St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church. The Lutherans in the very early days of the township's settlement had occasional meetings at the Sarver home, and Rev. Schweitzerbarth preached to them, but they had no church organization. St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church was organized by Rev. J. H. Fritz in December, 1867, in the old Covenanter Church near Sarversville, with Henry Smith, Jonathan Hazlett and R. M. Harbison as elders. Articles of association were adopted February 28, 1828. In 1870 three acres were purchased from the Covenanters, and a fine church edifice was erected at a cost of $3,000; in 1873 four more acres were added to be used as a cemetery. The present membership is about fifty.

Emery Chapel, by which name the Methodist Episcopal church at Ekastown has been generally known, is a handsome brick structure which was erected in 1868 at a cost of $7,000. The church organization is the outgrowth of the old class which was organized at Lardin's Mill in Clinton Township early in the thirties, by Revs. Henderson and Jackson. In 1841 a frame house of worship was built and given the name of Emery Chapel in honor of Bishop Emery. The church now has a membership of about 60, with Rev. Buhl, pastor.

Sarversville, the early home of Benjamin Sarver and the seat of his grist-mill, was surveyed by Henry Halstead in 1840, and named Walley. It was given its present name by the postal authorities in January, 1858, when an office was established here and David Kelly appointed postmaster. The first store was conducted by F. D. Schweiterling, who was succeeded by David Kelly, and later by

J. M. Fleming and M. C. Sarver. J. Ekas now conducts a store here. Jacob J. Smith, a native of the village, was the second miller here and also conducted a store for some years. The population now numbers about one hundred.

Sarversville Council, No. 401, Junior Order United American Mechanics, was organized January 25, 1890, with a goodly membership, and developed into a strong lodge. Early in the nineties they put up a new and modern building as the home of the lodge.

The Sarversville Farmers' Club was organized and flourished for some years, then was abandoned. St. Paul's English Lutheran Church, Rev. Freschkorn, pastor, is located here.

Sarver Station, on the Pennsylvania Railroad, a little village of about 100 people, is an old settlement under a new name. It was early in the nineteenth century Smith and Jones came in and erected their mill, which later was operated by Alexander Douthett. In 1866, David Kelly built the Ehrman mill just south of the village, to which he moved in 1870, establishing the first store here at that time. He has had various successors. J. Powell now conducts a general store here and is postmaster; C. Ohl a hardware and feed business. The village is provided with the Bell telephone.

Ekastown is a little settlement at a cross roads, and boasts of a store, Emery Chapel, and a small cluster of houses.

Monroeville, or Silverville Post Office, lies on parts of the old Duffy, Cypher and McLaughlin farms, and was surveyed in 1839 by James Dunlap for Emil Maurhoff. The first building was erected by J. M. Elliott, and in 1840 a tavern was erected by George Weaver, and a store building by Peter Koon. The latter, George Fry, Gustave Speck, Charles Schweiterling, George W. Cramer and A. W. Leasure, have been the merchants of the village. The last named was made postmaster when Silverville Post Office was established in 1894. The place contains about forty people.

Monroe Station is merely a shipping point on the Butler Branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Township Officials: Justices of the peace—G. Kramer and G. Easley; constable—W. Scott; tax collector—W. Harvey; tax assessor—A. B. Ekas; road commissioners—S. E. Ohl, J. McCurdy and A. Ekas; auditors—J. Harbison, A. Myers; treasurer—W. Harvey; school directors—J. F. Shearer, R. W. Harvey, John Montgomery, A. L. Myers, William Carson and Martin Sweitzer.

CLEARFIELD TOWNSHIP.

Clearfield Township, with its many water courses, its great beds of limestone and its valuable deposits of iron ore and valuable coal veins, has always been a rich district of Butler County. A number of streams have their rise in this township, the west branch of the Big Buffalo, the main creek, Long Run, the feeders of Rough Run and the head waters of Bonny Brook. The B. R. and P. Railroad passes through the northern part of the township.

The earliest of the pioneers in Clearfield Township or the territory recognized as such since its organization in 1804, were almost entirely of Irish extraction and they came to this section as home-seekers, an entirely different class from the wandering and temporary resident. The early names include those of the McBrides, the Connells, the O'Donnells, the Coyles, the Slators, the Milligans, the Dugans, the Dennys, the McGinleys, the Gallaghers, the McCues, the McLaughlins and others. The pioneer of them all was Patrick McBride, from County Donegal, Ireland, who built his cabin and owned 400 acres of land here, in 1798, and lived until 1848. County Donegal contributed a number of the other pioneers and some of these, after entering land, carried on the trades which they had learned in their native country. John Coyle, who located here in 1800, was an expert linen weaver, James Denny was a competent shoemaker, others were blacksmiths and carpenters, and together the early settlement soon laid the foundations which resulted in a general prosperity. Farming and stock-raising became features, and even before much attention had been attracted to the mineral resources of the land, the township was looked upon favorably as a place for home and investment. The population of 288, in 1810, gradually crept up to 515 in 1820, and the assessments on property advanced accordingly.

Among the early progressive men was John Coyle, who founded the village of Coyleville, in 1830, and among the advantages presented to possible purchasers of lots, were enumerated good land, fresh and salt water springs, coal and limestone, with grist and saw-mills within reasonable distance. This was the first village in the township and at that time was expected to become a center of business as the mail coach between Butler and Kittanning passed that way tri-weekly. Fenelton was founded in 1856 by Peter Fennell, to Clearfield Township from Armstrong who with his son and two nephews came County, the family being numerous enough to start the settlement. Carbon Center was almost unimproved farm land prior to 1875, developing then into a town as more and more of the surrounding sands proved rich in oil. Business enterprises were quickly set on foot and much building was done in a very short time, and there was no diminution in this activity until 1883.

The first coal mined in Clearfield Township was on the Morrow farm. The Me-

Devitt farm gave Middle and Lower Kittanning coal and lower down on the West branch, the Deener banks were developed. On the McClelland farm, near the east line, Kittanning coal was found high above the creek, and below it was found Clarion coal. A number of small banks are now operated for local consumption, but none is shipped.

Near Coyleville a good field of oil was struck about 1906, being opened up by Flick & Company of Butler. The oil is found in the third sand. The wells averaged about twenty-five barrels daily and are still producing. Drilling operations are being continued. Practically every farm in the township has either oil or gas wells, though at present there are no large producers. Five-hundred barrel wells have been found in the township.

There are large deposits of limestone in the township, but they are as yet undeveloped owing to the lack of transportation facilities.

Coyleville, a settlement of about thirty people, is located near the center of the township. Robert Krouse and Sons conduct a general store at this point, and it is a pay station for the Kittanning Telephone Company.

Fenelton, about one and a half miles north of Coyleville, contains about twenty people and is a station on the B. R. & P. Railroad. P. Fennel is postmaster and W. I. Sipe and J. Coyle and Co. are general merchants.

Lucasville is a flag station of the B. R. & P. Railroad; it has no stores.

Clearfield Township has not been lacking in religious facilities, the Catholic church in particular being early represented here.

St. John's Catholic Church dates away back to the first pioneer settlers. In those early days the cabins of the pioneers were opened at stated times and Mass was said by missionary priests, the homes of Manus Dugan, John Sheridan, John Green, William McGee, Dennis Duff, Patrick McBride, the Gallaghers, the Dennys and the O'Donnells being selected. In 1853 a church edifice was erected and prior to that time Catholics attended St. Patrick's Church on Sugar Creek, Armstrong County, or the church of St. Mary's Monastery, which was built in Summit Township in 1841. The church building belonging to St. John's congregation is one of the most pretentious in the township, and the cemetery, in which rest the remains of many of the early settlers, is a beautiful and well kept tract. The congregation now numbers about 425 people. Father O'Callahan is the present pastor.

St. Mary's of the Woods is the name bestowed upon the private chapel at the old Hickory Homestead near the northern line of Clearfield Township. It was used for many years as a family place of worship, and the doors were opened for all purposes of a Mission Chapel when the place was visited by Father Hickey, the owner of the property. Father Hickey was a well known priest of the Catholic church who was born and reared in Butler County, and spent the greater part of his life in Pittsburg and vicinity. A few years previous to his death he established a home for incurables at the old Hickey homestead in Clearfield Township, and the place is now under the care of the Catholic charitable societies of Pittsburg. A number of buildings were erected for the care of the inmates, and the doors of the institution are open at all times to the unfortunate who cannot obtain admission to regular hospitals and sanitariums.

The Methodist Episcopal Church, near Fenelton, was organized in October, 1857, and prior to the Civil War services were held in the same building which accommodated the English Lutherans. The changes that came about caused the little society to be reduced to small membership up to 1880, when there was a religious revival and in 1881 the church was reorganized and a church building was dedicated in the same year. The Fennells have always been earnest Methodists and generous contributors to this society, which now numbers about 150 members.

The United Presbyterian Church of Carbon Center, which was organized in 1878, grew in membership when the town was prosperous but many of its original members subsequently moved to other sections and it no longer exists as an organized body. The same may be said of the English Lutheran Society, which was in existence from 1857 until 1861.

In 1835 Clearfield Township came under the common school system and at present has many excellent school buildings and a large percentage of the children take advantage of the opportunities given them. The records show that the first school-house was built about 1799, near the Winfield Township line, those interested in its erection being Arthur O'Donnell, Andrew and Michael Dugan, James and John McLaughlin, Michael McCue and James Denny. The second school building was erected near Coyleville. The township now has six schools. Daniel Meenan, John Swain, B. McCrea, James Nugent, John Sweeney and John Schuller composed the board in 1908.

Township Officials: Justices of the peace—F. P. McBride, and J. Dipner; constable—J. Swain; collector—J. Dipner; assessor—J. McDwett; road commissioners—F. P. McBride, J. Dipner and E. Milligan; auditors—W. Dipner, J. McDwett and T. Green.

SUMMIT TOWNSHIP.

Summit Township, an oil district and a farming section of Butler County, is also a leading educational center, both the Catholics and the Lutherans having large institutions which are well patronized. This township, taken mainly from Butler and Clearfield, with portions of Donegal and Center Townships, was organized in 1854.

Although the settlement of almost the whole of Butler County dates from about 1796, there is evidence to show that still earlier pioneers had lived in what is now Summit Township, the Rays in that year finding some untenanted cabins near their own point of settlement and hearing of others still farther away near the Beaver slope. To the Rays, however, credit is usually given as it is known that William Ray built his log cabin in this wilderness in 1796, and that when the county was organized, in 1803, he was the owner of 150 acres.

The Mitchells and Scotts and also the descendants of Thomas Smith claim their ancestors as pioneers of the same year, as do also the McCurdys, all of whom entered land and put up their log cabins in the Bonny Brook district. In 1803 is recorded the marriage of James McCurdy to Peggy Thorn, her family having been very early in this section. In 1778, Peter Henry and sister were rescued from the Indians and came to make their home in the Bonny Brook settlement and he became a man of affairs in the neighborhood, his house being selected for the transaction of public business. The first mill built in the township was that constructed in 1800, by William Neyman, near the mouth of Bonny-Brook, and after completing and operating his grist mill he added a saw-mill and a carding and fulling-mill. He evidently was a man of great business enterprise and, although the structures were very primitive, they were of great importance to the community and around these mills grew up the first congested section of the township. In 1813 Abraham Brinker moved into the Bonny Brook region and he built a carding-mill, a saw-mill and distillery, and in the following year built a stone grist mill. These mills were kept busy through many years, having different owners and at various times being improved with better machinery. The year 1830 saw the advent of an excellent type of German settlers—men and women who had contended with hard conditions in their native land and had thus been well prepared for those they faced, and subsequently overcame, in Western Pennsylvania. The last of the original German pioneers, Nicholas Bleichner, died in February, 1894, when in the ninety-third year of his age.

The leading village of Summit Township is Herman Station, which is the successor of Bonny Brook, which was the first settlement in Summit Township. The name given when the post-office was first established was Brinker's Mills, Bonny Brook being accepted as the name in 1868. The great oil wells between Herman and Great Belt, have made this section better known to the outside world. In 1876 Charles Smith was appointed postmaster at Herman Station, and in 1877 Albert Smith purchased a hotel which had been erected here in 1875, by Charles Garlach, and, with the development of the Herman oil field, the place had a rapid growth. This section is still the home of many of the old and substantial families of the township.

Schools, colleges and churches testify to the character of the residents of Summit Township. The first schools were of the subscription type and for some years, on account of the sparsely settled country, many children had no school opportunities whatever, but in 1813 a log building was put up near Brinker's mill and dedicated to school purposes; in 1818 the Brinkers, the Gillilands and Martins erected a second school building. The township now contains six public schools, all in a state of efficiency. In 1876 the Lutheran school was established, and in May, 1894, a convent and school for the instruction of children and the education of young ladies, was founded near Herman.

St. Fidelis College, a part of St. Mary's Monastery, dates back to the spring of 1877, and in that year the old parochial residence was converted into a collegiate school, one which still offers to Catholic youths every advantage given by Harvard, Yale or Cornell. The first students to complete the course came from the Capuchin college in Bavaria, finding here the instruction and inspiration, for many years supposed to be only secured in the universities of the old world.

St. Mary's Catholic Church is the oldest religious organization in Summit Township, missionary priests visiting this section and ministering almost from the time the first Catholic settled here. By 1846 there were enough of the faith to support the church as an organization and from that time until the present, many of the leading families have been its adherents and are proud of the association.

Zion German Lutheran Church was organized May 3, 1877, and Rev. F. Wilhelm was pastor until 1891. Since the completion of the present church building in 1880, the congregation has increased in numbers almost to its capacity, and it is the recognized church home of the German element, outside of the Catholic religion.

Summit Township is the home of a body of Capuchin priests and the magnificent structures which crown the heights above Herman Station, represent their monastery and college and church of St. Mary's. The persecution of the Catholic orders in Germany in 1870 caused the establishment of numerous bodies in America, the history of older religious bodies being repeated. The foundation stone of the Monastery was laid July 21, 1876, and the structure, with its additions, was entirely completed in 1893. In the first buildings the Monastic-Gothic style was observed and later buildings were prepared in the same line of architecture. The first prior was Father Matthew Hau. St. Mary's Church is practically one of the monastic buildings and is of the same architecture. Its altars, statuary, paintings, frescoes and its beautiful stained glass windows give it dignity and distinction and its services are conducted with the ceremonials that belong to so old and so influential an organization.

Summit Township is well supplied with minerals, the Upper and Lower Freeport and the Kittanning veins of coal being found, and small mines have been operated for many years. There are no extensive mining operations carried on in the township at the present time. The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, the West Penn Branch, and the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg Railroad, traverse this township in reaching Butler, and afford many opportunities for developing its natural resources. Oil and gas have been produced here for many years, the fields at Herman Station, in the southeastern portion of the township, and at Carbon Center in the northeastern portion, having proved very productive.

EAST BUTLER.

The town of East Butler in Summit Township had its inception in 1903, when a number of business men of Butler organized the Butler Land and Improvement Company. The incorporators of the company were D. H. Sutton, president; J. F. Anderson, secretary; William Campbell, Jr., treasurer; and these officers with J. Henry Troutman, W. D. Brandon, and John S. Campbell composed the board of directors. A charter was obtained August 3, 1903, for the purpose of developing the land that had been purchased in Summit Township. The holdings of the company consist of 640 acres lying on Bonnie Brook, two miles east of Butler on the Baltimore & Ohio and the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg Railroads, 150 acres of which has been laid out in manufacturing sites, and the balance in town lots. This tract of land comprises the farms formerly owned by John Bach, J. M. Heinzer, Robert Stephenson, Jacob Johnson, Jack Walker, and the McCandless heirs. A public sale of lots was held in September, 1903, at which the movement to build a town was formally inaugurated.

The first business enterprise to locate at East Butler was the Eleanor Iron & Steel Company which began the erection of a plant in the fall of 1903. This enterprise proved a failure, and nothing more was accomplished until the fall of 1906, when the Pittsburg-Hickson Bed Works located at the new town site and began the erection of their extensive plant which is now in full operation. The buildings of this plant are substantial brick structures covering about ten acres of ground, and the entire plant occupies about twenty acres. The plant manufactures brass and iron bedsteads, and is the largest factory of its kind in the United States.

The Valvolene Oil Company in 1907 erected a large refinery which now gives employment to about 100 men.

The location of the Bed Factory was the beginning of a building boom for the new town, and during the winter of 1906 and summer of 1907 over one hundred houses were erected in addition to a hotel, several store rooms, and meat markets. In 1908 the town had a population of about 600, two general stores, a drug store, two meat markets, two public schools, a church, and a post-office. The latter was installed in 1907, with J. L. Ralston as post-master.

The Pittsburg-Hickson Company, manufacturers of iron beds, is a Pennsylvania corporation incorporated June 20, 1906, with a capital stock of $500,000.00, of which $300,000.00 is common stock and $200,000.00 preferred stock. The plant is located at East Butler, two miles east of the borough of Butler, on the B. & O. and B. R. & P. Railroads, at Noeline Station.

The company secured a manufacturing site of twenty acres from the Butler Land & Improvement Company, and in the summer of 1906 began the erection of a large plant, which was completed and in operation the latter part of 1907. The buildings are constructed of brick and iron, and have a floor space of 220,000 square feet. Since the erection of the first buildings the floor space has been increased considerably, and the total capacity of the plant at the present time is 5000 iron beds daily. In addition to the above there has been added a department for the manufacture of bed springs and mattresses. At the present time the plant is only operated with a day force, but it is the intention of the management to operate both a day and night force as soon as the business conditions of the country will justify it. The concern owns its own water works, and has a well-organized fire department among the employees of the plant. The Pittsburg-Hickson Company is the largest concern in this country engaged in the exclusive manufacture of iron beds. The product of this plant is shipped to all parts of the world, and sold only to jobbers in car lots. At the present time there are about 300 men employed, and this number will be more than doubled when the night turn is put on.

The present officers of the company are E. J. Hickson, president and general manager; B. F. Sprankle, vice-president and treasurer; and Frank H. Murphy, secretary.

The Presbyterian congregation was organized September 27, 1908, with a membership of about fifty. The trustees are J. L. Ralston, J. W. Campbell, Ed. Davis and W. D. Sutter. The elders are W. S. Brandon, L. M. Wise and Harry Wimer, and Rev. W. E. Oller, of the First Presbyterian Church of Butler is the provisional moderator of the session, until such a time as the congregation can secure a permanent pastor. During the summer of 1908 the congregation built a frame church at a cost of about $2500.00 which fully meets its present requirements.

The town of East Butler is supplied with the best of water, which is obtained from drilled wells near the town site. The East Butler Water Company has been incorporated with the following officers: Jas. W. Hutchison, president; J. C. Kiskaddon, secretary, and E. E. Bell, treasurer. The town has also been piped for gas, and is supplied by both the T. W. Phillips Oil & Gas Company, and the Reiber Independent Line.

The town is also the home of the Valvoline Oil Company, which erected a large refinery partly on the land of The Butler Land and Improvement Company, and on lands purchased from Peter Green, and the McCandless heirs, lying west of the town of East Butler. This company employs about one hundred men, and when the works are fully established will employ double that number.

Fully five hundred workmen find employment in the factories at East Butler, and the outlook for the new town is most promising. It will be a matter of a short time until the town is lighted with electricity, and a suburban railroad will connect it with the county seat. The town has not yet been incorporated as a borough, but its citizens are already looking forward to that time. The officers of the Butler Land and Improvement Company in 1908 were the same as 1903, with the exception of treasurer, Mr. William Campbell, Jr., having died in 1907. The general superintendent and manager of the company's interests is D. H. Sutton.

Herman Station is a village on the Butler Branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad in the southeastern corner of the township. It came into existence after the construction of the railroad in 1871, and for a number of years the only improvements were a general store and hotel. The hotel was built in 1875 by Charles Garlach and purchased in 1880 by Albert Smith, who became the post-master when the old Bonny Brook post-office was discontinued and removed to that place. Charles Smith afterwards became the post-master, general storekeeper and station agent, and he was succeeded by M. E. Dittmer, and he in turn by W. F. Lünberg. The great wells of the Herman oil field were struck during the latter part of the eighties and nineties, but have not tended to increase the population or mercantile interests of the place to a great extent. The celebrated Eichenlaub and Wolfe farms are in this vicinity. The Monastery buildings on the hill above Herman are an attractive feature of the place, and are noted elsewhere in this chapter.

Carbon Center is a station on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad in the northeastern corner of the township, and derives its name from the old village of Carbon Center that existed close to the Donegal and Clearfield Township lines, and was a noted oil field during the latter part of the seventies. Carbon Center, Heck Station and St. Joe Station in Oakland Township, at one time formed a busy community, and was the center of oil operations for over twenty years.

POPULATION.

The population of the township in 1860 was 939; in 1870 it was 1304; in 1880, 1266; and in 1890, 1287. The oil developments of the township which began in 1890 increased the population to 1500 in 1894. It dropped back to 1260 in 1900, but the establishing of East Butler in 1908 has increased the population to 1840.

Township Officials: The officials of the township in 1908 were John Herrit, tax collector; John Biedenbach, constable; Joseph Mauer, township clerk; Peter Nigh, Fred Oesterling and Fred Trimbur, road supervisors; James Oesterling, assessor; J. W. Baldauf, Judge of elections; L. M. Wise, inspector; William Baldauf, inspector of elections; George Forcht, J. W. Baldauf and Fred Trimbur, auditors; J. Kronenbitter, justice of the peace.

WINFIELD TOWNSHIP.

Winfield Township was organized in 1854 and formed of territory formerly included in Clearfield and Buffalo Townships. It has less tillable land than a number of the other townships of the county, but its mineral deposits and its fine water power giving excellent manufacturing sites, have contributed to the material prosperity of this section and these advantages early attracted a fine type of pioneer settler.

The pioneers who came first, were natives of Ireland and until 1836 the larger number of settlers were more or less of the same ancestry, including a number of Revolutionary veterans. In 1796 came Jeremiah Smith with his four sons and two daughters. Two of the Smith sons were equipped with trades, one being a cooper and the other a carpenter and in the next year came David Moorhead, a weaver. Even at that early day, these trades were useful to the community and they were taught to the next generation. In 1797-8 came Andrew Cruikshank, with the record of seven years of honorable service in the War of the Revolution; and in the same year the little settlement was increased by Mathias Cypher and family, who left many descendants, the name yet being a familiar one in the township. In 1799, John and Michael Fair with Caleb Jones acquired lands here, and about 1800 appear the names of John and William Clugston, Samuel Cooper, Robert Johnston, William and James Hazlett, John Kennedy and Jacob Harshman. About 1815 other settlers were Arthur Hill, Robert Galbreath and William Hesselgesser and family. In 1817 came Abraham Leasure, founder of the village of Leasureville and when Thomas Bickett came in 1818 they found James, William and David Ralston and Robert Graham, already established. In 1832 came the first French pioneers, Francis Jackman and wife. In 1836 the colony was greatly augmented by the arrival of many Germans and they brought with them their habits of thrift and frugality which soon made an impression in the township, where, under their industry, great agricultural development followed.

milling, ore and coal mining, the successful development of gas and extensive working of limestone quarries. In 1809 Jeremiah Smith, Jr., and Caleb Jones built a grist-mill, which succeeded the hand-mill constructed by his father. The Smiths controlled the earliest industries, having a saw-pit, mills, plow, harrow and cooper shops. In 1806 Thomas Horton built a saw-mill and was assisted in operating it by his son William, who was also an itinerant Methodist preacher. In 1817, Peter McLaughlin purchased the Smith grist-mill and 500 acres of land, and about the same time, Peter and Hugh or Robert McLaughlin, established a powder factory and both industries were continued until 1828. The powder mill, under other owners, was operated for many years afterward. The mill also changed owners and in 1853 the Denny's tore down the old mill and put up a more modern one which was subsequently still further improved. Just east of this mill, a great gas well was drilled by the Denny brothers and William Stewart, in 1871, and in 1874 the productive Denny well was opened, the drilling reaching 1,442 feet. The Hazlett family conducted grist and saw-mills on Rough Run so long and successfully that they were given the local name of the millers of Rough Run.

In 1847 began the first important developing of ore deposits near the mouth of Rough Run, and William Spear established the Winfield furnace. In 1856 it passed into the hands of the Winfield Coal and Iron Company and later was the property of William Stewart, who worked it until 1864. An attempt was made in 1891-2 to profitably operate salt works, on land near the Winfield furnace, but the enterprise did not succeed. One of the township's most prosperous concerns is the Acme Lime Company, Limited, which was organized in 1894, with J. A. Ransom president, J. J. Haas, secretary and Webster Keasey, superintendent. The company owns 177 acres of land on Rough Run, and their plants are equipped with every modern improvement in the line of quarry machinery. The company also operates a coal mine and employment is afforded a large force.

Winfield Grange is one of the strong organizations of the Patrons of Husbandry in the county as well as one of the oldest. The Grange has a membership of over fifty and owns its own hall. George Bieker is the master.

Certain interests have favored the growth of a number of pleasant villages in Winfield Township, each one of which has its full complement of happy homes. Leosauerville, platted as Unionville in 1832, is of the class above named. Melissadale, named in honor of the wife of William Stewart, is no longer a place of much importance, its milling interests having declined.

Cabot Station dates back to 1871, when W. S. Boyd erected a building for hotel purposes after the Butler Branch Railroad had been completed. The post-office at this point was known as Carbon Black until 1904, when the name of the office and station were changed to Cabot, and the railroad station as Saxon Station.

The Carbon Black Works were established in 1876 by Nolan and Bordman, when one brick and one frame building were erected. These were burned in the winter of 1879-80, and the present brick structure, 250x120 feet, was erected in 1881. The capacity of the factory is about 2,500 pounds of carbon black a week. In 1902 the works were purchased by G. L. Cabot of Boston, who is the present operator.

The present public school at Cabot was erected in 1888, in the place of the old brick school house that was in use previous to the Civil War. Cabot Institute was established in 1903, and the present brick building erected the same year. The lumber yards of Sykes & Wetzel were established about 1890. The present village is composed of about twenty-five dwellings, a blacksmith shop, the Carbon Black Works, Rumbaugh's Livery barn, and Smith & Logan's store. The post-office is at the store, and C. A. Smith is the post-master.

The Methodist Episcopal Church at Cabot Station is the successor of Knox M. E. Church of Winfield Township. About 1903 the Knox Society purchased the building at Cabot formerly occupied by the Methodist Protestant Society and removed to the village. The church is in the circuit with Ekastown and Fisk Chapel and the present pastor is Rev. J. J. Buell.

Marwood Station, formerly Delano, dates back to 1870, when E. G. Lighthold opened a store at that point. A post-office was established in Daniel Denny's store building in 1871, with L. Heydrick as post-master. The principal stores of the place in 1908 were those of A. Krause & Son, and Krause & Freehling.

Cabot Institute. Through the generosity of G. L. Cabot, the citizens of Cabot Station were enabled to establish an institute which has been a great benefit to the young people of the community as well as a credit to the enterprise of her citizens. In 1903 the movement was inaugurated and Mr. Cabot proposed to duplicate the amount of money raised in the community for building purposes by his personal check. A subscription list was started and in a short time sufficient money was pledged to insure the erection of the building, and the donation of the ground was secured from Webster Keasey, a resident of Cabot. A handsome two-story brick building was erected, and the institute started its first year with sixty-five pupils. The first principal was S. W. Frazier, and he was succeeded by E. O. Copeland, and he in turn by James Campbell. In 1906 C. W. Johnson was elected principal, and continued until in the fall of 1908, when A. W. Wallace of New Athens, Ohio, took charge of the school. The board of directors of the institute in 1908 was composed of John Rivers, Sr., President; Dr. J. M. Scott, Secretary; and C. A. Smith, Robert Krause, G. L. Cabot of Boston, Judge James M. Galbreath of Butler, and J. W. Powell of Buffalo township. The institute has twenty-one pupils enrolled, and is in a prosperous condition.

St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church at Cabot Station was built in 1904 by Rev. Father Nicholas M. Deinlein of St. Fidelis College, Herman, who had taken an interest in the welfare of the foreigners employed at the mines and quarries in Winfield township.

West Winfield. The village of West Winfield in Winfield Township is located on ground that has some historic interest. About the year 1817 William Hazlett erected a grist mill on Rough Run which he and his sons operated until after the erection of Winfield furnace. In 1847 William Spear erected a furnace near the mouth of Rough Run to develop the rich iron ore deposits of that section. Spear operated the furnace until 1856, when the industry passed into the hands of the Winfield Coal & Iron Company from whom it was purchased by William Stewart, who had previously operated the old Hickory Furnace on Slippery Rock creek at Kiestler's Mill. Stewart operated the furnace until about 1865 when it went out of blast and the property was abandoned. The furnace tract of land consisting of 1,400 acres of the best mineral land in Butler county came into the possession of the McKee estate of Pittsburg, the present owners. The old stone stack of the furnace is still standing, and a stone house still remains as the only monuments of one of the principal industries of Butler County more than half a century ago.

The village of today had its inception in the building of the West Winfield Branch Railroad in 1890 and 1891, which was constructed from Monroeville up Rough Run to the site of the old furnace. The Rough Run Manufacturing Company purchased a tract of land adjoining the furnace property in 1891, and established a salt works. The company, which was composed of Butler people, carried out the idea of Joseph Bredin to pipe salt water from the salt water wells near Butler to the plant of Rough Run, and there manufacture the salt where there was an abundance of cheap fuel to be obtained from the natural gas wells. The enterprise was carried on for a year or two but proved unprofitable, and the works were closed.

After the completion of the West Winfield Railroad in 1890, Webster Keasey and J. A. Ransom leased the Keasey farm of 177 acres from the Rough Run Manufacturing Company, and began the mining and shipping of lime. Keasey and Ransom disposed of their plant to Houston Brothers of Pittsburg, who operated it for a number of years, and about 1898 A. G. Morris & Son of Tyrone purchased the interest of Houston Brothers. In the meantime F. W. McKee had opened up the limestone vein on the furnace tract south of the old Keasey farm, which is now the scene of the largest limestone operation of its kind in the United States. The limestone was mined by drifting into the side of the hill, and the main entry now extends about 1,800 feet from the mouth of the mine. The mine is equipped with compressed air machines for drilling, lighted with electricity, and electric haulage is used. About eighty men are employed continuously, and the output of the mine averages six hundred tons daily of raw stone and about one thousand bushels of burnt lime. The superintendent of the operations is George Milliron, who has been an employe of the company for eight years, and the foreman of the mining operations is R. D. Younkens. The limestone at this point is twenty-eight feet thick, and lies in three veins. At the present time the company is taking out the two lower veins and leaving in the top vein, which is six feet thick, for a roof.

In addition to the limestone operations at West Winfield, F. W. McKee & Company are operating the Darlington Sandstone and shipping a large quantity of sand to Pittsburg and other points which is used in the manufacture of glass.

The Duquesne Fireproofing Company which was organized several years ago to develop the fire clay on Rough Run, built a large plant for the manufacture of sewer pipe, terra cotta work and other products of fire clay. They employed several hundred men until 1906, when the plant was closed down.

Rough Run Postoffice was established in 1894, and Webster Keasey was installed as its first postmaster. In October, 1898, the name of the office was changed to West Winfield, and in May, 1899, W. H. Cooper succeeded Mr. Keasey as postmaster. Mr. Cooper remained in charge of the office until November 12, 1903, when he was succeeded by C. C. Donaldson, the present postmaster.

St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church was built in 1902, and is under the care of the priests at St. Mary's College, Herman. It is a commodious frame building and was erected by the members of the Catholic faith in that community who had an interest in the religious welfare of the foreigners who are employed at the works. A large percentage of the membership is foreign, but the American residents of the place also attend the services.

The Presbyterian Mission at West Winfield is under the care of the Presbyterian church, and is the only Protestant organization in the place. Sabbath School and services are held in the hall of the public school building, and at the present time are in charge of Rev. George Stewart. The public school house was built in 1901 by the school board of Winfield Township, assisted by the financial aid of F. W. McKee, who is agent for the McKee estate.

The business houses of the town are C. C. Donaldson & Company, who conduct a general store and keep the postoffice, and Jacob Schwartz, clothing. The town of West Winfield is built entirely on the old furnace property, and the houses are owned by the McKee estate. The population of the place varies from six hundred to one thousand, and is composed principally of foreigners, who are employed at the works and mines.

Black, or Saxon Station gained local prominence when the carbon works were established at this point in 1876 and conducted until the winter of 1879-80, when they were burned. The present brick structures were put up in 1881 and the industry continues. In 1888 a fine public school building was erected, the town has excellent railroad facilities and is one of the centers of population in the township. Delano Station dates back to 1870, when E. G. Leithold opened a store here and in the following year a post-office was established, with L. Heidrick as first postmaster. The village is the center of a wealthy outside district and supplies the wants of a considerable extent of country. The name of this place is now Cabot.

Prior to 1815 the children of Winfield and Clearfield Township were served in large measure by the same teachers. Educational needs were by no means neglected, although, perhaps, they were not furthered as rapidly as in some other sections. The intelligent citizenship, however, of the present day, shows there is no lack of schools or educating opportunities in the year 1909.

There are nine public schools with an enrollment of 295 scholars.

Church membership is divided between the Methodist Episcopal and the Lutheran and Evangelical bodies. Knox Methodist Episcopal Church, near the eastern line of Jefferson Township, is probably the oldest organization, existing as a society in 1824. Like many of the early charges it had its difficulties, but in 1864 a brick structure was erected in which the congregation worshipped until it was decided to remove to Cabot, when the building was converted into a dwelling house.

Fisk Methodist Episcopal Church was organized in August, 1855, and in 1857 a brick building was built which may be enlarged to accommodate increasing membership. It was given its name in honor of Rev. Wilbur Fisk, a worthy man and beloved pastor. Its present pastor is Rev. J. J. Buell.

The German Lutheran Church was organized in 1848 by Rev. Henry Issense, although prior to that time religious services had been regularly held. The first house of worship of this body was a building erected in the cemetery east of the present church edifice, which succeeded under the pastorate of Reverend Umsler, in 1887. In the old cemetery adjoining rest the remains of many of the old German settlers of the township and it is noted that many of the headstones tell the pitiful tale of the scourge that visited many of the homes in 1858—scarlet fever.

St. Matthew's Evangelical Lutheran Church (German) was incorporated in November, 1888, with thirty-two members, including Rev. J. G. Amsohler.

It is in the Sarversville charge with St. Paul's Church of Sarversville and St. Luke's Church of Saxonburg. Rev. J. A. Frishkorn is the present pastor.

The Evangelical Zion Church of Winfield and Buffalo Townships, signed articles of association, January 6, 1873, but it was organized in 1852, when a small frame building was erected, which served until the fine church structure was completed in 1873.

The Methodist Protestant Church at Saxon Station was accommodated by the trustees of the society by the erection of their neat frame building, which was completed in 1879, when Rev. J. J. Waggoner was appointed pastor. It may thus be seen that the spiritual welfare of the residents of Winfield Township is well taken care of and the influence of these bodies is doubtless reflected in the quiet, peaceful, law-abiding life which pervades this section. An organization of local note is the Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company, which was organized August 27, 1859, by Lewis A. Krause, who served as first president.

The population of the township in 1900 was 1,395 and the estimated population in 1908 was 1,680. The increase in the last eight years is due to the development of the limestone and mining industries.

The township officials in 1908 were as follows: Constable, John Milliron; township clerk, George Morris; tax collector, G. W. Galbreath; road supervisors, W. S. Cruikshank, Henry Grimm, Scott Cruikshank; auditors, J. H. Morehead, William Fox, G. W. Watson. Election officers: First Precinct—Erhart Lang, judge; William Fox and Theodore Acre, inspectors; Second Precinct—W. J. Jenkins, judge; H. C. Gibson and William Rummel, inspectors. Assistant assessors, W. H. Watson and Henry Hilliard.

WORTH TOWNSHIP.

Worth Township, which is situated in the northwestern part of Butler County, was organized in 1854, and in its name, commemorates General Worth, a hero of the Mexican War. While it possesses considerable rich farming land, it is mainly noted for its mineral wealth, large areas being rich in coal deposits, and comparatively recent investigations proving also the presence of reservoirs of natural gas. Profitable wells were drilled on the Elliott, Pizor, McCracken and Boyd farms in the latter part of the eighties and formed a part of the Grove City Gas Plant. The Allegheny & Western Railroad in the southern part of the township is bound in time to develop the mineral resources in that district. In the formation of Worth township, a part was taken from Slippery Rock, but the larger portion was subtracted from Muddy Creek Township. The population has varied but little since its organization; in 1908 it was estimated as 1,090.

Prior to the coming of the white settlers, this, as other sections, had been occupied by the Indians and still many years after their departure an occasional relic of those early inhabitants is found. In the autumn of 1790, two enterprising and courageous men of Cumberland County or Westmoreland County, came to the Indian village on Slippery Rock, and finding no objection made to their presence, built themselves a cabin and remained for three months, engaging in hunting and in exploring the country. Probably the peaceful disposition of the natives led David Studebaker, one of these pioneers, to return to this region three years later, accompanied by his sister, and later being joined by his father and the rest of the family. David's marriage to Catherine Michaels was the first ceremony of the kind in the township and many of their descendants have reached a large degree of prominence in Butler and adjacent counties. The permanent settlers came to Worth Township a few years earlier than to some other sections, William and John Elliott coming in 1793, John Dennison in the same year, David, George and Rebecca Armstrong in 1794, and Henry Stinetorf, John and Jacob Pisor, Thomas, David, William and Samuel Cross, Daniel and William McConnell, William McNees and Benjamin Jack, in 1795. Thomas, Andrew and John Clark joined the colony in 1797, and in 1798 came Thomas Humphrey, Andrew, Edward and James Douglass, Christopher Wimer and Charles Coulter. A number of these early settlers had been soldiers in the Revolutionary War. Other families established here between 1800 and 1820 were those of Charles, John and John Martin, Jr., John Taggart, Hugh Henderson, John Moore, Isaac M. Cornelius, Robert Glenn, Casper Hockenberry, Alexander McBride and George Taylor.

Only second to providing shelter and food for their families, the worthy pioneers of Worth Township felt the responsibility resting on them to provide religious influences and some sort of educational opportunities, the traveling preacher at first supplying both needs. The Rev. John Anderson is described as calling his audience together as early as May, 1807, under the shade of an oak tree, and on up to 1811, Associate Presbyterian preachers would hold services, John Moore's house always being open for this purpose.

The United Presbyterian Church, of Slippery Rock, the oldest religious body in Worth Township, was organized in 1809 and until 1842 was known as the Mouth of Wolf Creek Church, indicating its location. In 1811 a house of worship was completed and Alexander Murray was ordained pastor. The first edifice was burned in 1839 but the membership of this body has always numbered a large percentage of the wealth of the community and generosity has been shown in subsequent building for church purposes. In 1889 Rev. J. B. Whitten succeeded Rev. M. B. Patterson as pastor.

Zion Baptist Church, which was organized in November, 1841, held services in the school-house until 1843, when Jacob Fisher donated land on which a substantial brick building was erected, this having been enlarged and improved through the further generosity of members of the congregation. The first pastor was Rev. Daniel Daniels, and the first members were John and Margaret Oelton, William and Annie Book, Robert and Mary Hampson and Phoebe Cooper.

Mt. Union Church of God congregation was organized in 1871 and the first services were held in Rocky Springs school-house. The first preacher in charge was Elder Joseph Grimm. The generosity of different members made it possible to erect a commodious structure in 1873.

Robert Marcus is entitled to the credit of establishing the first school in Worth Township. He used an old log house then standing on the Pisor farm and his sessions began in 1810, when he had twenty-five subscribed pupils. A second school was soon opened on the McNees farm, later another was opened on the Stinetorf farm and long before the common school system was adopted, this section was affording its youth educational training, which was mainly confined, however, to the elemental branches. In 1908 there were eight schools in the district with 187 scholars, and the total receipts of the district including the State appropriation were $2,672.00.

In early days in Worth as in other townships, the majority of families provided for the grinding of their own grain, by means of either horse-power or hand mills, the process in either case being one that was very unsatisfactory. Hence, the building of a grist mill was a matter of common interest and the man of enterprise who erected one was looked on, in a way, as a public benefactor. The credit for building the first mill here of that kind lies between Alexander McBride and Franklin Elliott. In 1803 Thomas Coulter operated a saw-mill and after the construction of the McBride grist mill in 1827, the owner of the latter built a saw-mill and continued to operate both mills until 1850. Charles Coulter established his carding-mill following the War of 1812, an industry which, under subsequent owners and operators was equipped with modern machinery and during the Civil War did a large business in the manufacture of flannels and blankets. It later became known as the Sutliff mill. Tanneries were among the early industries and in 1803, James Coulter established one that was conducted for many years as an important township industry. In the days of pioneering one of the remunerative industries was distilling and prior to the temperance agitation in the thirties, much fine whisky was manufactured in Worth Township, the leading men in the industry being Hugh Henderson, Jonathan Dean and William Vogan. Since modern enterprise has found means to develop the natural resources of the land, mining has become one of the most important activities of this section, and, together with gas development, has attracted both capital and labor to the Township.

Jacksville. The village of Mechanicsburg or Jacksville Post-office is said to have received its name from the fact that a number of mechanics lived at the village at the same time. The original post-office at Jacksville was established in William Jack's store on his farm a short distance east of the present village. His son, Cochrad Jack, was the first post-master. The succeeding post-masters have been Samuel Hazlett, John Boyle, Nicholas Gardner, Marcus Reichert, and Hannah Boyle. The village contains about a dozen houses, a blacksmith shop, post-office, and a general store, besides a wagon shop and a town hall. The tannery and the woolen mill located here ceased operation in the nineties.

Jacksville Tent Number 159, K. O. T. M., was organized April 1, 1883, and the charter was granted December 16th of the same year. There were nineteen charter members, and the first officers were J. B. Pizor, J. W. Studebaker, S. C. Humphrey, and W. F. Gardner.

The Worth Township Gas Company was organized in 1892 to operate the gas wells on the Glenn and the McClymonds farms. This gas was used for local consumption.

The Worth Mutual Fire Insurance Company was chartered January 13, 1875. The original members and stockholders were Amaziah Kelly, A. Stickle, Hampson

Dean, J. A. Kelly, W. McBride, R. A. Humphrey was elected to the position in 1887 and 1894. Mr. Marshall was secretary of the corporation until 1882, when W. E. Taylor was elected to succeed him. The company at the present time has over $1,000,000.00 of insurance on its books.

Joseph Hartman

Representative Citizens.

HON. JOSEPH HARTMAN, formerly one of the best known and most successful oil producers of Butler County, president of the Butler County National Bank, and previously also of the Chicora Bank, Chicora, Penna., was born in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, October 18, 1827, son of William and Mary (Winters) Hartman. His father, a blacksmith, brought him up to that trade, and he worked at it until reaching the age of seventeen years. He then became employed in the ore mines and also engaged in contracting until January, 1855. Being an ambitious youth, he saved a large part of his earnings, and in 1849 purchased a farm in Donegal Township, Butler County, to which his parents removed in the same year. He took up his own residence there in 1856, and it continued to be his home until his removal to Butler. He saw military service for nine months in the Civil War, in the One Hundred and Sixty-Ninth Pennsylvania Volunteers. In 1864 he entered into the oil business, commencing operations in Venango County, but later transferring them to Butler County, where he was prominently and successfully engaged in oil production for over thirty-five years. Besides his extensive operations in the Millerstown field, he also developed good oil territory in Allegheny County, New York, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, in the St. Joe, Callery Junction, Jefferson Centre, the McDonald and Hundred Foot fields, and in the Mannington field of West Virginia which was one of the largest productions of that State. One of his best strikes was on the Black farm in Butler County, which realized for him a handsome sum. He was a stockholder in several large oil companies, including the United States Pipe Line Company, and the Producers' Pipe Line Company.

When the movement was inaugurated to curtail production, Mr. Hartman strongly supported the plan of Mr. Phillips to set apart 2,000,000 barrels of oil for the protection of the labor engaged in the petroleum industry. He was also associated in mining enterprises outside the State, being included among the capitalists who purchased the Trade Dollar Mining Company, of Idaho. Succeeding Mr. Taylor as president of the Butler County National Bank, soon after its organization, he filled that office very creditably for a number of years thereafter. In politics Mr. Hartman was a strong Republican, and in 1884 was elected to the Legislature, serving until 1886. He belonged to A. G. Reed Post, G. A. R., of Butler, and was always warmly interested in Grand Army matters and in the welfare of the old soldiers.

Mr. Hartman was twice married: first in January, 1853, to Margaret Black, a daughter of John Black, of Donegal Township. She died July 5, 1869, having borne her husband the following children: Mary E.; Lizzie J., who married Patrick Gallagher, an oil producer of Butler, residing at No. 394 N. McKean Street; Anna L., wife of Michael Leonard; Frances Eva, and Joseph. Mary and Frances Eva are unmarried and reside at No. 400 N. Main Street. Mr. Hartman married for his second wife, in 1873, Miss Mary McFadden, who died April 17, 1892. He was a member of the Roman Catholic Church, as are also the surviving members of his family. He performed useful service as a member of the Building Committee in the erection of St. Patrick's Church at Sugar Creek. Mr. Hartman came to Butler in November, 1892, and resided here until his death, which took place February 29, 1904. He was regarded as one of the foremost citizens of the place. Successful in business, he had at heart the interest of the community in which he had largely achieved his prosperity, and he gave with no niggardly hand to religious and educational institutions, and to other philanthropic enterprises. His death was a distinct loss to the community, and his part as an up-builder of the material prosperity for this section will not soon be forgotten.

DR. JOHN M. SCOTT, who for the past thirty-five years has been actively engaged in the practice of his profession in the village of Cabot, is the only physician in Winfield Township, throughout which locality he enjoys an extensive and lucrative practice. He was born in Center Township, Indiana County, Pennsylvania, December 26, 1849, and is a son of John and Mary (Reed) Scott, the latter being a daughter of Samuel Reed, who came of a family long established in Huntingdon County, Pennsylvania. Dr. Scott is of Scotch descent, his grandfather having come from Scotland at a very early period and settled in Huntingdon County, Pennsylvania.

John M. Scott received his primary education in an old log schoolhouse in Indiana County, supplementing it with a course of study at Homer City Academy, and finally graduating from the Medical College at Columbus, Ohio. He first engaged in the practice of his profession at Livermore, Pennsylvania, where he was associated for two years with Dr. Banks, at the end of which period he came to Cabot, where he has since been located and where he enjoys the confidence and esteem of an extensive circle of friends and patrons.

September 26, 1872, Dr. Scott was joined in the holy bonds of wedlock with Agnes M. Black, a daughter of Col. John A. and Margaret (Kerr) Black. Into their household were born five children: Mary J., wife of Dr. O. G. Crawshaw, a dentist, who has had two children—George S. (deceased) and Jackson O.; Viola, who is the wife of E. M. Craig of Oakmont, Pennsylvania, and has three children—Robert, Isabelle, and Virginia Scott; John B., a graduate of the dental department of the Western University, who is engaged in the practice of his profession in the village of Cabot; Helen Carrie, who is residing at home; and James Willis, who is at present a student.

Dr. Scott and his estimable wife reside in a commodious two-story brick residence in the village of Cabot and are prominently identified with the social affairs of that city. Dr. Scott is a member of the Presbyterian Church of Buffalo.

ELI D. ROBINSON, the present postmaster at Butler, and a veteran journalist, was born in Penn Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, March 5, 1855. He is a son of the late Thomas Robinson and his wife, Ann Eliza (DeWolf) Robinson.

Eli D. Robinson was eight years of age when his parents located at Butler. He was educated in the common schools and at Witherspoon Institute, where he spent five years. Shortly before attaining his majority he began the study of law under his father's direction. His tastes inclining to journalism, he gave up the law, and in 1879 purchased the Butler Eagle from his father, and was associated with that paper as editor and publisher until 1903. An ardent Republican by conviction, he has ably supported the cause of his party, and has often proved an able champion of needed reforms, possessing the pen of a ready writer, with the power of original and forceful expression. His appointment as postmaster met with the hearty approbation of his fellow citizens and he assumed the duties of the office on January 1, 1905.

Eli D. Robinson was married March 14, 1883, to Emily E. Rogers, and they have four children: Mrs. Richard H. Wick, Bertha, Carl and Donald. Their commodious and tasteful residence is situated at No. 416 East Clay street, Butler. The family belong to the Methodist Episcopal Church.

WARREN AGGAS, one of Center Township's substantial and representative citizens, interested both in farming and in oil well contracting and drilling, resides on the fine farm of 212 acres, on which he was born, in Butler County, Pennsylvania, December 9, 1866. His parents were James and Catherine (Andrews) Aggas.

In tracing the ancestors of Mr. Aggas, the reader comes to one of those tragedies which marked the advance of civilization, but a few generations ago, when the white man contended with the savage. The great-grandfather of Warren Aggas was killed by the Indians, in Westmoreland County, in 1796. His widow fled into the forest of what is now Center Township, accompanied by her two little boys, Sylvanus and Abner, aged eleven and ten years respectively. It was her intention to chose a home there, hidden as she believed herself, from the cruel savages that had shed the blood of her husband, and with this end in view, a pitiful story is told of her getting lost and separated from her children and neighbors who had also sought a refuge in the woods. For three days she wandered lost and alone, but subsequently was reunited to her children and together they established a home on the land which has ever since remained in the family, no division ever having been made.

James Aggas, father of Warren and son of Sylvanus, was born on the above named farm and continued agricultural pursuits through life, both he and wife passing away in the old home. The old residence built by Sylvanus Aggas almost seventy years ago, still shelters his descendants. There were other buildings and the barn, a still substantial structure, was put up in 1859, a second barn being built in 1885. James Aggas married Catherine Andrews and they had six children, namely: Warren; Loyal, who lives in Center Township; Sylvanus, who resides in Illinois; William John, who lives at Ellwood City; Elizabeth Belle, who died aged about twelve years; and an unnamed infant.

Warren Aggas was reared to farm life and has always been interested in agriculture. In addition to managing his large estate, he is in partnership with a Mr. Hamilton in contracting and drilling oil wells, the latter being a practical driller.

Mr. Aggas married Miss Sarah Belle McCandless, who is a daughter of Red-dick McCandless, and their children are as follows: James, who dresses the tools used in oil well drilling, and who married Bessie Barkley; and Stella E., Huldah, Laura Muriel, Samuel Claud, Evelyn and Leroy. Mr. Aggas is a member of the Odd Fellows, Lodge No. 1154, of West Sunbury.

JAMES A. McKEE, one of the best known residents of Butler and editor of the present volume, was born in Butler Township, this county, May 11, 1865, son of Robert and Mary Jane (Kirk) McKee. His paternal grandfather was James McKee, and his great grandfather, Thomas McKee, who married Margaret Hogue. James, the grandfather, who was the eldest son of his parents, was born in 1780, in Tuscarora Valley, Mifflin County, Penna. He came to Butler from Ligonier, Pennsylvania, in 1796, and purchased a tract of land in Butler Township adjoining that of his father. He married Mary McKee, a daughter of John and Mary (Hogue) McKee, of the Tuscarora Valley, and they were the parents of seven children, as follows: John, who served one term as sheriff of Butler County, died in 1864; Robert, who resided on the old homestead until 1888, then removed to Butler, and died December 18, 1890; Martha, who died in youth; Thomas, who died at the age of twenty-one; Mary A., who resided in Butler down to the time of her death, July 2, 1890; James, who was drowned in the Ohio River in 1852, while en route to California; and Hugh, a surveyor of Butler County in 1852, and afterwards appointed surveyor-general of Kansas by President Buchanan, who died April 30, 1886. James McKee and his brother Hugh served in the War of 1812; the former served as sheriff of the county from 1815 to 1818, and as a member of the state legislature in 1828. His death occurred October 1, 1832. His wife survived him more than thirty years, and died in 1874 at the age of eighty-seven.

Robert McKee, son of James and father of the subject of this sketch, was born in Butler Township, Butler County, June 17, 1817. He was reared upon the farm, and in 1847 he married Mary J. Kirk, a daughter of John Kirk, an early settler of Clarion County. They resided upon a farm in Butler Township until 1888, and then removed to Butler, where Mr. McKee died on December 18, 1890, leaving two children, Mary A. and James A. Robert McKee was a justice of the peace in Butler Township for thirty years and was a prominent member of the United Presbyterian church. His widow survived him until March 9, 1902.

James A. McKee was educated at Witherspoon Institute, Butler, and at Wooster University, Wooster, Ohio, and came with his parents to Butler Borough in May, 1888, where he has since resided. In October, 1888, he formed a partnership with William G. Ziegler and purchased the Democratic Herald from the estate of the late Jacob Ziegler. He continued in the active duties of newspaper work until 1899, when the Herald plant was sold to P. A. Rattigan & Sons, and the partnership of Ziegler and McKee was dissolved. He was subsequently engaged as reporter for the Associated Press, the Tri-state Press Bureau, and eastern papers, and in 1902-3 was city editor of the daily Eagle. He was subsequently engaged in contracting business for two years, and since that time has been in the insurance business. For over twenty years he took an active interest in local military affairs, first enlisting in Company E, Fifteenth Regiment, P. N. G., in 1885. After serving two enlistments he was discharged with the rank of sergeant.

In 1898, when the local militia company was called into the service of the United States for the Spanish War, Mr. McKee, James M. Maxwell, and John C. Graham organized a second company and drilled it for the second call of troops. The services of this company were tendered to the adjutant-general of Pennsylvania and also to the secretary of war. The suspension of hostilities after the battle of Santiago rendered the further call of troops unnecessary and the local company was tendered a place in the provisional guard of the State, which was accepted. Mr. McKee was elected Captain of Company L, Sixteenth Regiment, National Guard, July 2, 1902, and served the full term of five years. He is a Democrat in politics and has taken an active part in the affairs of his party in the county, but has never held any public office. He is a member of the United Presbyterian Church, which his parents assisted in founding.

ELMER W. SCHENCK, a representative of one of Butler County's old German pioneer families, is one of the city's prosperous business men, where he is engaged in general contracting. He was born at Butler, in 1876, and is a son of Leonard and a grandson of Adam Schenck.

When his school days were over, Elmer W. Schenck lost no time seeking employment but went to work in a brickyard and two years later became an employe at the Purvis planing-mill. During the six years that he worked in the mill, he took a course in business at the Butler Commercial College, in this sensible, practical way fitting himself for both manual and professional work. He then worked one year as a carpenter, and this was followed by a year of contracting, after which he was foreman for two years for a large contracting firm at Beaver Falls. When he returned to Butler he resumed contracting and has had about as much work in his line as he has been able to handle.

In 1898 Mr. Schenck was married to Miss Mary Wagner, who is a daughter of Henry Wagner. The Wagners were established in Butler County by Henry Wagner, the grandfather of Mrs. Schenck, who built the first pottery in Butler County, having learned his trade in Germany. The father of Mrs. Schenck was born in Butler County and for some years followed paper-hanging, but at present is engaged in a mercantile business. Mr. and Mrs. Schenck have two children: Charles E. and Bertha M. They are members of Grace Lutheran Church. Mr. Schenck is a member of the National Protective League and of the Moose fraternity.

HON. CHARLES C. SULLIVAN, in former years one of the most prominent figures in the public life of Butler County, and a lawyer of high reputation, was born on his parents' farm, in Franklin Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, March 10, 1807.

From some records carefully collated by the genealogist of the family, the late Lieut. Aaron Sullivan, who was killed in the Civil War, while fighting in defense of the Union, it appears that one Peter O. Sullivan located in Northumberland County, Virginia, about the year 1700. He married a lady named Craven and they had children, John, Moses, Charles and Elizabeth.

Early in 1757 Charles Sullivan married Jemima Reeve and they were the grandparents of the late Hon. Charles C. Sullivan. Charles Sullivan died March 27, 1767, the father of five children, all of whom were born on the Wecondia River, near Chesapeake Bay, in Northumberland County, Virginia.

Charles C. Sullivan, second son of Charles and Jemima Sullivan, was born March 27, 1760, and died January 12, 1813. In 1785, in Chester County, Pennsylvania, he married Susannah Johnston, who was born October 29, 1764, and died July 7, 1834. Her parents were Thomas and Margaret Johnston, of Chester County. She made the acquaintance of her future husband while he was serving under General Washington at Valley Forge. Their children were Moses, Aaron, Thomas, John, James, Margaret, Jemima, Elizabeth, William, Charles Craven, Susannah, the four last named being born on the "Sullivan Farm," in Franklin Township, Butler County.

Charles Craven Sullivan, the seventh son of Charles C. and Susannah Sullivan, was graduated in 1828, from Jefferson College; soon after became a law student in the office of Gen. William Ayers and was admitted to the bar, October 10, 1831. He soon won recognition for his forensic ability, becoming one of the leaders of the Butler County bar, noted then as now, for the high quality and character of its members. He soon became connected also with public affairs, and in 1841, he was elected to the State Senate and was reelected in 1844. During his six years of service in that body he originated and carried through much useful legislation, some of which still remains on the statute books. By this time he had become widely known all over the State and had it not been that the Whig party, to which he belonged, was in the minority during the period of his legislative career, he would have occupied a still more exalted position. As a mark of appreciation of his character and services, Sullivan County, in his native State, was given his name.

While professing and believing in Whig principles, Senator Sullivan was an independent thinker, endorsing no measures or policies that were not in accord with his personal convictions. He was strongly opposed to slavery and was much pleased with the nomination of General Scott by the Whigs, over Millard Fillmore in 1852, and correspondingly disappointed by the subsequent election of Franklin Pierce. Possessing such principles, Mr. Sullivan welcomed the formation of the Republican party and identified himself with it. By this time Abolition sentiment was becoming general throughout the North, and Mr. Sullivan was not alone in his opinions, as had been the case, in his county, but a few years previously.

With the approach of the great National crisis, Mr. Sullivan's interest in public affairs deepened. He foresaw the coming struggle, and his great hope was that the new party would rise to its opportunity and stand up boldly for the right. He was active in the discussion of public affairs, in particular during the winter of 1859-60, endeavoring to influence the young men of his acquaintance to take a firm stand for principle, whatever might be the outcome. He looked forward with eager anticipation to the Republican National Convention, expecting to see the birth of a new radical policy, with the abolition of slavery as its ultimate goal, but he was not destined to realize his hopes nor to witness the last tragic act in the great slavery drama. His health began to fail, and on February 27, 1860, he passed from life's scenes, leaving behind a record of worthy achievement and devotion to principle that may well stand as an example to many of our own day, who are entrusted with weighty responsibilities.

In a material way, Mr. Sullivan prospered and was able to leave a handsome estate to his family. His law practice extended over Butler and into several adjacent counties. His fellow citizens had confidence in him in every relation of life for they knew his acts were the results of his firm convictions. On many occasions he displayed his local pride for he always honored Butler County as it had honored him.

Mr. Sullivan was married July 24, 1845, to Susan Catherine Seltzer, of Jonestown, Lebanon County, Penna., who was born June 26, 1824, and who still survives. Of this union there were five children—Moses, Charles, Louise M., Josephine, and Matilda. Moses, who is unmarried, is a well known lawyer of Butler and Bradford, Penna. Charles, who is now deceased, was a practicing attorney at Pittsburg. He married Mary Reed and left his wife with eight children, of whom there are now three survivors—Catherine G., Reed, and Joseph, all living in Pittsburg. Louise M. Sullivan was married, June 26, 1871, to Joshua H. Shaw, who died March 17, 1874. She resides at No. 123 Diamond Street, Butler, and has one son, George J., who married Iola Campbell of Butler and the latter are the parents of a daughter—Isabelle. Josephine Sullivan, now deceased, was the wife of Thomas H. Rabe, of Pittsburg. She left four daughters, namely: Janie (Mrs. Burt A. Miller), who has two children—Thomas Rabe and Jane Catherine; Catherine Louise, Josephine, and Eleanore Hanna. Matilda Sullivan, who married Joseph E. Dunton, of Philadelphia, Penna., is deceased. She had no children.

JOSIAH P. McCALL, general farmer, who resides on his excellent estate of eighty-nine acres, which is situated in Franklin Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, was born on this farm on October 8, 1852, and is a son of Allen and Martha (Turk) McCall.

Allen McCall, father of Josiah P., was born about 1807, in Butler County, his old home farm being now owned by Lorenzo B. Snyder. He died in 1867. In early years he was a Whig but later became a Republican. He was an active citizen but never accepted any office but that of school director. He married a daughter of William Turk, of Brady Township, Butler County, and they had the following children: Samuel James and Robert T., both now deceased; Margaret Emeline, wife of Asaph Cramer, of Clay Township; Rebecca Jane (deceased) who was the wife of Hezekiah Patterson; Mary Elizabeth, deceased; Josiah P.; William John, residing in Franklin Township; Sarah Belle (deceased) who was the wife of Elva Snyder, of Brady Township; and Elmer Allen, residing at Butler. The father was a trustee of the Muddy Creek Presbyterian Church.

Josiah P. McCall has spent his life in Franklin Township. After he completed his school attendance he settled down to farming and has made his life-work both pleasant and profitable. Of his eighty-nine acres he has fifty under the plow and raises corn, oats, wheat, hay, potatoes and buckwheat, devoting the remainder of his land to pasturage, keeping eight cows for dairy purposes and making choice butter for particular customers at Butler.

Mr. McCall married Miss Mary Ann

Snyder, who is a daughter of Conrad Snyder of Brady Township, and they have had three children: Conrad Allen, who died aged two years; Willis Austin, who married Valera Thompson of Clay Township and reside in Washington County (he is a physician and has a daughter, Mary Dorothy); and Orren Josiah, who married Marie Brown, of Clay Township and has one child, Edna Mary. Mr. McCall and family belong to the Muddy Creek Presbyterian Church, in which he has served as a trustee. In politics he is a Republican but is no more active than the demands of good citizenship require, having no desire for political honors.

EDWARD EVERETT ABRAMS, who has for more than twenty years been one of the most stirring and progressive business citizens of Butler, is a native of Clarion County, Pennsylvania, having been born at Rimersburg, July 9, 1856, son of James H. and Hannah (McCutcheon) Abrams. His paternal grandfather was David Abrams, whose parents were the first settlers at Turkey Foot, Westmoreland County, Penna. They were of Scotch ancestry, and the subject of this sketch is in possession of the family record, beautifully written in a bible over 118 years old.

Edward Everett Abrams passed his early years in his native town of Rimersburg, where he attended the common school and Clarion Collegiate Institute. His education was further advanced by attendance at the seminary at Clarion and Dickinson Seminary, at Williamsport, Penna. He then pursued a commercial course at Eastman's Business College, Poughkeepsie, New York, and to further round out his general education took a course in a military academy at Tarrytown-on-Hudson. Having some taste for military matters, he joined the National Guard of Pennsylvania, and at the age of eighteen was first sergeant of Company F, Seventeenth Regiment, N. G. P. While in camp with two regiments, he was complimented by the inspecting officer for keeping the best records.

His father, James H. Abrams, was one of the pioneers in the oil and steamboat business at Oil City, and in 1874 was a prominent oil producer at Karns City, Penna. The subject of our sketch having begun his business career as bookkeeper in a banking house, became his father's active assistant in the oil business at Karns City in 1876. From 1877 to 1879 their operations were continued in the Bradford field. In the year last mentioned he was married and, having purchased the famous Meclimans farm, on which Karns City is built, he removed there and remained until 1886, when Butler became his place of residence. Butler has been the scene mainly of his subsequent activities, though he continues to manage his property at Karns City and oil farms near there.

He has been a prominent factor in the commercial and business life of Butler County and in the year 1900 was one of the original and very active incorporators of the Butler County National Bank, which he served as director and member of the Discount Board for ten years. After resigning from that institution he was one of the first incorporators of the Farmers' National Bank, of which he has been an active director since it was organized, and continues to thus serve this very successful bank.

During his early years in the oil business, and under the nom de plume of "Van Winkle," he made something of a reputation as a newspaper writer, both for the oil country and metropolitan press, his articles on various subjects of interest being written in a style to command the attention and appreciation of a wide circle of readers.

Mr. Abrams has devoted some part of his time to public affairs, believing it to be the duty of a good citizen, when called upon, to make some sacrifice of time and private interests for the welfare of his party and the cause of good government. A staunch Republican, he was elected a delegate to the State convention that nominated Senator Quay for State treasurer, in 1885. He also served as chairman of the Republican County Committee in the Beaver campaign, in 1886, and was elected in 1892 alternate delegate to the Republican National Convention at Minneapolis. He was Presidential elector in 1896 and in January, 1897, cast his ballot for McKinley and Hobart. His advice has always carried weight in the local councils of his party.

Butler having no public park, Mr. Abrams interested himself in the matter and in 1908 succeeded in persuading a land company to cancel the contract to cut down a forest of noble white oak and other trees; and he secured twenty public spirited citizens who purchased eight acres of woodland, and thus preserved a beautiful natural park within the borough limits. If there is anything in his history that he thinks worthy of special record, it is that he has led a life of absolute integrity and has done what he could to promote the good things in our government.

Mr. Abrams was married, August 20, 1879, by Bishop Stevens, to M. Genevieve, daughter of Charles M. Allen. Mr. Allen was formerly consul to the Bermuda Islands, being appointed to that office by President Lincoln during the Rebellion, and continued to fill it until his death in 1888. Mr. and Mrs. Abrams are the parents of Myra Genevieve, Lucile, wife of Lieut. Donald C. Cubbison, U. S. A.; Eleanor, Edward Everett, Allen, Dorothy Hannah, John McClelland, Richard Henry and Elizabeth Loveberry. Dorothy died in 1895 at age of two years.

The family belong to the First Presbyterian Church, of which Mr. Abrams is a Trustee.

HENRY A. RITNER, the popular and efficient postmaster of Bruin, Pennsylvania, is a leading citizen of this place and he is also an honored veteran of the great Civil War. Mr. Ritner was born at Darlington, Beaver County, Pennsylvania, April 22, 1837, and is a son of Nathaniel and Isabella B. (Vogan) Ritner.

Mr. Ritner can trace a distinguished ancestry. His great-grandfather Ritner was a native of Alsace, France, and after coming to America, established his home in Lancaster County. His son, Joseph Ritner, founded the Crawford County branch of the family, and he bore the same name as did his cousin, Governor Joseph Ritner, who was once the chief executive of Pennsylvania. On the maternal side the family was noted for its military valor, Great-grandfather James Vogan serving with distinction in the Revolutionary War and Grandfather James Vogan being equally prominent in the War of 1812. The latter was one of the early settlers in Butler County, coming before the first courthouse was erected—a simple log structure which stood on the site of the present fine building—and he attended the first session held there.

Henry A. Ritner was about nine years old when his father died and three years later he accompanied his mother, step-father George Clupper, and other members of the family, to Mercer County. His educational opportunities were meager and when fourteen years of age he was apprenticed to a shoemaker, at Grove City, with whom he remained for three years. Following this he worked as a journeyman until the opening of the Civil War. He was then twenty-four years of age and, like thousands of other young men, had probably planned a life with which the booming of cannon and the terrors and dangers of war had nothing to do. Nevertheless, when duty called he answered the summons and on October 17, 1861, he enlisted in Company H, Fourth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Cavalry, commanded by Col. Robert J. Phipps, of Franklin, Pennsylvania. After three years of hard service, Mr. Ritner was honorably discharged. In the interim he had participated in many of the most decisive battles of the whole war, including those of Fredericksburg, the second battle of Bull Run, Antietam and the long series of engagements in the Shenandoah Valley. Although at all times a brave and fearless soldier, he escaped all serious injury and practically unharmed he returned to his home. In 1872 he came to Martinsburg, now Bruin, and for a time was engaged in the oil fields and then started his shoemaking shop and has been interested more or less in working at this trade ever since, although, since 1900, when he was appointed postmaster, his time has been mainly given to public duties.

Mr. Ritner married Ann E. Davidson, who was born at Slippery Rock, Pennsylvania, and they have two children, Frank L. and Mary W., both residing at Bruin. Mr. Ritner and family belong to the Methodist Episcopal Church. In his political views he is a strong Republican. Formerly he served as commander of Lysander Robb Post, No. 530, Grand Army of the Republic, at Bruin, which subsequently was discontinued, but he has never lost his interest in this great organization of his comrades.

THOMAS ALEXANDER, treasurer of Butler County and a leading citizen who is interested in oil producing and contracting, has been a resident of the city of Butler for the past twenty-two years. He was born in Brady Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, September 22, 1844, and is a son of Ambrose and a grandson of Thomas Alexander.

Grandfather Thomas Alexander was born in the north of Ireland and came to Butler County among the early settlers, taking up land in Brady Township, on which he continued to live until 1854 when he moved to Franklin Township where he resided until death. On the farm in Brady Township his son, Ambrose Alexander, spent his life, mainly engaged in agricultural pursuits, and died in old age and was buried at West Liberty.

Thomas Alexander bears his grandfather's name. He remained on the home farm until he was twenty-one years of age and then found employment in the oil fields, visiting those of Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia, and ever since has been more or less concerned in oil producing and oil contracting. In 1886 he came to Butler and very soon became one of the city's active and useful citizens. He has served three years as a member of the City Council and for three years as a member of the School Board. In 1905 he was elected treasurer of Butler County, for a period of three years, and his administration of this weighty office has been marked with the efficiency that its importance demands.

In 1871 Mr. Alexander was married to Miss Elizabeth J. Double, and they have had five children, namely: Lulah J., who is the wife of Emory Beighley, of Butler; Harriet Lillian, who died when aged twenty-one years; John W., who died in May, 1908, aged thirty-four years; Harry McDevitt, who resides at Butler; and Mary Hortense, who is the wife of Claud Burns, of Vandergriff, Pennsylvania. Mrs. Alexander belongs to the United Presbyterian Church. He is a member of the Woodmen of the World.

CHARLES A. FETZER, one of Chicora's leading business men, conducting a haberdasher and general clothing store, is his father's successor, he having founded it many years ago. Mr. Fetzer was born at Chicora, Butler County, Pennsylvania, in 1872, and is a son of Gotlieb Frederick and Harriet (Fleeger) Fetzer. Gotlieb Frederick Fetzer, was born in Germany and was about eight years old when his parents brought him to America. They settled in Butler County, where both shortly afterward died and he spent his whole subsequent life in this county, almost the whole of his mature years being devoted to merchandising. He first was in partnership with H. L. Westerman for five years, when Mr. Fetzer withdrew for a time but later became again associated with Mr. Westerman, for a few more years. He then entered into partnership with John G. Myers and they conducted a mill and had farm and oil interests. Mr. Myers withdrew after some years but Mr. Fetzer operated the mill, with his other enterprises, until his death on August 28, 1907, at the age of sixty-nine years. He married Harriet Fleeger, who died in September, 1881, aged thirty-seven years. She was a daughter of Solomon Fleeger, one of the early settlers in this section. They had a family of seven children, namely: Emma (Hummell), Agatha (Herriek), Clara (Jacobs), Charles A., Albert J., William H. and Frank E. Mr. Fetzer was a man of many fine traits of character and he is remembered by his fellow citizens with feelings of respect and esteem. As one of the older business men of this place, he had much to do with its material development.

Charles A. Fetzer attended the public schools at Chicora until he was fourteen years of age and then became a clerk in the Westerman store, where he continued for six years, going then in the same capacity to Pittsburg, two years later returning to his father's store, where he continued until the death of the latter, when he purchased the business and has devoted himself to its successful continuance.

Mr. Fetzer married Mary Donahue, in 1898, who died in 1905, leaving four children: Charles J., Agatha, Gerald and Catherine. In January, 1908, Mr. Fetzer was married (second) to Miss Anna

HON. IRA McJUNKIN

Hodges, of Pittsburg. He is a member of the English Lutheran Church at Chicora. He belongs to the order of Elks, No. 170, of Butler, and to the Protected Home Circle at Chicora.

LESLIE P. HAZLETT, president of the Butler County National Bank, and a prominent representative of the important oil industry of this section, was born upon his parents' farm in the neighboring county of Allegheny, in the year 1843. The parents, James and Margaret Hazlett, removed to Butler County, settling on the line of Connoquenessing and Forward Townships, where James Hazlett purchased a farm.

Leslie P. Hazlett, being an ambitious youth, made the best of his educational opportunities, and after accompanying his parents to Butler County, he purchased a tract of fifty acres adjoining his father's farm, and subsequently purchased the parental homestead. He followed agriculture successfully for a number of years, but a large part of his ample fortune has been derived from the oil industry, in which he is now a large operator, being a member of the well known firm of Hazlett & McCullough. His farm property, which has proved one of his chief sources of wealth, lies within the Hundred Foot Field operated by the Forest Oil Company, the Columbia Oil Company, Abrams & Company and Elias Barnhart. In later years Mr. Hazlett's business experience has extended into other channels, and he is now the capable president of one of Butler County's most important financial institutions.

A Republican in politics, a part of his time has been devoted to the public service. He has been one of the school directors of his township for the last twenty-two years, and he has been a justice of the peace for five years. For forty years he has been a member of the Masonic fraternity, belonging to Harmony Lodge, No.

429, F. & A. M. Formerly a Presbyterian in religion, he later united with the Methodist Church.

Mr. Hazlett was married, in 1870, to Barbara Ziegler, a daughter of Jonas and Elizabeth Ziegler, of Harmony, Butler County. Mrs. Hazlett died in 1887, having been the mother of five children, namely: Letitia, who married Clinton Henshaw, resides on Mr. Hazlett's old home in Forward Township, and has two children—Ralph Leslie and Grace Ethel; George W., who is bookkeeper in the Butler County National Bank, where he has been employed for fourteen years; Lizzie, who resides with her father; Frank L., deceased; and Maggie, who married C. A. Ensminger, resides in Butler, and has one child—Helen Elizabeth.

HON. IRA McJUNKIN, a member of the Pennsylvania State Legislature, to which honorable body he was a second time nominated in the spring of 1908, is a prominent citizen of Butler County and a member of the Butler bar. He was born in this city, February 13, 1860, and is a son of James T. and Martha McJunkin.

Prior to his seventeenth year, Mr. McJunkin attended the public schools of Butler and Witherspoon Institute, and then entered the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland, securing this generally coveted appointment through Col. John M. Thompson. Mr. McJunkin was graduated from that institution in 1881, after which he spent two years in the service of the United States, attached to the Asiatic Station. After his return, desiring to follow other than a maritime life, he was honorably discharged in 1883. In the fall of the same year he entered upon the study of law in the office of Judge McJunkin, and on April 10, 1886, he was admitted to the bar. His ability in his chosen profession was soon recognized, and in 1892 he was elected district attorney of Butler County. In the meanwhile, he had become active in politics, and in 1906 he was first elected a member of the State Legislature of Pennsylvania. His attitude on public questions and his usefulness to his own section, his loyalty to party and fidelity to principle, all contributed to his continued popularity and in 1908 he was renominated to the Legislature and again reelected.

Mr. McJunkin had long been identified with the Fifteenth Regiment, Pennsylvania National Guards, and his military record in connection with the same is as follows: In May, 1898, was mustered into the United States service at Mt. Gretna as captain of Company E, Fifteenth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers, and was mustered out at Athens, Georgia, February 1, 1899; was appointed captain and adjutant on the staff of Col. W. T. Mechling, Fifteenth Regiment Pennsylvania National Guards in 1900, served in the Homestead riots and was placed on the retired list by General Order No. 28, 1900. He entered the State service with the rank of first lieutenant and was subsequently elected and reelected captain.

Mr. McJunkin belongs to the Masons and the Odd Fellows. He was reared by a careful mother in the faith of the Presbyterian Church.

JOHN H. HEINER, a prominent citizen, whose headquarters are at Bruin, Pennsylvania, for years has been very prominently identified with oil and gas production in Butler County, having large interests on Bear Creek, in Parker Township. He was born at Kittanning, in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, February 12, 1842, and is a son of Daniel Broadhead and Mary (Graham) Heiner.

Capt. Casper Heiner, the great-grandfather of John H., was a Revolutionary soldier. He married Ann G. Broadhead, the only child of Gen. Daniel Broadhead, who served in the Revolutionary War with Gen. Washington, was prominent in Indian warfare, for a time was commander at Fort Pitt and later served as the first surveyor-general of the State of Pennsylvania. Of their children, John Heiner became the grandfather of John H. Heiner and he settled among the early people at Kittanning, married a lady who was of Virginia birth, and reared a large family.

Daniel B. Heiner, father of John H., was a leading business man of Kittanning and a prosperous citizen. He engaged in merchandising and also in the manufacture of furniture and spinning wheels, and for a quarter of a century served as a justice of the peace. He married Mary Graham, who was born at Butler, Pennsylvania, a daughter of Robert Graham, an early settler of that borough. Her father at one time owned a farm in the north end of Butler where now stand some of the best residences. He and Mr. Cunningham donated part of the ground that forms the present site of Butler. The following children were born to this union: Robert G., deceased, who was formerly a captain in the United States Army; John H.; William G., formerly a member of the State Legislature, who is a resident of Kittanning; Daniel B., who resides at Kittanning, was formerly a member of Congress and was United States attorney under the first administration of the late President McKinley and at the present writing (1908) is serving as a Government official in Western Pennsylvania; Mary L., who lives in the old home at Kittanning; Sarah K., residing at Washington, Pennsylvania, who is the widow of Rev. J. F. Core; Margaret, deceased; Annie E., who is the widow of Thomas W. Dickson, formerly of Yankton, South Dakota, now of Kittanning; Lydia, the youngest of the family, who is the wife of Major Percy E. Tripp, a graduate of West Point and an officer in the United States Army.

John H. Heiner was reared at Kittanning and obtained his education in her excellent schools. During some years of earlier business life he was a member of the firm of Heiner Bros., manufacturers of building supplies, lumber dealers and planing mill operators, but for the past thirty-five years he has given his almost exclusive attention to the oil industry. He is one of the pioneer oil producers of Parker Township, a rich oil field of Butler County, and it is largely owing to his persistence and enterprise that this territory has so greatly prospered. For some years past he has also been developing gas, and supplies gas to Bruin and surrounding territory.

Mr. Heiner is also a veteran of the Civil War, enlisting in the Federal Army in the spring of 1861, in Company A, Eighth Regiment, Pennsylvania Reserves, which became a part of the Army of the Potomac. He participated in the memorable battles of Gettysburg, the Wilderness and all the other engagements in which his regiment took part until the summer of 1864, when he was honorably discharged. He is a charter member of John Croll Post, No. 156, Grand Army of the Republic, at Kit-tanning.

Mr. Heiner married Miss Mary H. Pershing, of Pittsburg, who is a daughter of Rev. I. C. Pershing, D.D., who formerly was president of the Pittsburg Female College, which is no longer in existence, but which was a noted educational institution in its day. Mr. and Mrs. Heiner have three children: Mary C., who is the wife of Paul Sturtevant, a resident of Pittsburg; and Helen G. and John P., both residing at Butler. The family home is situated at No. 107 Standard Avenue, Butler.

In politics, Mr. Heiner is a Republican. He has served on the School Board in Parker Township, at times as the president of that body and takes a good citizen's interest in public affairs. He is a member of the board of directors of the First National Bank at Bruin and was one of the promoters of the same. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Bruin.

A. A. MARSHALL, proprietor of a fancy and staple grocery business, located at No. 109 East Jefferson Street, Butler, is one of the city's leading business men. He was born in the northern part of Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of the late Samuel T. Marshall.

Samuel T. Marshall was born at Parker, Pennsylvania. For many years of his mature life he was engaged in merchandising at Parker and North Hope, Butler County, and was an active political factor in the county. For a protracted period he was clerk to the Board of County Commissioners and subsequently was elected a member of that body and served with the greatest efficiency.

A. A. Marshall has been a life-long resident of Butler County and has been engaged in business since his boyhood. For fourteen years he was with the Hamilton Bottling Works and for some years has successfully conducted his present enterprise. In addition to dealing in first class groceries, he carries also a fine line of confectionery.

Mr. Marshall has been quite prominent in several fraternal organizations, particularly in the Woodmen of the World and the Protected Home Circle. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He has been a resident and tax payer of Butler for the past twenty years.

CHARLES STOKEY, burgess of Zelenople, and a life-long resident of Butler County, is one of the prominent and enterprising citizens of Zelenople, where he has resided for the past thirty years.

He was born April 22, 1856, in Jackson Township, a son of Henry and Margaret (Behr) Stokey.

Henry Stokey was born in 1822 in Alsace, France, where he grew to maturity and during the early fifties, when the government was changed from a republic to a monarchy he became dissatisfied and emigrated to the United States. He had prior to this made three trips to this country, and first located in Philadelphia for a short time, after which he removed to Pittsburg. He continued his residence in this city for two years, at the end of which time he located on a farm in Jackson Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania. In 1864 he became proprietor of a hotel, which he conducted successfully until 1869, when he located on a farm, which is now a part of the present site of Evans City. In 1878, he purchased the Old Eagle Hotel at Zelienople, conducting same until the time of his death in 1883. Henry Stokey married Margaret Behr, who was also born in Alsace, France, in 1830, and is at present a resident of Zelienople. The following children were born to Henry Stokey and his estimable wife, namely: Theodore, died aged seventeen years; Henry, proprietor of the New Hotel Stokey; Jacob, and Lewis, residing on a farm in Jackson Township; and Charles, the subject of this sketch.

Charles Stokey, was reared in Jackson Township and obtained his educational training in the common schools of that locality. He devoted considerable time to the work on the farm and after leaving school worked for three and a half years at the harness trade in Evans City. In 1878, when his father purchased the Old Eagle Hotel of Zelienople he became manager of it, continuing as such until the death of the father in 1883, after which he took entire charge of the hotel until 1899. He then leased the hotel for five years, and in 1904 again became its proprietor. Shortly afterward, he disposed of it, since which time he has lived in retirement on the old Amos Lusk farm, which is located in Zelienople. There is a fine running spring on the place, and it is claimed that General Washington drank from it on his way from Allegheny County to Venango.

Mr. Stokey is a Democrat in politics and has always taken an active interest in the affairs of his party. He has served as a member of the Town Council, and in March, 1903, was elected burgess of the village of Zelienople. He resigned from same and was again elected in 1906. He is a director of the First National Bank of Zelienople. Mr. Stokey is very prominently identified with fraternal organizations. He is a Mason, of the Blue Lodge No. 429 Harmony; Royal Arch Chapter of Butler County; Tankard Commandery of Pittsburg No. 48, and of the Pittsburg Consistory. He is also a member of the Ancient Order of the Arabic Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

Mr. Stokey is the father of the following children: Leila; Ellsworth; Russell and Herschell (twins), and Carl.

THOMAS R. HOON, in former years one of the substantial and representative citizens of Centre Township, Butler County, and for some years sheriff of the county, was born in Centre Township, December 3, 1835, a son of John Hoon. He was reared and educated in his native township, and after beginning industrial life, was engaged in teaming until 1860. He then went to Oil Creek, Venango County, where, until 1862, he was employed in the oil business. In the year last mentioned he enlisted in Company G, One Hundred and Thirty-seventh Pennsylvania Volunteers, with which regiment he served until the close of the war. He took part in some of the bloodiest and most important battles waged by the Army of the Potomac, including those of South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, the Wilderness, the operations in front of Richmond, and the closing scenes which culminated in the surrender of Lee at Appomattox. He had served under Generals McClellan, Burnside, Hooker and Grant. After being mustered out, he returned to Butler County and engaged in farming on the old homestead, having 300 acres of well improved land. Here he followed agriculture until his death, which took place July 13, 1904.

Mr. Hoon was a successful farmer, being both industrious and progressive. He possessed in a high degree the confidence of his fellow citizens, and served at different times in most of the township offices. He was at one time sheriff of Butler County, in which position he showed his courage and capacity on the occasion of the capture of the Biddle brothers, of whom he had charge in the hospital jail, and who had to be guarded at the point of a revolver.

In politics Mr. Hoon was a Republican. He took great interest in Grand Army affairs, being a useful and active member of John Randolph Post. He also belonged to the Patrons of Husbandry.

Mr. Hoon was married, March 23, 1871, to Sarah J. Jones, a daughter of David Jones, of Franklin Township. They had seven children, namely: George H., now deceased; Mary, the wife of Dr. Wasson, died March 11, 1908; William C., deceased; John R., who is now county detective, with an office in the Butler County National Bank Building, and residence at No. 532 Mifflin Street; Nancy B.; Henrietta and Lina. Mrs. Hoon, who survives her husband, resides at No. 428 Mifflin Street, Butler.

ISAAC N. JOHNS, one of the successful oil producers and agriculturists of Parker Township, was born August 10, 1865, near Kittanning, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of John and Nancy (Hooks) Johns, natives of Arm-

When Isaac N. Johns was still a small lad his father died, and his mother subsequently married W. M. Henry, by whom the youth was reared, his education being secured in the public schools of Armstrong County. On attaining his majority, Mr. Johns engaged in agricultural pursuits, and in the early nineties he located in Parker Township, where he is now half-owner in a farm of forty-six acres and the oil wells thereon, W. H. Orton of Parker's Landing being the owner of the other one-half of the property. Mr. Johns is a self-made man, and his success in life is due to his own energy and enterprise. He is a Republican in political matters, and devotes a great deal of his time and attention to movements in behalf of the advancement of education. He has shown himself to be a man of integrity, and his rating is high in business circles.

On November 15, 1891, Mr. Johns was married to Elizabeth C. Levier, who was born in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, a daughter of the late Josiah Levier. Mr. and Mrs. Johns have had the following children: Byron B., Forest F., Waldo W., Melvin M., Hazel Ione, Elma V. and Myrtle V.

JOHN YOUNKINS, one of the best known oil operators of Butler County, a member of the firm of Younkings Brothers, at No. 340 N. McKean Street, Butler, was born in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, May 5, 1848, son of William and Sarah Younkings. His youth was spent on a farm and he acquired his education in the common schools. He became connected with the oil business soon after acquiring his majority, embarking in the business at Parker's Landing, in July, 1869. Afterwards he was engaged in it at Shamburg, Venango County, and subsequently at Mount Hope, Clarion County. He made his advent in Butler County, commencing business operations at Petrolia, and later extending them to the Bradford and Warren fields. In September, 1884, he returned to Butler, and has since confined his operations to this county. In addition to their extensive oil business, the firm of Younkins Brothers are large dealers in real estate, and they rank well up among the most prosperous business concerns of the county. Mr. Younkins' business responsibilities also include the presidency of the Farmers' National Bank. He held the office of tax collector of the borough of Butler, to which he was elected on the Democratic ticket, in February, 1894. His fraternal affiliations are with Ziegler Lodge, I. O. O. F. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Mr. Younkins was married, December 27, 1877, to Naomi C., a daughter of Robert H. Campbell, of Parker Township, this county. He and his wife are the parents of four children: Edith M., Myrtle F., Earl L. and Vera G.

WILLIAM V. POWELL, owner and proprietor of the Powell Boiler Works, a prospering enterprise of Chicora, is an experienced, practical machinist and boiler-maker, having been identified with the business since he was seventeen years of age. Mr. Powell was born June 28, 1867, in Pennsylvania, and is a son of Thomas and Mary (Richards) Powell.

Thomas Powell was born in Butler County and died in the same county, November 13, 1907. The main occupation that he followed through life was farming. He married Mary Richards, who has been a resident of Butler County for thirty-six years, but was born in Westmoreland County. They had the following children: J. W., William V., Walter and Thomas, both deceased, Anna, Sadie, deceased, Frank, C. E., and Nettie.

William V. Powell was six years old when his parents moved to Armstrong County, where the family lived for two years, returning then to Butler County, where he attended the public schools until he was fourteen years old. For three years he assisted his father and then entered the shop of Frank Quinn, to learn the boiler-making trade, after nine months going to Petrolia, where he was in the employ of J. C. Lyons, for five and one-half years. From there he went to Slade Run, in Forward Township, where he conducted a shop for three and one-half years and then engaged with the Forest Oil Company of that place and worked for that corporation for seven and one-half years. Mr. Powell then came to Chicora, where, in partnership with Fred Henman and W. C. Aikens, he bought out Charles Hunter, this transaction taking place November 11, 1900. Later, Mr. Henman sold his interest to Mr. Powell and three years afterward, Mr. Aikens died and since that time Mr. Powell has been sole owner and has conducted the business by himself. He does all kinds of repair work and builds gas and oil tanks. His business standing is high and his personal character without reproach, making him a truly representative citizen.

Mr. Powell married Miss Mary Aikens, of Butler County, and they have had two children: Iva, who was born July 4, 1892; and a babe that died early. Mr. Powell and wife are members of the English Lutheran Church. He belongs to the fraternal orders of the Woodmen of the World, the Woodmen of America and the Knights of Maccabees.

HON. THOMAS ROBINSON. Among those citizens of Butler County who have now passed off the scene of life, but whose memory will long be preserved and cherished by their fellow citizens, was Thomas Robinson, who, for seventy-one years was a resident of this section. He was born July 4, 1825, in County Armagh, Ireland, and was a son of Thomas and Arabella (Riley) Robinson.

HON. THOMAS ROBINSON

The parents of Mr. Robinson came to America and in 1832 they settled on a farm in the vicinity of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, and three years later secured farming land in Penn Township, Butler County, where the rest of their lives were spent.

Thomas Robinson was ten years old when his parents located in Penn Township and his early education was secured in the district schools in the neighborhood of his home. He was a grown man before the opportunity came to him to obtain more advanced instruction, as it was in 1851 that he entered Butler Academy. It is probable that he pursued his academic studies for about one year, subsequently teaching school for some two years and in 1854 securing recognition by those in authority in county affairs. He secured appointment as a clerk in the county commissioner's office and immediately began the study of law, under the direction of George W. Smith, and was admitted to the Butler bar September 25, 1855. Politics soon claimed his attention and in February of this year he had been sent as a delegate from Butler County to first Republican convention convened at Pittsburg. His ability was so generally recognized both in his profession and as a political factor that in 1860 he was elected to the Pennsylvania Legislature. In the troubled years which followed, Mr. Robinson, by tongue, pen and personal effort upheld the government in its struggle with rebellion and fearlessly advocated measures relative to public safety, often in the face of fierce opposition. During 1863-4 he was the able and resourceful chairman of the Butler County Republican committee. He was not an active seeker for office, his greatest interest being confined to journalism, but in 1876 he was nominated by the Republicans of the county for the Senate, but failed to secure the district nomination. In 1880 he was sent as a delegate to the Republican National Convention held at Chicago, supporting the claims of the great statesman, Hon. James G. Blaine, for the presidency. His name is indelibly associated with journalism in Butler County. In 1863 he founded the American Citizen, which still exists, under the title of the Butler Citizen, of which he was editor for several years. During many of his most active years he was editor and proprietor of the Butler Eagle, which he later sold to his son, Eli D. Robinson, who is the present postmaster at Butler. This journal, under the management of both father and son, ever wielded a large amount of influence throughout this section of the State.

Mr. Robinson married a daughter of Dr. Eli G. De Wolf and to this union was born a family of thirteen children, and the following survive: Eli D., Sallie A., Clara B., Adelaide K., Arabella, Electa, Charles C., George T., and Thomas. With his family, Mr. Robinson belongs to the Methodist Episcopal Church. While frequently outside affairs claimed a large measure of his attention, he never permitted them to cause him to forget the needs and demands of his family, friends or city. He was particularly interested in educational matters; served on the city school board, and was a trustee of the Slippery Rock State Normal School from the time of its organization until his death, which took place June 23, 1906.

C. E. MILLER, shoe merchant at Butler, conducting a large business with well appointed quarters at No. 215 South Main Street, has been a resident of this city for twenty-two years and in that time has built up a business that covers the whole county. He was born March 17, 1867, in Clarion County, Pennsylvania, but was taken by his parents to Armstrong County when a child.

Mr. Miller attended school in the country near his father's farm and later took a commercial course in Duff's Business College at Pittsburg, where he was graduated in 1887. He gained his first experience in the shoe trade as a clerk in John Bickel's store at Butler, where he remained three years, after which he was with B. Himmelfrich & Co., at Pittsburg, for more than a year, after that taking charge of the shoe department in a store at New Kensington, where he continued until 1893. Mr. Miller settled then at Butler, where he put in a good shoe stock, not more however than he, with the assistance of one clerk, could manage, and from that beginning the business has expanded until he now has the largest shoe store in the city and the biggest trade in his line in the county. He requires nine assistants and employs three wrapping girls and keeps three shoemakers busy. Honest goods and fair dealing have been Mr. Miller's assets, and their worth has been appreciated. In addition to this business, Mr. Miller is interested in oil production and is a stockholder in two banks. In politics, Mr. Miller is affiliated with the Republican party. Fraternally he belongs to the Odd Fellows and the Elks, and socially is a member of the Sterling Club.

GEORGE H. FOX, who follows general farming on a tract of seventy acres, located one and one half miles south-east of Cabot on the east side of Bear Creek, also does contract teaming, and is one of the leading and highly respected citizens of Winfield Township. He was born December 7, 1869, in Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Henry and Jane (Kanfold) Fox and a grandson of George Henry Fox, a native of Germany who came to this country at a very early period and located first in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, whence he came to Butler County and was among the earliest settlers.

George H. Fox was reared in his native county and received his elementary schooling in the district schools of that locality, completing his education in the common schools of Cabot, Pennsylvania.

On May 22, 1894, when twenty-four years of age, Mr. Fox was united in marriage to Adelia B. Kennedy, a daughter of Peter and Rachael (Cooper) Kennedy, well known farmers of Butler County, and of their union were born the following children: Mabel, aged twelve years, and Juanita, who is nine years old. Mr. Fox has always followed general farming and in connection with this is now engaged in contract teaming. He is a man of public spirit and enterprise, giving his support to all measures which tend toward the advancement of the community in which he lives. His farm of seventy acres is well improved and equipped with all the necessary out-buildings of a substantial kind and his residence is a comfortable two-story frame building.

In religious affiliation Mr. Fox is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Cabot, of which he is president of the board of trustees and was for some time superintendent of the Sabbath school.

HON. J. DAVID McJUNKIN, who for many years has been prominently identified with the affairs of Butler, Pennsylvania, is one of the practitioners before the courts of Butler County. He was born on the old homestead in Centre Township, Butler County, September 3, 1839, and is eldest son of William and Priscilla McJunkin.

Mr. McJunkin received a preliminary education in the common schools of his home district, supplemented by four years at Butler Academy, Witherspoon Institute and West Sunbury Academy. He taught school for several years, and in 1862 served as a member of Company G, Fourteenth Regiment of Pennsylvania Militia, to assist in repelling Lee's invasion of the State. His preparation for the legal profession was under the preceptorship of Judge McJunkin, and he was admitted to the bar of Butler County, June 8, 1863. The following year he removed to Franklin, Venango County, Pennsylvania, where he practiced with good results until 1873. During that time he was called upon to serve in official capacity, being elected to the State Legislature of Pennsylvania in 1869, and reelected in 1870 and 1871. He returned to Butler in 1873 and there has since resided and engaged in active practice. His activities have not been confined to his professional work, and in 1879 he was connected with the Bald Ridge Oil Company, whose operations were the means of attracting oil men to the further development of the Butler field. He is a Republican in politics, and has been an active worker for the success of that party. He was in 1880 and 1882 the choice of his county for the nomination for Congress; also in 1904 and 1908.

Mr. McJunkin was united in marriage with Miss Margaret A. Campbell, a daughter of James Campbell of Butler, and they became parents of the following children: Clara Bell; William David; Mary Christie, wife of Lewis R. Schmertz; Charles Campbell; John Welles; and Margaret Kathleen, who died in January, 1888. Religiously, he is a member of the Presbyterian Church, to the support of which he has contributed liberally.

HUMES A. McCANDLESS, who came to his fine farm of 100 acres, which is situated in Center Township, two miles south of Unionville, in 1868, is numbered with the representative men of his section and with its excellent and successful farmers. He was born near Unionville, in Center Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, June 14, 1832, and is a son of Nathan F. and Elizabeth (Thompson) McCandless.

Nathan F. McCandless was also born in Center Township and was a son of William McCandless, a native of Ireland, who came to this neighborhood when he was sixteen years old. The McCandless family is one of the oldest and most respected of the pioneer families of Center Township. Nathan F. McCandless was reared on his father's farm and spent his whole life in Center Township, where he died in 1890, aged eighty-seven years. He was married (first) to Elizabeth Thompson, who was born in what is now Brady Township, and who was a daughter of John Thompson, who was born in Ireland. There were nine children born of this marriage, five of whom still survive. Mrs. McCandless died when her son Humes A., was about eighteen years of age. Nathan F. was married (secondly) to Delilah Mitchell, and the two children born of the second marriage are now living.

Humes A. McCandless obtained his education in the country schools, grew to manhood on the home farm, and has made farming his main business in life. In 1864 he gave one year to the service of his country, enlisting in Company A, Sixth Regiment, Pennsylvania Heavy Artillery. After the close of his military service he returned to the farm at home, where he remained until his marriage, when he came to his present property.

In 1868 Mr. McCandless was married to Martha Thompson, who is a daughter of James and Sarah (Allison) Thompson. She was born in Allegheny County but came to Center Township in early girlhood. Mr. and Mrs. McCandless have eight children, namely: Josiah N. married Amanda McKee and they have five children; Orrin Bert married Mildred Stevenson and they have five children; Algerta married Elmer Cramer, and they have two children; Adella married Everett Cramer and they have five children; Martha J.; James T. married Lyda Albert and they have two children; Newton H. married Stella Albert, and they have two children; and William J. married Maggie Kummer, and they have one child. Mr. McCandless is a leading member of the Presbyterian Church in Center Township.

NATHANIEL S. GROSSMAN, one of the present commissioners of Butler County, has been a resident of the city of Butler since his election to this responsible office in November, 1905. He is a member of one of the pioneer families of the county and was born in Franklin Township—the portion which now constitutes Brady Township—in September, 1845, son of John and Eliza (Stevenson) Grossman.

He is a descendant in direct line of Simon Grossman, a native of Germany, who came to America about 1740, settling in what is now Adams County, Pennsylvania, on Mass Creek, near the present town of Gettysburg. The line of descent from this founder of the family in this country is Simon (1), Benedict (2), Simon (3), John (4), Nathaniel S. (5).

Simon, the immigrant ancestor, was married twice, but so far the name of neither of his wives has been ascertained. Of his children, besides Benedict, who was born on the passage over to this country, there were Simon, of whom nothing further is known; Margaret or Peggy; Rosa, who it is said married a Mr. Sawyer; and another daughter, Mary, who became the wife of Matthias Sawyer and the mother of eleven children, whose names need not here be given. It is possible, perhaps probable, that Simon had other children, but if so their history is unknown to that branch of the family under present consideration. It is thought, however, that a certain Michael Grossman, who was born about 1745 near Lancaster, Penna., across the Susquehanna River, towards the mountains, was another son of Simon's, though the evidence on that point is not conclusive.

Benedict Grossman, second in this line of descent, and great grandfather of the subject of this sketch, married a Mrs. Betsey Siebert, whose maiden name was Grove. When a child but seven years old she was captured by Indians and scalped, but her life was spared and she lived with the Indians until she was thirteen, when she was exchanged. In after years when she accompanied her husband to Butler County, she recognized several localities along Slippery Rock as places where she had been with the Indians. Benedict and Betsy Grossman were the parents of six children—Simon, Katy, Betsy, Jacob, Polly, and Benjamin—most of whom, if not all, were born in Adams County, Penna., though in later years they came to Butler County. Benedict is buried on the Abner McCallen farm, near Annandale, Butler County. He was one of the first settlers in Cherry Township.

Simon Grossman, eldest son of Benedict and grandfather of Nathaniel S. Grossman, left Adams County when about eighteen years of age and went to Huntington County, Penna., where he afterwards married Elizabeth Carothers. They resided in Huntington County until after the birth of their two eldest children, when they moved on west to Butler County, and soon settled on the farm where John W. Grossman now lives in Brady Township. To Simon and Elizabeth were born nine children, namely: Benjamin and Elizabeth (both born in Huntington County), Alexander, Hugh C., Simon, John, Mary, Robert, and James McKee Grossman.

John Grossman, son of Simon and father of Nathaniel S. Grossman, was born in what is now Brady Township in 1812, and his entire life was spent in Butler County, where he followed agricultural pursuits. He married Eliza Stevenson and took up his residence on the farm now owned by John W. Grossman. Later he removed to the farm now owned by Alfred Grossman in Brady Township. He and his wife were the parents of a large family, numbering ten children,—Benjamin C., Nathaniel S., John A., Jennie, Elizabeth, Robert Marion, Hugh Forrest, Margaret W., George G., and a daughter who died in infancy. Robert Marion and George also died when quite young. Benjamin C. enlisted in the Union army at the time of the Civil War and served four years. After his return he went to Missouri, where he married Jane Blakeley. They had two children, John H. and Ida B., the latter of whom married Harry Hatzell. Benjamin became quite a prominent citizen in his new home. He was elected county judge, an office similar to that of county commissioner in Pennsylvania. He was postmaster for several years and cashier in the Bosworth Bank for a number of years, but finally resigned this latter position on account of failing health. He died May 31, 1906.

John A. Grossman, son of John and Eliza Grossman, taught school for several years and was also engaged in mercantile business at Greece City, and later in Prospect in partnership with W. R. Riddle. He died at the home of his brother Nathaniel, March 12, 1875.

Jennie Grossman married John Johnston and their children are Everett, Mina, who married Joseph Kissick, Forrest, Floyd, Earl, and Mossie, the last mentioned died in 1904.

Elizabeth Grossman, another sister of the subject of this sketch, married Oren Dodds. She died March 6, 1876.

Hugh Forrest went to Missouri and there married Lula Timbrook. After residing in that state for several years he went farther west to Oklahoma Territory (now state), where he is still living. He has one child, Jeanetta, who married Ayers K. Ross.

Margaret W. Grossman married Andrew Wahl of Evans City, and they have one child, Clyde M.

Nathaniel S. Grossman was twelve years old when his parents removed from Brady to Franklin Township, and there, after the usual attendance at school, he engaged in farming, dairying, and stock-raising until he was elected county commissioner. He was also one of the stockholders in the Prospect Creamery. He has long been regarded as one of the leading agriculturists of this section. Since reaching manhood he has been more or less interested in politics, and as a man of ability and sterling character, he has been elected to various local offices. He has always justified the confidence of his fellow citizens and he is considered one of the most efficient members of the present county board.

In 1874 Mr. Grossman was married to Miss Mary Kennedy, who is a daughter of Robert Kennedy, a resident of Butler County. They have two sons, Marion Curtis and Robert K. The former, who continues the operation of the home farm, married Minnie Weitzel, of Franklin Township, and they have a son—Nathaniel Lloyd. Robert K. is clerk in the county commissioners' office. He married Lida Millingar, of Oakland Township. Mr. Grossman is a member of the Presbyterian Church at Prospect and for several years served as one of its trustees. He has been an active member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows since 1874.

D. L. BOWSER, who has been identified with the oil interests of Parker Township for a period covering twenty years, was born May 5, 1857, in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of John F. and Jane (Saddler) Bowser, natives of that State.

D. L. Bowser was reared near Kittanning, where his school days were spent, and at the age of nineteen years, with other members of his family, came to Butler County, where he has since been a resident, most of this time having been spent in Parker Township. Although he received but a meager education, it was not long before Mr. Bowser began to show his ability in a business way, and for the past twenty years he has been one of the township's best known oil producers. He is known as a staunch friend to all educational movements, and as a citizen and business man his rating is high. The only survivors of Mr. Bowser's parents' family beside himself are: Sarah E., residing in Butler County; John M., who lives in Allegheny County; and Anna B., of Butler County.

Mr. Bowser was married to Rachel Phillips, of Allegheny City, Pennsylvania, a daughter of George and Elsie (Fish) Phillips, whose entire family were as follows: Delila, who married William Byers; Jemima, who married first William Bowser and second, John Johnson; Sarah E., who married Blair Hooks; Melissa, deceased; James Monroe, who married Josephine Moses; Ruth, who became the wife of John Ross; Curtis, who married Mary Wyant; Rachel, wife of the subject of this sketch; and Alfred, who married Louise Weber. Mr. Phillips' father at one time owned nearly all the ground on which the town of Phillipston now stands.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowser are the parents of three children, namely: Aida L., wife of G. N. Weitzel, of Parker Township and has one daughter, Helen M.; Claude E., a machinist employed by the Westinghouse Machine Company at Pittsburg, who married Florence O'Brien of that city and has a daughter, Garnet; and Twila Marie, who lives at home. In his political views, Mr. Bowser is a Prohibitionist with Republican proclivities, but he has not been active in public affairs, preferring to give his time and attention to his business interests.

HON. THOMAS HAYS, recently elected to the Pennsylvania State Senate from the Forty-first Senatorial District, composed of Armstrong and Butler Counties, is one of Butler County's most prominent citizens. He was born January 19, 1840, in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, where he grew to manhood and obtained a fair education in the local schools.

In September, 1861, he enlisted in Company B, One Hundred and Third Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, which formed part of the Fourth Corps, Army of the Potomac, and with his regiment he took part in the Peninsula Campaign and participated in the battles of Williamsburg, Seven Pines, Fair Oaks, and Malvern Hill. Later, when transferred to the Eighteenth Corps, he was stationed at Suffolk, Virginia. After the expiration of his first term of enlistment, in November, 1862, he reentered the army, becoming a member of Battery L, Fourth United States Artillery. His subsequent service included the siege of Suffolk, the operations around Yorktown, siege of Petersburg, battle of Cold Harbor and the engagements in front of Richmond. He was honorably discharged November 13, 1864. In the spring of 1867 he took up his residence on a farm in Fairview Township, Butler County, where he lived for ten years and then removed to Fairview, where he lived for twenty years. Since 1900 he has been largely interested in the oil industry and is one of the most successful oil producers of this section. He has many business interests aside from oil production. He is a director in the Farmers National Bank and is a partner in a large wholesale grocery concern. He erected the Waverly Hotel, which he still owns.

Senator Hays was married December 21, 1865, to Keziah J. Foster, who is a daughter of Christopher F. and Isabella Foster, of Armstrong County. They had six children born to them, namely: Jennie L., Christopher F., Robert N., Maud B., Thomas H. and Charles F. W. The family belong to the Presbyterian Church, Senator Hays being an elder therein. For many years he has been one of Butler County's most astute politicians and capable public men. He is a Republican in his political views and in 1902 he was elected to the State Legislature and was reelected to that body, serving until 1906. He has served also in borough offices where his efforts have always been directed to the improvement of the community and the general welfare of the people. In 1908 he was elected to the State Senate, his opponent being Dr. R. J. Grossman. He is prominent in the Masonic fraternity, a member of the Woodmen of the World, one of the Sons of the American Revolution and a member of Post 105 G. A. R. of Butler, Penna.

HON. THOMAS HAYS

HARRY SAMUEL KLINGLER, a member of the firm of H. J. Klingler & Company, proprietors of the Oriental Roller Mills, at Butler, is one of the best known, experienced and scientific millers in Western Pennsylvania. He was born in the borough of Butler, in 1856, and is a son of that veteran miller and prominent business citizen of Butler, Hermann Julius Klingler.

Harry Samuel Klingler was educated in the public schools of Butler and at Capital University, Columbus, Ohio. In 1875, when just out of college, he entered his father's mill, in order to learn the business in all its details. This he thoroughly accomplished, and in 1878 was made general manager of the concern, which position he still retains, being also a member of the firm of H. J. Klingler & Company. He has gained a wide reputation as an expert, practical miller, and has contributed to the literature of the trade some valuable articles, some of which were read before the Pennsylvania Millers' State Association, and others published in the leading trade journals. In July, 1883, he won the prize offered by the American Miller, for the best essay on "The Handling of Middlings and the Use of Purifiers." He contributed other articles to that paper during 1884-5 and for four years he informally supported by his pen the Milling Engineer, besides writing for other trade papers. His column of "Random Reflections" in other journals attracted wide-spread attention. In December, 1886, he was one of the prime movers in the organization of the Pennsylvania Millers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company, since which he has been one of the directors. He has also taken a material interest in other business enterprises of Butler, though never to the neglect of his chief life work—milling.

Brought up in the faith of the Lutheran Church, he has continued one of its steadfast adherents, and has been a useful worker in the local congregation. For nearly ten years he served acceptably as superintendent of the Sunday school, and at the Fifty-first Convention of the Pittsburgh Synod of the General Council, held at Greensburg, Pennsylvania, September 13-20, 1893, he was elected a trustee of Thiel College, of Greenville.

On February 8, 1878, Mr. Klingler was married to Louisa Catherine Keek, who is a daughter of Jacob Keek, of Butler. They have seven children: Charlotte Frederica, William Julius, Alberta Barbara, Clara Louisa, Harry Samuel Jr., Florence Elizabeth, and Ethel Pauline. The family home is at No. 141 East Jefferson Street, Butler.

Hermann Julius Klingler, father of Harry Samuel, and the founder of the firm of H. J. Klingler & Company, was born near Wurtemberg, Germany, and came of a family of millers. He was fourteen years old when he came to America, and with other members of the family settled on a farm in Manor Township, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania. When eighteen years of age he married and then moved to Kittanning, where, for about one year, he was employed as a clerk in a store. On coming to Butler, in 1849, he engaged in a hotel business, purchasing the old United States Hotel, on the corner of Main and Jefferson Streets. In 1852, on the site of the old property, he built the Lowry House and conducted that hostelry for the following eight years. With James Campbell, under the style of Campbell & Klingler, he also engaged in the dry goods business, having a store on the southwest corner of Main and Mifflin Streets. At a still later period he entered into the foundry business, with Martin Reiber, under the style of Reiber & Klingler. He sold his hotel property in 1860 and in the same year built a substantial and commodious residence on the southwest corner of Jefferson and McKean Streets, where he still resides with his son.

In 1862 Hermann J. Klingler gave up his other business interests to engage in the oil industry and entered into partnership with John Berg, Sr. For several years they operated above Oil City, and they were among the first to engage in shipping petroleum to Europe. The first consignment was made to Liverpool in 1863 and the cargo was in charge of Mr. Klingler and John Berg, Jr. It was during this trip that Mr. Klingler paid a visit to his old home and while there visited many points of interest which his years of absence on the farther side of the Atlantic Ocean had made more important to him. In 1865 Mr. Klingler took a leading part in organizing the Butler County Oil Company, and acted as its superintendent during its two years of existence. It was mainly through his agency that the company acquired 12,000 acres of land in Butler, Armstrong and Beaver Counties. On this land, in a section extending from Parker to below Millerstown, he drilled four test wells. Owing to the fact that the drilling was not carried through to the second sand, no oil was obtained and the territory was abandoned, although subsequently, after more complete tests, it proved to be one of the richest oil fields in the State.

It was in 1867 that Mr. Klingler turned his attention to the business for which, above all others, he had an especial predilection, that of milling, heredity making itself felt. He commenced by building a grist mill on Mifflin Street, which was known as Klingler's Mills. In 1876 he built the present main office at No. 139 East Jefferson Street. A year later he remodeled his mill, adapting it to the new process, a method for regrinding the purified middlings on a small millstone having been invented. Several years afterward he began making use of rolls, being one of the pioneers in this method of milling, and in 1883-4 he reconstructed his mill, installing an entire roller system, after which the plant adopted its present title of the Oriental Roller Mills. In 1885 he further improved his facilities by building a shipping house, 50x110 feet, locating it opposite the West Penn Railroad station.

On March 1, 1886, an important change was made in the business, Mr. Klingler taking as partners his two sons, Harry S. and Fred J., and from that time the business was conducted on a more extensive scale, under the style of H. J. Klingler & Company. In 1889 the plant was further enlarged by the erection of the Specialty Roller Mills and the West Penn Elevator, on the site of the shipping house, a part of the latter being utilized for the purpose. Still more improvements were made in 1891, the Oriental Mills being enlarged and remodeled both outside and in. Both plants were remodeled in 1907 and 1908, making the property one of the most complete and modern roller plants in the United States. In various other ways besides those mentioned, Mr. Klingler has been an active factor in the advancement and prosperity of the community. He was one of the organizers and directors of the First National Bank of Butler, resigning his connection therewith four years later to help organize the Butler Savings Bank, of which he became a director. He also helped to found the German National Bank of Millerstown, of which he was a director and stockholder for a number of years, and was president of the National Gas Company until its purchase by its present owners. He was elected president of the Butler Improvement Association, on its organization in 1887 and took a leading part in securing the location in Butler of business enterprises, one of which was the Standard Plate Glass Factory, of which he served as president and general manager for many years. In 1890, he platted twelve acres of land between Millin and Penn Streets, into thirty-nine lots, and at the same time created the thoroughfare known as Broad Street, which he improved, and built many fine residences in other parts of Butler. Mr. Klingler continues to take an interest in everything that contributes to the moral or material betterment of this city. He has been almost a life-long member of the Lutheran Church. For many years he was a director and for more than ten years was treasurer of Capital University, at Columbus, Ohio, which is the most important educational institution of the Evangelical Lutheran Joint Synod of Ohio and adjacent States. He was a delegate in 1893 from the Pittsburgh Synod to the General Council Lutheran Assembly at Fort Wayne. He has always been a Democrat in politics.

On October 24, 1848, Hermann J. Klingler married Anna Barbara Reiber, a daughter of Martin Reiber, Sr. Three of their eight children survive, namely: Harry Samuel, Frederick Julius, and Paul Gerhardt. Those deceased are Charles Washington, who is survived by his wife and six children, and four who died in infancy.

JOSEPH DOUBLE, whose fine farm of 137 acres lies in Donegal Township, about one and one-half miles southeast of Chicora and has three producing oil wells on it, is a native of Butler County, Pennsylvania, and was born in Brady Township, in 1840. His parents were Zephaniah and Elizabeth Double.

The parents of Mr. Double were pioneer settlers in Brady Township, where they lived until 1863, when they came to Donegal Township and purchased the present farm, which originally contained 199 acres. It was known as the old James Forquer place and at that time was owned by Solomon Filling. Zephaniah and Elizabeth Double died on this farm when advanced in years.

Joseph Double was twenty years old when he enlisted for service in the Civil War, entering Company F, One Hundred Thirty-seventh Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, in 1862, served nine months and was mustered out at Harrisburg, in 1863. During a large part of this time Mr. Double was sick, not being able to stand the unaccustomed hardships of a soldier's life. From the army he returned to Brady Township and in 1863 he accompanied his parents to Donegal Township and following their death he purchased the farm on which he has continued to reside, but which is managed by his son. Mr. Double has been engaged in carpenter work and building contracting during the greater part of his life and is still active in that direction.

In 1863 Mr. Double was married, in Brady Township, to Miss Lucinda Hilgar, a daughter of Rudolph and Elizabeth Hilgar, and they have had the following children: Peter R., John H., Zephaniah H., Elizabeth T., Joseph E., William E., Agnes L., James L., Thomas L., Jacob O., and Edward, all of whom survive except Joseph E.

Mr. Double is a member of the Grand Army of the Republic Post at Chicora and he belongs also to the Odd Fellows. He has taken much interest in the public schools of Donegal Township and for nine years has been a member of the School Board. He is one of the substantial and representative citizens of this part of Butler County.

HARRY B. SNAMAN, of the firm of Snaman Bros., complete house furnishers, at Butler, is one of the city's enterprising and successful young business men. He was born in 1871, in Allegheny City, Pennsylvania, and is a son of George W. and Ellen Jane (Dunlap) Snaman. The father of Mr. Snaman is a retired merchant of Allegheny, where he was in business for forty-three years. He married a daughter of Capt. Hance W. Dunlap, who commanded a boat on the Ohio River for many years and was an early settler at Allegheny in the year 1817.

Harry B. Snaman went to school until he was fourteen years of age and then entered his father's store, where he continued for seventeen years. When his father retired from business, Harry B., in association with his brother, Walter H., came to Butler, in 1903, and established the present business under the firm name of Snaman Bros., on North Main Street. Here they occupy 17,500 square feet of floor space and handle a complete line of house-furnishing goods. They are both capable business men and their honorable methods have won them a large trade.

In 1895 Harry B. Snaman was married to Miss Elizabeth Fink, a daughter of John B. Fink, a prominent oil man, who has been identified with the industry ever since the first well was drilled (the Drake well). Mr. and Mrs. Snaman have two children: Elizabeth and Catherine. They are members of the First Presbyterian Church. He has long been identified with the Odd Fellows and is also secretary of the Odd Fellow Club. Mr. Snaman is an active citizen and has served both as president and as treasurer of the Butler Board of Trade, and he is also connected with both the Butler and Sterling Clubs.

Walter H. Snaman, member of the firm of Snaman Bros., was born at Allegheny, Pennsylvania, graduated from the High School and then attended the Western University at Pittsburg. For the last twelve years he has been identified with his brother in business.

Mr. Snaman was married at Pittsburg, to Miss Blanche Kelly and they have three children: Marie, Neville and Dorothy. Mr. Snaman is a member of St. Paul's Catholic Church. Fraternally he is an Elk, a past grand knight of the Knights of Columbus, and a member also of the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association and of the Young Men's Association.

HENRY C. KEASEY, who is identified with many interests in Butler County, owns a profitably conducted farm in Winfield Township, deals extensively in lumber and is well known in the oil fields as a successful gas and oil operator. Mr. Keasey was born in Butler County, Pennsylvania, May 19, 1849, and is a son of Henry and Elizabeth Keasey.

The Keaseys had been furnace men for many years and when Henry Keasey came to Butler County it was to become manager of the furnace which was then owned by Mr. Speer, at Winfield. This furnace was capably operated by Mr. Keasey as long as the business was continued. He then turned his attention to farming and invested in 200 acres of land, which was formerly known as the Duff farm. On that property he spent the rest of his life, which closed on May 1, 1890.

Henry C. Keasey was the second son of his parents and his educational advantages were such as were generally afforded to youths of his day and station. In 1881 he went to Karns City, Pennsylvania, and for three years was interested there in a hotel business and later conducted hotels at Bennett, Taunton and Saxton, Pennsylvania. His present place of residence is Cabot, Pennsylvania, where he erected his handsome stone residence, which is one of the few in the county equipped with modern improvements. His farm is generally conceded to be one of the best improved in Butler County, Mr. Keasey being both a scientific farmer and a landowner who takes pride in developing and improving. He is interested in oil and gas, as above mentioned, and has two wells now producing, while another is being drilled with every prospect of success. Mr. Keasey markets his products in this line to the Standard Plate Glass Company of Butler.

His many interests require his presence at different points almost every day and in order to make each moment count, as a successful business man must do, he utilizes his large touring car, a handsome machine which has become a familiar sight on the highways in Winfield Township, where few others are yet in evidence.

Mr. Keasey married Miss Fannie Burtner, who is a daughter of Philip Burtner. They had one child, which is now deceased. So active a business man as Mr. Keasey has little time to devote to politics, but he has always taken an interest in local affairs and formerly served the township both as constable and as tax collector. He is a member of the order of Knights of Pythias and belongs to the lodge at Allegheny.

HENRY W. STOKEY, one of the leading citizens of Zelienople and the well known proprietor of the New Hotel Stokey, was born September 28, 1854, in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, and is the son of Henry and Margaret (Behr) Stokey.

Henry Stokey was born in Alsace, France, and after reaching manhood emigrated to America, locating first for a time in Philadelphia. He had previously made two or three trips to this country, but became dissatisfied with the condition of affairs in the province, and when the government was changed from a republic to a monarchy, decided to locate in the United States. He removed from Philadelphia to Pittsburg, remaining there several years, after which he moved to Evans City, Butler County, Pennsylvania. Here, in 1864, he engaged in the hotel business, continuing in same until 1869, when he purchased and located on a farm near Evans City. In 1878 he again entered the hotel business and purchased what was then known as the Eagle Hotel of Zelienople, after which it became known as the Stokey House and was under his management until the time of his death in 1883. His son Charles then took up the management of the hotel.

Henry and Margaret Stokey were the parents of the following children: Theodore, who was drowned when seventeen years of age; Henry W., the subject of this sketch; Jacob, who resides on part of the farm in Evans City; Lewis, who also resides on part of the farm in Evans City; and Charles, who is burgess of the borough of Zelienople, and was for many years manager of the Stokey House.

Henry W. Stokey spent his early boyhood days on his father's farm and attended the common schools of Evans City. In the fall of 1881 he engaged in the hotel business and purchased what was known as the Duncan House, buying it shortly after the erection of the building. This he conducted with much success until the fall of 1884 and then purchased a hotel that Mr. Duncan had later erected and this he called the Stokey House. He conducted this until 1888 and in the following year purchased a hotel located on the present site of his fine new hotel, The New Hotel Stokey. This was destroyed by fire in 1903 and the same year he erected the New Hotel Stokey, which is larger and up to date in every particular, having all the modern conveniences. It is located on the corner of Main and New Castle Street, has fifty well appointed rooms and is recognized in this portion of the state as the leading hotel between Pittsburg and New Castle west of Butler. Mr. Stokey has been engaged in the hotel business since 1881, having previous to entering the business for himself, acted as manager for his father for a number of years. The service at the New Hotel Stokey is of the best and the genial host is well deserving of the extensive patronage which he enjoys.

Mr. Stokey was united in marriage May 5, 1881, with Amelia Teets, a daughter of Lewis Teets of North Sewickley Township, Beaver County, Pennsylvania, and to them has been born one daughter, Carrie.

In politics, our subject is a Democrat, but has only given his attention to affairs concerning his locality. He is a member of Harmony Lodge No. 529 and is prominent in Masonic circles.

PORTER W. LOWRY, a prominent attorney at law and well known citizen of Butler, Pennsylvania, is a native of that city, born February 12, 1855, and is a son of Alexander and Margaret Lowry.

Mr. Lowry attended the public schools in early boyhood, after which he pursued a course of study in Witherspoon Institute. He read law under the direction of Hon. Ebenezer McJunkin, and was admitted to the bar of Butler County in 1876. He has since engaged in practice in Butler and has met with success, numbering among his clients many of the leading business interests of this city. He has been an active worker for the success of the Republican party and the principles it stands for, and was chairman of the Republican County Committee in 1894, when the party was given the largest majority in Butler County in its history.

Mr. Lowry was married on June 17, 1896, to Miss Jeanette Browne, and resides on West Pearl Street. He is active in Masonic work and is Past Master of Butler Lodge No. 272 F. & A. M. and a Past High Priest of Butler Royal Arch Chapter No. 273, and an officer in the Grand Chapter of Masons of Pennsylvania. He is a member of and an elder in the First Presbyterian Church of Butler.

OWEN J. THOMAS, residing on his valuable farm of 115 acres, which is situated near Parker's Landing, in Parker Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, has long been interested in oil production as well as agricultural industries. He was born on his present farm, July 21, 1839, and is a son of Owen and Martha (Johnston) Thomas.

Owen Thomas, father of Owen J., was born in Virginia and was a son of Owen Thomas, who was born in Wales and resided in Virginia for some years after coming to America. Later he removed to the vicinity of Lisbon, Ohio. There his son, Owen the second, was reared and moved from there in 1830 to Butler County, Pennsylvania, where he lived until his death, in 1868. He married Martha Johnston, who was born in Crawford County, Pennsylvania, and their surviving children are as follows: Ann E., who is the widow of Allen Crawford, resides at Greencastle, Missouri; George P., who resides at Green City, Missouri; Owen J.; Mary J., who is the wife of J. T. Jamison, of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania; Margaret, who is the wife of Thomas Blair, of Butler County; and Lucinda, who resides at Boston, Massachusetts. This family is one of unusual longevity and its members keep both minds and bodies active into advanced age.

Owen J. Thomas attended the schools conducted near his home through boyhood and thus secured a fair education. His connection with the oil industry dates from 1861. For the first eight years he followed boating on Oil Creek, in Venango County. In the winter of 1869 he became an oil producer at Parker's Landing and for a time was similarly interested at Karns City, Butler County, and meeting with encouraging success in his ventures, he continued and in 1876 began to operate on his own land. Another business enterprise which Mr. Thomas carried on advantageously was the manufacturing of mineral waters at Parker's Landing, Karns City and Petersburg, owning the plants in partnership with his brother Adam, the business being conducted under the firm name of Thomas Bros.

Mr. Thomas was married December 16, 1885, to Miss Ida Gibson, of Oil City, and they have two sons: Owen G., residing at Oil City, and Robert B., living at home. Mr. Thomas and wife are members of the First Presbyterian Church at Parker's Landing and he is a member of the board of trustees. In politics, he is a Democrat but he is a man of pronounced temperance views and looks with favor on many of the issues brought forward by the Prohibition party. For a number of years he has been a member of the Royal Arcanum League at Parker's Landing. He is a man who is held in the highest esteem by his fellow citizens.

JOSEPH L. PURVIS, who was one of the original members of the firm of S. G. Purvis and Company, lumber dealers, of Butler, was born in this city October 4th, 1838, son of Samuel G. and Elizabeth (Logan) Purvis.

His grandparents on his paternal side were William and Isabel (Dixon) Purvis.

He acquired his early education in the public schools and Witherspoon Institute of Butler, afterwards attending one of the commercial schools in the city of Pittsburg. He also studied architecture in the office of H. M. Reed in the city of Pittsburg.

He learned the carpenter trade under his father and in 1867 became his partner in the lumber and planing mill business under the firm name or style of S. G. Purvis and Co.

Though devoting his principal attention to the business, Mr. Purvis found time to interest himself in other promising business enterprises in Butler. He was president of the Butler Savings Bank from 1887 until 1902; he was one of the original members of the Home Natural Gas Company and one of the organizers of the Butler Water Company.

In politics a Democrat, he was elected by that party a member of the Borough Council, and for a period of fourteen years rendered useful service on the School Board. He early became a member of the United Presbyterian Church and served as trustee of the local congregation for a number of years. He was also chairman of the building committee which had in charge the erection of the present church edifice. He was also for two terms a member of the Board of Trustees of Westminster College. His death occurred on April 6th, 1907, and in his departure from earthly scenes the community lost one of its most sterling and respected citizens.

Mr. Purvis was married June 22, 1869, to Mary Ellen Bailey, who was a resident of Parker at the time of her marriage. Their home life was blessed by the birth of five children—Mary M., Samuel H., William B., Wilson L., and Joseph D. Mary is the wife of W. E. Robinson, an oil producer of Parker, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania. Samuel H. and Wilson L. conduct the firm of S. G. Purvis & Co., lumber dealers of Butler. William B., a graduate of Westminster College, New Wilmington, Penna., and also of the University of Pennsylvania Law School, is now an attorney of Butler. Joseph D. is a graduate of Washington and Jefferson College and of the Medical Department of the University of Pennsylvania. All the sons reside at home.

WILLIAM JOHN YOUNG, one of Center Township's enterprising and successful citizens, resides on his well improved farm of seventy-one acres, which is situated adjoining the Stony Run school house, the structure really being on his land. He was born in Concord Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, March 1, 1867, and is a son of Simon and Anna Eliza (Murtland) Young.

Simon Young was born in Center Township, Butler County, and was a son of Simon Young, an early settler. The father of William J. Young was a miller in his younger years but later became a farmer. For eight years following his marriage he continued to reside in Concord Township and then bought 150 acres in Center Township, a part of which is included in the farm of William J. Young. Simon Young was accidentally killed by a railroad train, June 24, 1901. He was survived by his widow and by five of his ten children.

William John Young has lived on his present farm ever since he was seven years of age. He has been engaged in the oil fields as a well driller for many years and still gives that business his attention in the winter time. He married Mary Elizabeth Miller, a daughter of Samuel Miller, of Center Township, and they have a family of seven children, namely: Edith Mae, Roy Simon, Earl Wayne, Allene Susannah, Dean Sheldon, Rudell Eliza, and John Burdette. In 1892 Mr. Young built his handsome residence and in 1896 he put up the substantial barn. He takes no very active interest in politics and has never consented to serve in any office except that of school director. He is a member of the order of Knights of Maccabees.

Paul E. Green completed the public school course at Butler and then became a clerk in the Schloss Brothers' clothing store. He continued there for nine years, when, in association with Dallas M. Young, he established the present firm of Green & Young. Mr. Green owns valuable city real estate and both he and Mr. Young have farms in Butler County. In 1900, Mr. Green was married to Miss Lulu M. Young, who is a daughter of Thomas B. Young, a very prominent oil producer in Butler County, and they have two children, Thomas Edgar and Helen Elizabeth. Mr. and Mrs. Green are members of the Second Presbyterian Church. He is identified with the Elks, the Knights of Malta and the Woodmen of the World, and belongs also to the Butler Business Men's Association.

JOSHUA J. McCANDLESS, one of Franklin Township's substantial citizens and self-made men, resides on his exceedingly valuable farm of 262 acres, every part of which, under his careful and intelligent methods, is made to produce abundantly. He was born on this farm, January 7, 1859, and is a son of John A. and Hannah (Stoughton) McCandless and a grandson of James McCandless.

John A. McCandless was a son of James McCandless, who was born in County Down, Ireland, and came to Franklin Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, as one of the first settlers. John A. lived in Franklin Township and followed farming all his life, with the exception of a few years when he carried on a store at Sunbury, during which time he also carried the mail. He married Hannah Stoughton, and eight of their nine children grew to maturity, namely: Alfred J., residing near Canton, Ohio; Joshua J.; Zillia Ann, the widow of James Kildoo, who lives in Brady Township; A. Carlton, residing in Slippery Rock Township; S. Calvin, residing in Clay Township; Mary Jane, wife of Alfred Kildoo, residing in Clay Township; Enphemia, wife of Ross Mechling, of Forest County; and John A., residing in Center Township. During his earlier years, John A. McCandless was a member of Mt. Zion Baptist Church, but later united with St. John's Methodist Episcopal Church near Sunbury.

Joshua J. McCandless has lived on the home farm all his life with the exception of two years. When he started out for himself he went into debt $4,000, for his fifty acres of land. After the death of his father he bought out the other heirs and now owns 262 acres. He has his farm stocked with fine cattle and owns expensive farm machinery, and for all this he is indebted only to his own exertions. His life has been one of great industry, but he has plenty to show for his years of labor. His land yields him annually over 100 tons of hay, 1,000 bushels of corn, 400 bushels of oats and over 200 bushels of buckwheat. He keeps about nine cows, as he has a large butter trade among private customers at Butler. He takes a very active interest in agricultural progress in his section and is an active member of Mount Chestnut Grange, No. 404.

Mr. McCandless married Miss Sarah Etta McCandless, a daughter of W. H. McCandless, and they have five children, namely: Mary Elverda, who is the wife of Dr. Ernest Snyder of Portersville; John W., residing on the home farm, who married Cora Lawrence; and Albert, Blanche and Gladys, all at home, a happy, united family. Mr. McCandless and wife belong to Mt. Zion Baptist Church, of which he is a trustee. The pleasant home of this representative family of Franklin Township was built in 1888, and other buildings were erected in 1894.

MATTHEW H. BRANDON, who is engaged in farming and stockraising on his valuable farm of seventy-five acres, situated in Forward Township, derives an income also from two oil wells which are on his land. Mr. Brandon belongs to an old pioneer family of this section of Butler County and was born on his present farm, July 29, 1849. His parents were James and Susan A. (Bolton) Brandon.

The first of the Brandon family to come to Forward Township was John Brandon, who journeyed from Westmoreland County. He found the present highly cultivated farm a great belt of woods, in the center of which he built a log house. His children bore the following names: Will-

James Brandon, father of Matthew H., was born July 26, 1816, and all the subsequent years of his life were spent on this farm, his death taking place March 30, 1905. He was twice married (first), June 8, 1846, to Jane B. McDowell, who died shortly after the birth of their only child, Jennie, who is the wife of William H. Ray. Mr. Brandon was married (second) in September, 1848, to Susan A. Bolton, who died April 23, 1892. There were three children born to the second marriage: Matthew H., John A., and William S.

Matthew H. Brandon grew to manhood on the home farm and attended the country schools. When nineteen years of age he began to teach school, encouraged to do so by his mother, who, in her youth had been a teacher in Butler County. On February 14, 1884, Mr. Brandon was married to Miss Anna D. Frederick, who is a daughter of John Frederick, who came to America from Germany. They have four children: James F., Melvin L., Clarence E. and Mildred A. With his family, Mr. Brandon belongs to the Reformed Church, in which he is an elder. In politics he is a Republican but he is not a seeker for office, his leading interests having been the cultivation and improvement of the old farm on which almost all of his life has been spent, and the educating and rearing of his children to lives of usefulness.

THOMAS JAMES DODDS, oldest son of W. B. and Elizabeth (English) Dodds, was born in Muddy Creek Township, Butler County, March 19, 1871. He was educated at Prospect Academy, graduating with the class of 1893, and subsequently taught school for three years in the public schools of the county. He was employed in the oil fields of Pennsylvania and Indiana until 1897, when he came to Butler to assume the duties of deputy-sheriff under his father, W. B. Dodds. He continued in the office of deputy-sheriff until January, 1901, serving the last year under Sheriff Thomas R. Hoon. Since January, 1901, he has been engaged in the fire insurance and real estate business and has offices in the Younkins Building on the corner of Main and Diamond Streets. He was appointed deputy-coroner of Butler County in 1905 and served one year, and in February, 1906, he was elected auditor of Butler Borough. Mr. Dodds was married October 10, 1900, to Miss Blanche Dever, daughter of Joseph and Frances (Wheeler) Dever, of Lucasville, Ohio. Two children have been born to this union: Theodore E. and Ruth. The family are members of the United Presbyterian church, and take an active part in the various societies of the congregation. Mr. Dodds is a Republican in politics and an active party worker.

W. B. Dodds, ex-sheriff of Butler County, is the son of Major Thomas Dodds, of Connoquenessing Township, and was born August 8, 1844. He is a lineal descendant of Thomas Dodds, the pioneer of Connoquenessing Township, whose adventure with the bear is mentioned elsewhere. Mr. Dodds was married May 5, 1870, to Miss Elizabeth English, of Portersville. They have six children as follows: Thomas J., Vinnie E., Rollins H., Jemimah M., Bessie L., and Percy N. Mr. Dodds is a veteran of the Civil War, having served in Company C, Tenth Illinois Cavalry. In his early life he taught in the public schools of the county and later engaged in farming, which is his occupation at the present time. He is a Republican in politics and has twice been made the recipient of party honors, having been elected clerk of courts of Butler County in 1882 and sheriff in 1897. At the conclusion of his term as sheriff he purchased a farm at Adamsville in Crawford County, where he now resides. The family are members of the United Presbyterian Church.

SAMUEL MORGAN, a well known resident and valued citizen of Parker Township, residing near Parker's Landing, was born in County Down, Ireland, March 23, 1831, and is a son of Hugh and Jane (Dunn) Morgan, both natives of Ireland.

In 1854, when Samuel was a young man of twenty-three years, the father emigrated to America with his children and his second wife, locating first in Allegheny Township, Butler County, and later moving into Parker Township. The family then divided, several removing to Sugar Creek Township, Armstrong County, but Samuel decided to remain in Parker Township, and here the rest of his life has been spent. He had to make his own way in the world and accomplished it by perseverance and industry. For many years he was engaged in the manufacture of pig iron.

On July 8, 1873, Mr. Morgan was married to Nancy Taylor, who was born in County Down, Ireland, in September, 1843, and is a daughter of James and Nancy (McMurray) Taylor. She lived in her native land until 1870, when she came to America accompanied by a brother, Robert Taylor. She has one surviving brother, Alexander Taylor, who is a well known resident of Allegheny Township, Butler County. Mr. and Mrs. Morgan are rearing a very amiable, well behaved little girl, giving her parental care and affection. Her name is Florence E. McCamey and her twelfth birthday will occur on December 7, 1908. With these kind people she will grow into happy and useful womanhood. Mr. and Mrs. Morgan are members of the Presbyterian Church at Parker's Landing. In politics he is a Republican.

WILLIAM JOHN FOX, residing on a well improved farm of 126 acres located about one and one-half miles south of Cabot on the west side of Bear Creek, is one of the substantial and leading agriculturists of Winfield Township. He is a native of this county and is a son of Henry and Jane (Kaufold) Fox and a grandson of George Henry Fox, who was a native of Germany and one of the early settlers of Butler County, whither he came from Allegheny County, Pennsylvania.

William John Fox was reared to manhood in Butler County, obtaining his education in the common schools of his locality and also at Cabot, after which he worked at carpentering for about two years, when he located upon his present farm. Here he has since been actively engaged in general farming and is recognized as one of the leading farmers of Winfield Township. His farm is well equipped with substantial out-buildings and his residence is a large two-story frame building.

June 7, 1900, Mr. Fox was united in marriage with Charlotte E. Bieker, a daughter of Louis and Frederica Bieker, and of this union were born two children: Louis H., on July 30, 1904; and Howard Frank, February 20, 1907. Mrs. Charlotte E. Fox died in February, 1907. On September 24, 1908, Mr. Fox married for his second wife Miss Ida H. Bieker.

Religiously, Mr. Fox is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of which his wife was also a member. He is one of the trustees and was for two years superintendent of the Sabbath school, of which he is also steward, and has for some time been a member of the election board.

HON. JAMES BREDIN, who, for ten years in the latter quarter of the nineteenth century, was a distinguished member of the bench of the Seventh Judicial District of Pennsylvania, and for a longer period one of the most highly esteemed residents of Butler, was born in Butler, Pennsylvania, May 9, 1831. He was of Irish ancestry, the son of John and Nancy (McClelland) Bredin.

Hon. John Bredin was born in the town of Stranola, County Donegal, Ireland, in 1794. His parents emigrating to America and settling in Butler County, Pennsylvania, in 1802, he was reared here from the age of eight years. At the age of sixteen he became clerk in a general store in Pittsburg. About two years later he purchased a tract of wild land in what is now Summit Township, Butler County. In 1817 he was clerk in the prothonotary's office in Butler. Soon after this he began the study of law under the direction of Gen. William Ayres, a well-known lawyer and land-holder of that day, and he took advantage of this connection to make himself thoroughly acquainted with the early land laws. The knowledge thus gained proved very useful to him in his subsequent practice, as much of the litigation at that time had to do with disputes concerning land titles. For a long time he was regarded as an authority on all questions of this nature. In 1824 John Bredin became interested in journalism in association with his brother Maurice Bredin, and so continued for some six years without, however, giving up his law practice. In 1830 he retired from the journalistic field and in the following year he was appointed presiding judge of the Seventeenth Judicial District, which position he filled with unquestioned ability up to the end of his life. His death took place May 21, 1851. His wife Nancy, to whom he was united in 1829, was born in Franklin, Venango County, Pennsylvania.

Hon. James Bredin enjoyed excellent educational advantages. From the public schools he entered Washington College and later the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland. A reference to the part taken by him in the Mexican War, may be found in the military chapter of this work. After his return to Butler, in 1850, he began the study of law under his father's direction, which was interrupted by the death of the latter in the following year. He continued his studies in the office of Hon. E. Me-Junkin and was admitted to the bar June 14, 1853. Prior to beginning the practice of his profession, he became associated with James Campbell, S. M. Lane and other citizens in the establishment of a bank at Butler, which located a branch at New Castle.

In 1855 Judge Bredin began the practice of law at Butler and was continuously engaged at the bar for the next sixteen years, in this period gaining a distinct reputation as a lawyer and establishing himself as a progressive and public-spirited citizen. In 1871 he moved to Allegheny, and in 1874 he was elected one of the judges of the Seventh Judicial District, composed of Lawrence and Butler Counties, a position he filled for a decade with the highest degree of efficiency. He was a successful man in every practical sense of the word, and although he removed from Butler, during his years of residence here he identified himself so thoroughly with the business and professional life of the place, that he has always been considered in the light of a representative citizen. For forty-five years, up to the time of his death, he was secretary, treasurer and superintendent of the Butler & Pittsburg Plank Road Company.

On October 7, 1865, Judge Bredin was united in marriage with Matilda E. Spear, a daughter of William L. Spear of Butler County. Three sons were born to this union: William, residing in New York; Charles H., residing at Detroit, Michigan; and John, who died in July, 1882. Judge Bredin died November 23, 1906. Mrs. Bredin survives and resides at the new Willard Hotel, at Butler. She owns much valuable real estate in and about this city. A lady of culture and refinement, she occupies a prominent position in Butler society. The family is identified with the Episcopal Church.

WILLIAM J. LESTER, one of Butler's most substantial citizens and leading business men, has been a resident of this city for more than twenty years and is identified with many of its interests. He was born November 16, 1850, in England and came to the United States in 1884.

Mr. Lester resided for a short time at Norristown, Pennsylvania, after which he located at Crystal City, Missouri, where he was engaged in business for about three years. He then came to Butler and for some ten years was employed in the Butler Plate Glass Works as foreman in the sales department. He then embarked in the grocery business and still continues that interest. His store is located at No. 642 Brown Avenue, in a business block of which he is the owner, and he has also erected several handsome residences, one of which he occupies. Mr. Lester is a large stockholder in the Springdale Water Company.

Mr. Lester was married (first) in England, to Miss Sarah Ann Hedges, who died while they were residing in Missouri. The four children of this union were: William Percy, residing at Butler; Edith Mand, residing in New York; Gilbert James, residing in Butler; and Una Effie, at home. Mr. Lester was married (second) to Miss Louise A. Kelly, of Butler, and they have a daughter and son: Ray and William J., Jr. Mr. Lester is a member of the Episcopal Church. He is affiliated with the Odd Fellows, belonging to Clement Encampment. He is one of the useful members of the Butler Business Men's Association.

A. E. FLEEGER, who for twenty-five years has operated a grocery store at Jamisonville and for twenty years was the postmaster of the village, filling the office until the establishment of the Free Rural Delivery service, is also the owner of an excellent farm of eighty-eight acres in Center Township. He was born in Oakland Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, October 9, 1844, and is a son of Daniel and Mary (Kittering) Fleeger.

Daniel Fleeger was born on the farm above mentioned, which then belonged to his father, Jacob Fleeger. There Daniel Fleeger grew to manhood and married Mary Kittering. She was born in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, and came to Butler County in her girlhood. After their marriage, Daniel Fleeger and wife moved to Oakland Township, where they lived for some years and then moved to the old homestead farm in Center Township, where both died. Of their seven children, four survive.

A. F. Fleeger was six years old when his parents brought him to his present farm and here he has remained ever since, engaging in agricultural pursuits and in merchandising. He is one of the township's best known citizens through having business relations with many of them and he has a large circle of friends. He married Lizzie McCandless and they have had eight children, as follows, namely: Carrie, who died in infancy; Dora, who married Elmer Christley, has three children; Lee, married, has one child; Aaron, deceased, was married and had one child; Stella, who married Clarence Riddle; Heber and Waldron, both living at home; and Aline, who married Frank Allen and has two children. Mr. and Mrs. Fleeger are members of the Lutheran Church. Among his old neighbors he is familiarly known as Francis Fluger.

Mr. Fleeger's first wife died in March, 1888; since then, in 1892, he married, second, Jennie Wick.

ISAAC M. WEISZ, a representative citizen of Zelenople, and in former years a justice of the peace, was born in Jackson Township, Butler County, Penna., October 9, 1841, and is a son of Henry B. and Eva (Musselman) Weisz.

Among the early settlers of Butler County came Jacob L. Weisz, from Lehigh County, who acquired a farm in Jackson Township, on the Mercer Road north of Harmony. He was the grandfather of Isaac M. Weisz of Zelenople. His family contained seven children—Henry B., John, George B., Daniel, Elizabeth, Hannah, and Jacob.

John Weisz of the above mentioned family resided in the vicinity of Franklin and Oil City and at different places in Butler County successively. George B. Weisz resided in Butler County until 1878, when he moved to Medina County, Ohio, where he engaged in farming; he died in the spring of 1908. Daniel, the next member of said family, in 1878 moved to Medina County and is now the postmaster at Chatham Center. Elizabeth married Peter Rice and they moved to Medina County, Ohio, where both died. Hannah married John Zeigler and they lived on a farm near Harmony until after his death, when his widow moved to Medina County. Jacob died in early manhood, a victim of typhoid fever.

Henry B. Weisz, father of Isaac M., was born in Jackson Township, and acquired a part of the homestead farm. He died in August, 1891, in his seventieth year. He married Eva Musselman, who died in 1874, at the age of sixty-two years. They were the parents of nine children, namely: Isaac M., subject of this sketch; Jacob, who moved from Butler County to Kentucky; Catherine, who died in the State of Washington in 1906; Sarah, who married Christopher McQuiston and died in Medina County, Ohio; Henry, who died in Jackson Township in 1880; Hosea, who died on a farm in Medina County, Ohio; Hannah, who has been twice married and resides in Sedalia, Missouri; and Sidney and George, both of whom died young at Harmony.

Isaac M. Weisz obtained his education in the public schools of Jackson Township. Until his marriage he followed farming on the homestead and then worked for two years at the Orphan's Home; after which he went back to the home farm and followed agricultural pursuits for the next eight years. In 1874 he purchased a route and was engaged in 1886 in hauling produce to Pittsburg, after which he rented the farm of Joseph Zeigler and operated it until the spring of 1893, when he moved to Zelenople. For several years thereafter he conducted a feed business, and in January, 1904, he opened a grocery store which he subsequently sold. In 1903 Mr. Weisz was elected a justice of the peace, and in this office he served with great efficiency until 1908. In his political convictions he is a Republican. He has firm views on the subject of local option, being an advocate of Prohibition.

Mr. Weisz was first married in 1864 to Miss Sarah Zeigler, a daughter of Joseph Zeigler. She died in February, 1892, having been the mother of three sons and three daughters, as follows: William, born in 1866, died in 1876; Hannah, born in 1868, died in 1888; Mary, born in 1870, died in 1896; Sadie, born on Christmas Day, 1872, died in September, 1903; Joseph, born in 1878, died aged nine years; Edward, born in 1882, died in September, 1903. Mr. Weisz married for his second wife Miss Jane McBride, a daughter of William McBride, of near Grove City. Mr. Weisz is an elder in the United Presbyterian Church at Zelenople.

J. HENRY TROUTMAN, secretary and treasurer of the Standard Plate Glass Company, at Butler, and president of the Butler Savings and Trust Company, is one of the city's most prominent and useful citizens. He was born at Butler, Pennsylvania, in 1854, and is a son of Adam Troutman, a pioneer.

J. Henry Troutman was reared in Butler and was educated in the public schools. When his education was completed he immediately entered into the mercantile business with his father and in 1885 he became a member of the firm of A. Troutman & Son, which was succeeded by The A. Troutman Sons. J. Henry Troutman was one of the original incorporators of the Standard Plate Glass Company and in 1892 was made treasurer of the corporation and since 1898 has also been secretary and has given a large part of his time to the affairs of that great manufacturing plant although he has numerous other interests. He is president of the Butler Savings and Trust Company, is secretary of the Butler Light, Heat and Motor Company; is secretary and treasurer of the Butler Ice Company, and is a director in The Pittsburg-Hickson Company, manufacturers of iron beds. His name is thus linked with many of Butler's most important enterprises.

Mr. Troutman was married in 1881, to Miss Mary E. Helfrich, who was born at Carrolton, Carroll County, Ohio, and they have three children, two sons and one daughter: Charles H., who is a student at Washington-Jefferson College; Frank E., who is a graduate in mechanical engineering, from Lehigh University; and Gertrude S., who resides at home. Mr. Troutman is a member of St. Mark's Evangelical Lutheran Church, of which he is a trustee. He has taken an active part in all that concerns Butler, has served on many charitable boards and with numerous civic bodies. He is a member of the Country club, a well known social organization.

WILLIAM H. ORTON, a well known oil producer operating in Parker Township, Butler County, where he has seven producing wells on the Brahm farm, on what is known as Tanney Hill, has been almost a continuous resident of Parker's Landing since 1869. He was born December 20, 1856, at Corning, New York, and is a son of William and Sarah (Greenwood) Orton.

In 1869, Mr. Orton came to Parker Township, Butler County, with his parents and his mother still survives and resides at Pendleton, Indiana. Since 1872 he has been closely identified with oil interests in this section and almost the whole of these thirty-six years has been a successful producer. He is known to all oil operators in these fields and his experience has made him a valuable advisor concerning this industry. In politics he is an earnest Republican but only to the extent of giving hearty party support, being too much engaged in business to be willing to accept any public office.

Mr. Orton married Miss Minerva Aley, a daughter of John Aley, formerly of Parker Township, and they have had the following children: George W., Lena M. and Ruth C., living, and two deceased. Mr. and Mrs. Orton attend the Presbyterian Church. He belongs to the leading fraternal organizations, being a member of the Masonic Lodge at Parker's Landing, and to the Chapter and Commandery at Franklin; is a member of Lodge No. 761 Odd Fellows, and of the order of Eagles, both at Parker's Landing.

GEORGE B. HECK, whose 216 acres of farming and coal land is situated in Center Township, one mile west of Unionville, was born on this farm May 9, 1863, and purchased it from the other heirs in 1905. His parents were Daniel and Mary (Fleeger) Heck.

Daniel Heck was a son of Daniel Heck and they came to America and settled near Prospect, in Butler County, Pennsylvania, when the younger Daniel was a boy. The latter grew to manhood on that farm and after his marriage he bought the present one, on which he lived until his death, in 1898. In old age his father had come to him here and his death took place soon after. Daniel Heck was married twice and the mother of George B. still survives. There were thirteen children in the family, four of whom were born to the second marriage.

George B. Heck has spent his life happily on the old homestead, never having lived away from it with the exception of two years and six months, spent at Pittsburgh. He gives the most of his time to operating a large coal bank on his property, there being a vein three feet and ten inches in depth. He gives employment to about six men and the output is large and very good coal. He is one of the township's substantial citizens, possessing many of the admirable qualities of his sturdy German ancestry, industry, thrift, enterprise and good management.

SAMUEL SCHLAGEL, a retired farmer of Butler Township, resides on his valuable farm of 100 acres, which he actively cultivated until the spring of 1907. Mr. Schlagel was born on his present farm March 22, 1836, and is a son of Henry and Catherine (Schutt) Schlagel.

Henry Schlagel, father of Samuel, was born east of the Allegheny Mountains and in his youth learned the shoemaking trade. After some years he started for Western Pennsylvania, accompanied by his wife and four children, and they drove their wagon into Butler Township, Butler County, and came to their pioneer farm. The land was then all covered with brush and in order to find a place on which to erect his little log cabin, he had first to clear a spot. This was about 1827. He went into debt for his land, but cleared off all incumbrances, working on the roads through Allegheny County in order to earn the money. He raised grain and grew stock and became a man in prosperous circumstances. Of sterling honesty and intelligent mind, he was often chosen by his fellow citizens to serve in local offices, and was one of the early supervisors and school directors in Butler Township. He died in 1886, aged eighty-eight years. With his wife he belonged to the German Reformed Church and was a deacon and elder. They were among the founders of Zion Reformed Church on Harmony Road. She died in 1872, aged seventy-two years. They had the following children: Julia Ann, Finney, Gideon and Sarah, all deceased, the last named the wife of Andrew Croup; Theresa, who is the widow of Joseph Manny, of Butler Township; Thomas and Eliza, both deceased, the latter of whom was the wife of William Martin; Catherine, who is the widow of John Dufford; Samuel; Susan, who is the wife of John King, of Donegal Township; and Maria, who is the wife of William Rea of Beaver Falls.

Samuel Schlagel has always lived on the home farm, which originally contained 102 acres, and here he has raised grain, cattle and horses. In 1905 oil was discovered here and a well was put down which produces about a barrel of oil a day. In politics, Mr. Schlagel is nominally a Democrat, but is inclined to do a large amount of his own thinking and vote just as his own judgment dictates. He has often been urged to accept township offices, but he has refused every position except that of school director.

Mr. Schlagel married Leah Beetle, of Donegal Township, and they had five children, the two survivors being Priscilla and Cora Emma. The daughters live at home. The former married Thomas P. Roe, who operates Mr. Schlagel's farm, and they have eight children, as follows: Carl William, Pearl May, Floyd Samuel, Arthur Wilkin, Grace Lillian, Victor Alvin, Walter Leslie and Ralph Foster. Mr. Schlagel is a member of Grace Lutheran Church. Mrs. Schlagel died October 22, 1877, aged thirty-two years.

WILLIAM BRANNAN CURRIE, who served for twenty years as a justice of the peace in Franklin Township, is one of its prominent and substantial native citizens and was born on his home farm of 142 acres, July 4, 1846. His parents were Francis and Jane (Brannan) Currie.

The father of Mr. Currie was born in Scotland and came to America a few years before his marriage. He followed farming and after his marriage to a daughter of Thomas Brannan he settled on the present farm, on which he lived until his death when aged thirty-three years. He was the father of two children, William B. and Margaret Ann, the latter of whom died in infancy. Mrs. Currie subsequently married William McCall, of Clay Township, and their children who survived childhood were: Thomas R., now deceased, Euphemia L., Mary and Alice. Mrs. McCall died in 1900, aged seventy-six years.

William B. Currie was four years old when his father died. He obtained his education in the neighborhood schools and lived in Franklin Township until he was fifteen years of age, when he went to work in the oil fields and followed drilling for fourteen years. In 1875 he began to operate what is now his own farm, which had formerly belonged to his maternal grandfather. In addition to this property, he owns fifty acres in another part of Franklin Township, together with a farm of ninety-five acres, in Brady Township, cultivating in all about 165 acres, one of his farms being occupied by his son-in-law, Howard S. English. Judge Currie makes hay his leading crop and also raises corn, wheat, oats and buckwheat and some beef cattle. His almost four acres of pear and apple orchards give ample returns for the care and fertilizing he bestows on them and he takes considerable interest in them as he set out a large number of the trees.

In politics Esquire Currie is a Democrat and notwithstanding the fact that he lives in a normally Republican district, he was elected a justice of the peace for twenty successive years. He has always been a loyal citizen and in August, 1864, he enlisted for service in the Civil War, entering Company B, Sixth Pennsylvania Heavy Artillery and accompanied his regiment to Washington, D. C., where it was utilized for the defense of the Nation's capital. He has been prominent in his immediate community in many ways, filling various township offices and doing his part in advancing all its interests.

Mr. Currie was married to Rachel E. Snyder, a daughter of Zephaniah Snyder, of Brady Township, and they have five children, as follows: Adin Burdette, residing at Seattle, Washington; Verda M., wife of Howard H. English, residing in Franklin Township—they have two children, William Burdette and Catherine Frazier; William Francis, who married Sarah E. Plugh—they have two children, Aline Brenda and Walter Raleigh; Jennie E., who is the widow of John P. Pollock, who resides with her father—she has one daughter, Jessie Frances; and Jessie C., who is the wife of Ira C. Stine, of Franklin Township, and has a son, John Clarence. Mr. Currie and family are members of the Muddy Creek Presbyterian Church.

JOHN J. SHANOR, president and general manager of the Butler Pure Milk Company, one of Butler County's substantial citizens, has his business office corner of McKean and Wayne Streets, Butler, but retains his home on the old homestead farm in Center Township, on which he was born in 1863. His father was Daniel Shanor, his grandfather, Jacob Shanor, and his great-grandfather was Adam Shanor.

It was the great-grandfather, Adam Shanor, who was the pioneer of the family in Butler County and John J. Shanor possesses the deed to the old homestead farm in Center Township, which was secured over 100 years ago. The land has never passed out of the family. Jacob Shanor, the grandfather, accompanied his father, Adam, from Virginia, later inherited the family acres and in the course of Nature passed away there and left the property to his son, Daniel Shanor. The latter spent his whole life on the farm in Center Township.

John J. Shanor continues to reside in the home of his father, grandfather and great-grandfather, which, in these modern days of change, is somewhat unusual. He has been actively engaged in the dairy business for the past eighteen years and was the main promoter, in 1903, of the Butler Pure Milk Company, of which he is president and general manager. He visits his office at Butler daily. He has other business interests, one of these being the Butler Coal and Coke Company, of which he is a director.

In 1887 Mr. Shanor was married to Miss Alvira R. Moore, and they have five children, namely: D. A., who is the superintendent of the Butler Pure Milk Company; E. M., who is also connected with this industry; P. L., who operates the home farm; and George C. and H. A. R., who resides at home. Mr. Shanor and family belong to the English Lutheran Church at Butler.

FREDERICK W. WITTE, who is extensively engaged in agricultural pursuits on a tract of 135 acres, about one mile east of Cabot on the Saxonburg road, was born May 9, 1834, and is a son of William and Sophia (Welling) Witte and a grandson of Charles Witte, a native of Germany, who never left his native land.

Frederick William Witte was reared and has lived continuously in his native county, acquiring his education in its common schools and later taking a course in the night school. In 1868, when thirty-four years of age, he was married to Amelia Bicker, a daughter of Rev. Herman and Margaret (Rowl) Bicker, her family being a very prominent one in Butler County. One child was born to Mr. and Mrs. Witte, namely: William Henry, who was educated in the common schools. He is married and has three children—Elsie, Carrie and Mary. Mrs. Witte passed out of this life in 1869.

Religiously, Mr. Witte is affiliated with the Evangelical Association and is a member of the board of trustees. He is a man of public spirit and enterprise, giving generously toward all measures which tend to advance the township and county, and is especially interested in charity as overseer of the poor. He has served as school director and was three times a delegate to the Congressional Convention.

HENRY MARTSOLF, who has always resided on his present farm of ninety-two acres, which is situated in Center Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, about five miles north of Butler, was born April 10, 1858, and is a son of Fred and Eva (Miller) Martsolf. Both parents of Mr. Martsolf were born in Germany, but they were married in America. They were honest, hard working, worthy people who made many friends in Center Township, where they lived for many years, both dying on the farm now owned by their son Henry, who was one of a family of ten children.

Henry Martsolf is a first class, practical farmer, having devoted his life to agricultural pursuits exclusively. His land is a good crop producer and he grows wheat, oats, corn and hay, keeps stock and cattle and operates a dairy for his home use. Mr. Martsolf married Harriet Slupe, who is a daughter of Nicholas and Hannah (Puff) Slupe. They have one son, a very capable young man, who assists his father on the farm, named Charles Frederick. Mr. Martsolf and family belong to the Presbyterian Church.

WILLIAM S. ALLEN, who is engaged in a mercantile business at Glenora, Pennsylvania, is a prominent citizen of Parker Township, in which he is serving in his second term as collector. He was born in Parker Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, December 29, 1856, and is a son of John N. and Mary J. (Moore) Allen.

The Allen family came among the earliest settlers to Parker Township, its founder being John Allen, who came from Eastern Pennsylvania into the wilderness, and was accompanied by his son, Thomas Allen, who was the grandfather of William S. Allen. John Allen was a Revolutionary soldier.

John N. Allen, father of William S., was born in Parker Township, where he died in 1871. He married Mary J. Moore, who was born in Washington Township, Butler County, where she now resides, still enjoying all her faculties, although she has reached her seventy-sixth year. She is a daughter of Samuel Moore, who was an early settler in Washington Township. The surviving children of John N. and Mary J. Allen are: William S.; Mary A. H., who is the wife of J. N. Gibson, of Greeley, Kansas; Aseneth M., who is the wife of James Buchanan, of Texas; and James C., who lives in Colorado.

William S. Allen was reared to man's estate in Parker Township and attended the local schools throughout boyhood, later enjoying more advanced opportunities in academies at West Sunbury and North Washington. He assisted on the home farm and also taught school for a time, but after his marriage engaged in cultivating his farm of sixty acres, which is situated in Parker Township. In 1897 he started his general store at Glenora, which he has conducted ever since, and he has been postmaster and his wife has been postmistress of this village. In politics he is a staunch Republican and has taken an active part in public matters in his community. With the efficiency of a broadminded man and earnest citizen, he has served his community in a number of offices, for two years being overseer of the poor, for several terms supervisor and is now collector.

On December 20, 1884, Mr. Allen was married to Rebecca A. Allen, who is a daughter of the late William D. Allen, formerly one of the leading men of Parker Township. Mr. and Mrs. Allen have one daughter, Callie M., an accomplished young lady, who is a successful teacher in Parker Township. Mr. and Mrs. Allen are members of the New Salem Presbyterian Church, at Annisville, in which he is an elder. Thomas Allen, grandfather of William S., was a soldier in the War of 1812; he died in 1875 in his eighty-seventh year.

ISAAC REED BRANNAN, a successful farmer of Franklin Township and a citizen who enjoys the respect and esteem of his fellow citizens, resides on his farm of 180 acres and is engaged in carrying on general agriculture. He was born in Worth Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, August 24, 1844, and is a son of Thomas and Mary Ann (Reed) Brannan.

William Brannan, the grandfather, who was born in England, in 1775, came to the American colonies, being a member of the King's Life Guard Regiment, under General Cornwallis. He was one of the prisoners taken at York, Pennsylvania, but escaped and made his way through the wilderness to Western Pennsylvania and was one of the pioneer settlers of Westmoreland County. There he won the heart of an American girl, Susannah Ilines, and they lived there until 1800, when they brought their family and possessions to what is now Scott Township, Lawrence County.

Thomas Brannan was born January 29, 1797, in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, and died October 13, 1872, in Butler County. When eighteen years of age he moved to Worth Township, Butler County, where he married, and in 1845, with his wife and ten children, settled in Franklin Township, on a farm now owned by his son, Isaac Reed Brennan. In politics he was a Democrat and although he never sought office, he was frequently elected to the same and served acceptably. His wife was a daughter of William Reed, of Neshannock Falls, Lawrence County, and they had the following children born to them: Susannah, now deceased, was the wife of Robert Williams; Jane, deceased, married (first) Francis Currie and (secondly) William McCall; William is deceased;

Mary, also deceased, married Joseph McElroy; Elizabeth, now deceased, married Joseph Graham; Rebecca, residing with her brother Isaac R., is the widow of Jonathan Taylor; Thomas Darwin is deceased; Margaret Euphemia, deceased, married Curtis I. Christley; Alzira, wife of George Ifft, of Slippery Rock Township; and Isaac Reed. The parents were most worthy Christian people, members and liberal supporters of the United Presbyterian Church at Prospect.

Isaac Reed Brannan has devoted his life to agricultural pursuits and on his broad acres he raises great crops of corn, oats, wheat, buckwheat, rye and potatoes, and keeps about fifteen head of cattle. His place is well improved, the comfortable residence having been built by his father and the substantial barn by himself, in 1897. He has efficiently filled a number of local offices in his township but cares little for politics, finding more pleasure in attending to his business and in the enjoyment of the good will of his neighbors. He is a Democrat in principle.

Mr. Brannan married Ruth Ellen Craig, a daughter of John Craig, of Liberty Township, Mercer County, and they were the parents of the following children: William, residing in West Virginia; Margaret, wife of Herbert McLaughlin, residing at Fredonia, Mercer County; John Craig, living in Colorado; and Howard Clement and Clarence D., both at home. The beloved wife and mother died in 1893, when aged forty-four years. Mr. Brannan is a member of the Muddy Creek Presbyterian Church. He is a man of genial manner, hospitable and kind-hearted, and is well informed on matters of local history.

WILLIAM KESSELMAN, of the firm of Kesselman & Company, manufacturers of oil mill drilling tools, at Butler, is a practical machinist who has been continuously engaged in work at his trade ever since he came, a young man of twenty-two years, to America. He was born in Germany October 1, 1832.

Mr. Kesselman located at New Castle, Pennsylvania, and worked there as a machinist from 1856 until 1870. He then moved to Parker's Landing, where he started a shop of his own, which he conducted until 1875, when he removed to Saint Joe, Butler County, working there, with his own shop, until 1883. In the latter year he established his business in Butler and operated it as the Kesselman Machine Shop until about 1887, when C. J. Brandberg became associated with him and the firm assumed its present style of Kesselman & Company. In addition to the large amount of work done in the Butler establishment, the firm has found it advantageous to also carry on a machine shop at Parkersburg, West Virginia.

In 1860 Mr. Kesselman was married to Miss Magdeline Moser, who died in 1899. A family of five children was born to this marriage, namely: Edward H., who is connected with the Kesselman interests at Butler; William, who has charge of the business at Parkersburg; Minta; Floyd; and Lewis, who resides at Parkersburg. Mr. Kesselman is a member of the Lutheran Church. He is one of Butler's most respected citizens.

R. J. GROSSMAN, M. D., physician and surgeon at Butler, has been established in practice in this city since 1893 and has met with a hearty recognition of his professional skill. Dr. Grossman was born in Cherry Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, in 1858, and is a son of John Grossman and a grandson of Benjamin Grossman.

The Grossman family is of German extraction but has been of American birth for several generations. John Grossman was born in Cherry Township, in 1828, where he was a farmer of prominence for many years prior to his death, which occurred in July, 1903. His father was Benjamin Grossman, who was born east of the Allegheny Mountains and who accompanied his father, Benedict Grossman, when he settled in Butler County, in 1793. The father of Benedict Grossman was Simon Grossman, who was born on the Atlantic Ocean during the voyage of his parents to America.

Dr. Grossman was reared in Clay Township and attended the public schools and West Sunbury Academy. Later he entered the medical department of the Western Reserve College, at Cleveland, Ohio, where he was graduated in 1886. For seven years following he engaged in practice at Coalton and then came to Butler, where he has been in active practice until the present. He has met with professional success, as above mentioned, and stands with the leading men in the medical fraternity in Butler County. He is a member of the Butler County and the State Medical Societies and the American Medical Association.

In 1886, Dr. Grossman was married to Miss Eliza Shryock, who died December 30, 1895, leaving one son, Loyal McClellan. Dr. Grossman is a member of the Second Presbyterian Church of Butler. Fraternally he is connected with the Odd Fellows and the Woodmen. Politically, he is a Democrat and has been active in politics and is his party's candidate for state senator. His office is located at No. 408 Center Avenue, Butler.

HERMAN LEWIS BICKER, a prominent farmer of Winfield Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is owner of a fine farm of 125 acres located about one and a quarter miles east of Cabot on the Winfield and Saxon Station Road. He was born April 9, 1849, a son of Herman Henry and Mary (Roll) Bicker and a grandson of Herman Bicker, a native of Germany who always lived in his native country. Herman H. Bicker and his wife were the parents of a large family of children, namely: Hannah, deceased, formerly wife of Frederick Witte; Catherine, is the wife of August Feehling; Herman L., subject of this sketch; William Henry, who married Minnie Wetzel; George E., now deceased; Charles T., who married Mary Bracken; Mary E., deceased; John F., who married Elizabeth Hartung; and Samuel A., who first married a Miss Stewart and secondly, after death, Lizzie Bachman.

Herman L. Bicker began his early education in Pittsburg, Penna. He first came to Butler County in 1857, after which he completed his education in the common schools of the county. He then turned his attention to blacksmithing, working at that trade both in Pittsburg and McKeesport, Pennsylvania, but for the past thirty-six years has followed general farming on an extensive scale, also raising the stock on his place.

Mr. Bicker was united in marriage January 9, 1873, with Frederica Beinecke, a daughter of William and Elizabeth (Wilthorn) Beinecke, of Allegheny City, Pennsylvania. Her paternal grandparents were natives of Germany and among the very earliest settlers of Allegheny County. Mrs. Bicker was one of a family of seven children born to her parents, namely: Mary L., wife of George W. Kettenburg; Caroline, wife of M. Baehr; Frederica, now Mrs. Herman L. Bicker; Minnie, who married George W. Evans; Charlotte, who married Frank Shearing; William, deceased; and Elizabeth, also deceased. There were the following children born to Mr. and Mrs. Bicker: William H., who married Amelia Worthington; Frank L., who married Emma Hartung; Charlotte, born March 28, 1878, who died February 27, 1907 (she married William J. Fox and was the mother of two children—Louis H. and Howard); George, who resides on his father's farm; Ida H., who lives at home with the subject of this sketch; Harvey D., a machinist, residing in Sacramento, California, who married Louise Hansen; and Frederick R. Mrs. Bicker is a lady of considerable literary ability and worked for a period of eight years in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, on the well known German paper, Freiheits-Freund.

Religiously, Mr. Bicker is affiliated with the Methodist Episcopal Church, of which he is also a trustee and a liberal supporter. He is actively interested in politics and has served his township efficiently in various offices. He served two terms as school director, was secretary of the school board for six years and was for a time superintendent of charities of Winfield Township. For the past four years he has been justice of the peace of Winfield Township. Mr. Bicker is fraternally a member of the Herder Lodge, No. 279, Knights of Pythias, with which he has been affiliated for the past thirty years, having served through all the chairs. Mr. Bicker is a man held in high esteem both in his church and in business circles, not only in his own vicinity but throughout the entire county.

SAMUEL MCKINNEY, a leading citizen of Zelenople, residing in his handsome residence on New Castle Street, has been engaged in agricultural pursuits almost all his life and owns and superintends his valuable farm of 200 acres, which is situated in Perry Township, Lawrence County. Mr. McKinney was born at Braddock, Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, February 27, 1860, and is a son of Robert and Catherine (Lannon) McKinney.

The McKinney family is of Irish extraction and the first of this branch to come to America was William McKinney, the grandfather, who left County Derry, Ireland, in 1822, and for a time resided in Pittsburg, Penna. Robert McKinney, his son and the father of Samuel McKinney, was born in County Derry, Ireland, August 1, 1812, and died in America in 1890, aged seventy-seven years. He followed agricultural pursuits through his active years.

His widow survives and has reached her eightieth year. The family consisted of eight children, namely: William J., Mary and Robert, all deceased; Samuel; Harvey, who resides in East Pittsburg; Catherine, who is the wife of C. A. Anderson; Mrs. J. P. McKelvey; and Elnora.

Samuel McKinney attended the public schools at Braddock until old enough to assume the duties expected of him, on the home farm. In 1884 he moved to Lawrence County and followed farming there until he retired to Zelienople, in December, 1903. He no longer engages in the active work on the farm but in superintending its operation his time is pleasantly and profitably occupied.

Mr. McKinney was married to Matilda Blanche Wilson, who died February 6, 1904; she was a daughter of Frank Wilson, formerly a prominent farmer in Lawrence County. They had four children: Catherine, William J., Robert and Elnora. William J. is deceased. Mr. McKinney and family are members of the United Presbyterian Church. In his political views he is a Democrat.

ANDREW D. GROOM, justice of the peace, at Glenora, Butler County, has carried on a blacksmith, horse-shoeing and general repair business in this village for over thirty years and is numbered with the representative citizens of the place. He was born October 16, 1843, in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of William D. and Susan (Thornburg) Groom.

William D. Groom was born at Baltimore, Maryland, where he learned the trade of ship builder. In 1834 he came to Western Pennsylvania and lived for a time in Pittsburg, later removing to Scully's Springs. He died in Allegheny County.

Andrew D. Groom grew to manhood, obtained his education and learned his trade, all in Allegheny County. In 1876 he came to Glenora, where he has spent his time ever since, carrying on his business and also taking an active part in public affairs, particularly those pertaining to the community in which he lives. He is a Republican in his political adherence and is in close touch with the local leaders. He has accepted few offices for himself but he has loyally worked for his friends. He is an advocate of public education and served seven years as school director, in Parker Township, being secretary of the board, and since 1891 he has served continuously as justice of the peace. At one time he was postmaster of the village and his name is connected with much of the town's prosperity. From 1887 to 1890 he was partner in a grocery business at Glenora, under the firm name of Groom & Bell.

Mr. Groom was married (first) to Miss Anna M. Robb and they had three children, namely: Ethel Izetta, who is the wife of J. H. Kepple, of Butler; Catherine M., deceased; and Minnie B., of Glenora. Mr. Groom was married (second) to Miss Rebecca E. Walley, of Glenora, and they have the following children: Ella S., Peter C., Charlotte W., John R., Mabel M., Laura E., and Samuel E. P. Mr. Groom is one of the leading members of the New Salem Presbyterian Church, belonging to the Board of Sessions. He belongs to the beneficiary order of Protected Home Circle, being connected with Ogden Circle, No. 39, at Glenora.

GEORGE A. TROUTMAN, of A. Troutman's Sons, conducting the largest store at Butler, located at Nos. 202-204 Main Street, is one of the representative business men of Butler County. He was born in this city in 1865 and is a son of Adam Troutman, who was the founder of the present large enterprise.

George A. Troutman may be said to have grown up in the business of which he is one of the proprietors, having been identified with it since leaving school. In 1894, in association with his brother, William J., he bought his father's interest and the firm name of A. Troutman's Sons was adopted. An older brother, J. H., is secretary and treasurer of the Standard Plate Glass Company. This family has been prominently connected with the mercantile interests of Butler for many years and the present proprietors control the larger part of the trade. They have commodious, finely equipped quarters, occupying the entire Troutman building, on the corner of Main and Cunningham Streets, a structure four stories in height, 40 by 160 feet in dimensions, including basement. The firm gives lucrative employment to form forty to fifty people. As an excellent business man and valuable citizen, Mr. Troutman commands the respect and confidence of his fellow citizens.

In 1900 Mr. Troutman was married to Miss Amelia Schaffner, who is a daughter of John Schaffner, a well known citizen and a member of one of the old and substantial families of this place. Mrs. Troutman's grandfather, when he first settled here, was accustomed to walk all the way to Pittsburg, to attend church. Mr. and Mrs. Troutman enjoy what is undoubtedly the finest private residence in Butler. It is situated on the corner of North and Washington Streets and both in architecture and inside finish, is beautiful in the extreme. All the inside woodwork, except in the dining room, is in oak, while that tasteful apartment is finished in mahogany. Mr. and Mrs. Troutman are members of the German Lutheran Church at Butler. He is president of the Majestic Theater Company and was one of the builders of this handsome structure.

JOHN F. BICKER, a highly respected citizen and prosperous farmer of Winfield Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, resides on a well improved farm of 113 acres, situated one and a half miles east of Cabot on the Freeport road. He was born on his father's farm in Butler County, Pennsylvania, February 15, 1860, and is a son of Herman H. and Mary (Rowl) Bicker, the former a well known minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church. John F. Bicker is one of a family of nine children, namely: Hannah, deceased, formerly wife of Frederick Witte; Catherine, who is the wife of August Freehling; Herman L., of whom further mention is made in this work; William Henry, who married Minnie Wetzel; George E., deceased; Charles T., who married Mary Bracken; Mary E., deceased; John F., the subject of this sketch; Samuel A., who first married Clara Stewart, and after her death Lizzie Baehman.

John F. Bicker was reared on his father's farm and received his educational training in the schools of Butler County. He has always devoted his time and interests to agricultural pursuits, carrying on farming in a general way, also raising all of his own stock. His farm lies on both sides of the road and is well stocked, and equipped with substantial out buildings and other conveniences now so necessary to the up-to-date methods of farming.

On April 15, 1886, Mr. Bicker was joined in marriage with Mary Elizabeth Hartung, a daughter of George and Catherine (Loos) Hartung, prominent farmers of Butler County. Her mother came from Indiana County. Mrs. Bicker was reared and educated in Jackson Township, Butler County. Four children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Bicker—Ellen E., George H., Alice C., and Amos A., all of whom are living at home.

Mr. Bicker is a prominent worker and member of the Methodist Church Evangelical Association. His fraternal connection is with the Herder Lodge No. 279 of the Knights of Pythias and the Winfield Grange No. 1105, of which he has been treasurer for the past two years and has served through all the offices of that order.

He has always taken an active interest in politics, is a member of the school board, of which he is now president, has served as township assessor several terms, and has served a number of times on the various boards of election.

JOSEPH BANCROFT BREDIN, formerly one of Butler Township's most esteemed citizens and useful men, was born on the old Bredin homestead, which stands on the Diamond, in Butler, Pennsylvania, December 24, 1846, and for many years was one of the ablest members of the bar of Butler County. His death took place October 17, 1907. His parents were Hon. John and Nancy (McClelland) Bredin.

Hon. John Bredin came to Butler County with his parents in 1802. He was born at Stranola, in County Donegal, Ireland, in 1794. When aged sixteen years he went to Pittsburg, where he became a clerk in a general store. In 1812 he bought a tract of wild land in what is now Summit Township, Butler County, which later became valuable. In 1817 he was appointed clerk in the office of the prothonotary at Butler and thus he had his first opportunity to read a little law, and later completed his law studies under Gen. William Ayers, and soon made a special study of land laws and titles which subsequently proved to be of much importance to him in his practice. In 1824, in association with a brother, he engaged in the newspaper business and continued in it until 1830. In the following year he was appointed presiding judge in the Judicial District in which Butler is situated, and continued on the bench until his death, which occurred May 21, 1851. In 1829 he married Nancy McClelland, who was a native of Franklin, Venango County, and of their children, the late Joseph Bancroft was the youngest.

sylvania and of Michigan. He then took up the study of medicine with his brother, Dr. Stephen Bredin, and attended lectures at the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York City. Later he went into business as a druggist, conducting a drug store in Minnesota, but later returned to Butler and then turned his whole attention to the study of law, his leaning in this direction being an inheritance, fifteen members of the Bredin family having been members of the Butler bar. Mr. Bredin read law with George R. White and was admitted to the bar in 1875 and continued in the practice of law until his death. Like his father, he was a man of versatile talent, and his many-sided education but added to his brilliancy in his profession. In the trial of his cases, Mr. Bredin was noted for his fearless attitude and devotion to his clients. So well known was his personal integrity, however, that never a cloud rested upon his professional success.

From his father Mr. Bredin inherited the farm on which his widow resides, a beautiful tract of 135 acres, which is located just outside of the borough of Butler. Hay is the principal crop produced. There is a valuable gas well on the farm and undoubtedly coal and oil are under the surface soil.

Mr. Bredin married Mary Spear, who is a daughter of William L. Spear, one of the older residents of Butler. Two children were born to this marriage: James, who is a resident of Denver, Colorado, married Grace Volis of that city and has two daughters, Mary and Elvira; and Norman, who resides at Sacramento City, California.

In politics Mr. Bredin was a staunch supporter of the Democratic party. He was ever willing to advance the interests of his friends to the limit of his ability, but he sought no honors for himself. In his death Butler lost one of her best citizens.

JOSEPH BANCROFT BREDIN

ALBERT W. YOKERS, a representative citizen and prosperous farmer of Center Township, residing on his valuable farm of 137 acres, which is situated near the Brewster school-house, was born in Center Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, July 11, 1863, and is a son of Jacob and Barbara (Walters) Youkers.

The parents of Mr. Youkers were born and reared in Germany and were married there before coming to America. They settled in Butler Township, Butler County, the father securing work in the rolling mill in East Brady, at that time being a man of such strength that he could straighten steel rails with an 80-pound hammer. Later he moved to Center Township and engaged in farming for about thirty years and then sold his property and located at Butler, where he died.

Albert W. Youkers was reared on the farm in Center Township and attended the country schools through his boyhood. For about twenty years he worked in the oil fields as a driller, retiring from that industry in 1906 and devoting himself since then to farming. He purchased the property in 1890 and has lived on it since 1891 and has made very substantial improvements here, building his fine barn and residence after settling on the place. Mr. Youkers proposes to again take up drilling, his young sons being old enough to look largely after the farming.

Mr. Youkers married Cora Weigle, a daughter of Abraham Weigle, and they have had nine children, namely: Clara Belle, Veva Anna, Hazel, Ralph Frank, Joseph Albert, Carl Walters, Pearl Margaret, Harry Cedric and Clarence Delmas. The eldest daughter died when aged twelve years. Mr. Youkers is a member of the United Presbyterian Church.

JAMES W. BAKER, a successful general farmer of Franklin Township, resides on his birthplace farm, a valuable tract of 170 acres, a large part of which he has under a fine state of cultivation. He was born in Franklin Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, June 16, 1852, and is a son of Joseph Cadwallader and Katherine (Kockenberry) Baker. The grandfather, Cadwallader Baker, was the first settler in this part of Franklin Township when he came here from New York about 1808. He purchased 600 acres of Government land and cleared up a large part of it for his own use. He lived to the age of eighty-two years.

Joseph Cadwallader Baker, father of James W., was born in Franklin Township in 1812 and died February 2, 1892, from an attack of grippe, having formerly enjoyed good health, in spite of his advanced years. He followed farming all his active life. In politics he was an old-time Democrat and in his earlier years filled township offices. Of his family of eight children the following reached maturity: Frank, who resides near North Liberty, in Brady Township; Sarah Jane, who is the widow of Jacob Campbell, of Isle; Polly, who is the widow of Robert Brown, of Clay Township; Maria, who is the wife of Matthew Badger, of Franklin Township; Margaret, who is the wife of Israel Shaffer, of Franklin Township; James W.; and Effie, who is the wife of John Stine, of Franklin Township. The parents of the above mentioned family were worthy members of Mt. Zion Baptist Church, in which Mr. Baker was a deacon for several years.

James W. Baker attended the district schools through boyhood and ever since reaching manhood has engaged in farming and stockraising. His main crops are corn, oats, wheat and hay, and he keeps about six cows and raises thirty head of sheep. He is ranked with the best farmers of this section. Mr. Baker married Miss Katherine Stine, a daughter of Henry Stine, of Brady Township, Butler County, and they have had six children, as follows: William, residing at Pittsburg; Joel, living at Butler; Emma, wife of Herbert Shever, of Butler Township; Harry (deceased), and Earl and Clarence, both at home. Mr. Baker and his family are members of Mt. Zion Baptist Church. Like his father he votes with the Democratic party but he takes no very great interest in politics.

SAMUEL WALKER, an able member of the Butler bar, formerly district attorney and a prominent factor in county politics, was born at Butler, Pennsylvania, July 10, 1873, and is a son of Capt. Samuel and Caroline (Zimmerman) Walker, who were representatives of several of the oldest families in this section of Pennsylvania.

Following his graduation from the Butler High School, Mr. Walker spent two years in the Pennsylvania State College and then entered the law department of the University of Pennsylvania, from which he was graduated in 1899. Mr. Walker immediately located at Butler and during the first four years of practice, was associated with his uncle, Attorney Clarence Walker, since which time he has been alone. He enjoys a large local practice and has admission also to the Supreme and Superior Courts of the State. He served one term as district attorney but prefers the field of private practice to one of political prominence. He was reared in the principles of the Republican party and from early manhood has taken a deep interest in the success of that organization. He is serving as chairman of the Butler County Republican committee. Fraternally he is identified with the order of Odd Fellows. For a number of years he has been a member of the First Presbyterian Church at Butler.

ISAIAH COLLINS, a representative citizen of Parker Township and formerly a justice of the peace, resides on his well cultivated farm of more than fifty acres, its management being his main occupation. He was born in Butler County, Pennsylvania, May 24, 1843, and is a son of Charles and Elizabeth (Conley) Collins.

Charles Collins was a lifelong resident of Parker Township, where he died in 1872. He was a son of William Collins, who was a native of Ireland and one of the early settlers in this section. Charles Collins was, in his day, one of the township's solid, reliable men.* He was a Democrat in his political views and on that ticket he was frequently elected to local offices, the duties of which he carefully performed. The children who survive him are: Julia, who is the wife of Jacob Faller, of Butler County; and Isaiah, of Parker Township. Charles Collins and wife were members of the Roman Catholic Church.

Isaiah Collins has passed his life in the township in which he was born and he has given his attention almost exclusively to farming, successfully growing the grains which do best in this climate. He has a comfortable home and has many friends among those who have known him from boyhood.

Mr. Collins married Miss Louisa Forquer, who is a daughter of the late William Forquer, of Washington Township, Butler County. They have had seven children, the four survivors being: Annie, who is the wife of Joseph Slater, of Butler; Agnes, who resides in Parker Township; Catherine; and Sophia, residing at home. Mr. Collins and family belong to the Roman Catholic Church. Mr. Collins takes an interest in all that concerns his community and section, gives support to religion and education and is numbered with the township's useful citizens. For five years he served most acceptably as a justice of the peace.

CONRAD GUNDLACH, owner of a fine farm of eighty acres lying two miles east of Cabot on the Saxonburg road, is one of the leading farmers of Winfield Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania. He was born January 27, 1850, on the old home farm in Winfield Township, and is a son of John and Catherine (Biehling) Gundlach, also residents of this township, who were the parents of six children: Conrad, our subject; Maggie, Henry, Catherine, John, and T. Andrew. The paternal grandparents of Mr. Gundlach were natives of Germany, where they spent their entire lives engaged in agricultural pursuits.

Conrad Gundlach was reared and received his schooling in his native township and has followed farming all of his life. He was married when thirty-two years of age to Elizabeth Wetzell, a daughter of Gottlieb and Elizabeth (Smith) Wetzell, who were prominent farmers of Winfield Township. Four sons and five daughters have blessed their union, namely: Pauline; Albert; Oscar, deceased; Anna; Alice; Esther; John; Ruth; and Raymond, deceased. Mr. Gundlach and family occupy a large modern two-story residence, one of the most attractive and up-to-date homes in this section of the country. The family are all active members of the Lutheran Church. Mr. Gundlach is fraternally a member of the Grange.

ALEXANDER BREWSTER, who was a lifelong resident of Center Township, spent his sixty-eight years of useful living on the farm of 180 acres on which he was born, December 5, 1840. He died amid the familiar scenes of his lifetime, May 5, 1908. His parents were Joseph and Jane (Dunn) Brewster.

Joseph Brewster came to Butler County from Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, at a very early day and settled in Center Township when all this section was wild, uncleared and almost uncivilized. He secured the large body of land which subsequently was inherited by his children, and he was the pioneer in clearing it from its wild state and developing it into a rich, productive farm, through cultivation. He was twice married and on this farm both he and his second wife died when full of years.

Alexander Brewster followed farming all his mature life. He was a man of quiet, home-loving tastes, practical in his ideas and firm in his opinions, and his advice was frequently sought not only on matters pertaining solely to agriculture, but also on those which make for the advancement and happiness of a community. Among his closest friends were those of recognized sterling character matching his own.

In early manhood Mr. Brewster married Delilah M. Albert, a daughter of Henry Albert. She was born and reared in Franklin Township, but her father's farm was only two miles distant from the Brewster farm. She died May 31, 1906. To this happy marriage were born ten children and nine of these still live: Wilson Curtis, the eldest, resides in Wyoming; Preston Albert; Alexander Mitchell, married and lives in Allegheny; Laura Adellah and Heber John live at home; Benjamin Benton married and moved to a farm adjoining the homestead; Minnie Jane married Vinton A. Cranmer; Manifold Emmett married and lives at Queen's Junction; Charles Oscar, the youngest, lives at home and works the farm. Edwin Lawrence, the eighth in order of birth, died February 14, 1900. The late Alexander Brewster was a consistent member of the Mt. Chestnut United Presbyterian Church. He was a man of upright character and honest intentions and to say of him that his word was as good as his bond was telling the simple truth.

JOSEPH COLESTOCK, a highly respected citizen of Butler, who for twenty years has been prominently identified with the oil industry in Butler and Allegheny Counties, has resided in the city of Butler for the last two decades. He was born in 1856 in Fayette County, Pennsylvania, son of Joseph and Isabella (Speer) Colestock, the paternal branch of his family being one of the oldest in that section. The line of descent is as follows:

John Colestock, great-grandfather of the subject of this sketch, was born in Saxony, Germany, and emigrated to York County, Pennsylvania, in 1740. There he married Julia Foist, and they had three sons—Henry, John, and Jonas—also two daughters.

Jonas Colestock, son of John, and grandfather of Joseph of the present generation, was born in York County, Pennsylvania, in 1765, and was a captain in the militia for fourteen years. In 1787 he married Margaret Sese. His family consisted of nine children—Elizabeth, Mary, Margaret, Charlotte, Nancy, Sidney, Susan (wife of William McCormick, now residing in Uniontown in the eighty-sixth year of her age), and two sons, John and Joseph.

Jacob C. Seese, father of Mrs. Jonas Colestock, was a native of Lorraine Province, France (now a province of Germany). He was of noble birth and well educated, especially in the languages, but being of a military turn of mind became an officer in the French army. He came to America early in the eighteenth century and as a soldier in the Revolutionary War held a command under Gen. Sullivan in the latter's expedition to avenge the Wyoming massacre. About 1783 he settled in Westmoreland County, where he encountered many perils and hardships of Indian warfare. His wife was Mary Fouble of Bavaria, Germany, and she was the mother of four sons—Michael, Martin, Christopher, and Rudolph.

Joseph Colestock, son of Jonas and father of the present Joseph Colestock, was born in Connellsville, Fayette County, Penna., June 13, 1808. When old enough he learned the hatter's trade, which he followed for some years subsequently. Afterwards he clerked at Donegal for John Gay. He taught school at Uniontown for a number of years; was a merchant in Springfield Township, and then, in 1867, came to Dunbar Township, where he engaged successfully in farming. In 1837 he was married to Isabella, daughter of William and Margaret Speer, of Uniontown. They were the parents of eleven children, whose record in brief is as follows: Margaret is the wife of James F. Imel, a lumber merchant of Crawford County. Lient. John married Miss Jane King, served in the Eighty-fifth Pennsylvania Volunteers with honor, being promoted to first lieutenant for bravery. Minerva is the wife of Matthew Patterson of New Haven. Mary married Thomas Pyle of Pittsburg (first) and subsequently became the wife of William Gibbs of Mt. Pleasant. Lonisa married David Faulk of Titusville, Penna. Joseph is the direct subject of this sketch. Samuel is now deceased, as also are William and Jonas. David H. resided on the old homestead in Dunbar Township, but later retired and removed to Swissvale, Penna. Anabel became the wife of French E. Laishley, also of Swissvale, Penna. Joseph Colestock, the father of the above-mentioned children, was a Republican in politics, but was not very actively concerned with political matters. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and gave his entire time to the management of his farm while living.

Joseph Colestock remained with his father until he was about twenty years of age, and then entered the oil fields at Petrolia. From there he went to McKean County, drilling a number of wells, after which he engaged for some years in what is termed "wild-cattin'," coming to Butler in 1888. From that time on he has been interested in oil production in the Butler fields and has drilled hundreds of wells. He is a member of the firm of John J. Sheridan & Company, of Mars, manufacturers of all kinds of oil well supplies and owners of extensive oil properties in Allegheny County. Mr. Colestock is also interested in the Mars National Bank.

In 1888 Mr. Colestock was married to Miss Anna White, who is a daughter of the late Capt. Eli White, who served during the Civil War as a captain of cavalry in a Pennsylvania regiment, and died in 1868 from a wound received in action. Mr. and Mrs. Colestock have two sons, Joseph Hess and Samuel Leroy, the former of whom is in the Butler County oil fields and the latter a student at Bellefonte, Penna. Mr. Colestock and family are members of the United Presbyterian Church at Butler. He is a Knights Templar Mason and both he and Mrs. Colestock belong to Eastern Star, Butler Chapter, No. 45, of which Mrs. Colestock is past worthy matron.

B. J. RADER, whose excellent farm of 108 acres is situated in Forward Township, is one of the enterprising citizens and representative agriculturists of this section. He was born on his present farm, December 23, 1870, and is a son of Oswald A. and Margaret (Flenner) Rader.

Oswald A. Rader was born in Germany and was a son of Casper Rader, who was a farmer in that country. When twenty-three years of age, Oswald A. Rader came to America and settled in Butler County, Pennsylvania, purchasing his first farm from a Mr. Burton, which he sold and then bought the present home farm from William Fitzsimmons. Mr. Rader was a quiet, industrious man and was one who was very highly respected. He spent a long and useful life and died in April, 1905, aged eighty-two years. In October, 1850, he was married to Margaret Flenner. She also was born in Germany and was quite young when her parents, John and Eve (Miller) Flenner, brought her to America. They settled on land in Butler County, not far from Zelienople. She was born September 11, 1831, and can tell many interesting things concerning the early times in this section. She is a beloved member of the family of her son, B. J. Rader. Oswald A. Rader and wife had thirteen children, as follows: John, deceased; Henry; Adam; Catherine, wife of James Oesterling; Elizabeth; Peter; William; Fred; Anna, who married Levi Goehring; Benjamin J.; Mathilda, who married H. Trushel; Philip; and Ida, who is the wife of Charles Nicholas.

Benjamin J. Rader has spent his whole life on his present farm, which he purchased from his father. He raises the usual crops, corn, oats and hay, and enough cattle and stock for his own use, managing all his farming operations with excellent judgment.

On September 16, 1897, Mr. Rader was married to Miss Amelia Noss, who is a daughter of Fred and Caroline (Smith) Noss. They have three children: Lester, Ralph and Edwin. Mr. Rader and family belong to the Lutheran Church. In politics, Mr. Rader is a Democrat. He has always taken a good citizen's interest in township affairs and is serving at present as a member of the School Board.

CAPT. SAMUEL WALKER. The name of Walker has been honorably identified with Butler County for many years and the late Capt. Samuel Walker was a worthy representative of this pioneer stock. He was born on the old Walker homestead in Cranberry Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, January 19, 1835. His parents were Nathaniel and Grizella (Crowe) Walker.

The paternal grandfather, Lewis Walker, was of New England birth and was brought to Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, when very young. He was reared in that county but when he had reached his majority he started out for himself and subsequently acquired 800 acres of wild land that is now included in what is Cranberry Township, Butler County. There he lived for many years, becoming a man of affairs, and in old age passed away, at Butler, his death taking place in 1845. The family name of his wife was Parks but her first name has been lost. They became the parents of seven children.

Nathaniel Walker, the fifth son of Lewis Walker and the father of Capt. Samuel Walker, was born on the homestead which his father had secured, and he remained there, probably engaged in agricultural pursuits until the year following his father's death, when he moved to Mercer County. In 1847, however, he returned to Butler and during the remainder of his active life was successfully engaged in the manufacture of bricks. He was a man of sterling virtues and even balance of judgment and hence was frequently called upon by his fellow citizens to fill posts of trust and responsibility. For many years he adjusted local difficulties as a justice of the peace and in 1862, in a time of great financial depression, he was elected treasurer of Butler County and wisely and efficiently performed the onerous duties pertaining to the office. Samuel was his eldest son and was born to his first marriage, with Grizella, a daughter of John and Jane (Pollock) Crowe. A second son, John, was also born to this union. The second marriage of Nathaniel Walker was to Sarah M. Slater and they had four children: Leonidas, Caroline, Clarence and Leverett H. Mr. Walker was one of the early Abolitionists and on many occasions he gave assistance to escaping slaves. He later was thoroughly identified with the Republican party. In every relation of life he lived up to his convictions and in him the Presbyterian Church found a consistent and worthy adherent.

Samuel Walker grew to his twelfth year among the peaceful surroundings of his father's farm and through his educational period there was nothing to suggest the military ambition that dominated so large a part of his subsequent life. He had completed a course in Witherspoon Institute before he enlisted, in answer to President Lincoln's first call for troops at the outbreak of the Civil War. Mr. Walker enlisted in April, 1861, in Company H, Thirtieth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, with which he served until his honorable discharge August 6, 1862. On August 22, 1862, he reenlisted, entering Company F, One Hundred Fifty-fifth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, in which he served until March 12, 1864, becoming then a member of the Reserve Corps. He continued in the service until August 27, 1868. He had the honor and distinction of being one of the last twelve soldiers (this number including Gen. O. O. Howard), discharged from the volunteer service. He had participated in many of the most important engagements of the war, notably Antietam, Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville, and it was on the last mentioned field on May 3, 1863, that Captain Walker was so seriously wounded that he lost his right leg. On February 20, 1864, he had been commissioned second lieutenant in the Reserve Corps; on March 13, 1865, was commissioned captain; and on September 16, 1868, he was commissioned second lieutenant in the United States army. He received his final discharge on December 31, 1870, having given nine years to the service of his country. During the last three years he had been connected with the Freedmen's Bureau as agent, under General Howard and had been stationed at Memphis, Nashville, Chattanooga and Knoxville.

After the close of his military life, Captain Walker returned to Butler and entered the business field. Until 1873 he was teller of the First National Bank of Butler and was subsequently connected with other organizations. In 1890 he was elected tax collector of Butler borough and continued to serve in that capacity until his death. He had a wide acquaintance and many warm personal friends who admired him for the courage displayed in military life and esteemed him for the qualities which belonged to him by nature.

Captain Walker married Caroline Zimmerman, who was a daughter of John Michael Zimmerman, a leading citizen of Butler County. They had two children, Samuel and Catherine. The former is a well known attorney at Butler and formerly served as district attorney. Captain Walker was a zealous Republican. He was identified with the Union Veteran League and with several beneficiary organizations.

JAMES M. BARTLEY, residing on his excellent farm of fifty-three acres, situated in Parker Township, is one of the representative men of this section and belongs to an old Pennsylvania family, of Irish extraction. He was born June 1, 1855, in Summit Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of George W. and Eliza J. (McLaughlin) Bartley.

George W. Bartley, who died in 1900, was born in Penn Township, Butler County, and was a son of Robert Bartley, who was born in Ireland and emigrated to America when seventeen years of age. Robert Bartley settled in Penn Township, Butler County, in 1811 and from there enlisted for service in the War of 1812. In this same war, one of James M. Bartley's great-grandfathers, Abraham Brinker, was a captain of a company. Prior to that he had kept a tavern at Butler, selling it in 1809, and subsequently, after his return from the war, built what is known as Brinker's Mills, in Summit Township, four miles east of Butler. He left many descendants, numbers living in this section.

George W. Bartley was a man of considerable prominence in his day. In his younger years he was a school teacher and later served in a number of local offices. He identified himself with the Republican party and at one time was its candidate for county registrar and recorder. He married Eliza J. McLaughlin, a daughter of James McLaughlin, who, at one time, was the publisher of the Butler Herald and who went to California in 1850, and died while on the Pacific coast. The surviving children of the first marriage of George W. Bartley were: James M.; John Isaiah, residing in McKean County; Robert, living at Butler; Francis, in Allegheny County; and Oliver A., who lives in the city of New York. The long and useful life of George W. Bartley encompassed eighty years and in his death, Butler County lost a man of sterling character.

James M. Bartley was reared on his father's farm where he was trained to be a practical agriculturist and he obtained his education in the schools of Summit Township. His life has been mainly devoted to farming but during five winters he engaged in lumbering in Southwestern Michigan. In the spring of 1887, he settled on his present farm in Parker Township and has proven himself a useful and reliable citizen, taking an interest in all that promotes the welfare of this section. On May 7, 1877, he was married to Miss Martha De Vinney, a daughter of the late William De Vinney, a substantial resident of Sugar Creek Township, Armstrong County. Mrs. Bartley died January 10, 1905. She was a most estimable lady, beloved by all who knew her and was a consistent member of the United Presbyterian Church at Fairview, of which Mr. Bartley is also a member. In his political affiliation, Mr. Bartley is a Republican.

PETER HERBERT KENNEDY, owner of a fine farm of seventy acres located one and a half miles east of Cabot on the Bear Creek road, is one of the representative farmers and highly respected citizens of Winfield Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania. He was born on the old homestead in Butler County, March 18, 1878, a son of Peter and Rachel (Cooper) Kennedy. He is a grandson of James and Margaret Kennedy, who came to this country from Ireland and established the old home place in Butler County. There were fifteen children born to the parents of our subject, namely: William, Ellen, Mame, James, Joe, Thomas (deceased), Susan, Florence, Carrie, John (deceased), Adelia, Peter the subject of this sketch, Clifford, Harry, and Edwin.

Peter H. Kennedy was reared and received his educational training in Winfield Township and has always followed farming in a general way.

In 1903 when twenty-five years of age he was united in marriage with Maud Moore, a daughter of Clarence and Kate (Albany) Moore, prominent farmers of Erie County, Pennsylvania. Three children have been born to our subject and his estimable wife—Marjorie, Dorothy, and Olive.

The religious connection of the family is with the Methodist Episcopal Church of Cabot of which both Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy are active members. Fraternally the former is a member of the Winfield Grange No. 1105, the I. O. O. F. No. 496 and the Shenango Valley Lodge No. 387, Knights of Pythias. Mr. Kennedy is now serving as supervisor of Winfield Township.

JOHN A. GILLILAND, justice of the peace, in Summit Township, resides on his fine farm of 125 acres, which is favorably located about three-fourths of a mile northeast of East Butler, on the line adjoining Oakland Township. Mr. Gilliland was born on his present farm, November 7, 1860, and is a son of Robert and Rebecca (Armstrong) Gilliland.

John Gilliland, the grandfather of John A., was born in Ireland and came to America in the spring of 1818 and in 1820 he bought the present farm in Summit Township. In the ensuing fall he married and all of his children, with one exception, were born on this farm. He was a weaver by trade and engaged in this business for three years in Center Township, during which period his son James was born, and then returned to Summit Township, and spent the remainder of his life on his old farm.

Robert Gilliland, father of John A., was born on the same farm and here spent his life engaged in agricultural pursuits. He died April 25, 1894. He married Rebecca Armstrong, who was born near Perrysville, Allegheny County, Pennsylvania. Her father was Andrew Armstrong. Her mother died when she was a child and she came to Butler County, where she was a member of the family of her uncle, a farmer in Jefferson Township, until she reached maturity and then joined her father and step-mother at Allegheny City, where she remained until her marriage with Robert Gilliland. The four daughters and one son born to this union all were born in Summit Township, on the present farm. Mr. Gilliland was the second in the family, his sisters being: Mary E., Margaret Ellen, Isabella and Rachel Jane, all of whom have elected to remain unmarried. The mother survived the father for a number of years, her death taking place on September 28, 1903.

John A. Gilliland attended the country schools during boyhood, and being the only son, has had the management of the farm ever since he was old enough to assume the responsibility. He carries on general farming and has one oil well on his place. The frame residence was built by the grandfather and at the time it was erected was considered a marvel of architecture, being the first frame house put up in all this section. The father of Mr. Gilliland erected the other buildings. Mr. Gilliland is serving in his ninth consecutive year as a justice of the peace, and few citizens are better known or more highly regarded. He is a member of the United Presbyterian Church at Butler.

of his profession at Butler, but makes a speciality of diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat. He was born in Butler Township, Butler County, Penna., September 1, 1868, being a son of Thomas J. and Margaret E. (Ramsey) Hazlett, who is now a citizen of Butler, retired from active labor. Thomas J. Hazlett was born in Allegheny County, Penna., in 1836, and came to Butler County at the age of sixteen years. For many years he was engaged in farming in this county. He is a veteran of the Civil War, having enlisted in 1862 in Company F, One Hundred and Thirty-ninth Pennsylvania Infantry, with which regiment he served until the close of the war, participating in all the battles of his regiment. October 5, 1865, he married Margaret Eliza, daughter of William Ramsey, of Butler Township, Butler County. Five children—three boys and two girls—were born to this union, namely: Mary Belle, Leslie Ramsey, Sarah Ella, Howard Clinton and William Lynn, all of whom are living except the youngest, William Lynn, who died January 24, 1902, while attending the Baltimore Dental College at Baltimore, Maryland, a short time before his graduation.

Leslie R. Hazlett spent his early years on his father's farm and in attending the country schools. His literary education was subsequently continued at an academy at Connoquenessing, and still further advanced by attendance at the State Normal School at Edinboro, where he was graduated in 1890. For a while after his graduation he followed the occupation of teaching, successively in the Phillips School, in Penn Township, Butler County, the Parnassus School, Westmoreland County, of which he was principal, and in Allegheny County, where for two years he was principal of the Natrona Schools. He then entered upon the study of medicine in the old Jefferson Medical College at Philadelphia, and after pursuing the usual course, was graduated from that venerable seat of medical learning in 1896. He began practice at New Galilee, Beaver County, Pennsylvania, where he remained until 1902. He then took special courses at the Polyclinic College, Philadelphia, after which he located for further practice in Butler, of which city he has since been a resident. He is identified with both the County and State medical associations, and also belongs to the American Medical Association. In his professional life he aims to keep abreast of the times, and has met with gratifying success, having built up a lucrative practice.

Dr. Hazlett is a member of the United Presbyterian Church. He has fraternal affiliations with the Odd Fellows, the Woodmen of the World, and the Knights of Malta.

ERHART LANG, one of Winfield Township's highly respected citizens and owner of 153 acres of fine farming land, was born January 19, 1855, in Bavaria, Germany, and is a son of Lawrence and Anna (Reil) Lang. Mr. Lang's parents came to this country in 1832, locating in Butler County, Pennsylvania, where they both died. They had eight children, six of whom came to this country, five being residents of Pennsylvania and one of Wisconsin. They are Erhart, Andrew, Kate, Henrietta, Elizabeth, Adam, Margaret, and Eva.

Erhart Lang was reared and educated in Germany and spent three years in the German army, serving as a private in the artillery. After coming to this country he was joined in marriage with Frederica Roenigk, who is a daughter of Christian and Hannah (Frank) Roenigk, well known farmers of Butler County. There have been six children born to Mr. and Mrs. Lang, as follows: Andrew, who married Kate Zier, is the father of two children, Minnie and Edward J.; Adam, married Mary Doer and has one child, Milton Edward; Frederick C., a resident of Marwood, married Laura Sassa and has two children, Fred and Charles; Albert, Louis, and Tillie are all living at home. Mr. Lang and family are active members of the German Lutheran Church. Mr. Lang has always engaged in agricultural pursuits and purchased his present farm of 153 acres in 1885. He resides in a commodious two-story frame house.

CHARLES SIDNEY PASSAVANT, JR., who is vice president of the First National Bank at Zelenople, is a man of more than usual prominence in his native city and has always been identified with the interests of this section. He was born February 21, 1871, at Zelenople, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Charles Sidney and Jane (Randolph) Passavant.

Mr. Passavant doubtless has many reasons for feeling attached to and being proud of the prospering little city of his birth and residence, and one of these may be that the place was named in honor of his grandmother. His ancestors were the founders of the town, his grandfather, Philip Lonis Passavant, settling in Jackson Township, on the present site of Zelenople, prior to 1807. He was of French extraction but was born at Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany. In 1807 he founded a mercantile business which was continuously conducted for ninety-five years, by his immediate descendants. He continued its proprietor until 1840, then selling out to his son, Charles Sidney. Philip Lonis Passavant married Miss Zelig Basse and through combining the musical name of Zelig with the German "nople," meaning town, the little settlement acquired its unusual title. Philip Lonis Passavant and wife spent the years of a long and happy companionship here and their remains rest in one of the quiet burial places of the town. The record of their children reads as follows: Charles Sidney; Detmar, who died at Pittsburg and was interred at

Charles Sidney Passavant, Sr., was born at Zelenople, in 1817, and died in the same residence, in 1894. For a number of years he was associated with his brother Detmar, in a wholesale business at Pittsburg, from which he withdrew in 1840 and returned to Zelenople to take charge of the business from which his father was retiring, and he continued to conduct this store until his death, in 1894. His responsibilities were immediately assumed by his son, Charles Sidney, who, in turn, continued the operation of the same store until its destruction by fire, in 1902. The passing of this old landmark was very generally regretted for it had connected the beginning of the civilization of the place with the culture and business importance of the present. In all these years the Passavants had been leading factors in the town's development. The first Charles Sidney Passavant united himself by marriage with another of the old pioneer families of the place. His father-in-law, Edward Randolph, served for many years as a justice of the peace and was a man of character and substance. To this marriage two children were born: Charles Sidney and Emma Virginia.

Charles Sidney Passavant entered his father's store as an assistant, after he had completed his school course. In the spring of 1902 the property was destroyed by fire, after which came his association with the First National Bank. This, however, is but one of many interests, an important one being his connection with the Zelenople Light and Power Company. He is also an active citizen, has worked steadily for the best civic conditions and at present is effectively serving as president of the Borough Council, in his second term of office. In his political views he is a Republican.

MR. AND MRS. ANDREW O. EBERHART AND FAMILY

In 1892 Mr. Passavant was married to Miss Lillian E. Tebay, who is a daughter of J. H. Tebay, and they have two sons, Charles Sidney and James Louis, aged thirteen and seven years, respectively. The elegant family residence was erected by Mr. Passavant in 1895. It is of brick construction and is modern in every particular. Mr. and Mrs. Passavant are members of the English Lutheran Church. His fraternal relations are with the Modern Woodmen of America and the Masons, in the latter organization belonging to Harmony Lodge, No. 429.

ANDREW O. EBERHART, oil producer and general farmer, residing on his valuable property containing 240 acres, almost all of which is under cultivation, was born in Fairview Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, December 26, 1851, and is a son of John and Catherine (Barnhart) Eberhart.

John Eberhart was born July 16, 1827, in Mercer County, Pennsylvania, and was a young man when he moved to Millers-town. He learned the carpenter's trade, but the main business of his life was farming and stock-raising. He was the organizer of Thalia Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, in his section and served as its chaplain from its founding until his death, which occurred August 11, 1885. In politics he was a Republican and he served in the offices of school director and supervisor. On April 29, 1849, he married a daughter of Rudolph Barnhart, and they had eight children, the three who grew to maturity being: Andrew O.; Lewis D., who resides at Big Bend, Virginia; and Jonathan, who died in August, 1907. The parents were members of the Reformed Church, the father being an elder. They were people of acknowledged piety and were sincerely esteemed. For many years the father taught singing school and was chorister in the church.

The Eberhart family can be traced very far back, even to A. D. 850, but no complete record goes farther than 1266, when an Eberhart became bishop of Constance. Since then the family has been distributed through the centuries all over the German Empire and the United States, the general religious trend being to the Lutheran Church.

The great-great-grandfather was Paul Eberhart. His son, Christian Eberhart, was born March 9, 1772, in what is now Lehigh County, Pennsylvania, and in 1773 was taken to Westmoreland County, where he was reared. He married Anna Marie Snyder, born in 1773 and died in 1849. When he married, Christian Eberhart moved to his farm which was situated seven miles from Greensburg and lived there until his death in 1839. He was a member and an official in the Lutheran Church.

Joseph Eberhart, grandfather of Andrew O., was born in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, March 19, 1800. By trade he was a tailor. In 1854 he emigrated to Kansas, where he engaged in farming and also preached in the Lutheran Church, labored as a Bible agent and held many churchy offices. He married Katie Kiester, who was born January 4, 1805, and died in Kansas, December 21, 1885.

Andrew O. Eberhart was reared in Fairview Township and after he completed his school attendance, he worked at the carpenter's trade for several years and also engaged in farming. After his marriage he moved to Butler Township and settled on a farm adjoining his present one, buying the latter and moving on it, in 1887. With the assistance of his sons he cultivates almost the entire acreage. The sons make a specialty of fruits, potatoes and garden truck. The farm has three orchards, producing many apples, while a market is annually found for 125 bushels of strawberries. In 1873 Mr. Eberhart became first interested in the oil business, in Donegal and Fairview Townships, and has continued ever since and now is concerned in six producing wells.

March 11, 1873, Mr. Eberhart was married to Mary E. Barnhart, who is a daughter of Philip Barnhart, of Fairview Township. They have the following children: Tessie Terilla, an accomplished musician, who is the organist of St. John's Reformed Church; Jeremiah A., residing on the farm, on April 24, 1907, married Emily Miller; Henry Harrison married Mae Sharrar September 30, 1908, lives on the home farm; and Etta E. After locating on his present farm, Mr. Eberhart was elected a deacon in St. John's Church and later served as an elder for a number of years. With his sons he belongs to the East End Hose Company Drum Corps. As he taught music to bands for a long period, and during the Civil War played much martial music, he very ably fills the place of almost any musician in local musical organizations. In politics, he is a Republican and has served as school director, constable, and for two and one-half terms as jury commissioner. He belongs to the Odd Fellows and the Rebekahs, the Royal Arcanum of Butler, of which he was a charter member, and while he resided in Fairview Township was a member of the Grange. For twenty-five years Mr. Eberhart was a director of St. Paul's Orphan Home. He assisted in getting the right of way for the Butler and New Castle electric line through this township, and a station has been established on his farm known as Eberhart Station.

CHARLES B. WULLER, a leading business citizen of East Butler, where he carries on a drug business, is a man of experience in this line, having been identified with it ever since leaving school. He was born in Butler, Pennsylvania, August 13, 1868, and is a son of J. H. and Johanna (Keifer) Wuller. The parents of Mr. Wuller were natives of Germany. They came to America and resided at Butler, where the father was a professor of music and also a dealer in real estate.

Charles B. Wuller attended the public schools of Butler until he went to work for his brother, J. L. Wuller, who was proprietor of what is now the Crystal Pharmacy, with whom he remained for four years, in the meanwhile qualifying as a druggist. He then entered into partnership with Dr. J. F. Moore, operating a drug store of the name of the Springdale drug store, in 1887, and later bought and conducted the business for himself. He then sold a half interest to C. J. Harvey, they later selling out to J. L. McKee. Later he conducted the store of his brother, D. H. Wuller, for two years, for the Wuller estate and then came to East Butler and started his present business in December, 1907. His building is a commodious one, two stories in height, with basement, the latter of which is utilized for a lunch room and barber shop. The location is on the corner of Broadway and Tenth Street. Mr. Wuller uses the corner for his drug store, the adjoining room for a grocery store and he rents the upper floor as a flat for living purposes.

Mr. Wuller married Mary C. Reid and they have one son, John H., who is a bright boy at school. Mr. and Mrs. Wuller are members of St. Paul's Catholic Church. He belongs to the fraternal order of Woodmen of the World and is a charter member of Keystone Camp, No. 8.

R. S. PENFIELD, A.M., county superintendent of schools of Butler County, is a well-known educator who has been identified with the school and literary interests of Butler County for some twelve years. Professor Penfield was born June 10, 1868, in Crawford County, Pennsylvania.

After completing the common and high school course in his native place, Mr. Penfield entered the Edinboro State Normal School, where he was graduated in 1889 and from there went to Allegheny College at Meadville, Pennsylvania, and later Grove City College and was graduated from the latter institution in 1899. He began teaching when seventeen years old, and with the exception of the years during which he has been himself a student, he has continued in the educational field ever since. For five years he was superintendent of the schools of Linesville, for three years was principal of the Cochranon schools (both of Crawford County, Pennsylvania), from 1897-8 he was instructor in Latin in the Edinboro State Normal School, for six years was principal of the Chicora High School and is serving in his second term as county superintendent for Butler County. As opportunity offered, he also spent about eighteen months studying law under the direction of Attorney Frank M. Ray, at Meadville. He is a member of the Pennsylvania State Educational Association; of the Round Table Association of Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio; was one of the founders of the Inter-State Summer School of Methods, and for two years was identified with the Conneaut Lake Summer School of Pedagogy. To all these organizations, Professor Penfield has contributed of his intellect, his knowledge, culture and experience and he has the pleasant consciousness that in all he has done he has encouraged higher standards and wherever he has been has left warm personal friends behind.

In 1892 Professor Penfield was married to Miss Anna M. Brown, of Linesville, Pennsylvania, and they have two children: Williard E. and Gertrude M. They are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church in which he is very active. Since 1906 he has been president of the Butler County Sabbath School Association, and while he resided at Chicora he served as one of the church stewards. His fraternal connection is with the Odd Fellows.

HUGH G. STEELE, a well-known citizen of Butler County and a member of the firm of Steele Brothers, prominent oil producers, with headquarters at Bruin, was born in Perry Township, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, February 10, 1868, and is a son of Samuel C. and Phoebe (Snow) Steele.

The parents of Mr. Steele were natives of Armstrong County and for many years were substantial farming people there. The father died in 1897 and his surviving children are as follows: Jemima, who is the wife of J. W. Miller, of New Castle; A. C., who resides in Parker Township; Sadie, who is the wife of D. P. Emery, of Butler; Nancy, who is the wife of R. W. Shakeley, of Fairview Township; Julia, who is the wife of E. J. Delaney, of Armstrong County; Hugh G.; Edward J., who resides at Bruin; and Maud, who is the wife of L. W. Miller, of Kaylor, Armstrong County.

Hugh G. Steele grew up on his father's farm in Perry Township and continued in agricultural pursuits until he came to Butler County, since which time he has been engaged in oil production. He has resided at Bruin since 1898 and is serving as president of the borough council, having been a member of this body for several consecutive years.

Mr. Steele married Miss Nettie Hillard, a daughter of the late John Hillard, formerly a well-known resident of Karns City, Butler County. Mr. and Mrs. Steele are members of the Presbyterian Church at Bruin and his activity as a Sunday-school worker is shown in his consenting to serve as assistant superintendent and also as treasurer. In his attitude on public questions, Mr. Steele is a strong prohibitionist and sees much to encourage the advocates of temperance in the change that has recently come over the country concerning this great moral question.

ANDREW J. LANG, one of the most successful of the younger generation of farmers and business men of Winfield Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is the owner of a valuable farm of 100 acres about two miles east of Cabot on the Winfield, Furnace and Saxon Street Railway. He comes of a prominent old family of the county, and was born on the old homestead in Winfield Township, January 10, 1882. He is a son of Erhart and Frederica (Roenigk) Lang, and grandson of Lawrence and Anna (Reil) Lang.

Lawrence Lang and his wife, with six of their eight children, emigrated to America and located in Butler County, Pennsylvania, all of them being natives of Germany. Erhart Lang, father of the subject of this sketch, was born in Bavaria, Germany, January 19, 1856, and was for three years a soldier of the German Army. He now resides on a farm of 153 acres in Winfield Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and fuller mention of him and his family may be found on another page of this work.

Andrew J. Lang was reared on the home farm and received a good educational training in the public schools. He has always engaged in farming, and his estate of 100 acres is one of the best improved in this vicinity; he erected a new two-story frame house and has a good, substantial barn and other necessary outbuildings. At the age of twenty-one years, Mr. Lang was united in marriage with Miss Katie Zier, a daughter of George and Rachael Zier, of Butler County, and they have one daughter, Minnie, and one son, Edward J. Religiously, they are members of the German Lutheran Church.

ANDREW YOST, whose excellent farm of ninety-three acres on which he resides is situated in Summit Township, was born on a second farm of thirty-three acres, which he also owns, in Summit Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, December 26, 1843. He is a son of Jacob and Annie Catherine (Knouse) Yost.

Jacob Yost was born in Germany and remained there until a young man, when he came to Butler County. He met Annie Catherine Knouse in Summit Township and they were married here. She was also a native of Germany and had been brought to Butler County in girlhood. Jacob Yost acquired a farm of sixty-five acres on which he started housekeeping with his bride. Later he divided his farm with his brother-in-law, Andrew Knouse, retaining thirty-three acres for himself. There Jacob Yost and wife reared their family and continued to live until death. Mrs. Yost died in 1866 and he survived her but two years. Their children were: Mary, who died aged nine years; Catherine, who is the widow of Mathias Keck, lives in Butler; Jacob, who served in the Civil War, returned home in 1865 only to leave again and has never since been heard from; and Andrew.

Andrew Yost continued to live on the home farm and to entirely manage it as his father grew older, and also learned the carpenter trade, at which he worked for fourteen years. During this time he built many houses and barns through Butler County. In 1877 he bought the old McCurdy farm and moved on it in the same year and immediately began to improve the place. In 1881 he built his handsome and comfortable residence and has gradually done other improving and has now one of the very best farms in Summit Township. He cultivates the larger part of his land and finds the soil very productive.

Mr. Yost married Elizabeth Barbara Rettig, who is a daughter of Adam Rettig, and they have a family of seven children and a number of grandchildren: Edward Adam, the eldest son, residing at Butler, married Emma Frederick, and they have three children—Irvin Andrew, Philbert Gottlieb and Carl Adam. Annie, the eldest daughter, married Charles Frederick and they have three children—Verna Barbara, Irene Edith and Earl Edward. William and Ida live at home, the former working at the carpenter trade. Nora is the wife of Henry Grover Miller and they reside at Herman. The youngest daughter and son, Gertrude and Albert, both reside at home. The family belong to the Lutheran Church. Mr. Yost has always taken an interest in educational matters and he has served for six years as a school director.

WILLIAM FOSTER, architect, with offices at No. 223 South Main Street, Butler, has been a resident of this city for eighteen years and is thoroughly identified with its interests. He was born in 1860, in Mercer County, Pennsylvania, where he was reared and educated.

When it became necessary, after leaving school, to select the tools for a subsequent business success, Mr. Foster did not at once turn his attention to the profession in which he at present is a recognized leader. He found the carpenter's trade one in which he could take an interest, and after completing his apprenticeship, he worked for two years prior to 1890, when he came first to Butler, in a mill in Franklin, Pennsylvania. After reaching this city he entered the planing mill of the S. G. Purvis Company, where he continued for eight and one-half years, after which he worked for four and one-half years in the Freeport planing mill at Freeport, Pennsylvania. Mr. Foster then returned to Butler and worked in a planing mill for three years, in the meanwhile devoting himself to the study of architecture. This natural taste he easily cultivated and the large amount of satisfactory work that he has done at Butler and throughout the county, gives testimony to both his industry and ability. Among the principal buildings for which he has made the plans may be mentioned: the Schultz & Koch Building, the Ralston Block, the Clinton Hotel, the Keystone Hotel, the Atlas Hotel, the Reed Building, on the corner of New Castle Street and Fourth Avenue, St. Paul's Church, the Hall Building, six business blocks in Lyndora, the Slavonic Parsonage, Dr. Britton's Block, the T. W. Phillips residence, and numerous others. In all these structures the taste and appropriateness of the designs have resulted in buildings which are ornaments to the city.

In 1880 Mr. Foster was married to Miss Mary McDonald, of Mercer County, and they have eight children, namely: Olive, who is the wife of C. W. Floyd, of Homestead, Pennsylvania; O. W., residing at Butler; Mary A., who married M. F. Ingraham, of Butler; John C., who is associated with his father; and Estella, Elizabeth, Alvin and Margaret. Mr. Foster is a Republican in his political sentiments. In his fraternal relations he belongs to the Protected Home Circle and the Woodmen of the World.

JOHN C. KELLEY, one of Butler County's leading citizens, an oil operator, farmer, stock buyer and formerly commissioner of the county, was born in Slippery Rock Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, February 13, 1840, and is a son of Samuel and Eliza (McKee) Kelley.

Samuel Kelley, father of John C., was born in County Down, Ireland, December 25, 1800. When he was eighteen years old he started to America, which he reached after six months on the Atlantic Ocean, in a sailing vessel, and came to Mercer Township, Mercer County, Pennsylvania, where he found a home with James George. He soon was given employment on the Erie Canal, then in course of construction, and he worked his way up, ceaselessly and faithfully, until he became a contractor and served as such both on the Erie and Johnstown Canals. After the completion of these public works, Samuel Kelley retired to a large farm in Slippery Rock Township, in which he had invested his earnings, and lived there until 1865, when he sold it to advantage and bought 160 acres of land, in Butler Township, of which John C. Kelley's farm is a part. He carried on farming and stock-raising and throughout the greater part of his life held some local office. He was a strong Democrat and always interested in public matters, but the offices to which he was elected came to him entirely unsolicited. His death occurred on his farm on April 1, 1880. He was very charitable to the poor and his judgments during the time he served as a justice of the peace were tempered with mercy. He married a daughter of Richard McKee, of Muddy Creek Township in 1831, and eight of their children reached maturity, namely: David M., deceased; Catherine J., wife of F. M. Shira, of Parker Township; Elizabeth J., deceased, married I. J. McCandless; Samuel R., residing at New Castle; John C.; Agnes, deceased, married A. Perry Stewart; Margaret A., wife of Dr. K. M. Kreecorian, a physician residing in Farnam, Nebraska; and William C. While living in Slippery Rock Township, Samuel Kelley was a member of Harmony Church, at Harrisville, but in later years he was connected with Shiloh United Presbyterian Church of Jefferson Township.

John C. Kelley spent his boyhood in Slippery Rock Township. After completing his school attendance, he learned the carpenter and millwright trades and followed these until 1865, when he went to Adams Township, where he bought a farm on which he settled in 1867. Mr. Kelley resided on that farm until in the spring of 1885, when he purchased his present farm of 100 acres. Mr. Kelley engages practical men to do his farming and to look after his oil interests here, having thirteen

Mr. Kelley has always been an active citizen. During the Civil War he was out with the militia during the Morgan raid and suffered loss and hardship at that time. He was reared a Democrat and has been a consistent supporter of the policies, principles and candidates of that party. He has served in the offices of school director, auditor, assessor, collector, justice of the peace (four successive terms), and two terms as county commissioner, being elected first in 1884 and re-elected in 1887. During this period the new court house was built in Butler County and other needed public improvements were made, without any undue tax being levied on the citizens. For twenty years prior to 1908, he served as a justice of the peace in Butler Township, and he has settled many difficult cases by the exercise of his good judgment, in this way often promoting peace in the family and neighborhood. Before the County Home was established, many paupers and indigent persons were brought before him. Mr. Kelley has been a very loyal supporter of his party and has contributed liberally for campaign purposes and at the same time has done effective work. He has attended a number of the National conventions and has been on the electoral ticket.

In 1865 Mr. Kelley was married to Nancy C. Gillespie, who was a daughter of Capt. Alexander Gillespie, of Cranberry Township, Butler County. Mrs. Kelley was born in September, 1844, and died December 12, 1905. From the age of thirteen years she had been a consistent member of the United Presbyterian Church. She was the beloved mother of six children, namely: Olive Josephine, who married C. D. Bole, residing at Marietta, Ohio; Alexander G., who lives at Decatur, Indiana; Minerva E. (Kelley) Bole, who resides in Butler; Mrs. Mary I. Kenneth, who lives at Jackson, Michigan; Nancy R., who is the wife of Ernest H. Cronenwett, residing at Butler; and Clarence H., who also lives at Butler. The only grandchild of Mr. Kelley is John C. Bole, who is the son of his second daughter.

JAMES S. FOLLETT, oil producer and farmer, whose residence is located in the pleasant borough of Bruin, owns 100 acres of land, twenty-five of which are located in the borough of Bruin and seventy-five in Parker Township, on which oil is produced. He was born at Warren, Pennsylvania, August 12, 1851, and is a son of Rathbon and Jane (Early) Follett.

The parents of Mr. Follett were both natives of Machias, Cattaraugus County, New York.

James S. Follett was twelve years old when his parents took him to New York, and he obtained his education there, attending an academy at Arcade for a time. He was little more than a boy when he began his connection with the oil industry, with which he has been ever since connected in some way and for a number of years has been a producer of oil. In 1881 he located on his farm at Bruin and has here engaged in agriculture, taking pleasure in cultivating and improving it.

Mr. Follett married Miss Ella Smith, who was born in Warren County, Pennsylvania, a daughter of the late Caleb Smith, of Cherry Township, Butler County. They have two children: Jennie M., who is the wife of George Keisselring, of Marietta, Ohio; and Florence M., who resides with her parents at Bruin. The elder daughter is a graduate of the Slippery Rock State Normal School and also of the Schumaker School of Elocution, of Philadelphia, and prior to her marriage, she was a very acceptable and popular teacher. Mr. Follett and family belong to the Methodist Episcopal Church at Petrolia, in which he has served for many years as trustee and treasurer. He belongs to the Maccabee Lodge at Petrolia. His political adherence is given to the Prohibition party. Mr. Follett is a self-made man, in youth having many disadvantages to overcome, and his present position is entirely the result of his own efforts.

Mr. Follett paid the expenses of Elisha Solomon, a native of India, who graduated from the Baralia Theological Seminary at Baralia, India, and who is now preaching in that country. After graduating he added to his name that of Follett, making it Elisha Solomon Follett, and he also defrayed the expenses of Panchmu in the same school in India, who is also preaching in India, both preaching to the heathen natives.

JOHN H. HERRIT, one of Summit Township's representative citizens, resides on his valuable farm of fifty acres, which is situated about three and one-half miles east of Butler, on the old State road. Mr. Herrit was born on his present farm, August 6, 1866, and is a son of John and Margaret (Binsack) Herrit.

John Herrit was born in America, but his father, Conrad Herrit, was a native of Germany. John Herrit acquired the present farm in Summit Township and died on it about 1872. His widow subsequently married Fred Oertel and they reside in Summit Township. Of the father's five children, four survive, namely: John H., Christian, Adam, and Lizzie, who is the wife of Christopher Zellsman. The father and the youngest child died at the same time, of smallpox.

John H. Herrit was reared on the home farm and attended the country schools. With the exception of several years, during which he conducted a butcher shop at Butler, Mr. Herrit has devoted himself to the business of farming, making it profitable. He has been one of the active politicians of his township and for about twenty years served as township auditor and at present is serving in his third term as township collector. He is a man in whom his fellow citizens can place reliance.

Mr. Herrit married Anna Miller, a daughter of Nicholas Miller, and they have five children, all bright and unusually attractive, to whom Mr. Herrit is giving every advantage in his power. They bear these names: Raymond, Gilmore, Mabel, Twila, and Freda. Mr. Herrit is one of the leading members of the German Lutheran Church.

ANDREW C. ROSEBAUGH, general farmer and dairyman, resides on his valuable farm of ninety acres, which is situated in Adams Township, right on the electric railroad line, twelve miles south of Butler. He was born on his father's farm in Lancaster Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, September 23, 1863, and is a son of George and Mary (Kelley) Rosebaugh.

The Rosebaugh family can easily establish its claim to being one of the oldest in Butler County. The great-grandparents, accompanied by their son George, came to America from Germany and secured a tract of 500 acres of land in Lancaster Township, Butler County, when the whole surrounding country was a wilderness. Grandfather George Rosebaugh spent the remainder of his life on the pioneer farm, dying when aged fifty-eight years. He married a Miss Dunn, who was born in America, and they had eight children, six of whom are deceased. The two survivors are: George, the father of Andrew C.; and Ellen, who is the wife of Dr. O'Neil, who resides in Kansas.

George Rosebaugh the second, was born on what is now known as the Croft farm, in Lancaster Township, Butler County, June 21, 1824, grew to manhood there and in the course of time, in association with his brother Thomas, who later moved to Kansas, came into possession of the home farm. He has been twice married. The first wife left four children, namely: Amanda, wife of Alexander Hayes; Ellen, wife of James McNeese; Elizabeth, wife of William Spence; and George, who died young. Mr. Rosebaugh married Mary Kelly for his second wife. She was born in 1833, in Lancaster Township, Butler County. There were the following children born to this marriage: Anna, wife of Christ Gelbach; Ida, wife of W. Dale; Andrew C.; Isaac N., who died in 1905; Sadie and Maggie, twins, the former of whom is the wife of J. A. Kennedy and the latter of W. J. Renison; and Alice, who is the wife of Charles Bunting. George Rosebaugh continued to live on the home farm for a time and then sold it and purchased 164 acres in Adams Township, which he subsequently turned over to his sons and retired to Mars, where he and wife reside. They are members of the United Presbyterian Church. Mr. Rosebaugh is deeply interested in the cause of Prohibition and much encouraged by the present attitude of the public on this important subject.

Andrew C. Rosebaugh was about two years old when his parents settled in Adams Township, where his life ever since has been spent. He was married August 17, 1887, to Emma Rowan, who is a daughter of Matthew and Nancy Rowan, of Penn Township, and they have three children: Edna L., Frank H., and Laura E. Mr. Rosebaugh is a general farmer, growing grain and vegetables, but he makes a specialty of raising potatoes and of making butter. He markets 700 bushels of fine potatoes a year and his output of first class butter amounts to forty pounds a week. In his political views he is a Republican. With his wife he belongs to the Presbyterian Church.

WILLIAM A. SWAIN, a leading business citizen of Zelenople, engaged in the hardware line, was born in Jackson Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, February 14, 1869, and is a son of William G. and Sarah (Sechler) Swain.

The Swains are among the old settlers of Butler County. Samuel Swain, the grandfather, was born in 1800, in Maryland, and came with his parents to Butler County, in 1818. They rest in the old cemetery at Zelenople. The Sechlers also were established in this section in the days of the grandfather, Jacob Sechler, who was born in Eastern Pennsylvania. He owned a farm and operated a mill within a half mile of Harmony. His last years were spent at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. Zeigler, in Jackson Township. On the paternal side four sons and two daughters reached maturity: A. A., S. L., G. D., William G., Mrs. Margaret Hallestine, and Mrs. Maria Donelly, the latter of whom resides at Pittsburgh. The maternal grandparents had the following children who reached mature life: Jacob, residing in Venango County; Abraham, residing in Lawrence County; Michael, a resident of Missouri; John, who is deceased; Mrs. Gottlieb Burry, living in Medina County, Ohio; Mrs. John Burry, who is deceased; Mrs. H. M. Zeigler, residing at Zelenople; Mrs. W. J. Bartley, residing at Butler; Elizabeth, who is deceased; and Sarah, the mother of Mr. Swain. She was born in Jackson Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, in 1839, and still survives.

William Gellert Swain was born in 1837, on the farm in Jackson Township, where almost all of his life was spent and where he died in 1893, aged fifty-six years. Seven years of his life he lived in Beaver County and all of it was devoted to agricultural pursuits. The children of William G. Swain and wife were: Mrs. A. Sitler, of Zelenople; Miss Ellen M., residing at home; and William A.

William A. Swain was educated in the common and high school at Zelenople and for ten years taught school, meeting with success in this field, for he was interested in his work and was able to interest as well as instruct others. He also gave considerable time and attention to surveying. In 1903 he entered into the hardware business at Zelenople, being treasurer of the Zelenople Hardware Company, a prospering business enterprise of this place, and the largest concern of its kind in this section.

In his political views, Mr. Swain votes with the Democratic party on national issues, but in local affairs he casts an independent ballot. He is a member of Harmony Lodge No. 648, Odd Fellows; of Harmony Lodge No. 311, Knights of Pythias; and of the Royal Arcanum, also of Harmony. He has membership in the English Lutheran Church at Zelenople.

JOHN F. ANDERSON, one of Butler's representative citizens, who, for many years has been a prominent figure among business men in this section, being identified with many large enterprises, especially being active as an operator in oil and gas, was born February 14, 1852, at Mt. Chestnut, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of the late James D. Anderson.

James D. Anderson was born in Ireland and when he came to America he made his way to Butler County, Pennsylvania, settling on a large tract of land near the village of Prospect. Later he moved to Penn Township, locating there in 1865 and from that township he was elected register and recorder of Butler County, in 1876, on the Democratic ticket. For years he was very prominent in local politics. He followed farming and also engaged in merchandizing.

John F. Anderson was reared in Butler County and obtained his education in the public schools and Witherspoon Institute. For several subsequent years he taught school in Butler and Allegheny Counties and then turned his attention to merchandizing, in 1883 opening a store at Renfrew, which he conducted until 1888, when he came to Butler. He soon became interested in the Home Natural Gas Company as one of its directors, and at present he is connected with numerous successful business organizations of various kinds. He is president of the board of directors of the Patterson Natural Gas Company, president of the natural gas company that supplies Evans City, a director and stockholder in the Standard Plate Glass Company, a director and secretary of the East Butler Land and Improvement Company, a stockholder in the Butler Savings and Trust Company, and a stockholder and manager of the firm of Sprang & Company. He is an active citizen in the sense of endeavoring to secure good city government and improved conditions, but he is no politician. He votes with the Democratic party.

In 1883 Mr. Anderson was married to Miss Iona M. Heap, of Colorado Springs, and they have two sons, Frank Carl and James G., the former of whom is a graduate of Lehigh University, and the latter a student in the graduating class of the Mercersburg Academy, being a graduate of the Butler High School. Mr. Anderson and family belong to the First Presbyterian Church, in which body he belongs to the Session and is also superintendent of the Sunday school.

CHARLES SCHOENFELD, who has been a resident of Bruin since 1896, and of Parker Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, since 1875, is a well known oil producer and has been identified with the oil industry since 1865. He is a Prussian by birth, the date thereof being May 2, 1833, and is a son of Gottlieb Schoenfeld, who lived and died in Prussia.

Mr. Schoenfeld was reared to manhood in his native land, received his education in the common schools, and for three years was in the service of the German army. He there learned and followed the trade of a carpenter. In 1859 he set sail from Hamburg in a sailing vessel, and after a voyage of thirty-two days landed in New York City. He worked at his trade at Albany and Buffalo, New York, until 1865, when he was carried by the oil excitement to Venango County, Pennsylvania. The following year he became an oil producer and has continued as such more or less ever since. He is a man of wide acquaintance through this section, and is most highly esteemed.

May 3, 1861, at Buffalo, New York, Charles Schoenfeld was married to Miss Charlotte Schmidt, who was born in Germany in 1840, and in 1859 accompanied an aunt to the United States. Five children were born to them, as follows: Catherine, wife of James Young of Cattaraugus County, New York; Elizabeth, wife of William L. Fuher of Pittsburg; Charles H.; William; and Charlotte V., wife of Rev. William Flening, who is pastor of the Presbyterian church at Clarion, Pennsylvania. Charles H. and Wm. Schoenfeld make oil their special business, both being drillers. Charles H. Schoenfeld drilled the largest well that was ever brought in in Pennsylvania, producing over fourteen thousand barrels daily, for Joseph Hartman (deceased), of Butler National Bank. In religious attachment, the subject of this sketch and his wife are members of the Presbyterian Church at Bruin, of which he has served as trustee. In political affiliation, he is a Republican.

DAVID L. CLEELAND, jeweler and optician at Butler, with location at No. 125 South Main Street, is one of the older business men of the city, with which he has been identified for almost thirty years, developing in the meantime, a large and important enterprise from a small beginning. Mr. Cleeland was born in Perry Township, Mercer County, Pennsylvania, in June, 1855.

Mr. Cleeland was educated in Perry Township and at Sandy Lake College, and after leaving school worked until he was nineteen years of age, in a grist mill. He then entered the employ of J. R. Snyder, and with him learned the watchmaker's trade, serving an apprenticeship of three years and continued at Harrisville until 1881, when he came to Butler. At that time the present wide-spreading city had not more than 4,500 population and Mr. Cleeland's business beginning as jeweler and watchmaker was in accord, but he has prospered equally with the growth of the city in numbers, wealth and luxury, and now owns an establishment and stock of goods that would do credit to a metropolitan center anywhere. He continued alone in business until 1888, when W. E. Ralston became a partner and the firm of Cleeland & Ralston continued in business until September, 1893, when the partnership was dissolved and since then Mr. Cleeland has been alone. He is a graduated optician and has always made a specialty of optical goods. In 1888 he received one certificate from the Julius King Optical Company, at Cleveland, as to his efficiency; and in 1896 he took a post-graduate course in New York, receiving a second certificate, and in 1890 he passed his examination before the State Board of Opticians, receiving his certificate as dioptrician. Mr. Cleeland is one of the board of directors of the Farmers' National Bank.

On November 14, 1878, Mr. Cleeland was married to Miss Flora Cubbison, of Mercer County, Pennsylvania, and they have five sons: Earl C., Frank W., Roy A., Carl L., and David L., Jr. The eldest son, Rev. Earl C., is a Presbyterian minister, who has spent some years as a professor in a Presbyterian College situated at Canton, China. Frank W. is engaged in a real estate business at Pittsburg. Roy A. is an engraver, with the Marsh, Brown, Mather Company, wholesale jewelers at Pittsburg. Carl L. is in the first year of High School at Butler and the youngest son is a bright student in the Grammar School. Mr. Cleeland and wife are members of the Second Presbyterian Church at Butler, of which they, with Dr. J. E. Byers and Robert A. White, were the organizers. He is a member of the Session and is active in everything pertaining to its affairs. Fraternally he is an Odd Fellow, belonging to the lower order and also to the Encampment. He has ever been an earnest, useful citizen and is serving as a member of the Butler Board of Health.

CHARLES A. SMITH, who in partnership with Mr. J. C. Logan, conducts a large general store at Cabot, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is also postmaster of the village, having served in that capacity for a period of twenty-two years. The store was started in a small way as early as 1887, and was from time to time enlarged to meet the demands of trade until at the present time four clerks are employed; the stock carried is large and complete and is probably not equaled in this part of Pennsylvania in a town of the same size.

Mr. Smith was born May 25, 1853, about one mile and a half east of the village of Cabot, and is a son of Robert and Mary (Clark) Smith. His grandfather, Hugh Smith, came to Butler County from east of the mountains of Pennsylvania on horseback. He was a soldier in the War of 1812, and walked to Erie to join Colonel Prescott's command. Robert Smith was one of the substantial men of Winfield Township, and lived to reach the advanced age of eighty-two years, dying June 14, 1907. Mrs. Smith passed from this life on November 1, 1901, at the age of seventy-two years.

Charles A. Smith received his educational training in the public schools of Winfield Township, and at Butler. His entire business experience has been at Cabot, where he is recognized as a man of exceptional ability and one who merits the good will and esteem of the people.

Mr. Smith was married April 5, 1882, to Miss Samantha Bricker, a daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth (Black) Bricker, and they have had four children, namely: Grace E.; Benlah J.; Bliss V., who died July 21, 1896; and Paul B., who died October 24, 1906. Religiously, he is a member of the Presbyterian Church, of which he is an elder and superintendent of the Sabbath School. He has served in the latter capacity for twelve years. Mr. Smith acted the part of a teacher in public schools for eleven years in Butler County, Pennsylvania, and two years in the state of Nebraska. He lived in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, near Boggsville, for a period of five years as a farmer—1882 to 1887—moving from the farm to Cabot, Pennsylvania.

ANTON KRUT, the leading florist at Butler, with his commodious greenhouses on West Wayne Street, is numbered with the successful business men and enterprising citizens of this section. He was born on a farm in Beaver County, Pennsylvania, February 11, 1868, and is a son of the late Anton Krut.

The father of Mr. Krut, whose name he bears, was the owner of a large farm in Beaver County, but prior to the Civil War he left the farm for others to cultivate and established a wagon manufactory on the south side of Pittsburg. He built up a large trade and had an extensive establishment on the south side and continued his interest in it until his death.

Anton Krut the second, spent a large part of his time through youth on the farm, returning to it after he completed his education. He remained on the farm for several years and then went to Pittsburg. He did not have his father's taste for manufacturing, but had always been a lover of flowers and growing things, so he entered upon an apprenticeship to a florist and during three years of practical experience, acquired a knowledge of the business. He then started a business of his own in Pittsburg, but his health failed there and in 1898 he came to Butler, where the clean, invigorating air has entirely restored him to normal health. He bought the old Bortamas greenhouses, which he remodeled and added to and now he has 25,000 feet of glass and cultivates six acres of ground. He deals exclusively in cut flowers and does all kinds of fine floral work. In 1906 he purchased a fine store building at No. 328 South Main Street, where he attends to business.

