WARRANT FOR TOWN MEETING.

The American Citizen Exercises His Right to Petition.

The warrant for the annual Town Meeting of the Town of Weymouth is now out and is on the face of it, one of the most formidable looking documents of the kind ever issued by the town.

There are in all 103 articles in the warrant and they cover the whole geography of the town from Sheep Island to the Thicket and to the Rockland line on the north and south and also from the Braintree and Hingham lines on the east and west and include every feature of our municipal conditions and wants either real or imaginary. When dissected by an able Appropriation committee and analyzed by a conservative public warrant however ought not to be hard to handle.

With two or three exceptions the first 45 articles cover regular routine business and need not take much time. There is however Article 7 which will call for a small raise in the school appropriation and it ought to go for the purpose specified i. e. a reasonable advance in the salaries of certain of our school teachers who are now getting far below the maximum paid by other towns for the same service.

Article 13 is on petition of Charles W. Baker to "see if the town will accept the piece of motor fire apparatus now installed in Engine House, Ward 3." This piece of apparatus will appeal to every one who has seen it and reflects great credit upon the citizens of Ward 3 for their liberal donations for its purchase and equipment.

Article 16 is to see what action the town will take on the report of the committee in regard to a new lockup in Ward 2 and this will undoubtedly call for a debate. The lockup is a necessity but there are various opinions as to the manner of meeting the situation.

There are two articles in the warrant in regard to additional school room in Ward 1. One of these calls for $40,000 for a new school building and the other calls for $15,000 for the purpose of enlargement on the present Athens building.

M. Sheely has in two articles "to drain and make beautiful the unsightly places in town." We are told that "a thing of beauty is a joy forever" but the question is how far the town can go in reclaiming marshy and waste land. There stands the fact however that there are too many uncleanly and unsightly places along our road sides in the sparsely settled section, road sides unfinished and made the dumping ground for rubbish and house cleaning debris.

There are 22 articles in the warrant calling for additional lights, 45 incandescent and 2 arc. At the present rate per lamp this would make an addition of nearly $1,000 to the lighting expense. A few years ago it was estimated that the lighting bill would eventually reach $10,000 but this will bring us nearly to that point and the call will still be for more and no doubt there is some justice in the claims. Right here we would comment on the action of the town last year in turning down the Electric Light committee.

No doubt the Selectmen as a board have done all they could do this year with the money at their disposal but the town needs such a committee as that which was turned down and then put these lights and all others in their hands to do the best they can with whatever money the town appropriates.

There are 10 articles calling for sums varying from $100 to $500 or more for special street work in grading, drains, side walks, etc. It has not been the policy of the town for several years to make special appropriations for repairs of roads already constructed as this should more properly come out of a general appropriation and be expended under the direction of the superintendent of streets and meaning no reflection on the present incumbent of that office we would say that the man who has the supervision of 140 miles of road extending over a large area should be a man of no mean ability either as a planner of work or power of execution.

There is an article asking if the town will instruct its water commissioner to reopen Weymouth Great Pond for boat and fishing. From what we hear in the air the article should read to see if the town will instruct the water commissioners to more rigidly enforce all laws looking to the purity of drinking water.

There are a few articles from the Board of Trade which open up some new features of municipal development which are worthy of more than a passing thought. We have a beautiful and available water front in the rapidly growing Ward 1 and the point is, shall the town acquire and establish a boat landing there.

The time is not distant, in fact last summer saw boats making daily trips to and from Boston and the coming summer will see a much larger development.

Weymouth Board of Trade

Banquet, Officers Elected and Town Development Discussed.

EDWARD W. HUNT

The Weymouth Board of Trade passed into another year of its existence last night under most favorable circumstances. The meeting for February as it was held in the usual place, Clapp Memorial building, was not only the regular monthly meeting, but also the annual meeting and instead of the usual light lunch, a banquet was served at 6:30 with about a hundred members and guests at the tables.

At the conclusion of the supper, the president, E. W. Hunt, called the meeting to order and proceeded with the business of the hour.

The committee on membership reported 13 new names and they were balloted for and elected.

The committee on five cent fare from Lovell's Corner to Braintree, reported by a communication from President Conroy of the road, saying the matter would be submitted to the board of directors and a further communication from him might be looked for.

An election of officers for the ensuing year was next in order and resulted in the unanimous election of the following:—E. W. Hunt, president; E. E. Leonard, vice president; W. H. Pratt, secretary; Geo. E. Bicknell, treasurer; F. H. Torrey, Fred Humphrey, A. P. Worthen, Fred S. Sampson and L. A. Cook, executive committee, and Joseph A. Cushing, auditor.

The subject for the evening was "Weymouth and What It Needs." W. B. Dasha, president of the North Weymouth Improvement Association, responded to the first toast and spoke of the mistake of the early settlers in not establishing a center and what we now needed was to right the error and "get together."

Walter L. Bates, speaking for Ward 5, gave many valuable suggestions in regard to more and better sidewalks. R. B. Worster responding for the Citizens' club of Weymouth and East Braintree, spoke of the undeveloped land and its possible development.

Fred L. Sampson, president of the Lovell's Corner Improvement Society, spoke of the need of side walks, especially on the long stretch along Washington street from Pleasant street, Lovell's Corner, to Main street in Ward 3, also of the need of more co-operative work all along the line.

Winifred S. Wells of Ward 3 responded to a call and spoke of the need of more and better housing for a class of skilled mechanics who might be brought to Weymouth if suitable homes could be found. E. G. Goetz answered to a toast with a brief suggestion that Weymouth was a good field in which a real estate developing company might work to advantage, and Dr. Joseph Chase replied to a call with the idea that one of Weymouth's needs was improved roads.

The subject was yet young at the hour of adjournment but may bear fruit.

C. M. A. MEN'S CLUB.

Charles C. Hoyt of Boston Speaks on "A Trail Blazer" in Clapp Memorial Hall, Wednesday Evening.

The monthly banquet and social of the Men's club, connected with the Clapp Memorial Association, was held in the A-association building, on Wednesday evening. At 6:30 o'clock, a delicious supper of roast beef, baked potatoes, turbot, onions, ice cream, assorted cakes, rolls and coffee and fruit, prepared by Mrs. Katherine Day and Hester D. Farrar, was served to the club members and their guests, by Ralph Curtin, Basil Warren, Albert Abern, John Hunt, Leo Fraher, Wendall Totman, Ralph Talbot, Bryon Leonard, Arthur Schutz, John Reis, Leonard Bates and Earl Gifford.

After the banquet, Charles C. Hoyt of Boston gave an interesting address on "A Trail Blazer," which was enjoyed by all.

Tufts Lecture Course.

The audience which assembled at Fogg's Opera House last Wednesday night to listen to the second lecture in the Tufts Library course would hardly compare favorably with that at the Town Hall for the first lecture, yet those who were in attendance got a treat as they listened to Earl Ovington, the daring aviator, who related much of his experience in wonderful flight.

The next lecture will be in the Bates Opera House, Washington square, on Thursday evening, Feb. 20, and the house should be filled as the lecture will be one of interest. The lecture will be "South America of Today" with special reference to Argentine. Hon. Charles E. Furling will be the speaker, and he has been a great student of that country and our relations to it.

Reversing the Order.

WEYMOUTH CHORAL SOCIETY.

First Concert by Recently Formed Association of Music Lovers in Bates' Opera House, Weymouth, Last Sunday Evening, Draws Large and Appreciative Audience.

With one of the largest and most appreciative gatherings that ever attended to a musical entertainment in this town, the long looked for and much worked for concert of the Weymouth Choral Society was held in Bates' Opera House, Weymouth, last Sunday evening, and was a most decided success from every standpoint.

The society has been holding weekly rehearsals in the Clapp Memorial hall on Monday nights since the formation of the association a few weeks ago, and under the highly efficient direction of J. W. Calderwood, music supervisor in the Weymouth public schools, the oratorio, "The Creation," by Joseph Haydn, in three parts, was developed and a public presentation and incidentally the "debut" of the new choral society was held last Sunday evening at seven-thirty o'clock.

When the curtain arose the audience was greeted by over sixty members of the society who made up the chorus and by Miss Mary Wells Capewell, soprano; Henry E. Lingley, tenor, and Willard Flint, bass, soloists of the occasion.

The appearance of Mr. Calderwood on the directing stand, drew a round of applause from both the large audience and the members of the choral union.

A feature of the society of no little importance was the well trained fifteen piece orchestra formed previous to the concert, under the able management of Mr. Calderwood, assisted by Mr. E. C. Clark and a number of other members of the society. This orchestra, composed of some of the most popular musicians in this section, did themselves proud in every way, their rendering of the incidental music of the oratorio being extremely well executed, and the appreciation of the audience of this feature was shown by the applause accorded the musicians on every available chance.

The characters represented in the presentation were taken by Miss Mary Wells Capewell, soprano, as "Gabriel;" Henry E. Lingley, tenor, as "Uriel;" Willard Flint, bass, as "Raphael;" Mr. Flint as "Adam" and Miss Capewell as "Eve." All the solo parts were highly applauded and Mr. Flint's fine voice and rendering of his part, especially pleased the gathering.

Mrs. William A. Hodges of East Weymouth presided at the piano and a large share of the praise for the success of the concert is due her, for her able accompanying of the chorus and solo parts and playing in general all during the evening.

It is safe to say in glancing back over the first performance of the Weymouth Choral Society, a most promising future lies ahead of the musical talent in the union, and with Mr. Calderwood at the head and a finely developed orchestra to assist, several fine concerts should be presented to Weymouth music lovers in the future, for last Sunday night's affair was most certainly a treat to all who attended.

The society is planning on presenting Alfred Gaul's "Joan of Arc" about the first of April. This work contains many beautiful solos and fine numbers for men and women's voices and the next concert should prove very enjoyable in every way.

MRS. J. C. HOWE, DEAD.

Well-known South Weymouth Lady Goes West in Search of Health, but Passes Away Less Than a Month From Day of Departure.

Word was received in South Weymouth last Saturday of the death in Los Angeles, California of Mrs. J. Clarence Howe, wife of J. C. Howe of 634 Main street, South Weymouth. Mrs. Howe with her husband left town on January 2 for the Pacific coast, in search of better health, and intended to pass the winter in California, near Los Angeles.

Mrs. Howe was fifty seven years of age and a native and life long resident of this town. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Blanchard. In her younger she was a well known vocal soloist, and was much sought for at all social functions.

Mrs. Howe was subject to a weakness of the heart action, but was in more than usual health, at the time of leaving for the west.

She was an active member of the Old Colony Woman's club, Abigail Adams Rebekah lodge I. O. O. F. and the Second Universalist church South Weymouth.

Town Hall Scene of Gala Event

Annual Ladies Night and Anniversary of Weymouth Council, 729 Knights of Columbus, a Brilliant Social Function.

A scene of brilliancy and splendor, such as has seldom been witnessed in this town, was presented in the town hall, East Weymouth, last Monday evening, when nearly six hundred handsomely gowned women with men in full evening dress gathered at the annual Ladies' Night and anniversary of Weymouth Council, 729 Knights of Columbus.

The affair was unquestionably one of the leading social events of the season and brought together an assemblage of members of the K. of C. and their friends that completely taxed the spacious auditorium and banquet rooms of the hall.

Others and members of the order from all sections of Eastern Massachusetts, many professional men prominent in this vicinity, and several state and county officials were present, with their lady friends to help make the event the grandest in the history of the council.

At eight o'clock, Mace Gay's well-known orchestra of six pieces, opened the evening's festivities with a selection, Mace Gay directing.

At the conclusion of this feature, Bernard Mitchell, Grand Knight of Council 729, welcomed the members, their lady friends and the several invited guests of the occasion, with a neat speech. The third number of the program was a delightfully rendered vocal solo by Miss Margaret Brown of East Weymouth. Miss Brown has a magnificent, forceful and captivating voice and received much well merited applause from the gathering.

After Miss Brown's selection, Grand Knight Bernard Mitchell introduced as one of the principle speakers of the evening, Hon. Thomas L. Walsh, a member of the governor's official staff. Mr. Walsh was greeted with applause and when quiet was restored, spoke at length, holding the closest and interested attention of his audience from beginning to end.

Another burst of applause was given Mr. Walsh at the conclusion of his address and then Mr. Virginia Capelloni, the well-known and talented soloist, from Boston, was introduced. Mr. Capelloni sang several numbers, with many encores, much to the pleasure of the audience.

Rev. Dennis J. Crimmins of the St. Francis Xavier church in South Weymouth and chaplain of Weymouth Council, was next on the list and he delivered a brief, but interesting address, to be followed by another solo by Miss Brown.

District Deputy Grand Knight Daniel M. O'Brien of Rockland was next introduced. Mr. O'Brien was received in the usual much welcomed way, the Rockland man enjoying a well deserved degree of popularity with Weymouth audiences. Mr. O'Brien's address was brief, for to use his words, he "wanted to go down to have something to eat with the rest of the gathering and the only way to do that was to stop speaking."

After the handclapping had died down for Mr. O'Brien, Mr. Capelloni closed the entertainment with a well received solo, and showed his willingness to be of service by responding to several calls for encores.

At ten o'clock Mace Gay and his orchestra were again given the center of the stage and with Bernard Mitchell and lady at the head, the long line of nearly five hundred people marched to the banquet hall, where one of the most delicious suppers ever eaten, was served by P. L. Burns caterers of Boston. The menu consisted of the following appetizing eatables!—escaloped oysters, cold ham, cold roast turkey, cranberry sauce, olives, radishes, chicken, lobster and potato salads, chicken croquettes and peas, cream puffs, benedictine sauce, vanilla, strawberry and chocolate ices, orange and lemon sherberts, frozen pudding, assorted cakes, rolls and coffee.

After the appetites of the knights and their ladies had been amply appeased, the gathering adjourned to the main hall again and an order of sixteen dances was started. The grand march was led by Grand Knight Bernard Mitchell with Miss May Healy. They were followed by Frank McCarthy, deputy grand knight, with Miss May Manning, and nearly a hundred couples.

At the conclusion of the grand march the first waltz was held and from then until one o'clock, waltzes, two steps, schottisches, quadrilles and Portland faucies, put each and everyone in a most joyful mood, for the trip by special cars to their many homes after the ball.

Special guests of the occasion were District Deputy Grand Knight Daniel M. O'Brien of Rockland, Rev. J. W. Allison of East Weymouth, Rev. Dennis J. Crimmins of South Weymouth, Michael Walsh, grand knight of Quincy council, Dr. Michael J. Sweeney of Somerville, Rev. Maurice Lynch of East Weymouth, Hon. Thomas L. Walsh of Boston and Miss Mary Moran, president of the Ladies Aid of the A. O. H.

The committee in charge of the grand affair was:—Bernard Mitchell, Frank McCarthy, Edward F. Butler, Bartholomew J. Smith, Edmund P. White, Leo A. Hefferman, Joseph H. Conroy, George A. McGowan, Joseph H. McDonald, John W. Cronin, Charles H. Smith, John Reardon, James A. Knox and Charles Sheehy.

The above committee is to be congratulated on the grand success of the annual ladies' night and anniversary which in spite of very unfavorable weather conditions, turned out to be one of the grandest in the history of Council 729, and the ladies and other invited guests enjoyed themselves to the utmost and all wish the Weymouth Council K. of C. the best of success in all future undertakings.

MONDAY CLUB.

Rev. Edward J. Yaeger of Weymouth Heights Addresses Club Members and Guests on Current Events.

The Monday Club had a most entertaining and instructive afternoon on Monday, February 3d at Odd Fellows hall, East Weymouth. Mrs. Arthur V. Harper, president, presided. Mrs. Jennie Worster was made secretary pro tem. At the business meeting it was voted to make the meeting of March 3d, Endowment Day. The General Federation of Women's Clubs has raised, by club subscription, an endowment fund, to be used to further the work that tends to uplift in every way possible, such as the Child Labor laws, White Slave law, also Conservation and Education. Each member is urged to come to that meeting prepared to give as liberally as possible so that the Monday Club of Weymouth may be well represented in the Endowment Fund.

At the conclusion of the business meeting Mrs. Harper presented Mrs. James Jones and Miss Lillian Curtis as committee on the entertainment, for the afternoon. Mrs. Jones introduced Mrs. Robert Hoffman, who sang charmingly, two selections, with Mrs. John Merrill as accompanist. The Rev. Edward J. Yaeger of Weymouth Heights addressed the club, his subject being Current Events. Miss Anna Kennedy of South Weymouth, speaking on Conservation, took for her title "Some Landscape Features." Both speakers were cordially received and held the close attention of the ladies, who gave them a vote of thanks at the close of their remarks.

Mrs. Arthur W. Burr served as hostess assisted by Mrs. William Wilde, Mrs. Herbert Walsh, Mrs. Paul Garvin, Mrs. William E. Thayer, Mrs. J. Sumner Fowler, Mrs. Edward Jones and Mrs. Davis Randall. The purvers were Mrs. Fred Hersey, Mrs. Arthur Alden, Mrs. Frank J. A. Perry and Miss Harriette S. Ripley.

Stock always prefer to drink water that is clean.

Let the soil be rich for your asparagus bed, for its growth will always reveal the way it has been fed.

Lend your crops to your live stock and see what a big interest they will pay and how promptly they pay it.

During winter the drinking vessels must be emptied each evening; it is much easier to do than it is to break a solid cake of ice in them the next morning.

Whenever any farm animal shows a disposition to eat wood, earth and other unnatural things, a change in feed is necessary. In most cases too much corn is being fed.

Some of the English breeders put a small teaspoonful of mustard in the morning mash for every six or seven fowls. This is used as a tonic as well as a stimulant to egg production.

Say, the hens will cackle thanks for those small potatoes. Just boil them and mix with meal or bran. If scraps of meat or soup bones are boiled with the potatoes, the hiddies will like the flavor better, and there will be money in your pocket.

Growing colts confined in the stable must have daily grooming and exercise. Yet how many persons, because a colt happens to be particularly nice, pamper and coddle it and keep it without exercise. The fact is the growing horse should have all the exercise he will naturally take, and this will be a great deal if he is allowed his own way. The horse is an animal of labor or else of little worth.

Cabbage is a gross feeder and requires a very rich soil for large and rapid growth. It develops best under cool conditions, yet the soil for the early crop should be warm. A light, fertile, well-drained, sandy loam is best. Other kinds can be made light and warm by liberal application of well-rotted manure. A sunny exposure will moderate the soil temperature.

To grow a big corn crop there must be a large amount of moisture in the soil. Every means must be taken to make the soil absorb water and to prevent its escape. During the winter and early spring the soil has become filled with water from winter rains and snows and spring rains. The growing corn crop during spring, summer and early fall will need all of this soil moisture, and none must be allowed to escape through evaporation, if possible. Keeping the surface worked fine and level will create a surface soil much for holding the soil moisture below where it is needed.

The seeds of nearly all the grasses and clovers are hardy and they will resist a great amount of moisture and freezing. In many cases where the soil is in a fit condition to receive them, they may as well be sown in winter as in summer. Some always do all of their grass and clover seeding in winter, especially during the latter part of winter, as well as in very early spring while the ground is still freezing at night and thawing out during the day.

One reason why so many potato crops are failures is because the vitality of the seed has been impaired before planting. Potatoes left in large bins in dark cellars will quickly grow long white sprouts as soon as warm weather comes. All the substances in these shoots must come from the potato, and detracts from the nourishment stored for the young plant when it begins to grow. Secondary sprouts will start from the base after the first are broken off, but they are never as strong as the first. As soon as the buds begin to push on seed potatoes they should be got from the cellar or pit, and spread thinly in a light room where the temperature until planting will not be more than 40 or 50 deg. Buds will start from potatoes thus treated, but they will be green, and with care in planting will be so much start for the crop.

A Mystery Solved.

[Written for the Gazette and Transcript.]

The Bride had been puzzling for some minutes over a letter she held in her hands. She twisted and turned it this way and that, but the point of view seemed to make no difference.

Finally she laid the sheet before the Benedict, who was busy at the table making up the month's accounts.

"Jack, she apologized, "can you spare time to look at this word? I can't make it out."

The Benedict squinted for some time. Then he looked forlornly at the Bride.

"Beloved," he pleaded, "what have I done to be punished like this?"

"Can't you read it either?" she laughed.

"Not by itself," he sighed. "If I could practise on some other part of the letter, just to get used to the curves, I might."

"Why, of course; read as much as you like."

But even that didn't help much, for the curves, it seemed, were never twice alike, and the few words he could make out threw no light on the word in question.

"I can't read any of it, Beloved; you should get a government expert," he declared, giving up in despair.

"I have read it all but that one word," she told him.

"Then I should think you'd guess at that or let it go. What difference does one word make?"

"This happens to be the name of something she wants me to get in town and send to her. Otherwise I shouldn't try to fathom it."

"I have always told Blanche that she took a good deal for granted when she supposed we would study out her scrawls," continued the Bride, still puzzling over the hieroglyphic. "The only way out of it is to call her by 'phone and get her to spell it, for if I asked her to write it again it would probably be just as bad."

"Let me look again," asked the Benedict, laying aside his bills and receipts. "There must be some way of interpreting this. Read me a few words before this one."

"Get me four yards," read the Bride, pointing out the words as if Jack were the primer.

"Oh," he ejaculated, "it comes by the yard."

"Yes, but so many things come that way."

"What, for instance?"

"Linen, lawn, lace."

"Hold a bit; go slow now, and give me time to match up."

So the Bride began again, but nothing matched, though she mentioned more fabrics than the Benedict ever heard of before.

"There is the night's paper," he suggested finally; "see if you can unearth something different."

And there in the white goods advertisement she found it. "Batiste" was the word, so the Bride declared, though the 't' was no higher than the 'a,' and the 's' looked more like pigeon wishbones than like self-respecting letters of the alphabet.

"Beloved," declared the Benedict solemnly, "there ought to be a law against letting such writing as that go through the mails. Did Brian ever see Blanche's handwriting before they were married?"

"Oh, yes!" nodded the Bride. "You know he was away during most of their engagement and they did all their planning by letter."

The Benedict drew a long whistle. "My soul! but he must have loved her!"

COUPON CONTEST.

Voting Contest at Kempf's Pharmacy Still Extremely Popular, as is Evidenced by the Large Scores of the Contestants.

At the end of the second month in the coupon contest being held at G. R. Kempf's Pharmacy in Washington Square, Weymouth, Miss Alice Corridan has clinched her hold on first place and Leon Shaw is securely entrenched in second place. The contest for third place is quite close, William Wallace leading Russell Drexelmer by only 1,010 votes. While first and second places will see no changes during the next week, a shake-up in the list below these two honor positions may result in a change. The score up to January 31, 1913, is as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Name and Score. Alice Corridan 132,025; Leon B. Shaw 58,222; William Wallace 25,100; Russell Drexelmer 24,090; Catherine Johnson 7,885; Mrs. A. Smith 6,390; May Fitzgerald 3,590; Robert Robbins 3,160; G. Cavanaugh 2,400; A. W. Gibson 720.

I wish every woman who understands the art of clothes could visit the factory where the "American Lady" Shoes are made.

I would like to show her what a lot of care and best materials mean in making a pretty and serviceable shoe. Made by people who thoroughly understand the making of fine shoes.

The American Lady Shoes have a character all their own. They are first cousins to custom made shoes. Different kinds for different occasions.

Come and let me show you a really beautiful shoe—one that is comfortable and gives more service than any other shoe sold in Quincy.

How Tommy Atoned

Estranged Lovers Reconciled by an Office Boy

By AGNES G. BROGAN

A traveling salesman blew into Little Rock, Ark., and, going to the leading merchant, said pompously: "I'm from New York. I want to show you the newest line of—"

"Where did you say you were from?" asked the merchant, getting ready to do some "kidding." The swell-headed manner of the New Yorker had ruffled him. The salesman seemed to think the fact that he was from New York was something to make rural merchants' jaws drop open. He was what western people call a "New York fool"—the one kind that is hopeless.

"Why, I'm from New York," repeated the gingerly, swell-up geek.

"Who runs the hotel in that town?" asked the merchant in a friendly manner. —Philadelphia Telegraph

His Kindly Heart.

"Really," began the collector. "I can not understand why a man of your resources will refuse to pay his honest debts." "Then I'll tell you," said the well-to-do citizen, confidentially. "If I paid up I'd throw you and several others out of work, and I haven't the heart to do it."—Satire.

A VISION IN THE NIGHT.

The Man That Was Posed on the Edge of the Precipice.

Through the hilly country of the Basques Harry A. Franck made his way on foot with few adventures, but with many interesting experiences. At the close of one day, he tells us in "Four Months Afoot in Spain," he began to clamber upward into the mountains that rose high in the darkening sky ahead. The night grew black, for the heavens were overcast, but he who marches on into the darkness, if he is not confused by any artificial lights, may still see moderately well.

It was two hours perhaps after night-fall, and the road, its edge a sheer precipice above unfathomable depths, was winding ever higher round the shoulder of a mammoth peak when suddenly I saw a man, a denser blackness against the sea of obscurity, standing stock still on the utmost edge of the highway.

"Buenas tardes!" I greeted him in a low voice, almost afraid that a hearty tone would send him toppling backward to his death.

He neither answered nor moved. I stepped closer.

