POETRY.

Letters from Home.

BY RICHARD REALF.
Letters from my father's household,
Isled amid the surging sea:
Swift-winged messenger of gladness,
Bearing rest and peace to me!
Father's calm and sacred counsel,
Mother's large and shining tears,
And my sister's brimming feelings,
Flung to me across the spheres!
O! the dear and loving letters!
Oh! my childhood's thronging dreams!
Oh! the ancient low-roofed cottage,
With its quaint old oaken beams!
O! the haunts among the meadows,
And the moss-grown garden seat,
Where the scented apple blossoms
Swept in waves about my feet.
And I sit and muse upon it,
Till I seem to see it all:
See the rich grape's purple clusters
Drooping from the leafy wall;
See the mellow peach ripening,
Breathe the breath of blossomed flowers,
Watch the steady house-clock marking
All the pulses of the hours.
Father's hair is growing whiter,
Mother's step is feebler now;
But the old seraphic beauty
Lingers yet on her meek brow.
And the low sweet tones that thrilled me,
And the lips I used to press—
O! the yeas can never waken them
From their lonely tenderness.
And the flashing eyes of laughter,
And the speech of merry scorn,
And the rippling Auburn ringlets
Of our household's youngest-born—
Very gently they have deepened,
To the glory and the grace
Of a tranquil maiden, moving
Thoughtfully amid the place.
Letters from my father's household,
Isled amid the surging sea:
Swift-winged messengers of gladness,
Bearing rest and peace to me!
Let the foaming world tear onward—
Let the sinless children play,
And the young bride clasp her husband;
I am wealthiest to-day.

Obeying Orders.

A STORY OF THE BATTLE FIELD.

A French veteran with one arm was seated before the door of his neat cottage, one pleasant evening in July.
He was surrounded by several village lads, who with one voice entreated him to commence his promised story. The old man took his pipe from his mouth, wiped his lips with the back of his remaining hand, and began thus:
In my time, boys, Frenchmen would have scorned to fight with Frenchmen in the streets as they do now. No, no; when we fought, it was for the honor of France, and against her enemies. Well my story begins with the 9th of November, 1812, a short time after the battle of Waizoa.
We were beating a retreat, not before the Russians, for they kept a respectable distance from our cantonments, but before the biting cold of their detestable country, more terrible to us than Russians, Austrians and Bavarians put together. For the last few days our officers had been telling us that we were approaching Smolensko, where we could be certain of finding food, fire and shoes; but in the meantime we were perishing in the ice, and perpetually harassed by bands of Cossack riders.
We had marched about six hours, without pausing to take breath, for we knew repose was certain death. A bitter wind hurled snowflakes against our faces, and now and then we stumbled over the corpse of our frozen comrades. No singing or talking! Even the grumblers ceased to complain, and that was a bad sign.
I walked behind my captain; he was a short man, strongly built, rugged and severe, but brave and true as his own sword-blade. We called him Captain Positive, for when he once said a thing, so it was—no appeal; he never changed his mind. He had been wounded at Waizoa, and his usually red face was now quite pale, while the pieces of an old white handkerchief, which he had wrapped around his legs, were soaked with blood. I saw him first move slowly, then stagger like a drunken man, and at last he fell down like a block.
"Parbleu! Captain," said I, bending over him, "you can't lie there."
"You see that I can, because I do," replied he, pointing to his limbs.
"Captain," said I, "you mustn't die thus," and raising him in my arms, I managed to place him on his feet. He leaned on me and tried to walk, but in vain; he fell once more, dragging me with him.
"Jean," said he, "tis all over. Just leave me here and join your columns as quickly as you can. One word before you go; at Vereppe, near Grenoble, lives a good woman, eighty-four years old, my—my mother. Go to her, embrace her, and tell her that—that—tell her what you like, but give her this purse and my cross. That's all."
"Is that all, Captain?"
"I said so. Good by, and haste."
Boys, I don't know how it was, but I felt two tears freezing on my cheeks.

