BOWSER REFUSES TO CO-OPERATE IN WORK OF REDISTRIBUTION

Conservatives Block Government's Efforts to Remove Issue From Party Politics by Declining to Serve on Non-partisan Redistribution Committee; Premier Defends Cut in Victoria's Membership

Efforts of the Oliver Government to get the unbiased cooperation of all parties in the Legislature in arranging the redistribution of British Columbia electoral constituencies were blocked last night when W. J. Bowser, Conservative leader, refused flatly to allow the names of Conservatives to be included in a non-partisan committee appointed to handle the Redistribution Bill.

Announcement that the Conservatives in the House had refused to co-operate with the Government in redistribution was made by Premier Oliver to-day. Mr. Bowser, the Premier declared, had advised him that the Conservative Party had decided to have nothing to do with the House committee on redistribution.

"So far as my efforts to secure the unbiased co-operation of all parties in the House are concerned, they are to be rendered useless by the decision of Mr. Bowser that his party will not participate in the work of the proposed committee," the Premier declared.

The work of the select committee on the Redistribution Bill will go on without the Conservative members, the Premier announced. He added that reports in Conservative newspapers that the Government intended to table the Redistribution Bill and hold it over until the next session of the House were absolutely groundless.

So far as the Government was concerned, he said, the Bill would be put through in the ordinary way unless unforeseen difficulties arose.

The select committee of the House which will consider the Redistribution Bill, the Premier announced, will consist of J. W. de Parris, H. F. Kerwin, A. D. Patterson and Kenneth Campbell, Liberals; and R. H. Nesland, Independent. The Premier had placed the names of Mr. Bowser and W. A. McKenzie, Conservatives, on the committee but, as the Conservatives have refused to co-operate with the Government, gentlemen will be absent when the committee starts work.

There will be a quorum without them, however, so that their absence will not hold up the committee's work. The Premier gave out a statement explaining why Victoria's representation in the Legislature is to be cut from four members to three under the Redistribution Bill. The Premier's statement ran as follows: "I notice that both the Victoria Times and the Victoria Colonist claim that a reduction of Victoria's representation in the Legislative Assembly cannot be justified. I would be very pleased to see Victoria retain her present representation if such retention can be justified and what applies to Victoria would also apply to Greenwood, Grand Forks, Rossland and other places where representation is being interfered with."

"Victoria at the present time has a registered vote of 18,626 or a membership unit of 46.65. Vancouver has a registered vote of 51,861 or a membership unit of 84.55. Richmond and Point Grey combined have a registered vote of 21,014 or a membership unit of 51.86. The registered vote of Victoria is 11,861, which would be entitled to eleven members. With Oak Bay added to Victoria and Victoria retaining four members, Vancouver would be entitled to ten members and South Vancouver and Richmond combined to four members between them. Even with three members for Victoria and Oak Bay added on the basis of population, Vancouver would be entitled to seven members.

FIRE LOSSES
—Toronto, Nov. 24.—Fire losses in Canada during the week ended November 21 are estimated by The Monetary Times at $247,700, compared with $289,000 for the same week last year.

NATIONAL LOAN IS BEING RAISED IN IRELAND NOW
Dublin, Nov. 24.—It is stated in Government quarters that the new national loan is being raised in Ireland beginning. The Irish banks are said to have guaranteed to subscribe £5,000,000. The Church of Ireland will take £250,000, the Southern Railway £250,000 and a Dublin brewery £200,000.

Arrangements have been made with a United States firm, it is said, to raise subscriptions in the United States.

The books opened to-day and will close December 10.

SEVERAL LIVES WERE SAVED DURING FIRE BY A PLAYER PIANO
Shawano, Wis., Nov. 24.—A player piano saved Otto Siefert, his wife and family from death in the fire which destroyed their home here last night. In some way the flames caused the switch of the piano to be turned on, the ensuing music awakening the sleepers, who escaped out doors.

GOLD STRIKE IN SUDBURY REGION ONTARIO, REPORTED

Sudbury, Ont., Nov. 24.—Prospectors have struck a vein of rich gold ore about twenty-two miles northwest of Sudbury, about 200 yards off the Canadian National Railway, and a shaft of thirty feet deep has been driven by John Johnson and his associates in the past week, it is reported here. The ore is assaying $28 to the ton.

ONTARIO TO PAY $500,000 TO TWO INDIAN TRIBES

Ottawa, Nov. 24.—The Royal Commission appointed by the Federal and Ontario Governments jointly to investigate the claims of the Chippewas and Mississauga Indians for compensation for loss of hunting and fishing grounds in Central and Northern Ontario has awarded the Indians $500,000. This will be paid immediately by the Ontario Government.

POLICIES FAILED TO WIN SUPPORT OF REICHSTAG

Paris, Nov. 24.—The German Reichstag was asked to express its opinion on a motion of confidence in the Stresemann Government yesterday. It declared against it by 230 to 155. The Stresemann Ministry then resigned and efforts are now being made to form a new Cabinet.

DR. STRESEMANN

When the German Reichstag was asked to express its opinion on a motion of confidence in the Stresemann Government yesterday it declared against it by 230 to 155. The Stresemann Ministry then resigned and efforts are now being made to form a new Cabinet.

STOWAWAY CAUSED BURNING OF VESSEL AND LOSS OF LIVES

Marseilles, Nov. 24.—A stowaway is said to have caused an explosion aboard the British steamship Otterburn just after the vessel had left here for New York yesterday with a cargo of potato, cotton and benzine. Tugs from this port towed the blazing vessel into the roadstead, where she burned to the water's edge. The captain and four of the crew are known to have lost their lives, but it is feared the fire claimed more victims as the number of stowaways in the Otterburn has not been determined. One of them, a Maltese, escaped from the flames and was arrested on suspicion of having caused the fire.

STEAMSHIP ASHORE IN NOVA SCOTIA IS BREAKING UP

Halifax, Nov. 24.—The steamship Riverwey is ashore and breaking up fifty miles west of here, according to a wireless dispatch reaching here early to-day. The crew was taken off safely.

A steamship of 2,258 tons, she was carrying a cargo of Welsh coal from Swansea to Boston.

COMING TO CANADA

London, Nov. 24.—Twenty-five English tobacco factory girls have left Liverpool for Kingston, Ontario, aboard the liner Montclair. They will be employed by the Imperial Tobacco firm.

FIFTY-FIVE THOUSAND FOR JUBILEE HOSPITAL WITHIN TWO WEEKS

Objective is $125,000, and More Canvassers Are Needed; Two Handsome Donations Swell Total To-day; Schools Collection

Two weeks of the Jubilee Hospital drive, one week to selected subscribers and one week of the general canvass, have produced a sum of $55,000. This is much less than had been expected in the period, but the committee looks for a much more-generous response in the ensuing week than has hitherto been the case to the canvassers.

A particular appeal is voiced at headquarters to-day to generous citizens to send in money direct to the Central Building, as the committee has not an adequate number of voluntary assistants to send out to all parts of the city to bring in the contributions. Action of this kind by personal appearance or mail will be greatly appreciated.

HANDSOME SUBSCRIPTIONS
To-day the committee was considerably encouraged by the receipt of two handsome subscriptions from two members of the Galt family. Messrs. John and Elliott Galt each sending cheques for $1,000.

SCHOOLS COLLECTIONS
First returns in connection with the schools collections came to hand to-day from city public schools, when $125 was reported, with a number of boxes yet to come in. On Monday the distribution will be made of boxes to the public schools in Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, and to the private schools of the city. It is anticipated that this assistance will considerably augment the total from school pupils.

FRATERNAL SOCIETY AIDS
From J. P. Pearce, secretary of the Victoria Lodge, No. 1290, Loyal Order of Moose, the following letter has been received:

"Enclosed please find cheque valued at $50, being a donation from this organization to the Jubilee Hospital Fund.

"This amount was voted at the last regular meeting, Friday, November 16, so that the honor of being the first fraternal society to donate really belongs to the Loyal Order of Moose."

VISIT THE HOSPITAL
The managing committee is anxious that the public should embrace the opportunity to see the building to-morrow afternoon, so that people

TWO WITNESSES AT POLICE INQUIRY

Mrs. Ida Barrett Tells of Narcotic Drug Incident in Vancouver
Longshoreman Testifies Regarding Drug Deals

Vancouver, Nov. 24.—Startling flashlights of Vancouver's underworld featured this morning's session of the Royal Commission inquiring into the operations of the narcotic squad of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Some idea of the immensity of the trade in opium, cocaine and morphine along the waterfront was revealed in evidence, while a young woman pictured a visit of one of the police operators to a reeking opium den on Dunsmuir street, where, she said, the police agent had supplied the narcotics for which the half-dozen inmates were craving. The manner in which the fractious visit of members of a Vancouver lodge to their brethren at Tacoma was utilized to smuggle sine tins of opium across the border was another high light of the session, while alleged threats and intimidation of a witness were also charged.

Mrs. Ida Barrett, the first witness examined by C. L. Harrison, of Victoria, acting for Attorney-General Manson, said she knew J. P. "Doc" Smith, one of the police agents. She had only seen him once, but did not know him personally.

Mr. Harrison—Where did you see him?

GIRL WAS KILLED IN VANCOUVER

Vancouver, Nov. 24.—Evelyn Parridge, fourteen, was killed last night in an apartment house elevator when she was crushed between the floor of the cage and the top of the door on the first floor. It is believed a short circuit due to a break in a cable caused the cage to ascend unexpectedly.

CARETAKER HID HIS STOLEN GOODS IN CHURCH BASEMENT

Peterboro, Ont., Nov. 24.—Confessing to seven charges of theft and burglary, William Webb, caretaker of St. Paul's Church, Lakerfield, has been sentenced to serve not less than six months in the Ontario Reformatory. Much of the loot was found hidden in the basement of the church where he was janitor.

Poincare's Supporters Pleased With Steps Affecting Germany

Paris, Nov. 24.—Friends of Premier Poincare are overjoyed at the latest developments in France's foreign relations, feeling these more than compensate for what she may have suffered in the notes sent to Germany by the Ambassadors' Council. The Premier's triumph in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday and the news of the capitulation of Hugo Stinnes and the Ruhr coal magnates—an agreement that opens a vista of productive guarantees—excitedly anxious position of foreign affairs, he has undertaken to remain at the Foreign Office.

BRITISH AND FRENCH RELATIONS DEPLORED BY LLOYD GEORGE

Glasgow, Nov. 24.—David Lloyd George declared in a speech here to-day that Great Britain's relations with France were never worse. "I doubt whether in living memory they have been quite so bad as now," he said. Referring to the European developments of the last twelve months he said: "Owing to what has happened in the last year, the restoration of normal trade conditions throughout the vast population of Central Europe probably has been postponed, not for a matter of months, but a matter of years."

REMAINS IN LONDON

London, Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press cable) Declining requests to speak on behalf of a number of Conservative candidates in the general election, the Marquis of Curzon, Foreign Secretary, explains that in view of the heavy responsibilities of his office, he has undertaken to remain at the Foreign Office.

SPECIAL ELECTION ON DECEMBER 29

Amusement Centre Measure Will Not Be Ready For Annual Poll
Proposal Now Made to Consolidate Proposals Into One By-Law

Victoria electors will be asked to vote on the principle of the Amusement Centre on December 29. The Times was informed this morning as the result of the negotiations yesterday afternoon with the representatives of the Canadian Pacific Railway, negotiations which will be resumed on Tuesday on the return of J. E. McMullen, Solicitor for the C.P.R. on this coast.

PHILIPPINE GROUP GOES TO THE U.S. TO ASK INDEPENDENCE

San Francisco, Nov. 24.—A party of Filipinos headed by I. Gabaldon arrived in San Francisco to-day on the way to Washington to present to President Coolidge a petition for complete independence for the Philippine Islands and for the removal of Governor-General Leonard Wood. Gabaldon is one of the Resident Commissioners from the Philippines to Washington.

PRISONER DIED IN IRELAND; FORTY DAYS HE TOOK NO FOOD

Dublin, Nov. 24.—The calling off of the hunger strike among the political prisoners of the Irish Free State came too late to save Andrew O'Sullivan, an Irishman, interned in Mountjoy Prison. He died in a hospital after a fast of forty days.

DEPENDED EX-PRINCE

Dr. Stresemann again defended Friedrich Wilhelm, whom he described as a man with a strong sense of political responsibility and great capacity.

OLD COUNTRY FOOTBALL

London, Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press cable)—Return games in the English soccer league, first division, played this afternoon, showed some interesting reversals from the results last Saturday. Cardiff City, the league leaders, repeated their draw with Manchester City, but Huddersfield turned the tables on Bolton, at Aston Villa, who drew with Liverpool.

PHILIPPINE GROUP GOES TO THE U.S. TO ASK INDEPENDENCE

San Francisco, Nov. 24.—A party of Filipinos headed by I. Gabaldon arrived in San Francisco to-day on the way to Washington to present to President Coolidge a petition for complete independence for the Philippine Islands and for the removal of Governor-General Leonard Wood. Gabaldon is one of the Resident Commissioners from the Philippines to Washington.

Recalling a promise from the Government in 1916 that the Philippines would be given their independence, Commissioner Gabaldon declared that islands now were strong enough to stand by themselves. "The Filipinos," he added, "are tired of being ruled by a military. They want a Government led by a civilian with business abilities."

CANADA MAY PURCHASE LABRADOR TERRITORY FROM NEWFOUNDLAND

Negotiations Started By Premier King and Premier Warren in London Are Expected to Be Resumed in Ottawa in December; Mr. King Now on His Way Back to Canada

St. Johns, Ffd., Nov. 24.—Sir Michael Cassin, former Prime Minister of Newfoundland, who has returned here from England, was asked by the Canadian Press if he knew anything of the reported arrangement for the sale of Labrador to Canada. He said he had heard in London that negotiations were going on.

The Canadian and Newfoundland statesmen over there seemed to think an agreement might be reached that would obviate the necessity of bringing the boundary question before the Privy Council. Questioned as to whether the willingness of Canada to buy, assuming that she was willing, meant the recognition of the Newfoundland claim to the territory, Sir Michael said he was not in a position to say, as he knew nothing of the details of the negotiations.

Premier Warren, he understood, would leave England in the early part of December for Ottawa via New York, and he thought the intention was to continue and, if possible, complete the negotiations there. He assumed the chief difficulty would be the amount to be paid.

PREMIER KING RETURNING
Ottawa, Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press) —The negotiations in regard to the purchase of Labrador by Canada, which are reported to have taken place between Premier King and Premier Warren of Newfoundland while they were attending the Imperial conference in London. No further information is available here on the subject, but it is known the question of the Labrador boundary has been a subject of negotiations between Canada and Newfoundland for some years. It is thought probable the conference between the Premier King and Premier Warren, which was renewed here after Mr. King sailed yesterday from England and is expected to reach Halifax next Friday and come on to Ottawa by the first of the week.

$35,000 SHINGLE MILL STARTED BY VICTORIA FIRM

Canadian Puget Sound Company Will Operate New Plant by First of Year
After negotiations with the city on foreshore rights the Canadian Puget Sound Lumber & Timber Company, Ltd., have arrived at a decision which has enabled them to commence work on the erection of a four machine shingle mill with two concrete double dry kilns on their property on Wood Street, near the old Rock Bay Bridge. The building permit taken out at the City Hall placed the work at $15,000. When the four machines are installed the total expenditure will be in the neighborhood of $35,000, states J. D. Kissinger, manager of the company.

The new plant, which will operate all the year round, will employ about thirty men each shift, and when the market warrants two shifts will operate. The company has accumulated a fund of $12,000 shingles in a single shift, or a total of 240,000 shingles a day when a double shift is working.

SCORES INJURED IN PHILADELPHIA

Bombs Set Off in Spanish and Italian Consulates
Great Excitement in Southern Part of City

Philadelphia, Nov. 24.—Two terrific bomb explosions in foreign consulates in the downtown district early to-day injured scores of persons, damaged many houses and threw the southern section of the city into wild excitement. No one was seriously hurt, so far as the police could learn. The first explosion occurred at the Spanish consulate on Pine Street about 1 a.m. and the second at the Sons of Italy Bank, Broad and Lasker Streets, an hour later.

Both blasts shattered windows and shook houses within a wide radius.

GREEN ARMY MEN LOOTED A RAILWAY TRAIN NEAR KIEV

Warsaw, Nov. 24.—A passenger train running between Kiev and Kharkeiv was attacked and looted yesterday by a Green Army detachment.

Gibraltar, Nov. 24.—The official Gazette publishes a notice declaring the Canary Islands "infected places" and under quarantine owing to an outbreak of pneumonic plague.

NO RACING TO-DAY AT MANCHESTER COURSE; FOG

London, Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press cable)—Owing to a heavy fog which settled over the course this morning and remained throughout the day, racing at Manchester this afternoon had to be abandoned. To-day was the closing one of the meeting, and with that the flat racing season of 1923 is closed. Much disappointment was felt through having to abandon the November Handicap, in which a number of high-class horses, including His Majesty's London Cry, were expected to start.

Tia Juana Scene of Fire; One-Third Was Destroyed

San Diego, Cal., Nov. 24.—Practically one-third of Tia Juana, Lower California, was destroyed by fire yesterday, that did damage estimated at $1,000,000. Had it not been for the San Diego fire companies sent to Tia Juana, the entire town would probably have been destroyed, it is said.

national has been introduced solely for work for the unemployed. There are between 8,000,000 and 10,000,000 women voters in the United Kingdom. CONDEMNATION PROTECTION The United States is often referred to as a government of the people, by the people, for the people. Government speakers as an instance of the benefits protection brings to the workers. Fred Brantley, secretary of the Trade Union Congress, in an address last evening at Manchester, scouted this argument, saying that where protection had been applied the poverty of the slums was chronic and housing conditions were of the vilest sort. "The slums of New York and Chicago," he said, "are nowise better and in many ways are worse than the slums of London or any other industrial city in this country."

NOT SEEKING RE-ELECTION

Thirty-six men who were members of the House of Commons recently dissolved are not seeking re-election. Among the probabilities of the poll is the return of a number of Conservative free traders, who in government party itself, in that case, will be greatly divided on the question of tariffs.

CONTESTS IN MANCHESTER

London, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press Cable).—The special correspondent of the Canadian Press who is writing on the present political situation in the great industrial centres, in reviewing the position in Manchester, says: "Manchester in the closing days of October remained convulsed by a general election was a far-off event and awoke to the reality with some-what of a shock. However, with Premier Baldwin's plunge and the return of the sections of the Liberal Party, the contest became the watchword of every political citadel in the cotton-centred city."

EXCHANGE DIVISION

There was a frank disappointment to all parties when Winston Churchill finally declined to fight in the city where previously he had enjoyed victory and had suffered defeat. The historic Northwest Division, where he had one of his biggest losses at the hands of Sir William Johnson-Hicks, Minister of Finance, is now the Exchange Division. It is claimed as the business men's quarter. While it includes a good part of Manchester's richest commercial area, it also takes in a big slum area with a considerable mixture of Jews.

MASTERMAN A CANDIDATE

Mr. Rushmore was disappointed in Canada but turning down his offer of nomination, it can console itself in this way: "The Manchester Stock Exchange the betting is three to one on the Conservatives having a majority and being returned to power. Much longer odds against the Labor party are offered."

LIQUOR CHARGES MADE AGAINST TWO MEN IN SEATTLE

San Francisco, Nov. 24.—Jack Barrett, said to be a former lieutenant of police in Seattle, and Henry Bettenhour were arrested by prohibition agents yesterday and charged to-day with transporting forty-two cases of Canadian liquor and also smuggling into this country. Prohibition Director Rutter said he had information that the beer had been shipped from British Columbia on a ship transferred to a smaller craft off this coast.

SUGGEST SCHOOLS FOR SURGEONS

Nine Years' Practice For Admission to American College Declared Too Long

Ottawa, Nov. 24.—Suggestions for the establishment of schools for prospective members of the American College of Surgeons to enable their entering the college without the present qualification of having practised nine years were offered at the closing session of the college here yesterday. Dr. P. H. Martin, Director-General of the college, asked that the suggestion be considered at the next meeting of the Board of Regents. INTERESTING ADDRESSES Some interesting and instructive addresses were given at the last session. Dr. C. B. Keenan, of Montreal, who performed remarkable operations during the war, spoke on bone grafting for skull operations in preference to the use of silver plates. Silver plates, he said, in many cases caused epileptic fits, which were stopped when bone grafting was attempted. He was never willing to report such cases cured, because the patient would be deprived of a positive pole by a negative pole, which should not be discontinued. NEW THEORY OF LIFE Dr. G. W. Crile, of Cleveland, referred to the new electro-chemical theory of life, dealing with a solution walking about. He represented the body as containing 28,000,000,000,000 little electric cells, formed by a positive pole surrounded by a negative pole. The difference in potential flowing from the positive to the negative pole, he said, supplied the energy that meant life.

"On October 30 last the Victoria Colonist carried an editorial which contained the following: 'Victoria's representation in the B.C. Legislature is now four members for a population of approximately 40,000. Two members would probably be adequate under a redistribution plan which would cut down on a pro rata basis the representation all over the Province.'

REPRESENTATION BY POPULATION

Again on November 16, the Colonist carried an editorial urging that some effort should be made to reduce the number of members in the B.C. Legislature. This editorial also represented in the B.C. Legislature, which would cut down on a pro rata basis the representation all over the Province."

MUST HAVE PLAN

"In the editorial of November 16 the Colonist, referring to a proposal that redistribution should be referred to a Select Committee, says: 'We are told that the bill when ready is to be laid before a Select Committee of the Legislature. It is that Select Committee which should draw up the scheme and not be tied down to considering a plan already outlined. I agree with the Colonist in part, but think it is absolutely necessary for the committee to have a proposition outlined to them with all data in reference thereto assembled for their information, otherwise the work of the committee would extend over a greater period of time than

CLYNES AND LEADERSHIP

J. R. Clynes, Labor member for Plaiting is regarded by Manchester as the rightful leader of the Labor Party. Local members of the Labor Party, who have been elected to the job by Ramsay MacDonald, should come through comfortably. The same can not be said for J. E. Sutton, Labor, who is trying to displace Mr. Clynes. Mr. Clynes has the seat in Clayton which he lost in the last election when W. H. Flanagan defeated him.

BETTING ODDS

On the Manchester Stock Exchange the betting is three to one on the Conservatives having a majority and being returned to power. Much longer odds against the Labor party are offered."

WORK OF DETECTIVE INVERTED FATALITY Salt and Water Emetic Give Relief to Man Suffering From Poison

The prompt action of Detective William Stark of the city plain clothes squad in all probability saved the life of Henry R. Watson, 915 Market Street, it developed at the trial of the latter in the City Police Court this morning. The accused is charged with attempting to take his own life. Forcing his way into the house where the accused lay groaning and alone, Detective Stark made a correct diagnosis of his complaint and lost no time in administering an emetic of salt and water. The emetic was successful in its purpose.

(Continued from page 1.) the people applauded. You know why. It was in protest against the interference of foreigners in the home affairs of Germany, and that the abolition of military service. You can not remove sentiment based on traditions of more than a century."

HEARD GROANS

Telling his story to the court this morning, Detective Stark told of being summoned to the home of the accused on Thursday afternoon. From the bedroom came groans, but the door was locked. Witness found his way in by another entrance, and found the accused lying on the bed. Noticing stains on the mouth, witness looked for poison and found an empty bottle of tincture of iodine on a nearby table. In answer to the officer, who asked if it was iodine that he had taken the accused had nodded assent.

LEFT A WILL

Witness lost no time in giving an emetic. While still suffering the accused directed the attention of the officer to two envelopes; one containing his will and the other a letter to his father, explaining his actions. These were submitted in evidence. Witness summoned a doctor, who had the man removed to hospital.

