JAPANESE FINANCIER.

Baron Shibusawa Will Visit President Roosevelt on Monday—States Model For Japan.

(Associated Press.)
New York, June 14.—Baron E. Shibusawa, a leader of finance in Japan, whose position in his native country as a financier corresponds to that of Marquis de Rothschild in France, is expected to visit President Roosevelt on Monday. The baron, who is on a tour of the world, is many times a millionaire, and at the head of forty corporations in his native country. He was met at the railroad station in Jersey City by many of the prominent members of the Japanese colony here. The salutations to the baron and his party were nearly half an hour, as each one of the delegation which met them greeted them in turn.

Later, at his hotel, the baron, through his interpreter, expressed surprise at the great advancement of the United States,

DISCUSSION ON FISHERIES BILL

OPPOSITION WILL NOT HAVE MEASURE RUSHED

Debate on Third Reading of Vancouver-Midway Bill Adjourned—Foresore Question.

The House met this morning at 11 o'clock.

Mr. E. C. Smith drew the attention of the Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works to a case of hardship similar to that of Mr. Martin referred to yesterday. A settler named Wm. Knoll had recorded a pre-emption to certain land near Elso, and had since made improvements valued at $500, and had paid all his taxes. The C. P. R. Company had recently made surveys there, and it was discovered that the land in question was within the boundaries of the company's grant. He hoped that the Chief Commissioner would be able to help the settler in this case.

Hon. Mr. Wells said he could not understand how such mistakes occurred. If the hon. member would forward the correspondence dealing with the matter to him he would take great pleasure in seeing that the settler's case received consideration. The railway company did not desire to inflict any hardship, and would not doubt co-operate with the government to put the matter right.

Mr. Curtis drew the attention of the government to the case of Finch versus the White Bear Mining Company now before the court, in which the plaintiff, who had purchased surface rights from the Nelson & Fort Sheppard Railway Company, sought to force defendant company either to remove their ore dump and buildings or else to purchase the land they occupied. Mr. Curtis said that the government ought to legislate so as to prevent such a case as this. Under the terms of the land grant to the railway company the minerals were reserved to the miners, but it was impossible to mine unless a certain amount of surface right was available.

The Attorney-General replied that no decision had yet been handed down in the court in this case.

Vancouver-Midway Road.

On the motion for the third reading of the Vancouver-Midway Railway Bill, Mr. McPhillips moved to amend subsection "d" of section 4 by more exactly defining the route of the railway from Vancouver to the mouth of the Fraser river and thence by ferry to Victoria. He was afraid that under the section it would be possible for the railway to terminate at Vancouver so that Victoria would not get the connection independent of the C. P. R. Company, which was desired.

Mr. McBride said that by insisting upon the ferry route from Point Roberts, Vancouver Island, and Victoria would be ensured a service independent of the C. P. R. at Vancouver. He could not understand why the government had not embodied this provision in the bill.

Hon. Mr. Eberts—Why don't you read the bill?

Mr. McBride said he had read the bill, and he was aware that the south side of the Fraser river was mentioned as the route of the railway, but there was nothing in the bill to compel the company to operate a ferry distinct from the C. P. R. railway system.

Hon. Mr. Eberts said that it was quite evident that Mr. McBride had not read the bill, which provided that the railway should go "from a point on the main line of the railway south of the Fraser river; thence westerly through the municipalities of Surrey and Delta to a point at or near the mouth of the Fraser river, and connecting by suitable ferry with Vancouver Island, so as to give direct and speedy communication with the city of Victoria," which fully provided for the separate and new system.

Mr. McBride argued that there was nothing in the bill to force the company to build beyond Vancouver at all. The railway could be constructed from Vancouver to Midway and not from Vancouver through Surrey and the Delta to the mouth of the Fraser river.

Mr. Green moved the adjournment of the debate, on the ground of the absence of several members who were specially interested in the route of the railway.

Mr. Curtis and Mr. McBride supported the adjournment, which was carried.

Overdraft Bill.

On report of the bill to confirm the existing bank overdraft, and to provide in the future for obtaining funds by way of overdrafts from the banking institutions of the province. Mr. McBride moved an amendment limiting the amount of funds obtained or to be obtained under the bill to the sum of $2,000,000 by June 30th, 1903. He understood that the Minister of Finance would accept the amendment.

Hon. Mr. Prentice—No.

Mr. McBride said that he thought Hon. Mr. Prentice could not do better than follow the example of a former Minister of Finance, Mr. Turner, who in a similar bill had fixed a limit in the way suggested by the amendment. He did not think it would be right for the House to give the minister a roving commission to give him control of the granting and cancelling of licenses.

At 1:15 Mr. McPhillips suggested that he should, with the approval of the government, move the adjournment of the debate.

Hon. Mr. Eberts objected.

Mr. McPhillips then continued his remarks, and agreed with Mr. McBride that the government ought not to have the power of granting leases of the foresore unless proper conditions, such as sale by auction, existed, so that everyone would have an equal opportunity of acquiring the lands.

Mr. Hall denied the allegation that the government had favored those who reported Hon. Mr. Prior at the recent by-election. Certain gentlemen had been for eighteen months endeavoring to get foresore rights in order to institute trap fishing. Among the applications he had recommended to the government was one sent in by a gentleman who, he believed, had voted for Mr. Bodwell.

Mr. Hunter hotly denied the government in the foresore matter, and declared that it was not just to put up the foresore rights to auction, because they would then all be acquired by monopolists.

At 2:15 the second reading of the bill was carried, and the House adjourned until 2 p. m. on Monday.

mission to get any amount of money from the banks.

Mr. McPhillips said that the overdraft system was unpopular in the country. He had tried to persuade some local business men that the government would enable him to obtain more money than he would require. He did not wish to embarrass the government, but he was sure that the amendment would not have that effect.

The amendment was rejected by 13 votes to 9, the bill was reported and read the third time.

Act Amended.

The Railways Act Amendment, which repeals the alien-labor clause in a number of railway acts passed by the House was amended in committee so as to include the Victoria Terminal & Sydney Incorporation Act, which had been omitted from the schedule, and was then reported complete.

Fisheries Act.

Hon. Mr. Eberts moved the second reading of the British Columbia Fisheries Act, 1901, Amendment Bill. He said that the right to the regulation of the fisheries was vested in the Dominion government and the Minister of Justice had taken exception to certain clauses in the act of 1901, which affected the regulations. In the bill before the House a change was made in the amount charged for licenses, and provided for the appointment of one commissioner in the place of the former board of three commissioners. The provincial government was entitled to charge a license fee as well as the Dominion government, which difficulty had been obviated last year by each government taking a share of the fee charged. The province was also entitled to charge a tax on fish preserved for the purpose of maintaining the fisheries. The terms of the bill were acceptable to the cannermen, and he hoped that the House would accept its provisions.

Mr. McBride said that the bill before the House was one of the most important measures introduced during the session. The act of 1901 had met with the approval of both cannermen and fishermen. He did not wish to enter into the pros and cons of trap-fishing, but he knew that the bill passed last year had been scanned very closely by the fishermen to see if there was an loophole under which trap-fishing could be inaugurated. He thought the Attorney-General ought to consult the fishermen's unions as well right to give him control of the granting and cancelling of licenses.

At 1:15 Mr. McPhillips suggested that he should, with the approval of the government, move the adjournment of the debate.

Hon. Mr. Eberts objected.

Mr. McPhillips then continued his remarks, and agreed with Mr. McBride that the government ought not to have the power of granting leases of the foresore unless proper conditions, such as sale by auction, existed, so that everyone would have an equal opportunity of acquiring the lands.

Mr. Hall denied the allegation that the government had favored those who reported Hon. Mr. Prior at the recent by-election. Mr. Hunter hotly denied the government in the foresore matter, and declared that it was not just to put up the foresore rights to auction, because they would then all be acquired by monopolists.

Satisfaction is Expressed at the Appointment of House of Commons Shipping Committee.

(Associated Press.)
New York, June 14.—In shipping circles the formation of a House of Commons committee, with the object of looking after urgent shipping questions in parliament, is regarded as a movement of a distinctly satisfactory character, says a London dispatch to the Tribune. Sir Charles Cazyer, chairman of the committee, and Colonel Boyer, deputy chairman, sit on the government side of the House, but Walter Hume, honorary secretary, is one of the most prominent of the younger men in the Radical ranks. The clear suggestion is therefore that parliamentary differences are to be, as far as possible, forgotten in the effort to enlighten parliament on the subject of the British shipping industry.

In taking these steps the ship owners in the Commons are by no means to be accused of adopting a strikingly original line of action. The church party and the service members have had twice on parliamentary committees for a long time past. It is significant, however, that all the members of the new committee look upon the north-Atlantic combination in the light of a real danger to England's shipping industry.

It is stated that the promoters of the British combination will not take further action until the arrival of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Minister Tarte in this country.

LYNCH BEFORE THE MAGISTRATE TO-DAY

LARGE CROWD PRESENT AT BOW STREET COURT

The Solicitor-General Submits Case For Prosecution—Prisoner Remanded For a Week.

(Associated Press.)
London, June 14.—Bow street police court was crowded to-day when the investigation into the charge of high treason against Colonel Arthur Lynch, formerly of the Boer army, who was elected member of parliament for Galway in November last, and who was arrested at Newhaven on Wednesday on landing there from France, was begun. Mrs. Lynch, and other friends of the accused were present.

The solicitor-general, Sir Edward Carson, opened for the prosecution. He referred briefly to Col. Lynch's Australian nationality, residence in Paris, and departure thence to the Transvaal in January, 1900.

