POETRY.

A LOVING GIRL IN A PET.

Well, let him go, or let him stay,
I do not mean to die;
I guess he'll find that I can live
Without him, if I try.
He thought to frighten me with frowns,
So terrible and black;
He'll stay awhile—a thousand years—
Before I ask him back.

He said that I had acted wrong,
And foolishly, beside;
I won't forgive him after that—
I wouldn't if I died!
If I was wrong, what right had he
To be so cross with me?
I know I'm not an angel quite—
I don't pretend to be.

He had another sweetheart once,
And now when we fall out,
He always says she was not cross,
And that she did not pout.
It is enough to vex a saint,
It's more than I can bear;
I wish that precious girl of his
Was—well I don't care where.

He thinks that she is pretty, too—
As beautiful as good;
I wonder if she'd get him back
Again now, if she could?
I know she would, and there she is—
She lives almost in sight,
And now its after nine o'clock—
Perhaps he's there to-night.

I'd almost write to him to come—
But then I've said I won't;
I do not care so much—but she Shan't have him if I don't.
Besides, I know that I was wrong,
And he was in the right;
I guess I'll tell him so, and then—
I wish he'd come to-night.

THE BRODERICK MONUMENT.—The Broderick Monument Committee have made a statement, from which it appears that they have on hand the sum of $6,263 84. The Committee say:

"This sum is not sufficient to warrant the Committee in commencing any work; but in order that they may arrive at some definite knowledge of the amount to be devoted to such purpose, they have fixed upon the following plan: Subscriptions to be solicited between this and the 15th day of October ensuing, at which date the Committee will proceed to contract for the building of a monument to the extent of the means on hand. It therefore rests with the people of California, in whose defense he laid down his life, to determine the character of the monument to the memory of David C. Broderick. Those having subscription lists in their possession are called upon to make immediate returns thereof, as a full list of all donors and subscribers, as well as all delinquent agents, will be published on or about the 15th day of October. They would earnestly appeal to all those who hold the memory of the good and great in reverence, as well as the patriotic in general, to lend their aid towards the consummation of their trust. The present is a peculiarly fitting period for the erection of a monument which shall be as enduring as the Union, to the memory of one of the first martyrs to a cause which, at this day, has such hosts of advocates in California."

LOVE, ITS PURITY AND POWER.—How bright and beautiful is love in its hour of innocence and purity—how mysteriously does it etherealize every feeling, and concentrate every wild and bewildered impulse of the heart. Love, holy and mysterious love—it is the garland spring of life—the dream of the heart—the poetry of nature. Its song is heard in the rude hut of the poor as well as in the gorgeous palace of the rich—its flames embellish the solitudes of the forest and the thronged haunts of busy life, and its light imparts a brilliancy to every heart, no matter what may be its condition.

Love—pure, holy and devoted love—can never change. Friends may forsake us—the riches of this world may scar away, but the heart that loves will cling closer, as louder roars the storm; amid the wreck of the tempest it will serve as a beacon to light us on to hope and happiness.

Love is the mystic and unseen spell that soothes the rugged tendencies of human nature—that lingers about the sanctity of the fireside, and unites in closer union the affections of society, and the soul that loves truly will love forever. Not like the waves of the ocean, nor traced in sand, is the image impressed upon a loving heart. No, no—but it will burn on, undefaced its luster amid the quick rush of winds, and the warring of the tempest cloud, and when our fate seems dark and dreary then will love seek shelter in her own hallowed temple, and offer up as a sacrifice her vows and her affections.

"PAP, I planted some potatoes in our garden," said one of the smart youths of this generation to his father, "and what do you think came up?" "Why, potatoes, of course." "No, siree! There came up a drove of hogs and ate them all." The "old man" gave in.

A DARK AFFAIR.

At Grand Rapids, Michigan, lives a "pusson" of the African persuasion, named John Thomas, who earns pecuniary emolument by lathering and scraping the faces of the white population, and has generally been looked upon in dark circles as a very nice man indeed, and eminently calculated to keep a barber-shop. John Thomas is fortunate in the possession of a wife and several peculiar institutions in the way of offsprings, and might have lived very respectably and pleasantly in the community to which he lends the shadow of his sable presence, but for certain weakness directly under the second pewter stud in his conspicuous shirt-bosom. To speak the truth, John Thomas is unfortunately sensible, like Mr. Guppy, that "there are chords in the human heart," and we blush to say that he suffered one of these chords to be violently played upon by Miss Rosa—the yellow daughter of a venerable "pusson" in the whitewashing business. He recently made up his mind that the world is all a howling waste without a woman to your taste, and accordingly determined to elope with Rosa to some distant spot where all but love could be forgot. But he would do it in a manly way; there should be no sneaking away in the dead of the night, when the moon and stars were twinkling bright; but he would give his wife warning of his intentions, and advise her to be resigned. He must take his children with him, too; and the dear little black things had entwined themselves about his heart, as so many young lobsbers might twist themselves about a dead sheep, and he could not think of leaving them behind. Mrs. Thomas received his remarks with commendable firmness; in fact her complexion would not allow her to turn pale, and she was too fat to tremble; but on the day last week when John Thomas expected to fly away with the whitewasher's daughter, Mrs. Thomas very majestically gathered the small black Thomasses under her wing and sought refuge in the opposition barber-shop of J. Highwarden, another colored artist in soapbuds and "ha'r ile," who was much noted for his practical philanthropy.