SHRANK FROM KNIFE

Dr. Archibald C. Sinclair told of being called to the scene. On arrival he looked for a spoon with which to examine the throat of accused. Finding none witness endeavored to make use of a knife for that purpose, but the accused shrank back in terror. The examination was conducted eventually, but with some difficulty. Later said witness, he placed the accused under anesthetic at the St. Joseph's Hospital, it being found necessary to put him asleep due to his violent actions.

OUT OF EMPLOYMENT

Deputy Chief Harry J. O'Leary told of knowing the accused over a considerable number of years. Witness stated that the accused was a returned soldier who had been out of employment.

At the evening service at the First Congregational Church to-morrow the musical programme will be given at which time the choir will be assisted by Miss Peggy Reynolds, soprano soloist. Miss Reynolds is recently from Vancouver, where she has appeared as soloist at many of the churches and also contributed numbers in various concert programmes, when she has delighted concert-goers with her charming voice and personality. Prior to this she has appeared in London in opera for several seasons in addition to her concert work. At the close of the recital Rev. Nelson A. Harkness, of Vancouver, will preach. A hearty invitation is extended to all to enjoy both music and speaker.

TOLD OF PAYMENT

Witness—About three days later Eccles paid us—Fernandez, Rivera and me—$520 each. Eccles said that it was the best price he could get for the sack. Continuing, the witness said Fernandez took the $520 which had been paid to the witness and gave him back $150, remarking that the reason he had in mind was to get witness to participate in the deal was that he might increase his own share of the proceeds by having another person in the split.

"LIKE MILLIONAIRES"

Witness—Yes, he said that in six months' time the Mounted Police would control the waterfront like millionaires, and he would give me a job as his chauffeur.

LONGSHOREMEN BLAMED

"It would appear longshoremen are pretty well engaged in this business," observed Mr. Pattullo. "It would seem so," said witness. Questioned further, witness said he went to Fernandez's house in June, 1921, in response to telephone message from Fernandez, who said he was nervous and wanted company. Fernandez brought two sacks filled with cocaine and morphine off the boat. He gave witness $30.

Asked if he had ever taken opium across the line, he said he had, that the twenty-five times Fernandez kept when the seventy-four were brought to his house were taken to Farn Pullen's home. Pullen, a longshoreman, said the staff would have to be asked whether they had taken opium in our pockets and went to Seattle, going to this house of a Spaniard. Witness did not know how much Fernandez got for the stuff, but it was selling for $80 a tin in Seattle then.

Fernandez had taken nine tins across and witness had taken eleven. One hundred and forty dollars had been paid witness at the New Richmond Hotel. Further questioned by Mr. Pattullo, witness said he had gone to Seattle

TWO WITNESSES AT POLICE INQUIRY

SAW CAN OF OPIUM

Witness—In a place on Dunsmuir Street, not far from the Baldwin Hotel, I saw him give a can of opium to George Kidd, or Muir, as he is also called. Mr. Harrison—When was this? Witness—About three weeks before last Christmas. Mr. Harrison—What kind of a place was this? Witness—It was an apartment of three rooms, and as far as I know the only purpose for which it was used was as a place to smoke opium. A DRUG RECENT Mr. Harrison—E. P. Davis, K.C. counsel for the Department of Justice, who is acting for "Doc" Smith in the absence of regular counsel for the police agent, the witness said the place was simply a "hop joint." It was run by a man named Tommy Burke and a partner of his named George Kidd, sometimes called Muir. Mr. Davis—How do you know all this? Witness—I was an addict myself. I was there. Mr. Davis—Who else was in the place when you say this transaction took place? Witness—There were Jess Williams, "Peenuts" Sinclair, George Maxwell, Tommy Burke and Kidd. Mr. Davis—Did you know Smith was a police officer? Witness—No, but after the sale was made someone came in and said that he was a "stool pigeon."

PLACE WAS RAISED

Mr. Davis—Was there a raid later? Witness—Yes, about a month later the joint was raided. Mr. Davis—Who made the raid? Witness—It was Eccles and Smith, but I can not say which Smith. I only saw him in the car. Mr. Davis—Who was there then? Witness—I think there were Jess Williams, "Peenuts" Sinclair, Burke and a fellow called "Fat."

WENT THERE TO SMOKE

Commissioner Smith—Were you an addict in December of last year? Witness—Yes. I was there for the purpose of smoking. Commissioner Smith—Were you smoking when this sale was made? Witness—No. We had no dope, so we all chipped in to buy it—to get some.

EFFORTS AT PREVENTION

In answer to further questioning, the witness said she was a married woman, residing with her husband, who had tried to prevent her going to hop joints. She had volunteered to give evidence on the advice of Mrs. Rose Murray, a stenographer, who was working hard in her efforts to stamp out the traffic in narcotic drugs and help girls who were victims of the habit. Mrs. Murray advised her to write to Mr. Harrison at Victoria.

AUSTRIAN-POLISH WITNESS

The next witness was a well-dressed, swarthy young man who gave his name as John Henderson. Later he said his real name was Jan Yudin and his nationality was Austrian-Polish. He was a longshoreman, but was not working now. He told Mr. Harrison he was acquainted with Eccles and Fernandez. He had met them last December 1921. "I went to Fernandez's house at 1608 Union Street one day last December," he said, "it was in the morning about 10 o'clock. Fernandez and his family were there."

TOTAL OF SEVENTY-FOUR

Witness—Joe Rivera brought thirty-six cans of opium at noon. They were in a sack. He put them out on the bed. Then he went back to work. Witness said that in the afternoon Rivera brought some more, making seventy-four tins of opium altogether. Fernandez and Sergeant Brown came that afternoon in an auto and took fifty tins away. Fernandez counted out fifty tins and put them in a sack. He kept twenty tins and Rivera took four. Then fifty tins in the sack were taken out and given to Eccles and Brown in the car and they drove away.

TOLD OF PAYMENT

Witness—About three days later Eccles paid us—Fernandez, Rivera and me—$520 each. Eccles said that it was the best price he could get for the sack. Continuing, the witness said Fernandez took the $520 which had been paid to the witness and gave him back $150, remarking that the reason he had in mind was to get witness to participate in the deal was that he might increase his own share of the proceeds by having another person in the split.

"LIKE MILLIONAIRES"

Witness—Yes, he said that in six months' time the Mounted Police would control the waterfront like millionaires, and he would give me a job as his chauffeur.

LONGSHOREMEN BLAMED

"It would appear longshoremen are pretty well engaged in this business," observed Mr. Pattullo. "It would seem so," said witness. Questioned further, witness said he went to Fernandez's house in June, 1921, in response to telephone message from Fernandez, who said he was nervous and wanted company. Fernandez brought two sacks filled with cocaine and morphine off the boat. He gave witness $30.

Asked if he had ever taken opium across the line, he said he had, that the twenty-five times Fernandez kept when the seventy-four were brought to his house were taken to Farn Pullen's home. Pullen, a longshoreman, said the staff would have to be asked whether they had taken opium in our pockets and went to Seattle, going to this house of a Spaniard. Witness did not know how much Fernandez got for the stuff, but it was selling for $80 a tin in Seattle then.

Fernandez had taken nine tins across and witness had taken eleven. One hundred and forty dollars had been paid witness at the New Richmond Hotel. Further questioned by Mr. Pattullo, witness said he had gone to Seattle

MAJ. R. MACDONALD FUNERAL IN ONTARIO Many Pay Tribute to Memory of Popular Canadian Soldier

Alexandria, Ont., Nov. 24.—Canada and Glangary mourned at the grave of the great-hearted Canadian, Major Neil R. ("Popcorn") Macdonald, when his mortal remains were laid to rest to-day in the little town of Glen Nevis. The church service was largely attended by people of all walks of life—by men who had known him on the trail—by men who were his companions in the trenches—by men whom he had befriended—all present to pay homage to his compelling personality. Floral tributes from all over Canada banked the bier, and there came hundreds of telegrams from all over the continent. Among the callers at the wake held last night in Montreal were General Sir Arthur Currie and Bishop Fallon, of London, Ontario.

EFFORT TO QUASH MURDER CHARGES

Juneau, Alaska, Nov. 24.—An attempt to quash two first-degree murder indictments against Harry "Battling" Johnson, charged with slaying a famous "Little Black Devil" of the Weilas in a dance hall in lower Front Street, September 24, was made here yesterday by former Mayor R. E. Robertson and Henry Rodey, attorneys for the accused. The attorneys argued that the grand jury which brought in the indictments included three in the indictment. One Indian, they contended, the jury should have been composed entirely of white men. No action was taken by the court. Further arguments are being given to-day.

GOVERNMENT WILL NOT PERMIT WIDE-OPEN LOG EXPORT, LOGGER TOLD

Timber Men Officially Warned Not to Try to Drop Bars Against Shipment of Unmanufactured Timber to U.S., Pattullo Reveals; Hasty Action Here Might Close American Lumber Market to B.C. Products, Farris Declares

British Columbia loggers' efforts to increase log exports to the United States have been flatly rejected by the Provincial Government. This was revealed in the Legislature by Hon. T. D. Pattullo, Minister of Lands, yesterday afternoon when he continued his fight for an investigation by the Federal Government's pulpwood commission into the whole question of raw timber export.

The Government, Mr. Pattullo declared, had actually stopped logging operations in British Columbia so as to prevent the export of logs. Total prohibition of log exports, he affirmed, would not bring about the establishment of new mills but would stop some existing operations. Every individual application for the right to export logs, he explained, is carefully considered by the Government.

Mr. Pattullo produced a letter which he had written to the President of the B. C. Loggers' Association in which he declared that it is the policy of the Government to encourage the manufacture of timber in the Province and that export of raw timber is allowed only as incidental to main operations. Mr. Pattullo, in his letter, officially warned loggers of British Columbia that the Government will not drop the bars against export. He also warned loggers against glutting the log market in an effort to force the Government to allow export. In reply to Mr. Pattullo's letter, the President of the Loggers' Association explained the difficulties of the loggers and agreed that the Government must consider the question from all angles.

MIGHT STOP OPERATIONS

If the Government stopped the export of cedar logs entirely Mr. Pattullo asserted, extensive lumber operations might be stopped or cedar trees would be left alone as a fire menace and an obstacle to new forest growth. In a second letter to the President of the Loggers' Association, Mr. Pattullo declared that the Government cannot change its policy, that it wants to keep the timber industry flourishing and to prevent the depletion of the Province's forest wealth.

Mr. Pattullo warned the Legislature against forcing the United States Government to erect a tariff against British Columbia products. Strong representations in favor of such a tariff had been made to the late President Harding and to President Coolidge, he said. Such a tariff would be a crushing blow to the lumber industry and would ruin the single business, he said.

WILL GET FACTS

Investigation into the log export situation by a Federal commission, Mr. Pattullo declared, would get all the facts. He added that Kenneth Duncan, Independent Member for Cowichan, in trying to force a resolution in favor of an export duty on logs, seemed to be trying to make political capital.

Mr. Pattullo foresaw the day when it might be necessary to take drastic action to curb log exports but the time had not come yet. He believed he said, that big mills would be established here to manufacture British Columbia timber instead of the logs being shipped for manufacture to the United States. The company, he asserted, owned Crown-granted timber from which it could export logs. Instead it preferred to manufacture them here.

That the Legislature must proceed along the rational lines suggested by Mr. Pattullo if success is to be attained in dealing with timber export operations might be the final conclusion reached by J. W. de B. Farris, former Attorney-General.

WARNS AGAINST HASTE

Mr. Farris warned the House that strong representations have been made at Washington for the imposition of a duty on all imported lumber, and suggested that no hasty move should be made to bring this about which could occur through action along the lines suggested by Kenneth Duncan's resolution in favor of a liberal tariff on lumber.

The speaker emphasized the argument that all the proposal of the Minister of Lands really aims at is that there should not be undue haste in connection with the matter and that it should be fully considered in all its phases. Should the Duncan resolution as proposed be adopted by the House and sent to Ottawa, the Federal Government would be disposed to regard it as having been sponsored only by a private member of the Legislature, he said.

"Oriental labor and American capital are ravaging our country to-day," Major R. Burde, Independent Member for Alberni, exclaimed, as he warned the House to stop American aids on the Province's timber resources. If American interests continued to grow in British Columbia timber, he declared, there would soon be no trees left on this coast, which would be useless then, except for people who could live on the mountains and the fact that American lumber interests were trying to intimidate the Government when they threatened not to re-build their mill at Chemainus if the eight-hour day came into effect. The advocates of log export, he said, were Americans, not Canadians.

Mr. Duncan strongly urged the passage of his resolutions favoring a tax on exported logs. Thomas Menzies, Independent, Comox, adjourned the debate.

CANADA'S SCHOOLS COMMENDED BY NEW ZEALANDER

Auckland, New Zealand, Nov. 23.—Open air schools, "slight-saving schools," classes for subnormal children and other educational innovations are commended by N. R. McKenzie, a New Zealand inspector of schools, who has just returned from an exchange visit to Canada.

"The lavish way in which money is spent on education in Canada is a surprise to a New Zealander," says Mr. McKenzie. "It is not uncommon to find junior high schools as we should call them costing $2,000,000, while one public school in Ottawa cost at the rate of $1,000 a pupil. We have nothing like that in this country. It is three times as much money as we have ever spent upon a school."

Mr. McKenzie commended Canadian school equipment and the acreage allowed for each school and said New Zealand has much to learn from her northern sister.

BURIAL PLACE OF CHIEF DEBATED

Auckland, New Zealand, Nov. 23.—Whether the bones of the outlaw Chief Te Kooti, who many years ago led a rising in the North Island and terrified white settlers for a time, should remain where they have been buried in the King Country, the last part of New Zealand left to the Maori race, or be taken to a tribal home in Gisborne, is a question that is exciting all the natives of the north.

They have been holding "korero" over it for weeks, reciting the history of the tribe to which Te Kooti belonged and arguing with great eloquence as to his proper place of burial. As one set of natives, however, insists on the bones remaining where they are even if they have to fight for it, there is not likely to be much more than talk about the matter.

AGED WOMAN KILLS HERSELF AT SECOND ATTEMPT

Newark, N.J., Nov. 24.—Mrs. Marie Moore, eighty-seven, who failed two weeks ago to kill herself by hanging, was found burned to death yesterday at the home of her son, Rev. Frank Moore. It is believed the aged woman carefully wrapped newspapers about her body, soaked them with gasoline and then applied a flame.

NEW ZEALAND PAPER DISCUSSES CANADA'S COURSE

Special to The Times

Auckland, New Zealand, Nov. 23.—Canada and her attitude towards imperial questions are discussed in some of the New Zealand papers. The Auckland Herald accuses Premier King of being indifferent to such things as imperial preference. "It is not a hopeful approach to the problem of an Empire navy," it says, "to assert that a great Dominion like Canada must oppose any proposal involving additional taxation. There is every reason to fear Canada is cold on the subject of a naval subsidy, and that her coldness is a handicap to the other Dominions."

The paper expresses surprise that Canada should not welcome constitutional changes, since "she has shown rather a disturbing desire for establishing precedents," and has been in the past "the foremost advocate of changes."

A Canadian reader of the paper points out to the editor that if the Dominion had waited for New Zealand to take the lead in anything, the Empire would still be where it was in the days of Downing Street control.

SECOND TERM FOR JELICCOE AS GOVERNOR OF NEW ZEALAND

Special to The Times

Wellington, New Zealand, Nov. 24.—Lord Jellicoe, the Governor-General, is understood to be willing to take a second term of office in New Zealand.

Before Premier Massey left for London it was understood the Duke of York was likely to be asked to become Dominion when Lord Jellicoe left, but now it is known the Duke does not wish to undertake such duties for a few years to come, and as Lord Jellicoe is not eager to return home for the present, the Government is negotiating for a second term for him.

Lord Jellicoe has been immensely popular in New Zealand, and every-one would be satisfied if he remained.

S. J. FARMER MAYOR OF WINNIPEG FOR ANOTHER YEAR

Winnipeg, Nov. 24.—S. J. Farmer, Labor, was yesterday re-elected Mayor of Winnipeg with a majority of 4,899 over Robert Jacob. The contest was fought on a variety of issues, including the record of Mr. Farmer as mayor during the last year, the platform of the Labor Party, which endorses his candidacy, and the policy and personnel of the Winnipeg Civic Association, which brought Mr. Jacob into the field.

Mr. Farmer's majority came principally from the central and northern sections of Winnipeg. South Winnipeg went for Jacob, but in insufficient strength to alter the result.

WEDDING GUEST STOLE PRESENTS

Special to The Times
Wellington, New Zealand, Nov. 23.—A new disease has been discovered in the New Zealand law courts. It is called psychasthenia and is induced by a girl of sixteen escaping with a caution when charged here with housebreaking.

The girl raided many houses in the city and suburbs and took away articles of little value. She escaped detection until at a wedding where she was an invited guest she stole the major part of the presents, crystals, jam dishes and silver articles.

To the strains of the "Wedding March" she joined the wedding procession into the church with the banner of her costume filled with loot.

The doctors said she had psychasthenia, which they defined as mental disability of a certain kind not sufficiently advanced to be styled kleptomania.

CRERAR RE-ELECTED BY GRAIN GROWERS AS THEIR LEADER

Winnipeg, Nov. 24.—Hon. T. A. Crefar was re-elected president of the United Grain Growers, Ltd., at a directors' meeting here yesterday. Other officers elected were: C. Rice-Jones, first vice-president; J. Kennedy, second vice-president; S. Law, secretary, and L. M. Gaetz, assistant secretary. J. J. McEellan, J. F. Redd and F. J. Collyer were elected to serve with Mr. Crefar and Mr. Rice-Jones as the executive committee.

ADVOCATES EQUALITY

Perth, Western Australia, Nov. 23.—Mrs. Cowan, member of the West Australian Legislative Assembly, the only woman member in the Commonwealth, is advocating sex equality in eligibility for public office.

Introducing a bill which would allow women to hold all public offices, she made a strong point by pouring scorn on the ludicrous opinion of a man holding the office of Minister for Motherhood in a former New South Wales Labor Government that had brought in a motherhood endowment act.

FRENCH PREMIER GIVEN FREE HAND

Special to The Times

Paris, Nov. 24.—By a vote of 595 to 70, one of the most sweeping votes of confidence in its history, the Chamber Deputies yesterday, approved the policy of the Government of Premier Poincare in the recent negotiations in the Council of Ambassadors with regard to Germany.

The Chamber gave the Premier carte blanche to execute his programme of future action in enforcing a complete execution of the Treaty of Versailles for the protection of France's national interests and security, in accord with the Allies if possible, but alone if he must.

Premier Poincare, in his address, did not flinch in his attitude of stern determination to force the Chamber immediately to proclaim its approval or disapproval of his policy. His words seemed to remove the smouldering discontent expressed by some deputies during the past week at what was termed the Premier's retreat before Great Britain's viewpoint with regard to the demands to be made upon Germany.

The Premier put the responsibility squarely up to the Chamber, declaring that if it was not satisfied with his Government it her security should be menaced; that France was ready to face a rupture with the Entente.

With Allies or Alone
The Premier declared France would act against Germany with or without the Allies if her security should be menaced; that France was ready to face a rupture with the Entente.

He placed the responsibility for the lack of penalties in the notes of the Council of Ambassadors to Germany on Great Britain, and declared France would not wait on the pleasure of the Allies before acting when her security was menaced.

NO GERMAN MONARCHY
Amid applause from the extreme left, Communists and Royalists, M. Poincare served notice on the world that France would oppose by force of arms any restoration of the Hohenzollern regime in Germany. An admission of inability to act with regard to the former Crown Prince, however, somewhat chilled the Chamber.

The Premier announced that he considered the question of military control the greatest threat to the security of France, and that France might be compelled to act alone in the near future, thus emphasizing the precariousness of the accord with Great Britain and the Council of Ambassadors.

FORMER GOVERNOR OF OKLAHOMA NOW IS FACING CHARGES
Oklahoma City, Okla., Nov. 24.—J. C. Walton, removed Monday as Governor of Oklahoma, was indicted yesterday by the Oklahoma grand jury on seven counts charging diversion of public funds, intimidating an officer and preventing the assembling of the lower House of the State Legislature.

NEW JAPANESE INSURANCE PLAN
Tokyo, Nov. 24.—The Japanese Government has decided to advance the insurance companies sufficient funds to cover ten per cent of their earthquake and fire losses, charging them two per cent interest. The amount that would be advanced if the companies should accept the offer would be 200,000,000 yen, or the equivalent of $100,000,000.

As security the insurance companies would organize a guild to which each company would subscribe a certain amount which would go to form a swinging fund for the repayment of the loan. The companies are considering the proposal.

BRITAIN'S POLITICAL CONTEST

When the late Prime Minister of Britain appealed to the electorate twelve months ago the most uncertain element of speculation was furnished by Labor's bid for a larger measure of parliamentary representation. The split between the two Liberal wings indicated fairly surely that neither Mr. Lloyd George nor Mr. Asquith would be able to command a following that could expect to dominate the House of Commons. On the other hand the Conservative Party, by reason of the obvious desire on the part of the people of the country for a change of Government and a return to the party system, had everything to gain from the lack of unity in the Liberal ranks as well as from a considerable volume of objection to a number of Labor's proposals—to say nothing of numerous manifestations of unreadiness for a workingman's Government.

Upon this occasion, however, the forces under the command of Premier Baldwin are faced by a united Liberal Party which is prepared to defend Conservative attacks upon the traditional fiscal policy of the country to the last ditch. Nevertheless this considerably altered condition can not be taken to indicate that there will be a substitution of Liberal for Conservative predominance in the next Parliament by any means. In fact the party which has selected Mr. Asquith as its temporary leader, aided though it is by the interesting personality of Mr. Lloyd George, finds itself obliged to do battle both with the Protectionists under Mr. Baldwin as well as the Laborites under Mr. Ramsay Maedonald. For the Laborites have no more love for the capital levy than they have for tariff reform. Under the circumstances, therefore, unless there shall be a last-minute pact in a number of constituencies between Liberals and Labor—a somewhat forlorn hope—there seems to be rather a poor prospect of an out-and-out Free Trade Government.

At the same time it is difficult to see how Mr. Baldwin can hope to retain sufficient of his 342 seats to give him a working majority now that his authority has been staked upon such a vital national issue. On the day of dissolution there were 118 Liberals and 144 Laborites in the House and it is safe to say that while Labor will hardly be likely to hold its present status—since it won nearly three score of seats at the last election because two Liberals were running in the same constituency—Mr. Baldwin's majority must suffer severely at the hands of Free Trade Liberalism. Consequently it would appear that if the Conservative Party returns the most candidates—a fairly sure bet—the best Mr. Baldwin can hope for is a session that will blow up as soon as the first preference issue is introduced.

GERMANY AND FRANCE

Two startling situations are facing the Allied world during the week end. Chancellor Stresemann lost his confidence motion by a vote of 155 to 230. Premier Poincare is able to contemplate a vote of confidence in his favor to the tune of 505 to 70.

Conditions in political Germany are as clouded and uncertain as they are in economic Germany. At this distance a solution of the many-sided problems in which she and her former adversaries are interested seems farther off than ever. None the less it is doubtful whether yesterday's vote in the Reichstag will turn out to be half as significant as it may appear on the surface. With France and the French Government it is a different matter. How deeply the two situations will involve one another remains to be seen.

Meanwhile the Entente still hangs together; but the hint that if the British Government finds the single track of Allied action against Germany less to its liking than it is at present even this compact may go under and still more complicate the European situation.

WOULD THEY DO IT?

A commentator in the morning paper says the United States Government would not "cut off its nose to spite its face" by imposing a duty on British Columbia manufactured lumber imported into the republic in retaliation for a restriction imposed on this side upon the export of logs into that country. The Americans, the writer says, need our manufactured lumber owing to the rapid depletion of their own supplies and, therefore, should not think of imposing any restrictions upon its importation.