"The case for the prosecution," said Sir Edward, "will be that on arriving in South Africa Lynch took service with the Transvaal government, raised a regiment of which he acted as commander, to fight in its behalf, and actively fought against Gen. Buller's operations. Lynch was in Pretoria on January 15th, 1900, and wrote to the Transvaal authorities, notifying them of his desire to take up arms. On January 18th he signed a field cornet's certificate describing himself as an Irishman, a British subject and as born in Australia. But he declared his willingness to fight for the South African Republic in order to maintain and defend its independence. Lynch also took the oath of allegiance as a full burgher, and to accept a commission from the Transvaal government. Lynch then raised the so-called Irish brigade, joined the invading army in Natal, and issued an appeal, signed Arthur Lynch, colonel Irish brigade, inviting Irishmen to assist the two republics."

Hon. Charles Russell, second son of the late Lord Chief Justice, Baron Russell, of Killowen, represented the defendant. He said that Lynch had faced the proceedings like a man. What he had done, he had done openly and he desired to facilitate the inquiry as much as possible.

After the police had furnished evidence of the prisoner's arrest, during the course of which Detective Inspector Walsh testified to finding in Colonel Lynch's pocket a visiting card of Hamilton Holt, "introducing Colonel Lynch, of the Boer army," to three Americans, A. S. Hardy, United States minister at Bern, Switzerland; Herbert W. Bowen, United States minister to Ferrara, now minister to Venezuela, and Prof. Richard Anderson, of the American school at Athens; and after some testimony had been presented regarding Colonel Lynch's presence "on command" in Natal, the prisoner was remanded till June 21st.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE LEGISLATURE

ATTEMPT TO IMPERIL A VICTORIA RAILWAY

The Government Seek Vengeance on a Line Competitive to That of the Premier Press Gallery, June 13th. The House to-night decided to sit tomorrow, although a strong protest was put in by a number of members...

In the afternoon the House met at 2.30. The Overdraft bill was committed, with A. W. Smith in the chair.

The opposition strongly objected to the government taking power to borrow in the future by the following section: "The overdraft already in existence, and required up to the 30th of June, 1902, estimated at one million seven hundred thousand dollars, is hereby authorized and confirmed, and is constituted a charge against the consolidated revenue of the province until repaid."

Mr. McBride said this proved that the government was cognizant of the omission. The government still failed to answer, and the question was about to be put when Mr. Curtis demanded the reason for this discrimination.

Mr. Curtis said he had a copy of the 5th section of the Oaths Act of 1888 (Imperial). Just lately a notice has been posted in the High Court of Justice in London, calling attention to the "Scottish form" of oath which was substituted for "kissing the book."

Mr. Curtis asked for the letters accompanying applications for foreshore rights. The Chief Commissioner said they were not asked for by resolution.

Mr. Curtis moved to substitute Princeton for Allison as the objective point of the railway. He explained that Princeton was merely a name on the map.

Mr. Curtis moved to strike out of sub-section (f) all the words after the word "agreement," in line 10 thereof. This was defeated.

He would like to see a road built south of the Fraser. But that country was already served by the Fraser river and the C. P. R., and there were far more desirable roads.

Mr. Eberst moved that the House at its rising stand adjourn-d till 10.30 tomorrow.

Mr. Oliver objected, it being understood that the objection of one member prevented a Saturday sitting.

Mr. Martin held a majority vote could decide the matter. Strong objection was taken by Messrs. McPhillips, Curtis and Hawthorthwaite that members were totally unfit for their duty by being kept at it morning, noon and night, and instanced the present listlessness of the House.

COST OF FOOD. Grape-Nuts vs. White Bread, etc. A family figured carefully on the cost of food, taking into consideration the strength and health that Grape-Nuts furnished.

"We first took up Grape-Nuts because it agreed with me so well. I was suffering from dyspepsia that medicine did not relieve. I frequently laughed at the idea when some of my friends told of the use of Grape-Nuts; however, one day I bought a package and we found it good and it agreed with me."

We were accustomed to using white bread and oats, wheat or barley mushes boiled for two to four hours. We considered Grape-Nuts too expensive but I noticed that when I had a breakfast of Grape-Nuts I felt fine, and other days when white bread and other cereals were used I felt weak and bloated.

One day about six months ago I said to wife, "I am satisfied that Grape-Nuts is the thing that makes me feel better in between the blue spells." Then we sat down and figured it while on the road of living and came to the conclusion that we could live better and happier on fifteen cents worth of white bread or "cooked at home" cereals. You see four teaspoonsful of Grape-Nuts furnish more strength to work on than large quantities of other food, so we started on Grape-Nuts in earnest, using it every morning, and a wonderful change has come over me.

I am gaining in weight every day. Never have any of the old bloated feelings. Feel strong and well and can endure more hard work than I could on the old-diet, and this result is all without any doctor or drugs at all, but directly from using Grape-Nuts. Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

GARDEN PARTY

And Sale of Work on Wednesday Next.

One of the chief attractions of the coming week will be a garden party given by the ladies of the Church of Our Lord at Marlfield, Carr street, on Wednesday afternoon from 2.30 to 6.30 o'clock.

During the afternoon there will be a sale of work and candy, too. Needless to say, these stalls will be liberally patronized, and it will be advisable for purchasers to call early, as here as elsewhere, the old proverb "First come first served" will be strictly adhered to.

Admission of 25 cents, payable at the main entrance on Carr street, will enable all comers to have afternoon tea, free of charge, but ice cream and strawberries can be had for a small consideration.

The ladies hope that all their friends will respond to the invitation to their first garden fete of the season.

In another part of this paper appears an advertisement of the foregoing.

Alexandria, Vir., June 12.—An arrest that caused considerable excitement occurred shortly after 7 o'clock to-night, when Miss Mary Curtis Lee, daughter of Gen. Robert E. BRITISH COLUMBIA'S GREAT COMBINE. Perhaps the people of this province have deluded themselves into the belief that they have not yet been encircled by the tentacles of any great trust. It may be that the majority of them have not followed as closely as they should have done for their own sakes.

small railway is the one power that stands between the people and monopolies which, as past experience proves, have been the curse of Victoria. Now that the C. P. N. has passed into the hands of the C. P. R. and there is a working agreement between the monopoly which would control the mainland and the power which would fall possess the island, it is obvious that it is to our advantage that the autonomy of the V. & S. shall be maintained.

It was when the discussion upon the Coast-Kootenay road was approaching a conclusion that the evidence of the complete control of the C. P. R. has over the House was given. In order if possible to secure the construction of a direct line by a competing company the opposition offered amendments which would have made the payment of subsidies conditional upon the completion of the mountain section.

Now, are not these achievements worthy of a government which has defied public opinion from the very first day of its existence and has openly worked to advance the selfish interests of its head and to carry out the purposes of those who schemed to bring it into being at the instigation of the corporation in whose employ they have always been?

After all it is not surprising that the government kept the mask on as long as possible. It is a wonder it did not keep the House in session another month or two to gather courage to reveal its purposes.

LABOR LOST.

To the Editor—I have just turned from the pen of a "Report on Taxation," by Mr. John B. McKilligan, surveyor of taxes and inspector of revenue for the province. The document is rather bulky, comprising some sixty pages of printed matter and giving evidence of industry and research. It is not my purpose in this letter to closely analyze all the conclusions Mr. McKilligan has reached. That is a task which rather than an enhancement of the burden of taxation? Has the thought never entered their minds that the true plan for making the two ends meet is a reduced official staff and a suggestion that the heads give more attention to the business of their departments instead of confiding it to irresponsible and incompetent secretaries, who are totally unacquainted with the duties and have no interest in reducing expenses? We must look at the cost of the civil service for the past two and the current years to ascertain one of the present causes that underlie our difficulties. Here administration of justice a larger sum in proportion than any other province. Then, had his voice been as one crying in the wilderness, he should have chucked up his job and stood as a financial reformer for the first vacant seat; and he would have got in, too. Instead of adopting a course that would have won the admiration and gratitude of the country, and caused unborn generations to call him "Blessed," he has done the very opposite thing, and has actually accepted (perhaps unsolicited) an increase of $300 in his own salary. But why should he not join in the general advancement? Who shall say him nay? Are not increased salaries and increased taxes synonymous terms with this government? And where all enjoy the benefit or enlarged salaries, why should not the inspector of taxes, who has faithfully obeyed instructions, although he has missed his opportunity, join in the general expansion? VICTORIA.

JAMES BAY RECLAMATION WORKS.

To the Editor—A letter in your issue of yesterday says before your readers the main facts of this case, and it calls attention to the doubtful legality of the use for other purposes, of funds provided under a by-law for some fixed purpose. Plans and descriptions of the proposed works were laid before the ratepayers in the public prints in December, 1900, therefore once for which the money was voted. "The objects for which the debt was created." The thing is a laughing stock as it stands. We want what we agreed to both here and at Point Ellice. That of an injunction and personal liability. THOS. C. SORBY.

must form the subject of a later article; but there are a few points of omission and commission that might well occupy the attention of the press at this period, and which, carefully considered, may render unnecessary some of the changes that are embraced in the draft of a new assessment act that accompanies the report. It is an old saying that nothing is certain in this world save death and taxation. Mr. McKilligan does not, it is true, propose to inflict the death penalty on tax delinquents, but he has added a substantial increase in the rates and a sale of the property of delinquents one year in arrears. Rather sharp work, don't you think? Somewhere Shakespeare says that you might as well kill a man outright as to take from him the means whereby he lives; and Mr. McKilligan, when he recommends an increase in taxation (which naturally includes a lifting up of values for assessment purposes) proposes to knock the props from beneath many happy homes. Mr. McKilligan recommends the following increases: On real estate, one per cent, instead of four-fifths of one per cent, on personal property, one per cent, instead of three-fourths of one per cent, income tax payments as before. Lower rates for payment on the 30th June are reduced in accordance with the advanced rates. Mr. McKilligan hopes to get from these increases an enhanced revenue of $80,000 per annum. The arrears of taxation are stated at $524,521.50. The increase in collectible taxation in the last two years has been $43,537.50. From another source I learn that in the past two years the annual civil list has been expanded to the amount of $42,000; so that expenditure keeps step with revenue. For every additional dollar that comes into the treasury there is a pair of official hands ready-made to grab it, an extraordinary coincidence. It is a regrettable circumstance that the instructions Mr. McKilligan received from the Minister of Finance confined him to ascertaining just how much longer the cow could stand to be milked without going dry or kicking the bucket over—for that is just about what the inspector was told to ascertain. How much more taxation can the people bear without going broke? Mr. McKilligan has supplied the answer.

is the statement: Salaries, 1901, $221,805; salaries, 1902, $253,080; increase, $32,085; salaries, 1903, $263,280; increase, $9,300; total increase, $41,385. If we turn next to actual and proposed expenditure on roads, streets, bridges and wharves we find that it is intended to spend $107,918 less in the current year on these necessities than was expended in 1902. Here, then, is seen the remarkable fact that while the official statement is growing in strength and cost, the expenditure on public utilities has fallen away nearly one-third. If you ask a minister why the districts are being starved he will tell you that the government have not the money to carry on needed improvements and can't get it. Yet this same minister will unblushingly ask the House to vote increments in the salaries of officials and provide additional clerical help to the amount of $41,385, while Mr. McKilligan can, by passing the harrow over the taxation field, produce only an additional revenue of $80,000 towards clearing the $200,000 gap between revenue and expenditure.

