Dedication

To the rugged pioneer whose unconquerable spirit braved the trials and dangers of the New North that posterity might benefit, this work is respectfully dedicated.

SQUIRE A. TAYLOR
The Founder of Langlade County.
Born, 1806.
Died, Feb. 22, 1902.

PREFACE

It should be stated that the primary motive of the writer has not been to pre-sage the future development of the county, but to set down, without personal interpretation, to the best of his ability, the story of the Langlade County pioneer, who blazed the trail for those who followed.

Time passes swiftly. There is approaching that hour when the last pioneer will pass to his reward, and with this thought as his inspiring motive, the writer began the task of setting down, while yet there are a few from whose lips the story can be told, the deeds, trials, tribulations and monumental efforts of that vanguard of mortal souls who first trod the soil of Langlade County.

If the Wisconsin Geographical Society, organized in the village of Antigo in 1883, had followed out its purpose as its leaders intended it should, the achievements of the early settlers of Langlade County would be as fresh as if occurrences of yesterday and an accurate and complete link between the past and present could easily be obtained. But such was not done. The golden opportunity has passed. Complete records of early county and township affairs are in many instances not properly indexed or not to be found. Nevertheless the writer is indebted to school district, township, city of Antigo and County officials, a host of pioneers, the State Historical Society, the Wisconsin Archeological Society, the press and others for invaluable assistance rendered.

Where data was not obtained through creditable records statements of pioneers have been relied on; where they have differed as to facts a reconciliation of differences has been made according to the preponderance of evidence.

Space has been devoted to recent history and attention has been given to recent industrial and social progress.

Rather than fuse the entire manuscript into one conglomerated mass the writer has divided the work into four sections: 1—Langlade County as a unit; 2—The City of Antigo; 3—the Townships distinctly apart from the County as a unit, with school district subdivisions; and, lastly, 4—the Biographical element.

The progress of the county and its institutions is given in a narration of those leading historical events selected because of their outstanding importance after a lapse of almost a half century. If this humble and unassuming compilation of those events shall give any pleasure to pioneers still living or to posterity, the writer will have attained all it should be his privilege to anticipate.

Inaccuracies and omissions may have crept in. Lack of records, the in experience of the writer or the fact that no one living were associated with certain events would be the reason for such. Therefore the writer meekly asks the indulgence of the reader for while it is human to err it is divine to forgive.

The writer does not feel satisfied that this volume adequately expresses the period of expansion in Langlade County since 1853 to date. However, it is hoped that the charitable reader and critic will recognize, at least, this first attempt made to depict intelligently the leading occurrences that have during less than a half century laid the immovable foundation upon which progressive Langlade County builds for a greater tomorrow.

The Indian

Epitome of Wisconsin History

Aborigines in Wisconsin—Mound Builders—Habitat—Custom—Post Lake—The Wolf River—Wisconsin and Fox River Valleys—Missionaries—The Badger Territory from Nicolet to 1848—Wisconsin As A State—Wisconsin In The World War.

While it is the purpose of confining this work exclusively to Langlade County, yet the reader may be interested in a brief sketch of our state from the time when the Indian roamed at will to date.

When the first Europeans settled on American soil they found the Indians occupying the country. It was then the prevailing opinion that the Indian was of one common family, possessing similar habits and speaking the conclusive opinion among anthropologists that the various people inhabiting the American continent sprang from one common stock, the Mongolian, in Eastern Asia.

The Indian possessed marked peculiarities of features, high cheek bones, long straight black hair, a red or copper colored skin, black eyes and was erect in stature.

CHIPPEWA INDIANS AND THEIR WIGWAM.

These Indians of the famous Algonquin Tribe, are restless and nomadic. This group was encamped near Otter Lake, Elcho township. Note the skins, construction of the wigwam and the birch bark canoes—"We-ka-see-gee-mon." The high powered rifle in the hands of the "Chief" is a striking contrast to the weapons used by those savage warriors shown in the picture of De Langlade's battle with the English under General Braddock.

identically the same tongue. This error was soon dispelled with a more extended observation and intimate relations with these people in different sections of the country. Slowly it was disclosed that there were many tribes and combinations of tribes or nations, so to speak, differing radically in language, habit, custom and degree of civilization. As time passed it became

The villages of the Red Men were composed of very rude huts or wigwams made of poles driven into the ground and then tied at the top with buckskin lacing. Except to exhibit as trophies or to torture to death, few prisoners were taken in battle. The Indian was haughty and taciturn. He disliked a coward and it was fortunate for the Whites, if when Indians visited their cabins, they did not show any evidence of fear. The Indian was quick to admire those Whites, who were bold and defiant.

The belief of old that there was not a good Indian but a dead one is erroneous and is one of the wrongs the Red Men have suffered at the hands of the invading Whites. Greed and lust for land and power may account for the remainder. That the Indian was savage and cruel, crafty and often treacherous is doubtless a fact; but the truth is our ancestors wanted the valleys of the Rock, the Fox, the Chippewa and the Mississippi rivers for their exploitation. It was necessary to dethrone the original owners and this was often accomplished, not by honorable purpose of treaties, but by superior forces, skill and the flint-lock. We can learn little of our first inhabitants from the few left within our borders, for the Indians are a people of legend and tradition, handed down from generation to generation, and not of recorded history.

We must go to the records of the French Missionaries, who first lived among them to acquaint ourselves with their lives, manners, customs and beliefs. From the journals of these men we learn that Wisconsin was once the home of different nations of three great Indian tribes—Iroquois, Sioux and Algonquins. We have only to cite the fact that Powhatan, King Philip, Tecumseh, Pontiac and the famous Black Hawk, were all leaders of these nations. The Pottawattomies on Green Bay Island were the most restless of the Algonquin tribes. The Sacs, Fox, and Outagamies lived first in the Fox River Valley, but later were pushed west and their trails and villages cover the valley of the Wisconsin.

The Mound Builders of Wisconsin are known by reason of the remains they have left. As the scientists of today study the relics and bones of a vanished people they find the presence of numerous mounds, chiefly in southern Wisconsin. These Mounds were located usually on natural lines of travel and the places where groups of them have been found, indicates an early occupation by considerable number of people. The mounds are of all sizes and shapes and we suppose they were classified according to purpose. Man has faithfully searched and contrived in his desire to answer these questions.

THE INDIAN IN LANGLADE COUNTY.

There is no question that before the settlement of Langlade County missionaries and Indian traders utilized the old Indian trails, the Lake Superior Trail and parts of the Wolf River for transportation. Their canoes and bateaux, small and light, were propelled by oars. Only small articles could be carried. Post Lake was once a trading post between French and Indians. Large trees have grown up about the ruins of an old trading post there, thus establishing abundant proof of its existence. Settlers residing at Upper Post Lake can recall olden days when the east bank of the lake was dotted with the wigwams of the Pottawattomies. David Edick, pioneer Wolf river settler, has identified a Jesuit missionary ring bearing the insignia, "I. H. S." and a small cross found on the east shore of the lake.

But a few years ago the main street of Antigo was visited by many Indian braves and their squaws, who went among the merchants and residents selling blueberries, maple sugar, black cherry bark, wild ginseng or shipping bales of evergreen. They still come to Antigo from the Indian reservation, but only to sell baskets.

Langlade County had among its early settlers many adventurers and prospectors, the most of whom were industrious settlers. They moved into the wilderness, erecting cabins or shacks near a creek or river, and in their trading with the passing Indians often met and married young Indian maidens who proved faithful and devoted wives. These men are sometimes called "Squaw Men."

MISSIONARIES AND EXPLORERS.

A half century before Philadelphia was settled by white men, Jean Nicolet, professional French interpreter and explorer, was dispatched from Quebec by Samuel de Champlain. Nicolet no doubt landed on the shore of Green Bay, negotiated with the Indians, made explorations and returned to Canada. In 1655 Pierre Esprit Raddison and Medard Chourrt des Grosseliers, fur traders, went down the Fox River as far as the present site of Portage and crossed over the Wisconsin river. Reinforced by a band of Huron Indians these same roving fur traders explored the south shore of Lake Superior and built a crude water-side fort between the present sites of Ashland and Washburn.

In 1661 Father Pierre Menard, Jesuit Missionary came to Kewaunee Bay and while descending the Wisconsin river was lost and probably perished in the wilderness or met death at the hands of the Indians. Four years later Father Claude Allouex was sent here to re-open a mission at Chequamegon Bay, which place he named "La Pointe Du Saint Esprit," (The point of the Holy Ghost.) In 1669 he was relieved by a younger Jesuit, Father Jacques Marquette. Nicholas Perrot, prominent adventure and fur trader, visited Wisconsin in 1666 and dealt with the Indians at Green Bay. In 1763 by the treaty of Paris, Wisconsin came under the control of England and after the Revolution was attached to the United States.

During the Revolutionary War, the Indians and French in Wisconsin were hostile. In the War of 1812 the Indians actually participated against the United States. After the Black Hawk War and the discovery of lead mines in Southern Wisconsin, there was a great influx of immigrants. The state was in succession a part of Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, finally the Wisconsin territory in 1836. Wisconsin was admitted into the Union May 29th, 1848. Among the chief historical events in its earlier history as a state were the wholesale granting of lands to railroad companies, the political gathering at Ripon leading toward the organization of the Republican party and the part Wisconsin took in the Civil War, where it raised more than its quota of men and money. Wisconsin has been a strong Republican state politically.

After the Civil War the state grew rapidly in population. Its soil by far its greatest natural resource became the field of intense cultivation and today the products of Wisconsin exceed $250,000,000 in value annually.

When the United States entered the World War, Wisconsin National Guards won praise everywhere. The 32nd Division, Wisconsin and Michigan troops, were designated "Les Terribles" by General Mangin, French Commander. The people at home maintained a spirit not seldom exhibited, gave their general and hearty support in all Liberty Loan and other drives. Red blooded Americans left their business, their homes and those dear to them to don the uniform, thus demonstrating as War Governor Emanuel L. Phillip said, "The love of country and flag is strong among the people." In another section we discuss the part Langlade County played in the World War.

The financial expenditure in the World War daily was approximately $117,000,000. At that rate the total cost of the entire war was $183,339,000,000. Taxation, international credits, floating of foreign and domestic loans was the means whereby such vast sums of money were raised. The reader can turn to the chapter on military history of Langlade County to find what amount the citizens raised in the various bond loans during the great conflict. When the first Liberty Loan was offered for subscription May 14, 1917, reports poured into general headquarters at Washington, D. C., from every section of the country. The issue, amounting to $2,000,000,000 was raised successfully. 4,000,000 more than the necessary number of subscribers came forth to assist Uncle Sam.

Six months elapsed and on October 1, 1917, the second Liberty Loan was launched. It met with popular favor. The issue was over-subscribed in one of the greatest national campaigns ever held in the United States. 9,500,000 citizens subscribed to the issue, which called for $3,000,000,000.

April 6, 1918—the anniversary day of America's entry into the war—was celebrated by the Third Liberty Loan in which $3,000,000,000 was offered. The drive was one of the memorable events connected with the war. May 4, 1918, it was closed with an over subscription of $1,176,516,850.

Twenty-two million American citizens subscribed for Liberty Bonds in the Fourth Loan launched September 28, 1918, and ending October 19, 1918. The appeal was for $6,000,000,000 and was over-subscribed. This was the greatest financial undertaking ever recorded.

The last drive—the Fifth Liberty Loan was launched April, 1919, and ended May 10, 1919. Amid patriotic fervor seldom exhibited America sent the Victory Loan over the top and made the ultimate defeat of the enemy possible sooner.

In these financial drives Wisconsin played its part admirably, subscribing a total of $333,633,800 in the five drives. Langlade County subscribed a total of $1,678,150 in all Liberty Loan drives.

But Wisconsin accomplished many other notable achievements besides backing up the Liberty Loan drives. The Red Cross, The Y. M. C. A., the Knights of Columbus, the United War Work drives, soldier's aid, soldier's dependents aid, the four minute men, the states man power, enlisted men and drafted men, the state public service reserve, the community labor boards, federal employment offices, food and fuel administration, the non-war construction organizations, the county councils of defense, the Wisconsin draft administration, the legal advisory boards, the district and local Boards of Exemption, the war savings and thrift stamp campaigns, the activities of the public and parochial schools,—these and others were vital factors in the winning of the great war.

The raising of the National Army in Wisconsin was one of the outstanding feats in state history. Provost Marshal Crowder, the head of the Selective Service Department in Washington, D. C., in this connection said: "It remains the ultimate test and proof of the intrinsic political idea upon which American institutions of Democracy and local self-government are based." He was not mistaken in what the outcome would be. Major E. A. Fitzpatrick, state draft administrator, received the following message from General Crowder, when the armistice was signed November 11, 1918: "I take this opportunity to convey my congratulations upon the vigorous and systematic manner in which the whole administration of the Selective Service System has been conducted in the State of Wisconsin." And these words from General Crowder are a testimonial as to the efficiency of all war organizations in each county—for without a sense of courage and responsibility and cooperation by all organizations the success of the Selective Service Law would have been imperiled.

With the signing of the armistice the fate of a mighty empire was doomed and before six months passed the soldiers of Wisconsin began to return home—to be once more absorbed into the economic and industrial life of the state.

September 29, 1919, Wisconsin voters by a vote of 165,762 for and 57,324 against accepted the amendment to Chapter 452 of the Laws of 1919, which provided for the creation of a Service Recognition Board and the payment of what has since been known as the Soldier Bonus Act, which provided for the raising of a sufficient sum to assure each soldier, sailor, marine and nurse, including Red Cross nurses, who served in the armed forces of the United States during the World War against Germany and Austria and who, at the time of their induction into service were residents of Wisconsin, a sum of not exceeding ten dollars for each month of service with a minimum of fifty dollars, as a token of appreciation of the character and spirit of their patriotic service and to perpetuate such appreciation as a part of the history of Wisconsin. Langlade County went on record in favor of the Soldier Bonus Act by the overwhelming vote of 1,294 for and 258 against the proposal.

DE LANGLADE IN BATTLE.

Sieur Charles De Langlade, First Citizen of Wisconsin, leading the French and Indians in the battle of Ft. DuQuesne, which ended in disaster for General Edward Braddock, English Commander. George Washington, then a young Virginia Colonel, saved the English from complete annihilation, July 9, 1755. De Langlade is seen with upraised arm. CHAPTER II.

Charles De Langlade

Before a historical discussion of Langlade County is undertaken it will not be amiss to give an account of the exploits of Augustin De Langlade and his illustrious son, Charles, in honor of whom Langlade County bears its name.

Augustin De Langlade was born about 1695. While still a young man, lured to the unconquered and unexplored northwest of the new world he settled near Mackinaw (Michigan) and traded with the Ottawa Indians. He became very friendly with the Ottawas and married a sister of King Nis-so-wa-quet of that famous tribe. After this union he gained wonderful prestige over the Ottawas.

Charles De Langlade was the second child and was born in 1724 at Mackinaw. At the age of twenty-five he moved with his parents and their younger children to the settlement at Green Bay. Here Sieur De Langlade continued as a trader among the Indians, living a peaceful life which ended when he was 76 years old in 1771.

Sieur Charles De Langlade married Charlotte Bourassa, the daughter of Rene Bourassa, a retired voyageur, who then lived at Mackinaw, August 12, 1754. The ceremony, performed by Father M. L. Le Franc, Roman Catholic priest, was vouched for by M. Herbin, then leader and commandant of the Green Bay post. Mme. De Langlade moved to Green Bay from Mackinaw six years after her marriage. It was at the Green Bay settlement that De Langlade's hardy, noble, impulsive, but dangerous career began.

Sieur Charles De Langlade gained a reputation for bravery and strategy second to none. Before the outbreak of the French-Indian war in 1754 he had led a force against the Sac Indian nation and succeeded in pushing them back from their holdings in the Fox river valley to the banks of the Wisconsin river.

Because of his knowledge of the Indian tribes of the northwest, his winning personality, intelligence and wonderful influence over the Red Men, Marquis Vaudreuil, Governor-General of New France and Louisiana, selected De Langlade to recruit a powerful force from the ten Indian nations, Ottawas (to whom he was personally related), Chippewas, Menominees, Hurons, Winnebagoes and others.¹ The force of Indians was merged with a body of French frontier fighters with De Langlade assuming full command.

The fearless young warrior of just thirty years proceeded at once to Fort Du Quesne² where a defense against the British was planned. General Braddock, vainly attempting to take Fort Du Quesne with his picked soldiery, was decisively defeated. The victory of the French and Indians was due to the persistent appeals of De Langlade to induce De Beaujeu, French commandant, to commence the attack. Beaujeu, after repeated requests refused to give the order to commence battle. De Langlade then called a council of the Indian chiefs and they demanded that Beaujeu give the order to fight while the British were feasting or before they crossed the river (Ohio). The French commandant, disheartened and fearing that he faced defeat, yielded to De Langlade and gave orders to battle. Beaujeu, brave, but pessimistic, was killed in the affray. Braddock lost twenty-six officers and 714 of his men were killed or wounded. George Washington, young Colonial leader, saved the retreating troops by his masterly conduct. The force under Beaujeu and De Langlade lost but three officers and thirty men.

Dumais, Commandant of Du Quesne, then ordered De Langlade to proceed with his force on August 9, 1756 to strike at Ft. Cumberland and obtain information about the movements of the British in the Ohio river valley.

In 1757 De Langlade participated in battles in Canada under the brave and beloved Montcalm. De Langlade aided in the capture of Ft. William Henry at the head of Lake George.

September 8, 1757, Governor General Vaudreuil ordered De Langlade to start from Montreal for the post of Michilimackinac to serve as second in command under orders of M. De Beaujeu, post commandant. A year later he returned to Canada, fought at Ticonderoga with the French-Indian force against General Abercrombie, British leader, who suffered severe reverses in killed and wounded.

After the battle at Ticonderoga, De Langlade went back to Ft. Du Quesne, then threatened by the enemy. The gallant George Washington drew near the fort. Rather than face disaster the defenders set fire to it. In November 1758 the Dragon of St. George took the place of the Lilies of France and floated over the Ohio river valley unmolested. De Langlade returned to the post at Green Bay.

Here De Langlade proved himself a faithful servant of France. He could see that the power of the French was slipping, but he rendered faithful and efficient services until the end. In the battle for possession of Quebec, when both Montcalm and Wolfe were mortally wounded, De Langlade fought furiously, coming out of the conflict wounded. Two of his brothers fell on the plains of Abraham.

In 1760 he was commissioned a Lieutenant by the King of France and received instructions to return the Indians under his command to their respective villages and he to locate at Mackinac. The French-Indian war ended with the tri-color of France hauled down and De Langlade was given an appointment as Superintendent of Indians at Green Bay. While he did not actively participate in the Revolutionary War, his moral assistance alone, was worth much to the English.

However he received valuable grants of land and an annuity from the British for his services in the Revolution. He passed away in January, 1800, at the advanced age of 75 years and was laid to rest beside his father.

1—De Langlade's agents recruited Indians for this battle from within the limits of Langlade County.

2—Ft. DuQuesne was built at the junction of the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers, and was named in honor of the Governor of Canada.

CHAPTER III.

Geography

Location—Boundary—Population by Comparative Statement—Area—Civil Divisions—Rivers and Streams—County Farm Statistics—Summary of Development.

A relief map of Wisconsin shows that Langlade County is situated in a north central position and is located very near the geographical center of the State. Langlade County is bounded on the north by Oneida and a part of Forest county; on the south by Shawano and a part of Marathon County; on the west by Lincoln County and on the east by Oconto and a part of Forest County. The territory of Langlade County embraces the following governmental sub-divisions viz. all townships numbered 31, 32, 33 and 34 in ranges 9, 10, 11 and 12; also townships numbered 30 in ranges 11 and 12; also townships numbered 31, 32 and 33 in ranges numbered 13 and 14; also the west twelve sections of township numbered 31 in range numbered 15. The ranges all being east of the 4th principal meridian.

This territory before the establishment of Langlade County was a part of the counties of Shawano, Oconto or Lincoln. In another chapter the changes affecting the county from 1880 to date will be discussed. The boundary of Langlade County forms a regular course. Commencing at the northwest corner it runs east twenty-four miles; thence six miles south; thence twelve miles east; thence south twelve miles; thence two miles east, completing the northern boundary; thence six miles south; thence sixteen miles west; thence six miles south; thence twelve miles west; thence six miles north; thence nine and three-fourths miles west and thence twenty-four miles north to the place of beginning. It includes within its borders 876 square miles or 560,640 acres of which approximately 90 per cent is reported for taxation. Non-taxable area includes lakes, rivers and streams.

The following statement gives a comparative report of the population of Langlade County for the ten year periods since 1880:

Population in 1880—685.
 Population in 1890—9,465.
 Population in 1900—12,553.
 Population in 1910—17,062.
 Population in 1920—21,471.

The per cent of increase in population is as follows: From 1890 to 1900—32.6 per cent; 1900 to 1910—35.9 per cent; 1910 to 1920—25.8 per cent. This phenomenal growth during a span of forty years is a simple testimonial of what can be expected for the future. The intelligence and initiative of the citizens, their thrift and integrity, the great diversity of industry and occupation, the vast resources, the accessibility of raw materials necessary, but not produced within the borders of Langlade County, the excellent transportation facilities, the splendid network of highways, radiating from Antigo to all sections of the county, prosperous farms, and unsurpassed dairying communities are some of the responsible reasons for a steady, healthy increase in new settlers from year to year.