Mr. Krut was married in Beaver County to Miss Mary C. Joyce, of Beaver County, and they have one child, Margaret. Mr. Krut is a member of the Roman Catholic Church of Butler.

W. L. KAUFFMAN, residing on one of the best farms in Adams Township, a finely cultivated tract of 158 acres, of which he is joint owner with other heirs, was born on this farm on January 10, 1870, and is a son of John and Catherine (Marburger) Kauffman.

John Kauffman was born in Jackson Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and died in Adams Township, Butler County, in 1903. His father was Casper Kauffman, who came to America from Germany and was a very early settler in Jackson Township, where he died. He had the following children: Lucinda, Magdalena, Emma, Sarah, John, Henry, Jacob, William, Adam and George. John Kauffman married Catherine Marburger, a daughter of George C. Marburger and a member of one of the old and reliable German families of this section. After marriage they settled on the farm above mentioned, in Adams Township. It was all wild land at the time, and at first Mr. Kauffman only rented it, but as he found it could be developed into a good farm, he entered into negotiations with its owner, Judge Marshall, and finally bought eighty acres. To his first purchase he added the Mincer tract and later the Waters tract, which brought his acreage to 158 acres. On this farm he passed away, aged sixty-four years. He had led a useful life, had labored hard and was one of the township's most respected citizens. His widow still survives. To them were born the following children:

George J.; Mary, wife of Albert Lutz; Anna, who died aged three years; Lewis; Emma, wife of George Ripper; Catherine, widow of William Staple; Elizabeth, who died in childhood; Samuel; Edward; and Matilda.

W. L. Kauffman has always lived on the home farm and for a number of years has been its manager. His education was obtained in the public schools and all his interests have been centered in this section of Butler county. On June 14, 1905, he was married to Malinda Cashdollar, who is a daughter of William Cashdollar, one of the leading citizens of Adams Township. They have one daughter, Margaret. Mr. and Mrs. Kauffman are members of the Lutheran Church. In politics, he is a strong Democrat and at present is serving in his sixth year as township tax collector. He is a member of the order of Maccabees at Callery.

JOSEPH J. DITTMER, general merchant and postmaster at Herman, where he has been engaged in business for the past thirteen years, was born in Summit Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, April 27, 1871, and is a son of Joseph and Eva (Michael) Dittmer.

Mr. Dittmer was reared on the home farm and secured his education in the township schools. When eighteen years of age he became a clerk in the store of which he is now the owner, remaining in that capacity for two years. Although he returned to the farm for four more years, he had already determined to become a merchant instead of a farmer, and started a store of his own when he was twenty-four years old. When he came first to Herman, in 1895, he erected a store building across the railroad from his present one and there conducted a general store for twelve years, in June, 1897, being appointed postmaster of the village. On July 1, 1907, he moved his entire stock to his present building, having bought out F.

W. Limberg, the purchase including a store building and house and lot. Mt. Dittmer does a heavy business in general merchandise, groceries, hardware and feed, supplying a large outside territory.

In 1897 Mr. Dittmer was married to Mary Wolpert, who was born at Natrona, Allegheny County, April 14, 1878, and is a daughter of Sylvester Wolpert, and they have an interesting family of five children, namely: Vernie, Adela, May, Celia and Englebert. Mr. and Mrs. Dittmer are members of St. Mary's Catholic Church and he is connected also with the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association.

SAMUEL W. GALBRETH, general merchant at Leasureville, has for many years been a prominent resident of Winfield Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, where he has followed farming and blacksmithing. He owns a farm of fifty acres in Winfield Township. He was born in Winfield Township, January 18, 1849, and is a son of Joseph and Isabella (Sloan) Galbreth. His mother is a daughter of William Sloan, who was from Armstrong County, Pennsylvania.

Samuel W. Galbreth was reared on the farm in his native township and received his educational training in the common schools. He early learned the trade of a blacksmith, which he followed in connection with farming for some twenty years. He purchased his present farm of fifty acres about the year 1884, and has engaged in general farming there since. During the past year he has conducted the general store in partnership with his son-in-law, Albert Remaley, it being located in the same building as his residence, a large two-story structure.

Mr. Galbreth was married September 21, 1880, to Miss Martha J. Todd, a daughter of John and Ann Todd, and they have one daughter, Minnie, wife of Albert Remaley, by whom she has two children—Donald and Blair. Religiously, the family belongs to the Presbyterian Church at Buffalo. Mr. Galbreth has a number of times been called upon to serve his township in official capacities, and is at the present collector of township taxes. He has served as such for six years, and was prior to that time school director and assessor.

E. M. FLETCHER, who comes of a prominent old family of Parker Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is the owner of a fine farm of 125 acres. He has followed agricultural pursuits mainly, during his business career, but has also had considerable success as an oil operator.

Mr. Fletcher was born on the farm on which he now lives, in 1848, and is a son of Thomas and Ann (Campbell) Fletcher, both natives of Butler County. His paternal grandfather, Benjamin Fletcher, was the owner of a 500 acre tract of land in Parker Township, on a part of which Martinsburg, now the borough of Bruin, was built.

Thomas Fletcher, father of the subject of this sketch, was one of the pioneer millers of Butler County and a man of considerable local prominence. He erected a mill on Bear Creek, which thrived and was in operation for many years, but is not now in use, although still standing. He died many years ago, and was survived some years by his widow. Religiously he was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Martinsburg.

E. M. Fletcher was reared to manhood at Martinsburg and received his education in the public schools of the village. He has always made farming his principal business, but since 1876 has been somewhat identified with the oil industry, a part of the time as a producer. He has for some years been a director of the Bruin High School Board, and at one time served as president of that body.

Mr. Fletcher's first marriage was with Miss Ella Steward of West Sunbury.

After her death he formed a second union with Miss Victoria Campbell, a daughter of the late Thomas G. Campbell of Bruin, and they became the parents of the following children: Sarah E., wife of E. H. Black; Charles C.; Pearl, wife of Albert Schlagel; Stella; and John F. The mother of these children passed away on June 5, 1905. Mr. Fletcher is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Bruin, and is serving as one of its trustees. He is a Republican in politics, and has filled numerous offices of public trust in Parker Township. Fraternally, he was formerly affiliated with the Independent Order of Odd Fellows.

PIERCE BROTHERS, nurserymen and general farmers, residing on their valuable estate of seventy acres, situated in Butler Township, are members of one of the oldest pioneer families of this section of the county. The firm is composed of two brothers, Thomas M. and James R., who are sons of Peterson and Eliza (McNair) Pierce. Thomas M. Pierce was born September 8, 1849, and James R. December 16, 1858, on the farm on which they now reside.

The family was established in what is now Butler Township by the great-grandfather, John Pierce, who was a native of New Jersey and a member of the family that gave to the United States its fourteenth executive, President Franklin K. Pierce. John Pierce lived out the balance of his days in Butler Township.

David Pierce, son of John and grandfather of Thomas M. and James R. Pierce, was reared in this pioneer home and was a soldier in the War of 1812-15. He was the owner of a farm of several hundred acres, on a part of which the town of Lyndora is now built. He was one of the township's leading men and was active in promoting its best interests—in the building of roads, establishing of schools, and the erection of churches. He reared a family that has produced some of the township's best type of citizenship.

Peterson Pierce, son of David and father of Thomas M. and James R., was born June 16, 1812, in Butler Township, this county, where his life was mainly spent. Through his active years he was engaged in farming and he took a great deal of interest in making improvements. He set out the shade trees which now surround the comfortable brick residence, which latter he built in 1840. In his political opinions he was a Democrat and he was frequently called upon to accept township office. He married Mary Eliza McNair, a daughter of Thomas McNair, who with others built and operated the first steam mill in Butler County. At the time of her marriage she resided in Butler, but she was born near Greensburg, Penna., August 13, 1827. Of this marriage ten children were born, of whom six reached maturity, namely: Thomas M., Elizabeth J., who is the wife of Samuel Pierce, of New Castle; Mrs. Maria E. Zeek; Henry P., who lives at Morgantown, W. Va., and is engaged in the lumber and manufacturing business; James R., and Mary M. This family was carefully reared by Christian parents in the faith of the United Presbyterian Church.

Peterson Pierce, the father, died October 16, 1865. The mother, Mary Eliza Pierce, lives with her sons, Thomas M. and James R. Pierce, on the old homestead where she has continued to reside since her husband's death. She still retains her vigor of body and clearness of mind to a remarkable degree for one of her age.

Thomas M. and James R. Pierce grew to manhood on the parental homestead, and both attended the district schools. Thomas then learned the millwright's trade, which he followed for a number of years. James being also mechanically inclined, the two brothers do much of the planning and construction of buildings, etc., on the farm, a portion of which they are converting into business and residence properties. The farm belongs to the two brothers, they having purchased the rights of the other heirs. For about ten years they devoted a large part of their time to the growing of small fruits, and at one time were the leading strawberry raisers in the county.

In 1891 they started in the nursery business and they now raise general stock—mainly fruit—and shade trees and shrubs. Their trade is largely local, though they occasionally make shipments to other states. They have, as already intimated, laid out a part of their property in town lots, the principal street being Pierce Avenue, along which runs the Butler Street Railway; and on the street immediately west of Pierce Avenue, on their property, runs the Pittsburg, Harmony, Butler and New Castle Interurban line. The Pierce brothers are men of business enterprise, and of high personal standing in the community.

ALFRED H. ZIEGLER, M.D., one of the younger medical practitioners of Butler, a member of the Butler County and the Pennsylvania State Medical Societies, was born at Butler, Pennsylvania, and is the only son of W. G. and Mary (Troutman) Ziegler, and grandson of William S. Ziegler and Adam Troutman, both of whom came in early days to Butler County, where they attained prominence and acquired substance.

The father of Dr. Ziegler is one of Butler's leading business men. His life has been devoted almost entirely to newspaper work. In 1900 he founded and still conducts the Ziegler Printing Company, job printers and book binders. He married Mary Troutman, who is a daughter of the venerable Adam Troutman of Butler, one of the pioneer merchants of the city.

Dr. Ziegler was reared at Butler and in 1900 he was graduated in the Butler High School and from there entered Washington-Jefferson College. In the class of 1906 he was graduated from Jefferson Medical College, after which he spent one year in Passavant Hospital, in Pittsburg, and then located at Butler.

ASA C. STEELE, a prosperous farmer and a well known oil producer of Parker Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, has a fine farm of 100 acres. The oil industry has claimed his attention, principally, throughout his career in business. Mr. Steele was born in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, July 19, 1857, and is a son of Samuel C. and Phœbe (Snow) Steele, both natives of Armstrong County. His paternal grandfather was James Steele, who was a native of Ireland, and upon coming to America located in Perry Township, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, where he was among the early settlers. Samuel C. Steele lived in his native county all his days, and was a prosperous farmer. He and his wife became the parents of fourteen children, of whom nine survive, three of whom live in Butler County, namely: Asa C. of Parker Township; Hugh G. and Edward J. of Bruin.

Asa C. Steele was reared to manhood in Armstrong County and attended the public schools of his home vicinity. At the age of eighteen years he began working in the oil fields, and after a time was for some years a contractor and driller of oil wells. During the past twenty years he has been an oil producer, and his efforts have been attended with considerable success. He first located in Parker Township in 1880 and resided here without interruption until 1897, in which year he moved to Grove City. In 1907 he again took up his residence in Parker Township, Butler County, where he now makes his home. He is a Prohibitionist in politics, and served several years as poor director in Parker Township when the old law was in effect. He was the nominee of his party, while a resident of Mercer County, for the lower house of the legislature, and made a good race for that office.

Mr. Steele was united in marriage with Miss Lovinia Bartley, a daughter of Dixon Bartley, late of Parker Township, and seven children are the issue of their union: Ella, wife of William Smith of Falsom, West Virginia; Myrtle M., wife of J. W. Miller of Grove City, Pennsylvania; Zada L., wife of Edward Morrow of Grove City; Lee C.; Dixon B.; Aleta M.; and Mary S. The four last named are living at home with their parents. Religiously, the subject of this sketch is a member of the Presbyterian Church at Bruin.

JOHN G. FREEHLING, a prosperous farmer of Winfield Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is the owner of a fine farm of 108 acres, located about three miles east of Cabot, just off the Leasureville Road. He was born in Germany, February 10, 1840, and is a son of Henry and Margaret (Raft) Freehling, and a grandson of Henry and Elizabeth Freehling, who spent all their lives in Germany.

Henry Freehling, Jr., father of the subject of this sketch, followed farming in his native land and also in this country, to which he came in 1849. He was a successful man and the owner of a good farm in Winfield Township, Butler County. He and his wife were the parents of two children—Henry F. and John G.

Henry Freehling, Jr., married second, Mary Ruble, and third, Mary Heller, she being the mother of Ida Freehling.

John G. Freehling attended the German schools prior to the departure of the family for America, and finished his education in the public schools of Butler County, Pennsylvania. He learned the trade of a carpenter in his early days, and followed it some years in connection with farming. During the Civil War, he enlisted in Company L, Fourteenth Pennsylvania Cavalry, and served for two years and ten months, a part of the time in the army under General Grant. He participated in thirty-eight engagements, some of them among the most important of the war, and acquitted himself honorably and with bravery. At the close of the war he returned to Winfield Township and resumed his farming operations, at which he has been most successful. He has a finely improved farm, which is adorned with a modern two-story residence and a large barn, both of which were built by him.

Mr. Freehling was married February 10, 1862, to Miss Anna Miller, a daughter of Henry and Sevilla Miller, and they became the parents of the following children: Henry, now deceased; Theodore, also deceased; William, who was married to Anna Krouse and has four children—Bessie, Florence, Leroy and Roland; Lydia, who is the wife of Smith Brady, and the mother of four children—Irvin, Vaughn, Grace and Ruth; Samuel, who married Maggie Hutsler, and has also four children—Edwin, Ethel, Ruth and Paul; Emma, who married Samuel Brieker; Albert, who married Anna Drain and has two sons, Chester and Howard; and Wesley, who is unmarried and lives on the home place. Religiously, Mr. Freehling is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of which he is steward and a trustee. For a period of seven years he served as supervisor of Winfield Township.

JOE J. KENNEDY, one of the leading merchants of Zelenople, dealing in groceries, feed, coal, and builders' supplies, was born near Prospect, Butler County, Pennsylvania, October 22, 1861, son of Milton and Sarah E. (Moore) Kennedy. He is a grandson of Edward Kennedy, who was of Irish descent, and who married Prudence Burns. Both parents of the subject of this sketch were reared in Butler County—in the locality between Prospect and Portersville. The father died about 1888 at the age of forty-eight years. Mr. Ken-neddy's mother is still living and is now sixty-eight years old. The former was engaged in farming. Their children numbered five sons and as many daughters, all of whom are now living except one son. They are as follows: Joseph J., the eldest and the subject of this article; Ida, who is unmarried; Tina, wife of Newton Weitzel, of Mt. Chestnut; Prudence, wife of Sherman Galligher, residing near Prospect; Edward, a traveling salesman, who resides in Fremont, Ohio; Kate, who married Orrin Myers and resides in Portersville; Isaac, unmarried and living on the homestead; Charles, now deceased, who was married and resided in Decatur, Ill.; Fred, who is married and resides in Poland, Ohio; and Maud, who is unmarried and resides at home with her mother.

Joseph J. Kennedy began his education by attending school in Muddy Creek Township and subsequently continued it at Princeton, Lawrence County, Pennsylvania. He then engaged in farming and afterwards for seven years worked at the enameling trade. He engaged in his present business in Zelenople in August, 1905, buying out the firm of Goehring & Keck, and commencing business with a partner under the style of the Kennedy Company. In June, 1908, he purchased his partner's interests, thus becoming the sole proprietor of the business, which now runs from $2,500 to $3,500 per month. Mr. Kennedy may be justly termed the architect of his own fortunes, as all the money he has invested in his business he made by his own efforts. For a time, before starting his present enterprise, he was connected with the Zelenople Hardware Company. He has now been a resident of Zelenople for seven years and has well proved his right to be regarded as one of the most enterprising business men of the place, as his business is one of the most important.

Mr. Kennedy married Miss Ella Young, a daughter of Robert Young of Pleasant-hill, Lawrence County, Pennsylvania. Of this union there are three sons and one daughter living, one child being deceased. The living are, Carl, Emmett, Walter and Mary. Mr. Kennedy is a member of the Protective Home Circle. In politics he is a Republican, and his religious affiliations are with the United Presbyterian Church.

W. G. ZIEGLER, proprietor of the Ziegler Printing Company, of Butler, was born in Butler Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, May 25, 1858. His parents were W. S. and Susan (Schleppy) Ziegler.

W. S. Ziegler was a son of George Ziegler, formerly of Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, and was a brother of Capt. Jacob Ziegler, who was the founder of the Democratic Herald. W. S. Ziegler was born in 1789 and died August 29, 1848. He married Susan, a daughter of Jacob Schleppy, one of the early settlers of Butler County. Mrs. Ziegler was born in Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, and died in Butler County, February 14, 1878. The maternal grandmother was a McCandless, and was born in Ireland. She was brought by her parents to Butler County in youth and they settled in Muddy Creek Township. The paternal grandmother was a Christzman, was born in Germany in 1792 and came to America in 1801. She lived first in Baltimore but later came west and died in Butler, April 28, 1865.

W. G. Ziegler was reared and educated in Butler County and learned the printer's trade in the office of the old Democratic Herald, which, at that time, was owned by his uncle, Capt. Jacob Ziegler. He remained in the printing office, gradually rising from one position to the other until he became foreman. In 1888 he became part owner and continued to issue the same newspaper until June, 1899, when he sold his interest, after an association with that journal of twenty-four years' duration. In April, 1884, in partnership with C. M. and W. J. Heineman, he established the Times and he continued with this publication until the fall of 1885. In 1900 he established the Ziegler Printing Company, job printers and bookbinders, and with this enterprise he has been connected ever since.

Mr. Ziegler married Mary Troutman, a daughter of Adam Troutman, one of the leading citizens of Butler. They have one son, A. H., who is a practicing physician in this city. Mr. Ziegler has been actively identified with the musical interests of Butler for over a quarter of a century, having served as a popular band and orchestra conductor for this period. With his wife and son, he belongs to the Lutheran Church. The Ziegler family is one of high standing in Pennsylvania and W. G. Ziegler is a worthy representative.

J. GEORGE HELFRICH, who has been a resident of Bruin, Butler County, Pennsylvania, since 1880, with the exception of a short time passed at Petrolia, is a successful oil operator and is widely known through this section of the county. He was born in Bavaria, Germany, March 24, 1849, and is a son of George and Margaret Helfrich, both natives of Bavaria.

J. George Helfrich grew to maturity in his native country and there attended the common schools, receiving a good education. He learned the trade of a stonemason, which he followed in Bavaria, living in that country until the year following his marriage. In the spring of 1880, he took passage at Bremen, and after a voyage of twelve days landed at New York. He immediately thereafter located at Martinsburg, now known as Bruin, in Parker Township, Butler County, Penna. He shortly after became identified with the oil industry, in which he has continued to the present time, a part of this period being spent as a producer.

May 10, 1879, Mr. Helfrich was married in Bavaria to Miss Annie Odenweller, who is a daughter of Martin and Eva (Stark) Odenweller, both natives of that country. Four children are the offspring of their marriage: George, Emma, Mary and Frank, all of whom remain at home. Religiously, the family attends the Roman Catholic Church at Petrolia. In politics, Mr. Helfrich is a Democrat but is inclined to be independent in local affairs. He is a self-made man, having made his own way in the world through untiring industry and persevering efforts. He has many friends and acquaintances in the community.

ISAIAH LAWRENCE McBRIDE, who is probably one of the best-known men in the Pennsylvania oil fields, was born in Butler County, Penna., August 31, 1857, and is a son of Col. Francis and Elizabeth (Hazlett) McBride.

The McBride family is of Scotch-Irish extraction and it was established in Lancaster County, Penna., at an early day. Whatever may have been the accomplishments of its earlier members, its later representatives have identified themselves with the interests of Butler County.

Col. Francis McBride, father of Isaiah L., was a notable man in his day, entirely self-taught, the master of a dozen trades, a noted athlete and an astute politician,—his whole life was one of activity. In his earlier years he made puncheon floors for log cabins, later along in life he was a successful practicing attorney at Butler, in 1833 he was elected sheriff of Butler County and he also served as county treasurer. He taught himself surveying and helped to lay out Penn. Clay and Franklin Streets in the city of Butler, the Butler and Freeport turnpike and the Erie Canal. On one occasion, when athletic contests took place a long distance from his home, he walked the whole way to Buffalo Furnace, and then, as champion jumper, won the prize, which was a kitchen outfit of pots, pans and kettles. He was always a conspicuous figure wherever he appeared, being six feet two inches in height, and broad in proportion. He died in 1859, when his son, Isaiah L., was a child of two years.

Francis McBride was married (first) to Sarah Gallagher, who belonged to a prominent family of Butler County, at that day, and they had eight children, namely: Jerome and Frank, both deceased; Jefferson; Neil and Hugh, both deceased; Mary, who married Lewis E. Mitchell, both deceased; Sarah, deceased, married William Clark; and Malissa, who resides at Sistersville, West Virginia. The second marriage was to Elizabeth (Hazlett) Denny, widow of James Denny and daughter of Reuben and Mary Hazlett. She was born at Pittsburg, Penna., and had three children by her first marriage, two of whom survive: John and William Denny, of Sharon. Three children were born to this union: Kerr H., who died aged forty-six years, a well-known oil operator; David Dougall, who died aged three years; and Isaiah L. Francis McBride and wife were members of St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church, he being one of the original twelve pew-holders.

Following the death of her husband, Mrs. McBride moved to Winfield Township, Butler County, where she taught school for a time and then moved to Greene County, in the oil fields, where she opened a boarding house. About this time Isaiah L. made his first money in the oil business, being engaged by an operator to clean the paraffin out of four oil tanks at Titusville, and although the beginning was humble, it opened the way to the future success which has crowned Mr. McBride's efforts in the same industry. Through many boyish efforts to gain capital, and they were constant and earnest, including selling newspapers, working on a farm and as an employe, for several years, of the Lowry House, at Butler, he made some progress, and in 1887 he went to work for his brother, the late Kerr ("Curly") McBride, as an oil pumper. It was Kerr McBride who got the first extension of the rich field near Thorn Creek. Isaiah, or, as familiarly known, "Spotty" McBride, had the usual early successes and discouragements that awaited oil speculation, and after he began prospecting, would frequently lose all his earnings and be obliged to do ordinary labor in order to gain enough capital to continue prospecting. The first well that returned any adequate result was on the Sweeney farm at Coyleville, and it was owned by an organization called the Store Box Oil Company, in which James Haymaker, deceased, and Michael Haymaker, owned a three-fourths interest, and J. W. Frazer, deceased, and Mr. McBride, a one-fourth. They drilled four wells, paid $1,500 bonus and before they were through they lost $14,000 on the venture, and out of the twenty-two wells sunk there, but thirteen barrels of oil were sold. Mr. McBride continued with varying success, as is the way with speculators, becoming equally familiar with ill and with good fortune. The well which finally made him famous in this section was struck in Butler Township, May 9, 1905, and was the twenty-third well in which he had owned an interest, with a proportion varying from one-eighth to one-half. In the well above mentioned, which brought him ample reward for all his years of effort and many vicissitudes, was one in which his ownership was one-fourth. The limits of the present article prevent the insertion of extracts from the Butler newspapers regarding the interest excited at the time the McBride well was drilled into the sand on that mild afternoon in May, and the response of pure petroleum was of such quantity that it was immediately placed in the "gusher" class, producing about 2,400 barrels per day. Mr. McBride was the hero of the hour, for he had located and also done the drilling of the well. On May 25th the well passed into the possession of the Southern Oil Company.

For many years Mr. McBride was known through the oil regions as an expert driller and at times kept large gangs of men in his employ. After becoming an oil capitalist, Mr. McBride bought his present farm in Butler Township, which contains about thirty acres. It is cultivated by his sons, with hired help, and corn, oats, wheat and hay are produced. Mr. McBride has other real estate investments. He still keeps his finger on the pulse of the oil business and probably knows more, not only of the practical work going on in the different sections, but of the trend of the great interests in this line, than any man of his age in Pennsylvania.

Mr. McBride was married to Miss Mary A. Cantwell, who is a daughter of Thomas and Mary Cantwell. Mrs. McBride was born at Boston, Massachusetts. To this marriage have been born five children, namely: Thomas Kerr, Francis Edward, Marie Elizabeth, Clond Isaiah, and Joseph Paul, the latter of whom is deceased. With his family, Mr. McBride belongs to St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church. He is a member of the Elks of Butler, of the Knights of Columbus, of which he is a trustee, and of the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association. In politics, Mr. McBride terms himself an Independent Democrat, reserving for himself the right to cast his ballot for the man he deems most fit for the office.

Success has not turned Mr. McBride's head. Since that memorable day when he saw his fortunes changed, he has been ever the same as formerly, having a hearty hand-shake and word of good cheer for all. He is devoted to his family and it is his ambition that so educate and train his children that they will be armed for the battle of life, but, at the same time, he wishes them to realize that it is a battle and all the training that their brains may have is better if supplemented by equal training of their hands. Above all he teaches them the great truth that "toil is honorable."

JAMES C. LOGAN, a well-known merchant and business man of Cabot, Pennsylvania, is a member of the firm of Smith & Logan, proprietors of a large general store at that point. He was born in Penn Township, Butler County, October 8, 1860, and is a son of Joseph and Mary (McCandless) Logan.

The paternal grandfather of our subject was one of the pioneers of Penn Township, where he located upon an uncleared tract of 150 acres. He died when his son, Joseph, was eighteen years of age, and the latter assumed the management of the place at that early age. He was a successful farmer in a general way, and one of the progressive men of the township. Oil was discovered on the farm and two wells were drilled, but one was ruined in shooting. He and his wife were parents of seven children: Mrs. George N. Love; Erastus; Mrs. W. J. Puff; Mrs. R. J. Anderson; Mrs. S. J. Shaw; Mrs. A. N. Shaw; and J. C. Logan. By strange coincidence, Erastus was eighteen years old at the time of his father's death and began farming the home place, which his son, Samuel Logan, now farms.

James C. Logan was but five years old when his father died, and for seven years thereafter he lived in Butler, attending the public schools there. He then returned to the old home for two years, after which he lived with his sister, Mrs. Love, in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania. He later returned to the old home in Butler County, on which he remained two years. He next engaged in business at Leasureville for a period of three years, and at the end of that time joined forces with Mr. Smith at Cabot. Their business has been a constantly growing one, and is accorded the patronage of the leading people of the community.

September 16, 1881, Mr. Logan was united in marriage with Miss Emma Smith, a daughter of Robert and Mary (Clark) Smith, and they have one son, Austin C., who was born April 5, 1884. Austin C. Logan was educated in the public schools and the academy at Sarver, Pennsylvania, and is now connected with the store of Smith & Logan. He married Miss Sarah Cruikshanks.

James C. Logan has served on the school board, of which he was secretary three years, and was at one time a member of the board of elections. Religiously, he is a member of the Presbyterian Church and is serving on the board of trustees. Fraternally, he belongs to Saxonburg Lodge No. 115, Knights of the Maccabees, and was keeper of the records for one year.

FRED L. OESTERLING, one of Summit Township's leading citizens, who is efficiently serving in the office of road supervisor, resides on his excellent farm of fifty acres, which is situated on the old State Road, one and one-half miles east of Butler. He was born on an adjacent farm, in Summit Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, November 7, 1850, and is a son of John and Mary (Wieselstien) Oesterling.

John Oesterling, the father, was born in Germany and was fourteen years old when he accompanied his father to America and to Summit Township. The grandfather settled first near Herman Station, but later acquired the farm in Summit Township. He had a large family and many of his descendants reside in this section, the family numbering among its members some of the best citizens of Butler County. The maternal grandfather of Fred L. Oesterling was John Wieselstein, who was born in Germany and came to America before the birth of his children, and died in Butler, Pennsylvania. The paternal grandfather died in Summit Township as also did the parents of Mr. Oesterling. Of the nine children of the latter, six survive.

Fred L. Oesterling was reared on the home farm and after his school attendance was over, he learned the carpenter trade, at which he worked for a number of years, in and around Butler. He has resided on his present farm for the past nineteen years but has only given his personal attention to it for the past two years.

Mr. Oesterling was married (first) to Annie Ganter, who, at death, left two children: Lonie and Quilla, the first of whom is the wife of Louis Rish and has two children, and the latter of whom is the wife of Leonard Cradle and also has two children. Mr. Oesterling was married (second) to Katherine Cramer, and they have six children, namely: Florence, Carrie, Helen, Maria, Stella and Nellie. Mr. Oesterling has always paid attention to public affairs in his township and is regarded as one of its most reliable citizens. He is serving in his second term as road supervisor.

WILLIAM G. WALKER, a substantial citizen of Parker Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is the owner of two farms in the township, one of 100 acres and another of fifty acres. He has followed farming principally, but has also been an oil operator. He was born in Parker Township, May 6, 1861, and is a son of Daniel and Anna E. (Gutherie) Walker, his father being a native of Ireland and his mother of Armstrong County, Pennsylvania.

Daniel Walker was born in Ireland in 1831, and there passed his boyhood days. In 1849, he came to the United States, taking up his residence in Pennsylvania, where he engaged in farming. Shortly before the outbreak of the Civil War he moved to Parker Township, where he now lives in peace and comfort, in the enjoyment of the fruits of his early toil. A man of energy and progressive spirit he pushed his way forward until he occupied a forward position among the citizens of this township, by whom he is highly respected. He is a Republican in politics, and served a number of years on the School Board of Parker Township. One of his sons, George E. Walker, is now an instructor in the public schools, and was at one time a candidate on the Republican ticket for county superintendent of schools. Religiously, Daniel Walker is a consistent member of the United Presbyterian Church of Fairview.

William G. Walker has always been a resident of Parker Township. He was reared to maturity on the home farm and received his educational training in the public schools of the township, in Freedom Academy and Grove City College, which he attended a short time. He then turned his attention to farming, at which he has since continued with uninterrupted success, engaging in general farming. For a number of years he has been an oil producer. He is treasurer of the School Board of Parker Township, of which body he has been a member for five years. He was formerly president of the board.

Mr. Walker was married to Miss Lizzie J. Kelly, a daughter of William Kelly, late of Parker Township, and they became parents of the following children: Lillian M., a graduate of the musical department of Grove City College; Leua B., a graduate of Slippery Rock State Normal School; Charles R.; Anna; and Margaret A. Religiously, the family attends the Presbyterian Church at Bruin. In his political views, Mr. Walker is a Republican and takes a deep interest in public affairs.

JOSEPH MANNY, proprietor of the Manny Bottling Works, on West Wayne Street, Butler, is a substantial and enterprising citizen, who has engaged in business here for a number of years and has served as a member of the City Council. He was born in February, 1863, in Penn Township, Butler County.

The father of Joseph Manny was John C. Manny, who was born in Butler County in 1838 and died in 1886. The grandfather was John Manny, who was one of the very early settlers of Butler County.

Joseph Manny was only three years old when the family moved from Penn Township to the borough of Butler, and his education was secured in the public schools and old Witherspoon Institute. When he started out to carve out fortune for himself, he first secured a position as time-keeper for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, at this point, after which he operated a machine in the works of the S. G. Purvis & Company, for one year, and then embarked in the transfer business. Mr. Manny continued in that line for twenty-three years, selling out in 1903, in order to give his attention to a bottling business which he then established. He purchased the brick building he occupies on West Wayne Street, which is two stories in height and has dimensions of 50 x 50 feet. He manufactures all kinds of soft drinks, for which he has every facility, and does a large business, averaging 200 cases a week all the year round. He is interested more or less also in valuable real estate in Butler.

In 1885 Mr. Manny was married to Miss Anna Whiskaman, of Armstrong County, and they have five children, namely: Kathleen, who is a teacher in the public schools; Marie, who is a student in the Butler High School; and Clifford, Edith and Richard. Mr. Manny and family belong to St. Paul's Catholic Church, he having served on the church committee for twenty-five years. He belongs to the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association and for a number of years was its local president, and to the Knights of Maccabees.

ISRAEL M. WISE, who, for the past twelve years has owned the old homestead farm of 121 acres, which is situated in Jackson Township, Butler County, was born in Butler County, Pennsylvania, May 12, 1863, and is one of the leading farmers and dairymen of this section. His parents were Jacob F. and Sarah (Moyer) Wise.

The Wise family came originally from Germany and its first settlement in America was made in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, by the great-grandfather of Israel M. John Wise, the grandfather, was born in Bucks County, and moved from there to Beaver County, where he died when aged fifty years. Three of his children survive, namely: Mary, wife of Henry Moyer; Hannah, wife of John V. Zeigler; and Samuel, who is a resident of Beaver County.

Jacob F. Wise, son of John and father of Israel M., was born January 12, 1818, in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, and came with his parents to Beaver County, later in life moving to a farm in Butler County, near Harmony, where he died. He married twice, (first) a daughter of Abram Zeigler, and (second) Sarah Moyer. She was a daughter of Benjamin Moyer, who resided in Lancaster Township, Butler County. To the second marriage the following children were born: Alfred, who lives at Butler; Henry M., who is engaged in a lumber business at Harmony; Benjamin, who is a resident of the State of Washington; Susan, who is the widow of Jacob Fiedler, and is postmistress at Harmony; Levi, an attorney, also the editor of the Butler Eagle; Sarah, who is the widow of J. R. Moore, and lives at Ben Avon, Allegheny County; Israel M.; Noah, who resides at Zehienople; Jeremiah, deceased; and Catherine, who is the wife of Edward Stauffer. The father of the above family lived to the age of seventy-seven years. His widow survived him thirteen years, her death taking place October 29, 1908, when aged eighty-two years and eight months. They were most excellent people, industrious, thrifty, kindhearted and charitable.

Israel M. Wise attended school in Jackson Township when he was a boy, and has made farming his business in life. After the death of his father he purchased the homestead farm and devoted himself to its cultivation and improvement. In addition to raising corn, oats, hay and potatoes as his main crop, he also carries on a profitable dairying business.

In 1891 Mr. Wise was married to Miss Mary Pepper, who is a daughter of John Pepper, and they have two children, John Loyal and Paul. Mr. and Mrs. Wise are members of Grace Reformed Church, at Harmony. In politics he is a Republican. Mr. Wise pays close attention to his business and has never served in any public office except as a member of the School Board.

THEODORE HENRY FREEHLING, a prosperous farmer of Winfield Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is the owner of a fine farm of eighty acres on the Leasureville Road, about three miles from Cabot. He was born in Armstrong County, and is a son of Caspar and Ida (Sassa) Freehling and grandson of Henry F. and Vesuma Freehling, both natives of Germany. The grandparents came to the United States about the year 1830, and located in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania.

Caspar and Ida Freehling became parents of the following children: Henry, Theodore H., George, Lizzie, Matilda (deceased), Nickla (deceased), Margaret, Louise, Eleanor, Augustus, and John (deceased).

Although Theodore Freehling was born across the line in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, he received his schooling mainly in Butler County. He has always engaged in farming, and has one of the best improved estates in the vicinity, having a comfortable two-story home and good substantial outbuildings.

February 15, 1876, Mr. Freehling was united in marriage with Miss Anna Gerner, a daughter of Anthony and Elizabeth (Bars) Gerner, and they are parents of the following children: John, who married Elizabeth Wilgerwit; George, who married Melville Barnhart; Louise, wife of William Witte; Lizzie, who married Charles Gethart and has two children, Florence and William; Frank, William, Lida, Mary, and Charles A. Religiously, the family are members of the Methodist Church.

CHARLES J. D. STROHECKER, president of the People's National Bank, at Zelenople, has been identified with oil production both in Pennsylvania and Ohio, for many years, and is one of the representative men of Butler County. He was born in Franklin Township, Beaver County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Matthias and Margaret (Naggle) Strohecker.

The paternal grandfather was the pioneer of this family in Western Pennsylvania. Both the Stroheckers and Naggles came from Germany about 1820 and the former family settled first in Franklin Township, Beaver County, Pennsylvania, and there their two sons and three daughters grew to maturity. They were: Matthias, John, Mrs. Autenrest, Mrs. George Dauler and Mrs. John Bauu, all of whom are deceased, but there are numerous descendants.

The parents of Charles J. D. Strohecker were born in Germany and were young when brought to America. The father, Matthias Strohecker, followed an agricultural life in Franklin Township, where he died. The mother survives and resides with a daughter at Zelenople. They had a family of four daughters and ten sons, namely: Margaret, who is the widow of Adam Kircher, of Allegheny County; George, who follows the carpenter trade, resides at New Castle; Matthias is a street commissioner at Ellwood City; Frederick, who resides at Zelenople; Henry, who is a resident of Petersburg, Ohio; Catherine, who is the widow of George Snyder, formerly one of the early merchants of Zelenople; Mary, who is the widow of John

CHARLES J. D. STROHECKER

Koch, resides on the old Strohecker homestead in Franklin Township; Charles J. D.; Gotlieb, who is engaged in a mercantile business at Portland, Oregon; Andrew S., who is a farmer and cattle-raiser of Steelton, Nebraska; Adam, who is engaged in a hardware business at Garfield, Washington; Sofia, Phillip and Jacob, who died in infancy.

Charles J. Strohecker attended what was known as the old Furnace school in Franklin Township, Beaver County, but he did not continue there many years, starting out while young to learn a trade in order to be self-supporting. He served an apprenticeship to the harnessmaker's trade, at New Brighton, and when it was completed he embarked in business for himself at Zelenople, where he continued until 1898. He proved himself a good business man as well as a skillful workman and the excellence of his harness became known all over Western Pennsylvania. He was the first in his business to introduce machinery in the making of harness and by this means was able to compete successfully with others in the business who were less progressive. Mr. Strohecker was the pioneer in the oil business in this district and in 1898 he sold his harness interests in order to give full attention to oil production. In 1902, with Mr. Lamberton and others, Mr. Strohecker organized the First National Bank at Zelenople. In the following year, with a number of the other original stockholders, he sold his interest in this enterprise to the Colonial Trust Company of Pittsburg. In 1904, with other capitalists, he organized the People's National Bank of Zelenople and has been at its head ever since it began business. His oil interests date as far back as 1889 and still continue. He is a man who has a wonderful grasp of business and who possesses the forethought and judgment to see opportunities and to make use of them. This section is much indebted to Mr. Strohecker's energy and public spirit. He is interested in a contemplated electric railway line from Beaver Falls to New Castle, for which the right of way charter and franchise have been secured. He is serving in the office of president of the Beaver Falls & New Castle Railroad Company, and has other financial interests. Among business men, Mr. Strohecker is considered a strong man for he has, through individual effort, raised himself from almost poverty and from the lines of ordinary life to his present position of personal and business independence, and he is justly proud of the fact.

On November 9, 1879, Mr. Strohecker was married to Miss Amelia Remler, who is a daughter of Mrs. Margaret Remler, and they have three children: Margaret, Clifford and Alice May, the latter of whom is a student in Beaver College. The family residence, situated on the corner of Main and Beaver Streets, is probably the finest private home in Zelenople. With his family, Mr. Strohecker belongs to the English Lutheran Church. In the support he gives to charitable movements his real kindness of heart is shown, but it is probable that his private gifts far excel any made in public. In politics he is a staunch Democrat and he has ever been an active citizen. He has served with usefulness and credit on the city council and on one occasion when he was a candidate for membership on the Town Council, he was elected with every vote cast, with one exception.

CHARLES HERMAN, inventor of the celebrated Herman Jaring moulding machines, and vice president of the Herman Pneumatic Machine Company, manufacturers at Zelenople of these machines and other labor saving tools, was born in Prussia, March 10, 1844, and remained in his native land until he was twenty-two years of age, learning there his trade of machinist and pattern-maker.

In 1866 Mr. Herman came to America and spent eight years in New York City and two years in New Haven, Connecticut, and then came to Pennsylvania and located at Pittsburg. For twenty-eight years he was interested in the foundry of Kinzer & Jones, in that city, having charge of the pattern department and of the foundry improvements in general. In the meanwhile Mr. Herman had perfected his invention of the now celebrated Herman Jaring moulding machines, and in 1897 he started into business himself as a manufacturer of these, under the firm style of Charles Herman & Son. The business proved a prosperous one and later a company was organized and shops built at Zelenople, the main office remaining at Pittsburg.

The Herman Pneumatic Machine Company manufactures the Herman Jaring moulding machines as a specialty, and other foundry tools. In 1906 the business was incorporated, with a capital stock of $75,000, and its officers are: Martin L. Heil, president; Charles Herman, vice president; H. T. Fraunheim, secretary and treasurer; and H. C. Herman, general manager. The company owns a manufacturing plant well adapted to its necessities, a two-story brick building, 80 by 100 feet, with foundry connected, with dimensions of 40 by 100 feet. Employment is given about thirty-five men, double turn, the majority of whom are skilled machinists. The specialty is one that excels all others in the market in many ways and all the leading foundries of the United States are using these machines.

Mr. Herman occupies a handsome residence on New Castle Street, Zelenople, and has identified himself with the town's various interests. He has had two sons, Alfred and H. C., the latter of whom is deceased. Alfred Herman has an interest in the business and has charge of the pattern room for the company.

WALTER S. PATTERSON, M.D., a leading physician and surgeon of Butler and coroner of Butler County, was born in 1878, at New Galilee, Beaver County, Pennsylvania, where he was reared.

After completing the public school course, Dr. Patterson entered the State Normal School at Slippery Rock, and one year later the Ohio Northern University at Ada. In 1901 he was graduated from old Jefferson Medical College, at Philadelphia, after which he spent sixteen months gaining medical and surgical experience, in the Atlantic Hospital and the Philadelphia City Hospital. He then located at Butler and here has met with a hearty recognition of his professional ability. He is a member of both the county and State Medical Societies. As an active citizen he has taken an interest in public matters and in November, 1905, he was elected coroner of Butler County, a position he has acceptably filled ever since.

On November 3, 1902, Dr. Patterson was married to Miss Ella H. Hackett, a graduate physician of the Woman's Medical College of Philadelphia, who later took a special course at Wills Hospital in that city and makes a specialty of eye troubles. Dr. and Mrs. Patterson have one son, Wilmer I. Both doctors are members of Grace Reformed Church.

SAMUEL R. WALKER, a director of the First National Bank of Bruin and a well-known oil producer and agriculturist, resides on his farm of eighty-seven acres near the borough of Bruin. He also owns an additional farm of eighty-four acres in Parker Township. He was born in this township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, September 25, 1865, and is a son of Daniel and Annie E. (Gutherie) Walker.

Daniel Walker was born in County Tyrone, in Ireland, in 1831, and was there reared to maturity. He was about eighteen years of age when he sailed for America in 1849, and after landing immediately proceeded to Pennsylvania, where he has been since located. He came to Parker Township some time prior to the War of the Rebellion, where he toiled in the fields and prospered. He became a man of affluence and a respected citizen, and was frequently called upon to fill local offices of trust. He was joined in marriage with Miss Annie E. Gutherie, who was born in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, in November, 1842, and of the children born to them the following survive: William G.; Jennie, wife of Perry Snow of Armstrong County; George E., of Parker Township; Samuel R.; Nancy A., wife of Silas Hiles of Armstrong County; Annie M., wife of Oliver Hiles, of Armstrong County; John S., of Bruin; James M., of Parker Township, Butler County; and Lulu M., wife of John Brady of West Virginia. Religiously, Daniel Walker and his estimable wife are members of the United Presbyterian Church of Fairview.

Samuel R. Walker was reared to manhood on the home farm in Parker Township, and received his schooling in the public schools of his home community. At an early age he became identified with the oil industry and since 1886 has been a producer with good results. His farms are both under a high state of cultivation and well improved. He was one of the promoters and organizers of the First National Bank of Bruin, in which he is a stockholder and director. Mr. Walker formed a marital union with Miss Maggie F. Twaddle, a daughter of the late James Twaddle of Parker Township. Seven children were the issue of this union, namely: Wesley D., James C., Ralph H., McKinley (deceased), Edna B., Edward D., and Theodore R. Politically, the subject of this sketch is an enthusiastic Republican, and has served some years as a school director. In religious attachment, Mrs. Walker is a member of the Bruin Presbyterian Church.

ers, resides on his valuable estate of eighty-four acres, which lies on the east side of the Bear Creek Road, about two miles from Cabot. Mr. Heller was born April 28, 1859, and his parents were George and Mary (Kallenbach) Heller.

The father of Mr. Heller was a native of Saxony, Germany, where he married, became the father of five children, and died in his old home. The mother was left with a family which she believed could be better reared in America; hence she crossed the ocean with her children and they settled at McKeesport, Penna. George F. was the youngest of the family, the others being as follows: Mary, who married Andrew Stopper and lives in Arkansas; Ernestine, now deceased, who was twice married, first to Edward Hoffman and second to August Bair; John, who married Dora Michal, and Henry Ernest, who married Emma Yunk.

George Ferdinand Heller went to school at McKeesport for a time and was twelve years old when he accompanied the family to Allegheny County. Three years later he came to Butler County and here he has spent many years. He followed farming in early manhood and after he left home worked in the mills in Natrona for about sixteen years, thence going to the Westinghouse plant in East Pittsburg for one year. Mr. Heller then returned to Butler County and resumed farming, shortly afterward buying his present property, and here carried on general farming. His large and comfortable residence is situated in the midst of a beautiful grove of chestnut trees.

Mr. Heller was married (first) to Maggie Freehling, a daughter of George F. and Margaret Freehling. Mrs. Heller left three children at death—Tillie and Rose, who are now deceased, and Ellen, who resides at home. Mr. Heller was married (second) to Emma Caroline Rudiger, who is a daughter of Frederick and Christena Rudiger, of Butler County. Mr. and Mrs.

Heller have three children—Chester G., Willis F., and Myrtle. They are active church people, belonging to the Methodist Episcopal body and have valued friends in this connection. Mr. Heller belongs to Lodge No. 743, I. O. O. F., at Natrona, and to the Knights of Pythias at Saxonburg.

PETER PISTORIUS, whose excellent farm of fifty-one acres is situated in Summit Township, on the old State Road, about three miles east of Butler, was born on this farm on July 5, 1858, and is a son of Peter and Catherine (Gauer) Pistorius.

The parents of Mr. Pistorius were both born and reared in Prussia. They were married shortly before embarking for America, in 1838, and two years after reaching the United States, settled on this farm in Summit Township. They came direct to Butler County, where the father worked for two years for John Oesterling before purchasing a place of his own. Both parents died in Summit Township. They were good, kind, worthy people, who worked hard and did everything they could for their children. Of the seven born to them, six still live, as follows: Barbara, who is the wife of Louis Schuler; Mary, who is the wife of Fred Killemyer; Annie, who is the wife of John Spinneweber; Jacob, who lives in Summit Township; Margaret, who is the wife of Sebastian Beck; and Peter. Catherine, the fifth member of the family, died on New Year's Day, 1907. She was the wife of Barton Killemyer.

Peter Pistorius, who bears his father's name, has always lived on this farm, with the exception of two years, when he lived on the farm occupied by his brother Jacob. He carries on general farming and raises fine stock. In June, 1907, he completed his substantial barn which has dimensions of 40 by 54 feet. He is a member of the Roman Catholic Church at Herman. He has never married and lives very independently in the old home, where, however, a wife could be made very comfortable. He is one of the well-known and respected citizens of this section.

J. CLINTON ATWELL, M.D., a successful member of the medical profession, now engaged in active practice at Butler, was born in 1874, in Marion Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of David M. and Nancy (Daubenspeck) Atwell.

David M. Atwell, father of Dr. Atwell, was born in Butler County in 1836, was a son of George Atwell, also a native of Butler County and a grandson of Robert Atwell, who came here from Ireland. He was a pioneer in the county. The mother of Dr. Atwell was a daughter of Jacob Daubenspeck, an early and prominent citizen of the county.

Dr. Atwell attended the schools near his home through his boyhood and then entered West Sumbury Academy, going from there to the Slippery Rock State Normal School and was graduated in the class of 1898 from the Medico-Chirurgical College, and immediately entered into general practice at Butler. He has identified himself with the county and State Medical Societies and the American Medical Association. He served almost two terms as coroner of Butler County and is recognized as one of the ablest men in his profession in the city. He is interested in oil production and owns stock in a number of prospering enterprises.

On October 10, 1900, Dr. Atwell was married to Miss Mollie Jennings, a daughter of Henry Jennings, of Butler, and they here have had two children—Bess, who is deceased, and Marion, a bright girl of three years of age. Dr. and Mrs. Atwell are members of the United Presbyterian Church. He is affiliated with the Odd Fellows and the Elks, and is a member of the Country Club.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN H. FLICK

JOHN H. FLICK, who owns and resides upon a fine farm of eighty acres in Middlesex Township, Butler County, Penna., is a prosperous farmer and substantial citizen of that community. He was born on the old home farm, of which he now owns a part, September 22, 1848, and is a son of John Q. and Margaret Ann (Henry) Flick, and a grandson of John Flick.

John Flick, the grandfather, was born in Somerset County, Penna., and was a soldier in the war of 1812. He settled in Middlesex Township, Butler County, at a very early date, and became owner of 125 acres of unimproved and uncleared land. He was joined in marriage with Catherine Quinn, who was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, and was two years old when her parents brought her to the United States, settling in Butler County, Pennsylvania. Her death occurred January 1, 1870, at the age of eighty-one years. John Flick died May 10, 1870, at the age of eighty-four years.

John Q. Flick, father of John H., was born in Middlesex Township, and at an early age learned the trade of a carpenter which he followed many years in connection with farming. He died on the home place in 1869, at the age of fifty-one years. He was a Republican in politics, and filled numerous township offices at different times. Fraternaly, he was a member of Bakerstown Lodge, I. O. O. F., of which he was past grand. He was united in marriage with Margaret Ann Henry, a daughter of James Henry of West Deer Township, Allegheny County, and five children were the offspring of their union: Catherine Amanda, wife of William Cunningham of Pittsburg; John H.; James of Pittsburg; Ellen, deceased wife of James Bartley; and Elizabeth, deceased wife of George Orris. Religiously, they were members of the Deer Creek United Presbyterian Church, of which he was an elder.

John H. Flick was reared and educated in Clinton Township, Butler County, and when a young man learned the trade of a carpenter with his father. He followed that trade in Pittsburg for a period of five years, then returned to the home farm, where he has followed farming since. He has seventy acres under cultivation and raises corn, oats, wheat, hay and potatoes. He is a man of the highest order of intelligence, and carries on his work along modern and scientific lines, with most beneficial results. In 1881, he erected his present comfortable home, and has gradually brought his place up to the highest state of improvement. He has an oil well on the property, which has been producing in paying quantity for the past thirteen years.

John H. Flick was united in the holy bonds of matrimony with Miss Nancy J. Hemphill, a daughter of James Hemphill, of Clinton Township, and they have had nine children, namely: Hannah S., deceased; Sarah Bertha, residing with her parents, is the widow of Curtis McCall, and has one son, Curtis Gerald; John Quinn, residing at Duff City, married Anna Carney and they have two children, Grace Marie and Ralph Doyle; J. A. Garfield, residing at Flat Rock, Illinois, married Stella McBride and they have one son, Everett Clair; Thompson McKnight, residing at Saxonburg, married Emma Mahan, of Middlesex Township, and they have one child, Helen Caryne; Rollo Edwin; Henry F., who has gone to Illinois to work in the oil business; Charles Howard, and Esther Ella. Mrs. Flick is a member of the Deer Creek United Presbyterian Church. Mr. Flick belongs to the fraternal order of Maccabees, at Saxonburg. In politics he is a Republican, but is no politician.

JAMES WILEY, a prominent representative of one of Mercer Township's pioneer families, is engaged in general farming on a tract of 107 acres, and has been a lifelong resident of Butler County. He was born on his present farm, July 5, 1836, and is a son of James and Elizabeth (Tannehill) Wiley.

James Wiley, the father, was born in Mercer Township, on the present farm of his son and namesake, June, 1809, and was a son of Alexander and Martha (Young) Wiley. Alexander Wiley came to this country from Ireland and settled on the land now owned by our subject in 1792. Here he and his wife both died at an advanced age. They were the parents of four daughters and three sons, the latter being Samuel, Robert and James.

James assisted his father in clearing the land, and obtained but a limited amount of schooling, his services being required at home. He subsequently inherited the land from his father and in 1833 married Elizabeth Tannehill, who was born and reared in Slippery Rock Township. James died January 5, 1837, leaving two sons—Samuel, deceased, and James, the subject of this sketch. His widow subsequently married James McKisson, by whom she had the following children: William; Sarah, deceased; John D.; Alice C.; and Elizabeth R., deceased.

James Wiley, of the present generation, was reared and has always followed farming on his present farm. His educational privileges were very limited, for when there was work to be done he was kept at home, and his attendance at school was thus greatly interrupted. On February 23, 1860, he married Martha J. Barnes, a daughter of James and Sarah (McCune) Barnes, and of their union were born the following children: Sannel E., married Anna Mern, and has two children, Austin J. and Olive J.; Amelda; Wm. J.; Robert, married Stella Taylor and they have two children, Frances M. and Dorothy E.; John D., married Daisy Owens.

Mr. Wiley is a member of the United Presbyterian Church, and gives his political support to the Prohibition party. Mr.

Wiley's life has been characterized by untiring industry and strong determination, and it is these qualities which have gained him a place among the substantial citizens of Butler County.

HENRY HERMAN LERNER, residing on his fertile farm of thirty-two acres, which is situated in Winfield Township, on the Butler-Freeport turnpike road, has been supplying gas to the American Company at Pittsburg, from a valuable gas well on his place, for the past five years. Mr. Lerner was born March 23, 1854, in Jefferson Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Francis X. and Johanna (Krause) Lerner. The parents of Mr. Lerner came to America from Saxony, Germany, in 1848, and settled in Butler County, Pennsylvania, where they were later joined by the aged paternal grandfather. The children of Francis X. Lerner and wife were: Harmon, Mary, an infant, who died in Germany; Anna, Bertha, Barney, Henry H., and Emma.

Henry H. Lerner was reared in Jefferson Township and there attended school, but he has been a resident of Winfield Township for a number of years, where he has always followed farming. His land is productive and is doubly valuable on account of its gas supply. On February 22, 1885, Mr. Lerner was married to Amelia Schroth, who is a daughter of William and Elizabeth (White) Schroth, the former of whom carries on a harness-making business at Saxonburg, where he was one of the first settlers. Mr. and Mrs. Schroth have sixteen children. To Mr. and Mrs. Lerner have been born five children—Francis W., Elizabeth A., Edna C., Alpha C., and William B. Mr. and Mrs. Lerner are members of the Lutheran Church at Saxonburg. They are kind, hospitable people who have a wide circle of friends.

producers of Bruin, Butler County, Pennsylvania, has been identified with the oil industry since young manhood and has met with good results. He was born at Petrolia, Butler County, November 3, 1873, and is a son of William C. and Sadie Black.

William C. Black was born at Saltsburg, Pennsylvania, and during most of his active career in business was engaged in the mercantile trade. He conducted a store at Petrolia some years, and later engaged in the same business in what was then Martinsburg, now Bruin. He died in this borough after a long and well spent life. He was somewhat engaged in the oil business during his latter years. His wife was a native of Butler County, and as a result of their union three sons were born: John A. of this record; David H. of Bruin; and William R., who lives in Texas. In politics, William C. Black was a supporter of Republican principles. Religiously, he was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was affiliated with the Masonic Order.

John A. Black was reared in Martinsburg, and received a superior education in the public schools. He began work in the oil fields at an early age, and this has continued his life work. He was joined in marriage with Miss Rosa Hill, a native of Monroe County, Ohio, and they are parents of four children—Benlah H., Mildred, Alice and George. He is a Republican in politics, and is deeply interested in all questions of public importance. Fraternally, he is a member of Argyle Lodge, No. 540, F. & A. M., at Chicora, Pennsylvania.

GUS SCHLEGEL, one of Butler's representative business men and leading florists, was born December 31, 1860, in Germany, where he obtained his education and from the age of fifteen years had been trained in the florist business.

In 1889 Mr. Schlegel came to America, well qualified for work at his trade. He located first at Omaha, Nebraska, where he worked as a florist for five years, and from there went to St. Paul, Minnesota, where he remained for one and one-half years. His next place of residence was Chicago and followed his business there up to 1906, with the exception of two and one-half years, which he spent in New York. He then sought a promising place to go into business for himself and selected Butler, and bought an already established florist trade. He has made improvements in every branch of his business, has increased his stock and added facilities and now has 20,000 feet under glass. His business is mainly in cut flowers and bedding plants. He has his greenhouses at No. 716 West Penn Street and his retail store at No. 113 South Main Street. He is a practical florist and as he thoroughly understands his business, he makes a sure success of it. In his business dealings Mr. Schlegel is strictly honest and thus has gained the confidence of the best people of Butler, with whom he has a large trade. In 1896 Mr. Schlegel was married to Miss Lizzie C. Goetten. He is a member of the order of Modern Woodmen of America, and is also a member of the Iowa Bankers' Association.

SCOTT OAKES, a well known agriculturist and oil producer of Parker Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, has been a resident of Butler County since 1876, and has been located on his present excellent farm of 100 acres since 1895. He was born in Indiana County, Pennsylvania, August 12, 1847, and is a son of Samuel and Elizabeth (Palmer) Oakes, the father a native of Ireland and the mother of Indiana County, Pennsylvania. Samuel Oakes was six years of age when his father, Edward Oakes, brought the family from Ireland and located in Indiana County, Pennsylvania. There he grew to maturity and engaged in farming, living a long and useful life. He had passed the eighty-seventh milestone of life when death claimed him.

Scott Oakes was twelve years of age when he left the parental home, and since that tender age has been on his own resources. He began working in the oil fields in 1876, and much of the time since has been a producer, having met with unqualified success. In 1895, he located on his farm of 100 acres in Parker Township, where he engages in general farming and stock raising. All that he possesses was gained through his individual efforts and represents years of persevering toil.

Mr. Oakes was united in marriage with Miss Jennie Mardis, who was born in Indiana County, Pennsylvania, and two children have been born to bless their home, namely: Margaret, wife of Homer J. Adams; and Howard L., who resides near Renfrew, in Butler County. In religious attachment, Mr. and Mrs. Oakes are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Bruin. Politically, he is an enthusiastic Republican. Mr. Oakes' farm is underlaid with three veins of marketable coal and he is now operating in oil, which is found on his own farm and an adjoining farm.

HENRY ERNEST HELLER, who is one of Winfield Township's substantial citizens, resides on his well-improved farm of 100 acres, which is situated two miles east of Cabot, on the Denny's mill road. Mr. Heller was born in Saxe-Weimer, Germany, and is a son of Christian and Maria (Collenbach) Heller. The father of Mr. Heller was a man of prominence in his province—a government official, as was his father before him, the latter holding the office of forester. Many members of the family still remain in Saxony.

Henry Ernest Heller remained in his own land until he was grown to manhood and then came to America, finally becoming a resident of Winfield Township, Butler County, and the owner of his present valuable farm. Here Mr. Heller carries on general farming and dairying. He is an expert butter maker, having made a special study of this industry and his product commands the highest price paid for this commodity in any market.

Mr. Heller was married after coming to America, to Miss Emma Yunk, who is a daughter of August and Martha (Hartung) Yunk. They have three children—Albert A., Lillian Henrietta, and Milton H. Mr. Heller and wife belong to the German Lutheran Church, of which he is organist. He takes no active interest in politics but is a good, law-abiding citizen and is always ready to do his part in the way of public improvements, increasing the efficiency of the schools, building up the churches and constructing good roads through the agricultural districts.

GEORGE REIBER, who, for the greater part of half a century, was known throughout Butler County as a successful miller, was an excellent type of the foreign-born citizen to whom this country owes much of its greatness and prosperity. He was born in Wurtemberg, Germany, November 23, 1815, his parents being Martin J. and Catherine Reiber.

The father, Martin J. Reiber, was a native of Goeningen, in Wurtemberg, where he was a successful florist. Emigrating to America in 1832, he followed his trade in New York City, where he engaged also in market gardening. Later he came to Butler County, and for a time was proprietor of the Reiber Hotel, in Summit Township, subsequently becoming a resident of the borough of Butler, where he remained until his death in 1865. He married Catherine Fetzer, born also in Germany, who died in 1860. They had six children—Catherine, Martin, George, Barbara, Jacob and Margaret. The youngest daughter became the wife of H. Julius Klingler, of Butler, and the eldest the wife of Martin Loeffler. Martin J. Reiber was a well-known and respected citizen of Butler and at one period of his life here, was a useful member of the city council. He was a charter member of St. Mark's Lutheran Church and was one of its elders.

George Reiber, the second son in the family, passed his boyhood and early youth in his native land. In 1834 he followed his father to the United States, where his older brother, Martin, was also established. He began industrial life in America by following the family calling of market gardening in New York. On coming to Butler County in 1839, he settled in Summit Township, where he helped to advance local industry by erecting a saw-mill. In 1845 he purchased a farm near Hannahstown, but two years later he removed to Millerstown, where, for several years, he conducted a store. In 1856 Mr. Reiber entered into the business with which he was afterward so long connected, purchasing a grist mill and 137 acres of the Clymer tract, on the northeastern limits of Butler. Here he established a milling enterprise, remodeling and improving the property several times until he finally had equipped it with the full roller system, and continued to conduct this business for some years. Possessing initial assets in his own unremitting industry, perseverance and old-fashioned German thoroughness, united with rugged health, he achieved in time the most gratifying success and was numbered among the most prosperous citizens of the county. He had other interests and from 1865 until 1873, operated a distillery. George Reiber died January 11, 1904, widely regretted by those who esteemed him for his sterling qualities as a man and citizen.

In 1842 Mr. Reiber was united in marriage with Mary Rigger, who was a daughter of Jacob Rigger, of Summit Township. They were the parents of eleven children, namely: Martin G.; Caroline, wife of William F. Miller, of Butler; Henry, who is president of the Independent National Gas Company and resides at No. 465 N. Main Street; Wilhelmina, wife of Rev. Mr.

Meiser, of Detroit; Mary L.; Anna M.; Elizabeth; George L., who is treasurer of the Independent National Gas Company; and Edward, who is secretary of that corporation; Ida F., and Agatha, deceased. Mrs. Reiber resides in a stately stone mansion which undoubtedly is the finest private residence in Butler.

JOHN E. KOCHER, of Zelienople, the editor and proprietor of the Connoquenessing Valley News, published in that place, is a native of Butler County, having been born on a farm in Jackson Township, July 22, 1870. His parents were John Henry and Elizabeth (Shanor) Kocher, and he is a grandson of John Kocher, who was born in Germany, and who, coming to America prior to 1835, settled on a farm in Jackson Township, near the Lancaster Township and Beaver County lines. This property at this date still forms a part of the Kocher estate. John Kocher had the misfortune to lose his first wife, she dying on board ship, while on the passage to this country. He then married a widow, Mrs. Susannah Wild, whose husband had also died on shipboard while on the voyage to this country. Her name in maidenhood was Susannah Gausz. Of this marriage, John Henry, the father of the subject of this sketch, was the only issue.

John Henry Kocher was born on his parents' farm in Jackson Township, Butler County, Penna., and there his entire life was spent, covering a period of seventy-two years, one month and nine days, and terminating on March 28, 1908. He was a lifelong member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church at Zelienople, serving the church for more than thirty years as a member of the vestry, and for a greater part of the time being presiding officer. He was first married to Elizabeth Shanor, a daughter of Daniel Shanor of Lancaster Township, and his wife Deborah, née Moyer, a daughter of Samuel Moyer of Lancaster Township. She died in 1872 and he married for his second wife Anna M. Ziegler, daughter of John Ziegler, later of Harmony. Of the first marriage there were six children, of whom five are now living. The offspring of the second marriage also numbered six children, there being now four survivors. The record of the children of the family is in brief as follows: Edward S. was formerly a teacher in Butler County, for several years serving as principal of the Zelienople schools. He is now residing at Northeast, Penna. He married Miss Ellen Pickett, of Northeast. Daniel S. is a resident of Joplin, Mo. He married Cora Cullifer of Galena, Kan. Amelia is the wife of Edwin Stout, of Wadsworth, Ohio. Eliza is the wife of George A. Lantz of Jackson Township. Jacob E., the direct subject of this sketch. Catherine is the wife of Paul Gerwig of Beaver County, Penna. Sophia married William T. Gerwig, and lives at South Bend, Washington. H. E. Kocher, who married Margaret Allen of Whitestown, this county, and Alfred N. Kocher are residents of Jackson Township, this county. Wilfred and Ida are deceased.

Daniel Shanor, the maternal grandfather of our subject, was a soldier of the War of 1812-1815, doing duty in the vicinity of the Great Lakes. Jacob Shanor, an uncle, became a citizen of Georgia previous to the Civil War and when that conflict broke out was pressed into service and was wounded. Abraham Moyer, in his time a popular auctioneer and at one time a crier in the county court, was a great-uncle.

John E. Kocher, the direct subject of this article, and the date of whose nativity has been already given, spent the first twenty-one years of his life on the Kocher homestead in Jackson Township, participating in the usual pleasures and occupations of country life. He began his education at the Old Furnace School in Beaver County. After mastering the somewhat limited curriculum which obtained in this primary institution of learning, he became a pupil, in 1892, in the Slippery Rock Normal School, from which he was graduated creditably in 1895, having in the meanwhile taught a term of school at Middle Lancaster, Butler County. After his graduation he turned his whole attention to educational pursuits, being elected principal of the Zelienople public schools, the duties of which office he assumed in September, 1895. In this occupation he continued for seven consecutive years, during which time he had the pleasure of seeing his sphere of labor increase from a four-room to a six-room school, and add an advanced course of high school work, in which he graduated four classes. During these years also he spent three summers at Grove City College and one summer at Sarversville, teaching the first term and organizing what is now "Cabot Institute," now located at Carbon Black.

In January, 1901, he was commissioned by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction as a member of the Committee on Permanent Certificates in Butler County. On December 28, 1901, Mr. Kocher deserted the ranks of pedagogy for those of journalism, becoming the proprietor of the Connoquenessing Valley News, into which he has infused some of his own cheery and go-ahead spirit. The News is a welcome visitor in numerous homes throughout this section of the county, and takes rank among the newsy and up-to-date sheets of this region. It has already passed its thirtieth anniversary and in Mr. Kocher's hands bids fair to see many more years of prosperity and influence.

Mr. Kocher was married, August 17, 1899, to Miss Laura M. Sloan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sloan, of New Brighton, who previous to her marriage was a teacher. Mr. and Mrs. Kocher are the parents of one son, Ralph Sloan Kocher, born September 14, 1904. They are members of the Presbyterian church, in which Mr. Kocher has been elected to the eldership. Politically he is a Democrat. He has served his home town as auditor and as borough treasurer, and has held a notary public commission since April, 1892.

JOHN WHITMIRE, residing on his birthplace farm, a finely cultivated estate of 100 acres, which is situated in Oakland Township, about one mile northwest of Boydstown, Butler County, Pennsylvania, belongs to one of the old and honorable families of this county. He was born March 10, 1835, and is a son of John and Catherine (Painter) Whitmire.

John Whitmire the elder, was born in Berks County, Pennsylvania, and was brought to Butler County by his father, Francis Whitmire, when very young. Settlement was made near the present home farm in Oakland Township, and in this section the elder John Whitmire passed his life. He married Catherine Painter and they had eight children, of whom the four older ones—Margaret, Francis, Peter and Jacob—are all deceased, the eldest being accidentally drowned. John Whitmire, bearing his father's name, is the eldest of the four survivors, namely: Elizabeth Catherine, who is the widow of Robert Morrow; Mary, who was the wife of Christopher Rider; and Susan, who is the wife of John Beatty. Christopher Rider died in May, 1894.

John Whitmire was reared a farmer and has followed agricultural pursuits all his life, with the exception of ten months, during which he was serving his country as a private soldier in Company B, Sixth Pennsylvania Heavy Artillery. He enlisted in the fall of 1864 and remained in the service until the close of the war. He returned to his home and resumed his peaceful avocation and continued an active farmer until his sons grew old enough to take the responsibility. At different times he has made many substantial improvements on his place and in 1877 he built his large and comfortable frame residence.

On September 8, 1859, Mr. Whitmire married Jane Campbell, who died November 23, 1903. She was a most estimable woman and her death was a grief to her family and a loss to the community. To this marriage were born ten children, the following of whom survive: Emma Zilla, who is the wife of Alonzo Campbell, of Prospect; John Elmer, who resides at Los Angeles, California; Charles Campbell, who lives at home; Harry Painter, who also lives at home; Everett Burton, married, who resides in the old home; Ada Pearl, who married William Timblin; and Frank. The three children deceased are Minnie Catherine, William Alva and an unnamed infant. Mr. Whitmire is a member of the English Lutheran Church.

THEODORE L. SCHENCK, one of the most extensive dealers in real estate in Butler, who is also concerned in general contracting, was born November 4, 1874, in Butler, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Leonard Schenck, a well-known business man, who was born also in Butler, in 1848.

Theodore L. Schenck completed his education in the Butler schools and then went to work in a local brickyard, where he remained for six months. From there he went into the employ of Klingler & Company, as office boy, and remained with that house for a year and then worked in the mill for the same length of time with the firm of S. G. Purvis & Company. The youth went then to Pittsburg, but he found no better opening there than was afforded in his native city and after six months he came back and learned the carpenter's trade. As his work in this line increased from year to year and his experience grew, Mr. Schenck soon found himself doing more or less contracting and he finally gave a large part of his attention to general contracting. He has prospered also in dealing in real estate, purchasing lots, building on them and making improvements and then selling or renting. For the past seven years he has been interested in these operations and can advantageously combine the two forms of business enterprise. At the present writing (1908) he owns ninety houses and lots in Butler and is also concerned in the oil business to some extent.

In 1904, Mr. Schenck was married to Miss C. Louise Stein, who is a daughter of John Stein, of Butler. He is a member of Grace Lutheran Church. His fraternal connection is with the Knights of the Macabees.

JOHN H. DOWER, of the firm of Dower and Russell, well known contractors and drillers of oil wells, is a representative citizen of Bruin, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is at the present time treasurer of the borough School Board. He was one of the most active in support of the proposition to create the borough of Bruin, and has always taken a forward position in matters pertaining to the development of the community and its resources.

Mr. Dower was born in Venango County, Pennsylvania, December 8, 1856, and is a son of John C. and Clara (Sigworth) Dower, his father a native of Germany, and his mother of Clarion County, Pennsylvania. John C. Dower, who now resides at Marionville, Pennsylvania, and is eighty years of age, was twelve years old when brought by his parents from Germany to the United States. He was reared to manhood in Venango County, Pennsylvania, which was the field of his greatest business activity. He there farmed many years and also met with much success as an oil producer. His wife died in February, 1908, her death severing a union of devotion and companionship which had endured for more than half a century.

John H. Dower was reared on the farm in his native county until his eleventh year, when his parents moved to Pioneer, Venango County. There he attended the public schools, and later was in attendance at the State Normal School at Edinboro, and the Jamestown Business College at Jamestown, Pennsylvania. For more than thirty years he has been engaged as a contractor and driller of oil and gas wells, carrying on a flourishing business. He came to Martinsburg, now Bruin, Pennsylvania, in 1884, and has resided here since. He has always been deeply interested in matters of public concern to the community, but especially so in educational affairs. He has been a director on the School Board ever since the incorporation of Bruin as a borough, and was secretary of that body for a time. He is now discharging the duties as treasurer of the board.

Mr. Dower was married to Miss Belle Sutton, who was born in what is now the borough of Bruin, and they are parents of three children, as follows—Fred S., Mary C., and Helen. He is a Republican in politics, while in religious attachment he and his wife are members of the Presbyterian Church. Fraternally, he is a prominent Mason, being a member of the Blue Lodge at Chicora, the Chapter at Butler, and of the Commandery at Franklin, Pennsylvania.

THOMAS I. WHITMIRE, a prominent citizen of Oakland Township and one of the principal owners of the valuable farm of ninety acres, on which he resides, which is situated about one mile northwest of Boydstown, adjoining the Whitmire School, was born on this farm, August 27, 1861, and is a member of a substantial old Butler County family. His parents were William and Mary M. (Andre) Whitmire.

William Whitmire, father of Thomas I., was born on the farm just mentioned, July 5, 1820, and was a son of Daniel Whitmire, who was the eldest of the three brothers, Daniel, Francis, and John Whitmire, who came together from Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, in 1796, and settled in Butler County. Francis Whitmire was the father of Daniel, Francis, and John. William Whitmire and wife both died on this farm, the former in 1889, and the latter in 1900. She was born and reared near West Sunbury, Butler County. Seven of their eight children survive, namely: Mrs. Lizzie King, Samuel A., Thomas I., Mrs. Emma J. Wachof, Mrs. Anna Belle Boyd, Mrs. Dora E. Baker, and Mrs. Minnie L. Kelly.

Thomas I. Whitmire has always been that most independent of men, a farmer, from youth up, having devoted himself to agricultural pursuits. He raises all the staple crops of this section and his meadows show herds of sleek cattle and his pastures are filled with the stock that finds ready sale in every market.

Mr. Whitmire married Annie E. Black, who is a daughter of John Black, of Oakland Township, and they have four children, namely: Daniel Webster, Mary Catherine, Clara Lorinda, and Annie Laverne. Mr. Whitmire and family belong to the Lutheran Church. He is an active citizen, taking a deep interest in township affairs, and he has been frequently elected to office. He has served acceptably as school director and as township auditor and at present is one of the board of three township road commissioners.

HARRY LEE JOHNSON, superintendent of the Pittsburg Limestone Company, Limited, situated on the Buchanan farm in Mercer Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is a man of recognized business ability and through his individual efforts worked his way from a lowly position to the important one he now occupies. He was born at Forestville, Butler County, March 8, 1878, and is a son of William P. and Catherine (Bell) Johnson, and a grandson of William W. Johnson.

William W. Johnson, the grandfather of the subject of this sketch, was born in Crawford County, Pennsylvania, where the family was one of the earliest pioneer ones, his mother being the first white female child born in the county. When a young man he sailed on Lake Erie for seven years, the lake being then under government control. He then followed his trade as a shoemaker a short time, after which he moved to Harrisville, Butler County. He operated a pottery kiln at that point for some years, and then located at Forestville, where he died at the age of more than sixty years. Of the twelve children born to him and his wife, William P. and James twins, were sixth in order of birth.

William P. Johnson was born and reared at Harrisville, and at the age of twenty-five years moved to Forestville, where he still conducts a blacksmith shop. He was married to Catherine Bell, by whom he had eight children: Harry Lee, whose name heads this record; Cora Belle, deceased; Mary Etta; Lawrence B.; William L.; Carry Catherine; Cecilia; and Charles.

Harry L. Johnson attended the public schools at Forestville, and as soon as he was old enough began assisting his father in the shop, thoroughly mastering the blacksmith trade. At the age of eighteen years, he began working in the oil fields of Butler County, and later went to the oil fields of West Virginia, where he continued for some ten years. He then began his connection with the Pittsburg Limestone Company, working at blacksmithing at the quarry in Mercer Township. He demonstrated his worth and in the short space of two years' time was advanced to the position of superintendent. The quarries, located on the Bessemer Railroad, give employment to about 150 men, and are located on about fifty acres of the Buchanan farm. This farm was originally settled by James Donahue, whose daughter, Catherine, was married to William Bell, the maternal grandfather of the subject of this sketch. Mr. Bell came into possession of a part of the land, and later, in conjunction with Mr. Donahue, disposed of it to Alexander Buchanan, by whose heirs it is owned at the present time.

November 2, 1898, Mr. Johnson was married at Butler, to Miss Elizabeth Shields, a daughter of Robert and Fannie (McElhanev) Shields. Three children have been born to them, Muriel E., Amber, and Mary Elizabeth. They reside in the brick home at the quarry. He is the owner of good property at Forestville. Religiously, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Harrisville. Politically, he is a Prohibitionist.

HARVEY DOWNEY THOMPSON, whose fine farm of 122 acres is situated in Center Township, is one of Butler County's leading citizens, one whose home has been within her borders for a half century. He was born in the town of Bentleyville, in Washington County, Pennsylvania, September 24, 1829, and is a son of William and Ann (Wallace) Thompson.

William Thompson was a man possessed of qualities far beyond the ordinary. By trade he was a harness and saddle-maker and to this business he added a general store, which he conducted for many years. He was also in the transportation business and ran wagons with freight as far distant as Baltimore, Maryland, and on several occasions his son Harvey D. made the trip, transacted the business and safely returned. William Thompson also acquired two excellent farms. Late in life he removed to Greene County, and later to Noble County, Ohio, where he died. He was thrice married and was the father of twenty-four children.

Harvey D. Thompson grew to manhood mainly on his father's farm, and then learned the trade of coach-making, after which he located at Butler, where, in 1838, his two brothers, Wesley Thomas Fowler and Isaiah Wood Thompson, had started the first coach factory in the place. The three brothers conducted the factory until the Civil War broke out, when they closed their business and all three enlisted in the Federal army. Harvey D. enlisted first in the Sixty-third Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, but was later transferred to the One Hundred and Fifth Regiment. After his return from military service, he located at Prospect and there engaged in the house painting business, which he continued until 1870, when he was elected, on the Republican ticket, sheriff of Butler County. In this important office Mr. Thompson served for three years, with the greatest efficiency. In the spring of 1873 he settled on his present farm in Center Township, which originally contained 280 acres, and here he has lived ever since, carrying on a general line of agriculture. Mr. Thompson has reached the age when ordinary men are disposed to think they have been in active life long enough, but with Mr. Thompson it is different and he still very capably manages his large farm and also finds time to serve in various offices of a public nature, when called upon, and also to be interested in his church and the quiet social life of the neighborhood.

Mr. Thompson was married (first) to Mary Forrester, and of their five children, two survive: Stella Florence, who is the wife of M. W. Albert; and Millie Ida, wife of Louis Craig, who is engaged in a hardware business at Butler. Mrs. Thompson died while Mr. Thompson was serving in the sheriff's office and he subsequently married Catherine M. Roth. Five children were born to them, namely: Lewis, Louisa, George, Annie Lydia and Marietta Gertrude. Mr. Thompson's third marriage was to Mrs. Lydia Ann (Myers) Kneiss, who was the widow of George Kneiss, who was formerly county recorder, being in office at the same time as was Sheriff Thompson. To this marriage one daughter was born, Catherine Loveletta.

Mr. Thompson is a member and liberal supporter of the First English Lutheran Church at Butler. Few men in this section are better known. For a long period he was a justice of the peace and has also served as school director and overseer of the poor.

EDWARD WINTER, of Zelenople, Butler County, Pennsylvania, was one of the originators and promoters of the Pittsburg, Harmony, Butler and New Castle Railway, which he now serves in the capacity of cashier and paymaster. He is a native of Beaver County, Pennsylvania, having been born at Monaca, June 28, 1852, and is a son of Rev. E. F. and Johanna (Schwarz) Winter.

Rev. E. F. Winter was for a period of fifty years a minister of the gospel and was a man of great prominence in this section of the country. He was the founder of what is known as Burry's Church, three miles west of Zelenople, which pulpit he filled for forty-four years, and also founder of St. Peter's German Evangelical Church in Zelenople. Under his pastorate these churches were of the most flourishing and had the largest enrollment of members of any in this part of the county. In addition to those named he also served a congregation at Evans City and another at Middle Lancaster, making four charges at one time. He perhaps confirmed more communicants and baptized more infants than any other minister ever located in this region. He was representative of the highest type of manhood, and was universally loved and esteemed by his fellowmen, regardless of any differences in religious belief they might hold. Rev. Winter was born in Frankfort-on-the-Main, Prussia, in 1813, and came to this country at about the time he reached his majority, locating first in Pittsburg, where he expected to meet a friend from his native land. However he was doomed to disappointment as the friend had already departed, and he was left "a stranger in a strange land." He soon after drifted to what was then known as Water Cure, or Phillipsburg, now Monaca, in Beaver County, Pennsylvania, where he acquired a small farm of fifteen acres near where the station of the Pittsburg & Lake Erie Railway is now located. This property he sold in 1859 and moved to Zelenople, where he purchased of Joseph Schwartz, the Herr farm, afterward known as the Winter farm. He resided on this place some twenty-five years, when his death occurred in 1884, at the age of seventy-one years. He converted it into a beautiful piece of property, setting out evergreens and shrubs under the direction of a landscape gardener whom he had engaged to come out from Pittsburg. This property continued in the family some eight years after the death of Rev. Winter, and is now owned and occupied by a Mr. Lockwood.

Rev. E. F. Winter was united in marriage with Miss Johanna Schwarz, who was born in Wurtemberg, Germany, and accompanied her parents to America. Her father also was a minister, and upon coming to this country located in Ohio. Twelve children were the issue of this union, namely: Mary Ann, deceased wife of Henry Noss; Charles F., who is in business in Beaver Falls; Pauline, wife of I. N. Hunter of Eldora, Hardin County, Iowa; Ferdinand A., head of the firm of F. A. Winter & Son of Altoona, which conducts the largest music house between Philadelphia and Pittsburg; Bertha, wife of Austin Pease of Pittsburg, the latter being representative of the Union Central Life Insurance Company at Pittsburg; Ernest, who died in infancy; Albert, a jeweler of Pittsburg; Edward, whose name heads this record; Dr. Frank E., a practicing physician of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania; Nettie E.; Mollie E., wife of Prof. Richard Griffith, professor of music in the Bellevue and other schools of Pittsburg; and one who died in infancy.

and New Brighton, after which he went to Pittsburg, where for eight years he was employed by the C. C. Miller Music Company. He then returned to the home farm in order to care for his father during his declining years, and farmed the place for five years. In 1884 he went to Florida, where he established a reputation as an authority on the cultivation and growth of oranges. He met with severe losses in the freeze of 1895, and thereafter became general manager of the Florida interests of John B. Stetson of Philadelphia. He spent thirteen years in Florida and in addition to his own interests engaged as manager for others. He read a paper before the State Horticultural Society of Florida, which was considered of such merit and importance that the American Agriculturist (southern edition) devoted half a column of its publication to the article. In the spring of 1897, Mr. Winter returned to Zelenople, where he has since resided, and for six years conducted what is now the Harmony Hardware Store. In March, 1905, he dropped all other interests in order to devote his attention to the success of the Pittsburg, Harmony, Butler and New Castle Railway, then in contemplation, and of which he was one of the promoters. He became right-of-way man and traveled thousands of miles to secure a single right of way, working day and night, to find all the parties and secure the necessary rights of way. He met with unusual success and may well take pride in the operation of this road, which consists of about seventy-five miles of track and is one of the best equipped lines in operation. He is at the present director, cashier and paymaster of the road and is stationed at the Harmony Junction office.

Mr. Winter was first married to Miss Annie M. Bacon, who was a lady of accomplishment and educational attainments, and was a daughter of Prof. H. H. Bacon, deceased, of Georgia. After six years of married life she was called to her final rest, being survived by her husband and two children: Anna Jeannette, an attractive young lady of education and refinement; and Albert, who is identified with the Pittsburg, Harmony, Butler and New Castle Railway. Mr. Winter was again married in 1898, to Miss Matilda Buhl, a daughter of the late Henry Buhl, Sr., of Zelenople. Religiously, they are members of the Presbyterian Church. Fraternally, he is a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows.

GEORGE SCHENCK, general contractor at Butler, with business location at No. 413 West Jefferson Street, is a representative citizen. He was born at Butler, in 1852, and is a son of Adam and Catherine (Oesterling) Schenck. Adam Schenck was born in Germany but was reared from the age of six years in Butler. He was a shoemaker and shoe merchant for many years in Butler County.

George Schenck was four years old when his parents moved into the country and he gained his education in the country schools. When eighteen years old he came to Butler and entered the shops of H. Bauer & Company, where he served an apprenticeship of three years to the carpenter's trade. He then worked as a journeyman for one year, after which he began contracting and continues in the same line of business. For some years his brother, Peter Schenck, was associated with him. To name all of the buildings which Mr. Schenck has erected would include the larger part of the finest structures of the city, but the following may be mentioned: The A. Troutman Building, the Bickel Building, the Diamond Block, the Second Presbyterian Church, the Kirkpatrick Building, C. Koch & Sons' Building, the City Hospital, the Armory Building, the Waldron Block, the Richard Hughes Block, the wholesale grocery of Leedom & Worral, the Court House, the new Hotel Monroe, and numerous other buildings at Butler and many at other points, including the Carnegie Library at Grove City. He has other interests in addition to his contracting.

In 1876 Mr. Schenck was married to Miss Louise M. Forcht, who died in 1905, leaving five children: Alfred A., who is connected with T. W. Phillips, of Butler; George O., who assists his father; Margaret L.; Etta E.; and Walter Livingstone, who is in the office of T. W. Phillips. Mr. Schenck was married (second), in 1908, to Mrs. C. Dunmyre. He is a member and liberal supporter of St. Mark's German Evangelical Lutheran Church and is secretary of the church council.

CHARLES M. MYERS, vice-president of the First National Bank of Bruin, Pennsylvania, is also proprietor of a meat market in that borough where he has been located since 1903. He is a man of fine business qualifications and a progressive citizen, who enjoys the confidence of the entire community.

Mr. Myers was born in Wayne Township, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, April 23, 1872, and is a son of Jacob R. and Martha (Blake) Myers, both of whom spent most of their lives in Armstrong County. Charles M. Myers was reared and educated in his native township, and at the early age of sixteen years began shifting for himself. He has always been on his own resources, and the success he has achieved in the business world is attributable solely to his own energy, industry and good management. For some years he followed farming, and in 1900 embarked in the butcher business at Slatelick, in Armstrong County. His success was such that he sought a larger field of operation, and in 1903 moved to the borough of Bruin, in Butler County, where he has since continued. He became one of the promoters and organizers of the First National Bank of Bruin, of which he has been a director and vice-president since its inception.

The subject of this sketch was united in marriage with Miss Ida M. Gibson, of Slatelick, Armstrong County, and they have two children, Beulah and Ralph L. Religiously, he is a member of the Presbyterian church at Bruin. He is a Republican in politics, and is deeply interested in matters of public importance.

JOHN C. CYPHER, a well known citizen of Winfield Township, who resides on his excellent farm of forty acres, which is situated on the Winfield road, about one mile east of Cabot, was born in Butler County, Pennsylvania, May 1, 1852, and is a son of John and Mary (Hazlett) Cypher. The father of Mr. Cypher was engaged in farming and working at the carpenter's trade through his active years. His father was one of the early settlers of the county, coming from West Virginia.

John C. Cypher obtained his education in the country schools and later learned the oil business. He married Margaret McGee, who is a daughter of John and Ellen (Seymour) McGee. Her father was a well known man in this section of Butler County. He was born in the city of Pittsburgh, May 15, 1819, and was a son of Patrick and Lettia (Haggerty) McGee, who had come to Western Pennsylvania from County Donegal, Ireland. John McGee cleared up a farm and cultivated it while carrying on his work as a blacksmith. The McGees were early and prominent people in Butler County. Mr. and Mrs. Cypher have had seven children, namely: John A., who is a railroad man on the Pennsylvania system, married Adelaide Nieson and they have one son, Clark; Clarence, who, with his brother Hugh, is in the oil business, being one of the youngest and most successful drillers in this section, married Catherine McAnalan; Hugh F., who is in the oil business as above stated; Beryl, who carries on a dressmaking business at home; Fredia G., Margaret E. and Willis A., who are all students. Mr. Cypher and family belong to the Catholic Church at Cabot. Politically he is a Democrat.

JOHN EWING MAC TAGGART, who comes of an old and well known family of Mercer Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, has a valuable farm of seventy-five acres located about two miles southwest of Harrisville. He was born in the old log house which stood just below his present dwelling, on August 11, 1873, and is a son of William and Nancy (Barnes) MacTaggart. His grandfather, William MacTaggart, Sr., was a civil engineer by profession and resided in Scotland.

William MacTaggart, Jr., was born in Scotland and was a young man when in 1868 he accompanied his brother, John, and his sister, Gene, who was the wife of James Sterling, to the United States. They first located at Sharon, Pennsylvania, but shortly afterward William moved to Forestville, in Mercer Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, where he was boss driver in the coal mine for eight years. He purchased the farm on which his sons now live from Thomas McCune and there spent the remainder of his days. He died in 1893, at the age of fifty-one years, and his wife died in 1906, at the age of seventy-one years. She was in maiden life Nancy Barnes and was a daughter of James Barnes, an early settler of Butler county. Their marriage resulted in the birth of two sons: John Ewing; and William James, who is unmarried and assists the subject of this record in farming.

John E. MacTaggart received a common school education, and when quite young began assisting in the work about the farm. He has always followed farming and has been very successful. He was married, January 14, 1897, to Miss Mary Elizabeth Rowse, a daughter of Thomas and Charlotte (Martin) Rowse. Her mother died in 1891 at the age of fifty-five years, and her father in February, 1906, at the age of sixty-nine years. Mrs. MacTaggart was one of seven children born to her parents, namely: Charles, deceased; Thomas; Frederick; Lewis, deceased; George, deceased; Mary Elizabeth; and John, deceased. Three children were born to Mr. and Mrs. MacTaggart—Sylvanus E., William Claire and Mildred Hazel. Religiously, they are members of the United Presbyterian church. He is an ardent Republican in politics.

STEPHEN CUMMINGS, a leading member of the Butler bar, practicing in the local courts and also the superior and supreme courts, was born at Butler, Pennsylvania, in 1860, and is a son of Isaac J. Cummings.

Isaac J. Cummings was born in Maryland and came to Butler County in early manhood. In 1867 he removed with his family to Minnesota, engaged in banking for a number of years, and died at Butler, in 1872.

Stephen Cummings accompanied his parents to Minnesota and lived in that State for the next ten years, attending school during that time, but returned to Butler when seventeen years of age. For about nine months he worked as a pumper in the oil fields, after which he turned his attention to the study of law. His reading was done with Attorney L. Z. Mitchell and in 1881 he was admitted to the bar. He immediately opened an office at Butler and has continued in active practice ever since. He takes an alert citizen's interest in public matters and on many occasions has proven his value to his community, aside from his professional work. He is a member of St. Peter's Episcopal Church. He maintains fraternal relations with the Woodmen of the World.

GEORGE WALTER

CHARLES EDWARD WALTER, of the firm of George Walter & Sons, proprietors of the Butler Rolling Mills and dealers in hay, grain, seeds, etc., is one of the representative business men of Butler. He is a native of this city, born in 1870, and is a son of George and Elizabeth Walter.

George Walter, the father, was born in Butler, Penna., September 11, 1843, and was a son of Jacob and Mary Walter. He was educated in the Butler schools and learned the millers' trade with his father, with whom he was afterwards associated, at the latter's death succeeding to the business. In 1876 he was elected sheriff of Butler County, on the Democratic ticket, but was deprived of his office after a bitter legal fight. He filled the office of councilman for seven terms and was school director for three terms. He was a prominent member of the Masonic order and of the A. O. U. W. In 1866 he was married to Elizabeth Troutman, a daughter of Adam Troutman, of Penn Township. She died in 1874 leaving four children: Jacob A., a member of the firm of George Walter & Sons; Mary A., wife of E. O. Chambers; Charles Edward, subject of the sketch; and G. Wilson, who is now deceased. In 1876 George Walter married Mary Troutman, a sister of his first wife, by whom he had one daughter—Kitty. Mr. Walter was a member of the Christian church, and was one of the well known and respected citizens of Butler, where he spent his entire business life, engaged in milling. His death took place in 1903.

Charles Edward Walter was reared in his native city and attended her best schools. From early youth he has been interested in the milling business and for some ten years has been a member of the firm of George Walter & Sons. The business conducted by this firm is of large importance, their dealings covering a wide territory. In 1906 Mr. Walter was married to Miss Effie Richards of Toledo, Ohio, and they have two children, Nellie Margaret and George Edward. Mr. and Mrs. Walter are members of the Lutheran Church of Butler. Fraternally he is connected with the Elks, the Eagles and the Woodmen.

JOSEPH H. ORR is a prominent contractor and builder and dealer in lumber and building materials at Bruin, Pennsylvania, where he has been engaged in business many years and is widely known. He was born in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, July 9, 1850, and is a son of John G. and Susanna Orr, both natives of that county. The Orr family is an old established one in Armstrong County, and is of English extraction.

Joseph H. Orr was reared to manhood in his native county, and from his youthful days has engaged in mechanical pursuits. He learned the trade of a carpenter with his father, who was successfully engaged in contracting for many years. He is a man of good education, receiving excellent training in the public schools and in contact with the business world. In 1872 Mr. Orr left Armstrong County, and for two years resided at East Brady, after which, in 1874, he took up his residence in Martinsburg, now known as Bruin. He established a business of his own here many years ago, and from a small beginning has developed it to large proportions. In addition to contracting and building, he deals in rough and finished lumber, sash, doors, sewer and building tile, brick, slate and paints. He is a progressive man and has always taken a deep interest in the affairs of the borough. He has served as a director of the schools of Bruin and has been treasurer of the borough. He is a Democrat in politics.

The subject of this sketch was united in marriage with Miss Martha Cox of Armstrong County, and they became parents of nine children, seven of whom are living, namely: Emma R., wife of F. W.

Heckman, of Marietta, Ohio, and mother of two children—Floyd, who is fifteen years old, and Meda, ten years old; Myrtle G., wife of James H. Ramsey of Bruin, who has one son, Joseph O., now twelve years old; Carrie B., wife of John W. Guthrie of Lawrenceville, Illinois, who has a daughter, Isabella, two years old; Burton M. of Bruin, Pennsylvania, who has two children—Gertrude, five years old, and Richard Arden, eight months old; Alvin R., has one girl, Amelia, who is nine months old; Harry L.; and Hazel. Religiously, Mr. Orr is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of which he formerly was a steward. In addition to his other business, he has oil interests in the vicinity of Marietta, Ohio.

PHILIP CYPHER, who is a well known and experienced contractor in oil and gas, confining himself entirely to this work, is a resident of the pleasant village of Marwood, his comfortable home being located west of the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks, the residence standing in the midst of a carefully laid-out lawn, which contains fully an acre of ground. Mr. Cypher was born August 7, 1877, on the Cypher homestead, which is situated two miles northeast of Marwood, and is a son of Martin and Eva (Bleighner) Cypher.

Martin Cypher was also born on the Cypher homestead in Winfield Township, Butler County, and was a son of Philip and Nancy (Denny) Cypher, very early settlers, the former of whom cleared two adjoining farms. Martin Cypher taught school in Butler County for many years. He married Eva Bleighner and they had nine children born to them.

Philip Cypher bears his grandfather's name. He obtained his education in the schools located near his home and as soon as old enough, he went into the oil fields and has worked there winter and summer ever since, advancing in the business gradually as he gained experience and also acquiring property. He owns two gas wells and sells their product to different companies having interests in this locality. He has been a successful contractor for the past thirteen years and is one of the youngest in the business in this section.

Mr. Cypher was married October 29, 1901, to Lida Jack, who is a daughter of Williamson J. and Mary Ann (King) Jack. W. J. Jack was formerly a very prominent farmer and merchant at North Buffalo, Armstrong County. Mrs. Cypher has had one brother and one sister—Orlo A. and Effie B., the former of whom died September 18, 1908. Mr. and Mrs. Cypher have two children: Winifred Marie, born August 13, 1902; and McCurdy Martin, born October 15, 1905. Mr. Cypher takes a great interest in his family, his beautiful home and his community. He is too busy to dip deeply into politics, but his citizenship is of the kind that obeys the laws and lends influence to everything that promises substantial benefits to the State in which he has spent his entire life.

JOHN ORR is engaged in general farming and has a fine estate of eighty-five acres, located in Mercer Township, Butler County, Penna. He was born on the farm now owned by his brother, William Orr, in Mercer Township, January 19, 1848, and is a son of John and Ellen Margaret (Watt) Orr.

John Orr, father of the subject of this sketch, was born in County Down, Ireland, and was a mere lad when his father died. His mother was subsequently remarried and moved to America, finally locating at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, where she passed away. John Orr followed his mother to the United States when he was about twenty-one years of age, and he too took up his residence in Pittsburg. He worked in the stone quarry there for about fourteen years, making fuses. Shortly after his marriage he moved to Butler County, in 1840, and purchased a farm in Mercer Township. There he and his wife passed the remainder of their lives, he dying in January, 1884, at the age of eighty-nine years, and she in 1899, at the age of eighty-five years. Mrs. Orr also was a native of Ireland. They became parents of the following children: James W., deceased; Nancy, wife of George Hicks; John; Charles; Perry; and William.

John Orr was reared on the home farm, which he aided in clearing, and lived with his parents until he reached his majority. He then spent many years in the oil country, and in 1874 purchased his present farm of the James G. Harrigan estate. He follows general farming, and in addition is agent for the Worth Mutual Fire Insurance Company. He has served in that capacity since 1893, and is also one of the directors of the company, in which he is financially interested.

Mr. Orr was married May 17, 1871, to Miss Deborah Jane Braham, a daughter of W. P. Braham, and the following are the issue of their union: Clarence, who married Edith Hamilton, by whom he had the following children—Hla May, Anna Hamilton and Ethel; William B., who married Grace B. Lamb and is the father of the following—Glen F., Garth, John P. (deceased), Charles R. and Virgil K.; Perry, who married Alice Moon and has two children—Raymond S. and John Stewart; and Nettie May, at home. Mr. Orr is a Republican in politics, and served as constable nine years, as overseer of the poor, assessor, supervisor and in other township offices. Religiously, he and his family are members of the Presbyterian Church.

F. W. LEIDECKER, a representative citizen, largely identified with the business interests of Butler, an experienced manufacturer and oil producer, was born in 1849, in the city of New York. When aged four years, Mr. Leidecker was taken by his parents to Ulster County, New York, where he was educated in the public schools and remained until May 10, 1865, when he came to investigate into industrial conditions in the oil fields. He had but little capital at that time, and after locating in Titusville, he went to work in the adjacent oil district, moving later to Pleasantville, and for several years was employed as a driller and tool dresser. He also handled junk and second-hand tools, for a time, near Oil City, gradually investing in the oil country and for a number of years has been an oil producer both in the Pennsylvania and Virginia oil fields. At the present date of writing (1908), he is operating in the Brush Creek fields, near Duff City, pumping eight wells and having thirty in operation at different points. He is financially interested in several prospering oil companies and aside from this commodity, he has other business connections.

In 1873 Mr. Leidecker was married to Miss Margaret H. Wilson, who is a native of England, and they have six surviving children, namely: Frederica W., who is the wife of A. C. Richards, of Butler; Robert W., who is an oil operator in the Brush Creek fields; and Josephine May, Grace Maud, Iona M., and Nevin C., all residing at home. Mr. Leidecker was reared a Lutheran but his family belong to the Episcopal Church. He is a member of the fraternal order of the Royal Arcanum.

GEORGE BALDIN is proprietor of a blacksmith and general repair shop at Bruin, Pennsylvania, where he has successfully engaged in business since the spring of 1897. He is widely known and commands the patronage of many of the leading citizens throughout this section of the county, with whom he is very popular. He was born at Brady's Bend, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, July 14, 1874, and is a son of Herman and Amelia (Wine-hart) Baldin. His parents were both born in Germany and now reside at Boyer's Post Office, in Butler County.

George Baldin was five years of age when his parents moved from Brady's Bend to Murrinsville, Butler County, and was but little older when they moved to Annandale, Butler County. There he grew to manhood and attended the public schools; he later attended West Sunbury Academy for a time, and also the Pennsylvania State Normal School at Slippery Rock. He learned blacksmithing under his father, and was but fourteen years of age when he began shoeing horses. He mastered his trade most thoroughly, and it is the character of his work which enabled him to build up the large business he now conducts. He is a man of good education, intelligent and public spirited, and every worthy measure for the benefit of the community finds in him an earnest and active supporter.

September 15, 1896, Mr. Baldin was united in marriage with Miss Sarah Kepler, a daughter of the late George Kepler of Parker Township, Butler County, and they have been the parents of three children: Charlotte, who is now deceased; Pauline, and Isadore. Politically Mr. Baldin is an unswerving Republican.

HENRY WAGNER, engineer for the Standard Plate Glass Company, at Marwood, is one of the town's active citizens. Mr. Wagner was born in Jefferson Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, June 15, 1861, and is a son of John and Barbara (Sachleins) Wagner. The parents of Mr. Wagner moved to Penn Township, from Jefferson, when he was three years old and there reared their ten children, the survivors all residing and following different pursuits in Butler County. Those living are Minnie, Kate, Henry, Christopher, and Julia. Those deceased were named, respectively, George, John, Samuel, Anna, and James.

Henry Wagner attended school in both Penn and Middlesex Townships, and in early manhood entered into training which prepared him for positions like the one he has held with the Standard Plate Glass Company for the past ten years.

On November 21, 1897, Mr. Wagner was married to Mrs. Sadie (Gravatt) Barton, who is a daughter of Capt. Daniel and Martha (Girth) Gravatt, the former of whom served in the heavy artillery from Pennsylvania during the Civil War. Mrs. Barton had two children; Mabel Tressa, an accomplished young lady living at home; and Henry Willard, who is a student in the Cabot Academy. Mr. Wagner's first wife died December 3, 1899, and on April 17, 1902, he married Susan Morrison. Mr. Wagner and family occupy a very attractive residence which is situated near the center of the town. He is a member of the order of Woodmen. He belongs to the Reformed Church and takes an active part in its affairs.

SAMUEL SCHAFFNER, SR., one of Butler Township's well known and highly esteemed citizens, was born in Butler County, Pennsylvania, November 1, 1833, and is a son of Jacob and Mary Ann (Martin) Schaffner.

The father of Mr. Schaffner was born in 1806, in Wissenberg, Germany, and was a son of Nicholas Schaffner. Jacob Schaffner was accompanied to America in 1831 by his wife and their three-year-old daughter, and he settled in that part of Butler Township, Butler County, which has been absorbed by the borough of Butler. Later he bought forty acres of land, adjoining the present farm of his son Samuel, and in the depth of the forest he built his log cabin. At a later period he rented a farm in Slippery Rock Township, on which he lived for five years and then returned to Butler and went into the coal business. He rented a coal bank that adjoined his farm and paid a royalty until he reached the vein of coal that extended through his own land. He continued to mine his coal very profitably and he also cultivated his forty acres. He was a man of more than ordinary capacity and became one of the township's most useful citizens. When he came to America he became an American and informed himself on public matters, voting first, intelligently, with the Whigs and later with the Republicans. He served in township offices and at one time was delegated to take the census of three townships. He lived to the age of seventy-one years. He married a most estimable woman, who was born and reared in his own neighborhood. They both were long active members of St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church. They had five children, namely: Frances, who became Sister Mary Crescentia, in a convent at St. Louis, Missouri; Samuel; Maria, who became the wife of Frank Koch, of Butler Township; George, a resident of Springdale, and John, residing at Butler.

Samuel Schaffner passed through his boyhood years with many responsibilities resting on his shoulders. He was the eldest son and became his father's main helper. Three months during the winter he tried to be punctual at school, but there are many duties for a boy to perform, on a pioneer farm, during the seasons of cold and storm, not the least of these being the preparing of the firewood, and frequently the school attendance period was shortened thereby. As he grew older he drove a team for his father, delivering coal and continued to work at home until his marriage, when he went into the coal business for himself, working in his father's coal bank. He continued in the coal business, more or less continuously until 1888, a period of forty years. During this time he had done a little farming, owning four tracts aggregating 146 acres, and he also drilled a number of oil wells on his place, which became small producers.

In politics, Mr. Schaffner is a Republican. He has always been a most patriotic citizen. In 1864 he enlisted in Company D, Sixth Regiment, Pennsylvania Heavy Artillery, and served in the defense of Washington. Early in 1862, when General Lee threatened to invade Pennsylvania, he went out in the State militia with the rank of fourth sergeant of Company G, Fourteenth Pennsylvania Infantry. He is a member of the Grand Army of the Republic post at Butler.

On June 26, 1858, Mr. Schaffner was married to Josephine Hinchberger, who was a daughter of Anthony Hinchberger, a pioneer of Butler Township. Mrs. Schaffner died February 2, 1893. She was a good Christian woman, a devoted member and regular attendant of St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church. Of the ten children born of this marriage eight reached maturity, namely: Josephine, George A., Jacob F., Christopher, Samuel Jr., Frank O., Edward and Herbert. Josephine, who married Joseph Wuller, resides with her father and husband on the home farm. She has four children—Margie, Josephine, Alma, and Leo. George A., who lives in Butler, has three children—Josephine, Marie, and Jacob. Jacob F. and Christopher live in Virginia; Christopher has four children—Christopher, Walter, Ruth, and Harold. Samuel Schaffner, Jr., who is a resident of Butler, has five children—Samuel, Eugene, Laura, Gladys, and Bernard. Frank O., who is a resident of Virginia, as also is Herbert, has two children—Lawrence and Margaret. Edward, now a resident of Butler Township, has one child—Edward. Mr. Schaffner attends St. Paul's Catholic Church. At various times during his long life he has been elected to township offices, although he has never been a politician in the general acceptance of the term. He has served as a justice of the peace for five years.

CYRUS E. BLANEY, who in partnership with his brother, W. E. Blaney, under the firm name of Blaney Brothers, is engaged in oil operations, is a well known resident of Oakland Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and makes his home at "The Woodbine." Blaney Brothers are owners of four oil wells located on leased land in Oakland Township, and have been operating in this vicinity for six years.

Cyrus E. Blaney was born in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, January 13, 1865, and is a son of Hugh and Susan (Eberhart) Blaney. His father was a farmer in early life, and then turned his attention to the oil business. He is now deceased and is survived by his widow.

Cyrus E. Blaney has been in the oil business practically throughout his business career. He moved from Armstrong to Butler County in 1876 or 1877, and continued here until 1893, in which year he removed to Washington County, Pennsylvania. He lived there and in Allegheny County for ten years, then in 1902 returned to Butler County and located in Oakland Township. His brother is a resident of Pittsburg. They have met with a high degree of success in their business, and are progressive and public-spirited men.

The subject of this sketch was united in marriage with Miss Ann M. Myers, who was born and reared in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, but was a resident of Butler County at the time of her marriage. She is a daughter of Samuel Myers. Six children were the offspring of this union, of whom five are living: Fay, wife of Paul R. Oswald, of Butler, by whom she has a son, Robert Cyrus; Margaret E.; Edith M.; Edna; and Mary Alice. A son named Cyrus E., Jr., died at the age of eight months. Fraternally, Mr. Blaney is a member of the Masonic lodge, belonging to the Blue Lodge, Chapter and Commandery; he also is a member of the Knights of the Maccabees.

J. W. HUFFMAN, an enterprising and prosperous business man of Butler, who is engaged in contracting and in manufacturing concrete blocks, has been established in this city for some years, but his birth took place in the neighboring State of Ohio, in the town of Grand Rapids, November 13, 1869.

His schooldays were scarcely concluded before Mr. Huffman began to be self-supporting, becoming an employe of the firm of Loomis & Marble, implement dealers at Bowling Green, with whom he remained for three years, and then became traveling salesman for the Williams Manufacturing Company, of Kalamazoo, Michigan. During the seven years that he continued with this concern, he traveled over a large portion of the United States, his territory extending from Maine to Washington on the Pacific coast. Mr. Huffman then embarked in business for himself, organizing a plant at Pleasant Bend, Ohio, for the manufacture of brick and drain tile, which he continued there for three years and then transported it to Mauvilla, Alabama, where he conducted it for two years. Mr. Huffman went then to Nashville, Tennessee, where he remained for three years with the Pintsch Compressing Company, after which he returned to Grand Rapids, Ohio, having become interested in the manufacturing of concrete blocks, a business he carried on there until he came to Butler and established his present plant. So great an interest has been awakened in the use of concrete blocks, in late years, that there can be no question about the continued success of a manufacturing enterprise of this kind. The time is not far distant when concrete will form the composition of our houses and public buildings, thereby, in large measure, preventing the loss of life and property by fire. Mr. Huffman is working to the capacity of his plant at the present time. In 1892 Mr. Huffman was married to Miss Martha Dillinger, of Macomb, Ohio, and they have three children: Amelia, Orrin and Florence.

JAMES MEEK, general merchant at Bonus, in Allegheny Township, Butler County, Penna., has been engaged in that business since 1897 and has a well established patronage. In addition he gives much of his attention to farming, having two farms in Allegheny Township, constituting 144 acres in all.

Mr. Meek was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, June 11, 1841, and is a son of James and Nellie (Brown) Meek, both natives of Scotland. He was nine years of age when he began working at the coal mines, and continued at that line of work in Scotland and England until 1869, in which year he emigrated to America. He located in Mercer County, Pennsylvania, and mined coal several years, then came to Butler County. He operated a coal bank in Parker Township for some time, and about the year 1875 or 1876 took up his residence in Allegheny Township. Of late years he has devoted his energies mainly to agriculture and the mercantile business, although he has met with some success as an oil producer. He was postmaster at Bonus for several years, continuing until the office was abolished. He is possessed of superior musical talent and for many years has given instructions in band music; he was leader of bands in Mercer and Butler Counties in years past, and has an established reputation.

In 1869 Mr. Meek was united in marriage with Miss Mary Tate, a native of Scotland, and the following were the children born to them: Lillie, wife of Lincoln Phillips of Allegheny Township; James, who lives in Indiana; Nellie, who also lives in Indiana; Janet, wife of Taylor Ankers of Indiana; William, who is in Ohio;

Mary J. of Pittsburg; Caroline, wife of Thomas Slater; Maggie, who is a resident of Illinois; Robert of Allegheny Township; Ritchie; and Emma and Minnie, twins. The subject of this sketch is Republican in politics, but is inclined to be independent, voting for the man best fitted for the office. He is efficiently serving the township as a member of the School Board. Fraternally he is a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows. He and his wife are consistent members of the Christian church. He is a man of wide acquaintance through his section of the country, and enjoys the good will and high esteem of his fellow citizens.

JOHN GREENERT, an experienced and successful farmer of Winfield Township, resides on his fine farm of fifty acres, which is situated on the Denny mill road, about three miles from Cabot. He is a son of Henry and Kate (Gunst) Greenert. The father of Mr. Greenert came to America when a small boy, with his father, who settled in Winfield Township and cleared up the farm on which John Greenert now resides.

John Greenert attended the schools of Winfield Township and has followed farming as an occupation ever since early manhood. He has an excellent tract of land and gives it the careful attention which causes it to produce abundantly. His main crops are wheat, hay, oats and corn. Mr. Greenert married Annie Kromfuf, who is a daughter of August and Laura (Link) Kromfuf, and they had nine children—Fred, Milton, Gilmore, Amelia, John, Laura, Kate, Clifford and Ellen—five of whom are living. Mr. Greenert and wife belong to the Lutheran Church and are good Christian people. He takes some interest in local politics and has served the township as roadmaster.

DANIEL YOUNKINS, oil operator and one of Butler's leading citizens, was born

June 27, 1854, son of William and Sarah Younkins. He received a good education in the common schools of his district and at Slate Lick, Armstrong County, Penna., Worthington Academy, and until 1876 was engaged in farming on the homestead. In that year he came to the oil country and engaged in drilling and contracting at Petrolia and later was interested in the business at Fairview. He followed the excitement to Bradford in 1878, and still later successively in McKean, Forest, Warren, Butler, and Allegheny Counties, locating permanently in Butler in 1884 and engaging in operations in the Thorn Creek field, Butler County. Since then he has been contracting and operating in the fields of Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Virginia. He has also invested in property and engaged in business enterprises in Butler, besides continuing his oil interests. Since taking up his residence here Mr. Younkins has taken an active part in the development of the town, being concerned, as partly intimated above, in a number of its manufacturing industries and financial institutions. He is a director in the Farmers' National Bank, of which his brother, John Younkins, is president; is also a director in the Guaranty Safe Deposit & Trust Company; chairman of the board of directors of the Evans Manufacturing Company, Limited; president of the Craigsville Woolen Manufacturing Company, and a member of the firm of Younkins Brothers, and of the East End Hose Company, of which latter he is treasurer. The manner in which he discharges the various obligations which devolve upon him is proof that he is a man of more than ordinary business capacity.

Mr. Younkins is a Democrat in politics and has been three times elected a member of the town council from the Fourth Ward, of which he is a resident; and during his services as councilman he was twice honored by being chosen chairman of that body.

Mr. Younkins was married, September 10, 1884, to Miss Eva E. Minter, daughter of Joseph Minter, of Craigsville, Armstrong County, Penna. Seven children have been born into their household, namely: Sarah Josephine, Mabel V., William M., Victor D., Florence E., Delma E. and James Kenneth. The family are members of the United Presbyterian Church and Mr. Younkins is liberal in support of its various benevolent enterprises, as he is also generous to many more obscure charities. His family join him in the social and benevolent work of the church. Mr. Younkins' fraternal connections include membership in the Woodmen of the World, the Odd Fellows, and the Knights of Malta.

LESTER G. STOUGHTON, who is in partnership with his father under the firm name of O. W. Stoughton and Son, is extensively engaged in farming and dairying in Center Township. They own a valuable and well-improved farm of 150 acres, keep an average of fifty-six head of cattle, and wholesale the milk. O. W. Stoughton, senior member of this firm, is superintendent of the Butler County Home.

Lester G. Stoughton was born in Butler County, Pennsylvania, August 17, 1878, and is a son of O. W. and Permelia A. (Garvin) Stoughton. He was reared on the farm and has always followed farming and dairying. He received his education at the academy at Prospect, Penna.; took a short course in dairying at State College, Center County, Penna., and a course in agriculture at State College, Center County, Penna., and he follows farming along scientific lines. He is a member of the U. P. Church at Holyoke, Pennsylvania. Mr. Stoughton married Miss Anna Walters of Evans City, and they have four children: Frank, Agnes, Paul, and Irene. Mr. Stoughton is a young man of recognized business ability and occupies a high place in the esteem of his fellow citizens.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES M. KNOX AND CHILD

JAMES M. KNOX, representative of one of the oldest pioneer families of Parker Township, Butler County, Penna., resides on a farm of 100 acres, which was settled by his great-grandfather, George Knox, upon his arrival in this country. The latter was a Scotch-Irishman and was the first of the family to settle in Butler County. James M. Knox was born in Perry Township, Armstrong County, Penna., December 20, 1856, and is a son of George and Jane (Steele) Knox, and a grandson of James Knox, who was born in Perry Township, Armstrong County.

George Fnox, father of the subject of this sketch, was born in Parker Township, Butler County, and for many years resided on the farm now owned by James M. Knox. He was one of the prosperous and substantial men of his day, and took a progressive part in the development of the community. He was a Republican in politics and served some years as a school director. His wife, in maiden life Miss Jane Steele, was born in Perry Township, Armstrong County, Penna., and was a daughter of Samuel and Nancy (Story) Steele, a granddaughter of Samuel Steele, and a great-granddaughter of John Steele, who was killed in a battle with the Indians, the engagement being known in history as the battle of Hannahstown. The widow of John Steele survived him long, living to the remarkable age of 104 years, and was buried near Karns City in Butler County. Samuel Steele, Sr., son of John, was of Scotch-Irish parentage and was a boy of seven years when he accompanied his parents from Ireland to America. With other emigrants they lived for a period of ten years in the block house at Pittsburg.

George and Jane (Steele) Knox became parents of six children, as follows: James M.; Jennie E., wife of James E. Sammel, of Pittsburg; Nancy, wife of Edgar Say of Bruin, Butler County; Mary A. May, the wife of George Say, also of Bruin; Abraham L. of Parker Township; and Elda J., deceased. Religiously, the parents of this family were Presbyterians.

James M. Knox was about seven years of age when his parents moved to Parker Township, and here he grew to man's estate, receiving a good education in the public schools. From youth up to the present time he has followed farming, and in connection has been identified with the oil industry. For more than twenty years he has been an oil producer, finding it a very remunerative field of labor. He owns, in addition to the home farm of 100 acres in Parker Township, some 140 acres in Perry Township, Armstrong County, much of it timberland, and a farm of forty-six acres in Allegheny Township, Butler County. He is a man of exceptional capacity for business, and his every transaction has been characterized by foresight and good management.

June 26, 1903, Mr. Knox was joined in marriage with Miss Mary Barto, a daughter of the late Daniel Barto of Clarion County, Pennsylvania, and they have one son, George, born April 8, 1904. He is a Republican in politics, and has taken a deep interest in all matters pertaining to the welfare and development of the county.

WILLIAM C. HUTZLER, who fills the important position of field superintendent for the Standard Plate Glass Company, in Butler County, is an example of the true self made man. His birth took place on July 13, 1865, on the Denny farm, about three miles northeast of Marwood, Pennsylvania, and he is a son of John and Margaret (Weaver) Hutzler. The father of Mr. Hutzler followed farming as an occupation. He married Margaret Weaver and they became the parents of the following named children: James F., William C., John, Ellen, Peter, Charles, Margaret, Mary, Sarah and Alice. James F. Hutzler of this family is cashier of the Farmers' National Bank at Butler.

William C. Hutzler attended no other school than the Denny School in the neighborhood of the farm on which he was born. At a very early age he went to work and his industry has never ceased. His first real labor was ditch digging and from that humble position, through sheer perseverance and native energy, in the space of ten years he had been advanced and given his present position, which he has held for the past three years. In an unusual degree he enjoys the esteem and confidence of his employers.

On June 7, 1894, Mr. Hutzler was married to Agnes Cypher, who is a daughter of Martin and Eva (Bleichner) Cypher, and they have six children—Ralph James, Pearl Agnes, John Martin, Harry Austin, Helen Marie, and Walter Joseph. The family home is located on Main Street, Marwood. With his wife and children, Mr. Hutzler belongs to the Roman Catholic Church, and to the congregation of St. Joseph's at Cabot. He takes a good citizen's interest in politics and has served as a member of the township election board.

JOSEPH KUTSCH, general contractor in plaster, cement and tile work, has been a resident of Butler for only four years, but in that time has done a large amount of business and has established himself as a capable and reliable man in his line of work. He was born in 1879, in Germany.

Mr. Kutsch attended the excellent German schools and in his own land served his apprenticeship to his trade. In 1903 he came to America and settled first at Fort City, near Kittanning, Pennsylvania, but shortly afterward came to Butler, and his first work, which was in the construction of the new Methodist Church, gave him standing in trade circles and he has maintained the same excellence in all his subsequent contracts. He has proven himself a very enterprising citizen and has done much toward improving the western part of Butler. He has recently completed his own private residence at No. 522 Mifflin Street, which is of cement construction and of North German architecture.

Mr. Kutsch was married in 1903, before leaving Germany, to Miss Mary Josephine Gilliam, and they have one child, Frederick Joseph, born December 4, 1905. They are members of the German Roman Catholic Church. He belongs to the order of the Knights of St. George, in which he is serving at Butler as secretary and treasurer.

MARSHALL NEY HALLACK, who has been engaged in the oil fields of Allegheny Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, since 1876, and is now in the employ of the South Penn Company, is well known to the citizens of the community. He is a veteran of the Civil War, in which he served creditably for three and a half years.

Mr. Hallack was born near Elmira, New York, April 3, 1844, and is a son of Caleb and Lurana (Stoll) Hallack, his father a native of Connecticut, and his mother of New Jersey. He was about six years of age when brought by his parents to Troy, Pennsylvania, and after a time moved with them to Cuba, Allegheny County, N. Y., where he grew to maturity and obtained a good common school education. He enlisted at Elmira, New York, as a member of Company D, Thirteenth Regiment, New York Heavy Artillery, and subsequently was detailed to the musical department of that regiment. He continued to serve as a musician during the remainder of the war, and a part of the time was with the headquarters band at Norfolk, Virginia. During his service he was in the Army of the Potomac, and later with the Army of the James. He was honorably discharged in August, 1865, after three and a half years of service, and then returned to Cuba, New York, where he remained until he came to Butler County, Pennsylvania, in 1876. He located in Allegheny Township, and since that date has been practically in the employ of the Standard Oil Company, with which the South Penn Company is affiliated.

Mr. Hallack was joined in marriage with Miss Ellen J. Mooney, who was born in Clarion County, Pennsylvania, and is a daughter of the late Adam Mooney of that county. The following are the issue of this union: Harvey O. of Parker Township, Butler County; Thomas G. of Salem, West Virginia; Minnie F. of Bruin, Butler County; Luella M., wife of R. A. Kelly of East McKeesport, Pennsylvania; and Edward C. of Allegheny Township. Religiously, Mr. Hallack is a member of the Methodist Episcopal church at Foxburg, and is at present serving as class leader. He is superintendent of the Allegheny Cemetery in Allegheny Township. He is a Republican in politics; and formerly he belonged to the G. A. R. Post at Parker's Landing. He is endowed with finest attributes of manhood, and well merits the high esteem in which he is held by his fellow men.

JOSEPH WEAVER PATTERSON, of Cabot, Butler County, Pennsylvania, has been a mail carrier for the past seven years, and is also the owner of a valuable farm of 134 acres in Jefferson Township, located near the Shilo oil field. He was born in Freeport, Armstrong County, March 13, 1858, and is a son of Samuel and Barbara (Weaver) Patterson, and a grandson of James and Mary (Murphy) Pattenon.

James Patterson and his wife were natives of County Down, Ireland, and some time after marriage emigrated to America, becoming early settlers in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania.

Samuel Patterson was born in Armstrong County and settled on a farm when he was seventeen years old. He always followed that occupation and became one of the substantial men of Jefferson Township, Butler County, where he was the owner of the farm now owned by his son, Joseph W. He and his wife became the parents of three children—James L., Mary Jane, and Joseph W.

Joseph W. Patterson received his educational training in the common schools of Jefferson Township, and at Witherspoon Institute, at Butler. He turned his attention to farming, after leaving school, and continued without interruption until he received appointment as mail carrier. He is a man of superior business ability, a hard worker and a good manager. He is enterprising and public-spirited, and is highly respected by his fellow men wherever known.

September 13, 1883, Mr. Patterson was united in marriage with Miss Anna M. Wright, a daughter of James and Eliza Wright, who were formerly residents of Butler County, but are now both deceased. Five children were born to bless this union: Carl R., who married Mabel Maxwell and has a daughter, Winnifred; Lyda F., Agnes, Edith Lenora, and Anna Margaret. Religiously, they are members of the Presbyterian church. Mr. Patterson has served as school director and county auditor, proving a most efficient officer.

JAMES I. CAMPBELL, one of Butler's leading citizens, treasurer of the Butler Wood-Fiber Plaster Company and also interested in oil production and farming, was born in Concord Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, November 2, 1851.

The late John A. Campbell, father of James I., was born also in Butler County, the family being a pioneer one of this section. John A. Campbell led an agricultural life and on many occasions was elected to township offices. He married Mary Milford and had nine children—Mrs. Jane Kighner, Thomas M., Lee Ann (Campbell), Amelia, deceased; John F.

died in Civil War; Sophie (McClure), William H., James I., and Mary Nancy (Campbell), deceased.

James I. Campbell was reared on the home farm and continued to be actively engaged in agricultural pursuits until 1902, and for a number of years has been an oil producer, having seventeen wells on his own land and others on other property. He has other interests, being treasurer for the Wood-Fiber Company of Butler, owns stock in other enterprises and is concerned in real estate operations, particularly in connection with the East Oakland Land Company.

In 1873 Mr. Campbell was married to Miss Sarah C. Whitmire, a daughter of Peter Whitmire, of Butler County. She died July 23, 1903, the mother of four sons and two daughters, namely: Harry W. and Charles P., both of Butler County; Orrin C., a graduate of the Philadelphia Medical College, who is engaged in practice in Armstrong County; John B., who operates the home farm; Margaret, who is the wife of Clarence V. Blair, of Butler; and Myrtle P., who resides at home. Mr. Campbell is a member of the Second Presbyterian Church. In 1905 he was married (second) to Miss Olive C. Cleeland, who is a daughter of William Cleeland. Mr. Campbell has been a resident of Butler since 1903.

JAMES S. WILSON, who is widely known throughout Butler County, Pennsylvania, is a veteran of the Civil War and formerly was treasurer of the county, discharging the duties of that office during the years 1891, 1892 and 1893. He at the present time is serving as burgess of the borough of Slippery Rock. He was born in the borough of Butler, July 31, 1841, and is a son of Samuel S. and Ellen (Frazier) Wilson.

Samuel S. Wilson in his early days was a woolen worker, and later took up the trade of a carpenter which he followed many years. He died when the subject of this sketch was a small boy.

James S. Wilson was reared in Butler and attended the borough schools, but his schooling was very limited. After the demise of his father, he went to work on a farm in Connoquenessing Township, and later worked at what was known as Hickory Mill, now the Kiester Mills. After continuing there a short time he moved to Slippery Rock where he clerked in the store of E. Kingsbury. September 16, 1861, he enlisted in Company H, Seventy-eighth Regiment, Pa. Vol. Inf., and on October 12, 1861, was mustered in with the Fourteenth Army Corps, Army of the Cumberland. He served through the various campaigns of the corps, from Louisville to Atlanta, through Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia and Alabama. He never received any bodily injury, but his clothes were penetrated by bullets at different times, and at Stone River he narrowly escaped capture, which would have resulted in his imprisonment at Andersonville. He was mustered out at Pittsburg, October 12, 1864, after which he clerked in a store in that city for four years. He then returned to Slippery Rock where he was married to the daughter of his former employer, Mr. Kingsbury, after which they moved to Oil City, Pennsylvania, where he was engaged as inspector of crude oil. In 1874, he returned to Slippery Rock and embarked in the mercantile business with his brother-in-law, C. O. Kingsbury, under the firm name of Kingsbury & Wilson, and they continued with uninterrupted success for eight years. At the present time, Mr. Wilson is extensively engaged in the real estate and loan business, and is a notary public. He is an enthusiastic Republican in politics, and frequently has been called upon to serve in offices of public trust.

In 1868 Mr. Wilson was united in marriage with Miss Harriet A. Kingsbury of Slippery Rock, and they became parents of the following children: Ellen M., widow of James Patterson; Ada M.; Emma Gertrude; James Garfield, of the Braddock Lumber Company of Braddock, Pennsylvania; Clara Alice, wife of Dr. Milton McClymonds, by whom she has a son, Robert Wilson; Ruth Frazier, wife of Samuel Biven of Sheridanville; Harriet A., a graduate of Slippery Rock State Normal School; Bernice; and Harold Chester. The two last named are students at the Slippery Rock State Normal. Five of the children of this family are in the profession of teaching; Ada M. and Emma Gertrude are instructors in the Thurston Preparatory School in Pittsburg, and Harriet A. teaches in Bridgeville, Allegheny County. Religiously, the subject of this sketch and his family are members of the Presbyterian church, in which he has long been an active worker. He is one of the elders of that body. He also is a member of the Grand Army of the Republic.

WILLIAM P. DONALDSON

HARRY A. DONALDSON

DONALDSON BROTHERS, general merchants at Winfield Furnace, are leading citizens of Winfield Township. The firm is made up of three brothers, Clifford C., William P. and Harry A. Donaldson, all of whom were born in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, and are sons of Perry and Agnes (Smith) Donaldson, who are living retired in Armstrong County. The paternal grandparents were Robert and Mary (Campbell) Donaldson, who were probably natives of Scotland.

The three brothers were reared together and attended school in Armstrong County, the younger brother also having enjoyed academic training at Cabot Academy. They were reared on the home farm and prior to entering the general mercantile business at Winfield, in 1903, when they purchased the store of W. H. Cooper, they followed agricultural pursuits. In politics they are Republicans and the eldest brother, Clifford C., is postmaster at this point. William P. pays particular attention to the grocery department and Harry A. gives assistance wherever needed. The brothers are very congenial and their combined interests in every direction present a pleasant picture of fraternal confidence and affection. They are all energetic, enterprising business men and have so fully met all demands that no other store has been opened in this place since they have come into the field. The brothers belong to the Methodist Episcopal Church. Harry A. is at present taking a business course in Butler, Penna.

JOHN J. MILFORD, who has been a resident of Allegheny Township, Butler County, Penna., since 1845, has a fine farm of 160 acres and is one of the most progressive and substantial men of the township. He was born in Venango County, Pennsylvania, December 5, 1835, and is a son of James and Susanna Milford, and grandson of Thomas Milford, who was one of the pioneer citizens of Venango County. James Milford moved with his family to Allegheny Township, Butler County, in 1845, and there lived until his death at the age of seventy-five years. Of the children born to him and his wife, the following are survivors: John J., subject of this sketch; George W., who lives in Nebraska; Benjamin F. of Venango County, Pennsylvania; Robert F. of Wyoming; William H. of Mercer County, Pennsylvania; and Jane M., wife of E. H. Crawford of Allegheny Township.

John J. Milford was about ten years of age when his parents moved to Allegheny Township, Butler County, and here his educational training was completed in the public schools. He has engaged in agricultural pursuits since his boyhood days, and has accumulated a handsome property. His farm of 160 acres is under a high state of cultivation, and is one of the best improved in the township. He is a Republican in politics, and is treasurer of the road fund in Allegheny Township. He was formerly a member of the School Board, and for three years was collector of county funds for the township.

Mr. Milford was united in marriage with Miss Samantha Wiles, a daughter of the late Henry Wiles of Washington Township, Butler County. To them were born nine children, of whom eight are now living, namely: Thomas J. of Butler County; Charles, who lives in California; John D. of Allegheny Township; Finley; Annie; Mabel; Ollie, wife of Forest Gordon of Emlenton, Pennsylvania; and Blanche. Religiously, the subject of this sketch is an attendant at the Allegheny Presbyterian church. He is well known through the community and is most highly regarded.

JOHN TRAUTMAN, one of Butler's substantial citizens, residing in his beautiful home at No. 317 Jefferson Street, owns a large body of valuable farming land and is interested in oil production on his own property. He was born in 1865, in Fairview Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Paul Trautman.

Mr. Trautman lived on the farm until he was nine years old and then accompanied the family in its removal to Buenavista, where he continued to attend school and remained until he was twenty-four years of age. After some experience in the oil fields, he went to Pittsburg where he was employed for four years in the mercantile house of Joseph Horne, and after he came to Butler, went with Julius Kauffman and continued with him for seven years, following which he was with the firm of A. Troutman & Sons, for two and one-half years. In September, 1903, in association with his brother, L. P. Trautman, he purchased the old family homestead farm of 146 acres. He resides in the city of Butler but occupies himself in looking after his farm interests and the production of oil, there being twelve wells on his land.

On June 8, 1905, Mr. Trautman was married to Miss Clara Blanche Miller, who is a daughter of Joseph S. Miller, a prominent resident of Butler. They have one son, Martin J. Mr. Trautman was reared in the faith of the German Lutheran Church. In 1889 he became identified with the order of Odd Fellows and has taken an active interest in the fraternity ever since, and he belongs also to the Elks.

MARION E. BLAIR, a prominent citizen and a member of the School Board of Allegheny Township, of which he is a life-long resident, owns a valuable farm of 175 acres, which he has under a fine state of cultivation. He was born December 2, 1868, and is a son of James and Margaret (Byers) Blair.

James Blair was born in Canada and was a son of Robert Blair, who was of Scotch-Irish extraction. When his son James was six months old he came to Butler County, Pennsylvania, settling at Eau Claire, where he developed a good farm. There James Blair was reared and his life was spent in Allegheny Township. He was a man of sterling character and for some forty years was identified with the important movements in his section. He was a strong supporter of the Democratic party and on its ticket was frequently elected to local office. He was a leading member of the Lutheran Church. His death took place in March, 1899, and in his demise Allegheny Township lost an admirable type of man. He married Margaret Byers, who was born in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, and she survived her husband but one year. The following children survive: Lavina Nancy, who is the wife of Nelson Hilliard, resides in Manistee County, Michigan; Margaret, who is the widow of Isaac H. Robb, of Mercer County, Pennsylvania; Robert H., who lives at Franklin, Pennsylvania; George M., residing in Manistee County, Michigan; John M., residing at North Hope, Pennsylvania; Frank P., residing in Mercer County, and Marion E., in Allegheny Township, Butler County. Lavina Blair married Mannas Hankey and lives at Oak Ridge Station, Armstrong County, Penna.

Marion E. Blair was educated in the schools of Allegheny Township and while he has given much attention to agriculture, he has been interested for the past eighteen years in oil production and for a quarter of a century he has been engaged in developing the fine coal vein on his own land. His interests have been many and he has lived the happy life of a busy man, but he has always found time to attend to his duties as a good citizen. In his church relations he is a member of the Allegheny Presbyterian body, in which he is an elder and has also served as a trustee and is one of its liberal supporters. In politics, he is somewhat independent but votes for the candidates who, in his judgment, will most faithfully carry out the laws of the land. He is serving as a school director in Allegheny Township and has been road supervisor.

Mr. Blair was married (first) to Miss Margaret Sharp, of Mercer County, Pennsylvania, and they had three children: Isabella, Frances Irene and James M. Mr. Blair was married (second) to Miss Gertrude Blair, a daughter of John Blair, who resides near Eau Claire, Butler County.

JAMES COYLE, JR., assistant postmaster at Fenelton, is a general merchant and operates his store under the firm name of James Coyle & Company. He formerly was in partnership with Mr. P. S. Fennell, under the firm name of P. S. Fennell & Company, but recently purchased his partner's interest. He is a successful business man, has a large and complete stock of merchandise, and commands his full share of the patronage of the community.

Mr. Coyle was born on the old home place in Clearfield township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, February 12, 1864, and still resides on that farm. He is a son of James and Isabella (Shields) Coyle, his father being a native of County Donegal, Ireland. His grandfather lived and died in Ireland. James Coyle, Sr., was a mere boy when he came to the United States and became an early settler of Clearfield Township, Butler County, where he now lives on the old home farm. He married Isabella Shields and they became the parents of the following children: Grace, Anthony, Cecilia, Bridget, James, Jr., Andrew, Dennis, John, Catherine, and Joseph, who is deceased.

September 14, 1893, James Coyle, Jr., was united in marriage with Miss Mabel McBride, a daughter of Squire F. P. McBride, who is a very prominent citizen of Clearfield Township. Two children were born to bless this union—James Stuart and Emma. Religiously, the family belong to the Catholic church. Mr. Coyle has always a deep interest in all that pertains to the welfare of the community, and has served one term as school director.

ALFRED W. CHRISTY is postmaster at Slippery Rock, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and has filled that official position since March, 1899. It is one of the important postal stations of the county, and maintains six rural routes. He has had wide experience in business affairs and is one of the substantial citizens of the community.

Mr. Christy was born on a farm in Cherry Township, Butler County, June 27, 1849, and is a son of George and Mary (Wilson) Christy. His father was born in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, and was a boy when his father, James, moved with his family to Cherry Township. Here he grew to maturity and lived the remainder of his days, becoming a successful farmer and land owner.

Alfred W. Christy was reared on a farm in Cherry Township, and received his educational training in the district schools and the West Sunbury Academy. He engaged in teaching school for some eight years, and after leaving that profession followed farming and engaged in the mercantile business in his native township, conducting a store at Monata. He then, in February, 1887, moved to the borough of Slippery Rock, where he has since maintained his residence. He purchased the store of Wilson & Sons, general merchants, which he conducted for eight years, then went on the road as traveling salesman for the shoe house of Stewart Brothers & Company of Pittsburg. He continued with them for two years, after which he settled down in Slippery Rock, where his home had continued to be while on the road. As postmaster he has discharged the duties of office with characteristic ability and efficiency, and to the entire satisfaction of the community.

Mr. Christy was joined in marriage with Miss Dora Hackenberry, a daughter of John Hackenberry, and the following children were born to them: John H., who died at the age of thirty-four years; Mary Corrine, wife of Ren Pearson, Jr.; Mabel, who is assistant to her father in the post-office; Rosetta, who died at the age of twenty years; and Ethel, who was six years old at her death. Religiously, they are members of the Presbyterian church, of which he is a ruling elder. Politically, Mr. Christy is a Republican, and has frequently been elected to public office. He served as justice of the peace and school director in Cherry township, and was at one time postmaster at Monata.

H. W. EBERLE, one of Butler's representative business men, a member of the firm of Eberle Brothers, contracting plumbers, was born October 9, 1877, at Allegheny, Pennsylvania, a son of John Eberle, a retired citizen of that city, who was formerly engaged in stove fitting and blacksmithing.

H. W. Eberle obtained his education in the excellent schools of Allegheny, after which he learned the plumbing trade with an Allegheny firm and worked there until 1902. He then joined his brother, C. P. Eberle, at Butler, entering into partnership with him in the plumbing business. Expert work and thorough reliability in every department caused the firm to quickly prosper and the first quarters soon became too constricted. Removal was made to a building erected for the firm by Mr. J. H. Harper, but in turn this became too small and in 1906 the firm of Eberle Brothers built their own commodious three-story brick building at No. 302 Center Avenue. This is of brick construction, with pressed brick front; the upper floors are fitted with all modern conveniences and are rented out as flats. The firm of Eberle Brothers leads in this city in plumbing contracting, and it is interested also in real estate and in oil production.

In 1903 H. W. Eberle was married to Miss Katherine Kunkle, of Allegheny City. Mr. Eberle is a member of the Reformed Church.

HENRY C. CRITCHLOW, one of Penn Township's most respected citizens and a veteran of the great Civil War, resides in much comfort on his well improved farm of fifty-seven acres. He was born May 4, 1844, in Connoquenessing Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Jesse and Catherine (Wareham) Critchlow.

The father of Mr. Critchlow was born in 1812, in Butler County, Pennsylvania, and died in Allegheny County in March, 1866, as the result of an accident. He was a tanner and a shoemaker and later engaged in farming. His wife Catherine was a daughter of Adam Wareham, and of their family of twelve children eight reached mature years, namely: Dorcas, now deceased, who was the wife of William Rushenberger; John, who served in the Civil War, as a member of the Eleventh Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and fell before Richmond; Catherine, who is the widow of Milton

HENRY C. CRITCHLOW

MRS. MARY C. CRITCHLOW

Jones, and lives at Butler; Adam, who was a member of the Eleventh Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and was taken sick and died in a hospital on David's Island; Henry C.; Mary Jane, who is the wife of Daniel Emerick, of Bakerstown, Pennsylvania; Robert G., who lives in Penn Township; and David G., who is deceased. The family was reared in the Middlesex Presbyterian Church of which both parents were consistent members.

Henry C. Critchlow attended school in his boyhood, near Hay's mill, and at that early age showed a remarkable talent for mechanical work. He never served any apprenticeship as carpenter, millwright, or stonemason, but he has only to call attention to the substantial buildings on his farm, which are of his own construction, to prove that he understands these trades very thoroughly. When he was eighteen years old he followed the example of his two brothers and enlisted for service in the Civil War. Those patriotic youths belonged to the Eleventh Regiment, but Henry entered Company D, One Hundred Thirty-ninth Regiment, with which he went to Virginia. Enlisting in November, 1862, he served for almost three years, during this long period facing danger and death on a hundred battle fields. He was with his regiment during the entire period except when he was confined in hospitals, owing to his having been severely wounded, first at Chancellorsville and afterwards at the fall of Petersburg. Mr. Critchlow belongs to Reed Post, Grand Army of the Republic, at Butler. Although his life has lain along peaceful paths for many years, he can still recall the din of battle, the fierce rush of contending armies, the thunder of the cannon and the rattle of musketry—experiences which an old soldier cannot forget.

After the return from the war, Mr. Critchlow lived in Allegheny County for several years and in 1873 came to Middlesex Township, Butler County, and thence, in 1875, to Penn Township, where he bought his present farm, which he now has under good cultivation. He married Mary Emma Campbell, a daughter of William J. Campbell, of Glade Mills, and they have had a family of sixteen children, thirteen of whom still survive to honor their parents and to be credits to the community. These are: Josephine, widow of Daniel Johnson, of Wellsville, Ohio; Milton, of Middlesex Township; Robert, residing at home; William, a resident of New Castle; Bert; Blanche, wife of Cyrus Snyder, of Wellsville, Ohio; Rollins, of East Pittsburg; Pearl, wife of William McCall, of East Pittsburg; Mamie, wife of John Kenethan, of New Castle; Walter, the home farmer; Mary, Jennie, and Hazel. Those deceased are Julia, twin sister of Blanche, who died aged two years; Frankie, who died aged four years; and one daughter who died unnamed.

ALEXANDER WILSON, auditor of Allegheny Township, has been engaged in the oil producing business for the past thirty-five years, and is one of the pioneer oil men of this section of Butler County. Mr. Wilson was born near Portersville, Butler County, Pennsylvania, October 12, 1850, and is a son of David and Sarah (Irvin) Wilson, the former of Scotch and the latter of Irish ancestry.

David Wilson, who had come from Westmoreland County, was in his day a well known farmer of Butler County. He was a Republican in politics. For many years he was an elder in the United Presbyterian Church, in the faith of which he died in the fall of 1892. Of his children the following survive: Ann, the wife of John R. Moore, of Portersville; Margaret, the wife of J. N. Blair, of Portland, Oregon; Henry, who resides in Venango County, Pennsylvania; and Alexander.

Alexander Wilson spent his school days in Clay Township, whence he had been brought by his parents when a lad of five years, and where he lived on a farm until his eighteenth year. At this time he decided to start to make his own way in the world, and subsequently secured employment in the oil fields of the Alleghany River, in Armstrong County. Later he came to Allegheny Township, Butler County, where he has since been engaged as an oil producer. Mr. Wilson has been more than ordinarily successful in his business operations, and is rated among the substantial men of Butler County.

Mr. Wilson's first marriage was to Maggie H. Sloan, of Allegheny Township, by whom he had three children: Claudie M., wife of Winfield Brown, of Allegheny Township; Roxie A., wife of S. M. Taylor, of Allegheny Township; and Clarence L., who resides at Point Richmond, California. Mr. Wilson was married (second) to Mrs. Sarah B. Sloan, widow of Finley Sloan, late of Butler County. Mr. Wilson has always taken a more or less active interest in public matters and is now serving his township in the capacity of auditor. He has always been ready to advance the cause of education, and for three years was a member of the Allegheny Township School Board. For many years he has been an elder in the Allegheny Presbyterian Church, and he now serves as treasurer of the Allegheny Church Cemetery Association.

JACKSON E. BARD, president of the board of trustees of the Slippery Rock State Normal School and a member of the mercantile firm of Bard & Son of Slippery Rock, has been a member of that borough all his life. He was born here in 1851, and is a son of John T. and Isabelle (Cross) Bard. His father was a merchant and banker.

Mr. Bard was reared in his native village, then known as Centreville, and attended the public schools. His first work was in his father's store, and after the latter's death he succeeded him as president of the Centreville Savings Bank. He was nineteen years old when he was taken in as a partner to his father in the mercantile business, in which he has continued without interruption to the present time. He is in partnership with his brother, Horace E. Bard, but the old firm name of Bard & Son, established in 1870, remains as the name of their firm. In 1890, the two brothers erected the large business block, in which the store has since been located. They have a large general store and enjoy an extensive trade throughout this section of the country.

Jackson E. Bard was united in marriage with Miss Mary Foresman, a daughter of Robert Foresman, a Presbyterian minister of Blairstown, New Jersey, and they became parents of five children: Alice, a graduate of Slippery Rock State Normal School and Westminster College at New Wilmington; Sarah, a graduate of Slippery Rock State Normal and at the present a student of the Pratt Institute in Brooklyn, New York; John P.; Hugh; and Rebecca. Religiously, they are members of the Presbyterian church. Mr. Bard has been a member of the board of trustees for the Slippery Rock State Normal School since its inception, and is a member of the finance committee. He is a director of the Citizens' National Bank of Slippery Rock. Fraternally, he is a member of the Knights of Pythias.

WILLIAM AND CHARLES DIPNER.

The Dipner family has long been one of prominence in Clearfield Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and the old homestead of 180 acres lies about one mile east of Fenelon, on the Craigsville Road. The two whose names head this sketch and a sister, Miss Amelda Dipner, reside on the home place with their mother. Their father, Thomas Dipner, was a veteran of the Civil War, and passed from this life on November 1, 1906. Mention of him is more fully made on another page of this work, in the sketch of John Dipner. The paternal grandfather was a native of Germany and became an early settler of Butler County.

Thomas Dipner was united in marriage with Miss Lizzie Pierce, who comes of an old and respected family of the county. The following children were born to them: Emma, Jennie, John, William, Thomas, Amelda, Frank, Charles, Laura (deceased), and Kate.

William and Charles Dipner have always resided in Clearfield Township, receiving a good common school education. They are owners of the home farm, the former having 120 acres and the latter sixty acres; the farm is made up of four different tracts. They are engaged in general farming and rank among the substantial men of the township. They have a large and commodious two-story home, and the farm is otherwise equipped with good substantial buildings.

Miss Amelda Dipner, who also resides at the old home, is a lady of culture and refinement. She is a graduate of Slippery Rock State Normal School, and for the past three years has been a teacher in the schools. Religiously, the members of the family are consistent members of the Lutheran church, excepting Charles, who united with the Methodist Episcopal church. Frank is a Methodist preacher at McKeesport, Pennsylvania.

RUDOLPH J. KLEEMANN, who carries on a large plumbing business at Butler, of which city he has been a resident for more than five years, was born August 31, 1877, at Wilkesbarre, Pennsylvania.

Mr. Kleemann was given a good public school education and then learned the plumbing trade and worked at it for some years in his native city. He then came to Butler where, about 1904, he established himself in quarters of his own, and his business rating is with the leading men of his trade in this section. He has invested in property here, purchasing a fine home at No. 261 Sullivan Avenue, and has assumed all the responsibilities of a good citizen. In 1897, Mr. Kleemann was married to Miss Bertha Kraft, and they have two children, Marion and Rudolph. Mr. Kleemann united with the German Lutheran Church in his native city and has identified himself with the same organization at Butler. He belongs to the order of the Moose, the Modern Maccabees and also to the Master Plumbers' Association.

SAMUEL N. LAUGHNER, a prominent citizen of Allegheny Township, now serving as township auditor, has been engaged in the oil producing business for more than a quarter of a century. He was born January 21, 1848, in Salem Township, Clarion County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Michael and Elizabeth (Berry) Laughner, natives of Westmoreland County.

Michael Laughner was about four years of age when he was taken by his parents from Westmoreland County to Clarion County, and he lived in the latter county until a few years previous to his death, which took place January 21, 1892, at the home of his son Samuel N. in Allegheny Township. Besides the latter, two of Michael Laughner's children survive, namely: Annie D., the wife of John Grunden, of Emlenton, Pennsylvania; and James L., a resident of Salem Township, Clarion County.

Samuel N. Laughner was reared in the village of Salem, where he began his education in the public schools, later attending Emlenton Academy, and subsequently graduating from Duff's Commercial College at Pittsburg. For several years thereafter he was engaged in the capacity of clerk and bookkeeper in hardware firms at St. Petersburg and Beaver City, Pennsylvania, but after leaving the latter place engaged in the oil industry, although for a short time he was also engaged in school-teaching in Clarion County. During the twenty-five or more years that Mr. Laughner has been identified with the oil business in Butler County, he has become well and favorably known in business and financial circles, and he is also known as a citizen who has the good of the community at heart, having served as auditor of his township for many years and also being a staunch advocate of the cause of education.

Mr. Laughner was married to Maggie M. Black, daughter of the late Henry Black, formerly a well-known resident of Parker Township. In his political views Mr. Laughner is a Republican. Fraternally, he is connected with Lodge No. 521, F. & A. M. of Parker City, Venango Chapter of Franklin, and the Commandery, also at Franklin; with Parker City Lodge No. 761, I. O. O. F., and the Encampment at Foxburg. He is a trustee of the Allegheny Presbyterian Church, and is secretary of the Allegheny Church Cemetery Association.

ROBERT L. DEHAVEN, a successful operator in the oil and gas fields of Butler County, Pennsylvania, is one of the youngest men in this section so engaged. He has been in this business for five years and resides in a comfortable home in Clearfield Township, where he can be near to his interests. He has twenty-five wells in operation, three of them being gas wells of settled production, the product being marketed to the Standard Plate Glass Works. He expects to begin drilling more wells in the near future, and the business outlook is exceptionally bright.

Mr. DeHaven was born in Kittanning, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, in 1874, and is a son of William L. and Mary Jane (Hughes) DeHaven. His father is a well-known brick contractor of that place. The parental grandfather of the subject of this sketch was a soldier of the War of 1812, walking to Erie to join his company under Colonel Prescott. His great-grandfather was a soldier of the Revolutionary War and was one of the moneyed men of his time, making loans to the Continental Congress.

Robert L. DeHaven was reared in Kittanning and there was graduated from the high school. He engaged in the printing business about four years, after which he followed the trade of a brick layer in the employ of his father. He joined the union at New Castle, and later received a transfer to the union organization at Butler, where he had located. He withdrew from the union at the time he embarked in the oil business.

July 4, 1899, Mr. DeHaven was united in marriage with Miss Mary Ellen Flick, a daughter of Abraham and Catherine (McCrea) Flick, and granddaughter of Joseph and Mary Jane (Henry) Flick, who came to the county from Allegheny County at an early period. Her maternal grandparents were Hugh and Mary (Sheridan) McCrea, who came from Armstrong County, Pennsylvania. Mrs. DeHaven is a lady of accomplishment and moves in the best social circles of Butler. This union resulted in the birth of one son, William, on June 30, 1900. Religiously, they are members and active workers in the English Catholic church.

FREDERICK A. FRISHKORN, who is prosperously engaged in the hardware, tin, and furnace business in Zelenople, was born in this village, July 26, 1862, son of Peter and Catherine (Beckert) Frishkorn. The father, Peter Frishkorn, was a native of Germany and came to Zelenople when a mere boy. He learned the trade of wagon maker and worked at it in connection with farming all his life. His wife Catherine, who also was a native of Germany, came to this country with her parents when a young girl, they settling in Zelenople. Her father, Christian Beckert, died here, after having been engaged for many years in agricultural pursuits. Mrs. Peter Frishkorn is still living, at the age of seventy-eight years. She has been the mother of nine children—all sons—five of whom are now living. They are as follows: Christian, residing in Ellwood City; John and Philip, deceased; George, a gardener, residing in Zelienople; William, who resides on the old homestead near this place, also a gardener; Frederick A., the subject of this sketch; Augustus, who resides in Allegheny, being employed in the Beckett seed store where he has worked since a mere youth; and Ferdinand and Theodore, who died when young.

Frederick A. Frishkorn was reared in Zelienople, and in Prospect learned the tanners' trade, which he followed subsequently in Chicago, Ill., and in Erie, McKeesport, Verona, and Fairview, Penna. In 1884 he came to Zelienople and entered into business in the old Harris House, a log building. He then moved across the street, having purchased property in that location. In 1907 he purchased the lot where he is now located and erected the building in which he conducts his extensive business. This building has dimensions of 22x90 feet, is two stories high, of brick construction and fronts on Main Street. When he started in for himself Mr. Frishkorn had but $17 capital and was obliged to borrow $200. The result of his venture has proved highly successful, amply justifying his self-confidence and marking him as one of the far-sighted and sagacious business men of this place. His persistent industry and up-to-date methods bid fair to be rewarded with a still further increase of prosperity, particularly as since moving into his present store he has not been cramped for room.

Mr. Frishkorn married Lucinda Wuster, a daughter of John Wuster of Lancaster Township, their marriage taking place about 1886. It has resulted in eight children, of whom there are seven now living, the eldest, Edgar, being deceased. The living are Arthur, Clyde, Floyd, Marguerite, Alberta, Viola, Clayton. The family are members of St. Peter's Reformed Church, while Mr. Frishkorn is a Democrat in politics.

A. M. PATTERSON, M. D., who is now practically retired from professional work, has been a resident of Slippery Rock, Butler County, Pennsylvania, since 1855. He is a progressive and public-spirited man and has been actively identified with the best interests of the borough, being especially active in matters pertaining to education.

Dr. Patterson was born in Somerset County, Pennsylvania, September 27, 1833, and is a son of David and Eliza (Mitchell) Patterson, his father being an agriculturalist in that county. David Patterson in 1850 moved with his family to West Sunbury, Butler County, and there followed farming for some years. At the time of his death he was conducting a hotel at West Sunbury.

A. M. Patterson attended the country schools in his native county, and the academy at West Sunbury. It was his idea and ambition to follow the profession of teaching, which he did for some years. He taught for ten years in the academy at West Sunbury and the public schools, and for seven years in a select school at Slippery Rock. Having determined to prepare himself for the medical profession, he entered Wooster University, in Cleveland, Ohio, and was there graduated in 1873 with the degree of M. D. He subsequently pursued a post-graduate course at the Long Island Hospital, in Brooklyn, New York. He began practice in Slippery Rock in 1873, and continued in active practice until 1900, attaining high rank in the profession. Since that date he has been in practical retirement, although he still cares for a few of his old patients. He was the heaviest subscriber to the fund to bring the State Normal School to Slippery Rock, and has served as trustee since its establishment here.

In 1860 Dr. Patterson was united in marriage with Miss Sarah Patterson, a daughter of James A. Patterson of Slippery Rock Township, and there were three children born to them: Amy B., widow of Dr. James L. Hunt; Lewis, who died at the age of twenty-two months; and Gaylord H. Patterson, who has attained distinction in educational circles and at the present time fills the chair in economics in Kimball College, at Salem, Oregon. Religiously, the Doctor and his family are members of the Methodist Episcopal church, of which he is a trustee. He is a man of wide acquaintance and most highly esteemed.

NATHANIEL WALKER, once one of Butler County's prominent citizens, who was identified with manufacturing interests and with public affairs, was born on the old Walker homestead farm in Cranberry Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and was a son of Lewis Walker, who was one of the earliest settlers in Cranberry Township.

Lewis Walker was born at Newburyport, Massachusetts, where the family had been established in colonial times. Prior to the Revolutionary War, Lewis Walker accompanied a family by the name of Plumer, when they penetrated to the wilds of Allegheny County, Pennsylvania. When he attained manhood he started out for himself as a pioneer and secured a tract of 800 acres which now lies in Cranberry Township, Butler County. He lived until aged and died at Butler in 1845. He married a Miss Parks and they had the following children: John, Parks, David, Samuel, Simpson, Nathaniel, Mary and Keziah.

Nathaniel Walker continued to reside on the old homestead in Cranberry Township until 1846 and then moved to Sharon, in Mercer County, but not finding business conditions favorable there, in 1847 he came back to Butler and purchased the brick business which his brother David was then conducting, and for many years afterward he continued in the brick manufacturing business. He proved capable in every relation of life. For many years he served as a justice of the peace and in 1862 he was elected treasurer of Butler County. He was twice married, first to Grizella Crowe, who was a daughter of John and Jane (Pollock) Crowe, and second to Sarah M. Slater. The two children born to the first marriage were Samuel and John, and the four to the second were: Leonidas, an attorney at Denver, Colorado; Caroline, who married W. D. Johnson; Clarence, an attorney at Butler, and Leverett H., an officer in the Fourth Regiment, United States Artillery. Prior to the organization of the Republican party, Nathaniel Walker was a Whig and for years he gave support to the anti-slavery movement. He was a Presbyterian in his religious convictions.

Clarence Walker, second son of Nathaniel and Sarah M. Walker, was born March 24, 1848, at Butler, where he received his primary education. Subsequently he completed a collegiate course at Witherspoon Institute and then read law with Judge McJunkin, at Butler. In 1871 he was admitted to the bar and for the past forty years has been in the active practice of his profession in his native city. During these years he has at various times had business interests and has found time also to demonstrate his usefulness as a good citizen.

In 1877, Clarence Walker was married to Miss Elizabeth M. McJunkin, who is a daughter of Hon. E. McJunkin, one of Butler's most prominent citizens for many years. They have had the following children: Wayne McJunkin, Victor B., Helen, Lucille, Clarence L. and Elizabeth. Politically, Mr. Walker is a Republican and fraternally a member of the United Workmen and of the Royal Arcanum.

JAMES M. ELLIOTT, a prominent and public spirited citizen of Parker Township, residing on his farm of 103 acres, was long identified with the oil industry but now gives his attention entirely to agricultural pursuits. He was born September 17, 1844, in Indiana County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of John and Mary J. (Miller) Elliott, the former of whom was born in Ireland, and the latter in Indiana County, Pennsylvania.

Until he was sixteen years of age, James M. Elliott remained in his native county and obtained his district school education there. He then accompanied his parents to Armstrong County and for some years thereafter assisted his father on the home place in Plum Creek Township. He has a twin brother, John S. Elliott. In 1868, during the oil excitement following the discovery of this commodity in Parker Township, Butler County, Mr. Elliott came to this section, and as he is a self-made man, he undoubtedly had many years of hard work before he developed into an oil producer. In 1891 he retired from the oil business and for a short time lived on his farm in Derry Township, Westmoreland County, after which he took possession of his present valuable farm in Butler County.

Mr. Elliott married Miss Mary McNaney, who was born in Clarion County, Pennsylvania, and they have three children, namely: Bertha E., who is a successful teacher in the schools of Pittsburg; Ross L., who resides at Philadelphia; and James P., who lives at Warren, Indiana. Mr. and Mrs. Elliott are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Parker's Landing, in which he is one of the board of stewards. In politics he is a Republican.

JOHN L. DIPNER, justice of the peace in Clearfield Township and the owner of a fine farm of eighty acres which is situated on the east side of the Fenelton Road, is a thoroughly representative citizen of his section. He was born May 22, 1864, in Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Thomas and Elizabeth (Pierce) Dipner.

The first of the Dipner family to come to this section of Pennsylvania was the grandfather, who was born in Germany and reached America about 1806. He cleared a large amount of land which is now occupied by his descendants.

Thomas Dipner, who came from Mifflin County to Butler County, was born in 1825. His death occurred in November, 1906. He was a veteran of the Civil War, in which he served with courage under Generals Rosecrans and Grant. He enlisted at Pittsburg, in the One Hundred and Seventh Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and participated in the following great battles: The Wilderness, Antietam, second battle of Bull Run, Gettysburg and Shiloh. He was honorably discharged at Petersburg, Virginia, at the close of the war.

John L. Dipner attended the Butler County schools and also did a large amount of private study, in consequence of which he is a very well informed man, not only on general subjects but also on law, having mastered this science at home. He accepted the office of justice of the peace at the earnest solicitations of his fellow citizens and fills it most acceptably.

On February 10, 1902, Mr. Dipner was married to Margaret Young, who is a daughter of John and Hannah (Daugherty) Young. Her father was a soldier in the Civil War and later became a farmer and oil operator. Mr. and Mrs. Dipner are members of the Lutheran Church. His fraternal connections are with Lodge No. 836, Odd Fellows, at Craigsville; and Lodge No. 366 of the Independent Order of Americans, at Worthington.

ALPHEUS SWEESY, a successful agriculturist of Butler County, whose excellent property of ninety-five acres is situated in Allegheny Township, was born in Mercer County, Pennsylvania, October 17, 1846, and is a son of Samuel and Catherine (Galloway) Sweesy, both descendants of old and honored Mercer County families.

Alpheus Sweesy was seven years old when he was taken from his native place by his parents to Jones County, Iowa, but after several years there the family returned to Mercer County, Pennsylvania, and there the youth received his education in the public schools. In early manhood he decided upon agriculture as his life work, and he has been very successful in his chosen line. For about twenty-five years he has been a resident of Butler County, and in the fall of 1895 he took up his home in Allegheny Township, where he now has a fine farm of ninety-five acres, on which he carries on general farming and stock-raising.

Mr. Sweesy was married to Martha M. Smith, who was born in Marion Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is the daughter of the late William G. Smith, of Butler County. Three children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Sweesy, namely: Warren P., Ira H. and Victor L., all of whom reside in Allegheny Township.

In his political sentiments Mr. Sweesy is a Republican, and he has always taken an interest in the success of that party, serving as inspector of elections, member of the School Board and township road supervisor. He is one of the good, reliable citizens of Allegheny Township, and has numerous friends throughout the community.

GEORGE M. JACOBS, secretary and treasurer of The Evans Manufacturing Company, Limited, at Butler, is one of the city's enterprising and progressive young business men, who has been able to foresee and grasp opportunities and to honestly turn them to his own and his associates' advantage. He was born in 1871, at Oil City, Pennsylvania, where he was reared and given a public school education.

Mr. Jacobs began his business career in a clerical capacity with the Standard Oil Company, and continued for about ten years and then came to Butler County and for six subsequent years was with the firm of Westerman Brothers, at Chicora, after which he entered the employ of R. M. Hays, at Pittsburg, with whom he remained for four years. In 1902 he came to Butler and for a time was connected with the United States Oil & Gas Well Supply Company and then became identified with The Evans Manufacturing Company. One year later he was made secretary and treasurer of this concern and to its interests he devotes all his time and business capacity.

In 1901 Mr. Jacobs was married to Miss Clara Fetzer, of Chicora, Pennsylvania, and they have one son, George Milford. In politics, Mr. Jacobs is a staunch Republican, seeing in the success of the principles of this party the continued prosperity of the country. He is a Knight Templar Mason and is a member of the Sterling Club.

HENRY B. MCKINNEY, president and general manager of one of Butler's important business enterprises, the Butler Engine & Foundry Works, is one of the older business men of the city, and has been a resident of the county some thirty years. He was born in 1846, at Pittsfield, Warren County, Pennsylvania, a member of one of the old and substantial families of that section.

Mr. McKinney was educated at Pittsfield and Waterford, Pennsylvania, and at Kingston, Ross County, Ohio, completing his preparation for a business life by taking a commercial course at Poughkeepsie, New York. He found his best opening in the oil fields of Pennsylvania, starting on Benneyhoof Run, and for the past forty-three years he has been identified with oil interests in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, and West Virginia, for thirty years being a producer in his native State. In 1902 he purchased the Butler Engine & Foundry Works and does a very large foundry and machine trade in the way of repairs and supplies, together with manufacturing steam and gas engines, each of seven sizes, strictly for the oil trade. He gives employment to forty workmen and notwithstanding the business depression felt by some houses, his volume of trade has been constantly on the increase.

In 1871 Mr. McKinney married Mary J. Thompson, of Mercer County, and they have four children: Montgomery M., who is treasurer and buyer for the Butler Engine & Foundry Company; and Sarah Gertrude, Lydia A. and John J., all at home. During the period of his children's college attendance, Mr. McKinney maintained the home at Grove City and then returned to Butler. During his residence there he was made the nominee of the Democratic party for the State Assembly, and notwithstanding his short period of residence, came within twenty-seven votes of being elected. Mr. McKinney is a member of the First Methodist Church of Butler. Both of Mr. McKinney's sons are Free Masons, belonging to the Commandery.

PROF. GAYLORD H. PATTERSON, whose professional activity is in a field foreign to Butler County, is a product of the county and is one in whom its citizens take a just pride. He is a man of the highest educational attainments, holds degrees from some of our country's most famous institutions, and it is doubtful if there has been any other sent forth from Butler County who has availed himself of his educational advantages with such distinction as he. At the present time he fills the chair of economics in Kimball College, at Salem, Oregon.

Gaylord H. Patterson was born and reared in Slippery Rock, and received his first instruction under his father, Dr. A. M.

Patterson, a well known medical practitioner of that borough. He attended Grove City Normal one year, then attended Allegheny College at Meadville until near graduation, when he entered Ohio Wesleyan University at Delaware, Ohio. After graduation from that institution he entered Yale University, from which he received the degree of Ph. D., and later Harvard University, where the degree of A. M. was conferred upon him. The trustees of Yale and Harvard elected him for the higher education; he was awarded the Williams Scholarship, and received a special prize of $500. He pursued a theological course in Boston University, and after graduation entered the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church. His first pastorate was a country charge in New York, then the Summer M. E. Church in Buffalo, and from there he went to Smithport, McKean County, Pennsylvania. He was next located one year in Southern Minnesota, and from there returned east to Andover, New York, where he continued one year. This was his last church charge, as he accepted a call to fill the chair of economics in Kimball College in Oregon, where he has acquitted himself with great credit. Professor Patterson has been twice married, his first wife being deceased. As a result of his second marital union he has one daughter, Miss Louise.

WILLIAM E. JAMISON, a representative citizen, well known agriculturist and successful oil producer of Allegheny Township, has rich land aggregating 149 acres situated in Armstrong and Butler Counties. He was born in Allegheny Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, December 17, 1856, and is a son of Henry and Isabel (Crawford) Jamison.

The father of Mr. Jamison was born in Huntington County and his mother in Butler County, Pennsylvania. Mr. Jamison came to Allegheny Township prior to his marriage and settled on the farm now owned by William E. At that time it was still covered with its native forest and Henry Jamison cleared the land and developed an excellent farm, residing alone for some years and later with his wife, who came here a bride. They reared their children on this place and spent their subsequent lives here. The mother of Mr. Jamison died in 1876 and the father on June 13, 1897. The following children survived them: Ann M., wife of Andrew Tippery, of Clarion County; Fannie, widow of John Minninger, residing at Westfield, New York; Susan E., who married Marshall Gaitley, of Mercer County; Benjamin F., of Emlenton, Pennsylvania; Harriet, residing at Westfield, New York, is the widow of E. P. Thomas, formerly of Bruin, Pennsylvania; Sarah, wife of Abraham Hartman, of Allegheny Township; William E.; and Nancy, wife of James Miller, of Bruin. Henry Jamison was a fine type of citizen, honorable and upright in his dealings, liberal in his charities and kind in his relations with his fellow men. He was a valued member of the Allegheny Presbyterian Church and for some years served as a member of the church cemetery association. In his political life he was an ardent Republican by conviction and he gave hearty support to the cause of his party.

William E. Jamison was educated in the public schools of Allegheny Township, and his life has been spent in this section, his interests being largely agricultural. He has also given attention to the oil industry and he has taken a somewhat active part in public matters.

On December 23, 1892, Mr. Jamison was married to Miss Ida Miller, who was born in Venango Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, a daughter of James E. Miller, who resides at Franklin, Pennsylvania. In politics, Mr. Jamison is a Republican. He has served the township as road supervisor, performing the duties of that office in a very complete manner, and he has been very active in church affairs.

He and wife both belong to the Allegheny Presbyterian Church, of which he is a trustee and has been treasurer.

J. H. EVERTS, a well known oil producer and prominent citizen of Allegheny Township, settled on the place on which he now lives, in 1881, and this has been practically his home ever since. He was born in Hamilton County, Indiana, May 18, 1848, and he is a son of Milo and Mary (Stoops) Everts.

The paternal grandfather of Mr. Everts was born in New England and later settled in the vicinity of Niagara Falls, New York, and there Milo Everts, father of J. H., was born. In the course of years he established a home for his family in Hamilton County, Indiana, where he lived until 1860, when he moved to Armstrong County, of which his wife was a native. From there the family moved to Allegheny County.

J. H. Everts accompanied his parents to Armstrong and Allegheny County and in the latter obtained a district school education. In early youth he found himself dependent in great measure upon his own resources and he met the situation in such a way as to prove his business capacity and to gain the confidence of those with whom he was thrown in contact. In 1881 he came to Butler County and interested himself in the oil industry, gradually becoming a producer. He is a member of the Pollock Lime & Coal Company, with headquarters at Emlenton, and is a stockholder in the Farmers' National Bank at that place, of which he was one of the organizers.

In 1864 Mr. Everts testified to his patriotism by enlisting for service in the Civil War, entering Company I, Fifth Regiment Heavy Artillery, which became a part of the Army of the Potomac. As soon as the regiment reached Washington City, it was transferred to General Sheridan's command and took part in all the stormy campaign through the Shenandoah Valley. He was honorably discharged in July, 1865, on account of the termination of hostilities, and returned to Pittsburg in the following August, after about one year of hard service. He is a member of the Grand Army of the Republic Post at Farmington.

In August, 1872, Mr. Everts was married to Miss Hattie Thompson, who was born in Clarion County, Pennsylvania, a daughter of the late Alexander Thompson, of Allegheny Township. Mr. and Mrs. Everts are members of the Allegheny Presbyterian Church, of which he has been a trustee for a number of years. He has been moderately active in politics and has served both as assessor and as constable in Allegheny Township.

JACOB BOOS, who was for the space of half a century an esteemed resident of Butler, and for the greater part of that time one of the prominent business men of the city, was born in Hesse-Darmstadt, Germany, October 21, 1835, son of Charles and Barbara (Eich) Boos. The father, a blacksmith by trade, served as a soldier in the German army; he died in 1880. His wife, Barbara, to whom he was married in 1820, was a daughter of John Eich. They were the parents of four children—Barbara, who married John Fell, of Germany; William, now deceased; Elizabeth, who became the wife of Jacob Hahn, of Germany; and Jacob, the subject of this memoir. The mother died in 1853, and was survived by her husband twenty-seven years. They were members of the German Reformed Church.

Jacob Boos learned the blacksmith's trade in his native land, and emigrated to the United States in 1853—the year of his mother's death. He first settled in Pittsburg, where he worked at his trade until September 12, 1854. On that date he came to Butler and entered the employ of Walter & Reiber, blacksmiths. In 1857 he engaged in business for himself as a blacksmith and so continued for three years. He then, in 1860, purchased the George Egner farm in Butler Township, upon which he resided for ten years. In 1870 he sold the farm and bought the interest of George Webber in the firm of Webber & Troutman, the style of the firm then becoming Troutman & Boos. Two years later he purchased a half interest in the flouring mills of Grohman & Walter, which firm then became Walter & Boos, and he remained interested in this enterprise until 1890. In 1881 he engaged in the grocery business at the corner of Main and Wayne Streets, and in 1889 he purchased the site and afterwards erected thereon a substantial store building, where he carried on a flourishing business until his death in June, 1904. He was successful as a merchant, establishing a reputation for enterprise and integrity that marked him as one of the substantial and reliable men of the city.

Mr. Boos was married in 1856 to Miss Barbara Walter, a daughter of Jacob Walter, of Butler. Her father was a native of Germany and one of the early settlers here; he was a blacksmith by trade and later engaged in the milling business. Mrs. Boos was born in Butler, December 29, 1839, and has always been a resident of this county. Ten children came to complete the home life of Mr. and Mrs. Boos, of whom five are now deceased and five living. They were as follows: Annie Marie, who married Adam Hoffner, is now deceased; George, also deceased; Marguerite Louise, wife of William Voskamp, of Pittsburg; Emma Elizabeth, wife of Charles Kaufman, of Pittsburg; Augusta Amelia, now deceased; Charles Albert, also deceased; Clara Julia, wife of Charles Gregg, of Butler; Jacob William Wilson, deceased; Catherine P., wife of Fred Harper, of Butler, and Lyda Barbara, who resides with her mother. The surviving members of the family belong to the English Lutheran Church.

pery Rock, Butler County, Pennsylvania, have engaged in business in this borough since October 25, 1901. In 1905 they erected a handsome two-story business block, probably the finest in the borough with the exception of the State Normal buildings.

Roy A. Watson, of the firm of Watson & Williams, was born in Slippery Rock in 1876, and is a son of J. N. and Margaret Emma (Wicks) Watson. His father was born and reared at Prospect, Butler County, and is a marble cutter by trade. Roy A. was reared in Slippery Rock and attended the public schools and the Slippery Rock State Normal School. Upon leaving school he went to work for J. C. Kerr, a general merchant, although he had prior to that time spent his spare hours from school in working in that store. In all he spent about ten years in Mr. Kerr's store, and upon quitting his employ in 1901 became associated with Mr. Charles Clinton Williams in the grocery business. With a capital of $700 they put a stock of goods in the store room now occupied by a restaurant, and continued there about one year. They then moved to the store-room two doors north of their present location, and there carried on the business until their new building had been completed. They had purchased an old brick building, formerly a part of the college buildings, that stood on the banks of Wolf Creek, tore it down and cleaned the brick, which they used in the construction of their business block. They handle a full line of staple and fancy groceries, notions and cigars and tobacco, and their trade extends for miles throughout the territory contiguous to the borough.

Before engaging in his present business, Mr. Williams was extensively engaged in the saw-mill and lumber business in Butler and Lawrence Counties. He was united in marriage with Carrie Smith, a daughter of James Smith of Carrolton, Penna.

Mr. Watson married Miss Grace Estella

Double, a daughter of Perry Double, and they have a daughter, Miss Lela Felicia.

JOSEPH A. CRAWFORD, president of the School Board of Allegheny Township, and past commander of S. J. Rosenberry Post, Grand Army of the Republic, at Eau Claire, resides on the farm of seventy acres, which is situated near Six Points, Butler County, Pennsylvania, on which he was born on October 1, 1839. He is a son of James and Jane (McGarrah) Crawford.

The Crawfords were probably among the very first settlers of Allegheny Township. The grandfather of Joseph A. was James Crawford, and he was born in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, and was unmarried when he accompanied his parents to Allegheny Township, Butler County, and he built the first log cabin on the present farm. His son, also James Crawford, completed the clearing of the farm, with the assistance of his sons, and spent his whole life here, dying when ninety years of age, in 1891. All the Crawfords have been men of ability and of substantial qualities and James Crawford was frequently elected to offices of trust and responsibility, by his fellow citizens. He married Jane McGarrah, who was a daughter of Rev. Robert McGarrah, who was a pioneer preacher of the Presbyterian faith, in Clarion County, one of the best known and most faithful ministers in his day in that section. The children of James Crawford were (in order): Abigail, Robert M., Lavinia, Gideon G., James H., John A., Joseph A., Emily C., and Jennie M. The surviving children of James Crawford are: Lavinia married George McClelland and has three children—Rev. M. D. McClelland of Pikeville, Ky.; Ida L. of Karns City, Penna., who married Ralph E. Rodgers; and Halsey C., who married Mary Kelley, and resides in Wilkinsburg, Joseph A.; Emily C., who is the widow of James Stephenson, formerly of Summit Township, and resides with her brother

MRS. MAGGIE S. WHITMIRE

ROBERT J. WHITMIRE

Joseph A.; and Gideon G., who resides at Enlenton, Pennsylvania. The Crawford sons were intensely loyal during the Civil War, four of them, Joseph A., John A., James H. and Robert M., being soldiers, and two of them died in Confederate prisons, John A. at Andersonville, and James H. in Florence prison, South Carolina. Robert M. went to Kansas after the close of his military service, and from there to Missouri, where he died, far from the old homestead. He married Marilda Sloan and had one daughter, Hattie J., who married E. W. Murphy, and has a daughter—Vera.

Joseph A. Crawford grew to manhood on the home farm and was educated in the public schools of Allegheny Township and West Sunbury Academy, and for a short time taught school. On September 20, 1864, he was drafted for military service and was assigned to Company F, Fiftieth Regiment, Pennsylvania Infantry, which was attached to the Army of the Potomac, and under the command of General Grant fought in the siege of Petersburg and in that and all the subsequent movements of his regiment, Mr. Crawford did his full soldierly duty, receiving his honorable discharge on June 3, 1865. He then returned to Allegheny Township and resumed his usual avocations and has resided ever since on the home farm, of which he is part owner. He has taken a very active interest in Grand Army affairs and twice has been honored by being elected commander of the local post. In politics he is a Republican. He is a member of the Scrub Grass Presbyterian Church, in Venango County, of which he is an elder and is also a member of the Session. He is a thoroughly representative citizen of Allegheny Township.

ROBERT J. WHITMIRE, whose farm of 150 acres, one of the finest in this section, is situated one-half mile south of Boydstown, in Oakland Township, belongs to a staunch old Butler County family. He was born October 17, 1858, on what is known as the Jacob Whitmire farm, north of Oakland, and is a son of Jacob and Isabella (Brown) Whitmire.

Jacob Whitmire was also born in Oakland Township, and was a son of John Whitmire, Sr., who, in company with his brothers, Francis and Daniel Whitmire, came to this section in pioneer times. Jacob Whitmire was reared on the John Whitmire farm and he followed farming all his active life, and died in the spring of 1901. He married Isabella Brown, who died in 1899. She was a daughter of Robert Brown, of Clay Township, Butler County. Of the seven children born to Jacob and Isabella Whitmire, six survive.

Robert J. Whitmire was reared on the Jacob Whitmire farm and from boyhood he has been interested in farm pursuits. He settled on his present property on May 2, 1889, and has made so many admirable improvements here that it warrants the name by which it is known, Sunnyside Farm. He carries on general farming and raises excellent stock and to a considerable extent is a dealer in the same.

Mr. Whitmire married Maggie W. Smith, a daughter of W. P. Smith and they have had ten children, namely: Cora M., who is a teacher at Jefferson Center, Jefferson Township; Alice E., who died aged fifteen years; and Mildred Isabelle, Grace E., Olive C., Lester P., Mabel M., Robert Raymond, who died in infancy, J. Everett, and LeRoy S. at home. Mr. Whitmire and family belong to the Lutheran Church at Springdale. He is a member of the F. M. C. He takes a very active interest in politics and is always willing to do his share in anything looking to the improvement of the public highways, the advancement of the schools or other public questions which good citizens are called upon to decide.

JOSIAH ADAMS, residing on his valuable farm of 140 acres, which is situated near Adams Corners, on the Harrisville and Franklin Road, belongs to families who have been prominently identified with the development of Slippery Rock Township, for generations. He was born on a farm that adjoins his own, in Slippery Rock Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, October 3, 1832, and is a son of James and Eliza (Harris) Adams.

The location of Adams Corners bears his family name, while Harrisville, three miles distant, was named for his maternal grandfather, Ephraim Harris, who purchased the 400 acres, which includes the site of that town, from James Hartley, another old pioneer with Jonathan Adams, who was the grandfather of the wife of Josiah Adams. James Adams and wife spent their lives in Slippery Rock Township and died on the farm now owned by their son Josiah.

Josiah Adams was reared in Slippery Rock Township and obtained his education in the country schools. In 1853 he started for California and remained in the far West until 1873, during this long period having spent his time in California, Nevada, Oregon, Washington and Utah, teaming, mining and farming. After he returned to Pennsylvania, in 1873, he was married to Miss Mary Hartley, a daughter of James and Isabella (Van Dyke) Hartley. Mrs. Adams was born and reared in Marion Township, Butler County. Her grandfather, James Hartley, was born in Westmoreland County and, as stated above, he once owned the land on which the flourishing town of Harrisville stands.

Mr. and Mrs. Adams have had six children, namely: Samuel Dale, who died when aged twenty-five years; James A., who married Edith Shields, and has four children—Samuel Dale, Frances Catherine, Mary Isabella, and Eli James; Harry, who married Mary Della Bovard, deceased; Mary, who married W. E. James, of Chicora; Ralph, who married Effie Dible, resides at Mars, and they have three children, Kathleen Adelaide, Sarah and Ray Roosevelt; and one deceased. Mr. Adams and wife belong to the Slippery Rock Presbyterian Church. In politics he is a Republican.

W. D. WINTERS, one of Butler's representative business men, who is engaged in general contracting, railroad excavating and building, was born in 1874, at Allegheny, Pennsylvania, where he attended school during early boyhood. Since he was eighteen years of age, Mr. Winters has been engaged in the business to which he now devotes his entire time. He is a general contractor for grading, masonry, railroad work and mill foundations. It would be a heavy task to name all the work for which Mr. Winters has made himself responsible, since he established himself at Butler, but his most prominent contracts were the following: The Butler Car Wheel Works, the Butler Bolt & Rivet Works, the Forged Steel Wheel Works, the power plant for the Steel Car Forge Works at Ellwood City, and all the grading around the Standard Steel Car Works at Butler. While residing at Allegheny, he took an active interest in politics, but since coming to Butler has devoted all his energies to the developing of his business and in this line is recognized as one of the city's most enterprising men. In 1890 Mr. Winters was married to Miss Mary Haas, of Allegheny. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

CHARLES O. POLM, a prominent agriculturist and coal dealer in Allegheny Township, residing on his valuable farm of ninety acres, was born April 23, 1876, in Allegheny Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Thomas and Olive (Corbett) Polm.

The venerable father of Mr. Polm, now in his seventy-fifth year, was born in Clarion County, Pennsylvania, but a large portion of his life has been passed in Butler County. He is of German extraction. He married a granddaughter of Stephen Corbett, an old settler of Butler County, who was a native of England. Mrs. Polm died in December, 1907, and seven children still survive, namely: Stephen, residing in Allegheny Township; William W., residing near New Bethlehem; John L. and Frederick N., both residing in Allegheny Township; Charles O.; Carrie Y., wife of George W. Gibson, living in Allegheny Township; and Mary C., wife of W. C. Alworth, residing in Parker Township. Mr. Polm takes much interest both in local matters and in the affairs of the outside world and gives hearty support to the Republican party. He is one of the leading and most valued members of the Methodist Episcopal Church in this section.

Charles O. Polm obtained his education in the public schools of Allegheny Township and he has given his main attention to farming and to developing his fine coal mine which is situated on his land, mining having been going on for some years with no sign of an exhaustion of the supply. He is an excellent business man and manages his industries in such an able manner as to ensure satisfactory results. He is a man of his word and enjoys the confidence of his fellow citizens. In politics he is a Republican but is no seeker for political office. He is an attendant and contributor of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Farmington, of which his venerable father is a pillar.

WINFIELD S. KEISTER, residing on his well improved farm of 150 acres, situated near Keister Station, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is one of the prominent citizens of this section and was born here in 1851, and is a son of Jesse and Margaret (Wolford) Keister.

born in 1808, in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, and was fourteen years old when he accompanied his parents, in 1822, to Slippery Rock Township, Butler County, where his father, Philip Keister, bought a farm situated about one mile west of the one now owned by his grandson, Winfield S. Philip Keister died on the farm on which he first settled. Jesse Keister was reared on that farm and remained there until his marriage when he settled on the farm belonging to Winfield S., but at that time it was a very different looking property, being covered with timber and brush and giving little indication of its present state of improvement and cultivation. Prior to the birth of Winfield S., the present fine country residence was erected and many changes had been effected. Jesse Keister married Margaret Wolford, who was born in Slippery Rock Township, on the farm now owned by Henry Wilson, just east of the borough of Slippery Rock, and her father was Henry Wolford. To this union eight children were born, one of whom died in infancy and four survive: Amelda, who is the wife of Alexander Mortland, of Indiaapolis, Indiana; Henry, who lives at Seattle, Washington; Emma, who is the wife of John Boyles, of Grove City; and Winfield Scott. Philip died aged thirty-six years; Jacob S. died aged twenty-nine years; and Madison died aged thirty-six years. Jacob S. was a soldier in the Civil War, a member of the One Hundred Third Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, was taken prisoner by the Confederates at Plymouth, North Carolina, and was subsequently confined in the Andersonville and Florence prisons, dying in the latter, a true martyr for his country. The mother and father both died on the present farm, the former in 1890 and the latter in 1888.

Winfield S. Keister has been engaged in farming ever since the close of his school period and is numbered with the experienced and successful agriculturists of the township. He carries on a general line of agriculture and grows many strawberries and raspberries. His surroundings indicate a large amount of comfort, and his fields and flocks show thrift and industry.

Mr. Keister married Miss Annie O'Neil, a daughter of Daniel O'Neil, and they have the following children: Henry B., James Lawrence, George F., Jesse, Nellie, Margaret and Madison. Jesse, Margaret and Madison are at home. Nellie is a student in the Slippery Rock State Normal School. The eldest son, Henry B., married Venetta Sutton, and is principal of the Chicora Schools. He is a graduate of the Slippery Rock State Normal School. Both James Lawrence and George F. are yard clerks for the Bessemer Railroad, at Branttown.

MICHAEL KRAMER, a well known resident of Clearfield Township, has a fine farm of fifty acres just off the state road, about a quarter of a mile from Coyleville. He was born in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, September 7, 1849, and is a son of Jacob and Barbara (Holtz) Kramer.

Jacob Kramer was born in Germany and was eighteen years old when he came to the United States, his parents remaining in the old country. About one year later he was married to Barbara Holtz and they became parents of the following children: Joseph, James, Michael, Katie, Jacob, John, Mina, Daniel and Barbara. By a second marriage he had Stella, Margaret and George.

Michael Kramer was about ten years of age when his parents moved from Pittsburg to Clearfield Township, Butler County, and here he grew to maturity, receiving his education in the public schools. He early learned the trade of a carpenter, which he followed in connection with farming. He is engaged in diversified farming, raising some stock.

April 27, 1875, Mr. Kramer was united in marriage with Catherine Osterman, a daughter of Joseph and Sarah (Hilner)

Osterman, of Clearfield Township, Butler County. She is one of the following children born to her parents: Grace, Margaret, Jacob, Kate; Peter, George and Cris, triplets; Maggie, William, Barbara and Catherine. Of these children Margaret, Jacob and Cris are now deceased.

Michael and Catherine Kramer are parents of the following children: Joseph; Jacob, who married Sarah Opperman and has two daughters, Clara and Kate; Edward, who married Mary Schuler and has two sons, Theodore and Raymond; Fannie, who is attending school and is engaged in dressmaking; William, who lives on the home farm; and Charles, who is in attendance at school. Religiously, the family belongs to St. John's Catholic Church.

JOHN N. MUNTZ, a native of Germany, there married Christina Rapp. They came to the United States, arriving at Baltimore, Maryland, July 4, 1804, proceeded to Columbiana County, Ohio, and finally to Harmony, Butler County, Penna., where they were among the first to build a home, March, 1805. In 1806 they bought a tract of land in Beaver County, and lived there until Mr. Muntz's death, by accident, on June 4, 1812.

John G. Muntz, youngest child of John George Muntz, lived on the farm in Beaver County until the spring of 1820, when he joined his brother Henry, and they carried on a store at Zelenople, Butler County. In the fall of 1826 he went to Natchez, Mississippi, to fill the position of general manager of a store. He returned to Zelenople and in 1835 was appointed postmaster at that place, which position he held until 1840, and then embarked in the mercantile business in Pittsburg, where he continued until 1854. He then located in Butler, and opened a general store, on the site of the Boos building, where he carried on business until 1861. In that year he entered the coal business, and was extensively engaged in operating until 1871. He was then elected justice of the peace, which office he held at the time of his death, April 12, 1880.

He was an ardent Democrat and an active and prominent worker in the party. Throughout his long residence in Butler he was a prominent member of the English Lutheran Church, and also took a deep interest in the prosperity of the public schools, being a member of the School Board for a number of years.

Mr. Muntz married Mary B. Negley, a daughter of John Negley, one of the first settlers of Butler, to whom were born five children, viz.: Mary A., wife of the late W. H. H. Fithian; Annie E., and Emeline, both of whom died in infancy; John N. and Catharine R., widow of Judson G. Crane.

John N. Muntz, only son of John G. and Mary B. Muntz, was born in Allegheny City, Penna., reared and educated in Butler, and served an apprenticeship at the printer's trade, which he followed for a few years. In 1872 he commenced operating in coal, which has since been his principal business.

Mr. Muntz was married in 1886 to Mary D., daughter of the late John P. Kramer, of Sewickley, Allegheny County, Penna. They are the parents of three children, viz.: John Philip, Edward Kramer, both deceased; and Richard, who is a student at the University of Pittsburg.

PHILIP S. FENNELLS, who has been engaged in the mercantile business throughout his business career, is postmaster of the village of Fenelton, which was established by his father and derives its name from that of the Fennell family. The family became established here as early as 1830, having come from east of the mountains of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Fennell was born in Clearfield Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, February 22, 1867, and is a son of Peter and Lydia (Schaw) Fennell. Peter, who was a farmer by occupation for many years, settled the town of Fenelton and through his influence a postoffice was established at this point, he becoming the first postmaster. He engaged in the mercantile business and conducted the store until his death on September 5, 1907.

Philip S. Fennell was reared and educated in Clearfield Township, and in addition to the mercantile business has followed farming. He has a valuable farm of fifty-three acres, located on the north side of the Butler Road, just at the edge of Fenelton, and has been to some extent engaged in stock raising. He entered his father's store, and after the latter's death carried on the business in partnership with James Coyle, Jr. The partnership continues at the present time, the firm name being P. S. Fennell & Company, and their store is liberally patronized by the people of the community. Mr. Fennell has efficiently discharged the duties as postmaster, and is a popular official.

He was married to Miss Sarah E. Rieger, a daughter of Henry and Elizabeth (Jeeler) Rieger. Her father was a farmer and the family has always taken a leading part in the affairs of the community. Two children have blessed this union, Floyd R. and Edith Joy. Religiously, the subject of this sketch is a member of the Methodist church, and is one of the stewards. He also is superintendent of the Sabbath School, which has thrived during his incumbency, having at present an enrollment of about 100 members. Fraternally, he was formerly a member of the Royal Arcanum.

EGBERT A. TERWILLIGER, who is one of Allegheny Township's representative citizens, resides on his valuable farm, which contains about 100 acres, on which he carries on general farming and stock-raising. He was born in Clarion County, Pennsylvania, March 14, 1857, and is a son of John and Tena (Elder) Terwilliger.

The parents of Mr. Terwilliger were both born in Clarion County, where the grandfathers were early settlers. The paternal grandfather, Egbert Terwilliger, settled in Perry Township, Clarion County, and was the founder of the family of this name in that section. The parents of Mr. Terwilliger died in Perry Township, the father in 1895. Three of their children still survive, namely: William L., residing in Clarion County; Peter H., also residing in that county; and Egbert A., of Allegheny Township.

Egbert A. Terwilliger obtained his education in the schools of Perry Township and his agricultural training on the father's farm. In 1883 he moved to Allegheny Township, Butler County, settling on the fine property on which he has resided ever since. He has identified himself with public interests here and has served both as auditor and as school director.

On January 4, 1881, Mr. Terwilliger was married to Miss Cora J. Horner, who was born in Clarion County and is a daughter of the late Andrew Horner, formerly a prominent farmer in Perry Township. Mr. and Mrs. Terwilliger have had eight children, the five survivors being: George B., residing in Clarion County; William C., living in Allegheny Township; Roy C., Samuel P. and Florence M., all residing in Allegheny Township. In politics, Mr. Terwilliger is identified with the Democratic party and he takes a somewhat active part in public matters, in so far as good citizenship and public spirit demand. Religiously, he is connected with the Presbyterian Church.

CHARLES TAGGART, who was a well known and respected resident of Brady Township, where he owned property, engaged in farming and for many years followed the carpenter trade, died January 1, 1883. He was born in Slippery Rock Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, in 1855, and was a son of Samuel and Mary (Gilkey) Taggart.

The late Charles Taggart was a member of the One Hundred Thirty-seventh Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, during the Civil War and his record shows that he was a faithful soldier. His one brother, John Taggart, was also a soldier and lost his life in the service. Mr. Taggart was widely known, his business frequently calling him to different parts of the county and his standing both as a business man and as a citizen was high. He left his family amply provided for, there being a farm of fifty acres, which his widow still owns, and twelve acres which she bought in 1892 and where she resides.

Mr. Taggart was married to Miss Lauretta Gordon, who is a daughter of James and Catherine (Pryor) Gordon. James Gordon was born near West Sunbury, Butler County. In his earlier years he engaged in farming but later became proprietor of one of the old landmarks of this section, the Old Stone House, in Brady Township, which he conducted for fourteen years and died there, in 1891. His widow survived until 1898. They had the following children: Armina, deceased, was the wife of Taylor Thompson; Lauretta, who became the wife of Charles Taggart; Adelaide, who married Elmer McGinness and lives at Spokane, Washington; Sarah, who is the wife of Lucas Covert of Grove City; Warren, who is a tool dresser in the oil fields; Salina, who is the wife of John Taggart, of Brady Township; William, deceased; and Viola, who is the wife of Harry Wadsworth, who is the ticket agent at Branchtown, Pennsylvania, for the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Mr. and Mrs. Taggart had two children, Birdie Louisa and Adelaide. Both daughters were given educational advantages and grew into attractive and capable women. The younger daughter carried on a millinery business at Slippery Rock, but has recently sold out and resides with her mother. The older daughter not only graduated with credit from the Butler High School but was particularly proficient in penmanship and won the second prize for the same at the Butler County Fair. She also taught music. She married C. J. Loday and they had one daughter, Gladys, who is in her grandmother's care, as her own mother died in February, 1903. This was a heavy affliction to Mrs. Taggart and in her several bereavements she has had the sympathy of the whole community. Since settling on her present farm she has made a number of improvements. It is a pleasant location for a home, being in the country, while the village of Keister is only a mile distant.

DENNIS L. GALLAGHER, an agriculturist of Clearfield Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, resides on a farm of forty acres about a mile from Coyleville on the Butler Road, and owns another of seventy-five acres on the same road about two miles from the village. He was born in Brookfield, Pennsylvania, in 1842, and is a son of John and Latitia (McLaughlin) Gallagher.

Anthony Gallagher, grandfather of the subject of this sketch, came from Fayette County, Pennsylvania, to Armstrong, Butler County, at an early day and there passed the remainder of his days. His wife's maiden name was McCue. John Gallagher was a prominent farmer of Jefferson Township, Butler County, and served as justice of the peace for more than score of years.

Dennis L. Gallagher was reared on the old home farm and received a preliminary education in the district schools. He attended school at Brookfield, and one year in St. Vincent College, in Westmoreland County. He has a comfortable home and well improved farm property. He has leased his property to oil operators, and has one well now being drilled on the place. He is deeply interested in matters of public welfare and is a progressive citizen.

Mr. Gallagher was united in marriage with Miss Catharine M. Green, a daughter of John and Mary (Connor) Green, her family being a well known one in this section of the county. Religiously, they are devout members of the Catholic church.

JAMES H. STEEN, proprietor of the Steen Creamery, a prosperous enterprise of Butler, was born March 8th, 1863, in Connoquenessing Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of the late William Steen. The father of Mr. Steen was born in Ireland and remained in his own country until he was eighteen years of age, when he emigrated to America and settled in Butler County, Pennsylvania. For many years he engaged in farming and milling, owning property in Connoquenessing Township.

James H. Steen remained on the home farm until he was twenty years of age, securing his education in the schools of his native township. For several years after leaving home he worked as a clerk in a general store at Petersville, where, later, he engaged in a feed and creamery business. This enterprise he continued there until 1904, when he transferred his interests to Butler and established the Steen Creamery in this city, at No. 417 South Main street. The plant is a large one, the business being both wholesale and retail, the products being butter, ice cream and pasteurized milk. Having an experience of fifteen years in this business, Mr. Steen is thoroughly familiar with all its details. Improved machinery is made use of, modern methods are used and sanitary and wholesome conditions prevail. Mr. Steen married (first) Miss Emma Rader, who died in 1893, leaving one child, Willa May. He was married (second), in 1900, to Miss Lavina Marshall, and they have two children, Irene and William Harold.

STEPHEN STOOPS, one of the most highly esteemed older citizens of Allegheny Township, who resides on his valuable farm of 127 acres, on which he settled in 1863, was born at what is now Anandale, Butler County, Pennsylvania, December 16, 1823, and is a son of Philip and Elizabeth (Vanderlin) Stoops.

Both the Stoops and the Vanderlin families were very early settlers in Butler County, Grandfather John Vanderlin locating near what is now Murrinsville, when all that section was covered with timber. Philip Stoops followed farming all his life in Butler County. Four of his children survive, namely: Stephen; Elizabeth, who is the wife of Harry Arnold, of California; Philip, who resides in Clay Township, and Nancy, who was the wife of John Thompson (now deceased), of Concord Township.

Stephen Stoops grew to manhood in Marion Township, Butler County, and has devoted himself to agricultural pursuits in the main, although he has also been engaged in the oil business. Since 1863 he has been identified with the interests of Allegheny Township and here he has done his full duty as a man and citizen. In his political views he is a Republican and on the ticket of that party he has frequently been elected to local office. Mr. Stoops has witnessed many important changes in this section since he settled here, school-houses have been built, churches have increased and the public highways have been vastly improved and all of these matters have come under his consideration and have received close and careful attention.

On April 29, 1852, Mr. Stoops was married to Miss Maria Hilliard, who died July 27, 1891. She was a daughter of Peter and Elizabeth Hilliard, who lived in Washington Township, Butler County. She was a most estimable Christian woman, a sincere member of the Mt. Vernon Presbyterian Church. Her death was a heavy burden to her husband and surviving children, seven in number, as follows: Elizabeth, who is the wife of Morrison Hilliard, of Clay Township; Abigail, who is the wife of Luther M. Starr, of Butler; John, who lives in Fairview Township; Sarah, who is the widow of William Morris, of Washington Township; Emeline, who lives in Allegheny Township; Nancy, who is the wife of W. S. Jamison, of Greene County, and Henry, who lives in Fairview Township. Harriet and Margaret are deceased. Mr. Stoops is a valued member of the Mt. Vernon Presbyterian Church, to which he has always contributed according to his means.

GEORGE IFFT, one of Slippery Rock's prominent farmers, residing on one farm of fifty-two acres, situated three miles south of Harrisville, owns a second farm, containing fifty-eight acres, situated in Franklin Township. He was born in Beaver County, Pennsylvania, August 21, 1836, and is a son of Peter and Elizabeth (Lamb) Ifft. The Ifft family is an old and prominent one in several parts of the United States. A nephew of George Ifft, Hon. George Nicholas Ifft, whose home is in Idaho, is ably representing the United States as consul to Germany.

In 1845 the parents of Mr. Ifft moved from Beaver County to Franklin Township, Butler County, and there he remained on the home farm until he was sixteen years old. After that he worked for about forty years as a blacksmith, learning the trade in Lancaster Township. In 1858, when he was about twenty-one years of age, he went to California, taking the Isthmus of Panama route, and remained there for some thirty years, although during this time he made several visits to his old home. He worked as a blacksmith and also as a gold miner and met with considerable success. In the fall of 1888 he returned to make his permanent home in Butler County and at that time settled on the present farm, where he carries on dairying and general agriculture.

During a visit home, on April 16, 1872, Mr. Ifft was married to Miss Elzira Brannon, who was born in Worth Township, Butler County, but was reared in Franklin Township. Her parents were Thomas and Mary Ann (Reed) Brannon. Mr. and Mrs. Ifft's two children were born in California—George Howard and Charles Adams. The latter owns a farm of 136 acres in Mercer Township, Butler County. He married Miss Eva Hogg and they have the following children: George Eugene, Mary Elizabeth, Arthur Edwin, Edna L., and Valma Elzira. Mr. Ifft and family belong to the United Presbyterian Church. He has taken no active part in local politics but, on account of his broadened views and years of unusual experiences, is often consulted on questions of moment in the township and he has thus often served his fellow citizens.

WILLIAM H. LUSK, formerly a leading member of the bar at Butler, was a type of citizen whose removal from the community is a common loss. He was born at Harmony, Pennsylvania, and was a son of Dr. Amos and Agnes S. (Clow) Lusk, and a grandson of Dr. Loring Lusk.

For several generations the Lusks have been more or less prominent in professional life and identified with the same in Butler and adjacent counties. The grandfather of the late William H. Lusk was born in 1799, in Ontario County, New York. While reading medicine with his brother-in-law at Mercer, Pennsylvania, Loring Lusk was married to Mary Smith. In 1823 he entered upon the practice of medicine at Harmony, Butler County, Pennsylvania, later removing to Beaver County. During the construction of the Pittsburg & Erie Canal he was engaged in contracting, but in 1844 he resumed medical practice at Harmony, where he continued until 1854, when he removed to Lewis County, Missouri. In 1861, at the opening of the Civil War, he accepted the appointment of surgeon of the Twenty-first Regiment, Missouri Volunteer Infantry, and remained in the service for one year. In the meanwhile, his son, Dr. Amos Lusk, had established himself at Zelienople, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and to that place Dr. Loring Lusk retired, embarking in a drug business which he continued to conduct until his demise in 1878.

Dr. Amos Lusk, father of the late William H. Lusk, was born May 31, 1828, at Harmony, Butler County, Pennsylvania. After a thorough preparation he entered upon the practice of medicine in 1849, and in 1854 he received his diploma from the medical department of the Western Reserve College at Cleveland. From 1853 until 1857 he served as surgeon at the United States Marine Hospital at Pittsburg, and then joined his father at Canton, Missouri, where he continued to practice until the opening of the Civil War. He then established himself at Zelienople, in his native county, where he engaged in continuous practice for a period covering thirty years. In addition to his professional responsibility, Dr. Amos Lusk was interested for many years in business. In 1883 he established the firm of Amos Lusk & Son, which was a successful banking firm up to the time of Dr. Lusk's death, following which event the son sold his interest. Dr. Lusk was also justly celebrated as a linguist, having a genius for acquiring command of different tongues than his own. It is said that he studied no less than twenty-five different languages and that he mastered twelve. He married Agnes S. Clow, of Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, and they had six children, namely: William H., James L., Joseph R., Amos M., Mary V. and Julian, all of whom became prominent in the communities where the circumstances of their lives placed them. Dr. Amos Lusk died November 17, 1891. His burial was conducted according to the Masonic ritual, he having been a charter member of Harmony Lodge, F. & A. M.

The late William H. Lusk possessed many of the leading characteristics of his distinguished father, a love of knowledge, a quick perception, a ready sympathy and a generous spirit. He completed his literary education at a local academy and having access to his father's extensive library, he passed many hours in the beneficial enjoyment of its treasures. His tastes led him into the study of law rather than medicine and he prepared for the bar under Attorney W. D. Brandon of Butler and was admitted in the autumn of 1877. His ability was immediately recognized and he enjoyed a substantial patronage up to the time of his death September 5, 1907. Although peculiarly well equipped for public life, he took very little interest in politics, contenting himself with the mere performance of the duties resting upon him as a good citizen. He voted with the Republican party, as had his father.

In 1882, William H. Lusk was united in marriage with Matilda Endres, who survives, residing at her pleasant home No. 234 West Pearl Street. Mrs. Lusk is a daughter of Adam and Elizabeth (Wooster) Endres, who were prominent in Butler and Beaver Counties. Mr. and Mrs. Lusk became the parents of four children, namely: Arthur H., Amy M., James L., and Elizabeth C. Amy M. is the wife of Frank R. Frost, a civil engineer, a government employe, located at Chattanooga, Tennessee. They have one daughter, Amy Lucille. Mrs. Lusk is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

GEORGE WORRALL, treasurer of the Leedom & Worrall Company, wholesale grocers, at Butler, is one of the city's active and enterprising business men. He was born in 1869, in Morgan County, Ohio, where he was educated in the public schools.

When twenty years of age, Mr. Worrall went to Marietta, Ohio, and entered the employ of the wholesale grocery house of Penrose & Simpson, and continued there for ten years, learning the business from the ground up. He then organized the Worrall Grocery Company, in that city, which he managed for three years and then sold out to the Elbridge-Higgins Company, and came to Butler. Finding a promising business field here, he organized the Leedom & Worrall Company, which, in 1904, was incorporated with a capital stock of $150,000, the officers of the same being: Nelson Moore, of Rochester, New York, president; D. H. Sutton, vice president; P. W. Leedom, second vice president; George Worrall, treasurer; and J. H. Leedom, secretary. This is a very large enterprise. The firm has seven men constantly on the road covering all Western Pennsylvania.

In 1893 Mr. Worrall was married to Miss Lillian Leedom and they have one child, Ralph. Mr. and Mrs. Worrall are members of the Congregational Church. In fraternal life he is connected with the Knights of Pythias. His interest in politics is in no way personal, but he lends his influence at all times to forward movements for the preservation of life and property and for the advancement of education and morality.

SILAS H. EVANS, a prominent citizen and successful agriculturist, residing on his valuable farm of 130 acres, situated in Allegheny Township, has also been more or less identified with the oil industry for a number of years. He was born in Delaware Grove, Mercer County, Pennsylvania, June 18, 1848, and is a son of Edward E. and Mary Eliza (Black) Evans.

Edward E. Evans was a son of Thomas Evans and both were born in a southern State. In youth he accompanied his parents to Mercer County, where he lived until 1859. He then came to Butler County and settled in Washington Township, where he engaged in woolen manufacturing, operating what is known as the Hopewell mill, turning out the usual grades of woollens and yarns which were in demand in the neighboring towns and villages and in the lumber districts. He continued his industry into the eighties, his death taking place in 1898, when he was in his eighty-fourth year. He married for his second wife Isabella Black, who is still living, being now in her eighty-eighth year. He was widely known and thoroughly respected all through Washington Township, where he frequently was elected to office and performed every duty of a public-spirited citizen and good man. In his political sentiments he was a Republican. For many years he was an elder in the New Salem Presbyterian Church. Four of his children survive, namely: Silas H.; Joseph T., residing at Bradford; George E., living in Allegheny Township; and Oscar E., living at Beaver, Pennsylvania. Three of his sons who are deceased—Thomas H., Clarence P., and Alfred B.—were soldiers in the Civil War.

Silas H. Evans grew to manhood in Washington Township and was educated in the district schools there and in a school at London, Mercer County. He began to work in his father's mill when he was twelve years old and continued there until he was twenty-one. He did not have a natural leaning toward manufacturing and when he was free he entered the employ of Hon. R. A. Mifflin, who conducted a mercantile business at North Washington, first as a clerk and later as bookkeeper. Mr. Evans continued there for six years and then became bookkeeper for Chambers Scott, a merchant at Fairview, with whom he remained for some years. In 1900, Mr. Evans settled on his present farm in Allegheny Township.

In October, 1878, Mr. Evans was married to Miss Abigail C. Gibson (now deceased), a daughter of the late George G.

Gibson, a former resident of Allegheny Township. Mr. Evans was married, second, to Sarah McMahan, daughter of Geo. McMahan of Parker Township, one of five sisters. Mr. Geo. McMahan celebrated his golden wedding on June 24, 1908, and died June 28, 1908, just four days later. Mr. Evans is a member, as was also his wife, of the New Salem Presbyterian Church, in which he has been an elder for a number of years. In politics he is a Republican. He has always taken an interest in those movements which have promised to be of benefit to his section and is in hearty accord with those supporting good government, temperance, education and morality.

GEORGE N. CHANDLER, owner of 136 acres of farm land, which lies in Slippery Rock Township, about one and one-half miles east of the borough of Slippery Rock, is a representative citizen of this section of Butler County. He was born on a farm in Plain Grove Township, Lawrence County, Pennsylvania, December 2, 1854, and is a son of Samuel T. and Mary Ann (Denniston) Chandler.

Samuel T. Chandler was a native of Vermont and he came to Western Pennsylvania in early manhood and prior to his marriage was a school teacher. Afterward he engaged in farming, and in the spring of 1860, purchased the farm now belonging to his son, George N. He married Mary Ann Denniston and they had eight children, six of whom still survive. Samuel T. Chandler died in 1884 and his widow lived until 1903.

George N. Chandler has resided on his present farm since he was six years old and its excellent condition as to cultivation and improvements, is largely owing to his industry and good management. Mr. Chandler is a general farmer, a man of practical ideas and has few equals in this section in knowledge of general tillage and farm management.

Mr. Chandler has five sisters, namely:

Margaret, who is the widow of J. M. Lawrence; Eliza H., who is the widow of Newton Stevenson; Mary Ellen; Emma F. and Sarah. The two other children, William and an infant, are deceased. Mr. Chandler takes no very active part in politics, but he has always been numbered with the reliable and public-spirited citizens of the township. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. at Slippery Rock.

WALTER EVANS, one of Butler's representative citizens, who is engaged in a general insurance business, with offices in the Bickle Block in this city, was born in 1838, in what is now the borough of Butler, and is a member of one of the old and prominent families of this section. He is a son of A. M. and Ann Eliza (Neyman) Evans.

Both the Evans and Neyman families deserve honorable mention among the pioneer families of Butler County. Capt. Henry Evans, the paternal grandfather, was the founder of his family here, coming in 1800. He subsequently served in the War of 1812, acquiring his military title, and later, in the thirties, he was elected and served as sheriff of Butler County. In many ways he was one of the leading men of his day. He died in 1850, in his seventy-fifth year. His children bore the following names: John, A. M., George W., Hiram J., Permelia, Margaret A., Lydia and Jane. The parents of Mr. Evans are deceased, but his mother lived to the unusual age of ninety-one years, dying in December, 1903.

Walter Evans spent his boyhood on his father's farm and attended the local schools as he had opportunity. From 1864 until 1872 he was interested in the oil business in the Western Pennsylvania fields, and in 1885-6 he engaged in manufacturing in Huron County, Ohio. For eight years he was connected with the Standard Plate Glass Company and since retiring from that association he has been engaged in a general insurance business, handling risks in about a dozen of the oldest and most reliable companies in America.

In 1865 Mr. Evans was married to Miss Joyce Jones, of East Brady's Bend, Armstrong County, and they have three children: George A., Elizabeth and Valeria. George A. Evans was educated in the Butler schools and at Valparaiso, Indiana, and for thirteen years was connected with the Standard Plate Glass Company, after which he went into the insurance business with his father. Both daughters are graduates of the Butler High School and the younger one is a teacher there. The family has always been one of social prominence.

WILLIAM H. CUBBINS, agriculturist and oil producer, is one of Allegheny Township's leading citizens and has resided on his present farm in the northwest corner of the township, since 1880. He was born March 22, 1854, in the Isle of Man, and is a son of Thomas and Eleanor (Kelley) Cubbins, both natives of England.

The father of Mr. Cubbins, who was a sea captain, died when he was five years old and he was reared by his mother, with whom he remained until he was fourteen, at which time he started out to make his own way in the world. Upon the first opportunity offered he emigrated to America and went to Venango County, Pennsylvania, where there was plenty of work to be found in the oil regions. Later he went to Pittsburg and for several years worked for a large oil company in their refining department, during all this time gradually learning details of the business which subsequently made him a successful producer on his own account. In 1877 he came to Troutman, Butler County, where he first engaged in oil production, and in 1880, he settled on his present place in Allegheny Township and has continued his oil enterprises. Mr. Cubbins has been the builder of his own fortunes and has reached his present status of independence by traveling no royal road but rather one marked by constant industry and enterprise, assisted by a natural gift of good judgment. While in Venango Mr. Cubbins had charge of the first glass still that restored sulphuric acid to the same condition that it was in before it had been used for refining oil, so that it could be used over for the same purpose.

Mr. Cubbins married Miss Clara A. Ogden, a daughter of the venerable Joseph M. Ogden, a well known resident of Venango County. They have one daughter, Flossie L., who is a student in the Pennsylvania State Normal School, at Slippery Rock. Mr. and Mrs. Cubbins are members of the Scrub Grass Presbyterian Church. He is a man of pronounced temperance views and lends his influence to all movements in that direction in his neighborhood. In politics, he is a Republican.

W. J. MORRISON, secretary of the Board of Trustees of the Slippery Rock State Normal School, has been identified with this educational body since 1896 and is a representative citizen of the township of Slippery Rock. He was born in the city of Philadelphia, and is a son of John and Hannah (Wallace) Morrison, both of whom he survives.

In his boyhood, Mr. Morrison accompanied his parents to Mercer County, Pennsylvania, and they settled in Liberty Township. He attended the country schools and assisted his father until 1862, when he entered the Federal Army to serve as a soldier in the Civil War then in progress. From Mercer County he enlisted in Company G, One Hundredth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and served until he was honorably discharged in May, 1865. His regiment was a part of the Virginia branch of the general force, commanded for a time by General Burnside, and Mr. Morrison participated in all the battles, marches and dangers that his regiment encountered during those memorable years.

After the close of his military service, Mr. Morrison returned to Liberty Township, where he remained until 1866, when he married and removed then to Slippery Rock Township, where he took charge of the Christley mill, his uncle, Robert McKnight, having been the first operator. Mr. Morrison ran the mill for two years and then moved to a farm in Plain Grove Township, Lawrence County, where he lived three years before coming to his present farm, in 1871. Here he owns 180 acres of valuable land, favorably located near Keisters, on which he carries on general farming and dairying.

Mr. Morrison has six children: Bessie, who is the wife of J. S. Keister; Annie T. who is the wife of John Lincoln; Mary L., who is the wife of Cyrus Maybury; William W.; Eugene Floyd, and John B., who lives in Allegheny. In politics, Mr. Morrison is a staunch Republican and on the party ticket was elected justice of the peace, in which office he served most acceptably for three years. He is a member and liberal supporter of the Presbyterian Church.

WILLIAM G. DOUTHETT, a member of the enterprising firm of Douthett & Graham, proprietors of the largest clothing and gents' furnishing goods establishment in the city of Butler, is also identified with other enterprises which serve to make his business standing one of large importance. He was born in Forward Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, March 20, 1862.

Mr. Douthett was reared on his father's farm and when sixteen years of age assumed its management and successfully conducted it until January, 1891. At that time he moved to Butler, where he carried on a livery business until August 1, 1892, when he sold his interests in that line. In March, 1893, he embarked in the clothing business, in partnership with Hart W. F. Graham, establishing the present firm and adopting the firm name of Douthett & Graham. The business is favorably located on the corner of Main and Cunningham Streets and the complete, carefully selected and up-to-date stock attracts the patronage of the most fastidious trade in the city. Mr. Douthett has numerous other business interests. He is vice-president and a large stockholder in the Guaranty Safe Deposit and Trust Company. For the past five years he has been engaged in producing oil, through wise investment and excellent management making a success of the industry. At the present time the daily production of the oil and gas wells in which he is interested is very large.

Although his personal interests require a large proportion of his time, Mr. Douthett finds opportunity to prove himself a good citizen and well-rounded man. He is now serving as a member of the school board and has served several terms as president of the Butler Board of Trade and the city is largely indebted to him and his public-spirited activity for the locating here of the factories which have served to add so much to the city's prosperity. Liberal himself, he has the faculty of interesting others in movements promising to benefit the community, and the city has no more useful or thoroughly representative citizen.

Mr. Douthett married Sarah C. Bartley, a daughter of Williamson Bartley of Penn Township. They have four children: Jennie B., Elizabeth B., William G. Jr., and Kathryn B. The family residence is at No. 415 West Jefferson Street, Butler.

Mr. Douthett has been active in church work for many years. He is a member of the United Presbyterian Church, president of its board of trustees and assistant superintendent of the Sunday-school, in which he has been a teacher since the age of twenty-seven years. At present he enjoys the honor of filling the office of financial agent of the Butler Presbytery, an office that requires the ability of a practical business man but is seldom filled by a layman. He has had the satisfaction of being able to prove that in the past year, under his management, the quota of congregations that have met the requirements of the Presbytery, has been double that of previous years. In politics he is a Republican.

JOSIAH D. McKEE, whose valuable farm of 100 acres is favorably situated in Allegheny Township, is one of the esteemed and representative men of Butler County, Pennsylvania. He was born on this farm, March 23, 1846, and is the only surviving child of his parents, John and Jane (Crawford) McKee.

The parents of Mr. McKee both died in Allegheny Township. The father had settled on the present home farm when it was yet in an undeveloped condition and spent his entire life here. He was a man of standing in his community, at various times held local positions of trust, gave liberal support to the cause of education and for many years was an elder in the Scrub Grass Presbyterian Church.

Josiah D. McKee attended school at Six Points, in his boyhood, where he had such advantages as were then offered. His life has been devoted to farming and stock raising and to maintaining the status of a broad-minded, public-spirited man and useful citizen. He married Miss Jennie R. Steirly, who was born in London, England, and is a daughter of James Christian Steirly, who is a resident of Oil City. Mr. and Mrs. McKee have four children: John Clyde, who married Myrna Gordon in November, 1906; Ethel M., George Earl and Ralph Crawford. In his political views he is a Republican and under a former law he served for a time as director of the township poor farm.

N. S. SNOW, who is engaged in a general contracting business at Butler, has been a resident of this city for some twenty-two years and is numbered with the substantial and representative citizens. He was born at Brady's Bend, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, February 10, 1869.

In his childhood, Mr. Snow was brought to Butler County and he lived on a farm until he was fifteen years old, in the meanwhile obtaining a good common school education. He then began to work as a teamster and for three years was engaged at Chicora, and from there came to Butler, where he learned the carpenter trade. He has been engaged in work in that line ever since and for the past five years has been doing general contract work. He is one of the stockholders in the Butler Building & Loan Association. Among the many fine residences which he has erected in this city is his own, which stands at No. 402 East Penn Street, which he completed in 1907. He owns other real estate in the same part of the town. While not a politician, he takes an intelligent and thoughtful man's interest in public affairs and gives due attention to the issues of the day.

In 1893 Mr. Snow was married to Miss Grace Minster, of St. Joe, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and they have four children: Arthur, Hazel, Kenneth and Jeanetta. With his family, Mr. Snow belongs to St. Paul's Catholic Church. He is identified with the fraternal order of Woodmen of the World, and has belonged to the Volunteer Fire Department of Butler for the past seventeen years.

ADAM H. RENICK, one of the leading and influential farmers of Slippery Rock Township, and owner of a fine farm of 180 acres, was born in the southern part of this township in 1866, and is a representative of one of the pioneer families of this county. He is the son of William and Caroline (Snyder) Renick, and a grandson of David Renick, both natives of Germany. William Renick was but nine years old when he came to this country with his father, who settled for a time in Saxonburg. William was a blacksmith by trade and during the early fifties came to Slippery Rock Township and worked at his trade here until 1870, after which he devoted his time to agricultural pursuits until his death, which occurred July 17, 1901. He was united in marriage with Caroline Snyder, who came to this country with her parents when one year old, her birth having occurred in Germany, February 22, 1830. She is still living and makes her home with our subject. Eight children were born to William and Caroline Renick: Jacob G., a sketch of whom is also found in this work; Daniel; Louisa, deceased wife of Fred Doerr; George W.; Margaret, wife of A. M. Hall; Adam H., our subject; Frederick; and Charles, a resident of Erie County, Pennsylvania.

Adam H. Renick was reared and educated in Slippery Rock Township and has made farming his principal occupation during the greater part of his life. During his early manhood he was engaged for a time as a clerk for the Pearson Bros. Clothing Company of New Castle. His farm, upon which he now resides, is located about three miles east of the village of Slippery Rock on the Pittsburg-Franklin Pike. He has two gas wells and one oil well in operation and is one of the enterprising and highly respected farmers of the township. Mr. Renick was joined in marriage with Clara Wimer, a daughter of Finley Wimer.

WILLIAM MCGINNIS, who resides on his well-improved farm of 100 acres, which is situated in Allegheny Township, is a representative citizen of this section of Butler County. He was born in Venango County, Pennsylvania, March 2, 1838, and is a son of James J. and Christie A. (Russell) McGinnis.

James J. McGinnis, father of William, was born in Northumberland County, Pennsylvania, and in early manhood moved to Clarion County, and acquired a farm of 100 acres, in Richland Township. Later in life he moved to Venango County, where he owned a farm of fifty acres, in Scrub Grass Township. His surviving children are: William; John W., residing in Allegheny Township; and James B. and Johnston, both residing in Scrub Grass Township, Venango County. The maternal grandfather of this family was Samuel Russell, an early pioneer in Butler County.

William McGinnis attended the early subscription schools in Scrub Grass Township, not having the opportunity to enjoy the advantages which the children of the present day have almost forced upon them. He was trained to be a farmer and has followed agricultural pursuits very closely through life. In the fall of 1872 he settled on the farm which he now occupies, one which, under his excellent management, is counted as one of the best in the township.

On March 19, 1863, Mr. McGinnis was married to Miss Martha J. Russell, who was born in Concord Township, Butler County, a daughter of David and Martha (Cubbison) Russell, and they have the following children: David Z., residing in Allegheny Township; Joseph R., living in Iowa; James C., farming in Allegheny Township; Mary, wife of George Morris, of Adams Township; Martha E., widow of Reuben Douglass, of Venango County; Christie A., wife of Sherman Been, of Allegheny Township; Idella, wife of Rev. Willis McNeill, of Kansas; and Eliza J., residing at home. Mr. McGinnis is a member of the Associate Presbyterian Church, at Eau Claire, in which he is an elder. In his political preference he is a Prohibitionist. Mr. McGinnis enjoys the respect and confidence of his fellow citizens, among whom so many years of his life have been usefully spent.

GEORGE E. HOWARD, treasurer and manager of the Butler Brick & Tile Company, of Butler, is an engineer by profession and has been a resident of this city for twenty years. He was born at Cuyahoga Falls, Summit County, Ohio, December 21, 1871.

In his native State, Mr. Howard attended first the local schools, later Buchtel College, at Akron, and then entered Cornell University, where he was graduated in 1893, with his degree of M. E. He found his first promising business opening at Butler and for eight years was in the employ of the Standard Plate Glass Company of this city, going from there to Saginaw, Michigan. There he built the Saginaw Plate Glass Company's plant, which he managed until 1903, when he returned to Butler and bought out the controlling interest in the Butler Brick & Tile Works, of which he has served as general manager ever since. He is not idle professionally, having many calls as consulting engineer.

In 1901 Mr. Howard was married to Miss Jean Campbell, a daughter of T. C. Campbell, and they have two children—Juliette Campbell and George Edwin. Mr. Howard is a member of St. Peter's Episcopal Church and is the leader of the church choir. His interest in public affairs does not lead him to be active politically, but he is a representative of that educated, thoughtful class, whose residence in any community is for its betterment.

DAVID T. BENNETT, of Allegheny Township, residing on his excellent farm of 100 acres, is a well-known, popular and reliable citizen of this section, where, for many years, he has also been identified with the oil industry. He was born in Indiana County, Pennsylvania, July 18,

W. H. H. RIDDLE

1861, and is a son of Elijah and Elizabeth J. (Sherman) Bennett.

The father of Mr. Bennett was a native also of Indiana County, while the mother came from an old settled family of Juniata County. In 1865 they moved to Wisconsin and four years later to Parker's Landing, Butler County, where Elijah Bennett engaged for a time in the oil business. For a short time he resided in Allegheny Township. He has been deceased for some years but his widow, now in her seventieth year, still survives and resides at Hillsdale, Michigan.

David T. Bennett was eight years old when his parents came to Parker's Landing and he attended school there for some years, but since he was twelve years old he has been more or less identified with the oil industry and at present makes oil drilling his leading interest. Mr. Bennett married Miss Aurilla S. Bell, who was born in Perry Township, Clarion County, Pennsylvania, a daughter of the late James Bell. Mr. and Mrs. Bennett have five children, namely: David T., Jr., Edna B., Grace, Elmer P. and William L. Mr. Bennett and wife are members of the Presbyterian Church. In politics he is a Democrat.

W. H. H. RIDDLE, a well known and successful attorney of Butler, who is also prominently connected with the agricultural interests of the county, was born in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, December 11, 1840, and is a son of Samuel L. and Mary A. (Schroder) Riddle.

Samuel L. Riddle, father of W. H. H., settled in Fairview Township, Butler County, in 1854, and for a quarter of a century was engaged there in agricultural pursuits. He then returned to Allegheny County, where the rest of his life was spent.

W. H. H. Riddle, after beginning his education in the public schools, attended successively the academies at Sunbury and Harrisville. He then pursued the study of law under the direction of Col. John M. Thompson, and was admitted to the bar in 1864. In the following year he was elected district attorney, in which office he served with credit. He has since continued in the practice of his profession and has built up a profitable clientele. At times he has taken part in public affairs, and in 1884 was a delegate to the Republican National Convention at Chicago, which nominated Blaine and Logan. Mr. Riddle takes a strong interest in agriculture and has done much in a practical way for its scientific development in this country. He was one of the founders of the Butler Agricultural Association. All the Farmers' Institutes that have been held in Butler County, under the supervision of the State Board of Agriculture, and later under the Department of Agriculture to the present date, have been managed by Mr. Riddle. Mr. Riddle has long been a helpful member of the State Agricultural Society.

On February 18, 1862, Mr. Riddle was married to Angeline Walker, whose father, Robert Walker, was one of the early settlers in the northern part of Butler County. Of this marriage there have been three children: Edwin S., an attorney at law and a court stenographer; and Matilda and Lillian. Mrs. Riddle died March 13, 1905. Mr. Riddle was married (second) July 2, 1908, to Mrs. Jennie (Ayres) Graham, widow of Robert Graham of Etna, Penna. All the members of the family occupy the old family home, a beautiful residence at No. 224 East Fulton Street, Butler.

LEWIS C. SANKEY, a native of Butler County, Pennsylvania, was born on his present farm in Slippery Rock Township, November 4, 1859, and is one of the highly respected agriculturists of the township. He is a son of Thomas and Jemima (Keister) Sankey, also natives of Butler County, the former having died in 1905 on our subject's farm, which he purchased and farmed for many years during his active business career. The mother of the subject of this sketch is still living and resides with her son. The following children were born to Thomas and Jemima Sankey: Mary, wife of Cass Wigton of Branchton, Pennsylvania; Anna, wife of Frank Hine-man of Troutman, Butler County, Pennsylvania; William, a farmer of Slippery Rock Township; Lewis C., the subject of this sketch; Margaret, widow of Thomas McElvey; Adeline died at the age of twenty-two years.

Lewis C. Sankey has always resided on his present farm and has made farming his life occupation. His farm, consisting of eighty-three acres, is well improved and highly cultivated and he has one gas well and one oil well, both in operation. The large frame house in which Mr. Sankey resides was built by his father in 1884.

Mr. Sankey was joined in the holy bonds of wedlock with Laura Porter, who was reared in Marion Township, this county, and is a daughter of John and Martha Porter. Mr. and Mrs. Sankey are the parents of the following children: Clair, William, Péarl, Frederick, Martha, and Clara. In fraternal circles Mr. Sankey is affiliated with the Junior Order of American Mechanics.

WILLIAM L. BENNETT, one of Allegheny Township's prominent and substantial citizens, who has been engaged for a number of years in oil-well drilling and contracting, resides on his valuable farm of 150 acres, which is located near Six Points, Butler County. He was born in Indiana County, Pennsylvania, July 2, 1859, and is a son of Elijah N. and Elizabeth (Sherman) Bennett.

The father of Mr. Bennett was born in Indiana County and died in Butler County. The mother was born in Juniata County and resides at Hillsdale, Michigan. In 1865 they moved to Wisconsin and in 1869 to Parker's Landing, Butler County, Pennsylvania, where Elijah N. Bennett engaged in oil production.

William L. Bennett attended school at Parker's Landing. In the spring of 1879 he left Butler County and went to Colorado, spending four years in the far West before he returned to Pennsylvania. He engaged for a time in oil producing in McKean County, and later visited the oil regions in various States, finally returning to Butler County and in 1895 he settled on his present valuable farm. He has had experience in the oil industry from his youth and few men in the business in this section are better qualified or better informed concerning this great industry. For some years he has been engaged in contracting and drilling.

Mr. Bennett was married to Miss Florence B. Whited, who was born in Jackson County, Ohio, a daughter of Joseph Whited, now a resident of White Bluff, Tennessee. Mr. and Mrs. Bennett are members of the Presbyterian Church, of which he has been a trustee. In his political views he is a Republican. At different times he has consented to accept political office and has served as constable in Allegheny Township and at present is serving as a highway commissioner. He enjoys the confidence and commands the respect of his fellow citizens with whom he has had personal and business relations for so many years.

HARRY T. TURNER, a representative citizen of Butler, an engineer by profession and formerly president of the Etna Manufacturing Company of this city, was born in 1864, in England, and when five years old was brought to America, son of Henry and Emily (Overy) Turner.

The parents of Mr. Turner located first at Petroleum Center, on Oil Creek, moving later to Parker's Landing and subsequently to other oil fields in the state, so that the boy almost grew up in the oil business. When he came first to Butler, he became an employe at the electric light plant and remained there for twelve years and during a large part of that time was the chief engineer of the works. Later he became interested in the Etna Manufacturing Company and in the course of events was elected president of that corporation and served in that capacity until 1908, when he sold his interest. He has an enviable record back of him of business integrity and unusual business ability. Like many men of present fortune, he overcame many early obstacles and through his own efforts won his place in the business world.

On March 5, 1890, Mr. Turner was married to Miss Lizzie A. Kauerer and they have four children—Irene, Eliza, Vernon and Harry. Mr. Turner is an official member of Grace Lutheran Church. In fraternal life he is identified with the Maccabees and the Knights of Pythias.

SHERIDAN C. KARNS, one of Allegheny Township's best known citizens, has been engaged in the coal industry for the past thirty-five years and has been a resident of this township since he was ten years old. He was born at Emlenton, Venango County, Pennsylvania, December 2, 1848, and is a son of William K. and Sarah (Perry) Karns.

William K. Karns was born in Butler County, Pennsylvania, and died in 1901. He followed shoe-making and also conducted a hotel at Emlenton, for a number of years, and then removed to Allegheny Township, Butler County, where he resided for a quarter of a century.

Sheridan C. Karns attended school first at Emlenton and then in Allegheny Township, but early in life began to depend upon his own efforts, being one of the men who have prospered in spite of early drawbacks. He has been a man of business prominence in Allegheny Township for many years, his main interest being dealing in coal and in this connection he is known all over Butler County.

Mr. Karns was married (first) to Miss Jane Jones, who left three children, namely: Jesse P., Charles M. and Della, who is the wife of William Shakely. Mr. Karns was married (second) to Miss Margaret Beals, and they had two children, Melville E. and Irene. He was married to his present wife, Miss Ellen J. Joseph, and they have six children, as follows: Edward C., Clarence, Laura M., William T., Newton and Sadie. In politics, Mr. Karns is a Republican, but he is no politician, choosing rather to devote all his attention to his business. He is a member of Emlenton Lodge No. 644, Odd Fellows, and to Tent No. 111, Knights of Maccabees, also at Emlenton.

AMOS HALL, a leading citizen of Branchton, where he conducts a general store and owns a large amount of valuable property, was born on the old Hall home place in Clay Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, near Halston, April 6, 1840. His parents were Jesse and Mary (Alexander) Hall.

Jesse Hall was born in Cecil County, Maryland, and lived there through his educational period and until he married and had six children, when he came to Butler County, in 1837. Mr. Hall settled on the tract since known as the Hall homestead, containing 540 acres situated about equally in four townships—Clay, Brady, Cherry and Slippery Rock. Mr. Hall and his wife both spent their remaining years on that farm.

Amos Hall grew to manhood in Clay Township, attended the country schools and engaged in farming until he enlisted for service in the Civil War. In May, 1862, he entered Company F, One Hundred Thirty-fourth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and served in the Army of the Potomac for a period that covered ten months, during this time taking part in the battle of Chancellorsville. He was a brave and cheerful soldier, performing every required duty and was honorably discharged and mustered out at Harrisburg. He then went to work at the carpenter trade at Franklin, Pennsylvania, and after his marriage, in 1868, he settled for a year on his father-in-law's farm in Clay Township. From there Mr. Hall then returned to the old homestead, where he remained for twenty years and then came to Branchton. He still owns 100 acres of that part of the old farm lying in Clay Township.

In April, 1889, Mr. Hall opened his general store at Branchton, which he has conducted ever since, with the exception of three years, when W. J. Hindman was proprietor, Mr. Hall leasing his building for that time and selling his stock. At the end of the lease, Mr. Hall re-entered business, and in August, 1903, he erected his present substantial cement block, a two-story building, 22 by 60 feet in dimensions, where he carries a very large stock of carefully selected goods, bought with the especial view of meeting the wants of the surrounding country from which comes a heavy trade. For four years he was postmaster of the village. He owns a handsome residence and other improved property.

In 1868 Mr. Hall was married to Miss Angeline Francina Allen, who is a daughter of Ephraim and Margaret (Allen) Allen. Mrs. Hall was born near Muddy Creek Church, in what was then Center, but is now Clay Township, Butler County. To this marriage were born five children, namely: Mary Eva, who married David E. Stevenson, of Bremen, Ohio, has two children—Harold Paul and Gladys Olive; Jesse Allen, who is a railroad man; Charles Linus, who died aged eleven years; Maud, and Bertha Leora, who married Clifford M. Newell, has two children—Dorothy Evelyn and Alice Lucile. Mr. and Mrs. Hall are members of the Metho-

JOHN C. WILLIAMS, member of the well known firm of Williams & Son, oil producers, has been a resident of Scrub Grass Township, Venango County, Pennsylvania, since 1894. He was born near Kittanning, in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, November 19, 1852, and is a son of Jacob and Sarah (Heasley) Williams, and a grandson of those well known old pioneers, Jacob Williams and Henry Heasley.

John C. Williams obtained his education in the district schools of Armstrong County and assisted on his father's farm until he was about twenty-four years of age, when he came to the oil fields at Petrolia and secured work there. After several years in that section he went to the Venango County fields, where he became an oil producer, in Scrub Grass Township, and later went to the northern part of Allegheny Township, Butler County, where he found excellent business encouragement and remained as an oil producer for ten years. From there he then came to his present location in Scrub Grass Township and continues in the oil business, having his son, Edwin M., as a partner. The firm of Williams & Son is known all through the oil territory and the name stands both for business success and for reliability.

On September 3, 1870, Mr. Williams was married to Miss Marinda E. Bish, of Madison Township, Armstrong County, a daughter of Samuel Bish, who was a very prominent citizen of that county. Mr. and Mrs. Williams have three children, two sons and one daughter: Edwin M., Dana C. and Leonora M. Edwin M. is assistant principal of the Emlenton High School and is a graduate of the Pennsylvania State Normal School at Clarion, Pennsylvania. Dana C. is a graduate of the State Normal

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM B. McGEARY

School at Clarion and also of the Rochester Business College and is now conducting a drug store at Wampum, Pennsylvania. The only daughter is the wife of Dr. F. F. Urey, a prominent physician of New Castle. Mrs. Urey is a graduate of the musical department of Grove City College.

In politics, Mr. Williams is affiliated with the Democratic party. He belongs to the Maccabees and the Modern Woodmen of America, being connected with the Emlenton lodges. His venerable father still survives, residing in Madison Township, Armstrong County, in his eighty-eighth year, but his mother passed away when he was only three years old.

WILLIAM B. McGEARY, one of Butler's enterprising business men, whose interests have been largely centered here for the past twenty years, was born in 1858, at Millerstown, in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania. In infancy his parents removed to Lawrence County, and in 1865 they moved on a farm in Muddy Creek Township, Butler County, not far from Portersville.

Mr. McGeary attended the public schools of Muddy Creek Township and spent enough of his youth on the farm to make him thoroughly acquainted with its management. In 1878 he was appointed mail carrier and continued to serve the Government in this office until 1882, when he engaged in the mill business and was connected with flour mills at Prospect for five years. From Prospect, Mr. McGeary came to Butler and conducted the West End Grocery Store for two years, for two years longer was with the firm of H. J. Klingler & Company, and then went into business for himself. In 1894 he established a water plant at the corner of Fifth Avenue and Homewood Avenue, and from two artesian wells he supplies about 100 residences. This enterprise is his main interest, although he has others, one of them being the shipping of draft horses from Iowa, in which he has been concerned since 1900. He has proved himself a good citizen, reliable and useful, reflecting credit upon his father, who, in his day, was one of the leading citizens and for over thirty years a justice of the peace in Muddy Creek Township. The last years of the latter's life were spent in Butler, where he died in 1907. William B. McGeary has served as an efficient member of the city council of Butler and has consistently displayed a good citizen's interest in civic affairs.

In 1881 Mr. McGeary was married to Miss Mary E. Jones, who is a daughter of Samuel Jones, of Muddy Creek Township. For some thirty years he has been identified with the Odd Fellows. He and his wife are members of the First Presbyterian Church at Butler.

ERNEST J. DODDS, oil producer, operating in the Butler County fields, is a well known business man of Butler, of which city he has been a resident for some seventeen years. He was born in Scioto County, Ohio, April 13, 1866, son of Joseph B. and Mary (Dodds) Dodds.

Joseph B. Dodds was a soldier in the Civil War and served in an Ohio regiment. He died shortly after returning from the service.

Mr. Dodds was not more than two years old when his parents moved to Butler County. They settled near Prospect and there E. J. grew to manhood. He was educated in the township schools and at Grove City College. Ever since leaving school he has been interested in the oil industry and is particularly well known in the Butler fields. In 1891 Mr. Dodds was married to Miss Melissa Snodgrass, a daughter of John Snodgrass, of one of the old settled families of Butler County. They have one son, Kenneth. Mr. and Mrs. Dodds are members of the United Presbyterian Church.

CLARK W. HOON, whose valuable farm of 110 acres is situated in Oakland Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, was born on this farm on September 24, 1863, and is a son of Anthony and Mary Ann (Beatty) Hoon.

Anthony Hoon was born at Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, in 1817, and was one year old when his parents came to Butler County. His father, Henry Hoon, settled in Oakland Township in 1818, and the land has remained in the possession of his descendants. Anthony Hoon spent his life as a farmer, in Oakland Township, where he died in 1900. He married (first) Martha Black and (second) Mary Ann Beatty, who died in 1897. She was born in Ireland, a daughter of Hugh Beatty, who brought his family to this section in her girlhood.

Clark W. Hoon was reared on his present farm, which is a part of the original tract secured by his grandfather. Since leaving school he has devoted himself to farming and to following the butchering business, in the winter seasons, being associated in the latter industry with his brother, William T. Hoon. Mr. Hoon's farm is well improved, the comfortable residence having been built by his father in 1867, and in 1895, with his father, Clark W. built the substantial barn.

Mr. Hoon married Emily Patton, who was reared in Oakland Township and is a daughter of John Patton. Mr. and Mrs. Hoon have five children—Marie, Harriet, Ruth, Alice and Harold. The family belongs to the United Presbyterian Church at Butler. Politically, Mr. Hoon is a Democrat and has frequently been elected to township offices. The Hoons have always been numbered with Oakland Township's best citizens.

DAVID E. DALE, of the prominent real estate firm of Abrams & Dale, at Butler, extensive dealers in real estate and leading fire insurance men, has been a resident of this city since 1876. He was born in Slippery Rock Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, April 18, 1862, and is a son of the late Rev. Abner Dale.

Rev. Abner Dale was born in Center County, Pennsylvania, at Dale's Mills, and settled in Fairview Township, Butler County, in 1858. He died June 16, 1875. He was a well-known man and for many years was a minister in the German Reformed Church.

David E. Dale was reared in Mercer and Butler Counties and was educated in the Butler public schools, Witherspoon Academy and Thiel College. For seven years he served the county as deputy registrar and recorder and then embarked in a mercantile business, in 1890 being elected registrar and recorder of Butler County. He served officially during 1891, 1892 and 1893, in the meanwhile continuing his mercantile interests, this business being conducted under the firm name of Colbert & Dale, and continued until May, 1898. Since that date he has been a member of the firm of Abrams & Dale, real estate and fire insurance, with offices in the Younkins Building.

On October 7, 1891, Mr. Dale was married to Miss Mary Wick, who is a daughter of the late Alfred Wick, one of the old residents of Butler County. They have two children: Sarah and David E. Mr. and Mrs. Dale are members of the First Presbyterian Church at Butler. He is prominent in fraternal circles, belonging to the Masons, the Odd Fellows, the Knights of Pythias, the Maccabees, the Odd Fellows' Club and the Country Club. He was sent as the grand representative from the Grand Encampment (Odd Fellows) of Pennsylvania to the Sovereign Grand Lodge and attended the late meeting of the organization held at Denver, Colorado.

State Road about three miles southeast of Coyleville, in the extreme southeast corner of Clearfield Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania. He was born in this township, about one and a half miles from his present farm, December 8, 1834, and is a son of William and Anna (O'Donnell) Magee, and grandson of John and Cecelia Magee. John Magee came to this country from County Donegal, Ireland, and settled on what was thereafter known as the Magee homestead in Clearfield Township, Butler County, Penna. Here he lived in pioneer fashion, in a log cabin, and devoted his energy to the clearing of his farm. William Magee, father of the subject of this sketch, was reared on the home farm and followed the trade of a carpenter in addition to farming.

William A. Magee was reared in Clearfield Township and there attended the district schools. During the Civil War he served two years in the Union army and saw much hard fighting. He enlisted July 15, 1863, at Pittsburg, in Company A, Sixty-second Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and thereafter served in Company F of the One Hundred and Fifty-fifth Regiment, and Company G of the One Hundred and Ninety-first Regiment. He was in the Army of the Potomac. Of the soldiers of that war now living in his vicinity, he is the oldest. At the close of the war he returned to the farm and has followed farming ever since. He has a good farm, well developed and improved, and under a high state of cultivation.

February 25, 1868, Mr. Magee was united in marriage with Miss Margaret McClafferty, a daughter of William and Sarah (McKinley) McClafferty, she coming of one of the leading families of the vicinity. They have a son, William S., who is a carpenter by trade, an oil operator and a farmer; he was married to Mary McBride and they had four children, the two oldest of whom died in infancy. The third, William A., also is deceased, and the youngest,

Mary Margaret, is the only one of the children living. Religiously, Mr. Magee and his family are members of the St. John's Catholic Church. He at one time served as school director in this township, and has always given enthusiastic support to such measures as tended to benefit the community.

GOTTLIEB M. ZEIGLER, an influential farmer and highly respected citizen of Jackson Township, residing on a fine farm of 165 acres, was born September 27, 1855, on his present farm and is a son of David and Catherine (Musselman) Zeigler.

Abram Zeigler, grandfather of our subject, came to Butler County from the eastern part of Pennsylvania, and purchased all of the holdings of the Economites, which land he afterwards sold in small tracts, retaining a large farm, which is now owned by our subject. His death occurred here after reaching advanced years. David Zeigler was born in Pennsylvania east of the Alleghenies, and when young came to Butler County with his parents. Here he was reared and spent his entire life engaged in farming. He married Catherine Musselman, who died at the age of seventy-six years. To them was born a family of twelve children: Abram, married Sarah McTeer and resided near Evans City; Henry, a resident of Zelenople, married Mary Sechler; David married Elizabeth Stauffer and resides in Zelenople; Elizabeth, widow of Louis Shiever, resides on the farm with our subject; Gottlieb, subject of this sketch; Anna, deceased; Catherine; Rebecca; Reuben, twin to Gottlieb; Joseph, deceased, and two who died unnamed. David Zeigler died at the age of seventy-eight years.