I submit that the researches of the inspector have availed little towards solving the problem placed in his hands. He has, no doubt, done his duty so far as his instructions went; but they did not go far enough. He really looks to me as if the inspector has lived (officially) in vain. What possible good can be reaped by the province from a new Assessment Act that will add only $80,000 to collectible (not collected) taxation, while public works are starved and the expenditure on the civil list account goes steadily and merrily on in ever-increasing volume, and will continue to expand and grow so long as good-natured members honor the drafts of the departments and political friends of the ministry stand in need of places or bloated salaries are demanded?

Let us come down to cold facts (when we deal with facts we must discard the budget speech which is largely fiction) and stop flying kites and trying to float airships. The inspector has missed the opportunity of his life. He should have exceeded his instructions and pointed out that in every department there is urgent need for retrenchment. He should have shown that the condition of the country did not warrant enhanced salaries and additions to the civil service staff. He should have recommended the introduction of rigid economies in all the departments; asked what necessity exists for a duplicate secretary for each minister; recommended a close audit of all travelling expenses; and demanded to be told why this province is forced to pay for the

Baby's Own Tablets

THE ROAD TO HEALTH.

If your children are subject to colic, indigestion, or any stomach trouble. If they are troubled at any time with constipation, diarrhoea, or any other of the minor ills that afflict little ones, give them Baby's Own Tablets.

This medicine will give relief right away, making sound, refreshing sleep possible. It will put children on the high road to recovery at once. It is doing this to-day for thousands of little ones in all parts of the country.

The Tablets are good for children of all ages and are taken as readily as candy. If crushed to a powder they can be taken with perfect safety and gratifying results to the youngest infant.

A Mother's Praise.

Mrs. James Spencely, Pembroke, Ont., says:—"Any mother with a cross and restless child should get Baby's Own Tablets at once. When my baby was teething he was cross, feverish and so sleepless that I had to be up with him most of the night. The Tablets were recommended to me and after giving them to baby his fever was reduced, he became quiet, got refreshing sleep, and I was able to get sleep myself. I have since given him the Tablets both for constipation and diarrhoea and find them a cure for both these troubles. I do not know what I would do without the Tablets at times and I always keep them in the house."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all druggists, or will be sent post paid at 25 cents a box by addressing

The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. or Schenectady, N. Y.

A Guarantee. I hereby certify that I have made a careful chemical analysis of Baby's Own Tablets, which I personally purchased in Montreal. My analysis has proved that the Tablets contain no opium, narcotic, that they can be given with perfect safety to the youngest infant; that they are a safe and efficient medicine for the troubles they are indicated to relieve and cure. ### A WARNING

CARELESS INDIFFERENCE AND NEGLECT MAY BRING LIFE-LONG MISERY.

The Importance of Immediate Attention to and Cure of Dyspepsia—If Not Corrected Stomach Troubles May Lead to Death.

The actual pain and distress caused by Dyspepsia is in itself troublesome enough to make the victim wish to be cured, but this is not the most serious side.

An unhealthy Stomach can do much to lay the foundation of very many serious if not fatal diseases.

The failure of the digestive organs to properly digest and assimilate the food weakens the body, and the weakened body is an inviting receptacle for almost any disease.

When strong and vigorous and properly nourished, the body can easily stand off the attacks of disease, but when weakened and impoverished by bad digestion it falls an easy prey to almost any malady that may present itself.

It is therefore of the highest importance, that the Stomach be kept in a perfectly healthy condition and the very first symptoms of Indigestion, Heartburn, Sour Stomach, Bloating or any other forerunner of Dyspepsia should be promptly checked.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are the very best treatment known to Science for any and every form of Stomach Trouble (except cancer).

This remedy gives almost immediate relief, and if a full treatment is taken will absolutely and permanently cure the most severe case of Chronic Dyspepsia.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have cured thousands of Dyspeptics, and they will cure you if you give them a chance.

Don't put off taking a treatment for

RETAINING WALL—PRESENT STAGE.

This shows the retaining wall as it now stands—almost completed. On the actual wall a parapet, with ornamental coping, between three and four feet high, will be erected for the protection of the public. Altogether the wall will be about twenty-five feet high. An extension along Belleville street water front is now under way, the plan of which was illustrated and described in these columns the other day. The whole work is under the supervision of the city engineer, who deserves great credit for the success which has marked its progress thus far.

WEAK MEN.

Are you discontented with yourself? Do you realize that you are not what you ought to be? Do you dread unknown dangers and start at sudden sounds? Are your hands and feet and other parts of your body cold? Do you have shooting pains in the head or "come and go" pains in the back? Is it hard to get to sleep, and do you arise more tired than when you go to bed? Does your stomach bloat, and do you seem to see spots floating before your eyes? Are you losing flesh? Is your memory defective? Does your breath get short upon slight exertion.

These are a few of the symptoms of nervousness. This condition is the result of overwork, constipation and numerous other causes, which are explained in my beautifully illustrated 80-page book, which is free for the asking.

DR. McLAUGHLIN'S ELECTRIC BELT

Cures Nervous Disorders, Weak Back, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Stomach, Liver, Kidney and Bowel Troubles, "Come and Go" Pains, and that Tired Feeling after every other treatment has failed. It gives the vitalizing power of electricity, while you sleep, into every weak and pain-worn nerve, muscle, tissue and vein of the body. After a few days' use you feel as if new life had been given to you. It banishes pain and weakness and removes the effects of overwork and worry.

Thos. Spencer Mull, Ont., writes—I have given your Belt a fair test. This is the first winter since I hurt my back. I have not been laid up. I have not lost a single day yet, and I have no pain in my back. I can get in most any shape now and come out straight, and I feel a lot stronger, and my back is all right.

Give me a man of 50, feeling old and worn out with pains in his back and joints. I can pump a stream of Electricity into his body for a few hours every night, and soon he will feel as strong and light-hearted as he did at 30.

Herbert E. Reid, Barrie, Ont., says—I received great benefit from the use of your Belt. I have been free from all aches and pains and have been greatly strengthened every way. There is no doubt but that it is the right remedy for all weaknesses in men.

I could fill this paper with testimonials from honest people. If you will call or write I will give you names of people all about you whom I have cured.

CAUTION There are many old style belts on the market to-day, whose merit is their ability to burn and scar the flesh. These old style blistering scorchers are using a cheap imitation of my Cushion Electrode. My office contains hundreds of these old style Belts, discarded as useless, many of them after the patient had only had them one week. I want every man or woman who is suffering pains or weakness to call at my office and TEST MY BELT FREE OF CHARGE.

CLEVER ANIMALS IN PERFORMANCE. LARGE CROWD ENJOYS GENTRY BROS.' SHOW.

Dogs, Monkeys, Elephants and Ponies Are the Performers—This Afternoon and To-night.

Gentry Bros' trained animal show has struck the town. This is not exactly news, as all Victoria from one end to the other was quite aware of their arrival in an incredibly short time afterwards. Their advent had been expected all day, and from 10 o'clock in the morning the streets were lined with curious and eager who were out to see the parade. Owing to the delay in arriving, however, this did not take place until 4 o'clock, but its general excellence whetted the desire to take in the performance in the evening.

There is nothing like a circus to draw a crowd, and few circuses indeed are as irresistible as a trained animal show. These thousand or more people taxed to the utmost the accommodation of that spacious tent on the corner of Herald and Douglas streets. Long before the performance commenced hundreds and hundreds were comfortably seated on the benches within. Talk about a mistletoe performance as an attraction, who knows into insignificance before a show of this sort. Juvenile Victoria rules with a rod of iron on circus day, and therefore at its royal command parents had no other recourse but to fall into the line that kept the ticket-takers busy until it was found absolutely necessary to prevent more from entering.

A prime feature in the performance was the absence of the slightest objectionable detail. The attendants were courteous, prompt and ever solicitous for the comfort and convenience of the spectators—whom they rightly considered the guests of the management. There were no fox horns advertising side shows, and even the peanut and balloon vendors pursued their callings in a manner which did not divert attention from the marvellous tricks that animal prodigies were performing.

There was no confusion, no noise nor hitch, and this satisfactory state of affairs redounds much to the credit of the management and their staff. The performance commenced with a general salute to the spectators by the sixty beautiful ponies, of whom Ringmaster Davey Markle is justly proud. They are all of a size, in admirable condition, and in truth a magnificent array of pony stock. In pyramidal order, with Mr. Markle in the centre, they gave a grand march, retaining their formation throughout. One of the finest exhibitions in the show was the military drill by twelve ponies which responded to the various commands with exact precision. In fact, the way these animals formed fours, wheeled around and went through the different evolutions was worth the price of admission. There is nothing of "the awkward squad" about that contingent. They certainly know their drill.