If the writer would devote about ten minutes to an investigation of the situation, its history and its possibilities, he would discover that as far as his contention is concerned he is dwelling in a fool's paradise. For example there is a greater demand for Canadian wheat in the United States than there is for Canadian lumber, because we produce a quality which cannot be obtained anywhere in the republic, yet the Washington Government had no hesitation in imposing a heavy customs duty upon this commodity as well as upon many other Canadian commodities, in pursuance of its well-known protective tariff policy.

Washington is being pressed by lumber manufacturers in Washington, Oregon, California and other states to erect a similar wall against our lumber, for which there is a provision in the United States tariff law and, as we pointed out the other day, Mr. Fielding was approached from this Province last year to negotiate a special arrangement with Washington to prevent just this contingency. Why jeopardize the most profitable market of our chief industry for the sake of prohibiting the export of 48,000,000 feet of logs, much of which could not be marketed in British Columbia in any case?

Our contemporary, in its same issue to-day, opposes the proposal to impose a special sales tax on fuel oil imported from California, although the production of this commodity benefits the people of that state, on the ground that this tax will bear heavily upon certain British Columbia industries which use fuel oil. Is it any more important to protect those industries than it is to promote the foreign market of the lumber industry of this Province? Are we so prosperous in British Columbia just now that we can afford to destroy a market which consumes half of our total lumber output? Who would be guilty of cutting off their noses to spite their faces if by putting a restriction on 48,000,000 feet of logs, much of which cannot be sold at home, we deprived ourselves of the profitable opportunity of extracting many millions of dollars from our neighbors by selling them many times that quantity of manufactured lumber? The mentality which contemplates that prospect with such indifference that it will not even investigate its possibility in authentic quarters must indeed revel in hard times.

A STORM IN A TEACUP

After learning of the report from Nanaimo that between forty and fifty newly-arrived immigrants were stranded at that point without prospect of employment and without means of subsistence the provincial Deputy Minister of Labor betook himself to the Coal City to investigate the case. As a result of his inquiry he found that only fifteen of the young men in question were in a position of temporary embarrassment and he informed the Government yesterday that no serious obstacles would bar an early improvement in their condition.

This is the real story which prompted the calling of an indignation meeting at Nanaimo and gave the Victoria Post of the Canadian Legion a subject for a resolution of protest in respect of any immigration policy that would produce such a situation. All of which goes to prove that the display of a little patience and an examination into the facts would be a great deal better than hasty judgment upon false information—whether arising out of an over zealous regard for the welfare of idle unfortunates or from purely political motives.

Note and Comment

Those who have not yet contributed to the hospital building fund should avail themselves of the earliest opportunity of doing so.

This is what Sir Henry Thornton says about the Canadian National Railways: "With a refusal to meet defeat, I believe we will make the Canadian National Railways not only self-supporting, but also a thing of influence in Canada." There is no whisper of death here.

Mr. Ramsay Maedonald is not going after trouble. When he was asked what he would do with the House of Lords if his party were returned to power he satisfied himself with this remark: "If the Lords override a Laborite House of Commons it will be time enough to deal with the matter." The Leader of the official Opposition was not born yesterday.

The Prince of Wales has received a letter from a fourteen-year-old girl expressing the hope that he had had a nice holiday in this country. Included in the missive, however, was an inquiry as to what the "natives of Canada" looked like. No wonder that H.R.H. says that statesmen and teachers of every variety should travel and get the Empire viewpoint.

Some Thoughts for To-day

I was angry with my friend;
 I told my wrath, my wrath did end.
 I was angry with my foe;
 I told it not, my wrath did grow.
 Wm. Blake.

In all thy humors, whether grave or mellow,
 Thou'rt such a touchy, testy, pleasant fellow,
 Hast so much wit and mirth, and spleen about thee,
 That there's no living with thee, nor without thee.
 Addison.

Haste thee, Nymph, and bring with thee
 Jest, and youthful Jollity,
 Quips, and Cranks, and wanton Wiles,
 Nods and Becks, and wreathed Smiles,
 Such as hang on Hebe's cheek,
 And love to live in dimple sleek;
 Sport that wrinkled Care derides,
 And Laughter holding both his sides.
 Milton.

CANADA HONORED

Manitoba Free Press:—To Canada has come the greatest honor of the year to the medical world. Dr. F. G. Banting and Dr. J. J. R. McLeod, of Toronto, discoverers of insulin, have been awarded the Nobel prize for medicine. This is the first time this prize, open to all the world, has come to Canada. What this discovery, heralded by the British Medical Association as one of the two great discoveries in medicine in our time, means to suffering humanity, becomes clearer every day, as records are quoted of the thousands of diabetics supplied with the remedy.

Britain's Issue

What William Trant Wrote in 1874 Indicates Why Free Trade Has Held the Country Through Generations

Since the repeal of the Corn Laws, three-quarters of a century ago, free trade has been one of the great fundamental issues in British politics.

The issue is now raised again in the present election; it is proposed by the Government party to go back on the old system and bring Britain under protection.

Just why free trade has had the hold on the British people it has had is indicated in the following excerpts from William Trant's book on Financial Reform, published in 1874. Besides having a remarkable career as a journalist in England, India and France, where he was arrested during the commune, imprisoned and sentenced to death, Mr. Trant took an active part in British politics, both as a writer and speaker. Mr. Trant is now a resident of Victoria at 2400 Dalhousie Street.

BY WILLIAM TRANT

In 1840, mainly through the exertions of J. D. Hume, a movement to remit protective duties began; but it was not until estates became so impoverished that the owners gave them up to the parish because the rates exceeded the rents; it was not until people were reduced to an existence upon fifteen pence a week (8,000 of them in the Manchester district alone); it was not until the mills and warehouses were closed and the ships lay idle in the harbors; it was not until there was a famine in Ireland; it was not until sufficient revenue to meet the national expenditure could not be found, and the whole nation was on the verge of bankruptcy and ruin, that Messrs. Bright and Cobden drove home to the hearts of the people of England the necessity of believing at any rate one commodity from an impost which was starving the country.

The result was that in 1844 the Corn Laws were abolished and the back of protection was broken.

Since then many remissions of indirect taxation have been made—sometimes with great reluctance, and at other times, by a coup de main, as in 1854, when Mr. Gladstone followed the advice of the Financial Reform Association and swept out of the tariff the duties on less than 435 articles at one stroke.

It is important to remember that whenever a duty has been partially remitted, there follows an considerable advantages to the people, and whenever one has been entirely abolished, greater benefits still have accrued to both consumers and producers alike, so that it is any rate an experience of the past warrants us in asking for further similar reforms in the future.

Every step which we have made towards free trade has been beneficial. The history of the importation of every commodity proves this. No sooner was the duty off paper than large import trade in rags set in. Before the duties were taken off timber, furniture being admitted duty free, English carpenters actually had to emigrate to make furniture for their own country, because it could be made cheaper abroad. Now, however, there is a great export trade from England. Ask anyone if it is desirable to re-impose the timber duties.

What was the result of the French treaty, which it was proposed would ruin Macclesfield and Coventry? Coventry and Macclesfield will tell you they have suffered nothing, but gained much. The increase in trade between England and France, which that treaty gave rise to, was enormous. The result was well pointed out by an American paper: "By exchange with England, France gets for $80 in silks, cottons which would otherwise cost her $95—a handsome gain of twenty per cent. England gets, for cottons costing $100, silks which would otherwise have cost her $120—another handsome gain of twenty per cent." As soon as the treaty was ratified the Bradford hotels filled with buyers from France, and firms in Manchester, Birmingham, London, Leeds, Sheffield, and other towns opened branch offices in Paris.

Then, again, when the tea duty was reduced, I find from The Times that India rejoiced with an exceedingly great joy. "New tea companies, all sound, are springing up every day, and several coffee companies have been established in Ceylon. A valley, destitute of population and worthless to the state before the mutiny, now yields a good revenue, besides the purchase-money of the land and is as smiling as an English county."

Mr. Edmund Potter, ex-M.P. for Carlisle, in addressing his workpeople a short time ago, reminded them that when he started the calico printing works at Dinting Vale, in 1825, there was not a single article used in the works which was not taxed, whether it were timber, glass, soap, starch, salt, paper, cotton, madder dyes or oil. It was Mr. Potter says, very up-hill work in those days. "If," said he, "I were asked to what I owe my prosperity, I should say that it was based simply on the good free trade measures which have been passed within the last forty years."

Taxes on imports are virtually taxes on exports as well; by diminishing our demand for those commodities in which the foreigner pays us.

It must be remembered that no country can export an article or produce to any extent unless it is prepared to sell the same as cheap as the other countries, and therefore the ability or inability to export becomes a true test of the ability or inability, profitably, to produce for the domestic market.

That is to say, that if foreigners will not buy of us, it is because we are charging too much for our commodities, and if we are doing that we are causing a loss to our own countrymen.

It is no answer to say: "It is no loss, because we never had them cheaper." I hold that where a man, or a nation, might have gained, and is prevented from doing so, he, or it, suffers a loss.

A gentleman once drew my attention to the fact that a printing press had been purchased on the continent by one of the London newspaper proprietors, and my friend said: "See what free trade is doing; the foreigners are able to buy iron in their own country, make it into machines in their own, and then bring it over here and undersell us in our own market." He thought that a sign that the country was going to pieces. I saw nothing alarming in the fact. The machine must have been able to do the same or a greater amount of work at a less cost than others they could buy here or it would not have been purchased, in which case capital was liberated for the employment of labor in other channels, while the machine itself caused more paper, more printing ink, et cetera, to be used than were used before, and thus industries were stimulated and employment increased.

When we buy more than we sell, we must be gainers. When we buy cheaper than we can produce, we are also gainers. Exportation represents labor, and the reciprocity in fact, the exports cannot increase if the imports are restricted, and the answer, that when we change goods of different prices, one party must lose, is fallacious. It is the comparative, not the actual value which must be looked to, and all that concerns us is the value to us. The balance of trade and the reciprocity arguments have no weight with me. Mr. Bright clenched all such objections by asking: "If the foreigner refuses to buy cheaply of us, will it mend the matter if we refuse to buy cheaply of him?"

On the first night of a new play the man in the front row of the stalls got up towards the end of the second act and began to put on his overcoat. This was too much for the actor-manager, who stalked down to the centre of the footlights and addressed the delinquent. "Excuse me, sir," he observed, "but perhaps you are not aware that there is another act."

Rainy Days

Bring Thoughts of Laundry

Swish comes the rain; the days of Summer are over with their sunlight and warmth; again comes the thought of doing the washing at home and hanging out the clothes in the murky wet.

That one unpleasant duty of the week may be done away with once for all without hanging any load on the family budget. Family Laundry Service we call it and we do your whole washing at nominal cost. No steam about the house; no hanging out clothes in the rain.

Family Laundry Service includes health insurance. And yet it costs less than to have some one come to the house to do the washing and relieves a woman with a family who does it herself. Think of laundry work in broader terms than shirts and collars.

Curtains, Rugs, Turkish Towels, Silk Underwear, every single article of clothing, or for use in the home, goes through a separate process here.

This modern laundry is the handy Monday morning housemaid for every woman in Victoria.

IN WOMAN'S DOMAIN

Spencer's Ltd., Hosts at Dolls' Reception

The invitation was to the little girls of the city, yet it was not entirely a "girl's party." Far from it, for certain small boys, jealous of feminine privileges and with a flair for what was good, had inveigled themselves into the party, and smiled disarmingly from their vantage point in the enclosure. They knew Mr. David Spencer hadn't the heart to turn them out, so he circled busily among his guests, looking the very essence of hospitality.

Yet it was a "girl's party" for all that. Little girls with big ribbon bows, and each carrying the puppet darling of her heart, were to be seen in all parts of the store, hurrying with tense excitement written on every feature, up to the second floor, where the party was staged.

Here inside a low barricade were thirty small tables, covered with miniature Christmas trees and dainty with pink and blue streamers. Round them sat the expectant guests, wide-eyed and blissful, while a programme of jolly music was played for them by Miss Thain.

Then from a large doll's house at the side of the stage emerged a wonderful doll (cleverly represented by Miss Coue Webster). So realistic was she that one almost looked for her price-tag, and the doll dance she was the last word in doll-mechanics.

Fairy dances by the Misses Cheryl Stone and Margaret Cookson next delighted the small guests, after which ice cream and biscuits made a pleasing interlude. The little dancers later gave a doll's song and dance and a poppy dance before the party adjourned to Toyland, where free rides on a merry-go-round brought to a close a blissful afternoon.

The parties which have been held on three successive days at Messrs. David Spencer's have had a record attendance.

Mrs. Clifford Stone was responsible for the training and direction of the little dancers.

Mrs. Caruso Will Wed on Wednesday

London, Nov. 24.—Mrs. Enrico Caruso and Captain Ernest Ingram, of London, will be married next Wednesday morning in Brompton Oratory, it was announced today. The Italian Ambassador at Paris, Baron Romano Avezzano, will give away the bride. The couple will leave for the United States some time in December. Mrs. Caruso was formerly Miss Dorothy Park Benjamin, of New York.

On Wednesday last the members of St. Paul's Tennis Club, Esquimalt, held a very successful dance at the Rex Theatre. A large number of people attended, and thoroughly enjoyed the dancing to the music supplied by Heaton's orchestra. Delightful refreshments were served, and the evening was a most enjoyable one.

The Ladies of Court Maple Leaf, A.O.F., will hold their regular meeting at 7.30 on Monday at the Foresters' Hall. Members having donations for the bazaar are asked to bring them if possible on Monday night. A social evening will be held at the close of the meeting.

Dancing for Boys

The average small boy hates dancing school with a deadly loathing. To have to come in from a game of baseball or football, encased in comfortable corduroys, and dress up in a "broad white collar, one's best suit, and take along a pair of patent leather slippers, is enough to embitter the soul of any "reglar feller." Yet, if he only knew it, the sense of rhythm, self-confidence and command of muscle that comes to him in his childish dancing school days is invaluable when he reaches the gawky, lumbering, self-conscious age of adolescence that lies just around the corner.

A mother who has several young sons told me recently that she used to dread more than all other days the afternoon when her little boys were booked for dancing school.

"That was in the days when they wore those crazy, pointed, sticking steps," she explained, "and when they were expected to dance with girls. Every bone in their bodies rebelled. But the modern dancing teacher has learned how to handle boys, and my youngest chap, Ernest, goes to his dancing class with as much eagerness as he goes to a movie—well, almost as much. His teacher is a young woman who has studied with a Russian dancing master, and she teaches the boys the abrupt, masculine Russian folk-dances that the Russian men dance when they come over to our stage.

KIRKHAM'S PERSONAL

VICTORIA W.I. HAD CROWDED SESSION

At the last meeting of the Victoria Women's Institute, Miss M. Blankenbach gave a very interesting account of the domestic Science course as taught in the city public schools, telling just what was planned in each class, both sewing and cooking and showing how economically these classes are conducted. November 27, a splendid account of the laws and acts passed in British Columbia, which directly benefit women.

Mrs. H. Norris spoke on Canadian Publications, and among them, Country Life, a British Columbia magazine published monthly, which deserves wide patronage.

The T.B. committee reported a very successful silver given in aid of the committee funds. Two patients in the Tubercular Ward died during the month. Flowers were sent and committees members attended the funeral, besides which $5 was voted towards the funeral of one of these patients, a young lady. On Wednesday, November 17, Mrs. Wilkinson and two other members visited the T. B. Ward, taking cigarettes and candy to the patients.

The annual monthly visit of the Victoria Institute to the T. B. Ward was held on Tuesday, October 19, when a good concert was given and refreshments served to the patients.

A full report of the exhibition of work and bazaar held October 29, was presented showing this undertaking having been very successful. Another sale of work and afternoon tea will be held at the Institute rooms on Tuesday afternoon, December 4, and a luncheon in honor of the Vancouver Island District Conference delegates will be given by the Institute on Tuesday, November 27. Several members have offered assistance to the Salvation Army tag day, December 1, in response to a letter asking for help.

After adjournment Mrs. Fooks, Mrs. Nicholson and Mrs. McCoubrey served a delicious afternoon tea.

GORDON HEAD W.I. REGULAR MEETING

The Gordon Head Women's Institute held its regular monthly meeting in the Gordon Head Hall on Wednesday, November 21. Mrs. Thos. Todd, the vice-president, was in the chair.

A large number of members and friends watched the excellent demonstration of lamp shade making by Mrs. Grute, who was present through the kindness of Weller Bros.

Many congratulations were showered upon the members who won first prize for the institute at the potato fair, and also upon Mrs. Darius, a member, who carried off the prize in the prepared dish section.

Plans were made to hold a card party in the near future, the proceeds to go to the institute at the club.

The members passed resolutions of deepest sympathy towards Mrs. Sadler and Mrs. Townsend in their recent sorrow.

ST. ANDREW'S CATHOLIC THREE-DAY BAZAAR

A big three-day bazaar will be held early next month under the auspices of St. Andrew's Cathedral. The Alexandra ball-room has been engaged for the 4th, 5th and 6th of December, and elaborate preparations are in hand for a thoroughly successful affair. The ballroom will be effectively decorated, and will present a scene of great beauty. In addition, the organizers having provided a large number of novelties suitable for gifts and souvenirs at the various stalls. The bazaar will be transformed into an attractive tea-room, where music and a bevy of dainty waitresses will enhance the charm of the cup that cheers. Support will be given by the friends of those attending the evening session.

ST. ANDREW'S CATHOLIC THREE-DAY BAZAAR

The women's auxiliary of the Canadian Legion held a most successful book shower on Wednesday evening in the reading room at the club. Ninety-eight bound books and a large number of magazines were received. The ladies wish to thank their many friends, also members of the organization, who so kindly contributed to the collection.

Victoria Review No. 1, W.B.A. of the Maccaebans, will hold the next regular meeting in the K. of C. Hall, Government Street, on Tuesday evening, November 27, at seven o'clock. A social dance will be held from 8.30 to 11.30, with a good orchestra in attendance. All local and visiting members, as well as their friends, are cordially invited.

Dancing for Boys

They dance with folded arms, or elbow akimbo, with stamps and kicks, and a really acrobatic step involving one bent knee and one straight one.

They are taught that these are dances for men alone, and this seems to take away the sting. They are difficult, which makes them seem like a form of athletics. Moreover, the boys are expected to dance with girls. The girls are there, and looking on—after the boys have looked on at their class. An audience makes the little fellows try harder, and they pretend not to. The modern ballroom dances, too, but they dance with each other and not with the girls.

"This wise, tactful young teacher has succeeded in making every boy in her classes look forward to the next lesson and protest against staying away. It seems nothing short of a miracle to me!"

PRESBYTERIANS PLAN BIG XMAS BAZAAR

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church will hold its annual Christmas bazaar on Saturday, December 1, when the usual stalls of plain and fancy wares, novelties for Christmas gifts and other attractions will be provided. Tea will be served during the afternoon, and Lady McBride has kindly consented to perform the opening ceremony.

V.A.S.C. DANCE

The dance committee of the Victoria Amateur Swimming Club have planned a hard times dance for the evening of Wednesday, December 5, to be held in the Carter Hall, Courtney Street. No decision has yet been made as to whether the most appropriate dress will be the person wearing the most or the least rags. Club members will please notice that on account of the dance being held on general meeting night, the meeting will be postponed until Thursday, December 6.

K. of P. DANCE

The Knights of Pythias, Far West Victoria Lodge, No. 1, of this city, are arranging to hold their annual dance in the Armories on New Year's Eve, active committees are now working on elaborate plans for the entertainment of the patrons. Ozaard's sixteen-piece orchestra has been engaged for the event and dancing will be from 9 to 2. Dress will be informal.

The catering, which will consist of a buffet supper, has been placed in the hands of an efficient caterer.

There will be arranged special midnight attractions for welcoming in the New Year. The dance promises the patrons a good evening's entertainment, and those intending to attend are requested to procure their tickets as soon as possible from the committee or at the K. of P. Hall.

MOTHERS' WELCOME LEAGUE

Thirty-three mothers and eighteen children attended the fortnightly meeting of the Mothers' Welcome League held in connection with the Esquimalt Child Hygiene Council at the parish room, St. Paul's Garrison Church, Mrs. Booth, the president, gave a very instructive address, dealing with children's diet, food values, the necessity of fresh air and best means of ventilation for children's sleeping apartments. She also distributed some very interesting pamphlets dealing with these topics. After the lecture a social half-hour was enjoyed. Mrs. C. Brown kindly contributed some songs, and tea was served by the refreshment committee.

SERVED HIM RIGHT

It is annoying when one goes to the theatre and has one's view obstructed by the hat of a woman seated in front.

Nobody has much sympathy for those of the fair sex who choose to wear their largest hats while seeking amusement, but on the other hand there is the crusty old man who finds fault with everything, and pretends that he is unable to see the stage even when the hat in front of him is of the smallest variety.

One of these was at the theatre when, after fidgeting for some time, he growled in a loud voice to the girl in front of him, "Do you mind moving your hat? I can't see through wood."

The girl turned and looked at him quietly for a moment, and then said, calmly: "Very well, change seats; I can."

A young artist was given permission by the captain of a large ship to get on a staging, slung over the side, for the purpose of getting a better view of another vessel which he wanted to paint.

It was not long after that the captain got into the ship's boat, and shouted up to the artist, "Go the painter!"—the painter being a rope by which the boat is made fast to the ship.

The order not being obeyed promptly, he shouted again, "Let go the painter."

Instantly a voice replied, "He's gone, sir; brushes, paint, and all!"

BOOK SHOWER FOR CANADIAN LEGION

Y.W.C.A. BOARD HELD SESSION ON THURSDAY

A special meeting of the Board of Directors of the Young Women's Christian Association was held on Thursday afternoon to consider an appeal from the Dominion Council of the Y. W. C. A. for the immediate support of its foreign work in China. The sum of $100 was subsequently voted towards the support of Miss Elliott, Y.W.C.A. secretary in Hong-kong. The collections at the daily services during the World's Week of Prayer will be forwarded to the World's Committee. Other business included the election of Mrs. Cornett as a member of the board of directors, and the expressed desire of the board to join as an association the Victoria branch of League of Nations, Mrs. George Piercy, president, reporting on the formation of that branch and its objects. The members of the board are feeling very much encouraged and gratified at receiving a generous donation of $5,000 from Mrs. Dunsmuir, which will go towards the new Y.W.C.A. Building fund. The need of the new building is emphasized more and more each day, extension work in present quarters being almost impossible.

HIGHLAND SOCIETY

At the regular monthly meeting of the Highland Society which was held in the Orange Hall, Courtney Street on Wednesday evening, a very enjoyable evening was spent. Among those present were Mr. Campbell, M. P. for Nelson, and Mrs. Campbell. During the evening Mr. Campbell gave an address on "Patriotism and Other Scottish Characteristics," which added greatly to the enjoyment of the evening.

Another pleasant feature of the evening was the singing of Mrs. A. H. Crossley, a lady who has just recently returned to Victoria. Her rendering of "My Ain Folk" and the "Rowan Tree" received the generous response they deserved.

Refreshments were served during the evening under the convership of Mrs. N. P. McDonald, ably assisted by members of the society. The floor was then cleared for dancing, the music being supplied by Miss L. Hanson and Mr. D. Cameron. Mrs. H. Pigot and Miss Hanson accompanied the singers.

Others contributing to the musical programme were Mr. and Mrs. J. Taylor, Miss Simpson and Miss Jean Tyre.

FAVOR PLATOON FIRE CONTROL

Vancouver, Nov. 23.—There will be no opposition from Vancouver to the proposed Bill being placed before the Legislature to give firemen in all cities of more than 10,000 population, one day off in seven, the City Council has decided.
Fire Chief J. H. Carlisle says that at present firemen are on duty twelve hours a day throughout the year with the exception of fourteen days' holidays each year. He says the change would mean the addition of twenty-four men to the staff and would entail an increase in the payroll of from $16,000 to $25,000. It would tend to greater efficiency as the men would be more satisfied, says the chief.