Gottlieb Zeigler was reared on his present farm and attended the common schools of Harmony and Zelenople, after which he engaged in farming on his present farm, which is part of the original tract purchased by his grandmother. He is one of the successful and progressive residents of Jackson Township and has always taken an active interest in those things which tend toward the advancement of this community. He is a Republican in politics, and is fraternally a member of the Knights of Pythias of Harmony. The religious connection of the family is with the English Lutheran Church of Zelienople.

Mr. Zeigler was united in marriage with Ida Randolph, a daughter of Squire Randolph of Zelienople. Four children were born to subject and wife: Walter; Clarence; Virginia; and Emma, who married Walter Zehner of Zelienople.

EDWARD E. WIEGAND, general contractor at Butler, has been a resident of this city for a period covering thirty-five years. He was born in Germany, in 1849, but has belonged to the United States since 1867.

Although Mr. Wiegand was but eighteen years of age when he came to America, he had a common-school education and had provided himself with a self-supporting trade, having learned that of cabinet maker in his native place. He found his first home in Forest County, Pennsylvania, where he worked as a cabinet maker and builder, following the same later at Titusville and Warren, where he also became interested in oil. He came to Butler in 1873 and soon engaged in general contracting and building, which occupation he has since followed. For about seven years he was associated with George McJunkin. For a number of years Mr. Wiegand has had limited oil, coal and real-estate interests, in and around Butler.

In 1875 Mr. Wiegand was married to Miss Margaret Kulp, who was born in Germany, but had long resided in Butler. They had two sons born to them, both surviving: Frederick A., who is associated with his father in the general contracting business, married Miss Julia Storey, and Frantz L., who is with the Oil Well Supply Company, of Butler. He married Miss Augusta Krug. Mr. Wiegand has been an active and useful citizen and has served in the City Council and also on the Board of Health. He is a member of the English Lutheran Church.

WILLIAM SLATER, one of Summit Township's representative citizens and for many years an active farmer, resides on his estate of fifty acres, which is situated at Carbon Center. He was born on this farm, June 10, 1832, and is a son of Jacob and Mary (Reintzel) Slater.

Jacob Slater was born near St. Joseph's Station, in Butler County, Pennsylvania, and was a son of John Slater, who came to this section from east of the Allegheny Mountains. Jacob Slater, with three of his brothers, served in the War of 1812. He came from the war to what is now Summit Township, where he bought 160 acres of land just east of Carbon Center, and settled on it in 1814. Here both he and his wife spent their remaining years. Of their family of eleven children only two remain, Mary, who is the widow of William Kiley, and William, of Summit Township.

With the exception of one year when Mr. Slater was in the army, during the Civil War, he has been a continuous resident on his present farm. After many years of activity here he has practically retired. He has an honorable war record. On September 13, 1864, he enlisted at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, in Company G, One Hundred and Seventh Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, in which he served until he received his honorable discharge, in the following June, on account of the closing of the war. He saw some desperate service and took part in a number of skirmishes and in three battles, including the two days of fighting at Hatcher's Run. After his return he resumed farming and that continued to be his business.

W. H. GOEHRING

Mr. Slater was married (first) to Susan Benson, and they had nine children, namely: Ellen Jane, widow of William Frey; Louis; James; William, deceased; Susan, wife of James McCray; Mary, wife of John Shopne; and Joseph, Benjamin and Augustus. The mother of this family died in 1890. Mr. Slater was married (second) to Mrs. Eva Kealing, a widow. They are members of the Catholic Church in Oakland Township, Butler County.

W. H. GOEHRING, senior member of the wholesale fruit and produce firm of Goehring & Richards, of Butler, has been a resident of this city for twenty-four years and is thoroughly identified with its business and other interests. He was born in 1864, at Freeport, Pennsylvania.

Mr. Goehring continued to reside in his native place until 1877. His boyhood was one of more or less hardship and from the age of eleven years he enjoyed no school advantages. At that time he was put to work in the old boat yards at Freeport, where coal barges were built. After leaving what was a distasteful position, he became a newsboy and still later went to work for the Pittsburg & Western Railroad (which later became the B. & O.), first as newsboy on the train and later as a brakeman on the line between Etna and Wurtemberg, which had not yet been completed as far as Allegheny. Following his career for the next eight years, it is found that he remained for that period in railroad work, in the meanwhile having been frequently promoted. When he retired from railroading he was occupying the position of extra passenger conductor, and had the honor of running the first standard gauge baggage car on the New Castle Division. Before leaving the railroad he had already become interested in the wholesale fruit and produce business and established himself at Butler, after a short period of residence at Zelenople. He conducted that business unaided for twenty-two years, doing his best and reaping satisfactory rewards for his efforts. Increasing demands with the extension of his trade led to his admission of A. C. Richards, a faithful employe, to partnership, in 1906, at which time the present firm name was adopted. This firm is the leading one at Butler dealing at wholesale in fruit and produce, handling and shipping and dealing all over the country.

In 1883 Mr. Goehring was married to Miss Katherine Shaffer, who was born at Harmony, Butler County, and died in 1890. Two children survived her, namely: Richard H., who resides at Boston, Massachusetts; and Florence, who is the wife of Thomas Deifenderfer, of Butler. Mr. Goehring was married (second) in 1896, to Miss Emma Cronewett, who is a daughter of the Rev. Mr. Cronewett, pastor of St. Mark's German Lutheran Church, of which Mr. and Mrs. Goehring are members. Their infant child is deceased. Mr. Goehring belongs to the well known local social organization, the Country Club.

SIMEON NIXON, proprietor of the Nixon Hotel, the leading hostelry not only of Butler but of all this section of the State, was born in 1876, in Penn Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of the late Simeon Nixon.

The father of Mr. Nixon was one of Butler County's prominent citizens, closely identified for years with all the developing enterprises of this section. He was also a veteran of the Civil War, to which service he gave four years of his life, his first enlistment being in a local company, and later in the Sixth United States Cavalry. After the return of peace he served in county offices, for a long period being county registrar and recorder. He was born in Butler County, in 1833, and made it his home until shortly before his death, in 1902, which took place at Los Angeles, California, while there in search of health.

father, was reared in Butler County, attended the Butler common and high schools and later was graduated in the Pittsburg College of Pharmacy. He was engaged in a drug business at Pittsburg for two years, after which, in association with his brother, J. Brown Nixon, he took charge of the Central Hotel, at Butler, conducting it until 1906. In July of that year the Nixon Hotel was opened and Mr. Nixon took charge. This fine hotel is perfect in every appointment, with cuisine and service unexcelled. It is an ideal hotel, catering both to permanent and transient patronage. It offers comfort, luxury and elegant surroundings, with reasonable rates.

On July 27, 1898, Mr. Nixon was married to Miss Cora Clarke, of Pittsburg. Both Mr. and Mrs. Nixon are prominent in the city's social life, and he is numbered with the most progressive citizens.

JOSEPH MILTON McKINNEY, whose truck farm of eleven acres is situated in Connoquenessing Township, has a tract of land which has been found rich in oil, there being three wells here which are being worked under lease. Mr. McKinney was born in the borough of Connoquenessing, Butler County, Pennsylvania, May 23, 1856, and is a son of Peter C. and Louisa (Welsh) McKinney.

The father of Mr. McKinney was born in Forward Township and when he reached manhood learned the blacksmith's trade at what was then known as Petersville, but now is the borough of Connoquenessing. He followed his trade in a shop of his own until within a few years of his death, when he opened a shop at Tarentum, but a stroke of paralysis soon compelled him to give up business and his death occurred in 1901. He was a man who was held in esteem by his fellow citizens and at different times acceptably served in local offices. In politics he was a Republican and fraternally he was an Odd Fellow, being connected with the Harmony lodge. He married first Louisa Welsh, a daughter of John Welsh, who was one of the early merchants of Petersville, and they had two children: Joseph Milton and Powell, the latter of whom is deceased. Mr. McKinney married, second, Elizabeth Knox, a daughter of William Knox, and had four children by this union, namely: Tillie V., Chester, Erastus and Lola.

After Joseph M. McKinney completed his school attendance, he went into his father's shop and learned the blacksmith trade and remained there working with his father until, when the latter moved to Tarentum, he succeeded to the old line of custom. He gave this business his entire attention until May, 1908, when he sold his shop and land surrounding it. Both he and father had a wide acquaintance and the old shop was long a meeting place for people from all over the township, and by the old forge many questions of local moment were discussed in friendly spirit. Since retiring from his shop work, Mr. McKinney has found pleasant employment in looking after the cultivation of his little farm, and the outdoor exercise demanded may add years to his life.

Mr. McKinney married Miss Margaret Nicklas, a daughter of Philip Nicklas, and they have had two children, Dora Velma (deceased) and Mary Louisa, who resides at home. Mr. McKinney is a member of the White Oak Springs' United Presbyterian Church. He belongs to I. O. O. F., Evans City lodge. In his political views he is a Republican and he has served as a councilman of the borough, as school director and on the election board.

JACOB FREDERICK, one of Summit Township's most esteemed citizens, resides on his well improved farm of 105 acres, which is situated one mile north of the village of Herman, was born in the old house which is still standing on this farm, September 6, 1848, and is a son of George and Katrina Frederick.

Both parents of Mr. Frederick were born in Germany and came to America prior to their marriage. They resided for many years on this old homestead farm, where the mother died January 9, 1882, and the father, November 15, 1887. They were good, quiet, Christian people and were respected and esteemed in the neighborhood. Of their large family of fourteen children, only four survive, namely: Henry, Jacob, Peter and Mrs. Elizabeth Milheim, all of Butler County except Peter, who is a lumber dealer in Chicora, Penna.

Jacob Frederick has been engaged in agricultural pursuits on his present farm ever since he has been old enough to handle farm implements, and this long experience, together with his good judgment and intelligent recognition of all that goes to the making of a good farmer, has contributed to his success. He has steadily made improvements on the property ever since it came into his possession and in 1896 he erected his present fine residence and other substantial buildings, in contrast to which stands the old farmhouse which, in spite of its inconveniences, was a happy and comfortable home for many years.

In 1885 Mr. Frederick married Barbara Elizabeth Gensler, who was born in Germany and lived there until she was twenty-five years of age. She had two brothers and three sisters, all of whom, except the youngest, still reside in Germany. The latter and the parents died in that country. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick have two children, George H. and Albert Jacob, both of whom reside at home. Mr. Frederick and family belong to the German Lutheran Church.

On Sunday, September 6, 1908, Mr. Frederick reached his sixtieth milestone in life and a very pleasant celebration awaited him, the nature of which was a surprise party. A feature of the occasion was the bountiful dinner served in the old house in which he had been born and twenty of his old friends and relatives sat at table with him. It was a surprise to him, but was one he is not likely to forget through the rest of his life, so beautifully, completely and affectionately had it all been planned and carried out.

S. C. KELLY, president of the Butler Wood-Fiber Plaster Company, of Butler, one of the city's growing business enterprises, is interested in other ventures in different sections and is one of the most progressive of the younger circle of business men here. He was born in 1881, on a farm, near Mt. Chestnut, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Thomas H. Kelly.

Thomas H. Kelly was also born in Butler County, in 1853. For a number of years he was identified with the oil industry in Pennsylvania, but for the past eleven years he has looked after the mining interests of himself and son, in Alaska. Together they also own valuable real estate in Missouri.

S. C. Kelly attended the country schools near his home through boyhood and later took a commercial course and was graduated from the Butler Business College, in 1896. Immediately afterward he went to work for W. S. Wick, lumber dealer, with whom he continued for three years, after which he spent two years with the Oil Well Supply Company, at Sistersville, West Virginia. After he returned to Butler he spent several years with the Butler Builders' Supply Company. In 1904, when the Butler Wood-Fiber Plaster Company was organized, he was elected president and general manager, which position he has held since.

In February, 1904, Mr. Kelly was married to Grace McIntire, who is a daughter of C. E. McIntire, a manufacturer of Butler, and they have two sons, Thomas C.

and Harold E. Mr. and Mrs. Kelly are members of the Second Presbyterian Church at Butler.

MRS. MARY W. NICKLAS, a highly respected and much esteemed lady residing at Connoquenessing, where she owns valuable property, including two producing oil wells, is the widow of Conrad Nicklas, formerly the leading general merchant of this village. Mrs. Nicklas was born in Jackson Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a daughter of Jacob and Mary (Ziegler) Wise.

The father of Mrs. Nicklas was a child when his parents came from east of the Allegheny Mountains and settled in Jackson Township, Butler County, where he spent the remainder of his life, farming being his business. He died when aged sixty-eight years. Of his five children born to his marriage with Mary Ziegler, four grew to mature years, namely: Nancy, now deceased, who was the wife of Jacob Rise; Jacob and John, twins, and Mary W., who became the wife of Conrad Nicklas. Jacob Wise was married (second) to Sarah Moyer and ten children were born to that union.

Mrs. Nicklas as Mary W. Wise grew to womanhood in Jackson Township and attended the country schools. She was then married to Conrad Nicklas, at that time an enterprising and successful young business man. He was born in Connoquenessing Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and spent his life in this section, his death taking place August 1, 1899, when aged fifty-six years.

The Nicklas family was established in America by Peter Nicklas, grandfather of Conrad, who came from Germany and settled first in Summit Township, Butler County. Later he moved to Connoquenessing Township. Philip Nicklas, son of Peter and father of Conrad, was also born in Germany and was fourteen years old when his parents came with him to America. He married Mary Zeglo, a native of Germany, and they had thirteen children, Conrad being the second son. Other sons cultivated the home farm of ninety acres, for the father, but Conrad turned his attention to merchandising. He first bought an interest in the business of John Kaltenbach and later became sole owner and until his fatal illness continued to successfully conduct a general mercantile business at Connoquenessing. He was an excellent business man, one of foresight and judgment and became largely interested in oil production. He left his family amply provided for and during his whole life had been a good citizen, liberally supporting public measures and giving to the church and the cause of education.

To Conrad Nicklas and wife five children were born, namely: Mary Bertha, who is the wife of John Mecklen, of Connoquenessing; Ferdinand P., who resides at home; Nancy Gertrude, deceased; Jacob, who lives at home, and Conrad W., who carries on the mercantile business. Mr. and Mrs. Nicklas were members of the English Lutheran Church for many years and he was a member of its board of trustees. In his political views he was a Democrat, but the wife of John was ever willing to accept was that of school director.

A. F. ROCKENSTEIN, the affable proprietor of the Arlington Hotel, one of Butler's most popular hostelries, is a native of Butler, Pennsylvania, where he was born in 1875.

Joseph Rockenstein, father of A. F., has long been a prominent business man of Butler, of which city he also is a native. The family has always been one of business standing in this section.

A. F. Rockenstein obtained his education in the schools of Butler and has chosen his native city as the field of his business activities. He began work in a grocery store, but after a trial of two years, entered the Charles Duffy dry goods store and after completing a clerkship of six years, retired with a pretty fair knowledge of that business. In 1900 he first became interested in the hotel business, being with the Lowry House for some four years thereafter, for one year was with the Lyndora Hotel, and in 1905 he leased the Arlington Hotel, which he has successfully conducted ever since. He has maintained a high standard of excellence ever since taking charge and his patronage is constantly on the increase. He has twenty guest rooms and his uniform rate is $2 per day.

In 1903 Mr. Rockenstein was married to Miss Alice Kelly, who is a daughter of Walter Kelly, a resident of Bruin, Butler County, and they have two children: Francis Wellington and Verena Inez.

JOHN S. HOBAUGH, general stone contractor at Butler, with office at No. 337 North Washington Street, undoubtedly controls the largest amount of the important work in his line, in this city. He was born in 1870, at Indiana, Pennsylvania, and is a son of G. M. Hobaugh, a retired citizen of Butler.

John S. Hobaugh was seven years of age when his parents moved to Oil City, in Venango County, where the family resided until he was sixteen years old, when removal was made to Butler County. He learned his trade with his father, who was formerly a successful contractor, and for the past twelve years Mr. Hobaugh has been himself engaged in contracting. Butler is noted for the elegance of its private residences and the beauty and stability of its business and public structures, and in naming those which have been erected by Mr. Hobaugh, his prominence in his line of work becomes evident. A partial list includes: The John Bickel Building; the Y. M. C. A. Building; the Levi M. Wise and J. H. Trontman Buildings; the First English Lutheran Church; Grace Lutheran Church; the Institute Hill School Building; the County Home; the Second Presbyterian Church; the Kirkpatrick Buildings; the Ledom-Worrall Company Building; the I. O. O. F. Building; the Nixon, the Atlas and the Clinton Hotels; the Butler High School; and the private residences of A. E. Rieber and C. N. Boyd. In the erection of buildings of the above character, not only was used the most superior materials but the very best talent was required for construction, and the descendants of Mr. Hobaugh will still be able to point to the enduring character of those foundations and elaborate stone work long after his activities have ceased. Not only has Butler benefited by his skill, other points having called in his services, notably Grove City, where he built the two beautiful stone churches as well as the Carnegie Library.

In 1892, Mr. Hobaugh was married to Miss Villa M. Hill, of Indiana, Pennsylvania, and they have a family of seven children. Mr. Hobaugh is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Fraternally, he is a Royal Arch Mason.

JACOB PISTORIUS, who is president of the School Board and one of the leading citizens of Summit Township, resides on his valuable farm of eighty acres, which is situated on the old State Road, one mile east of Butler. This is the old Pistorius homestead and here he was born, November 17, 1849, and is a son of Peter and Catherine (Gower) Pistorius.

Jacob Pistorius grew to manhood on this farm and then went to Pittsburg, where, for almost eighteen years he was employed in a rolling-mill. In March, 1887, he gave up his mill work and returned to the old home in Summit Township, where he has ever since successfully carried on general farming and dairying. He has taken an active part in township affairs and has been particularly interested in the public schools. He has served seven years. as a member of the School Board and is now its presiding officer.

Mr. Pistorius married Mary Holzapfel and they have had ten children, namely: John P., Jacob H., Joseph, Catherine, Clara, Herman, Leo, Paul, Martin, and Theodore, all of whom survive except little Paul, who died when four days old.

RICHARD BURKE, an old and venerated citizen of Butler County, Pennsylvania, has spent all his life in Clearfield Township, and is now retired from business activity. He was born in County Clare, Ireland, in 1830, and is a son of Timothy and Johanna (O'Neil) Burke. He was reared to manhood and educated in his native country. At the age of twenty-one years he came to the United States and settled on the farm which has since been known as the Burke homestead.

July 10, 1853, Mr. Burke was united in marriage with Katherine O'Neil, a daughter of Daniel and Bridget (McCrea) O'Neil. The McCrea family is an old and prominent one in this part of Butler County. Thirteen children were born to bless this union, all born on the home place, namely, Bridget, wife of Edward Burke; John M.; Daniel, deceased; Hugh, deceased; Mary, deceased; Thomas, deceased; Josie (O'Neil); William, who is in the oil business; Hugh Francis, who is a farmer and engaged in the oil business; Daniel, who married Kate Pursell; James; Edward; and Richard, Jr. John M. Burke, eldest son and second child of Richard and Katherine Burke, was first married to Josie Slater, and they had three children—Edward, Kate and William. He was married a second time to Miss Margaret Rogers, by whom he has five children—Mary, John, Thomas, Annie and Daniel. Josie, the seventh child born to Richard and Katherine Burke, married D. J. O'Neil, by whom she has the following children: Tressa, Clarence, Evaline, Charlotte, Charles, deceased; Edward, and Francis. Hugh Francis, the ninth in order of birth, was born in 1872 and is unmarried. He has a farm of eighty-seven acres, one-half in Clearfield Township and the remainder across the line in West Franklin Township, Armstrong County. He gives his attention mainly to oil and gas operations and is a very successful man.

Richard Burke, the father of this family, is living in the enjoyment of good health, at an age of almost four score of years. He has followed farming throughout his active career, making no speciality of his work and raising just enough stock for use on the farm. Religiously, he and his family are members of the Catholic Church, to which they contribute liberally.

W. H. McGAFFIC, one of Butler's reliable citizens and representative business men, who is engaged in an insurance business, with office at No. 105 West Jefferson Street, was born October 14, 1851, in Beaver County, Pennsylvania.

In his infancy, the parents of Mr. McGaffic moved to Crawford County, and in 1865 from there to Slippery Rock, Butler County, and there he grew to manhood and obtained his education. For two years he was engaged there in the manufacture of carriages, but sold his business and went to Karns City, where he was a clerk for three years and for nine years was engaged there in a mercantile business of his own. For fourteen years he was also an oil producer, from 1882 to 1896. After disposing of that he returned to Slippery Rock and was in business there for two years before he came to Butler and embarked in the life and accident insurance business. He represents only old and reliable companies, such as the State Mutual of Massachusetts and the Maryland Casualty, of Baltimore, Maryland, and handles a large amount of risks.

On December 31, 1872, Mr. McGaffic was married to Miss Harriet E. Riddle, a daughter of James D. Riddle, who was a pioneer and prominent citizen of Slippery Rock. Mr. and Mrs. McGaffie had one daughter, Hallie Frances, who married Howard C. Hazlett of Butler. She died September 22, 1906, leaving two children—Margaret Elizabeth and William Thomas. Mr. and Mrs. McGaffie are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a Thirty-second degree Mason and is past eminent commander of Mt. Calvary Commandery, No. 67, at Greenville.

LOUIS F. STRACKE, a prosperous resident of Adams Township, where he owns eleven and one-half acres of excellent land on which he carries on poultry-raising, has lived on his farm since 1903. He was born in 1861, in Germany and came to America when twenty-eight years old, in 1889.

In his boyhood, Mr. Stracke went to work in a rod-mill and learned that trade, and then entered the German army, in which he served the required two years as a member of the Tenth Company of the Sixteenth Regiment of Infantry. Having thus proved his patriotism and fulfilled the laws of his native land, he will never find himself debarred from visiting the old home, even if he no longer desires to remain there. After reaching America he came to Pennsylvania and soon found work at his trade at Rankin, and later at Braddock. On account of failing health he decided to settle for a time at least, in the country, and bought his present farm of Freeman Davison, and is making it profitable by raising choice poultry for market.

In 1891 Mr. Stracke was married (first) to Caroline Bailey, a native of Germany, who died February 8, 1900, leaving two children—Charles, who was born September 11, 1892, and August, who was born August 4, 1894. In 1902 Mr. Stracke was married (second) to Mrs. Amelia Bender, a daughter of Carl Garmer and the widow of Martin Bender. She had six children born to her first marriage but the only one living is Mary, who married Frank Hillman, and has one daughter, Amelia. Mr. Stracke has one child by his second marriage.

JOHN E. PURUCKER, joint proprietor with C. L. Frederick, of the Chicora Machine Works, is one of the enterprising and prosperous business men of Chicora, and is also interested in oil and gas production in Butler County. He was born at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, January 18, 1878, and is a son of F. W. and Louise (Stoechr) Purucker.

The parents of Mr. Purucker are natives of Germany. When they came to America they settled at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, where the father conducted a butchering business until 1880, when he removed to Chicora, where he continues his enterprise. He is one of the town's representative and substantial citizens. He has reared eleven of his family of fourteen children, three dying in infancy. The following survive: Callie, William F., John E., Emma, Clara (Bye), Louise, Loretta, O. R., R. O., Esther, and Helen.

John E. Purucker was about two years old when his parents came to Chicora. After he completed his school attendance, he assisted his father both in his meat business and on the latter's farm in Donegal Township, and when eighteen years of age, learned the machinist trade. He worked for three years with the firm of Stone & Vandemayrk and was only twenty-one years old when he started into business for himself, under the firm name of Stone & Purucker. In 1902 he purchased Mr. Stone's interest and continued the business for two years alone, when he sold a half interest to C. L. Frederick. This firm does all kinds of repair work and is one of the town's prospering enterprises. Mr. Purucker is quite extensively interested in oil and gas production and on his farm of eighty acres, in Donegal Township, he has a producing gas and also a producing oil well. He is likewise interested in a second farm, owns valuable real estate at Butler and is a stockholder in different enterprises in Chicora.

Notwithstanding his many business interests, Mr. Purucker has not neglected his duties as a citizen and at the present writing (1908) is usefully serving as a member of the Town Council. In politics he is a Republican. Fraternally he is a Mason and belongs to the Blue Lodge and Chapter at Butler. He is a member and liberal supporter of the German Lutheran Church.

MARTIN KABEL, a wide-awake and progressive farmer of Clearfield Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, resides on a fine farm of seventy-nine acres, located on the east side of the Saxonburg and Coyleville road. He was born on the old home place about four miles south of his present farm, in Clearfield Township, February 12, 1851, and is a son of Martin and Barbara (Krear) Kabel.

Martin Kabel, Sr., was born in France and came to the United States when a young man, his parents never leaving their native land. He located on the old home farm in Clearfield Township, Butler County, and followed farming the rest of his life. His farm of seventy acres is a fine body of land and is owned jointly by his heirs. He and his wife became parents of five children, as follows: George, deceased; Joseph; Martin; Barbara; and Elizabeth.

Martin Kabel, Jr., has always been a resident of Clearfield Township, and received his education in the district schools. He and his brothers were brought up to work hard, assisting on the home place from their boyhood days. Martin has always followed farming and has met with good results. He purchased the property on which he now lives from Frank Biedenbach, and by persevering effort has converted it into a well-improved place. He follows general farming and raises some stock.

September 14, 1875, Mr. Kabel was joined in marriage with Miss Helen Berninger, a daughter of Baselius and Tressa (Neff) Berninger of Center Township, and the following are the issue of this union: George, Joseph L., Barbara, A. J., F. M., Catherine, and Ferna. Religiously, the family are very active members of the Catholic Church.

W. P. ROESSING, of the firm of Roessing & Son, leading undertakers and funeral directors at Butler, is a native of this city, born in 1848, and is a son of George C. Roessing.

George C. Roessing, whose death occurred in 1891, was one of Butler's prominent citizens for many years. He was born in Germany, in 1827, and came to America and settled at Butler, Pennsylvania, in 1847. Prior to 1861 he engaged in a furniture business and in undertaking, but in that year he closed out his former line but continued the latter and also became interested at this time in carriage-making. The latter industry he continued until 1886, when he discontinued it and gave his whole attention to the undertaking business from which he also retired in 1889. He was active in politics and his solid qualities as a citizen were frequently recognized by his election to local offices. For twenty years he served as a justice of the peace and his decisions were seldom reversed.

W. P. Roessing attended school at Butler until he was thirteen years old when his father put him to work in the carriage factory, where he learned the trade of carriage-building. In 1872 he became his father's partner, both in the carriage-making and undertaking business. When his father retired from the firm in 1889, he purchased the entire interests of the concern and continued business alone until 1905, when he admitted his son, Fred T. Roessing, to partnership, at which time the present style was adopted. This undertaking firm is one of the oldest business houses in Butler, now including three generations of the same family, and through all these years its relations with the public have been thoroughly honorable.

In 1877 W. P. Roessing was married to Miss Truesdale Byrer, who was born in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, and is a daughter of D. L. Byrer. They have five children, namely: Florence, Fred T., Jean Wallace, Lucille H., and Marguerite P. Fred T. Roessing was educated in the Butler schools and at Westminster College. He was sixteen years old when the Spanish-American War was declared, and he enlisted for service in the same, entering Company E, Fifteenth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry. In a short time he fell a victim to the prevailing malarial fever, which necessitated his return home, after his honorable discharge. In 1905 he became his father's partner in business, having thoroughly prepared himself by attending schools of emblaming. In 1906, he was married to Miss Laura M. Stein, who belongs to one of the pioneer families of Butler County and is a daughter of L. B. Stein. With his father, he belongs to the Elks and he is also an Odd Fellow. Mr. Roessing and family belong to the First Presbyterian Church at Butler.

CARLTON HENRY BARNARD, oil producer and contractor in tin and slate roofing, is one of Butler's representative business men, having resided here for twenty years. He was born at Windsor, Ashtabula County, Ohio, December 18, 1862, and is a son of Francis Barnard, who was a veteran of the Civil War.

C. H. Barnard grew to manhood in his native place and attended the local schools until boyhood was over, when he worked for three years in a saw and planing mill at Windsor. He then came to Butler, Pennsylvania, and worked at his present trade for three years with the firm of Daltzell Brothers, of Youngstown, with whom he learned his trade. He worked the following year for J. E. Castor, of Butler. Since then he has been contracting in tin and slate roofing, doing a large business, and for the last three years has also been engaged in oil production, working in the Butler fields, where he has at present writing (1908), nine producing wells. He has other business interests, being a stockholder in the People's Telephone Company, the Leedom-Worrall Grocery Company and in other concerns.

In 1887 Mr. Barnard was married to Miss Ida Heath, of Williamsfield, Ashtabula County, Ohio, and they have two sons, Francis G. and Hallet Carlton. Mr. Barnard and family attend the Baptist Church. He is an Odd Fellow and belongs to Windsor Lodge, No. 329, of Windsor, Ohio.

WILLIAM A. PURVIANCE, general merchant at Connoquenessing, of which borough he is a leading citizen, at present filling the office of burgess and frequently serving on its legislative council, was born on Powder Mill Run, in Forward Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, February 14, 1854, and is a son of William Alexander and Sophia (Strichenen) Purviance.

The parents of Mr. Purviance were natives of Butler County. His father was a man of local prominence, but he lived only into middle life. His family of eight children bore the following names: Elizabeth, who resides at Allegheny, Pennsylvania; J. Thompson and Henry C., both of whom are deceased; Mary, who married James Hollingsworth, of Pittsburg; Sophia and Hallie, both residents of Allegheny; William A., and Benjamin F., who resides at Pittsburg. The parents were members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

William A. Purviance was two and one-half years old when his father died. After a period of school attendance in his native township, he went to Zelienople, where he was a pupil in Prof. Kitzel's private academy and studied piano music under Rev. Winters. His musical talent he inherits from his father, who was a master of the violin. In 1874 Mr. Purviance established himself in a general mercantile business at his present location, and some four years later admitted his brother to partnership, the firm style being J. T. & W. A. Purviance. This continued until the death of J. T. Purviance, when William T., through purchase, became sole proprietor. This is the oldest established business in the borough.

Mr. Purviance was married to Miss Ella Plaisted, a daughter of James E. Plaisted, of Butler Township, and they have three children: Frank R., Nora Verne and W. Marjorie. The son is in business at Allegheny. The elder daughter is a graduate of the Slippery Rock State Normal School and also an accomplished pianist. For several terms she taught school in the borough, after which she married Dr. S. B. Ralston, and they reside at Avalon, Pennsylvania. The younger daughter resides at home. Mr. Purviance and family belong to the White Oaks United Presbyterian Church.

In politics, Mr. Purviance is a staunch Republican. In addition to the public offices mentioned, he has served as treasurer of the borough and has always been one of the most progressive men in the place. He is a director of the Connoquenessing Telephone Company, also treasurer and was one of its promoters.

HARRY M. QUINN, superintendent of the Forged Steel Car Company, at Butler, is an experienced man in his line of work, having been employed in other large plants for years, and a skilled machinist since early manhood. He was born January 27, 1864, in the city of Philadelphia and there attended school and learned his business.

For more than twenty years Mr. Quinn worked as a machinist in his native city, but in 1903 he came to Western Pennsylvania and became a master mechanic in the employ of the Pressed Steel Car Company at Allegheny. Two years later, in 1905, he became superintendent of a plant at McKees Rocks, and in February, 1907, accepted his present responsible position with the Forged Steel Car Company at Butler.

In 1887 Mr. Quinn was married to Miss Katherine Fannan, of Philadelphia, and they have three children, Marie, Genevieve and Katherine. Mr. and Mrs. Quinn are members of St. Paul's Catholic Church. He is also a member of the order of Knights of Columbus. Mr. Quinn is a man whose coming to Butler adds to the good citizenship of the place. A skilled, reliable workman, a man of family and a consistent church member—such men are welcome additions to any community and the community is fortunate in securing such a class as permanent residents.

WEBSTER KEASEY, one of the leading citizens of Winfield Township, who is largely identified with the lumber and oil interests of this section, was born in Butler County, Penna., February 4, 1856, son of Henry and Elizabeth Keasey.

Henry Keasey came to Butler County as an experienced furnace man, being called here to become manager of the furnace at Winfield, which was owned by Mr. Speer. He continued to manage the plant as long as the business was continued at that point. Subsequently he purchased the Duff farm, a valuable piece of agricultural property, containing 200 acres and situated in Winfield Township. Here he died on May 1st, 1890.

Webster Keasey acquired his education in the public schools. On leaving home he secured employment in the oil fields of Butler and McKean Counties. In 1879 he drifted to Colorado, where for a time he was engaged in railroad contracting, afterwards returning to the old homestead in Winfield Township. He next formed a partnership with J. A. Ranson and in 1893 they leased the lime quarries which are at present operated by the A. G. Morris Lime & Stone Co., Limited. In 1894 a company was organized, of which Mr. Keasey was one of the board of directors, and which later sold out its interests to the Acme Company. Mr. Keasey takes some interest in public matters, especially in his own community. In May, 1894, he was appointed postmaster of Rough Run.

Mr. Keasey married Nannie Campbell, who is a daughter of John and Annie Campbell, and their family numbers five children. Their home is in a stately mansion, constructed of pressed brick and equipped with all modern conveniences. It is situated in the midst of a fine grove, on a hill overlooking the town of Cabot.

E. J. RENNO, dealer in granite and marble monuments at Butler, with business quarters at No. 108 and 110 West Cunningham Street, conducts one of the city's oldest enterprises, it having been established by his late father, in 1870. Mr. Renno was born in 1881, at Butler, Pennsylvania, and comes of pioneer stock.

The Renno family was founded in Butler County, in 1836, by John Renno, the grandfather of E. J. Renno. He was born in France. His life was devoted entirely to agriculture. His son, George Renno, was born in Butler County and after establishing the business which has been continued by his son, he followed the same until the close of his life. He is recalled as one of Butler's reliable men and good citizens.

E. J. Renno was reared and educated at Butler and in boyhood began to assist his father in the shop and later, developing talent and inclination for the same business, he learned its details and became an expert workman. After his father's death, in 1904, with his brother, F. W. Ren-no, he succeeded to the business, which he purchased entire, in 1906. He is a stockholder in the Southern Vineyard Company and is numbered with Butler's substantial citizens. In 1902 Mr. Renno was married to Miss Agnes Mackey, of Youngstown, Ohio, and they have two children, Paul and Mildred. Mr. Renno is a member of the English Lutheran Church. His fraternal connections include the Odd Fellows, both the lower order and the Encampment; the Knights of Pythias, Uniform Rank, and the Modern Maccabees. In politics he has never been very active, although he has frequently demonstrated his attitude of good citizenship by supporting public measures and contributing to worthy local enterprises.

JOHN G. STRUTT, one of the self-made men of Zelenople, Pennsylvania, who conducts a first-class livery establishment, was born October 4, 1869, in Zelenople, Pennsylvania, and is a son of William L. and Margaret (Richard) Strutt.

William L. Strutt, who for twenty-eight years was a livery stable proprietor of Zelenople, died at the age of sixty-one years, his wife having died when John G. Strutt was but two years old. They were the parents of five children: Joseph, who resides in Ohio; E. C.; Charles; John G., and Anna. The parents were members of the German Lutheran Church.

John G. Strutt attended the public schools of Zelenople, and after leaving school began work at the livery business. All of his life has been spent in Zelenople, with the exception of ten years, when he was engaged in the butcher business in Pittsburg. He is a self-made man in the true sense of the word, having started in life without means, and through energy and economy has worked his way to the front rank among the business men of this community. For three years he worked for thirty dollars per month, and during that time saved $100, with which he engaged in the livery business, purchasing the interests of Householder & Meeder. For eleven years he has conducted his present establishment, and he now keeps eighteen head of horses, and does a large business in Zelenople and the surrounding country. He owns his own livery barn, in addition to other valuable real estate.

Mr. Strutt was married (first) to Miss Annie May Lutz, by whom he had six children, namely: Roy, Clarence, Edna, Annie May, Grace and Hester Jane. Mr. Strutt's second marriage was to Mrs. Etta R. Stover (nee Feathers), a widow, whom he married in March, 1907.

Mr. Strutt is fraternally connected with the Elks, of Rochester, Pennsylvania, the Maccabees and the Odd Fellows. In political matters he is a Republican. His religious connection is with the English Lutheran Church.

J. P. SHULL, of the firm of Shull & Badger, brick manufacturers and contractors at Butler, has been a resident of this city for nineteen years and is numbered with its reliable and progressive business men. He was born in 1868, in Crawford County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of John W. Shull, who located on his farm in Marion Township, Butler County, about 1873.

J. P. Shull attended what was known as the old Ray School in his boyhood, and after a reasonable time there he went to Franklin in Venango County, where, when seventeen years of age, he started to learn the bricklayers' trade which he has found a satisfactory and profitable one. For about eleven years he has been in partnership in general brick contracting, with Frank W. Badger, and in 1903 they bought out the brick manufacturing plant of Reed & Company. Both members of the firm are men of recognized reliability and they have a large volume of business. They divide their labors, Mr. Shull looking after the manufacture of the brick, and Mr. Badger after the contracts. A large number of Butler's substantial buildings have been erected by this firm and among these may be mentioned: The Poor Farm building; the Butler County General Hospital; the Y. M. C. A. building; J. G. & W. Campbell's hardware store; the Koch building; and the I. O. O. F. Temple. The motto of this firm has been from the first, thorough reliability.

In 1890 Mr. Shull was married to Miss Teanie A. Gilmore, who is a daughter of John C. Gilmore, of Marion Township, Butler County, and they have two children, Verna and Iva. Mr. and Mrs. Shull are members of the United Presbyterian Church at Butler. Their pleasant home is at No. 312 West Penn Street.

ASHLEY W. GROSSMAN, who resides on his well-improved farm of 175 acres, which is situated two and one-half miles southwest of Slippery Rock Borough, in Slippery Rock Township, through which runs the Slippery Rock and Brady Township line, is a prosperous general farmer and representative citizen of this section. He was born March 29, 1854, in Brady Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Hugh C. and Mary Ann (Moos) Grossman.

Hugh Grossman was also born in Brady Township and was a son of Simon Grossman, one of the early settlers. He followed farming all his active life. He married Mary Ann Moos, who was born east of the Allegheny Mountains, and they had twelve children born to them, ten of whom are still living. Both parents of this family died on the old homestead in Brady Township.

Ashley W. Grossman attended the country schools and helped on the home farm until his marriage, although he had previously purchased his present farm, which he owns jointly with his wife. It is a valuable property and the handsome frame residence, which was built in 1899, is one of the best arranged and most comfortable homes in this section.

On January 1, 1884, Mr. Grossman was married to Miss Mary Belle Cooper, who is a daughter of Harvey and Lucinda (Leslie) Cooper. They have had thirteen children, a large and happy family, named as follows: Hugh Clifton, Louis, Harrison, Grant, Walter, Sadie, Hazel, Garrett, Laura and Lawrence, twins, Isabel and Verne, the eleventh child dying unnamed. The others survive, with the exception of Grant, who died when thirteen years of age, Sadie who was taken when ten years old, and one of the twins, Lawrence, who died at the age of four months. Mr. Grossman takes a good citizens' interest in public matters and does his part in providing for good schools and good roads in his township, two main essentials considered by the substantial men in every community. The township line mentioned above, crosses his farm just south of his buildings, but he votes in Slippery Rock Township, and therefore pays his taxes there.

JOHN C. WILES, a valued member of the City Council of Chicora and a leading citizen of this place, has been identified with the interests of this section for many years. He is proprietor of the oldest livery barn at Chicora and also engages in the undertaking business. Mr. Wiles was born February 28, 1866, at Petrolia, in Fairview Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania. His parents died when he was nine years old and his one brother, Charles, is also deceased.

Mr. Wiles was ten years old when he went to Armstrong County and lived there on a farm until 1892, when he came to Chicora and went into the livery business with a Mr. Titley, who, at that time owned several famous race horses, Star Pointer being among them. The new firm started their livery business in the barn now known as Venele & Son, and conducted it together for six years, when Mr. Wiles bought his partner's interest and carried on the business by himself for the next five years, selling out at that time to Venele & Rumbaugh. For one year he engaged in buying and selling horses, shipping them all over the country. In 1903 he purchased his present stables, known as the old Dolan barn, one of the first livery barns started here. The former proprietor was a W. E. Titley, but not the same Titley with whom Mr. Wiles had previously been in partnership. In taking charge of this barn, Mr. Wiles was prepared to make many improvements and he has made of it a first-class establishment, one that is a credit to the place. Mr. Wiles is a very popular citizen. For ten years he has held the office of foreman of the Independent Hose Company and he has the reputation of being the best man to handle a fire in a place of the size of Chicora, in the State, having proven his capacity on several occasions. In politics he is a Republican, has served five times as judge of elections and, as stated above, is one of the councilmen.

On January 18, 1891, Mr. Wiles was married to Miss Winnie Foringer, who was born in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, on her husband's birthday, February 28, 1866, and what is additionally interesting is that their second daughter has the same birthday. Mrs. Wiles is a daughter of Joseph and Hannah (Barnhart) Foringer. Her father was a very early settler in Armstrong County, in which he conducted a mercantile business for thirty-four years and was the first postmaster at Taylor. Mr. and Mrs. Wiles have two children: June, born June 5, 1894; and Winnifred, born February 28, 1903.

Mr. Wiles is identified with a number of fraternal organizations. He is worshipful master of the Masonic Lodge at Chicora, and belongs to the Chapter at Butler; has passed all the chairs in the orders of Knights of Pythias and the Maccabees and has attended the meetings of the Grand Lodge of these bodies; and is also an Elk and an Odd Fellow.

G. F. DAUBENSPECK, a highly respected resident of Butler, to which city he came in 1908, when he retired from his farm in Parker Township, belongs to one of the old pioneer families of Butler County. He was born October 30, 1845, in Parker Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of George Daubenspeck.

Mr. Daubenspeck was reared on the old family homestead in Parker Township and attended the district schools. His active years were devoted to agriculture and he still retains his valuable farm of eighty acres, situated in Parker Township.

In 1868 Mr. Daubenspeck was married to Miss Mary Elizabeth Perry, who is a daughter of Thomas Perry, and they have four living children: Richard Perry, who is a minister in the Presbyterian Church; Philip Burton, who is superintendent of the Turner Oil Company of California; Elizabeth Jane, who is the wife of S. A. Bell, of West Virginia, and Maria, who resides at home. Mr. Daubenspeck and family are members of the Reformed Church.

WILLIAM A. McQUISTON, a prominent agriculturist of Allegheny Township and a member of the township school board, gives attention to the cultivation of his excellent farm of eighty-five acres and is also identified with oil production in both Butler and Venango Counties. He was born March 29, 1863, in Concord Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Alexander C. and Margaret (Gibson) McQuiston.

The grandfather, Alexander C. McQuiston, was born in Ireland and was the first of the family to settle in Concord Township, where his son, Alexander C., was subsequently born. Like his father and a number of his descendants, Alexander C. McQuiston, the second, has always followed agricultural pursuits and for a number of years has lived in Allegheny Township. He married Margaret Gibson, who also survives. She was born in Allegheny Township and is a daughter of Col. James A. Gibson, an officer in the State militia at one time and, for some years, proprietor of a foundry at Martinsburg, Pennsylvania. In the old annals of Butler County, both of these names frequently appear as belonging to the most representative people. In 1905 the venerable Alexander C. McQuiston and wife, then being aged respectively, eighty-one and seventy-five years, enjoyed the celebration of their golden wedding. They have the following children: Elizabeth J., who is the wife of B. L. McKee, of New Paris, Ohio; Amy, who is the wife of G. W. Davis, of Pittsburg; William A.; Eva C., who is the wife of J. A. O'Neil, of Franklin, Pennsylvania; James M., of Clintonville, Pennsylvania; Clara, of Franklin; and Nettie B., who is the wife of Charles Whitman, of Pittsburg.

William A. McQuiston was reared in Concord Township until he was fourteen years old and then accompanied his parents to Allegheny Township, where he has resided ever since. Mr. McQuiston is a self-made man, having depended upon his own efforts since he was seventeen years of age. In 1893 he became interested in the oil industry and has made the business profitable. He married Miss Emma Clay, of Scrub Grass Township, Venango County, who is a daughter of the late George W. Clay, of that section. Mr. and Mrs. McQuiston have had three children: Myrtle E., George L. and David B., the eldest being deceased. Mr. and Mrs. McQuiston are members of the Scrub Grass Presbyterian Church, in which he has been a trustee for many years. He is serving in his second term as a member of the School Board of the township and has been secretary of this body. He belongs to the order of Knights of Maccabees, being identified with Emlenton Tent, No. 111. He is a man who stands deservedly high in the confidence of his fellow citizens.

T. J. SHUFFLIN, treasurer and general manager of the Peoples' Telephone Company, at Butler, and engaged in the business of tank manufacturing, has been a resident of this city for twenty years and since early manhood has been identified in some way with the oil industry. He was born in December 7, 1855, in the State of New York, where his boyhood was spent and his education secured.

In 1879 Mr. Shufflin started in his present manufacturing enterprise, at Bradford, Pennsylvania, and has built up an immense business, his tanks being shipped all over the United States and to Nova Scotia. He has had plants at various points, in 1886 coming to Millerstown, Butler County, from Kane, McKean County, and in 1888, he located at Butler and established his oil tank manufacturing plant on McClain Avenue. He has been a large operator in the oil fields of Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana. He is interested in several of the prospering business enterprises of Butler and was one of the organizers of the Peoples' Telephone Company, becoming a director and treasurer, and for the last two years has also been general manager. His business standing is high and his personal character is indicated by the frequency with which his fellow citizens call upon him to assume civic offices. Formerly he was president of the Butler Board of Trade, and is serving as president of the City Hospital Association since the second year of its organization.

In February, 1889, Mr. Shufflin was married to Miss Mary Green, of Wyoming County, New York. They are members of St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church. He belongs to the order of Knights of Columbus, the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association, the Knights of Pythias and the Elks. He has been a very active citizen and has served two terms in the city council.

HAROLD E. DEAN, one of the leading business men of Zelienople and proprietor of the well known firm, H. E. Dean & Company, the only exclusive gentlemen's furnishing and clothing store in the village. He was born February 26, 1873, in Tauketville, New York, and is a son of L. and Amy (Foote) Dean and a grandson of Richard Dean.

L. Dean, father of our subject, was born in Lewis County, New York, and was a carriage maker by trade. He was for many years a resident of Lewis County, where he married Amy Foote, also a native of that county. Of their union were born the following children: Leon F., a resident of Oklahoma, engaged there in the oil business; Cora M., the wife of L. S. Douth of Leetsdale, Pennsylvania; Elvie F., a milliner, resides at home; Emily, also lives at home, and Ralph. Mr. and Mrs. Dean are both living, the former at the age of sixty-nine years, while his wife is in her fifty-ninth year.

Harold E. Dean received his education in the common schools and after completing same at Petrolia learned tailoring, at which he worked for a number of years. In July, 1897, he came to Zelienople and entered the merchant tailoring business, continuing with much success at that until 1901, when he established his present business, under the firm name of the H. E. Dean & Co. The firm enjoys an extensive patronage and carries the best line of its kind in this part of the county.

Mr. Dean started in business entirely upon his own resources and his success has been due to his own efforts combined with honest and conservative business methods. In politics, our subject is a Republican and is fraternally a member of the I. O. O. F. No. 648, Harmony of Harmony; the F. & A. M. No. 429 at Zelienople; the Pittsburg Consistory—thirty-second degree Mason.

In 1893 Mr. Dean was married to Jennie E. Pike of Passaic, New Jersey, and she died April 6, 1907, leaving six children, namely: Eleanor M., Amy M., Harold E., Jr., Miles E., Samuel R. E. and Cora P.

HON. JAMES M. GALBREATH, who was elected judge of the Court of Common Pleas in January, 1902, and whose commission began the first Monday of January, 1903, is of one of the earliest pioneer families of Butler County, Pennsylvania, its history in this country dating back to the coming of his great-grandfather, Robert Galbreath. He was born in Winfield Township, September 27, 1852, is a son of Robert Galbreath, and grandson of William Galbreath.

Judge Galbreath was reared on the farm and obtained a primary education in the public schools of his home district. He subsequently attended State Lick Academy, in Armstrong County, and Witherspoon Institute at Butler. He was graduated from Princeton College, at Princeton, New Jersey, in 1880, and immediately thereafter began the study of law under the direction of W. D. Brandon of Butler. After his admission to the bar in 1882, he practiced alone in Butler until 1884, then formed a partnership with J. B. McCjunkin, a combination of legal talent which continued with uninterrupted success until his ascendancy to the bench.

In 1882, Judge Galbreath was united in marriage with Sallie E. Mitchell, a daughter of John Mitchell of Butler, and they have three children, Edith, Irene and John. In politics, our subject is a Republican, and served six years as school director, ever evincing a deep interest in the cause of education. He is a member of the United Presbyterian church of Butler, of which he has served as trustee many years.

JOHN CROWE resides on a fine farm of 160 acres, his residence being in Forward Township, although a part of the land lies across the line in Penn Township. He was born on the home place January 8, 1875, and is a son of David and Ellen Jane (Anderson) Crowe, and a grandson of John Crowe.

John Crowe, the grandfather, came to this country from Ireland at an early date and located at Pittsburg. He there became owner of a forty-acre tract, which is now located in central Pittsburg, and this he traded for three teams of horses. With these teams he later hauled cannon from Fort Pitt to Erie, and while en route passed the farm now owned by the subject of this sketch. Their attention was attracted to what was a fine barn in those days, and which still stands on the place. Later Mr. Crowe returned and purchased the place, which he mostly cleared, and spent the remainder of his days upon it. He and his wife were parents of the following children: Mary Douthett, Samuel, William, John and David.

David Crowe was born on the home place in Forward Township, as were his brothers and sister. He spent all his life there and engaged in agricultural pursuits. He was first married to Sarah Dodds, by whom he had three children, namely: Lena, wife of John Renfrew; Elizabeth, wife of James Douthett, and Letitia, wife of Allison Douthett. His second marriage was with Miss Ellen Jane Anderson, and they became parents of the following: James; Luella, wife of George McCaw; Rebecca, deceased wife of S. G. Clay; Nevin; Samuel R.; Etta, wife of J. J. McCandless; John, and Jennie, wife of Robert Riley.

John Crowe was reared and has always lived on the home farm. He is engaged in general farming, and has displayed unusual business ability. His farm is well improved, and is all under a high state of cultivation.

In 1895 Mr. Crowe was united in marriage with Miss Lillian Logan, a daughter of Erastus and Elizabeth (Renfrew) Logan, and they have two children, Logan and Floyd. Religiously, they are members of the Reformed Presbyterian church.

HON. JAMES M. GALBREATH

PHILIP CROUSE, superintendent of J. G. & W. Campbell's foundry, at Butler, has had almost a life-time experience in foundry work, having commenced to learn the trade in his boyhood. He was born in 1849, at Butler, a son of Philip Crouse, whose name he bears.

The father of Mr. Crouse was born in the city of Pittsburg and became a resident of Butler County about 1840. During all his active life he was engaged in the foundry business and at Butler was a member of the firm of Campbell & Crouse. He was somewhat active in politics and was identified with the Democratic party. His death took place at Butler.

Philip Crouse was reared in his native city and attended school through early boyhood. After learning the foundry trade he spent a few years east of the Allegheny Mountains, working in several states and then returned to Butler, where, for the past thirty years he has had charge of the Campbells' foundry. During all this period Mr. Crouse has carefully watched the developments in his line of work and has kept the foundry over which he is superintendent up to its highest working standard, introducing machinery as he has proved its efficiency and has continually increased the output without adding undue expense. His experience and his fidelity are appreciated by his employers.

In 1867 Mr. Crouse was married (first) to Miss Elizabeth Dougan, who died in 1876, there being one surviving son of that marriage, Philip Harrison Crouse, residing at Butler. In 1878 Mr. Crouse was married (second) to Miss Anna Garber, who died in 1892, leaving three children—Katie, William and Ellen—the latter of whom is the wife of Frank Eastley, of Butler. In 1894 Mr. Crouse was married to Miss Clara Stehle, and they have one son, Louis. Mr. Crouse is a member of St. Paul's Catholic Church and he belongs to the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association. He is also a member of the order of Elks.

PATRICK LOGUE, who has been a resident of Butler County, Pennsylvania, for the past thirty-one years, is located in Clearfield Township, where he and his son, Michael, are owners of about 300 acres of valuable land, in two separate farms. He has a fine brick home about one mile south of the Catholic church, and is one of the substantial men of the community.

Mr. Logue was born in Ireland in 1827, and in boyhood came to the United States, locating at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania. He began life's struggle without means and without help from anyone, and the success he has achieved is due to his own hard work and good business management. He hauled lumber for some years in Pittsburg, and subsequently engaged in the lumber business for himself. He was there married and reared his children, and it was not until 1877 he moved to Butler County. His original purchase here was a tract of 150 acres, and to this he subsequently added sixty seven acres. His son, Michael, is the owner of a farm of sixty-five acres, also in Clearfield Township.

Mr. Logue was married in Pittsburg to Miss Mary McGrady and they became parents of eight children, six of whom are living, as follows: Jennie, widow of James McCreia; Dennis, a railroad conductor, who lives in Canada; Michael, who married Sarah Slater; Agnes, who married Harry Hinchberger of Butler and has four children—Clarence, Agnes, Ralph and Edward; James, who is single and living at the home place, and Margaret, wife of Leland Rundell, by whom she has a daughter, Mildred. Religiously they are prominent members of the Catholic church, to the support of which they contribute liberally.

JOHN G. KOCH, of the firm of C. Koch & Sons, proprietors of the leading fancy and staple grocery house at Butler, was born at Butler, Pennsylvania, in 1861, and is a son of Charles and Crescentia (Steger) Koch.

The late Charles Koch was born in Germany, emigrated to America and settled at Butler, Pennsylvania, in 1854, and died in this city in 1872. He was engaged for years in a hardware business and was a prominent factor in the city's life. He married Miss Crescentia Steger, a native of Germany, who died in 1907. They had a family of four sons and one daughter, namely: Frank W. and John G., of the grocery firm of C. Koch & Sons; Caroline, Charles T. and Stephen A. Mr. Koch sold out the hardware store and embarked, in 1872, in a grocery business, which he conducted but a few months when he died and Mrs. Koch, after his death, continued the business alone until 1887, when her two sons became members of the firm and the present style was adopted. Mrs. Koch continued her interest in the enterprise until her death, after which F. W. and John G. Koch became joint and sole owners, retaining the old name that had almost become a trademark. This is one of the oldest grocery businesses at Butler and, in a way, is a memorial of the mother of the present owners, her thrift, prudence and excellent management having placed it on a firm foundation. In 1905 the firm erected the fine three-story brick building at No. 126 North Main Street, Butler, which is one of the substantial structures in the business district. It has a frontage of twenty-four feet and a depth of 128 feet. A heavy trade is carried on, the house carrying a complete stock of the very best goods in its line.

In 1895 John G. Koch was married to Miss Elizabeth Kohler, of Johnstown, Pennsylvania. The whole family belongs to St. Peter's Catholic Church. Mr. Koch is identified with the Knights of Columbus.

DAVID M. DICKEY, a well-known general farmer of Slippery Rock Township, was born September 30, 1847, on his present farm of seventy acres, and is a son of John and Eliza (Cross) Dickey.

John Dickey was a native of Pennsylvania and spent his boyhood days on a farm near Kittanning in Armstrong County. He was twice united in marriage, his first wife having been Nancy Templeton of Armstrong County. The second union was formed with Eliza Cross, the mother of our subject.

David M. Dickey grew to man's estate on his present farm, which is part of the old Dickey homestead, and here has always followed general farming. He has made all of the improvements on the place, including all the barns and other necessary out-buildings. He was joined in marriage with Mary E. Hunter, a daughter of William Hunter of Eau Claire, Pennsylvania, and of their union have been born the four following children: Elsie, Parker, Iva, and Elizabeth.

MICHAEL QUIRK, who resides on his excellent farm of fifty acres, which is situated near Brinker Station, in Summit Township, on the Bottom road, about three miles southeast of Butler, has resided here since 1888. He was born September 25, 1852, in Ireland, and is a son of Thomas and Catherine (Quinlan) Quirk.

Michael Quirk was reared on the home farm in Ireland, on which both his parents died. In 1870 he shipped for America and reached Butler County, Pennsylvania, on August 10, 1870, shortly before his eighteenth birthday. He came with little capital except good health and habits of industry and he found these just the possessions he needed when he went to work as a farm hand, first in New Jersey, and later as a railroad hand on the construction of the Western Pennsylvania Railroad. In the building of this line he assisted for several years and after that job was finished, he found employment in a rolling-mill at Bennett Station, in Allegheny County. Mr. Quirk continued to work in the mill for the next ten years, earning good wages, but later found a better situation as a member of the repair gang on the Pennsylvania Railroad. In the meanwhile he had invested his earnings in land, buying his present farm, which he completely cleared and erected all the substantial buildings. Mr. Quirk is a man of very practical ideas and has shown good judgment in purchasing land near a city, for each year it will grow in value. He has earned all he possesses and has reason to feel some pride in the fact.

CHARLES DIVENER

In 1873 Mr. Quirk was married to Catherine Grieb, who was born in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, and is a daughter of John Grieb. Mr. and Mrs. Quirk have four children, namely: Mary, who is the wife of George Schaffner, Jr.; Alice, who is a nurse in Mercy Hospital, at Pittsburg; Annie, who belongs to the Catholic Order of St. Frances Sisters, in Allegheny County; and Thomas, who lives at home. Mr. Quirk and his family are all members of the Roman Catholic Church at Herman.

CHARLES DIVENER, general farmer and representative citizen, who lives on his valuable property in Donegal Township, where he has 101 acres of land and two producing oil wells, was born in a land that has contributed many very worthy citizens to the United States. His birth took place September 21, 1839, in Prussia-Germany.

The father of Mr. Divener, George H. Divener, was born in Prussia-Germany, September 3, 1801, and died June 7, 1868. The mother was born in the same land, June 23, 1809, and died August 9, 1880. They came to America and settled in Butler County, in 1847, and the father worked for two years at ore mining, at Brady's Bend, Armstrong County, and then moved his family to that place, where he followed mining until 1857. He then bought a farm from Ernest Muter, in Donegal Township, Butler County, where his son now resides and engaged in its cultivation and also worked at his trade of weaver. He followed weaving all through the winter seasons and when he died left a web of cloth on the loom. There was some difficulty experienced in finding a weaver, in this vicinity, who was able to run the web from the looms, the weaving industry not being a general one in this neighborhood. He married Dorothy Mary Kaufhold, on October 25, 1830, and they had the following children: George H., John F., Charles, William E. and Caroline E., one of whom survives.

Charles Divener attended the public schools in Armstrong County, as opportunity offered, until he was about sixteen years old, and after that helped his father both in the mines and at the farming and later became interested in the oil industry. In 1880 he bought his present farm from the other heirs, and gives his attention to its cultivation together with oil production.

On February 22, 1870, Mr. Divener was married to Miss Mary Elizabeth Frederick, who is a daughter of Leonard and Elizabeth Frederick. They came to America in 1849, from Germany, settling in Butler County, where both died. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick had the following children: Peter, Elizabeth, John, George, Catherine, Philip, Mary E., Adam, Maggie, Christiana and Henry, the three survivors being Mrs. Divener, her sister Catherine, and George. Mr. Divener is a leading member of the German Lutheran Church and is one of its trustees. The only public office he has ever consented to hold was that of overseer of the poor, which office he held for four years.

JENNINGS C. McCANDLESS, a leading citizen of Connoqueeness Township, and a very successful oil producer, was born in Center Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, April 18, 1848, and is a son of John F. and Nancy (Hayes) McCandless.

The paternal grandfather, William McCandless, came to the United States from County Down, Ireland, and took up 800 acres of land in what is now Center Township, Butler County. John F. McCandless was born on a farm adjoining that now owned by his son, William H., and moved to the latter farm at the time of his marriage, in 1832. John F. McCandless and wife began their married life in a rude log structure that had neither windows nor door hung, but he soon put up a two-story log structure, which had the unusual addition of a front porch and this house was considered a model of comfort and convenience by all his neighbors. Here a generous, pioneer hospitality was dispensed, the McCandless family being noted for its hearty good cheer. In 1832 John F. McCandless had married Nancy Hayes, a daughter of William Hayes, who was a native of Scotland. They had the following children. Mrs. Mary J. Findley, residing in Kansas; Mrs. Nancy A. Miller, residing at Euclid, Pennsylvania; Mrs. Emeline Glenn, residing in Allegheny County; William Harrison, residing in Center Township; John Milton, who died in 1865; Jennings C.; Porter and Minerva, both of whom died in infancy; and Mrs. Sarah Belle Wilson, residing in Allegheny Township, Butler County. The father of the above family died in 1869, aged sixty-seven years, his wife having passed away many years before, aged forty-three years. They were worthy members of the Muddy Creek Presbyterian Church.

Jennings C. McCandless was reared in Center Township and with his brothers and sisters, attended the country schools. His mother died when he was five years old and when his older sisters married and left home, he also, about 1865, started out for himself. He spent three years in Michigan and Wisconsin, but when the discovery of oil made the Parker field known all over the country, he returned to Butler County and went to work at Parker's Landing. He helped to develop that field and for fifteen consecutive years was engaged in oil production at Bruin. In 1890 he came to Petersville, in Connoquenessing Township. In partnership with his brother-in-law, William Walker, he did a large amount of business, under the firm name of Walker & McCandless, and for a short time this firm had the distinction of owning the biggest well in Pennsylvania, one that flowed thirty-five barrels of oil an hour. This firm has worked in these regions ever since and has developed about 100 wells.

Mr. McCandless married Miss Angeline Walker, who is a daughter of Abraham Walker, of Slippery Rock Township, and they have had four children, namely: Blanche, who is the wife of Charles K. Rea, of Connoquenessing Township; Frank, who resides at Chanute, Kansas; Mabel, deceased, who was the wife of E. H. Bailey, Jr.; and Leanna, who is the wife of Stephen Straight, of Braddock, Pennsylvania. Mr. and Mrs. McCandless have been members of the Presbyterian Church since youth and while residing at Bruin, Mr. McCandless was an elder. In his political views he is a Republican. Since coming to Connoquenessing he has served frequently in public offices and has been a useful member of the School Board and for some years served as treasurer of the borough.

L. H. CRAIG, a representative business man of Butler, conducting a general hardware store at No. 223 Center Avenue, has thoroughly identified himself with the interests of this city since coming here in 1900. He was born at Freeport, Pennsylvania, in 1862, and is a son of the late Theodore J. Craig.

The parents of Mr. Craig moved from Freeport to Chicora, Butler County, when he was small, the father being a bricklayer, a trade which he followed all through his active life.

L. H. Craig attended the Chicora schools and his first work was done as a clerk in a general store at Carbon Center, where he remained for three years and then entered the oil fields. For a quarter of a century Mr. Craig continued to be interested in the oil industry, confining his operations to the Pennsylvania fields. While no longer as active as formerly, he still is financially interested in oil. In January, 1907, he entered the mercantile ranks at Butler, purchasing the hardware store of Weiter & Gibson, and has done a large business in this line ever since.

In 1888, Mr. Craig was married to Miss Millie I. Thompson, who is a daughter of Harry D. Thompson, formerly sheriff of Butler County. Mr. and Mrs. Craig have six children, namely: Estella F., Paul W., Melvin L., Loretta A., Harry D., and Edwin C. Mr. Craig and family belong to Grace Lutheran Church. He is identified with several fraternal organizations, including the Odd Fellows and the Knights of Pythias.

WILLIAM J. BRENNAN, one of Chicora's respected and esteemed retired citizens, who was identified with the boiler manufacturing business here for twenty years, was born December 11, 1843, and is a son of William and Catherine (McDonald) Brennan.

The parents of Mr. Brennan never came to America. They have long since passed away, as have all of their children, with the exception of William J., Michael and Anna. The others were Martin, Patrick, William, John, Thomas, Mary, Eliza and Catherine.

William J. Brennan was the fifth member of his parents' family. He remained in his native land until 1869, and after coming to America settled at Sharon, Pennsylvania. He had learned the trade of boilermaker in the city of Dublin and had worked at it for seven years. At Sharon he found employment in the same line, later went to Leetonia, Ohio, and from there to New York, where he was employed by the Continental Boiler Works. From New York he went to Chicago, from there to Sharon again, later to Oil City and from there to Parker's Landing, and in 1873 he came to Chicora and started to work for P. C. Kelley. Still later, Mr. Brennan bought out Mr. Kelley and for twenty years conducted the works himself, only retiring from active business life in 1904. Mr. Brennan has been quite a traveler in his day and has seen much more of the world than many of his fellow citizens and in visiting the industries in his line of work, in different cities, he gained a thorough knowledge of all methods and this contributed to his success when he went into business for himself.

In Washington County, New York, in July, 1875, Mr. Brennan was married to Miss Mary Fitzpatrick, who is a daughter of Bernard and Catherine (Dugan) Fitzpatrick. Mrs. Brennan was born in Queen's County, Ireland, June 29, 1847. They have had three children, namely: Catherine, who was born October 6, 1876, married Charles Sutton of Chicora and they have three children, C. Wayne, Maurine and Irene; William, who was born September 11, 1878, is in the oil business and resides with his parents, and John F., who died in 1884. Mr. Brennan and family are devoted members of the Roman Catholic Church at Chicora. Mr. Brennan has two brothers in America that he can not locate.

JOSEPH S. DAUGHERTY, the well known proprietor and manager of the Etna Flour Mills of Slippery Rock Township, is a native of this township, and was born on his father's present farm in 1877. He is a son of Loyal and Mary (Shepard) Daugherty and a grandson of Zery Shepard, who during his lifetime owned and operated the Etna Flour Mills.

Joseph Daugherty was reared in his native township and is a graduate of the Slippery Rock State Normal, graduating with the class of 1899, after which he taught for two years in Middlesex Township, Butler County. For the past five years he has been manager of the Etna Mills, the output of which is sold to local trade as well as wholesale to the merchants of this community. The mill is fitted with Griscomb and McFeely machinery, made in Philadelphia, and the chief brand of flour manufactured is called the Fancy Roller flour, the excellent quality of which insures it a large sale on the market. Mr. Daugherty is thoroughly informed concerning the business in every department and requires two assistants in operating the mill.

Mr. Daugherty is unmarried and lives with his parents in a large brick house on the latter's farm of fifty acres adjoining the mill property. In connection with the milling business Mr. Daugherty and his father and brother, W. G., carry on general contracting in the oil fields, his father being one of the best known oil contractors in this section of the state, as well as throughout Allen, Hancock and Wood Counties of Ohio.

Three children were born to Loyal and Mary Daugherty, namely: Joseph, our subject; William G., a driller in the oil fields; and Lottie, who is the wife of Norman Straub of Pittsburg.

Joseph Daugherty is a successful and energetic business man and well deserves the reward which his efforts have secured for him. In fraternal circles he is associated with the Masonic Order.

JAMES H. McELROY, Sr., residing on his finely cultivated farm of forty-five acres, in Allegheny Township, which he devotes to general agriculture and fruit growing, has been a resident of this township for the past thirty-two years. He was born February 28, 1838, in Lawrence County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Joseph and Elizabeth (Taggart) McElroy.

The McElroy family originated in Ireland, where Hugh McElroy, the grandfather, was born. In early manhood he came to Butler County, Pennsylvania, and here reared an honorable family. Joseph McElroy was born in Butler County but lived in Lawrence County for some years; later he returned to Butler County, where he died in 1893.

James H. McElroy lost his mother when he was but six years old. His father married again and when he was nine years old the family came to Butler County and settled in Brady Township. He had but meager educational opportunities and from youth had his own way to make in the world. He has always been interested in farming and especially in fruit growing, but before he acquired land of his own, engaged for a number of years in teaming, in Brady Township. In the fall of 1876 he came to his present property and this he has improved and developed into a very valuable farm. He still is active in its management and is justly proud of his productive orchards, having set out many of the trees.

On November 10, 1859, Mr. McElroy was married to Miss Martha J. Thompson, who was born in Cherry Township, Butler County, February 21, 1841. She belongs to an old and prominent family of this section, being a daughter of Joseph A. and Polly (Patton) Thompson. Her father was born in Scotland and when three weeks old was brought by his parents to America, who came directly to Butler County and settled in Cherry Township. Mrs. McElroy's grandparents were Joseph and Annie (Smith) Thompson. Mr. and Mrs. McElroy have had eight children, namely: Joseph M., who lives in Venango County; Mary E., who is the wife of James Curmans of Parker's Landing; Annie K.,

who is the wife of James McQuiston, of Clintonville, Pennsylvania; Margaret D., who is the widow of N. Grant, late of Allegheny Township; John W., who lives in Indiana; Daisy B., who is the wife of Homer Simon, of Venango County; James H., who lives in Venango County; and Blanche P., who is the wife of Samuel Cobbitt, of Clintonville, Pennsylvania. Mr. and Mrs. McElroy are members of the Presbyterian Church and they are people whose lives coincide with their professions. Formerly Mr. McElroy was an active member of the order of Odd Fellows. In his political identification he is a Republican. He has given many years of attention to educational interests, serving as school director, and as one of the township's most reliable men, has frequently been elected a member of the township Board of Elections.

J. H. LEEDOM, secretary of the Leedom & Worrall firm, wholesale groceries, at Butler, one of the city's large business enterprises, was born at Butler, in 1877, and is a son of the late T. J. Leedom.

T. J. Leedom was born in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, and came to Butler County about 1870 and established himself in business and was identified with it until the time of his death, in 1904.

After J. H. Leedom completed his school attendance, he entered the employ of the Standard Oil Company and during the several years in which he continued with that corporation, he was located at various points in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio. In 1900, with his brother, P. W. Leedom, and George Worrall, he engaged in a wholesale grocery business at Marietta, Ohio, which they transferred to Butler, in 1904. The Leedom & Worrall Wholesale Grocery Company is the largest enterprise of its kind in this section and its trade covers all Western Pennsylvania.

In 1901 Mr. Leedom was married to Miss Luella St. Clair, of Indiana, Pennsylvania, and they have one son, Robert A. Mr. Leedom is a member of the order of Elks. He is essentially a business man and takes comparatively a small amount of interest in politics, but he by no means neglects the duties pertaining to good citizenship.

LOUIS P. TRAUTMAN, one of Butler's progressive citizens, who has been many years identified with oil production, was born on the family homestead, near Buena Vista, in Fairview Township, Butler County, Penna., January 23, 1872, and is a son of Paul Trautman, who was one of the early settlers in his section.

Mr. Trautman was reared in Fairview Township, and was educated in the Buena Vista schools. For some years he assisted his father on the farm and then, coming to Butler, learned the barber's trade, at which he worked for thirteen years. Oil was discovered on the homestead in 1872, with large wells, and after about seventeen years (1889) a crop of wells was developed. Mr. Trautman's father died in 1903, and the subject of this sketch, with his brother John, then bought the old home farm in Fairview Township and has been engaged in the development of oil ever since, there being now twelve producing wells on the farm, with a probable continuation of the output.

In 1902 Mr. Trautman was married to Gertrude Kelly, who is a daughter of W. J. Kelly of Bruin, Butler County. They have one child, Athleen Ruth. Mr. Trautman was reared in the faith of the German Lutheran church. He is a member of the fraternal order of Eagles, and of the Woodmen of the World.

WILLIAM KRAUSE, general merchant and prosperous business man of Coyleville, Butler County, Pennsylvania, has been a resident of this village for twelve years. He was born at Hannahstown, Jefferson Township, in Butler County, August 25, 1872, and is a son of Robert and Maria (Camphire) Krause. His father is a veteran of the Civil War, and is a general merchant at Marwood; a record of him and his family appears on another page of this work. Richard Krause, grandfather of the subject of this record, came to this country from Saxony, Germany.

William Krause was quite young when his parents moved to Marwood, where he grew to maturity and received a common school education. He then entered Duff's Business College at Pittsburg, in which institution he pursued a commercial course of study and was graduated. Throughout his business career he has been identified with merchandising; he worked in his father's store at Marwood until he moved to Coyleville, and for six years served as assistant postmaster of that village. Upon his removal to his present place he purchased the store of F. P. Gormley, which had been established by John McGueken and subsequently owned and conducted by M. J. McBride, prior to its ownership by Mr. Gormley. Prior to the arrival of the railroad in this section, Mr. Krause served six years as postmaster of Coyleville. He is a man of exceptional business talents and has established a high-class trade in the community, carrying a superior grade of stock.

November 6, 1895, Mr. Krause was joined in marriage with Miss Edith Humes, a daughter of Thomas and Elizabeth (Gilleford) Humes, whose mother was a brother of the distinguished Dr. Gilleford of Allegheny. They have three sons, namely: Everett, who is attending the Fairmont School at Cleveland, Ohio; Melford, who is three years of age, and Curtis Gorman, aged one month. They reside in a comfortable home adjoining the store.

JAMES MCGARVEY, a prosperous and representative citizen of Chicora, where he is conducting a dairy business, also oversees his valuable farm of ninety acres, which is situated in Fairview Township, Butler County. He was born October 7, 1838, in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of James and Martha (Foster) McGarvey. James McGarvey, Sr., was born in 1798 and died January 9, 1889.

The father of Mr. McGarvey was born in County Donegal, Ireland, and came to America when aged twenty-one years. For a few years he lived in the city of Philadelphia and then crossed the State to Pittsburg, where he opened a small store. In a short time, however, he left the city and purchased a farm in Washington Township, Armstrong County, on which he passed the rest of his life. He was the father of seven children, as follows: Eliza and Alexander, James, John and O. C., all deceased; Catherine and Mathilda.

James McGarvey attended the public schools in Washington Township and assisted his father on the home farm until his marriage, after which he brought his bride to Butler County and then settled in the vicinity of Parker, where he followed teaming for a few years. In 1873 he moved to Millerstown, where he resided for twelve years, and then bought his farm in Fairview Township. Mr. McGarvey conducted that farm for some twenty-one years, retiring in 1903, at that time purchasing a fine residence property at Chicora, and here he has continued to make his home ever since. He carries on a dairy industry and nominally oversees the farm, which is capably operated by his son, Charles McGarvey.

On November 24, 1868, Mr. McGarvey was married to Miss Margaret J. Murphy, who is a daughter of Benjamin and Jane (Green) Murphy. The Murphy family settled many years ago in Armstrong County and they had numerous descendants, Mrs. McGarvey being one in a family of ten children. The others were: James, Elizabeth, Rebecca, Samuel, Isabella, Walter, Lavina, Theodore and Sarah. Samuel was a soldier in the Civil War and was killed on the field of battle.

To Mr. and Mrs. McGarvey have been born seven children, as follows: Samuel C., Benjamin, Martha J., William, Mary, Charles and one that died in infancy. The eldest son, Samuel C., is engaged in the practice of medicine at Bridgeville, Pennsylvania. He married Mary Stamm of Butler County, and they have two children, Orpha and Byron. Benjamin is an oil producer residing in Wood County, Ohio. He married Loma Moke and they have one child, Vera. Martha J. married Charles B. Kemmer and they live on a farm in Armstrong County. They have five children, Guy, Ernest, Bunnell, Gertrude and Nora. William, who is farm boss for the Ohio Oil Company, resides in Wood County, Ohio, where he married Minnie Wagner and has one child, Loretta. Mary married James Foster, who carries on a dairy business in Armstrong County. Charles resides on his father's farm in Fairview Township. He married Eva Taylor and they have two children, Hazel and William T. Mr. McGarvey and family belong to the Lutheran Church at Chicora. Mr. McGarvey has been an active and useful citizen and has served for three years as councilman and for the same length of time as school director and as township collector.

CYRUS HARPER, a veteran of the Civil War and a prominent citizen of Zelenople, Butler County, Pennsylvania, has been a life-long resident of this county. He was born March 1, 1839, on his father's farm in Jackson Township, and is a son of Thomas and Margaret (Swartz) Harper, and a grandson of Thomas Harper, Sr., who served in the Revolutionary War.

Thomas Harper, father of Cyrus, was born on Mingo Creek, Ohio, in 1798, where he grew to man's estate. About 1820 he came to Butler County and settled in Jackson Township, residing near Zelenople for about twenty years, when he purchased a tract of land in Cranberry Township, where he remained until his death in 1874 at the age of seventy-six years. He married Margaret Swartz, who was born in 1798 and whose father was a resident of Elizabethtown, Allegheny County, Penna. There were fifteen children born to the parents of our subject: N. W., who died in Chicago; George, deceased, was a resident of Dayton, Ohio; Oliver, deceased; Catherine, deceased; Margaret, deceased; Eliza, deceased; Sarah, deceased wife of Dr. D. L. Starr of Cincinnati, Ohio; Nancy, deceased wife of Frank Gausshell of Quincy, Illinois; Andrew, deceased; Henrietta, wife of Silas Gillespie of New Castle, Pennsylvania; Marion died in infancy; John, deceased, resided at Huntington, West Virginia; Caroline (Taylor), resided in Nebraska, where her death occurred; Cyrus, subject of this sketch; and Thomas, who died in infancy.

Cyrus Harper was but two years old when he came with his parents to Cranberry Township, where he was reared on a farm. In 1862 he joined the army and enlisted in Company A, Fifteenth West Virginia Volunteer Infantry. He served until the close of the war and participated in nineteen important engagements, including those of Cloyd Mountain, West Virginia; New River Bridge; Halltown, Va.; Harpers Ferry; Smokers' Gap, Virginia; Winchester; Lynchburg; Fishers Hill; Cedar Creek; Petersburg; Gettysburg; Appomattox, and numerous skirmishes. Mr. Harper was discharged and mustered out at Wheeling, West Virginia, June 5, 1865, after which he returned to Butler County and engaged in agricultural pursuits in Cranberry Township until 1906. Mr. Harper owns considerable property in this section of the county, having a fine farm of 100 acres, five residence properties in Zelienople, and two in Ambridge, and one in Butler.

In politics Mr. Harper is a Republican and was elected on that ticket treasurer of Butler County, serving in that capacity for three years. He was also justice of the peace in Cranberry Township for three terms. In fraternal affiliation, he is a member of Col. Joseph H. Wilson Post No. 496 G. A. R. of Zelienople; also the I. O. O. F. and the F. & A. M.

In January, 1866, our subject married Elizabeth Dalzell, a daughter of Hugh Dalzell of Allegheny County, and of their union were born the following children: Edwin F. G., an attorney, married Margaret Roberts of New Castle and they have one child—Elenora Blanche. Laura is deceased. Blanche married J. C. Dwight of Mars. Pearl is the wife of J. P. Anderson of Cherry Vale, Kansas. Howard C., a physician of Jamestown, Pennsylvania, is a graduate of the Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia; he married Jennie McMaster and has one child, Miriam. Guy is deceased. Mrs. Harper died in 1879, and in 1882 Mr. Harper married Luella Sarver, a daughter of Jacob Sarver. The following children were born of the second union: Hallie, married William Cashdollar and has two children, Clara and Roy. Percy V. resides with our subject; he married Mary Ramsey, a daughter of Samuel Ramsey of Butler County, and they have one daughter, Ruth Viola. Roy resides at home.

JAMES G. RUNKLE, proprietor of "The Toggery," Butler's leading gents' furnishing store, is one of the city's enterprising and successful business men. He was born in 1863, in Mercer County, Pennsylvania, and passed his early life there.

Mr. Runkle completed his education at Grove City College and gained his first business experience in a store at Jackson Center, where he worked through one year and later was engaged in a store at Fredonia, for two years. Following this he managed a store at Jackson Center for a year, after which he filled the position of assistant manager of a large coöperative store at Tarentum. He then went with the wholesale grocery house of Jas. W. Houston & Co., of Pittsburg, and traveled for this firm for ten years, subsequently was with The Robert McCoy Company for six years, during four of these being manager of their branch store at Butler. In 1904 Mr. Runkle embarked in his present business, has built up a large trade and supplies its most exacting demands in the way of haberdashery.

In 1891 Mr. Runkle was married to Miss Alice J. Westlake, who is a daughter of Hon. George S. Westlake of Millbrook, Pennsylvania. Mr. and Mrs. Runkle are members of St. Paul's Reformed Church, in which he has been an elder for twelve years. He has taken a hearty interest for a long period in the Y. M. C. A., and has been one of the directors of this organization at Butler for sixteen years. He is a member of the Knights of Pythias. In politics, Mr. Runkle is not active, but nevertheless every claim of good citizenship made on him is satisfied, and every obligation fulfilled.

DR. HARRY M. WILSON, who enjoys a forward position among the medical practitioners of Butler County, has been engaged in practice in Evans City, Pennsylvania, since January 1, 1891, and is also vice-president of the Citizens National Bank of that place. He was born in Luthersburg, Pennsylvania, is a son of Dr. George and Anna (Huber) Wilson, and a grandson of Dr. Joseph Wilson.

Dr. Joseph Wilson was born in the North of Ireland, and after a careful preparatory training engaged in the practice of medicine there. Religiously, he was of the Presbyterian faith and was compelled to leave Ireland at the time of the religious persecutions. He sailed for America and upon his arrival located at Brookville, Jefferson County, Pennsylvania. He devoted his time to the practice of medicine and farming, as that section of country was but sparsely settled at that time. He and his boys gradually cleared a large farm which they cultivated and maintained as a home until the children left to make homes for themselves. He was the father of a large family of children, of whom but one, George, entered the medical profession.

George Wilson was born in this country and spent his boyhood days on the farm near Brooksville, the most of which he helped to clear. He took up the study of medicine under the direction of Dr. James Dowling, and later attended lectures at Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia, from which he was graduated. He embarked in practice at Luthersburg, Pennsylvania, and continued there with uninterrupted success until his death in 1893, at the age of eighty years. His wife, who in maiden life was Anna Huber, died at the age of sixty-five. Nine children were born to them, six of whom grew to maturity, namely: Edgar, now deceased; Dr. Joseph C., a graduate of the medical department of the University of Maryland, who is located at Titusville, Pennsylvania; Dr. Charles A., a graduate of the Kentucky School of Medicine, located at DuBois, Penna.; Col. John P. of Punxsutawney, Penna.; Anna, who was a school teacher and died at the age of twenty-one years; and Dr. Harry M., the youngest of the family.

Harry M. Wilson received a preliminary educational training at the State Normal School at Edinboro, Penna., after which he studied medicine under the preceptorship of his brother, Dr. C. A. Wilson at DuBois, Pennsylvania. He then attended lectures in the Medical Department of the University of Maryland, and was graduated with the class of 1889. His first two years of professional work were passed at Stanton, Pennsylvania, after which, on January 1, 1891, he located at Evans City. His office and comfortable home are located on Main Street. He is a member of the Jefferson County Medical Society, the Butler County Medical Society, the Pennsylvania State Medical Society, and the American Medical Association. He also is a member of the National Association of Railway Surgeons. He is medical examiner for all the old line life insurance companies at Evans City.

Doctor Wilson was married June 3, 1896, to Miss Blanche Starkey, a daughter of George L. and Agusta C. Starkey of Washington, D. C. She was but two years old when her father died as the result of wounds received during the Civil War. Two children were born to them: Myrtle Katherine, and Doas Starkey. Fraternally, the Doctor is a thirty-second degree Mason; belongs to the Mystic Shrine; the Independent Order of Odd Fellows; and the Knights of Pythias. Politically, he is a Democrat.

GEORGE A. BRUNERMER, who has ninety acres of his valuable farm of 103 acres, situated in Connoquenessing Township, under careful cultivation, is not only a successful agriculturist but also an experienced oil man. He was born in Connoquenessing Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, October 3, 1853, and is a son of Henry and Jane (Graham) Brunermer.

The grandfather, Frederick Brunermer, was born, reared and married in Germany, and when he first emigrated he settled with his wife and two children, in Canada, where he continued to live until after the birth of two more children, when he moved to Butler County, Pennsylvania. Henry Brunermer, father of George A., was born in 1825, in Forward Township, Butler County, and died November 23, 1896, in his sixty-ninth year. When eighteen years old he went to Canada and there learned the carpenter and millwright trades and when twenty-one he returned to Butler County and spent the remainder of his life in this section. He was engaged in a contracting business for many years in partnership with Harrison Dyke, under the firm name of Dyke & Brunermer. In 1865 he bought a farm in Connoquenessing Township, of which his son George A. became manager. In politics a Republican. Mr. Brunermer was elected by his party to a number of local offices and filled them honestly and satisfactorily. He married a daughter of Alexander Graham and they had nine children born to them, namely: George A.; Elizabeth, who married Hanse Anderson, of New Castle; Ada, residing at New Castle, the widow of Rev. Samuel Krohn; Laura and Anna, both residents of New Castle; Daniel Graham, who lives in Connoquenessing Township; Agnes, who married Howard Oaks, of Butler Township; Blanche, who married Orie Hayes, residing in Connoquenessing Township; and Etta, who married Philip Carothers, of Youngstown. The parents were worthy members of the White Oak Springs United Presbyterian Church, in which the father was an elder for many years.

After he completed his period of school attendance, George A. Brunermer became a driller in the oil fields and in pursuing that occupation, he visited the oil sections in Bradford County, Pennsylvania, then went to Allentown, New York, where he drilled for ten years and for four years was engaged at Little Washington. In 1893 he came back to Connoquenessing Township and secured leases of oil land and worked as driller and driver, but since 1899, when he purchased his present farm, he has been mainly interested in farming and stockraising. In addition to growing corn, oats, wheat, hay and potatoes, he has an annual bountiful yield of apples. He has two producing oil wells on his own land.

Mr. Brunermer married Miss Cora Jessie Collins, a daughter of George Collins, of Jamestown, Pennsylvania, and they have three children: Ella J., wife of Joseph Anderson, of Butler; Hazel Ruth, and Henry Clare. He is a member of the White Oak Springs United Presbyterian Church, of which he has been an elder for some years and has also served in the office of Sunday-school superintendent. In politics he is a Republican.

JOHN R. McNAMARA, a representative citizen and prosperous agriculturist of Parker Township, residing on his very valuable farm of 180 acres, is also a veteran of the Civil War and has served as commander of Campbell Post, No. 107, Grand Army of the Republic, at Petrolia. He was born in County Cork, Ireland, May 24, 1844, and is a son of Matthew and Mary (Ryan) McNamara.

The parents of Mr. McNamara were natives of Ireland. When he was five years old, death deprived him of his mother, and shortly afterward his father emigrated to America, settling first at Brady's Bend, in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, but later coming to the present farm in Parker Township, Butler County. Here John R. McNamara grew to manhood and after he completed his school attendance, he engaged in teaching school for a short time, after which he became a soldier in the Federal Army. He enlisted, in September, 1864, in Company I, Eighty-eighth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, which became a part of the Army of the Potomac, in General Hancock's Corps, under General Grant. Mr. McNamara saw much hard service, taking part in the battle at Hatcher's Run, the long series of engagements in front of Petersburg, the battle of Weldon Railroad, and the vigorous campaign which was closed by the surrender of General Lee, at Appomattox. He was honorably discharged in June, 1865, when he returned to Parker Township and resumed the quiet occupations which had interested him previously.

Mr. McNamara married Miss Edith Forquer, who was born in Washington Township, Butler County, and is a daughter of the late William Forquer of that section. Mr. and Mrs. McNamara have the following children: Mary, wife of F. C. Campbell, who has one son, John M.; Elizabeth, who married Samuel Harmon, of Armstrong County, Penna., October 7, 1898; Margaret; John C., division superintendent for the Oil Well Supply Company located at Steubenville, Ohio; Anna, bookkeeper for the Clay Pool Lumber Company at Kittanning, Armstrong County, Penna.; Agnes and Estella, who were both pupils at the State Normal School at Slippery Rock and are now teaching school in Allegheny County, Penna.; Matilda, who died at the age of seventeen years and who was to graduate the year of her death from the State Normal School at Slippery Rock; Irene and Josephine. The family belong to the Roman Catholic Church. Mr. McNamara is serving in the office of school director and has also been township auditor and road supervisor. Nominally he is a Democrat, but he reserves the right to vote independently when his judgment so dictates.

JOHN F. MURRIN, stock dealer, residing at No. 320 West Cunningham Street, Butler, was born in Marion Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, June 29, 1849, and is a son of Hugh and Jane (Gormley) Murrin.

The late Hugh Murrin was one of Butler County's well known men. He was born in Venango Township and was a son of John Murrin, who came from Huntingdon County to Butler County and secured land from the Government in Venango Township, in 1798. After an active and useful life, which caused his memory to be commemorated in the naming of the village of Murrinsville, he died in 1863. Hugh Murrin was born in 1817 and died in September, 1885. He was a large farmer and for many years conducted a hotel. He married Jane Gormley, who was born in Ireland.

John F. Murrin was reared on his father's farm and obtained his education in the public schools of Marion Township. His main interests have been connected with the livestock business for many years and he has dealt very extensively, buying and shipping fat stock to eastern markets. In 1904 he removed from the farm and established his home at Butler but still continues in the same line of business, in which his years of experience have made him an expert. He owns a number of houses and lots in this city and is more or less interested in city realty.

In 1889 Mr. Murrin was married to Miss Saretta Seaton, who was born and reared in Marion Township. Mr. and Mrs. Murrin are members of St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church at Butler.

GEORGE W. HINES, a well known and highly respected farmer of Slippery Rock Township and owner of about 228 acres of farm land, has been a life-long resident of Slippery Rock Township. He was born on his present farm May 13, 1855, and is a son of William and Margaret (Robison) Hines and a grandson of Richard Hines, one of the early settlers of Butler County.

Richard Hines, grandfather of our subject, was born in Ireland and came to this country about the time the Revolutionary War began. He gave his services to the country and in return received a tract of 500 acres in Butler County, Pennsylvania, the greater part of it lying in Brady Township. After the close of the war he engaged in farming on this land until the time of his death. He married Elizabeth Brandon. On this farm, William Hines, father of our subject, was born and reared to manhood and later engaged for many years in agricultural pursuits. He married Margaret Robison, a daughter of James Robison and a native of Slippery Rock Township. To them were born the following children: William Perry, a resident of West Liberty, Butler County, Pennsylvania; Mary Elizabeth (Mrs. Martin); James M.; Susanna (Mrs. McCamant), deceased; Margaret J. (Mrs. Hay); George W., our subject; Robert C.; Rebecca E. (Mrs. McDeavitt); Sarah M. (Mrs. Castor); and John A., deceased. William Hines died on the homestead farm March 30, 1878, and his widow survived him until November 9, 1895.

George W. Hines was reared on his present farm and has always made farming his occupation. In connection with his farming interests, however, he has for a number of years been engaged in the saw-mill business, having for some time been associated with Al Hay and John Ralston. He is still engaged in the same business, his present partners being John H. McDeavitt, Joseph Boyd and William McDeavitt. Mr. Hines resides on 100 acres of the old homestead farm, lying partly in West Liberty Borough, and recently purchased a tract of 128 acres, known as the William B. Cooper farm, in Slippery Rock Township about one mile west of the borough of Slippery Rock.

Mr. Hines was first united in marriage with Sarah E. Cooper, and to them were born six children, but three of whom are living, namely: Clyde F., a surveyor; John H.; and William P. Those deceased are Celetta, Robert, and Alvin. After the death of Mrs. Sarah Hines Mr. Hines married Myrtle M. Taylor, who was born and reared in Worth Township and is a daughter of William E. and Adeline A. Taylor. Her father was a surveyor and died in 1894. He is still survived by his widow.

To Mr. and Mrs. Hines have been born three children, as follows: George S., Margaret A., and Everett C.

FRANK S. and JOSEPH L. BECK, farmers and oil operators of Clearfield Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, have a fine farm of 100 acres located about two miles and one-half east of Herman. They are sons of Adam Joseph and Barbara (Sauer) Beck, and grandsons of George Frank Beck.

George Frank Beck was born in Bavaria, Germany, and upon coming to the United States settled on a farm of thirty acres in Clearfield Township, Butler County, this being the nucleus of the farm now owned by his grandsons.

His son, Adam Joseph Beck, was born September 12, 1841, and engaged in farming throughout his active career. He took charge of the home farm after his father's death, and by persevering and good managing was able to add to the place. His first additional purchase was that of an adjoining tract of forty-one acres, and shortly prior to his death he bought another piece of land consisting of thirty-one acres, making the total a little more than 100 acres. He was a man of the highest honor and integrity, and enjoyed the confidence and good will of his fellow citizens. He served the township two terms as supervisor. His death occurred on December 8, 1906, and he was buried in the cemetery at Herman. He was a devout Christian and a faithful member of the Catholic church. Mr. Beck was united in marriage with Miss Barbara Sauer, who was born in Pittsburg and is of German parentage. She lived in Pittsburg until her marriage, since which time she has lived on the old Beck homestead in Clearfield township.

Frank S. Beck was born on the home place June 3, 1887, and Joseph Lewis Beck was born on the same place, May 14, 1889. They were reared here and attended the local schools, and after the death of their father assumed the management of the farm, becoming undoubtedly the youngest farmers in the township. Reared to work and of ambitious natures, their chief desire is to furnish their mother a home and peace and comfort. Joseph L. looks after the farming interests chiefly, and Frank S. devotes his attention to the oil interests. They are producing about three barrels of oil per day and contemplate drilling in the near future. They follow general farming and raise some stock. They have but recently fixed up the house which has adorned the place so many years, and now have a very comfortable home. Religiously, both are members of the Catholic church.

JOHN F. LOWRY, capitalist, a retired citizen of Butler, who owns much property here and for many years was a very active business man, was born in this city on October 12, 1850, and is a son of Alexander Lowry, one of the pioneers of the county.

John F. Lowry completed his education in Witherspoon Institute and for several years after conducted a livery stable and after that he succeeded his father as proprietor of the Lowry House, one of the old hostleries of the city. He conducted this public house for several years and after disposing of it ran a livery stable again, for six years, and then became interested in real estate. His time is occupied in looking after his large interests in this line. He owns a tract in the borough limits which he has platted under the name of Hildale. He is a stockholder in various prospering enterprises and has always been considered a man of much business foresight. Politically, he is a Republican and he served during nine years as a member of the Butler council and during that period the larger number of the streets were paved, his influence ever being exerted in the direction of permanent public improvements.

On July 19, 1877, Mr. Lowry was married to Miss Martha Belle Thompson, of Pittsburg, who died December 4, 1903. Three sons survive—Gardner C., Robert S. and Walter Thompson. The eldest son, Gardner C., is a graduate of Grove City College, and is connected with the Butler Savings & Trust Company. Robert S. is a practicing physician at Ellwood City, Pennsylvania. He attended Lehigh University two years, spent three years at Jefferson Medical College, and was graduated from the Medico-Chirurgical College of Philadelphia. The youngest son, Walter Thompson, is a graduate of Grove City College and is a student in the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Lowry is a member of the First Presbyterian Church at Butler. Fraternally he is identified with the Masons and Odd Fellows.

PETER MCCOLLOUGH, one of Butler County's prominent and substantial citizens, who is engaged in oil production and insurance, at Chicora, retains possession of his valuable farm of 116 acres, in Fairview Township, on which he resided until 1896. He was born in Fairview Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, April 10, 1835, and is a son of William and Elizabeth (Rumbaugh) McCollough.

The McCollough family was established in Butler County at a very early day by Captain John McCollough, a native of Virginia, who gained his title through service in the War of 1812. He was the grandfather of Peter McCollough and the father of William McCollough. The latter was born and spent his entire life in Fairview Township, Butler County. He married Elizabeth Rumbaugh, who was born in Armstrong County, and they had ten children, namely: Polly, Phebe, Sarah, Elizabeth, John, David, Henry, Peter, William and Samuel, the survivors being David, Peter and Samuel. The parents of this family were most worthy people and through their long and useful lives were beloved and respected.

Peter McCollough went to school with his brothers and sisters, in Fairview Township, and until he was twenty years old assisted his father on the home farm and, after his marriage, in 1856, took possession of it. He continued to operate the farm, growing grain and raising stock, and also developed oil on his land, there being three producing wells on the property at the present time. In 1898 he purchased property at Chicora and moved to the town in the same year. He is one of the most active business men of the place and aside from his own affairs, lends his influence to all public-spirited measures which promise to benefit the whole community.

In 1856 Mr. McCollough was married (first) to Miss Anna Daubenspeck, a daughter of Jacob and Catherine Daubenspeck, of Washington Township. Mrs. McCollough died March 11, 1897, having been the mother of eight children, namely: Catherine, who was born August 8, 1857, and died February 23, 1861; Emma, who was born October 30, 1858, married Ross McDermott, and they reside at Butler; Henry C., who was born November 7, 1860, married Mary Miller and they live at Butler and have one child; Newton C., who was born December 28, 1863, married Millie Sherman and they live at Butler and have one son; Euphemia, who was born August 6, 1865, married John Steindorf and they live in California and have two children; Clara M., who was born November 6, 1869, married Finley Milford and they live at Foxburg and have three children; Jacob W., who was born October 5, 1872, married Clara Craig and they live in East Butler and have three children; and Jessie O., who was born June 4, 1879, married George Glenn and they live in Michigan and have two children. Mr. McCollough was married (second) June 6, 1900, to Miss Martha Emery, of Washington Township, Butler County, where she was born October 4, 1858. Their infant son, born May 3, 1901, died on the same day. Mr. McCollough is a leading member of the English Lutheran Church at Chicora. He belongs to the Order of Knights of Pythias. For many years Mr. McCollough has shown his interest in educational advancement in this part of the county by serving as treasurer of the School Board and as school director. He is a good citizen but is no seeker for office and when elected road supervisor, declined to serve.

ALEXANDER TAYLOR, a venerated and highly respected citizen of Allegheny Township, Butler County, Penna., has been a resident of the township for more than a quarter of a century and has been engaged in farming and the production of oil. He has a half interest in a tract of 108 acres, most of which is under cultivation, and takes rank among the substantial and progressive men of the community. He was born in County Down, Ireland, January 27, 1836, and is a son of James and Nancy (McMurray) Taylor, both natives of that country.

Alexander Taylor was reared to man's estate in Ireland, and there received a common school education. He turned his attention to agricultural pursuits in his boyhood days and continued at that occupation in his native land until 1857. He then went to Liverpool, from whence he took passage in a sailing vessel for New York City. He landed on June 12th, after a voyage of one month, and immediately thereafter made his way to Beaver County, Pennsylvania. He farmed in that county several years, then was located for a time at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania. In 1866 he located at Parker's Landing, and shortly after came on to Allegheny Township, Butler County, where he has since continued with uninterrupted success.

February 6, 1862, Mr. Taylor was united in marriage with Miss Eliza Gorman, who was born in County Down, Ireland, and was a daughter of James H. Gorman. Of ten children born of their union, five survive, as follows: James A. of Allegheny Township; John H. of Parker's Landing; Jennie D. of Baltimore, Maryland; William, of Pittsburg; and Samuel M., who also lives in Allegheny Township. Mrs. Taylor was called to her final rest, December 23, 1905. She was a woman of the highest Christian type, was a member of the Episcopal church, and her death was sadly mourned by her family and the many friends in the community, with whom she had been so long acquainted. Mr. Taylor also is a member of the Episcopal Church. He is a Republican in politics, and evinces an intelligent interest in matters of importance to the community.

A. C. RICHARDS, of the firm of Goehring & Richards, wholesale dealers in fruits and produce, with business quarters at No. 333 East Main Street, Butler, is one of the city's enterprising young business men. He was born in Iowa, September 19, 1877.

Mr. Richards was small when his parents removed from Iowa to Kansas, his father taking charge of a ranch near Silver Lake, and later removing to Topeka, Kansas, where the child grew into a youth of sixteen years. While in Topeka Mr. Richards' father died. He then came to Butler, with his stepfather and mother, where he completed his education, after which he entered the employ of the Street Railroad Company. In 1902 he went to work for his present partner, Mr. Goehring, and in February, 1906, was admitted a member of the firm, at which time the present style was adopted. This business is the only one of its kind at Butler, and, covering the whole field, is constantly gaining in volume and importance. The firm does an entirely wholesale trade and handles and ships all kinds of produce and fruit. Mr. Richards has additional interests and is a stockholder in the Butler Fair Association.

In January, 1902, Mr. Richards was married to Miss Frederica W. Leidecker, who is a daughter of F. W. Leidecker, a prominent oil producer of Butler. They have two charming little children, Frederick Lewis and Lucille May. In politics, he is identified with the Republican party.

ABRAM WESTLEY MOYER, junior member of the well known firm of Silter, Swain & Moyer, operating one of the largest general stores of Harmony, Butler County, was born October 8, 1870, in Lancaster Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Samuel A. and Lizzie (Measel) Moyer.

Samuel Moyer, a native of Butler County, and now a resident of Harmony, followed farming as an occupation during his years of business activity. He married Lizzie Measel, also a native of Butler County, who is still living at the age of fifty-nine years. They are the parents of two children—Martha, the wife of John Erb of Harmony, and Abram W., the subject of this sketch. The paternal grandparents of our subjects were Abram and Martha Moyer, who for many years resided in Lancaster Township and died in Butler, Pennsylvania. Michael and Sophia Measel, the maternal grandparents of subject, were natives of Germany, who came to this country and located in Lancaster Township, Butler County, Penna., where they both died.

Abram W. Moyer was reared in Lancaster Township, where he attended the common schools, after which he attended the schools of Zelienople until nineteen years of age, when he accepted a situation as clerk in the general store of G. D. Swain of Harmony. After remaining in the employ of Mr. Swain for a period of four years, he carried mail to Prospect for the following three years. In February, 1904, he became a member of the firm and has now been associated with the firm for a period of fifteen years, the business having been established thirty-five years ago, now carrying a stock worth $15,000. It is one of the largest stores of its kind in Harmony and during the busy season several extra assistants are required to meet the demands which the extensive patronage of the firm commands.

In 1897 Mr. Moyer was united in marriage with Pina Foster, a daughter of A. H. and Hattie Foster of Mazon, Illinois.

Mr. Moyer is a Democrat in politics and has served as a member of the town Council. He is fraternally affiliated with the Knights of Pythias, the I. O. O. F. and the Royal Arcanum Local Lodge. Mr. and Mrs. Moyer are members of the Grace Reformed Church of Harmony.

J. ANDREW EHMER, oil producer, who has resided at Butler for some thirteen years, is a representative citizen of the place and has long been identified with many of its interests. He was born in Summit Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, in 1868 and has always made his home in his native county. Andrew Ehmer, the father of J. Andrew, was born in Germany and he settled in Butler County, where he carried on farming until his death, which took place July 12, 1886.

J. Andrew Ehmer was reared in Summit Township and during boyhood attended the little brick schoolhouse standing not far from his father's farm. His first independent business was groceries and general merchandising and for thirteen years he conducted a store at Butler, at 240 Second street, at the end of that time selling out on account of failing health, retiring in March, 1908. For some years he has been interested in oil production and occupies himself with looking after these interests. He has always been counted a good citizen, his influence ever having been exerted in the direction of good government, but he is no politician.

On April 14, 1896, Mr. Ehmer was married to Miss Louise Fisher, a daughter of George Fisher, of Jefferson Township, Butler County, and they have two children, Harry and Pearl. Mr. and Mrs. Ehmer are members of the German Lutheran Church.

FRED PEFFER, one of Evans City's most successful business men, has conducted a store for the sale of pianos and organs in that village for almost a quarter of a century. He was born on the old home farm in Lancaster Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, January 12, 1862, and is a son of William F. and Sarah (Heberling) Pfeffer.

William F. Pfeffer was born in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and when a young man accompanied his parents to Butler County. His father, Jacob F. Pfeffer, settled first near Harmony, then moved to Lancaster Township, where he resided at his death. William F. Pfeffer has always engaged in farming and is now living with his wife on the old home place in Lancaster Township. They are parents of four children: William Fred, whose name heads this sketch; John A.; Mary A., wife of David A. Wright; and Paul H.

William Fred Pfeffer was reared on the old home place and obtained an intellectual training in the district schools there, and in the schools of Harmony. He worked on the farm until he was twenty years old, then traveled through the country selling and repairing organs. About the year 1886, he opened his store for the sale of pianos and organs in Evans City and has since conducted a thriving business.

In October, 1887, Mr. Pfeffer was united in marriage with Miss Clara Stoner, a daughter of James Stoner, and they have three children, Elizabeth, Sarah, and Pauline. Fraternally, he is a member of Evans City Lodge, No. 817, I. O. O. F., of which he was secretary a number of years; and of the Encampment, I. O. O. F. Religiously, he and his wife are members of the Presbyterian church, of which he is an elder. In political affiliation, he is a Republican.

JAMES LOYAL CHRISTIE, M. D., a leading physician at Connequenessing, where he also conducts a drug store, has been a resident of this borough for more than thirty years and is closely identified with its various interests. He was born April 19, 1852, in Concord Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of William A. and Sarah Jane (McJunkin) Christie.

The Christie family is of Scotch-Irish descent and probably the grandfather, John Christie, was born in Scotland and came to Westmoreland County in his youth and later became a pioneer in Butler County. He served in the War of 1812. He married Margaret McLane, who was born in the north of Ireland. The grandfather died in 1859 and Dr. Christie prizes very highly a gun that his grandsire carried in the army.

William A. Christie, father of Dr. Christie, was born January 13, 1823, in Concord Township and died at Unionville, June 6, 1905. He followed farming in Concord Township until 1859, when he moved to Center Township and lived there during the remainder of his life. At various times he held responsible positions in county and township, serving five terms as justice of the peace in Center Township and for three years as county commissioner in Butler County. He was a man of sterling integrity and for over thirty years was an elder in the Muddy Creek Presbyterian Church. He married a daughter of James McJunkin, of Clay Township, and four of their six children grew to maturity: James Loyal; Lina, who is the wife of Dr. A. Hollman of Unionville; William M., of Medford, Oklahoma; and Harry C., of Kansas City, Missouri.

Dr. Christie attended the common schools in Center Township, later Witherpoon Institute, at Butler and then Grove City Academy, the latter being the nucleus of the present Grove City College. He then entered upon the study of medicine and pursued his reading under the direction of Dr. A. M. Neyman, of Butler, and from his preceptorship went to the Western Reserve Medical College at Cleveland, Ohio, and was graduated in the spring of 1877, at the Miami Medical College at Cincinnati. He found an opening for practice at Connequenessing and has never discovered any reason for separating himself from the good people of this place. Dr. Christie is probably as well known in this section as any resident, having professional relations with the majority and taking so active an interest in the life of the place that it could not be otherwise. In 1888 he opened a drug store, where he makes up prescriptions, thus being confident as to the quality of his drugs, and in addition to carrying the stock usually found in first-class establishments of this kind, also handles paints. In his political views he is a Republican, has served as auditor and for twelve years was a member of the School Board. He is vice president of the Connequenessing Telephone Company, of which he was one of the organizers, the other officers being: Greer McCandless, president, and J. C. Brandon, secretary.

Dr. Christie was married (first) to Sarah Richardson, a daughter of William and Eliza Richardson. She died January 1, 1888, aged thirty-two years. She had been a devoted member of the United Presbyterian Church all her life. Two sons survived her: Frank and Karl. The former graduated from Westminster College in 1906 and resides at Butler. The latter was graduated in the same year from Reno College and lives in Pittsburg. Dr. Christie was married (second) to Miss Tyne Jamison, who is a daughter of Rev.

William Jamison, and they have two children, Ralph and Mildred. Dr. Christie's four children have been afforded excellent educational advantages and all have been students in the Butler High School. He is a member of the White Oak United Presbyterian Church, of which he has been a trustee since 1881. He is identified with a number of medical organizations, including the county and State societies and the American Medical Association.

BARNEY STEIGHNER is a well known oil operator of Herman, Summit Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and has been a resident of the county since his early boyhood. He was born in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, in 1850, and is a son of Christopher and Mary (Schree) Steighner. His father was a very prominent farmer, the facts concerning him and other members of the family being given in greater detail on another page of this volume. He and his wife were parents of the following children: Joseph, John, Barney (whose name heads this sketch), Christ, Barbara, Catherine, Lena, and Mary.

Barney Steighner was a small boy when brought to Butler County, and he here received his intellectual training in the public schools. He followed farming many years, but more recently he has devoted his energy to the oil fields, and has attained much success as an operator. He and his family reside in a handsome and commodious house at Herman.

The subject of this sketch was joined in marriage with Miss Elizabeth Gallagher, a daughter of John and Catherine (Bleicher) Gallagher, her father being a prominent farmer of the county. The following were the issue of this union: Edward, who married Margaret Knauer and has nine children—Harry, Clarence (deceased), Dora, Elmerine, Raymond, Alvin, Ralph, Edward, and Pearl; Agnes, deceased; Felix, Christ H., William A., and Lillian, wife of Walter Howard, a well known oil man of Butler County, by whom she has two children, Ardelle and Regis. Religiously, they are consistent members of the Catholic church at Herman.

GALVIN C. COCHRANE, one of Butler's prominent citizens, who for years has been identified with the oil industry, has resided in his beautiful residence at No. 634 Fairview Avenue, Butler, since October, 1889. He was born near Kittanning, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, in 1849.

Mr. Cochrane remained in his native place until he was sixteen years old, securing a good public school education that made him available as a clerk in his brother's store, at Macomb, Illinois; but after one year he returned to Kittanning and from there went into the oil fields. His connection has never ceased and he is now interested in a pipe line business. For thirty years he has been connected with the National Transit Company. He is well known all over the oil territory and his years of experience in almost every Pennsylvania field makes him an authority in all that concerns it.

In 1883, Mr. Cochrane was married to Miss Mary I. Thompson, of Parker, Pennsylvania, and they had one child, May, whom they lost when at the engaging age of four years. Mr. Cochrane is a member of the Royal Arcanum.

PHILIP DAUBENSPECK, one of Butler's most esteemed citizens, whose generous benefactions to schools, churches and charities have made his name revered for many years past, is a worthy representative of one of the oldest and most honorable pioneer families of Butler County. Philip Daubenspeck was born August 28, 1829, in Parker Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of George and Elizabeth (Barnhart) Daubenspeck.

The father of Mr. Daubenspeck was born in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, and at a very early period of his life came to Butler County as it now is and secured a farm in Parker Township, which was then but an uncleared wilderness. He married Elizabeth Barnhart, who belonged to another old family of the county, and they reared a family of seven sons and three daughters, namely: Daniel, Philip, David, Abraham, William, George F., Jacob, Lavina, Susan and Mary. Daniel and William both died while serving as soldiers in the Civil War. David died in 1907. Lavina was accidentally killed in a railroad accident. George Daubenspeck lived to see his pioneer farm cleared, cultivated and improved. For many years he was a man of importance in his section and his descendants have been worthy representatives.

PHILIP DAUBENSPECK

Philip Daubenspeck attended the district schools in boyhood and assisted his father in taking care of the farm until he entered the coal mines, where he worked for a time, but later returned to farming. He continued to reside in Parker Township until 1882, when he and wife moved to Butler and took possession of their comfortable home at No. 330 Center Avenue. On September 25, 1851, he was married to Miss Nancy Scott, who was born in Ireland and is a daughter of James Scott. They are members of the Second Reformed Church.

Since coming to Butler, Mr. Daubenspeck has interested himself in handling real estate, but there are those of his fellow citizens who seem to think that his chief occupation is in his liberal dispensation of charity, his generosity to the public including rich gifts to church, college and hospitals, while his benefactions to the poor will never be fully known, for his giving has been done too unostentatiously. He justly deserves the name of philanthropist and the affectionate and respectful regard which he has inspired in his fellow citizens.

DALLAS M. YOUNG, of the prominent clothing firm of Green & Young, at Butler, is one of the city's most enterprising and progressive young business men. He was born December 23, 1880, near Sunbury, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Thomas B. Young, who is one of the most prominent oil operators in this section.

Dallas M. Young was educated in the local schools, Grove City College, the Slippery Rock State Normal School, and completed his studies, with a view of entering into business, at the Butler Commercial College. For two years he was identified with the oil industry, after which he turned his attention to mercantile life and on August 1, 1901, in association with Paul E. Green, bought out the clothing firm of T. H. Burton, at Butler, establishing the firm of Green & Young. Energy and enterprise, together with ample capital, soon advanced this firm to the front rank among Butler's representative business houses. The firm owns two valuable properties on Main Street, Butler, and each partner has farming interests in the county.

In December, 1903, Mr. Young was married to Miss Anna Katherine Leidecker, who is a daughter of Henry Leidecker, a prominent oil producer of Butler County. Mr. and Mrs. Young are members of the Second Presbyterian Church at Butler. He is affiliated with both the Masons and Odd Fellows.

CHARLES R. GOEHRING, owner of a farm of ninety acres in Forward Township, located on the traction line about twelve miles southwest of Butler, comes of an old and respected family of the county. He was born on his present farm May 19, 1872, and is a son of William and Sarah (Rape) Goehring.

William Goehring was born near Zelinople, in Butler County, Pennsylvania, his father being one of the pioneers of that vicinity. He remained on the home place until his marriage, then purchased a farm on Muddy Creek, on which he lived until he bought the farm in Forward Township, on which Charles R. Goehring now lives. The latter years of his life were spent in retirement at Evans City, where he died in 1901, at the age of seventy-one years. Mrs. Gochring, who also was born near Zelienople, in Butler County, is now living at the old home in Evans City. They had the following children: John; Gellard; Matilda, wife of Gus Beam; Sarah, wife of John Entrest; Sophia, wife of George Milliman; Nettie, wife of C. Murberger; Ella, deceased wife of Martin Spithaler; Christina, wife of Henry Lutz; Susan, wife of W. A. Lutz; Charles Raymond; and Abigail, wife of Henry Knauff.

Charles Raymond Goehring was reared and has always lived on the farm where he now resides. He received his educational training in the public schools and early turned his attention to agricultural pursuits. He assumed charge of the home place the year prior to his marriage, and although most of the buildings were previously erected he has made numerous important improvements and kept the land under a high state of cultivation. Oil was developed on the property in 1888, and there are now six paying wells on it. He follows general farming, and is a progressive and successful business man.

September 15, 1898, Mr. Goehring was united in marriage with Miss Amelia Gross, a daughter of William Gross, and they have two children, Frances May, and Twila Alberta. Religiously, they are members of the Reformed Church. In political affiliation, Mr. Goehring is a Republican and takes an active interest in the success of that party.

FRED EYLES, one of the substantial business men of Zelienople, Pennsylvania, whose large piano and musical instrument establishment is located in the First National Bank Building on New Castle Street, was born August 8, 1865, in Allegheny, Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Emil A. and Barbara (Jenny) Eyles.

Emil A. Eyles was born in Frankfort, Germany, and came to this country with his parents in young manhood, settling in Allegheny where for eighteen years he was connected with Hartley Brothers, tanners and belt manufacturers of Pittsburg. From Pittsburg he removed to East Palestine, where the remainder of his life was spent, and where for some years he served as postmaster. He served as a member of the Forty-fourth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and it was from the effects of a bullet wound, received at the battle of Lookout Mountain, that he died in 1888. His wife, who was born in Switzerland, came to the United States when six years old with her father, Baltzahr Jenny, who was one of the early restaurant keepers of Allegheny. Her death occurred in 1904, in Allegheny. All of the six children of Emil A. and Barbara Eyles are still living, namely: Edward, who for eighteen years has been connected with the Adams Express Company, at Allegheny, and married Emma Wahl; Albert, also with the Adams Express Company, married a Miss Weaver; Julius, who is connected with the Pittsburg Printing Company, and for many years with the Gazette and Despatch, married Mrs. Rebecca Kohler; Fred; Susan married John Coyne, a conductor on the Pittsburg & Lake Erie Railroad, and resides at McKees Rocks; and Amelia, the wife of Dan Rollins, who is connected with a hide and leather firm of Pittsburg as head bookkeeper, lives in a suburb of Pittsburg.

Fred Eyles attended the public schools of the Third Ward, Allegheny, as well as the High School, which he left at the age of seventeen years to engage in his present business. He played at the old Allegheny Exposition, became a teacher of music, and for a number of years acted as agent for Lechner & Schoenberger of Pittsburg. For the past six years, Mr. Eyles has been engaged in the piano and musical instrument business in Zelenople, where he has built up a large trade. He makes a specialty of Kranich and Richmond pianos. Mr. Eyles has devoted his entire business life to his present occupation, and he has become known as the composer of some very fine music. Over forty compositions have come from him, and all have been exceedingly popular, and enjoyed a large sale.

Mr. Eyles was married to Margaret Mendel, a daughter of Henry Mendel, of Allegheny, and two children have been born to this union: Elmer W., formerly assistant foreman at the Iron City Enameling Works, who also conducts a moving picture theatre; and Harvey R., a student of the Zelenople High school.

Mr. Eyles's fraternal connections are with the Knights of Pythias, the Odd Fellows, the Modern Woodmen, and the Elks, and he is also a member of the Sons of Veterans. He is a Republican in politics. His religious belief is that of the English Lutheran Church.

O. H. NICHOLAS, one of Butler's active and enterprising business men, has been a resident of this city for thirty-two years and now controls a large transfer and transportation business and has interests in other enterprises. He was born in Connoqueensing Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, in May, 1870, and is a son of the late Henry W. Nicholas, who came to Butler in 1876.

O. H. Nicholas obtained his education in the public schools and his first money was earned when he became the employe of the Pennsylvania Railroad and wheeled the mail bags from the railway station to and from the post-office. He proved reliable and later was employed in the car inspection department and was given charge of the freight and baggage room at Butler. He was thus employed until 1902 when he went into the transfer business for himself and has operated with such efficiency that he has been given the larger amount of city patronage. He has excellent accommodations in the way of transfer wagons, quite equal to any to be found in larger cities. He is a stockholder in other enterprises, notably the Butler Compressed Air & Vacuum Cleaner Company.

In August, 1895, Mr. Nicholas was married to Miss Amelia Oesterling, of Butler County, and they have the following children: Ralph Albert, Orin Henry, Charles William, Robert Edgar, four fine sons, and a wee daughter, Emily Elizabeth. Mr. Nicholas and wife are members of St. Paul's Reformed Church of the South Side, in which he is a deacon. He is a member of the Knights of Maccabee.

JACOB G. RENICK, one of Center Township's most prominent citizens, justice of the peace and the owner of 305 acres of fine farming land which is situated on the graded or Sunbury Road, about seven miles north of Butler. Mr. Renick was born on a farm in Butler County, Pennsylvania, seven miles south of the city, September 3, 1852, and is a son of William and Caroline (Snyder) Renick.

William Renick and wife were both born in Germany but were not married until after they came to America. By trade he was a blacksmith and when his son Jacob G., was one and one-half years old he moved to Slippery Rock Township, where he operated a blacksmith business for many years. He also invested in farming land and prospered, so that at the time of his death, he owned 1,100 acres.

After Jacob G. Renick had completed his education, which he obtained in the country schools and the Iron City College at Pittsburg, he went to the oil fields, where he found work as a tool dresser and also did some contracting and later became a lumber contractor. He purchased a portable saw-mill and worked all over Butler County for some seven years and then turned his attention to farming, settling on what was the old Moses Thompson farm. He continued his lumber business to some degree until within the past several years. With the assistance of his sons he carries on extensive farming operations and raises some fine stock.

Mr. Renick was married (first) to Narcissa Christy, who left two children at death: Clyde and Flossie, the latter of whom is the wife of S. J. Wick. Mr. Renick was married (second) to Ada Sproull, who is a daughter of Hugh Sproull, a resident of Cherry Township. Ten children were born to the second union, the eight survivors being Paul, Grace, Hugh D., Bertha, Hazel, Beatrice, Lillian and Alice. Grace is the wife of Oscar Fleeger. Few citizens of Center Township are better known than Mr. Renick. He is highly esteemed as a man of judgment and probity by his fellow citizens who have elected him a justice of the peace, tax collector and road supervisor. On all matters of public interest in the township his advice and counsel are sought.

ADAM ENDRES, who has the distinction of being the oldest male resident of Zelenople and the oldest also of Harmony, Butler County, Pennsylvania, bears well his weight of eighty-five years and looks out on life with that clearness of mental vision that comes only through long experience and the solving of many of the perplexing problems which still face the younger generations. He was born December 26, 1823, near Falseburg, in the province of Alsace-Lorraine, and is a son of Adam and Christina Endres.

In 1835 the parents of Mr. Endres decided to emigrate to the United States and they set sail from Havre de Grace on a vessel bound for New York, which port they safely reached after a voyage of fifty-two days, and landed at Castle Garden. The objective point was Zelenople, where other emigrants known to them had already settled. In those days the distance between New York and Butler County was only covered by a long and tortuous route. By steamboat the party went from New York to Albany, from there by the Erie Canal to Buffalo, and from there again by water to Erie, Pennsylvania. At that point a wait of nine days had to be endured before wagons could be secured to transport the travelers to Zelenople. In the meanwhile, the father was offered a tract of 106 acres of land for $700, this now being a part of the busiest section of the city of Erie, but advantage was not taken of that offer, the family thereby losing a fortune. The father finally selected land in Beaver County, about four miles from Zelenople and that remained the family home until the death of his wife. By trade he was a wagonmaker. He was a man of excellent business qualifications and proved himself a great addition to the good citizenship of the section in which he settled, doing all in his power to develop the neighborhood in which he lived and to help those who were less fortunate than himself. In 1858, after his mother's death, Adam Endres the younger bought 300 acres of land adjacent to Zelenople and moved on it, his father accompanying him. The latter died aged sixty-eight years. The family consisted of two children: Adam and Caroline. The latter married Lewis Teets, of Beaver County, where she died when aged seventy-six years. She was six years younger than her brother.

Adam Endres was only twelve years old when the family reached Zelenople, then a small settlement of log cabins. He can recall many exciting events of that time and one of these would probably have resulted in the family returning to Germany had not the father's money been all invested in the new home. It was a new experience to the careful, tidy housekeeper, his mother, to start to housekeeping in a log cabin and no doubt the prospect was very discouraging to her. It was also terrifying when, the first night, a great snake fell on her bed, so alarming her that she could sleep no more and spent the hours in tears. With forests, heavy underbrush, undrained swamps, there were plenty of places in which all wild things, including serpents, could conceal themselves in all this section at this time, and many subsequent adventures finally wore away the first feelings of terror. Mr. Endres, himself, killed the last rattlesnake ever found or reported seen in Beaver County. After acquiring his first farm he made dairying his main industry, keeping as many as twenty-four head of cows. For thirty-two years he made a weekly trip to Pittsburg, where he supplied the old Monongahela House and other hotels, together with a number of the most particular people with high class butter, getting the best prices then paid for this luxury. He owned at one time 300 acres also in Beaver Township but has disposed of all that land. His present farm, adjoining Zelenople, is very valuable and he can foresee the day when a part of it will be converted into busy marts of trade for his descendants. When he first visited Allegheny, now a rich and busy city, there was only a wide expanse of land for the eye to rest on. In 1880 Mr. Endres built his present comfortable residence.

In 1846 Mr. Endres was married (first) to Miss Elizabeth Wurster, a daughter of Jacob Wurster, who was one of the first settlers in Jackson Township. Mr. Endres was married (second) to Miss Maria Voegtley, whose grandfather owned all the land which is now included in the upper part of the city of Allegheny, at the time the Endres family came to Western Pennsylvania. Mr. Endres has had ten children, the four survivors being: Caroline, who is the widow of George Bastian, resides at Williamsport, Pennsylvania, and has three sons and one daughter; Sarah, who married Herman Speirer, formerly a merchant at Rochester, Pennsylvania, and has three sons and one daughter; Matilda, who is the widow of W. H. Lusk, a sketch of whom appears on another page of this work, formerly an attorney at Butler, where she lives, has two sons and two daughters; and Jacob, who resides on the home farm, married a daughter of George Teets, of Beaver County, and they are parents of five children. The oldest son, Daniel, who lived with his father, died in 1907, aged fifty-eight years. He married Ella Smith, of Ohio, who, with two sons, survives him. Four children, all young, died within a period of nine days, from an epidemic of diphtheria—Catherine, Lena, Sophia and Charlotta. George died aged one year.

Mr. Endres is a Republican in his political convictions and he takes a hearty interest in both public and local affairs. He has always been a law-abiding citizen and has done his full share in the developing and improving of this section. His life spans a very important period of the world's history and his remarkable memory can recall events and conditions of more than a half century ago which are surprising and very interesting. He has frequently served in political offices in the township, particularly as supervisor and as a member of the School Board, while for more than fifty years he has served as a member of the church council of the English Lutheran Church.

In looking back over the circumstances of his long life, Mr. Endres is disposed to think that the old days were, in many ways, the best days, in spite of their hardships. Conditions of living were so different then. Hospitality was the rule, every stranger was a welcome visitor to each hearth and this confidence was seldom violated. In those days there were no class distinctions, all were on the same plane, and people were not judged by the clothes they wore or the display they could make, but by the better test of upright living and honest dealing with their fellow men.

ROBERT FISHER, proprietor of the Butler Dye Works, located at No. 128 East Wayne Street, has been a resident of this city for fourteen years. He was born in 1853, in England.

In 1881 Mr. Fisher came to America. In his native land he had learned his business, under his father, who was a dyer all his life. Mr. Fisher was employed as a dyer for the Hamilton Manufacturing Company, at Lowell, Massachusetts, for ten months after reaching the United States, and then accepted a position as dyer in the felt mills at Rahway, New Jersey, and continued there for eight months. From New Jersey he went to Kent, Ohio, where he was employed for over three years in the Kent Worsted Mills, as boss dyer and finisher, going from there to Philadelphia as boss dyer for John Beardsley & Sons. He then went into business for himself at Jamestown, New York, which he carried on for three years, after which he came to New Castle and engaged in business in that city for a short time, when he was called to Fitchburg, Massachusetts, and from there to Jamestown, New York, and at the latter place he held the position of boss dyer for the Empire Worsted Mill, for four years. At the end of this period, Mr. Fisher returned to Pennsylvania and established himself in business at Butler. He has erected here a very fine plant which he has equipped with all the necessary appliances for the best kind of work and his long and valuable experience, with some of the largest mills in the country, gives him a great advantage over any business competitors. He is also interested in the Butler Silk Mills and it was mainly through his enterprise and energy that this industry was brought to Butler.

In 1877 Mr. Fisher was married to Miss Sybil Hartley, and they have three children: Abel, who is associated with his father in business; and Emily and Joseph, both at home. Mr. Fisher is a member of the Business Men's Association. In his views on public questions he is a Socialist.

ANDREW WILLIAM BARNHART, a retired farmer of Butler Township, residing on his valuable property which contains 130 acres of well improved land, is also a veteran of the Civil War, whose scars are his best certificate of service. He was born in Donegal Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, March 28, 1839, and is a son of William and Anna Maria (Daubenspeck) Barnhart.

Jacob Barnhart, the grandfather, was the founder of the family in Butler County. He was born in Germany and came to Donegal Township among the very early settlers. He married a Miss Spangler.

William Barnhart, father of Andrew William, was born in that section of Donegal Township known as Barnhart Hollow, now Chicora. He was an elder in what was known as the White Oak Grove German Reformed Church, in Fairview Township. His death occurred when Andrew William was about six years old. He married a daughter of George Daubenspeck, a farmer in Parker Township, and they had the following children: Solomon, now deceased, served in the Civil War first as a lieutenant and later as a captain; Ann married Frank Mays and both are deceased; David and George are both deceased; Gabriel is engaged in farming in Connoquenessing Township; Andrew William; and Kameron, deceased. The widow of William Barnhart was married (second) to Andrew Mays and they had two children, both of whom died young.

Andrew William Barnhart, through an attack of scarlet fever in childhood, had his hearing so impaired that he never attended school until he was a young man; thus he is mainly self educated. Soon after his mother's second marriage, he left home and worked in various places, assisting in building coal barges, lumbering and farming, up to 1862, when he enlisted for service in the Civil War, his hearing in the meantime having become almost normal and not preventing his being received as a soldier. As a member of Company G, One Hundred Thirty-fourth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, he was sent to Harrisburg, and took part later in the battles of Fairfax Court House, Antietam, Snider's Gap, White Plains and Fredericksburg. At the latter battle he was shot in both legs, was wounded three times by balls and cut by bullets, and all these injuries made it necessary for him to go to a hospital, where he was detained until June, 1863. He was then honorably discharged at Harrisburg, and returned as soon as possible to his home. For the two succeeding years, Mr. Barnhart was obliged to use crutches. His first work after he had sufficiently recovered, was to operate a meat wagon, doing his own butchering and selling meat, eggs and butter on a route. After giving that business up, as it entailed too heavy work in his still crippled condition, he worked for a time at making lap shingles. Next he went into the Venango oil fields above Oil City, where he was employed through one season. He was then married and settled down to farming in Sugar Creek Township, in Armstrong County, where he remained until 1886, when he came to Butler Township and settled on his present farm. Until within a few years he has carried on large operations here in grain and stock, but is now taking well earned ease after his years of activity. He is a Republican in his political views and is keenly alive to all that concerns every part of the world, doing a large amount of reading and forming his judgments from exact knowledge. He has consistently refused all political preferment.

Mr. Barnhart was married (first) to Melinda Murtland, a daughter of William Murtland, of Fairview Township. To this marriage the following children were born: Clara A., who married Edward F. Boyer, of Lancaster Township; Minnie A., who married William Vensel, of Donegal Township; Mina Eva, who married J. D. Henry, of Allegheny County; Loretta, who married W. E. Sarver, of Butler; and Lena Temple and William Landis, both of whom died young.

In 1895 Mr. Barnhart was married (second) to Mrs. Susan Detrick, who is a daughter of Henry Dufford, of Connoquenessing Township, Butler County, where she was born August 11, 1842. By her first marriage she had the following children: Ida, who married Frederick Arnold, of Renfrew; William Calvin, who lives near Renfrew; Sarah Margaret, deceased; Elizabeth Ann, deceased, was the wife of William Herter; Cora Emma, deceased, was the wife of Philip Weil; Charles W., who is engaged in farming in Connoquenessing Township; Hosea Franklin, deceased; Lulu Susan, who married Simon D. Morrison, of Penn Township; and Bertha May, who married John A. McClymonds, of Penn Township. Mr. and Mrs. Barnhart are both members of St. John's Reformed Church. He belongs to the Grand Army Post at Butler.

JAMES SYLVESTER McCLAFFERTY, general field superintendent of The Phillips Company and one of the heirs of the old McClafferty homestead of 100 acres located on the Butler and Kittanning Pike, about one and a half miles east of Coyleville, was born on this farm April 30, 1855. He is a son of Neal and Mary (Gillespie) McClafferty, and a grandson of William McClafferty, who was a native of Ireland.

William McClafferty upon coming to this country from Ireland settled upon the old homestead in Clearfield Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and lived here the remainder of his days. Here Neal McClafferty was reared to maturity and lived all his days, becoming a man of considerable importance in the community. He married Mary Gillespie and they became parents of the following children: Sarah, wife of W. A. Greenwood; James Sylvester; William, deceased; Joseph, an oil operator; Dennis, deceased; Amanda; Frances, deceased; Daniel, deceased; Cornelius, who is in the oil business and has spent the past few years in India; Katherine, deceased wife of Michael Wyland; and a twin to Amanda who died unnamed.

James S. McClafferty received his education in the public school of Butler County, and his first business experience was at pumping oil. At the age of twenty-one years he went West, farming in Kansas for three years, then spent six years in Chicago as a cattle shipper. Upon his return to Butler County, he entered the oil field, in which he had had some experience. He began at the very bottom and worked his way up. He entered the service of the Phillips Company about eight years ago, and by faithful and conscientious service gained the commendation of his employers, who in 1906 advanced him to be general field superintendent. He lives on the old home place and has a fine modern home built on the cottage plan.

Mr. McClafferty was first married May 28, 1888, to Miss Mary E. Boyle, a daughter of Dennis and Mary (McGenley) Boyle. She died October 26, 1889, leaving one son, Cornelius Walter, who is a student in the Butler schools. The subject of this sketch formed a second marital union with Miss Cecelia Coyle, a daughter of James and Belle (Shields) Coyle of Penelton, and they are parents of eight children: Emma; Mary Ellen; Genevieve; James Earl; Albert, deceased; Albertus; one who died in infancy, unnamed; and Thomas Anthony. Those living are all at home and in their school period. Mr. Mc-Clafferty served one term as school director. Religiously, he and his family are devout members of the Catholic church and are very active in church affairs.

C. P. EBERLE, a member of the well known firm of Eberle Brothers, contracting plumbers at Butler, doing an extensive business with commodious quarters at No. 302 Center Avenue, was born December 15, 1872, in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of John Eberle, who now resides at Allegheny, in comfortable retirement.

C. P. Eberle was reared at Allegheny and enjoyed excellent school advantages there, after which he learned the plumber's trade and continued to work at it in his native place until 1902, when he came to Butler. After working in this city for six months he recognized that this would be an excellent field in which to establish a first class plumbing business, and shortly afterward, in partnership with his brother, H. W. Eberle, the present firm was formed. This was in 1902 and they started in in the Copley Building, on Center Avenue, which soon proved inadequate on account of increasing business, and they then moved to a building erected for them by Mr. Harper, which again proved too small, and in 1906 the firm erected their own present brick block. It is three stories high, with dimensions of twenty-five by seventy feet, the upper floors being fitted up as flats, with all modern conveniences. The firm carry on an extensive business as contracting plumbers and they are interested also in oil production and in city real estate.

In 1898 C. P. Eberle was married to Miss Minnie L. Hagerman, of Allegheny, and they have two children, Carl Frederick and Ruth K. Mr. Eberle and wife are members of the Reformed Church. Fraternally he is an Odd Fellow and a Knight of Pythias. On public questions he has firm convictions but he takes no very active part in political campaigns, having neither time nor inclination for public office.

ANDREW RIEGER, general farmer, residing on a fine farm of 150 acres, which is situated in Center Township, on the Mercer Road, five miles north of Butler, was born in Clearfield Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, September 8, 1860, and is a son of Henry and Anna (Eisler) Rieger.

Henry Rieger was born in Germany and accompanied his parents to America, reaching Pittsburg when he was a child of four years. His father, Jacob Rieger, soon secured a farm in Summit Township, Butler County, and there the family settled. Henry Rieger grew to manhood there and then married a daughter of a neighbor, Andrew Eisler, and with his wife moved to Clearfield Township, where he died in 1897. His widow still survives and lives in Butler County. There were ten children born to Henry Rieger and wife and they all survive.

Andrew Rieger was reared in Clearfield Township and in early manhood went to Warren County, where he spent ten years engaged in a lumber business. With the exception of that period, he has devoted his entire attention to farming. Immediately after his marriage, in 1888, he bought the W. A. Christy farm of sixty-five acres, where he resided until he sold it to W. E. Ralston and then bought his present farm in Center Township, to which he came in May, 1908. It is excellent land and Mr. Rieger knows how to manage it and to bring every part of it up to a high state of production.

In 1888 Mr. Rieger was married to Emma Martin, who is a daughter of James Martin, of Clearfield Township, and they have a happy family of nine children, in which there has never been a break, namely: Bertha Della, Stella May, Henry Martin, Andrew Willis, Paul Marcus, Edna Nellie, Frank Gilbert and Ralph Lester and Clarence Clifford, twins. Mr. Rieger and family belong to Grace Lutheran Church, in which he is an elder. He has taken an active part in township affairs for a number of years, at all times promoting its interests and during a long period serving in office as the choice of his fellow citizens. At present he is auditor of Center Township and has served as school director, tax collector, assessor and as judge of elections. As may be seen, he is one of the representative men of his community.

HON. RALPH W. E. HOCH, the presiding municipal officer of Chicora, having been elected mayor of this borough, on the Democratic ticket, March 1, 1906, was born at Chicora, Pennsylvania, in 1882. He is a son of Augustus and Elizabeth Hoch.

Augustus Hoch, father of Mayor Hoch, is also a native and has been a lifelong resident of Chicora. He is prominently identified with oil and gas interests in Butler County and is associated with his brother, A. A. Hoch, in the hardware and oil well supply business in this place. At Haunestown he was united in marriage to Elizabeth Krug, who was born at Sax-onburg, Pennsylvania, and they have two children, Martin and Ralph. The former is superintendent of the gas plant at Chicora. He married Blanche Simpson and they have one daughter, Helen. Mr. Hoch is a leading member of the German Lutheran Church. He is identified with the Knights of Pythias.

Ralph W. E. Hoch received his preparatory education in the Chicora schools and then spent three terms at the Slippery Rock State Normal School, after which he became associated with his father in the hardware and gas well supply business. He belongs to the order of Elks and Knights of Pythias. Like other members of the prominent family to which he belongs and to which he has added distinction, he is connected with the German Lutheran Church. He is a type of the intelligent, progressive, public-spirited young American business man and his election to the office which he so ably administers, reflects credit upon his fellow citizens.

SAMUEL G. PURVIS, proprietor of the Purvis Pharmacy, located at No. 213 South Main street, Butler, is one of the city's representative business men and public spirited citizens. He was born in Butler, in 1878, and is a son of Samuel D. Purvis.

The Purvis family has been identified with Butler County for a long period. Samuel D., father of Samuel G., was born at Butler in 1842. He has been a life-long resident of this city and has been extensively engaged in the lumber business. He is an active and useful citizen and has served two terms as a member of the School Board.

Samuel G. Purvis completed the common school course in his native city in 1893 and graduated from the Butler High School in 1896, immediately entering the Western University of Pennsylvania at Pittsburg, and was graduated from the Pharmaceutical department of that institution in 1899. In the same year he passed with credit the rigid examination before the Pharmacy State Board of Examiners, and then entered into the drug business at Allegheny. He remained there for three years and then returned to his native city and established the Purvis Pharmacy, at his present location. Here Mr. Purvis deals in first class drugs, puts up his prescriptions himself, and enjoys a large general and medical trade.

Mr. Purvis married, June 28, 1905, Miss Bertha McElhaney, who is a daughter of the late James McElhaney, of Butler, and they have one son, James D. Mr. Purvis and wife are members of the United Presbyterian Church. He is a Knight Templar Mason and belongs to the Sterling Club.

ALBERT H. MEEDER, one of Zelenople's substantial business men and popular citizens, who is engaged in a mercantile business at this place and is also largely interested in oil production in various sections, was born September 15, 1869, at Petersville, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of George and Magdalena (Millerman) Meeder.

The father of Mr. Meeder came to Butler County in 1850 and settled first in Summit Township, near Butler. He later moved to Connoquenessing Township, living there about five years, and in 1893 he moved to Zelenople. His death took place in 1907. His widow survives. They had ten children and of this number the following survive: Philip, who resides in Connoquenessing Township; Edwin, who is a merchant at Zelenople; Albert H.; Theodore W., who resides in Cleveland, Ohio; Lena, who married Dale Thorn, of Connoquenessing Township; Catherine, who is the widow of Henry Asche, resides at Tarentum, Pennsylvania; Maggie, who married Jacob Scherer of Connoquenessing Township; Caroline, who married George Harris, of New Castle; and Dora, who married George Preston, of New Brighton, Pennsylvania.

Albert H. Meeder attended the public schools of Little Creek and from there entered Duff's Business College at Pittsburg, completing the commercial course of that institution. He then entered the employ of W. H. Ifft, a former merchant at Zelenople, as a clerk, where he gained his first mercantile experience, and later served in the same capacity for three years, with Boggs & Buhl, at Allegheny. When he left that firm he came to Zelenople and entered into partnership with his brother, Edwin Meeder, under the firm name of A. H. Meeder & Co., and this partnership continued until 1903. In March, 1906, he embarked in his present enterprise, starting in the First National Bank Building, from which he moved to his present location in 1907. In 1903 when his partnership ceased in the A. H. Meeder & Co. firm, Mr. Meeder began to take an interest in the oil industry and he has developed this into one of the leading concerns in which he has made investments. He now owns oil interests in Ohio, Illinois and in Beaver County, Pennsylvania, and the attention he devotes to these and to his large mercantile business, gives him little time to engage in anything else. However, Mr. Meeder is an earnest citizen and has a deep sense of public duty and when called upon to perform citizenship offices, he exerts himself to do so. In his political views he is a Democrat.

In 1893 Mr. Meeder was married to Miss Emma Hensel, a daughter of Gottlieb Hensel, of Zelenople, and they have two daughters, Ruth and Leola, both of whom are attending school. The family belongs to the German Lutheran Church.

GEORGE W. SCHNUR, who owns eighty acres of fertile farm land in Summit Township, has been in the market gardening business for some twelve years and owns six well equipped hot-houses. He was born at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, May 19, 1858, and is a son of Peter and Elizabeth (Fry) Schnur.

Peter Schnur was born in France and was four years old when his father, George Schnur, brought his family to America. For a time they lived at Cincinnati, where the father worked as a stone-mason, afterward coming to Pennsylvania, where Peter Schnur worked for many years in the mills at Pittsburg. In 1879 he moved to a farm adjoining that of his son George W., in Butler County. At Pittsburg he married Elizabeth Fry, who was born in that city.

George W. Schnur was nineteen years old when the family came to Butler County. As far back in his childhood as he can remember he recalls his interest in gardening, and as a boy he worked at this industry whenever occasion offered. However, finding stone-mason work more profitable, he learned that trade and worked at it for twelve years after coming to Summit Township. As soon as he acquired sufficient land and capital, he went into his present business, of which he has made a success. He made many improvements on his place, building his house and barn and his six hot-houses, with dimensions of 112 feet by 155 feet, all covered with glass. He has introduced modern methods in his work and supplies a large wholesale trade at Butler, making a specialty of lettuce and greenhouse plants.

Two years after coming to Butler County, Mr. Schnur was married to Maggie Etzel, daughter of Bruno Etzel. She was born at Brady's Bend, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, but was reared in Summit Township. Mr. Schnur is one of a family of fifteen children and he has had twelve, seven of whom are living, namely: Clara, who is the wife of Harry Redman, of Pittsburg; Edward, who is associated with his father in gardening; Albert; William; Loretta, who is the wife of John Steighner; and Leo and Paul. With his family he belongs to and gives generous support to St. Mary's Catholic Church at Herman. He is a member of the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association.

SAMUEL McKAY, one of Butler's successful business men, who has followed brick contracting in this city for the past three years, was born August 16, 1870, in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Samuel and Mary (Pinkerton) McKay. The parents of Mr. McKay moved to Center Township, Butler County, when he was eight months old, and there he was reared and educated. The mother died in 1902, but the father still resides on his farm in Center Township.

Samuel McKay assisted his father until he was twenty-one years of age and then learned the bricklayer's trade, at which he has worked ever since. During the comparatively short period in which he has done contracting, he has turned out some of the most creditable work to be found in the city, among the most prominent specimens being the brick work on the Lance building in Springdale; the addition to the Sam. Oram's building at Lyndora; the Cemetery offices, and the fine residences of J. E. Marshall, on West Pearl Street; that of Fred Devlin, on West Fulton Street; that of Mrs. Bowers, on West Penn Street, and a number of others. Mr. McKay's own fine brick residence is situated at No. 422 Broad Street, and he also owns a valuable farm in Center Township.

In 1898 Mr. McKay was married to Miss Birdie McCandless, who was born at Unionville, Pennsylvania. They have two children, Rella May and Orville Blair. Mr. and Mrs. McKay are members of Grace Lutheran Church.

CHRISTIAN STEIGHNER, who has a fine farm of 120 acres located on the old state road about one mile south of Fenelton, in Clearfield Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is a successful oil operator and an extensive breeder of fast harness horses. He has the distinction of being the only breeder of fast horses, on an extensive scale, in the county and has achieved some remarkable results. Mr. Steighner was born at Buffalo Furnace, in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, June 24, 1852, and is a son of Christ and Mary (Schell) Steighner. His grandfather was Leonard Steighner, who was born and lived all his life in Germany.

Christ Steighner was born in Germany and came to America in his younger days. He was a farmer by occupation and in the early thirties purchased the farm owned by his son in Clearfield Township, Butler County. He cleared this property and lived upon it until his death at the advanced age of ninety-three years. He died in 1908 and was in good health up to the time of his death.

Christian Steighner, whose name heads this record, attended the schools of Butler County and is a well educated man. For a period of thirty-five years he has engaged in oil operations, and at the present time has four good producing wells on his place. His farm is devoted to stock raising, and on it he has a good track, three laps to the mile, where he and his sons are generally to be found exercising and training horses. He bred and trained Flora Bell, 2.27½, the first "30" horse bred in Butler County. He also bred a horse which as a yearling took a public record of 1.16 on the half mile track at Kittanning, and as a four-year-old a record of 2.16¼ in competition on the same track. He bred Joe Pointer, who made a record of 2.05¼ on the Cleveland track; Little John, 2.22¼; Maple Grove, 2.30¼; Billy Chimes, 2.24¼; Harry Pointer, 2.22¼; and Laura Bell, 2.27. He now has a lot of young horses which he is schooling on the home track. His farm is highly improved; he has a fine two-story home, a large barn and other necessary buildings essential to the successful prosecution of his business.

Mr. Steighner was married November 7, 1883, to Miss Mary Wilber, a daughter of Martin and Kate (Iseman) Wilber of Butler County, and they are parents of four children, namely: Cora, who married Ivey Duffy and has three children—Nettie, Floyd and Leroy; Christian, who is in the oil business with his father; Martin; and Ellen. The two last named are students. Religiously, the family belongs to the Catholic church.

LORENZO G. MOORE, formerly county auditor of Butler County and for the past twenty-three years a valued citizen of Butler, is engaged in business in this city at No. 121 South Main Street, where he deals in hardware, paints, oils and varnish. Mr. Moore was born in 1851, in Brady Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Samuel and a grandson of Samuel Moore.

The father of L. G. Moore was born in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, and accompanied his father, Samuel Moore, to Brady Township, Butler County, in 1826. Grandfather Samuel Moore bought 200 acres of land which had been entered from the Government by a man named Singleton, in 1786, and L. G. Moore owns the original deed bearing that date. The Moores were farmers and the father of L. G. continued to cultivate the homestead until 1904, when he retired to New Castle, where his death occurred in 1907.

L. G. Moore attended the country schools and completed his education at the Edinboro State Normal School, later taking a commercial course in Duff's Business College, at Pittsburg. For several years he was variously engaged and visited different parts of the State, and after he returned to Butler he entered a general store as a clerk, and continued there until 1885, when he became a clerk in the store he now owns. In 1891, in partnership with George A. Cypher, he bought the business, which was conducted until 1906 under the style of George A. Cypher & Co., when Mr. Moore purchased Mr. Cypher's interest and has remained in possession, doing a satisfactory amount of business in his line. He is a stockholder in several enterprises of the city, and, with Mr. Cypher, owns a farm in Butler County. He has always taken a hearty interest in all that concerns the welfare of the city.

JOHN LINCOLN MOORE, who owns the old A. J. Moore farm of ninety-three and one-half acres, which is situated in Center Township, near Oneida Station, follows general farming and also conducts a dairy and operates a milk route through Butler. Mr. Moore was born on this fine old farm March 24, 1867, and is a son of Andrew J. and Nancy Jane (Cowan) Moore.

Andrew J. Moore was born in Fairview Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, where he was reared. In early manhood he worked on the river but shortly after his marriage he settled on his farm in Center Township, where he lived until the close of his life, in 1888, when aged fifty-seven years. He was twice married and was the father of twelve children.

John Lincoln Moore has resided all his life on the old home farm. For the past twelve years he has conducted his dairy and for almost eleven years, as steady as clock work, has daily visited his patrons at Butler. In that city he was married June 27, 1893, to Miss Alice Christley, a daughter of Harvey and Mary Jane Christley, and they have four children: Ermileda, Harvey, Florence and Everett. They are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Moore is interested in both oil and gas production and has four pumping oil wells, producing twenty-two barrels of oil a day, and two gas wells.

JOSEPH ANGERT, who fills the responsible office of chief of the police department at Butler, has been a resident of the city since 1888 and has occupied his present position since 1906. Chief Angert was born October 19, 1865, in Oakland Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and was there reared and educated.

Michael Angert, father of Chief Angert, was born in Germany and came to Butler County in 1852. He spent his subsequent years in Oakland Township, engaged in farming, and died there in the spring of 1891.

When Joseph Angert came to Butler he entered the factory of the Butler Plate Glass Company, where he continued to be employed for twelve years and from there he went to the Standard Steel Car Works, with which concern he remained for five years. When he left the car works it was to accept a position on the police force, where he demonstrated his fitness for the office he now fills. A large amount of personal courage together with much executive ability, tact, judgment and firmness, are required to make an efficient police commander and these qualities belong to Mr. Angert, together with others as admirable.

In 1889, Mr. Angert was married to Miss Bridget Gallagher, and they have six living children, namely: Myrtle, Harry, Calista, Victor, Leo and Genevieve. The family belong to the St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church. Chief Angert is a member of the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association and also of the Woodmen of the World.

CHARLES LIVINGSTON DE WOLF, M. D., a prominent physician and surgeon as well as leading citizen of Chicora, was born March 24, 1877, in Fairview Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Dr. Willard L. and Jennie S. (Thompson) De Wolf.

The parents of Dr. De Wolf are both natives of Butler County. Dr. Willard L. De Wolf, who is now actively engaged in practice at Butler, is a graduate of Jefferson Medical College, of Philadelphia. Of his three children one died in infancy, Harry R. is engaged in a drug business at Chicora, and the third is Charles L.

Charles Livingston De Wolf enjoyed excellent educational and social opportunities, his family being a leading one in this section. From the common schools he entered the Chicora High School and from there the State Normal School at Slippery Rock. After two years of training there he entered Allegheny College at Meadville, where, for three years, he took a general course, and in 1898 became a student in the medical department of the University College of Philadelphia. From that institution he was most creditably graduated in the spring of 1902, one of a class of one hundred and seventy-five. He established himself at Chicora and has a large and lucrative practice here.

For some time he has been surgeon for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad at this point and also for the Chicora Coal & Coke Company, and he is medical examiner for the Pittsburg Life and Trust Insurance Company, the Germania Life, the State Mutual Life, the Mutual of New York, the National, the Prudential and the Aetna Life; and the order of Knights of Maccabees, of which he is a member. He belongs also to Argyle Lodge, F. & A. M., at Chicora, and the Knights of Pythias. He retains membership in the following college fraternities: The Sigma Alpha Epsilon and the Theta Nu Epsilon. Dr. De Wolf is interested also, to some degree, in the oil business. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Chicora.

JAMES FOSTER STRUTHERS, Burgess, and an honored and highly esteemed citizen of Harrisville, is a veteran of the Civil War. He was born August 25, 1827, on his father's farm near Struthers, Ohio, and is a son of John and Sarah (Duff) Struthers.

John Struthers, grandfather of our subject, at an early period settled near Youngstown, then a part of Trumbull County, now known as Mahoning County. He was politically, a Whig and the first sheriff of Trumbull County. His youngest son, Thomas, was a lawyer and for many years a resident of Warren, Pennsylvania. He subsequently purchased land and built a furnace upon the present site of Struthers, the town having been so called in his honor.

John Struthers, father of James F., was born and reared on a farm near Youngstown, Ohio, and later engaged in farming near Struthers. In about 1841 he moved with his family to Pennsylvania, but later returned to Struthers, where he died at the age of eighty-five years. He married Sarah Duff, who survived him some years, and they reared a family of nine children, namely: Elizabeth, married A. A. McBride and both are deceased; James Foster, our subject; William, deceased; Ebenezer, deceased; Thomas, deceased; John, deceased, served in the 111th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry; Jane, married J. A. Hunter (both are deceased), and Sarah.

James F. Struthers was reared in an old hewn log house, and assisted with clearing his father's farm. He obtained a limited amount of schooling, attending the old log schoolhouse, but the greater part of his time was devoted to farm work. At the age of sixteen he began learning the plasterer's trade, at which he worked for a period of eight years. For a number of years he engaged in milling at various places, the last mill he had in charge, being that of Reed Walker, of Harrisville. At the outbreak of the Civil War, he enlisted in Company B, 134th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, under Captain McCune, and served one year in the army, participating in the battles of Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville, also the battle of Antietam. After obtaining his discharge, he returned to his family in Lawrence County, after which he engaged in milling at Grove City, Pennsylvania. Mr. Struthers owned and operated a farm of fifty acres in Lawrence County for many years and in 1881 came to Harrisville, where he has since continued to reside. Mr. Struthers was first united in marriage in 1856 to Catherine Martin, who died leaving four children, namely: Jennie married a Mr. Leonard; Ella is the wife of Seymour Young; Clara, deceased wife of Robert Riddle; and Charles, who married (first) Tura Gillmore (deceased) and (second) Millie Patton. In 1880, our subject married Millie Hays Davidson, widow of Harper Davidson, by whom she had one child, Lula, wife of R. Aiken.

Mr. Struthers is politically a Democrat and has served in various town offices. He was a member of the town council, and in 1905, was elected Burgess of Harrisville and is still serving in that capacity. He is a member and trustee of the Presbyterian Church. In November, 1908, Mr. Struthers went to Lynchburg with the old soldiers to the unveiling of a monument erected in commemoration of Humphrey's Division.

FREDERICK ZEHNER, who does a large business at Zelenople, dealing in vehicles, farm implements, feed, grain and seed, is a representative man of this section and a member of one of the old and respected German-American families of Butler County. He was born June 24, 1862, in Jackson Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Frederick and Margaret (Reibold) Zelmer.

The Zehner family was founded in Butler County by the grandfather, Frederick Zehner, who settled in Jackson Township, when he came to Pennsylvania from Germany. His son, Frederick Zehner, was born in Germany, in 1829, and was ten years old when the family emigrated to America. He was a youth of excellent understanding and when twenty years of age taught school, instructing in both German and English. The greater part of his life was spent on his farm in Jackson Township, where he served for more than thirty years as a justice of the peace. He was the promoter and organizer of the German Mutual Insurance Society of Zelenople, which began business in 1866, and was a charter member of the same, and for twenty years served as secretary of the society. His life was a busy and useful one but was not prolonged into old age, his death taking place July 4, 1891, when sixty-two years old. Both he and wife were buried at Zelenople. They had the following children: Louisa and Mary, both deceased; Mrs. Amelia Wahl, of North Sewickley Township, Beaver County; Mrs. Annie Berberick, of Allegheny County; two that died in infancy; Charles, a farmer in Jackson Township; Frederick; Henry, a farmer in Allegheny County; and Edwin, deceased.

Frederick Zehner, who bears the name of both father and grandfather, attended school in Jackson Township and remained on the home farm until he was twenty-two years of age, when he came to Zelenople and for three years was in the employ of the general mercantile firm of Ifft & Gelbach. In 1887 he purchased the interest of the senior partner and became a member of the firm of J. A. & W. H. Gelbach, which continued until 1890, when Mr. Zehner sold his interest and embarked in business for himself. In this undertaking he has met with commercial success and has developed a business that is one of the largest of its kind in Butler County. He is a director of the First National Bank at Zelenople and is a leading citizen in everything that concerns the best interests of the town.

On September 22, 1887, Mr. Zehner was married to Miss Josephine Gudekunst, a daughter of Jacob Gudekunst, of Jackson Township, and they have had the following children born to them: Walter N., who was married September 22, 1908, to Miss Emma Jane Zeigler, of Jackson Township; Mark F., who is a graduate of the Butler Business College; and Esther Josephine, Sarah, Charlotta, Iva Marguerite, Martha Louisa and John Orin. Mr. Zehner and family are members of the St. John's English and German Lutheran Church.

In politics, Mr. Zehner is an active and influential Democrat. He has served in many offices and positions of responsibility, both as a loyal party man and also as an efficient and public-spirited citizen. He has been a useful member of the Town Council, a member of the School Board, a member of the Board of Health and has been borough treasurer. Under the administration of the late President Cleveland he served for four years and one month as postmaster of Zelenople, being acknowledged to have been one of the best public officials in that office that the borough has ever had. His party has shown him many marks of favor, making him a member of the Democratic County Executive Committee and a member of the Committee on Resolutions when he was sent as a delegate to the Democratic State Convention in 1906. He is on record as a hearty supporter of Hon. Lewis Emory for Governor of Pennsylvania. In August following, Mr. Zehner was appointed a member of the committee to visit Judge Emory and to notify him of his nomination. On December 10 he was appointed for 1909 to serve as mercantile appraiser for Butler County.

CHARLES RIEGER, a life-long resident of Butler County and a prominent citizen, who was elected in 1908 to the office of county commissioner, was born in Clearfield Township, August 3, 1873, and is a son of Henry and Anna (Eizler) Rieger.

Henry Rieger, born in Germany, May 20, 1833, was brought to Pennsylvania in 1838 by his parents. A few years later he settled in Butler County and from there he enlisted for service in the Civil War, entering Company I, Seventy-eighth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, in which he served until the close of the war. He owned land in Clearfield Township and he then resumed farming there and remained until the end of his life, his death taking place March 2, 1897. He was one of the township's representative men. His widow survives and resides at Butler. She was born in the State of New York, October 28, 1835. Mrs. Rieger has ten children, all living, as follows: Mary, Catherine, Andrew, William H., Daniel, Sarah E., Anna Martha, Charles, Albert L., and Ida Mae.

in Clearfield Township and engaged there in agricultural pursuits until March, 1907, when he came to Butler, where he occupies a comfortable residence at No. 120 Fourth Avenue. Prior to this he had been closely identified with Republican policies in the management of the public affairs of his township and had served there as tax collector and treasurer. After coming to Butler he was connected for three months with the county commissioner's office. He has many friends and he finally gave way to their solicitations and in January, 1908, entered into the race, with seven other candidates, for the office of county commissioner. He won the nomination by a majority of 940 votes over all others in the field, a record-breaker in the county. His subsequent election was thus assured. Mr. Rieger is a member of the Gernian Lutheran Church.

ERNST FRANK ENGELHART, a well known agriculturist of Clearfield Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, resides on a farm of eighty acres located on the Butler Road about one mile west of Felonton. He was born in Jefferson Township January 17, 1858, and is a son of Nicholas and Katherine (Bauer) Engelhart, and a grandson of George Engelhart.

George Engelhart was a native of Germany where he lived until 1837, then moved with his family to America, locating near Saxonburg, in Butler County, Pennsylvania. Nicholas Engelhart and his wife became parents of the following children: Ernst, subject of this record; Philip; Annie; Sarah, wife of Henry Heller of West Virginia; and Martin, deceased. Philip and Annie Engelhart reside on the old home place near Saxonburg. The father of this family was born in Germany and was seventeen years old when he accompanied his parents to the United States. He became a prosperous farmer near Saxonburg, and was much respected by his fellow citizens.

Ernst F. Engelhart was reared and educated in Jefferson Township, and has always been a resident of the county. He has followed farming all his life and has a well improved property; he has a comfortable two-story dwelling, and good substantial outbuildings. He follows general farming, raising just enough stock for his own use on the farm. Mr. Engelhart has taken a deep interest in all that pertains to the welfare of the community and takes rank among its progressive and public spirited men. He has served eleven years as school director, having been appointed to that office twice and elected upon the other occasions of his service.

Mr. Engelhart was united in marriage with Miss Katie Fennell, a daughter of Abraham and Mary (Toy) Fennell, and they became parents of the following children: Clara, Charles, Frank N., Walter, George, and Ruth, the last named being four years of age. Frank N. and Ruth are the only ones now living. Frank N. Engelhart is eighteen years of age, and in addition to attending school does most of the work on the farm. He is a young man of energy and enterprise. Religiously, the subject of this sketch is an active member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

FRANK W. BADGER, of the firm of Shull & Badger, brick manufacturers and contractors, has been a resident of the city of Butler for the past eighteen years and is a native of the county and a representative of one of its pioneer families. He was born September 30, 1865, and is a son of Matthew and a grandson of James Badger.

James Badger came to Butler County with his parents and they all passed their lives in this section. Matthew Badger, father of Frank W., was born in Butler County in 1838 and for many years has been a prosperous farmer in Franklin Township.

Frank W. Badger spent his boyhood in attending the public school and in helping on the farm, and the first work he did independently was a job of cutting stove bolts. Since 1891 he has been engaged in the brick business and for fourteen years has been engaged in brick contracting. About 1897 he entered into partnership with Mr. Shull and in 1904 they increased their capacity by purchasing a brick plant at Butler and have done a large business in brick and brick work. Mr. Shull takes the responsibility of providing the material and Mr. Badger secures the contracts and this arrangement has been profitable to both members of the firm. Among the substantial and attractive buildings for which they have furnished the brick may be mentioned: the Y. M. C. A. building; the bank building at Wilmington, Pennsylvania; Grace Lutheran Church; the City Hospital; the Institute Hill School building; the Campbell hardware firm's building; the Butler I. O. O. F. Temple; and a fine Methodist Church at Grove City.

In 1888 Mr. Badger was married to Miss Lucy Smith, of Crawford County, and they have two children, Howard and Herman. Mr. Badger and wife belong to the Baptist Church. He is a member of the order of Path Finders.

LEONARD HEIST, who resides on his well improved farm of 117 acres, which is situated on the lower Greece City road, about four miles north of Butler, in Center Township, owns very valuable land, a fine coal bank having been found on the farm. He was born in Beaver County, Pennsylvania, in 1855 and was about nine years old when he accompanied his parents to Butler County. They were Nicholas and Barbara (Smith) Heist.

Nicholas Heist and wife were both born in Germany and when they came to America they had two children and three more were added to the family subsequently. Leonard was the first one born in America, the brothers and sisters being: Mrs.

Lizzie Elliott, of Center Township; Philip, a farmer of Center Township; Mrs. Kate Michael and Mary, both of Center Township. For some years Nicholas Heist rented land in Summit Township and later in Center Township, and in 1870 he bought a farm of fifty acres in the latter, which is now occupied by his son, Philip Heist. On that farm both Nicholas Heist and wife died. By trade he was a wagonmaker.

Leonard Heist has lived in Center Township ever since he was about fourteen years of age and he has devoted himself to farming. He came to his present place soon after his marriage, it having been his wife's old homestead. In 1880 Mr. Heist was married to Miss Mary Shodd, a daughter of George Shodd, and they have had nine children, namely: Mary Margaret, married George Hendricks and they have two children, Mary Alberta and Geo. Gilbert; Charles P., married Christina Spithaler; George J.; Albert Augustus; Paul J.; Anna C.; Lillian B.; and Alice E. and Arthur L., twins, the latter of whom died aged four months seventeen days. Mr. Heist and family belong to the German Lutheran Church. He is known as an honest, upright man, in every way a good and representative citizen.

JOHN A. GRAHAM, an honored veteran of the Civil War, and a highly esteemed resident of Connoquenessing Township, owns a fine farm of sixty acres here on which he has resided since 1889. He was born September 7, 1838, in Connoquenessing Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Alexander and Elizabeth (Rainey) Graham and a grandson of Daniel Graham.

The father of Mr. Graham was born in Scotland, May 1, 1791, and died March 13, 1855. He accompanied his parents to America in boyhood and was reared on a pioneer farm in Connoquenessing Township. He assisted his father in getting the farm cleared and put under cultivation and later succeeded to the property and carried on agricultural pursuits throughout his active life. His wife was a member of another old pioneer family of this section. They had the following children: Jane, deceased, who was the wife of Henry Brunermer; Hiram, deceased; Sidney, deceased, was the wife of Robert Lemmon, also deceased; Thomas, deceased; Daniel, deceased, was a victim of the cruelties practiced on prisoners at Andersonville, Georgia, during the Civil War; John A.; and Theophilus, who resides in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania. The parents of the above family were quiet, industrious, virtuous people and were worthy members of the United Presbyterian Church at White Oak Springs.

John A. Graham was afforded better educational opportunities than many of his acquaintances enjoyed and after leaving the local schools he pursued a course of study at Witherspoon Institute at Butler, and subsequently taught school at Petersville and later in Ohio. In 1861 he enlisted as a soldier in the Union Army and served until the close of the war, in Company G, Twenty-seventh Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry. He fared better than his brother Daniel, who died from the effects of starvation during his months of imprisonment as stated above. Mr. Graham returned to Butler County and resumed farming and in 1878 he went to Kansas. He took up a homestead, on which he lived for fourteen years, but hard work brought on ill health and on February 15, 1889, he was prostrated by a stroke of paralysis and then returned to his native township. He purchased his farm and has continued to reside here ever since. His land is well adapted to agriculture and his annual yield of corn, oats, wheat, hay and potatoes, is satisfactory. He has taken an active interest in advancing his community and bettering general conditions in every direction. In politics, he is a Republican and he has acceptably served as constable, assessor and school director.

Mr. Graham was married to Miss Mary A. Wade, who is a daughter of William and Mary A. Wade, of Jackson County, Ohio. She was born in Beaver County, Pennsylvania, and was three years old when her parents moved to Ohio. Mr. and Mrs. Graham have four children: William W., James A., Sarah Jane and Henry B. Mr. Graham and family belong to the White Oak Springs United Presbyterian Church, of which he is an elder.

PHILIP J. SPOHN is numbered among the experienced and successful farmers of Summit Township. He resides on his valuable farm of fifty-eight acres, situated near Herman and he was born on what is known as the old John Spohn farm, about one mile west, November 24, 1845. His parents were John and Eva (Hoffman) Spohn.

The Spohn family is of French extraction and the father of Philip J. Spohn was born in Alsace, France, March 22, 1814. He was a son of Martin and Margaret Spohn, who subsequently followed their son John to America and died on their farm in Clearfield Township, Butler County. John Spohn came to the United States in 1830 and in 1833 he settled on a wild tract of land in Summit Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania. Prior to coming here he had worked as one of the builders of the Erie Canal and the money he received was invested in land. He had the foresight to select land advantageously situated and to its clearing and cultivating he devoted the rest of his life. He was married (first) to Mary Euntrine. After her death he married Eva Hoffman, who belonged to an old family of Summit Township, and to them were born ten children, namely: Mary, Catherine, Philip J., Margaret, John, Eva, Anna J., Joseph, Nicholas J. and Magdalena. All those who survived infancy married and had children of their own and many were residents of Summit Township. The mother of this family was born in Bavaria, Germany, and was about twelve years old when she accompanied her parents to America. She died in February, 1900, and her husband survived her almost five years, dying on January 1, 1905, when aged ninety-two years. He was one of Summit Township's best men.

Philip J. Spohn has devoted a large part of his life to gardening and the rest to general farming. For twenty-four years he raised all kinds of farm produce which he sold at wholesale. He lived on the home farm for many years but in December, 1905, settled on his present property. Through his business he came into contact with many of the leading men of Butler and other places in the county and Mr. Spohn can recall many pleasant occasions and can claim many warm friends among his old business acquaintances.

Mr. Spohn married Lena Albert, a daughter of Nicholas Albert. She was reared in Oakland Township. A family of twelve children was born to them: Hedwig married Clements Foltz and they have six children; Celia, who lives at home; Louise married George Baldauf and they have eight children; and Amelia, who resides in Butler, unmarried, these being the only survivors. Mr. Spohn and family belong to the Catholic Church, the congregation of St. Mary's at Herman, of which Mr. Spohn's father was one of the founders.

ANDREW M. AKINS, oil producer, who has been a resident of Butler since 1896 and is identified with a number of the city's successful enterprises, has been connected with the oil industry for a number of years. He was born July 19, 1848, in Sweden, and was three years old when his parents brought him to America.

The Akins family settled in Warren

County, Pennsylvania, and Andrew M. attended school near his father's farm, both in Pennsylvania and across the line in the State of New York. He first went to work in a brickyard and this kept him busy in the summer and in winter he worked at lumbering. Later he conducted a brickyard for himself, at Warren, for two years, and in 1871 he entered the oil fields in Warren County, coming to Butler County in 1873. He located in Fairview Township and engaged extensively in the oil business, at one time having interests in Allen County, Ohio. He has visited all the oil regions and has been financially interested in Allen County and in Butler and Washington Counties, Pennsylvania. His business judgment has regulated his investments and he has prospered greatly.

On June 14, 1876, Mr. Akins was married to Miss Lucinda M. Kramer, who was born in Indiana, and they have four children, namely: Maude May, who is a graduate nurse, residing at Washington, D. C.; Alice, who is with the firm of Leedom & Worrall; Arthur, who is a student in the Pennsylvania State College; and Edna, at home. Mr. Akins and family belong to the First Methodist Episcopal Church at Butler and he is a member of its board of trustees. He is one of the city's earnest and active citizens and at the present writing (1908) is serving as councilman from the Fifth Ward. In his public life Mr. Akins is actuated by the motives that attest good citizenship.

HON. JOHN DINDINGER, now retired, has been one of Zelienople's most active and useful citizens and one of Butler County's leading men of affairs. He was born in Franklin Township, Beaver County, Pennsylvania, December 26, 1839, and is a son of Louis and Christina (Miller) Dindinger.

The parents of Mr. Dindinger were born in Germany, the father in 1800 and the mother six years later, and they came to America in 1830. The father died in 1878 and the mother in 1880. They settled first at Harmony, in Butler County, but shortly afterward purchased the farm on which they lived, in Franklin Township, Beaver County, until 1876. Their children were as follows: a babe that died; Margaret, deceased, was the wife of Solomon Schaffer; George resides on his farm in Lancaster Township; Mary died aged eight months; Jacob lives at Wampum, in Lawrence County; John, of Zelienople; Caroline, deceased, was the wife of Lewis Karl; Christina, deceased; William lives at Zelienople, and Henry, deceased, resided at Allegheny.

John Dindinger obtained his education in the district schools near his home and for six months enjoyed advantages at Zelienople. He continued to live and assist on the home farm until he was twenty-one, when he embarked in a mercantile business at Lillyville, in Beaver County, where he was employed by a Mr. Autenreith. He remained with him until 1862, when he enlisted for service in the Civil War, entering Company G, One Hundred Sixty-eighth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry. This regiment was mainly organized at Pittsburg and went from there to Washington, D. C., thence to Newport News, Virginia, and from there to Suffolk, and during his nine months of service he was stationed in Virginia, North Carolina and Maryland and on every occasion performed the soldierly duty demanded of him.

In the spring of 1864 Mr. Dindinger again became a merchant, opening up a general mercantile and produce business in Perry Township, Lawrence County, which he continued until April, 1872, when he sold out to his brother and then bought a farm in Beaver County. This he operated until April, 1874, when he came to Zelienople and re-entered the mercantile business in which he continued to be interested and to which he gave all his attention not demanded by public matters, until 1901, when he relieved himself of business responsibilities entirely, disposing of his mercantile interests to his sons. In 1879 he put up his commodious store building, and in 1888 he erected his handsome residence.

Although his business connections were large and his commercial integrity never questioned, the public services of Mr. Dindinger have probably made him more fully and better known to his fellow citizens. From early manhood, when he testified to his loyalty by becoming a defender of his country's liberties, he has been a zealous Republican and a hearty upholder of the principles for which that party stands. Under the administration of President James A. Garfield he was appointed postmaster at Zelienople and served as such under President Arthur, after the foul assassination of President Garfield, until 1885, during this period increasing the efficiency of the office and also faithfully working to strengthen party bonds. In recognition of his many services both to his party and to his country, Mr. Dindinger was elected a member of the Pennsylvania General Assembly in 1896, served most acceptably during his first term and without difficulty was re-elected and served until 1900. Mr. Dindinger was a valuable man in that administrative body, his business judgment and knowledge being generally recognized and his views on questions being received with respect by his coadjutors, always being practical.

Mr. Dindinger was married December 24, 1863, to Miss R. T. Pyle, of Perry Township, Lawrence County, a daughter of Caleb Pyle and a member of a family that came to Pennsylvania with William Penn. They have had seven children, namely: Lewis Wilbur, who died aged eighteen months; Francis Howard, who died aged seven years; Adella, who died aged sixteen years; Clarence L., a merchant at Zelenopolis, who married Amelia Wilson, and they have two children, Olive and John; Eva Viola, who married Dr. H. E. Gray, of Plain Grove, Pennsylvania, has one daughter, Ethel; Estella Eola, who is the wife of J. A. Hickok, and Norman Roy, who is engaged in a mercantile business in Zelenople.

For many years Mr. Dindinger has been a member of the United Presbyterian Church at Zelenople. He belongs to Col. Joseph H. Wilson Post, No. 496, Grand Army of the Republic.

HENRY BINSACK, a prominent and prosperous farmer of Summit Township, whose fine farm of 131 acres, upon which he lives, lies on the road running from Bonny Brook to Herman, one mile north of the latter village, was born in Germany, May 14, 1844, and is a son of John and Elizabeth (Miller) Binsack.

In 1847 John Binsack brought his family to America and came directly to Butler County. At that time all of Summit Township was a wilderness and in the midst of a forest, this sturdy German pioneer built his cabin. He was a man of great industry and had a frugal and helpful wife. They reared their children to be of assistance to them and they lived to witness the former wild land transferred into a productive farm. They continued to live here during the rest of their lives.

Henry Binsack gave his father much help on the farm during his boyhood and youth and consequently had fewer educational opportunities than he desired, but this has never prevented his managing his farm in a thoroughly businesslike manner and in prospering in his undertakings. In addition to doing a part of the clearing, Mr. Binsack has done much improving. In 1897 he built his large barn, a very substantial structure, and in the summer of 1903, he erected his commodious and comfortable frame residence. His farm is well stocked and his surroundings indicate thrift and good management.

Mr. Binsack married Miss Katherine Hammond, a daughter of John Hammond, and they have seven children, namely: John, who assists his father in the management of the farm; Louis, who also has his duties on the farm; Lizzie; Delia, who is the wife of Henry Lowery and they have three children; Jacob; Annie, who is the wife of Frank Seibert; and Edward. Mr. Binsack and all his family belong to the Lutheran Church at Butler.

W. R. GILMORE, one of Butler's active business men, who is a general contractor in all kinds of tin roofing, tin spouting and brass work, enjoys the distinction of being the only workman in this city who does fine brazing work. He was born in Tuscarawas County, Ohio, March 9, 1874, and obtained his education in the schools at Dennison.

Mr. Gilmore was an ambitious boy and first learned the art of telegraphing and later, in 1891, decided to learn the tinner's trade, and served an apprenticeship of four years in his father's shop. For some years afterward, he worked at different points over the country, going as far west as San Francisco and east to New York. He then became interested in railroading and entered the employ of the Pittsburg & Western Railroad, beginning as brakeman and advancing to be conductor. He enjoyed railroad work and continued until he met with an accident in December, 1904, in the yards at the Standard Car Works, which terminated his connection with that industry. Since then he has devoted himself entirely to his trade and controls a large amount of the tin and brass contracting in this section.

In June, 1895, Mr. Gilmore was married to Miss Olive L. Benson of Ulrichsville, Ohio, and they have four children: Lot Hughes, Miriam Louise, Thomas Carr, and Robert Martin. Mr. Gilmore and family attend the St. Paul's Reformed Church. He is a member of the Uniform Rank of the order of Knights of Pythias.

RUDOLPH BARNHART, a senior member of the firm of R. Barnhart & Son, general merchants at Connoquenessing, was born April 4, 1842, at Millerstown, Perry County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Frederick and Catherine (Thorne) Barnhart.

The early records of the Barnhart family are interesting for it was a pioneer one and its sons and daughters not only have been noted themselves for the sturdy virtues of their German ancestry, but, through intermarriage, are connected with many of the other leading families of other nationalities, all of whom had much to do with the early development and growth of prosperity, particularly in Western Pennsylvania. Great-grandfather Barnhart was born in Germany and was eighteen years old when he left his native land, an undertaking much more serious than it is at the present day, and came to America. He subsequently settled in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, where he married and there his son, Rudolph Barnhart, was born.

The latter grew to manhood and then married Sarah Rise and shortly afterward, he came to Butler County and stopped only long enough on the present site of Butler to note that the timber looked inferior, indicating a less rich soil than in other sections. He found land to his taste in Fairview Township, cleared four acres and sowed it with wheat. The tract is now included in what is the present Kincaid farm. He returned then to Westmoreland County and when he came back to his wheat farm in the following spring, he was accompanied by the Hemphill family. He discovered that the wild inhabitants had taken charge of his farm and what grain the turkeys had not scratched out, the deer had devoured, and somewhat discouraged, he listened to the urgings of the Hemphills and accompanied them to what is known as Hemphill Hollow. He secured land which now bears the name of Barnhart Hollow, about one mile from Millerstown and there he built his cabin, on the south side of the creek and then brought his wife to the new home.

At that time all this region was a wilderness and when he found it necessary to return in the following year and attend a session of court in Westmoreland County, it was with great misgivings concerning the safety of his wife during this time. The nearest neighbors were the McCulloughs, five miles distant, but one of the daughters came to stay with Mrs. Barnhart during her husband's absence. The great fear entertained by them all was that some wild animal might attack them, and that this fear was not without foundation was proved when, on the second morning, the two women found an explanation of the noises they had heard outside the night before. When they summoned sufficient courage to venture out, they discovered the carcass of a huge bear, that had probably been fatally wounded by a hunter and in its rage it had tried to find shelter in the little cabin. Women in those days were full of courage and without doubt the pelt of that bear was all preserved before Mr. Barnhart had returned from Westmoreland court. This little log cabin came to be the center of life in the township, a gathering place not only for religious services, but for a long time it was the election booth and very likely, on occasion, served as a courthouse. Rudolph Barnhart died in 1851, aged seventy-five years and probably his wife did not much longer survive. They had the following children: William, who moved to Ohio and died there; Philip; Frederick; Mrs. Susan Andrews; Mrs. Tena Wenzel; Mrs. Elizabeth Andrews; Rudolph, who died young; Simon; Andrew, who conducted a store at Millerstown for thirty years; Mrs. Polly King, who resides near Buena Vista, Pennsylvania; and Mrs. Catherine Eberhart. The family belonged to the Reformed Church.

Frederick Barnhart was born in 1809, and died in 1879, aged seventy years and ten months. He was a farmer all his life and was a man of high standing in his community, a supporter of the schools and a deacon and elder in the Reformed Church. He held a number of public offices in his township. In his early political life he was a Whig, but later became identified with the Republican party. He married a daughter of Peter Thorne, a pioneer settler where Buena Vista now stands. She died January 31, 1904, aged eighty-one years. Six children were born to this marriage, four of whom died young, the two survivors being Rudolph and Elizabeth, the latter of whom is the wife of J. J. Barnhart, a resident of Harmony, Pennsylvania.

Rudolph Barnhart grew up on the home farm, attended the township schools and spent one term at the Rydersburg Academy. He has always been more or less a musician and in 1862 he enlisted as a member of the band in Company K, One Hundred and Thirty-fourth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, playing the fife, and remained in the service for nine months. He then returned to the home farm and remained there until after the excitement had gradually subsided, following the discovery of the rich oil deposits at Millerstown, and then moved to a farm in Lancaster Township, four miles from Harmony. He continued to operate that farm for fourteen years and then moved to Petersburg. This was about two years before that place experienced its oil boom. He remained there and engaged in farming until 1889, when he erected his present store building at Connoquenessing, and, in partnership with his son, Frederick E., embarked in a mercantile business. This is the leading enterprise of its kind at this place. The business is carried on under the firm name of R. Barnhart & Son, and has a high commercial rating, being backed by plenty of capital. A large and well-assorted stock is carried and the whole surrounding district is its field of distribution.

Mr. Barnhart married Miss Mary Ann Shakeley, who is a daughter of John Shakeley, residing near Chicora, and they had two sons born to them: William and Frederick E. The older son, William, resided at Zelenople, where he died in 1904, in his thirty-ninth year, leaving a widow and four children.

Frederick E. Barnhart, junior member of the mercantile firm of R. Barnhart & Son, was born January 9, 1868. While he is known all through the county as a merchant and excellent man of business, he also has more than a local reputation as a musician. He early developed talent and after a thorough course on the piano and violin, under Professor Mehafy, at Pittsburg, he engaged in teaching music for some years, and for six years conducted a singing school. He married Miss Dora Miller and they have one child, Ethel. He is a member of the order of Modern Woodmen, at Zelenople. Both he and his honored father are official members of the Reformed Church, in which he is a deacon and in which his father has been deacon or elder ever since he was twenty-three years of age. It is interesting to note that in the church choir may each Sabbath be seen Rudolph Barnhart, his son and wife and daughter, all contributing to the music. Mr. Barnhart is a Republican and has served as school director of this borough. Formerly he was a member of the Grand Army Post at Chicora.

JOHN OESTERLING, who is a representative citizen of Summit Township, resides on his well-improved farm of 106 acres, which is situated about one and one-half miles north of Bonny Brook. He was born on the old Oesterling farm, on the State Road, the old homestead being situated at the point where the Summit road crosses it, on April 17, 1852, and is a son of Leonard and Margaret (Floor) Oesterling.

When John Oesterling was two years old, his parents moved to Brady's Bend, in Armstrong County, but he remained with his grandfather, for whom he was named, and continued to reside with him until this relative died, when he was twelve years of age. He then joined his parents at Brady's Bend, and when they removed to the farm on which they still reside, some five years later, he accompanied them. During his five years at Brady's Bend, Mr. Oesterling learned a trade in the rolling-mills at that place, but after coming to the farm, never resumed work at his trade. He followed farming exclusively until 1887, when he entered into the oil business and subsequently, at different times, engaged in oil contracting. He still does drilling, in addition to his farm work, but has sold his oil tools to his son, John A. Oesterling, who does a large amount of oil contracting. Mr. Oesterling and family have resided on the present farm since 1898.

Mr. Oesterling married Miss Mary C. Herrold, who was born on the old Fisher farm, in Summit Township, but was reared on the farm on which she and husband live. It formerly was the property of her father, the late Gottlieb Herrold. Mr. and Mrs. Oesterling have had ten children, as fine a family as has ever been reared in Summit Township, and when typhoid fever invaded it in the fall of 1907, the whole community grieved when three members passed away from that epidemic. Herman, a most estimable young man, aged twenty-six years; Morgan, no less promising, was twenty-two, while Mary had only completed her thirteenth year. This family bereavement was hard to bear, but Mr. and Mrs. Oesterling still have seven surviving children, namely: William L., John A., Amelia, Simon A., Carrie, Raymond, and Warren. Amelia is the wife of Samuel Mitchell. Mr. and Mrs. Oesterling are members of St. Mark's Lutheran Church. Mr. Oesterling takes a great deal of interest in the public schools in his township and has served for four years as a school director.

WILLIAM SHERMAN BRANDON, general contractor and builder at East Butler, has been a resident of this place since September, 1907. He was born on a farm in Connoquenessing Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, February 26, 1867, and is a son of William W. and Sarah (Heekart) Brandon. William W. Brandon is a well known farmer in Connoquenessing Township, where he still resides.

William S. Brandon attended the country schools until he was about fifteen years of age, when he began to learn the carpenter's trade, at Butler. In early manhood he taught schools at Evans City and Harmony, but his main business has been in the line of his trade. He is a skilled workman and has been very successful. During the past two years he has erected thirty-two houses in East Butler and has had no difficulty in disposing of them as soon as completed. He handles quite a large amount of real estate.

Mr. Brandon married Mabel Lotz, who is a daughter of William D. Lotz, of Reading, Pennsylvania, and they have three children, Agnes Ruth, Dorothy and Frances. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church and a liberal contributor to its support. He belongs to the Woodmen of the World, the Odd Fellows and the Home Guards of America.

LEWIS PARKS WALKER, better known as "Squire Walker," is one of the best-known residents of the city of Butler, where he was born March 10, 1833. His parents were David and Jane (Gilliland) Walker, and he is a grandson of Lewis Walker, one of the early settlers of Butler County.

Lewis Walker, who was a native of Newburyport, Mass., emigrated to what is now Allegheny County, Penna., with the Plummer family, prior to the Revolutionary War. He was about twenty-one years old when he came to Butler County and settled on an eight-hundred-acre tract of land, in what is now Cranberry Township. Subsequently he removed to Butler, of which place he was an enterprising and prosperous citizen, erecting several houses on North Main Street. His death took place in 1844. His wife was in maidenhood a Miss Parks, and they had a family of eight children, whose record in brief is as follows: John, now deceased, who resided in Cranberry Township; Parks, who died in Wheeling, W. Va.; David, who served as quartermaster of the Seventy-eighth Pennsylvania Volunteers, and died at Mercersburg, Ky.; Samuel, who died at Cincinnati, Ohio; Simpson, who died in Washington, D. C.; Nathaniel, who died in Butler; Mary, deceased, who was the wife of James Borland; and Keziah, who married James Frazier and is also now deceased.

David Walker, son of Lewis, and father of the subject of this sketch, was born in Cranberry Township, Butler County, Penna., in 1803. His youth was spent on the home farm, but later, giving up agricultural pursuits, he went to Pittsburg, where for some time he was engaged in the manufacture of brick. He subsequently returned to Butler and established a brick yard here, which, after carrying on for several years, he sold in 1847 to his brother Nathaniel. From this time until 1854 he was engaged in business as a dealer in horses and cattle, which he drove to the New York markets; and subsequently to this he obtained and executed a contract for making a cut on the North Western Railroad three miles below Butler. His successful business career was cut short by the opening of the Civil War and not long after his life was brought to an untimely end from the same cause. Enlisting in 1861 in Company H, Seventy-eighth Pennsylvania Volunteers, he served with that regiment in the field until the exposure and hardships incident to military life resulted in his death, which occurred in February, 1862. In politics he was at first a Whig and later a Republican. He served as justice of the peace in Butler Township for ten years. He was a consistent member and liberal supporter of the Presbyterian Church of Butler. His wife, Jane, was the daughter of John Gilliland, and their family numbered seven children, namely: Elizabeth, who became the wife of Rev. D. Hall; Lewis P., whose name appears at the head of this sketch; Mary E., who married William Slack; Keziah, wife of F. W. Rhoades; Hugh B., deceased; Sarah B., wife of O. D. Levis; and Martha J., wife of J. W. Yeaman. Mrs. Jane Walker died in 1848. She was a member of the Presbyterian Church.

Lewis P. Walker, the direct subject of this article, was well grounded in the elements of knowledge in the common schools, and began industrial life under his father's mentorship, remaining with the elder Walker until 1856. For eight years following he was engaged in hauling goods between Butler and Pittsburg. On the construction of the railroad he entered into the oil business at Petroleum Center, Venango County. He continued in business at this point for about ten years, at the end of which time, or in 1874, he returned to Butler, where he continued in the oil business and was also engaged in the lumber business up to 1880. Mr. Walker filled the office of justice of the peace in Butler for fifteen years and being subsequently appointed notary public has since served in that office. He is one of the charter members of Butler Lodge, No. 94, A. O. U. W., and is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Walker was married in 1856 to Mary D. Bell, of Butler, whose father, William Bell, formerly of Warren, Penna., constructed the second courthouse in Butler. Mrs. Walker died in 1901, having been the mother of six children, as follows: Emma J., a trained nurse formerly located in Charlotte, N. C., now residing at home; William S., residing in Colorado, who is a train dispatcher for the Denver & Rio Grande; Harry L., who died at the age of thirty-three years; Frank H., of Butler; Flora B., wife of Thomas E. Davis, of Butler; and Mary L., wife of A. G. Denny, residing on the old Walker homestead.

W. I. SIPE, proprietor of a general store at Fenelon, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is one of the most active and progressive men of that village and is identified with various business interests. He was born on the old Sipe homestead in Clearfield Township, which his father now owns and which was settled at an early date by his grandfather, John Sipe, Sr. The date of his birth is June 8, 1879, and he is a son of William S. and Callie (Pontius) Sipe, his mother being now deceased.

Mr. Sipe was reared on the farm and received his educational training in the old Brady School, the Chicora High School and the Cochranon Preparatory School, being a graduate of those institutions. He engaged in teaching in Butler County for three years, after which he held a position one year as traveling salesman. He then purchased of F. P. Gormley the store he now owns, and at first had W. P. Sipe, his brother, as a partner, later buying out his interest. He came to this village in 1901 and has progressed with it, his stock having been more than doubled in the time which has since elapsed. He has contributed largely toward the development of the community, identifying himself with all measures and enterprises calculated to be a benefit. He is an oil operator, having a well in operation which promises good results. He also is a prime mover in a telephone company, now in its infancy, which will give the farmers good service at the minimum cost. Its lines will terminate at the south border of the town, and there connect with Chicora by trunks, giving it the advantage of a large exchange. Mr. Sipe has a large acquaintance throughout this section, and is most highly esteemed.

September 10, 1901, W. I. Sipe was united in marriage with Miss Elizabeth C. Miller, a daughter of Nicholas and Mary (Kratz) Miller. Her father was a well known farmer and oil operator of Clearfield Township. Three children were born of this union: Harry Melancthon Wesley, deceased; Alberta Marie and Howard Isaiah. Religiously, they are members of the Methodist Church, and Mr. Sipe has served as Sunday school superintendent and class leader. He was formerly an active member of the Woodmen of the World, but since his removal to the village has been unable to attend its meetings.

HENRY M. WISE, a substantial citizen and leading business man of Harmony, where he conducts an extensive lumber business, was born at Harmony, Butler County, Pennsylvania, January 1, 1854, and is a son of Jacob F. and Sarah (Moyer) Wise.

The Wise family is of German extraction and it was established in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, by the great-grandfather. The grandfather, John Wise, was born in Bucks County, there married and then moved to a farm in Beaver County, where he died, aged fifty years. His widow lived to be eighty-eight years old. They had the following children: Jacob, John, Killian, Samuel, Catherine, Mary, Henry and Hannah. The survivors are:

Mary, wife of Henry Moyer; Hannah, wife of John Y. Zeigler, and Samuel, who lives in Beaver County.

Jacob F. Wise, father of Henry M., was born in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, January 12, 1818, and accompanied his parents to Beaver County. He married Sarah Moyer, a daughter of Benjamin Moyer, who came to Butler County from east of the Allegheny Mountains and settled in Lancaster Township. The Moyer children were: John, who died in Indiana; Henry, who lives at Harmony; Samuel, who also lives at Harmony; Elizabeth, deceased, was the wife of Conrad Stamm, of Beaver County; Sarah; Mary, deceased, who was the wife of Peter Otto; Susan, who is the widow of a Fosbeiner, and Catherine, widow of Peter Textor, formerly lived at Pittsburg, but now resides in Jackson Township.

When Jacob F. Wise came first to Jackson Township, Butler County, he went to work for Abram Zeigler, whose daughter he subsequently married, and to that union there were born five children, namely: Abram, who died in infancy; Nancy, deceased, who married Jacob Rice, of Butler; John and Jacob, twins, died aged twenty-seven and twenty-eight years, respectively; Mary, widow of Conrad Nicklas, lives in Connoquenessing Borough. The second marriage was to the mother of Henry M. Wise and he was their second child, the other members of the family being: Alfred, residing at Butler; Benjamin, residing at Spokane, State of Washington; Susan, postmistress at Harmony, and the widow of Jacob Fiedler; Levi, an attorney at law, and the editor of the Butler Eagle; Sarah, widow of J. R. Moore, of Ben Avon, Allegheny County; Israel, residing on the old homestead farm near Harmony; Noah, residing at Zelienople; Jeremiah, deceased, and Catherine (deceased), who married Edward Stauffer. The father of the above family followed farming and his death took place on the home farm near Harmony. The venerable mother of Mr. Wise died October 29, 1908, aged eighty-three years.

After completing the usual district school course, Henry M. Wise attended school in Zelienople for six months, where better advantages were afforded. In 1870 he took charge of a distillery, which he conducted until 1875. In the following year he entered the Harmony Savings Bank as cashier and remained there until 1884, when he embarked in a lumber business and has maintained his interest in this line ever since, dealing extensively. He has many other interests and is vice president of the First National Bank of Zelienople.

In 1877 Mr. Wise was married to Miss Jeanette Lusk, who is a daughter of the late Dr. Joseph A. Lusk, formerly of Harmony, later of Butler, where he died. His widow survives and resides in the latter city. Mr. and Mrs. Wise have had two children, Howard and Joseph, the latter of whom died when aged eight months. The former resides at Harmony and is associated with his father in the lumber business. He married Miss Annie Anderson of Rochester, Pa., a daughter of Mrs. G. Anderson, and has one child, Henry Howard, born November 30, 1908.

Mr. and Mrs. Wise are members of the Presbyterian Church. In politics he is a Republican and is serving in his third term as justice of the peace. He is an influential member of his party and for a number of years has served on the Republican County Committee. He is identified with the leading fraternal organizations, belonging to Harmony Masonic Lodge, No. 429; Harmony Lodge of Odd Fellows, No. 648; Harmony Knights of Pythias, No. 311; the Royal Arcanum, No. 698, and the Knights of Maccabees.

JOHN R. HENNINGER, attorney at law at Butler, where he is numbered with the leading members of his profession, was born April 12, 1870, in Penn Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Frederick Henninger.

Frederick Henninger was born in Germany and came to Butler County in the fifties. In 1868 he purchased his present farm in Penn Township and is one of the prominent men of the county.

John R. Henninger was reared on the home farm and from the country schools entered Edinboro and Clarion State Normal Schools, and was graduated from the latter institution in 1892. While teaching school he prepared for Dickin Law School and was graduated therefrom with the degree of B. L., in 1896. He immediately located at Butler. He has been concerned in many important cases of litigation in the local courts and in the Superior and Supreme Courts. He is a member of the Butler County Bar Association. For three years he served in the important office of district attorney, being elected on the Democratic ticket. On November 3, 1897, Mr. Henninger was married to Miss Margaret Weber, who was born also in Penn Township. Mr. and Mrs. Henninger are members of the English Lutheran Church at Butler.

LEWIS B. OESTERLING, who owns a fertile farm of fifty-seven acres, which is situated just east of Carbon Center, on the line separating Summit and Clearfield Townships, carries on a general farming business and engages in teaming when his land does not need his attention. He was born in Brady's Bend, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, May 18, 1868, and is a son of Leonard and Margaret (Floor) Oesterling, who are venerable and respected residents of Carbon Center.

Lewis B. Oesterling was less than two years old when his parents came to Summit Township and here he was reared and educated. He is the youngest son and next to the youngest member of his parents' family of twelve children. He came

Mr. Oesterling married Clara Pfaff, who is next to the youngest member of her parents' family of nine children, the others being: Mrs. Margaret McMillen, Anna Catherine, Harry, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Fennel, Mrs. Freda Faber, Mrs. Louisa Esler, Mrs. Laura Cowan and William. All are living except Mrs. Fennel, who died May 26, 1908. The parents of Mrs. Oesterling were Nicholas and Anna Margaret (Reibold) Pfaff, both of whom were born in Germany. The father came to America when he was twenty years of age and the mother when aged eleven years. They lived at Brady's Bend, Armstrong County, where the father worked for a time in the coal mines and then bought the farm on which he died in 1904. The mother still survives.

Mr. and Mrs. Oesterling have three children: Leonard Paul, Nicholas Pfaff and Anna Margaret. The family belong to the German Lutheran Church.

JACOB C. BRANDON, Justice of the Peace in the borough of Connoquenessing, belongs to one of the old and substantial families of Butler County. He owns a valuable farm of sixty-eight acres, situated in Connoquenessing Township, but he was born in Forward Township, January 15, 1844. His parents were John W. and Ruth Ann Catherine (Beigley) Brandon.

John W. Brandon, father of Jacob C., was born in Forward Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, September 6, 1814, a son of John and Sarah Brandon. He grew to manhood under the parental roof and then acquired land of his own, in Connoquenessing Township, where he engaged in farming through life and died there September 9, 1890. This farm became widely known for its richness in oil. In early life he was a Whig and later a Republican, but during his last years was affiliated with the Prohibition party and served as chairman of its county committee. He served one term as county commissioner and for many years was a justice of the peace. He was a leading member of the Mt. Nebo Presbyterian Church and one of its elders. John W. Brandon married Ruth Ann Catherine Beighley, December 24, 1840. She was born in Connoqueensing Township, Butler County, March 17, 1820, and still survives. This venerable lady is a member of the Second Presbyterian Church at Butler. There were ten children born to this marriage, as follows: William W., residing in Connoqueensing Township; Sarah Jane, wife of Peter H. Eckert, of Kansas; Jacob C.; John Calvin, deceased; Susan, wife of John A. Brandon, of Connoqueensing Township; Martha Elmina, wife of Samuel Wright, of Zelienople; Quincy, deceased; Washington D.; James E. and Junius, deceased.

The paternal grandfather, John Brandon, was of Dutch extraction. He served in the War of 1812 and was the founder of the family in Butler County. It was remarkable that he should have become a man of importance and means in the new settlement, as he suffered all the rest of his life from injuries received during his military service. His father, William Brandon, was born in Holland and belonged to the House of Brandenburg. He was a soldier in his own land before coming to the Colonies and served in the Patriot army through the whole of the Revolutionary War. After its close, William Brandon settled in Mercer County, Pennsylvania, but did not long survive. He married Sarah Livingston, who came of a French Huguenot family, who had escaped from France and gone first to Scotland and subsequently crossed the Atlantic and settled in Eastern Pennsylvania. They had six sons. In religious faith the family has been Presbyterian for generations.

The maternal grandfather of Jacob C. Brandon was John Beighley. He was born in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, and was four years old when his parents brought him to Butler County. The family lived in Connoqueensing Township, where John Beighley followed milling for a time and then went as a pioneer to Wisconsin, where both he and his wife died. He was a soldier in the War of 1812. His father was Henry Beighley, who was also born in Westmoreland County, and his father, the great-great-grandfather of J. C. Brandon, was born on the sea during the passage of his parents from Germany to America. The tracing of these old families brings to light many interesting facts and in considering the exploits of these hardy people who dared so much and faced so bravely the hardships which met them on every side, the conviction must be forced on their descendants that they were, indeed, people of intrinsic worth and forebears whose deeds and virtues deserve to make their names perpetuated.

Jacob C. Brandon was reared on the home farm and obtained his education in the district schools. He has always been interested in farming to some degree, and is a skilled carpenter, doing all his own work in this line and quite a large amount for his neighbors. In 1868 Mr. Brandon went to Kansas, taking up a homestead there and remained in Washington County, in that State, until 1873. For fifteen years prior to 1905, he engaged in the brick manufacturing business, first at Grove City, in 1891, removing his plant to Butler, where he continued the business until 1905, giving employment to about fifteen workmen. He then returned to the farm and gives attention to its cultivation, although he has other interests that also claim his attention. Formerly this farm was very rich in oil and there remains one very valuable producing well.

In his political views, Mr. Brandon is a Prohibitionist. He has always been a loyal citizen and in August, 1862, he enlisted in Company D, One Hundred Thirty-seventh Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and served nine months in the Army of the Potomac. He has never sought political office, but on many occasions his fellow citizens have elected him to positions of civic responsibility. He is serving his township at present as assessor and in the office of justice of the peace. He was one of the organizers of the Connoquenessing Telephone Company, a very prosperous local enterprise, of which he is secretary.

LEONARD OESTERLING, SR.

Mr. Brandon was married (first) to Miss Nancy Steen, a daughter of William Steen, of Connoquenessing Township, and six of their children grew to maturity, namely: William J., a United Presbyterian minister, who is a missionary in the Punjab District, India; Ella, who is the wife of Rev. John A. Erbe, of Perrysville, Ohio; Cameron G., who resides at Butler; Ethel Clare, who is the wife of C. B. Miller, superintendent of the Hammond Steel Car Works, and Orry Dight and Loyal J., both at home. The mother of these children died May 31, 1901, aged fifty-seven years. She was a consistent member of the United Presbyterian Church. Mr. Brandon was married (second) to Miss Mary White, of Mercer County. They are leading members of the United Presbyterian Church.

LEONARD OESTERLING, Sr., a well known and much esteemed resident of Carbon Center, residing on his valuable farm of 100 acres, was born in the harbor of Bremen, Germany, after his parents had embarked for America, April 18, 1831, and was two weeks old when the vessel got under way. He is a son of John and Elizabeth (Ripper) Oesterling.

After reaching Pennsylvania, the parents of Mr. Oesterling settled on a farm in Summit Township, Butler County, near the present village of Herman, but in six weeks' time moved to a more desirable place, the old Oesterling homestead, which is situated near where the Summit road crosses the old State road, in Summit Township. Both parents died on that farm.

Leonard Oesterling was about six years old when his father and mother settled on the old farm above mentioned and he continued to live there until he was twenty-one, when he married and afterward resided for a year and a half on a rented farm in Summit Township and then moved to Brady's Bend, Armstrong County. For sixteen following years, Mr. Oesterling worked in the rolling mills there and then returned to Summit Township, buying his present farm in 1870. He continued to work two more years in Armstrong County, in the mills and then took up his residence in Summit Township, where he engaged in farming until a few years since, when he retired, turning the active operation of the farm over to his sons.

In 1852 Mr. Oesterling was married to Margaret Floor, who was born in Germany and was eighteen years old when she came to America, leaving her parents in the old country. Of Mr. and Mrs. Oesterling's children two died at birth. The survivors were as follows: John, who owns over 100 acres of land in Summit Township, is a well known citizen; Mary, who is the widow of William Kellerman, resides in Summit Township; Adam, who died aged nine months; Leonard, Jr., a substantial farmer of Summit Township; George, who died aged one year; Simon, who died aged nine months; Maggie, who married Morgan Davis, of Butler; William, who is a farmer and oil man of Summit County; Lewis Benjamin, who is also one of Summit Township's representative men; Emma, who died aged one year; and Annie, who is the wife of William Regar, of Clearfield Township. Mr. Oesterling is a member of the German Lutheran Church.

LEONARD OESTERLING, Jr., general farmer in Summit Township near Carbon Center, residing on his farm of fifty acres, has also been engaged in oil contracting for the past twenty years. He was born at Brady's Bend, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, September 29, 1856, and is a son of Leonard and Margaret (Floor) Oesterling.

The venerable parents of Mr. Oesterling still survive and reside at Carbon Center, aged respectively eighty and seventy-seven years. The father was born on the ship on which his parents had embarked for America, before it left the harbor of Bremen, Germany, and his infant cries were lulled by the sounds of the sea during the long passage. His father, John Oesterling, brought his wife and infant son to Summit Township, Butler County. The latter grew to manhood on the home farm and after his marriage he moved to Armstrong County, where, for twenty-three years he worked as a puddler in the rolling mills. In 1869 he bought and moved to the farm on which he still lives, it adjoining the one owned by his son, Leonard.

Leonard Oesterling, Jr., was fourteen years of age when his parents returned to Summit Township and this has been his home ever since. For twenty years he has been in the oil business as a contractor driller and is well and favorably known over the whole district. He is also a successful farmer. His property was first purchased by his father from the heirs of Joseph Gold, and in 1895 Mr. Oesterling bought it of his father and has made the many excellent improvements, including the building of house and barns.

Mr. Oesterling married Rachel Knouse, who is a daughter of Andrew Knouse, a well known citizen, and they have six children, namely: Lewis Edward, who operates a pumping station for the Standard Oil Company at New Cumberland, West Virginia; Annie, who is the wife of Henry Carter, of Little Washington, Pennsylvania; Harry, who is engaged in a blacksmith business at Carbon Center; Leonard LaVerne, who is employed in a pumping station at Clymer, Butler County; and Earl and Gertrude. Mr. Oesterling and family belong to the German Lutheran Church at Butler.

J. EMORY BRANDON, well known resident of Butler, where he is identified with manufacturing interests, had been a representative of the Equitable Life Insurance Company for almost a decade and has been a resident of this city for the past sixteen years. He was born in 1857, in Connoquenessing Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of John W. Brandon.

The Brandon family is a pioneer one of this county and it was established by the grandfather, John Brandon, in early days. The late John W. Brandon was born in Foreward Township, where his life was partly spent, his business being agriculture.

J. Emory Brandon was mainly reared on the family farm, where he resided until he was thirty-three years of age, engaged in farming. When failing health indicated that he must change his mode of life, he left the farm and moved to Butler, where, with the exception of two winters spent in Florida, he has lived ever since. He controls a large territory in the interest of the Equitable Company and does a proportionate amount of insurance business. He is interested also in the Spang Manufacturing Company.

In 1890 Mr. Brandon was married to Miss Nannie Rose, of Mercer County, Pennsylvania, and they have had three children, Rose and Elmer, both of whom are making very satisfactory records at school, and Marie Catherine (deceased). Mr. Brandon is one of the leading members of the Second Presbyterian Church and a member of the Sessions. His interest in politics is that of a fair-minded citizen who desires to see the laws upheld and the community advanced in business, education and morals.

GEORGE FORCHT, for the past thirty years auditor of Summit Township, resides on an excellent farm of eighty acres on which he has an oil well which has been constantly producing for the past thirty-one years and is one of the oldest in the township. He was born on this farm March 19, 1852, and is a son of John and Margaret (Eitenmüller) Forcht.

The parents of Mr. Forcht were natives of Germany. They came to America in youth and were married at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, where they lived for twenty years, the father following his trade of saddler. Of their eleven children, five survive, namely: John P., residing at Butler; William G., residing in western Canada; George; Albert, residing at Hazel, South Dakota; and Amelia, wife of Henry Grohman, residing at Butler. In 1850, the parents of Mr. Forcht moved on this farm where they continued to live until 1879, when they retired to Butler, where the mother died when aged eighty-five years, and the father when aged ninety-four years.

George Forcht has followed farming all his life and has been interested in the oil business to the extent of pumping his own wells. He has had nine wells drilled on his land, six of them proving active, but none are at present operative with the one exception above mentioned. Mr. Forcht married Emma E. Grohman, and they have had a family of ten children born to them, namely: William J., who is a druggist at Butler; Gertrude, who lives at home; Lillian, who is a stenographer residing at Pittsburg; Verna, who married Archie Schenck, has one child, Earl; and Howard, Arnold, Edna, Arthur, Walter and Margaret. The family home is a commodious frame residence which Mr. Forcht built in 1889. He is a man of consequence in his community and his fellow citizens have shown how highly they esteem him by keeping him in the responsible office of auditor for so many years. He is one of the leading members of the German Lutheran Church at Butler.

JACOB KECK, who enjoys the distinction of being the oldest justice of the peace at Butler, in point of service, having continuously filled the office for forty-one years, has also been one of the city's useful and active business men. He was born in Germany, June 26, 1830, and came to the United States when nineteen years of age.

Mr. Keck came to Butler in 1850 and after serving an apprenticeship to the cabinetmaker's trade, he worked for seven years as a journeyman and then entered into business as a cabinetmaker and undertaker, at Butler, which business he continued for about thirty-three years. He was active also in other lines, in 1884 being interested in a book and stationery business and also in a merchant tailoring business. He also acquired property in the vicinity of Butler and owns one of the rich farms in the environs of the city. In a business way he has been identified with several organizations and at present is serving as secretary of the Workmen's Building and Loan Association of Butler. In addition to the attention necessarily given to these various business concerns, Judge Keck has completely and efficiently performed every duty attached to the office of justice of the peace. During this period of forty-one years in office and the handling of hundreds and hundreds of cases and the peaceable adjusting of many vexing problems, he has had not more than six cases reversed by the higher courts, and this fact indicates the legal ability and sound judgment possessed by Judge Keck. He has always taken a lively interest in local politics and is a staunch adherent of the Democratic party.

In 1853 Mr. Keck was married (first) to Miss Margaret Kradel, who died in 1872, leaving three children, namely: George F., who is engaged in a merchant tailoring business at Butler; Elizabeth, who is the wife of Lewis Keck, residing at Butler; and Louisa, who is the wife of Harry S. Klingler, also of Butler. Mr. Keck was married (second) to Miss Louise T. Troutman, who is a daughter of Adam Troutman, of Pittsburg. The two children of the second marriage are: Theodore C. H., who is a well-known attorney at Butler; and Gertrude M., who lives at home. Mr. Keck and family belong to the Lutheran Church.

DR. JAMES HAMILTON RALSTON, one of the leading physicians of Butler County, located at Harmony, Pennsylvania, was born January 7, 1865, and is a son of William and Hannah (Riddle) Ralston.

John Ralston, great-grandfather of our subject, was among the early settlers of Butler County. He came here from Greensburg, Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, but first located at New Castle, Lawrence County, where he contemplated building a mill, but owing to conditions which he deemed not suitable for building, moved up to Slippery Rock, and about 1765 built the first mill in that locality. John Ralston lived to an advanced age and was the father of a large family of children. He was a man of powerful physique, a citizen of sterling worth, honorable and true in business, and generous and reliable in friendship.

William Ralston, grandfather of our subject, was born in 1800 at Slippery Rock, now Centerville. In 1830 he located on the Little Connoquenessing and died there in 1898 at the advanced age of ninety-eight years. He married Mary Sharp, who was born in Ireland and at the age of thirteen years came to this country with her parents, who located near Butler, Pennsylvania. The following children were born to the grandparents of Dr. Ralston: John, died in 1886 in Butler County; James, who died in Andersonville prison, owned a small farm, which was purchased by his father after his death. Oil was discovered on same later on, and there his father erected a mill; Albert is engaged in business in Oregon; William, father of subject, resides in Butler County; Mrs. Brison Martin resides at Whitestown, Butler County; Martha married a Mr. Brown of Unionville; Mary married Isaac McClung of Unionville, Pennsylvania.

William Ralston, our subject's father, was born near Butler, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is still living, and although now in his seventy-second year, is still hale and hearty for one of his years. He is a miller by trade and for many years owned and operated a mill in Concord township and also one in Prospect Borough. He married Hannah Riddle, who was born in Franklin Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and a daughter of Samuel Riddle, who was born and reared at Prospect, where he died aged forty-five years. Mrs. Riddle died aged forty-two years. Mrs. Ralston had two sisters and two brothers, namely: Matilda, married Dr. Hamilton and died in California; Rachel, married Robert Borland; Irwin, died in Texas; and Hamilton, who served in the United States Army, died in Arizona. William Ralston and his estimable wife were the parents of the following children: Dr. Samuel Ralston, graduated from the Jefferson Medical College and also took a course of study at the Mt. Union College of Ohio and at Grove City. He married Mary Swain of Harmony, Butler County; Mary, deceased wife of Dr. R. E. Redmond of Grove City; Albert, who attended the public schools and Prospect Academy, married Eva Wagle of Prospect. He is now deceased; James, the subject of this sketch; and William, who received his education at Prospect, died unmarried.

James Hamilton Ralston, our subject, was reared at Prospect and obtained his educational training at Grove City College and at Mt. Union, Ohio, after which he took a four-years' course at Jefferson Medical College, graduating in 1901. Dr. Ralston first embarked in the practice of his profession at Slate Lick, Armstrong County. In November, 1904, he located at Harmony, where he now enjoys a lucrative practice as well as the confidence and esteem of all those with whom he has been brought in contact.

In 1885, when just twenty years of age, Dr. Ralston was united in marriage at Dayton, Ohio, with Theodosia Thayer, a daughter of Oscar Thayer of that city. The great-grandfather of Mrs. Ralston served two terms as mayor of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Five children have been born to Dr. and Mrs. Ralston: Mary C., wife of Floyd Wengel of Harmony, has one child, Bruce; William, aged nineteen years, is still at home; Samuel, is in Virginia; Irwin, lives at home; Camilla. Fraternally, Dr. Ralston is a member of the Knights of Pythias, and the K. O. T. M. He is also a member of the American Medical Association, the Medical Association of Pennsylvania and the Butler County Medical Association. He is a Republican in politics, as were all of his ancestors.

FREW H. STEWART, general farmer and prominent citizen of Connoquenessing Township, residing on his valuable farm of 150 acres, was born in Lancaster Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, June 25, 1871, and is a son of Archibald G. and Mary (Hays) Stewart.

The Stewart family is a very old one in Pennsylvania, and, as the name indicates, may be traced to Scotland. Robert Stewart, the great-great-grandfather of Frew H., was an early settler in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, and served in the Revolutionary War. He remained in the military service of the State, as his name in 1781 is on the pay roll of Captain Evans' company, Second Pennsylvania Regiment. His home was in a remote region, with the nearest neighbor fifteen miles distant. In 1796 he came to Butler County and located at Stewartville, now Portersville, where he was appointed the first postmaster. He married Margaret, daughter of Colonel Christy, also a Revolutionary soldier, and a settler at Portersville, in 1800. Of the eleven children born to this marriage, Samuel was the eldest son.

Samuel Stewart, the great-grandfather of Frew H. Stewart, probably accompanied his parents to Butler County, as records show that he built a cabin on the west side of Portersville and lived on the farm now owned by the Cheesman family. In 1803 he moved to Connoquenessing Township, purchasing a farm in the woods. He married Nancy Scott, a daughter of John Scott, and of their twelve children, William was the second born.

William Stewart, grandfather of Frew H., was born in Connoquenessing Township, in 1805, and in boyhood went to live with his Grandfather Scott on a farm west of Moundsville. He remained there into early manhood and then returned to his father's farm, which he helped to clear and later purchased sixty acres of its northern part. In 1827 he married Eliza Frew, who was born in 1806, a daughter of John Frew, of Lawrence County, Pennsylvania, and they had eight children, Archibald G. being the sixth in order of birth and the youngest son. They were among the founders of the Moundsville United Presbyterian Church.

Archibald G. Stewart was born in Lancaster Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, April 30, 1838. He attended C. H. Dumlup's Normal School at Prospect and prepared himself for teaching and spent several years alternately working the home farm and teaching school. He remained on the home place about one and one-half years after his marriage, and then moved to Worth Township. In the spring of 1864, he enlisted for service in the Civil War, entering Company A, Sixth Regiment, Pennsylvania Heavy Artillery. This regiment was made guard of General Sheridan's supply train and during almost the whole period of service, until the close of the war, was detailed for this important work. After he returned from the army, in the fall of 1865, Mr. Stewart sold his Worth Township farm and moved into Lancaster Township, where he lived for seven years and then returned to Worth Township for four years, in the spring of 1876, settling on the farm now owned by his son, Frew H. Here Mr. Stewart continued to reside until the fall of 1899, when he retired to Grove City, where he is one of the highly esteemed older citizens. He belongs to the Grand Army Post there and formerly was both chaplain and commander of the Prospect Post. During his years of residence in Connoquenessing Township, he served as a justice of the peace and in numerous other offices, being school director, tax collector and overseer of the poor. On May 22, 1862, he married Mary E. Hays, who is a daughter of William Hays, of Lancaster Township, and of their eight children, the following five grew to maturity: Anna, who resides with her aged parents at Grove City, is the widow of J. W. McJunkin; Frew H.; Frank W., who is a practicing physician at Colfax, Iowa; Herbert W., a graduate of Grove City College, who is now a student in the Western Theological Seminary at Allegheny; and Roy M., residing at home, who is a telegraph operator at Grove City. The parents are members of the Presbyterian Church and for many years the father was a ruling elder in the Mt. Nebo Church.

Frew H. Stewart has devoted himself almost exclusively to agricultural pursuits, having received thorough training under his father. About one-fifth of his large estate is timbered. He raises corn, oats, wheat, hay, potatoes and buckwheat, utilizing improved machinery and carrying on his operations after the most approved methods. He keeps about twenty head of cattle and nine milch cows, and makes choice butter for private customers at Butler.

Mr. Stewart married Miss Sarah Dutter, who is a daughter of Jesse Dutter, of Franklin Township, Butler County. They are members of the Mt. Nebo Presbyterian Church, Mr. Stewart being one of the elders. He is affiliated with the Republican party, but has always declined political office.

HENRY KECK, one of Summit Township's well known citizens and general farmers, resides on his farm of eighty acres, which is situated adjacent to Greenwood Cemetery, which property once was a part of this farm. Mr. Keck was born on a farm in Summit Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, one and one-half miles distant from this one, February 28, 1854, and is a son of Martin and Mary (Rimp) Keck.

Martin Keck and wife were both born in Germany and both came unmarried to Butler County and they were later married at Summit. The Kecks and the Rimps owned adjoining farms. There were six children born to Martin Keck and wife, namely: John, while working on a steamboat on the Mississippi River, near Memphis, was attacked by cholera and died there; Matthias, who died aged fifty-two years, reared a family of nine children; Lewis, who is a foreman in the plate glass works, lives in Butler; Christian; Henry, and Philip, who follows the blacksmith business in Union County, Iowa. The father of this family died in October, 1886. The venerable mother, who will celebrate her ninety-first birthday on October 18, 1908, resides with her son Henry.

Henry Keck was born on the old Rimp

farm, but was small when his parents moved to the old Keck farm and there he was reared. He has lived on his present farm since the fall of 1877 and some years ago sold the land to the township which now is Greenwood Cemetery. With the exception of one summer, during which he worked on a steamboat running on the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers, he has been engaged in general farming and trucking all his mature life. After his marriage he settled on this farm which was the old homestead of his father-in-law, Adam Rettig, who owned three farms in the township.

Mr. Keck married Christina Rettig and they have nine children, namely: Minnie, who married Henry Kurtz, has four children, Gilbert, Elinor, Merle and Alberta; Bertha, who married Harry Bowsher; Charles, who married Lillie Cradle, has one child, Florence; Amelia, who married Lewis Frederick, has one child, Leroy; Philip, who works in the glass works at Butler; Lillie, who lives at home; Ferdinand, who is engaged in farming in Michigan, and Herman and Oliver, both reside at home. Mr. Keck and family belong to the German Lutheran Church. Mr. Keck is interested in the public schools and served four years as school director in his district.

ROBERT EDGAR GALLAGHER, D. D. S., a prominent professional man at Zelienople, is also identified with its business interests, being treasurer of the Home Realty Company, and interested in other enterprises. Dr. Gallagher was born in Worth Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, October 14, 1865, and is a son of William and Sophia C. (Coulson) Gallagher.

The parents of Dr. Gallagher were both born in Butler County, and the mother still survives. The father died in 1870, aged fifty-seven years. He was a farmer for many years in Worth Township. The Gallagher family is an old pioneer one of this part of Pennsylvania and was founded in Butler County by John Gallagher, the great-grandfather of Dr. Gallagher. He came with his family from County Down, Ireland. James Gallagher, the eldest son of John and the grandfather of Dr. Gallagher, was small when he accompanied his parents to America. He was twice married, his first wife being Sarah Forester and they lived and died in Muddy Creek Township, Butler County. They had three children, the son becoming the father of Dr. Gallagher. The latter had five brothers and sisters, namely: James, deceased; John, who resides near Petersville; Hannah, who is the wife of Harry M. Lebengood and resides at Camden, New Jersey; Stella, who is the wife of Lewis Smith, of Beaver Falls; Malissa, who is the wife of John Kelly and resides at Zelienople.

Dr. Gallagher attended the country schools in Worth Township until he was fifteen years old and then became a student at Witherspoon Institute, at Butler, following which he taught school for some five years. In 1895 he entered the Pennsylvania College of Dental Surgery at Philadelphia, where he was graduated in the class of 1898 and then located in that city and practiced there for seven years. In 1905 he came to Zelienople where his skill has built up a large and lucrative practice. Dr. Gallagher keeps fully abreast of the times in his profession and is a member of the C. N. Peirce Dental Society and also of the Western Pennsylvania Odontological Society. He belongs to Cosmopolitan Lodge, No. 433, Knights of Pythias, at Philadelphia, and to the Knights of Maccabee at Zelienople. Politically he is a Republican. He retains his college membership with Psi Omega fraternity. He is a member of the Episcopal Church.

EDWIN MEEDER, one of the foremost merchants of Butler County, and the present nominee of the Democratic party for representative from this district, was born in Connoquenessing Township, Butler County, Penna., January 24, 1864, son of George and Lena (Miller) Meeder.

His parental grandfather was Tobias Meeder, a native of Germany, who emigrated to this country, bringing his family with him, and settling in Summit Township, Butler County, Penna., near the present site of Summit Station. He was there engaged in farming, but subsequently moved to Connoquenessing Township. He and his wife were the parents of six children—Frederick, George, Tobias, Salome, Magdalena and Caroline. Frederick married Caroline Hoelin and lived and died in Cranberry Township. George was the father of the subject of this sketch and is mentioned more fully in the succeeding paragraph of this article. Tobias married Caroline Gerwig and is now a retired farmer. He has resided in Butler County since 1850—thirteen years in Summit, from there to Cranberry Township, and thence to Zelenople, of which place he is now a resident. Salome, who became the wife of John Troll, removed to Minnesota and is now deceased. Magdalena, who was the wife of Victor Buch, moved to Milwaukee, in which city she died. Caroline, who married Christopher Vogus, died in Wisconsin. The father of these children died in 1873 at the age of seventy-three years; the mother died in Germany aged forty-eight years.

George Meeder, who was born in Germany January 26, 1828, settled here about 1848. He married Lena Millerman, who is still living, and they were the parents of ten children, of whom four sons and five daughters still survive. Their record in brief is as follows: Phillip, born in May, 1856, now resides on a farm in Connoquenessing Township; he married Jeanette Ramsey of Cranberry Township. Edwin was born in 1864. Albert H. married Miss Hensel of Zelenople. Theodore W. resides in Cleveland; he married a lady of Mansfield, Ohio, and travels for H. J. Heinz & Co. Magdalena is the wife of Dale Thom, of Connoquenessing Township, a farmer. Margaret married Jacob Shieves, a farmer of Connoquenessing Township. Catherine became the wife of Henry Ashe, of Saxonburg, a blacksmith, and moved to Tarentum, Allegheny County, where her husband died. Caroline became the wife of George Harris of New Castle, a butcher. Dora first married William Barnhart, a farmer of Connoquenessing Township, and after his death became the wife of George Preston, a moulder of New Brighton, Penna.

The father of the above mentioned children died March 6, 1908, when in his eighty-first year.

Edwin Meeder acquired his literary education at Witherspoon Institute and Curry University, Pittsburg. He then spent three years teaching in Butler County, after which he taught two years in Minnesota, and then entered into a mercantile business, in which he continued for a year. He married in Minnesota and then, in 1887, returned to Zelenople, where he was clerk in a store until the spring of 1892. His next industrial employment was as traveling salesman, in which he continued for about two years and a half, or until the fall of 1894. For two years thereafter he was engaged in settling the estate of Mr. Ifft. In 1896 he founded the mercantile firm of A. H. Meeder & Co., the business being carried on for eight years subsequently under that style. In 1904 the partnership was dissolved, since which time Mr. Meeder has been in business alone. His establishment, which is devoted to general merchandise, is the largest in the county outside Butler, it having grown from $8,000 to $50,000 per annum. Mr. Meeder is secretary and treasurer of the Zelenople Light & Power Company, and for a time was first vice-president of the First National Bank of Zelenople. He has been a Democrat from his earliest years of responsibility, and has taken an active part in local politics. Without seeking it he received the nomination for representative on the Democratic ticket in 1908, and there can be no doubt, if his business and personal records afford any clue, that he would make an acceptable public servant.

Mr. Meeder was married, in 1887, to Miss Ida Elling, a daughter of Henry Elling of Carver County, Minn. Their family includes two daughters and three sons—Lillian, Lena, Clarence, Victor and Ellsworth.

EVERETT L. RALSTON, attorney at law, at Butler, is a representative of one of the oldest families of Butler County. He was born in 1857, in what is now the borough of Slippery Rock, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of John Ralston.

John Ralston was born in Slippery Rock Township, Butler County, where his parents were pioneers, about 1837. He learned the carpenter trade, but his life was mainly devoted to agricultural pursuits. He was a man of quiet unambitious life and his death took place in the section in which he was born.

Everett L. Ralston was afforded excellent educational advantages and in 1881 he was graduated from Grove City College. Prior to this he had taught school and following his graduation he entered upon the study of law under the preceptorship of Hon. Charles McCandless and was admitted to the bar in 1885. For a time he was in partnership with John M. Greer and later with J. B. Greer, a son of Judge Greer, the latter partnership continuing for some years. Since it was dissolved he has practiced alone, both in the local courts, the Supreme Court of the State and the United States District Court. He has gained high standing in his profession and on many occasions has been counsel in very important cases of litigation, in many of which he secured full justice for his clients. He is a member of the Butler County Bar Association.

Mr. Ralston was married in 1889 to Miss Carrie H. Smith, who is a daughter of W. P. Smith, of Center Township, Butler County, and they have three children: Charles E., who is a student at Grove City College, his father's alma mater; J. Pery and Robert Clifford, who are students in the Butler High School. Mr. and Mrs. Ralston are members of the United Presbyterian Church. His fraternal connections are with the Knights of Pythias and the Woodmen of the World.

JOHN P. MILLER, a well known agriculturist of Summit Township, residing on the farm of sixty-two acres which is owned jointly by himself and wife, was born at Butler, Butler County, Pennsylvania, April 29, 1845, and is a son of Andrew and Elizabeth (Nicholas) Miller.

Both parents of Mr. Miller were born in Germany. The father lived in his native country until he reached young manhood and then came to Butler County, Pennsylvania, securing work in a tannery at Zelenople, where he remained for a time and then went to Butler, where he established the first brewery in the place. The mother of John P. Miller was brought from Germany to America when six years of age by her father, Peter Nicholas, who settled at Zelenople, where he remained for a few years and then moved to what was then Clearfield, but what is now Summit Township. Peter Nicholas bought a farm near Herman, and there his daughter Elizabeth grew to young womanhood. Andrew Miller continued his brewery business at Butler for a number of years, but retired for some time before his death.

John P. Miller went to school through boyhood and then began work in his father's brewery and after his father retired from business he continued the brewery for some years and then turned his attention to farming. In March, 1880, Mr. Miller and wife came to their present farm, one on which she had been reared from the age of five years. Mr. Miller was married at Butler to Rosanna Hoffman, who was born at Petersburg, Huntington County, Pennsylvania, and is a daughter of Conrad and Barbara (Wagner) Hoffman. They were born in Germany, but were married in America. Shortly after the marriage of their daughter they rented the farm in Summit Township and moved to Butler, where both subsequently died. This farm at one time was drilled in a number of places for oil, and wells produced for a certain period, but at present there is but one well in operation. Mr. and Mrs. Miller have had eleven children born to them and they also have a number of grandchildren. The family record is as follows: John Louis married Clara Tait and they have six children. Mary Elizabeth married Robert Clay and they have five children. Laura married John Knause and they have one child. Charles E. married Rose Gallagher and they have two children. Emma married Benjamin Tait and they have five children. Albert married Lydia Frederick. Frank is a contractor and oil worker, and Lester R. and Lee W. also reside at home. One babe died unnamed and the third child, Flora, lived but five months.

N. C. McCOLLOUGH, a prominent citizen of Butler, attorney at law, oil producer and an active politician, has been a resident of this city for some fifteen years. He was born in 1864, in Fairview Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Peter and a grandson of William McCollough.

The founder of the McCollough family in Butler County was John McCollough, the great-grandfather of N. C. McCollough. Peter McCollough, the father, was a son of William McCollough, and was born in Fairview Township in 1835. For many years he was a leading citizen and large farmer in his native township and he still survives, residing at Chicora, Pennsylvania. The old McCollough property was secured in 1799 and some member of the family has resided on it until the present.

On the old homestead, N. C. McCollough passed his boyhood, securing his education first in the township schools and later at Grove City College, where he was graduated in 1887. He then engaged in teaching and followed this profession in Butler County and later in Kansas and before seriously taking up the study of law at Butler, he served two terms as county superintendent of schools. In 1897 he was admitted to the bar and has been engaged in practice ever since. Mr. McCollough owns large holdings in the oil fields of Pennsylvania and is extensively engaged as a producer. He is a stockholder in the Guaranty Safe Deposit & Trust Company and in other business concerns of importance. He is an ardent Republican and a hard worker for his friends. For the past two years he has been chairman of the Republican County Committee. In 1907 Mr. McCollough was married to Miss Amelia Sherman, a resident of Butler. They are members of the English Lutheran Church. Fraternally he is a Mason, an Odd Fellow and a Knight of Pythias.

JOHN CRAMER, one of Summit Township's substantial and representative men, resides on his fine farm of 137 acres, which lies on the Kittanning turnpike, about six miles east of Butler. He was born November 10, 1856, in Deer Creek Township, Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Jacob and Barbara Cramer.

The parents of Mr. Cramer removed from Allegheny County to Clearfield Township, Butler County, in his infancy and there he was reared. The mother died on that farm, after which the father retired to Butler, where he died in the spring of 1908.

John Cramer obtained his education in the schools of Clearfield Township and assisted his father on the farm until he was twenty-five years old, when he purchased some oil wells and has been interested in the oil and gas business ever since. He settled on his present farm on April 1, 1904, where he has much excellent farming land and has three oil wells there, owning a number of other wells in other sections.

Mr. Cramer was married first to Eva Langraf and had two children—Albert and Mary. He married second Catherine Kirt, who is a daughter of John Kirt and they have the following children: Leo, Agatha, Elinor, Walter and Cassia. Mr. Cramer is one of the best known men in this part of the country and his judgment in regard to oil and gas territory is considered very valuable.

FRANCIS WALLACE CUNNINGHAM, a prominent dentist of Zelenople, was born in this borough, a son of Dr. Abelard V. and Jennie (Wallace) Cunningham. His paternal grandfather was Dr. Robert Cunningham, who was born in Lancaster County, Penna., in 1806, and who spent his early life in that locality. He was of Irish descent. Coming to Beaver County he there purchased a farm in North Sewickley Township, on which he resided, and was for twenty-eight years engaged in the practice of medicine. His wife in maidenhood was Jane Allison, who came of a prominent family in that locality. They were the parents of seven children.

Dr. Abelard V. Cunningham graduated in medicine at the Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia and has been engaged in the practice of his profession in Zelenople for many years. He is a specialist in the treatment of cancerous growths. He is also examining surgeon for several of the large life insurance companies. His wife Jennie, to whom he was united in 1869, is a daughter of Francis and Adeline (Ferguson) Wallace. Their family numbers in all nine children.

Francis Wallace Cunningham was reared in his native village of Zelenople, obtaining his primary education in the common schools of the locality. He then took a course of study in Geneva College, and was graduated in dentistry at North Pittsburg in 1905. The above-mentioned studies were supplemented by a commercial course in the New Castle Business College. After thus qualifying himself in an educational sense, he established himself in Zelenople, where he is now engaged in a successful practice as a dental surgeon. In 1899 he was joined in marriage with Sadie Thomas, a daughter of William and Jane (Martin) Thomas, of Johnstown, Penna. Dr. and Mrs. Cunningham are the parents of seven children—Abelard Vincent, Harold, Leroy, James Wallace, Sylvia Murton, Vivian, Ethel, and Kenneth Robert. Dr. Cunningham is independent in politics. He has served for the past nine years as clerk of the council, having been a member of that body for the same length of time.

JAMES A. McDOWELL, general cement contractor at Butler, is one of the city's well known and thoroughly reliable business men. He was born November 1, 1866, at Franklin, Venango County, Pennsylvania.

In 1873, when Mr. McDowell was seven years old, his parents moved to Butler County, and the boy obtained his education in the Butler schools. He then learned the plastering and cement business with his father and for the last seventeen years he has been contracting for all kinds of cement work, and as each year sees cement entering more and more into the building field, Mr. McDowell's enterprise continues to proportionately expand.

August 4, 1892, Mr. McDowell was married to Miss Etta M. Coyle, who was born and reared in Parker Township. They have one child, Clare L. Mr. McDowell owns a fine property at No. 706 W. Penn Street. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He has served as a member of the City Council and also as borough auditor and in all public offices he has displayed ability and sound judgment. He belongs to several organizations, to the Odd Fellows, to the Home Guards of America, to the Butler Fire Company and the Protected Home Circle.

Mr. McDonald was a member of Company G, Twenty-first Regiment, Pennsylvania National Guards, during the Spanish-American War, and was appointed as corporal, serving two years, when he was honorably discharged.

HUNTER E. COULTER, a member of the Butler bar and one of the city's representative and substantial citizens, was born in 1860, in Allegheny Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania.

Alexander Coulter, father of Hunter E., came to Butler County from the eastern part of Pennsylvania and settled on a farm in Allegheny Township. He followed farming there and also conducted a blacksmith business in the Pennsylvania oil fields.

Hunter E. Coulter was reared on the home farm and from the public schools entered Grove City College and in 1884 was graduated from the Edinboro State Normal School. He had commenced to teach school almost in boyhood and continued to teach for about nine years, teaching one year in Butler. In 1886 he began the study of law at Butler in the office of Lewis Z. Mitchell, and in 1887 he was admitted to the bar and entered into partnership with T. M. Baker. This association continued until 1905, when Mr. Baker withdrew in order to engage in banking. Mr. Coulter practices in the county and supreme courts. He takes an active interest in civic government and for seventeen years has been clerk of the council and during five years of this period has also served as borough solicitor. He has numerous interests outside his professional ones and is a stockholder in two of the city banks and is a member of the board of directors of the Butler Steam Laundry.

In 1888 Mr. Coulter was married to Miss Emma C. Barger, of Armstrong County, and they have three children: Clarence G., a student in the Butler High School; Byron Jay, who is learning the machinist trade with the Spang Company; and Sarah Eleanor, who resides at home. Mr. Coulter and family belong to the Methodist Episcopal Church.

PETER NEU, a prominent farmer of Summit Township and a leading citizen, at present filling the position of road supervisor in a very efficient manner, resides on his valuable property containing ninety-three acres, situated at Carbon Center. Mr. Neu has resided on this farm since 1868 but he was born twenty years earlier, at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, January 16, 1848. His parents were John and Mary (Baldauf) Neu.

The parents of Mr. Neu were both born in Germany, but they were not married until after they came to America. The father's business was coal mining and he rose from the lowest position in the mine to that of pit boss on the inside of the mine. He was an industrious and steady worker and accumulated money which he later invested in the purchase of land, buying three farms, aggregating 270 acres, to one of which he moved. Both John and Mary Neu died in Summit Township.

During boyhood, Peter Neu worked with his father in the coal mines and he was twenty years of age when the family came to Summit Township, after which he and his brothers, operated the three farms. The one he now owns was not the one on which his parents settled, all the buildings on that farm having been removed by the B., R. & P. Railroad. On this farm, Mr. Neu put up all the substantial buildings and made all the improvements. He carries on general farming and has three oil wells on his property. He is one of the five survivors of a family of seven children, namely: Catherine, who is the wife of Jacob Gillenberger, of Pittsburg; John, who was drowned in the Monongahela River before the family came to Butler County; Peter; Joseph, who died in 1905; Annie; Henry, who resides at Beaver Falls; and Philip, who died in infancy.

In early manhood, Peter Neu married Barbara Leinenbaugh, who is a daughter of Peter Leinenbaugh, and they have had eight children, as follows: Amalie Catherine (deceased); Edward Joseph (deceased); Rosalie M., who married John Conrad; Clara M., who married Albert J. Carter; Francis P.; Emma C., who married Marsh Leonard; Charles E., married Clara Leonard; and John L. J. Mr. Neu and family belong to the Roman Catholic Church.

DR. ABELARD VINCENT CUNNINGHAM, a prominent physician of Zelenople for a period of forty-one years has been engaged in the practice of medicine in this borough, has won prestige in this locality as a representative of the calling to which his energies have been devoted through life. He was born January 14, 1837, in North Sewickley Township, Beaver County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Dr. Robert and Jane (Allison) Cunningham.

Dr. Robert Cunningham, father of the subject, was of Irish descent and was born in September, 1806, in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, where his early life was spent. He came to Beaver County, purchased a farm of Dr. Loring Lusk in North Sewickley Township, where for twenty-eight years he was engaged in the practice of medicine. He wedded Jane Allison, who was born in 1808, a daughter of James Allison, a prominent attorney, who was twice a member of Congress from that district, and a sister of John Allison, who was paymaster in the army under President Lincoln and Reg. United States Treasurer under President Grant. Seven children were born to Dr. and Mrs. Cunningham: Lonisa, wife of Edward White of Iowa; Adison, a farmer residing at Bridge Water, Beaver County; Dr. A. V. Cunningham, subject of this sketch; Dr. Dewees Cunningham, was assistant surgeon in the army and engaged in practice at Wurtensburg, Lawrence County, until his death; Juliette, died in 1848, aged ten years; Cecelia, deceased wife of Dr. Stewart of Akron, also deceased; and Jennie, married Lorenzo C. Kirker, of Beaver Falls, where she resides at the present time. Dr. Cunningham died September, 1860, and his wife April 30, 1851.

Dr. A. V. Cunningham, our subject, was educated at North Sewickley and Beaver Academies and graduated from the Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia in 1880, having previously attended that college during 1863 and 1864. He first began practicing at Wampum, Lawrence County, after which, for about one year, he located at Poland, where he became an intimate acquaintance of President McKinley. In 1867 Dr. Cunningham came to Zelenople, where he has been constantly and successfully engaged in the practice of his profession until the present time. Dr. Cunningham has made a wonderful discovery of a cure for cancerous growths, one of the worst maladies to which mankind is heir, and has treated hundreds of cases with success. He has testimonials as well as growths preserved, which seem almost incredible to one who has not seen the results of his wonderful work. He has in his possession specimens of all kinds of the malignant growth. This remedy has been known to Dr. Cunningham for many years, but owing to the ethics of his profession has refused to make it known to the world until in later years, when impelled from a sense of duty to mankind and humanity. Dr. Cunningham is of an inventive turn of mind and has invented an instrument for administering chloroform to his patients. He has also invented a single-tree which holds the trace by a patent spring known as the Resilient Spring, for preventing the trace from leaving the single-tree.

Dr. Cunningham has been for a number of years a member of the Butler County Medical Society and is examining surgeon for a number of the large life insurance companies including the Equitable of New York; the Montpelier of Vermont, formerly the New York Life, and the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York. He was for some years local surgeon of the B. & O. R. R. He is religiously a member of the Methodist Church and in politics independent.

He is now serving his second term as a member of the Board of Pensioners, on which he had at one time previously served four years. He has served several terms as a member of the school board and as burgess and clerk of the borough council.

On September 16, 1869, Dr. Cunningham wedded Jennie Wallace, who was born and reared in Zelenople, and is a daughter of Francis and Adeline (Ferguson) Wallace. To them were born the following children: Nora Viola; Francis Wallace, a graduate of the Pittsburg Dental College; Abelard Vincent, a dentist residing in Zelenople; Jennie, wife of Brant Sankey of Zelenople; Lee S., a painter; Walter C., superintendent of the crating department of the enameling works; Ralph, a machinist of Zelenople; and Adeline F.

C. H. KENNEDY, proprietor of the Kennedy Bottling Works at Butler, is a leading and representative business citizen who is identified with a number of the successful enterprises of this section. He was born in 1857, near Kennedy's Mill, in Slippery Rock Township, Lawrence County, Pennsylvania.

When Mr. Kennedy was three years old his parents moved to Muddy Creek Township, Butler County, but shortly afterward went to Tennessee, subsequently returning to Lawrence County. C. H. Kennedy spent his early life on a farm and also worked with his father's threshing machine and later spent four years at the blacksmith trade. He learned the bottling business at New Brighton and Sharon and from the latter place came to Butler September 10, 1890, at which time he bought a small bottling plant already established and has continued in the business ever since. Mr. Kennedy has prospered through his energy and enterprise and now occupies his own building which is situated at No. 158 Race Street, Butler, and is equipped with modern machinery that makes the manufacture of all kinds of soft drinks, in which he deals, sanitary, healthful and economical. He does an immense business and his trade relations cover a wide territory. He is a stockholder in the Butler County National Bank, in the People's Telephone Company, the Butler Savings and Trust Company and the Butler Ice Company. He has taken an active interest in local politics and has served three years as a member of the city council.

In 1888 Mr. Kennedy married Esther E. Boyer, of Sharon, Pennsylvania. They have one daughter, Dorothy Elizabeth. Mr. Kennedy is a member and liberal supporter of the First Presbyterian Church. He is a member of the order of Maccabees and of the Federal Casualty Company.

JOHN KNAUSE, residing on the old Knause farm of seventy-two acres, situated in Summit Township, of which he is one-third owner, was born on a farm in Oakland Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, March 20, 1863, and is a son of Jacob and Margaret (Bigger) Knause.

The parents of Mr. Knause came to the Summit Township farm in 1867 and here the father died on July 3, 1884, and the mother, on November 5, 1900. Thus John Knause has lived on this farm ever since he was four years old and from boyhood has been engaged in farming. He is part owner of the homestead, his two sisters, Mrs. W. H. Barnhart and Mrs. Harry J. O'Donnell, owning the other two-thirds. It is good land and Mr. Knause is considered one of the best and most successful farmers of this section.

In 1884 Mr. Knause was married to Miss Laura Miller, who is a daughter of John P. Miller, a prominent resident of Butler County, and they have one child, Alberta. Mr. and Mrs. Knause are members of the Lutheran Church. He takes no very active interest in politics, but he has opinions and performs all duties pertaining to good citizenship when township affairs are under public consideration.

WINFIELD S. SCOTT, a representative citizen of Summit Township, a dairyman and owner of fifty acres of excellent farming land, was born in Summit Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, December 12, 1860, and is a son of Mitchell and Catherine (Moser) Scott.

George Scott, the grandfather of Winfield S., was the first settler on the present farm, which he secured from the Government. He was of Scotch-Irish descent and came to this section at a very early day, finding himself almost alone when he built his log cabin in the forest. He cleared his land and made improvements which greatly increased the value of the property, which, in turn, came into the possession of his son, Mitchell Scott, who was born on the farm in 1820. The latter grew to manhood here and then married a daughter of Solomon Moser. Mr. Moser was of German parentage, but of American birth. He owned property in Oakland Township, where Mrs. Scott was born and reared. Mitchell Scott and wife took up their domestic life in the old house which stood in the vicinity of the handsome residence in which their son, Winfield S., resides. They had two children, both sons, and both survive: John, a resident of Butler, and Winfield S. on the old farm. The father was the first to pass away, his death taking place in November, 1892. The mother survived until January, 1899. They were well known throughout the township and were numbered with the most respected people.