This proceeding greatly disgusted Mr. John Thomas, who at once formed himself in line-of-battle order and charged upon the rival barber-shop, calling upon Mrs. Thomas to surrender the infantry immediately. After accomplishing a very elaborate wink with her left eye, the maternal Thomas plumply refused to do anything of the kind. Brigadier-General Thomas then retired to bring up his artillery, and presently re-appeared with a double-barrelled gun, with which he proposed to turn the enemy's flank. At this crisis Mrs. Thomas was reinforced by Major General Highwarden—the infantry being kept in the rear—and the engagement became general. Hair oil and pomatum were enjoying a large circulation, when a treacherous policeman suddenly advanced upon the heroic Thomas at double-quick time, and captured his artillery.

This brought the engagement to a close. John Thomas promised "not to do so no more," and retreated in good order from the field; but scarcely had the police department subsided from view when he suddenly re-entered the Highwarden camp of the infantry again. In fact he attempted to re-capture his black juveniles by force, and menaced the Highwarden detachment with a very big dirk-knife. Resolving to end the struggle at once, Highwarden parried the dirk with a heavy cane, and then brought the latter weapon down upon the kinky head of John Thomas with a force that caused the victim to behold an instantaneous comet of dazzling proportions; but before he could repeat the dose, he found the dirk at his ribs and the arm of John Thomas about his waist. The philanthropic Highwarden would have gone "a howling shade to the Plut nian shore" in another moment, had not Mrs. Thomas seized the cane and brought it down upon the shins of her lord and master with a hideous whack! That decided the day. John Thomas fled from the scene with a yell unearthly, and when last seen was proceeding in the direction of beneficent public institution, in the society of two gentlemen connected with the Constable family.—Philadelphia Transcript.

METHODIST ANNUAL CONFERENCE.—The Tenth Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church was held at Sacramento on Tuesday last and will continue several days.

COUNTY SEAT OF SAN MATEO.—The following votes were cast for the permanent location of the county seat of San Mateo County; Redwood City, 656; San Mateo Villa, 364; San Mateo, 11; Belmont, 1.

"I think I have seen you before somewhere," said a swell to a stranger whom he met one day. "Very likely," was the reply, "I was formerly keeper of the Penitentiary."

A NIGHT SCENE.—During one of the warm nights of the season, a young lady was excessively frightened by a little circumstance that transpired about midnight. The young lady, whose beauty is only equaled by her modesty, and whose eyes' dark charm has caused more than one heart to palpitate, had retired to her chamber, where, after laying aside the greater portion of her apparel, she committed herself to the tender embraces of Morpheus, whose soothing influence was aided by the cooling breath of Zephyr, who came in at the open window and fanned her cheeks with his feathery wings. In a word she was snoozing finely—or to use the language of a modern bard—
"Sleep on her velvet eyelids lightly pressed. And dreamy sighs upheaved her snowy breast, While star-beams through the window softly creeping.
Stole to her couch, and trembling there, stood peeping."

It was, as we said, about midnight, when the young lady was aroused from her delicious slumber by hearing a noise at her window. Half unclosing her eyes, she was startled by a corpulent form, apparently struggling to gain admission to her chamber through the window. It struck her at once that the intruder had been caught by the rear of his unmentionables, by a nail or some other sharp instrument, as he seemed to be struggling with a firm determination to enter. Her first thought was to faint—her second to give the fellow a push—her third, to jump out of the window as soon as he jumped in—her fourth, to scream, which was immediately carried into effect. The whistle of the locomotive on the Iron Mountain road, when it gave its first snort on the 4th day of July, was but a whisper, compared to the screams of that young girl. The whole house and half of the neighborhood were awakened by the outcry. The old folks, two female servants, and three big brothers, rushed to the rescue, and broom sticks, mop-handles, and boot-jacks flashed in the gas light as the household entered the chamber of the affrighted beauty. An examination of the figure in the window, dispelled the fears of all, and changed the alarm of the young lady to shouts of laughter.