RIVERS, LAKES AND STREAMS.

Langlade County is at the door of the great lakes and rivers of tourist fame in Wisconsin. The largest rivers are the Wolf and the Eau Claire (east and west branches.) These two bodies of water together with numerous creeks, small rivers and rivulets, drain and water the county. The principal river is the Wolf, which has its source in Forest County, flows through Langlade County in a south-easterly direction through the townships of Elcho, Ainsworth, Langlade and Elton. Its receives many rivulets, rivers and creeks, the most important being the Lily River, Hunting River and Pickerel Creek. The Eau Claire river has its headwaters (western branch) in the northwestern section of the county, draining the southeastern part of the Town of Summit, the southwestern part of Upham township and Peck township. The east branch of the Eau Claire river drains the south eastern part of Upham township, all of Neva township and a section of Peck township. It joins the western branch in the northwestern part of section 28 of East Ackley township. The west branch of the Eau Claire river receives Clear Water Creek, and Sucker Creek from the northeast in Peck township and Black Creek from the west in Ackley township. The east branch receives Sucker Creek from Bass Lake in sections 10 and 11 of Neva township and a few smaller creeks and streams in Peck and Ackley townships.

Other rivers of importance in the county are the Trappe River of the west Ackley township, the Prairie River of north Summit township, Red River of Norwood township, Springbrook, with its headwaters in Neva township, flowing through Antigo township, through the City of Antigo and also through Rolling township. McCloud Creek, Pine River, Lloyd Creek, Pratt Creek, all in the west part of Vilas township, flow in a southwesterly direction.

GOVERNMENT CIVIL DIVISIONS.

Langlade County is subdivided into sixteen civil divisions. They are Summit, Vilas, Elcho, Peck, Neva, Antigo, Ainsworth, Price, Polar, Norwood, Rolling, Langlade, Upham, Evergreen, Elton and Ackley. Elton, the largest civil division is 128 square miles in area. Summit, Upham, Elcho, Ackley, Ainsworth and Langlade are each 72 square miles in area. The other townships, Vilas, Polar, Antigo, Rolling, Norwood, Peck, Neva, Evergreen and Price are 36 square miles in area respectively. The most densely populated townships are Antigo and Norwood. The most sparsely populated are Summit, Vilas and Ainsworth townships.

61 per cent of the people of Langlade County are residents of rural districts.

This county has some of the most beautiful lakes in the state. The largest lakes are Post, Pickerel, Summit, Enterprise, Richs' or Rolling Stone and Bass Lake. Post Lake is about four miles long, Enterprise Lake is almost two miles at its widest point. Richs' Lake from its farthest northern shore to its most remote southeastern shore is about two miles long. Summit Lake, Bass Lake, Lawrence Lake, Moose Lake, Twin Lakes, Mueller's Lake, Lower Bass Lake and Rose Lake, also White Lake, are all lakes of good size. There are 570 lakes, streams and rivers in the county. The average annual rainfall is about 40 inches and the variations of temperature are from 30 degrees below zero to 90 degrees above (Fahrenheit.)

Langlade County is drained by the St. Lawrence river and the Mississippi river drainage systems, the Wolf river and its tributaries in the former and the Eau Claire (east and west branches) river in the latter.

RURAL LANGLADE COUNTY.

The information herein does not tell the reader all there is to be known about the geography of Langlade County. Important matters come up every day and there are scores of new things relative to the county with which all intelligent and active citizens should acquaint themselves.

Langlade County is closer to the border of Michigan than to any other state border. It is just southwest of Forest County, touching the Michigan border. There was a day when the county did touch the border line of Michigan before detachments of 1885.

It may be interesting to the student of county history to know that in the State of Wisconsin there are over seven hundred million eggs laid annually of which the hens in Langlade County laid 3,626,080 eggs in 1921. Recent statistics show that in Langlade County there are approximately 42,280 hens laying on an average of 86 eggs each year. Assuming that eggs are retailing at 44 cents per dozen the selling price of all eggs produced in Langlade County is approximately $136,553 annually. Hundreds of crates are shipped from the county to Chicago and other points where they are held in "cold storage" houses. The "candling" of eggs is carried on in the county quite extensively also. Exclusive poultry farms, modern and profitable, are rapidly making their appearance in different townships in the county. This holds good for the future welfare of this particular industry.

Wisconsin is the leading dairy state in the United States. The milk cows of Badgerdom produce an average of over 140 quarts of milk per second. There are 11,518 milk cows in Langlade County producing an average of 4,935 pounds of milk each per year with a total of 50,391,250 pounds of milk during one year.

Langlade County, as we have stated, has a population of 21,471 inhabitants. A quart of milk, weighing two pounds, could be given to every man, woman and child in Langlade County three times per day if the annual total milk production of the county was evenly divided among the people.

The potato industry is the most important in productivity in Langlade County. Some of the largest potato fields under cultivation in Wisconsin are located in Langlade County. The most advanced methods of cultivation are followed by the experts engaged in that phase of agriculture. Homer Beattie, the Prosser Brothers, C. Sorenson, John Morrissey, J. W. Smith, of Kent, Peter Krier and others are well known as leading potato men. There are approximately 4,435 acres of land used for potato cultivation annually in the county. The average yield per acre is 127 bushels. Langlade County holds a rank near the top in the total amount of car loads of potatoes exported yearly. The average annual potato crop is 563,245 bushels. The actual land area of the county is 555,414 acres. Thus the average farm value of an acre of potatoes in Langlade County is $130.81. The reader can gain an idea of the vast potato industry of Wisconsin when it is realized that the county produces but one fiftieth of Wisconsin's total annual yield of 27,200,000 bushels. Langlade County potato growers cultivate about one-sixtieth of the total amount of potato acreage of Wisconsin. Langlade County raises about twenty-five bushels of potatoes for each inhabitant every year. The principal potatoes cultivated in the county are the Rural New Yorkers, Russetts, Triumph, Irish Cobbler, Green Mountain and Early Ohio's and other varieties. Extreme caution is taken in the county to guard against potato blight and the potato beetle. Langlade County growers export seed potato to every section of the United States.

Recent statistics produce the fact that 446 silos are being used in Langlade County. Every year new silos are erected to care for the increasing yields of the farmers. There are now about five hundred silos in the county or one silo to about every fourth farm. Langlade County has 1717 acres annually producing 10,908 tons of corn silage. The figures given are based on a five year average. Thus there are about thirty-six silos in each civil division (section) in the county or an average of nearly one silo to every square mile.

While the county is not in the corn belt of the United States it produces a fair yield of corn used as a grain. There are 704 acres of land, according to statistics producing five year averages, yielding annually in Langlade County 19,800 bushels of grain corn.

Langlade County is within that area of land which the United States governmental officials declare will make the greatest developments during the next few decades. Since 1855 its area has been gradually, but surely developed into an important and essential part of the great commonwealth of Wisconsin. From the day when the squatters and early homesteaders pushed back the forests from an acre or more of ground, new land has been constantly cleared, broken or drained from year to year. 842 acres of land were cleared or brushed off during the year ending April 1, 1920. The farm value of nineteen principal Langlade County crops during the years 1919 and 1920 were: $2,-474,422 and $1,927,443. 15,771 acres of land have been added to the total area under cultivation in the county since 1909.

The growth of the county has been gradual and without the "boom" of the mushroom variety. No better index to the general progress of a community could be related than a comparative statement giving figures which cannot be denied and which tell the amazing story of the expansion of the county.

LANGLADE COUNTY FARM STATISTICS.

In 1910 there were but 2,823 apple trees in bearing in the county as compared with 8,584 in 1920.

42 tractors were in use in the county in May, 1920.

From fifteen acres the county has forged ahead so far that now 243 acres of land are producing root crops other than sugar beets.

There were less than fifty acres of peas for canning cultivated in 1909 as compared with 251 acres in 1920.

From 137 acres the wild or marsh hay has decreased from 1909 to 1920 to but 97 acres—a sure indication that agriculture is developing scientifically.

Clover and timothy production has increased from 17,942 to 23,715 acres in ten years—1909-20.

256 more acres of rye were planted in 1920 than in 1909 in the county.

In 1909, 2,597 acres of barley were cultivated. The acreage of the same crop was practically the same according to 1919 statistics.

151 acres were under spring wheat production in 1909 as compared with 1,074 acres in 1920.

The increase in acreage sown in oats was approximately 3,000 acres, U. S. statistics indicate.

A general summary of rural development shows that the county has made rapid increase in production of crops considered grown for strictly commercial purposes.

The first record of tractors used on Langlade County farms was called for by the United States government in 1920. With a return to normal conditions of production and consumption and an equilibrium of price levels the tractor will no doubt be more extensively used.

CHAPTER IV.

The Pioneer

Hardships—Mode of Life—Hospitality—How They Came—Their Homes.

After the great war of the rebellion the dense unbroken wilderness of Upper Wisconsin was explored by an almost unceasing army of timber estimators, lumbermen, prospectors and homestead seekers. With the construction of the Military Road through Ainsworth, Langlade and Elton Townships, the opening of Eastern Langlade County began. With the pioneer came the saw mill. As the result the heavy timbered hills and valleys where once only the red man and wild miles of splendid highways over which high powered motor vehicles travel swiftly linking city, village and hamlet.

Brave and courageous were the families that moved into this country infested with wild animals and Indians. In early years our first settlers, particularly in Norwood Township and the Wolf River Country came into this land of hope after enduring many hardships from long exposure. The journey was always beasts fought for supremacy, a thriving industry developed.

What a contrast today. Then the Indian was master of the land. Where his camp fire burned brightly in the valley, on the plains and hilltops, we see hundreds of cultivated farms today. We see the ideal farmhouse with its water works and electric lights, its automobile garage, machine shop, huge barns and tractor sheds and silos, where once the Indian tepee comforted the restless and impulsive red man. Where the Indian made his temporary abode, we find today prosperous farms and contented communities, factories and mills, churches and schools. Instead of the old Indian trails over which mail and provisions had to be "toted" or "man packed" from Shawano, Wausau or Appleton, the nearest trading points, we have today tiresome and tedious. Travel was done with oxen or horses and the wagons were crude and heavy. Many miles of wilderness were passed. The rough corduroy roads were few and boggy. Many a pioneer wagon that trekked into this country was upset or damaged due to miry roads or pits. Some pioneers did not even have a wagon or cart with a yoke of oxen, but trudged along on foot, carrying their personal belongings on their backs. Such journeys lasted days and days. Langlade County's first settlers suffered hardships, trials and tribulations of which the present generation is not at all familiar. Many a family lost one of their loved ones after they had staked their claim in the woods of the county. Very often on the journey children would become ill and not having any medical attention close at hand would die. In such instances, the bereaved parents would place their loved one in a grave dug under the boughs of the forest trees.

Before the Civil War, white men penetrated Langlade County. From 1870 to 1890, this part of Wisconsin, which had long been looked upon as adapted for nothing but the undisturbed home of the Indian and the journeys of venturesome speculators, became the mecca for immigrants from every section south and east of Wisconsin. The belief that this country possessed only one factor of wealth—its pineries—became a myth. With the death of that idea, there was born a new period of expansion—in upper Wisconsin, which wonderfully contributed to the development of Langlade County. In the period of 1870-1875, after the trail of the Pine hunter had been blazed, hardy sons of toil, whose greatest asset was health and muscle, began to erect log cabins, "Homes of Peace and Plenty." Thus began the settlement of the picturesque new north, with Antigo, then an unrealized ideal, and Langlade County, as the pivotal point of progress.

The pioneer cabins and shacks were often times separated by miles of unbroken virgin forests. This loneliness naturally made the homesteaders and squatters very hospitable and cordial. Visitors were always welcome and were given the best that the little cabins could afford. Everyone was neighborly and a spirit of mutual helpfulness approaching perfection was manifest. They were kind and always willing to lend a helping hand to any settlers in distress. Mrs. Anna Morrissey, daughter of Mrs. F. A. Deleglise, has told how her mother would go long distances to aid and comfort some sick person. It was truly a land of equality here in the wilderness. No racial distinctions, no sects, creeds, coteries of people secluded—but all on one common plane. Sometimes we think that in our day of extolled progress and civilization we have attained the acme of benevolence, but the christian charity of the pioneer far surpassed that of society today.

When notice that an itinerant preacher would be in the county to dwell upon the gospel the pioneer settlers would come from miles around to hear him. Some came on foot, horseback, horse and wagon, and with oxen carts, all eager to participate in the worship of God.

The cabin or shacks of the first settlers were made of logs, sometimes covered with boards. The crude dwellings were usually of three rooms, all comfortably but plainly equipped. Rough sawed lumber was used for flooring. The settlers would store their winter supplies in the cabin. There are still many log cabins used in Langlade County and while the log cabin was the start of prosperity for the county, it holds a high place among those things worthy of historical preservation.

Neighbors were not plenty but they made up a lack of numbers by a hearty good wholesome exchange of courtesies and "good turns." When the long winter evenings arrived, the oxen were hitched to the "jumper" and the buxom lads and lassies "snugged in" and sought a neighbor's cabin by sleigh road winding through the forest, slow, it is true, but speed was not desired as so much of the fun was "being together." When the turnouts would arrive at their destination, the occupants of the cabin home would cordially greet them and all would make merry while games, music on the old organ, accordian, or violin was enjoyed.

The howl of the timber wolf often broke forth near the pioneer cabin accompanying the master of the accordian or the old violinist. It is different today. The wolf has been pushed back by civilization and but in few places can his bark be heard. Time has brought forth a wonderful change in the past forty years or more.

FORTY YEARS AGO.

In what a wonderous age we live
Not many seem to know,
But few the mighty change perceive,
Since forty years ago.

Then the farms were covered o'er
With forest trees aglow,
And the red man held full sway
Over forty years ago.

The bear, the wild cat, wolf and lynx
Were the red man's only foe
When the pioneer settlers came
Over forty years ago.

But the red man was driven out,
And the forests, too, must go
Before the ax of the pioneer
Over forty years ago.

The youngsters dressed in homespun clothes
And made but little show,
And Lindsey-woolsey dressed the girls,
Over forty years ago.

The "warmeses" and "round-a-bouts"
Gave plenty room to grow,
And boys were strong and rugged then,
Over forty years ago.

The girls could spin, knit and weave,
And have as good a beau
As any lady's heart could wish
Since forty years ago.

And grandpa's heart was always green,
Although his locks were snow,
And grandma knit and darned the socks,
Over forty years ago.

Our fathers never had a dream,
When things moved on so slow,
Of what their boys would do by steam
Since forty years ago.

Automobiles and electric cars,
And airships on the go,
Would open the eyes of the pioneer
Of forty years ago.

The telephone and wireless,
 The music in the air,
 How different from the olden days
 When messengers were rare.

Our giant ships and railroad trains
 With goods from every clime;
 How wonderful when compared With the ox cart of olden time.

But time has deadened many a tree,
 And "logged" up many a row,
 Since they began to clear the land
 Over forty years ago.

And when the covered wagon comes,
 And we are called to go,
 We'll settle in a better land
 Than forty years ago.

With all its drawbacks the pioneer log cabin was a happy home. As saw mills became numerous the doors and floors of the log cabins were made of rough wood. With trade increasing the prosperity of the homesteaders and pioneers became more apparent and frame dwellings were erected. Many of the cabins in the county were covered by clapboards slit from native timber and weighted down by poles.

It was not uncommon for the pioneer settlers to sleep out under the boughs of a forest tree during the time when a cabin was being "rolled up." The oxen or mules were then allowed to graze in the forest natural clearings around the temporary camping place. Many of the pioneers were without funds to purchase any of the luxuries of that time. Even if they did have funds the trading posts were so far away that it was only with great difficulty and trouble that even necessities were purchased. Courage and unlimited energy were the chief assets of the first settlers.

Once a cabin home was started it was but a few days before it was completed. Two to three families often settled in the various townships in groups. Thus by mutual assistance many of the trials and hardships were successfully coped with. Food was usually "toted" in to the new-comers, but before then they were compelled to gather wild berries, herbs, kill wild game, the deer, rabbits, ducks, prairie chickens and other wild animals of which there was then an abundance.

Some of the old cabins first rolled up are yet in existence. If the decaying logs of these old land marks could tell the story of their existence history would be much more interesting. The days when the "bee" or the log rolling was conducted were important to the first settlers. It was a courtesy generally respected by all, for every able bodied man who lived within an easy walking or "ridin' distance" to attend the bee or log raising event. He was expected to assist the new settler about to become his neighbor in the all important task of erecting his little domain in the wilderness. If the new settler lived in a section of the county where a number of pioneers could gather quickly the occasion was made a distinct social feature.

The hardy men folks would busy themselves throughout the entire day felling the trees, trimming, sawing and hauling the logs to the site of the proposed cabin. Oxen were often used to aid in hauling the logs. When the logs were placed in proper position the cracks in the walls were filled with moss, sticks, mud and plaster, if it could be obtained. This prevented the wind and rain from entering into the cabin home.

When the work would be about complete the pioneers attending the "bee" or log raising would feast out in the open air. The women folks were as essential at such a pioneer gathering as were the men, for the hard labor was forgotten as the feasting and merriment connected with the event began.

The first pioneers did not have furniture such as is found in the modern home of Langlade County today. In fact only the necessary articles were found in the homes of the homesteaders and other pioneers. When they came into the country the roads were nothing but trails and it was thus very hard to bring any furniture with them except those things absolutely necessary. Many of the household necessities were made by the older boys or the father. Chairs usually consisted of stools or benches made out of rough material secured in the forests.

During the week's labor the father of a family found it difficult to make ends meet, so to speak, and as money was not plentiful he was always anxious to barter commodities. Thus after a church session on Sunday the people would stand around trading produce, exchanging one article for another which they needed most. The people supported the church by sending in corn, potatoes, rutabagas, cord wood, etc., to the pastor. If they subscribed to a paper the editor often allowed them to pay for the subscription in some product of the homestead. And it was for a long time that produce was regarded equally with money as the standard of value.

The cabins of the early settlers were exceptionally simple. Nothing but needed household articles could be found. No art decorations or beautiful paintings adorned the walls of these homes.

The ax, the augur, saw and awl
 Hang on pegs upon the wall.
 And kitchen utensils—bright and clean
 May also on the wall be seen.

CHAPTER V.

Organization of Langlade County

Under Rule of Four Nations—Spain, France, Great Britain and U. S.—Territorial Government—
Land Districts Created in 1834—County of New Organized by S. A. Taylor—Langlade County
Created in 1881—First County Board—Public Buildings—Opposition to Boundary Changes—Boundary Error—First County Officials—County of Keeps—Territorial Changes 1881-1885.

The territory comprising Langlade County has served successively under the flags of four powerful nations, Spain, France, Great Britain and the United States. Originally a part of the Northwest territory, it became a part of Indiana district in 1800. In 1809 it became a part of Michigan territory, detached from Illinois territory, and was governed by William Henry Harrison. Not until 33 years after Wisconsin was admitted into the union was Langlade County established.

Long before the advent of the white man in Langlade County, there were no land claims made upon the federal government to affect this region. The Green Bay land district, created June 26, 1834, by an act of Congress, did not include Upper or Northern Wisconsin. Thus the reader can realize that for nearly a half century more, until 1855, Langlade County was a paradise of nature, unmarred by the woodman's axe; a virgin forest where God's cattle fed "upon a thousand hills;" where streams and glacial lakes abounded unmolested in fish and game; a country where the melodious warble of the feathered songster intermingled with the soft sigh of the giant pine.

THE FOUNDER OF LANGLADE COUNTY.

The founder of Langlade County was Squire A. Taylor, a well educated and progressive citizen of Lily, Langlade township. He was engaged in lumber and logging operations for years on the Wolf and Lily rivers. It was he who changed the name of the little village to New. He led an eventful life and was one of the picturesque pioneers of Wisconsin's wild north. He passed away at the old Springbrook House, Antigo land mark, February 22, 1902. Through the efforts of Squire A. Taylor, the Committee on Town and County Organization of the State Legislature recommended the passage of Chapter 114, Laws of 1879, creating the "County of New."

The county was named "New" because it was a New County if we are to take the statements of pioneers, and Chicago officials of railroad concerns as accurate.*

THE COUNTY OF KEEPS—MATT CARPENTER.

In 1882, S. A. Taylor, Founder of Langlade County, attempted to organize the County of Keeps. The proposed county would include all of Langlade County as it then existed except Norwood and Rolling townships. They were to be evacuated and attached to Shawano County. The bill was introduced in the Wisconsin Legislature by Mr. H. Button, who opposed it. The Lost Nation was included in the proposed county. In March, 1883, at the time of the defeat of Keeps County, the Lost Nation was attached to Langlade County. In 1884 Taylor tried to organize Matt Carpenter County. It was defeated by the State Legislature.

LANGLADE COUNTY.