TALK OF EXTRAVAGANT PAYMENT TO WITNESSES ABSURD, FIGURES SHOW

Manson Bares Facts of Government's Rate Fight to Prove All Expenses of Witnesses Justified; Press Reports of Public Accounts Probe Absolutely Accurate, Bowser Tells House

That the British Columbia Government has not paid unwarranted traveling expenses to rate experts or their wives in its freight rate fight was shown by figures which Hon. A. M. Manson, Attorney-General, laid before the Legislature yesterday afternoon. Mr. Manson made known the real facts of the freight rate fight and the expenses of Government witnesses to clear up the suggestion that these witnesses had received expense money which they were not entitled to.

He explained that some confusion had arisen in the Public Accounts Committee when the expenses of the rate experts were under consideration. In this connection all leading British Columbia newspapers quoted Chief Accountant Bridges, of the Attorney-General's Department, as saying that expense money had been paid by the Government to Hugh Dalton, J. E. Walsh and S. B. Brown. While Mr. Manson believed that confusion had occurred in these reports, W. J. Bowser, Opposition Leader, who heard Mr. Bridges give his statement before the Public Accounts Committee, declared emphatically that the newspaper reports had been absolutely correct. No mistake had been made by the newspaper reporters, he assured the House.

ITEM STRUCK OUT

This item, Mr. Manson explained, was for nineteen days' living expenses for Mr. Dalton. The item, before the House, was struck out of the account by the accountant. Mr. Geer's law office without reference to Mr. McGeer. When Mr. McGeer had seen the item he had immediately notified the Attorney-General's Department that it was incorrect. Mr. Manson stated, Mr. Dalton, Mr. Manson asserted, had received nothing for living expenses. It was suggested that the expenses of rate experts' wives had been paid by the Government. Mr. Manson declared that no money had been paid for the expense of Mrs. Dalton, Mrs. Brown or Mrs. Walsh.

REFLECTED ON EXPERTS

In his statement to the House yesterday, Mr. Manson declared that reports of the Public Accounts Committee's proceedings would do an injustice to certain gentlemen mentioned. "Through some misunderstanding some report got into the press that has caused a reflection on the traveling expenses of W. K. Miles' wife from Toronto to Vancouver and return. Mr. Manson explained. This had been necessary because Mr. Miles had been absent from Vancouver for ten and one-half months. It was only on condition that his wife accompany him that he had agreed to come. Mr. Miles' General said, Mr. Miles' services, he added, had been extremely valuable and the Government had been fortunate in being able to secure them.

HAD TO MEET TERMS

"Faying the expenses of his wife was not unusual," Mr. Manson declared. "We had to meet his terms and we make no apology for having done so. Apart from that case there is no mention in the accounts of wives. These gentlemen were not dishonest enough to suggest that the expenses of their wives should be paid and the Government did not suggest it."

REPORTS CORRECT

Mr. Bowser emphatically denied that newspaper reports of the Public Accounts Committee proceedings had been incorrect. "I have read the newspaper reports carefully and from my memory now and looking through the files I take it the reports were absolutely correct," he declared. "The Attorney-General says that Mr. Miles' wife's expenses were part of the contract. If that is the case the contract evidently didn't know because the accountant of the Department checked up Mr. McGeer regarding Mrs. Miles' expenses and it was on the second day of the account that the information of Mr. McGeer to the Department that I got my impression that the Government was paying the expenses of wives."

"There apparently was an enquiry from the Department as to the authority for paying so that Mr. Bridges, or someone else checked up Mr. McGeer. There was also some discussion regarding Mrs. Dalton's expenses. However, we can straighten that all out when the Public Accounts Committee meets again."

NINETEEN DAYS EXPENSES

Mr. Bowser explained that an item for $29,000 on the account of Mrs. Dalton for nineteen days, which had been struck out of the accounts, there was in the accounts also an item of $28,000. Mr. Dalton, "That," said Mr. Bowser, "is where I drew the inference that Mrs. Dalton had been included, as it would hardly cost $28,000 for Mrs. Dalton alone to travel to the east and back."

"The newspapermen reported the proceedings not only intelligently but correctly," Mr. Bowser declared. "Only once during my twenty years in public life have I seen fit to criticize anything from the press gallery. From the files and from my memory the newspapers reported the circumstances correctly."

At the next meeting of the Public Accounts Committee, Mr. Bowser said, it would be possible to go into the whole matter and see that the gentlemen mentioned in connection with expenses were cleared of any insinuations against them.

NO LIVING ALLOWANCE
It was not denied that $28,000 had been paid to Mr. Dalton for traveling expenses. Mr. Manson explained, but no allowance for living expenses had been made.

"I am not quarrelling with the press gallery," Mr. Manson declared. "I am suggesting only that confusion arose in connection with the proceedings of the committee when half a dozen people were asking questions and it happened as last year when Mr. Bowser turned to a newspaper reporter and said 'Shoot the poison.' There is too much of that shooting poison."

"What name do you use?" Mr. Bowser asked.
Major Richard Burde, Independent Member for Alberni, warmly defended the newspapermen. He remarked that it was often difficult for reporters to hear what members were talking about at all. Referring to Mr. Bowser's remark that it was better for the rate experts to take their own wives with them on their journeys than to take other men's wives, Major Burde observed: "He probably speaks from experience."

THE SEASON OF ROMANCE—A VISION OF LANCASHIRE

By Wm. Holt, Formerly of Victoria, B.C., in an English Exchange.

The grey dawn lingers. Each day sleepy sun follows his low trajectory across the southern sky to an earlier couch. The nights draw in.
Soft as gossamer is this twilight of the month, resting through the evening of the year as it gently releases the cooling and waning Summer, and lets in the Winter rigors one by one. The great spinning mills and throbbing factories are changing to fairy palaces ablaze with twinkling lights. Their thoroughfares are pulsating as the milky way. Fairways have become the pathways of fiery dragons that hiss and snort through the air, and their thoroughfares are pulsating as the milky way. NEWS AND NOTES FROM THE MINES

TO PROSPECT SEAM

A lease of land taken out some fifteen or sixteen years ago by W. P. Tierney, well-known as a railway contractor, who was identified with numerous railway construction camps in Similkameen, has been taken over by the Princeton Coal Company. The ground contains a seam of coal.
Mr. Tierney some sixteen years ago took a lease on the land and started a tunnel, marketing there an amount of coal at Penticton. He later let the lease lapse. Robert Baxter took up the lease some five years ago and carried in the tunnel some 100 feet.
The coal company just taking over the property will prospect the seam and a camp site is being put up to accommodate the crew of twelve men, which will constitute the crew. The seam is located about seven miles from Penticton.
Three men from Wales walked into a Manchester establishment and asked for three glasses of Vintage Port.
After smacking their lips the first one said: "Look you! that's the finest glass of port wine I've never tasted!" The second remarked: "So 'did I, too!" and the third capped it with: "Neither did I, too!"

Benny Leonard May Defend His Title in Mexican Ring

San Diego, Cal., Nov. 24.—Something definite regarding his plans for a championship boxing contest at Tijuana, Mexico, this winter, are expected to be announced by James W. Coffroth, well known as a promoter of fights and as president of the Tijuana Jockey Club, which operates the race tracks at Tijuana, on his arrival here from Mexico City.

A telegram received by J. P. Atkin, manager of the race track, from Coffroth yesterday says Coffroth will leave Mexico City to-day and will arrive here Wednesday afternoon. Coffroth says he is hastening his return from Mexico City to be here for the opening of the Tijuana race season Thursday.

AGREEMENT WITH BIG LEAGUES IS ALRIGHT

Chicago, Nov. 24.—Any attempt to modify their present working agreement with the major leagues would be nothing short of sacrificing their independence, President A. R. Taarney yesterday told club owners of the Western League in a letter discussing the coming league meeting here next month.

He pointed out the benefits of the agreement which his club owners accepted with the major leagues, as a substitute for the draft, and explained that he had information from a number of other leagues which would gladly accept this same arrangement if it is possible for them now to do so.

"Under the present arrangement," Taarney said, "the Western League has an ideal situation, as under the rules it can operate exactly as a league that has accepted the draft, but denies the league the right to arbitrarily take a player."

SETS RECORD LANDING 12-LB. BROWN TROUT

New York, Nov. 24.—A new world's record for brown trout fishing was set by George A. Babb, of Lake Nebagamon, Wis., who caught a twelve-pounder in the Brule River, Wis., and on the thirteenth annual fish fishing contest conducted by Field and Stream, the publication announced last night.

Two other contestants, W. L. Valentine, of Los Angeles, and Harry T. McNeill, of Sheboygan, Wis., caught brown trout which exceeded the record ten-pound catch credited to Harry Ackley in 1917.

BATTLED TO A DRAW

Fargo, N.D., Nov. 24.—Russie Lerby, of Fargo, and Rossie Hill, of Des Moines, Ia., battled ten rounds to a draw here last night. Hill's effective left jab piled up enough points for him to offset Leroy's advantage in infighting and in the exchanges of wallops.

for BURNS FOR SCALDS, CUTS AND BRUISES. DE THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL

A man was giving a lecture on the subject of "Honesty."

He related that when a boy he saw a cart laden with melons outside a shop and nobody about. On the spur of the moment he stole a melon and darted into a passage.

"I soon got my teeth into that melon," he said, "but instantly a queer sensation assailed me, and a shiver went through me. My resolve was taken at once. I went back to that cart. I replaced the melon—(loud applause)—and took a ripe one."

Aggressive advertisers usually encounter the commiseration of their over-conservative competitor who confides to mutual friends that the merchants in question are making a foolish splurge.

The truth is the aggressive advertiser has already learned the lesson of real prudence. In advertising it is true that the man who does "more than he can afford" comes to be able to advertise more and more aggressively. His audacity wins.

People have a way of sitting up and taking notice of the aggressive man. He compels attention; and if his aggressiveness seems to be in the interests of all concerned why his personal progressiveness means real service to the people, as is always the case when a store takes the offensive, the attention he compels turns to profits.

In store-making, as in all lines of endeavor, the brave spirit conquers. Assuming, of course, that the merchant's audacity is based upon the sound principle of a wise expenditure of his money.

It's a pretty safe policy to spend more for newspaper advertising than your competitor thinks you can afford to spend.

OCEAN AND COASTWISE SHIPPING

GOVERNMENT ESTABLISHES UNINTERRUPTED CHAIN OF COMMUNICATION ON COAST

Direction-finding Station at Pachena Will Warn Vessels; Wireless Stations at Cape Beale, Carmanah and Lennard Island Give Increased Protection Against Loss of Life; Thiepval and Armentieres to Patrol Coast

With the establishment of four new wireless stations for life-saving purposes on the West Coast of Vancouver Island, a direction-finding station at Pachena Point, the assignment of two patrol boats at Banfield life-saving station and the installation of a new and up-to-date rocket-gun on the lifeboat, serious disaster on the West Coast should be eliminated this winter.

The powerful direction-finding station at Pachena will also help to offset disaster on Vancouver Island's coast.

The Dominion Government during the past few months have been putting into effect a well-arranged programme for life-saving on this coast, with the result that there is now a wireless station at Cape Beale, for life-saving purposes only, connected with the Banfield station, a wireless station at Carmanah Point that will also be able to report to the Banfield life-saving station, and a wireless station at Lennard Island capable of communicating not only with the life-saving station at Tofino but with Estevan, which in its turn can communicate with Victoria. The direction-finding station at Pachena and the stationing of the Thiepval and Armentieres at Banfield makes the West Coast of Vancouver Island safe for navigation during the stormy and foggy season. The direction-finding station will be of particular value when heavy fogs hang over the coast.

JAPAN'S CUE WIZARDS WIN OVER AMERICANS

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 24.—The cue wizardry of the two Japanese players in the 182 ball line junior billiard championship tournament asserted itself yesterday, and both of them triumphed over their American opponents in two of the shortest games of the tournament to date.

In the first game, Tadeo Saganuma, of Japan, defeated Al Taylor, of Ann Arbor, 300 to 100. The Japanese player made a high run of 130 in the fourth inning. The second game resulted in the first victory of Kinry Matsuyama, of San Francisco, who defeated Albert J. Cutler, of New York, 300 to 130.

Saganuma set a record for the tournament when he ran out in seven innings and Matsuyama tied it with another seven inning game.

WON ON EASY DECISION

Los Angeles, Nov. 24.—"Dandy Dick" Griffin, local 120-pounder, easily won the decision over Ad Ribidoux, of San Bernardino, in the main event at the American Legion Stadium in Hollywood last night.

JOCK'S JOKE

Late one night Jock, returning home from work, found a young owl which had fallen from its nest. He picked up the injured bird, carried it home, fed it, and at last placed it in a cosy corner of the kitchen fireplace.

In the early morning Jock's mother came down into the kitchen to get breakfast ready for the family, and was startled by the strange object. But she soon recovered from her alarm, for she was accustomed to the many tricks of young Jock.

"That's our Jock at his pranks again!" she smiled. "He's gone and put a beak on the kitten."

The method used by ships to obtain a bearing is as follows: The ship calls the shore station and signals "Q" after the shore station responds the ship is told to proceed with the signal figure "2" repeated thirty times, during the process of the transmission by the ship the shore station manipulates his instrument, which is more or less complicated, until he locates the exact position of the ship. The shore station then sends a message to the captain advising him of his findings.

The wireless stations established at Cape Beale, Carmanah and Lennard Island are all short range sets installed only for the purposes of communicating in cases of life-saving and weather reports. There is an operator stationed at both Carmanah and Lennard Island, but the lightkeeper at Cape Beale handles the wireless there. The Lennard Island communicates to Tofino station, which in turn can communicate with land wire to Banfield. If this fails, communication can be obtained by way of Estevan and then via Banfield or Victoria, so that assistance can be dispatched to the scene of any wreck in very short time.

The Thiepval and Armentieres have both been undergoing a thorough overhaul and conditioning before proceeding to Banfield to patrol the coast.

The Thiepval will be the first to leave in the patrol work. She is expected to leave Esquimalt on Tuesday for Banfield and will be relieved after serving her period at the station and patrolling the coast by the Armentieres. Both these vessels have powerful wireless sets and will be able to pick up messages at sea either from the land stations or vessels in distress.

SETTLED HIS DEBT

"I see a railway van conveying letters was burned the night before last, and its contents destroyed. Wonder the train escaped."

"Really? Where was it bound?" "Going north—to Edinburgh."

"To Edinburgh? Good, good!" "Good! What is there good about that?"

"Why, you see, I owe a man in Edinburgh ten pounds, and I've promised to send it to him until he won't take promises any longer."

"What's that got to do with it?" "Everything, everything. I'll go off now and write asking him why he doesn't send a receipt for the money I sent last—what day did you say the van was burned?"

She—I can't stand kissing. He—Shall we sit down?

NEW DIRECTION-FINDING STATION

PACHENA STATION The Pachena Point lighthouse has been equipped with the first direction-finding station to be installed on this coast and will give ships their bearings when asked for. This is a valuable acquisition to the coast life saving equipment, as ships that are unable to get bearings in dense fog will be able to secure their position by communicating with Pachena Point station.

WANT FOG SIGNAL AT SIDNEY ISLAND

Board of Trade Sends Request to Dominion Marine Agent

Some form of fog signal on the Sand Spit at Sidney Island is sought by the Sidney Board of Trade in a letter sent to Colonel A. W. R. Wilby, agent of Marine in Victoria for the Dominion Government. The letter points out that the Anacortes-Sidney ferry service may be continued throughout the winter and some difficulty has been experienced during the recent fogs in making Sidney. An automatic light and horn signal, it is suggested, would be the best to meet the situation. Eight thousand cars, carrying 17,212 passengers, entered the port of Sidney this season up to the end of October, it is pointed out.

WERE IN COLLISION

Balboa, Nov. 24.—The steamer Mevania from San Pedro yesterday rammed the steamer Steel Engineer, bound from Philadelphia for Vancouver. The accident occurred in the Outer Harbor. The Steel Engineer will be repaired at Cristobal, but the Mevania, only slightly damaged, will be able to continue her voyage. Poor visibility is said to have been responsible for the collision.

KINGSLEY TO TAKE 200,000 FEET OF LUMBER FROM MILL

The First of 2,000,000-Foot Movement Over Week-End; Lehigh Due Monday

Lumber to the extent of nearly 2,000,000 will be loaded at local mills during the week-end, it was stated this morning. With the arrival of the E. D. Kingsley at noon to-day to load 200,000 feet of lumber at the Canadian Puget Sound Lumber Company's mill to-day, the first of the 2,000,000 foot shipment will move. The Kingsley, which is being handled by King Bros., is expected to complete loading and clear for Oakland, Cal., tomorrow.

The lumber movement to California is still on the increase. The fire at Berkeley, Cal., is partly the cause of the increased demand for lumber. This demand, added to the demand from Los Angeles, has increased the lumber shipments out of this port.

The Admiral line steamer Lehigh, which is due here Monday, will load 1,500,000 feet in the Inner Harbor. The Canadian Puget Sound Lumber Company is providing 1,000,000 feet of the consignment, while the Cameron Lumber Company will load 400,000 feet. The Victoria Tie Company will complete the consignment.

BOY STOWAWAY GOT AS FAR AS CAPE TOWN

Lad of Eleven Hides on Steamer and Starts Round World For Trip

Melbourne, Australia, Nov. 23.—Riding on board the steamer Ballarat from Melbourne, Alec Stewart, a lad of eleven, got as far as Capetown before he was discovered. He was bound to Glasgow to see some relatives he had heard about and he had represented that his parents were ill in their cabins and so escaped discovery.

He was standing on the quay at Melbourne and the gangway of the Ballarat was about to be pulled up when the quartermaster said to him: "If you are going on young 'un, look slippy." Alec needed no further invitation. He had a good time in Capetown while supposedly under detention. He was returned by the next steamer and said as he landed back in Melbourne: "Well, I suppose, I shall get a good lathering from the old man for this."

SOL DUC WILL MEET GRANT IN SUNDAY

Chinese Will be Taken to Seattle by Coast Steamer Grant Due at Station at 8 o'clock To-morrow Morning

Owing to the fact that the Admiral Oriental liner President Grant, will not dock from the Orient until 9:30 o'clock to-morrow morning, the Sol Duc will make a special trip to the ship's side to-morrow to take on the sixty-eight Chinese steerage who are to make connection with the Great Northern train leaving Seattle to-morrow.

The Chinese are bound for Cuba and Central American countries and were to take the Sunday Great Northern train out of Seattle en route to their destination.

The President Grant will make quarantine about 8 o'clock to-morrow morning and will dock about 9:30 o'clock at Ogden Point.

The Grant has 1,200 tons of cargo for discharge here. The Sol Duc will dock at the Ogden Point pier on the morning and afternoon and will have passed immigration and customs officials will be placed aboard the Sol Duc and taken on to Seattle.

The Grant has altogether 275 passengers, sixty-five of whom are first class passengers. She has a large cargo of silk totaling 6,000 bales.

RESTORER WILL RETURN SOON

Cables Ship Will Carry Out Work in B.C. Waters

The cables ship Restorer, called from Honolulu to repair the break in the Pacific cable out of San Francisco, is now at the California port.

The Restorer is expected back in these waters very soon. She is to return to Charleston, on Puget Sound, before she takes up the cable work that has been assigned to her in British Columbia waters.

The Restorer left Victoria during the month of August for Midway Island, where she laid new cable to the Commercial cable station there. A new channel has been found through the coral reefs, and the ship replaced the temporary cable that had been installed.

In the past Midway Island has demanded a great deal of attention from the repair shop. The Restorer was based at Honolulu during this work, and it was from that point that she speeded to San Francisco to mend the break in the Pacific cable.

Funeral of Capt. Gilchrist Held

Vancouver, Nov. 24.—Beautiful floral tributes at the funeral of Capt. W. L. Gilchrist yesterday bore silent witness of the high esteem in which the former master of the Canadian Pacific coast steamer Princess Patricia was held by friends in British Columbia. The Masonic ceremony was made more impressive by the great turnout of brother mariners who were present to extend the last respects to the memory of one of the best beloved of their cloth on this coast.

The pallbearers were: Capt. H. Shadforth, Capt. T. Manson, Capt. Cliffs, Capt. R. M. MacKay, Capt. Kinney and Capt. Wallace.

F. G. C. Wood will lecture on "The Plays of Lord Dunsany" at the Victoria College at 8:15 sharp on Monday evening. After the lecture a short business meeting of the Association will be held. On behalf of the city Mayor Hayward has accepted the offer of an English philanthropist to present thirty pictures to Victoria for the nucleus of an art gallery which will be shipped here, packed free of charge, through the Agent-General's office. A general meeting of the Liberal Association will be held on Wednesday night, November 28, at the Labour headquarters at 10 o'clock. The meeting will deal with revision of the constitution. The chief speaker of the evening will be Ian Mackenzie, Liberal member for Vancouver.

Charged in the Provincial Police Court this morning with shooting at ducks from a motor boat on Macaulay Point to William Head. From 5 p.m. to midnight the range will be 6,000 yards, the arc of fire being from Macaulay Point to Albert Head. A number of the latest and most popular concert numbers will be played by the twenty-piece orchestra of the 4th Regiment Canadian Garrison Artillery at the community concert to be held to-night at the Christ Church Cathedral Buildings. The concert will be conducted by Bandmaster Albert Rumsby. An enjoyable evening was spent by the Pilgrims Bible Class of the Centennial Methodist Church on Thursday evening at the home of Miss Edith Zellinsky, 1025 Hillside Avenue. It was decided to hold the next special evening at Mrs. W. S. Simpson's residence, 3143 Cedar Hill Road, on December 6.

A display of Christmas books suitable to give young children will be made by Miss Clay, of the Children's department of the Victoria Public Library during the coming week. The idea of the exhibition will be to show people the right kind of a book to give a young child for Christmas. There will be a great assortment and the public are invited to view the display. In commemoration of the thirtieth anniversary of United Service Lodge No. 24, A. F. & A. M., a dance has been arranged which will take place on December 13 at the Alexandra ballroom. Supper will be served, and Heaton's five-piece orchestra will render a good program. All Masons and their friends will be cordially welcomed and it is hoped that city brethren will give the function their hearty support. "Motor drivers appear to be under a misunderstanding," stated Magistrate Jay in the City Police Court today in connection with the traffic measure, "the by-law does not say ten feet in rear of the front door of the motor car, but ten feet in rear of the car." Ruling that the court imposed a fine of $10 on a motorist accused of passing a standing street car. The car overtook him, replied the accused, but the court stood firm.

Members of the Advisory Board of St. Joseph's Hospital waited on the Mayor yesterday afternoon, and informed him that the hospital did not wish the city to be responsible for all unpaid bills, but only for the bill rendering it impossible that the City Council will be asked to pass on the subject until the Legislature does with the proposed amendment of the Hospitals Act defining municipal responsibility for bills by limiting it to indigents, instead of to residents of thirty days' standing.

Margaret Jenkins P.T.A. will hold a dance and card party in the school auditorium on Monday next, commencing at 8:30 p.m. Heaton's orchestra have been engaged to provide the music for dancing. Mr. White will have charge of the card room, and those wishing to play cards will have the choice of either bridge or 500, as it is the intention of the committee to run both games at the monthly dances. Prizes will be given for cards, and refreshments will be provided. The ladies' committee are putting on a bazaar and sale of work on December 14.

The death took place this morning, after a lingering illness, of Miss Isabelle Thompson, age 23 years, born in Ontario and resident of this city for the past twelve years. The deceased was survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, of 1018 Oliphant Avenue; also two brothers and five sisters. The remains are resting at the Sands Funeral Chapel, and due notice of the funeral will be announced later.