Winfield S. Scott has been engaged in farming ever since he reached an age to make use of farm implements, and his life has been passed in Summit Township. In addition to operating his own farm, he rents fifty additional acres, which he also cultivates. For the past twelve years he has been in the dairy business and operates a milk route through Butler.

On May 25, 1892, Mr. Scott was married to Miss Sadie Christie, who is a daughter of Newton and Mary (Robb) Christie. Mrs. Scott was born in Greece City, Concord Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, on the same farm on which her grandfather, Hughes Christie, was born, one which had been settled by her great-grandfather, Andrew Christie. Her parents still reside in Concord Township, among the old, respected and substantial residents. Her maternal grandfather, Isaac Robb, was born in Oakland Township, the Robbs being also old people in Butler County. Both Mr. and Mrs. Scott can well lay claim to pioneer ancestry. They have four children: Wesley N., Oliver W., Mary Catherine and Eugene Mitchell. The family belong to the First Presbyterian Church at Butler. They enjoy the comforts of a modern and attractive residence which Mr. Scott built in 1892. He is not actively interested in politics, but he is a good citizen and in local affairs is apt to cast his vote for the candidates he believes will give attention to matters of neighborhood interest, the making of good roads and the adding to the efficiency of the schools being of paramount importance.

MARTIN HEIM, a well known citizen of Butler Township, where he conducts a large business in building stone, leasing two quarries for the purpose, was born in Summit Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, October 10, 1852, and is a son of John and Elizabeth (Ober) Heim.

The father of Mr. Heim was born in a German province, came to America in young manhood, and died in Summit Township, Butler County, in 1862, when aged fifty-two years. In Philadelphia he learned the trade of piano builder, which he followed in that city for several years, but after his marriage he came to Butler County and bought a farm of ninety-three acres in Summit Township. At the time he located there, this beautiful, fertile farm, which his son Martin now owns, was a great belt of woodland. He worked hard and cleared a large part of the property. He married a daughter of Martin Ober, who came to Philadelphia from France. The children of John and Elizabeth Heim were three in number, as follows: Henry, who lives at Warren, Pennsylvania; Catherine, who is the wife of Joseph Shebel, of Clearfield Township; and Martin, of Butler Township. The parents of Mr. Heim were worthy members of the Catholic Church at Herman.

Martin Heim learned the carpenter trade after he left school and worked for some years at this trade and for a few years afterward as a farmer and then opened his first stone quarry, where he now resides. Later he sold that quarry and now has three others leased. These are quarried for sandstone and his trade is mainly local, but he has furnished the stone that went into the construction of the public school building at Springdale and of many of the finest residences at Butler. His industry gives employment to about nine men.

Mr. Heim married Annie Benedict Kost, whose parents came to Butler Township in 1837. Mr. and Mrs. Heim have ten children, as follows: Joseph, William and Anthony, all residents of Pittsburgh; Theodore, Frank, Viola, Victor, Loretta, Anna and Mildred, at home. Mr. Heim and family belong to St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church. In politics he is a Democrat. He is a member of the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association, Branch No. 56, and is one of its executive committee.

W. J. TROUTMAN, a representative citizen of the city of Butler and a member of the leading mercantile firm of A. Troutman's Sons, was born at Butler, Pennsylvania, May 20, 1868, and is a son of the venerable Adam Troutman, one of Butler's most esteemed retired residents and pioneer business men.

W. J. Troutman was reared in his native city and was educated in the schools of Butler and the Capitol University at Columbus, Ohio, supplemented by a thorough business course in the Columbus Business College, where he was graduated in 1887. He then accepted a position with the Butler Savings Bank as assistant book-keeper and continued in the bank for two years, following which he entered the firm of A. Troutman & Son, which, on the retirement of the founder, became A. Troutman's Sons. This firm conducts the largest dry goods and department store in the city. Mr. Troutman is a man of enterprise and is interested in other prospering concerns of city and vicinity.

In 1890 Mr. Troutman was married to Miss Josephine Martha Stock, of Butler, Pennsylvania, and they have one child, Helen Margaret. He is a member of the German Lutheran Church. He takes an active interest in everything pertaining to the welfare of Butler and is a member of the volunteer fire department.

PERRY E. GOULD, a well known farmer and stock dealer in Butler Township, where he owns 125 acres of fine land and has 100 acres under cultivation, was born in Clay Township, Butler County, Penna., November 5, 1859, and is a son of William and Martha (Surlis) Gould.

William Gould, the father of Perry E., was born in County Down, Ireland, a son of Robert Gould, and died at Butler, Penna., in November, 1897, aged almost eighty-three years. He was seven years old when his parents brought him to America, the long voyage being made in a sailing vessel, and he could recall to his children many incidents of the settling of the family in Clay Township, where his father bought several hundred acres of land. William Gould grew to manhood on that pioneer farm and spent his whole life there until about two years before his death, when he moved to Butler. His wife was a daughter of Reuben Surlis, who came to Butler County when his daughter was small. Mrs. Gould was born in New Jersey, but the remainder of her life was passed in Butler County. The children of William Gould and wife were: George, who was a brave soldier in the Union army, was killed at the battle of Bull Run; Sarah, who is the wife of Josiah Neyman of Oakland Township; Jane, deceased, who married Beatty Thorn, who resides in Iowa; Henry, who is a resident of Butler; Phebe, who married Perry Broman, residing at Oil City; Mary, who married Alfred Flieger, of New Castle; Thomas, who lives in Clay Township; Perry E.; Robert Harvey, who resides in Washington Township; Sylvester, deceased, who was a resident of Kansas, and Arabella, who married Rev. Henry Hoffman, of Petersville. The parents of this family were people of most worthy type. They were consistent members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Perry E. Gould remained on the home farm and found plenty of work to occupy his time until he was twenty years of age, in the meanwhile having been a more or less regular attendant at school in Clay Township. After leaving home he went into the oil country and for the next sixteen years gave his attention to the oil industry. He then took up his home in Butler and lived there for four years, but in 1892 he bought a farm in Concord Township and removed to it, remaining there until in March, 1898, when he sold it to advantage and purchased his present farm in Butler Township. Here Mr. Gould raises corn, oats, wheat, hay and garden produce. He does a considerable amount of business also in buying and feeding horses and cattle.

Mr. Gould married Anna M. Whitmire, a daughter of Jacob Whitmire, of Oakland Township, and they have one son and one daughter: Hazel and Paul Perry. Mr. Gould and family belong to the United Presbyterian Church. While no active politician, Mr. Gould is a staunch Republican and a hearty supporter of its policies and candidates. He is numbered with the township's representative men.

JAMES W. HUTCHISON, an able member of the Butler bar, who has been a resident of this city since 1887, was born in Parker Township, Butler County, Penna., June 17, 1864, and is a son of James G. Hutchison.

In the early part of the Nineteenth Century, William and David Hutchison, the former of whom was the grandfather of James W., came from the eastern part of Pennsylvania to find homes in the western section. David settled in Armstrong County, and William took up his residence in Parker Township, Butler County. There James G. Hutchison spent his life.

James W. Hutchison was reared in Parker and Washington Townships and was given superior educational advantages.

After completing his academic studies at North Washington, he entered Westminster College, from which he was creditably graduated in 1887, having completed a business course at Duff's Commercial College in 1885. In the fall of 1887 he came to Butler and pursued his course of law reading in the office of Attorney S. F. Bowser, and was admitted to the bar December 2, 1889. He has devoted almost two decades to practicing law in this city and, having all the qualities essential to success in his profession, he has prospered along that line. He practices in the local courts and also in the Superior and Supreme Courts, and the importance in which he is held was indicated when Judge Joseph Buffington, in 1899, appointed him referee in bankruptcy for Butler County. In addition to his large practice, Mr. Hutchison is interested in business enterprises to some extent.

In 1889 Mr. Hutchison was married to Miss Ida M. Campbell, of Bradford, Penna., who died in 1900, leaving two children, Eileen and Paul. In 1903 Mr. Hutchison was married (second) to Miss Helen Victor, of Erie, Penna. He is an active citizen and has never declined to take part in shaping public sentiment whenever the welfare of the city has been at stake. He has been a useful member of the School Board. In politics, he is identified with the Republican party. He is affiliated with a number of fraternal organizations, the Knights of Pythias, the Odd Fellows and the Knights of Malta, being particularly interested in the first named, holding the office of grand inner guard of the Grand Lodge of the order of the State of Pennsylvania, and belongs to Company No. 25, Uniform Rank, at Butler. He is a member of the United Presbyterian Church.

ALBERT ANDERSON PARK, a practical miller and formerly a member of the Mars Milling and Feed Company, is a well-known and substantial citizen of this place. He was born July 20, 1866, on the old home farm, in Adams Township, Butler County, Penna., and is a son of Samuel and Emma (Anderson) Park.

Matthew Park, the great-grandfather, came to Pennsylvania from Ireland, at a very early date. He built a sawmill in the woods, on a deep stream of water and operated it during the remainder of his life, being the first of the Park family to be identified with mill interests of any kind in Butler County. He was succeeded by his son, Samuel Park, and for years they resided together in a commodious house of two stories, which was constructed of logs, and was built about 1813. Samuel operated the old Park grist mill, which possibly was erected by his father, and it was built in 1833 and is still standing. Samuel Park married Jane Roseborrow, a native of Ohio, who lived to be ninety-three years of age, but Samuel Park died when aged sixty-five years. They had eight children, namely: John, William, Samuel, Levi, Lavina, Martha Jane, and two sons who died young. The only survivor of the family is Lavina, who married Thomas Park, of the same surname as herself, but of a different family.

Samuel Park was born in the big log house at Mars, in 1827. He remained at home, being a dutiful and useful son. In 1876 he built what is known as the Mars mill and gave it the name of the Globe Roller Mill, it being the first steam grist mill in this section of the country. He operated the mill and also cultivated his farm of 200 acres of land in Adams Township. When about twenty-eight years of age, he married Emma Anderson, who was born at Greenville, Penna., and was ten years old when she came to Butler County, where she has lived ever since, and following the death of her husband, in 1901, has made her home with her daughter, Mrs. C. J. Ingram. The children of Samuel and Emma Park were: Nelson L., deceased;

Mary J., wife of J. D. Mahan; Albert Anderson; Harry G.; William B., and Eda M., who is the wife of C. J. Ingram, and four children who died young.

Albert Anderson Park was reared on the farm and learned all the details of farm work, but he had numerous other duties, some of great responsibility, during boyhood. He was only ten years old when he began to assist in the mill. His father was the first postmaster at Mars and at eight years of age, Albert A. must have been considered a very reliable and trustworthy lad, for to him was entrusted the carrying of the United States mail bag from Wexford, in Allegheny County, to Mars. He made the trip once a week, every Saturday, on horseback, meeting the stage at Wexford, and during the ten years of mail carrying, there is no record of his ever making a single mistake. It was through the efforts of Samuel Park and ex-Judge Marshall that a post-office was established and it was a matter of much accommodation to the whole country side. The emoluments were not large, $8 a month being paid to the carrier for the first year, and $35 allowed for the office business. Later, Mr. Park became miller for his father and still later rented the mill and when the father died he rented from the other heirs and continued the business. He then took M. W. Dunlap as a partner and they did business under the name of the Mars Milling Company, and conducted a feed store and a coal yard, as adjuncts. Later, C. Galbraith, W. J. Link and J. W. Lee were admitted to partnership and the enterprise became the Mars Milling and Feed Company. Mr. Park continued with the concern until 1907, when he sold his interest but still operates the mill for the company. It has proved a very successful business investment for all concerned.

In October, 1899, Mr. Park was married to Mayme C. Marshall, widow of Charles Marshall and daughter of Jacob M. Miller, of Callery. They have one child, Clyde C.

Mrs. Park has one son by her former marriage, Harry Marshall, who is agent for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad at Callery. Mr. and Mrs. Park are members of the United Presbyterian Church. In 1907 he erected the present handsome brick residence, which is one of the most attractive and comfortable homes at Mars. In politics, like his father, Mr. Park is identified with the Republican party.

WILLIAM J. BARKLEY, one of Franklin Township's representative and public-spirited citizens, resides on his valuable and well-improved farm of 203 acres, carrying on general agriculture. He was born March 17, 1847, at Pittsburg, Penna., and is a son of George and Margaret (Behm) Barkley.

Both parents of Mr. Barkley came to America when twelve years old, with their parents, from the same village. The paternal grandfather settled in Pennsylvania, in Muddy Creek Township, Butler County, and when his son George was thirteen years old, he sent him to Pittsburg and for ten years the latter was employed by the Penn Mill Cotton Factory. From there George Barkley entered a foundry in Allegheny, where he remained several years and then turned his attention to farming, spending one year in Lancaster Township before returning to the old homestead in Muddy Creek Township, where he died in May, 1876, aged fifty-seven years. In politics he was a Democrat and he served in local offices. He married Margaret Behm, who was a daughter of Nicholas Behm, and she was reared at Zelienville. George Barkley and wife had the following children: Catherine, who married Henry Heyle, of Franklin Township; William J.; Sarah, who married Samuel Knox, of Grove City; Mrs. Margaret Snyder, who resides at Butler; Emma, who married David West, of Franklin Township; and Mary, the widow of Jonathan Jones, who resides in Lawrence County. George Barkley and wife were members of the German Lutheran Church at Prospect, in which he served some years as a deacon.

William J. Barkley was reared and educated in Butler County and he remained on the home farm until his marriage, when he purchased his present farm from his father. It is a large tract of valuable land but Mr. Barkley has about all of it under cultivation. His farming is carried on according to modern ideas and he is one of the largest growers of fine stock in this section.

Mr. Barkley married Josephine Snyder, who was a daughter of John Snyder, of Brady Township, and they had five children born to them, namely: George, who resides at home; Clara, deceased, who was the wife of John Pontius, of Butler; Jessie, who married W. E. Heyle, of Prospect; Frank, who is principal of the schools of Freedom, in Beaver County; and Mabel, who is the wife of Charles S. Bolton, of Wheeling, West Virginia. The beloved mother of the above family died May 23, 1908, aged fifty-nine years. She was a consistent Christian and was a member of the Lutheran Church.

In politics, Mr. Barkley is a Democrat, but his personal popularity in his township is so great that he has been kept in some public office for many years, although the normal Republican vote is double that of the Democratic. For twelve years he has served as a school director, for three years as supervisor, one year as tax collector and for four years as overseer of the poor. He is a member of the Lutheran Church at Prospect and has served as a deacon in the same.

JOHN STAPLES, one of Adams Township's representative citizens, resides on his excellent farm of 100 acres, on which he carries on a general line of agriculture. He was born in Forward Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, December 23, 1835, and is a son of Job and Susan (Hays) Staples.

The father of Mr. Staples was born and reared in the city of New York and came to Pennsylvania in early manhood. For a few years he taught school in different localities and gradually worked his way westward until he reached Butler County, where he bought a farm of 200 acres which was then in Cranberry but is now situated in Forward Township. He resided on that farm for a number of years, doing a large part of the clearing, but later moved to Adams Township and in 1853 settled on the farm which is now owned by his son John. Here he died in 1861, aged seventy years. He married Susan Hays, a native of Butler County, who died aged sixty-eight years. They had sixteen children, John Staples being among the younger ones.

John Staples has led a quiet, useful life, devoting himself mainly to farming, and has never desired any other place of residence than Butler County. Here he has rich land well stocked and improved, a happy, united, intelligent family, and friends of many years' standing. Performing readily every duty demanded by good citizenship, he enjoys the esteem and commands the respect of his fellow citizens.

In 1865 Mr. Staples was married to Miss Mandana Ray and they have had children as follows: Nancy E., Susan, Walter B., Agnes and Amy, twins, Claire, William, and Maude. Of the above family Susan married W. E. Dunbar and has one child, Hazel. Walter B. married C. May Rhodes and they have two children, Dorothy and John. Agnes married B. J. Little and they have one child, Eleanor. Claire attends college at Grove City. Maude and William are deceased. The latter married Catherine Kauffman and they had two children, Gladys and Marjorie. Mr. Staples and family belong to the Presbyterian Church. In politics he is a Republican.

SAMUEL O. BELL

MRS. MATILDA A. BELL

SAMUEL O. BELL, one of Parker Township's representative citizens and substantial farmers, residing on his valuable estate of 125 acres, which is situated near Glenora, was born in Washington Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, August 26, 1844, and is a son of Samuel and Mary (Shiria) Bell.

Samuel Bell was born in Washington Township and was a son of William Bell, who was born in Scotland and was an early settler in Butler County, where he died. Samuel Bell married Mary Shiria and they had two sons, Samuel O. being the only survivor.

Samuel O. Bell was but nine months old when his father died and when three years old was taken to the home of his paternal grandparents, William Bell and wife, who resided near North Washington. He remained there until he was eight years of age and then went to live at the home of his maternal uncle, William Shiria, at Annandale, Butler County, where he continued to reside for about four years. He then returned to his mother, who had contracted a second marriage, with James Alworth, when he was young. Mr. Bell assisted his step-father in his agricultural operations until he reached his majority, when he started out for himself. For some years he worked in the oil fields and is still interested in the oil industry, having several producing wells on his own farm, of which he took possession about 1872.

Mr. Bell married Miss Matilda Alworth, who was born in Parker Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania. She is now deceased. She was a woman of many virtues and was a consistent member of the United Presbyterian Church. Mr. and Mrs. Bell had three children born to them, namely: Lillie M., who looks after the comfort of her father in the old home; Mary E., who is the wife of Frank Smith, of Parker Township; and Flora B., who is the wife of Philip Deal, of Parsonville, Pennsylvania. Mrs. Mary E. (Bell)

Smith has one daughter, Edna Margaret. Flora B. (Bell) Deal has two children, Lillian Marie and Lawrence Edward. Mrs. Samuel O. Bell died 1888 in her forty-seventh year.

In his political convictions, Mr. Bell is a Republican. He has been an active citizen, working at all times for the best interests of his neighborhood, and at different times has been elected to office. He has served as tax collector and inaugurated reforms in keeping the public highways in condition, during his excellent administration as road supervisor.

ALFRED J. BLACK, a prominent general farmer and stock raiser, residing on his one farm of eighty acres in Cherry Township, about one-half mile south of old Annandale, owns a second farm of forty-eight acres, separated on the south by a narrow strip of land which belongs to his brother, James T. Black. Alfred J. Black was born on this second farm, in Cherry Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, July 18, 1849, and is a son of Adam and Mary (Turner) Black.

Adam Black was born on the above-named farm, a son of Robert Black, who came to Butler County from across the Allegheny Mountains, at a very early day. Robert Black took out the first patent and in 1828 secured the first deed for 250 acres of land in Cherry Township, and was given an allowance which made the aggregate 280 acres, at that time all in one tract. It is now divided into four farms, two of which are owned by Alfred J. Black; a third farm, of forty-seven acres, is owned by James T. Black, a brother; and the fourth farm of 100 acres, is owned by Robert M. Black, a cousin, residing at Bruin. This farm has never been out of the Black family, with the exception of two acres, which were once sold, but were soon reclaimed by the Blacks. The aged grandfather died on this land. His son Adam succeeded and he passed his life on the Black property, following agricultural pursuits. He married Mary Ann Turner, who was born in Parker Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and there were nine children born to them, as follows: Robert P., who is a farmer in Concord Township; William P., deceased; Elizabeth, deceased, was the wife of Giles Vogan; John M., who lives in Allegheny Township; Alfred J.; Jane, who is the wife of Hilton Tinker, of Ellwood City; Clementine, who is the widow of Dr. Clarence Bard; Ella, who is the wife of Smiley Smith; and James T., who is a farmer in Cherry Township. The father of the above family died in 1888. The mother survived until February, 1908, dying when aged eighty-eight years.

Alfred J. Black was reared on the old Black farm and with the exception of three years spent at Butler, 1891-94, he has passed his whole life here. During those three years he worked in the car department of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, going later to the Pittsburg & Western, at first being car inspector and later yard superintendent. For a short time prior to his marriage he worked occasionally in the oil fields, but his main business in life has been farming, in earlier years attending to all the work himself, but since his two stalwart sons have attained manhood, he has plenty of valuable assistance. He continued to reside on his forty-acre farm until 1904, when he moved to the eighty-acre tract, and has both farms under cultivation.

Mr. Black married Mary I. McCoy, who was born at Harrisville, Pennsylvania, and is a daughter of Thomas McCoy. They have three children: George Herbert and Adam Rozell, both at home; and Nellie, who is the wife of Sherman Hockenberry. They have one son, Howard Alfred. Mr. Black and family belong to the Pleasant Valley Presbyterian Church. He has long been a leading member of this body and is one of its elders. In his views on public questions, Mr. Black is a strong adherent of the Prohibition party, while his sons are both Democrats.

COL. ALEXANDER LOWRY, in whose death the city of Butler lost one of its oldest and most venerable citizens, bore the reputation, in the days of his active business career, of being one of the most successful and best known hotel men in the State. He was a native of Pennsylvania, born in Blair County (then a part of Huntingdon County), February 18, 1814, and was a son of Alexander and Margaret (Bonslough) Lowry, both natives of Huntingdon County.

The Lowry family in America dates back to early colonial days, when Lazarus Lowry, great-grandfather of our subject, came from North of Ireland, in 1729, and settled in Donegal, Lancaster County, Pennsylvania. He located upon the celebrated farm known as "Donegal," now owned by Senator Cameron. This place passed into the hands of his son, Col. Alexander Lowry, one of the most noted Indian traders in the history of Pennsylvania, who lived upon it some years, then sold out and moved to Huntingdon County, where his son, Alexander Lowry, Jr., was born.

Col. Alexander Lowry, whose name heads this sketch, lived in his native county until he grew to manhood, and attended the primitive schools of that period. At the age of eighteen years he became apprenticed to the trade of a cabinetmaker, serving three years, after which he worked as journeyman until 1837. In 1839 he embarked in the hotel business at Yellow Springs, Blair County, continuing there until 1842, when he removed to Water Street, on the line of the Pennsylvania Canal. He conducted a hotel at that point until 1846, then was proprietor of the American House at Holidaysburg about four years. In September, 1850, he removed to Butler and purchased the Beatty House, situated on the site of the present Troutman Block, which thereafter was known as the Lowry House as long as the building was used for hotel purposes. Colonel Lowry sold there in 1866 and purchased the present Lowry House, which he conducted with success until 1873, which year marked his retirement from the hotel business. He had disposed of this property in 1873, at the commencement of the oil excitement, but again purchased it in 1879. After abandoning the hotel business he resided in a comfortable home on West Pearl Street, the remainder of his life. He lived a long and useful life and during his residence of nearly half a century in Butler aided materially in the development of the city and its resources.

Colonel Lowry was united in marriage, in 1841, with Miss Margaret Spear, of Williamsburg, Blair County, Pennsylvania, who died at Butler, December 11, 1886. They became parents of the following children: Belle W.; W. A., who is serving as prothonotary of Butler County; Charles S.; John F.; Porter W., who has attained prominence as a lawyer of Butler; George W.; Thomas L., and J. L.

HENRY EDWIN DRUSHEL, one of Forward Township's excellent farmers and leading public men, resides on his valuable property which contains ninety-six acres, on which he carries on general agriculture. He was born on his grandfather's farm, in Beaver County, Penna., December 24, 1868, and is a son of Rhinehart and Caroline (Mickley) Drushel.

Rhinehart Drushel was born in Germany and was six years old when his parents came to America. His father, Henry Drushel, settled on a farm in Beaver County, where he spent the remainder of his life. The names of some of Henry Drushel's children were: Margaret, who married Henry Shelly; Elizabeth, who married Fred Knepp; Jacob and Rhinehart. Rhinehart Drushel remained on the home farm and when he had married he still continued to live there for a short time, afterwards coming to Butler County and purchasing the farm now owned by his son, Henry Edwin, it then being the property of Jacob Wooster. Very little clearing had been done and scarcely any improving. All through his active life he devoted himself to making this farm a valuable and comfortable home and died here in 1888, aged fifty-two years. He married Caroline Mickley, daughter of Michael Mickley, and her parents came to America from Germany. She died in 1905, when aged about sixty years. They had three children: Henry Edwin; Amelia, who died when eleven years of age, and Mary, who married William Freshcorn.

Henry E. Drushel was three months old when his parents came to his present farm and this has been his home ever since. As he grew up he attended the country schools and he also assisted his father in clearing and later in cultivating the land. This farm was once a part of the old Chew estate and a portion of the old stone house in which the Chews lived is still standing. Mr. Drushel continues to make improvements and he carries on a general farming line, introducing modern methods into his work and making use of improved machinery.

Mr. Drushel married Miss Matilda Rader, who is a daughter of Oswald Rader, and they have seven children, namely: Charles, Philip, Clarence, Benjamin, Roy, George and Margaret. With his family, Mr. Drushel belongs to the Reformed Church, in which he is a deacon. In politics he is a Democrat. He has taken a hearty interest in public affairs in his township and has served in numerous offices, including those of auditor and tax collector.

LEWIS M. ROTH, D. D. S., who has been engaged in the practice of dentistry at Prospect for the past twenty-five years, was born April 13, 1858, at Prospect, Butler County, Penna., and is a son of Lewis and Lydia (Beighley) Roth.

David Roth, the grandfather, was a native of Bethlehem, Penna., and he served in the War of 1812, with the rank of colonel. He was a locksmith by trade and added the manufacture of coffee mills by hand to his other enterprises. He became a very popular citizen of his section, so much so that his fellow citizens elected him to the Legislature. He had no taste for politics, and the record tells that it was in order to escape the kind intentions of his friends that he left his old neighborhood and moved into what was then the wilderness, in Butler County, settling in Franklin Township.

Lewis Roth was born at Bethlehem, Northampton County, Penna., accompanied his parents to Butler County and died here when aged seventy-six years. In early manhood he worked as a blacksmith, later was in partnership with James Anderson, in conducting a general store at Prospect, later farmed for a time and subsequently resumed mercantile life. In politics he was a Democrat and on one occasion, when he was his party's nominee for the office of county treasurer, he lacked but 100 votes of election, although the county was strongly Republican. He gave his children excellent educational advantages and took a deep interest in their welfare. He was one of Prospect's representative citizens, held all of the borough offices and sustained the most cordial relations with those who knew him in either business or social life, his manner being kindly and his nature tolerant. All of his sons have become prominent in professional life, there being five of them, three of whom are clergymen. Rev. H. Warren Roth, D. D., is at present manager of the Passavant Hospitals at Pittsburg, Chicago and Milwaukee. Rev. David Luther Roth, D. D., is pastor of a Lutheran Church at Pittsburg. Rev. Theophilus B. Roth is editor of the Young Lutheran, published at Greenville. John M. is a practicing attorney in Michigan, having been admitted to the bar at Butler. The youngest member of the family is Dr. Lewis M., of Prospect.

Lewis M. Roth went from the public schools of Prospect to Thiel College, at Greenville, Penna., and became interested in dentistry, studying this science first with Dr. B. F. Lepley, at Prospect. He studied in the dental department of the University of Michigan, later the Western Reserve Medical College at Cleveland and still later the Eclectic Medical College at Cincinnati. He engaged in the practice of dentistry first in Kansas and then returned to Prospect, where he has been a continuous resident ever since and has been one of the city's most useful and public-spirited men.

In political sentiment, Dr. Roth has always been a Democrat. At various times he has filled almost every borough office and is serving his third consecutive term as a member of the School Board. He is also a member of the borough council and was one of the leaders in the movement which resulted in the paving of the streets. His party chose him as their standard bearer, in 1904, for the office of county treasurer, but Republican influence was too strong to be overcome.

Dr. Roth was married to Miss Annie Criswell, who is a daughter of James Criswell, a well known resident of Slippery Rock Township, Lawrence County, Penna., and four children have been born to them, namely: May, Lois, George and Margaret. Dr. and Mrs. Roth are members of the Emanuel Lutheran Church at Prospect, in which he, like his father before him, has served as a deacon for many years.

JOHN H. WILSON, a leading member of the Butler bar and city solicitor, was born in 1868, at Nashville, Tennessee, but he has been a resident of Butler County, since childhood.

Mr. Wilson was reared at Harmony, Butler County, and he obtained his early education in the public schools, subsequently entering Grove City College, where he was graduated in the class of 1891. For several years he engaged in teaching school, and studying law in the office of Attorney Levingstone McQuiston, at Butler, and he was admitted to the bar in 1893. He entered into a law partnership with Mr. Vanderlin, the firm name being Vanderlin & Wilson, which continued for two years, when it was dissolved and since then Mr. Wilson has been alone. In March, 1907, he was elected city solicitor and has been an efficient and useful public officer. He takes a good citizen's interest in politics and is in perfect accord with the principles of the party to which he has given allegiance since he reached manhood.

In 1899 Mr. Wilson was married to Miss Catherine E. Levis, of Rochester, Pennsylvania, and they have one child, John L. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson are members of the First Presbyterian Church. Fraternally, Mr. Wilson is identified with the Masons, the Odd Fellows, and the Royal Arcanum.

JOHN SHEPPARD CAMPBELL, one of Cherry Township's most prominent citizens, formerly a county commissioner of Butler County, and now serving in his twenty-first consecutive year as justice of the peace, is also an honored veteran of the Civil War. He resides on his valuable farm of 100 acres, which is situated three miles north of West Sunbury. Mr. Campbell was born on a farm in Washington Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, April 30, 1838, and is a son of Robert and Jane (Sheppard) Campbell.

Robert Campbell, father of John S., was also born in Washington Township and was a son of John Campbell, who came to Western Pennsylvania from east of the Allegheny Mountains, and was a very early settler in Butler County. Robert Campbell was a plasterer by trade and a small farmer. He died when his son, John S., was fifteen years old. He married Jane Sheppard, who was born in Parker Township, Butler County, and who died when John S. was ten years of age. He was second in order of birth of the family of six children, the others being: Lurena; Amanthus, who is the wife of James C. Glenn, of Clay Township, Butler County; Milton, who lost his leg at the battle of Gettysburg and subsequently died in the hospital; Oliver Perry, who is postmaster at West Sunbury; and Elizabeth Jane, who died in infancy.

When a little boy of but ten years, John S. Campbell found himself an orphan. He was not destitute of kindred, but most of the uncles and aunts had families of their own and no care and kindness given him in his tender years could replace that of his own parents. For a couple of years he lived with his uncle, Zerab Sheppard, who was a farmer and shoemaker in Parker Township, and then was turned over to other relatives among whom he lived, working for his keep, until he was old enough to go out as a farm hand and make wages for himself. The opening of the Civil War settled his immediate future, for in June, 1861, he enlisted as a private in Company C, Eleventh Regiment, Pennsylvania Reserves, for three years, and served in that regiment continuously through the whole term, lacking fifteen days, when, at the battle of the Wilderness, he was captured. He was taken to Andersonville Prison, where he was detained from May until December 16, 1864, when he was exchanged at Charleston, South Carolina. From there he came on to Annapolis, Maryland, where he was prostrated with typhoid fever. He was given a furlough home on this account and came to Butler, where he remained totally unable to rejoin his regiment until the following April. He went then to Annapolis and from there was sent to Pittsburg, where he was honorably discharged, with the rank of corporal.

The Andersonville prison was not the only Southern fortress with which Mr. Campbell became acquainted during those years of suffering and hardship. At the battle of Gaines Mills he was first captured and was incarcerated in Libby prison and was taken from there to the notorious Belle Isle prison at Richmond, Virginia, but after forty days was exchanged. On December 13, 1862, he was wounded at the battle of Fredericksburg and this caused him to be kept at a hospital in Washington City for six months. Mr. Campbell has a record of which any veteran might be proud, proving that he was never absent from the post of duty during his long service, except when in a hospital or when in the enemy's hands. He is a valued member of the Grand Army Post at West Sumbury.

Upon retiring from the army, Mr. Campbell returned to Butler County and on April 25, 1865, he was united in marriage with Miss Sarah McElvain, who was born and reared on the present home farm in Cherry Township. Her parents were George and Mary Ann (McGill) McElvain, the former of whom died in 1854, and the latter in 1870. George McElvain was a large farmer and owned 200 acres of land. He was the father of nine children, only three of whom reached maturity, namely: Nancy Jane (Mrs. Jamison) of Petrolia; Annis (Mrs. Russell); and Sarah, who is the wife of Mr. Campbell.

The children born to Mr. and Mrs. Campbell were nine in number and all survive except the eldest, Leonora. She married Homer Love, since deceased, and they had two children, a son, who died, and a daughter, Fern, who survives. The other members of the family are: George M., who is in the ice cream business at Allegheny, married Melissa Kelley, since deceased, and they had three children: Hazel, Dwight L. and Genevieve; William M., who is connected with an ice cream company in Chicago, married Jennie Young and they have two children: Ralph and Dorothy; Della, who married B. M. Hockenberry, has three children: Benj., Margaret May and Alice Lenora; Andley Bruce, unmarried, who is associated with his brother in business at Allegheny; John, who assists his father on the home farm; Mabel, who is a trained nurse in the Marketown Sanitarium; Homer, who is in business at Allegheny; and Edith, who is the wife of William J. Hockenberry, of West Sumbury.

Mr. Campbell and family are members of the Presbyterian Church at West Sumbury, of which he is one of the elders. For many years he has been a factor in county politics, voting always with the Republican party. Since serving as county commissioner, he has more or less restricted his activities to township affairs. He has a long and enviable record as a justice of the peace, serving now in his fifth consecutive term.

IRA S. ZEIGLER, president of the First National Bank of Zelienople, and a prominent oil operator in Butler County, was born July 4, 1866, in Jackson Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania. His parents are David M. and Elizabeth (Stauffer) Zeigler.

The parents of Mr. Zeigler were both born in Jackson Township, coming of pioneer ancestry. The paternal grandfather was David Zeigler and he was a son of Abraham Zeigler, who came to Butler County from Bucks County, Pennsylvania, at a very early day. He purchased a large tract of land which embraced the territory held by the colony known as Economites. David Zeigler spent his life in Jackson Township, where he engaged in farming and stock raising. The maternal grandfather was Henry Stauffer, who purchased his land, when he came to Butler County, of Abraham Zeigler and they continued to be neighbors during the rest of their lives. Four children of David Zeigler are living, namely: Henry M., who resides at Zelenople; G. M., who is a successful farmer living on the old homestead in Jackson Township; David M., and Mrs. Elizabeth Shriver.

For many years David M. Zeigler, father of Ira S., has engaged in farming near Harmony, Butler County, on the Prospect and Harmony road. He married Elizabeth Stauffer and they had the following children born to them: Frederick S., Homer E., residing at Mars in Butler County; Miles P., deceased; Rose, wife of Dr. Beatty, of Butler; Ira S.; and Dot, deceased, who was the wife of F. E. Longwell.

Ira S. Zeigler was reared on the home farm and was afforded an academic education. At the age of nineteen years he entered the office of the P. & W. Railroad, at Harmony, where he learned telegraphing and subsequently served as an operator at different points. In August, 1888, he was appointed agent at Bakerstown and three months later was promoted to the agency at Girard, Ohio, which position he resigned in the fall of 1891 in order to give his entire time to the wholesale coal business, in which he had previously engaged. In the fall of 1891, in the year following his marriage, he came to Zelenople and continued in the coal jobbing business until the amalgamation of coal interests, in the summer of 1893, having been a heavy dealer and at one time he had controlled the whole output of slack in the Beaver Valley.

Mr. Zeigler gained his first banking experience in the bank of Gelbach Brothers, which firm he served as bookkeeper. Later he was employed by the Patterson-Lockwood Oil Company and the Patterson Natural Gas Company and was bookkeeper for both concerns. On August 21, 1896, Mr. Zeigler purchased the Connoquenesing Valley News, from the firm of Young & Stoughton, and his energy was soon shown by the extension of its patronage. In June, 1898, he purchased the Globe, a weekly newspaper published at Evans City, and subsequently he consolidated it with the News, and he continued in editorial and newspaper work until December 28, 1901, when he disposed of his interests in order to give more attention to other business affairs, which had grown to considerable magnitude. During the oil excitement at Scio, Ohio, in 1898, Mr. Zeigler was attracted to that place with other men of business forethought, and he was successful in securing leases which later proved very profitable. At present his operations in oil are in many fields, including Pennsylvania, Indiana, Illinois and Ohio. In the last named state he operates under the name of the Ira S. Zeigler Company, an incorporated concern, but in the other fields he works independently. In January, 1907, Mr. Zeigler was elected president of the First National Bank at Zelenople and his business career has been of such a nature that his mere name would add strength and confidence to any institution. In large measure, Mr. Zeigler has been the director of his own fortune, in his youth laying a foundation of business integrity on which he has successfully built.

In 1890 Mr. Zeigler was married to Miss Clara Pennell, who is a daughter of Sylvanus Pennell, of Girard, Ohio, and they have four children: Blanche E., Florence Hester, David P. and Lucile. With his family, Mr. Zeigler belongs to the Presbyterian Church. In his political views, Mr. Zeigler is a Republican. He served eight years as a notary public and three terms as a member of the Zelenople town council. He is a Royal Arch Mason, a member of Butler Chapter No. 273, and past master of Harmony Lodge, No. 429, F. & A. M.

JOHN H. SUTTON, who is extensively engaged in handling real estate in Butler County and for years has been prominently identified with the production of oil, is also a surviving officer of the great Civil War. Mr. Sutton was born November 11, 1838, in Clay Township, Butler County, Penna., and is a son of Jeremiah and a grandson of Platt Sutton.

The family of Sutton was founded in Butler County by the grandfather, prior to 1800. Jeremiah Sutton was born in Concord Township, Butler County, in 1808, and died in 1852. He combined shoemaking with farming.

Until he was thirteen years of age, John H. Sutton remained on the home farm and then went to North Washington, where he worked in a store conducted by Harper Brothers, until he was nineteen, when he went West and spent three years in Iowa and Colorado. After he returned to Butler County he enlisted for service in the Civil War, in 1861 entering Company C, Eleventh Regiment, Penna. Reserves. He participated in all of the engagements in which his command took part, and at Fredericksburg, December 13, 1862, he was wounded and was taken prisoner. He was held at Libby Prison for two months and was then transferred to Annapolis, Maryland. For six months he suffered in a hospital there and then secured a parole and was discharged, but was too exhausted by wound and disease to be able to take advantage of his release before September, 1863. For fourteen months after his return to the quiet and care of home, he was obliged to use a crutch, and even yet the old wound gives him trouble and continually reminds him of those days in battle and subsequent suffering. As second lieutenant of his company he performed every duty of a soldier with courage, fidelity and cheerfulness.

After he had sufficiently recovered from the effects of his wound and imprisonment, Mr. Sutton entered into partnership with his old employers, Harper Brothers, in a mercantile business at North Washington, and was associated with them for three years, after which he retired to a farm in Washington Township for several years. In 1872 he was elected clerk of the courts of Butler County and then removed to Butler, which has been his home ever since. He served in that office for three years and then became interested in oil production, an industry with which he has ever since been connected. He helped to drill the first producing oil well in Butler County, and in the enterprise he was associated with Capt. W. H. Timblin, Alfred Wick and others, and the development came on the farm of James Millford, in Allegheny Township. Since that time he has drilled more than 100 wells in Butler County. He is largely interested in both city and county real estate and is an expert on the values of different sections.

On March 1, 1864, Mr. Sutton was married to Miss Maria M. Mechling, who died May 30, 1907. She was a daughter of Joseph and Nancy Mechling, deceased. Mr. and Mrs. Sutton had seven children born to them: Emma L., who is the widow of H. W. Christie; Frank M., who is traffic manager for the Westinghouse people, and lives at Wilkensburg; Agnes E., who is the wife of W. E. McClung, resides on Fulton Street, Butler; Maud H., who resides with her parents; W. D., residing at Hoboken, Pennsylvania, is an employe of the Pennsylvania Railroad; Angie A., who resides at home; and J. C., who is a practicing physician at New Brighton, Pennsylvania. For fifty years Mr. Sutton has been a member of the official board of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a Republican in politics.

REV. JACOB WILHELM, for many years a very highly esteemed resident of Jefferson Township, where he owned a valuable farm of fifty-three acres, was a minister of the Lutheran Church and was held in such high regard that he was sent as a missionary to Africa. He survived the dangers that attend those who leave a civilized land in order to minister to almost savage people, and after his return to America he came to Butler County and in 1868 settled on the farm on the Glade Mill road, two miles from Saxonburg, on which his son resides.

Jacob Wilhelm was married to Frederica Maier and to them were born the following children: Gottlieb T., Frederick P., John P., Emanuel J., Clara C. M., Martha L. D., Amelia E. L., Emma M. T. and Hannah J. F. Two members of the above family are deceased.

Gottlieb T. Wilhelm was born in 1870, at Evans City, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and he obtained his education in his native county. He engaged in farming even in his school days and still carries it on in conjunction with his other industries. He does a large amount of teaming and is an oil operator and contractor and at the present time of writing (1908) he has two fine producing oil wells on his farm and owns an interest in five gas wells which are situated in the immediate vicinity. He is one of the most enterprising young business men of this section, in which he is well and favorably known. He has taken considerable interest in politics and served two terms as constable of Jefferson Township. He is a member of the Lutheran Church.

JOHN J. SHERIDAN, member and general manager of the well known business firm, The John J. Sheridan Company, machinists and blacksmiths and dealers in second-hand oil well supplies, at Mars, Pennsylvania, was born November 1, 1866, at Reading, Berks County, Penna.

James Sheridan, father of John J., was born in Ireland and was brought to America in childhood, his parents settling at Reading, Penna., and in that great industrial city, James Sheridan learned the blacksmith trade. In 1868 he left the railroad shops in which he had been working, and entered the oil fields, and in 1868, opened a shop of his own, at Franklin, Venango County, and ever since then, at different times, has operated a shop at that point. In 1894, in association with his two sons, John J. and William A., he founded the present Sheridan shops at Mars, and together they conducted the business until March, 1901, when William A. and James Sheridan sold their interests to C. L. Norton and Joseph Colestock, at which time the name of the organization was changed from James Sheridan & Sons, to The John J. Sheridan Company. The capacity of the plant was then doubled and the company now occupies a space 210x175 feet, and have excellent transportation facilities, on account of abutting on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. Employment is given to ten men and the business is in an exceedingly flourishing condition.

John J. Sheridan, the able general manager of the large business above described, is a practical machinist and blacksmith. From early boyhood until he was eighteen years of age, when he became an apprentice under his father, he had attended school through the winters and assisted in the shops during the summers, and thus had become acquainted with the details of the business before actually starting to learn it. He remained in the shop at Franklin until he came to Mars. He is one of the substantial citizens of this place and is a stockholder in the Mars National Bank.

THOMAS J. GRAHAM, general farmer in Penn Township and one of the representative citizens of this section, was born March 16, 1847, at what is now Glenshaw, Allegheny County, Penna., and is a son of Robert and Sarah Ann (Wigfield) Graham.

The Graham family was established in Butler County by the grandfather, Robert Graham, who came from east of the mountains and settled on the present site of the city of Butler, in 1797, and the distinction belongs to him of having been one of the first settlers. He was much more, for he was a man of energy, enterprise and judgment and in association with the Cunningham family, also early settlers, he assisted in the founding of churches, schools and enterprises of various kinds that gave an impetus to industries which have made Butler and Butler County what it is today.

Robert Graham, father of Thomas J., was born in the little pioneer settlement of Butler, in 1807, a son of Robert and Sarah (Brown) Graham, and died in August, 1873. After learning the trades of brick-maker and bricklayer and working at the same, he became a building contractor and also acquired farming lands. His father had been a prominent Whig and in his early years he also supported that party but later became identified with the Republicans and to the close of his life took an interest in the success of that organization. He married a daughter of Matthew Wigfield, who had settled as a pioneer in what is now Clinton Township. Of the nine children born to this marriage, the following six grew to mature years: Eliza, now deceased, who married Theodore Huselton; James H., who is a resident of Allegheny; Wilson W., deceased; Mary, deceased, who married Arthur Hays; Matilda, who married William Kennedy; and Thomas J. The parents of this family reared their children by Christian precept and example. They were worthy members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, being one of the founder families of the Thorn Creek Church. The father survived the mother, her death taking place May 17, 1861, when she was aged fifty-six years.

Thomas J. Graham attended the country schools and from boyhood has been accustomed to all the details which make up a successful farmer. On his Penn Township farm he raises bountiful crops of corn, oats, wheat, hay and potatoes, keeps twelve head of cattle and manufactures a high grade of butter.

Mr. Graham married a daughter of Ross Porter, a farmer of West Deer Township, Allegheny County. Mary A. Porter was reared and educated there, but her married life was spent in Butler County. She died in 1903, aged fifty-five years. Of the seven children born to Mr. and Mrs. Graham five survive, namely: Cora, who is the wife of Thomas L. Huselton, of Penn Township, has three children, Mary, Martha and Victor; Alma and Robert W., both residing at home; Eliza, who is the wife of William Montag, of Jefferson Center; and Porter, who married Ella Lavery, has a son, John Porter, and resides in Jefferson Township. Mr. Graham is a member of the United Presbyterian Church and has served as a trustee of the Shiloh church.

In politics Mr. Graham has been a very active Republican. He was elected township collector in 1882 and is serving in his third term and has also filled the offices of school director, auditor and treasurer. For five years prior to 1900, he was a justice of the peace. He has sustained the reputation of the Graham family for public usefulness and good citizenship.

HON. ELMER E. BELL, the popular mayor of Butler and one of the most energetic and public-spirited of her citizens, was born in Mercer County, Pennsylvania, March 12, 1862, and is a son of Amzi and Eliza (Stewart) Bell.

Mayor Bell spent his boyhood and early youth assisting his father in farming the lands he rented at different points. There were six children to rear and educate and the parents were able to give them no better advantages than those afforded by the country schools. In 1896 Elmer E. Bell was appointed county detective by District Attorney Christley, and he continued in that office until 1899. He then entered the employ of the glass company at Butler and had charge of the power plant until 1902. He was then connected with the Davis Lead Company in the capacity of engineer for two years, after which he returned to the glass company and remained in that connection until 1906, when he was elected to the honorable office he so efficiently fills. He was the candidate on the Republican ticket and was elected by a majority of 303 votes over his opponent, John W. Vogel.

Mayor Bell married Miss Lizzie Byles, who is a daughter of Dr. Cornelius A. Byles, who is a prominent physician of Fredonia, Mercer County, PENNA. The Mayor's residence is at No. 609 Brown avenue, Butler. Both he and wife are members of the Second Presbyterian Church. He was reared in this faith by parents who were noted for their zeal and piety. His fraternal connections unite him with the Woodmen and the Maccabees.

WILLIAM OESTERLING, general farmer and oil well contractor and driller, resides on his farm of fifty-four acres, which is situated at Carbon Center, Summit Township. He was born at Brady's Bend, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, January 15, 1867, and is a son of Leonard and Margaret (Floor) Oesterling.

William Oesterling was three years old when his father settled on the farm at Carbon Center, where he still resides, and here the child grew to youth and manhood. When he was twenty-one years old he began work in the oil fields as a driller and as such was employed in Armstrong, Butler and Allegheny Counties. For about ten years he was in partnership with his brother, in oil contracting, and he still continues his interest in the oil business. In 1894 he purchased his present farm from his father and moved on the place in the fall of 1895. In 1898 he erected the large frame residence, selling the one he had built in 1895, to the B. R. & P. Railroad. There is still another house standing on the farm, which Mr. Oesterling rents out.

He is a man of first-class business qualifications and stands high personally in his neighborhood.

Mr. Oesterling married Emma L. Foreht, who is a daughter of Henry and a niece of George Foreht, well known residents of Butler County. Mr. and Mrs. Oesterling have three children, Florence, Ethel and Bertha. They belong to St. Mark's Lutheran Church at Butler.

GEORGE MILLIRON, superintendent of the works of the A. G. Morris & Son Lime and Stone Company, at West Winfield, Butler County, PENNA., was born at Brady's Bend, Armstrong County, this state, August 31, 1869, and is a son of W. H. Milliron. He received a good common school education, and began industrial life as a laborer in the quarries, since which time he has worked his way up to the responsible position he now holds. For the past eighteen years he has been engaged in the mining and manufacture of lime. While he was obtaining a practical knowledge of mining limestone and preparing it for the market, he also made a study of geology, mining engineering, and the commercial end of the business, and he is now one of the best informed men in this field of industry. He has held his present position with A. G. Morris & Son since 1900, the business being the largest of its kind operated in western Pennsylvania.

Mr. Milliron was married June 11, 1900, to Miss Bird, daughter of W. J. Campbell, of Winfield Township. Mrs. Milliron is a granddaughter of William Wise, who was a prominent furnace man in the days when the charcoal iron furnaces were in operation in western Pennsylvania. He superintended the Buffalo furnace in Armstrong County and assisted in the operation of the West Winfield and Pine Creek furnaces. Mrs. Wise lighted the first fire in the old Buffalo furnace.

Mr. and Mrs. Milliron reside in a comfortable cottage at West Winfield, and are among the leaders in the social affairs of the town. They attend the Presbyterian Mission at West Winfield and take an active interest in all church and benevolent affairs. Mr. Milliron is a member of the Maccabees and is a Democrat in politics.

CHARLES W. ALLEN, a general farmer residing on his valuable estate of seventy acres, which is situated in Franklin Township, was born in Franklin Township, Butler County, Penna., in what is now the village of Prospect, March 9, 1864, and is a son of Samuel and Kate M. (Witty) Allen.

The father of Mr. Allen was born in 1841, at Whitestown, Penna., and died in February, 1907. His leading occupation was farming, although for two years he conducted a hotel at Prospect and resided for several years at West Liberty. He subsequently settled on the farm in Franklin Township which his son Charles W. now owns, and there spent the remainder of his life. He was a member of the Odd Fellow organization at Prospect. He married a daughter of John Witty and they had the following children: Charles, Mary, Robert, George, Harry and Margaret, the last mentioned of whom is the wife of David Snyder of Brady Township. Of the above family Mary and Robert are deceased. The parents were members of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, in which the father was active, serving as a trustee and for a long period as superintendent of the Sunday-school.

Charles W. Allen was reared and attended school in Franklin Township and, with the exception of about sixteen years, during which period he was employed as a pumper and tool dresser in the oil fields, he has confined his attention to farming. His land is productive and his main crops are potatoes, hay and corn, thirty-five acres being devoted to the latter grain. He is well known all through this section, has friends on every hand and is a valued member of the order of Maccabees at Prospect.

CASPER FEHL, a well known resident of Forward Township, Butler County, Penna., is the owner of a fine farm of 105 acres, located in that and Connoquenessing Township. He was born in Pittsburg, March 23, 1854, and has lived in Butler County since 1858.

George Fehl, grandfather of the subject of this sketch, was born in Germany and there grew to manhood. Sometime after the death of his wife, he, accompanied by his two children, Michael (now deceased) and Elizabeth, mother of Casper Fehl, came to the United States and located in Pittsburg, where he worked in a plate glass works for some years. They all later moved to Butler County, making the trip afoot, while their goods were hauled in the wagon. They settled on a farm in Forward Township, which the mother of the subject of this sketch now owns. She is now past seventy-five years of age and makes her home with her son.

Casper Fehl was about four years of age when his people came to Forward Township, and the farm on which they located was unimproved and uncleared. They erected a log cabin and a barn, and set about getting the land into a cultivatable state, and in this work, as he grew older, Casper assisted. Oil was later struck on the place, and became the source of considerable income. In 1874, he began working at the trade of a mason, and continued at it for a period of seventeen years, with a high degree of success. He made a purchase of twenty-five acres of land in Connoquenessing Township, to which he added from time to time, and on which he erected a fine set of buildings. Unfortunately the barn was destroyed by fire in 1898, and all its contents lost. In 1899 he erected a large and substantial modern barn which now stands on the place. He is engaged in general farming and raises some stock. He has fifty-five acres in Forward Township, where he lives, his home being on the north side of the Butler and Harmony road. He has four producing wells on the place, and for a time worked a coal bank at Wahlville, in partnership with Mr. George Hicks. He has always been energetic and industrious, and the success achieved has been by hard knocks and honest dealings with his fellow men.

September 4, 1880, Mr. Fehl was united in marriage with Miss Catherine L. Miller, a daughter of Joseph and Elizabeth (Young) Miller, and they are parents of the following children: Frank, Cora, Vina, Joseph, Iva, Linda and Clarence. Religiously, the family belong to the Reformed Church. In politics, he is a staunch Democrat, and has served as township tax collector, school director, and in other capacities.

JOHN STEIN, one of Butler's substantial citizens and reliable business men, is proprietor of an extensive baking plant, in his building on the corner of Main and Wayne streets, Butler. He was born in 1847, in Wurtemberg, Germany, and remained in his native land until he was nineteen years old.

When John Stein reached the United States he selected the city of Pittsburg for his home and there he went to work in a bakery store, learned the business and continued to live in Pittsburg for two years. In 1874 he came to Butler, where he found work at his trade, but in February, 1875, he returned to Pittsburg and continued work as a baker there until 1876. Then Mr. Stein returned to Butler, with the intention of embarking in a bakery business of his own. Like many another successful business man, he was compelled to begin in a small way, his first bakery being established in a rented log house. There are many who recall the first Stein bakery and have watched its gradual development with interest for it has become one of the large city enterprises. Through his industry and good management, coupled with the excellent quality of his goods, Mr. Stein prospered and in 1887 he was able to build a two-story brick building on the corner of Wayne and Main Streets, with dimensions of 61x65 feet. His business continued to expand and to meet the growing demands Mr. Stein has added a third story to his building and has also invested in other valuable property.

In 1874 Mr. Stein was married to Miss Eliza Rudolph, who was born in Germany and came to America when twenty years of age. Mr. and Mrs. Stein have eight children, namely: Louise, who married Theodore Schenek, a prominent citizen of Butler, and Paulina, Caroline, Marie, Emma, Waldo Harry, Elma and Hilda. Mr. Stein and family belong to St. Mark's Lutheran Church. In politics he is a Democrat.

WILLIAM BACHMAN, residing on his finely improved farm of sixty acres, which is situated in Jefferson Township, on the south and east of the Saxonburg and Cabot road, about one mile north of the former village, was born on his father's homestead, September 24, 1865, and is a son of August and Mary (Smith) Bachman.

August Bachman was born in Germany and came to Butler County many years ago and followed farming in Jefferson Township. His father also came to America but died shortly afterward. August Bachman married Mary Smith and they had the following family of children born to them, all of whom survive except the eldest: Hannah, Henry, Joshua, William, Charles, John, Emma, Lewis, August and Joseph.

William Bachman attended school in Jefferson Township and his first work done away from home, was in a brick-yard. He then learned the carpenter's trade, at which he continued to work until 1907, when he purchased his present farm, which he cultivates and also raises stock for his own use.

He has done a large amount of building in the county and the improvements on his own place were made by himself. His handsome residence and substantial barn, both of which have slate roofs, scarcely have equals in this section. He is also interested in oil production and has visited the oil fields all over Butler County and at present has fourteen producing wells. He is a man of business enterprise and his investments have proved good ones as he made them judiciously.

In January, 1891, Mr. Bachman was married to Miss Emma Rudert, a daughter of William and Hannah (Lensner) Rudert, of Jefferson Township, and they have the following children: Aaron, Nora, Wilbert, Nelma, Mary and Raymond, Nora and Raymond being deceased. The eldest son, now a bright youth of sixteen years, is beginning to learn the carpenter's trade with his father. The family belong to the Lutheran Church at Saxonburg.

WILLIAM T. HOON, a prominent citizen and prosperous farmer, resides on his excellent farm of 110 acres, situated in Oakland Township, this being a part of the original tract on which his grandfather, Henry Hoon, settled in 1818. He was born on this farm on March 1, 1859, and is a son of Anthony and Mary Ann (Beatty) Hoon.

Henry Hoon came to Butler County from Harrisburg, Penna., bringing his family and many of his household possessions. His grandchildren still preserve his rifle and the old copper kettle, which, in those days, was the thrifty housewife's most valued possession. Grandfather Hoon built a log house on his wild farm in Oakland Township and the remainder of his life was mainly given to the clearing and improving of his land, the larger part of which is still owned by his descendants.

Anthony Hoon, father of William T., was born in Dauphin County, Penna., August 27, 1817, and was one year old when his parents brought him to Oakland Township, on which his subsequent life was spent. He married Mary Ann Beatty, who was born in Ireland and in girlhood was brought to Oakland Township by her father, Hugh Beatty. Born in 1824, she died October 7, 1897, aged seventy-three years. Her husband survived her until February 27, 1900, his age being eighty-two years and six months. Of Anthony Hoon's twelve children, the following survive: Robert B., Henry A., Hugh B., A. I., William T., Clark W. and Mary E. Robert B., Hugh B. and A. I., all reside at Mercer, Pennsylvania. Henry A., residing at Avelon, Pennsylvania, and Robert B., are children of his first marriage, with Martha Black.

William T. Hoon was reared on his present farm and has always devoted himself to agricultural pursuits. On June 20, 1888, he married Laura M. Hutchison, who was a daughter of William J. Hutchison. Mrs. Hoon died August 17, 1906. They had four children; Vangie L., who died aged twenty-one months; and George A., Loyal R. and Carl H. Since the death of Mrs. Hoon, Mr. Hoon's sister, Miss Mary E. Hoon, a most estimable lady, has looked after his household. In the year following his marriage, Mr. Hoon erected his large frame house, having built his substantial barn in 1884. Mr. Hoon is a member of the United Presbyterian Church at Butler. In politics he is a Republican and he has frequently been elected to township offices, in which he has served most acceptably.

HENRY JOHN IFFT, owner and proprietor of the large general store conducted under the title of George Ifft & Sons, is one of the best known citizens and business men of Evans City, Penna. He was born in the country near that village May 1, 1849, and is a son of John George and Sophia (Reeb) Ifft, and grandson of John George, Sr., and Anna Barbara (Pfeifer) Ifft, the two last named dying in Hessen, Darmstadt, Germany, their native land.

John George Ifft, father of the subject of this sketch, was born in Vollmarz, Hessen, Darmstadt, Germany, and was sixteen years old when he accompanied his two older brothers, Michael and Peter, to America and located in Butler County, Penna. He took to agricultural pursuits and prospered, and in 1850 he purchased the Daniel Boggs farm at Evans City, on which he passed the remainder of his days. He became interested with his sons in the general store in 1868 which bore his name, but did not participate actively in its management. He was joined in marriage with Sophia Reeb, who was born in Alsace, France, and was fourteen years of age when she accompanied her father, Nicholas Reeb, to the United States. Her father became a resident of Butler County, and lived there until his death in 1870, at the age of eighty-seven years. Mr. Reeb served twelve years as cavalryman under Louis Napoleon. This union resulted in the birth of eight children, as follows: George, who died in April, 1908; Catherine, widow of Peter Pfeifer; William H., who died in December, 1894; Sarah, wife of George G. Lutz; Henry John, whose name heads this sketch; J. Nicholas, who lives on the old home place and is a breeder of blooded stock; Lewis J. of Washington, D. C.; and a daughter who died in infancy. Mr. Ifft died in April, 1891, at the age of seventy-four years, and his widow in December, 1893, at the age of seventy-three years.

Henry J. Ifft was about one year old when his parents moved to the old home place, where his boyhood days were spent. He attended the old township school about four months in the year, to which he walked, it being two miles from his home. At the age of seventeen, in May, 1866, he left home for Pittsburg, where for thirteen months he worked in the grocery of James Montooth & Son, on Smithfield Street. He then spent nine months in a store in Allegheny, after which, in March, 1868, he returned to Evans City and established a general store with his father and brothers under the name and style of George Ifft & Sons. In 1874, the store of J. M. White was purchased and the two stores consolidated, and two years later a large and commodious store building was erected on the corner of Pittsburg and Washington Streets, which the firm has since occupied. In 1886, a ware house was erected along the railroad and is provided with a private siding. John George Ifft withdrew from the business in 1880, John N. in 1883, Lewis J. in 1890, and William in 1893, the subject of this sketch becoming at that time sole owner. He carries a large and complete line of dry-goods, groceries, boots and shoes, hardware and farm implements, and flour and feed, commanding a liberal patronage at the hands of the people throughout this section of the county.

November 7, 1872, Henry J. Ifft was united in marriage with Miss Agnes A. Lyons, a daughter of John Lyons, who was a veteran of the Civil War. Her brother, Major R. W. Lyons, was formerly mayor of Pittsburg and he also served in the Civil War. Nine children were the result of this union, four of whom died in infancy. Those who grew to maturity were: Carrie Leona, wife of Charles Lynch of Evans City, Pennsylvania, by whom she has three children: George Ifft, James Donald, and Mary; Lyon, Charles W., who assists his father in running the store; Mary Josephine; Frances Beulah; and Emma Kathlyn. Mr. Ifft is a Democrat in politics, has served on the School Board and in the council and is at present a member of the board of directors of Evans City Cemetery Association. He was reared in the Lutheran faith, but is now a member of the United Presbyterian Church, to which his family also belong.

R. RUSSELL LLOYD, treasurer and manager of The Lloyd Company, Incorporated, wholesale dealers in confectionery, cigars and tobacco, was born at Apollo, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Col. David D. and Mary (Fritzius) Lloyd.

When Mr. Lloyd was eight years old his parents moved to Beaver Falls and there he obtained his education. When he left school he went into factory work and has filled almost every position in factories, learning the business from the ground up. He began for himself on a small scale, at Apollo, as wholesale confectioner, and remained there until his enterprise had practically outgrown the village and then went to Butler, where with his father he embarked in the wholesale business which is one of the city's most prosperous concerns at the present time. In 1904 The Lloyd Company was incorporated, with a capital stock of $20,000. Its officers are Col. David D. Lloyd, president; R. Russell Lloyd, treasurer and manager; and W. E. Lloyd, secretary. The company keeps four men on the road, and the territory covered includes six counties in Western Pennsylvania. The success of this business is due to the excellent qualities of the goods handled and to the honorable business methods and careful, intelligent and conservative administration of its affairs. Mr. Lloyd is a member of the fraternal orders of the Elks and Eagles and he belongs also to the Country Club. He was reared in the Methodist Episcopal Church, of which he is a member.

WILLIAM JOHN EMRICK, general merchant at Butler, has been a resident of this city for twenty-two years and is identified with many of her interests and has been a helpful factor in developing a number of her enterprises. He was born August 12, 1858, in Summit Township, Butler County, Penna., and is a son of John and a grandson of Andrew Emrick, who came to Butler County in 1803.

John Emrick, father of W. J., was born in 1831, in Butler County, and developed into one of the leading citizens of this section. He resided on his farm in Summit Township. In 1864 he enlisted for service in the Civil War, entering Company F, One Hundred Seventh Regiment, in the Army of the Potomac, and was present at the surrender of General Lee at Appomattox. On December 14, 1855, he was married to Miss Maria A. Burkhart, who died in August, 1906. They had the following children: Daniel Baxter and William J., both residents of Butler; Asa Waters, a resident of Allegheny; Albert F., a resident of Benavon, Pennsylvania; Samuel M., a resident of Butler; Catherine R., wife of A. M. Swartz, of Allegheny City; and Barbara A. and Mary E. The latter is the wife of Samuel Hughes, of Butler. A number of the family above named have reared children of their own and when the aged grandfather died, his remains were followed to the grave by eighty-six grandchildren and twenty-two great-grandchildren.

W. J. Emrick was reared on a farm four miles from the Butler County Court House and was educated in the local schools and at Witherspoon Institute. His first essay at business was as a clerk for D. H. Sutton, at Maharg, with whom he remained for eight years, after which he was with John Berg & Son, for a short time, and then accepted a position as foreman for the W. C. Myers dry goods store at Pittsburg. He remained there for two years and then came to Butler, where he served as a clerk for the well known merchants, D. L. Aiken and J. E. Campbell, for four years. His long experience in the mercantile line convinced him that he was fully capable of directing a business of his own and about this time, in association with S. M. Wright, he bought out his former employers, the firm name becoming Emrick & Wright. In October, 1897, Mr. Emrick established his general mercantile store at No. 806 Center Avenue, and the steady growth of his trade soon necessitated larger quarters, and in 1902 he erected his present fine two-story store building, with dimensions of 20x60 feet. He has commodious wareroom space in the rear and he has equipped his building with modern comforts and appliances. In 1893 he had built his fine residence which adjoins his store, at No. 804 Center Avenue.

In 1882, Mr. Emrick was married to Miss Nancy J. Cruikshank, who belongs to one of the old and honorable families of Butler County. They have seven children, namely: Samuel Dwight, who is a student in the dental department of the University of Pittsburg; Ada E., who is a music teacher of Butler; John Leroy, who is with his father in the store; Egleton Byers, who is a High School student; and Alice Gertrude, Hazel Olive and Catherine Irene, all at school. The family belong to the First Presbyterian Church, Mr. Emrick being a member of the official board. His fraternal connections include the Modern Woodmen and the Knights of Pythias. He is not active in politics, although he has ever shown good citizenship when public affairs demanded stringent measures.

JOHN S. DODDS, general farmer in Franklin Township, residing on his well cultivated farm of sixty acres, is a prominent and respected citizen of this section and is also a veteran of the Civil War. He was born July 4, 1840, in Franklin Township, Butler County, Penna., and is a son of Thomas and Nancy (McGrew) Dodds.

The parents of Mr. Dodds were born and reared in Franklin Township, where the grandparents had been early settlers. Thomas Dodds followed the carpenter trade in his earlier years but later devoted himself entirely to farming. In politics, prior to the organization of the Republican party, he was a Whig. He was a man of character and frequently was elected to office in his township. His wife, Nancy McGrew, was a daughter of James McGrew, and they had the following children: Mary, who married Enos McDonald, of Prospect; William, whose home is in Colorado; Margaret, residing at Mt. Chestnut, who is the widow of John McCandless; James, who died of fever while serving in the Civil War as a member of Company G, One Hundred Thirty-fourth Regiment, Penna. Volunteer Infantry; John S., whose name appears at the head of this sketch; Elizabeth, deceased, who was the wife of William McDonald; Martha, who is the widow of Samuel Moore, of New Castle; and Thomas, who lives at New Castle. The parents were members of the United Presbyterian Church at Prospect. On both sides Mr. Dodds comes of Irish ancestry.

John S. Dodds spent his boyhood attending the district schools and making himself useful on the home farm. In August, 1862, he enlisted for service in the Civil War, entering Company G, One Hundred Thirty-fourth Regiment, Penna. Volunteer Infantry, for nine months, and re-enlisted, in 1864, in the Sixth Penna. Heavy Artillery, in which he served until the close of hostilities. He took part in many serious battles but was spared to return home, practically unharmed. He is a member of John H. Randolph Post No. 404, Grand Army of the Republic, at Prospect, of which he is past quartermaster. After he returned from the army he settled on his present farm, which he has carefully cultivated ever since, producing very satisfactory crops of wheat, hay, corn, oats and potatoes. He is an active Republican and has served his township most acceptably as supervisor, tax collector, school director and auditor.

Mr. Dodds married Miss Ellen Dick, a daughter of William Dick, of Franklin Township, and they have the following children: James V., of Zelienople; William H., of Brooklyn, New York; Thomas J., also of Brooklyn, New York; Carl, of New Castle, Pennsylvania; Ford, of Zelienople; Harry W., of Muddy Creek Township;

Everette M., of Freedom, Pennsylvania; Clyde, of New Castle; Raymond, residing at home; and Jessie Bell, who is the wife of Lester Brown. Mr. Dodds and family belong to the United Presbyterian Church at Mt. Chestnut, of which he has been a trustee.

ISAAC M. FLEEGER is the owner of a farm consisting of fifty-six acres, located about one mile north of Unionville, in Center Township, Butler County, Penna., upon which he has lived since 1899. He was born near the borough of Mercer, in Mercer County, Penna., October 22, 1858, and is a son of Christopher and Emeline (Weston) Fleeger, the former a native of Center Township, and the latter of New York State.

After marriage, Christopher Fleeger moved to Mercer County, but one year later returned to Center Township, where he and wife remained until 1870, in which year they purchased a farm in Mercer County, and again took up their residence in that county, where they remained until their respective deaths.

Isaac M. Fleeger was in infancy when his people returned to Center Township, and when nine years of age went to live with the family of John McBride in Franklin Township. He continued with the latter until he was twenty-one, engaged in farm work, then went to live with his parents, who at that time were located in Mercer County. After two years of assisting his father on the farm, he returned to the employ of Mr. McBride, with whom he remained some two or three years longer. He was married in 1884, to Miss Margaret McCandless, who was born and reared in Connoquenessing Township, and is a daughter of John McCandless. They set up housekeeping in Cherry Township, where Mr. Fleeger worked for a short time in a coal bank; he then worked one summer for Mr. McBride in Franklin Township, after which he farmed his father-in-law's place in Connoquenessing Township for two years. He next moved to Butler Township, where he operated a coal mine which he leased from Abraham McCandless, for three years, then moved to the McDonald farm in Connoquenessing Township. Five years later he removed to the Robert McBride farm in Franklin Township, and after one year there, in 1899 purchased his present farm of fifty-six acres in Center Township from the Fleeger heirs. Having begun a poor lad, without help or favor he worked his way to a desirable position among the leading men of the community. He follows general farming and stock raising, and is meeting with deserved success.

The marriage of Isaac M. and Margaret (McCandless) Fleeger resulted in the birth of the following children: William G.; Sarah A., who is the wife of John Miller, by whom she has a daughter, Ruth Alberta; Floyd A.; Cecil C.; and Clara Margaret. Religiously, he and some of his family are members of the Unionville Presbyterian Church, but William G. and Sarah A. belong to the German Lutheran known as the Hollow church.

JOSEPH BRANDON COOPER, of the grocery firm of Smathers & Cooper, is one of the foremost business men of Evans City, Penna., and comes of an old and respected family of Butler County. He was born on the old home farm in Forward Township, September 21, 1875, and is a son of James and Caroline (Marburger) Cooper, and grandson of Joseph Cooper.

Joseph Cooper, the grandfather, settled in the woods of Forward Township at a very early date, made a clearing for his cabin, and then set about the task of clearing the farm of its heavy growth of timber and underbrush. He had quite a reputation as a wood chopper, and even in his old age could swing an axe with greater skill than the younger men. He was the father of a large family of children, as follows:

James; Joseph; Samuel, deceased; Katherine, widow of John Davis; Ethel L., wife of Lewis Bloom; Sophia, widow of Jesse Knox; Nancy, wife of Taylor Wise; Christina, wife of John Keefer; Alma, wife of Andrew McFarland; Sarah, wife of John Loose; and Melissa, wife of John C. Rohiser. The Cooper family each year holds a remion which is attended by more than 400 members of the family, the last one held being at Butler in August, 1908. Joseph B. Cooper, subject of this sketch, serves as treasurer of their organization.

James Cooper, father of Joseph B., was born on the farm in Forward Township, and in his youth helped in its clearing. At an early age he learned the trade of a carpenter, and erected many of the early houses and barns in his vicinity. He built the business block now occupied by the store of Smathers & Cooper at Evans City, it being all hand work from the rough lumber. He and his wife now live on the old Cooper home place in Forward Township, two miles north of Evans City. He was united in marriage with Caroline Marburger, a daughter of Henry Marburger, who died in 1907, at the age of ninety years. They became parents of the following children: Mary, who died in 1907, and was the wife of John Berringer; Sophia, wife of Curtin Bradley; Samuel; Joseph Brandon; George; Susan, wife of Ferd Zigler; and Edward.

Joseph B. Cooper spent his boyhood days on the home place in Forward Township, and attended the district schools of that vicinity and later the high schools at Evans City for two terms. He engaged in agricultural pursuits on the home place until 1904, when he purchased a half interest in the store of Mr. A. J. Smathers, who had been in business in Evans City since 1888. Mr. Smathers had the misfortune of being struck by the street car at Mars, June 7, 1908, his death resulting from the accident. Mr. Cooper has since carried on the business in connection with his former partner's heirs. He has a large and complete stock and enjoys a good trade in the village and surrounding country.

April 17, 1901, Mr. Cooper was joined in marriage with Miss Kitty Burke, a daughter of F. E. and Sylvia (Tealsmith) Burke, and they started housekeeping in the house in which the subject of this sketch was born. They have one daughter, Frances Seeland, born September 6, 1906. Religiously, they are members of the United Presbyterian Church, of which he is a trustee. In political affiliation, he is a Democrat. Fraternally, he is a member of Evans City Lodge No. 817, I. O. F.; and Encampment No. 317, I. O. O. F.

LOUIS STEIN. Among the old-time merchants of Butler who have now passed away, few are more worthy of remembrance than he whose name begins this article. He came of sturdy old German stock and of a family of more than usual intelligence, his father being a professor in the Medical University of Bonn. Louis Stein was born in the city of Marburg, Hessen, Germany, July 3, 1811.

When the father of Mr. Stein was honored by the appointment to a professorship at Bonn University, the family took up its residence in the old college town and Louis had the advantage of being educated there. In 1832 he came to America, where he was employed during his first five years, in an importing house in New York City. In 1837 he established a mercantile business at Wapakoneta, Ohio, where, in partnership with Bernard Roessing, he continued in business until 1840, when they came to Butler. The mercantile firm of Roessing and Stein continued until 1871, when Mr. Stein purchased Mr. Roessing's interest and carried on the business alone until February, 1882. He then admitted his son, William A., to partnership and the firm became L. Stein & Son, and with some changes in the handling of commodities, the business continued until 1885, when Louis Stein retired. Although he withdrew from all responsibility at this time, he continued interested in the progress and success of the firm and until within a short time of his death, might be seen almost every day, in some department of the store. He lived to the age of eighty-four years and having led a temperate, sane and healthy life, avoided many of the ailments peculiar to advanced years. His death occurred July 20, 1894. His social disposition, united with the strictest business integrity, gained for him many friends and few men in the commercial circles of the city enjoyed a greater degree of popularity.

In politics, Mr. Stein was a firm Democrat, but the measure of his public service was as a member of the School Board, on which he served for some years. He was a member of the German Lutheran Church at Butler and his support of the same was always liberal and cheerfully bestowed.

In August, 1848, Louis Stein was married to Matilda Dieker, a daughter of Anthony Dieker, of Wapakoneta, Ohio. They had six children, namely: Emily, Julia, William A., Louis B., Albert O. and Charles. Charles and Emily are deceased, the latter of whom was the wife of John N. Patterson. Julia married J. F. Strong and resides at Cincinnati. The three surviving sons of Louis Stein are all men of business sagacity, occupying prominent places in the commercial life of Butler.

WILLIAM WATSON, one of Butler County's representative business men, now living retired in a comfortable home at No. 442 East Pearl Street, Butler, for thirty-two years was prominently identified with the mercantile interests of Franklin Township. He was born near Withhorn, in Wigtonshire, Scotland, February 12, 1838, and is a son of Alexander and Elizabeth (Arnot) Watson.

On account of his hearing Mr. Watson,

November 1, 1908, sold his store and property at Mount Chestnut and retired to Butler, Pa., where he resides at 442 East Pearl Street.

William Watson, of the firm of William Watson & Son, general merchants, with stores both at Mount Chestnut and Isle, is one of the best known men of Franklin Township, with which section he has been identified for the past thirty-two years. He was born near Withhorn, in Wigtonshire, Scotland, February 12, 1838, and is a son of Alexander and Elizabeth (Arnot) Watson.

Alexander Watson was born also in Wigtonshire, in 1810, and died in Butler County, Penna., when aged eighty-three years. He married Elizabeth Arnot, who was born in 1806 and died when aged eighty-six years. In 1845, Alexander Watson and family removed to England and lived in different sections of that country until 1849, when they embarked on a sailing vessel for America. The long voyage, which required six weeks, is easily recalled by Mr. Watson, who was then a boy of eleven years. His parents settled near Freeport, in Buffalo Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, where the father first rented and later purchased land and lived there during the remainder of his life. Both he and wife were consistent members of the Presbyterian Church. They had four children, namely: John A., who resides in Buffalo Township; William; Alexander, who lives near Helena, Montana; and Isabella, who is the widow of John Myers, of Buffalo Township.

William Watson has had a long and eventful life, many of the details being unusually interesting. He attended school in Buffalo Township and remained at home until the spring of 1858, when he went to the Territory of Kansas. For about one year after reaching there he worked on a farm near Lawrence and then secured a contract to cut timber in the Delaware Indian Reservation. About this time came the discovery of gold at Pike's Peak and the subsequent public uproar and Mr. Watson became affected by the general excitement. In partnership with his brother, John A. Watson, he bought three yoke of oxen and a wagon and easily obtained a load of freight and passengers. The party arrived safely on the present site of the city of Denver, and at that time the present beautiful city consisted of but thirteen mud-covered shanties. During this journey, Mr. Watson and his companions became accustomed to sights which no previous experience had prepared them for. He was particularly impressed with the vast herds of Buffalo and was ten days in passing them on the range, there being hundreds of thousands of those animals, of which now almost the only specimens are those in captivity.

Mr. Watson remained in the vicinity of Denver all that summer, engaged in prospecting for gold, and when the season was well advanced he engaged, for several months, in hauling lumber into Denver. After this work was completed he came down the Platte River and wintered in Missouri. On his journey down he had an experience which he relates somewhat as follows: "One night, when about twelve miles up the river from Fort Kearney, the company went to sleep in the wagons as usual but the wind changed so suddenly to the North that they had to quickly rouse and turn the ends of the wagons to the storm to prevent them being upset. In the morning the snow was falling and the wind was howling. They hurried the cattle together and started for Fort Kearney, the storm, in the meanwhile, growing worse every minute, and when they finally reached Fort Kearney, with the expectation of receiving assistance, the commandant there refused them the shelter of one of the abandoned shanties about the fort, this refusal making it necessary for them to endure the storm for a half mile farther, where they found a ranchman who was willing for the party of sixteen to crowd into a little adobe hut with dimensions of 8 to 10 feet. Two of the travelers wrapped themselves in blankets and slept in the wagon, for want of space in the hut, but one of the oxen, which had only the shelter of a hay-stack, was frozen and on the following day a second ox shared its fate. This noted storm occurred November 11, 1859, and lasted for two and one-half days."

Mr. Watson engaged in cutting wood on a farm until the spring came and then went to Brownsville, Nebraska, where he bought a pony and outfit and with it started out alone to the Little Blue River, where he joined others and then proceeded to Russell's Gulch, where he mined in the mountains until in the fall of 1861. He then returned home on a visit, and shortly afterward enlisted in Company D, Sixth Regiment, Penna. Heavy Artillery, and was in the regular service for about ten months, or until the close of the war, being connected with the force defending Washington during the greater part of the time. He entered the service as first corporal and was promoted to be sergeant. After he returned from the field to the forts, he put in his time studying artillery practice and became so proficient that he was detailed as an artillery instructor.

After the close of his military life, Mr. Watson bought a farm in Buffalo Township, on which he remained for ten years, selling in 1876 and buying an interest in the business of Alexander Campbell & Sons, at Mount Chestnut. Within two years, Mr. Watson acquired the whole business and he conducted it under his own name until 1892, when he admitted his son, Edwin A., to partnership and the firm name was changed to William Watson & Son. In addition to general merchandise, the firm handled farm machinery, fertilizers and feed. In 1897, they established a store in the northwestern part of Franklin Township, at Isle, of which Edwin A. Watson has charge. He is also station and express agent at Isle and has his express office in his store. William Watson gave the name to that village and station, in memory of a little town that stood within two miles of his birthplace in Scotland. This firm has done the largest mercantile business in Franklin Township. On November 1, 1908, William Watson sold his Mt. Chestnut store and property, defective hearing having induced his retirement from business. Both father and son are Republicans in their political sentiments. The latter was formerly the postmaster at Isle and the former served for about sixteen years, although not consecutively, as postmaster at Mount Chestnut, giving up the office when the rural mail delivery went into effect. Mr. Watson has never been a seeker for political honors but has had frequent appointments in that line. He served many years as a school director and to his judgment, in the early days, may be attributed the excellence of the schools of his district, for he has always been a practical man. For many years he has served on leading committees in the political councils of his party and has been a delegate to Congressional and Senatorial conventions.

Mr. Watson was married (first) to Mary E. Sarver, who died in 1874, aged thirty-two years. She was a daughter of Jacob Sarver, of Buffalo Township. They had four children, namely: Clara E., who is the wife of Prof. S. L. Cheeseman, of Slippery Rock; John W., who resides at Seattle, Washington; Edwin A., who is in business with his father; and A. Walter, who is in Alaska. Mr. Watson was married (second) to Mary M. Campbell, who is a daughter of Joseph Campbell, of Concord Township. Mrs. Watson was formerly a successful teacher. Four children have been born to this union, as follows: Charles C., who is a traveling salesman, residing at Butler; E. Merle, who lives at Isle; Clyde N., who is engaged in the life insurance business at Butler; and Jessie M., who lives at home. Mr. and Mrs. Watson are members of the United Presbyterian Church at Mount Chestnut, of which he has been an elder for twenty years.

D. F. McCREA, the genial proprietor of the Butler Hotel, has been a resident of this city for a period covering about twenty years. He was born in 1858, at Saint Joe, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Daniel McCrea. The father of Mr. McCrea was born at Blairsville, Indiana County, Pennsylvania, and came to Butler County when young. He became a substantial farmer and an influential member of the Democratic party in his section.

D. F. McCrea was reared on his father's farm and when he was released from school he obeyed the lure to the oil fields, which, at that time, attracted young men from all surrounding sections. Mr. McCrea was fortunate in his investments and has been more or less identified with oil production ever since. He has operated in many of the most productive oil regions of the country, from 1883 to 1885, being interested in the Los Angeles oil fields, California. He is a stockholder and a director in the Butler County Fair Association and is generally interested in affairs in Butler County.

In 1900 Mr. McCrea was married to Mrs. Thomas Stiles. In politics he is a Democrat. He has been closely associated with the hotel business for years and is a member of the Pennsylvania State Hotel Association, is president of the Butler County Hotel Men's Association, and belongs also to the Elks.

MATTHEW SMITH GREER, whose valuable farm of 100 acres of some of the finest land in Jefferson Township is situated on the Saxonburg and Cabot highway, about one mile west of Cabot, occupies the farm on which he was born, March 24, 1851. He is a son of Thomas and Elizabeth (Cooper) Greer.

Thomas Greer was born in County Down, Ireland, and when five years old was brought to America by his parents, Matthew and Isabella (Bruce) Greer. About 1819 they settled in Washington County, Pennsylvania, from which section Thomas Greer later came to Butler County. He had five children, namely: John M., Robert B., William H., Matthew S. and Samuel W.

Matthew S. Greer obtained his education in the schools of Jefferson Township. The only time he ever left the home farm to work, was for a short period on the construction of the Western Pennsylvania Railroad when he stretched the first telegraph wire into Butler. With this exception, Mr. Greer has devoted himself to the cultivation and improvement of his land. All of his surroundings indicate thrift and comfort, while his residence is one of elegance and fine proportions. It is of modern type, of brick construction and slate roof and contains ten rooms. It is by far the finest private residence in this section of the county.

On January 6, 1892, Mr. Greer was married to Miss Elizabeth Young, who is a daughter of Lewis and Mary (Stapp) Young. The father was a carpenter and lived in different sections in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Virginia and served as a soldier in the Civil War. He died in 1894. He married Mary Stepp, who survives, and they had the following children: Mary M., Clara B., Sarah C., Amanda A., John Wesley, Mary S., Hattie M., Thomas L. and Elizabeth, and one infant deceased. Mr. and Mrs. Greer have two sons and one daughter: Anna Elizabeth, William Thomas and Robert Lewis, all students. Mr. and Mrs. Greer are active members of the Lutheran Church and he is a member of the church council. He is an Odd Fellow and is connected with Saxonía Lodge, No. 496, at Saxonburg and has passed all the chairs, while Mrs. Greer is a charter member of the auxiliary order of Rebekah Mr. and Mrs. Greer are hospitable people and their beautiful home is frequently the scene of pleasant family and social gatherings.

ROBERT H. BROWN, who comes of one of the earliest pioneer families of Butler County, Penna., was for many years owner and proprietor of the well known Brown's Mills in Forward Township, which are not now in operation. He owns a farm of fifty-one acres at that point, and is now living a retired life in the enjoyment of the fruits of his early toil. He has been a resident of Butler County for more than eighty-four years, having been born on the old homestead at Brownsdale, September 11, 1824, and has never lived elsewhere. He is a son of Adam and Sarah (Brown) Brown, a grandson of Adam Brown, and a great-grandson of Adam Brown.

Adam Brown, Sr., the great-grandfather, came to this country from Germany, and at the time of his death was living at Newville, Penna. He came out to what he called the Indian territory, now Butler County, and purchased a tract of 400 acres of land. He had four sons: John, Joseph, Adam and Ray.

Adam Brown, grandfather of the subject of this sketch, also was a native of Germany but very quickly mastered the English language. Prior to the Revolutionary War, he built the first wharves in Baltimore, his father being the contractor for the work. He came into possession of the 400 acres of land which his father had purchased at what is now Brownsdale, and settled there in the woods. The town was not laid out until many years later. He continued to reside on that place until his death. He and his wife were parents of

Adam Brown, father of Robert H., was born within one mile of the big spring at Newville, in Cumberland County, Penna. He was a small boy at the time the family removed to Butler County, and he here acquired a good education. The home property was all left under his care, and he also purchased and cleared the land on which the subject of this sketch now lives. He was married to Sarah Brown, who was no relation although bearing the same surname, and they both died on this place. The following were the children born to them: Robert H.; Adam, deceased; John, deceased; Joseph, deceased; Nancy (Hammel); Ruth (Anderson); Sarah (Layton), deceased; and Margaret Ann, deceased wife of R. Henderson.

Robert H. Brown was about nine years old when his parents moved from Brownsdale to the farm on which he now lives. He has spent his life since on this place except a period of eleven years, when he lived at Brush Creek, having sold the farm to Philip Gelbach, but at the end of that period repurchased it. The first mill on the farm had been built by Reese Evans, prior to the coming of the Browns, and Adam operated it for some years, but as soon as his sons arrived at sufficient age they took charge of it. They later tore it down and erected a big merchant mill, which was destroyed by fire about 1858 or 1859. Robert H. Brown later built the mill which is now standing, and conducted it with a high degree of success for many years. He at the same time engaged in farming operations. During the early years Brown's Mill was the only one in this section, and was patronized from far and near. Now, as his old friends drive by the unused building, the wish is often heard expressed that "old Bob was still in the business." The location is admirable for a modern milling plant, on the Glade Run, and at the forks in the road.

Mr. Brown was married in 1851 to Miss Margaret Wilson, who died without issue. He subsequently formed a second marital union with Miss Cynthia Miller, by whom he had the following children: Estella; Mary and Wilda, twins; Robert; John; and Nora Byrle. Religiously, he is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is an unswerving Republican in politics, but was too busy with his mill to think of running for office. He was in the milling business for more than a half century, and in that time witnessed a wonderful transformation in the character and conditions of the country, its villages and cities, and in its citizenship.

A. H. SARVER, vice president of the Farmers National Bank, at Butler, with large manufacturing interests at different points, has maintained his home in this city for the past twenty years. He belongs to one of the old established families of Western Pennsylvania, and was born at Sarver, Butler County, in 1866. He is a son of John F., a grandson of Benjamin and a great-grandson of Benjamin Sarver.

It was the elder Benjamin Sarver who was born in Germany and came to what is now the village of Sarverville, in Butler County, almost before any other venturesome settler had penetrated that far into the wilderness. He built there one of the earliest flour mills in the country, and the little settlement was first known as Sarver's Mill and the succeeding village retained the name of the founder of the place. It is probable that Benjamin Sarver (2) was born at Sarver's Mill, near which he acquired property, and left a number of descendants. The late John F. Sarver was born on the old Sarver homestead, in 1839, followed farming there for many years and later engaged in a mercantile business at Ekastown, where his death took place in 1904. Like his father and grandfather, he was a man of sterling character.

A. H. Sarver was reared on the homestead and attended school at Prospect, after which he followed school teaching for four years. He then engaged in the carriage business at Ekastown, and later was with the firm of Martincourt & Company, at Butler, for eight years. Still later he was manager for the Durant-Dorit Carriage Company of Flint, Michigan, for the district embraced by Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia. For the last seventeen years he has been manager in the same territory for the Brookline Manufacturing Company, and during the last year also for the Buick Motor Company, for the same district. He is the owner of the Washington Buggy Company, of Washington, Pennsylvania, which is under the management of his brother, D. K. Sarver, and Jacob Wyant. Mr. Sarver also owns a half-interest in the Diamond Automobile Company, of Pittsburg, and is also officially connected and personally interested in financial institutions.

In 1893, Mr. Sarver was married to Miss Oattie Pillow, and they have one child, Eleanor. Mr. Sarver is a member and a trustee of the First Presbyterian Church at Butler.

SUMNER B. BADGER, general merchant at Boydstown, Oakland Township, and formerly postmaster, was born August 29, 1865, in Brady Township, Butler County, Penna., and is a son of Thomas and Sarah (Anderson) Badger.

The Badger family has been established in Butler County for a great many years, it being the birthplace of Grandfather James Badger. He was the father of seven children, all of whom were born in Butler County, where many of them became people of more or less prominence.

Thomas Badger, father of Sumner B., was born in Slippery Rock Township, Butler County, where he lived until he was eight years old, at which time his father moved to Brady Township and on the home farm there he spent the remainder of his life, a period of seventy-one years, his death occurring on May 13, 1907. He married Sarah Anderson, whose mother, Rachel Anderson, was a daughter of Stephen McKinley, a close relative of the late President William McKinley. The Badger and Anderson families were doubly connected, Samuel W. Badger, a brother of Thomas, marrying Susan Anderson, a sister of Mrs. Thomas Badger. To Thomas and Sarah Badger were born eleven children, all but two of these surviving, the oldest and the youngest being deceased: Anderson, who died aged sixteen months; and C. C., who was a Cumberland Presbyterian minister, who died in December, 1904. The others are as follows: James, who lives at Wurttemberg, Lawrence County; Thomas J., who lives in Brady Township; Rachel, who is the wife of Andrew McClintock, lives at Ellwood City; Lizzie, who is the wife of Henry Young, resides also at Ellwood City; Martha, who is the wife of J. W. McKissick, the village blacksmith of Boydstown; Jennie, who is the wife of Peter Bowers; Sumner B.; David S., who resides in Lawrence County; and John, who lives in Concord Township, Butler County. The venerable mother, now in her seventy-sixth year, resides with one of her daughters.

Sumner B. Badger grew to manhood on the home farm in Brady Township and was educated in the public schools and West Sumbury Academy and was graduated from the latter institution in 1891. He had qualified himself so thoroughly that he then passed the State examination demanded for teachers and thus secured a permanent certificate. He began to teach in Lancaster Township and after one term there, taught two terms in Brady Township and five years in Concord Township, during three years of this period being also in a mercantile business at Troutman, under the firm name of Balsiger & Badger. In July, 1895, after selling his interest at Troutman to his partner, Mr. Badger came to Boydstown and in the same summer erected his present commodious building, which he utilizes both as a store and a dwelling. In October, 1895, he was appointed postmaster at this point and served until 1903, when Rural Mail Delivery, Route No. 2, was established, out from Butler.

Mr. Badger was married (first) June 27, 1893, to Miss Emma Z. Wick, who died February 22, 1899. She left two children: Lois P. and Ruth M. Mrs. Emma Wick was educated at Sunbury Academy and prior to her marriage was a teacher in the public schools. On September 15, 1908, he was married (second) to Miss Sadie Robb, who is a daughter of Christy Robb. Mrs. Badger is a cultured, educated lady and was a member of the same graduating class at the West Sunbury Academy, as Mr. Badger. She has also been a successful teacher, following her vocation in Clinton and Oakland Townships. Mr. Badger is an elder in the North Butler Presbyterian Church and for eight years has been superintendent of the Sunday School. In politics he is not active, although, at all times he is ready and willing to promote public movements which promise to contribute to the general welfare. He is an honorable business man.

JOHN W. KALTENBACH, Justice of the Peace at Renfrew, and one of Penn Township's prominent farmers, was born in Cranberry Township, Butler County, Penna., July 31, 1837, and is a son of Jacob and Katherine (Geiss) Kaltenbach.

The father of Mr. Kaltenbach was born in Baden, Germany, and came to America in 1832 and died of cholera in 1850. He learned the cabinetmaker's trade and worked for one year at Pittsburg, after which he moved to Harmony, in Butler County, and continued to work there at his trade until 1848. He died on a farm that he acquired in Connoquenessing Township. His five children were: Mrs. Catherine Moss of Allegheny; John W.; Mary, wife of Alexander Stevenson, of Allegheny; Jacob, residing on the old home place, and Margaret, deceased, who was the wife of John Newell. He was a worthy member of the German Lutheran Church and both he and wife were respected members of their community.

John W. Kaltenbach attended the Graham School in Connoquenessing Township and remained on the home farm until 1859, going then to Pittsburg, where he worked in a meat market until 1861, when he enlisted for service in the Civil War, entering Company K, Seventy-first Regiment, Penna. Volunteer Infantry. This service was prolonged to three years and eight months and during this long period Mr. Kaltenbach participated in twenty-two battles, escaping all injury except a slight wound at the second battle of Bull Run. He was a brave and fearless soldier and on every occasion did his fully duty. He is a member of the Union Veteran Legion at Butler.

After his return from the army, Mr. Kaltenbach embarked in a mercantile business at Petersville, where he continued for five years. In 1871 he came to his present farm which contains about 140 acres. It was then rough, neglected land, but all that state has long since passed away under his management, and he has ninety acres of it under a fine state of cultivation, while, for the last twenty-six years oil has been purchased here and eight wells are now pumping. His improvements are of a substantial character and the value of his place ranks with the best in Penn Township.

In 1866 Mr. Kaltenbach was married to Rachel Sauer, who is a daughter of Samuel Sauer, of Mercer County, and they have eight children, namely: Della May, wife of Harvey Smith of Connoquenessing Township; John H., of Scio, Ohio; Minnie B., wife of William C. Dietrich, who resides on the Kaltenbach farm; William H., who operates the oil well industry; Samuel and Montgomery, both residing at home, and Miles, who is an oil operator in West Virginia. Mr. Kaltenbach and wife belong to St. John's Reformed Church, in which he has been an elder for many years. In politics he is a Republican, with independent tendencies. His fellow citizens have testified to their esteem and confidence by electing him, at various times, to township offices, and he has accepted all except those of constable and supervisor. He is one of the oldest justices of the peace in Butler County in point of service, having held the office continuously for the past twenty-five years.

HERMAN SCHILLING, owner of a fine farm of 100 acres in Forward Township, Butler County, Penna., located about three and a half miles east of Evans City, on the Freeport road, is a representative of that sturdy German class who came to this country at an early period, with little or no means, and by dint of hard labor and careful saving made a home and accumulated a competency. He was born in Germany, September 23, 1836, and is a son of Lawrence and Margaret (Metz) Schilling, and grandson of John Schilling, who was a farmer and spent his entire life in his native land.

Lawrence Schilling was a boy of fifteen years when his father died, and it became necessary for him to assist in the support of the family. He learned the trade of a wagon maker, and conducted a shop in Germany until 1856, when he moved to America, locating near Evans City, Butler County, Penna., whither his son, Herman, had preceded him some two years. He rented a farm for about six months, then purchased of Hugh Wallace the farm on which the subject of this sketch now lives.

The place was but little cleared and was provided with a small log shanty, in which the family lived some years. He continued on this place all his days, dying in 1888, at the age of eighty-seven years. His wife preceded him to the grave some nine years, dying at the age of sixty-nine years. They were married in Germany, and were parents of three children: Christina, who never came to America, married John Heim and both are now deceased; Dorothy, who was the first of the family to move to America, the year of her arrival being 1853, located first at Pittsburg, where she married John Helm, and later moved to Evans City, Pennsylvania, where he carried on blacksmithing, and Herman, who is the youngest of the family.

Herman Schilling was reared to maturity in his native land and received fair educational training in the schools of that country. He assisted his father in the latter's shop until 1854, in which year he emigrated to America. After forty-nine days on the water, during which time they encountered storms and a rough sea, he arrived in New York City, thence made his way by rail to Pittsburg, Penna. From the latter point he made the journey in a peddler's wagon to Evans City, which was then a very small place. His first occupation there was hauling coal to the school houses for Martin Wahl, who had a coal bank, and for this work he received the paltry sum of $3.00 per month and his board. He continued for five months, saving most of his wages, and then worked for John Birmingham, a farmer located near Pittsburg, until the arrival of his parents in 1856. With them he settled on his present farm, which he started in to clear of its timber and brush, and in time placed it under a high state of cultivation. He helped to tear down the old log cabin which stood on the place and to erect the large frame house which replaced it and still stands in a good state of repair.

Upon the death of his father, Herman Schilling succeeded to the ownership of the farm, and is still actively engaged in its cultivation, following general farming.

Mr. Schilling was married on July 14, 1861, to Miss Matilda Schilling, who also was born in Germany, and was a daughter of Godfrey Schilling. She died February, 1906, at the age of sixty-six years. The following children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Schilling: Emma, who became the wife of John Horneffer, both now deceased, left two children who live with the subject of this sketch, Elizabeth and Lewis; George, who died in 1888, at the age of twenty-three years; Matilda, wife of William Miller, by whom she has four children, Elizabeth, Martha, Esther and Freeda; Lewis, who runs the home farm, married Freeda Burkert and has two children, Emma and Herman; and Elizabeth, who died at the age of twenty-six years, was the wife of Hugo Miller. Politically, Mr. Schilling is a Democrat. In religious attachment, he is a member of the Lutheran Church.

DAVID PORTER KELLY, formerly one of the best known and most highly respected residents of Bruin, Penna., died at his home in this place, on February 13, 1905, after a long, useful and exemplary life of sixty-nine years. He was born in Parker Township, Butler County, Penna., March 12, 1836, and was a son of David and Jane (Tweedy) Kelly.

The late David P. Kelly grew to man's estate in Parker Township and attended the district schools, acquiring a good education which he later supplemented by taking an active and intelligent interest in both public and local affairs. A large part of his life was given to his agricultural pursuits, which he carried on with the careful and thorough methods which insured success, but his time was also demanded by his fellow citizens who desired his judicious services in many public offices. At the time of his death he was serving as a member of the School Board of the borough of Bruin. In his political attitude he was a Prohibitionist, and on every occasion espoused the cause of temperance. For many years he was a ruling elder in the United Presbyterian Church at Fairview.

Mr. Kelly was twice married, (first) to Margaret McGarvey, who died October 17, 1872, leaving two children: Nancy J., who is deceased; and Salina M., who is the wife of Frank Black, a resident of Bruin. Mr. Kelly was married (second) on May 6, 1878, to Miss Sarah M. Glenn, who was born in Clay Township, Butler County, Penna. She is a daughter of John and Doreas (McElvain) Glenn. Her father accompanied his mother and brothers from Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, to Clay Township, Butler County, where his father had previously purchased land. Later John Glenn served as captain of a company in the War of 1812, and in subsequent years became a man of substance and a prominent citizen of Clay Township, serving many years as a justice of the peace. He died in 1874, when aged eighty-two years. One of his sons, Samuel Glenn, was a very prominent citizen of Butler County. He served in the Civil War as a member of Company G, One Hundred Thirty-seventh Regiment, Penna. Volunteer Infantry, and participated in the memorable battles of South Mountain, Antietam, Chancellorsville and Crampton Gap. Later he engaged in teaching school and was well known in educational circles and for three years was the able county superintendent of the schools of Butler County. He was a valued member of Dickson Post, Grand Army of the Republic, at West Sunbury.

Mrs. Kelly was carefully educated at the West Sunbury Academy, and was so apt a pupil and so receptive a student that when only seventeen years of age she secured a certificate entitling her to teach school, and she continued to teach for about twelve years, both in Butler and Venango Counties, and still recalls that as a very enjoyable period of her life. Mr. and Mrs. Kelly had four children, namely: Lucy H., who is deceased; Bessie W., who is the wife of Harvey Snow, of Petrolia; Ethel G., who resides with her mother at Bruin; and Bertha E., who is deceased. Mrs. Kelly is a member of the United Presbyterian Church at Fairview and is very active in both the Home and Foreign Missionary Societies of this body. Miss Ethel G. Kelly is possessed of musical talent and is a member of the church choir.

JOHN C. SAY, capitalist, and one of Butler's most active business men, is extensively engaged in the real estate business and is manager of the East Oakland Land Company, of which he was the organizer. Mr. Say belongs to a family that had reached the American colonies before the days of the Revolutionary War, and that has belonged to Butler County since the closing years of the Seventeenth Century. He was born at Crawford Corners, Butler County, Penna., May 31, 1858, and is a son of David and Abigail (Fletcher) Say.

David Say, father of John C. Say, was a son of James Say, who settled in the northern part of Butler County, prior to 1800. David Say was born in 1810 and became a man of large property. In his earlier years he was a drover and bought cattle in the western part of the State and drove them across the mountains, disposing of them in the East. For many years he was a large farmer and stockraiser. Five of his children still survive: David R., residing in Maryland; Thomas, residing in Clarion County; Mary A. (Wenner), residing in Butler; Elizabeth (Nenemaker), living in Venango County, and John C.

John C. Say was reared from infancy in Clarion County and there he first engaged in business, becoming early interested in lumber. For about twenty years he engaged in buying timber tracts in Clarion and Forest Counties and manufactured lumber, and after retiring from that industry conducted a store at Tylersburg for six years, and then came to Butler. For four years he carried on a retail lumber business, but for the past eight years he has devoted his attention to dealing in real estate, almost entirely handling his own property. He has been an important factor in improving the city, in the way of putting out trees, constructing sidewalks and clearing unsightly places, together with erecting high class houses, one example being the Monroe Hotel. He was the organizer of the East Oakland Land Company, which purchased the St. Paul's Orphan Home property, a tract of forty acres, on which this company is building fine brick residences of modern style and equipments. Since its organization, he has been general manager, secretary and treasurer. As a citizen he has been very active and has served usefully on the city council.

In 1882 Mr. Say was married to Miss Mary A. Starr, who was born in Venango County, and died October 19, 1908. They had three children: Martha J., who is the wife of T. C. Kerr, of Clarion County; William E., a contractor at Butler, married Anna Gould, and John H., a hardware merchant at Butler, married Jennie Wray, of Clarion County.

HENRY N. TROUTMAN, one of Butler's representative business men, having charge of the flour and feed department for H. J. Klingler & Company, is a native of Butler County, Pennsylvania, born in 1863.

Paul Troutman, father of Henry N., was born in Alsace-Lorraine, France, where he remained until 1855, when he came to America and to Butler County. He became an extensive and successful operator in the oil fields and was sent as an operator to Oil Creek during the first excitement. Later he entered into a mercantile business and for fifteen years conducted a store at Buena Vista. He was a great traveler and crossed the Atlantic Ocean many times. His death took place in 1903. He married Caroline Wolf, who still survives.

Henry N. Troutman was educated in the public schools of Butler County, the North Washington Academy and the Ohio State University, leaving the latter in order to assist his father in his store. Later Mr. Troutman was in the employ of R. S. Nichols & Company and of S. G. Purvis & Company, large lumber firms, and for the past fourteen years he has held his present position with the H. J. Klingler Company. He has a wide acquaintance throughout the county and handles much country trade.

In 1885 Mr. Troutman was married to Miss Ella B. Orris, of Baldwin, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and they have the following children: Edward R., Mamie, Carl, Pauline, Hazel, John, Geraldine and Harold. The eldest daughter is the wife of W. A. Spielman, a resident of Apollo, Armstrong County. Mr. Troutman and family belong to St. Mark's German Lutheran Church. He is a member of the A. O. U. W.

JAMES MICHAEL McNALLY, Justice of the Peace at Lyndora and a well known resident of Butler County, was born in Rush Township, Monroe County, New York, December 19, 1874, and is a son of James Michael and Elizabeth A. (Hayes) McNally.

The father of Mr. McNally was born in Southern Vermont, where his father had settled after serving in the War of 1812. He was a native of Ireland. James McNally was a blacksmith by trade. When aged forty-two years he turned his attention to farming, settling at that time on a farm in Rush Township, Monroe County, New York, and followed agricultural pursuits until the close of his life. He died July 17, 1888, aged sixty-two years. He was a Democrat in politics and he served in the office of justice of the peace in Rush Township. He married a daughter of John Hayes, of Albany, New York, and they had two children: James Michael and Mary, the latter of whom is the wife of Sidney Downs, of Toronto, Canada.

James Michael McNally obtained his education in the public schools of Monroe County, at East Henrietta Academy and St. Bernice Theological Seminary, at Rochester, New York, graduating from the latter institution in 1889. In the following summer he started a dancing school at Perry Lake, New York, which he continued for three years, following which he conducted a dancing academy at Buffalo, for two more years. In 1897 he went to Pittsburg and there entered the employ of the Pressed Steel Car Company as air brake inspector and remained four years and then, in the same capacity, came to Butler, with the Standard Steel Car Company. Mr. McNally continued with this concern until May 4, 1908, when he assumed the duties of his present office. Mr. McNally is an active politician and a loyal worker for the Democratic party.

In early manhood, Mr. McNally married Miss Sarah Van Dyke, who is a daughter of Jackson Van Dyke, of Marion Township. They have three children: Mary, Margaret and James. Mr. and Mrs. McNally are members of St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church. He belongs to the Independent Order of Foresters, of which he is chief ranger of Court No. 4545, and also to the Knights of St. George.

JOSEPH ASH, who resides on a farm of forty-four acres in Forward Township, Butler County, Penna., is a well known citizen of the community and has had a varied experience in the field of business. He was born on the old home farm in Forward Township, September 29, 1832, and is a son of Sylvester and Martha (Boggs) Ash, and grandson of Joseph Ash.

Joseph Ash, the grandfather, was born in Wales and early in life came to the United States, settling in the woods of Forward Township, Butler County, Penna., where he acquired 200 acres of uncleared land. In the early days, when Indians were yet numerous in this section and the dangers many, he carried the mail from Pittsburg to Franklin on foot. He cleared a small part of his farm, but died when comparatively young, leaving his widow and their children in poor circumstances. Four of their children grew to maturity and lived to ripe old ages, namely: Rachel, Elizabeth, Isaac and Sylvester.

Sylvester Ash was but five years old when his father died, and it became necessary for him and his brother to go to work at very youthful ages, and notwithstanding this strain they both grew to be men of large stature and great physical strength. He aided in clearing the home farm, and came into possession of 100 acres of it. He farmed and followed carpentering during all his active days, and died in 1883 at the age of seventy-three years, having spent his entire life in Butler County. He was survived some eight years by his widow, who in maiden life was Martha Boggs; she was born in Evans City, and was a daughter of Robert Boggs, one of the very earliest settlers of the community. They were parents of five children who grew up, namely: Joseph; Isaac, a lawyer of Oil City, Penna.; Robert; Anderson, who is on the old home farm, and Elizabeth, widow of Lewis Gansz.

Isaac Ash was reared to manhood on the home farm and attended school in the primitive log school-house which was located about a mile and a half from his home. The pathway lay through almost unbroken woods, and it was the custom of the older boys to take their axes and cut wood for old Prof. McMillen, to be burned in the old fashioned fire place at one end of the room. After his marriage, Mr. Ash went to Evans City and opened a general store, which he conducted for four years, then sold out to his brother-in-law, Milton White. He had, in the meantime, come into possession of a farm of sixty-six acres in Forward Township, and on this he located, clearing and farming it. He learned the trade of a carpenter under his father, with whom he worked many years, and they erected most of the farm-houses and buildings of the neighborhood at that period. Later he went into the lightning rod business, which he followed successfully for thirty-two years, rodding some 3,600 buildings in this section of Pennsylvania, many of the rods being in use and good condition at the present day. Retiring from that business he purchased a valuable tract of forty-four acres in Forward Township, located along the traction line about twelve miles southwest of Butler, where he now lives and engages in farming. He cleared the place, on which he operated a sawmill, cutting up over 900 logs.

Mr. Ash was first married to Susan Gansz, who died about one year later, and he formed a second union with Susan E. White. They expect to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary in June, 1909. Seven children were born to them, three of whom died young. Those living are: Ada, wife of Dr. F. V. Brooks of Washington, D. C.; Jessie, wife of W. A. Pearce; Josephine, wife of W. D. Riggs, and Catherine, wife of George Starkey, a banker of Washington, D. C. Religiously, they are Methodists.

CHARLES BAUER, a leading farmer of Summit Township, resides on his valuable and well improved farm of eighty-three acres, which is located six and one-half miles east of Butler, lying on the Kit-tanning road, with the dividing line from Clearfield Township running just east of his residence. He was born August 27, 1856, in Jefferson Township, Butler County, Penna., and is a son of Frederick and Hannah (Krumpe) Bauer.

The parents of Mr. Bauer were both born in Germany and came to America as children. Frederick Bauer owned a fifty-acre farm in Jefferson Township, but traded it and later bought a farm situated directly across the road from the one on which Charles Bauer resides, this being when the latter was about twelve years of age. Frederick Bauer was a man of considerable property and good business judgment, during his active years, and both he and wife still survive, residing at Butler, the former having reached his seventy-seventh year and the latter her sixty-ninth.

Charles Bauer purchased his farm from his father and with the exception of a few years during which he engaged in teaming at Pittsburg, he has given attention to farming and threshing. For twenty-three consecutive years he engaged in threshing, for the first three years by horse power, but for twenty later years he used a steam thresher and kept his machinery up to date. When Mr. Bauer bought his farm the improvements consisted of a log house and barn, but he soon tore them down and put up new and substantial buildings, completing the comfortable residence in the summer of 1895. He has an excellent property and cultivates his land with care and success. Mr. Bauer has other interests in addition to his agricultural ones. From 1893 until 1906 he devoted a part of his time to canvassing for the sale of the McCormick Harvesting machinery and met with excellent results. For some five years he has put in a part of his time in selling commercial fertilizer for the American Agricultural Chemical Company, and for the last nine months he has also been interested with a home company in operating for oil. This company has completed one dry hole and two small producing oil wells.

Mr. Bauer married Mina Krumpe, who is a daughter of Charles Krumpe. She was born and reared in Clinton Township, Butler County. They have had three children, Beulah, the youngest, dying when eight years of age. The two other daughters are Nora and Clara, the latter of whom lives at home while the former is the wife of J. F. Miller and has one son, Carl. Mr. Bauer and family belong to the Lutheran Church at Butler.

J. GEORGE ARMBRUSTER, one of the well known business men of Butler, where he is engaged in a general paint contracting business, was born in Germany in 1860 and remained in his native land until he was twenty-three years of age.

When Mr. Armbruster came to America in 1883 and located at Butler, he was already a capable workman in the trade which he had thoroughly learned in Germany, and shortly afterward he entered into a general contracting business in which he continues to be active. From the first he has taken a hearty interest in the prosperity of the place in which he has established his home, has invested in property and has so gained the confidence of the residents of the Fifth Ward as to be their representative in the city council. From boyhood he has been greatly interested in horticulture and has devoted much study to this subject and has many practical ideas concerning it which would be profitable to the horticultural organizations if presented to them. Mr. Armbruster also possesses the love of music, which is a national German inheritance, and for eighteen years he has been a member of the church choir at Butler.

In 1887 Mr. Armbruster was married to Miss Susie Andre, who was born and reared in Butler County, and they have three children: Otto, Ernest and Helen. With his family, Mr. Armbruster belongs to the congregation of St. Mark's Lutheran Church and served for a number of years as a member of the official board.

ALBERT E. BUTLER

He has trade membership in the Master Painters' Association of Pennsylvania.

ALBERT E. BUTLER, one of the prominent oil producers of Parker Township, residing near Bruin, Pennsylvania, was born at Kittanning, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, September 1, 1861, and is a son of Jesse and Mary (Oaks) Butler (now deceased), June 13, 1907.

Jesse Butler was born near Meadville, Pennsylvania. He came to Butler County in 1870 and was one of the pioneer oil men of Parker Township and during his ten years of residence here was an extensive producer. In 1880 he removed to Westmoreland County and lived there until his death. He was twice married, the mother of Albert E. being a native of Indiana County, Pennsylvania. The children of Jesse Butler are: William J., residing at Pittsburg; John D., formerly of Cherryvale, Kansas (now deceased); Albert E.; Ira E., residing at New Kensington, Pennsylvania; Harry, residing at Pittsburg; Richard H., who died November 3, 1908, lived in Westmoreland County; and Lulu, who is the wife of J. A. McKallip, of Leachburg, Pennsylvania.

Albert E. Butler accompanied his father to Butler County in 1870 and he has devoted himself almost exclusively to the oil business ever since, although he owns some farming land in Parker Township, on which he resides. He has taken a very active part in political life and as a delegate attended the Republican State Convention which was held at Harrisburg. He seeks no political office for himself, but is a loyal worker for his party and friends.

On June 8, 1881, Mr. Butler was married to Miss Nellie Larkin, of Cleveland, Ohio, and they have two children: Lulu, who is the widow of Dr. Frank Hazlett, late of Butler; and Regla M. Both daughters reside at home. Mr. Butler is a Thirty-second Degree Mason. He has been more than usually successful in his oil investments and is numbered with the oil capitalists of this section.

C. FERD HYLE, a prominent undertaker and furniture dealer of Evans City, Pennsylvania, is a well known resident of the community in which he has lived all his life. He was born in Harmony, Penna., June 14, 1874, and is a son of Jacob and Margaret (Dambach) Hyle.

Jacob Hyle was born in Muddy Creek Township, Butler County, and is a son of Martin Hyle, who was a native of Germany and settled in the woods of Butler County, Penna., at a very early period. This old pioneer was the father of the following family of children: Henry, John, Martin, Philip, George, Jacob, Christine, Margaret, Catherine and Mary, deceased. Jacob, father of the subject of this sketch, was born in 1840, and spent his boyhood days on the home farm. He later purchased a farm of his own in Muddy Creek Township, on which he lived until 1873, then moved to Harmony and engaged in the hotel business for a period of ten years. At the end of that time he went to Wampum, Penna., where he continued the hotel business for six years. He was next located at Beaver Falls for eight years, and in 1892 embarked in the hotel business in Evans City. After a period of four years he went to California and became an orange raiser and shipper, following that business until his retirement from business activity in 1906. He still resides in that State. His wife, Margaret Dambach in maiden life, died in 1888. They had two children, namely: H. Pierce of Youngstown, Ohio, and C. Ferd.

C. Ferd Hyle lived at home until his marriage in 1893, and received his education in the public schools. He then went into the furniture and undertaking business with his father-in-law, Henry Young, a pioneer in that business in Evans City. They continued in partnership until 1905, when Mr. Hyle started into business for himself. His residence and business are located on Pittsburg Street, and he commands the patronage of the people throughout the vicinity of Evans City. He has been very active in the affairs of the city, and since the organization of the John Irwin Fire Company in 1892 has served as secretary except for one month. A. S. Pfeifer is chief, E. S. Conkel is captain, Albert Lutz is president and assistant chief, and George Fehl is treasurer of that organization.

Mr. Hyle was joined in marriage September 27, 1893, with Miss Mame Young, and they have a son, Victor P. In political affiliation, he is a Democrat, and a member of the School Board. Fraternally he is a member of Harmony Lodge, No. 429, F. & A. M.; the Chapter at Butler; Knights Templar at Greentree, and took the Thirty-second degree at Pittsburg. He also is a member of Syria Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., at Pittsburg. In religious attachment, he is a member of St. John's Reformed Church.

JOHN FERGUSON, general farmer and reliable citizen of Middlesex Township, where he resides on a finely developed and improved estate of over 100 acres, was born in Pine Township, Allegheny County, Penna., May 30, 1846, and is a son of John and Mary (Duff) Ferguson.

The father of Mr. Ferguson was born in County Down, Ireland, in 1807 and came to America in 1833, accompanied by his wife and their one child. From New York he brought his family to Pittsburg and several years later to what is now Muddy Creek Township, Butler County, where he followed farming for some years. Before the birth of his son John, he removed to Allegheny County, Pine Township, and from there in 1851 to Allegheny County, West Deer Township, which remained his home until the time of his death, June 28, 1891. In his first years in political life in America he was affiliated with the Democratic party, but in his later years connected himself with the Republican party. Six children were born to him, namely: Eliza, who is the widow of William Young, resides at Youngstown, Ohio; Mary, deceased, was the wife of William Marshall; Nancy, deceased, married William Laughlin, who was killed while serving in the Civil War; John; Jennie, who is the widow of John Scott, of New Kensington, and Thomas, who resides in Allegheny County.

John Ferguson remained on the home farm until his marriage. In 1868 he bought his present property from the McGonigles, who were early settlers, and kept on acquiring land until he owned 300 acres. In 1907 he divided his property with his sons, but retains over 100 acres for his own use. For many years his farming operations have been extensive. He has made dairying a feature also and still keeps fifteen cows in order to produce the fine butter which he has long sold to private customers at Pittsburg. After Mr. Ferguson took possession of this place he had considerable timber to clear off. His place is attractive on account of its trim, well kept appearance and the substantial and appropriate buildings which he has erected, and here he enjoys life with the content that comes after honest effort.

On September 15, 1868, Mr. Ferguson was married to Nancy Ellen Crawford, who is a daughter of Robert Crawford, who formerly resided in what is now Richland Township, Allegheny County. Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson have had ten children, the survivors being: Harry, who lives in Middlesex Township; Robert, who resides at Butler; Mary, who is the wife of John Wilson, of Middlesex Township; John, who lives in Middlesex Township; Emma Eliza, who is the wife of Frank Harbison, of Bakerstown; Thomas, who lives at Tulsa, Oklahoma; Roy C., still remaining at home, and Clara, who is the wife of George Harbison, of Bakerstown. Mr. Ferguson with his family belongs to the Bakerstown Presbyterian Church, of which he was a trustee for twenty-one consecutive years. He is also a member of the Session.

In his political as in other views, Mr. Ferguson is level-headed. He is not a politician in the general meaning of the term, but he is identified with the Republican party and has held a number of the township offices, now being road supervisor. He has always been interested in educational matters and for fifteen successive years served as school director. His fellow citizens know him as a man of sterling character and they respect and admire him and defer to his judgment in large degree in public matters.

WILLIAM EDGAR BROWN, a native and life-long resident of Butler County, is one of the representative business men of Harrisville, where he is engaged in conducting a meat market. He was born June 18, 1855, in this village and is a son of William P. and Isabella (Leech) Brown, and a grandson of Ebenezer Brown.

Ebenezer Brown was one of the very earliest settlers of Butler County, having come here with his brother James from Huntington County, Pennsylvania. They located on a tract of 600 acres in Mercer Township and engaged in general farming here the remainder of their lives. Ebenezer and his brother James married the Porter sisters, their father owning the adjoining farm. Ebenezer died on this farm at the age of sixty-seven years, and was the father of the following children: Alexander, Jane, William P., Samuel, Ebenezer, John, Elsie and Joseph.

William P. Brown, father of the subject of this sketch, was born on his father's farm in Mercer Township and at an early age learned the cabinetmaker's trade at Pittsburg and Philadelphia. In about 1837 he came to Harrisville and engaged in conducting a cabinet and undertaking establishment, in which he was very successful. His death occurred in 1882, and his wife died in 1859, aged thirty-nine years. He was the father of six children by his first wife, namely: Charles M., elsewhere mentioned in this work; Harriet J., deceased; Eveline, deceased; Robert T.; Margaret, deceased, and William Edgar. Mr. Brown was married secondly to Sarah Van Dike. Mr. Brown was in politics, first a Whig and afterwards a Republican, as well as an ardent supporter of the temperance cause. He was opposed to slavery and helped many a negro in making his way through the states to Canada.

William Edgar Brown passed his boyhood days in attending school and also in his father's cabinet shop, where he learned the trade. About 1877 he purchased and located on a farm, following that occupation until 1896, when he disposed of his farming interests and on November 19th opened a meat market in Harrisville. Here he has been successfully engaged in the market business since that time. On May 31, 1877, he was united in marriage with Rebecca N. Braham, a daughter of William P. Braham, and they became the parents of three children, namely: Leigh W., residing in New Mexico; Carrie May, an instructor in the Public Schools, and Frank, who died aged three years. In politics Mr. Brown is an adherent of the Republican party and the religious connection of the family is with the United Presbyterian Church of Harrisville.

HIRAM C. BRICKER, proprietor of the Butler Hide and Fur Company, which has commodious quarters suitable for their extensive business at Nos. 104-106-108 Miller Street, is identified also with other important interests in this section. He was born May 10, 1865, in Buffalo Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of the late John Bricker. The Bricker family was founded in this section of Pennsylvania in pioneer days and both grandfather and father of Mr. Bricker were natives and prominent agriculturists in Butler County. John Bricker also conducted a blacksmith business for many years.

Hiram C. Bricker remained on the home farm in Buffalo Township until he was twenty-two years old, giving assistance to his father after leaving school. He learned the blacksmith business and when he went to Butler, worked for two and one-half years in the shops of the Ball Engine Works. After this he went on the road in the interest of H. P. Schultz, of Ravenna, Ohio, and traveled until 1902, when he established his present enterprise at Butler. In 1904 he erected the present large building and the business continues to yearly expand. Mr. Bricker is also interested in farming and in the oil industry and in addition owns and operates a phospho-plate factory. He has originated and established his business enterprises, to a large degree, and his prominence and reliability in the city's commercial circles is well founded.

In 1886 Mr. Bricker was married to Miss Eugenia Doyle, of Freeport, and they have three children: William Curtis, who is associated with his father, and Agnes and Charlotte. Mr. and Mrs. Bricker enjoy membership in the Methodist Episcopal Church. He belongs to the fraternal order of Woodmen of the World and also to the United Commercial Travelers' Association.

NICHOLAS ANDREW DOMBART, M. D., a well known member of the medical profession of Butler County, is one of the progressive citizens of Evans City. He was born on the old family homestead in Forward Township, Butler County, December 23, 1879, is a son of George and Mary (Hartung) Dombart, and a grandson of John Dombart.

John Dombart, the grandfather, was born in Hessen, Germany, and some time subsequent to his marriage to Margaret Fetch, who was born in Bavaria, Germany, came to the United States with his wife and located in Adams Township, Butler County, and were among the early settlers. They later moved to Forward Township, where their deaths occurred. They were parents of seven children, namely: John; William J.; George; Katherine, now deceased, who was the wife of August Griesbach; Margaret, who is the wife of George Householder; Anna, who is the wife of B. Fox, and Barbara, who is the wife of John Winner.

George Dombart was born in Adams Township and when five years old moved to Forward Township and spent his boyhood days on the home farm, which he helped to clear, experiencing many of the hardships of pioneer days. Upon his father's death he succeeded into the ownership of the home farm, which contained 106 acres of valuable land. There he farmed and resided until 1890, when he moved to Evans City, where he now resides in a fine home he erected near the Lutheran Church, but he still operates the farm in Forward Township. He was united in marriage with Mary Hartung, who was born in Adams Township, Butler County, and is a daughter of Nicholas Hartung. To this union were born eight children, as follows: Nicholas Andrew, whose name heads this sketch; Louisa; Anastus G.; Myrtle; Edward, Harvey, and two who died in infancy.

Dr. N. A. Dombart was about ten years old when his parents located in Evans City, and he there completed the course prescribed in the public schools, graduating in 1895. He took a short course at Slippery Rock, and in 1897 matriculated at the Western University of Pennsylvania, now known as the University of Pittsburg. He was graduated with the class of 1901, with the degree of M. D., being one of the youngest members of the class. During his four years there he did interne work in the Penn Hospital of Pittsburg, and upon leaving was well qualified to at once enter into active practice of his profession. He successfully took the State examination in December, 1901, and on January 1st, following, opened an office for practice, on Pittsburg Street, where he still continues, his residence also being on that street. In addition to a large private practice, he is surgeon for the Pittsburg, Butler, Harmony & New Castle Electric Railroad, and official medical examiner for the United States Marine Corps in this section. He is a member of the Butler County Medical Society.

January 8, 1903, Doctor Dombart was united in marriage with Alberta Wilson, a daughter of Ex-County Commissioner George W. Wilson. Fraternally, he is a member of the Knights of Pythias, Knights of the Maccabees and Modern Woodmen of America, all of Evans City. In religious attachment, he is a member of the Reformed Church. He is a Democrat in politics, and is treasurer of the School Board, of which he was president during the year 1907. He is also a member and trustee of the John A. Irvine Fire Company of Evans City.

C. J. BRANDBERG, a member of the firm of Kesselman & Company, manufacturers of oil well drilling tools, at Butler, is a representative business man of this city, where he has resided for more than twenty years. He was born May 27, 1847, in Sweden, and was twenty-six years of age when he came to America.

Mr. Brandberg settled first at Dunkirk, New York, and for three years worked as a blacksmith in the Dunkirk Iron Works. From there he came to Pennsylvania and for seven years was in the employ of the Gibbs & Steret Manufacturing Company, at Titusville. From there he went to Petrolia and worked there for three years for the firm of Ireland & Hughes, and one year at Pittsburg, for the same firm. In 1887 he came to Butler and entered into partnership with William Kesselman as a member of Kesselman & Company. Both members of the firm are practical workmen and their business has been continually enlarged during the past twenty years and in addition to their Butler shops they have a large plant at Parkersburg, Virginia.

In 1878, at Titusville, Mr. Brandberg was married to Miss Lydia Deitrich and they have two children: Guy A., who is a physician at Butler; and Mabel, who resides at home. Mr. Brandberg is a member of the Second Presbyterian Church at Butler.

JAMES FREE McKEE, justice of the peace at Prospect and one of Franklin Township's representative citizens, is also a veteran of the great Civil War, in which he faithfully served his country for nearly three years. He was born near Crawford's Mills, Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, September 8, 1833, and is a son of William and Hannah (Postlethwaite) McKee.

David McKee, the grandfather of James F., was one of the earliest pioneers of Westmoreland County, and was also a soldier in the Revolutionary War. As early as 1774 he came to Westmoreland County, from Scotland, and secured a tract of land on which he made a small clearing, also putting up a cabin. Times were too unsettled, however, the Revolutionary War soon developing, and David McKee returned to the eastern part of the state, where he had formerly resided for at least a short period, and before he returned to his land in 1795, he had been a soldier in the Patriot army. In that year he came again to Westmoreland County with the forces sent out to quell the whiskey insurrection, and never returned again to the east, his family joining him in about 1800. In that year he built the first saw-mill at the settlement later known as Crawford's Mills, but died three years later.

William McKee, father of James F. McKee, was born in 1792, at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and from 1800 was reared in Westmoreland County, where he followed an agricultural life. He was well known all through Allegheny Township, which he served in local offices. He married a daughter of John Postlethwaite, who was a Huguenot refugee, and of their eight children, seven grew to maturity, as follows: John, David and Nancy, all now deceased; Mary, who lives in Otterdale County, Minnesota, and is the widow of William Wilson; Margaret, who is deceased; James F.; and Sarah Jane, also deceased, who was the wife of Robert S. Dinsmore. The parents of this family were members of what is now known as the Apollo Presbyterian Church, in which the father was an elder.

James F. McKee prepared himself for educational work in the township schools, and in a local academy. In 1852 he began to teach and was thus employed more or less continuously until 1892, when he taught his last term, his pupils being Metlakahtla Indians, in Alaska, in which country he lived during 1891 and 1892. In the intervals of teaching he engaged in farming, in different sections, and in 1888 he came to Franklin Township, where his farm of thirty acres is situated. In August, 1862, Mr. McKee enlisted for service in the Civil War, becoming a member of Company C, One Hundred Thirty-ninth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and was discharged in June, 1865, during the larger part of this period being attached to the Signal Corps. He is past commander of John H. Randolph Post, Grand Army of the Republic, at Prospect.

Mr. McKee was married (first) to Mary Ann McMahan, who died in 1871, aged thirty-five years. She was a daughter of Robert McMahan, a resident of Williams County, Ohio. She was survived by one daughter: Susan Elizabeth, who is the wife of Charles B. Wiard, residing at De Soto, Kansas. Mr. McKee was married (secondly) to Miss Mary Ann Jones, of Prospect. He and his wife are members of the Prospect Presbyterian Church. In national campaigns he votes with the Republican party, but in local affairs is an Independent. From 1892 until 1897 he served as justice of the peace and was again elected in 1907. He has also been auditor of Prospect.

WILLIAM J. BURTON, Justice of the Peace and general farmer in Penn Township, was born in Slippery Rock Township, Lawrence County, Penna., October 18, 1843, and is a son of Thomas and Mary (Barnes) Burton.

Thomas Burton, father of William J., was born in Beaver County, Penna., June 12, 1799, and died December 24, 1883. His father, also Thomas Burton, was a native of County Down, Ireland, and came to Beaver County as one of the very early settlers. The second Thomas Burton was a farmer through his active life. In 1812 he moved to what is now Lawrence County and from there, in 1870, to Butler and in 1878, to Penn Township, where his death occurred. He was a prominent Republican and served as auditor and as judge of elections while living in Slippery Rock Township. He married a daughter of Thomas Barnes, a resident of Mercer County, and eight of their family of ten children reached maturity. Nancy, deceased, was the wife of Conrad Cline; Mrs. Mary Young, deceased; Thomas A., deceased; Eliza Jane, residing at Beaver Falls; John and Margaret, both deceased; Mrs. Martha Small, residing at St. Charles, Madison County, Iowa; Mrs. Sarah Young, residing at New Castle; Susan, deceased; and William J. The parents of the above family were members of the United Presbyterian Church, in which the father served as a trustee.

William J. Burton secured an excellent common school education and later taught school in Neshannock Township, going from the school room into the army. He served for ten months in Company I, Sixth Regiment, Penna. Heavy Artillery, and returned safely although often in danger of life and liberty. He resumed farming on the homestead and continued there until the spring of 1869, when he went to Millbrook, Mercer County, where he engaged in a mercantile business for a year before removing it to Butler, where he carried it on for five more years. In the spring of 1876 he started into farming in Butler Township, but three years later came to Penn Township and in December, 1887, he bought his present farm of 114 acres. He has all under cultivation with the exception of thirty acres in timber, and produces corn, oats, wheat, hay and potatoes.

Mr. Burton was married in Penn Township to Miss Ella E. Bartley, who is a daughter of Williamson Bartley, and they have had eight children, namely: John P., deceased; Mimmie, who is the wife of W. S. Douthett, residing in Forward Township; Cora, who is the wife of Harry Wible, residing at Sharon; Lina E., deceased; and Ola M., Thomas W., Martha Jane and Elmer C., all at home. Mr. Burton and family belong to the Shiloh United Presbyterian Church.

In politics, Mr. Burton is staunch in his Republicanism and he has held almost all of the township offices. He has been a justice of the peace for the past eight years and still has two years to serve. He is one of Penn Township's representative citizens. He has been an active member of the Grand Army Post at Butler for a number of years.

T. H. BROWN, a representative citizen of Butler, serving in the City Council as representative from the First Ward, is identified with a number of the business interests of this section. He was born March 11, 1858, at Hazel Green, Grant County, Wisconsin, where he was reared and educated.

In 1872 Mr. Brown entered the employ of the Brady's Bend Iron Company, at Brady's Bend, Armstrong County, and one year later he went to Fairmount, Clarion County, where he was one of the first men to be employed by the Fairmount Coal Company, with which he continued until 1876, when he came to the Butler oil fields. Since September, 1881, he has been in the employ of the Standard Oil Company, United Pipe Line Division of N. T. Co., in which he has capably and faithfully filled a number of positions and now holds the important one of gauger. His duties require a large part of his time to be spent at Butler. At different times he has become interested and invested in other enterprises, an important one being the Sligo Coal and Coke Company of Clarion County, of which he is secretary and a director.

In 1884 Mr. Brown was married to Miss Anna E. Stone, who is a daughter of Abraham Stone, of Chicora, Pennsylvania, and they have two children: Fannie E., who married H. E. Goodrich, who is with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, at Pittsburgh; and Zetti I. Mr. and Mrs. Brown are members of the Second Presbyterian Church. Mr. Brown is active in church affairs and for four years served as superintendent of the Sabbath school at Zeno Glade Run.

As a citizen, Mr. Brown has been usefully active and as councilman has applied to public affairs the keenness of business perception which has advanced his private interests, and has consistently supported every effort of the official body to advance the general welfare, aside from any desire for political preferment. He is identified with a number of fraternal organizations; is a member of the Knights of Pythias and the Modern Woodmen of America; is a Royal Arch Mason and with the other members of his family, belongs to the Eastern Star.

DAVID ROBERT MORROW, who has been identified with various branches of the oil business throughout his active business career, is foreman of the Midland Division of the South Penn Oil Company, at Evans City, Penna. The plant was formerly operated by the Forest Oil Company, which, in 1902, was taken over by the South Penn Oil Company. Mr. Morrow located in Evans City in 1903, and assumed the duties of his present position, and has twelve men under his direction in the local yard. The plant covers ten acres in the village, and he has under his management a large number of producing wells. He was the first foreman of this division, and has given evidence of unusual ability in the discharge of his duties.

Mr. Morrow was born in Indiana County, Penna., August 21, 1851, and is a son of David and Margaret (Lytle) Morrow. The paternal grandfather was a native of Ireland, and upon coming to the United States located in Indiana County, Pennsylvania, where he followed farming.

David Morrow, father of the subject of this sketch, was born in Indiana County, and was there reared to maturity. He was the owner of a good farm which he operated until his death, which occurred in 1851, prior to the birth of David R. Morrow. He married Margaret Lytle, who also was born in Indiana County, and is a daughter of Robert Lytle, who came to this country from Ireland. She still resides in her native county at the advanced age of eighty-six years. Mr. and Mrs. Morrow became parents of five children, as follows: Jennie; Thomas; Dr. John W., a practicing physician of Marchand, Indiana; Catherine, wife of Jessie Williamson; and David Robert.

David R. Morrow was reared on the home farm, and notwithstanding the fact that she was left a widow with five children to care for, his mother gave him good school advantages, he attending the public schools and the academy at Dayton, Penna. In 1868, he went to the oil fields of Venango County, Penna., where he was employed as pumper one year. He then went into the pipe line business, helping to lay the first line from Pitthold to Coriopolis, and in 1876 entered the producing department of the Standard Oil Company at Bradford, continuing there until 1903, the year which marked his removal to Evans City.

Mr. Morrow was married July 6, 1874, to Miss Clara Cochran, a daughter of Samuel Cochran, and they have a son, Harry Edward, who lives at McKee's Rocks, Penna. The latter was united in marriage with Miss Gertrude McFarland, and they have one daughter, Grace. David R. Morrow is a member of Bradford Lodge, No. 411, I. O. O. F., and in political affiliation is a Republican. He was reared in the United Presbyterian faith.

A. E. REIBER, president of the Guaranty Safe Deposit and Trust Company, of Butler, and also identified with many other of the city's successful business enterprises, is a leading member of the Butler bar and in 1890, was elected to the office of district attorney on the Democratic ticket. He was born at Butler in 1864, and is a son of the late Martin Reiber.

Martin Reiber was a native of Germany and was one of the early leading business citizens of Butler for many years. He married Mary Yetter and they had a family of eight children, seven of whom still survive.

A. E. Reiber was born and reared at Butler and was primarily educated in her public schools. Later he graduated from Witherspoon Academy and then entered the University of Princeton, where he graduated B.A., in 1882. Immediately he began the study of law in the office of Attorney T. C. Campbell, and in 1885 was admitted to the bar, and since has acquired a large clientele. He is a member of the Bar Association and is a practitioner in the Supreme Court of the State.

In 1897 Mr. Reiber was married to Miss Florence Smith, who is a daughter of Rev. E. O. Smith, and they have two children: Marten A. and Mary Elizabeth. Mr. Reiber and family are members of the First English Lutheran Church at Butler, and he is serving on its official board. Socially, he is a member of the Country Club.

WILLIAM C. STOOPS, a prominent dairyman and farmer of Franklin Township, resides on his well-improved farm of 120 acres, on which he successfully carries on his agricultural enterprises. He was born in Butler Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, July 21, 1869, and is a son of William and Rebecca Jane (Rose) Stoops.

William Stoops, father of William C., was born October 2, 1821, in Cherry Township, about two miles above Sunbury, and was a son of Philip and Elizabeth (Vanderlin) Stoops, the former of whom, a blacksmith and farmer in Cherry Township, lived to the age of ninety years and the latter to the age of eighty. William Stoops devoted his life mainly to agriculture but he had many other interests, in his younger days teaching school, later serving bravely in the War of the Rebellion and subsequently filling public offices with fidelity and efficiency. On September 4, 1861, he enlisted in the Federal Army, entering Company H, One Hundred and Second Regiment, Penna. Volunteer Infantry, and at the battle of Fair Oaks, on May 31, 1862, he received so severe an injury that after confinement in the Douglas Hospital at Washington City for three months, he was honorably discharged August 30, 1862. He returned to Cherry Township and in the following year was elected prothonotary and then moved to Butler, where he lived during his term of office. Later he purchased a farm in Butler Township which is now owned by William Barnhart, on which he resided for twenty years. In 1887 he moved on the farm now owned and operated by his son, William C., and there he died August 22, 1892. In politics he was a Republican and while living in Butler Township served as school director and as justice of the peace.

William Stoops was married (first) to Sarah Cochran and they had seven children, namely: Ocilla, now deceased, who was the wife of Dr. S. A. Johnson, of Butler; Philip Dexter, who is a Presbyterian clergyman and principal of a school in Idaho; Clarinda, now deceased, who was the wife of Josiah Allen; Paulina, now deceased, who was the second wife of Josiah Allen; Jennie, who married Rev. Newton E. Clemenson, and lives at Logan, Utah; and Serelda R., now deceased, who was the wife of E. W. Layman. On September 28, 1868, William Stoops was married (second) to Rebecca J. Rose, who was a daughter of John Rose, of Center Township. She was born December 8, 1832. Three children were born to this marriage. William C., Mary Lillian, who is the wife of Daniel G. Brunermer, of Connoquenessing Township; and Eva Valeria, who married Edward Watson, and resides at Isle. William Stoops and wife were members of the United Presbyterian Church in which he served as an elder for twenty years.

William C. Stoops was educated in the public schools and at Prospect Academy, and was graduated at the latter institution in 1892, following which, for five years, he engaged in teaching school, in Franklin, Connoquenessing and Middlesex Townships. His last term in the school room was in the winter of 1894-5. In the fall of the latter year he was married and then began cultivating the home farm and has resided here ever since. On eighty acres of his land he raises corn, oats, wheat, hay and potatoes and he keeps twelve cows for dairy purposes, making a high grade of butter for private customers. He is a member of Prospect Grange, Patrons of Husbandry.

In the fall of 1895, Mr. Stoops was married to Luella M. Clark, who is a daughter of Dr. N. W. Clark, of Whitestown, Butler County, and they have five children, namely: Arthur N., Kathleen M., Blair W., Ruth A. and Helen E. Mr. Stoops and family belong to the United Presbyterian Church at Mount Chestnut, in which Mr. Stoop is an elder. In his political views he is a staunch Republican and he has taken a good citizen's interest in township affairs. He has served many terms as a school director and has also been township auditor.

On both sides of the family, Mr. Stoops comes of an ancestry noted for its longevity. The maternal grandfather, John Rose, came to Center Township, Butler County, as one of its earliest settlers. From Sussex County, New Jersey, he went out as a soldier in the War of 1812. His wife was a daughter of Nathaniel Stevenson and was five years old when her father came to Butler County. She was born January 30, 1793, and died when aged 100 years and five months. Her parents were Nathaniel and Mary (Allen) Stevenson, the latter of whom lived to the age of 100 years and six months. Nathaniel Stevenson settled in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, after serving for three and one-half years in the Revolutionary War, and in 1798 he moved to Franklin Township, Butler County, buying 400 acres of land, and there he died when aged eighty-six years.

JAMES M. SUTTON, senior member of the firm of J. M. Sutton & Son, proprietors of the flour mill at Harrisville, Butler County, Penna., and dealers in high grade flour and feed of all kinds, has had wide experience in this field of business. He is a native of Butler County, having been born on the old home farm in Concord Township, September 28, 1847, and is a son of Joseph M. and Jenima (Morrow) Sutton, and a grandson of Platt Sutton.

Platt Sutton, the grandfather, came to Butler County, Penna., from New Jersey shortly after the Revolutionary War ended, becoming one of the earliest of the pioneers of Concord Township. He entered actively into the early life of the community, and was one of the organizers of the old Concord Church. He and his wife were parents of the following children: Nancy, wife of John Harper; Margaret, wife of Scott Jameson; Polly, wife of John Sutton; Phoebe; Joseph M.; Jeremiah; Platt, and James, all now deceased.

Joseph M. Sutton was born on the old home farm in Concord Township, and there grew to maturity. He became a successful farmer and a man of influence in the community, and lived to reach the advanced age of eighty-three years. He was joined in marriage with Jenima Morrow, who was born in Armstrong County, Penna., and is now living at the ripe old age of eighty-three years. The following were the offspring of their marriage: Platt; Thomas J.; James M.; John F.; Jeremiah P.; Willis, who died at twelve years of age; Mary Ann, who is deceased; Nancy J., who is the wife of A. Litzenburg, and Eliza B., who is the wife of Edward Farnsworth.

James M. Sutton spent his boyhood days on the home farm and at the age of twenty years started to learn the milling trade with his uncle, James Sutton, with whom he continued for two years. He was next employed one year at the old H. Gibson Mill in Allegheny Township, conducted by William Turner, after which he rented and operated for two years an old mill at Maple Furnace. After spending three years in the oil fields, he was employed successively at the Courtney Mill in Mercer County, the Cornelious Mill at McCoytown, the Rogers Mill owned by Robert Gilkey in Mercer County, the old Campbell Mill owned by Thomas Elliott, the Fisher Mill near Eastbrook, in Lawrence County; the Hope Mill near Mercer County, the New Hamburg Mill owned by John Wheeler and the Old Etna Mill owned by Shepherd & Daugherty near Slippery Rock. In 1895 he came to Harrisville and began work in the mill now owned by him, being in the employ of Samuel B.ingham. He purchased this plant in 1903, increased its capacity from ten to twenty barrels per day and has established a thriving business, having his son, J. Chalmer, as his partner. The leading brand, "Purity Flour," has an established prestige throughout this section of the State, and meets with a ready sale on the market, and they also manufacture a pure buckwheat flour, and handle all kinds of feed.

In 1871 Mr. Sutton was joined in marriage with Miss Elizabeth Turner of Lawrence County, and the following children were born to them: Emma J., married (first) Irvin Greenman, who died about five years after, and she married (second) Robert Dick; Millie; Doreus E.; J. Chalmer, who is in business with his father, and Frank R., who married Ethel Brown. In religious attachment, he is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of which he is a trustee. Mr. and Mrs. Sutton have an adopted son, Leonard, who is a nephew of Mrs. Sutton. Politically, Mr. Sutton is a strong believer in the principles of the Prohibition party. He is a man of standing and ability, and has many friends throughout the community.

SOLOMON R. STOUGHTON, a thriving agriculturist of Franklin Township, was born on his present farm of 116 acres, February 1, 1878, son of John C. and Mary Jane (McCandless) Stoughton. The Stoughtons were early settlers in Clay Township, Butler County, and John C. Stoughton was born on the old homestead there and came to the present farm of his son Solomon at the time of his marriage. At that time this section was practically a wilderness, and he cleared off all but three acres of the farm. He became one of the foremost citizens of the township, taking an active part in the development of its various resources. He was frequently elected to public office and served at different times and for a number of years as school director, collector and supervisor. His wife, Mary Jane, was a daughter of James McCandless, of Franklin Township, and they became the parents of seven children, all of whom attained maturity, and of whom there are now three survivors. They were as follows: James, a resident of Claytonia; Mary, now deceased, who was the wife of Henry Miller; Elizabeth, wife of James L. Wilson, of Brady Township; Annie, now deceased, who was the wife of Samuel Lawrence, of Muddy Creek Township; Ella, also deceased, who was the wife of William Stine, of Brady Township; Mrs. Sydney Jane Conroy, of New Castle; and Solomon R., whose name appears at the head of this sketch. Mr. and Mrs. John C. Stoughton were members of Mt. Zion Baptist Church, of which Grandfather Stoughton was one of the founders.

Solomon R. Stoughton has spent his life in his native state, the greater part of it up to the present time in the immediate vicinity of his home. His time has been largely devoted to agricultural pursuits, but for three years he was engaged in operating a saw-mill and threshing-machine, in partnership with James L. Wilson. He also spent seven years in the oil fields. His present farm consists of 116 acres, of which he devotes about eighty to the raising of corn, oats, wheat, hay and potatoes. He keeps four horses and fourteen head of cattle, and manufactures choice butter for a select family trade in Butler. He easily ranks as one of the prosperous citizens of Franklin Township, and is as well liked and respected as he is widely known.

Mr. Stoughton was married at the age of fifteen years to Emma Stillwagon, who is a daughter of Adam Stillwagon, of Slippery Rock, and they have six children: Howard Ray, Stella Grace, Mabel Gertrude, Ira Frank, Clyde, and Blanche. Mr. Stoughton's politics identify him as a member of the Republican party. He is fraternally connected with the Maccabees and with Mt. Chestnut Grange, Patrons of Husbandry. For three years he belonged to the National Guards at Butler.

ALFRED MAURHOFF, who owns a finely cultivated farm of thirty-two acres, which is located in Jefferson Township, on the Hamastown Road about one-half mile west of the village, was born April 20, 1841, at Saxonburg, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Emil and Johanna (Pollard) Maurhoff.

The father of Mr. Maurhoff was born in Germany, from which country he emigrated, and in 1833 came to Saxonburg, Pennsylvania, where he conducted a store some years, and was also squire and postmaster for twelve years. About 1842 he returned to Germany for a time, but subsequently came back to Butler County, where he purchased a small farm. He had the following children: Clara, Alfred, Edward F., Emil E., Adelia, Aurora and George, all of whom survive except Adelia and Aurora.

Alfred Maurhoff attended school at Saxonburg and later assisted his father, but since purchasing his present farm has devoted himself to its cultivation and improvement. He raises grain, hay and potatoes and some stock, and is numbered with the good farmers of his neighborhood. Mr. Maurhoff also conducted a general store at Saxonburg for four years, and at the present time is drilling for oil on his farm. He served in the Civil War and was honorably discharged in August, 1863.

On February 12, 1867, Mr. Maurhoff was married to Miss Louise Koegler, a daughter of John G. and Anna Eliza (Heidrich)

Koegler, substantial farming people of Winfield Township. Mr. and Mrs. Maurhoff have four children, namely: Carrie A., who married E. H. Voland, a farmer and dairyman in Winfield Township, and has six children—Walter, Della, Edwin, Alberta, Leroy and Willis; Nelson G., who was born May 20, 1872, is his father's right hand man on the farm; Elmer J., who is bookkeeper for a Pittsburg plumbing firm, and Odessa, who is the wife of Charles Kroneberg, a farmer in Winfield Township. Mr. Maurhoff and family are members of the German Lutheran Church at Hamastown, in which he has frequently served as a member of the Council. He takes a good citizen's interest in all public matters in Jefferson Township and at different times has served as supervisor and on the Board of Elections. He has always been a highly respected member of the section in which he has lived.

CHARLES I. DUNBAR, who conducts a grocery on Pittsburg Street at Evans City, Pennsylvania, is one of the most successful and enterprising merchants of that village. He was born on his father's farm in Forward Township, Butler County, March 8, 1878, and is a son of Irvin and Sarah (Weisz) Dunbar, and grandson of William Dunbar.

William Dunbar, the grandfather, was one of the early settlers of Forward Township, where he lived and farmed for many years. He was the father of the following family: William, a member of the One Hundred Thirty-fourth Regiment, Penna. Volunteer Infantry, during the Civil War; John, who was killed in the Second Battle of Bull Run and was a member of the Eleventh Regiment, Penna. Volunteer Infantry; Solomon; Alexander, who also was a member of the One Hundred Thirty-fourth Regiment, Penna. Volunteer Infantry; Alfred, a member of the Fourth Cavalry of Pennsylvania; Alpheus, also a member of the Fourth Cavalry; Daniel; Anna, deceased wife of Miller McKinney; a twin sister to Anna, and Irvin.

Irvin Dunbar was born on the home farm in Forward Township, and received his education in the schools of the township, such as they were at that time. He engaged in farming on the home place until 1888, in which year he moved with his family to Evans City, where he now resides. He was joined in marriage with Sarah Weisz, who was born in Jackson Township, where her father, John Weisz, was an early settler. They are parents of the following children: William; Elizabeth, wife of Harry Spanogle; Charles I.; Harry and Elery.

Charles Irvin Dunbar was about ten years of age when his parents moved to Evans City, where he was reared to maturity and attended the public schools. At the age of twelve years he began working in the grocery store of John Ramsey, where Mr. Dunbar's store is now located. He continued with him one year, then in the grocery of A. J. Smathers for seven years, after which he was employed a few years by the Bell Telephone Company. About the year of 1902, he started a grocery at the old Smathers' stand, and two years later moved to his present location on the north side of Pittsburg Street. He carries a complete line of staple and fancy groceries, and enjoys the generous patronage of the community.

Mr. Dunbar was married December 14, 1904, to Miss Ada McBryer, a daughter of David and Loretta McBryer of Jefferson County, Pennsylvania. They have one daughter, Eleanor May, born June 23, 1906. They reside in a comfortable home on Harrison Street in Evans City. Religiously, they are members of the M. E. Church. Mr. Dunbar is a member of Lodge No. 292, K. P.; Lodge No. S17, I. O. O. F., and Lodge No. 11,147, Modern Woodmen of America. He is a Republican in politics, has served as a member of Evan City Council, and is now serving his second term as Republican County Committeeman.

WILLIAM J. SNELL, general contractor at Butler, which city has been his place of residence since 1903, was born in 1875, in Jefferson County, Pennsylvania, where he grew to manhood and obtained a good common school education.

With his father, Henry C. Snell, a general contractor, W. J. Snell learned the carpenter's trade, but before he devoted himself to carpenter work, being then only seventeen years old, he engaged in teaching school, which he continued for seven years. He then went into general contracting at Dubois, in Clearfield County, where he remained until 1903, when he came to Butler. There are many examples of Mr. Snell's best work, standing on the fine streets and avenues of this city and a few cited examples of buildings for which he was the contractor, will show his trade standing: The residence of W. S. McCrear, one of the finest in Butler; the United Presbyterian Parsonage; the residence of W. F. Rumberger and C. N. Boyd; the Hotel Monroe; all high class buildings. Mr. Snell is interested also to some extent in the oil business.

In 1898 Mr. Snell was married to Miss Mary Dobson, who was born in Jefferson County, Pennsylvania, and they have two children, William Percy and Beulah Marie. Mr. Snell and wife are members of the Second Presbyterian Church. He belongs to the orders, Modern Woodmen and Protected Home Circle.

DAVID B. DODDS, representative citizen and prosperous farmer of Penn Township, Butler County, Penna., resides on the farm on which he was born, September 20, 1850, and is the one survivor of the family of two children born to his parents, who were Adam and Margaret (Sutton) Dodds.

John Dodds, the grandfather, came to America from County Down, Ireland, settling in Cumberland County, Penna., as early as 1800. He lived there for eight years and then bought several hundred acres of land near what is now the village of Brownsdale, in Penn Township, Butler County, bringing his household goods with him to the new home on what was called a slide car, a primitive vehicle made by fastening two poles, one on each side of a horse and letting the ends drag on the ground. He was a man of foresight and this was shown in many ways, one of which was the bringing of cherry stones from the flourishing cherry orchards of Cumberland County. These stones or pits, he planted carefully on his pioneer farm and from these grew the first cherry trees in the settlement. Later he moved from his first farm to the one which his grandson now owns, situated on the plank road. He had served as a soldier in the War of 1812 and was familiarly known as 'Squire Dodds, from having served for many years as a justice of the peace. He was one of the founders of the United Presbyterian Church both at Butler and Brownsdale. His death took place in 1862. Of his seven sons, Adam, father of David B., was the youngest.

Adam Dodds was born on the present farm of his son, in Penn Township, April 16, 1816, and died in 1887. He learned the cabinetmaking trade with George Miller, of Butler, and remained with him for twelve years, after which he carried on farming on the homestead, which he inherited. He married a daughter of David Sutton. They were consistent members of the United Presbyterian Church.

David B. Dodds has spent his life on the homestead farm and has given his attention to its cultivation and improvement. It is one of the most valuable pieces of property in the township, producing under Mr. Dodds' careful management, abundant crops of corn, oats, wheat, hay and potatoes, in fact all those necessities for the feeding of mankind, which make farmers the most independent class in the world. In addition, Mr. Dodds has ten producing oil wells on his farm, the first drilling having been done in June, 1899.

Mr. Dodds married Miss Mary M. Bartley, who is a daughter of Williamson O. Bartley, of Penn Township, and they have four children: Adam Brown, Williamson Bartley, Clara Mae and James Clarence. The two younger children reside at home. Adam Brown lives at Tarentum, Allegheny County. He married Laurretta Hazlett of Ford City, Penna., and they have one son, William Edward. Williamson Bartley resides in Penn Township. He married Ella Reith, who lived near Saxonburg, and they have one child, Erma Mae. Mr. Dodds is a member of the Brownsdale United Presbyterian Church. He is a staunch Republican and has served in local offices. He is a fine example of the enterprising and progressive agriculturist of the present day and has a frank and hearty manner together with the sterling qualities which make him valued as a citizen and as a neighbor.

F. H. DAVY, justice of the peace, at Butler, and the owner of a fine farm situated near Jackson Center, Mercer County, Pennsylvania, was born in that county, January 7, 1854.

Mr. Davy was reared in Mercer County and obtained his education there and for some thirty years engaged there in general farming. In 1894 he came to Butler, where he operated a meat business for one year and then embarked in the dairy business, which he continued for nine years. Then for the following three years he was connected with the Grand Union Tea Company. He has taken an active interest in local politics and is in close accord with the sentiments of the Republican party. In May, 1908, he was elected to the office of justice of the peace.

JOSEPH W. HERVEY

MRS. THERESA H. HERVEY

On September 6, 1877, Mr. Davy was married to Miss Catherine A. Moon, and they have three children: George H., who is employed in the Boyd drug store at Butler; Mary E., who is a popular teacher in the Butler public schools; and Ella, who resides at home. Mr. Davy is a member of the order of Woodmen of the World.

AUGUSTUS HERMAN BEHM, who resides eleven miles southwest of Butler, in Forward Township, has a fine and well-improved farm of 172 acres, a part of which belonged to the old Behm homestead. He was born on this farm, January 23, 1854, and is a son of Nicholas and Louisa (Rennick) Behm, both natives of Germany.

Nicholas Behm, Sr., grandfather of the subject of this sketch, lived in Hesse, Germany, where he farmed until he moved with his family to America. They located in Pittsburg, Penna., and later to Butler County. He and his wife were parents of the following children, all now deceased: John; Mrs. John Metz; Margaret, wife of George Barkley; Nicholas, Jr.; and George.

Nicholas Behm, Jr., was born in Hesse, Germany, and was about fourteen years old when brought to America, the voyage consuming about three months. While located at Pittsburg, he husked corn where Ohio Street now runs in that city. He worked for a time in a brick yard in Allegheny, and was there married to Louisa Rennick, who was born in Saxony and was eight years old when brought to America. He and his wife moved to Butler County, while it was yet in its undeveloped state, the forests being still standing. He purchased a 100-acre farm for $900, of which a part is now included in the farm of his son, A. H. Behm. He erected a log house and barn, and set about clearing the land, which he subsequently put under a high state of cultivation. He remained on this farm until his death in 1885, at the age of sixty-six years. He is still survived by his widow. The following children were the offspring of their marriage: Margaret, Mary, William, John, Carolina, Anna, Augustus Herman, Amelia, Louisa, Hannah, Christina, and Lena. Mary and Christina are deceased.

Augustus Herman Behm was reared on the home place and during his boyhood days attended the district schools during the winter months. He has seventy acres of the home farm, on which he has always lived, and in addition purchased an adjoining tract from Markel and Goehring. He now has 172 acres all told, and erected all the modern and substantial buildings which stand on the place. There are three oil wells in operation on the farm, and he follows general farming and stock raising.

Mr. Behm was united in marriage February 8, 1883, with Miss Mary Matilda Goehring, a sister of Charles Goehring, a sketch of whom appears on another page of this work. Seven children were born to bless this marriage, namely: Clyde, Leah, Charles, Harry, Etta, Iva, and Bryan. Mr. Behm is a Democrat in politics, and has served as township auditor and school director. Fraternally, he is a member of Evans City Lodge, No. 817, I. O. O. F.

JOSEPH W. HERVEY, general farmer, resides on his excellent farm of seventy-one acres, which is situated in Oakland Township, skirting the Upper Greece City road, about three miles northeast of Butler. He was born in Pittsburg, Penna., December 19, 1852, and is a son of John and Agnes (Shaw) Hervey.

John Hervey, father of Joseph W., was born in County Down, Ireland, March 10, 1820, and first came to America at the age of eighteen years. As soon as he had accumulated a little capital he returned to Ireland for the rest of the family. He brought with him to the United States his parents, his brothers and his sisters, and they settled at Tarentum, Penna. It is a curious coincidence that his grandmother's family name was also Hervey, but as the grandfather of the subject of this sketch was born in Scotland and the grandmother in Ireland, there was probably no relationship. John Hervey was engaged for a time in a clothing business in Pittsburgh, but his health failing, he gave up that occupation and obtained work in a saw-mill. Afterwards he was engaged in the oil business in West Virginia, and still later tried farming in Missouri and in Allegheny County, Penna., near Turtle Creek. He subsequently resided in West Virginia and in Tarentum, and died September 29, 1896, at Braddock, Penna. Mrs. John Hervey, who was born in Pittsburgh, March 10, 1828, died May 21, 1901.

Joseph W. Hervey was a boy when his father left Pittsburgh. The family lived for ten years at Tarentum, Allegheny County, and from there went to West Virginia, where they remained two years. The next two and a half years was spent on the farm in Missouri. The subject of this sketch was about sixteen years old when his parents moved back to Tarentum, where he lived for ten more years, subsequently going thence to Sharpsburg, Allegheny County, where he resided with his wife and his parents for four years. He then came to Butler and was employed here for fifteen years by S. G. Purvis & Company as engineer, of which trade he had previously acquired a knowledge. In March, 1898, he left the employ of that concern and settled on his present farm, which, although known as the William Barkley farm, he purchased from Orville Craig. Although not brought up to agriculture, Mr. Hervey has had so much practical experience along other industrial lines that he has needed but to apply the business principles thus learned, with such special knowledge of he has been able to acquire, to make a success of his new vocation, and he now raises good crops of corn, oats, hay and potatoes, and has some excellent stock.

In 1894 Mr. Hervey was married to Theresa May Humes, a native of Allegheny County, and a daughter of Thomas and Elizabeth Humes. Mrs. Hervey, however, resided for a number of years in Butler County before her marriage. Mr. Hervey was previously married to Emma L. Giesler, a daughter of David Giesler, of Allegheny County, and she died in 1892 without issue. He takes a strong interest in educational matters, has served three years as school director in Oakland Township, for two years being secretary of the board. He belongs to the order of Woodmen of the World, and both he and his wife are members of the United Presbyterian Church at Butler.

JAMES T. MARSHALL, one of Penn Township's representative and progressive citizens, residing on his finely improved farm containing fifty acres, is one of the most extensive potato and strawberry growers in this section. Mr. Marshall was born in Harrisville, Butler County, Penna., March 17, 1849, and is a son of William and Rebecca (Kearns) Marshall.

The Marshall family is of Scotch-Irish extraction. James Marshall, grandfather of James T., was one of the early settlers in what is now Penn Township, coming to America from County Antrim, Ireland. In November, 1797, he was married to Jean Peebles, and they came to the United States in 1822, locating at Pittsburg, Penna. In 1824 Grandfather Marshall bought 300 acres of land in Penn Township and on this he lived until the time of his death, in 1854, when aged eighty-six years. His widow survived until 1863, dying at the age of eighty-five years. They were people noted for their many virtues and were consistent members of the Covenant Church. Their eleven children were born in Ireland, and William was the fifth in order of birth.

William Marshall was born in County Antrim, Ireland, in 1810, and died in his sixty-sixth year. He was twelve years of age when the family came to America and frequently told his children concerning the wild condition of Penn Township at that time. In his youth he learned the hatter's trade, in Pittsburg, and subsequently went into business for himself, conducting stores at different points. When his son, James T., was two years old, he gave up merchandising and settled on a part of the homestead in Penn Township, on which he lived until after the close of the Civil War, when he went to Tennessee, where he followed farming for about four years. After he returned to Butler County he lived retired. He was a Republican in politics but never accepted any office except that of school director. William Marshall married a daughter of Thomas Kearns, a reputable citizen of Pittsburg. Mrs. Marshall was the eighth member of her parents' family of fifteen children, all of whom grew up and had families of their own. There were seven children born to William Marshall and wife, namely: James Thomas; Julia, widow of William Watson, of Penn Township; Elizabeth, deceased; Rebecca, wife of James Hunter, of Ekastown, Butler County; William, of St. Louis, Missouri; and Charles and Edward Montgomery, both of whom are deceased. The family was reared in the faith of the Presbyterian Church.

James T. Marshall attended the country schools through boyhood and had his practical training in agriculture, on the home farm. In 1873 he came to his present farm and he owns 131 acres additional, a part of which is the old homestead. Mr. Marshall has successfully carried on several industries here, his dairying being one of importance. With the assistance of his three sons and a hired man, he cultivates 100 acres and has made specialties of strawberries and fine potatoes. He utilizes modern machinery and is interested in improved methods of cultivation, taking advantage of those which seem to him profitable. Mr. Marshall has made improvements on his property which make it a place of mark in the county. His substantial barn is one of the best in the township and he has a silo of about fifty tons capacity. In 1908 he erected one of the handsomest mansions in this section of the country, an ideal rural home, beautifully located, and equipped with every modern improvement regardless of expense, in its building following out plans of his own as to comfort and convenience. It is of natural stone construction, three stories in height, while its inside finishings are the best known to modern builders. Its roomy porches look out over handsome grounds.

Mr. Marshall married Susan B. Johnston, who was born in Penn Township, and they have had seven children, namely: William Ellsworth, who is a minister in the Presbyterian Church, at New Florence; Susan Ola, who is the wife of Charles Brown, of Penn Township; Mary, deceased; James R., Charles Clyde and Edward Dean, all reside at home and assist in the management of the large estate. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall are active members of the Middlesex Presbyterian Church. Mr. Marshall is a Republican but is only a politician to the extent of good citizenship.

VICTOR A. BARNHART, who is engaged in the real estate and insurance business at Evans City, Pennsylvania, is well known in Butler County, where he was prominently identified with educational work for some years prior to engaging in his present field of operation. He was born in the vicinity of Green Castle, in Franklin County, Pennsylvania, May 25, 1878, and is a son of Daniel S. and Ruth A. (Miller) Barnhart.

Daniel S. Barnhart was also born in Franklin County, Pennsylvania, and was reared to agricultural pursuits. He later became a merchant at Green Castle, where he and his wife now reside, she also being a native of Franklin County. Twelve children were the issue of their union, of whom Victor Albertus was the eighth.

Victor A. Barnhart spent his early youth on his father's farm near Green Castle, and was nine years of age when his parents moved to that village. He assisted his father about the store and attended the public schools, graduating from Green Castle High School in 1896. He later attended Mercersburg Academy, graduating in 1898, and Franklin and Marshall College, from which he was graduated in 1902. He then became an instructor in the schools of Green Castle, serving during the school year of 1902-1903; the following school year he served as teacher in the schools of West Newton, and during the year 1904-1905 was principal of the school at St. Paul's Orphans' Home at Butler. He was principal of the public schools of Evans City during 1905-1906, and the following school year taught science in Butler High School. His success as an educator was pronounced, but other fields offering greater financial returns he gave up the profession and in June, 1907, started in the real estate and insurance business at Evans City. He maintains an office on Pittsburg Street, and during his short residence in the village has succeeded beyond his expectations.

December 25, 1907, Mr. Barnhart was united in marriage with Miss Flora M. Markel, a daughter of Daniel and Mary A. Markel, the record of her family appearing on another page of this work. Fraternally, Mr. Barnhart is a member of Mt. Pisgah Lodge, No. 443, F. & A. M., at Green Castle; Lodge No. 817, I. O. O. F. of Evans City, and Lodge No. 292, K. P. of Evans City. Religiously, he and his wife are members of the Reformed Church.

T. CHALMERS CAMPBELL, a leading member of the Butler bar, who has been engaged in the practice of law in this city for the past thirty-six years, was born in 1848, in Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of James Campbell. The father of Mr. Campbell was born in Chester County, Pennsylvania, and came to Butler County about 1840, where he was engaged in a mercantile business for a number of years and was identified with the leading interests of this place.

T. Chalmers Campbell attended the public schools, Witherspoon Academy and Phillips Academy at Andover, Mass., and pursued and completed his law studies under Col. John M. Thompson and Samuel and W. S. Purvisance, of Pittsburg. In 1869 he was admitted to the bar in Allegheny County and remained there in active practice until 1872, when he located at Butler. For the first five years he was in partnership with J. D. McJunkin, under the firm name of McJunkin & Campbell, but since the dissolving of that partnership, has been alone. He has been identified with a large amount of legal business in the local courts, the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania and also in the United States Federal Courts. He is attorney for the Western Allegheny Railroad Company, in Butler County, and he belongs to the Butler County Bar Association.

In 1873 Mr. Campbell was married to Miss Juliet D. Estep, of Allegheny, and they have four children: Louise, who is the wife of Charles A. McElvain, of Butler; Jean, who is the wife of George E. Howard, of Butler; James O., a graduate of Washington-Jefferson College and a practicing attorney with his father, with whom he prepared for the bar, and Juliet E. Mr. Campbell and family belong to the Presbyterian Church.

WILLIAM RAPE, one of Forward Township's prominent and substantial citizens, whose valuable farm of sixty-three acres is situated about seven miles southwest of Butler, right on the electric railway, was born on the old Rape homestead in Cranberry Township, Butler County, Penna., March 18, 1839, and is a son of Christian and Sarah (Stout) Rape.

The family to which Mr. Rape belongs originated in Germany and in old times the family name was spelled Reeb. It was Theobald Reeb, the grandfather, who came with his wife Sophia, to America, many years ago, and settled on land in Cranberry Township. At that time land that now will bring probably $100 an acre sold for $3, and the German family soon had a secured home in which the parents spent the remainder of their lives. With their native thrift and industry they cleared and cultivated the land and when their son Christian grew to man's estate, he succeeded to the property. He had given his father much assistance in clearing and he continued to occupy the homestead until he died, in 1880, aged seventy-two years. During his lifetime he added an adjoining farm to his possessions and the estate he left to his children amounted to 130 acres. He married Sarah Stout, who survived him two years, being aged seventy-four when she died. They had eleven children, namely: Sophia, who married John Knauf, deceased; Jacob, deceased; Eliza, who married Charles Weild, both deceased; Sarah, who married William Goehring, deceased; Catherine, who married John Stapf, both deceased; Henry, deceased; William; John; Mary, who married John Stapf; Eli, and Susan, who married Charles Mickley, deceased.

William Rape spent a happy, useful boyhood under the protection and care of good parents. When opportunity offered he went to the district school but spent many days in hard work, helping to finish the clearing of the land and later in cultivating it. He remained at home until he was first married. In September, 1870, he bought his present farm, from James Bolton, on which he has made many substantial improvements. It is valuable land in point of fertility and also on account of its excellent situation, and also on account of oil being found here, there being two wells on the farm.

On March 20, 1860, Mr. Rape was married (first) to Anna Kaufman, who died in March, 1882. Her parents were Ausman and Mary (Freshcorn) Kaufman. There were eleven children born to this union, as follows: Edwin, who married Anna Burr; William, who married Rose Mazer; John; Anna, who married H. A. Burr; Laura; Tiny, who married John Wardock, and five deceased. Mr. Rape was married (second) in August, 1882, to Mary Ann Hoover, who is a daughter of John and Lydia (Rice) Hoover, and they have seven children, namely: Floyd, who married Caroline Schilling, has twin children, Hershel William and Lona Aleander, these being the first twins ever born in either the Rape or Schilling families and they therefore are babes of more than usual interest; Adaline, who married William Wehr; Olie, who married Edwin Osenbaugh; Margaret, who married Russell Ensen; Susan, who married Fred Westebek; and Jesse and Homer, both of whom live at home.

In politics, Mr. Rape is a staunch Republican. He has taken an active interest in township affairs and has served acceptably in a number of offices, having been supervisor for five years, clerk for two years and overseer of the poor for two years.

W. S. WICK, of the lumber firm of W. S. Wick, at Butler, is also interested in a number of other Butler enterprises, and is a substantial and representative citizen. He was born in 1863, in Butler County, and is a son of the late Henry E. Wick.

The Wick family is one of the oldest families of Butler County. Henry E. Wick was born on the old Wick homestead, in 1824, and died at Butler in 1901. He became a man of prominence in Butler County and was one of Butler's pioneer merchants.

W. S. Wick enjoyed both educational and social advantages in youth and early manhood and before he settled down to a business career, he spent three years of travel through the far west, during this time visiting Oregon, Idaho, Wyoming and other States and Territories. After returning to Butler he engaged for three years in a mercantile business and about 1894 embarked in the lumber business. He handles all kinds of lumber, doing both a wholesale and retail business, and deals also in doors, sash and blinds. He owns a half interest in the East End Hardware Store and has stock also in the plaster and cement mill which is situated in the western part of the city. He also owns valuable real estate, being part owner of the Orphans' Home property.

In 1904 Mr. Wick was married to Miss Jeanette Lusk, of Jefferson County, and they have one daughter, Elizabeth. Mr. Wick is not an active politician but he always does a good citizen's duty to uphold the laws and to further movements for the general welfare. In this line he believes the responsibilities of the successful business man are great.

CURTIS IRWIN CHRISTLEY, residing on his exceedingly valuable farm of 115 acres, which is situated in Slippery Rock Township, one mile south of the village of that name, was born on this farm, March 31, 1836, and is a son of John and Elizabeth (Smith) Christley.

The father of Mr. Christley was a farmer and also a cabinetmaker. In the old days he made coffins. And he manufactured the coffins for the six Wigtons murdered by the Indian Mohawk. He was twice married, first to Mary Hyde Smith and second to her sister. The three children of the first union were: James Perry, William George and John Harvey, all deceased. There were nine children born to the second marriage, as follows: Thomas Franklin, deceased; Washington Edward, deceased; Mrs. Mary Jane Hockenbury, of West Sunbury, Pennsylvania; Samuel Johnston, who was killed at the second battle of Bull Run, during the War of the Rebellion; Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Moore, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Curtis Irwin; Mrs. Catherine Frances Bruce, deceased; Mrs. Margaret Chinesie Glenn, deceased; and Mrs. Caroline B. Foster, deceased.

Curtis Irwin Christley has devoted himself to farming and has enjoyed abundant success. His longest absence from his home farm was during his service of nine months, in the War of the Rebellion, as a member of the One Hundred Thirty-seventh Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry. He is a member of the Grand Army of the Republic. In addition to the farm on which he lives, Mr. Christley owns a second farm, one of fifty acres, which is located near West Liberty, Butler County.

Mr. Christley married Margaret E. Brannon, who died in 1902. They had one child, Mrs. Tirzah Frances Magee, now deceased, who left three children: Carbus Claire, Don Lee Magee, and Wendell Odell, all of whom reside with their grandfather. In politics, Mr. Christley is a staunch Republican. He is one of the township's representative men.

MARTIN MONKS, a prominent citizen of Middlesex Township, Butler County, Penna., where he owns more than 250 acres of valuable farm land, has been an oil producer for many years, and has been very active in the oil fields of Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia. He was born on his present farm, February 14, 1856, and is a son of Absalom and Harriet (Chantler) Monks, and a grandson of Absalom Monks, Sr.

Absalom Monks, Sr., the grandfather, was born near Brandywine, Chester County, Penna., November 11, 1774, and as a boy witnessed the historic battle fought at that place during the Revolution. He moved to the western part of the state with Anthony Wayne some time between 1792 and 1795, and in the latter year located in the city of Pittsburg. In 1801 he moved to Butler County and acquired 212 acres of unimproved land in Middlesex Township, on which he erected a cabin. He cleared a part of this farm, which has since been known as the Monks farm, and continued to reside there until his death. He married Margaret Bell, who died without issue; and on May 3, 1810, he married Catherine Kennedy, a daughter of Martin Kennedy, by whom he had nine children. He was a Whig in politics, and he and his wife were members of the Seceder Church.

Absalom Monks, Jr., father of the subject of this biography, was born on the home farm in Middlesex Township, October 5, 1817, and helped to clear the place. He worked a year or two at the trade of a blacksmith, but with that exception followed farming throughout his active career. He has been in retirement some years, and although past ninety-one years of age continues in good physical health and in full possession of his mental faculties, remembering with little effort the happenings of pioneer days in Butler County. He was prominently identified with the development of this part of the county and its institutions. He is the only living charter member of Saxonia Lodge, I. O. O. F., of which he is past grand. He and his wife are members of the Middlesex Methodist Episcopal Church, of which he has been steward and trustee since the church was built, being one of the organizers of the congregation. He was united in marriage March 14, 1850, with Harriet Chantler, a daughter of Thomas Chantler, she being brought from England by her parents when she was an infant, and reared in Middlesex Township. Five children blessed this union, of whom three grew to maturity, as follows: Martin; William, of Middlesex Township; and Catherine Ann, wife of Robert Harbison.

Martin Monks was reared on the home farm and received a preliminary education in the district schools, supplemented by a course in Hampton Academy and the Freeport Normal School. Prior to engaging in the oil business, he followed cattle droving. He owns over 250 acres of land, now cultivated by his sons, who in addition to general farming, engage in stock feeding on an extensive scale, averaging about twenty head of cattle and about 100 head of sheep. For the past twenty-five years he has been an oil producer, and has interests through the oil regions of Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia. He has two wells on his own farm which are producing in paying quantities, and he also has fourteen wells on adjoining farms.

On February 12, 1879, Mr. Monks was joined in marriage with Miss Cordelia Hickey, a daughter of Windle and Sarah Ann (Kennedy) Hickey of Middlesex Township. Her father was born December 28, 1812, in Allegheny County, and died July 16, 1895. Her mother died March 19, 1891, at the age of seventy-four years. William Kennedy, grandfather of Mrs. Monks, was three years old when his parents settled in Middlesex Township, some time in the latter part of the Eighteenth Century. Windle and Sarah Ann Hickey were parents of thirteen children, five of whom grew up, namely: Mary, Windle, Cordella, Albert, and Sarah Ann.

Martin and Cordella (Hickey) Monks are parents of the following children: Luella, wife of Charles Snyder of Punxatawney, Jefferson County; Warner Scott; Martin Russell, who completed a civil engineering course in Ohio Northern University at Ada, Ohio; Sarah May, a graduate of Slippery Rock Normal School, who is a teacher in the public schools at Punxatawney; Harriet E., who is a graduate of the Slippery Rock Normal School, received a teacher's diploma; Albert Roy Hickey, and Emory Harper. Mr. Monks attends and supports liberally the Middlesex Methodist Episcopal church, of which his wife is an active member. Her parents were among the founders of the church, and her father served as trustee and class leader many years. Mr. Hickey was a plasterer and paperhanger by trade, also a veterinarian, following these occupations in conjunction with farming.

Martin Monks is active in support of the Republican party and its principles, but is in no sense a politician. Fraternally, he is a member and past grand of Saxonia Lodge, I. O. O. F.

R. A. POOLE, proprietor of the Poole Brass Foundry, at Butler, owns a business which he has been successfully carrying on in this city for some years. He was born May 30, 1854, in England, and in his native land acquired his education and learned the trade of molder.

In 1884 Mr. Poole came to America and located first at Alliance, Ohio, where he entered the shops of the Morgan Engineering Company, where he remained for four years and then went to Pittsburg. In that city he soon entered the employ of the Westinghouse Manufacturing Company and continued with that concern for eleven years, working in the foundry department. From there he came to Butler and for two years was with the Butler Engine and Foundry Company and for one year with the Evans Manufacturing Company. In 1901 Mr. Poole embarked in business for himself, establishing the Poole Brass Foundry, and in 1906 he erected his present building. He has associated his two sons, James and Grover Poole, with him in business and they give employment to a large force and have a large volume of trade.

In 1884, prior to coming to America, Mr. Poole was married to Miss Janet Cochran and they have six children: James and Grover, above mentioned; Albert A., who is in the employ of the Butler Car Wheel Company; Elizabeth, who is a student in the Franklin School; Frank, and Jessie. Mr. Poole and family belong to the Episcopal Church. In his political preferences he is a Democrat. Fraternally he belongs to the Odd Fellows, the Woodmen, the Mystic Chain and the Sons of St. George.

CHRISTIAN HENRY THIELEMAN, whose fertile farm of 108 acres is situated in Adams Township, carries on a general farming line here and gives some attention to the oil business, having two wells on his land. He was born in Allegheny, Penna., October 13, 1851, and is a son of William and Wilhelmine (Nemyer) Thieleman.

Both parents of Mr. Thieleman were born in Germany, in the same province, and both came to America and to Pittsburg, before marriage. William Thieleman crossed the Atlantic Ocean in 1845 and he found his first work in America on steamboats running between Pittsburg and New Orleans. He then went into the hotel business in Allegheny City. After his marriage, in 1857, he moved to Butler County and settled in what was then Cranberry but is now Adams Township. He bought his farm from John Dunn, in 1853, a tract of uncleared land which he lived on during the rest of his life. He was a man of great industry and developed an excellent farm, in which he took justifiable pride. He survived to the age of eighty-four years, his death taking place May 2, 1908. His widow, who was born two days later than her husband, still survives. Of their ten children, four died in infancy, the names of the others being: Christian Henry, Herman, Sophia, wife of M. Marshall; Mandana, William Lewis, and Mary.

When his parents moved to Butler County, Christian Henry was not more than six years old and from boyhood had to work hard and had fewer school advantages than many others, who, however, have developed into no more capable farmers or intelligent men than himself. When he was first put to the plow it was drawn by oxen. Mr. Thieleman has changed all the old ways of farming, has done a large amount of improving to his present property, and is numbered with the substantial men of this section.

In April, 1886, Mr. Thieleman was married to Miss Caroline Thieker, of Adams Township, who died in the same year. In October, 1888, he was married (second) to Miss Mary Hesperheide, a daughter of William Hesperheide, who came to Butler County from Hanover, Germany. They have four children, namely: Frances Wilda, Raymond, Earl William, and Verna. Mr. Thieleman and family belong to the Lutheran Church at Mars and he is a member of the board of trustees. In politics he is a Democrat. He has never been anxious to hold office, but has consented to be a school director and is serving most acceptably in his ninth term.

C. E. McINTIRE, who occupies a prominent position in the business world of Butler, is a member of the McIntire-Willetts Manufacturing Company, which manufactures and deals in gas and gasoline engines, draughting patterns and machine work, together with automobile repairs and supplies. Mr. McIntire has been identified with the interests of Butler for the past eighteen years. He was born in Clarion County, Pennsylvania, in 1851.

After a limited period of schooling, Mr. McIntire went to work in the oil fields in Bradford, Pa., and later in mercantile business in Salamanca, N. Y., and from that time on has been interested in the oil business in the Pennsylvania fields, becoming a large dealer and producer. On coming to Butler he engaged in the oil business and is the only independent oil dealer in the city. In the face of competition, his perseverance and excellent business methods have brought him success in this line. In 1907 he established the McIntire-Willetts Manufacturing Company and he also established an automobile garage repair and supply house and took the agency for the Buick automobile.

In 1871 Mr. McIntire was married to Miss Anna McGee, of Clarion County, and they have five children, the three sons, George, Robert Roy and Harry, being associated with their father in business; and both daughters, Edith and Grace, being married. The former is the wife of O. W. Strayer, of Butler, and the latter is the wife of S. C. Kelly, also of Butler. In his political views, Mr. McIntire is a Prohibitionist. Fraternally he is connected with the Odd Fellows and the Knights of Maccabee. He is a member and was one of the organizers of the Second Presbyterian Church of Butler, has been a member of the Board of Trustees since its organization and was instrumental in building the present fine church.

MRS. PRISCILLA DAVISON, a representative of one of the oldest families in Butler County, residing on the home farm in Penn Township, in which she is well known and highly esteemed, was born in Forward Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a daughter of Alexander and Mary Harris (Lyon) Douthett.

Few people can trace a clearer ancestry than can Mrs. Davison, the family records having been preserved as far back as her great-grandfather, who was named Joseph Douthett. He was born in County Armagh, Ireland, and with his wife Rosanna, emigrated to America at an early day and settled for a time in Washington County, Pennsylvania. In 1799 he came to what is now Butler County and settled on a farm in Forward Township, and there both he and wife died and their remains rest in the Douthett family cemetery.

Benjamin Douthett, grandfather of Mrs. Davison, was born in County Armagh, Ireland, and accompanied his parents to America, probably in 1772. He married Jane Smith, who died in 1847, whom he survived for three years. They are buried also in the old family cemetery at Brownsdale. Of their nine children, Alexander, father of Mrs. Davison, was the sixth in order of birth.

Alexander Douthett was born in what is now Forward Township, where he grew to manhood and engaged in farming. In the last year of the Civil War he enlisted for service, but hostilities closed before his regiment had left Pittsburg. In 1872 he purchased the present farm where Mrs. Davison lives, and here both he and wife died. He was a Republican in his political views and he served Penn Township as school director and as supervisor. He married a daughter of James R. Lyon, who was a farmer in what is now Adams Township. There were eight children born to this marriage, namely: Elizabeth, James R., Priscilla, Mary, Henry, who died aged twenty-one years, Ordilla, and two who died in infancy.

Priscilla Douthett grew to womanhood under the care of a good mother and wise father and obtained her education in the country schools. On September 20, 1876, she was united in marriage with Robert Davison. He was born in Adams Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, September 7, 1843, and died November 10, 1899. He engaged in farming and was a well known and respected citizen. In politics he was a Democrat. Mrs. Davison is a member of the United Presbyterian Church of Brownsdale.

THOMAS EDWARD KERR, one of Mars' enterprising and successful grocery merchants, was born in Slippery Rock Township, Butler County, Penna., October 1, 1871, and is a son of Milton Bruce and Mary (Coover) Kerr, and a grandson of Thomas and Elizabeth (Forsythe) Kerr.

The grandfather, Thomas Kerr, was born in Scotland and came to Pennsylvania in early manhood. He was a stone mason by trade and he did a large amount of stone work in Slippery Rock Township, Butler County, where he also acquired a farm. He married after settling in Butler County and became the father of the following children: Milton Bruce; Thomas; James; Jennie; Rebecca, wife of William H. Cnrran; Jessie, wife of N. H. Thompson; and Catherine, wife of Thomas McCamey.

Milton Bruce Kerr was born in Slippery Rock Township, Butler County, in 1850, and spent his boyhood on the home farm. He then learned the tanning business with Perry Coovert, in Slippery Rock Township, and continued to be interested as long as the business was profitable, after which he became a manufacturer of staves, having a stove yard at Butler, and for sixteen years he made staves for the Standard Oil Company. In 1895 he moved to Mars and from then until he retired, was engaged in the oil business. He married Mary Coovert, a daughter of Perry Coovert, and they had four children: Margaret, who is the wife of S. T. Herr; Thomas Edward; Perry, who is engaged in a drug business at Mars; and Ada, who is the wife of Dr. McGeorge, a practicing physician at Enon Valley.

Thomas Edward Kerr was afforded excellent educational advantages, completing his education with two years at the Slippery Rock Normal School. He gained his mercantile experience as a clerk in the employ of the firm of Bard & Son, general merchants, where he continued for four years. In May, 1895, he came to Mars and purchased his present commodious grocery store from A. C. and E. Zeigler. He is a wide-awake business man and has a high commercial rating.

On June 19, 1906, Mr. Kerr was married to Miss Olive Campbell, who is a daughter of J. C. Campbell, of Adams Township. In politics he is identified with the

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS V. SMITH

Democratic party. He belongs to the order of Modern Woodmen. He was reared in the United Presbyterian Church.

EUGENE SCHAEFER, the capable manager of the Butler brewing plant of the Independent Brewing Company of Pittsburg, was born in 1866, in Germany, and was about twelve years of age when he came to America.

Mr. Schaefer's education was completed in the public schools of Allegheny and at Duff's Business College at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, where he was graduated in 1882. His uncle being engaged in the brewing business, offered the nephew a place in his plant and Mr. Schaefer remained there until 1889. From there he went to the Bauerstein Brewing Company and continued with that concern for nine years, after which he conducted a hotel at Millvale for eight years. After disposing of his hotel interests, Mr. Schaefer was out of business for about one year, taking a much-needed rest, and during this time he enjoyed a trip through the Great Lakes. In March, 1907, he came to Butler, first as bookkeeper for the Butler Brewery, of which he was later made manager. He is a thoroughly experienced man in this industry and has proved a very capable executive. He owns stock in the Independent Brewing Company of Pittsburg.

In 1889 Mr. Schaefer was married to Miss Caroline Dohr, of Millvale, and they have three children, Elsie, Eugene and Edward. Mr. and Mrs. Schaefer are members of the German Catholic Church. He belongs to the order of the Knights of St. George, the Catholic Mutual Benevolent Association and to the Heptasophis.

THOMAS V. SMITH, a prominent citizen of Allegheny Township, who has been identified with the oil industry more or less continuously ever since 1872 and is a contractor and driller of gas and oil wells and for some years also a producer, owns an excellent farm of sixty-seven acres in this part of Butler County. He was born January 18, 1859, in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Robert H. and Eleanor J. (Van Tine) Smith, the former of whom was born in Forest County and the latter in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania.

Mr. Smith's childhood was spent in three States—Pennsylvania, Illinois and Iowa—and he was fourteen years old when he accompanied his parents to Butler County and with them settled in Allegheny Township, which has practically been his home ever since. He attended school here but soon entered into work in the oil fields and in one capacity or another has been connected with gas and oil interests ever since. He is a member of the firm of Royal Brothers, oil producers, of Butler, and also of the firm of Steffy & Smith, oil and gas well drillers and contractors.

On December 25, 1879, Mr. Smith was married to Miss Mary L. Grant, who is a daughter of Robert and Nancy Grant, the latter of whom still survives and resides in Allegheny Township. Mr. and Mrs. Smith have had seven children, the survivors being: Ardell V., Harry A., Robert G., Marion D. and Paul R. Ardell V. married Georgia Henderson and they have one daughter, Lola L. Harry A. married Maud Gaugaware and they have one son, Kirsey O. Mr. Smith and wife are members of the Allegheny Presbyterian Church, and he is a trustee of the same. He has been a strong advocate of temperance for many years and votes with the Prohibition party. Personally he is known as a man of sterling character.

ROSS MECKLING BOWSER, oil producer and member of the firm of R. M. Bowser & Son, general merchants at Renfrew, was born in Valley Township, Armstrong County, Penna., December 8, 1847, and is a son of Matthias P. and Sarah Ann (Baum) Bowser.

Matthias P. Bowser, who is one of Armstrong County's most venerable citizens, resides on his farm in Boggs Township, on Pine Creek, within five miles of Kittanning. He was born near Worthington, in Armstrong County, in 1819, and is a son of Peter Bowser, who died in Boggs Township when in his ninety-ninth year. In his early manhood, Matthias P. Bowser operated a ferry at Kittanning for Ross Mecklin, and then accompanied his parents to Valley Township, Armstrong County, and later engaged in farming and teaming near Pine Creek furnace. When the Civil War broke out he enlisted under Captain Ellwood, in Company C, Seventy-eighth Regiment, Penna. Volunteer Infantry, and served through three years without injury except a short period of imprisonment. After the close of his military service he bought the farm on which he has lived ever since. In spite of his advanced age he is in good health and possesses all his faculties and has lost but one of his natural senses, for the past three years having been blind. As a leading Democrat of his township, he was frequently, during his active years, elected to local offices. His aged wife also survives and they both are valued members of the United Presbyterian Church. He married a daughter of John Baum. She was born in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, May 25, 1825, and was seventeen years of age when she accompanied her parents to their new home in Valley Township, about ten miles northeast of Kittanning. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Bowser were ten in number, the following being the survivors: Wilson L., residing near Parker's Landing; Ross M.; Harvey P., residing on the old homestead; Hettie, wife of Henry Troutman, of Worthington; Sarah, residing at Kittanning; Madison, living in New Castle; Templeton, residing at Alliance, Ohio; J. Neal, living in Indiana; Rebecca, wife of Nish Schrecongost; and George B. Mc.

Ross M. Bowser, like many another successful man, has mainly made his own way in the world. He is self educated and early learned to depend upon his own resources. Through early manhood he engaged in teaming and farming but in the spring of 1870 he went to Parker's Landing and after several years of teaming in that section, in the meanwhile quietly prospecting, he bought an old oil well and thus entered into a business which has resulted most profitably. Later, he acquired other oil property, went to Edinburg and drilled wells there, then went back to Parker's Landing in 1880, and had the usual success and failure of oil operators. In 1884 he came to Renfrew and entered into partnership with his brother-in-law, P. P. Kiser, and in the following year became sole owner of the lumber business. This was the first lumber firm at this point and Mr. Bowser still continues to deal in lumber, doing a large amount of shipping. In 1890 he started a general store, in association with his son, H. M. Bowser, under the firm name of R. M. Bowser & Son, the scope of which covers dealing in oil well supplies, lumber, agricultural implements and building materials, in addition to general merchandise. The firm is operating oil wells in both Penn and Forward Townships. Mr. Bowser is interested in four wells that are twenty-eight years old and are still pumping, producing, all together, six barrels of oil per day. He has an interest in eleven wells in all, one of which he bought seventeen years ago, from Young Brothers. It then produced two and three-fourths barrels, but he increased the production and for the past sixteen years has filled a 150-barrel tank monthly from this one well. In his business relations Mr. Bowser has sustained his reputation for honesty of purpose and fair dealing.

On August 14, 1871, Mr. Bowser was married (first) to Amanda Ross, daughter of Benjamin Anthony, of Valley Township. Of the children born to this marriage five grew to maturity, namely: Harry M., who is interested with his father in their various enterprises; Jessie, deceased, who was the wife of Samuel Purvis; Frank, who lives at home; Flodia Z., who married Wesley Kline, of Mars; and Forest, who resides at home. Mr. Bowser was married (second) to Christina Zimmerman, a daughter of Jeremiah Zimmerman, of Pine Township, now Boggs Township, Armstrong County, Penna. Mr. Bowser and family attend the Presbyterian Church. In his political sympathies he is a Democrat, but he takes no active interest in campaign work.

DETMORE W. DOUTHETT, whose magnificent farm of 225 acres lies in Adams Township, has spent the whole of his useful and busy life in Butler County, Penna., where he was born October 15, 1849. His parents were Benjamin and Rosanna (Rea) Douthett.

The Douthetts are of Irish stock and the grandfather, Benjamin Douthett, came to America from Ireland. Here his son Benjamin was born, one of a family of seven boys and two girls. The second Benjamin Douthett acquired a large amount of land in Butler County and became a very successful farmer. In his younger years he had the reputation of not only covering a wheat field with his cradle faster than any of his companions, but also outstripped them when the next part of the work was undertaken, on one occasion raking and tying 110 dozen sheaves of wheat in one day, a remarkable accomplishment. In 1880 he purchased the farm now owned by Detmore W., from Armstrong Irving, and owned other land at the time of his death, which took place after he had retired to Mars, when he was aged seventy years. His widow survived him some years. They had the following children: Anna, deceased, who was the wife of James Orr; Detmore Wallace; John A., deceased;

Mary, who is the widow of Levi Park; Amanda, who is the widow of Frank Ferguson; and Margaret, who is the wife of B. Owens.

Detmore W. Douthett was reared on the old home farm in Adams Township and assisted in finishing its clearing and later, after his father purchased the present farm, cleared it also. His education was not neglected and after he left the district schools he attended an academy conducted by Rev. Barnes. Later Mr. Douthett bought the farm on which he lives and here carries on general farming and stockraising. He has made all the excellent improvements on this property in the way of erecting substantial buildings, and is also developing oil on his land. He is one of the prosperous farmers and representative citizens of Adams Township.

On November 6, 1879, Mr. Douthett was married to Miss Sarah Jane Stoup, who is a daughter of James M. and Elizabeth (Crawford) Stoup. They have one child, Millie L.

The Stoup family is of German extraction and the grandfather of Mrs. Douthett, David Stoup, came to Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, from the East, and taught school for a number of years, being a scholarly man. James M. Stoup was born at Pittsburg and led an agricultural life, owning a farm in Allegheny County, which is the property of his widow, a highly esteemed lady, now in her seventy-eighth year, residing at Mars. In that town James M. Stoup died in 1896, aged seventy-three years. He married Elizabeth Crawford and they had three children: Sarah J.; Margaret A., wife of Albert Park; and Robert, who died in infancy.

DAVID L. KIRKPATRICK, formerly engaged in the coal and teaming business at Renfrew, now living retired after a life of most honorable activity, was born in Armstrong County, Penna., January 10, 1837, and is a son of John and Nancy (Larimer) Kirkpatrick.

James Kirkpatrick, the grandfather, came to Armstrong County, from Franklin County, about 1790, and settled on Cherry Run, some ten miles from the old Indian town of Kittanning. It was a courageous undertaking, for Indians still abounded and as the sequel proved, were yet dangerous. With the help of his nearest neighbors, although they lived many miles distant, he cleared a spot in the forest and there built a log house for himself and bride. On the morning of April 28, 1791, while a visitor was at the place, an Indian wounded him severely, while others surrounded the cabin indicating savage intentions. The annals of Armstrong County relate the events of this probably last murderous assault made in this section by Indians, and tell of how the babe of the family was injured in its mother's arms and how she, brave pioneer woman that she was, hastily molded bullets for her husband's musket, with which he watched through a loophole to ward off the assailants. He killed two of the savages and saw one escape into the forest and the party was seen no more. The visitor, a militiaman, was, however, fatally wounded. Grandfather Kirkpatrick lived for many years, served as a soldier in the War of 1812 and his remains peacefully lie in the old cemetery of the Glade Run Presbyterian Church near Dayton.

John Kirkpatrick, father of David L., was born in Armstrong County and died in 1856, when aged seventy-five years. By trade he was a carpenter and he worked also as a miller and farmer. His mill was located near Sewickleyburg. He sold his property there and moved to Allegheny City, where he lived for some years before retiring, and there he died. In politics he was a Whig; in religion he was a Presbyterian. His eight children have all passed out of life, with the exception of David L., who was the youngest. The others were: James; Mary, wife of David A. Renfrew; Andrew Robert; Elizabeth, wife of John Holland; Harriet, wife of Andrew Bangs; and William.

David L. Kirkpatrick was about ten years old when his parents moved to Allegheny and he was sixteen years of age when he accompanied his brother James to Center Township, Butler County, where he remained engaged in farming until after his marriage, when he located at what is now the pleasant village of Renfrew, but was then only a piece of the wilderness. There he engaged in farming for his brother-in-law, David A. Renfrew, for two years, and then settled on his father-in-law's farm, where he lived until 1862, when he enlisted for service in the Civil War. He entered Company E, One Hundred Sixty-ninth Regiment, Penna. Volunteer Infantry, and remained in service for nine months, until July, 1863, doing garrison duty at Yorktown. He was then ordered to join the Army of the Potomac and four days after reaching Gettysburg was given an honorable discharge. For a number of years after his return to Center Township he continued to farm there, but in 1886 he came to Renfrew, just after the excitement in this section owing to the discovery of oil. He established a coal yard and a teaming business, which his sons still carry on. As a coal merchant he was known from one section of the township to the other, so extensive was his business, his shipments for a time being three and four car loads a day. He retired from business carrying with him the cordial friendship and respect of those with whom he had had commercial relations covering more than a decade.

On October 16, 1858, Mr. Kirkpatrick was married to Martha J. Ramsey, who was born January 16, 1838. She is a daughter of James and Elizabeth (Maxwell) Ramsey, of Center Township, where her grandfather was one of the earliest settlers. Of the family born to Mr. and Mrs. Kirkpatrick, the following grew to maturity: William M. and Robert, residents of Butler; John L., residing at Renfrew; Leslie B., residing at Butler; Mary, wife of Lawrence, McCandless, living at Butler; Gertrude, wife of William McLaughlin, residing at Butler; and Everett M. and David L., residents of Renfrew. Mr. and Mrs. Kirkpatrick are members of the Second Presbyterian Church at Butler. He belongs to the Butler Post of the Grand Army of the Republic. In politics he is identified with the Republican party.

JAMES E. WISE, who is general manager of the Etna Manufacturing Company, one of Butler's important enterprises, which is engaged in the manufacture of gas and gasoline engines and oil and water pumps, is a practical machinist and the inventor of certain valuable devices in his line of work. He was born in 1870, in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, and has spent his life mainly in Butler and Armstrong Counties.

When Mr. Wise left school he entered the Ball Engine Works at Butler and served his machinist apprenticeship there and then was connected for one year with the Garvin Machine Company, in New York City, where he completed his training. During the two following years he was employed by the firm of Larkin & Palm, at Butler, and from there went to Pittsburg, and for some years was with the Westinghouse people. When he returned to Butler he bought an interest in the Etna Manufacturing Company and since 1903 he has been manager of the same and during these five years he has tripled the capacity of the plant. Mr. Wise has studied his trade on every side and has not been contented with being an expert workman and capable executive, but has been constantly experimenting and inventing new machines and methods. He was the first man to conceive the idea which he has embodied in several patented devices, notably his reversible belt driver and his pumping and pulling jack. These machines are made in all sizes and are in very general use.

In 1895 Mr. Wise was married to Miss Ella B. Thompson, of Butler County, and they have two children, Brooks and Paul. Mr. and Mrs. Wise are members of the Second Presbyterian Church of Butler. His fraternal connections are with the Knights of Malta, the Knights of Pythias and the Woodmen of the World.

GEORGE H. KNAELL, a leading business man of Mars, where he is conducting a grocery store with every evidence of success, has been a resident of Butler County since 1896. He was born on his father's farm in Illinois, December 16, 1872, and is a son of George and Rosa (Lauffer) Knaell.

The grandparents of Mr. Knaell came from Germany to Illinois and the father died when George Knaell was only six months old. He grew to manhood there and then purchased land of his own and married Rose Lauffer, who was a native of Pennsylvania. In 1878, when there was so much excitement in regard to the value of oil lands in Pennsylvania and especially in Clarion County, the parents of George H. Knaell sold their farm in Illinois and moved to Knox, Clarion County, Pennsylvania. The father engaged in drilling for a time in the oil fields but subsequently returned to farming and both he and wife still survive. Their children were: George H., Jacob, Lewis, John and Ida. Three children died young.

George Henry Knaell was six years old when the family came to Pennsylvania and he grew up on his father's farm in Clarion County and obtained his education in the public schools. When nineteen years old he went into the oil fields and followed tool dressing and drilling until 1902, when, with his brother Jacob, he engaged in a butchering business at Mars, which they continued for eighteen months and then sold out. Later, George H. Knaell bought his present well stocked store from John P. Miller and has done a fine business ever since. He has taken an active interest in the affairs of the borough and since 1906 has been president of the Board of Health. He has invested in property here and owns his business house on Pittsburg Street and a comfortable residence which stands on Spring Avenue.

In June, 1896, Mr. Knaell was married to Miss Anna Theiker, a daughter of the late Henry Theiker, of Adams Township, and they have two children: Kenneth and Eugene. Mr. and Mrs. Knaell are members of the United Presbyterian Church, in which he is a trustee. In politics he is a Democrat. Fraternally, he has membership with the order of Modern Woodmen.

ALBERT C. TROUTMAN, district attorney of the district including Butler, is a leading member of the bar of this city and the junior member of the law firm of Jackson & Troutman. He was born in 1875, at Butler, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Adam Troutman, one of the most prominent citizens of this section.

Mr. Troutman was reared in his native city and was graduated from her public schools in 1894. After this he entered Washington-Jefferson College, where he pursued his studies until 1898, when he was graduated with the degree of B. S. He then made a special study of the law, entering the law department of the University of Pennsylvania, where he was graduated in 1901. In the same year he was admitted to practice, in Allegheny County, opened an office at Pittsburg, and continued in the work of his profession there until April, 1903, when he came to Butler. Here he entered into a law partnership with John H. Jackson, under the firm name of Jackson & Troutman. Mr. Troutman's abilities have been recognized and appreciation shown by his election to the office of district attorney, in November, 1907.

In 1905 Mr. Troutman was married to Miss Lillian Miller, who is a daughter of G. Wilson Miller, of Butler, Pennsylvania. Mr. and Mrs. Troutman are members of the Lutheran Church.

JACOB DAMBAUGH, a leading citizen of Zelenople, who has large realty interests both in this city and in Butler County, was born in Jackson Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, April 22, 1848. He is a son of Adam and Christina (Goehring) Dambaugh.

The parents of Mr. Dambaugh were born in Germany, the father coming to America in early manhood, and the mother when seven years old. Adam Dambaugh resided for some years in Jackson Township, Butler County, from which he removed to Connoquenessing Township, where he owned a farm. He died in 1870, aged sixty-two years. His wife was a daughter of John Goehring, who had brought his family to Butler County in her childhood. To this marriage were born four sons and three daughters.

Jacob Dambaugh was five years old when his parents moved into Connoquenessing Township and he continued to make his home there until 1890, when he moved to Harmony and two years later to Zelenople, in the same year erecting his present comfortable residence and four other houses on New Castle Street and four on Spring Street. He still retains his valuable farm of 160 acres, situated in Connoquenessing Township, on which he followed farming and stock raising prior to moving to Harmony. He has also been more or less engaged in the oil business for some years. In all his enterprises he has shown the good judgment that marks the successful business man.

Mr. Dambaugh was married (first) to Miss Margaret Staff and they had six children, namely: Adam Edward, residing at Zelenople, is a widower and has four children, Ellen, Gertrude, Florence and Clarence; Peter Ezra, residing at Zelenople, married Miss Jeanetta Eicholtz and they have three children, Loring Grace and Thora; George Washington, residing at Ellwood City, married Miss Virginia Butler and they have two children, Marguerite and John; Laura Louisa married A. G. Eicholtz and they live at Zelenople and have one child, Margaret; Dora Matilda married Howard Zeigler and they live on New Castle Street, Zelenople, and have one child, Clayton Leroy; and Elizabeth Ellen, who still goes to school. Mr. Dambaugh was married (second) to Miss Sarah C. Haller, who was born in Jackson Township, Butler County, and is a daughter of Charles and Mary (Muntz) Haller. Mr. Haller was a well known miller.

Mr. and Mrs. Dambaugh are members of St. Peter's Reformed Church at Zelenople. In politics he is a Republican. He takes an active interest in public affairs, has served six years as a member of the town council at Zelenople and for many years he was a member of the School Board of Connoquenessing Township. For the past two years Mr. Dambaugh has been president of the German Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Zelenople. He is one of the town's best and most public-spirited citizens.

ROBERT M. ANDERSON, a leading citizen of Penn Township, residing on his well cultivated farm of fifty acres, on which there are three producing oil wells, was born near Prospect, in Franklin Township, Butler County, Penna., April 2, 1843, and is a son of James D. and Mary (Martin) Anderson.

The paternal grandfather, John Anderson, was born in Belfast, Ireland, and before coming to America, was engaged in business as a weaver of hosiery, but after he settled in Franklin Township, Butler County, he followed agricultural pursuits exclusively until the close of his life. He died in 1866, when aged eighty-nine years.

James D. Anderson, father of Robert M., was born near Belfast, Ireland, in 1816, and was sixteen years old when he accompanied his parents to America. They settled in Butler County in 1833 among the pioneers of Franklin Township. James D. Anderson engaged in a mercantile business at Prospect for some years, but his main business through life was farming. He was a man of high standing in his community and frequently was elected to offices of responsibility, serving in a number of local positions, and from 1876 to 1878 was registrar and recorder of Butler County. He and wife were prominent members of the Presbyterian Church, in which he was a ruling elder. He married Mary Martin, who was a daughter of Robert Martin. The latter came to Butler County from Ireland and for many years was a prominent farmer in Connoquenessing Township. He recruited a company for the War of 1812 and served as its captain. To James D. Anderson and wife were born eight children, the eldest of the family being Robert M. and the others following: John F., residing at Butler; Elzie H., residing at Pittsburg; Mary, widow of W. V. Seaman, residing in Penn Township; Elizabeth J., deceased, formerly wife of William Martin; Emma, deceased; William C., residing in Penn Township; and Margaret Florence, wife of Charles Graham, residing in Penn Township.

Robert M. Anderson has followed farming ever since he completed his school attendance, and he remained on the home farm until after his marriage. In 1878 he purchased his present property and carries on general farming and derives a good income, also, from his oil wells, his land seemingly being of value in whatever way he uses it. He has substantial buildings and comfortable surroundings.

Mr. Anderson married Martha Miller, a daughter of Philip Miller, of Penn Township, and they have three children, namely: Clarence O., who is a Presbyterian minister having a charge at Belleville, Mifflin County; Mary J., who is the wife of Jacob Henninger, of Butler; and Jessie A., who resides at home. The family belong to the First Presbyterian Church, Mr. Anderson being an elder.

In 1862, Mr. Anderson enlisted for service in the Civil War, and was in the army for nine months as a member of Company F, One Hundred Thirty-seventh Regiment, Penna. Volunteer Infantry, and is a member of Reed Post, G. A. R., at Butler. In politics he is a Democrat, as was his father before him, and he has served in a number of offices in the township, including school director, overseer of the Poor and as justice of the peace. He continues to be one of the township's respected and representative citizens.

A. C. ZIEGLER, a prominent citizen of Butler County, burgess of Mars and a leading business man of that place, of which he was postmaster for eight years, has been a resident of this county since 1888. He is a son of Christopher and Caroline (Schwab) Ziegler.

The father of Mr. Ziegler was born in Germany and was a young man when he came to America and settled in Clarion County, Pennsylvania, where he engaged in a lumber business and operated a grist mill, was a substantial business man. He married Caroline Schwab, daughter of Henry Schwab, a native of Germany, and they had eight children, two surviving to maturity, Edward and A. C. Edward Ziegler engaged in the oil business and went to Brush Creek during the height of the oil fever there, prospered, and later located at Mars, but died in Illinois, in 1906. The father died when his youngest son, A. C., was one year old and then the mother returned to her father's home in Venango County, where her boys were reared, but died at Mars in April, 1908.

A. C. Ziegler taught school in Venango Township for six terms, after completing his own education, and then became interested in the oil business. Later he sold his oil interests and with his brother went into partnership in a general store business at Mars, buying out the stock and good will of T. M. Marshall & Son. Nine months later the firm lost everything by fire and business was not resumed until after the Zieglers had built the present Ziegler brick block, when A. C. Ziegler conducted a shoe store for a time in that part of it now used by the Mars Bank, which has it under rental. At the present time A. C. Ziegler is still half owner of the building. Later he established his present business at the place where he now carries it on, having Ross Brown for a partner at first, and later, his present associate, C. H. Schwab, who bought the Brown interest. Mr. Ziegler has prospered in his business undertakings and for many years he has also been an influential factor in county politics. He has frequently served as a delegate to county and Congressional conventions of the Republican party, and locally has served as township auditor and as school director. Aside from his business at Mars, where he conducts a large clothing, gents' furnishing and shoe store, he serves as secretary and treasurer of the Planet Oil Company. As burgess he has given the town an excellent administration.

In September, 1897, Mr. Ziegler was married to Miss Mande Campbell, who is a daughter of James Campbell, and they have two children: Raymond and Laverne. Mr. and Mrs. Ziegler are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of which he is a trustee.

WILLIAM Z. MURRIN and JOHN MURRIN, lawyers, practicing under the firm style of Murrin & Murrin, sons of the late John and Mary (Fielding) Murrin, were born at Murrinsville. They received their preliminary educations at that place and their college educations at Grove City College.

William Z. Murrin was admitted to practice law in 1893 and in 1894 formed a partnership with Jacob M. Painter which continued until 1903 when the present partnership of Murrin & Murrin was formed.

John Murrin was admitted to practice law in 1900, and from that time until the formation of the partnership with his brother, already mentioned, in 1903, was associated with T. H. C. Keek, in the practice of the law.

Both subjects of this sketch are Democrats in politics, and members of the Roman Catholic Church.

AUGUSTUS FREDERICK WERNER, a representative agriculturist and prominent citizen of Adams Township, whose 140 acres of valuable land is divided into two equal farms, through both of which runs the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad line, was born in Germany, August 6, 1846, and is the eldest son of Ernest and Eva (Brining) Werner.

The parents of Mr. Werner were born in Germany, grew up in the same neighborhood and married there. The father was a tailor by trade. In 1853 the family came to America, safely landing in the United States after a tiresome voyage of five weeks on the Atlantic Ocean. They settled at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania. There were seven children born to Ernest Werner and wife, namely: Wilhelmina, who married Jacob Nixon; Maria, who married Uriah Cooper; Mary, who married John Trout; and Ferdinand, John, Henry and Augustus F.

Augustus F. Werner was seven years old when the family came from Germany. The father found no work at his trade in Pittsburg and on a peddler's wagon the family came on to Evans City and were given shelter over night with George Ifft, a fellow countryman. From there the Werners went on to the farm of Christian Metz, a former acquaintance and friend, who lived in Jackson Township, Butler County, for whom the father worked for the following three months. He then rented a farm in Adams Township, from Isaac Covert, lived on it for three years and then rented Henry Bolhorst's farm for four years, and later 100 acres from Thomas Wilson, also in Jackson Township. Four years later he rented a farm for two years in Cranberry Township, and then bought eighty acres on Connoquenessing Creek, in Forward Township. On that place the father died when aged seventy-five years. The mother survives and still enjoys life although aged eighty-nine years, being one of the most venerable ladies in Butler County.

While the family lived on that farm, Augustus F. Werner was married to Fannie Burr, of Forward Township, and then removed to his wife's mother's farm and conducted it for two years. He then, in 1878, purchased forty-five acres of his present farm, from Hayes Davis, and has put up all the buildings. When he started out for himself he had but $50, but he proved an excellent manager and invested in farm land from time to time, as he became able, and through his industry, frugality and forethought, has become a man of ample estate in his section. He carries on a general farming line and keeps cows for dairy purposes, shipping his milk to Pittsburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Werner have had eight children, three of whom died of an epidemic, within three weeks of each other. They were: Lewis, who was aged eleven years; Emma, aged nine years; and Amelia, aged seven years, all three being unusually bright and interesting children. The other five survive, as follows: John, who married Nancy Metz, now deceased, has one child, Mabel; Minnie; Laura, who married Frank Davis, has two children, Maria and Frances; and Charles and Nellie. Mr. Werner and family belong to the Lutheran Church, in which he is an elder. In politics, he is a Democrat and has frequently been elected to township offices, and has served in them honestly and efficiently.

CHARLES R. MILLER, one of Butler's enterprising business men, proprietor of the Miller Torpedo Company, both dealer and manufacturer, was born in 1877, at Carbon Center, Butler County, Pennsylvania, a son of James W. Miller.

Charles R. Miller was educated in his native county. As soon as he was permitted to leave school, he was anxious to provide for his own support and first worked in a meat market, going from there to the S. G. Purvis Lumber Company, and later was connected with a grocery store for one year. For two years he worked at the tin trade, leaving it when an opportunity was offered to enter the employ of the Humes Torpedo Company as bookkeeper, and he remained with that concern for six years. Each position he had held had taught him something and after his experience with the torpedo company he decided to engage in the same line of manufacture. As soon as he could complete his arrangements he established the Miller Torpedo Company, at Freedom, Beaver County, continuing alone until he concluded to take a partner and retire from the service, and in the fall of 1907, he admitted E. J. Wallace to partnership and the latter has charge of the works. Mr. Miller has had his home in Butler for about twenty-two years.

In November, 1896, Mr. Miller was married to Miss Kate Wagner, of Columbus, Indiana, and they have two children:

James V. and Charles Russell. Mr. Miller is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a Thirty-second Degree Mason, a Knight Templar, member of the Mystic Shrine at Pittsburg, Blue Lodge at Rochester, Pennsylvania, and of the Commandery and Consistory at Pittsburg. He belongs also to the Elks.

DAVID FORSYTHE, one of Penn Township's representative agriculturists and most respected citizens, resides on his excellent farm of fifty acres, which he has placed under fine cultivation. Mr. Forsythe was born on this farm, July 31, 1850, and is a son of James and Elizabeth (Anderson) Forsythe.

James Forsythe was born in County Derry, Ireland, December 11, 1805, and was a son of John and Martha (Marshall) Forsythe. His father died in Ireland. After which the mother accompanied her son to the United States. From Philadelphia to Butler County, the travelers came by wagon, stopping for a short time in Indiana County, but subsequently coming on into Penn Township, where James Forsythe invested in 212 acres of uncleared land, one-half of which he later sold to his brother, John Forsythe. Before coming to America, James Forsythe followed the trade of weaver, but afterward he devoted himself entirely to farming. He married a daughter of James Anderson, who was an early settler near Evans City, and to James Forsythe and wife were born six children, namely: Martha, deceased, wife of John Henry; John A.; Eleanor, deceased; James and Robert, twins, the former of Lawrence County and the latter deceased; and David, of Penn Township. The parents were members of the Covenanters' Church.

David Forsythe has always resided on the old homestead and cherishes his memories of the kind but strict father and the gentle, loving mother who for many years presided over a home that was a particularly happy one. With his brothers and sisters he attended the country schools and did his part in carrying on the farm work. Since he has engaged in farming for himself he has devoted the larger part of his land to the cultivation of corn and oats and raises sufficient stock for his own use. He is a good, law-abiding citizen but takes no active interest in politics. For many years he has been united by membership with the Reformed Presbyterian Church of North Union and has served as one of its trustees.

JOHN STEVENSON, a well known oil producer of Parker Township, residing on his farm near Bruin, Pennsylvania, was born December 5, 1851, near Sunbury, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Michael M. and Elizabeth (Greer) Stevenson, and a grandson of Samuel Stevenson, the family being of Irish extraction.

Michael M. Stevenson settled in Parker Township a short time previous to the Civil War and for a number of years resided near Bruin, but later removed to Cherry Township, where his death occurred several years ago. Of the children born to Michael M. and Elizabeth (Greer) Stevenson four survive, namely: Samuel, who resides in Clay Township; James, who lives in Cherry Township; John, living in Parker Township on the homestead, and Sarah, residing near Sunbury.

John Stevenson was reared in his native township, and his education was secured in the public schools of Bruin. In early manhood he engaged in agricultural pursuits, in which he has continued to the present time, and for a number of years he has also been successfully connected with the oil industry. A Prohibitionist in his political views, Mr. Stevenson has taken more than ordinary interest in local matters, and he is also prominently identified with educational interests of Parker

Mr. Stevenson was married to Nancy A. Hall, a native of Butler County, Pennsylvania, and they have had eight children, as follows: Michael M., Lucy May, Thomas L. (deceased), James C., Minnie B., Hattie B., Eva G. and John M. Minnie B. is teaching school in Parker Township. Lucy May has also taught in Parker Township. Minnie B. is a graduate of Slippery Rock State Normal School. Lucy May, possessing musical talents, is a teacher on the piano. Michael M. is a producer of oil and also a tool dresser. James C. is interested in wells with his father and is making the oil business his special feature. Eva G. and John M. are both pupils of the Bruin High School.

Mr. Stevenson is a member of the Protected Home Circle Lodge of Glenora. He belongs to the Methodist Episcopal Church, of Bruin, and is now serving as a steward and trustee. He is known as a man of honesty and integrity and has many warm personal friends throughout the township.

LOUIS WOHLGEMUTH, whose fifty acres of valuable land is situated in Adams Township, has been a resident of Butler County since 1896. He was born December 12, 1856, in Alsace-Lorraine, France, and is a son of Frederick and Mary (Kuhn) Wohlgemuth.

Mr. Wohlgemuth's life record contains many interesting details. He comes of an old military family and of one that has followed the blacksmith trade through generations. His great-grandfather was a blacksmith, and his grandfather, Louis a blacksmith in a cavalry regiment in the service of the great Napoleon. Frederick Wohlgemuth, the father, was a native of fair Alsace-Lorraine, as had been his father, and he owned his own shop and for years prospered in his trade. For seven years he served in a French artillery regiment. He died in France, in 1875, aged sixty-two years, survived by his widow until 1902. They had three children: Frederick, who died in France in 1908; Charles, who came to America in 1871, is a minister of the Evangelical Association faith and is connected with the Ottawa Circuit, in Ohio; and Louis.

When Louis Wohlgenuth was three years old he was sent to school and he attended regularly until he was fourteen, France at this time being under the rule of Napoleon III. When his father judged that his son had acquired sufficient book knowledge, he took him into his shop in order to instruct him in the family vocation, and there young Louis remained until he was eighteen years of age, by which time he had become an expert worker at the trade. He then took a trip, as was the custom, to practically demonstrate his skill, and this journey led him through his own country, through Switzerland and Italy and also through a portion of Germany. Thus he reached his twenty-second year and on account of the disturbed conditions in his native land, the French having just then been overcome by the Germans, he began to think of the great country across the Atlantic Ocean, to which many of his comrades had already departed. The Germans began to fill up their depleted regiments with the young men of France, compelling the latter to serve, and Mr. Wohlgenuth was even drafted into the German horse artillery. He determined then to leave his own country rather than serve in the army of its conqueror, watched his opportunity and deserted from the German regiment, took passage on the ship St. Lawrence, and after a voyage of eleven days, reached the United States. Ten years later this ship that brought him to freedom was wrecked.

Mr. Wohlgenuth located in Pittsburg, Penna., where he worked at his trade for four years and then bought a shop at Etna, in Allegheny County, which he conducted for seven years. In 1881, during his residence in Allegheny County, he joined the Pennsylvania State Guards, becoming a member of Company E, Eighteenth Regiment, in which he served for four years and in which he became so expert in sharpshooting that he secured a medal. He finally retired from the service on account of an injury done to his thumb which prevented his handling a gun in a soldierly manner. After selling his shop at Etna, Mr. Wohlgenuth opened one at Myoma and conducted it for four years and then sold out and bought his present farm from the Marburger estate, and has followed general farming ever since.

On October 30, 1901, Mr. Wohlgenuth was married to Miss Lydia Kline, who is a daughter of Nicholas and Elizabeth (Berringer) Kline. Her father was born in Bavaria, Germany, in 1816, and came to America when aged twenty-two years and for twelve years lived at Harmony, Butler County. He then bought a farm in Forward Township, on which he died in 1893. He married Elizabeth Berringer, who was born in Hesse, Germany, in 1830, and died in 1903. They had four children: Mary, wife of George Hartung; and John, William and Lydia. Mr. and Mrs. Wohlgenuth have two children: Alma Elizabeth, born April 26, 1903; and Paul Frederick, born February 27, 1907. Formerly Mr. Wohlgenuth was a Lutheran, but later he united with the Evangelical Church. In politics he is a Republican and he has served his township very efficiently as supervisor.

In 1891 Mr. Wohlgenuth paid a visit to his old home but he found it no longer French and was advised that if he remained he would be subjected to a heavy fine and made to serve in the German army. Hence he immediately departed for Switzerland and there he had some difficulty in drawing money from a bank on account of having no one to identify him.

This identification was finally made in a curious way. In his youth an old Irish sailor frequently visited his father's shop and while there tattooed the arm of Louis Wohlgenuth with its owner's name, and years afterward this indelible mark served to relieve Mr. Wohlgenuth from an unpleasant position.

JOSEPH M. McCANDLESS, master mechanic, with the Standard Plate Glass Company, at Butler, has been identified with this large business enterprise since the spring of 1890. He belongs to an old Butler County family and was born March 12, 1867, in Connoquenessing Township. The McCandless family has been connected with this section for generations.

Joseph M. McCandless was reared to be a farmer but his tastes and talents lay in another direction, and after the close of his school period, he went to Pittsburg and there served an apprenticeship of three years with the old Fisher Foundry and Machine Company. For one year longer he worked as a machinist at Pittsburg and then came to Butler, where he was in the employ of the Ball Engine Company for three months, on March 24, 1890, coming to the Standard Plate Glass Company, starting in at lathe work and being advanced until he was made foreman and for several years has been in his present responsible position, of master mechanic.

Mr. McCandless was married (first) in 1893, to Miss Cora Renno, who left three children, Mary, Margaret and Milton. Mr. McCandless was married (second) in February, 1908, to Myrtle Gillman. They are members of the German Lutheran Church.

JOHN LECHNER, one of Butler Township's most esteemed citizens, now living retired after a long and successful agricultural life, still retains his valuable and fertile farm of 100 acres. Mr. Lechner was born in Wurtemberg, Germany, January 10, 1831, and is a son of John Michael and Christina (Renner) Lechner.

John Michael Lechner was born in 1785 in Germany, and in 1842, accompanied by his wife and their four children, came to America and in the same year settled in Donegal Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania. He was a pioneer in this section and found wild conditions prevailing, but he possessed German thrift and industry and before his death, in 1869, had converted his land into valuable property. Four of his children grew to maturity, namely: Mary, now deceased, was the wife of Gottlieb Soossa; Margaret, deceased, was the wife of Henry Hoover; Catherine, deceased, was the wife of John Frederick; and John, who is the only member of his family now living. John Michael Lechner was an elder and trustee in the German Lutheran Church at Millerstown.

John Lechner was reared and attended school at Donegal Township. He remained on the home farm until 1884, when he bought his present property in Butler Township, which was formerly known as the old Tracy farm. About sixty acres are under cultivation and the land yields large crops of corn, oats, wheat and hay, and since the father has retired it is managed by the sons.

Mr. Lechner married Catherine Fredericks, a daughter of Peter Fredericks of Summit Township, and of their eight children, the following survived childhood: Christina, residing at home; Christian, residing on the farm in Donegal Township; Peter, residing at home; Adam B., operating the home farm, who married Emma Manny and has one child, Della; William, and Catherine, residing at home; and Caroline, wife of John A. Pierce, a resident of Lisbon, Ohio. Mrs. Lechner died September 11, 1902, aged sixty-nine years. The family is a leading one in the German Lutheran Church in this section.

Mr. Lechner is a very intelligent and well informed man and takes much interest in general matters, but he is no politician. He has long been identified with the old-time Democratic party. In 1864 he became a member of Company D, Ninety-seventh Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and served from September into the following year when the Civil War closed.

GEORGE A. KAUFFMAN, whose valuable farm of ninety acres is situated in Adams Township and lies on both sides of the Evans City road, near Callery, carries on general farming and dairying and is numbered with the substantial men of this section. He was born August 27, 1852, in Beaver County, Penn., and is a son of Albert and Elizabeth Kauffman.

The parents of Mr. Kauffman were both born in Germany. The father was ten years old when he accompanied his father, Casper Kauffman, to America, and until the close of his life he called the six weeks spent on the Atlantic Ocean as a most wonderful experience. His father settled in Beaver County, Penn., and continued to reside on a farm until his sons had all left home, when he retired to Rochester, where he worked at his trade, that of tailor, until the close of his active life. He had the following children: Casper, Albert, George, Catherine, Emma, Mary, Sarah and Elizabeth. George Kauffman served as a soldier in the Civil War and at present resides in Ohio.

Albert Kauffman was the eldest son of the above family to reach manhood. After leaving home he bought a small farm in Beaver County and conducted a store in connection with tilling his land. Later he rented a farm in Butler County for three years, and then sold his Beaver County farm and bought 227 acres in Adams Township, Butler County, from Charles Gibson. He completed its clearing and continued to improve it as long as he was in active life. He died here in 1884, aged sixty-six years. His wife had come to America in girlhood, and was forty-two years old at the time of her death. Their children were: Sarah; John; George Albert; Rachel, who married Calvin Davison; Samuel; Mary, who married Lafayette Dunbar, deceased; Emma, who married David Davison; Catherine, who married Milton Garvin; and Albert, who died young.

George A. Kauffman was young when his parents moved to Butler county, and he remained on the home farm and subsequently inherited fifty acres of it, to which he later added forty more acres by purchase from his brother Samuel. It is all fine land and Mr. Kauffman has devoted himself to its careful cultivation. Since 1884 he had been engaged in the dairy business and ships his milk to Pittsburg and Allegheny.

On December 12, 1876, Mr. Kauffman was married to Angeline Dobson, who is a daughter of Solomon Dobson, and they have eight children, namely: Blanche, who married Frank Neeley, has one child, Helen; Catherine, who is the widow of Harry Hepler; Ira, deceased; Birda, who married Laura Miller; Alva, deceased; and Beulah, Mary and Mildred. Mr. Kauffman and family belong to the Presbyterian Church. In politics he is a Republican. He has always taken a hearty interest in educational affairs in his township and at present is serving as a school director and has been a member of the Adams Township School Board and also the Callery School Board.

S. W. GREER, a member of the firm of Greer & Garroway, manufacturers of packing boxes, is numbered with Butler's representative business men. He was born November 10, 1853, in Jefferson Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Thomas Greer. The late Thomas Greer, father of S. W., was born in Ireland and was brought to America by his parents when eight years of age. He came to Butler County in 1823, working first as a carpenter and later becoming a farmer.

S. W. Greer learned the carpenter's trade with his father and for some years engaged in carpenter work and then entered into a general contracting business. In 1888 he came to Butler and for three years was engaged in a dairy business and then embarked in a manufacturing line, making handles for about a year. From that he started into the manufacture of packing-boxes and conducted a profitable business for some years, and later entered into partnership with Mr. Garroway, since which time the business has been expanded, trade relations extended and larger quarters secured. Mr. Greer is interested in the East Oakland Land Company, being a large stockholder.

In 1881 Mr. Greer was married to Miss Emma C. Graham, of Dauphin County, Pennsylvania, and they have six children: Mary, Clara, Julia, Isabel, John and Thomas. Mr. Greer and family are members of the English Lutheran Church. In his political views he is a Republican.

SAMPLE LOVE, a successful general farmer, residing in Butler Township, where he is known for his progressive methods and excellent business capacity, was born February 26, 1853, in Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Samuel and Mary Ann (Crosby) Love.

The father of Mr. Love was born in County Derry, Ireland, where he was instructed in the art of weaving and worked at that trade until he was eighteen years of age, when he came to America and shortly afterward bought a farm in Summit Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania. Hiring men to work his farm, he took the contract to carry the mail between Butler, Franklin, New Castle, New Brighton and Beaver Falls, and for thirty-five years he continued this duty with fidelity to the Government and faithfulness to the people who put their interests into his hands. In 1855 he bought a farm in Butler Township but continued to carry the mail until 1876 and after giving up that work he retired to private life. In politics he was a Democrat. He married Mary Ann Crosby and they had the following children: James, Robert, Jane, Rachel, Mary, Elizabeth, Rebecca and Sample. The parents were members of the United Presbyterian Church.

After completing his school attendance in Butler Township, Sample Love spent one year learning the work of a carpenter, but has devoted the main part of his life to agricultural pursuits. During the Civil War, when but nine years old, he assisted his father in carrying and protecting the mail, riding on horseback. After his marriage he settled on a rented farm and now cultivates sixty-five acres of fine land which, under his management, yields enormously. He keeps ten head of cattle and sells his milk by the wholesale. After raising enough produce and grain to feed his stock he yearly has a surplus to sell. Mr. Love has proven himself an excellent business man and considers his success in great part due to his industry combined with his real interest in farming. He is a good citizen, but his farm and the demands of his family always come before any political concerns in the community, and while others may be seeking office, he is deciding on methods to increase the production of his land. Mr. Love votes the Democratic ticket.

In young manhood Mr. Love was married to Nancy J. Campbell, and they have had thirteen children born to them, namely: Dora, Mary, Alice, Charles, Lizzie, William J., Ella, Florence, Gertrude, Samuel, Harry W., Myrtle, Grace and Frank. Mr. Love, with his family, attends the United Presbyterian Church.

JOHN M. ELRICK, cashier of the First National Bank, and a highly esteemed citizen of Harrisville, was born April 30, 1860, at Harrisville, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Dr. and Mary Jane (Black) Elrick.

Dr. Elrick was born in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, where he obtained his early education. After graduating from Jefferson College of Philadelphia he came to Butler County, locating at Harrisville, and was the first physician to locate in that vicinity. He married Mary Jane Black, whose father conducted a store at Harrisville, and of their union were born the following children: Elizabeth, married James Walker of York, Pennsylvania; John M., the subject of this sketch; Robert, a physician of Petrolia, Pennsylvania; Ernest R., a druggist of Harrisville, and two who died during infancy. Dr. and Mrs. Elrick are still residents of Harrisville.

John M. Elrick attended the common schools of Harrisville and later took a course of study at Grove City, after which he engaged in the drug business at Harrisville for some time. He then sold the business to his brother and engaged in the oil business until 1903, when he became cashier of the First National Bank of Harrisville, the bank having been established at that time.

Mr. Elrick is a Democrat in politics and has served five years as justice of the peace of Harrisville. He is a member of the Masonic Order, Grove City Lodge No. 603, and his religious connection is with the Presbyterian Church.

CHARLES GERLACH, whose death took place November 27, 1907, was one of Butler County's prominent business men and the owner of the largest dairy farm in this section of Pennsylvania. He was a man who was respected for his business integrity and was esteemed for his virtues as husband, father, neighbor and friend. Mr. Gerlach was born in Germany, a country which has contributed many citizens of worth to America, on December 12, 1842. His parents were Jacob and Gertrude Gerlach.

In 1852 Charles Gerlach accompanied his parents across the Atlantic Ocean to America. They settled on a farm in Butler County, Pennsylvania, not far from Harmony, and after examining property in various directions, finally bought a farm which was situated about three miles west of Butler, and on that farm Charles Gerlach grew to manhood. While he remained at home he assisted his father, but when he had reached his legal majority, he started out to accumulate for himself, and for several years worked hard in the oil country. When possessed of sufficient capital, he embarked in a mercantile business at Mt. Chestnut, which he continued there for three years and then transferred his business to Greece City, for another three years, going from there to St. Joe for three years and then spent three years in the same line at West Sunbury. From that place he removed to Euclid and after seven years of merchandising there, went into the creamery business. This industry Mr. Gerlach carried on very successfully on his farm near Harrisville, but the time came when he needed better facilities, finding these and also a rich outlying territory in Slippery Rock Township, where he acquired 253 acres of fine land, together with a second farm, three miles distant, of 156 acres. In his sons, Mr. Gerlach found steady, industrious young men and he associated them with him and the dairy and creamery business is continued with yearly increasing prosperity. After coming to this property, a modern, finely-equipped creamery was built and seventy cows are kept to supply the milk. It is a very large industry and its products are known all over the county. The farm is conducted along modern lines and scientific methods. Two valuable silos have

On November 1, 1870, while engaged in his mercantile business at Mt. Chestnut, Mr. Gerlach was married to Miss Margaret A. Hutchison, who is a daughter of George and Mary (Larimer) Hutchison. Mrs. Gerlach was born and reared in Oakland Township, Butler County, belonging to one of the old and prominent families of that section. To this union eleven children were born, as follows: William C., who died aged thirty years; Edward McCune, who died aged eleven months; Blanche, who married Samuel Bovard, of Mercer Township, and has six children—Kenneth, Aileen, Hilda, Ray, Donald and Paul; Frank, who is manager of the home farm; George A., who died aged twenty-six years, married Jennie Morrison and left two children, Norman and George; Cora, who married Brice Miller, has three children, Clara, Catherine and Abna; Charles, who resides at home; Harvey, who married Luella Bortz, and has two children, Irvin and Harveta; and Roy, Elmer and Clair, all at home.

Mr. Gerlach was a man of resolute will and a practical habit of mind and also possessed great energy, all these things or he would not have been able almost by himself, to have become a man of such ample fortune and a leading factor in every community in which he lived. For political affairs he cared very little but he gave to schools and religious enterprises and was particularly liberal to the Lutheran Church, with which he had been united for many years.

JAMES B. VANCE, oil producer, one of Butler's most substantial citizens, has been identified with the oil industry almost continuously since he entered into business. He was born in 1855, at West Sunbury, Butler County, Pennsylvania. His father, David Vance, was born at Baltimore, Maryland, but lived in Butler County from early manhood. David was a tailor by trade.

James B. Vance attended school in his native place until he was seventeen years old and then started out for himself, going immediately to the oil fields. He assisted in putting down the first wells in the Foxburg oil district. Ever since he has been concerned in oil production, being interested at times both in Pennsylvania and New York, and at the present writing (1908) he has producing wells in Clearfield Township, Butler County, and is engaged in drilling in Concord Township. He is one of the experienced oil men of this section and has been wise in his selection of fields for operating. He has also made investments in real estate in the northern part of Butler, where he has erected and sold a number of residences. He takes quite an interest in politics, being a Republican, but seeks no political honors.

In 1877 Mr. Vance was married to Miss Martha Jane Allen, a native of Butler County, and they have three children, namely: Nina, who is the wife of John J. Martin, of Dayton, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, and has one son, Arthur Vance; Clarence Bert, a resident of Butler; and Gertrude, residing at home. Mr. Vance and wife are members of the First Presbyterian Church of Butler.

WILLIAM L. SPEAR, who, for a number of years lived the life of a retired citizen of Butler, for many more years was an active business man at different points and through a long life he displayed those qualities which brought forth the respect and esteem of those with whom he was associated. He was born in Berks County, Pennsylvania, and died at Butler, in 1872, aged sixty-one years. His father was William Lindsey Spear, formerly a resident of Williamsburg, Blair County, Pennsylvania. He was born October 30, 1811, and died November 24, 1872.

of manufacturing pig iron, with Henry Spang, whose daughter he afterward married, and following his marriage he built a furnace and forge, at Rockland, in Venango County and did a large business for those days. In 1848 he sold that plant and came to what is now Rough Run, in Winfield Township, Butler County, where he built a furnace and continued to operate it until 1856. From there he moved to Tronton, Ohio, where he continued in the furnace and iron business until 1864, when he came to Butler County. For a number of years he was in business at Tidionte, but his health failed and he retired to Butler.

Mr. Spear married Miss Elizabeth M. Spang, who was a daughter of Henry Spang, who was a man of wealth which he gained through the manufacture of iron. There were eight children born to this marriage, seven of whom grew to maturity, namely: Matilda E., who is the widow of Judge James Bredin, of Butler; Henry S., deceased; Annica H., deceased, who was the wife of George Hosford, of Tronton, Ohio; Charles W., who resides at Indianapolis; Mary J.; Frank D., deceased; and Clarissa, deceased, who was the wife of W. E. Lawrence. William L. Spear and wife were members of the Presbyterian Church. He was a strong supporter of the Republican party from its beginning and in early days was interested in what is termed the Under-ground Railroad. He was a member of the Odd Fellows, at Butler.

LEWIS RADER, one of Forward Township's most substantial citizens, resides on a finely improved farm of 145 acres. He was born at Petersville, Butler County, August 15, 1858, and is a son of Peter and Caroline (Sheaver) Rader.

Peter Rader was born in Germany, and shortly after his first marriage, emigrated to the United States; he settled on a farm near Middle Lancaster, in Butler County, Pennsylvania, where he was living at the time of his wife's death. He formed a second union there with Miss Caroline Sheaver, who also was born in Germany, and was eight years old when her father, Henry Sheaver, moved with his family to the United States. In the spring of 1858, Mr. Rader moved to Petersville, Butler County, and settled on the farm now owned by his son, William H. Rader, in Forward Township. In 1894 he and his wife retired from farm life and located in the village of Petersville, where Mrs. Rader died in 1900, at the age of sixty-eight years. He survived her some five years, dying in the city of Butler in 1905, at the age of seventy-four. He was a hard-working, industrious man, and accumulated a handsome property, being the owner of some three hundred acres of land at his death. He and his wife were parents of the following children: Mary, wife of George Briggie; Margaret, wife of Ferd Feigel; Lewis; Elizabeth, wife of William May; Emma, deceased wife of James Steen; and William H.

Lewis Rader spent his boyhood days on the home farm in Forward Township, and when a young man learned the carpenters' trade, which he followed for eight years. He also worked in the oil fields for a time, and prior to his marriage lived for one year at Akron, Ohio. He purchased his present farm of 145 acres from Jacob Galbach, and is engaged in general farming. In connection with his brother, William H. Rader, he is the owner of 640 acres in Lawrence County, Pennsylvania. He has eight producing wells on his home farm, from which he derives a good income, and he and his brother are owners of the Rader Gas Company of Petersville.

May 8, 1882, Lewis Rader was joined in marriage with Margaret Stewart, a daughter of Thomas and Mary Ann (McBride) Stewart, and they are parents of four children: Mabel; Harriet, wife of Albert Spithaler; Precious, and Anna. Religiously, the family belongs to the Reformed Church. Mr. Rader is a Republican in politics.

F. J. HUFF, one of Butler's substantial and representative business men, who handles his own real estate and carries on a contracting plumbing business, was born December 29, 1854, at Niles, Michigan. When Mr. Huff was about twelve years old, his parents moved to South Bend, Indiana, a bustling, busy, industrial city, and there he completed his school attendance and began learning the plumbers' trade when he was seventeen years of age. He then went to Cleveland, Ohio, where he lived for seventeen years, carrying on a plumbing business in that city until March, 1887, when he came to Butler and established himself in business as a contracting plumber. His work has stood the test of time and he is recognized as one of the most capable and reliable contractors in his line.

In 1877 Mr. Huff was married to Miss Theresa Kline, of Cleveland, and they have two children: Forest, who is a baritone opera singer with New York as his home; and Frank Henry, who is a dental surgeon practicing at Cleveland, Ohio. Mr. Huff is a member of the fraternal order of Foresters.

WILLIAM PRINGLE, oil producer in Butler Township, was born in Liberty Township, Mercer County, Pennsylvania, December 5, 1851, and is a son of James R. and Phebe (Braden) Pringle.

James R. Pringle was born in County Armagh, Ireland, and was eighteen years of age when he came to America with his parents. William Pringle remembers his venerable grandfather, who died in Liberty Township, aged eighty-five years, when he was a boy of sixteen. James R. Pringle kept a store in Mercer County for some fifteen years after his marriage and he served also as a justice of the peace there for some ten years. He resided during this time at Portersville, where he also had a hotel. Later he came to Butler and engaged in a grocery business but retired from activity some years before his death, which occurred in 1892, when he had reached the age of seventy-two years. He married a daughter of Robert Braden and they had seven children, namely: George, deceased; William; Margaret, who married William M. Dickason, of Quincy, Illinois; Hezekiah B., who resides in Illinois; James M., who is also a resident of Illinois; Ida M., who married J. R. Woodruff, of Quincy, Illinois; and one died in infancy. The parents of this family reared their children in the faith of the United Presbyterian Church. By a second marriage Mr. Pringle had two sons, Robert S. and Frank.

William Pringle was reared and educated in Mercer County. In 1872 he began work in the oil fields and in 1883 he began operating on his own account, on his present farm of thirty acres. As he has eight producing wells, he does not pay a large amount of attention to agriculture.

Mr. Pringle married Lucretia Kistler, who is a daughter of John G. Kistler, of Leechburg, Union County, and they have two children—James R., residing at home; and Ralph B., living at Butler. Mr. and Mrs. Pringle are members of the United Presbyterian Church. In politics, he is an independent voter, casting his ballot for the candidate who, in his opinion, will best carry out the laws of the land. Fraternally, he belongs to the Odd Fellows and Encampment at Butler, to the Elks, Royal Arcanum and the Pathfinders. He is one of the substantial and representative men of his section.

EUGENE E. WICK, a prominent and representative farmer of Mercer Township, is descended from sterling German ancestry, and was born on the old home place in Harrisville, June 4, 1852. He is a son of Robert Kerr and Bulina (Rathbun) Wick and a grandson of Daniel Wick.

The Wick family was originally established in this country by the great-grandfather of our subject, he having emigrated from Germany and located in New Jersey. Daniel Wick, grandfather of Eugene E., at an early period came from New Jersey and settled on a large tract of land in Mahoning County, Ohio, where he subsequently died. He served in the War of the Revolution. He reared a family of six children: Anna, married Isaac Kimmel; Robert, father of our subject; Mary, wife of J. T. Hurst; Daniel M.; Phoebe J., married a Mr. Seaton; and H. H., all of whom are now deceased.

Robert Kerr Wick was born in Coitsville, Mahoning County, Ohio, and was reared under the parental roof, remaining at home until about nineteen years of age. He early in life engaged in business for himself, first as a peddler of tinware, later on making and selling wind mills. In 1837, when about nineteen years of age, he located in Harrisville, where he remained until after his marriage, when he purchased a farm in Mercer Township, where he followed farming and sheep raising the remainder of his life. He dealt in sheep on an extensive scale and had at one time 5,000 head. He became a man of affluence and prominence and was classed among the enterprising citizens of Butler County. In political affiliation he was a Republican and also an ardent supporter of the temperance cause, which eventually caused him considerable trouble and much loss, his barn having been destroyed by fire by the anti-temperance people. Robert Wick was united in marriage with Bulina Rathbun, a resident of Crawford County, Pennsylvania, who died in 1895, aged seventy-five years. Mr. Wick died in 1902, aged eighty-four years. Six children were born to the parents of our subject: Mary, died in infancy; Elizabeth, widow of S. B. Bingham; Clara, married R. L. Brown;

Eugene E., subject of this sketch; Eva; and Margaret.