The imaginary fat man was only her own darling hooped skirt, which she had hung on a hook near the window, and which the wind had inflated and set in motion.

THE DEVIL.—The "Devil" is an institution by and of himself. He inks the type, or turns the crank, or "lays on the sheets." (Other people sometimes do the latter.) If it were not for him the paper would not "come out." He sweeps out the office. He builds the fire—an appropriate work for a fiend—and swears because some one has "hooked the kindlings." He does the "chores at the house." He "quiets the baby."—Yet his most important duty is to keep watch on the street corner, so as to be able to inform the editor when the sheriff is after him.

"With all this, the 'devil' shoulders all the bad or smutty jokes of the editor. When the mighty man of the pen is ashamed of an expression; and still desires to utter it, he says 'our devil says thus or so,' and the poor devil has to stand it! Nevertheless, the 'Devil' is an important personage in society.

He attends lectures. He frequents concerts, shows and the opera: but—I say it more in sorrow than in anger—he seldom attends church. He presents himself at the ticket office of the "show" with his "linen" reversed, by way of a change, (for he seldom possesses more than a single shirt,) as a "member of the Press," and so presses his claims that he is admitted without the accustomed quarter. But our friend is not alone. He is too much of a gallant for that. His "woman" is with him, and he and his "woman" pass in and enjoy the entertainment, which, whatever it may be, is taken down in doses alternated with peanuts and tobacco. For the "Devil" chews as well as smokes, and spits profusely upon carpets, when he gets within reach of them.

"I never heard of a Printer's Devil who had 'risen in life,' but I do the class justice to say that, to my knowledge, none of them have fallen very low. Some of these Devils have descended to be mayors of cities. Some of them have even let themselves down into Congressmen. But I never knew one to degrade himself so low as to become President of the United States.

"So much for the Devil I know the 'animal.' I've been there myself."—The Printer.

Two Irishmen were going to fire off a cannon just for fun; but being of rather an economical turn of mind, they did not wish to lose the ball. So one of them took an iron kettle in his hand to catch it in, and, stationing himself in front of the loaded piece, he exclaimed to the other, who stood behind it, holding a lighted torch:—Touch it aisy, Pat!

SEEKING A WIFE.—Young man, you are in search of a partner, a help mate, a second self; one in whom you can confide, who will soften your path and do you good all the days of your life. Has the time fully come for this sacred, solemn relationship? Open your eyes, walk softly, prayerfully; look to God for wisdom. One wrong step here may embitter your whole life, plant thorns in your dying pillow. Beware, this crisis is momentous, fearful! Beware of the foot of pride, and folly, and fashion, of self-conceit; beware of the slattern; and, above all, beware of the novel reader, the vain, giddy, gay, flirting novel reader; beware! there is death in the pot! Call on the lady, toward whom you are favorably disposed, when she least expects you. Is everything neat, tidy, orderly, timely about the house, and about her person? Is she modest, industrious, and sweet tempered? Does she understand minutely the philosophy of the kitchen, as well as the parlor? Has she good common sense which elevates the mind? Does she fear God and reverence his sanctuary? Receive her as an angel. "Many daughters have done virtuously, but she excelleth them all." "Favor is deceitful, and beauty is vain; but the woman who feareth the Lord, she shall be praised"

"I SEE," said a young lady, "that the bookseller advertises blank declarations for sale, I wish I could get one."

"Why?" asked the mother.

"Because, ma, Mr. D. is too bashful to ask me to marry him, and perhaps, if I were to fill a blank declaration with the question, he would sign it."

If you don't want to fall in love with a girl don't commence flirting with her. This courting for fun is like boxing for fun. You put on the gloves in perfect good humor, with the most friendly intentions of exchanging a few amicable blows; you find yourself insensibly warm with the enthusiasm of conflict, until some unlucky punch in the "veskit" decides the matter, and the whole affair ends in a downright fight. Don't you see the similarity?

A KIND-hearted wife once waited on a physician to request him to prescribe for her husband's eyes, which were sore. "Let him wash them," said the doctor, every morning with brandy. A few weeks after the doctor chanced to meet the wife.

"Well, has your husband followed my advice?"

"He has done everything in his power to do it doctor, but he could never get the brandy higher than his mouth."

APT, BUT SAUCY.—A young so'ger in one of the Third avenue cars the other day took off his cap and showed a poll which suggested a white-wood scrub-brush, from the shortness of his cropped hair. Probably the crop might have averaged a quarter of an inch in length. A lively work girl, who sat next to him, innocently inquired how soon he was going to Virginia? "To-morrow, I hope," was the reply. "So soon!" said the girl (quizzically.) "Pray leave me a lock of your hair?" The joke took well. The moment it was understood, the whole crowd in the car roared with laughter.