"No, Captain," cried I. "I won't leave you—either you shall come with me, or I will stay with you."
"I forbid yo staying."
"Captain, you might as well forbid a woman's talking."
"If I escape I'll punish you severely."
"You may place me under arrest then, but just now you must let me do as I please."
"You're an insolent fellow."
"Very likely, Captain, but you must come with me."
He bit his lip with anger, but said no more. I raised him and placed his body across my shoulders like a sack. You may easily imagine that while bearing such a burden I could not move as fast as my comrades. Indeed, I soon lost sight of their columns, and could perceive nothing but the white, silent plain around me.
I moved on, and presently there appeared a band of Cossacks galloping toward me, their lances in rest, and shouting their fiendish war cry.
The Captain was by this time in a state of total unconsciousness, and I resolved, cost what it might, not to abandon him.
I laid him on the ground, covered him with snow, and then crept under a heap of my dead comrades, taving, however, my eyes at liberty. Soon the Cossacks reacted us, and began striking with their lances right and left, while the horses trampled the bodies.
Presently one of these rude beasts placed his foot on my left arm and crushed it to pieces. Boys, I did not say a word; I did not move, save to thrust my right hand into my mouth, to keep down the cry of torture, and in a few minutes the Cossacks disappeared.

When the last of them had ridden off, I crept out and managed to disinter the Captain. He showed few signs of life; nevertheless, I contrived with one hand to drag him toward a rock which offered a sort of shelter, and then lay down next to him, wrapping my capote around me.
Night was closing in, and the snow continued to fall. The last of the regiments had long disappeared, and the only sound that broke the silence were the whistling of distant bullets and the nearer howling of the wolves, which were devouring the dead bodies.
God knows what things were passing in my bosom that night, which I thought would be my last on earth. But I remembered the prayer my mother had taught me long ago, when I was a child by her side, and kneeling down I said it fervently.
Boys, it did me good, and always remember that sincere prayer will do you good, too.

I felt wonderfully calm when I resumed my place beside the Captain. But time passed on, and I was becoming quite benumbed, when I saw a party of French officers approaching. Before I had time to address them, the foremost, a low sized man, dressed in a fur pelisse, stepped toward me, saying:
"What are you doing here? Why did you stay behind your regiment?"
"For two reasons," said I, pointing first to the Captain, and then to my bleeding arm.
"The man speaks the truth, sir," said one of his followers. "I saw him marching behind the column, carrying the officer on his back."
The Emperor—for, boys, it was he—gave me one of those looks which only himself or the Alpine eagle could give, and said:
"Tis well; you have done well."
Then opening his pelisse, he took a cross which decorated his inside green coat, and gave it to me.

That moment I was no longer cold or hungry, and felt no more pain in my arm than if the ill-natured beast had never touched it.
"Davoust," said the Emperor, addressing the gentleman who had spoken, "cause the man and Captain to be placed in the ammunition wagon. Adieu!" And waving his hand toward me he passed on.
Here the veteran paused, and resigned his pipe.
"But tell us of the cross and what became of Captain Positive," cried several impatient voices.
The Captain still lives, and is now a retired General. But the best of it was, that when he recovered he placed me under arrest for fifteen days, as a punishment of my breach of discipline. The circumstance reached Napoleon's ears, and laughing heartily, he not only released me, but promoted me to be a Sergeant. As to the decoration, here is the ribbon, boys—I wear that in my button-hole, but 't cross near my heart.
And unbuckling his coat, the veteran showed his young friends the precious relic enveloped in a little satin bag suspended around his neck.

To a lover there are but two places in the world—one where his sweetheart is, the other where she isn't.