Eugene E. Wick was reared in Harrisville and received his elementary schooling in the public schools. He then attended Grove City College and Oberlin College at Oberlin, Ohio, after which he looked after his father's business affairs for him. Mr. Wick owns two tracts of land, consisting of 240 acres, in Mercer Township, and follows farming in a general way. He was married January 5, 1885, to Mary A. Matthews, a daughter of J. C. Matthews, of Mill Brook, Mercer County. They have one daughter, Edna Almira, a student at Grove City College. Mr. Wick and family are members of the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Wick is a director and one of the promoters of the First National Bank of Harrisville. In politics, he gives his support to the Republican party.

JOHN JOHNSTON, formerly one of Butler County's most esteemed citizens, was born in Penn Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, in 1849, and died at his home in Butler, February 1, 1907.

Mr. Johnston grew to manhood on his father's farm in Penn Township and obtained his education in the local schools. He followed farming for many years but later, when his land was found to be particularly rich in oil, he moved to Mars and leased his land for oil production. A number of wells proved profitable and one of these from the start produced 1,200 barrels of crude oil a day. This brought Mr. Johnston an ample fortune. After living three years at Mars, in 1906, he came to Butler, in order to give his children better educational advantages, and here his death took place in the following year.

In 1898 Mr. Johnston was married to Miss Eleeta Graham, who was born, reared and educated in Butler County, a daughter of Eli Graham, a member of an old family of Jefferson Township, where he was born in 1847. He moved to Butler to educate his children and resided in this city until 1904, when he removed to Allegheny County and still lives there. To Mr. and Mrs. Johnston were born three daughters and one son, namely: Garnet May, Thelma Ruth, Grace Rebecca, and John, the latter of whom is deceased. Mrs. Johnston is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Butler and takes an active interest in its various benevolent agencies.

Z. P. LAUFFER, contract driller and oil producer, of the firm of Bredin & Lauffer, at Butler, has been a resident of this city since 1889, during the larger part of this period being a leading business citizen. He was born at Greensburg, Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, in 1863.

Mr. Lauffer was eight years old when his parents moved to Parker's Landing, in Armstrong County, where he was reared and obtained his education. Like many another youth, he was not very old when he started out to take care of himself and at that time the oil fields invited labor of all kinds. He began as a boy of all work, with John McCune, and later began contracting for drilling on his own account, working for a time in McKean County and Washington County, after which he came to Butler and entered into partnership with E. M. Bredin, in general contracting drilling. This firm has done a heavy business and in late years have devoted much attention to drilling for oil in the hundred-foot district and the Armstrong and Westmoreland gas fields, which has proved very profitable in Armstrong County, as has their drilling for oil in Indiana and other fields. Mr. Lauffer has devoted his whole mature life to this work and few men are more competent in this particular line. He is a man of ample fortune, gained through his own efforts, and is one of the stockholders of the Butler Banks.

In 1893 Mr. Lauffer was married to Miss Sarah Dumbaugh, of Connoquenessing Township, Butler County. He is a member of the Episcopal Church. For many years he has been prominent in Masonry, has attained the Thirty-second degree and belongs to Blue Lodge and Chapter at Butler, and to the Commandery and Consistory at Pittsburg.

EDWARD C. SLOAN, who has been the engineer at the Butler County Home, since February, 1904, has had years of experience in his profession and enjoys the reputation of being something of an expert. He was born in Parker Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, February 17, 1871, and is a son of David R. and Sarah E. (Bixler) Sloan.

David R. Sloan was born in 1847, in Allegheny Township, Butler County, and is a son of Andrew J. Sloan, who was born there in 1818. The Sloans came to that section as pioneers. For twelve years David R. Sloan engaged in teaming for the Standard Oil Company, after which he lived in Butler Township for a few years and then settled on our subject's farm in Connoquenessing Township. He married a daughter of George Bixler and they have five children, namely: Elmer, residing at Prospect; Edward C.; Annie, wife of John Edmundson, of Connoquenessing Township; Emma, residing at Zelienople, is the widow of George Welch; and Harry, residing at home. David R. Sloan and family belong to the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a Republican in his political faith.

Edward C. Sloan was reared by a careful father and good mother and obtained his education in the public schools. He first went to work in the Hyde Park Steel Works, as a fireman, later became assistant machinist and from there went into the oil country in Butler County, where he served as foreman and ran engines and had all possible training in this particular line of work. For four years he also operated a coal bank. In February, 1904, he became the engineer at the County Home in Butler Township, where he manages three boilers, each 62½ horse-power high pressure and a 10 horse-power high pressure vertical engine, together with a steam pump to use in case of fire.

While Mr. Sloan claims that he is no politician, he takes a hearty interest in the success of the Republican party and while living in Connoquenessing Township, he was elected twice to the office of register-assessor. He is a popular member of the order of Odd Fellows, at Prospect.

CHARLES MYRON BROWN, postmaster and a life-long resident of Harrisville, Butler County, Pennsylvania, was born in this village January 1, 1844, and is a son of William and Isabella (Leech) Brown.

Ebenezer Brown, grandfather of Charles M., was one of the pioneers of Butler County, coming from Huntingdon County, Pennsylvania, with his brother James in 1794. They located on a tract of 600 acres in Mercer Township and married the Porter sisters, whose father owned the adjoining farm. Ebenezer remained on this farm, engaged in agricultural pursuits, until his death at the age of sixty-seven years. He was the father of the following children: Alexander, Jane, William P., Samuel, James, Ebenezer, John P., Elsie and Joseph, all now deceased.

William P. Brown passed his boyhood days on the farm in Mercer Township and later became a cabinet maker, acquiring his knowledge of that trade in Mercer County, Pittsburg and Philadelphia. In about 1834 he came to Harrisville, where he successfully conducted a cabinet and undertaking establishment until his death in 1882. He married Isabella Leech, who died in 1857 aged thirty-nine years, and to them were born the following children: Charles Myron; Harriet J., deceased; Eveline S., deceased; Robert; Margaret, deceased; and William. Mr. Brown formed a second union with Sarah Van Dike; no children were born of this union. Mr. Brown was first a Whig in politics and afterwards a Republican. He was a well known anti-slavery man, being the first anti-slavery voter in this section of the county, and assisted many a negro in making his way to Canada. He was a man of public spirit and enterprise, but never sought or cared to run for office. He was also an ardent supporter and leader of the temperance cause.

Charles M. Brown was reared and has spent his entire life in his native town, Harrisville. Here he engaged in his father's trade of cabinet making until 1877, when he devoted his time to farming for some years. He owns a fine farm of 110 acres in Mercer Township. In 1862 Mr. Brown enlisted in Company F, One Hundred Thirty-fourth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, under Capt. Breckenridge, and later, in 1864, re-enlisted in Artillery No. 212 and served until the close of the war. He participated in many battles and skirmishes, including Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville, but escaped injury. He is now a member of the G. A. R. He is a Republican in politics and during President McKinley's administration was appointed postmaster at Harrisville and has served continuously in that capacity since 1899.

July 1, 1867, Mr. Brown was united in marriage with Margaret Jane Hill, a daughter of Thomas M. Hill, and to them have been born the following children: Anna H.; Sarah Isabella; Lewis; Elizabeth E., who married F. L. Wilson and has three children—Robert, Charles and Lewis; Thomas M., deceased; Margaret E.; and John C. Mr. Brown and family are members of the United Presbyterian Church of Harrisville.

EDWARD L. OESTERLING, who has been a resident of Butler for twenty-one years and during all this time has been connected with the business conducted by George Schenck, was born in 1867, in Summit Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Adam Oesterling and a grandson of John Oesterling. The grandfather was born in Germany and came to Butler County in 1830. His son, Adam Oesterling, was born in Summit Township, in 1836, and is a well preserved man of seventy-two years, making his home with his son, Edward L. During his active life he followed farming.

Edward L. Oesterling completed his education in the district schools in Summit Township and when nineteen years of age left the farm and came to Butler to learn the carpenter's trade. He entered the plant of George Schenck and has continued with him ever since, for the past fourteen years being his foreman. Mr. Oesterling is a master carpenter and has under his control a large force of skilled workers. He is interested to some degree in other business enterprises. In 1892 Mr. Oesterling was married to Margaret Grolman, of Butler, and they have two children: Inez and Donald. With his family, Mr. Oesterling belongs to St. Mark's German Lutheran Church.

SAMUEL McBRIDE LESLIE is a prominent farmer of Middlesex Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, where he owns a valuable farm of 175 acres. He was born in that township, March 31, 1868, and comes of an old and respected family of the community. He is a son of Samuel A. and Rebecca E. (McBride) Leslie, a record of whom appears elsewhere in this work, and a grandson of Alexander and Sarah (Allen) Leslie.

Samuel M. Leslie was reared on the farm settled by his great-grandfather in Middlesex Township, and attended the public schools of that vicinity. At an early date he went into the oil country and for some ten years worked as an oil driller with good success, his efforts yielding handsome returns, and of this he was enabled to save a goodly part. In 1898 he purchased his present farm of 175 acres, 140 of which is under a high state of cultivation. He raises some corn, oats and wheat, but hay is his principal crop, selling some seventy-five tons annually. He keeps an average of fifteen head of cattle and feeds about twenty-five head of Berkshire hogs, this proving an especially remunerative branch of his business. He is an energetic and progressive farmer, employing modern and approved methods, and believes that the head should be used in farming as well as the hands. That farming along scientific lines is a success has been demonstrated by the results he has obtained.

Mr. Leslie was united in marriage with Miss Mary Morrow, a daughter of L. L. Morrow of Richland Township, Allegheny County, and they have four children: Russell Wallace; Margaret A.; John Morrow; and Mary Ellen. Religiously, they are members of the Bakerstown Presbyterian church. He is a Republican in politics.

ROBERT JOHN CONLEY, a leading citizen of Valencia, who is serving in his second term as justice of the peace, has been a resident of Butler County, Pennsylvania, since he was eighteen years of age. He was born in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, October 21, 1851, and is a son of John P. and Jane (Dawson) Conley.

John P. Conley was born in West Deer Township, Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, on the farm on which his father, Nathan Conley, had settled, securing the land from the State. This farm subsequently became his own and he continued to reside there until 1869, when he moved to Butler County and settled on a farm in Adams Township. He married Jane Dawson, of Allegheny County, and they had seven children born to them, as follows: Mary, deceased, who was the wife of John Aber; Robert John; Sarah B., deceased; James Ross, Andrew T. and Joseph D., all surviving; and a babe that died.

Robert John Conley was eighteen years of age when his parents moved to Butler County and about this time he went to Pittsburg and during his two years of residence there, learned the blacksmith trade with Ralph White. He then returned to Butler County and opened a shop on his father's farm in Adams Township and conducted it successfully for five years, selling out in order to engage in cultivating a farm which he had purchased in Penn Township. Two years later he sold that property and bought another farm, near Valencia, and later also sold that, after which he embarked in a feed business and continued it for four years. During a number of years he has been serving in various offices, having been elected frequently by the Republican party, of which he is an active member. As a justice of the peace he has given the utmost satisfaction and has administered his office faithfully and judicially.

In 1876 Mr. Conley was married (first) to Miss Anna McMillen, who died in 1891, survived by six children, namely: Jennie M., John Clyde, Estella B., Joseph Earl, Catherine B. and Margaret. His second marriage was to Samantha Crawford, who was the daughter of R. H. Crawford. Mr. and Mrs. Conley are members of the United Presbyterian Church.

WILLIAM SHEPARD, one of Middlesex Township's most prosperous and influential farmers, was born on his present farm May 26, 1841, and is a son of Robert and Hannah (Miller) Shepard, both natives of England.

Robert Shepard and his wife were married in England, and after the birth of their second child emigrated to America. They located in Allegheny City, Pennsylvania, which at that time consisted of but three or four houses, and there worked at his trade as a plasterer. He subsequently located on the farm which is now the home of our subject and lived there the remainder of his days. He had served seven years' apprenticeship at the plasterers' trade, and enjoyed a wide reputation for the character of his work. It was a recognized fact that he never slighted his work and was skilled beyond the average, and as a result he was called frequently to points many miles distant from home. Among the most important contracts he had were those for plastering the Butler County Court House, and the old penitentiary at Allegheny. Robert and Hannah (Miller) Shepard became parents of eight children, six of whom grew to maturity, as follows: John, now deceased; Betsey, who married Samuel Dunbar, both deceased; Mary, widow of Fred Garroux, lives near Bakerstown; Hannah, wife of Samuel Waddell, lives in Iowa; Jane, widow of Thomas Waddell; and William, subject of this record. Religiously, the parents of this family were members of the Bakerstown M. P. Church.

William Shepard was reared and educated in Middlesex Township, and has always engaged in agricultural pursuits. In addition to the home farm of sixty-four acres in Middlesex Township, he has a tract of twenty-one acres in Richland Township, Allegheny County, and another of eighty acres in West Deering Township, Allegheny County. He follows general farming, raising hay and the small grains. He is a man of wide acquaintances, and enjoys the respect and good will of his fellow citizens.

Mr. Shepard was joined in hymen's bonds with Elizabeth Jane Halstead, a daughter of Henry Halstead of Clinton Township, and the following are the issue of their union: Robert, of Middlesex Township; James, M. D., who is engaged in practice at Findlay, Ohio; Emma, wife of William Whitesides of Middlesex Township; and William Clarence. Religiously, the children are members of the Presbyterian church. Fraternally, Mr. Shepard was a member of the Bakerstown Lodge, I. O. O. F., until it was disbanded. He is a Republican in his political views.

L. C. NORTHIME

MRS. ANNA H. NORTHIME

L. C. NORTHIME, a prominent farmer and respected citizen of Donegal Township, who for many years has been identified with various enterprises of this locality, was born December 25, 1868, and is a son of Dilman and Christina (Hasler) Northime.

Dilman Northime and wife were both natives of Germany and among the early settlers of Butler County, Pennsylvania. Frederick Hasler, the maternal grandfather of our subject, was one of the first physicians to locate in Butler County, coming from Germany at an early period. He first located at Hannahstown, subsequently settling on the farm now owned by the subject of this sketch, here passing the remainder of his life. His daughter, Mrs. Northime was just six years of age when he came to Butler County. Seven children were born to the parents of our subject, namely: Pauline; Louisa; Frederick; Levina; Katherine; L. C., and Flora.

L. C. Northime was born and reared and has spent his entire life on his present farm. His early boyhood days, like those of most boys on a farm, were spent in assisting with the farm work and attending the common schools. The farm on which he resides was inherited from his mother, who died in 1894, aged fifty years. He also owns a tract of forty-nine acres in Donegal Township, and on this land has three oil wells in operation. In connection with his farming interests, he is also interested in several other business enterprises, is a stockholder in the Chicora Brick & Tile Company, operates a gas plant of his own, supplying gas for many of the residents in the township, and is also engaged in the oil business.

In 1899 Mr. Northime was united in marriage with Mrs. Anna Harvey, a widow, who was born in England, and to them have been born three children: Ester L.; James C.; and John F. The religious connection of the family is with the German Lutheran Church of Chicora. Mr. Northime is also interested in Producers' Oil Company, Ltd., and U. S. Pipe Line Company, and Pure Oil Company.

J. L. GARROWAY, of the manufacturing firm of Greer & Garroway, makers of packing boxes at Butler, is one of the city's enterprising business men. He was born in 1862, at Worthington, Armstrong County, and there obtained his education and grew to manhood.

As soon as he left school, Mr. Garroway learned the carpenter's trade, at which he worked for about eighteen years, up to the time that he entered into partnership with Mr. Greer in the box manufacturing business. Their plant is located on Kittanning Street, near the city limits, their enterprise having developed into one of considerable magnitude. Mr. Garroway has taken a hearty and intelligent interest in all that concerns the welfare of the city in which he has invested in property, and has served nine years as a member of the School Board. In politics he is a Republican.

In 1888 Mr. Garroway was married to Miss Ella Mary McKee, who was of Worthington, Armstrong County, and they have had six children, namely: Jessie, who is a popular teacher in the Butler schools; Grace and Blanche, both of whom are students in the Butler High School; and Lucile, James M. and Ruth. The family belong to the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Garroway is an Odd Fellow and belongs to both the minor order and the Encampment.

ALFRED R. NELSON, a well known citizen of Middlesex Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is engaged in agricultural pursuits and owns a fine farm of 100 acres. He was born on his present farm April 7, 1861, and is a son of Richard G. and Adaline (Morrison) Nelson.

Richard G. Nelson came to Butler County, Pennsylvania, late in the fifties from Evergreen, Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, being probably a native of that county. Upon his arrival here, he located on the farm in Middlesex Township now owned by his son, Alfred R., and there spent the remainder of his days in agricultural pursuits. He was a man of strong personality and enjoyed high favor with his fellow-citizens. A Democrat in politics, he was elected to various offices of trust in the Township. He married Adaline Morrison, a daughter of James Morrison, and they became parents of eleven children, of whom eight grew to maturity: Ellen, widow of Joseph Hays of Butler; James; William, of Washington; Clara, wife of John Harbison, of Richland Township, Allegheny County; Alfred R.; Edward; Adaline, wife of Grant Morrow of Valencia; and Minnie, wife of R. A. Lee, lives on a part of the old homestead. Religiously, the parents of this family were members of the Middlesex Presbyterian Church.

Alfred R. Nelson was reared and educated in Middlesex Township, and as a young man worked in the oil country as a teamster. In 1897, he purchased his present farm, a part of which formed a portion of the old homestead. He has nearly 100 acres, all of which is under a high state of cultivation and devoted to general farming. Mr. Nelson is a man of ability, a hard worker and an able manager, and well merits the success with which he has met. He is independent in politics, giving his support to the men he believes best fitted for the respective offices, without regard to party affiliation. He served three years as supervisor of the township, and is now serving as constable.

Alfred R. Nelson was joined in marriage with Miss Mary Truver, a daughter of J. C. Truver of Middlesex Township, and they are parents of four children: Herman E. of Allegheny; Florence, wife of Joseph Croft of McKees Rock; Roy; and Harry. Religiously, they are members of the Mt. Olive church at Adams. In fraternity attachment, the subject of this sketch is a member of Evans City Lodge No. 817, I. O. O. F.

JOSEPH HENRY COCHRAN, who has been justice of the peace of Harrisville continuously since 1899, was born in this village November 5, 1877, and is a son of William C. and Josephine (Ludwig) Cochran.

William C. Cochran, the father, was born about six miles north of Harrisville in 1829 and is a son of James Cochran, who was killed in Kentucky when William was but a lad of four years. The mother shortly afterward removed her little family of six children to Harrisville, where William was reared to manhood. At the age of twenty he went to Pittsburg, where he learned the trade of cigar making, at which he worked until 1864. He then enlisted with the First West Virginia Regiment and served until wounded at the battle of New Market. He subsequently spent about twenty years in the West and South and in 1869, after his marriage in Kansas to Josephine Ludwig, he returned to Pennsylvania and located in Harrisville. William and Josephine Cochran became the parents of the following children: Nora, deceased; Mary, deceased wife of John Frew; Grace, wife of Thomas Martin; Joseph Henry, and William. Mrs. Cochran passed out of this life in the spring of 1907 at the age of sixty-nine years. William Cochran is one of the oldest residents of Harrisville and is held in esteem by all who know him for his sterling worth.

Joseph H. Cochran received his early education in the common schools of Harrisville, supplementing this with a two years' course at Grove City. He then engaged in the cigar making business and in 1899, when just twenty-one years of age, was elected justice of the peace of Harrisville and is still serving in that capacity. He has proven himself a worthy and capable official and at the time of his election in 1899 was the youngest man in the State of Pennsylvania elected to serve in that capacity. He was at one time a candidate for the Assembly but was defeated.

Mr. Cochran is a member of the P. H. C. lodge, also the Junior Order of American Mechanics, and is secretary of both lodges. He holds membership with the Presbyterian Church, of which he is treasurer and trustee. February 12, 1900, he was united in marriage with Myrtle Flemming, a daughter of Hugh Flemming, and their union has been blessed by three children, Edna, Harold and Florence. Mr. Cochran and his family reside in a pleasant home on Washington Street.

JOHN H. KISON, oil producer, has been a resident of Butler for some five years and is one of the city's most substantial citizens. He was born in 1854, at Worthington, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania.

Mr. Kison has been identified with the oil business since early manhood, going to the oil fields as soon as he completed his school attendance. He began operations at Parker, in Armstrong County, and his operations have extended into many States, including the different sections of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Illinois, Indian Territory and Kansas. For about twenty-five years his brother, H. A. Kison, was associated with him and they have been interested in from forty to fifty fields at one time. Mr. Kison has other interests and is a stockholder in the Butler County National Bank.

In 1882 Mr. Kison was married to Miss Sadie Starr, a member of one of Butler County's old pioneer families. They have one son, Herbert S., who is a student in the Western University of Pennsylvania, at Pittsburg. Mr. Kison is a man of high personal standing and is a member of the First Methodist Episcopal Church at Butler. He is not particularly active in politics, but takes the interest in public affairs which inspires every good citizen.

JOHN M. McBRIDE, Justice of the Peace and general farmer, in Franklin Township, Butler County, Penna., was born on his present farm of 112 acres, December 20, 1847, and is a son of John and Mary (McCandless) McBride.

John McBride was born in County Antrim, Ireland, and was the youngest member of his parents' family. He was small when his father, William McBride, brought his family to America and settled near Grove City, in Mercer County, Penna., where he lived until his death. John McBride was reared in Mercer County and remained there until his marriage, when he came to Franklin Township and settled on the farm now owned by his son. At the time when he built his first log cabin here, wild conditions prevailed, the country being just about as Nature had made it, few settlers having yet ventured so far from civilization. He became a member of the Republican party, taking a deep interest in politics as the most of our pioneer forefathers of intelligence did, and he was many times elected to responsible local offices. His wife Mary was a daughter of John McCandless, of Franklin Township, and seven of their nine children grew to maturity, namely: Margaret, deceased, who was the wife of J. B. Long; Julia, now deceased, who married Robert McBride; John M., subject of this sketch; Mary, deceased, who married James Meehan; Nancy and Keziah, twins, the former of whom married James Elliott, of Franklin Township, the latter residing with her sister; and Delilah, deceased, who married Leander Sankey. The parents of this family were leading members of the Muddy Creek Presbyterian Church, of which he was a trustee. John McBride died June 30, 1884.

John M. McBride was reared and educated in Franklin Township and has given attention to agricultural pursuits ever since he was a boy. His large farm is well adapted to the raising of corn, oats, wheat, hay and potatoes, for which he utilizes seventy acres, and also to the growing of cattle, hogs and sheep, at the present writing his pastures showing seven cows, twenty hogs and forty sheep.

Mr. McBride married Mary Black, who is a daughter of John and Ann Eliza (Gould) Black of Concord Township, and they have nine children, as follows: Minnie, who is the wife of William Lutz, of Euclid, Pennsylvania; John and Samuel C., who live at home; Elizabeth, who married James Martsof, of Brady Township; W. Dewitt, who is a teacher in Brady Township; Harold Q., who resides at Rochelle, Illinois; Robert L., who is a teacher in Concord Township; and Edith and Hadassah, both of whom are at home. Mr. McBride and family belong to the Presbyterian Church at Muddy Creek, of which he has been a trustee.

In politics Mr. McBride is a Republican and for many years he has taken an active part in party councils and public matters in his section. In 1903 he was elected to the office of justice of the peace and was subsequently re-elected and will serve until 1913. He is one of the representative men of this part of Butler County and is held in general esteem.

RICHARD ERNEST ELRICK, a well known druggist and prominent business man of Harrisville, has been a lifelong resident of this village and was born December

Dr. J. H. Elrick was born and reared on his father's farm in Indiana County, Pennsylvania, and after leaving school taught for some years. He then entered Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia and after graduating, located at Harrisville, where he embarked in the practice of his profession. For a period of fifty years, Dr. Elrick continued his practice in Harrisville, commanding an extensive and lucrative patronage, and is now at the age of eighty years living in retirement in the enjoyment of a well earned rest after years of unceasing activity. He married Mary Jane Black, whose parents came to this country from Ireland, and settled in Harrisville, where the father conducted the first general store established in that locality. Dr. and Mrs. Elrick reared a family of four children: Elizabeth, wife of J. A. Walker; John, cashier of the First National Bank of Harrisville; Robert, who is practicing medicine at Petrolia, and is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania; and Richard Ernest, the subject of this sketch.

Richard E. Elrick was reared in his native town and obtained his primary education in the common schools, supplementing this with a course of study in pharmacy at the Ohio Normal University at Ada, Ohio. After graduating in July, 1893, he returned to Harrisville and worked in the drug store owned by his brother John, until 1898, when he purchased the business, in which he has continued with much success since that time.

On April 20, 1908, Mr. Elrick was united in marriage with Carrie Crawford Bingham and has one child, Margaret. By a former marriage he had two children, Mary and Richard. Mr. Elrick is one of the leading young business men of Harrisville; he is a man of public spirit and enterprise and is held in high esteem by his fellow citizens. In politics he is a Democrat.

RESIDENCE OF S. L. BRAHAM, HARRISVILLE

SAMUEL WALKER GLENN, general contractor, doing a large and satisfactory business at Butler, is a representative citizen, owner of property and supporter of public-spirited enterprises here. He was born December 27, 1847, at West Sunbury, Butler County, Pennsylvania.

William Glenn, father of Samuel W., was born in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, and was yet a young man when he came to Butler County and settled down to farming, which was his occupation through life.

Samuel W. Glenn remained on the home farm until he was eighteen years of age and in the meanwhile had secured a good education in the schools of West Sunbury. He then went to Michigan, where he followed farming for eleven years and after returning to Butler County he went into general contracting, which has been his business ever since.

In 1867 Mr. Glenn was married to Miss Emma McCandless, who belongs to one of the old county families. They have eight children, namely: Eva, who is the wife of J. T. McCandless, of Center Township; William M., of Kingman County, Kansas; Nannette, who is the wife of Samuel Thompson, residing in Mexico; Earle C., who follows contracting at Butler; Lina, who is the wife of J. H. Shaffer, of Butler County; and Harriet, Roy and Estler, all residing at home. Mr. Glenn and family are members of the Second Presbyterian Church at Butler.

SAMUEL LUTHER BRAHAM, who is engaged in general farming and dairying on a tract of 215 acres in Mercer Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, was born May 26, 1851, on the old farm near Forrestville, Butler County, and is a son of William P. and Rebecca (Snyder) Braham.

Samuel Braham, grandfather of our subject, was but two years old when he came to this country with his parents from Ireland. His parents located on a farm near New Castle, where he was reared and became a farmer by occupation. He married Mary Patton and in 1834 moved to Butler County and settled on a farm near Forrestville, where he remained until late in life, when he removed to Slippery Rock, where he died at an advanced age. He was the father of sixteen children, of whom William Patton, the father of Samuel L., was among the oldest.

William P. Braham was born on his father's farm, near New Castle, January 6, 1824, and was about ten years old when his parents moved to Butler County. He was reared near Forrestville and became a farmer by occupation. He bought and sold stock on an extensive scale, and became possessed of large landed interests, having at one time about 1,000 acres of land. He was elected to the Legislature in 1880 and served during the sessions of 1881-2. He was married to Rebecca Snyder, who was reared near Slippery Rock and died December, 1904, aged seventy-nine years. William Braham passed out of this life August 27, 1907, aged eighty-five years. They became the parents of eleven children, but seven of whom grew to maturity: Mary, wife of W. H. Orr; Deborah married John Orr; Samuel Lather, our subject; Sarah, married Dr. D. J. Washabaugh; Isabella, wife of Dr. A. M. Davis; Rebecca, who married W. E. Brown; and Ida May, who is the wife of J. R. Black.

Samuel Luther Braham, the subject of this sketch, has spent his entire life on a farm, engaged in agricultural pursuits. Like most other boys reared on a farm, he spent his time in assisting with the work and attended the schools of that locality. He remained on the home farm until after his marriage in 1872, when he located on his present farm, which is part of the homestead place. Here he follows general farming and dairying, having about fifty head of cattle. Mr. Braham has recently completed a fine, large, nine-room, brick residence and has one of the best improved farms in the township.

On March 12, 1872, Mr. Braham was joined in marriage with Louisa Cochran, a daughter of Charles Cochran, a well known resident of Butler County. Six children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Braham, namely: Graee R., who teaches in Knoxville, Tennessee; Ruth teaches in the Butler County schools; William married Minnie King and has four children, Francis, Ruth, Edna, and Eleanor (he resides on the home farm, which he farms in partnership with his father); Charles C., married Minnie Cochran and has one child, Luther C.; Olive F., attending Westminster College; and Louisa, who died, aged five years. The religious connection of the family is with the United Presbyterian Church, and Mr. Braham is politically a Prohibitionist.

ROBERT WALKER STEWART, whose excellent farm in Penn Township, on which is a fine gas well, contains ninety-four acres of valuable land, was engaged in general farming and stock raising until 1904, when he retired from active work. He was born in Brady Township, Butler County, Penna., May 9, 1841, and is a son of Robert and Lydia Elizabeth (McNees) Stewart.

Robert Stewart, father of Robert Walker, was born in New Jersey, a son of John Stewart, who was also a native of that State. During his younger years he taught twenty terms of school, in Butler County, to which he came in boyhood, with his parents. Later, Robert Stewart engaged in farming on Muddy Creek, and in 1849 he bought the farm on which his son, Robert Walker, now resides. It contained 107 acres and was a wild tract of land at that time, covered with forests, and deer were plentiful. He was a man of strong and sterling character and, being better educated than many of his neighbors, was often offered local offices, and consented to serve as school director and township auditor, but when made a justice of the peace he declined the honor. He was a strong Whig in his political views. Both he and wife were active in the early religious movements in the township and he was one of the founders of the Middlesex Presbyterian Church, becoming a ruling elder in the same. He married a daughter of Taylor John McNees, of Worth Township, and they had a family of eleven children born to them, nine of whom survived infancy, namely: James, who lives at Manchester, Delaware County, Iowa; Amanda, now deceased, who was the wife of the late John Fisher; John and Isaac C., who are both deceased; Joseph, who was a member of Company H, One Hundred Second Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, during the Civil War, died in the army; Robert Walker; George W., now deceased; Lydia Elizabeth, residing at Evans City, who is the wife of Alfred Dumbar; and Mary Rebecca, now deceased.

Robert Walker Stewart has always resided on the home farm, with the exception of three years following his marriage. He obtained his education in the early schools and this was supplemented by excellent home training. His main interests have always been identified with agricultural pursuits and during his many years of activity he brought his land to a high state of cultivation and production.

Mr. Stewart married Annie A. Rasely, a daughter of Matthias and Priscilla Rasely, of Connoquenessing Township, and they had ten children, all but two of whom reached maturity, namely: Sylvia Lauretta, who married R. K. McGowan, of Connoquenessing Township; James H., who is a resident of West Virginia; Laura May, who married David Walker; Albert

F., deceased; Lydia Eva, who is the wife of David Stevenson, of Connoquenessing Township; Nettie P., who married Thomas Watson, of the same township; Frank E., who resides at Seattle, Washington; and Cecil A., who is a stenographer for the Grove City College. Mr. Stewart and family belong to the Middlesex Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Stewart has always been a loyal citizen and during the Civil War he served one year in the Union army, enlisting in September, 1864, in Company B, Sixth Pennsylvania Heavy Artillery. He is a member of Reed Post, G. A. R., at Butler. In politics he is a Republican. He has served as township collector and for eight years was overseer of the poor, before the County Home was established. He stands as one of Penn Township's leading and representative citizens.

DR. WILLARD BURTON CAMPBELL, vice-president of the First National Bank of Harrisville, has been successfully engaged in the practice of his profession in this village since the fall of 1897, and is one of the influential citizens of this locality. He was born August 25, 1869, on a farm in Forest County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Perry and Abigail (Glenn) Campbell.

Perry Campbell, father of our subject, was born in 1845 in Fairview Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Robert Campbell, who settled in Butler County at a very early period. Perry Campbell was one of a family of five children: Lorina; Samantha; Shepherd, who served in the war; Perry, father of our subject; and Milton, who died in the army. Perry was reared on a farm by his uncle, with whom he remained until 1861, when he enlisted in the army. He served until the close of the war, participating in many battles and skirmishes and enduring many hardships, being imprisoned for some time in the well known Andersonville and Florence prisons. After the close of the war he married Abigail Glenn and located on a farm near North Washington, where he was engaged for many years in general farming. During President McKinley's administration he was appointed postmaster of West Sunbury and still serves in that capacity, having proved himself a worthy and efficient officer. He is the father of three children: Willard Burton, our subject; Melvin, who is engaged in the real estate business at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania; and Claude, who is proprietor of a hardware store at West Sunbury.

Willard Burton Campbell was reared in Butler County, his parents having removed here and located on a farm in Cherry Township, when he was a mere babe. His primary schooling was obtained in the common school, this being supplemented with a course at West Sunbury Academy, from which institution he graduated in 1893, after which he taught in Cherry Township, Brownsdale and Fairview for about five years. During that period he began reading medicine with Dr. H. D. Hockenberry at West Sunbury. In 1894 he entered the Baltimore Medical College, from which he graduated three years later, after which he embarked in the practice of his profession in the borough of Harrisville, where he enjoys a large and lucrative practice and has won the confidence and esteem of his many friends and patrons. In connection with his profession Dr. Campbell is vice president of the First National Bank of Harrisville, having held that office since the organization of that institution in 1897.

In 1899 Dr. Campbell was joined in the holy bonds of wedlock with Jennie Stewart, a daughter of Levi and Charlotte Stewart of West Sunbury, and to them have been born the following children: Charlotte, Malcolm and Paul. Politically, Dr. Campbell is a Republican. He has served as a delegate to the State Convention and is at present president of the Harrisville Borough Council. He is fraternally a Mason, No. 603 Grove City, and also the Butler County Medical Society. Dr. and Mrs. Campbell hold membership with the Presbyterian Church of Harrisville.

CASPER SHERMAN, proprietor of the Sherman Baking Company at Butler, with business quarters on Center Avenue, is one of the leading business men of this city, in which he has resided since the summer of 1876. He was born near Frankfort, Germany, in 1843.

When fourteen years of age Mr. Sherman came to America and for a time he attended school, quickly learning the English language. When the Civil War broke out he was one of the first to offer his services, in April, 1861, escaping from home in order to enter the Union army. His first enlistment, which covered three months, was in Company K, Fifth Regiment, Penna. Volunteer Infantry, and during this period he was located at Washington City and Alexandria, Virginia. In the meanwhile his people had moved to Butler and he joined them there, but three months afterward he re-enlisted for three years or during the war, entering Company I, Seventh Regiment, Penna. Volunteer Cavalry. At the close of his three years of brave and loyal service, he was veteranized and continued in the army until the end of all hostilities. He saw much hard service and had two horses shot from under him, but received only a flesh wound. He was one of that immortal army that marched to the sea under General Sherman.

After the close of the war, Mr. Sherman went to work in an iron foundry in Allegheny City, where he continued until 1876 and then came to Butler, where he later opened up a bakery and confectionery business. This he has developed into a very large enterprise, dealing both wholesale and retail, and shipping to many points. He is at the head of the company, the other members of which are his three sons, all

On March 18, 1869, Mr. Sherman was married to Miss Elizabeth Knapp, of Pittsburg, and they have six sons and two daughters, as follows: Harry K., who married Maud Adsit; Amelia W., who is the wife of N. C. McCullough, a prominent attorney of Butler; Joseph D., who married Ora Kennedy, of Butler; William N., who married Lola Stamm; John C., who married Catherine Dutter; Francis Edward, who is a member of the Phoenix Engraving Company, at Pittsburg; Elizabeth C., who is the wife of Raymond E. Reed, a druggist at Butler; and Walter S., who resides at home. Harry, Joseph and John C. are all associated with their father. Mr. Sherman and wife are members of the First English Lutheran Church and at one time he was a member of its official board. He belongs to the Union Veteran League. Probably there is no man in Butler who is held in higher regard as to business honesty and personal integrity than Mr. Sherman.

MRS. JOSEPHINE CAMPBELL, oil producer and capable business woman of Penn Township, is descended on both paternal and maternal sides from early pioneers of Butler County, the Bartleys, the McGees, the Adams' and the Haggertys being names borne by many of this section's most useful and prominent people.

John Bartley, father of Mrs. Campbell, was born near Bedford Springs, Penna., and was a son of Robert and Margaret (Adams) Bartley. Grandfather Bartley served with Commodore Perry on Lake Erie, in 1812, and before the war settled in the southeastern part of Penn Township, Butler County. He conducted a distillery, which, in those days, was an entirely reputable business, and he became a man of large means. John Bartley was five years old when his parents settled in Penn Township, where he attended the early schools and then went to Philadelphia, where he learned the blacksmith's trade and worked at that business for seven years before returning to Butler. He was married in Penn Township to Henrietta McGee, and it was one of the most important social functions that had taken place in this section for many years. The guests numbered more than 400 people, coming from adjoining counties to participate in the festivities, the young people being very popular. After their marriage, John Bartley and wife moved to Armstrong County, where he followed his trade. They had eleven children, of whom ten grew to maturity, namely: Hugh; William, deceased; Robert, who died in the Civil War; Mary and Eliza, both deceased; John, residing in Colorado; Josephine; Margaret, deceased; Mrs. Isabella Jones, residing in Pittsburg; and Letitia, wife of Fred Allen, residing at Los Angeles, California. The family was reared in the Roman Catholic Church.

In 1875 Josephine Bartley was married to William J. Campbell, at Freeport, Armstrong County. Mr. Campbell was born at Buffalo, New York, January 18, 1851, and is a son of William and Sophia (Bell) Campbell. His parents came to America from Scotland, where his mother was born in May, 1815. She survived until March, 1907. The father of Mr. Campbell was a bookkeeper and was employed in business houses in Buffalo. William J. Campbell was one of a family of eight children, the fifth in order of birth, and was the first one born in the United States. He learned the carpenter's trade and in 1869 he came into the oil country and followed tank setting. After marriage Mr. and Mrs. Campbell lived for three years at Buffalo and then came to Bradford, Pennsylvania, where they resided for six years. In 1890, Mrs. Campbell and her husband started into business as oil producers and located first at Golden City, near Saxonburg, and in 1898 they purchased what are locally known as the Shiloh Wells, in Penn Township. They have seven producing wells at this point and eight on the Sammel Kelly farm in Butler Township.

Mr. and Mrs. Campbell have had two children: William, who is deceased; and Sophia Belle, who resides at home. Mr. Campbell is a member of the Odd Fellows.

GEORGE SEARING, one of the representative young farmers of Mercer Township, residing on a farm of 146 acres, was born November 9, 1881, on his father's farm in Worth Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania. He is a son of M. Cowden Searing, who was born in Worth Township, Butler County, where his father, Benjamin Searing, settled at a very early period. M. Cowden Searing followed farming in Worth Township, the greater part of his life, and dealt extensively in stock, at which he made considerable money. Later in life he sold his farms in Worth Township and moved to Slippery Rock, where he lived in retirement until his death, in August, 1905, when fifty-five years of age. He is still survived by his widow. The parents of our subject reared a family of eight children, namely: Estella, wife of George McWilliams; William; Maude, died at an early age; George, subject of this sketch; Carrie; Ethel, married Fred Fields; Clyde, and Verne.

George Searing lived on his father's farm in Worth Township until in early manhood, when his parents removed to Slippery Rock. Here he conducted a meat market for his father for a period of four years, and in 1905 purchased his present farm of 146 acres in Mercer Township. Since then he has followed general farming and dairying, keeping about thirty head of cattle. Mr. Searing is one of the most progressive agriculturists of Mercer Township and is a citizen who gives his support in a large measure to those movements which tend toward the advancement of this community.

In June, 1904, Mr. Searing married Nellie Cochran, a daughter of James Cochran, and they have two children, James Paul and an infant. Mr. and Mrs. Searing are members of the United Presbyterian Church. He is politically a Republican.

C. C. JOHNSTON, whose valuable farm of 149 acres, the old family homestead, is situated in Center Township, is one of the best known men of Butler County, and his farm, on which he breeds registered Guernsey cattle and Percheron horses, has a State reputation. He was born in May, 1858, in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Jesse and Sarah J. (Allen) Johnston.

Mr. Johnston was six years old when his parents came to Butler County and the father died shortly afterward. The mother survived until August, 1904, and after her demise, C. C. Johnston purchased the old home. Of the ten children, the following survive: C. C.; James R., who lives in Ohio; T. C., who is engaged in farming in Center Township; John H., who resides at West Sunbury; Martha J., who is the wife of N. C. Stevenson, of Center Township; Rosanna, who is the wife of A. H. Campbell and lives in Franklin Township.

C. C. Johnston was reared in Center Township and obtained his education at the Ridge and Brewster Schools. For eighteen years Mr. Johnston engaged in farming in Franklin Township and then returned to the homestead, on which he has resided ever since. For eighteen years he has been a salesman for the McCormick agricultural machines and is now traveling for the International Harvester Company. He is deeply interested in home enterprises and is one of the stockholders in the Butler County Fair Association.

On October 27, 1881, Mr. Johnston was married to Miss Electa Bright, of Franklin Township, Butler County, and they have seven children, namely: Bert B., who is engaged in the practice of dentistry in Pittsburg; Myrtle, who is the wife of J. F.

Truman, of Butler; Ha Maud, who is the wife of Arnold Waesmuth, of Butler; and Anda Floss, Harry R., Albert Charles and Frank H., all at home. Mr. Johnston and family belong to the Mt. Chestnut United Presbyterian Church and he is a member of the official board.

ROBERT KRAUSE, member of the well known firm Krause and Freebling, of Marwood, Pennsylvania, has been a resident of Butler County since 1853. He was born September 8, 1842, and is a son of Louis and Frederica Krause, natives of Germany, with whom he came to this country in 1853, having resided here continuously since that time.

In 1867, at the age of twenty-five years, he was united in marriage with Maria Camphire, a daughter of Jacob Camphire, and to them were born seven children: Anna, wife of William T. Freehling, mention of whom appears elsewhere in this work; William, Louis, Minnie, Richard, Elsie, and Flora, the last mentioned being now deceased.

Mr. Krause is one of the enterprising business men of Winfield Township and for the past twelve years has been a member of the firm Krause & Freehling, general merchants and lumber dealers, who also carry a general line of goods used by farmers in the oil regions, including cement, paints, brick, plaster, lime, wagons, furniture, etc. Mr. Krause and family are members of the Lutheran Church. He was also in business from 1867 to 1896 in general merchandise as partner of Heidrick Krane & Bro. and R. & A. Krause.

ENOS BARKEY, one of Evans City's progressive business men, is engaged in the coal and feed business and enjoys the liberal patronage of the citizens of the community. He was born in Evans City, February 15, 1863, and is a son of John and Deborah (Davidhizer) Barkey.

John Barkey came to Butler County

from east of the mountains of Pennsylvania, and located on a farm one-half mile north of the towns of Evansburg. He engaged in farming until the close of the Civil War, then became a merchant in Evans City, continuing until his death in 1869, when in the prime of life, being at that time but forty-nine years of age. He married Deborah Davidhizer, whose death occurred in June, 1908, at the ripe old age of eighty-five years. They were parents of eleven children: Isaac, who died at the age of fourteen; Maria, who died at twenty-two years; Henry, who died in 1883; Elizabeth, widow of Richard Allen; Anna, who died in infancy; John, a dealer in hay at Evans City; Susan, wife of Fred Royhizer; Sarah, wife of William Stewart; Matilda, who died in infancy; Enos, subject of this record; and Lewis Alvin, who died in infancy.

Enos Barkey spent his boyhood days in Evansburg and attended the district schools. He worked on his mother's farm until 1887, then embarked in the coal business in Evans City, which he has continued without interruption to the present time. In 1892, the feed branch of his business was added and has proved as profitable a field as the coal business. He is a man of energy and enterprise, a thorough business man, and enjoys high standing in the community.

On March 28, 1883, Mr. Barkey formed a matrimonial alliance with Miss Anna E. Barto, a daughter of Daniel Barto, who was one of the early residents of the village. Four children were the issue of their union: Ethel, who married John Zeigler in 1904 and has a daughter, Vera; Clara B.; Mary Luella; and Ruthene. Politically, Mr. Barkey is a Prohibitionist, but was elected on the Republican ticket to the council of Evans City, in which body he now serves. For ten years past he has been a director of the Evans City Cemetery Association. Religiously, he is a member of the Baptist Church, to which his wife also belongs. Fraternally he is a member of Evans City Lodge, I. O. O. F.

DR. W. W. McCONNELL, who has been engaged in the practice of medicine at Harrisville since 1888, was born on a farm in Lawrence County, Pennsylvania, in 1858 and is a son of Kinsey McConnell, a resident of Lawrence County.

Dr. McConnell obtained his early education in the common schools of Lawrence County, later attending Grove City College and Edinburg State Normal, after which he taught in Lawrence County for a period of six years. He read medicine for eighteen months with Dr. Sproull of Plain Grove, after which he entered Western Reserve University of Cleveland, Ohio, graduating in March, 1888. In May of that same year he came to Harrisville and took up the work of Dr. O. P. Pisor and after a period of ten years entered Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia, from which he graduated May, 1898. He returned to Harrisville and resumed his practice of medicine and rapidly worked his way up in the profession, now enjoying a liberal and lucrative patronage. He also took a summer course at Philadelphia later. Dr. McConnell is a member of the Butler County Medical Society. He is a director in the First National Bank at Harrisville and is a stockholder of the Butler County National Bank. He is a Democrat in politics and is religiously a member of the United Presbyterian Church. In December, 1901, Dr. McConnell was married to Mrs. Elizabeth McKee, who had one daughter, Frances, now residing with Dr. McConnell. They have one daughter, Blanche.

G. WILSON MILLER, who is engaged in the grocery business at Butler and identified also with other successful enterprises in city and county, was born in Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of William and Emeline (Hanck) Miller.

The parents of Mr. Miller came to Butler County in his boyhood and settled on a farm and the father continued to engage in farming and stock raising there until he retired and moved to Butler, where he died in 1903. William and Emeline Miller had three children, namely: G. Wilson; Henry, who is a prominent business man at Butler; and Emma, who is the wife of J. F. Andrews, of Allegheny City.

G. Wilson Miller was practically reared in the city of Butler. After completing the public school course he became a clerk in the store of Charles Duffy, at Butler, after which he embarked in business for himself and built his present three-story brick building, at No. 116 East Jefferson Street. A business house that has safely weathered the financial panics and depressions of thirty-odd years, constantly increasing its stock and trade, merits special mention and further, gives a pretty fair estimate of the methods employed in its management. Mr. Miller as a business man enjoys the confidence of a large part of the city and has kept customers even after they have removed to other sections. He is one of the oldest grocery houses at Butler and is a landmark in his neighborhood. He has been an active citizen and has invested in property and owns stock in a number of prosperous concerns. Since the date of its organization, he has been president of the Citizens' Building and Loan Association.

Mr. Miller married Miss Margaret Walter, a daughter of Jacob Walter, one of the old settlers of the city. They have two children: Gertrude, who is the wife of Dr. George H. Jackson, a prominent dentist of Butler; and Lillian, who is the wife of Albert Troutman, a leading member of the Butler bar. Mr. and Mrs. Miller are members of St. Mark's German Lutheran Church.

HON. COL. JOHN M. THOMPSON, known for many years as one of the ablest and most successful members of the Butler County bar, a Civil War veteran, and a capable and trustworthy servant of the people in public affairs, was born in Brady Township, Butler County, January 4, 1829, the eldest son of William H. and Jane (McCandless) Thompson.

Colonel Thompson's literary education was acquired in the public schools and at Witherspoon Institute, and for a short time after completing his studies, he followed the occupation of a teacher. In 1852 he began the study of law under the direction of Samuel A. Purviance, and two years later was admitted to the bar. Displaying marked ability, he was admitted to partnership in the firm of Purviance and Sullivan, and later, when Mr. Purviance was elected to Congress, he took charge of his entire practice. In 1858 he was elected to the Legislature on the Republican ticket, and he served as speaker pro tem. of the House, in the session of 1859-60.

The Civil War gave a new direction to his activities, and he backed up his sound Union principles by going to the front as Major of the One Hundred and Thirty-fourth Penna. Volunteers. With this regiment he took part in the momentous battles of Antietam, South Mountain and Fredericksburg. Being wounded in the fight last mentioned he retired from the service, and returned to Butler, where he resumed the practice of his profession. In 1868 he was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Chicago, which nominated General Grant for the Presidency. He was one of the Presidential electors of the State of Pennsylvania, in 1872, and was selected to carry the State returns to Washington. In 1875 he was elected to Congress, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Hon. E. McKinjin, the latter having been elected judge of this district. In 1876, Colonel Thompson was honored by re-election, and served the full term of two years.

He was one of the promoters of the Shenango and Allegheny Railroad, and filled many offices in the company, including that of attorney for the road. He was also for a quarter of a century or more the local attorney for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. His death, which occurred September 8, 1903, removed from the community one of its worthiest and most reliable citizens. He was a member of the Loyal Legion and the Grand Army of the Republic.

Colonel Thompson was married October 12, 1854, to Anna L. Campbell, a daughter of William Campbell, and they had four children: Oliver D., who is engaged in the practice of law at Pittsburg; William C., who is a prominent attorney at Butler, with offices in the Butler County National Bank Block; Anna Elora, who married Charles Mitchell, of St. Cloud, Minnesota, is deceased; and Laretta Gertrude, who is also deceased.

EVERETT MINNER BAKER, M. D., physician and surgeon, who is engaged in practice at Valencia, was born December 28, 1870, near Mt. Chestnut, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Hiram and Margaret A. (Opre) Baker.

Hiram Baker was born in Muddy Creek Township, Butler County, a son of Jewell Baker, who was one of the early settlers in that section. Jewell Baker had two sons, James and Hiram. The latter passed his entire life in Butler County and died at Brownsdale, in 1904, aged seventy-six years. He married Margaret A. Opre, who was born at Grove City, Pennsylvania, and survived her husband. They had the following children: Sarah, who married S. Gulick; Lucinda, who married J. W. Williamson; Margaret, who married J. W. Stevenson; James Andrew; Agnes L.; Elmer H.; Gilbert J.; Olive, who married J. M. Starr; Everett Minner; and Charles W.

A boyhood spent on the farm, the foundation of a liberal education laid in the public school—such is the record of the earlier years of Dr. Baker. Better educational advantages were given him at Renfrew, Evans City, later Grove City College, and in the fall of 1893, he entered the Western University of Pennsylvania, where he entered upon the study of medicine. He was graduated from that institution in the spring of 1897, in September of that year he settled at Valencia, and during the eleven years of residence here has built up an excellent practice and has become a representative citizen.

In 1900 Dr. Baker was married to Miss Blanche A. Datt, who is a daughter of John Datt, a well known resident of Valencia, and they have one child, Everett Meade. Dr. Baker and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

HENRY and WILLIAM SCHWALM, general farmers and oil operators, in Jefferson Township, located on the Bull Creek Road, about two miles west of Saxonburg. Henry Schwalm was born June 2, 1875, and William Schwalm was born April 25, 1872. They are sons of Justice and Margaret (Smith) Schwalm.

Justice Schwalm followed farming and prior to his death owned the farm which is now the property of his wife. He married Margaret Smith, who survives and resides on this farm, and they had six children born to them, namely: John and Justice, both deceased; Annie, who is the wife of George Fisher and lives at Butler; William; Henry; and Louise, who lives with her sister at Butler.

The Schwalm brothers have always lived in this section since they accompanied their parents from Allegheny County, where they were born. Their chief business is oil operating and they have been exceedingly successful. William Schwalm married Miss Sarah Fisher, who is a daughter of George and Mary (Michaels) Fisher, and they have two children, Ruth and Mabel. The brothers are members of the Presbyterian Church. Henry belongs to the Jefferson Township Grange. They are well known and highly respected citizens.

C. H. PARKER, oil producer and a representative citizen of Butler, has been closely identified with the oil business during all his mature life. He was born in 1865 in Armstrong, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of the late James A. Parker.

The Parker family was established in Butler County by the grandfather, David Parker, who came at an early date to this section. The late James A. Parker spent his entire life in Butler County and devoted himself to agricultural pursuits.

C. H. Parker became interested in the oil business almost in his school days, and in the years that have followed he has traveled all over the country and visited every section where oil has been found in paying quantities, and his own operations have been in Butler and McKean Counties, Pennsylvania, and in the oil fields of West Virginia, Ohio and Illinois. He owns both oil and gas interests at various points and through years of experience has become an authority in oil and gas production. For the past ten years he has been a valued resident of Butler and during three years of this period has served as a member of the City Council.

In July, 1888, Mr. Parker was married to Miss Olive Harper, who is a daughter of Sutton Harper and a member of one of the oldest families of Butler County. They have the following children: Edith; Ruth and Charles, twins; Floyd, Margaret, Lester, Victor and Helen. Mr. and Mrs. Parker are members of the United Presbyterian Church. His fraternal connections include the Elks, Odd Fellows, Maccabees and Woodmen.

ROBERT HOGG, a representative citizen and leading agriculturist of Butler County, who is engaged in cultivating 200 acres of fine farming land situated near New Hope, has been a life-long resident of Cherry Township. Mr. Hogg was born on his present farm in Cherry Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, March 1, 1846, and is a son of Robert and Mary Jane (McFate) Hogg.

The grandfather of Robert Hogg, also named Robert, came to Butler County from the eastern part of the State, bringing with him his son Robert, and here settled on the farm near New Hope, where both father and grandfather died. Robert and Mary Jane (McFate) Hogg were the parents of ten children, of whom eight still survive.

Robert Hogg of Cherry Township has always lived on the farm he now owns, and farming has been his life work. He has been successful in his operations, and his 200-acre property is considered one of the most valuable in Cherry Township.

Mr. Hogg was married (first) to Miss Eliza Bryan, who was born in Washington Township, Butler County, and was a daughter of Robert Steele Bryan. They became the parents of these children: William H., married Ora Donaldson, and has two children, Dells and Edith; Samuel Harper, married Ellen Nicely and has three children, Alice, Melvina and Lena; Mary M., married James H. Campbell, and has one son, Robert William; Margaret, married Robert Johnston, and has three children, Harry, Elmira and James. Mr. Hogg's first wife died in 1882, and he was married a second time to Mary E. Christy, who is a daughter of Ebenezer Christy.

JOHN T. CRANMER, senior member of the firm of J. T. Crammer & Son, millers, a successful business partnership, of Butler Township, operating one of the best equipped mills in Butler County, was born in what is now Clay Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, June 29, 1832. His parents were Asaph and Ellen (Finley) Crammer.

Asaph Crammer, father of John T., was born in 1800 and came to Pennsylvania prior to his marriage, after which he purchased 400 acres of wild land in Butler County, two miles from West Sunbury. For this land he paid seventy-five cents an acre and today it could not be purchased for $100 an acre. He was a man of unusual ability, a pioneer of courage and sterling character. When forty-five years old he lost his arm through accident, nevertheless he led a busy and useful life for many years thereafter. He served in the capacity of court crier and for many years was a justice of the peace in Clay Township. From its organization he was identified with the Republican party. His death occurred when he was seventy years of age. In his religious views, in early years he was liberal but later in life he united with the Methodist Episcopal Church. He married Ellen Pinley and they had eleven children, namely: David, James and Israel, all deceased; John T.; Elizabeth J., deceased, was the wife of O. J. Walker; Asa, residing on a part of the old homestead; William; Charles, deceased; and Nancy, deceased, who was the wife of Joseph Albert; also two that died in infancy. The mother of the above family was a faithful member of the United Presbyterian Church. The Crammer family has been in America many generations, coming to the colonies sixty-four years before the Revolutionary War. The Crammers suffered greatly in the Indian troubles and the eldest brother of Asaph Crammer was burned to death when the savages set fire to his dwelling.

John T. Crammer was reared in Clay Township and gained his school-book knowledge in the early schools, to which he walked a long distance. Later he learned the carpenter's trade and for thirty-five years was a contractor, working through three counties. He built twenty-three of the big barns which still stand on the farms of old residents and often built also their houses and other structures. In 1890 he turned his attention to milling and purchased his present mill in Butler Township, from John Ralston, who had built it. Mr. Crammer had thoroughly overhauled the mill and has installed the most modern type of mill machinery. His power is supplied by a 60-horse power gas engine and he grinds buckwheat, wheat and other grains and sells flour and feed, doing a very large business. He disposes of his output locally, finding favor in the home market.

Mr. Crammer married Miss Martha Miller, who is a daughter of John Miller, of Franklin Township, Butler County, and they have one son, Charles Everett. This son has grown up in the mill business more or less and is his father's partner and is recognized as one of the township's enterprising young business men. He married Miss Della McCandless, a daughter of Humes McCandless, of Center Township, and they have five children: John T., May, Nellie, Ora and Vera Rosella. John T. Crammer and wife are leading members of the United Presbyterian Church at Mt. Chestnut, in which he has been an elder for twenty years. In politics the Crammers are Republicans.

CHARLES YOUNG, a citizen of Zelienople, was born January 28, 1852, in Jackson Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Adam and Catherine (Zehner) Young.

Adam Young, his father, was born in Alsace, Germany, coming to this country in 1840, at the age of twenty-seven, having served seven years in the army. He landed at New Orleans and was there during the yellow fever plague and was employed with a horse and dray in hauling the dead to the trenches. He took the fever, but, through the efforts of a trained nurse, survived. In 1846 he came to Cranberry Township, Butler County, and married Mrs. Catherine Noss, nee Zehner, widow of George Noss, who then had two children, Catherine and Frederick, both deceased. In 1853, after residing near Zelenople for a few years, he bought 110 acres of land in Connoquenessing Township, to which he later added forty acres. He died in May, 1878, aged sixty-five years; his wife died April 1, 1884, aged sixty-nine years. The following children were born to Adam Young and wife: Mary, who died in early youth; Adam, who was accidentally strangled to death while swinging in the barn, during the absence of his parents; Sophia, who died April 21, 1908; Henry, who resides near Reibold Station, Butler County, married Louise Beam; Caroline, wife of John Flinner, resides in Jackson Township; Edwin residing on the old homestead in Connoquenessing Township, married Caroline Friskhorn; and Charles.

Charles Young engaged in farming for several years, in Connoquenessing Township, where he owned sixty acres of land. This property proved to be an exceptionally rich oil producer. In June, 1890, he sold the farm to his brother Edwin and purchased property in Zelenople, in a large measure being led to do so on account of failing health. He has invested in other farm property, owning two farms near Zelenople, but does not give them his personal attention.

Charles Young married Miss Mary Friskorn, who was a daughter of Casper and Elizabeth (Flinner) Friskorn, formerly well known residents of Butler County. They have three children, Edward Philip is assistant cashier in The People's National Bank, at Zelenople; he married Maidie Hysell of Pomeroy, Ohio, they having two children, Charles Edward and Roy Stuart. The second son, Harry Albert, is a machinist and is employed at the Herman Pneumatic Machine plant at Zelenople. The daughter, Sara Elizabeth, married Otto W. Luek. Mr. Luek is at present employed at the Iron City Sanitary Manufacturing Company at Zelenople.

In his political convictions he is a Democrat. He has served on both the Town Council and the School Board since moving to Zelenople. He is almost a lifelong member of the Evangelical Reformed Church of Zelenople.

WALTER L. GRAHAM, formerly a leading attorney and prominent citizen of Butler, was born in this borough, October 25, 1831, and died November 1, 1900. His parents were John and Sarah Graham.

Walter L. Graham was educated in the public schools, at Witherspoon Institute and at Jefferson College, and was graduated from the latter institution in 1854. He entered upon the study of law with Samuel A. Purviance and completed his course of reading under Attorney Charles C. Sullivan, and in 1855 he was admitted to the bar. For many subsequent years he continued in the active practice of his profession, both at Pittsburg and at Butler. In 1860, on account of his zeal for the principles embodied in the Republican party, he was selected as one of the delegates to the National Republican Convention which nominated Abraham Lincoln for the Presidency of the United States. During his whole life he was public-spirited and as president of the borough council he advocated progress and reform. In 1862 he enlisted in Company G, Fourteenth Pennsylvania Militia, and assisted in repelling the invasion of the Confederates under General Lee. Under Governor Andrew G. Curtin, he subsequently served three years as a notary public. He was a leading member of the Presbyterian Church and a member of the local board of trustees.

In 1854 Walter L. Graham was married to Catherine Keller, a daughter of Emanuel Keller of Cumberland County. Mrs. Graham died July 4, 1861, leaving three children; Frank, who is deceased; Annie, who is deceased; and Walter H., who is engaged in an advertising business. Mr. Graham was married (second) in 1867, to Margaret A. Zimmerman, who survives and resides at No. 230 North McKean Street. She is a daughter of John Michael Zimmerman. Two children were born to the second union, namely: John C. and Margaret, the latter of whom resides with her mother.

John Charles Graham, who is a successful attorney and prosperous real estate dealer at Butler, has been engaged in business pursuits almost from boyhood. During his school days he was employed as a clerk in a country store and became interested later in a news agency and from 1879 until 1887, he earned some three thousand dollars through his own efforts. In the latter year, notwithstanding his application to business, he was able to graduate as the salutatorian of his class at school. He dabbled to some degree in a real estate business prior to entering Lafayette College, where he took a course of study and after his return in 1891 he resumed his interest in the same. He studied law in his father's office and was admitted to the bar in 1894.

On December 6, 1894, Mr. Graham was married to Miss Lovey Ayres, who died August 16, 1907. She was a daughter of Capt. H. A. Ayres, and a granddaughter of Gen. William Ayres, who was one of the early settlers of Western Pennsylvania. Mr. and Mrs. Graham had four children: Elizabeth and Walter, who are deceased, and John and Margaret Lovey, who survive.

In 1888, Mr. Graham joined the State Militia, in which he served for six years. When the Spanish-American War broke out, he assisted in the organization of the Twenty-first Regiment and was elected second lieutenant of Company G, and later was appointed battalion adjutant. He has always been an athlete and has won many honors in that line. He attends the First Presbyterian Church, of which he was secretary to the Board of Trustees for seven years. Mr. Graham is one of the interested members of the Young Men's Christian Association. For eight years he has been secretary of the Butler Board of Trade and has always taken a keen interest in matters which tend to the advancement of Butler and Butler County.

JOHN A. CRISWELL, a prosperous business man of Mars, where he is engaged in undertaking and furniture dealing, belongs to one of the old and early settled families of Adams Township. He was born on the Criswell homestead, near Dowieville, Adams Township, this county, May 3, 1853, son of James and Elizabeth (Spear) Criswell.

William Criswell, the paternal grandfather of John A., was born in County Down, Ireland, in 1774, and emigrating to this country, in 1791 settled in Philadelphia, where he engaged in the business of selling goods in the suburban districts. Having been thus occupied in peddling for about seven years, in 1798 he crossed the Allegheny Mountains on foot, and took up a 200-acre tract of land in what is now Adams Township, Butler County. For two years he kept bachelor's hall in a log cabin, which he erected in the midst of the forest. For some time after becoming a resident of the county he engaged in packing salt, ammunition and other supplies for the use of the settlers, from Pittsburg, Carlisle, and Philadelphia, thus earning a little surplus money. In June, 1800, he married Margaret, a daughter of Robert Criswell of Cumberland County. Their family in time numbered eleven children, two of whom—John and Isabella—died in early youth. The others who grew to maturity were as follows: Mary, who married William Hetchman; Martha, who became the wife of James Kidd; Robert, who died in 1856, unmarried; Nancy, who died single in 1868; Margaret, who became the wife of Robert McKinney; Elizabeth, who married James Plummer; Jane, who married Samuel Purvis, of Beaver County; Susannah.

who married Samuel Kidd; and James. Mr. and Mrs. William Criswell were members of the Covenanter church, in which the former was an elder. Their entire married life was spent in this county, and they died upon the farm on which they first settled.

James Criswell was born on his parents' farm in Adams Township, February 7, 1820. He grew to manhood on the homestead, and was married November 24, 1842, to Elizabeth Spear, a daughter of David Spear, of Adams Township. They had children as follows: William, who died aged nineteen years; David, who is now a resident of Missouri; Robert C., deceased, who was a minister in the United Presbyterian Church; Margaret, who is the widow of the late Prof. John Mitchell, of New Wilmington, Penna.; John A., subject of this sketch; James P., who is a resident of Pittsburg; and Mary E., now deceased, who was the wife of T. L. Donnelson. The life of James Criswell, the father of the above mentioned family, was devoted to agricultural pursuits, and he died on the homestead in November, 1896, aged seventy-seven years, being survived several years by his wife. Once a Republican in politics, he afterwards became a Prohibitionist. Occasionally he served in local office, chiefly from a sense of duty and at the earnest desire of his fellow citizens.

John A. Criswell spent his boyhood on his father's farm and remained there, following agricultural pursuits until 1891, when he moved to Mars. Prior to this he had engaged in the undertaking business which he continued, in conjunction with operating a livery stable, until 1903, when he sold out and for two years was interested in a coal and feed business. After also disposing of this interest, he went to Pittsburg, where he engaged in the grocery business until September 1, 1908, when he took advantage of an opportunity and bought out the undertaking and furniture business of A. C. Irvine, at Mars, which he still conducts. His equipments as a funeral director are more complete than any other at Mars and he has a diploma from the Pittsburg Embalming School and operates under a license from the Pennsylvania State Board.

In 1878 Mr. Criswell was married to Miss Jane R. McKibben, who is a daughter of James McKibben, of Morrow County, Ohio, and they have had the following children: Vera, Russell, Nettie, who died aged nineteen months; David C. and Blanche E. Mr. Criswell and wife belong to the United Presbyterian Church. In politics he is a Republican and at different times has served in township and borough offices. He is a member of the Odd Fellows, the Macabees and the Woodmen.

F. AUGUSTUS ALDINGER, one of Chicora's enterprising business men, senior member of the firm of Aldinger & Tadder, operators of the largest repair shop in the place, doing business under the name of the Chicora Engine Tool Company, was born at Chicora, Butler County, Penna., January 4, 1876. His parents are C. F. and Ella (Henshaw) Aldinger.

The father of Mr. Aldinger has been a prominent business man and leading citizen of Chicora, for many years. He was born in Germany and was four years old when his parents brought him to Butler County, with which section his interests have ever since been connected. He has been identified with the shoe trade and also conducted a gents' furnishing store, and during his many years in business has lost a large amount of money from fire, being burned out five times. He has been a very active citizen, served for years as a justice of the peace, has held almost all of the city offices, at present being city clerk, and for four years was postmaster. He married Ella Henshaw, a lady of Millerstown, Penna., and they have four children.

RESIDENCE OF LEWIS A. HEROLD, CENTER TOWNSHIP

namely: F. Augustus, C. F., Elizabeth and Pauline. With his wife he belongs to the German Lutheran Church.

F. Augustus Aldinger attended school at Chicora and then learned the machinist's trade with W. H. Westerman, who conducted a machine shop at that time on the site of Mr. Aldinger's present plant. After Mr. Aldinger had been with this employer for two years the shop was destroyed by fire and while Mr. Westerman was rebuilding, Mr. Aldinger worked at another machine shop for six months and then returned to his former employer for six months longer. From there he went to Pittsburgh and for one year worked for the Westinghouse people, this being his only absence from Butler County in his life. After coming back to Chicora he began work with Dierken and Logan, and two years later, after the latter had sold out to Daniel Dierken, Mr. Aldinger, in partnership with W. J. Logan, purchased the business from Mr. Dierken and they conducted it until 1904. In February of that year the partnership was dissolved and for two subsequent years the business was continued by the Millerstown Deposit Bank. In the meanwhile, Mr. Aldinger and George Tadder came to an understanding and entered into the present partnership and took possession of the business which they have so successfully conducted ever since. They give constant employment to four workmen and have about all they can handle with their present facilities. Mr. Aldinger being a practical machinist, has careful oversight of all the work turned out, thus ensuring entire reliability in every instance.

On June 8, 1904, Mr. Aldinger was married to Miss Minnie Hurley, and they have two children: Paul A. and Gerald. Mr. Aldinger and wife belong to the English Lutheran Church. He takes a good citizen's interest in politics and for eight years has served as a member of the election board.

LEWIS A. HEROLD, a prosperous farmer and successful business man of Center Township, Butler County, Penna., is the owner of a fine farm of 100 acres, situated on the old Mercer Road, three miles north of Butler. He is a man of varied interests, and, in addition to farming and dairying, operates a thresher in season and is engaged in the construction of silos. He was born near Bonny Brook, Summit Township, Butler County, October 11, 1864, and is a son of Gottlieb and Caroline (Robb) Herold, both natives of Germany. They were reared in Germany, but were not married until after their arrival in the United States. Gottlieb died on the old home farm in Summit Township.

Lewis A. Herold was reared on the home farm and received but little schooling. He lived with his parents until he reached the age of twenty-one years, then worked out for a couple of years. At the end of that time he was married, and thereafter for about two years farmed the home place. He next was employed three years in the plate glass works at Butler, after which, in 1894, he purchased and moved to his present farm in Center Township. He has made many important improvements on the place, built a third story onto his house, erected a large barn and a fine creamery, and laid a large amount of tiling. He engaged in wholesaling milk until 1904, since which time he has retained it with good results. He keeps about twenty-seven cows, on an average, and does a large business. He also contracts for the building of silos, and in the fall of 1908 filled nineteen. He owns a fine threshing outfit, which he operates in partnership with his brothers, Frederick and Frank. He is one of the substantial citizens of the township, having won his way to a forward position in the community from the ranks of a farm laborer.

Mr. Herold was united in marriage in 1887 to Miss Emma Kradle, who was born and reared in Summit Township, Butler County, and is a daughter of Adam Kradle. Three children were born to them—Harry, Carrie and Gilbert. Religiously, they are members of the Lutheran Church.

MATTHEW W. SHANNON, JR., vice-president of the Worth Mutual Fire Insurance Company and a leading citizen and general farmer of Connoquenessing Township, where he owns 100 acres of productive land, was born February 8, 1861, at Whitestown, Butler County, Pennsylvania. He is a son of Matthew W. and Mary (Stevenson) Shannon. David Shannon, the paternal grandfather, was a very early settler in this section. He married one of the White family—a very populous and prominent one in Butler County, that gave the name to Whitestown.

Matthew W. Shannon, father of Matthew W., was born in Connoquenessing Township, Butler County, December 5, 1821, and resided in his birthplace until 1890, when he retired to Mt. Chestnut. He followed agricultural pursuits through all his active years. He was a man of standing in this neighborhood and for years acceptably filled township offices, being school director, tax collector, auditor, constable and supervisor. He married Mary Stevenson, who is a daughter of Nathaniel Stevenson, an early settler in Franklin Township, and they had nine children born to them, six of whom grew to maturity, as follows: Jennie, who is the widow of Abraham Hemphill, of Connoquenessing Township; J. F., who is a justice of the peace at Callery, Pennsylvania; Annie, who is the wife of W. J. Moore, of Brookline, Pennsylvania; Nettie, deceased, who was the wife of Clarence Double; Matthew W.; and Benjamin F., who resides at Mt. Chestnut. The parents are members of the Mt. Chestnut United Presbyterian Church.

Matthew W. Shannon, Jr., obtained his public school education in Connoquenessing Township and since leaving school has been continuously engaged as a farmer on his present property. He has almost the whole of his estate of 100 acres under cultivation, raising corn, oats, wheat, hay, buckwheat and potatoes, the latter crop being especially abundant, Mr. Shannon having grown 1,000 bushels in some years. He is a man of very practical ideas and he has proved their value when he has applied them to his agricultural operations. His surroundings all indicate a large degree of comfort and his residence is exceedingly attractive.

Mr. Shannon married Miss Mary Elizabeth Ralston, a daughter of John Ralston, of Butler Township, and they have three children: John W., residing in Colorado; Annetta, who is a student in the Slippery Rock State Normal School; and Orville Clara, at home. The whole family have membership in the Mt. Chestnut United Presbyterian Church, in which Mr. Shannon is an elder and clerk of the Session, and has served as a trustee. He has taken an active interest in Sunday-school work and for a long time officiated as superintendent.

Mr. Shannon is identified with the Republican party but, irrespective of party ties, he has worked for the good of the township in the way of public improvements and the securing of excellent school facilities. He has served as school director and as secretary of the School Board, and he has also been township supervisor and assessor.

GEORGE M. HARTUNG resides on a fine farm of sixty acres in Forward Township, about five miles east of Evans City, on the Freeport road. He was born in North Sewickley Township, Beaver County, Penna., July 3, 1851, and is a son of Nicholas and Carolina (Moas) Hartung.

Michael Hartung, paternal grandfather of the subject of this sketch, was born and reared in Germany. He came to the United States when his son, Nicholas, was three years of age, and settled on a farm near Zelienople, in Butler County, Penna., where he lived until his death. His first house on that place was a log structure, without a floor, and the land was almost wholly unimproved. He had a large family of children, of whom the following are now living: John; George; Isaac; Dorothy, widow of Albert Sidel; Eliza, widow of Gottlieb Wertz; and Catherine, widow of John Berringer.

Nicholas Hartung was the eldest of the children of his parents and was born in Germany. He was three years of age when his people came to America, and was reared on the home farm near Zelienople. He spent nine years working on different farms before his marriage, and later worked in a sawmill. He rented a farm in Beaver County a few years, and after his return to Butler County purchased a farm of 135 acres in Adams Township. He retired from business activity some four years prior to his death, and died at Evans City, November 1, 1905, at the age of seventy-seven years. His first wife, in maiden life Miss Carolina Moas, died April 14, 1896, leaving four children: George M.; Lydia, wife of John Twentier; Mary Ann, wife of George Dombart; and John. Mr. Hartung was again married, to Miss Dorothy Freshcorn, who survives him.

George M. Hartung was a mere child when his parents moved from Beaver County to Adams Township, in Butler County, and here he grew to maturity. He attended the little brick school in the district a few months each year, but his time was mainly given to hard work on the farm. He remained on the home place until his marriage, then rented a farm in Adams Township for ten years, at the end of which time he purchased his present farm of John Kurtz. On this he has erected a fine modern home, and the entire farm is improved in an up-to-date manner. He is engaged in general farming, and raises some stock. In addition to his home tract he has some thirty-four acres in Adams Township at the present time.

George M. Hartung was united in marriage, November 18, 1875, with Miss Mary L. Kline, a daughter of Nicholas Kline, and the following children have been born to them: Charles, who graduated from Allegheny College in 1907, and is now a minister in the M. E. Church, located in Indiana County, Penna.; Isaac P., a graduate of Butler Business College, who is foreman for the Philadelphia Gas Co. at West View, Penna.; Clarence, of Butler County; Nicholas, of Pittsburg; Frank; George M., Jr., who assists his father on the home farm; Melinda, who died young; Mary; and Lillian. Religiously, the family belong to the Methodist Episcopal Church, in which Mr. Hartung is a trustee. In politics, he is a Democrat.

COL. DAVID D. LLOYD, president of the Lloyd Company, wholesale confectioners, at Butler, is one of the city's leading business men and is a veteran of the Civil War. He was born July 23, 1833, in Cambria County, Pennsylvania.

When twelve years of age, Colonel Lloyd accompanied his parents to Pittsburg and there he was educated and later worked for several years in the glass factory. He learned the boiler rivet trade at the Coleman Roller Mill and remained there for ten years, after this being engaged in a general mercantile business for three years, at Port Perry, in Allegheny County, and for one year in a coal business. In 1864 he entered the Federal service, becoming a member of Company H, One Hundred Ninety-ninth Regiment, Penna. Infantry, with the rank of sergeant, and he remained in the service until the close of hostilities. He was attached to the Army of the Potomac and participated in the siege of Petersburg and all the subsequent engagements which culminated in the surrender of General Lee. After he returned from his period of honorable military service, Mr. Lloyd was engaged in a general mercantile business at North Washington, in Westmoreland County, for six years, and then he moved to Apollo, in Armstrong County, where he continued his mercantile activities for nine years longer. He then established himself in the same business at Beaver Falls and remained there for eight years in that line and then went into the wholesale tobacco business. This enterprise he conducted there for twelve years when he returned to Apollo and engaged there in a confectionery and tobacco business for two years, being associated at this time with his sons and having a branch store at Butler. In 1904 he consolidated his branches and started anew in the wholesale confectionery business at Butler, the wisdom of this move having been abundantly demonstrated in the wide extension and ample returns. The Lloyd Company Incorporated, has a capital stock of $20,000 and its officers are: David D. Lloyd, president; R. R. Lloyd, treasurer; and W. E. Lloyd, secretary. The business is carried on at Nos. 127-129 East Cunningham Street, Butler, and among the many modern equipments the company owns is an automobile truck, the only one in use in the city.

Colonel Lloyd has long been interested in military affairs and was one of the organizers of the Tenth Regiment Penna. State Guards. He raised a company and commanded it as provisional officer for three years and when the Tenth Regiment was finally organized, he was elected its major, serving as such for two years, then was elected lieutenant colonel and served in that rank for five years, when, on account of press of business, he retired.

In 1857, Mr. Lloyd was married to Miss Margaret R. Fritzius, who died in 1877. To this union were born five sons and one daughter, namely: W. E. Lloyd, secretary of the Lloyd Company, residing at Zanesville, Ohio; George W., residing at Zanesville; Wilbur C., a resident of Waukesha, Wisconsin; Arthur N., residing at Zanesville; Royce Russell, treasurer and manager of the Lloyd Company, at Butler; and Kate M., wife of W. H. Shuster, of Leechburg, Pennsylvania.

In his political views, Colonel Lloyd is a staunch Republican. Fraternally he is an Odd Fellow. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church and for many years had been an official of the same.

ALEXANDER SCHILLING, who is efficiently serving his second term as justice of the peace of Forward Township, Butler County, Penna., is a general merchant at Reibold Station, and enjoys a large and lucrative trade. He was born in Metzels, Germany, February 26, 1846, and is a son of John G. and Margaret (Linzer) Schilling.

John Frederick Schilling, grandfather of the subject of this sketch, was a farmer and a man of considerable prominence in his native province in Germany. On the day of his marriage he was elected Burgess of Metzels and served continuously in that capacity for twenty years. His death occurred at the age of forty-eight years. He and his wife were parents of the following children: John Sebastian, a physician, who died in Germany; John G., father of the subject of this sketch; Lawrence, deceased; Mrs. Bowdenstein, deceased; Sophia (Viering), deceased; and Mrs. Rossman.

John G. Schilling was born in Saxony, Germany, in 1800, and was there reared to maturity. He was a drover and farmer and became owner of a fine farm near Meiningen. In 1863, one year after the departure of their son, Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Schilling left for America and settled on a farm near Wahlville, on the Connoquenessing Creek, in Butler County, Penna., where they passed the remainder of their lives. He died in 1874, and his wife in 1902. She was in maiden life Margaret Linzer, and was born in May, 1813. She was a daughter of Casper Linzer, who was a prominent surveyor and held numerous public offices in Germany. Eleven children were the issue of this marriage: Sophia, widow of John Keg; Matilda, deceased wife of Herman Schilling; Emilie, deceased wife of George Ifft; Lizetta, who died young; Alexander; Emma E., who died at the age of twenty-two years; Veronica, wife of V. Leyh; Ernest W., who died at the age of twenty-two; Anna, wife of Henry Wahl; Christina, who died young; and Robert.

Alexander Schilling attended the schools and worked on the farm in Germany, and when sixteen years of age left his native land for America. He departed on his birthday anniversary and landed at Castle Garden, New York, April 24, 1862, immediately thereafter going to Pittsburg, Penna., where he worked at the trade of a shoemaker some five years, and then moved to Butler County, and worked on different farms. After his marriage he lived on the old Marburger farm near Callery several years, and followed his trade. In 1878, he opened his present store at what is now Reibold Station, and has been there continuously since. He carries a general line of goods, in fact almost everything for which there is a demand in a country store, and has the patronage of the people of that vicinity. For a period of seventeen years he served as postmaster at this point. In 1903, he was elected justice of the peace, and was made notary public, and in 1906 he was re-elected to that office.

On February 25, 1868, Mr. Schilling was united in marriage with Miss Eva Marburger, a daughter of George and Emma Marburger, and they are parents of ten children: George W., who married Marie Emsheimer; Rebecca, deceased; Margaret, deceased; Marie Magdalena, wife of John Nolsheim; Catherine, deceased; Lawrence, who married Anna Dougherty; Caroline, wife of Floyd Rape; Valentine; Anna; and Francis. Religiously, they are members of the Lutheran Church. He is a Republican in politics. In 1907, Mr. Schilling returned to Germany and spent two months in visiting the scenes of his boyhood, experiencing a most enjoyable trip.

CHARLES L. KENNEDY, a representative citizen and successful agriculturist of Butler Township, resides on his well improved farm of seventy-three acres, all of which, under his excellent methods, is made to produce to its fullest extent. He was born in Penn Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, March 14, 1868, and is a son of William and Matilda (Graham) Kennedy.

William Kennedy still carries on his farming operations in Penn Township, in spite of advancing years retaining his strength and vitality. He is a representative citizen in his section and a trustee of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In politics he is a Republican and he has served in the office of coroner. He married a daughter of Robert Graham, of Penn Township, and they had ten children born to them, as follows: Annie, who is the wife of A. B. McCandless, of Butler; William, deceased; Lulu, who married Morris J. Florsheim, of St. Paul, Minnesota; Charles L.; Clyde, who assists on the home farm; Mrs. Clara Robbins; George, also one of the home farmers; Ada, who married Dominick Mangel, of Penn Township; Eva, who resides with Mrs. Mangel, and Frances M.

Charles L. Kennedy was reared in Penn Township, where he obtained his education. For a number of years he worked in the oil fields and in the past ten years has drilled many wells. In April, 1906, he bought the old Seaman farm of seventy-three acres and since then has given his undivided attention to farming and dairying. In the fall of 1907 he established a milk route, keeping ten head of cattle for this purpose and producing and disposing of from seventy to ninety quarts of milk a day. He raises almost all of his feed and takes much interest in having fine vegetables, growing also large crops of wheat, corn, oats and hay.

On June 28, 1893, Mr. Kennedy was married to Annie Mangel, who is a daughter of Claude Mangel, a well known farmer of Penn Township. Their children, eight in number, all reside at home, namely: Vincent, Charles L., J., Frances Cecelia, William Claude, Warren Maurice, Margaret Matilda Agnes, John Gilbert and Lucretia May. Mrs. Kennedy is a devoted member of St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church. In politics, Mr. Kennedy is identified with the Republican party. He belongs to the fraternal organization, the Woodmen of the World, at Butler.

C. C. SHIRA, one of Butler's representative business men, conducting a grocery business at No. 340 Locust Street, has been a resident of this city for twenty-four years. He was born in Washington Township, Butler County, Penna., June 20, 1860, and is a son of Samuel Shira and a grandson of David Shira.

David Shira came to Western Pennsylvania from one of the eastern counties and was a man of some substance and unlimited enterprise. In 1802 he secured a whole section of land in Butler County, from the Government, and the sheepskin deed issued binding this transaction is the only one of its kind on the county records. His business sagacity was remarkable and his public spirit contributed to the rapid development of this part of the county. When he took up his residence the only real outlet that this section had was the old post road to Pittsburg. He amassed an estate of $35,000, a very large one for his time and locality. Physically he was a man of note as were his five sons, their combined weight being 1500 pounds and their added height being thirty-seven feet. These sons were: William M., deceased, once Prothonotary of Butler County; Samuel, deceased; Alfred, still surviving and living on the old homestead; R. O., residing at North Washington, Penna., who was a lieutenant in the Civil War; and Henderson, who lives on a part of the old homestead. There were two daughters: Eliza Jane, who married John T. Kelley, formerly sheriff of Butler County; and Anna, deceased.

Samuel Shira, father of C. C., was born in Washington Township, Butler County, in 1834, and his life was spent in his native county. He engaged in farming and stock-raising and became a man of ample fortune. While no seeker for political office, he took a hearty interest in public matters and was a more or less directing force in his township.

C. C. Shira grew to manhood on the old homestead, was educated in the township schools and the North Washington Academy, and was twenty-two years old when he went to New Castle, where he learned the carpenter trade. In 1884 he came to Butler and worked as a carpenter for ten years, after which, until 1898, he engaged in a general contracting business. Since March of that year he has been engaged in the grocery line and has a well stocked store and a satisfactory trade. Mr. Shira is largely interested also in Butler real estate, one of his valuable holdings being his own private residence which is located at No. 319 North Elm Street, Butler.

On September 6, 1887, Mr. Shira was married to Miss Clara Dodds, who is a daughter of Rev. Ezra Dodds, of Harrisville, Butler County. Mr. and Mrs. Shira have one daughter, Pearle E., who is a teacher of music. Mr. Shira and family belong to the United Presbyterian Church at Butler.

MRS. LUCY P. LENSNER

H. W. LENSNER

H. W. LENSNER, superintendent and general manager of the Concordia Home, situated in Jefferson Township, the only institution of its kind in Butler County, was born January 23, 1865, in Jefferson Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of J. H. and Catherine (Grimm) Lensner. The father of Mr. Lensner was born in Germany in 1835 and in 1837 was brought to Saxonburg, Butler County, Pennsylvania, by his parents, John and Sophia (Lessinger) Lensner. J. H. Lensner was a carpenter by trade, and he also followed farming.

H. W. Lensner attended the public schools near his father's farm during boyhood, spent six terms at Witherspoon Institute, and completed his education at Addison, Illinois. He then engaged in teaching school in Butler County for seven years, after which he accepted a call to Concordia Home, where he has been in charge for the past fourteen years. On December 29, 1891, Mr. Lensner was married to Miss Lucy Paul, who is a daughter of J. G. Paul, who was a very prominent farmer residing near Great Belt. Mr. and Mrs. Lensner are members of the Lutheran Church.

JOHN A. GREGG, who owns and resides upon an excellently improved farm of eighty-five acres in Jefferson Township, Butler County, Penna., located about five miles southeast of Butler on the Saxonburg Road, is successfully engaged in oil producing as well as farming. He was born in Buffalo Township, Butler County, May 1, 1853, and is a son of William and Mary Catherine (Kuhn) Gregg.

Robert J. Gregg, paternal grandfather of the subject of this record, was born in Washington County, Penna., where his father was one of the earliest settlers, having come from the North of Ireland at an early age. William Gregg, who now resides at the Lowrie Hotel in Butler and is past seventy-eight years of age, was for many years engaged in the livery business, in addition to carrying on farming operations.

John A. Gregg attended the public schools and at the same time assisted in the work on the home farm. He has followed general farming and has one of the best improved places in the township, the large and commodious buildings being kept nicely painted and the house and barn provided with slate roofs. Mr. Gregg has one producing oil well on his farm, and with his brother, Ralph, has four good average producing wells in the Coyleville oil field.

June 1, 1880, Mr. Gregg was united in marriage with Miss Sadie E. Walters, a daughter of Philip and Elizabeth (Fleming) Walters of Buffalo Township, Butler County. Seven children were born to bless their home, namely: Frederick, an engineer at Edinaw Station Power-Plant on the Pittsburgh, Harmony, Butler and New Castle Railway, who married Della Refenbaugh, by whom he has a daughter, Helen; Floyd, who lives on the farm and is in the oil business; Walter, who lives in Butler; Frank, who is a pumper in the oil fields and in the employ of his father; Lucile, a graduate of the public schools who is living at home; John Ray; and Mildred. The two last named are in attendance at school. Fraternally, Mr. Gregg is a prominent member of the Patrons of Husbandry. In religious attachment, he and his family are Presbyterians.

STEPHEN F. SCHULTZ, a substantial and representative citizen and farmer of Donegal Township, resides on an excellent farm of fifty-four acres and owns a second farm, of sixty-six acres, in another part of the township, on which he has a valuable producing oil well. Mr. Schultz belongs to that large class of valned citizens—the German-Americans, his birth having been in Germany, February 19, 1853. His parents were George F. and Margaret Schultz.

The mother of Mr. Schultz spent her whole life in Germany, but in his later years, the father joined his son Stephen F., in Butler County, and died here in 1902. He was the father of seven children: Anna, Frank, Stephen F., Michael, Christina, Michael Francis and Elizabeth, several of whom are deceased.

Stephen F. Schultz remained in his own land until he was about nineteen years of age, attending school there and learning the trade of butcher. In 1872 he came to America, landing at the port of New York, and for the first five months he worked as a butcher in that city. He then came west to Pittsburg and engaged in the same business there for the same length of time. In 1873 he was attracted to Butler County during the oil excitement, and had the foresight to immediately embark in a butchering business on a larger scale than formerly and for thirty years continued the business, driving his own wagon a large part of the time to the different oil settlements. He proved himself a good business man in this undertaking and soon had sufficient capital to enable him to invest in other ways. In 1880 he purchased the farm on which he lives, from the Union Oil Company, and in 1883, he bought his second farm, from the P. C. & I. Company, and has done all the improving on both properties. Although butchering is no longer his main business, the big packing houses making the industry no longer generally profitable, Mr. Schultz continues this work in a small way. He carries on general farming and raises fancy poultry and is also more or less interested in oil production.

Mr. Schultz has been twice married (first), on November 16, 1873, to Miss Mary Dittmer, who was born in Germany and was a daughter of Benedict Dittmer. She died November 18, 1890, having been the mother of eleven children, as follows: Christiana, who married Joseph Bauldofe, lives in Oakland Township and they have seven children: Stephen, who lives in Oklahoma; Clara M., who lives at Buffalo, New York; Joseph F., who married Martha Hopper, lives in Donegal Township and they have two children; Anna M., who married George Leibler, lives at Buffalo and has one child; Lizzie, who married Albert Nye, lives in Summit Township, Butler County, and they have four children; Francis S., who lives in Illinois; Emma E., who is a trained nurse in a Buffalo hospital; Leo C., who resides at Philadelphia; Helen M., who is a teacher in the public schools, resides at home; and Mary, the youngest, who also lives at home. Mr. Schultz was married (second) on September 29, 1896, to Mrs. Mary C. (Traister) Gray, who is a daughter of Charles and Olive (Sweet) Traister, and they have two children: Charles H. and Mildred. Mrs. Schultz has two children to her first husband, Roland M. Gray and Ridsen H. Gray.

Mr. Schultz is a leading member of St. Joseph's Catholic Church of Oakland. He has been one of the most active public men in the township and at different times he has served with honesty and efficiency as school director, secretary of the School Board, auditor, constable, member of the Election Board, overseer of the Poor, and at present is the very acceptable township clerk. He has a wide acquaintance and is an exceedingly popular citizen.

WILLIAM CAMPBELL, Sr., who, for many years was one of the best known and most widely respected business men of Butler County, was born in the borough of Butler, January 18, 1813, and was a son of William and Jane (Gilmore) Campbell.

In his youth Mr. Campbell attended the common schools of Butler, where he was well grounded in the elements. His first industrial experience was gained as clerk of the Board of County Commissioners. In 1835 he became associated in business with his father and brother. Ten years later the father retired and the sons subsequently conducted the business successfully until 1852, when they closed it out. For five years previously they had owned a one-half interest in the John McCarnes foundry, and they now purchased the entire interest, and established a store for the sale of the manufactured product, to which they added agricultural implements, and in 1877, a stock of general hardware. This was the origin of the highly successful firm of J. G. and W. Campbell, that has since been a prominent factor in the business life of Butler, and in which the elder William Campbell was a partner, though practically retired, took a deep interest up to the time of his death.

Mr. Campbell's business activities were not, however, confined to one groove. He was one of the projectors of the Butler and Allegheny Plank Road Company, of which he served some time as president, being also an original stockholder. He was quick to foresee the superior advantages of steam railroads, and was one of the strongest advocates of railroad construction in this section. He was also interested at an early day in the development of the oil industry, being associated with H. J. Klingler and others. One of the founders of the Butler Savings Bank, he was elected president of that institution, which office he held from February, 1877, to February, 1880, and on a subsequent reelection, from January, 1886, to November, 1887, when he resigned. He was also for a number of years a director and president of the Butler Mutual Fire Insurance Company. He gave to all these enterprises the careful attention and unremitting industry that were his dominant characteristics and that made him the successful business man that he was. These qualities, exhibited in whatever he undertook, were accompanied by the most scrupulous honesty, that gained him the confidence of all with whom he had business dealings.

Mr. Campbell was twice married. He was married (first) October 27, 1835, to Miss Clarissa Maxwell, who died January 29, 1839. She was a daughter of John Leslie Maxwell, one of the pioneer settlers of Butler Township. Mr. Campbell was married (second) on March 31, 1841, to Miss Eliza J. Shaw, who died April 21, 1892. She was a daughter of John Shaw, of Glenshaw, Allegheny County. Four children were born to the second marriage, namely: William, who died July 27, 1907; John S.; James G., who is deceased; and Mary, who married Joseph A. Herron, of Monongahela, Pennsylvania. The only surviving son, John S., is a prominent business man of Butler, actively interested in the hardware business and also, to a large extent, in the oil industry, in which he has been very successful.

In politics, William Campbell was a lifelong Democrat, faithful to his party but seeking no office. Through his interest in the cause of education, however, he consented to serve on the School Board, which he did for several years, to the manifest advantage of the public schools of the city. A Presbyterian in religion, he became a member of the church of that denomination in 1832. In 1841 he was elected one of the ruling elders, and for many years he was an efficient superintendent of the Sunday-school. His work in the cause of religion, and for the moral betterment of the community, was constant, and was the result of earnest convictions. He died November 17, 1893, surviving his wife by one year and seven months. Although then eighty years of age, he retained to the last a kindly interest in the welfare of the various business and philanthropic enterprises with which he had been connected.

DANIEL L. DUNBAR, a prominent resident of Forward Township, Butler County, Penna., has been justice of the peace of that township for a period of about eighteen years, and station agent of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at Watters Station, for fifteen years. He was born on the old Dunbar homestead in that township, June 18, 1853, is a son of William and Margaret (McGregor) Dunbar, and a grandson of Solomon and Seneth (Snow) Dunbar, the grandfather being a native of Ireland.

Solomon Dunbar, upon his arrival in this country, located in New York State. After the birth of the third of his children, he moved with his family to Butler County, Penna., making the trip with a yoke of oxen. He settled on a farm of 200 acres in Cranberry Township, but later sold out and moved to Johnson, Ohio, where he conducted a hotel until his death. He and his wife were parents of ten children, as follows: Ambrose; William; Daniel; Pyrrhus; Tarlton; Lafayette; John; Barney; Mary, wife of Joseph McCartney; and Hannah, wife of Dr. Mulford. All are now deceased with the exception of Barney, who resides in Ohio.

William Dunbar was born in New York State, and was young when the family moved to Butler County, Penna., where he grew to maturity and helped to clear the home farm. He later moved to that part of Cranberry Township which later became Forward Township, and there followed farming the remainder of his days, dying July 19, 1892, at the age of eighty-two years. He was married in Cranberry Township, in 1832, to Margaret McGregor, who was of Scotch descent; she died in 1898, at the age of eighty-six years. The following were offspring of their union: John, who was a member of the Eleventh Penna. Reserves during the Civil War, and was killed at Gaines' Mills; Solomon, a record of whom appears on another page of this work; Mary Jane, deceased wife of Edward Irvin; Alexander, who served in the Seventy-eighth Regiment, Penna. Volunteer Infantry during the Civil War; William W., a member of the Fourth Cavalry of Pennsylvania, during the Civil War; Alfred, also a member of the Fourth Cavalry; Alphens, who was in the Fourth Cavalry; Irvin; Anna, deceased, who was the wife of Miller McKinney; and Daniel L.

Daniel L. Dunbar was reared on the home place and received his education in the district school near by, attending a few months during the winters. He continued at home until his marriage. At the age of eighteen years he began teaching and continued for ten years; he taught the old school which he had previously attended, and also in Adams Township for a time. In the winter of 1887, he resigned his school to accept the position of county detective, under appointment of former judge, Hon. A. L. Hazen. During his term he was sent to Canada to make an arrest, and bore extradition papers from President Cleveland, that being the first case of the kind in Butler County. He served efficiently for three years, and immediately after was elected justice of the peace of Forward Township, in which capacity he has served, except for one term when he was out of office, with marked ability ever since. He also served two terms as school director. He has been agent at Watters for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for fifteen years, and for three years has been in the employ of the South Penn Oil Company. For several years he conducted a general store on his property, and since 1892, his wife has continuously been in charge of the post-office.

Mr. Dunbar was married in July, 1881, to Marry A. Boggs, a daughter of Andrew Boggs, and four children have been born to them: Walter, who is located in West Virginia and is foreman of the South Penn Oil Company, married Chloe Senes of West Virginia, and they have a son, Ralph; Maude, who lives in Virginia; Gertrude; and Ralph, who married Vera Davidson. is also in the employ of the South Penn Oil Company. Politically, Mr. Dunbar is a Republican, and is now serving his second term as supervisor. Fraternally, he is a member of the Knights of Pythias, and the Knights of the Maccabees.

JOHN A. CROSS, a well known oil producer and a member of the firm of Cross Brothers, has been a resident of Bruin, Butler County, Penna., since 1902, and has been prominently identified with the affairs of that borough. He was formerly, for a period of two years, one of the proprietors of the Bruin Machine and Tool Company, in partnership with Mr. N. F. Stanton. He has been engaged in the oil fields for many years, and has been a producer in Parker Township, Butler County, for seven years.

Mr. Cross was born February 16, 1872, in Eastern Kansas, and is a son of Prof. Daniel McLean Cross, now deceased, who was a well known educator of Western Pennsylvania. Professor Cross was educated in Allegheny College at Meadville, and thereafter entered upon his profession as a teacher. He was the first principal of West Sunbury Academy, and also taught at Harrisville and Clintonville Academies, and other institutions in Pennsylvania. He was a man of the highest educational attainments, and lived an honorable and useful life. His death occurred in 1898.

John A. Cross was five years of age when brought by his parents to Butler County, Penna., and was reared in the vicinity of Harrisville until he was eighteen years old, in the meantime receiving his educational training in the various institutions with which his father was identified. When nineteen years old he went to the "Hundred Foot" oil field in Butler County, where he worked for a time, then went to Sistersville, West Virginia, where he was employed in the oil fields for Jennings Brothers, for three years. He next went to Doddridge County, West Virginia, where he continued in the employ of Jennings Brothers for six years, after which, in 1901, he became an oil operator in Parker Township, Butler County, Penna., taking up his residence in Bruin in 1902. He is in partnership with his brother, Henry A. M. Cross, and the business is carried on under the firm name of Cross Brothers. Mr. Cross entered actively into the business, social and religious life of Bruin, and is one of the most progressive and public spirited men of the borough. He is serving his third consecutive term as member of the board of directors of Bruin Borough School District, and has served both as secretary and treasurer of that body.

In 1903, Mr. Cross became one of the organizers of the Bruin Baseball Club, and served as its manager for five years, during which time the club established an enviable reputation; they played between forty and fifty games each season, and were returned victors in full two-thirds of their games. In 1906, he brought the Pittsburg National League Club to Bruin for one game, the attendance being the largest of any athletic event ever held in the borough.

October 18, 1899, John A. Cross was joined in marriage with Miss Evalena Campbell, who was born in Butler County, and is a daughter of James E. Campbell of Concord Township. Four sons were the issue of this marriage, namely: W. Merle; Algy R.; Harold, who is deceased; and Cecil L. Mr. Cross is a member of Fairview United Presbyterian Church and is a member of the Session. He has been a thorough student of Biblical lore, and has frequently contributed written articles on theological subjects. He is a teacher in the Bible class of the Fairview Church. He is a Republican in national politics, but has Prohibition tendencies.

THOMAS J. KELLEY, a well known and highly esteemed citizen of Cherry Township, who is engaged in cultivating ninety-five acres of fine farm land situated about one and one-half miles north of Bovard, was born on a farm at Coal Town, Butler County, Pennsylvania, August 21, 1841, and is a son of Aaron and Lucy (Heald) Kelley.

Aaron Kelley was born in Perry County, Penna., and came to Butler County as a boy with his father, Joseph Kelley, who settled first in Worth Township, where he died. Aaron Kelley some years after his father's death, sold the farm in Worth Township, and moved to Ashtabula County, Ohio, but subsequently removed to New Castle, where he was living at the time of his death.

Some time after his marriage, Thomas J. Kelley removed to Ashtabula County, Ohio, with his father, but about 1880 or 1881 went to Venango County, Penna., where he resided until 1890, in which year he purchased his present farm in Cherry Township, Butler County. He carries on general farming, and his knowledge of agricultural matters, together with his thrift and enterprise, have caused him to succeed in his operations. His ninety-five acres are in an excellent state of cultivation, and the substantial buildings and well-kept premises give the property a pleasing appearance.

In 1865 Mr. Kelley was married in Butler County, to Matilda Crawford, who was born in Ireland, a daughter of Charles Crawford, and came to America as a baby. Mr. and Mrs. Kelley have been the parents of nine children, namely: Frank, who resides in New York State; James, deceased; Charles, who is married and resides on a part of the home farm; Joseph, who is married; Clara; John; Minnie, and one child which died in infancy.

HUSTON RUSSELL, joint owner with his wife of a farm of 100 acres of valuable land, situated in Cherry Township, two and one-half miles north of West Sunbury, was born in Cherry Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, on a farm about one mile east of his present one, February 22, 1830. His parents were David and Jane (Patton) Russell, farming people of Cherry Township.

Huston Russell was reared in Cherry Township, went to school there in boyhood and was trained by a very practical father to be a good farmer, and he has made agricultural pursuits his life work. In the summer of 1864 he enlisted for service in the Civil War, entering Captain Barnes' company in the Sixth Regiment, Pennsylvania Heavy Artillery, in which he was a messmate with his present friend and neighbor, Hugh Sproul, also of Cherry Township. Mr. Russell remained in the service until the close of the war and then returned to Cherry Township, where he has lived ever since. This property formerly belonged to his father-in-law, the late George McElwain, and adjoins the 100-acre farm owned by John S. Campbell, Esq.

In 1863 Mr. Russell was married to Miss Annis McElwain, who is a daughter of George and Mary Ann (McGill) McElwain, the former of whom died in 1854, and the latter in 1870. Mrs. Russell is one of the three survivors of a family of nine children.

To Mr. and Mrs. Russell have been born ten children, three of whom are deceased, namely: Perry, who died aged seventeen years; Samantha, who was the wife of Sherman McNeice; and Bessie, who died aged sixteen months. The survivors are: Mary Emma, who married Archie McLaughlin; Zella Maud, who is the wife of Floras Burch; Rose, who is the wife of Jesse Fellabaum; John, who resides at Butler; Reuben, who resides on his fine farm near Greenville, Pennsylvania; George, who resides at Salem, Ohio; and Golden, who manages the home farm. The three sons first mentioned are the oldest of the family, the three daughters come next, and the youngest is the son who remains at home, unmarried. Mr. and Mrs.

MR. AND MRS. HUSTON RUSSELL

Russell are leading members of the Pleasant Valley Presbyterian Church, in which Mr. Russell is an elder. Their home is one of genial good cheer and hospitality, and they have a wide circle of friends. Family gatherings frequently take place and among the most welcome guests in the old home are the eleven grandchildren.

W. L. ALLEN, proprietor of The Reliance Telephone and Manufacturing Company, of Butler, is identified with other business interests of this section and is numbered with the representative men of this city. He was born at Portageville, in Wyoming County, New York, in 1858, and when eight years of age accompanied the family to Corry, Penna., where he obtained his public school education.

The first work in which Mr. Allen was engaged was done during a school vacation, for the Corry Tub and Pail Factory. Later he worked for a short time in a local machine shop and this gave him a taste for machinery, induced him to learn the trade and to work at the same until 1879, when he became a clerk in the post-office at Bradford, and in 1880 he had a mail contract in McKean County. When he came to Butler, in 1886, he entered the machine shops of T. & W. G. Hays & Company, where he continued until 1890, when he went with the firm of Masseh & Black, with whom he remained until 1896. Mr. Allen then embarked in business at Evans City, under the style of Elliott Brothers & Allen Machine Shops, but in the spring of 1900 he sold out to his partners and came to Butler again, where he had already many social and business ties. He resumed business in this city, establishing the Butler Electro Plating Works, and in 1904, in partnership with J. B. Nixon, purchased the plant of the United States Electric Manufacturing Company, in less than a year becoming sole proprietor. He then combined his two plants under the name of The Reliance Telephone and Manufacturing Company. He manufactures the best telephones that are now in use and also chandeliers. His business is a constantly growing one and is a standard concern in the commercial life of Butler. Mr. Allen is a director and secretary of the Ozark Uplift Oil and Mining Company, a corporation that controls 9,000 acres of land in the Ozark regions of Missouri.

In 1881, Mr. Allen was married to Miss Mollie E. White, a daughter of Thomas B. White and a great-granddaughter of Matthew White, who was one of the first commissioners of Butler County, this family being one of the old-settled ones of this section. Mr. Allen's maternal grandfather was a McQuiston and his father came to Butler County as early as 1796. Mr. and Mrs. Allen have five children, namely: Roy M., who resides in New York City; Frank W., who lives at Dubois, Pennsylvania; and Carrie B., Marion E. and Ruth M., at home. Mr. Allen and family are members of the First Baptist Church, in which he has served as a deacon for many years. In his political views he is a Prohibitionist and in former years served as secretary of the Butler County Committee of that party.

ELI OESTERLING, a representative citizen of Butler Township where he resides on his valuable farm of seventy-five acres, which he devotes to general agriculture and dairying, is a member of one of the oldest families in Butler County. He was born in Summit Township, February 22, 1853, and is a son of John and Mary Weisenstine Oesterling.

John Oesterling, father of Eli, was born in Hesse Darmstadt, Germany, and died in Butler County in 1870, aged fifty-two years. He was thirteen years of age when he accompanied his parents to America. They were John and Elizabeth (Ripper) Oesterling and they came to Pennsylvania from Germany, in 1831, and settled near Herman Station, in Summit Township, Butler County, where John Oesterling died in his sixty-seventh year. Eight of his fourteen children grew to mature years, his son John being the eldest of the family. Although this son never enjoyed robust health, he engaged in farming through life and also performed many offices of a good citizen. He was a Whig in his earlier years and later a Democrat. In his township he was highly esteemed and his fellow citizens elected him school director and also tax collector. He gave liberally of his means in support of the German Lutheran Church, in which he was one of the elders. He married a daughter of John Weisenstine, who was a farmer in Luzerne County. To this marriage were born nine children, namely: Henry, deceased; James, deceased; Katherine, wife of Harvey Baldouff, of Butler; Frederick, of Summit Township; Eli; Margaret, wife of Jacob Shoup, of Oakland Township; Charles, of Millerstown; Lewis, residing on the old homestead; and Sarah, deceased.

Eli Oesterling was reared in Summit Township and there obtained his education. After his marriage he left the home farm and moved on his grandfather Weisenstine's farm, in Butler Township, where he remained for four years, when he moved to the Mitchell farm, on which he lived for fifteen years. In 1897 he bought his present property and has given close and careful attention to developing it ever since. He keeps fifteen head of cattle and has over sixty-five acres of his land in corn, oats, wheat and hay. His oldest son operates a successful milk route in Butler, which was started fifteen years ago, and about thirty gallons of milk are disposed of daily.

Mr. Oesterling married Catherine Brautegan, who was born in Kur-Hessen, Germany. She was thirteen years of age when her parents brought her to America and settled at Etna, Allegheny County, in 1863. Seven of Mr. and Mrs. Oesterling's family of eight children grew up and they are named as follows: Ferdinand H., who manages the milk route; Raines David, resides at home; Gertrude married William McDowell and they live on the home farm; Alice married Gilbert Ford of Butler Township; and Daniel, Sarah and Clarence, reside at home. Mr. Oesterling and family belong to the German Lutheran Church. He is one of the township's leading Democrats and for nine years served as a school director, for three years was supervisor, for four years was assessor and is now serving in the office of roadmaster. His excellent judgment and sound business sense make him one of the most useful citizens of his community.

HENRY WAHL, who lives on the northern line of Forward Township, Butler County, Penna., comes of an old and respected family of the community, the town of Wahlville deriving its name from his father who was engaged in coal mining at that point. He has a fine farm of seventy-one acres, and has had a most active career in the fields of business.

Henry Wahl was born on the home farm in Forward Township, August 6, 1853, and is a son of Martin and Christina (Kreis) Wahl. Martin Wahl was born in France and was ten years of age when he accompanied his parents to the United States, they locating in Jackson Township, Butler County, Penna., and he lived there with his parents until his marriage, then purchased a farm where Wahlville now stands. The latter years of his life were spent at Evans City. He was always a hard worker and, starting as a poor man, accumulated a competency, becoming one of the well-to-do and substantial citizens of the township. He purchased his farm at a price of $11 per acre. He operated a coal bank on the farm, and later was engaged in the milling business at Evans City. In politics, he was an unswerving Democrat. His first marriage was with a Miss Holt, who died a short time afterward. He later married Christina Kreis, who also was a native of Germany, and to them were born the following children: Christina, wife of Henry Basemaker; William; Henry; Catherine, wife of Henry Mickle; Andrew; Lena, wife of John Marburger; Ausmus; Matilda, wife of W. C. Launderer; George; and Anna, wife of Adam Dombaugh. The mother of the subject of this sketch died in 1895. Martin Wahl formed a third union with Mrs. Winrater. His death occurred in 1903, at the age of eighty years.

Henry Wahl spent his boyhood days upon the farm, which he aided in clearing. He had very limited educational advantages as his assistance was needed at home, and early became inured to hard work, he and his brother, William, starting in to haul coal before they were able to harness the horses. He resided at home until his marriage, then purchased a farm of fifty-one acres in Forward Township, of the Grahams; he later sold this property and returned to the home place of 120 acres which he farmed for his father. He remained there until he purchased his present farm of seventy-one acres of Henry Ziegler, and here he has engaged in general farming and stockraising, although he has also given considerable time to the oil and coal business, in which he has been very successful. He has a fine brick residence, and the farm is well equipped with other substantial buildings and improvements so necessary to the successful prosecution of farming.

June 15, 1880, Mr. Wahl was joined in wedlock with Miss Anna Schilling, sister of Alexander Schilling, a record of whom appears on another page of this work. Five children are the issue of this union, namely: Emma, wife of Charles Fageley; Christina, a trained nurse at Pittsburg; Herman, who is attending school at Cincinnati, Ohio; Lena; and Minnie. Religiously, the family belong to the Lutheran Church, in which he has been an officer for more than twenty years. Politically, he is a Democrat, but is inclined to be independent locally, giving his support to the man best fitted for the office. He has served as school director and was the first supervisor elected under the new law.

HON. WILLIAM S. WALDRON, who was long known throughout Butler County as a type of its best and most representative citizenship, was born in Forward Township, this county, June 23, 1823, and died August 13, 1907. He was the youngest son of John S. and Maria (Lindsey) Waldron. His education, though confined to the English branches, was thorough, and for some years he was engaged in the profession of teaching, in 1848 being principal of a public school in Peoria, Illinois. Subsequently returning home, he purchased the old homestead, and a year or two later, about 1854, remodeled and improved the buildings. He took a prominent part in local affairs, being one of the school directors of Forward Township for thirty years, and served for three years on the School Board of Evans City. The confidence of his fellow citizens in his capacity as a man of affairs was shown in 1856, when they elected him county auditor, and again in 1872 when he was elected to the Legislature, in both of which positions he served with credit. He was a man of broad and liberal views, but by no means superficial, to the end of his life keeping himself well informed in regard to all important subjects, and carrying out thoroughly every enterprise in which he engaged. With so many of the old time Whigs, he joined the Republican party on its formation, and was always influential in the local councils of the party. He was a member and past master of Harmony Lodge, F. & A. M., and was also prominent in Oddfellowship, being a charter member of Evans City Lodge of that order, and a member of the Encampment. By diligence in business he accumulated a fair share of this world's goods, and was rated among the substantial and prosperous citizens of the county.

On September 3, 1846, Mr. Waldron was united in marriage with Eliza M. Bellis, who died in 1904. She was a daughter of John and Susan (Kline) Bellis. Mrs. Waldron came to Butler with her parents in 1842 from Luzerne County, Penna.

To Mr. and Mrs. Waldron were born the following children: O. K. Waldron, Susan O., Theodore C., William S., Laura H., J. C., Eva M., Reuben O., Maria B., Fred V., Elizabeth A. J., Ulysses S. G., Ada M. and Leota E. O. K. Waldron is a graduate in dentistry, but not now engaged in the practice of his profession. He was the first regular graduate practitioner in the county. His present business activities are in connection with the Lyndora Bank, of which he is vice president. He owns and resides on a fine farm about two miles from Butler. Susan O. is the wife of Nelson B. Duncan. Theodore S. resides in Washington State. Laura H. is the wife of R. M. Kinnear; Eva M. is the wife of J. B. Evans. Maria B. is the wife of F. B. Dodds, Ada M. the wife of B. S. Buhl, and Leota E. of O. S. Sutton. Mr. and Mrs. Waldron will long be remembered as among the worthiest residents of their day, in Butler County.

JOHN BERINGER is the owner of a valuable farm of 132 acres lying about one mile north of Evans City, in Forward Township, Butler County, Penna. He was born on this farm, March 31, 1851, and is a son of John, Sr., and Catherine (Hartung) Beringer.

John Beringer, Sr., was born in Germany and came with his parents, Conrad and Catherine Beringer, to the United States, being on the water about fifty-two days. They stopped for a short time in Beaver County, Penna., then came on to Forward Township, where they purchased the farm owned by the subject of this sketch. The country was at that time but little developed, and but sparsely settled. They erected a log house and began clearing the place. Conrad Beringer, during the war, left on a visit to his brother in Indiana, but never reached his destination nor was heard from again. Much money was spent in tracing his movements, but all that was found concerning him was that he was shipped from Rochester on the lakes, a ship's books bearing his signature. His wife, Catherine, lived to an advanced age. They had four children: John, father of the subject of this record; Eliza, wife of Nicholas Kline, both now deceased; Conrad, deceased; and Catherine, wife of Fred Kreise, both deceased.

John Beringer, Sr., the eldest of the children, was about sixteen years old at the time of the family's arrival in this country. He spent his winters in working in the lumber camps, rafting logs down the river, and earning money with which to improve the home farm. The summer months were spent in clearing and cultivating the land. He was a hard worker and prospered, and lived on this farm until his death in 1900, at the age of seventy-two years. He was joined in marriage with Catherine Hartung, who was born in Butler County, and is now living, in the enjoyment of good health. Five children were the offspring of this union: John, Jr.; Mary, wife of John M. Miller; Catherine, wife of William Wilson; Harry; and Emma, wife of James Elder.

John Beringer, Jr., was reared and has always lived on his present farm. He attended the old Stamm school, through the woods, for a time, but his educational advantages were exceedingly limited. His father was ill for three years during his boyhood, and as he was the eldest of the children, it became necessary for him to remain at home and look after the farm. He helped clear the farm, and hauled the lumber and stone used in the construction of the barn which now stands on the place.

He continued to manage the affairs of the farm from an early date, and after his father's death purchased the outstanding interests of the other heirs to the farm. He is energetic and progressive, and takes rank among the foremost men of the township.

Mr. Beringer was married to Miss Mary Cooper, a daughter of James Cooper, and in the spring of 1908 he was called upon to mourn her loss through death. Three children were born to them: Blanche, Harry, and Susan. Religiously, he is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In politics, he is a Republican.

Mr. Beringer is engaged in general farming and dairying; he keeps an average of fifteen head of cows, and ships milk to Pittsburg. He has nine producing oil wells on the farm, and this too has been the source of a handsome income.

JAMES B. CALDWELL, a prominent resident of Jefferson Township, Butler County, Penna., resides on a fine farm of 116 acres located about five miles southeast of Butler, on the Butler and Freeport Pike. He also has another tract of thirty-eight acres in this Township, on both of which oil and gas are produced in remunerative quantities. Mr. Caldwell engages in farming, as well as oil producing, and is one of the substantial men of the township. He was born in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, June 14, 1842, and is a son of Samuel and Mary (Beatty) Caldwell.

Richard Caldwell, paternal grandfather of the subject of this sketch, came to this country from County Antrim, Ireland, being accompanied by his wife, who in maiden life was a Stewart. Samuel Caldwell was born in Washington County, Pennsylvania, whither his parents had come from their native land, and there he grew to maturity. He moved to Butler County and later to Armstrong County, but finally returned to Butler County, where he became owner of some good farming property.

James B. Caldwell attended school some in Armstrong County, but his educational training was mainly obtained in the schools of Butler County. He turned his attention to agricultural pursuits and has one of the best improved places in the neighborhood. Some twenty years ago he discovered oil on his property, the first being a twenty-five barrel well. He now has nine good wells on the place, and five wells on his other property. Although he has been one of the most active oil men, he has not worked off his own land, his wells giving him all he could attend to. Underlying his land are two strata of coal, about ten feet thick, at a depth, respectively, of fifty feet and 200 feet.

November 7, 1867, Mr. Caldwell was joined in marriage with Miss Rebecca J. Barr, a daughter of Henry Harrison and Ann Eliza (Lyon) Barr, and granddaughter of Michael and Martha (Holmes) Barr. Michael Barr came from Germany to this country, and at his death was located in Mifflin County, Pennsylvania, from whence came Henry H. to Butler County. Mr. and Mrs. Caldwell became parents of the following children: Samuel H., who married Jane Davis and has three children,—Elsie R., Elton and Beulah; Mary, a graduate of Sunbury, who married Frank Hinchberger of Butler, by whom she has the following children: Beatrice, Bertha, Luella, and Stella (deceased); Elizabeth, wife of L. B. Steele of Portersville, by whom she has six children,—Floyd, Ferda, Erla, Nellie, Vena and Pearl; Sadie, wife of John Mellvain, by whom she has three children,—Ralph, Homer and Eveline; Caroline and Adaline, twins; Ellen Rebecca; James Foster, deceased; Bertha, deceased; and two who died in infancy. The subject of this sketch is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Thorn Creek, to which Mrs. Caldwell also belongs. He has ever taken a deep interest in the progress of the community and has been especially interested in the betterment of the school system, serving some years as a member of the School Board.

JOSEPH E. HOLBEIN, secretary and treasurer of the Edward Dambach Company of Evans City, Pennsylvania, is one of the successful business men of Butler County. Throughout his active career he has been identified with the lumber business, beginning in his boyhood days, and is well qualified to direct the affairs of a concern of such magnitude as the Edward Dambach Company.

This enterprise was established in 1885 by J. and E. Dambach, who successfully conducted the lumber yard and planing mill in partnership until about 1895. Jacob Dambach retired at that time and was succeeded in the business by Edward Dambach, who continued it alone until 1904. In that year it was organized into a stock company with Edward Dambach as president; Joseph E. Holbein, vice-president; and H. W. Dambach, secretary and treasurer. After the death of H. W. Dambach, March 24, 1904, and that of Edward in May, 1905, the Edward Dambach Company was reorganized with the following officers: S. J. Irvine, president; W. P. Kinsey, vice-president; and J. E. Holbein, secretary and treasurer. The lumber-yard and planing-mill, at which about fifty men are employed, covers four acres of ground and is the largest plant in Evans City, as well as one of the largest of its kind in Western Pennsylvania.

Joseph E. Holbein was born on his father's farm in Medina County, Ohio, October 12, 1867, and is a son of Elias and Lydia (Kulp) Holbein. The father was a farmer and a harness maker but died early in life, our subject being but four years old at the time. The latter was one of five children born to his parents, and at the tender age of eight years began work. At the age of thirteen years he began working in the woods for a lumber yard at Wadsworth, Ohio, and later at a saw-mill, devoting his attention to learning the details of the business. He was ambitious to acquire an education, having received very little schooling in his younger days, and when eighteen years old entered Western Reserve Normal School, having saved enough to enable him to attend that institution two years. During that time he spent his evenings in newspaper work. In 1890 Mr. Holbein moved to Evans City and entered the employ of the Edward Dambach Company as a general mill man. His advancement with this firm was rapid, and in 1904 became a stockholder and now has general charge of the plant.

Mr. Holbein was united in marriage in 1898 with Miss M. M. Mickley, a daughter of Henry Mickley, and they have a son, Delmont E. Fraternally, he is a member of Lodge No. 429, F. & A. M., of Zelienople, Pennsylvania. He is a Democrat in politics, and has served as auditor of Evans City, a member of the board of health, and is at present a member of the school board. In religious attachment, he and his wife are members of the Lutheran Church.

WILLIAM P. KINSEY, a successful business man and well known citizen of Evans City, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is vice-president of the Edward Dambach Company, which operates a large planing mill and lumber yard in that village. He was born in Portersville, Butler County, February 17, 1869, and is a son of Jacob and Elizabeth (Wimer) Kinsey.

Jacob Kinsey was born in 1832 in Bedford County, Pennsylvania, his father having come from Germany and settled there at an early date. Jacob subsequently moved to Portersville, Butler County, where he followed his trade as a shoemaker and lived until his death, in December, 1899. He married Elizabeth Wimer, who is of English descent and was born at Portersville in 1845. Her father, Jacob Wimer, was a blacksmith by trade and was one of the first residents of that village. Five children were born to Jacob and Elizabeth Kinsey, namely: Margaret, who died at the age of two years; William Penn, Frank, George, and John.

William P. Kinsey spent his boyhood days in his native village and there attended the public schools. He attended the academy at that place two years, and one year at Slippery Rock, after which he engaged in teaching school. In 1889 he began teaching and continued for eight years, five years of which time he was located near Ogle, in Butler County. He later entered the employ of L. N. Burry, a well known hardware dealer of Evans City, and served as bookkeeper for two years, after which he continued six years in the same capacity for Burry & Markel. In 1904 he came to the Edward Dambach Company as bookkeeper, and the following year became a stockholder and was elected vice-president of the firm. He is a man of exceptional business capability, and one of the substantial citizens of the village.

June 22, 1892, Mr. Kinsey was joined in marriage with Aurelia Cookson, a daughter of E. J. and Hannah Jane Cookson, and they reside in a fine home on Jefferson Street, which he erected at the time of his removal to Evans City. They are parents of three children—Ada May, Wilbur Lowery, and Ernest Dewey. Religiously, they are members of St. John's Reformed Church. Fraternally, he is a member of Evans City Lodge No. 295, K. P.; Lodge No. 429, F. & A. M., at Harmony; and Eastern Star No. 37, Evans City. Politically, Mr. Kinsey is an ardent Republican and has filled all the village offices except that of justice of the peace.

O. P. CAMPBELL, a substantial citizen of West Sunbury, where he has served as postmaster since July 1, 1901, and an honored veteran of the great Civil War, was born in 1843, in Bruin, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Robert and Jane (Sheppard) Campbell.

Mr. Campbell's father having died when he was still a lad, he was reared on the farm of his great-uncle, Thomas Campbell, in Parker Township. In December, 1861, he enlisted at Kittanning, Pennsylvania, in Company K, One Hundred and Third Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, serving three years and then veteranizing with the same regiment, his service in all covering a period of three years and seven months. Mr. Campbell was captured by the Confederates at Plymouth, North Carolina, April 20, 1864, and was taken to Andersonville Prison, where he was detained five months. For the following three months he was confined in a temporary prison at the Charleston Fair Grounds, and was then taken to Florence, South Carolina, where he remained a prisoner until his exchange, in December, 1864. From that time until the spring of 1865, Mr. Campbell was sick at the home of his great-uncle, but on recuperating he rejoined his regiment and remained with them until receiving his discharge at Newburn, North Carolina, in June, 1865. He proved himself a brave and faithful soldier, and had an army record of which any man might be proud. After his services to his country were completed, Mr. Campbell returned home for several weeks, then going to Oil Creek, near Oil City, and for two years was employed in the oil fields, after which he engaged in farming in Washington Township. After about eight years spent in the latter township, Mr. Campbell removed to Cherry Township, where he followed the same occupation for a period covering seventeen years, and in the spring of 1896 he came to West Sunbury, where he has since been a leading citizen.

Mr. Campbell was married in 1868 to Abigail Glenn, who is a daughter of James Glenn, of Clay Township, and they have three children, namely: Dr. Willard B., of Harrisville, Pennsylvania, married Jennie Stewart, of Cherry Township, and they have three children,—Charlotte, Malcolm P. and Paul; Melvin G., engaged in the real estate business in Pittsburg, married Florence McCall, of Clay Township, and has two children,—Mildred F. and Grayda G.; and Claude C., in the hardware business in West Sunbury, married Flora Russell, of Concord Township, and has two children,—Ronald and Helen. Mr. Campbell is a member of the Presbyterian Church at West Sunbury.

ALBERT RUFF, of the firm of A. Ruff & Sons, leading shoe merchants at Butler, conducting the oldest established shoe house in the city, is prominently identified with other successful business enterprises of the section. Mr. Ruff was born March 25, 1846, at Butler, Penna., and is a son of Ignatius Ruff, who was born in Germany in 1812 and came to Butler in 1830.

Albert Ruff attended the early Butler schools and before he had identified himself with any permanent business, he entered the Federal Army as a soldier, enlisting in 1863, as a private in the Fifty-eighth Regiment, Penna. Volunteer Infantry. At the expiration of his first term of three months, Mr. Ruff reenlisted, contracting for three years or until the close of the war, and honorably fulfilled his promises as a member of Company A, Seventy-sixth Regiment, Penna. Volunteer Infantry. When he returned to Butler he went into the shoe business as a member of the firm of Bickel Son & Co., which later became Bickel & Ruff. This firm was succeeded by Albert Ruff and in the course of years the change was made to its present style of A. Ruff & Sons. This shoe business is one of the old landmark concerns of the city, remarkable not only for its continuance but also for its honorable methods which have always kept to the old standard. Mr. Ruff owns oil interests in several sections and is treasurer of the Rough Run Manufacturing Company.

In 1869, Mr. Ruff was married to Miss Mary Bickel, who is a daughter of Philip Bickel, and they have three children, two sons and one daughter; Philip W. and Charles H., both of whom are members of the firm of A. Ruff & Sons; and Millie, residing at home. Philip W. Ruff is president of the Butler School Board and was chairman of the building committee during the erection of the fine High School structure lately completed. He has taken much interest in educational matters and has been a member of the School Board a number of years and for five years served as secretary. He is a Mason, an Odd Fellow and an Elk. In 1900, he was married to Miss Emma L. Cromm, a daughter of William Cromm, and they have two children, Mary Cromm and Evelyn Isabel. Philip W. Ruff and wife are members of the Presbyterian Church and they belong to the Country Club.

Charles H. Ruff, the second son, was married in June, 1907, to Miss Elizabeth Reiber, a daughter of Jacob Reiber. They are members of the Lutheran Church, and he is connected with the fraternal order of Maccabees.

Albert Ruff has taken much interest in the Grand Army Post at Butler ever since it was established. During the larger part of his life he has been a member of the United Presbyterian Church and has been a trustee of the Church at Butler for eight years.

JAMES NEWTON MAHARG, a representative citizen and prominent farmer of Penn Township, residing on his finely improved farm of 132 acres, was born on this farm August 9, 1862, and is a son of James and Catherine (Brown) Maharg.

James Maharg was born in Forward Township, Butler County, Penna., and died when aged eighty-four years. He came with his father to the farm now owned by James N. Maharg, when three years old and lived on it through the rest of his life, surviving into old age but not reaching the years of his father, who lived to the age of 103 years. He was John E. Maharg, who came from County Down, Ireland, as a very early settler in Butler County, lived first in Forward and later in Penn Township, and was the first postmaster of the village of Maharg. James Maharg remained on the Penn Township farm, which, in his day, contained 265 acres, the larger part of which he assisted to clear. He was a Whig in his early political faith but later became a Republican and at various times he served in the offices of the township. He married a daughter of Peter Brown, of Allegheny, Penna., and they had twelve children born to them, nine of whom reached maturity, James Newton being the eighth in order of birth.

James Newton Maharg was reared and educated in his native township and has always devoted his attention to farming. He has 120 acres of his land under cultivation and his crops include corn, oats, wheat, hay and potatoes. There is a probability that oil may be developed on his farm and two wells are now being drilled. His handsome brick residence is a landmark in the township and the whole place attracts favorable comments from those who drive along the Plank road.

Mr. Maharg married Mary R. Brown, who is a daughter of Joseph and Christie Ann (Brown) Brown, and to this marriage have been born eleven children, namely: Mark B., a student in the class of 1910, at Grovè City College; Bessie, a teacher, who is a graduate of the Slippery Rock Normal School; and Mary Ada, Vernetta Belle, Grace Lucetta, Esther Elizabeth, Ruth Catherine, John Christie, Martha Gertrude, Gladys Irene and Clara Imogene. Mr. Maharg with his family belongs to the Middlesex Presbyterian Church, in which he is an elder. He takes a great interest in the Sunday-school and has served as its superintendent.

In politics, Mr. Maharg is an active Republican and is now serving as township auditor and has been both treasurer and clerk. He is a public-spirited citizen and a level-headed business man.

EDWARD MORGAN, formerly one of the prominent and useful citizens of Allegheny Township, in which he spent over a quarter of a century, was born January 26, 1824, in County Down, Ireland, and died January 27, 1901, in Butler County, Penna. His parents were Hugh and Jane (Dunn) Morgan, the latter of whom died in Ireland and the former of whom came to America and died some years later in Armstrong County, Penna.

Edward Morgan was reared in his native land and there obtained his education. In 1848 he emigrated to America, locating in Butler County, Penna., and prior to 1874, engaged in farming for a time in Parker Township, settling then permanently in Allegheny Township. He devoted all his energies to developing his farm and made it one of the best in the township. It contains 140 acres of finely cultivated land and is now owned by his widow.

On October 23, 1856, Mr. Morgan was married to Miss Florinda Graham, who was born February 28, 1839, at Emlenton, Pennsylvania, and is a daughter of John and Mary (Hill) Graham. Her father was born in Butler County and her mother in Venango County. When Mrs. Morgan was six years old, her parents came to Butler County and she was reared in Parker Township, where her father died, April 21, 1856. In the following October she was married, as stated above, and a long and happy union succeeded, she finding in her husband a kind, loving and protecting companion. There were eleven children born to them and seven members of the family still survive, namely: Mary J., who is the wife of John A. Sloan, of Allegheny Township; Clara C., Robert J. and Benjamin H., all are resident of Allegheny Township; Florinda A., who is the widow of Finley Wonderly, late of Allegheny Township; George G., who lives at Foxburg, Pennsylvania; and Margaret E., who resides with her mother.

The late Edward Morgan was one of the men whom no community can easily spare. He was a careful father and was deeply beloved in the domestic circle, was a neighbor of whom all others speak well, and was a citizen whose word was as good as his bond, one who set an example of obedience to law and lent his influence to advance educational and religious movements. He was a Republican in his political views but would never consent to hold any office except those of director of the poor and school director. He was a consistent member of the Presbyterian Church, as is his widow, and he gave to the needy when none but himself knew the extent of his bounty. Edward Morgan was a man whose memory should be perpetuated, for his virtues were many and his faults were few.

ROBERT S. TITLEY. Among the many fine estates situated in Donegal Township, Butler County, few are more valuable or better known than the great farm belonging to Robert S. Titley in partnership with his father, John W. Titley. It comprises 290 acres of fine land, with two producing oil wells, and many noted race horses have been bred and raised here. Mr. Titley was born July 5, 1873, in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of John W. and Lavina (Stepheson) Titley.

The parents of Mr. Titley came to Butler County from Armstrong County, in 1883, and John M. Titley engaged in extensive farming, stockraising and oil producing. When his son, Robert S., became his partner, he embarked in horse-raising and together they have owned such famous racers as Star Pointer, Cloud Pointer, Hal Breden and Grandview. Mr. Titley paid \$1,500 for Star Pointer, when he was nine months old, purchasing from Mrs. Henry Pointer, of Springhill, Tennessee. The colt then had a fine record which he advanced in the same year, and at two years had a record of 2:34 $\frac{1}{4}$. Mr. Titley kept the animal for five years and then sold it to a Mr. Mills, of Boston, Massachusetts. Cloud Pointer was also purchased of Mrs. Pointer, she considering these horses the pick of her stables. Hal Breden, also a noted racer, was bought from Major Campbell Brown of Springhill, Tennessee. John M. Titley and wife reside at Marietta, Ohio, where he is engaged in the oil business. They had the following children: William; Minnie, who married Joseph Hecker, lives at Marietta, Ohio; Robert S.; Jennie, who married Silas Therlow, lives at Marietta; Laura, who married Rev. Mergler, lives at Cincinnati; Edith, who resides at Marietta; Charles, who married Amy Stowe, lives in California; and Richard, who lives at Marietta.

Robert S. Titley was about thirteen years old when his parents moved to Butler County and after finishing his education, he learned the art of telegraphing and worked for one year in different offices, after which he joined his father in the operation of the big stock farm of which he is joint proprietor and manager.

In 1899, at Chicora, Penna., Mr. Titley was married to Miss Lena Frederick, who is a daughter of George and Lavina (Shakley) Frederick, the former of whom was born in Germany and the latter in Butler County. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick had twelve children, namely: Henry, Ernest, George, Eliza, Reuben, Edward, Retta, Frederick, Lena, Setta, Emma, and Anna, the last named being deceased. Mr. and Mrs. Titley have two children: Paul M. and Lena L. He is a member of the German Lutheran Church at Chicora and is identified with the lodge of Odd Fellows at the same place. Mr. Titley is one of the most enterprising young business men of this section and both he and father deserve credit for the opportunities they have afforded stockmen of the county to improve their breeding stables.

SAMUEL G. PURVIS, who was an early and prominent representative of the building trade in Butler, founder of the firm of S. G. Purvis & Company, was born in Cumberland County, Penna., May 8, 1808, eldest son of William and Isabel Purvis. His youth up to the age of twenty-three years was passed on his parents' farm, and he then went to Pittsburg to learn the carpenter's trade. Settling in Butler in 1832, he worked at his trade here as a journeyman for some two years, during which time he was employed on the construction of the Presbyterian Church. In 1834 he engaged in business for himself as a contractor and builder, and so continued until 1867. In that year Mr. Purvis, taking his son Joseph in as partner, founded the firm of S. G. Purvis & Company, and they continued to be engaged in contracting and building exclusively until 1869, when they also embarked in the planing-mill and lumber business. In 1878 they gave up contracting and building in order to devote their entire attention to their lumber and planing-mill business, which had by that time considerably increased in proportions. This they subsequently developed into a most flourishing business, which is continued at the present day, being now one of the leading industrial enterprises of the city.

Though giving his chief attention to his own particular business Mr. Purvis was a man of varied activities. He was one of the founders of the Butler Water Company and served as its first president; was at one time proprietor of the Democratic Herald; was an original stockholder in the Butler and Allegheny Plank Road Company, and was president of the Butler Mutual Insurance Company from the time of its organization until his death. He was a justice of the peace for sixteen years, and also served acceptably on the School Board. From his youth up, he was a member of the United Presbyterian Church of Butler, in which for many years he was also an elder and trustee. In politics he was a staunch Democrat. He was a man always interested in the welfare of the community, and ever ready to lend a helping hand to any worthy cause.

Mr. Purvis married Elizabeth Logan, a daughter of Joseph Logan of Middlesex Township. He died May 28, 1879, his wife passing away nearly thirteen years later, in April, 1892. Their children were as follows: Joseph L., deceased, a sketch of whom will be found in this volume, who became his father's partner in the firm of S. G. Purvis & Company as already noted, and who was a prominent business man of Butler; Isabel; Samuel D., with the sash and door factory of S. G. Purvis & Company, who married in 1866, Valeria Evans, and has had seven children,—Annie E., Ella, Perry E. (deceased), Frank, Alfred B., Samuel G., and Gracey F.; William L., who is now deceased; Levi O., a member of the firm of Levi O. Purvis & Company and residing at No. 300 E. Pearl Street, Butler; and Sarah J., now deceased, who was the wife of Harrison Black.

Levi O. Purvis was born in Butler, May 12, 1846. He was the third son of his parents, Samuel G. and Elizabeth Purvis, and was educated in the public schools and at Witherspoon Institute. After learning the carpenter's trade he worked at it as a journeyman until 1876, at which time he became a member of the firm of S. G. Purvis & Company, with which he was connected for many years. Then, with his son, Harold G., he established the firm of Levi O. Purvis & Company, manufacturers of and dealers in sash, doors, blinds and general wood-work, having a fine plant at No. 100 S. Franklin Street. The firm has been quite successful and is numbered among the representative business institutions of the city. Mr. Purvis is a Democrat politically, and has performed useful service on the School Board for twelve years. He belongs to Butler Lodge, F. & A. M., and also to the Ancient Order of United Workmen.

Mr. Purvis married Zoe Dempsey, a daughter of Captain Francis Dempsey, of Erie, Pennsylvania. He has five children: Harold G., Clara, Florence, May and Bessie. All the members of the family belong to the Presbyterian Church.

FREDERICK J. WINTERS, who carried on business as a contracting mason, is also the owner of a valuable farm of eighty acres on which he resides, and which is situated in Penn Township. He was born March 27, 1855, in Jackson Township, Butler County, Penna., his parents being Conrad and Sophia (Deitrich) Winters.

Conrad Winters was born in Germany and before coming to America learned the trade of stone cutter. After settling in Jackson Township, Butler County, he continued to work at his trade and also cultivated a farm. He was twice married, the second time to Dora Smith, in 1871. She died in 1895. Of this union there was one child, Mary, now the wife of George Duncan of Connoquenessing Township. Mr. and Mrs. Winters were members of the German Lutheran Church at Zelenople and were liberal contributors to its support. Of their four children two reached maturity, namely: Frederick J., and Anna, who married Frank Galbraith. Conrad Winters died November 29, 1901, at the advanced age of eighty-four years.

Frederick J. Winters lost his mother when he was only three and a half years old and during his boyhood he attended school in different townships through Butler County. He learned the trade of stone-mason with an uncle, and has worked at it, in conjunction with farming, ever since, having done quite a large amount of bridge construction for the county. In 1886 he bought his present farm in Penn Township, of which he has about fifty acres under cultivation, raising corn, oats, wheat and hay. He also keeps from four to six head of horses, using them in his business.

Mr. Winters married Charlotte Klinger, a daughter of John Klinger, a farmer of Penn Township, and they have had ten children, as follows: Clara Louisa, Frank Edward, John David, Charles Conrad, Pearl Alice, William Albert, Russell Clyde, Bertha Marie (deceased), Victor Eugene, and Laura Catherine. The eldest daughter is the wife of Albert Winroe, of Penn Township, and they have four children—Laura Marie, Helen Clara, Edna Catherine, and Bertha Leona. Frank married Margaret Lavery and lives in Penn Township. He has two children—John Edward and Paul Raymond. John married Lydia Hager, who died leaving one child, Frederick Lemont, who is also now deceased. John also lives in Penn Township. Charles married Agnes Peters and they have one child—Dorothy Alma; they also are residents of Penn Township. The three sons—Frank, John and Charles—have also learned the stone cutters' and masons' trade and are now engaged in contracting in that line of industry.

JOHN FINDLEY SHANNON, Justice of the Peace, general merchant and prominent citizen, has been a resident of Callery since August, 1888. He was born December 22, 1854, in Franklin Township, Butler County, Penna., and is a son of Matthew W. and Mary (Stephenson) Shannon.

Leonard Shannon, the great-grandfather of John F., was born in Ireland and when he came to America he settled in Butler County, along Muddy Creek, and there many of the family still reside. David Shannon, son of Leonard and grandfather of John F., was born in Butler County and became a man of property and influence. He married Betsey White, who belonged to a pioneer family of Butler County, which had founded the village of Whitestown. She died in the year following her marriage and David Shannon married (second) Anna White, the sister of his first wife. The children born to them were: John L., now deceased; Matthew W.; David; Samuel, now deceased; Mary, now deceased, who was the wife of Robert Lemon; Fannie, who married M. McCullough, both now deceased; and Rachel, who married Alfred Hines, also both deceased.

Matthew W. Shannon was born in 1821, in Connoquenessing Township, Butler County, to which his father had moved. The latter built a sawmill and a grist mill and operated them there for some years and then moved further south and bought 400 acres which was called the old Shannon farm. On that property he built a sawmill and from his timber land came the lumber for the first frame Court House built at Butler. David continued to own the mill but it was operated by his sons, John L. and Matthew W. For a number of years it was run continuously, being the only mill in that part of the county at that time, but later it was washed away in a freshet. Matthew W. Shannon continued to live at home for several years after his marriage and then rented what is now known as the Grossman farm, south of Prospect, the same on which his son John Findley was born. This farm he operated for several years and then purchased a small farm north of Whitestown, on which he lived until 1864, when he sold it and moved to the Martin farm, for two years. He then bought a part of the old John J. Eakin farm, in Connoquenessing Township, to which he later added. Subsequently he retired and with his wife resides at Mt. Chestnut.

Matthew Shannon married Mary Stephenson, who is a daughter of Nathaniel Stephenson, of Franklin Township, and they had nine children born to them, namely: David, Stephenson and Alfred, all three now deceased; John F.; Matthew W.; Benjamin F.; Jennie, widow of Abraham Hemphill; Anna, wife of W. J. Moore; and Nettie, now deceased, who was the wife of Clarence C. Double.

John Findley Shannon was reared on the home farm and remained there until he was about twenty-nine years of age. His educational advantages were not of the best but he studied hard whenever he had an opportunity and prepared himself for teaching. During the winter of 1875 and the spring of 1876, he taught successfully at the Divener school and later at the Martin and the Whitestown schools, devoting about eight years to educational work. He then learned brick-laying with W. J. Gilliland at Mars, at which place he later became express agent and also worked in several stores at Mars, for W. H. Walter, for Gilliland & Marshall and for the late T. M. Marshall. On November 14, 1884, he moved to Saxonburg Station, where he worked in the general store of H. F. Eicholtz, and also in the express and railroad office and in the post-office until 1887. He then removed to Buttercup for a short time and then, in 1888, he bought out the general store of Alexander M. Beers, who also conducted the post-office, at Callery. In 1892 he lost his building and stock by fire, after which he built his present commodious quarters. He was appointed postmaster in 1888 and served six years, and in 1903 his wife was appointed to the office, which she still fills, and public business is conducted in the store. In politics he is a Republican and in 1895 he was elected justice of the peace, serving ever since. He is also Clerk of Callery Borough Council and is secretary of the Callery School Board, and has also served as township auditor.

On June 24, 1884, Mr. Shannon was married to Miss Bessie A. Rice, who is a daughter of Henry B. and Catherine Rice, of Cranberry Township, Butler County.

Mr. and Mrs. Shannon have had five children, namely: Frank, deceased; Harry W.; Orion F., deceased; Mernia M. and Cleo B. Mr. Shannon is a member of the Odd Fellows and Maccabees.

MISS MARY A. SLATER, one of the most highly esteemed ladies of Donegal Township, belongs to one of the old and honorable families of Butler County, and is a Daughter of the American Revolution, through her great-grandfather, John Slater. Miss Slater was born April 16, 1847, in Oakland Township, Butler County, Penna., and is the only surviving daughter of Samuel and Margaret (Rancele) Slater.

The Revolutionary patriot, John Slater, bore no insignificant part in the great struggle for American independence, his period of actual service extending through four years and ten months. His commanders were Generals Washington and Lafayette. A small mark on his little finger was the only injury that he carried through his subsequent life. He was yet a young man when his military service ended and he came to Butler County among its early pioneers, lived out the balance of a worthy life and his dust now reposes in the old Butler cemetery.

Samuel Slater, father of Miss Mary A. and her brother, John W. Slater, with whom she resides, was one of the valued citizens of Oakland Township, for many years, where he carried on agricultural pursuits until his death, December 20, 1895. He married Margaret Rancele, who was born in 1808, in Westmoreland Township, Butler County, and died in 1904. They had four children, namely: Elizabeth, Susanna, Mary A. and John W.

John W. Slater has resided on his present farm of nine acres since 1888, and he also owns the home farm of fifty-two acres, which he inherited from his father's estate. He was born in Butler County, Pennsylvania, October 24, 1844, and has resided continuously on farms in his native county. When he took possession of this farm it was only a tract of uncleared timber and it formerly belonged to William Rancele. Mr. Slater has done all the clearing and improving here, which is very considerable, and, together with farming has developed oil on his land. It is a valuable property at present and is situated three miles south of Chicora, on the Butler road.

In 1870 Mr. Slater was married to Miss Sarah Wilson, who was born in Armstrong County, Penna., in 1848, and is a daughter of Samuel and Catherine (Staup) Wilson. There were the following children in the Wilson family: Sebastus, Mary, Harriet, William and Catherine, deceased; and Sarah. To Mr. and Mrs. Slater seven children were born, namely: Samuel, Sebastus, Emma E., Stephen A., William J., May and Joseph, the latter two living at home. Samuel resides at Mannington, West Virginia. He married Maria King and they have two children: Ralph J. and Francis. Sebastus lives at St. Mary's, Ohio. He married Alice Henning and they have three children: Paul, Carl and Ellen. Emma E. married Joseph McElwee, of St. Cloud, West Virginia, and they have four children: George, Francis, Eugene and Benjamin. Stephen A. lives in California. He married Earla Kelley and they have six children: Hazel, Dorothea, Eva, Philip, Clara and John. William J. married Minerva Inan and they live in West Virginia and have two children: Ethel and Harold.

Miss Slater has many friends in the pleasant social circle of the neighborhood. She is a devoted member of St. Patrick's Church, of Sugar Creek Township, Armstrong County. She takes a very reasonable pride in her Revolutionary ancestry and in the fact of her family being for so long one of importance in this section.

WILLIAM JOHN WELSH, residing on his valuable farm of 120 acres, a part of the old Welsh homestead, in Jefferson Township, is in the fourth generation of the family that has lived on this place. He was born in Jefferson Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, September 3, 1847, and is a son of Thomas and Mary (Cunningham) Welsh.

The Welsh family is of Irish extraction and both father and grandfather of Mr. Welsh were born in Ireland and emigrated to America in 1815, settling at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, where John Welsh followed his trade of baker. In 1821 the Welsh family came to Butler County and John Welsh purchased 300 acres of land, which he subsequently cleared. His log cabin was built on what is now the site of the present residence. He possessed more capital than did many of his neighbors, lived better and built the first two-story frame residence ever erected in this section of Jefferson Township. When he died, full of years, he was buried in the family graveyard on his own land.

Thomas Welsh was eight years old when he accompanied his father from Ireland, and on the death of the latter he became the head of the family. He accumulated an ample fortune and took a prominent part in public affairs in township and county and served in many offices, including one term as county commissioner. He was an elder in the First Presbyterian Church of Butler.

William John Welsh has always lived on his present farm, which is situated one mile west of Jefferson Center, on the Jefferson and Glade Mill Road. He attended the Saxonburg School, going from there to Jefferson School. He then took up the work of the farm, on account of the death of his father, and has continued here ever since, making agricultural pursuits his life work. He carries on general farming and raises some excellent stock.

On May 10, 1876, Mr. Welsh was married to Miss Julia A. Patterson, who is a daughter of William R. and Lucinda (Peterson) Patterson. The Patterson family is one of the most prominent ones of Butler County, one that can trace a long and honorable lineage. Mr. and Mrs. Welsh have had five children, namely: Nancy, who died aged three months; William P., who is connected with the Standard Steel Car Company, Hammond, Indiana, married November 6, 1906, Mary E. Wilson, of Slippery Rock, and they have one child, Elizabeth Wilson Welsh; Ada Bathia, who is the wife of Wilson A. Gerner, assistant storekeeper for the Standard Car Company, of Butler; Thomas Marshall, who is connected with the Standard Car Company, of Butler; and Clarence, who has charge of the home farm and is numbered with the successful young agriculturists of this section. Mr. Welsh and family belong to the Summit Presbyterian Church, in which he is an elder. For twenty-seven years he has served on the School Board, a large part of the time as its president, and at various times has held almost all of the township offices, being a man of public spirit and sterling citizenship. He is identified with the Odd Fellows, being a charter member of the local Encampment, and with the order of Macabees.

WILLIAM S. CASHDOLLAR, one of Adams Township's representative and substantial citizens, residing on one of his farms, containing eighty-six acres of the old homestead, and owning also 150 acres in the same township, was born in a log house standing on his father's farm in Adams Township, Butler County, Penna., April 12, 1836. His parents were William and Margaret (Richardson) Cashdollar.

The great-grandfather of William S. Cashdollar came to America from Germany and the grandfather came to Butler County from some point on the Ohio River. He had five children: John, Jacob, Joseph, William and Rosanna, the latter of whom married Samuel Black, and all are deceased. The children were separated more or less in youth, being bound out in different families. William, father of William S., was born in Middlesex Township, Butler County, and was four years old when he was taken into the family of Mr. Parks, where he remained until he was twenty-one. He was reared a farmer but after leaving the Parks farm he engaged for a time in digging coal at Squirrel Hill, later went for a time to Pittsburg, but subsequently returned to Butler County and married a Miss Fowler. She died six months later. With his mother, Mrs. Catherine (Cashdollar) Smith, he then moved to Allegheny and for a short time operated a hotel there, but the business did not please him and he came back to Butler County. He then bought 200 acres of land in what was then Cranberry but is now Adams Township, and on that farm spent the remainder of his life. He died in 1882, aged eighty-two years. He married (second) Margaret Richardson, who died in 1898, aged eighty-nine years. They had the following children: Catherine, who is the widow of Robert Hoon; John; William Smith; Joseph; James, deceased; Margaret, who is the widow of Jacob Miller; Washington, deceased; Samuel; Mary E., who married Samuel Staples; Rosanna, who married John Purvis; and Sarah M., who married Samuel Ramsey.

William Smith Cashdollar helped his father through the early years of his life and during three or possibly four months in the winter seasons, attended the sessions held in the old log school-house. After his marriage he moved to his present farm, which he had gradually bought, and he had all the clearing and improving to do. He put up all the present substantial buildings, and has gradually stocked his farm, and, although he has been a hard worker all his life, he has much to show for his efforts.

On June 23, 1863, Mr. Cashdollar was married to Miss Susan H. McNeil, who is a daughter of William and Fannie (Hamilton) McNeil, formerly of Forward Township. Mrs. McNeil still survives, a venerable lady of ninety-one years, and is carefully looked after in the home of her daughter. To Mr. and Mrs. Cashdollar have been born twelve children, three of whom are deceased. The survivors are: William H., who married Cassie Romack; Edward, who married Ella Fife; Anna, who married Harry Berringer; Elizabeth, who married Albert Humas; Oliver, who married Josephine Leise; Lester D., who married Florence Forsyth; John, who married Anna Reichle; Susan, who married William Ralston; and Laura Malinda, who married Lewis Kauffman. There are a number of grandchildren and Mr. and Mrs. Cashdollar take an interest in them all. They are members of the United Presbyterian Church in which he is an elder. In politics, he is an old-time Democrat.

B. C. HUSELTON, one of Butler's leading citizens and older business men, who enjoys the distinction of having established the first store in this city devoted exclusively to dealing in shoes, has been almost a lifelong resident of Butler County. He was born in 1848, in Luzerne County, Penna., and is a son of Theodore Huselton.

The father of Mr. Huselton came to Butler County in 1858 and settled on a farm near Butler, from which he later removed to the city of Butler, where he was engaged in the oil business and in real estate, and also in banking at Greece City.

B. C. Huselton was a school boy when the family came to Butler County and the first work he did was in the line of photography, during the Civil War. Later, he engaged with his father for a short time in the shoe business, under the style of Theodore Huselton & Son, and then purchased his father's interest and has been continuously engaged in the shoe line ever since. Many advances have been made in business methods from the old days when all his stock had to be brought from Pittsburg, over the old plank road, and disposed of in small quarters, as all the early business houses were at that time. About 1873, Mr. Huselton purchased the ground on North Main Street, where he is now located, and here he built a two-story building, with dimensions of 90 by 20 feet. This shoe store has been fitted up with all modern conveniences and offers the most attractive appearance of any similar places in the city, while his long experience has made Mr. Huselton not only a competent judge of shoes, but also a judge of the demands of his customers.

Mr. Huselton was married (first) to Miss Jennie Reed, a daughter of Captain Reed, a former prominent resident of Allegheny City. Mrs. Huselton survived only two years. Ten years later, Mr. Huselton was married (second) to Miss Agnes Shaw, a daughter of James Shaw, of McKeesport, and they have two sons and one daughter: Edgar Chandler, James Shaw and Frances, the latter of whom resides at home. The elder son, a graduate of Mercersburg Academy, is associated with his father in business. The second son is a student at Dartmouth College.

CHARLES STEWARD McCLELLAND, M. D., is actively engaged in the practice of his profession at Glade Mills, Butler County, Penna., and enjoys high standing in the community. He was born in his present residence, July 23, 1871, and is a son of Robert C. and Annie (Dinsmore) McClelland. His grandfather was George McClelland.

George McClelland was born in Allegheny County, Penna., and there learned the trade of a millwright. He moved to Mackville, Armstrong County, where he built a mill and operated it during the remainder of his life. He was united in marriage with Eliza McCaslin, who was born April 8, 1808, and died May 10, 1862. The McCaslins in America date back to the year 1780, when William Brown and Christiana (Thompson) McCaslin crossed the ocean from Ireland.

Dr. Robert C. McClelland, father of the subject of this sketch, was born in Allegheny City, Penna., and after completing his course in the public schools, read medicine under the direction of Doctor Cooper of that city. He later attended the medical department of the Western Reserve University of Cleveland, Ohio, from which he was graduated with the class of 1862. He engaged in practice in Armstrong County one year, then located at Glade Mills, Butler County, where he purchased the practice of Dr. Jacob Steward. He was for some years the only physician between Bakerstown and Butler, and in his practice was called to points quite distant from home, making the trips on horseback. He was an energetic and progressive man, of good education, and was successful beyond the average of his time. His death occurred in middle life, in 1876, when aged but forty-one years. Politically, he was a Democrat. He was joined in marriage with Miss Annie E. Dinsmore, who was descended through a Johnson branch of the family from an old pioneer of that name, who landed at Jamestown, Virginia, in 1620, bringing with him a coach and six horses, the first ever brought to America. Dr. and Mrs. McClelland became the parents of the following children: George Wilson, deceased; Robert D.; Lida May, wife of John Snyder of Beaver; William J., who lives at home; Charles Steward; Grace A., wife of Dr. H. A. Smith of Delta, Colorado; and Harmer C., who graduated from Louisville Medical College with the class of 1908. Religiously, the parents of this family were of the Baptist faith, but as there was no church of that denomination in the neighborhood, they attended and supported the Presbyterian church. Mrs. McClelland died in December, 1903, at the age of sixty years.

Charles Steward McClelland, after completing his education in the public schools, entered Girard College at Philadelphia, from which he was graduated in 1888. During the following four years he was engaged in various kinds of work at different times, and in 1892 entered the medical department of Western University of Pennsylvania, at Allegheny City. He was graduated from that institution in 1897, with the degree of M. D., and immediately thereafter embarked in practice at Glade Mills, where he has since continued. He lives in the home erected by his father soon after his arrival at that point. The latter also was the owner of a fine farm of sixty acres in Middlesex Township, which is now owned and operated by his heirs, who devote it largely to stock feeding. Oil was produced for many years on the property.

Dr. Charles S. McClelland was united in marriage with Bertha McClay, daughter of Crawford McClay of Brady's Bend, and they have two children: Lida Catherine and Jessie Elizabeth. Religiously, they are members of the Middlesex Presbyterian Church. Doctor McClelland is a member and medical examiner of the Modern Woodmen of America at Glade Mills; and is also a member of the Butler County Medical Society. His father was a member of the Masonic Lodge at Butler.

SAMUEL EVART TURNER, who has been identified with the oil industry ever since boyhood, is one of the most successful and experienced producers residing in Connoquenessing Township. He was born July 15, 1871, on Little Bear Creek, at Gibson's Mill, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of William and Elizabeth (Jamison) Turner.

The father of Mr. Turner was born at Harlansburg, Lawrence County, Pennsylvania, in 1836, and died in April, 1902. When about eighteen years of age he learned the milling business, in Butler County, and for some years he was at the Philips mill east of Butler, and later, operated the Gibson mill at Harvey's, where his son, Samuel E. was born. When the oil boom started at Parker's Landing, he became interested and acquired a one-thirty-second of an oil well on an island between Foxburg and Parker's Landing, in the Allegheny River. His returns from this investment encouraged him to continue his interest and he remained in the oil business during the remainder of his life. He had excellent judgment, was careful and calculating in his investments and for this reason was able to accumulate a competency. He worked in the Butler County field until 1880, went then to the Bradford field until 1895 and then returned to Butler County and located between Petersville and Harmony, living there during the rest of his life. He married a daughter of Samuel Jamison, of Greece City, and it was on his farm that the first well there was bored that was profitable. There were three children born to William and Elizabeth Turner, namely: Mary, deceased, who was the wife of J. B. Jamison, of Bradford; John A., who resides at Butler; and Samuel E. The mother of the above family was a devoted member of the Baptist Church.

Samuel E. Turner was educated in the public schools and he obtained his business training under his father, later becoming identified with him in his large oil operating. He was the main organizer of the Hill Oil Company, which is operating on the Shearer farm, and he has seven producing wells on the Butler, Harmony Ridge Row and has three producing wells on his home tract of ten acres. His long and intimate connection with this great industry has made Mr. Turner an authority on its present status and probable future extension.

Mr. Turner was married to Miss Eva Bolton, who is a daughter of Edward Bolton, formerly of Sharpsville, Mercer County, Pennsylvania. Her father died when she was small and she was reared in Clarion and McKean Counties. Mr. and Mrs. Turner have had three children: Elizabeth Bolton, Alice Lucretia, and William Edward, the latter of whom died in infancy. Mr. Turner and family attend the Methodist Episcopal Church and give liberal support.

In politics Mr. Turner, like his late father, is a Democrat. He is one of the original stockholders of the Connoquenesing Telephone Company. His father enjoyed a large measure of personal esteem on account of his many admirable traits of character, one of these being a genial manner and a kind consideration for others. These qualities are emphasized in the son and Mr. Turner is a very popular citizen. Like his father he is unpretentious, but many recognize the value of his friendship and the worth of his promises, whether they be of a business or personal nature.

ANDREW R. THOMPSON, justice of the peace of the borough of West Sunbury and owner of 150 acres of land, a part of the farm lying within the borders of the borough, comes of a prominent old family of Butler County. He was born on this farm August 23, 1855, and is a son of Thomas C. and Sarah (McKinney) Thompson.

John Thompson, paternal grandfather of the subject of this sketch, was born in County Tipperary, Ireland, and upon coming to the United States settled on Charter's Creek, near McKee's Rocks, Pennsylvania. From there he moved in 1796 to Butler County, locating on a farm in what now is the eastern part of Brady Township, where many of his descendants still live. He died in 1846, at the age of ninety-four years. His wife, in maiden life, Martha Humes, died in 1861, at the age of eighty-nine.

Thomas C. Thompson was born in what was then Center Township, now Brady Township, in Butler County, Penna., and was a young man when about the year 1834 he located upon the farm now owned by his son, Andrew R. He was unmarried at the time and erected the fine brick home on the place before his marriage to Sarah McKinney in 1841. She was born in Ireland and was in childhood when brought by her father, John McKinney, to Butler County, Pennsylvania. Mr. McKinney came to the county from Philadelphia and became a well-to-do citizen of Concord Township, where his descendants still own some 400 acres of land. He lived to the age of 103 years, and his wife to the age of eighty years; the mother of Mrs. McKinney reached the remarkable age of one hundred and six years.

There were eleven children born to Thomas C. and Sarah Thompson, all in the old home at West Sunbury. Five are now living, namely: W. J. Thompson of Butler; R. J. Thompson, also of Butler; Thomas H., who makes his home with the subject of this sketch; Sarah Jane, who lives in Chicago; and Andrew R. Several of the children died in infancy, and one, Annie, lived to maturity and was the wife of John L. Dunn. The parents of his family both died on the home farm, he in 1886 and she in 1896.

Andrew R. Thompson was reared on the farm and received a good education in the public schools. He has always followed farming and engaged in teaming in connection. He was twenty-two years old when elected justice of the peace on the Republican ticket, and he has served as such with marked ability to the present time. He also has been one of the school directors of the borough during the past twenty-five years.

Mr. Thompson was united in marriage with Margaret Whitmire, a daughter of Henry Whitmire of Center Township, and they are parents of the following children: Henrietta; Thomas C.; Meade; James and Florence, twins; and John M. Religiously, the family belongs to the United Presbyterian church. Fraternally, Mr. Thompson is a charter member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows.

JAMES H. MORRISON, a well known liveryman and harnessmaker, is one of the leading business men of Harrisville, and a lifelong resident of this village. He was born June 9, 1857, in Harrisville, Butler County, Penna., and is a son of James Hosack and Martha (Hosack) Morrison, who were cousins.

Samuel Morrison, grandfather of James H., was a native of Ireland and was a stone-cutter by trade. He emigrated to this country early in life, located in Marion Township, Butler County, Penna., where he followed farming and worked at his trade until the time of his death, when fifty-six years of age. He was father of the following children: James H.; Hugh; John; David; Samuel; William; Henry; Rachel, wife of R. Van Dike; and Sarah, wife of J. C. Morrison.

James Morrison, father of James H., spent his boyhood days on the farm in Marion Township and at the age of seventeen went to Butler, where he learned harnessmaking with Colonel Reed, ex-sheriff of Butler County. After a period of five years he returned to Harrisville, where he opened a harness shop, which he conducted successfully for a number of years. He married his cousin, Martha Hosack, who died in January, 1904, aged seventy-six years. His death occurred in February, 1905, when eighty years of age. James and Martha Morrison became the parents of the following children: Samuel Hazen, of Mercer, Pennsylvania; James Hosack, Jr.; Walter L., a resident of Harrisville; and two who died in infancy.

James H. Morrison grew to manhood in Harrisville, where he attended the common schools and also a private school. Early in life he began learning harnessmaking in his father's shop, and about 1888 took entire charge of the business. In 1876 he and his brother established the present livery and harness business, James H. purchasing his brother's interest in 1880, and has since conducted same with uninterrupted success. Since 1874 he has run an omnibus line to the depot, and in connection with this does general contracting for moving houses and laying stone walks. He has laid the greater part of the stone walks in Harrisville, this town having more stone walks than any other town of its size in the county. He erected his present harness shop in 1904, and his residence was built in 1879. Mr. Morrison is a director and one of the organizers of the First National Bank of Harrisville.

On October 22, 1878, Mr. Morrison was joined in marriage with Anna E. Elleby, a daughter of Daniel Elleby, and to their union were born six children, three of whom died young. The survivors are: Cora, who is the wife of H. C. Gibson; Fred Hazen; and Ralph, a student of the Butler Business College, who was but twelve years old when he passed the county examinations and received a diploma from the superintendent of the county schools. Mr. Morrison is a Republican and has served four years on the town council.

WILLIAM HENRY REIHING, formerly a well known citizen and substantial business man of Butler, at the time of his death, on February 22, 1892, was proprietor of the Willard Hotel, a hostelry which he had made equal to any in Western Pennsylvania. He was born at Butler, Pennsylvania, in March, 1860, and was a son of Jacob and Ann (Korn) Reihing. His father was a native of Germany and his mother, of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania.

William H. Reihing completed his education in the Butler schools and when eighteen years of age went to Pittsburg, his mother's native city, where he remained until shortly after his marriage, when he returned to Butler and entered the employ of George W. Campbell, who was then proprietor of the old Willard Hotel. One year later Mr. Reihing leased the property and, realizing that it undoubtedly would prove a good investment, at the end of two more years he purchased it. It was his aim to make it a first class house and to this end he improved it to the extent of an expenditure of $30,000. His ambition was realized but he lived but a short time to enjoy his success, his death taking place in the following year. He was a man of enterprise and of excellent business judgment and thus his loss was great to his fellow citizens, while a large circle of friends mourned him for his personal qualities.

In September, 1882, Mr. Reihing was united in marriage with Miss Mattie A. Golden, who was reared and educated at Pittsburg. She is a daughter of Timothy and Sally (Berry) Golden. Her parents were born in County Mayo, Ireland, and after their marriage they came to America and settled at Pittsburg, where Mr. Golden engaged in a grocery business. Both Mr. and Mrs. Golden died in that city. Mr. and Mrs. Reihing had three children born to them: Harry, George and Edna. All have been afforded superior educational advantages, the two sons at Fordham College, New York, and the daughter at St. Xavier College. Mrs. Reihing owns the Willard Hotel property and since the death of her husband has most capably managed it. The unaccustomed responsibilities fell heavily upon her at first, but the test soon showed that she was equal to the emergency and the Willard Hotel continues to enjoy a generous patronage.

In his religious faith, Mr. Reihing was a Catholic and he gave liberally to the church until his death. He was a man of charitable inclinations and gave generously to benevolent enterprises. He was a member of the fraternal order of Elks.

JACOB B. RUMBAUGH, one of Chincora's leading citizens, holding the position of town constable, owning improved property and large oil interests, is also an honored veteran of the Civil War, and at the present writing (1908), is serving in his fourth term as commander of the Robert McDarmett Post, No. 222, Grand Army of the Republic. He was born in Sugar Creek Township, Armstrong County, Penna., in 1838, and is a son of Solomon and Elizabeth (Barnhart) Rumbaugh.

The father of Mr. Rumbaugh was born in Armstrong County and his mother in Butler County. They lived on their farm in Sugar Creek Township and both died in Armstrong County. They had the following children: Joseph, Chambers, Samuel, Jacob B., David, Phebe, Susanna, Mary Ann, Elizabeth and Rachel.

Jacob B. Rumbaugh remained on the home farm helping his father until he was twenty-one years of age and then was married and for one year continued to farm in Armstrong County. He moved then to Jefferson County, where he worked at lumbering and cut timber in the woods until 1862, when he decided to enlist for service in the Civil War. He entered Company I, One Hundred Forty-eighth Regiment, Penna. Volunteer Infantry, on August 15, 1862, and served for two years and eleven months, seeing very hard service, participating in such battles as Chancellorsville and Gettysburg. After the latter he was confined to a hospital for four months and reached his regiment in November, in time to take part in the battle of Mine Run in the following month, and went through the exhausting campaign of 1864, which included the battle of the Wilderness, that of Spottsylvania Court House, Cold Harbor, siege of Petersburg and the struggle on the Weldon Railroad. In this raid he was captured by the Confederates, in company with 1,400 other Union soldiers, and he was imprisoned at Libby and Belle Isle, later taken to Salisbury, North Carolina, and was finally paroled but was then prostrated with typhoid fever. The war had closed by the time he was able to travel and he was honorably discharged at Pittsburg. During this long period of almost constant action and continual exposure to danger, Mr. Rumbaugh performed every duty cheerfully and endured the hardships of military life with a courage that often inspired others. It certainly is meet and proper that just such a veteran soldier should have been chosen as commander of a body of his comrades, men who, when peace came, proved their soldierly qualities by going back to their former occupations as readily as, in the time of their country's danger, they had unsheathed their swords and shouldered their muskets.

Mr. Rumbaugh returned to Armstrong County and until 1868 he continued to engage in farming there and then moved to the Parker oil field and continued in the oil business in both Armstrong and Butler Counties until 1876, when he moved to Chicora. For three years he conducted a laundry business but then sold out and, with the exception of his oil interests, is not concerned in any business, living in comfortable retirement. He is a staunch Republican and in 1905 he was elected judge of elections in Donegal Township, being the only Republican judge of elections ever elected in said township up to the present date. In the spring of 1908 he was elected constable in Donegal Township.

On October 22, 1858, Mr. Rumbaugh was married to Catherine Myers, who was born in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania. Of their seven children, six survive, namely: Mrs. B. T. Kahle, of East Bend, Pittsburg; Mrs. Arvella Bellis, of Butler; Mrs. Harry Reddick, of Chicora; Charles, of Bartlesville, Oklahoma; William L., of Marlburg; and Miss Loretta, of Chicora. All these children, with the exception of one, attended the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of their parents, which took place October 22, 1908. It was an occasion long to be remembered and the picture of the venerable bride and groom, attended by their loving children, ten grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren, was a beautiful and impressive one. Prosperity has not always smiled and sorrow has sometimes cast a shadow, but both Mr. Rumbaugh and his estimable wife have bravely faced adversity together and side by side have enjoyed their large measure of happiness. For many years they have been valued and useful members of the Chicora English Lutheran Church.

PETER DUFFY. The name of few citizens of Butler County, who have passed off the scene of life, is recalled with more respect than is that of the late Peter Duffy. He was born in Donegal Township, Butler County, Penna., March 30, 1798, and was of Irish parentage. He lived to the age of eighty-six years, dying in December, 1883.

Until he was eighteen years of age he remained on the homestead farm, occasionally attending the early schools of the neighborhood, but spending the larger part of his time in hard work. In 1816 he found an opportunity to take charge of the woolen mill and carding machine that was attached to the old grist mill which had been built at Butler in 1800, one of the first of its kind in the county. In 1823 he became his brother John's assistant in the latter's store and proving useful in the connection, was admitted to partnership at a later date. In 1827 he secured a contract for work on the Pennsylvania Canal, then building, and after its completion he was appointed postmaster at Butler. This office he filled from 1830 until 1832 and became prothonotary and county clerk and remained in office until 1836. Mr. Duffy remained engaged in various enterprises at Butler until 1849, when he went to California. In 1853 he came back to Butler and re-engaged in the mercantile business which he successfully carried forward for the next ten years, when he retired from active participation in business. He enjoyed a large income from his farm in Donegal Township, oil in abundant quantities having been discovered there.

In 1833, Mr. Duffy was married to Deborah Dougherty and they had three children: Mary, Charles and James E. Mary Duffy as Sister Superior of the Government Hospital at Pittsburg, all through the Civil War, became almost a national character for the great services she rendered to thousands of Union soldiers who were placed under the kind ministrations of herself and assistants during that period. She died in the winter of 1870. Charles Duffy engaged in merchandising at Butler for many years. James A. is a priest of the Roman Catholic Church. While his fellow citizens of all classes had reason to kindly remember Mr. Duffy on account of his charities and devotion to the best interests of the community, the Catholic Church in particular had cause to perpetuate his memory. He was one of the founders of the church in Butler and throughout his whole life gave liberally in support of all its beneficial agencies. He was a man of more than usual force of character and enlightened view and both in public and private life was an honest man and conscientious Christian.

BREADEN YOUNG, one of the foremost business men of West Sunbury, is an undertaker and embalmer and has been located in this borough since February, 1899. He was born on a farm in Clay Township, Butler County, Penna., in 1872, and is a son of Robert H. and Mary (Stewart) Young.

Robert H. Young still resides on the old home farm in Clay Township. He has been a man of affairs in the community and at one time served as county superintendent of schools, doing much to add to the efficiency of the schools. He was first married to Mary Stewart, whose death occurred when the subject of this sketch was but two years old. He subsequently married Mrs. Amanda McFarland, whose maiden name was Bryson.

Breaden Young was reared on the farm and received a good public school education. He first started in the undertaking business at Annadale, and after about one year at that point moved to West Sunbury in February, 1899, where he is accorded the liberal patronage of the people. He erected a handsome brick home in the borough, modern in all its appointments and equipped with a hot water heating plant. He is at the present a member of the Borough Council.

Mr. Young was united in marriage with Miss Ada Meals, who was born in Concord Township, Butler County, and is a daughter of Alfred G. and Olive (Wick) Meals. Two children were born to them: Loyal Breaden and Robert Alfred. Religiously, the family belongs to the United Presbyterian Church. Mr. Young is a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, the Royal Arcanum and Woodmen of the World.

J. C. BOYLE, M. D., physician and surgeon at Butler, a specialist in eye, ear, nose and throat diseases, has been a resident of this city since 1896. He was born in 1864, at New Hope, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Thomas, a grandson of John and a great-grandson of Francis Boyle. It was the great-grandfather who came as the pioneer of the Boyle family, to Butler County, settling at what is now Glade Mills. He was a native of Ireland and was probably unmarried when he came to this section. John Boyle, grandfather of Dr. Boyle, was born in Butler County as was his son, Thomas Boyle, who conducted a blacksmith business at New Hope, for many years, where he died.

Dr. Boyle was reared in Butler County, attended the public schools and subsequently was graduated from the State Normal School at Edinboro, in the class of 1889. Previous to this he taught school for eight years in Butler, Warren and Lawrence Counties, during this period preparing for the practice of medicine, and in 1892 was graduated from the West Pennsylvania Medical College. Dr. Boyle took his first special course in the Philadelphia Polyclinic College for graduated physicians—1902 and 1903—in this manner keeping in close touch with every modern applied scientific medical discovery. His studies went still farther and in 1905 he took a special course on the diseases of the eye at the Royal London Ophthalmic Hospital and Westminster Ophthalmic Hospital at London, England, and also a special course on the ear, nose and throat, at the Central London Ear and Throat Hospital. Thus equipped, Dr. Boyle entered into practice as a specialist in those branches to which he had devoted such close scientific study, and he has established an eye, ear, nose and throat hospital which is located at No. 121 East Cunningham Street, Butler. His patients come from a widely extended territory and he has had great success in treating the distressing complaints to which Americans seem particularly subject.

In 1894 Dr. Boyle was married to Miss Kathleen McNair, of Butler and they have one son, James C. They belong to St. Peter's Episcopal Church. Dr. Boyle is a valued member of the Butler County Medical Society, the Pennsylvania State Medical Society and the American Medical Association. His fraternal connections are with the Masons and the Maccabees and belongs to the beneficiary orders of the Home Guards and the Protected Home Circle.

WILLIAM IRA MICHAEL, a prosperous farmer of Mercer Township, Butler County, is the owner of a well improved tract of fifty-eight acres and is engaged in general farming. He was born in Lawrence County, Penna., November 12, 1860, and is a son of Henry and Lucinda (Eppinger) Michael, and a grandson of Peter Michael.

Peter Michael was born east of the Allegheny Mountains in Pennsylvania, of German parents, and at an early age moved west to the woods of Lawrence County. He and his wife were parents of the following children, all of whom are now deceased: William, John, James, Henry, Mary Ann, Rebecca, Lena, and Peggie.

Henry Michael, father of William Ira, was born in a primitive log house, in a sugar camp, in Washington Township, Lawrence County, Penna., in 1822, and in early life learned the trades of a wagon-maker and a carpenter. After his marriage he moved to Mercer County, Penna., where he followed his trade until 1885, when he took up his residence in Mercer Township, Butler County. He rented a farm from James Carson until about the year 1888, when he purchased the farm on which his son, Ira, now lives, from James Parker. He erected a comfortable house and made other important improvements, and continued to reside on the place until his death, which occurred January 3, 1900. His widow is still living. In maiden life she was Lucinda Eppinger and was born in Germantown, now a suburb of Philadelphia, December 17, 1831. She was one of the following children born to her parents, John and Margaret (Colpf) Eppinger, who were married in Germany prior to coming to the United States: John, Fred, Charles, Lucinda, Henry, Caroline and Margaret. Henry and Lucinda Michael became parents of five children, as follows: John; Margaret, deceased wife of William Winger; Charles; Willis; and William Ira.

William Ira Michael was four years of age when taken by his parents from Lawrence County to Mercer County, and there he was reared to maturity on the farm, in the meanwhile receiving an educational training in the public schools. He lived at home until his marriage in 1891, and has always continued to farm, subsequently purchasing the home property in Mercer Township of his mother, and has carried on the work with good results.

Mr. Michael was married January 13, 1891, to Miss Margaret McCoy, a daughter of A. J. and Elizabeth (McGreary) McCoy, and they have three children: Roy, Virgie and Eulia. In political preference Mr. Michael is a staunch Democrat.

J. E. MONTAG, the leading merchant of Jefferson Center, Butler County, was born June 30, 1843, in Jefferson Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, in the old Montag homestead, and is a son of John and Mary (Leighthold) Montag, and a grandson of Ernest Montag.

The father of Mr. Montag was born in Germany and came to America in boyhood. He settled in Butler County, Pennsylvania, when he reached mature years and there carried on farming. The children of his first marriage were: William, August, J. E. and Henry, J. E. being the only survivor. There was one child of the second marriage, Ernst.

J. E. Montag was reared in Jefferson Township and continued to engage in farming until 1905, when he purchased his present place of nineteen acres, within the limits of Jefferson Center. This land is rich in oil and Mr. Montag has an interest in producing wells.

On May 4, 1871, Mr. Montag was married to Miss Mary Doerr, who died in 1897. She was a daughter of Henry and Christina Doerr of Butler County. Mr. and Mrs. Montag had nine children born to them, namely: John, who is interested in the oil industry; Amelia, who is the wife of Harry J. Bunting, has three children, Paul, Esther and Elma; Anna and Matilda, both residing at home; Lewis, who is a telegraph operator at Apollo, Pennsylvania; Philip, who is in the oil fields; Lena, who is a successful teacher in the public schools; Albert, deceased; and Franklin, living at home.

Mr. Montag is a leading member of the Presbyterian Church at Jefferson Center. He has been quite active in public affairs in his township, has served as assessor, school director and as township treasurer.

THOMAS A. FRAZIER, who has been prominently identified with oil production for the past twenty years, is one of the most thoroughly experienced men in the industry now working in the Butler fields. He was born in 1852, in Butler, and is a son of James Frazier.

James Frazier was born in County Armagh, Ireland, and in 1832 he came to Butler County, Penna. His life was devoted to agricultural pursuits. He took an active interest in both public and local affairs and although well qualified and often solicited to accept political office, he would never consent. He was staunch in his adherence to the principles of the Democratic party.

Thomas A. Frazier learned the milling business after he left school and engaged in operating flour mills in both Butler and Washington Counties, for about seven years. He then went to Pittsburg and there was engaged for eight years as a plastering contractor. In 1888 he went into the oil business at Saxonburg and has been concerned in oil production ever since, working in the fields of Pennsylvania, Southeastern Ohio and Northwestern Virginia. His energies at present are confined to Butler. He has always taken an active citizen's interest in politics and has been a prominent factor in Democratic circles in Pennsylvania for many years. He has been a member of the Democratic State Executive Committee and was honored by an appointment as alternate delegate to the Democratic National Convention at Denver, Colorado, in 1908, and had the extreme pleasure of visiting Hon. William J. Bryan at his Fairview home, on July 4, 1908. Mr. Frazier is a member of the Board of Education of Butler.

On December 22, 1874, Mr. Frazier was married to Miss Harriet Bickett, of Clinton Township, Butler County, and they have had the following children: Nettie, Eugene, Chauncey E., Howard M., Charles Francis, Elva, Elizabeth, Hazel and Harriett. Of the above family, Eugene, and Howard M., are deceased. Nettie and Hazel reside at home, Harriett is a student in the Butler High School and Elva and Elizabeth are both popular teachers. Chauncey E. is general manager of the Gee Electrical Construction Company, of Wheeling, West Virginia, and C. F. is bookkeeper for the Standard Steel Car Works. Mr. Frazier and family belong to the United Presbyterian Church.

L. CLYDE KENNEDY, farmer and dairyman, residing on the 100-acre farm in Penn Township, Butler County, Penna., on which he was born, owns some twenty-five acres in the same township, on which he built his handsome residence some nine years since. Mr. Kennedy was born in a house which then stood twelve feet from his present dwelling, April 17, 1871, and is a son of William and Matilda (Graham) Kennedy.

William Kennedy, who now lives retired from active life, was born September 15, 1831, in Winfield Township, Butler County, and is a son of John and Annie C. (Smith) Kennedy. John Kennedy was born in Allegheny County, Penna., in 1794 and when he was seven years old came to Winfield Township, Butler County, with his parents, who were very early settlers. The grandfather of William Kennedy was John Kennedy, who was born at Baltimore, Maryland, in 1751, and was a son of John Kennedy, who was born in County Antrim, Ireland, in 1722, and came to Maryland in 1748. John Kennedy, the great-grandfather of L. Clyde, served under General Washington in the Revolutionary War and drew a pension from the Government up to the time of his death, in 1835. In 1786 he married and then moved to what is now the site of McKeesport, Penna., and from there, in 1801, to what is now Winfield Township, Butler County.

Grandfather John Kennedy grew up in Winfield Township but in 1832 he bought a farm in what is now Penn Township, on which he lived until the time of his death, when aged seventy-five years. Although very young at the time, he participated as a soldier in the battle of Lake Erie, during the War of 1812. With his wife he was active in the founding and support of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Penn Township. He died January 4, 1869.

William Kennedy learned the blacksmith's trade and worked at the same for about twelve years, after which he bought a farm and continued to engage in agricultural pursuits until the spring of 1908. He has three producing oil wells on his property and for a number of years has been interested in oil and gas production. In politics he is a Republican. He has frequently been urged to accept township offices but has seldom consented and when elected a justice of the peace, he refused to qualify. He married Matilda Graham, a daughter of Robert Graham, of Penn Township, and they had ten children born to them, as follows: William J., deceased; Annie C., who is the wife of Bert McCandless, of Butler; Charles L., who lives in Butler Township; Lulu M., who is the wife of Morris Flarsheim, of Minnesota; Mrs. Clara Robbins; L. Clyde; George Lewis, who resides with his older brother; Ada, who is the wife of Dominick Mangel, of Penn Township; Eva, and Frances M. Mr. Kennedy is a member of Thorn Creek Methodist Episcopal Church, in which he has held the offices of trustee and class leader for many years.

L. Clyde Kennedy has always resided on the home farm, a part of which he cultivates. He raises corn, oats, wheat and hay, keeps ten head of cattle and ships his milk to Pittsburg. He is one of the progressive and enterprising young business men of this section, one who keeps thoroughly posted on all subjects of interest to farmer and dairyman. He is also interested to some degree in oil and gas production. About twenty-five years have passed since the first oil well was drilled on the Kennedy farm and the generous flow has added materially to the family income. At present the output is limited to three wells.

Mr. Kennedy married Hannah Wise, a daughter of Jacob Wise, of Taylor Township, Allegheny County. Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy have had five children, namely: Powell, Isabella, Clara Irene, Lorine, and an infant. Powell and Clara Irene are the only survivors. The family belong to the Thorn Creek Methodist Episcopal Church, in which Mr. Kennedy is one of the stewards. He is not active in politics, but has always been a man of temperance and votes with the Prohibition party. Fraternally he is an Odd Fellow and belongs to Connoquenessing Lodge at Butler.

JAMES S. GLENN, a representative citizen of Allegheny Township, the present assessor and collector of the same, resides on his farm of twenty-five acres, but prior to 1900 he devoted himself mainly to contract building and carpenter work. He was born in Concord Township, Butler County, Penna., December 2, 1842, and is a son of William and Rebecca (Porter) Glenn.

The Glenns are old residents of Butler County. William Glenn was born in Westmoreland County, Penna., and was four years old when he accompanied his father, John Glenn, to Butler County. The latter was born in Ireland. When he came to Clay Township, Butler County, he settled in the depths of the woods, built his little log house there and with the assistance of his sons, cleared up a farm. In 1827, William Glenn moved to Concord Township, where he continued to reside until 1866, when he moved to Michigan for a short time, when he returned to Butler County, where he died in 1880, when in his eightieth year. He married Rebecca Porter, who was born in Venango County, Penna., and she survived him for ten years. They had lived a happy wedded life of over a half century, and were permitted to celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary. They were widely known and were held in the highest esteem.

James S. Glenn grew to manhood in Concord Township and obtained his education in the district schools. He learned the carpenter trade and pursued it most successfully for many years, many of the substantial buildings through Butler County testifying to his skill. In June, 1864, he enlisted for service in the Civil War, entering Company A, Sixth Regiment, Pennsylvania Heavy Artillery, which operated in the Shenandoah Valley, which at that time was a very dangerous section of the country, the Union soldiers being under almost continuous fire. Later his regiment was detailed for fort duty in the protection of the city of Washington. Mr. Glenn received his honorable discharge in June, 1865, and then returned to his previous peaceful pursuits. In 1866 he went to Leelanau County, Michigan, but in a few years returned to Pennsylvania, and in 1874 he settled on his present farm in Allegheny Township.

On September 27, 1865, Mr. Glenn was married to Miss Emeline McCandless, who is a daughter of John F. McCandless, of Center Township, Butler County, and they have the following children: Jennie B., who is the wife of Rollen Buck, resides near Topeka, Kansas; Milton L., who is a practicing physician at Swissvale, Pennsylvania; Mary A., who employs her talent in music, as a local teacher; John S., who resides at Pitcairn, Pennsylvania; Anna P., who resides with her parents; and Cora H., who resides at Ray, Colorado.

Mr. Glenn is a member of the Scrub Grass Presbyterian Church, a member of the Session, and for years has served as one of its elders. For three years he has been a member of the School Board of Allegheny Township, and for nine years has been township assessor and collector. He is a valued comrade of S. J. Rosenberry Post, No. 538, Grand Army of the Republic, at Eau Claire. In politics he is a Republican.

REV. PATRICK K. COLLINS, pastor of St. Paul's Catholic Church at Butler, Pennsylvania, was born in Ireland, December 13, 1866, and is a member of a family of seven children born to his parents, Dennis and Mary (Sweeney) Collins. The father died in Ireland in 1892.

In 1891 Father Collins came to America. He had been thoroughly instructed both in literature and theology and after completing his collegiate course at St. Patrick's College, Maynooth, Dublin, was ordained to the priesthood by Archbishop Walsh of Dublin, Ireland, on June 21, 1891. His first pastoral work was as assistant priest at St. John the Baptist's Church at Pittsburg, Penna., where he was stationed for six years. He then became pastor of St. Joseph's Church at Westmoreland, for six more years, and in 1903 he was called to take charge of St. Paul's Catholic Church at Butler. His administration of both the temporal and spiritual affairs of this parish, and his personal efforts for the promotion of high standards of living and of social improvement, have brought him not only the respect and reverence of his own religious body but have gained him the esteem and veneration of all right-minded citizens. In the pastoral work at St. Paul's he has an able assistant in Rev. Michael Leen.

The history of St. Paul's Catholic Church at Butler is one full of interest. On January 1, 1866, lot No. 147, in the borough of Butler, was deeded to the Right Reverend Bishop of Pittsburg, by Ellen McKeown, Alice Schoonmaker, Mary Gillespie, Bridget Torbett, and Anne and Peter Duffy. The erection of the church, which has a frontage on McKean Street, was begun in April, 1866, and in February, 1867, it was dedicated by Bishop Domenech, of Pittsburg.

The original members of this church were among the first Catholic settlers of the county and before the present church was built, worshipped in St. Peter's, which they in no small degree helped to erect. Subsequently the membership of St. Peter's became so largely German that the English-speaking members decided to build a church for themselves and largely through the efforts of that good Catholic, Peter Duffy, the plan was carried out and St. Paul's became a reality. The growth in membership and resources has been equaled by its religious spirit. The different priests who have had charge have all been men of zeal and executive ability, from Rev. Stephen M. A. Barrett to the present incumbent, Rev. Patrick K. Collins. The church structure is neat and attractive and its membership embraces 450 families. A new school building has been erected and the attendance of pupils numbers 420, who are under the instruction of nine sisters.

CHARLES H. BARNHART, a representative business citizen of Butler, who conducts the largest blacksmith and horse-shoeing establishment in this city, was born at Chicora, Butler County, Pennsylvania, in 1877.

David F. Barnhart, father of Charles H., was born at Millerstown, Pennsylvania, and was one of the early carpenters and wagon-makers at Chicora.

Charles H. Barnhart attended school at Chicora until he went to work in the sheet-mill, where he remained for one year and then came to Butler, where he learned the blacksmith trade with Grohman & Oesterling, with whom he remained for three years. He had very thorough training, for he then spent a year with W. B. Robinson and for nearly two years was associated with Adam Schenck under the firm name of Schenck & Barnhart. Mr. Barnhart then decided to open up a business of his own. He had very little capital to begin with but he was a first-class workman and had made many friends, all of whom wished him success. He was prudent, industrious and careful and as the result of his labors can point to at least $10,000 worth of property, every cent of which he has earned. His present finely equipped shop is a handsome brick building, two stories in height, with inside measurements of 50 by 22 feet, with a basement. His residence adjoins his place of business. All kinds of blacksmith work is carried on but Mr. Barnhart makes a specialty of horse shoeing, doing this work in a scientific manner. He is a stockholder in the Butler Pure Milk Company and also in the Butler Driving Park and Fair Association.

On December 22, 1898, Mr. Barnhart was married to Miss Clara M. Leithold, of Butler County, and they have two children: Lloyd L. and Mary Elizabeth. They are members of Grace Lutheran Church and he belongs to the church council and is treasurer of the Christian Endeavor Society. He belongs to the order of Odd Fellows and to the Horse-shoers' Union and is treasurer of the latter.

DELOSS L. HINDMAN, manager of the Phoenix Milling Company of West Sunbury, Butler County, Penna., has been connected with this enterprise since 1897, and is a man of high business and social standing in the community. The mill was built by him, in connection with Mr. J. E. Kelly, the McKissick heirs and Robert S. Hindman, the last named being father of the subject of this record. Robert S. Hindman disposed of his interest to his son, Clyde K., and in the spring of 1908, Mr. Kelly's interest was purchased by the other members of the firm, which now is composed of Hindman Brothers, Robert S. Hindman, and the McKissick heirs, the latter being represented in the business by Mr. J. W. McKissick. The mill is entirely modern in its equipment, being provided with Sprout-Waldron machinery, and their product is well known and finds a ready market. They manufacture what is known as "Purity," and "Golden Sheaf Wheat Flour," and make a specialty of strictly pure buckwheat flour. This plant has added materially to the prosperity of the borough, and is generally running at its full capacity.

Mr. Hindman was born on a farm two miles north of West Sunbury, in Cherry Township, in 1873, and is a son of Robert S. and Ann Jane (Campbell) Hindman. His mother died when he was twelve years of age, and his father formed a second union with Mary Ellen Hilliard. Robert S. now resides in West Sunbury, and is carrier on a rural mail route.

DeLoss L. Hindman was reared on the farm, first attended the district schools and carries a diploma from the same. He later attended West Sunbury Academy, and as a young man taught school for three years. During that time his father moved to West Sunbury, and the following fall the Phoenix Mill was erected, replacing an old mill which had been destroyed by fire some three years before. In 1903 he was married to Miss Minnie Conn, a daughter of Robert B. Conn of Clay Township, and they have one daughter, Barbara Lucile, a graduate of West Sunbury Academy, who also taught school for five years. Mr. Hindman is a member of the Royal Arcanum, of which he is regent, and of the Woodmen of the World, of which he is advisor lieutenant. He is one of the most useful members of the Borough Council at West Sun bury. In religious attachment, he is a member of the Presbyterian church, and is the youngest elder in the church organization.

JOHN HUGH McCoy, a resident of Mercer Township, Butler County, enjoys an enviable reputation as a builder of silos, having constructed a number at far distant points. He and his wife own a fine farm of eighty-two acres, it being Mrs. McCoy's birthplace, and he follows general farming in addition to his other business affairs. He was born in Ripley County, Missouri, December 22, 1870, but the family has long been a prominent one in the vicinity of his present home. He is a son of Isaac and Catherine (Cope) McCoy, a grandson of John and Peggie (Richmond) McCoy, and great-grandson of Joseph McCoy.

Joseph McCoy was born on the present Jack McCoy farm in Mercer County, Penna., his father having come from Harper's Ferry, Virginia, at a very early period, and taken up a tract of 400 acres of land, for which he paid $2.50 per acre. This land lay in both Mercer and Butler Counties, and Joseph came into possession of the southeast corner of it. He spent all his life on the place and died intestate, the property passing to the heirs. The youngest son, Lewis, purchased the interests of the other heirs, and for his share, John, the grandfather of John Hugh, received an old silver watch. He was a mason by trade and built many furnace stacks through this section. He later moved to Clarion, Penna., where he followed his trade until his death, at the age of fifty-two years. He married Peggie Richmond and the following children were born to them: Joseph, deceased, who served in the Union Army during the Civil War; Isaac; Harriet, wife of John Cobler; Lewis, who died in the service during the Civil War; and Milton.

Isaac McCoy was born in the old log house on the present James Book farm, east of Harrisville, in Butler County, Penna., in 1837, and was very young when his parents moved to Clarion. In 1852, when fifteen years of age, he learned the trade of a blacksmith with David Ray, and followed it for a number of years, making a specialty of manufacturing drilling tools. He was married at the age of twenty-eight years, and after the birth of his two eldest children moved with his family to Ripley County, Missouri. There he purchased a quarter section of land and followed farming in addition to his trade. In 1875, he returned to Clarion County, Penna., and purchased a tract of twenty acres of land, on which he erected a shop, and there he followed his trade until 1889. He then gave his time and attention to the lumber business, which he followed many years in a most successful manner. He added largely to his original purchase in Clarion County, and now has 350 acres of valuable land. He was joined in marriage with Catherine Cope, w. s was of German and English parentage, and was born and reared in Beaver Township, Clarion County. The following children were born to them: Margaret, deceased wife of Oliver Mays; Manela, wife of H. O. Fisher; John H., whose name heads this sketch; Anna, wife of Samuel Hanst; Lawrence J.; Ella, wife of Robert Kiser; Allen; Susan, wife of G. Miles; George, deceased; Vernon; and Freda.

John H. McCoy was about five years of age when his parents returned to Clarion County from Missouri, and here he grew to maturity and received a common school education. He worked in the fields when quite young, and was still a boy when he entered his father's blacksmith shop. It was necessary at the time for him to stand on a box to swing his sledge hammer. He mastered the trade, which has been of incalculable benefit to him in the business in which he is now engaged. When his father abandoned the business in 1889, John H.

McCoy entered the employ of the Keystone Stock Farm at Kittanning, Penna. During his five years there, the exacting duty of shoeing race horses devolved upon him and he shod some of the fastest horses in the State at that time. He was married at the age of twenty-four years and began housekeeping on the old Shaw homestead, where his wife was born and where they have since lived. He took up general farming and later branched into stock-raising, at which he has met with good results. He winters between twenty-five and thirty head of stock each year. In 1907 he built a 100-ton concrete silo on his farm, and soon after erected one of like capacity on his father's farm in Clarion County, and another for H. O. Fisher. His success at the work became known and he was called as far distant as Wheeling, Illinois, where he erected one for the Agriculture Guild of Chicago University, its dimensions being 18 feet inside in diameter and 47 feet 7 inches high. He more recently completed one for W. A. Keller at Grove City, Pennsylvania.

December 22, 1894, Mr. McCoy married Miss Harriet Shaw, a daughter of Hugh and Sarah Shaw of Mercer Township. In religious faith, they are United Presbyterians.

ELIAS SHAKELY, one of Butler's most substantial citizens, largely interested in real estate and identified with the best interests of this section, has been a resident of Butler since December, 1892. He was born in Donegal Township, Butler County, Penna., September 17, 1856, and is a son of John S. and Susan (Barnhart) Shakely.

The Shakely family is one of the old and prominent ones of Butler County and was founded by the grandfather, John S. Shakely, father of Elias, was born in Parker Township, Butler County, March 25, 1810, and died on his farm in Donegal Township, June 22, 1867. He was a man of public importance in his community and was a prominent farmer and stock dealer for many years in Donegal Township. He married Susan Barnhart, who was born in Butler County, November 12, 1819, and died August 28, 1877. She was a daughter of Daniel Barnhart, a member of one of the county's old pioneer families. There were nine children born to them, three sons and six daughters, and only one of the sons still survives.

Elias Shakely spent his boyhood on the home farm and secured his education in the country schools. His early training gave him a taste for an agricultural life, and for twenty-eight years he engaged in farming and still owns a farm of 130 acres in Butler Township. He carried on extensive farming during this time and dealt largely in stock, and also developed oil in paying quantity on his land. He has acquired a large amount of valuable realty in Butler, which he has greatly improved, having modern ideas on this subject, proving it by installing a private water plant to supply his houses.

On September 30, 1875, Mr. Shakely was married to Miss Sarah Nesbitt, who was born in Jackson Township, Butler County, and is a daughter of Peter Nesbitt, formerly a very prominent citizen and a representative of one of the oldest families in the county. Mr. and Mrs. Shakely have had four children, namely: Frost, who died when aged sixteen years; Miles, who is engaged in the practice of law at Butler; Zelia, who is the wife of O. O. Dersheimer, a contractor at Butler; and Pearl, who is the wife of Professor Cain, of Wilkesburg.

Miles Shakely was reared and educated in the township schools and in 1899 was graduated from the Slippery Rock Normal School; still further pursued his studies and was graduated from Grove City College, in the class of 1902. He then studied law with the firm of McQuistin & Vanderlin, and was admitted to the bar in 1905. He has been in active practice at Butler ever since and has taken rank with the successful members of his profession.

In politics, Elias Shakely is a Democrat and a great admirer of Hon. William J. Bryan, but he is broad-minded and has frequently cast his vote for both Republican and Prohibition candidates, when, in his judgment, their election promised to best advance the interests of the community. During his many years of residence in Butler Township, Mr. Shakely, on numerous occasions, was honored by his fellow citizens by election to office, although he never solicited the same. Thus for a number of years he served most acceptably as township auditor, as school director and also as justice of the peace.

HENRY J. BROWN, owner of an excellent farm of 100 acres in Mercer Township, is engaged in general farming and dairying. He comes of an old and respected family in this locality, his grandfather having located on the farm he now owns, when it was yet in its wild and uncleared state, and here he was born, February 28, 1844, and is a son of Alexander and Elizabeth (Hoskins) Brown, and a grandson of James Brown. The family originally came from Ireland to this country, and for a time was located in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania.

James Brown, the grandfather, accompanied his brother, Ebenezer, from Westmoreland County to Butler County early in the Nineteenth Century, and together they acquired 400 acres of land. James located upon the farm now owned by his grandson, Henry J. Brown, which three generations of the family have aided in clearing of its heavy growth of timber. He died on the place at the advanced age of eighty-one years. He and his wife reared a large family of fourteen children, of whom the following grew up: Alexander, Ebenezer, Samuel, James, Ralston, Washington, George, Calvin, Alice Jane and Margaret. All are now deceased.

Alexander Brown, father of the subject of this record, was born in 1811, on his father's farm near Harrisville, in Mercer Township, Butler County, and he lived on this place the remainder of his life, except for temporary absences on business, and during the greater part of his active career followed farming. At the time of his marriage, which occurred in New York State, he was working there upon the canal. He married Elizabeth Hoskins, who was born in New York State in 1818, and they had the following children: Angelina, who married George Midbery, both now deceased; Henry James; Mary Ann, who died young; Melvin Lewis; and Wilhelmina, wife of Hugh Reed. The father of this family died in 1894, aged eighty-three years, and the mother in 1874, at the age of fifty-six years.

Henry James Brown has always made his home on his present farm and attended the common schools of the neighborhood. At the age of seventeen years, he engaged in work in the oil fields, principally drilling wells, and continued until the Civil War was in progress. In 1862, he enlisted for nine months as a member of Company F, One Hundred and Thirty-fourth Regiment, Penna. Volunteer Infantry, under Captain Breckenridge, and with his company participated in the following hotly contested engagements: Fredericksburg, South Mountain, Antietam, Chancellorsville, Shepherdstown and Second Battle of Bull Run. At the end of that service he re-enlisted as a member of the Sixth Heavy Artillery, and during this enlistment was mainly occupied in garrison duty. At the close of the war, Mr. Brown returned home and resumed work in the oil fields, which he continued off and on, with fair success, until 1892, when he turned his attention exclusively to farming. In 1880, he obtained a patent to his land from the United States Government, for, although it had been in the family for two generations, it had never been deeded, so that he was the first to acquire a perfected legal title to the land. In 1897, he erected a substantial and comfortable home, and from time to time has made many desirable and important improvements. He is a successful business man, one of the strictest integrity, and he has been able to retain the confidence and good will of all with whom he has been brought into contact.

September 2, 1873, Mr. Brown was united in marriage with Miss Elizabeth Williamson, a daughter of John and Anna (Moore) Williamson, and they are parents of the following children: Mabel Irene, who is teaching school in the home district; Urla, who is the wife of T. P. Shira and has three children, Frank, Donald and Elizabeth; Ethel, who is the wife of Frank Sutton; Angeline, who is teaching school; Warren J.; and J. Everett. Mr. Brown is a Republican in politics, and has served efficiently in various township offices. Religiously, he and his family are members of the United Presbyterian Church at Harmony.

CHARLES ERNEST BACHMAN, residing on his valuable farm of sixty acres, which is situated in Jefferson Township, on the Jefferson Center and Great Belt road, about three miles from Saxonburg, was born March 5, 1867, in Jefferson Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania. His parents were August and Mary (Smith) Bachman.

August Bachman was born in Germany and was small when his parents, John George and Christina Bachman, brought him to America. They settled in Butler County and John George Bachman died in Jefferson Township in 1845. August Bachman did the greater part of the clearing on the Bachman homestead. He married Mary Smith, who came also to America when young, and they had ten children, namely: Mary, Henry, George, William Charles, John, Emma, Louis, August and Joseph.

Charles E. Bachman has been a hard working man all his life. In boyhood he had many duties to perform on the home farm and could only attend school during the winter time. When he grew older he went into the oil fields for a time and then, in partnership with his brothers, conducted a brick yard for about ten years. Since then he has given his whole attention to farming and stock raising, not making any specialty of the latter industry, but taking some pride in having good stock for his own use. He has never interested himself particularly in politics but his record shows that he has always done his full duty to his township, as a good citizen.

Mr. Bachman was married April 28, 1898, to Miss Emma Montag, who is a daughter of Ernest H. and Mary (Reuiek) Montag, residents of Jefferson Township. They have a little family of five children, three of whom are bright students in school—Lydia, Clarence, Gertrude, Elma and Elsie. Mr. and Mrs. Bachman are good, Christian people, devout members of the Lutheran Church.

GEORGE M. BEATTY, M. D., physician and surgeon, who has built up a large practice at Chicora, where he is numbered with the leading and useful citizens, was born April 25, 1878, in Oakland Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania. He is a son of John M. and Susan (Whitmire) Beatty.

John M. Beatty, father of Dr. Beatty, was born in Ireland and was brought to Butler County by his parents when he was an infant. He was engaged in agricultural pursuits and has maintained his home in Butler County. He served in the Union Army during the Civil War. He married Susan Whitmire and ever since they have resided on their farm in Oakland Township. They had the following children born to them: William J., Hugh T., Catherine (Jackson), Margaret H. (Gilfillian); Minnie E.; Peter F.; George M.; Mary E. (Moser); and one that died in infancy.

Dr. Beatty was reared on the home farm and attended the township schools until he was fifteen years of age, when he entered the West Sunbury Academy, remaining some three years, at the same time directing his studies along the line of medicine; after which he taught school for three years in Oakland Township, still applying himself as occasion offered, to his medical studies. He then spent one year in Grove City College before entering the Baltimore Medical College, at Baltimore, Maryland, where he was graduated with high honors in a class of 104 students, in the spring of 1903, winning his degree in both medicine and surgery. Preparing for the medical profession in these modern times, is no easy undertaking. For one year of his regular course, Dr. Beatty practiced at the Maryland Hospital, at Baltimore, and after coming to Pennsylvania, took the State Board examination. During the typhoid fever epidemic, in that year, which ravaged Butler, Dr. Beatty bravely and efficiently combated it and won praise and appreciation. In June, 1904, he took up his permanent residence at Chicora and has taken an active interest in all that concerns the welfare of the place.

On November 25, 1903, Dr. Beatty was married to Miss L. Virginia Blake, who is a daughter of John and Levina (Grubb) Blake, of Baltimore. Dr. and Mrs. Beatty have two children: Mary Virginia, born January 21, 1905; and John McVey, born October 1, 1908. Dr. Beatty is a member and a trustee of the English Lutheran Church. He is identified with the Knights of Pythias, the Odd Fellows, the Modern Woodmen of the World fraternal orders and is connected with the local lodges.

WILLIAM SIEBERT, president of the Board of County Commissioners of Butler County, is the able head of a body unusually intelligent and public spirited men, whose deliberations are carried on with due regard for public needs and whose decisions are made with impartial consideration for all sections. Mr. Siebert was born at Pittsburg, in Allegheny County, Penna., in 1839, and he is a son of Frederick and Christina (Shank) Siebert.

The parents of Mr. Siebert were born in Germany and they came to America in 1834, settling first near Chambersburg, Penna., from which point they moved to Pittsburg, in 1837, and from that city to Butler County, in 1840. Their last years were spent at the home of their son, William Siebert, where the father died when aged eighty-six years and the mother at the age of eighty-three years. Of their family of twelve children only four survive, namely: Frederick, aged sixty-seven years, who is a resident of Pittsburg; George, who has reached his sixty-first year, lives in Kansas; Christina, who is the wife of Herman Wise, is aged fifty-four years; and William, who has seen his sixty-ninth birthday.

Butler County may almost claim William Siebert as a native son, as he was very young when his parents brought him within her borders, where he obtained his education, and for many years of his useful life has pursued his business and lent his influence to promoting her best interests. He learned the blacksmith trade at Pittsburg and opened his shop in Butler on August 11, 1862, where, during business hours he was generally found from that time until he was ready to assume the duties of county commissioner, to which he had been elected, for a period of three years, in 1905. Mr. Siebert has been a very active and influential member of the Republican party in this section for many years and he is a man who enjoys the confidence and esteem of his fellow citizens all over the country, irrespective of party ties.

On July 7, 1863, Mr. Siebert was married to Miss Lena Hoffner and they have had a family of nine children born to them, seven living, namely: George II., who continues the operation of the blacksmith shop at Butler; Emma, who resides at home; Harry, who is in business at Pittsburg; Gertrude, who has been a successful teacher in the Butler High School; Katherine, married, who resides at Butler, and Albert and Walter, both of whom are engaged in business at Butler. Mr. Siebert and family belong to the Lutheran Church and he has been a member of the church council since the fall of 1877.

SOLOMON DUNBAR is a prosperous farmer of Forward Township, Butler County, Penna., where he owns a farm of forty acres located on the Freeport Road, about two miles east of Evans City. He was born on his father's farm in that part of Cranberry Township, which is now Forward Township, May 6, 1836, and is a son of William and Margaret (McGregor) Dunbar, and a grandson of Solomon and Ceneth (Snow) Dunbar. The family is of Irish origin, and upon coming to America became established in New York State.

Solomon Dunbar, the grandfather, moved with his wife and the three children then born, to Butler County, Penna., from New York State, making the trip with a yoke of oxen. He settled on a farm of 200 acres in Cranberry Township, but later sold out and moved to Johnson, Ohio, where he conducted a hotel until his death. He and his wife were parents of ten children, as follows: Ambrose; William; Daniel; Phyrus; Tarlton; Lafayette; John; Barney; Mary, wife of Joseph McCartney; and Hannah, wife of Dr. Mulford. All are now deceased but Barney, who resides in Ohio.

William Dunbar was a mere child when his parents moved to Butler County, Penna., and there he was reared to maturity and helped to clear the home farm in Cranberry Township. He later moved to that part of the township which afterward became Forward Township, and followed farming there the remainder of his days, dying in 1892, at the age of eighty years. He was joined in marriage with Margaret McGregor, who was of Scotch descent. She survived her husband about six years, dying at the age of eighty-six years. They were parents of ten children, namely: John, who was a member of the Eleventh Penna. Reserves during the Civil War, and was killed at Gaines' Mills; Solomon; Mary Jane, deceased wife of Edward Irvin; Alexander, who served in the Seventy-eighth Regiment Penna. Volunteer Infantry during the Civil War; William W., a member of the Fourth Cavalry of Pennsylvania; Alfred, a member of the Fourth Pennsylvania Cavalry; Alpheus, also of the Fourth Pennsylvania Cavalry; Irvin; Anna, deceased wife of Miller McKinney; and Daniel L.

Solomon Dunbar, subject of this biography, was born in the crude log cabin which stood on his father's farm for so many years, and assisted in clearing the place in his boyhood days. He resided on that farm until his marriage in 1860, and has always farmed. After the death of his mother, he purchased the farm of the other heirs and has since lived upon it. He has followed general farming with a high degree of success, and has four producing oil wells on the farm, which have been a source of considerable income to him.

Mr. Dunbar was married July 3, 1860, to Miss Rachel C. Johns, a daughter of Mordicai Johns, and they became parents of eight children: Leonidas; John; Campbell, who married Anna Barrett and lives in the city of Butler; Austin, who met an accidental death in Virginia when thirty-four years of age; Margaret, widow of Edgar McAnallen; Grant; Anna, wife of A. L. Thompson, by whom she has two children, Helen and Hazel; and Stewart, who married a Miss Lewton, now deceased. Mr. Dunbar is a Republican in politics, and is at the present time township road master, having served as supervisor for more than thirty years. He also has served on the School Board, and has worked for the elevation of the schools to a higher plane of efficiency. Fraternally, he is a member of Evans City Lodge No. 292, K. of P.

S. NELSON RUSSEL, who has been a resident of West Sunbury since 1902 and is proprietor of a livery stable at the present time, was prior to that date engaged in farming operations in Concord Township, Butler County, Penna. He was born on the farm he owned there, October 3, 1846, and is a son of Samuel and Julia Ann (McCallen) Russel. His grandfather, James Russel, was one of the earliest pioneer settlers of Concord Township.

Samuel Russel was also a native of Butler County, and was a farmer by occupation. He married Julia Ann McCallen, who was born in Cherry Township, Butler County, and they became parents of the following children: J. E. Russel of Steubenville, Ohio; S. Nelson, subject of this record; W. G. Russel of West Sunbury; Emma, wife of A. W. Storey; Dr. J. C. Russel of Warren, Pennsylvania; Dr. H. B. Russel of Sheffield, Pennsylvania; O. H. P. Russel, who was a member of the Eleventh Regiment, Pennsylvania Reserves, during the Civil War, and died in Libby Prison of wounds received in battle; and R. M. Russel, who also was a soldier in the Union Army, dying several years after leaving the service.

S. Nelson Russel was reared on a farm and always followed farming until he moved to West Sunbury in 1902, having a valuable tract of eighty-seven acres in Concord Township. In February, 1907, he purchased the livery stables of H. C. Pryor and Breaden Young, and by combining the two made an exceptionally fine stable. He has ten good roadsters, and a full equipment of fine vehicles, enabling him to give the public the very best of service.

Mr. Russel was united in marriage with Miss Mary E. Campbell, daughter of Thomas Campbell of Concord Township, and they became parents of the following: Oliver F., who is with his father in the livery business, and who married Lillian M. Campbell, by whom he has a daughter, Dorothy; Margaret, wife of Charles Ekis, by whom she has a daughter, Frances Lacle; Flora M., who is the wife of C. C. Campbell and has two children, Ronald and Helen; Anna, who is wife of W. O. Bryan and has a son, Clayton; Alice; and Lorena. Mr. Russel is a member of the Town Council of West Sunbury. Fraternally, he is a member of the Royal Arcanum and in religious attachment belongs to the Presbyterian Church.

LOTT IRVING LEECH, postmaster at Chicora and a leading citizen of Millers Town Borough, is also an honored veteran of the Civil War and a valued member of Robert McDermott Post, No. 223, Grand Army of the Republic. He was born November 6, 1836, at Penn's Valley, Center County, Penna., and is a son of James and Jane (McKeag) Leech.

Mr. Leech was left an orphan when about eight years old and being deprived of his natural protectors, he had but meager educational opportunities. When he was twelve years of age he began to be self supporting, his first work being done in a stove factory where he learned the art of shining stoves. After working at this place for two years he went to another similar factory where all his chances were better, and he learned the making of brass and iron molding. In 1861 he enlisted for service in the Civil War, as a musician in the band of the One Hundred and Fifth Regiment, Penna. Volunteer Infantry, in which he remained until August, 1862, after which he reenlisted, entering the Third Regiment, Penna. Artillery, his gift of fine penmanship causing his appointment to clerical duty, being stationed at that time at Fortress Monroe. Later he was transferred, April 16, 1864, to the One Hundred Eighty-eighth Regiment, Penna. Infantry. He was appointed first commissary sergeant of this regiment and later quartermaster sergeant, with rank of first lieutenant. He participated in a number of the most important battles of the war. At Cold Harbor his regiment was attached to the division of the army under General Grant, and spent eighty-one days in front of Petersburg, took part in the capture of North Harrison and was in the celebrated tobacco raid at Fredericksburg. He helped in the building of the bridge at White House Landing, which was erected for the crossing of General Sheridan's army. Mr. Leech survived all the fearful dangers of war and was honorably discharged and was mustered out at City Point, Virginia, December 14, 1865.

LOTT I. LEECH

On June 16, 1857, Mr. Leech was married to Miss Anna Elizabeth Fulton, of Strattenville, Penna., and they have the following children: Albert, Robert, Frank, Mrs. Ella Tillman, Mrs. May Waldron; and Mrs. Sarah Smock.

Of the above family, Frank Leech has one son, Robert Gordon. Mrs. Ella Tillman has five children: Eva, Robert Leech, Ivan, Laurell and Hilda. Mrs. May Waldron has one daughter, Hazel. Mrs. Sarah Smock has one son, William. There are, also, three great-grandchildren: Jane Goddard, John White and Hazel Waldron.

In 1883, Mr. Leech came to Chicora, from Turkey City, Clarion County, Penna. For twenty years previously he had been engaged with the Standard Oil Company. On July 1, 1906, Mr. Leech was appointed postmaster at Chicora and is a popular and efficient official. He has a genial, friendly way with him that invites confidence and when he has made friends he has no difficulty in keeping them. He is a member of Argyle Lodge, No. 546 F. & A. M., of Chicora, and of Lodge No. 170, Elks, of Butler.

LAWRENCE H. STEPP, M. D., physician and surgeon residing at the village of Glade Mills, in Middlesex Township, was born at Freeport, Armstrong County, Penna., January 22, 1867, and is a son of William and Sarah Ann (Barnett) Stepp.

John Stepp, the great-grandfather of Dr. Stepp, came to Pennsylvania from Germany and settled near Freeport, in Armstrong County, where he engaged in agricultural pursuits through the rest of his active life. His death awaited his ninetieth year. John Stepp, his son, lived to the age of eighty-four years. He had been born before his parents reached Western Pennsylvania, and he grew to manhood in Armstrong County, where he married Susan Heckert.

William Stepp, father of Dr. Stepp, was born at Freeport, March 3, 1843. He was a soldier during the War of the Rebellion, a member of Company A, One Hundred Thirty-fourth Regiment, Penna. Volunteer Cavalry, and it was his hard fortune to suffer capture and to be imprisoned at Andersonville. He was finally released from that terrible place and still survives. He is a member of the Grand Army of the Republic, at Grove City. After his return from military duty he engaged in farming and followed the same until 1905, when he retired to Grove City, where he now resides. In politics he is a Republican and he has held many public offices in his community. He married a daughter of John Barnett, of Kittanning, and they had seven children born to them, namely: Lawrence H.; Lillie J., who is the wife of Adam Baker of Freeport; Amanda M., who is the wife of John H. Harper, of Tarentum; Dyson J., who resides at Bellvue; Cora, who is the wife of Ellsworth Fullerton, resides at Chillicothe, Missouri; Anna Belle, who is the wife of Reuben Myers, of Wil-kinsburg; and Jessie L., who resides at home. The mother died June 30, 1886. She was a consistent member of the Presbyterian Church.

Lawrence H. Stepp attended the public schools at Freeport and Slate Lick and later Grove City College, leaving the latter institution in his senior year. For some seven years he then followed teaching and began the study of medicine under Dr. S. F. McComb, of Tarentum, attending lectures in the Western University of Pennsylvania, where he was graduated in 1895. Dr. Stepp settled immediately afterward at Glade Mills, where he has built up a fine steady practice, and his calls come also from five or six miles in the adjacent country in every direction. He is a member of the Butler County Medical Association and keeps fully abreast of the times in all modern research pertaining to medical science.

Dr. Stepp married Miss Rosella Kelley, who is a daughter of David M. Kelley. Mrs. Stepp was born at Portersville and was reared in Center Township. She was a successful teacher for some eight years in the Butler schools, and has a wide circle of appreciative friends. Dr. and Mrs. Stepp have one son, Lawrence L., who attends the Butler High School and is a member of the class of 1909. Dr. and Mrs. Stepp are members of the United Presbyterian Church at Glade Mills. He belongs to the Royal Arcanum and to Pollock Lodge, No. 502, F. and A. M., at Tarentum. Both personally and professionally, Dr. Stepp is a leading man in his community.

SAMUEL C. TRIMBLE, general farmer and prominent citizen of Middlesex Township, residing on his valuable farm of 112 acres, was born in Butler County, Penna., January 15, 1858, and is a son of Robert and Eliza A. (Hays) Trimble.

The great-grandfather of Samuel C. Trimble was Thomas Trimble, who emigrated from Ireland to America in 1790.

He founded the family in Butler County, where many of them still reside, being among the most respected and useful citizens of this section of Pennsylvania. Samuel Trimble, the grandfather, was born in Clarion County, before his parents settled in Middlesex Township, Butler County. He became a man of consequence in his neighborhood, served in the militia in the early days and later gave one of his sons to the cause of liberty in the Civil War. He married (first) Isabella Thomas, (second) Ellen C. Beery, and (third) Elizabeth Love. He died April 10, 1855.

Robert Trimble, son of Samuel and Ellen C. (Beery) Trimble, was born March 12, 1829, in Middlesex Township, Butler County, Penna. In his early manhood he learned the carpenter trade, at which he worked for a few years, but his later life was devoted to agricultural pursuits and to the performance of the duties incident to the numerous public offices to which he was elected. Although his early educational opportunities had been meager, he became a well-informed man and one whose ripened judgment was often sought in the adjustment of public affairs. He was married April 14, 1857, to Eliza A. Hays, a daughter of William M. Hays, of Middlesex Township, and they reared a family of seven children, two sons and five daughters.

Samuel C. Trimble was reared on his father's farm. He was educated in the public schools and at Curry Institute in Pittsburg, taking a full course at the latter institution, after which he engaged in teaching school for seven years. From youth he has been interested in agricultural pursuits and owns one of the best managed farms in Middlesex Township.

Mr. Trimble was married (first) to Miss E. Park, who died in 1889, leaving two children. He was married (second) to Miss Wilda Leslie, who is a daughter of S. A. Leslie, Esq., of Middlesex Township, and they have four children. Mr. Trimble has been very active in politics and exerts a large amount of influence in his community. He is a man of sterling character and in the spring of 1908 he was nominated on the Republican ticket for the office of county treasurer, by a majority of 426 votes over his opponent, J. W. Clauson. He is widely known and has friends all over Butler County.

FRED E. MILLER, proprietor of the Evans City Rolling Mill, is a prominent and progressive business man of that village and conducts one of its most important industries. He was born on a farm in Lancaster Township, Butler County, Penna., January 11, 1856, and is a son of Fred and Catherine (Flinner) Miller, and grandson of Peter Miller.

Peter Miller, the grandfather, was a hardware merchant in France, his native land, and was a well-to-do citizen. The freedom of American life and its institutions appealed strongly to him, and in 1847 he emigrated to the United States, passing through Louisiana and later locating at Pittsburg, Penna., moving from there to Lancaster Township, Butler County, where he located on a farm on Yellow Creek. He and his wife were parents of four children, namely: Fred; Peter; Catherine, who was the wife of Hartman Bendarm, both now deceased; and Catherine, wife of Michael Flinner.

Fred Miller, Sr., was born in France and in that country was accorded superior educational advantages; he spoke both French and German fluently. He was twenty years of age when he accompanied his parents to the United States, and after his arrival in Pennsylvania he devoted his efforts to agricultural pursuits. He became the owner of a valuable farm of 110 acres in Lancaster Township, and also town property in Mars. His death occurred in 1898, at the age of seventy-two years, and is survived by his widow, who has passed her seventy-eighth birthday anniversary. Three children blessed their union: Caroline, wife of Charles Workly of Butler County; Fred Edward; and Sophia, wife of J. F. Brachi.

Fred E. Miller was reared on the home farm in Lancaster Township and received his educational training in the public schools and a select German school. At the age of twenty years he left the home place and rented of his uncle, Peter Miller, a farm in Lancaster Township. He remained there four years, then purchased of the Wilson heirs a farm of sixty acres in Jackson Township, Butler County, on which he lived ten years and which he still cultivates. He also purchased property in Mars when that village was in its infancy, dividing it into town lots and selling it off at a handsome profit, and also erected two houses in that place. He purchased the interest of Mr. S. M. Iseman, who was in partnership with Mr. A. Sechler, in the milling business at Evans City, and three years later, after learning all of the details of the business, bought the interest of Mr. Sechler. The mill, with its modern equipment and improvements, represents an investment of more than $8,000, and is one of the best in the county. It has a capacity of fifty barrels of wheat flour, thirty barrels of buckwheat flour, and ten tons of feed per day, and is operated steadily.

March 21, 1882, Mr. Miller was united in marriage with Miss Jennie Wilson, a daughter of James Wilson, and they are parents of seven children: Herman, an oil contractor at Robinson, Illinois; Mabel; Fred, Jr.; James; Zella; Anna; and Howard, who died in infancy. Mr. Miller and his family belong to the United Presbyterian Church. He is a Democrat in politics.

PAUL RUDERT, president and manager of the Saxonburg Mineral Springs Company, is a prominent resident of Saxonburg borough, where he owns a beautiful home of modern construction, with four acres of land surrounding it. Mr. Rudert was born February 16, 1857, in Germany, and is a son of Oscar and Emelia (Albert) Rudert. The parents of Mr. Rudert came to America when he was about twelve years of age. The father died in 1902 but the mother survives and resides at Saxonburg. They had four children—Paul, Lena, George and Max.

After Paul Rudert completed his education, he learned the jeweler's trade and worked at that for some twenty years, being a resident of Tarentum, Allegheny County, coming from there to Saxonburg. Here he acquired the Mineral Springs property, located one-half mile north of the town, and has developed it into one of the best known resorts in this section of the State. The springs have remarkable medicinal properties, the water being a specific for rheumatism, and kidney and stomach troubles, and is very generally recommended by physicians. Mr. Rudert has already expended large sums in improving the property and is proposing much more, this including the installation of an artificial lake and the completion of a modern hotel which will be kept open the whole year. Mr. Rudert will have sixty private rooms for visitors with every equipment for their comfort, including baths of all kinds. With the finishing of his present plans, Mr. Rudert will have a magnificent property and it will doubtless draw visitors from all over the country.

Mr. Rudert was married at Tarentum, Pennsylvania, to Miss Rose Senn, who is a daughter of Peter and Susan Senn. They have four daughters, namely: Amelia, residing at Allegheny, is the wife of F. W. Buck; Estella and Flora, both of whom are college graduates; and Edna, who is yet in school. Mr. Rudert and family are members of the Lutheran Church. He belongs to the Elks, being connected with Tarentum Lodge, No. 644.

JOHN AUGUSTUS HALLSTEIN, a representative farmer of Clay Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is the owner of a fine farm of 100 acres, located about one and a half miles south of West Sunbury, on the Butler Road. He was born on this farm September 12, 1860, and is a son of Philip and Christina (Trippmacher) Hallstein.

Philip Hallstein and his wife were both born in Germany, but were not married until after their arrival in the United States. They became parents of seven children, of whom five are now living, namely: Jacob, of Concord Township, Butler County; Catherine, wife of George Klever; Christina, wife of H. J. Brown, of Clay Township; Elizabeth, wife of W. J. McKinney; and John Augustus. The father of this family died in February, 1900, and is survived by his widow, who still lives on the old home farm.

John A. Hallstein was reared to maturity on the home place and was accorded a good common school education. He early learned the trade of a carpenter but after following it a few years turned his attention to farming, exclusively. He is a man of marked ability and a citizen who is a credit to the community in which he lives.

Mr. Hallstein was joined in marriage with Miss Nannie Minerva Conn, who was born in Clay Township and is a daughter of Robert B. Conn, further mention of whom appears upon another page of this work. They became parents of five children, to-wit: Paul Conn, Harry W., Carl Z., Lena, who died at the age of three years, and Sylvia Alberta. Religiously, they are members of the Springdale Lutheran Church, of which Mr. Hallstein was deacon for six years prior to 1907, at which time he resigned.

J. BERNARD EVANS, granite and marble dealer of Evans City, Penna., comes of one of the very earliest pioneer families of Butler County. He was born in Brownsdale, Penn Township, Butler County, Penna., March 30, 1852, and is a son of Andrew Jackson and Martha B. (Brown) Evans. His grandfather was Reese Evans, and his great-grandfather, Isaac Evans, who was a child when he came with his parents from Wales to the United States. The family is of the same stock as Admiral (Fighting Bob) Evans, of the United States Navy.

Upon their arrival in this country, the Evans family located in Mifflin County, Penna., where Isaac grew to maturity and was married, his wife being the only daughter of Judge Bailey. Some time after marriage he moved to Butler County, settling in Connoquenessing Township, and the family has since been prominently identified with the development and growth of the county and its institutions. One of the sons of Isaac was Thomas B. Evans, who became the owner of a big farm on the present site of Evans City, which bears his name. He laid out the land in lots and founded the village which for many years was known as Evansburg.

Reese Evans, grandfather of the subject of this sketch, was born in Butler County, and during his active career followed the trade of a millwright. He married Margaret Boggs, who came of one of the first white families located in Butler County. They were parents of eleven children, of whom but one now lives, Mary E., widow of William Motheral.

Andrew J. Evans was born in Forward Township, near Brown's Mills, in 1824, and spent his entire life in Butler County. He was a blacksmith by trade and a substantial man of his day. He was united in marriage with Martha B. Brown, who was born in Forward Township, and was a daughter of John Brown. Mr. Evans died in 1895, and his wife in 1907, at the age of seventy-six years. Five children were the offspring of their union: J. Bernard; William C., of Pittsburg; George L., and Grant, twins, both residents of Pittsburg; and Walter B., of Pittsburg.

J. Bernard Evans spent his boyhood days at Brownsdale and there attended the public schools. At the age of seventeen years he went to Butler, which was then a small place, and learned the carpenter trade under Malcomb Graham, with whom he worked for three years. He then worked a few years in the planing mill of S. G. Purvis, and nine years in that of the Edward Dambaeh Company at Evans City. In 1893, he embarked in the marble and granite business, purchasing the shop of Charles Marshall. He has been very successful in this field of operations, and is one of the substantial men of the village.

February 16, 1876, Mr. Evans was united in marriage with Eva M. Waldron, a daughter of W. S. and Eliza M. Waldron, a sketch of the Waldron family appearing on another page of this work. One son, E. Burt, is the only issue of this union. He is a successful business man of Evans City, conducting the only exclusive tobacco store in the village, it being located in the Waldron Block, on Main Street. Burt Evans was united in marriage with Mary A. Kersting, a daughter of the late Dr. Kersting. He is a member of the John Irwin Volunteer Fire Company, and fraternally is a member of Evans City Lodge, K. P.

J. Bernard Evans has some interesting relics of bygone days which have been handed down by his family. The dining room table brought from Wales by his great-great-grandparents was willed to him by Reese Evans, before he was ten years old. He also has tax receipts found in the possessions of Isaac Evans, showing the taxes for the entire township of Connoquenessing in 1819 to have been little more than nine dollars. By reason of his possession of these papers, Isaac Evans was undoubtedly tax collector at that time. The subject of this sketch is a Mason, belonging to the Blue Lodge and Chapter at Butler, and the Commandery at Green-vile. He is a Republican in politics, as were the earlier members of the family after the organization of that party. In religious attachment he is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

J. C. BOVARD & SONS, well known dealers in lumber, hardware, paints, and other building supplies, conduct a successful and constantly growing business at Forestville, on the B. & L. E. Railway at Harrisville Station. Mr. Bovard is not only prominently identified with the industrial interests of Forestville, but is a representative of one of the pioneer families of Butler County. He was born May 12, 1844, on his father's farm in Slippery Rock Township, Butler County, Penna., and is a son of Johnston and Lydia (Adams) Bovard.

The grandfather of J. C. Bovard, James Bovard, was a native of Ireland, and when a young man emigrated to this country, first locating on Bear Creek. He later settled in Cherry Township, Butler County, and died there in 1849, when about seventy-five years of age. In politics, he gave his support to the Democratic party, and was elected an associate judge in Butler County. He was the father of the following children: John, William, Hutchison, James, Johnston, Charles, Washington, Fanny, and Mrs. Thomas Floyd.

Johnston Bovard was born on the old home place in Cherry Township, in 1810, was reared to manhood under the parental roof, and obtained his education in the district schools. He always followed farming and purchased a farm in Slippery Rock Township, where he died in 1874. During his life he served two terms as Justice of the Peace and filled various other township offices. He married Lydia Adams, who was born and reared in Butler County and died in 1905, at the advanced age of ninety-one years and eleven months. They reared a family of six children: Jonathan; Jane, wife of Andrew Drenan; George W., deceased, who served as a soldier in the Civil War; James Chambers; William H.; and Eli David.

J. Chambers Bovard passed his boyhood days on the home farm and received what education he could from the country schools. In 1862, in response to the President's call for troops, he enlisted as a private in Company F, One Hundred and Thirty-seventh Regiment Penna. Volunteer Infantry, under Captain Henry Pillow. He served nine months in the army and took part in the battles of South Mountain, Chancellorsville and Antietam and also several skirmishes, after which he returned to Butler County and spent several years in the oil district. In 1866 he began working at carpentering and for a period of twenty-six years was engaged in contracting and building in various parts of the county. In 1893, he became a salesman for L. Hammond & A. Gaston, lumber dealers at Wick, Pennsylvania, and remained with this concern for eight years, when he purchased Mr. Gaston's interest and removed the stock to Forestville, where he established his present business under the firm name of J. C. Bovard & Sons. Mr. Bovard started in a small way and as business increased, added to his stock, now carrying an extensive line of lumber, doors, windows, glass, hardware, paints and other building supplies, and his is recognized as one of the leading business enterprises of Forestville. Mr. Bovard also owns a valuable farm of seventy acres in Mercer Township, this being operated by his son Samuel.

In the summer of 1908, Mr. Bovard erected a commodious frame residence in Forestville and moved to it November 24, 1908.

On February 10, 1870, Mr. Bovard was joined in marriage with Sarah R. Shields, a daughter of James and Fanny Shields, and a granddaughter of James Shields, who was one of the early settlers of Butler County. Mr. and Mrs. Bovard became parents of the following offspring: Mary Della, who died September, 1898, was the wife of Harry Adams; Samuel H., who resides on the farm, married Blanche Gerlach and has six children, Kenneth, Aileene, Hilda, Raymond, Donald and Paul; Ernest E., who is in partnership with his father, married Clara Krah; and Herbert N., who is also a member of the firm of J. C. Bovard & Sons, lives in the old home on the farm.

In politics, Mr. Bovard gives his support to the Prohibition party. He is a member of and an elder in the United Presbyterian Church.

D. HARPER SUTTON, president and manager of the Butler Land and Improvement Company, is not only a representative of one of the pioneer families of Butler County, but also of one of the oldest in New England. He has been a resident of the city of Butler since 1892, but was born in Penn Township, Butler County, Penna., in 1852, and is a son of John R. Sutton.

The common ancestor of the Sutton family, members of which live in almost every part of the Union, was William Sutton, who lived at Eastham, on Cape Cod, Massachusetts, in 1666, the original settler being of the previous generation. Genealogical records show that he married Demaris Bishop, in 1666, and in 1672 they emigrated to New Jersey, where they assisted in founding the Quaker faith. They had ten children and over thirty of their great-grandsons served in New Jersey regiments in the Revolutionary War. After the close of that war, a great-grandson Jeremiah Sutton, a son of Zebulon Sutton and Mary Doty Sutton, the latter being a descendant of Edward Sutton, the Mayflower Pilgrim, emigrated to Western Pennsylvania and settled in what is now Concord Township, Butler County. He had served in the Revolutionary War. His three sons were named Platt, Joseph and Jeremiah.

Peter Sutton, a brother of Jeremiah Sutton, Sr., also a Revolutionary veteran, emigrated a few years later and located in Indiana County, Penna., and had many descendants. About 1769, Isaac Sutton emigrated to Fayette County, Penna., and was the first regular pastor of the Bethel Baptist Church at Uniontown, which was one of the first permanent Protestant churches west of the Allegheny Mountains. In this family there were five brothers: Isaac, David, John, James and Moses, all of whom were Baptist preachers and missionaries. The Suttons of Washington County, Penna., are descendants of James Sutton, who located in Amwell Township in 1774 and was pastor of the Ten-Mile Baptist Church, which was the first church in Washington County.

D. Harper Sutton spent his early life on his father's farm and from there went to Pittsburg and went to work for the Citizens' Traction Company, with which he remained until 1877. He then returned to the old home in Penn Township and was there engaged in a mercantile enterprise for fourteen years and after closing out decided to take a rest, for this purpose retiring to Butler. He was of too active and energetic a nature, however, to remain unoccupied and shortly after locating in the city embarked in an ice business and carried it on for two years. In the meanwhile he had become prominent in county politics and was elected county commissioner and served in this office from 1897 until 1900, and during this period had the pleasure of seeing adequate provision made for the county poor, this charity having been one of great interest to him for at least twenty years previously. At various times he has been elected to other offices and to all of these he has given the attention which their importance demanded. For three years he was a member of the School Board, being its chairman for one year, and has served on the city council, being a member during many important sessions, and was chairman of the board when the new High School building was in course of erection.

In 1900, after he retired from the office of county commissioner, Mr. Sutton entered into the real estate business, subsequently organizing the Butler Land and Improvement Company, of which he is president and manager. He bought 630 acres of land and platted and laid out the town of East Butler, which has now a population of some 500. He has promoted the industrial interests of this section and through his efforts the Valvoline Refining Company and the Pittsburg Hixan Company established plants there. Mr. Sutton is one of the directors and vice-president of the Leedom-Worral Wholesale Grocery Company.

In 1875 Mr. Sutton was married to Miss Lizzie E. Elder, of Pittsburg, Penna. He is a member of the Second Presbyterian Church. In his fraternal activities he is an Odd Fellow.

ROBERT W. KYLE, a prosperous farmer of Butler County, Penna., is a resident of Middlesex Township, where he has a finely improved farm of eighty acres. He was born in Port Glenone, County Antrim, Ireland, October 3, 1842, and is a son of John and Nancy (Glasgow) Kyle.

John Kyle was born in County Antrim, Ireland, in 1809, and there engaged in farming. Some years after his marriage, during the year 1846, he emigrated to America, first locating in Toronto, Canada. He subsequently moved to Mercer County, Penna., and became the owner of a farm in Springfield Township, on which he lived the remainder of his days, dying in 1857. His wife, Nancy Glasgow in maiden life, was born in a parish adjoining that of his nativity, and was a daughter of Adam Glasgow. Six children were born to their union, as follows: Robert W.; Jane, who died in Ireland; Adam, who also died in Ireland; Adam G., who was born in Toronto, Canada, where the family lived some four years, and is now residing on the old homestead in Mercer County, Penna.; Margaret Jane, who grew to maturity but is now deceased; and James A., of Leesburg, Pennsylvania. Religiously, they were members of the Seceder Church.

Robert W. Kyle was four years of age when his parents emigrated to America, and eight years old when they moved from Toronto to Mercer County. He was there reared on the old home farm and attended the common schools. He helped farm the home place until he entered the Union Army during the Civil War, enlisting in Company M, Sixth Regiment Heavy Artillery. His regiment was sent to the defense of Washington, D. C., and he was in active service about eleven months. He was honorably discharged June 27, 1865, and returned to his home in Mercer County. On April 11, 1866, he located in West Deer Township, Allegheny County, Penna., where he engaged in farming operations until 1870, in which year he moved to Middlesex Township, Butler County, where he has since resided. He has a valuable farm on which he has made most of the improvements, building a fine home and out buildings, and setting out many shade trees about the place. He has followed general farming, and has been successful beyond the average.

Mr. Kyle was mited in marriage with Miss Mary I. Glasgow, who was born in West Deer Township, Allegheny County, Penna., February 9, 1834, and is a daughter of Hugh Glasgow. Her father was born in County Derry, Ireland, in 1786, and spent his tenth birthday on the ocean, his parents being on their way to the United States, where they located in West Deer Township, Allegheny County, Penna. There Hugh grew to maturity, and learned the trade of a blacksmith, which he followed many years in connection with farming. His death occurred in 1874, at an advanced age. Robert W. Kyle and his wife are both devout members of Pine Creek Reformed Presbyterian Church, in which he has been an elder since the early seventies. He has been a member of the church for thirty-eight years, and his estimable wife since early girlhood. Mr. Kyle has a wide acquaintance through this locality, and enjoys the friendship and good will of his fellow citizens. He has two producing oil wells on his farm, which have been the source of considerable income to him.

JOHN W. SMITH. Among the prominent citizens of Allegheny Township who have gained precedence among the residents of this section of Butler County, is John W. Smith, farmer and oil producer and for many years a justice of the peace, as was his father before him. He was born in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, September 7, 1831, and is a son of Simon and Mary (Whittaker) Smith.

The parents of Mr. Smith were natives of Oldham, England, and they came to America in 1826 and settled in Allegheny County, Penna., where they lived until 1845, and then moved to Saw Mill Run, below Pittsburg, from which place they moved to Brady's Bend, in Armstrong County, some years later. In 1855 they came to Butler County and settled on the farm near Emlenton, where John W. Smith resides and which he owns. Both parents died on this farm in 1880. Simon Smith was a man of high character and excellent judgment and became a worthy and valued citizen of Allegheny Township. He was frequently elected to office and served honestly and faithfully in every case.

John W. Smith accompanied his parents to Butler County in 1855. In his boyhood and youth, educational opportunities were meager in rural districts and his school attendance was limited, but his long association with public affairs and his extensive reading, have made Mr. Smith one of the best informed men of this section.

He has given attention to both farming and oil producing and enjoys an ample income. He served for one year in the Union Army during the Civil War, being a member of Company F, Fifteenth Regiment, Penna. Infantry, which was a part of the Ninth Army Corps of the Army of the Potomac. Although he was frequently on the field of battle, he was never either wounded or taken prisoner, and at the close of his term of enlistment, was honorably discharged. Formerly he was a member of the Grand Army Post at Emlenton. After the war he returned to his home in Allegheny Township and resumed peaceful pursuits. In politics he is a Republican. During his long administration of the office of justice of the peace, he disposed of many very important cases and his decisions were very generally upheld. He has given hearty support at all times to both religion and education in his section and served many years on the School Board, a large part of the time as its treasurer.

On December 24, 1862, Mr. Smith was married to Miss Elizabeth Marshall, who was born at Brady's Bend, Armstrong County, a daughter of Joseph Marshall, an old resident of Allegheny Township. Mr. and Mrs. Smith have had eight children, namely: Elmer D., who lives at Marietta, Ohio; Washington, who lives at Parkersburg, West Virginia, has one son, Washington S.; George S., who resides in Allegheny Township; Chure E., who lives near Marietta, Ohio; Ernest M. and Siola T., both of whom live in Allegheny Township; Mary, who is the wife of William Hughes, of McKeesport, Pennsylvania, has two children, Elizabeth and William; and Blanche, who is the wife of John W. Ferman, of Luthersburg, Pennsylvania, has one child, Elizabeth.

JOHN MARBURGER, a prominent farmer and stockraiser of Forward Township, where he owns some 300 acres of land, in association with his father, is engaged in the butchering business at Mars and Evans City, Penna. His home is about one and a quarter miles southeast of Evans City, and is located on the Harmony and Pittsburg Electric Road; the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad passes through the center of his farm.

Mr. Marburger was born on the home place August 28, 1854, and is a son of George and Catherine K. (Marburger) Marburger, his parents bearing the same family name but of no known blood relationship. George Marburger was born in Hessen, Germany, November 5, 1813, and after the death of his mother came to America with his father and family in 1839. The party consisted of the father and four children: Barbara, now deceased; Margaret, deceased; Thelma; and George. A younger brother, Henry, had departed two years before for the United States with a half-brother, Conrad Bishop. The family went afoot from Hessen to the Sea, six horses carrying their baggage; they were on the Atlantic Ocean for sixty-four days and arrived in Baltimore, from whence they made the journey on foot to Zelenople, Penna. Their entire trip took from May to December, and was one replete with trials and hardships. Others from the same locality in Germany also settled in the vicinity of Zelenople.

George Marburger served five years in the German army prior to coming to this country. His first work here was on the canal near Erie, which he followed two winters, spending his summers in the harvest fields. In the meantime he made his home with friends in Zelenople, and at the end of the two years located on what has since been known as the Marburger farm in Forward Township. It was in a wild state, heavily timbered and covered with a thick growth of hazelbrush, it having been little touched by the hand of man. His first purchase was 100 acres from Solomon Snow, and to this he later added forty acres. He also purchased a tract of ninety acres near Callery. A man of great energy and industry, he cleared his whole property and farmed with success throughout his active career. He is now living with the subject of this sketch, at the remarkable age of ninety-five years, and is in full possession of his mental faculties and of considerable bodily vigor. He is the oldest man in Forward Township, and until the death of his wife, in 1907, at the age of ninety-one years, they had been for some years the oldest married couple living in Butler County. She was in maiden life Miss Catherine Marburger, and was born in Germany, coming to America at the same time as Mr. Marburger. Six children were born to them: Catherine, widow of John Kaufman; Margaret, widow of John Twentier; Mary, who died at the age of three years; George, who died at the age of fifty-two years; Eva, wife of Alexander Schilling; and John.