There is one pony Peck a Boo, by the way a household name in the States, that can do anything but talk, and this accomplishment is not exactly lacking in Peck a Boo can express himself by signs. He is the leader of the band of ponies which plays "Home Sweet Home" on bells. Then there are about one hundred and eighty canines of all descriptions. There are tumbling and acrobatic dogs, barbedog riding dogs, little leaping greyhounds, and one little dog named after the Brooklyn Bridge jumper, Steve Brodie, ascends a ladder to the top of the tent and jumps into a carpet held securely by the attendants.

There is one dog named "Tramp," a white but not very attractive looking canine, which gives fiding exhibitions nothing short of marvellous. This identical dog as its name implies was trained by the company, and he was invited, and obligingly so, to participate in anything was told to move. He didn't move; he refused and was taken up by some of the attendants. One of the company's greyhounds holds the record for long distance jumping, clearing forty-seven feet. There are two clever monkeys with the show, Jerry and Jack. They can be called the comedians. Ask the youngsters if they are not good ones. The two performing elephants, Pinto and Little Jim, provoke much amusement. The performance throughout is snappy, full of entertainment and does not allow the attention to lag the slightest.

Gentry Bros. have four shows on the road at the present time. Their rustication-festivals consist of three thousand acres in Bloomington, Indiana, where their prospective "holidays," and where prospective "stars" are trained. This is the first show that has ever come to this city in its own ears.

This afternoon, commencing at 2:30 o'clock, another performance is in progress. To-night the last performance will be given commencing at 8:15 o'clock. It will be preceded by a band concert. There was another street parade this morning.

The harnessing of ladies was an expensive affair in the sixteenth century. Queen Elizabeth at one time was possessed of no fewer than eighty attires of false hair.

PROTECTION FOR FIRE FIGHTERS

CHIEF WATSON TESTS NEW SMOKE HELMET

The Test Proved Very Satisfactory—Firemen Can Now Defy Deadly Gases.

Yesterday morning, Chief Watson, of the fire department, tested the Vajon-Bader patent head protector recently purchased by the city, with the most satisfactory result. The test was a severe one, in fact the severest possible, Manager Hall, of the Chemical Works, kindly placing at the disposal of the chief a couple of chemical departments charged with sulphur and muriatic acid fumes. The latter in particular are exceptionally pungent. Three inhalations are sufficient to make one feel that he has drawn a very active buzz-saw into his lungs.

What is a Vajon-Bader head protector? It is a helmet which affords absolute protection to its wearer from dense smoke and deadly gases, and with one on a fireman can work for a long time where a man not so protected would most certainly perish in a few minutes. The weight is practically nothing, as it rests on the shoulders. The protector is made of asbestos-tanned horsehair, and is securely fastened by two straps which pass from the back under the arms and snap into rings in front. Its top is padded and also reinforced with transverse seams of the same leather which extend up to the height of about an inch. This makes it capable of withstanding a heavy blow and forms an almost perfect protection against falling bricks and stones as far as the back of the head is concerned.

Directly at the back of the neck is a small air tank which can be filled by means of an ordinary force pump, such as is used for inflating their pneumatic tires. It will hold one hundred pounds of compressed air, and has a tiny gauge attached which registers the pressure of the air within. The first five or ten minutes of use generally determines the result, and the final capacity of the air tank is sufficient to last a man forty minutes. In other words the capacity is more than ample. The flow of air is regulated by a simple attachment directly under the tank, which may be easily operated by the wearer of the helmet.

The air is carried from the tank to a pocket directly in front of the wearer's nose, by means of a small rubber hose. Inside and fitting snugly along the chest and the neck are two pleated diaphragms or circles of sheep skin, which strain from any smoke that might force its way in all fatal and injurious substances. There are double-eye pieces constructed of the finest and clearest mica, while there are delicate mica diaphragms for the ears. Both the eye and ear pieces are protected by wire guards. There is also a rubber signal whistle which does not, however, consume any of the pure air in the reservoir.

The first test was in the department in which are the sulphur works, the doors were thrown open and an atmosphere of miniature inferno on earth created forthwith. The fumes soon forced the little group into the open air, and then one of the firemen, wearing the helmet, entered the apartment. He stood there between five or ten minutes directly in front of the crowd. The helmet afforded him complete protection; he breathed of an abundance of pure air, and the fumes did not in the slightest penetrate.

After another equally satisfactory test, it was decided to try something stronger—muriatic acid fumes. Manager Hall made the preparation in a small room and then the chief donned the helmet and entered. Without the helmet it would be absolutely impossible to enter the place, but the chief, with the protection on, stood over the chemical for several minutes. This is an exceptionally penetrating gas, and the faintest breath of it would have driven him from the place. None penetrated the protector.

These helmets are used in the principal cities of the continent. Everywhere fire chiefs speak in the highest terms of them, and the Victoria chief is thoroughly satisfied that they should be adopted by all well regulated fire departments.

DECORATION DAY.

K. of P. Lodges Commemorate That Occasion To-morrow—Other Notes. To-morrow afternoon the annual decoration day sessions in connection with the Knights of Pythias order will be commemorated by the members of the two K. of P. lodges of the city. On account of the decision of outside lodges not to participate in these services the interest locally seems to have declined. The members will assemble at the hall, and if the turn out is satisfactory a large parade will be held. If not, the parade will be abandoned. No band will take part, but that will not make the occasion any the less solemn in character. Flowers are plentiful this year, and a large supply has been received for the purpose of adorning the resting places of departed brethren. Appropriate religious services will be conducted. Court Northern Light, A. O. F., at their last meeting initiated a candidate into the order. The court has decided to donate $10 to the Female relief fund. The members of the order will assemble at K. of P. hall on the 27th at 1 p. m. sharp to parade in the societies' re-union. Badges will be distributed to the members in line of procession. Every member is expected to turn out on this occasion along with the brethren from Nanaimo and Seattle. Alexandria lodge, No. 116, S. O. E., will hold a very important meeting on Thursday evening next. The occasion is the quarterly session of the order, and among other business representatives to the Grand Lodge will be appointed.

PAIN'S CELERY COMPOUND

Restores That Health and Vigor That Makes Living a Pleasure.

If you are sick and out-of-sorts in June, its in your power to make yourself healthy, strong and happy. There is not the slightest reason why you should go through the hot summer weather feeling sickly, miserable, languid and melancholic. To be well and strong means happiness and true joy, and this is the season when you should be bright, hearty and glad.

If you are sleepless, rheumatic, neuragic, dyspeptic, or have the shadows of disease hovering over you, if you are not as bright, energetic and strong as you were some weeks ago, the use of Paine's Celery Compound will tone up and fortify your whole system, cleanse the blood, correct digestion, sharpen the appetite, and conduce to restful sleep. Thousands once in a half-dazed condition owe their present good health to the use of Paine's Celery Compound. Mrs. E. Rankin, of Courtright, Ont., says: "With great pleasure I beg to inform you of the good I have received from the use of Paine's Celery Compound. For number of years I have been in very poor health, and lately I was advised to try your medicine. I used three bottles, and have received a world of good. My severe headache is completely banished, and the heart disease from which I suffered for thirty years has almost disappeared. I am fully convinced that Paine's Celery Compound is all that it is recommended to be."

GREENWOOD.

The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon of Richard Babl, the miner who met his death in the Mother Lode mine in the Deadwood camp, on Sunday morning. The body was interred in the Greenwood cemetery, and fifty members of the Greenwood Miners' Union and other residents attending. Rev. J. D. P. Knox conducted the burial service. The evidence adduced before the coroner's jury it appears that a number of holes in the Mother Lode quarry had been chambered on Saturday evening for firing on Sunday morning. Before charging them one more was sprung, but from the evidence of the two men whose duty it was to test it, this hole was quite cold before being charged. When all was ready for firing most of the men working in the quarry retired to a place of safety, leaving several to fire holes. A premature explosion immediately resulted from the hole sprung that morning, but whether from a hot hole or a fast

NEARLY GAVE UP

A CAPE BRETON LADY SAVED AT THE LAST MOMENT. A Little Longer and It Would Have Been Too Late—Her Gratitude For Her Deliverance is Unbounded.

Rock Dale, C. B., June 13.—(Special) One of the most thrilling escapes in the history of the Island has just been reported here.

The subject was Mrs. David Riley of this village, and had help not reached her the moment it did, the chances for her recovery were indeed very small.

Mrs. Riley has given the following account of her experience: "I have been a sufferer for the last 8 years with weakness of the body and pain across the back and I could scarcely lift any weight.

"I took lots of medicines but without any good results. "I always had a dizziness and was gradually growing worse. "I was advised to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and although I had but little faith in medicine after my many discouraging experiences, I decided to give them a trial.

"I used four boxes and I must say that the change they made in my condition was wonderful. "With the first box I commenced to feel stronger, and I continued the treatment, and now my back does not trouble me at all, and I am stronger and better than I have been for years.

"If it was not for the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills I would have given up. "I can heartily recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to all women suffering as I used to suffer."

The experience of Mrs. Riley is only one of hundreds. Bad kidney action is at the bottom of nearly all of the weakness, pain and dizziness, with which so many ladies suffer. Cure the kidneys, and the well kidneys will soon correct all other irregularities and restore perfect health. Dodd's Kidney Pills are weak women's best friend.

JAPANESE MARRIAGE CUSTOM. Wild geese are considered the best examples of conjugal felicity in the animal world; thus the groom sends the bride a pair of these birds, and she in turn presents them to her parents. To further emphasize the custom, the groom brings another pair to the wedding, and they roost in the room during the ceremony. Their conduct is watched with care, for they must not struggle to escape during the proceedings. Fortunately the bridegroom who cannot secure the geese alive cannot be content to substitute top imitations of the birds, for then he has no anxiety lest the wild propensity assert itself during the marriage rites, and thus prove an ill omen to the household.—Woman's Home Companion.

THOSE PRETTY WASHABLE FOBS.

