flōrēbat, now to be sure it [Greece] is destroyed, then it prospered. — Id. Ros. Am. 4.

tum, cum ex urbe Cātīlīnam eiciēbam, at the time when I was engaged in expelling Catiline from the city. — Id. Cat.

III. 2.

3. Certō means certainly; certē usually at any rate: as, certo scio, I know for a certainty. — Cic. de Senect. 1.

ōnēre aut jam urgentis aut certe adventantis sēnectūtis et te et me ipsum lēvāri vōlo, I wish both you and myself to be relieved of the weight of old age, which is either already pressing upon us, or at any rate approaching. — Id.

4. Primum, first, is usually followed by deinde, next, &c.; primo, at first, by postea or mox, afterwards: as, primum mihi videtur de genere belli, deinde de magnitudine, tum de imperatore deligendo esse dicendum

I think I must speak first of the nature of the war, next of its magnitude, then of the choice of a commander. — Cic. de Leg. Man. 2.

dissuadente primo Vercingetorige, post concedente, Vercingetorige at first opposing, afterwards yielding. — Cæs. B.G. VII. 15.

5. With ne ... quidem, not even, the emphatic word stands between ne and quidem: as, ne omnis quidem causa, not even for the sake of the omen. — Cic. Ros. Am. 48.

42. PREPOSITIONS.

I. The following Prepositions are followed by the accusative: — ad , to .	erga , towards .	post , after .

adversus , or	extra , outside .	praeter , beyond .
adversum , towards .	infra , below .	propter , near .
ante , before .	inter , among .	propter , on account of .
apud , at, near .	intra , inside .	secundum , next to .
circa , or	juxta , near .	supra , above .
circum , about .	ob , on account of .	trans , across .
circiter , about .	penes , in the power .	ultra , on the further side .
cis , citra , this side .	per , through .
contra , against .	pone , behind .

II. The following take the ablative: —

a , ab , abs , from, by .	e , ex , out of .
absque , but for .	prae , in comparison with .
coram , in presence of .	pro , instead of .
cum , with .	sine , without .
de , down from .	tenus , up to, or as far as .

III. The following take the accusative or ablative: — in, into, in; sub, under; subter, beneath; super, above.

In and sub, when followed by the accusative, signify motion to, when by the ablative, rest in, a place: as, in Itāliam vēnit, atque in Etrūriā tres annos mănēbat, he came to Italy, and staid in Tuscany three years.

sub montem ivit, ibique sub arbore consēdit, he went to the foot of a hill, and sat down there under a tree.

IV. The following require special explanation: —

In, with the accusative, means into; ad, to (the neighborhood), is used especially for persons; ex (e), out of, is the reverse of in; ab (a), away from, is the reverse of ad; de, from, has reference to a part of the object: as, lēgāti in castrā vēniunt, the ambassadors come into the camp. — Cic. Ros. Am. 9.

ut prōfīciscantur ad L. Sullam, that they may go to Lucius Sulla. — Id.

e patrīmōniō nudum expūlistī, you cast him naked out of his inheritance. — Id. 50.

ab sē injūriam prōpulsārē, to ward off injury from himself. — Id.

nihil de patris fortūnis ad suam rem convertit, he has turned nothing to his own use from his father's fortunes. — Id. 49.

43. CONJUNCTIONS.

Conjunctions are more numerous, and their use is much more accurately distinguished, in Latin than in English. The following list includes those most important: —

1. Et, and, connects independent words or clauses; -que (enclitic), combines closely into one connected idea; atque (sometimes ac before consonants), adds with emphasis: as, frēmit mīles et trībūnos centūrīōnesque prōdītīōnis arguit, the soldiers rave and accuse the tribunes and centurions of treachery. — Tac. Hist. I. 80.

mănēre ac dēprehendī, an fūgēre et dispergi pēricūlōsius fōret, whether it were more dangerous to remain and be seized, or to fly and scatter. — Id. 81.

When the second member is negative, neque (nec) is used: as, rēdiērunt in castra invīti nēque innōcentes, they return into the camp unwilling and not innocent. — Id. 82.

2. Sed and vĕrum (more forcible), but, are used to contradict what precedes, — always after negatives ; at, yet, to introduce with emphasis a new consideration, especially in argument ; autem in the same way, especially in transitions, but with less force : as, non ad pŏpŭli Rŏmāni laudem, sed ad jŭdĭcum crudĕlĭ-tatem servatus, preserved, not for the praise of the Roman people, but the cruelty of the judges. — Cic. Verr. V. 1.

sit fur, sit sacrĭlĕgus ; at est bŏnus impĕrātor, grant he is a thief, a sacrilegious wretch, — for all that he is a good commander. — Id.

contāgio autem ista servilis belli cur abs te praedĭcātur ?
but why is that infection of servile war brought forward by you ? — Id. 3.

non solum . . . verum etiam (a favorite expression of Cicero's), not only . . . but also. — Cic. Cat. I. 10.

3. Aut, or, excludes the alternative ; vel (-vĕ) gives a choice ; sivĕ (seu) is properly used in disjunctive conditions, but is also used with words, especially two names for the same object : as,

ŭbi pŏtest illā aetas aut cālescĕre vel aprĭcātiŏne mĕlius vel igni, aut vĭcissim umbris āquisvĕ rĕfrigerari sālŭbrius ? where can that period of life either enjoy warmth better, whether by sunshine or by fire ; or cool itself more healthfully, with shade or water ? — Cic. de Senect. 16.

sĭve āmor sĭve āmicĭtia, whether love or friendship. — Cic. de Amic. 27.

4. Nam (namquĕ), for, introduces a sufficient cause ; ĕnim (ĕtĕnim), an explanatory circumstance : as, id certe cālāmitātĕ docti mĕmŏriā retĭnĕre dĕbĕmus. Nam tum, cum in Asia res magnas permulti āmisĕrant, scĭmus Romae sŏlŭtiŏne impĕdĭta fĭdem concĭdisse.

Non ĕnim possunt ũnā in cĭvĭtāte multi rem ac fortŭnas āmittere ut non plŭres sĕcum in eandem trahant cālāmitātem. This surely, taught by disaster, we ought to keep in memory. For when very many had lost great possessions in Asia, we know that at Rome credit fell by the stoppage of payments. For it is not possible that many lose their property and fortunes in one state without drawing more with them into the same calamity. — Cic. de Leg. Manil. 7.

5. Ergo, therefore, is used for things demonstrated; Itaque, in proofs from the nature of things; igitur, then (a weak ergo), in passing from one stage of the argument to another; idcirco, for this reason, to call attention to a special argument: as, ergo idcirco turpis haec culpa est, quod duas res sanctissimas violat, therefore, for this reason, this is a base misdeed, because it violates two most holy things. — Cic. Rosc. Am. 39.

nec se comitem illius furoris sed ducem praebuit. Itaque hac amentia quaestione nova perterritus in Asiam profugit. Nulla est igitur excusatio peccati, si amici causa peccaveris, nor did he offer himself as an associate of this mad enterprise, but a leader. Therefore he fled to Asia, scared by a fresh accusation on account of this madness. It is then no excuse for a wrong, that you have done it for a friend. — Id. de Amic. 11, 37.

6. Quia, because, regularly introduces a fact; quod, an allegation; quoniam, since, has reference to motives: as, illos quamquam sunt hostes, tamen, quia sunt cives, monitos volo, although they are enemies, still, because they are citizens, I wish them to be admonished. — Cic. Cat. II. 12.

quoniam nondum est perscriptum senatus consultum, ex memoria vobis quid senatus censuerit, exponam. Primum mihi gratiae aguntur, quod virtute, consilio providentia mea republica maximis periculis sit liberata, since the decree of the Senate has not yet been written out, I will recite to you from memory what the Senate voted. In the first place, thanks are rendered to me on the ground that, by my courage, judgment, and foresight, the commonwealth has been freed from the greatest peril. — Id. III. 6.

7. Quum (cum), when, is always a relative conjunction; quando is also used interrogatively: as, cum tacent, clamant, when they are silent, they cry out. — Cic. Cat. I. 8.

O rus, quando ego te adspiciam? O country, when shall I see thee? — Hor. Sat. II. 6, 60.

8. Et...et means both . . . and; tum . . . tum and (more commonly) cum . . . tum have the same meaning, but emphasize the second member: as, et privātim et publicē, both in private and in public. — Cic. Verr. V. 1.

tum dēprēcabītur a vōbis, tum ětiam pro suo jūre contendet, he will not only entreat from you, but will claim as his right. — Id.

9. Atquē (ac) is used after words of similarity: as, rātio ordoque agmīnis ālīter se hābēbat ac Belgae ad Nervios dētūlērant, the arrangement and order of the army was otherwise than as the Belgians had reported to the Nervii. — Cæs. B.G. II. 19.

10. Autem, ěnim, vēro always stand second or third in the clause; the same is generally true of īgītur, and often of tāmen. — See 2, 4, 5.

11. The same fondness for connecting one sentence closely with the preceding which caused the use of relatives at the commencement of a sentence (§ 48, IV.), led to the employment of namque, etěnim, neque, &c., in the same place: as, namque me lūpus fūgit ĩnermem, for a wolf fled from me, although unarmed. — Hor. Carm. I. 22, 9.

44. FORMATION OF WORDS.

I. NOUNS DERIVED FROM NOUNS.

1. Those ending in um or ětum signify a collection or group: as, arboretum, grove; arbustum, orchard (arbor).

2. Diminutives usually end in ōlus or ūlus, often with the feminine and neuter terminations: as, filiōlus, little son (filius); arbuscula, shrub (arbor); currīcūlum, little car (currus), or race-course.

3. Patronymics generally end in ādes or īdes (fem. is): as,
Aeneādes, son of Aeneas (plural, companions); Peleīdes (contr. Pelīdes) son of Peleus; Tyndāris, daughter of Tyndarus.

II. NOUNS DERIVED FROM ADJECTIVES.

Nouns derived from Adjectives have the termination ia, itas, or tūdo: as, brēvitas, shortness (brēvis); audācia, boldness (audax); magnitūdo, greatness (magnus).

III. NOUNS DERIVED FROM VERBS

1. Nouns formed by adding or (fem. rix) to the supine stem, denote the person who does the action: as, victor, victrix, conqueror (vinco).

2. Those formed by adding io or us (fourth dec.) to the supine stem, express abstractly the idea of the verb: as, mōtio or mōtus, movement (mōveo).

3. Those formed by adding men or mentum to the present stem, indicate the subject, object, or means of the action: as, flūmen, stream or river (fluo); dōcūmentum, proof (doceo).

IV. ADJECTIVES DERIVED FROM NOUNS.

1. The ending eus or āceus denotes material: as, aureus, golden (aurum); chartāceus, of paper (charta).

2. The endings icus and ilis denote belonging to: as, civicus and civilis, belonging to a citizen (civis).

3. The terminations ōsus and lentus indicate fulness: as, cōpiōsus, abundant (copia); opūlentus, wealthy (ōpes).

4. Many in tus are formed like participles: as, aurātus, gilded (aurum); auritus, long-eared (auris); cornūtus, horned (cornu).

5. Adjectives from proper names end in ānus: as, Pompēianus, of Pompey; Romanus, Roman.

6. From names of places are also adjectives in ensis, icus, and as (gen. ātis): as, Cannensis, of Cannæ; Pharsālīcus, of Pharsalus; Arpīnas, of Arpinum.

V. ADJECTIVES DERIVED FROM VERBS.

1. Verbal adjectives in bundus (chiefly from verbs of the first conjugation) imply condition: as, errābundus, apt to stray (erro); morībundus, at the point of death (mōrior).

2. Those in īdus (chiefly from neuter verbs), denote quality: as, cālīdus, warm (cāleo); callīdus, cunning (calleo); lūcidus, bright (lūceo).

3. Those in ax, denote a propensity, generally aggressive: as, audax, bold (audeo); pugnax, full of fight (pugno).

4. Those in īlis and bīlis, denote possibility or aptness: as, frāgīlis, frail (frango); amābīlis, lovely (āmo).

VI. COMPOUND NOUNS.

Examples of these are — patrīcīda, one who kills his father (pāter, caedo).

tubīcen, trumpeter (tūba, cāno).

tibīcen, piper (tībia, cāno).

armīger, armor-bearer (arma, gero).

signīfer, standard bearer (signum, fēro).

pontīfex, priest, (bridge-maker, pons, facio).

auceps, bird-catcher (āvis, cāpio).

There are numerous other derivative forms, but the above are those which occur most frequently.

Many words are sometimes classed as Derivatives, which are formed by simply adding the termination of the noun, adjective, or verb, to the same root or stem: as, from rēg- rule, are formed rēg o, I govern or direct; rex (gen. rēgis), king; rēgīna, queen; rēgālis, rēgius, royal; regnum, royalty; rēgio, district under a common rule.

PART SECOND.

USE OF WORDS. (SYNTAX.)

45. DEFINITIONS.

1. The Subject of a proposition is the person or thing spoken of; the Predicate is that which is stated of the Subject.

2. A word is said to Agree with another, when it is in a corresponding grammatical form; it is said to Govern another, when it requires it to be in a particular Case.

The word so governed is called the Object.

3. The verb esse, to be, when it connects an attribute with its subject, is called the Copula; otherwise, it is called the Substantive Verb.

I. RULES OF AGREEMENT.

46. OF NOUNS.

A Noun used to describe another agrees with it in Case; this is called Apposition: as, externus tīmor, maximum concordiae vincūlum, fear of the foreigner, the strongest bond of union. — Liv. II. 39.

quattuor hic, primum ōmen, ēquos vīdi, I saw here four horses, the first omen. — Virg. Æn. III. 537.

Ancum Marcium rēgem pōpūlus creāvit, the people created Ancus Marcius king. — Liv. I. 32.

quae tua est ista vīta? what is that life of yours? — Cic. Cat.

I. 1, 7. (vīta in the predicate, in apposition with the interrogative pronoun quae.)

littēras Graecas sēnex dīdīci, I learned Greek letters when an old man (sēnex in appos. with ego understood).

Aristaeus qui ōlīvae dīcitur inventor, Aristæus, who is called the discoverer of the olive. — Cic. N. D. III. 18.

1. Also in Gender when it can: as, ōleae Mīnerva inventrix, Minerva the discoverer of the olive. — Virg. G. I. 18.

2. A Noun in apposition with the locative case is put in the ablative with or without the preposition in (§ 55, III. 3): as, mīlites Albae constitērunt in urbe mūnīta, the soldiers halted at Alba, a fortified town. — Id. Phil. IV. 2.
Antiochiæ, cēlebri quondam urbe et cōpiōsa, at Antioch, once a famous and wealthy city. — Cic. pro Arch. 3.

3. The genitive is used in apposition with possessive pronouns, taking the gender and number of the implied subject: as, in nostro omnium flētū, amid the tears of us all. — Cic. pro Mil. 34.

47. OF ADJECTIVES.

Adjectives, also Adjective Pronouns and Participles, agree with their nouns in gender, number, and case: as, consūlāria mūnēra, the consular duties; hac lēge, by this law; ūno interfecto, one being slain.

I. With two or more nouns the adjective is plural: as, Nīsus et Euryālus pīmi, Nisus and Euryalus first. — Virg. Æn. V. 394.

II. With nouns of different genders it either (1) agrees with the nearest: as, si res, si vir, si tempus ullum dignum fuit, if any thing, if any man, if any time, was fit. — Cic. pro Mil. 7.

Or (2) it may be masculine, if they are living beings, neuter if things without life: as,

uxor deinde ac libēri amplexi, then his wife and children embraced him. — Id. II. 40.

Or (3) it may be masculine, even if the noun is of a different gender, when the existence of male beings is implied: as, cōlōniae alīquot dēductae, Prisci Latīni appellāti, colonies were established [of men] called Prisci Latini. — Liv. I. 3.

pars certare pārti, a part ready to contend. — Virg. Æn. V. 108.

This is called Synēsis, or constructio ad sensum.

III. Adjectives are often used as nouns, meaning persons or things: as, dīdicit jam dīves āvārus laudāre dīsertos, the rich miser has already learned to compliment the eloquent. — Juv. VII. 30.

So, constantly, with the possessive pronouns, in military or other special use: as, nostri, the men of our party; Caesar hortātur suos, Cæsar cheers his men.

