For His Sake.

I love the wildwood flowers For the sake of one that's dead, · Whose little hands are folded Beneath the coffin-lid. He used to pluck those daily Which bloomed beside the road, And bring them to my chamber, To cheer my solitude.

I can hear his flying footsteps, His shout of childish glee, Springing by his little brother, And bearing them to me; I can see his dark eye sparkle, His cheek with health aglow, His sunny curls all tossed about. From a forehead white as snow.

I feel his lips upon my cheek, His arms around my neck; I can see him kiss the little one, Her brow with roses deck; I can see him when the love-light From his eye had passed away-As he lay before me cold and still-A beauteous form of clay.

Exotics fresh and rare, And laid him in his coffin. And twined them in his hair. Now there are none to bring me Wreathes from the wildwood bowers, For those sweet flowers both are gone,

When loving hands had brought him

In search of fairer bowers! Sorrow's Child.

Debt and Credit.

It has always appeared marvelously strange to us that men who are under no necessity of running in debt should contract bills without number at the tailor's, hatter's, shoemaker's, &c. The "pay-asyou-go" rule, so earnestly advised by "Old Roanoke," is infinitely better. The man who forks over the cash for everything, though compelled to screw down his expenses to the lowest living point, is alone thoroughly independent. He whose expenses swell to thousands yearly, and who has a swarm of small debts, like hungry musquitoes, constantly teasing, irritating and annoying him, derives far less happiness from his ficticious wealth than the honest, economizing chap who knows that his income is but three hundred a year, "cuts his cloth" accordingly. There is no misery like that of being "up to one's ears" in debt, especially little debts. A man who owes his thousands is not ex pected to be always ready to pay those Dr. Johnson somewhere says that big debts are like big guns in battle, that often make a great noise, but do little execution; it is the small debts that, like small shot, do the most mischief. One of the chief reasons for paying as you go is, because there is a great saving by cash purchases. Credit, it has been happily said, is a microscope, through which the vender sees his goods in a trebled value; cash is an inverted glass, the application of which lessons the apparent worth of the seller's goods. Buy on "tick," and you must take such articles as the grocer may choose to sell; buy with the ready "tin, ' and you may tell him "to go to thunder" with his musty flour, his tainted meat, his rancid butter.

A cotemporary has the following sensible reflections on this subject : No man who places a right value upon time will permit what should at once be settled upon the spot and at the moment of contraction, to rise to his horror strick en vision a second time, like an ugly ghost, clothed in dirty sheets-of a ledger. An article purchased and paid for tells the story and finishes it. An article bought on credit is sure to torment the purchaser long after the benefit of it has been had and forgotten. What is more disagreeable than-to use a common proverb-to pay for a dead horse? What is the fun of paying a tailor for a coat which has been worn till it is nearly ready to break out under the arms? or of settling for boots which are past the surgery of a cordwainer? or, in short, of settlement for retrospective claims at all?

The fact appears to be that all the world have got a fashion of living behind their business and in advance of their receipts. When the money comes, it comes not to pay for future benefit—it can only be called the property of the recipient. He has got to cast about him, and divide it amongst the furnishers of articles already consumed. That man is counted a good economist who can make the receipts of the week or the quarter pay all the liabilities he has incurred in anticpation of them. But assuredly he is a better who goes on the money principle; and instead of making his money pay for last week, has it in his hand to buy goods as he wants them. It is bet ter to put up with any endurable privation, till you can command money, than to ask credit, and thus be in the use of a

TOBACCO CULTURE. - Jonathan Periam writes to the Prairie Farmer, Chicago, Ill., as follows:

Plant seed 1st of April; transplant into field May 20th to June 10th; middle of July to September 1st, top, sucker and hunt worms. No crop pays better for frequent stirring of the soil. If but little planted, the hills may be made with a hoe. It is better to have the ground fit ted a little time before setting; if so, scrape off the hills with a hoe before setting. Reset as fast as killed by worms. It is a good plan to plow in the fall to kill cut worms, as well for other crops as for tobacco. The worms which feed upon the mature leaves are the larvæ of the Sphinx Carolina, color green, transversely wrinkled, with oblique white lines on each side, and a redish caudal horn, exceedingly voracious, sometimes ruining tomato as well as tobacco crops in a short time if not disturbed. These undergo their transformation so deep under ground that the plow does not often reach them. Top when the terminal bud appearsleave from nine to fifteen leaves. The distance for planting here mentioned is for very rich ground; the poorer the soil the further apart must the plants be .-Every sucker left takes just so much from the value of the crop. Do not let the crop get wet after cutting-do not expose it to a hot sun. Both are equally injurious. It is fit to cut when it assumes a mottled appearance, the veins become sunken, the leaf breaks with a clear fracture, and is thicker in texture than before. After cutting, handle always by the butts. The peculiar color is given in a measure by sweating. It should be some one of the shades of cinnamon. Skill in the art can only be acquired by practice. Trust none but careful men in the handling of tobacco. Do not let the plants touch each other in the drying. house, and let the roof be rain proof, and be sure above all things to get good seed of some reliable man, and do not grow it on a rank, coarse soil. It will pay to take care of the crop at thirty cents per

FEED AND CARE OF COLTS.—A writer in the Germantown Telegraph gives the following directions on this subject:

When the colt at five or six months old, first teaching him while sucking the mare to eat oats. When taken from the dam confine the colt closely and put them out of hearing of each other for a week. During the first winter feed daily two quarts of oats, and all the hay the colt will eat. This, with good warm shelter, liabilities; but if he cannot pay his little will keep him growing and improving. bills, however large the sum may swell to in the aggregate, his credit suffers at once. Is settled and warm, and a full bite of grass. The first year makes or ruins the colt. It is the most important of his life. Keep him fat the first year, whatever you do afterwards, for this year decides whether he is to be a full grown horse or a miserable pony-no after care can atone for neglect during the first 12 months. Good pasture (mountain if possible) the next season, and plenty of hay the next winter, with a quart of grain, if convenient, will bring you a finely formed, powerful two year old.

> THE TEETH.—They decay. Hence, unseemly mouths, bad breath, imperfect mastication. Everybody regretsit. What is the cause? I reply, want of cleanliness. A clean tooth never decays. The mouth is a warm place-98 degrees .-Particles of meat between the teeth soon decompose. Gums and teeth must suffer.

Perfect cleanliness will preserve the teeth to old age. How shall it be secured? Use a quill pick, and rinse the mouth after eating. Brush and Castile soap every morning; the brush with simple water on going to bed. Bestow this trifling care upon your precious teeth, and you will keep them and ruin the dentists. Neglect it, and you will be sorry all your lives. Children forget .-Watch them. The first teeth determine them equal care.

Sugar, acids, saleratus, and such things are nothing when campared to food decomposing between the teeth. Mercurialization may loosen the teeth, long use may wear them out, but keep them clean and they will never decay. This advice is worth more than thousands of dollars to every boy and girl. Books have been written on the subject. This brief article contains all that is essential .- Dr. Lewis.

ONE of the returned volunteers of the Second Regiment, who reached Albany last week, called on a physician the other day, and applied for medical assistance.
"What's the matter with you;" asked

LONELY PEOPLE. - Men who isolate themselves from society, and have no pear and dear family ties, are the most uncomfortable of human beings. Byron says, "Happiness was born a twin," but the phrase, though pretty and poetic, does not go far enough. We are gregarious, and not intended to march through life either in double or in single file. In pairieng time, i. e., during the honey moon, individuals of opposite sexes may find it very pleasant, not to say delightful, to walk apart from the unsentimental world, two and two. But, as a general thing, they are ready enough to rush back into the crowd when the billing and cooing season is over. Petrarch would have grown tired of Laura, and she of him, had they been condemned to a tete a tete in the wilderness, and Sappho would have jumped into the sea to escape ennui, had she been compelled to matrimonial solitude with the man for lack of whose love she made "a damp body" of herself. It has been well said that the vital principle grows weak when isolated. The man who cares for nobody, and for whom nobody cares, has nothing to live for that will pay for the trouble of keeping soul and body together. You must have a heap of embers to make a glowing fire. Scatter them apart and they become dim and cold. So to have a brisk, vigorous life, you must have a group of lives, to keep each other warm as it were, to afford each other mutual encouragement and confidence and support. If you wish to live the life of a man, and not that of a fungus, be social, be brotherly, be charitable, be sympathetic, and labor earnestly for the good of your kind.