Washable affairs seem to be the order of the day, for along with her tub gowns, her parasols which will withstand a thorough drenching and her washable coats, comes another little fancy for the lady, and this, too, is warranted to survive the process of vigorous laundering. It is pretty, this latest novelty, is useful and serviceable, so its success as a summer accessory of the smart, immaculate duck and dimity girl is already an assured fact.

The washable fob, as it is called, displays all manner of miniature belongings characteristic of the sportswoman, and is, for this very reason, eminently suited to summer wear.

Though gilt spurs, stirrups and horse-shoes figure prominently on these new fobs, they could scarcely be called manish, for daintiness saves them from this ad fate. Knowing the summer woman's fondness for things fresh, pretty and immaculate, clever minds have been kept busy discovering and designing novelties which will suit her particular taste, and genuinely new articles are now being offered in place of the usual gold or silver, which has lately returned to favor.

It seems such a simple matter to hit upon this practical little accessory, yet remained for one ingenious feminine mind to originate a device which is bound to please all members of the fair sex. Doubtless, the washable fob has caught on, and before leaving town for her usual season the summer girl is supplying herself with a generous variety of these little ornaments to match her shirtwaists and summer frocks. Mercerized canvas and fine white pique are used for most of these attractive fobs, while an air of elegance is secured by having the guard made of white or pale tinted moire ribbon. These more elaborate accessories need not be confined to linen and cotton gowns, for they are pretty with any frock where a fob is suitable.

Buckles in enamels to represent one's favorite college colors are one of the fads. For instance, a pure white moire ribbon, neatly stitched all around and with no ornamentation whatever on the broad lobe, has its narrow pointed strap slipped through a plain gilt buckle enamelled in Yale or Columbia blue. The crimson shows to advantage against a pale buff linen, while a gun metal slide on an orange taffeta ribbon forms the tiger combination.

Mourning fobs are made of dull silk ribbon, fastened with gun metal trimmings. There are other decorations newer than and equally as attractive as the above. Even in such trifles does the approaching coronation show its influence, for one of the smartest fobs presents the trio of graceful plumes surmounting a coronet as its decoration. The design is embroidered in colors on the lobe, and the enamel of the tiny oval slide harmonizes with the shade used for the nodding feathers. The coronet is usually black, and the plumes may be blue, pink, green or red.

When this design is embroidered upon soft mercerized Oxford or lustrous linen the effect is very smart and adds a decided charm to almost any stylish outing dress.

With a Delft blue-linen frock one of these watch fobs was worn. It was of white linen, worked in a curious character, either Chinese or Arabic in style, and done in Delft blue silk, with just a touch of black to give it dash. The buckle was blue, too, though another fob of the same style displayed a gun metal slide.

For the sport-loving young woman there are numerous attractive designs in dull gold and enamel.

Instead of the round lobe end, upon which is worked in embroidery pattern in colors, these sporting novelties have stirrups, spurs, bits and crops fastened at the end of the narrow linen strap, while the buckle may be a horseshoe, whip or of the same design as the pendant.

A scarlet linen fob, ornamented with tiny crossed golf clubs, made a pretty little novelty to be worn with a smart golf costume, and a tennis enthusiast will surely choose for her white serge costume a fob of purest white linen, decorated with gilt racquet and ball.

At a ping pong tournament the prize took the form of one of these washable fobs, having its pretty white made to represent a small vellum racquet and celluloid ball.

To wear with these new watchguards are designed some very pretty belts and stocks to match, and the sets are practical and extremely smart, without being elaborate.

Some of the stocks are furnished with small bow ties, fastened with fancy slides, and others have long Ascot scarves, the ends of which are embroidered in the same plume or Oriental design as that seen upon the fob. If there is no metal buckle used upon the bow tie, then just above the knot, on the front of the plain linen or moire stock, is worked one of these attractive ornaments.

Belts to match are scarcely more than an inch wide at the back, tapering gently toward the front, where both pointed ends slip through a plain or fancy buckle.

SUMMER NOVELTIES IN NECKWEAR

In anticipation of the hot summer days to come neckwear designers have been busily engaged trying to devise some of which will look smart and at the same time stand the severe test of humid weather.

After many unsuccessful efforts a certain manufacturer who caters exclusively to feminine wants has hit upon a novel fashion which no doubt will prove a favorite before June ends have spread their willing rays.

There isn't a question about its success with the fashionable woman who desires comfort above all things, and as this new collar has the advantage of giving one a youthful appearance it begins its existence with much in its favor.

From the small Eton has this progressive designer borrowed his ideas, for he has copied almost exactly the round turnover-collars which roll back, leaving the throat exposed in a picturesque fashion.

These collars are made of fine white lawn and finished with an ornate showing a narrow border of a color, and there are ties to match which are knotted with loose, flowing Biscan-like ends. With summer shirtwaists these collars are very effective and pretty, and certainly they offer enough of a change to insure their popularity.

Considering their great comfort in the matter of coolness they cannot fail to appeal to the majority of the fair sex, though, probably as was the case last summer with the elaborate blouse, the

BY ELSIE DEY.

We all know the shirtwaist young woman. Her trimness, immaculate grooming and air of dainty freshness peculiarly her own far the most attractive feature of her door summer life. The splendid color which glows in her cheeks, her movements, lithe and graceful, win our unbounded admiration, while before the dainty harmony of her smart little costume we prostrate ourselves in highest praise.

There are shirtwaist girls and shirtwaist girls, however, but it isn't a difficult matter to recognize those who possess a proper sense of uniformity and dress with a perfect knowledge of shirtwaist requirements.

After much coaching and hard practice the shirtwaist devotee has finally mastered the art of ascots and small bows; the belt, of course, came to her instinctively, but hats—there is where she frequently blunders, either through ignorance or a careless disregard of propriety. The transgression is unpardonable, nevertheless, and a fussy hat worn with a trim shirtwaist stamps the wearer as badly dressed, no matter how smart may be the rest of her costume.

Since the shirtwaist has grown to be such an important part of the summer wardrobe all manner of pretty accessories have been devised to complete this dainty dress. Of all these smart-effects none, however, plays so prominent a part as the hat selected to accompany this particular style of gown.

The shirtwaist hat is already a well-known term among feminine belongings, and there are several manufacturers, as well as retailers, who supply exclusively this class of millinery. Not every hat maker is able to build a smart tailor model, for, as with gowns, it is much easier to cover up lines with soft fluffy masses of trimming.

Dashing lines, are, however, the one thing needed to make the shirtwaist hat a success, and it naturally follows that much less ornamentation is used for this style than for other models. In contour the tailor hat conforms to the prevailing modes, while the size may be medium or small, according to individual taste.

Hats Large This Season.

This season the hats are a bit larger than usual, and have a low, flat crown, with a gently rolling brim made most frequently of pure white braid, with a smart trimming of black velvet ribbon and, perhaps an ornamentation of pearl pins or fancy steel buckles. The same pendant drapery which is characteristic of all spring and summer millinery is likewise evident on tailor hats, though usually this consists of loops and ends of broad velvet ribbon. Turban effects are popular and so are tricorners, with changes in outline, for the sake of variety.

Panamas are to be worn to some extent, and the smaller hats are pressed into a fedora shape and trimmed with a two-inch band of black velvet, which ties in a broad black quill, with its one great drawback still exists. This consists of that ugly defining mark which is out of every 100 feminine necks, and which renders the wearing of the new collar almost an impossibility until some means have been taken to get rid of this unfortunate blemish. Besides the dark line which is the result of high collars and stiff stocks many women, especially those who have passed the age of 25, show a slight shriveled appearance of the skin just where the top of the collar comes. This is due to the tight band worn about the throat, and a neglect of the care of the muscles which surround this part of the neck.

Since low collars are in vogue, it behooves us each and every one to get the neck into a presentable shape for this newest fad, and if the following directions are carefully followed for two or three weeks the brown mark will gradually disappear, while the skin will become firm again.

Lemon juice is about the safest remedy for removing the discoloration, and with an application of this every night, rubbed in gently but thoroughly, a change will soon be noticed in the tone of the skin.

In the morning comes the treatment which improves the texture of the skin, and this should be neither vigorous nor long.

First a gentle rubbing of the throat with some good skin food, then a few exercises which call into play the muscles of the throat. If you start right in leaving the neck exposed to the light and air you will find that the skin will very soon assume a healthy appearance, for what it needs most are these very things.

The woman who realizes that it is here on her throat, the tell-tale marks first disclose her age will be eager to overcome this physical tendency.

Forty years ago tuberculosis was nearly unknown in the Basque district of France, but is now rife there.

Larger styles in this very expensive weave are draped with scarfs, ornamented with smart knots of ribbon and sometimes trimmed with fancy feather roses.

Green, in a soft roseda shade, makes a very pretty combination with the yellowish tint of the Panama, and a touch of black introduced in a knot of velvet or long-bladed quill gives the hat a decided dash. Rather rough straws, woven in a delicate plaid, say yellow and white beige or brown and white, are effectively trimmed with fancy Tuscan or chrysanthemum braid—ornaments, such as cabochons, fringed roses, buckles and straps. These modish conceits give the hat a tailored air, which is appropriately suggestive of its destined use.

The term shirtwaist is no longer restricted to plain starched affairs, and as these smart garments have taken up to accompany them become less severe and plain than formerly.

One might almost consider the pretty lingerie waist as an elaborate species of this tailor class of apparel, and it naturally follows that a degree more of fussiness in this respect allows of the same departure with regard to the hat.

Plumes, flowers, chiffons and fine laces are certainly inappropriate for shirtwaist hats, for this term includes everything in headwear designed for outdoor sports, morning wear and for any occasion when the simple little walt may be assumed.

There are, however, many pretty little scarfs of fine batiste almost as soft and sheer as mousseline de sole, and these are very good style when twisted about the crown of a flat round tailor hat.