Langlade County was named in honor of Sieur Charles De Langlade, brave and impulsive leader of the French and Indians, who has been heralded as the first citizen of Wisconsin. In February, 1880, the legislature passed an act changing the name of New, to Langlade County. The change was proposed by Lyman C. Draper, Secretary of the State Historical Society. One year later, February 19, 1881, the boundaries of Shawano, Oconto and Langlade counties were changed. The County of Langlade was created and perfected and "certain towns were therein established." Langlade County included: "All that portion of the counties of Shawano, Oconto and Langlade, within the following boundaries, to-wit: Commencing at the southwest corner of township 30 north, range 11 east of the 4th principal meridian, running thence north on range line between ranges 10 and 11, to the third correction line, thence east on the said correction line to the southwest corner of township 31, range 11 east, thence north on range line between ranges 10 and 11 of the 4th correction line; thence west on the said correction line to the southwest corner of township 41 of range 11 east; thence north on range line between ranges 10 and 11 to the Michigan-Wisconsin boundary line; thence southeasterly on said boundary line to the range line, between ranges 14 and 15 east of the 4th principal meridian; thence south on said range line to the 4th correction line; thence east on the said correction line to the northeast corner of township 40 of range 14 east; thence south on range line between ranges 14 and 15 to the southeast corner of township 34, range 14 east; thence west on the town line between townships 33 and 34 to the northeast corner of township 33, range 12 east; thence south on range line between ranges 12 and 13 to the third correction line; thence west on said correction line to the northeast corner of township 30, north, range 12 and 13 east, to the town line between townships 29 and 30; thence west on said town line to the place of beginning.

* New County was organized when Marinette County was created. It was attached to Shawano County for County and Judicial purposes. The Act of Organizing New County was approved February 27, 1879

POWERS AND PRIVILEGES OF COUNTY.

Section 3 of the act creating Langlade County specifically granted all rights, powers and privileges legally granted other counties to Langlade. Section 4 stipulated that within ten days after passage and publication of the act of organization Governor J. M. Rusk shall appoint in and for Langlade County all officials excepting the Chairman and members of the County Board.

County officers appointed were to hold offices until the first Monday in January, 1883, until their successors were elected and qualified. County Superintendent and County Judge held office until the first Monday in January, 1882.

SALARIES OF FIRST COUNTY OFFICERS.

The salaries of the first officers of Langlade County were fixed as follows: County Clerk—$600; County Treasurer—$600; County Judge—$100; County Superintendent of Schools—$300; District Attorney—$100. The first Langlade County officers were: County Judge—J. W. Morse; District Attorney—George W. Latta; Circuit Judge—George H. Meyers of Appleton; Clerk of Court—D. S. Olmsted; Sheriff—Charles Herman; County Clerk—J. J. Simpson; County Treasurer—F. A. Deleglise; County Supt. of Schools—George Ratcliffe; Register of Deeds—R. G. Webb; Surveyor—Harvey Gee; Coroner—Dr. J. H. Dawley.

TOWNSHIP LIMITS.

Langlade County was divided into six townships, Rolling, Norwood, Antigo, Polar, Carpenter and Gagen. Rolling consisted of township 30, N. of Range 11 east; Norwood consisted of township 30 North of Range 12, east; Antigo township consisted of townships 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36 and 37, all of range 11 east; Polar township consisted of townships 31, 32 and 33 North of Range 12 east and townships 34 of ranges 12, 13 and 14 east; Gagen township consisted of townships 35, 36 and 37 North of range 12 east and township 38, 39, 40, 41 and fractional part township 42 of ranges 11 and 12 east; Carpenter township consisted of townships 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40 and fractional township 41 of ranges 13 and 14 east.

A study of the map of Wisconsin indicates that the towns enumerated extended to the state boundary and included parts of Forest, Oneida and Vilas Counties, as they now exist. The county was not permitted to raise more than $1,500 in any one of the first five years.

FIRST TOWN MEETINGS.

The first annual town meetings were held strictly according to legal provisions. Norwood and Rolling townships held their first assemblages in places previously provided by the Shawano County Board. Antigo township held its first meeting in the old log store of Niels Anderson. Polar township held its meeting at the quaint farm house of Moritz Muller, section 16, township 31, range 12 east. Carpenter township conducted its first annual meeting at the Charles Van Zile residence, lot two, section 31, township 36, range 13 east. The farm house of Louis Motzfeldt was the scene of the first town meeting in Gagen township. Motzfeldt's place was located at Freedland, near Post Lake, on section 26, township 35, range 12 east.

JOHN JANSEN OF NORWOOD TOWNSHIP.
Elected first Chairman of Langlade County Board, May, 1881.

COUNTY SUPERVISORS MEET .

The first County Board meeting was held at Niels Anderson's store on the first Tuesday in May, 1881. As Langlade County was a vast wilderness, extending to the state line, it was difficult for the more remote Supervisors to get to the county seat to attend this historic session. These were days before the advent of the railroad. Indian trails and tote roads were few and the country used as many oxen as horses. Nevertheless these delegates of the hardy pioneer homesteaders diligently attended to their duties at the crucial moments when the moulding of a county destined to lead Upper Wisconsin in many diversified industries was in the making.

The Supervisors present at the first session were Dan Gagen of Gagen township; J. Jansen of Norwood township; James Quinn of Rolling township; A. Van Zile of Carpenter township; J. Schufeldt of Polar township and V. Simmons of Antigo township. Mr. Jansen was elected first Chairman of the Board.

BONDS OF OFFICIALS FIXED.

The oath of office was administered by Niels Anderson, who climbed the rough stairs leading to the second floor of his log cabin, to act. The first act of the Supervisors was to fix the bond of county officers in the following sums: County Clerk—$5,000; County Surveyor—$1,000; County Superintendent—$1,000;

THE FIRST COURT HOUSE.

Until the county provided suitable buildings it was necessary to hold court, board meetings and house officials in the tiny hall and dingy rooms over the old Niels Anderson store. The hall was plainly furnished with "three tables, four common chairs and two rocking chairs." These quarters cost \$250 annually. But the progress of Langlade County was the inspiring motive of its pioneer builders and immediate plans were made for a court house. The county seat was at once officially established by ordinance on the west $\frac{1}{2}$ of the NW $\frac{1}{4}$ of Section 29, Township 31 N, Range 11 E. A. Van Zile and James Quinn, Supervisors, and three citizens at large—Charles Herman, architect, Henry St. Louis and George Ratcliffe, were selected to draft specifications and ascertain feasible at a cost of \$71,080.

Sheriff—$5,000; Clerk of Court—$5,000; Register of Deeds—$3,000; District Attorney—$1,000.

FIRST COUNTY AGENT—FIRST COMMITTEES.

The first County Board appointed George D. Ratcliffe, "A committee to act as Purchasing Agent." The resolution, introduced by Supervisor V. Simmons, gave the Purchasing Agent power to "purchase and contract for all books, blanks, safes, stationery, fuel, furniture, lights, etc., for the use of county officers as provided by law." He was authorized and did secure a county seal for county officers and courts. Bills and contracts rendered were reported by Mr. Ratcliffe at the first session thereafter. He was retained until May 19, 1881.

Chairman Jansen appointed five committees as follows: Finance—Dan Gagen, A. Van Zile and V. Simmons; Pauper Accounts—James Quinn and V. Simmons; Sheriff, Constable's and Justice's Claims—J. Schufeldt and Dan Gagen; Public Property—Dan Gagen and A. Van Zile; Roads and Bridges—James Quinn and Dan Gagen.

plans for securing funds to erect a court house. The committee reported in June, 1881, proposing a $5,000 building. The board delayed the matter until August, 1881, when they adopted the committee's report to erect a court house at $3,000. Immediate steps were taken to prepare for the contractor, E. A. Stickney. The court house square was cleared of dead trees, decayed windfalls and brush. Three county bonds of $1,000 denominations bearing 8 per cent interest annually were issued and $500 was at once levied as a direct tax to pay interest charges. The building committee, James Quinn, G. W. Latta, Eli Waste, V. Simmons and G. D. Ratcliffe, was appointed August 4, 1881. The first court house was completed in May, 1882.

THE PRESENT COURT HOUSE.

Langlade County, making wonderful development each decade, since 1879, needed a modern court house to keep in accord with its growth otherwise. The first court house served continuously for over a quarter of a century. The present commodious court house was erected by the Prince Construction Co., Minneapolis, Minn., and accepted March 30, 1905, on recommendation of L. E. Frederickson, County Superintendent of Construction. The first proposal to build came in November 1903. On January 19, 1904, a remonstrance signed by many citizens urged the erection of a building not to exceed $60,000 in costs.

George W. Hill, John Byrne, M. D. Besse, Chris Wunderlich and H. C. Stewart, building committee, succeeded in having the architect lower the cost $28,000. Three separate bids were called for February 16, 1904. District Attorney Max Hoffman, John Byrne, Geo. W. Hill, T. W. Hogan, Edward Cleary, committeemen, selected to approve plans and specifications, recommended a court house not to cost more than $75,000. The third committee was then appointed consisting of Leonard Frieburger, Sr., Chris Wunderlich, George W. Hill and H. C. Stewart. New plans were secured and a contract was virtually entered into with Schmidt Bros. of Superior, when the entire project was thrown back to the place of beginning.

The Prince Construction Company was paid $71,080 for the court house. The building committee in charge of the work was composed of the following: L. D. Hartford, John Byrne, W. J. Knott and L. F. Culver. Kinney & Detweiler of Minneapolis were the architects. V. P. Rath, County Clerk, and R. J. Morgan, Chairman of the County Board, for the county and C. E. Prince, President of the Prince Construction Company signed the contract. District Attorney Hoffman and A. J. Nowotny were signatory witnesses.

Port Wing Brown stone was used in body construction. The two base courses are made of raindrop stone. The court house contains the office of Municipal Judge, Circuit Judge, court room, offices of Clerk of Court, Court Reporter, Register of Deeds, County Judge, Superintendent of Schools, County Treasurer, Highway Commissioner, County Clerk and law library. It is situated in block 13, City of Antigo. It is surrounded by the most beautiful park in Langlade County.

LANGLADE COUNTY JAILS.

The first County Board passed an ordinance selecting James Quinn, J. Jansen and J. Schufeldt as a committee to draw plans and let a contract for building a "lock-up or jail" for Langlade County. It was specified that the jail not exceed $150 in costs and should be erected in the court yard. The committee entered into a contract with J. W. Morse, Norwood township, June 15, 1881, for the erection of a log jail 16x20 feet and nine feet high. Lumber and shingles were purchased from F. A. Deleglise and paid for out of the $150. What was left went to contractor Morse. James Quinn accepted the jail for Langlade County, in August, 1881. It cost $4.00 to clear the land of trees, debris and brush before the erection of this rude jail.

Antigo grew miraculously from 1879 to 1886. As a consequence law enforcement became more hazardous and law breakers became more numerous. The old jail was inadequate. It did not provide for a Sheriff's residence.

Pat Murphy of Deerbrook, a character of pioneer days, when confined in the log jail for some trivial offense, would climb over the transom over the door and run up to 5th Avenue through the woods, shouting that the jail was on fire. The old volunteers would rush to the log jail put out the fire, presumably started by Pat, and return to their routine work. This demonstrates the security of the first jail.

January 9, 1885, Charles Gowan, Henry Peters, Walter Guile, E. Raddatz, and Joseph Duchac were selected from the County Board as a building committee to erect a new jail. Bids were received until February 4, 1885. The contract for a two story combined jail and Sheriff's residence was let to J. E. Clancy for $6,884. $7,000 in bonds of $500 denominations were issued by the county at 7 per cent interest for ten years to meet the cost. The new jail was accepted by the final committee, Ed. Daskam, E. R. Van Buran and W. H. Dawley, January 1, 1886. The cells were placed by Pauly Jail Bldg. & Supply Co., St. Louis, Mo. The Sheriff is the custodian of the county jail.

The territorial changes affecting Langlade County were made between 1883 and 1885. The legislature detached the territory in ranges 13 and 14 and the west 12 sections of township 31 from Shawano County, known as the Lost Nation and attached the same to Langlade County in 1883. Territory cut from Langlade County by the Provisions of Chapter 7, laws of 1881, was also attached to Langlade County. In 1885 the state legislature again directed the territory in township 31, range 14 and 15 east, known as the Lost Nation be detached from Shawano County and attached to Langlade County. In 1885, Chapter 436, laws of Wisconsin, detached territory in ranges 9 and 10 from Lincoln County and attached the same to Langlade County (Ackley, Peck, Upham and Summit townships.) Forest County was created in 1885 from the territory north of the present northern Langlade County boundary. For the story of "The Lost Nation and its Chiefs" consult the history of Langlade township.

The County Board on February 7, 1882, met in special session and passed a resolution opposing any changes and attempted disturbances in boundary lines and declared itself not in favor either of detachments or additions of territory to Langlade County. January 10, 1883, a similar resolution was passed after introduction by Supervisor H. Peters. Copies were sent to Assemblymen and Senators.

BOUNDARY ERROR IN STATUTES.

Chapter 2, section 5, paragraph 5, Wisconsin Laws of 1898, gives a description of Langlade County commencing at the southwest corner of township 31, range 9 east and describing Langlade County correct with this exception: "thence south on section lines to the township line between townships 30 and 31; thence west to the place of beginning. This description cut off Norwood and Rolling townships. It was not discovered and changed until 1907 when E. F. Nelson, Rolling township, represented Langlade County in the Assembly. Legally Assemblyman Nelson did not represent Langlade County because he was a resident of a township that for nine years was inadvertently cut off from the county.

CHAPTER VII.

Taverns, Old Stopping Places, Hotels

Famous Log Cabins—Ranches—Stopping Places On Lake Superior Trail—Old Dutch Frank Place At Strauss Crossing—Military Road Stopping Places—Early Antigo Hotels—Present Antigo Hotels.

The story of the lumberman's conquest of eastern Langlade County would not be complete without a chapter on the old stopping places and "log cabins" that dotted the Lake Superior Trail and Military Road between 1860 and 1885.

The first stopping place was erected by "Old Dutch Frank," a jovial fellow, whose surname cannot be found, even pioneers, who have been fifty years in Langlade County have not known his identity. "Old were erected in 1874. The partnership continued until 1880, when Mr. Hill continued alone. He sold to Mr. Whitehouse, who in turn sold to Mark Roax. It was here that Arthur Janes, a boy of seventeen years, was employed by Christopher Hill and from the cabins he wooed and won the hand of Miss Jeannie Hill, youngest daughter of Landlord Hill. On February 13, 1879, they drove from the cabins to Shawano, where the nuptial ceremony was performed.

THE LOG CABINS ON MILITARY ROAD—ERECTED IN 1874.

The man standing at the left of the third cabin from the left is Christopher Hill, proprietor. Opposite him at the right of the office door of this cabin is Mrs. Christopher Hill. To her right is Jennie Hill, a daughter—now Mrs. Arthur Janes. Her sister, Lovina Hill, stands at her right. The other lady is not known. Horace Rice is standing back of the great log and just in front of the cook cabin and dining room (fourth cabin from the left.) Over to the left where the two teams are resting can be seen Matt Bray and Leander Choate, pioneer lumbermen of Oshkosh, Wis. They are seated in the cutter. The snow covers the military road that passed in front of the cabins. Seymour Mills of Shawano is watering the horses. Note the hemlock boughs on the second and third cabins. These boughs were used to keep out the wild blasts of the north winds that cut in from the tops of the giant trees in the background.

Dutch Frank" settled on section 17, Township 33, range 13 east, near Lily. He had his stopping place on the Lake Superior Trail.

Christopher Hill and Horace Rice had a stopping place or "log cabins" just off the Menominee Indian Reservation on section 31, township 31, range 15 east. This place was popular with woodsmen and became a tourist resort of renown. Visitors came to it from the Atlantic coast and from points in southern United States. Fishing and hunting in the Oconto and Evergreen river territory was the attraction for these folks. Thus the Hill and Rice cabins became the first of northern Wisconsin fishing resorts.

The cabins, three in number, all one story structures,

George Gardner, full blooded Stockbridge Indian, owned a stopping place, first on the old Lake Superior Trail, located on section 26, township 31, range 14 east and later on the Military Road on section 30, township 31, range 15 east. His first stopping place on the trail was used until the Military Road was built. This artery diverted traffic from the trail and Gardner built his second place. He stayed on the Military Road some time, taking in transients, lumbermen, derelicts, and prospectors, and then sold to Amessey Smith, who in 1878 sold to Chris Wheeler. Gardner then went back to the Indian Reservation.

Charles Larzelere, early settler in the Wolf river country, opened a ranch or stopping place in 1872 at Langlade on section 10, township 31, range 14 east. The same year John Yates, an easterner, came to Langlade County and opened a stopping place one hundred rods down the Wolf River from the Larzelere place on section 10, township 31, range 14 east. Robert Gilray bought the place from Mr. Yates and he in turn sold to Albert Wood. Amessey Smith had a stopping place on section 27, township 33, range 13 east near Lily.

Henry Strauss, an intelligent merchant and trader, compelled to flee from Germany because of his connection with the rebellion of 1848 engaged in importing, mercantile and saw mill businesses in America. He failed because of poor collections. Then he went into the upper Wolf river country hoping never to see another white man. This was in 1867. He purchased the "Old Dutch Frank" stopping place and for in this chain of stopping places stretching from Shawano to Lac Vieux Desert at state line.

William Johnson and Henry Strauss, partners, Hi. Polar and Louis Motzfeldt, proprietors of stopping places, were also Indian traders.

The early log cabins, ranches and stopping places between 1863 and 1885 served the lumbermen and settlers for years before the arrival of the railroad. When cattle, oxen and supplies were sent north from Shawano and Green Bay to the Michigan copper region the old Lake Superior Trail was very picturesque. For many days cattle would slowly move over the rough trail, while convoyed by sturdy cattlemen mounted on fleet steeds or pushing forward afoot.

These early stopping places, while roughly constructed of logs, were very comfortable and cheerful, in spite of their great distance from civilization. In win-years before and after the building of the Military Road was its proprietor. Wm. Johnson of Marinette was associated with Henry Strauss for a while. Hi. Polar erected a stopping place on section 34, township 34, range 12 east at Pickerel Creek. Both the Strauss and Polar places were originally on the Lake Superior Trail, which route crossed the Wolf river at the Henry Strauss place.

Fred Dodge built a stopping place at "Nine Mile Creek," now Hollister, located on section 19, township 32, range 14 east in 1877.

The only stopping places or log cabins on the Lake Superior Trail before the construction of the Military Road were the Old Dutch Frank and the George Gardner places. Other stopping places, it is true, were built on the trail route, but not until after the coming of the Military Road, which followed the course of the trail in many places.

The Mag Law stopping place at Keshena, the James Law place at 5 Island, north of Keshena, Indian reservation village, and John Corn's Indian log cabin were ter evenings, when the wild north gale sent its chilly blasts against the moss covered logs, the pioneers would gather in the main cabin for merriment and entertainment. Thus the log cabins and stopping places played an important part in laying the foundation for the great progress made in opening up to the outside world the resources of Langlade County.

EARLY ANTIGO HOTELS AND TAVERNS.

Although the Teipner Hotel, commonly known as the Springbrook House, was erected in 1879 it was not the first accommodation for travelers in the village. Almost at once after Niels Anderson came to Antigo he provided sleeping rooms in the second log house he erected in 1879. True, it was not exclusive, but was cheerful and weary settlers and transients were always welcome and were given a warm hand by the genial landlord.

Julius and Charles Teipner came to Antigo in 1879 from Oshkosh. They erected the Springbrook House, now Market Square Hotel. This was the first Antigo hotel, and for years was the headquarters for drivers, lumbermen and teams going into the eastern part of the county for the spring log drives. The original hotel was of logs.

The Twin Valley Inn was built in 1880 and has almost dropped from the memory of early pioneers. While in existence it was the largest structure in Antigo. Its life was short as it burned down six months after it was built. S. L. Waite was proprietor and owner. The hotel was located on the southeast corner of 5th Avenue at Superior Street.

The important historical fact connected with the Twin Valley Inn was the first social gathering between the county supervisors and the citizens of Antigo. May 3, 1881, the citizens of Antigo, anxious to extend to the county solons an appropriate welcome, characteristic of the spirit of the village, presented a written invitation to the county supervisors in which "they took pleasure in soliciting their attendance at the viand board of the Twin Valley Inn at 5.30 o'clock this evening." The invitation was signed by George W. Latta, F. A. Deleglise and George Ratcliffe. It is sufficient to state that the meeting was a harmonious one and paved the way for amiability and mutual helpfulness between city and county. We shall observe, however, that in the fight to incorporate Antigo as a city that this mutual cooperation was broken by a battle of political retorts, charges and counter charges issued by enemy and friend of incorporation.

The last logs of the Niels Anderson boarding house were razed and the old relic of pioneer days gave way to a frame structure after five years of service.

Other important early hotels were: Charles Raesse hotel, west of the A. Goldberg Store, built in 1882 and ran successively by Charles Raesse, "Big Nels," Andrew Anderson and J. Hatley, who sold to I. Suick. It was once known as The Waverly and now is called The Club.

The Antigo House was located on the corner of 5th Avenue and Edison street, present site of A. Goldberg's store. It was opened in 1883 by R. H. McMullen. After years of service in which changes were made in ownership, it finally burned. It was the largest Antigo hotel in 1886 when operated by P. J. Koelzer and John Mallowney.

R. Warren, following the railroad from Aniwa, came to Antigo in 1881 and built a frame hotel on the site of the present Antigo Hotel, Morse street and Sixth Avenue. It was owned and managed by Walter Guile and J. W. Pitcher, and finally torn down. A part still stands, however, and was for years used as the Pabst Brewing Company headquarters in Antigo.