So a noun is sometimes used, and even compared, as an adjective: as, admōdum puer, quite a boy; māgis vīr, more of a man.

IV. A neuter adjective is used as a noun (1) to denote the abstract quality: as, tanta vis est hōnesti, ut spēciem ūtīlītatis obscūret, so great is the force of honor, that it dims the show of gain. — Cic. de Off. III. 11.

But where the meaning would be doubtful, the feminine is used with res. Hence adjectives of the third declension are thus used only in the nom. and acc.: as, lōquītur de omnibus rēbus (not de omnibus), he talks about every thing.

(2) In apposition with a noun of different gender: as, vārium et mūtābile semper foemīna, woman, ever fickle and changeful. — Virg. Æn. IV. 569.

(3) In apposition with an infinitive clause or phrase : as, aliud est errāre Caesārem nolle, aliud nolle misērēri, it is one thing to be unwilling that Cæsar should err, another to be unwilling that he should pity. — Cic. pro Lig. 5.

V. Adjectives (especially those formed from proper names), as well as the possessive pronouns, are often used instead of a genitive : as, ācies Pompēiāna, Pompey's line of battle. — Caes. B.C. III. 94.

puerile regnum, the reign of a boy.

This is always the case with the personal pronouns : as,
dōmus mea (not mei), my house.

Also, in such phrases as nostrā rēfert, it concerns us. (See § 50, v. 4.)

VI. An adjective in Latin is sometimes best rendered by other forms in English : as, te quam laetus invīso, how joyfully I visit thee. — Catull. 31, 4.

primus vēnit, he was the first to come.

eos se invīto adesse dixit, he said they were there against his will.

VII. When two qualities of an object are compared, both adjectives are usually in the comparative : as, longior quam lātior ācies erat, the line was longer than it was broad. — Liv. XXVII. 48.

VIII. Superlatives denoting order and succession, also medius, caeterus, and reliquus, are used to designate a part : as, in colle mēdio, on the middle of the hill. — Cæs. B.G. I. 24.

summus mons, the top of the height. — Id. 22.

So, sērā nocte, late at night.

IX. Alius . . . alius, one . . . another, implies that the predicate is differently applied in each case : as, duo rēges ālius alia viā cīvitatem auxērunt, two kings enlarged the state, each in his own way. — Liv. I. 21.

cum alius alii subsīdium ferrent, as one helped one, and one another. — Caes. B.G. II. 26.

48. OF RELATIVES.

Relatives serve (1) as nouns in the subordinate clause in which they stand; (2) as connectives, relating directly to some word in the main proposition, which is called the Antecedent.

The use of relatives is much more frequent in Latin than it is in English, owing to the fondness of the ancients for connecting a sentence very closely to the preceding. (See § 43, 11.)

I. Relatives agree with their antecedents in gender, number, and person, their case depending on the construction of the clause in which they stand: as, utrum ille qui postulat ad tantum bellum lēgatum quem vēlit idōneus non est qui impetret? is not he who claims for such a war the deputy whom he will, fit to get him? — Cic. pro Lege Manil. 19.

adsum qui fēci, here am I who did it. — Æn. IX. 427.

II. The relative often agrees in gender with the noun (appositive) in its own clause rather than with the antecedent: as, māre etiam quem Neptūnum esse dīcebas, the sea, too, which you said was Neptune. — Cic. N. D. III. 20.

III. The antecedent is often repeated in the relative clause: as, lōci nātūra erat haec quem locum nostri castris dēlēgērant, the nature of the ground which our men had chosen for the camp was this. — Cæs. B. G. II. 18.

causam dicit ea lēge quā lēge sēnātores sōli tēnentur, he pleads his case under a law by which only senators are bound. — Cic. pro Cluent. 57.

Sometimes it stands only in the relative clause: as, quas res in consūlatu nostro gessimus attigit hic versibus, he has touched in verse the things which we did in our consulship. — Cic. Arch. 11.

hābetis milītes quam petistis fācultatem, soldiers! you have the chance you wanted. — Cæs. B. G. VI. 8.

In such cases, the demonstrative is or hic usually stands in the principal clause : as, quae pars civitatis cālāmītatē pōpūlo Romano intūlērat ea princeps poenas persolvit, that part of the state which had brought disaster on the Roman people was the first to pay the penalty. — Caes. B.G. I. 12.

In a sentence of this class, the relative clause in Latin generally stands first; but in translating, the noun should be transferred, in its proper case, to the antecedent clause, as in the example just quoted.

IV. A relative often stands at the beginning of a clause or sentence where in English a demonstrative must be used : as, quorum quod sīmīle factum? what ever happened like this? — Cic. Cat. IV. 8.

quod si fēcit — quā impūdentīā est — eumne testem imprōbabit quem jūdīcem probārit? If he does this — and he is shameless enough for it — will he challenge one as witness whom he has approved as juror? — Cic. Ros. Com. 15.

V. Id quod or quae res is used instead of quod to relate to an idea or group of words previously expressed : as, [obtrectatum est] Gabinio dīcam, an Pompēio? an utrique — id quod est vērīus? [insult has been offered] shall I say to Gabinius, or Pompey? or to both, which is nearer the truth? — Cic. de Leg. Manil. 19.

49. VERBS.

Verbs agree with their subject in person and number; in gender also in the periphrastic forms : as, ēgō stātuo, I resolve; ōrātio est hābīta, the plea was spoken.

I. With two or more singular subjects the verb will be in the plural; and if they are of different persons, it will be in the first rather than the second, or the second than the third : as, si tu et Tullia vāletis, ego et Cicero valemus, if you and Tullia are well, I and Cicero are well. — Cic. Fam. XIV. 5.

But the verb will be singular if the subjects are considered as one whole: as,

haec tua justitia et lenitas animi florescit quotidie magis, this justice and gentleness of yours flowers daily more and more. — Cic. pro Marc. 4.

So, too, if they are joined by disjunctives: as, neque fides neque jusjurandum neque illum misericordia repressit, not faith, nor oath, nor mercy, checked him. — Ter. Ad. III. 2, 8.

A collective noun may in poetry take a plural verb: as, quaerunt pars aditum, a part seek the entrance. — Virg. Æn. IX. 507.

II. The personal pronoun, as subject, is usually omitted, unless emphatic: thus, loquor = I speak; egō loquor = it is I that speak.

III. The infinitive is sometimes used instead of the personal form in narrative; this is called the Historical Infinitive: as, tum Catilina polliceri tabulas novas, then Catiline promised an abolition of debts. — Sallust, Cat. 21.

ego instare, ut mihi responderet, I pressed him to answer me. — Cic. in Verr. II. 77.

II. RULES OF GOVERNMENT.

50. GENITIVE.

The Genitive, in its primary meaning, denotes Origin or Possession. It is used —

I. To define more precisely the meaning of a noun (SUBJECTIVE GENITIVE): as, potentia Pompei formidolosa erat, the power of Pompey was alarming. — Sall. Cat. 19.

nondum maturus imperio Ascanius Aeneae filius erat, Ascanius, son of Aeneas, was not yet ripe for command. — Liv. I. 3.

1. A phrase or clause with esse, to be, is often limited by the genitive; this occurs most frequently with adjectives and abstract nouns: as, neque sui iudicii [esse] discernere, it was not for his judgment to decide. — Caes. B.C. I. 35.

— Ov. Met. IV. 115.

The genitive used in this way often takes the place of a neuter adjective: as, sapientis est (not sapiens est), it is wise.

Instead of the genitive of personal pronouns, the neuter of the possessive is used: as, mentiri non est meum, it is not mine to lie. — Ter.

2. The genitive of quality requires an adjective: as, vir summæ honestatis, a man of the highest honor.

The ablative is also used in this way: as, vir summo consilio, a man of the highest prudence. (§ 54, II.)

3. The genitive is sometimes used instead of a noun in apposition; as, nomen insanie, the word insanity. — Cic. Tusc. III. 4.

4. A genitive of specification, after adjectives, is common in the poets and late prose writers: as, integer vitæ scelerisque purus, upright of life and clear of guilt. — Hor. Od. I. 22, 1.

II. To denote the Whole, after words signifying a Part (PARTITIVE GENITIVE). These are —

1. Nouns or Pronouns: as, pars militum, part of the soldiers; quis nostrum? which of us?

2. Numerals, Comparatives, and Superlatives: as, alter consulum, one of the (two) consuls.

plurimum totius Gallie equitatu valet, is strongest in cavalry of all Gaul. — Caes. B.G. V. 3.

3. Neuter Adjectives and Pronouns: as, tantum spatii, so much space; aliquid nummorum, a few pence;

plana urbis, the level parts of the town.

4. Adverbs, especially of Place and Quantity: as, sātīs pĕcūniae, enough money; ubīnam gentium sumus? where in the world are we? īnde loci, next in order.

Instead of the Partitive Genitive, ex with the ablative is often used: as, ūnus ex tribūnis, one of the tribunes.

III. To denote the object of some action implied by the governing word (OBJECTIVE GENITIVE). Words of this class are —

1. Nouns expressing action or mental emotion: as, grātia bĕnĕficii, gratitude for a favor.

laudator tempōris acti, one who praises the past. — Hor. de Arte Poetica, 173.

mĕmōria nostri tua, your memory of us. — Cic. Fam. XII. 17.

vim suorum pro suo pĕricūlo dĕfendebant, they parried the attack on their comrades as if it were their own peril. —

Caes. B.C. III. 110.

So, rarely, with the possessive pronouns: as, pĕricūlo īvīdiae meae, with risk of odium against me. — Cic. Cat. II. 2.

2. Adjectives of Fulness or Want, and those expressing feeling or desire: as, sermonis plĕnus ōrātor, a speaker full of words. — Cic. Brut. 68.

erat plĕna lictōrum et impĕriōrum prōvincia, the province was full of lictors and officials. — Caes. B.C. III. 32.

Cethĕgus qui dixisset se semper bōnorum ferrāmentorū studiōsum fuisse, Cethegus, who had said that he had always been a fancier of good cutlery. — Cic. Cat. III. 5.

3. Verbal Adjectives, especially with the terminations ax and ns: as, ĕrat in oppīdo multītūdo īsōlens belli, there was in the town a population unused to war. — Caes. B.C. II. 36.

hābetis dūcem mĕmōrem vestri oblītum sui, you have a leader who thinks of you and forgets himself. — Cic. Cat. IV. 9.

justum ac tĕnācem prōpōsīti vīrum, a man just and steadfast to his purpose. — Hor. Od. III. 3, 1.

So the participle of active verbs, when expressing not an act, but a quality or disposition: as, āmans concordiae, a lover of peace.

The relation of the Objective Genitive may also be expressed by prepositions: as, ōdium in Caesārem, hatred of Caesar.

IV. As the object of the following classes of verbs:—

1. Of remembering, forgetting, and reminding, — when used generally, to denote the subject on which the mind is exercised: as, oblīviscēre caedis atque incendiarum, turn your mind from slaughter and conflagrations. — Cic. Cat. I. 3.

But the accusative must be used with these verbs to express a particular thing remembered or forgotten: as, hoc te admōneo, I remind you of this.

2. Of accusing, condemning, and acquitting, to express the charge, and sometimes the penalty: as,

C. Marium scēlēris ac parricīdii nefarii mortuum condemnābimus? shall we convict Caius Marius, now dead, of crime and infamous treason? — Cic. pro Rabir. 10.

C. Gracchum cāpitis damnavērunt, they condemned Caius Gracchus to death.

The crime may be expressed by the ablative with de; the punishment by the ablative alone: as, de ambītu crimīnabatur, he was charged with bribery.

vītia autem hōmīnum atque fraudes damnis, ignōmīniis, vincūlis, verbēribus, exiliis, morte, damnantur, while the vices and crimes of men are punished with fines, dishonor, chains, scourgings, exile, death. — Cic. de Or. I. 43.

3. Mīsereor, miseresco, pity: also, the Impersonals mīsēret, pīty; pīget, disgust; poenītet, repent; pūdet, shame; taedet or pertaesum est, weary, with the accusative of the person affected: as, me meorum factorum atque consīliorum numquam poenītebit, I shall never repent of my acts and counsels. — Cic. Cat. IV. 10.

4. Intērest and rēfert, it concerns, — the subject of the verb being a neuter pronoun, an infinitive clause, or the subjunctive with ut: as, omnem pōtentiam ad ūnum conferri pācis interfuit, it was the interest of peace that all power should be put in one man's hands. — Tac. Hist. I. 1.

Instead of the genitive of the personal pronoun, the possessive is used in this construction, in the abl. sing. fem.: as, quid id rēfert tuā? how does it concern you? — Plaut. Rud. 178.

Rēfert is rarely used in any other way.

NOTE. — Intērest is used in the three following ways: —

(1.) Impersonally, with the genitive: as, intērest exercītūs, it is for the advantage of the army;

(2.) Personally, with the dative: as, intērest exercītui, he is present with the army;

(3.) With the accusative and prepositions: as, intērest inter exercītum et castra, either, he is between — or, there is a difference between — the army and camp.

5. Some verbs of plenty and want: as, quid est quod dēfensiōnis indīgeat? what is there that needs defence? — Cic. Ros. Am. 12.

6. Also, sometimes, pōtior, get possession of; as always in the expression pōtiri rērum, to be masters of affairs. — Cic. Fam. I. 8.

The Genitive is also used after the adverbs prīdiē, the day before; postrīdiē, the day after: as, postridie ejus diēi, the next day. — Cæs. B.G. II. 12.

NOTE. — For the Genitive of Price, see § 54, IX.

51. DATIVE.

The dative (TO or FOR) denotes the person or thing whose interest is affected. It is used —

I. With words expressing likeness, fitness, nearness, and the like: as, similis patri, like his father, — (similis patris would imply likeness of character).

res incommōdas urbi, things harmful to the city.

With some adjectives of this class prepositions may also be used: as, aptus ad rem militārem, fit for military service.

si inīquus es in me jūdex, if you are an unfair judge towards me. — Cic. Fam. II. 1.

When the dative is required by the structure of the sentence as a whole, rather than by any single word, it is called the dative of advantage and disadvantage (dativus commōdi et incom-mōdi): as, sīnē dōte posco tuam sōrōrem filio, I ask your daughter for my son without a dowry. — Plaut. Trin. II. 4, 98.

laudavit mihi frātrem, he praised my brother (out of regard for me: laudavit fratrem meum would imply no such motive).

Othōni in Hispaniam cōmes, a companion of Otho's into Spain. — Tac. Hist. I. 22.

To signify in defence of, pro must be used, as: pro patriā mōri, to die for one's country. — Hor. Carm. III. 2, 13.

Mihi, tibi, nobis, and vobis are used in questions and expressions of wonder and praise, to denote a certain interest felt: as, quid mihi Celsus agit? pray, what is Celsus about? — Hor. Ep. I. 3, 15. This is called the Ethical Dative (dativus ethicus).

II. As the indirect object of transitive verbs which take the accusative of the direct object: as, hunc librum tibi mitto, I send you this book — (i.e., for your use; motion towards being expressed by ad with the accusative).

Pompēio in hortos nunciavit, he sent word to Pompey to the gardens. — Cic. Mil. 24.

A few verbs of this class, as dōno, present, induo, clothe, circumdo, surround, may also take the accusative and ablative: as, donat corōnas milītibus, he gives wreaths to the soldiers; or, donat milites cōrōnis, he presents the soldiers with wreaths.

III. With many verbs (transitive in English) which signify favor, obedience, command, pardon, envy, and the like: as, cur mihi invīdes? why do you envy me?

cīvītati serviebat, he served the state.

So occasionally with nouns derived from such verbs; as, invidia mihi, envy towards me.

These verbs can be used in the passive only impersonally, in which case the dative may be retained: as, cui parci potuit? who could be spared? — Liv. XXI. 14. (§ 73, L.)

For the dative with other Impersonals, see § 39, 1.

Sometimes the accusative of the thing is used with the dative of the person after such verbs as impéro, command or require; invideo, envy or grudge; aequo, make equal; minor, threaten; cedo, yield: as, imperat oppidanis decem talenta, he exacts ten talents of the townspeople.

IV. With many verbs usually governing the accusative when advantage or disadvantage is implied: thus, consulo, with acc. consult, with dat. consult one's interest; convenio, with acc. meet, with dat. suit; metuo, timeo, with acc. fear, with dat. be apprehensive for; moderor, temporo, with acc. arrange, with dat. control. So caveo, beware, prospicio, foresee, and others.