Some of the coarser laces are permissible, but, as a general thing, smarter effects are secured by the use of hand-made ribbons, quills, wings and simple ornaments.

The Frenchwoman chooses chic wings for her equivalent of the shirtwaist hat, and her modish shade of the rough straw will furnish an excellent background for the smart low-lying wings and simple least-of-significance upon almost every tailor hat in one way or another, and nine times out of ten it is tied in a broad bow at the back, with striking effect.

As the summer advances the shirtwaist hat loses just a bit of its typical severity, rolling and curving gently about the face, with just a suggestion of softness in its trimming.

Women who possess any sense of the fitness of things will really make the distinction between correct and incorrect hats for wear with shirtwaist costumes, and they will be as particular in this respect as in the selection of the proper hair ornament or gloves to harmonize with a dainty décolleté frock.

The first point they will observe, of course, will be that of selecting a becoming style, and then they will bear in mind the importance of obtaining a certain freshness of effect, combined with that indescribable quality called chic.

It is important to choose a hat which has the appearance of being light and cool, and a brand that is not very fine in better style, especially now that rough effects are considered extremely in vogue. While the hat is, perhaps, of more consequence than any of the many little shirtwaist accessories, these, too, require consideration and careful selection, for the entire effect of the costume may be spoiled by an inappropriate collar or badly fitting belt.

Wide Choice in Neckwear.

With the vast variety of well-made neckwear at everyone's disposal, there is absolutely no excuse for any woman appearing in unbecoming or passe stocks. Simple effects go best with the plain starched shirtwaist, and these may match or contrast with the waist fabric. Ascots are always smart and appropriate if well tied, and the pin with which the puff is fastened should, by all means, be of some interesting design—a horseshoe, golf club or any one of the fancy ornaments suggestive of outdoor summer life. Then there are numerous plain and smaller stocks which are very good style, simple to adjust and universally becoming.

Above all things, avoid soft effects, such as lace, chiffon and ribbon stocks, for the cotton waist reserves these fancy affairs for wear with elaborate blouses, if you must wear them at all.

There are so many lovely little washable scarfs and stocks which look light and cool that there really seems no reason for choosing any other kind. These come doubly embroidered, and are really exquisite enough to accompany the finest of hand-wrought lingerie waists.

Belts are a matter of taste, as well as of figure, for what becomes the slender woman rarely looks well upon her stout sister. By no means have the belt-ties disappeared. Smart, trim bands of suede, washable canvas, pique or plaid open-meshed linen are very pretty, while curious antique buckles, mounted upon inconspicuous ribbons, are always good style, so long as they are not too large and brilliant.

Those broad elastic belts, ornamented with cabochons, have again become popular in Paris, yet they are only half-heartedly received in other fashion centres. However, there are quantities of other styles from which to choose, and one can never make a mistake by avoiding fancy effects and clinging to the smart tailor-made in belts, as well as in all other shirtwaist accessories.

THE NEW LADYSMITH.

The siege has been the making of Ladysmith, and the little village which formerly graced the banks of the Klip River now, thanks to the war, considers itself a very much more important place than it used to be. A contributor to Chambers's Journal who has visited it writes: "The drama on Ladysmith still is tremendous. Every visitor feels in duty bound to carry away a specimen: some leave with a hundredweight. The porters groan under the weight of boxes and crates, the stationmaster occasionally charges excess. A large stock of shells are on view in the shops."

THE CARE OF THE HAIR.

At night before retiring brush the hair carefully and braid it loosely in a number of strands. Avoid wetting the hair too often to make it glossy, as the wetting has a tendency to make the hair coarse. Avoid putting the hair up in kids at night to wave it. They are more harmful than even the much-abused curling-iron, as the hair is twisted about the kid so tightly that it actually wears it out, and a bald spot is apt in time to be the result.

There is a new sort of shampoo just now much in favor with women of fashion. It is known as the perfume shampoo. It consists of sprinkling the hair with orange powder, leaving the fragrance of the perfume, and then rinsing with cold water and oil, and then giving the hair a vigorous brushing. The orris shampoo when thus taken is quite harmless and leaves the hair with just a subtle perfume about it.—Woman's Home Companion.

HOW BROBORO FOUND THE MAGIC CURE.

BY E. FRANCIS L'ESTRANGE.

Long ago there lived in the Rocky Mountains a witch named Gronde, who was famed for her magic cures. Far into the East her fame had reached, and the sick white chief, Nollinch, had sent over the vast prairies to the wall of mountains that draw their almost impassible line against the sky. One by one they had returned, footsore and weary, faint and half crazed by the suffering they had endured. The wild beasts had chased them, and the dragon that guarded the entrance to Witch Gronde's cave had driven them away. Chief Nollinch suffered on. The magic cure that alone could save him no man was able to procure.

Chief Nollinch had two sons, Seigfried and Broboro. Seigfried was tall and handsome, with eyes as blue as the sky and hair as golden as corn before reaping. He was careless of danger and always ready to fight his enemies. Broboro was not so tall as his brother. His eyes were dark as midnight and his hair as black as the bill of the raven. He avoided quarrels, but when there was just cause he stood on the side of justice, and his enemies had reason to remember him.

Through forest and prairie he wended his way, nor did he seek to display his prowess with the wild beasts, but spared his strength for the fight with the mighty dragon.

As Broboro approached the dragon raised himself on his forelegs, his sharp, gleaming eyes opening and closing in quick succession. His great fangs showed in a contemptuous lifting of the green snout. Broboro waited for the beast's attack. Slowly the long body moved forward and circled to the right, and then to the left of Broboro. Broboro fell back toward a great rock. The dragon followed about half the distance. By skillful maneuvering Broboro drew him near the rock, which would afford a certain protection. Presently, as if fascinated by the steady glare of the green eyes, Broboro stood perfectly still. The monster drew his fore-feet together and then leapt by inch backward the snout drooped to the ground and close to his forefeet, the neck arched, while the eyes remained steadily fixed on Broboro. The next instant he sprang at our hero, but ere he touched the earth a spear had entered his body crosswise, the point showing an inch on the other side. A second instant the dragon's body had torn the flesh of and one finger off Broboro's left hand.

Blinded by blood and furious with pain, the beast sprang again and again on the point of the waiting spear. Finally he rolled over on his back and clawed the air. Broboro swung his ax above the dragon's neck, but it sprang out of danger and slunk away, painfully dragging its wounded body over the rough earth. The dragon had evidently fought its last fight. When it reached the low doorway of Witch Gronde's cave it stretched its long body across the entrance and placed its head between its forelegs. Its great body shivered as with cold, then with a mighty groan that shook the earth around it lay dead. Witch Gronde appeared at the entrance to her cave as the beast groaned its life away. Her thin, dark face was lighted by two large, black, angry eyes, and her straight, black hair fell around her shoulders in separated masses.

"You have slain my faithful guard!" she cried.

"The dragon blocked entrance to your cave. My father lies sick unto death, and your magic cure only can save him."

"What cure for your father? Who have I now to protect me?"

"My father has suffered for years. We have endured much in trying to effect an entrance to your cave. I beseech you, give me the cure, and if you so will take my life in return; only give me my father your magic cure."

"Your life will not give me back my faithful dragon, but you are a dutiful son and a brave man, and the Great Spirit teaches us to love virtue. Therefore I give you the cure. Speed with it, for your father is near the point of death. Let nothing detain you on the homeward journey. Travel night and day." And thus Broboro saved his father's life.

ELEN'S "BOOSIN" FLY.

A little three-year-old of my acquaintance, whose quick wit is the admiration of her friends, sat one evening watching an industrious spider spinning its web in a window corner. She watched the insect intently for a time, and, turning to her father, asked:

"What is the spider doing, papa?"

"It is making a web, dear."

"What does it want a web for?"

"To trap flies for its dinner, my child."

Elen was silent for a moment, then exclaimed:

"Oh! Does it eat boosin flies, papa?"

"Boosin flies, child? Don't you mean buzzing flies?" And then, in a tone which implied a depreciation in her juvenile opinion of the paternal infallibility, she replied:

"Why, no, papa. Don't you know—Jesus, lover of my soul, let me to Thy bosom, by?"

MASSACRE OF MACKINAW.

BY KATE STEPHENS.

The beautiful Island Michillimackinac, or Mackinaw, is about three miles wide. Clear waters of the northern end of Lake Huron shine through its green woods to the east. Looking far to the west you see the northern end of Lake Michigan.

On this island, in 1763, the English held a fort, garrisoned with 85 men. The birthday of King George of England came on June 4th, and in honor of the day the discipline of the fort was relaxed. Officers and soldiers alike went outside the palisade to watch a great game of ball, to which they had been invited by the Chippeways. That tribe of Indians was to play against the Saes.

The game, which the Chippeways called bogattaway, was much liked by many Indian tribes. In playing it each side had a post for a station, and the effort of the game was to drive the ball to the opponent's post and keep it from one's own. Naturally, it happened that in struggling for the ball the players would be wildly rushing apart at one moment and at another bunched together in a mad crowd. Such a game would offer great opportunity for treachery, and for that reason the Chippeways played it on that day.

The morning was fair and warm, the gates of the fort were wide open, and the soldiers, mostly without arms, were standing in the open plain watching the ball game. Suddenly the ball flew high in the air and fell near the pickets of the fort.

This was the signal for attack. The Indians changed their cry of the war whoop to the howl of the war whoop. Squaws, who had been interested lookers-on of the game, reached "the braves" hatchets, which they had covered with their blankets, and the ball players of a moment before became the desperate assailants of the defenceless English.

Confusion and bloodshed reigned. The Indians filled the fort and tomahawked nearly everyone they could lay hands on. They sacked the houses built within the gates and sheltering women and little children, and seized whatever of value they could find. At last they came upon the spirits, and upon that which they called firewater they became so intoxicated that they could no longer massacre or steal.

Of the people who perished at Fort Michillimackinac that fair June morning the number is not exactly known. Some say that there were 90 men in the fort, and that of these 20 only escaped.