SHE WOULD SING DIXIE.—An eastern correspondent thus relates an incident that occurred aboard the Die Vernon, going down the Mississippi to St. Louis:

The boat was crowded with officers and soldiers—Northern men, of course. After tea, a young and most beautiful lady sat down to the piano, and commenced playing, and after while to sing also. She soon collected quite a number of men around her, for she was a most superb singer, as well as beautiful. As she was about to rise from the instrument, an old white headed lady, some seventy years old (accompanied by a negro girl, holding an infant—probably the old lady's grandchild), asked her if she could not sing "Dixie." She laughed and sat down again. As she commenced playing, some of the other ladies told her it would not do to sing that, as the soldiers would break up the instrument, and probably insult or injure her. She turned round and said: "I will sing 'Dixie,' if they kill me!" and commenced; and when she came to the words,
"I wish I was in Dixie,
Away, away!
In Dixie's Land I'll take my stand,
And die defending Dixie!"

the last three words she would emphasize and sing so defiantly—God! I almost worshipped her. There was a movement made to interrupt her; but I think if any violence had been offered there would have been bloodshed. I would have fought for her myself, and I am a Union. When she had finished the song, she walked to the afterpart of the boat as proudly as a queen—which she was. I would have given twenty dollars for one of her boot-laces. The old lady said: "God bless you, child, for that!"

A VENETIAN LOVE STORY.—A sad story has plagued Venice into more than its wonted sorrow. A young Hungarian noble in an Austrian regiment had fallen violently in love with a beautiful Venetian girl. They met frequently in society. She returned his passion, told him that she loved him, that she would never marry another, but that she could never marry him, an officer in an Austrian regiment, while three of her brothers were fighting for Italy. Vainly did the Hungarian urge his suit, earnestly did he entreat a meeting. At last the fair Venetian wrote to him: "Have you sufficient courage to kill me? If you consent I will meet you to-night. But I will meet you on this condition only, that you slay me, but respect me. Should I receive no reply, I shall come, and know that you have the courage which I expect from you." The girl went forth that evening with a bouquet of snow-white blossoms in her girdle. On the morrow, on the banks of the lagune, the officer's sword and scabbard were found, raised in the form of a cross, and in the stream below were found the bodies of the two lovers, closely locked in each other's arms.

TOO BAD.—What a discontented little monkey must have been the juvenile alluded to by the editor of an exchange, as follows:
We were visiting a house the other evening, where there were a number of children. One of them had the measles, one the whooping cough, and one was afflicted with the young poultry pox. They were all receiving the greatest sympathy and attention, while one little girl about five years old, sat in the corner, crying bitterly. We asked her what was the matter. She replied, breaking out into a heart-broken gush of tears, "Every one of the other children's got the measles and the whooping cough, and I ain't got nothin'—boo! hoo!"

As God created the actual world through the inbeaming of his imagination and his will, so he conferred imagination on man, by the help of which he can represent things to himself. He gave him not, indeed, the creative power of mind to bring forth material things, but the equally, and in a certain sense, not less active imagination, by means of which he originally could handle physical objects as he could the pictures of his own imagination.
Two little boys sat listening eagerly while their grandmother was telling them the Bible story of Elijah going up to heaven in a whirlwind, with a chariot and horses of fire, when little Willie interrupted her with:
"O, Sammy, wouldn't you have been afraid?"
Sammy hesitated a moment and then replied:
"No, not if I had the Lord to drive!"

A FELLOW being asked why he did not attend the funeral of his wife, replied: "I could not leave my soap, and I always attend to business before pleasure."
PRAISE is the hand-maid of virtue—but the maid is much oftener wooed than the mistress.

A NOBLE BOY.—Not long since, a neatly dressed little boy, not more than ten years old, was standing on the sidewalk of a crowded street, watching the people as they passed. Presently a little girl, several years younger than himself, in attempting to cross the muddy street, fell, and soiled her dress, and hurt herself considerably. In a moment the little fellow ran to her, helped her up, spoke to her in the kindest tones, inquired where she lived, and led her away toward her home. She was not a pretty child, neither was she handsomely dressed; on the contrary, she looked very poor, but the noble little fellow did not stop to think of that. He saw that she needed assistance, and that was enough. His heart was full of kindness, which only waited for an opportunity to show itself. One could easily tell that boy's fortune. He has a good mother and he listened to her instructions. He will grow up beloved and happy. He will never be poor, for he already possesses the choicest treasure—a kind heart. Try and be like him.

"AND am I a voter, sure?"
"I have told you 'yes,' half a dozen times."
"And the blackguards at the polls can't hinder me from votin'?"
"Of course not."
"Then glory to God! It's a happy day to Jim Conner. Won't the old woman feel proud to know that her young 'uns will be full-blooded 'mericans, and able to vote without bein' savilized! Whoop! Long life to the country!"