Medeo, medico, heal; praestolor, wait; and ausulto, hearken, may take either dative or accusative.

V. After many verbs compounded with the following prepositions, and retaining their force in the compound: ad, ante, con, in, inter, ob, post, prae, re (inseparable), sub, and super: as, omnibus interfui proeliis, I took part in all the battles. — Cæs. B.C. III. 87.

hibernis Labienum praeposuit, he placed Labienus in charge of the winter-quarters. — Cæs. B.G. I. 54.

Also active compounds of circum, de, and ex: as, classe Caesari erepta, the fleet being snatched away from Caesar. — Cæs. B.C. III. 111.

But when there is a distinct indication of place, the preposition is repeated: as, detrahere anulum de digito, to withdraw a ring from the finger.

VI. After esse, to be, denoting the possessor : as, est mihi liber, I have a book.

erat Dario mīte et tractābile ingēnium, Darius had a gentle and yielding temper. — Curt. III. 2.

This is the usual form to denote possession ; habeo, I have, generally signifying, rather, I hold. So with the nominative of the gerund or gerundive : as, mihi est moriendum, it is for me to die ; (i.e. I must die).

VII. To signify the purpose or end, frequently joined with another dative of the person : as, tertiam āciem nostris subsidio mīsīt, he sent the third line as a relief to our men. — Cæs. B.G. I. 52.

tum sunt carmina cordi, then songs are a delight. — Lucr. V. 1389.

VIII. After the gerundive, to denote the person to whom the necessity exists : as, haec vobis provincia est defendenda, this province is for you to defend [to be defended by you]. — Cic. Leg. Man. 6, 14.

Similarly with perfect participles ; with vidēri, seem ; and, in the poets and later writers, with almost any passive verb : as, nulla tuarum audita mihi neque visa sororum, no one of thy sisters has been either heard or seen by me. — Virg. Æn. I. 326.

52. ACCUSATIVE.

The Accusative is the case of the direct object. It is used —

I. After transitive verbs : as, lēgatiōnem suscēpit, he undertook the embassy. — Cæs. B.G. I. 3.

Many neuter verbs are sometimes used transitively : as, meum cāsum luctumque doliērunt, they have bewailed my misfortune and grief. — Cic. Sest. 69, 145.

Tītius, Pindārici fontis qui non expalluit haustus, Titius, who did not turn pale at draughts of the Pindaric fount. — Hor. Ep. I. 3, 10.

So occasionally in the passive: as, rīdētur ab omni conventu, he is laughed at by the whole assembly. — Hor. Sat. I. 7, 22.

This occurs especially with verbs of tasting, smelling, &c: as,

Epīcūrus, hōmo mīnīme rēsīpiens patriam, Epicurus, a man who smacked very little [i.e. possessed very little of the characteristic wit] of his native country. — Cic. N.D. II. 17.

Also with accusatives of meaning kindred to that of the verb: as, vīvēre vītām, to live a life. — Cic. de Sen. 21.

II. After many neuter verbs, which become active when compounded with prepositions. These include —

1. Verbs of motion: as, dēlūbra deum ādībīs, thou wilt visit the shrines of the gods. — Lucr. VI. 75.

2. Compounds of circum: as, cīves qui circumstant sēnātum, the citizens who group about the Senate. — Cic. Cat. I. 8.

III. As a secondary object (1) after verbs of asking and teaching; also cēlo, hide: as, hoc vos dōceo, I teach you this. — Cic. de Orat. II. 47.

nihil supra deos lācesso, nec pōtentem āmīcum largiōra flāgīto, I do not importune the gods for any thing more, nor do I demand more liberal gifts from a powerful friend. — Hor. Carm. II. 18, 11.

So with passives: as,

Cāto, rōgātus sententiam, ōrātiōnem hābuit, Cato, being asked his opinion, delivered a speech. — Sall. Cat. 52.

The ablative with a preposition is often used after these verbs: always, to express the person, after pēto, postūlo, and quaero: as, pācem ab Rōmānis pētiērunt, they begged peace from the Romans. — Cæs. B.G. II. 13.

(2) After active verbs compounded with trans, across: as,

Hībērum cōpiās trajēcit, he threw his forces across the Iber. — Liv. XXI. 23.

(3) In Apposition after verbs of choosing, &c. (See § 46.)

IV. In neuter pronouns and adjectives of number (in an adverbial sense), especially with neuter verbs : as, quidve mōror, or why do I delay? — Virg. Æn. II. 101.
pauca milītes hortātus, having briefly exhorted the soldiers. — Sall. Jug. 49.

So id tempōris, at this time. — Cic. Cat. I. 4, 10.

Similar to this is the so-called Synecdochical or Greek Accusative, used by the poets to denote the part affected : as, flāvāque cāput nectentur ōlivā, and their heads shall be wreathed with yellow olive. — Virg. Æn. V. 309.

So with the passive (used reflectively) of cingo and similar verbs : as, inūtīle ferrum cingitur, he girds on his useless sword. — Virg. Æn. II. 510.

V. In exclamations : as,

O fortunātam rempublicam! O fortunate republic! — Cic. Cat. II. 4.

VI. As subject of the infinitive in dependent clauses, after verbs of knowing, thinking, hearing, wishing, and telling (verba sentiendi et declarandi).

See, for examples of this use, Oratio Obliqua (§ 67, I. 2), and Intermediate Clauses (§ 70, III.).

NOTE. — For the accusatives of time and place, see § 55. — For the accusative after prepositions, see § 56.

53. VOCATIVE.

The Vocative is used in direct address : as,

Septīmi, Gādes ādītūre mēcum, O Septimius, who art about to go with me to Gades. — Hor. Carm. II. 6, 1.

Sometimes the nominative is used instead : as, almae filius Maiae, O son of benignant Maia. — Hor. Carm. I. 2, 43.

audi, tu pōpūlus Albānus, hear, thou people of Alba. — Liv. I. 24.

54. ABLATIVE.

The Ablative, in general, implies either instrument or separation. It is used —

I. To express cause, means, and specification: as, vultu Milōnis perterritus, scared by the countenance of Milo. — Cic. Mil. 15, 41.

nec tantum Phoebo gaudet Parnāsiā rūpēs, nor does the cliff of Parnassus delight so much in Phoebus. — Virg. Buc. VI. 29.

ferro rumpenda per hostes est via, a road must be cut through the enemy with the sword. — Id. Æn. X. 371.

suo jūre noster ille Ennius sanctos appellat poētas, with peculiar right our Ennius calls poets holy. — Cic. Arch. 8, 18.

certe non tūlit ullos haec cīvitas aut glōriā clāriōres, aut auctōritāte grāviōres, aut hūmānitāte pōliōres, certainly this city never produced any more illustrious in glory, or weighty in authority, or refined in culture. — Cic. de Orat. II. 37.

The motive which influences the mind of the person acting is expressed by the ablative alone; the object exciting the emotion requires ob or propter with the accusative: as, nōn ob praedam aut spōliandi cūpīdīne, not for booty, or through the desire of plundering. — Tac. Hist. I. 63.

So causā and grātiā with a genitive, or causā with a possessive: as, legātōs ad Caesārem sui purgandī grātiā mittunt, they send deputies to Caesar for the purpose of clearing themselves. — Caes. B.G. VII. 43.

meā causā, for my sake. — Ter. Eun. V. 8, 40 (1070).

With living beings, instrumentality is expressed by per, or by ōpērā with a genitive or possessive: as, pēr Antiōchum, by the aid of Antiochus. — Liv. XXXIII. 18.

meā ōpērā, by my aid. — Cic. de Sen. 4. So per vim (as well as the ablative vi), by force. — Caes. B.G. I. 14.

NOTE. — For the ablative of crime and penalty, see § 50, iv. 2.

II. With an adjective or a limiting genitive, to denote manner and quality: as, pöpulus magnā vöce me vērē jūrasse jūrāvit, the people swore with a loud voice that I had sworn truly. — Cic. Fam. V. 2.

möre hōmīnum invīdent, after the manner of men they envy. — Cic. pro Balbo, 26.

ānīmo mēliöre sunt quam pars patrīciōrum, they are better disposed than a portion of the patricians. — Cic. Cat. II. 12.

hōmīnis esse spēciē deos confītendum est, we must admit that the gods are of human form. — Cic. N.D. I. 18.

Manner is also expressed by cum, and in a few cases by the ablative alone: as, mīnus cum cūrā, less carefully. — Plaut. M.G. III. 1, 6.

hōc ōnus fēram stūdio ēt industriā, I will bear this burden zealously and diligently. — Cic. Rosc. Am. 4.

Accompaniment properly requires cum: as, nostrī cum fundītōribus sāgittāriisque flūmen transgressi, our troops having crossed the river with the slingers and archers. — Cæs. B.G. II. 19. (But subsēquēbatur omnībūs cōpiis, he followed close with all his forces. — Id.)

There is no essential distinction between the ablative and the genitive of quality (§ 50, I. 2), except that the genitive is exclusively used to denote measure, classification, or requirement: as, suādēre princīpi multi lābōris, to persuade a prince is a thing requiring great labor. — Tac. Hist. I. 15.

III. With the verbs ūtor, use; fruor, enjoy; fungor, fulfil; pōtior, get; vescor, feed, and most of their compounds: as, ūtar vestrā bēnignītāte, I will avail myself of your kindness. — Cic. Arch. 8.

Pōtior also governs the genitive, as always in the expression, pōtirī rērum, to possess the power. — Cic. Fam. I. 8.

IV. After the adjectives dignus, worthy; indignus, unworthy, and frētus, relying upon: as, deā carmīnē dignā est, the goddess is worthy of song. — Ov. Met. V. 344.

V. After comparatives, instead of quam, than: as, ōcior eurō [equivalent to ōcior quam eurus], swifter than the east wind. — Virg. Æn. VIII. 223.

The adverbs plus, amplius, more; mīnus, less, with several comparatives of measure or distance, are often used without quam, leaving the grammatical structure of the sentence unchanged.

plus septingenti capti, more than seven hundred were taken. — Liv. XLI. 12.

plus tertiā parte interfectā, more than a third being slain. — Cæs. B.G. III. 6.

spātium non amplius pēdum sexcentorum, a space not broader than 600 feet. — Id. 38.

The ablative also shows the degree of difference: as, quo mīnus cūpīditātis, eo plus auctōrītatis, the less greed, the more weight. — Liv. XXIV. 28.

VI. After words implying separation, and plenty or want: as,

Fōrum Appī, differtum nautis, Forum Appii, crowded with sailors. — Hor. Sat. I. 5, 3.

Ephōrus calcārībus ēget, Ephorus needs spurs. — Quint. X. 1.
cūris hōmīnum gaudia misces, thou minglest joys with the cares of men. — Cat. 64.

magno me mētū libērābis, you will free me from great fear. — Cic. Cat. I. 5.

Prepositions express the place more definitely: as, exīre ex urbe, to go out from the city. — Cic. Cat. I. 5.

NOTE. — For the genitive of plenty or want, see § 50, III. 2.

VII. After ōpus and ūsus, need: as, nunc vīrībus ūsus, now there is need of strength. — Virg. Æn. VIII. 441.

So, often, with the neuter of the perfect participle: as, cauto ōpust, we need caution. — Plaut. Capt. II. 1, 28.

Opus (rarely ūsus) may also stand in apposition with the thing needed: as, illud quod maxīme ōpus est, that which is most needed. — Ter. Ad. IV. 7, 22 (740).

VIII. Often, without a preposition, after perfect participles denoting origin: as,

Cērēre nāti, the children of Ceres. — Cic. N.D. II. 24.

With distant ancestors prepositions must be used: as, ab his majōrībus orti, born of these ancestors. — Hor. Sat. I. 5, 55.

IX. To denote price: as, signa sestertium sex milībus quingentis vendīta, the statues were sold for six thousand five hundred sesterces. — Cic. Verr. IV. 6.

stābunt tibi tua foedēra magno, your treaty will cost you dear. — Ov. Met. VII. 486.

To express indefinite price or value, the genitive is used: —

1. Of neuter adjectives, with verbs of valuing: as, magni intērest esse kālendis Jānuāriis in republīca duo consūles, it is of great importance that on the first day of January there should be two consuls in the commonwealth. — Cic. Mur. 37.

With other verbs, the ablative must be used, except these genitives: tanti, so much; quanti, how much; plūris, more; mīnōris, less.

2. Of certain nouns: as, falso an vēro laudent non flocci faciunt, whether they praise truly or falsely, they care not a straw. — Plaut. Trin. 210.

The genitives so used are nihīli, nothing, assis, farthing, flocci, lock of wool, and a few others.

X. ABLATIVE ABSOLUTE. — Two ablatives, generally a noun and participle, often stand in apposition with each other, having no grammatical dependence on the sentence in which they occur. This is called the Ablative Absolute: as, ad vīginti mātṛōnis accītis, having summoned about twenty ladies. — Liv. VIII. 18.

dīs immortālībus dūcībus, under the guidance of the immortal gods. — Id. Cat. II. 9.

Sometimes the participle or an adjective is in apposition with a phrase or clause : as, incerto quid pētērent, since it was uncertain what they sought.

Liv. XXVIII. 36.

NOTE. — For the ablative, to denote the agent after passive verbs, see § 56, IV. — For prepositions governing the ablative, see § 42, II. — For the ablative of Time and Place, see § 55.

55. TIME AND PLACE.

I. Time when takes the ablative ; time how long, the accusative : as, adventu in Galliam Caesāris, at the arrival of Caesar in Gaul.

— Cæs. B.G. V. 54.

dies continuos trīginta, for thirty days together. — Id. 13.

paucis post diēbus, a few days after. — Cæs. B.C. III. 82.

Post is here an adverb ; it may also be post paucos dies. The same usage exists with ante, before.

1. The use of a preposition gives more precision : as, in diēbus proximis dēcem, within the next ten days. — Sall.
Jug. 28.

lūdi per dēcem dies, games through ten days. — Cic. Cat. III. 8.

2. Rarely the ablative expresses duration of time : as, quattuordēcim annis exsīlium tōlērāvit, he endured exile fourteen years. — Tac. Ann. I. 53.

II. Extent of space takes the accusative : as, fossas quindēcim pēdēs lātas, trenches fifteen feet broad. — Cæs. B.G. VII. 72.

Measure is often expressed by the genitive : as,
vallo pēdum xii, in circuītu xv mīlium sese continēbant, they kept close in an entrenchment of twelve feet [height], and of fifteen miles' circuit. — Cæs. B.G. II. 30.

Distance takes the accusative or ablative : as, Zāma quinque diērum īter ā Carthāgīne ābest, Zama is a five days' journey distant from Carthage. — Liv. XXX. 29.
trīginta mīlībus passuum infra eum lōcum, thirty miles below that place. — Cæs. B.G. VI. 35.

III. To express relations of place, prepositions are necessary, except with the names of towns and small islands; also dŏmus, home, rŭs, the country, and a few other nouns in special relations. With these nouns —

1. The name of the place from which is in the ablative: as, Brundŭsio profectus ęs, you set out from Brundisium. — Cic. Att. I. 15, 2.

2. The name of the place to which is in the accusative: as, cum e Ciliciā dĕcĕdens Rhŏdum vĕnissem, when, on my way from Cilicia, I had reached Rhodes. — Cic. Brut. 1. rus cras cum filio iĕbo, to-morrow I will go into the country with my son. — Ter. Ad. V. 3, 54.

Prepositions must be used to denote neighborhood: as, ad Tarentum, to (not into) Tarentum. — Cic. de Senect. 4:

3. The name of the place where was originally put in a special case called the Locative. This case ended in ĭ, and is generally the same in form with the Dative: as,

Rŏmæ, at Rome; Karthāgĭnĭ, at Carthage; Athĕnis, at Athens; Curĭbus, at Cures.

In the second declension the old form in ĭ is retained: as, Corinthi, at Corinth; Lanuvi, at Lanuvium.

In the third declension this case sometimes ends in ĕ, like the ablative, especially when the metre requires it in poetry: as, Tĭbŭrĕ vel Gĕbiis, at Tibur or Gabii. — Hor. Ep. II. 2, 3.