Ben Spencer came to Antigo from Maine state in 1882 and erected a two story frame hotel on the present site of the Geo. W. Hill building, 5th Avenue. Here he conducted a hotel until his property was purchased by George W. Hill. Mr. Hill conducted it as the Hoo! Hoo! Hotel. D. P. Corbett, a Mr. Garvey and Jos. DuBois managed it under Mr. Hill. It was called the Windsor Hotel before torn down to make way for the Hill building, two story brick structure.

The Lake Shore House was built in 1884 on the site of the present Hoffman House. It has been continually under the management of Joseph Hoffman and Frank Hoffman. In 1903 the hotel was rebuilt and remodeled into a three story hotel, one of the best in Upper Wisconsin. The name was changed from The Lake Shore House to The Hoffman House in 1893 when the M. L. S. & W. Ry. was sold to the C. & N. W. Ry. Co.

The Winn or Central Hotel was opened in May, 1890, by Lowell A. Winn. For years it was used as a Y. M. C. A. and for a time was vacant.

It is now managed by John Hanousek, Jr., and is known as The Hanousek Hotel. Arthur Koch managed it when it was called the Kasson Hotel. Originally a two story frame building, it is now brick veneered. It is located at the intersection of 5th Avenue and Lincoln street.

The Langlade House was moved into Antigo from the Edward Cody corner, Langlade Road intersection at east 5th Avenue and has been operated by J. Jenss, Citizens Brewing Company, Wm. Berner, Joseph Spoerl, J. Fleischmann, Jos. Zoern, purchased by W. A. Maertz and sold since to John Benes, who conducts it under the name, Northern Hotel.

The American House is conducted by Hon. B. W. Rynders, present Assemblyman, and is a two story structure located on 5th Avenue. It is well managed and enjoys a good patronage.

The Vivian Hotel, now the Schneiter Hotel, was built in October, 1887, by E. N. Mellor, W. W. Hutchinson and A. W. Larsen. It has operated almost continually since. In 1920 it was purchased by E. F. Schneiter who has remodeled it. D. P. Corbett ran it for a number of years before 1920. It was once known as the Farrell House. E. N. Mellor, one of its builders, killed himself in the hotel.

The Hotel Martiny was purchased by Hynek Martiny in 1901 from John Sipek, who ran it for a number of years before then.

The Bacon House is located on west Edison street between Fifth and Sixth Avenues and is operated and owned by Charles Bacon.

The Market Square Hotel is the oldest Antigo hotel. William Reader has been its proprietor since 1911. He has remodeled and made extensive additions.

The Hotel Antigo, 6th Avenue and Morse Street, was erected by Paul Von de Schoeppe, a chiropractor, who conducted a school of Chiropractics in the building, 1912. Von de Schoeppe went into bankruptcy and W. E. Butterfield came into possession of the building, which he still owns.

The Hotel Butterfield was built in 1899 by John Friend, who had been a passenger conductor out of Antigo. He sold the hotel to Charles Long of Merrill in November, 1903. Mr. Long conducted it under the name of Hotel Friend until 1905, when he sold to W. E. Butterfield. Mr. Butterfield changed the name to the Butterfield Hotel. He remained proprietor for thirteen years until 1919 when he retired from active management. It is now conducted by R. T. Marson, able and experienced hotel man.

CHAPTER VIII.

Indian Trails, Roads, Transportation

Old Lake Superior Trail—Tote Roads—Oxen Carts—Famous Military Road—Wholesale Grants Of Public Lands—Land And Timber Conspiracy—Pioneer Life Along the Military Road—First Road Appropriation—First Road Petition—State Trunk Lines—State Aid Roads—Highway Commissioners.

The old Roman roads marked a development and extent of civilization of an ancient people who depended upon transportation facilities as important to their welfare. Good roads are characteristic of a progressive people.

The first roads in Langlade County in 1853 when the first white man erected a log cabin on the Eau Claire river were nothing but Indian trails. No such a thing as a tote road could be found then. The first settlers came into the county afoot or on horse back along the Indian trails. Some followed the courses of the Wolf and Eau Claire rivers.

The Indian trails ran from place to place over the best, but not the shortest route. They were used before the government survey and therefore followed a course irrespective of section lines. The early pioneer "blazed" his trail by barking a tree here and there along his journey.¹

Indian trails in Langlade County ran through the following township sections: Southwest and northeast in township 34, range 9 east; through sections 34, 24, 22, 15, 16, 9 and 4, north of Ackley's trading and logging camp in township 31, range 10 east; township 34, north of range 12 east, had Indian trails running through sections 36, 35, 26, 22, 15, 10, 3 and 4. A trail ran northwest in township 34, range 11 east, in township 32, range 13 east, through township 33, range 13 east and township 31 range 14 east running through sections 36, 35, 34, 33, 32, 31 and 30.

These trails were used for many years even as late as 1885. The main Indian trail from Oconto to Wausau was used frequently. Ackley's trail in Ackley township and the Pickerel Creek trail were adjuncts to it.

THE LAKE SUPERIOR TRAIL.

Farmer's sectional map of Wisconsin, published in 1866 shows a trail beginning in township 31, Range 14 East and running in the same general direction as Wolf River on its west side. This trail crossed the Wolf River in section 28, Township 33, Range 13 East and continued to an Indian village at Lake He Nosheca, Pickerel Lake of today.

On the east side of Wolf River a trail started in the middle of section 14, Township 30, Range 15 East. It crossed the east end of Pickerel Creek and ran uncertainly among the northern lakes to Lac Vieux Desert and beyond.

The famous old Lake Superior Trail was used only during the winter months to haul mail and drive cattle and supplies to the great copper mines of Michigan. The trail started at Shawano and followed the west side of the Wolf River north to the state boundary line. Two of the first stopping places in Langlade County were located on the trail (before the building of the Military Road.) Much of the old route was impassable during the summer. It was built in the years 1861-62. It ran straight north to White Lake and followed the west bank of the Wolf River, crossing to the east side of the river in section 17, township 33, Range 13 East, at what is commonly known as the "Henry Strauss Crossing." The trail then ran between Twin Lakes in the northwestern part of Township 33, Range 13 East, entered township 34, Range 12 East, crossed Pickerel Creek and then continued on to Rockland, Michigan.

When the pine hunter penetrated Langlade County it was urgent that he be in contact with his base of supplies, usually at Wausau, Appleton or Shawano. This opened the "tote" road era. The hardy lumberjack cut out a narrow path, barely accessible for the yokes of oxen and horses. These roughly cleared tote roads were used to haul provisions to the log drivers' camps in the pine timber belt.

Straightening of roads did not begin in the county until long after the section lines were surveyed. The old trails of the Indians were gradually forced out of existence. Even the tote road is a thing of the past.

THE MILITARY ROAD.

The famous Military Road is one of the most historic subjects of Langlade County. It was built to "transport military forces from Fort Howard, Green Bay, Wis., to Fort Wilkins, Keweenaw County, Michigan."

Sympathy of higher classes and government officials in England was in favor of the Confederacy at the outset of the Civil War. "They have made an army—more than that they are making a Nation," said Gladstone, British statesman. Britain's financiers purchased $10,000,000.00 worth of Confederate bonds in the spring of 1863 when the cause of the South looked favorable. The North had no way of transporting troops from the interior to the Canadian line in the event of trouble with the Indians, spurred on by friends of the South.

Thus on March 3, 1863, Congress passed an act approving the construction of a military road from the points mentioned. Public lands were granted to Wisconsin and Michigan to aid in construction.

The Wisconsin legislature, April 4, 1864, accepted the grant of land and Commissioners were appointed by the state to lay out the said road, advertise for bids and let the contract to the lowest bidder. All work was paid for in grants of land, three sections for each mile of completed road.

James M. Wintlow secured the road contract from the Commissioners on August 24, 1864. He transferred it over to the U. S. Military Road Company, a corporation, organized under Wisconsin laws. This company assigned the contract to Jackson Hadley, transfer being approved by the legislature. March 2, 1867, Hadley died. He had completed thirty miles of the road from Fort Howard. Ninety sections of land were turned over to Mrs. Augusta Hadley, wife, and administratrix of the deceased's affairs. July 30, 1867, the administratrix turned over the 90 sections of land granted her by the state to A. G. Crowell. Previously, on July 18, 1867, Mrs. Hadley entered into a contract with John W. Babcock, A. G. Crowell and G. N. Fletcher, assigning to them all interest in the road not constructed.

John W. Babcock entered into a contract with the Commissioners August 24, 1868, to construct the incompleted road in accordance with terms made out with Jackson Hadley. Meanwhile Congress extended the time of completion of the road from August 24, 1868 to March 1, 1870. Babcock completed 52½ miles of the road by January 1, 1869. He then entered a contract with Alanson J. Fox and Abijah Weston of Painted Post, N. Y., giving them half interest in the road incompleted. On February 20, 1870, the Commissioners certified to Governor Fairchild that Babcock, Fox & West had completed the unconstructed portion of the road commencing one-half mile from the 82nd mile post and ending on the state line, section 5, township 42, north of range 11 east, within time limited by Congress.

Amolons G. Crowell and heirs were granted 38,017.17 acres of land in Langlade County (then part of Oconto County) in even numbered sections.

The Military Road enters Langlade County in section 32, township 31, range 15 east, runs in a north-west course through Elton, Langlade and Ainsworth townships, entering Forest County from section 4, township 34, range 12 east. More than any other wagon road, "the old militaire" opened up a vast expanse of the Wolf River country to early traders and stimulated and increased the momentum of the great lumbering industry in eastern Langlade County.

While the stated intent of the Military Road was for military purposes in defense of the nation, old Langlade County woodsmen, who worked in the pineries for Ex-Senator Philetus Sawyer and other well known Wisconsin lumber kings of a half century ago, refute this. They insist that the Military Road was a land and timber conspiracy.

The historic Military Road opened up the wild north to a great number of new settlers. By February, 1880, New County had approximately seven hundred

The census was taken by Thomas M. Dobbs and Joseph M. Gray, who stated in explanation that the above list "is correct of the people of New County as far as we have gone. But there are many we have not got." The western part of Langlade County as it is today was not included in this census because it then belonged to Lincoln County.

PIONEER LIFE ALONG THE MILITARY ROAD.

The old Military Road has been the source of many a poem and pioneer song. Its history has been interwoven with the pioneer lumbering of eastern Langlade County. The Squaw Man and the pine hunter both played their part with the early adventurer in the development of this country. Dan Gagen, Louis Motzfeldt, Henry Strauss, "Old Dutch Frank," Hiram B. Polar, Charles Larzelere, Dave Getchell and William Johnston, were either traders or pine loggers of that section of the county first settled.

For several years before the construction of the Military Road mail was carried by men on foot in the summer and by dog teams during the winter, following an Indian trail (old Lake Superior Trail) along the same route as the government Military Road. Log houses or stations were erected every thirty-five miles. These mails, though somewhat slow, were regular, as only men accustomed to the wilderness and familiar with the wild frontier life were employed in this service.

They seemed to be equal to any emergency, and when it became necessary, on account of deep snow, to abandon the dog team they would put on their snow shoes, slap the mail sack on their back and make thirty or forty miles per day. Darkness, storm or hunger had little terror for them. They seemed to realize that the tireless mail, the evangel of the wilderness, the mission of civilization and the herald of a progressive era, could not brook delay. They were the brave young men whose love of adventure, principally, led them away from their haunts of civilization, and whose untamed nature found keen zest and enjoyment in the dangers and excitement of the daring frontier life.

Thus month after month and year after year, these pioneers of the wilderness trod their lonely beat. Then the wave of war with its bloody issue rolled in sullen gloom over the entire nation. For several years they had driven their dog teams in the great pine forests in the interest of peace and now they set off to drive their war horses in battle armed with gun and sabre.

The mail carriers faded from the trail and passed into history; the trail became grass grown and the abandoned stations stood like ghosts of silent cities.

The fur trader in the employ of the American Fur Company was the pioneer of the new north, as he penetrated the pine forests very much in advance of the lumbermen, who could see but little wealth in the giant pines and still less in the hardwood forests. The fur industry was established in northern Wisconsin over one hundred years ago. It has been half a century since the lumberman or logger began cutting pine timber on the upper waters of the Wolf and Wisconsin rivers. It seemed to be his ambition from the start to begin at the top or headwaters of a stream and cut down. Extensive lumber camps were established where now the thrifty little City of Eagle River (once in Langlade County) stands, which soon became the center of attraction for the woodsman and river driver. Wages were very high and money was plentiful. This soon attracted a rowdy element which represented all that was bad and vicious.

After the completion of the Military Road the moral tone of society in towns along its route was improved but little. The towns were typical of the western mining town, where the frontier element held full sway. Hotels and travelers would spring into existence in a day. A bank and an opera house would rise simultaneously side by side. Stores and outfitting establishments of every variety would line the main streets with their quaint signs and emblems of trade.

Mechanics and artisans poured in from other parts of the state and with them came the lawyer and the doctor, both great healing mediums with peculiar methods. The morning's dawn was not greeted by the daily newspaper, the first to herald the name and fame of the new town, but night's blackness would be dispelled by flaming campfires built in front of saloons and dance houses, where men and women stood within the vestibule of Hades and drank fiery liquids, danced to the wheezing tune of the "Hurdy Gurdy," sang their songs and laughed merrily at their ribald jests. Verily they were of their day and generation. They were a part of the rude civilization of wild frontier life, which paved the way for the purer and gentler influences that followed to mould the morals of the race that peopled the cities of the wilderness. Every store in the village on the Sabbath contracted and carried on more business than upon any other day in the week. The river driver, the woodsman, the teamster, the Indian, the fur trader, all gathered here, and to each and all it was a gala day.

Drunkenness, brawls, and fights became the amusement and smote the peace and order of the community. But civilization brought thither a finer feeling; order arose from chaos and bloodshed; refinement appeared with the wives and daughters of the pioneers, who came like angels to create homes from the haunts of vice. The light of love banished the mildew and rot of depravity and a better manhood dawned upon the brave rough diamonds of the northern pine. The church came with the bold missionary, who was the bravest of them all, and then the school house and the court house weeded out the dance hall, and the forlorn outcasts moved farther on in the race of life until dissipation entombed their ghostly shadow.

Of course there was a broad and deep gulch between the Sunday rattle of the auctioneer and the sweet chimes of the Sabbath bells, and in the rude element of frontier society the violence of the bad was often checked by the violence of the good.

The region along the old Military Road was very rich in natural resources before white men came to accumulate wealth, with and without capital.

It was not uncommon for one of the many fur traders to purchase ten thousand dollars worth of fur from the Indians in a single season. The fur consisted largely in bear, wolves, beavers, otter, fisher, martin and mink. But little cash was paid the Indian. Blankets, beads and tobacco played a prominent part in the purchase. They demanded the best grade of blankets and fifty dollars a pair was often paid by the Indians. The white man as a hunter and trapper was more industrious and energetic than the Indian, and with his improved methods, the fur industry was destroyed in a very few years. The fur bearing animals have largely disappeared; a few black bear and gray timber wolves remain. The wolf is an enemy to civilization, an outcast and a vagabond, despised alike by the white and the red man. The increase of the deer keeps pace with the annual slaughter.

The choice white pine is now extinct. The silence and solitude along the old Military Road has disappeared forever; the red man and the pine forests have faded together. Along the great lines of railroad plowing through these once vast solitudes, all is life and activity. Towns and cities have invaded their paths. Men who have followed the faint trail of civilization have themselves beheld the great tide roll over their own foot prints and view with wonder its ever advancing waves. Schools, churches and happy homes have appeared to enlighten the multitude and mould the morals of a new born community. The Anglo-Saxon spirit of enterprise laid the hand of industry upon the pine forests; the pioneers of the north woods came as a mighty army; they were soldiers of industry, drilled by labor and hardship, and went forth only to industrial conquests. The fruits of the old pioneer ripen into the full measure of wealth and refinement; their names may not live in history; no monument of the everlasting hill will bear their fame. Some of them lie in the graveyard at the edge of the pine forest by the side of the torrent streams that forever sing a wild dirge to their memory; some in green graves covered by the flowers of remembrance, far beyond the crags, over which they strode, more like Gods, than men; some sleep in their own home valley; some of the gallant band are yet in the active busy world, awaiting the final summons beyond the snow and the frost line. Wherever they are they will be recalled as heroes of the storm beaten north.

THE RAILROADS—C. & N. W.—M. L. S. & W.

The story of how the Chicago & Northwestern railroad secured absolute control of 86,215.03 acres of valuable timber and agricultural lands within the present limits of Langlade County is also the story of the development of railroad facilities in Upper Wisconsin.

By an act of Congress, June 3, 1856, thousands of acres of public lands were granted to the state to aid construction of railroads. October 11, 1856, the state approved incorporation of the Wisconsin & Superior Railroad, which was granted all immunities and privileges for the purpose of aiding in railroad construction from Fond du Lac to the state line.

The Wisconsin & Superior consolidated with the Chicago, St. Paul & Fond du Lac Railroad. On March 14, the legislature passed an act to facilitate and authenticate formation of a corporation by the purchasers of the Chicago, St. Paul & Fond du Lac, which has since been known as the Chicago & Northwestern railroad. This new organization became at once entitled to all land grants to the state to aid in railroad construction if they would build a road to the state line, which they did. The Chicago & Northwestern was completed to the mouth of the Menominee River, certification of the same was made by the Governor and the Secretary of the Interior and the lands were deeded over to the railroad company. Odd numbered sections were selected. It is interesting to note that between the contractors of the Military Road and the Chicago & Northwestern railroad approximately village plat bordering on the line of the road, together with the right-of-way over all lands in which he was interested. Truly he was public spirited.

125,000 acres of Langlade County territory (one-fifth of the total area of the county) passed into the hands of a few. For many years later tax deeds on Chicago & Northwestern railroad lands in Langlade County were signed by Samuel Tilden, Democrat Governor of New York, who attained fame for his exposure of the Tweed Ring and his contest for the Presidency with General Rutherford B. Hays, Ohio Governor, and Republican President of 1877.

The first "mixed" train arrived in Antigo, November 9, 1881, with Conductor Sylvester Graves in charge. The Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western was sold to the Chicago & Northwestern railroad August 19, 1893. All Langlade County property of the old Lake Shore system was taken over then.

AN OLD "WOOD BURNER" OF THE M. L. S. & W. RY.

This type of engine was used for many years in and out of Antigo on the Lake Shore road. The work train was at Summit Lake, Upham township when this picture was taken years ago. Among those in the crew were Albert Stats, Sr., Herman Walter, Joseph Gardaphe, Charles Wojan, Anton Reinsch, Dennis Greening, Theodore Kupper, Albert Kupper, Albert Koles, William Draeger, Jacob Kunz, Frank Daskam, August Beckman, Wencel Cherwinka, Sr., M. Billings, Conductor, Julius Petrowski, Peter Petrowski, Rudolph Helby, Ed. Walch, Charles Leutsche, Jacob Ko'achek and Adam Gluga. Engines No. 29, 30, 31, 32 and 33, New York Central property, were used for eight years in and adjacent to Antigo. They were converted wood burners. Pioneer engineers can remember them.

THE MILWAUKEE, LAKE SHORE & WESTERN.

August 15, 1881, the first train pulled into Antigo and the old Indian trail, tote road, ox team and pack horse, marks of progress and development, diminished in usefulness. Demands for rapid transportation were about to be met. As the small engine No. 31 of the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western railroad, with its work car and caboose pulled into the wilderness, a band of villagers gathered around the Engineer, Charles Abrams, his fireman, James O'Connell and Conductor John Gordon. Antigo was then a strong temperance village. Thus the citizens did not feature Marse Henry or "hard lickker" of the Volstead violaters of today. Instead a great barrel of lemonade was provided by the womenfolk and the feasting on sandwiches and the rejoicing and merriment of the pioneers centered about the large barrel. There were no brass bands nor the flare of the bugle to herald this epochal event in Antigo's history. Less important things have occurred since in Antigo and have been given inflated publicity.

Hon. F. A. Deleglise, after considerable negotiations, succeeded in inducing the railroad officials to change the survey of the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western to its present route. Originally they had surveyed two miles west of the present site of Antigo. Mr. Deleglise gave the railroad eight blocks of the

THE WISCONSIN & NORTHERN.

The Wisconsin & Northern railroad was built originally to serve the timber products of the Menasha-Woodenware Company in eastern Langlade County. It was completed in 1907 or thereabout and has since been purchased by the Soo line. The road has been surveyed into Antigo but nothing definite about a spur into Antigo from Phlox can be stated. It is interesting in this connection to note that since 1883 citizens of Antigo have constantly talked about "another railroad coming in."

CHICAGO, MILWAUKEE & ST. PAUL.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad runs through sections 19, 30, 31 and 32 of west Ackley township, but serves no beneficial territory in Langlade County.

THE CHICAGO & NORTHWESTERN ENGINE HOUSE.