A DOUBLE SECEDER.—The slaves who ran away from their masters in Virginia are set to work at once by Gen. Butler, and made to keep at it much to their annoyance. One of them having been put to it rather strong, said, "Golly, Master Butler, dis nigger nebber had to work so hard afore; guess dis child will secede once moah!"

ELOQUENT.—A young lawyer lately concluded his argument in a case of trespass with the following sublime burst: "If, gentlemen of the jury, the defendant's hogs are permitted to roam at large over the fair fields of my client with impunity and without yokes—then—yes, then indeed have our forefathers fought and bled, and died in vain!"

A WESTERN editor thus sums up the peculiarities of a cotemporary: "He is too lazy to earn a meal, and too mean to eat one. He never was generous but once, and that was when he gave the itch to an apprentice boy."

TO DESTROY GROUND SQUIRRELS.—The California Farmer says dissolve a stick of phosphorus two inches long in a gallon of warm water, and stir in flour and wheat till stiff, and scatter in their holes.

Gussy, coming into the house one day, with his pants much worn at the knee, was reprimanded by his mother, but escaped punishment by saying—
"Why, ma, you see I wore'd 'em out by saying my prayers in the back yard."

A NOTORIOUS miser having heard a very eloquent charity sermon, exclaimed: "This sermon strongly proves the necessity of alms. I have almost a mind to turn beggar."

Declaration of Homestead.

Persons wishing to procure a correct legal form for making out a Declaration of Homestead, as required by the Act of the last Legislature, with the acknowledgment attached thereto, will find printed blanks, on application to the KNIGHT'S LANDING NEWS OFFICE. By filling out these blanks themselves, parties will be subject to no other expense than the fees for acknowledgment and record.

H. J. BIDDLEMAN, Bookseller, Fourth street next to the Post Office, Sacramento, is our authorized Agent to receive subscriptions for the KNIGHT'S LANDING NEWS.

Very Dull.

The above caption conveys but an imperfect idea of the want of animation this week in all departments of business in this little town of ours, usually so lively. The State Fair at Sacramento has drawn upon us this week for half our population, and the surrounding country is depopulated for the time being in about the same ratio; but the greatest apprehensions of our business men just now is, that, when those who have gone to the Fair return, they will find their purses depleted to such a fearful extent that the process of recuperation will be found somewhat difficult, and we will have to look to the increased stimulus given thereby to all our industrial pursuits for a compensation for present losses.

Willow Point Turnpike.

A strong effort is being made by the citizens of either end of the Willow Point Turnpike, which crosses the Tule about seven miles below Washington, to purchase the road by subscription, and make it free to the public for travel. This is quite an enterprise, and will be a lasting benefit to all who travel in that direction, hence all who are interested should come forward and subscribe, as the amount they thus invest will no doubt net them a greater return than any similar amount could in another way. The success attending the project thus far, leaves little doubt but it will be accomplished.

The Teachers Institute of Yolo county will meet in this place on the first Saturday of next month. All the teachers of the county are expected to be present, and it is hoped that the citizens of Grafton will encourage it by their attendance and hospitality.

RETURNED.—We learn by our exchanges, that the Hon. Z. Montgomery, of Sutter county, returned to this State by the last steamer. He has many warm friends and well wishers here who will be rejoiced to hear of his safe return to his adopted State.

MONUMENT TO YOUNG GLASSECOCK.—We learn from the Marysville Express, that a subscription had been taken up in that city, on Saturday last, for the purpose of erecting a monument for young Glascock, of this place, who it will be remembered was killed in that city on Wednesday week last, by being thrown from a horse. We have no doubt but quite a number of citizens of this county would contribute if called upon.

THE FAIR AT SACRAMENTO.—The State Fair now in progress at Sacramento is evidently a great success, it fully comes up to the anticipations of its most ardent friends, the display of blooded stock was large and of superior quality, and of fruits, vegetables, and other agricultural products, the assortment is immense.—The display of mechanical arts, at the Pavilion, was very fine, but up to Wednesday last, when we left, a large portion had not been opened, and more was still coming in.

The citizens of Sacramento are entitled to great praise for the liberality they have displayed in furnishing such fine buildings and grounds for the Society's use; and too much praise cannot be given to the Officers of the Society for the pleasing and effective manner they performed their arduous duties.

THE LATE EDMUND RANDOLPH.—We hear, says the Bee, that a post mortem examination was made on his body, and that the cause of his death was a chronic disease of the stomach. When he was sick in this city in February last, the doctors disagreed on this point—some of them holding that such was his disease while others contended that his disease was only of the liver; and we believe the majority of the physicians in attendance were of the latter opinion.