"You have rather a dangerous position, verdad, señor?"

Still he stared motionless at me through the darkness. I moved quietly forward and, thrusting out a hand, touched him on the sleeve. It was hard, as if frozen. For an instant I recoiled, then with a sudden instinctive movement passed a hand quickly and lightly over his face. Was I dreaming? That, too, was hard and cold. I sprang back and, rummaging hastily through my pockets, found one broken match. The wind was rushing up from the bottomless gulf below. I struck a light, holding it in the hollow of my hand, and in the instant before it was blown out I caught a few words of an inscription on a pedestal:

Erected to the Men—
Bandits—Night of—

But before I had made out date or name I was in darkness again.

for Richard's repentant return. But, oh, wonder of wonders, Paul Richard came not at all! Days passed, and weeks, and dreary, gloomy months. The young lawyer grew stern and silent. While the young maiden was seemingly gay and merry. Her gloomy moments, like her gloomy thoughts, were only known to the bull terrier. And often as Dorothea bent low over her silent confidant there would be an unaccountable damp spot upon the faithful head, which caused the dog to raise his eyes in eloquent sympathy.

And then Paul Richard was taken desperately, dangerously ill. Father looked at Dorothea curiously as he told the news one night.

"Allowed to see no one," he finished briefly "delicious most of the time—typical."

Dorothea crept nimbly up to her room. "Do you think," she asked the terrier fearfully, "that he will die? And does he care for me still, I wonder? Because if I thought that he cared I would go to him now—tonight. But how can one tell? Men change. Perhaps he was glad after all to be free. He did not wish to love me," the girl went on musingly. "I—I made him do it. He always said my horrid money kept him from me, but now—if I could only be sure that he cared!"

Dorothea sprang to her feet. "Love!" she cried contemptuously. "Love! If he had known the meaning of the word could he have remained silent, could he have stayed so long away?"

When Paul Richard, turning restlessly upon his cot at the hospital looked up once more with rational, seeing eyes, the nurse held out to him a great bunch of roses—bride roses they were—filling the room with their fragrance. For a moment the bright color flamed in the sick man's face, and with an eager motion he reached for the accompanying card.

"I will read it to you," the nurse offered, and the admiring client who had been flattered at his attorney's sudden lack of interest in his gift.

"Take them away," Richard said testily. "I can't bear—flowers."

Dorothea had known a pretty fashion of wearing roses in her hair. Down low she wore them, tucked into that wavy knot just below her little ear. The fragrance had been wafted to him across the dusty lawbooks, he remembered, when she had sat there in her father's chair, so invitingly near and yet so seemingly far away. Why had she bridged the forbidding chasm of wealth and caste only to leave him with heartache and memories in the end? Or had she realized her mistake perhaps with the return of her old time lover?

She had been with Bob Mahew much lately. Tommy Ryan kept him informed of these occasions. And who could stem the tide of Tommy's garrulous tongue? For this she had blamed him rightly, and yet Tommy was a staunch friend, his unconscious comradship as free from impertinence as that of a child. That the boy would "do or die" for him under any and all circumstances Richard never doubted, and perhaps at the bottom of his heart was a fellow feeling for this courageous lad of the streets, who was striking even as he had striven against difficulties.

Richard turned to the nurse again. "No letters?" he asked and sank wearily back at her gesture of assent.

"What a fool you are!" he grumbled fiercely into the pillows. "If she cares for Bob Mahew can't you let her have—her happiness?"

"What's that?" cried a cheery voice from the doorway, and uninvited Tommy Ryan entered the hospital room. "Doctors wanted to throw me out," he announced pleasantly, "but I told them I was your particular friend."

Richard smiled feebly, and with a skillful throw Tommy hung his cap on the post of the bed.

"Ye look as if ye hadn't been over-feeding," the boy continued; then as he stood looking down at the thin, worn face Tommy's voice sank to a husky murmur. "Ye've got to cure yourself, Mr. Walton," he said. "It's up to you. If there's anything that's worryin' jist throw it off your mind."

Richard laughed shortly. "How's business?" he asked.

The boy chuckled. "Fine," he answered, "if it weren't for the flowers jist chokin' up the place. They keep comin' in for you, and as ye haven't been in a state to know flowers from embargoes, sir, we held them down there."

Richard sat up with unexpected strength. "You didn't destroy the cards?" he questioned anxiously. Tommy, who was making a hasty search through various pockets, laid a small package upon the counterpane, then stood regarding his paragon with shrewd and watchful eyes. The square jaws tightened aggressively as Richard read the cards and one by one laid them quietly aside.

"I thank you, Tommy," he said. "Come in again."

Miss Dorothea, entering the office upon the following morning, met with a cool reception from the usually obsequious office boy.

"Father in?" she questioned. And, this being father's unchangeable luncheon hour, Tommy Ryan might be excused the stare of surprise which was his only response. Perhaps Dorothea hoped that the boy's talkative tendencies might be turned to her own advantage, for she smiled into the obturate, freckled face.

"Your employer improving?" she questioned carelessly.

"Yep," said Tommy.

"I am glad to hear it," she continued, with assumed indifference.

The boy leaned forward. "That a message?" he asked quickly. For a moment Dorothea's eyes wavered before his, so keenly searching.

"No," she answered at last, and her

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Junior Class Arranging for Valentine Party on February 14.

The members of the class of 1915 of the school are to hold a Valentine party on February 14 in the school. The committee in charge of the affair consists of Leo Fraher, Harold Glover, Miss Katherine Pratt, Miss Edith Newman, Miss Ruth Powers, and Miss Florence Mully.

A movement is on foot in the school to publish a school paper again this year. The idea was started last year by the members of the class of 1912, and a very snappy, breezy, entertaining edition was circulated throughout the school and town. It is intended to have three seniors, two juniors, two sophomores and two freshmen on the editorial staff this year and these nine scholars will write events of interest at the high school as well as several other interesting stories for the school paper. Other pupils of a literary, frame of mind will be asked to contribute articles and the second edition of the official school paper of Weymouth's highest institute of learning should be of interest to all.

The girls dramatic club will present the play "The Mouse Trap" in the school hall next Thursday afternoon, February 13th, at 2.45 o'clock. The affair is for "ladies only," and the club extends a cordial invitation to their lady friends to be present at the first public appearance of the newly formed society. A small admission will be charged, and a sale of candy will be held.

MENS' BROTHERHOOD.

The second in a series of special services under the auspices of the Men's Brotherhood connected with the Pilgrim Congregational church of North Weymouth, was held last Sunday evening in the church auditorium. Rev. Dr. F. E. Emrich, secretary of the Massachusetts Missionary Society, delivered an address on "The Foreigner." Music was given by a chorus of male voices and Herbert W. Hayden organist. The committee in charge was W. T. Seabury, R. S. Gilmore, C. H. Williams, A. J. Sidlinger and George W. Bane.

CHAPTER XXII.

Wherein Philip Ammon is Scorned by Edith Carr, and Hart Henderson Appears on the Scene.

EDITH CARR stood in a vine enclosed side veranda of the Lake Shore clubhouse waiting while Philip Ammon gave some important orders. In a few days she would sail for Paris to select a wonderful trousseau she had planned for her marriage in October. Tonight Philip was giving a club dance in her honor. As she stood waiting she smiled softly. She was robed in a French creation suggested and designed by Philip. He had said to her, "I know a competent judge who says the distinctive feature of June is her exquisite big night moths. I want you to be the very essence of June that night, as you will be the embodiment of love. Be a moth. The most beautiful of them is either the pale green Luna or the yellow Imperial. Be my moon lady or my gold Empress."

Now she stood, tall, lithe, of grace incarnate, her dark wavy hair high piled and crossed by gold bands studded with amethysts and at one side an enameled lavender orchid rimmed with diamonds, which flashed and sparkled. The soft yellow robe of lightest weight velvet fitted her form perfectly, while from each shoulder fell a great velvet wing lined with lavender and flecked with embroidery of that color in imitation of the moth. Philip had said that her gloves, fan and slippers must be lavender because the feet of the moth were that color. These accessories had been made to order and embroidered with gold. In her heart she thought of herself as "Imperial Regalis," as the Yellow Empress. But in all the fragmentary thought crossing her brain the one that never came was that of Philip Ammon as the emperor, Philip the king of her heart, and at least her equal in all things.

"Ah, my luck!" cried a voice behind her. Edith Carr turned and smiled exquisitely.

"I thought you were on the ocean," she said. "I only reached the dock," replied the man, "when I had a letter that recalled me by the first limited. Edith, you are the most superb woman in every respect that I have ever seen. One glimpse is worth the whole journey."

He half closed his eyes and smilingly stared straight at her. He was taller than she, a lean man, with close cropped light hair, steel gray eyes, a square chin and "man of the world" written all over him.

Edith Carr flushed. "I thought you realized when you went away that you were to stop that, Hart Henderson," she cried.

"I did, but this letter of which I tell you called me back to start it all over again. One of your most intimate chums wrote it. It contained the hazard that possibly I had given up too soon. It said that in a fit of petulance you had broken your engagement with Ammon twice this winter, and he had come back because he knew you did not really mean it. I have come back to haunt you until the ceremony is over. Then I go, no before I was insane!"

The girl laughed merrily. "Not half so insane as you are now, Hart!" she cried gaily. "You know that Philip Ammon has been devoted to me all my life. Well, now I'll tell you something else, because this looks serious for you. I love him with all my heart. Not while he lives shall he know it, and I will laugh at him if you tell him, but the fact remains. I intend to marry him, but no doubt I shall tease him constantly. It's good for a man to be uncertain. If you could see Ammon's face at the quarterly return of his ring you would understand the fun of it. My little fits of temper don't count with Phil. He's been raised on them."

"Just the same I'll wait and see it an accomplished fact," said Henderson. "And Edith, because I love you with the sort of love it is worth a woman's while to inspire I want your happiness before my own. Go careful from now on. Don't strain that patched engagement of yours any further. I've known Philip all my life. He loves you, yes! He is long suffering for you, yes! But men know he has a limit. When the limit is reached he will stand fast, and all the powers can't move him. You don't seem to think it, but you can go too far."

"Is that all?" laughed Edith Carr sarcastically. "No, there is one thing more," said Henderson. "Here or hereafter, now and so long as I breathe, I am your slave. If you need me it is not necessary to speak; only give me the faintest sign. All your life I will be somewhere near you waiting for it."

At that instant Philip Ammon entered. He was in full evening dress and exceptionally handsome. "Everything is ready," he said. "They are waiting for us to lead the march. It is formed." Edith Carr smiled entrancingly. "Do you think I am ready?" Philip looked what he thought and almost instinctively Philip caught it in air. "Edith, for the love of mercy, wait until I can explain!" he begged. "Put on your ring and let me tell you how it is."

"Never! Your conduct is infamous!" "Come to think of it," said Ammon deliberately, "it is infamous to cut a girl who has danced all her life out of a few measures of a waltz. As for asking forgiveness for so black a sin as picking up a moth and starting it to a friend who lives by collecting them I don't see how I could. I have not been gone three minutes by the clock, Edith. Put on your ring and finish the dance like a dear girl."

He thrust the glittering ruby into her fingers and again held out his arms. She dropped the ring, and it rolled some distance from them. Henderson followed its shining course and caught it before it was lost.

"You really mean it?" demanded Ammon in a voice as cold as hers ever had been.

"You know I mean it!" cried Edith Carr. "I accept your decision in the presence of these witnesses," said Philip Ammon.

"Where is my father?" he asked of those around them. The elder Ammon, with a distressed face, hurried to him. "Father, take my place," said Philip. "Excuse me to my guests. Ask all my friends to forgive me. I am going out for a time."

He turned and walked from the pavilion. As he went Hart Henderson rushed to Edith Carr and forced the ring into her fingers. "Edith, quick! Come, quick!" he implored. "There's just time to catch him. If you let him go that way he never will return in this world. Remember what I told you."

"Great prophet, aren't you, Hart?" she sneered. "Who wants him to return? If that ring is thrust upon me again I shall fling it into the lake. Signal the musicians to begin and take this dance with me."

"I accept your decision in the presence of these witnesses."

Henderson put the ring into his pocket and began the dance. He could feel the muscular spasms of the girl in his arms, her face was cold and hard, but her breath burned with the scorch of fever. She finished the dance and all others, taking Phil's numbers with Henderson, who had arrived too late to arrange a program. She left with the others, merely inclining her head as she passed Ammon's father taking his place, and entered the big touring car for which Henderson had telephoned.

She sank limply into a seat and moaned softly. "Shall I drive awhile in the night air?" asked Henderson.

She nodded. Henderson instructed the chauffeur. "She raised her head in a few seconds. "Hart, I'm going to pieces," she said. "Won't you put your arm around me a little while?"

Henderson gathered her into his arms and her head fell on his shoulder. "Closely!" she cried.

Dawn was streaking the east when he spoke to her. "Edith, it is growing light."

"Take me home," she said. Henderson helped her up the steps and rang the bell.

"Miss Carr is ill," he said to the footmen. "Rouse her maid instantly and have her prepare something hot as quickly as possible."

"Edith," he cried, "just a word. I have been thinking. It isn't too late yet. Take your ring and put it on. I will go find Phil at once and tell him you have, that you are expecting him, and he will come."

"Think what he said!" she cried. "He accepted my decision as final in the presence of witnesses as if it were court. He can return it to me if I ever wear it again."

"You think that now, but in a few days you will find that you feel very differently. Living a life of heartache is no joke and no job for a woman. Put on your ring and send me to tell him to come. I know Phil, and I know you went too far. Put on that ring and send him word you are sorry before it is too late."

"I will not! He shall come to me." "Then God help you!" said Henderson, "for you are plunging into misery whose depth you do not dream."

She swayed where she stood. Her maid opened the door and caught her. Henderson went down the hall and out to his car.

When Disraeli Forgot.

Disraeli was speaking in support of Lord Lytton's motion condemning the evacuation of Kandahar. "My lords," he said, "the key of India is not Merv or Herat or—here came a long pause and rather painful anxiety in the audience and then the quiet resumption of the thread. "It is not the place of which I cannot recall the name—the key of India is London."—"One Look Back," by the Right Hon G. W. E. Russell.

She Knew.

"Lola, dear," said her mother, "do you know the meaning of your Bible text, 'Love one another?'"

"Why of course I do, mamma," she replied. "It means that I must love you and you must love me; I'm one and you're another."—Chicago News

Following Are a Few of the Items Which Appeared in the Gazette Years Ago This Week.

TWENTY-SIX YEARS AGO.

The Board of Fire Engineers have contracted with the Abbott Downing Co. of Concord, N. H., for a hose wagon to be located in Ward 1, at a cost of $475.

The double track of the Old Colony railroad will, if the weather is at all favorable, be completed between Braintree and East Weymouth before spring opens.

There was a general strike at the factory of Fogg, Shaw, Thayer & Co., on Wednesday morning, when the engine ceased running and the place was as quiet as a Sunday. The workmen claim to be dissatisfied with the action of foreman Damon in hiring men from outside the village who were not approved by the Knights of Labor.

The employees of Edwin Clapp have formed a relief association. It is proposed to pay sick and disabled members $10 per week, to be contributed by the members. A relief committee has been appointed, having a member in each town where members of the association reside. The following are the officers:—president, John B. Barrell; vice president, James D. Hyland; secretary, D. A. Donovan; treasurer, T. J. Evans. There are now about 115 members.

At the regular meeting of the Executive committee of the Improvement Association of South Weymouth last Friday evening, there was quite a boom started in street lighting. This plan of furnishing lamps wherever people are willing to assume the trouble and expense of lighting, is one which the association can carry out and still keep within the bounds of the treasury limit. The committee voted to erect lamps near the residences of James Moore, Jonathan Packard, Elbridge Nash, C. A. Hunt, Henry Pratt, G. L. Wentworth, also one at the corner of Park avenue and Pleasant street.

NINETEEN YEARS AGO.

The new rooms of the Norfolk Cycle club of South Weymouth, in the opera house block, work on which has been going on for the past two weeks, were thrown open to the club last Monday evening.

Quite a little excitement was created last Saturday afternoon on Main street, when a number of men came out with their trotters to show their speed. Prizes were offered and some lively racing was indulged in.

It was the common thing last Tuesday morning to see frosty whiskers and those who were obliged to be out holding on to their ears. It was the coldest day of the winter, the thermometer registering as low as 19 degrees below zero.

East Weymouth is not a Quebec or Brighton, but it can boast of equally as lively sleighing carnival as either of those places which have a world-wide reputation. Last Saturday afternoon 1200 people lined the street from Jackson Square to Cottage street to see the brilliant turnouts and lively trotters.

The past week has intensified the interest in the coming election for town officers, as we get nearer the caucuses, of which there will be two, a straight republican caucus which will be held in Odd Fellows Opera House, Monday evening, the 12th, and a caucus to be called "citizens", which will be held next week.

SIXTEEN YEARS AGO.

The Boston Ice Co. suspended operations Wednesday morning owing to the high wind. They lost about two inches of ice.

A large force of men has been kept busy this week levelling down the snow drifts and trying to make the streets passable.

The severe wind of Wednesday caused more damage to travel in a great many places than any storm we have had. Union street is in the worst condition it has been for years. Electric travel on both roads was stopped for over a day.

The selectmen were out viewing the proposed new street from Broad to Common street, Wednesday. It is estimated that the cost of building the street and paying land damages would be in the neighborhood of $2,000.

A few parties tried to delude themselves last night with the idea that it was good sleighing but learned that the billowy ocean when tossed by the tempests was smooth as compared to our streets at this time. In fact the snow did not come in good shape for sleighing.

Only Country Without Typewriters. Typewriters are now made for use in nearly a hundred different languages, and they are sold all over the world; but there is still one great nation which, for a very simple reason, has no typewriters that write its tongue. That nation is China.

MINSTREL SHOW.

Men's Club of Universalist Church, North Weymouth, Entertain Large Audience in Church Vestry Last Evening. Second Performance Tonight.

With every available seat in the hall taken and standing room at a premium, the Men's club, connected with the Universalist church in North Weymouth showed its skill in entertaining, in the church vestry, last evening by presenting one of the finest and most enjoyable minstrel shows ever staged in this town.

When the curtain arose at seven forty-five, the large audience was greeted by a group of about forty members, including end men, olio artists, minstrels and chorus.

The interlocutor of the show was E. H. Kavanagh, one of North Weymouth's citizens, and he was flanked on either side by the following band of minstrels: H. O. Tutty, J. P. Holbrook, C. E. Stiles, George Ames, R. F. Vining, G. A. Walker, H. F. Clapp, E. D. Williams, S. G. Dunbar, J. G. Easton, John Taylor, I. W. Morgan, E. Trussell, N. A. Cushing and A. W. Sampson.

The end men were R. G. Poulin and C. C. Howland, bones; and S. T. Torrey and Alfred W. Gardner, tambos. These artists are "old timers" in the minstrel show game and as usual, one and all kept things moving all the time, and the gathering was in a continual uproar from the opening chorus until the end, at the antics and jokes of these four merry makers.

The opening chorus went off without a hitch and from that time until nearly ten o'clock, solos, up-to-date jokes on local celebrities, specialty acts, orchestral selections and a well acted farce entitled "Captain Swell" held the close attention of the extra large crowd on deck.

The solo numbers of the program were extremely well rendered and received much deserved applause from the audience. "It's Up to You to Move" by A. W. Sampson, gave this artist a fine chance to display his vocal powers, and R. G. Poulin's rendering of "I'm The Guy" showed that he reads the Boston Traveler quite frequently.

H. F. Clapp contributed the song "I Would Like to Try It" and Stanley T. Torrey sang very touchingly, "Somebody Else is Getting It" much to the merriment and pleasure of "Stan's" many friends in the crowd.

C. C. Howland's singing of "Don't Forget dar's a Wedding" To-night" made many of the younger couples in the gathering sit up and take notice, and "The Land of Dream" by N. Q. Cushing surely acted just the reverse of causing people to grow drowsy.

"Allie" Gardner, who could perform in a minstrel show every night for a good many months and never tire his audience shambled to the center of the stage and sang "When Uncle Joe Plays a Rag on his old Banjo," as only Alfred W. knows how. The last solo number of this part of the program was by G. A. Walker, who gave "When That Midnight Choo-choo Leaves for Alabama."

Much applauded features of the program were the slight of hand performances by John H. Tower, the song and baton swinging by John G. Easton, a finely rendered baritone solo by Stephen F. Pratt and a side-splitting sketch by Alfred W. Gardner and H. B. Stiles with tambos, harmonicas and other instruments.

The parts of the farce "Captain Swell" were all well taken, by the following North Weymouth talent: Captain Swell, a would-be hero

H. F. Clapp
Augustus Fitznoode, a dude
John G. Easton
Stanley Torrey
Dusty

Two bums
Seedy J.
Mrs. Swell
Angelina Swell

During the evening several orchestral selections were rendered by Tower's orchestra, composed of Miss Doris Torrey, pianist, Miss Hazel Clark, Percy Ames, Henry Gooding, Harold W. Raymond and John H. Tower.

The committee in charge of the well arranged minstrel show are deserving of a lot of praise for the hard labor put in to make the affair a grand success, and the members who participated are to be congratulated on their fine work. The members of the committee who directed the show are Harry A. Bailey, Edwin R. Sampson, E. D. Williams, C. E. Stiles and Stanley T. Torrey.

Tonight, the show will be staged again and as the seats for both evenings were sold within an hour after being put on sale at D. A. Jones' store on Monday, February 3, another large and enthusiastic audience is expected to be in attendance. Several new jokes will be sprung tonight, so Mr. Citizen of North Weymouth, don't be congratulating yourself if you didn't get hit last evening, your turn is coming tonight.

The affair is being conducted for the benefit of the church repair fund, and it is safe to say that a large sum will be netted for the cause.

LINCOLN DAY SERVICE.

Reynolds W. R. C. 102 With Kindred Orders Hold Exercises in M. E. Church, East Weymouth.

Under the auspices of Reynolds W. R. C., Lincoln day services were held in the Methodist church, East Weymouth, last Sunday afternoon. The program was in charge of Mrs. Cenira Raymond, patriotic instructor of the W. R. C. and was as follows:

Organ voluntary,
Mrs. Grace Gay Barrett

Cornet solo, "Star Spangled Banner," Theodora Keith, G. A. R. cornetist

Closing hymn, "God be with you 'til we meet again"
Benediction,
Pastor, Rev. George Grant, D. D.

The address of the day was delivered by Comrade Edward O. Skelton, department patriotic instructor of the G. A. R., who is also chairman of the Massachusetts Gettysburg Commission on the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg. His subject was "The Lessons Deducted from the Life of Abraham Lincoln." Mrs. Grace Barrett presided at the organ.

Mrs. Mary W. Dunbar Obituary.

Just as we were going to press last Friday, word came to us of the death of Mrs. Mary W., wife of Willard J. Dunbar of East Weymouth.

This intelligence was not unexpected as Mrs. Dunbar passed through a severe operation at a Boston hospital a few weeks ago and the doctors gave no hope of its being of any permanent help and the end came Friday morning at her home in East Weymouth.

Mrs. Dunbar was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel French and was born in East Weymouth 70 years ago the coming July and her life has been spent near her place of birth. For more than half a century she was closely identified with all the interests of the Methodist church and Reynolds W. R. C. No. 102 also had her as one of its faithful members, her last active work in the corps being an attendant to the National Encampment in California last summer.

In Thanksgiving week of 1860, Mary W. French became the wife of Willard J. Dunbar and the golden anniversary of that marriage was celebrated December 23, 1910, and she is now survived by Mr. Dunbar and one son, Charlie W. Dunbar.

Funeral services were held at the late home of the deceased Monday afternoon and were largely attended by friends and relatives, the W. R. C. being represented by its officers and members. Rev. D. Grant of the Methodist church, conducted the services and paid a beautiful tribute to the departed as a member who would be missed from the working force of the church.

Singing was by the Beethoven quartette of Boston and their selections were "Nearer Home," "Eternal Goodness" and "Abide With Me."

The Relief Corps burial ritual was rendered by the president, Mrs. Augusta F. Baldwin; chaplain, Mrs. Edna Ferris, and other officers, the Beethoven quartette adding the Lord's Prayer to this service.

The burial was at the North Weymouth cemetery and the bearers were B. B. Sylvester, Leonard W. Cain, George F. Farrar and James F. Otis.

Mrs. Annie M. Soule, Dead.

After a long illness, Mrs. Annie M., widow of Capt. Charles W. Soule, who for several years has made her home with her son, John M. Soule, 70 Putnam street, East Weymouth, passed away at that place last Saturday.

Funeral services were held at her late home Tuesday afternoon, Rev. Henry L. Brafford officiating, Miss Eveline Sherman adding to the service two selections, "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," favorites of Mrs. Soule and the burial was at Mt. Vernon cemetery, Abington.

Mrs. Margaret Donahue Buried.

Funeral services of Mrs. Margaret Donahue who passed away at her home in East Weymouth last Sunday, was held on Tuesday morning from the church of the Immaculate Conception. At the high mass of requiem, Rev. Maurice Lynch, assistant rector, was celebrant. The music was by the church choir and Miss Nellie F. Noonan presided at the organ. James Flaherty, James C. Healy, Robert Mitchell, James Murphy, James Mitchell and James Skelley were the pallbearers.