John Marburger was born on the home farm, in the old one and one-half story house which adorned the place in the early days, and he has a distinct recollection of kicking the snow off his bed as he arose in the morning, at times during his boyhood. He helped to clear the farm on which he lives and also the ninety acres at Callery, and so much of his time was spent at hard work that he had little time to attend school, it being limited to a few weeks during the winter. He has lived on the home place during all his life, four months being his longest absence from the place. He followed general farming until 1893, and then went into the butcher business at Evans City, being in partnership with Jacob Rape one year. His market there is now located on Pittsburg Street, opposite the postoffice, and he has a meat shop at Mars, Pennsylvania, in which village he also owns a large business block. He has been extensively engaged in the cattle business for several years, buying by the carload, formerly purchasing cattle in this section, but now obtaining them mainly from the West, and from Pittsburg. He also has bred and raised fine draft horses in recent years, and has some of the best bred stock in this country. He is the owner of Baccarat, No. 50404, imported from France in 1906, a beautiful black stallion, three years old, which weighed 1800 lbs. in the spring of 1908. He has a six-year-old, Acrobat, No. 41551, which was imported from France in 1904, which, when three years old took first premium at the Butler County Fair in 1905. He raised a strawberry roan Percheron stallion, which was foaled April 23, 1901, Prince LeClare, Jr., sired by Prince LeClair, No. 9656. This horse weighs 1800 lbs., and was entered three times at the Butler County Fair, taking all prizes in his class.

John Marburger was married in November, 1876, to Miss Mary Magdalena Wahl, a daughter of Martin Wahl, mention of whom is made on another page of this work, and they are parents of the following children: Martin G., who was born December 25, 1877, and is in charge of his father's butcher shop at Evans City, married Vivian Davidson and has one child, Alberta; Catherine K., born March 10, 1879, who is the wife of Frank Hall and has two children, Ernest and Magdalena; Andrew T., born November 8, 1880, who conducts his father's shop at Mars, married Elvina Maitland and has a daughter, Esther; John G., who was born February 27, 1882, lives on an adjoining farm, married Bessie Sloan, and has a son, William Henry; Victor Wahl, who was born February 25, 1885; Osmus R., born January 13, 1887; Adam C., born June 4, 1889; Minnie C., born July 27, 1891; and Harry W., born October 4, 1893; and Paul Vernon, born August 29, 1900, died February 2, 1901. Religiously, the family belongs to the Lutheran Church, of which Mr. Marburger was trustee some years. In politics, he is a Democrat and has filled a number of township offices.

WILLIAM McDOWELL, a prominent member of the Butler County bar, who established his home at Butler in 1902, was born in 1858, in Kirkmuir-Hill, Parish of Lesmahago, Lanarkshire, Scotland, and is a son of Alexander and Elizabeth (Quigley) McDowell. Alexander McDowell was both a civil and mining engineer and he was in the employ of the English government for a number of years.

William McDowell remained in his native land until he was twenty years of age, and after reaching America and seeking work in Pennsylvania, he secured employment at McIntire, in this State, as an engine driver in the mines. From boyhood he had been ambitious and while he worked hard through the day at the fatiguing labor above mentioned, he studied at night and even engaged a private tutor, finally securing an appointment to the State College, where he studied civil engineering for four years. From there, Mr. McDowell went to the Ohio State University at Columbus, where he studied mining engineering for two years, and classics for one year at the Northern Ohio University at Ada. With the perseverance characteristic of his race, Mr. McDowell had overcome every obstacle and attained what was then his dearest ambition. He then accepted a position as superintendent of mines for the Oshanter Coal Company, and later for the mines of the Cambria Coal Company, going from there to South Fork, and later was with the Baltimore Railroad Company at Salisbury, Somerset County. He then entered the University of Indiana, where he took his degree of B. L., in the class of 1890.

Mr. McDowell did not immediately seek admission to the bar, but took a year in the office of John L. McCutcheon, attorney at law. He subsequently accepted a position with the Wabash Railroad as inspector of bridges and concrete work, and later went with the Pressed Steel and Standard Steel Companies. He then entered the University of Pennsylvania and took a post graduate course, and in 1905 was admitted to the bar. Mr. McDowell is so versatile in his mental gifts and has so thoroughly prepared himself for different branches of professional work, that success in each and all has met him almost on the threshold. Naturally he has been also prominent in politics and has been a formidable candidate for the office of district attorney.

In 1895 Mr. McDowell was married to Miss Jennie Lytle, who is a niece of Judge Leonard, of Clearfield County, Pennsylvania. He is a member of the United Presbyterian Church. For years he has been identified with Masonry and belongs to St. Clair Lodge, No. 416, F. and A. M., Cambusnethan, Lanarkshire, Scotland; and of Royal Arch Chapter, No. 43, of Holytown, Scotland. He belongs also to Lodge No. 211, Knights of Pythias, at Butler; to Lodge No. 213, Knights of the Golden Eagle, at Philipsburg, Center County; and he is a valued member of the Order of the Cameron Clan of Pittsburg, of the Order of the Scottish Clans.

JOHN McCARRIER, who is now living in retirement after many years of activity in the oil fields, resides just south of the borough of West Sunbury, in Clay Township, Butler County, Penna. He is the bearer of an honorable record for service in the Union Army, and is a man most highly esteemed in his wide circles of acquaintances. He was born at Prospect, Butler County, October 13, 1840, and is a son of James and Catharine (Brower) McCARRIER.

James McCARRIER was born and reared in Chester County, Pennsylvania, and after marriage learned the trade of a tanner. He crossed the mountains of Pennsylvania to Whitestown, where he worked in a tannery for several years, then moved to Prospect, where he remained eight years, thence to Fairview, where he operated a tannery. He later operated one at Middletown, now known as Hooker, whence he moved to West Sunbury. He started a tannery at this point in 1858 and conducted it until 1870, when he quit the business and started a small confectionery store. After a few years he moved to the home of his oldest daughter at Lawrenceburg, near Parker' Landing, where both he and his wife passed away.

John McCARRIER learned the trade of a tanner under his father and continued at that occupation until 1861, when on the seventh day of November, he enlisted under Captain Martin in Company E, One Hundred and Third Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry. His enlistment of three years expired while he was at Plymouth, North Carolina, and he re-enlisted, serving until the close of the war. He was taken captive at Plymouth on April 20, 1864, and was incarcerated in Andersonville Prison four months. He was taken from there to Charleston, North Carolina, and thence to Florence, North Carolina, where he was held prisoner for eight months. The regiment of which he was a member belonged to the Second Army Corps during the Peninsular Campaign, and later formed a part of the Eighteenth Army Corps.

Upon his return from the front, after his discharge in August, 1865, he entered the oil drilling business at Oil Creek, near Oil City, Pennsylvania, a business which he followed with uninterrupted success until 1900, when he retired. He has claimed West Sunbury as his home since 1858, although he has been temporarily absent for different periods, the longest being during his military service. After quitting the oil business, he bought and sold timber for six or seven years, but is now living in retirement in his comfortable home adjoining the borough.

Mr. McCARRIER was first married to Minerva Eshenbaugh, a daughter of Andrew Eshenbaugh, by whom he had five children: Peter, who is an oil contractor and resides in Clay Township; Annie, who lives in Butler and is the widow of Harry Patterson; John Nelson, who lives at St. Marys, West Virginia, and is also an oil contractor; Margaret, Ellen, wife of Charles Johnston of Loraine, Ohio; and William D., who is an oil producer and resides at West Sunbury. Mrs. McCarrier died in 1896, and he has since formed a second union with Miss Elizabeth Deer, a daughter of William and Mary (Miller) Deer. She was born and reared in Marshall, Allegheny County, and their union is blessed with a son, Dwight.

CHARLES E. KNOUSE, a well known farmer and oil operator of Clearfield Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is the owner of a fine farm of 100 acres located on the north side of Rough Run Road about two miles from Coyleville. He was born on the old Knouse homestead on the Kittanning Pike, about six miles from Butler, April 17, 1875, and is a son of Andrew and Mary (Henry) Knouse.

Andrew Knouse was a farmer and cleared the land on which he lived. He was a native of Summit Township, and a son of Christian and Annie (Rabbits) Knouse, the Rabbits family being an old and respected one of this section of the county. Christian was born in Germany and came to Butler County at an early date. Andrew Knouse married Mary Henry and they had the following children: Ida, wife of William Blooming; Charles; William, who married Alice Green; and Albert, a car worker.

Charles E. Knouse received a good common school education and has always engaged in farming. He follows modern ideas in his farm work and has been more than ordinarily successful. He raises considerable stock. Mr. Knouse is an oil operator and has five good producing wells on his place. He is a man of enterprise and public spirit, and stands among the foremost in the ranks of the young generation of farmers and business men.

The subject of this sketch was joined in marriage with Miss Sarah Rogers, a daughter of Samuel and Sarah Rodgers of Butler County, and they have a daughter, Mary, who was born May 5, 1905. Religiously they are members of the Catholic Church.

GEORGE FREDERICK GRIMM, whose excellent farm of thirty-one acres is one of the best improved in Jefferson Township, is engaged in general farming and raises enough stock for his own use. Mr. Grimm was born January 13, 1846, in the city of Allegheny, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Henry and Elizabeth (Graft) Grimm, and a grandson of Henry Grimm, the latter of whom never left Germany. Henry Grimm had seven children—Catherine, J. Henry, George F., Louise, Sophia, Caroline, deceased, and Amelia.

The father of Mr. Grimm was born in Saxony, Germany, and he came to America in 1836, having already learned his trade of blacksmith. At the time of the birth of his son, George F., he was a resident of Allegheny, but he subsequently settled at Saxonburg, Butler County, and there became a man of influence and standing. He married Elizabeth Graft, who was also born in Darmstadt, Germany, and was sixteen years of age when she accompanied the Roatling family to America and to Jefferson Township, Butler County. The country was very wild at that time, the Indians having but recently committed outrages. The pioneers possessed little means, but they had plenty of courage and ingenuity, as was shown when they traveled into a forest wilderness and built their first abode. Selecting a spot where four strong saplings grew near enough to be utilized as house posts, they piled up logs for the sides of the dwelling and made a roof of moss. It is generally conceded that this was the first house built in Jef-erson Township. Later the father of Mrs. Grimm replaced it with a substantial log building and still later a third house was put up.

George F. Grimm was four years old when his parents came to Jefferson Township and he obtained his education in the public schools. On July 3, 1876, he was married to Miss Rachel Gehring, who is a daughter of Henry and Hannah (Wolf-rum) Gehring. Her father was born in Saxony, Germany, and was reared on his father's farm but learned the turner's trade before he came to America, which was in 1853. Mr. and Mrs. Grimm have had five children, namely: Ellen, who resides at home; Oliver, who married Anna Petinger, has two children, Harold and Walter; Louise, who is a seamstress and is frequently employed at Pittsburg; Tillie, who is also frequently employed at Pittsburg; and an infant, deceased. Mr. Grimm and family belong to the Lutheran Church and for a number of years was a member of the Church Council. He is a prominent man in his township, taking an active interest in public matters and for the past two years has been acceptably serving in the office of road commissioner.

KERR H. McBRIDE, who was one of the largest gas and oil producers in the Butler fields and was the first promoter of natural gas at Butler, Penna., was born in Butler County in 1849, and died in 1896. His parents were Francis and Elizabeth (Hazlett) McBride.

Mr. McBride was reared in his native place and attended the Butler schools until he accompanied his uncle, A. R. Hazlett, to Greene County, where they began contracting on oil wells on Dunkard Creek. Later they engaged in a butchering business at Oil City. After they separated, Mr. McBride engaged in drilling and was known as a first class man in that line. He obtained his first oil, on his own account, in 1877, in the Great Leather well, on the Peter Graft farm, which started with an output of 250 barrels of oil a day. He sold his interest in this well for the sum of $32,500, which he immediately invested in the oil business. As with other speculation, this was uncertain, and before he made any more he had lost all this amount except $8,000. With that remnant he went to Bradford and in the space of eight years he acquired twenty-six oil wells and a capital of $86,000. His ups and downs may be shown by the fact that in one night he made $15,000, and in one day, $27,000, in oil speculation, and while he played one game of checkers he lost all and had to borrow $100, in order to make any more. With a capital of $200, backed with the utmost faith in his "luck," he came to Butler and leased the Henderson farm, but his drilling found only a dry hole. After this, with $800, in borrowed money, he went to McBride and there drilled a well which gave 360 barrels of oil an hour and at the end of ninety days gave 150 an hour. This brought him $114,000, and with it he went to George Westinghouse, at Pittsburg. It is said that his proposal to Mr. Westinghouse was: "If you come into the gas business with me, I'll take the field end and you the capital." This was in 1884. Mr. Westinghouse, however, does not seem to have taken up with Mr. McBride's proposition at that time, although later he was also a large investor in the same line. In 1887, after a most strenuous life, Mr. McBride fell sick and he died a comparatively poor man, although at that time he had 45,000 acres of land under lease at Marion, Indiana, all of which was producing gas and oil in abundance.

Kerr H. McBride was one of the best known men in the oil business in Pennsylvania. He was one of the most whole-souled and kind-hearted men, also, who ever had large business dealings in this section. He not only made money for himself, much of which he lost as easily, but he made fortunes for others. His charities were open-handed and no one in financial distress ever appealed to him in vain, and his good nature was often taken advantage of. He voted the Republican ticket but he never took any active interest in politics. He was a member in good standing of Argyle Lodge, F. and A. M., at Petrolia. He never married.

ROBERT TRIMBLE, now deceased, was one of the successful agriculturists of Butler County and one of the most highly respected citizens. He was born in Middlesex Township, Butler County, Penna., March 12, 1829, and was a son of Samuel and Ellen C. (Beery) Trimble and a grandson of Thomas Trimble.

Thomas Trimble was born in the north of Ireland and remained in his own land into young manhood, not obtaining an opportunity to come to America, the land of promise, until 1790. In 1807 he came to Butler County, Penna., and settled on what has since been called the Trimble farm, in Middlesex Township, where he lived until his death took place in 1837. He was a member of the Seceder Church. Five children were born to him: Mary, Margaret, Satia, Nancy and Samuel, and many of his descendants reside in Butler County. Samuel Trimble, father of Robert Trimble, was born in 1798, at Shippensville, Clarion County, Penna., and thus was nine years old when his parents settled in Butler County. His boyhood was passed among pioneer surroundings and he grew to manhood a sturdy type. His first marriage was to Isabella Thompson, of Middlesex Township, and they had one son, Thomas. His second marriage was to Ellen C. Beery and they had two sons, Robert and William F. His third marriage was to Elizabeth Love, of Clinton Township, and they had four children: John H., Thomas, James and Margaret. He died April 10, 1855.

ested in agricultural pursuits throughout his long and useful life. In boyhood his educational opportunities were very meager but he was a pupil on the first day that the public schools in his neighborhood were opened, in 1834. He learned the carpenter trade and worked for a few years as a builder, during which period he assisted in constructing the Butler Court House, in 1855. From that year, however, he devoted himself entirely to farming and stockraising.

On April 14, 1857, Mr. Trimble was married to Eliza A. Hays, a daughter of William M. Hays, of Middlesex Township. They had a family of seven children born to them, namely: Samuel C., Eliza J., Ruth E., William H., Margaret A., Mary and Martha. In his political views Mr. Trimble was a Republican and he possessed the confidence of his fellow citizens to such an extent that they frequently elected him to offices of responsibility.

Samuel C. Trimble, the eldest of the above family, is one of the leading citizens of Middlesex Township, where he owns a valuable farm of 112 acres. Like his late father, he has been prominently identified with Republican politics, and in the spring of 1908 by a large majority was nominated for the important office of county treasurer of Butler County, and was subsequently elected. Possessing every requisite for the office, it is generally conceded that his performance of its duties will be honest and efficient.

ADAM J. DAMBACH, proprietor of the leading blacksmithing establishment at Evans City, comes of an old and respected family of Butler County. He was born in Connoquenessing Township, Butler County, Penna., February 1, 1868, and is a son of Adam and Dora (Garwick) Dambach, and a grandson of Adam Dambach, who was a native of Germany.

Adam Dambach, the grandfather, came from Germany to America in the early days and settled on a farm in Connoque-nessing Township, Butler County, which he partly cleared. He was the father of the following family: Adam; Sophia, wife of John Boyer; William; Jacob; Catherine; and John, deceased.

Adam Dambach, the father of the subject of this sketch, was born on his father's farm in Butler County and was there reared to maturity. Shortly after his marriage he purchased a farm in Forward Township, on which he spent the remainder of his active career, now living in retirement at Zelenople. Prior to his marriage he conducted a store for a time at Petersville. He married Dora Garwick, who was born in Beaver County, Penna., and they became parents of eight children, as follows: Sidney J.; William G.; Henry W.; Adam John; Tina; Frank E.; Matilda, wife of William Wilson; and Washington J.

Adam J. Dambach was a mere child when his parents moved from his native township to the home farm in Forward Township, where he grew to maturity, receiving his educational training in the public schools. At the age of eighteen years he moved to Evans City and learned the trade of a blacksmith under Peter Ripper, for whom he worked two years. He then worked a like period for W. C. McClure, after which he went into business for himself. His establishment is located on the corner of Washington Street and Wahl Avenue, and he does a general blacksmithing business, making a specialty of horse-shoeing.

Mr. Dambach was married July 30, 1899, to Miss Anna E. Wahl, daughter of Martin Wahl, and they are parents of three children: Victor Martin, Wilbert W., and Adam M. They reside in a fine home on the corner of Washington Street and Wahl Avenue, which they built in 1895. Religiously, they are members of the Lutheran Church, Mr. Dambach being president of the congregation and superintendent of the Sunday-school. He is a Republican in politics, while fraternally he is affiliated with the Modern Woodmen of America. He is an important figure in the affairs of the village, and is highly regarded by his fellow citizens and many friends.

GEORGE BAUER, one of Butler Township's leading citizens of which he is supervisor, resides on his excellent farm of seventy-six acres, which he devotes to general agriculture. Mr. Bauer was born near Hagerstown, Maryland, September 11, 1838, and is a son of Peter and Margaret (Doer) Bauer.

The father of Mr. Bauer was born in Hesse-Darmstadt, Germany, in 1803, and when he came to America and settled in Maryland, early in the thirties, he was accompanied by his wife and their three children. When his son George was a boy about eight years of age, he moved to Butler County, Penna., and settled in Jefferson Township. He married Margaret Doer, who died in 1888, in Jefferson Township and his death followed. They had children as follows: Katherine, wife of Charles Krumpe, residing at Saxonburg, Butler County; Conrad, deceased; William, residing at Butler; Henry, deceased; George; Benjamin, residing at Millville, Allegheny County; Philip, deceased; and Elizabeth, wife of William Leithold, residing at Butler. The parents were members of the Lutheran Church, in which the father was a deacon. In politics he was identified with the Democratic party.

George Bauer was given a good, common school education and then learned the machinist's trade. After completing his apprenticeship, in partnership with his brother, he bought out his employer, and the firm of Bauer Brothers engaged in the manufacture of agricultural implements until 1872, when George Bauer sold out his interest in the business. He then purchased his present farm and has been concerned in its development ever since.

In 1862, Mr. Bauer was married to Annie Catherine Smith, who was a daughter of Michael Smith, of Butler Township. Mrs. Bauer died June 20, 1893. She was a good, Christian woman, a member of the German Lutheran Church, and was widely known for her kindness of heart and her ready hospitality. To Mr. and Mrs. Bauer were born eight children, namely: Margaret, who married Howard McCandless, of Butler; Charles, deceased; Edward, who resides at Butler; Augusta, who is the wife of C. A. Wachsmith; Maude, who is the wife of Samuel McKnight, of Butler; William, who resides in Jefferson Township; Leonard, who is superintendent of the street car line at Butler; and Barbara, who resides at home. Mr. Bauer is one of the leading members of the German Lutheran Church.

In 1862, Mr. Bauer enlisted for service in the Civil War, and served for nine months as a member of Company K, One Hundred Thirty-fourth Regiment, Penna. Volunteer Infantry. Although he was wounded in the right arm, at the battle of Chancellorsville, he refused to go to the hospital and remained on the field until the close of the fight. In his political convictions he is a Democrat and he has served in local offices, including that of school director and of tax collector and supervisor.

Mr. Bauer blew the first steam whistle ever heard in Butler County at the Bauer Brothers Mill in Butler in 1865. He also had the misfortune to have the first boiler explosion in the county which happened at the mill during the same year. Fortunately no one was hurt in this disaster. A humorous incident happened in connection with the blowing of the first whistle. It was in the early morning, about daylight, and the residents of the quiet little village were not aware that such a thing existed in the town. A superstitious German resident was lighting his fire, when he heard the first blast of the whistle. He imagined that it was the sound of Gabriel's horn and seizing a bucket of water, he dashed it on his kitchen fire and immediately went to praying.

GEORGE A. SPANG, who is treasurer and manager of The Spang Company at Butler, where the main plant is situated, having branch shops at other points, is a leading business man of this city where he has resided for the past thirty-five years. He was born in 1868, in Armstrong County, Penna. His father was the late J. R. Spang.

George A. Spang was a child when his parents moved to Butler and he obtained his education in the Butler schools. He was but a boy, however, when the burden of his own support fell upon him and he began his earning of money by driving a dray. Later he went to Pittsburg where he learned the machinist trade with the firm of Swain & Angel, remaining for three years and then returned to Butler. About this time he suffered an injury to his eyes and was obliged to give up working at his trade for two and one-half years, during this period finding employment in the Klingler mills. By that time his eyes had sufficiently been strengthened so that he could resume work as a machinist and in 1894, although he had not a dollar of capital, he determined to go into business for himself and depend upon his skill and industry to bring him custom and success. He secured a machine shop in the old Cuthbert Building, on the same place where his commodious shops, with all their expensive machinery are situated, but in six weeks time he found a better business opening at Glade Mills. He remained there for three and one-half years and then resided for the same length of time at Renfrew, after which he came back to Butler. He first leased his present property and later purchased it. In 1901, The Spang Company was established, and in 1908 the business was incorporated with J. F. Anderson as president and George A. Spang as treasurer and manager. In the same year the company put up a fine reinforced concrete building with dimensions of 62 by 122 feet, divided into two stores. Mr. Spang has about 100 men in his employ and has the superintendence of all of the business. In August, 1904, a branch shop was started at Coffeyville, Kansas, in the Kansas oil fields, and in May, 1908, another shop was established at Tulsa, Oklahoma, both of them being still in operation, and all the property on which the plants are located are owned by the Spang Company. This company manufactures all kinds of oil well supplies and makes a specialty of oil well packing.

In 1890, Mr. Spang was married to Miss Laura A. Brandon, of Butler, and they have five children: Lillian, Ferdinand, Loyal, Mildred and Everett. With his family, Mr. Spang belongs to the Second Presbyterian Church of Butler. He is a Knight Templar Mason and a member of the Mystic Shrine. In recalling the events of this successful and representative man, it will be observed that he has prospered on account of his own efforts, independent of any assistance, and he may well be proud, when he recalls how he has overcome the various handicaps of his early manhood. He is one of Butler's most respected citizens.

CHARLES RIMP, a prosperous farmer of Summit Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, has a fine farm of 100 acres situated about two miles north of the village of Herman. He was born on this place March 13, 1875, and is a son of John and Catherine (Knause) Rimp, and grandson of John Rimp, Sr.

John Rimp, Sr., was born in Germany and there was reared to maturity. He served in the German army the required length of time and continued to reside in that country until he was thirty years of age, when he set sail for America. He settled in Butler County, Pennsylvania, in 1832, and cleared a farm upon which he lived the remainder of his days.

John Rimp, Jr., was a veteran of the Civil War, serving for four years in a Pennsylvania regiment and participating in some of the hardest fought battles of the war. He was mustered out at Butler and returned to the home farm. During the early years of his business career, he worked on a steamboat on the Ohio River, but finally settled down to farming in Butler County. He was united in marriage with Catherine Knause, by whom he had the following children: Annie, Ella, one who died in infancy, William, Charles and Minnie, twins; and Edward.

Charles Rimp was reared on the old homestead and received his education in the public schools of the community. He has always engaged in farming, with the exception of seven years during which period he worked for the Standard Plate Glass Company at Butler. He returned to the farm in 1906, and has since followed general farming and stock raising. He has a comfortable two-story house, a good barn and other necessary buildings for the successful prosecution of his work. He has an oil well on the farm, which produces about ten barrels per day, and has another in the course of drilling which is expected to show still better results.

August 5, 1903, Mr. Rimp was united in marriage with Miss Rose Rabbitt, a daughter of John and Annie (Smith) Rabbitt, who lived in Armstrong County, Penna. Three children are the offspring of this union: Charles Edward, Gertrude, and John Rabbitt Rimp. Religiously, they are members of the Catholic Church and very active in church affairs. Fraternally, Mr. Rimp is a member of Butler Lodge No. 8, Woodmen of the World.

LAWRENCE O. MARKEL, a well known business citizen of Evans City, Penna., is secretary of the Burry and

RESIDENCE OF CHARLES RIMP, SUMMIT TOWNSHIP

Markel Company, an old and well established concern, dealing extensively in hardware and implements, vehicles, paints, etc. He is a native of Butler County, Penna., having been born on the old home farm in Forward Township, February 8, 1880. He is a son of Daniel and Mary A. (Helm) Markel, and grandson of Zeno and Susan (Stamm) Markel.

Zeno Markel, the grandfather, came to Butler County from Bucks County, Penna., when he was eighteen years of age, and first cleared a farm on Muddy Creek and later moved to a farm in Forward Township. The latter years of his life were spent in retirement in Evans City, where he died at the age of eighty-three years. His widow survived him some years, dying at the advanced age of eighty-seven years. They were parents of the following children: Elizabeth, who was the wife of Jacob Zigler, both now deceased; Maria, wife of John Webber; Hannali, deceased; and Daniel.

Daniel Markel was the youngest of the family and was born in Forward Township, Butler County, May 7, 1854. He engaged in farming on the home farm, which consists of 150 acres and now forms a part of his estate. In 1889, in order to secure better educational advantages for his children, he moved to Evans City, and sometime later engaged in the hardware business in partnership with L. N. Burry, under the firm name of Burry & Markel. In February, 1905, the business was incorporated under the name of the Burry and Markel Company, and Daniel Markel served as president until his death, June 24, 1907. Mrs. Markel still resides in Evans City, and is surrounded by many friends of long years' standing. She was in maiden life Miss Mary A. Helm, daughter of John Helm, an early-day blacksmith of Evans City. As a result of her marriage to Mr. Markel which occurred in 1879, the following children were born: Lawrence O.; Flora, wife of Victor A. Barnhart;

Emma L.; Amanda D., wife of Edgar Shaffer; Luella C.; Iva M.; Carl H.; Zeno H.; William D.; S. Dorothy; Mary G.; and Gene I.

Lawrence O. Markel was nine years of age when his parents located in Evans City, and he was there educated in the public schools and in John Tinstman's Academy. At the age of sixteen years he entered the office of Edward Dambach, who conducted a lumber company at Evans City, and continued for ten years, after which he represented the Hastings Lumber Company of Pittsburg as traveling representative for a short time. He then returned to Evans City and became a stockholder in the Burry and Markel Company, in the affairs of which concern he has since taken an active part. Upon the death of his father, Mr. Burry became president, and he became secretary and treasurer, in which capacity he now serves.

Lawrence O. Markel, is an ardent Democrat in his political belief. Fraternally, he is a member of Harmony Lodge No. 429, F. & A. M. at Zelienople. In religious faith and fellowship, he is a member of the Reformed Church.

JOHN HINDMAN, residing on a farm of 136 acres in Clay Township, Butler County, Penna., located about two and one-half miles south of West Sunbury, is engaged in general farming, but for many years worked in the oil fields. He was born on the farm now owned by his brother Thomas, in Marion Township, Butler County, on October 22, 1850, and is a son of Thomas and Mary (McClung) Hindman.

Robert Hindman, grandfather of the subject of this sketch, came to this country from Ireland, and with his brother, John, became owner of about 700 acres of land in Washington Township, Butler County. Thomas Hindman, father of the gentleman whose name heads this record, was born in Washington Township and there reared to manhood. After his marriage he moved to Marion Township, Butler County, and about the year 1866 purchased a farm in Franklin Township. He lived upon that place a number of years, then leaving the place under the care of his oldest son, Robert, moved upon the farm he owned in Washington Township.

John Hindman was ten years old when his parents moved to Franklin Township, and he subsequently went with them to Washington Township, where he continued two or three years thereafter. He then went into the oil fields, working for a period of twenty-three years as driller and tool dresser, being located in Venango County and various other places. For a time he was in partnership with his brother, Thomas, as contractor, and they drilled a great many wells. About twenty-five years ago, Mr. Hindman took up his residence on his present farm, which was the birthplace of his wife, and he has since continued here. He erected the commodious frame house and the substantial barn which stand on the place, and has one of the best improved farms in the neighborhood. He follows general farming and also has a good gas well on the farm.

Mr. Hindman was united in marriage with Miss Elmira Miller, who was born and reared in Clay Township, and is a daughter of Henry Miller. Two children were born to them: Luther, who died in infancy; and another who died unnamed. They adopted a daughter, Jessie M., who now is the wife of Harry Sutton. Fraternally, the subject of this sketch is a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows. He is a Democrat in politics, and was elected on that ticket to the office of road supervisor. In religious faith he is a Lutheran and a liberal supporter of the church.

OLIVER NEUBERT, general farmer and stockraiser, is a representative citizen of Jefferson Township, where he owns a fine farm of seventy-five acres, on the Saxonburg Road, about one mile north of the town. He was born in Germany, July 13, 1854, and is a son of Charles and Wilhelmina (Fisher) Neubert.

Charles Neubert brought his family from Germany, in 1867. He settled at Allegheny, Pennsylvania, where he found work as a stone-mason—a new trade to him, as he had previously worked at silver mining. From Allegheny he moved to Westmoreland County and some years later came to Butler County and resided on the present farm of his son Oliver. He had nine children, namely: Otto, Ida, Antonio, Anna, Oliver, Oscar, Richard, Emil and Charles.

Oliver Neubert was thirteen years old when his parents emigrated to America and he here finished the education he had commenced in his native land. He assisted his father during the latter's life and subsequently came into possession of his present farm. The land is well situated and responds readily to Mr. Neubert's methods of cultivation, and he has made excellent improvements here. His buildings are practically new, his residence being a comfortable two-story one and his bank barn of very substantial construction, the old buildings having been destroyed by fire some years since.

Mr. Neubert married Barbara Wagner, a daughter of George and Margaret (Kalp) Wagner, farming people in Jefferson Township, and they have the following children: Ella, who lives at home; George, a carpenter by trade, married Della Lefever; Richard and Ralph, both work in the oil fields; Otto and Albert, twins, work in the oil fields (Albert is a carpenter); Ida, who resides at home; Arthur and Herbert, both are in school; and Paul and Martin. Mr. Neubert and family belong to the Lutheran Church and he is a member of its council. He takes an active interest in township affairs and is so well and favorably known that he has frequently been elected to office and has served acceptably as a member of the Grand Jury, handling some very important cases, as a member of the Board of Elections, as supervisor, and for two years has been a school director.

JOHN S. MCKEE, D. D., who, for many years was pastor of the United Presbyterian Church at Butler and enjoyed in large degree the respect, esteem, confidence and affection of the people to whom he so faithfully ministered, was born June 22, 1850, in Pittsburg, Penna., and was a son of William and Elizabeth (Shields) McKee.

Doctor McKee came of Irish ancestry, both grandfather and father having been born in County Down, Ireland. In 1844, William McKee, the father, then being twenty years of age and a carpenter by trade, emigrated to America and took up his residence at Pittsburg, Penna., where, in 1849, he was united in marriage with Elizabeth Shields, who died in 1859. In 1862, William McKee contracted a second union with Jane Cox. He was the father of five children by his first marriage and six by his second. The McKee family has been of the Presbyterian faith for generations.

Doctor John S. McKee was educated in the public schools, the East Liberty Academy and the Western University, and completed the prescribed course at the latter institution in 1869. From boyhood it had been his cherished desire to enter the ministry and in preparation for this important step, he entered the United Presbyterian Theological Seminary at Allegheny, where he was graduated in 1873 and in the same year was licensed to preach by the Monongahela Presbytery. He then visited Scotland and enjoyed a year's training in the Free Church College at Edinburgh. On October 19, 1875, Mr. McKee was installed as pastor of the East Brady Church, where his labors continued for five years, when he accepted a call from Mercer, Penna., and served as pastor of the United Presbyterian Church there for four years. On October 1, 1884, he accepted a call from the United Presbyterian Church at Butler, and he remained associated with this charge until the close of his useful life. Under his fostering care both the material affairs and the spiritual life of the congregation improved and was quickened, and the personal influence he exerted will long be felt in the community.

In June, 1878, Doctor McKee was married to Sophia M. Templeton, of Brady's Bend, Penna. Mrs. McKee with their one daughter, Jeannie Elizabeth, reside in their comfortable home at No. 322 East Pearl street, Butler.

In the usual acceptance of the term, Doctor McKee was no politician, but he was so determined in his temperance views that he allied himself definitely with the Prohibition party. He was a man of many gifts, of brilliant talents, and his activities made him known far beyond the confines of Butler County.

J. R. McCANDLESS, one of the substantial citizens of Cherry Township, who is carrying on agricultural operations on a fine farm of eighty three acres, situated on the road from Pleasant Valley Church to Harrisville, has been a resident of Cherry Township nearly all of his life. He was born September 21, 1832, at Parker's Landing, Armstrong County, Penna., and is a son of Mark and Mary (Russell) McCandless.

When Mr. McCandless was two years of age, his parents located on a farm near Moniteau, and here he was reared to manhood. Until twenty-five years of age he carried on various occupations, and at that time became engaged in farming, which he carried on for one year after his marriage in Cherry Township, then removing to Concord Township, where he resided until 1861. Since that time he has been engaged in general farming on his present property, a fine tract of fertile land, on which Mr. McCandless has made many improvements. His present handsome residence was erected by him in 1881.

Mr. McCandless was married to Eliza Jane McCallen, who was born in Cherry Township, and is a daughter of John and Rebecca (Walker) McCallen. Two children have been born to this union, namely: Mary Rebecca, is the wife of Robert Billingsley, residing on the line between the States of Pennsylvania and West Virginia, where Mr. Billingsley is engaged as an oil worker, and they have two children, Lewis Montrose and J. Edgar; and John Walker, married Mary Orpha Thompson, and has three children,—Charles Plummer, Hazel Z. and Gladys. Mr. McCandless is a member of the Pleasant Valley Presbyterian Church. His standing in his community is high, and he is regarded as an expert on agricultural matters.

MRS. MARTHA E. IMAN, widow of the late Joseph Iman, resides on a well improved farm of forty-five acres in Donegal Township, Butler County, Penna., and is one of the honored and highly respected residents of that locality. She was born in West Moreland County, Penna., a daughter of Hugh and Alice (Staller) McIntire, who were prominent old settlers of West Moreland County.

Mrs. Iman was reared in her native locality, residing there for about twenty-five years and was married in Indiana County, Penna., to Joseph Iman, a son of John and Alice Iman, also residents of West Moreland County. Subsequent to their marriage, which occurred February 7, 1870, Mr. and Mrs. Iman resided for about five years in Indiana County. He was a brick molder by trade, but after coming to Butler County in 1875, he engaged in the oil business at Petrolia, where they resided for six months on the old Wilson farm. From there Mr. and Mrs. Iman removed to Troutman where they resided a period of seventeen years, when they moved to Thorn Creek, where Mr. Iman engaged in the oil business for one year. After disposing of his oil interests, the family came to Butler County, locating in Donegal Township, where the death of Mr. Iman occurred December 9, 1902.

The following children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Iman: John, who resides on the farm with his mother, was born in 1871 and married in 1895 to Elizabeth Wilson, a daughter of Aaron Wilson (they have two children, Ella and Elmer); Mary married Edward Ellenburger of Fairview Township, Butler County, and has one child, Thomas; Hugh a resident of Donegal Township, married Loretta Rentzel of Chicora and to them have been born four children—May, Joseph, Ruth (deceased), and one died in infancy; Mary E., William J., Gertrude, deceased, and Ruth, deceased; Thomas, died aged eighteen years, five months and fourteen days; William, died aged nine months; Charles, residing at home; Joseph, who also lives at home; George, lives in West Virginia, married Ollie Montgomery and has two children, Ardell and Lillian; Minerva married William Slater, a resident of West Virginia, and they have two children, Ethel and George Harold. The religious connection of the family is with the Methodist Church. Mr. Iman was a member of the Knights of Honor and of the K. O. T. M.

Mrs. Iman bought her present farm of forty-five acres in 1906 from Charles Duffy and has made all of the improvements on it. There are two producing oil wells on the land. Mrs. Iman is possessed of true womanly qualities and a kindly manner, which has won for her the marked regard of all with whom she has been brought in contact.

WILLIAM JOHN KENNEDY, of the W. J. Kennedy Hardware Company, a leading business concern at Mars, was born March 11, 1854, in Clinton Township, Butler County, Penna., and is a son of Thomas and Margaret (Logan) Kennedy.

MR. AND MRS. JOSEPH IMAN

Thomas Kennedy was six years old when he accompanied his father from Ireland. The latter secured a farm of 230 acres in Clinton Township, Butler County, the larger part of which was covered with forest, ten acres alone having been cleared. Thomas Kennedy continued to live on that property, as he grew to manhood working to clear it, and when his father died, he inherited 100 acres. This farm is now owned by Thomas G. Kennedy, one of his sons. On that farm Thomas Kennedy died in 1893, aged seventy-seven years. He married Margaret Logan, who was born in Penn Township, Butler County, and died in 1907, aged eighty-three years. They had the following children: George, deceased; Agnes (Spohr); James; Margaret, deceased; William John; Martha, wife of John Miller; Thomas G., on the homestead; Mary E., wife of Reverend Monks; Clorinda, wife of Charles Davis; and Malissa.

Until he was eighteen years of age, William J. Kennedy remained at home assisting his father in his agricultural work, and then learned the carpenter trade, at which he subsequently worked for thirty-two years. For twenty-two years he engaged in contracting in Pittsburg and Allegheny, where he erected some of the finest residences among the noted beautiful structures of those cities. For five years of his residence in Pittsburg, his son was connected with the Marine Bank. In 1903, Mr. Kennedy came to Mars and purchased an interest in the Craig Hardware Company, the business then being incorporated under the style of the Craig, Kennedy Hardware Company. Eighteen months later Mr. Kennedy bought Mr. Craig's interest, admitting his son to partnership and changing the name to the W. J. Kennedy Hardware Company.

On Christmas Day, 1878, Mr. Kennedy was married at Allegheny, to Mary L. Bartley, and they have four children: Thomas, Mary, Edith and Alice. With his family, Mr. Kennedy belongs to the United Presbyterian Church, in which he is an elder.

W. F. LYTLE, Justice of the Peace, at Butler, has been a resident of this city for the past twenty-one years and during the larger part of this time, was connected with its industrial life. He was born at Monongahela City, Washington County, Penna., in January, 1861, and is a son of James S. and Martha A. (Cowan) Lytle.

Robert Lytle, the paternal grandfather, was a well known man in Western Pennsylvania in his day. For many years he drove the stage which operated between Pittsburg and Franklin, Venango County, and in the later years of his life he was courtier at Franklin.

James S. Lytle, father of Judge Lytle, died a victim to the cruelties inflicted at Andersonville Prison, during the Civil War. In 1861 he enlisted and served through his first term of three months. He re-enlisted, entering then Company I, One Hundred Third Regiment, Penna. Volunteer Infantry. At Plymouth, North Carolina, he was captured by the Confederates and was taken to Andersonville Prison, where he suffered unspeakable tortures during his ten months of incarceration, and when finally exchanged was so emaciated by disease and famine, that his brave life closed ten days later. His widow, who was a daughter of Mathias Cowan, an early pioneer of Slippery Rock Township, Butler County, removed to Slippery Rock when her son, W. F., was five years old.

W. F. Lytle was deprived of this tender mother's care when he was but eleven years of age, and thus being left without his natural protectors, was obliged to hew out his own way in life with no practical assistance. For some six years he worked on a farm in Slippery Rock Township, and then learned the carpenter trade, and later the harness-maker's trade, and worked at the latter at Prospect, West Sunbury and Butler, for about seven years. About 1888 he resumed work as a carpenter and continued until May, 1898, when he suffered from an accidental fall from a bridge that disabled him from that time until the following October. His accident had occurred on the Bessemer Railroad and he was then given a position as watchman on that road, one that he efficiently filled until he was appointed to his present office in April, 1907. He has been an active and useful party worker for many years and this appointment is but a tardy recognition of his services. He is a man of excellent judgment and his life experiences have fitted him, in marked degree, for this office.

In 1882, Mr. Lytle was married to Miss Ellen McCall, who is a daughter of R. M. McCall, and they have two children, Bessie and Frances Grace. The former is the widow of the late Martin Penniebaker, of Lewistown, and she has one daughter, Jeanette Mildred. Mrs. Penniebaker resides with her father since her widowhood. Mr. Lytle is a member of a number of fraternal organizations including the Eagles, the Knights of Malta, and the National Legion.

ASA WATERS HEYL, D. D. S., with office on Pittsburg Street, has been a resident of Evans City, Penna., throughout his professional career and enjoys an extensive practice in that community. He is a native of Butler County, having been born at Prospect, May 3, 1880. He is a son of Martin and Nancy (Albert) Heyl, and a grandson of Martin and Christina Heyl, both of whom were born in Germany.

Martin Heyl, Sr., upon emigrating from Germany, located in Muddy Creek Township, Butler County, Penna., where he cleared a farm and resided until his death at the age of seventy-five years. He was survived by his widow for some years. They were parents of the following children: Martin, Jr.; Henry; John; Jacob;

Philip; George; Christina, wife of John Plimmer; Margaret (Caldwell); and Mary, deceased wife of Adam Wilson.

Martin Heyl, father of the subject of this sketch, was born and reared on the home farm in Muddy Creek Township, and at an early age learned the trade of a blacksmith. About the year 1863, he opened a shop in Prospect, Butler County, where he has since continued with uninterrupted success. He was united in marriage with Nancy Albert, a daughter of John Albert, who was of English birth. Mrs. Heyl was born about three miles east of Prospect. This union was blessed with the following children: Sidney, a blacksmith at Slippery Rock; Luther, manager of the Punxsutawney Hardware Company; William, a carpenter at Prospect; George, who is associated with his father in blacksmithing at Prospect; Ezra, who died in childhood; Alvin, who also died young; Asa Waters, subject of this sketch, who was named after Rev. Asa Waters, an old and respected divine of Prospect; and Ella, wife of Frank Clark.

Dr. Asa W. Heyl spent his boyhood days in Prospect, where he attended the public schools and Prospect Academy, from which institution he was graduated in 1897. He engaged in teaching school two winters in Muddy Creek Township, after which he entered the dental department of Western University of Pennsylvania. He was graduated in 1902 with the degree of D. D. S. and soon after located for practice in Evans City, where he has since continued. In 1908, he erected a fine modern home and office on Pittsburg Street near the Citizens' National Bank Building, it consisting of eight rooms and of brick construction. He is a member of the Pennsylvania Dental Society, and the Butler County Dental Society. He is local examiner and demonstrator for the Sanitol Chemical Laboratory Company.

October 29, 1902, Doctor Heyl was united in marriage with Miss Flo Forrester, a daughter of James and Agnes Forrester of Prospect. Religiously, they are active members of the Lutheran Church, he acting as assistant superintendent of the Sunday-school, and president of the Lutheran League. Politically, he is a Republican.

MARTIN SPITHALER, one of Forward Township's best and most respected citizens, resides on his valuable farm of ninety acres, on which he was born, September 25, 1864, and is a son of Henry and Caroline (Householder) Spithaler.

Henry Spithaler, father of Martin, was born in Germany and came to America when he was about eighteen years of age, settling first in Beaver County, Penna. He purchased a farm and also operated an old-time horse-power threshing machine. After his marriage he sold his Beaver County farm and came to Butler County, where he purchased the farm on which his son Martin lives, in Forward Township. He was a fine business man and kept adding to his land until he owned two large farms and one small one, clearing the greater amount of this land himself. He died in the spring of 1899, aged seventy-two years. He married Caroline Householder, who was born in Germany and accompanied her parents to America, in girlhood. They had nine children, namely: Henry; Caroline, wife of John Shutt; Jacob; Fred; Sarah, wife of Adam Wehre; Daniel; Charles; Martin; and Amelia, wife of Fred Millerman, with whom the venerable mother resides.

Martin Spithaler grew to manhood in the old log house in which all the children were born and he remembers many occasions when fully an inch of snow sifted between the logs and fell on his bed. In his boyhood, youths were expected to work hard, when work was waiting to be done, and Martin had few chances to go to school and when opportunity came, he had to walk a distance of two miles to the old Critchlow school. He helped his father clear the farm, which was no small undertaking. He lived at home until his marriage, after which he operated the William Goehring farm until the death of his father, who rewarded him for his long years of faithful service, by willing him the home farm. He has made many substantial improvements here and has a fine property. There is a producing oil well on the farm, in which he has a half interest.

In December, 1862, Mr. Spithaler was married to Miss Ella Goehring, who was a daughter of William and Sarah Goehring, and they had seven children, namely: Bertha, Ida, Amanda, Walter, Elmer, Matilda and Esther. Mrs. Spithaler died March 31, 1904, aged thirty-seven years, seven months and twenty-one days. She was a loving wife, a kind and careful mother and a good neighbor. Mr. Spithaler is a member of the Reformer Church. In politics he is a Democrat. He takes an interest in educational matters in his township and served four years as school director.

THOMAS FRITZ COOPER, who is the present head of the old Cooper family in Butler County, owns fifty-one acres of fine land in Jefferson Township, which is situated about one-half mile from Saxenburg, carries on general farming here as did his father before him. He was born March 27, 1862, on his present farm in Butler County, Penna., and is a son of Samuel and Barbara Anna Catherine (Snyder) Cooper.

Samuel Cooper was born on the above named farm, on which he lived to be sixty-eight years of age. His parents were William and Catherine Cooper, who settled here when they emigrated from County Down, Ireland. Samuel Cooper married Barbara Anna Catherine Snyder and they had eight children, namely: William J., Philip, Thomas, Levi S., Margaret, Jennie, Elizabeth and Samuel Oliver.

Thomas F. Cooper has spent his whole life on his present farm, with the exception of three years, during which period he was proprietor of a hotel at Saxouburg. He has made farming his main occupation, although he also does a large amount of teaming and is an operator to some extent, in both oil and gas. He has good improvements on his property and his two-story residence is an attractive appearing home.

Mr. Cooper was married (first) to Miss Anna Deahl, who is survived by one son, Harold. He was married (second) to Miss Edna Brown, a daughter of John and Lyda Brown, and they have one child, Catherine Elizabeth. Mr. Cooper and wife belong to the Lutheran Church and he is a member of the church Council. He is identified with the order of Knights of Pythias, at Saxouburg, in which he is much interested.

JOSEPH F. SHIEVER, president of the First National Bank at Bruin, Pennsylvania, and a member of the firm of Sproull & Shiever, leading general merchants at Bruin, is one of the most representative citizens of this community. He was born in Franklin Township, Beaver County, Penna., March 19, 1875, and is a son of Michael and Caroline (Gerwig) Shiever.

The father of Mr. Shiever was born in Germany and was five years old when his parents brought him to America and he was reared in Beaver County, where he later married Caroline Gerwig, who belonged to a German family who had settled there prior to her birth.

Joseph F. Shiever grew up a farm boy and he attended the Franklin Township schools through boyhood and later enjoyed a course at the Slippery Rock State Normal School. For three winter terms he taught school in Lancaster Township, Butler County, and was considered an excellent teacher, but he wished to become neither a farmer nor a school-teacher, his inclinations leading him in the direction of a business or commercial career. In 1901 he entered into partnership with Mr. Bolton, in a mercantile business at Slippery Rock, the firm name being Bolton & Shiever, which continued until the fall of 1903, when Mr. Shiever became manager for the mercantile department of the Coal and Limestone Company, at Redmond, Pennsylvania, where he remained until he came to Bruin, and in 1904 became associated with Mr. Sproull, in merchandising, under the firm style of Sproull & Shiever. Both members of this firm are practical, conservative business men and they control the volume of trade in their line.

Mr. Shiever was one of the organizers of the First National Bank at Bruin, which was incorporated October 15, 1907, and opened for business on January 14, 1908, Mr. Shiever being elected its first president and is also one of the board of directors. The business stands on a firm basis and, as its head, Mr. Shiever applies the same careful policy that has made him successful in his private enterprises.

Mr. Shiever married Miss Margaret M. Douth, who was born in Lawrence County, Penna., and is a daughter of the late Jeremiah Douth, formerly of Lawrence County. Mr. and Mrs. Shiever have one son, Wayne N. Mr. and Mrs. Shiever are members of the First Presbyterian Church of Bruin. He belongs to the the Butler County Merchants' Mutual Insurance Company, in which he is a director. In his political views he is a Republican.

JOSEPH B. HINCHBERGER, general agriculturist, residing on his well cultivated farm of eighty acres, which is situated in Butler Township, was born at Philadelphia, Penna., June 22, 1842, and is a son of Anthony and Barbara (Bosbarshield) Hinchberger.

Anthony Hinchberger was born in the province of Nancy, France, in 1792, a son of David Hinchberger, and died when aged seventy-six years. In early manhood he was a soldier under the great Napoleon, and survived the battle of Waterloo, but two of his brothers were killed in the army. When he came to America he brought his wife and their two children. He took up his residence in Philadelphia, learned the cooper and stonemason trades but took more interest in gardening and farming. He was a man of large frame and big stature, and for years was foreman of the gang of street cleaners on Market Street, Philadelphia. His death was caused by accident. His children were as follows: Christopher, who lives in Butler Township; Mary, deceased, who was the wife of Frank Allwein; Barbara, deceased; Josephine, who married Samuel Shaffner, of Butler Township; Joseph B.; Christian, who lives at Butler; and John, who resides in Butler Township. The parents of this family were members of the Roman Catholic Church.

Joseph B. Hinchberger was educated in the Philadelphia schools. He remained on the home farm near that city until after his father's death. In 1864 he enlisted for service in the Civil War, entering Company G, One Hundred and First Regiment, Penna. Volunteer Infantry, and remained in the service until the close of hostilities. He is a charter member of the Butler Post of the Grand Army of the Republic. Before purchasing his present farm he worked for some seven years on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, and was foreman of the roundhouse. He has a very valuable farm, much of it being under cultivation, but sixteen acres being yet in timber, and three oil wells having been sunk, one of which is now producing. He raises both grain and stock. His improvements have all been of a substantial character. In 1908 he remodeled his residence and has a very comfortable and attractive home.

Mr. Hinchberger married Barbara Liebler, who is a daughter of George Liebler, of Butler Township, and they have seven children, as follows: Amelia, who is the wife of John Sullivan, lives in the city of Washington, D. C.; George; Helena; Louis, who married Eliza Burns, resides in Butler Township; Mary; William, and Joseph. The family belong to St. Paul's Catholic Church.

In politics, Mr. Hinchberger is a Republican. On account of his high standing in his community and the general confidence in which he is held by his fellow citizens, he has frequently been elected to local office. He has efficiently served seven terms as school director, and has been supervisor, tax collector and overseer of the Poor, and was for two terms court tipstave of the court of Butler County.

ANDREW WHITE McCOLLOUGH is a name familiar throughout the oil and gas regions of Pennsylvania. It stands for all that is honorable in business, having been for a period of more than forty years linked with hundreds of transactions with all classes of people, to emerge untarnished by unscrupulous or unfair practices on the part of its bearer. Mr. McCollough may well take pride in his record. The vicissitudes of fortune bore him high on the waves of success, only to dash him against the rocks; but with fortitude and courage of a weather-beaten mariner, he righted his ship, figuratively speaking, and sailed safely into port. His good fortune came not through the misfortune of others, and his misfortune, although involving bankruptcy, did not entail the loss of a single dollar to his creditors. He is one of Butler's most prominent citizens and stands high in public esteem.

Mr. McCollough was born on the old White homestead in Franklin Township, Butler County, Penna., April 15, 1840, and is a son of Matthew and Jane (White) McCollough, both of whom came of pioneer families of Franklin Township. He was but four years of age at the death of his mother, and he was thereafter reared to manhood by his maternal grandparents.

Andrew S. and Angelina White. His early education was obtained in the common and Normal schools at Prospect, supplemented by a course in Connoquenessing Academy at Zelienople. He engaged as an instructor five terms in the schools of Connoquenessing, Jackson and Franklin Townships, after which he followed merchandising from 1861 to 1871. The latter year marked the beginning of his oil operations at Parker, Bear Creek, Millerstown and Greece City, which continued for several years with varying success. A student by nature he made a study of this business in all its details, and is admittedly one of the best known and widely informed gas and oil men in the State, being a recognized authority on the geological structure of the oil and gas regions. He possesses the largest private collection of standard works on geology in Western Pennsylvania. He was particularly successful in gas production, having developed six of the largest gas fields in the State.

At the height of a prosperous career, Mr. McCollough encountered unlooked for reverses that swept away his fortune, leaving him heavily involved, not only on his own account but as endorser for others. Free from these obligations by bankruptcy proceedings, he still recognized the moral obligation and set about with renewed energy in operating in the gas fields, in which he had an abiding faith. In time he was enabled to discharge every moral and legal obligation of his own and others, for whom he was endorser, the latter running up into many thousands of dollars. His wonderful success continued and he once more took rank among the stalwart men of affairs in the vicinity of Butler.

October 17, 1867, Andrew White McCollough was joined in marriage with Miss Mary Bredin, who is of pioneer families of Butler on both sides of the house, being a daughter of Edward M. and Adelia (Purviance) Bredin. Three children were the issue of this union: Marian, Kelt, and Harry Ford. Religiously, he is a member of the Presbyterian Church, while his wife and daughters are members of St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal Church. Politically, he is an unwavering supporter of the Republican party, and in 1908 was chosen as alternate delegate to the Republican National Convention at Chicago and was one of the Taft Republican Presidential electors of the state of Pennsylvania. He has been a member of Butler Lodge, F. & A. M., since early manhood. He has given liberally of his means toward the advancement of education and religion, and enjoys the respect and confidence of the community.

EDWIN A. WATSON, of the large mercantile firm of William Watson & Son, who conduct stores both at Isle and at Mt. Chestnut, was born October 28, 1868, in Buffalo Township, Butler County, Penna., and is a son of William and Mary A. (Sarver) Watson.

Alexander Watson, the grandfather of Edwin A., was born in Scotland. In 1849 he brought his family to America and settled in Armstrong County, Penna., where the remainder of his life was spent. He had four children: John A., William, Alexander and Isabella.

William Watson, father of Edwin A., was born in Wigtonshire, Scotland, February 12, 1838. For a number of years he was concerned in the stirring life on the frontier, engaged for a time in mining in the vicinity of Pike's Peak and other points and after he returned to Pennsylvania, served for ten months as an officer in Company D, Sixth Regiment, Penna. Heavy Artillery, in defending the city of Washington, during the Civil War. After the close of his military life, Mr. Watson bought a farm in Buffalo Township, which he sold in 1876, when he bought an interest in the mercantile business of Alexander Campbell & Sons, at Mount Chestnut. In 1878 Mr. Watson became the owner of the whole business, which he conducted under his own name until 1892, when he admitted his son, Edwin A. to partnership.

Mr. Watson was married (first) to Mary E. Sarver, who died in 1874. They had four children: Clara E., who is the wife of Prof. S. L. Cheeseman, of Slippery Rock; John W., who resides at Seattle, Washington; Edwin A.; and A. Walter, who is in Alaska. Mr. Watson was married (second) to Mary M. Campbell.

Edwin A. Watson was educated in the township schools and may be said to have grown up in the business in which he is now a partner. Since 1892 he has been associated with his father under the firm name of William Watson & Son. In 1897 the firm established the store at Isle as a branch of the parent house and under the vigorous management of Edwin A. Watson, who has charge, it has developed into a larger concern than the one at Mount Chestnut. Prior to the establishing of the free delivery system, Mr. Watson was postmaster at Isle and he serves as express agent at this point. The two stores do the largest business in general merchandise, farm machinery, fertilizers and feed, in Franklin Township.

Edwin A. Watson married Miss Eva Stoops, who is a daughter of William Stoops, and they have six children: Garth, Huber, Janet, Kenneth, Charles and Paul. Mr. and Mrs. Watson are members of the Mount Chestnut United Presbyterian Church. In politics he is a staunch Republican.

ORA H. ANDERSON, one of Allegheny Township's prominent and representative citizens, a leading agriculturist and formerly an extensive oil producer, resides on his valuable farm, which contains 200 acres. He was born March 31, 1851, in Allegheny Township, Butler County, Penna., and is a son of Robert P. and Eliza J. (Reddick) Anderson.

The Anderson family is of Scotch extraction and it was founded in Pennsylvania by John Anderson, the great-great-grandfather of Ora H. He was born in Scotland and settled in Mifflin County in pioneer days. From Mifflin County, James Anderson, the great-grandfather, came to Butler County, in 1804, settling in the neighborhood of Six Points, where he erected two grist mills, the first ever built in that section. Mills were among the first necessities of civilization and the Anderson mills drew custom from a large territory. John Anderson, son of James and grandfather of Ora H., operated a tannery on his farm. The Andersons have always been noted for their thrift and enterprise and they proved themselves most useful to the communities in which they had their homes.

Robert P. Anderson was born in Butler County and prior to the birth of his children, settled on the farm in Allegheny Township, which is now owned by his son, Ora H. Here his death took place, in 1898, when in his eightieth year. He was active in public matters, served frequently and acceptably in local offices and was one of the leading members of the Scrub Grass Allegheny Presbyterian Church. Two of his children survive, namely: Ora H. and Emma N. The latter resides with her venerable uncle, Rev. Samuel Anderson, a Presbyterian minister, who has his home at Bradentown, Florida.

Ora H. Anderson grew to manhood on his present farm and was educated at Glade Run Academy, near Dayton, Penna., and Washington-Jefferson College, at Washington, Pennsylvania, and was graduated from the latter institution in 1876. After a short period of school-teaching, Mr. Anderson was engaged in the oil industry, but later turned his whole attention to operating, developing and improving his large estate.

Mr. Anderson married Miss Catherine Riddle, who was born in Venango County, Penna., and is a daughter of the late James

P. Riddle, formerly of Scrub Grass Township, Venango County. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson have the following children: Eliza and Mary, both of whom are successful teachers in the public schools; and Robert H., James and Eleanor S. Mr. Anderson and family are members of the Scrub Grass Presbyterian Church, in which he is an elder. He is a Republican in his political views and he has served both as school director and as auditor of Allegheny Township.

ADAM TROUTMAN, one of Butler's most highly respected citizens, who, for many years was identified with her business interests and whose enterprise is perpetuated and name honored in the extensive business of A. Troutman's Sons, has been a resident here since 1847. He was born in Germany, in 1832, and is a son of Adam and Mary (Cradel) Troutman.

The parents of Mr. Troutman settled first at Harmony, Penna., after their long voyage of three months, across the stormy ocean, and then located on a farm in Clearfield Township, Butler County, from which they moved to Penn Township, where they lived during the remainder of their lives.

Adam Troutman, bearing his father's name, was an infant when his parents settled in Clearfield Township, in 1832, and until he was twelve years old he assisted on the home farms. There were, however, thirteen children in the family and, as his services were not needed, young Adam bravely started out to find other work and to thereby add to the family's fortune, but after six months, during which he worked as hostler in Jacob Riber's hotel, he returned home and attended school through the following winter. In the spring he again started out, going to Brady's Bend, where he went to work in a coal bank, where for long hours he drove a patient old mule, and there he remained for two years. Mr. Troutman was not satisfied, however, with the education he had been able to acquire and after his return home, he went to school for two more months. From there he went to the Zimmerman Hotel, which then stood on the present site of the Willard, and after working there for one year, he was engaged by the groceryman, James Negley. For his first year's services, he received the sum of $25, clothing and board, and the second year, $50, the third year, $75, and the fourth year, $100. In the fifth year, when he married, his salary was fixed at $25 per month.

In the meanwhile, Mr. Troutman had acquired a good education by attending night school and had assisted his father in the purchase of land, and so careful, prudent and frugal had he been, with a constant eye to the future establishing of a business of his own, that when Mr. Negley was ready to sell out he had enough capital to go into partnership, later, with Mr. Negley in a new business, which continued for two years, when Mr. Negley bought his interest. Mr. Troutman, with George Weber, then purchased the general mercantile business of William S. Boyd and this partnership continued for five years, when Jacob Boose bought Mr. Weber's interest. Mr. Troutman and Mr. Boose continued together for eighteen months, when the former bought out the latter and thus gratified the laudable ambition he had long cherished, of owning a business for himself. The old residents of Butler recall Mr. Troutman as a merchant for many years and he continued to conduct his business alone until he admitted his son, J. Henry Troutman, as an equal partner, the firm name becoming A. Troutman & Son. In 1901, Mr. Troutman sold out his interest to two other sons, George and William Troutman, when the firm name became as it now stands, A. Troutman's Sons. It continues to be one of the leading enterprises of the city and although Mr. Troutman has lived retired ever since, it is a matter of pride with him that the business standards he established are still in force with the younger generation. He was one of the first directors of the Butler Savings Bank. In his efforts, Mr. Troutman proved that a young man's success depends largely upon himself and that to advance beyond his fellow plodders, he must not only have brains, but also ambition, perseverance and a proper regard for the fidelity that he owes to his employers. Along that line lies preferment.

In 1833, Mr. Troutman was married to Miss Margaret Agner and they have had six children: J. Henry, who is secretary and treasurer of the Standard Plate Glass Company; George, who is one of his father's successors; Mary, who is the wife of William Ziegler of Butler; Louise, who is the wife of James B. Hazlett; Albert C., who is the district attorney of Butler County; and William, who is part proprietor of A. Troutman's Sons.

Mr. Troutman is one of the valued members of the Lutheran Church at Butler, with which he has long been identified, in his early years serving as its treasurer and later as deacon and elder.

ROBERT A. MARKS, who was formerly engaged in mercantile pursuits and interested for some years in oil production in Middlesex Township, now operating the leading general store in Gallery, Pennsylvania, which he purchased of J. H. Thomas. He was born in Richland Township, Allegheny County, Penna., February 16, 1859, and is a son of William and Eliza (Whiteside) Marks.

The father of Mr. Marks was born in the north of Ireland and died in Allegheny County, Penna., in 1884, aged sixty-four years. He came to America when a young man and settled first in Middlesex Township, Butler County, from which section he moved to Allegheny County and there spent the remainder of his life. He served as a soldier in the Civil War, enlisting from Richland Township. He married a daughter of George Whiteside. She was born also in Ireland and accompanied her parents to America and to Middlesex Township, Butler County. To William Marks and wife were born nine children, namely: Mary, deceased, was the wife of S. J. Rankin; Jennie, who is the wife of W. J. Sheppard, of Allegheny; James, who resides at Valencia, Pennsylvania; W. J., deceased; Robert A.; Agnes, who is the wife of Thomas Marshall, of Bakerstown; Luella, who is the wife of Dr. McCandless, of Butler; and an unnamed infant.

Robert A. Marks was reared and educated in his native township and when twenty-three years of age he entered into partnership with his brother W. J. Marks, under the style of W. J. Marks & Brother, in a general store at Glade Mills. Later, J. P. Whiteside succeeded W. J. Marks and the firm style became Marks & Whiteside, which continued until 1902, when Mr. Marks bought Mr. Whiteside's interest and carried on the business alone until August, 1907, when he sold out to A. I. Aber. For some fifteen years Mr. Marks was interested in the oil producing business but he has severed his connection with this line of industry along with others, in Middlesex Township. He was one of the leading Republicans of Middlesex Township and has served in the offices of school director, clerk and treasurer of that township, and had he sought other positions of a political nature, could easily have secured them.

Mr. Marks married Miss Lizzie Belle Heckert, who is a daughter of Joseph Heckert, of Middlesex Township, and they have two children: William Leroy, who is a member of the class of 1911, in the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania; and Robert Howard. Mr. Marks, like his father, is a leading member of the Middlesex Presbyterian Church, of which he has been a trustee. He has been affiliated with the Masonic fraternity for many years and belongs to Lodge No. 272, F. & A. M., at Butler, Butler Chapter and Greenville Commandery. He belongs also to Connoqmonessing Lodge of Odd Fellows, the Elks at Butler and to Glade Mills Camp of the Modern Woodmen of America, of which he is venerable council.

GEORGE W. MARBURGER, owner of eighty-five acres of valuable farm land in Adams Township, has spent all of his life from the age of eight years on this farm, and was born February 27, 1852, in Allegheny County, Penna. His parents were Milton and Eva (Shrum) (Mateer) Marburger.

The parents of Mr. Marburger were both born in Germany. The father came to America in early manhood and his first work was done on the old canal that was then in course of construction in Butler and Allegheny Counties. Later he bought fifty acres of land in Allegheny County, which he later sold to advantage and then purchased the farm in Adams Township which is now owned by his son, George W., which formerly belonged to Judge Marshall. On this farm Milton Marburger spent the remainder of his life. He died in 1873, aged sixty-four years. He married a widow, Mrs. Eva (Shrum) Mateer, who had three children at that time, namely: Christian; Caroline, who married B. Miller; and Sarah, who married Abraham Zeigler. The following children were born to her second marriage: Anna, who married Henry Wolfe; Catherine, who married John Burr; Eva, who married Isaac Unstead; Susan, who married Philip Geise; Mary, who married Joseph Cashdollar; Elizabeth, who married Jacob Mathay; Emma, who married B. Dunbar; George W.; and John. The mother of this family survived the father for many years. She died in 1906, when aged ninety-one.

George W. Marburger was married June 30, 1897, to Anna Walters and they have four children: Ruth, William, Bessie and Russell. In politics, Mr. Marburger is a Democrat. He belongs to a well known family that has always stood very high in public esteem in Butler County.

EMIL F. NEUBERT, who conducts a meat market at Saxonburg where he is numbered with the reliable business men, owns four acres of land which lies in the extreme end of the town, his residence being a commodious two-story house standing on Main Street. He was born in 1868, in Germany and was nine years old when he was brought to America by his parents, who were Charles and Wilhelmina (Fisher) Neubert.

The father of Mr. Neubert resided first in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, then in Westmoreland County, and later came to Butler County and died on the farm on which his son Oliver resides.

Emil F. Neubert attended school at Pittsburg and there soon learned the English language. His first work was in helping farmers in the environs of Pittsburg and then he learned the baker's trade and later worked for his brother Oliver, in the latter's butcher shop. In the course of time he started into the business for himself and settled in the central part of the village of Saxonburg. He soon built up a fine trade and later purchased his present property and for the past twenty-two years has enjoyed the patronage of the best people of this community. He has made his own way and through business methods of honesty and integrity, has gained and kept the confidence of his fellow citizens. In almost any part of the surrounding country, one of Mr. Neubert's meat wagons may be seen, as he has a large country trade as well as an ample town patronage.

On July 25, 1883, Mr. Neubert was married to Miss Mary Sachs, a daughter of Frederick and Hannah (Green) Sachs, and they have an interesting family bearing the following names: Minnie, Edward, Lewis Harry, Milton, Hattie, Fred and Theodore. The eldest daughter married James Vogley and they have an infant.

Mr. Neubert is a leading member of the Lutheran Church at Saxonburg. He has taken an active part in town affairs and has served on the town council and as school director. He belongs to the Knights of Pythias, No. 279, Saxonburg.

WILLIAM HARVEY WISE, a prominent farmer and dairyman of Penn Township, who has oil and coal on his own land, was born in Allegheny City, Penna., October 9, 1864, and is a son of Jacob P. and Sarah Belle (Davis) Wise.

Jacob P. Wise was born in Shaler Township, Allegheny County, Penna., in 1839, and is a son of Daniel Wise, who was one of the early settlers of Shaler Township. In early manhood he learned the blacksmith trade, which he followed until 1863 and then turned his attention to farming, which he continued in Shaler Township until 1893 and then bought the farm in Penn Township on which his son now resides. Here he engaged in general farming until 1897. In 1901 he sold the farm to his son, William Harvey. In politics he is a Republican and served two terms as supervisor of Penn Township. He married a daughter of Thomas Davis, of Connoquenessing Township, who was born in 1842 and died in 1897. She was a beloved member of the Thorn Creek Methodist Episcopal Church. To Jacob P. Wise and wife were born the following children: Anna Mary, who is the wife of Thomas Hartzell, residing at Harmony; William Harvey; Hannah, who is the wife of Clyde Kennedy, living in Penn Township; Maggie Belle, who is the wife of William Hayes, residing in Penn Township; and Sarah, who is the wife of Bryson Kennedy, residing in Penn Township.

William Harvey Wise was reared and educated in Allegheny County and his business has always been concerned with agricultural pursuits. After his marriage he followed trucking but after coming to his present farm he went into stockraising, general farming and dairying, raising corn, oats, wheat and hay, keeping fourteen head of fine cattle and selling milk in Pittsburg. He has three producing oil wells on the farm which are worked under lease and at the present writing he is opening a coal bank which promises to be of great value. He is a well informed, practical business man and has all his interests well in hand.

Mr. Wise married Ida M. Bell, who is a daughter of George Bell of Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, and they have seven children: Mabel Irene, William Harvey, Ralph Orbin, Homer Nelson, John Robert, Jean Elizabeth and Thayer Bell. Mr. Wise with his family belongs to the Thorn Creek Methodist Episcopal Church, in which he is a steward and trustee. He has been active in Sunday-school work and served two terms as superintendent of the school connected with the above church.

DANIEL R. HILLARD, one of Venango Township's successful general farmers, was born on his present farm in Venango Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, February 17, 1844, and is a son of John and Jane (McMillian) Hillard and a grandson of Alexander Hillard.

The parents of Mr. Hillard were well known farming people of Venango Township, where they lived many years and reared a large family. John Hillard served in the war of 1812. They had the following children: Thomas and Priscilla, both now deceased; Margaret, who married Jesse Joseph, had nine children—Jane, Thomas, Sarah, Rosa, Ida, James, Catherine, Newton and Daniel; J. B., who married Katherine Louge of Clarion County and whose children are: Edward, J. B., Thomas, Annie, Jennie, Fred, Mary and Lizzie; James is deceased; Elizabeth, who married Joseph Wild, has had twelve children—James, John, Jane (deceased), Ira, Joseph, Daniel, Priscilla, Flora, Della, Richard, Blanche and Mary; Martha never married; Mary Catherine is deceased;

John, who married Eliza J. Jamison had fourteen children—Belle, Bessie, Janet, John, Priscilla, James, Archibold, Emma (deceased), Daniel (deceased), Grace, Ralph, Leon, Eva (deceased), and Claire; Daniel R. is the subject of this sketch; Nancy Jane, who married Richard Kelly, had eight children—Theodore, Nolla, Ivy, Richard, Ethel, Mabel, Jonathan and Mark; Sarah, who was married (first) to James Davison and (second) to Wilson Mahood, is now deceased. The children of Sarah's first marriage were Harry, James and Daniel. One infant was born to her second marriage but it is now deceased.

Daniel R. Hillard was reared on the home farm with his brothers and sisters and with them attended the Blair and the Campbell schools in Venango Township. He continued to live at home and he received about forty acres of the homestead from his brother James, by will, and to this added thirty-five acres by purchase. The farm is well improved and Mr. Hillard assisted in putting up the present substantial farm buildings, which make this a comfortable and attractive home. There are two fine orchards on the place, one of them having been set out by his grandfather. Mr. Hillard also owns a vacant lot at Annisville, in Washington Township. He is a Civil War veteran and a member of S. J. Rosenberg Post, No. 538, G. A. R.

On February 23, 1882, Mr. Hillard was married to Miss Jennie Rodgers, who is a daughter of James Rodgers, of Allegheny Township. Her father, like Mr. Hillard's, served in the War of 1812. Mr. and Mrs. Hillard are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Eau Claire. In politics, Mr. Hillard is a Republican but he is no seeker for office.

NELSON McELVAIN, a representative citizen and farmer of Clay Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, resides on a valuable farm of ninety-one acres, located about one-half mile east of West Sunbury, a part of this farm having been acquired by his paternal grandfather as early as 1807. He was born on a farm in Washington Township, Butler County, May 3, 1842, and is a son of William, Jr., and Nancy (Conway) McElvain, and a grandson of William McElvain, Sr.

William McElvain, Sr., was born in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, and was there married. Difficulties of travel and communication made members of a family, when separated, practically strangers to the other's movements, although living what we would now consider but a short distance apart—in fact in adjoining states. This is exemplified by the experience of Mrs. McElvain, who in maiden life was a Caldwell. A few years after they had set up housekeeping in Lancaster County, she formed a desire to visit her parents in Virginia, and as a result she and her husband started out on horseback, Mrs. McElvain carrying her infant child in her arms. Arriving at her old home she found her parents had moved away, and all the neighbors could vouchsafe in reply to her questioning was that the family had moved further South. She never heard from them again. Returning to Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, they resided there for a time, then moved to Westmoreland County in the same state, and in 1807 came on to Butler County. William cleared up the farm in Clay Township, and both died on this place.

William McElvain, Jr., was born in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, and was but a child when his parents located in Clay Township, where he grew to manhood. After his marriage he purchased the farm in Washington Township, on which the subject of this record was born. He died on that place, and his widow spent her declining years at the home of her son, Nelson, she too being now deceased.

Nelson McElvain was born and reared in Washington Township. He began house-keeping, after marriage, on the old home place, which he fell heir to, but later sold that place and in 1886 purchased his present farm from an uncle, Samuel McElvain. He has engaged in general farming and is one of the substantial men of the community.

William McElvain, who lived in Washington Township, reared a family of seven children, the eldest of whom was Mary, wife of George Craker. Annis, wife of John Porter, and Jane, wife of Joseph Glenn, after marriage resided in northern Michigan; Margaret, wife of William McMahan, resided in Clarion County, Pennsylvania; Emeline, wife of Alpheus Steintorf, resided in Virginia; Nancy, the only daughter now living, is the wife of I. N. Meals and resides in Washington Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania.

Mr. McElvain, the subject of this sketch, was joined in marriage with Miss Margaret Glenn, a daughter of James Glenn of Clay Township. She was born and reared in this township. Three children are their offspring: Alice, who is the wife of Rev. J. P. Stoops, a Presbyterian minister of West Liberty, West Virginia, by whom she has three children—Lowery M. Potter and Nelson; Rella, who is the wife of S. J. Christley of Chicago, Illinois, and has three children—Paul, Zoe and Lloyd; and Angeline, who lives at home.

WILLIAM ARNOLD, a representative citizen and prosperous business man of Bruin, Butler County, Penna., has been for many years engaged as an oil producer and is at the present time one of the directors of the First National Bank of that borough. He was born in Lincolnshire, England, March 9, 1852, and is a son of James and Ann (Fisher) Arnold, both natives of England.

William Arnold was reared in Lincolnshire until his fifteenth year, then went to London and lived for nearly three years. At the age of eighteen, he took passage at Liverpool and after a voyage of fourteen days landed at Boston, Massachusetts. He immediately after went west to Buffalo, New York, where he worked for one year, then moved to Venango County, Penna. There he was engaged several years in the oil fields, but in the spring of 1875 returned to England. He spent the summer in his native land and in the fall of the same year again sailed for America. He came to what then was Martiusburg, now Bruin, in Butler County, Pennsylvania, where he has since lived and met with deserved business success. He takes a deep interest in all questions relating to the development of the borough and its institutions, being especially favorable to measures calculated to improve the public school system.

In July, 1877, Mr. Arnold was united in marriage with Miss Susan Zuver, who was born in Venango County, Pennsylvania, and is a daughter of George E. Zuver, who still lives in that county and has passed his eighty-ninth birthday anniversary. Of the five children born to them, two survive, namely: William P. of Bruin, and Lotta Lenore. Religiously, Mr. Arnold and his family are members of the Presbyterian Church at Bruin, of which he served as trustee a number of years. Politically, he is a Republican. William P. Arnold married Roxie Rickenbrode and they have one child, Dorothy Queen.

HENRY B. STALKER, one of Venango Township's representative citizens, residing on his valuable farm of seventy-six acres, which lies two miles west of the borough of Eau Claire, was born October 28, 1844, in Sugar Creek Township, Venango County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Samuel and Jane (Blake) Stalker.

The paternal grandparents of Mr. Stalker were Thomas and Mary (Baton) Stalker and they had the following children: John, who married Elizabeth Moore; Rebecca, who married David Eakins, of Venango County; Samuel, who married Jane Blake; Rachel, who married Nelson McAlister; James, who married Sarah Cunningham; Margaret, who married John Ray; William, who married Margaret Whitmer; Thomas, who married Anna Ray; and two who are now deceased.

The children of Samuel Stalker and wife were: Rachel, who married Jackson Mitchell; Mary Ann, who was accidentally drowned in French Creek; Jane and Thomas, both of whom are now deceased; William W., who married Mary Rodgers; Elizabeth, who married Joseph Alexander; Ruth, who married Martin O'Conner; Henry B.; Katherine, who married William Kellerman; John T., who married Louisa Blair; Emma, who married John Bovard; Martha and Thomas, both of whom are deceased; and James F., who married Ellen Sloan.

Henry B. Stalker obtained his education in the Cross-roads school-house in Sugar Creek Township, after which he assisted his father in operating the home farm for a time and then went into business for himself, purchasing a team and operating a huckster wagon at Parker's Landing. For several years after his marriage he rented a farm in Venango Township, later moved to a second farm but decided to return to the first one and subsequently bought seventy-six acres, a part of which is still in timber. Probably this land is underlaid with coal but he has no opened bank, although both gas and oil are adding to his income, he having one gas well and six producing oil wells. He put up all the farm buildings, these being comfortable and substantial.

Mr. Stalker was married to Miss Sarah M. Williams, who died July 30, 1908. She was a most estimable woman, a devoted wife and mother and a good and kind neighbor. To Mr. and Mrs. Stalker were born the following children: Wilbert N., who married Henrietta, a daughter of Amos Seaton; Samuel M., who married Eva, a daughter of James G. Hoffman; John C., who married Miriam, a daughter of Robert Wilson; Arminta J., who is now deceased; William H., who married Alice Adams; James W., who resides at home; Maude, who married Earl McCall, and Mabel T., who remains with her father. Mr. Stalker and family are prominent members of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Eau Claire borough in which he has been a class leader for twenty-eight years and also a trustee for a long period. Mr. Stalker has interests aside from those mentioned, having been agent for the George W. Clark Company, of Jacksonville, Florida, for six years, and for the Monumental Bronze Company, for fifteen years. He is considered a man of exceptionally good business qualifications.

In politics, Mr. Stalker is identified with the Democratic party, but he is not a seeker for political honors. He is a member of the K. O. T. M. and is past commander of the lodge at Eau Claire.

MATTHEW GRAHAM, one of Cranberry Township's most esteemed citizens, was born February 25, 1837, in Cranberry Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and has spent his whole life in this township and for the past seventeen years has resided on his present farm which contains sixty-two acres of excellent land. His parents were Freeman and Elizabeth (Shearer) Graham.

The grandparents of Mr. Graham were pioneer settlers in Butler County. On the paternal side, Grandfather Matthew Graham, with his brother William, came to Butler County as a pioneer and together they took up large tracts of Government land, Matthew settling in Cranberry Township. He died November 3, 1858, aged seventy-seven years; his wife, Mary, died June 10, 1866, aged eighty-two years. On the homestead there, Freeman Graham was born in 1809. He followed farming and milling. He was the eldest of his parents' children, the others being as follows: James, who married Elizabeth Oakley, is survived by his widow, who lives in Cranberry Township. Matthew, who married Esther Dillon, lived on the old homestead and both he and his wife died there. Thomas, who is now deceased, never married. Samuel, who married Matilda Duncan, is survived by his widow. Ann, who married John Kelley, is deceased. Mary, who married Samuel Love, died in California; he died in Pittsburg. Hattie, who married John Vandervorst, died in Cranberry Township as did also her husband.

Freeman Graham was twice married. By his first wife, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Shearer, and who was the mother of the subject of this sketch, he had four sons and two daughters, of whom one son and one daughter still survive. His second wife was in maidenhood Maria Pierce, of which union there were three sons and three daughters. Of this latter family two of each sex are now living. The eldest of the sons by the second wife was Austin, who married 'Manda Pierce; they had one daughter, Lottie, now deceased, who was the wife of Graham Dumlup; she left one daughter, Hulda, who is married to George Beam. They have a daughter living. Of the rest of the family, James is living in California; Ella is the wife of Charles Teezle and they have three sons and a daughter; Edward is deceased.

Matthew Graham, subject of this sketch, was married first to Mary Ann Emerick, who was a daughter of Samuel Emerick, and to this union were born five sons and three daughters, the survivors being as follows: Leslie, married Maggie Barr, and they have four children and live in Ohio. Elmer, residing at Allegheny, married Isabella Barto. Alvie, who resides at New Brighton, married Rose Barr and they have three children. Eva, now deceased, who was the wife of William Hartzell, had one child, also deceased. Wilda, who married Wallie Forsythe, of Mars, has three children. Mamie, who is the wife of Frank Groom, car inspector at Conway yards, in Beaver County, has three children. Mr. Graham was married (second) December 28, 1886, to Mrs. Alice J. Dalzell, a widow, and a daughter of William and Mary (Van Normar) Dodds, former residents of Prospect. By her first marriage Mrs. Graham had six children, four of whom survive—William A., Margaret A., Charles A. and John T. Mrs. Graham has spent the greater part of her life in Butler County and owns a farm in Cranberry Township. Both Mr. and Mrs. Graham are members of the Presbyterian Church at Zelenople, in which he is an elder. In his political views he is a Republican, but has never consented to accept any public office. The present comfortable farm residence was built in 1892.

W. W. LUTON, of Fairview Township, is the owner of valuable half-interests in oil properties in this township. He was born in Venango County, Pennsylvania, February 22, 1857, son of W. M. and Sarah (Flemming) Luton, both his parents being natives and life-long residents of that county, where they died, both at the age of sixty-five years. They had a large family numbering eleven children, whose names were respectively as follows: M. E., George, Susannah, deceased, Taylor, Mary, Sarah Ann, W. W., Nelson, David, Cora, and Etta.

The subject of this sketch, W. W. Luton, resided in Venango County until about seventeen years old, acquiring his education in the district schools. He then came to Fairview Township, Butler County, and found occupation in the oil fields as laborer. He has since remained in the oil business and is now known as a successful producer. His residence in the township has covered a period of thirty years and he is regarded as one of its substantial citizens.

On June 12, 1877, in Armstrong County, Mr. Luton was united in marriage with Sadie I. Foster, a daughter of Christopher A. and Isabelle (Morrison) Foster. Her parents had seven other daughters, namely: Keziah Jane, Phebe, Margaret Elizabeth, Sarah Isabel, Nancy Ann, Mary, and Alice. Mr. Luton's family was completed by the birth of three children—Jennie B., Thomas, and Robert. Jennie B. became the wife of L. J. Sanderson and resides at Franklin, Pennsylvania. She has three children—Eugene, Ardell, and Sarah Irene. Mr. Luton's two sons reside at home. The family are members of the Presbyterian Church, and Mr. Luton belongs fraternally to the K. O. T. M., at Petrolia.

WILLIAM THOMAS McDONALD, president of the Eau Claire Telephone Company and a well known citizen of Eau Claire, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is also proprietor of a barber shop in that borough. He was born in Cameron County, Pennsylvania, March 2, 1857, and is a son of Daniel and Rachel (McCoy) McDonald, and a grandson of William McDonald.

William McDonald, the grandfather, was a native of Canada, in which country he passed all his days. He and his wife were parents of four children—Alexander, Duncan, Sandy, and Daniel. The last named was married to Rachel McCoy, a daughter of Thomas J. McCoy of Grove City, Mercer County, Penna., and they had two sons—William Thomas, whose name heads this sketch, and John Donald, who married Katherine Harbaugh.

William Thomas McDonald first attended school in Harrisville, Butler County, then the old McCoy school in Pine Township, Mercer County, the Blair school south of Eau Claire in Venango Township, and finally the public schools in the borough of Eau Claire. He engaged in agricultural pursuits for a period of twenty years, and then engaged in teaming during the oil excitement at Sample and Wildwood. He later worked as line-man for the Western Union Telegraph Company for a time, after which he returned to Butler County and purchased a one-fourth interest in a saw-mill. At the inception of the Eau Claire Telephone Company, he entered its employ and worked for some time as lineman during the days, spending his evenings working at the trade of a barber. He gave up outside work when he was made president of the company, but still maintains the barber shop in Eau Claire. He is one of the stockholders as well as an officer of the Telephone Company, and is esteemed a business man of high standing. He is a Republican in politics, and served as inspector of election in the borough one term, and two terms in Venango Township.

Fraternally, Mr. McDonald is a prominent member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows at Hilliard, the Knights of the Maccabees at Eau Claire, and Woodmen of the World of Eau Claire, being council commander of the last named.

WILLIAM J. ATWELL, prosperous farmer and oil producer of Marion Township, Butler County, Penna., comes of an old and respected family of this vicinity. He was born in the old log house on his father's farm, June 20, 1850, and is a son of Robert and Elizabeth (Byers) Atwell, and a grandson of Robert Atwell, Sr.

Robert Atwell, Sr., grandfather of the subject of this record, was born and reared in Ireland. He was there married to a Miss Dickson, who died early in life, leaving one son, Dickson. He formed a second union with Margaret Russell and they had the following children: Nellie, wife of William Brannon; George; William; John; James; Robert, Jr.; and Mary, wife of Alexander Watt. All are now deceased. Shortly after his second marriage, Robert Atwell, Sr., and his wife came to the United States, and first located on what is now known as the Perry farm in Venango County, Pennsylvania.

He then came on to Butler County, where he acquired title to 400 acres of heavily timbered land in Marion Township. He cleared a portion of the land and there passed the remainder of his days, being survived some years by his widow who reached an advanced age.

Robert Atwell, Jr., was born in 1816, probably in Venango County, and was very young at the time his parents settled in Marion Township. He helped clear the home farm and lived with his parents until his marriage. He then came into possession of a part of the home farm, on which he erected a log house and set up housekeeping. He later purchased seventy-five acres in Venango County, but continued to reside in Butler County. He married Elizabeth Byers, a daughter of Samuel Byers of Venango County, and they had the following children: Angeline, wife of James M. Henderson; Hannah, who died at the age of eleven years; Mary Jane, deceased wife of John Cochran; William James; Elethe, deceased wife of M. Wilson; Margaret, wife of Jacob Deibel; Elizabeth, wife of Dr. W. W. McConnell; and Harriet, wife of James Vanderlin. Mrs. Atwell died March 4, 1899, at the age of seventy-seven years, and was survived by her husband less than two months, his death occurring May 1, 1899, at the age of eighty-three years.

William J. Atwell was born in the old log house erected by his father, and was about two years old when the frame house was put up. He attended the common schools, and being the only son in the family much of the farm work fell upon his young shoulders. He lived with his parents until his marriage, then began farming for himself. He now has eighty acres of his father's farm in Marion Township, and another tract of fifty acres located in Clinton Township, Venango County. The latter is rich with oil, and he also has one producing well on his home property. In 1883, he built a comfortable home on his farm, in which he has since lived. He is one of the township's most substantial and public-spirited men, and has a host of acquaintances throughout this section of the country.

Mr. Atwell was married November 10, 1875, to Miss Rose Wilson, a daughter of Richard and Elizabeth (Sloan) Wilson, early settlers of Venango Township, Butler County, and they have six children: Cora, wife of John S. Cowan of McKeesport, Pennsylvania, by whom she has four children—Gladys, Nellie, Edith and John; Pearl, who is the wife of Clyde Irwin and has a son, Forest; Marcia, wife of Clinton Irwin of Clinton Township, Venango County; Mary, who is wife of James McKinley and has a son, Clifford; Burton, who conducts the home farm; and Keith. The daughters, prior to their marriages, were teachers in the public schools and were educated at Slippery Rock and Grove City colleges. Religiously, the family belongs to the United Presbyterian Church, of which Mr. Atwell is a deacon.

JOHN C. TWADDLE, one of the substantial business men and well known citizens of Bruin, Pennsylvania, is a successful oil producer and is a director of the First National Bank of that borough. He was born in Parker Township, Butler County, April 20, 1876, and is a son of James and Sarah (Sylvus) Twaddle. His father was born near the city of Pittsburg, and his mother near Saltburg, Pennsylvania.

James Twaddle, father of the subject of this sketch, was resident at Parker's Landing prior to locating in Parker Township, Butler County, where he spent the most of his mature life. His death occurred in this township, December 14, 1907. He was a progressive citizen and was closely identified with the development of the community and its institutions. He was a Republican in politics, and served some years as a school director. He saw active service in the Union Army during the Civil War and participated in numerous hard-fought engagements. He afterward became a member of the Grand Army of the Republic. Religiously, he was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Bruin. His widow belongs to the Presbyterian Church. She is a lady of the highest Christian character and is now living at Bruin, at the age of sixty-five years, surrounded by many close friends of long years' acquaintanceship. Of the children born to her and her husband, the following survive: Margaret, wife of S. R. Walker of Parker Township; Samuel A. of Chicora, Pennsylvania; James E. of Oklahoma; John C.; Della J., an instructor in music in Bruin and vicinity; and Elizabeth B., wife of John S. Walker of Bruin.

John C. Twaddle was reared on the farm in Parker Township, and received a superior educational training in the public schools. In early manhood he began work in the oil fields and this has been his principal field of operation since; he has been a producer since 1904. He was one of the promoters of the First National Bank of Bruin, of which he is a director, and was one of the building committee which supervised the construction of the bank building.

June 9, 1898, Mr. Twaddle was united in marriage with Miss Anna May Odenweller of Bruin, and they reside in a comfortable home in that borough. He is a Republican in politics, and, fraternally a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows.

ARCHIBALD THOMAS JAMISON has a fine home about two miles northeast of Murrinsville, in Venango Township, Butler County, Penna., and sixty acres of land, but does not engage in farming. He has been identified with the oil fields off and on for many years and is now engaged in drilling in connection with Jacob Sheasley of Franklin. He was born in Venango Township, January 10, 1870, and is a son of George W. Jamison, and a grandson of Archibald Jamison.

Archibald Jamison, the grandfather, was married to Elizabeth Patterson, a daughter of John Patterson, and they had the following offspring: Elizabeth, deceased; Matilda, wife of Henry Kelly; Margaret, wife of Washington Johnston; Eliza, wife of John Hilliard; John M., who married Margaret Kelly; James, who married Hulda Tawnyhill; and George W.

George W. Jamison was first united in marriage with Harriet Kelly, a daughter of Michael Kelly, and to them were born: Margaret, wife of John Bell; Melinda, wife of Elmer Delaney; and Archibald Thomas. He was married, secondly, to Elizabeth Brandon, a daughter of William Brandon of Venango Township.

Archibald T. Jamison attended the Rock school house in Venango Township, and assisted his father in the work upon the farm. He then went to work as a tool dresser in the oil fields about Murrinsville, and from there to drilling in the oil fields of Washington County, Ohio. After his marriage there in 1896, he moved to Forest County, Pennsylvania, where he was for a time connected with a saw mill. He was subsequently located at New Martinsville, West Virginia, Marietta, Ohio, and Cameron, West Virginia, before returning to the old home in Venango Township. Upon the death of his father, March 28, 1905, he purchased the home farm of sixty acres, on which he has since lived. All of the buildings were erected by his father but the house, which our subject built. He was for one year engaged in butchering at West Sunbury and then sold out, but his wife is still the owner of a house and lot in that borough. For the past five years he has worked at drilling with Jacob Sheasley.

August 19, 1896, Mr. Jamison was joined in marriage with Miss Martha Garner, a daughter of John Garner of Mercer County, and five children were born to them: Charles Thomas, who died at the age of six months; Harriet Ann; Marguerite Viola; Ula Bessie; and Ralph Edward. Religiously, he and his wife are members of the United Presbyterian Church at West Sunbury. He is a Democrat in politics and served one term as road superintendent. Fraternally, he is a member of West Sunbury Lodge No. 1154, I. O. O. F.

WILLIAM H. RAMSEY, a representative citizen of Jackson Township, where he owns a valuable farm of sixty acres, belongs to a family that has been established in Butler County for more than 100 years. Mr. Ramsey was born in Jackson Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, March 25, 1845, and is a son of James and Annie (Covert) Ramsey.

Alexander Ramsey, the grandfather of William H., came to Pennsylvania from County Down, Ireland, in early manhood. He married Grace Smith, who was born in Chester County, Pennsylvania, and subsequently acquired 400 acres of land in Butler County. He built his first house on the site of Emanuel Cashner's residence, in Cranberry Township. Both he and wife died on their farm, on which they had reared a large family, many of whom have descendants all through this portion of the State. The children of Alexander and Grace Ramsey were: James, father of William H.; John, who lived and died on the home farm, and married Sarah Covert; Alexander, who married Sarah McGeorge and reared a large family, died on an adjoining farm; Anthony, a farmer, who married Eliza McGeorge; Mary, who married Isaac Young, died in Jackson Township; and Hannah, who died near Butler, married John Robinson.

James Ramsey was born in Cranberry Township, Butler County, in 1805 and died in 1869. He married Annie Covert, a daughter of Morris Covert, who came to Jackson Township about the time the Ramseys settled here. James Ramsey owned 150 acres of land which he cultivated and improved, erecting the comfortable farm-house in 1844. His widow survived until 1890. Their surviving children are: William H.; Alexander, who resides on an adjoining farm, married Sophia Powel; and Nancy and Lizzie, who reside at Beaver Falls. One brother of the above, James Ramsey, is deceased; and a sister, Mary Ann. The latter was married (first) to Henry Honodde, who was killed in the army during the Civil War, and (second) to Isaac Coble, of Whitestown.

William H. Ramsey was educated in the district schools and has devoted his life to agricultural pursuits. His land has proved to be rich in oil as well as adapted to agriculture, and at present there are five producing wells on his farm. He has continued the improving which was commenced by his father, and in 1871 he put up the substantial barn.

Mr. W. H. Ramsey married Miss Nancy Conkline, who is a daughter of the late Lawrence Conkline, of Butler County, and they have had five children, namely: Vivie, residing near Callery, is the wife of Miles Cashdollar; Kittie, who married Vance Cashdollar, residing on the old Cashdollar farm; Nettie and Chloe, both residing at home with their parents; and a son, deceased. W. H. Ramsey's family are members of the Free Methodist Church, but he, like his parents, has membership in the United Presbyterian. In his political views he is a staunch Democrat. For many years the Ramseys have been among the most important people in Jackson Township.

THE STANDARD COAL MINING COMPANY, located on the Hilliard branch of the Bessemer Railroad, in Washington Township, Butler County, Penna., is owned and operated by Harry and Fred J. Hamilton. The mine had been in operation prior to 1899, but was abandoned; in that year, the Hamilton brothers re-opened it and it has been in full operation since. They have about 230 acres of land under lease, employ a force of 100 men, and mine from 250 to 300 tons per working day, of nine hours. The company is in a very prosperous condition.

THE MUTUAL COAL MINING COMPANY, operating what is known as the Royle Coal Mine, is owned and controlled by Harry and Fred J. Hamilton, men of long experience in the mining business. This mine, which had been opened by Royle Brothers of Hilliard, in 1903, was taken over in 1905 by a partnership firm, consisting of H. S. Miller, Fred Rowe, and Harry and Fred J. Hamilton. A stock company was organized with a capital stock of $30,000, and was given the name of the Mutual Coal Company, it being now owned by the two Hamiltons, who purchased the interests of their partners. The business of this concern has thrived through judicious management and the excellence of its product, and their present output of about 300 tons per day will soon be enlarged to about 500 tons. The mining is done by the compressed air process, and employment is given to a force of ninety men. This company is operating at Argentine, in Washington Township, and has shipping facilities through the Hilliard branch of the Bessemer Railroad.

ALBERT W. SMITH, a prosperous agriculturist, of West Liberty Borough, Brady Township, Butler County, Penna., was born on his father's present farm of 133 acres, June 16, 1868, son of John B. and Catherine (Croll) Smith. He is a great-grandson of Elisha Smith, who was born and reared in New Jersey and who was a ship carpenter by trade. Elisha married Rebecca Bowen, August 17, 1778, and among their children were Enoch, Ruth, Anne, Daniel, and Dan. Daniel died in infancy. Dan, who came from New Jersey to Butler County with the rest of the family in 1807, married Rebecca Boston. They had eleven children, namely: Elizabeth, Hannah, Rebecca A., Ruth, Alzira, Kate, Sarah, Margaret, John B., Emaline and Mary.

John B. Smith, son of Dan and father of the subject of this sketch, married Catherine S. Croll and is now a prominent farmer in West Liberty Borough, Brady Township. He and his wife were the parents of four children—Mary, deceased; Albert W., whose name appears at the head of this article; Annie L., wife of Thomas A. Hines; and Clara L., wife of W. L. Morrow.

Albert W. Smith received a thorough training in agricultural work and is in every respect a practical farmer, intelligent and progressive. He lives in a fine brick residence, on his father's farm. The farm when first settled was in what was then Slippery Rock Township, the first settler thereon being Enoch Smith, son of Elisha Smith above mentioned, who occupied the place as early as 1805. Coming to the locality in 1805 he stayed here one year, then went back to his home in Deerfield, N. J. He returned with his sister Ruth in the spring of 1806 and stayed here until the fall. They then returned to New Jersey, but in 1807 they came back to this locality and took up their residence on this farm with the other members of the family.

Albert W. Smith was married, May 21, 1890, to Mary E. McConnell, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Bennett) McConnell. They have seven children, namely: Ella L., Elizabeth R., Annie L., John A., Alton D. B., Amy R., and Paul S. Mr. Smith is a member of the M. E. church, and fraternally he belongs to the Junior Order of United American Mechanics, Slippery Rock, No. 350.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM T. MARTIN

REV. JOHN A. KRIBBS, the very competent superintendent of The Orphans' Home and Farm School, at Zelenople, Pennsylvania, has given thirty years of his life to this institution, which is conducted under the Board of Managers of the Institution of Protestant Deaconesses of Pennsylvania. Mr. Kribbs has long been a minister of the Evangelical Lutheran Church. He was born in Clarion County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Capt. George and Susanna Kribbs.

Mr. Kribbs spent his boyhood on his father's farm in Clarion County. In 1857 he became a student in the academy at Zelenople, which had been opened by Rev. Dr. W. A. Passavant, D. D., and Rev. G. Bassler, where he was under the instruction of Prof. Josiah Titzel. Following this academic training, Mr. Kribbs taught school at various places and very acceptably. In the spring of 1862 he returned to Clarion County and assisted in recruiting a company for service in the Federal army. This company went to the front in August, 1862, with John A. Kribbs as its first sergeant and he continued in that rank until after the battle of Fredericksburg, in December of that year, when his gallantry procured his promotion to the first lieutenantcy of Company G, One Hundred Fifty-fifth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, Fifth Army Corps, and in that capacity he served until the close of the Rebellion and cessation of hostilities. Mr. Kribbs commended this Company the greater part of the time and participated in all the great battles fought by the Army of the Potomac, with two exceptions, from August, 1862, until the close of the war.

To name them recalls the historic names so familiar at one time in even the most secluded sections of our now great and united country: Antietam, Fredericksburg, Gettysburg, the Wilderness, Spottsylvania Court House, North Anna River, Cold Harbor, Petersburg, Weldon Railroad, Prebles Farm and Hatchers' Run.

He was with his company in the wonderful review of the tattered but victorious troops that took place at Washington, after the end of the long and cruel war and was mustered out of the service on June 9, 1865, and returned to his home in Clarion County. He had gone out with ninety-three men, he came home with twenty-eight and all of these twenty-eight had been wounded, except five.

In September of the same year Mr. Kribbs became a student in the Lutheran Theological Seminary, at Philadelphia, where he remained until his graduation in June, 1868. In the latter part of the same month he took charge of a mission church at Kittanning and served that congregation for ten years, acceptably and successfully. In April, 1878, he resigned that charge and accepted the pastorate of two congregations and also the directorship of the Orphans' Home, at Zelenople, Pa.

The Zelenople Orphanage was founded at Pittsburg in 1852, and was brought to Zelenople in 1854. Since 1878 Mr. Kribbs assumed the full directorate and has devoted thirty years of his life to this work of mercy. The annual enrollment is from seventy-five to ninety orphans and at the present writing (1908) there are eighty-four children in the Home receiving the benefits of Christian care and training. In this great beneficent work Mr. Kribbs is admirably assisted by his estimable wife, to whom he was married in 1872. She was formerly Miss Margaret A. Dinwiddie of Philadelphia, Pa.

WILLIAM T. MARTIN, retired farmer and representative citizen of Penn Township, residing on his valuable farms of 120 acres, on which he has ten producing oil wells, was born September 9, 1851, in Connoquenessing Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of James and Margaret (Anderson) Martin.

The father of Mr. Martin was born also in Connoquenessing Township, in 1818, and died in 1892. In 1865 he bought what was known as the Wise farm, in Penn Township, and there he resided until his death. He married Margaret Anderson and they had eight children, namely: Alice, wife of Samuel Dunbar, of Pittsburg; William T.; Benton, O., of Allegheny County; Jennie, wife of Albert Wible, of Penn Township; Margaret, wife of Albert Starr, of Penn Township; Robert H., of Allegheny City; Agnes, wife of Judson Klingensmith, of Penn Township; and Frank C., of Cleveland, Ohio.

The grandfather of Mr. Martin was Robert Martin, who came with his parents from Ireland in 1801 and settled in what is now Connoquenessing Township, Butler County. He subsequently took part in the War of 1812 and was called Captain Martin on account of his rank as a member of the One Hundred and Thirty-eighth Regiment Penna. Militia. He served as a justice of the peace for nearly forty years and was county auditor and county commissioner. He died in 1847. In 1808 he married Keziah McClure, who died in 1843.

William T. Martin was twelve years old when his parents moved to his present farm and has continued here ever since and until within three years, carried on extensive farming and stockraising. His land has been found rich in oil and sixteen wells have been drilled, ten of these being producers at present, as mentioned above.

Mr. Martin married Elizabeth Anderson, who died in 1905, aged forty-five years. She was a daughter of James D. Anderson, an old settler. Mrs. Martin was a consistent member of the Middlesex Presbyterian Church. She was known and beloved by a wide circle. In politics, Mr. Martin is a Democrat but he takes no very active interest. He has served as justice of the peace but has accepted no other public office. Since the death of Mrs. Martin he has not been actively engaged in farming. His winters are spent in travel and he has visited many pleasant sections, especially through the South.

JOHN F. MILLER, a well known citizen of Venango Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, where he owns a valuable property of 100 acres, was born on his present farm on March 25, 1858. He is a son of James E., Jr., and Susanna (Durnell) Miller, and is a grandson of James E. Miller, Sr.

James E. Miller, Sr., was united in marriage with Isabelle Cochran, a daughter of Thomas Cochran of Mercer County, Pennsylvania, and they reared the following family: Robert, who married a Miss Galloway; Jane, who married Lycurgus Abel, both now deceased; William Franklin, who married Ellen Kirkton of Ohio; Isabelle, wife of John Parker of Bellaire, Ohio; Thomas, deceased; Elizabeth, deceased; John, deceased; Eliza, deceased; and James E., Jr.

James E. Miller, Jr., married Susanna Durnell, a daughter of John Durnell of Butler County, and they had the following offspring: Sarah, wife of T. A. Crawford of Grove City, by whom she has two daughters—Blanche and Mazie B.; John Franklin, subject of this record; James Erskin, who married Margaret Hulings, a daughter of Alfred Hulings of Allegheny Township, and has two daughters—Josie and Susan; Elizabeth, who married Harper Eakin of the state of Washington, by whom she has three children—Frank, Twilla and Morna; Ella J., who lives at Franklin; Lulu, wife of C. J. Weigand of Trenton, New Jersey, by whom she has three sons—James, Robert and Charles; Ida, who is the wife of William Jamison of Foxburg; and Robert H., who married Lulu Bovard, a daughter of John Bovard, and has a daughter, Miss Rachel.

ship, and later the school conducted by I. C. Kettler in the Scrubgrass Church. He then assisted his father on the homestead, which is located one and one half miles north of Eau Claire, until after his marriage when he went to work as a pumper in the oil fields. He continued in the oil fields for ten years, then worked as a huckster for six years, gathering produce which he shipped in cars to Pittsburg. He was very successful in this work and at the end of the time mentioned purchased thirty acres of the old homestead. This he subsequently sold to O. H. Tebay, then bought the remainder of the homestead of his father. He has a rich farm of 100 acres, fifty of which is under cultivation. He has nine good producing oil and gas wells, and there are two veins of coal underlying the land, one of them a three-foot vein which was opened some years ago but is not now being worked. He has a fine grove of Hard Maples which produce from seventy-five to 150 gallons of maple syrup annually.

On December 28, 1881, Mr. Miller was joined in marriage with Miss Carrie E. Jamison, a daughter of George S. Jamison of Venango Township, and they became parents of the following children: Blanche Gertrude, a teacher in the schools at Grove City; Clare A., who is also teaching school; George Floyd, who is a member of the class of 1909 in Eau Claire Academy; Lulu Belle; James Erskin; and Frank Dewitt. Politically, he is a member of the Democratic party, and has filled various township offices, among them that of school director and auditor. He is an elder in the Scrubgrass Presbyterian church, of which he has been a member for twenty-nine years. He served three terms as superintendent of the Sabbath School, and his daughter, Miss Gertrude, sings in the church choir.

HENRY W. HENSHAW, a respected citizen of Zelenople, Butler County, Pennsylvania, has been a lifelong resident of this county, making his home at Prospect, prior to locating where he now lives, in 1898. He is employed at the pattern filing trade and is a very successful business man. Mr. Henshaw was born in Prospect, August 19, 1855, and is a son of Joseph and Susanna (Dunn) Henshaw, and a grandson of Jacob Henshaw.

Jacob Henshaw, the grandfather, came from east of the Alleghany Mountains to Butler County at a very early period and first located at Harmony. He soon after moved to Prospect and became the owner of a good farm in Franklin Township. He died at the home of a son-in-law, George Albert, in 1864, at the advanced age of eighty-eight years.

Joseph Henshaw was born in Prospect on July 2, 1824, and throughout his entire business career followed the business of a shoemaker. He was a man of the brightest intellect and enjoyed quite a prestige as a mathematician. He compiled a mathematical compendium, which is now a treasured possession of his son, Henry W. His death occurred on January 7, 1880. He was married to Susan Jane Dunn, who was born September 28, 1831, and died in 1894. They were parents of the following children: William Franklin, whose death occurred in 1895; Marcia, who died August 24, 1854, while in infancy; Henry W.; Susanna, wife of Samuel Crawford of Shamokin; Dora, who is the wife of Henry Shriber and resides at Allegheny; Drusilla, who died in July, 1892, and was the wife of William L. Albert; Charles, who died January 12, 1862, in childhood; one who died unnamed; Jacob, whose death occurred May 14, 1877; Jefferson, a marble cutter by trade, who resides at Prospect; and Jennie. Religiously, Mrs. Henshaw was a member of the Lutheran church.

Henry W. Henshaw attended the common schools at Prospect, and at an early age learned the trade of a shoemaker under his father, in whose shop he worked for eight years. He then worked as a journeyman shoemaker at different points until his marriage. He continued to live in Prospect and work at his trade until 1898, when on November 18, he removed to Zelenople. There he continued at his trade for about four years, then turned his energies to pattern filing. Of a mechanical turn of mind, it was with little difficulty he mastered this trade, at which he has since worked. During the past six years he has maintained his residence on West Mill Street.

September 23, 1882, Mr. Henshaw was united in marriage with Miss Emma Lutz, a daughter of William Lutz, and she died April 21, 1884, leaving one daughter, Miss Mabel. He formed a second marital union on November 18, 1885, with Miss Eva Dunn, a daughter of Robert and Mary (Covert) Dunn of Fairview, and they have two children, Emma and Joseph. Emma Henshaw married Clyde Ramsey of Evans City, who is a son of Samuel Ramsey. Fraternally, the subject of this sketch is a member of Rustic Lodge No. 882, I. O. O. F., at Prospect; and Modern Woodmen at Zelenople. Politically, he is a Democrat. In religious attachment he and his wife are members of the Zelenople Presbyterian Church.

HON. WILLIAM M. KENNEDY, formerly mayor of the city of Butler, and for many years one of its foremost men, was born January 1, 1858, in Summit Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of John D and Jean N. (Maxwell) Kennedy.

The Kennedy family was established in Butler County by the great-grandfather of William M., who came from the North of Ireland to the United States. James Kennedy, the grandfather, was born in Butler County, and his son, John D., father of William M., was born in Clearfield Township, Butler County, in 1820 and died in 1902. He served four years in the Civil War and for ten months was confined in Andersonville and Libby Prisons, where he contracted scurvy and from this disease he was a sufferer until the end of his life. He was a member of the One Hundred Third Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and he participated in twenty-seven battles. On all these fields he faced danger with courage and escaped injury, only to fall a victim to cruelty that amounted to inhumanity. He married Jean N. Maxwell, who was born in Summit Township, Butler County, during the time her father, Abraham Maxwell, was serving as sheriff.

William M. Kennedy was educated in the public schools and at Witherspoon Institute, after which he became interested in horses and for years was an extensive dealer. He has also been connected with the oil industry. He has always been an active citizen and has taken part in politics, and in 1903 he was elected mayor of Butler. He served for three years in this office and it was during this period that the great typhoid fever epidemic visited this city. In that time of dread, danger and sorrow, he proved himself a man of resource and handled the situation and met the grave responsibilities in a way that endeared him to his fellow citizens and cemented their confidence.

Mr. Kennedy was married on August 29, 1888, to Miss Elmira P. Hays, a daughter of Edward W. Hays, who in pioneer days ran a stage from Washington to Erie and at one time had in commission as many as 800 horses. Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy have three children, Jean, Belle and John. Mr. Kennedy is affiliated with the Knights of Pythias, the Eagles and the Woodmen of the World.

ROBERT MORRIS WADE is a prosperous farmer of Venango Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is the owner of a fine farm of 100 acres, located one and a quarter miles south of the borough of Eau Claire. He was born in Washington Township, Butler County, January 21, 1860, and is a son of Isaac, Jr., and Mary (Hannah) Wade, and a grandson of Isaac Wade.

Isaac Wade, Jr., was a soldier in the Union Army and lost his life during the Civil War. He married Mary Hannah, a daughter of Robert Hannah of Washington Township, and the following children were born to them: Elizabeth, who had six children as a result of her union with Lewis Korona—Manuel, Mary, Elizabeth, Annie, Louisa and Lewis; Robert M., subject of this sketch; Isaac H., deceased; and one who died in infancy. After the death of Lewis Korona, Elizabeth Wade Korona married John Hein. The mother of this family, after the demise of Isaac Wade, formed a union with Robert Wade, brother of her first husband, and they had three children—Mifflin, Clarinda and Isaac.

Robert Morris Wade first attended school at Annisville, in his native township, and assisted in the work upon the farm. He later worked at lumbering in the woods about Bear Lake, Michigan, for some time, but finally returned to Butler County, Pennsylvania. Here he purchased a farm of sixty-six acres of the Sloan heirs in Venango Township, which he owned for a time and then sold to the Lake Trade Coal Company. He next purchased the one hundred acre tract on which he now lives from M. J. Kuhn of Grove City, the latter having obtained it from Jacob Frantz. Mr. Wade has made most of the improvements on the place and built all of the buildings. He has eighty acres in tillable shape and about twenty acres of timberland.

January 10, 1882, Robert M. Wade was married to Louise Sloan, a daughter of Samuel Sloan, and they became parents of the following children: Minnie, who married Robert Wood, a son of James Wood of Hilliard, and has a daughter, Gladys; Harry; John; Philip; Alonzo; Finley; Curtis; and Thomas. Religiously, they are attendants at the Methodist Episcopal Church of Eau Claire. Mr. Wade is a Republican in politics, and was elected road supervisor and school director, but declined to serve. Fraternally, he is a member of Lawrenceburg Lodge, No. 782, I. O. O. F., at Parkers Landing, and served as representative at the grand lodge at Scranton.

ELLSWORTH MILLER, president of the Butler city council, is head bookkeeper of the W. S. Wick Lumber Company and is one of Butler's best known citizens. He was born in 1862, in Center Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania. His father, Samuel Miller, was born in Butler County in 1820, and was a son of Michael Miller, who was one of the early settlers of the county.

Although both his grandfather and father were agriculturists, and he was reared on a farm, Ellsworth Miller chose another calling. After completing his education in the public schools and at West Sunbury Academy he learned telegraphy and went into railroad work and for three years was agent at Jamisonville, Pennsylvania, and relief agent for the road which was then the Pittsburg, Shenango & Lake Erie Railroad. He was then promoted to the position of freight agent for the Bessemer & Lake Erie Railroad Company at Butler, Pennsylvania, and was also paymaster during the construction of the line from Butler to North Bessemer, Pennsylvania. He remained with the Bessemer & Lake Erie at Butler for sixteen years. He then accepted the position he now fills with the W. S. Wick Lumber Company. He has been a resident of Butler for twenty years and has taken an active interest in local affairs. He was chosen a member of the city council on account of his eminent fitness for the position and is serving in his third term and is president of this important body. Mr. Miller's business judgment has been of great value to his fellow citizens and they very generally recognize the fact.

In 1888, Mr. Miller was married to Miss Amy Frances Wick, of Oil City, Pennsylvania, and they have four children: Mary Florence, who is a teacher in the public schools; and Pauline Frances, Clinton Reddick, and Milton Ellsworth. Mr. Miller and family belong to Grace Lutheran Church. He is a member of the Protected Home Circle, and the Woodmen of the World, being head manager of the latter for six years for the states of Ohio, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

W. E. GAMBLE, a well known resident of Allegheny Township, Butler County, Penna., has oil interests in various parts of the country, and has been a producer for more than a quarter of a century. He is also engaged in agricultural pursuits in this township, where he has been located since 1876. He was born in Franklin county, Penna., March 1, 1856, and is a son of James F. and Bethsheba M. (Morrow) Gamble, both natives of Franklin County. The Gamble family is an old and respected one in that county.

W. E. Gamble was reared to maturity in his native community and there received his educational training in the public schools. For more than thirty years he has been more or less identified with the oil industry, and is one of the pioneers of the Allegheny Township oil fields, where he has been a producer for more than thirty years. He has interests in the Byron Center oil fields, and also in the fields of Lawrence and Richland Counties in Illinois. He has been a school director in Allegheny Township for a number of years, and has served as secretary of the board. He is independent in politics, voting for the man without regard to his party affiliations.

Mr. Gamble was united in marriage with Miss Sarah Parton of Mercer County, Penna., and five children were born to them: Herbert B., of East Liberty, Ohio, who married Miss Anna Smith; Mervin C. of Marion, Indiana, who married Pearl Manna and has one daughter, Mildred May; Major C. of Allegheny Township; Paul E., also of Allegheny Township; and Alice, who lives at home with her parents. Religiously, Mr. Gamble and his family are members of the Allegheny Presbyterian Church. Fraternally, he is a member of the Knights of the Maccabees at Parker.

JOHN McKAIN, a well known citizen and substantial retired farmer of Venango Township, Butler County, was born in 1832, in Ireland, and is a son of Samuel and Nancy (Bovard) McKain.

The parents of Mr. McKain came to America with their children and lived first at Philadelphia and later came to Washington Township, Butler County. They had the following children: Sarah, who married George Haggarty, of Emlenton, Penna.; Jane, who married Joseph Henderson, of Philadelphia, had two children, Annie and Mary; James, who married Emma Richey, daughter of James Richey, of Venango County, had seven children—Samuel, Jennie, Sarah, Rebecca, John, William and Frank; Catherine, who married David McKain, of Washington, Penna., had four children—George, Annie, Louisa and James; and John.

After his parents established themselves in Philadelphia, John McKain attended school and then worked in a brick-yard there until he accompanied his father to Washington Township, Butler County. In 1858 he bought a farm of 132 acres in Venango Township, Butler County, and after clearing it he returned to Philadelphia, where he conducted a brick-yard of his own. He was married there in 1861 and then returned to his Butler County land, on which he has resided ever since. Mr. McKain has sold all of his farm except fifty-two acres, to his son Silas. Mr. McKain did all the improving on the land and developed it into a valuable property. He was a prominent citizen in his neighborhood during his active years, took a deep interest in public matters and on the Democratic ticket was elected township auditor and school director, serving for three years in the former office and for twelve years in the latter. He is one of the leading members of the Eau Claire Methodist Episcopal Church, of which he has been trustee and steward for thirty years and his seat in the sanctuary is seldom vacant, although he has to drive two miles from his farm to the village.

Mr. McKain was married in August, 1861, to Miss Ellen Hoffman, a daughter of Samuel Hoffman, of Cape May, New Jersey, and they have had the following children: James, who married Catherine Pringle, a daughter of Joseph Pringle, of Dubois, Penna.; John, who married Martha Rodgers, has five children—Vala, Daniel, Margaret, Joseph and Martha; Annie, who married Henry Custard, of Rimersburg, Clarion County, has three sons—John, Joseph and George; Samuel, who married Elizabeth Montgomery, daughter of Henry Montgomery, has seven children—Joseph, Helen, Adeline, Mary, Walter, Julia and Silas; Isaiah P., who married Mary Sloan, daughter of Thomas Sloan, of Venango Township; David, who married Dora Melvin, has one daughter, Hazel; Sarah, who married George Schmuck, of Emlenton, Penna., has seven children—Elizabeth A., George C., Helen Marie, Paul Silas, Grace, Marie and an infant; Silas, who married Margaret A. Jones, daughter of John Jones, of Birdville, Penna.; and Joseph, who resides at home.

The coal bank of the McKain Bros. Coal Company of Venango Township is situated about one and one-half miles north of Hilliards. This coal bank was first opened by James Higgins, who sold it to M. F. Mizner, of Erie, Penna., who sold it to the McKain Bros. The mine yields under present working about 2,500 bushels of coal in a nine-hour day.

ALFRED ZEIGLER, a representative citizen of Mars, Butler County, where he is engaged in dealing in hardware and roofing, was born in the old residence standing on the homestead farm in Jackson Township, this county, not far from Evans City, on November 17, 1864, and is a son of Abraham M. and Sarah (Mateer) Zeigler.

The Zeigler family of Butler County originated in Germany, but it has been established in Pennsylvania ever since the death of the great-grandfather of the subject of the sketch—Jacob Zeigler—who came from Zeiglerville, Montgomery County, Penna., to Butler County and bought a large tract of land in the vicinity of Harmony. His three sons inherited this land, one of them being David, who was born in Butler County and spent his life near Harmony. David Zeigler had twelve children, seven of whom died when young. The five whose names have been preserved were G. M. Zeigler, Abraham M., Henry, David, and Elizabeth. The last mentioned became the wife of Lewis Sheever.

Abraham M. Zeigler, father of Alfred, was born on the farm at Harmony, and spent his entire life in that vicinity. He married Sarah Mateer, who was a native of Allegheny County, Penna., and who still survives. His death occurred February 2, 1906. The family numbered twelve children, namely: Diodoris, Theodore, Frank, Alfred, Clark, Grant, David, Ferdinand, Edward, Russell, Melzena and Yetta.

Alfred Zeigler spent his boyhood on the home farm, attending the public schools during the winter season until he was eighteen years old, when he taught his first term of school. Meeting with success in this occupation, he subsequently taught three terms in Penn Township and Harmony, and finally became principal of the Evans City school. For several years following he was employed in the store of George Ifft & Son, at Evans City; then for two years and a half he was engaged in drilling and dressing tools in the oil fields. In the spring of 1891 he came to Mars, where he opened a small roofing and tin shop. The enterprise proving successful, he added hardware, and after conducting the establishment for ten years, he found it necessary to secure larger quarters, and accordingly moved into his own two-story brick block on Main Street, which he had erected in 1901. Here he carries a complete stock of hardware, stoves, builders' supplies, slate roofing, and other material in this line. He is also president of the Mars Brick and Tile Company. His business enterprise, united with honest methods, have brought him his present prosperity.

Mr. Zeigler is a Democrat in politics. He was one of the original organizers of the borough of Mars, was elected president of the first borough council, and subsequently served as president and treasurer of the school board. He belongs to several fraternal organizations at Mars, including the Maccabees, the Modern Woodmen, and the Knights of Pythias. In 1891 Mr. Zeigler married Rose F. Crum, a daughter of Amos Crum. They have two children—Floyd and Lucille.

WILLIAM T. FREEHLING, a member of the well known firm of Krause & Freehling, general merchants and lumber dealers of Marwood, Winfield Township, was born August 17, 1866, son of John G. and Anna (Miller) Freehling. His parental grandfather Henry Freehling, was born in Germany and came to this country at an early date, being one of the first settlers in Butler County, Pennsylvania.

The subject of this sketch was educated in the common schools of Butler County, and in the year 1887 he began industrial life as a clerk in the general store of Louis Weidhos, remaining there until November, 1896. He and his father-in-law, Robert Krause, then purchased the entire business and goodwill and have since conducted the store under the firm name of Krause & Freehling. They have a large and varied stock of hardware, furniture, wagons, buggies, farming implements, lumber, brick, lime, cement, plaster, sewer pipe, etc., and they have a large trade among the farmers and other residents of this section, having gained a reputation for fair and straightforward dealing that has done much to increase their business.

Mr. Freehling was married, in 1893, to Anna E. Krause, a daughter of Robert and Maria (Camphire) Krause, and into their household have been born four children, Bessie M., R. LeRoy, Florence I., and J. Roland, all of whom promise to be worthy and useful members of society.

Mr. Freehling is a member of Saxonia Lodge, No. 496, I. O. O. F., and religiously a member of the English Lutheran Church.

LEONARD FREDERICK WICK, whose valuable farm of ninety acres is situated in Connoquenessing Township, is a representative citizen of this section and one of the successful agriculturists. He was born December 16, 1851, in Donegal Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Conrad and Sophia (Hetzel) Wick.

The father of Mr. Wick was born in Germany and was brought to America by his parents who settled first at Harmony and then moved into Donegal Township. He was a stone-mason by trade and he also engaged in farming, owning a large property. He was married three times, his last wife being Sophia Hetzel. Her father was born in Germany. To this marriage five children were born, namely: Elizabeth, deceased, who was the wife of John Cress; Leonard F.; Adam, who lives in Connoquenessing Township; Jacob, who died in Missouri; and Mollie, who is the wife of Hartman Endress, of New Brighton. Conrad Wick and wife were members of the Lutheran Church. In 1870 they settled on the farm in Connoquenessing Township, a part of which their son Leonard F. now owns.

Leonard F. Wick was nineteen years old when he accompanied his parents to Connoquenessing Township and he has resided here ever since. He owns ninety acres of the original farm and cultivates seventy acres, raising corn, oats, wheat, hay, potatoes and buckwheat. He keeps first class livestock, has ten head of cattle and the same number of hogs. In the early winter seasons he does considerable butchering for his neighbors. In politics, Mr. Wick is a Republican but he is not enough interested to be willing to take on himself the cares of any office.

Mr. Wick married Miss Emma Rea, a daughter of Samuel Rea, of Penn Township, Butler County, and they have one daughter, Hazel, who resides with her parents. Mr. Wick and family belong to St. John's Reformed Church. He is a quiet, industrious, reliable citizen and is held in esteem by all who know him.

JAMES HALL TEBAY, a well known citizen of Butler, Penna., who has been employed in the United States Revenue service since 1894, for many years gave his attention to educational affairs, having charge of various schools in Butler County. He was born November 28, 1847, in Muddy Creek Township, this county, and is a son of Joseph and Jane C. (McKee) Tebay.

Mr. Tebay's paternal grandfather was William Tebay, a native of England, who came to this country at an early date, locating first in the eastern part of Pennsylvania, but later crossing the mountains and settling in the valley of Muddy Creek, Butler County. There were cross roads on the land where William located and they became known as the Tebay Cross Roads. A clearing was made near the spring, by which a fine willow tree stood, and here a log house was erected, but another building was later built nearer the cross roads. Here William Tebay was engaged in farming until his death. He and his wife are both buried at Mountville, Lawrence County. They were the parents of eight children, as follows: Robert, who lived and died on part of the homestead farm in Butler County; William, who spent substantially his entire life in Mercer County, his descendants being now in the West; Isaac, who resided in Ohio, opposite Sistersville, West Virginia, and some of whose descendants still reside in that locality, while others have gone West; John, who always resided in Muddy Creek Township, who was a teacher, and widely recognized as an extremely able mathematician; Joseph, father of the subject of this sketch; Isabella, whose husband, Christopher Russel, died near Muddy Creek, her death occurring at the home of Mrs. Alexander Balph of New Castle; Hannab, who married Archie McGown, who died on his farm in Muddy Creek Township (she afterwards moved with her family to the West, her death occurring in Chicago, where she was buried); and Mary, who married Isaac Stephenson and resided in Butler County all her life.

The maternal grandfather of the subject of this sketch was Richard McKee, who came to the United States in 1805 from County Antrim, Ireland. He located on a tract of land in Pleasant Valley, Muddy Creek Township, and both he and his wife are buried at Portersville. Their children were as follows: Samuel, who moved to a farm in Mercer County, where he died; David, who resided all his life on the old homestead in Pleasant Valley, where his descendants still live; Jane C., who became the wife of Joseph Tebay and the mother of the subject of this sketch; Isabella, whose death occurred in Ohio and who married Isaac Tebay; Eliza, who married Samuel Kelly and resided for many years in Slippery Rock on a large farm, which they later sold, passing the remainder of their lives on a farm which they purchased near Butler, where they are buried; Mary, who married David McConnell and resided all her life on the homestead near Butler in Butler Township and whose son James McConnell now resides on the farm; Catherine, who married David Smith, a wagonmaker, and resided at Enon Valley, Lawrence County; Martha, who married James Gardner and resided at North Washington, Butler County (her husband went to California in company with Edward Frazier and never returned); and Margaret, who became the wife of John M. Shira, and resides in Parker Township near the village of Annisville.

Joseph Tebay, father of James Hall Tebay, was born in Westmoreland County, England, and came to this country with his parents when twelve years of age. He was reared on his father's farm in Muddy Creek Township and was there engaged in farming all his life. He married Jane C. McKee and their children were William D., Catherine McKee, Matilda, Eliza J., Amanda, Margaret, and James Hall.

William D. Tebay, who is now deceased, was a farmer residing on the old Tebay homestead; he married Margaret McGown. Catherine McKee Tebay married John Douthett and moved to Calaveros County, California, where her husband died and was buried at Angel's Camp. She subsequently married Samuel Abbott, who came here from Connecticut. Her death took place in Oakland, where she is buried in Greenwood Cemetery. Matilda became the wife of James Jones of Mercer County, where they spent the rest of their lives. She has a son, an officer in the army, who has been twice to the Philippine Islands. Eliza J. married Henry A. Black of Chicago, Ill. Amanda, who died in her twenty-sixth year, was unmarried. Margaret married M. J. McCullough and now resides in Wilksburg, Penna.

James Hall Tebay acquired his early educational training in the common schools of Muddy Creek Township, and at a private school in Portersville, besides taking a course at the old Witherspoon Institute of Butler. After finishing his studies he was engaged in farming and teaching for some years. In the fall of 1875 he was elected to the office of prothonotary, in which he served for three years. He then resumed teaching, first in Franklin Township, afterwards spending three years at Zelenople, where he had charge of the schools from 1887 to 1889, being principal at the time of the first graduation. During the year 1890 he was principal of the schools at Harmony. While acting as principal of the schools Mr. Tebay was elected justice of the peace, and served as such for a period of five years, during which time he was also engaged in writing oil leases. In the spring of 1894 he received an appointment in the United States Revenue service in which he has since been actively engaged. He was at one time a registered law student, but has never entered actively into the profession. He has always lived in Butler County, having been a resident of Muddy Creek Township, Butler, Prospect, and Zelenople, and at the present time he travels between different points in the Twenty-third Internal Revenue District.

In 1870 Mr. Tebay was united in marriage with Anna Eliza McCullough, a daughter of Matthew and Fanny Jane (Shannon) McCullough. The children of this marriage are as follows: Lillian E., wife of C. S. Passavant of Zelenople; Fanny B., a teacher in the Butler public schools; Herschel M., who has been engaged in educational work as school principal in Indiana; and Grace, who after graduating from the Zelenople High School and the Butler Business College, passed the civil service examination of the city department of Pittsburg, but is at present in the employ of a large contracting company of that city. Mrs. Tebay, whose death occurred October 3, 1905, was a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Butler, to which Mr. Tebay also belongs. In politics he is a staunch Democrat, believing thoroughly in the principles upheld by Jackson, Jefferson and Bryan, and keeps closely in touch with public affairs. He has always been greatly opposed to the present National Banking system, as established and defined by the Sherman act, believing it to be a flagrant example of class legislation that should be repudiated by the American people.

ROBERT STERLING IRWIN, although just entering middle life, is a man of wide experience in business affairs, and has been prominently identified with the affairs of Forward Township, Butler County, Penna. He was born in Pittsburg, September 9, 1874, but comes of an old family of Butler County. He is a son of John A. and Margaret F. (Calvin) Irwin, and a grandson of Washington Irwin, who was an early resident of Forward Township and lived on the home farm there at the time of his death.

John A. Irwin was born in Cadiz, Ohio, and for many years followed the business of book binding in various parts of the country. He was located at Memphis, Tennessee, at the time Lincoln first ran for president, and cast one of the two votes recorded for him in that city, with the result that his house and shop were stormed and his property destroyed, entailing a loss of some $7,000. He was left without a cent in the world, and immediately repaired to the north, locating at Pittsburg where he made a fresh start in life. He was a man of indomitable will power and unusual ability, and soon had his affairs in a good healthy state. In 1878, he located in Butler County, Pennsylvania, and lived on the old home farm the remainder of his days, dying on April 16, 1901, at the age of sixty-nine years. He was a staunch Republican in politics, and although frequently importuned to accept of public office, steadfastly refused. He was united in marriage with Margaret F. Calvin, who was born in the Mountains of Cambria County, Penna., her people at an early period being residents of Philadelphia. Six children were the offspring of their union: Orzila, wife of Charles Shaver; Sarah L., widow of Azure Reed; George W., deceased; Robert Sterling; Margaret F.; and William, deceased.

Robert Sterling Irwin was four years of age when brought by his parents to Forward Township, and he was there reared on the farm and attended the district schools. He subsequently completed a business course at West Sunbury. His educational advantages were exceedingly limited, but he is possessed of a superior education, gained through individual research and study. He started his business career at the early age of thirteen, and as working capital had $600 which he obtained on his individual note, which he afterward paid with the fruits of his toil. He entered the oil fields as teamster, and later took up contracting and drilling, running four strings of tools. He followed contracting successfully until 1906, and is still a producer. He has an undivided interest in the home farm of 133 acres in Forward Township, on which oil was developed. There are now eight wells on the farm, each of which averages five barrels per day.

Mr. Irwin is a broad-gauged, liberal-minded man, who has given much study to questions of importance to county and state. He has in the past given support to Republican principles, voting for McKinley and Roosevelt for president. A study of the temperance question has made him an avowed Prohibitionist, - on both moral and economic grounds. In 1906, he was made the candidate of that party for the State Legislature, but owing to the demands of his business he gave no time in making a canvass, letting the election go by default. He was again nominated for that office in 1908, and in support of his candidacy has advanced arguments showing that the saloon, prima facie affording relief to the tax payers through the license it pays, is in fact an additional burden to them through the increased cost of prosecutions in crimes directly attributable to drink. He advocates a local option law which will be effective in county and state, and his activity has won many supporters to the cause. He has never been in the field to buy votes, believing that he who buys a vote will also sell his own. At the close of the election he was shown to have received 1,268 votes more than four times the amount ever polled before. He is a man of excellent personal habits, never has used tobacco nor tasted liquor; he has been interested in the cause of Prohibition since he was a boy, having signed the pledge under Burwell, "the boy orator," in his youthful days. He has been a member of the Anti-Saloon League for more than ten years. He is at the present time serving his sixth years as a member of the school board, and during that time has visited the schools 250 times; he has ever been a friend to the cause of education, and has done much to improve the school system. At the Butler County Directors Institute, he was the only one of thirty directors from the county to be called upon to address the gathering.

June 4, 1895, Mr. Irwin was joined in marriage with Miss Ada Belle Jenkins, a daughter of Richard Jenkins, and they became parents of five children: Ruth E.; Rachel B.; Lois N.; Mary F.; and George W. In religious attachment they are members of the M. E. Church of Evans City, of which he has been treasurer since 1898

He has addressed the congregation from the pulpit on eight different occasions, being a speaker of unusual ability. Externally, he is a member of Evans City Lodge No. 817, I. O. O. F.

FRANCIS JOSEPH FORQUER was born in Venango Township October 4th, 1861. He is a son of Hugh and Katherin (Murrin) Forquer. The paternal grandfather of Mr. Forquer was John Forquer who was born in County Donegal, Ireland, in 1782, and died August 13th, 1867, in Donegal Township, Butler County, Penna. The paternal grandfather on his mother's side was Joseph Murrin, one of the original settlers of Venango Township and founders of Murrinsville.

Mr. Forquer attended the township's public schools until 1871 when the family moved to Loretto, Cambria County, Penna., where he resided and went to school until 1874. He then returned to Butler County and worked upon the farm of his uncle for a couple of years. He then went to Millerstown and worked for a cousin, driving team and farming. Millerstown at this time was having her big boom as an oil country. In 1877 he went to Pittsburg and went to work in The Adams Glass Factory to learn the trade and in 1878 was taken down with typhoid fever and had to give up and return home. He clerked on saw mills in Venango Township for a time and then entered the Clintonville Academy where he attended school for about a year. The gold fever was at its height in Colorado about this time and Mr. Forquer caught it and went West to Colorado where after a time spent in prospecting he was again a victim of sickness and had to remove to a lower altitude. He returned to Kansas City, Mo., where he secured a position with the Corrigau Street Car Company as chief engineer of a team of mules and a street car. He was appointed deputy county marshal by Con. Murphy, who was marshal of Jackson County, Mo. After serving in this capacity until Mr. Murphy went out of office he secured a position on the famous Kansas City Fire Department where he served for five years, resigning to engage in the real estate business which at that time was booming in the city.

Mr. Forquer was prominently identified with Democratic politics in city, county and state, he being one of the six state delegates from Missouri that founded the National Association of Democratic Clubs in Baltimore in 1888. Mr. Forquer being on the Resolutions Committee of that convention.

Later Mr. Forquer went to Montana where he engaged in mining and real estate; he was also interested in real estate in Salt Lake, Washington, Oregon, and California. He later returned to Kansas City and engaged in the cigar business for a time; then railroad ticket brokerage; then grain, stocks and bonds, and later came home to Venango Township where he was in time to enlist in Company F, 16th Regiment, N. G. P., for the Spanish-American war which he served through as a private with honor and distinction. After the war he returned to Venango Township, Butler County, Penna., where his father and mother were residing with a maiden aunt on the old Murrin homestead. Mr. Forquer's father and mother both died within two months of his return from the war, and he has resided with his maiden aunt who is in her eighty-third year.

Ever since Mr. Forquer has been superintendent for the St. Patrick Oil & Gas Company, a Pittsburg corporation, who operate a portion of the farm he resides on. Mr. Forquer is a Democrat, a Roman Catholic and a Moose.

LEWIS MARTSOLEF, whose splendid farm of 310 acres is situated along the Franklin Road, in Brady Township, is one of the substantial and representative citizens of this section and one of its most successful farmers and stockraisers. He was born March 19, 1857, in Center Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Henry and Gertrude (Miller) Martsolef.

Both parents of Mr. Martsolef were born in Germany and both came to America when young. Henry Martsolef grew to manhood and acquired land at Little Creek, in Connoquenessing Township, Butler County, which he later sold and bought the farm in Center Township where his family of twelve children were born. The mother of these children died March 28, 1874, and was survived many years by her husband, whose death occurred in September, 1907, when aged ninety-one years, at Butler, to which city he had retired.

Lewis Martsolef was reared on the home farm in Center Township and attended the neighborhood schools during boyhood. He has devoted himself entirely to farm pursuits, making a specialty for some years past of raising Shorthorn cattle. His fine herds bring high prices and he keeps as many as thirty-five head at one time. Following his marriage, Mr. Martsolef rented land first in Franklin Township, later in Clay, then Butler and Clay again, until 1889, when he bought the farm of 100 acres, which is now occupied by a son, and in 1898 he bought 130 acres more and several years later purchased an additional eighty acres. This is some of the finest land in the township and Mr. Martsolef has the best improved farm in this section. In 1900 he put up his fine residence and all his farm buildings are of substantial construction.

Mr. Martsolef married Miss Mary McKinnis, who was reared in Franklin Township, a daughter of Robert McKinnis, and they have had six children, one of whom died in infancy. Those living are: Etta, who married Daniel Ifft, of Franklin Township, has two children, Gladys and Olive; James H., residing on a part of his father's property, married Lizzie McBride and they have one son, John; Laura, who is the wife of Nicholas Ifft, of Franklin Township; Clara, and Florence at home. Mr. Martsof is a member of the beneficiary order of the Protected Home Circle. He takes no very active part in politics but has always done his part in public matters when called upon to contribute labor, means or influence.

DAVID J. SLOAN is a representative citizen of the borough of Eau Claire and has been a life long resident of Butler County, Pennsylvania. He was born in Venango Township, May 23, 1832, and is a son of David, Sr. and Rachel (McLaughlin) Sloan, and grandson of Samuel Sloan.

Samuel Sloan was the father of a large family of children, all of whom grew to maturity and became useful men and women. Their names follow: Samuel, who married Elizabeth Conn, daughter of Joseph Conn, and had two sons, Lyl and Perry; William, who married Jane Layton, a daughter of Enos Layton, and had five children—Bascom, Charles, Flora, Margaret and Eliza; John, who married Sarah Allabaugh and had two sons, Harvey and Samuel; James; David; Henry; Robert, who married Alice Hilliard; Joseph, who married Ellen Leslie, and had three children—George, Washington and Ephraim; Thomas, who married Sally Ann Cornelius; Andrew, who married Rachel Say; Jane, who became the wife of Thomas Jolly; Nancy, wife of Alexander Grant; and Betsy, wife of Samuel Sloan.

David Sloan, Sr., married Rachel McLaughlin and the following were the offspring of their union: Matthew; Samuel; Joseph; David J.; Jesse, who married Jane Stevenson; John; Jane; Elizabeth; Emeline; and Euphemia, who married David Sparks and has three children—John, Birdie and Minnie. Matthew Sloan married Valley Welch, and seven children were born to them: Levestone, Walter, Savoy, Orval, Horner, Anna Lena and Anna Belle. Samuel Sloan married Rebecca Davis and they had eight children: David, Edward, Gilbert, John, Sherril, Jennie, Ada and Bird. Joseph Sloan married Rosa Donaldson, by whom he had the following children: Edward, Stella, Nora, Louisa, Leonidas and Eva. John Sloan married Jane Morgan and the following were their offspring: Clyde, Winnie, Birdie, Carl, Wesley, Myrtle, Flora and Ruth. Jane Sloan became the wife of Josiah Holland, by whom she had the following: Austin, Plummer, John, Estella and Emma; Elizabeth Sloan married John Phitthan and they have four children: William, Ralph, Silvia and Carrie.

David J. Sloan first attended the common schools in Venango Township, and later the Six Points school in Allegheny Township, after which he gave his attention to farming on the old homestead in the latter township, located about three-fourths of a mile from Eau Claire. He next became proprietor of a general store and conducted the post-office for some years. In addition he was engaged in butchering for some years and sold cattle on the hoof, meeting with a high degree of success in his various business ventures. He finally sold the store, also his farm, and purchased three lots in the borough of Eau Claire. His property is well located and valuable, and each lot is well equipped with substantial buildings. He is a Republican in politics, and serves as constable of Eau Claire, and also as assessor.

Mr. Sloan was joined in marriage with Jane Bovard, a daughter of Robert Bovard of Eau Claire, and they too have a large family, namely: Ella, who married Fred Stalker of Pittsburg, by whom she has the following children: Earl, Plummer, Blanche, William, Edna, Dean and Ralph; Eda, who married Henry Rebold and has three children—William, Minnie and Jessie; William of Pittsburg, who married Jennie Shira and has a daughter, Dorothy; Alma, wife of Samuel Alexander, by whom she has five children—Myrtle, Cora, Joseph, Stanley and Alva; Franklin, who married Jennie Collinwood, daughter of Charles Collinwood of Evans City; Alva, who married Stella Harris; Olive, wife of Gerald McGuyre; and Ernest. Religiously, Mr. Sloan is a member of the M. E. Church at Eau Claire.

DAVID MANSFIELD THOMPSON, a farmer and oil producer, is a well known citizen of Fairview Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, where he has a fine farm of ninety-six acres. There are five producing wells on this farm which bring him a handsome revenue. He was born on the farm on which he now lives, July 5, 1856, and is a son of David and Isabella (Mansfield) Thompson. His grandfather, John Thompson, was one of the early settlers of Butler County.

David Thompson, father of the subject of this sketch, was born in Butler County, Pennsylvania, in 1827, and his death resulted from an accident with a threshing machine, December 19, 1874. He was united in marriage with Miss Isabella Mansfield, who was born in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, in 1831, and died in 1901. They were parents of the following children: Samantha J., who was the wife of Dr. W. L. DeWolfe of Butler, and died in November, 1908, leaving two sons; David M., subject of this record; John, who lives in Greenville, Clarion County, and who married Metta Hepler, by whom he has two children, Lois and Elizabeth; H. B., who was the fourth in order of birth; Clara E.; and L. N., who married Amanda Jamison (deceased), by whom he had a son, Paul. L. N. Thompson died in 1903, and his son continues to reside in Butler County.

David M. Thompson has been a life long resident of Butler County, and received his intellectual training in the public schools of Fairview Township. He engaged in teaming for a period of twenty-five years, but farming has been his principal occupation in life, although for some years he has been active in the oil business. He purchased the other heirs' interests in the home farm, on which he has made most of the improvements, having one of the best kept properties in the township. The farm originally included 100 acres, but since acquiring possession of it, he has disposed of four acres to the Allegheny Railroad Company.

Mr. Thomas was united in marriage with Miss Maria J. Glenn, the wedding occurring April 25, 1883, at her home near Sunbury, the Rev. S. W. Bean officiating. She is one of the following children who were born to her parents, William M. and Kathryn (McMahon) Glenn: Maria J.; Sarah and Dorcas, twins; Norman; Theodore; and Frank, who died at the age of fourteen years. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson became parents of the following, all of whom were born on the home farm: Erla B., wife of John Ellenberger, by whom she has a son, Howard; Hazel, who was born August 9, 1888, and died September 27, 1908; Frank, who is a teacher in the public schools of Butler County; Dean, who is in attendance at High School; Daisy; and Glenn. Religiously, Mr. Thompson and his wife are members of the United Presbyterian Church of Fairview. He has frequently been called upon to serve his community in official positions of trust, having been school director six years, tax collector one year, and township treasurer two years.

MRS. NANCY A. MARTIN. The Martin homestead farm of 160 acres, is one of the most valuable pieces of property in Venango Township and it is owned by Mrs. Nancy A. Martin, who has resided here since 1869. She is a lady universally esteemed and was born December 7, 1849, in Worth Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania. Her parents were William and Mary (Shafer) Craig.

The father of Mrs. Martin was born in Ireland and her mother in Butler County. They resided for many years in Worth Township, where they were among the respected members of society, and there Mrs. Martin was reared and obtained her schooling. She was married October 27, 1869, to the late Christopher Martin, who died January 22, 1887. Mr. and Mrs. Martin became parents of seven children, namely: Cora J., who resides at Norristown, Pennsylvania; Mary E., the wife of W. N. Milford (now deceased, on January 26, 1909), of Monroe County, Ohio; William E., who lives in Oklahoma; Bertha Irene, who is the wife of W. P. Cubbison, of Venango County; James A., who lives in Venango Township, Butler County; Nina P., who is the wife of J. M. Collar, of Allegheny Township and Christopher C., who resides in Venango Township.

Christopher Martin was born in Ireland and was a son of Robert and Jane (Patterson) Martin, who brought him to America when he was three years old. His parents came directly to Butler County and settled in Venango Township and Mrs. Martin's present farm is a part of the original estate secured by Robert Martin. He followed farming during his life and his son Christopher succeeded to the estate and continued to improve and cultivate through all his active life. Mr. Martin was an estimable man and was widely known. He took proper interest in everything that concerned the welfare of his neighborhood, but found his greatest pleasure in quietly pursuing an agricultural life and in looking after the rearing and educating of his children. In politics he was a Republican and when his party put him forward and elected him to local offices, he performed the duties of the same with the carefulness and regularity with which he managed his own affairs. He was a leading member and a trustee of the East End Presbyterian Church, to which Mrs. Martin also belongs. She is very active in the church missionary society and attends to many private charities. The Martin home has always been known as one of great hospitality.

MARKLE J. NEYMAN, general farmer and substantial citizen of Oakland Township, resides on the old John H. Neyman farm of 152 acres, of which he is one of the four heirs. It is situated five miles north of Butler, near the Millinger schoolhouse. Mr. Neyman was born in Jefferson County, Pennsylvania, November 17, 1845, and is a son of John H. and Isabell (Wilson) Neyman.

John H. Neyman followed lumbering in his early manhood, in Jefferson County, but returned to farming during the childhood of his son, Markle J. He took up his residence on his father's farm, the one now owned by his heirs, who had settled here many years ago. John Neyman, the grandfather, has long since passed away, and John H. Neyman, the father, was accidentally killed in April, 1881. The latter married Isabell Wilson, who still survives. They had six children, the present survivors being: Markle J.; Mary, who is the wife of John T. Montgomery, of Oakland; John G., a carpenter who is employed in Pittsburg; and Margaret, who lives at home. The two deceased are Sarah E., who died aged twenty-six years; and Clark, who died at the age of twelve.

Markle J. Neyman has operated the home farm for about thirty years. He attended the local schools in his boyhood, since which time he has given his attention to cultivating the home farm, and he has been numbered with the capable farmers of this township for many years. Mr. Neyman married Annie Fleeger, who was a daughter of Peter Fleeger and a sister of the late Captain Fleeger, of Butler. They had five children: Jessie Blanch, who is now deceased; Le Roy, George C.,

Mary Belle and Nelson. The beloved mother of this little family died in 1900. Mr. Neyman is a member and liberal supporter of the North Butler Presbyterian Church.

CHARLES BEACHEM, of Enclid, Butler County, Pennsylvania, has engaged in coal mining during a greater part of his active business career, but at the present time carries on farming on the tract of thirty-seven acres on which he lives. He is a native of England, the date of his birth being November 23, 1856, and is a son of Francis and Caroline (Hodges) Beachem, both of whom died in England.

Charles Beachem was reared to maturity in England, and from the time he was ten years of age worked in the mines. He was married at the age of twenty-two and immediately after moved to the United States, where he first located in Trumbull County, Ohio. He worked in the mines there for six years, then moved to Cherry Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, where he farmed and mined for a period of thirteen years. In 1897, he moved to Enclid, where he has since engaged in general farming.

Mr. Beachem was united in marriage with Miss Annie Swain, a daughter of Noah Swain, she also being a native of England; her death occurred during their residence in Cherry Township. The following children were born to them: Noah W., who is a widower and has four children—Charles, Kenneth, Noah and Geraldine; Francis Albert, who also has four children—Annie, Kermit, Francis, and Cecil Rhodes; Thomas; Florence; Carrie, who is the wife of I. W. Kimmel and has two children—Gerald Eugene and Charles Wilmer; Charles; and Hannah. Mr. Beachem is a man of the highest principles, straightforward and honest in all his dealings with his fellow men, and a most useful citizen.

ERNEST L. STEARNS, postmaster and storekeeper at Ferris Post Office, in Venango Township, was born in Salamanca, New York, August 29, 1873, and is a son of Devillo B. and Alvira (Akerly) Stearns, and a grandson of Joseph B. Stearns.

Joseph B. and Mary Stearns, grandparents of the subject of this record, had the following children: Parmilla, Cynthia, Carmeda, Devillo B. and Charles. Devillo B. Stearns married Alvira Akerly, daughter of Joseph Akerly, and they became parents of four children, namely: Bessie, deceased; Jessie, deceased; Ernest L.; and Fremont, who married Emma Ubera, by whom he has three children—Jessie, Florence and George.

Ernest L. Stearns attended the public schools of Salamanca, New York, and lived there until August 7, 1890, at which time he moved to Hilliard, in Butler County, Pennsylvania. He accepted a position as weigh-master, and served as such for a period of fifteen years. At the end of that time he was made manager of the Ferris Supply Company at Ferris, Pennsylvania, of which Levi Deal is treasurer. Mr. Stearns also was made postmaster on August 17, 1908, and has discharged the duties of that office in a most satisfactory manner. The business enterprise of which he is manager is in a most flourishing condition and has a large and well established trade.

Ernest L. Stearns was joined in marriage with Miss Sarah Liston, a daughter of Jacob and Lena Liston, and to them has been born one son, Devillo B. Politically, he is a Republican and has served as judge and inspector of elections. In fraternal affiliation, he is a member of Hilliard Lodge No. 111, I. O. O. F., in which he has passed through all the chairs and is now trustee; and Hilliard Lodge, No. 92, K. P. Religiously, the family attends the Baptist church.

CLAUDE GERARD, who now lives retired from active work on his excellent farm of eighty-six acres, located in Penn Township, has been a general farmer, stockraiser and oil producer for many years. He was born in Penn Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, November 30, 1836, and is a son of Michael and Margaret (Mangel) Gerard.

Michael Gerard, the father, was born at Blamont, France, a son of Joseph Gerard, who was a cooper by trade. Michael worked with his father until he was twenty-one years old and then came to America and worked at coopering in the city of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, and Butler County, Pennsylvania. After he married he came to Butler County and located in Penn Township in 1836, buying fifty-six acres of woodland. This land he cleared and engaged in cultivating it until 1850, when he went to California in search of gold. During the one year that he remained there he was quite successful but died before he reached home and was buried near Randolph, Kentucky, August 6, 1851. His wife was a daughter of John C. Mangel, an early settler in Penn Township. Two children were born to Michael Gerard and wife: Claude and Joseph. The latter was a member of Company D, Sixty-first Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, during the War of the Rebellion, and was killed at the battle of the Wilderness.

Claude Gerard attended the schools near his home through boyhood and assisted to cultivate the home farm, and until he retired from active work, continued to be interested in general farming in the section in which he was born. During the Civil War he served for eight months in the Union army, as a member of Company F, One Hundred Seventh Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and at the time of General Lee's surrender, was stationed near Petersburg. He is a member of A. G. Reed Post, No. 105, Grand Army of the Republic, at Butler.

Mr. Gerard was married to Margaret Schleigh, a daughter of William Schleigh, of Penn Township. Mrs. Gerard died November 23, 1903, when aged nearly sixty years. She was a most estimable woman and was a consistent member of St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church. To this marriage nine children were born, namely: Mary, residing in Penn Township, is the widow of John Charles; Stephen, who resides at Benwood, Virginia; William, who lives at McDonald, Pennsylvania; Joseph, who operates the home farm; Magdalene (Mann); Louisa, who married Everett Albert, of Pittsburg; and Katherine, Ellen and John C., all deceased.

Mr. Gerard retired from the management of the farm, which included its agricultural development and also oil production, there being five producing wells on the place, in the spring of 1908. When relieved of all care he decided to take a leisurely pleasure trip through the West and left Pennsylvania on April 19, 1908, and returned July 4, 1908, having spent a pleasant season in Kansas and Oklahoma. He will return to Kansas in April, 1909.

ZENAS McMICHAEL, a well known real estate and fire insurance dealer of Zelenople, who is now serving his third term as justice of the peace of the borough, is a native and life long resident of Butler County, Pennsylvania. He was born September 11, 1847, in what is now Center Township, near Unionville, and is a son of Christopher and Barbara (Curry) Michael.

Christopher McMichael was a farmer by occupation and at an early period came from the eastern part of Pennsylvania to Butler County, where he settled on a farm near Euclid Station in Clay Township. He has served here as a justice of the peace for some time and was engaged in agricultural pursuits for many years. He married, in 1833, Elizabeth St. Clair, who died in 1845. They were the parents of the following children: Joseph, who is engaged in farming, and resides near West Sunbury; Japhia, engaged in farming near Euclid; Rev. E. S. McMichael, died near Springfield, Illinois; and Jane, wife of James Milford of Witchita, Kansas. Christopher was married the second time to Barbara Curry, to whom was born Zenas, the subject of this sketch, and R. J., a practicing physician of Eau Clair, Butler County, Pennsylvania.

MR. AND MRS. SAMPLE C. DUNCAN

Zenas McMichael was reared on a farm near Unionville, Center Township, and attended the common schools of that township. Until twelve years ago, Mr. McMichael devoted his time to agricultural pursuits, in 1896 removing to Zelenople, where he has since been successfully engaged in the fire insurance and real estate business.

In politics, our subject is a Republican, although in local politics, where no issue is up before the people, he votes for men whom he regards best qualified to care for the business affairs of this locality. Fraternally, he is a member of the Royal Arcanum. He holds membership with United Presbyterian Church.

In 1870 Mr. McMichael was married to Sarah D. Williams, a daughter of Robert and Susanna Williams of Plain Grove, Lawrence County, Pennsylvania. The following offspring were born of their union, namely: Laura, wife of Lawrence Stoner, has five children; Clyde G., a resident of New Brighton, married Conway Meeks and has one child; Helen, resides at home; and Clarence B., a resident of Zelenople, married Winnie Powell.

ELIAS SEATON, who has a splendid farm of seventy-five acres, located about one mile east of Boyers, in Venango Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, comes of an old and respected family of this locality. He was born on the home farm in Venango Township, February 20, 1848, and is a son of William and Rebecca (Vander-lin) Seaton, and a grandson of Robert and Margaret (Davis) Seaton.

Robert Seaton and his wife had a large family, namely: Alexander, Thomas, Eliza, Robert, William, James, Polly, Margaret and Anna. William and Rebecca (Vanderlin) Seaton also had a large family, the names of its members being Catherine, Margaret, Caroline, John, William George, Mattie, Elias, Lewis and Amos.

Elias Seaton received his early schooling at the Log school in Marion Township, after which he attended the Seaton school in his native township. He helped his father on the farm, which has always been his home, it having passed into his hands at his parents' death. He has seventy-five acres, of which forty are in good tillable shape, and the improvements are exceptionally good. The barn was built by Elias and his father, and the house was erected by the former. He has never taken an active part in politics, but is a Republican and served three years as a member of the school board.

December 13, 1871, Mr. Seaton was united in marriage with Mary Ann Wasson, a daughter of John Wasson of Cherry Township, and the following are their issue: Roy, who married Emma Lowther; Elmer, who married Gwen Davis; Parker; Clara; Merritt; and Amos. Religiously, they are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Boyers.

SAMPLE C. DUNCAN, who is engaged in agricultural pursuits in Middlesex Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, has a farm of sixty-one acres, all under cultivation. He was born on this farm October 20, 1871, and is a son of James and Elizabeth (Gilland) Duncan, coming of an old family in Pennsylvania.

James Duncan was born in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, and learned the trade of a ship carpenter in his younger days. For some years he followed his trade in various parts of the country, then settled down on a farm in Middlesex Township, Butler County, where he followed farming the remainder of his days. He died in 1886 at the age of sixty-nine years. He first married Behnina Tawney, and their children were: Belmina, who married James Elliott; Lizzie, who married John Garvey; and James, who died in 1888. His second marriage was with Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson, widow of James Thompson, and a daughter of Robert Gilland of Middlesex Township. As a result of her first marriage, Mrs. Duncan had four children, three of whom grew to maturity, namely: Ephraim O. Thompson of Middlesex Township; Alfretha, wife of William McKibben of Clinton Township; and Eva, who keeps house for the subject of this sketch. James and Elizabeth (Gilland) Duncan became parents of four children, of whom three grew to maturity, as follows: George; Sample C.; and Jennie. Of these, Sample C. Duncan is the only one now living. Religiously, James Duncan and his wife were members of the Middlesex Presbyterian Church.

Sample C. Duncan was reared on the home farm, which his father had settled on a few years before his birth, and was educated in the public schools of that vicinity. He has always engaged in farming on this place and has sixty-one acres of highly improved land, all under cultivation. He raises corn, oats, wheat, hay and potatoes, and has also met with success in stock raising. He keeps thoroughbred Berkshire hogs, all of which are eligible for registration. He is a man of energy and enterprise, and occupies a place high in the esteem of his fellow citizens.

Mr. Duncan was united in marriage with Miss Clara Thompson, a daughter of William Thompson of Clinton Township, Butler County. She died without issue on November 3, 1906, at the age of thirty-five years, a loss which fell heavily upon Mr. Duncan. Religiously, she was a member of the Middlesex Presbyterian Church, of which he is a trustee. He takes an earnest interest in all questions of public importance and gives his support to the Republican party, but is in no sense a politician.

TIMOTHY SWEENEY, whose valuable farm of 140 acres is situated in Donegal Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, not far from Chicora, was born in an old log house then standing on the farm on which he lives, November 5, 1833. His parents were Michael and Sarah (McLaughlin) Sweeney.

Michael Sweeney left his home in County Kerry, Ireland, in 1819, and sailed for Quebec, Canada, where he lived for a short time and then joined an uncle, the latter of whom was already established at Oil Creek, Pennsylvania. In 1824 he was married at Sugar Creek, to Sarah McLaughlin, and they had five children, namely: William, James, Michael, Mary Ann and Timothy, the latter being the only survivor. Shortly after his marriage, Michael Sweeney came to Donegal Township, Butler County, and bought 200 acres of land, including the farm now owned by his son. He purchased the property from a Mr. Sanders, who was the first settler on the place, and on this farm Michael Sweeney and wife passed the remainder of their days. He lived to be seventy-five years old but his wife died in her sixtieth year.

Timothy Sweeney has spent his life on the present farm with the exception of one year during which he worked at Brady's Bend and one year which he spent in the State of New York. He attended school in an old log building not far from his home, but in his boyhood farm youths had many duties to perform, and helping his father on the farm was one of the most important ones. His well cultivated land gives evidence of the care he has given it, and the many improvements he has made at different times. He has two producing oil wells on the place and more may be developed.

On April 23, 1861, Mr. Sweeney was married at Sugar Creek, to Miss Sarah Agnes McFadden, and they have had eleven children, as follows: Philometo, Hugh, Anna, Joseph, Michael, Vincent, James, Mary L., Frances E., Albert and Sarah A. Of the above family, Philometo married John Kragin and they live at Rockport, New York. Hugh was accidentally drowned in July, 1908. Anna married Ernest Kirtchner and they live at Pittsburg. Mary L. married Thomas Cosgrove and they live at Middletown, New York. Michael and Sarah live at home. Joseph lives in West Virginia. Albert married Ella Kain and they reside with Mr. Sweeney and have one child, Marie E.

Mr. Sweeney is one of the township's representative citizens and has served as overseer of the poor and also as judge of elections. Both he and wife are members of the Roman Catholic Church at Chicora.

C. FOSTER WICK, owner and proprietor of the hotel at West Sunbury, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is a well known citizen of the county and the establishment conducted by him is one which enjoys great popularity with the traveling public. He was formerly engaged in buying and selling and training horses, producing some with low marks, which established his reputation in that business.

Mr. Wick was born in West Sunbury in 1853, and comes of a prominent old family of Butler County. He is a son of Jeremiah C. and Rebeca (Glenn) Wick, and a grandson of Jeremiah Wick, Sr. The last named came from Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, to Butler County at a very early date and purchased 1,000 acres of land, just north of West Sunbury. He was a man of wide prominence in those days and was extensively engaged in the cattle business. With Christopher Foster, who married Jane Glenn, an aunt of the subject of this record, he made many trips with cattle across the mountains to Philadelphia. Mr. Foster was born and reared in Armstrong County, and also was a man well known in this vicinity. In those early days, the Glens and Wicks were the leading families of the community. Jeremiah C. Wick married Rebecca Glenn, a daughter of Samuel Glenn, who died in middle life. Mr. Wick died in 1876, and was survived many years by his widow, whose death occurred at St. Louis, Missouri, in 1908, at the age of eighty-four years. They had eight children as follows: Clarissa, wife of Rev. Malsein Rhodes, who is well known in Butler and now resides in St. Louis; Laura, widow of Homer Adams; Walker, who was widely known through the oil regions of Pennsylvania, and who died in Colorado in 1904; Carr, who died in West Sunbury in 1905; C. Foster, whose name heads this record; Dr. J. Warren Wick of St. Louis; Jennie, widow of C. Bunn of St. Louis; and Nettie, who died in June, 1908, and was the wife of Walter Hughes of St. Louis.

C. Foster Wick was reared in his native borough and received his intellectual training in the public schools. When about twenty years old he began buying and selling horses, and training young horses for the track. Among the best horses trained by him were Juliet, Sunbury Boy, Mattie Price, Harry W. and Captain Roll, all of which were well known to the racing public in their day. The last year Captain Roll was trained, he won eleven races out of thirteen starts, an exceptional record. Mr. Wick moved to St. Louis and continued in the same line of business for a period of fifteen years, then in 1890 returned to West Sunbury. He at that time became owner of the hotel, in which he had previously owned an interest and which had been conducted by his brother, Carr Wick. He placed the establishment on a good paying basis and continued it with success until 1902, when it was destroyed by fire. The business he had built up warranted him in the erection of a new and modern structure, which he refurnished new throughout and in handsome style, and it was not long before the place was enjoying greater popularity and patronage than before.

Mr. Wick was united in marriage with Miss Anna Cowden, a daughter of Dr. Cowden of Portersville, and they became parents of the following children: Dr. Frank C., who died in March, 1906; Bessie, wife of William McCarrier; Lela, wife of Prof. L. L. Lock of Brooklyn, New York; Pauline, wife of Clyde Russell; and Helen, wife of Henry Goeddel. Fraternaly, the subject of this sketch became a charter member of Parker Lodge, Royal Arcanum, to which he still belongs.

JOHN A. BURK is located on a fine farm of sixty acres in Venango Township and is engaged in the butchering business, visiting the trade throughout this section of the country in a wagon. He was born on the farm on which he lives, September 30, 1883, and is a son of John and Samantha (McFarlin) Burk, and a grandson of John Burk, Sr.

John Burk, Jr., was united in marriage with Samantha McFarlin, a daughter of Andrew McFarlin, and five children were the issue of their union: Sarah, wife of Montgomery Hutchinson; Della, wife of Lewis Ray; Margaret, deceased; Clarence, deceased; and John A.

John A. Burk received his schooling at the old Seaton school, and in the meantime assisted his father in the work about the farm. He later engaged in teaming in the woods until his marriage, when he settled down on the home place and following farming. He has fifty-five acres under cultivation, five acres in pasture land and a two-acre orchard. All of the buildings on the place were erected by his father. He does all his own butchering and has a well established meat trade.

March 29, 1900, Mr. Burk was united in marriage with Miss Jessie Wright, a daughter of Stephen Wright of Mercer County, and the following children have blessed their home: Lawrence, Otho, Lena, Thomas and Margaret. Politically, he is a Republican. He and his wife are consistent members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. They have a well-located home, being three miles northwest of Hilliard and four miles southwest of Eau Claire, and attend church at the latter place.

JOHN A. LEWIS, for a quarter of a century one of Venango Township's representative citizens, resides on his well cultivated farm of sixty acres, which he devotes to general agriculture. He was born July 21, 1836, in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of William and Fannie (Blauey) Lewis.

Mr. Lewis comes of Revolutionary stock, an ancestry of which every American citizen is proud. His grandfather, Ezekiel Lewis, came from Wales to the colonies before they had secured their independence and assisted the patriot army to obtain American freedom. Later he settled in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, where he prospered and had many descendants. William Lewis, father of John A., was born in Armstrong County but a large part of his life was passed in Washington Township, Butler County, where he died in 1859. Four of his children survive, namely: John A.; Fannie, who resides in Washington Township; Robert O., a groceryman at Annisville, Washington Township, Butler County; and Finley E., a farmer in Washington Township, Butler County.

John A. Lewis was two years old when his parents moved to Butler County and he was reared in Washington Township, in boyhood attending the neighboring district school. He then learned the carpenter's trade and also worked at lumbering, there being much standing timber at that day where now can be seen miles of cultivated farm land. The Civil War turned the attention of many of the young men to a military life and in 1862 Mr. Lewis enlisted for service, entering Company F, One Hundred Thirty-fourth Regiment, Penna. Vol. Inf., which became a part of the Third Division of the Army of the Potomac. He saw much hard service before he was honorably discharged, in June, 1863. He took part in the memorable battles of Antietam, Fredericksburg, and Chancellorsville, and participated in the weary marches which fell to the lot of the soldiers on the raid through Maryland. Mr. Lewis was always a courageous soldier and often endangered his life, but he escaped all serious injury and was permitted to return to his home practically unharmed. Shortly afterward he removed from Butler to Clarion County, but in 1873 returned to Butler County and settled on his valuable farm in Venango Township.

On December 23, 1880, Mr. Lewis was married to Miss Firzah Alsworth, of Parker Township, a daughter of James Alsworth, and they have three sons: Edward J., residing in Venango Township; Eljia E., residing at Franklin; and Herbert B., living in Illinois.

Mr. Lewis is a Republican in politics but he lays no claim to being a politician. He has always been interested in all that concerns the well-being of his community and when elected road commissioner of Venango Township, gave his fellow citizens efficient service. With his wife he belongs to the Mount Vernon United Presbyterian Church in Washington Township, of which he is a trustee. As a member of the Samuel J. Rosenberg Post, Grand Army of the Republic, at Eau Claire, he often recalls, with his comrades, the dangers and triumphs of the great Civil War. On November the 11th, 1908, Mr. John A. Lewis went to Fredericksburg to take part in the unveiling of the monument of the Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry of Humphrey's Division.

WILLIAM KENNEDY, an elderly resident of Penn Township, now living retired from the active occupations of life, was born in Winfield Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, son of John and Annie C. (Smith) Kennedy. He is a descendant in the fourth generation of John Kennedy, born in County Antrim, Ireland, in 1722, who came to America, settling in Maryland in 1848. John's son, John Kennedy second, served under Washington in the Revolutionary war, and subsequently drew a pension from the Government up to the time of his death, which took place in 1835. In 1786 he married and then moved to what is now the site of McKeesport, Pennsylvania, and thence, in 1801, to what is now Winfield Township, Butler County.

John Kennedy, third of the name and father of the subject of this sketch, was born in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, in 1794, and at the age of seven years came to Butler County with his parents, they being early settlers in Winfield Township. He was there reared to manhood, but in 1832 he bought a farm in what is now Penn Township, on which he resided for the rest of his life, passing away at the age of seventy-five years. Although quite young at the breaking out of the War of 1812-15, he served as a soldier therein, taking part in the battle on Lake Erie. He and his wife were among the original members, and were active workers in the Methodist Episcopal Church in Penn Township. He died January 4, 1869.

William Kennedy when a young man learned the trade of blacksmith, at which he worked for about twelve years. He then bought a farm and engaged in agricultural pursuits in which he continued until the spring of 1908. He has three producing oil wells on his property and for a number of years he has been interested in oil and gas production. He is a Republican in politics, but has always been averse to accepting township office, though frequently urged to do so. He was elected a justice of the peace, but declined to qualify. He is a member of Thorn Creek Methodist Episcopal Church, in which he has held the office of trustee and class leader for many years.

Mr. Kennedy married Matilda Graham, a daughter of Robert Graham, of Penn Township, and they have been the parents of ten children, as follows: William J., now deceased; Annie C., who is the wife of Bert McCandless, of Butler; Charles L., who resides in Butler Township; Lulu M., who is the wife of Morris Flarshem, of Minnesota; Clara, who is now Mrs. Clara Robbins; L. Clyde, a farmer and dairyman of Penn Township; George Lewis, who resides with his elder brother; Ada, wife of Nicholas Mangel, of Penn Township; Eva, and Frances M. All the living representatives of this family are worthy and useful members of the respective communities in which they reside.

ANDREW LEMMON, whose death occurred July 29, 1908, on his farm in Butler Township, on which he had resided for many years, was a veteran of the Civil War and a well known and esteemed citizen. He was born on the farm on which he died, in Butler County, Pennsylvania, April 11, 1829, and was a son of Colonel Robert and Nancy (Fleming) Lemmon.

The father of the late Andrew Lemmon was born in County Down, Ireland, and came to America when he was twelve years of age, in company with his widowed mother and one sister. He died in 1861, aged seventy-six years. At Hagerstown, Maryland, he learned the trade of wheelwright and chairmaker, after which he settled in Butler County, Pennsylvania, and bought the home farm in Butler Township, of a squatter named Lenhart. Prior to moving on the farm, he raised a company of soldiers at Butler, and went out as its captain, during the War of 1812. He was a man of mark, naturally a leader and was prominent in politics. He served as county commissioner. He married a daughter of John Fleming, who was an early settler in Allegheny County, and they had ten children, all of whom have since passed away. The only survivors of the Lemmon connection are: E. K. Lemmon and William Lemmon, of Canton, Ohio; Miss Emma Lemmon, of Parker's Landing, Pennsylvania, and her sister, Lena Bovard, of Butler County; David Lemmon, of Bevier, Macon County, Missouri, and Clay Boggs, of Evans City.

The late Andrew Lemmon was reared on the home farm and with his brothers helped to clear it and later came into possession of the property. It contains fifty acres of excellent land, well adapted to the growing of grain and the raising of stock. Until within the past seven years, Mr. Lemmon operated the farm himself, since which time he has lived retired and rented his land. For two years prior to his death he was in failing health. From early youth he was a member of the United Presbyterian Church of Butler and was a consistent Christian. For seventy-nine years he lived a life that was good and useful and his work in this world was well done in every particular.

In 1864, Mr. Lemmon enlisted for service in the Civil War, in Company K, One Hundred Fourth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and served until the close. Early in life he was a Whig and later became a Republican.

Mr. Lemmon married Maria Barrickman, a daughter of Peter Barrickman of Butler Township. She was born May 8, 1832, and when she died, February 21, 1902, had been married fifty years lacking one month. She left no issue. Both she and her aged husband were laid to rest in the North Cemetery.

When six years old William James A. Beatty became a member of the household and remained with Mr. and Mrs. Lemmon until he married in 1882. Mr. Beatty's wife died in 1890 and Mr. Beatty returned and was with them continually till their death.

MR. AND MRS. ANDREW LEMMON

WILLIAM G. SEATON is a prominent resident of Venango Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, where he has a good farm of seventy-six acres, and comes of a pioneer family of the community. He was born in this township July 4, 1833, is a son of William and Rebecca (Vanderlin) Seaton, and a grandson of Robert and Margaret (Davis) Seaton.

William Seaton married Rebecca Vanderlin, a daughter of John Vanderlin, who also was a pioneer settler here. This union resulted in the following issue: Catherine; Margaret, who married Theodore Hovis, by whom she has the following children—Marshall, William, Parker and Darley; Caroline, who is the wife of James Jack and the mother of four children—Grant, Edwin, Nancy and Mallie; John, who married Elizabeth Thompson, a daughter of William Thompson, and has three children—William, Roy and Delphine; William G., whose name heads this sketch; Hattie, wife of Stephen Cooper, by whom she has a son and daughter, Amelia and Delbert; Elias, who married Polly Ann Wasson, and has the following children—Roy, Elmer, Parker, Clara, Merritt and Amos; Lewis, who married Isabell McCoy, by whom she had four children—Harry, Lewis, Edward and John; and Amos, ex-county treasurer, who married Mary Laughlin, by whom he had the following children—Henrietta, Delphine, Ada, Percy, Fannie, Homer R., Darley, Elias and Lewis M.

William G. Seaton first attended school in Marion Township, and later the Smith school in Venango Township. His father purchased a tract of fifty acres of land, which he helped to clear of timber, which they burned but which would now command a high market value. He killed deer on the home place and in this way they raised money, during the early days, with which to pay the taxes. After his marriage in 1862, William G. Seaton settled on a fifty acre tract, which he also cleared and in his time has hewed many rails. He purchased another tract of twenty-six acres, making a total of seventy-six. After acquiring this property he killed in all fifteen wild deer, and much other wild game. He erected a set of farm buildings, including a house, and all were destroyed by fire, but were immediately rebuilt in more modern style. He has a coal bank on the farm which was in operation at one time, but farming has always been his main occupation.

Mr. Seaton was united in marriage with Ellen Burk, a daughter of John Burk, and the following children were born to bless their home: Marshall, who married Minnie Johnston, a daughter of William Johnston, and has a son, Evert; Della, deceased; Agnes, deceased; Eva Belle, deceased; William, who married Cynthia Kerr, a daughter of Alexander Kerr, and has three daughters—Gladys, Mabel and Goldie; Ella, wife of Lee Heasley, by whom she has three children—Paul, Ressie and Lee; Katherine, who married Samuel Davis, and has three children—Claire, Harry and Mildred; Anna, who married Lewis Kerr; and Plummer, who married Jessie Pearl Wasson and has four children—Bessie, Arthur M., Earl B. and Ellen Addie. Religiously, Mr. and Mrs. Seaton are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Annandale. He is a Republican in politics.

NAAMAN F. BARTLEY, a leading agriculturist of Clay Township and one of its prominent and representative men, resides on his fine farm of seventy-five acres, which is situated one mile northeast of the Muddy Creek Presbyterian Church, adjoining the Second District School, of Clay Township, was born at Birmingham, Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, October 31, 1848, and is a son of Joseph and Margaret (Kirkland) Bartley.

Joseph Bartley was born in the southern part of Butler County, Pennsylvania, where his father, James Bartley, had settled when he came to Pennsylvania from Ireland. In Allegheny County, Joseph Bartley was married to Margaret Kirkland, and there he followed his trade of brickmaker until 1851, when he purchased a farm in Jefferson Township, Butler County. They lived there until about 1862 and then sold and moved to land in Penn Township, where the remainder of their lives were spent.

Naaman F. Bartley was three years old when his parents moved to Jefferson Township and was fourteen when the family settled in Penn Township. The latter farm has been found rich in oil deposits, but this discovery was not made until it had passed out of Mr. Bartley's possession. He attended the township schools and later the Reidsburg Academy, in Clarion County. After he returned home from the academy he decided to enter the army and on February 11, 1865, he enlisted, although but sixteen years of age, in Company E, Seventy-eighth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, in which he served until the close of the war, being stationed during the greater part of this time at Nashville, Tennessee. In September, 1865, he was mustered out at Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, and returned to his home in Butler County.

Mr. Bartley soon began to teach school, which he continued until 1875, teaching three terms in Clay Township, since when he has been engaged in general farming. Mr. Bartley endorses many modern methods and has proved on his own land the value of scientific agriculture. He has interested himself and others in matters which are of great moment to the agriculturist and has been identified with local organizations, particularly the Grange. He was one of the promoters of the Farmers'

Institutes in Butler County and in May, 1908, was appointed county chairman of this agricultural body. He is also a member of the State Board of Agriculture of Pennsylvania. He has improved and developed his farm and made it one of the most valuable in the township.

On March 5, 1868, Mr. Bartley was married to Miss Emma Zillah McCandless, who is a daughter of William H. and Mary Ann McCandless, of Franklin Township. They have had four children: William M., Viletta Margaret, Melvin Oscar and Clifford Foster. William M. Bartley is a physician practicing in North Dakota, a graduate of the Baltimore Medical College. He owns land in Dakota and also in Cuba. He married Ada L. Miller and they have three children—Charles Miller, Mary Zillah and June. Viletta Margaret Bartley died in 1898. She was the wife of Thomas O. Kelly and she left two children—Philip Eugene and Emma Phyrn. Melvin Oscar Bartley is the manager of the home farm. He married Della May Hogg and they have six children—Cleora Fay, Olive Viletta, Florence Kathleen, Mabel Angie, Eugene Kyle and Emma Laverna. Clifford Foster died March 27, 1897. Mr. Bartley and family are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

JOHN A. SLAGLE, who owns oil property and engages in truck gardening in Fairview Township, about two miles east of Chicora, Butler County, has been a resident of this township since February, 1889, but was born in Valley Township, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, February 24, 1853. His parents were Daniel and Lucinda (Bowser) Slagle.

For over fifty years the parents of Mr. Slagle lived on the old Slagle homestead in Valley Township, Armstrong County, and they both died there, the father when aged eighty-four years and the mother aged eighty-one years. They were quiet, virtuous, farming people, respected, esteemed and beloved. They had twelve children born to them, the record being as follows: Lemuel H.; Chambers, deceased; Miles; John A.; Mary, who married Matthew McCullins; Sannel; Harvey, deceased; Jane, who married Thomas Bowser; Emma, deceased, who was the wife of Calvin Peters; Catherine, who married Shadrieh Starr; David; and Ella, who married David French.

John A. Slagle was educated in Armstrong County and remained there until he was about twenty-five years of age and then went out on the road for a time, traveling in the interest of a sewing machine company. He came to Fairview Township from McKean County, where he resided for eight years previously, and since then has been engaged in truck gardening and in the oil business.

On September 26, 1878, Mr. Slagle was married by Rev. Armbaugh, to Miss Emma Holder, who is a daughter of Joseph and Susanna (Harmon) Holder, both of whom were born in Armstrong County and spent their lives there, the father dying at the age of seventy-eight years. Mrs. Slagle is the sixth member of her parents' family of ten children, the others being: Mary, deceased, who was the wife of Barney Hiles; Margaret, who married Martin Ward, deceased; John, deceased; William; Chambers; Samuel, deceased; Mattie, who is the widow of Andrew Young; Nanie, deceased; and Armstrong.

Mr. and Mrs. Slagle have an adopted daughter, Nellie M., who is a bright little girl of ten years, attending school. Mr. Slagle and wife are members of the Reformed Church. He is not a very active politician, but may always be found doing his full duty by his community. He is a member of the Knights of Maccabees, at Chichora.

JOHN F. PEOPLES, a well known citizen of Venango Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, was born on the old homestead, the place on which he now lives in that township. He is a son of John and Margaret (Murrin) Peoples, and a grandson of Patrick and Sarah (Callahan) Peoples, residents of Ireland.

Patrick and Sarah Peoples became parents of the following children: John, father of the subject of this sketch, William, James, Alexander, Columbus, Mary and Hannah.

John Peoples was married to Margaret Murrin, a daughter of Joseph Murrin of Venango Township, and their children were as follows: Katharine (Barr); Mary (Shearon); Susan; Joseph, deceased; Hannah L. (Shearon); John F.; and Matilda, who died in infancy. Katharine Peoples married William Barr of near Butler, and has the following children: Margaret, Sarah, Matilda, Joseph, Rosanna, William and Vincent. Mary Peoples married John Shearon of Venango Township and their offspring is as follows: Margaret and Grace, twins; Patrick and Mayme. Hannah L. Peoples married James Shearon, by whom she had three daughters and a son, namely: Stella, Sarah, John and Matilda. She formed a second union with Robert Trumbull of Hilliard, and they have a son and a daughter, Edward and Barbara.

John F. Peoples in his boyhood days attended the old Cochran school in Venango Township, after which he took up agricultural pursuits. He was born in the little log house which was built by his parents in 1840 and still stands on the farm. He has 152 acres of good land, forty of which is under cultivation. He has twenty acres of young timber, and the remainder is covered with valuable timber. He has an orchard and a good set of farm buildings, all of which were built by him but the old log house. There are two veins of coal underlying the land, which have never been worked. He is a Democrat in politics, and is road supervisor and road master of Venango Township.

August 27, 1884, John F. Peoples was united in marriage with Miss Sarah McGuinley, a daughter of Charles McGuinley, and the following children were born to them; Charles Joseph, who is engaged at the mines; James A., who also is working at the mines; John, who assists his father on the farm; Katharine Gertrude; Francis Edward, deceased; Margaret E.; Mary L.; Patrick Henry; Emma, deceased; two who died in infancy; and Hugh Leo. Religiously, they are members of the St. Also-phus Church at Murrinsville.

DAVID GARVIN BASTIAN is a son of William McKinley and Amy Garvin Bastian and was born in the borough of Butler, Butler County, Pennsylvania, on the 27th day of September, 1858. He received his education in the public schools of the county, in the Harmony Academy, Harmony, Pennsylvania; at the Military Academy, Haddonfield, New Jersey, and at the Dickinson Seminary, Williamsport, Pennsylvania. The history of wars and the heroic and chivalrous achievements of their heroes charmed and thrilled him; and he was ambitious to become a soldier. At nineteen years of age, he received the appointment as cadet to West Point; and the star of his hopes was luminous with promise. After receiving the appointment, he applied himself to the required studies for admission with the greatest industry and perseverance and successfully passed the examination; but the severe strain to which he subjected himself in his mental preparation impaired his health and barred him temporarily from joining the cadets. After carefully considering the lessons from this incident, he concluded to abandon the life of a student and soldier and enter the commercial world. In connection with George B. Bastian, his brother, he engaged in the hardware business in the borough of Zelenople, which he conducted with energy and success for more than twenty years; and until his large, commodious and handsome store building and its wares were consumed by fire in the winter of 1902. Since then he abandoned the mercantile life and turned his attention to real estate and the indulgence of his natural and pronounced talent for the art of the taxidermist. Mr. Bastian is a born artist, and had he the opportunity to develop his natural aptitude for painting or taxidermy, he would have taken high rank in either department. His ability, skill and proficiency in taxidermy were recognized by Dr. Holland, who selected him out of a list of forty-seven applicants as one of three taxidermists at the Carnegie Institute at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania.

Mr. Bastian married Miss Sovina Peters Hoeffcker, who is a daughter of W. L. and Elmina Amelia Hoeffcker, and was born in Elizabeth, New Jersey. Her father was an expert engineer and at the time of his death was superintendent of the motive power of the New Jersey Central Railroad Company. His widow survived him and is still living in the home city, Elizabeth, New Jersey. Mr. and Mrs. Bastian have four children: Elmina, Garvin, Hellen Sovina and William Hoeffcker. In religion, the family are Presbyterians. In politics, Mr. Bastian is a Republican with tendencies toward Prohibition. He never consented to be a candidate for any political office, but accepted the appointment as president of the Board of Health for four years. He is an intelligent and progressive citizen and has always been an active and controlling factor in all the commercial and civic enterprises of his town. He is a fearless and uncompromising champion of human rights and denounces wrong wherever he finds it. He is a man of strong and intense religious nature without cant or acerbity, and a jovial, sociable and very companionable neighbor and friend.

William McKinley Bastian was born November 16th, 1813, in Armstrong Township, Lycoming County, Pennsylvania, and died July 9th, 1887. He was a useful and enterprising business man and an extensive manufacturer of agricultural implements. He originated and manufactured the "Bastian Four-horse-power Threshing Machine," which was the best of its kind and retained the lead and preference up to the advent of the steam thrasher. For a number of years he was engaged in an extensive mercantile business with his brother-in-law, John Hall, in the borough of Butler. This venture was not a success; and at its close in 1859, he moved with his family to Zelienople and purchased a hotel property from John Knox, which was called "The Bastian House," and which he conducted during the Civil War and up to the year 1879, when he sold it and retired from active business. He inherited the jovial and sunshiny nature of his father, Peter Bastian, and was universally loved and esteemed. He possessed the most open and unselfish nature, and was never distrusted. He had but few ambitions, and cared but little for the shout of the multitude or the blare of the political trumpet. He will not be remembered for any great or noted achievement; but the little sympathies he showed for the unfortunate; the little acts of kindness he did for others; the little encouragements he dropped into sad lives; the dainty little hopes he planted in the waste places of cheerless hearts; the little sunbeams of cheer he drifted into the dark corners of desolate souls; and the number of Hearts-ease and Forget-me-nots he planted along the by-ways of human experience, make up the blessed heritage he left to his family and friends.

He married Miss Amy Garvin, November 11th, 1841, and had eight children: George Byards, Margaret, Amelia, Frances, Amy, Willhelmina, Eliza, David Garvin and Josephine; the latter died when nine months of age. George Byards Bastian married Caroline Endress, a daughter of Adam Endress, a wealthy and retired farmer of Zelienople, who is still living; Margaret Amelia married Oliver C. Genter of Wheeling, West Virginia; Frances married

Frank Fletcher of Connecticut, but died three weeks after her marriage; Amy died at the age of eighteen; Willhelmina married J. F. Strieby, a prominent lawyer of Williamsport, Pennsylvania; Eliza married Alton Hopkins of Denver, Colorado.

Amy Garvin Bastian was born in Cranberry Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, on May 14th, 1823, and died May 21st, 1896. She was no ordinary woman, but a conspicuous and unique character. No one ever met her without being impressed with the magnetic strength of her own individuality. She possessed great force of character, a strong and iron will, sound judgment, and was of queenly and commanding presence. Her perceptions were keen and quick, her discrimination fine and intelligent and her conclusions logical and accurate. She was a positive force in the community where she lived. The influence of her life was always on the right side. Her impulses were all tender, noble and generous; her sympathies were as genial and warm as the sunshine and as broad and deep as life itself. She made her life valuable, and impressed her individuality deep in the minds and memory of her friends and in the nature and character of every member of her family. The sphere of her activities was not wide, but the fruitage of her life was bountiful. She was a daughter of David and Parmelia Malison Garvin. Parmelia Malison was a daughter of Thomas and Amy Newton Malison; and Amy Newton was a full cousin of Sir Isaac Newton, the philosopher.

George Byards Bastian was born in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, on the 7th day of January, 1844. He was educated in the public schools and was a graduate of the Duff's Commercial College, Pittsburg, Pennsylvania. On August 11th, 1862, he enlisted as a private in Company C, 134th Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers; and on February 17th, 1863, was promoted to the position of Second Lieutenant. After leaving the army, he returned to Zelienople and became an active and energetic business man and a leader in all the progressive movements in his community. He was appointed postmaster at Zelenople in 1872 and continued in office for twelve years. He was deeply interested in the Agricultural Society of the county and served as president of the Harmony Fair Association for a number of years. He was one of the chief promoters in the rural districts of the Narrow Gauge Railroad Company and rendered valuable and efficient service in having the road pass through his native town. He moved to Williamsport, Pennsylvania, in the fall of 1881, and opened up the largest and most expensively furnished art and toy store in central Pennsylvania. He conducted this business with energy and success until the disastrous and unprecedented thirty-four-foot flood of 1889 swept through the valley and made many rich men poor. On account of the kind and character of his stock of goods, the damage done to them amounted to an absolute loss and practically nothing was saved from the ruin. He died October 28th, 1907, and was buried in East Wildwood on a beautiful slope facing the setting sun, a suitable and fitting resting place for one whose star of business hope went down behind the clouds into the darkness of a night that knows no dawning.

The Bastians of this country descended from the distinguished German family of SeBastians. Their ancestors came to this county before the Revolutionary War and the name SeBastian was retained by the family up to the present generation. George Michael SeBastian married Rachael Wenn. After leaving their home in Germany and before reaching the seaboard, they were compelled to go into service to accumulate more money before proceeding on their journey to this country. They were Lutherans. They stopped at a Catholic settlement and attended their church; but not being acquainted with their services and not crossing themselves according to the Catholic custom, they were privately rep-rmandued by the priest, but agreeing to conform to the Catholic practice, they were allowed to continue to attend their church. After remaining in this settlement for nine months, they again resumed their journey. Their voyage was very rough and stormy; and at one time they were cast upon an island, but finally they landed at the port of Philadelphia. They settled in what was then Northampton but now is Lehigh County, Pennsylvania. They afterwards moved to Selinsgrove, where they died and were buried. They had five sons and one or two daughters. The sons were: Jacob, who served six months in the Revolutionary War; Daniel, who at the age of sixteen served as a drummer boy in the same war; and George, Peter and Andrew. Peter SeBastian remained at Philadelphia, and his son Peter came to Williamsport and built a tavern on the south bank of the West Branch of the Susquehanna River, which was known far and wide for its sumptuous board and the good cheer, warm greeting and hospitality of its host. He married Mary Artley and their children were: Henry, William McKinley, John S., Henrietta, Josephine, Mary, Julia, and Margaret.

The Garvin ancestors came from Scotland. The reign of Charles II of Scotland, which lasted from 1650 to 1668, was one of marked cruelty to the Covenanters. All those who were not killed were forced to flee for their lives or renounce their religion. In 1684, during what was called "The Killing Time," David Garvin and his wife Elizabeth, and their young sons, John and James, fled from their home near Dumbarton in Scotland to a colony of Covenanters, that had been established in the northern part of Ireland near Londonderry. After the death of their father in 1735 four of his children, David, James, Elizabeth and Thomas Garvin, emigrated to America. Whittier tells the story in one of his poems, published in 1888, of Mary Garvin, who was stolen from her parents by the Indians and returned to them twenty years later.

W. F. RUMBERGER

RESIDENCE OF W. F. RUMBERGER, BUTLER

David Garvin, one of the brothers of Mary Garvin, and the great-grandfather of David Garvin Bastian, moved to Virginia and owned a number of slaves. One of the emigrant Garvins had a daughter by the name of Margaret. Her husband and five of their children were massacred by the Indians. She and one daughter were taken captive and carried into Canada. After some years of captivity, they were ransomed and returned to their friends and died and were buried in Pennsylvania.

WILLIAM F. RUMBERGER, one of Butler's leading citizens, who is largely identified with its business interests and public affairs, has been city treasurer of Butler Borough since 1902. He was born July 30, 1855, at Fairview, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of William F. Rumberger, who was one of the pioneer woolen manufacturers of Western Pennsylvania.

When Mr. Rumberger was about one year old, his parents moved to Armstrong County, where he was reared, and he later secured his education in the old Wither-spoon Academy at Butler, Pennsylvania. His first introduction to business was in his father's woolen manufacturing plant at Craigs ville, Armstrong County, and in the course of time he became a member of the firm with his father and continued there until 1893, for some years having been particularly engaged in buying wool. Later he became identified with the Guarantee Safe Deposit and Trust Company, of which he was a director and was in charge of the real estate department. In 1906 he secured his present offices in the Odd Fellows' Temple, at Butler, and does an extensive real estate and insurance business in addition to managing his large personal real estate holdings. He owns one of the finest homes at Butler, its location being on Oak Street, and he has built and owned a number of other fine residences in different sections of the city.

In 1893 Mr. Rumberger was married to Miss Emma P. Scott, who was born at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, and they have one daughter, Margaret. Mr. and Mrs. Rumberger are members of the United Presbyterian Church at Butler, of which he has been treasurer for a number of years.

WILLIAM J. SAGER, manager of the Clutton General Store, at West Liberty, Butler County, is one of the representative men of Brady Township and has been in his present responsible position since 1893. He was born on a farm, in Mercer County, Pennsylvania, February 1, 1865, and is a son of Benjamin and Ellen (Dennison) Sager.

Mr. Sager attended school in Mercer County until he was fifteen years of age, when his parents moved on a farm in Slippery Rock Township, Butler County, where he remained until 1891. In that year he married Miss Effie Clutton, who is a daughter of Jonathan and Margaret Clutton. Mr. and Mrs. Sager have two children: Margaret and George. He is a member of the United Presbyterian Church. He is a very active citizen of West Liberty and is a member of the borough council.

Mrs. Sager is a member of a prominent family of Butler County, her father, the late Jonathan Clutton, for many years being a successful merchant and leading man. He died in February, 1903. His widow is also deceased. Miss E. G. Clutton, sister of Jonathan Clutton, is the proprietor of the Clutton General Store at West Liberty, in which place she also owns a second store building. The Clutton store carries a full line of hardware, dry goods, shoes and groceries and is the largest enterprise of its kind in this section and is in a most prosperous condition.

Frank Clutton, a brother of Mrs. Sager, is general superintendent of the Slippery Rock State Normal School. He was born at Prospect, Butler County, Pennsylvania, November 15, 1857, and until he was thirteen years of age was reared by an aunt in Worth Township. In 1870 he moved to Slippery Rock and in 1879 was married to Miss Lola F. Riddle. Five children were born to this marriage, namely: Bertha, who died in 1892, aged twelve years; William K., a graduate of the Pharmacy department of the Western University at Pittsburgh, who is engaged in the drug business with his brother, Paul D., at Myersdale, Somerset County; Paul D., who is a member of the firm of Clutton Brothers, druggists, at Myersdale, and married Mary F. Magee; Augustus T., who is a senior in the Slippery Rock State Normal School; and Frances E., who is a student in the Slippery Rock High School.

Prof. Clutton learned the trade of carriage painter in his youth and then conducted a mercantile business with his aunt, E. G. Clutton, until his marriage. In 1880 he became manager of the branch store of Bard Bros., at Coaltown, and in 1882, while there, not only had all his property destroyed by the well remembered cyclone that swept through that section, but was also seriously injured, to such an extent that he was compelled to be out of business for months. After Bard Bros. rebuilt, he returned to them and continued in their employ until May, 1884, at Coaltown, and until October, at Slippery Rock. From there he went to Hazzard, Mercer County, where he had charge of the stores of a coal company, leaving there in June, 1886, to accept a position as bookkeeper at Millers-town, now Chicora. In June, 1887, he moved to Slippery Rock and went into a general store business under the name of Clutton Bros., No. 2, the firm, made up of himself and brother George W., already having a drug store. In 1891 George W. Clutton removed to New Castle, where he continues in the drug business, and at that time Frank Clutton sold the general store and took charge of the drug business at Slippery Rock, for some time also having an interest in the New Castle store. In 1899 the partnership was dissolved and Frank Clutton continued the drug business at Slippery Rock under his own name and remained in the drug business until 1906, when he sold out to the firm of Mayberry & Pisor. In the meanwhile, his sons were trained in the store and now do a large business on their own account.

Mr. Clutton is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Slippery Rock, a member of the board of stewards. He is a Mason, Odd Fellow and Knight of Pythias.

JOSEPH T. MURRIN, residing on the old Murrin homestead in Venango Township, was born on this farm May 18, 1855, and belongs to a very prominent and prolific family of Butler County. His parents were John and Bridget (Kelly) Murrin, and his grandfathers were Joseph and Frank Kelly.

The paternal grandparents of Mr. Murrin were Joseph and Katherine (Keating) Murrin, and they had the following children: Hugh K.; John, who married Bridget Kelly; Margaret, who married John People; Susan and Joseph, neither of whom married; Katherine, who married Hugh Forquer; and James, who married, first, Margaret McElroy, and second, Mary Logue.

The children born to John and Bridget Murrin were as follows: Joseph T.; Susan, who married Thomas Easley; Frank, who married Amelia, daughter of Joseph Young; James D., who married Minnie, daughter of Bernard Gardner; Katherine A., who married Thomas Robison; Charles, who married Katherine, daughter of Peter Burns; and William A., Hugh, Mary and Agnes.

Joseph T. Murrin attended the Rock school in boyhood and then assisted his uncle, Joseph Murrin, on the latter's farm. After he married he rented a farm in Venango Township and then purchased eighteen acres of the old homestead, on which he has carried on agricultural operations ever since. He has no open coal bank, neither has he tested his land for either coal or gas. He takes no very active part in township politics, but votes with the Republican party.

On January 30, 1883, Mr. Murrin was married to Miss Evelyn McGuirok, who is a daughter of James McGuirok. They have seven children, all of whom have been gifted with a talent for music. With the exception of Susan Alice, the fifth child, who is the wife of William G. Pritchard, none have married. Mary Helena, the second child, after graduating from the Eau Claire school in June, 1905, entered the New York State Hospital and Training School for Nurses and was subsequently graduated at the Columbus State Hospital, December 30, 1908, with very high marks and is still following her profession in that institution. The other children: James Henry, Bridget Elizabeth, John Thomas, Joseph F. and Helen Evelyn, all reside at home. Mr. Murrin and family are members of St. Annus Catholic Church at Murrinsville.

AARON SCHANTZ YOUNG, a prominent agriculturist and representative citizen of Jackson Township, residing on his farm of 125 acres, which is situated two and one-half miles from Evans City, was born on this place, in the old hewed log residence, September 7, 1869. His parents are S. P. P. and Catherine (Schantz) Young.

The ancestors of Mr. Young, on both sides, came originally from Germany. His mother is a granddaughter of the first Zeigler, who came from east of the mountains, passing through Pittsburg, and thinking it of very little importance, came on to Harmony and purchased the town with nearly all the surrounding farms from the Economites, the present farm being among them. It was subsequently bought by Aaron Schantz, the maternal grandfather of Aaron S. Young. Mr. Schantz built the log house in 1850, the log barn having been put up prior to that date. The land subsequently became the property of S. P. P. Young and in 1900 was bought by its present owner.

The Young family, for several generations, lived at Harmony, Pennsylvania, the grandfather having a tailor shop there for a long period. The father of Aaron S. Young learned the trade with his father and followed it at Harmony until he moved to Iowa, prior to the opening of the Civil War. He served in an Iowa regiment with the rank of captain. He is now in his eightieth year and has been a resident of Pittsburg for the past seventeen years. His wife also survives and is seventy-six years old. Of their eleven children seven survive, namely: Elizabeth, who is the wife of W. N. Harper, of Pittsburg; Naomi, who is the widow of Samuel Knox, resides in Oklahoma; Flora, who lives with her aged parents; Annie, who is the wife of Rev. W. S. Kreiger, of Ohio; Aaron S.; Blanche, who is the wife of John Winfield Sloan, of Philadelphia; and Bertha, who resides at home. Susan, Laura, Sadie and Ensign are deceased.

Aaron S. Young lived at Harmony from the age of seven to fifteen years, at that time going to Pittsburg, where he learned the carpenter's trade and worked at this for fifteen years in that city, after which he came to Jackson Township and bought the old family farm. He takes a great deal of interest in improving the old place, which is a fine tract of land, and has recently set out an orchard; this, with his vineyards, covers about fifteen acres.

Mr. Young was married in 1895 to Miss Clara Haines, who was reared near Bedford, and they have six children, with ages ranging from twelve to two years, namely: Paul, Glenn, Margaret, Harold, Kenneth and John Carl. Mr. Young and family attend St. John's Reformed Church at Evans

City. In his thoughtful views on public questions, Mr. Young has definitely identified himself with the Prohibition party.

HENRY PERRY DOUBLE, a representative citizen of Butler County, who is engaged in agricultural pursuits on a fine farm of ninety-six acres, lying along the Western border of Cherry Township, adjoining Slippery Rock Township, is also a veteran of the Civil War. Mr. Double was born on a farm in Worth Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, June 5, 1838, and is a son of Isaac and Nancy (Snyder) Double.

The maternal grandfather of Mr. Double, Conrad Snyder, came to Butler County from Westmoreland County, and became a large landholder, one of his farms being the one on which Mr. Double now resides. John Double, the paternal grandfather, came to Butler County from Westmoreland County, and settled in what is now Brady Township, where Isaac Double was born. After his marriage, Isaac Double went to housekeeping in Worth Township, and with the exception of about three years spent in Virginia after the war, he and his wife were residents of Worth Township all of their lives, both dying there.

Henry Perry Double was reared on the home farm in Worth Township, and there resided until April 22, 1862, at which time he came to his present farm, which has been his home to the present time. In September, 1864, he enlisted in the Fiftieth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, serving with that organization until the close of the war, and participating in a number of engagements, including Hatcher Run and Fort Steadman, although most of his service was around Petersburg, he being present at the evacuation of that point. Mr. Double received his honorable discharge at Georgetown, District of Columbia, and, returning to his farm, began again to cultivate his land. This property on his arrival had been very little attended to, and the only buildings it boasted were an old log cabin and barn. Almost all of the land is in a high state of cultivation now, and Mr. Double has erected a set of excellent farm buildings. He has been successful in his operations, and is looked upon as one of the substantial men of his community.

In 1865 Mr. Double was united in marriage with Mary McClure, who is a daughter of James McClure, and they have had five children: Isaac Orrin, who married and died shortly thereafter; James Silas, who is married and lives in Butler; Percy L., who lives in Chicago; Grace E., wife of Roy A. Watson, a merchant of Slippery Rock; and Emma P., wife of Robert Davis, residing near Hilliards.

ELIAS K. TAYLOR, residing on his farm of thirty acres in Venango Township, two and one-half miles west of Eau Claire, erected a blacksmith shop on his property after coming here and does general repair work. He was born May 6, 1845, at Chincora, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Matthew and Sarah (Kephart) Taylor, and a grandson of James Taylor.

The children born to Matthew Taylor and his wife were: James, who married (first) Mary Love and (second) Elizabeth Gallagher; Elias, who married Barbara, daughter of Stephen Montgomery; Perry, who married Catherine, daughter of William Barnhart; Matilda, who married N. Gold; William, who died in 1861, a soldier in the Civil War, falling at Cedar Creek; and Samuel H. and Joseph B., both of whom are now deceased.

Elias K. Taylor obtained his education in the vicinity of his home and then helped his father on the farm until he married, after which he lived for one year at Bullion, Venango County, and then bought a lot at Eau Claire, on which he built a house which he subsequently sold to Samuel Kastor. He then bought a farm of seventy acres which he afterward sold to James

B. McJunkin, and then bought his present place, and since building his shop has done a good business at repair work and wagon making, in addition to cultivating his land.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor have had the following children: Elmer; William who married Margaret, a daughter of James Lackey; James, who married Mary, a daughter of David Taylor; Wilbert, who married Gertrude, a daughter of John F. Wilds; Anna, who married Calvin Sloan; Clara, who married Joseph Kittler; and Emma and Julia, both of whom reside with their parents. Mr. Taylor and family are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Eau Claire. In politics he is a Democrat and he has acceptably served the township as road supervisor.

HARRY L. GRAHAM, a leading member of the Butler bar and one of the city's representative citizens, serving in his fourth year as secretary of the Board of Education, was born August 5, 1870, in Concord Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania.

Thomas Graham, father of Harry L., was born September 10, 1840, in Concord Township, Butler County, on the farm which his father, Edward Graham, Sr., entered from the Government in 1797. Thomas Graham is one of Concord Township's representative agriculturists.

Harry L. Graham attended the public schools and then enjoyed academic training both at North Washington and West Sunbury, Pa., graduating at the latter institution in June, 1889, when he entered the University at Wooster, Ohio, where he completed his collegiate course in June, 1893, two years later receiving his degree of A. M. Upon his return from the University, in 1893, Mr. Graham began the study of law, with Attorney S. F. Bowser, and was admitted to the bar on December 11, 1895. He has also been admitted to practice in the Supreme and Superior Courts of the State of Pennsylvania and the United States District Courts of Western Pennsylvania. With the exception of a short period, Mr. Graham has been in continuous practice at Butler ever since his admission to the bar. In 1890 he served as Deputy Prothonotary and for six years was a member of the Board of Auditors of Butler. He has given attention to all public questions and is identified with the Republican party, in 1900 serving as secretary of the Republican County Committee. Aside from politics, however, Mr. Graham has been an active citizen, lending his influence to all movements promising to be of practical benefit to this section.

In October, 1900, Mr. Graham was married to Julia Stephenson Creigh, who is a granddaughter of Dr. Alfred Creigh, of Washington, Pa. They have one son, Harry Lee, Jr. Mr. Graham is a member of St. Peter's Episcopal Church of Butler, Pa., and Mrs. Graham is a member of the First Presbyterian Church, also of Butler, Pa. In his fraternal relations, he is a member of the Ancient and Illustrious order of Knights of Malta; Temple Lodge of I. O. O. F. and Clement Encampment; Knights of Maccabees; Keystone Camp, No. 8, Woodmen of the World, F. M. C. and other organizations.

ERNEST ULYSSES SNYDER, M. D., of Portersville, Butler County, Pennsylvania, has built up a large practice in the community, in which he is widely known. He was born two miles northwest of Unionville, in Franklin Township, Butler County, March 17, 1880, and comes of one of the pioneer families thereof. He is a son of Lorenzo and Canarissa (Weigle) Snyder, who have a farm of 100 acres just off the Butler and Mercer Road, about two miles from Unionville.

Lorenzo Snyder is a son of Zephaniah and Rachel (Kennedy) Snyder, and a grandson of Conrad Snyder, Sr., who was the original settler. He came from Switzerland at an early date, and in 1800 took up a tract of 600 acres in what was then Brady Township, and in the early days conducted a tavern. He was a man of exceptional ability and in time added to his possessions until he had 2,600 acres of fine land. At his death he was buried on the home farm. Lorenzo and Canarissa Snyder became parents of five children, as follows: Blanche E., wife of W. M. Hockenbury of Worth Township; Ottis L., who has a farm in Muddy Creek Township and who married Miss Jennie Wigton; Ernest Ulysses; Mary S., deceased; and Bert W., who carries on farming operations on his father's farm.

Doctor Snyder attended the district schools and worked on the farm until he was eighteen years of age, when he entered Shippery Roek State Normal School. Upon leaving that institution he taught school at Brewster, and later at Unionville, after which he matriculated at the Western University of Pennsylvania. He was graduated in 1905, with the degree of M. D., after which he served as interne in the General Hospital at Uniontown. He then opened his office for practice at Portersville, and has a well established and remunerative patronage. Fraternally, he is a member of the Lawrence County Medical Society.

February 14, 1906, Dr. Snyder was united in marriage with Miss Elverda McCandless, a daughter of J. J. and Etta McCandless, she also being descended from one of the earliest families of the county. They have one daughter, Marjorie. In religious attachment, they are members of the Baptist Church and are liberal in its support.

VALENTINE WHITENER, an influential and enterprising business man of Buena Vista, has been a resident of Fairview Township since 1873. He was born February 11, 1843, in Shipperville, Clarion County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Valentine and Margaret (Cook) Whitener.

Valentine Whitener and his wife were both born in Germany and came to this country on the same ship. Three years later they were married and lived for about twelve years in Pittsburg, where he worked at brick laying. Mr. Whitener died at Green Oaks, Westmoreland County, and his wife died at Prospect in 1863. They had the following children: Valentine; Caroline, deceased; Philip, deceased; Katherine; Leonard and Adam.

Valentine Whitener received his educational training in the schools of Pittsburg, Green Oak, and Butler County. Upon first entering the business world he drove a team of mules in a coal mine in Westmoreland County for some time, after which he worked for a time in a brick yard. He then began work in the oil fields, spending three days working on the first oil well drilled at Franklin. He has continued with success in the oil business since that time and is interested in a large number of oil wells in this locality. He owns stock in the Evans Manufacturing Company of Butler and the Producers Pipe Line Company. Subsequent to his marriage he moved to Lawrenceburg, where he worked in the oil fields for about two years, after which he went to Greece City, and engaged in the same business for one year, since which time he has been a resident of Fairview Township. For a period of five years he was construction boss of the Standard Pipe line.

Mr. Whitener served throughout the entire Civil War and first enlisted in Company E, 103d Penna. Vol. Inf. for eleven months after which he enlisted in Company E, 78th Penna. Vol. Inf. and served to the close of the war. Subsequent to the two days of fighting at the battle of Fairfax Court House, our subject was sent to the hospital for three months, thence home for six months, and as soon as able returned to his company. At the close of the war he was discharged at Washington, D. C.

Mr. Whitener owns a fine farm of eighty-seven acres in Muddy Creek Township, a tract of five acres in Fairview Township, as well as two pieces of town property. He is a man of public spirit and enterprise and has served his township as supervisor two terms. He is a member of the G. A. R., McDermott Post, and holds membership with the United Presbyterian Church of Fairview.

Mr. Whitener was married January 27, 1870, to Martha Ann English, a daughter of William and Mary Ann English, old settlers of Muddy Creek Township, and of their union were born the following children: Carrie, deceased; Margaret, who resides with our subject, was married June 7, 1892, to Henry C. Thorne, and has two children—Elsie and Aubrey; O. S. married Nettie Stewart and resides in Concord Township; Della May married R. L. Walter of Concord Township and has one child—Dora E.; and Dora, deceased, twin of Della May. Mrs. Whitener died August 15, 1908.

AUGUSTUS BOWERS, a leading business citizen of Prospect, where he operates a drug store, was born August 18, 1849, at Baltimore, Maryland, and is a son of Adam and Elizabeth (Bitner) Bauers, the latter being the German spelling.

The father of Mr. Bowers was born in Bavaria, Germany, and took part in the Revolution of 1848 and came in that year as a refugee to America, landing at Baltimore. He remained in that city, and throughout his active life followed the cooper's trade. He married and he and wife had the following children: Augustus; Charles A., residing at Baltimore; Ferdinand, residing at Chicago; John, deceased; and Katherine, wife of John Zinser, residing in Chicago.

Augustus Bowers attended school in his native city until he was twelve years of age, and at the age of sixteen years came to Pittsburg and entered a cooperage establishment, having learned the trade with his father in Baltimore. As this did not suit his taste he learned that of marble cutter, which he followed for fifteen years or more. In 1869 he came to Prospect and at first was employed by George Reed and later became his partner and before he retired from the business had a marble and monument shop of his own. In 1885 he started into the drug business and since then has conducted his store at Prospect.

Mr. Bowers married Margaret Dodds Martin, whose mother and twin sister died when she was born and she was reared by her uncle, Jesse Dodds, in Franklin Township. Mr. and Mrs. Bowers have reared four of their five children, namely: Jesse D., residing at Pittsburg; Charles A., residing in Slippery Rock; William Dickey, residing in Wilmerding; and Hattie A., wife of Dr. William A. Sproull, of Slippery Rock. Mr. and Mrs. Bowers are members of the Presbyterian Church at Prospect, of which he is a trustee. In politics, he is a Democrat and he has served as school director and auditor and also has been a member of the council of the borough of Prospect. He was appointed postmaster during President Grover Cleveland's first administration, serving four years; was again appointed during Cleveland's second term, serving four years more; in addition to above, served eight years as assistant postmaster. Fraternal-ly, he is an Odd Fellow and belongs to Rustel Lodge, No. 882, of which he is past grand, and also belongs to the Portersville Encampment. Personally Mr. Bowers is a popular citizen.

DARIUS L. HUTCHISON, residing on his excellent farm of ninety acres, which is situated in Washington Township, has long been one of the representative and enterprising men of this section. He was born in Concord Township, Butler County, June 21, 1856, and is a son of Samuel C. and Catherine (Kuhn) Hutchison.

Samuel C. Hutchison was born in Oakland Township, Butler County, and was a son of Fergus and a grandson of William Hutchison, the latter of whom founded the family in Butler County. Samuel C. Hutchison lived in Oakland Township until 1863, when he removed with his family to Washington Township and settled on the farm on which his son Darius L. now lives, and here he died February 20, 1894. He married Catherine Kuhn, who was born in Venango Township, Butler County, died December 11, 1890. Two of their children survive—Darius L. and Idella, the latter of whom lives in Washington Township. For over a quarter of a century, Samuel C. Hutchison served in the office of school director in Washington Township and on the Republican party's ticket he was elected, at various times, constable, assessor and collector, his many sterling traits of character making him an ideal citizen. He gave liberal support to the Presbyterian Church, of which both he and wife were worthy members.

Darius L. Hutchison accompanied his parents to Washington Township in 1863, and he attended school here and assisted his father, later becoming the owner of the home farm, where he carries on general farming and stockraising. Mr. Hutchison married Miss Ada Smith, of Parker Township, a daughter of Thomas Smith, and they have three children—Margaret, Frances and Catherine. In politics he is affiliated with the Republican party and is something of a leader in Washington Township. He served one year as supervisor and has also been a member of the board of elections. He is a Mason, belonging to Argyle Lodge, No. 540, F. & A. M.

ORIN P. GRAHAM, who comes of one of the oldest and most respected families of Cranberry Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, resides on the old homestead of 110 acres of valuable land. He was born along Brush Creek, in Cranberry Township, July 8, 1842, and is a son of Oliver H. P. and Elizabeth (Morgan) Graham.

The first of the Graham family to locate in Butler County were William and Matthew Graham, sons of Matthew Graham, Sr. As early as 1706 they left their home in Philadelphia, seeking a location in the western part of the state. They dickered for a time for the farm on which the city of McKeesport now stands, but failing to consummate the deal left for Butler County, where they purchased land in Cranberry Township. William Graham was the grandfather of the subject of this record. He was born January 27, 1783, and was but thirteen years old when he accompanied his brother to Cranberry Township. He became a prominent figure in the early life of this community, and was widely known in the county. He conducted school for some seasons in different homes and was ever among the foremost in the advancement of the interests of the community. He served in the United States Army during the War of 1812. William Graham was united in marriage with Susan McDonald, who was born in Bedford County, Pennsylvania, but was living in Mercer County at the time of marriage. They became parents of eleven children, as follows: William, who married Elizabeth Bowers; David; John; Oliver H. P.; Eliza, who was the wife of Jacob Hartzell; Susan, who was the wife of Dr. Thomas Stewart; Joseph, who resided in Iowa at the time of his death; Samuel; Minerva, who was wife of J. M. McKee; James H., who formerly lived in Penn Township, but is now a resident of the borough of Butler, being past the age of eighty-three years; and Harvey, who was a resident of Colorado. The mother of this family passed away in 1831, and Mr. Graham continued to reside in Cranberry Township until 1856, when he went to live with his son, James H., who then resided in Bedford County. He died there in 1861. For many years he was an elder of Plains Presbyterian Church. He was a Whig in politics until the organization of the Republican party, when he became one of its ardent supporters.

Oliver H. P. Graham was born in Cranberry Township May 5, 1814, and was reared on the home farm; his educational training was mainly received under the tutelage of his father. He was a great hunter in his young days, and killed many deers and other game. He lived a long and useful life and passed his declining years in the home of the subject of this sketch, dying December 5, 1895, at the age of eighty-two years. He was united in marriage with Elizabeth Morgan, a daughter of Robert Morgan. She was born in Beaver County, Pennsylvania, and died in 1858, at the age of thirty-eight years. Oliver H. P. and Elizabeth Graham had the following children: Ethelinda, wife of Dr. J. D. Fitzpatrick of Dunkirk, Indiana; Orin Palmer, subject of this sketch; Hermas, who died at the age of eighteen years; Sabina, who died in 1860 at the age of eighteen; Angie, who was the wife of W. G. Sutton of Dunkirk and died in 1900; Robert E., deceased, who married Anna Baker of Beaver County, Pennsylvania; Leander S., who died in infancy; and Rev. O. H. P. Graham, Jr., a Methodist minister at Sheridan, Allegheny County, who married Elizabeth Hall of Beaver County.

Orin P. Graham was reared to maturity on the home farm, and received his education in the public schools. He has always engaged in agricultural pursuits, and since 1871 has had charge of the home farm, on which he did most of the clearing. He erected a large and substantial barn in 1876, and one year later built the comfortable home which now stands on the place. He has always been identified with the best interests of the community and has frequently been called upon to serve in positions of public trust. He was school director for a number of years and is now servng his second term as justice of the peace. He has discharged the duties of this office in a most capable manner, and enjoys the confidence and esteem of his fellow citizens.

January 28, 1869, Mr. Graham was married to Miss Mary A. Allan, whose father, Nicol Allan, was a native of Scotland. He learned the trade of a brush maker in that country, and after coming to the United States established a brush factory at Pittsburg. He continued there with success for some years, then retired to a farm which he purchased adjoining the Graham homestead in Cranberry Township. The following children were the offspring of this union: Janet, who died at the age of nineteen years; Allan, who lives at East McKeesport; Howard K., who died in childhood; Park F., who assists his father in conducting the farm; Franklin F., a student in Allegheny Seminary, who is preparing for the ministry; Mary V., who is the wife of W. J. Rowan and resides near Ogle, in Canberry Township; and Stanley P., who also is at home. Allan Graham was first married to Mary Russell, who died July 5, 1900, leaving a son, Orin Russell, who makes his home with the subject of this sketch. Allan formed a second union in 1904 with Sarah Holler of Bedford County, and they have three children: John, Floyd and Reobeth May. Religiously, Mr. and Mrs. Graham are members of the Plains Presbyterian Church, of which he is an elder. He is a Republican in politics.

HENRY C. WELSH, one of Penn Township's reliable and representative citizens, whose finely improved farm of 106 acres indicates properly that he has made a success of his agricultural enterprises, belongs to an old Butler County family. He was born in Connoquenessing Township, December 11, 1848, and is a son of James Welsh, and a grandson of John Welsh.

It was the grandfather, John Welsh, who founded the family in America. He was born in Ireland and came to the American colonies in 1770 and served as a soldier in the War of the Revolution, receiving a serious wound at the battle of Brandywine. Later he settled in Westmoreland County, Penna., and in 1800 moved from there to Butler County, where he invested in 250 acres of land and became a resident of Connoquenessing Township. At that time pioneer conditions prevailed, the country was covered with the primeval forests, wild animals and Indians still were numerous and all the luxuries and most of the necessities of life were wanting. He lived to see, however, his lands cleared, cultivated and improved and to catch a glimpse of that civilization which has made this one of the most favored sections of Butler County. His children were: William, James, Thomas, John, all of whom served in the War of 1812, and Mrs. Susan Brandon, Mrs. Elizabeth Shannon and Mrs. Morrow.

James Welsh, father of Henry C., was born in Westmoreland County, Penna., about 1785, and he accompanied his parents to Connoquenessing Township, where, in the course of time, he became one of the leading citizens. He came into possession of his father's estate and lived through life on the homestead, dying in 1878, aged ninety-three years. He was married three times and children were born to each union. In early days he was a Whig, but later became identified with the Republican party and was a staunch adherent. He was a kind, charitable man and was a worthy member of the Presbyterian Church.

Henry C. Welsh was reared on the homestead and obtained his education in the country schools. He remained on the old farm in Connoquenessing Township until 1889, when he bought his present farm in Penn Township. He has all but ten of his 106 acres under cultivation, has considerable fine stock and productive orchards. His buildings are probably as fine as can be found in any rural district in Butler County, his handsome, modern residence having been erected in 1892.

Mr. Welsh married a daughter of a neighboring farmer in Penn Township, Miss Elizabeth Brown, and they have had six children, namely: Lucile C., Clara B., Stella E., James E., Paul B. and a son who died unnamed. Mr. Welsh belongs with his family to the Brownsdale Methodist Episcopal Church. He has long been active in church work, has served as Sunday-school superintendent and as trustee, treasurer and steward. Mr. Welsh is known as a man of strictness, fairness and integrity in all his dealings with his fellow citizens and as a man of such good judgment as to give weight to his opinions on matters pertaining to the welfare of the community. He has not been unduly active in politics, but on numerous occasions has been elected to local offices on the Republican ticket.

CHARLES H. BOOK, a representative citizen of Cherry Township, residing on his farm of 101 acres of well-cultivated land, was born March 14, 1847, at New Castle, Pennsylvania, and is a son of James and Mary (Studebaker) Book.

During the infancy of Mr. Book, his parents returned to their farm in Worth Township, Butler County, on which they had previously lived, and remained in Worth Township until 1859, when they settled on the land owned by their two sons, Charles H. and Uriah H., in Cherry Township. At that time the land was nothing short of a wilderness. James Book cleared it and erected a comfortable dwelling. He died here April 8, 1868, and was survived by his widow until February 2, 1885. The surviving children are: Charles H., Uriah H. and Capt. D. F. Book of New Castle. He enlisted in August of '61 in the war of the Rebellion and served to the end of the war; was captain of Company E, One Hundredth Regiment, known as the Round Heads.

Uriah H. Book, who resides with his brother, Charles H., was born October 8, 1850, in Worth Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania. He learned the carriage-making trade and worked at the same for ten years at Louisville, Kentucky, Chattanooga, Tennessee, and Green Hill, Pennsylvania. For several years he was also engaged in merchandising at Keisters and Coaltown, and at the latter place was postmaster. For some years he was also interested in oil production. He has been identified considerably with public affairs in the township, and in February, 1908, he was elected justice of the peace, on the Republican ticket. He is serving in his second year as assessor of Cherry Township. He owns fifty acres of land and the brothers operate the two farms together.

Charles H. Book married Martha Wasson, who was born in Clay Township, Butler County, and resided at West Sunbury until she was twelve years old. For the next three years she lived on a farm in Clay Township, three miles from the village and then went to Washington Township, where she was living at the time of her marriage. Her parents were William and Margaret (Gordon) Wasson. Her father was killed at the battle of the Wilderness, during the Civil War. Her mother survived her great bereavement for many years, dying in June, 1907, when aged eighty-seven years. After their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Book went to housekeeping on the present farm and Mr. Book immediately built a fine frame residence. This home was destroyed by fire, December 10, 1898, but it was soon replaced by the present still finer house, one of substantial construction and fitted with every comfort. On December 1, 1908, Charles H. Book had his barn burned with all hay and four head of horses and twelve head of milch cows and other cattle, as well as a wagon shed and granary, with at least 1,500 bushels of grain and all farm machinery, entailing a loss of about five thousand dollars. He is now preparing to build another barn.

The Book brothers are connected not only by kinship, but they are congenial comrades, look at business matters in the same light and are the same in their views on politics and religion. Both are elders in the Pleasant Valley Presbyterian Church.

JOHN SCHAFFNER, a prominent business citizen of Butler and a veteran of the Civil War, has engaged in general contracting for many years and has had some of the largest paving and tunneling contracts in this section of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Schaffner was born on the home farm in Butler Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, April 11, 1844, and is a son of Jacob and Anna Maria (Martin) Schaffner. His father, who was born in Germany, came to America with his young wife soon after their marriage and settled on a farm in Butler Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania. He subsequently moved to Slippery Rock Township, where he rented a farm for a time, then returned to his farm in Butler Township, which he cleared and farmed. After the death of his wife, he lived at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Frank Cook, until he too was called to the unknown beyond. Jacob Schaffner was a Republican in politics, and was one of the first census takers in Butler County. He and his wife were parents of five children: Frances, who has been a Sister in Notre Dame Convent for more than fifty years; Samuel; Marie, wife of Frank Cook; George of Springdale; and John, whose name heads this sketch.

John Schaffner grew to maturity on the home farm, which he aided in clearing, and received a common school education. In 1865, when nineteen years of age, he enlisted under Captain Shaw in Company

D, Seventy-seventh Reg. Penna. Vol. Inf., and was stationed in Texas. Six months after the close of the war, he returned north to Butler County, and farmed the home farm on shares for a period of eleven years. He then worked for Davis, Hand and Dan as master quarryman for four years, after which he turned his attention to contract work. He has followed general contracting throughout this section of Pennsylvania and has had some big undertakings, always filling his contract to the letter. He has been especially active in paving and tunnel work, and among other contracts built a tunnel of 3,450 feet at DuBois, Pennsylvania, and paved fifteen miles of streets in Butler. He has the contract for paving Pittsburg Street in Evans City, which work is now going on, it being the first paved street of any of the smaller towns of the county. His residence in Butler is at No. 410 East Clay Street.

In June, 1868, Mr. Schaffner was united in marriage with Miss Catherine Mayscheine, a daughter of Michael Mayscheine, and they became parents of seven children: Amelia, wife of George Troutman, a dry goods merchant of Butler; Harry G., who married Ella Call, and has seven children—Vinson, Ethel, Michael D., Lorine, Joseph, Mary and Raymond, the last named living with our subject; Agnes, wife of John Kemper, has one boy, Leonard; Paul; Cecelia; Leo, who married Lillian Munyon and has two children—Mary Catherine Deloris and Francis Patrick; and Josephine. Religiously, they are members of the German Catholic Church at Butler, and Mr. Schaffner is a member of the C. M. B. A. In political affiliation, he is a Republican.

THEODORE VOGLEY, of Butler, was born in this city in 1867, youngest son of William and Mary E. Vogeley. His paternal grandfather, George Vogeley, usually known as George Vogeley, Sr., was a native of Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, and was born August 5, 1793. This early progenitor of the family, coming to the United States in 1836, first settled in Pittsburg, where for three years he followed the trade of shoemaking. He then removed to Butler County, opening a general store at Saxonburg, where also he continued to prosecute his trade. At a later date he became proprietor of a hotel in that village, which he conducted for about twenty-five years. In 1866 he retired from active business and removed to Butler, where his death subsequently took place, February 22, 1871. He was for many years a leading citizen of Saxonburg. He was at first a member of the Evangelical Church, but after locating in Butler County united with the Reformed Church, of which he was thereafter an active member. In politics he was at first a Whig and afterwards a Republican. He married in Germany Anna E. Mardorf, and their family numbered eleven children, namely: Conrad, who died in Pittsburg in 1883; Christopher, who died in Allegheny County in 1871; John, who died in California in 1879; William, who died in Butler in 1873; George Jr., who died in Butler in 1896; Edward, who died in California in 1850; Anna, who married Frederick Hollman, and died in 1906; Annie G., who died in infancy; Mary E., who also died young; Charles C., a resident of San Francisco; Hannah, who married Ferdinand Weigand, and died in 1895; and James, who resides in Tarentum, Pa.

William Vogeley, fourth son of George and Anna E. Vogeley, was born in Germany, December 10, 1822, and received a limited education in his native town. After the family settled in Saxonburg, this county, he worked for his father until 1842, at which time he came to Butler. Soon after he purchased the Rising Sun tavern, a log structure, which stood upon the site of the Vogeley House, now the Arlington. He erected the latter and conducted it up to the time of retirement in 1867. In addition to his hotel interests, he was largely engaged in the real estate business, also in farming, and operated a coal mine that was situated on his farm. He was a public spirited citizen who took an active interest in local affairs and who exercised a strong influence for good in the community. He was one of the original members of the Reformed Church in Butler and contributed liberally towards the erection of the old church building on Mifflin Street, now occupied by the Baptist congregation. He was one of the first directors of the Butler Savings Bank and was identified with that institution for many years. Mr. Vogeley married Mary E., daughter of John Oesterling, of Summit Township, a native of Germany. They had eleven children, of whom six died in youth and five grew to maturity, namely: David E., who was teller of the Butler Savings Bank, and died in 1875; Annie, wife of W. H. Enslinger; Mary, wife of W. F. Metzger; Amelia, wife of W. A. Stein; and Theodore. Mr. Vogeley died October 5, 1873, and his widow died December 25, 1899.

Theodore Vogeley obtained his literary education in the public schools of Butler and at Capital University, Columbus, Ohio, and is also a graduate of Duff's Commercial College, Pittsburg. He began industrial life as bookkeeper for the Fisher Oil Company, and was later promoted to the position of superintendent. Subsequently, he was for a time connected with the oil industry in this section. In 1890 he engaged in the real estate and insurance business, with which line of business enterprise he has since been prominently connected. Mr. Vogeley is a stockholder in the Butler Savings and Trust Company, the Butler County Fair Association, and the Cottage Hill Land Company, of which he is secretary. He is one of the stirring young business men of the city, whose wisely directed energies redound not only to his own personal benefit, but contribute to the general prosperity of the community, and for whom doubtless the future holds many good things yet in store.

Mr. Vogeley was married in 1895 to Miss Mignonette Gumpper, a daughter of G. H. Gumpper of Butler. Mr. and Mrs. Vogeley are the parents of three children: Dorothy Gumpper, Theodore Kenneth, and Raymond Alfred. Mr. Vogeley is a member of St. Mark's German Lutheran Church. He also belongs to the Country Club and to the Sterling Club, select social organizations. In politics he is a Republican.

DENNIS P. McGUIRK, a leading stone and brick contractor at Butler, and one of the city's representative and respected citizens, was born October 11, 1850, in Marion Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania.

Thomas McGuirk, father of Dennis P., was born in County Cork, Ireland, emigrated in youth to America, and came to Butler about 1844. He settled in Marion Township, Butler County, where he cultivated land and followed his trade of stone cutter.

Dennis P. McGuirk went to school until he was thirteen years old, the sessions being held in an old log building not far from his father's place in Marion Township. He then began hard work, learning the stonemason's trade with his uncle, James McGuirk. Mr. McGuirk has continued thus occupied for half a century and few masons in this section, if any, have done more or better work. Since 1884 he has given his attention to contracting and his name on a contract gives assurance that the work will be up to specifications and completed on time.

In 1873 Mr. McGuirk was married to Miss Marilla Crawford, who was born and reared in Butler County, and they have the following children: Thomas H., who is engaged in contracting at Butler; Grover; Sadie; and Pearl and Ethel, both residing at home. Mr. McGuirk is a member of St. Paul's Catholic Church at Butler. He is interested in the charitable work of the church and for fifteen years has been a member of the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association. In his political views he is a Democrat.

DANIEL McMAHON, farmer of Clearfield Township, was the son of Michael McMahon, and was born in 1840, in Ireland. When three months of age he was brought to America by his parents, who became residents of Clearfield Township, Butler County, and here he grew to manhood. Besides farming, the McMahon men were employed about the mills and iron furnaces of that period, and the summer of 1861 found Daniel in West Virginia engaged in the furnace business. The breaking out of the Civil War put a stop to the business in which he was engaged, and Mr. McMahon enlisted in Company K, Second Regiment, West Virginia Cavalry, and served in the Federal Army until his regiment was mustered out of service in the fall of 1864. He was twice promoted in the line of duty, and was discharged as a sergeant. For distinguished service and bravery in the line of duty, he was presented with a medal by the State of West Virginia, which bears the inscription, "The State of West Virginia, 1861-1865," and on the reverse side, the coat of arms of the state.

After his discharge from the army, Mr. McMahon returned to Butler County and engaged in farming, which occupation he continued until his death, July 31, 1899. November 28, 1865, he was married to Miss Teresa, daughter of Manassa Dugan, a pioneer of Clearfield Township. Four daughters were born to this union, viz.: Mary T.; Katherine; Sarah B., wife of Andrew Coyle of Butler; and Grace A., known in the order of the Sisters of Mercy as Sister Veronica. After the death of Mr. McMahon in 1899, the widow and daughters removed to Butler, where they now reside. The family are members of St. Paul's Catholic Church. Manassa Dugan, above mentioned, came to Clearfield Township in 1794, when about twelve years of age. He was the son of Dennis Dugan, who made the original settlement on the tract of land now owned by Mrs. Daniel McMahon. He married Grace Dugan, daughter of Cornelius Dugan, of Donegal Township, who was not related to him. They were the parents of seventeen children. With the exception of three who died in infancy, all of this remarkable family lived to maturity, and became prominent factors in the early development of Clearfield Township and other sections of the county. The names of these children were: Andrew; Mary (Duff); Peter; Manassa, Jr.; Dennis; Bridget (McClafferty); Margaret; Nancy (McCrea); Elizabeth (Denny); Katherine (Giles); Teresa (McMahon); Michael; and John. The log dwelling house which is still standing on the McMahon farm in Clearfield Township was erected by Manassa Dugan about 1800, and is probably the oldest house in the township. Manassa Dugan was a soldier in the War of 1812, and up until his death, about 1840, was one of the active and progressive citizens of the eastern section of the county.

OLIVER W. STOUGHTON, who, as superintendent of the Butler County Home, has made this public institution a credit to Butler County, is one of her best known and esteemed citizens. Mr. Stoughton was born March 6, 1853, in Clay Township, Butler County, Penna., and is a son of Matthew and Margaret (Davis) Stoughton.

Mr. Stoughton comes of sturdy old American stock. On both sides his grandfathers were upright, honorable men. Grandfather Stoughton was a leading member of Mt. Zion Baptist Church in Franklin Township, Butler County, in which he at times served officially, while Grandfather Davis was equally prominent in St. John's Methodist Episcopal Church, situated in Clay Township. They both had come to the county as pioneers and both became men of substance and large landowners. They were both of the type that promoted the solid growth of the section which was fortunate in securing them and through long and worthy lives they encouraged and promoted the enterprises which resulted in the present fertile fields, churches, schools, charities, and happy households amid peaceful surroundings.

Mathew Stoughton, father of Oliver W., was born in Clay Township, Butler County, in 1831, and died in 1855, when aged but twenty-four years. During his short life after reaching maturity, he was associated with his cousin, Oliver Stoughton, of Harlansburg, in the stock business. He married Margaret Davis, who was born in Franklin Township, Butler County, in 1830, and is a daughter of Samuel Davis. To this union two children were born: Oliver W. and Mary Isabella, the latter of whom is deceased. Some time later, Mrs. Stoughton was married (second) to Robert J. Davis, and three sons were born to that marriage, namely: Elmer, residing at Unionville, Butler County; Otis M., deceased; and James Monroe, also of Unionville. The mother lives at Unionville, where she is a valued member of the Presbyterian Church. Although she has reached her seventy-eighth year, she is active in body and alert in mind.

When Oliver W. Stoughton was about four years of age, he went to live with his maternal grandfather and some years afterward, another relative, Mrs. Susan Davis, took charge of him and with her he resided until he was twelve years old and then became a member of the family of Thomas Brannon, with whom he remained for five years. For this man Mr. Stoughton cherishes feelings of esteem and veneration. To the fatherless boy he was as a parent and gave him a real home, being interested in his schooling, health and comfort. When seventeen years of age, Mr. Stoughton left the kind care of Mr. Brannon in order to prepare himself for a future life of usefulness. He came to Butler with the expectation of starting to learn the wagonmaking trade, but circumstances prevented and he worked awhile with farmers and then learned the plastering trade. While working as a plasterer in the summer he went to the Unionville schools in the winter until his health partially failed. Then he decided to prepare himself for teaching and attended Witherspoon Institute for three terms, after which he taught school for some years, mainly through the winter seasons, during 1874-5-6-7 and 1878. In the meanwhile he was married and in 1876, while he was teaching, his capable wife carried on a store at Holyoke, in Center Township. In April, 1878, Mr. and Mrs. Stoughton moved to Brady Township and opened up a store and the enterprise gave such promise of success that he decided to give up teaching and devote his entire attention to merchandising.

Mr. Stoughton continued his store business for several years when he decided to engage in farming and after selling his stock, he rented a farm in Brady Township, which he operated for two years and then repurchased his old store and continued to operate it for some years longer. He still cherished, however, a desire for an agricultural life and again bought a farm, this time in Prospect borough. While living there he organized and became the manager of the Prospect Creamery, his associates in the business being: John W. Shaffer, N. S. Grossman, James Wilson and David West. The creamery plant was built by a Pittsburg company that failed to make it a success and Mr. Stoughton and his associates purchased the property for $1,000. A loss of a considerable amount, through early mismanagement, threw the burden of indebtedness on Mr. Stoughton, and he found himself liable for more than he felt able to pay, but he assumed the debts and every dollar was reimbursed. The selling of that plant followed and a new one was erected and as Mr. Stoughton had full charge there he made it pay for itself and when he disposed of his interest in 1898, the plant was paying out to the neighboring farmers from $700 to $900 a month.

After leaving Prospect, Mr. Stoughton went to Evans City and for one year conducted a store there, which he sold in order to become superintendent of the Condensed Milk plant at Cowdersport, where he remained for one year. In 1901 he purchased the John C. Moore farm in Center Township, containing 150 acres, which he and sons have developed into one of the best estates in this part of Butler County. The sons give all their attention to the various industries of this place, cultivating the land scientifically, raising fifty head of cattle and many horses, and wholesaling milk to the amount of $2,500 a year. Almost all of this large farm is under cultivation, scientific cultivation, and it produces abundantly, in 1908 they having a yield of 133 bushels of corn to the acre. Mr. Stoughton has two silos on his own farm, one of 200 ton and the other of fifty ton. His buildings are substantial and all his surroundings indicate the effect of intelligent observation and practical application.

Mr. Stoughton was married to Parmelia Agnes Garvin, the estimable daughter of Benjamin Garvin, a farmer of Cranberry Township, Butler County. Mr. and Mrs. Stoughton have had five children, two of whom died in infancy, the three survivors being: Lester G. and George W., who operate the farm in Center Township; and Samuel J., who is in the employ of the Heintz Manufacturing Company. Mr. and Mrs. Stoughton are members of the United Presbyterian Church at Holyoke, in which he is an elder and Sunday-school superintendent since 1880.

In 1906, Mr. Stoughton was appointed superintendent of the Butler County Home and his wife became the matron of the institution. The Home accommodates 200 or more inmates. The county farm contains 125 acres under cultivation, there being 190 acres in the tract. Since Mr. Stoughton has had charge but two hands are needed in the summer and one in winter, the inmates being able to do the rest of the work. Mr. Stoughton applies the same scientific methods to cultivating the farm here that he does on his own property and in 1907 he sold produce to the amount of $1,997, and at the same time supported the inmates comfortably. In all branches of management, he and wife adopt the most modern methods and have succeeded in making this institution a model one. In politics he is a Republican.

JAMES WILSON McCANDLESS, proprietor of a blacksmithing establishment and repair shop at Eau Claire, comes of an old and well known family of Clay Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, where he was born. The date of his birth is January 7, 1839, and he is a son of Robert D. and Elizabeth (Turk) McCandless.

Robert D. McCandless was the youngest of four children born to his parents, the others being: James, who married a Miss McKlin; William, who first intermarried with the Ralston family, and later with Miss Ann McCall of Butler; and Mark, who married a Miss Russell. Robert D. was united in the bonds of wedlock with Elizabeth Turk, a daughter of John Turk of Center Township, Butler County, and to them were born six children: Emma, who married William McCall of Glade Mills, Butler County; Martha, who married Samuel McCall and lives in Missouri; Caldwell, who married Nancy McCandless, a daughter of Robert McCandless, and has two children; David, who is a blacksmith at Euclid; and Mary (Wick) of Butler County; John, who married Jane Thompson, a daughter of John Thompson, and has four children—Thompson, Elizabeth, Maggie and Carr; Reddick R., who first married a Miss Reider, and later a Miss Deere; and James W., whose name heads this sketch.

James Wilson McCandless attended the old Reider school and the Miller school in Clay Township, and then took up the trade of a blacksmith in 1856 under his brother John at Beaver Falls. He subsequently worked at his trade in West Sunbury, and at Dudley Furnace. He was working at Fairview during the early part of the Civil War, and in 1862 enlisted as a member of the Sixty-second Regiment, P. V. I., under Colonel Black. He saw much hard service and continued in the army until the last year of the war, being mustered out in 1865. He then resumed his trade at Anderson's Mills in Venango Township and continued there until 1870, when he located at Eau Claire. He has since conducted a blacksmith shop in that borough and has met with a high degree of success. He is the owner of three good properties there, and has good substantial buildings located thereon. He is deeply interested in matters of public improvement, and is a progressive and public spirited citizen.

Mr. McCandless was joined in marriage with Miss Sarah Sutton, a daughter of James Sutton of Fairview Township, and they became parents of the following: R. J., who married Nettie Scott, a daughter of John Scott of Eau Claire; Ursu, who married Nellie Woner and has two children, Arthur and a daughter who has not yet been named; May H., deceased wife of Solomon McCall, by whom she had two children, Earl and Clyde. In religious attachment, Mr. McCandless has been a member of the M. E. Church of the borough for more than a score of years. He is officer of the day of S. J. Rosebury Post, No. 538, G. A. R., at Eau Claire. Politically, he is a Republican.

PROF. P. S. BANCROFT was born in Litchfield County, Connecticut, where his parents and maternal grandparents long resided. Earl Bancroft, the father of the subject of this sketch, moved to Crawford County, Pennsylvania, when the latter was eight years of age, settling on a farm near Meadville. The son was brought up on the farm and educated at Allegheny College, Meadville, where he graduated in the class of 1855. He taught Greek and Latin in Madison College, Uniontown, Pennsylvania, for two years, and in 1861 he entered the 111th Pennsylvania Volunteers, as a Second Lieutenant, and subsequently became a member of the Third Regiment Veteran Reserve Corps, serving in all nearly four years, during the last two of which he held the rank of Captain. In 1866 Professor Bancroft married Bella Brinker, youngest daughter of Col. Jacob Brinker, and granddaughter of Abraham Brinker, one of the first settlers of Butler. They had two sons, and one daughter, viz.: Earl D. of Butler; Grove G., deceased; and Flora G., wife of William H. Tilton, of Butler. Professor Bancroft came to Butler in 1877, and was for several years principal of old Witherspoon Institute, but finally abandoned teaching for newspaper work. He began writing for the Butler Eagle in March, 1888, and in October 1, 1889, became associate editor of the Butler County Record, a position which he still holds. Professor Bancroft and family are members of St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal Church, of Butler, and in politics he is a supporter of the Republican party.

WILLIAM C. NEGLEY, editor of the Butler Citizen, is a son of John H. and Mary (Harper) Negley, and a grandson of John Negley, the pioneer of Butler. He was born in Butler borough December 18, 1850, attended the public schools of the borough, and passed a short term in what is known as the Old Stone Academy, and in 1865, he entered the United States Academy at Annapolis, and there studied for four years. After completing his studies at the Academy, the condition of his health obliged him to abandon the naval service and he returned to Butler, where he became associated with his father in the publication of the Citizen. He became sole owner and publisher of the Citizen in 1888 and still continues in the active duties of the office. Mr. Negley was married in January, 1878, to Mrs. Emma Stauffer, daughter of Squire Armor, of Zelenople. To them have been born seven children, three of whom are living: William, of California; John, of Butler; and Emma, who is married.

Mr. Negley has always been a staunch Republican, and in his capacity as editor of the Citizen has rendered invaluable services to his party in the county.

WILLIAM E. LACKEY, proprietor of the Lackey Hotel at Chicora, is one of the prominent men of Donegal Township. He was born in this township, one mile east of Chicora, September 25, 1857, son of James K. and Elizabeth (Wolfer) Lackey. His parents were old settlers of the county. The father died at the age of fifty-seven and the mother at that of forty-two years. They were the parents of seven children, namely: Eliza, deceased; John H.; William E.; Jacob M., deceased; Abraham M.; Alfred, deceased; and Rosella.