ROBERT S. AVALINE, brother of the editor of the Folsom Telegraph, was lately killed by the Apache Indians.

Peace Prospects.

The prospect to the friends of peace, and a return to the good feelings which formerly existed between the people of this Nation, are anything but flattering, the news by Pony, which we are now receiving, indicates that the spirit of aggression on both sides of the conflict is increasing. In Missouri, Ex-Gov. Jackson aided by numbers from Arkansas and Texas, has succeeded in completely revolutionizing that State, and anarchy and bloodshed have, as if by magic, taken the place of the former peaceful pursuits of the husbandman, and the indications are that, the struggle for the supremacy in that State, will be fearful indeed from appearances. Gen. Fremont seems to be strongly entrenched at St. Louis, and able to successfully resist any attack which may be brought against him, not so however, with the Federal troops in other portions of the State. The aim of Jackson is no doubt to get possession of Jefferson City, and then reinstate himself in the Gubernatorial chair, and make that point the head-quarters for his future operations. Should he succeed in these designs, the speedy prospects for peace in Missouri are weak indeed. In Virginia and on the Potomac, there are preparations making for another great battle, the precise point at which this will take place is unknown, as the leading spirits on both sides have thus far succeeded in keeping their plans in a great measure to themselves. If the communication by Pony is not cut off, we may expect to hear of exciting times in that direction, the coming week.

The Contest two-thirds Settled.

The abolition army by its instigators and prime movers, thought at the commencement of our present troubles, that the South could be brought into the abolition ranks without any trouble, they had three methods by which this was to be accomplished, the first two have failed and the last is undergoing the process of solution. At the first the organs of the party gave out that the South would come to terms as soon as seventy-five thousand men were called into the field by Abe Lincoln. This being the first or scaring process—it failed. The next or starving process so much harped on, it is needless to say failed also. The third and last, the whipping process, is now being tried. Can any of our republican readers tell the result, we believe it will like its predecessors also fail, all the lights of history teach us, if they teach anything, that ten millions of people situated and with resources equal to the Southern States never can be subdued. Then, why not take the only process of settlement the South has ever asked, to wit: compromise; it must come to this at last, why not commence at once before both ourselves and posterity are chained down with a load of endless debts and misery which ages can never wipe out.

THE COST OF THE WAR.—The Crimean war, everybody knows, was conducted by all parties upon an extensive scale, and it cost only $84,000,000. The late Italian war cost but $47,000,000, and the late war in India cost $38,000,000. The "ten years war," known in history as the French Revolution, cost only $230,000,000. But the Republicans bring their war with an appropriation amounting to more than the cost of all these long and terrible wars combined. The truth is, the Republicans mean to make "a good thing" out of their war. They have already expended over a hundred millions of dollars, while the South has expended less than ten millions, and have beat us at that in the first great battle. The people will get it worked into their minds before long, that their money and their lives are squandered by a reckless and incompetent administration.

WHERE THE NEWS ORIGINATES.—Weeks previous to the battle of Bull Run, we were daily treated by the Washington correspondents to narratives from "a reliable gentleman," just from Manassas or Richmond, to whom Beauregard and Davis had confided most of their secrets. "The reliable gentleman" has not been heard of for the last few days. But his place is filled by the "escaped prisoner" just from the hospital at Centerville or Manassas. Every day he turns up.

A PHYSICIAN in Cincinnati, who had lost his morning's milk from the front area, recently put an emetic in the pitcher, and the next morning discovered a policeman a little distance from his house "making his returns."

HE who hath good health is young; and he is rich who owes nothing.

CHARITY begins at home, and generally ends there.

The War in Missouri.

From a private letter received here by the last mail, by A. H. Hughes, of our town, from his father, in Missouri, we are permitted to take following extract: "We are all in war here, I am not in the army, but the only reason is myself and John have in a large crop of corn, and hands were wanted to work it at first, and at this time we cannot get to the army, as all the roads are guarded, but in the course of ten days our army will be at Lexington, then we will all go. In planting time we had to plow all day and lay out at night in the brush until I was most broken down, but now we have some peace, since our boys whipped them so bad at Carthage and Springfield. They mustered the men out of the fields into the army, they raised twelve thousand in Lexington, in six days, and started from there on the 7th for Springfield; they were followed by about as many United States troops. Our men had nothing but shot-guns and rifles, the United States troops overtook them at Carthage, our boys whipped them easy, killed 670 United States troops, and we lost 11 killed, and 18 wounded. At Springfield we killed fifteen hundred, left dead on the field, and twenty-five hundred wounded and took four hundred prisoners, eight hundred wagons and teams, five hundred sacks flour, and all their other provisions; we lost two hundred killed and four hundred wounded, no body killed that you know but B. Brown. Doctor Basset (the writer's son-in-law) and a great number of your friends and relatives were in the fight. We have had the best crops of wheat, oats and corn this year that ever I have seen."