So dŏmĭ, at home; bellĭ, militiæ, in military service; humĭ, on the ground; rŭrĭ, in the country (rurĕ is from the country).

hiĕmāre Dyrrachii, Apolloniae, omnĭbusque oppĭdis mĕrĭtĭmis, to winter in Dyrrachium, Apollonia, and all the seaboard towns. — Cæs. B.C. III. 5.

ęrat ĕdictum Pompĕi nŏmĭne Amphipŏli prŏpŏsitum, an order had been put up in Pompey's name at Amphipolis. — Id. 102.

Veis de coelo lĕpĭdāvĕrat, it had rained stones at Veii. — Liv. XXVII. 37.

te dŏmi mĕnĕbo, I will wait for you at home. — Hor. Ep. I. 5, 3.

4. A possessive may stand with dŏmus: as, nos dŏmum tuam vŏces, call us to thy home. — Tac. Agr. 46.

When it is modified in any other way, a preposition is generally used: as, in M. Laecae dōmum, into the house of Marcus Læca. — Cic. Cat. I. 4.

5. The preposition is omitted before the ablative of a few other nouns: as, terrā mārīque, by land and sea. — Tib. I. 3, 56.

tōtā Sīcīliā, through all Sicily. — Cic. Verr. IV. 23.

So, very commonly, in poetry: as, litōre curvo, on the curving shore. — Virg. Æn. III. 16.

IV. The way by which is put in the ablative: as,

Aurēliā viā p̄fectus est, he set out by the Aurelian way. — Cic. Cat. II. 4.

56. PREPOSITIONS.

I. Twenty-six prepositions govern the accusative; eleven the ablative. (See § 40.)

1. In and sub take the accusative when they denote motion; the ablative when they denote rest: as,

Aristīdes in contiōnem vēnit, Aristides came into the assembly. — Cic. de Off. III. 11.

Thēmistōcles dixit in contiōne, Themistocles said in the assembly. — Id.

sub monte consēdit, he encamped at the foot of a mountain. — Cæs. B.G. I. 48.

sub vesp̄rum Caesar portas claudi jussit, towards evening Caesar ordered the gates to be shut. — Id. II. 33.

But after verbs of placing, in usually takes the ablative: as, exercitum in hibernis collōcāvit, he established the army in winter-quarters. — Cæs. B.G. III. 29.

2. Sūper governs the ablative when it means concerning; otherwise the accusative: as, hac sūper rē, concerning this matter. — Cic. Att. XVI. 16.

summa sūper culmīna tecti, over the roof of the house. — Virg. Æn. II. 694.

3. Subter governs the accusative; but sometimes the ablative in poetry: as, subter fastīgia tecti, below the roof of the house. — Virg. Æn. VIII. 366.

subter litōre, below the shore. — Catull. 65, 7.

4. In giving the day of the month, the preposition ante, before, is usually omitted: as,

xv. kālendās Augustas, the fifteenth day before the kalends of August (July 18). — Tac. Hist. II. 91.

Often ante diem (a. d.), with an ordinal, is used like a preposition governing an accusative: as, is dies erat a. d. v. kal. Apr., this day was the fifth day before the kalends of April (March 28). — Cæs. B.G. I. 6.

This phrase may even be governed by a preposition: as, in a. d. v. kālendās Nōvembres, to the fifth day before the kalends of November (October 28). — Cic. Cat. I. 3.

5. Tēnus (which follows its noun) sometimes governs the genitive: as,

Corcȳrae tēnus, as far as Corecyra. — Liv. XXVI. 24.

But regularly it takes the ablative: as, čāpūlo tēnūs, up to the hilt. — Virg. Æn. V. 553.

II. Certain adverbs are sometimes construed like prepositions: —

1. Prīdiē, postrīdiē, prōpius, proxīme, versus, and usque, and (less frequently) the adjectives prōpior and proxīmus, may be followed by the accusative: as, prīdie Nōnas Jūnias, the day before the Nones of June (June 4). — Cic. Fam. III. 4. 1.

2 The adverb pālam may govern the ablative: as, pālam đuōbus exercītibus, in the presence of two armies. — Liv. XXV. 18.

3. Clam may take either accusative or ablative: as, clam mātrem suam, without her mother's knowledge. — Plaut. M.G. 112 (II. 1, 33).
clam vōbis, without your knowledge. — Cæs. B.G. II. 32.

III. Some prepositions which imply comparison, as ante, before; post, after, — like the adverb prius, before, — are followed, like comparatives, by quam; several words, or even clauses, sometimes coming between: as, nēque ante dīmīsit eum quam fīdem dēdit, nor did he let him go until he gave a pledge. — Liv. XXXIX. 10.

IV. The ablative, with a or ab, is regularly used after passive verbs, to denote the agent, if a person, or if spoken of as a person: as,

Turpilius, jussus a Mētello causam dīcere, Turpilius, being ordered by the consul to plead his cause. — Sall. Jug. 69.

This use of the ablative of the agent must be carefully distinguished from the ablative of instrument: as, occīsus glādio, slain by a sword; but occīsus ab hoste, slain by an enemy.

NOTE. — For the so-called dative of the agent with the gerundive, see §§ 51, VI. 73, I.

III. SYNTAX OF THE VERB.

57. SEQUENCE OF TENSES. (See § 27.)

The Tenses of Finite Moods are distributed into two classes: —

1. PRIMARY, including the Present, both Futures, and Perfect (definite).

2. SECONDARY, including the Imperfect, Perfect (historical), and Pluperfect.

In compound sentences, a Primary tense in the leading clause is followed by a Primary tense in the dependent clause; and a Secondary tense is followed by a Secondary: as, vēnit ut nos vīdeat, he comes to see us.

vēnit ut nos videat, he is come to see us.

vēnit ut nos vidēret, he came to see us.

vēni ut nos videas, come to see us.

I. The Perfect Subjunctive is regularly a primary tense, and is used to express any past action depending upon a verb in a primary tense: as, ex ěpistōlis intellĕgi licet, quam frĕquens fuĕrit Plātonis audītor, it may be judged from his epistles how constant a listener to Plato he was. — Cic. Orat. 4.

But occasionally it is used in an aoristic sense: as, eō discordiæ ventum, ut ad Vitellium perfūgĕrit, the discussion reached such a height that he fled to Vitellius. — Tac. Hist. I. 60.

In this way a perfect subjunctive or infinitive, depending upon a primary tense, may itself be followed by secondary tenses: as, sic mihi perspĭcĕre vĭdeor, itā nātos esse nos ut inter omnes esset sōciĕtas quaedam, I think that I see that we were so born that there exists among all a certain alliance. — Cic. de Amic. 5.

The perfect subjunctive is also used for a future perfect: as, ostendit si sublāta sit vendĭtio bōnorum, illum pĕcūniam grandem āmissurum, he shows that if the sale of the property shall be stopped, he will lose much money [si sublata erit, amittet]. — Cic. Rosc. Am. 38.

II. The Present is often used in narrative for the Historical Perfect, and may be followed by Secondary Tenses: as, Sĕnātus dĕcernit ūti in libĕris custōdiis hābĕrentur, the Senate decrees that they should be held in free custody. — Sall. Cat. 47.

III. The Tenses denoting completed action are used much more accurately in Latin than in English: as, sī ěris mĕrĭtus, fiet, if you deserve [shall have deserved], it shall be done. — Plaut. Trin. IV. 3, 61.

vĭvo et regno sĭmul ista rĕlĭqui quæ vos ad cælum fertis, I live and reign, as soon as I leave [have left] those scenes which you extol to heaven. — Hor. Ep. I. 10, 8.

After postquam, posteāquam, and ŭbi, the Perfect is used where we should expect the Pluperfect: as, postquam id ānĭmum advertit, when he had perceived this. — Cæs. B.G. I. 24.

Dum, while (not as long as), is usually followed by the Present Indicative, even when referring to past time: as, dum haec in collōquio gēruntur, Caesāri nuntiātum est, while these things were going on in the conference, it was announced to Cæsar. — Caes. B.G. I. 46.

The Perfect Indefinite is often found (followed by secondary tenses), where the regular Perfect would be used in English: as, mihi ut urbī sātis esset praesīdii consultum atque prōvisum est, I have considered and provided that the city should have a sufficient guard. — Cic. Cat. II. 12.

IV. In dependent clauses, the tenses of the infinitive have no time of their own, but are present, past, or future, relatively to the time of the verb upon which they depend: as, nostros non esse infēriōres intellexit, he ascertained that our men were not inferior. — Caes. B.G. II. 8.

quam Jūno fertur terris māgis omnībus cōluisse, which Juno is said to have cherished above all lands. — Virg. Æn. I. 15.
spērant se maximum fructum esse captūros, they hope to receive the greatest advantages. — Cic. de Amic. 21.

The present infinitive, after a verb in the past, must often be rendered by the perfect infinitive in English; this is most frequent with pōtui, could; dēbui, ought: as, scīre potuit, he might have known. — Cic. pro Mil. 17.
qui vīdebatur omnīno mōri non debuisse, who seemed one that ought not to have died at all. — Cic. pro Arch. 8.

Mēmīni, and some other verbs, in an account of what the speaker has personally witnessed, take the present infinitive: as, mēmīni Cātōnem mēcum dissērere, I remember Cato's discoursing with me. — Cic. de Amic. 3.

V. The statement of a general truth, following a secondary tense, observes the rule of connection of tenses: as, jūdicābant esse aliquid nātūrā pulchrum atque praeclārum quod suā sponte pētērētur, they were of opinion that there is something beautiful and glorious by nature, which is sought for its own sake. — Cic. de Senect. 13.

58. MOODS.

The Moods of a Latin verb are the Indicative, Subjunctive, Imperative, and Infinitive.

I. The Indicative is regularly employed for the leading verb of a sentence: it is used in direct assertions or questions, and in historical narrative.

II. The Subjunctive is used chiefly for dependent constructions, — especially to denote any thing as contingent, conceived of, or desired, — its tense being determined by that of the verb on which it depends. (See § 57.) In particular it is found, —

1. In many Conditional sentences, the condition being often implied, §§ 59, 60, 61, 62.

2. In certain relations of Cause or Motive, § 63.

3. In clauses which express Purpose or Result, §§ 64, 65.

4. In intermediate and subordinate clauses, chiefly relative or interrogative, §§ 66, 67.

5. In wishes and commands (in the present and perfect), to take the place of the Imperative, § 68.

III. The Imperative is used in commands; also, in early writers and poets, in prohibitions: as, consūlīte vōbis, prospicīte patriae, conservāte vos. take measures for your safety, provide for the country, preserve yourselves. — Cic. Cat. IV. 2.

nīmium ne crēde cōlōri, do not trust complexion overmuch. — Virg. Buc. II. 17.

Prohibitions are regularly expressed by the second person singular of the perfect subjunctive with nē; nōli with the infinitive; or by cāve with the subjunctive: as, ne territus fuēris, be not terrified. — Tac. Hist. I. 16.

nōli pūtāre, do not think. — Cic. Brut. 33.

cāve faxis, do not do it. — Ter. Heaut. 187 (I. 2. 13).

The future imperative is used in statutes, edicts, and wills: as, cāpūt obnūbīto, arbōri infēlici suspendīto, veil his head, hang him to the accursed tree. — Cic. pro Rab. 4.

NOTE. — For the subjunctive used imperatively, see § 68.

IV. The Infinitive, with or without a subject accusative, is construed either as the subject or as the object of the leading verb. In this use, it is found especially in the construction called ōrātio oblīqua. (See § 67.)

In other cases, hardly any tense is used except the present, expressing no distinct relation of time: as, mitto quaerere, I refrain from asking. — Cic. Rosc. Am. 19.

The poets and later writers use the infinitive after adjectives, or to express a purpose: as, dūrus compōnere versūs, harsh in composing verses. — Hor. Sat. I. 4, 8.

fūrit tē rēpērire, he rages to find thee. — Id. Carm. I. 15, 27.

frūges consūmere nati, born to consume the fruits of the earth. — Id. Ep. II. 2, 27.

59. CONDITIONAL SENTENCES.

I. When any thing is stated, the truth of which is made to depend on the truth of some other statement, contained in a subordinate clause, the sentence is called a Conditional Sentence.

The Principal clause — that containing the conclusion — is called the apodōsis; the Subordinate clause — that stating the condition — is called the protāsis: as, si qui exire vōlunt, connivere possum, if any wish to depart (protāsis), I am ready to connive (apodōsis). — Cic. Cat. II. 12.

II. The statement of the condition in Latin (protāsis) is regularly introduced by si, if; sin, but if; nīsī, unless; but a clause introduced by an indefinite relative (whoever), or a relative conjunction (when, since, and the like), may be considered as equivalent to a conditional clause: as, quod in aliā causā non concēderem in hac concēdam, what I would not grant in another case [if the case were different] I will grant in this. — Cic. Rosc. Am. 27.

The statement of the consequence or result depends in form on the grammatical structure of the sentence, which may require a participle, infinitive, or phrase: as, quod si praeterea nemo sequeretur, tamen se cum sola decima legione iturum, de qua non dubitaret, but if no one else would follow, still he would go with the tenth legion alone, of which he had no doubt. — Cæs. B.G. I. 40.

si quos adversum proelium et fuga Gallorum commoveret, hos si quaerent reperire posse, if any were troubled by this check, and by the flight of the Gauls, they might find if they would ask. — Id.

III. Any tense of the Indicative may be used to express both condition and result in its appropriate time: as, si ergo apud inferos miseri non sunt, ne sunt quidem apud inferos ulli, if, therefore, the wretched are not in the infernal regions, there is no one there at all. — Cic. Tusc. I. 6.

sanaabimur si volumus, we shall be healed if we wish. — Id. III. 6.

quicquid jurarunt, ventus et unda rapit, whatever they have sworn [i.e., if they have sworn any thing], the winds and waves sweep away. — Prop. II. 28, 8.

IV. The Subjunctive is used in both members of conditional sentences: —

1. The Present, in reference to future time, to express a supposition less vividly or as less probable than when the future indicative is used: as, nec si muneribus certes, concedat Iollas, nor if you should vie in gifts, would Iollas yield. — Virg. Buc. II. 57.

haec si tecum patria loquatur, nonne impetrare debeat? If thy country should thus speak to thee, ought she not to prevail? — Cic. Cat. I. 8.

Often the future indicative stands in the apodosis; as, si deficient vires, audacia certe laus erit, if strength should fail, boldness at least will have praise. — Prop. II. 10, 5.

2. The Secondary tenses, when the supposition is known to be false; the imperfect referring to present time, the pluperfect to past: as, si meum consilium auctōritasque vāluisset, tu hōdiē ēgēres, nos libēri essēmus, respublīca non tot dūces et exercītus amīssisset, if my judgment and authority had prevailed [as they did not], you would this day be poor [which you are not], we should be free, the republic would not have lost so many leaders and armies. — Cic. Phil. II. 15.

The indicative (in apodosis) sometimes expresses what ought to have been done, or is intended, or already begun: as, si Rōmae Cn. Pompēius prīvātus esset hoc tempōrē, tāmen is ērat dēlīgendus, if Cnæus Pompey were a private citizen at Rome at this time, nevertheless he ought to be selected. — Cic. Leg. Man. 17.

in amplexū filiae ruēbat, nīsi lictores obstītissent, he was about rushing into his daughter's arms, unless the lictors had prevented. — Tac. Ann. XVI. 32.

When a subjunctive is required in the apodosis of a conditional clause, by the structure of the sentence of which it forms a part, the pluperfect may be represented by the participle in rus with the perfect subjunctive of esse: as, ādeo pārāta sēdītio fuit, ut Othōnem raptūri fuērint, nī incerta noctis tīmuisent, so far advanced was the conspiracy, that they would have seized upon Otho if they had not feared the uncertainties of the night [rāpuissent nī tīmuisent following ut]. — Tac. Hist. I. 26.

3. The Subjunctive is sometimes used to express a condition of a general nature, referring indefinitely to any one of a series of acts; in this case the indicative is used in the apodosis to state a repeated or customary action, or general truth: as, mēmōria mīnuītur nīsi eam exerceas, the memory grows weak unless you exercise it. — Cic. Sen. 7.

id ūbi dixisset, hastam in fines eōrum mittebat, when he [the herald] had said this, he would throw [used to throw] a spear into their territories. — Liv. I. 32.