THE ATLANTIC OCEAN. - The Atlantic Ocean includes an area of 25,000,000 square miles. Suppose an inch of rain to fall upon only one-fifth of this vast expanse it would weigh 360,000,000 tuns, and the salt, which as water is held in solution in the sea, and which, when the water was taken up as a vapor, was left behind to disturb the equilibrium, weighed 16,000,000 more tuns, or nearly twice could carry at a cargo each. It might. fall in a day; but occupy what time it might, this rain is calculated to exert so much force -which is inconceivably great the Mississippi river during the year were taken up in one mighty measure and cast into the ocean at an effort, it would not make a greater disturbance in the equilibrium of the sea than the fall of rain supposed. And yet, so gentle are the operations of nature that movements so vast are unperceived!

AN INGENIOUS TEST .- A short time ago, a merchant, in prosecuting his morning tour in the suburbs, found, as he walked along, a purse containing a considerable amount of money. He observed a lady at some distance, who, he thought, would be the owner and loser. Determined to be correct in the party to whom he delivered it, he fell upon a strange yet ingenious plan to effect this; he re-solved to act the part of a poor distressed man, and boldly went forward, hat in hand, and asked alms. This was answered with a polite "Go away! I have nothing to give you." The poor man, however, persisting in his entreaties, would not go until he had got assistance for his famishing wife and children. At last the lady condescended; but to her dismay found the wherewith was gone. The merchant, with a polite bow, returned the purse, with the advice in future to be more generous to the distressed .- London Journal.

CHLOROFORM ROBBERY .- A lady was not long since traveling in England, when she occupied a railway carriage in company with a well-dress man and woman, the former of whom offered a copy of an illustrated newspaper for her entertainment. She accepted the civility, opened the character of the second set. Give the paper, perceived a powerful and peculiar odor, became immediately insensible, and awoke to find herself robbed of her money and railway ticket, together with sundry articles of jewelry. The paper was supposed to have been saturated with chloroform, the scent of which was disguised with lavender.

> COTTON .- Quite a number of families in the city are taking advantage of the high price of raw cotton by selling the contents of mattresses, etc., to manufacfuring companies at a large advance on the original prices. We hear of one in. stance in which over $500 was obtained in one family from the sale of the contents of cotton mattresses .- Lowell News.

A BRAVE BOY .- Near Lake Shetek. sixty miles southwest of New Ulm, a family was surprised by Indians, the father killed, and the mother seized as a prisoner; but two children, one twelve and the other two years of age, were concealed from the savages in a neighboring thicket of grass and weeds. After the alarm, the mother had thus hidden her children, her last words to the older boy being to "save his little brother, and never leave

The Indians disappearing with their captives and plunder, the brave lad, with his baby brother on his back, started for the nearest settlement, subsisting on wild fruits and roots, and reaching New Ulm in fourteen days. About half way on this journey of sixty miles he overtook a neighbor named Ireland, who had laid down to die, having been struck by no less than eight bullets, and who insisted that it was hopeless to escape "But," was the heroic reply of the boy, "my mother's last words were to save my little brother and I am going to do it." The devoted courage gave new life to Ireland, who struggled forward, and all reached New Ulm without accident. Ireland is now rocov-

On the next day aftar the arrival at New Ulm, the mother of the children was brought in by a scouting party. The Indians finding her an incumbrance to their retreat, and not being at the moment disposed to kill her, had left the woman on the prairie, and after wandering many days, she was reunited to her children .-St. Paul Press.