REPUBLICAN PRIMARIES.

A Quiet and Harmonious Evening of Nominations.

In response to a call issued by the Republican town committee, meetings were held in the several wards Wednesday evening with the following results:

Hall, constables; and recommended John A. Raymond, town clerk; John H. Stetson, treasurer; Dr. Geo. E. Emerson, Board of Health; Frank N. Blanchard, auditor, and Charles L. Merritt, tree warden; delegates to general caucus, W. J. Holbrook, Frank N. Blanchard and eight others.

Ward 5—Geo. L. Barnes, chairman; Frank E. Loud, clerk; A. Francis Barnes nominated for Selectman and Overseer of Poor; Dr. Geo. E. Emerson, Board of Health; Elbert Ford and George W. Conant, constables.

Mrs. Edwin W. Hunt, Dead.

Evelyn Taylor Hunt, wife of Edwin W. died Wednesday morning at their home in Whitman. She was born in Melrose April 8, 1888 and was the daughter of R. Swell C. and Mary F. Taylor. She was married to Edwin W. Hunt, treasurer of the Whitman Savings bank, January 25, 1908 and they made their home in this town for several years. Mrs. Hunt was a member of the Monday club of Weymouth and the Whitman Women's club. The funeral services will be held from their former home, 99 Front street, Weymouth, at 3:30 this afternoon.

Reynolds W. R. C. 102 held a supper and entertainment in G. A. R. hall, Tuesday evening, February 11. The entertainment consisted of piano duets by Miss May Allen and Miss Johnson; reading by Miss Helen Corridan; song, "Little Red Schoolhouse," by Master Harry Vogel; remarks by Department President Mrs. Mary E. Holbrook, Commander Ford; Patriotic Instructor of 58 L. W. Cain, P. I. of Corps 102 Mrs. C. I. Raymond, and P. I. of S. V. Harry Vogel; readings by Dept. P. I. Mrs. Carrie F. Loring; and cornet solos by Miss Theodora Keith.

Mrs. Mary E. Mahoney, past president of Corps 102, initiated thirty-nine members during her term of office.

Mrs. Carrie F. Loring, Dept. P. I., accompanied by the Dept. Pres., Mrs. Mary E. Holbrook, and Mrs. Lou Stuart Wadsworth, Dept. Councillor, and Mrs. Cenira Raymond, Dept. P. I. of Reynolds W. R. C. 102, presented 22 silk flags, 24 by 30, to the Abraham Lincoln school of Boston for the Department of Mass. W. R. C.

Mrs. Lue Stuart Wadsworth, Dept. Councillor, presented 9 flags to the same school in behalf of the Ladies' Aid Association connected with the Soldiers' Home at Chelsea. The principal of the school, Mr. Kansom, received the ladies with great courtesy and responded to the gifts in a very impressive manner. There are 1,800 children in this school. The school orchestra rendering patriotic selections, the pupils saluting the flag and others marching through the aisles with the 31 flags that were presented them, made a very impressive sight. Patriotic selections in honor of Lincoln day were recited by many of the pupils. The exercises closed by the entire school singing "America."

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

Reports for Past Year, Choosing of Committees and Election of New Officers Features of Fourth Quarterly Conference of East Weymouth M. E. Church.

At the fourth quarterly conference of the Methodist church of East Weymouth held in the church vestry recently, District Superintendent W. I. Ward presided, with Charles H. Chubbuck secretary.

Reports of the past year from all departments were read and approved and officers and work committees chosen for the coming year.

Tufts Lecture Course.

We are pleased to announce that we have been able to secure the services of Charles Wellington Furlong, F. R. G. S., for the next lecture in the Tufts course. The lecture will be given at the Bates Opera House on the evening of Thursday, February 20.

Mr. Furlong will lecture on the subject of "South America of Today," a subject of live interest to the people of the United States, and one upon which Mr. Furlong is eminently qualified to speak. The lecture will be illustrated by pictures which have been secured by the lecturer in his extensive travels on the continent of our southern neighbors.

We also announce a lecture at the Pilgrim church, North Weymouth, on the evening of Friday, February 28, by William Wallace Rose upon "The Yellowstone Park."

The pictures used by Mr. Rose are of the best, and illustrate vividly the wondrous beauties of this great national park. This lecture has been enthusiastically received wherever it has been given.

These lectures are free to all and we trust that our citizens generally will avail themselves of the opportunity of attending them.

The evening's entertainment was furnished by Miss Theodora Keith, cornetist; Miss Marjorie Keith, Miss Leslie Lovell and Mrs. Henry L. Lovell, pianists, and Mrs. E. E. Leonard, reader.

A candy sale was held in charge of Beatrice Warren, Florence Halston, Loren Kimball and Cora Cowing

FIREMEN CELEBRATE

Sixteenth Annual Concert and Ball of Weymouth Firemen's Relief Association, held last Friday Evening in Town Hall, East Weymouth.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES W. BAKER

All roads from this and surrounding towns led to the town hall, East Weymouth, last Friday evening, when the ever popular concert and ball of the Weymouth Firemen's Relief Association, took place. This was the sixteenth annual affair of the association, and while the gathering might not have broken any records of previous years as far as the number present goes, there were fully enough to make comfortable dancing, and a large sum was netted by the firemen for use in their relief work.

At eight o'clock Cuff's well known and highly popular orchestra of ten pieces, William C. Cuff, director, opened the ball with the following concert program of six numbers:

March, "Love and Glory," (Smith)
Waltz, (concert) "Skaters," (Waldteufel)
Overture, "Poet and Peasant," (Suppe)
Xylophone solo, "Hymnic Rag," (Daly)
G. A. Navilus

Descriptive, "Choo Choo Leaves for Alabama," (Snyder)
March, "On the Avenue," (Pierson)

All the numbers were greatly applauded by the large audience and the xylophone solo by Mr. Navilus was especially well received.

After the floor had been cleared and partners selected, an alarm from box 31, called the fire ladders and their friends to take part in the sixteenth annual grand march, a most decided feature of the firemen's ball. The march this year was led by District Chief Charles W. Baker and Mrs. Baker. Next came Lieut. Andrew F. Burrell and Miss Grace Radcliffe, followed by District Chief John Q. Hunt with Mrs. Gammell of Worcester and about one hundred and fifty couples.

At the conclusion of the march and circle, the first number of the order, a quadrille, was held, and from that time until twelve o'clock, the first half of the well arranged order of dances was enjoyed by the lovers of the social art of dancing.

At midnight the party formed in line and marched to the large supper room in the basement of the hall where Westover & Foss caterers of Boston were waiting to serve the firemen and their guests with one of the most delicious and complete suppers it has ever been the fortune of the people in attendance to enjoy.

The menu consisted of cold roast turkey, cranberry sauce, escalloped oysters, lobster salad, cold ham, mashed potatoes, rolls and butter, vanilla, strawberry and chocolate fancy creams, frozen pudding, lemon, orange and raspberry sherbert, assorted cakes, coffee and cigars.

After the "boys" and their guests and friends had amply appeased their appetites, they again assembled in the main hall and at one o'clock, Cuff's band of musicians began the second half of the order and until three o'clock, waltzes, two steps, quadrilles, lancers, Portland fancies, and schottisches were enjoyed to the fullest extent by all.

At three o'clock special cars conveyed the firemen and their guests to their many homes, and all intend to be on hand for the seventeenth annual in 1914.

The hall was artistically decorated for the occasion by the firemen, with red, white and blue streamers, various colored lights, flags, electric novelties and potted plants, ferns, and plunks. The firemen of the town were decked out in their regulation firemen's uniform and all made a most imposing and fine appearance.

Chief of Police Thomas Fitzgerald was in attendance with a squad of "Weymouth's Finest" all in full uniform and this group kept the over energetic ones in order and also added much to the splendor of the event.

The directing committee of the affair consisted of the following officers of the association:—E. S. Wright, president; Wallace H. Bicknell, vice president; Geo. M. Keene, secretary; Walter J. Siaden, treasurer; H. B. Stiles, T. Edson Burrell, Charles W. Baker, N. R. Ellis, E. W. Gardner and A. P. Poole, directors.

The chief marshal was President E. E. Wright and his assistant marshals were Chief Engineers C. W. Baker, John Q. Hunt, W. W. Pratt, M. O'Dowd and P. H. Wolfe.

The special guests of the event were the chiefs of the surrounding towns, the selectmen of this town and many police and fire officials from all over this section.

The reception committee was made up of J. H. Miller, H. A. Nash, R. B. Worster, H. D. Tisdale, J. J. Flynn, P. H. Wolfe, W. H. Rickett, T. H. Melville, E. W. Gardner and F. F. Larmey, captains of the fire department.

Thoushes were M. L. Loud, E. B. Nash, Harry W. Vogel, W. S. Our and H. B. Stiles.

The main committee, who made all arrangements for the gala event was as follows:—E. S. Wright, W. H. Bicknell, J. M. Keene, Walden, J. A. Carter, H. R. Tibbets, J. Fred Miller, F. E. Larmey, G. A. Lewis, John Q. Hunt, Russell B. Worster, Charles W. Baker, J. B. Bacon, Joseph Sewell, W. F. Tirrell, F. C. Hall, Merton L. Loud, L. H. Ellis, E. W. Gardner, W. H. Miner, C. H. Leary, Jerry Lerly and W. L. Orcutt.

At three o'clock the "call out" was sounded and the sixteenth annual concert and ball was but a most pleasant memory to the large number who attended, and a large success to the firemen who labored long and hard for its success.

Weymouth Hospital Association.

The annual meeting of the Weymouth Hospital Association, for the election of officers and other business will be held at the town office, East Weymouth, Monday evening, February 17 at 8 o'clock.—Advertisement.

Supper and Entertainment.

The Ladies' Social circle connected with the East Weymouth M. E. church served a supper and held a social hour and entertainment in the church vestry last Thursday night. The supper was served at six thirty by the following committee of ladies of the circle: Mrs. L. W. Cain, Mrs. Lucy A. Hayden, Mrs. James A. B. Goodspeed, Mrs. Charles R. Denbroeder, Mrs. William E. Ames, Mrs. Walter Curtis, Mrs. Charles Harrington, Mrs. Joseph A. Cushing, Mrs. Joseph P. Ford, Mrs. David P. Tilden and Mrs. Howard Pratt.

The entertainment in the evening consisted of instrumental numbers by Mrs. Faunie E. M-rechant and Julian M-rechant and solos by Miss Ella Curtis and Miss Hazel Thompson.

Doan's Kidney Pills have stood the test. The test of time—the hardest test of all.

Thousands gratefully testify. To quick relief—to lasting results. Gazette readers can no longer doubt the evidence.

It's convincing testimony—twice-told and well confirmed. Gazette readers should profit by these experiences.

Mrs. O. Binney, 17 Norfolk street, Weymouth, Mass., says:—"For ten years I was a sufferer from backache and rheumatic pains. I spent a small fortune for medicine and doctors' prescriptions, but gradually grew worse. I had heard a number of people say that Doan's Kidney Pills had cured them of backache and I was led to get a supply of this remedy at Kemp's drug store. Before I had finished the contents of the first box I had improved, and by the time I had used five boxes I had no further cause for complaint." (Statement given September 4, 1908.)

CONFIRMED ENDORSEMENT.

In a later interview, Mrs. Binney said: "I willingly confirm my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills. I am now enjoying good health."

She Wanted A Master

To Do Her Thinking and Decide For Her

By F. A. MITCHEL

I had been paying attention to Julia Adams for some time. Indeed, I would have proposed to her had I been reasonably sure of an acceptance. But Julia had another suitor, Frank Digby, and I fancied he was her first choice.

To tell the truth, I was at a disadvantage about that time, having, on being graduated from college, gone into business, for which I was by no means fitted. I had made a failure of it and was casting about for something more to my taste. My poverty was the principal reason why I did not propose to Julia.

The only talent I had ever shown was for sketching, and in that as a boy I showed considerable ability. When it was plain that I would accomplish nothing as a business man I made some sketches, which I showed to publishers and secured orders for illustrations to go with their publications. But I knew it would require some time to get this new hold, and while doing so I kept my own counsel from my friends and acquaintances. Julia tried to find out something about what I had in view, but I gave her no satisfaction. If I should fall in entering a new field I would be in a worse position than before. I put her off by pretending to be in doubt as to what I would do—said I would not hurry in making up my mind, and all that.

The result was what might have been expected. She accepted Frank Digby. Soon after I heard of her engagement I had a talk with her bosom friend, Edith Martin, about her, who said:

"Julia has been brought up with some one to do her thinking and make her decisions for her. Frank Digby has a strong will, and she can rely on him for guidance. He will take the lead in everything. There is nothing weak, nothing vacillating about him. I think it will be a very good match." "Quite likely," I replied, wincing under what was probably not intended, but what was a lecture to me, holding up my shortcomings in contrast with Digby's strong points. I made the best of my disappointment, but I confess to having been mean enough to hope that he would rule Julia with a rod of iron, since that seemed to be what she wanted.

Miss Martin, besides being a bosom friend of Julia's, was a gabbler. It wasn't difficult to set her talking, and since she was a sort of confessor for Julia, I received a good deal of information simply by propounding leading questions. For instance, one day I said to her:

"The more I think of it the more I believe that our mutual friend, Julia Adams, has a fine prospect before her with Frank Digby. Opposites should mate. If the woman is easy going the man should be decided, and vice versa. I wouldn't mind getting a strong minded wife myself. I'd rather like to be ruled by a woman."

"Would you?" replied Edith, swallowing the bait and the hook together. "Why don't you marry a window smashing, theater burning suffragette?" "Just what I'd like. I'm glad Julia got the kind of man she wanted. When are they going to be married?" "I don't know. Not at present any way. I wouldn't have you repeat it, but sometimes I think Frank is just a teeny weeny bit too decided for Julia. You see, there are certain things we girls like to have decided for us and certain things we like to decide for ourselves."

"For instance?" "Well, last week Julia bought a hat. When Frank saw it he said, 'Why didn't you buy a muf for your head and have done with it?' You wouldn't wish me to be out of fashion, would you?" retorted Julia. "Fashion?" said Frank sneeringly. "Do you know what fashion is? It's a lot of men who sell you women things, giving you new designs that are as different as possible from what you're been wearing so that you can't wear or make over what you've got. It wouldn't have mattered if he'd stopped here, for we all know that, but he had to go on and say, 'I have always hoped that when I got a wife she'd have more independence than to submit to such nonsense. But the fashion?' persisted Julia. 'We can't ignore the fashion.' 'Fashion be hanged!' Frank answered. 'I wouldn't want my wife to wear a hat like a grenadier or put a pot or a kettle on her head. At this Julia swept out of the room without deigning to notice him."

"Hi!" I said. "That was on Wednesday. On Sunday morning Frank called to take Julia to church. She came down with a little prayer book and hymnal she had received at Christmas. 'Why not?' said Julia. 'I'm a member of the Presbyterian church,' said Frank. 'And I'm an Episcopalian,' retorted Julia. 'All form and no fervor,' said Frank. 'That made Julia mad, and she said, 'You can disapprove of my hats, but you shan't run down my church.'"

"Well?" I put in to help her on. "Frank went to his church, and Julia went to hers. 'I thought she wanted a man to make her decisions for her'."

"As I told you, we girls want some of our decisions made for us, some we want to make for ourselves."

"I see. You don't wish to be interfered with in the matter of your hats or your religion?"

"Certainly not." "What things do you girls wish to have decided for you?"

"Let me see. There are lots of them, but I can't think of one all of a sudden. One couldn't be expected to do that."

"Of course not!" We are all more or less dogs in the manger, and I am sorry to say that I was much pleased at this recital. If I couldn't have Julia I was not so unselfish as to wish her happiness with another man. I dare say it would have been very noble in me to do so, but that's not my kind of nobility. On the contrary, I felt as if I would like to throw some bones of contention between the two myself. But this was out of the question.

I was interested in the matter not only because I wanted Julia for myself, but on account of the fact that she had engaged herself to Digby because she wished to be bossed. She had intimated to me that I wasn't a strong enough character to dominate over her, but I had my doubts about the woman of the present day needing an over-seer. That might have occurred in the days of our grandmothers, when no one thought of leaving out the word "obey" in the marriage service, but now, when women are ambitious for a voice in the government, it is different. The suffragette doesn't look like a woman pining for a master, and all women who earn their own living become more or less independent. I therefore took Julia's desire to set up a king for herself with a grain of salt. If, however, it was sincere I hoped that she would have the same experience as the frogs that chose a stork for a ruler.

The next time I met Edith Martin she had great news for me. "Haven't you heard?" she exclaimed excitedly. "No. What is it?" "It's perfectly awful!" "What's perfectly awful?" "But he deserved it, every bit of it!" "Deserved what?"

Some time was required for her to express her opinion about it before she could curb herself to tell me what it was. This feminine trait, which seems to me akin to spending a lot of time over the address of a letter to discover whom it is from, instead of breaking it open to look at the signature, having spent its force, Edith came down to facts and told me the story. She had got it direct from Julia and had not troubled herself to inquire into the man's side of the story.

"Things had been going from bad to worse between them," said the bosom friend, "when one morning Frank called to see Julia for a better understanding. Instead of going in the afternoon or evening he went about 11 o'clock in the morning. He'd been used to running in on her informally, and, being told that she was in the pantry making a pie, he just went in there. 'I've come,' he said, 'with the olive branch. I dare say I have faults, but the principal trouble between us is that occasionally I would like to have my own way about some things.'"

"You don't mean he was as unreasonable as that?" I exclaimed. "Unreasonable! Julia took it as an insult. 'That means,' she said, 'that you consider me a person who wants to have her own way about every thing; that I am obstinate, mulish, plish;—everything that is unreasonable.' You are putting those words into my mouth," he replied. 'I have wanted a good, strong, noble man for a husband, but I haven't wanted a tyrant. Our engagement is broken. So there!'

She had a scoop filled with flour in her hand, and she was so mad that she threw it all over him. "You don't mean it!" I exclaimed. "How he must have looked!" "Looked! He was white as a sheet in front and black behind. Julia ran through a door into the kitchen, then upstairs and into her room, locking herself in. Frank dusted the flour off his clothes as best he could with his handkerchief, then left the house."

"Never! Julia is one of those pliable gentle creatures who, when they are goaded to desperation, will turn, and when they turn they will never crawl again." "Crawl?" "Yes. Julia gave way to him till she couldn't stand it any longer." "Poor girl!"

Not long after that, having proved that I could make a good living as an illustrator and believing that Julia's engagement with Digby was not likely to be renewed, I called upon her. I think she had had enough of being bossed and had demonstrated to her satisfaction that she didn't need an over-seer. At any rate, she didn't mention such necessity, and when I told her that I had found success in a new field she seemed interested. I think Edith Martin had told her that I was looking for a wife to boss me, for Julia gave evidence that she would like the job. So I proposed and was accepted.

We get on very well together. I have a way of out-herding Herod with her. When she wants her way a little bit I give her a bucketful of it all at once. This breaks her up. I have tried yielding to her when her acts are sure to lead to grief, hoping to teach her by example. But this has been a failure. She invariably throws the fault on me. I never argue with her and when I find it necessary to get on my own opinions do so without a word. This plan works admirably.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. SOUTH WEYMOUTH CO-OPERATIVE BANK.

Election of Officers Held in Clapp's Hall, South Weymouth, Last Saturday Evening.

The annual meeting of the South Weymouth Co-operative Bank was held in Clapp's hall, South Weymouth, last Saturday evening. President George L. Wentworth of the bank presided.

The following list of officers for the coming year was chosen:—President, G. L. Wentworth; vice president, A. B. Raymond; treasurer, Ellis J. Pitcher; secretary, Everett N. Hollis; directors, D. Frank Daly, John H. Stetson, Alvin Hollis, James F. Frawley, George L. Barnes, George W. Conant, Gordon Willis, Louis K. Jones, Josiah B. Reed, Eugene C. Loud, C. W. Hastings, E. N. Mayberry, Charles H. Clapp, George R. Bowker, A. B. Stoddard; security committee, George R. Bowker, J. F. Frawley, Ellis J. Pitcher, Charles H. Clapp, John H. Stetson; finance committee, George R. Bowker, A. B. Stoddard and Alvin Hollis.

On account of the recent agitation in the state to have the secretary's office and that of the treasurer combined as one, many of the co-operative banks have already made the necessary shift. The South Weymouth bank will, in all probability, make the change at the next meeting.

Russell Dexheimer Casts Heavy Vote in Coupon Contest and Forces Rival into Fourth Place.

Miss Corridan and Leon Shaw are still way in the lead in the coupon contest at Kemp's but William Wallace and Russell Dexheimer are having a merry tussle to hold third and fourth places. For the first time in the race, Russell Dexheimer is in third place as a result of the heavy voting of his friends last week, while Wallace is a strong fourth position man, about 5,000 behind Dexheimer. The score up to Saturday night, February 8, is as follows:

Alice Corridan	143,640
Leon B. Shaw	62,265
Russell Dexheimer	39,475
William Wallace	25,410

MRS. J. C. HOWE AT REST.

Funeral Services Held Last Sunday in Universalist Church, South Weymouth.

The funeral of Mrs. J. C. Howe, who died in California while on a pleasure trip to the Pacific coast, took place last Sunday afternoon in the Universalist church, South Weymouth, of which she was an active member. The services were jointly conducted by Rev. William Wallace Rose, minister of the church and Rev. L. Weston Attwood, a former pastor. Miss Annie Deane sang. Abigail Adams Rebekah lodge I. O. O. F. attended and the Rebekah burial service was read by the officers of the lodge. The interment was in the Highland cemetery at South Weymouth. The pall-bearers were Henry B. Chandler, R. Wallace Hunt, Frank W. Thomas, Almon B. Raymond, Warren T. Simpson and Charles A. Torrey. The floral remembrances showed the great esteem the deceased was held in by her many friends in this section.

An Evening in Japan.

A Japanese entertainment and sale was given by the Young Women's Mission circle of the Old North church in the chapel on Monday evening, which proved to be a very unique affair. The chapel was artistically trimmed with peach blossoms, hemlock and Japanese lanterns. The grab table was presided over by Miss Barbara Ries, the candy table was in charge of Miss Florence Nash and Miss Ruth Pettee served hot chocolate. The entertainment consisted of piano solos by Mrs. John Merrill, a vocal solo by Miss Edna Sladen and a selection by a trio composed of Ruth Nash, Muriel Gladwin and Helen Ries in Japanese costume. A parol drill was rendered by eight Japanese Misses, which received a large applause. Mrs. Robert Hoffman furnished a very pleasing part of the program by rendering Japanese songs in costume. She also gave several readings in her usual charming manner. In her third sketch, she entertained the audience with Scotch songs in Scotch costume, which was heartily applauded by all.

Death Through a Tarantula.

One of the quickest and most complete and justifiable killings that ever I saw came about through a tarantula. It was at a mine camp in the old days, and the camp bully had a tarantula impaled on a stick. A man newly arrived from the east stood gazing, fascinated with horror, at the squirming reptile working its black fangs in the effort to reach something that it could fasten them into. Suddenly, without warning, the bully thrust the tarantula straight into the tenderfoot's face. His whisksers saved him from the fangs, but he let out a yell as if he had actually been bitten and jumped back. I fully believe, ten feet. Then, as the fellow came poking the tarantula toward him again, the tenderfoot drew his revolver and turned loose on his tormentor. His first shot would have been enough, as it went straight through the fellow's body, but the tenderfoot had his excitement to work off, and he never stopped shooting until his revolver had been emptied and the man with the tarantula was a sieve. "Served him right," was the verdict of the coroner's jury, and the case never went to court for trial.

Why Chinese Shops Are Small.

The average Chinese shop of any kind in Tientsin and Peking is a one story building without doors or windows to the street. The entire front is closed by shutters at night. In the day time the shutters are removed. These shops are fourteen to sixteen feet wide on the street, and the room is not deeper than this. Three or four feet back from the front a counter runs, behind which there is shelving. The storerooms are not deeper because of the peculiar arrangement of Chinese houses. The typical Chinese house is only one story in height and is built on all four sides of a square courtyard. If more room is needed there is a second courtyard in the rear with a communicating door, and so on. The yamens or official residences of the various Chinese officials of Tientsin are all erected in this way—one courtyard after another surrounded by buildings all opening into the court.

A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST

By GENE STRATTON-PORTER

Copyright, 1909, by Doubleday, Page & Co

CHAPTER XXIII.

Wherein Edith Carr Experiences Regrets and Philip Returns to the Limberlost.

PHILIP AMMON walked from among his friends a humiliated and a wounded man. Dawn was near when he reached home, but the first floor was lighted. He staggered up the steps and was instantly admitted. The library door stood open, while his father sat with a book pretending to read. At Philip's entrance the father scarcely glanced up.

"Come on!" he called. "I have just told Banks to bring me a cup of coffee before I turn in. Have one with me!" "Father," said Philip, "may I talk with you a little while?"

"Of course," answered Mr. Ammon. "I am not at all tired. I think I must have been waiting in the hope that you would come. I want no one's version of this but yours. Tell me the straight of the thing, Phil."

Philip told all he knew, while his father sat in deep thought. "The friend for whom you wanted the moth is a girl?" he asked.