January 25, 1883, the first engine house of the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western railroad was completed at Antigo. It was a two stall structure located between Third and Fourth Avenues, east of the railroad main track. In 1893, when the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western was sold to the Chicago & Northwestern railroad the engine house was moved to the present site, northeast of block 1. The new house was built with twelve stalls. In 1905, owing to the increased importance of Antigo as a Division point, fifteen stalls were added, making a twenty-seven stall roundhouse. The turn-table operates by electricity. A yard office, weighmaster's office, machine shops, depot, freight depot and warehouse, lumber yard and purchasing agent's office constitute the other railroad buildings.

THE ANTIGO DEPOTS.

The Chicago & Northwestern depot was completed at a cost of approximately $65,000.00, October, 1907. Division offices were moved into the new headquarters then. The contract was let to Charles W. Gindale of Chicago. Work commenced in March, 1907. The depot was built in two sections, one containing waiting and ticket rooms with offices of telegraph op-meter. These bicycles tipped easily and many mishaps resulted. John Blinn, son of W. H. Blinn, first Antigo jeweler, owned the first bicycle in the county. Bicycles soon became popular, tournaments and races were held in Antigo, but with the approach of the automobile the bicycle era passed. It is now used wholly as a business convenience.

THE FIRST ROAD PETITION.

George Ratcliffe, Charles Herman and twenty-eight settlers of Antigo, Carpenter, and Rolling, petitioned the first county board to establish a road commencing at the southwest corner of section 21, township 30 N. of Range 11 east and running in a northeast course. The petitioners prayer was granted and the first committee on roads, consisting of James Quinn, A. Van erators, dispatchers, clerks and Division Superintendent above and the other containing a lunch room, baggage and express rooms and employes dressing room on the first floor with offices of the Division Engineer on the second floor.

The depot was formally dedicated November 5, 1907. A banquet was given at the Hotel Butterfield. Those present who spoke were: W. A. Gardner, Vice-President of the road, E. H. Heyser, Wisconsin Attorney for the road, George W. Latta, Antigo Attorney for the road, J. C. Lewis, banker, Attorney W. H. Mylrea of Wausau, Ex-Congressman E. A. Morse, R. C. Richards, General Claim Agent, Attorney F. J. Finucane and Mayor George W. Hill.

Contrast the new modern depot with the little frame two room depot of the old Lake Shore system which was remodeled once before its career ended.

THE BICYCLE ERA.

In 1884 the first bicycle made its appearance in Antigo. The front wheel was a large one to which pedals were attached. The rear wheel was very small in dia-

Zile and V. Simmons, were selected to report damages for lands taken preparatory to construction. The road was needed as it afforded settlers of Rolling and Norwood better facilities to get into Antigo, the county seat.

The second road petition was received from James Kennedy, W. C. Battrell and thirty-one others, residents of Polar and Antigo townships (18 from Polar—15 from Antigo) asking for a county road from the east $\frac{1}{4}$ post of section 25, township 31, range 12 east and following the $\frac{1}{4}$ line west to the Village of Antigo.

FIRST ROAD APPROPRIATION.

The first actual road construction appropriation was made by the county June 15, 1881. \$500.00 was appropriated to the Town of Norwood to open and improve a road, commencing at the SW post of section 35, then running north on the $\frac{1}{4}$ line of sections 36 and 26; thence to the center of said section 26, then west to the west $\frac{1}{4}$ post of section 26; thence north on section line to the SE corner of Section 22; thence west on the section line to the SW corner of section 20.

$300.00 was applied to opening and improving a road running on or near to the section line running from the southwest corner of section 20 to the northeast corner of section 6, all in township 30, north of range 12 E.

FIRST COUNTY ROAD—1881.

The first road built by the county in 1881 commenced at the southwest corner of section 21, township 30, north of range 11 east and then went north to Neva; thence east one mile; thence in a northeastern course to section 16, township 33, range 12 east; thence to section 34, township 34, range 12 east; thence by the Military Road to a point three miles north of Freedeland P. O. and then on a route between ranges 14 and 15.

dren were amazed to see this marvelous machine so easily propelled by some invisible power.

The automobile has demonstrated its value and is in constant use everywhere in Langlade County. Antigo has eleven garages where able mechanics repair automobiles. Every township has its garages. The number of automobiles owned in Langlade County is 1,536. Five hundred and forty-nine of these are owned by Antigo residents. Antigo township has more automobiles than any other township, 159 being its total.

The aggregate assessed value of the automobiles in the county is $640,083.00.

The motorcycle has come into general use within the period of the automobile era and many people own and operate a motorcycle as a convenient method of travel.

THE AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY.

The most advanced means of travel on highways is the modern automobile. The first to appear in Antigo came in 1902 and was owned by W. L. Elliott, Antigo business man. It was a "one lugger" Oldsmobile with a high odd looking top. It aroused townfolk with its odd Chug! Chug! Men, women and chil-

THE AEROPLANE AND LANGLADE COUNTY.

Langlade County has many experienced aviators who served in the World War, but it has no aeroplanes. The first flying exhibition in Langlade County was held by John Schweister in 1910 at the county fair. A great crowd gathered to see him perform. John Kaminski, Milwaukee aviator, was the second to exhibit in an aeroplane in Antigo. The best aeroplane flight ever witnessed by Langlade County citizens was during the county fair of 1912, when the late Lincoln Beachey, renowned aviator, went into the clouds before thousands of thrilled spectators.

Today airplanes are used extensively in warfare and in arts of peace. It is not uncommon to see them pass over Antigo. The county fair grounds are frequently used as a landing place. The day will come when air lanes will be regulated everywhere as highways are today.

HIGHWAYS—ROAD COSTS—MACHINERY.

Highways No. 47, 39 and 64 traverse Langlade County. Thousands of tourists from every section of the union pass through Antigo on their way to and from the great tourist resorts of the Badger state.

Langlade County spent $188,007.78 on road construction and improvements in 1921. Contrast this with $500.00 spent the first year the county was organized. There are 160 miles of state aid and 62 miles of state trunk lines in the county. The average cost of ordinary graded roads in Langlade County is $2,000 per mile.

AUTOMOTIVE DEALERS ASSOCIATION.

The Langlade County Automotive Dealers Association was organized May 1, 1920 at Antigo. Annual automobile shows are given by it.

LANGLADE COUNTY BRIDGES.

As Langlade County has within its borders two large rivers, the Wolf and Eau Claire, together with numer-

FIRST COUNTY BRIDGE.

December 11, 1883, the county board was petitioned to build a bridge across Wolf river at the lower Post Lake dam in section 16, township 33, range 12 east. The petition was signed by Jos. M. Jackson, H. B. Polar and 16 others. After reference to the Road and Bridge Committee, the county voted $1,200.00 to build the bridge. Bids were received by Supervisor Joseph Duchac. The contract was awarded to Hi. Polar, March 6, 1884 for $925.00.

IMPORTANT BRIDGES.

The most important bridges in Langlade County are located at Langlade, over Wolf river; at Lily, over Wolf river; at Pearson, at Elton, at Rezula, Ackley township. They are all steel bridges except the last named. The Rezula bridge cost $12,000.00. It was ous rivulets and smaller streams, bridges have played a very important part in its development.

It was difficult for the early homesteaders to travel in their day. They lost no time in erecting bridges to cross rivers and streams. The first bridge was probably built by W. L. Ackley over the Eau Claire in 1853, as it is safe to presume that he needed one to log and get back into the country known now as west Ackley.

The first bridge we have record of was built in 1874 by S. A. Taylor near lower Post Lake over the Wolf river. Many bridges were built and destroyed before then, no doubt. The Indians bridged the streams in their primitive way.

The S. A. Taylor bridge was constructed of heavy timber and rough sawed lumber. When Langlade County was organized Mr. Taylor sent a bill to the County Board declaring, that inasmuch as he had built the bridge and it was a public necessity the county ought to reimburse him for his labors, which they did to the extend of $1,400.

erected in 1916-17, and is of concrete. The longest bridge in the county spans the Wolf river at Langlade.

Many small wooden bridges of minor importance span small streams and rivers through various parts of the county. When the first settlers came to Antigo, Springbrook was spanned by a wooden bridge put in by John Cherf. It has since been replaced by concrete.

The ruins of many pioneer bridges can be located on various streams throughout Langlade County. Some of them have been obsolete for the past quarter of a century or more.

HIGHWAY COMMISSIONERS.

Langlade County has had two County Highway Commissioners. The first T. W. Humble was selected by the County Board in 1911. He served until 1916 and was followed by Charles Olson of Elcho, who is still in the service. Wm. Wolfe is Mr. Olson's assistant.

CHAPTER IX.

Pioneer Lumbering on the Wolf and Eau Claire Rivers

Improvement Concerns—Pioneer Lumbermen—The Great Log Drives—Dams on the Wolf and Lily Rivers—Maine Timbermen in Langlade County—A Pioneer Camp.

Lumbering was the principle industry in Langlade County for many years after its organization and twenty years before 1880, the first prospectors and early settlers engaged in that industry. Only pine was cut. River channels were improved by various private improvement companies and logs were driven down the streams to Shawano and Oshkosh on the Wolf River, and to Wausau on the Eau Claire River.

The Wolf River Improvement Company was owned by Oshkosh people. The River Improvement Co. was a firm created to improve the west branch of the Big Eau Claire River. It was organized February 26, 1894, by A. C. Campbell, A. M. Lanning and G. W. Hogben. The Big Eau Claire River Improvement

Dodge of Shawano, cut the first pine north of the Indian Reservation on Section 7, township 31, Range 15 East for L. Beecher of Boston, Mass. Other pioneer lumber operators were: Dewey George of Shawano, Weatherby & Crowe of Oshkosh; T. Crane of Shawano; Welcome Hide, land locator, from Embarrass, Waupaca County, who came first into Langlade County with his fifteen year old son and then moved to Virgin Lake, five miles east of Three Lakes; George Gery of Appleton, George Gilkey of Oshkosh and Choate & Bray of the same place. Logs of each operator were marked and boomed.

The river drives meant an influx of woodsmen, cruisers and operators into the Wolf river country.

THE GARDNER DAM SITE

On the Wolf River near the old log cabins on the Military Road. The dam was named in memory of the Stockbridge Indian, who first conducted a stopping place on the Lake Superior Trail.

Company was organized by John D. Ross, Walter H. Bissell and J. S. Clements. Its object was to improve the Eau Claire River course, to handle, sort and deliver logs and timber in the territory adjacent to the river in Lincoln and Langlade Counties. The Deerskin Log Driving and Improvement Company, organized by Alexander Stewart, Walter Alexander, Thomas Scott and F. P. Hixon, improved Deerskin River from Section 24, Township 42, Range 11 to Section 13, Township 40, Range 10 East at which it then "flowed into a lake in the counties of Langlade and Lincoln."

Pioneer lumberman who operated extensively in the Wolf River country in Langlade County as early as 1875 were: Philetus Sawyer, Seymour Hollister, George Buckstaff, George Rich, Lyman Rumery, Kellogg & McCoy, Asa C. Hicks, all of Oshkosh; Daniel Fitzgerald and Col. Hansen of Oshkosh. Theodore

Often the drives were not completed until August. Many logs would sink and frequently log jams were costly. A jam of logs would hold the entire drive up and it was necessary many times to break up the jam for miles on the river. The work was strenuous and exceedingly dangerous and many a pioneer lumberjack and river driver was drowned or suffered a broken limb during one of the exciting drives. Logs were frequently intentionally jammed, during low tide, to raise the water and thus take in the rear. The improvement companies were under a heavy expense to maintain clean river channels to transport the thousands of feet of logs that moved down stream.

The Wolf river and other Langlade County streams were equipped with dams to facilitate log movement. Important dams on the various rivers of eastern Langlade County were: The first dam was below Pine a ways." A regular mat of ground and cedar had grown over the river south of Gardner's dam from which he drew his conclusion that the river "flowed out of the ground."

ISAAC FARROW'S MISTAKE.

Isaac Farrow, pioneer settler in the Lost Nation, wanted to drain White Lake and make a natural hay meadow out of it. He started a drain at the outlet of White Lake (N. E. part). The bottom of the lake was found to be white marl, used to clean silverware, etc., and would be of no value for hay meadowing. His deed is now called Isaac Farrow's mistake.

"NOT AS A CONQUEROR COMES, THEY, THE TRUE HEARTED CAME."

Oxen, horses and sturdy men played their part in the slaughter of Langlade County pine. The camping headquarters of Louis Sands of Manistique, Michigan, and W. B. Bonnel of Chicago, Ill., are reproduced here. The Sands & Bonnel camps were located on section 33, township 31, Range 11 East on the site of the J. J. Laughlin farm. Henry Hudson, Superintendent, who came from the Pine Tree State, is shown back of a snow covered stump in front of the center shanty. The first building at the left is the cook shanty, the second is the sleeping shanty and the log structures at the right are hovels used to house the oxen and horses. The camps shown were erected in 1881 and at the close of operations in 1885, 20,200,000 feet of pine had been cut. A shingle mill was then erected and in 1886-87, 25,000,000 feet of the by-product was manufactured. The great forest of pine and hardwood shown back of the camp buildings has long since been replaced by modern farms. The pine from this camp and many others in Langlade County was hauled to the J. H. Weed mill in Antigo township. The old Sands & Bonnel camp granary is still in existence.

They were Lake Dam, at Robert's Lake; eighty rods below was Lake Dam No. 2; one-half mile below was Bowser dam, named after John Bowser and next was the Choate & Bray dam, Turtillotte dam and Big Roll dam, Hayter dam and Craine dam. There was a dam on the east branch of the Lily River. On Pickerel Creek there were two dams; on Swamp Creek there were two dams, and above and below Freedenland (Louis Motzfeld's place) on Swamp Creek two dams were erected. The Keshena Improvement Company owned many of the dams in Langlade County.

GILMORE'S MISTAKE.

A Civil Engineer and surveyor whose surname was Gilmore surveyed the course of the Wolf River in 1868 for Oshkosh lumbermen and reported that "no pine could be driven on the river as it ran underground

WOODSMEN SCOFFED AT ANTIGO FLATS.

In 1874 two hardy woodsmen journeyed over the Indian trails from Wausau through the present limits of Langlade County to the camp headquarters of Moore & Galloway, three miles east of Dobbston. They told the Camp Superintendent, the timber prospectors, cruisers, lumberjacks and drivers of the wonderful region to the west. One of the men remarked to Henry Hudson: "The country is full of pine and splendid tracts of hardwood, but it would take a whole year to get 1,000 feet of the product to the Wolf River." He never realized that the "Iron Trail" 'as the pioneer called the railroad, would penetrate into that same territory before seven years passed, and that in fifty years the same region would be the most productive agricultural section of the territory now comprising Langlade County.

PIONEER LUMBERMEN FROM MAINE.

Maine has long been known as the Pine Tree State, because of the vast areas of pine forests within its limits. Years ago the woodland area of Maine covered over three-fourths of the total area of the entire Commonwealth. With the passing of the primeval forests of that state many of its native sons moved westward. Thus the pine forests of Maine furnished to Langlade County many of the pioneers in the logging, river driving and lumbering industry of the Wolf River country. These sturdy followers of the stately pine often took up lands and homesteads in the regions slashed with the result that the descendants of many are still living along the route of the Military Road or in other sections of the county. Many of the Maine pine men moved on westward and their progeny are found at this day in the great forests of Canadian-British Columbia.

With the pine slashed, the purpose of the pioneer lumberman was accomplished. Hardwood was a burden and an expense. The knotty and poorer grade of logs were usually left in the forests to become a prey to future raging forest fires. At first only the pine timber along the banks of the Wolf and Lily rivers was cut, but with timber operations increasing, the extent of the slashed area also increased. The "cut-over" land of that day was then placed on the market to be taken up by the first settlers. Often they became discouraged and would abandon their "hole in the woods" as the first clearings were called. Land was then considered worthless. It would not in many instances yield sufficient products to pay taxes. Thus the land speculator, the tax-title lawyer, great land agencies and many who invested "pine profits" took up the lands of the county. They paid the munificent sum of from fifty cents to two dollars per acre for land that today could not be purchased for $150.00 per acre. The delicate problems involving the ownership and the title to thousands of acres of land demanded expert attention. Thus the tax title attorney became a necessity. Attorney W. H. Webster of Oconto and Attorney George W. Latta of Antigo, were the acknowledged tax title experts in the vicinity.

The story of the pine hunter is now but a memory only to the oldest settlers. The lumberman and timber cruiser of that era are passing away swiftly. Only through the story teller of tomorrow—"the art preservative of arts" will the traditions of the early lumber districts be preserved.

And the tales they will tell the people
Will be of logging camps and saw mills
At a time by few remembered
When this land was dense with forests.
Tales of swamping, sawing, skidding,
Rafting, driving, logs and lumber,
How they felled the forest timber.

Tell of lumber jack and camp boss,
Of the cook and sleeping shanties,
Of the horse and oxen stables
By the forest trees surrounded.
Of the peavy and the cant hook
Now no longer seen with workmen.
Stories of the timber cruising,
Bearing trees and section corners,
Tramping woodland shod in snow shoes
Seeking merchantable timber,
Looking ever at the tree trunks,
Never noting soil they grew on
Though the richest ever planted.
Tell the tales of timber stealing,
Liens for labor, suits for trespass,
To a wondering pastoral people.
Tell of shingle bolts and saw logs
And the timber cut for pulp wood;
Of the log jams in the river,
And the ice roads to the landing
Of the circular and band saw,
How they ripped the logs and lumber,
When his father was a youngster;
They will tell of mills dismantled,
Of the knives that changed the huge logs
Into long sheets called veneering.
Of the hubs made for the wagons
Turned and mortised by the carload,
And the staves and hoops for barrels,
Manufactured by the million;
They will tell of mills that vanished,
When no timber grew to feed them.
Where they stood the lawn mowers clicking
Seems faint echo to their noises.
Tell how forests were denuded
Of all timber having value,
When the farmer of the southward
Came to clear the timber slashings,
Built of logs their house and stables,
Toiling hard for crops to gather,
How the timber farmer wondered,
Shook his head and smiled with pity
Said it was the height of folly
Trying to force from stumps a living;
But the sneers were all unheeded
By a farmer at his clearing.
Late and early toiling conquered,
Field on field was cleared and planted
Garnered grain rewards his labors.
Dairy cattle browse contented
In the pastures once the forest.
Well content the prosperous farmer
Tells with mirth of timber settler
Who once owned his smiling acres.
How he followed lumbering northward
To the verge of civilization
And was never heard from after.

County Politics and Parties

Political Parties—Federal—Whig—Democrat—Republican—Green Backs—Socialists—Non-Partisan League—Progressives—Retirement of Old School leaders—County political henchmen—Personal Politics in County Affairs—Political Wire Pulling—Langlade County Women in Politics—The Political Wigwam of 1896—War with Germany Breaks Party Ties—Labor to the Front—Weakening of Party Lines—The Battle Line of 1924—Presidential Vote of County 1884-1920.

In the Colonial period of American history there existed no political parties such as are prevalent today. Not until 1760, when the English insisted upon a severe policy toward the Colonies did two factions develop, one favoring self government and the other favoring obedience to the crown government. Thus was born the Colonial Whig and the Tory groups and with their birth American political history began.

The initial party organization commenced in opposition to measures sponsored by Alexander Hamilton, which included the establishment of a National Bank. In this conflict of ideas developed the Federal and Anti-Federalist—the former led by Alexander Hamilton, the latter by Thomas Jefferson. The Federalists gained control of the new United States government with the election of George Washington, but in 1801 were overthrown by the Anti-Federalists, who during their quarter of a century of power, changed their party label from Anti-Federalist to Democratic-Republican, Republican and finally Democrat.

The National Republican party, created during the Monroe "Era of Good Feeling," the Anti-Masonic party of 1832, the Whig party of 1836, the Liberty party of 1840, the Free Soilers of 1848, the American or Know-nothing party of 1856, the Republican party of 1856, the Green Backs or Nationals of 1876, the Laborites of 1884, the Peoples Party of 1892, the Socialists of 1892, the Populists of 1896, the Socialist-Labor Party of 1896, the Prohibitionists commencing in 1896, the Progressives of 1912, the Farmer-Labor Party of 1920, all have been organized as a result of divided opinions on some burning principal or issue of national interest.

POLITICAL LANGLADE COUNTY.

Political history of the county began when Squire A. Taylor made his fight for the County of New, in 1879. A year later, as we know, in February, 1880, the name of the county became Langlade. The Wolf River settlement and its leaders opposed the establishment of the county-seat at Springbrook or Antigo. Francis A. Deleglise and his followers accepted the creation of New County nonchalantly. This is evidenced by the following petition to the Oconto County Board of Supervisors: We, the undersigned inhabitants and electors of that part of Range eleven (11) that lays in Oconto County* do hereby make application to you to establish and organize a town out of and comprising the above mentioned territory and to call said town the name set opposite the majority of the signers hereto.

The petitioners desired townships 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41 and 42, North, Range 11 East "be detached from all previous town organizations existing under authority of the Oconto County Board and that the townships be organized and named Antigo." The first town election was to be held April 5, 1881, A. D., at Niels Anderson's store. This was directly in conflict with the Chapter 7, laws of 1880, approved February 19, 1880, in which New County was changed to Langlade County, (with Antigo township as a part of it) and in which Oconto County had no jurisdiction since 1879. It demonstrates the rivalry between the Squire A. Taylor group on the Wolf River and the settlers in and adjacent to Antigo.

POLITICAL CAMPAIGNS—1884-1924.