The subjunctive is rarely, if ever, used in this way, except in philosophical discourse (the present), and historical narration (the pluperfect), as in the examples given above.

60. IMPLIED CONDITIONS.

The subordinate member of a conditional sentence (that containing the condition), is frequently omitted. Under this head belong most of the subjunctives which appear to be independent verbs, and which would not always take this mood if the condition were fully stated.

In this usage the perfect subjunctive is especially common; and the second person singular, to denote some indefinite person.

The Subjunctive in implied conditions is employed as in the following examples:—

1. In its so-called Potential use, referring to an indefinite subject: as, tum in lecto quōque vidēres sūsurros, then on each couch you might see whisperings.—Hor. Sat. II. 8, 77.

Here a complete sentence would require the pluperfect: thus, vidisses si adfuisses, you would have seen if you had been there.

2. In cautious, modest, or hypothetical statement: as, nec ullam mōrum partem māgis laudāvēris, nor would one commend more highly any one of their customs.—Tac. Germ. 17. vēlim sic tibi persuādeas, I wish you would persuade yourself of this.—Cic. Fam. XV. 4.

vellem adesset M. Antōnius, I wish Mark Antony were present.—Id. Phil. I. 7.

Vēlim refers to future time, vellem to present or past time, in a wish for something known to be impossible.

3. In questions asked with a certain hesitation or doubt: as, quid ēgo carmine plūra commēmōrem? why should I relate more in verse?—Catull. 64, 116.

4. In conceding a point, or supposing a case;—here the inference or conclusion is the clause omitted: as, fuērit ille Brūtus, qui dōmīnātu rēgio rempublicam libērāvit, suppose there was a Brutus who freed the republic from the tyranny of the kings.—Cic. Phil. I. 6.

si jam sint id ādepti, suppose they have already obtained it.—Id. Cat. II. 9.

61. CONDITIONAL PARTICLES.

Certain Particles implying a condition are followed by the Subjunctive. These are —

1. Particles of comparison, — tamquam, quāsi, vēlūti, &c.: as, tamquam mōdo ex deōrum concīlio descendisset, as if he had just come down from the council of the gods. — Cic. N.D. I. 8.

quāsi plūres fortūnāti sint quam infēlices, as if more were fortunate than unfortunate. — Cic. Tusc. I. 36.

2. The concessive particles, quamvis, hōcet; licet and ut, granting that; cum, although; and, in later writers, quamquam, although: as, itāque eum qui audiunt, quamvis ipsi infantes sint, tāmen illo mōdo confidunt se posse dicere, therefore those who hear him, however incapable of speaking they may themselves be, nevertheless feel confident that they can speak in that manner. — Cic. Orat. 23.

ut nēmīnem ālium nīsi T. Pātīnam rōgasset, scīre pōtuit, even if he had asked no one but Titus Patina, he might have known. — Cic. Mil. 17.

quamquam per dictātorem dīlectus hābitus esset, although the levy had been held under the authority of the dictator. — Liv. II. 32.

cum mercēde dōcēret, although he taught for pay. — Cic. de Orat. I. 28.

Quamquam and etsi introduce the statement of a fact, and therefore take the indicative; quamvis, licet, and ut, of a supposed case, and take the subjunctive; cum, signifying although, while used as equivalent to quamquam, takes the subjunctive by special use.

3. Dum, dummodo, and modo, provided: as, multa admiranda sunt, eligere modo curae sit, many points are deserving of admiration, provided they are selected with care. — Quint. X. 1, 131.

“odērint dum mētuant,” let them hate if only they fear. — Cic. Phil. I. 14.

62. RELATIONS OF TIME.

I. Cum (quum), meaning when, takes the indicative; since, or although, the subjunctive: as, cum se inter ěquĭtum turmas ĩnsĭnuāvĕrunt, when they have worked their way among the troops of horse. — Cæs. B.G. IV. 33.

cum sōlĭtūdo et vĭta sĭne āmĭcis ĩnsĭdĭarum et mĕtūs plĕna sit, since solitude and a life without friends is full of treachery and fear. — Cic. de Fin. I. 20.

But cum, when, is followed by the secondary tenses of the subjunctive in narration: as, cum essem in Cĕrāmĭco, when I was in the Ceramicus. — Cic. Att. I. 10.

II. Dum, dōnĕc, quoad, until; and antĕquam, priusquam, before, may take the subjunctive, —

1. In reference to future time.

2. To express something desired or anticipated; or,

3. (The secondary tenses) in historical narration: as, priusquam ad portum vĕnias, before you come to the harbor. — Ter. Ad. IV. 2, 44.

dum nōvi mĕgĭstrātūs sortĭrentur prōvincias, M. Baebius transĭrĕ in Epĭrum est jussus, until the new magistrates should draw lots for their provinces, Marcus Baebius was ordered to cross into Epirus. — Liv. XXXV. 24.

festĭnandum cĕtĕris vĭdĕbĕtur, antĕquam crescĕret ĩnvĕlĭda adhuc conjūrĕtio, the others were of opinion that it was best to hasten, before the yet weak conspiracy should gather strength. — Tac. Hist. I. 33.

trĕpĭdĕtiōnis ālĭquantum ĕlĕphanti ĕdĕbant, dōnĕc quĭĕtem ipse tĭmor fĕcisset, the elephants caused some confusion, until their very fear had caused quiet. — Liv. XXI. 28.

But dum, while; ubi, postquam, postĕāquam, when, regularly take the indicative: as, dum haec gĕruntur (or gerĕbantur), while this was going on. — Cæs. B.G. I. 46.

quod ũbĭ Caesar rescĭit, when Caesar had got word of this. — Id. 28.

63. CAUSE OR REASON.

I. The conjunctions quod (sometimes quīā), because, and quōniam and quando, since, are followed by the subjunctive when the reason is stated not as a fact, but as a motive in the mind of another, and even of the speaker or writer himself: as,

Drusus rettūlit ad Sēnātum dē illo quod in eum ordinem consul tam grāvīter in contiōne esset invectus, Drusus laid his [Philippus's] case before the Senate, on the ground that he, although consul, had inveighed so bitterly against that body in the public assembly. — Cic. de Orat. III. 1.

accēdit illa quōque causa, quod a caetēris forsitan itā pētītum sit ut dīcērent, ut utrumvis salvo officio facere se posse arbitrarentur, there is this reason besides [in my own mind], that others have perhaps been invited to speak, in such a way that they supposed they might act either way with a clear conscience. — Id. Rosc. Am. 1.

Non quō (negatively non quin) is often used for non quod: as, non quo furtum facere stūduērit, not that he desired to commit a theft. — Ter. Eun. 28.

II. Relatives implying a cause or reason take the subjunctive, being frequently strengthened by ut, utpōte, quippe, or praesertim: as, fāteor mē errasse, qui hoc māluērim, I confess that I erred in choosing this. — Cic. Rosc. Am. 49.

ōrātiones centum quinquāginta, quas quīdem ādhuc invēnērim et lēgērim, the hundred and fifty orations, such at least as I have met with and read. — Id. Brut.

quippe qui vīdeam, since I see. — Liv. Præf.

III. Cum causal, signifying since, takes the subjunctive: as, cum omnis pōpūli Rōmāni rēligio in sacra et in auspīcia dīvīsa sit, since the whole religion of the Roman people is divided into ceremonies and auspices. — Cic. N.D. III. 2.

But in the sense of quod, on the ground that, it takes the indicative: as, grātūlor tibi cum tantum vāles āpūd Dolabellam, I congratulate you on your influence with Dolabella. — Cic. Fam. IX. 14.

64. PURPOSE.

I. Final Clauses, or those expressing a Purpose, take the subjunctive after relatives (qui=ut is), or the conjunction ut (ŭti), in order that, and (negatively) ne, ut ne, lest: as, mōnet ut ignes in castris fīeri prōhibeat, ne qua ejus adventūs prōcul signīfīcātio fiat, he advises him to prohibit fires being made in camp, in order that no signs of his arrival may be shown at a distance. — Cæs. B.G. VI. 29.

ut ne sit impūne, that it be not with impunity. — Cic. Mil. 12.

II. Quo is used for ut eo, especially with comparatives: as, castris ad Bābŷlōniam pōsītis quo majōre ānīmo cāpessērent bellum, the camp being pitched near Babylon, in order that they might enter into the war with greater spirit. — Curt. III. 2, 2.

NOTE. — Compare quōmīnus, (= ut eo minus), after verbs of hindering. — § 65, III.

III. After expressions denoting fear, ut (ne non) is to be translated that not; ne, that or lest: as, omnes lābōres te excīpēre vīdeo; tīmeo ut sustīneas, I see you taking upon yourself all labors; I fear you will not endure them. — Cic. Fam. XIV. 2.

pāvōr cēpērat mīlītes, ne mortīfērum esset vulnus, fear had seized the soldiers that the wound [of Scipio] was mortal. — Liv. XXIV. 42.

IV. Ut or ne is often omitted, especially after verbs of wishing, advising, &c.; as, cāve ignoscas, do not pardon. — Cic. Lig. 5.

Syro ignoscas vōlo, I wish that you would pardon Syrus. — Ter. Heaut. V. 5, 22.

NOTE. — For ut, signifying although, see § 61, 2. In the sense of when or how it takes the indicative: as, ut vālet? how is she? (Plaut.); ut vīdi! how I gazed! — Virg. Buc. VIII. 41.

V. The purpose of an action is expressed in Latin in various ways; but never (except rarely in poetry) by the simple infinitive, as in English. The sentence, he sent men to plough the field, may be rendered, —

1. By the subjunctive with ut: as, hōmīnes mīsīt ut agrum ārārent.
2. By the subjunctive with qui: as, homines misit qui agrum ararent.
3. By the Gerundive with ad: as, homines misit ad agrum arandum.
4. By the Gerundive with causā or gratiā: as, homines misit agrī arandi causā.
5. By the Future Participle: as, homines misit agrum aratūros.

Purpose is also expressed by the Former Supine in many verbs: as, spectātum lūdōs ivit, he went to see the games. (§ 74.)

65. CONSEQUENCE OR RESULT.

I. Clauses denoting a Result take the subjunctive after relatives and the conjunction ut (negative, ut non): as, Augusto prompta ac prōfluens quaeque dēcēret princīpem ēlōquentia fuit, Augustus possessed a ready and fluent power of speaking, such as became a prince. — Tac. Ann. XIII. 3.

Quae fuit eōrum tanta īnīquitas ut plācārī pōpūlo Rōmāno non possent nīsī vīri tāles occīdissent? How great was their injustice [that of the gods] that they could not be reconciled to the Roman people unless men of such eminence should fall? — Cic. N.D. III. 6.

II. Quin, that not, is used after negative expressions, denoting hinderance, resistance, doubt, and suspension of effort: as, est dēterrīta numquam quin flēret, she was never prevented from weeping. — Tib. I. 3, 13.

non dūbīto quin hanc sāiūtem antēpōnas illi victōriae, I do not doubt that you value this security more highly than that victory. — Cic. Lig. 10.

Many of these expressions may also be followed by the infinitive, or by ne with the subjunctive: as, prōhībentur ādīre ad filios [also ne adeant], they are forbidden to visit their own sons. — Cic. Verr. V. 45.

III. Quōmīnus, that not, may be used after verbs of hindering: as,

nec aetas impēdit, quōmīnus agri cōlendi stūdia tēneāmus, nor does the time of life prevent us from retaining the taste for tilling the ground. — Cic. de Senect. 17.

IV. The subjunctive stands in relative clauses —

1. After dignus, worthy; indignus, unworthy; aptus, īdōneus, fit; ūnus and sōlus, only: as,

īdonea mihi Laelī persōna vīsa est, quae dē āmicītia dissērēret, the person of Laelius seemed to me a suitable one to discourse of friendship. — Cic. de Amic. I.

nil admirārī prōpe rēs est ūnā sōlāque, quae possit fācēre et servāre beātum, to be surprised at nothing is almost the sole and only thing which can make and keep one hap- py. — Hor. Ep. I. 6, 1.

2. After general expressions denoting existence and non-existence: as,

ērant qui Helvidium mīsērārentur, there were some who pitied Helvidius. — Tac. Ann. XVI. 29.

nihil est illōrum, quin [=quod non] ēgo illi dixērim, there is none of these things which I have not said to him. — Plaut.
Bacc. III. 9, 89.

undē agger comportāri posset, nihil ērat rēlīquum, there were no materials left from which a mound could be got together.
— Cæs. B.C. II. 15.

3. After quam, than: as,

majōres arbōres caedēbant, quam quas ferre mīles posset, they cut larger trees than a soldier could carry. — Liv.
XXXIII. 5.

66. INTERMEDIATE CLAUSES.

I. A Relative, or other subordinate clause, takes the Subjunctive, when it is regarded as an integral part of the thought or expression of some other person than the speaker or writer.

Many such clauses may be so regarded or not, as the writer chooses : as, p̄imam p̄osuit eam de qua m̄do dixi, quae orta esset ex praesensione rerum f̄turarum, he first mentioned that of which I have just spoken [direct statement] which (according to him) had its origin in the fore-feeling of the Future. — Cic. N.D. II. 5. (See § 63, 1.)

II. A clause depending on a verb in the subjunctive will also be in the subjunctive, if regarded as an integral part of the sentence on which it depends : as, qui a scribendi consuētūdīne ad dicendum vēnit, hanc adfert f̄acultatem, ut etiā s̄bito si dīcat, tāmen illa quae dicantur s̄milia scriptorum esse vīdeantur, he who passes from the practice of writing to speaking, brings with him this power, that even if he speak without preparation, yet what he says seems like written words. — Cic. de Orat. I. 33. [etiam subito si dicit, tamen illa quae dicuntur similia scriptorum esse videntur.]

III. Intermediate Clauses in the oratio oblīqua take the Subjunctive. (See the following section.)

67. ORATIO OBLIQUA.

If a quotation is made in the words of the original speaker, it is called Oratio Recta (direct discourse). But if it is made to depend on some verb of speaking or thinking, varying the form of the words from that originally used, it is called Oratio Obliqua (indirect discourse).

In English, an indirect quotation is introduced by the conjunction that.

I. The Latin form for quotations is as follows : —

1. In Indirect Questions the subjunctive is used : as, quid sit f̄tutum cras f̄ge quaerēre, avoid inquiring what will be to-morrow. [direct question, quid est futurum cras?] Hor. Carm. I. 9, 13.

nec quibus rationibus superare possent, sed quemadmodum uti victoriam deberent cogitabant, nor did they (the army of Pompey) reflect by what means they could win the victory, but in what manner they should use it. — Cæs. B.C. III. 83.

Thus quid quaeris? (direct question) means, what do you ask?
scio quid quaeras (indirect question) means, I know what you ask; scio quod quaeris (direct assertion) means, I know the thing you ask.

NOTE. — Nescio quis, I know not who, is sometimes used (generally in the way of disparagement), to introduce a direct assertion; being nearly equivalent to aliquis or quidam, some one: as,

quin etiam fuit audiendus Licinius nescio qui, then too you had to listen to one Licinius. — Cic. Mil. 24.

Nescio an, I know not whether, is often used as equivalent to perhaps, and regularly takes the subjunctive.

2. A Declarative sentence, when quoted, takes the construction of the accusative with the infinitive, the subject being put in the accusative, and the verb in the appropriate tense of the infinitive: as,

Crassus valet, Crassus is well; dicit Crassum valere, he says that Crassus is well.

scripsit epistolam, he has written a letter; dicit se scripsisse epistolam, he says he has written a letter.

non laetor, I am not glad; nego me laetari, I say I am not glad.

mihi videor satis et esse deos et quales essent ostendisse,
I think I have shown clearly enough, both that there are gods, and of what nature they are. — Cic. N.D. II. 28.

Esse here expresses an indirect statement; essent, an indirect question.

The principal clause of a Conditional Sentence (apodosis) when indicative in the Oratio Recta, follows in the Oratio Obliqua the general rule for Declarative sentences; but when subjunctive, it is represented by the future participle with esse if present or imperfect, or fuisse if pluperfect: as,

nisi iurasset scelus se facturum arbitrabatur [scelus faceret], he thought he would incur guilt unless he should take the oath. — Cic. Verr. I. 47.

jūrant itā Cīcērōnem lōcūtūrum fuisse [lōcūtus esset], they swear that Cicero would have spoken so. — Quint. X. 2, 17.