Good Night.—How commonplace is this expression and yet what volumes it may speak for all the future time! We never listen to it, in passing, that this thought does not force itself upon us be the tones in which it is uttered ever so gay. The lapse of a few fatal hours or minutes may so surround and hedge it in with horror, that of all the millions of words which a lifetime has recorded, these two little words alone shall seem to be remembered: Good night! The little as much as all the ships in the world child has lisped it, as it passed, smilling to a brighter morn than ours; the lover with his gay dreams of the nuptial morrow; the wife and mother, all the tangeled threads of household care still in her -in disturbing the equilibrium of the fingers; the father, with the appealing ocean. If all the water discharged by eye of childhood all unanswered: Good night! That seal upon days passed, and days to come What hand so rash as to rend aside the veil that covers its morrow!

A STUTTERING Vermonter was asked the way to Waterbury. With great po-liteness he strove to say that it was right ahead, but in vain; the more he tried the more he couldn't. At last, red in the face, and furious from unavailing exertion he burst forth with, "gug-gug go 'long, darn ye! You'll gig gi-git there afore I can tell ye."

CAN you give me two halves for a dollar, inquired a loafer at a retail store.

ONE of the most turbulent darkies in Washington is named Bill. He gets into the House of Representatives frequently, kicks up a row, and is arrested. Every day for a fortnight, the telegraphic report of Congress has told us that "the Negro Bill was taken up."

SATURDAY, MARCH 28TH, 1863. Death of the Hon. Humphrey Griffith.

"A great man has fallen."

It is with deep sorrow that we announce the death of Hon. Humphrey Griffithan old and useful citizen of this county. He has represented this county in both branches of the Legislature, with credit to himself and universal satisfaction to his constituents. His death makes a void that will be hard to fill.

Mr. Griffith was born in Wales, but his parents emigrated to Michigan when he was a child. At twelve years of age he went to Tennessee, and in after years to Mississippi, from which State he emigrated to California in 1849, since which time he has been identified with the interest of Yolo county, though his law office was, most of the time, in the city of Sacramento. As a leader in the Democratic party he was widely known throughout the State, and he had always the respect and good will of political foes as well as friends; as a lawyer, he was eminent in his profession; as an orator, he had few equals-being a man of quick wit, pleasing address, happy delivery, with the last year, been blessed with a uniform powerful reasoning faculties. He was a matchless off hand debater. His mind legal tender. It now becomes doubly was well stored with useful knowledge, onerous to the people to have to rewhich he could command instanter whenever the occasion demanded it.

He had been sinking with consumption for months, and had made every arrangement in case of his death. Consistency .- To ask the Board of Supervisors of Yolo county to appropriate money to build a free road across the tules, for the purpose of taking the trade of the county from its own towns and diverting it to Sacramento. If Sacramento wants to get the trade of Yolo, let her build a road to get it. Our interests evidently are to keep commerce within our own borders, thereby building up towns and increasing the taxable property of the county. The Sacramento papers complain that the trade that should come to that city, is diverted to Knight's Landing. That is just what we of Yolo want, if we study our own interest.

To ROAD CONTRACTORS .- The attention of all whom it may concern, are invited to the notice of the Board of Supervisors in regard to the construction and grading of the Cache Creek Canon Road in Canon Road District. Remember the first Monday of next May is the day to bid for the same.

WE would most earnestly call the attention of our readers and all those interested, to the advertisement of the Board of Supervisors of this county, for sealed proposals for the building of a County Infirmary at Woodland, vide advertisement.

Currency Question.

Perhaps there has not been a measure before the present Legislature of this State, fraught with more interest to the people generally of California, than Assembly Bill No. 207; being An Act to amend the Civil Practice Act, so amended on recommendation of the Judiciary Committee, as to require payments by Sheriffs, etc., to be made in the same currency as that in which it is collected; and, also, providing for the payment of judgments in such currency as specified in contract or agreement upon which the judgment is based.

The object of this measure is to provide that contracts made payable in a certain description of currency, may be enforced. This measure would not interfere with the Legal Tender Act of United States, which the General Government, under the exigences of the war, has been compelled to pass, thus forcing a new and hitherto unknown currency upon California, greatly to the detriment of every branch of trade and business throughout the entire State. This measure simply requires the debtor to select. when making his contract, the kind of currency in which he will make his payments, instead of making his selection at the time of the payment-which, often, is to the injury of the creditor.