The writer of the above is sixty-two years of age, and his son is seventeen.—Yet it seems they are both going to the war; does any sane man suppose such a spirit as this manifests can be conquered, especially, when in such force as the confederates now display. There are several reliable gentlemen here who are acquainted with the writer of the above letter, and they all agree in saying, that, whatever the old gentleman writes can be relied on in every particular, and if he is wrong, he is deceived, and so are all the well informed in his section of the country—a thing not very likely to be, as they have all got friends and relatives who were in the battle mentioned.

MADE TO BE KILLED.—Since so many of our fellow-citizens have been sent to eternity to gratify the vengeance of Abolitionists, it may be well to remember that the Tribune, in April last, said that soldiers were simply made to be killed. It said:

The natural end of a soldier is death in battle, and he comes to a premature and unnatural termination of his career, provided he continues a soldier, if he dies in his bed. The true military necessity, then, is fight, fight to the bitter or to the glorious end, but still fight, and fight only. Soldiers were made to go to battle, as ships were made to go to sea.

If the one "springs a fatal leak, or runs upon some rocks," or the other comes to his death with sword in hand, or musket on his shoulder, both have fulfilled their destiny, and come to natural ends, as MACHINES created for dangerous service with innumerable risks.

Soldiers are "machines," not men. "Machines" for gentlemen too "good" or too cowardly to fight themselves, to use to do their fighting for them!

LIBERALITY OF THE NAVIGATION CO. We have often heard the California Steam Navigation Company denounced and reviled as a grasping, selfish monopoly; but it is clear that those who used such language did not well know what they were talking about, or else were gratifying personal spite. The liberality of this Company has always been great; but now it is magnificent. Their boats on the lower waters are crowded daily with volunteers en route for headquarters, and whom they are carrying free of all charge; and all volunteers desirous of proceeding to their regimental quarters from this town will find a free passage awaiting them on the boats whenever they apply for it.—Red Bluff Independent.

FIRE.—We are sorry to announce that the property of Mrs. Eliza Wilmot, consisting of a steam saw mill, together with 200,000 feet lumber was destroyed by fire at Butte Mills, Butte county, her entire loss is estimated at $10,000. Her numerous friends throughout this State will be pained to hear of her sad misfortune.

MRS. Sue A. Carter Foster, of Murfreesboro, North Carolina, the wife of Charles Henry Foster, has applied for a divorce, on the ground that her husband is an abolitionist.

SEIZED.—A lot of tobacco, worth $10,000 or $12,000 consigned to Green, Heath & Allen, San Francisco, has been seized by the United States officers, on the presumption that it belonged to Southern owners.

BRECKINRIDGE ASSEMBLYMAN FROM MARIN.—An official account in Marin gives a majority of one to McAlester, Breckinridge Candidate for the Assembly.

THE following from the Alta's N. Y. Correspondent, shows some of the corruptions of the administration, and brings to light one of the reasons why the Republican leaders are so anxious to prosecute this war:

"Public opinion throughout the entire North condemns Cameron, as being almost as corrupt as Floyd himself. There is very strong suspicion, backed by pretty sound proof, that Cameron is interested in nearly every army contract that is given, as also in the Pennsylvania Railroad. He will persist in sending troops from the North via Harrisburg, instead of the direct and much shorter route by way of Baltimore. The Union papers North and West, in very plain words, demand his dismissal for dishonest practices, and Welles, the Secretary of the Navy, also, for imbecility. The pressure is so great on the President to dismiss, or ask them to resign, that it is thought he will do so before long.

It must be remembered that there are only two parties in the North—one, heart and soul in favor of maintaining the Union by force of arms, and another, who see in the present loyal movement only an opportunity to make money by swindling contracts and the most open robbery of the Government. The former are patriots, and the latter are composed entirely of the leaders of the rank and file of the Republican party—poor, miserable things who are selling their flag and country for thirty pieces of silver. There are so many instances of the frauds and corruptions practiced by these bloodsuckers daily, that the enthusiasm of the North to carry on the war is almost dead. It is now shown that New York has sent forward only 38,000 volunteers, besides her regular militia regiments, but the latter have returned, their three month's term of enlistment having expired, and few have signified their willingness to return. This State could easily furnish a hundred thousand well equipped men, but it is now found to be difficult to furnish the quota of the last call of the Government for 25,000 more. You may ask, "Why is all this?" Because the men were miserably clothed, fed, and ill-treated generally, and they returned perfectly callous and indifferent whether the secessionists drove the Republicans from power or not.