"The girl of whom I wrote you last summer and told you about in the fall. I helped her all the time I was away." "Did Edith know of her?"

"I tried many times to tell her, to interest her, but she was so indifferent that it was insulting. She would not hear me."

"Who is this girl, just what is she doing and what is she like?" Philip gave a man's version of the previous summer.

"You are very sure as to her refinement and education?" he asked. "In almost two months' daily association could a man be mistaken? She can far and away beat Polly, Edith or any girl of our set on any common, high school or supplementary branch. She has the biggest, tenderest, most human heart I ever knew in a girl."

"Go to your bath. I will attend to your packing and everything. And Phil, if I were you I would leave no addresses."

"Not an address!" said Ammon. "Not even for Polly?" "When the train pulled out the elder Ammon went home to find Hart Henderson waiting.

"Where is Phil?" he demanded. "He did not feel like facing his friends at present, and I am just back from driving him to the station. He said he might go to Slam or Patagonia. He would leave no address."

"Henderson almost staggered. 'He's not gone—and left no address? You don't mean it! He'll never forgive me!'"

"Never is a long time, Hart," said Mr. Ammon. "And it seems even longer to those of us who are well acquainted with Phil. Last night was not the last straw. It was the whole straw stack. It crushed Phil so far as he is concerned."

"Twice Henderson opened his lips to speak of Edith Carr's despair. Twice he looked into the stern, inflexible face of Mr. Ammon and could not betray her. He held out the ring."

"I have no instructions as to that," said the elder Ammon, drawing back. "Possibly Miss Carr would have it as a keepsake."

"I am sure not," said Henderson curtly. "Then suppose you return it to Peacock. I will phone him. He will give you the price of it, and you might add it to the children's fresh air fund."

"As you choose," said Henderson. "Good morning!" Then he went to his home, but he could not think of sleep. He ordered breakfast, but he could not eat. He paced the library for a time, but it was too small. Going out on the streets he walked until exhausted, then he called a hansom and was driven to his club. As he sauntered into the room an attendant hurried to him.

"You are wanted most urgently at the phone, Mr. Henderson," he said. "You have had three calls from Main 5770."

Mrs. Comstock, I came here to ask El-nora to marry me.

"The more fool you, then!" cried Mrs. Comstock. "This time yesterday you were engaged to another woman, no doubt. Now, for some little flareup you come racing here to ask El-nora as a tool to spite the other girl. A week of sane living and you will be sorry and ready to go back to Chicago or, if you really are man enough to be sure of yourself, she will come to claim you. When you patch up your affairs and go sailing away together, where does my girl come in?"

"I am a lawyer, Mrs. Comstock," said Ammon. "It appeals to me as beneath my ordinary sense of justice to decide a case without hearing the evidence. It is due me that you hear me first."

"Hear your side?" flashed Mrs. Comstock. "I'd a heap sight rather hear the girl!"

"I wish to my soul that you had heard and seen her last night, Mrs. Comstock," said Ammon. "Then my way would be clear."

"He gave his version of the previous night. 'Do you believe me?' he finished. 'Yes,' said Mrs. Comstock. 'May I stay?' 'Oh, it looks all right for you, but what about her?'"

"Nothing so far as I am concerned. Her plans were all made to start to Europe today. I suspect she is on the way by this time. El-nora is very sensible, Mrs. Comstock. Hadn't you better let her decide this?"

"The final decision rests with her, of course," admitted Mrs. Comstock. "But look you one thing! She's all I have. So far as I know you've always been a man and you may stay. But if you bring tears and heartache to her don't have the assurance to think I'll bear it tamely. I'll get right up and fight like a catamount if things go wrong for El-nora!"

OLYMPIAN GAMES The Famous Contests, In the Days of Ancient Greece.

MORE IMPORTANT THAN WAR. Battles Might Be Forgotten, but Time Was Reckoned and Events Dated From the Years of the Olympiads. The Fivefold Contest, the Pentathlon. According to tradition, the oldest of all Olympian games were established by Zeus in honor of his success over Chronos in his struggle for the sovereignty of heaven. The more general belief among Greek writers, though, was that these famous games were instituted by the Idaeus Hercules, the eldest of the five brothers to whom Rhea confided Zeus after his birth. These games were held every fifth year, because, according to this story, the brothers were five in number. The games were therefore four years apart.

The first of the games, according to this tradition, was simply a foot race, in which Hercules and his four brothers were the only contestants. This straightaway foot race continued to be the only Olympic game till the fourteenth Olympiad, when a second contest, the double course, was introduced—i. e., to the end of the course and back again. In the eighteenth Olympiad they added wrestling and the pentathlon. Twenty-five years later boxing was made a part of the exercise, and four horse races, the pancratium and riding races were introduced.

The pentathlon was a fivefold contest in leaping, throwing the discus or quoit, wrestling and hurling the javelin. All contestants were admitted first to the leaping contest, and those who crossed a certain space were allowed to hurl the javelin. The four most successful in this took part in a foot race. The last man in the race dropped out, and the best three threw the quoit. Again the least successful retired, and the better wrestler of the remaining two won the prize.

The pancratium was a rough and tumble fight. Almost any method of throttling an opponent and compelling him to acknowledge himself vanquished was permitted. Wrestling, boxing, hugging, choking and even the deliberate breaking of bones were allowed. The prizes in the Olympian contests were merely wreaths from the wild olive trees abundant in the locality, and the games all took place on one day until the twenty-seventh Olympiad, when the Greeks, desiring to do greater honor to the gods for their defeat of the Persians, extended the games to fill five days.

All Greece regarded the month during which the games were held as a holiday. Business of every kind was at a standstill, and even hostile armies disbanded and attended the games as friendly rivals. The importance of the games may be gathered from the fact that the Greeks reckoned their time according to the games, just as all people have reckoned it from the events which seemed to them the most important.

The Christians refer all time to the beginning of the Christian era, so the Mohammedans to the flight of their prophet and Romans to the year of the founding of their city. But the Greek historians used to speak like this: "This battle was fought in the fourth year of that Olympiad in which Euryporus, the Athenian, won the prize in the course." While a war might be forgotten, an Olympiad would never be.

Those who were victors were accorded the most extravagant honors. Their enthusiastic countrymen would escort them home with unbounded delight, and they were given the highest seats of honor at every public festivity. Poets of the highest merit sang their praises. The elites in which they resided erected statues to their honor. It is not surprising that when victory meant so much, dishonorable means were sometimes employed to secure it. Every attempt, however, was made to prevent foul play, and as unfairness was regarded as sacrilege, the games being religious ceremonies, the guilty ones were not only condemned by all those whose praise they sought, but they were subjected besides to heavy penalties in money and often scourged as well.

It does not seem, however, that deliberate wounding of an adversary in a contest was much deprecated, since Pausanias mentions one man who though an inferior wrestler, won several contests by breaking the fingers of his antagonist, but he who killed his opponent lost the prize, and the dead body was crowned victor. The cause of the decay of the game was that the glory and the substantial rewards which followed victory finally became too great. At last there became classes of men who did nothing else but prepare for the games, and contending became a profession. Kings and nobles then withdrew, and their example was followed by the better class of Greek youth, with the result that the games were finally neglected until, when they were prohibited by an edict by the Emperor Theodosius, in A. D. 394, few people objected to their loss. Long before this the games had become notorious by their brutality and foreigners were allowed to compete. Bribery was frequent, and the Roman Emperor Nero on one occasion was permitted to take every prize offered. St. Louis Globe-Democrat. You must live for another if you wish to live for yourself.

Following Are a Few of the Items Which Appeared in the Gazette Years Ago This Week.

THIRTY-SEVEN YEARS AGO.

Statistics of the Town of Weymouth, for 1875.—No. of marriages during the year, 72; deaths, 159; births, 251.

The South Weymouth hotel alias lockup is a thriving institution, furnishing comfortable food and lodging to from ten to fourteen tramps a night.

I. O. of G. T.—A new lodge of the Order of Good Templars was instituted at South Weymouth on Friday evening, Feb. 4, its designation being "Highland Light Lodge, No. 181."

I. O. of G. T. The officers of Wessagusset Lodge, at Lovell's Corner, were duly installed Feb 24 by the Deputy O. T. Bassett, assisted by other officers from the Grand Lodge.

A memorial service to the memory of Comrade James L. Bates, late Commander of Post 58, will be held in Rev. Geo. F. Stanton's church, at South Weymouth, on Tuesday evening, February 22d, commencing at half-past 7 o'clock.

Comrade Geo. S. Merrill, late Dept. Commander, will deliver the address.

TWENTY-SIX YEARS AGO.

Miss Edith A. Parkhurst, assistant teacher in the North High school, has resigned her charge and accepted a position as teacher in the Roxbury High school, at an advanced salary.

The Water Commissioners of Weymouth make a very pleasing exhibit of the condition of the water finances, and the great success of the enterprise in the single year which has elapsed since the introduction of the water, is a matter of general congratulation.

Supt. French, of the O. C. R. R., sent out a lamp post and lamp last Monday, which was immediately placed in position in the centre of the station grounds and when it was lighted up that evening the improvement was obvious, especially to carriage drivers.

The strike at the boot and shoe factory of Fogg, Shaw, Thayer & Co., which has attracted so much attention on all sides for the past week, came to an end on Wednesday evening, when representatives of the firm and Knights of Labor agreed to certain conditions on which the men might return to work.

NINETEEN YEARS AGO.

The members of the Resolute H. & L. Co., have furnished one of the small upper rooms in Engine hall with a carpet, furniture and pictures. This makes a good addition to the company's quarters.

During Monday night and Tuesday came the old-fashioned snowstorm. Silectuan Dwyer had to hustle with all his available horses, snow ploughs, sleds and men to keep the roads and walks in a passable condition.

The local circle Companions of the Forest will be instituted in Union hall by Supreme State Deputy Henry Barbour and suite of Boston, this evening. The work will begin at 7.30 sharp. A collation will be served at the close of the exercises.

The members of the Century club assembled in the parlors of the Pilgrim church Friday evening to listen to the discussion on the subject, "Resolved, That the present financial and business depression is caused by the nation administration now in power."

The most severe storm of the season began Monday evening and continued through Tuesday. Business was practically suspended as the roads were in such a condition as to make travelling almost impossible and nobody ventured out unless really obliged to.

THIRTEEN YEARS AGO.

Charles Torrey had his left hand badly lacerated by a circular saw, while at work at the Ignaz Straus Co's. factory Tuesday.

The South Boston Ice Company has given up all hope of harvesting ice in South Weymouth this season, and Wednesday the horses were all taken back to Boston.

No death has occurred in East Weymouth in a long time which was more of a surprise and caused a deeper gloom in the community than that of Stephen Cain which took place at his home on Cain avenue last Saturday night.

The ice men are afraid that they won't get any ice, but we have heard of six weeks' sleighing in March. Most of us would be happy to get off with an entire winter as mild as this has been but we are likely to strike a cold snap and severe snow storms even yet.

Monatquot Colony 112, U. O. P. F., held public installation Tuesday evening in Pilgrim church parlors, D. S. G. Carlisle and suite of Attleboro installed these officers: Gov., F. A. Bicknell; Lieut. Gov., T. B. Seabury; Col., C. L. Seabury; Treas., H. Benson; Sec., W. F. Seabury; Chap., Mrs. Culler; Serg., John W. Cushing; Dep. W. B. Dasha; Sen., Mrs. H. F. Barnes, John W. Holbrook.

POLICE OF RUSSIA

The Trick They Work to Gather in Political Suspects.

CAUGHT IN THE MOUSETRAP.

When, After a Secret Arrest, the Snare Is Set It Holds All Who Enter, Regardless of Nationality, Dress, Social Position or Official Rank.

Although the peculiar form of police ambuscade known as a mousetrap has had its highest development and its widest application in Russia, writes George Keenan in the Century, it did not originate in that country, nor did it receive there its strikingly appropriate appellation.

It was imported from France a century or more ago, and the name that it bears was given to it by Alexandre Dumas in 1829. The distinguished French story teller described it in "The Three Musketeers" as follows:

"The invention of the mousetrap does not date from our days. As soon as societies in process of formation created police the police in their turn invented mousetraps. As our readers may not be familiar with the slang of the Rue de Jerusalem and as it is fifteen years since we applied this term for the first time to the thing, we may be allowed perhaps to explain to them what a mousetrap is.

"When in a house of any kind a person suspected of crime is arrested the arrest is kept secret, four or five men are placed in ambuscade in the first apartment, the door is opened to all who knock, it is then closed after them, and they are arrested so that at the end of two or three days the police have in their power all the persons who are accustomed to visit the place. And that is a mousetrap."

Dumas does not explain that the trap is set and the first arrest made at a late hour of the night, generally between 1 and 3 o'clock a. m., so that the mice will not become aware of it and avoid the dangerous locality. You may call upon a "politically untrustworthy" friend in the evening, drink tea with him, discuss the state of the country and go home at midnight without having seen or heard anything to excite suspicion or suggest peril, but if you return to the same house or apartment early the next morning you are liable to fall into a mousetrap.

The trap, moreover, catches and holds every person who enters it regardless of nationality, dress, social position or official rank. Russian revolutionists are accustomed to assume all sorts of disguises, from the blue frock coat and wrinkled top boots of the gendarmier to the sword, epaulets and golden cords of the general staff, and if the czar himself in the uniform of the Preobrazhenski guards should visit incognito a house in which a trap had been set, he would be arrested promptly and sent to the nearest precinct station house for identification.

No discretionary power of any kind is given to the police officers in charge. The mice caught may not look at all like the mice for which the trap was set, but even if they appear to be crumple or lizards or small, blind kittens they must go to the station house for examination and judgment.

In every large Russian city the police keep an alphabetical list of all persons who are believed to be in sympathy with the revolutionary movement or who for one reason or another are regarded as politically untrustworthy. Such persons are liable to be arrested on suspicion at any time and are almost sure to be taken into custody after the assassination of a high official when there is no clew to the assassin, and the police hope to get a clew by a dragnet system of arrest and investigation.

At such times a hundred arrests or more are often made in a single night, and in the houses or apartments of the persons made prisoners mousetraps are set to catch all comers. The police in charge of the traps are strictly enjoined to send to the nearest precinct station house every person caught, no matter what he may look like and no matter what plausible account he may give of himself. Revolutionists and terrorists often wear uniforms, and a man who declares that he is a colonel of gendarmes or even a general of division may really be a dangerous conspirator in disguise. The instructions given to the trap tenders are always implicitly obeyed, and they sometimes bring about results of an extraordinary and wholly unforeseen character.

A Single Blow.

"You say he died from a single blow administered by himself?"
"That is just what he said."
"But it isn't possible."
"Yes, it is."
"But how did he do it?"
"Blew out the gas."
"Oh!"—London Telegraph.

Ideals.

The man who succeeds in living up to his ideals probably has ideals that are not very high.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Child's Pitiful Attempt to Die.

A remarkable attempt at suicide was made by a boy of eleven in a hop garden, recently near Sandwich, England. He had been chastised for his slackness in picking hops, and thereupon he went to a secluded spot and attempted to hang himself with a piece of yarn used for tying hops. Fortunately the lad was discovered in time, and was cut down, and revived.

Word Pictures.

[Written for the Gazette and Transcript.]

"Did you ever think what English is for?" inquired the Bride, apropos of nothing at all.

"To speak, of course, so one won't have to jabber in French or German or any of those queer sounding makeshifts," yawned the Benedict.

"Oh, yes, of course!" agreed the Bride; "but I mean any language."

"Old Fessor Bailey used to say it was a means of expressing ideas, but that we academy boys used it as a clock to conceal what few ideas we had."

"Academy boys are not the only ones who do that," the Bride assured him. "Only one out of five persons you meet takes the trouble to speak good English. I wish I were one of the few but I am afraid not."

"Why, beloved, I always thought your grammar was very correct."

"Bless me! I hope so; but I'm not talking of grammar but of English. You know, Jack, there is a word to exactly fit every shade of meaning one wishes to express, though most of us are too indolent to make a selection. We use one word over and over again without regard to its fitness."

"Like the word 'lovely,' for instance, which you girls work on all occasions," suggested the Benedict.

"Yes," admitted the Bride, "we do overwork that word. Just for fun, next time you are with the Bachelor, count how many times he uses the word 'clever.' He applies it to everything from a sailing scheme to a piece of mince pie."

"But 'clever' can apply to a good many things," insisted the Benedict.

"To be sure; but I get tired hearing the same word too many times; though I admit the Bachelor's word is better than Bert's meaningless 'bully.'"

"The mannerism that bothers me the most," chimed in the Benedict, "is to have a person keep saying, 'You know what I mean?' Fuller does that repeatedly. He makes the greatest exertion to describe an object or event and succeeds very well in making it graphic; but he clips in every now and then with 'You know what I mean,' as if the rest of us couldn't grasp his English."

"That is annoying," conceded the Bride; "but I don't think it is any worse than to have your vis-a-vis talk in fragments and leave you to guess at his meaning. I sometimes take a wicked delight in appearing very dense just to see if such an one can really flog the words to express his meaning."

"What started you thinking of all this, beloved?"

"The lecture at the club this afternoon was on art, and the lecturer had a great deal to say about the meaning of the pictures. They didn't always mean to me just what they did to him, and I wondered how he could know just what an artist, painting five hundred years ago, meant his picture to say."

"Then I thought how much more exactly one could pass along his meaning by the use of words. Every sentence might be a picture if properly composed, but we seem content to use a few words to express everything. It is as if a painter should try to make a picture using only the primary colors unmixed."

"What a wise little woman it is!" laughed the Benedict.

"Oh, no! It isn't; only when I do get an idea I take particular care to air it, that you may know of it."

WEYMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL BASE BALL SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED.

Many Hard Games on the List for Coming Season on the Diamond.

Faculty Manager John L. Cosgrove and Student Manager Lewis Nolan of the Weymouth high school base ball team, have been busy the past few weeks making up the schedule for the coming season and many fast games have been booked with some of the strongest teams in this vicinity. Although the playing of Wall and Humphrey, last year stars, will be missed, it is expected, that with "Buster" Burrell and Ray Condrick, last year's C. M. A. star, to do the bulk of the pitching and with Munroe of last year's Union A. C. team, also trying for a place on the twirling staff, this year's nine should be a decided factor in base ball circles in this vicinity. The schedule arranged to date is as follows:

April 16—Everett at Everett.
April 18—Open.
April 19—Open.
April 22—Braintree at Braintree.
April 24—Open.
April 26—Open.
April 29—Rockland at Rockland.
May 2—Braintree at Weymouth.
May 6—Open.
May 8—Quincy at Weymouth.
May 10—Mechanic Arts High School at Weymouth.
May 13—Rockland at Weymouth.
May 16—South Boston High at South Boston.
May 20—Open.
May 23—Milton at Milton.
May 29—Malden at Malden.
May 30—Wakefield at Wakefield.
June 3—Quincy at Quincy.
June 6—Open.
June 10—Open.
June 13—Pending.

A Rare Opportunity to Gather Information and Pleasure, Next Thursday Evening.

Don't miss the free Tufts illustrated lecture by Charles Edward Furlong on "The South America of Today and Argentina." A story replete with adventure, information, humor, and fact. A great dormant Continental Chrysalis, now awake and spreading its wings of opportunity and possibility with astounding rapidity. Danger Sign in Horse. The appearance of "white" in the eye of a horse indicates a vicious nature, because a high tempered horse constantly looks about, apprehensive of danger, or desiring to do mischief. The quick motion of the eyeball in opposite directions exposes an unusually large surface of the white, which thus becomes an evidence of the temper of the animal.

The Danger. "It may seem a trifling matter," says a writer in the Observer, "but I think that the man who wears his gloves seems to be smarter than the man who carries his gloves in his hands." Surely it is no trifling matter. One might meet the Observer writer any day, and then if one were carrying one's gloves instead of wearing them, what an outsider one would feel.—The Bystander.

Poor Colors. "I can't understand Mabel," says a writer in the Observer, "but I think that the man who wears his gloves seems to be smarter than the man who carries his gloves in his hands." Surely it is no trifling matter. One might meet the Observer writer any day, and then if one were carrying one's gloves instead of wearing them, what an outsider one would feel.—The Bystander.

Always Some Flaw. "Wouldn't it be fine to live in clover?" said the optimist. "High you only get hay fever," said the pessimist.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

The column under this title will be given to the people for a free discussion of any and all subjects, the management of the paper distinctly disclaiming all responsibility for the opinions here expressed.

Editor Gazette: The North Weymouth Improvement association wishes to state its position relative to its endorsement of the addition to Athens school as proposed by the School Board and appearing as Article 54 in the Town Warrant.

It is agreed something must be done and quickly to relieve congestion in the first three grades of our school. To arrive at the best solution of the problem the association held a special meeting the second week of November, 1912, to which all citizens of the village the School Committee and the Supt. of Schools were invited. To obtain a large attendance the announcement of this meeting was given wide publicity resulting in an attendance of 74.

The question of better school facilities was thoroughly viewed and debated from every standpoint as suggestions were presented. The plans and estimates of the school committee for a 4 room addition to the present building were presented. The meeting by a vote of 71 to 3 endorsed this plan, funds for which are asked in Art. 54 Town Warrant.

This association feels there can be no question of this course being the best for all concerned, having been favored by so large a number of citizens from every section of this village.

The No. Weymouth Improvement Assn. Publicity Committee PETER K. NISHET.

Feb. 13, 1913. Mr. Editor:—The Progressive Committee wishes, through the columns of your paper, to correct an impression which it finds to be generally shared by the Citizens of Weymouth. The so-called Citizens Movement is not a work of, nor supported by, the Progressive Party as such. The committee has before stated that it would not enter the field with a full slate for the coming town election, but reserves the privilege of endorsing such nominees as it sees fit. It believes, furthermore, that a considerable number of Progressives will support its action in this stand, as the national cause was supported last November. The non-partisan plan of electing the best men available to town office irrespective of party is a good one. If such a movement proves to be a genuine endeavor on the part of its advocates to secure the best possible list of nominees, it will, we believe, become popular. However, we are, until the Citizen's Caucus meets, to use the vernacular, "from Missouri."

Faithfully yours, Earle W. Bates For the Progressive Committee.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Dramatic Club Presents Play "The Mouse Trap" in School Hall Yesterday Afternoon.

The first public appearance of the dramatic club formed by the senior class was held yesterday afternoon in the school hall when the play entitled "The Mouse Trap" was presented. The affair was in charge of Miss Mary Sheehy and Miss Helen Curtis of the faculty and was for ladies only, much to the disgust of the male sex of the school. The cast of characters was as follows:

- Willis Campbell May Hanley Mrs. Somers Mildred Magee Mrs. Curwen Mildred Newcomb Mrs. Miller Ardella Rix Mrs. Bemis Helen Lincoln Mrs. Roberts Alice O'Connor Jane, the maid Alice Bentley

A candy sale was held in connection with the affair, during the afternoon.

The members of the junior class are to hold a valentine party this afternoon in the school gymnasium. The committee in charge consists of Leo Fraher, Harold Gloster, Katherine Pratt, Edith Newman, Ruth Powers and Florence Murphy.

We hope to learn soon that the athletic association is to conduct a dance or some other event for the benefit of the baseball team the coming spring. Come on boys, get together and start hustling, your baseball team has a long hard schedule and will need plenty of money to do with.

The school paper, which is expected to make its second annual appearance soon, is being edited this year by George Webber, John Dizer, Herman Bates, Florence Pray, Margaret Reidy, Ralph Talbot and Dorothy Halloran. Other members of the school have been asked to contribute and it is expected that the 1913 edition of the paper will be the greatest yet.

Miss Eliza Jane Pratt, Dead.

Miss Eliza Jane Pratt, aged 70, passed away at her late home in Sedgwick, Kans. last Wednesday. Miss Pratt was born at the Heights on East street and lived there until seven years ago, when she moved to Kansas to make her home with relatives. For several years she was a member in good standing of the Old North church. She was an earnest and efficient worker in the church and Sunday school and had endeared herself to all in the community. The remains were brought to North Weymouth for burial and funeral services were held in the Old North church, Monday afternoon. Rev. E. J. Yaeger conducted the service. The interment took place at the Old North cemetery. She leaves one brother, Edward Pratt, who has the heartiest sympathy of his old friends in Weymouth.

Old Colony Club.

The Old Colony Club met in the vestry of the Union church in South Weymouth yesterday afternoon.

A musical program was given and Miss Anna Kennedy read a paper on "A Few Biographies," which was highly enjoyed by all. At the social hour Mrs. Frank P. Ferris was the hostess.

PROSPECTIVE TOWN OFFICERS.

Primaries, Caucuses and Nomination Papers Are All On File.

At five o'clock last night the last chance was closed for filing names to be balloted for at the coming town election. In making up the ballot there has been quite a stir in all parts of the town especially so in the so called citizen's movement and one must be well versed in reading between the lines to grasp the full purport of that movement.

The Republican Party held a regularly called caucus in Engine hall, Ward 2 last Friday night and every ward was well represented by the delegates chosen at the several primaries held on the previous Wednesday night.

The call was read by John W. Cronin, chairman of the Town Committee and the meeting organized with the choice of M. E. Hawes chairman and John A. Raymond clerk.

