There are five forms, or grades, of the Javanese language:

Ngoko (Low Javanese), used by a superior to an inferior and by older people when addressing children.

Kromo (High Javanese), used by an inferior to a superior, and by children to elders.

Madyo, a form between high and low Javanese and used between people of lower ranks. It is a shortened form of Kromo.

Kromo Inggil, a stilted form of Kromo.

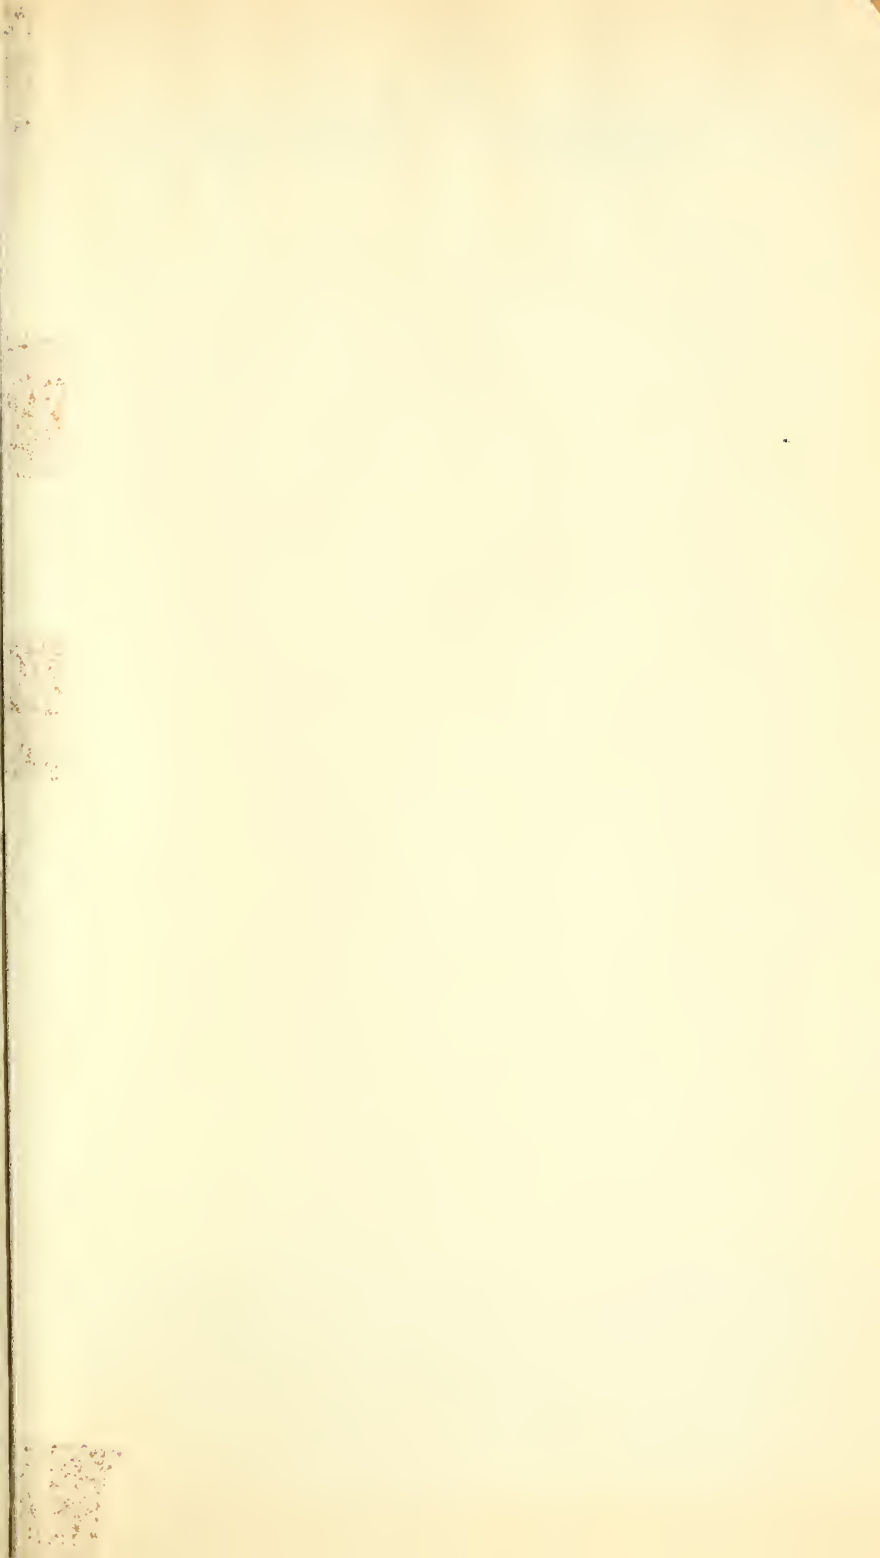

Boso Kedaton, a super-stilted Kromo used when addressing royalty.

Of the above forms, only Ngoko (low) and Kromo (high) are in general use, and the following list shows only these two forms. Where no Kromo word is shown, the Ngoko word is used. The number of words in Kromo Inggil, Kromo Karaton and Madyo is said to be very limited, and for practical purposes may be disregarded.

Following are hints as to differences in alphabet pronunciation:

Javanese		English
à	as	āw
a	as	ah

Javanese		English
e	as	ā
i	as	ē
oe	as	oo in "pool"
dj	as	j
g	as	g in "go"
h	is not fully sounded, but indicated only.
h	final, is somewhat like hk with neither letter fully sounded.
j	as	y in "year"
ng	as in	sing
nj	as	nya or nyuh
q	as	k, or the softer hk sound
tj	as	ch