The campaign of 1884 was Langlade County's first dip into Presidential politics. September 25, 1884, a Blaine and Logan Club was organized with W. H. Blinn as President and A. L. Ross, Commander. October 16, 1884, a great celebration and torch parade was held by the Blaine and Loganites in Antigo. The procession, headed by a brass band, proceeded from the Antigo House (corner of 5th Avenue and Edison street) to the Opera House (south of site of Vivian Hotel), where Hon. W. C. Bailey of Green Bay spoke in ringing terms for over an hour on impending issues. The Republicans appealed to Civil War veterans to support Blaine and especially Logan, soldier and G. A. R. Commander.

The Democrats were very active in support of Cleveland and Hendricks. A Cleveland and Hendricks Club was formed with Attorney Thomas W. Lynch as President and W. H. Dawley as Secretary. Their street parades, torch processions and county campaigning kept the Plumed Knights of the Blaine and Logan Club on the alert. Many prominent speakers visited Antigo and spoke on the paramount issue, the tariff.

After the election the people of the village thronged to the Milwaukee, Lake Shore depot, where telegraphic returns were received. The bulletins were scanned with eagerness to cheer or lament as the report dictated. Rivalry was not over when voting ceased as the Republicans charged the Democrats with "being too boisterous while awaiting returns."

Newspapers played an important part in the campaign. The Langlade Republican was strong for Blaine, while the News Item was for the Cleveland-Hendricks ticket.

Pioneers are of the opinion that Antigo has never since witnessed such earnest political torch parades, pow wows and active political campaigning as the great election of 1884. While Blaine carried the county it was only by 126 votes.

THE CAMPAIGN OF 1888.

The campaign of 1888 turned the tide in favor of the Republicans and Benjamin Harrison, with free trade as the paramount issue, went into the President's chair. Langlade County endorsed Cleveland in the campaign by 1192 votes as against 774 for General Harrison.

The election was equally exciting as that of 1884. When the returns showed Harrison and Morton as the victors a great log cabin demonstration was arranged, Saturday, November 10, 1888. Music, a procession, banners, horsemen and a general "bang up" prevailed. An amusing incident of the 1888 fight was related by an old timer telling how William Martinson carried David Clements from Weed's mill to Clement's residence, a considerable distance, as payment of a losing end of an election bet.

THE GREAT FIGHT FOR FREE SILVER.

The most exciting campaign in the history of the nation for years was the McKinley-Bryan contest of 1896. The coinage of free silver at a 16 to 1 ratio was the dominant issue. McKinley carried Langlade County by approximately five hundred votes. The campaign held sway over the entire nation from the time nominations were made until the inauguration of President-elect McKinley. Bryan, magnetic orator, toured the country speaking to great crowds everywhere. Republican and Democrat leaders were sent into Langlade County to aid their respective parties. Rallies, torchlight parades, political speeches and barbecues enlivened the campaign in which party lines were broken and crossed in so many ways making its local phase notable in Langlade County political history.

THE POLITICAL WIGWAM OF 1896.

The citizens of Antigo, chiefly Republicans, with the aid of some Gold Democrats and free silver proponents alike, realized the need of a large meeting place during the political election of 1896. Accordingly carpenters, laborers, politicians and office seekers all joined hands and erected a monstrous wigwam, as it was called, on the present public library grounds.

The great poles were hauled from the Kingsbury & Henshaw land just west of Neva road, opposite the McHale farm, north of Antigo. Most of the labor and material was donated. The framework of the wigwam was erected with great speed. A substantial building paper covered the rough wall boards. The interior was equipped with plank seats and a platform. The seating capacity was between fifteen hundred to two thousand. Antigo had a Bryan Club and a McKinley Club during that hot fought contest.

Republican and Democrat campaign speeches alike were given in the wigwam. More interest was evinced by the women of the county than ever before.

MCKINLEY CARRIES LANGLADE.

Bryan was defeated but as he said "the year 1900 is not far away, the campfires of patriotism still burn" and the great Commoner to this day is a leader in American politics. The campaign of 1900 resulted again in the victory of McKinley and the Republicans. Langlade County gave McKinley five hundred majority, the vote being 1596 for McKinley and 1084 for Bryan. The paramount issue was the monetary system and the tariff.

In 1904, Alton B. Parker, Democratic presidential nominee was defeated by Roosevelt. Parker charged his defeat to followers of Bryan. Roosevelt carried Langlade County by a thousand votes.

The campaign of 1912 is notable for developing the Bull Moose or Progressive Party under the leadership of Roosevelt, who defeated LaFollette of Wisconsin for Presidential nominee. William Howard Taft, eminently qualified, was nominated at Chicago by the Republicans. Some thought the nomination to be unfair and the Progressive party was the result. Senator La Follette broke with Roosevelt after the latter's nomination. Meanwhile the Democrats, through the influence of Bryan, nominated Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey and with the Republican forces divided the results were easy to forecast. Wilson was elected. He carried Langlade County by five hundred votes. Roosevelt lead Taft in Langlade County and gained a greater vote than Taft in the nation.

In 1916 with Europe at war, the United States neutral, Woodrow Wilson was swept into office on a platform, "He kept us out of war." Langlade County endorsed Wilson, giving him two-hundred more votes than Charles Evans Hughes, Republican nominee.

The campaign of 1920 was one of the most memorable in the history of the nation. President Wilson, broken in health, his ideals of a League of Nations shattered, looked on as James M. Cox, Ohio war Governor, leading the Democrats in a remarkable uphill battle, was overwhelmingly defeated by the Republicans, who nominated Warren G. Harding, U. S. Senator from Ohio.

Langlade County went Republican by two thousand votes. The paramount issue was the League of Nations and America's foreign policy. The Farmer-Labor party, new born, made a creditable showing. The Non-partisan League gained a following in Langlade County. The campaigns of 1884-1896 and 1920 are considered the most remarkable in American political history. We can only await the year 1924 to see if these contests are not superceded.

THE YEAR 1924 IS NOT FAR AWAY.

The battle lines of politics are beginning to be arrayed at this writing. The Democrats have many leaders as McAdoo, Pomerene, Bryan, Cox or Walsh, Presidential possibilities, but a dark horse has ample time to come up. Warren G. Harding, if alive, will unquestionably be the Republican choice again. The Socialists may replace Debs with a man younger than he. Soldiers of the World War and the women will play an important part in the contest. The dead progressives of 1912 may be reborn under a new title. Borah, La Follette, (who will be re-elected in November, 1922), Johnson of California, James A. Reed and France of Maryland would be the timber for the new political coterie. The conservative policies of the Republicans are now a target.

PERSONAL COUNTY POLITICS.

Langlade County since its organization in 1880 has had, in its past and present political history many leaders who acquired their controlling influence through their own personal prestige and cordiality rather than through party principles. The day is passing when men adhere to the narrowness of a one policy or party. Party lines are weakening. A man's character, his ability and his honesty figure largely in local politics. For that reason Langlade County may be Republican on national issues, but largely Democratic on local affairs.

DOMINANT PARTIES IN COUNTY.

The dominant parties in the county have been Democrat and Republican. In 1884 and afterward for sometime the Prohibitionists or "third party" element was strong. The Socialist Party has been stronger in late years. There candidate for U. S. Senate, Victor L. Berger, received 420 votes in the county in 1918. The Non-Partisan League organized in the county in 1919. Allied with various labor organizations in a Farmer-Labor League this party swept the county in the 1920 primaries, but was defeated in the general election. The Republican McCoy Club (Col. McCoy, of Sparta was then Democrat candidate for Governor against J. J. Blaine, Progressive Republican, whom the standpat Republicans repudiated) of Langlade County played an important part in the defeat of the Farmer-Labor group. The Republican county committee was captured by the Farmer-Labor League and is still in their control. Issues resultant from the World War broke party ties. Democrat county officers have been retained almost without exception, save for Sheriff, for many years. In 1922 the important battle in the county appears to be between the Progressives and the Stalwarts for control of Republican party affairs. "Rings," political aspirants, so-called amateur political "bosses" and "one man power" are talked of in the county.

LANGLADE COUNTY PRESIDENTIAL VOTE SINCE ORGANIZATION TO DATE.

In 1880 there is no record of a Presidential vote in New County, but in 1881 a record of a Gubernatorial vote is given in Langlade County. Langlade County has voted Republican majorities six times and Democratic majorities in Presidential elections four times.

The first Presidential vote was during the great Blaine and Logan and Cleveland and Hendricks campaign as follows:

1884—Grover Cleveland, Democrat—559 votes; James G. Blaine, Republican—685 votes.

1888—Grover Cleveland, Democrat—1192 votes; Benjamin Harrison, Republican—774 votes.

1892—Grover Cleveland, Democrat—1299 votes; Benjamin Harrison, Republican—877 votes; J. B. Weaver, Peoples Party—13 votes; Bidwell, Prohibitionist—31 votes.

1896—William J. Bryan, Democrat—957 votes; William McKinley, Republican—1445 votes; J. W. Palmer—21 votes.

1900—William J. Bryan, Democrat—1084 votes; William McKinley, Republican—1596 votes; Wooley, Prohibitionist—48 votes; Eugene Debs, Socialist—5 votes; J. F. Malloney, Social Labor—5 votes.

1904—Theodore Roosevelt, Republican—2105 votes; A. B. Parker, Democrat—1018 votes; Swallow, Prohibitionist—46 votes; Socialist—31 votes; Social Labor Party—1 vote; Peoples Party—2 votes.

1908—William J. Bryan, Democrat—1340; William H. Taft, Republican—1921 votes; Chafin, Prohibitionist—64 votes; Debs, Socialist—33 votes.

1920—James M. Cox, Democrat—1619 votes; Warren G. Harding, Republican—4059 votes; Debs, Socialist—189 votes; Watkins, Prohibitionist—46 votes.

Schools and Education

"That religion, morality and knowledge, being necessary to the government and happiness of mankind, schools and means of education shall be forever encouraged," declared the Ordinance of 1787. At once the founders of this nation encouraged and fostered, in the organic law of government, education among the people.

Thirteen years before Congress carved Wisconsin from the Northwest Territory, it set aside every sixteenth section within the limits of the proposed state for common school purposes, estimated at 1523 sections. Later 72 sections were set aside as a University fund. 72 additional sections were granted the University fund. This grant was assigned to saline lands, but other lands were substituted. Various grants of land, too numerous to mention here and not of assistance in revealing the motive of this chapter, were granted to the state for school funds at varying periods from 1848 to 1922. All lands and moneys were given to the state in trust in order to create a fund, the income of which might be added to other sources of revenue, with which public schools were maintained.

Thus the total number of acres of land grants to the state aggregated nearly five million acres. Yet the income derived from such a vast area is far below what it should be. Powerful combines, making pleas for immigration, purchased thousands of acres of public school land grants and laid the foundation for large private fortunes.

THE FIRST WISCONSIN SCHOOL.

Pierre Grignon, son-in-law of Charles De Langlade opened a private school for French families at Green Bay. James Porlier, ancestral relative of Louis Porlier, ex-Sheriff of Langlade County, was the instructor. There were many private and religious schools in the state before 1836. Edward West taught the first public school in Town Kilbourn (now a part of Milwaukee). The first Wisconsin high school was established in 1846. Eleazer Root was the first State Superintendent of Wisconsin Schools. A free high school law was passed in 1875, five years before the organization of Langlade County, and carried with it an appropriation of $25,000.00.

tificates and promiscuously distributed them to friends, regardless of teaching qualifications. The first manual for common schools was issued by State Superintendent Graham in 1882. Since then the annual school manual is published by the State Department of Education.

In 1889, by the passage of the Bennet Law, making it compulsory for all children between ages of 7 and 14, to attend school at least 12 weeks and not more than 24 weeks, the educational system of the state became embroiled in politics. The Bennet Law was repealed in 1891 and a new compulsory law was instituted.

THE BENNET LAW
—ITS REPEAL.

Under the Territorial government state schools were under the jurisdiction of county commissioners, who were replaced by the town superintendents. School boards of three members were later organized. Town superintendents were then responsible to the County Clerk. This was an improvement. In early years County Superintendents carried teacher's cer-

THE ORIGIN OF ARBOR DAY.

Setting aside a day for the annual planting of trees was first proclaimed by the Governor of Nebraska in 1872. Hon. B. G. Northrop, Secretary of the Connecticut Board of Education in 1865 was the first to suggest such a day. Observance of Arbor Day in Wisconsin on the first Friday of May is annually proclaimed by the Governor. Arbor Day is also associated with Bird Day, when children are instructed in the care and protection of birds.

The Arbor Day manual of exercises and instructions is annually published by the State Department of Education. Arbor Day has been the means of planting millions of trees throughout the United States. Since the World War many of the trees have been dedicated to fallen American heroes.

LANGLADE COUNTY SCHOOLS.

The dominating thought of the first settlers in Langlade County was to secure means and education for their children. It was not more than six months after the first permanent settlers came into eastern Langlade County when the first school house was erected.

The first school was located on section 3, township 31, north, of range 14 east. The little log cabin, built in 1873, was roughly thrown together. While it was primitive it was the beginning of education in Langlade County. Miss Addie Wescott of Shawano was probably the first teacher. In this one room log structure, surrounded by dense forests, the children of the early settlers were taught the "three R's." The first pupils to attend school in the county were: Waldo A. Yates, Elton C. Larzelere, Levi R. Farrow, Etta B. Farrow and Carrie J. Larzelere. The teacher made arrangements to get a blackboard from Shawano. The students ranged in ages of from five to eighteen. Text books were not uniform yet from the "backwoods" schools, such as this one, were produced some of Langlade County's leading citizens. Lessons taught were Reading, Writing, Spelling, Arithmetic, History and Geography. The first schools had no maps. School terms were usually eight to nine months. The second school in the county was established at "Nine Mile Creek," now Hollister, and the third was erected at New, now known as Lily.

Here Miss Anna Sheriff held sway during the first term. Note the scooped roof, the forest in the background and the oxen. Ed. Guenther is standing near the oxen.

THE FIRST ANTIGO SCHOOL.

The first school in Antigo was constructed of logs by a young man named Joseph Krause. He intended to reside at the place, but instead took up a homestead at or near Kempster. The school was located where the P. F. Kelly Implement Store is now, corner of Third Avenue and Superior Street and was opened in 1879. Miss Anna Sheriff, now Mrs. Peter O'Connor of White Lake, Elton township, proved capable and efficient as the first teacher.

Other early teachers in Antigo were: Miss Sophia Deleglise, now Mrs. Sophia Leslie, Miss Carrie Herman, Miss Nellie Williams, now Mrs. C. S. Leykom, Mrs. Maggie Hughes, Byron J. Oakley, the late F. J. Finucane, Elizabeth McGill, Virginia Pierson and Lizzie Borgman. By 1883 Antigo had a graded school with three departments.

The first Antigo school was typical of the pioneer.

It had only two half windows in which to let light. The floor was made of rough odds and ends boards. The seats were made of basswood trees, "split in twain." The round sides were perforated with holes to receive pegs. Back rests and book shelves were absent.

The little log school was warmed by a box stove that drove out the frost in the long dreary winters and smudged out the mosquito and fly in the spring and summer.

THE FIRST HIGH SCHOOL.

The High School department was established in the Village of Antigo in October, 1883. C. O. Marsh, first Principal, arrived in Antigo Tuesday, September 25, 1883. 41 pupils were enrolled before the 1883 term closed. Miss Agnes Donohue, the first graduate, June 20, 1885, read an essay, "Character" as one of the numbers of the first high school exercises. Others who participated were: Lizzie Caldwell, Sybil Cornish, George Porter, Edith Logan and Dr. H. V. Mills, leader of the Forest City Orchestra. High School was first conducted in a frame building on the site of the public library. Not long after a two story frame building was erected on the site of the Second Ward School from which Miss Agnes Donohue graduated. This frame building was used until the first brick structure was erected in block 63, present site of the Antigo High School. When it was proposed to erect a brick high school on that site it was covered with a thick growth of timber. It was owned by Hon. Francis A. Deleglise who presented it to the village for school purposes.

February 9, 1890, the city council approved plans for the erection of the school. The building originally cost $16,500, but improvements and additions were made after its construction to keep pace with the in-

Antigo's First High School.
This building was located on the site of the present public library.

THE NEW HIGH SCHOOL.

Time was not lost to provide facilities for school purposes after the burning of the high school. Citizens, business places, lodges, and churches un-animously came forth and offered rooms. Most of them were accepted. A special meeting of the Board of Education was called. President E. J. Goodrick appointed a committee consisting of N. R. Babcock, R. S. Healy, Sr., and Walter Below to assist Superintendent H. S. Simmons secure rooms.

The first building plans were discussed at once. E. J. Goodrick, W. B. McArthur, N. R. Babcock, Edgar Neff and George Palmiter were chosen as the Ways and Means Committee on construction. Robert Messmer, Milwaukee architect, was selected to prepare plans and specifications for a new school to cost not more than $100,000. This was in accordance with a resolution passed at a regular meeting of the city council, April 26, 1916. May 18, 1916, bids were opened and the contract for erecting the building was awarded to the Immel Construction Company of Fond du Lac for $96,000. Heating and ventilating apparatus was installed by the General Heating & Ventilating Company of Milwaukee. Louis Peters, Antigo plumber, was awarded the plumbing contract.

The corner stone of the high school was laid amid crease in enrollment from year to year. The school served the rising generations faithfully until that bitter cold morning, January 6, 1916, when fire turned it into a heap of smouldering ruins. The Philakean Debating Society held the last meeting in it, January 5, 1916. Valuable school records and trophies, most of which cannot be replaced, were burned.

impressive and appropriate ceremonies in July, 1916. The high school, modern in every respect, was first used in the spring of 1917. It was officially accepted before the opening of the 1917-18 school term. The building committee consisted of N. R. Babcock, R. S. Healy, Sr., Walter Below, and Dr. F. C. Kestly. The flag pole was donated by N. R. Babcock.

WARD SCHOOLS.

The contract for the erection of a two story brick school building in the 1st ward was awarded to Thomas Solar, September 18, 1905, at a cost of $10,247. The school was completed and accepted in October, 1906. J. D. Chubb was the architect. The 1st ward school was named the T. D. Kellogg school in honor of T. D. Kellogg, then President of the Board of Education. It is located in Daskam's 2nd sub-division.

February 7, 1896, bids were received for erecting a four room two story school in the second ward. Thomas Wright was awarded the contract at $6,868. Conover & Porter, Madison, Wis., architects drafted plans and specifications for the building which was completed in August, 1896. The school is at the intersection of Clermont street and Second avenue.

In 1899 the city authorized the issuance of $8,000 in bonds to build a two story school in the third ward. A one room frame building was used before then. The present school was completed and accepted in 1900. It is located in block 1 of the Mary Deleglise addition. It cost about $8,000.

The fourth ward building contract was let to Thomas Solar at $11,630. (He was also given a contract to build an addition on the high school at the same time, June 15, 1904.) The fourth ward was completed and ready for school purposes by the fall of 1904. The old frame structure was moved away by R. M. Briggs. The fourth ward is located in block 1 of Daskam's addition.

All classes in the fifth ward are conducted in the high school building in block 63.

On June 5, 1896, the Board of Education adopted a resolution requesting the city council to submit to a referendum a proposition to borrow $7,000 from the state for a ten year term, $4,000 to be used to erect the sixth ward and $3,000 to meet a part of the contract price of the second ward. The resolution was rescinded June 19, 1896. March 1, 1897, the school board passed a resolution requesting the same loan. Meanwhile the Jaekel building (M. Krom Building) was used for school purposes. May 8, 1897, W. H. Nelson of Merrill was awarded the contract to build the sixth ward at $6,450. Conover & Porter were the architects. The building was completed October 1, 1897. It is located in block 59, 7th avenue and Virginia street.

PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS.

In 1890, under the regime of Rev. William Takken, the St. John's Parochial School was erected. The cost was approximately $8,000. The increased enrollment and growing demands necessitated additions and improvements that have been made during Rev. Conrad Saile's pastorship. These improvements have cost between $12,000 and $14,000. Enrollment at St. John's parochial school in 1922 was 487—255 boys and 232 girls. The school is in charge of Franciscan Sisters, ten of whom teach the various grades.

It is located at the corner of Fulton Street and Seventh Avenue, block 57.

St. Hyacinth parochial school was erected in 1908. It is in charge of two Sisters. The average attendance is 84 pupils in grades ranging from the first to the eighth. This school is located on Edison street in block 23, original plat of Antigo.

The Phlox parochial school is discussed in Norwood township.

The Antigo Evangelical Peace parochial school was established in 1897. Since 1902, the old church, north of the present edifice, has been used as the school. Two teachers are in charge. The old school was located west of the present church site. Grades range from first to eighth.

COUNTY SCHOOLS.

The first Langlade County Superintendent's report was made November 17, 1881 by George T. Ratcliffe. It was a well written review of the rural schools. The schools of the county were then in a chaotic condition. Rolling and Norwood townships were credited with the best schools in the county in 1881. Sixteen teachers had charge of the entire rural school system at that time. In 1881, there were but nine school districts as compared with eighty in 1922. The first school districts were subdivided into 12 sub-districts. The first county teacher's institute was held in October, 1881. A Langlade County Teacher's Association was organized but never functioned successfully at that early date.

