DEDICATION

This book is dedicated as a matter of habit. Not to the men who have gone before us, nor to the men who must surely come after us. Rather it is dedicated to the rigors of Cadet Training. Not to the romance of high adventure—we leave that to the advertisements—but to the great depths of despair, of failure and near failure, to the anguish, both mental and physical that has been our lot from Classification to Graduation. Let's dedicate it too, to the man who leafs thru this book ten years from now, when time has taken the sharp edge off our bitter experiences, and they are obscured in the midst of memory. Then, will the true value of our efforts be known, and perhaps we can see more clearly the why and wherefore of the things we have done.

COLONEL JOHN H. BUNDY
Commanding Officer

TO THE CLASS OF 43-H:

You're on your own now so go out there and show us what you've got. Just remember that the future of our country rests upon you and others like you and we feel confident that it has been placed in strong and capable hands. Wherever you may go from here, you will always carry with you our best wishes for the successful completion of all your missions.

John H. Bundy

TO THE CLASS OF 43-H:

We, the Officers, Enlisted and Civil Service Personnel of the Aviation Cadet Detachment, are proud to have had the pleasure of working with you during your Advanced Training here. We hope that we have helped you to bridge that final gap existing between the Cadet and Officer status.

Continue to demonstrate the vigorous enthusiasm and eager determination that you displayed here. We feel that you will justify the confidence placed in you as Officers and Fighter Pilots of the Army Air Forces.

Congratulations and the best of luck!