California, from her infancy has, until currency-gold and silver being the only ceive, in payment for debts, a currency which is worth much less than specie. In fact the fluctuation in the value of legal tender notes, has an unhappy tendency to demoralize trade, embarrass com-Now this measure is designed to palliate alleviate and lessen the pressure of inconvenience under which we labor. There is nothing in it but what the exigences of the times emphatically demand. It will restore business confidence-a sine qua non so strictly requisite that upon its full fruition depends the prospericy of the entire State, in its various ramifications of trade and commerce. It is a measure of equity and justice, protecting the innocent creditor and doing no injury to the honest debtor. The only men whom it does not benefit, are those quirking. quibbling, half way dishonest debtors, who are always ready to take advantage of a technicality in trade and settlement. These men it will compel to be honest in spite of themselves. Anything that is so replete with good and benefits, unquestionably should be encouraged. A law of this sort is more necessary for this, than any other State in the Union. Here gold is the standard of value; in the Atlantic States paper money is the standard; it will conduce to the prosperity and interest of the State, and, consequently, to the strength of the General Government. The great advantage will be to harmonize the conflict between the two standard values. In this State, unused to paper currency, remote from States where that currency is used, and producing gold as its chief product, it is impossible to change from the old standard without great loss and inconvenience.

If this bill should become a law, it will strengthen the State, settle the uncertainties of commerce, unlock the treasures of credit and inspire new confidence in business men; and, in fine, make us what we once were-a great and prosperous people, as remarkable for our honesty as proverbial for our magnanimity.

NOT CANDIDATES .- The Sacramento

Bee of Friday, has the following: Brooks, formerly of the Marysville Appeal, now in Washington, writes "by the card," saying that neither Sargent nor Phelps will be candidates for Congress, or any other position during the coming canvass. They have authorized him to say so, and he has said it; wherefore there is a chance for two new Congressional candidates to show themselves. Who IMPORTANT COMPETITION .- By a recent decision of the Treasury Department Foreign bottoms are enabled to compete for the traffic between this city and New York; and we learn by telegraph, there are grounds for believing that an English line of steam propellers will soon be put upon one of the transit routes. We may doubtless look for greatly increased acthe stamp having been fresh when affixed tivity in steam communication with this coast during the present year .- S. F.

Free Road in Yolo.

"A meeting of the Board of Supervisors of Yolo county was held at Woodland on Monday afternoon. It was attended by N. L. Drew, of this city, and W. C. Wood, George Sevey and S. M. Enos, of Washington, who were present to represent the free road interest, which has been actively agitated for several months. In going to Woodland the delegation above named traveled along the line of the proposed road. All owners of land along the line assented to a grant of the right of way. The Board, after finally considering the subject, declared the road a publie highway. The enterprise in question contemplates the construction of a free road across the tules from Washington, running due west from the bridge to the Tule House, a distance of six and a half miles. The grading and bridging will be so heavy that the entire cost will be about $50,000. Of this amount $35,000 have been already subscribed. Much of the trade which should legitimately come to Sacramento has, by reason of heavy tolls, been driven to Knight's Landing, and other points north and south: The importance of free roads and bridges leading to the city, and especially at this junction, can scarcely be overrated." The above we clip from the Sacramento

Union of the 25th inst. We think the writer in the Union is in error as to the right of way being given along the entire route; for we learn that the Board of Supervisors allowed $1,000 damages to one party, through whose land the road is to pass. We admire the enterprise of those interested in the road referred to, and their liberality is worthy of emulation; and we would like to see private enterprise still further stimulated in that direction, so as to complete the work contemplated without asking an appropriation from the road fund of this county-as we learn is the design of the friends of the road. We have no objection to Solano county making an appropriation of funds for this road; for that county is as much, if not more, interested in the road than Yolo county. All of Yolo lying north, and a strip several miles wide on the south side of Cache Creek, embraces the heaviest grain growing portion of this county, and all of this section embraced within these limits, are not directly interested in this road-not enough interested to favor being taxed to build it; they can do better than use that road, though it be a free road, for the transportation of their grain to market. All within the scope of country above described can make a trip to this place and home again in a day, and the grain can be shipped to Sacramento from here for $1 50 per ton; hence it will at once be seen that it is only the southern part of Yolo, and Solano county that are at all interested in a pecuniary way in the construction of this road, and we hope they will make up the other $15,000 needed, and go to work and make the road. To make this road of much value to Solano county, a bridge must be constructed across Putah Creek, and Yolo county should bear its part in that work, in fact a bridge across Putah Creek should be built, whether a free road is built across the tule or not. The bridge is a necessity to both counties, and we are willing the county should make a liberal appropriation for that purpose; but we protest against the county making an appropriation for the tule road, at least until a few more very necessary neighborhood roads can be opened, and kept open, by the