The total enrollment in the rural schools in 1921 was 3285 pupils. The number of teachers engaged in rural and graded schools exclusive of Antigo, was 107 according to 1921 official reports.

Langlade County has three consolidated schools: Parrish District No. 1 of Summit township, Summit Lake District No. 1 of Upham township and District No. 1 of Kent, Langlade and Price township districts consolidated.

Two union free high schools were recently established. One, the Union Free High School of Districts 1, 4 and 5 of Langlade township is located at White Lake. The other was erected in 1921 at Elcho. Both offer four year courses.

The cost of educating the pupils in the rural schools of Langlade County is approximately $58 per pupil.

The following is a list of Langlade County Superintendents of Schools since 1881: George Ratcliffe—1881-1885; A. H. Morris—1885-1887; Dr. J. H. Dawley—1887-1888; Edward Nordman—1888-1895; H. F. Morson—1895-1896; Edward Nordman—1896-1901; C. O. Marsh—1901-1903; A. M. Arveson—1903-1919; Bertha Moss—1919-1922, (present incumbent). Miss Mattie McMillan elected in 1919 did not qualify.

THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

The first free library opened in Antigo April 17, 1897, in the F. A. Millard building, now 711 Fifth Avenue. 172 volumes were in use. In 1898, Mrs. A. K. Brush, most influential in organizing the library, aided in increasing the volumes to 450 in number. The library was open two times a week, Tuesdays and Saturdays. Camilla Thrall was Secretary. Rules were: 1.—No one allowed behind desk except librarian. 2.—No cards issued to children under 12. 3.—Unnecessary conversation prohibited.

The semi-annual anniversary of the opening was celebrated November 5, 1897. A book social was held at the Congregational Church. All present donated a book to the library. New quarters were provided in the City Hall in October, 1900. At this time Friendship Union, W. C. T. U., which had reading rooms over Molle's Jewelry Store, donated tables, books and magazines to the newly created library board.

THE FIRST LIBRARY BOARD.

When the W. C. T. U. agreed to turn over their tables and equipment to the city provided the city would expend $500 for necessities for a public library the first step toward the practical solution of the library problem was taken. The city agreed and the library was formally opened December 29, 1900, in the City Hall. The first librarian in the city hall library was Miss Jane Ogilvie. The library remained there until the Carnegie Library was erected in 1904. C. F. Dallman, Antigo contractor and architect, erected the present library.

neely, President; Mrs. E. A. Morse, Vice-president; Mrs. Charles La Blonde, City Commissioner Frank Dvorak, Superintendent of City Schools, A. M. Arveson, Ernest Hirt, C. W. Van Doren and Miss Edith Rectygl, librarian, who is secretary of the board.

OLD SETTLERS CLUB.

The Antigo Pioneer Club was formed by Jessie Armstrong, S. E. Leslie, D. F. Chandler, Jule Grant, H. M. Chandler, A. P. Menting, W. H. Dawley, and G. J. Schintz, November 22, 1891. The purpose of the club was to "maintain and manage fishing and sporting facilities at Moose Lake, Norwood township."

WISCONSIN GEOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY.

The Wisconsin Geographical Society organized in 1883 to collect and diffuse geographical data, books, pamphlets, old and new, for the benefit of posterity, was active for many years. Its first officers were: President—L. W. Bliss; Vice-President—F. A. Deleglise and Secretary—W. H. Dawley.

LANGLADE COUNTY HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

The Langlade County Historical Society was organized at the City Hall, May 14, 1921. Mayor Charles J. Hanzel opened the meeting. Officers elected were:

THE ANTIGO PUBLIC LIBRARY ERECTED IN 1904.

Equipped then with but 1529 volumes, it now has 11,525 volumes at the command of the Langlade County reading public. The County Normal is located in the library building, second floor.

The first library board and directors were appointed by Mayor I. D. Steffen. Members were: Mrs. E. P. Bridgeman, F. J. Finucane, Frank Ringsmith, C. S. Leykom, Mrs. J. F. Albers, Mrs. M. F. Crowe, Miss Anna Kelly, Frank Glugla and C. O. Marsh. The board elected these officers: President—F. J. Finucane; Vice-President—Mrs. J. F. Albers and Secretary—Miss Anna Kelly.

The library board meets the first Tuesday of each month. The present board is as follows: G. K. Me-

President—George W. Latta; Vice-Presidents—Judge J. W. Parsons, Mrs. Anna Morrissey and Frank Dvorak; Secretary—Robert M. Dessureau; Treasurer—Mrs. Sophia Leslie; Board of Directors—Edward Goebel, John McGreer, Mrs. Sophia Leslie, Mrs. Anna Morrissey, Charles Hoeffler, George W. Latta and Robert M. Dessureau. The Advisors selected were: J. C. Lewis, Edward McCandless, Anton Nowotny, W. H. Dawley and William H. Wolpert.

Besides collecting historical data the society will

ANTIGO SUPERINTENDENTS OF SCHOOLS.

The history of Langlade County would be incomplete without the names of the City Superintendents of Antigo and also the principals of the Antigo High School. They are given herewith with the dates they served. Up to the year 1915-16 the City Superintendent also acted as principal of the High School. For that reason his name is not repeated under the list of principals.

TOTAL NUMBER HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES,

From but one graduate in 1885 the Antigo High School has grown to be one of the best known of Wisconsin schools. It has turned out 1,147 graduates in the time from 1885-1922 inclusive. The largest class in the history of the school was the 1922 class. The class of 1921 ranks second. No better statistical index can be produced than this to prove the steady and continued progress of a community.

GRADUATES OF THE ANTIGO HIGH SCHOOL BY YEARS FROM 1885-1922 INCLUSIVE.

In a work of this character it is difficult to compile that data which is essential and which posterity will find of value. January 6, 1916, the Antigo High School was destroyed by fire and with it all valuable records including the list of the high school graduates from 1885 to 1915. The writer has therefore with great difficulty gathered an accurate list of the high school graduates by classes, which is given herewith.

LANGLADE COUNTY NORMAL.

The founding of the Langlade County Normal is due largely to the untiring efforts of A. M. Arveson, former County Superintendent of Schools, who, in the fall of 1905, succeeded in securing an appropriation for the establishment of the school. T. W. Humble, Richard Koebke, and A. M. Arveson were the first members appointed on the Langlade County Training School Board. The second floor of the Antigo Public Library was remodeled and equipped for suitable class rooms. C. O. Marsh, then City Superintendent of the Antigo schools, was engaged as principal of the new school and Miss Maud Brewster

(now Mrs. L. L. Gibbs) was engaged for Supervisor of Practice.

The Langlade County Normal entered upon its first year of training rural teachers August 27, 1906, with an enrollment of about thirty-five students. The first class was graduated June 20, 1907. The school continued under the leadership of its first faculty for six years until in 1911 Miss Brewster resigned to accept a position at Stevens Point Normal. Miss Mattie McMillan was then selected Supervisor of Practice. A year later Mr. Marsh resigned to be succeeded by W. E. Switzer, who served efficiently for five years. In 1915, a third teacher, Miss Florence Marsh, was added to the faculty. Her successors have been Miss Matilda Horn and Miss Jessie Thorp, each holding the position of assistant for two years. W. E. Switzer was followed by W. E. Smith, who resigned after two years of creditable service. He was succeeded by J. H. Lasher, the present principal. Under Mr. Lasher's administration the institution has maintained its former high standard of excellence and has made itself an indispensable factor in county educational and community advancement.

In 1918 appropriations by the County Board made possible the establishment of a school dormitory and a model rural school, both of which have aided in increasing the efficiency of the school. Previously to that year all practice teaching had been done in the city grades. Miss Beulah Kobler, who succeeded Miss McMillan as Supervisor of Practice, organized the Model School and also acted as first matron of the dormitory.

The present faculty consists of J. H. Lasher, Principal; Pearl Blanding, Supervisor of Practice; Inez McGeaham, Assistant. The members of the present Training School Board are Leonard Freiburger, Sr., W. J. Mattek, and Miss Bertha Moss. The school to date has graduated 281 students, most of whom have taught in the rural schools of Langlade County or in the Antigo public schools. Eighty-six per cent of the one-room rural schools of this county are taught by graduates of the school at present. Many of the alumni have, since graduation, continued their professional training in other institutions so that they are now found in varied teaching positions.

The alumni roll of the Langlade County Normal contains the names of County Superintendents, Rural School Supervisors, and High School Instructors as well as rural and city grade teachers. In addition to its work of training the rural teacher, the school has developed its extension service which is making its influence for better schools felt in every rural community.

One of the most interesting phases of the development of the county has been the rise and expansion of industries that flourished and then for various reasons halted operations and passed into oblivion. The cause for these changes in the industrial life of a community opens up a philosophy of history producing a wide and interesting field.

The first industry established in the county was the old portable saw mill of Thomas M. Dobbs, a Pennsylvanian, who came into the county in 1873. Dobbs began to clear out a space in the wilderness for his home lage; it gave the settlers a market for their timber, provided employment and supplied the growing demand for lumber. Mr. Deeglise gave the Novotny Brothers the right to erect a dam with a seven foot head and overflow any of his lands for a pond. In April, 1883, the legislature passed a law authorizing Joseph and Louis Novotny to construct a dam across Springbrook on the west $\frac{1}{2}$ of the northeast and the east $\frac{1}{2}$ of the northwest $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 29, township 31, range 11 east. The two brothers erected a grist mill also. The saw mill averaged 30,000 feet per day.

immediately after his arrival. His mill was on section 30, township 31, range 15 east. He stayed there but a short time when he moved to the junction point of the Lily and Wolf rivers, known since as the Lily.

The second saw mill in the county was probably owned by John Evans, who first operated on the Evergreen River south of White Lake about 1879.

FIRST ANTIGO SAW MILL.

Louis and Joseph Novotny came to Antigo in December, 1878, from Manitowoc, consulted with Hon. F. A. Deeglise and agreed to erect a saw mill in the village. They moved their equipment from Wausau in 1879 and erected "Novotny's Mill" on the site of the Faust mill of today. Louis Novotny erected Antigo's first frame building.

The Novotny mill was an asset to the embryo vil-

THE WEED MILL.

In January, 1882, A. Weed of Oshkosh erected a large saw and planing mill one mile south of the Village of Antigo. This mill had a capacity of 75,000 feet per eleven hour day. Approximately 20,000 feet of lumber was cut into shingles by the shingle mill. Booming facilities were provided by backing up Springbrook with a 37 rod long dam providing ample storage for ten million feet of logs. One hundred persons were employed on an average by Weed's mill, which operated until 1899, when it was destroyed by fire. When, in 1885, the city was incorporated the Weed mill property was excluded because of high taxes. A store and boarding house was operated in connection with the mill. F. J. Hopkins was in charge of this for many years.

HERMAN, BECKLINGER & HERMAN.

In 1881 Fred and Julius Herman came to Antigo from Milwaukee and erected a saw mill on the site of the Crocker Chair Company plant. The mill operated until March 22, 1883, when it was destroyed by fire. The Herman Brothers rebuilt. They also opened a furniture factory, June 23, 1882. The firm was then known as Herman, Becklinger & Herman. A 60 horse power engine drove the mill machinery. The plant was sold to the Crocker Chair Company, December 9, 1890. The new owners rebuilt and reconstructed the plant, which they still operate. They manufacture chair parts.

T. D. KELLOGG BUYS OUT NOVOTNY BROS.

In March, 1883, T. D. Kellogg moved to Antigo from New (Lily), where he had operated a saw mill. He purchased Novotny Brothers saw mill, grist mill, power dam and 14 acres of land in 1885. The mill burned down in 1886, but was rebuilt. Mr. Kellogg then took D. D. Kellogg (not a relative) of Green Bay into partnership, operating as Kellogg & Kellogg. In 1889, D. D. Kellogg sold his interest to T. D. Kellogg and two years later, 1891, the T. D. Kellogg Lumber & Manufacturing Company was organized. The saw mill was sold in 1905 to J. H. Worden. For a time the T. D. Kellogg Lumber & Manufacturing Company operated three mills—Polar mill, Antigo Hoop & Stave mill and the T. D. Kellogg mill.

ANTIGO HUB & MFG. CO.

The Antigo Hub & Mfg. Company was organized September 19, 1892, by Henry J. Frick, W. Morgan and A. Wiltderding. A plant was erected and operated with fair success for a while but finally failed. The property was taken over by the First National Bank. H. B. Kellogg was selected to operate it for the bank in 1901 and did so until April 18, 1903, when it was reorganized as the Antigo Hoop & Stave Company of which H. B. Kellogg was the principal owner. The industry was sold April 1, 1919 to Henshaw-Worden Lumber Company, who used the yard, but wrecked the machinery.

ANTIGO LUMBER COMPANY OF 1883.

The first "Antigo Lumber Company" was organized in November, 1883, by E. R. Van Buran, Antigo man, and Chicago associates. The company did a brokerage business and had an office located where the Langlade County Normal dormitory is now located. Five years later it disbanded, Mr. Van Buran leaving for Chicago.

PIONEER IRON WORKS.

The Pioneer Iron Works was organized January 1, 1884, by W. B. Johns, who came here from Brillion, Calumet County, Wisconsin. He erected the plant at 4th Avenue and Dorr Street. He formed a partnership with J. Kerling of Manitowoc. Kerling soon sold his rights back to Mr. Johns, who took D. D. Kellogg into partnership with him. The Pioneer Iron Works flourished in its early history. For a long time W. B. Johns operated it alone, he being followed by W. S. Morgan.

BADGER HUB FACTORY.

W. D. Badger came to Antigo from Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin and on December 7, 1883, erected a hub factory in the northern part of the Village of Antigo, across from the C. & N. W. Round House location. The frame timbers used in the excelsior factory of C. B. McDonald & Co., was the first product of the hub factory. Mr. Badger operated the mill but a short time when Louis Buckman became his partner. He was from Green Bay. The mill burned in 1886 and Mr. Badger went three miles north to "Shadeks" siding, Antigo township, and erected a mill.

CLANCY BUILDING FACTORY.

From 1883 to 1889, E. Clancy, a well known contractor of Antigo, ran a building factory north of the Pioneer Iron Works. It was an auxiliary to his contract business.

CITY PLANING MILL.

Fred Herman of the Herman, Becklinger & Herman firm, erected a planing mill in Antigo in 1881. It was located in block 64, across from the Antigo Public Library grounds. It operated until about 1889.

R. M. GOODWIN BROOM HANDLE FACTORY.

The R. M. Goodwin Company of Union Pier, Michigan erected a broom handle factory in Antigo in August, 1885. They operated until 1893, when the plant was sold to W. H. Pardee and others. John T. Thursby was the manager of the plant. 8,000 handles were turned out daily. It burned down in 1895.

J. C. HOXIE & E. N. MELLOR.

J. C. Hoxie and E. N. Mellor, known over the middle west, did a volume of lumber business in the county until their failure in 1890. They had all their logs cut in Langlade County mills, not operating mills of their own. They leased the Weed Mill for a while, however, and ran a building material mill of their own south of Clithero & Strong's mill, across from the present Antigo Canning Company. Mr. Mellor shot himself in the Vivian Hotel, December 22, 1892, the morning he was to appear at a "three cornered deal" hearing in the bankruptcy proceedings at Oshkosh. Mellor was once Vice-President of the Wisconsin Valley Lumberman's Association. The Hoxie & Mellor failure involved millions of dollars and was given first page publicity in metropolitan newspapers.

EXCELSIOR FACTORY.

C. B. McDonald and George T. Ratcliffe opened an excelsior factory providing a market for basswood products, December, 1883. In the spring of 1885, the original owners sold to Rassmussen & Co. Rassmussen was influenced to come to Antigo by Niels Anderson. The plant, located across from the Henshaw Lumber Company office, on Sixth Avenue, was closed in August, 1885, as a result of litigation. Niels Anderson then took it over and operated it for a while later. In 1907 the property was remodeled into a planing mill. Those who were interested in the business were John P. Nelson, P. F. Kelly, John A. Ogden and J. J. Laughlin. The mill burned.

CLITHERO & STRONG-PUTNAM-BANGS.

George Clithero and L. K. Strong, pioneers, formed the Clithero & Strong partnership in 1885. They operated a planing mill on south Morse street across from the site of the Antigo Canning Co. The mill operated until 1887 when it burned. Mr. Clithero went to Hurley and Mr. Strong entered the real estate business in Antigo. George Clithero first had E. R. Putnam as a partner in 1883. Putnam and he ran a sash door factory on south Morse street from November 1883, until 1885. In September 1884, N. Bangs became associated with the two and the concern was then known as the Antigo Planing Mill Co.

In 1885, Hans Anderson, a Dane, opened a machine shop in Antigo. It was a small industry.

WISCONSIN HANDLE & MFG. CO.

The Wisconsin Handle & Mfg. Company was organized September 5, 1893, by W. H. Pardee, E. P. Bridgeman and Charles Kellogg. The Company took over the R. M. Goodwin Broom Handle Factory. It operated until 1895.

Bissell, and J. S. Clements, were both organized to improve the Big Eau Claire River, the first, the west branch, and the last named concern, the river course in Lincoln and Langlade counties "adjacent to timber territory."

A plant was erected on north Minola Street, Antigo. For years the industry was operated by the Beavers Reserve Fund Fraternity, Dr. J. C. Krause Lumber Co., which operated until the concern went into bankruptcy. The property was purchased by George Wunderlich from the bankruptcy referee and then sold to Edgar & Martin, who operated until 1922. Dawley-Northern Yards, Inc., of Wausau, Wis., then purchased the planing mill and property and still own it. H. F. Harmon is local manager.

The Wisconsin Bark & Lbr. Co. took over the saw and planing mill property of the T. D. Kellogg Lumber & Mfg. Co., in 1905, after the mill had been sold to J. H. Worden.

Principal owners were J. H. Worden, and Edward Faust. Until 1909 the industry operated as that concern and then re-organized as

THE ANTIGO LUMBER COMPANY.

We have heard of the Antigo Lumber Company of 1883. Twenty-six years later another Antigo Lumber Company, which operated from 1909 until 1912, came into existence. The Langlade Lumber Company purchased the timber holdings of the defunct Paine Lumber Company of Oshkosh. The company operated five camps and had fifteen jobbers logging in the 1922 season. Hecker, when it was then located on Fifth Avenue in the Neff-Roberts flat. In the spring of 1919, the business was sold to William A. Lange and Ed. Stoddard, Wausau, Wisconsin, men. A half year later E. C. Stoddard sold his interest to C. E. Horne and since that time the business has been owned and operated by the Langlade Laundry Company, of which Wm. A. Lange and C. E. Horne are proprietors. The business continued in Neff-Roberts building until the spring of 1921, when because of increased business, and need of larger quarters, a modern two story brick structure was erected, which houses a laundry and dry cleaning and dyeing establishment. The proprietors added new machinery and equipment, a soft water installation, with a capacity of 12,000 gallons a day, water being pumped from a deep well in the plant. The plant employs four male and twelve female employes.

The Langlade Laundry plant is a model institution. By a special ventilating system the air in the entire plant is changed every seven minutes. Windows on both sides of the plant make ideal working conditions. It is safe to infer that the plant is the most modern one of Northern Wisconsin. The laundry work is of exceptional high grade and is under the efficient supervision of C. E. Horne. Mr. Lange, associate of Mr. Horne's, has personal charge of the dyeing and cleaning department. The laundry has added rug cleaning to its field and with this new venture they are meeting with success.

Early Bank Charters—First Banking Law—National Bank Act—First Langlade County Bank—The Bank of Antigo—Langlade National Bank—The First National Bank—The Fidelity Savings Bank—Elcho, Neva, White Lake and Phlox Banks—Comparison 1881-1922.

The Territorial Legislature of Michigan granted a charter to the Bank of Wisconsin at Green Bay in 1834. (Before Wisconsin was detached from Michigan Territory.) This bank was in existence until 1838, when upon demand it was liquidated.

Bank charters were granted to the Miner's Bank of Dubuque, Ia., then in Wisconsin Territory, the Bank of Milwaukee and the Bank of Mineral Point at the Wisconsin Territory Legislature's first session.

Louis Grignon, Green Bay, kin of Charles De Langlade, possessed the first bank bills in Wisconsin. No doubt, they were for service with the British in the War of 1812.

The first general banking law in Wisconsin was adopted in 1852 and has since been frequently amended. All changes are made by the legislature without submission to the electorate.

The National system of banking was organized by law in 1863. The first monetary system was established in the United States by an act of Congress on April 2, 1792. First coinage began at the government mint at Philadelphia. The single gold standard, as a unit of value, was adopted in 1873. State and National banks are required to keep on hand a certain per cent of their deposits to meet all ordinary drafts and such special emergencies as may arise.

LANGLADE COUNTY'S FIRST BANK.

The first bank in Langlade County was organized as a private institution in 1881 by L. D. Moses, pioneer Antigo merchant. This bank was located just east of what is now A. A. Lueck's Drug Store. It was called The Langlade County Bank. L. D. Moses was president and Irvin Gray, later an employee of the First National Bank, was cashier.

The deposits never exceeded six thousand dollars and the bank possessed no capital stock.

H. C. Humphrey of Sheboygan Falls and F. W. Humphrey of Shawano purchased the bank from its original owners in 1883 and continued it under the same name and as a private institution.