GLADYS AT THE ZOO.

BY CHARLES BARNARD.

The Zoo, you know, is in a park where there are many small lakes. Gladys had been good at school, and all her knowledge, her papa said on Saturday, she would take to the Zoo. And so when Saturday came round she started with her father and as it was, too far to walk they rode there in a motor.

"Where there are many small lakes, and Gladys saw an iron fence, which she had passed through, oh! ain't they lovely? Gladys said: As some came in a new park, and next she saw an iron fence, now papa, Gladys said: What does he want with such big legs? The ostrich winked his little eye, and then he waddled away. 'I've never seen one like that,' said Gladys, 'anyway.'"

Oh! how the ostrich made her laugh they were so cute and bright. An owl gave to one, then came a comic sight. They chased each other round the pond, and fought each other, too, and when at last they paused for breath, no apple was in view. The bear was full of fun and lifted each other good by and a bit of food. The bears slept in a nest of stone that looked both clean and nice. Pa said the bears were fond of cake. That is—a cake of ice.

The parrot was a very big and very friendly, too, and nodded, "thanks to you." The parrot almost frightened her. He gave such mighty roars and Gladys, she was very glad she was not near his some very pretty, she saw red, golden, green and blue. A parrot who stood beside and noisy, too. The parrots went from to to made such a fearful row. "I guess the're hungry," Gladys said, and went their way.

Two cunning, playing tag, a cub, a cub, a cub, beside a concrete, there was a, also, a who kept chattering spots, by walking to and fro, and lots and lots of other beasts, did little Gladys see. To tell you all would fill a book as big as big, could be a book, when she got home to that night she talked the whole night through till mama and the dogs resolved to go and see the Zoo.

The largest and heaviest building stone ever quarried was taken from the Plimouth bed, near Norwich, in February, 1883. It was in one piece, without crack or flaw, and weighed over 300 tons.

Every oyster has a mouth, a heart, a liver, a stomach, besides many curiously devised little intestines, and other organs, necessary organs such as would be handy to a living, moving, intelligent creature. The mouth is at the end of the shell, near the hinge, and adjoining the toothed portion of the oyster's pearly covering.

THE END OF THE WORLD.

A NATURE LESSON.

The East River is a funny piece of water. All well-behaved rivers run down hill and are never so foolish as to run up hill. The East River runs furiously one way for several hours. Then it stops, as if undecided what to do next. Then, off it goes the other way, wiggling this way and that in the most singular manner every day in the year. Its little brother, the Harlem River, behaves in the same way. The East River is not a river. It is an arm of the sea. Its currents are the rise and the fall of the tides and the strange thing about the East River is that it is helping to bring on the end of the world.

Take a sheet of note paper and measure an inch from the top and put a dot on the paper exactly half way from each side. Fold the paper lengthwise to find the middle. Then do the same at the bottom. Then with a ruler draw from dot to dot two parallel lines one-eighth inch apart. Cut these lines out with a penknife, leaving a long, narrow slit in the paper. Paste the paper to the glass of a window facing south, resting the lower edge on the sash bar. Then place a large flat book on the window seat behind the paper and on it lay a sheet of white paper and keep it in place with paper weights. Have all these things ready by 9 in the morning of a clear, bright day.

By 9 o'clock the paper on the glass will cast a shadow and such a slender bar of sunlight, pointing to the right, will appear on the shadow. With a pen, mark the position of this bar of light on the paper resting on the book. Look at the clock and mark the time at the end of the mark. Wait an hour and look at the bar of light. It has moved to the left. Mark its position and the time and do this once an hour till after 3 o'clock. By this time it will have swung far around to the left. If not convenient to do this every hour, do it between 9 and 10 and at noon and between 3 and 4. If done once an hour the paper will be covered with marks paced like the spokes of a fan.

These raylike marks appear to prove that the sun changed its position every hour of the day. Our eyes deceive us. The sun did not move. The paper, the glass, the house itself moved, facing one way at 9 and turning quarter way round by 2 o'clock. Making such a record brings clearly before us the fact that it is the whole great earth which we live on that swings around day and night without stopping an instant. If the whole earth in our little experiment should stop we would know the earth had stopped. We would perhaps never know it, for it would be the end of the world and that would be the end of us and the whole business. One-half the earth would have an everlasting very hot day and the other half would freeze up in everlasting night. Will it ever stop? We now think it will, because it is like a wheel with a brake, and we know that the brake stops the wheel. The East River is a part of the brake on the rolling world. These furious tides that rush through the East River come in from the sea, and move west toward our coast. They can go no further and hull in eddying whirls through furious Hell Gate. The world is rolling over toward the east and meeting the tides. The westward moving tide pushes against the eastward moving surface of the earth, and all this fury of water in the East River is acting as a brake on the world and holding it back. There's no hurry about it all. Millions of years may pass before the tide brake slows down the terrific speed of our world wheel, but some day, ages from now, the world will stop, and that will be the end.

HEART-SICK PEOPLE.—Dr. Agnew's Care for the Heart is a heart tonic that never fails to cure—it is swift in its effect, goes close to the "beating heart" and snatches from death's grip more sufferers than any other remedy for any family of diseases and ailments in the category of human sufferings. Gives relief in 10 minutes. Sold by Jackson & Co. and Hall & Co.—75.

Such a saw can be bought for 15 cents. The wood should be sound and free from knots and not more than half an inch thick. The face of the racket is six inches in diameter, more or less. Some players prefer it round, as in the illustration; others, and by far the greater number, like an oval or oblong shape. The handles should be eight inches long. After sawing, trim the edges of the handles with a penknife, but care should be taken not to trim them too much, or the reduction in the weight will spoil the "balance" of the racket. An inverted saucer will serve as a pattern to mark out a circle for sawing. Balls must be purchased at a store. They cost four cents each. Two will do to begin with.

BLINDFOLD ARTISTS.

A RECESS GAME.

When the recess bell has sounded its welcome ding-a-ling, let a dozen or so of you go into a room where there is a blackboard, and take seats in a row facing it, for you are going to have a drawing contest, and the blackboard is the field where you are to display your skill.

When the board has been cleaned off from one end to the other, the contest begins by the director calling on the player at the head of the row to come to the board. Then he blindfolds the player with a handkerchief, places him in front of the left-hand end of the board, and, giving him a piece of chalk, tells him to draw on the board a picture of a horse. This the player does to the best of his ability, but no matter how careful he may be, every line he draws will make the other players shout with laughter; and no one will laugh louder than the player himself when the handkerchief has been taken from his eyes and he sees the funny picture he has made.

Then the next player is called up, and the director so places him that his drawing will be just to the right of the first one; and so the contest goes on until all the players have made their drawings. If you have ever tried to draw a picture with your eyes shut you can imagine what a queer lot of horses they will be. There are two ways of deciding the contest; one is to let the director say who has made the best drawing and who has made the worst; the other is to let the players vote on them.

How to Make a Ping Pong Set.

A HOME-MADE PING-PONG SET.

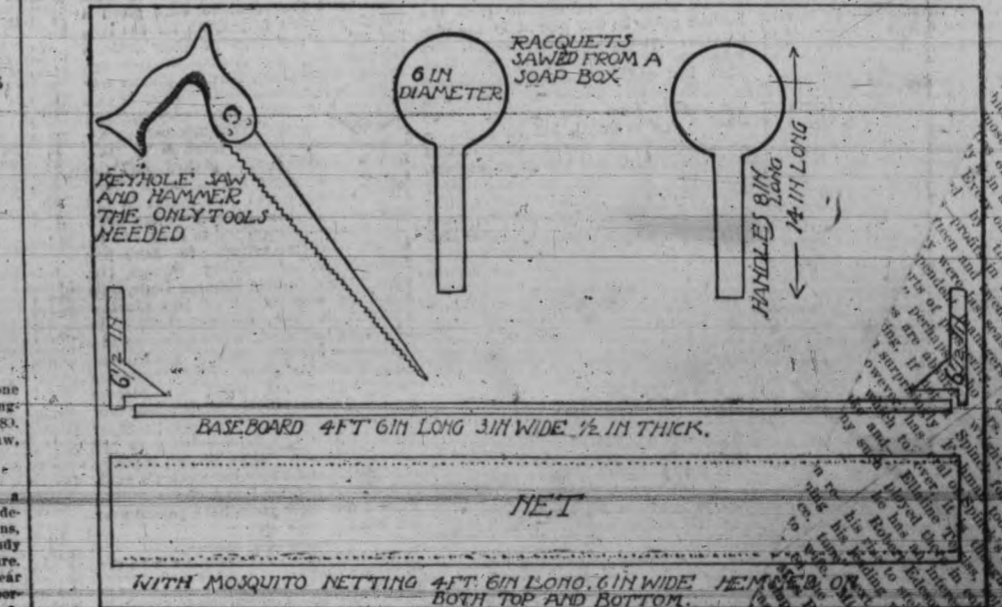

Of course, our little friends have heard all about the popular new game of ping pong, and many of them are very expert players, no doubt. Lots of them would become expert if they had a chance to play, and of this number very many are so placed that they are unable to get a ping pong set. Here is a way to make one of your own that you can have lots of fun with, and which, of course, you will value more highly than a purchased one.

For less than 25 cents it is quite easy to manufacture a ping pong set quite the equal in all essential points of the most expensive sold in the stores.

The net is of mosquito netting, white by preference, although green with a top band of white tape is more attractive in appearance. This should be four and a half feet long and six inches wide, and hemmed on top and bottom. The net is supported by two wooden posts, half an inch square, cut from the top of side of a soap box, each having a footlike projection on one side to strengthen it. These posts are nailed one on either end of a strip of thin board four and a half feet long and three inches wide. This arrangement does away with the necessity for clamps. The net is stretched on a piece of light wire, running from post to post.

The rackets are cut from the top or side of a soap box with a compass saw.