The death took place at an early hour this morning at his home, 1864 Government Street, of Low Kong Poo, age 23 years, born in China and a resident of this city for the past fifteen years. The funeral will take place on Monday, November 26, at 2:30 o'clock, from the Sands Funeral Chapel, and interment will be made in the Chinese Cemetery.

The funeral of the late William Walker took place yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Sands Funeral Chapel. Numerous guests were in attendance, and the hymns sung were "Peace, Perfect Peace, and Abide With Me." Rev. H. Pearson officiated and the pallbearers were: Messrs E. C. Montagu, J. C. Miller, J. W. Fullbrook, W. Craig, C. P. Hastings and J. Sherratt. The remains were laid to rest at Ross Bay Cemetery.

The death took place yesterday afternoon at 1227 Blanshard Street, of Mrs. Eliza Williams, aged 82 years, born in Cornwall, England, and a resident of this city for the past thirty years. The deceased was survived by her husband, Mr. William Williams, of Port Angeles, and Mr. Kirby Williams, of this city. The funeral will take place on Monday, November 26, at 2 o'clock, from the Sands Funeral Chapel, and interment will be made at Ross Bay Cemetery.

Looking at the hymns Mr. and Mrs. Brown had selected to be sung at their daughter's wedding, the rector noticed that the hymns were in German. Meeting a member of the family, he inquired why they thought it suitable to the occasion. "Well, anything like that is, isn't it—heart's and wedding."

STEEL HERE FOR MEMORIAL HALL Being Put in Place For Reinforcing Ground Floor Steel for the use in the construction of the Anglican Memorial Hall arrived this week, and is now being put in place for reinforcing the ground floor of the new building at the corner of Vancouver and Courtney Streets. The first consignment of cut stone is also on the ground, and parts are already in position at different points of the building. The steel came from Ontario, and the cut stone from Newcastle Island. The walls generally are being constructed of rubble or local stone, backed with concrete.

BASEMENT READY The pouring of concrete for the basement walls has been completed. All floors and partitions in the new building will be of fireproof construction. Provision for the central heating chamber and workshop have been made in the deep excavated portions of the west end of the building. The heating chamber has been made large enough to accommodate additional boilers when required for the new Cathedral. Twenty men are being employed by the contractors, Messrs. Parfitt Bros. The Memorial Hall is being built under the direction of the Christ Church Cathedral Buildings Committee. J. C. Keith is the architect for the building, and N. J. Hopkins has been appointed clerk of works.

ITALIAN DIED BY OWN HAND Man Killed Himself While Companions Slept, Coroner's Jury Find That Luigi Trigappi, forty years of age, an employee of the B.C. Cement Company at Bamerton, died by his own hand and without witnesses was the substance of a verdict returned by a coroner's jury at the McCall Funeral Parlors this morning. Evidence was given to show that the victim of the tragedy was a married man, with a wife residing in Italy. He had been two years in the present employment and roomed with two other Italians at Bamerton. Joe Roberto and M. Sante, companions of the late Luigi Trigappi, shared the same bunkhouse. Roberto and Sante stated to-day that they slept through the enacting of the tragedy and awakened at 6 a.m. yesterday to find their companion dead on the floor. Previous to this Sante had got up in the middle of the night when Luigi complained of the cold. Sante, giving medical evidence of the injuries sustained by Luigi Trigappi, Dr. Gordon Kenning judged that the victim of the affair came to his end by his own hands. The wounds bore traces of being self-inflicted, he intimated. Constables Smit and McPhail of the provincial police responded to the call sent in from the works and brought body to the city. Holding that there was no evidence as to the mental condition of the victim at the time of the tragedy, the jury found a straight verdict of suicide. Coroner E. C. Hart presided. The jury comprised David Fyvie (foreman), Henry Chapman, Seymour Howkinson, A. J. Sommer, Walter C. Hitchcock and A. R. Minnis.

START WORK ON $25,000 CONTRACT AT OBSERVATORY Job Let to Williams, Trerise and Williams Several Work Improvements in This Week's Permits Williams, Trerise & Williams have been awarded the contract and have started work on the new office building at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory at Saanich Hill, the work called for amounting to $25,000. The work has been ordered to complete the necessary equipment for carrying on the recording work done at the Observatory. Several permits calling for alterations and extensions to stores are among those taken out at the City Hall during the week. The Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, Government and Johnson Street, are spending another $1,400 on improvements. Knott & Lane Bros. Ltd., have been awarded a $1,000 warehouse for Smith Bros., 632 Pembroke Street. For the owner, D. Boscowitz, the building is to be erected on the corner of Douglas and Fort Streets for store purposes amounting to $1,800. A permit amounting to $3,300 has been taken out by the Masonic Temple Association for improvements to the building at night. F. Breeze figures as contractor on two jobs for which permits have been issued, additions and improvements to the Kissinger residence on Fairfield Road amounting to $1,100 and a new job for architect McKenzie at Niagara Street. St. Barnabas Church has applied for a $1,000 permit to erect a new Sunday School-house with the church named as contractor. Williams, Trerise & Williams are completing a $6,500 residence for Charles Dickson on Prospect Avenue. C. S. Partridge has just completed on Monterey and Brighton, Oak Bay, one of the many handsome stucco bungalows that are adding to the beauty of Victoria's residential district. Mr. Partridge has shown originality in the erecting of the bungalow, departing from all stereotyped ideas. Taking advantage of a corner lot he has the longest front facing south, giving sunlight in consequence, hardwood floor and handsome granite fireplace are among the features.

NEED TRAFFIC HEADS STREETS AND VIEW Police Commission Call Halt in Motor Prosecutions; Systems of Warnings; Dr. Ernest Hall Predicts 1924 Commission Will Have Same Personnel A special traffic officer to supervise the work of the police in regulating traffic within the city limits was forecasted at the regular meeting of the City Police Commission last night by Commissioner W. E. Stenland. This would be one innovation that he would urge if re-elected, intimated the commissioner. With less than two months of the year left to run the commission last night decided to call a halt in the prosecution of first offenders for minor infractions of the Motor Act. Car owners in a steady stream have been finding their way to the police court every week, there to contribute to the city funds. The fines, now totalling a considerable figure, are included with the other revenues of the police department and aid in showing a reduction in net expenditures. For some time past motorists of the city have been up in arms over the prosecutions for minor and first offences. SUGGESTS WARNING Pointing out that there was considerable resentment over this matter, Commissioner Stenland last night proposed that a system of warning cards be issued and served on the offending drivers for the first offence. Later offences would lead to prosecution. It was intimated, that motorists parking their cars in front of well lighted churches had been summoned in droves. Police officers were permitted every discretion to issue such cards, said Chief Fry, who defended his force against any imputation of unfairness. Traffic incidents came in for some discussion, including a warning that the one-light type of motor car would bring his owner instant trouble. Hillside Avenue and Quadra Street was declared as dangerous, and notices posted there will broadcast a warning. The project of widening the street intersection at the C.P.R. docks was referred to the 1924 board.

WOULD MAKE CLAUSE MANDATORY IN ACT Delegation to Wait on Municipal Committee From Saanich Ratepayers' Association In order to prevent a seat remaining vacant after the decrease or resignation of a councillor, the Saanich Central Ratepayers' Association last evening adopted a resolution to send a delegation to the Municipal Committee of the Legislature. This delegation will ask that the permissive clause to declare a seat vacant shall be made mandatory, and thus compel a vacancy to exist. The committee chosen to execute this plan are Councillors Macleod and Simpson, J. M. Kelle, J. W. Fullbrook and F. Borden, Jr. The committee which waited on the Council recently to express the opinion of the Association to the Northwest Sewer By-law gave its report, which was approved. J. M. Kelle explained details of the construction of some sewers in Kitchener, Ontario, built at the cost of $43,000. The Association secretary was instructed to write to Kitchener for information on the matter. The Council forwarded communications with regard to gravelling and grading of streets. The annual report would be ready for issue next week. Admission 50c. Nov. 25 ***

BARON AND BARONESS MONTIGNY ENDED LIVES IN FRANCE Berry au Bac, France, Nov. 24—Baron and Baroness Emmanuel de Montigny shot themselves dead yesterday on the grave of their aviator son, Pierre, who was killed here in a crash in 1918. The couple attended, as was their custom, the anniversary mass in the parish church, for the repose of their son's soul. They told the Deputy Mayor, with whom they lunched, that they were going to visit the grave and when they failed to return at the designated hour, he went in search of them. The baron and baroness lay dead across the grave. There were bullets in the head of each and beside each body was a small pistol. Planned to the paron's last will was a brief letter to the Deputy Mayor saying he and his wife had nothing to live for and had decided to die.

EVENTS TO COME The Week of Prayer will be held in Metropolitan Church the second week in the new year. A rather simple old man lived in a Lancashire village. His wife, coming into the house one day, called "Joel! Joel! Where art thou?" "Upstairs," replied Joe. "What art the dootin' up there?" "Paintin' mangle." "Paintin' mangle! What art this paintin' mangle up there?" "Well, paint were up 'ere!" replied Joe.

Cougars Apply Brakes To Seattle's Winning Streak In Fast Game

Victoria Reverts to Team Play of Last Season, and With Frederickson as the Sniper, Scores Splendid Win Over Mets; Holmes Stopped Forty-eight Shots From Cougars' Stick, While Fowler Only Tagged Twenty-seven, Which Gives Good Indication of Way Game Went

Seattle's winning streak felt the penetrating arrow of defeat last night when the Cougars, rejuvenated after their horrible exhibition in Vancouver on Monday night, stepped out at the arena and hung up an impressive victory by four goals to two.

The Mets had won three games in a row, and after hearing of the way the Cougars had crumpled up before the Maroons earlier in the week, they had hopes that they might add another win to their string last night. They were without the services of the "little giant," Bobby Rowe, but with "Smoky" Harris and Fraser, two hard body-checkers, on the defence, and Jack Walker, the hook-check fox, in the old rover position, the Mets figured that they could break up the attacks of the Cougars in the same manner they blocked the Maroons on Wednesday.

That line of figuring on the part of Pete Muldoon and his boys might have sounded all right in the dressing room and it might have worked if the Cougars were having one of those lamentable off-nights of theirs, but Lester Patrick's boys were smarting under the tongue-lashings they had received on Wednesday and Thursday. The Cougars simply refused to be guests at any such party as Pious Pete had arranged. They stepped right out from the opening song and kept up a dizzy pace until the final chimes echoed through the arena.

OUTSHOT SEATTLE

Just how much superior the Cougars were to the Mets is revealed by a comparison of the shots on goals. In the opening few minutes of each period Seattle had the best of the play and Fowler was kept busy, but as the Cougars got settled, he had lots of time to figure out what he would buy the baby for Christmas, while Happy Holmes, the other end, couldn't find a spare moment to adjust his cap upon his bald dome.

In the first period Fowler was called upon seven times, while Holmes had to get in the way of eighteen. In the second period Fowler had his busiest session and cleared eleven shots, while Holmes had to block seventeen. Fowler saved nearly twice as many shots as Fowler, "Happy's" total reaching forty-eight, every shot being a work required attention to but twenty-seven shots.

COUGARS CAUTIOUS

The game was closer than the opener here last Friday, but it did not occur until the Victoria team was in the lead. For one thing, the competition was fiercer, and had the Cougars resorted to the same style of play that dazzled the fans last Friday, they might have continued their winning streak, for there is no quicker breaking team in the league than Seattle. Let the Mets get an opening, and they will go away like a flash, and Foyston and Walker are regular foxes at getting through.

Last night, however, the Cougars went back to the system that brought them through to a place in the play-off last season. They played a three-pronged defence, and the Cougars were caught flat-footed with only two men on the defence, the attack, Harry Meeking usually made the third man on the defence, while Frederickson coupled with either Gibson, Halderman or Loughlin in the rushes.

A WONDERFUL GOAL

One of the few occasions when the Cougars attempted a three-man fourth occurred tonight in their fourth goal. It was the prettiest rush of the game and revealed the Cougars at the height of their play. The play broke down the centre with the puck, and the signal went up for a three-man rush. Gibson flew off to left wing and Frederickson, the play-off, crossed the heels of "Slim" and came up on the right. Fraser and Harris set themselves for the rush, and when Halderman held on to the puck and came close in, Fraser and Harris figured that the pass would go to "Freddie." Drawn as if by a magnet, the Seattle defence pulled back, and the big leekander, detecting the move, Halderman made a perfect pass to the heel of Gibson's stick. Harris and Fraser could not recover themselves and it remained to be seen whether or not Gibson could outguess Holmes. The fans were on their feet, for it was a thrilling play, and here right in on top of the Seattle goal and let by with a shot that judged the hump as Holmes felt to save his neck, the play was a bit of the best goals that has ever been scored on the local pond, and if the game had provided no other thrill, this would have given the fans a lot to talk about.

WERE OTHER THRILLS

But there were other thrills. The Seattle defence provided some in the second period, and it looked as though there would be a flare-up. Both Harris and Fraser seemed anxious to get their man, while the Cougars, every time they ran foul of the pair, seemed to think an injustice had been done.

Two other spectacular thrills were provided in the last few minutes of the game, and Fowler was the hero. He saved two shots that looked as if they would tie the count, and both came off the stick of Archie Briden. The Cougars opened up with a bit of a jump and drew the play a bit like a jumping jack as they shot back and forth, and did nothing to help. All these antics, however, serve to upset Briden, and when Fowler made his dive, he started the puck in the arms of the goalie. Right afterwards Briden went through again and in what looked like a flying tackle he jumped into the puck and saved a goal.

"FREDDIE" SHOT WELL

Through the fact that he scored three goals and drew the play a bit like a jumping jack as they shot back and forth, and did nothing to help. All these antics, however, serve to upset Briden, and when Fowler made his dive, he started the puck in the arms of the goalie. Right afterwards Briden went through again and in what looked like a flying tackle he jumped into the puck and saved a goal.

APPEARS NEXT WEEK

"NEWSY" LALONDE

The Saskatoon Crescents will open their tour of the Pacific Coast on Monday night by meeting the Maroons in Vancouver. On Wednesday they will play the Cougars here, and Friday will oppose the Cougars here. The sound is again led by the one and only "Newsy" Lalonde, and judging by reports he has a team that is as strong as last year. The team has been training in Vancouver for the past ten days and has been putting in two hours' strenuous work each day so that the players should be in good shape. Tommy Dunderville, former Coug, is with the Crescents.

ered most of the limelight last night. However, it must not be forgotten that while "Freddie" put the finishing touches to the play, it was only through the unselfishness of his team-mates that he got the chances to score.

In returning to last year's style of play, Frederickson, of course, becomes the shooting ace. The Cougars depend upon him to finish most of their play. It is interesting to note last night that the players should did not keep Frederickson in action for long periods at a stretch. As soon as the Iceman got a goal he came off for a rest and then went back to get another.

Frederickson scored the first goal of the game three-quarters of the way through the opening period. It followed a stick-handling display in which "Freddie" coupled with Loughlin, while Seattle was a man short.

GIBSON PAVES WAY

The Cougars' second goal came from Frederickson's stick near the close of the middle period. Gibson gave him the puck and he duped Fraser, went in on top of Holmes and scored.

Seattle opened fast in the last period and Walker beat Fowler with a long, high shot on a pass from Fraser. The Cougars crowded on steam and ran in two goals in a hurry. Meeking helping Frederickson to his third goal, in which the Iceman showed some nice stick-handling, and Gibson pocketing the fourth.

Seattle's last goal was a bit of a gift. Trihey and Halderman, on the defence, opposed a three-man rush, saved the shot but Walker scampered in and with a back-hand shot lifted the rebound into the net.

Hockey Players Coaxed to Cross Line into States

Canada Loses Many Stars Who Accept Offers From American Clubs

Granites Will Represent Canada at Olympic Games; Rebuilding Teams

Toronto, Nov. 24.—Although present indications are that hockey in Canada will be affected and its strength reduced by the migration to the United States of many star players, the officers in charge of the various leagues throughout the country are preparing for another successful season. This is the golden age in sport and the departure of players will not greatly affect the enthusiasm of the fans or the keen duels on the smooth ice surface.

The Ontario Hockey Association has been hit by the blow by the decision to send the Granites to the Olympic games and the departure of players like Lionel Conacher, Harold Cotton, Eddie Rodden, Roy Worters and other star cities in the United States. At the present time Canadian players are making the fascinating winter sport more popular than ever in Uncle Sam's domain. Even after years of playing the United States has failed to develop players of ability and still reaches its long-looked-for junior hockey. Even after years of playing the United States has failed to develop players of ability and still reaches its long-looked-for junior hockey.

The same condition does not exist here, however, and each year finds players, equally as good as those who have departed, graduating from junior ranks. The players wearing the Aura Lee colors last winter showed what can be accomplished by boys still eligible for junior hockey. Out in the west they have a junior team, University of Manitoba, who can outscore the majority of senior teams. It is considered by many that there is no greater amateur forward in the sport than Murdoch, the great U. of M. centre man.

RELY ON YOUNGSTERS

And thus the youngsters are not hanging out any sign of discouragement. They know that the youngsters will fill the shoes of the players who have migrated and that the rinks will ring with the cheers of applause as Canada's young manhood helps foster the growth of the game.

Hamilton and University of Toronto appear to be the strong teams in the O.H.A. senior series. They have nearly all of last year's players left. Kitchener will lose Hainsworth, Hillman and possibly Hiller. Good juniors, however, are ready to fill the vacancies.

Granite all-star cast will be missed by O.H.A. fans but the Olympic trip means that other teams will get a chance to get into the national series—something desirable in view of the fact that the Granites have pretty well monopolized the honors for four years. It is time for a change, and Granites have made their last touches to the rinks for some time in league competition.

REBUILDING TEAMS

Aura Lee will have to rebuild, as Cotton, Rice and Cain will not be available this season. Dinsmore, Spry, and Harrison, and Shaw are the 1923 players again in line. St. Mary's, new entrants, have all of last year's players except Jack Smythe and expect to make trouble for the other contenders. It will be St. Mary's first appearance in senior hockey. Argonauts and Parkdale will be the other Toronto teams in the O.H.A. senior series. Toronto will be back as strong as ever. It is thought that the N.O.H.A. champions will be the team to beat this coming season. The Cougars, however, will be the team to watch.

There will be no falling off in entries in the O.H.A. intermediate and junior series. Argonauts, Parkdale, Toronto, St. Mary's, U. of T., St. Andrew's Upper Canada College, U. T. St. Michael's College and Aura Lee are the Toronto entrants. Owen Sound is said to have rounded out the team which will make a bid for the championship.

WEST WILL BE STRONG

In the West the teams are getting stronger and it is thought that they will return to, almost pre-war power. The Cougars, however, will be the team to watch. The Allan Cup games will be played in the East this winter and will be the Stanley Cup series. Thus East-coast fans are reasonably sure to see some thrilling struggles. Toronto will be the mecca for the hockey champions and their followers in the amateur play-off games, but the Stanley Cup contests will be fought on the ice of the arena, and the honors, each city having artificial ice plants.

It is expected that some interesting amendments to the constitution will be made at the annual meeting of the Ontario Hockey Association, which takes place on December 1, and there will be few changes in the playing rules from a year ago. The goalkeepers' territory is a thing of the past. It was not understood or appreciated last winter. Hockey goalkeepers will not be able to step out on the ice beyond a certain line. This has been placed at sixteen inches but evidently a mistake was made as this is wider than ever.

The Pacific Coast League opened on Nov. 12, the earliest in history. The National League intends to start on Dec. 1, this being possible owing to a shorter season. The league is now available in all cities on this circuit.

Fleet Esquimalt Team Which is Bidding For Title

Esquimalt has sprung into the football limelight with a vengeance this year. The club, which has a number of fast youngsters, was originally slated for the Second Division but agreed to go up to the First Division along with the Veterans and, in their only game with the league-leading Victoria Wests, had the count standing at one all when the referee halted hostilities.

Those in the above picture are as follows: Front row, from left to right: Jim Mesher, president; Jack Frampton, Sammy Eskine, E. Warren, John Watt and Bobby Stewart. Second row—Billie Stewart, trainer; W. Bendall, T. Jones, M. Rolston and C. Jones. Back row—J. Nichol, Joe Watt, Bob Nichol, Jimmy Carmichael and Darrell Mesher, captain.

Arenas Will Take Place of Colonist in Amateur Hockey

Owing to the inability of the Victoria Amateur Ice Hockey League to satisfy the Colonist in regard to its team that club has withdrawn from the league and the fourth franchise has been taken up by the Arenas, which will be managed by Stanley Patrick.

George Warren, president of the Arenas, said this morning that the Colonist was finally out of the race. The Arenas will now fill the Colonist's place in the schedule, and will play the first game in the opening game on December 5.

Carpentier to Meet Italian Boxer For European Laurels

Paris, Nov. 24.—An agreement has been reached for a fight between Georges Carpentier and Ermanno Spalla, the Italian heavyweight, which will be for the championship of Europe, will be held at Milan in January. It will be subject to the options given Francois Descamps for matches in London and New York. These options expire on December 15.

University School Scores Great Win Over Local "High"

Completely overwhelming their opponents in the first half the University Military School added another victory to its credit yesterday afternoon by defeating the Victoria High School by a score of 8-0. This was the first encounter of the season in the City School League between these teams.

The game was slowed up considerably by the slippery condition of the ball field. Fast three-quarter runs were rare, while accurate passing was impossible.

Victoria High kicked off, but the University forwards came back with a combined rush, and carried the ball inside their opponents' twenty-five yard line. Then began a series of plays, in which the University High School's line, and after some ten minutes of play Ham crossed for the first try of the match. The kick for goal failed.

WEST WILL BE STRONG

In the West the teams are getting stronger and it is thought that they will return to, almost pre-war power. The Cougars, however, will be the team to watch. The Allan Cup games will be played in the East this winter and will be the Stanley Cup series. Thus East-coast fans are reasonably sure to see some thrilling struggles. Toronto will be the mecca for the hockey champions and their followers in the amateur play-off games, but the Stanley Cup contests will be fought on the ice of the arena, and the honors, each city having artificial ice plants.

RIGHT OFF THE ICE

Victoria moved into second place in the P.C.H.A. race by applying the brakes to the Maroons last night. The Maroons are still top dog, while the Maroons are the under dogs.

For a few moments in the second period it looked as though "Moose" Johnson was back on the ice. Jocke Anderson tried to emulate the old-timer and was nose-diving under his opponents.

Hart made his best showing since joining the Cougars. He was accurate with his shot, which carried plenty of power, skated fast, back-checked and was in good condition.

The Victoria defence was slow in clearing the puck in front of its own net. Halderman played well on the defence, and was a goal-keeper himself, blocking many shots, but on the offensive "Slim" seems slower than last year. Clem Loughlin rushed well and appeared to have scored a goal, but the referee ruled that he had not.

Frederickson's three goals boosted him to the top of the individual scorers. At the rate he is going Frank may eclipse his last year's record. Such a feat would be a great honor, no matter who gets the credit for the goals and assists.

Gibson gave the Mets' defence plenty of worry. He is as dangerous with his shot as Frederickson, and as a result is now third among the scorers.

Harris and Fraser did not pair badly on the defence for Seattle. Both were a bit crude in their checking. Fraser is certainly a "find" but his play is sometimes spoiled by a disposition to rough things unnecessarily.

Foyston proved just as fast as ever and the fact that Walker scored two goals shows that he still packs his rickety shot. Briden looks good at right wing, and is a hard man to stop going in. His shot is very fast.

Holmes was on the job all evening. While not a spectacular goalie, he is very effective. "Haw" makes the hard shots look easy.

Arbor, the new Seattle player, showed up well, and MacFarlane, a rangy youth, gives promise.

HERMAN A LOSER

Chicago, Nov. 24.—Morrie Schlatter, of Omaha, defeated Tittle "Kid" Herman, of Los Angeles, in a ten-round fight at East Chicago last night. Herman fought a defensive fight except for two rounds. Schlatter weighed 148 pounds and Herman 147.