Some days they subsisted on nothing but biscuit and water, except what they purchased themselves, and were not even furnished with blankets. Pay-day came around, and New York troops had to submit to a shave of ten per cent. to get their money. This was arranged between a United States Paymaster and an outside agent. The former had been authorized to pay the troops the very day they were discharged, but instead of doing so gave out to the various regiments that he should not be able to pay them, or make out their accounts for a month. The agent then steps in, buys the soldiers' accounts, with ten per cent. off, and behold, gets his money immediately. Secretary Cameron's son, the State Paymaster for Pennsylvania, attempted the same game with the returned Pennsylvania militia. He received $100,000 in gold but purchased depreciated State bank notes, and insisted on paying them with the latter. The soldiers detected the trick by which they were to be cheated, collectively, out of about $12,000; threatened lynch law, and young Cameron had to fork over the gold and silver.

Instances are common where the Government has furnished Quartermasters with first-class beef for the various brigades, which they have sold and purchased inferior beef, and pocketed the difference. Others have drawn full rations for a regiment, sold half the amount, and furnished the balance as being full (?) rations to the men. So it is in furnishing clothing and transportation. 3,000 horses were paid for by the Secretary a few days since, at $125 each, to be used for cavalry. When they reached Washington they were found to be entirely broken down and unfit for use. This led to inquiry, when it was discovered that they had been purchased for $75 each by an authorized agent of the War Department, and Uncle Sam charged $125, thereby somebody making about $150,000 in only this one operation. Brokers are appointed to buy and charter steam and sailing vessels, and the most exorbitant prices are paid for them.

"There are several California Republicans, as well as those from other States, engaged in this wholesale system of swindling."

A PARTY of forty-eight men, natives of Southern States, left yesterday from San Francisco for New Orleans, overland through Mexico, to join the Confederate army. They are well armed and equipped. Among the number are many persons who have been prominent politicians and office holders in this State. Most of the members of the company are six feet in stature.—Union 12th.

The False Prophets of the New York Press.

It is instructive to contrast the confident predictions of the New York press, heralding with flourish of trumpets the advance of the "Grand Army of Liberty" in its triumphal march upon Richmond, with its sudden, overwhelming and inglorious defeat. They minutely describe with all the pomp of typography, of starting capitals and exclamation points the movements of the army; the breaking up of the camp; the resistless enthusiasm of the troops; the waving of banners; the inspiring strains of martial music; the bivouac at night; the skirmish of the pickets, and the preparation for battle. It reads like a description of the crusades when the hosts of Christendom, fired with religious zeal, set forth to the Holy Land to rescue the sepulchre of Christ from the profanation of Moslem power. A high mission is to be secured, and the various names given to the army indicate the purpose—"Defenders of the Constitution"—"Guardians of Liberty"—"Liberators"—"Protectors" around "whom the Lord and his angels are encamped." Such an army, with such a mission, must be restless. It is to contend with the "powers of darkness," with "traitors and rebels," with the "oligarchs of slavery." There is the perfect assurance of faith in the result. "The Lord is on our side, who can be against us." The prophet of the Tribune, seated upon his editorial tripod, oracularly announces, that "the Grand Army of Liberty has at last advanced, never to take a backward step, until it returns crowned with victory." "To doubt is to impugn the Providence of God, who is as certainly with us as in days of old he guided the Israelites to the land of promise." "We contend with a bastard race, corrupted and polluted by the barbarism of slavery, empty braggarts, who are to be whipped into submission. Our only fear is, that they will never stand, but will fly like cowards before us. We give ten days to our noble army to unfurl the stars and stripes over the Capitol at Richmond, and to drive from the Old Dominion the reptiles who curse and pollute her soil. The prophet of the Herold chants the same strain: "We predict an overwhelming success to our matchless army. By tomorrow PATTERSON will have overwhelmed JOHNSON; McDOWELL will drive BEAUREGARD a fugitive from Manassas; the gallant BUTLER will march from Fortress Monroe in triumph upon Richmond, and in ten days the backbone of secession will be broken. Forward is the word.

The prophet of the Times is filled with "apprehension dire" that there will be no bloodshed. "The rebels dare not make a stand. They will retreat before us, from Fairfax to Manassas, from Manassas to Richmond, from Richmond, demoralized and disheartened, they will disband, without striking a blow. The contest will be ended in sixty days, and the authority of the Government acknowledged in every State in the Union. The rebels are in despair. The victory is already won."