William E. Lackey when a young man learned the blacksmith's trade, about 1873 becoming an apprentice under Henry Frederick. He subsequently followed the trade here for about thirty years, building a shop on Main Street, which he carried on until he retired, on May 10th, 1900. In that year he purchased his present hotel from John Dolan, and has since conducted it successfully, proving a capable host and catering satisfactorily to the wants of a large and varied patronage. He has been a member of the Chicora Fire Department for thirty-two years, serving as chief for eighteen years of that time, and he was formerly a member of the old Shannon Hose Company of this place. His administration of the department as chief has been progressive and up to date, and for a town of its size Chicora is well equipped for fire-fighting, both as to apparatus and personnel.

Mr. Lackey was married November 25, 1880, at Chicora, by Rev. Mr. Felker, to Mary A. Frederick, a daughter of Bernhardt and Katherine Frederick, her parents being old settlers of Butler County, and among the most respected. Bernhardt Friederich was born at Birfelden, Hesse-Darmstadt, Germany, in 1834. He came to America in 1853, first settling in St. Louis, Missouri, where he remained for three years working at his trade of wagon making. He then came to Millerstown (now Chicora), Butler County, Pennsylvania, and followed his trade until 1860, when his right hand was injured, making it necessary for him to find some other means of obtaining a livelihood. He accordingly embarked in the mercantile business, beginning on a small scale, his first stock costing only thirty-five dollars. The oil developments in the county soon brought increased business and he found it necessary to erect a large two-story building to accommodate his trade. In 1877 fire destroyed his store and the greater part of its contents. In 1873 he also suffered a severe loss by robbery. But not discouraged by these reverses, he built a third store and was soon doing a larger business than ever. In 1884, however, his entire business was again swept from him by fire. He then went out of the mercantile business and devoted himself to oil production, operating in the vicinity of East Brady and in other fields. He was identified with the German National Bank of Millerstown, now Chicora, as director and stockholder, was interested in a refinery at Brady's Bend, in the Buena Vista silver mine of Colorado, and various other business enterprises. He held at various times nearly all the principal offices of the borough of Millerstown and of the school district from its incorporation, was one of the first members of the Protected Home Circle, of Millerstown, and from the age of fourteen an active member of the Lutheran Church. At his death, which took place October 12, 1895, his age was sixty years, ten months and seventeen days; his loss caused general sorrow throughout the community.

In 1857 Mr. Friederich married Katherine Frederick, of Summit Township, this county. She survived her husband, dying at her home in Millerstown (Chicora) April 2, 1907, at the age of seventy years. She was a member of the Millerstown English Lutheran Church and belonged to the Protected Home Circle. She was a woman much esteemed for her many kind and neighborly qualities. Mr. and Mrs. Friederich were the parents of five daughters: Mrs. Christine Foster of Parker's Landing; Mrs. Mary Lackey of Chicora, Mrs. Emma Baker of Allegheny, and Katherine and Lula.

To Mr. and Mrs. William E. Lackey have been born the following children: Harry B. F., Sylvester J., Irene Gertrude, Nina L., Lucinda Christena, and Lena Emma.

Harry B. F. Lackey, born September 1, 1881, died February 17, 1904. He was like his father, a member of the Chicora fire department. Sylvester J. Lackey, born August 12, 1883, attended Allegheny College at Meadville, Pennsylvania, after graduating from the public schools of Chicora. He later became a student at the Medical Department of the Western University of Pennsylvania, where he was graduated June 8, 1908. He began the practice of his profession at Limestone, Clarion County, Pennsylvania, November 1st of the same year and has already acquired a fine practice. Dr. Lackey married Ethel Kemmer and he and his wife have two children, Evelyn R. and Lucilla Geraldine. Irene Gertrude Lackey married J. W. Painter in December, 1905, and lives at Oakland, California. She has a daughter, Mattie Irene. Lucinda Christena and Lena Emma reside at home.

Mr. Lackey is a member of the Protected Home Circle, at Chicora, and of the Eagles, at E. Brady. He belongs to the English Lutheran Church. In addition to his labors on the fire department, Mr. Lackey has given three years' service as school director, proving very efficient in this office. His record exhibits him as one of the useful men of the township and he has the respect and esteem of his fellow citizens among whom he has passed his life thus far. His surviving children are all worthy members of the respective communities in which they reside.

E. DEWITT CLINTON, proprietor of the Hotel Clinton, one of the finest equipped hotels not only in Butler but in the state, has been a resident of Butler for the past fourteen years. He was born at Pleasantville, Venango County, Pennsylvania. In 1894 Mr. Clinton moved from Warren, Pennsylvania, to Butler, and in association with his father became interested in the oil business.

In 1900 he became engaged in the hotel business. In 1906-1907 he built the Hotel Clinton. It is a fine structure, and is a credit to the city. It has thirty-five rooms and is modern in every particular, one of the features being the magnesia mineral spring which flows continually and is used throughout the hotel, all bed rooms and bath rooms having the running water.

In 1897 Mr. Clinton married M. Florence McFarland, daughter of J. Wills McFarland, and they have three bright sons—Edward Scott, Joseph DeWitt, and Wills Hathaway—that make a happy family.

Mr. Clinton is a member of the Elks; the First Ward Hose Company, having been a member of the famous hose team for ten years. The Company holds the world's record for 250 yards, making the distance in thirty-two seconds, and they are also winners of many races. He is one of the charter members of the Butler Country Club, Butler Board of Trade and of the Chamber of Commerce.

RALPH GREGG, proprietor of the Lowry House, a well-kept and popular hotel at Butler, situated on the corner of Main Street and Jefferson Avenue, has been a resident of this city since 1887. He was born December 14, 1855, in Buffalo Township, Butler County, Penna., and is a son of William S. and Mary Catherine (Kuhn) Gregg.

Robert J. Gregg, grandfather of Ralph Gregg, was born in Washington County, Penna., in 1801, and followed farming there for many years. In 1840 he became weighmaster on the canal at Allegheny, where he resided until 1854, in which year he removed to Butler County. He was married in 1823 to Alice Hogan, a daughter of William Hogan, of Washington County, and they became the parents of four children, namely: John, Harriet, William S., and Robert. Robert J. Gregg died January 31, 1893, his wife Alice having preceded him to the grave in 1838. They were members of the Protestant Episcopal Church. In politics he was a Democrat.

William S. Gregg was born in Washington County, Penna., September 3, 1831. He came to Butler County with his parents and settled at Monroeville, where he kept a hotel. Subsequently he operated a hack line between Butler and Freeport, later was in the distillery business for a while, operating a plant near Freeport. In 1886 he removed to Butler, where, besides operating a hack line, he carried on a livery stable. He was married in 1852 to Mary Catherine Kuhn, of Butler County, and they were the parents of ten children, namely: John; Ralph; Ellen, wife of John Waters; Robert; Harry; William, now deceased; Isabel, wife of Charles Breeman;

Annie M., wife of John Fullerton; Charles, and one that died in infancy. The mother of the above mentioned children died October 14, 1905, and the father, William S. Gregg, now resides with his son Ralph, in Butler, having now attained to a venerable age.

Ralph Gregg in his youth attended the district schools of his neighborhood. He began industrial life on a farm and subsequently became employed in the oil fields, first at Karns City, and later in New York State and in the Bradford field, in Pennsylvania. In 1887 he returned to Butler and for the next twelve years operated a first-class livery stable. He then went to Parker's Landing and engaged in contracting, with his brother, Charles Gregg, at the same time conducting a hotel. Subsequently he became proprietor of a hotel at Petrolia. Returning later to Butler he conducted the Park Hotel until April, 1907, at which time he purchased the Lowry House at Butler. This is one of the oldest and best known hotels in the city, with a desirable patronage, and under Mr. Gregg's able management it bids fair to excel even its former good record. Mr. Gregg is still interested in the oil business and is a prominent and prosperous citizen of Butler.

Mr. Gregg was married at Parker's Landing, on November 11, 1897, to Miss Charlotte Gertrude Burkholder, a daughter of Samuel C. and Thalia Ann (Frazier) Burkholder. The father of Mrs. Gregg is a veteran of the Civil War. He served three years and four months in the army, was wounded and taken prisoner at Plymouth, North Carolina, and was incarcerated for ten months in the Salisbury and Libby Prisons. He served for twelve years as postmaster at Pollock, Pennsylvania. Both he and wife now reside at Butler. Mr. and Mrs. Gregg have had three children: Ralph Kenneth, Paul Emerson and Ruth, the latter of whom died at the age of one year and ten months.

RALPH GREGG

THOMAS J. GOLDTHORP, who is now living in retirement at North Hope, Washington Township, in Butler County, Pennsylvania, was for many years engaged as a glass blower, and later as an agriculturist. He was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, September 20, 1839, and is a son of Franklin and Rebecca (Scott) Goldthorp, and a grandson of Josiah and Elizabeth (Pillon) Goldthorp. His maternal grandfather was Thomas Scott of Washington County, Pennsylvania.

Some years after his marriage, Franklin Goldthorp moved with his family to Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, where the remainder of his days were spent. He and his wife were parents of nine children, of whom there were four sons, as follows: Horatio, who died in 1900; John P., deceased; Joseph, deceased; and Thomas J. Of the entire family there are but two now living, Thomas J. and Mrs. Margaret McMurray, both of North Hope.

Thomas J. Goldthorp received his intellectual training in the public schools of Pittsburg, after which he learned the trade of a glass blower. That trade he followed some years, then turned his attention to farming in Allegheny. He inherited a tract of fifty-five acres of land, but sold the property when he retired from business activity. He is the owner of one property in North Hope, and is a stockholder in the Washington Fair Association of that village.

Mr. Goldthorp was united in marriage with Mrs. Laura (Kerr) Bovard, a daughter of Levi Thomas Kerr of Venango County, and widow of Thomas Bovard, by whom she had the following children: Plummer, who lives in California; Amy Etta; Cora Lillian; Minnie Fay; Sidney; and Bessie May, who sings in the choir of the United Presbyterian Church at North Hope. They have a comfortable home in North Hope and have a wide circle of friends throughout this locality. Politically, the subject of this sketch is a Republican. He is a Presbyterian in religious faith, but owing to the absence of a church of that denomination nearby, attends the United Presbyterian Church at North Hope, to the support of which he liberally contributes.

LEANDER ADAMS is a prominent farmer of Marion Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is the owner of an excellent farm of 111 acres, located about one mile west of Murrinsville. He was born in a log house on the farm now owned by him, January 15, 1848, and is a son of Joshua and Sarah (Kimes) Adams.

James Adams, grandfather of the subject of this sketch, came to Butler County at a very early period and settled at Adams Corners, near the present borough of Slippery Rock. He partly cleared the farm and continued to reside there until his death at the age of eighty years. He and his wife were parents of the following children: Joshua, Ephraim, John, Josiah, James, Eli, William, Sarah, widow of Rev. A. Dale, and Hannah Jane, who was the wife of a man named McCune.

Joshua Adams was born at Adams Corners, Butler County, in 1819, and assisted in clearing the home farm, on which he lived until his marriage. His wife was in maiden life, Sarah Kimes, and upon her marriage, her father, Thomas Kimes, gave her a tract of forty-two acres, which was the nucleus of the farm now owned by the subject of this sketch. They built a log house on this farm, which still stands, and from time to time added to their possessions until they had 120 acres. He died here in 1883, and was survived by his widow until 1898, when she passed away at the age of seventy-two years. They were parents of the following children: Eliza Jane, who was the wife of Richard Van Dike, both being now deceased; Leander, whose name heads this article; Sarah Ann, widow of Jackson Black; Maria, deceased wife of Jacob Dible; Melissa, who died in infancy; Josiah T.; and Laura, wife of Elmer Stoops.

Leander Adams spent his boyhood days on the farm and attended the old district school a few months each winter. Being the eldest son, much of the farm work devolved upon him, and he early in life became inured to hard work, which he has kept up throughout his active career. After his marriage he first located on a piece of the home farm, sixty acres of which he inherited at his father's death. He set up housekeeping in the old log house and later purchased a house of his brother-in-law, Jacob Dible, and in this they set up housekeeping. He later purchased ten acres of his brother, Josiah, and in 1896 bought an additional piece of forty acres from his mother. He has always followed diversified farming, and success has crowned his efforts. He takes an active interest in public affairs and for some years was a Republican, being elected to the office of school director on that ticket. For a score or more of years he has been a Prohibitionist, and in 1908 was the party candidate for county commissioner, receiving a complimentary vote of 660.

September 10, 1874, Mr. Adams was joined in wedlock with Miss Mary Elizabeth Black, a daughter of Squire William and Margaret (Cross) Black. Mr. Black served as justice of the peace in Marion Township for many years. He was first married to Isabella Mitchell, who died leaving eight children—Martin, Captain Mitchell, Hiram, William, Margaret, Julia, Isabella and Jackson. His second union was with Margaret Cross, by whom he had two children: Mary Elizabeth, wife of our subject; and Washington E. All are now deceased except Margaret and Mary Elizabeth. Captain Mitchell, Hiram and William Black gave their lives in the Union cause during the war. Mr. and Mrs. Adams became parents of the following children: Lillian Jane, who is the wife of Harvey Heuon and has a daughter, Avennell Lucile; Fannie Fern, wife of Samuel McDonald; Twila Daisy; Margaret N.; Jessie M.; Dalas LeRoy; and two who died in infancy. In religious attachment, Mr. Adams and his family are members of the Clintonville United Presbyterian Church, and he is a member of the session.

PETER P. BROWN, the well known harness merchant and justice of the peace of West Sunbury, is a veteran of the Civil War and is commander of W. T. Dickson Post, No. 561, Department of Pennsylvania, G. A. R. He has been commander ever since the inception of the post at West Sunbury. He came to the borough from Butler in May, 1868, and established a harness and repair shop, and has continued the business with uninterrupted success to the present time. Mr. Brown was born in Penn Township, three miles south of Butler, November 26, 1839, is a son of Robert E. and Catherine (Peterson) Brown, a grandson of John and Mary (Elliott) Brown, and great-grandson of William and Christina (Thompson) Brown.

William and Christina Brown, the great-grandparents, came to America from Scotland, accompanied by their son and daughter-in-law, George and Mary (Glass) Brown. They settled about thirty miles above Pittsburg, in what is now Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, and lived there until 1796, when all of them removed to Butler County. They took up land in Middlesex Township, their farm being the site on which Cooperstown now stands. The great-grandfather, grandfather and father of the subject of this record, were buried in Middlesex churchyard.

John Brown, the grandfather, was born in what is now Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, September 14, 1780, and died in Cooperstown, Middlesex Township, October 14, 1853. He married Mary Elliott, who was born June 10, 1786, and died January 28, 1868.

Robert E. Brown was born in Middlesex

Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and there grew to maturity. He married Catherine Peterson, who was born in Butler Township, Butler County, and was a daughter of Peter Peterson, who was a native of Somerset County, Pennsylvania. This union resulted in the birth of eleven children, seven of whom are living.

Peter P. Brown was reared on the home farm in Penn Township, whither his father had moved shortly after his marriage. When the Civil War broke out he was among the first to answer the call to arms. April 20, 1861, he enlisted as a private in Company H, Thirteenth Regiment of Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, for three months. At the termination of his service he remained at home until August, 1862, then enlisted as private in Company C, 134th Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, for nine months, and during his term of enlistment was advanced to first lieutenant. As such he was in charge of the company at Chancellorsville. He was wounded at Fredericksburg, a ball grazing the top of his head and leaving a deep scar, taking out a piece of the skull. He was in the hospital at Washington, District of Columbia, for ten days, then returned home on a furlough. He later rejoined his company, and was mustered out at Harrisburg, May 26, 1863. He took up his residence in Butler, Pennsylvania, where he worked at harness making until February 15, 1864, when he again enlisted, becoming a member of Company L, Fourteenth Regiment Pennsylvania Cavalry. In all he participated in sixteen important engagements in addition to innumerable skirmishes, and was finally discharged September 5, 1865. An older brother, John M. Brown, enlisted in Company L, Fourteenth Pennsylvania Cavalry, in 1862, and served until 1865. He now resides in Colorado. A younger brother, Samuel E. Brown, enlisted in 1862 as a member of the One Hundred and Fifty-fifth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry and served until the close of the war in 1865. His death occurred in Nebraska in 1892.

Peter P. Brown has been in the harness making business at West Sunbury ever since his removal from Butler in May, 1868, and in the meantime has identified himself with all that pertains to the welfare and progress of the community. He erected the store building in which his business is located, and the residence in which he lives. In 1905, he was elected justice of the peace of the borough, in which capacity he has acquitted himself with credit. He is a Republican in politics.

Mr. Brown was married in October, 1865, to Miss Margaret A. Hilfinger, a daughter of Mathias Hilfinger, who was a native of Germany. The issue of this union is: Laura, who died at the age of eleven years; Wilda, wife of Charles Gillingham, of Colorado Springs, by whom she has two children: Margaret D. and Charles B.; Lucretia G., a trained nurse in Pittsburg; and Lloyd Grant. Religiously, the family is Presbyterian.

WILLIAM HENRY, one of the best known citizens of Venango Township, where he is engaged in oil production, is one of the old experienced men in this industry, having been connected with its development in this section for many years. He was born in the north of Ireland, September 25, 1841, and is a son of William and Mary (Hurst) Henry.

The parents of Mr. Henry were born in the north of Ireland, but the paternal ancestors came to the British Isles from Holland. After the death of his wife, in 1861, William Henry, Sr., decided to emigrate to America, but the family, including his son and three daughters, did not get started until 1866. They settled in Washington County, Vermont, and there the death of the father took place in 1868, and the son decided to find another field of work. He found employment at Allegheny City, Pennsylvania, where he remained until 1872 and then settled at Petrolia, in Butler County. In the meanwhile he had been working in the oil fields and after moving to Allegheny Township, in 1878, continued to be connected with the oil industry. For twenty years he lived in Allegheny Township and still has a wide circle of friends there and many business acquaintances. Since 1898 he has maintained his home in Venango Township, where he is numbered with the substantial men and useful citizens.

Mr. Henry married Miss Mary A. Wallace, who was born in the north of Ireland and is a daughter of Thomas Wallace. To this marriage nine children were born, the six survivors being: William, who resides in Virginia; Thomas W., who lives at Allegheny City; Mary E., who is the wife of Leslie Demoss, of Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania; Martha J., who is the wife of Bert Jamison, of Venango Township; Margaret A., who is the wife of Bert Sloan, of Venango Township; and Thomas A., who assists his father.

In politics, Mr. Henry is a staunch Republican. With his wife he belongs to the Methodist Episcopal Church at Eau Claire. He is a member of Allegheny Lodge, F. & A. M., No. 552, at Emlenton. In Mr. Henry is found a type of self-made man. In many ways his youth was one filled with difficulties, but through industry, energy and business integrity he has overcome obstacles and occupies a position of independence in his community, while sufficiently young to enjoy the comforts he has won for himself.

THORNLEY ROY COOKSON, a representative citizen and experienced farmer of Cranberry Township, residing on the old Goehring farm of 105 acres, was born on the old Cookson homestead, November 30, 1883, and is a son of Alfred Theodore and Malinda (Goehring) Cookson.

The above mentioned land is the old Goehring farm, on which the mother of Mr. Cookson was born, in 1860. Her parents, John and Caroline Goehring, lived here for fifty years and here the latter died. Mr. Goehring, now aged seventy-five years, resides in Beaver County. The Goehring children were: William, who died young; Edward, who lives in Penn Township; Malinda, mother of Mr. Cookson, who was accidentally killed by a railroad train at Evans City, February 1, 1894; Catherine, who is the wife of Christopher Hoehn, of Cranberry Township; Cornelia, who is the wife of William Dambach; Mary Etta, now deceased, who married Wesley Graham; John Alvin, who resides at Beaver Falls; Virginia, who married Joseph Stevenson, and lives at Centerville; Emmet, who lives at Beaver Falls; and Leonard, who died February 3, 1909.

On the paternal side, the great-grandfather of Mr. Cookson was Edward Cookson, who moved to Beaver County at an early day and settled on a tract of fifty acres two miles from Brush Creek. There was born his son, Israel Cookson, who later married Charlotte Goehring Cookson. Together they came to Cranberry Township about 1835 and here they lived and died. They had five sons and one daughter, namely: William, who died in Evans City; Edward, who lived and died in Cranberry Township; Adam, who resides in this township; Henry, who is a resident of Wilkesburg; Mary, who died unmarried; and Alfred Theodore, who was the youngest and was born in Cranberry Township, January 1, 1855. He died October 3, 1908, and both he and wife were buried in the Plains Church cemetery, they having been worthy members of that congregation. They had four sons, namely: Walter Henry, who was accidentally killed at the same time as his mother, at Evans City, in 1894, this being a terrible family tragedy; Thornley Roy; Harry Cleveland, who married Flora Ehrman, a daughter of George Ehrman.

of Cranberry Township; and Dennis Floyd, who is now deceased.

Thornley Roy Cookson attended the Garvin school, District No. 4, Cranberry Township, and grew to manhood on a farm. He is a well educated, level headed young man, who takes a deep interest in the developing and improving of his property and is numbered with the most successful agriculturists of the township. His residence was built by his maternal grandfather, in 1874. In 1905 he was married to Miss Maggie Davis, who is a daughter of Joseph C. and Annie Jane (Vandivort) Davis, and they have two sons, Floyd Leroy and Alfred Thornley. Mr. and Mrs. Cookson are members of the Plains Presbyterian Church, in which he received his Sunday-school training. Like his late father, he is a Democrat and he has served very acceptably as an officer of Cranberry Township.

JOHN S. CAMPBELL, proprietor of the Clearview Stock Farm, which is located in Center Township, has long been also identified with many of the leading business interests of Butler. He was born March 15, 1847, at Butler, Butler County, Penna., and is a son of William and Eliza J. (Shaw) Campbell.

For many years the father of Mr. Campbell was one of Butler's most prominent and successful men of affairs. He was largely interested in railroad construction and in oil development, was one of the founders of the Butler Savings Bank and was financially concerned in many of the enterprises which served to bring about the city and county's present prosperity. He was married (first) to Clarissa Maxwell, who died in 1839. On March 31, 1841, he was married (second) to Eliza J. Shaw and they had four children: William, John S., James G. and Marv, the latter of whom married Joseph A. Herron, of Monongahela, Penna. Of the above family, William and James G. are deceased. William Campbell, the father, died November 17, 1893.

John S. Campbell obtained his education in the Butler schools and in the West Chester Military Academy. His first business experience was gained in his father's employ, which he entered in 1866, when nineteen years old, and later he was a clerk in a store at the Brady's Bend Iron Works. From there he went to Pittsburg and became bookkeeper for Tack Brothers & Company and then was with Thompson & Groetzing, of Allegheny. His business interests about this time became of more personal importance. His uncle, James Gilmore Campbell, died and John S., with his brother, the late William Campbell, inherited the uncle's interest in the hardware business which had been conducted under the firm name of J. G. & W. Campbell. On the death of the latter, in 1893, the two sons became sole proprietors and they continued the business as a partnership until the death of William Campbell, Jr., in July, 1907.

Since the death of his brother as above stated, John S. Campbell has purchased the entire plant and has continued the hardware business alone and controls one of the largest concerns of its kind in this section, including store, tin shop and foundry, giving employment to over twenty people. His place of business is thoroughly equipped and he installed the second incandescent light plant introduced into this State, York having had the first. His other business interests cover many fields. He is the first vice president of the Butler Savings & Trust Company, is a director of the Standard Plate Glass Company, is president of the North Side Cemetery Association, is a director of the Butler Land and Improvement Company, and has built over seventy-five houses in East Butler. He was prominent in the organization of the Butler Electric Light Company, which since became the Butler Light, Heat and Motor Company, of which he is president and principal stockholder. For a number of years Mr. Campbell has been largely interested in the development of oil lands and is the junior member of the firm of McBride & Campbell, well-known operators. Formerly he was a member of the Bald Ridge Oil Company, and in both connections he has been active in the oil fields of West Virginia as well as in Pennsylvania. His large stock farm claims also a large degree of his interest and attention. It consists of many acres of land in Center Township which he devotes to fruit growing and to the breeding of registered Jersey cattle, Berkshire pigs and Barrel Plymouth Rock chickens. In 1908 he planted 1,100 Italian prune trees, 1,000 pear, 1,000 quince, and 400 apple trees, and set out 10,000 currant bushes and 1,750 grape vines. His success as a stock breeder is as pronounced as has been his other activities, all going to prove his business capacity in whatever line he has taken up.

On October 7, 1885, Mr. Campbell was married to Jennie E. Rogers, who is a daughter of R. J. Rogers, a prominent citizen of Attica, New York. They have two children: Richard R. and John S. The home of Mr. Campbell and family is situated at No. 415 North Main Street, Butler.

In political sentiment, Mr. Campbell is a Democrat. His many business duties prevent his accepting political office, but he actively supports the claims of his friends. He belongs to several fraternal bodies and is a thirty-second degree Mason.

WINFIELD S. DIXON, oil producer and general farmer in Penn Township, is one of the county's solid and substantial citizens and is identified with its best interests. Mr. Dixon belongs to one of the old and honorable families of this section of Pennsylvania and he was born in Allegheny Township, Butler County, April 17, 1853. His parents were James L. and Mary (McCandless) Dixon.

William Dixon, the grandfather, was a son of Thomas Dixon and was born in County Armagh, Ireland, and he and wife came to America just six months prior to the birth of their son, James L. William Dixon purchased 400 acres of land, of which the farm of Winfield S. is a part. For many years he served in the office of justice of the peace and was the most important man in his community.

James L. Dixon, father of Winfield S., was born in the city of Allegheny, Pennsylvania, in 1818, a son of William and Isabella (Morrow) Dixon. He died June 7, 1894, aged seventy-six years. He came to Butler County when aged twelve years, and after his marriage moved to Parker's Landing, where he bought and cleared a farm, on which he continued to reside until 1865, when he sold out and returned to the old homestead in Penn Township. He, at one time or another, held every public office in the township. He was an outspoken Republican and a close student of public affairs. He married a daughter of Robert McCandless, of Franklin Township, and they had four children, namely: Lucinda, who became the wife of Robert H. Harbison, of Penn Township; George Calvin, deceased; Winfield S., and one that died young. The mother of this family passed away June 22, 1876, aged fifty-six years. Both father and mother were worthy members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Winfield S. Dixon has engaged extensively in general farming and stock-raising, making a specialty of sheep and horses. He keeps about 100 head of sheep on the farm for mutton and wool and each year raises some fine specimens of draft and driving horses. Some twenty years since he began to operate for oil, working in the Butler, Allegheny and Beaver County fields. He now has five producing wells on his own farm and is an independent operator. Ever since he reached manhood, Mr. Dixon has taken a deep interest in public questions. He early identified himself with the Republican party and has been one of its acknowledged leaders in the county for many years, serving on the State Central Committee and frequently attending important conventions as a delegate. He was the youngest justice of the peace ever elected in Butler County and he served with discretion and signal ability for ten years. In 1893, while a resident of Butler, he was elected county treasurer and served as such for three years.

On April 17, 1877, Mr. Dixon was married to Annie L. Balph, who is a daughter of Joseph Balph, a farmer of Mount Chestnut, Butler County. Mrs. Dixon was born August 5, 1854, and prior to her marriage had been a successful teacher for several years. Mr. and Mrs. Dixon have the following children: George Clarence, a druggist at Butler; Winfield Russell, residing at Butler, who is assistant cashier in the Farmers' National Bank of that place; Charles Warren, a student of medicine at Washington-Jefferson College; Homer Scott, who is deputy county treasurer of Butler County; and Frank Calvin, Paul Eugene and Presley. These seven sons are vigorous and healthy both physically and mentally, upright in conduct and an honor to their parents. Mr. and Mrs. Dixon are members of the Thorn Creek Methodist Episcopal Church, in which he is a steward. Mr. Winfield S. Dixon was favorably mentioned as a candidate for State senator in 1908.

HENRY BUHNING, one of Clinton Township's most respected citizens, resides on his well improved farm of ninety-two acres, which is situated about two and one-half miles south of Saxonburg, on the Tarentum and Saxonburg road. He was born November 22, 1840, in Hanover, Germany, and is a son of Frederick and Enmie (Glecioncamp) Buhning.

Mr. Buhning comes of an agricultural family, both his father and grandfather owning and cultivating land in Germany, which country they never left. Before he left Hanover, Henry Buhning had attended school and was educated in his own language, but later, after reaching America, in 1867, he attended night school for several terms and thus made himself acquainted with English. He came to Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, after reaching the United States, and found employment at Natrona, where he worked hard and saved his money until he had acquired enough to buy seventy-seven acres of his present fine farm. To the first purchase he continued to add, as he was able, and now he owns one of the most valuable farms in Clinton Township. This farm he cultivated and improved during many years, but now he has practically retired, his youngest son being able to carry on the farm to the father's entire satisfaction. General farming is carried on and enough stock is raised for home use. The first dwelling was a small log cabin, which is utilized for farm purposes since the handsome new residence has been completed, the latter being one of the finest in the township.

Mr. Buhning was married at Tarentum, Pennsylvania, to Miss Nellie Rinehart, who is a daughter of Ludwig and Hannah (Gaverman) Rinehart. Mr. and Mrs. Buhning have five children, as follows: Mary, who resides at home; Frederick, who married Viola Bergman, has three children—Floyd, Edna and Helen; Annie, who married Andrew Heid, has three children—Leon, Herbert and Leonard; Amelia, who married Julius Stuebeon, has four children—Albert, Sylvia and Alvin, twins, and Etta; and Charles, who is the present manager of the home farm, a very intelligent and capable young man. Mr. Buhning and family belong to the Lutheran Church at Saxonburg.

BERNARD B. SIBERT, who bears an honorable record for service during the Civil War, is a prominent citizen of Fairview Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, where he resides on a farm of 110 acres. He was born in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, May 29, 1839, and was the third of five children born to James and Catherine Sibert, the others being Reuben, Mary, Margaret (deceased), and Henry.

Bernard B. Sibert was two years of age when brought by his parents from Armstrong to Butler County, Pennsylvania, and ever since that time, about the year of 1841, has been a resident on the farm he now owns in Fairview Township. He attended the public schools of this township, after which he turned his attention to farming, which has been his principal occupation through life, although in recent years he has met with success as an oil producer. During the first year of the Civil War, in 1861, he enlisted at Pittsburg as a member of Company D, Sixty-second Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and during the three following years participated in some of the hardest fought engagements of the war. In that time he was never wounded nor seriously sick, and was never absent from the regiment except on detached duty. Among the most important battles in which he took part may be mentioned: Fredericksburg, Gettysburg, Chancellorsville, Malvern Hill, seven days' fighting at James Mill, Second Battle of Bull Run, Antietam, and Grant's campaign through the Wilderness. He was discharged at Pittsburg, Virginia, in 1864, and returned to the home farm in Fairview Township. He purchased the interests of the other heirs and has farmed the place continuously since. He has four valuable oil wells on the farm, all of them still producing. Mr. Sibert owns a farm of 164 acres in Donegal Township, Butler County, which he purchased some years ago at sheriff's sale.

In 1865 Bernard B. Sibert was married in Armstrong County to Miss Elizabeth Sibert, a daughter of Henry and Sarah Sibert, and she died leaving the following children: James, U. S. Grant, Nicholas, Levina, Catherine and Elizabeth, the last named being deceased. In 1878 he formed a second union with Miss Margaret A. Carney, a daughter of Andrew Carney, and ten children were born to them: Clara, Jessie, Florence, Flossie, Genevieve, Edward, Marie, Bernard (deceased), and two who died in infancy. Mr. Sibert is a charter member of McDermott Post, G. A. R., at Chicora, and also of the Union Veterans' Legion at Butler.

NELSON B. DUNCAN, postmaster and one of the representative citizens of Zelenople, has been a life-long resident of Butler County, Pennsylvania. He was born September 5, 1849, on the old Duncan homestead in Cranberry Township and is a son of Samuel and Elizabeth (Caldwell) Duncan. The parents of our subject were both born in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, the father's birth having occurred at Coal Hill.

The grandparents of Nelson B. Duncan spent their declining years in Pittsburg and were the parents of the following children: Robert, was a resident of Butler County, Pennsylvania, where his death occurred; David, was also a resident of Butler County; James, who resided and died in Venango County, Pennsylvania, and Samuel, the father of Nelson B. Duncan. Samuel Duncan at an early age, came to Butler County with his parents, who settled on a farm in Cranberry Township, and he there spent the remainder of his life engaged in agricultural pursuits. He married Elizabeth Caldwell, whose death occurred in 1882, and the following children were born to them: Matilda, widow of Samuel Graham, is a resident of Cranberry Township, Butler County; Mary, deceased; Elizabeth, widow of C. H. Taylor, is a resident of Bellevue, Allegheny County; Lewis, deceased, resided in Pittsburgh; Emmeline, is the wife of James McMarlin, of Butler, Pennsylvania; John, who died in the army, was a member of Company G, 131st Pennsylvania Cavalry; A. G. Duncan, of Pittsburgh; and Nelson, the subject of this sketch.

Nelson B. Duncan, after completing his education, which was obtained in the common schools of this locality, followed farming until 1901, when he removed to Zelienople, still retaining possession of the farm. In 1903 he was appointed postmaster of Zelienople and is still serving in that capacity. Mr. Duncan has taken an active interest in politics since early manhood and is an ardent supporter of the Republican party. He is fraternally a Mason, being a member of Harmony Lodge, No. 429, and is also affiliated with the Knights of Pythias.

In 1870 Mr. Duncan was united in marriage with Susan O. Waldron, a daughter of Hon. W. S. Waldron, of Forward Township, who served as county auditor of Butler County and as a member of the General Assembly. To Mr. and Mrs. Duncan were born the following children, namely: Alice M.; Alfred G., a dentist, residing in Zelienople; William Waldron, a plumber, residing in Zelienople; S. Blanche, who is employed in the postoffice; John C., who is married and resides in Glass, Ohio, where he has charge of an oil lease; Laura M., who married Edward Keck, of Allegheny, Pennsylvania, and resides in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; and A. Gertrude, who married Joseph Kavanaugh, and resides near Robison, Illinois.

JONATHAN B. HILLARD, a veteran of the great Civil War and a well known agriculturist of Allegheny Township, has resided on his present farm since 1866 and is numbered with the substantial and representative men of this section. He was born April 14, 1828, in Venango Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of John and Jenette (McMillan) Hillard.

John Hillard was born in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, and died in 1850. He was a son of G. H. Hillard, who was born in Ireland, and in early manhood settled in Lancaster County, afterwards coming to Butler County. He settled in Venango Township fully 125 years ago and endured the privations and hardships that fell to the lot of the venturesome settlers in this section at that period. John Hillard grew to manhood on his father's pioneer farm and married Jenette McMillan, who was born in Mercer County, Pennsylvania, and they had twelve children born to them, four of whom still remain, namely: Jonathan B.; Elizabeth, who is the widow of Joseph Wiles, of Eau Claire, Venango Township; and Martha and Daniel R., both of Venango Township. The family has a fine military record, the grandfather having served in the Revolutionary War; the father in the War of 1812, in which he fought under Perry in the naval battle on Lake Erie; and Jonathan B., in the Civil War, three successive generations testifying to their patriotism.

Jonathan B. Hillard lived on the old homestead and followed farming there prior to July 16, 1863, when he enlisted in Company H, Sixty-second Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, in which he served until July 4, 1864, when the regiment was discharged, as its term of enlistment had expired. On July 4, 1864, he re-enlisted, entering Company C, One Hundred and Fifty-fifth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, in which he served until the war closed, his whole service being in the Army of the Potomac. He participated in numerous battles, including Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Rappahannock Station, Mine Run, Boydstown, Plank Road, the Wilderness, Spottsylvania, North Anna, Tolopotomy, Bethesda Church, Hatcher's Run, White Oak Road, Cold Harbor, Petersburg, Weldon Railroad, Five Forks, and Appomattox, besides others, and was five times wounded. He was honorably discharged July 27, 1865, having been a witness of General Lee's surrender to General Grant. He has been a resident of Allegheny Township since the year following the close of his military service. His two brothers were also in the army.

On January 18, 1861, Mr. Hillard was married to Miss Catherine Logue, who died November 3, 1904. She was a daughter of James Logue, once a prominent resident of Clarion County. The children born to this union were: George E., who resides at Sebastopol, California; Jonathan B., who resides at Verona, Pennsylvania; Thomas R., who is a physician at Duncanville, Pennsylvania; Annie, who is the wife of George W. Brown, of San Francisco; Jennie, who is the wife of Charles Corbett, of Allegheny Township; Fred W., who lives at Emlenton; Mary and Lizzie, who reside with their father; and James H., the only one deceased. He was the second child and second son. On the maternal side this family can take pride also in their loyal ancestry. The great-grandfather, John Logue, was a soldier under General Washington at Valley Forge; and his son, James Logue, the grandfather, was with Commodore Perry in the battle of Lake Erie, in 1812. The military services of the father, Mr. Hillard, came next and even they do not close the record, for one of the latter's sons, Dr. Thomas R. Hillard, served two terms as a member of the Sixteenth Regiment, Pennsylvania National Guards, being an officer during a part of this time and participating in the suppression of the Homestead riots. Mr. Hillard takes a hearty interest in the Samuel J. Roseberry Post, Grand Army of the Republic, at Eau Claire. In politics he is identified with the Republican party, and for seventeen consecutive years has served as a member of the Allegheny Township School Board. For many years he has been united with the Methodist Episcopal Church at Eau Claire and has belonged to its official board.

EDWIN ZEHNER, deceased, formerly a representative citizen of Zelienople, where he was engaged in the furniture business, was born August 21, 1839, in the city of Philadelphia, within a few days after his parents had reached the United States from the family home in Alsace-Lorraine, Germany, where his father and grandfather had been men of prominence. His father's name was Frederick, who intermarried with a Miss Balliet, his wife being of a very wealthy family. Shortly after their arrival, the family settled on a farm in Butler County, Pennsylvania, and Edwin was given the limited public school education afforded by the country schools, six months in a year, until he was twelve years old; the hard work incident to clearing up the farm required the combined efforts of the family. Very much curtailing his educational privileges, at the age mentioned he was deprived of both father and mother and forced to depend on relatives for whom he worked to obtain a livelihood. In early manhood he learned the carpenter and cabinet trade with a Mr. Halstein at Zelienople and in 1865 he entered into the furniture and undertaking business for himself at Zelienople, where two of his sons are yet located. He lived a long and busy life meeting with ample returns for his industry and frugality. Beginning with practically no capital, working patiently on, adding each year to his possessions and also to his friends and customers, his inborn business ability, with the aid of practical experience, asserted itself and placed him the head and proprietor of one of the largest enterprises of its kind in the county. When he was ready to retire from active management, he had sons whom he had trained to do the same work and who were capable of carrying it successfully on. In 1896 the present commodious three-story brick building was erected on the old site and the larger and more convenient quarters gave opportunity for more extensive operation. The business he founded, now carried on by his sons Alfred G. and F. Edward, has taken its place as the largest and most modernly equipped of any of its kind in the county.

Edwin Zehner died June 18, 1907, at which time he was probably the most widely-known man in private life in Western Pennsylvania. In politics he was a staunch Democrat, and during nearly the whole of his life held important offices in the administration of borough affairs, and is said to have occupied the office of burgess oftener than any other individual. He was an exemplary member of the German Lutheran Church of Zelenople. He married Sophia Schmidt, a daughter of Peter and Mary (Dumbaugh) Schmidt, who still survives him. They had the following children: Matilda, wife of W. A. Hartzel of Rochester, Penna.; Mary, wife of L. N. Burry of Evans City, Penna.; Laura, now deceased, intermarried with Rev. E. T. Butz; Hanna, wife of N. M. Wise of Zelenople, Penna.; Alma, wife of Andley A. Hutchison of Wilkensburg, Penna.; Alfred G. and F. Edward, who are continuing the business founded by their father at Zelenople, and Gilbert F., an attorney at Pittsburg. The three sons have followed the example of their father in advocating the principles of Democracy and are all identified with the Masonic fraternity, being members of the Harmony Lodge No. 429, of which Gilbert F. was the youngest worshipful master of a Masonic Lodge in the State of Pennsylvania at the time of his incumbency. Alfred G. Zehner married Miss Hazel Richardson, who was born in Butler County and is the daughter of the late Dr. M. M. Richardson of Prospect; F. Edward is unmarried, and Gilbert F. married Miss Marie Allen, daughter of the late Dr. Alexander Allen of Pittsburg.

With the death of Mr. Zehner his children lost a father whose love for them was enriched by the tenderest care and the greatest kindness; Christianity in its broadest sense lost a firm believer and the community an earnest friend.

H. C. HINDMAN, who has conducted a drug store in West Sunbury, Butler County, Pennsylvania, since 1891, is a prosperous business man and progressive citizen, one who has done his utmost in the advancement of the best interests of the borough.

Mr. Hindman was born on his father's farm in Cherry Township in 1866, and is a son of Robert S. and Ann Jane (Campbell) Hindman. He was reared on the farm and completed the prescribed course in the public schools of his home vicinity. He entered the drug trade in 1891 at West Sunbury, and later pursued a course of study in the Pittsburg College of Pharmacy, from which he was graduated April 18, 1895. His patronage is drawn from a large territory surrounding the borough, and his success has been most gratifying. He is secretary of the school board of West Sunbury and is health officer for three townships—Clay, Concord and Cherry.

Mr. Hindman was first married to Miss Myrta McCandless, a daughter of W. H. and Harriet McCandless, of Center Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, June 16, 1898. She died in May, 1903, being survived by her husband and one daughter, Jean Harriet. Mr. Hindman formed a second marital union with Miss Sarah Stewart, daughter of Levi and Charlotte Stewart, of West Sunbury, Pennsylvania, September 25, 1906, and they reside in a comfortable home in the borough. In religious faith and fellowship he is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

ROBERT IVELL is the owner of a fine farm of eighty acres in Marion Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, but is now living in retirement after many years of activity. He was born in a small place known as Round Thorn, Oldham Township, Lancashire, England, on May 31, 1844, and is a son of Reese and Susanna (Bardsley) Ivell.

Reese Ivell was born and reared in England, and there engaged in coal mining. He made two trips to America during his older days, but having a natural preference for his native land, returned to England, where he died. He married Susanna Bardsley, who died in 1894, at the age of seventy-five years. They were parents of: Robert, Harry, James, Will, Mary Ann, Emma, and Henrietta.

Robert Ivell was the only one of his father's family to locate in America. He started to school at the age of two years and continued until his seventh year, when he went to work in a cotton factory. He continued at that until he was ten, then worked in a coal mine until he reached his majority. In 1866 he left England for the United States, landing in New York after a voyage of eighteen days. Three days after his arrival he went to Ashland, in Schuylkill County, New York, and worked at coal mining until the thirteen weeks' strike of 1868. He then worked at the trade of a stone cutter in Pittsburg, being employed on the wall at the foot of Mt. Washington. In July of that year he resumed mining in the employ of W. L. Scott, for whom he worked some ten years. He next mined one year at Lone Pine, in Washington County, Penna., after which he was in the nursery business at Beaver Falls for one year. He moved to Cherry Township, Butler County, and mined coal one year, then in 1876 went to Venango County and purchased property near Clintonville. He sold coal there until 1881, then disposed of that property to H. Surrena, from whom he purchased fifty acres of his present farm in Marion Township. To this he added thirty acres in 1903, purchasing a tract from Eli Van Dyke. He has retired from farm work, his eldest son working the place with success. In 1901 oil was struck on the place, and he now has fifteen good producing wells. He has a well improved property, most of the improvements being made since he located upon it. He is a Republican in politics, and has frequently been called upon to serve the township in official capacity. His first presidential vote was cast for Grant, and he has consistently voted the ticket of his party since that time.

Mr. Ivell was married October 4, 1863, to Miss Emma Johnson, who was born in England and who died in Pennsylvania in 1873. Seven children were born to them, all of whom died young except John, who lives on the home place. Mr. Ivell formed a second union in October, 1877, with Elizabeth Gillgrist, who died in 1890, at the age of fifty-two years. This union resulted in the birth of one son, Willie, who died at the age of two years. On December 9, 1890, he was married a third time to Miss Sarah H. Sergeant, a daughter of Robert and Ann (Atkinson) Sergeant, and they became parents of the following: Harry B.; William R.; James O.; Susanna; Mary Ann; Robert E. and Benjamin F. Religiously, they are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church and take a very active part in church work. He has served as class leader and Sabbath school superintendent.

ANDREW G. CAMPBELL, who was formerly one of Butler County's useful and valued citizens, and who served efficiently for a number of years as sheriff of the county, was born on the old Campbell homestead in Concord Township, Butler County, Penna., July 1, 1842, and died in his native county in 1907. His parents were Alexander and Eliza (Jamison) Campbell.

The Campbell family has long been well and favorably known in Butler County. It originated in Scotland and in all probability was established in this section of Pennsylvania by the grandfather of the subject of this memoir.

Alexander Campbell, father of Andrew G., was born in Butler County, April 13, 1813. In 1837 he bought a farm in Concord Township on which he lived for over thirty-five years, or until 1873. He then purchased the farm at Mt. Chestnut, which was his place of residence subsequently until his demise, the latter occurring November 12, 1877. In early days he was a Whig in politics but later became a Republican. In 1839 he was united in marriage with Eliza Jamison, who was a daughter of F. Jamison, of Butler County. Mrs. Campbell died December 3, 1883. There were three sons born to them—Joseph C., William T., and Andrew G.—of whom the eldest and youngest served in the Civil War. In August, 1861, Joseph C. Campbell enlisted in Company E, Thirty-first Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and before his young life was yielded up on the bloody field of Chickamauga he had participated in twenty-two battles. Alexander Campbell and wife were worthy and consistent members of the United Presbyterian Church.

Andrew G. Campbell was reared on his father's farm in Concord Township. A mill stood on the property and he improved the opportunity to learn the milling trade, which he followed together with farming both before and after the Civil War. In August, 1862, he enlisted in Company C, One Hundred and Thirty-fourth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and was mustered into the service at Harrisburg. The regiment was ordered to Arlington Heights, and soon after Mr. Campbell took part with it in the battle of Antietam; after which he was detailed to serve with the supply train, and he continued at that duty until he was honorably discharged on June 16, 1865. He then returned to Butler County and resumed his former occupations of farming and milling, becoming additionally interested in a mercantile business. This last-mentioned enterprise he continued to carry on at Mt. Chestnut, from 1868 until he moved to Brownsdale. Still later he moved to Boydstown. In 1893 he was elected sheriff of Butler County, assuming the duties of this important office on January 1, 1894. He continued therein for a long period serving with marked efficiency and justifying the confidence of his fellow citizens in the fullest measure. He was a man of sterling traits of character and of noted public spirit and there were few men more highly respected throughout the county.

On August 7, 1862, Andrew G. Campbell married Rachel J. Hutchison, a daughter of George H. Hutchison, a highly esteemed citizen of Oakland Township. Mrs. Campbell is still a resident of Butler. The children born to Andrew G. Campbell and wife were named respectively, Alexander, Eliza A., Thomas A., William J., Charles F., and Millard H. Eliza A. married John H. Robb. The eldest son, Alexander Campbell, was elected sheriff of Butler County in 1905, the contest being a close one and his majority being forty-three votes. He was married in November, 1904, to Sarah A. Sweeney, who is a daughter of John Sweeney, of Butler County. Sheriff Campbell is an Odd Fellow of high standing.

FRED J. HAMILTON, superintendent and stockholder of the Standard Coal Mining Company and superintendent, secretary and stockholder of the Mutual Coal Mining Company, at Argentine, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is a man of prominence and has achieved a distinct business success. He was born at Brookfield, Trumbull County, Ohio, December 22, 1855, and is a son of Henry and Sarah (Fitch) Hamilton, and a grandson of John Hamilton whose entire life was passed in Ireland. His mother was descended from John Fitch, of steamboat fame.

Henry Hamilton, father of the subject of this record, was born in Ireland and was eighteen years of age when he came to the United States, taking up his residence in Trumbull County, Ohio. His marriage with Sarah Fitch resulted in the birth of the following children: Fred J.; Harry, who married Miss Jennie Ray of Chicago, and who is in partnership with his brother in both of the coal mines above mentioned; Walter K., who married Florence Struble, a native of Ohio and a daughter of James Struble; Jane, who lives in Mercer County, Pennsylvania; and Nellie, who is the wife of Robert Keeley of Mercer County, by whom she has two sons, Henry and Edwin.

Fred J. Hamilton received a superior educational training in Hartford Academy, after which he spent four years in the West, owing to poor health. Upon his return to Pennsylvania, he first located in Jefferson County, then later moved to Butler County, where he became identified with the Boyer Coal Mine. In 1899 he became identified with the Standard Coal Mining Company at Argentine, and in 1905 with the Mutual Coal Mining Company, which under the direction and management of him and his brother, Harry, have developed into large and flourishing concerns, employing a large force of men.

Fred J. Hamilton was united in marriage with Miss Annie Hanley, a native of Jefferson County, and a daughter of Clemens Hanley of that county. The following children have been born to them, and all are living at home: John C., Mary, Sarah, Alfred, Lester, Margaret, Nellie, and Tennie. Religiously, Mr. Hamilton is a member of the Christian Church; Mrs. Hamilton belongs to the Baptist Church. The former is a Republican in politics, and is now completing his fifth year as a member of the school board.

He and his brother, Harry, are joint owners of 100 acres of land, on which have been erected some fifteen homes, which are occupied by miners.

ALBERT KUTSCH, proprietor of the Standard Mantel and Tile Company, with business office at No. 400 North McKean Street, Butler, is the founder of this business, which is growing in importance, as the city is building finer and more artistic residences and public buildings. Mr. Kutsch was born June 21, 1872, in Germany. In his native land Mr. Kutsch learned the trade of cement work and setting tile, and after he came to America, in 1894, he followed it for a short time in Allegheny County, Penna. From there he went to Ford City, Penna., where he was employed in the general office of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company. Here he remained until 1904, when he came to Butler. He did his first work in this city on the Methodist Episcopal Church, which was so generally approved that he felt encouraged to embark here in business. He accordingly established the Standard Mantel and Tile Company, of which he is the sole proprietor. The business includes the setting of mantels and the execution of plain and ornamental tile work, and in both branches of the business Mr. Kutsch can show many artistic designs.

In 1895 Mr. Kutsch was married to Miss Katie Ganser, who also is a native of Germany. They have four children—Henry, Albert, Anna, and Elizabeth. They have a pleasant home at corner of Monroe and Locust Streets. Mr. Kutsch is a member of St. Peter's Catholic Church, in which he is also director of the choir. He is a man of considerable musical ability, being a skilled performer on the cornet, which he has played since he was fourteen years old. He holds the position of commissary sergeant of the military band of the Sixteenth Regiment, N. G. P. He aims to give each of his children a musical education; his son Henry, now eleven years old, already plays the piano well, while Albert, nine years of age, is taking up the violin with every prospect of making a good player. Thus the family has a refined and never-failing source of pleasure in the home, which can be appreciated fully by all those who have any musical knowledge or education.

ALFRED ZEIGLER PEFFER, who comes of a prominent family of Butler County, Pennsylvania, is the owner of a farm of 100 acres in Forward Township, where he resides. He was born July 11, 1856, on the farm settled by his grandfather, Gottlieb Peffer, in Lancaster Township, Butler County, and is the son of John and Catherine (Zeigler) Peffer.

Gottlieb Peffer was born in Switzerland, and came to America when a young man, locating in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, where he followed the trade of tailor. He was there joined in marriage with Rebecca Rice, with whom he subsequently moved to Jackson Township, Butler County, and settled near the town of Harmony. Shortly afterwards he purchased a farm in Lancaster Township which he improved, and there he raised a family of nine children. He continued to follow his trade, leaving the clearing and cultivating of the farm to his sons. He and his wife lived the remainder of their days on the farm, which is still in the family name. They were the parents of the following children: Fred, who went to Oregon in search of gold about 1849, and died there; William; Gottlieb; John; Joseph; Frank; Emeline, wife of Peter Sheidenantle; Rebecca, wife of M. Zeigler; and Elizabeth, wife of Jacob Fleming.

John Peffer was born on the old home farm in Lancaster Township, Butler County, in 1830, and spent his boyhood days there, assisting in clearing the homestead. After his marriage he rented the home farm for three years, and then purchased of Daniel Zeigler a hundred acre tract in Jackson Township. In his young days he was a man of great physical strength, and it was a common task for him to cut the trees and split three hundred rails in a day. He is a man of unusual business ability, and has prospered beyond the average farmer. By his industry he purchased two additional farms, one of eighty acres in Jackson Township, and another of one hundred acres in Lancaster Township, adjoining the old home place. He was united in marriage with Catherine Zeigler, a daughter of Andrew Zeigler of Harmony, Butler County. Andrew Zeigler was born in Jackson Township, Butler County, and was a descendant of Abraham Zeigler, who came from Lehigh County, Pennsylvania, in 1814, and purchased the property of the Harmonites Society. Mr. and Mrs. Peffer became the parents of the following children: Alfred Zeigler, whose name heads this sketch; Mary, wife of I. M. Wise; and Elmer Z., a contractor of Wilksburg, Pennsylvania. Mr. Peffer is now living in retirement in Zelenople, in the enjoyment of a well earned competency.

Alfred Z. Peffer, the subject of this sketch, was in infancy when his parents removed from Lancaster Township to Jackson Township. He grew to maturity on the home farm, attended the district schools of his township, and later attended Harmony Collegiate Institute, under Prof. John C. Tinsman. He received a teacher's certificate, but never entered that profession. With the exception of one year which he spent in Kansas he lived at his parents' home until his marriage, then purchased the McDonald farm in Jackson Township. This farm consisted of eighty acres, which subsequently proved to be valuable oil territory. Later Mr. Peffer sold the farm to George Dambaugh and purchased his present farm of one hundred acres from Hon. D. B. Douthett in Forward Township. The dwelling house was standing at the time he purchased, but he has since erected a commodious barn, and made other improvements on the premises. He follows general farming along modern ideas, and has met with good results. March 16, 1886, he was married to Miss Adelia Dambaugh, a daughter of Frederick S. and Sarah (Davis) Dambaugh, of Connoquenessing Township, Butler County. Frederick S. Dambaugh was the son of Frederick Dambaugh, who was born in Alsace-Lorraine, France, December 31, 1814, and came to this country with his parents, Jacob and Barbara Dambaugh in 1832, and settled in Jackson Township. Subsequently the family became residents of Cranberry Township, Butler County. Frederick Dambaugh married Margaret Schmidt, and reared a family of ten children, of whom Frederick S. was the eldest. The latter married Sarah Davis, of Cranberry Township, and subsequently became a resident of Connoquenessing Township. He was a prosperous farmer and a useful citizen. Mr. and Mrs. Dambaugh were the parents of three children, viz.: Henry; Margaret, wife of Philip Schenek of New Kensington, Pennsylvania; and Adelia, wife of Alfred Z. Peffer.

Mr. and Mrs. Peffer have two children, viz.: Howard F., born April 3, 1889; and John L., born February 5, 1893. The family are members of the Presbyterian Church of Middlesex Township, Mr. Peffer having served as a member of the board of trustees. He is a Republican in politics, and has served his township as treasurer, and as a member of the board of school directors. He was secretary of the board in 1908.

HENRY C. HEINEMAN was born in Schleswig-Holstein, Germany, June 13, 1828, and was the son of Daniel J. and Catherine A. (Roth) Heineman, natives of Germany. The family came to Philadelphia in 1835, and in 1838 came to Butler County, settling on a farm near the site of Great Belt, whence they removed to Allegheny, thence to Philadelphia, and later to McKean County. In 1842 they came again to this county and settled in the borough of Butler. When the family first located in this county, Henry C. worked in a confectionary in Butler, and soon after their return here he entered the employ of William Campbell & Son, for whom he clerked for five years. In January, 1850, he was seized with the gold fever and went to California by the water route, worked in the mines until the following December, and then returned to his home. In March, 1852, he again went to California, crossing the plain to the Pacific slope, and remained working in the mines until June, 1856, when he again returned to Butler. In February, 1857, he embarked in the book and stationery business at the corner of Main and Cunningham Streets, which he followed continuously up to 1900, when he retired. Mr. Heineman was married October 29, 1857, to Mary E. Coyle, a native of Ireland, who died in 1901. Seven children blessed this union, viz.: Catherine A., wife of W. W. Blackmore; Charles M.; Harry D.; William J.; Matilda R.; George E.; and Joseph A. Mr. Heineman and family are members of the Presbyterian Church, and politically are adhered to the Democratic party. Mr. Heineman has filled the office as school director, is a member of Connoquenessing Lodge No. 278, I. O. O. F., Butler Lodge, No. 272, F. and A. M., the B. A., the A. O. U. W., and the E. A. U. From the beginning of its history up to the present he has been prominent in the Volunteer Fire Department of Butler, and though on the retired list, is one of the oldest volunteer firemen in the state.

CHARLES M. HEINEMAN, one of the editors of the Times, was born in the borough of Butler, July 24, 1862, and is a son of Henry C. and Mary (Coyle) Heineman.

He was educated in the public schools, and at Witherspoon Institute, and began life as a clerk in his father's store. During the period that he clerked in the store he devoted his spare time to amateur journalism, and as early as 1881 had established one or more journalistic enterprises. He was one of the founders of the Times in 1884, and in connection with his brother, William J., has since been the editor of that paper. He has taken an active interest in the Democratic party, has been a member of the school board several terms from his ward, and was twice the choice of the Democratic party in the district for Congress. Mr. Heineman was married November 26, 1885, to Ella, daughter of James H. Black, of Butler. Mrs. Heineman is a native of this county, and a member of the old family of that name of whom so many are known here in the trades and professions. They have two children, Henry N. and Charles C.

CHARLES E. HERR, proprietor of the Butler County Record, was born in Somerset, Pennsylvania, February 21, 1850, and is the son of Joseph and Mary (Koontz) Herr. He was educated in the common schools of his town, but afterwards learned the printer's trade in the office of the Somerset Democrat. Subsequently he held the foremanship of the Somerset Herald. When the oil excitement was at its height in Petrolia in 1877, Mr. Herr established a job printing office at that place, and the same year he established the Petrolia Record. The publication of the Record was successfully continued until 1888, when he removed the plant to Butler and changed the title of the paper to the Butler County Record. Mr. Herr was married in May 25, 1882, to Emma B. Patterson, of Bridgeport, Ohio, and they have three children, namely: Mary, Edgar and Helen. The family are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and Mr. Herr has always been independent in politics.

JAMES O'HARA, a well known and influential citizen of Karns City, Butler County, Penna., is an oil producer and has met with a high degree of success in the prosecution of that work. He was born in Hastings County, Canada, November 30, 1852, and is the son of Philip and Margaret (White) O'Hara.

Philip O'Hara was born in Ireland and was brought by his parents to the United States in 1833. They settled in Clarion County, Pennsylvania, but he afterward moved to Canada, and thence to Buffalo, New York. He was a veteran of the Civil War and lived to the age of seventy-four years, dying in 1892. He was four times married, the first time to Margaret White, mother of the subject of this sketch, she dying in 1854. Three sons were the issue of this union: John, Cyrus and James.

James O'Hara lived in Canada until he was nine years old, and was then taken to Buffalo, New York, where he lived a couple of years. He next lived in Venango County, Pennsylvania, where he continued until the oil excitement carried him to Karns City, in 1875. He had been through the village before, but did not locate until the date mentioned, since which time he has lived there continuously. He is a substantial man and is the owner of some property in Karns City.

In 1872 Mr. O'Hara married Miss Mary Stone, a daughter of Luther Stone, of Venango County, and the following children were born to them, all being natives of Butler County but the eldest: Charles, of McKee's Rocks, who was born in Venango County, Pennsylvania, and who married Martha June, by whom he has four children—Ruth, Martha, Byron and Ardelle; James, of Karns City, who married Sarah Brumage and has a daughter, Louise; Blanche, who is the wife of Louis Alabaugh of Karns City, and has three children—Dale, Paul and Dorothy; Clara, who married Harry Corbett of Bruin City and has two children, Geraldine and Gladys; Homer; Bertha; Ella; Mary. Mr. O'Hara has filled most of the local offices of Karns City, and has served as school director about a quarter of a century. Fraternally, he is a member of Karns City Lodge, No. 931, I. O. O. F.

JOHN B. CALDWELL, who is entering upon his duties as sheriff of Butler County, Pennsylvania, to which office he was elected in November, 1908, is a prominent resident of Jefferson Township, where he owns a valuable farm of 118 acres. He was born December 3, 1844, in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, but has been a resident of Jefferson Township since his childhood days, being in the true sense a product of Butler County.

Mr. Caldwell is a son of William and Sarah Jane (Beatty) Caldwell, and a grandson of Dr. Joseph Caldwell. The latter was a native of County Antrim, Ireland, and upon coming to this country became one of the early settlers and pioneer physicians of Washington County, Pennsylvania. He intermarried with the Smith family. William Caldwell was a farmer by occupation and early in life moved from Washington County to Armstrong County, and thence to Jefferson Township, Butler County. He was a prosperous business man and a progressive citizen who entered actively into the affairs of the community.

John B. Caldwell was reared on the farm he now owns and worked on the place for his father while in attendance at school in District No. 4, Jefferson Township. During the Civil War he saw much hard service with the Army of the Potomac, serving some thirteen months under Colonel Barnes in the Fifty-sixth Regiment of Pennsylvania, and also in the Heavy Artillery. At the close of the war he returned to the farm, which he conducted with uninterrupted success until January, 1909, when he removed to the borough of Butler to enter upon his duties as sheriff. Although he has long been active in politics and aided largely in the success of his party, this is the first county office to which he has ever been elected. Proving himself an excellent campaigner and a very popular man, he led the ticket in Butler County. He previously served as road commissioner and census taker, and frequently has been sent as delegate to the various conventions.

In November, 1866, Mr. Caldwell was joined in marriage with Miss Nancy J. Robinson, a daughter of Joseph and Hannah (Ramsey) Robinson, and the following are the issue of their union: Clarence J., M. D., a practicing physician and a graduate of Western University of Pennsylvania; William E., M. D., a graduate of Baltimore Medical College, who is practicing his profession in Connecticut; Sadie (Zigler), who lives in Pittsburg; Marland, M. D., a graduate of the Western University of Pennsylvania, who died in the thirtieth year of his age; Ora J., who has succeeded his father in the care of the home farm; and Laverne, who is in the employ of the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago Railway and makes his home at the old home place. Dr. Clarence J. Caldwell married Miss Mildred Buxton and they have two children, Clarence B. and Eleanor. Dr. William E. Caldwell married Miss Eva Root, by whom he has the following children: Howard, Mildred, Kenneth, Marland. Miss Sadie Caldwell married Zeno Zigler and has three children—Effie, Walter and Olive. Ora J. Caldwell married Miss Temoy Taylor, by whom he had two children, Francis and Paul (deceased). Religiously, Mr. Caldwell and his wife are members of the United Presbyterian Church at Butler, and are very active in church affairs.

WILLIAM CAMPBELL, who, during his long and active business career was connected with some of Butler's most important business interests, and who at the time of his death was president of the Butler Savings and Trust Company, was born in this city April 11, 1843, and was a son of William and Eliza Jane (Shaw) Campbell. The family of which he was a worthy representative was one of the pioneer families of the borough.

William Campbell, Sr., was in former days one of the best known and most widely respected business men of this section, as he was also one of the most successful. He established the flourishing hardware firm, since carried on under the name of J. G. and W. Campbell. He had been prominently connected also with other business enterprises, including the Butler Mutual Fire Insurance Company, and the Butler Savings Bank, of which he was one of the founders. He was also interested in the oil industry. No citizen was more active in promoting whatever was for the welfare of the community in which he lived, cherishing high standards of civic duty. For some years he was a useful member of the school board. He belonged to the Presbyterian church, in which he worthily held different offices. William Campbell, Sr., died November 17, 1893, having attained the age of four score years. His first marriage was to Miss Clarissa Maxwell, who was a daughter of John Leslie Maxwell. She died in 1839. His second marriage was to Miss Eliza J. Shaw, who died April 21, 1892. She was a daughter of John Shaw, of Glenshaw, Allegheny County. Four children were the fruit of the second marriage—William, John S., James G., and Mary—the last mentioned of whom became the wife of Joseph A. Herron, of Monongahela, Penna.

William Campbell, the eldest child of his parents, received a liberal education, after leaving the public schools becoming a student at Witherspoon Institute and later at Washington and Jefferson College. For some time after finishing his studies he was engaged in the foundry business at Pittsburg—a business in which the Campbells have been interested for the past sixty years. In 1871 he returned to Butler, having been elected in February of that year cashier of the Butler Savings Bank, which had just taken out a charter. This position he held for many years subsequently. Later he became president of the institution, which under his management developed into one of the most important financial establishments in this section of the state. When it was finally merged into the Butler Savings and Trust Company, Mr. Campbell was continued as president and held that position at the time of his death. Almost to the end of his earthly existence he gave his close personal attention to the business, even when too weak to leave the house keeping informed as to all its operations, and its marked success was due in large measure to his wise and able direction. With him were associated in its management an able corps of assistants and directors, all men of the highest business standing. At the time of his death Mr. Campbell was the largest stockholder in the bank.

He was also a member up to the time of his death, which took place July 27, 1907, of the hardware firm of J. G. and W. Campbell which firm, as above stated, succeeded to the business established by the elder William Campbell in 1835. In addition to these activities Mr. Campbell was interested in the oil industry, and was a stockholder and director in the Butler Light, Heat and Motor Company; also one of the board of directors of the Standard Plate Glass Company, for years the largest manufacturing industry of the town, and of the Butler Land and Improvement Company, the concern which is engaged in developing East Butler. He was also a stockholder in other local concerns and was always ready and willing to assist any concern that was likely to aid in the advancement and prosperity of the town.

He was extensively interested in the oil business and was a large owner of real estate. His advice was much sought for by the managers of the establishments in which he had interests. But although connected with so many various enterprises, he regarded the management of the bank as his life work and devoted to it his best energies and ripest powers, and its success is a lasting monument to his remarkable ability, which was equalled only by his inflexible integrity.

Of a deep religious nature, Mr. Campbell early in life united with the First Presbyterian Church. He took an active interest in the affairs of the congregation and at the time of his death was president of the board of trustees. He was of a charitable nature and his private benefactions were large, and were bestowed in a Christian spirit devoid of ostentation. His manner was kind and courteous, even genial, and he was a pleasant companion and a true friend. He died high in the respect of all who knew him and in their bereavement his family had the sympathy of all.

In his political views Mr. Campbell was a Democrat. He was a veteran of the Civil War, having enlisted in 1862 in Company K, 134th Pennsylvania Volunteers, with which regiment he saw active service at Antietam, Fredericksburg, and Chancellorsville.

Mr. Campbell was united in marriage June 11, 1889, to Miss Elizabeth Lusk, a daughter of the late Dr. Joseph S. Lusk, whose death took place February 2, 1889. Three children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Campbell—William, Janet Douglass, and James Gilmore.

JOSEPH CRISWELL, justice of the peace at Lyndora, was born in Clinton Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, April 8, 1840, and is a son of James and Jane (Brownlow) Criswell.

James Criswell, father of Joseph, was born in County Derry, Ireland, where he remained until he was twenty-four years old. He died on his farm in Butler County, in 1868, when eighty-two years of age. In crossing the Atlantic Ocean, his vessel was wrecked on the shores of Nova Scotia, but he was transferred to another ship which took him to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. From there he walked to Pittsburg, and as he was poor, worked by the way, and later secured employment on a farm in Washington County. There he remained for eight years, saving his money, and then bought 200 acres of land in Clinton Township, for which he paid $400. When the State survey was made it was found that the tract contained 240 acres. It was wild land that he had to clear and he developed it into an excellent farm and prospered as a farmer and cattle-raiser. He married a daughter of John Brownlow, who came to America from County Derry, Ireland, when she was eleven years old, her parents being people of means for those days. Mr. and Mrs. Brownlow walked from the point where their baggage was deposited to Butler County, in order to save freight charges, but their daughter was weighed in with their other luggage and transported with it for $7.50 per 100 pounds. Nevertheless she grew to be something much more valuable than freight, a good and faithful daughter and the beloved and honored mother of twelve children. Those who reached mature years were: William, residing at Allegheny; James, deceased; Letitia, deceased, married Moses Marshall and they moved to Kansas; Thomas, residing at West Elizabeth, Allegheny County; Eliza, deceased, married John C. Norris, residing in Clinton Township; Joseph, of Butler County; Robert Ross, residing at Little Washington, Pennsylvania; and Susan, the wife of John Burtner, residing at Butler. The parents of this family were worthy members of the Presbyterian Church.

Joseph Criswell was educated in the common schools of Butler County and remained at home to assist his father until the opening of the great Civil War, of which he is an honored veteran. In 1861, under Captain McLanghlin, he enlisted in Company H, One Hundred Second Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, in which he served first for three and one-half years and after re-enlistment, until the close of the war. This regiment was one of the fifty to sustain the greatest losses in the struggle. After the battle of the Wilderness, he was severely wounded and was absent from his company for six months on this account, and was given two veteran furloughs, a very unusual favor. He was honorably discharged in June, 1865.

After his return from the army, Mr. Criswell resumed farming, settling on a property in Butler Township which belonged to his wife, and there he carried on a general farming and stockraising industry. He has about eighty-two acres under fine cultivation. Mr. Criswell is a staunch Republican and in 1890 was elected clerk of the courts, having a majority of 955. He was re-elected in 1893 with a majority of 1,917. When he was elected a justice of the peace, in 1904, he came to Lyndora and has had his home in the village ever since. This office is one of considerable importance. The influx of foreigners and their ignorance of American laws, together with their fighting proclivities, make much trouble which can only be adjusted through recourse to the various courts, and Justice Criswell finds little leisure, having some 800 cases in a year, the charges ranging from murder to petit larceny. The first large gas well in this section was drilled on Mrs. Criswell's farm. The gas was piped to Butler and was the first gas used in that city.

Mr. Criswell was married April 25, 1864, to Catherine S. Burkhart, a teacher in the public schools, and a daughter of Elijah Burkhart, of Butler Township. Her father was born January 12, 1801, in a log cabin, which stood within sight of the homestead on which she was subsequently born and reared in Butler Township. His parents,

John and Margaret Powell Burkhart, settled on a 400-acre tract of land about three miles south of the site of the present city of Butler, in the year 1796 or '97, coming from Allegheny County a newly married couple. Mrs. Criswell's father was their third son born there. He grew up, learned the carpenter's trade with George Wolf and helped build some of the first houses in Butler, few if any of which are now standing. John Burkhart was a fearless, resolute man and a great hunter. When scarcely eleven years of age he was taken captive by Indians while driving the cow home, at or near Girty's Run, and remained a prisoner for ten months. He escaped July 4th, 1776. Being asked by a big Indian if he heard any news, he said he had heard that independence had been declared. He was given a chance to regain his freedom by running, the Indians striking at him with their tomahawks as he went. He escaped, but received a wound on the left side of his head, the scar of which he carried to his grave, and which he often showed to his children and grandchildren as he related to them the story. He died April, 1855, at the age of ninety years. His wife, Margaret, whose maiden name was Powell, died in February, 1856, aged eighty-seven years.

Elijah Burkhart married Rebecca, daughter of Joseph and Isabelle Kennedy Richardson (in July, 1831), whose ancestors came to this country with William Penn. His wife died leaving four children, of whom Rebecca was the eldest. Her father was a teacher by profession and followed that occupation for many years. He finally married a second time, moved to the State of Indiana and died there at the age of eighty-three.

Elijah and Rebecca Richardson Burkhart had eight children, all born on the farm owned by Mrs. Criswell. They were: Maria, who married John Emerick (deceased); Hiram, a child deceased; Joseph E., living in Kansas; Rebecca M. and Washington F., deceased in childhood; Baxter C., who died in the army; Jacob, now deceased; and Catherine S. (Mrs. Criswell). Elijah Burkhardt died in 1865, March 24th, on the old farm. Rebecca, his wife, died October 7th, 1879.

Mr. and Mrs. Criswell have been the parents of the following children: Jean Rebecca, who was a teacher, and is now the wife of W. C. Littlewood, a foreman in the Vandegrift Mills; Joseph T., who died in infancy; James B., who taught school, went South and is now in the wholesale shoe house of Haynes, Henson & Co., at Knoxville, Tenn.; Letitia M., who married R. C. Little (deceased), leaving two children now living with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Criswell; Kathryn M., married to T. C. Stephens, an employe of the Colonial Trust Co., Pittsburg, Penna., and residing in Crafton; Josephine E., married to P. E. Henninger, an electrician now living in Port Huron, Mich., where he has been superintending the wiring of the tunnel under the St. Clair River. Mr. and Mrs. Criswell, though living at Lyndora for the past five years, still retain the old farm which, as Mrs. C. says, fills an important place in her life history. They belong to the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Criswell is a Mason and has served his lodge as worthy master for three terms. He is past commander of the Union Veteran Legion and is also past commander of A. S. Reed Post, Grand Army of the Republic.

ANDREW SCHOEFFEL, one of the leading business men and successful merchants of Evans City, Pennsylvania, has been engaged in merchant tailoring in that borough for more than eighteen years. He has a fine home and farm in Jackson Township, Butler County, located about one mile from his place of business.

Mr. Schoeffel was born in Germany, October 10, 1866, and is a son of Christoph and Elizabeth Schoeffel. His father died in Germany and his mother came to the United States, making her home at the present time in the State of Washington, where a number of her sons and daughters are located. She is the mother of the following children in addition to the subject of this sketch: Anthony J., who lives at Wilkensburg, Pennsylvania; Margaret, wife of Henry Hinnebush of Pittsburg; Adam, a tailor; Carl, a merchant tailor of Seattle, Washington; Elizabeth, wife of Anthony Plader, a farmer in Washington; Amie (Ochsenfeert), whose husband is also a farmer in Washington; Marguerite, wife of William Everett of the State of Washington; and Catherine, wife of Joseph Sailer, who is connected with a sugar factory at Oxnard, California.

Andrew Schoeffel, in his boyhood days, learned the trade of a tailor in his native land, and worked at it some seven or eight years in that country. He was in his seventeenth year when he came to the United States, taking up his residence in the city of Pittsburg, where he worked at his trade until 1890. In that year he moved to Evans City, where he has conducted a merchant tailoring establishment both continuously and successfully since. He was reared to hard work and becoming of an economical and frugal disposition he made his way to the front without the aid of other resources than those with which nature endowed him. He has accumulated a competency, and in 1904 purchased a farm of sixty-six acres in Jackson Township, one mile from the borough, on which he has since made his home. He is widely known throughout this vicinity, and enjoys the confidence and good will of everyone.

Mr. Schoeffel was united in marriage with Catherine Werner, who also was born in Germany, and is a daughter of John Georg and Carlotta Werner. Ten children were the issue of this marriage: Andrew, deceased; Edward, who married Lulu S. Smathers; Carl; Catherine, wife of Charles Carson; Anthony; George; John; William; Marguerite, and Francis. Religiously the family is Lutheran and attends services at Evans City. Mr. Schoefel has been a member of this church for eighteen years.

SAMUEL BELL, a well known agriculturist of Allegheny Township, residing on his valuable farm of fifty-eight acres, was born February 13, 1864, in Clarion County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of William and Nancy (Brown) Bell.

The parents of Mr. Bell were both born in Ireland, and were acquainted with each other there. They crossed the Atlantic Ocean on the same vessel, in 1848, and were married after reaching America. They first settled in Clarion County, Pennsylvania, where they resided until 1868, when they came to Allegheny Township and settled on the farm on which Samuel Bell now resides. They were not only closely united in life, but were separated but a few days by death, the wife passing away July 31, 1903, and the husband dying on August 6 following. They were members of the Presbyterian Church at Annisville. Four of their children survive, namely: John, who lives in Clarion County; William, of Venango Township, Butler County; Margaret E., widow of Harry R. Thompson, lives in Allegheny Township; and Samuel.

Samuel Bell was four years old when his parents moved from Clarion to Butler County and his home ever since has been in Allegheny Township, where he has followed farming for a number of years, devoting himself exclusively to this industry. He obtains excellent returns from his land and is one of the township's most progressive agriculturists. He secured a good public school education in what is known as the Campbell School.

On October 24, 1895, Mr. Bell was married to Miss Sarah E. Jolly, who was born in Venango Township, Butler County, and is a daughter of Thomas and Annie (Russell) Jolly, of Venango Township. Mr. and Mrs. Bell are members of the Associate Presbyterian Church, at Eau Claire. Like his father, Mr. Bell has always been a Democrat and on the Democratic ticket he was elected road commissioner, one of the most important of the local offices in farming districts. To all who know Mr. Bell it is unnecessary to state that the duties of the office were faithfully performed.

HUGH SPROUL, one of Cherry Township's most respected citizens, has resided on his present valuable farm for a period covering sixty years, coming here a young man and developing wild land into a fertile and finely improved property. He was born near Mt. Chestnut, Butler County, Pennsylvania, July 4, 1824, and is a son of John and Elinor (Pillow) Sproul.

John Sproul, father of Hugh, was born in Ireland and lived on his own land until he was twenty years of age, when he came to America, settling soon after at Oil Creek, in Venango County, Pennsylvania. He was master of a good trade, having learned linen weaving in his native country, but found little opening for work in that line where he first settled, and after his marriage he removed to a farm near Mt. Chestnut, on which he lived until his death. His widow did not long survive him.

Hugh Sproul remained with his parents until he was twenty-four years of age. On October 1, 1857, he was married and one year later moved on his present farm, which is situated three miles north of West Sunbury, on what was formerly known as the furnace road. It was a wild place at that time, neither clearing nor improving having been done, but conditions were soon changed. When sixteen years of age, Mr. Sproul had learned the carpenter's trade and as soon as he was prepared to do so, he began to put up substantial buildings, doing the work himself until he had all the structures necessary for family comfort and for carrying on extensive farming and stockraising. The cultivation of the farm has mainly been done by his sons, Mr. Sproul continuing to follow carpenter work. Seventy years is a long time to have been active and busy in one line, but for this lengthened period Mr. Sproul has worked at his trade, giving almost his entire attention to it since his sons have been old enough to take the management of the farm off his shoulders. In spite of advancing years, Mr. Sproul enjoys doing carpenter work, his judgment being just as sound as formerly and his hand steady and his eye true.

Mr. Sproul was married, at the date above mentioned, to Miss Sarah Glenn, a daughter of James Glenn, of what is now Concord Township, Butler County. To this marriage were born twelve children. The survivors are the following: John Perry, who is a physician, lives at Grove City, with his family; Elizabeth, who is the wife of C. S. Stoner, of Butler; Andrew, who is engaged in a mercantile business at Bruin, Pennsylvania; Ada, who is the wife of J. G. Renick, of Center Township; Clara, who is the wife of John Christie, of Cherry Township; Rella, who is the wife of Samuel Hineman, of Branchton, Pennsylvania; Minnie, who is the widow of D. L. Hockenberry; and Everett, unmarried, who lives at home. The children deceased were: two who died as infants; James, who died at Cleveland, a student of medicine; and Robert, who died on the home farm, leaving a widow.

Mr. Sproul served as a soldier in the Civil War, enlisting in September, 1864, in the Sixth Regiment, Pennsylvania Heavy Artillery, under Colonel Barnes. This regiment had headquarters at Fort Marcy, near Washington, D. C. After hostilities had ceased, it was mustered out at Camp Reynolds, near Pittsburg. Mr. Sproul has been recognized as one of his township's representative men by his fellow citizens and has frequently been elected to office. He has served as school director, assessor and collector. He is a member of the United Presbyterian Church at West Sunbury.

MULVAIN DUNLAP, farmer and oil producer of Marion Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is located on a farm of ninety-five acres, which formed a part of a tract of 350 acres which his great-uncle, Alexander Dunlap, purchased of the Indians during the pioneer days of this locality. He was born near Kittanning, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, February 12, 1848, and is a son of John M. and Jane (Hartford) Dunlap. The Dunlaps came to this country from Ireland. John, the grandfather of the subject of this sketch, was probably born after the family became established in this country. The latter had three brothers—James, Alexander and William—and a number of sisters.

John M. Dunlap was born on his father's farm in Beaver County, Pennsylvania, in 1819, and late in life came to Butler County, Pennsylvania. He was located in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, some years prior to coming here in 1852, and upon his arrival he purchased the farm now owned by his son, Mulvain. His uncle had acquired title to this land by purchase from the Indians, and had moved here from Beaver County. Alexander Dunlap had cleared but little of the land up to the time of his death, which occurred at an advanced age. John M. Dunlap also died on this farm, the date of his death being 1864. He married Jane Hartford, who was born and reared in Beaver County, and who died at the age of seventy-nine years. Ten children were born to them: Margaret Jane, deceased; John, who saw service in the Union Army during the Civil War; McAllister, deceased; Samantha, wife of Lewis Miller; Mulvain; Lisander, deceased; Clementine; Orsina, deceased wife of Eli Van Dyke; James L.; and Violet Ann, widow of Perry Farren.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE McMURRAY

Mulvain Dunlap was about four years of age when his parents moved from Armstrong County to Marion Township, where they first lived in a log cabin. He attended the rude and poorly equipped common schools of that period for a few months each winter, and assisted in clearing up the home farm. Upon the death of his father he bought out the interests of the other heirs and has continued to reside there ever since. He rebuilt the house in 1904, and in the meantime made many other desirable improvements, making it one of the best equipped farms in the township. He has nine producing oil wells on the place, which have proved very remunerative.

May 14, 1874, Mr. Dunlap was united in marriage with Miss Emeline Pohlman, a daughter of Herman Pohlman, who came to this country from Germany when a young man. He married Catherine Stover, who was born and reared in Venango County, Pennsylvania. Mr. and Mrs. Dunlap have had seven children, as follows: Homer Leroy, who died in infancy; Clinton O., who runs the home farm; John M., who attended Slippery Rock State Normal School, and was formerly engaged in teaching school, but is now located in the borough of Butler; Cyrus E., who attended Slippery Rock State Normal and is a graduate of Iron City Commercial College of Pittsburg, engaged in teaching school; Elsie May, deceased, and Elva Mande, twins; and Etta A. John M. Dunlap was united in marriage with Miss Sadie Bailey, and they have a daughter, Myrl Genevieve. Religiously, the family attends the Methodist Episcopal church, of which Mr. Dunlap is treasurer. He is a Democrat in politics, and has filled the office of constable.

MRS. MARGARET McMURRAY, a well known resident of Washington Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is the widow of George McMurray, a native of Ireland, who became one of the substantial citizens of this community. Mr. McMurray's death occurred in 1896.

Mrs. Margaret McMurray was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, May 2, 1837, and was a young girl when her parents moved to Allegheny County, Pennsylvania. Here she was reared to maturity, receiving her schooling in the city of Pittsburg. She is a daughter of Franklin and Rebecca (Scott) Goldthorp, and a granddaughter of Josiah and Elizabeth (Pillon) Goldthorp. She was one of nine children born to her parents, and of these, she and a brother, Thomas J. Goldthorp of North Hope, are the sole survivors. With a brother Horatio she inherited a tract of fifty-five acres of land, and upon the latter's death in 1900 she became sole owner of the property. It is a farm in a high state of cultivation and is underlaid with three veins of coal, which have never been mined. The house in which she resides was erected by Rev. Mr. Black, and by him was sold to Mr. Hutchison, from whom the Goldthorps obtained it. Mrs. McMurray also owned a valuable property of sixty-two acres in Scott Township, Allegheny County, lying about midway between Carnegie and Mt. Lebanon, and this she disposed of to a corporation to good advantage. She has displayed excellent business judgment in the handling of her affairs, and has the good-will and esteem of her fellow citizens. In August, 1905, she went abroad, visiting in London, Leeds, Oxford, Birmingham and Manchester, in England, and also in Scotland, Ireland and France. Just before her return to America, she paid a visit to the historic old battleground at Waterloo. She is a broad-minded and intelligent woman and takes a deep interest in the affairs of the day. In religious affiliation, she attends the United Presbyterian church at North Hope.

R. P. JACK, one of Washington Township's substantial citizens, residing in his comfortable home in North Hope, owns also thirty acres of very valuable farm and coal land, three veins of coal having been discovered. Mr. Jack was born on a farm about one-half mile southeast of North Hope, Butler County, Pennsylvania, September 22, 1865, and is a son of Andrew Jackson and Mary Ann (Williams) Jack.

Andrew Jackson Jack was born in Scrub Grass Township, Venango County, Pennsylvania, and was a son of John and Margaret (Harper) Jack, the latter of whom was a daughter of an old settler, Thomas Harper. In boyhood, the late Andrew J. Jack went to what is now known as the Himand School but was then called the Macklin School. It was his father, John Jack, who settled first in Washington Township, and acquired 440 acres. When he died his son, Andrew J., received 267 acres. After he had completed his education Andrew J. Jack engaged in farming and then became proprietor of the North Hope Hotel, which was built on his land. Later he sold the hotel and during the oil excitement he built another hotel at Rousville, which he also sold and then moved to Parker's Landing. He became interested in oil producing and continued until his death in the oil fields of Parker's Landing, Troutman and Petrolia. At the time of his death, in 1900, was in a hotel at North Hope. The late Andrew Jack was the sixth born in a family of eight children, the others being: William, who married Polly Seaton; David; Samuel, who married Fannie Say; John; Joseph, who married Katie Simock; James Harper; and Polly, who married Rev. Thomas Graham, a Methodist minister.

R. P. Jack was educated at the Mt. Emory School in Washington Township, the North Hope public schools and the North Washington Academy, after which he first engaged in farming and later went to the oil fields as a tool dresser. He then resumed agricultural operations.

Mr. Jack married Miss Maude C. McGarvey, who is a daughter of Matthew S. McGarvey, of Washington Township. Mr. and Mrs. Jack have seven children, namely: Andrew M., who is a tool dresser; Gertrude C., who is a popular teacher in the public schools; Ross R., a student who will be a member of the graduating class of 1910, at North Washington Academy; Mary M., who will be in the class of 1912, at the same institution; Robert F. and Nellie A., with Frank P., the youngest, are still in the public schools. Mr. Jack has an unusually intelligent family and he is giving them every educational advantage in his power. The family belong to the Presbyterian Church, the two older daughters being members of the choir and Miss Gertrude being also a teacher in the Sunday-school. In his political views, Mr. Jack is a Republican. For a long time this family has been one of ample means and social prominence in Washington Township.

JULIAN A. CLARK, one of Butler County's leading citizens, whose pleasant home is at No. 117 Grand Avenue, Butler, has been long a prominent factor in the politics of the county and is now serving in the office of registrar and recorder. He was born September 1, 1862, near Prospect, Butler County, Penna., and is a son of Rev. James A. Clark.

The Rev. James A. Clark settled near Prospect in 1858 and for thirty-six years was the faithful and beloved pastor of the United Presbyterian Church at that place—or until his death. During all that time he missed but two sabbath days. His long and useful life terminated there in July, 1894, when he was aged sixty-three years.

Julian A. Clark was educated at Prospect and for some years after leaving school followed the occupation of farming. He then entered into business as a horse dealer, which for a considerable time he found profitable. Afterwards he turned his attention to the insurance business and during the decade in which he was connected with the Equitable Life Insurance Company, of Butler County, he proved himself one of the most competent insurance men in the field in this section. After the death of his father he returned to the old homestead and took charge of the farm, where he soon established and developed a large wholesale dairy business. Later he moved to Butler Township and there engaged in a retail dairy business for awhile. Five subsequent years were spent in Center Township on a larger farm, and then the educational needs of his growing family caused him to give up country life and he purchased his present attractive and commodious residence in the city of Butler, of which place he has since been one of the progressive and esteemed residents. For a while after coming here he was connected in an industrial way with the car shops. He is politically a staunch Republican and was elected to his present office on that ticket, November 3d, 1908.

In 1886 Mr. Clark was married to Miss Laura M. Thompson, who is a daughter of the late Rev. Warren M. Thompson, a minister in the Baptist Church, in Jefferson County. Mr. and Mrs. Clark have had five children, namely: Margaret A., who resides at home; James A., a bright ambitious youth, who died in his fourteenth year; Mary M., who died aged eleven years; Edward S., who resides under the parental roof-tree; and Jean Elizabeth, who died at the age of six years. The three who are deceased died within four days of each other of measles-pneumonia and their bodies were all consigned to the earth in one grave. This terrible domestic affliction aroused general sympathy in the neighborhood for the bereaved family.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark are members of the United Presbyterian Church, and the former has taken a very active part and interest in church affairs. In 1892 he was a delegate to the International convention of the Young People's Christian Union at East Liverpool, Ohio. While a resident of Center Township he was superintendent of the sabbath school at Holyoke for three years.

REV. PETER C. PRUGH, retired minister, was born September 13, 1822, in Montgomery County, Ohio, and is a son of John and Catherine (Haynes) Prugh. Mr. Prugh was reared on the homestead farm, and after receiving a common school education, entered the Dayton, Ohio, Academy. He entered Marshall College, Mercersburg, Pennsylvania, in 1845, and graduated in 1849. He then entered the Theological Seminary of the Reformed Church at Mercersburg, and when he had completed his studies accepted a call to the Reformed Church at Zenia, Ohio, in 1851, remaining there for twenty-five years. During the war Mr. Prugh was connected with the Ohio Relief Society, and did duty at Washington, Fort Royal, the Wilderness and White House Landing, caring for the wounded soldiers. He was also connected with the Ohio militia at the time General Kirby Smith attempted a raid upon Cincinnati. While a resident of Zenia he was instrumental in founding the Soldiers' Orphan School at that place, and by his own personal efforts raised twenty-five thousand dollars in Green County alone. After the completion of the home he was appointed as chaplain and filled the position for two years. In 1873 he accepted a call from the Church of the Cross, Cincinnati, Ohio, where he remained for three years. He then located at Germantown, Ohio, where he was pastor of the Reformed Church at that place until 1882, when he accepted the position of superintendent of St. Paul's Orphan Home of Butler. After a service of twenty years as superintendent of this school Mr. Prugh resigned and retired to private life, and is now a resident of the South Side, in Butler. He was married April 2, 1852, to Charlotta, a daughter of Jacob Hassler, of Mercersburg, Pennsylvania, a musician in the War of 1812. They are the parents of eleven children, seven of whom lived to manhood and womanhood. They are: Edwin N.; John H., pastor of the Grace Reformed Church, Pittsburg; Daniel K.; William S.; Etta K., deceased; Mary A., wife of Rev. D. N. Harnish, of Butler; and Frances Grace.

WILLIAM L. KEPPLE, who comes of an old and respected family of Fairview Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is the owner of a fine farm of sixty-five acres, which has one producing oil well upon it. He was born in Buena Vista, Fairview Township, October 1, 1854, and is a son of Isaac and Mary (Thorn) Kepple.

Isaac Kepple, father of the subject of this sketch, was a young man at the time he located at Buena Vista, and there continued to live the remainder of his days. He was employed on a canal boat in his early life, running between Freeport and Johnstown, but afterwards always followed farming. He was born in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, in 1818, and lived to the advanced age of eighty-one years. His wife died at Buena Vista at the age of seventy-three years. She was the daughter of George Thorn, who was a very early settler of Fairview Township. Mr. and Mrs. Kepple settled at Buena Vista about the year 1852, and there all their children were born with the exception of the eldest. Four children were born to them, as follows, and all are living within the limits of Fairview Township: Angie; William L.; W. S., and A. D.

William L. Kepple was educated in the public schools of Buena Vista and continued to reside in that village until he was thirty years of age. He has always followed farming and worked about oil wells. In 1876 he came into possession of the farm he now owns, which was purchased by his father from the Union Oil Company. He located on the place in 1884, and has since lived there, a period of nearly a quarter of a century. With the exception of the house, which was standing at the time he located here, he has made all the improvements on the place and has one of the best kept farms in the community.

October 28, 1884, Mr. Kepple was united in marriage with Miss Mary Elizabeth Ellenberger, a daughter of Enos and Mary (Harmon) Ellenberger, early settlers of Fairview Township, who still reside at Buena Vista. Seven children blessed this marriage, namely: Celia, Irene, Mabel, Loretta, Bert L., Edward H., and Alfred. Religiously, the subject of this sketch is a member of the Reformed Church. He has served as school director of the township and has taken a deep interest in all that pertains to the progress of the community.

WILLIAM G. ALTVATER, one of Jefferson Township's well informed and progressive young agriculturists, is engaged in farming and stockraising, in association with his father, on their valuable estate of seventy-five acres, which is situated one and one-half miles west of Saxonburg. Mr. Altvater was born in 1882, in Washington County, Ohio, not far from the city of Marietta, and is a son of Benjamin and Barbara (Stark) Altvater.

The Altvater family was founded in America by the grandfather of William G., who was born in Germany and settled in Washington County, Ohio, in 1850. Benjamin Altvater, father of William G., is a butcher by trade and also follows farming. He married Barbara Stark and they have four children, namely: Bertha, who lives at Pittsburg; William G.; and Bessie and Edna, both of whom live at Pittsburg.

JAMES W. MCKEE

RESIDENCE OF JAMES W. MCKEE, BUTLER

William G. Altvater went from Washington County, to Tarentum, Pennsylvania, and from there to Pittsburg, and after his school days were over he went to work in the steel mills, where he continued for nine years and then, with his father, bought the present farm, which they operate together. It was formerly known as the old Helmholt place, good land, which, under the careful cultivation now being given it, makes large returns.

On August 23, 1905, Mr. Altvater was married to Miss Mamie Hepler, who is a daughter of Scott and Mary (Negley) Hepler, the former of whom is a very prominent farmer of Armstrong County. Mr. and Mrs. Altvater have one beautiful little daughter by the name of Helen. The comfortable farm residence has been recently put up and Mr. Altvater has made other improvements and has substantial barn and cattle sheds.

JAMES W. MCKEE, one of Butler's capitalists, who is engaged in looking after his extensive real estate interests in this city, was born in 1845 in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, where his social and educational opportunities were only those which come to boys who are forced to depend upon their own efforts after being left fatherless in early youth.

The first chance to secure work by which he might provide for himself, Mr. McKee found in the oil fields near Franklin, and in a rough environment he spent one year and then went to the Armstrong fields, going from there to Freeport. There he worked at drilling a salt well for one summer, and then worked in a foundry for three years. One more year was spent in foundry work and then he returned to the oil fields to remain until 1874, after which he operated a planing-mill and engaged in contracting at Freeport, for three years. Later he was engaged in the manufacture of wheels and reels near Bradford and subsequently purchased a foundry there, continuing his interest in the oil business. He remained in that section for ten years, when he moved his foundry to Butler. Here he became a stockholder in the Butler Manufacturing Company, Limited, for the manufacture of engines, taking charge of the foundry and pattern department himself. After six years he bought the interests of his partners and continued the manufacturing business until 1902, when he sold out. Since that time, Mr. McKee has given his attention to looking after his real estate interests. He is a stockholder in two of the banks at Butler and has financial interests in other enterprises.

October 11, 1887, Mr. McKee was married to Miss Margaret E. March, of New Castle, and they have one son, Vance F. Mr. McKee and family reside in a beautiful home which stands at No. 302 West Pearl Street, Butler. Mr. McKee's life story is typical of the indomitable energy and enterprise which have been the factors in the development of the great industrial resources of this section and his success has been greater than many another because he has had more natural capacity and greater perseverance.

ROBERT B. CONN is a well known citizen and prosperous farmer of Clay Township, Butler County, Penna., where he lives on a farm of 104 acres, located two miles south of West Sunbury, on the Butler road. He was born in what is now Washington Township, Butler County, February 12, 1841, and is a son of William and Nancy (Mortimer) Conn. His grandfather, Robert Conn, was a native of Ireland, and upon coming to the United States settled in Washington Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, where he was among the pioneers.

William Conn was born in Washington Township and at an early age learned the trade of a carpenter, which he followed many years, but farming was always his principal occupation. He married Nancy Mortimer, a native of Butler County and a daughter of Samuel Mortimer.

Robert B. Conn was reared on the old home farm and attended the public schools for a brief period. At the early age of twelve years he began learning the trade of yarn making in the Hopewell Woolen Mills in Washington Township. He worked at that business some years, a part of the time at Craigville, and also for W. L. Keefer in Venango County. He continued at this occupation for some years after his marriage, and then in 1872 moved upon his present farm, which he owns in conjunction with his wife, who was born and reared on the place. He is engaged in general farming, is a first class business man, and an upright and useful citizen.

Mr. Conn was married in 1861 to Miss Margaret E. Sutton, and daughter of Jesse and Mary Jane (Hockenbury) Sutton, and they became parents of the following children: Levi E., an oil producer of Findlay, Ohio; Laura J., wife of S. C. McCandless, of Lincoln, Nebraska; Clarence G., who resides on a part of the home farm; Mary, wife of J. H. Timblin, of Latrobe, Pennsylvania; Harry Elwood, who married Pearl Wick and died at the early age of thirty-four years; Nancy Minerva, wife of J. A. Hallstein, of Clay Township; Minnie, wife of DeLoss L. Hindman, of West Sumbury; Sylvia Ellen, wife of Charles A. Brown; and Goldie Pearl, who died when only 23 months old. Mr. Conn is a staunch Republican in politics, and has served as constable, tax collector, school director and assessor. He was school director for a period of eight years, and was tax collector from 1890 until 1900, proving a most capable officer. Religiously, he is a member of the Lutheran Church.

Mr. Conn's grandchildren are as follows: Of Laura J., wife of S. C. McCandless, children—Cecil Budd, Conrad Masserela, Wesley Earl and Effie Jane; Levi E. and Margaret (Day) Conn's children—Cora A., Charles Wallace and J. Earl; Clarence G.

JAMES N. RANDALL, engineer at the Loekrie Brothers coal mine at Argentine, Washington Township, Butler County, Penna., is the owner of a well improved tract of twenty-eight acres in Venango Township, Butler County. He was born in Venango County, Pennsylvania, January 29, 1860, and is a son of Mathias and Sarah (Rodgers) Randall, and a grandson of James Randall, who removed at an early day from Cumberland County, Pennsylvania, to Venango County.

Mathias Randall was one of the following children born to his parents: Simon, deceased, who married a Miss Brown, of Franklin, Pennsylvania; Joseph, who married Amanda Allen of Indiana; Eli, who married Marilla Rodgers of Crawford County; Anna, wife of Cyrus Rodgers of Venango County; Almena, wife of John Work of Crawford County; and Mathias. The last named, father of the subject of this sketch, was united in marriage with Sarah Rodgers, daughter of James Rodgers of Venango County, and they reared three children, as follows: James N.; Elizabeth, deceased; and Wilson, who also is deceased.

James N. Randall was reared in Venango County, and attended school at McKinzie's Corners. After leaving school he went to work in the oil fields of Butler County, and then learned the work of a stationary engineer, in which capacity he is now employed at the coal mine of Lockrie Brothers, one and a half miles west of Hilliard. He cleared his farm of twenty-eight acres, and erected all the buildings thereon, having a well improved place.

Mr. Randall was united in marriage in 1885 with Miss Emma McCasslin, a daughter of Vanderlin McCasslin of Annandale, Butler County. The following are the issue of their union: Bertha, who married Milton Daugherty of Butler County and has two daughters, Edna and Nellie; Maude, who married Clayton Williams of Butler County and has one daughter, Fay; and Annetta, who is at home. Fraternally, Mr. Randall is a member of Lodge No. 782, I. O. O. F., at Lawrenceburg; and the Knights of the Maccabees at Eau Claire. He is a Republican in politics.

D. W. DART, a successful oil producer and highly respected citizen of Buena Vista, Butler County, Pennsylvania, was born March 6, 1849, in Lorain County, Ohio, and is a son of Willard and Sarah (Adams) Dart.

The parents of our subject early in life came from Connecticut and located in Lorain County, Ohio, for some time. They then removed to Fulton County, Ohio, where the father died; the mother died in Lorain County. To them were born the following children: Levi, died in the army; D. W., our subject; George, a resident of Peru, South America, married Mary Vosburg; L. L., residing in Fulton County, Ohio, married Emma Dinius.

D. W. Dart was reared in Lorain and Fulton Counties, Ohio, and in 1870 came to Parker Township from Oil Creek. In about two years he came to Buena Vista, beginning his work in the oil fields in the fall of 1872, his first work being on a 125-barrel well on the old John Thorn farm. He has since that time continued as an oil producer and is one of the most successful producers in this locality.

Mr. Dart was married December 26, 1877, to Emma Sutton, of Butler County, the Rev. Knapp of Parker Township officiating. Mrs. Dart is a daughter of James and Harriet (Brown) Sutton, prominent old settlers of Butler County.

James Sutton was born January 18, 1834, in Butler County and is a son of John and Mary (Sutton) Sutton, who came from Westmoreland County to Butler County at an early period. James Sutton was one of the following children: Joseph, deceased; Jeremiah; Jonathan, deceased; Eliza J., deceased; James J.; John; Sarah; Mary. Mr. Sutton was reared in Concord Township, and obtained his education in the district schools. He taught for some time in Armstrong and Butler Counties, and was postmaster at Buena Vista for a period of eighteen years. He is a veteran of the Civil War, enlisting in 1864 in Company B, Fiftieth Penna. Vol. Inf. and served to the close of the war. Mr. Sutton is the father of one child, Emma, the wife of D. W. Dart. He is a member of the G. A. R. of Chicora, McDermott Post No. 223, and is religiously a member of the English Lutheran Church of Buena Vista.

Mr. and Mrs. Dart have one son, J. L., who was born June 22, 1881. In fraternal affiliation the subject of this sketch is a member of the Knights of Pythias of Chicora, and the K. O. T. M. of Chicora. He is a member of the English Lutheran Church.

WILLIAM H. GRABE, a prominent farmer and representative citizen of Jefferson Township, resides on his valuable estate of 120 acres, which lies along the by-road running from the Glade Mill highway, about one mile due west of Jefferson Center. Mr. Grabe lives on the old homestead, which he purchased in 1879, and here, in the house still standing, he was born November 13, 1851. His parents were George and Elizabeth (Frieze) Grabe.

George Grabe was born in Germany and came to Butler County with his parents, August and Catherine Grabe. George Grabe assisted in clearing the land preparatory to the building of the first house at Saxonburg and he also cleared away the brush where now runs Main Street, with its business houses and busy daily traffic. Later he cleared up the original farm of the family, the third one located in this section, and through his own industry cleared off fully 120 acres. He died April 8, 1902. He was a good farmer and a highly respected man.

In his boyhood, William H. Grabe went to school whenever he could be spared from home work, and then commenced his apprenticeship in the carriage-making trade. He worked at his trade until he mastered it and during the winters of 1870 and 1871 he attended night school and perfected himself in studies which he had been compelled to neglect prior to this opportunity. For fourteen years he carried on a carriage-making business at Jefferson Center, but in April, 1877, he removed to Jefferson Township and bought first a tract of forty acres, which adjoined the old homestead, and subsequently purchased the latter property and has resided here ever since. He carries on general farming and stock-raising and has made a specialty of raising Shorthorn cattle for stock shows, and one winter he had forty-three head of his own raising. He has the reputation of also raising the best horses in the county and is widely known, in addition, as a successful raiser of fancy poultry and is the president of the Butler County Poultry and Pet Stock Association, of which he was a promoter. His orchards also are a feature of his farm and he has 500 peach trees, two-thirds of which are bearing; 400 apple trees; 100 cherry trees and fifty pear and plum trees. Mr. Grabe believes in the value of the county fair exhibitions and he sets the example by yearly entering stock and products. That he receives premiums on the greater number of his exhibits is proof that they are superior to all others. He encourages agricultural organizations and is an officer of the Butler County Grange.

On November 16, 1876, Mr. Grabe was married to Miss Mary E. Wiskeman, a daughter of William and Amelia (Pollard) Wiskeman, prominent farming people of Clinton Township. Mr. and Mrs. Grabe have the following children: Oliver H., who married Lula Giles, has three children; Walter George, who married Vera Miller, has one son, Howard; John Edwin, who married Elizabeth Wetzel, has one daughter, Helen; Edna, who resides at home; Amelia, who married William Weckerly, has two sons, Carl and Albert; and William C., Mabel and Ruth, all of whom live at home. The family is a leading one in the Presbyterian Church and Mr. Grabe is an elder. He is a broad-minded, progressive citizen and takes an active interest in all that concerns the public welfare of township, county and State. On many occasions he has been elected to office, in 1908 being made county commissioner.

ANDREW B. METZ, a successful business man and well known citizen of Middle Lancaster, Butler County, Penna., conducts the store established by his father at a very early period, and for a period of thirty-two years has been in partnership with his mother under the name of A. E. Metz & Son. He was born where he now resides, on April 13th, 1852, and is a son of Andrew and Anna Elizabeth (Luebben) Metz.

Andrew Metz, father of the subject of this sketch, was born in Montgomery County, Pennsylvania, in December, 1811, and has been deceased for fifty-seven years. His widow still survives him and has passed her ninety-first birthday anniversary. She was born in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and both she and her husband reached maturity before moving to Butler County. They were married in the old Stauffer House, on the line between

HARMONY CEREAL COMPANY, ZEIEENOPLE

Lancaster and Jackson Townships, and became parents of the following children: Mary L., who died in May, 1884, and was the wife of W. E. Kirker; Dr. Albert H., a medical practitioner who died at East Liverpool, Ohio, in 1890; Anna E., wife of S. D. Kirker of Harmony; and Andrew B.

In 1846 Andrew Metz established a store in an old log house near where Middle Lancaster is now located, and the building still stands. About the year 1847 he moved to Middle Lancaster and continued the business until his death on January 8th, 1854. The business has continued without interruption since its inception, although for two years during the Civil War it was conducted by Albert H. Metz, and a brother-in-law, Mr. Kirker. Under the proprietorship of Mrs. Metz and Andrew B. Metz the business has flourished and a good trade built up.

Andrew B. Metz received a good common school education in his home vicinity, and from boyhood has been identified with the store. He was united in marriage with Miss Nancy Robison, a daughter of James Robison of Thorn Hill, Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, and they are parents of four children: Isabella, wife of Rev. Leunzinger of Abilene, Kansas, formerly pastor of the Reformed Church at Harmony; Mary V., who has taught school in Harmony and Butler Boroughs; A. Homer, a graduate of Westminster College; and Letitia B., a stenographer for P. Duff & Son of Pittsburg. Politically, Mr. Metz is a Republican. In religious attachment his family are members of the Zellenople Presbyterian church. Fraternally, he is affiliated with the Masonic Lodge at Butler.

A. H. KNAUF, secretary and treasurer of The Harmony Cereal Company, at Harmony, Pennsylvania, is a leading citizen of this town and for many years prior to 1906 was an extensive farmer and stock-raiser in Forward Township, where he still owns his fine farm of 250 acres. He was born in Forward Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, September 19, 1861, and is a son of John and Sophia (Rape) Knauf.

The late John Knauf, father of A. H., was born in Germany. For many years he was a successful farmer in Butler County and a well known, respected citizen. He died March 5, 1900, at the age of seventy-seven years. He married Sophia Rape, who still survives. She was born in 1825 in Cranberry Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a daughter of Christian and Sarah Rape. They had one son and two daughters, namely: A. H.; Mrs. Amelia Dambach, of Jackson Township, Butler County; and Mrs. Sophia Meeder, of Cranberry Township.

A. H. Knauf obtained his education in the Cooper School, in Forward Township and remained at home and followed farming until he turned his attention to milling in 1906. He owns about seven-eighths of the stock in the Harmony Cereal Company at Harmony, which was incorporated in August, 1906, with a capital stock of $30,000. Its officers are: J. C. Bellis, president; A. H. Knauf, secretary and treasurer, with J. C. Bellis, A. H. Knauf and Smith Cavin as directors. The company buys and sells a large amount of grain and does a large business and one that is constantly expanding. The mill capacity is thirty-five barrels of flour a day. The plant is equipped with modern machinery and the business is conducted after the most approved methods.

Mr. Knauf married Miss Annie Mary Knauf, a daughter of George Knauf, of Jackson Township, Butler County, and they have six sons and two daughters, namely: William M., John Henry, Frank Walter, Edwin George, Herman Earl, Harry Lelland, Eva Christina and Milia Viola. Mr. Knauf and family are members of the German Reformed Church. In politics he is a Democrat and he has frequently been elected by his fellow citizens to responsible township offices and has served most acceptably as auditor, supervisor and assessor. He is a member of Eden Lodge, Knights of Pythias.

JOHN H. TEBAY, a well known oil and gas producer of Eau Claire, Butler County, Pennsylvania, was the first male child born in that village, the date of his birth being September 30, 1854. He is a son of William H. and Lydia (Chambers) Tebay, a grandson of John and Elizabeth (Stewart) Tebay.

John Tebay, the grandfather, was first married to Elizabeth Stewart, who was of Scotch descent and who came to the United States from England. They had two children: William H. and Stewart, the last named dying in boyhood. John Tebay formed a second union with a Miss Vogan of Lawrence County, and they had five children: John, deceased; Elizabeth of Slippery Rock; Josephine, wife of William Moore, who is a retired farmer and lives at Slippery Rock; Clark, deceased; and Chase, who resides in Slippery Rock and has business interests in the West.

William H. Tebay attended school near Portersville and lived at home until his fifteenth year, then went to Butler and learned the trade of a carpenter with Purvis & Company. He later moved to Eau Claire, where he followed carpentering throughout his active career. He married Lydia Chambers, a daughter of Lewis Chambers, who came from east of the mountains of Pennsylvania, and located on what has since been known as the Chambers farm, one mile west of Eau Claire. He, too, was a carpenter by trade. His wife was Elizabeth Hilliard, a daughter of Thomas and Margaret Hilliard of Ireland. William H. and Lydia Tebay had the following offspring: Mary E., widow of J. E. Kaylor of Beaver Falls, by whom she has had three children—Clarence E., deceased, Lamonte and Pearl; Jennie Tebay, who resides in Franklin, Pennsylvania; John H., subject of this biography; O. H., an oil man of Cherry Valley; and Ahmira, who lives with her mother at Eau Claire.

John H. Tebay attended the public schools, all of them at the old Blair school, and afterwards started work in Butler County; he went into the oil fields as a tool dresser, and later as a driller in the Bradford field. He continued that business in the Hudson River field, and later returned to Butler, where he has since continued his operations. He has been contracting and drilling for many years and has met with success. During the past nine months he has been in the new state of Oklahoma, leasing land for various companies, but he has maintained his residence in Eau Claire as before. He is the owner of a valuable property of twenty acres, the northern part of the village of Eau Claire lying on a part of his land.

Mr. Tebay was united in marriage with Miss Florence A. Campbell, a daughter of James R. and Anna (Storey) Campbell of West Sunbury, and the following are the issue of their union: Paul J., a teacher in Eau Claire Academy; William J., lineman for the Eau Claire Telephone Company; Helen L. The subject of this sketch is a Republican, Burgess of Eau Claire one year, and justice of the peace ten years, his term to expire in 1911. He was twice candidate for the nomination for sheriff. He is a member of Butler Lodge No. 170, B. P. O. E. Religiously, he is a member of the United Presbyterian church.

HENRY F. GRENET, general brick contractor at Butler, with place of business at No. 354 North Main Street, has been identified with the brick business ever since he was old enough to take an interest in any industry. He was born in 1863, at Allegheny, Pennsylvania, where also he was reared. His parents were James and Matilda (Foulkener) Grenet. The father, James Grenet, served in the Civil war as captain of Company B, Fourth Pennsylvania Cavalry, under appointment of Governor Curtin. He died in 1897, his death occurring about two years after that of his wife Matilda.

The great-grandfather of the subject of this sketch on the maternal side was Charles H. Foulkener, a squatter on Allegheny Commons, now known as the Allegheny Park, where he died.

Henry F. Grenet as a boy worked for his grandfather, Henry F. Foulkener, in the brick business and later he learned the bricklayers' trade and has worked at the same ever since. For twelve years he has done brick contracting; for six years of this period he had George Gerberding associated with him, under the firm name of Grenet & Gerberding, since when he has carried on his extensive business alone. His brick work is seen in a number of Butler's finest structures and among these may be named: the Nixon Hotel; the Leedom & Worrall wholesale grocery building, and the Cypher Building, in which he also contracted for the art plate glass work. Mr. Grenet has been called to other cities and a notable example of his fine work is seen in the Armory at Grove City. Mr. Grenet has been a resident of Butler for eight years and in that time has proven his capacity in his special line and also his standing as a good citizen.

In 1886 Mr. Grenet was married to Miss Anna M. Matthews, of Allegheny, and they have a family of three sons and one daughter: James, who is associated with his father; Alexander, who is also a practical brick workman; Guy; and Nellie. Mr. Grenet is a member of the Bricklayers' Association of Butler. In politics he is a Democrat.

WILLIAM H. MILLER, a prominent oil producer of Fairview Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and owner of two fine farms in this township, was born April 4, 1867, in Fairview Township, and is a son of Charles and Hannah (Kaylor) Miller, and a grandson of Casper Miller.

Casper Miller, grandfather of our subject, was born in Germany and early in life came to America, locating in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, being one of the earliest settlers of that county. He was the father of the following children: John, Peter, Charles, Katherine, and Ellen.

Charles Miller, father of William H., was born in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, and married Hannah Kaylor, a daughter of Leonard Kaylor, an early settler of Armstrong County, Pennsylvania. Charles and Hannah Miller became the parents of the following offspring: William H. is the subject of this sketch. Lewis, who resides at Bradys Bend, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, first married Emma Hepler, by whom he had one child, Laura. His second union was with Maud Steel of Butler County, and they have had two children, Grace and Lee. Peter K. resides on one of our subject's farms in Fairview Township, and is unmarried.

William H. Miller was reared and has practically lived all of his life in Fairview Township. He received but a limited amount of schooling and at the tender age of eleven years started out in life for himself. He first began as an oil pumper and has continued in the oil business ever since, working his way up, until at present he is a large oil producer, and has an interest in about 15 wells in this section of the state. In 1900 he purchased a tract of 111 acres from Oscar Kammerer and on October 5, 1905, purchased another tract of land in Fairview Township from the Allegheny Railroad through Emmet Queen of Pittsburg.

Mr. Miller was united in marriage in 1891 to Elizabeth Hepler, a daughter of Isaac and Rachel (Kammerer) Hepler of Kaylor. They are the parents of four children: Florence B., W. W., Olive J., and J. C., deceased.

In religious affiliation, Mr. Miller is associated with the St. John's Reform Church of Chicora, and has been a deacon of the church during the greater part of his life. Fraternally, he is a member of the I. O. O. F. lodge at Chicora, No. 947, and the Encampment; the Knights of Pythias, of which he is vice chancellor, and the Knights of Malta of Butler.

CHARLES F. SCHOENTAG, who is proprietor of a large general store at Saxonburg, is a leading and substantial citizen of this town. He was born October 21, 1865, at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, and is a son of John and Mary (Lerner) Schoentag.

The venerable father of Mr. Schoentag was born in Germany and was one of the first settlers at Saxonburg, where he has the distinction of being the oldest resident in point of years. During his active years he engaged in shoemaking. He is the father of six living children, namely: George, Charles, William, Mary, John and Emma. One daughter, Anna, is deceased.

Charles Schoentag accompanied his parents from Pittsburg, being only three years old when they settled here. He is a harnessmaker by trade and for eighteen years made harness and was considered an expert workman. The present mercantile business was started by his older brother, George Schoentag, who conducted it for one year and then sold it, in 1903, to the present proprietor. He carries a large and well selected stock of goods and does a very satisfactory amount of business.

Mr. Schoentag married Miss Mary Hilman, a daughter of George and Dora Hilman, who spent their entire lives in Germany. They have six children: Flora, Robert, Elmer, George, Dora and Amelia. Mr. Schoentag and wife belong to the German Lutheran Church.

BAXTER R. RAMSEY, a representative citizen of Cranberry Township, belongs to one of the pioneer families of Butler County. He was born in Cranberry Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, August 30, 1865, and is a son of Anthony and Elizabeth (McGeorge) Ramsey.

Alexander Ramsey, the grandfather of Baxter R., was born in County Down, Ireland, in 1776, emigrated to America in 1786 and lived for ten years in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania. In 1796 he came to Butler County and took up land in Cranberry Township, where he was one of the first permanent settlers. He built a log cabin and spent the remainder of his life on his farm, where he died in 1843, aged sixty-seven years. He married Grace Smith, who was born in 1776, in Chester County, Pennsylvania, who died in Cranberry Township, in 1845, aged sixty-nine years. Her father, James Smith, was a soldier in the War of the American Revolution and was killed at the battle of the Brandywine. The children born to Alexander and Grace Ramsey who reached maturity were: Mary, Hannah, James, John, William, Alexander and Anthony. Mary, now deceased, was the wife of Isaac Young. Hannah married Joseph Robinson. James was born in Cranberry Township in 1805, married Annie Covert, born March 4, 1812, and they had five children, namely: Mary Ann, who married W. H. Honodde; Nancy and Elizabeth, single ladies, residing at Beaver Falls; Alexander C. and William H., of Jackson Township, Butler County. James Ramsey died in 1869 and was survived by his widow until October, 1891. For many years he was an elder in the United Presbyterian Church. John Ramsey, born in 1807, married Sarah Covert. William Ramsey never married. Alexander Ramsey, born August 1, 1817, in 1845 married Sarah McGeorge, a sister of the mother of Baxter R. They were daughters of John and Elizabeth McGeorge, the former of whom was born in Scotland in April, 1815, and was a pioneer settler near Butler, Pennsylvania. Two sons of Alexander and Sarah Ramsey reside in Jackson Township—W. S. and S. C. Ramsey.

Anthony Ramsey, father of Baxter R., was born in Cranberry Township, Butler County, November 20, 1820, and died on the farm, on which Baxter R. resides, January 31, 1880. He married Elizabeth McGeorge, who was born November 17, 1822, and died December 18, 1884. They were the parents of the following children: Elizabeth, deceased, was born March 4, 1848, and was the wife of Joseph Cashdollar; Mary Jane, born April 17, 1850, died aged fifteen years; Addison, born January 3, 1853, married Jennie West and died in 1904, leaving one daughter; John A., born April 6, 1855, married Lila May McKinney and they reside at Evans City, Pennsylvania; Euphemia, born February 3, 1857, resides with her brother, Baxter R.; Ella, deceased, was born January 4, 1859; Edwin, born November 4, 1861, married Ida West, a daughter of Fleming West, of Cranberry Township, and they reside in Jackson Township; and Baxter R. The parents were worthy members of the White Oak United Presbyterian Church which their parents had been interested in organizing.

Baxter R. Ramsey attended the public schools of Cranberry Township, but the death of his father, when he was only fourteen years of age, placed heavy responsibilities on him. He took charge of the home farm and has continued to manage it ever since. He has sixty-three acres of excellent farming land and has two producing oil wells. He has other business interests and is a stockholder in the Bury & Markle hardware store at Evans City.

In 1893, Mr. Ramsey was married to Miss Maggie Garvin, a daughter of Newton and Margaret (Nicholas) Garvin, formerly of Cranberry Township. Newton Garvin was born in Cranberry Township, May 8, 1831, and he was a son of David and Permelia (Malison) Garvin. The children born to Newton Garvin and wife were as follows: William P., who died aged eighteen months; Mary, who married Jacob Panter, of Rochester, Pennsylvania; Lewis, who married Catherine Metz, lives in Beaver County, Pennsylvania; Maggie; Permelia, who married Henry Leonberg, of Cranberry Township; Charles, residing in Forward Township, married (first) Ora, daughter of Samuel Ramsey, of Jackson Township, and (second) Mrs. Pfeifer; and Emma, who married Henry Weyman, of Cranberry Township. The parents of this family were leading members of the Plains Presbyterian Church. Newton Garvin was a man of ample fortune, owning 300 acres of land in Cranberry Township together with a valuable farm in Beaver County.

Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey became the parents of five children: Ethel May, born June 23, 1894; Lavern Garvin, born April 3, 1897; Grace Smith, born January 24, 1900; Pearl, born August 16, 1906; and an infant daughter, Phemie Alice, born January 27, 1909, who died February 7, 1909. The last mentioned survived its mother two days, Mrs. Ramsey's death taking place on February 5th. With her husband she was a member of the United Presbyterian Church at Evans City, and was a woman greatly liked and respected. In politics, like his father and grandfather, Mr. Ramsey is a staunch Democrat. For the past six years he has served as school director and has also been a member of the board of elections in his district. He belongs to the Knights of Pythias lodge at Evans City and to Grange No. 908, Patrons of Husbandry, of which his wife was also a member.

D. J. McMAHON, a well known resident of Karns City, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is now living a retired life after many years of activity in the oil industry. He was born in Ireland, April 15, 1835, and is one of seven children born to James and Mary McMahon. His parents never came to America.

D. J. McMahon was reared in his native land and there received a limited education in the common schools. At the age of twenty-six years he emigrated to America, and first located at Buffalo, New York, where he resided a number of years. During the oil excitement, he moved to Petroleum Center and then to Karns City, in Butler County, Penna., and has been located there ever since. For a period of more than thirty-one years he was in the employ of the Standard Oil Company, and being a useful and conscientious employee was able to command a good salary, out of which he has saved a competency which enables him to spend his declining years in the peace and comfort of his home, in the happy companionship of his wife. He is the owner of some realty in his home town.

About the year 1869 Mr. McMahon was united in marriage with Miss Margaret Dolan, also a native of Ireland, and they are parents of eight children, as follows: T. L., John L., J. C., D. F., T. J., Mayme, Anna and Margaret. T. L. McMahon married Miss Alice Gerding of Toledo, Ohio. John L. McMahon married Miss Maud Veil (deceased) and has one child—Margaret. J. C. McMahon married Miss Elizabeth Pfeifer, of Ohio. Mayme McMahon married P. H. Quinn of Titusville, Penna., and they have three sons—Harold Vincent, George P., and Joseph McMahon Quinn. Margaret McMahon married Alonzo Parish and has one child—Margaret Elizabeth. This family was well reared and educated, and the sons are all holding good positions, located in various parts of the south and west. Religiously, Mr. McMahon has been a devout member of the Catholic church at Petrolia for many years, and has been a member of the C. M. B. A. for twenty-nine years.

SOLOMON ROBERT THOMPSON, who owns over 100 acres of valuable land in Brady Township, resides on this farm, which is situated along the Butler-Mercer turnpike road, and was born here on March 17, 1831. His parents were William H. and Jane (McCandless) Thompson.

William H. Thompson was a son of John Thompson. The latter came from Ireland, lived in different sections near Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, when his son William H. was born and later acquired much land in what is now Brady Township. The Thompson and McCandless families, both prominent ones in Butler County, have been connected by marriage in several generations.

Solomon Robert Thompson was reared on the farm he occupies and attended school in his boyhood, not enjoying, however, the great advantages offered the children of the present day. He was trained to be a farmer and has continually followed general farming.

Mr. Thompson married Miss Martha Ann McCandless, who was born and reared in Center Township, Butler County, a daughter of Nathan F. and Elizabeth (Thompson) McCandless. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson have had eight children, as follows: Nathan, who lives at Coraopolis, married Etta Thompson and they have one child, Dwight; Edna, who died May 3, 1908; E. C., a physician at West Liberty, who married Bertie Stapleton and they have one child, Mary; Mary Elizabeth, who married Wilbert Tebay, and had three children—William, Raymond and James Wilson; William H., who married Maud Spencer, resides on a part of his father's farm and has three children—J. Delbert, Lena and Laura; Loretta; Charles Ward, who lives at home; and William George, the second in order of birth, who died when aged two and one-half years. Mary Elizabeth died December 18, 1907, and her youngest son lives with her parents. Mr. Thompson and family belong to the Muddy Creek Presbyterian Church. They are representative people in this section of Butler County.

JAMES ROSS PORTER CONLEY, one of the prominent citizens and large farmers of Adams Township, resides on his valuable farm, which contains 104 acres, and carries on a general line of agriculture. He was born November 7, 1856, on his father's farm in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of John P. and Jane (Dawson) Conley.

John P. Conley was born in West Deer Township, Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, and died in Adams Township, on his son's present farm, November 21, 1904, aged eighty-one years. His father, Nathan Conley, was an early settler in Allegheny County, where he followed his trade, that of cabinet-maker. He also owned a small farm. He had two sons: Robert, who died in Colorado, and John P. The latter inherited a part of his father's estate, on which he lived until 1871, when he purchased land from William Humes, in Adams Township, on which he resided during the remainder of his life. He married Jane Dawson, whose father was a native of Ireland. She still survives, at the age of eighty-two years, and is a beloved member of the family of her son, James R. John P. Conley and wife had the following children: Mary, deceased, was the wife of John Aber, also deceased; Robert; Sarah Belle, deceased; James Ross Porter; Andrew T.; Joseph D. and Wilson H., deceased.

James R. P. Conley was thirteen years old when his parents came to Adams Township and settled on his present farm, on which he has passed his life ever since, his occupations having been farming and teaming. In September, 1878, he was married to Miss Sarah Hutelman, a daughter of Jacob Hutelman, who resides on the farm adjoining that of Mr. Conley. Five children make up the family of Mr. and Mrs. Conley, namely: Albert W., who married Susie Romack; Ira P., who married Ella Hartung, has two children, Clare and Kenneth; John H.; Lillian M. and Ross V. The present commodious frame residence was erected by the father of Mr. Conley, the first house having been destroyed by fire. Mr. and Mrs. Conley are members of the United Presbyterian Church. In politics he is a Republican, takes an active interest in public affairs and at different times has served as township supervisor and as a member of the election board.

AMOS SEATON, ex-county treasurer of Butler County, Penna., and one of Venango Township's most prominent citizens, successfully carries on general farming on his valuable estate of 120 acres, which is situated one mile southwest of the borough of Eau Claire. Mr. Seaton was born in Venango Township, Butler County, Penna., August 23, 1838, and is a son of William and Rebecca (Vanderlin) Seaton.

The grandparents of Mr. Seaton were Robert and Margaret (Davis) Seaton and they had ten children namely: Alexander, Thomas, Eliza, Robert, William, James, John, Polly, Margaret and Anna.

William Seaton, of the above family, married Rebecca Vanderlin, a daughter of John Vanderlin, of Venango Township, and they had the following children born to them: Catherine; Margaret, who married Theodore Hovis, of Clintonville, Venango County, Penna., had four children—William, Marshall, Parker and Darley; Caroline, who married James Jack of Washington Township, had four children—Nancy, Mallie, Edward and Grant; John, who married Elizabeth Thompson, of Warren County, was drowned in the Allegheny River, leaving three children—William, Roy and Delphine; William G., who married Ellen Burke, daughter of John Burke, of Venango Township, has six children—

Marshall, William, Katherine and Ella, twins, Annie and Plummer; Hattie, who married Stephen Cooper, of Marion Township, has two children—Amelia and Delbert; and Amos.

Amos Seaton was reared on his father's farm in Venango Township and in boyhood went to the district schools. From the home farm he went into the army when the urgent call came for loyal men to put down rebellion, enlisting first in Company C, Eleventh Penna. Reserves, in which he served for three years and then re-enlisted in Company D, Fifteenth Regiment, Penna. Cavalry, and served until the close of the war, in 1865. During this long period Mr. Seaton experienced many of the misfortunes of war, being captured by the enemy and being so seriously wounded in his shoulder, at the battle of Malvern Hill, as to be inconvenienced by his wound more than forty years later. After he had reached home and regained a fair measure of strength, he resumed his farming operations. In 1867 he married and then bought a farm of eighty acres in Venango Township, on which he continued until 1887, when, upon being elected to the important office of county treasurer, he removed to Butler, where he lived until he retired from that office in 1890. He sold his farm of eighty acres and purchased his present one of 120 acres, of Andrew Adleman, and here has engaged in mixed farming ever since. His land is valuable from an agricultural point of view, no oil, gas or coal having been yet found. He has excellent farm buildings, a fine orchard and is surrounded by all the comforts of life to which true Americans feel their honored veterans are entitled. He is a member of the Grand Army Post at Eau Claire and to the Union Veterans' League at Butler.

On December 10, 1867, Mr. Seaton was married to Miss Mary Laughlin, a daughter of Samuel Laughlin, of Marion Township, and the following children and grandchildren are theirs: Henrietta, who married Wilbur N. Stalker, of Venango Township, and has six children—Oran, Roy, Ada, Alberta, Stanley and Margaret; Delphine, who married F. W. Hilliard, of Emlenton; Ada, who is a school teacher; Percy, who is a well driller; Fannie, who lives at home; Homer R., who is in Panama; Darley, who resides at home; Elias, who married Polly Ann Wasson, daughter of John Wasson, of Cherry Township, and has six children—Roy, Elmer, Parker, Clara, Merritt and Amos; and Lewis M., who married Bell McCoy, daughter of H. C. McCoy, and has four children—Harry, John, Louis and Edward. Mr. Seaton and family belong to the Methodist Episcopal Church at Eau Claire. In his political views Mr. Seaton is a staunch Republican and has been a very prominent factor in the public life of Butler County and Venango Township. At different times he has served most acceptably as constable, collector, auditor, school director and road supervisor for his township, while, during his term as county treasurer, his fellow citizens rested secure, knowing that the public funds were entrusted to not only a capable man but an honest one.

REV. JOHN S. McKEE, fifth pastor of the United Presbyterian Church of Butler, was born in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, June 22, 1850, and was the son of William S. McKee, who was a native of Ireland. He was educated in the East Liberty Academy and the Western University, and then entered the United Presbyterian Theological School in Allegheny City, where he was graduated in 1873. Subsequently he attended the Free Church College, Edinburgh, Scotland, for one year. Mr. McKee was licensed to preach the gospel June 24, 1873, and was ordained and installed pastor of East Brady Congregation, October 19, 1875. He remained with that charge until 1880, when he received a call from the United Presbyterian Church at Mercer, Pennsylvania, which he accepted and was pastor of that church until October 1, 1884. On that date he received a call from the Butler Congregation, which he accepted, and he remained its pastor until his death, which occurred March 5, 1903. Mr. McKee was married in June, 1878, to Miss Sophia M. Templeton, of East Brady. His widow and one daughter, Jeannie E., survive him, and live in Butler.

MRS. EVA M. STEEL, widow of the late James Steel of Fairview Township, Butler County, and owner of a tract of nineteen acres, on which she resides, was born in Venango County, Pennsylvania, and is the adopted daughter of William and Margaret (Hiles) Burtch of Armstrong County, Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Steel resided in Armstrong County until about twenty years of age, when she married James Steel, a son of James Steel, Sr., of Greene County, their marriage occurring February 24, 1881, at Parker City, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania. James Steel, Jr., was born January 7, 1844, and died May 19, 1907. He was a farmer and oil producer by occupation, and upon first locating in Butler County bought an oil well on the old Collins farm in Fairview Township. In 1901, at the expiration of their lease, they purchased the farm on which Mrs. Steel now resides, from Joseph Barnhart.

Mrs. Steel is the mother of a large family of children, namely: Edgar, Alma G., Mabel, Judge J., Ethel M., Wayne J., deceased, Margaret E., John R., Williard A., Harold H. and Paul J., deceased. Mrs. Steel is a member of the St. John's Reform Church of Chicora and is esteemed by her many friends for her excellencies of character.

ANDREW FRED WETZEL, who is one of Jefferson Township's enterprising and successful general farmers, lives on his valuable estate of seventy acres, which lies on the Great Belt road, about one and one-half miles south of the village of Great Belt, was born in his present residence, November 10, 1877, and is a son of Frederick and Caroline (Hartenstein) Wetzel.

Frederick Wetzel, father of Andrew F., was born in Germany and when fifteen years old accompanied his parents, Gottlieb and Hannah (Merkle) Wetzel, to America. The great-grandfather, Nicholas Wetzel, never left Germany. Frederick Wetzel and wife had eleven children, namely: Mena, Caroline, Emelia, Louisa, William, Anna, Matilda, John, Elizabeth, Andrew F. and Herman. Those deceased are Caroline, William, Matilda and Herman.

Andrew F. Wetzel attended the public schools through boyhood and was trained to be a practical farmer, from youth having had duties to perform. He has made farming his main business in life and is numbered with the township's leading agriculturists. Mr. Wetzel and his father reside side by side, the new house, which is occupied by the parents, being erected in 1903.

In April, 1905, Mr. Wetzel was married to Miss Hattie Koegler, who is a daughter of August and Margaret (Doerr) Koegler, of Jefferson Township, and they have two bright little children, Karl and Elma. Mr. Wetzel is a leading member and liberal supporter of the German Lutheran Church. He takes a good citizen's interest in all that concerns public matters in his township, but is not a politician.

CAPT. WILLIAM HARRISON McCANDLESS, a veteran of the Civil War and a well known resident of Center Township, is a representative of a pioneer family of Butler County. He was born and has always lived on the farm he now owns, the date of his birth being December 21, 1840, and is a son of John F. and Nancy (Hayes) McCandless. His paternal grandfather, William McCandless, came to the United States from County Down, Ireland, and took up 800 acres in the northwestern part of Center Township, in Butler County, Penna. This hardy pioneer became one of the prominent men of the county, and was widely known to its citizens.

John F. McCandless was born on the farm adjoining that now owned by his son, William H., and moved to the latter at the time of his marriage in 1832. They set up housekeeping in a log house, in which there were no doors, quilts being hung over the apertures for that purpose. The first house erected by him was a log structure of two stories, with a two-story front porch, and it was regarded as one of the best houses then in the township. Here John F. McCandless and his wife lived until their respective deaths; all their children were born therein, and it was in this house that William H. McCandless and his wife set up housekeeping. The father of the subject of this sketch was joined in marriage with Nancy Hayes, who was born and reared in Connoquenessing Township, Butler County, and was a daughter of William Hayes, a native of Scotland. Nine children blessed this union, namely: Mary J. (Findley) of Kansas; Nancy A. (Miller) of Euclid, Pennsylvania; Emeline (Glenn) of Allegheny Township, Penna.; William Harrison; John Milton, who died in the fall of 1865; Jennings Coulter McCandless of Connoquenessing Township; Porter and Minerva, who died in infancy; and Sarah Belle (Wilson) of Allegheny Township, Butler County.

Capt. William H. McCandless was reared on the home farm and received his educational training in the district schools. When the Civil War was in progress he enlisted, in August of 1862, as a member of Company D, 137th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and served nine months. He then remained at home until the summer of 1864, when he re-enlisted as a member of Company A, Sixth Pennsylvania Heavy Artillery, bearing the rank of first lieutenant from that time until the war closed. Upon his return home he resumed agricultural pursuits, at which he has since continued with uninterrupted success, always on the same farm.

March 8, 1866, Captain McCandless was united in marriage with Miss Harriet N. Glenn, who was born and reared in Concord Township, Butler County, and is a daughter of William, Sr., and Rebecca (Porter) Glenn. Five children were the issue of this union, as follows: Carrie Belle, who died October 20, 1906, was the wife of Robert Mellon; Dr. Milton Lowrie McCandless, a graduate of Western Reserve Medical College of Cleveland and now located in practice at Rochester, Pennsylvania, married Gertrude Lyon of Butler, and they have three children—Harrison, Helen and Lowrie Thompson; Minnie R., wife of Rev. D. P. Williams, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Natrona, Pennsylvania, has two children: Samuel Harrison and Harriet Glenn; Myrta, who died in May, 1903, was the wife of H. C. Hindman, a druggist of West Sunbury, Pennsylvania, and they had one daughter, Jean Harriet, who is living; and Everett, an electrical engineer, who is in the employ of the Westinghouse Company in Pittsburg. Religiously, the subject of this sketch has been a member of the Presbyterian church at Unionville many years, a member of the session for thirty years, and is superintendent of the Sabbath school. He is a Republican in politics, and for the past two years has served as tipstaff. He has filled most of the township offices, and always discharged his public duties in a conscientious and capable manner.

E. L. GILLILAND, a leading general farmer in Connoquenessing Township, owns sixty-two acres of exceedingly valuable land, it being not only readily responsive to cultivation but also possessing oil and coal deposits. Mr. Gilliland was born

May 8, 1866, in Cranberry Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of William Noble and Mary (Easton) Gilliland.

William Gilliland, the paternal grandfather, established the family in western Pennsylvania and died in Allegheny County. His son William Noble Gilliland, father of E. L., in turn established the family in Butler County. He was born October 8, 1808, in some section east of the Allegheny Mountains and was small when his father came to Lawrence County, settling on a small tract of land near New Castle. In a very short time he moved to what is now White Hall, Allegheny County. A half century ago the second William Gilliland settled on an uncleared farm in Cranberry Township and lived there until 1879, having cleared and improved the land before disposing of it. From there he came to Connoquenessing Township and lived on the present farm of his son until his death. By trade he was a carpenter and his children remember how hard he worked to clear up his farm, often walking a distance of a half dozen miles to and from his place of employment and after nightfall doing a second day's work on his property. For many years he thus led an unusually busy life, but notwithstanding he found time to capably serve in the township offices to which he was frequently elected by his fellow citizens. In politics he was a Democrat. He married a daughter of George and Nancy (Clevidence) Easton, early settlers of English ancestry. Seven children were born to this union, four of whom reached maturity, namely: George B., of Rochester, Beaver County, Pennsylvania; William J., deceased; Samuel E., of Connoquenessing Township; and E. L. William Gilliland and wife were worthy members of the Baptist Church of Cranberry Township.

E. L. Gilliland was reared at home and since coming with his parents to Connoquenessing Township has resided on the present farm, with the exception of one year which he spent at Mars. He has fifty acres of his land under cultivation and raises corn, oats, wheat, hay and potatoes, together with a large amount of garden truck and much poultry. He keeps four cows and furnishes choice butter to particular customers at Butler. He has one producing oil well and, when he is prepared to do so, will probably find an independent fortune in an underlying vein of coal.

Mr. Gilliland married Miss Dora Bolton, who is a daughter of Edward T. Bolton, of Connoquenessing Township, and they have five children, namely: Wilbur, Loyal, Clare, Earl and Carl Noble, who was born on the 100th anniversary of Mr. Gilliland's father's birth. Mr. and Mrs. Gilliland are members and liberal supporters of the White Oak Springs Presbyterian Church. In politics he is a Democrat and has served in many of the local offices, having been inspector of elections, supervisor and assessor. He is a member of Eureka Grange, No. 244, at Eberhart.

DUNCAN McDONALD, owner of a farm of forty-eight acres of valuable land, which is situated in Jackson Township, was born May 9, 1855, in Hickory Township, Mercer County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Duncan and Ellen (Gardner) McDonald.

The parents of Mr. McDonald were natives of Scotland and came to America and settled in Trumbull County, Ohio, in 1874. The father died at Hubbard, Ohio, in 1895, aged seventy-two years, and the mother died in August, 1903, aged seventy-eight years. They had lost some children before coming to America, but the others were as follows: John, who died in Mercer County; Elizabeth, wife of John Whitaker; Thomas, who lives in Illinois; Matthew, who was killed in a mine accident, in Mercer County; Duncan; Jane, who is the wife of John Bowie, a merchant residing at Jackson Center, Pennsylvania; Ellen, deceased; Mary, who married J. C. Curry, of Latimore, Ohio; Maggie, who married William Cook, of Mahoning County, Ohio.

Duncan McDonald is a self-made man. When only thirteen years old he went to work in the mines and later worked for the Pennsylvania Fuel Company and still later engaged in farming at Little Creek. He came first to Butler County in 1907, from Lawrence County, and in June, 1908, he purchased his present farm. Mr. McDonald owns this farm and some valuable real estate in New Castle, having acquired it all through his own efforts, with the exception of $200, which he inherited. He has been a prudent, industrious man and can look back over a worthy and well-spent life.

In August, 1876, Mr. McDonald was married (first) to Miss Matilda Worley, a daughter of John and Martha Worley, of Hubbard, Ohio. To this union were born three children, namely: Julia, Ellen and Duncan. Julia married Ernest Salow and they reside at Hubbard, Ohio. They have two children, Jean and Arthur. Ellen married Lawrence Snyder, of Hubbard, and both of their children are deceased. Duncan resides at Youngstown, Ohio, where he has charge of an electric plant. He served three years in the army in the Philippine Islands. He married Etta Covert.

Mr. McDonald lost his first wife by death and was married a second time, March 1, 1905, to Miss Minnie Downing, of Butler County. She is one of a family of fourteen children born to her parents, Jacob and Sarah Downing, who are residents of Little Creek. Mr. and Mrs. McDonald are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Petersville. In politics he is a staunch Republican. He is a member of Lodge No. 1047, Odd Fellows, at Evans City, and belongs also to the Knights of Pythias at that place. He is one of Jackson Township's respected and representative citizens.

WILLIAM CHRISTLEY, who has been postmaster of Euclid, Butler County,

Penna., since President McKinley's first administration, bears an honorable record for service in the Union Army during the Civil War. He is a native of the borough of Slippery Rock, the date of his birth being March 26, 1842, and is a son of George and Leah (Keister) Christley. His father was a tanner by trade and operated a tannery in Slippery Rock for a number of years.

William Christley was reared and educated in his native borough and at an early age learned the trade of a tanner under his father. When the Civil War broke out he early responded to the call to arms, enlisting September 17, 1861, for three years' service as a member of Company H, Seventy-eighth Regiment, Pa. Vol. Inf. They were mustered into the service at Kittanning, where the regiment was organized, although his company was raised in Butler. He participated in all the engagements of his regiment, although he received a slight wound in the shoulder at the battle of Stone River. The regiment was mustered out at Kittanning, November 4, 1864, and he returned to Slippery Rock. He owned a part interest in the tannery there during the war, and in the meantime his father passed away. Upon his return home Mr. Christley sold out his interest in the enterprise and diverted his energies to the oil fields. For a period of seventeen years he worked as a driller and pumper, after which he engaged in teaming, during this time making his home in Concord Township. He followed teaming in the borough of Butler for ten years during this time, and a part of the time lived in Clay Township. As postmaster of Euclid he has given efficient service and has added greatly to his popularity.

Mr. Christley was united in marriage with Miss Mary E. Bortemus, a daughter of Rudolph Bortemus. She was reared in Penn Township where her father farmed, but some time before his death he bought a farm in Clay Township. This union resulted in the birth of eleven children, nine of whom are living, namely: William J., who lives in Oklahoma; Nellie J. (Miller); George R.; Leah (Allen); Edwin J.; Annie L., who is assistant to her father in the postoffice; Rose B. (Lawrence); Cyrus O.; and Josephine. The two who died were John Russell who died at two years and eight months, and May who died at the age of one year and six months.

ROBERT LYNN ALLISON, M. D., a successful practitioner of Eau Claire, Butler County, Pennsylvania, has been located in this borough throughout his professional career. He was born in Center Township, Butler County, September 6, 1864, and is a son of William and Rachel (Gilliand) Allison, and a grandson of Robert Allison. The family is an old and respected one of the county, having become established here at a very early date.

Robert Allison, the grandfather, was united in marriage with Miss Jane Cochran, a daughter of William Cochran of Oakland Township, and they had the following children: Thomas, who was a soldier in the Union Army during the Civil War and died of typhoid fever in the service; William, John, Nancy, Mary, Lydia, and Emeline. John Allison married Harriet Smith, a daughter of W. P. Smith of Center Township, and they had the following issue: R. Perry, Robert, Lee, Olive (deceased), Jennie and Emma. Nancy Allison became the wife of John Campbell of Concord Township, and their children were as follows: Amy, wife of T. J. Russell of Erie; Ada, wife of Albert Cumberland; Lowery, who lives on the Campbell homestead in Concord Township; T. R. Campbell of Concord Township; and W. D. Campbell, who is also a resident of Concord Township. Mary Allison married W. D. McCandless of Center Township, and they have a son, Charles S. McCandless. Lydia Allison married J. E. Russell, then of Concord Township but now of Stenbenville, Ohio, and they have had three children—Emeline, wife of Walker Crammer of Harmony; Effie, wife of B. Fox of Allegheny County; and Augusta who also lives in Allegheny County. Emeline Allison, the youngest of the family, married Alexander Blaine of Center Township, Butler County, and six children were the issue of their union, as follows: William A., Charles, Milton, Wilber, Harry, and Jane who married George Shanor of Butler.

William Allison, father of the subject of this record, was joined in holy wedlock with Rachel Gilliand, a daughter of John Gilliand, who came to this country from County Down, Ireland. The issue of this union is as follows: Robert Lynn; J. G. Allison, who married Elizabeth Ferguson of near Worthington, Pennsylvania, by whom he had three children—Mary, James and an infant; John N. Allison, who married Clara Johnston, a daughter of Thornley Johnston, and has a daughter Lucile; and W. C. Allison, who married Anna Johnston and has a son, Wesley.

Dr. Robert L. Allison received his early educational training in the common schools of Center Township, and in West Sunbury Academy, after which he entered the University of Wooster, at Cleveland, Ohio. He received his professional training in the Medical College of Indianapolis, in Indiana, receiving his degree from that institution in 1896. Immediately thereafter he opened his office in Eau Claire, Butler County, Pennsylvania, where he has established a large and remunerative practice. He owns a nice residence property and office in the borough.

Dr. Allison was joined in marriage with Miss Minnie Bradon, a daughter of J. C. Bradon of West Sunbury, and to them were born: DeWitt, who is a member of the Class of 1910 in Grove City College; Charles Bradon, who died on June 27.

1901; Charlotte, who attends Eau Claire Academy; and Eugene, who also is a student in Eau Claire Academy. In politics, the Doctor has been consistent in his support of Republican principles, and was for six years president of the borough council, and one term a member of the school board of Eau Claire. He is a member and medical examiner of the Knights of the Maccabees, and Woodmen of the World at Eau Claire, and is also medical examiner for numerous life insurance companies, among them the New York Life and the National Life of Connecticut. In religious attachment he and his family are members of the United Presbyterian Church of Eau Claire.

JOHN COLLINS, a representative of the agricultural industry of Fairview Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, also a well known carpenter and tank builder, was born December 20, 1856, in Brandon, Cork County, Ireland, and is a son of Edward and Mary Collins, natives and life-long residents of Ireland.

John Collins is the third born of a family of three children, namely: William; Mary, who still lives in Ireland; and John. Our subject was educated in his native country, attending school where the Rev. Father Welch (now deceased and formerly of Butler) received his early educational training. In 1871, when about eighteen years of age, Mr. Collins came to this country and located at Boston, Massachusetts, where he worked at his trade of carpentering for about three years. He then was employed by James Fisk of Fiskville, after which he came to Titusville, Pennsylvania, where for one year he worked at carpentering and tank building for Adam Good. He then, after staying a short time at Shamburg, Pennsylvania, came to Butler County and located at Millerstown, where he engaged in business for himself as a carpenter and tank builder. Since 1882, when he purchased his present farm of fifty-two acres, he has devoted his time to agricultural pursuits in connection with carpentering and building wooden tanks. Mr. Collins is a man of energy and enterprise and is well deserving of the success with which his efforts have met.

In 1869 Mr. Collins was united in marriage in Buffalo, New York, with Elizabeth Ryan, a native of Dublin, Ireland, and their union has resulted in the following issue: Mary, lives in East Pittsburg; Edith, married Joseph A. Burgoon of East Pittsburg, and has two children, Regitte and Clara; Bessie; Clara; James; John J. and George, all residing at home. Mr. Collins and family are members of the Catholic Church at Chicora.

CHARLES R. BORLAND, a prosperous merchant, who has been identified with the industrial interests of Harrisville since 1903, was born February 6, 1859, on his father's farm in Venango County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Samuel and Maria (Nieely) Borland.

The Borland family was first established in this country by the grandfather of our subject, who came from Scotland with a brother and settled in eastern Pennsylvania. The grandfather, John Borland, came to Venango County at an early period and engaged in farming. He was the father of the following children: John, deceased; Hutchinson, deceased; Andrew, deceased; Robert S., a Methodist minister, residing at Mercer; Rachel, deceased; and Samuel, father of the subject of this sketch.

Samuel Borland was born and reared in Venango County, Pennsylvania, where he spent his entire life engaged in agricultural pursuits. He married Maria Nieely and to them were born: Emerson B.; Emma, deceased wife of Joseph Bowman; Charles Robert, subject of this sketch; Edward; Austin; Louie, now Mrs. Louie Felt; Arlestus and Alvin, twins. Samuel Borland died in 1892 aged sixty-one years.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES R. BORLAND

and was survived one year by his widow, who was fifty-six years old at the time of her death.

Charles R. Borland grew to manhood on his father's farm in Venango County, and when quite young became a clerk in the general store of H. M. Davis, in whose employ he continued for a period of five years. He then clerked one year for Campbell & Mahoney of Reynoldsville, Jefferson County. He formed a partnership with his brother, Emerson B. Borland, in 1883, purchasing the store of William Woodburn in Venango County. They continued in partnership for some twenty years, and for a part of that time another brother, Edward Borland, was associated with them. They at one time conducted a hardware store at Emlenton, and a general store at Kane. Prior to the dissolution of the firm in 1903, Edward Borland had charge of the store at Rockland, Emerson B. of the store at Harrisville, and Charles of that at Pittsville. In that year Charles removed to Harrisville, where he has since continued with uninterrupted success. He is a prosperous merchant, carries a complete and up-to-date stock of goods and enjoys a liberal patronage of the people of the community. In March, 1908, the store at Rockland was destroyed by fire.

In September, 1882, Mr. Borland was joined in marriage with Ella Watson of Venango County, and to them were born three children, of whom but one—Harry—is living. Mr. Borland holds membership in the Methodist Episcopal Church and in politics is a Prohibitionist.

PHILIP A. DRANE, who saw long and active service as a soldier in the Union Army during the Civil War, and is now a well known citizen of Buffalo Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, has a fine farm of fifty-six acres, located about a quarter of a mile from Sarver, on the Freeport Road. He was born in this county September 6, 1839, and is a son of K. G. and Elizabeth (Burtner) Drane.

K. G. Drane was born in Marland, where he resided prior to his coming to Butler County, Pennsylvania. He and his wife were parents of the following children: Kinsey Gibbons; Nancy; Margaret; Mary Ann; Elizabeth, deceased; Christina; Philip A.; William A.; Sarah; and Matilda, deceased.

Philip A. Drane attended the common schools of his home district and always excelled as a scholar. After leaving school he engaged as a clerk in a grocery at Allegheny City, Pennsylvania, until the outbreak of the Civil War. He was but little beyond man's estate when he enlisted as a private in the 155th Reg. P. V. I., and he served full time, being mustered out with the rank of sergeant. He was with the Army of the Potomac, and among other important engagements, participated in the following: Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, and the Wilderness. At the battle of the Wilderness he had the misfortune to be shot through the left chest, and was taken to the hospital at Alexandria, Virginia, being seven days en route. He was subsequently transferred to the West Penn Hospital, where he recovered from his terrible injury. He then returned home and has engaged in farming continuously since that time. He has a nice property and has been very successful in his work.

June 3, 1868, Mr. Drane was united in marriage with Susan Huey, a daughter of Daniel and Catherine (Black) Huey, and the following children have been born to them: William A.; Essie B., wife of Thomas Humes, by whom she has the following children: Lillian, Marion, Myrtle, and Helen; Charles W., who married Amy Logan and has three children—Logan, Charles, and Ronald; Emily, wife of Charles Sautter; Anna, wife of Albert Freehling, by whom she has two children —Chester and Howard; Harry, who is in the mail service; Nettie, wife of John Ekas, by whom she has a daughter, Jeanette; Russell; and Jesse. Religiously, Mr. Drane and his family are members of the St. Paul Lutheran Church. He was formerly an active member of the G. A. R. Post, but has not attended in recent years.

GEORGE N. WILSON, formerly county auditor of Butler County, Pennsylvania, and a leading citizen of Jackson Township, was born on the farm on which he lives, July 17, 1869, and is a son of Thomas I. and Mary (Minnemyer) Wilson.

The Wilson family was established in Butler County by the great-grandfather, Andrew Wilson, who came from County Tyrone, Ireland. The grandfather, George Wilson, was the first to settle on the farm now owned by George N., and his log cabin stood on the land for many years. He was born after his parents came to Butler County and he died on this farm. Here Thomas I. Wilson, father of George N., was also born and died here in 1881, aged forty-five years. He was a prominent man in the county and had he lived beyond middle life, would have been doubtless still more of a leader in public affairs. He died just after being elected to the office of county commissioner. His brothers and sisters were: James and Andrew H., both deceased; George W., formerly county commissioner; Mary Jane; Esther Margaret, wife of Robert Brown; and Elizabeth E., unmarried. Thomas I. Wilson married Mary Minnemyer, who was a daughter of Nicholas and Mary (Mertz) Minnemyer, who were natives of Germany. To Thomas I. Wilson and wife, the following children were born: Eva R., deceased; Ida, wife of John Bargery, of Evans City; Lulu C., wife of John Helm, of Coraopolis, Pennsylvania; Jennie G., wife of William Hudson, of Evans City; Gertrude, wife of Frank Boggs, of Evans City; Homer O., of New Brighton, Pennsylvania, married Clara Hoffman; and George N.

George N. Wilson grew to manhood on the farm on which he lives and attended the local schools. He was only eleven years old when he lost his father, but the family continued to live on the farm. Thomas I. Wilson purchased the farm in 1863. It is a fertile tract of 100 acres, which has been improved with substantial buildings and has been carefully and successfully cultivated.

Following the family traditions, Mr. Wilson is a staunch adherent of the Democratic party and on its ticket has been elected to local office at various times and in the fall of 1905 was elected county auditor, a responsible office that he filled most acceptably to his fellow citizens, for three years. He has also served as township supervisor and on the board of elections, and has twice been elected justice of the peace for Jackson Township. He is a member of the United Presbyterian Church.

WILLIAM STAFF, one of Brady Township's substantial and successful farmers, owns 140 acres of valuable land, divided into two adjoining farms. He was born in Germany, November 5, 1837, and is a son of Milton and Barbara Staff.

The parents of Mr. Staff emigrated to America from Germany, in 1843, and settled first on a farm in Lancaster Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, from which they moved to Franklin Township, near Isle, in 1847. The father subsequently removed to Center Township, and there his death took place. His widow returned to Lancaster Township after her second marriage and died there.

William Staff was six years old when his parents came to Butler County and was ten years old when they settled in Franklin Township, where he attended school and was mainly reared. Farming and stock-raising has been his business all through life. Prior to his marriage he bought his present home farm and all the improving, in the way of erecting substantial buildings, he has done himself, together with placing his land under the finest kind of cultivation. In 1867 Mr. Staff was married to Miss Mary E. Koch, who is a daughter of Jacob Koch, and they have three children, namely: Carrie E., who married Thomas Sager, and has two children, Edwin and Paul; and Martin L. and Orrin, both of whom reside at home. Mr. Staff and family belong to the Lutheran Church.

WILLIAM HENRY SHAFFER, proprietor of a meat market at Eau Claire, takes rank among the substantial business men and merchants of that borough. He was born in Venango County, Pennsylvania, December 31, 1870, and is a son of Israel and Mary (Hellery) Shaffer, his mother being from Armstrong County.

Israel and Mary Shaffer were parents of the following children: Samuel Franklin, who married Elizabeth Kennedy, daughter of James Kennedy of Venango County, by whom he has four children—Harry, Frank, Bessie, and Beulah; Frances, wife of Samuel Meals of Venango County, by whom she had five children—Earl, Floyd, Mary, Maud and Hilton (deceased); George, who married Ida Pierce, daughter of William Pierce of Emlenton, Pennsylvania, and has the following children—Lina, Samuel, Mabel, and William; Elizabeth, now deceased; Jennie, wife of John W. Smith of Venango County, by whom she has three children—Warner, Ernest and Lillian; William Henry, subject of this biography; Israel A. of Venango County; Charles, who married Minnie Hovis, a daughter of Nelson Hovis of Clintonville; Thomas, who resides in Clintonville; and Lottie May, who married John Slye of Venango County and has two sons—William and Thomas.

William H. Shaffer went to school in Scrubgrass Township, Venango County, Pennsylvania, after which he engaged in farming on the home place. He went to Oakdale, Allegheny County, and followed the trade of a carpenter and builder, then located at Clintonville, Venango County. He worked for his brother, George W. Shaffer, in the meat business, and continued until after his marriage. He then established a meat market in Eau Claire, where he has since continued with fine success. He rented a shop for a time, then purchased a residence property and a lot on which he put up a good substantial store building for use in his business. He also purchased a twenty-acre tract in the borough, and here he maintains his cattle pens, and his ice and cold storage plant. He is a man of exceptional business capacity, and the success attained by him has been due to his individual efforts, unaided.

Mr. Shaffer was married, February 20, 1896, to Laura Blanche Kimes, a daughter of James and Ester (Gilmore) Kimes. Her father was born in December, 1818, and died in 1895, being survived by his widow, who lives in Eau Claire. Mrs. Kimes was born August 27, 1838, and their marriage, which occurred in 1863, resulted in the following issue: Elizabeth, who died in August, 1904, was the wife of James McKay of Oil City; Emma died in 1890; William married Rose Latchaw, a daughter of John Latchaw of Venango County, and they had the following children—Edward, Grace (deceased), one who died in infancy, and Ila; Edward married Eva Layton, daughter of James Layton of Butler County, and they had three children—Hazel, Louisa and Seba; Harry married Sarah Donaldson, daughter of William Donaldson of Clintonville, and they had the following children—Emma, Ester and Harold; Laura Blanche married the subject of this record; and Myrta married Roy Kerr, by whom she has two children, Donald and Claire.

Politically, Mr. Shaffer is a Republican, and is a member of the borough council and the school board of Eau Claire Academy. He and his wife are devout members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and she is president of the Epworth League.

A. A. HOCH is an enterprising and successful business man of Chicora, Donegal Township, being a member of the hardware firm of Hoch Brothers of that place. He is also proprietor of the Central Hotel, a well kept hostelry known to the traveling public, and is profitably engaged in oil and gas production.

WILLIAM McCAFFERTY, a respected citizen and prosperous farmer, who resides on a very valuable farm of 114 acres, which is situated in Buffalo Township, on the Pittsburg Road, about one mile west of Sarversville, was born in Butler County, Pennsylvania, August 3, 1867. The grandparents of Mr. McCafferty were James and Hannah McCafferty, and his parents were Robert and Martha (Love) McCafferty. The family has been an agricultural one for several generations.

William McCafferty has engaged in farming in Buffalo Township ever since he reached manhood. Through boyhood he attended the public schools and is one of the intelligent and well-informed men of his section. His farm shows the effect of careful cultivation, his stock is in good condition and his two-story residence, standing a short distance back from the road, indicates that it is a comfortable, modern rural home. Mr. McCafferty married Miss Zetta Smith, who is a daughter of C. F. Smith, who is a substantial farmer in Butler County. They have four children, namely: Florence M., Arthur S., James and Charles. The family belongs to the Presbyterian Church. Among his neighbors, Mr. McCafferty is known as a good citizen. He gives but little time to politics and on no occasion has he been willing to accept a public office.

HENRY F. KRIESS, proprietor of the Allerton Stock Farm, a valuable tract of 175 acres, finely improved, makes a specialty of breeding fine stock, especially horses, and also carries on extensive farming. He was born in Forward Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, March 2, 1870, and is a son of William and Margaret (Freshcorn) Kriess.

The father of Mr. Kriess was born in Germany and in his boyhood accompanied his parents to America and grew to manhood near Wahlville, Forward Township, Butler County. For a few years he conducted a hotel in Evans City but otherwise was engaged in farming all his mature life. He married a daughter of William Freshcorn, of Forward Township, and four of their children grew up, namely: George, of Forward Township; Emma, wife of William McClure, of Evans City; Henry E.; and William, a practicing physician in Pittsburg. The whole family belongs to the German Lutheran Church. The father died in 1875, in his forty-fifth year.

Henry F. Kriess attended school through boyhood but became interested in business at an unusually early age, embarking in a butcher business at Evans City, where he continued it for one year. Finding a better opening in the oil fields he then engaged in teaming, on his own account, and later became an oil producer in Forward Township, and was interested there for three years, retiring then to Evans City, where later he engaged in the shoe business. In the spring of 1905 he purchased his present farm and has made it one of the best stock farms in the county. His interest in horses dates as far back as his fifteenth year, when he owned a standard-bred pacer, which he successfully raced in Pennsylvania and Ohio, up to 1904. Since taking charge of his present property he has bred many fine specimens of cattle and horses, bringing with him as a starter for his stables, a team of Percheron mares that weighed 3,600 pounds. He keeps six brood mares and owns the standard-bred stallion Geronemo. At the time of writing he has fourteen head of horses and colts, perfect, spirited animals, and has cattle and other stock of standard strains. Mr. Kriess has put up one of the finest barns in all this section. He devotes 125 acres of his land to raising corn, oats, wheat, hay and potatoes.

Mr. Kriess was married (first) to Miss Mary Link, of Mars, and they had one son, George L. He was married (second) to Miss Christina Wahl, a daughter of William Wahl, of Evans City, and they have one son, William. Mr. Kriess takes considerable interest in politics and is a Democrat in his affiliation. At Evans City he was a member of the council and is now filling the office of inspector of elections in Connoquenessing Township. Mr. Kriess is a thorough business man, enterprising and progressive, and in every way is a representative citizen of the section in which he lives.

THOMAS H. McGUIRK, general contractor in stone, at Butler, with place of business at No. 414 North McKean Street, has been identified with stone work since boyhood and is one of the leading men in his line of business in this city. He was born in 1876, in Cherry Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Dennis P. and a grandson of Thomas McGuirk.

The grandfather, Thomas McGuirk, founded the family in Butler County, in 1844. He was born in Ireland. Of his children, Dennis P. Guirk, father of Thomas A., was born in 1850, in Marion Township, Butler County, and is now a resident of Butler, where, for many years he has followed his trade of stone-mason and contractor.

Immediately after leaving school, Thomas H. McGuirk started to learn his father's trade, this being before he was fourteen years old. He was an apt pupil and by the time he was seventeen, he was so thoroughly reliable in his work that he was drawing a man's wages. He soon began contracting and for the past eleven years has led in the stone contracting business at Butler and in surrounding towns. It would be pleasant to call attention to all the work done by this younger member of the craft, but a few notable examples will have to suffice. Mr. McGuirk is responsible for the fine stone work in that beautiful building, the Home for Old Ladies, at Zeligople; the solid masonry of the Majestic Theater; the splendid residence of Mr. Glenn at Evans City and that of Thomas Philips, Jr., at Butler, the latter being the most modern and expensive in the city; and the Duffy Block on the corner of North and Main Streets.

In 1898 Mr. McGuirk was married to Miss Anna Hall, of East Brady, and they have three children—Fonsie R., Harry E. and Irene L. Mr. and Mrs. McGuirk are members of the First Presbyterian Church. He belongs to the Odd Fellows, the Odd Fellows' Brotherhood and to the Protected Home Circle.

JOHN MILTON WILSON, general farmer and stockraiser, was born on the place where he now resides, in Jackson Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, September 20, 1855, and is a son of John H. and Margaret (Honk) Wilson. He is a descendant of one of the oldest pioneer families of Butler County and the name is as closely identified with its early history as any name in it.

Andrew Wilson, the grandfather of John M., was born in County Tyrone, Ireland. In 1766 he came to America and settled first in Washington County, Pennsylvania, in 1800 removing to Jackson Township, Butler County. He married Mary Henderson, who was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, August 12, 1769. She died December 27, 1837, aged sixty-eight years. They had the following children: Elizabeth, born December 18, 1794, married William Martin, April 8, 1819; George, born November 23, 1796, married Rebecca Wilson, June 20, 1822; Mary, born February 22, 1799, married George Cooper; Nancy, born February 24, 1802, married James Garvin, June 28, 1822; Rebecca, born April 14, 1805; Eleanor, born June 29, 1807, never married, living into old age on the present home farm; and John H., father of John M.

John H. Wilson was born on the farm now owned by his son, John Milton, July 15, 1809, and died here November 29, 1883, aged seventy-four years. He spent the whole of his long and exemplary life on the farm on which he was born. On June 20, 1848, he married Margaret Houk, who died January 29, 1893, aged sixty-eight years. She was a daughter of Jacob Houk, who settled in Lawrence County, Pennsylvania, in 1797. There were six children born to John H. Wilson and wife, namely: Andrew Henderson, who was born June 30, 1849, married Miss Ida Rice, a half-sister of Rosella Rice, the well known authoress, of Ashland County, Ohio, is boss carpenter for the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago Railroad and owns a farm near Perrysville, Ohio; Jonathan, who was born February 5, 1851, married Miss Susan Stam, of Forward Township, Butler County, resided in Jackson Township, but died at Evans City, June 4, 1904; Mary Ellen, born June 27, 1853, married Leander Scott, of Lancaster Township; Sarah Elizabeth and John Milton, twins, born September 20, 1855, of whom the former married Samuel Brenneman of Portersville, Muddy Creek Township; and Jennie Townsend, born November 18, 1868, who married G. W. Nixon, of Jackson Township.

John Milton Wilson attended the Wilson School in Jackson Township, working on the farm in the summer seasons. This farm in the days of the grandfather contained 420 acres and he lived in a log cabin in such a wilderness that Indians were their only visitors for a long period. When the death of the grandfather took place, the farm was equally divided between two sons, John H. and George. John H. Wilson made many improvements on his portion of the land, erecting the substantial barn in 1843 and the comfortable farm residence in 1870. This farm is equally well adapted to general agriculture and to grazing, and Mr. Wilson understands how to make every part of it productive.

On July 6, 1898, Mr. Wilson was married to Miss Margaret A. Maharg, who was born in Penn Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a daughter of James and Catharine (Brown) Maharg. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson are members of the Evans City Presbyterian Church. He is identified with the Masons and the Odd Fellows, belonging to the Masonic Lodge—old Harmony No. 429—at Zelenople and to the Odd Fellows at Evans City. In politics, Mr. Wilson is a Democrat and belongs to a Democratic family that has given two county commissioners to Butler County. His grandfather voted for Thomas Jefferson, the third president of the United States and the author of the Declaration of Independence.

GEORGE W. P. ORTON, a well known oil producer of Allegheny Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, a thoroughly experienced man in the oil industry, was born December 26, 1861, at Corning, New York, and is a son of William H. and Sarah (Greenwood) Orton, both of whom were natives of England.

In 1869, Mr. Orton, accompanied by his mother, settled at Parker's Landing, and there he was practically reared and received his educational training. Almost in boyhood he began work in the oil fields and for a considerable time was a pumper, working mainly in Armstrong and Butler Counties. For about twenty years he has been an oil producer himself and has met with such success that he has considered it judicious to give his entire time to this industry. His knowledge of the business is practical and reliable and he is known all through these fields.

On September 7, 1890, Mr. Orton was married to Miss Mary E. Black, who was born in Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a daughter of the late A. R. Black, of Allegheny Township. Mr. and Mrs. Orton have two children: Orville D. and Ethel E. Mr. Orton and wife are members of the Allegheny Presbyterian Church and he is a trustee and is also president of the Allegheny Church Cemetery Association. In politics, he is a Republican. Formerly he was identified with the Odd Fellows at Parker's Landing. Personally he is progressive and public-spirited and as a citizen commands the respect and enjoys the confidence of his neighbors.

JOHN H. WIGTON, one of Brady Township's most esteemed citizens, now living retired on his valuable farm of 264 acres, about one-half mile west of Hallston, was born on this farm in Brady Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, December 8, 1848, and is a son of John and Rachel (Tannahill) Wigton.

The Wigton family is of Dutch descent and it was established in Butler County by the grandfather, John Wigton, who came among the pioneers. The name of John appears in every generation and John the second, the father of John II., was born after his father came to this part of Pennsylvania, on a farm one mile distant from the one under consideration. At that time, Brady Township was known as Slippery Rock Township. After marriage, the parents of Mr. Wigton went to housekeeping on a fifty-acre tract of this farm, to which additions were gradually made until John Wigton was called one of the most substantial men in the township and the owner of 500 acres of fine land. He improved his property and among other buildings, put up the handsome brick residence in which John H. Wigton resides. Of the eleven children born to John Wigton and wife, the following survive: Isaiah, who lives in Clay Township; Lewis, who lives in California; Josiah, who has his home in Iowa; and John H., of Brady Township. The father of the family died August 8, 1886, his wife's death having taken place January 15, 1883.

John H. Wigton was reared on the present farm and until within a short period has been actively engaged in its management. In conjunction with farming he operated a stone quarry for nine years, utilizing a switch track which was put in by the Bessemer Railroad, which passes through a small part of the farm. This land each year grows more and more valuable and the day may come when the village, becoming a growing town, may cover the thirty rods now lying between its bounds and the Wigton farm, and even encroach upon it.

Mr. Wigton married Elizabeth Thompson, who was born in Concord Township, Butler County, and is a daughter of William Thompson. Mr. and Mrs. Wigton have four children: Lula, who married John Borland, who conducts a grocery business at Butler, has two children—Helen and Arthur Holdman; Pearl; Charles, who married Jennie Bollinger, has one child, Elizabeth; and Frank T., who lives at home. Mr. Wigton is one of the leading members of the Muddy Creek Presbyterian Church.

HUGH GILMORE is a prosperous farmer and oil producer of Marion Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, where the family became established at a very early period. He was born in a log cabin—the same house in which his father was born—on April 21, 1842, and is a son of John and Margaret (Kilgore) Gilmore, and a grandson of Hugh and Ellen (French) Gilmore.

Hugh Gilmore, the grandfather, was about three years of age when brought by his parents from Ireland, the family locating east of the mountains of Pennsylvania.

There was a large family of children, of whom three came west to Butler County: Joseph, John and Hugh. The last named grew to maturity in the East and engaged in farming and carpet weaving. He was a young man when he followed his two brothers to Butler County, where he was shortly after married to Ellen French, who was living with her father, Ayres French, on the farm now owned by her grandsons, Hugh and William. Mr. French was later thrown from his horse and killed, and the farm has since been in the Gilmore family. Hugh Gilmore partly cleared the farm, which consisted of 300 acres, and lived in an old log house on the place. He survived his wife some years, dying in 1856 at an advanced age. They were parents of the following children: Nancy, Sally, Jane, Elizabeth, Isabel, Ellen, John, William, Hugh and Joseph. The farm descended to the eldest and youngest sons, John and Joseph.

John Gilmore was born in the log house on the farm, April 19, 1807, and spent all his life on this place, which he helped to clear. He received some educational training under his father, who taught the old school in the vicinity during the winter months. He married Margaret Kilgore, a daughter of John J. Kilgore of Venango County, Pennsylvania, and they became parents of the following: Jane, wife of John L.; Jobe, deceased; Ellen, wife of Newton Mortland, now deceased; Dorcas, who died quite young; Hugh; Elizabeth, wife of Alvin Mortland; John J.; Isabel, wife of Isaac Clay; William A.; and Matilda, wife of Albert McCoy. John Gilmore died on the farm in February, 1886; his wife, who was born October 29, 1835, died in 1894.

Hugh Gilmore, subject of this biography, attended the public schools and assisted in the work on the farm, as he was the eldest son. He later came into possession of the place with his brother, William, and has always lived on this farm. He erected his present house in 1876 and has made many other important improvements, making it one of the best kept farms in this locality. In November, 1906, oil was struck on the place and he now has four good producing wells. In politics, he is a Democrat and has frequently been called upon to serve the community in local offices.

Mr. Gilmore was married January 2, 1873, to Miss Minerva Walter, who was born in Venango County, Pennsylvania, and is a daughter of Philip and Catherine (Smith) Walter. They have three children, namely: Cora Bella, who married J. A. Midbury of Marion Township, and has two children, George G. and Charles N.; Nellie G., wife of Clarence Bailey of Venango County; and John Morry, who assists his father in conducting the farm. Religiously, the family is Presbyterian, and attends the church at Clintonville.

ROBERT JOHN McMICHAEL, M. D., is engaged in the practice of his profession at Eau Claire, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is the owner of considerable realty in and about the borough. He was born in Clay Township, Butler County, April 27, 1851, and is a son of Chris and Barbara (Curry) McMichael, and a grandson of William McMichael.

William McMichael, the grandfather, was born January 1, 1780; he was married on December 21, 1804, to Jennie Rankin, who was born March 7, 1784, and died November 17, 1860. The following children were born to them: Jane, who was born June 1, 1806, and died January 5, 1852; Christ, who was born November 22, 1808, and died March 17, 1887; Martha, who was born January 16, 1811, and became the wife of Robert Christy of Butler County, by whom she had four children—Dixon, William, Anna and Margaret; William, who was born May 27, 1813; Martha, who was born September 22, 1815, and died July 14, 1874; David, born June 20, 1818, and died September 19, 1879; Taylor, born April

COMMERCIAL HOTEL, BUTLER

13, 1821, died November 17, 1851; John, born June 18, 1824, died January 5, 1852; Samuel, born June 18, 1827; and Margaret, who was born May 21, 1830, and died September 24, 1875.

Chris McMichael was first married to Elizabeth St. Clair, by whom he had the following children: Joseph, who was born February 19, 1834, and was married to Sarah McKissick, a daughter of John McKissick; Jane, who was born September 12, 1835, and became the wife of James Milford of Kansas; William, who was born November 22, 1837, and died April 17, 1839; Japhia, who was born December 18, 1839, and married Mary E. Williams, a daughter of Robert Williams of Plain Grove; Ethan, born June 1, 1842, died December 29, 1890, married Helen Benick; and Zemira, born October 29, 1844, died May 28, 1845. Chris McMichael formed a second union with Barbara Curry a daughter of Robert Curry, and three children were their issue: Zenias, who was born September 11, 1847, and married Sarah Williams, a daughter of Robert Williams; a daughter, who was born and died on October 9, 1849; Robert J.

Dr. R. J. McMichael was primarily educated in the common schools of Clay Township, and in West Sunbury and Dayton Academies, after which he attended Grove City College. He later attended Wooster College, in Ohio, and received his professional training in Cleveland. After receiving his degree he engaged in practice at West Sunbury, where he continued for two years, then came to Eau Claire. He has been in active practice here since and has won a high place in the regard and confidence of the people. He owns a house and five lots in the borough, and eleven acres on the east side of the borough. He has a valuable farm of 113 acres one and a half miles to the northeast, located in Allegheny Township. He purchased this property of Thomas Milford, and oil and gas have been developed on it. Politically, he is a Prohibitionist.

Dr. McMichael was married to Elizabeth Campbell, daughter of James R. Campbell of West Sunbury, and the following children have blessed their home: Elsie, born June 7, 1881; Anna, who was born November 22, 1882, and is the wife of Ralph Blair of Eau Claire; a son who was born and died November 18, 1884; John Ross, born October 3, 1885; Mabel, born December 10, 1887, who is a teacher in the common schools; James C., who was born January 28, 1890; Charles S., who was born April 17, 1892, and died November 28, 1894; a son of who was born March 5, 1895, and died March 8th of the same year; and another son who was born and died on August 8, 1896. After the death of his first wife, Dr. McMichael formed a second union with Sarah Allen, a daughter of Joseph Allen of Venango County. Religiously, they are members of the United Presbyterian Church, in which he is an elder and a teacher in the Sabbath School. Mrs. McMichael sings in the church choir, and is also active in church work.

J. G. MOSER, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel, and oil producer, located at No. 119 W. Jefferson Street, Butler, Penna., is a representative business man of the city. He was born November 27, 1864, son of Gabriel and Mary (Reed) Moser. His paternal great-grandfather, John Moser, Sr., was a Revolutionary soldier, serving at Brandywine and in other battles. After the war he removed from Northampton County to Westmoreland County and from there to Butler County in 1800.

John Moser, Jr., grandfather of the subject of this sketch, was long a resident of Bonnybrook, where he was engaged in farming. He was a soldier in the War of 1812 and while at Black Rock contracted the dreaded Black Rock fever, from which he died shortly after returning home. He married Catherine Horne in Westmoreland County and they had three sons—Solomon, Daniel and Gabriel.

Gabriel Moser was born in Bonnybrook and received his education in the public schools. He learned the trade of wagon maker and established a wagon manufactory on the site of the present Commercial Hotel, and conducted it for a number of years. His death occurred about 1873. He married Mary Reed and they became the parents of nine children, namely: Henry; Joseph, deceased; Thomas, deceased; William John, deceased; a daughter who died in infancy; Isaiah; J. G.; Amelia, who married a Mr. Jewel; and Catherine, who became the wife of a Mr. Miller.

J. G. Moser received his education in the district schools of Butler County. He began industrial life as an assistant in the grocery store of G. W. Miller. Afterwards he obtained work in a bottling establishment as packer. He was then initiated into the hotel business, working first for a Mr. Idemiller and later in a hotel owned by Captain Leibold, the present owner and proprietor of the Arlington Hotel. Subsequently he quit the hotel business for a while, being occupied in painting and later becoming interested in oil production. In 1905 he bought the Steel Smith Building from Jacob Painter and turned it into the present Commercial Hotel, fitting it up in an adequate manner to meet the demands of a good class of patronage, which he has since readily obtained. He makes special rates to jurymen, witnesses, regular boarders and also to theatrical people, his regular rates being $1.50 per day. The hotel is conducted on the American plan and there is a bar attachment to accommodate the wants of thirsty guests.

Mr. Moser married Jane Emerick, a daughter of John Emerick, of Chicora.

He and his wife have become the parents of four children—Eugene (married Ella Vandwort whose death occurred July 7, 1908), John, Harry, and Catherine, the last mentioned of whom is now deceased. They have also an adopted daughter, Gertrude.

Politically Mr. Moser is a Republican, but with enough independence to break party lines when he does not approve of some particular nomination, in such cases voting for the man he considers best qualified for the office. He is a member of the fraternal order, Woodmen of the World, and his religious connection is with the Methodist church.

BENJAMIN J. FORQUER has been proprietor of the Forquer Hotel at Chicora for more than thirty-five years, and has a large and well established business. He was born in Donegal Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, January 22, 1844, and is a son of William and Rebecca (Marsh) Forquer. He comes of one of the oldest pioneer families of this township.

William Forquer, the father, was born in Donegal Township, and died there on May 12, 1874, at the age of sixty-nine years. His wife, who was born in Warren County, Pennsylvania, died in 1888, at the age of seventy-four years. They were parents of the following children: Elizabeth Ann, who was born September 1, 1833, and died in 1907; Eliza J., born May 4, 1836; Robert E., who was born May 1, 1838, and died in infancy; Rose Anna, who was born October 18, 1839, and died in infancy; Benjamin J.; Amelia, who was born August 22, 1848, and died in infancy; Mary, deceased, who was born April 27, 1849; Anastasia, who was born March 31, 1854, and married D. O. Bennett, by whom she has two daughters, Rebecca and Della; William J., who was born September 26, 1859, and is now deceased; and Mary, who married John McCrea and has three children—Stephen, Marsh and Laura.

Benjamin J. Forquer has thus far spent most of his life in Butler County. He spent his boyhood on his father's farm and in attendance at the common schools. In 1864 he went to the oil fields about Oil City, Pennsylvania, and for three years was engaged in contracting and drilling. He then became a producer and continued at that until February, 1873, when he purchased the hotel business of Michael Goodwin at Chicora. As his business grew he made many important improvements in the house and its equipment, and has conducted one of the most popular houses of entertainment in this part of the state.

November 28, 1876, Mr. Forquer was married at Chicora to Miss Nora A. Dewey, a daughter of John and Johannah (Neville) Dewey of Duucreek, New York, the Rev. Father Quilter officiating. Six children are the issue of this union: Clara, wife of W. J. Battegan of Butler, by whom she has a daughter, Nora; Charles, who is in the oil fields of Oklahoma; Albert, of Butler, salesman for the National Supply Company, and exalted ruler of Butler Lodge, B. P. O. E.; Eugene, who married Catherine Spaully and lives in Oklahoma; Irene, wife of Charles E. Stalker of Pittsburg, by whom she has a daughter, Mary L.; and Gertrude, who is an accomplished musician and is prominent in social circles in Chicora. Religiously, the family belongs to the Roman Catholic Church of Chicora, being liberal in its support and active church workers. Fraternally, Mr. Forquer is a member and past master of Blue Lodge No. 540, F. & A. M., which he has represented at a meeting of the Grand Lodge at Philadelphia; is a member of the Knights Templar at Pittsburg; the Chapter at Kittanning; the Knights of Pythias at Chicora; and the Order of Elks at Butler. He has taken a deep interest in the affairs of Chicora, and has capably served as a member of the borough council and on the school board.

LOUIS HARTENSTEIN, general merchant at Great Belt, where, for fifteen years he was also postmaster, was born January 6, 1845, in Jefferson Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Henry and Henrietta (Leithold) Hartenstein.

The grandfather of Mr. Hartenstein established the family in Jefferson Township, cleared up the land and developed the homestead farm. Henry Hartenstein, father of Louis, spent his life on his farm of 100 acres, located near Great Belt. He was a very active citizen and was a moving spirit in all public matters in his neighborhood.

Louis Hartenstein spent his boyhood on the home farm and attended the local schools. When eighteen years of age he enlisted in the United States Army, becoming a member of Company G, Twenty-seventh Infantry, and remained a soldier for five years. His regiment took part in the Atlanta campaign during the Civil War, under command of General Sherman. Mr. Hartenstein survived all the dangers and hardships of military life and when released from the service, returned home. He taught four terms of school in Jefferson Township and then purchased his present business, which he has conducted ever since. He carries a large and carefully selected general stock and has a large trade from the surrounding country.

In May, 1877, Mr. Hartenstein was married to Caroline Divener, a daughter of Henry Divener, who was a farmer in Donegal Township. Mrs. Hartenstein died in January, 1904, leaving two children: Clara, who married Philip Krause; and Mollie, who resides at home. Mr. Hartenstein is a member of the Lutheran Church.

GILMORE A. DUNCAN, D. D. S., who has been engaged in the practice of dental surgery at Zelenople for the past nine years, is a representative of two of the oldest and most prominent families of Butler County. He was born October 30, 1872, in Cranberry Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Nelson B. and Susan O. (Waldron) Duncan.

The Duncans originated in Ireland and the Waldrons in Holland. The paternal grandparents, Samuel and Elizabeth Duncan, came as pioneers into Cranberry Township, and from the old home their many descendants have gone out into the world and have performed well their part in life. The first of the Waldrons to come to Butler County, located near Evans City. John Waldron, the maternal grandfather of Dr. Duncan, formerly represented Butler County in the General Assembly.

Nelson B. Duncan, father of Dr. Duncan, is one of Zelienople's leading citizens, at present serving as postmaster of the town. He was born in the old homestead in Cranberry Township and for a number of years engaged in agricultural pursuits. He married Susan O. Waldron and to them were born the following children: Alice; Gilmore A.; William, who resides at Zelienople; John, who resides at Marietta, Ohio; Blanche, who is assistant to her father in the Zelienople postoffice; Laura, who is the wife of Edwin Keet, of Belle View; Gertrude, who is the wife of Joseph Cavenaugh, of Bridgeport, Illinois; and an infant, deceased.

Dr. Duncan went from the Sample School, in Cranberry Township, to Grove City College, where he pursued his studies for two years and then took up the study of dentistry, in 1896 entering the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery, and was graduated in the class of 1899. In June of the same year he located at Zelienople, opening an office over the People's National Bank, and has built up a large and lucrative practice. He keeps thoroughly abreast of the times in the wonderful advances made in his science, and makes use, in his practice, of many of the inventions which make a visit to the dentist no longer a dreaded experience.

On April 10, 1899, Dr. Duncan was married to Miss Nancy M. Riley, a daughter of Owen Riley, of Baltimore, Maryland, and they have three children—Helen, Waldron and Francis. He belongs to the Elks at Butler and retains his membership in his college fraternity, the Psi Omega. In his political affiliation he is a Republican.

E. L. WASSON, M. D., physician and surgeon at Butler, a specialist in gynecology and a thoroughly trained member of his profession, was born at New Castle, Lawrence County, Pennsylvania, and has been a resident of this city since 1892.

Dr. Wasson was reared in Butler County through his years of common-school training and after an academic course at West Sunbury, he followed school-teaching for three years, in the meanwhile preparing for entrance in the Baltimore Medical College, where he was graduated in 1898. He located at Callery and remained in practice there for four years. In 1901 and 1902 he took post-graduate courses at Johns Hopkins University, at Baltimore, and has kept closely in touch with every late discovery in medical science, identifying himself with various medical organizations and frequently contributing to medical literature. He is the only specialist in gynecology at Butler and is the gynecologist of the Butler General Hospital. During 1904-5 he was the president of the Butler County Medical Society and belongs also to the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania and to the American Medical Association.

On September 15, 1897, Dr. Wasson was married to Miss Marie Hoon, who died March 11, 1908. She was a daughter of Thomas Hoon, formerly sheriff of Butler County. Dr. Wasson has two sons, LaVerne DeVoe and Thomas Hoon. He is a member of the First Presbyterian Church at Butler. In political sentiment he has always been identified with the Republican party and has been its chosen candidate for the Legislature. Fraternally he is a Mason and belongs to Harmony Lodge, and also to No. 170, Butler Lodge, B. P. O. E.

JOHN E. WOMER, who is prominently identified with the oil industry both in Butler and Venango Counties, is one of Allegheny Township's leading citizens, where he does a large business as a contractor and driller of oil and gas wells. He was born August 14, 1856, in Allegheny Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Isaac and Emily (Morrison) Womer.

Jacob Womer, the grandfather of John E., came to Butler County from Schuylkill County, Pennsylvania, and was an early settler in Allegheny Township. There Isaac Womer was born and prior to the Civil War, he engaged in farming. He entered the Federal Army and was a brave and fearless soldier and was one of the many hundreds who fell on the second day of the struggle which is known in history as the battle of the Wilderness. He had married the daughter of a neighbor and four of their family of children still survive, namely: John E.; Elizabeth J., who is the wife of John Glass, of Bradford, Pennsylvania; Ella E., who is the wife of George Gilles, of Coraopolis, Pennsylvania; and William Isaac, of Cameron, Ohio.

John E. Womer was reared to man's estate in Allegheny Township and as he was a soldier's orphan he was entitled to the educational advantages offered by the Soldiers' Orphans' School at Titusville, which he attended for nearly five years. He returned to Allegheny Township and remained there until he was twenty years of age, when he entered the Clarion County oil fields, going from there to McKean County and later to Allegheny County, New York, spending some time in each section and investigating into others. He finally returned to Butler County and for a quarter of a century has been interested in oil development here. He is also connected with the firm of Eakin Brothers, in Venango County. He has met with a large amount of success in his line of business and is known all through the oil territory.

Mr. Womer's early years were filled with excitement that only war can bring, more especially when its grim reality grasps happiness from the home circle, and from boyhood the marching and counter-marching of troops were but too familiar sights and entered into even childish plays. Doubtless he inherited a taste for military life and evidently possessed a natural gift of command, for while he was a student at school, he was chosen, out of a score of other sons of soldiers, to command and drill a company, which became very proficient in the manual of arms as he taught them. When the Spanish-American War broke out, Mr. Womer through his own personal effort raised a full company and for two months he walked the distance of five miles from his home to Eau Claire, twice every week, to drill them, receiving no remuneration whatever. Mr. Womer has been a very active Republican for a number of years and is in close touch with other leaders of his party in Butler County. He has been sent as a delegate to three Congressional Conventions and once as a delegate to the convention to nominate a delegate to the National Convention. He has always been a loyal party man and has frequently proved his efficiency. He has been a member of many important committees and was a delegate to the State Republican Convention at Harrisburg.

Mr. Womer married Miss Elizabeth Allen, who is a daughter of the late John R. Allen, of Allegheny Township. She has one brother, Harvey L., of Allegheny Township, and one sister, Orrell, who is the wife of Josiah Pearce, of Allegheny Township. Mr. and Mrs. Womer have four children, namely: Della M., who is the wife of John Keating, of Allegheny Township; Emily E., who is the wife of Frederick Cobbett, of Allegheny Township; and Ana E. and Carl L., the latter of whom is still in school. Mr. Womer is a member of the Allegheny Presbyterian Church and for fourteen years has served as clerk of the Session. He is identified with the Masonic Lodge at Parker's Landing.

S. G. CLAY, a well known and respected citizen of Forward Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is the owner of a valuable farm of 140 acres. He was born on his father's farm in Venango County, Pennsylvania, August 29, 1858, a son of David and Catherine (Grove) Clay.

David Clay, father of the subject of this sketch, was born in Venango County, Pennsylvania, August 7, 1823, and was there reared to maturity. He early turned his attention to agricultural pursuits—his principal occupation through life—and also at an early day engaged in rafting down the Allegheny and Ohio rivers to Cincinnati and Louisville. At the time of his death, which occurred May 15, 1879, when he was fifty-five years, nine months, and eight days old, he resided in Clintonville. He is survived by his widow, who was eighty years of age December 24, 1908, and is in the enjoyment of good health. They were married July 29, 1846, and became the parents of the following children: Mrs. A. J. Henderson of Clintonville, Venango County; I. J. Clay of the same place; Mrs. Al. Heckard of Star Crossing, Butler County; William O. Clay of Mariposa, Cal.; Simeon G. Clay of Brownsdale, Butler County, Pa.; Alva E. Clay of Evans City, Butler County; Mrs. Charles Day of Kane, Pa.; George A. Clay of New Castle; Mrs. Charles N. Islen of Pittsburg, and three who died in infancy.

S. G. Clay was reared on his father's farm in Venango County, and continued to reside under the parental roof-tree until he reached his majority. He then became active in the oil fields, where he was employed for some years with profitable results. He moved on to his present farm in 1902, having purchased it of D. B. Crowe, and has engaged in general farming. An energetic and progressive man, he is highly esteemed by his fellow citizens.

Mr. Clay was united in marriage with Miss Rebecca Crowe, who died May 11, 1903. She was a daughter of David B. and Ellen Jane (Anderson) Crowe. This union was blessed with children as follows: Reatha Eleanor, wife of Lawrence Black; Cora Cathryn and Leroy David Clay. Fraternally Mr. Clay is a member of Oakdale Lodge, No. 29, K. O. T. M. In politics he is a Democrat.

LEVI THOMAS KERR, deceased, was a prominent resident of the borough of Eau Claire, where he had conducted a hotel for nearly a score of years, but at the time of his death was retired from that business. He died on August 26, 1907, and his death was mourned as a loss to the community, in which he was so widely known. Mrs. Kerr still resides in Eau Claire, where she is the owner of some good property as well as the old Kerr homestead in Allegheny Township.

Levi Thomas Kerr was born in Allegheny Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, December 23, 1832, and was a son of Thomas Bradon and Tammer (Williams) Kerr, and a grandson of Joseph Kerr, who was an early resident of Allegheny Township. The last named was the father of the following children: Harner, Parks, James, John, Joseph, Zachariah and Thomas Bradon.

Thomas Bradon, father of the subject of this record, was married to Tammer Williams, a daughter of Levi Williams of Scrub Grass, Butler County, and his wife who in maiden life was Mary Phipps. Mr. and Mrs. Kerr had one son, Levi Thomas Kerr, subject of this sketch.

S. G. CLAY AND FAMILY
(The separate picture in oval is that of Mrs. Clay)

Levi T. Kerr attended the public schools of his home community, and then went to work on his father's farm, which he came into possession of at the time of his marriage. It consisted of fifty acres of land, and to this he added forty-five acres which he purchased of James Miller, who in turn had acquired it of Squire John Commigan. This made a total of ninety-five acres of valuable and tillable land, on which he erected a comfortable home and a fine set of farm buildings. Oil and gas were developed in paying quantities, and three veins of coal were discovered underlying the land. Retaining ownership in the farm, Mr. Kerr purchased a hotel at Eau Claire, rebuilt it and erected a good barn, and for a period of eighteen years he conducted the establishment with good success. He then sold out to William Mitchell and purchased an adjoining lot, on which he erected a fine home. He lived there until his death at the age of seventy-five years.

Levi T. Kerr was united in marriage with Mary Ellen Williams, who was born in Allegheny Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, January 2, 1835, and is a daughter of Thomas M. and Ella M. (Williams) Williams, and a granddaughter of Mark Williams, who was of Clarion County, Pennsylvania. Thomas and Ella Williams were parents of the following: John Milton, who married Sabine Strait and has three children—Mary, Nora and Cornelius; Sarah, wife of William Bailes of Harmony, by whom she had the following children—Amelia, Luella, Cora Sarah; Marcus, who married Keziah Morrison, daughter of James Morrison of Allegheny Township, and has the following children—Sylvanus, Oran, Clara, Minnie, Ella, Mary, James and Newton; Abraham, who married Amanda Mock of Centerville, and had the following offspring—Louise, Roy, Rex, Ross, Maude and Mabel; Asenath, who married Thomas Williams, son of Levi Wallace Williams, and had the following children—Emma, Effie, Della, Alice, May, Harry, Edison, Clyde, Lulu, Winnifred and Renaldo; Almira Jane, who married Edward Graham of Washington Township, by whom she had three children—Charles, Verner Edward and Celora (deceased); James, who married Gussie Thompson, daughter of Alexander Thompson of Clarion County, and has five children—Harry, Charles, Mark, John and Mossie; and Thomas, the youngest of the family, who is deceased.

Levi T. and Mary Ellen (Williams) Kerr reared the following family: Laura Delena, who married Thomas Bovard; Carmila Carleton; Thomas Meridan; Mary Almira (Daubenspeck); Tammer, deceased; John Hamilton H., who died in California; Sabine (Hoffman); Levi Phipps, deceased; Bessie C., who is attaining much success as a professional nurse; and Roy. Laura Delena Kerr married Thomas Bovard, a son of Robert Bovard of Eau Claire, and the following were born to them: Gertrude, deceased; Plummer of Los Angeles, California; Amy, wife of Henry Kelly of Clarion County; Cora, wife of Homer Nesbit of Oakdale, Allegheny County; Elsie, deceased; Minnie; Sidney; Bessie; and Delbert, deceased. Carmila Carleton Kerr married Elizabeth Shook, a daughter of Henry Shook of Butler County, and the following were born to them: Ralph; Warren, who married Elsie Hilliard of Clintonville; Myrth; and Elsie. Thomas Meridan married Rennie English of Mercer County, Pennsylvania, and to them were born the following: Roy, Lena, Elsie, Frank, Mary and Edward. Mary Almira Kerr married James Daubenspeck of Parker Township, and the following children blessed their union: Harry, Ross, Essie, Ellis, Clifford, Vernie, and one who died in infancy. John Kerr was joined in marriage with Ella Mahood, daughter of George Mahood of North Washington, Butler County, and to them were born: George, Brown, Charles, Harry (deceased), Belle, Mary, Ross, Paul and Flossie. Sabine Kerr married Philip Hoffman of Clintonville, and their children are: Carmila C., Leon, Colter, Dean, Mary and Rex. Roy Kerr married Mary Keim, a daughter of William Keim of Marion Township, and they have two children, Donald and Claire. In religious attachment, Mrs. Kerr is a devout member of the Presbyterian Church at Scrub Grass, of which her mother was a member for seventy-three years. She is a lady of many pleasing qualities, and has friends throughout the community.

THOMAS WILSON, who comes of an old and prominent family of Clay Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is engaged in general farming and stock raising on an excellent farm of nearly 500 acres, which is owned by him and his sister, Miss Mary Elizabeth Wilson. He was born on this farm December 15, 1844, and is a son of James and Mary (Carothers) Wilson.

James Wilson was a son of James Wilson, Sr., and was a small boy when he accompanied his parents from their native land, Ireland, to the United States. They settled in Butler County and the father of our subject grew to be an extensive land owner and substantial citizen of Clay Township. His death occurred here in 1888, after a long and useful life. He married Mary Carothers, a daughter of Thomas Carothers, who came originally from Ireland, and she too is now deceased. They became parents of the following children: Nancy Jane, whose husband, Isaiah Donaldson, died on January 11, 1908; Thomas; Margaret Ann, deceased; James Madison; John, deceased; Mary Elizabeth; Allen, deceased; and Sarah Ellen, who died in June, 1903, and was the wife of John Dull, by whom she had a son, Ralph W. Dull, who makes his home with the subject of this sketch.

cated on the northeast hundred acres of the farm, which they own conjointly. Adjoining this tract she has 220 acres, and he 150 acres making in all 470 acres. It is an excellent property, under a high state of cultivation, and is well improved throughout. They have spent their entire lives in this locality and enjoy a wide acquaintanceship.

JACKSON McMILLEN VAN DYKE, who comes of one of the early pioneer families of Marion Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is located on a part of the farm acquired by his grandfather at the time of his arrival here. He has sixty acres of good tillable land and is engaged in general farming. He was born on the old home farm February 1, 1844, and is a son of Thomas and Mary (Monjar) Van Dyke, and a grandson of Samuel Van Dyke.

Samuel Van Dyke, the grandfather, was of Scotch descent, and was one of the earliest settlers of Marion Township. He settled on 300 acres of land, and after making a clearing erected a primitive log house, which in later life he replaced with a stone house, which was one of the best in the surrounding country at that time. He lived to reach a ripe old age, and died in the old stone house. He had three sons and three daughters, Thomas being the youngest son.

Thomas Van Dyke was born in Marion Township, Butler County, in 1805, and died in 1880, at the age of seventy-five years. He was reared on the old farm, a part of which he cleared, and after a time he inherited a portion of it. He was united in marriage with Miss Mary Monjar, who was born in Venango County, Pennsylvania, in June, 1807, and is now living at the remarkable age of one hundred and one years. She is in good health, has a retentive memory and excellent eye sight, and is possessed of great vitality for one of her years. She now resides at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Peter Ghost. Nine children were born to Thomas and Mary Van Dyke, as follows: Isabella, wife of J. C. Hutchison; Richard, deceased; Elizabeth, deceased; Mary Ann, wife of James Dugan; Julia, wife of Peter Ghost; Sarah, who was the wife of John Dugan, both now deceased; Jackson McMillen; Frances, wife of R. M. Hovis; and Joseph, who lives in the old homestead.

Jackson M. Van Dyke spent his boyhood days on the farm and also helped to clear it. He attended the old schoolhouse which then stood in his home district, and has witnessed a wonderful change in the public schools since that time. He lived at home until his marriage, and has always followed farming. He is a progressive citizen and takes an earnest interest in all that pertains to the welfare of the community and public improvements.

Mr. Van Dyke was married January 7, 1869, to Miss Elizabeth Fleegar, and they became parents of the following: Samuel, who married Bertha Hemminger; Abigail, wife of James A. Gillgrist; Richard, who married Alberta Dodds; Thomas Harrison, who married Sadie Shaw; Lee; Sadie, who is the wife of James McNell; Daisy, wife of Richard Huff; Maimie; Amanda; Joseph; and Charles. In political affiliation Mr. Van Dyke is a Republican, and has served as school director and as road supervisor.

LEONARD SMITH, whose excellent farm of fifty acres is situated in Venango Township, two miles west of Eau Claire, was born in Wurttemberg, Germany, May 4, 1844, and is a son of Leonard and Elizabeth (Streker) Smith, whom he accompanied to America at the age of ten years.

The parents of Mr. Smith emigrated to the United States in 1854, came to Pennsylvania and lived at Chicora in Butler County and at Brady's Bend, in Armstrong County. They had the following children: Leonard; George, who was married (first) to Sarah Rankin, daughter of Thomas Rankin, of Brady's Bend, and (second) to Mary McMund, had three children to his first union—Thomas, Samuel and Ida, and three to his second—Charles, Dolly and Leslie; Rosanna, who married John Bessenicker, has five children—William, John, Henry, Susanna and Elizabeth; Elizabeth, who married William Ford, had an infant, now deceased; Susanna, who married Hugh McElroy, has one daughter, Margaret; Mary, who died aged ten years; Samuel and Philip, twins; and William, who died in infancy.

After his parents settled near Chicora, Leonard Smith went to school in the village and also attended school after the family removed to Brady's Bend. After his marriage, in 1870, he moved to Troutman Hollow and worked for two years as a teamster in the oil fields, after which he purchased his farm of fifty acres. This was unimproved land and Mr. Smith had it to clear and at present has forty acres under cultivation and has excellent farm buildings, all of which he had erected since coming here. His land is excellent for farming purposes and it may, like many others in this neighborhood, be also rich in oil, gas and coal, but he has never tested for either.

On April 7, 1870, Mr. Smith was married to Miss Sarah Belle Morrow, who is a daughter of Mathew Morrow, of Concord Township, and the following children have been born to them: Dora, who married William Ferguson, of Venango Township, has four children—Carl Thompson, Nancy Belle, Mary Jane and Leonard Allison; Sarah Emma, who resides at Pittsburg; Harry, who married Cora Serena, daughter of John Serena; Clyde, Bertha and Albert, all of whom reside at home; Rosa, who is a member of the class of 1911, at Eau Claire Academy; Pearl, who is a school teacher; and Mary, who is also a student. Mr. Smith and family are members of the United Presbyterian Church at Eau Claire, of which Miss Bertha has been treasurer and Miss Pearl several times secretary of the Sunday school. Politically,

Mr. Smith is a Republican but he has never consented to fill any township office except that of school director, in which he is serving in his second term. He is one of the representative and reliable citizens of Venango Township.

JOHN L. CARPENTER, who has attained a high degree of success as an oil producer, is a resident of Fairview, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is the owner of considerable property in that vicinity. In addition to his village property, he has a tract of twenty and three-fourths acres with one producing oil well upon it, and another tract of fifty acres with six excellent wells upon it.

Mr. Carpenter was born in Crawford County, Pennsylvania, June 27, 1843, and is a son of Welcome A. and Lucinda (Dickson) Carpenter. His paternal great-grandfather was a soldier in the Revolutionary War. He was one of the following children born to his parents: Prescott, Carrie, John L., James D., M. L., Mary, Allen and Homer. The two last named are deceased.

John L. Carpenter was reared in his native county and upon arriving at his majority went to Pittsville, in Venango County, where he became identified with the oil business. After a brief period of three months, he went to West Hickory, in Forest County, thence to Warren County, and still later to the Borough of Butler, where he was located three years. He then, in 1873, purchased a farm of Thomas Hayes in Fairview Township, Butler County, upon which he lived until 1902. He then purchased property in the village of Fairview, where he has since resided. He has in the meantime continued his activity as an oil producer.

November 1, 1869, Mr. Carpenter was united in marriage with Miss Sophia J. Courson, a daughter of Benjamin P. and Elizabeth P. (Morrison) Courson of Warren County, Pennsylvania. Her father died at the early age of thirty-one years, and her mother survived to the age of seventy-two. Mrs. Carpenter is one of the following children born to her parents: Sophia, Hiram (deceased), Eveline, Oren W. (deceased) and Ellen. The subject of this sketch and his estimable wife are parents of three children: Melville A., of Butler County, who married Grace Snow and has had two children, Gail and Clara, the latter dying at the age of fourteen months; Elizabeth L., who is the wife of J. F. Jewart and lives at Buffalo, New York; and Carrie B., who resides with her parents and is connected with the postoffice at Fairview. Religiously, the family is Presbyterian. Mr. Carpenter is a member of the Protective Home Circle.

JOHN A. MEAKIN, weighmaster for the Erie Coal & Coke Company at Ferris, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and assistant postmaster of that village, was born in Eastwood, England, August 19, 1885. He is a son of Frank and Harriet (Foster) Meakin, and a grandson of Thomas and Elizabeth Meakin.

Thomas Meakin, the grandfather, and his wife had the following offspring: Anna, wife of Albert Piper; Hannah Myra, wife of Charles Mabbott, by whom she has the following children,—Annie, Mabel, Charles, Leonard and Douglas; and Frank.

Frank Meakin married Harriet Foster, a daughter of James Foster of Brinsley, England, and their children are as follows: William, who owns a drug store in Nottingham, England, and who married Nellie Newton; Elizabeth, who married William Patrick and has two children, Annie Elizabeth and William Ray; John A., whose name heads this record; Frank, who is engaged in mining in England; Thomas of England; Samuel, a gardener residing in England; and Arthur, who is attending school in England.

John A. Meakin attended school at Eastwood, in his native country, after which he engaged as clerk in a store in that village. He later took up gardening and mining, and still later was employed as a clerk in a drug store. He then emigrated to America, landing at New York City, and thence made his way to Hilliard, Butler County, Pennsylvania. He here engaged in cutting coal for a time, and subsequently became weighmaster for the Industrial Coal Company of Pittsburg. Leaving that position he worked as brakeman on the Bessemer and Lake Erie Railroad, and then served for two and a half years as weighmaster for the Bessemer Coal Mining Company. At the end of that time he accepted his present position with the Erie Coal & Coke Company at Ferris. He is a man of well known ability and stands high in the esteem of his fellowmen.

Mr. Meakin was married to Elsie E. Foster, a daughter of Thomas J. Foster of Ferris, and they have a son, Ernest Lamont. Fraternally, he is a member of Hilliard Lodge No. 11, I. O. O. F.; and Hilliard Lodge, No. 92, K. P. He has passed through all the chairs of both orders. He is a Republican in politics, whilst in religious attachment he is a member of the Church of England. From April 22, 1908, to June 2nd of that year, he was at his old home in England, in the enjoyment of a well earned vacation.

CHARLES T. WALTERS, who has charge of the pumping station of the American Natural Gas Company, in Clinton Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is also the owner of a fine farm of sixty-six acres in that township, on which he follows general farming. He was born on this farm, which is located about one and a half miles south of Ekastown on the Tarentum road, the date of his birth being September 15, 1858. He is a son of Frank and Almira (Douglas) Walters, and a grandson of Davis Walters, who was of German parentage and possibly of German birth.

Frank Walters was born in Clinton Township, Butler County, where his parents were early settlers, and throughout his active life engaged in agricultural pursuits. He and his wife Almira became parents of the following children: Charles T.; James, deceased; Edward; Frank, deceased; Daisy; Susan; Beulah; and Anna.

Charles T. Walters attended the common schools of Clinton Township and was reared to maturity on the farm. He learned stationary engineering, which he has followed for the last eighteen years with good results. He has held his present responsible position with the American Natural Gas Company for two years, and in addition to the discharge of its duties has continued his farming operations. He follows general farming and raises some stock. His farm is under a high state of cultivation and is well improved; Mr. Walters has a fine two-story home and a large barn, together with other necessary out-buildings.

April 5, 1891, he was married to Miss Mary McKrell, a daughter of James and Jane (Taylor) McKrell of Allegheny County, Pennsylvania. Her father was a prosperous farmer and a well known citizen of the community in which she was reared. Two children were born of this union: Ethel Jane and Frank DeHass, both of whom are in attendance at school. Religiously, the family belongs to the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Walters married, second, Ethel Martin.

GEORGE B. IRWIN, general farmer in Venango Township, residing on his excellent farm of fifty acres, which is situated one and one-half miles west of Eau Claire, was born in Venango Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, November 9, 1843, and is a son of Samuel C. and Elizabeth (Curtis) Irwin, and a grandson of Reuben Irwin.

The parents of Mr. Irwin were farming people in Venango Township for a number of years. The mother was a daughter of Truman Curtis, of Venango County, Pennsylvania. The children of Samuel C. Irwin and his first wife were: Reuben, who was killed in the battle of the Wilderness, in the Civil War; Truman C. and Ephraim, both of whom are now deceased; George B.; Margaret, who married Samuel Sloan, both now deceased, is survived by five children—Amanda, Finley J., Sarah Jane, Louisa Margaret and Loretta. Samuel C. Irwin was married (second) to Martha Boyle Atwell, and they had two children—James A. and Mary.

George B. Irwin secured an excellent common school education, attending what was known as the Pine Tree School and the Big Bend School, both in Venango County, and later the Mt. Pisgah School, in Butler County. His first work was done as a driller and tool dresser in the oil fields and after four years of that kind of labor, he went to lumbering along the Allegheny River, in Clearfield County. After the death of his father he received fifty acres of the home farm as his portion and then turned his attention to improving it with buildings and has continued to make improvements while cultivating his land. So far he has been satisfied with the ample returns he has received from its tillage, having never tested for oil, coal or gas.

On March 28, 1879, Mr. Irwin was married to Miss Margaret A. Sloan, a daughter of Thomas Sloan, of Venango Township, and they have had the following children: Samuel E.; Calvin R.; Marilda E., who married William Campbell, of Barren City, Pennsylvania, and has had three children—Laverne I., Paul L. and Florence A.; and Alma Belle, who lives at home. Mr. Irwin and family attend the Seceder Church at Fan Claire. He is well informed on public questions and is a staunch supporter of the Democratic party, but he has never aspired to public office. He is one of the township's practical farmers and representative men.

JOHN MAIZLAND, whose exceptionally fine farm of 128 acres lies in Clinton Township, on the Saxonburg and Pittsburg road, about two and one-half miles southeast of Saxonburg, is not only one of the youngest independent farmers in Butler County, but also one of the most enterprising and successful. He was born August 16, 1876, on his present farm and is a son of Robert (deceased February 12, 1892) and Mary Elizabeth (Wilkinson) Maizland, and a grandson of John and Agnes (McMillan) Maizland.

The grandparents of Mr. Maizland were of Scotch descent. When they came first to Pennsylvania, they settled in Allegheny County and came to Clinton Township, Butler County, in 1858. The parents of Mr. Maizland had three children, namely: John, Margaret, who married Albert Alderson, and has one child—Flora; Elizabeth; and Flora, who resides with her brother.

John Maizland obtained a good common school education, working on the farm while attending school, giving attention both to his books and to farm work for some years. Since then he has devoted himself entirely to agricultural pursuits and through his excellent methods has developed his land into its extreme of productiveness. He may yet develop gas in paying quantities, as experiments have proved that it exists on his land.

In February, 1907, Mr. Maizland was married to Miss Lottie Knoch, a daughter of Henry and Margaret (Clendennon) Knoch, of Clinton Township, and they have one child, Gladys Marie. Mr. and Mrs. Maizland are members of the Presbyterian Church.

HARVEY D. HOCKENBERRY, M. D., a prominent physician and surgeon of West Sunbury, where he has been engaged in active practice for thirty years, and Medical Inspector of Butler County, was born in the town of Centerville, now known as Slippery Rock, Butler County, Pennsylvania, October 17, 1850, and is a son of John and Mary Jane (Christley) Hockenberry.

Dr. Hockenberry was reared in Slippery Rock, where until sixteen years of age he attended the village schools, and then went to a farm in Cherry Township with his parents. For three years he attended the West Sunbury Academy, and at an early age began teaching school, confining in that occupation for upwards of ten years. Deciding on the medical profession as his life work, he spent one year with Dr. A. M. Patterson of Slippery Rock, and in 1877 entered the medical department of Wooster University, Cleveland, Ohio, and was graduated therefrom in 1879, when he began practice in West Sunbury. Seven years later he took a post-graduate course at Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia. Dr. Hockenberry soon won the confidence of the people of his community, and in a short time built up a large practice, which he has retained to the present time. He is a close and careful student, and his continued success is due not only to his skill, but to his personal characteristics. In 1904, the Doctor was elected to the office of Medical Inspector of Butler County, a position which he still holds. He is president of the board of trustees of West Sunbury Academy, and is connected with the State and County Medical Associations and the International Tuberculosis Association. Dr. Hockenberry owns a handsome residence, adjoining which is a property of sixty acres.

Dr. Hockenberry was married to Miss Mary A. Smith, who is a daughter of James Smith of Cherry Township, and they have had eleven children, namely: John Bertram, deceased; James Amos, deceased; Ella Smith, a graduate of Wilson College of Chambersburg, Pennsylvania, and now teaching in the public schools of Wilkinsburg; Carl Morrison, deceased; Zoe Dora, a graduate of West Sunbury Academy, who also attended Westminster College, and is now teaching school at Bridgeville, Allegheny County; Amy June, deceased; Bernice, a graduate of Martin's Business School, at Pittsburg, and for three years treasurer and bookkeeper thereof; M. S. Quay, deceased; Hazel D., at home; Hugh DeWitt, deceased; and Hannah Hazel, who also resides at home; an adopted daughter.

HUGH THOMAS MURRIN, a prominent and substantial citizen of Venango Township, Butler County, residing on his valuable farm of 250 acres, situated two miles southeast of Murrinsville, was born on this place on June 22, 1840. He belongs to a family that has been one of importance in this section for many years and his parents were George and Sarah (Keating) Murrin.

The paternal grandparents of Mr. Murrin were Hugh and Polly (Shaw) Murrin and they had the following children: Joseph, who married Catherine Keating; John, who married Elizabeth Keating; James, who married Polly Kimes; William, who married Margaret Keating; George, who married Sarah Keating; Philip, who married Nancy Forkner; and Hugh and Peter, both unmarried.

The following children were born to George Murrin and wife: Catherine, who married William Holland; Mary, who married Patrick Cary; James, unmarried; Margaret, who married Michael McLaughlin; Sarah, who married John Martin; Ellen, who married John Duffy; Martha, who married Francis Gormley; Nettie, who married Patrick McMurrer; Hugh Thomas; and Cecelia, who married Cornelius Gormley.

Hugh Thomas Murrin first attended school about one mile from the homestead, the sessions being held in an old log cabin there, and later he went to the Seaton school and still later to the new brick school house. His father then needed him to help on the farm for a time, after which he left home and engaged in rafting on the rivers, living at Warren and Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, and at Cincinnati, Ohio, for about six years. He then opened up the coal bank on the home farm, which is still being worked, and during the years of great oil production in this neighborhood, sold a large amount of coal. On his own land he has six producing wells. With the exception of 100 acres covered with valuable timber, and two fine orchards, Mr. Murrin has all his land now under tillage. Formerly he dealt extensively in sheep and cattle, for some years raising and selling much live stock. His well improved place is the result of his own effort and care, he having erected all the substantial farm buildings now on the farm.

Mr. Murrin married Miss Ellen Thornbury, who is a daughter of Patrick Thornbury, and they have had the following children: George P., who married Nellie Smith; Clarence A., who married Stella Smith, of West Virginia; Nancy A., who married Lawrence M. O'Keefe; Lavisa, who married E. J. Hovis; Arthur P., who remains at home; Margaret K., who married M. J. Sherman, of Butler; Hugh F., who is now deceased; and Harold E., who resides at home. Mr. Murrin and family are members of St. Alphonsus Catholic Church, at Murrinsville, of which Mr. Murrin was treasurer for three years and a member of the church committee for five years. In politics he is a staunch Democrat and has been an influential one in Venango Township almost all his mature life. He has been many times elected to office and has given very efficient service. For twelve years he served as school director, one year as tax collector, one year as constable, one year as assessor, three years as auditor and three years as road supervisor.

WILLIAM HENRY PICKARD, founder of the Starlight Refining Company, Limited, at Karns City, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is a prosperous business man and highly respected citizen of that village. He was born at Brady's Bend, in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, June 27, 1846, and is a son of Amos and Eliza (Hines) Pickard.

The parents of the subject of this sketch were early pioneers in Armstrong County, where the greater portion of their lives was passed. She died in middle life, at the age of forty-five years, and he survived her many years, dying at the advanced age of eighty-five. The following children were born to them: Jennie, William H., George, deceased, Anna, Frank, Mary, Martin, Levia, and Edward.

William H. Pickard attended the public schools in Armstrong County, and after that worked at coke making with his father, who, it was said, was the oldest coke maker in the United States. In 1872, he moved to Karns City, where he first engaged in teaming and drove stage to various surrounding towns; he also engaged in the junk business for some years. In 1892 he embarked in the refining business, founding the Starlight Refining Company; this business he carried on alone for a few years, then took his son, John F. Pickard, into partnership, and 1903, sold a one-fourth interest in the business to Mr. C. H. Johnson, the firm name being changed to the Starlight Refining Company, Limited. They employ a force of six men, and have a monthly output of 1,500 barrels. Mr. Pickard has been active in the affairs of the village and has frequently held local offices of trust. He was constable three years, school director a like period of time, and has served as a member of the town council.

September 16, 1869, Mr. Pickard was married at Brady's Bend to Miss Caroline Fox, a daughter of John and Kathryn Fox of Armstrong County, and the following are the offspring of their union: Adda, who was born June 18, 1870, and lives at home; George C., who was born November 24, 1871, and died August 28, 1874; Ella M., who was born February 13, 1874, and died September 8, 1878; William H., who was born June 17, 1876, and married Myrtle Brake, by whom he has a son, William; John T., of Karns City, who was born June 24, 1878, and married Bertha Mortimore; Charles E., who was born May 25, 1880, and died October 20, 1908; Mary A., who was born August 24, 1882, and is the wife of William J. Anderson of Washington Township, Butler County; Carrie E., who was born May 26, 1887, and lives at home; and Edgar C., who was born March 13, 1889, and also lives with his father. William H., Jr., resides at Salem, West Virginia. Mrs. Pickard was called to her final rest on March 20, 1906, at the age of fifty-nine years. In religious attachment, she was a member of the Lutheran Church, of which Mr. Pickard is a member. He was one of the charter members of the Knights of the Maccabees at Chicora, when the lodge was installed at that place in 1891.

MICHAEL HOOVER, residing on a farm of thirty-five acres in Fairview Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is a well known citizen of the community. He was born in Donegal Township, Butler County, May 2, 1855, and is a son of Henry and Margaret (Leichner) Hoover, both natives of Germany.

Henry Hoover and his wife, upon coming to this country from their native land, located first in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania. They in 1854 moved to Donegal Township, Butler County, from Oakland Township, where they had lived for a few years after leaving Allegheny County. They purchased a farm of fifty acres in Donegal from a Mr. McNally, and lived there until their respective deaths, he dying in 1864, and she in 1895. Nine children were the offspring of their marriage, as follows: John, Tina, Katherine, Elizabeth, Henry, Michael, Daniel, Susanna, and Margaret.

Michael Hoover was reared to maturity in his native township and there received his educational training in the old Walford School, which all his brothers and sisters attended. For a time after leaving school he engaged in teaming, then turned his attention to farming, at which he has been very successful. He lived in Donegal Township until his twentieth year, and since 1882 has lived on his present farm in Fairview Township, on which he has made nearly all the improvements.

Mr. Hoover was married, April 5, 1877, to Miss Mary Andre, a daughter of Michael and Elizabeth (Ellenberger) Andre, old residents of Fairview Township. She died February 26, 1901, leaving four children, as follows: Margaret (Dally); Wilhelmina; Edith, who died November 5, 1903; and Oscar. Maggie Hoover was married in June, 1902, to Gustave Dalley of this township, and they have three children, Reinhold, Henry and Wilhelmina. In religious faith and fellowship, Mr. Hoover is a member of the German Lutheran Church at Chicora. He is a man of high principles and has many friends.

ROBERT S. HINDMAN, a veteran of the Union Army during the Civil War, is a highly respected citizen of West Sunbury and is at the present time rural mail carrier of that borough. He also is owner of a fine farm of 200 acres in Cherry Township, which he rents. He was born on that farm, located two miles north of the borough, August 30, 1841, and is a son of John and Eliza (Shryock) Hindman. His grandfather was Robert Hindman, an early settler here.

Robert S. Hindman was reared on the farm in Cherry Township and attended the public schools. He early responded to the call to arms during the war, enlisting June 10, 1861, as a member of Company C, Eleventh Regiment Pa. Vol. Reserves, for three years' service. He was mustered out at Pittsburg on June 17, 1864. Early in life he turned his attention to farming, which he always followed until his removal to West Sunbury, except for three years spent in the mercantile business at Monticau, Cherry Township, where he owned a half interest in a store, and the time spent in the army. He moved to the borough in December, 1896, renting his farm on shares, and since 1906 has been a rural mail carrier. He is one of the progressive spirits of the community and has always been found in support of those measures calculated to bring about public improvements.

Mr. Hindman was first married to Ann Jane Campbell, by whom he had six children, all of whom are living: H. C. Hindman, the druggist at West Sunbury; Rhoda L.; Sarah Belle, wife of N. G. Glenn; DeLoss L., manager of the Phoenix Milling Company; Kate, widow of Ross Sproul; and Margaret Jane, wife of H. M. Black. Mrs. Hindman died in 1884, and he formed a second union with Miss Mary E. Hilliard, daughter of Samuel and Elizabeth (Jaminson) Hilliard. She was born and reared in Washington Township, Butler County, where her father followed farming. Two children have blessed their union: Clyde K., who also is a partner in the Phoenix Milling Company; and Bernice. The subject of this sketch was the organizer of the Phoenix Mills, and is still financially interested in it. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and prior to his removal to West Sunbury was an elder of Pleasant Valley Church.

FOSTER SLOAN, residing two miles southwest of Eau Claire, on his valuable farm of seventy-three acres, which is situated in Venango Township, was born here, November 7, 1851, and is a son of James F. and Martha (Oliphant) Sloan.

The grandparents of Mr. Sloan were

Samuel and Mary (Foster) Sloan and they had the following children, many of whose descendants are among the leading people of this part of Butler County: Samuel T., who married Betsey Conn, had five children—Mary Jane, Samuel Perry, Nancy Ellen, Margaret and W. C.; John, who married Sarah Alabaugh, had five children—Harvey, Sarah Elizabeth, Emma Jane, William and Samuel; William, who married Jane Hoffman, had four children—J. B., Flora, Margaret and Louise; Betsey, who married Richard, son of Wilson, had five children—Samuel, Nancy, Thomas, Rosa and Burt; James F., father of Foster; David, who married Phebe Byers, had seven children—Joseph, Elizabeth, Fred, Mary, Simon, Margaret and Melvin; Josiah, who married Betsey Sackett, had three children—Elizabeth, Elsado and Samuel O.; Joseph C., who married Betsey Byers, had eight children—Ellwood, Mary, Albert, Lavina, Elizabeth, Sarah, Lottie and Warren.

The children born to James F. Sloan and his wife Martha, who was a daughter of Isaiah Oliphant, of Venango County, were as follows: Foster; Richard, who married Sarah McKinney, daughter of Robert McKinney, has five children—R. C., Zella, James, Gertrude and Oscar; Eli, who married Ella Scott, daughter of William Scott, has five children—Wilbert, Austin, Henry, Frank, Edward and Lester; Calvin, who married Annie Taylor, daughter of Elias Taylor of Venango Township, has two children, Ethel and Earl; Mary Elizabeth, resides at home; Samuel, who married Katherine Brown, has one daughter, Martha; Margaret, who married Fred Campbell, of Ashtabula, Ohio, has two children, Clinton and Ethel; James Austin, who resides in Montana, has two children, Gladys and Hazel; Silas, Nancy J., Rosa B. and Sarah, all residing at home; and Herman, who is deceased.

Foster Sloan obtained his early education in the Pisgah School and later had one term at Clintonville, following which he took up farm duties and continued to assist his father until he went to teaming in the oil fields near his home, but later returned to the farm. Prior to his death, the father sold twenty-five acres of the homestead to his son Calvin and the remainder to Foster, who has remained on the place ever since and has developed the property to its full extent. He has fine farming land and two productive orchards, five producing oil wells and a private coal bank has been opened. He has also seven acres yet in timber and devotes about eight acres to pasturage. He assisted in the erection of all his farm buildings, with the exception of the barn, which his father put up when Foster was an infant.

In politics, Mr. Sloan is a Republican and he is a member of the Republican Township Committee. At different times he has held local offices, for nine years being the very efficient township auditor. He is a leading member of the United Presbyterian Church at Eau Claire, of which he is treasurer and one of the trustees.

SAMUEL T. DODD, a representative citizen and secretary of the council of Fairview, Pennsylvania, operates a valuable farm of twenty-four acres in Fairview Township, Butler County, and is also a veteran of the great Civil War. He was born at Orange, Essex County, New Jersey, December 23, 1838, and is a son of Samuel T. and Eliza T. (Sisco) Dodd, whose other seven children were Zebina, Israel L., Stephen H., John, James, Joseph B., and Phoebe. Samuel T. is the only surviving member of this family.

Samuel T. Dodd went to Ohio early in life, and in 1863, at Monroeville, that State, enlisted in Company C, Eighty-eighth Regiment, Ohio Vol. Inf., with which company he served three months, during which time he participated in the battle of Nashville. He re-enlisted in Company H, Sixty-fourth Ohio Regiment, with which he served bravely for eleven months, and received his honorable discharge at Columbus, Ohio, in 1865. Mr. Dodd came to Butler County, Pennsylvania, in 1874, settling at Millerstown, where he resided for about four months, and then removed to Troutman, Concord Township, where he was employed in the oil fields until 1877, in which year he turned his attention to agriculture in Fairview Township. He has cultivated the farm to a highly fertile state, and on it also are located one producing oil well and a valuable coal bank. Since 1901 Mr. Dodd has made his home in Fairview, where he has become prominent in municipal affairs, having been school director for two years, and at present being secretary of the council.

On September 5, 1876, Mr. Dodd was married at the William Ellenberger home to Mary E. Ellenberger, who is a daughter of William and Harriet (Reep) Ellenberger, old settlers of Butler County. The four children of this union are as follows: Laura P., who married Albert Palmer, of Indiana County, has five children—Ruth V., Samuel A., Margaret M., Harry R., and Alice L.; Harriet E., a school teacher at Kepples Corners; William T., living at Mineral, W. Va., who married Celia Thornhill; and Elmer R., an employe of the mail service, who is living at home with his parents. Mr. Dodd is a member of Campbell Post, Grand Army of the Republic. Mrs. Dodd is a member of the Reformed Church.

WILLIAM HUMPHREY, who for many years has been one of the most active business men in the western part of Butler County, Pennsylvania, is with his two sons, J. R. and E. W. Humphrey, owner and proprietor of a large general store at Portersville. He has followed this business in Portersville for more than forty years, and also for many years engaged as a civil engineer. In season, he is a wool buyer on an extensive scale. He is prominently known throughout the vicinity, and wherever known is respected and highly esteemed.

Mr. Humphrey was born on the old Humphrey homestead in Worth Township, Butler County, August 22, 1835, and is a son of William, Sr., and Elizabeth (Dunbar) Humphrey, and a grandson of Thomas and Ruth (Coulter) Humphrey. Thomas, the grandfather, came to the United States from Wales, and first took up his residence in Greensburg, Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania. He and his wife later made the trip on horseback to Butler County, and were among the very earliest settlers of Worth Township, arriving some time during the year 1798. He acquired and largely cleared a tract of 400 acres of land, on which he lived until his death in 1839. He and his wife were buried in the cemetery at Plain Grove, in Lawrence County. They were of the Presbyterian faith. William Humphrey, father of the subject of this sketch, was born on the old farm in Worth Township, and although he learned the trade of a carpenter in early life, his chief occupation was farming.

William Humphrey, whose name heads this record, was reared on the farm and received a good schooling for those days. He learned surveying in the schools and followed that profession off and on for a score of years, surveying much of the land in this part of the county. He became a partner to James Newton in the general merchandise business at Portersville in 1869, but sold out and established a store for himself at his present location, where he has continued with uninterrupted success to the present time. His two sons were later taken into the firm and now perform most of the active duties in connection with the business. The store is completely stocked with a large line of goods, and would be a credit to a village many times larger than Portersville.

In 1856 William Humphrey was married to Elizabeth Riddle, a daughter of John and Margaret (Hay) Riddle. Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey are parents of the following: James, who lives at home; John Riddle, who is in partnership with his father; Newton, M. D., a graduate of the Medical Department of the Western University of Pennsylvania, and a practicing physician at Sharpsburg; Margaret, who married Rev. W. H. Sloan of Hooker, Pennsylvania, and has three children—William, Elizabeth and Helen; and Edwin W., who is a partner in the store and secretary and manager of the Portersville Telephone Company. John Riddle Humphrey married Laura Moore and has three children—Ernest, Helen and Walter. Dr. Newton Humphrey married Florence Depne and has a son, William D. Religiously, the subject of this sketch has been very active in the Presbyterian Church, of which he has been elder for twenty-five years. He served more than a quarter of a century as Sunday School teacher but finally retired from that duty. Politically, he has been a firm advocate of Prohibition principles for some years.

JOHN BYERS, who has been extensively engaged as a contractor and carpenter for more than half a century, has a comfortable home in Venango Township, located about two and a half miles north of the borough of Eau Claire. He was born in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, March 15, 1836, and is a son of Fred and Elizabeth (Sowers) Byers.

Fred and Elizabeth Byers became parents of the following children: Samuel, who died in infancy; Jacob, who also died in infancy; William, who married Lucy Hilliard, a daughter of Philip Hilliard; Mary, wife of William King of Butler County; Margaret, wife of James Blair of Butler County; Phoebe, wife of David Sloan of Butler County; Fred S., who married Sarah Sloan, a daughter of James

WILLIAM A. STEIN

Sloan; Elizabeth, who married Joseph Sloan of Butler County; John, subject of this sketch; and Katherine, deceased.

John Byers attended school at Annandale, after which he learned the trade of a carpenter under William Shira of this county. He was married in 1858 and at that time moved to Rockland, Venango County, but later returned to Butler County and took up his residence in Venango Township, where he purchased a small tract of twenty-four acres, from Jesse Jones. He subsequently disposed of six acres of this place and retains eighteen acres, although he does no farming. He erected a comfortable home on the place and built all of the other buildings, making it a most desirable country home. Carpentering and contracting has continued his business since early manhood and he has erected many of the residences, barns and public buildings in this part of the county. He assisted in building the East Unity Church, and also two churches in Eau Claire. He is a man of wonderful constitution, and was never sick but once in his life, upon that occasion being taken with typhoid fever; he is still capable of doing a hard day's work.

Mr. Byers was married November 5, 1858, to Mary Eakins, a daughter of Samuel Eakins of Venango County, and they reared a large family of children, as follows: Emma, Samuel Harvey, Alice, Cassie, Elmer, Mertilla, Adda, Mary, James Marshall, and Joseph Edison. Emma Byers married Samuel Kerr of Mercer County, and is the mother of four children—Belle, John, Pearl and Mary. Samuel Harvey Byers was first married to Selina Williams, a daughter of John Williams, and they had three children: Mary Wilda, Earl and Roy. His second marriage was with Olive Meals, a daughter of Samuel Meals of Butler County. Alice Byers married William Calvin Jamison, and four children were born to them: Myrtle, Beulah, Jessie and John. Cassie Byers became the wife of James Campbell of Venango County, and they have three children—Charles, Carrie and John. Elmer Byers married Sephina Jacob, a daughter of Jonah Jacob, and the following is the offspring of their union: Lulu, Burton, Jonah, Sylvia, Lena and Alice. Mertilla Byers married Frank Eakins of Venango County and they have three children—Carrie, Jennie and Bessie. Adda Byers married Edward Kingsley of Butler County and their children are as follows: Leona, Mary, Alice, Meliss, Delmar and Frances. Mary Byers is the wife of Ephraim Sloan of Butler County, and they have the following children: Carl, Loyal, Raymond, Alice and Wilma. James Marshall Byers married Clara Sloan, a daughter of Washington Sloan of Butler County, and they have four children—Forest, Lloyd, Dorothy and Wayne. Joseph Edison Byers married Harriet Cross, a daughter of William Cross, and they have a son and a daughter, Isabelle and Harold.

John Byers has for fifty years been a member of the United Presbyterian Church of East Unity, and in politics is a Prohibitionist.

WILLIAM A. STEIN, one of the stirring citizens of Butler, who has been an important factor in the business and financial prosperity of the city, was born at Butler, Pennsylvania, October 9, 1853, and is the eldest son of Louis and Matilda (Dieker) Stein. His education was acquired in the public schools and at Witherpoon Institute. He entered business life in 1873, as his father's clerk, and so continued for nine years, when he became a member of the firm of L. Stein & Son. His business interests have since greatly expanded. He was one of the organizers of the Standard Plate Glass Company, of Butler, and one of its original stockholders, and at present is serving as second vice president of the Butler Savings and Trust Company. He has met all demands made on his business capacity, and has attained a position as one of the reliable and substantial citizens of Butler. Mr. Stein is a Free Mason, being past master and secretary of Butler Lodge, No. 272 F. & A. M., and also secretary of the Chapter, R. A. M. He has been president of the Butler Business Men's Association since its organization. His political affiliations are with the Republican party.

In 1878, Mr. Stein was united in marriage with Amelia Vogeley, a daughter of William Vogeley. His family includes six children: Gertrude F., Cora M., Alberta L., Clarence L., Emily H. and Janet V. The family residence is at No. 227 Mifflin Street. Mr. Stein attends the German Lutheran Church.

Louis B. Stein, born December 28, 1855, is secretary and treasurer of the Butler Savings and Trust Company. In 1885 he married Julia Wisener and they have two children: Laura M., wife of Fred T. Roessing, son of W. P. Roessing, and Edna M.

Albert O. Stein, born March 23, 1858, is connected with the firm of L. Stein & Son, and resides with his mother at the family residence at No. 127 Mifflin Street.

SAMUEL H. TEMPLETON, who has been postmaster at Baldwin, Fairview Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, since 1887, is a most efficient public official and enjoys great popularity. He was born near Middlesex, in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, November 15, 1859, and is a son of Philip T. and Lucinda (Burford) Templeton, both natives of Armstrong County.

Philip T. Templeton, who met with success in the oil fields, was born September 10, 1830, and died December 27, 1902. He married Lucinda Burford, who was born March 12, 1837, and now makes her home with the subject of this record. Six children were the offspring of this marriage: Mary I. (Black), deceased; Edith M., who married George W. Boord of Turtle Creek, Allegheny County; Carrie C., who died at the age of five years; Samuel H.; and two who died in infancy. Mary I., the eldest of the family, was married to R. N. Black of Harrisville, Butler County, and both are now deceased; they were parents of a son, Edward T., now seventeen years of age, who makes his home with the subject of this sketch.

Samuel H. Templeton lived in Armstrong County until 1878, then moved to Baldwin where his father had oil interests. He attended the Mill school at Brady's Bend, in Armstrong County, receiving a good public school education. In 1887 he was made postmaster at Baldwin and has since filled that position in a most creditable manner. In religious attachment he is a member of the Methodist Church, to which his parents also belonged.

WILLIAM P. HINES, general merchant at West Liberty, owns a valuable farm of twenty-eight acres, in Brady Township and within the limits of West Liberty borough. He was born in Slippery Rock Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, April, 5, 1846, on the farm now occupied by his brother, G. W. Hines. His parents were William and Margaret (Robison) Hines, both of old and prominent Butler County families.

William P. Hines was reared on the home farm in Slippery Rock Township and has always devoted himself more or less to farming and stockraising, having purchased his present property in 1873. He has erected excellent buildings and utilizes a part of the residence for store purposes, carrying a full line of dry goods and groceries calculated to meet the wants of neighboring farmers. Mr. Hines was married to Miss Olive Boyd, who was born in Lawrence County, Pennsylvania, and resided at Harlansburg for some years, where she attended school. She is a daughter of Jackson and Sarah A. (Nelson) Boyd. Mr. and Mrs. Hines are members of the West Liberty Methodist Episcopal Church.

BERTON EUGENE SLOAN, general farmer residing on his valuable property of sixty-two acres, which is situated in Venango Township, two and one-half miles north of Eau Claire, was born in Allegheny Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, August 13, 1877, and is a son of Lyeurgus C. and Laura (Slagle) Sloan.

The paternal grandparents of Mr. Sloan were Andrew and Rachel (Say) Sloan and they had thirteen children, namely: Lyeurgus C., father of Berton Eugene Sloan; Mina, who married Hugh Morgan, of Butler, Pennsylvania; David; Anna, who married James Bell; Margaret, who married Alexander Wilson; James, who married Lou Wagner; Samuel; William; Tressa, who married Finley Hosaek; Jennie, who married James Shane; Ulysses, who married Edna Walter; Elizabeth, who married Abraham Carnahan; and an infant that died.

The children born to the parents of Berton Eugene Sloan were: Sarah, who married Melvin Sloan, and has two children, Floyd and Keath; Lillian; Berton E.; and Nellie, who married Arthur Blair.

Berton E. Sloan attended school at Six Points and in Cherry Valley and then gave his father assistance on the home farm until his marriage, after which he rented the farm for four years and then purchased his present one, on which he engages in general farming. A test has been made and gas has been discovered on his farm, but no oil, and there is one open coal bank which may prove very profitable in the future. Mr. Sloan keeps up his fine orchard and otherwise develops his farm. Farm buildings were standing when he purchased here but he has added others, a wagon shed and a very fine residence. When not devoting his attention to his land, Mr. Sloan is engaged in teaming through the neighboring oil fields.

On September 20, 1899, Mr. Sloan was married to Miss Margaret Henry, a daughter of William Henry, of Allegheny Township, and they have one son, Henry, who is attending school. Mr. and Mrs. Sloan are members of the Scrub Grass Presbyterian Church, in Venango County. In politics he is a Republican. He is a well informed, reliable and representative citizen of his section.

JOSEPH BARRON, one of Worth Township's most substantial citizens, resides on his large estate known as the Slippery Rock Stock Farm, which contains 325 acres and is situated on Slippery Rock Creek, on the old mill road, four miles from Slippery Rock. Mr. Barron was born September 30, 1854, on a farm that adjoins his own, in Worth Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Robert and Mary (Shaffer) Barron.

The parents of Mr. Barron are among the older residents of Worth Township, well known and highly esteemed. The father was born in Ireland and came to America when nineteen years of age, landing at Baltimore, Maryland, from which city he came directly to Butler County, where an aunt was then living. His father died in Ireland and his mother married again and subsequently Robert Barron sent for his mother and step-father and established them in a home in Butler County. He learned the plastering trade, found plenty of work and was saving with his money and after his marriage bought 100 acres of his present farm in Worth Township and continued to add to his possessions until he owned 300 acres. He became a man of consequence in county affairs and was elected a county commissioner and since retiring from that office has lived a quiet life. Robert Barron and wife had five children born to them, namely: Mary, who is the wife of Alfred Grossman; Elverda, who is the wife of J. C. Millaman; Lizzie J., who is the wife of Patterson Martin; and Joseph and Robert J., deceased.

Joseph Barron was reared in Worth Township and his boyhood and youth were alternately spent in school and in work on the home farm. On his large estate he carries on general cultivation of the soil, but devotes a large part of his land and attention to the breeding of the fine stock which has made the Slippery Rock Stock Farm known all through this section of the state. He has made a specialty of raising sheep and has a reputation in this line all over the United States. In association with his son James, he owns at the present writing, 230 fine sheep, all thoroughbred Merinos, Delaines, Ramhouletts, South-downs, Lincolns, Shropshires and Highlanders. These sheep have been on exhibition at different fairs for a number of years. In 1904, at the St. Louis Exposition, Mr. Barron took the grand prize against the whole world, in Delaine wool, which is conceded the best wool raised. This wool went to the Pennsylvania State Agricultural College for purposes of educating students in this commodity. In addition to growing the best sheep in Western Pennsylvania, Mr. Barron raises also prize winning hogs and cattle, giving the preference to Berkshire and Poland-China swine and Shorthorn Durham cattle. Mr. Barron has done a great deal in the way of raising the standard in live stock in this section. Mr. Barron has excellent accommodations provided for his stock and poultry, their great value requiring careful attention, as a loss of a single specimen is a very serious matter.

In 1879 Mr. Barron married Miss Elizabeth Black, who is a daughter of Alexander Black, and they have had twelve children, namely: Charles S., deceased; Harry C., who is a graduate of the Slippery Rock Normal School and a successful teacher in Westmoreland County; Edith, who is a popular teacher at West Newton and also a graduate of the Slippery Rock Normal School; Bessie, also a teacher at West Newton, who graduated at the Slippery Rock Normal School; James, who is the practical stockman on the farm and his father's able assistant in all his enterprises; Angeline, who is in the senior year at the Slippery Rock Normal School; Zina, Lois, Waldo and Esther, all bright students in the public school, and Frances Willard and Rath, the little ones at home. Mr. Barron with his family belongs to the United Presbyterian Church at Slippery Rock. In politics he is a Republican.

WILLIAM STOREY, who served through nearly the entire Civil War and participated in many of the most important engagements of that great struggle, is a prosperous farmer of Fairview Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, making his residence in the village of Fairview. He was born on a farm about one mile south of this village, December 31, 1835, and is a son of William and Mary (Smith) Storey. His grandfather, Alexander Storey, came from Ireland at an early date, bringing his family with him, and they were twenty-one weeks on the water.

William Storey, Sr., father of the subject of this record, was born in Ireland and was eight years of age when his parents brought him to the United States. He was reared to maturity in Fairview Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, where his father owned a tract of 400 acres of land. He was a soldier in the War of 1812, and upon his return from the front took up farming, which he followed all his days, dying at the advanced age of eighty-seven years. He was married to Mary Smith, who was born in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, and died in December, 1876, aged eighty-three years. They were parents of ten children, namely: Elizabeth, Alexander, Martha, Nancy, Ellen, Mary,

MR. AND MRS. ALBERT SMITH

Margaret, Mathew S., Ann and William. Elizabeth and William are the survivors of this family. The former, who lives in Washington Township, Butler County, is the widow of Alexander Clark and has the following children: Alexander, William, Daniel, John and McClellan.

William Storey, whose name heads this record, was reared and has always lived in Fairview Township, excepting that period spent in the Union Army. After completing his schooling he devoted his attention to farming and lived on the home farm until 1874, when he moved to the village of Fairview. He is at present the owner of two good town properties and has a valuable tract of twelve acres in the county near by. In August, 1861, he enlisted as a private for three years in Company H, 102nd Regiment, Penna. Vol. Inf., and at the end of that term re-enlisted. He served in the Army of the Potomac, under Grant, participating at the Wilderness, Cold Harbor, and Petersburg, and then was under Sheridan at Winchester, Fisher's Hill, and Cedar Creek. He returned with his regiment to the Army of the Potomac and was at the taking of Petersburg and the surrender of Lee. He was slightly injured at Petersburg, but did not leave the command. At the close of the war he was mustered out at Washington, after which he returned to his home.