Reports of the primaries were read and accepted and a committee appointed to prepare a ticket from the several reports and following is the result: John A. Raymond, Town Clerk; John H. Stetson, Treasurer; Edward W. Hunt, Bradford Hawes, Geo. L. Newton, Willard J. Dunbar and A. Francis Barnes, Selectmen and Overseers of Poor; Frank H. Torrey, Russell B. Worster, assessors (for three years); Winslow M. Tirrell, Collector of Taxes; John P. Hunt, Wm. H. Pratt, Frank N. Blanchard, Auditors; Clarence P. Whittle, Elmer E. Leonard, School Committee (three years); Dr. Geo. E. Emerson, Board of Health (three years); Wm. E. Beane, Park Commissioner (three years); James H. Flint, Clarence P. Whittle, Fred T. Hunt, Trustees of Tufts Library (three years); Willard J. Dunbar, Commissioner Ward 2 School house Sinking Fund Bonds; Isaac H. Walker, Patrick Butler, Arthur H. Pratt, George B. Bayley, John L. Maynard, George W. Nash, Thomas Fitzgerald, John D. Walsh, George W. Conant, Elbert Ford, Constables.

CITIZENS' CAUCUS.

In response to a call for a Citizens' Caucus about 175 people gathered at the Town hall Monday evening and the meeting organized with the choice of William H. Wall, chairman and D. Frank Daley, secretary.

A previously prepared ballot was presented to the voters and the following became the nominees for Town Officers:—Hiram A. Ellis, Henry E. Hanley, Frederick A. Solis, Cassius Tirrell and Ralph P. Burrell, Selectmen and Overseer of the Poor; John A. Raymond, Town Clerk; John H. Stetson, Treasurer; Winslow M. Tirrell, Collector of Taxes; John F. Dwyer, Leonard F. Wolfe, assessors; H. Franklin Perry, Carmine Garafalo, School Committee (for three years); William W. Castle, Water Commissioner (for three years); James H. Flint, Granville E. Field, John B. White, Trustees of Tufts Library (for three years); John DeNol, Wm. H. Pratt, John B. White, Auditors; Dr. Geo. E. Emerson, Board of Health (for three years); Albert W. Page, Tree Warden.

The same nominations for constables were made as by the Republican Caucus with the exception of Ward 4 in which the names of John P. Keene and Leavitt T. Tirrell were substituted for those of Geo. B. Bayley and John L. Maynard.

SOCIALIST.

The Socialist have placed the following in nomination: Henry S. Jewett, Everett W. Gardner, Spurgeon A. Ward, Charles Guertin and Walter M. Sweet, Selectmen and Overseers of the Poor; Howard B. Burke, Treasurer; Walter White, Fred Cato, School Committee (for three years); A. L. Flint, A. G. Turple, assessors (for three years).

As Col. Castle declines to have his name used as a water commissioner we are told that Robert S. Hoffman has consented to be a candidate and in addition to the other nomination John B. Whelan has filed nomination papers for Selectman and Overseer of Poor and Seth H. Cushing as Tree Warden.

Mrs. Evelyn T. Hunt.

The remains of Mrs. Evelyn Taylor Hunt, wife of Edwin W. Hunt, who died in Whitman last week were brought here Friday afternoon and the funeral was held from the residence of John P. Hunt, Front street. The service was conducted by Rev. Melvin S. Nash, assisted by Rev. Rufus H. Dix. There were many beautiful floral tributes. A male quartette sang "Lead Kindly Light," "Abide with Me" and "Good Bye."

The remains were interred in the family lot at Village cemetery. The bearers were Frank Walsh, of Quincy, Charles K. Nash or Abington, Russell Niles of Rockland, Franklin P. Whittem of East Braintree, Leighton Voohees and Edward Bond of this town.

CITIZENS' ASSOCIATION.

A Fine Banquet and Evening's Talk on Town Business.

The Citizens' Association of Weymouth and East Braintree put on record Tuesday night one of the best meetings in its history. The topic assigned for the evening was a discussion of the Town Warrant and in addition to local members there was quite a sprinkling of invited guests from other parts of the town representing different organizations and industries.

The banquet was one of Bates & Humphrey's best and for an hour was discussed and enjoyed by about 100 members and guests and then the tables were cleared and the session opened by R. B. Worster, president of the association. Mr. Worster said the subject was the Town Warrant and Article 1 was taken up and Mr. Worster received a unanimous vote to act as Moderator. Articles 45 and 54 relating to additional school room in Ward 1 were taken up and the floor given to Wm. B. Dasha, representing the ward. The imperative need of more room was set forth and the two plans of relief explained but the speaker thought the time had not arrived for the town to embark in a new 8 room building as an addition might be made to the present Athens building a much less expense which would serve the requirements of several years.

Article 67 to see if the town would raise and appropriate $40,000 to establish a filtering system was taken up and the chairman of Water Commissioners was on his feet. D. M. Easton can talk water from the head of Great Pond to Lower Neck and he gave the meeting much needed light in regard to uses and abuses of our water system and called the proposed filtering system a snare and a delusion as it would necessitate going before the Legislature and ask for a new issue of bonds and the amount would be several times $40,000.

Article 60 found a respondent in Fred S. Sampson, president of the Lovell's Corner Improvement association and as a new man before the people of Weymouth won much favor as a clear logical exponent of the subject matter of that article and several other suggestions he made.

E. W. Hunt representing the Board of Trane spoke of what it was trying to accomplish in the way of water front improvement, bathing places and public park.

Bradford Hawes, clerk of the Board of Selectmen responded to a call and while not speaking on any specific article gave much valuable information in relation to the demand made upon the board for special charities and special improvements.

Fire apparatus, additional lights and many other things were discussed by different people and no doubt the whole attendance will be better prepared for the Town Meeting by the gathering held under the auspices of the Citizens' Association of Weymouth and East Braintree.

ABOUT SMELTS.

No More Scoop Nets—No More Permits Granted.

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts, through its Fish and Game Commissioners, lay down the law as follows: BOSTON, Feb. 13, 1913.

To the Chairman Board of Selectmen, Weymouth—Dear Sir: We are forwarding under separate cover copy of the Fish and Game Laws.

We would respectfully call your attention to Chap. 306, Acts of 1911, on page 41, which gives your Boards the right to grant permits for the taking of smelts in your brooks.

Section 72 on page 39 of the Fish and Game Book allows the taking of smelts in open season by hook and hand line only.

Section 74, page 40, prohibits the taking of smelts at any time by use of seine or trap, etc.

We understand permits issued last year allowed holder to use scoop net in the brooks.

The provisions of Chapter 306 do not allow the taking of smelts in any but a legal method, and would respectfully request that no permits be issued for the use of nets of any kind. Taking by hook and line is the only legal method.

Yours very truly,
O. C. BOUNE,
Chief Deputy.

Different Method of Talking.

Our little boy three years old had been told of the difference between human beings and dumb animals—that we could talk and reason because of our brains and intellect, and that dumb animals could not. Being disobedient one day, I told him that if he would not obey the ruler would talk. He replied, tearfully, "How can a ruler talk, mother? It has no intellect!"—Exchange.

ORGAN RECITAL.

Monday Club Entertains Large Number at Organ Recital by Miss Ethel F. Raymond in Congregational Church, East Weymouth, Last Monday Evening.

The regular meeting of the Monday club was held on Monday evening, February 17th, at the Congregational church, East Weymouth.

The business meeting being omitted, the president, Mrs. Arthur O. Harper, welcomed as the special guests of the evening, the clergymen and their wives, and also the teachers of the town.

To these guests, with the club members and their friends, Mrs. Harper presented Miss Ethel Freeman Raymond of Quincy, formerly of East Weymouth, who gave an organ recital, assisted by Miss Myra Louise Eckhoff, soprano soloist, and Mr. Karel Havlicek, violinist.

Miss Raymond was given hearty applause on her appearance as all lovers of good music are assured a rare treat when she presides at the organ.

Miss Eckhoff as the soprano soloist, although a stranger, charmed her audience with her rich voice, while Mr. Havlicek proved he was surely a master of the violin. With Miss Raymond at the piano as accompanist, one realized her wonderful talent and the applause from the large audience was very sincere. The following program was given:—

1. Organ, "Triumphal March," (Costa)
2. "Rondo Capriccioso," (St. Saens)
3. "Siccome un di caduto il sole" (Bizet)

4. (a) "Humoreske" (Dvorak)
- (b) "In Paradisum" (Dubois)
- (c) "Die Antwort" (Wolstenholme)
5. (a) "Liebesleid" (Kreiser)
- (b) "Caprice Viennois" (Kreiser)

6. "Toccata" (Dubois)
7. (a) "Yesterday and Today" (Spross)
- (b) "Songs My Mother Taught Me," (Miss Eckhoff)
- (c) "The Swallow Song" (Dell'Acqua)

8. "Overture—Stradella" (Flotow)

The ushers of the evening were Mrs. Harold Joy, Mrs. Lawrence Drew, Mrs. Chester Hahan, Miss Blanche Bates, Mrs. Robert Raymond, Miss Florence Howe and Miss Marion Tirrell.

The club is indebted to A. A. Spear & Son, local florists, for so kindly furnishing the decorations on this occasion.

VILLAGE STUDY CLUB.

Interesting Meeting Held in Fogg Library Building in South Weymouth Last Monday Evening.

The Village Study club met in the Fogg Library building in South Weymouth last Monday evening with the president A. C. Heald in the chair. The program consisted of papers on, "The Wars of the Roses" by Miss Mary L. Courtney, one on "Great Actors of Shakespeare" by Sidney R. Cook, and one on "Selected Character Studies in Shakespeare's Plays" by H. H. Longfellow. Readings of selections from "Shakespeare's Sonnets" were given by Miss Mary A. Fogg.

BOWLING NOTES.

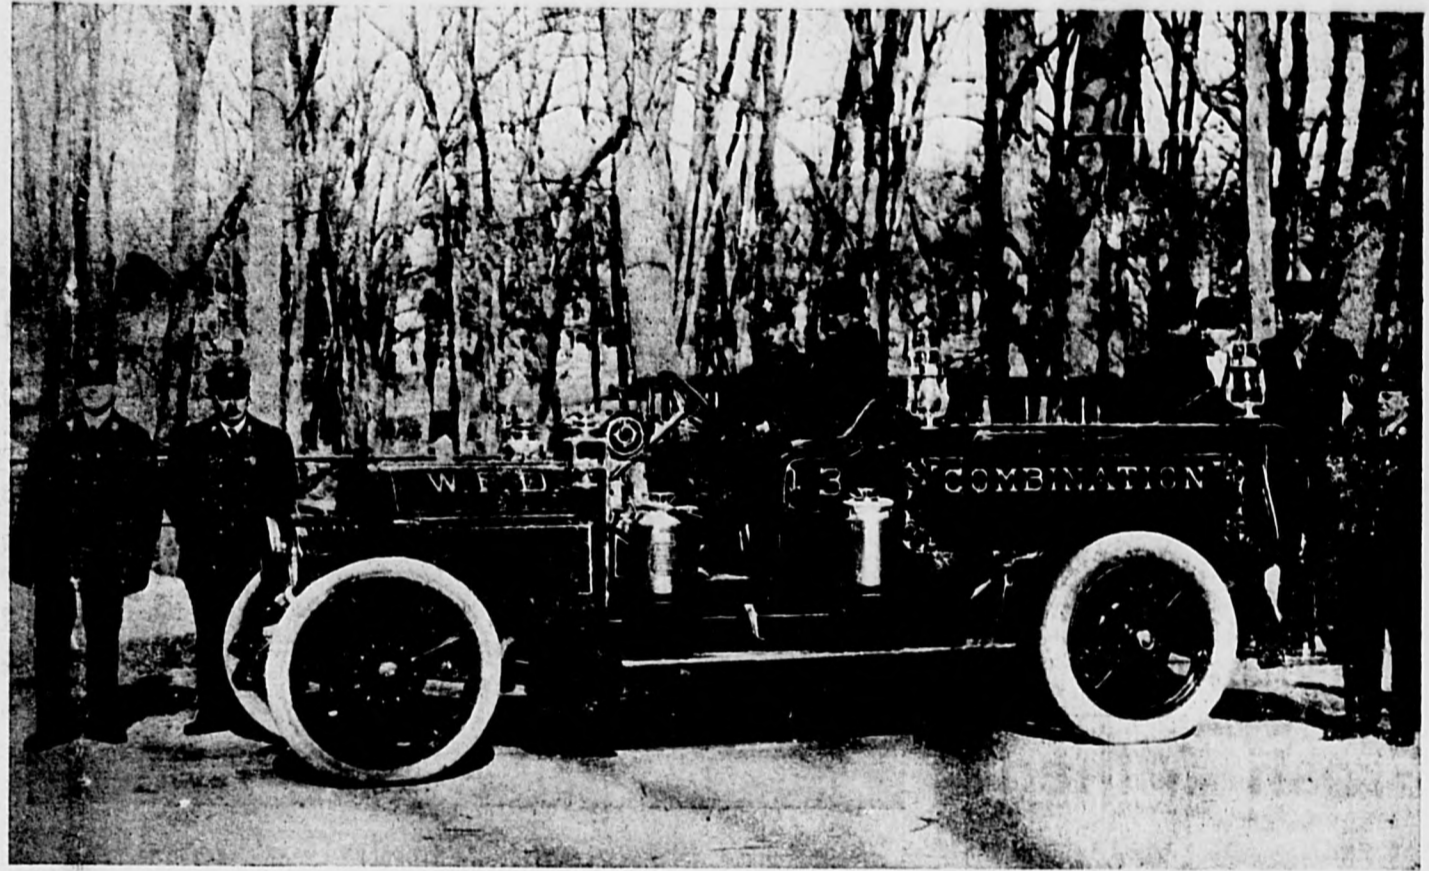

On the Norfolk club alleys, in South Weymouth, Monday evening, team 1, Warren Philbrick, captain, won from team 6, Rudolph Lamprey, captain, taking two strings and total, with a pinfall of 1274 to 1230. Philbrick was high man with a single of 117 and a three-string total of 238 pins. Team 1 got three points, while team 6 secured one.

Team 2, in the C. M. A. League, composed of Arthur Cunningham, Norton F. Pratt, Albert Newcomb, Norman Cunn and Charles Denbroeder, gave team 5, P. T. Pearson, H. A. Hilton, Rev. E. J. Yeager, J. B. Merrill and Ben Allen, a most decisive trimming on the Clapp Memorial alleys last Monday night. Cunningham's "Pets" took all three strings and total in easy fashion from the "City" team, with a total of 1294 to 1223. Norton F. Pratt got the highest single string, with 103 pins, and the three-string total went to Charles R. Denbroeder, with 272. The team total 1294 is the highest total rolled thus far in the league tournament.

Good only is great and generous and fruitful.—Bailey.

COMBINATION THREE.

Ward Three Firemen to Present Auto Fire Truck To the Town of Weymouth at Annual Town Meeting, March 10.

The past two years have seen much discussion in town meetings and in every day affairs, concerning the advisability of a town like Weymouth purchasing auto fire apparatus and the ups and downs, good and bad points of the idea have been argued pro and con by nearly every one in town, but it remained for the firemen of Ward 3 to do more than talk and believing that "to speak louder than words" Captain Wallace H. Bicknell and several other prominent members of the Ward 3 department got together and started the movement to obtain some sort of an auto combination to be used in Weymouth and to answer alarms in other parts of the town, as the fire engineers so directed.

The movement was begun last September, when a committee from the firemen and a committee from the Citizens' association started in to collect by public subscription, funds for the purchase of the desired auto truck.

The public spirited citizens of the Landing showed their approval of the idea by contributing generously and seeing that the auto was an assured fact, Capt. Bicknell, in his travels through this section kept a look out for a suitable truck to be remodeled and changed into an up-to-date combination. He was very fortunate in securing during the month of November, a Mathewson 40 horse power 4 cylinder car that had been but little used and the newly acquired purchase was brought to Weymouth and the remodeling and improving was started.

The committees kept diligently at work and, with the aid of several social events, secured the desired amount in about three months' time after the start of the idea. The first try-out of the new auto was held about a month ago, previous to sending the car to the paint shop of J. D. Walsh to be painted. Every thing ran with imposing smoothness and the firemen were highly elated over the showing of their new truck.

About two weeks ago the combination was taken out of the paint shop and taken to Somerville where the tires were filled by the Perfection Filler Co. making them puncture proof under any conditions.

On February 1, combination 3 was put into service, being stationed at the engine house in Lincoln square, where it is the object of much admiration by all who have seen it.

The new auto is painted a maroon color with bright red running gear. On each side is printed in large letters "Combination 3" and on the side of the seat is the figure 3, indicating the ward in which it is stationed. On the hood of the car are the letters "W. F. D." The car is equipped with one 20 ft. extension roof ladder and several other ladders of various lengths. It will carry about 1000 ft. of hose and 16 gallons of chemical. The auto will accommodate five or six men and weighs about 5500 lbs. without passengers. It is fully equipped with axes, fire hooks and other needed tools for fire work and is one of the finest auto combinations in this section.

The auto is to be presented to the town at the annual town meeting by the firemen of Ward 3. The committees in charge of raising funds and carrying out the project of purchasing and placing the auto fire truck in Weymouth's fire department are to be congratulated on the great success of their undertaking, and it is safe to say that combination 3 will fulfill all expectations of Captain W. H. Bicknell and his assistants.

Pythian Anniversary.

Delphi lodge 15, Knights of Pythias, celebrated the 49th anniversary of the order at Pythian hall, Wednesday evening with an entertainment, banquet and dance.

The entertainment included selections by Bert Clark, humorist and impersonator; Miss Ruth Hardy, soprano soloist, and Leavitt's orchestra which also furnished music for the dance.

Supper was served by Caterer Solder of Boston. The menu included cold roast turkey, cranberry sauce, cold boiled ham, escalloped oysters, lobster and chicken salad, potato salad, rolls, frozen pudding, assorted ice cream and sherberts, cake and coffee.

The committee in charge was Mrs. Charles J. Newcomb, H. W. Rockwood, Francis M. Vaughn, George B. DeKhalmer, Ernest M. Vaughan, Bertram F. Johnson, Jesse H. Pierce, F. H. Miller, George W. Leavitt, Oscar F. Smith, Arthur C. Bicknell and Russell F. Poole.

Mrs. Emma F. Sherman.

Mrs. Emma Francis Sherman, widow of Alexander Sherman, died at her home on Prospect street, Saturday.

She was born in West Scituate, December 14, 1828, but had resided in this town nearly her lifetime. She was a daughter of the late Amos and Rebecca Dunbar.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Emma Hall, and a son, Frank D. Sherman of this town; two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Bailey of this town, who is 88 years old, and Mrs. Ruth Treat of Dorchester, who was 93 years old last Sunday; also a brother, James Dunbar of Rockland.

The funeral took place from her late residence Tuesday afternoon, Rev. Rufus H. Dix of the Universalist church, conducted the service. There was a large attendance of friends. The interment was at Village cemetery and the bearers were Walter F. Saxon, John Aldrich, George E. Bicknell and John A. Neal.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

The column under this title will be given to the people for a free discussion of any and all subjects, the management of the paper distinctly disclaiming all responsibility for the opinions here expressed.

North Weymouth, Feb. 19, 1913.

Editor of the Weymouth Gazette,

Dear Sir:—

Under date of February 19, the Boston Journal prints the following:

"FEAR WEALTHY MEN WILL ABANDON TOWNS. SOME ARE LEAVING."

"J. W. Burlingame, a property owner at Weymouth Bluffs, paying taxes on a valuation of $8,500, is disposing of his estate at a sacrifice, the price obtained being $5,000, because he says of the way the town neglects the owners of property who come to the seashore at North Weymouth and developed the place."

Now What Are The Facts

November 15, 1911, Mary D. Burlingame bought land at Weymouth Bluffs, and in the early part of 1912, erected a house, the valuation placed upon the house and land by the assessors was $3,250.

October 30, 1912, forty days after the tax bills were sent out, Dedham records say that she bought 6,000 feet more land.

Does this show that she considered her taxes were excessive for what she was getting from the town? She is asking today $5,500 for what was taxed $3,250.

If Mr. Burlingame would become a registered voter in our town, in my opinion he would be in a better condition to advocate his ideas than he is at the present time.

If you will publish the above, you will oblige.

Yours truly,
Frank H. Torrey,
Assessor.

ESTIMATE DAMAGE AT $600.

Fire on Pleasant Street, East Weymouth, Last Sunday Afternoon Gains Considerable Headway Before Discovered.

The alarm from box 47 last Sunday afternoon at 12:45 was for a fire in the house at 987 Pleasant street, East Weymouth, owned and occupied by Bela J. Mathewson.

The blaze was first discovered by John Fraher, who gave the alarm. When first seen the fire was in the back part of the main house, on the outside of the structure and before it was extinguished made its way into the walls and partitions and spread to the chambers and attic, doing a damage estimated at about $600.

Nearly all the furniture was saved and the damage to the lower part of the house was mostly from smoke and water.

The quick trip by the fire company from Lovell's Corner undoubtedly saved a more serious loss. District Chief Walter W. Pratt directed the men in the work of putting out the fire.

The hook and ladder truck from Engine House 2 which responds to box 47 was late getting under way to the fire on account of the horses and drivers being busy in harvesting the ice crop.

The cause of the fire is unknown, but it is thought to have started from a defective flue.

K. of C. Notes.

Hon. Richard Teeling of Charlestown addressed the members of Weymouth Council, K. of C., at headquarters in Jackson Square, East Weymouth, last Sunday afternoon. Mr. Teeling spoke on his recent extensive trip through Europe. The address was highly enjoyed by the large gathering present.

HOWLEY WITH QUAKERS

East Weymouth Catcher To Go South
Next Week With Philadelphia National League Club For Try-Out.

DANIEL P. HOWLEY

After many near chances in the major leagues, Dan Howley, the pride of East Weymouth's baseball fans, is at last to be given the much longed for and worked for opportunity to show his class as a member of the Philadelphia club of the National league, under the management of Charles Doolin.

Daniel P. Howley started his baseball career back in the years of 1903 and 1904, when he was the mainstay of the Weymouth High school team, catching nearly every game and batting with the best of the high school boys of this section. On Saturday afternoons during these two years, he caught for the Wellingtons of Dorchester and the Braintree club of Braintree.

In 1905, the first year of a team at the C. M. A. Howley signed as catcher and with Conathan, Pratt, Cullen and several other local stars, this team cleaned up seventeen straight games.

At the close of the C. M. A. season that year "Buster" Burrill of East Weymouth, who was playing with the New Bedford club of the New England league, got Dan to try out with the Whalers. Dan's first professional game was against the Boston National league club and the East Weymouth boy showed his nerve by throwing six Boston players out, in their attempts to steal second.

In the spring 1906, Charlie Carr, manager of the Indianapolis team of the American Association signed Howley, but after a short try-out, sent him to the Grand Rapids team of the Central league for seasoning. Under the efficient instruction of John Ganzel, Dan improved wonderfully and was the mainstay of the team in winning the Central league pennant that year.

In 1906 he was recalled to Indianapolis and played with the Hoosiers during the seasons of 1906, 1907, 1908, 1909 and 1910. In 1908 he caught a large share of the games and was instrumental in bringing the pennant to Indianapolis. On the same team with Dan that year was "Donie" Bush, now with the Detroit Tigers and Rube Marquard of the N. Y. Giants.

In 1909 he caught 154 games out of 168 and it is said that Dan is the only catcher known that has caught fourteen games in one week, seven double-headers falling to Dan's lot to do the backstop work in.

In 1911 on account of business differences with the new management of the Indianapolis club, he was sold to the Utica team of the New York State league, where he had a highly successful season under his former manager Charlie Carr. In the fall of this year the Cleveland club of the American league purchased Dan, but shortly sold him to the Portland club of the Pacific coast league, without giving him a trial. Dan went to the coast in 1912 and immediately became one of the fastest catchers in the league, his throwing especially having a very deadly effect on the crack base runners of the circuit. All during the 1912 season several major league clubs were dickered for the services of "Peaches" but it was not until about two weeks ago that Manager Charles Doolin of the Quakers succeeded in lading "Howling Dan" in exchange for Catcher Loan, Pitcher Stanley and a sum of money.

Dan received his contract from the club the first of this week and says he is well satisfied with the terms. He will leave on Sunday for Philadelphia and on Tuesday, February 25, he will go to Southern Pines, N. C., with the rest of the Phillies squad for the spring training.

The many players and "fans" on the Pacific coast are sorry to lose Dan from their league, as the East Weymouth boy has the reputation of being one of the cleanest and most gentlemanly players in the country and is highly popular in all the cities where he has played during the past eight years.

Last year in the coast league Dan played 132 games, batted for 982 and batted for about 265. He bats and throws right handed.

Howley is a native of East Weymouth and always at the close of the baseball season, Dan hustles for his home on Broad street, East Weymouth, where he spends the winter months in a quiet manner. His many friends in this section will eagerly watch the dispatches from the Quakers' training camp and are confident that "Dan-u-well" will make good from the start and it is safe to say that if Dan is with the Philadelphia squad on its first game in Boston on April 26, there will be a large delegation of Weymouth admirers on deck to welcome East Weymouth's popular athlete.

To the Rescue.