YALE BEAT HARVARD

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 24.—Yale soccer team defeated Harvard here yesterday four goals to two. The Yale freshmen won from the Harvard freshmen, two to one.

Colwood Seeks to Regain Club Golf Title From Bays

Victoria Golf Club Will Defend Wright-Ditson Trophy in Team Match

Colwood golfers, original holders of the Wright-Ditson Cup, emblematic of the city club golf championship, will make an endeavor to regain possession of the trophy now in the hands of the Victoria Golf Club.

A team of twenty-four golfers from the Colwood Golf Club will tee off against a similar number from the Victoria Golf Club at the Oak Bay Links, Singles will be played in the morning and foursomes in the afternoon. The cup was put up for competition three years ago and in the first competition the United Services Golf Club defeated Colwood. The Victoria Club in turn captured the trophy from the United Services and have held it ever since. The competition has been dormant for some time but is now being revived.

CANNOT MAKE WEIGHT

Toronto, Nov. 24.—Eddy Pinchot, the Cherrier boy, who is here to meet Pancho Villa, world's flyweight champion, December 5, has given up the ghost, according to The Telegram. After three days' strenuous work Pinchot yesterday decided that he could not possibly make 118 pounds and if Villa insists the Cherrier lad will have to withdraw.

Gerald Patterson and J. Hawkes Win Victoria Net Title

Melbourne, Nov. 24.—Gerald L. Patterson and J. B. Hawkes won the doubles lawn tennis championship of Victoria here yesterday. They defeated O'Hara Wood and R. V. Thomas, three sets to two.

Looking Things Over

Why Golf is Popular

A few days ago a man made the statement that people had gone golf mad. It's a safe and sane form of recreation. It is true that seven million people on this continent are now golfers and the great bulk of them have taken up the game within the past ten years. By the way the game is gripping the people, both old and young, it is safe to predict that within another ten years the number of players will be doubled.

Golf links are springing up everywhere and still the courses are crowded and on holidays and weekends there are line-ups at the first tee.

Ten years ago a man who stepped out on the street of an American city wearing a "plus fours" was laughed at. To-day the big business man will tell you that the "plus fours" are the most comfortable things he wears.

Victoria has not escaped the tentacles of the game. This city is now counting three, three, eighteen and two nine-hole courses, more than any other city of its size on the continent.

It is a reason why golf has become so popular. It has a fascination all its own that lures, not only the grey-haired men, but also the youths, who formerly thought it was too good for them. Every golfer has an ambition. First it is to get going properly, then to get under a hundred, then under ninety and so on until he reaches the "seventies," and my what a feeling! The first time a man shoots a 75 he becomes the most important person in his own opinion. Not half mad as we can think to talk about. No longer does he have to rely upon the weather, the crops and the European situation for a topic.

Golf is bound to flourish because, in addition to its fascination it gets one into the open. It removes every care but that of the golf ball. To play golf you do not need a side of eleven or more men. You can go out yourself if you like, but another pal will give you something to play for. It is an individual game. On your own you rely upon your ability to win. In other games perhaps a player gets but a few opportunities to do anything and a team-mate may commit an error which blast all hope of winning.

In golf your loss will be due to you own care. If you hit the ball 300 yards down the fairway, or sink your tee shot it your's, and only your chest, that will swell. No one else shares in the credit.

When a game exists providing such a personal elation, good exercise and sportsmanship, there is no reason why the people take it up.

"Can fish become mad?" asks the angler. Not half mad as we can be when they're not! We'll bite.

Sammy Bohne, infielder for the Chicago Cubs, is going to be the only Jewish player in the major leagues.

Among the popular sports in South Africa are: Tennis, golf, cricket, swimming, rugby and soccer football.

Steve Donoghue, England's premier jockey, is 29 years old, weighs 109 pounds, and is only 4 feet 11 inches tall. He is the father of three children.

The 10 highest-salaried players in the major baseball leagues are Ruth, Cobb, Spahr, Hornsby, Alexander, Collins, Rucker, Groh, Daubert and Schalk.

There are between 200 and 300 registered automobile speed drivers in the United States. Of this number, no more than 30 have gained prominence on the speedways.

Lalonde is Trying to Secure Rickey From Seattle Club

Vancouver, Nov. 24.—Evidently Newsy Lalonde, manager of the Saskatoon Crescents, is going to leave no stone unturned in his efforts to produce a winning hockey combination for the prairie city this winter. It leaked out yesterday that Newsy was conducting secret negotiations with Roy Rickey, erstwhile Seattle defence star, and the only holdout player in coast league circles this season, whereby he hopes to sign Rickey for the Crescents.

Rickey was one of the leading defence players in Coast League circles for several seasons, but this year refused to come to terms with Pete Muldoon. Seattle still has first all on Rickey should the big fellow decide to play hockey this season, but there is every reason to believe that a deal whereby Rickey would join Newsy's squad could be successfully negotiated.

Following their practice yesterday afternoon Newsy expressed himself as being perfectly satisfied with the manner in which the Crescents are getting into shape for their first game of the season with the Maroons next Monday night. Every member of the squad showed improved form. Lalonde remarked, adding that he was particularly pleased with the showing made by Answorth, the youngster from the East, who will perform in goal for the Crescents this year.

London's Little Season Brilliant—Motor, Wireless, Hairdressing and Brewers' Shows—Scarlet Kid and Low Heels—Prince Dislikes His "Harness"

IT IS EVIDENT THAT LONDON'S Autumn season—the so-called "little season"—is to be extraordinarily brilliant. The public functions and charity entertainments, the long list of theatrical successes, the irresistible charm of the November shops...

OF THE FIVE EXHIBITIONS, the Motor Show at the Olympia, is the most important, drawing some quarter of a million of the world's keenest motorists to see ten acres of the world's finest cars...

The All-British Wireless Exhibition at the White City is the largest Wireless Show ever held. Last year we had hardly heard of broadcasting; this year about one private suburban house in every three sports an aerial...

The Hairdressers and Allied Trades Exhibition at the Holland Park Hall offers the latest styles of hairdressing and all the newest devices for producing them, for men as well as women. At the Home Arts and Industries Exhibition at Draper's Hall, we are to see carpets, draperies, furniture, handwoven materials...

THE MOST STRIKING DEVELOPMENT in the world of women's fashions during the last few weeks has been the opening of a heated campaign against that essentially feminine fable, the high heel.

What woman ever wanted to be sensible when she might be smart? No—the new shoes are fashioned from the finest kid and suede in the gayest colorings. For that is another development, scarlet, blue and green shoes are now seen in the street, as well as in the boudoir.

The same sensible heel is even seen in the ballroom in brocade or gold and silver tissue and some dancing teachers declare that it gives a more graceful carriage and a surer balance.

THE PRINCE OF WALES more than once, just prior to visiting some city or town, has let it be known that he was not going to wear his official "harness" and expressed the hope that his hosts would conform to his desires in this respect.

This is causing some disturbance not only among the dealers in high hats but among some of his father's subjects who want to demonstrate that they live in a "high hat" or first-class place.

On his visit to Dundee the royal arbiter of fashion said he was going to wear a bowler and lounge suit. Before the word was forth to that effect some of the notables in Dundee had polished up their old pig hats.

Suddenly there came the sack suit intimation from the Prince. The heir to the throne has a wardrobe second to none in the land, but it is very noticeable that the more he travels and the more ceremonial functions he has to attend the greater seems to become his desire to keep away from official togs.

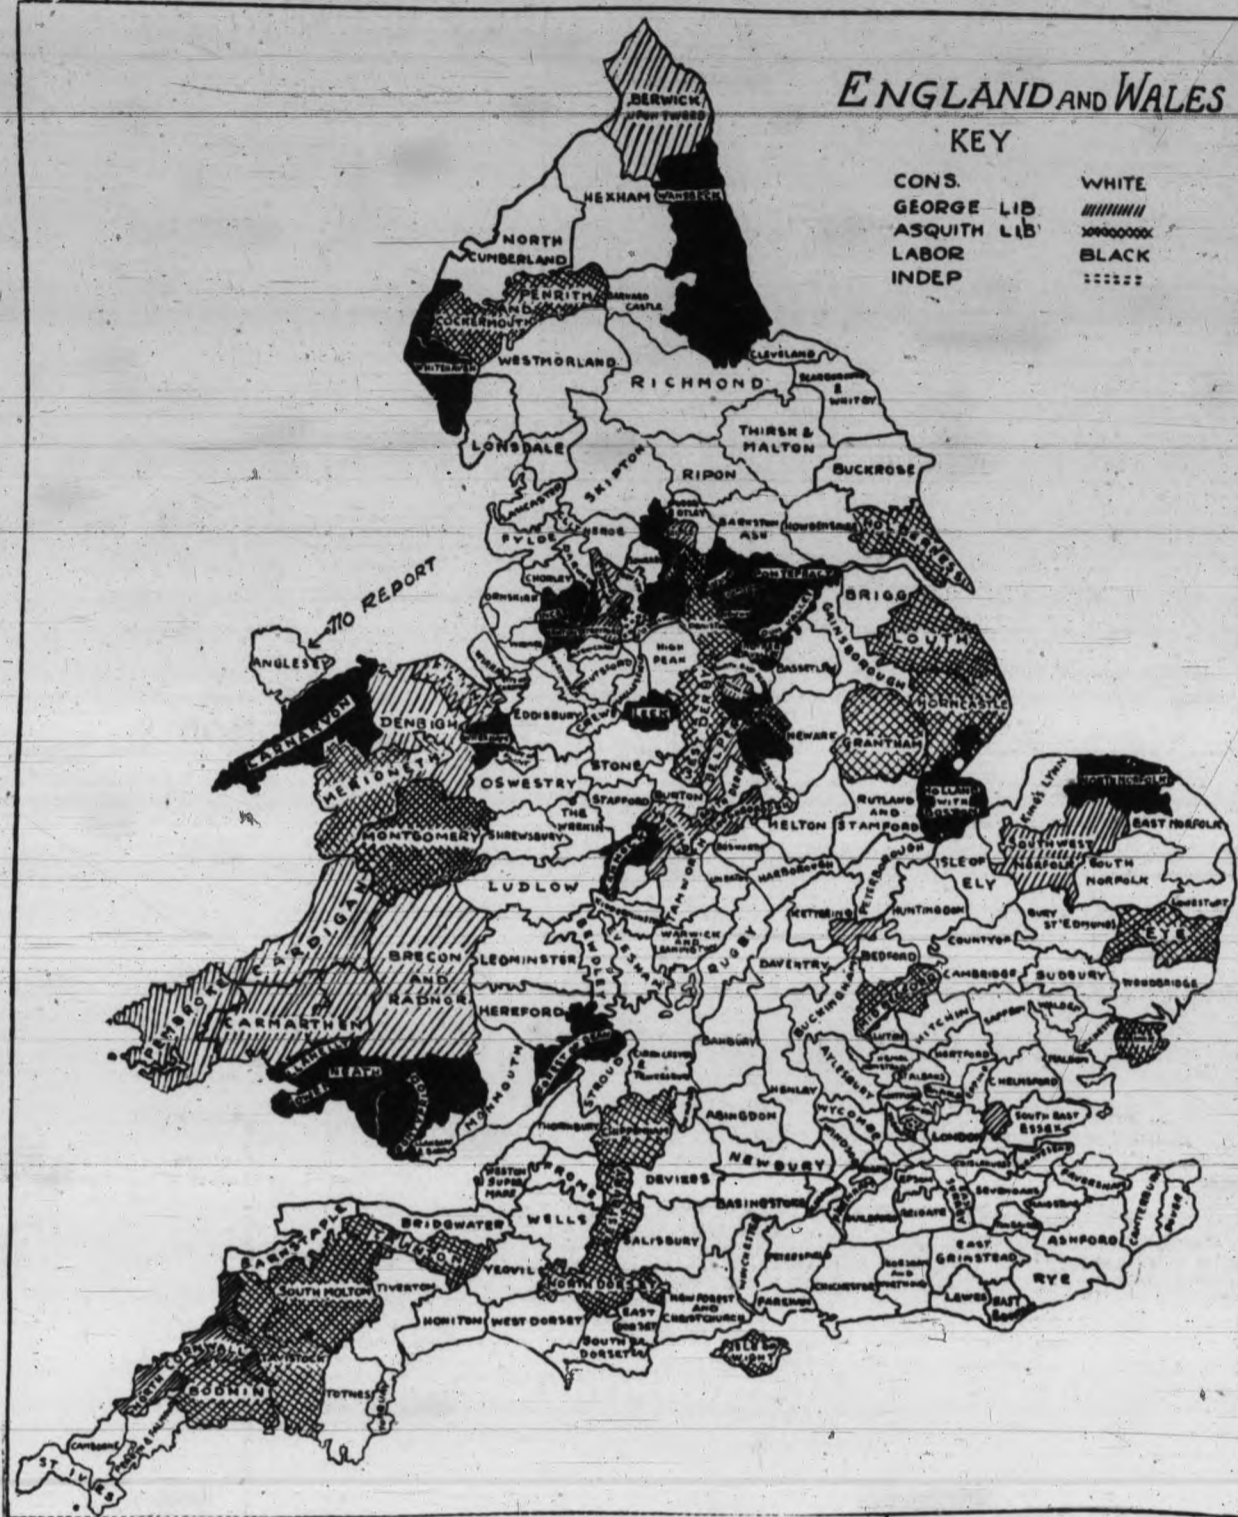

It is evidently also his desire when visiting industrial centres where there is much unemployment that money should not be expended on paraphernalia to carry out the dictates of formality.

NATIONAL PIG BREEDERS' Association of England warns that exhibits which are powdered to improve their appearance will be discarded. The use of snuff-sticks, as a prop, is also barred.

English pigs, it is evident, use vanity troughs. STREET SINGERS in London and the other large British cities find their occupation so restrictive that they have refused offers of $50 a week to appear on the stage.

London is flooded with these singers but they seem to prosper even above the noise of the traffic. Often they appear in groups of five and six and sometimes they literally line up along the curbs of the principal thoroughfares.

HOW PARTIES STAND ON EVE OF BRITISH ELECTION

Unionists, 342; Labor, 144; United Liberals (comprising 59 Asquithians and 59 Lloyd Georgians); other parties, 7; vacant, 4; total membership, 615. The Daily Express predicts that Baldwin's majority of 83 will be reduced by about half.

"Tranquility" Not an Issue This Time

LONDON, NOV. 24.—LLOYD GEORGE'S RETURN from his American tour marked the beginning of a lively political campaign which will end with the general election on December 6.

Six months ago there was not the slightest expectation that an election would be held either this year or the next. I have talked during the week with the prominent leaders of each of the three political parties regarding the verdict which the country will probably give.

The Conservatives are inclined to believe they will retain control of the Government and give Labor a decisive defeat.

Labor foresees a difficult battle from which it will emerge with added strength and in position to dominate the party in coalition.

The Liberals are confident that the issue of protection versus free trade will wreck the Laborists.

Lloyd George's Position

LLOYD GEORGE, LORD BIRKENHEAD AND WINSTON CHURCHILL are the mysterious figures of this important political crisis.

A lifelong friend and political adviser of Lloyd George is authority for the statement that the chances of "the little Welshman" returning to the Premiership at this election are hardly worth considering. He bases his opinion on the fact that Sir John Simon, Lord Gladstone and Herbert Asquith are determined he shall not have the leadership of the Liberal party, which he wrecked during the elections of December, 1918.

On the other hand, everything points to a reunion of the Liberals, for the purpose of fighting protection as a fiscal policy.

In a small degree there is dissension in the ranks of Conservatives at this time regarding an appeal to the country now, and it is agreed that the issue of protection is an extremely dangerous one. Even the Conservative press are badly disillusioned; several organs warning Premier Baldwin that he is courting serious trouble.

Labor United, But . . .

LABOR SEEMS FAIRLY WELL UNITED, although there is no question but that many of the members of the party are protectionists.

Unless the issue is broadened, the election will become a fight between Conservatives on one side and Liberals on the other. In that event, the leaders of these parties will undoubtedly come to an arrangement in which they will agree not to oppose each other in the constituencies where their combined vote would defeat the Labor candidate.

The unemployment situation was chiefly responsible for the Government's decision to make this appeal to the country. There is a difference of opinion as to the question of Premier Baldwin's international policy, but it is not sufficiently marked to require a general election to get the country's views.

No More "Tranquility"

WHEN THE LATE PREMIER BONAR LAW OPENED his election campaign a year ago he said that Great Britain needed a period of "tranquility." He pledged himself to make no change in the country's fiscal policy. Premier Baldwin has arrived at the conclusion that a change is essential if there is to be any improvement in the unemployment situation. The Dominion Premier has proved the need for this by their request for some emergency measures.

British business interests are of two minds in the matter of protection versus free trade. One side regards free trade as necessary to success, and the other side holds protection to be essential to development. The financial interests as a whole do not welcome the idea of a general election now, and this is shown plainly in stock transactions and the weakness of the pound sterling in money exchanges.

Seek Tariff Lever

ONE ARGUMENT FOR PROTECTION is that it will be possible to exercise a powerful influence on foreign tariffs once the country is armed with a tariff law of its own. They have in mind the tariff wall around the United States which bars large quantities of British goods, and they believe they can find several weak spots in the armor, once they have protection as a weapon.

The campaign will have added pliancy because of the introduction of all sorts of issues, such as the American debt, German reparations and the American tariff. If the Conservatives should be defeated, the formation of a government with the Labor party dominant would be a matter of comparatively short time. As that possibility is clearly recognized, it is only natural that the country is extraordinarily interested in every manoeuvre that is now taking place.

Speaking of Route Marches

AS A RESULT OF THE RECENT ARMY MANOEUVRES in the Aldershot and southern commands it seems that mechanically-towed guns are likely to present in the near future a perplexing problem to generals and their staffs. When it comes to field guns covering eighty miles a day across, what is to be done with the infantry if the two arms are to be kept together? asks a writer in a London journal.

"If they are separated, how are the guns to defend themselves (from tanks, for instance), unless they are provided with an escort as mobile as themselves? I suggest with trepidation the adoption of heavier and less mobile field guns, capable of blowing tanks to blazes by direct hits."

British Fear School System May Be Awry

Bishop Weldon Throws Doubts Upon Present Plan of Schooling

BITTER CONTROVERSY IS NOW SET GOING

Time to Review and Modernize System Inaugurated in 1871, He Says

London, Nov. 24.—Is present-day elementary education worth while? Heated controversy has been started in England over the speech by Bishop Weldon, one-time headmaster at Harrow, in which he concluded: "It seems clear that the time has come when the educational system inaugurated in 1871 may well be reviewed and brought into conformity with the aspirations of the people, who know that culture plays an ever-increasing part in the national life, but that character is a more valuable element in national life and in an empire like the British."

Bishop Weldon made two main points in his indictment of the present educational system—first, the doubtful value of the system itself; and second, the continuously increasing expenditure upon education.

In Canada, where the principle of compulsory education is firmly established, it may seem strange that the first point should be raised, but there are many thoughtful people in Great Britain who feel otherwise. It may arise from the fact that this country is in a different stage of development, but the fact remains that many prominent people think a large proportion of the population would benefit more from purely vocational training than from elementary instruction in subjects which are not related directly to the problems of later life.

Bishop Weldon's argument is forceful and clear-cut. He says: "There is some reason to fear that teachers have concentrated attention too much upon intellectual knowledge and not enough upon moral character. Never has history so clearly as in the past few years demonstrated that mere instruction or information without a controlling moral principle above it may prove a scourge to humanity, it may destroy the inventions of science and lay the achievements of civilization in the dust."

There is something almost pathetic in the faith of the modern world in education. The most highly educated of all nations is Germany, but during the war all the old evils of a barbarous society were revived and there was no crime that Germany would not have committed if it had afforded a prospect of victory.

His other criticisms were directed at the fact that the average salary for a teacher in the elementary schools is now £250 a year—as opposed to £100 before the war, and that nearly two-thirds of the salary for education represents teachers' salaries.

Naturally the liberal press to-day sharply attacks Bishop Weldon. The Daily News remarks: "The real stumbling block to-day in the progress of modern education comes from the point of view of Weldon represents—that the central purpose of education is to turn out virtuous clerks who can spell correctly, write a clerical hand, and that for this it is sufficient to engage patriotic teachers at the wage of a farm laborer."

The Westminster Gazette says: "Teachers' pay should be raised, not lowered," and while admitting the force of some of Bishop Weldon's arguments, declares, "If we are not to clip the wings of progress we must be more careful about the sacrifices we demand from teachers."

The Labor Daily Herald declares: "Education in Great Britain instead of being too widespread, isn't comprehensive enough."

On the other hand newspapers of conservative tendencies show themselves as rather favorable to Weldon's thesis.

The Evening Standard says: "We want to get rid of the idea that so long as enough money is paid teachers will do their duty. The fact is that the smallest economy implies retrogression. With many good people education is a fetish, and we would welcome more such plain speaking as Dear Weldon's if it led to a more critical attitude on the part of those responsible for the estimates."

The Daily Graphic likewise says: "If, as it is sometimes asserted, a mass of half-baked intelligence is being created, which when school days are over runs to private schools, something wrong with our system, and neither is education worth its cost nor are teachers entitled to what they get."

The appeal of this point of view to the average middle-class man who pays taxes for school upkeep, but who, if he can possibly afford it, sends his children to private schools, can be well understood. There are also lower class as well as upper class people who do not believe in compulsory education. Teachers, who playing fields of Rugby recording how Ellis exploit. Noted General Starts Fight on War State

Sir Ian Hamilton Makes Plea to "Give Germans a Chance"

MORE IMPORTANT THAN REPARATIONS, HE SAYS

German of To-day Entirely Different From Propaganda German of Yesterday

London, Nov. 24.—"Get rid of the hate complex." That is the slogan General Sir Ian Hamilton, a fighting soldier for 50 years, would like to see adopted and taken to heart by the members of the British Legions and overseas veterans. "That old enemies should cease to hate each other," said Sir Ian, "is far more important than conferences about the war damages Germany shall pay."

"Europe, especially is suffering from the hate complex. You see it where the French face the Germans, where the Hungarians face the Rumanians, where the Serbs face the Bulgarians."

Few have a better right to talk this way than Sir Ian. He's been a soldier for nearly half a century. He has seen hard active service in all the Afghan campaign, the first Boer war, the Nile expedition, the Burmese war, the Chitral relief force, the second Boer war, and, finally, in the great war as commander-in-chief of the army at Gallipoli.

He was chief-of-staff to Kitchener in the last years of the Boer war. He became a great friend of the famous Boer statesman—Jan Smuts.

SIR IAN HAMILTON

Theodore Roosevelt was another friend. The last few years he has been devoting much of his time to the affairs of the British Legion.

One of the jobs he has set for himself is to fight hate. He says—propagandists during the war did their work too well. Many people still have their war-time conceptions of Germans.

He told of a great editor who, the day after the armistice said to his men, that from that time on Germans were to be "Huns" and "Hoches," but were simply "Germans" again.

"That is splendid," said Sir Ian. "It illustrates the point exactly. 'I am striving by all the means in my power to show that the German of to-day is entirely different from the propaganda German of yesterday.' Audiences have been mainly veterans who suffered in what they fully believed was a war to prevent future wars."

The fact that I was unanimously re-elected president for the London metropolitan area of the British Legion by 224 delegates from all men coincide with my viewpoint. They were fully apprised of my ideals before the election—'war on hate' was my platform."

"I wish the returned soldiers and British Legions could get together and not for athletics and after-dinner speeches—but for a serious effort to bring about a better world."

"If we want Europe and the world to settle down we must give the Germans a chance."

"If the American and British Legions would join hands they could come very near to framing a platform for a new era of things and the first plank in that platform would be 'WAR ON HATE'."