Mr. Storey was married February 14, 1867, in Armstrong County, to Miss Eliza Ann Hayse, a daughter of Robert and Debora J. Hlayse of Armstrong County, and they became parents of the following: Jennie D., a music teacher of Denver, Colorado; Harvey L., who was engaged in conducting a general store at Karns City until the destruction of his establishment by fire, and is now living at home; Charles M., employed in the steel car works at Butler, who married Netta Chambers, whose death occurred in July, 1908; William H., who is engaged in farming and lives at home; John B., principal of the schools at Mars, Butler County, who married a Miss Burke and has a daughter, Catherine; and Maria P., wife of Bert Michael of Fairview, by whom she has three children—Margaret A., Dorothy E. and Ward B. Mr. Storey has frequently filled local offices of trust, serving three years as justice of the peace, ten years as school director, and two years as health officer, in which capacity he now serves. He is a member of Campbell Post, G. A. R. of Petrolia. His son, John B., enlisted for service during the Spanish-American War. Religiously the family is Presbyterian.

ALBERT SMITH, a prosperous farmer and well known operator in the oil and gas fields, is the owner of a farm of 110 acres located about a mile and three-quarters from Great Belt on the Coylesville Road, in Clearfield Township. He is a son of Herman J. and Lena (Eyght) Smith, who lived at Herman in Butler County. The grandfather of the subject of this sketch came from Germany at an early date and settled at Herman, owning and clearing much of the land about that village. Herman J. Smith was a farmer and blacksmith at Herman and a man of considerable importance in the community.

Albert Smith was born in 1851 and was educated in the public schools. He turned his attention to farming at an early date, and has continued to the present time, although he has given some of his time to other interests. He has one of the finest residences in the township, and his other buildings are in keeping with it. He has followed general farming and has raised considerable fine stock. Mr. Smith is an oil and gas promoter and has leased considerable land for that purpose in this section of the county. He furnishes gas to the country round about and has met with success in this branch of his business. In 1871 he went to California and stayed there for some years, returning in 1877. While there he ran a stage line of his own between Los Angeles and Calanthia, Cal. In August, 1877, he went into the hotel business at Herman, Butler County, Penna., and so continued for nine years, during eight years of which time he was postmaster at Herman. In addition to these activities he also raised horses and cattle. Thus it will be seen that Mr. Smith has been a busy man and has seen a considerable and interesting portion of this great country. Whatever measure of success he has achieved is due to his own enterprise and good business foresight. He has always been industrious and is known throughout the township and beyond its limits as a good and reliable citizen.

At the age of twenty-four years Mr. Smith married Miss Mary Stutz, a daughter of Conrad Stutz, who came from Germany to Butler County, Penna. Eleven children were born to them, namely: Eugene, Addellia, Henrietta, Windilena, Viola, Elnore, Camilla, Laura, Bertilla, Clarence, and Alvin.

Windilena married Albert J. Schiebel and has three children—Ralph, Harry, and Bernard. Elnore married Perry E. Stubblefield and has one daughter—Thelma. Viola married Peter A. Michaels. Religiously the family is Catholic and takes an active part in church affairs.

JOHN CALVIN SCOTT, general farmer, owning with his wife 100 acres of excellent land in Eau Claire Borough and thirty acres in Venango Township, has spent his whole life in Butler County, Pennsylvania, and was born in Muddy Creek Township, June 29, 1849. His parents were John and Jane (Wright) Scott.

The parents of Mr. Scott were old residents of Muddy Creek Township and they had the following children born to them: William, who married Margaret C. Wilson, daughter of James Wilson, also of Butler County, and had four children—John, Odessa, Laverne and James; James, who married Mary Brown, daughter of James Brown, of Lawrence County, and has one daughter, Dora; Anna Margaret, who married Mac Fulton, then of Oil City, Pennsylvania, but now of Scott, Webster County, Nebraska, and has four children—Jennie, Herbert, Jessie and Etta; Rachel, who married Robert Moore, of Portersville, and has eight children—Cora, James, Anna, Sarah, Mary, Nannie, Robert and Frances; Elizabeth, who married Robert Clelland, of Muddy Creek Township, and has one son, Scott; John Calvin; and Joseph, the youngest of the family, who resides in Nebraska, and is unmarried.

John Calvin Scott attended the Pleasant Hill and the Boulder Schools, in Muddy Creek Township, after which he worked until his marriage, on different farms through the county. He was married in 1871, after which he rented land in Muddy Creek Township for two years and then bought a farm in Franklin Township, on which he lived for ten years, then sold out and bought 130 acres in Venango Township, fifty acres of which he subsequently sold to Mary Kennedy, to whom he later sold thirty more. When Mary Kennedy died it was found that she had willed the eighty acres to Mrs. Mary E. Scott, wife of John Calvin Scott. Of land that he owned, Mr. Scott also sold fifty acres to John M. Eakins, of Eau Claire. After taking possession of this farm Mr. Scott found all the present buildings here but a large amount of repairing had to be done and he has continued to make improvements. He has sixty acres under the plow, has twenty acres devoted to pasturage, has an excellent orchard and two veins of coal have been discovered. A test well made the presence of gas certain, but Mr. Scott has none of his land leased at the present time for experimenting.

On May 1, 1871, Mr. Scott was married to Miss Mary Eleanor Kennedy, who is a daughter of Amos and Margaret Kennedy, who reside near Prospect, Butler County.

They have had ten children born to them, as follows: Nettie Tazetta, who married R. J. McCandless, of Eau Claire; Amy Blanche, who married W. E. Mahood, of North Hope, has five children—Josephine, William, Reed, Roy and James; Francis, who married Margaret Grossman, daughter of John Grossman; Maude, who died November 16, 1896; Jane, who resides at home; Louisa, who married Prof. A. W. Kelly, of Bridgeville, Pennsylvania, has one child, Louisa; John, who is a lineman with the Eau Claire Telephone Company; David, who died in infancy; Paul, who is attending school at Bridgeville; and Helen, who is in the class of 1911, at Eau Claire Academy. Mr. Scott and family are members of the United Presbyterian Church at Eau Claire, and Miss Helen is a member of the church choir. In his political views Mr. Scott is a Republican, but has never sought office. He is one of the solid, reliable, respected citizens of his township.

A. D. KEPPLER, a life-long resident and well known oil producer of Buena Vista, Fairview Township, was born May 13, 1864, on his present farm of 53 acres, and is a son of Isaac and Mary (Thorn) Kepple.

Isaac Kepple was born in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, but at an early period came to Butler County and settled on the farm now owned by our subject. He married Mary Thorn and reared a family of four children, namely: Angeline; William, married Elizabeth Ellenburger and has a family of seven children, all living; Winfield, and A. D., the subject of this sketch. Isaac Kepple died in 1898 and was survived by his widow until 1904.

A. D. Kepple was reared on his father's farm and early in life learned the painter's trade, at which he worked a number of years. He then began drilling oil wells and is still actively engaged as an oil producer, which he manages in connection with his farming interests. There are two producing oil wells on his farm, which he and his brother inherited from their father, our subject later buying his brother's interest.

October 19, 1898, Mr. Kepple was joined in marriage with Beulah Mary Fleeger, a daughter of William B. and Nancy (Graham) Fleeger of Greece City, Butler County. Mrs. Kepple is one of a family of seven children born to her parents: Ella; George; Walter; Adda; Beulah; Mary (Mrs. Kepple); William; and Inez. Mrs. Kepple's mother is still living. Mr. and Mrs. Kepple are the parents of the following children: Marjorie, Robert, Frank, Hugh, and Walter. In fraternal societies, Mr. Kepple is associated with the Knights of Pythias lodge of Chicora.

HENDERSON OLIVER, a well known and affluent farmer of Muddy Creek Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is the owner of two good farms in that township, constituting in all about 260 acres of valuable land. His home farm is located about one mile from Portersville, on the New Castle Road, and is highly improved and modernly equipped with a large brick home and substantial outbuildings. He at the present time is living in retirement from business activity, but still continues to take an active and public-spirited interest in the welfare and development of the community.

Henderson Oliver was born on his father's farm near Portersville Station, in Muddy Creek Township, May 6, 1834, that farm being later traded for the old hotel in Portersville. He is a son of John and Jane (Stewart) Oliver, and grandson of Thomas and Sarah (Patterson) Oliver. John Oliver was a farmer by occupation and was born in England, being a young man when he accompanied his parents to this country. Thomas Oliver was well along in years when he came to this country and located in Muddy Creek Township; he was buried at Moundville, in Lawrence County, Pennsylvania. The subject of this sketch was one of the following children born to his parents, of whom the two oldest are the survivors: Henderson, Sarah, widow of John Glenn, Eliza, John, Sidney, and Jeannette.

Mr. Oliver spent his boyhood on the farm and received a meagre education in the public schools, such as they were in that day. He then clerked for a time in a general store at Portersville, and was later taken into the business as a partner. We next find him engaged in the oil fields, but he soon turned his attention to agricultural pursuits, which has occupied his time during a greater part of his active career. In addition to his home farm, he has a tract of land about two miles south of Portersville, lying on the road connecting the Yellow Creek and Prospect roads. Mr. Oliver has raised forty-eight crops of strawberries and sold to one house, wholesale, for thirty-eight years, and in that time has seen frost, hail, drouth and some sunshine.

February 9, 1860, Mr. Oliver was joined in marriage with Jane Kennedy, a daughter of Daniel and Cassandra Kennedy, and a granddaughter of David and Jane (Grayson) Kennedy, who came to this country from County Kilkenny, Ireland. David Kennedy first located at Philadelphia, and later moved west to Butler County, Pennsylvania, where he acquired some 300 acres of land about three miles south of Portersville. Four children were born to the subject of this sketch and his estimable wife, namely: Eliza, who lives at home; Frank, who married Miss Jennie Koch, and has two children, Mary Jane and Wilma; Charles, who is unmarried and lives at home; and Edward, who also lives at home and with his brother, Charles, carries on the operations on the farm. Religiously, Mr. Oliver is a Presbyterian.

WILBERT LAMONT CALER, a well known merchant of Eau Claire and a member of the firm of W. C. Jamison and Company, has had a wide and varied experience in the business world. He is at the present time president of the board of Eau Claire Academy, and is secretary of the borough council. He is a native of this borough, the date of his birth being November 9, 1876, and is a son of James B. and Mary Elizabeth (Tebay) Caler.

James B. Caler received his educational training in the public schools at Lisbon, Ohio, after which he learned the trade of a marble cutter. He moved to Butler County, where he at different times was engaged in business at Eau Claire, Prospect, Evans City and the borough of Butler. He died at Warren, Pennsylvania, and was brought back to Eau Claire for interment. He married Mary E. Tebay, a daughter of William Tebay of Eau Claire, and to them were born the following: Clarence C., deceased; Wilbert L.; Arthur, deceased; and Pearl, who married Frank Stauffer of Landisville, Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, and has two children living—Marion and Robert Lamont.

Wilbert L. Caler first attended school in the basement of the M. E. Church at Eau Claire, the public school being held there at that time, and later attended Prospect Academy. When his parents moved to Millerstown, or Chicora, he entered the grocery store of J. C. Martland. He next worked two years in the Leechburg Rolling Mills, after which he returned to Millerstown and worked in the machine shops for William Westerman. He conducted a feather renovator at Chicora four months, and then engaged in the fish business until he went out on the road as advance agent for the Monarch Ethiopian Company. The company became stranded at Mt. Alton, near Bradford, and Mr. Caler walked more than 100 miles in two feet of snow to get back home. He met with some novel experiences in roughing it for a time and saw much country. He finally returned to Chicora as grocery clerk for W. W. Campbell, and then became part owner of a bakery.

After about three months he bought out his partner's interest, and conducted the business successfully for one year. He sold out the business and went to Pittsburg, where he clerked in a grocery for two weeks, then entered the employ of the Miller Grocery Company. He became foreman for the Grand Union Tea Company, and later salesman for the Reineke Wilson Company, in the stove and range department, his work taking him to Ohio, Michigan and Kentucky. After his marriage he settled down at Eau Claire, buying an interest in the store of W. C. Jamison & Company, with which he has since been identified in a most successful manner.

Wilbert L. Caler was united in marriage with Myrtle May Jamison, a daughter of W. C. Jamison of Eau Claire, and they had the following offspring: Harold Lamont, deceased; Wayne A.; and May Lucile. Religiously, they are members of the M. E. Church, in which Mrs. Caler sings in the choir. Mr. Caler is a member of the Empire Quartet of the church, was superintendent of the Sabbath School for one year, and assistant superintendent for the year of 1909. He is a Republican in politics. In political affiliation he is a member of Lodge No. 111, I. O. O. F., at Hilliard, and of the Knights of Pythias at Chicora.

E. C. THOMPSON, M. D., physician and surgeon at West Liberty, is one of the borough's leading citizens. Dr. Thompson was born on his father's farm in Brady Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, July 14, 1861, and is a son of Solomon R. and Martha (McCandless) Thompson.

Dr. Thompson was reared in Brady Township and there attended the district schools, then entered West Sunbury Academy, later attending Grove City College. He then turned his attention to the study of medicine and in 1882 entered old Jefferson College, Philadelphia, where he was a student in 1882-3 and in the latter year entered the medical department of the Western Reserve College at Cleveland, Ohio, where he was graduated and received his medical degree, in 1885. He immediately settled at West Liberty and here has built up a large and lucrative practice and at the same time has taken an active interest in all that pertains to the public welfare of the place.

Dr. Thompson was married to Miss Berdena Stapleton, a daughter of David Stapleton, and they had two daughters, Franc (deceased), and Mary Lucile, who is a student at Grove City College. Dr. Thompson and family are members of the United Presbyterian Church. Dr. Thompson belongs to families on both paternal and maternal sides which have long been particularly prominent in Butler County.

ROBERT EAKIN, who has been prominently engaged in carpentering and contracting for many years, is now living in practical retirement at Eau Claire. He was born in Irwin Township, Venango County, Pennsylvania, January 1, 1843, and is a son of John M., Jr., and Elizabeth (Campbell) Eakin, and a grandson of John M. Eakin, Sr.

John M. Eakin, Sr., was united in marriage with Margaret Campbell, a native of Ireland, and to them were born the following: John M., Jr.; David, who married Rose McClintock and had the following children,—Margaret, David M., Eliza Jane, Catherine and one who died young; Elizabeth, who married William Blair and had four children—John, Rachel, Rebecca and Louise; Margaret, who became the wife of Robert Bovard and had the following children—John, James, Thomas and Samuel; and Thomas, who married Eliza Blair, daughter of Robert Blair, and whose children were: Nancy Jane, John McClelland, Robert Stewart, Lavina, Mary, Thomas and Carluis.

John M. Eakin, Jr., was joined in marriage with Elizabeth Campbell, whose father, David Campbell, came to this country from Scotland. The issue of their union was as follows: David, who married Julia McDowell, a daughter of Isaiah McDowell, and had the following children: Warren Rennie, Ada Blanche, Silas G. and William; Thomas, who married Susan Myers, a daughter of George Myers; Robert, subject of this biography; John Alexander, who married Sarah Bennett, a daughter of David Bennett, by whom he had the following children—Stella, Ord, Jessie, Floyd, Winnie and Ruth; Mary Ann; Margaret Elizabeth, wife of Emory Myers, by whom she has a son, Henry; Maria, deceased; and Jane, who also is deceased.

Robert Eakin first attended school at Wesley, in Venango County, and later Green High School, in Green Township, Trumbull County, Ohio. He entered the Union Army early in the war of the Rebellion, and served three years and three months in a most creditable manner. He bore the rank of duty sergeant and saw much hard fighting during his enlistment. He was taken captive at Brown's Ferry, but before being removed from the field was rescued by the Union forces. After receiving an honorable discharge he returned home and began working at the trade of a carpenter at Oil Creek. He subsequently purchased a farm of David Hoover, located one and a half miles south of Eau Claire, in Venango Township. He engaged in agricultural pursuits, but devoted a portion of his time to working at his trade. He sold off all but seventy-five acres of his land, which he still owns, and moved to Eau Claire, where he purchased a good residence property. He then devoted himself exclusively to the work of contractor and builder, and erected many of the best buildings throughout this part of the country. He erected all of the buildings on the farm and has one of the best improved places in that vicinity.

Mr. Eakin was joined in marriage with Miss Aelsah Octavo Hall, a lady of most pleasing personality and a daughter of Richard Hall. In religious attachment they are members of the Presbyterian church at Annisville, of which he is a trustee. He is a member of Eau Claire Post, No. 538, G. A. R., and is senior vice commander of the post. Mr. Eakin is a staunch Prohibitionist in politics, and frequently has been called upon to fill offices of public trust. He served as clerk and treasurer of Irwin Township, Venango County; is a member of the borough council at Eau Claire and street commissioner. He was formerly trustee and vice-president of the board of Eau Claire Academy.

PETER I. MAYS, an enterprising and successful farmer of Fairview Township, the owner of eighty acres of good farming land, was born on his present farm in this township May 11, 1858, a son of Solomon S. and Elizabeth (Kaylor) Mays. His paternal grandfather was Andrew Mays, one of the early settlers of Butler County, who came from Luzern County, Pennsylvania.

Solomon S. Mays, father of the subject of this sketch, was born in Concord Township, Butler County, and was a life-long resident of this county, residing for over fifty years on the farm now owned and operated by his son Peter. His wife, in maidenhood Elizabeth Kaylor, was born at Brady's Bend, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania. Her grandfather, Leonard Kaylor, at an early day settled on the tract of land forming a part of the present farm of our subject, the tract then consisting of fifty acres, the other thirty acres having been added to it since at different times. Mr. and Mrs. Solomon S. Mays were the parents of four children—Margaret Ann, Elizabeth, Peter I., and Luella Jane, whose record in brief is as follows:

Margaret Ann married Herbert Bloom and resides at Curwensville, Clearfield County, Pennsylvania. She has six children, namely: Clayton, Peter I., Lee Roy, Alma E., deceased, Harry S., and Luella, deceased. Elizabeth Mays married J. C. Polliard and lives at Renfrew, this county. She has a large family of nine children—Cora May, George E., Emma J., Alma E., Laura A., Grace E., Francis J., William E., and Mary L. Of the above named children of Mr. and Mrs. Polliard, Cora May married William F. McGinnis and lives at Kittanning. She has four children—Ethel, William, George, and Walter.

SOLOMON S. MAYS

MRS. ELIZABETH K. MAYS

Luella J. Mays is the wife of James McElroy of Armstrong County and lives in Fairview Township, Butler County. Her children are James H. and Mary E.

Solomon S. Mays died September 8, 1902, at the age of seventy-eight years. His wife Elizabeth is still living, having now attained the age of eighty-one. She resides with her son Peter, the subject of this notice.

Peter I. Mays, who has always resided at his present location, was early trained to farm life and labor and became a skilled and successful agriculturist. Besides cultivating the usual crops, he makes a specialty of hog raising, and has also cut some figure as an oil producer—a business that requires good judgment and intelligent operation. His success has been well deserved and he is now numbered among the substantial citizens of the township. Mr. Mays has no matrimonial record, as hitherto he has remained a bachelor.

DAVID HENRY LOGAN is a prosperous farmer of Jefferson Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, residing on a farm of 125 acres about five miles southeast of the borough of Butler, on the Saxonburg road. He was born in Jefferson Township, July 14, 1858, and is a son of David and Mary Ann (Sefton) Logan, David Logan having come from Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, and a grandson of Joseph and Elizabeth Logan.

Joseph Logan came from the North of Ireland to the United States and located first in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania.

He subsequently came to Penn Township, Butler County, where he cleared and cultivated a tract of land, in addition to following his trade as a stone mason.

David Logan, father of the subject of this sketch, was a boy when he came from Lancaster County, and he here took to farming. He became owner of what is known as the Erastus Logan farm in Penn Township. His first marriage was with Elizabeth Davis, by whom he had the following children: Nancy J., deceased; John; Joseph, deceased; Levi; Baxter; Samuel, deceased; Matilda; Calvin, and Eliza B. His second union was with Mrs. Mary Ann Cox, nee Sefton, and they reared two children—David Henry, and Edward Perry, M. D., who is engaged in the practice of his profession at North Side, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

David Henry Logan was reared in Jefferson Township, and received his education in the public schools. He has always followed farming with uniformly good results and has a well improved place in every respect. Mr. Logan was joined in marriage with Miss Martha B. Cook, a daughter of Squire and Sarah (Miller) Cook of Allegheny County, Pennsylvania. The following children are the issue of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Logan: Rev. Harvey Wilbur; George Clifford, who conducts a blacksmith shop in Jefferson Township; Earl Richard, who lives on the old farm; Elry Robinson and Glenn Baxter, the two last named being in school.

Rev. H. W. Logan, before completing his course at Grove City College, taught for three years in the public schools of this county. He was graduated from college with the class of '05 and the following Autumn entered the Allegheny Theological Seminary, from which he received his diploma in the Spring of 1908. In May of the same year he was united in marriage to Miss Mary Prescott Jack. George Clifford Logan was married to Miss Edith Grohman and they have two sons, Hollis

Henry and Emmerson Glenn. The family belongs to the United Presbyterian Church.

George Clifford Logan was married to Miss Edith Grohman, and they have a son, Hewitt Henry. Religiously, the family belongs to the United Presbyterian Church.

DAVID McCOLLOUGH is a prominent farmer of Fairview Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is the owner of a farm of 133 acres. He was born in this township, April 10, 1830, and is a son of William and Elizabeth (Rumbaugh) McCollough. His grandfather, John McCollough, came from Scotland and was one of the early settlers in Butler County. He served in the American army during the War of 1812.

William McCollough, father of the subject of this record, was born and reared in Butler County, where he always lived and engaged in farming. He died at the age of eighty-one years and six months. He married Elizabeth Rumbaugh, whose death occurred at the age of seventy-eight years, and they became parents of four children, as follows: Polly, deceased; David, Peter, and Samuel.

David McCollough was reared to maturity in Fairview Township, and received as good an education as the public schools of his boyhood period afforded. He has always devoted his energies to agricultural pursuits, and has met with unusually good results. His farm of 133 acres is well improved as to the residence and farm buildings, and the land is all under a high state of cultivation. He is a liberal minded and progressive citizen, who is accorded the good will and esteem of his fellow citizens to a high degree.

Mr. McCollough was united in marriage, December 8, 1853, with Miss Mary Emrick, now deceased, who was a daughter of William Emrick of Butler County. The following are the issue of their marriage: Elizabeth, who is the wife of John Lewis of New York State, by whom she has eight children; Lydia E. of Little Washington, who is the widow of David Kirkland and has five children: Anna M., who is the wife of George Hayes of Little Washington and has eight children; William; Laura A.; Sarah; and Curtis, of Fairview Township, who married Ella Smith and has five children. Religiously, the family is of the Lutheran faith.

THOMAS H. HENON, residing on his valuable farm of 108 acres, which is favorably situated in one of the best sections of Washington Township, was born in Lawrence County, Pennsylvania, February 17, 1852. His parents were Thomas M. and Hannah (Johnson) Henon.

The paternal grandfather of Mr. Henon was a native of Scotland. He was killed in the War of 1812, leaving his widow with an infant son, Thomas M., who was born January 1, 1812. The latter was married in early manhood to Hannah Johnson, who was a daughter of Richard Johnson, who was born in Ireland. To this marriage were born the following children: Cassandra, who married (first) Christopher Bower, and (second) Capt. William Lowery; James Harvey, who married Elizabeth Veyou; Mary Adell, who married Thomas Black, of Lawrence County; Richard M., who married Mary Jane Hilliard, of Butler County; Thomas H., who married Vienna C. Hilliard; and Elizabeth, who married Capt. Thomas Morns. The father of the above family made his home in Shenango Township, Lawrence County, and his business was railroad contracting until he retired.

Thomas H. Henon attended school in Shenango Township and then learned the trade of stone-cutter, and later stone work of all kinds, including bridge-building, together with structural iron work. Mr. Henon can point to a large amount of satisfactory work done in this line in former years, but he devotes a large part of his attention to cultivating his land, carrying on general farming. He grows the usual grains of this climate and enough stock for his own use.

Mr. and Mrs. Henon have four children, namely: Harvey N., who married Lillian Adams, a daughter of Leander Adams, of Murrinsville, Pennsylvania, and has one child, Avalena C.; John C., who married Pearl Jack, of Annandale, Butler County; Goldie Adell, who married W. W. Patterson, of Hilliards, and has two children, Stillman Lee and Lillian Pearl; and David Leslie, who is a popular and successful teacher in the township schools. Mr. Henon and family are members of the English Lutheran Church at Annandale. In politics, he is a Democrat. He is no seeker for office, but consented to serve three terms as school director. He belongs to the Odd Fellows at Slippery Rock and is vice chancellor of the Knights of Pythias lodge at Hilliards. He is a well known and highly respected citizen of Washington Township.

LEWIS C. WICK, a well known and enterprising business citizen of Butler, was born in Slippery Rock Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, December 14, 1852, a son of Henry E. and Elizabeth Wick. His parents were both natives of this county, in which he himself has always resided, with the exception of four years spent in Bourbon, Indiana, and Chicago. He began industrial life at the age of sixteen years, entering a general store, where he acquired a knowledge of business methods, also engaging in the wholesale flour and feed business at Hilliards, Pennsylvania. He has remained interested in the lumber business up to the present time, being now the proprietor of one of the principal lumber and planing mills in the city, and conducting also a similar business at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania.

The Butler yard was started in February, 1884, by L. C. and Walter S. Wick, who in 1885 bought out the firms of Leech Bros., McGee & Dunlap, and W. C. Heiner. In March, 1887, Walter S. Wick sold his interest to C. R. Hammond, and in May, 1888, L. C. Wick bought out Mr. Hammond and has since been sole proprietor of the business, which is now in a very prosperous condition.

In addition to his activities in connection with the above mentioned concern, Mr. Wick is a large property holder, having over one hundred houses in Butler and Pittsburg. He is also a trustee of the Springdale Water Company, of which he was one of the chief promoters, a member of the board of managers of the Butler Silk Mill, and president of the American Mirror Company, in which he is one of the largest stockholders. A business man of more than ordinary sagacity, he has contributed largely to the success of the various enterprises with which he is or has been connected, and his judgment and experience along the lines of industrial enterprise are among the potent factors that have contributed to the present commercial and industrial prestige of the city of Butler.

Mr. Wick was first married February 10, 1874, to Mary Frances Curran, daughter of Samuel and Sarah Curran of Slippery Rock, Butler County, Pennsylvania, who died December 10, 1874. He was again married October 16, 1878, to Florence P. Curran, a daughter of Rev. Richard A. and Elizabeth Curran, of Decatur, Indiana. To this union have been born four children—Richard H.; Helen E. and Louisa O., both of whom are deceased; and Olive Bartine. Richard H. Wick is a member of the firm of L. C. Wick & Son, lumber dealers of Pittsburg. Olive B. resides at home with her parents. In politics Mr. Wick is a staunch Prohibitionist, casting his vote for that political party in 1882.

HENRY ERNEST MONTAG, a successful general farmer and stock-raiser of Jefferson Township, resides on a valuable farm of 100 acres, which is situated on the east side of the Saxonburg road, two and one-half miles from that town. He was born December 18, 1850, in Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of John and Dorothy (Hesse) Montag.

John Montag came to America from Germany, leaving his parents in the old country. He had his own way to make in the world and worked hard to secure his farm in Jefferson Township. He married Dorothy Hesse and they had one child—Henry Ernest.

Henry Ernest Montag has spent his life in Butler County and is regarded as one of its leading citizens in the section where he went to school, engaged in industriously cultivating his own land, married and has reared a family which is a credit to its parents and the neighborhood. On February 13, 1872, Mr. Montag married Miss Mary Roenick, who is a daughter of Frederick and Elizabeth (Smith) Roenick. Mrs. Montag's mother was born in Germany and was nine years old when she was brought to America. To Mr. and Mrs. Montag eleven children have been born and there has been but one break in the family, August, the third child, having died. The eldest, Mena, married William Frederick and they have had five children—Viola, Edna, Henry, Arthur and Richard, Arthur being deceased. The eldest son of Mr. Montag, Henry, follows the carpenter's trade. He married Edna Grabe. Emma married Charles Bachman and they have five children—Lydia, Clarence, Gertrude, Elmer and Elsie. Charles works on his farm in the near neighborhood. Lydia resides at Freeport, Pennsylvania. Otilie lives at home. Frank carries on a huckster business, and Alfred, Elmer and Norman reside at home, the latter being still in school. Mr. Montag is a leading member of the German Lutheran Church in Jefferson Township.

ALBERT ELIAS MALTBY, A.M., C.E., Ph.D., principal of the Slippery Rock State Normal Schools, at Slippery Rock, Butler County, Pennsylvania, has been identified with that institution during its entire existence, excepting the first eighteen months. He has had wide experience as an educator, has devoted much time to lecturing before teachers' institutes, and takes high rank in the profession.

Mr. Maltby was born in Fayetteville, near Syracuse, New York, October 27, 1850, and is a son of John and Rachel E. (Crawford) Maltby; he is of English descent. His father was superintendent of a paper mill in New York State. Albert E. Maltby attended the public schools at Fayetteville, and early in life learned the trade of a sash maker; while working at his trade, he gave vent to his ambitions by pursuing a course of study outside of work hours. He made rapid advancement in his work, becoming superintendent over ten men in the shop. At the age of twenty-two years he quit the shop and three days later matriculated at Cornell University. Ambitious, persevering and studious, he achieved a record in that institution full of honors. In addition to the civil engineering course, in which he was enrolled, he took a special literary course and also mastered the French, Spanish and German languages, which he became able to speak fluently. During his senior year he represented the university in an inter-collegiate mathematical contest held in New York City, the famous universities of the East competing. He graduated from Cornell in 1876, with the degree of C. E., and immediately thereafter was employed on the coast survey. He was appointed civil engineer in charge of the survey of the contested line between the countries of Guatemala and Mexico. He also followed engineering in the western part of this country a couple of years. In 1880 he took up the profession of teaching, accepting appointment as principal of a private school in Philadelphia. He continued there two years, then filled the chair of mathematics at the St. Lawrence University, in Northern New York State. From there he went to the Episcopal Church school at Toledo, Ohio, as principal, continuing one year, and since that time has been identified solely with Pennsylvania institutions. After teaching for a time in the public schools of Philadelphia, he in 1884 took up normal school work. He was professor of sciences at Indiana Normal School in this state until 1889, after which he was principal of the Model School at Millersville until he came to Slippery Rock. The subjects under his instruction in this institution are psychology, pedagogy and history of education. The high standard of the school has been continued during his regime, and he occupies a place high in the esteem of the students, and of the people of the community in general. Mr. Maltby is a director of the Citizens' National Bank of Slippery Rock.

He was united in marriage with Miss Harriet A. Dezell, a lady of accomplishments and refinement. Religiously, they are members of the Episcopal church.

SAMUEL AUSTIN BEAM, one of the leading citizens of Harmony, and owner of the Hotel Beam, has been a life long resident of Butler County, and comes of a family long established in this county. He was born April 1, 1847, in the building which is now known as the Beam House in Harmony, and is a son of George and Margaret (Enslin) Beam, and a grandson of Samuel Beam.

Samuel Beam, grandfather, was a blacksmith by trade, and at a very early period came from the eastern part of Pennsylvania and located in Beaver County about seven miles from Harmony. He subsequently returned east of the Alleghanies, in order to purchase an anvil and hammer. Upon returning to Beaver County he made his own tools and opened a shop, which he conducted successfully for many years. He was the father of the following children: George, father of our subject; Abram, Mrs. Dickey, Mrs. Bolton, Mrs. Welsh, Mrs. Graham, and Nancy, all now deceased.

George Beam, who was born in Beaver County in 1812, died in Harmony in 1888, aged seventy-six years. He was an extensive farmer and large land owner and banker, buying and selling in large tracts. He married Margaret Enslin, who was born east of the mountains in 1822. Her father also came from the eastern part of Pennsylvania and located first in Beaver County, later coming to Butler County, where he settled near Harmony. Mrs. Beam had five sisters, namely: Mrs. Sleppy; Mrs. Deitrich; Mrs. Dersheimer; Mrs. Pillow; and Mrs. Reiber. Seven children were born to the parents of our subject—Enslin, a resident of Allegheny, Pennsylvania; Samuel A.; Beriah, deceased; Sue, wife of Livingston McQuiston, a prominent attorney of Butler; Elizabeth, who married Mr. Conway, resides in Chicago; Agnes married Henry Dindinger of Allegheny; Nettie married Frank Hoops of New Brighton, Pennsylvania.

Samuel A. Beam attended the public schools of Harmony and Hayesville, Ohio, also taking a course of study at the Agriculture College in Center County. After leaving school he hauled water for the town of Harmony, and engaged in all kinds of trapping, at which he made considerable money. He then worked for his father on the farm, where he later opened a coal bank, from which he supplied coal for adjoining counties and carried on a very successful business. In 1873 Mr. Beam moved to Butler, where he purchased a livery stable, which he later moved to Harmony and conducted in partnership with Albert Wise, to whom he later sold his interest in the business. On December 21, 1881, he purchased from Mr. Hyle, the Beam House, of which he continued as proprietor until 1908, when he gave its management to his son Charles. Owing to the courteous treatment extended his guests, combined with the prompt services rendered, Mr. Beam enjoyed an extensive patronage and proved himself a genial host and able manager. Mr. Beam resides on a beautiful farm of thirty-one acres near Harmony, which he owns in partnership with Mr. McQuiston, and which contains the largest collection of antiquities in the county. He also owns, in partnership with Henry Wise, a fine farm of 400 acres at Middle Forks, West Virginia, besides a number of valuable lots.

Mr. Beam was married January 1, 1880, to Sarah Miller, a daughter of John Miller of Butler County. Three children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Beam, namely: Josephine, a graduate of St. Xaviers College, who married Walter Young, superintendent of the Bartlesville Oil Company of Oklahoma, and resides in Bartlesville, that state; Charles, unmarried, who is manager of the Beam Hotel of Harmony; and Howard, a student at St. Vincent. Mr. Beam is a Democrat in politics and is fraternally a member of the B. P. O. E., Royal Arcanum, and the Knights of Pythias.

JOHN H. WASSON, a contracting carpenter, residing on a small well cultivated farm of fifteen acres, situated in Washington Township, two miles southeast of Hilliards, was born at West Sunbury, Butler County, Pennsylvania, September 19, 1853. His parents were William A. and Margaret (Gordon) Wasson, and his grandfather was William Wasson, who lived and died at North Hope, Butler County.

The parents of Mr. Wasson were natives of Butler County and the maternal grandfather was William Gordon, of Clay Township. There were six children born to William A. Wasson and wife, namely: Lucinda, who married Dr. Perry Sproull, of Cherry Township; Martha A., who married Charles H. Book; William James, who married Samantha Rumbaugh, of Washington Township; John H., of Washington Township; Thomas M., who married Ellen Hovis; and Mary Catherine, deceased.

John H. Wasson attended school through boyhood at Euclid Station, in Clay Township, and then learned the carpenter's trade, at which he has worked more or less continuously ever since. He has done a large amount of work in this section and for some years has engaged in carpenter contracting. He took the contract and built the largest store building in Washington Township and has erected innumerable substantial barns and dwellings, his own farm improvements testifying to his taste and skill. He has never tested his land for oil, but it lies in a district where oil has been found in paying quantities.

Mr. Wasson married Miss Mary Uhry, a daughter of Baltser Uhry, of Mercer County, and they have had the following children: Elto, Clyde W., Clarence P. and Arthur M., surviving, and two who died in infancy. Clyde W. is an engineer on the Bessemer Railroad. Miss Elta is a telephone operator on the Wasson Exchange, at Hilliard. Mr. Wasson and family are members of the Lutheran Church at Annandale. Miss Wasson is a member of the church choir and formerly was organist. In politics, Mr. Wasson is a Republican and on that ticket he was elected supervisor of Washington Township and served honestly and efficiently. He is a representative and respected citizen.

JOSEPH REITH, who has a comfortable home and fifty-two acres of land in Buffalo Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is a well known citizen of the community. He was born December 4, 1852, and is a son of Joseph and Sophia Reith, the father from Germany and the mother from England. He was one of the following children born to his parents: John, Ernest, Matilda, Dora, Joseph, Frank, William, Hettie, Sophia and Frederick.

Joseph Reith, subject of this sketch, was reared on the farm and received his educational training in the common schools. He early in life turned his attention to agricultural pursuits, which he has followed nearly all his life in connection with coal mining, his fifty-two acres of land being underlaid with coal. He has not mined any during the past few years. He is a man of business ability and standing, and is highly regarded by his many friends and acquaintances in this part of the county.

Mr. Reith was united in marriage with Elizabeth Beckman, a daughter of Irvin Beckman, who came to this country from Germany and engaged in farming in Butler County; he was a soldier in the Union Army during the Civil War. This union was productive of the following offspring: Fred, who married Mollie Gibson and has the following children: Birdie, Lloyd, Arthur and Elizabeth; Mamie, wife of Paul Smith; Joseph, Jr.; Arthur, who married Etta Heckart and has one child—Wesley; Stella; Carrie; and Jesse. Religiously, they are members of the Lutheran church.

HENRY CROMLING, who has been engaged in the butcher business at Petrolia for many years, also has farming interest and is the owner of a valuable property in New York State. He was born in Germany August 25, 1843, and was one of four children born to Henry and Mary Cromling. The others were Mary (deceased), Dora, and Frederick (deceased).

Mr. Cromling was twenty-three years of age at the time he came to the United States, and he located in Maryland, where he worked in the mines. In 1873 he came to Butler County, Pennsylvania, locating first at Karns City, where he engaged in butchering for two years. He then removed to Petrolia, where he has since been engaged in the butcher business in a most successful manner. He is an enterprising and progressive citizen and has given material aid to the advancement of the best interests of the community. He has been constable here for a period of sixteen years, and has served as committeeman for the Republican party for a number of years.

Mr. Cromling was married March 4, 1869, in Maryland, to Miss Rachel Farinon, and they became parents of the following children: Mary, deceased; John, of Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, who is married and has four children; Dora, wife of John McLean of Cleveland, Ohio; Maggie, wife of Thomas Connors of Butler, by whom she has a daughter, Bertha; Charles, of Cleveland, Ohio, who married Maggie Walters and has a son, Edward; George of Westmoreland County, who is married and has a daughter, Rachel; Henry; Frederick; and Grover, deceased; William, of East Brady, Pennsylvania, married Elizabeth Nealer. Religiously, the family belongs to the German Lutheran church.

WILLIAM C. ARNER, who carries on general farming on his valuable estate of fifty acres, which is situated three miles southwest of the village of Hilliards, in Washington Township, also carries on a very successful photographic business, for which he has fine, modern equipments. Mr. Arner was born in Washington Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, January 22, 1869, and is a son of George and Ermina (Campbell) Arner.

George Arner was a son of Tobias and Catherine (Daubenspeck) Arner, of Parker Township, Butler County. They had the following children: Mary, who married John Day, of Clay Township; Betsey, who married Andrew Kelly, of Warren County; Philip, deceased; David, who married Eliza McCandless, daughter of Mark McCand-

Jess, of Cherry Township; George; Anna, who married James Grant, of Washington Township; and Christina, who married Thomas Troutman. For several years George Arner conducted the Wick House.

William C. Arner obtained a public school education in Washington Township and then engaged in farming. His fifty acres are all under cultivation and the land responds readily to the care given it. Mr. Arner may also realize a fortune from coal, as there have been found four veins of this valuable substance underlying his fields. Mr. Arner is a good farmer, but he has other interests, having developed a very profitable enterprise in the line of photography. He learned the photograph business after he had finished school and after his marriage instructed his wife and together they turn out a large amount of beautiful and artistic work. Mr. Arner worked in studios at Butler and at Findlay, Ohio, and is thoroughly competent. He has about $300 invested in cameras and other necessary equipments and his work compares favorably with that done in a city studio.

In 1894 Mr. Arner was married to Amelia Cooper, who is a daughter of Stephen and Henrietta Seaton, and a granddaughter of William Seaton, of Venango Township, Butler County. The late Stephen Cooper was born in Slippery Rock Township, Butler County, and was taken to Indiana while young, but later returned to Butler County. He enlisted in 1861, for three months' service in the Civil War, as a member of the Seventy-eighth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and was captured on one occasion by the enemy, but fortunately escaped before the prison was reached. He returned to his home and resumed farming. Mr. and Mrs. Arner have the following children: Lee Carl, Dale D., Hazel H. and Gladys E., all bright students in the public school; and an infant. Mr. and Mrs. Arner are members of the English Lutheran Church at Annandale. In politics, Mr. Arner is identified with the Republican party.

SAMUEL SHERWIN, a prominent coal operator of Butler County, Pennsylvania, is the owner of seventy-five acres of farm land in Fairview Township, on which he lives, and also has the coal rights to one hundred and thirty acres in the same township. He is a native of Clarion County, Pennsylvania, the date of his birth being February 8, 1873, and is a son of Peter D. and Anna (Blackett) Sherwin.

Samuel Sherwin, grandfather of the subject of this sketch, was identified with the coal industry in England prior to his coming to the United States, a line of business with which the family has been connected as far back as there is any record. Peter D. and Anna (Blackett) Sherwin became parents of the following children: Samuel; John B.; W. E.; James G.; Grace B. and Charles P. All of this family now reside in Butler County, the parents being located in the borough of Butler.

Samuel Sherwin was about three years of age, when the oil excitement caused the removal of the family from Clarion County to Karns City. Four years later they moved to Bradford, Pennsylvania, where they remained about six years, then returned to Butler County, where our subject has lived for more than a score of years. He has been living on a farm in Fairview Township about fifteen years, and in 1906 purchased his present place from Joseph Earhart. He has been engaged in coal mining all his life, starting in the employ of his father, and for some years was superintendent of the latter's mine, known as the Sherwin Mine and located in Clay Township. He continued as superintendent fourteen years, then branched out into business for himself. He opened his present mines two years ago, made all the improvements and has what are considered the best mines in the county. They employ seventy men and have an output of about 300 tons per day, all of which is taken by the Great Lake Shipping Company. He is a man of great energy and enterprise, and has won his way to the front rank through his individual efforts.

Mr. Sherwin was united in marriage with Miss Alice Kaylor, a daughter of David and Keziah (Byers) Kaylor, old residents of Butler County. They were married at Butler, March 23, 1891, and have the following children: Harriet, Peter D., Jessie H., Hazel, Ella and Joseph. Religiously, Mr. Sherwin and his family are members of the Methodist church. He is affiliated with Grove City Lodge No. 910, I. O. O. F., and Encampment No. 245, I. O. O. F., at Grove City.

JOHN W. HILLIARD, who comes of an old and respected family of Butler County, Pennsylvania, is a contractor in oil well drilling and is a member of the firm of Ekas & Hilliard. He makes his home on a tract of twenty-five acres which formed a part of the old homestead of 400 acres in Washington Township, but he does not do any farming. There are three veins of coal on this property, but as yet no banks have been opened.

Mr. Hilliard was born on the farm on which he now lives, September 25, 1866, and is a son of John M. and Elizabeth (Slura) Hilliard. He was one of the following children born to his parents: Anvia (Henon); Margaret, wife of Adam Fogle of Washington Township; Olive, wife of Leslie Huffman of Lawrence County, by whom she has two children, Blanche and Fisk; Alvira (Rumbaugh); Newton; Lena, who is unmarried and lives in Washington Township; Vina, wife of Harry Guthrie, by whom she has three children—LaVerne, Irene and Leola; Jacob, deceased; McClelland, deceased; and John William, whose name heads this sketch. Anna Hilliard married Thomas Henon of Washington Township and they had the following offspring: Harvey, who married Lillian Adams of Marion Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania; Elizabeth, wife of Miles Hutchison; Thomas, deceased; Ollie, deceased; Claude, who married Pearl Jack, a daughter of William Jack; Goldie, wife of Wade Patterson of Hilliards; and David, who is a teacher in the public schools. Alvira Hilliard married Henry Rumbaugh of Washington Township and their children are: Ford, Earl, Ina, wife of Eli Gaiser, and Vance. Newton Hilliard married Sarah Hutchinson, a daughter of White Hutchinson of Cherry Township, and to them were born; Miles; Harry Jay; and Twila, who married Edward Seaton of Marion Township and has three children—Lee, Pearl, Vevia.

John William Hilliard attended the public schools of Washington Township, first attending the old Stoops School. His first occupation on leaving the farm was as tool dresser in the oil fields. He later began drilling wells and finally branched out as a contractor, becoming a member of the Ekas & Hilliard Contracting Company, of Butler. He has achieved a distinct success in this field of operation and takes rank among the substantial men of the community. He is a Republican in politics, and his many friends twice advanced his candidacy for the office of county commissioner.

Mr. Hilliard was united in marriage with Miss Helen Heinauer, a daughter of Andrew Heinauer of McKee's Rocks, Allegheny County. Andrew married Mary Burkhardt, a daughter of John Burkhardt of Woodsfield, Ohio, and they had the following children: Helen, wife of the subject of this record; Katherine, deceased; John, deceased; Charles, who married Mary Hotchkiss, a daughter of Charles Hotchkiss, and has a son, Charles, Jr.; Edward; and Agnes. Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard have three children: John L., who is a member of the Class of 1909 at North Washington Academy; Vevia L., who is attending the public schools; and LaVerne J. Religiously, they are active members of the Lutheran Church at Anandale, and Miss Vevia and John L. Hilliard sing in the church choir. Fraternally, the subject of this sketch is affiliated with the Woodmen of the World.

GILL M. THOMPSON, one of Center Township's leading farmers and reliable and substantial citizens, resides on his farm of 100 acres of excellent land, which is situated on the Sumbury and McGrath mill road. Mr. Thompson was born June 9, 1861, on the farm in Center Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, which is now the property of J. G. Renick, and is a son of Anthony and Abigail (Russell) Thompson.

Anthony Thompson was born May 5, 1838, in the same house that saw the birth of his son Gill M., and was a son of Moses, who was a son of Anthony Thompson, who was born in Ireland. This Moses Thompson married his cousin, a daughter of James Thompson, who came also from Ireland to Pennsylvania and settled on the farm on which Gill M. Thompson and his father were born. Moses Thompson was born in Beaver County, Pennsylvania, and he was eighteen years of age when he came to Center Township. The father of Gill M. Thompson still survives and he and wife reside in Center Township. He married Abigail Russell, who was born in Scrubgrass Township, Venango County, May 27, 1836, and is a daughter of William Russell, who was born in Concord Township, Butler County. The father of William Russell was an early settler in Concord Township, to which he came from Eastern Pennsylvania. William Russell and wife moved to a farm in Venango County, where he cleared up a farm from the dense forest, about 100 acres, made improvements there and later sold the place and decided to make a prospecting trip to Illinois. On this his family remained behind and he subsequently returned to Butler County. To Anthony and Abigail Thompson were born six children, namely: Gill M., Mrs. Lizzie A. Young, Mrs. Maggie Upham, Bert, Martha and William, the two latter being deceased.

Gill M. Thompson was one year old when his parents moved on his present farm and this has been his home ever since. He has carried on general farming and met with excellent success. For a time he spent his winters in the oil fields, as a tool dresser, cultivating the farm during the summers, and has one well on his own land that is a constant producer.

Mr. Thompson was married in Cherry Township to Miss Annie E. Wolford, a daughter of Perry and Elizabeth Kiester Wolford, and they have five children: Grace, Mary, Wayne, Florence and Ralph. Mr. Thompson is a member of the order of Odd Fellows. He is not active in politics but he has the best interests of his community at heart and he served three years as school director of School District No. 3.

A. W. DAVIDSON, who fills the office of tax collector for the borough of Butler, of which he has been a resident for some twenty-two years, was born in 1865, in Slippery Rock Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Isaac A. and Analiza Davidson, and a grandson of Robert Davidson.

Isaac A. Davidson was born in 1826, in Slippery Rock Township, where his father had been one of the earliest settlers. He died in May, 1905, on the farm on which he was born and on which he had spent his entire life.

A. W. Davidson was reared on the old homestead and there he remained until he was about twenty-one years of age, in the meanwhile securing an excellent common school education. He then came to Butler and began work in the old fields, later was a clerk in a store for a time and still later embarked in a grocery business which he continued for nine years. In the spring of 1906 he was elected to the office he has since efficiently filled. He has been an active citizen, working ever for the good of the community. For one term he served as school director in the Second Ward, but has seldom aspired to public office.

Mr. Davidson was married May 17, 1893, to Miss Tillie D. Gilgrist, who was born in Butler County, and they have five sons—Wallace A., George B., Ira Roland, John Elmer and Thomas D. Fraternally, Mr. Davidson is identified with the Masons, the Elks, the Odd Fellows and the Mystic Circle. He is a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Butler.

PERRY FRANKLIN RAY is a representative farmer and business man residing on a fine farm of 195 acres in Washington Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania. He is engaged in general farming and stock raising, making a specialty of pedigreed stock. Mr. Ray was born in Fairview Township, Butler County, September 11, 1856, and is a son of William and Nancy (Campbell) Ray, and is a grandson of William Ray, Sr., who came to this country from Ireland at an early date. His maternal grandfather was Andrew Campbell of Fairview Township.

William Ray, father of the subject of this sketch, was a well known citizen of Fairview Township. He first married a Miss Hindman, and of the children born of their union the following are living: Jane, who is the wife of John Porter of Oil City; Mary Ann, wife of Harvey McConnell; and Margaret, wife of John Weeks. Those deceased are Robert, William, Andrew, James, Thomas, John and George. Mr. Ray formed a second marital union with Nancy Campbell, and they became parents of two children: Ada, wife of Mathew Banks; and Perry Franklin.

Perry F. Ray was reared in Fairview Township, and there received his educational training in the common schools. He has a farm of 195 acres, of which 160 are in tillable shape. He raises standard-bred horses and pure-bred Durham cattle, in addition to sheep; he makes a specialty of small grain, raising approximately 600 to 1,000 bushels of oats, 200 to 300 bushels of buckwheat, and from 300 to 400 bushels of corn each year. He has made many important improvements on the place since it came into his possession, rebuilding both house and barn and erecting the other structures on the place. He has five good producing oil wells but little gas. He has two coal mines opened, and another vein of coal which has not been touched. He is a progressive and public spirited man, taking an active interest in the development and welfare of the community.

Mr. Ray was united in marriage with Miss Mary Badger, a daughter of Alonzo Badger of Fairview, and they reared six children: Erla Pearl, who is the wife of G. W. Marshall of Pollock, Clarion County, Pennsylvania, by whom she has three children—Ossoli, Rosilla and Georgena; Cora Etta, wife of Edward Kuhl of Wilkinsburg, by whom she has a daughter, Mary Katherine; William, deceased; Lewis; Charles, who is married and has a son, Virgil; and Mary, who is at home. Mr. Ray formed a second union with Miss Sarah Campbell, a daughter of Mathew Campbell of Washington Township, and they have three children—Myrle C., Floyd G., and Harriet Ray. He is a Republican in politics, and has served two years as trustee of the Presbyterian Church at North Hope, of which he is an active member and a liberal supporter.

CHARLES ADAM OHL, a well known business man of Sarver, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is proprietor of a hardware store and an extensive dealer in farming implements. He was born in Slippery Rock Township, Butler County, January 17, 1862, and is a son of Henry and Johanna (Kramer) Ohl, and grandson of Adam Ohl. The last named was a native of Germany, and located in Butler County, Pennsylvania, at an early date, settling at Saxonburg. Henry Ohl engaged in blacksmithing at Saxonburg, and also followed general farming.

Charles A. Ohl received his educational training in the common schools, mainly at school No. 2, in Jefferson Township. At the age of fifteen years he began learning the trade of a harnessmaker with William Schroth, at Saxonburg, and from there went to Chicora, where he resided one year. He then went to Warren, Pennsylvania, thence to the borough of Butler, where he continued for eight and one-half years. He left Butler with Jacob Kiefer and went to Pittsburg, where they purchased the store and business of Hartman & Kost, which they conducted for twelve years with good results. At the end of that time, or in 1893, Mr. Ohl came to Sarver and established the hardware store which he now conducts. He is one of the leading business men of the village, and enjoys a large trade throughout the contiguous territory. He has a comfortable two-story home on Main Street, opposite the store.

August 9, 1883, Mr. Ohl was united in marriage with Miss Maggie Schwartz, a daughter of Christian and Barbara (Bippus) Schwartz, her father being a prosperous farmer of Butler County. Two children were born to bless this union, namely, Louis Edward and Ina. Louis Edward, who received his education in the Allegheny schools and Iron City College, is head clerk in the store at Sarver. He married Miss Lorine Bierley, and they have a son, Charles Adam, Jr. Ina died at the age of eight years. Religiously, the subject of this sketch is a member of the Lutheran church, of which he is an elder.

H. M. BARNEY, a representative citizen and business man of Petrolia, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is owner and proprietor of the Petrolia Boiler Works. He has a fine shop, with modern equipment, and does a large business.

Mr. Barney was born in Erie County, Pennsylvania, May 15, 1852, and is a son of Garry Columbus and Nancy (Allen) Barney. He had a brother Frank, who met his death by drowning in Lake Erie; the latter was twice married, his first union being with Miss Rose Berry, who died leaving four children: Blanche, Grace, Rose and Rell. A sister to the subject of this sketch, Emma, married Thomas Hinton, by whom she has three children—Glen, Joseph and Lent. They live in Oklahoma. Garry C. Barney died at the old age of eighty-four years, and is survived by his widow, who is now seventy-six years old.

H. M. Barney lived in Erie County until he was fifteen years old, then moved to Petroleum Center, in Venango County, where he remained six years and engaged in the oil business. He then came to Butler County and for a period of more than thirty-four years has resided within a radius of five miles of Petrolia, most of the time being located near Bruin and Karns City. He engaged in the oil business until 1901, when he moved to Petrolia and bought out the boiler works of Beatty Brothers, which undertaking he has carried on on an enlarged scale. He has always taken a deep interest in the public affairs of the community in which he has resided; he served two terms as Burgess of Petrolia and as a member of the town council. He was a school director in Parker Township for some years.

Mr. Barney was married in Erie County on November 2, 1872, to Miss Emma Bannister, daughter of Josiah Bannister, and they became parents of the following children: Archie of Rochester, New York, who married Miss Lena Wheelhouse of Jamestown, in that state; Walter, who lives in Fairview Township and married Susan Eddinger, by whom he has a son, Herbert B.; Fred, who married Lotta Jennings and lives in Fairview Township; and Earl C., who married Ollie Henry and lives at Petrolia. Religiously, the subject of this record is a member of the Methodist Church. He is a member of the Knights of Pythias of Chicora.

WILLIAM PLUMMER STICKLE, a prosperous business man and well known citizen of Eau Claire, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is a harnessmaker by trade and is at the present efficiently discharging the duties of office as justice of the peace of the borough. He was born at Wimer-ton, Worth Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, January 4, 1860, and is a son of Abraham and Margaret Ann (Gallagher) Stickle, and a grandson of Simon Stickle.

Simon Stickle, the grandfather, was married to Miss Susan Howe of Lawrence County, and to them were born the following: Samuel, William, Jacob, Simon, George, Abraham, Shimp, John, and Susan, who is the wife of Jefferson Wimer of Worth Township, and has two sons, William and Gilmer.

Abraham Stickle was joined in marriage with Margaret Ann Gallagher, a daughter of William Gallagher of Worth Township, and the issue of their union was: William Plummer, whose name appears as the head of this sketch; Hannah M., who married M. D. Maxwell of Plain Grove, Lawrence County, and has six children—Olive, Raymond, Grace, Sherrill, Ralph and Gladys; Clifford G., who married Sarah Stoughton and has a son, Arthur; and Samuel, who is deceased. Abraham Stickle, the father of this family, received his educational training in the public schools at Princeton, in Lawrence County, and in Muddy Creek Township, Butler County. He learned the trade of a shoemaker in Muddy Creek, and also followed it in Worth Township. He later learned the trade of a harnessmaker, both of which he followed with much success, at Jacksville.

William P. Stickle attended Zion and Billsburg schools in Worth Township, the Mt. Pleasant School in Westmoreland County, and later was enrolled in Grove City College, Mercer County, for a time. He then engaged in teaching one term in Perry Township, Lawrence County, and a term in Franklin Township, Butler County. He learned his trade as a harnessmaker under David Gill at Harlansburg, under David St. Clair at Jacksville, under T. M. Rhoades at Slippery Rock, and William Young at Grove City. He then started into business for himself at Eau Claire in 1884, but later became established in a general store in partnership with G. F. Gardner at Plain Grove, in Lawrence County. He then returned to Eau Claire, where he has built up a large and well paying business. He has owned three different properties in the borough, but at the present owns but the property on which he lives. He is a Prohibitionist in politics, and has been active in the party for many years; he was elected justice of the peace for the borough and is a member of the Prohibitionist County Committee.

William P. Stickle was united in marriage with Emma E. Gardner, a daughter of Nicholas Gardner, and four children were born to them—Fern M., Ida M., Marjorie, and a son who died unnamed. He was called upon to mourn the loss of his beloved wife on October 29, 1900, and she lies buried in Zion cemetery in Worth Township. She was a member of the M. E. Church at Eau Claire, to which Mr. Stickle belongs. He is very active in church work, serving as Sunday School superintendent, and also steward. Fraternally, he is a member, and at present chaplain, of Eau Claire Tent, No. 23, K. O. T. M.; and formerly was a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows at Plain Grove. He is a man who retains the highest regard of his fellow citizens, and always allies himself with the best interests of the community.

JOHN HARVEY SNYDER, general superintendent of gas-pumping stations for the T. W. Phillips Gas and Oil Company of Butler, Pennsylvania, is a resident of Buffalo Township, Butler County, and is a man of recognized standing in the community. He was born in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, December 27, 1872, is a son of James M. and Mary (Lamison) Snyder, and a grandson of John Snyder.

John Snyder, the grandfather, engaged in the blacksmith's trade for some years, but later made his chief pursuit oil operating. His later years were spent on the farm, his death occurring in July, 1906. His wife, in maiden life Emline Somers, died some eight years prior to his death.

James M. Snyder is widely known in the oil and gas fields of Armstrong and Butler Counties; he engaged in the oil business for many years, and is now successful in the gas business. He was joined in marriage with Mary Lamison, a daughter of Adam Lamison, a collier in the various furnaces in this part of the state. Nine children were the issue of their marriage: John Harvey; Adam, who married Belle James; Samuel, who married Clara Claypool; Jesse, who married Tillie Bauldoff; Mary Ellen, deceased; William B., deceased; Dee Viola, wife of Abraham Flicik; Carrie Elizabeth; and Margaret.

John H. Snyder received a common school education in Butler and Armstrong Counties, and during his boyhood days worked on the farm. At the age of sixteen years he entered the employ of the T. W. Phillips Gas and Oil Company, doing ordinary labor work; a conscientious discharge of his duties resulted in advancement from one position to another until he was made general superintendent of the pumping station, the position he now fills with marked ability. He is a capable business man and a progressive one, and has the esteem of all with whom he is brought in contact. He goes to and from his work in an automobile of the Thomas 1907 model.

September 6, 1899, Mr. Snyder was joined in the bonds of wedlock with Miss Clara Lyon, a daughter of Josiah and Clara (Howard) Lyon. Her parents came from the East, and Mr. Lyon became an operator in the oil fields. Religiously, the subject of this sketch and his wife are members of the Methodist Church, and have been very active in church and social affairs. He was for a long period superintendent of the Sunday School. Fraternally, he is a member of Blue Lodge, F. & A. M.; and the Chapter No. 540, at Chicora, Pennsylvania.

THOMAS V. ROACH, owner of the Petrolia Refining Company of Petrolia, Butler County, Pennsylvania, has a large and well established business. The firm of which he is the head manufactures a white petroleum jelly, of the purest quality, known as Petrolatum, and is disposed of mainly to large wholesale drug firms, its exceptional quality giving it a ready market.

Mr. Roach was born in Petrolia, February 14, 1875, and is a son of Michael and Anna (McFarland) Roach. His father is at present Burgess of Petrolia. Michael and Anna Roach became parents of the following: Frank, who married Lottie Osenbaugh and lives at Oakdale, Allegheny County, Pennsylvania; Thomas V.; Joseph; Walter, who married Gertrude Carnihan and lives at Petrolia; and Mary. The father of this family came to Petrolia during the oil excitement, and he and most of his sons have always engaged in the oil business.

Thomas V. Roach has always been in the oil business and in 1901, in partnership with Frank Hernon, purchased the Pe-trolia Refining Company, of George Sonricker. The last named, in association with Frank Carman, had established the business in 1900. The subject of this sketch and his partner established the company on a firm business basis and continued together until 1904, when in February, of that year, the former purchased the interests of his partner. He has since continued alone and has achieved a high degree of success. He employs an average of three men, and produces a large quantity of petrolatum per year. In addition he refines oil and gasoline of high grade.

WILLIAM BARBER, residing on his valuable farm of 160 acres, situated in Washington Township, Butler County, was born at Harlansburg, Lawrence County, Pennsylvania, March 18, 1859, and is a son of William and Anna (Kauffman) Barber.

The father of Mr. Barber was born in the State of New York and was brought to Lawrence County, Pennsylvania, in his boyhood. He engaged in farming there until 1860, when he moved to Missouri, but subsequently returned to Lawrence County and in 1866 he bought a farm in Butler County, on which he died when aged seventy-three years. He married a daughter of Adam Kauffman, of New Castle, Lawrence County.

William Barber attended school during his boyhood, as opportunity offered, but his advantages were not many, and he is largely a self-made man. Before he settled down to farming as his chief business, he worked at the Butler Glass Works, having a contract to put in all the sewerage. He also has done a large amount of teaming at various times. At present, Mr. Barber is much interested in sheep growing and is making preparations to handle 100 head and will no doubt make a success of the enterprise, as he has made a study of the industry. From two oil wells on his land he receives a royalty.

Mr. Barber married Miss Margaret Hilliard, a daughter of F. M. and Hannah Hilliard, residents of the village of Hilliards, the family giving the place its name. To Mr. and Mrs. Barber have been born the following children: J. F., residing at Thompson Corners, is a blacksmith by trade; Thomas M., residing also at Thompson Corners, is a carpenter; Jessie, who is the wife of James Gillespie; L. A., and Tillie May, both residing at home; and Hannah, Carl and Albert, all three bright students in the country schools. Mr. Barber and family belong to the United Brethren Church. He belongs to the Odd Fellow lodge at Hilliards. He has taken considerable interest in public affairs in Washington Township and served one term as supervisor. In politics he is a staunch Republican. Mr. Barber is one of the substantial and respected citizens of Washington Township, a representative man of this section.

JAMES C. BUCHANAN was born in the old log house which adorned the home farm in Mercer Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, the date of his birth being August 10, 1857. He is a son of James and Isabelle (Pringle) Buchanan, and a grandson of Alexander and Mary (Bovard) Buchanan, natives of Ireland. Alexander Buchanan moved from County Down, Ireland, with his family in 1834, and took up his residence in Butler County, Pennsylvania, first stopping at the home of Associate Judge Bovard, who was a cousin of his wife. He purchased the old Donahue farm in Mercer Township, which he largely cleared, and there he and his wife passed the remainder of their days. They were parents of the following children: Margaret, who married a Mr. James in Ireland, and by whom she had several children. Her husband died in Ireland and the children came with her to this country. Afterward she became the wife of Joseph Russell. Sarah, wife of William Russell; Mary, who married a Mr. Stephenson; Susanna, wife of Joseph Bailey; Charles; Robert; Washington; James; and John. All these and their consorts are now dead, except Joseph Bailey, who is still living at the advanced age of 93 years. The old homestead fell into possession of Washington and James Buchanan. James Buchanan, father of the subject of this sketch, was born (1825) in County Down, Ireland, and was eight years of age when he accompanied his parents to the United States. He was reared on the farm in Mercer Township, Butler County, which he aided in clearing, and there spent his entire mature life, engaged in agricultural pursuits. He also was the owner of a farm in Marion Township, Butler County, which his son, Alexander, now owns.

The first marriage of James Buchanan was with Miss Isabelle Pringle, daughter of Robert and Margaret (Nelson) Pringle, who also was born in Ireland and in childhood accompanied her parents to this country. Her death occurred February 20, 1860, at the early age of 36 years, and was survived by seven children, these being: Margaret, widow of R. A. Hartley; Alexander; Sarah, wife of William Moore; Robert; William; Mary, widow of G. D. Foster; and James C. James Buchanan subsequently was joined in marriage with Mrs. Eleanor Martin, widow of James Martin and a daughter of George Ray. By this union three children were born, Isabelle, wife of David Bovard; George, who died October 18, 1865, and Susanna, who died October 18, 1871.

Dr. James C. Buchanan was reared on the old homestead and attended the public schools of that district. He turned his attention to farming and continued at that until he was twenty-eight years of age. He was then in the employ of the Bessemer Railroad for a period of seven years, and in 1889 he began his preparation for the profession of dentistry. He entered the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery from which he received the degree of D. D. S. in 1892. In April of that year he opened an office for practice on Main Street in Harrisville, and he has since continued in this borough with good results. He resides on a farm of ten acres in the borough, and also is possessed of a valuable tract of seventy-two acres (a part of the old homestead), together with twenty-five acres (formerly owned by James McKisson), of which nearly all is underlaid with limestone. The Pittsburg Limestone Quarry is located on this property.

Dr. James C. Buchanan was united in marriage November 22, 1877, with Miss Alice C. McKisson, a daughter of James S. and Elisabeth (Wiley) McKisson of Mercer Township, Butler County. The following children were born to them: Herman D., born February 8, 1880, died August 27, 1883; Dr. James L., born June 6, 1882, and graduated from the dental department of the Western University of Pennsylvania in 1906, and is engaged in practice at Portersville, Pennsylvania; Lester D. was born April 16, 1884, served in the United States Army during the Spanish-American war; Benjamin K. was born July 17, 1888, and is a graduate of the Slippery Rock State Normal School; Gaylord W. was born May 20, 1892, and is in attendance at Mercer Academy; Dean H. was born November 25, 1894, and is an attendant at the public school of Harrisville. Dr. James L. Buchanan was married to Miss Melissa Jack, September 29, 1903. Their children are as follows: James William, Lawrence Douglas, and Alice Floy. The subject of this record is a member of the Butler County Dental Society. In 1900 he pursued a post-graduate course at Merchants Post-Graduate School of Prosthetic Dentistry (Baltimore). Religiously, he is a member of Harmony United Presbyterian Church, of which he is a trustee and a member of Session. In politics he is unswerving in his support of Prohibition principles, and was the candidate for county treasurer on the Prohibition ticket in 1908. He has served as president of the Harrisville Council, of which body he is at the present time secretary. He is also president and general manager of the Harrisville Telephone Company, in which he is a stockholder.

JOHN WESLEY POWELL, postmaster and general merchant at Sarver, Butler County, Pennsylvania, has had a varied experience in the business world and has met with a high degree of success. He was born in this county, September 11, 1853, and is a son of Butler and Nancy (Black) Powell. The Powell family has long been one of prominence in eastern Pennsylvania, and dates back in this country to the time of William Penn, from whom they received grants. They came from England. The Powells in Butler County are the direct heirs to valuable land in Philadelphia, which is now in litigation.

Butler Powell, father of the subject of this sketch, was born in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, and was a son of Malachi Powell. His mother's maiden name was Butler. These parents came from the eastern part of Pennsylvania about 1812, and were farmers. Butler Powell was a painter by trade and was one of the pioneers at that trade in this part of Butler County. He later purchased a farm in Buffalo Township, and there engaged in agricultural pursuits the remainder of his days. He was united in marriage with Nancy Black, and they became parents of the following children: James, deceased; Elizabeth Jane; John W.; David Alexander, deceased; George Calvin; Clara Belle; and Margaret Ann.

John W. Powell received his early education in the common school of his home district, supplemented by a course in the state normal school at Edinboro, in Erie County, Pennsylvania. He later engaged in teaching in Buffalo Township for three years, and then returned to Edinboro, where he was graduated in the commercial department. He went to Homestead and was employed in a store for three years, then went to Pittsburg, about the year 1884, and worked as bookkeeper two years. At the end of that time he was for one year connected with a wholesale grocery business at Allegheny, after which he returned to the home farm in Buffalo Township and farmed for three years. He then engaged in the mercantile business in Sarver, and continued with uninterrupted success for eleven years, when he sold out and returned to the old farm. He followed farming two years, and in the meantime made the canvass for county treasurer. He next went to New Kensington, where he was in business three years, then returned to Sarver, where he purchased the property on which he is now located. He has an up-to-date store, with a comprehensive line of dry goods, groceries and hardware, and the thousand and one things for which there is a demand in a small village. He is widely known through this section, and enjoys the liberal patronage of the people. He has a large and commodious two-story residence on Main Street, which is neat and attractive in appearance.

February 1, 1887, he was united in marriage with Miss Mary Agnes Weber, a daughter of John and Maria (Markle) Weber, of Penn Township. They became parents of the following children: Lillian, who graduated from New Kensington High School with the class of 1906, and is now ticket agent at Sarver; Gladys; John Butler; and David Weber. Fraternally, Mr. Powell is a member of Lodge No. 401, Jr. O. U. A. M.; and Darling Council No. 888, Royal Arcanum. He was one of the charter members of the latter, which is at present the banner council of Western Pennsylvania, and one of the strongest in the entire state. Religiously, he is a member of Fisk Chapel M. E. Church at Leasureville, of which he is a steward.

G. W. KAYLOR, one of Fairview Township's substantial citizens, residing on his farm of 165 acres of valuable land, favorably situated but three and one-half miles east of Chicora, carries on threshing in season, and also operates a saw-mill in addition to cultivating his large farm. He was born on this farm, July 5, 1863, and is a son of John and Susana (Pontious) Kaylor.

The father of Mr. Kaylor was born in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, but married and spent the larger part of his life in Butler County, where he died when aged eighty-two years. His family consisted of nine children, namely: Gabriel W., J. G., John M., Lewis J., Hannah M., Carolina E., Phoebe A., Emma D. and Mary.

Gabriel W. Kaylor has devoted himself entirely to agricultural pursuits and lumbering and has resided all his life in Fairview Township with the exception of one year which he spent in Clearfield County, Pennsylvania. He obtained a public school education in his boyhood, but has been actively engaged in business ever since he attained manhood. His farm is numbered with the best ones in the township, giving excellent crops, at the same time proving rich in oil, there being three producing wells on the place. Mr. Kaylor is an energetic, practical man and has met with considerable success in conducting his several enterprises.

In 1893, Mr. Kaylor was married to Miss Edna E. Linaberger, who is a daughter of John Linaberger, of Armstrong County, and they have three children: Russell L., born February 9, 1894; Clifford R., born July 12, 1895, and Thomas G., born August 6, 1897. Mr. Kaylor takes no very active interest in politics, but he is always ready to do a good citizen's duty when the welfare of his community is at stake.

MANUEL A. KORONA, engineer at the Nellie Coal Mine, at Argentine, in Washington Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, has always lived in this community. He was born in Washington Township, July 14, 1887, and is a son of Louis L. and Elizabeth (Wade) Korona.

Louis L. Korona was a well known resident of Washington Township, where he resided until his death in 1897. He married Elizabeth Wade, whose father, Isaac Wade, was a soldier and lost his life in battle. The following children were born of their union: Manuel A.; Mary; Elizabeth, deceased; Annie; Louisa; and Louis.

Mannel A. Korona received his educational training in School No. 9, at Argentine, and immediately thereafter entered the employ of the Nellie Coal Mining Company, with which he has since continued. He has been engineer at their plant for the past two years and is one of their most trusted employees. He was placed upon his own resources at an early age, and the success he has attained has been due to his own efforts solely. He is a Republican in politics, and takes an earnest interest in the affairs of the community. Religiously, he is a member of the United Presbyterian Church at North Hope.

WILLIAM J. BARTLEY, a veteran of the Civil War and a prosperous farmer of Buffalo Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is the owner of a valuable tract of seventy-two acres. He was born in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, January 10, 1840, and is a son of Thomas and Mary (Dick) Bartley, and a grandson of Thomas Bartley, Sr.

Thomas Bartley, Sr., was born and reared in County Antrim, Ireland, and there learned the trade of weaver in the town of Milletroy, where he lived. He came to the United States at an early date and became an extensive landowner. He lived in Penn Township, Butler County.

Thomas Bartley, Jr., was born on the old Bartley homestead in Penn Township, which is still in the family name. He was married to Mary Dick, and the following children were born to them, all of whom are now living: William J., subject of this record; Isabella; Thomas A.; Joseph; Margaret; and Mary L. They all reside in this section of Pennsylvania.

William J. Bartley began his business career by working in a brick yard with his father, and in the meantime attended the public schools. His educational training was continued in Oakland Township, where his father had purchased some 250 acres of land and whither his family had moved. In September, 1864, he enlisted as a private in Company K, 5th Reg., Pa. Art., at Butler, and during the remainder of the war served in the Army of the Potomac, serving in all of the engagements fought. After the war's close he returned to Butler County, and resumed farming operations. He has followed general farming, and his property in Buffalo Township is one of the best improved in that vicinity. He has taken an earnest and active interest in the affairs and development of the township, especially in matters pertaining to the schools. He served on the school board for a period of twenty years with marked efficiency, and would probably be serving yet had he not resigned.

In 1866 Mr. Bartley was united in marriage with Miss Emeline Millinger of Oakland Township, a daughter of Lewis S. and Sarah (Boyer) Millinger. Her father, now deceased, was a prosperous farmer of that township, and her mother is now living at the advanced age of eighty-five years. The following children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Bartley: Harry M., who married Miss Nora Williams; William D., who married Miss Lulu Bierley; James L., who now manages the home farm; and Zetta V., a graduate of Slippery Rock Normal School. Religiously, they are members of the United Presbyterian church in Freeport. Mr. Bartley is a member of James Harvey Post No. 514, G. A. R., in Clinton Township, of which he was commander for a number of years.

FRANK TOTTEN, an oil producer and well known citizen of Petrolia, Butler County, Penna., has been a resident of this borough for the past sixteen years, and is the owner of considerable oil and town property. He was born in New York State, December 28, 1869, and is a son of Eber and Rebecca J. (Clapsaddle) Totten.

Eber Totten, now deceased, was an oil producer and a successful business man. He died at the age of seventy-five years, and his wife at the age of fifty-five years. They were parents of the following children: John, deceased; Burless, deceased; Frank; Buelah; Burrell; Emma, deceased; and Benjamin.

Frank Totten was about three months old when his parents moved from New York State to Oil Creek, Pennsylvania, where the father engaged in the oil business. He was about fourteen years old when he came to Butler County, which has been the seat of his entire business activity. He has always been identified with the oil industry and is the owner of valuable properties. His home in Petrolia is one of the finest in the borough.

Mr. Totten was married on June 17, 1896, to Miss Mary Sophia Milburger, a daughter of John Milburger, their marriage occurring at Petrolia. Her father is deceased, and her mother is living at the age of seventy-eight years. Religiously, they are members of the Methodist church. In fraternal affiliation, the subject of this sketch is a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and Knights of the Maccabees at Petrolia, and the Masonic Lodge at Parker.

CALEB B. McFARLIN, JR., is weighmaster at the mines of the Nellie Coal Mining Company, at Argentine, Washington Township, in Butler County, Penna. He was born at Salem, Ohio, and is a son of Harmon and Alice (Whaley) McFarlin, and a grandson of Samuel and Mary (Kirk) McFarlin of Mercer County, Pennsylvania.

Harmon McFarlin was the youngest of the following children born to his parents: Caleb B., superintendent of the Nellie Coal Mining Company at Argentine; and Harmon. The latter was united in marriage to Miss Alice Whaley, a daughter of Samuel Whaley of Mercer County, and to them were born five children—Harry, Caleb J. Jr., Jennie, May and Nellie.

Caleb B. McFarlin, Jr., attended the public schools at Mansfield, Ohio, and later the schools at Annisville, Butler County, Pennsylvania, whither his father had moved. His first work was with the United States Telephone Company of Ohio, which position he left to accept that of weighmaster with the Nellie Coal Company. He is a man of good business ability, and is highly regarded by his associates and friends throughout this community. He is a member of the Knights of Pythias of Annandale. He is a Republican in politics, whilst religiously he attends the Free Methodist Episcopal Church at Argentine.

MARTIN SAUTER is a prosperous farmer of Buffalo Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and owns a farm of 123 acres of fine land located about a quarter of a mile south of Sarver on the east side of the Freeport Pike. He was born in Germany November 11, 1838, and is a son of Joseph and Mary (Schree) Sauter, and a grandson of Michael Sauter. His father engaged in farming in that country, where he lived all his life.

rior education in the public schools of Germany, learned the trade of a shoemaker and was thus employed there until 1866. He then came to the United States, just after the close of the Civil War, and for a period of fifteen years engaged at the shoemaking trade in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania. He then purchased his present farm in Buffalo Township, Butler County, where he has since continued with uninterrupted success.

May 30, 1870, Mr. Sauter was united in marriage with Miss Alberta Neibert, by whom he has the following children: Emil, deceased; Charles, a carpenter by trade, who was married to Emily Drane; Leonard, deceased; Emma, wife of Roy Kling-smith; Theodore, who at the present time is the active head on the home farm.—He is twenty-six years of age and a fine specimen of physical manhood, being an all-around athlete;—and Tillie, who is the youngest of the family. Religiously, they are devout members of the Catholic church. Mr. Sauter has a fine home of two stories, and has one of the best improved farms in his section of the county.

SAMUEL H. KAMERER, a prominent citizen of Fairview Township, resides on his fine farm of 125 acres, which is not only well adapted to agriculture, but is also rich in gas and oil. Mr. Kamerer was born in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, January 25, 1853, and is a son of Daniel L. and Anna Harriet (Daubenspeck) Kamerer.

The grandfather, Peter Kamerer, settled in Armstrong County in 1790, and there his son, Daniel L., was born in 1811. The latter, in 1853, removed, with his family, to Butler County and settled on the farm in Fairview Township which now belongs to his son, Samuel H. Daniel L. Kamerer and wife had thirteen children born to them, as follows: Peter, John, Margaret, Mary, Elizabeth, George D., William, Adam, Catherine, Lavina, Lewis L., Hamah and Samuel H. The father of this family died in 1896, and the mother in 1905, having reached her ninety-third year. They were well known and respected people.

Samuel H. Kamerer was two years old when his parents came to his present farm and this has remained his home ever since. In his boyhood he attended the county schools and since then has been interested in developing and improving his farm and in late years has also been engaged in oil production. At the present time he has five producing oil wells and two gas wells on his place.

In 1882 Mr. Kamerer was married at Muncey, Pennsylvania, to Miss Nina A. Henton, who is a daughter of the late Charles and Lydia Henton, former residents of Erie County, Pennsylvania, where the father died aged seventy-four years and the mother aged sixty years. Mrs. Kamerer is one of a family of nine children, namely: Jennie, deceased, Fannie, Tillie, Nellie, Lettie, Nina, William, and two that died in infancy.

Mr. and Mrs. Kamerer have three children—Ethel L., Obed G. and Edna B. Ethel L. was educated in the Slippery Rock State Normal School and the Irvin Academy for Young Ladies, at Mechanicsburg, Pennsylvania. She married Dr. S. J. Lackey, of Chicora, and they reside at Limestone, Clarion County, Pennsylvania, and have two children: Evelyn Romain and Geraldine Lucile. Obed G. Kamerer attended the State Normal School at Slippery Rock for two years and on June 16, 1908, was graduated from Duff's Business College at Pittsburg. Mr. Kamerer and family are members of the Lutheran Church at Mt. Pleasant.

Mr. Kamerer takes a prominent part in public affairs in his township and has frequently served in the local offices, for twelve years consenting to be a school director. He is a member of the Odd Fellows, belonging to both the subordinate lodge and the Encampment, is a member of the Maccabees lodge at Chicora, and has passed all the chairs in the lodge of Knights of Pythias. He is a man of wide acquaintance and much influence.

ALBERT WARREN ROBB, a well known and popular young citizen of Washington Township, Butler County, Penna., is fireman at the Nellie Coal Mine at Argentine. He was born in Parker Township, Butler County, October 7, 1880, and is a son of Madison C. and Bertha (Sims) Robb, and a grandson of John Robb.

John Robb, the grandfather, reared the following family of children: Frank of Oil City, Pennsylvania; Sarah, wife of F. Milford; Martha, who married George McMahan; and Madison C. The last named was married to Bertha Sims, and the following children were born to them: Albert Warren, Finley, who married Pearl Knox, Delphia, Clyde, Stella, who is the wife of Edward Sedwick, Irene, Mary, Floyd, Howard, and Roy.

Albert Warren Robb was reared to manhood in his native township, and there received a common school education, first attending the McMahan School. His first business employment was at dressing tools in the oil fields, which he continued until he became fireman at the mines of the Nellie Coal Company. He is an able and conscientious workman, and enjoys the esteem and confidence of his employers and fellow workmen. Mr. Robb is a Republican in politics. Religiously, he is a member of the Presbyterian church at New Salem.

JOHN L. M. HALSTEAD, M.D., a busy physician and surgeon of Sarversville, is a representative of one of the oldest families in Clinton Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, where he was born, in 1869. He is a son of John and Sarah A. (Hazlett) Halstead and a grandson of Henry Halstead.

It was Dr. Halstead's grandfather, Henry Halstead, who came from England and established the family now so well known to Clinton Township. He cleared the land on which the home of Dr. Halstead stands and he laid out the present town of Sarversville, which he named Whalley, in remembrance of his native village in England.

Dr. Halstead was reared on his father's farm in Clinton Township and started to school when he was but five years old. When aged nineteen, he entered the West Snubury Academy, after which he read medicine and attended medical college at Louisville, Kentucky, where he was graduated in 1898. After his return to Pennsylvania, he took the required examination before the State Board, and then entered into practice at Tarentum, where he continued for three years. Since then he has lived on the G. W. Painter homestead in Buffalo Township. Being the only physician in the extreme south end of the county, Dr. Halstead enjoys an unusually large practice. Many of the old families in that section have known him from childhood and many others have tested his medical skill within the past few years, and a markedly large number of his fellow citizens repose confidence in him professionally and respect him personally.

Dr. Halstead married Miss M. Helen Painter, who is a daughter of George W. and Mary (Buckley) Painter, substantial farming people of Clinton Township. Dr. Halstead was reared in the Presbyterian Church in which his parents were active for many years.

JAMES C. WIDGER, a representative citizen of Fairview Township, where he owns oil leases, has been identified with the oil industry during the entire course of his business life. He was born April 9, 1850, near New Brighton, Beaver County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of James and Sarah (Saddler) Widger.

The parents of Mr. Widger came to Western Pennsylvania from Philadelphia.

The father engaged in paper manufacturing, first at New Brighton and later at Pittsburg, and then moved to Oil City and went into the oil refinery business. He survived to the age of eighty-one years but his wife died when aged sixty-one. They had children as follows: Lafayette and John, both deceased; James C.; Hannah, deceased, was the wife of John Love; Eliza, married Mathias Cole; Phebe, deceased; Mary E., married D. S. Criswell, and three died in infancy.

James C. Widger was three years old when his parents moved to Pittsburg, where they lived until he was eight years old, when they located at Oil City. There he went to school through early boyhood but as soon as old enough, he found work to do for his father. He remained at Oil City until 1868 and then moved to Petrolia, Butler County. He grew up in the oil business and has had much experience in every phase of it.

On April 14, 1885, Mr. Widger was married to Miss Lida Fall, who was born in England and is the third member of her parents' family of six children, she, with two older brothers, Henry and William, having been born before the family left England, and Anna, Catherine and John, after the family settled at Pittsburg. Mr. and Mrs. Widger have one son, Howard, who was born February 10, 1895. Mr. Widger is a member of the Royal Arcanum lodge at Petrolia, and the Masonic lodge at Chicora.

O. P. BERRY, founder and for some years proprietor of the Berry Machine Company at Petrolia, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is the inventor of the Berry Pump Piston or Plunger Valve, which is coming into more general use in sand wells every day. It is an article which has been tried in service for some years and not found wanting, and its durability and efficiency enables it to outstrip its competitors.

O. P. BERRY

MRS. MELINA B. BERRY

O. P. Berry was born in Elk County, Pennsylvania, July 8, 1845, and is a son of John and Elizabeth (Silvers) Berry. His father was born near Brady's Bend in 1810, and died at the age of forty-nine years. His mother was born in Butler County in 1821. There were the following children born of their marriage: David, John, O. P., Wakefield, George A., Thomas M., Miles H. and Catherine. The mother of this family formed a second marital union with Samuel Jordan, and they had two children, Abner M. and Annie E.

O. P. Berry lived in Elk County until his seventh year when his parents moved to Clarion County, his father dying at Monterey. He was reared in that county and there learned the trade of a machinist; for a period of nine years he traveled about for H. T. Blaney, setting up machinery. In 1896 he established what has since been known as the Berry Machine Company, which he operated with much success for some years and then turned it over to his sons. He obtained a patent from the government on his invention. He is a member of the order of American Mechanics.

Mr. Berry is a veteran of the Civil War, having enlisted in 1861 as a private in Company F, Sixty-seventh Regiment of Pennsylvania, and served until January 4, 1865, when they were discharged at Washington, D. C. The regiment was in many important engagements and all its members were taken prisoners in the Shenandoah, the regiment being badly demoralized. He is a member of the Grand Army of the Republic. He has always taken a deep interest in public affairs, and has served the village as constable and as coun-cilmán.

September 3, 1872, Mr. Berry was married to Miss Melinda J. Bowser, a daughter of Peter and Jane Bowser. Her father died May 14, 1879, and her mother lived to reach the age of seventy-eight years. They were parents of the following children: Alfred, Lewis, Logan, Andrew J., James M., Ross T., Harry M., Melanethon G., Adeline, Melinda J. and Amelia.

Mr. and Mrs. Berry also became parents of eleven children: Lewis D., John P., George I., Harry H., Pryor, Roy, Elizabeth J., Alma V., Adeline, Arminia L. and Lotta G. Lewis D., who lives at Petrolia, married Clara Stoughton and has two children, Ruth and Pauline. John P. Berry of Petrolia, married Allie Given and they have three children—Chester, Mary M. and Iva. Elizabeth J. Married Demer Hemphill of Fairview Township, and they have a son, Roy. Alma V. married William Neal of Petrolia and they have two children, Elizabeth and Pryor. Arminia married James W. Espey and has Laurine, Helen, and Walter R. Ada Berry married Geo. L. Gilchrist and has one son, Lawrence.

HARVEY A. SLOAN, a well known citizen and business man of Eau Claire, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is engaged in the jewelry business and is also efficiently discharging the duties of postmaster of that village. He was born in Emlenton, Venango County, Pennsylvania, November 12, 1847, and is a son of John and Sarah (Allabaugh) Sloan.

Samuel C. Sloan, grandfather of the subject of this sketch, was united in marriage with Mary Foster, a native of Ireland, and they had two sons, Samuel and John. Samuel married Elizabeth Conn and had the following children—Mary Jane, Caroline, Nancy Ellen, Margaret and Perry. John married Sarah Allabaugh, daughter of Henry Allabaugh of Berks County, Pennsylvania, and they became parents of the following: Harvey A., whose name heads this record; Sarah Elizabeth, wife of John Sowash, by whom she has the following children—Elmer, Frances, Emma, George, Jackson, and Harry; Emma, who married Stewart Eakins of Venango Township and has four children—Plummer, Frank, Charles and Harry; William, who is married and lives in California; Samuel, who married Priscilla Eisenbaugh; and Melvin, who is deceased.

Harvey A. Sloan received his educational training in the public schools of Emmenton, and in Cherry Valley, whither his parents had moved. He early in life learned the trade of a jeweler and watch repairer, which he has followed throughout his active business career, although for a period of twenty years he also engaged in barbering. He owns the home in which he lives in Eau Claire and is a prosperous citizen. For more than two years he has discharged the duties of postmaster, and has gained the good will and approval of the citizens. He is a Republican in politics, and for a period of six years served as school director in West Sunbury, and a like period in Clintonville. He also served three years as councilman at Clintonville, and six years as constable.

Mr. Sloan was united in marriage with Miss Amelia C. Delamater, a daughter of Leonard Delamater, and to them were born the following: Marshall, who resides in Nebraska; Harry L., an instructor in the public schools; Edith, who was graduated from Eau Claire Academy with the class of 1908; Esther; Homer, deceased; and Hazel. Religiously, the family belongs to the United Presbyterian Church of Eau Claire, and Mr. Sloan has been a church member for more than forty years. Miss Edith Sloan is church organist and is also a teacher in the Sabbath School, being very active in church work.

SAMUEL FALKNER, one of Buffalo Township's most respected citizens, resides on his finely cultivated farm of seventy acres, which lies on the Bear Creek road about one mile east of Sarver. This is a part of the old Falkner homestead, and here Mr. Falkner was born November 16, 1865. His parents were John and Eva Falkner.

John Falkner and his brother Lawrence were born in Germany and both came to America young, leaving their parents in the old country. Lawrence Falkner settled at Cleveland, Ohio, where he reared a large family and died about 1894. John Falkner came to Butler County and secured the present farm in Buffalo Township and here worked hard to improve his property and develop the capacity of the soil. This farm has been cultivated for about a half century. John Falkner had seven children: John W., Louis H., William, Samuel, Matthew, Lizzie and Anna (deceased).

Samuel Falkner obtained his education in the public schools. His home has always been on his present farm and since it has come into his possession he has continued the work his father commenced. The land is fertile and well watered, and lies on both sides of the Bear Creek road. Mr. Falkner grows the usual grains of this climate and raises stock for his own use and does dairying for domestic purposes. On December 25, 1888, he was married to Lizzie Wagner, who is a daughter of Daniel Wagner, who formerly lived at Pittsburg. Mr. and Mrs. Falkner have had ten children, namely: Eva, Albert, Ida, Helen, Bessie, Frederick, Samuel, Harold, Berenice and Lewis, all of whom survive except the youngest. Mr. and Mrs. Falkner are valued members of the Lutheran Church, in which he was an elder at one time. They are estimable, hospitable people who live in pleasant accord with their neighbors and have a wide circle of friends.

ISAAC KAYLOR, owner and proprietor of 119 acres of good farming land in Fairview Township, was born on his present farm, January 5, 1843, son of Peter and Anna (Silvis) Kaylor. His paternal grandfather, Leonard Kaylor, was one of the early settlers of this township. Leonard Kaylor, with his son Peter, father of the subject of this sketch, cleared this farm, which when they took hold of it, was all brush and woods.

Peter Kaylor was born in Westmoreland County, Penna. Both he and his father, Leonard, served in the War of 1812-15. Peter Kaylor died in 1861, at the age of sixty-six years, and his wife Anna died at the same age in 1874, she being about thirteen years younger than her husband. They were the parents of eight children, who were as follows: Jacob, born March 24, 1825; Elizabeth, born February 3, 1827; Polly, born September 28, 1829; Anna, born March 10, 1832; Christina, born March 8, 1834; Sarah, born February 20, 1838; Sophia, born March 22, 1840, and Isaac, born January 5, 1843.

Isaac Kaylor has always resided on his present farm. In boyhood he attended the old log schoolhouse on the McLaughlin farm and afterward a frame school that was erected on the William McLaughlin farm. He was brought up to agriculture and has always been a farmer. When he reached his majority the Civil War was raging, and, resolved to do his part for the preservation of the Union, he enlisted for three years, at Butler, in Company H, 102d Pennsylvania Infantry, with which he took part in the battles of the Wilderness, siege of Petersburg, Sailors' Creek, and in the pursuit of Lee to Appomattox, being present at the surrender of the main Confederate army under that general, May 5, 1865. He was wounded in the battle of the Wilderness by a gun shot in the left cheek, which shattered the jaw bone, cut the tongue and affected the left eye. He was in the hospital at Washington for about two weeks and in the Satterlee Hospital at Philadelphia until near the end of the year (1864), when he was furloughed for twenty days, rejoining his command at the siege of Petersburg. He was honorably discharged June 28, 1865, near Washington, D. C., and returning home resumed farming and has resided at his present location ever since.

Mr. Kaylor was married, January 17, 1867, at the home of his bride, to Priscilla Barnhart, a daughter of Michael and Rachel (Hemphill) Barnhart, of Donegal Township, Butler County, Penna. Mrs. Kaylor was one of six brothers and sisters, namely: Kathryn, Peter A., Anna M., Adam, Ruben, and Priscilla. Her father died November 16, 1895, at the age of eighty-six years, and her mother March 17, 1887, at the age of eighty.

Mr. and Mrs. Kaylor's family number two children, both daughters—Rachel E. and Anna E. The former married Joe Kaylor and resides in Armstrong County, this State. She has had four children—Edna A. (deceased), Priscilla J., Mary L., and Isaac L. Anna Kaylor married J. B. Jordan and resides in Butler County. She has two children—Herbert I. and Richard S. J.

Mr. Kaylor is a member of Campbell Post, G. A. R., of Petrolia. He has served the township acceptably as judge of election and as school director as well as in other minor offices. He and his family are members of the Lutheran Church of Mt. Pleasant.

JOHN FULTON GALLAWAY, a well known citizen and substantial business man of Hilliard, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is proprietor of the hotel at that village and has a well established business. He was born in Mercer County, Pennsylvania, April 8, 1849, and is a son of Thomas and Sarah (Ghost) Galloway, and a grandson of William Galloway.

Thomas Galloway was born in Ireland and was one of the following children born to his parents: William; John; Thomas; Isaac, who married Eliza Kohler, daughter of John Kohler of Mercer County; and Eliza, deceased. Thomas came to the United States at the age of seventeen years and landed at New York City with just seventy-five cents in his pocket. He received employment at blasting rock in the construction of the Erie Canal, then worked for a distiller in New York State. He was an industrious man, and of a frugal and saving disposition, and while thus employed accumulated enough money to purchase a farm of 150 acres in Mercer County, Pennsylvania. It was a heavily timbered tract, but little of the land having been cleared. He cleared the farm and lived upon it for a time, then purchased the Ross tract of land, consisting of 300 acres, on which he engaged in stock raising on an extensive scale. He at the same time carried on a general store at Mechanicsville, in Venango County. He married there to Sarah Ghost, a daughter of Philip Ghost, of Venango County, and they reared the following children: Craft, who married Mary Ellen Atwell, a daughter of John Atwell of Mercer County, and has three children,—Thomas, Clyde and Elizabeth; Isaac, who married Mary Jane Bonner, a daughter of Archie Bonner of Venango County, by whom he has one son and two daughters,—John, Elizabeth and Susan; John F., whose name heads this sketch; Ann Elizabeth, deceased; Mary, deceased; Lytle, deceased; and Martha, deceased.

John Fulton Gallaway attended school in Venango County, after which he engaged in farming and clerked in the store conducted by his father. He purchased eighty-five acres of land one-half mile south of Westley P. O. He went from there to Callery Junction during the oil excitement and teamed, having three teams. These he traded for a store and stock of merchandise at Barkeyville, Venango County, paying the difference in value in cash. He went from there to Mechanicsville, where he rented the Woods property for one year, then purchased that farm. He later traded that farm for sixty-five acres of land located about two miles north of Harrisville, in Butler County, and carried on general farming until the marriage of his son, Walter, when he left the farm in the latter's charge. He then returned to Mechanicsville, and after a time sold his property to Robert B. Eakin and moved to Richland Township, Butler County, where he purchased fifty acres of coal land. He later came to Hilliard and in competition with others obtained the contract for the Star Mail Route from Hilliard to Petrolia. When the rural free delivery was established he was given Route No. 52, over which he carried the mail for two years and three months. He then purchased the hotel at Hilliard, which he has since conducted with uninterrupted success.

Mr. Gallaway was united in marriage with Miss Caroline Hoffman, daughter of Walter Hoffman of Venango County, and they have four children: Thomas, who married Emma Syrena, daughter of Finley Syrena, and has three children—Ralph, Raymond and Leonard; Walter, who married Blanche Syrena, a daughter of John Syrena; Mary, who married John A. Blair, son of A. N. Blair, and has three children—Marie, John Freeman and Edna; and Ida, who married J. S. Kohlmyre, son of Marion Kohlmyre of Butler County, and has one child, Althica. Religiously, they are members of the M. E. Church. Politically, Mr. Gallaway is a Prohibitionist.

CHESTER A. EKAS, a progressive and enterprising young farmer of Buffalo Township, residing on his excellent farm of fifty acres, which is situated on the Butler Road, about a quarter of a mile from Ekastown, was born on the old Ekas homestead, in Butler County, Pennsylvania, May 28, 1887. His parents are Adam and Mary Jane (Kirk) Ekas, and he is a grandson of John Ekas.

John Ekas, the grandfather, was born in Germany and when he came to Buffalo Township, Butler County, he found himself one of the earliest settlers. The village that subsequently came into being near his farm was named in his honor.

Adam Ekas, father of Chester A., succeeded his father and has been engaged in farming through the whole of his mature life. His children were Agnes, James, Clementine and Chester A.

Chester A. Ekas attended the schools near his father's farm, on which he has always resided. He was trained to agricultural pursuits in the most practical way, and, although he is one of the youngest independent farmers of the county, he is one of the most successful. His farm is a portion of the old Ekas homestead and its present owner takes a deep interest in its development and improvement. On February 12, 1908, he was married to Miss Carrie Ohl, who is a daughter of George E. and Mary (Higgins) Ohl. Mr. Ohl is a successful farmer of Butler County. His parents were Henry and Johanna (Kramer) Ohl. Grandfather Ohl came from Germany to America very many years ago and was an early settler in Butler County, where he has many descendants. The above marriage united two prominent families. Mr. and Mrs. Ekas are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. They are very popular in the pleasant social life of the community.

FURMAN STEWART, a successful farmer of Washington Township, who is carrying on operations on an excellent tract of 120 acres, was born on his present property in Washington Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, January 27, 1876, and is a son of William C. and Mary (Stanley) Stewart.

William M. Stewart, the grandfather of Furman, married Rebecca Jane McCall, who was a daughter of Samuel McCall, of Donegal Township, and they had the following children: Samuel M., died in young manhood; John, died when young; Nancy Jane, deceased; William C.; Anna Eliza, married Reuben Heckathorn, of Venango County; Wilson McCall married (first) Sarah Day, daughter of John Day, and (second) Mary Johnce, daughter of Hiram Johnce; and Louisa M., married Joseph Campbell, of Concord Township.

William C. Stewart was married to Mary Stanley, who was a daughter of Andrew Stanley, of Lawrence County. Mr. Stanley married Elizabeth Heckathorn, daughter of John Heckathorn, a cabinet-maker, and they had the following children: John, married Barbara C. Fox, daughter of Michael Fox; Sarah, married Peter Young, of Slippery Rock Township, Lawrence County; Elizabeth, married Mark Mencer, of Indiana County; Ann, married Milton L. McCormick, of Slippery Rock Township; Mary; Jane, who married George Smith of Slippery Rock Township, died in Lawrence County, Pennsylvania; Andrew, married Isabelle Wood, daughter of Gideon Wood of Lawrence County; Rachel; and Cephas, who married Elizabeth Hunt, daughter of James Hunt of Lawrence County. The children born to William C. and Mary (Stanley) Stewart were: Elizabeth Jane, residing on the homestead; William A., married Cora A. McCoy, daughter of Lewis McCoy, of Grove City, Mercer County; Lena, married A. M. Christy, of Washington Township; Mary Eva, married L. M. Dickey, of Butler; John S., married Lydia Ross, daughter of John Ross of Cherry Township, and resides at Butler; and Furman. Both William C. Stewart and Andrew Stanley offered their services in their country's defense during the Civil War, but the former was refused on account of defective teeth after having gone as far as Pittsburg. Mr. Stanley served in the struggle, however, and was never wounded, although he had a narrow escape from injury at Pittsburg Landing, his cap being shot from his head while he was eating breakfast.

Furman Stewart first attended the common schools of his native vicinity, and later took a course at an academy, after leaving which he engaged in agricultural pursuits, in which he has been engaged ever since. He now owns a fine farm of 120 acres in Washington Township, on which he has erected a handsome residence, his father having built all of the other farm buildings. Although he has never tested for oil on his farm, there are believed to be three or four wells on the property, and it is considered one of the valuable tracts of farming land in Washington Township.

Mr. Stewart was married to Sarah Hummel, who died January 25, 1909. She was a daughter of Jeremiah Hummel of Cherry Township. Of this union there were born seven children, as follows: Ethel, Cora, Lois and Paul, who are students in the public schools; and Charles, Mary and William John, residing at home. In his political views, Mr. Stewart is a Republican. He attends the Presbyterian Church at Pleasant Valley.

REUBEN FRANKLIN RUCH, who has a comfortable home and six acres of land on the road between Petrolia and Karns City, has been a resident of Fairview Township, Butler County, Penna., since May, 1872. He followed oil well drilling and contracting with good success. He was born in Lehigh County, Pennsylvania, May 14, 1844, and is a son of Charles and Sarah (Burkhalter) Ruch.

The Ruch family is an old and prominent one of Lehigh County. General Peter Ruch, grandfather of the subject of this sketch, was a soldier in the War of 1812, and afterward received his title of general in the State Militia. He was born in Lehigh County, February 28, 1779, and was a son of Lawrence Ruch, a soldier of the Revolutionary War, who was born on November 14, 1744. The father of Lawrence Ruch was George Ruch, who came to the United States from Alsace, Germany, and was buried in Lehigh County, where he died at the remarkable age of one hundred and five years.

Charles Ruch, father of our subject, was born in Lehigh County, August 23, 1803, and there passed a long and useful life. He was married to Sarah Burkhalter, whose great-grandfather, John Peter Burkhalter, was a soldier in the American Army during the Revolutionary War. She is descended from one Ulrich Burkhalter, who came to this country on the "Samuel of Sweden," landing on August 11, 1732. He had a son, Peter, and a daughter, Elizabeth Barbara, the latter intermarrying with John Jacob Mickley. Charles and Sarah (Burkhalter) Ruch became parents of the following children: Henry, deceased; Allen P., who was a soldier in the Union Army during the Rebellion; Stephen, deceased, who was a physician; Solomon; Reuben Franklin; Edwin L., whose recent death at Karns City resulted from an accident; Susan, deceased; and Sarah, who married John J. Reel and lives at Scranton.

Reuben F. Ruch lived in Lehigh County until he was about twenty-one years of age, and there received his educational training and learned the trade of a shoemaker. With the Civil War in full swing, he was consumed by the fighting spirit and patriotism inherited from his ancestors, and on September 22, 1862, enlisted for nine months as a member of Company F, 153rd Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, at Easton, Northampton County, Pennsylvania. He served ten months, participating in two of the most important engagements of the war, Chambersville and Gettysburg. In the latter was wounded by a shot in the knee and was confined in the hospital at Harrisburg for one month. He was then taken in a carriage by his captain to Camp Curtin, where he was mustered out July 24, 1863. He returned to his home and spent six months in convalescing. He then taught school from November, 1864, to 1865, in which year he went to Oil City, arriving there on the night of the assassination of President Lincoln. He worked in the oil fields there at drilling and contracting, and then in 1872 moved to Petrolia, Butler County, during the oil excitement. Here he continued the business of drilling and contracting and met with great success. In March, 1887, he purchased his present place of Jesse L. Cole and has since resided here.

September 25, 1870, Mr. Ruch was joined in marriage with Miss Sarah Gross, a daughter of Jesse Gross, and she died March 21, 1902. They adopted a daughter, Miss Zella, who keeps house for Mr. Ruch. Fraternally, he is a member of Karns City Lodge, No. 931, I. O. O. F.; Karns City Dura, No. 498, K. P. of Petrolia; and Campbell Post, G. A. R. He has been representative to the Grand Lodge of each of these orders and passed through the various chairs. He is a Democrat in politics, and is at the present roadmaster.

WILLIAM WAHL, owner and proprietor of the Waldorf Hotel of Evans City, Pennsylvania, comes of one of the prominent old pioneer families of that section of Butler County. He was born on his father's farm in Forward Township, February 15, 1852, and is a son of Martin, Jr., and Christina (Kriess) Wahl.

Martin Wahl, Sr., grandfather of the subject of this sketch, with his wife, Lena, and their family emigrated from Alsace-Lorraine, France, about 1833, and took up their residence in Jackson Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania. He became the owner of a small farm there and lived to reach the advanced age of ninety-four years. He and his wife had three children, as follows: Martin; Lena (Burr); and Mrs. Jacob Hite. All are now deceased.

Martin Wahl, Jr., was born in Alsace-Lorraine, France, in 1823, and was ten years of age when he accompanied his parents to Butler County. He immediately began work by caring for Mr. Zigler's stock at Harmony, and spent the remainder of his life in Butler County. He was a man of great energy and industry and accumulated a large property. His old home farm was the site of the town of Wahlville, which bears his name, and in later years he purchased the John Stewart farm in Evans City, which he laid out and sold in lots. He entered actively into the business life of Evans City, aiding materially in its development and growth, and was one of the town's most substantial citizens. His death occurred in 1905. His first marriage was with a Miss Hultery, by whom he had a son, Martin, deceased. His second union was with Miss Christina Kriess, whose death occurred in 1896. They were parents of twelve children, as follows: Christina, wife of Henry Basnecker; William; Henry; Andrew; Katherine, wife of Henry Mickley; Lena, wife of John Marburger; Matilda, wife of W. C. Laderer; Asmus; George; Anna, wife of Adam Dambach; and two who died in infancy.

William Wahl was reared on his father's farm and received a public school education. At the age of fifteen years he entered the grist mill at Evans City, conducted by his father in partnership with Robert Ash, and he continued at that work for eight years. About the year 1878, he opened a hotel at Middle Lancaster and received a license from Judge McJunkin, which he had granted him nine times and transferred once. He moved to Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, where he conducted a hotel for some time and also engaged in the oil business. He continued there some thirteen years, then moved to Evans City in 1899 and opened a hotel, in which business he has continued with uninterrupted success since. In 1904 he moved to his present location at the corner of Pittsburg and Washington Streets, a property owned by him. The Waldorf Hotel contains thirty rooms, equipped and furnished in up-to-date style, and enjoys a liberal patronage at the hands of the traveling public. Mr. Wahl is also the owner of considerable property in the town and is rated among the most substantial men of the place.

September 12, 1872, William Wahl was united in marriage with Miss Mary B. McKinney, a daughter of C. A. and Margaret D. McKinney, and they became parents of twelve children: Margaret and Christina, twins; Myrtle; Emma, deceased; William; Sarah; Edward; Bertha; Laura; Ida; Floyd; and Zelda. Politically, Mr. Wahl is a Democrat. In religious attachment, he and his wife are members of the Lutheran Church.

MATTHEW FALKNER, one of Buffalo Township's representative citizens, resides on his valuable farm of sixty-five acres, which is situated on the east side of the Bear Creek Road, about one mile from the village of Sarver, in Butler County, Pennsylvania, was born on this farm, September 23, 1868, and is a son of John and Eva (Strimstifer) Falkner.

The Falkner family is of German origin and John Falkner, father of Matthew, was the first of its members to come to America. He purchased the present homestead about 1858, from John Kreitzer. The land at that time was uncleared and during his life-time he developed it into a good farm. His children, seven in number, were named as follows: John W., Louis H., William L., Samuel, Matthew, Elizabeth and Annie, the latter of the daughters being deceased.

Matthew Falkner was reared on the farm on which he has spent all his life except during the time he was working as a blacksmith, at Sarver Station. He obtained his education in the public schools of Buffalo Township. He carries on general farming, in which he takes much interest. He has improved the property very considerably since it came into his possession and his residence and farm buildings indicate a large degree of prosperity.

On April 18, 1892, Mr. Falkner was married to Miss Mary Schweizer, who is a daughter of Martin and Mary (Nanstiel) Schweizer, who are prominent farming people of Butler County. Mrs. Falkner has a twin brother, Martin Schweizer. Mr. and Mrs. Falkner have seven children, namely: William Martin, Elmer L., Lillian Mary, Nellie P., Matthew J., Merl Jessie, and Elizabeth. Mr. Falkner and family belong to the Lutheran Church, in which he formerly was an elder. He takes no active part in politics, but is a good citizen, who pays his taxes, gives support to school and church and deals honestly with his fellow men.

SAMUEL PLUMMER CHRISTIE, a successful farmer and leading citizen of Washington Township, residing on his valuable farm of ninety-eight acres, was born June 27, 1863, in Washington Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Thomas T. and Catherine T. Christie.

The father of Mr. Christie was married twice and the children born to his first union were: Oscar L., who married Mira Loudon, a daughter of Captain Loudon, of West Sunbury; Cornelia, who married J. B. Campbell, of Washington Township; Eber L., who married Bessie McNamee, a native of New Jersey; Emma, who married Dr. J. A. Brison, of Creekside, Indiana; Effie, who married Walter Christley, of Denver, Colorado; and Samuel Plummer, of Washington Township. The second marriage of Thomas T. Christie was to Lydia Borland, of Butler, and they had three children: Thomas B., deceased; Victor, a resident of San Francisco; and William.

Samuel Plummer Christie has spent his life in Washington Township and has been engaged in farming and stock-raising for many years. His farm of ninety-eight acres is a part of the old homestead, which originally contained 600 acres. His land is known to be rich in coal and probably also in oil. He carries on mixed farming and raises fine horses. Each year he has from three to eight colts, thorough-bred, and has made this a paying industry. His cattle are of registered stock and his herds show, in their sleek appearance and graceful shapes, that they have come from no common stock. Mr. Christie has made all the improvements on his place and has put up his present substantial buildings. He has what is probably the finest spring-house in the township, built of stone and cement.

Mr. Christie married Miss Jessie M. Bell, who is a daughter of Alexander Bell, of Washington Township, and they have five children, namely: Claire, residing at home, assisting her mother; Francis, Lee and Katherine, bright students in the public school; and Mildred, who is yet an infant. Mr. and Mrs. Christie attend the Presbyterian Church in Washington Township which is situated at North Hope. He is a Republican in politics and takes a hearty interest in public affairs, particularly in his own neighborhood, where he is serving as a school director. He is a stockholder and one of the board of directors of the North Washington Fair Association and each year has many exhibits to send from his own farm. For a number of years he has been an active member of Naomi Lodge No. 111, Odd Fellows, at Hilliards, and has served in all its official positions.

W. H. DAUGHERTY, a prominent citizen of Petrolia, Butler County, Penna., was the founder of the large refinery at that place which is operated under the name and style of W. H. Daugherty & Sons' Refining Company. The plant was established by him in 1880, and in 1901 his two sons were taken into partnership. In 1904 the business was incorporated under the name of W. H. Daugherty & Sons, in the State of Delaware, and the following were chosen as its officers: Dr. F. Sonneborn, president; Sigmund B. Sonneborn, treasurer; and Carl R. Daugherty, vice-president and manager. It is one of the largest independent refineries in the country, and is the largest producer of petroleum jelly. It is affiliated with the firm of L. Sonneborn & Sons, of New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore in this country, and with Oelwerke Stern-Sonneborn, Aktien Gesellschaft, of Hamburg, Paris, London, Genoa, Koln and Moscow, with some sixty European branches. The local output is 1,500 tons per annum, and they have their own pipe line service, transporting the crude oil from the wells to the refinery. They employ about fifteen men at the plant.

W. H. Daugherty was one of the earliest refiners in the country and is probably the oldest now living. He began in Titusville, Pennsylvania, in 1861, where he was in business with Burtis Brothers and others until 1868. He then became a producer and as early as 1873 began operating at Petrolia although it was not until 1876 that he took up his residence in that village. In connection with his two sons he acquired extensive oil producing properties, which are now carried under the firm name of W. H., M. G. and C. R. Daugherty and are under the management of Carl R. Daugherty.

W. H. Daugherty was born in Stark County, Ohio, near the city of Alliance, July 3, 1835, and lived there until eleven years of age when he moved with his parents to Meadville, Pennsylvania. He was married in 1857 to Miss Jane Nesbit, a daughter of John Nesbit of Erie County, Pennsylvania, and three children were born to them: H. Ward, who married Mary G. Davis, by whom he had four children—Eugene, deceased, Roy, Ward and Frances; Cora, who is the wife of A. W. Frey of Washington, Pennsylvania, and has three children—William, Carl and Jane; and Carl R., who on June 24, 1908, was united in marriage with Miss Netta Black, a daughter of R. M. Black of Butler County. H. Ward Daugherty died at the age of thirty-seven years just as he was entering the prime of life. The subject of this sketch is a member of the Masonic Lodge at Titusville, and the Knights of the Maccabees at Petrolia. His son, Carl R., is a member of the Modern Woodmen and the Knights of the Maccabees. Religiously, the family is Presbyterian.

HON. JOHN MORGAN GREER, head of the well known law firm of John M. Greer & Sons, of Butler, is a citizen who has gained well earned recognition, not only as a leader in the ranks of his profession, but also as one who has ably upheld the dignity and honor of the Bench, and has proved his ability as a legislator, serving for eight years as a member of the State Senate.

Mr. Greer was born in Jefferson Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, August 3, 1844. His parents were Thomas and Margaret Jane (Morgan) Greer, and his grandparents, on the paternal side, were Matthew and Isabella (Boise) Greer, who were natives of County Tyrone, Ireland.

Mr. Greer's literary training was commenced in the common schools and continued at Connoquenessing Academy, at Zelienople, and, as has been the case with so many men of mark in State and National history, the knowledge thus gained was the more firmly impressed upon his memory by his being required to impart it to others. During the winter of 1861-2 he taught school in Winfield Township and in 1863-4 in Jefferson Township. This was an eventful period of his life, for the Civil War was now raging and he was eager to perform his patriotic duty to his country. In July, 1862, he enlisted in Company D, One Hundred and Thirty-seventh Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers, with which he participated in the momentous battles of South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville, serving until the end of his term. In March, 1864, he reenlisted, entering Battery E, Second Pennsylvania Artillery, but as this regiment had more than its quota, a new regiment was organized by the War Department, and called the Second Provisional Artillery, in which Mr. Greer served as sergeant of Battery B, in Ledlie's Division, Ninth Army Corps, until the close of the war. With this battery he took part in the battles of the Wilderness, Spottsylvania, North Anna River, Cold Harbor and Petersburg, including the Mine Explosion, where he was wounded in the thigh by a mine ball, while in command of his company. He remained in the hospital until January, 1865, when he rejoined his battery in time to be present at the eventful surrender of General Lee. He was mustered out with his regiment in February, 1866.

On his return from the army, Mr. Greer resumed teaching, but in a short time turned his whole attention to the study of law in the office of Judge Charles McCandless. In September, 1867, he was admitted to the bar and at once opened a law office. His legal ability soon attracted attention and in the following year he was elected to the office of district attorney, which he filled for three years. In 1873 he formed a partnership with Judge McCandless, which continued for five years. His public life, in a wider sense, may be said to have begun in 1876, when he was elected on the Republican ticket, senator of the Forty-first District, composed of Butler and Armstrong Counties. In 1880 he was reelected and was a member of the Senate of Pennsylvania for eight years, during all of which period he served on the Judiciary Committee. He was the author of several important bills relating to judiciary matters, one of them providing for an appeal to the Supreme Court, in case of the refusal of the lower court to open a judgment entered on a power of attorney, on a note or bond. Another, equally important, was one providing that no deed, regular and absolute on its face, shall be treated as a mortgage, unless the defeasance is in writing, made at the time of the deed, and placed on record within sixty days. Another important bill introduced by Senator Greer was one providing that judgment by default, against one of several defendants, shall not bar a recovery against other defendants in the same suit.

In 1882, Senator Greer was honored by a nomination, on the first ballot for the office of Secretary of Internal Affairs, and, although his party suffered defeat that year, he led the ticket by a respectable majority. In 1884 he was nominated as one of two judicial candidates in the Seventeenth District, and failed of election by less than 200 votes, the people of Lawrence County supporting Judges Hazen and McMichael as a matter of local pride.

In 1887, Senator Greer formed a law partnership with Everett L. Ralston, which continued until 1893. Also in 1887, he was appointed by the Governor, inspector and examiner of Soldiers' Orphan Schools, which office he held for four years, when he resigned. On the death of Judge McMichael, in 1892, Mr. Greer was elected to succeed him, and in the following year, on the division by the Legislature of the Seventeenth District into two separate districts, Judge Greer became president judge of the Seventeenth District. In this position, the well balanced, judicial qualities of his mind were conspicuously manifested on every important occasion, and were enhanced by a courteous demeanor that rendered him very popular with the members of the bar, as well as with the general public. He has ever tempered justice with mercy, and no righteous cause has ever suffered at his hands, from a lack of wisdom of judgment or want of judicial fairness. Since his retirement from the Bench, which took place in 1903, he has been engaged in the practice of law in association with his two sons, John B. and Thomas H., under the style of John M. Greer & Sons, the firm being known as one of the strongest law firms in Butler County.

Judge Greer was married March 24, 1864, to Miss Julia S. Butler, who was born in Clarion County, Pennsylvania, and is a daughter of John B. and Harriet N. (Stebbins) Butler. To this marriage were born four children, namely: Hattie, who died in 1876, at the age of nine years; Thomas H. and John B., both of whom are associated with their father in the practice of law; and Robert B., who is a physician.

The religious affiliations of Judge Greer and his family are with the Methodist Episcopal Church. He has taken a hearty interest at all times in educational matters, having been one of those Butler County citizens who were instrumental in establishing Slippery Rock State Normal School, of which he has since been one of the State trustees. For six years he has also been one of the trustees of the State College. In many other public matters his counsel and encouragement have proved of value, and the people of Butler County are proud to denominate him one of their best and most representative citizens.

(CHARLES F. HOSFORD), residing at 450 North Main Street, Butler, came to the Pennsylvania oil fields in the early days of Titusville, Pleasantville, Pithole, and Tidiout, moving to Butler County when Petrolia first began to develop into an oil town. He later resided at Greece City for a time and in 1874 located in Butler, going to West Virginia when the oil fields were being developed in that state, and returning to Butler in 1903. Mr. Hosford has been engaged in the hotel business nearly all his life, also in the production of oil. In the year 1885 he was married to Miss Emma Reiber of Butler. They have one son, Charles F., Jr., a Princeton man and now a student at the law department of Harvard University. The family are members of the First English Lutheran Church.

W. CLARK CULBERSON, oil producer and manufacturer, treasurer of the Butler Torpedo Company, is one of the representative men of this city. He was born August 18, 1865, in Clarion County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of William Culber-son, who was one of the early oil men of this section.

Almost since leaving school, Mr. Culber-son has been in the oil business and his operations have been carried on in the oil fields of New York, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois. In 1884 he came to Butler County and was much interested in the developments on Thorn Creek. Mr. Culber-son has been an extensive but judicious operator. He is a stockholder in the Pittsburgh Oil & Gas Company, the Clarion Gas Company, the Southern Oil Company and the Butler Torpedo Company, the works of the latter being located at Callery. He is interested also in real estate at Butler.

On September 14, 1887, Mr. Culber-son was married to Frances Fidelia Cheers, who was born in Chautauqua County, New York, and they have one daughter, Harriet S., residing at home. Mr. and Mrs. Culber-son are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church and he belongs to the official board. His fraternal connections include the Elks, the Odd Fellows and the Maccabees.

THOMAS TUCKER STEWART, one of the best known pioneers and respected citizens of Center Township, resides on his farm of 120 acres, which is situated about five miles north of Butler. Mr. Stewart was born June 3, 1834, in Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of John and Nancy (Scott) Stewart.

When Mr. Stewart was about one year old, his parents brought him to this farm, and with the exception of three years after he was married, he has spent his entire life on this place. When his parents settled here it was nothing but a wilderness and it required years of hard work for both father and son to put it into the shape it now is. With constant industry and prudent saving, Mr. Stewart gradually was enabled to put up the substantial buildings which make it a very comfortable home. The parents died here when full of years.

Mr. Stewart was married to his cousin, Nancy Stewart, who died in 1901. They had five children: Robert W., Emma C., Milton A. and two unnamed infants. Robert W. lives in Pittsburgh. Emma C. married (first) Christian Shaw and had two children: Russell C. and Bertha, the latter of whom married Harry Seigfried and they have a son, George. Mrs. Shaw became a widow and married Harry Wright and they have one son, Robert. Milton A. is deceased. He reached manhood and was married and settled at Butler, where he died leaving no children.

Until within four years, Mr. Stewart retained his health and strength but he then suffered from a fall which has left him crippled. Nevertheless he still looks largely after his affairs and lives alone in his house since the death of his wife, caring for his necessities himself in spite of his advanced age. Although well able to reside in any village or town and hire others to serve him, he is like many another one, devoted to the place where he has lived so long and determined to be independent as far as possible. All his life he has been provident and thus has accumulated property, more than could ever be used in making his declining years full of comfort. Almost all his life Mr. Stewart has been a consistent member of the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Stewart is a man of intelligence and general information and a visit to him proves profitable and interesting.

HENRY MENKEN, who resides on his farm of fifty acres, which is situated in Winfield Township, on the Butler Turnpike road, about three miles from Cabot, is a well known and substantial citizen of Butler County. He was born in Butler County, Pennsylvania, November 3, 1862, and is a son of George and Elizabeth (Hoffman) Menken. The father of Mr. Menken is still living. Born in Holland, he came to America in 1840, and has resided in Butler County ever since.

Henry Menken learned the trades of stone-mason and bridge builder and has done a large amount of work in this line in Butler County, being the only contractor in this kind of work in Winfield Township. In addition, he carries on general farming and resides in a comfortable two-story farm house, which has an attractive appearance without, and within which the friendly visitor is sure of a hospitable welcome.

Mr. Menken was married (first) to Satia Elit, who was a daughter of Thomas and Sarah (Elit) Elit, and to this marriage four children were born—Bertha, Mary (deceased), Elizabeth and Willis. Mr. Menken was married (second) to Alice Lavery, who was born in Butler County, of which union there is one child—Mary Evelyn. They are members of the Buffalo Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Menken was married first to Clyde Gravatt, and they had two children—Emmett Raymond and Beatrice Iriene. Formerly Mr. Menken was a member of the Grange, but at present he belongs to no secret organization. He takes no active interest in politics, being a thoroughly practical business man and finding enough to occupy his time in attending to his own affairs.

PHILO L. KING, capitalist and representative citizen of Butler, is the man to whom this city is indebted for the most beautiful, artistic and well cared for cemetery, in all Butler County, his services as superintendent having covered some nine years. Mr. King was born at Charles-town, Ohio, in 1838.

The parents of Mr. King moved, in the year of his birth, to Marion County, Illinois, but when he was ten years old they returned to Ohio and settled at Ravenna, where he was educated and lived until 1855. In that year he left home and spent eleven months at St. Paul, Minnesota, after which he hired out to the Northwestern Fur Company and worked for that concern for two years in Oregon, which then was indeed a wild section. Mr. King spent one summer on his way east, at Clayton, Iowa, and then went to work in the lumber woods near Saginaw and Vassar, Michigan. In the summer, following a hard winter in the logging camps, he located timber tracts and subsequently went into partnership in the lumber business with John Dasey, which continued for fourteen years. Mr. King then went into a mercantile business in Michigan and became so desirable a citizen there that both Kingstown town and township were both named in his honor. He cut down the first tree that ever fell by a white man's agency in Kingstown Township, section 32. After three years he sold his store and for eighteen months conducted a hotel, and then decided to return to the East, and located at Akron, in his native state. There he was connected with Mr. Schumaker in a mill business for two years, during this time being in charge of the oatmeal mill, and afterward, with his brother-in-law, bought a sawmill at Ravenna, where they subsequently added a planing mill and pail factory and prospered for three years, when they lost their plant by fire. For about one year Mr. King followed railroading, and then returned to Ravenna and accepted the position of superintendent of the Ravenna Cemetery. For twenty years he remained there and was then induced to come to Butler and accept the same position for the North Side Cemetery. Mr. King owns valuable realty and has an interest in the fine structure here known as the Opera House Block.

In 1860, while residing in Michigan, Mr. King was married to Miss Caroline Harmon, who died in 1899, leaving one child, Nina D., who married George Burkhalter. Mr. King was married (second) in 1906, to Miss Phillis Mason, of Butler.

Mr. King is a member of the Grand Army of the Republic, having been a loyal defender of his country, a soldier in the ranks and a fighter on many a battle field, having enlisted in 1861, in Company E, Seventh Regiment, Michigan Volunteer Infantry, which was attached to the Army of the Potomac. His service covered two years and four days when he received his honorable discharge. During his residence in Michigan he was active in politics and for seven years served as supervisor of Kingstown Township. In his religious belief, he is a Universalist. Fraternally he is a Mason and Odd Fellow, and belongs also to the Royal Arcanum.

ALPHEUS SITLER, who is engaged in the drug business at Zelenople, and also is a member of the well known firm of Sitler, Swain & Moyer, of Harmony, all representative men of this place. Mr. Sitler was born in Jackson Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, one mile east of Harmony, and is a son of Martin H. and Fannie (Zeigler) Sitler.

Solomon H. Sitler, grandfather of Alpheus, accompanied his father, Martin Sitler, a colonel in the War of 1812, to Columbiana County, Ohio, about 1805, and there he subsequently married Elizabeth Hoke, who died aged eighty-six years; he survived to be seventy-one years old. Six of their family of thirteen children still survive, the oldest of whom is eighty-three years of age and the youngest sixty-three. They are: Samuel, residing in Columbiana County, Ohio; Melvina and Velina, twins, the former the widow of Simon Bricker, and the latter the widow of Samuel Nold; Catherine, who married (first) a Mr. Gilbert and (second) Price Van Fleet; Celinda, who is the widow of Jacob Mowery; and Martin H.

Martin H. Sitler was born in Columbiana County, Ohio, February 3, 1828, where he remained until the fall of 1850. He then moved to Butler County and settled on a farm in Jackson Township, where he resided until the fall of 1907, when he moved to Harmony.

His original farm contained 200 acres, but he has reduced it to 130 and for many years carried on general farming, taking an active part in it for fifty-seven years. On October 14, 1850, he married Fannie Zeigler, who was a daughter of Jacob H. and Elizabeth (Tinsman) Zeigler. Jacob H. Zeigler was born in 1800 and he became a man of substance in Jackson Township and the owner of the Eidenan Mills. He had one son and the following daughters: Fannie; Elizabeth, who married John Enslin; Annie, who married Frederick Haines; and Catherine, who married George Bame. Mrs. Sitler was born June 14, 1828, and died in August, 1908, aged eighty years. There were four children born to Martin H. Sitler and wife, namely: Alpheus; Loraine, residing in Jackson Township, who is the widow of James Gallagher; Jacob, residing at Zelenople, owns a farm in Jackson Township, married Mollie Thomas; and Elizabeth, who is the wife of Charles Goehring, a retired farmer residing at Harmony.

Alpheus Sitler obtained his education in the schools of Zelenople and at Heidelberg College, Seneca County, Ohio. He prepared for professional life at the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, prior to which he had done considerable work in the line of surveying, both for railroads and private parties in Butler County. He remained at home and assisted on the farm until he reached his majority and then turned his attention to the study of pharmacy, for this purpose buying a half interest, in 1875, in a drug store at Harmony. In 1879, after completing his professional course, he purchased the only drug store at Zelenople, which was the property of Dr. Amos Lusk. In 1882 he disposed of this store and again took up surveying, which he continued until 1887. In that year he went to Pittsburg with A. W. Zeigler and together they purchased a drug store on the south side of the city on the corner of Carson and Twenty-seventh Streets, and there Mr. Sitler continued in the drug business for ten years. He then disposed of his interest and on his return to Harmony, he entered into partnership with G. D. Swain, in the dry goods and grocery business, but four years later he sold his interest to his partner. He then bought his present business interest at Zelenople, and two years later established the firm of Sitler, Swain & Moyer, of Harmony.

Mr. Sitler married Miss Clara E. Swain, who is a daughter of Gellert and Sarah (Sechler) Swain, and a granddaughter of Samuel Swain, who was one of the early settlers of the county. The father of Mrs. Sitler died in 1894 but her mother survives. Four sons have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Sitler: Maxwell Swain, Leroy R., Stanley Alpheus and Carl William. They are all bright and satisfactory pupils in the public school, preparing for good American citizenship. Mr. and Mrs. Sitler, with the two oldest sons, are members of Grace Reformed Church of Harmony, with which congregation Mr. Sitler has been identified ever since 1868, except during his period of residence in Pittsburg. In politics, like his father, he is a Republican and after a service of six years in the town council, he declined renomination for election. He is a member of the Royal Arcanum and also of Harmony Lodge No.

429 F. & A. M. and is also a member of the Odd Fellows at Harmony.

W. C. WEBBER, who is engaged in a blacksmith business at Slippery Rock, of which place he has been a resident since November 4, 1880, was born on a farm in Franklin Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, one mile distant from Prospect, December 1, 1858. He is a son of John and Mary (Campbell) Webber.

The father of Mr. Webber was a brave soldier in the Civil War, who gave up his life in defense of his country, at the second battle of Fredericksburg. He was a member of the One Hundred and Thirty-seventh Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry.

After the death of his father, when eight years old, W. C. Webber was placed in the Soldiers' Orphans' School at Mercer, Pennsylvania, where he remained until he was sixteen years of age, when his guardian and step-father, James Wilson, bound him out to Nicholas Weitzell, of West Liberty, to learn the blacksmith's trade. Mr. Webber served his full apprenticeship to Mr. Weitzell, remaining with him for three years and during this time received the sum of $140. From West Liberty he went to Fairview, Butler County, and worked for three more years for Hughie Young and then came to Slippery Rock and for two years was in the employ of William Kauffman, after which he embarked in business for himself. He built the shop now occupied by Mr. S. A. Heyle, where he conducted his business for twenty years, then sold out and entered into partnership with his brother-in-law, David Morrison, and this partnership has existed for the past three years. The business is horse-shoeing and general repairing. First-class work is done and the firm enjoys a large amount of patronage.

Mr. Webber was married November 1, 1882, to Miss Emma Morrison, who is a daughter of Samuel and Isabella (Stephenson) Morrison. She was born and reared at Slippery Rock. Mr. and Mrs. Webber have had two children: Alma, who is the wife of Dr. S. S. Smith, of Derry, Pennsylvania; and Daisy May, who died when aged twenty-one months. Another member of the family is almost like a daughter. She is Alma Morrison, a daughter of John Morrison, Mrs. Webber's brother, and has resided with Mr. and Mrs. Webber for the past seven years, being now fourteen, and a bright student in the high school.

In politics, Mr. Webber is a Democrat. He is active in local affairs and has served as a member of the borough council. He belongs to the fraternal order of Odd Fellows.

JOSEPH BALL, proprietor of the City Transfer Company, at Butler, and a member of the City Council, representing the Fourth Ward, is one of Butler's representative men. He was born in June, 1864, on a farm in Butler County, Pennsylvania, about six miles northeast of the city, and is a son of the late John Ball.

John Ball was born in Germany and came to Butler County in 1859. For many years he was extensively engaged in the buying and shipping of stock and was well known all over this section. In politics he was a Democrat. His death took place at North Oakland, in 1896.

Joseph Ball obtained his education in the common schools of Butler County and he remained on the home farm until the fall of 1899, when he came to Butler and bought the business of Mr. Reisman, who then operated the City Transfer Company, an enterprise which has been conducted by Mr. Ball ever since. As the city has grown, this business has been expanded to meet all exigencies and Mr. Ball practically controls this industry. In politics, like his late father, he is a staunch Democrat. He has been an active citizen ever since locating here and is a useful and judicious member of the city council, his own successful business experience making him a valuable advisor in that body.

In 1890 Mr. Ball was married to Miss Mary P. Oswald, formerly of Pittsburg, and they have six children: Minnie, Philip, Joseph, Cyril, Virginia and Valeria, all residing at home. Mr. Ball and family are members of St. Peter's Catholic Church and he belongs to the order of Knights of Columbus, the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association, the Woodmen of the World, the Knights of Maccabees, and to Butler Lodge, No. 170, Elks.

HENRY JACOB MYERS, cashier of the Millerstown Deposit Bank, a private banking institution at Chicora, has been identified with banking since 1881 and is well and favorably known in financial circles all through this section. He was born in Butler, Pennsylvania, and is a son of John G. and Catherine (Fetzer) Myers.

Both parents of Mr. Myers were born in Germany. The father was three years old and the mother was fourteen years old when their parents brought them to America. They were married at Butler in 1858, and had the following children: Henry Jacob, Charles L. (deceased), Estelle D., Gustavus J., and two babes that died. The old Myers homestead in Oakland Township, a tract of sixty acres, is owned by John G. Myers. He was born November 16, 1828, and his wife was born September 12, 1832. In early manhood he worked at the plastering trade at Butler and at Brady's Bend. In 1868 he went into partnership with his brother-in-law, G. F. Fetzer, in a flour mill business, together with farm interests, which was continued until April, 1905, when Mr. Myers withdrew. When the Millerstown Savings Bank was organized, in 1873, he became one of the board of directors. Two years later it was reorganized under the name of the German National Bank and business was continued until 1884, when it went into voluntary liquidation. In 1887 they organized the Millerstown Deposit Bank, with the following officers: John G. Myers, president; Henry J. Myers, cashier; Gustavus J. Myers, assistant cashier; and Miss Estelle D. Myers, bookkeeper. Its affairs are conducted along careful, conservative lines and the institution does a large business with solid, responsible parties.

John G. Myers is a leading member of the German Lutheran Church at Chicora and is the senior elder. He is a man whose business standing and personal character are high.

Henry Jacob Myers together with his younger brother, Gustavus, graduated from the Chicora High School and both attended Capitol University at Columbus, Ohio, the former for two and the latter for five years. Banking has been the main interest of both Mr. Myers and his brother. They both are prominent in Free Masonry. They are not particularly active in politics, but father and sons have always been men of public spirit and honorable citizenship.

R. L. STACKPOLE, M. D., a member of the Butler County Medical Society and of the Pennsylvania State Medical Society, is numbered with the leading medical practitioners at Butler, maintaining his office at No. 128 South Main Street. He was born in Crawford County, Pennsylvania.

After completing the common school course and graduating from the High School at Venango, Dr. Stackpole entered Allegheny College, where he remained for two years and then went to the Western Reserve University at Cleveland and was graduated there from the medical department in the class of 1901. Following his graduation he spent one and one-half years in St. Vincent's Hospital, at Cleveland, and then came to Butler where he has built up a very satisfactory practice and has become recognized as a useful citizen. He is the present nominee of the Republican party for county coroner. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Butler. His fraternal connections are with the Eagles and the Odd Fellows. Through the medical organizations he keeps in touch with the wonderful progress being made in his profession and applies in his own practice the discoveries that he has proved to his own satisfaction are beneficial.

JOHN BALFOUR, a highly respected citizen and prominent general farmer residing on his valuable estate of ninety-one acres, which lies in Adams Township, one mile west of Mars, was born in Wigtonshire, Scotland, August 4, 1835, and is a son of David and Margaret (Stephenson) Balfour.

The parents of Mr. Balfour were born, reared and married in Scotland, and they came to America with their two children, Samuel and John. The former married, but both he and wife are deceased. When David Balfour brought his little family to the United States his younger son was about ten months old. The voyage in the old-fashioned sailing ship consumed many weeks, but in August, 1836, the weary travelers were landed at the port of Philadelphia. David Balfour secured a horse and wagon, and in this conveyance he was safely transported over the mountains, and then, by way of the canal, in the course of time, reached Pittsburg, the place he had in view when he left Scotland. He soon found remunerative work and then sent for his wife and boys, who joined him at Pittsburg, where they lived for one year. Tiring of city life, he concluded to engage in farming and first rented land in what is now McAnlis Township Allegheny County, not far from Perrysville. There the family lived for four years, and then settled on a rented farm in Franklin Township, Allegheny County, for the succeeding seven years. By this time Mr. Balfour had developed into an excellent farmer and was able to purchase land for himself, and in February, 1851, he bought 185 acres in Adams Township, from Hon. John Braden, and moved on the place in the following April. David Balfour had worked hard to secure this home for his family, but he enjoyed it for a short time only, his death taking place on August 16, 1851, when aged fifty-three years. His widow survived until 1878, being seventy-eight years old at the time of her death.

There were buildings on the farm when the Balfour family came to it, but they were in a very dilapidated condition, and after the death of the father the mother and her two sons undertook to do a large amount of improving. The boys cleared the land and fenced it and the mother gave such assistance as pioneer mothers usually afforded, and they lived happily together and worked for the common good. In 1862 the elder son, Samuel, was married and then the land was divided, he taking the north farm and John taking the south farm, and then mother took up her residence with the younger son. At that time there was no indication how valuable this land would subsequently become, and had any one predicted to David Balfour when he settled here that his descendants would derive a more than ample income from the oil that lay concealed under the rough soil, he would have thought they were dealing in romance. But the fact is that on this farm was drilled the first 100-foot oil well in Pennsylvania, probably in the United States. The drilling was accomplished in 1885 and for three years it produced sixty barrels of oil a day. Mr. Balfour at the present writing (1908) has five producing wells. He also carries on a general agricultural line, raising grain, hay and stock.

In 1873, Mr. Balfour was married to Miss Mary Ann Cochran, of Allegheny County, who died in October of the same year, aged thirty-two years. On October 12, 1875, he was married (second) to Miss Nevie Richardson, a daughter of G. W. Richardson, one of the early settlers of Butler County, and to that union eight children were born, namely: Amelia; Stewart, who died in 1897, aged nineteen years; Oliver, who died in 1885, aged six years; Frank; Isabella, who died in October, 1884, aged nine months; Chalmers and Myrtle, twins; and Dight. Myrtle was married October 25, 1906, to Leonard L. Besnaeker. Mr. Balfour and family are members of the United Presbyterian Church at Mt. Pleasant and he has been active in its various branches of work. In politics he is a Democrat and he has served as township auditor and in other offices.

WILLIAM WHITE HUNTER, who resides about ten miles south of Butler, in Forward Township, is the owner of a fine farm of 125 acres, well improved and all under a high state of cultivation. He was born on this farm, July 27, 1861, and is a son of Alexander and Elizabeth (Dixon) Hunter, and a grandson of William and Nancy (White) Hunter.

William Hunter, the grandfather, spent all his early life in Ireland, and was there married to Nancy White. In 1842, they came to America, the voyage consuming some six weeks, and were accompanied by the following children, all now deceased: Alexander, Joseph, Fannie, Jane, Mary, Ann, Rosa and Eliza. They first located in Pittsburg, where the family temporarily remained, while William and his son Alexander, who then was twenty-one years of age, came to the woods of Butler County. He purchased 250 acres of Alexander Boyd, who was the owner of 1000 acres in the vicinity. There were about fifty acres under cultivation, and a log house, a rude barn, and a building which Boyd had used for store purposes, stood on the place. It was quite a wild community at that time, fox, deer and other game being plentiful. They returned to Pittsburg for the rest of the family, and here William and his wife spent the remaining years of life, dying in advanced age.

Alexander Hunter remained on the home place, which he cleared of its timber, and erected most of the buildings thereon. The brick house built by him was one of the first in this section, and was a modern structure in all its appointments. He was joined in marriage with Elizabeth Dixon, who was born in Pittsburg, whither her parents had come from Ireland. She was reared in Penn Township, Butler County, Penna., and died in the prime of life. Alexander Hunter died in October, 1888, at the age of seventy-one years. He was a Whig in politics, originally, and later an ardent Republican. He never aspired to political preferment, but in the early days served for a time as school director. He and his wife reared two sons, William White and Alexander Dixon, each of whom owns one-half of the old home farm.

William W. Hunter was a small child at his mother's death. He attended the district school during the winter months, about four months each year, and during the remainder of the time was engaged in hard work upon the farm. He has always lived on this place, which is one of the best improved in this locality. A fine brick house, surrounded by stately locust, spruce, pine and apple shade trees, presents a beautiful and attractive appearance. He is engaged in general farming and stock-raising, and is meeting with the best of success.

On October 10, 1883, Mr. Hunter was married to Miss Susie P. Hutchman, a daughter of Jacob and Margaret (Plumer) Hutchman, and three children have been born to them: Margaret Elizabeth, Laura White, and William Hutchman. Politically, he is a Republican, has served as school director, and at the present is president of the township board of supervisors. Religiously, he and his wife are members of the Presbyterian Church at Middlesex.

APHES A. COOPER, one of Adams Township's well known men, resides on his finely improved farm of fifty-six acres, on which he has erected all the buildings, being a practical carpenter and builder. He was born March 18, 1860, in Forest County, Penna., and is a son of Robert and Martha (Johnson) Cooper.

James Cooper, the grandfather, came among the first settlers in the vicinity of Evans City, Butler County, where he cleared up a farm that remained in the possession of the family until recently, when it was purchased by James Ramsey. This farm is situated in Forward Township and there Robert Cooper, father of Aphas A., was born, December 6, 1827. He was one of the younger members of a family of eleven children and is one of the two survivors, his brother Uriah Cooper, being a resident of Ohio. Robert Cooper spent seven years in Forest County, where he was engaged in a lumber business, and gave ten months to the service of his country, during the Civil War. After the close of his army life, he bought a farm in Adams Township, Butler County, on which he resided from 1865 until 1882, when he purchased property in Penn Township on which he lived until 1902, when he retired and moved to Evans City. In that year occurred the death of his wife, formerly Martha Johnson, who lived to the age of seventy-four years. They had the following children: Alfred, Amos, Harvey, Samuel, Aphas, Perry, Anna, Ella, Minnie, Harry, and an unnamed infant. Anna is the wife of Robert Leslie, and Ella is the wife of Samuel Zeigler. Alfred, Samuel, and the infant are deceased.

Aphas A. Cooper was small when the family came to Butler from Forest County and he was able later to assist his father greatly in clearing up the farm in Adams Township. His education was obtained in the district schools in the neighborhood, and when he was fifteen years old he started out to take care of himself. He learned the shoemaking trade with his cousin, John Cooper, and worked at it for three years. Although he soon turned his efforts in another direction, he never regretted the discipline of long months on the bench. In carpenter work, however, he was able to take a deeper interest and under R. T. McAnlis, became a good workman and continued with him for seven years. Mr. Cooper then went into general contracting which he continued until 1906, and during his active years in that line, put up many of the buildings through Butler County and also did a large amount of building in Allegheny County. In 1883 he bought thirty-five acres of his present farm, from William Sloan and subsequently added until his farm now contains fifty-six acres, where he carries on general farming.

On March 9, 1881, Mr. Cooper was married (first) to Hannah Gilkey, a daughter of John Gilkey. She died October 20, 1897, having been the mother of the following children: a babe that died in a short time following birth; Luella, who is the wife of Harry Eichenberg; Bessie, who is the wife of Roy McMillen, has one child, Clarence Leroy; Charles, who died aged nineteen years and ten days; John; and Olive, who died aged twelve years and four months. Mr. Cooper married (second) Ida Rennison, who is a daughter of John Rennison. Mr. Cooper is a man of recognized standing in his community and is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In politics, he is a Republican.

SAMUEL ALEXANDER LESLIE, a well known citizen of Middlesex Township, Butler County, Penna., has a fine farm of 106 acres and is engaged in general farming. He is now serving his fourth consecutive term as justice of the peace, the duties of which office he has discharged in an able and conscientious manner, and to the entire satisfaction of his fellow citizens. He was born in Plain Grove Township, Mercer County, Penna., January 21, 1842, and is a son of Hon. Alexander and Sarah (Allen) Leslie, and a grandson of Alexander Leslie, Sr.

Alexander Leslie, the grandfather, was born in Allegheny County, Penna., and at an early date settled on the farm now owned by the subject of this sketch, which was then almost wholly uncleared and unimproved. This hardy old pioneer was a member of the State militia of that early period.

Alexander Leslie, Jr., was born in Allegheny County, Penna., and during his early years worked on the river. He later settled in Plain Grove Township, Mercer County, and engaged in agricultural pursuits until about 1847, when he located on the home farm in Middlesex Township, Butler County, where he passed the remainder of his days. He died in 1883, at the age of sixty-four years. He was an active Republican in politics, and served two terms in the State Legislature. Mr. Leslie was first united in marriage with Miss Sarah Allen, who died early in married life, and as a result of their union four children were born, two of whom grew to maturity: Samuel A.; and Eliza, deceased wife of Philip Snyder. Mr. Leslie formed a second marital union with Miss Aphia Ross, by whom he had six children: Cordella (Donahea) of Braddock; Harvey, of Columbus, Ohio; John of Pittsburg; William, a resident of California; George of Valencia, Penna.; and Susan, deceased. Religiously, Alexander Leslie was a member and trustee of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and served as class leader and superintendent of the Sunday-school.

Samuel A. Leslie was about five years of age when his parents located on his present farm in Middlesex Township, and was nine years old at his mother's death. He was then taken to Bakerstown where he lived four years, after which he resided continuously on the home place except for that period spent in his country's service, during the War of the Rebellion. He enlisted August 1, 1861, as a member of Company B, Sixty-first Regiment Penna. Volunteer Infantry, and participated in all the engagements of his regiment until September 7, 1864, and he was wounded at the Battle of Fair Oaks. He was in numerous hotly contested battles, and acquitted himself with honor and credit. He returned to the home farm upon leaving the service and has engaged in agricultural pursuits without interruption since. He follows general farming, but makes hay his principal crop. Located on his farm is a gas well with a strong flow, which has been producing for a period of fifteen years.

Mr. Leslie was united in marriage with Miss Rebecca E. McBride, a daughter of Samuel McBride of Middlesex Township, and they became parents of four children, namely: Samuel McBride, of Middlesex Township; Sarah, wife of Adam Kind, and they make their home with Mr. Leslie; Wilda, wife of S. Cunningham Trimble, of Butler; and Howard, deceased. Mrs. Leslie passed from this life in 1899, at the age of fifty-six years. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of which Mr. Leslie is also a member and a trustee. He was a member of Scott Post, No. 470, G. A. R. of West Deer Township, Allegheny County, now disbanded, and served as post commander four years, and is a member of Union Veterans' Legion of Butler. He is a staunch Republican in politics, and served as school director a period of eighteen years, is now serving his third year as road supervisor, and his fourth term as justice of the peace.

J. C. KISKADDON, a representative citizen of Butler County, now serving in the office of deputy county treasurer, was born in Armstrong County, Penna., in 1844, and is a son of James and Eleanor (Sloane) Kiskaddon.

The parents of Mr. Kiskaddon moved to Allegheny Township, Butler County, when he was ten years old, and he grew to the age of eighteen on his father's farm, leaving its peaceful seclusion to enter Company G, One Hundred Thirty-seventh Regiment, Penna. Volunteer Infantry, as a soldier in the Civil War. He served through his first enlistment, a period of nine months, and was attached to the Army of the Potomac. He immediately reenlisted, his second choice being the cavalry and he served as a member of Company L, Fourteenth Regiment, until he was disabled by a gunshot wound and was honorably discharged in June, 1865. His wound proved a very serious one. It was received in October, 1864, from the band known as McNeil's guerrillas, while he was on duty in the Shenandoah Valley. He was in the hands of the enemy for four months thereafter and was confined in the prison hospital at Richmond, Virginia. All through his service, Mr. Kiskaddon was at his post of duty and he participated in notable battles, including Antietam, the protracted campaign under General Burnside, and Chancellorsville, all while in the infantry. During his second enlistment he was under the command of General Sheridan in the Shenandoah Valley.

After Mr. Kiskaddon had recovered sufficiently from the wound he had received in his country defense to be able to perform any duty, he was appointed a deputy sheriff in Armstrong County, this being in 1866, but he retained the office for less than one year and then turned his attention to farming. Later he entered into the oil business and worked also as a carpenter. In December, 1890, having been elected a county commissioner in Butler County, he came to the city of Butler. After the close of his term of office of three years, he followed the carpenter trade for about the same period and then was called back to public life, being appointed clerk for the Board of County Commissioners and served in that capacity for nine years, and then served as deputy treasurer of the county from July, 1906, to January, 1909. He has been a very active Republican and was the successful candidate of his party for the office of county commissioner at the election on November 3, 1908. He is very popular at his home and his friends may be found in all parts of the county.

In 1868, Mr. Kiskaddon was married to Miss Nancy J. Colgin, who was a native of Butler County. She died in 1894 and was survived by four children: James R., residing at New Castle; William, residing at Chicago; Alice, wife of H. B. Burns, of Southersland, Iowa; and Edith J., wife of Joseph Elliott, of Butler.

Mr. Kiskaddon is identified with the A. G. Reed Post, No. 105, Grand Army of the Republic, and he belongs to Connoquenessing Lodge, No. 278, Odd Fellows. For many years he has been a member of the Second Presbyterian Church at Butler.

GUSTAVE ORVILLE HAMMER, proprietor and sole owner of the Roebbling Hotel, at Saxonburg, is one of the prominent and forceful men of Butler County and for years has been identified with large enterprises in Western Pennsylvania. He was born in the city of Bremen, Germany, June 30, 1864, and accompanied his parents to America in 1868.

The parents of Mr. Hammer were William G. and Sophia L. (Von Rautenburg) Hammer, natives of Holland. Mrs. Sophia L. Hammer came from Friesland in the north of Holland. When they first reached the United States, they settled in New York but came later to Pennsylvania. He had conducted a furniture factory in Germany and began the manufacture of furniture at Pittsburg and was interested at other points. His children were as follows: Gustave O., John, Louis G., Henrietta, Wilhelmina, Ferdinand G., Carl and an infant.

Gustave O. Hammer attended school at various places where the father was in business for a more or less longer time, this including Pittsburg, New Brighton, Zelenople and Butler. In the latter city he completed his school course and then went into business with his father. This city remained the family home for seventeen years. The death of the mother, in 1881, broke up the domestic circle and then Gustave O. started out in the world for himself. He visited a number of cities: Chicago, Illinois; Springfield and Cincinnati, Ohio, remaining in the latter city for two years; then back to Springfield; south then to Chattanooga, Tennessee; then back to Cincinnati and Pittsburg. Mr. Hammer during this time had invented several articles and while at Pittsburg had them patented and went into a manufacturing business on Water Street, in that city. On January 7, 1889, he embarked in a furniture business at Oakland and remained there for twelve years, after which he came to Saxonburg and bought the gas plant, in 1898, moving to this place in 1900 and remained in the business until the fall of 1906, when he sold out to the Saxonburg Heat and Light Company. In 1902 he built the Opera House and sold it in 1905. During that period of residence he was a leading citizen of the place, served in the town council and was town burgess for three years. At present he is president of the School Board. He was the first president and one of the organizers of the Saxonburg Telephone Company and was the organizer and vice president of the Bessemer Brick & Tile Company.

In 1906 Mr. Hammer returned to Pittsburg and engaged in a stock brokerage business and then became extensively interested in real estate, under the firm name of Hammer & Mandeville, and while there laid out the G. O. Hammer plat of lots in Saxonburg, which he sold, and also laid out the Norfolk Heights plat in McCandless Township, Allegheny County, in the Perryville District, on the car line between New Castle and Harmony. Mr.

HENRY D. WALLET

Hammer is connected with the Cottage Hill Land Company of Butler. He has been interested also in oil, gas and railroad enterprises and was one of the promoters of a traction line between Tarentum, Butler and Saxonburg. In May, 1907, Mr. Hammer sold out his various interests in Pittsburg and returned to Saxonburg and purchased the Roebeling Hotel. This was formerly called the Kohnfelter Hotel and was built in 1862, the first brick building erected at Saxonburg, the bricks being manufactured on the premises. It is widely known and under Mr. Hammer's management is the leading hotel in this section. He retains his interests in oil and gas production in the county and is one of the directors of the Scott Ridge Oil and Gas Company, at Zelienople. In all these various enterprises Mr. Hammer has prospered, his business foresight and judgment being remarkable.

Mr. Hammer was married in 1891, at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, to Miss Clara Pauline Pickel, who is a daughter of John S. Pickel, and they have eight children, namely: John M., Orville J., Henrietta, Charlotte, Freda, Mary, Bonita, and Jennings. The two older sons are students at college. Mr. Hammer and family are members of the Lutheran Church. He is connected with several of the leading fraternities, having passed all the chairs in Herder Lodge, No. 279, Knights of Pythias; is a charter member of the order of Moose and belongs to the order of Woodmen of the World at Saxonburg.

CARSON G. GRAY, postmaster at Petrolia, of which place he has been a resident for more than thirty years, was born in Washington Township, Erie County, Pennsylvania, November 10, 1836, and is a son of Lemuel and Diadema (Gardner) Gray.

The parents of Mr. Gray reared a family of six children, namely: George W., Otis N., A. E., Carson G., E. W., and Leonard S., the only survivors being Carson G. and E. W. The father died in his eighty-fourth year and the mother when aged seventy-three years.

Carson G. Gray was reared in Erie County and there attended school and also learned the trade of paper hanging and painting. He served in the Federal army from April, 1865, until June of the same year, in Company E, Ninety-eighth Regiment, Pennsylvania Infantry, and participated in a number of sharp skirmishes. He belongs to the Grand Army of the Republic, being a member of Campbell Post, Petrolia.

After the close of his military service, Mr. Gray returned to Erie, Pennsylvania, where he went to work in the car barns as a painter, and he remained there until 1877, when he came to Butler County and settled at Petrolia. For a number of years he conducted a shop of his own and did a large amount of business, especially before 1884, when he was very seriously injured by a railroad train, at Foxburg. In 1898 he was appointed postmaster and has continued to serve in this office ever since, giving the city a very efficient administration.

On December 25, 1862, Mr. Gray was married to Miss Agnes A. Ray, who is a daughter of John Ray, of Erie County. They have had two daughters, Mary and Maud. Mary married William Harrington, and they live in Delaware. Maud married William Kelley, of Ohio, and died in 1884, when only twenty years of age. Mr. Gray is a Republican in his political views, and on numerous occasions he has been elected to local offices at Petrolia. He belongs to the order known as the Protective Home Circle. With his family he is identified with the Presbyterian Church.

HENRY D. WALLET, postmaster at Great Belt, resides at Great Belt, and has lived in this section almost the whole of his life. He was born in 1857, in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Daniel and Mary (Schmidt) Wallet, and a grandson of Philip and Catherine (Bleichner) Wallet, natives of Germany and early settlers in Allegheny County.

Daniel Wallet worked in a glass factory at Pittsburg before he moved on his farm of sixty acres in Jefferson Township, Butler County. He became a man of local prominence, serving in both township and county offices. He married Mary Schmidt, who still survives, and they had eleven children, the seven still living bearing respectively the following names: Henry D., Mary, John, Elizabeth, Benjamin, Maggie and Rosie.

Henry D. Wallet obtained his education in the country schools in North Jefferson Township and later in the Herman School, after which he spent about two years in the far West. When he returned he engaged in the grocery business but later sold out and went back to cultivating the farm. He has been postmaster at Great Belt for the past two years. In politics he is a Democrat and he has served in township offices, four years being supervisor. Mr. Wallet is a member of the Catholic Church at Herman. He belongs to the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association lodge at Herman and for twelve years has been recording secretary of this organization. He is a representative citizen of this part of Jefferson Township and is well and favorably known. He is one of the heirs of his father's estate.

HON. GEO. H. GRAHAM, justice of the peace and representative citizen of Fairview Township, owns twenty-five acres of valuable farm land in this township and forty-seven additional acres in Parker Township, Butler County. He was born in Venango County, Pennsylvania, March 1, 1833, and is a son of John and Mary (Hill) Graham.

Mr. Graham comes of Irish ancestry and of Revolutionary stock. His great-great-grandfather was born on the Atlantic Ocean while his parents were on one of the slow old sailing ships between Ireland and the United States, then the British colonies, for it was as early as 1700. His parents settled in Cumberland County, Pennsylvania, not far from the present site of the great Indian School at Carlisle, and that section presumably was the family home for many years. Richard Graham, the great-grandfather was a soldier in the Revolutionary War and when it was over he resided in Chester County until 1795, when he accompanied his son, Samuel Graham, to Allegheny Township, Butler County, where he died in 1806. Samuel Graham, grandfather of George H., was a veteran of the War of 1812 and he subsequently died in a hospital at Meadville, Pennsylvania.

John Graham, father of George H., was born in Allegheny Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, in 1800, and died in Parker Township in 1856. He was a farmer, carpenter and contractor and in 1845 he settled near Bruin, Butler County. He married Mary Hill, who lived to be eighty-six years of age. They had the following children: Nancy J., Phoebe Ann, George H., Florinda, Ruth, Mary, Adelaide, Maggie and William. Of these three now survive: George H., Florinda, and Adelaide.

George H. Graham lived in Venango County until he was about twelve years of age, attending school for a time at Emlenton, and later taking a university course at Allegheny College. After his parents moved to near Bruin, Butler County, he worked in both the ore and coal mines for a short time, when, through natural ability and study he fitted himself for other work. He has done a vast amount of surveying, has been a civil engineer, has done considerable farming and oil producing, and for many years he was considered the most successful public school teacher in the county. When the Civil War opened, Mr. Graham entered the army, enlisting as a member of Company G, One Hundred and Thirty-seventh Regiment, Pa. Vol. Inf., under Colonel Bossart, and shortly afterward was commissioned quartermaster of the regiment and served on the staff of Gen. J. R. Paul. He was with his regiment at Antietam, South Mountain, Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville, and was mustered out at Harrisburg, in June, 1863.

HON. GEORGE H. GRAHAM

Mr. Graham returned to Bruin and during the winters of 1857-8 and 1859, he taught school in Parker and Washington Townships, and in the spring of 1867 became a teacher in the West Sumbury Academy, where he continued to teach until 1869. In the fall of 1874 he made Fairview his home and has continued here ever since. He has acceptably filled all the borough offices, has been school director for thirty years, has served as jury commissioner, for three years has been a justice of the peace, and in 1880, he was a member of the State Legislature, giving good service. Mr. Graham has lived a very busy and useful life and his acquaintance extends all over Butler County, while his friends are legion.

Mr. Graham was married in 1860 to Miss Elenor J. Wilson, who died November 9, 1892. To this marriage were born five children: Clara, Anna, Addie, John H. and William J. Clara married J. C. McKee and they have one child, which they have named after her mother, Elenor. Anna has been a successful teacher for fifteen years. Addie married William Shoefeld and they live at Bruin and have two sons, Wayne and Walter. John H. married Virginia Bollinger, who died two years later, leaving one son, Cland R. William J. married a Miss Idelle Gifford and they live at Homestead and have two children, Leslie and George. Mr. Graham takes much interest in the educating of his grandchildren. He is a valued member of the J. G. Campbell Post of the Grand Army of the Republic at Petrolia.

JAMES A. MILLIRON, engaged in the livery business at Karns City, Butler County, Pennsylvania, in partnership with Mr. George Adams, is an enterprising and progressive business man and conducts an establishment which is a credit to the village. He was born in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, April 26, 1877, and is a son of William and Rebecca (Reges) Milliron, old residents of Armstrong County, who now reside in Euclid, Clay Township, Butler County. They are parents of seven children, all living and all natives of Armstrong County, namely: George, John, James A., Gertrude, Maud, Mima and Elizabeth. William Milliron, the father of this family, was born in 1849.

James A. Milliron was about ten years of age when he accompanied his parents to West Winfield, and there he lived for twenty-two years. He received his intellectual training in the public schools, and thereafter engaged in the livery business at West Winfield for about five years. He moved to Karns City in the fall of 1908 and embarked in the livery business in partnership with Mr. Adams. He also is interested in the timber business in both Butler and Indiana Counties, Pennsylvania. Fraternally, he is a member of West Winfield Lodge No. 291, K. O. T. M.; and of the Order of Unity of Pittsburg. In religious attachment, he is a member of the German Reformed Church of Sugar Creek Township, in Armstrong County.

George Adams, who is in business with Mr. Milliron, is also a new arrival in Karns City, locating there in the fall of 1908. His life prior to that time was spent in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, where he was born November 16, 1869. His parents, John and Margaret (Moore) Adams, were early settlers of that county, where all of their five children were born. Their names are as follows: Charles, James, Edward, George, and John, and all are living but the last mentioned. John Adams, the father, died in 1903, at the age of sixty-three years, and is survived by his widow. George Adams was married June 9, 1896, to Miss Maggie Steele, a daughter of Amos Steele of Armstrong County, and they have four children—Iva, Paul, Ruth and Gladys—all born in Armstrong County but Gladys, who is a native of West Winfield. Religiously, Mr. Adams and his wife are members of the Lutheran Church of Mt. Pleasant, Armstrong County. Fraternaly, he is a member of West Winfield Lodge No. 291, K. O. T. M.

LOREE L. OSTRANDER, one of Petrolia's substantial citizens and business men, is engaged in oil producing. He was born in Steuben County, New York, September 30, 1847, and is a son of Van Rensselaer and Mary Jane (Schanck) Ostrander. His father died at the age of forty-six years, and his mother at the age of sixty-four years. They were parents of the following children: Matilda, Eleanor, Louisa, William, Susanna, Mary, deceased; Carrie, Loree L. and John.

Loree L. Ostrander was reared in Steuben County, New York, until his sixteenth year, and there received a common school education. He then located at Brockwayville, Jefferson County, Pennsylvania, and one year later moved to Cameron County, Pennsylvania, where he remained two years. He next located in Venango County, Pennsylvania, where he embarked in the oil business, at which he has since continued. He moved to Butler County in 1876, settling at St. Joseph, Donegal Township, and later lived upon the Divener farm in that township. He next moved upon the Daugherty farm in Fairview Township, upon which he resided for twenty-four years. In 1906 he moved to the borough of Petrolia, where he owns property and here he has since resided. He has four producing oil wells, which are very remunerative, they now being in charge of his son, Clarence.

Mr. Ostrander was united in marriage with Miss Adeline Alford, a daughter of William and Catherine Alford, their marriage occurring March 18, 1873, at Sagerstown, Crawford County, Pennsylvania. Four children are the issue of this union: William, of Coyleville, Butler County, who married Flora Jones and has a daughter, Florence; Lula, wife of Clarence Yeager of Petrolia, by whom she has two children, Josephine and Allen; Edna, who is the wife of Arthur Starr of Butler; and Clarence, who married Mabel Snyder and lives on the Daugherty farm in Fairview Township. In religious attachment, Mr. Ostrander and his family are members of the Presbyterian Church of Petrolia.

ANDREW O. MILLER, who for many years has been prominently identified with the business interests of Eau Claire, is proprietor of a drugstore at the present time and is treasurer of the Eau Claire Telephone Company. He was born in Monroe County, West Virginia, June 25, 1839, and is a son of John and Selina S. (Neel) Miller, and a grandson of Andrew and Isabella Miller.

Andrew Miller was born in Scotland and when a young man, some time prior to his marriage, came to the United States. He and his wife became parents of the following: Margaret, who became the wife of Gibson Jarrell and had two children, Andrew and Eliza, was born in 1797; Thomas Miller, who was born in 1799, married Margaret Neel of Monroe County, West Virginia, and they had two children—William F. and Jane, the last named being deceased; Christina, who was born in 1805, and died May 7, 1851; John, father of the subject of this sketch, was born in 1807; Eleanor, born in 1811, became wife of Smith Watters of West Virginia; and James Y., who was born in 1814, married Sarah Burdette and four children were born to them,—Andrew, Mary, William and Yeman.

John Miller married Selina S. Neel, a daughter of Joseph Neel of Monroe County, West Virginia, and the following were the issue of their union: an infant son, who was born and died on March 5, 1838; Andrew O., whose name heads this sketch; Isabelle R., born May 14, 1846; Melvina J., born April 1, 1849; and James T. G., who was born July 26, 1853. Isabelle R. Miller married Robert Burdette of West Virginia, and their children are Rosa L. Burdette, born July 26, 1870; Ella S. S., born April 2, 1872; Mary Martha S., born July 10, 1874; Carrie Judson, born March 15, 1877; Emma B., born February 8, 1880; Robert O., born February 9, 1883; and Clara Elizabeth, born August 1, 1887. Melvina J. Miller married Andrew J. Burdette of Monroe County, West Virginia, and the following are their offspring: Cora A., born November 23, 1880; U. Grace, born July 8, 1885; Zella M., born April 17, 1887. James T. G. Miller was married to Dorothy Edds, and to them have been born four children—Vida, born August 21, 1885; C. Fay, born February 19, 1887; Myrtle M., born March 14, 1893; and Glenna H., born July 10, 1896.

Andrew O. Miller went to school in his home district, about nine miles west of the county seat in Monroe County, West Virginia. He taught school for one term in each of the following years, 1867, 1868, 1869, 1870, and in 1871, and in the meantime carried on agricultural pursuits. He was the owner of a farm of 400 acres, which he disposed of, and in 1872 he went west to Minnesota where he acquired a quarter section of land, located about eight miles west of Worthington, in Nobles County. He continued there until 1874, then sold out and after a time returned east, working at farming in every state through which he passed. He was for a time located in Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, and was able to see much of the country. He located in Butler County and engaged in house painting, in addition to farming, for a time, then moved to Fulton County, Pennsylvania, where he continued his former occupations and also worked at carpentering. He next went to the old home farm in Monroe County, West Virginia, visiting his mother and assisting in the care of the place. He moved to Clarion County, Pennsylvania, and again took up carpentering and painting, in connection with farming, then in 1885 returned to Butler County, purchasing a drug-store at Eau Claire of Dr. R. J. Grossman. He has since carried on the drug business with uninterrupted success, but has also devoted much of his energy to other enterprises. He became active in the Butler County and Ohio oil fields, and later became one of the stockholders in the Eau Claire Telephone Company, of which he was made bookkeeper and treasurer. He is a man of exceptional ability in business affairs and has prospered. His drug-store and residence are located on the same lot, and in addition to these he owns the property in which the hardware store is located, and a house and lot in the south part of the borough. He is a stockholder in the Eau Claire Telephone Company. He is a Republican in politics, and for fourteen years was school director, and twelve years director and trustee of Eau Claire Academy.

Mr. Miller was a conscript in the Southern Army, serving from 1862 until September 19, 1864, when he was taken prisoner at the battle of Winchester. He was held prisoner at Point Lookout, Maryland, until March 24, 1865, and except for the fact that he did not always get full rations, fared very well, a rugged constitution enabling him to stand the confinement without ill results.

Mr. Miller was united in marriage with Mary Ann McGinnis, a daughter of Thompson McGinnis of Butler County, Pennsylvania, and they have had four children: John T., who was born June 30, 1889, and died October 2, 1890; Zethina A., who was born March 18, 1892; T. A. Owen, who was born May 29, 1895, and is a student at Eau Claire Academy; and Rutherford B., who was born July 13, 1897, and is also in attendance at the academy. Religiously, Mr. Miller is a member of the Associate Presbyterian Church, of which he is a deacon, and has served twelve years as treasurer of the church board of publication, and the church organization.

OTHO J. GILLESPIE, an electrician by profession and a prominent business citizen of Ferris, Butler County, Pennsylvania, was born in Morgan County, Ohio, November 6, 1874. He is a son of Thomas B. and Sarah (Medley) Gillespie, and a grandson of David Gillespie.

David Gillespie and his wife, whose maiden name was Dumars, had the following children who grew to maturity: Alexander D., who married Nancy Lynn and had three children: E. P. (deceased), A. D., who is superintendent of the Greenville Electric Light Plant, and A. J. of Youngstown, Ohio; Sarah J., wife of J. L. Turner, by whom she has a son, John A., of Grove City, Pennsylvania; and Thomas B.

Thomas B. Gillespie married Sarah Medley, a daughter of Bazell Medley, and six children were born to them, namely: John T., who married Sarah Allen, daughter of James Allen of Mercer County, and has three children—Lea, May and William; Sarah J., wife of Grant Shuler of Washington Township, by whom she has five children—Sarah, Hannah, Arthur, Chloe and Thomas; Otho J.; Hannah L., wife of Robert Hovis of Washington Township, by whom she has two children, Eugene and Bessie; David, who is unmarried and lives at the home place; and Eugene B., who married Jessie Barber, a daughter of William Barber of Washington Township, and has a daughter, May.

Otho J. Gillespie first attended the public schools in Wayne County, Michigan, and afterward at Hilliard, Pennsylvania.

He then began working about the mines of this vicinity and was employed in various capacities at inside and outside work. Always ambitious for success, he zealously pursued a course of study in electricity through the International Correspondence School of Scranton as a means to that end. He installed a plant at the Keystone Mine, where he remained one and a half years, and in 1907 located at Ferris, which has since been his home. In 1909, he was employed by the Bessemer & Lake Erie Coal Mining Company to put in a plant in West Virginia. He purchased the Jerry Hilliard farm of sixty acres in Washington Township, from A. D. and T. B. Gillespie, and is the owner of three houses and lots in Hilliard. He also is a stockholder in the International School of Correspondence. His farm is an excellent property and is underlaid with coal, one of the banks having been opened. It has never been tested for oil or gas.

Fraternally, Mr. Gillespie is a member of Hilliard Lodge, No. 111, I. O. O. F.; and Hilliard Lodge, No. 92, K. P. He is a Democrat in politics and serves on the election board in Washington Township. In religious attachment, he attends the Methodist Episcopal Church. April 22, 1908, Mr. Gillespie began an enjoyable sojourn in England, which ended June 3, 1908, when he set sail from Liverpool.

CALEB B. MCFARLIN, a man well known to the people of Washington Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, has been a resident there since 1881, and has been prominently identified with its leading interests. He opened the first mine of what is now the Nellie Coal Company, an incorporated concern of which he is at the present time vice-president. It is capitalized at $8,000, and in addition to the subject of this sketch, its officers are H. K. Wiek, of Youngstown, Ohio, president; and W. D. Ward, of Buffalo, New York, secretary and treasurer. Employment is given to a force of 127 men, and 300 tons of coal are mined each day. The mines are located at a point known as Argentine, one-half mile from a railroad connection, but it is expected that railroad facilities will be provided in the near future. Before the organization of the company, Mr. McFarlin had 200 acres of land under lease; at the present time 750 acres are leased and 600 acres are owned by Mr. H. K. Wick. One well was drilled as a test on the Whitt property adjoining H. K. Wick property, and oil and gas were found in paying quantities.

Caleb B. McFarlin was born in West Middlesex, Mercer County, Pennsylvania, February 18, 1854, and is a son of Samuel and Mary (Kirkpatrick) McFarlin. He is of Scotch-Irish descent, but the family has been established in this country for some generations back. The maternal grandfather was Andrew Kirkpatrick, who saw service in the Continental Army during the Revolutionary War. Samuel and Mary McFarlin became parents of the following children: Harmon; Ralph, deceased; Mead, deceased; and Caleb B.

Mr. McFarlin is a Democrat in politics, but is inclined to be independent, giving his support to the man he deems best fitted for the office in issue. He is now serving a three years' term as road supervisor of Washington Township, and is game warden for Butler County. He is a sportsman of the highest, and as a marksman is unexcelled in the county. He is the owner of a valuable farm of 145 acres in Mercer County.

JOHN R. HELMBOLD, a prominent citizen, and postmaster at Saxonburg, was born at Saxonburg, Butler County, Pennsylvania, July 5, 1862, and is a son of Theodore and Mary E. (Graham) Helmbold.

The Helmbold family came to these parts about the same time as the Roebing

—the pioneer family—and has been an important one in the upbuilding of this section. The grandparents, John G. and Frederika (Speack) Helmbold settled in Jefferson Township, Butler County, in 1834. John G. Helmbold bought 800 acres when he settled in Jefferson Township, and there the late John G. Helmbold was born. He married Mary E. Graham and they had ten children born to them, namely; John R., Etta L., Charles R., Louis A., Clarence E., Elmer G., James A., and three deceased.

With the exception of four years, during which he was gaining mercantile experience in a store at Evans City, John R. Helmbold has spent his life in Butler County and identified himself with her interests. He assisted his father in his youth in his store, the latter conducting a large mercantile business here through many years, and also worked on the farm. Since March, 1906, he has been the popular postmaster of Saxonburg and, although not an active politician, has served on the School Board and Election Board. He is a man of public spirit and of progressive ideas and has recently installed a new telephone plant, which is a sub-license of the Bell Company, and which is a great convenience to the people of Saxonburg in general.

Mr. Helmbold is a member of the Woodmen of the World and the Maccabees, and was formerly active in the Odd Fellows and Knights of Pythias. He has been very prominent in the Knights of Maccabees and has served in official positions in the order for some twelve years.

DAVID S. CRISWELL*, a leading resident of Isle, has been identified with the oil industry for many years, and has large interests in Butler County, as well as in other sections. He was born in Clarion County, Penna., January 12, 1842, son of Robert and Sarah (Pickles) Criswell. Mr.

Criswell's paternal grandfather served in the Revolutionary War, and after its close settled as a pioneer in Indiana.

Robert Criswell, father of the subject of this sketch, was born in Dearborn County, Ind. In early manhood he went to Armstrong County, where he was engaged for many years in the hotel business. In 1861 he went into the oil country and drilled the first well on Cherry Run, Venango County, but this well did not produce until after he had leased it to William Reed, who shot the well with a torpedo. It is said that this was the first time that this since common expedient was resorted to. He continued his experiments and operations in this field until he had secured an ample fortune, and then retired to Aurora, Indiana, where he spent the remainder of his life. A Democrat in politics, he served as justice of the peace at Oil City, Armstrong County. He married Sarah Pickles, who was born in England, and of their thirteen children eleven grew to maturity. The parents were members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

David S. Criswell was reared near Monterey, Armstrong County, and from boyhood was associated more or less with his father's enterprises in the oil fields. After the elder Criswell sold out his interests, the subject of this sketch continued his operations, which he has since extended all over the Pennsylvania oil territory. In 1890 he began to operate his present lease and now has twelve wells that are producing. Since 1902 he has resided in the pleasant village of Isle.

Mr. Criswell's success has been largely due to his powers of close observation and to his original methods of thought. In the prosecution of his daily business he has been led to delve deeply into Nature's secrets and to inquire closely into the causes that have had to do with the laying down of the vast stores of petroleum contained within the earth's crust in order that he might have some tangible clue to guide him in the selection of new localities for drilling and avoid the heavy financial losses that are the usual sequel of haphazard work in this direction. In his investigations he has not been content to accept the views laid down in the ordinary geologic text books, but has developed ideas and theories of his own which are in accord rather with the doctrine of special creation than with the modern geological theory that the present condition and arrangement of the earth's crust and surface is the result of a long series of natural processes operating successively through immense periods of time. His views he has elucidated in a number of articles which have been published at different times in leading journals devoted to the oil and gas industry. Certainly his success in locating profitable wells would indicate that he is possessed of knowledge, which for practical purposes is superior to any mere theories developed by college professors, however ingenious and attractive they may appear in the class-room.

Mr. Criswell married Miss Mary E. Widger, and they have five children, namely: Robert, Mrs. Mabel Cotterell, residing at home; Cecil, who married Robert K. Williams, of San Francisco; Byron G., who is a resident of Rawhide, Nevada; Minnie L. Nevins, who resides in New York City. In politics Mr. Criswell is a Republican. He takes an intelligent interest in both local and national governmental affairs, but has never sought office.

W. J. McDOWELL*, proprietor of the McDowell Laundry, which is situated on South McKean Street, Butler, is one of the city's progressive business men and substantial citizens. He was born in 1855, in Mercer County, Pennsylvania, where he was reared and educated.

Mr. McDowell's early life was devoted mainly to farming, but after he came to Butler, in 1890, he embarked in the laundry business and established the first steam laundry in the place. He started his plant near the flats along the Bessemer Railroad, but when the tracks began to encroach, he bought his present site on McKean Street and on this land built a substantial building with dimensions of 30 by 100 feet, with boiler rooms in the rear. In 1896 he took possession of it and has done a large and satisfactory business ever since. He gives employment to twenty-one people, makes a specialty of fine work, the possibility of this being increased as Mr. McDowell continues to add superior equipments to his already very modern establishment. He has other business interests, being a stockholder in the People's Telephone Company; in the Butler Silk mill and in the American Mower works.

On March 28, 1877, Mr. McDowell was married to Miss Elizabeth Smith, and they have four children, namely: Lawrence H., who is associated with his father; John Q. A. and Paul F., both concerned in the laundry business; and James W. Mr. McDowell is an Odd Fellow, a member of Connoquenessing Lodge. He is not particularly active in politics, but cheerfully performs the duties of a citizen and is numbered with those who represent its best interests.

JOHN EDGAR THROWER, general farmer and stockholder, being particularly interested in developing fancy cattle and fast horses, resides on his valuable farm of eighty acres, which is situated in Clinton Township, about three miles from Saxonburg, on the Laidentown and Saxonburg Road. Mr. Thrower was born December 20, 1862, on the present farm, and is a son of Matthew and Mary (Alderson) Thrower.

The father of Mr. Thrower was born in Lincolnshire, England. He came to Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, in early manhood, and for a number of years was engaged in the charcoal industry and at one time was a river man, sailing on both the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers. The money with which he purchased the farm of his son, John Edgar, was made in charcoal. At the time of purchase it was not valuable as it now is, because its present owner has greatly improved it, but it has always been considered excellent land. Matthew Thrower married in America and both he and wife died in Butler County and their remains lie in the old Sarver cemetery. They had four children, as follows: Thomas; John Edgar; Nettie, who married John McCurdy, and had one son, Walter, since deceased; and Mary Jane. The last mentioned is deceased. She was married (first) to George Crout, who left one daughter, Sadie. She was married (second) to Richard Parker.

Since the death of his father, John Edgar Thrower has been at the head of the farm. He obtained his education in the public schools, attended the Love School when it was under the care of Professor Fulton, and he completed his education at the Saxonburg High School. Formerly Mr. Thrower raised Jersey cattle, but for several years has been more interested in Durhams, of which he has a fine herd. He raises horses for speed, mainly for his own use, but they command a very high price on account of the records many have made. Mr. Thrower believes it is as easy to raise live stock of good blood as of the commoner kind and assuredly it is more profitable. Mr. Thrower is unmarried. He is a consistent member of the Lutheran Church.

ELI VANDYKE is a prosperous farmer and well known citizen of Marion Township, Butler County, Penna., where he has a well improved farm of eighty-six acres. He was born on the old family homestead in that township, April 27, 1852, and is a son of Thomas and Mary (Monjar) Vandyke, and a grandson of Samuel Vandyke.

Samuel Vandyke was of Scotch descent and became one of the earliest settlers of Marion Township, where he acquired 300 acres of land. This was in a wild and uncultivated state at the time of his arrival and it was necessary for him to make a small clearing before he built a log cabin, which served as the family home for some years. He later built a stone house which was one of the best in all the surrounding country at that time.

Thomas Vandyke, father of the subject of this record, was one of three sons and three daughters born to his parents, the date of his birth being 1805. He was born on the home place in Marion Township and died on the same farm in 1880, at the age of seventy-five years. He was united in marriage with Miss Mary Monjar, who was born in Venango County, Pennsylvania, in June, 1807, and is now living at the remarkable age of one hundred and one years, and in the enjoyment of good health and unimpaired faculties. Nine children were born of this union: Isabella, wife of J. C. Hutchison; Richard, deceased; Elizabeth, deceased; Mary Ann, wife of James Dugan; Julia, wife of Peter Ghost; Sarah, who was wife of John Dugan, both being now deceased; James McMillen of Marion Township; Frances, wife of R. M. Hover; Joseph, who lives on the old homestead; and Eli.

Eli Vandyke was the youngest of the family born to his parents, and spent his boyhood days on the old farm. He received but little schooling, his inclination being to get out and make his way in the world. He lived at home with his father and mother until he was thirty years old when he was married. He always engaged in farming in his younger days, and shortly after his second marriage moved upon his present farm which he purchased of Mrs. Vanderbilt. He has three good producing wells on this property and for a period of twenty years has been identified with the oil industry, leaving the care of the farm to his sons. He is at the present time pumping for the Mechanicsville Oil Company.

Mr. Vandyke was first married to Miss Orsina Dunlap, who did not live many years after their union. They had four children: Clarence, Floyd, Joseph and Velma. Mr. Vandyke was subsequently married to Mrs. Laura Shields, widow of Samuel Shields and a daughter of Nicholas Yard. A daughter, Miss Ruth, was born to them. Religiously, they are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The subject of this sketch is a Republican in politics, and has consistently supported the principles advocated by that party. He is a member of the Knights and Ladies of Honor.

GEORGE and CHARLES WEIGAND* are prosperous and progressive farmers of Butler County, Pennsylvania, the former owning a farm in Winfield Township, and the latter in Buffalo Township, each consisting of fifty acres. They are brothers and are sons of Valentine and Henrietta (Miller) Weigand, and grandsons of Daniel Weigand, who emigrated to this country from Germany and settled on the farms now owned by his grandsons in Butler County, Pennsylvania. He cleared most of the land and was a successful man of his day.

Valentine and Henrietta (Miller) Weigand became parents of the following children: Sophia, deceased, married Christian Kimmer, by whom she had three children—Walter, Edna and Eugenia, the latter being now deceased; Louise married Nicholas Mangel and had the following children—Walter (deceased), Gertrude, George and Ernie; Conrad is single and lives in Butler; Anna is the wife of William Post, by whom she had three children—Chester (deceased), Henrietta and William Lee; George, the next in order; Charles; and Mary, who died unmarried.

George and Charles Weigand are both engaged in general farming and have well improved farms; they are public spirited and always found in support of such measures and enterprises as tend to benefit the community. The former operates a threshing machine and does most of the work in that line in this part of the country. They belong to Saxonburg Lodge No. 72, K. P. Both are members of the Lutheran church, of which Charles is church librarian, and on Sundays takes the contributions.

JAMES M. HINES,* one of Slippery Rock Township's large land owners and representative farmers and stockraisers, resides on his estate of ninety-three acres, which is situated on the New Castle Road, about one mile west of Slippery Rock, and also owns fifty more acres in this township, lying along the Plain Grove Road. Mr. Hines was born July 17, 1848, in Slippery Rock Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of William and Margaret (Robison) Hines.

William Hines was born in Brady Township, Butler County, and was a son of Richard Hines, who was born in County Down, Ireland, and came to Butler County when eighteen years of age. He lived in Worth Township, near Brady, in Butler County, and there subsequently married a Miss Brandon. William Hines spent his life in Butler County and both he and wife died on their farm in Slippery Rock Township. Of their family of ten children, eight are living.

James M. Hines was reared and educated in Slippery Rock Township and like his father and grandfather has devoted himself to agricultural pursuits. His land, naturally fertile, has been made unusually productive by his methods of cultivation, and he has been equally successful in his management of stock, as his fine herds and flocks, scattered over his rich pastures, sufficiently prove.

Mr. Hines has been twice married, (first) to Miss Sarah Cornelius, who, at death, left four children, namely: Margaret Lavina, who married Finley Taylor, and has four children; Lillie Rosella, who married Henry Taylor, and has four children; Vinnie Annetta, who married Perry Davis, and has one child, Ray; and Irona S. Muriel, who married Andrew Pounds, and has two children. Mr. Hines was married (second) to Miss Hannah Reed, and they have two children—William Reed, who is married and lives in Slippery Rock; and John Ross, who resides at home.

Mr. Hines and family have resided on the present farm since he purchased it in April, 1886, purchasing his second property in 1898. He cultivates both, and in 1901 he built his commodious modern residence on the former farm and made many other improvements. Mr. Hines and family are highly respected people of this section. Neither he nor his sons are very active in politics, but they are all numbered with the reliable and representative citizens of Slippery Rock Township.

HENRY GERNER,* general manager of the G. L. Cabot Gas and Carbon Company, in Winfield Township, owns a fine farm of 106 acres, which lies on the Sarsversville Road, three miles east of Cabot, a valuable property containing agricultural possibilities as well as reservoirs of gas. Mr. Gerner was born January 13, 1863, near East Brady Bend, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Anthony and Elizabeth (Boltz) Gerner.

The parents of Mr. Gerner were born in Germany. The father accompanied his father to America many years ago, was reared on the paternal farm and later settled on the farm in Winfield Township which is now the property of his son Henry, and there Anthony Gerner and wife died.

Henry Gerner has lived in several different States, but his native State and county have always been of most importance to him. During his school period he was with a brother in Illinois and later he engaged in farming in Bremer County, Iowa; he also visited Fargo, North Dakota, then went back to Illinois and from there returned to Butler County. Since then Mr. Gerner has been engaged in farming and raising stock, on his present place, and also in developing his gas industry, this commodity being sold as produced to the G. L. Cabot Gas and Carbon Company. Mr. Gerner has been identified with this organization for some years. He began in a humble position but has always had the confidence of his employers and his promotion from one position to another has come about as the natural result of his fidelity and efficiency. He has been general manager for the past three years.

On April 5, 1889, Mr. Gerner was married to Catherine Roenigk who is a daughter of Henry and Catherine (Schrump) Roenigk. They have four interesting, intelligent children: Anna May, Margaret G., Herman, and Roy Arthur Henry. Mr. and Mrs. Gerner are members of the Lutheran Church at Little Germany. Mr. Gerner is an enterprising, progressive business man who stands very high throughout the whole extent of Winfield Township.

JOSIAH BYERS,* a well known general farmer of Concord Township, and owner of a tract of twenty-two acres of farm land, resides on a farm of seventy-three acres, on which he has a life lease. He was born December 11, 1852, in Clarion County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Simon and Christina (Byers) Byers, both natives of Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania.

Simon and Christina Byers resided for about thirty years in Clarion County and reared a family of twelve children: Henry, Simon, George, John, Samuel, and Reuben, all deceased; Thomas, Isaac, Mary, Josiah; David, deceased; and Esther, deceased.

Josiah Byers was about twelve years old when his parents moved from Clarion to Armstrong County, Pennsylvania. Owing to ill health and the distance of the school from his home, he received but a limited amount of schooling. He became a farmer by occupation and remained in Armstrong County, engaged in agricultural pursuits, until 1887, when he came to Butler County and located on his present farm in Concord Township. He has always followed general farming and in 1902 purchased his tract of twenty-two acres at a sheriff's sale.

In June, 1884, Mr. Byers was united in marriage with Anna L. King, who died in 1898, leaving four children: Mary, Ollie, John and Samuel. Mr. Byers formed a second union January 22, 1903, with Esther (Miller) Day, a widow, and by this marriage has two children: Isaac and Hazel. Mr. Byers is one of the progressive farmers of the township and is regarded as one of the leading and valued citizens of his community.

MRS. ELLSWORTH EWING,* one of the well known and very highly esteemed residents of Winfield Township, prominent in church and social life in her community, resides on the old Blaine homestead, a farm of ninety acres, which is situated three miles from Cabot, on the south side of the Bricker Road. Mrs. Ewing was born on this farm, January 15, 1867, and is a daughter of John P. and Nancy (Blaine) Bricker.

The father of Mrs. Ewing died in 1887 and was one of Winfield Township's well known citizens. He married Nancy Blaine, who is a daughter of James and Margaret (Morrison) Blaine, the eldest of their seven children. Mr. and Mrs. Bricker had two children: James B. and Anna E. After the death of the father the homestead was divided between the two children and James B. carries on the work on the farm.

Anna E. Bricker was educated in the country schools and grew into an intelligent, well poised young woman, with a sunny disposition which brought many friends. On June 4, 1889, she was married to Ellsworth Ewing, who is a son of John L. Ewing, the latter of whom is engaged in the oil business in Armstrong County. Ellsworth Ewing has visited many sections in his business of drilling for oil and has met with much success. He also carries on farming. Mr. and Mrs. Ewing have five children, namely: Mabel, born in 1889, is a student at the Cabot Institute; John W., born in 1891, attends school and also works on the farm; Estella, born in 1893, has musical talent which she is preparing to cultivate; Ralph, born in 1895, and Ruth, born in 1897, attend the local school. Mrs. Ewing and family belong to the Buffalo Presbyterian Church. She is very active in its work and is a leader in the missionary and benevolent societies. The family residence is a very comfortable two-story house set amid pleasant surroundings.

JAMES ANDREW GILLGRIST,* who is the owner of 100 acres of land in Marion Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is engaged in general farming and is also a dealer in live stock. He was born on the old home farm in Marion Township, September 2, 1868, and is a son of Thomas and Maria (Hoffman) Gillgrist, and a grandson of John Gillgrist.

John Gillgrist, the grandfather, came to this country from Ireland, and at the time he settled in Marion Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, it was in a wild uncultivated state. He made a clearing and followed farming here the remainder of his long and useful life. He was the father of three children—John, Thomas and Harvey, of whom Thomas is the only one now living.

Thomas Gillgrist was born and reared on the farm which is now his home, and aided in its clearing. He has always followed farming. His first marriage was with Miss Isabella Donaldson, whose death occurred a few months afterward. He was later married to Miss Maria Hoffman, who was reared in Venango County, Pennsylvania, and who died in February, 1908, at the age of sixty-four years. Three children were the offspring of their union: John, who lives on the home farm; James Andrew, subject of this biography; and George, who married Zella Thompson and lives on a part of the home farm. John Gillgrist married Minerva VanDyke and they have three children—Richard, Delbert and Thomas.

James A. Gillgrist was reared in Marion Township and attended the public school during his boyhood days. He learned and followed the trade of a carpenter when a young man, then turned his attention to agricultural pursuits, at which he has been so successful. He purchased the old Marshall farm of 100 acres in Marion Township, on which he erected all of the present modern and substantial buildings, having a highly improved property.

Mr. Gillgrist was married in May, 1892, to Miss Abbie VanDyke, a daughter of Jackson VanDyke of Marion Township, a sketch of whom appears on another page of this work. Five children are the issue of this union: Ralph, Hazel, Pearl, Myrtle and Dalas. Religiously they are members of the Church of God. Mr. Gillgrist is a Democrat in politics, and is serving his second term as tax collector. He is a man of high character and sterling qualities, and stands high in public esteem.

HENRY PFABE*, who owns a fine farm of thirty acres, which is situated in Jefferson Township, on the north side of the Jefferson Center Road, about one and one-half miles from Saxonburg, was born February 12, 1854, in Jefferson Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Henry and Amena (Hoffman) Pfabe.

The father of Mr. Pfabe came to Jefferson Township from Germany and was one of the first settlers of Saxonburg. He was of that class of men denominated jack of all trades, that is he was able to work well at various industries and kept himself usefully employed, at the time of his death being engaged in farming. His father also came from Germany to America and died at Red Bank, Pennsylvania.

The second Henry Pfabe, now of Jefferson Township, has mainly devoted his attention to farming, but has also been somewhat interested in gas production and owns a certain percentage in one producing well. On his farm he raises the usual grains that do best in this locality and also plenty of stock for his own use. He married Caroline Cooper, who is a daughter of John and Anna Martha (Reiger) Cooper, the former of whom is a well known farmer of Jefferson Township, where he still resides with his wife and five children. Mr. and Mrs. Pfabe have two children: Anna Martha, who is the wife of William Jackson, an employe of the Plate Glass Factory at Butler, and has three children, Leroy, Theresa and Clifford; and Clifford, who married Mary Kirkpatrick, and has one daughter, Evelyn. Clifford Pfabe and family reside at Cabot, where he follows the carpenter's trade. Mr. Pfabe is a member of the Lutheran Church. He takes some interest in local politics and has served two terms as township supervisor.

JOSEPH C. THOMPSON*, general farmer and substantial citizen, residing on his well improved estate of sixty acres, situated in Franklin Township, was born in Beaver County, Pennsylvania, October 11, 1856, and is a son of Joseph W. and Cordelia (Caldwell) Thompson.

Joseph W. Thompson was a son of Joseph Thompson and was born in Beaver County, about 1829 and died in 1890. He engaged in farming, took a mild interest in public matters, voted with the Democratic party and held minor township offices. He was one of the liberal supporters of Mt. Zion Baptist Church. He married a daughter of Samuel Caldwell, of Beaver County, and of their children the following grew to maturity: Elizabeth, wife of Robert McKissick, of Homewood, Beaver County; Samuel, a resident of Beaver Falls; Joseph C.; Rosanna, wife of George Sarver, of Franklin Township; Margaret, wife of Martin McAnallen, of Center Township; John E., of Beaver County; and Mary, wife of Frank Thompson, of Freedom, Pennsylvania.

Joseph C. Thompson was six years old when his parents settled on his present farm. His education was secured in the public schools and he has made use of it intelligently and successfully managing his land, giving attention to raising corn, oats, wheat, potatoes and hay and some excellent stock. His surroundings present an appearance of care and thrift and when the residence he has in course of construction is completed, it will be one of the handsomest and most modern in type in the township.

Mr. Thompson was married (first) to Dillie Ruby, a daughter of Harrison Ruby, of Franklin Township. She died in 1884, aged twenty-eight years, leaving three children, namely: Cora, who is the wife of Dr. Ross W. Thompson, of McKean, Pennsylvania; Pearl, residing at home; and Jessie, now deceased, who was the wife of Robert Moore. Mr. Thompson was married (second) to Miss Martha Long, who is the daughter of J. B. Long, of Franklin Township. Mrs. Thompson is a member of the Lutheran Church at Prospect, while Mr. Thompson belongs to the Mt. Zion Baptist Church. In politics he is a Democrat and has served as township auditor.

JOHN GEORGE SELL*, who is among the most successful of the younger generation of farmers of Winfield Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, is the owner of a fine farm of sixty-one acres, all under a high state of cultivation. He was born in Winfield Township, is a son of Conrad and Catherine (Zier) Sell, and grandson of Nunk and Mary (Harding) Sell, the family being an old and prominent one in this part of the county.

Conrad Sell was a prosperous farmer of Winfield Township where he spent nearly all the days of his life, dying on March 11, 1906. He was the father of six children: John G., August, who married Valley Hesselgesser and has three children—Clarence, Gladys, and Lionel; Herman, a stone mason by trade, who also follows threshing and sawing in the county; Bart married Rickie Fernia and has a daughter, Mary; William works on the old home farm; and Harrison also is at the old home. Mrs. Sell, the mother of this family, lives on the old home place, where she has lived for the past thirty-six years and is surrounded by many old friends.

John G. Sell received his educational training in the public schools of his native county, and has always engaged in agricultural pursuits, at which he has made an unqualified success. He has a comfortable home of seven rooms, located on a part of the old home place, and has sixty-one acres of good tillable land. He was married on June 6, 1899, and is the father of four children: Catherine, deceased, Velma V., Ella, and Howard. Religiously, he is a member of the Lutheran Church of Little Germany, and is very active in church work.

P. W. LEEDOM*, second vice president of the Leedom & Worrall Wholesale Grocery Company, at Butler, one of the largest enterprises of its kind in Western Pennsylvania, was born in Warren County, Pennsylvania, in 1879, but was brought to this city by his parents, when four years old.

Mr. Leedom secured his education in the Butler public schools. His first mercantile experience was gained as a clerk in the clothing store of D. A. Heck, of Butler, and later with J. N. Patterson, in the same line, with whom he continued for eleven years. Mr. Leedom then went into the wholesale grocery business at Marietta, under the firm style of the Worrall Grocery Company, and while the business remained in Ohio, he served for four years as vice president of the concern. Finding a wider commercial field at Butler, the business was transferred to this city where it has been conducted ever since under the present style of the Leedom & Worrall Wholesale Grocery Company, and Mr. Leedom has served as second vice president ever since its organization. He is an active citizen, but in taking a stand in public affairs he is deliberate and cautious, as he is in the management of his own business.

In 1893 Mr. Leedom was married to Miss Ivarine Wilson, who was born in the State of New York. They have two daughters, Janet and Helen. Mr. Leedom and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a very popular citizen and is a member of the exclusive Country Club.

THOMAS D. McFARLAND*, general farmer and respected citizen of Clinton Township, resides on his valuable estate of eighty-five acres, which is situated on the Tarentum and Saxonburg Road, two miles southeast of the latter place. He was born March 31, 1844, in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of William and Rebecca (Davis) McFarland, the former of whom was a son of an early settler, who came to Allegheny County from Washington County.

Thomas D. McFarland obtained his education in Allegheny County and as soon as old enough, he learned the carpenter's trade, at which he worked until he enlisted for service in the Civil War. He was a member of the Fiftieth Regiment, Pennsylvania Infantry, under Colonel Swank, and was attached to the Army of the Potomac.

He took part in a number of the serious battles toward the close of the long struggle, and was one of that victorious army that compelled the surrender of General Lee. In 1882, Mr. McFarland came to Butler County and engaged in farming, and in 1900 he purchased his present place in Clinton Township, on which he carries on farming and stockraising. He has made many improvements and has a very attractive residence and large and substantial farm buildings.

Mr. McFarland was married (first) in 1877, to Miss Emma Neely, a daughter of George Neely. He was married (second) to Miss Martha Baker, a daughter of Thomas and Rebecca (Boone) Baker, farming people living near Bakerstown, in Allegheny County. Mr. and Mrs. McFarland are members of the Presbyterian Church. He has long been active in politics and has frequently been elected to responsible offices, serving both in Penn and Clinton Townships as township treasurer, and three terms as township supervisor.

SAMUEL RENWICK WIER*, whose farm of twenty-five acres is situated in Adams Township, has spent a large portion of his life in the different oil fields and is an experienced worker in the various branches of the oil industry. He was born on his father's farm in Beaver County, Pennsylvania, August 19, 1862, and is a son of John and Jane (Pyle) Wier.

Grandfather Wier came to America from Germany, with two brothers but they became separated shortly afterward. Grandfather Wier came to Butler County and married but disappeared shortly after the birth of his son John. It is supposed by the family that he was accidentally drowned. At a later date his widow moved to Lawrence County, where she married a Mr. Stewart and they had two sons, Thomas and James Stewart.

John Wier, father of Samuel R., grew to manhood in Lawrence County and in early manhood married Margaret Moffett, who died very soon after the birth of their only child, Thomas, who was a soldier in the Civil War and is now a resident of Missouri. For his second wife, John Wier married Jane Pyle, a daughter of Caleb Pyle, of Lawrence County, and they had the following children: John C.; Caleb E.; Johanna, who married James Randerpoole; Rosetta, deceased; Samuel R., Letitia Jane, who married John Stewart; Mary A., who married Harry Ewing; and Amos L. The father of the above family died at the age of forty-three years. His widow survived him until the age of sixty years.

Samuel R. Wier was reared in Beaver County, to which his father moved when he was small, buying two farms there. After the death of his father, Samuel R. remained with his mother until he was twenty years old, on the farm at Camp Run, and then went to Butler County and rented a farm of Dr. Urvine, who was an uncle of his wife. He remained on that farm for five years but when the sensational discovery of oil was made in Butler County, he decided to enter into the oil business. He engaged in pumping, tool-dressing and drilling all through the oil territory of Pennsylvania and West Virginia and for ten years was foreman for Walker Kirk. In 1904 Mr. Wier resumed farming, at that time purchasing his present property from the Richardson estate. It had been badly neglected but Mr. Wier's previous experience had given him the necessary knowledge required for fertilizing the land and he has developed it into a productive farm. He has done a great deal of improving and probably has doubled the value of the place.

On November 18, 1884, Mr. Wier was married to Margaret J. McAnlis, who is a daughter of David and Elizabeth McAnlis, of Adams Township. They have five children, as follows: Alva Seward, Joseph Howard, Bessie May, Angeline E. and Cecil Quillen. Mr. Wier is a member of the United Presbyterian Church. In his political views he is a strong Republican. He is considered a reliable citizen and at various times offices of responsibility, in the township, have been entrusted to his management and the duties of these have been efficiently performed.

JOHN S. SPARGO*, who, for the past eight years has been the accommodating and popular agent of the Winfield Railroad Company, at West Winfield, has been identified with railroad affairs ever since he entered into business. He was born on his father's farm two miles from Freeport, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Peter and Margaret (Bremer) Spargo.

The parents of Mr. Spargo have lived retired for some years. The grandfather was a well known river man at one time and operated a steamboat between Pittsburg and New Orleans. The children of Peter Spargo and wife were Mary, Sarah, Amelia, Elizabeth, James and John S.

John S. Spargo was educated in the schools of Armstrong County and later learned telegraphing and the first details of railroad business, at Butler Junction, and has devoted his life to this line of work. His duties at West Winfield are numerous but are so carefully looked after that the safety of the public is ensured and the company's full confidence is placed in him.

Mr. Spargo was married in 1897, to Miss Emma Krise, who is a daughter of Dr. Krise, of Altoona, Pennsylvania, and they have six children, namely: Margaret, Cecil, Audley, Severinus, Bremer and Enos. With his family, Mr. Spargo belongs to the Roman Catholic Church. The family home is a commodious residence situated on Walnut Street, West Winfield. Mr. Spargo is a Maccabee and is affiliated with the order at West Winfield.

PETER W. ALBERT*, one of Allegheny Township's prominent and most substantial citizens, who has resided on his valuable farm of 172 acres, since 1896, was born in Franklin Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, January 28, 1854, and is a son of Peter and Rachel (Miller) Albert.

Among the earliest settlers of Franklin Township, Butler County, was Adam Albert, who was born in Virginia. His family accompanied him into what was then a wilderness, and there both he and wife died. Peter Albert, son of Adam and father of Peter W., was a child when his parents came to Franklin Township and there his whole subsequent life was spent, his death taking place December 17, 1895. He married Rachel Miller, who has spent her entire life of eighty-seven years in Butler County. Of their children, the six survivors are: John D., residing at Prospect, Pennsylvania; Peter W.; Oren M., living in Franklin Township; Mary A., wife of J. G. McCullough, residing at Kittanning; Annie Z., wife of Everett Campbell, of Franklin Township; and Rachel C., also a resident of Franklin Township. The venerable mother, now one of the oldest pioneer women of that section, is a daughter of Richard Miller, one of the earliest settlers. Mrs. Albert retains her faculties to a remarkable degree and her recollections of the early times in Franklin Township are very interesting. Both she and her late husband were among the founders of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in their neighborhood.

Peter W. Albert obtained his education in the public schools of Franklin Township. He learned the shoemaking trade and worked at it for eighteen years, during the larger part of this time having his own business. Later he engaged for some years in the oil industry, in Clarion, Allegheny and Butler Counties, but in the spring of 1893, turned his attention to agricultural pursuits in Franklin Township, and three years later took possession of his present valuable property in Allegheny Township. During a period of residence in Mercer Township, he served for three years as constable, but has accepted no political office since locating in Allegheny Township. In politics he is a Republican, as was his father.

On October 14, 1876, Mr. Albert was married to Miss Elizabeth Youkers, who was born in Center Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, a daughter of the late Jacob Youkers. They have four children, namely: Edward R., who lives in Allegheny Township; Caroline C., who is the wife of J. A. Albert, of Avalon, Pennsylvania; Anna L., who is the wife of Austin Ritter, of Allegheny Township; and Carl W., who lives at Westview, Pennsylvania. Mr. Albert and family belong to the Allegheny Presbyterian Church. He is a member of the order of Maccabees at Foxburg, Pennsylvania.

PHILIP P. KRAUSE*, who conducts a general store at Saxonburg, operating under the firm name of A. Krause & Son, is a successful business man and one of the youngest merchants in the county. He was reared to the business, working in his father's store at Marwood during his school days, and was about twenty-seven years old when he embarked in his present business at Saxonburg. His store is one of the largest and most complete to be found in any village in Butler County, and its trade is an extensive one.

Mr. Krause was born in Marwood, Pennsylvania, June 25, 1877, and is a son of Alphonse and Amelia (Leighthold) Krause. Alphonse Krause has for many years been a prosperous merchant at Marwood, and also engages in agricultural pursuits. He and his wife are parents of the following children: Emma, who is the widow of Henry Paul and has two children, Edna and Chester; Albert, who married Gertrude Miller and has three children,— Gladys, Verna and Kenneth; Lydia, who married Rev. Philip Willehm and has five children; Josephine, who is wife of Harry H. Goetz; Hattie; Philip; and Clara, deceased.

Philip P. Krause received his educational training in the public schools of his native county, and in boyhood his business education began in his father's establishment in Marwood. At Saxonburg they own the property on which his store and residence are located, the land, which consists of two acres, extending from Main Street back to Water Street. The building is a two-story structure of modern arrangement, is substantially built and equipped with a slate roof. He has taken a forward position among the progressive men of the community, and has been most active in the furtherance of its best interests.

Mr. Krause was married February 21, 1905, to Miss Clara E. Hartenstein, a daughter of Lewis and Caroline (Beck) Hartenstein, her father being a merchant in Great Belt. Religiously, they are members of the English Lutheran Church, in the affairs of which he is very active. He is a member of Lodge No. 279, Knights of Pythias, and is past chancellor commander. Mr. Krause is at the present time a member of the Saxonburg town council.

W. D. McCUNE, M. D.,* one of the best known physicians in North Butler County, with which he has been identified for the past twenty-eight years, has been established at Branchton since 1898, coming to this flourishing town from Bovard, where he had been engaged in medical practice for eighteen years. He was born near Grove City, Mercer County, Pennsylvania, October 5, 1847, and is a son of Robert and Jane (Devin) McCune.

Dr. McCune's boyhood was passed on his father's farm, his educational advantages being covered by the few winter months when farm work was at a standstill. He was ambitious, however, and made much of his limited opportunities and later entered Grove City College. From boyhood his study and observation had been in the direction of medical science and after leaving college he persevered until he became a student in the medical department of the Miami University at Cincinnati, Ohio, from which institution he was graduated in 1879. He immediately settled at Bovard, which village offered a promising field at that time, and from there he came to his new home followed by the appreciation and good will of those to whom he had ministered so long. He has been most cordially received at Branchton and has a large and lucrative practice. His handsome residence he erected since coming to this place.

Dr. McCune married Miss Mary Cosgrove and they have one son, Harry B. He is engaged as freight agent at Grove City for the Bessemer Railroad and is a highly esteemed young business man. He married Miss May Bovard, a daughter of W. H. Bovard, Esq., and to them were born three children: Velma, and Henry and Harriet, twins. The young mother died when her twin babies were six weeks old and they are being reared by Dr. and Mrs. McCune. The older daughter lives with her maternal grandparents.

In all that concerns the public welfare, Dr. McCune has shown a continued interest, but his professional duties have more or less prevented his accepting public office. He is a member of the Odd Fellows, having been identified with that organization since he was twenty-one years of age.

WILLIAM MCINTYRE, of Danville, Butler County, Penna., is engaged in agricultural pursuits and makes his home with his sister, Mrs. Martha Iman. He is a veteran of the Union Army, having served from the first year of the Civil War until its close, and took part in many of its most important engagements.

Mr. McIntyre was born in Indiana County, Pennsylvania, October 30, 1844, and is a son of Hugh and Alice McIntyre. His father also served in the Union Army during the Civil War and lived to the age of sixty-eight years. The mother of the subject of this sketch died at the age of seventy-six years. They were parents of the following children: Nancy J., deceased; James, deceased; John; Hugh; Rebecca; Anna, deceased; William; Levina; Martha (Iman); Harry; Tillie; and Margaret.

William McIntyre resided in Indiana County, Pennsylvania, until he entered the army. He enlisted in 1861 at Greensburg, Pennsylvania, as a private in Company D, Forty-sixth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and served until 1865, being mustered out at Harrisburg. Among the battles in which he took part may be mentioned Tunnel Hill, Pine Knob, Resaca, Peach Tree Creek, Atlanta, Savannah, Chattanooga and Bentonville, the last named engagement being the last fought during the war.

In 1865 Mr. McIntyre was united in marriage with Miss Maggie J. Ingram, and five children were born to them: Mary K., deceased; Agnes, deceased; Matilda, deceased; David E.; and Mary J., deceased. David E. McIntyre, the only one of the family living, is a resident of Scottdale, Westmoreland County; he married Lottie Donahue and they have four children.

William McIntyre was for some years a resident of Scottdale, where he served as chief of police, and of Livermore, where he faithfully discharges the duties of the offices of street commissioner, tax collector and constable, at different times. He is a member of Ellsworth Post, No. 209, G. A. R., of Livermore, and a member of the Royal Arcanum, Knights of Labor, and Junior Order United American Mechanics at Scottdale. Religiously, he is a member of the Methodist Church at Livermore, and served a number of years as steward and trustee of the church organization.

GODFREY WILKEWITZ,* one of Buffalo Township's substantial citizens, resides on his farm of fifty-three acres and owns a second farm of thirty acres, the two valuable pieces of property being divided by the Bear Creek road and both lie about one-half mile south of Sarver. Mr. Wilkewitz was born in Dantzig, Germany, February 20, 1852, and is a son of Frederick and Mary (Memberg) Wilkewitz.

Jacob Wilkewitz, the grandfather, was a soldier under Napoleon in Russia, being one of the 22,000 men that the King of Prussia turned over to Bonaparte to assist him in his proposed conquest of Russia. Veteran Wilkewitz returned safely to Germany after the disastrous defeat of the French army, and, unlike many of his unfortunate comrades, was able to die in his own land. In October, 1880, Godfrey Wilkewitz started for America and he was accompanied by his father, Frederick, who still survives and enjoys excellent health, although he is eighty-six years old. His wife died in Germany in 1871.

Godfrey Wilkewitz displayed excellent judgment when he purchased his land in Buffalo Township, its situation ensuring its increase in value. He has devoted much attention to improving and increasing the fertility of the soil and in this work has used old German methods, which have had their benefits shown by time. He was the first farmer in Buffalo Township to use lime as a fertilizer. He has worked hard ever since he came to Buffalo Township, but has his reward in now owning one of the best farms in this section. In addition to the property mentioned, Mr. Wilkewitz owns a lot in Sarver, on which he has a tenant, and which he is holding as an investment.

Mr. Wilkewitz was married in Germany, on November 5, 1876, to Mary Dumske, who was a daughter of Godfrey and Louise (Stender) Dumske, who died before Mr. and Mrs. Wilkewitz left their native land. Mrs. Wilkewitz died October 11, 1905, the mother of eight children, namely: Frederick, born in Germany, who married Mary Herselgesser; Elizabeth, who married John Freeling; and Robert, Annie, Lena, Maggie, Willis and Harry, the two last named being deceased. Mrs. Wilkewitz was a consistent member of the Lutheran Church and was a woman who was loved by all who knew her. For a year prior to her death she had been in poor health, but she bore her afflictions with Christian fortitude. Her burial was at Sarversville. Mr. Wilkewitz and his children also belong to the Lutheran Church, in which he was a member of the council for two years. He devotes his attention to general farming and to stock-raising and makes these industries profitable. His residence is a large two-story house and his farm buildings present an excellent appearance. He is a highly respected citizen and a useful member of the community, giving liberal support to schools and church.

MILTON CRESS,* a general farmer and building contractor, whose home is on his own valuable property consisting of 115 acres of improved land in Connoquenessing Township, was born on this farm, in Butler County, Pennsylvania, April 15, 1848, and is a son of Henry and Elizabeth (Riefler) Cress.

The parents of Mr. Cress were born in Hesse, Germany. The father learned the shoemaking trade in his own country and after coming to America, settled in Connoquenessing Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania. He lived on the present farm for about twenty years and then went to Missouri, where he subsequently died. He was the father of the following children: John, who lives at Colesville, Pennsylvania; Nicholas, who lives in Beaver County; Henry, deceased; Elizabeth, who married Caspar Foust, of Macon County, Missouri; William, deceased; Milton; Katherine, who married James Mollenx, of Missouri; Jacob, who lives in Missouri; Mary, who married John Jones, of Missouri; and Daniel, who resides in Missouri. The parents were members of the Lutheran Church at Butler.

Milton Cress was reared in Connoquenessing Township and attended the public schools. He accompanied the family to Missouri, but after three months there concluded to return to Butler County. He is a natural mechanic and without serving an apprenticeship to the carpenters' trade has become an expert workman, is engaged in contracting and has built many houses and barns all through the county, having the name of building more barns than any other builder in this section. They are thoroughly constructed and his work has always given the best satisfaction. For the past thirty years he has occupied his present farm and divides his time between his building work, having a portable saw mill also, and its cultivation.

Mr. Cress married Miss Louisa Burchert, who was born in Germany, but was brought to America and was reared in Jefferson Township, Butler County. They are leading members of the Lutheran Church at Petersville, in which he has served as deacon and elder. He does his own political thinking and casts his vote independently.

PETER KING LAWRENCE* is a prominent agriculturist of Muddy Creek Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and resides on a fine farm of 158 acres, located about three miles northeast of Portersville, about midway between Butler and New Castle. In addition to this property, he owns a well improved farm of 200 acres in Worth Township, making a total of 358 acres. He was born in Butler County, April 19, 1859, and is a son of Robert and Catherine (Keister) Lawrence, and a grandson of Samuel Lawrence, who came from County Down, Ireland, and was a pioneer settler of Butler County.

Robert Lawrence was a stone mason by trade and worked as a foreman in the construction of the canal. In this employment he managed to accumulate a sufficient sum to purchase 200 acres of land, on which he farmed during the remainder of his life. He and his wife became parents of six children, as follows: Martha, deceased; Sarah; Sammel, deceased; Susan; Robert, deceased; and Peter King.

King Lawrence was reared in his native township and received a common school training, in the meantime working on the home farm. He has always engaged in general farming, raising enough stock for his own use, and has been more than ordinarily successful. He is a man of strong personality and a progressive citizen, who enjoys the highest esteem and confidence of his fellow men.

Mr. Lawrence was married September 9, 1880, to Miss Margaret A. Fisher, a daughter of Isaac and Hannah (Wimer) Fisher of Worth Township, and they have two children: Robert J. and Cora. Robert J. Lawrence was married to Mary S. Snyder, who died six months later, and he formed a second union with Miss Mary A. Wilson, by whom he has a son, Albert J. Miss Cora Lawrence was joined in marriage with J. W. McCandless, and they have two children, Flora Leota and Carl. Fraternally, the subject of this sketch is a member of Portersville Lodge No. 909, I. O. O. F. In religious attachment, the family is Baptist.

WILLIAM H. RADER,* owner of a farm of 165 acres in Forward Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, comes of an old and well known family of that community. He was born on the farm on which he now lives, in March, 1868, and is a son of Peter and Caroline (Sheaver) Rader.

Peter Rader, father of the subject of this sketch, was born and reared in Germany. Shortly after his first marriage he emigrated to America and located on a farm near Middle Lancaster, in Butler County, Pennsylvania. While a resident there, his first wife died and he formed a second union with Caroline Sheaver. She, too, was a native of Germany and was but eight years of age, when her father, Henry Sheaver, moved with his family to the United States. In the spring of 1858, Mr. Rader moved to Forward Township and purchased what has since been known as the Rader home farm of a Mr. Deitch. He and his wife became parents of six children, as follows: Mary, wife of George Briggles; Margaret, wife of Ferd Feigel; Lewis; Elizabeth, wife of William May; Emma, wife of James Steen, is deceased; and William Henry, whose name heads this sketch. The parents of this family moved to Petersville in 1894, and Mrs. Rader there passed away in 1900, at the age of sixty-eight years. He died in Butler in 1905, at the age of seventy-four years.

William Henry Rader has always lived on the home farm, which he inherited at his father's death. At the age of twenty years he began working in the oil fields, teaming and drilling for some years, but farming has been his main occupation in life. Twenty-seven wells have been drilled on the farm, without a dry hole, and he now has six producing oil wells on this farm; he also has an interest in various other wells in this vicinity. He and his brother Lewis are owners of the Rader Gas Company at Petersville, and together they own a tract of 640 acres in Lawrence County, mostly coal, limestone and timberland, which they purchased in 1902.

William H. Rader was married in 1880 to Miss Nina Hays, a daughter of Robert Hays, and their union has been blessed with five children: Stella, Bessie, Clara, Hazel, and Clarence. Mr. Rader is a man of ability, and a progressive citizen, who stands high in the esteem of his fellow men.

SHERMAN CLYMORE HUMPHREY*, one of Butler County's substantial and representative men, resides on his farm of 100 acres, which lies in Worth Township, on the Portersville and North Liberty road, about six miles north of the former village, and together with his brother, William H., owns a second farm of 100 acres, also in Butler County. Mr. Humphrey was born in Worth Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, September 21, 1866, and is a son of John and Lydia (Studebaker) Humphrey.

John Humphrey, father of Sherman C., was one of Butler county's prominent citizens. He was born in Butler County and was a son of William and Elizabeth (Vogan) Humphrey. William Humphrey was one of the earliest settlers in Worth Township and helped to clear the land on which his grandson now lives. John Humphrey served in township offices and then was appointed deputy sheriff and filled that office under W. H. Hoffman for thirty years. Later he was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of County Commissioner John L. Kelley and at the expiration of the term was elected to the office with the largest vote ever given to a commissioner, in the county. He died June 28, 1895.

Sherman C. Humphrey completed his education at Edinboro and when he returned home his father retired and moved to Butler, and then the young man took charge of the farm and since his father's death has been the actual head. He is a man with practical ideas and in the main follows modern methods in managing his land and finds them satisfactory. The stock he raises he keeps for his own use.

On September 16, 1890, Mr. Humphrey was married to Miss Clara Studebaker, who is a daughter of John and Jane (Rutter) Studebaker. The Studebakers were very early settlers in Worth Township, the grandfather, Joseph Studebaker, coming as a pioneer. The father of Mrs. Humphrey is still actively and successfully engaged in farming although he has reached his seventy-third year. Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey have three children, Thelma, Glenn and Grace. The family belong to the Zion Baptist Church, being among its most active and interested members.

DR. DANIEL W. FIEDLER*, a prominent physician of Harmony, Pennsylvania, is a representative of one of the pioneer families of Butler County and is of German descent. He was born August 9, 1855, in Harmony and is a son of Daniel and Lena (Zeigler) Fiedler, and a grandson of Jacob Fiedler, who came to this country from Germany and located in Baltimore, Maryland.

Daniel Fiedler, father of our subject, was born in Jackson Township, Butler County, in 1828, and was the eldest of a family of seven children, namely: Daniel; Jacob, a resident of Harmony, now seventy-seven years of age; George, a resident of Hubbard, Ohio; Harrison, who is engaged in farming near Middlesex, Mercer County Pennsylvania; Caroline, residing in Harmony, the wife of Abraham Zeigler; Melissa, deceased wife of Eli Zeigler; and Louisa, deceased wife of Gottlieb Pfeiffer. The maternal grandfather of our subject was Jones Zeigler, a son of Abraham Zeigler, who purchased all of the holdings, consisting of 1,500 acres of land, from Jones Zeigler. Jones Zeigler, grandfather of our subject, married Elizabeth Shontz and reared a family of three sons and five daughters, namely: Mary, widow of Peter Nesbitt, resides one mile east of Harmony in Jackson Township; Lena, mother of Dr. Daniel and wife of Daniel Fiedler; Elizabeth, is the wife of Jacob Hobering of Buena Vista, Ohio; Annie, married Robert Crooks of Pittsburg, and both are deceased; Barbara, wife of Leslie P. Hazlett, president of the Butler County National Bank of Butler; Jones, deceased; Aaron, a resident of Harmony Junction; and Moses, a resident of Zelienople.

The late Daniel Fiedler was a farmer by occupation and for many years conducted the Harmony Flouring Mill. He married Lena Zeigler and to them were born the following offspring: Jacob, who married Susanna Wise, died leaving four children, two of whom are now deceased; Jonas, who resides in Butler, married Lydia Stouffer and has four children; Daniel W., is the subject of this sketch; Benton, who married Louisa Schaffer, died leaving two sons, one now deceased; Louisa, widow of George Walker, resides at Harmony, but was for many years a resident of Neshannock. Mr. Fiedler died in 1901 and is survived by his widow, who is now in her seventy-sixth year.

Dr. Daniel W. Fiedler was reared in Harmony and attended the public schools after which he became a student at Heidelberg College of Tiffin, Ohio, for three years. He then read medicine with Dr. Lyman of Butler, after which he studied at Jefferson Medical College at Philadelphia, graduating with the class of 1880. Subsequent to his graduation he practiced several years in Pittsburg, but since 1886 has been located in Harmony, where he has been eminently successful, his capability having gained for him the support and confidence of the community in which he lives.

Dr. Fiedler is a member of the Jefferson Alumni; the State Board, and also the Medical Board. He is a Republican in politics and has served as a member of the school board some years. He is fraternally a member of the I. O. O. F. No. 648, Harmony, and his religious connection is with the Grace Reformed Church of Harmony.

C. I. GOERMAN*, a general contractor doing business at Butler, of which city he has been a resident since 1902, was born in 1874, in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, and grew to the age of thirteen years on the home farm.

About 1887 Mr. Goerman went to Murinsville, Butler County, and his first work was done in the Glass Works at Ford City. In that city he later learned the carpenter's trade, at which he has worked ever since and for the past five years has engaged in a general contracting business. There are many older contractors in Butler than Mr. Goerman but a mention of all the work he has done in his line would show that in spite of close competition, he has had his full share of public patronage.

In 1896 Mr. Goerman was married to Miss Bertha Kopp, who is a daughter of the late John Kopp, a well known citizen of Butler. Mr. and Mrs. Goerman have four children: Helen, John, Gertrude and an infant. Mr. and Mrs. Goerman are members of the First English Lutheran Church. He belongs to the order of A. L. U., of Columbus, Ohio. He takes no very active interest in politics, but is a fair-minded, intelligent citizen who does his full duty, as he sees it, to his country, community, church and family.

PETER MILLER*, general farmer and representative citizen of Muddy Creek Township, whose estate of 112 acres is situated about one and one-half miles south of Portersville, on the west side of the Mercer road, the highway passing through a portion of his land, was born June 8, 1838, in France. His parents were Peter and Catherine (Lights) Miller.

The parents of Mr. Miller emigrated to America in 1847, landing at New Orleans, Louisiana, on Christmas Day, and came right on to Pittsburg and later to Allegheny, where the father worked for a time as a blacksmith. He then bought a farm of 114 acres, in Lancaster Township, which is now owned by the present Peter Miller. The latter was only nine years old when his parents brought him from his native land, but he had already been at school and understands both the French and German languages and later obtained a good knowledge of the English tongue. As both father and grandfather had been blacksmiths, he learned the trade and worked for a time as a smith, but has devoted his main attention to agricultural pursuits, including general farming and the raising of sufficient good stock for his own use.

Mr. Miller was married (first) to Miss Mary Flinger, a daughter of John and Barbara (Rader) Flinger. At her death two children survived her: Emma L., who married John Bauder and has two children—Mary and Walter; and Margaret M., who married William Heberling and has two children—Florence and Esther. Mr. Miller was married (second) to Miss Mary Mowery, a daughter of John and Mary (Bauder) Mowery, and they have two daughters: Mary C., who married Louis Rutter and has one child, Helen D.; and Anna L., who married W. C. Neer, of Steubenville, Ohio, and has four children—Bonnie Lee, Dale, June and Blanche. Mr. Miller and family belong to the Lutheran Church, he being a member of the council. He takes no very active interest in politics but on one occasion consented to serve as road supervisor, declining a second election.

HON. NELSON H. THOMPSON*, formerly a member of the Pennsylvania State Legislature and a representative citizen of Brady Township, of which he is auditor, resides on his valuable farm of 130 acres, which lies on the turnpike road running through the eastern part of the township, north and south, between Euclid and West Liberty. He was born on his present farm in Brady Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, March 21, 1848, and is a son of Robert W. and Frances (Craig) Thompson.

Robert W. Thompson was born in what is now Brady but was then Center Township, Butler County, in 1803, and was a son of John Thompson, who came from Ireland, after his marriage. He settled first in Washington County, Pennsylvania, where two of his children were born, and in 1798 settled in what is now Brady Township on a farm adjoining the one that is occupied by his grandson. That farm is now owned by the heirs of Rev. William Thompson. John Thompson had about 1,000 acres of land. He died May 15, 1844. On the maternal side, the ancestors of Mr. Thompson came also from Ireland. His maternal grandfather, Andrew Craig, came to America late in life but never visited Butler County. The mother of Mr. Thompson was brought to Philadelphia from Ireland, a motherless little girl of seven years, by her uncle, John McKinney, and in early womanhood she accompanied the McKinney family when it came to Butler County and settled in Concord Township.

Robert W. Thompson inherited lands and stock and always engaged in farming although he turned his attention also to other enterprises. In 1833 he put up a building and rented it out for hotel purposes, until 1845, after which he conducted it as the Forest House, which was situated on the site of his son's present handsome dwelling, for six years. He also was postmaster for years of the Forest Post Office, which was later changed to the Memphis Post Office. At that time, the turnpike road was the main thoroughfare between Pittsburgh and Erie, there being then no railroad communication. Robert W. Thompson lived to be forty-four years old before he married and then brought his wife to the present farm and they went to housekeeping in a little red house which their son has preserved and utilizes as a summer house. Robert W. Thompson died September 9, 1863, but his aged consort still survives, having passed her ninety-third birthday on December 24, 1908. They had five children, namely: Nelson H.; Martha V., wife of Benjamin Scott; Jennie, deceased; Maggie, wife of Frank Critchlow; and Robert C., residing in Clay Township.

Nelson H. Thompson was fifteen years old when his father died and he has managed the farm ever since, adopting many new methods and making many improvements. The larger number of the old buildings he tore down and in 1903 he erected his present tasteful residence and built his substantial silo. He makes a specialty of pure milk, selling wholesale and shipping from Claytonia to Butler.

Mr. Thompson married Miss Jessie A. Kerr, who was reared in Slippery Rock Township and is a daughter of Thomas Kerr, and they have four children, namely: Robert W., Elsie P., Nelson Kerr and James Eugene. Robert W., who is a graduate of the Slippery Rock State Normal School, is a student of engineering at Ursinn College, near Philadelphia. Elsie P., who is also a graduate of the Slippery Rock State Normal School, is a successful teacher in Allegheny County. Nelson Kerr, also a graduate of the Slippery Rock Normal School, is a student at Ursinn College. Mr. Thompson and family belong to the Muddy Creek Presbyterian Church. He has long been active in public affairs, has frequently served in township offices and ably represented his district in the State Legislature, serving through 1901, elected on the Republican ticket.

MILTON HOWARD KELLY,* who has resided at his present home in Fairview Township, Butler County, Penna., for a period of thirty years, has been successfully engaged as an oil producer for many years and is also in the ice business, supplying the residents of Chicora. He was born in Clarion County, Pennsylvania, March 22, 1854, and is a son of William D. and Julia Ann (Kelly) Kelly, coming of old Clarion County families on both sides. His paternal grandfather, John Kelly, came from east of the mountains of Pennsylvania and located in that county in the pioneer days.

William D. Kelly was reared in Clarion County and was there married. He engaged in farming there until about the year 1866, then moved to Callaway County, Missouri, where he purchased a farm and lived for five years. At the end of that time he returned to Pennsylvania and for one year resided at Martinsburg, Butler County. He then lived a like period at Angelica, Fairview Township, after which he lived the remainder of his days in Millerstown, dying at the age of sixty-eight years. He was survived some years by his widow, who passed away at the age of seventy-eight years. They were parents of the following: Nancy, widow of Jacob Callender; Prethina, wife of C. J. Loge; Minerva, deceased; Darilla, deceased; Milton H.; Torsa, deceased; Joseph L.; Samuel G.; Anna, who became the wife of James Stewart; and William P.

Milton H. Kelly was twelve years of age when his parents moved west to Missouri and was about seventeen when they returned to Pennsylvania. He remained with his parents in their various moves in Butler County, and was given a good common school education. He engaged in farming until he located in the oil regions, since which time his energies have been devoted to the oil industry. He is a man of exceptional business ability, and has prospered beyond the average. His ice business has also been a source of considerable income to him.

April 8, 1881, Mr. Kelly was joined in marriage with Miss Emma Duffort, who was one of the following children born to Jacob and Mary (Hepler) Duffort of Fairview: W. S. Duffort, Emma (Kelly), Amelia, Anna, James, Charles, Minnie, Grace, Edward, and David, who is deceased. Mr. Duffort passed away at the age of fifty-eight years, ten months and fourteen days, and is survived by his widow who is living in the enjoyment of good health at the age of sixty-nine years. Mr. and Mrs. Kelly have three children, as follows: Luella, who is the wife of C. A. Fleeger of Armstrong County, and has two children, Victor and Ethel; Beryl, who is the wife of C. W. McCollough of Fairview Township, and has a daughter, Velma; and Loyal H., who was born September 8, 1885, and lives with his parents. Fraternally, the subject of this sketch is a member of Chicora Lodge No. 947, I. O. O. F., and has passed through the various chairs of that lodge.

ELDRIDGE HARVEY,* who is among the most prominent of the younger generation of farmers of Clinton Township, is the owner of a valuable farm of 109 acres, located about five miles south of Saxonburg, on the Tarentum road. He was born June 12, 1879, and is a son of Newton and Agnes (Riddle) Harvey.

Newton Harvey, a son of William and Betsy Harvey, was for many years a resident of Clinton Township, and was a man of wide acquaintance. He was a farmer by occupation and highly successful in business affairs. His death occurred July 7, 1893, and the community regarded his death as an irreparable loss.

Eldridge Harvey was reared to maturity in his native township and received a superior education in the public schools. He has always followed farming and at the time he took the management of the home place was probably the youngest agriculturist in this part of the county. His place is well improved and he has been highly successful.

December 23, 1903, Mr. Harvey was united in marriage with Miss Elizabeth Smith, a daughter of Joseph and Jane (Slagle) Smith, and they have three children—Wilma, Lester and Joseph. Religiously, they are members of the United Presbyterian church.

ORENZO WAYNE EAGAL,* proprietor of Eagal's mill, in Connoquenessing Township, is a man whose milling experience covers many years, it having been his main interest since he was fourteen years of age. He was born July 22, 1866, in Center Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Eli D. and Mary (McCandless) Eagal.

The father of Mr. Eagal has been a resident of Center Township for a long period but he was born in Venango County, Pennsylvania. He is a veteran of the Civil War, in which he served for three years, and was wounded at the battle of the Wilderness. His occupation has been farming and he has also given time and attention to the duties of public office. He is identified with the Republican party. He married a daughter of Robert McCandless, of Center Township, and three of their four children grew to maturity, namely: Nora, who is the wife of William Bortmas, of Center Township; Hetty, who is the wife of Harry Thompson, of Butler; and Orenzo Wayne, who is the eldest.

Orenzo W. Eagal attended school until he was fourteen years of age and then entered his father's mill and learned the business in the mill that he now owns. It is one of the landmarks of this section, the first mill on the site having been erected by William Bryson in 1828. When Eli D. Eagal purchased the mill it was operated with but three burrs and not many improvements were introduced until its present owner took charge. He has installed modern machinery and a 35 horse-power engine, and his capacity is about twenty-five barrels of wheat flour and the same of buckwheat flour a day. He also does a large amount of business in grinding feed.

Mr. Eagal was married to Miss Dora Campbell, a daughter of R. D. Campbell, of Connoquenessing Township, and they have the following children: Belle, Robert, Wayne, Gladys, Rose and Grace. The eldest daughter is the wife of David Burry. Mr. Eagal and family belong to St. John's Reformed Church. In politics he is a Republican but the only township office he has ever accepted has been that of school director. He is one of the reliable, substantial men of his section.

LAWRENCE M. WHITE,* contractor and builder, is a representative citizen of Butler, of which city he has been a resident for eighteen years. He was born in 1868, in Muddy Creek Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Milton J. White.

The White family has lived in Butler County for generations, the grandfather, Joseph White, establishing his home in Muddy Creek Township, in early manhood. There he reared his family and spent his remaining days. Milton J. White, father of Lawrence M., was born in the old home in Muddy Creek Township, in 1840, and his life was devoted entirely to agricultural pursuits, after a few years in the huckster business at Pittsburg.

Lawrence M. White attended school through boyhood in Muddy Creek Township and then learned the carpenter's trade at Butler, to which city he came when twenty-two years of age. For four years he worked at Cleveland, Ohio, and two at Pittsburg, but with the exception of that period he has been a resident of Butler, returning to this city in 1902. He has been engaged in building and contracting since that date and has done a large amount of the city's excellent work, some of which may be seen on the Eberle Block, the fine brick residences on North Street and a number of other handsome and substantial buildings. He has invested in city real estate and is engaged in its improvement.

In 1882 Mr. White was married to Miss Myrtle McGinnis, who was born in Armstrong County, and they have one son, Floyd Carlisle. Mr. and Mrs. White are members of the United Presbyterian Church. He is affiliated with the fraternal order of the Woodmen of the World and belongs to the Builders' Exchange.

AMOS M. HALL,* residing on his well improved farm of 100 acres, which is situated in Slippery Rock Township, about one mile south of Keister Station, belongs to one of the old pioneer families of Butler County. He was born in Clay Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, June 14, 1859, and is a son of Jesse R. and Catherine (Dunbar) Hall.

The parents of Mr. Hall are now aged people, but they retain their faculties and live in comfortable retirement on their farm of eighty acres, situated in Brady Township. They were born in Clay Township and have been residents of Butler County all their lives.

Amos M. Hall was reared in Brady Township and there followed farming and teaming until 1888, when he came to his present property. This land was unimproved and in poor condition at that time, but now ranks well with other farms in this township and few of these have better residences or more substantial farm buildings. Mr. Hall has his farm well stocked and owns a large amount of valuable farm machinery.

Mr. Hall married Miss Maggie Renick, a daughter of William Renick, and they have a very pleasant family of seven children: Reed, Caroline, Alma, Charles, Donna, Wilda and Paul. The eldest son married Amanda Grove and they have one son, Stanley. Mr. Hall is an intelligent, progressive man, takes considerable interest in township affairs and votes according to his judgment. He belongs to the Junior Order of United American Mechanics.

SAMUEL N. TAGGART,* one of Worth Township's representative men and successful agriculturists, lives on his valuable farm of 100 acres, which is situated on the highway between Butler and New Castle road and about three and one-quarter miles southwest of Slippery Rock. Mr. Taggart was born on his present farm in Worth Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, April 15, 1857, and is a son of John W. and Martha (Hoge) Taggart.

The father of Mr. Taggart was born on the Worth Township farm and died here in September, 1899. His parents were John and Mary (McDonald) Taggart, who settled in Western Pennsylvania in 1800, and his grandparents were James and Elizabeth (Hines) Taggart. The latter couple probably came to America from Ireland about 1795 and in 1800 came to Butler County and made the first settlement on the land now owned by Samuel N. Taggart, who was born in the second log house built on the place. The father of Mr. Taggart, John W. Taggart, was both a farmer and carpenter and was one of the best known men of this section. He married Martha Hoge, who died about 1899 and both she and her husband were buried in the cemetery at West Liberty. They had two children: Mary J., who is the wife of C. J. McLaughlin; and Samuel N.

Samuel N. Taggart was reared on the home farm and from boyhood has taken an interest in all kinds of farm work. As soon as he finished school he began to materially assist his father and later assumed about all the responsibility, being the only son. He carries on general agriculture and raises stock and Percheron horses, having annually some to sell. Since coming into the home property, Mr. Taggart has done a large amount of improving and his farm buildings are of substantial construction and of commodious size.

On December 29, 1881, Mr. Taggart was married to Miss Mary E. Dennison, who is a daughter of Alexander and Margaret (Wright) Dennison. The Dennisons were of old Mercer County stock, while the Wrights were pioneers in Washington County. Mr. and Mrs. Taggart have had five children, namely: Ida May, who married W. M. McDeavitt, and has two children, Ora L. and Berenice M.; Clyde, Emma C. and William J., who live at home; and Harry E., who is deceased. Mr. Taggart has the satisfaction of knowing that all his family belong to the Methodist Episcopal Church with himself and all are active Christian workers.

GIDEON R. ALLEN,* a prominent citizen of Clay Township and one of the large landowners of this section, resides on one farm of 139 acres, which lies on the road between Hallston near to the Muddy Creek Church, and owns also a second farm, containing 117 acres, situated north of the one on which he lives. Mr. Allen was born in 1840, on a farm in Clarion County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of Robert and Caroline (Richardson) Allen.

The mother of Mr. Allen died when he was three years old and when he was fourteen, his father returned to the homestead farm on which he was born, in Clay Township, Butler County, which had been settled by the grandfather, Stephen L. Allen, in 1800. Gideon R. Allen has lived continuously in Clay Township from that time until the present, with the exception of his long period of service in the Civil War, and one year spent in Missouri.

Mr. Allen had just reached his majority when the country became convulsed by Civil War. He immediately decided to offer his services in defense of the flag he had been taught to reverence, and by October 12, 1861, had so arranged his affairs that he felt at liberty to leave everything behind and enter the army. He then enlisted in Company H, Seventy-eighth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, which was commanded by Capt. William S. Jaek and Col. W. G. Sirwell, and entered upon a long and dangerous service which covered three years and two months. During all this period Mr. Allen was ever at the post of duty and his remarkable record shows that he was a soldier who not even once was off duty for a single day, never missed a roll call, never fell sick and suffered neither imprisonment nor injury in battle. Further than this the record proves that he participated in a large number of the most serious battles of the whole war and looking back over his experiences, he can scarcely understand how he could have escaped the misfortunes which left many of his comrades to fill unknown graves or to pass through life as disabled pensioners of the Government. He took part in the following engagements in 1861-2: Wildcat Gap, October 21; Mill Springs, Kentucky, January 19; Shiloh, Tennessee, April 6-7; Murfreesboro, Tennessee, July 13; Richmond, Kentucky, August 30; Mumfordsville, Kentucky, September 14-16; Perryville, Kentucky, October 8, and Stone River, Tennessee, December 31. In 1863 he participated in the following battles, again, as his record discloses, being ever at the post of duty: Fort Donelson, Tennessee, February 3; Thompson's Station, March 4-5; Hoover's Gap, Tennessee, June 24; Liberty Gap, Tennessee, June 25; Shelbyville, Tennessee, June 27; Morgan's Raid, Kentucky, July 2-26; Chickamauga, Georgia, September 19-20; Wauhatchie, Tennessee, October 27; Missionary Ridge, Tennessee, November 23-25; and Ringold Station, Georgia, November 27. In 1864 the battles were no less important, February 27 chronicled by Buzzard's Roost, Georgia; and on the way to Atlanta, beginning May 1 and terminating May 31, Mr. Allen took part in the engagements at Red Clay, Rocky Face Ridge, Tunnel Hill, Mill Creek or Dug Gap, Buzzard's Roost Gap, Varnell's Station, Resaca, Tilton, Tanner's Bridge, Adairsville, Rome, Kingston, Dallas, New Hope Church, Burned Hickory, Pumpkin Vine Creek, Allatoona Hills, Cassville Station, Burned Church and Moulton. In addition, daily and even hourly there were skirmishes and attacks that only constant vigilance could prevent being dangerous to the Federal troops and these demanded courage and endurance that sadly tried the already over wearied soldiers. Mr. Allen's term of enlistment expired October 14, 1864, and at that time he was with that portion of his regiment that had been mounted and, under the command of General Thomas, was guarding the rear of General Sherman's army which was on its way to the sea. Mr. Allen was mustered out of the service at Kittanning, Pennsylvania, and reached his home on Hallow Eve, 1864.

For some years Mr. Allen worked as a driller and tool dresser in the Butler oil fields and spent one year, 1867, in Missouri, and then engaged in farming on the homestead, in 1870 purchasing his present property, where he carries on general farming and stock-raising.

In 1892 Mr. Allen was married to Miss Leah Christley, who is a daughter of William Christley, and they have two children: Gideon R. and Manila Bay. He takes no very active part in politics but has always proved himself a worthy citizen. He is identified with the order of Odd Fellows.

B. M. HOCKENBERRY,* who resides on his valuable farm of 180 acres, which is situated in Cherry Township, is one of the extremely well educated and progressive citizens of this section. He was born in Cherry Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, October 12, 1875, on a farm adjoining the one he owns, and is a son of William and Frances (Cowan) Hockenberry.

The Hockenberry family is an old pioneer one of this section. The late William Hockenberry was born in Cherry Township, where he spent his life, mainly engaged in agricultural pursuits. He died March 14, 1883, his widow still surviving.

B. M. Hockenberry attended the Pipe Stem country school and later the West Sunbury Academy, going from there to the Slippery Rock Normal School and still later to Grove City College. Mr. Hockenberry has divided his attention, giving a part of his time to operating his large farm, which was formerly known as the old John Smith farm, and a part to teaching school. He has taught the Coaltown School, formerly known as the Pigeon Wing School, the old buildings having been destroyed by the cyclone of 1880, for some five terms and is a capable and popular educator.

Mr. Hockenberry was married to Miss Della Campbell, who is a daughter of John Sheppard Campbell, Esq., one of the most prominent citizens of Cherry Township, and they have three children: Margaret, Benj. and Alice. Mr. Hockenberry is a member of the fraternal order of the Woodmen of the World.

WILLIAM FRANKLIN BOOK* is a well known citizen and agriculturist of Worth Township, Butler County, Pennsylvania, and owner of a farm of 225 acres, located about four miles north of Portersville, just off the Pittsburg and Mercer Pike. He was born on the old Book homestead about two miles north of his present home, February 3, 1856, and is a son of Thomas and Sarah (Bennett) Book, being an only child. His grandfather, George Book, Jr., and great-grandfather, Captain George Book, came from across the mountains and settled in Worth Township during the pioneer days. Captain George Book was captain of a military company which marched from Butler County to Erie, Pennsylvania, where they joined Colonel Prescott's command for service during the War of 1812.

William F. Book attended the public schools of his home vicinity and being the only child in the family, much of the work on the farm devolved upon him at an early age. He has always followed general farming with a high degree of success, and is endowed with exceptional business qualifications. He has 225 acres of good tillable land, on which he has a fine modern home and the other necessary and substantial farm buildings.

Mr. Book was married in May, 1884, to Miss Lizzie Humphrey, a daughter of John and Lydia (Studebaker) Humphrey, and they are parents of four children: Mabel, who is a graduate of the local schools and resides with her parents; Walter, who attended Rose Point High School and is now practically in charge of the farming operations at home; Alta, who is in attendance at the Slippery Rock State Normal School; and Fred, who is in the public schools. Fraternally, the subject of this sketch is a member of Portersville Lodge, No. 909, I. O. O. F., and takes a very prominent part in the work of the order.
