FAIR PLAY IS A JEWEL.

We have noticed a lack of justice and fairness in the Mr. FILLMORE on the part of the Democratic press, which we have noticed in the Whig press, which does not greatly surprise us. We will particularize. Mr. FILLMORE has been charged with being in favor of the extension of the Missouri Compromise line. All the argument has been employed to give effect to injure him in the South. A number of gentlemen, anxious to learn his opinions, address him on the subject, and he writes them in reply an authorized letter, which is known in a Buffalo paper, and he avows that these are his sentiments. The Democratic journal commits Mr. FILLMORE in the most positive and unequivocal manner against the restoration of the Missouri Compromise. With the solitary exception of the Alexandria National, which republished the article, not a Democratic paper has noticed Mr. FILLMORE'S position entire. They have referred to the South, not a single Democratic sheet has either copied or referred to it, which is moral have still the unblush ed effrontery to repeat an accusation which they know to be a calumny and falsehood. Is this fair play? Take another instance. The doctrine of Squatter Sovereignty is universally repudiated by every prominent Southern man. Mr. BUCHANAN'S opinions on this question are known through his letter to Mr. SANDERSON and his reply to the address of the Cincinnati Convention. Mr. BUCHANAN'S views have been likewise given in his interview with Col. WRIGHT. Not only did Mr. FILLMORE repudiate this pernicious doctrine, but he expressed his views on the publication of his sentiments accordingly been freely published in Democratic journals which support Mr. BUCHANAN, and in so far as we have observed it as a fact, and those who have noticed Fillmore papers will find the same fact stated in other sources what Mr. FILLMORE is in favor of Squatter Sovereignty. Is there not another illustration of the largest slaveholder in the State of Louisiana, and enormously affluent and inevitably affiliated with those whose principles and sympathies are strongly disposed to Southern interests, Mr. DUNCAN, however, has long beheld what was passing, and ranged himself under the banner of Nationality and constitutional liberty, and is one of the supporters of FILLMORE. He has resolved to stand by his friends in Mississippi, and has declared his intention. Does not this show that the Democratic press has received orders to know any Fillmore sentiment?

Is this fair? Is good faith we have seen in the articles from the numerous Democratic papers on the record. They serve to show the predetermined purpose of the Democratic press to misrepresent the canvass in the most odious and reprehensible manner, by false and suggesting statements concerning the candidate, and misrepresentations of facts. And this is one of the causes of the distrust which the Democratic papers generally, and justly, have in the manliness to do justice to the present contest. In the present contest the issue is one entirely discreditable, as it is one which the intelligent masses of the people will not tolerate. Mr. FILLMORE or his friends have given no pretext for unfair or unjust treatment, but every article in the Democratic press is full of misrepresentation, and every article in the Democratic press is full of misrepresentation, and every article in the Democratic press is full of misrepresentation, and
