ENGINEERS' SOCIETY OF WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA.—The monthly meeting of this society was held in the Society's house, Pittsburgh, Pa., on March 21. The Committee on the Abatement of Smoke reported that they had been requested by the Public Works Department of Pittsburgh to establish a rating of boilers of different types, and with different furnaces and settings, which the city could adopt with a view to putting an end to the installation of plants so inferior in capacity that they could not be worked without producing smoke.

The paper of the evening was read by Mr. C. B. Alhree, on "Ornamental Iron Work." A number of specimens of work done in America and elsewhere and also several hundred illustrations were shown. The lecturer pointed out that a great deal of the best work was now made in Germany, but there was no reason why it could not be done here. The different methods of producing this kind of work were illustrated.

THE ENGINEERS' CLUB OF PHILADELPHIA.—At the last regular meeting of this club, held on March 18, Prof. J. B. Johnson presented a paper entitled "The Fruits of Sanitary Science." Prof. Johnson considered that modern sanitation may be said to date from 1863, when the English poor law commissioners instituted an inquiry into the health of towns. The first of the State Boards of Health in this country was organized in Massachusetts in 1869. The true cause of infectious diseases (from which about 40% of all deaths are due) is now acknowledged to be the taking into the human system some of the various kinds of injurious micro-organisms known as bacteria, carried either in the air or in food and drink. The methods of destroying these germs in food were considered and the statement was made that heating to the boiling point will certainly destroy all forms of bacteria. All surface waters contain injurious bacteria, which can be removed by filtration through fine sand, on the surface of which the microscopic growths collect and form a gelatinous covering which arrests the bacteria. The saving in the reduction of typhoid fever by the use of such filters is about 17 times their cost. Figures obtained at different localities were given in support of the above statement. The method of preventing the pollution of streams by filtering the sewage which enters into them was explained, and it was stated that modern sanitary science has given us the means of obtaining this most important element of life—a pure supply of drinking water. The importance of proper ventilation and cleaning of the rooms occupied by large numbers of people was dwelt upon, and attention was called to the recent progress made in the discovery of antidotes for the poisonous fluids engendered in the system by the microbes of disease. While sanitary science is still very young, it has already shown us the cause of those diseases from which two of every five persons die, and how to avoid such fatalities.

A special meeting of the club was held on the evening of March 25 to consider the question of the water supply of Philadelphia. After a lively discussion, in which the criminal negligence of the city councils in not providing for a pure water supply was pointed out, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

That in the judgment of the Engineers' Club of Philadelphia city councils should take such immediate action as will secure the following results:

- (1) The placing of our present water supply beyond impairment.
(2) That the undue waste of our water supply should be prevented.
(3) That the initiation of the purification of our present water supply should be at once undertaken under the ownership and control of the city.
(4) That the detailed methods for securing the physical results should be assumed by the executive department of the city government.