Man proposes but God disposes. This army precipitates itself like a mighty avalanche upon its enemy, and lo, instead of the shout of triumph, there is the wail of agony—for the pen of victory, the cry for quarter. With ranks broken, with its dead counted by thousands, with its banners captured, its arms thrown down, its plumes trailing in the dust, driven back, pursued in panic flight, it at last shelters itself behind the intrenchments of Washington, and even there trembles for its safety. History repeats itself, and in searching its records for a parallel to this unexpected and overwhelming defeat, we find it in the "ill-starred expedition" of the Spanish Armada. The Castilian PHILIP, in the arrogance of his pride, and in his thirst for power and his desire to crush forever the "accursed heresy of Protestantism," fitted out the largest navy that ever floated upon the seas. It sails from the harbor on its career of boundless conquests. Apparently invincible in its strength, overwhelming in numbers, the Spanish monarch awaited in arrogant confidence for the report that Britain had fallen before it and the virgin Queen was driven from her throne. But this mighty force are beaten at every point. The invincible spirit of England put them to flight. The tempest scatters and the sea swallows up, and the return of a few crippled ships, with battered sides, and tattered sails and a broken hearted crew is all that remains of that mighty "Armada," whose resistless power was to crown the Castilian PHILIP the monarch of the world. So it has been with the "Grand Army of Liberty." The President and his Cabinet reviewed it; it was marshaled for the field by the ablest of its Captains; preachers offered up their prayers and impiously boasted that the Lord of Hosts would guide them in the battle; the Press swelled its numbers with writers who were to chronicle the victorious march. Members of Congress hung upon its lines to view the battle—the overthrow of revolution—but lo! in the hour of action how are the mighty fallen! Defeat disastrous—flight inglorious—its proud banners trailing in the dust—its ranks put to flight in panic, fear and rout. It retreats to Washington, and now President and Cabinet, priest and chronicler may realize that arrogant confidence and empty boasts will not secure victories, that a people united by the pressure of a common danger, fighting upon their own soil in defence of their families and firesides in support of the inalienable right of self-government can never be conquered.—Missouri Republican.

POETRY.

Be Careful of your Money.

When life is full of health and glee,
Work, work, as busy as a bee!

The single grain cast in the mould
May spring and give a hundred fold

But do not shut sweet Mercy's doors
When sorrow pleads or want implores;

Would you escape the beggar's lot,
The death-bed of the tipping sot,

MASCULINE HOUSEKEEPING.

MRS. G. W. WYLLYS.

"What's that, my dear?—a trip into the country? Certainly—of course—

And Mr. Jones struts down town with as much complacency as though he were the Kham of Tartary.

(Six weeks later.) "Why, Ezekiel Jones! what on earth is the matter with my gardening fork?"

Why, I shouldn't be at all surprised if you tried it in this utensil. "Isn't it a frying-pan?"

Well, that's because you swept all the ashes and cinders in a solid bank under the grate,

"You tried to make a pie but the flower and water stuck to your fingers; so you ate the apples raw?"

"You used to see me make them, and supposed there wasn't anything very difficult about the operation?"

"Here," says Mr. Jones, "I made a frantic rush past my wife, and succeeded in gaining the front door,

"After all, the paltry kitchen
business is not exactly in a man's line.
I dare say I could do it but I don't think I'll try it again.

Purposes.

OVER 50,000 IN USE!

WE beg to assure the public that the well known reputation of these ma-machines for Reliability will be fully sustained, and in our rapidly increasing business the same care will be faithfully exercised in every department of their manufacture. Every machine sold by us is WARRANTED IN EVERY RESPECT.

The public attention is respectfully requested to the following

Card from the Grover & Baker S. M.

Company.

The public, in their eagerness to supply themselves with sewing machines making the Grover & Baker stitch, must not forget to purchase them of the parties who alone are authorized to sell them. All machines sewing from two spools and in which one needle only penetrates the cloth, and having a feed which allows the material to be turned at will are infringements.

GROVER & BAKER S. M. CO.

A Card from Elias Howe, Jr.

All persons are cautioned not to make, deal in, or use, any sewing machines which sew from two spools and make the stitch known as the Grover & Baker stitch, unless the same are purchased from the Grover & Baker Sewing

Machine Company, or their Agents, Licensees,

and stamped under my patent of September

10, 1848.

Said Company and their Licensees, alone, are authorized under their own patents, and my said patent, during the extended term thereof, to make and sell this kind of sewing machines, and all others are pirates upon my said patent, and will be dealt with accordingly wherever found. ELIAS HOWE, JR.

The attention of tailors and manufacturers who prefer the "lock stitch," is called to our

Improved Shuttle Machines, which are specially adapted to their requirements, and THE BEST IN USE!