An Irishman who had been reduced to a mere shadow by severe illness, was asked by the physician what he thought of the future state?
"Ah, docthor," was the answer, "it makes no difference—yees ain't left enough ov me for the divil to naturalize, oo how."
HUGO ARNOT, one day, while panting with asthma, was almost deaened by the noise of a bawling fellow who was selling oysters beneath his window. "The extravagant rascal!" says Hugo, "he has wasted as much breath as would have served me for a month."

A WOMAN who recently had her butter seized by the clerk of the market for short weight, gave as a reason that the cow from which the butter was made was subject to a cramp, and that caused the butter to shrink in weight.
A BEAUTIFUL, but blind young lady, recovered her sight after marriage. On hearing this, a bachelor wickedly observed that it was no uncommon thing for people's eyes to be opened by matrimony.

WHERE shall I put this paper so as to be sure of seeing it to-morrow?" inquired Mary Jane of her brother Charles.
"Oh, on the looking-glass, to be sure," was the reply.
A SAILOR, passing a doll factory, observed that the sign read, "Babies made here." He walked in and asked the proprietor "if he wished to, employ a jour."

How to keep healthy—take a brandy snuff early in the morning, throw it out of the window, and after that eat your breakfast.
"I AM afraid of lightning," said a pretty coquette during a storm. "Well you may be," sighed a despairing swain, "when your heart is steel."
A FATHER gives as his reason for causing his son to study law, that he always was a lying little cuss, and should have his leading faculty developed.

BEAUTIES often die old maids. They set such a value on themselves that they don't find a purchaser until the market is closed.
WHAT is the difference between an auction and sea sickness? One is the sale of effects, the other the effects of a sail.
The tradesman who does not advertise has been compared to a man with a lantern, who is too stingy to buy a candle.

A LADY, advertising for a husband, wants him to be not only "strictly religious," but of "good moral character."
WHAT wind should hungry people pray for? The wind that blows fowl, and chops about.
WHAT is the difference between a hen with a wing and a hen without a wing? A mere difference of a pinion.
THE snake's poison is in his teeth; the slanderer's in his tongue.
WHEN is a man thinner than a shingle? When he is a-shaving!

Justices Blanks.

Blank Affidavits, Undertakings, Writ of Attachment and Subpoenas, under the NEW LAW, for Sale at this Office.

H. J. BIDDLEMAN, Bookseller, Fourth street next to the Post Office, Sacramento, is our authorized Agent to receive subscriptions for the KNIGHT'S LANDING NEWS.

KNIGHT'S LANDING is at present a point of considerable importance—being the only high land on the Sacramento river accessible from the interior between Benicia and Red Bluff. The up river steamers make their regular landings here, and the Gem, Captain Page, on her last trip up, on Wednesday last, discharged here over fifty tons freight—being more than all the balance of her cargo for all other points above. The number of passengers, and horses, vehicles, etc., of water bound travelers, were numerous, and made our levee look like the Sacramento Front street in that city's palmiest times. That Nature has made this point to be a town of considerable importance, no one who witnesses our locality and position can for a moment doubt; but the rivalry for the County Seat among the small towns of the county, has run to such an extent, and small politicians have made each in turn (except Knight's Landing), a hobby to ride into some minor office—and all working against the growing prosperity of our town. That we have made but slow progress in building up a town of the importance to which we are destined to be, one fact is however, patent, that we have all the natural advantages, and our growth has been steady and sure—and to-day we can proudly say we have the neatest, largest, most orderly and most business town in Yolo county.

PROBABLY DROWNED.—George Kramer, who lives with his family about a mile and a half above here, on the river, visited town in his boat on Monday last, and remained here until evening, when he left by himself, somewhat under the influence of liquor, for his home. About nine o'clock that night his boat was picked up floating down stream, two miles below here, with the oars in the row locks and the owner's coat in the bottom, but nothing at that time or since has been seen or heard of Kramer. His family and neighbors have given him up as drowned. He will be remembered as the person who shot J. B. Lowe, about a year ago, in a dispute about a tract of land.