"I am at present devoting a good deal of time to the Bacon-Shakespeare controversy," said Old Ed. Howe, writing in his own magazine. "Think of the absurdity of it," he continues. We do. Our notion of nothing to get excited about is this Shakespeare controversy.

[Written for the Gazette and Transcript.]
 The Benedict was holding a skein of yarn for the Bride to wind into a ball.

"Did you ever think, Beloved," he inquired, "how easy it is to make the people of this world happy?"

"Sometimes it's easy," qualified the Bride, "but I have seen times when it was rather difficult. What were you thinking of in particular?"

"Of a little drama that went on in the car as I came home to-night. There was a little shaver about two years old," began the Benedict, "who sat in his mother's lap as quiet as a mouse. I noticed him just casually as I boarded the car."

"A few blocks further out a woman with a little girl came in and sat opposite the youngster. The little girl had a bag of fancy crackers and was munching one. It set the little fellow wild. He set up a howl and tried by every possible means to get out of his mother's arms. He reached out his hands for the crackers and clutched empty air in a vain attempt to grab one."

"Wait, Jack, you mustn't gesticulate so," cautioned the Bride; "you are snarling the yarn. And then what?"

"When he found he couldn't reach them he flung himself back against his mother, a picture of black despair. About that time the little girl's mother advised her to share with the baby and I wish you could have seen the change it made."

"He liked it, did he?"

"He grabbed the tiny piece she passed him and crammed nearly the whole of his fist into his mouth to be sure it was safely landed. Then he laughed. He hunched his shoulders, patted his sides, and closed his eyes in perfect bliss."

"He was hungry, poor little soul," sympathized the Bride. "Did she give him more?"

"Oh, yes! All the way out, till she left the car, she continued to feed him pieces of cracker, and he continued to demonstrate his joy. But the funniest of all was what he did when the little girl went out. She waved a goodbye to him, but he seemed to feel that gratitude demanded more, so he filled his chubby hands with kisses and threw them after her."

"How cute!" exclaimed the Bride, finishing the ball with a flourish. "It reminds me of the beatific look I surprised on our old sexton's face last Wednesday night. After the church supper they gave the dishwasher a number of left-overs to take home. I happened into the kitchen in time to see her passing a good share of them along to the sexton. His face fairly shone, and if he had been two instead of seventy-two he would have expressed his joy in much the same way the youngster did. I am sure his feelings were the same."

"Yes," she added after a moment, "it surely is very easy to make people happy. The pity is we don't more often make the attempt."

VALENTINE DANCE.

Bates Opera House in Weymouth Scene of Very Enjoyable Valentine Party and Dance Last Friday Evening.

A subscription dance and Valentine party was held in Bates Opera House last Friday evening, which was largely attended and greatly enjoyed. The hall was most attractively decorated with potted plants, cut flowers and ferns, and the many beautiful gowns of the ladies added much to the beauty of the scene.

After a short reception, dancing was enjoyed until 12 o'clock with Shaw's orchestra of 5 pieces furnishing music.

The matrons were Mrs. E. E. Leonard, Mrs. J. Herbert Walsh, Mrs. Charles T. Humphrey, Mrs. Luther O. Crocker, Mrs. George R. Kempf and Mrs. Charles Scorer. The patronesses were Mrs. H. C. Newman, Mrs. G. D. Bullock, Mrs. E. A. Pray, Mrs. L. W. Bates, Mrs. C. A. Clapp, Mrs. A. B. Worthen, Mrs. W. E. Tirrell and Mrs. C. P. Whittle.

The dance program was of a unique design, being an arrow-pierced heart in shape, and they made a most pleasing souvenir for the merry-makers.

Scotland's "Datt Days."

So hilarious were the old ceremonies of welcoming the new year in Scotland that Dec. 31 and Jan. 1 won for themselves the designation of "the datt days." Temperance legislation has done much in recent years to moderate and refine the festivities, which still, however, assume extensive and exuberant proportions. Only a few years ago a writer in the London Chronicle in Edinburgh on New Year's eve saw the "Black Maria" perambulating the streets and picking up the hopelessly drunken persons from the pavements and doorsteps for conveyance to the police station.

It was formerly the custom in Ireland and Wales to carry a lantern tastefully decorated with ribbons and containing a wren, round each hamlet and village on New Year's day and make calls on dwellers in cottage and hall. The owners, swinging the lantern at each door, would favor all whom it might concern with a song and receive a monetary reward.

Comparative Digestibility of Food

Made with different Baking Powders

From a Series of Elaborate Chemical Tests:

An equal quantity of bread (biscuit) was made with each of three different kinds of baking powder—cream of tartar, phosphate, and alum—and submitted separately to the action of the digestive fluid, each for the same length of time.

100 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with phosphate powder:

68 3/4 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with alum powder:

67 3/4 Per Cent. Digested

These tests, which are absolutely reliable and unprejudiced, make plain a fact of great importance to everyone: Food raised with Royal, a cream of tartar Baking Powder, is shown to be entirely digestible, while the alum and phosphate powders are found to largely retard the digestion of the food made from them.

Undigested food is not only wasted food, but it is the source of very many bodily ailments.

William H. Dawless Dead.

On Wednesday morning, the 19th instant, William H. Dawless, a former resident of Weymouth, died at his home in Worcester, Mass. He came to Weymouth when a boy and learned the boot maker's trade. Later he worked in the stamping and gilding shop of A. Prescott Nash and lived with Mrs. Jacob Lord on Front Street.

About forty years ago Mr. Dawless went to Buffalo, N. Y., where he spent a year or two and then went to Worcester, entering the employ of the Worcester Corset Company, a business carried on by his brother-in-law.

While in Weymouth Mr. Dawless became a member of Orphans Hope Lodge, A. F. and A. M., and has always remained one of its most faithful members and staunch supporters. He was also interested in local matters at the Landing and the ties which bound him to old friends were strong; but a few weeks ago he made a brief visit to Weymouth and was the guest of Charles T. Crane. He also called at this office to have his usual chat about the old times in Orphans Lodge and the men he used to know but who had now passed and said, "The time is drawing near when I will be with them." That time has come and a noble man has gone to his reward.

—The vestry of the Universalist church was crowded to overflowing on Monday evening, Feb. 17th, for the third and last performance of the minstrel show of the Universalist Men's Club. The affair was unquestionably the best received of any entertainment given in North Weymouth in many years. The committee of arrangements was H. A. Bailey, E. R. Sampson, E. D. Williams, C. E. Stiles and S. T. Torrey. The committee and performers are to be congratulated on the great success of their entertainment. A complete program of the event was published in last week's issue of this paper.

—Word has been received this week of the marriage in New York city recently, of Miss May C. Bridges, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice F. Bridges of North Weymouth to Frederick P. Holt of East Somerville, Mass. The couple were married at Grace church, New York city by Rev. W. A. Slattery.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Examinations Being Held in Different Subjects Covered During Past Few Months.

The examinations on the past two months work are being held this week and will continue for the next few days and this fact probably accounts for the downcast faces of many of the students lately.

William, "Pappy," Wall, last years star catcher of the base ball team of the school, is a candidate for the receiving position on the Tufts College team this season. Wall is a student at the Tufts Dental school.

The dramatic club play, "The Mouse Trap," which was presented in the school hall last Thursday afternoon, was well attended and greatly applauded, the girls doing particularly well in their first public appearance. It is reported that the club made about $20 from the affair, a large share of the sum being realized on the candy table presided over by Miss Hester Swan and a number of assistants. We hope to hear that the club is to present another program later in the year and hope they will see fit to allow their gentlemen friends to attend their next performance.

The junior class held a most enjoyable Valentine party in the school gymnasium last Monday afternoon. Games and dancing were enjoyed and a luncheon served. The committee in charge of the affair was Leo B. Fraher, Harold Gloster, Miss Edith Newman, Miss Florence Murphy, Miss Katherine Pratt and Miss Ruth Powers.

UNION A. C. LOSES TO C. M. A.

Close Game in South Weymouth Last Saturday Night Results in 22-19 Victory for East Weymouth Quintet.

In the closest and most exciting game of the South Shore league series thus far this season, the Clapp Memorial team won over their rivals, the Union A. C. of South Weymouth in the latter's gymnasium last Saturday night, by the score of 22 to 19. The teams were both in fine shape and went after the game from the call of time until the timekeeper's closing whistle.

Richardson and Pratt starred for the losers and Bumpus, Ahlstedt and Shutz excelled for the winning combination. The shooting of fouls by Cahill of Union was extremely accurate, "Dewey" getting nine fouls to his credit during the evening's performance. The summary:—

CLAPP MEMORIAL	UNION A. C.
R. Curtin, rf	lb, English
Ahlstedt, lf	rb, Pratt
Bumpus, c	c, Mowry

OLD COLONY GAS CO.

A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST

By GENE STRATTON-PORTER

Copyright, 1909, by Doubleday, Page & Co

CHAPTER XXIV.

Wherein Chicago Comes to the Limberlost.

HONK, honk, honk! Hart Henderson set the alarm of the big automobile going as it shot from behind the trees lining the Brushwood road. The picture of a vine-covered cabin, a great drooping tree, a green clad girl and a man bending over her very closely flashed into view. Edith Carr caught her breath with a snap. Polly Ammon gave Tom Levering a quick touch and wickedly winked at him.

Several days before Edith had returned from Europe suddenly. She and Henderson had called at the Ammon residence, saying that they were going to motor down to the Limberlost to see Philip a few hours and urged that Polly and Tom accompany them. Mrs. Ammon thought it better to have Polly along to support Philip than to allow him to confront Edith unexpectedly and alone. Polly was full of spirit. She did not like Edith and did not relish the thought of her as a sister. Two days before her father had extracted a promise of secrecy, given her Philip's address and told her to send him the finest emerald ring she could select. Polly knew how that ring would be used. What she did not know was that the girl who accompanied her went back to the store afterward, made an excuse to the clerk that she had been sent to be absolutely sure that the address was right and so secured it for Edith Carr.

Two days later Edith had induced Hart Henderson to take her to Onabasha. He was said of maps they located the Comstock land and passed it merely to see the place. Henderson hated that trip and implored Edith not to take it, but she made no effort to conceal from him what she suitered, and it was more than he could endure.

The sunlight etched with distinctness the scene at the west end of the cabin. Instinctively, to save Edith, Henderson set the whistle blowing. He had thought to go on to the city, but Polly Ammon stood, crying, "Phil, Phil!" Tom Levering was on his feet shouting and waving, while Edith in her most imperial manner ordered him to turn into the lane leading through the woods beside the cabin.

"Fix it some way that I get a minute alone with her," she commanded as he stopped the car.

"That is my sister Polly, her fiance Tom Levering, a friend of mine named Henderson and"—began Ammon.

"Edith Carr," volunteered Elnora.

"And Edith Carr," repeated Philip Ammon. "Elnora, be brave for my sake. Their coming can make no difference in any way. I won't let them stay but a few minutes. Come with me."

"Do I look scared?" inquired Elnora serenely. "This is why you have not had your answer. I have been waiting just six weeks for that motor. You may bring them to me at the arbor."

She could see that Miss Carr was splendidly beautiful, while she moved with the hauteur and grace supposed to be the prerogatives of royalty. And she had instantly taken possession of Philip Ammon. But Ammon also had a brain which was working with rapidity. He knew Elnora was watching so he swung around to the others.

"Give her up, Tom!" he cried. "I didn't know I wanted to see the little nuisance so badly, but I do. How are father and mother? Polly, be good to Elnora," he whispered.

"Um-huh," assented Polly. And aloud, "I never saw such a beauty. Thomas Asquith Levering, you come straight here and take my hand!"

Edith's move to compel Ammon to approach Elnora beside her had been easy to see; also its failure. Henderson stepped into Ammon's place as he turned to his sister. Instead of taking Polly's hand Levering ran to open the gate. Edith passed through first, but Polly darted in front of her on the run, with Phil holding her arm, and swept up to Elnora. Polly looked for the ring and saw it. That settled matters with her.

"You lovely, lovely, darling girl!" she cried, throwing her arms around Elnora and kissing her. With her lips near Elnora's ear, Polly whispered, "Sister—dear, dear sister!"

Elnora drew back, staring at Polly in confused amazement. She was a beautiful girl, dressed in some wonderful way. Her eyes were sparkling and dancing, and as she turned to make way for the others she kept one of Elnora's hands in hers. Edith bowed low, muttered something and touched Elnora's fingers. In that instant only pity was in Elnora's breast for the flashing dark beauty.

"Come into the shade," she urged. "You must have found it warm on these country roads. Won't you lay aside your dust coats and have a cool drink? Philip, would you ask mother to come and bring that pitcher in the springhouse?"

They entered the arbor, exclaiming at the dim, green coolness. Mrs. Comstock came deliberately, talking to Ammon as she approached. Elnora gave her one searching look, but could discover only an extreme brightness of eye to denote any unusual feeling. Polly instantly went to her and held up her face to be kissed. Mrs. Comstock's eyes twinkled, and she made the greeting hearty.

Soon the pitcher was empty, and Elnora picked it up and went to refill it. While she was gone Henderson asked Philip about some trouble he was having with his car. They went to the woods and began a minute examination to find a defect which did not exist. Polly and Levering were having an animated conversation with Mrs. Comstock. Henderson saw Edith arise, follow the garden path next the woods and stand waiting under the willow which Elnora would pass on her return. It was for that meeting he had made the trip. He got down on the ground, tore up the car, worked, asked for help and kept Philip busy screwing bolts and applying the oil can. All the time Henderson kept an eye on Edith and Elnora under the willow. But he took pains to lay the work he asked Philip to do where that scene would be out of his sight. When Elnora came around the corner with the pitcher she found herself facing Edith Carr.

"I want a minute with you," said Miss Carr.

"Very well," replied Elnora, walking on.

"Set the pitcher on the bench there," commanded Edith Carr as if speaking to a servant.

"I prefer not to offer my guests a warm drink," said Elnora. "I'll come back if you really wish to speak with me."

"I came solely for that," said Edith Carr.

"It would be a pity to travel so far in this dust and heat for nothing. I'll only be gone a second."

Elnora set the pitcher before her mother. "Please serve this," she said. "Miss Carr wishes to speak with me."

The girl slowly and gravely walked back to the willow.

"Will you be seated?" she asked politely.

Edith Carr glanced at the bench, while a shudder shook her.

"No. I prefer to stand," she said. "Did Mr. Ammon give you the ring you are wearing, and do you consider yourself engaged to him?"

"By what right do you ask such personal questions as those?" inquired Elnora.

"By the right of a betrothed wife. I have been promised to Philip Ammon ever since I was a child. All our lives we have expected to marry. An agreement of years cannot be broken in one insane moment. Always he has loved me devotedly. Give me ten minutes with him and he will be mine for all time."

"I seriously doubt that," said Elnora. "But I am perfectly willing that you should make the test. I will call him."

"Stop!" commanded Edith Carr. "I told you that it was you I came to see."

"I remember," said Elnora.

"Mr. Ammon is my betrothed," continued Edith Carr. "I expect to take him back to Chicago with me."

"Then it is untrue that you twice rejected his ring, repeatedly insulted him and publicly renounced him?"

"That was through you!" cried Edith Carr. "I realize the spell of this place for a summer season. I can see just how you have worked to ensnare him!"

"I want a minute with you," said Miss Carr.

"Men would call that lying," said Elnora calmly. "The second time I met Philip Ammon he told me of his engagement to you, and I respected it. When he left me I did not hope or expect to see him again." Elnora's voice fell soft and low. "And, behold, you sent him—and free!"

"You exult in that!" cried Edith Carr. "Let me tell you he is not free! If he married you before a month you would read heart hunger for us in his eyes. He could not love me as he has done and give me up for a little scene like that!"

"You killed his love everlastingly when you disgraced him in public," said Elnora. "Killed it so completely he does not even feel resentment toward you."

Edith Carr stood truly regal and filled with scorn. "You are mistaken. Nothing on earth could kill that!" she cried, and Elnora saw that the girl really believed what she said.

"You are very sure of yourself!" said Elnora.

"I have reason to be sure," answered Edith Carr. "We have lived and loved too long. I have had years with him to match against your days. He is mine! His work, his ambitions, his friends, his place in society are with me. You may have a summer charm for a sick man in the country. If he tried placing you in society you would put him to shame in a week."

"I hardly think I should follow your example so far," said Elnora dryly. "I have a feeling for Philip that would prevent my hurting him purposely either in public or private. As for managing a social career for him he never mentioned that he desired such a thing. What he asked of me was that I should be his wife. I understood that to mean that he desired me to keep him a clean house, serve him digestible food, mother his children and give him loving sympathy and tenderness."

"Such vulgarity!" panted Edith Carr. "How can a man like Ammon endure it? You know perfectly that if your puny hold on him were broken, if he were back in his home among his friends and where he was meeting me, in one little week he would be mine again as he always has been."

"That will do!" said Elnora. "I shall not act until I know there will be nothing to regret. I have decided on my course. You may return to your friends."

"What do you mean?" demanded Edith Carr.

"That is my affair," replied Elnora. "Only this: When your opportunity comes, seize it! Any time you are in Philip Ammon's presence, exert the charms of which you boast and take him. Take him to Onabasha and to Chicago with you. Use every art you possess. If the old charm can be revived I will be the first to wish both of you well. Now, I must return to my guests. Kindly excuse me."

Elnora turned and went back to the arbor. Edith Carr followed the fence and passed through the gate into the west woods where she asked Henderson if the car was ready. As she stood near him she whispered, "Take Phil back to Onabasha with us."

"I say, Ammon, can't you go to the city with us and help me find a shop where I can get this plinton fixed?" asked Henderson. "We want to lunch and start back by 5. That will get us home by midnight."

Philip went into the arbor.

"Elnora," he said, "Henderson is in trouble with his automobile. He wants me to go to Onabasha with him to show him where the doctor lives and help him get fixed so he can start back this evening. It will take about two hours. May I go?"

"Of course you must go," she said, laughing lightly. "You can't leave your sister. Why don't you go back to Chicago with them? There is plenty of room, and you could have a fine visit."

"I'll be back in just two hours," said Ammon. "While I am gone you be thinking over what we were talking of when the folks came."

Elnora offered her hand to all of them, and when she came to Ammon she gave him one long steady look in the eyes, then shook hands with him also.

When Philip returned to the Limberlost Elnora was gone. There was a note for him, saying that even her mother did not know where she had sought refuge. On or before the 1st of September, she wrote, she would let him know where she was and her decision. Philip, deeply disappointed, returned to Chicago. There Edith Carr, in a meeting at which Philip's father was present, begged his forgiveness, told him she had always loved him and asked for his love again. But he told her any love he had ever had for her was dead. He was going back to the Limberlost, he said.

Elnora, feeling the need of rest, went to the summer home of the Angel and Freckles, on Mackinac Island, and received a warm welcome from Mr. and Mrs. O'More and their four young children.

Following Are a Few of the Items Which Appeared in the Gazette Thirty-Seven Years Ago.

THIRTY-SEVEN YEARS AGO.

Those interested in the ice business have been anxiously watching the weather for the last few days, hoping they might be able to secure a crop of ice, but the snow storm of the 21st and 22d has dashed their hopes.

It is an old maxim, that every person was born for some particular occupation, and in our observations through the business portion of the community, we can readily see this old maxim verified in the farming business conducted by S. & D. Ford, brothers.

The new organ of the Baptist Society of Weymouth, built by Hutchings, Plaisted & Co. of Boston, at a cost of nearly $2,000, is approaching completion, and as soon as it is placed in position in the church the society will give a public exhibition of its quality in a grand organ concert, presided over by one of the most talented of Boston organists, assisted by musicians of the town.

The town of Weymouth whose record as one of the oldest towns of the Commonwealth would seem to recommend its perpetuity as an undivided community, in the opinion of the older inhabitants, at least, is threatened with dismemberment—a petition signed by 300 residents of the South village, praying for a division of the town, having come before the Legislative Committee on Towns.

TWENTY-SIX YEARS AGO.

The Norfolk club will dine at Young's hotel, Saturday, February 26, at 2 p. m. Wm. H. Sayward, Esq., secretary of the Master Builders' Association, will speak on the general subject of Labor.

The Norfolk County High School Masters organized at the Crawford house on Saturday last by the choice of Edgar R. Downs, of Weymouth, as president and Sanford W. Billings of Sharon, as secretary.

The movement among our residents for subscriptions to defray the debt of the Weymouth Agricultural and Industrial Society is meeting with most gratifying success, many of the subscribers donating from $5 to $20 each.

Politics in the fifth ward will not be allowed to slumber, during the next ten days at least, and the outcome of the present contest in regard to town officials will be watched with considerable interest from now until the annual March meeting. Whichever side wins it will be in a fair fight, in which the whole town has a common interest. There will be no still hunt campaign and the issue will be brought plainly to the attention of every voter in the town. A sprinkling of young blood is wanted to stimulate the work and methods of our various town boards, and this is a good year to make a beginning.

TWENTY-ONE YEARS AGO.

Every body went sleighing Saturday and Sunday and there was a number of runaways, although no serious accidents are reported.

The Farrar Brothers are starting their incubators and expect to have out two thousand chickens before the spring opens. The Curtis Brothers are also making great preparation in that line.

Wednesday morning after the caucus, it was cold. The glass in many places went nearly to zero. Up at the depot in South Weymouth was considered the coldest place in town. "J. A. C." says it was forty below on this particular morning.

Ira Curtis, an old and highly respected citizen of this place, died Saturday night, aged 84 years, 27 days. He at one time represented the town in the legislature and for many years carried on a large lumber business at the wharves on Commercial street.

One of the most enthusiastic meetings ever held in the village of North Weymouth was that of last Monday night in response to a call signed by E. S. Beals, John W. Bartlett, F. H. Torrey and John A. Holbrook, asking the citizens to meet to consider the matter of an extension of the Quincy and Boston Street Railway into North Weymouth. A committee of five, consisting of E. S. Beal, F. H. Torrey, J. A. Holbrook, D. H. Benson and F. A. Bicknell, was appointed as an executive committee to act on any matters pertaining to the meeting or the proposed road.

Know More About Electricity.

During ten years the output of the electric generating plants has nearly trebled but the number of accidents has remained the same. An increase would be naturally looked for, but this seems to indicate that many of the accidents of the earlier years were due to ignorance or carelessness, which is now avoided by a greater knowledge of the use of electricity and electrical machinery.

KNIGHTS TEMPLARS CELEBRATE.

South Shore Commandery, Knights Templars, Celebrate Washington's Birthday and Ladies' Night.

The lowering clouds and threatening weather did not prevent the carrying out of the well arranged plans of South Shore Commandery, Knights Templars, on Saturday night last.

The committee of arrangement consisted of Em. Sir Frank W. Bates, Commander; Sir Gardner R. P. Barker, Generalissimo; Sir Edward B. Pratt, Captain General, and Em. Sir Eben H. Cain, Recorder. This committee planned a reception, banquet, concert and dance.

Regardless of weather conditions, the members and guests were on hand at the appointed time and it was early in evidence that the event would be one of the most brilliant in the history of the Commandery. All parts of Weymouth were well represented and Hingham, Braintree and Quincy were not without a good representation.

The special guest of the evening was Right Emment Grand Commander Frank L. Nagle, Grand Commander of the Grand Commandery of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, who was accompanied by Em. Sir Asa C. Jewell, Grand Warden.

The reception committee was Em. Sirs Frank W. Bates, William S. Wallace, George Cushing, T. John Evans, Francis A. Blecknell, David J. Pierce, Eben H. Cain and Arthur W. Burr.

The assistants were Sir Knights Gardner R. P. Barker, Percy B. Cook, Edward B. Pratt, Bertrand W. Maxim, Leavitt W. Bates, James H. McDermott, Henry P. Tilden, Russell H. Whiting, Charles G. Jordan, Arthur B. Maynard, Josiah B. Reed, Edwin R. Bond, W. Edward Gutterston, William E. Ames, Walter E. Tierrell, Clarence Humphrey, Frederick H. Langhorst, Charles T. Humphrey and Fred N. Bates.

It is perfectly safe to say that in the entire history of the celebrations of South Shore Commandery no committee has ever had the pleasure of receiving a more ideal gathering than that of last Saturday night.

The program consisted of the following: CONCERT PROGRAM. Weber Quartette, A. C. Prescott, First Tenor, A. F. Cole, Second Tenor, George Woods, Baritone, W. E. Davison, Bass, Edith McGregor Woods, Contralto, Ada Phillips, Reader, Mabel Winslow Bennett, Accompanist.

1. "On the Sea" (Buck) Weber Quartette
2. Reading, "Hercules" (Cooke) Ada Phillips
3. "Water Lilies" Weber Quartette
4. Contralto solo, "Down in the Forest" (Randall) (a) "Daybreak" (Daniels) Edith McGregor Woods
5. (a) "Goblin Song" Weber Quartette
(b) "Beautiful Rose" Ada Phillips
6. Reading, "At the Matinee" Edith McGregor Woods
7. Contralto solo, "Happy Song" (Riego) Edith McGregor Woods
8. "Jenks Compound" Weber Quartette
9. Reading, Selected
10. "Good Night" Weber Quartette

These several numbers were well received and called for frequent encores. Meanwhile the banquet buss below had disappeared ball room had taken its place and was in charge of a dancing committee with Em. Sir Eben H. Cain as floor director and the following as aids: Sirs W. P. Denbroeder, Harry J. Beck, Charles G. Jordan, Edward W. Jones, Josiah B. Reed, John Taylor and W. Edward Gutterston.