Unite Empire by Wireless

Britain Awakens to the Importance of Improved Dominion Communication

BROADCASTING TOWER TO GIRDLE EARTH

Chain of Stations Will Keep in Better Touch With Shipping Interests

London, Nov. 24.—Just as Great Britain has seen her strong position as an island abolished by the growth of modern artillery and the development of aerial and chemical warfare, so have the tremendous strides in wireless telegraphy threatened with destruction Great Britain's former control and dominance over world communications by cable—a control which was found to be of the greatest military value during the last war, but one already so weakened by wireless that nothing could prevent Germany from maintaining contact with her scattered warships in the early stages, with her submarines later on and from flooding the world with her propaganda throughout the struggle. It is said whatever Providence may look after the affairs of the British Empire works overtime in the matter of inter-empire communications.

Possessed of the only comprehensive cable system in the world Britain did practically nothing to exploit it save in the interests of the shareholders. The press and commercial have for long years remained at heights prohibiting really free communication between London, the Empire, and the various colonies. The wireless has been a very unimperial nature when the 1914 war broke out the British dominions, the colonies and the Indian Empire would have been in an almost blind state of ignorance as to the real nature of the struggle, and the world might very well have missed the impressive spectacle of empire unity afforded by the immediate rallying to Britain of her sons from overseas.

INFORMING THE EMPIRE As it is a good instance of over-time on the part of Britain's good fairy it is worth while noting. In 1911 the Asquith Ministry began to smart under the constant taunt that, like all Liberal administrations, it took no interest in imperial affairs. One of the party managers was likely to realize that this sneer was likely to damage party prospects in England, decided to do a little propaganda for the members of the Government through the wireless. He decided to do a little propaganda for the members of the Government through the wireless. He decided to do a little propaganda for the members of the Government through the wireless.

It so happened that when this arrangement was made the growing intensity of Franco-German enmity was being made clear by the long and acute wrangling over Morocco, and the military speeches of the most important ministers of the day were almost entirely devoted to discussion of the prospects of European war. Thus out of the narrow desire for party gain Britain's desire to benefit when war did come from the response of an enlightened imperialism.

To-day, although imperial news services have been much improved, cable costs are still heavy and really free communication will only be realized when wireless has been working throughout the Empire. It is in a very backward condition largely owing to the ill effects of the Marconi scandal and the decision taken to exclude private enterprise from the wireless field.

BRITISH LICENSE PLANS Indeed, Britain as a wireless power is at present outdistanced by all the other great powers. Yet as long ago as 1910 a scheme for the creation of an imperial wireless chain was submitted to the British Government and hailed with such enthusiasm that for the last thirteen years discussion of it has been handed about between ministers, ministries and committees until the proposals put forward by waiting for the British Government to have its mind made up for it, entered into direct agreements with the Marconi people.

Now, however, a change is to come over the scene. The British Government, at last apparently realizing its own ability to run wireless without co-operation, has decided to grant licenses for the erection of wireless stations in Britain for imperial and foreign communication and also, in strategic as well as public commercial interests, itself to erect in Britain a wireless station capable of world communication. It seems almost certain that when the wireless chain is begun the proposals put forward by the Marconi company in 1920 will form a model of what is sought. They are extremely comprehensive and when carried out will place Britain right away at the head of wireless communications.

which is growing more popular each year in Great Britain, and is now established as the leading winter game in New Zealand and South Africa, was celebrated also by a match played at Rugby between teams representative of the empire.

Rugby rules were drafted by three Rugby Union and taken on bloc from the school days of the game. William Webb Ellis, in 1823, with a fine disregard for the rules of football, as played his first time, took the ball in his arms and ran with it, thereby originating the distinctive feature of the game of Rugby. The centenary of Rugby football.

TABLET HONORS BOY WHO STARTED RUGBY

London, Nov. 17.—The schoolboy who broke the rules of the game gained immortality this week when a tablet was unveiled overlooking the playing fields of Rugby recording how Ellis exploit. Sporting critics here William Webb Ellis, in 1823, with a fine disregard for the rules of football, as played his first time, took the ball in his arms and ran with it, thereby originating the distinctive feature of the game of Rugby. Ethel Clayton Has Starred for Years With Famous Players

Ethel Clayton, star of "Can a Woman Love Twice?" was born in Champaign, Ill., and was educated at St. Elizabeth's Convent, Chicago. After graduation she obtained an engagement with the T. Daniel Frawley Stock Company. Her first success was with Edwin Stevens in "The Devil." Later she added to her laurels in "The Country Boy." She entered pictures first with the Lubin Company. "The Great Divide" was the first big production in which she worked. For several years Miss Clayton was starred by Famous Players, her most notable productions being "For the Defence," "The Thirteenth Commandment" and "Her Own Money." Her first for the F. B. O. was "If I were Queen." Now showing for the last time to-night.

One of the most interesting phases of screen work is the seeking of new locations for the shooting of exterior scenes," said Reginald Barker during the filming of "The Eternal Struggle," the Metro picture at the Dominion Theatre.

"We arrive in a village, and immediately speculation becomes rampant. Are we real estate men? Are we oil men? Are we prohibition officers looking for moonshine stills? When they learn we are motion picture people, the curiosity increases—Do we know that the telephone girl in the county-courthouse is a knockout and has it all over Mae Murray? Which one of us is Ramon Navarro? Where is Jackie Coogan? Is Buster Keaton with us? Is that Barbara La Marr?"

Erases Wrinkles in Less Than 15 Minutes

Scientists have at last taken up seriously the problem of removing wrinkles and age lines from the face. Hundreds of experiments have been made. The result of the investigation indicates that the "tarkoot method" is the best because of its safety and comfort. It consists merely in spreading over the face a mixture of powdered tarkoot, one spoonful, and plain water, one spoonful. In your mirror, before your very eyes, you can watch the wrinkles and sagging literally melt away—in less than fifteen minutes.

Casting of Play Such as "Cat and Canary" Not Easy

The job of casting such a play as "The Cat and the Canary," is not an easy one. Kilbourn Gordon, Inc., have taken a particular pride in the fact that none of the companies has outranked the others in acting quality. When last season closed there were four companies appearing in the play and many of the players elected to remain with the popular drama for another season. There were, however, some eighteen players to be secured for various parts during the season of 1923-24.

Canadian Highway Association Has Ambitious Programme Ahead

Bridging the gaps in the Trans-Canada Highway system from ocean to ocean, and assisting road travel in Canada, the primary object of the Canadian Highway Association, might perhaps be regarded as the function of the various automobile and good roads' associations of Canada. However, this association, which has recently been reorganized here after being in a moribund condition for two years, has set itself out to aid both aims, and to find for itself a distinct opportunity in the multitude of associations.

Highway Objects to be Stimulated

It will endeavor to interest transcontinental motorists, and one family came here from Nova Scotia last Summer who are now permanent residents in Vancouver Island as part of the national road system of this Dominion. The idea is to give to the island the same prominence which is being secured in the Maritime provinces, and to get away from the idea of the Province ends at Burrard Inlet, in fact, that the motorist has some of the best traveling yet to do when he embarks on a ferry for island. While there is this primary insular proposal, the larger question of national roads occupies attention, and will receive the care of the members.

Year 1.—Weekly Report No. 3, Week Ending Nov. 21 Vancouver Island Egg-Laying Contest

Conducted by the Dominion Experimental Station, Sidney
The following table gives the production for the individual birds for the week under columns numbering 1 to 10. "W" gives the total weekly egg production and column "T" the total number of eggs for the pen to date. The difference between the weekly total and the records of the individual birds is the result of eggs laid on the floor.

NEWS AND NOTES OF THE CHURCHES

BISHOP UPHOLDS EVOLUTION IDEA

Dr. Manning, in Epochal Sermon, Finds no Conflict With Religion

Washington, D.C., Nov. 24.—Bishop Manning, of New York, who delivered the sermon at the consecration of the Rev. Dr. James E. Freeman, the new Bishop of Washington, at Epiphany Protestant Episcopal Church, appeared as the champion of the divinity of Christ, a point over which he conducted an epochal controversy with the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant, of New York.

But at the same time Bishop Manning upheld the scientific theory of evolution so violently assailed by William J. Bryan and denied emphatically that there is any reason for conflict between science and religion.

The sermon dealt openly with controversies which have been disturbing the Protestant churches. The differences between the fundamentalists and modernists are misleading to the people, Bishop Manning insisted, largely because the former are basing their position on an untenable theory which has no place in the church and never did have.

Many Episcopal dignitaries listened to the sermon and regarded it as a milestone in the history of the Church.

No Conflict Found

"We must make it clear," said Bishop Manning, "that the truth revealed in Jesus Christ is in no conflict with any truth or fact made known to us by science or scholarship. The view that science is in antagonism with religion or that it excludes belief in the supernatural is old fashioned and out of date. A quarter of a century ago such a view was held widely, but science has left it behind. It belongs to a day that is past."

"And, on the other hand, there is no reason why religion should have any suspicion of fears of science. There is nothing in the Christian faith which conflicts with the scientific theory of evolution. To many of us this hypothesis seems to make clearer both the story of the Creator and the naturalness of His revelation of Himself in the incarnation."

The present controversy in some of the Protestant communions between the fundamentalists and the modernists is confusing and misleading to many. That controversy has no place among us in this Church. This Church of which we are members holds a position which is larger than that represented by either of these groups, and which includes that which is true in each of them. Those who call themselves fundamentalists are unhappily identifying themselves with a particular theory as to the inspiration of the Scriptures, which is untenable and which has never been a part of the Christian faith.

Wrong Belief Held

"The ancient creeds of the Church contain no reference whatever to this theory. The sad feature of this is that many are reacting instinctively to suppose that the Christian religion itself stands or falls with an untenable theory, and when it becomes clear that the theory is untenable the faith must suffer. With all its extravagances recent scholarship has rendered great service to the Christian faith."

"Even the scholarship which is unbelieving, or half believing, has helped to make the truth more clear. Scholarship as a whole has given us two great results. First, it has made the Bible a more living book and its truth as the record of God's gradual revelation of Himself to mankind, culminating in the incarnation, more evident than ever. Second, it has brought us back to a fuller and clearer view of our Lord's human life."

"We can have no faith in Christ without full belief in Him as man. It is in His perfect and unequalled manhood that, along with the first disciples, we see revealed the truth and wonder of His deity."

"The question with us in this Church is not fundamentalism or modernism but belief in Jesus Christ, the Son of God, and the attitude towards modernism depends upon what is meant by it. If by modernism is meant only the desire to be wholly loyal to the truth, to use our minds honestly and freely, to recognize and rejoice in the fruits of modern knowledge and the results of scientific research, I suppose almost all of us in this church are in full sympathy with it, and we need no special appellation to announce the fact."

"But if modernism or liberalism means, as in the hands of some of its exponents it unhappily does mean, the denial, or in veiled terms the undermining of belief in our Lord Jesus Christ as God, then it is plain that it can have no rightful place in a church which lives to propagate this belief, and whose whole life and worship are founded upon it."

"We, who preach the gospel to-day, must be clear, and especially to our younger people, that the Christian faith, belief in our Lord Jesus Christ as God made man for us, is not a barrier to our thinking or a restriction imposed upon our minds."

Admiral Sir Charles Dundas tells a good story of a Scotch minister. The subject of the sermon was Jonah. An old lady in a front row was most interested.

"Now, what kind of a fish do you suppose it was that swallowed Jonah?" he cried. "A bairn in a herring." Aye, but it wasna a cod. Then, dearie beloved brethren, what sort of a fish was it that swallowed the old lady?"

"The old lady, would be a herring, no longer."

"There it was a whale," he said. "The minister rose in fury and banged her on the head with the 'Gaid Bunk.' " "Ye daft bitherin' herring!" he roared, "ye're takin' the word o' God out o' the mouth o' an o' His ministers."

An enterprising agent for a Bible Society was wandering about the country looking for sites for texts. He found a big rock and stuck up over it: "What will you do when you die?"

A still more enterprising traveler discovered this sign, and wrote underneath: "Use Hubble Oil. Good for burns."

"WHITE OR YELLOW?"

DR. DAVIES' THEME

"The Color of Coming Christianity" Subject at Centennial Sunday Morning

That Christianity will ultimately triumph is assured, but in whose hands and with which race it will triumph there is a difference of opinion. Some scholarly and thoughtful men believe that the Anglo-Saxon race will be the Israel of God, while those who cannot accept the British-Israel interpretation of events, caused by scripture believe that no one race will be the "Israel of God." Still others are of no opinion as to which race will hold the Christian torch in the consummation of the age, while profound students of past history believe that even the Japanese or Chinese races may yet take the Torch of the Cross from the failing hands of the white race.

All this will be thoroughly discussed in Dr. Davies' morning sermon, the subject of which is "The Color of Coming Christianity, White or Yellow?" This type of sermon is usually preached at the Centennial Church at night, but change is being made for this Sunday.

The evening subject will be based on Mrs. Booth-Tarkinton's beautiful poem, the sermon-subject being, "The Land of Beginning Again." The pastor will resume the regular question box which was interrupted last week by the visit of Rev. Mr. Craig. The following questions are among those that will be replied to: "Is a person welcome at your church if he can only afford five cents for the collection plate?" Is it true that thirty people were summoned on a recent Sunday night at your church for lack of lights on cars? Why are seats in church so uncomfortable? Do you think it proper to render grand opera selections in your church? You permit applause in Centennial, is this justifiable? How did you like preaching in Vancouver? What was the worst thing you found in Vancouver?"

Do your care to name your choice for Mayor? State whether you favor the projected plan to have the police commission consist of the Mayor, Police Magistrate and County Judge. Do you favor any change in the police commission? Do you think Prosecutor Harrison has a case against the Mounted Police? If you do, what was not conceived by the Holy Ghost and born of the Virgin Mary is not our preaching vain? What people did Cain go and live amongst after the curse upon him? Upon whom, if he married his sister why do physicians frown on such marriages to-day? Will you render an opinion on the proposed C.B.R. amusement project? Why do you believe in God? Would you say that the teachings of Jesus were more ethical than religious? What is your prognostication of the British race's future?"

In the afternoon there will be a public meeting at 3 o'clock under the auspices of the Crusaders Bible Class, when Nelson A. Harkness, of the Vancouver Bible Society, will be the speaker, discussing the big-brother movement. Now that Juvenile Court is being projected, and many social workers are endeavoring to bring about improvement of children's homes, reformatory schools and the status of children left stranded through divorce and death of parents, the message of the Bible is of vital importance. The big-brother movement is being presented as a solution for some of the evils that are afflicting children. The Vancouver Bible Society is interested in this movement, and so are sending the speaker to tell in detail of the Vancouver Kiwanis plan. This plan will be of interest to all educators, and students of child life. Much attention has been attracted to Mooseheart, the great home for boys and girls under the Royal Order of Moose and the Vancouver Bible Society is interested in it. There will be no appeal for funds, but a collection for the expenses of the meeting.

Large Apartment House is Purchased for Unitarians

Use for Armenian Children

Boston, Nov. 24.—To serve thousands of the Unitarian faith who have been exiled from Transylvania by the Rumanians and sought refuge in Budapest, a 122-room apartment building in the Hungarian capital has been purchased by the American Unitarian Association and the British and Foreign Unitarian Association for use as a mission house. Gabriel Cziki, who visited Unitarians in America in 1921, has taken charge of the work.

Some 5,000 Unitarian refugees are occupying camps built for soldiers during the war in the neighborhood of the building. Many of these are professors and students of the University of Transylvania. Much of the work of the new mission will be with children, whom the old First Unitarian Church of Budapest, organized in 1859, is not equipped to reach from its location in a distant part of the city. Present plans of the mission call for the housing of students on the top floor and the use of the street floor for meetings and other features of Mr. Cziki's work.

Dr. Kozma, a member of the Unitarian Church in Budapest, furnished one-third of the purchase price of the building from his own purse.

In Great Britain the women exceed the men by nearly 2,000,000.

Times Sunday School Lesson

BY REV. GEO. C. PIDGEON, D.D.

THE POWER OF THE EARLY CHURCH

Acts i, 1 to viii, 1.

Luke's introduction to the Book of Acts is suggestive. (Acts i, 1). He speaks of his Gospel as a treatise of that which Jesus "began" to do and teach. Then follows the story of the Acts, continuing the account of His activity. What Jesus was in the days of His flesh He is still, and that gracious ministry He continues, only with widened and heightened power. It was the surprise and joy of His disciples to find Him still active among men, and to find His energy behind their words and works, enabling them to do the "greater things" that He had promised them. The form of His Commission is worthy of study (Acts i, 8). There is first the promise, "Ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Spirit is come upon you," and next the prophecy or command, "Ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth." The equipment preceded the task. This is always the Divine order: God gives before He requires, for He is a God who fills with the power of His Spirit. Then, when it came, they were to be witnesses. By giving testimony to the presence and power of the risen Christ their work was to be done in the world, and to the uttermost parts of the earth. Christ is and waits to do for men, in the greatest asset for Christian service. A patient in a New York hospital was attended by the incoming of Christ, and when a fellow-sufferer heard of it his first question was, "Is there anything in it?" Men need God, and their hearts long for Him, and personal testimony to His love and saving power is eagerly accepted and leads many into life.

HELD SERVICE IN COUNTRY INN

One of Warwickshire's best-known clergymen died recently, in the person of Canon Mordaunt. For forty-eight years he was vicar of Hampton Lucy, close to Stratford-on-Avon. He was a great cricketer in his earlier years, but was perhaps better known as a parson-publican, a distinction he shared with the London clergyman who kept the Fish and Eels at Hoddesdon Manor, an inn favored by anglers fishing that part of the River Lea.

For many years Canon Mordaunt ran the village inn at Hampton Lucy, a lovely spot hard by the gates of Charlecote Park, where Shakespeare is alleged to have gone deer stealing, and the master of which he is supposed to have caricatured in Justice, Shallow.

MISSION MEETING-PLACES

The Rev. T. P. Brocklebank, now vicar of Giggleswick, was probably the first to try this experiment when he was vicar of South Meaburn, near Surrey. His idea was to make the village inn so respectable that any man might take his wife there. At Twyford there is the Phoenix Inn, where services were held by the regular clergy of the parish every Sunday.

Some public-houses have been turned into missions. The Rev. Peter Thompson, a missionary in the East-end, bought the Old Hamlet Bar, and it is still a part of the mission, although no license is held now. General Booth did a similar thing more than once, and a mission in South London is still called the Anchor, because its first meeting-place was a transformed public-house.

AGED SERVANTS OF CHURCH NORTH

Proposal to Establish Congregation in Prince Rupert

Rev. P. E. Balsler, of this city, English Lutheran Field Missionary for Eastern Canada, has been in Prince Rupert with the idea of establishing a Lutheran congregation in that city.

Last Sunday at Prince Rupert, he preached and after the service, called on John Dybhavn to address the meeting. Mr. Dybhavn spoke at some length, emphasizing the need of a Lutheran Church in Prince Rupert and that the only feasible way to do all in his power to bring such an organization in Prince Rupert and hoped that those of other nationalities would do likewise.

Olaf Hansen, P. W. Hart, and B. M. Simpson also spoke briefly. In answer to some questions that had been asked, Rev. Mr. Balsler explained that the congregation dates back to 1867 when St. John's English Lutheran congregation was organized in Philadelphia. There are now more than fifty English Lutheran congregations in Philadelphia, and the church is now well established in the larger cities and towns in the United States and Canada.

OKLANDS ANGLICAN SUNDAY SCHOOL

The new Oklands Anglican Sunday School will open to-morrow at 2.30 p.m. in the Oklands Public School Annex.

The Sunday School will be held every Sunday under the superintendence of the Rev. W. Barton, assisted by able teachers.

The new hall, which is now under construction, will be opened in a few weeks' time, and the Sunday School will then be held in the new building.

All Anglican church parents in the district are invited to send their children to this Sunday School.

CHARACTER TRAINING

The present situation in regard to the character training of children and young people will be the subject of consideration at a public meeting on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, to be held in St. John's schoolroom, Quadra and Mason Streets.

Charles G. Morrison, secretary of the British Columbia Federation of Public School Teachers' View of the Sunday School, will be followed by a lecture by A. R. Morris, superintendent of Christ Church Cathedral Sunday School.

There have been many indications recently of a growing interest in the general education of children, and training of the young, and some aspects of this many-sided matter will be presented at this meeting. While the gathering is open to all who wish to attend, it is hoped that public school teachers and others directly interested in the character-development of young people to-day will be present.

The meeting has been arranged by the Board of Religious Education of the Diocese of Columbia, and invitations have been extended to the vicars of all churches in the city and district to attend this gathering on Tuesday evening next.

BONAR LAW LAID TO REST IN WESTMINSTER ABBEY.—The greatest honor in the gift of the empire was paid to Bonar Law, when the Canadian-born ex-Premier of Great Britain, was laid to rest in Westminster Abbey on November 5, alongside the nation's great men of past ages. Above is the flower-covered grave in Westminster Abbey, after the interment of the late statesman. Centre, the coffin containing the ashes of the former Premier being brought into the abbey. Below: The distinguished pall-bearers waiting the arrival of the cortege at Buckingham gate. Left to right: Mr. Asquith, Lord Curzon, Prince of Wales, Ramsay MacDonald, the speaker of the House of Commons, Mr. Whitney; Viscount Fitzalan, Premier Baldwin, and Austin Chamberlain.

FRANK HODGES, British Labor leader who recently toured Canada, is contesting the Lichfield division of Staffordshire, in the British election.

PROF. ROBERT A. MILLIKAN, of the California Institute of Technology at Pasadena, California, has been awarded the Nobel Prize for physics by the Swedish Academy of Stockholm, for his researches concerning electrical unit charges, photo-electrical effects, and isolation of electrons.

WHAT HAPPENS TO CONEY ISLAND IN WINTER.—They are building a big boardwalk that will be more or less of a rival of the famous boardwalk at Atlantic City. To make room for approaches to the new walk, many buildings occupied by small concessionaires are being torn down.

NEW ANTI-HOLD-UP MONEY CARRIER TO FOIL BANDITS.—When attacked, the messenger presses a button near the handle, which sets off a number of concealed smoke bombs, held in the bottom of the grip. These burn for twelve minutes, and not only throw out a heavy smoke, but so discolor the money that it cannot be passed.

A PRESIDENTIAL ASPIRANT.—They are at it again in Mexico. Already, the presidential candidates are taking the stump. The election is next Summer. And here is one of the aspirants for Obregon's job, General Plutarco Elias Callos, addressing a mass meeting while on his recent tour of the republic across the Rio Grande.

LADY IRENE CURZON, eldest daughter of the British Foreign Minister, Lord Curzon, who is running as an independent candidate in the British general elections.

SIR CHARLES DARLING, England's famous "joking justice," has retired.

LORD ROBERT CECIL, British representative to the League of Nations, has been elevated to the peerage.

ACTION!—Vassar College girls like to indulge in strenuous games. Here sophomores and Juniors are playing hockey. It's a splendid action picture.

DR. JOSEPH WIRTH, former German Chancellor and Minister of Foreign Affairs, is reported dying in Berlin.

INTELLIGENCE.—This German police dog, owned by Alisa Mellon, daughter of the Hon. Andrew Mellon, certainly is the cat's eyebrows. He can smoke cigarettes, wear spectacles, and pose for photographs. Which is something.

Limerick Entrants Win One More Try

David McAdams, a six-year-old reader at 1437 Vining Street, captures the Limerick award for this week. Little David, observing the cooking preparations of Patience, who lived with her parents at Plymouth, suggested that when the day of the feast came, "they would have to be approached a Thanksgiving."

A close rival was the line contributed by another six-year-old reader, Theresa Wrag, 1139 Qu'Appelle Street. This little reader suggested one "Was full to the brim with Thanksgiving," but forgot that the guests of Patience had not yet consumed their meal.