HAY.—Since the advance in the price of hay, large quantities of this article is coming into town to be shipped below. Over a hundred tons will be sent from here during this and the early part of next week. The roads to the surrounding country are in excellent condition, and our town high and above all freshets—which makes it the only point where produce from the great centre of the Sacramento valley can find its way to market during high water.

FAST TIME.—On Tuesday last we received the proceedings of the Board of Supervisors which adjourned on the 4th instant, for publication. Considering the distance we are from the seat of Justice—thirty miles—we consider it marvelous fast time in getting here in thirteen days.

TIME.—The steamer Gem, Captain Page, will leave Knight's Landing every Monday and Friday for Sacramento, and will arrive at Knight's Landing every Wednesday and Saturday. Passengers and shippers can depend on the above days.

A FULL attendance of members of Grafton Lodge, F. and A. M. No. 147, is requested, as the annual election of officers takes place at their Hall, over the Union Hotel to-night, besides other business of importance.

CHRISTMAS EVE BALL.—A ball will be given on Tuesday evening next, the 24th instant, at Yolo City, by B. Hotchkiss. From the preparations being made, a good time may be expected.

Removal of the State Capital.

We have seen it urged by some of the interior papers, that since Sacramento has been flooded out and that beautiful city made to look desolate for a short time by her misfortunes, that the Capital should be removed to some point not subject to overflows—probably, to San Francisco. Now, aside from the meanness of these suggestions of plying injury and ingratitude on unavoidable misfortune, we are, and ever shall be, opposed to a removal of the Capital. Sacramento is, and always will be, the most central and most accessible city in the State—and the State has laid out large sums of money, to build a State House, which is now considerably advanced, for the accommodation of the Legislature and State officers; and the citizens of Sacramento have, at the same time, been liberal to a fault, in providing, without charge, the finest site in the city to erect it on; and of all the arguments which have heretofore been used in favor of Sacramento as the Capital, none of them have lost their weight, but have as much force now as they ever had—the flood to the contrary notwithstanding. We look upon the city's misfortunes as only temporary. We have seen her survive and prosper under far worse calamities than this—and we feel sure, from the character of her citizens for perseverance and energy, that in the end this, her present misfortune, will prove a lasting advantage to the city. She will now know what she must do to avoid another occurrence similar to this; and they will do it—and will place high and permanent embankments around the city, which, in connection with a higher grade to the streets, will forever insure them against another overflow, and in the end do a great good by the means of a great evil. We admit the lesson was a dear one—but dear bought wisdom is good wisdom, and can be relied on, in this instance in making Sacramento a greater, more permanent and lasting city than she could possibly have been had it not occurred.

Christmas Tree.

Arrangements have been made by the citizens of Knight's Landing for the erection of a Christmas tree on Christmas Eve. The committee appointed for the purpose, have collected quite a sum, which has been sent to Sacramento to purchase Christmas presents to be distributed among the children of the Sabbath and day schools of the town. The distribution of these presents will be by numbers—each child drawing a number and receiving the present bearing the corresponding number from the Christmas tree. Arrangements have also been made to have placed on the tree all the special presents which come into the hands of the Committee of Arrangements—Mrs. Seely, Miss Masters, Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Eicknell. Those sending special presents are requested to tie them up in a package, with the name of person to receive them there plainly written on the outside, and send them to the Committee as early as Monday next. The tree will be erected in the hall over the Union Hotel. Everybody is respectfully invited to attend, and it is hoped that all will encourage it and make it a merry Christmas.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.—At Cacheville, on Saturday evening last, the following officers were elected by the Yolo Lodge No. 81, F. and A. M., for the ensuing term: N. Wyckoff, W. M.; A. H. Willard, S. W.; S. D. Moore, J. W.; P. L. Duston, Treasurer; D. Schindler, Secretary.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.—The following officers were elected on Saturday night, the 14th instant, at the regular communication of Colusa Lodge No. 142, F. and A. M. of Colusa: Edward Hoole, W. M.; Frank Spalding, S. W.; Chas. Spalding, J. W.; J. H. Wood, Treasurer, and Mos Roberts, Secretary.