NOTE. — The subjunctive is not used as a principal verb, except in the apodosis of a conditional sentence.

The subject of the Infinitive is sometimes omitted, when it would be easily understood: as, rōgāvi pervēnissentne Agrīgentum; dixit pervēnisse [sc. ea], I asked whether they (the curtains) had reached Agrigentum; he answered that they had. — Cic. Verr. IV. 12.

II. Subordinate clauses in the oratio obliqua take the subjunctive, the tense being determined by that of the principal verb (see § 57): as,

L. Lentulus consul sēnātui reiquē publicae se non dēfūtūrum pollicētur, si audacter ac fortiter sententiās dīcere vēlint, Lucius Lentulus the consul promises not to desert the Senate and the republic, if they are willing to speak their minds boldly and bravely (non deēro . . . si vōlētis). — Cæs. B.C. I. 1.

adlātum erat, cum in Aetōliam vēnisset Antiōchus, ex templo classem eum in Sīcīliam missūrum, word had been brought, that when Antiochus should reach Ætolia, he would at once send his fleet to Sicily [cum vēnērit (fut. perf. indic.) mittet]. — Liv. XXXV. 23.

Ariovistus respondit: si quid ipsi a Caesāre ōpus esset, sese ad eum venturum fuisse; . . . sībi autem mīrum vīdēri, quid in suā Galliā, quam bello vīcisset, aut Caesāri aut omnīno pōpūlo Rōmāno nēgōtii esset, Ariovistus answered, that, if he wanted any thing of Caesar, he would have come to him; . . . but that he wondered what concern either Caesar or the Roman people at all had with his Gaul, which he had conquered in war [si quid ōpus esset . . . vēnissem; . . . mīrum vīdētur, quid in mea Gallia, quam bello vīci, . . . Caesāri . . . nēgōtii sit]. — Cæs. B.G. I. 34.

1. An Imperative in the Oratio Recta becomes a subjunctive in the Oratio Obliqua: as, nē committēret, let him not bring it about [ne commīsēris]. — Cæs. B.G. I. 13.

2. A Question is put in the infinitive, unless in the second person, in which case it becomes subjunctive: as, si vētēris contūmēliae oblivisci vellet, num ētiam rēcentium injūriarum mēmōriam [se] depōnēre posse? if he were willing to forget the ancient disgrace, could he also lay aside the memory of recent outrages? [num possim?] — Cæs. B.G. I. 14.

quid sibi vellent? what did they wish? [quid vultis?] — Id. 44.

III. 1. A future infinitive is often expressed by fōrē (fūtūrum esse) ut with the subjunctive; regularly so in passive or deponent verbs: as, rēbantur ēnim fōre ut exercītus impērātōrem persēquērētur, for they thought that the army would follow the command. — Cic. N.D. III. 6.

nīsi nuntii de Caesāris victoriā essent adlati, existimabant plerique futurum fuisse uti amittēretur, unless news of Cæsar's victory had been brought, many thought he would have been lost. — Cæs. B.C. III. 101.

2. After verbs signifying hope, promise, and the like, the subject of the infinitive, whether a noun or a personal or reflective pronoun, must always be expressed: as, promisit se venturum, he promised to come.

spērat se nēgōtium confecturum, he hopes to finish the business.

But where there is no future participle, fōre ut with the subjunctive must be used: as, sperat fore ut possit, he hopes to be able.

pollicētur fore ut frumentum adfērat, he promises that corn shall be brought (more rarely, adlatum iri or fore).

IV. 1. The passive of verbs of saying, &c., may either be used impersonally, followed by the accusative with the infinitive; or personally, followed by the infinitive alone: as, prīmi trāduntur arte quādam verba vinxisse, they are related to have been the first to combine words by a certain art [also, tradītur eos primos, etc.] — Cic. Orat. 13.

2. The infinitive passive may be used impersonally after these verbs : as, in eo ipso in quō praedīcātiōnem nōbilitātemque despiciunt, praedīcārī de se ac nōmīnārī vōlunt, in that very work, in which they disparage renown and celebrity, they desire that they may be renowned and named. — Cic. Arch. 10.

V. After a comparison, in the Oratio Obliqua, the construction of the accusative with the infinitive is usually continued : as, nullam cāpītālīōrem pestem quam vōluptātem corpōris hōmīnībus dīcēbat ā nātūrā dātam [for quam vōluptas], he said that no more deadly evil had been given to men by nature than bodily pleasure. — Cic. de Senect. 12.

68. WISHES AND COMMANDS.

I. The subjunctive is used in wishes ; — the primary tenses in reference to future time, implying that the thing desired is at least possible ; the secondary to express a hopeless wish, — the imperfect in present time, the pluperfect in past : as, sērus in caelum rēdeas, mayst thou return late to the skies. — Hor. Carm. I. 2, 45.

ūtīnam me mortuum vidisses, would that you had seen me dead. — Cic. ad Q. Fr. I. 3, 1.

The primary tenses of the subjunctive so used are often equivalent to an imperative (see § 58, III.) : as, ne semper ūdum Tībur et Aesūlae dēclīve contemplēris arvum, do not for ever gaze at watery Tibur and the sloping fields of Aesula. — Hor. Carm. III. 29, 6. (See § 58, III.)

II. With verbs of wishing and permitting the infinitive is generally used : as, te tuā frui virtūte cūpīmus, we wish you to reap the benefit of your virtue. — Cic. Brut. 97.

neu sīnas Mēdos ēquītāre īultos, nor permit the Medes to make incursions with impunity. — Hor. Carm. I. 2, 51.

But the subjunctive may be used without ut : as, vellem mos esset, I wish it were the custom. — Ter. Ad. IV. 1, 16. (§ 64, IV.)

III. Jūbeo, command, takes the accusative with the infinitive; other verbs of commanding, the dative with ut and the subjunctive: as, omnem sēnātum ad se convēnīre jussit, he commanded the entire senate to come to him. — Cæs. B.G. II. 5.

suis impērāvit ne quod omnīno tēlum in hostes rējīcērent, he ordered his soldiers to cast no weapon at all against the enemy. — Id. I. 46.

69. SUBJUNCTIVE IN RELATIVE CLAUSES.

The various relative clauses have been already treated of, under the special heads to which they belong. They may be classed under the following titles: —

1. General relatives in protasis, §§ 59, 60.
2. Temporal clauses (relative adverbs of time), § 62, IV.
3. Relative implying a Cause, § 63, II.
4. Relative of Purpose, § 64, I.
5. Relative of Consequence or Result, § 65, I. & IV.
6. Relative in Intermediate Clauses, § 66.
7. Relative clauses in oratio obliqua, § 67.

NOTE. — In general, the relative with a definite antecedent takes the indicative in direct construction; with an indefinite antecedent, the subjunctive: as,

hi sunt qui itā pūtant, these are they that think so.

sunt qui ita putent, there are some who think so. (§ 65, IV. 2.)

70. SUBSTANTIVE CLAUSES.

A Substantive Clause is a clause or phrase — usually the indicative with quod, the subjunctive with ut, or the accusative with the infinitive — which is construed like a noun, as the subject or object of a leading verb.

Under this head are included the accusative and infinitive in Oratio Obliqua (§ 67, I. 2); also clauses following verbs of wishing and command (§ 68).

I. Verbs implying motive or desire generally take ut (nē) with the subjunctive (see §§ 64, 65, 68): as, concēdo tibi ut ea praetēreas, I allow you to pass over these points. — Cic. Rosc. Am. 19.

When verbs of this class are used for a mere expression of opinion, they take the accusative with the infinitive: as, concēdo non esse misēros qui mortui sint, I grant that those who are dead are not miserable. — Cic. Tusc. I. 7.

II. Impersonal verbs, and other expressions denoting happening and existence, take a subjunctive introduced by ut (ut non), as subject (see § 65): as, sēquitur ut cujusquē gēnēris nōtā quaerātur, it follows that the mark of each class should be sought. — Cic. Orat. 23.

accīdit ut esset plēna lūna, it chanced to be full moon. — Cæs. B.G. IV. 29.

accēdit ut conturber, another point is that I am disturbed. — Cic. Deiot. 1.

mos est hōmīnum ut nōlint eundem plūrībus rēbus excellēre, it is the custom of men to be unwilling to admit that the same person excels in several respects. — Id. Brut. 21.

III. Verbs of satisfaction and wonder, and impersonal expressions denoting fitness, take the accusative with the infinitive: as, quae perfecta esse gaudeo, vehementerque laetor, I rejoice and greatly exult that these things have been accomplished. — Cic. Rosc. Am. 47.

accūsātōres multos essē in cīvitate ūtile est, it is advantageous that there be many accusers in a state. — Id. 20.

IV. Quod with the indicative is used to indicate the existence of a state of things, and at the same time express a judgment (compare § 63, I.): as, gaudeo quod te interpellāvi, I rejoice that I interrupted you. — Cic. Legg. III. 1.

nōli pūtāre pigrītiā mē fācēre, quod non pūt meā mǎnū scrībo, do not think that it is through indolence that I do not write with my own hand. — Id. Att. XVI. 15.

71. QUESTIONS.

Questions are introduced by interrogative Pronouns or Adverbs, or by the interrogative Particles num, utrum, an, and the Enclitic -ne.

An Enclitic is a particle joined in spelling to the preceding word, but retaining its independent meaning.

I. The enclitic -ne is used in questions asked for information merely; nonne when the answer yes, and num when the answer no, is expected: as,

mēmīnistisne? do you remember? — Id. 28.

nonne his vestīgiis ad cāput mālēficii pervēniri sōlet? is it not customary to come by these traces to the source of a crime? — Id. 27.

num dūbium est? is there any doubt? — Id. 37.

The interrogative particle is often omitted: as,

pātēre tua consīlia non sentis? do you not perceive that your plans lie open. — Cic. Cat. I. 1.

II. In double questions, utrum or -ne stands in the first member, an (annon, necne), in the second: as, utrum has corpōris an Pythāgōrae tībi mālis vīres ingēnii dāri? would you rather this strength of body should be given you, or the strength of intellect of Pythagoras? — Cic. de Senect. 10.

quaero servosne an libēros, I ask whether slaves or free. — Id. Rosc. Am. 27.

The interrogative particle is often omitted in the first member: as, sunt haec tua verba necne? are these your words or not? — Cic. Tusc. III. 18.

Sometimes the first member is omitted, and an alone asks a question with indignation or surprise: as, an tu mīsēros pūtas illos? do you think that those men are miserable? — Cic. Tusc. I. 7.

72. PARTICIPLES.

The time of participles, like that of infinitives, is relative to that of the verbs upon which they depend.

1. Participles are often used where the English idiom would require a subordinate clause: as,

instructos ordīnes in lōcum aequum dēdūcit, he draws up the lines, and leads them into a favorable place. — Sall. Cat. 59.

See examples in § 25, page 27.

2. Sometimes a perfect participle agreeing with a noun is used when the action rather than the thing is to be made prominent: as, ab urbe condītā, from the founding of the city. — Liv. (title).

3. As there is no perfect active participle in Latin, the perfect passive, used absolutely with the noun which would have been the object, is used to express active relations: as, his inītis consiliis oppīda mūniunt, having formed these plans, they fortify their towns. — Cæs. B.G. III. 9.

See, respecting the Ablative Absolute, § 54, VIII.

73. GERUND AND GERUNDIVE.

The Gerund governs the same case as the verb; in grammatical construction it follows the same rules with nouns. But where the gerund would have an object in the accusative, the gerundive is regularly used instead, agreeing with the noun, and in the case which the gerund would have had: as, pārātiōres ad omnia pēricūla sūbeunda, better prepared to meet all dangers. — Cæs. B.G. I. 5.

Subeunda agrees with pericula, which is governed by ad; the construction with the gerund would be ad subeundum omnia pericula, ad governing the gerund, and the gerund governing the accusative pericula.

I. The nominative of the gerund or gerundive is construed with the dative of persons, implying obligation or duty: as, pugnandum est nobis, we must fight, — i.e. fighting is our business, or it belongs to us to fight (compare § 51, VI., VIII.). Caesāri omnia ūno tempore erant agenda, Cæsar had everything to do at once. — Cæs. B.G. II. 20. jūvēni pārāndum sēni ūtendum est, it is for the young to get, for the old to enjoy. — Sen. Ep. 36.

The Infinitive is also used as a verbal noun, like the Gerund, taking the Genitive, or the neuter of the Possessive, to express possession or duty (§ 50, I. 1.), while the Gerund takes the Dative: as, sāpientis est parcius bībēre; or, sāpienti est parcius bībendum, it is for a wise man to drink rather sparingly.

Where the use of the dative as agent would be ambiguous — as in verbs governing the dative — a different construction must be used: thus, ei parcendum est means either he must spare or he must be spared; but ei parcendum est a nobis, he must be spared by us.

II. The genitive is construed as an objective genitive (§ 50, III.), following nouns and adjectives: as, nēque consīlii hābēndi nēque arma cāpiēndi spātio dāto, time being given neither for forming plans nor for taking arms. — Cæs. B.G. IV. 14.

It is used especially with causā or gratiā to express the purpose of an action: as, dissimulandi causā aut sui expurgandi, for the sake of dissimbling or of excusing himself. — Sall. Cat. 31.

Or even alone, the word causā being understood: as, impediendae rei, in order to give check. — Cæs. B.C. I. 82.

The gerund is sometimes used with the genitive of an object not agreeing with it in gender or number: as, sui liberandi facultas, the opportunity of getting themselves clear.

— Cæs. B.G. IV. 34.

ego ejus videndi cupidus, rectā consēquor, eager to see her, I follow straight. — Ter. Hec. III. 3, 12.

III. The dative follows words expressing purpose or fitness : as, cōmītia consūlibus creandis, comitia for appointing consuls. —

Liv. XXXV. 24. (Gerund, consūles creando.)

te sōciam stūdeo scribendis versibus esse, I desire that thou [Venus] be my partner in writing verses. — Lucr. I. 25.

It is used especially to designate the functions of magistrates : as, decemvīri stlitibus [litibus] jūdīcandis, the Board of ten for determining lawsuits.

IV. The accusative follows the prepositions ad, inter, and ob (occasionally antē, circā, in) : as, me vōcas ad scribendum, you invite me to write. — Cic. Orat. 10.

nactus aditus ad ea cōnanda, having found means to undertake these things. — Cæs. B.C. I. 31.

V. The ablative is used after the prepositions ab, de, ex, and in ; or to express manner or means : as, in quaerendis suis, in seeking his own comrades. — Cæs. B.G. II. 21 (Gerund, in quaerendo suos).

multa pollicendo persuādet, he persuades by large promises. — Sall. Jug. 46.

74. SUPINE.

I. The Former Supine (in um) follows verbs of motion to express the purpose of the motion (compare § 55, III. 2) : as, quid est, Crassē, inquit Jūlius, imusne sessum ? etsi admōnī-tum vēnimus te non flāgītātum, what now, Crassus, said Julius, shall we take our seats ? although we have come to remind, not to entreat you. — Cic. de Orat. III. 5.

II. The Latter Supine (in u) is found only in a few verbs, especially those which express telling, hearing, and the like. It has a passive sense, and follows certain adjectives which describe the character of the action : as, diffīcīle est dictu, it is hard to say [in the telling]. — Cic. de Lege Manil. 22.

75. GENERAL RULES OF SYNTAX.

- I. A Noun used to describe another agrees with it in Case (APPOSITION). — § 46.
- II. Adjectives agree with Nouns in Gender, Number, and Case. — § 47.
- III. Relatives agree with their Antecedents in Gender, Number, and Person. — § 48.
- IV. A Verb agrees with its Subject Nominative in Number and Person. — § 49.
- V. The Genitive is used —
 1. (Subjective) to define or limit the meaning of a Noun. — § 50. I.
 2. (Partitive) to denote the Whole after words signifying a Part. — Id. II.
 3. (Objective) after Nouns, Adjectives, and Verbs, especially those implying mental action or emotion. — Id. III., IV.
- VI. The Dative is used —
 1. After words implying Advantage or Disadvantage. — § 51, I.
 2. As the case of the Indirect Object. — Id. II.
 3. After many compounds of Prepositions. — Id. V.
 4. With esse, to denote Possession or Purpose. — Id. VI. VIII.
- VII. The Accusative is the case —
 1. Of the Direct Object. — § 52, I.
 2. Of the Secondary Object after many verbs. — Id. III.
 3. As the subject of the Infinitive. — Id. VI.
- VIII. The Ablative is used —
 1. To express Cause, Means, and Specification. — § 54, I.
 2. With an Adjective, to express Manner or Quality. — Id. II.
 3. As the Object after certain Verbs and Adjectives, — Id. III.
 4. After Comparatives. — Id. V.
 5. After words of Separation, Plenty, and Want. — Id. VI.
 6. Of Subject and Predicate, in Apposition (Ablative Absolute). — Id. X.