HON. C. L. VALLANDIGHAM.—The Hancock (Ohio) Courier says:

"The ablest speech which has been spoken for many years in the House of Representatives, was delivered a few days since by Hon. C. L. Vallandigham. He spoke for the Democracy of the nation. He was listened to with intense interest. It was well known that his speech foreshadowed the purposes and aims of the Democratic party, and members crowded round him to catch every word which fell from his lips. The speech is pronounced even by Republicans, as unanswerable, and his position invulnerable. Never before did mortal man make a speech when he uttered the sentiments of so many millions of human beings. As soon as we can obtain a correct copy we shall publish it in full. It is quite lengthy, as the House, by unanimous consent, permitted him to proceed after his hour had expired."

WASHINGTON, March 25 .- Late Richmond papers continue to speak of the scarcity of provisions in the South. One of them recommends that the people live on two meals a day. The Examiner says that points now held by their armies may vet be abandoned for want of food for the men, and says the railroads have heretofore supplied their wants, but owing to wearing out the rolling stock, scarcity of hands, etc., the running has been reduced to ten miles an hour. The railroads in Virginia are on the point of giving

Refugees who arrived within our lines esterday confirm the statement that the rebel army is falling back from Fredericksburg, and being massed in the fortifications before Richmond. They state that the entire force left at Fredericksburg on Sunday night, was only 8,000. They also confirm the news that the gun making machinery and ordnance stores are being rapidly removed from Richmond into Georgia; that the withdrawal of families from the city has fully set in, and that sales of property were being forced at ruinous prices. It was also stated at Richmond that the rebels had from four to five hundred killed and wounded in the recent engagement with the cavalry force of Gen. Averill. THE ALABAMA. - The Bulletin's Panama correspondent says:

The West India steamers at Aspinwall continue to chronicle the movements of the pirate Alabama. Her last freak was to fire across the celebrated Trent steamer, under the supposition that she was a disguised Yankee. Discovering her mistake, Semmes went on board, apologized, breakfasted with the Trent man, and drank with him confusion to the d-d Yankees. Semmes has no idea of leaving his old cruising ground. He can run from one neutral water, where he is, to another, with such fecility, and has so many good friends on all the islands to give him coals and supplies, that he will not likely go where the roads are longer and shelter less easy.

A WORD FROM HOOKER .- The Bee says General Hooker recently said to a New Jersey chaplain that he had unlimited power, no restrictions whatever embarrassing his operations. "The regiments of the expedition were mostly new, and behaved well under their first serious fire, with the exception of the 107th Pennsylvania, composed of drafted men. When ordered forward with the rest, at six o'clock, they remained lying in the road to avoid the shells passing over them, and refused to stir. General Corcoran, on hearing this, rode up to them, accompanied by Col. Spear, and called for the Colonel. He was danger ously wounded and did not reply. The Lieutenant Colonel, Major, Adjutant, or any Captain, were successively called for without answer. The General then said that if any commissioned officer was there and would advance the regiment, he should be recommended for the Coloneley. A Lieutenant, name unknown, then rose and endeavord to comply, but without effect. The General then appealed to them, for the honor of Pennsylvania, when an Orderly Sargeant sprung up, saying, 'You can draft us, but you can't make us fight.' He was immediately struck on the head with the back of Col. Spear's sword, and felled. Col. Spear desired to charge them with a company of cavalry, but the General thought it better to leave them as they were."