THE steamer Visalia, Captain Zimmerman, arrived here on Wednesday morning, with a goodly number of wood boats, and proceeded to Colusa. She returned on Thursday last and left here for Sacramento. She will make two trips a week.

NOW READY.—Baneroff's Hand-Book Almanac for the Pacific States, for 1862, can be purchased at this office at the publisher's price—$1.25. Call and examine it.

RACES TO-DAY.—Recollect the races will come off at Cacheville to-day (Saturday.) See advertisement in another column.

We take the following from the Union of Wednesday, December 18th:

QUINCY (Ill.) Dec. 16th.—Further European news has been received. The London Times says the principle on which the Government rests its demand for the surrender of Mason and Slidell, is that a British ship, until her violation of neutrality laws is fully proved, must be held to be British ground, as much as if she were an actual piece of British soil, and the right of all persons on board is as valid as on British territory. No such violation has been proved, or sought to be proved, against the Trent; consequently, the seizure of persons dragged from her deck was entirely illegal. Slidell and Mason were, at most, civil servants to a hostile Power, and were traveling from one neutral Power to another, in neutral vessels. If the Government of Washington declare them rebels, their right of asylum has been clearly violated.

Mr. Bright made an eloquent speech on the American question, strongly condemned warlike feeling, and scouted the idea that the United States Cabinet had resolved to pick a quarrel with England. Sir Richard Cobden has written letters of a pacific tone, urging a suspension of judgment.

General Scott has written in favor of maintaining friendly relations between England and America, which attracts much attention.

The transport Melbourne would leave Woolwich for Halifax December 5th, with a 30,000 stand of arms and a battery of six Armstrong guns.

The steamer Illinois, which arrived at Old Point Saturday night, says it passed within six miles of Charleston Thursday night. A tremendous conflagration was going on, and Charleston was evidently burning up.

The Norfolk Day Book gives an account of a negro insurrection in South Carolina, at Charleston. The plot of the negroes was discovered and checked.

Washington dispatches say that notwithstanding the belligerent attitude of England, the Cabinet and Congress are not frightened. The demand for the release of Mason and Slidell caused great excitement, but the sentiment of defiance is universal.

Congress will adjourn Thursday next for two weeks, to enable the members to spend their holidays at home.

Dispatches from St. Joseph, Missouri, state that a battle was expected soon, between the rebel forces at Lexington and troops under General Prentiss. It was Prentiss' intention to cross the river on Saturday, at a point above Lexington, and attack the rebels. The rebels are 2,500 strong; the Federals have 4,000.

In New York excitement runs high at the receipt of the English news. The markets are depressed in consequence. The bark Agnes, arrived at Baltimore, reports a fight between the pirate Sumter and the United States ship Iroquois, off Martinique.

QUINCY (Ill.) Dec. 17th.—The New York Herald's Washington dispatch says the President has no official information from England relative to the Mason and Slidell affair. The Cabinet have considered the matter and think newspaper bluster is not a true indication of the intention of that Government. The impression is that England would make a demand for the release of Mason and Slidell, but that correspondence would settle the matter without war.

The Union sentiment in Eastern Virginia is said to be rapidly increasing. It is stated that the vagrant rebel, Ben. McCulloch, is now in Richmond, Virginia.

The Norfolk and Richmond papers of December 14th, give full particulars of the great fire at Charleston. Fifty-seven buildings were destroyed, including the Roman Catholic Church, St. Peter's Episcopal, Cumberland street Church, Methodist and Circular Churches. The loss will be from five to seven million dollars.

The Senate Military Committee will report to-morrow against abolishing the distinction between regulars and volunteers.

The steamer Connecticut, arrived at Old Point, reports that Fort Pulaski had been evacuated by the rebels and is now occupied by Federal troops.

The steamer Champion arrived at New York December 16th. She reports being chased by pirates December 14th. Ships Lancaster, Wyandotte and Cyance were at Panama on the 5th.