Twelve numbers and four extras on the order of dances were indulged in and enjoyed until the appointed hour for closing and then everyone pronounced the 1913 celebration of Washington's birthday and Ladies' Night of South Shore Commandery Knights Templars a grand success with thanks to Em. Sir Frank W. Bates and his assistants.

WINS FIRST STATE PRIZE.

Mock Trial By Norfolk Club Presented On December 9, 1912 Wins First Massachusetts Prize Of $100.

The Norfolk club of South Weymouth has been awarded first Massachusetts prize of $100 for the fine presentation on December 9, 1912 of the mock trial of "The Case of Jennie Brice." The trial was held in Fogg's Opera House in competition for the several prizes offered by Everybody's Magazine. The magazine offered rewards aggregating $11,540 for the best trials based on the serial story by Mary Roberts Rinehart which appeared in Everybody's Magazine for several months, and the South Weymouth club's trial was considered the best in Massachusetts.

The parts in the court drama were taken by the following well known South Weymouth people:—

Boy Scouts of America.

The regular meeting of the Boy Scouts was held in their rooms at the Congregational church last Thursday evening.

The president, Scout John Dizer, was in the chair.

The roll call was read by the secretary, Scout Fahy.

The report of the athletic committee was read. The committee is planning for basketball ball games played and a schedule of future games.

Scout Master Commons presented Scout John Dizer with a merit badge for passing an examination on public health. Scout Dizer has also been awarded a merit badge for chemistry, passing the examination by a very high mark. This merit badge was sent direct to him from headquarters. Only a first class scout can complete for merit badges.

Assistant Scout Master MacFann gave a brief account of the annual meeting of the Greater Boston Council which was held in Boston recently and which he attended.

Scout Master Commons gave a very interesting account of an article which he had read in a magazine devoted to the scout movement.

The basketball team will play at the Union gym at South Weymouth, Saturday evening, Mar. 1. Their opponents will be the Union 2nd team.

After the business meeting a short session was held in which the medicine ball demonstrated its curative powers.

EPWORTH LEAGUE MEETING.

Old Colony Circle Well Represented at East Weymouth. Interesting Program.

With a large number of delegates present from the Methodist churches of South Braintree, West Abington, Scituate, Hull, Hingham, Rockland, North Cohasset, Hanover, Lovell's Corner, East Braintree and the Weymouths, the annual banquet and quarterly meeting of the Old Colony Circuit Epworth league was held in the Methodist church on Broad street, East Weymouth, last Saturday evening.

The home church committee who had the affair in charge was composed of Mrs. George A. Lincoln, Mrs. Norman Cann, Miss Mildred Bates, Miss Abbie Maynard and Mrs. Nina Maynard. The banquet was served by the members of the George C. King chapter 654 of the M. E. church of East Weymouth.

The evening program with Fred B. Watson of South Braintree presiding, consisted of devotional exercises conducted by Rev. C. T. Collister and Rev. C. M. Panunzio; vocal solos by Myron P. Ford, organ selections by Stephen C. Borgeyne, hymns sung by the congregation, a roll call with Scripture responses and an interesting address by Rev. George A. Grant, pastor of the M. E. church, on "The Metamorphosis."

CUNARD STEAMSHIP LINE.

The Goodfellowship Club of the Congregational Church of East Weymouth Make a Record.

The third in the series of social gatherings, suppers and entertainments was held at the church Wednesday evening and it was an evening of pleasure and profit.

The preliminary social gathering was a demonstration of what the name of the club stands for, "Goodfellowship."

Next came the regular supper with a well served menu and about 100 members and guests at the tables. The president, W. C. Earle, made an innovation by a few short talks from members before proceeding to the chapel where a lecture was to be given by James A. Burns of Boston.

Mr. Burns' subject was "The Growth and Development of the Cunard Steamship Line." The speaker has a happy faculty of lifting his audience out of the realm of dull listeners into that waking up, catching onto what is being said and watching for what is coming next.

He used more than a hundred beautifully colored views and took his hearers through more than 70 years of the history of the Steamship Co., beginning with its first boat in 1840 which was but 207 feet long, with a gross tonnage of 1,154, fitted for but 115 passengers, started on her maiden trip, July 4th, 1840 and was 14 days in coming across and followed the growth of the Company up to its now wonderful ship more than 800 feet in length with 90 times the power and capacity of the first boat with a working force of over 300 officers and men on each boat and accommodations for 2300 passengers, who are taken from shore to shore in less than five days and in 70 years has never lost a passenger by an accident to boat or machinery.

REYNOLDS W. R. C. 102.

Twentytwo Years Old Celebrate "Red Letter" Day with Other Features.

Reynolds W. R. C. has just passed its 22nd birthday and celebrated the event yesterday in a fitting manner at Grand Army Hall in East Weymouth.

There was the regular business meeting in the afternoon which was followed by supper at 6:30. The suppers of the corps are no mean events and the one of last night passed far beyond the ordinary, there being present state officers of the corps, the Grand Army and all of the kindred organizations in town.

The corps in its 22 years has developed some very able talent which has carried them in conspicuous positions among state and national workers, and not the least of these is Mrs. Mary A. Holbrook, department president of Massachusetts, and following the supper, a reception was tendered her and the receiving line had in it a long array of able workers of whom we might say much but are limited this morning for space and time.

In the events which followed the reception, Mrs. Holbrook was the recipient of a beautiful floral offering and no small amount of verbal tributes of which she and the corps may well be proud.

Albert Wilder entertained with selections from Edison's latest invention, the Disc which reproduces the finest points of speech and song. Ten o'clock saw the end of Red Letter Day and the president, Mrs. Agnes F. Baldwin, S. V., Mrs. Jordan, secretary, Estella W. Richards and others of the corps are to be congratulated.

Literary Circle Meets.

The literary club connected with the Monday club was entertained by Mrs. Abbie E. Beals at her home 32 Sea street North Weymouth, last Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Claire H. Gurney of Quincy, secretary of the State Federation, delivered a very interesting address on the subject, "Maeterlinck, His Life and Works."

Instrumental music and refreshments were enjoyed during the afternoon.

Abraham Lincoln.
In the language of the shop, the farm, the boat, the street, or the nursery, he told the high truths that reason and religion taught, and took possession of his audience by a storm of speech, pouring upon them all the riches of his brave plebeian soul, baptizing every head anew; a man who with the people seemed more mob than they, and with kings the most imperial.—Theodore Parker.

Book Lure.

[Written for the Gazette and Transcript.]
The Benedict hung up the receiver and came back into the den.

"It's altogether too bad, Beloved!" he declared.

"Oh, what, Jack?"

"I have to go over to Merton's to discuss the Byfield proposition."

"Night-night, Jack!"

"Yes, I told Merton I'd come any time Mr. Byfield could run up for an evening."

"B—off, won't you please?" urged the Bride.

"I tried to," he confessed, "but Mr. Byfield has to take the midnight back to New York. You know, Beloved," he added as she bade continued to look very much abused, "it will be counted to my credit if I can land the job."

"Of course!" she beamed, springing up in sudden transformation. "I'm wild to have you land it. Be gone, sir! Why do you dally and delay?"

"I did want to set up the new section to-night. Will you let all this clutter stay till I get back?"

"No, Jack. Can't you put the section in place before you go? Then I can be putting the books in while you're away."

"They finished unpacking the section and lifted it to its position in the chimney corner."

"There," announced the Bride, "now it's all ship-shape and I'll have the books re-arranged by the time you get back. I shall be glad to get the poor things in out of the dist. Oh, good-bye. Oh, no! I shall have the best time imaginable."

When he had gone, the Bride began her work of re-adjustment. Certain new books added at Christmas time must be placed beside their fellows of the same sets. Odd volumes could go in anywhere.

They had a pretty good collection, thought the Bride as she handled them lovingly. The sets were increasing every month; Dickens, Scott, Elliott, Van Dyke, Kipling, Stevenson. She opened one or two, and a paragraph here and there, and then—

The Benedict came whistling up the steps at exactly half past eleven. Byfield had proven his right to the cognomen "Bull-bog" with which his enemies honored him. He had, as it were, taken the Benedict by the throat and held on till the last moment. Then, finding himself more than matched, he had succumbed and, cursing softly in admiration, had signed the Benedict's terms.

The Benedict was hastening home to tell the Bride how he had fought and won.

No shout from the den as he opened the door, no patter of footsteps dancing to meet him, no dear white arms about his neck, no kisses to hinder his speech.

Queer little sounds from the den! The Benedict hurried in. All about were the books she had removed to make space; above, the still unoccupied section; and on the rug before a burnt out fire sat the Bride all shaking with sobs.

The Benedict came across to her eagerly. Half way she stopped and laughed. The Bride started up, whereupon "Dombey and Son" went crashing to the floor.

"I take it Little Paul is dying," teased the Benedict.

"Oh, Jack! how can you say it so?"

"How many times does this make?" he asked, ignoring her protest.

"A dozen at least," laughed the Bride through her tears.

"It almost makes me wish," asserted the Benedict, "that I had died in childhood and got myself written into a book, so that" but the rest of this speech was delivered into the palm of a soft little hand and was entirely unintelligible.

RUNS INTO HYDRANT.

Paul F. Landry in Accident at Independence Square, South Weymouth on Tuesday Morning.

A cold water geyser entertained quite a crowd of people for nearly an hour last Tuesday morning in Independence square, South Weymouth. Paul F. Landry, the East Weymouth electrician, in turning his automobile, accidentally struck a hydrant with his machine, breaking the hydrant off near the ground, with the result, that a six inch stream shot 18 feet into the air and continued to play, until Ivers M. Low, superintendent of the water department, who had been notified of the accident by telephone, arrived, and donning a rubber suit, walked into the water and shut off the stream from the broken hydrant.

BOWLING NOTES.

Ladies' Night at C. M. A. Draws Large Gathering of Fair Sex.

Ladies' night at the C. M. A. has become highly popular with the "fair sex" about East Weymouth, a large number being present each Thursday evening to enjoy a few hours at candle pin chasing. Last Thursday night a tournament was started and a prize will be given to the winner in the tournament.

Arthur Cunningham's "Pets" came through in fine style again last Monday night at the C. M. A. when they defeated Dr. Fred L. Doucett's "Patients" all three strings with a grand total of 1290 to 1175 for team 4. Norton F. Pratt rolled the high three string total of the evening with 291, while John Coyle and N. F. Pratt were tied for high single string honors with 102. The teams lined up as follows: team 2, Cann, Newcomb, Denbroeder, Pratt and Cunningham; team 4, Looney, Doucett, Bumpus, Coyle and Stillman.

In the candle pin tournament on the alleys of the Norfolk club at South Weymouth, Tuesday evening, team 1, Warren Philbrick, captain, won from team 6, B. T. Hobart, captain, taking two out of three strings, with a total of 1236 to 1234. B. F. Hobart led with a single of 199 and a three string total of 268 plus.

Sam Robinson of the Norfolk club is hitting the candles in fine shape this year. Sammy wandered into the South Weymouth club alleys last Monday night and in his first string toppled the napes over for 121. Some bowling all right!

Old Colony Club.

The Old Colony Club met yesterday afternoon in the vestry of the Union church in South Weymouth. Rev. R. Perry Bush of Chelsea gave an address on "Panama and the Great Canal." A musical program was given and a social hour held.

Lecture Recital.

Mrs. Daniel Roy Freeman will give a Beethoven lecture on next Wednesday evening in the parish hall of All Souls church Braintree. There is no one who has made greater contributions to the musical achievements of mankind than has Beethoven. Every catalog of the world's representative men must contain his name. His statue is to be found in unnumberable public places. Honored as he is by all discerning persons, very little is popularly known of his life. On Wednesday evening Mrs. Freeman will give an account of Beethoven, the man, and of his place in musical history. She will also explain and play compositions selected from his works.

Tickets for this entertainment may be obtained at the door on Wednesday evening.

All Soul's Church is three minutes from the Braintree station, East, on Elm street.

Universalist Men's Club.

On Monday evening, February 24, in the church vestry, the Universalist Men's club of North Weymouth held a regular meeting.

At 6:45 o'clock, a supper of cold ham, mashed potatoes, egg salad, rolls, plum pudding with hard sauce, coffee and tea, was served.

The speaker of the evening was Robert B. Capen of Newtonville who gave a very interesting address on "The Single Tax."

A business meeting followed and three new members were admitted to the club. The committee in charge of the affair was Mrs. Edwin R. Sampson, Mrs. Joshua P. Hubbard, Mrs. Willis F. Keene, Miss Nellie Powers, Miss Marion Fisher, Miss Lillian Ruggles, Miss S. Lizzie Fisher and Mrs. Richard P. Hesse.

WASHINGTON SOCIAL.

Large Gathering At Colonial Entertainment Held In The Pilgrim Church North Weymouth Last Friday Evening.

The vestry of the Pilgrim church presented a scene of true colonial quaintness on Friday evening, Feb. 21, when nearly 200 people responded to the invitation of the church to the parish for a social in commemoration of Washington's Birthday anniversary. The vestry was converted into an old fashioned living room. Festoons of red, white and blue were hung from the ceilings and American flags and pictures of Washington were in abundance. The furniture consisted of antique tables and chairs a century old. A fire place was built in one corner and candles lighted the room. Ferns and cut flowers added to the beauty of the scene.

In the receiving line in colonial costume were—Rev. and Mrs. Charles Clark, Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Drake, Mr. and Mrs. Job Ferris, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Beane, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Gillmore, Mr. and Mrs. George Beane, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Sidelinger, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Alden, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Gould, Mrs. Ellen O'Neil, Miss Cora Beard and Miss Lillian Curtiss.

A colonial stairway led to the dining room. The pastor welcomed the guests there and refreshments of sandwiches, fancy crackers, coffee and poppermint were served.

During the evening Mr. Hayden presided at the piano. Mrs. Harris of South Weymouth gave several readings and there were vocal solos by Mrs. Merrill of Weymouth Heights.

All joined in the singing of America and during this feature the waitresses waved American flags and the goddess of Liberty was represented by Miss Bertha Dunbar.

The closing number was the singing of old time songs by the entire company.

The committee of arrangements for this occasion was Rev. Charles Clark, Geo. Beane, R. S. Gillmore, Mrs. W. M. Tyler, Mrs. W. E. Beane, Miss Lillian Curtiss, Miss Cora Beard and Miss Lillian Curtiss. Mrs. H. A. Farrington had charge of the refreshments. The entertainment was under the direction of Rev. and Mrs. Clark, Geo. Beane, A. G. Sidelinger and Mrs. A. E. Beals.

TUFTS LIBRARY.

Wells Cathedral.

There are now in the Reading Room pictures of Wells Cathedral. "This Cathedral, though not one of the largest, is considered one of the finest churches in England, and some authorities do not hesitate to give it the first place of all its complete collection of old ecclesiastical buildings making it the most perfect example of a cathedral, with all its parts and appendances. It is situated in the small city of Wells, which has been the seat of a bishop since the 10th century. The church is the chief ornament of the place, and indeed may be said to be the place itself.

The most convenient book of reference is "The Cathedral Church of Wells" by Rev. Percy Dearmer, in Bell's cathedral series," (call number 722.180).

The pictures will remain until March 17.

"The University Girls."

In spite of very poor weather conditions, a good sized gathering was present at the Musical entertainment under the auspices of Willey Lodge 1, O. O. F. of South Weymouth at headquarters last night. The entertainers were "The University Girls," a group of as the entertainers as a South Weymouth audience has had the pleasure to listen to for a long time. All the numbers were well received and encores were given freely by the talented young ladies.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

The column under this title will be given to the people for a free discussion of any and all subjects, the management of the paper distinctly disclaiming all responsibility for the opinions here expressed.

The Editor of the Gazette:

Reminders of the no-license issue have no charm of novelty, but, surely, the novelty of a lie used Weymouth will have no charm, if the well-meaning majority of opposing citizens get careless and fail to record their decisive no. The personal factors involved in the election this year are unusually numerous, and with the naturally increased ballot, will make the division on license more difficult to forecast. For the good name of Weymouth and for the welfare of her people the voters should take nothing for granted, but see to it that a No majority be secured and then demand of the officials a thorough going enforcement.

maker in winter than wear and tear do in summer.

Keep up the general appearance of the farmstead the year around. Don't forget that appearances count when you want to sell out.

Are the patches in the yard bare of grass? After the first thaw sprinkle some red grass seed on them and rake in when the ground gets dry enough. A little white clover, too.

In setting young asparagus in the spring
it should always be done before the shoots start, because the first buds that start are always the strongest, and if these are broken in setting weaker buds have to do the work.

A bright, intelligent man, a good manager and a close observer will save more than his wages in the amount of work he will accomplish, and in maintaining the condition of his team.

Do not consult the almanac in sowing lettuce seed nor mind what passing neighbors may say about being crazy to garden before winter is over. They will be the first ones to admire your very early, large, crisp lettuce leaves, and wonder by what magic luck you managed to have it grow.

The selection of the breeders should really begin at the time of hatching, and the process of elimination of inferior individuals should be continued right up to the time the breeding pens are mated up.
This careful selection means work, close attention to details, but it pays.

At this season of the year, poultrymen are busily engaged in selecting their breeding birds and mating up their pens.
The careful breeder is forehanded in this.
He has been closely watching the develop-
istics of the various individuals, and has long known what birds he will use in his breeding flock this year.

It is for the public good to encourage live stock production. It calls for greater intelligence and skill in the farm laborer and distributes the work more evenly throughout the year. Intensive farms like dairying furnish more work. If we are to have the highest intelligent citizenship, country people must develop standards of living that require the highest type of agriculture, and this is not possible without live stock. For many years consumers were able to buy meat at prices little above the cost of labor in production. Scientific and practical investigation of the high cost of living will not discredit the stock raiser. Let no one be deceived that present high prices are temporary.

BUYING A FARM.

When business is depressed and times are hard, city people are apt to wish themselves settled in the country, and seriously think of buying a farm. It is the universal panacea for pinched pockets and metropolitan misfortunes. Let a merchant fail, and the first thing he proposes is to save money enough out of the wreck to buy a farm. If a broker suspends, or a financier's pretty bubbles break or float away in the air, if a lawyer's clients withdraw their patronage and leave him without briefs—in short, if anybody experiences a business collapse, he immediately turns his thoughts countryward, and as the last and unfailing resource, proposes to buy a farm. It is assumed that anybody can run a farm, as anybody can edit a newspaper, and it is also taken for granted that a farm is a sort of a horse that not only takes care of himself but feeds and clothes his rider.
It does not seem to occur to any of these men that farming is a business requiring special knowledge, experience and skill for successful management, and that the average city man is quite as much out of place and at his wits' ends on a farm, after he has bought it, as he would be at the head of a manufactory or in command of a man-of-war.

Statistics show that there were more Bibles sold in the United States in 1912 than any other book published, millions had been sold in former years and many thousands of them found their way to Weymouth and no doubt some of them were in use on Sunday. The Bible, however, was not the leader last Sunday. On Saturday, we issued from this office 3,500 copies of the Town Report for 1912 and the conclusion is that they were read with interest on the Sabbath day.

Rarely, if ever, in the history of Weymouth has there been so large an array of names to vote for to fill the several town offices for the ensuing year. We do not propose here to advocate any one of these as undoubtedly long since every thinking voter has selected his man for the particular position for which his name stands, and let us all hope the best men for the several positions will receive the required number of votes to elect them. There is, however, one question which is of more importance than the election of this or that man, and that is the question of license. Last year there were 1624 votes cast, and 747 were No, 587 Yes and 290 blanks, a margin of only 160 votes in favor of keeping Weymouth on the no license list of cities and towns, and we put in a little plea here for the 300 men who stopped before they got to the bottom of the list. For the year 1913 go to the last item on the ballot and make an X at No.

To the Voters of Weymouth.

For three successive years you have made me your candidate for Selectman and Overseer of the Poor and have approved that candidacy by a liberal support and election at the polls. I now take this opportunity of thanking you for that support and as I have endeavored to do all that was in me to promote the best interest of Weymouth, I hope for a continuance of your support at the coming election and it elected will, to the best of my ability, fill the position.

Yours truly,

WRESTLING MEET.

ARTHUR G. MATHER.

EX N. E. CHAMPION A. A. U. WRESTLER.

The wrestling tournament at the Clapp Memorial, East Weymouth, tomorrow night, should prove to be one of the best meets of the winter. Physical Director Fabyan announced that he has received entries from nearly fifty different associations in the vicinity.

Arthur G. Mather of Boston, Ex-New England Champion A. A. U. wrestler, will referee the bouts, and as he knows the game from A to Z, should give complete satisfaction. — Advertisement.

Too Many Babies Born?

Can we not see, right here in our own surroundings, that altogether too many babies are born now? Better by far fewer babies, and these well fed, well clothed, well cared for physically, morally and mentally—if we would expect a strong, hardy race. If race suicide is ever checked it will not be by bringing into the world ill-fed, poorly clothed, worse fathered children, but rather by well-directed efforts to save the children who die unnecessarily.—Dr. George T. Finch, in Leslie's.

Musical Family.

Stiggins—"Are there any musicians in your family?" Wiggins—"Rather! Why, my father is an adept at blowing his own horn, and mother is equally expert at harping on one string; main-law has to play second fiddle, and Aunt Tabitha leads a humdrum existence; grandpa gives a solo on his nasal organ every night, without the stops; uncle spends his time wetting his whistle; Harry is fond of his pipe, and Gerty is forever ringing the changes on her admirers."

When James R. Keene Laid For Him a Big Bet on Besom.

Although James R. Keene was known as the nerviest of Wall street operators, he was anything but a betting man on the race tracks. He dearly loved to win valuable stakes, and he won nearly everything in this line except the classic English Derby. His horses rarely carried anything but an infinitesimal wager. Big wagers were few and far between with him.

One day when his Ben Brush colt Besom was making his racing debut at Sheephead Mr. Keene visited the paddock in company with his trainer, Jimmy Rowe, and inspected the colt minutely. Keene was very fond of Noonday, the colt's dam, and he talked proudly of his expectations of Besom. The colt had worked exceptionally fast, and the race looked as sure as sure things can be regarded on a race track.

The result of the conference with Rowe was that Mr. Keene decided to make one of his rare large bets on Besom to win. The news of the Keene wager created almost a sensation in the ring, and the price against the colt went tumbling.

The race was run, and Besom lost by an eyelash. He went out with Berry Maid, and the two raced stride for stride like a team. When it was Besom's turn to stride his nose showed in front, and when it was Berry Maid's turn she showed a scant advantage.

So it was all the way, Mr. Keene watching the contest through his field-glasses without a murmur. The crowd was on its toes. As they passed the judges it was Berry Maid's turn to stride. Then the apple of Mr. Keene's eye at the time lost the verdict, and the vice chairman of the Jockey club lost one of his few wagers on the turf. —New York World.

All Settled.

Here is a rather neat story of the way in which a very shy (or proud) man made a "proposal." He bought a wedding-ring, sent it to the lady (whose finger he knew by heart), and with it enclosed a sheet of notepaper with the brief question: "Does it fit?" By return post he received the more laconic, though syllabically longer, reply: "Beautifully."

MEN'S FURNISHINGS
 IT is a self-evident truth that the thoroughly well-dressed man is never conspicuous in his appearance. Your attention is attracted by the absence of jar—which on closer analysis, proves to be correctness of detail. The faultless style and perfect harmonizing of the minor accessories of dress contribute quite as much to the general effect as does the suit itself. They give the finishing touches. It is a great help to have such a fine Men's Furnishing Store as this to fall back upon with its carefully selected stocks of whatever a man needs from Shirts and Scarfs to Suspenders and Collars.

Somewhat Ambiguous.
 The banquet hall was adorned with many beautiful paintings, and the president of the little college was called upon to respond to a toast. Wishing to pay a compliment to the ladies present he designated the paintings with an eloquent gesture and said: "What need is there of these painted beauties when we have so many with us at the table?"

A PEEP AT IRELAND.

Where the Weather Plagues You Only to Fascinate You Later.
 I must allow that it sometimes rains in Ireland, but Irish rain is not quite like other rain. It is, as a rule, softer than rain elsewhere, and if the truth must be told I like rain so long as one has not to say, "For the rain it raineth every day."

Irish weather is not so much enigmatic as coquettish. It likes to plague you, if but to prepare you to enjoy the more its sunny, melting mood. It will weep and wail all night, and, lo, the next morning Ireland is one sweet smile and seems to say: "Is it raining I was yesterday? Ah, then I'll rain no more."

And the rimeless leap and laugh, and the pastures and very stone walls glisten; the larks carol on their celestial journey; there is a pungent, healthy smell of drying peat; the mountains are all dimpled with the joy of life and sunshine; the lake lies perfectly still, content to reflect the overhanging face of heaven, and just won't your honor buy the stoutest pair of homemade hose from a barefoot, bareheaded daughter of de-throned kings with eyes like dewdrops and a voice that would charm the coin out of the most churlish purse?