WINNING COUPON

When Patience at Plymouth was living in the winter, she was peeling and mixing and slicing. And baking was done until everyone.

With gusto approached a Thanksgiving.

My name is David McAdams.

My age is 5 years.

My address is 1437 Vining Street.

WINNERS BARRED

The Limerick was one of the most keenly-contested in the whole series, with over 150 entries submitted. In fact, so many new names were found in the mail bag that it has been decided to postpone the closing of the contest for one more week. This week then, you will find another coupon, but there are special conditions. Only entrants who have so far received no prize in the Limerick contest may submit their names for this week's Limerick. This will debut the twelve winners announced to date, and leave the field open for fresh honors.

Previous winners will have to rest on their laurels this week and be kind enough to give other entrants an opportunity of proving their merit in the contest. All through the twelve weeks past many able replies have been received from children ranging in years from six to sixteen. Only one each week could be rewarded with a prize. It is for that reason that non-winners are this week given an opportunity of one more attempt before the contest closes in real earnest. Elsewhere on this page you will find the coupon.

When Birds Present Their Meal Ticket

The sparrow, head on one side, peeped over the gutter down at the street. People released from office buildings at the noon-hour recess were hurrying to and fro. Traffic was scurrying along the streets with a rattling of a grinding of brakes that told of busy humankind. No one seemed to have time to look at the little feathered creature as it eyed this world with the better to eye what took place below.

Its vigil was rewarded, for this was a clever sparrow and had perched in anticipation on the roof of a pastry shop. Coming to the door of the shop a waitress threw a bundle of crumbs out into the street. The sparrow waited for no second invitation, this clearly he called lunch. Lunch he did, feeding with relish off the crumbs of the pastry cook's table. It was time that it takes to tell the sparrow of the better of a dozen of his kind. Merrily they continued their meal until a prowling warehouse cat drove them away. All but one that is, for one sparrow was too slow in getting into the air and fell into the claws of the pussy cat.

Next day crumbs were thrown out again, and the scene was repeated. This time, however, two cats were to pounce on the sparrows; only this time the little birds were lucky, and escaped without losing any of their number. Thus it was that the sparrows formed a league, which they called the Alliance of Breakfastless Birds. Each member was commissioned to intrude itself on the notice of some mortal until a free breakfast was provided.

It was slow work making human beings conscious of their wants, the sparrow sought to be heard by without seeing the pleading of the bird at all. Others looked at it, said "How cute," and walked on. A few others were who took the mission of the feathered missionaries to heart. These made a practice of scraping up all the crumbs of their home, and feeding the birds daily. In the gardens of these favored happy birds collected, and made the place resound with their gratefulness in song.

Little Reader, though there is no snow on the ground, and the days are like those of June, remember the birds have no roof over their heads at night. A hot breakfast, cold breakfast, or even a few crumbs is poor payment enough for the delight of a visit from such harmless, lovable creatures of Nature's realm.

Toyland Awakens in Light of Moon

The fading light of day cast a soft light into the store front through its plate-glass windows. The red glow of the sunset shone dimly reflected in the glass. Behind the plates countless toys posed in varied postures, each welcoming the admiration of the passer-by. Toys, innumerable, painted, playthings one might have thought, and passed along.

Now it might be the weird pranks played by the light of the moon or not, but passing that way some hours later one would have seen a strange commotion in the store window. The toys that before had seemed so listless and dead were now very much alive. It seemed as if the whole of Toyland had come to life.

In the centre of the window display stood a busy Golliwog, a bundle of tickets in one hand and a check pencil in the other. Nearby was a merry-go-round, speeding toyland through its rounds of pleasure. The Golliwog gravely held up his hand. The merry-go-round with a preliminary warning of a bugle call, then to a stop. Several toys leaped off their steeds and took their leave reluctantly.

A Mama doll shepherded a host of tiny rag dolls out of their swarming seats on the platform, and hustled them away. A Teddy Bear, smoking a chocolate cigarette drew the attention of the Golliwog. "No smoking there," he warned, "do you want to get the place on fire? It's only chocolate," replied the Teddy Bear, who munched away faster than before. "Well, it is setting a bad example and I must take it away from you," said the Golliwog. Whereupon he suited the action to the word.

Two seconds later the jaws of the Golliwog moved in a manner suggestive of someone eating. The Teddy Bear took one look at the black-faced Golliwog and then left. What did it matter, he thought, he had taken it away from the Candy-Kid anyway.

This happened in passing; now the Golliwog collected the fares from the merry-makers. From a child-faced doll he took six counters. The fare was really three, but he could not be hard on everyone. From a military looking gentleman with a tin red hat he took six counters. Elegance must pay, was his thought. In short, the Golliwog made sure that each had paid their fare before the fun began. This done he pulled a lever and the merry-go-round with a blast of its strident horn, started upon another journey.

While this was happening another entertainment was taking place in one corner of the window. It was evidently a side show of some kind. A Jumping Jack was shouting at the top of his voice. For a while it was difficult to make out what he said, but after a while the words could be understood. "Come see the strange animal," he was shouting. One by one the dolls strolled up and paid their admission to the show. They were admitted in a long queue to a place next the window, from whence they looked through the glass on to the street. Illuminated in the faint rays of a cluster light they beheld what they would have called a dog. To the dolls it was a fearsome creature, probably a survival of the old prehistoric days when mortals and their pets roamed the world.

"The Wild Man From Borneo" was another side show that created a great stir among the dolls. It proved to be no less than a policeman who rested, momentarily of course, with his back up against the window. "He is outside in the cold, and that which makes him wild," explained the showman, a snow-white Buny-white, "is this and in other ways the dollies amused themselves at the circus. All spent money very liberally, for of course, it was only sham money, and cost them nothing.

Land Otters Lose a Home

The otter was ill at ease. With its brethren it had inhabited the shores of an inland lake for many years. This year, however, its abode had been threatened by a new menace. That was the danger of the drought. The land otters lived on the shores of the lake in a cosy little home furrowed out of the side of a clay bank. The entrance to this abode was normally under water, and here the otters were safe from interference.

Now, however, the water in the lake had gone down and down until there was every danger of the entrance to the home of the otters being laid bare to the public gaze. This would be inconvenient for the sake of privacy, no doubt, but it would be disaster and probably death to the otters who feared many creatures of the wild as well as mankind.

Day by day the otter watched the water level recede until one morning the top of their tunnel was exposed to the air. They realized this first when a water rat, feeding incautiously too close to their abode, caught his head above water. He died a sudden death; but then a water rat was small and harmless in comparison to the foes of the otter. What would happen when that entrance should be fully disclosed? The otters held a council. Gathered in the family chamber they discussed ways and means of avoiding the serious trouble that stared them in the face. One suggested blocking up the old tunnel and providing a new, still lower down in the bank. This sounded sensible until it was discovered that only rock was to be found below the present entrance, and this could not be bored. Other ways were thought of, but each in turn laid aside as useless or too lengthy to be of any service in the present emergency.

Finally, little as they liked it, the otters agreed to abandon that home. Now, nearby on the lake, were moored two bathhouses. One was used as living quarters by a man who worked in the fields all day. The other was a real bathhouse, housing a small gas engine. While diving after a particular fat and toothsome looking trout, the baby otter came up under the staging of the bathhouse and made a discovery. There was a large air space between the flooring and the level of the water.

The houses, in fact, were built on a platform across thick logs, so that there was an air space between the bottom of the floor and the top of the water. Happy in the thought that he had discovered a solution, the baby Otter reported to the family.

In due course the owner of the bathhouse returned. His return nearly created a panic, for he drove a gasoline launch into one bathhouse, with an engine that went "chug-chug" and made curious pounding noises.

"We'll all be killed, and it is your fault," said Mrs. Otter to Baby Otter. "Patience," said Daddy Otter. "Nothing can reach us here." He was right, for in due course the noise of the engine ceased, and the

Give a Dog a Bad Name

It is an old maxim that unless there is something good to be said of a person say nothing at all. How Rover, the dog, got a bad name without any reason at all is told in a fable which runs after this fashion: Rover was a fine looking dog, the pride of his master and the envy of most of the other dog owners in town. He was a brave dog and on more than one occasion has saved his little children from danger. Of course, he was decorated and made a great deal of for these acts of heroism.

Now Rover lived with his master in a village community where the sheep of a flock is a very serious matter. Sheep began to disappear from the fields almost every day. One day coming on the carcass of a freshly slain animal a farmer sighted Rover crossing the fence some distance off. "Ah-ha," said the farmer, "I thought that dog was too good to be true." Thereupon he had jumped to the conclusion that Rover had been killing the sheep.

In a small village where Rover lived it did not take long for the news to spread. A small farmer lost three sheep next day, and went out that night with a gun to destroy the sheep-killer. He had taken the first farmer's word for it that Rover was a killer. So the brave dog died an inglorious death. But that did not stop the nightly theft of animals from the flocks. To cut a long story short the farmers found that it had not been Rover but some of their own mongrel dogs that had been taking the sheep. But it was then too late. Rover had died because someone, moved by spite, had said he was bad.

Little Reader, the more you see of the world, the more you will realize that there are two sides to every question. No one is all right and none is wrong. There is good and bad in nearly everything; good points in the worst of mankind, and bad points in the very best. A life of tolerance, then, makes a life of justice in one's dealings with fellow man, and a happier time for all.

FOR THE CHILDREN

The Sandman Story For To-night

TWO BOYS AND THEIR REWARD

When James' father died he and his brother Tom were small boys and their mother was left with very little money other than a small insurance which paid the funeral expenses and left very little behind.

"Now I want you boys to go to school and get an education," Mrs. Fenton would tell her sons, "and the only way that can be done is for all of us to work."

Every morning before school James was up, early and ran down the village to old black Dinah, bring coal and wood from her play and make her fire in the kitchen stove. For this he was given a dollar a week.

After school at night he carried papers for the schoolmaster; and sometimes it was cold work, for long walks had to be taken in villages to deliver papers. But the what James thought about. It was to help his mother.

When vacation time came Tom and James went to work in village stores. Tom worked for the grocer. He still told the washings for black Dinah, but the doughnut business was over till fall.

James worked in the drygoods store and from measuring cloth to sweeping up the floors he found his work. There was no time for play for Tom and James and many times their mother's eyes filled with tears as she kissed them and watched them out of sight. For well as knew her boys were real boys who longed to go fishing and swimming and play just as the other village boys did, but no one else thought that they missed these things.

Features For Smaller Folks

This is surely an easy dolly to make and a cunning little one when done. Pappy-oose doesn't even have feet to sew around like the toys of other nations have.

To make her into a sure enough stuffed doll, first transfer from this pattern onto a piece of cloth about 8 or 9 inches large. If you could find a piece of brown chambray or tan linen in the scrap bag, it would be just the thing. If you have to use unbleached muslin, better tint the baby's face and hand with water colors, or crayons. We do not want a "pale-face" for this good, healthy little Indian.

Now to embroider her, have black outline stitch hair, and black button-hole-stitch eyes. The lips and dotted section under her chin are red—solid or satin stitch. All the rest is brown outline stitch, except the many little circles, which are really beads. Beads of any or all colors, sewed on, one to a stitch, to properly decorate this little hanging cradle. Sure, it is to be a hanging cradle; that's why those marks A are on the back, to show you where to fasten the cord for hanging.

After the fancy work is done, turn finished sides together on the line that is marked FOLD and stitch firmly around the outside except across the top. Trim to about a quarter-inch seam, reverse and stuff with cotton or sawdust. Whip the seam across the top and Pappy-oose is ready to travel, hanging from your wrist. Maybe she would take a quiet nap hanging from a branch on the tree like her Indian mama Um-Squaw leaves her while the venison roasts for dinner.

NO TIME LOST.

Little Willie let no grass grow under his feet when uncle came for a visit, before rushing up to him with this: "Uncle, make a noise like a frog."

"Why?" asked the old man. "Cause when I ask daddy for anything he says, 'Wait till your uncle croaks.'"

BEAT THE WORLD.

"Look, daddy," said a little six-year-old, "I pulled the corstark right up all by myself."

A PERFECT ALIBI.

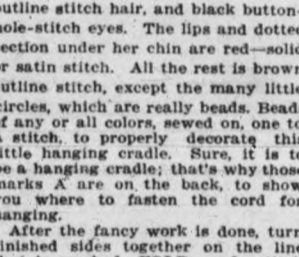

Mother—"You're a naughty girl, Alice, to kick your cousin."

SHAME ON HIM

It did not prove to be pirate's treasure, such as the boys had heard about, but it did prove to be a box filled with gold and bank notes that had been stolen from a city bank some days before the boys were told a big reward had been offered.

Tom found it, "all the boys declared," and to Tom the reward must go. And it did. So much was it that his mother did not have to work hard at her sewing to give gages to the boys before their little home, two school teachers were taken to board in the winter and with the money the boys earned there was no more hard work for mother. And in the bank there was money to pay for college if Tom and James wished to go.

Wasn't that a nice reward for two boys who worked so hard and willingly to help mother as well as themselves?

What Tommy Ted Saw

When James' father died he and his brother Tom were small boys and their mother was left with very little money other than a small insurance which paid the funeral expenses and left very little behind.

"Now I want you boys to go to school and get an education," Mrs. Fenton would tell her sons, "and the only way that can be done is for all of us to work."

Every morning before school James was up, early and ran down the village to old black Dinah, bring coal and wood from her play and make her fire in the kitchen stove. For this he was given a dollar a week.

After school at night he carried papers for the schoolmaster; and sometimes it was cold work, for long walks had to be taken in villages to deliver papers. But the what James thought about. It was to help his mother.

When vacation time came Tom and James went to work in village stores. Tom worked for the grocer. He still told the washings for black Dinah, but the doughnut business was over till fall.

James worked in the drygoods store and from measuring cloth to sweeping up the floors he found his work. There was no time for play for Tom and James and many times their mother's eyes filled with tears as she kissed them and watched them out of sight. For well as knew her boys were real boys who longed to go fishing and swimming and play just as the other village boys did, but no one else thought that they missed these things.

But when the vacation time was nearly over—just one week before school was to begin—Mrs. Fenton decided her boys should have that week to themselves to do anything they liked.

The village boys liked Tom and James. There was no one who could pick a ball like James and the village team had missed him, and, as for Tom, who could dive and swim as he could?

The news quickly spread among the village boys that Tom and James were to have a whole week in which to play before school began.

Many things were planned, but the best of all was a picnic to the lake close by. The boys of the village boys told James and Tom that this was a picnic for them and they were not to take any basket, for all the mothers had said that the picnic would furnish enough for all and with Mrs. Fenton so busy she would not have time to put up lunches.

Everybody jumped in the lake and swam to the spot, but no one could stay under water as long as Tom. The box was too heavy to bring up and they knew they would have to go to the village to help.

They ate their lunch first. But who could really enjoy eating, no matter how tempting the good things might be, when at the bottom of the lake here might be a pirate's treasure.

It did not prove to be pirate's treasure, such as the boys had heard about, but it did prove to be a box filled with gold and bank notes that had been stolen from a city bank some days before the boys were told a big reward had been offered.

Tom found it, "all the boys declared," and to Tom the reward must go. And it did. A Home-Made Coaster

In the illustration, These should be about 4 feet long. By marking out the squares you can get the curves better. Of course you need this on only one, as the second runner can be patterned from the first. One-inch material, hard wood preferably, will be what you need. Slots for the handles can easily be made by boring holes and chiseling out, and they are as good handles as any.

The connecting cross-pieces are a very important part; they ought to be about 12 inches long, 2 inches wide and about that thick. There are three of them, and by using six braces, cut as shown, the sled will be much stronger. The braces and cross pieces should be fastened together and to the runners with long

Little Folks' Limerick

In the centre was a large, round horse. Inside lay a bone, such as any dog might be proud to bury. From the space in front of the gap lay a placard on which the stuffed pussy cat had been. "This size, 25 cts." it read. Raising his eyes the officer looked closely at the window display.

The moon now looked again upon the scene. All was in order. "The dolls set around in listless pose. The merry-go-round rested as it had never moved at all. Even the Golliwog appeared to be mute. The schoolmaster, who had acted as spokesman, appeared as lifeless as the rest. "Just dolls," mused the policeman, "and yet I could be sure they moved." Wiping his glasses the officer replaced them with care in their case and resumed his beat with a martial tread. He did not hear the whippers that ran around the dolls as soon as his back was turned. "Hush, no more until to-morrow night," cautioned the Teddy Bear, and all were still.

WHAT IRRIGATION DOES!

'T WAS ONLY A DESERT.—Barren wastes for miles around greeted the eye in the vicinity of Minidoka in southern Idaho a few years ago. Then the Government got busy. And look what all it did.

NOW IT'S ALL OATS.—Irrigation ditches were built and the reclaimers got busy with the soil. And lo and behold! Just cast your optics on those oats. As high as ninety bushels are produced per acre. And a yield of 700 bushels of potatoes is nothing out of the ordinary.

THE STEP ON THE STAIR

BY ANNA KATHARINE GREEN... Author of "The Leavenworth Case," "The Pilgrimage," "The Mystery of the Hasty Arrow," Etc.

Next moment he was on his knees, with his arms thrown over my breast and clinging there in convulsive embrace as he whispered words such as had never been uttered into my ears before; words of infinite affection laden with self-reproaches it filled me with a great compassion to hear. For I knew that these words were not meant for me; that he had been misled by the events of the evening and believed it to be in Edgar's ear he was laying bare his soul.

Such is Strong Probability of Alberta Liquor Act
Investigator Here Gathering Full Detail on Experience of Province

There seems a strong probability that the Alberta Government Liquor Act will be largely modeled on the British Columbia Act. While no specific instructions have been issued to Frederick G. Forster, of the Publicity Department of the Alberta Government, as to the character of his inquiries, he expects that the situation here will be more of a guide than that which will be reported by the official sent to Quebec province from Edmonton.

NO MYSTERY
—about the success of this laundry

Those somethings called fate luck, etc., to which is often ascribed the success or failure of business have no place in this Victoria's most modern laundry. Certain supplies and methods plus a reasonable amount of judgment and a mutual benefit feeling have developed this institution into one of the most successful businesses of British Columbia.

—when you want any moving or hauling done, swift messengers careful baggage handlers, or goods stored.

Times last evening, feel that the knowledge of British Columbia, with nearly three years practical experience of Government control, has already ironed out some of the most able difficulties in handling the sale of liquor, and also there is the important parallel of passing from prohibition, to Government sale, as in the case in the neighboring province.

Grain Situation
In his capacity as statistician Mr. Forster is closely in touch with the western grain situation. He pointed out that the great increase in the production of grain in Alberta this Fall is demonstrated by the fact that the number of threshing permits has increased from 3,569 to over 5,000, and the department will shortly know what the actual acreage cut has been in the province.

For. Forster's Career.
Before going to Edmonton in 1919 Mr. Forster was leading figure in Southern Alberta, as publisher of The Medicine Hat News, which he controlled from 1884 to 1910. A printer by profession, he came to Ontario in 1888, and grew up with the country. He was nine years an alderman and two years Mayor of Medicine Hat before he moved to the Alberta capital.

B.C. NUTS TO GO TO LONDON
Display is to be Made at British Empire Exhibition

J. U. Gellatly, of Gellatly, a lake-side postoffice just south of Westbank, in the Okanagan, is gathering samples of nuts for exhibit at the British Empire Exhibition in London next Spring. Mr. Gellatly spent Friday in Summerland, where he obtained some excellent samples of walnuts, Japanese heart nuts, filberts, butternuts and chestnuts. He expected to obtain samples of these varieties also in Penticton and possibly almonds as well.

BOY SCOUT ASSOCIATION
Work for your troop or pack committee—The following scheme has been found very successful by several troops. Each patrol or six is assigned to one member of the troop committee, and the leaders are to consult with them about patrol projects, good turns, personal problems, etc. This gives each of the committee a definite interest in the work, and a clearer insight into scouting. They will probably invite them to their homes for special patrol meetings, etc., and will soon be coming to troop meetings to boost for their particular patrol. They will also take a hand in securing for it special equipment, camp opportunities, etc. The committee will, in this way, be given a more definite job to do, and will have a much greater personal interest than if they are looked upon merely as a base of supplies and general controlling body, and in the unfortunate event of a troop being left without a scoutmaster, it will have a much better chance of continuing its work until another officer can be appointed.

Winter training course—The district commissioner is making arrangements for a training course for local scoutmasters, senior scouts and others engaged in scout work. This course has been arranged by the Dominion camp chief, Rodney Wood, and will form part of the Gillwell training scheme. It will probably commence about the New Year, and will deal with the organization and training of a scout troop from the beginning.

Badge committee—This committee met on the 20th inst. S. M. MacArthur was appointed chairman, and C. W. Dixon as secretary. The committee will meet every second Tuesday, and all badge applications, etc., should be handed in to the local office before 1 o'clock on these dates. The following badges have been granted:

St. John's Pack—Sixer W. Sheldon-Williams, house orderly.
St. Aidan's Pack—H. A. Goward, collector; E. C. Hamber, house orderly.
St. Mary's Pack—R. Yirburgh, collector.
Victoria West Pack—J. Forsyth, first star.
Fairfield Troop—Second class badges, L. Fox, G. Godwin, P. Dutton and S. Bruce.

Scouters are notified that no application is necessary for badges for Tenderfoots and Tenderpad Cubs, but they must be registered with the badge committee as soon as they have taken the promise. The same applies to second class Scouts and first star Cubs. The badges may be obtained without special application, but the granting of these badges must be registered immediately. All promotions should be promptly notified for registration.

Rescuer and swimmer badges—No application for these badges should be made until the swimming tank becomes available, unless the scoutmaster is able to make arrangements for the use of a tank for the test.

RENEW FIGHT ON EIGHT-HOUR DAY
Mill Owners Will Urge Men to Sign Protest

Mill owners again took up the battle against an eight-hour day in the saw mills at a meeting held at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday at which city and up-Island mills were represented. Declaring that an eight-hour law will cripple the industry and mean closing down of mills, it was decided to circulate a petition which the employees will be asked to sign protesting against an eight-hour day.

TO UNITE MILLS
Progress is being made on the Chamber of Commerce industrial group plan to unite Vancouver Island mills for the purpose of making shipments. With co-operative marketing the establishment of a long-advanced assembly plant at the Ogden Point piers, with railroad slips for car ferries, is looked for. The combination of the mills will enable full ship's cargoes of lumber to be made up and advantages taken of large orders which small mills are at present unable to share in (except under a co-operative marketing plan.)

NO REFUND GRANTED
Ottawa, Nov. 24.—In a case of long standing in which certain United States paper interests endeavored to secure authority for a refund of freight rates upon pulpwood, the Canadian Railway Commission has given its decision that it has no power to direct a refund of freight.

BUSINESS FAILURES
Ottawa, Nov. 24.—Notices of forty-eight assignments under the Bankruptcy Act appear in this week's issue of The Canada Gazette.

WILL LECTURE ON ROCKY MOUNTAINS
Sir James Outram Well Received in Vancouver; to Speak To-night

Sir James Outram, who has arrived in the city to deliver an address this evening to the Victoria members of the Alpine Club of Canada, had a most enthusiastic reception in Vancouver on Thursday evening.

MOUNT ASSINIBOINE
In describing the conquest of the hitherto unclimbed Mount Assiniboine, the lecturer said that three attempts had been made prior to that undertaken by his party, and a tradition had sprung up to the effect that it was unascendable. The difficulty in exploratory climbing was to discover just the right angle from which to attack a particular mountain; it was sometimes necessary to spend much time in reconnoitering the enemy before proceeding.

ROAD BUILDING ACTIVE IN INTERIOR
Work on the Vernon-Edgewood road, as proposed for this past Summer and Fall, is just about completed, according to William Ramsay, district engineer of the public works department. The construction has been pushed all Summer, and the planned work will be completed within the next month.

SPRIT OF ADVENTURE
It was a notable thing, Sir James