Such a saw can be bought for 15 cents. The wood should be sound and free from knots and not more than half an inch thick. The face of the racket is six inches in diameter, more or less. Some players prefer it round, as in the illustration; others, and by far the greater number, like an oval or oblong shape. The handles should be eight inches long. After sawing, trim the edges of the handles with a penknife, but care should be taken not to trim them too much, or the reduction in the weight will spoil the "balance" of the racket. An inverted saucer will serve as a pattern to mark out a circle for sawing. Balls must be purchased at a store. They cost four cents each. Two will do to begin with.

DRAGON OPENED HIS MOUTH.

With a muffled roar the dragon shook his long body and sprang at Seigfried. He jumped to one side and sent his spear through the left foreleg of the animal. The beast roared with pain and rage, and Seigfried, fired by daring, approached too near. In a moment the fangs of the monster were fastened in his chest. Hesitation meant death. With his sick knife he severed from his chest the piece of flesh in which the beast's fangs were fastened.

Loss of blood and the pain caused by the wound forced brave Seigfried to retire.

On his brother's return Broboro girded himself for the ordeal with the monster and swore to return with the

IN THE GREEN ROOM

Richard Mansfield and company in "The Green Room" is the season of drama as far as Victoria is concerned. It was in truth a crowning performance, and the star in every way fulfilled the expectations of those who were present. It is indeed unfortunate that a man so gifted as Mansfield, has made himself exceedingly unpopular among his colleagues in the histrionic realm. He is prone to superciliousness, his subordinates find intolerable, and his players are subjected to a sort of tyranny which must be extremely annoying. It is said that on Tuesday evening last one of his company in conversation was heard to remark that "Mr. Mansfield was not the most agreeable man in the world to travel with."

Elroy's Italian band, which created such a favorable impression among the music lovers of this city, has been booked by Manager Jamieson of the Victoria theatre for another engagement next week. The people who have heard the band declare it to be the finest that had ever visited this city, and now it comes back with the assurance that it is even greater than that. Since the other appearance here the instrumentation of the organization has been increased, and it is now a five-piece band instead of a four-piece band. The band is also under the direction of another leader, Signor Emilio Rivela, who came to this country from the finest musical band of Italy, to take the director's place for Mr. Elroy. In Italy and Southern Europe he and his former band were without any rivals, for the reason that they were in a class of their own, because of their superiority. Another valuable addition to the Elroy band is Signor Giovanni Setaro, harpist, who has long been considered without a peer in America. Setaro's playing is so fine as to be a revelation to all who have never heard him before. He renders familiar selections on the harp with an expression that is really remarkable.

A special cable to the Chicago Tribune from London says: "The most interesting theatrical item in London is the announcement that Wyndham and Irving will meet together next season in a new comedy by Henry Arthur Jones, and, although absolute confirmation of this is lacking, it is not unlikely. The experience of the last two seasons proves that only extraordinary attractions at theatres pay in this overworked capital, with its great abundance of other diversions."

The result of the forthcoming experiment with a star cast in "The Merry Wives of Windsor" undoubtedly will have some effect on this proposed artistic union of the two foremost actors on the English stage. Besides the play Wyndham will use at the theatre bearing his name, Jones has finished a play in which Lena Ashwell, blossoming into a star, will open the new Kings' theatre, back of Wyndham's on St. Martin's Lane. Charles Frohman has secured all rights for America in Ludwig Fulda's new drama to be first acted in Berlin next October. The title is "Cold Water." Mr. Frohman says that Charles Wyndham seriously talks of a tour of the world after next season, including a long engagement in New York, under his management.

Isabelle Irving, who was only recently engaged as Richard Mansfield's leading woman, succeeding Lettie Fairfax, left Mr. Mansfield's company at Denver, Col., last Wednesday week, after having appeared in but two performances of "Beaucaire." Miss Irving, who was engaged by telegraph two weeks ago, joined the company at Omaha, and rehearsed for a week, giving her first performance in Denver, May 19th. On May 21st, Miss Irving left the company and departed for her home in Halway, N. Y. Her sudden withdrawal gave rise to a number of stories as to its cause. It was said that Mr. Mansfield had severely criticized Miss Irving before the company, whereupon she became indignant and ended her engagement then and there. Questioned about this story, Mr. Mansfield made a denial, and stated that he and Miss Irving had agreed that she was not suited to the role of Lady Mary and it would be best for her to relinquish it. Notwithstanding this, Miss Irving seems to have satisfied the audiences, since it is said that she received much applause and some curtain calls. Ethel Knight Mollison has succeeded Lettie Fairfax as Mr. Mansfield's leading woman. The news of Miss Irving's departure developed more news—that Lucille Flaven, whom Mr. Mansfield engaged not long ago, had also left the company, and after rehearsal, Miss Flaven was unsatisfied, too, Mr. Mansfield said.

Miss Flaven have been spent for theatrical appearances that is now closing. A season of 1901-1902 is said in his. Miss Flaven, a very young girl, had also left the company, and after rehearsal, Miss Flaven was unsatisfied, too, Mr. Mansfield said.

drawn sigh, and then suddenly threw back his head in plain view of the audience. But as the curtain went down she sprang up. "How could you?" she cried. "How could I what?" asked Mr. O'Neill. "How—how?" she hesitated. "How could Romeo throw back his head after he was dead?" "Miss Nelson," the actor said solemnly, "your Juliet was the cause of it. It would make any one come back to life."—Dramatic Review.

It is reported in London that Miss Melba, who has but recently returned from the United States, is to marry an Englishman of title. Though every effort has been made to keep the matter a secret, the facts have leaked out. The favored individual is said to be Earl Larnage, and it is an open secret that he has been constantly in the company of the prima donna since her return from America. It is said the marriage has been arranged to take place on the Riviera during the early part of August. The earl has been much devoted to Miss Melba during her stay in London.—Dramatic Review.

After many years it has been decided to present Mark Twain's "Huckleberry Finn" on the stage. Klaw & Erlanger have secured the dramatic rights, and the piece will be presented early in the coming year, with Arthur Dunn in the title role. This story, one of the best of American literature, has been dramatized several generations of book readers, and its translation to the stage cannot but attract widespread attention. Klaw & Erlanger have had the rights to the story for some time, but only recently perfected their plans for an elaborate dramatization of the novel. It will be presented on a big scale in scenery and effects, and a very strong company will appear in the cast. Mr. Dunn, who will be remembered as the original Dick Deadebe in juvenile "Pinafore," is physically splendidly adapted for the role. "Huck Finn," as he is familiarly called by the author and readers of the book, will be one of the most pretentious productions of the coming season.

The Elks at Manistee, Mich., contemplate building a $20,000 theatre. The Elks have engaged Eugene W. Patterson to stage "The Eternal City." Patti Ross, who has been seriously ill, is slowly recovering at her home in Chicago. Seymour Hicks and Elaine Terris will come to this country next season under Charles Frohman's management. S. Miller Kent, who starred this season in "The Cowboy and the Lady," will use that play for his next season's tour. Herbert Hall Windsor is writing the comedy in which Eira Kendall will star next season, under Liebler & Co.'s management.

It is very likely that James O'Neill will have a Russian play next season. It will be romantic, of course, and Harry Ford has been commissioned to write it. Emily Stevens, a member of Mrs. Fiske's company, is the daughter of Emma Madden of the company of the Grand avenue theatre. Mrs. Madden is Mrs. Fiske's aunt. Mrs. Patrick Campbell has been unable to arrange with any American managers for her visit to this country next season, said American managers being ungenerous and mercenary enough to want a share of the profits, or at least finance her tour without loss to themselves.

Miss Lulu Glaser of "Dolly Varden" fame is an enthusiastic bowler, and has become an expert at the game. She has taken part in several contests this year. Her renown appears to have spread, for last week she received a communication from a bowling club, asking permission to name it "Dolly Varden." Of course, Miss Glaser granted the request. Klaw & Erlanger's announcement that Miss Ada Rehan will positively appear under their management next season in a dramatization of George Meredith's "The Only Wonder" is no one ever thought of dramatizing "Diana" for Miss Rehan before, for Meredith's heroine is a character which ought to suit Miss Rehan's personality down to the ground. Louis Mann has apparently abandoned his intention of appearing in "The Merchant of Venice," "Hamlet," "Human Hearts," and other classical plays. The latest pronouncement from his press agent is to the effect that the five brothers (7-count 'em!) will star him next season in a play affording him a German-Hebrew role. Mrs. Mann (Miss Clara Lipman) will go starring alone.

When Mrs. Laherty returned to London after her last trip through America she asserted with all sorts of disagreeable insinuations that she would never return. But it seems the golden coin Charles Frohman dangles in her vision is too tempting. She will return to New York in January with a new play by Paul Keister, entitled "Madame Merveille," and another unnamed play by Mr. St. Louis Grandy. Little Alfred Klein, long familiar to theatre-goers of the country from the leading parts he has played in the productions starring De Wolf Hopper, was taken to an insane asylum near New York last Monday and the physicians pronounced him incurable. Klein was urged from the asylum three weeks ago, but he began to get worse, and it was decided to put him in an asylum. The name of an actor is going to be a talent for writing comedy, variety, from vaudeville, and so on.

Miss Blain is not a very young girl, but she has a talent for writing comedy, variety, from vaudeville, and so on. Miss Blain is not a very young girl, but she has a talent for writing comedy, variety, from vaudeville, and so on.

in various companies "on the road," was chosen to create the role of the heroine. Stuart Robson has opened his mansion at Water Watch in the Highlands. Stella Tracey has scored quite a hit in "The Show Girl," and she will continue in the piece. Rose Coghlan has returned to Vancouver, appearing at the Grand Opera house in Philadelphia.

In the course of another year E. S. Willard will have a theatre of his own in the outskirts of his home town. Heinrich Couriel has gone to Germany after new plays and new plays for the Irving Place theatre. "Lovers' Lane," celebrated its seventy-fifth performance in Philadelphia last Thursday night with souvenirs.