If on such mornings as these you do not lose your heart to Ireland it must be made of stern, unimpressionable stuff indeed.—Blackwood's Magazine

Edible Flowers of Butter Trees.
 By far the most remarkable of edible flowers is that culled from the butter tree of India. The blossoms of this singular tree are the chief means of subsistence with the hills and other Indian hill tribes. An average tree yields from 200 to 350 pounds of pulpy, bell shaped flowers that, when they drop off during March and April, the hot months of the Indian year, are eagerly gathered by the natives. They have when fresh a peculiar and luscious taste, but the fragrance of them is not pleasant and is best, and most briefly described as "mousy." Usually they are cured in the sun, shrivel to one-fourth of their size and then resemble nothing so much as raisins. The natives prepare them for food by boiling or using them in sweetmeats.—Suburban Life Magazine

The Potato.
 Whoever may have introduced the potato into England, according to Dr. Dornan's "Table Traits," it was not known in North America in 1586, when Raleigh's colonists there are said to have sent it over to us. But the Spanish "batata," or sweet potato, from which the vegetable derives its name, was brought to Ireland many years before by Captain Hawkins from Santa Fe, in South America. This is probably the potato of Shakespeare's time "Let the sky rain potatoes. I will remain here!" cries Sir John Falstaff, embracing Mrs. Ford.—London Telegraph

A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST

By GENE STRATTON-PORTER

CHAPTER XXV.

Wherein Edith Carr Wages a Battle and Hart Henderson Stands Guard.

ANY people looked, a few followed, as Edith Carr slowly came down the main street of Mackinac, pausing here and there to note the glow of color in one small booth after another, overflowing with curios.

She turned at the little street leading down to the dock and went out to meet the big lake steamer plunging up the straits from Chicago. Past the landing place, on to the very end of the pier she went, then sat down, leaning against a dock support and closed her tired eyes.

"Did you have a successful trip?" she asked.

"I accomplished my purpose. Edith, I saw some one today in the Lake Shore private hospital."

"An accident?"

"No. Nervous and physical breakdown."

"Phil said he was going back to the Limberlost."

"He went. He was there three weeks, but the strain broke him. He has an old letter in his hands that he has handled until it is ragged. He held it up to me and said, 'You can see for yourself that she says she will be well and happy, but we can't know until we see her again, and that may never be. She may have gone too near that place her father went down, some of that Limberlost gang may have found her in the forest. She may lie dead in some city morgue this instant waiting for me to find her body.'"

"Hart, for pity's sake stop!"

"I can't," cried Henderson desperately. "I am forced to tell you. They are fighting brain fever. He did go back to the swamp and he prowled it night and day. The days down there are hot now, and the nights wet with dew and cold. He paid no attention and forgot his food. A fever started, and his uncle brought him home. They've never had a word from her or found a trace of her. Mrs. Comstock thought she had gone to O'More's at Grand Rapids, so when Phil got sick she telegraphed there. They had been gone all summer, so her mother is as anxious as Phil."

"The O'Mores are here," said Edith. "I haven't seen any of them, because I haven't gone out much in the few days since we came, but this is their summer home."

"Edith, they say at the hospital that it will take careful nursing to save Phil. He says he will stay there just two days longer. The doctors say he will kill himself when he goes. He is a sick man. Edith. His hands are burning and shaky and his breath was hot against my face."

"Why are you telling me?" It was a cry of acute anguish.

"He thinks you know where she is."

"I do not. I haven't an idea."

"He said it was something you said to her that made her go."

"That may be, but it doesn't prove that I know where she went."

Henderson looked across the water and suffered keenly. At last he turned to Edith and laid a firm, strong hand over hers.

"Edith," he said, "do you realize how serious this is?"

"I suppose I do."

"Do you want as fine a fellow as Phil driven any further? If he leaves that hospital now and goes out to the exposure and anxiety of a search for her there will be a tragedy that no after regrets can avert. Edith, what did you say to Miss Comstock that made her run away from Phil?"

"I told her Phil was mine! That if he were away from her an hour and back in my presence he would be to me as he always had been."

"Edith, do you believe that now?"

The beautiful head barely moved in negation. Henderson gathered both her hands in one of his and stretched an arm across her shoulders to the post to support her. She dragged her hands from him and twisted them together.

"No! I do not believe it now! I know it is not true! I killed his love for me. It is dead and gone forever. Nothing will revive it—nothing in all this world!"

She dropped back against his arm exhausted. Henderson held her and learned what suffering truly means. He fanned her with his hat, rubbed her cold hands and murmured broken, incoherent things. By and by great slow tears slipped from under her closed lids, but when she opened them her eyes were dull and hard.

Henderson thrust his handkerchief into her fingers and whispered, "Edith, the boat has been creeping up. It's very near. Maybe some of our crowd are on it. Hadn't we better get away from here before it lands?"

"If I can walk," she said. "Oh, I am so dead tired, Hart!"

"Yes, dear," said Henderson soothingly. "Just try to get past the landing before the boat anchors. If I only dared carry you!"

They struggled through the waiting masses, but directly opposite the landing there was a backward movement in the happy, laughing crowd, the gang plank came down with a slam and people began hurrying from the boat. Crowded against the fish house on the dock Henderson could only advance a few steps at a time. He was straining every nerve to protect and assist Edith.

Henderson shot a swift glance toward the boat. Terrence O'More just had stepped from the gangplank, escorting a little daughter, so like him, it was comical. There followed a picture not easy to describe. The Angel in the full flower of her beauty, richly dressed, a laugh on her cameo face, the setting sun glinting on her gold hair, escorted by her eldest son, who held her hand tightly and carefully watched her steps. Next came Elinora, dressed with equal richness, a trifle taller and slenderer, almost the same type of coloring, but with different eyes and hair, facial lines and expression.

As the crowd pressed around the party an opening was left beside the fish sheds. Edith ran down the dock. Henderson sprang after her, catching her arm and assisting her to the street. "Help me!" she cried, clinging to him. He put his arm around her, almost carrying her out of sight into a little cove walled by high rocks at the back, where there was a clean floor of white sand, and logs washed from the lake for seats. He found one of these with a back rest, and hurrying down to the water he soaked his handkerchief and carried it to her. She passed it across her lips, over her eyes.

"Hart, what makes you?" she said wearily. "My mother doesn't care. She says this is good for me. Do you think this is good for me, Hart?"

"Edith, you know I would give my life if I could save you this," he said, and could not speak further.

He held her carefully, softly fanning her. She was suffering almost more than either of them could bear.

"I wish your boat was here," she said at last. "I want to sail fast with the wind in my face."

"There is no wind. I can get my motor around in a few minutes."

"Then get it."

"Lie on the sand. I can phone from the first booth. It won't take but a little while."

Edith lay on the white sand and Henderson covered her face with her hat. Then he ran to the nearest booth and talked imperatively. Presently he was back, bringing a hot drink that was stimulating. Shortly the motor ran close to the beach and stopped. Henderson's servant brought a row-boat ashore and took them to the launch.

Hour after hour the boat ran up and down the shore. The moon arose and the night air grew very chilly. Henderson put on an overcoat and piled more covers on Edith.

"You must take me home," she said at last. "The folks will be uneasy."

He was compelled to take her to the cottage with the battle still raging. He went back early the next morning, but already she had wandered out over the island. Instinctively Henderson felt that the shore would attract her. There was something in the tumult of rough little Huron's waves that called to him. It was there he found her, crouching so close the water foam was dampening her skirts.

"May I stay?" he asked.

"I have been hoping you would come," she answered. "It's bad enough when you are here, but it is a little easier than hearing it alone."

"Of course you know there is something I have got to do, Hart! Will you go with me?"

"Of course."

"I might as well give up and get it over," she faltered.

"That was the first time in her life that Edith Carr ever had proposed to give up anything she wanted."

"Help me, Hart!"

Henderson started around the beach, assisting her all he could. Finally he stopped.

"Edith, there is no sense in this! You are too tired to go. You know you can trust me. You wait in any of these lovely places and send me. You will be safe, and I'll run. One word is all that is necessary."

"But I've got to say that word myself, Hart!"

"Then write it and let me carry it. The message is not going to prove who went to the office and sent it."

"That is quite true," she said dropping wearily, but she made no movement to take the pen and paper he offered.

"Hart, you write it," she said at last.

Henderson turned away his face. He gripped the pen, while his breath sucked ed between his dry teeth.

"Certainly!" he said when he could speak. "Mackinac, Aug. 27. Philip Ammon, Lake Shore hospital, Chicago." He paused with suspended pen and glanced at Edith. Her white lips were working, but no sound came.

"Miss Comstock is at Terrence O'More's, on Mackinac island," prompted Henderson.

Edith nodded.

"Signed, Henderson," continued the big man.

Edith shook her head.

"Say, 'She is well and happy,' and sign, Edith Carr!" she panted.

"Not on your life!" flashed Henderson.

"For the love of mercy, Hart, don't make this any harder! It is the least I can do, and it takes every ounce of strength in me to do it."

"Will you wait for me here?" he asked.

She nodded, and, pulling his hat lower over his eyes, Henderson ran around the shore. In less than an hour he was back. That evening they were sailing down the straits before a stiff breeze and Henderson was busy with the tiller when she said to him, "Hart, I want you to do something more for me. I want you to go away."

"Very well," he said quietly, but his face whitened visibly.

"You say that as if you had been expecting it."

"I have. I knew from the beginning that when this was over you would dislike me for having seen you suffer. Does it make any difference to you where I go?"

"I want you where you will be loved and good care taken of you."

"Thank you," said Henderson, smiling grimly. "Have you any idea where such a spot might be found?"

"It should be with your sister at Los Angeles. She always has seemed very fond of you."

"That is quite true," said Henderson, his eyes brightening a little. "I will go to her. When shall I start?"

"At once."

Henderson began to tack for the landing, but his hands shook until he scarcely could manage the boat. Edith Carr sat watching him indifferently, but her heart was throbbing painfully.

"Why is there so much suffering in the world?" she kept whispering to herself. Inside her door Henderson took her by the shoulders almost roughly.

"For how long is this, Edith, and how are you going to say goodbye to me?"

She raised tired, pain filled eyes to his.

"I don't know for how long it is," she said. "If peace ever comes and I want you I won't wait for you to find it out yourself—I'll cable—Marconi graph—anything."

Henderson studied her intently.

"In that case we will shake hands," he cried. "Goodby, Edith. Don't forget that every hour I am thinking of you and hoping all good things will come to you soon."

CLAPP MEMORIAL BEATEN.

North Abington Y. M. C. A. Intermediates Have Little Trouble in Defeating East Weymouth Quintet.

In the North Abington Y. M. C. A. gymnasium last Saturday evening the fast North Abington Y. M. C. A. Intermediates easily defeated the Clapp Memorial Association five by the score of 48 to 22. The C. M. A. were without the services of Captain Ralph Curtin and with Flannery playing under the handicap of injuries, the East Weymouth boys did not show the snap and fight they usually display. Tucker, left forward for North Abington was the star of the game with nine baskets, while Schutz, Bumpus and Warrin excelled for the Clapp quintet. This defeat sustained by Clapp puts the North Abington five and the C. M. A. team in a tie for first place in the South Shore league. The summary:

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is a least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, the only destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Following Are a Few of the Items Which Appeared in the Gazette Years Ago This Week.

THIRTY-SEVEN YEARS AGO.

We learn that the fair of the Catholic Society of Weymouth netted between $4,000 and $5,000. The fair of the Universalist Society at North Weymouth yielded $180 gross receipts.

The matter of widening, straightening and otherwise improving Broad street, in East Weymouth, has been brought before the County Commissioners, who will give a hearing to all interested the 5th of April, according to announcement.

The agent of the Mass. Board of Education stated to one of our primary school teachers that, in all the towns he had visited this year, he had found only one where the teachers of the lower grades received so small pay as in this town.

For some time past the people of Old Spain have been agitated with a view of separation from the town. A call for a meeting was issued, and in response to the same about 100 citizens assembled in Webster hall, on Monday evening, Feb. 28, the results of which, though to a certain extent informal, were highly gratifying.

A walking match took place in the shop of M. C. Dizer & Co. last Tuesday noon. Peter Noonan challenged William Pratt to walk a mile, but was defeated, Mr. Pratt walking the mile in 10m 10s., and Mr. Noonan in 10 m. 25s.

Query.—Four Weymouth residents on Walnut avenue are very anxious to know how it is that it is not as easy for the proper officials to find their respective homes to deliver the town schedules, as it is when tax bills are to be presented.—Howard.

At the semi-annual meeting of the C. T. A. & L. A., the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—President, John A. Connell; vice president, Daniel E. Looney; secretary, Henry T. McIntosh; treasurer, John Fennell; corresponding secretary, Wm. J. McCarthy; standing committee, Robert McIntosh, T. A. Boyle, Jas. O. Donovan and John A. Connell.

The Union Medical and Surgical Association held its annual meeting at the office of Dr. Fay, East Weymouth, January 30. The officers elected for the ensuing year are:—President, Dr. G. W. Fay, East Weymouth; vice president, Dr. T. A. Gordon, Quincy; secretary and treasurer, Dr. J. W. Spooner, Hingham; corresponding secretary, Dr. R. E. Brown, North Weymouth. The annual address was given by Dr. Fay.

Haydn's Creation was performed by the Weymouth Singing Society last Sunday evening, at Clapp's Hall. A cello has been added, which makes the orchestra still more effective. The solos were ably sustained, and the duet, "Graceful Consort," by Mrs. Jennie Worster and Mr. C. H. Webb, was sung in splendid style. The trio in "The Heavens are Telling," was sung extraordinarily well, and the singers should rank among the best of our native talent.

A parish meeting at the Universalist church before many days, will be the outcome of Rev. Mr. Bowles' resignation, which takes effect May 1.

The sentiment in favor of a division of the town is growing in South Weymouth. The feeling is, that Wards 4 and 5 would make a town of fair size, whose natural boundaries might be well defined.

Vote for no-license on Monday, whether you vote for the $2,500 appropriation or not. There may be arguments against the latter, but our citizens should poll a heavy no-license vote. The polls open at 9 o'clock and will probably close at 1.

Sunday evening at the Union church several gentlemen from other parts of the town will address the citizens of South Weymouth on the subject of temperance. This most vexed question of our social and political economy, is worthy of the careful consideration of every voter.

Monday Club.

Monday afternoon, March 3d, at Odd Fellows hall, East Weymouth, will be "Education" afternoon for the ladies of the Monday club. Miss A. Lillian McGregor is chairman of the committee for this afternoon and has been most fortunate in securing Mrs. William C. Brown, chairman of the education committee of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's clubs, who will speak on the subject Education, in its various phases, but will make as her prominent factor, "The Moving Picture Show."

A chorus from the Weymouth High school under the leadership of Mr. Calderwood will furnish music. This day also is to be observed as "Endowment Day" and it is hoped the ladies will come prepared to give on this fund, "liberally."

THE GREAT POND QUESTION.

Editor of Gazette,—

In spite of the fact that state laws, board of health regulations and public welfare demand every possible protection for our water supply, the agitation is again renewed to restore Great Pond and its surroundings to the mercy of real estate speculators and private inclinations. Two articles appear in the town warrant; one, asking for a road survey to open up private land around the shore, and the other seeking to restore boating and fishing at the pond. Both of these articles have a mild and innocent look and are not particularly harmful in themselves. But they are dangerous for this reason—they both encourage the building of gaming stands, shanties, camps, and chicken-yards in the Great Pond watershed. Remove the restrictions on boating, and hundreds of resorts, many of them undesirable, would line the shore.

Further along in the warrant we find a third article asking the town to appropriate $40,000 for a filter bed; no doubt to repair the damage caused by the other two articles previously mentioned. Truly the ingenuity displayed in these articles is worthy of a better cause. We must first suffer the pollution of the water and then pay $40,000 to encourage this pollution. This looks like adding insult to injury. The town as a whole cannot afford to pay this immense sum in order that 75 people can have an excuse for removing all restrictions.

The public is becoming tired of this agitation. While the town controls the water, the land surrounding the pond is still in the hands of private owners. Just so long as this state of affairs remains, the agitation for unrestricted privileges will continue. Public and private rights are bound to conflict. The time has come when the public should own the Great Pond surroundings as well as the water itself.

Year after year, private dwellings with accompanying back-yard cesspools creep nearer and nearer to the pond. One by one the stately pine groves which once surrounded the lake are being cut away. Of the once splendid pine forest stretching from Pond street to the water's edge and known to old-timers as Chelsea Grove, little remains but a stumpy cow pasture. The sight-seer who wishes to follow old Indian trails around the shore is confronted on every side by wire fences and "No trespass" signs, erected by the self-same private owners who clamor for more privileges for themselves.

While Weymouth is sleeping, what should be a beautiful public reservation is being robbed of its picturesqueness. Lake Wessagusset and its surroundings, once the equal of any in the state for natural beauty, is fast losing that distinction.

What can we do to preserve for all the people this natural park? The town could purchase the surrounding land and would be well repaid for so doing, but as this would cost a large sum the plan would meet with much opposition. However a better way is available.

Weymouth is a part of the Metropolitan Park District and has paid thousands of dollars in Metropolitan Park taxes; the total amount being $38,191.05. While we go on sleeping, and paying for reservations in various parts of the district, other towns ask and receive a share in these public parks. Not one cent has ever been expended in Weymouth by the Park Commission for a public reservation. It is time that we received some share in this good work.

The town, through its representative, should introduce a bill into the legislature asking for a Metropolitan reservation and highway around Great Pond. The town would have the benefit of a public park with state assistance. At some future time connections could be made with the Blue Hill Reservation via Cranberry Pond and to our North Weymouth Shore line through the wooded center of the town.

Such a bill would serve a fourfold useful purpose. It would forever protect our water supply; it would preserve and restore the beauty of the pond surroundings; it would provide a splendid public park; and it would forever clamp the lid on that town-warrant-jack-in-the-box, the cry for a do-as-you-please-policy at the pond.

This reservation and the proposed public landing at North Weymouth would go a long way towards making Weymouth attractive and up-to-date. What say you gentlemen of the "Board of Trade?"

Advertisement. Mrs. Mary Chandler, widow of Nathaniel Chandler, died at the home of her daughter, Saturday, aged 84. She is survived by her daughter, Mrs. Mary Gove of this town, and two sons, Frederick H. Chandler of this town, and Freeman Chandler of Jefferson City, Mo. The funeral took place from the residence of her daughter on Prospect street, Wednesday afternoon and was conducted by Rev. Robert H. Cochran. Interment was in the family lot at Village cemetery. Mrs. Franklin P. Whitten sang at the meeting of the Ladies' Library Association at Randolph Tuesday evening. Roger, son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Pray, is ill with typhoid fever. Mrs. Charles Brooks of Hobart street was operated on for appendicitis at the Boothby hospital, Boston, Saturday, and is reported as getting along nicely. Lawrence Caulfield who has been seriously ill with the grip, is now much improved. Elbridge G. Tirrell died Saturday. Deceased was a life long resident of this town. He was a son of the late Elbridge G. and Sophia Bates Tirrell. He was born in April 1833. He is survived by his brother, Reuben Tirrell and a sister, Mrs. Elbridge Richards. The funeral took place from the residence of his nephew, Robert Nash on Broad street, Tuesday afternoon. The service was conducted by Rev. Rufus H. Dix, pastor of the Universalist church. The interment was in the family lot at Old North cemetery. The two and one half year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Bean of Washington street, died Monday after a week's illness of pneumonia. The funeral took place Tuesday. The burial was at Dedham. George Billings, son of the late John Billings, who has been employed in the land office in the U. S. Interior Department at Clayton, New Mexico, for the past four years, died suddenly in that place last Friday, aged 26. Deceased was well known here, being a resident of Walnut avenue for years. Funeral services will be held on Saturday morning at St. John's church, Quincy.

Advertisement. Don't forget the dancing school ball in the Town Hall To night. Advertisement. The Choral Society held a well attended rehearsal of "Joan of Arc" at the Clapp Memorial building last Monday night. The Inasmuch Circle of King's Daughters met last evening with Mrs. W. C. Earle of High street. Rev. James Flannery of St. Ann's church, Neponset, preached the Lenten sermon at the Immaculate Conception church last Tuesday evening. Mrs. Joseph Connors and daughter, Gertrude, were the guests over Sunday of Mrs. Robert Shaw of Central Square. H. K. Cushing has purchased a large four-ton auto truck for use in his express business. Mrs. William Kierstead of Lowell has been visiting her mother, Mrs. R. F. Shaw this week. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cunningham of Middle street are entertaining Raymond Ede of Fairhaven this week. Dan Howley left town last Sunday night for Philadelphia, where he joined the baseball squad of the Philadelphia National league club, which left on Tuesday for Southern Pines, North Carolina, arriving at the training camp on Wednesday. Dan reported to Manager Charles Doolin in the shape and is expected to give a good account of himself during the next few weeks of the training season. Miss Ruth Bearce celebrated her eighteenth birthday last Saturday evening at the home of her aunt, Miss Jennie Bearce of Broad street, by entertaining a number of friends. Games, music and refreshments were enjoyed during the evening. Paul B. Mulready, Morris Mullen and E. F. Fitzgerald, local railroad men, enjoyed a fishing trip to Hudson a few days the first of the week. The trio have a fine supply of stories concerning the fish they caught and all enjoyed the trip to the utmost. J. Edward Mulligan and Louis Lebbosiore of Weymouth Council, K. of C. were among the large number to receive the fourth degree of the order at the special meeting in Boston last Sunday. Mrs. Edward Cote and children of Holbrook were the guests over Sunday of Mrs. Cote's mother, Mrs. Margaret Looney of Broad street. The Ladies' Auxiliary of Division 9, A. O. H., attended a mass for Mrs. Margaret Donahue at the church of the Immaculate Conception last Sunday morning. Thomas F. White of this place, chairman of the democratic town committee, will leave tomorrow for Washington, D. C., to attend the inauguration of President-elect Wilson. The Fairmont Cemetery Circle will meet next Thursday afternoon, March 6, with Mrs. Charles R. Denbroeder of Broad street. In observance of their three birthdays, all of which come in this week, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Flint and Mrs. Sadie Plaisted of Commercial street, entertained a gathering of friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Flint on Wednesday evening. A musical program was enjoyed and a delicious luncheon served. Mrs. H. K. Cushing of Hill street is entertaining Mrs. Ida Burrell of Brockton this week. Congregational Church Notes. The members of the Ladies' Social Union are planning an Old Folks' Concert to be given in the church about the first of April under the direction of Mrs. T. H. Emerson. Rehearsals have begun with a chorus of fifty voices and the program promises to be one of unusual interest. The regular bi-monthly Communion service will be held in connection with the morning service on Sunday, when a large number of young people and others will be received into the membership of the church. A most interesting meeting is being planned by the Young People's Society for Sunday Evening when Mrs. Mark McCulley will give an impersonation of "The Story of a Hindu Widow." Mrs. McCulley will appear in costume and relate the sad experiences of one of India's child-widows. The service will be held in the chapel at 7 o'clock and will take the place of both the Young People's and the regular evening service. There will be special music, and every one is invited. The Home Missionary Society will hold its March meeting in the Chapel, Friday the 7th at three o'clock. Miss Ona Evans Field Sec. of the W. H. M. A. will make an address. All ladies cordially invited.

Union Church Notes. Mr. John H. Scott gave an exceedingly interesting talk to the Sunday School of the Union Congregational Church last Sunday. His subject was the Social Settlement work at Newcastle on Tyne in England. Mr. Scott has been connected with this settlement work for the past few years, his specialty being work among boys, his thorough knowledge of his subject and his informal manner made the address not only instructive but very enjoyable. The Communion service and Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be celebrated next Sunday morning, March 2d, at the close of the morning worship. The Ladies' Benevolent Society will hold its regular meeting on Wednesday, March 5, in the church parlor at 2:30 o'clock. A full attendance is requested. The regular monthly supper of the Social club will be held in the banquet room of the church on Wednesday evening, March 5, at 6:30 o'clock. After the supper, which will be in charge of a committee of ladies under the chairmanship of Mrs. Charles Jordan, there will be an illustrated lecture in the main auditorium by Ernest M. Vaughn on "California." All members of the Social club and parish and their friends are cordially invited. The Teacher Training Class meets every Friday evening in the church parlors at 7:30 o'clock. These meetings under the leadership of Mr. Wischnider of Boston University are very helpful and interesting.

Have Enjoyed Long Life. Living in the Isle of Light is a family of three brothers and two sisters who are all in receipt of the old age pension, and whose combined ages total 387 years. The veteran of the family is Mrs. Ann Harris of Cowes, aged eighty-four; the "baby" of the family is Mr. Robert Butt of Niton, who has seen only seventy-two summers.

Cats Killed for Pelts? Thirty cats, kept by the Paris custom house authorities to destroy the rats, which do great damage to the goods, disappeared mysteriously a few nights ago. It is thought they were killed for their pelts on account of the great rise in the market price of skins which are used in the manufacture of fashionable furs.

Woman's Sense of Honor. On this point women are still not entirely in agreement. "Sense of honor?" said one young woman to whom the question was brought up: "Women's sense of honor? They haven't any." On the other hand, an older lady—one who is wise through long and sweet living—answered: "Sense of honor? Of course women have it—as high as any man's. Only—I should want to choose my woman." Where, then, does the truth lie?—Atlantic.