- IX. Time when takes the ablative; time how long and distance how far the accusative. — § 55, I., II.
- X. Relations of Place are expressed without prepositions, in the names of Towns and small Islands. — Id. III.
- XI. Twenty-six Prepositions govern the accusative; eleven the ablative. — § 56, I.
- XII. The Agent, after the passive voice, is expressed by the ablative with ab. — Id. IV.
- XIII. In Compound Sentences, a primary tense is followed by a primary, and a secondary tense by a secondary. — § 57.
- XIV. The Indicative Mood is regularly employed for the leading verb, and the Subjunctive in dependent clauses. — § 58, I. II.
- XV. The Infinitive may be used as the Subject or as the Object of the leading verb. — Id. IV.
- XVI. The subject of the Infinitive is put in the Accusative. — § 52, VI.; § 67, I. 2.
- XVII. Participles, Gerunds, and Supines govern the case of their own verbs; but in grammatical construction they follow the rules of nouns and adjectives. — §§ 72, 73, 74.
- For a summary of the uses of the Subjunctive, see § 58, II.

76. ARRANGEMENT.

The Arrangement of words in a Latin sentence is not arbitrary, but depends greatly on the skill of the writer to give emphasis, harmony, and clearness.

In general, the Subject stands first, and the Verb last, in the sentence or clause to which they belong. The Object commonly precedes pretty closely the verb which governs it. A relative clause often goes before that containing the antecedent, especially when any stress is laid upon it. "In all ordinary cases, the adjective follows the noun, the genitive its governing substantive, and the apposition the word which it qualifies."

The most emphatic words in a sentence are the first and the last; but emphasis is given by any unusual arrangement of the words.

Thus the usual order of words to express the phrase, the workman built me a house, would be : artifex mīhi dōmum aedificāvit. But either dōmum, aedificavit, or mīhi may be emphasized by being put first ; and artifex, by being put last.

If care is taken, in reading Latin aloud, — observing both emphasis and quantity as well as accent, — to bring out the sense and balance of the parts, it will be seen that great skill has been exercised in this particular by the classical writers.

Latin expresses the relation of words to each other by inflection, rather than by position, like modern languages. Hence its structure not only admits of great variety in the arrangement of words, but is especially favorable to that form of sentence which is called a Period. In a period, the sense is expressed by the sentence as a whole, and is held in suspense till the delivery of the last word, which usually expresses the main action or motive. A careful attention to examples quoted in the Syntax will show the flexibility and force that can be given to the language in this way.

An English sentence does not often admit this form of structure. It was imitated, sometimes with great skill and beauty, by many of the early writers of English prose ; but its effect is better seen in poetry, in such a passage as the following : —

“ High on a throne of royal state, which far Outshone the wealth of Ormus and of Ind,
 Or where the gorgeous East with richest hand
 Showers on her kings barbaric pearl and gold, Satan exalted sat.”

Paradise Lost, Book II. 1-5.

RULES OF VERSE. (PROSODY.)

77. RHYTHM.

The poetry of the ancients was not governed, like modern poetry, by accent and rhyme; but was measured, like music, by the length of the syllables, or vowel sounds. The measured flow of verse is called Rhythm.

Each syllable is considered as either long or short, — in quantity or length, not in quality or sound; a long syllable being reckoned in length equal to two short ones.

The quantity of radical or stem-syllables, as of short a in păter or of long a in māter, can be learned only by observation or practice, unless determined by the general rules of quantity.

A radical vowel, when not made short or long under the general rules of quantity, is said to be determined by the Authority of the poets.

78. RULES OF QUANTITY.

NOTE. — The Rules of Quantity do not in all cases apply to numerous Greek words, especially proper names, which have been introduced by the Latin poets.

I. GENERAL RULES. (See § 3, p. 3.)

1. A vowel before another vowel is short.

EXAMPLES. vīa, way; trāho, draw.

EXCEPTIONS. In the genitive form ius, i is common, but has the accent: as in nulli'us, ipsi'us; but it is long in alius.

In fio i is long, except when followed by er: as, fiam, fīērem.

In the fifth declension, é is long between two vowels: as in diēi; but after a consonant, as in fidēi, it is short.

In many Greek proper names the vowel in Latin represents a long vowel or diphthong, and is consequently long: as in Thalīa.

2. A diphthong is long: as in foedus, cūi, deīnde.

Exc. The preposition prae in composition before a vowel is generally short: as in praeustis. — Æn. VII. 524.

3. A vowel formed by contraction is long: as i in nīl for nīhl.

4. A vowel before two consonants or a double consonant, also before the letter j, is long: as, māgnus, great; rēx, king; pējor, worse; ēt ventis ocior, and swifter than winds.

But a short vowel before a mute followed by l or r is common, — that is, it may be long in verse: as in vōlucris, bird.

A short vowel, made long under this rule, is said to be long by Position; as e in dōcētne. In dōcēsne, the same vowel is long by the special rule (II. 3).

NOTE. — The above rules of Position do not apply to final vowels.

II. FINAL SYLLABLES.

1. Words of one syllable ending in a vowel are long: as, mē, tū, hī, nē.

The attached particles -ně, -quě, -vě, -cě, -ptě, and rě (rěd-), are short; sē- is long: as, sēcēdit exercitumquě rēdūcit, he withdraws, and leads back the army.

2. Nouns of one syllable are long: as, sōl, sun; ōs, mouth; bōs, ox; vīs, force.

Exc. měl, honey; ōs, bone; vīr, man; cōr, heart; fěl, gall.

3. Final as, es, os, are long: final is, us, ys, are short: as, něfās, wrong; rupēs, rock; hestīs, enemy.

Exc. as is short in some Greek terminations: as, lampădăs, torches.

es is short in nouns of the third declension whose stem ends in d or t: as, hospēs, guest (exc. ăbiēs, ăriēs, păriēs, pēs); in the present of esse, and in the preposition pēnēs.

os is short in compōs, impōs, and some Greek endings.

is in plural cases is long: as in bōnis; also, as the characteristic ending of the fourth conjugation: as audīs; and in sīs, vīs, vēlīs, mālīs, nōlīs; grātīs, fōrīs; and sometimes in -ēris.

us is long in the gen. sing. and in the plural of the fourth declension: as ăcūs, needles; also in nouns of the third declension which increase long: as virtūs.

4. Most final syllables ending in a consonant except c are short: as, ăd, ăc, ăt, ămăt, ămătūr.

Exc. donēc, făc, nēc; nōn, quīn, sīn; crăs, plūs, cūr, păr.

5. Final a in words declined is short, except in the abl. sing. feminine: as, eă stellă, that star; cum eă stellă, with that star.

In all other words it is long: as, frustră, in vain; vōcă, call.

Exc. ită, so; quiă, because; pută, suppose; and, in late use, trīgintă, thirty, etc.

6. Final e is short, except in nouns of the fifth declension; in adverbs formed from adjectives of the first form; and in verbs of the second conjugation: as, năvē, dūcătē, vērē, mănē, fīdē, quărē (quă rē), hōdiē (hōc diē).

Exc. fămē; bēnē, mălē; ferē, fermē; also (rarely), cavē, hăbē, tăcē, vălē, vīdē; infernē, supernē.

7. Final i is long: as, năvī, fīlī, audī. But it is common in mīhi, tībi, sībi, ībi, ūbi; and short in nīsī, quăsī, cūī.

8. Final o is common; but long in datives and ablatives; also, usually, in verbs.

Exc. cătō, illīcō, prōfectō, dummōdō, īmō, ėgō, đuō, octō.

9. Final u is long; final y is short.

III. PENULTIMATE SYLLABLES.

DEFINITION. — A Noun is said to Increase, when in any case it has more syllables than in the nominative singular, which is called the Theme.

Thus stella is said to increase long in the gen. pl., stellārum; and corpus, to increase short in the gen. sing., corpōris.

A Verb is said to increase, when in any part it adds more than one syllable to the root or stem.

Thus vōco is said to increase long in the second person plural, vōcātis; and rēgo to increase short in the second person plural, rēgītis.

The final syllable, added to the root or stem, is called the Termination: as in stell-a, nāv-is, vōc-at, rēg-is.

The syllable added before the termination is called the Increment: as, ā in stellārum, ō in corpōris.

In itīnērībus, amāvērītis, the syllables marked are called the first, second, and third Increments of the noun or verb.

In a few words, the root consists only of a consonant, or combination of consonants, from which the radical vowel has been dropped: as, sc īmus, s ūmus (ēs).

1. In the Increment of Nouns and Adjectives, a and o are generally long; e, i, u, y, are generally short: as, aetātīs, servōrum, hōnōris, ōpēris, carmīnis, murmūris, pecūdis, chlamydis.

Exc. ā in baccar (-āris), hēpar (-ātis), jūbar, lār, mās (māris), nectār, pār, sāl, vās (vādis), daps (đāpis).

ē in the fifth declension; also in haeres (-ēdis), lex (lēgis), lōcuples (-ētis), mercēs (-ēdis), plebs (plēbis), quiēs (-ētis), rex (rēgis), vēr (vēris).

ī in most nouns and adjectives in ix: as, rādīcis, fēlicis (exc. fīlix, nīx, strīx); also dis (dītis), glis (glīris), lis (lītis), vis (vīres), Quīrītes, Samnītes.

2. In the Increment of Verbs (see Tables of Inflection, pp. 34–37), the characteristic vowels are as follows:—

Of the first conjugation ā: as, vōcāre, vōcātur.

Of the second conjugation ē: as, mōnēre, monētur.

Of the third conjugation ĕ, ĭ: as, rĕgĕre, regĭtur.

Of the fourth conjugation ī: as, audĭre, audĭtur.

Exc. do and its compounds have ā: as, dāre, circumdābat.

In other increments —

ā is always long: as, moneāris, rĕgāmus.

ē is long in tense-endings: as, regēbam, audiēbar.

But it is short before ram, rim, ro; and in the personal endings -bĕris, -bĕre: as, rexĕrat, rexĕrit, āmābĕris, mōnĕbĕre.

ī is long in forms after the analogy of the fourth conjugation: as, pĕtīvi, lācessĭtum.

Also in sĭmus, sĭtis, vĕlĭmus, and rarely in the terminations -rimus and -ritis; but short in the future of the first and second conjugations: as, vōcābĭtis.

ū is found only in the supine stem and its derivatives, and is always long: as in sōlūtūrus; except in sūmus, fūtūrus, vōlūmus, nōlūmus, mālūmus.

3. Perfects and Supines of two syllables have the stem-syllable long: as, fūgi, vĭdi, vĭsum, from fūgio, vĭdeo.

Exc. bĭb- dĕd- (do), fĭd- (findo), scĭd- (scindo), stĕt- (sto), stĭt- (sisto), tŭl- (fĕro); cĭt- (cieo), dāt- (do), ĭt- (eo), lĭt- (lĭno), quĭt- (queo), rāt- (reor), rŭt- (ruo), sāt- (sĕro), sĭt- (sĭno), stāt- (sisto); but stāt- from sto.

4. The root or stem-syllable generally retains its quantity through all the forms derived from it; but when doubled by reduplication (see pp. 33, 39), the first syllable is short: as, tŭlit, attŭlerat; vĭdi, vĭdĕrit; cādo, cĕcĭdit; caedo, cĕcĭdit.

Exc. dĭco (dĭc-), dŭco (dŭc-), fĭdes (fĭd-); and some increments of nouns: as, lĕgis (lĕg-), vōcis (vōc-).

5. The following terminations are preceded by a long vowel:—

I. -al, -ar: as, vectīgal, pulvīnar.

Exc. ānīmal, cāpītal, jūbar.

II. -brum, -crum, -trum: as, lāvācrum, dēlūbrum, vēātrum.

III. -do, -ga, -go: as, formīdo, aurīga, ĭmāgo.

Exc. cādo, divīdo, ēdo, mōdo, sōlīdo, spādo, trēpīdo; calīga, fūga, tōga, plāga; āgo, ēgo.

IV. -le, -les, -lis: as, ancīle, mīles, crūdēlis, hostīlis.

Exc. māle; indōles, sōbōles; grācīlis, hūmīlis, sīmīlis stērīlis; and verbal adjectives in īlis: as, āmābīlis, dōcīlis fācīlis.

V. -ma, -men, -mentum: as, poēma, flūmen, jūmentum.

Exc. ānīma, lacrīma, victīma; tāmen, colūmen; with rēgīmen and the like from verb-stems.

VI. -mus, -nus, -rus, -sus, -tus: as, extrēmus, sūpīnus, octōni, sēvērus, fūmōsus, pērītus.

Exc. (a.) ī before -mus: as, finītīmus, mārītīmus (except bīmus, trīmus, quadrīmus, ōpīmus, mīmus, līmus); and in superlatives (except īmus, prīmus); dōmus, hūmus, nēmus, cālāmus, thālāmus.

(c.) ě before -rus: as, mērus, hēdēra (except prōcērus, sincērus, sēvērus); also barbārus, chōrus, nūrus, pīrus; sātīra, amphōra, ancōra, lýra, purpūra; fōrum, pārum.

(d.) lātus, mētus, vētus, dīgītus, servītus, spīrītus; quōtus, tōtus; hābītus, and the like.

VII. -na, -ne, -nis: as, carīna, māne, inānis.

Exc. advēna, dōmīna, foemīna, māchīna, mīna, gēna, pāgīna; běne, sīne; cānis, cīnis, jūvēnis.

VIII. -re, -ris, -ta, -tis : as, altāre, sālūtāris, mōnēta, immītis.

Exc. māre, hīlāris, rōta, nōta, sītis, pōtis, and most nouns in -īta.

IX. -tim, -tum, and syllables beginning with v : as, prīvā-tim, quercētum, ōlīva.

Exc. affātim, stātim; nīvis (nix); brēvis, grāvis, lēvis (light); nōvus, nōvem; and several verb-roots : as, jūvo, fāveo.

X. -dex, -lex, -mex, -rex, -dix, -nix, and the numeral endings -ginti, -gintā : as, jūdex, īlex.

Exc. cūlex, sīlex, rūmex.

6. The following terminations are preceded by a short vowel : —

I. -cus, -dus, -lus : as, rustīcus, cālīdus, glādiōlus.

Exc. ōpācus, āmicus; aprīcus, fīcus, mendīcus, pūdīcus; fīdus, nīdus, sīdus; and ū before -dus : as, crūdus, nūdus; ē before -lus, as phāsēlus (except gēlus, scēlus); āsīlus.

II. -no, -nor, -ro, -ror, in verbs : as, destīno, crīmīnor, gēro, quēror.

Exc. festīno, prōpīno, sāgīno, ōpīnor, inclīno; dēclāro, spēro, spīro, ōro, dūro, mīror.

III. -ba, -bo, -pa, -po : as, fāba, bībo, lūpa, crēpo.

Exc. glēba, scrība; būbo, nūbo, scrībo; pāpa, pūpa, rīpa, scōpa, stūpa; cāpo, rēpo, stīpo.

IV. -tas (in nouns), -ter and -tus (in adverbs) : as, cīvītas, fortīter, penītus.

The above rules and exceptions include all Latin words in common use.

79. FEET.

The most natural division of musical time is into intervals, consisting of either two or three equal parts. In music, this is called double or triple time.

These intervals are in music called Measures ; in prosody, they are called Feet ; and the parts are indicated by the number or length of the syllables of which the feet consist.