NEW POSTAGE STAMPS.—In another column will be found a notice from the Post Office Department at Washington, requesting those who have the old postage stamps to call at the Post Office and get an equivalent of the new issue, within six days.

PROCLAMATION

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, SAC., Nov. 11, '61.

Whereas, it has been made my duty by two several Acts of the Legislature of this State (portions of which are hereto annexed for the direction of persons therein charged with special trusts and obligations) to give public notice, by proclamation, of the completion of the buildings of the State Reform School so far as to be ready for occupancy; and whereas, the Board of Trustees of said State Reform School have conveyed to this Department the requisite official information of the foregoing fact:

Now, therefore, I, John G. Downey, Governor of the State of California, do hereby give notice to all concerned, that the State Reform School at Marysville will be opened and ready for the reception of all youths for whom the same has been provided, as specified in the Acts herein referred to, on the first Monday, being the 2d day of December, A. D. 1861.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the Great Seal of this State to be affixed, the day and year first above written.

[L. S.] JOHN G. DOWNEY, Governor of California.

Attest: JOHNSON PRICK, Sec'y of State.

AN ACT for the erection of a Building for a State Reform School, and for the Regulation of the same, passed April 18, 1860.

Sec. 18. After the proclamation shall have been made, as provided in section eleven of this Act, when any boy, or youth, between the age of eight and sixteen years, shall be convicted of any offense known to the laws of this State, and punishable by imprisonment, other than such as may be punishable by imprisonment for life, the Court (or Justice, as the case may be), before whom such conviction shall be had, may at their discretion sentence such boy or youth to the State Reform School, or to such punishment as is now provided by law for the same offense. And if the sentence shall be to the Reform School, then it shall be in the alternative to the State Reform School, or to such punishment as would have been awarded if this Act had not passed.

Sec. 19. Any boy or youth so convicted and sent to said School, shall there be kept, disciplined, instructed, employed and governed, under the direction of said Board of Trustees, until the term of his sentence shall have expired, or until he shall be either reformed or discharged, or shall be bound out by said Trustees, according to their laws, or shall be remanded to prison, under the sentence of the Court, as incorrigible, upon information of the Trustees, as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 20. If any boy or youth shall, upon any conviction, be sentenced to the said School, and the Trustees shall deem it expedient to receive him, or if he shall be found incorrigible, or his continuance in the School shall be deemed injurious to the management and discipline thereof, they shall certify the same upon the mittimus by virtue of which he is held, which mittimus, together with the convict, shall be delivered to the Sheriff of any county, or his Deputy, or to the Constable of any town, who shall forthwith commit said boy or youth to the jail or State Prison, as the case may be, in pursuance of the alternative sentence provided for in the preceding section of this Act.

Sec. 21. All commitments of boys or youths to this Institution, of whatever age when committed, shall be for a term not longer than their minority, nor less than one year, unless sooner discharged by order of the Trustees, as hereinafter provided. The mittimus shall state the age, the offense committed, the sentence, and the alternative sentence. Whenever any boy or youth shall be discharged, by the expiration of his term of commitment, or as reformed, or as having arrived at the age of twenty-one years, such discharge shall be a full and complete release from all penalties and disabilities which may have been created by such sentences.

AN ACT defining further powers and duties of the Trustees or Managers of the State Reform School, and the Managers of the Industrial School Department of San Francisco, passed May 20, 1861.

Sec. 3. Upon request of any parent, or guardian, or friend, of any boy or youth who has no parent or guardian, who may be shown to the Trustees, or Managers, and Superintendent of the State Reform School, such boy or youth shall be received therein, and shall be subject to the care, instruction, support and discipline thereof, notwithstanding such boy or youth may be guilty of no especial crime or crimes.

Our goods were bought when the stocks in

San Francisco were very large and complete, and before the rise in prices; and we extend a cordial invitation to all to call and examine our goods and prices before buying elsewhere.

We take this occasion to return thanks for past favors, and to solicit a continuance of the same; and to call upon those knowing themselves indebted to us to make payment at once for "we must have money." Grain and flour sacks made and kept on hand for sale. Country produce taken in exchange for goods and money not refused.