The feet most frequently employed in Latin poetry, with their musical notation, are the following:—

OF TWO SYLLABLES.

|----|---------------|--|---|--|------------------------------|
| 1. | $\frac{2}{8}$ | |  | | Pyrrich: as, lăpīs. |
| 2. | $\frac{3}{8}$ | |  | | Trochee (choree): as, cārūs. |
| 3. | $\frac{3}{8}$ | |  | | Iambus: as, bōnōs. |
| 4. | $\frac{2}{4}$ | |  | | Spondee: as, vēntōs. |

OF THREE SYLLABLES.

- | | | | | | |
|-----|---------------|--|--|--|--|
| 5. | $\frac{2}{4}$ | |  | | Dactyle: as, āttŭlīt. |
| 6. | $\frac{2}{4}$ | |  | | Anapaest: as, dōmīnōs. |
| 7. | $\frac{2}{4}$ | |  | | Amphibrach: as, vīdētīs. |
| 8. | $\frac{3}{8}$ | |  | | Tribrach: as, hōmīnīs. |
| 9. | $\frac{3}{4}$ | |  | | Molossus: as, dūxērŭnt (rare). |
| 10. | | |  | | Amphimăcer (Cretic): as, ēgērănt (rare). |
| 11. | | |  | | Bacchius: as, rĕgĕbănt. |

Feet of four syllables are combinations of those of two. The following only require special notice.

- | | | | | | |
|-----|---------------|--|---|--|--------------------------------|
| 12. | $\frac{3}{4}$ | |  | | Choriambus: as, cōntŭlĕrănt. |
| 13. | $\frac{3}{4}$ | |  | | Greater Ionic: as, cōnjĕcĕrăt. |
| 14. | $\frac{3}{4}$ | |  | | Lesser Ionic: as, rĕtŭlĭssĕnt. |

The first, second, third, or fourth Epitrĭtus has a short syllable in the first, second, third, or fourth place, with three long syllables.

The first, second, third, or fourth Paeon has a long syllable in the first, second, third, or fourth place, with three short syllables.

NOTE. — Narrative poetry was written for rhythmical recitation, or chant; and Lyrical poetry for rhythmical melody, or music, often to be accompanied by measured movements, or dance. But in reading, it is not usual to keep the strict measure of time; and often the accent is substituted for rhythm, as in prose.

The accented syllable of each foot is called the Arsis; and the unaccented part, the Thesis.

Accent, in prosody, is called Ictus, — that is, the beat of the foot, as in dancing.

A rhetorical pause occurring within the limits of a verse is called Cæsu'ra.

The position in the verse of the principal Cæsura is important, as affecting the melody or rhythm. It usually falls in hexameter after the Arsis, or accented syllable, of the third or fourth foot in the verse.

NOTE. — In modern poetry, even in modern Greek, quantity is disregarded, and the names of ancient feet are applied to combinations of accented and unaccented syllables. Thus fully and foolish are both called Trochees, although the quantity of fully is $\sim \sim$; so impel and impale are both called Iambs. It is difficult, therefore, to imitate well in modern verse those Latin metres which contain two or three long syllables in succession, because accents seldom come naturally on successive syllables.

Owing to this disregard of quantity by the modern ear, the easiest way for a modern reader to get a peculiar melody from Latin verse is to accent (in verse) every long syllable, and no short one. Thus as prose the second verse of “Integer Vitæ” would be accented thus: —

“ non éget Máuris jáculis néque árcu : ”

while in poetry it is to be accented thus: —

“ nón egét Máurís jaculís nequ’ árcu , ”

like the free rendering in English: —

“ néedeth nót bów, spéar, nor a ráttling quíver . ”

80. SCANNING.

A single line in poetry is called a Verse.

To divide the verse in reading into its appropriate feet, according to the rules of quantity and versification, is called Scanning, — that is, a climbing, or advance by steps.

A verse lacking a syllable at the beginning is called Acephalous; lacking a syllable at the end it is called Catalectic.

NOTE. — It is recommended that the student should habitually scan every verse he meets in the course of his study. In reading or recitation, while the prose accent should be retained, the flow of the verse may be in some degree preserved by due attention to the rules of quantity. This is called Metrical Reading.

In scanning, a vowel or diphthong at the end of a word — sometimes even at the end of a verse — is dropped, when the next word begins with a vowel or with h. This is called Synalœpha, or Elision; or, at the end of a verse, Synapheia.

A final m, with the preceding vowel, is dropped in like manner. This is called Ecthlipsis.

Hence a final syllable in m is generally reckoned to have no quantity of its own; its vowel, in any case, being either elided or else made long by position.

Elision is sometimes omitted when the final syllable has a special emphasis, or is succeeded by a pause. This is called Hiatus.

A final syllable, regularly short, is sometimes lengthened before a pause. It is then said to be long by Cæsura.

The last syllable of any verse may be indifferently long or short.

81. METRE.

Metre is a regular combination of feet in verse, and is named from its most frequent or ruling foot, as Dactylic, Iambic, Trochaic, Anapæstic.

The ruling foot, so called, always consists of a combination of long and short syllables, and is therefore never a pyrrich or spondee.

A Verse consists of a given number of feet arranged metrically. It is named from the number of feet it contains, as Hexameter, Trimeter.

A Stanza consists of a definite number of verses ranged in a fixed order. It is often called from the name of some favorite poet, as Sapphic, Alcaic, Horatian.

82. FORMS OF VERSE.

The most common forms of Latin verse are these : —

I. The Dactylic Hexameter, called also Heroic verse, used in narrative and pastoral poetry. It consists of six feet, of which the last is always a Spondee, the fifth generally a Dactyle, and the rest indifferently spondees or dactyles.

When the fifth foot is a spondee, the verse is called Spondaic.

The introductory verses of the Æneid, divided according to the foregoing rules, will be as follows, the principal Cæsura in each verse being marked by double lines : —

ārmā vī|rūmqüē cā|nō || Trō|jæ quī | primūs āb | ōrīs
Itālī|ām fā|tō prōfū|gūs || Lā|vināquē | vēnīt
lītōrā, | mūlt' ill' | ēt tēr|rīs || jā|ctātūs ēt | āltō
vī sūpē|rūm sae|vae || mēmō|rēm Jū|nōnīs ōb | iram ;
mūltā quō|qu' ēt bēl|lō pās|sūs || dūm | cōndērēt | ūrbēm,
infēr|rētquē dē|ōs Lātī|ō, || gēnūs | ūndē Lā|tinum
Albā|nīquē pā|trēs, || āt|qu' āltæ | moenīā | Rōmæ.

The Hexameter verse has been illustrated in English thus : —

“Strongly it | bears us along, in | swelling and | limitless | billows,
Nothing be|fore and | nothing be|hind, but the | sky and the | ocean.”

II. Dactylic Pentameter : consisting of five feet, and used alternately with the Hexameter, to form the Elegiac stanza. It is usually divided, in scanning, into two half verses, of which the latter always has two dactyles, and each ends in a single long syllable, or half-foot : as,

cūm sūbīt | illī|ūs trīs|tīssīmā | nōctīs ī|māgo
quæ mīhī | sūprē|mūm || tēmpūs īn | ūrbē fū|īt,
cūm rēpē|tō nō|ctēm quā | tōt mīhī | cārā rē|līquī,
lābītūr | ēx ōcū|līs || nūnc quōquē | gūttā mē|īs.
jām prōpē | lūx ādē|rāt, quā | mē dīs|cēdērē | Cæsār
fīnībūs | ēxtrē|mae || jūssērāt | Ausōnī|æ.

Ov. TRIST. I. EL. 3, 1-6.

The Elegiac Stanza has been illustrated thus : —

In the pent|ameter | still || falling in | melody | back.”

III. Iambic Trimeter (senarius) : consisting of three measures, each containing a double Iambus. In the first half-measure a spondee or anapæst is often substituted for the iambus ; and other substitutions are occasionally used. This verse is used chiefly in dramatic dialogue.

In the following example, it alternates with the Iambic Dimeter, which consists of two similar double feet : —

bēātūs il|lē quī prōcūl | nēgōtīis,
 ūt prīscā gēns | mōrtālium,
 pātērnā rū|rā būbūs ēx|ērcēt sūis,
 sōlūtūs ō|mnī foenōre, . . .
 fōrūmquē vī|tāt ēt sūpēr|bā cīvium
 pōtētīo|rūm limīnā.

HOR. EPOD. II. 1-8.

IV. Alcaic Strophe, or Stanza : consisting of four verses. The first two verses (greater Alcaic) have for their base each five Iambuses, for the first and third of which a spondee is substituted, and for the fourth an anapæst ; the third verse is the same, but with one complete and one half iambus in the last two feet ; the fourth verse consists of two anapæsts and an iambus, preceded and followed by a single syllable, or half-foot : as,

jūst' āc | tēnā|cēm prō|pōsītī | vīrum
 nōn cī|vī' ār|dōr prā|vā jūbēn|tīum
 nōn vūl|tūs īn|stāntīs | tyrān|nī
 mēn|tē quātīt | sōlīdā | nēqu' au|stēr.

Id. OD. III. 3, 1-4.

Or, the first verse may be divided into a spondee, bacchius, and two dactyles ; the second into a spondee, bacchius, and two trochees ; and the third into two dactyles and two trochees.

V. Sapphic Stanza : consisting of three Sapphic verses and one Adonic.

The base of the Sapphic verse is five Trochees, for the second of which a spondee, and for the third a dactyle, is substituted.

The Adonic verse consists simply of a dactyle and spondee (or Trochee) : as,

jām sā|tīs tēr|rīs nīvīs | ātquē | dīrae
grāndī|nīs mī|sīt pātēr | ět rū|bēntě
dēxtě|rā sā|crās jácū|lātūs | ārcēs
tērrūīt | ūrbem.

Id. OD. I. 2, 1-4.

Or, the Sapphic verse may be regarded as consisting of a Trochee, Spondee, Choriambus, and Bacchius.

VI. Lesser Asclepiadic : consisting of a spondee, two choriambus, and an iambus.

Maecē|nas ātāvīs | ēdītě rē|gībūs
O ēt | praesīdī' ēt | dūlcě dēcūs | mēum.

Id. OD. I. 1. 1, 2.

VII. This verse is often joined with the Glyconic, consisting of a spondee, choriambus, and trochee, making the First Asclepiadic Stanza : as,

Rōmae | prīncīpīs ūr|bīum
dīgnā|tūr sōbōlēs | ěntēr āmā|bīlēs
vātūm | pōnērě mē | chōrōs ;
ēt jām | dēntě mīnūs | mōrděōr ěn|vīdo.

Id. OD. IV. 3, 13-16.

VIII. Or, three Asclepiadics with one Glyconic, making the Second Asclepiadic Stanza : as,

audīs | quō strēpītu | jānūā quō | nēmūs
ěntēr | pūlchrā sātūm | tēctā rēmū|gīāt
vētīs | ět pōsītās | ūt glācīēt | nīvēs
pūrō | nūmīně Jū|pītěr.

Id. OD. III. 10, 5-8.

IX. Or, two Asclepiadics are joined with one Pherecratic (the same with the Glyconic, lacking one syllable) and one Glyconic, making the Third Asclepiadic stanza : as,

hīc bēl|lūm lācrýmō|s' hīc mīsērām | fāmem
pēstēm|qu' ā pōpūl' ět | prīncīpě Cae|sār' ěn
Pērsās | ātquē Brītān|nōs
vēstrā | mōtūs āgēt | přecě.

Id. OD. III. 21, 13-16.

The above forms include upwards of a hundred of the Odes of Horace. In the eighteen not included, he employs twelve different kinds of stanzas, most of which are combinations of the verses already given. They may be briefly indicated as follows : —

1. Choriambic Pentameter (Greater Asclepiadic) :

tū nē | quaesiērīs | scīrě něfās | quēm mīhī quēm | tībi.
(OD. I. 11, 18 ; IV. 10.)

2. Hexameter, followed by the last four feet of an hexameter. — (OD. I. 7, 28 ; EPOD. 12.)

3. Hexameter, followed by Iambic Dimeter. — EPOD. 14, 15.

4. Trimeter Iambic alone. — EPOD. 17.

5. Choriambic Dimeter and Tetrameter : as,

Lyďiā dīc | pěr ōmnes
tē děōs ō|rō Sybārīn | cūr prŏpěrās | āmāndo. — OD. I. 8.

6. Hexameter, followed by Iambic Trimeter. — EPOD. 16.

7. Verse of four Lesser Ionics. — OD. III. 12.

8. Hexameter with Dactylic Penthemim (five half-feet) :

dīffū|gērě nī|vēs řěďě|ūnt jām | grāmīnā | cāmpīs
ārĕřī|būsquě cŏ|mae. — OD. IV. 7.

9. Iambic Trimeter ; Dactylic Penthemim ; Iambic Dimeter. — EPOD. 11.

10. Hexameter ; Iambic Dimeter ; Dactylic Penthemim. — EP. 13.

11. Archilochian Heptameter ; Iambic Trimeter catalectic : as,

sŏlvītūr | ācrīs hī|ēms grā|tā vīcě | vērīs | ēt fā|vōni
trāhūnt|quě sīc|cās mā|chīnae | cārī|nas. — OD. I. 4.

12. Iambic Dimeter and Trimeter, each imperfect : as,

nōn | ěbūr | něqu' au|řěum
měā | řěni|ďět īn | ďŏmŏ | lācū|nar. — OD. II. 18.

In dramatic dialogue, the Trochaic Tetrameter catalectic, or Septenarius, is occasionally used, consisting regularly of fifteen syllables, — the same with the 8's and 7's of the common ballad measure, — usually with various irregularities : as,

ád t'advénio spém salútem cŏnsili' aúxili' éxpētens.

TER. ANDR. II. 1, 18.

83. RECKONING OF TIME. (See § 56, I. 4.)

(From Allen's Classical Hand-Book.)

Roman Chronology was reckoned from the building of the city, the date of which was assigned by Varro to B.C. 753. In order, therefore, to reduce Roman dates to those of the Christian era, the year of the city is to be subtracted from 754; e.g. A.U.C. 708 = B.C. 46.

The first day of each month was called Kälendae, from cäläre, to call; that being the day on which the priests publicly announced the new moon in the Cömítia Cäláta, which they did, originally, after actual observation. Sixteen days before this, that is, on the fifteenth day of March, May, July, and October, but the thirteenth of the other months, came the Idus, or day of the full moon; eight days before the Ides were the Nonae. The month was thus divided into three weeks of eight days, and one of five or seven. The days were reckoned backward from these points; but as it was the custom of the Romans always to include the point of departure in such calculations, it is necessary, in order to find the day of the month, to take this into account. Thus, the day before the Kalends, Ides, &c., is called Pridie Kalendas, &c.; the day before this, ante diem (a. d.) tertium Kalendas, &c. Therefore, with the Kalends, two must be added to the number of days of the preceding month; with the Nones and Ides, one must be added to the day of the month on which they occur; and the day of the date must be taken from the number thus obtained. E. g. the sixth day before the Kalends of November: 31 (the number of days of October) $+ 2 = 33$; $33 - 6 = 27$. The date will be Oct. 27. — The third day before the Ides of March: $15 + 1 = 16$; $16 - 3 = 13$. March 13.

84. RECKONING OF MONEY. (See § 14.)

The money of the Romans was in early times wholly copper, the unit being the As. This was nominally a pound, but actually somewhat less, in weight, and was divided into twelve Unciae. In the 3^d cent. B.C. the as was reduced by degrees to one-twelfth of its original value. At the same time silver coins were introduced; the Denarius = 10 asses, and the Sestertius, or Sesterce (semis tertius, represented by IIS, or HS, = duo et semis) = 2½ asses. The sestertius, being probably introduced at a time when it was equal in value to the original as, came to be used as the unit (hence nummus was used as equivalent to sestertius); afterwards, by the reductions in the standard, four asses became equal to a sesterce. Gold was introduced later, the aureus being equal to one hundred sesterces. — Sertertium (M.) = 1000 sestertii was used as an expression of value, not as a coin.

In the statement of sums of money in cipher, a line above the number indicated thousands; lines at the sides also, hundred-thousands. Thus HS. DC. = 600 sestertii. HS. DC. = 600,000 sestertii, or 600 sestertia. HS. |DC| = 60,000,000 sestertii. With the numeral adverb, hundred-thousands are also understood: as, decies, decies HS., or decies sestertium, that is, decies centena millia sestertium, or ten times a hundred sestertia = 1,000,000 sestertii.