In February, 1888, the Langlade County Bank was re-organized with a capital stock of $30,000. C. S. Leykom was chosen President, Louis Mendlik, Vice-President and H. C. Humphrey, Cashier. Few changes took place until its re-organization as a National Bank in August, 1901, when it was changed to The Langlade National Bank.

THE LANGLADE NATIONAL BANK.

The capital stock of the Langlade County Bank was increased $20,000 to $50,000 when it was made a National Bank. J. F. Albers was chosen president and H. C. Humphrey as cashier. In January, 1902, H. C. Humphrey resigned and O. P. Walch was elected cashier. Mr. Walch had entered the employ of the Langlade County Bank when he was a lad of fifteen in 1889 and grew with the institution. In 1918, Mr. Walch was forced to retire from the cashiership, because of ill health. He was chosen second Vice-President. Upon the death of F. J. Finucane, he was made first Vice-President, in 1919. F. G. Wanek of Menominee, Mich., was elected cashier in July, 1918.

The Langlade National Bank increased its capital stock to $100,000 in January, 1920. Its Trust Department was created in 1919, immediately after the state legislature had passed a law allowing this department to be associated with national banks in Wisconsin. Officers at present are: President—Dr. I. D. Steffen, Vice-President—O. P. Walch; Cashier—F. G. Wanek; Assistant Cashiers—N. J. Raiche and W. J. Schultz; Board of Directors—O. P. Walch, John Manser, John Olk, I. D. Steffen, W. A. Grant, Robert W. Zobel and Charles H. Avery.

THE BANK OF ANTIGO.

In January, 1888, D. E. Jones, Col. Woodard, Dr. A. H. Solliday and Amos Baum of Watertown, Wis., with E. N. Mellor organized The Bank of Antigo. Dr. Solliday was elected president, E. N. Mellor, vice-president and Amos Baum, cashier. The bank was located east of Cody's Shoe Store on Fifth Avenue and progressed without a mishap until the following summer of 1888, when $5,500.00 was stolen from it. The discrepancy was met by the stockholders. In 1890 The Bank of Antigo was closed, its affairs were liquidated and depositors were paid one hundred cents on the dollar.

On January 6, 1891, the name, books, good will, etc., of the bank were sold to H. G. Borgman, C. B. McDonald, Ed. Daskam, C. F. Smith and three Watertown, Wis., men. The capital stock was restored to $25,000 in cash. H. G. Borgman was elected President, C. B. McDonald, Vice-President, and L. E. Buckman, Cashier. In 1897, the bank again closed its doors but to the credit of the stockholders, the depositors were paid one hundred cents on the dollar.

L. D. Moses, pioneer Antigo merchant and first banker, together with Oshkosh men, organized the First State Bank of Antigo in April, 1898, using that name until a First National Bank charter could be secured from the government.

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

A charter for the First National Bank was secured August 31, 1898, and the institution was commenced with a capital stock of $50,000. L. D. Moses was its first President and Fred T. Zentner, its first cashier. Its growth was phenomenal. In January, 1901, W. B. McArthur of Waupaca was elected cashier to succeed Mr. Zentner. In 1902, January, Leander Choate was elected President and upon his death J. C. Lewis, Vice-President, was chosen President. He remained as President until 1919, when he was selected Chairman of the Board of Directors, Dr. F. V. Watson being chosen President. H. B. Kellogg was chosen president of the bank after Dr. F. V. Watson resigned.

In August, 1910, the First National Bank increased its capital stock to $100,000 and its surplus to $20,000. W. B. McArthur resigned as cashier in January, 1919, and was succeeded by J. E. Enquist of Shell Lake, Wis., who was followed by W. W. Smith, Jr., of Sleepy Eye, Minnesota, who assumed this position in July, 1919.

THE FIDELITY SAVINGS BANK.

The Fidelity Savings Bank was organized January 20, 1909, under the general banking laws of Wisconsin and the United States, with a capital stock of $50,000. Its first officers were Henry Hay—President; Anton Molle—Vice-President; Walter Daskam—Cashier. The Board of Directors consisted of the three named together with J. A. Rudolph, John Benishek, C. S. Pierce of Milwaukee and W. J. Mattek.

The Fidelity Savings Bank has had exceptional success and has always been commandeered by a strong official roster. In June 1919, the bank purchased the building in which it is located. The Fidelity Savings Bank building was completely remodeled in the fall of 1919. Walter Daskam, Cashier of the Fidelity Savings Bank has served continually as such since its organization. The members of the Board of Directors are Anton Molle, Vice-President; J. A. Rudolph; J. R. McQuillan, President; Henry Hay and Walter Daskam, Cashier.

FARMERS' STATE BANK OF PHLOX.

The Farmers' State Bank of Phlox was organized June 1, 1920. The capital stock was $10,000 and remains the same. The present officers, also the original officers of the bank are as follows: President—W. B. Kramer, Vice-President—M. J. Ellstad, Cashier—A. J. Reinert. Members of the Board of Directors consist of the three named officers together with George Jansen, W. B. Dresser and W. F. Meagher. The bank is located at Phlox, Norwood township. Its present deposits are approximately $38,000. Its surplus is about $1,500 and undivided profits were $887.14 at the close of business January, 1922.

NEVA FARMERS STATE BANK.

The Neva Farmers State Bank was organized October 1, 1915, with a capital stock of $10,000. Its first officers were: President—W. J. Mattek, I. D. Wood—Cashier and John F. Schultz—Vice-President. The members of the first Board of Directors were: W. J.

Mattek, John F. Schultz, Fred Schwartz, Anton Gallenberg, August Carlson, Fred L. Berner, and A. J. Nowotny. The present officers are: President—John F. Schultz, Fred Schwartz, Anton Gallenberg, Fred L. Berner, Gust Schmidt and Henry Buboltz. The present deposits amount to $199,000. The surplus was $14,000 and the undivided profits $500 in February, 1922. The resources are approximately $220,000. This bank is located at Neva, in Neva township.

WHITE LAKE STATE BANK.

The White Lake State Bank was organized in 1921 with a capital of $15,000. The first officers have been retained to date as follows: President—W. D. Cavers, Vice-President—E. G. Woodford; Cashier—V. H. John; who with Peter O'Connor and W. W. Gamble, constitute the Board of Directors. Present deposits are $75,687.55. Surplus is $1,000, undivided profits $337.90 and resources $93,227.21. The bank is located at White Lake village, Langlade township.

STATE BANK OF ELCHO.

The State Bank of Elcho is located in the thriving and bustling village of Elcho, Elcho township, and was organized April 3, 1912, with a capital stock of $10,000. Actual business was commenced April 9, 1913.

The first officials of the bank were: Charles W. Fish, President; W. D. Burton, Vice-President; George H. Bauer, Cashier. Original directors were: Charles W. Fish, W. D. Burton, John F. Singer, L. W. Filyes, Charles Beard, Julius Follstad, R. P. Guptil; E. S. Tradewell and Bernhard Follstad. The present officers are: John F. Singer—President; O. C. Fish—Vice-President; George H. Bauer—Cashier. Present directors are: Charles W. Fish, John F. Singer, Charles Beard, Julius Follstad and O. C. Fish.

Capital stock is now $10,000 with surplus and undivided profits aggregating $8,000.00.

Antigo's three banking institutions have a combined total capital stock of $250,000. Their total resources amounts to over three millions of dollars. Add to this the resources of the State Bank of Elcho, the Neva State Bank, The Farmers State Bank of Phlox and the White Lake State Bank and sum up the deposits of the banking institutions of the county and an idea of the volume of business and accumulated wealth in Langlade County can be gained.

The total amount of surplus and undivided profits of Antigo banks at the close of business, December 31, 1921, was $157,265.23.

Today the reader can carry money or check to any corner of the world. Money can be deposited with a certainty that it is safe and that your bank deposit slip will be honored thirty days or a year later as it pleases you. This is a contrast to conditions in early days, when banking laws were less stringent and when much of the commerce was through the medium of farm produce. Langlade County official orders, at the time of the organization of the Langlade County Bank, were worth but eighty cents on the dollar.

Courts, Laws, Lawyers

First Term Circuit Court—Judge George H. Meyers—First Circuit Court Case—First Jury Trial—First Murder Case—Early Criminal Cases—County Court—The Henry Still Murder—Court at Shedd's Store—Municipal Court Act—Judge F. J. Finucane—Judge J. W. Morse—First Grand Jury.

Langlade County, when organized in 1880, was placed in the 10th Wisconsin Judicial Circuit. The first Circuit Court records are very meagre. George H. Meyers of Appleton, Outagamie County, was the first Circuit Judge of Langlade County. Circuit Court cases of importance were not heard in Antigo until the March term of 1883.¹

The first Circuit Court session was held in the old frame court house. Formal announcement of its opening was made by Sheriff Charles Herman. Dr. D. S.

Graham vs. Emma Graham. The decree was granted upon grounds of desertion. The third action was Ernest Roseberg vs. Daniel Pillsbury. A change of venue was granted and the case was taken to Marathon County.

THE FIRST JURY TRIAL.

The law suits mentioned previously in this chapter were trivial actions, only important because they were the first of their kind to occur in Langlade County.

THE FIRST LANGLADE COUNTY COURT HOUSE

Where the first Circuit Court session was held in 1883. Hon. George H. Meyers was then sitting as Circuit Judge.

Olmsted, first Circuit Court Clerk, produced his commission and began the task of keeping and preparing records of proceedings and determinations of the court.

The first official Langlade County Circuit Court seal is still in use. It represents justice. A sword and dagger are crossed in the background. The outline of an open book appears in the fore.

FIRST CASE.

The first Circuit Court case was a land ejectment action, Gabe Bouck vs. S. A. Coleman. It was heard and disposed of March 27, 1883. In its wake came the first divorce action in Langlade County—Daniel

The fourth case ever tried was not an insignificant controversy. This was the first action in the county demanding a jury. The contending parties were prominent in the early history of the county.

Henry Mitchell of Milltown,² Norwood township, was suing J. W. Morse, later County Judge, for slander. At a town meeting in Norwood Mr. Morse was charged with having said: "Henry Mitchell was a robber and swindler, who took $300 from Hutchinson township." Mr. Mitchell asked $5,000 damages.

The action was filed in Shawano County as Norwood was then a part of Shawano County. On June 30, 1881, by court order the place of trial was moved from Shawano to Antigo. Judge George H. Meyers sat in the case. Mr. Mitchell, the plaintiff, was a millwright and farmer. He was represented by Collins & Pearse, Appleton lawyers. J. W. Morse was defended by George W. Latta, pioneer Antigo Attorney. Witnesses called were: F. Topping, R. Vaughn, Charles Herman, N. Sennsenbrenner, C. Schroeder, P. Schweitzer, S. D. Chappel, A. Boetke, G. W. Jurret, C. W. Moss, Geo. W. Bemis, J. J. Simpson and W. Haffenbecker. Eli Waste was then Court Commissioner. J. W. Goodwin, the Jury foreman, made the following statement when a verdict was reached: "We, the jury, find for the defendant." The plaintiff paid costs amounting to $174.44. The verdict was reached March 28, 1883. D. S. Olmsted was then Clerk of the Court.

THE FIRST LARCENY CASE.

January 11, 1884, Adolph Tuekurky was sentenced to three years in the state penitentiary at hard labor, being convicted of larceny.

THE FIRST MURDER TRIAL.

The first murder case brought to the attention of the Langlade County Circuit Court was during the March term of 1886. Mrs. Mary Chadek of Reeve (Deerbrook) was charged with killing her husband, Thomas Chadek. Monday, November 30, 1885, Dr. J. H. Dawley, Antigo physician, was called to attend Mrs. Chadek, who was badly wounded. Her husband was dead from revolver shots. Mrs. Chadek maintained that her husband shot her and killed himself. She was held for murder, however. George W. Latta, her Attorney, secured a change of venue. The case was heard in Milwaukee Circuit Court. District Attorney J. H. Trever was assisted in the prosecution by Attorney Wm. Kennedy, of Appleton. Mrs. Chadek was acquitted.

LOWELL A. WINN MURDER TRIAL.

While the Chadek murder trial was the first to secure the attention of Langlade County courts, it was not until the fall of 1889, when the first murder case demanding a jury was held in Langlade County. Lowell A. Winn was charged with murdering Thomas Coats—the culmination of a liquor debauché in a saloon located where Muttart-McGillan Company is now in business, (L. Krom Building.) Albert De Foy, bartender, refused Winn several times when the latter demanded whiskey, during the afternoon of October 23, 1889. Winn, enraged, returned in the evening, engaged De Foy in a quarrel, which resulted in the shooting of Thomas Coats. Mortally wounded, Coats incriminated Winn in a dying statement to District Attorney George L. Schintz. Winn, charged with first degree murder, was acquitted. He was tried again on a charge of assault with intent to kill, and was declared guilty. He was sentenced to serve seven years at Waupun, but he was released before his full time was up.

AN EARLY CRIMINAL CASE.

September 28, 1888, Peter Becker made a complaint before Justice J. W. Wines, charging James Collins with wilfully and feloniously assaulting him with a double bitted axe. Becker suffered a disabled right arm. The case was somewhat similar to the Lowell A. Winn case. Becker refused to give Collins a drink of whisky. Collins, an indigent person, demanded a jury trial. He was represented by Attorney J. E. Martin, appointed by Judge Geo. H. Meyers. District Attorney George L. Schintz represented the state. On March 19, 1889, Collins was arraigned and was found guilty of intent to maim. He received this sentence: "Confinement in the common jail from 12 o'clock noon this day for one calendar month." By the court—March 28, 1889.

COURT AT SHEDD'S STORE.

The early lawyers of Langlade County had much to contend with. They were usually not over supplied with financial strength, but possessed much energy. They would often walk miles in response to the call of a client. Rough roads, trails, crossing swamps and wading streams were the usual difficulties they confronted.

The fees of the pioneer lawyers would probably provoke a smile from the modern Attorney-at-Law. A complete administrator's report could be made for the princely sum of three dollars. Cases of great importance were conducted for but a few dollars. The early lawyers possessed a self-reliant spirit and a keen ingenuity that made them formidable and dramatic as trial lawyers. Cases in pioneer times did not extend over many months. Victories were won swiftly or defeat came suddenly. The battles between the opponents would bring out all the old pioneers who took delight in hearing the sarcasim and humor of the lawyers.

In the early days local disputes were usually settled in the township "court." Henry Mitchell and Ross Young of Norwood township had an argument in which Mitchell charged Young with making certain remarks about his honesty and character as a citizen. The dispute was apparently ended when Young apologized. Mitchell would not be satisfied as he was confident his humiliation had not been overcome by the personal retraction. A law suit resulted. J. W. Morse, pioneer Justice of the Peace and Judge presided at the "court" held in the Charles Shedd store in Norwood township. George Bemis was chosen to act as counsel for Mr. Young. "Doc" Olmsted, picturesque Justice and pioneer, was the Attorney for Mitchell. The case was dismissed by Judge Morse who gave the participants a lecture on the duties of good citizens. Mr. Young apologized to Mr. Mitchell by saying, "I am sorry, but every bit of it was the gospel truth." It was an apology with a string attachment.

THE NOTED STILL-POLAR MURDER.

All of the citizens of Langlade County were startled when news reached them that Henry Still, an esteemed resident of the Township of Gagen had been murdered by Barney Polar. Many conflicting stories have been told about the murder. According to a statement attributed to Louis Motzfeldt of Gagen township, the unfortunate Mr. Still met his death after he had refused to give Polar whisky from a jug of the drink that Polar was said to have brought from Shawano the same day for Mr. Still. Mr. Still refused to give Mr. Polar any whisky and at ten o'clock Tuesday evening, June 12, 1883, Motzfeldt, who lived in the rooms adjoining those of Mr. Still (the building was owned by Mr. Motzfeldt) was awakened by what he thought was the report of a gun. He rushed into the rooms of the Still family and found Mrs. Still—a squaw—crying and moaning that Barney Polar had killed her husband. The murderer, however, never was apprehended. He lurked about Motzfeldt's place in the woods the following day, a menace to all citizens about, but made his escape.

As soon as the news spread to Antigo that Polar had fled a posse consisting of Attorney Bliss, Walter Dawley, Geo. W. Hill, and many others went to Rice Lake, "armed to the teeth" to apprehend the criminal, but by the time they had reached the vicinity of the crime, Polar was no doubt well on his way to a place of safety.

July 6, 1883, Supervisor Duchac presented the following memorial to the Governor, which was adopted on motion:

"We, the County Board of Langlade County, do hereby most respectfully petition his honor the Governor of the State of Wisconsin that he offer a reward (according to law in such cases provided) for the arrest of Charles Polar, who murdered Henry Still on the 12th day of June, 1883, in the Town of Gagen, Langlade County, and who is at large and supposed to be in the woods of Shawano County. The county has already spent considerable money to effect the arrest of said Polar. He has, before and since the murder of H. Still threatened to take the lives of other persons in that section of the state; that he is a desperate character and should be captured as soon as possible and the intervention of your authority is most earnestly requested.

County Board of Supervisors of Langlade County."

The petition was recognized by Gov. Jeremiah M. Rusk, but nevertheless Still's murder went unavenged as Barney Polar was never found."

COUNTY COURT.

The first term of County Court was held in the hall over Niels Anderson's store. J. W. Morse, builder of the log jail of 1881, was the first County Judge. The first case was an application for letters of guardianship by B. F. Hall. The guardianship was to J. H.

Hall, Sara J. Hall, Charles E. Hall, Benjamin Hall and Solon Hall, Jr. The letters were issued July 16, 1881. Bondsmen for the guardian were Julius Herman and Niels Anderson. The guardian died shortly afterward and the estate was settled between the heirs.

ADOPTION CASE—SECOND.

The second case, February 2, 1882, was an adoption. Jesse Maud Jacobs, "whose father was dead and mother supposed to be" was adopted by Martin Weatherwax. No testimony was taken. The third case occurred June 11, 1882. In November, 1882, the fourth case was heard. The fifth case was a petition and order, without report of physicians, placing a man in the Outagamie Insane Asylum. On March 27, 1883, the first letters of administration were issued in Langlade County. It was three years after the court was organized that the first estate was probated.

Judge J. W. Parsons served longer than the combined terms of his predecessors. During the twenty-two years of his regime, 2,311 cases have been disposed of. Three hundred sixty cases were heard by the first County Judges, J. W. Morse, J. E. Martin, Eli Waste, A. C. Conway and Michael G. Flanagan.

3. Barney Polar hid in the forests and was protected by Indians, who befriended him. When years passed he came from his seclusion frequently. He died at an advanced age in the spring of 1914 and is buried in the Polar cemetery in Ainsworth township, near Pearson. The house where Henry Still was murdered still stands, a monument to forgotten days. It is located on the east side of the Military Road, Section 26, Township 35, Range 12 East, Forest County.

County Court is held in the court house building at Antigo in the northwest room on the second floor.

HON. F. J. FINUCANE

Who was elected first Municipal Judge of Langlade County after the creation of that Court in 1891.

MUNICIPAL COURT ACT OF 1891.

The Municipal Court was created by Chapter 96, Laws of 1891. It is composed of two branches—Upper and Lower Municipal Court. The Upper branch has jurisdiction equal and concurrent with Circuit Court in all cases except homicide and crime and in all civil actions in which the sum sought does not exceed $100,000 exclusive of interest and costs. This court has jurisdiction over all actions brought for the breach of any recognizance returned or given in it.

Circuit Court Jury Commissioners act for Municipal Court also. Chapter 320 of the Laws of 1921 changed the term of Municipal Judge from four to six years, taking effect after the April, 1923, election. Hon. F. J. Finucane was the first Municipal Judge. The present Municipal Judge, Hon. Arthur Goodrick was appointed by Governor E. L. Philipp after the death of Hon. T. W. Hogan. Judge Goodrick was the unanimous choice of the Langlade County Bar Association. He has since been elected to the bench.

Municipal Court is held in the court room, third floor, of the court house. The private office of Municipal Judge is west of the Court Room. Municipal Court was first held in the Jaekel Building (M. Krom store building) when the court was established.

THE FIRST GRAND JURY.

The first Grand Jury of Langlade County was selected November 30, 1920, following a conference between Judge Arthur Goodrick, District Attorney A. N. Whiting and City Superintendent of Schools R. A. Brandt. The selection of a grand jury was considered the best means of clearing the local atmosphere of prohibition law violations. It had a moral benefit. Jurors were selected from the following petit list: Anton Schultz, W. B. McArthur, John G. Prokupek, Joseph Jirtle, N. R. Babcock, Al. Duchac, L. H. Hilton, August Vogel, W. J. Gallon, W. J. Herbst, F. D. Leavens, L. D. Hartford, L. C. Sorenson, William Shank, F. W. Ophoven, L. E. Farnham and A. N. Anderson. The jury convened December 6, 1920, and received instructions from Judge Goodrick. Thirteen indictments were returned against liquor dealers and "bootleggers." The grand jury adjourned December 27, 1920.

The citizens of Langlade County are ever peaceful and law abiding, willing to be neighborly and live happy and contented. They are on an average progressive, thrifty and industrious. Ready to defend the right they are equally willing to condemn the wrong to the extent of taking up arms for the upholding of right, if in the defense of their country, such must be.

Langlade County has nobly performed its duty in time of distress, when war, rebellion or insurrection against the peace and civil dignity of our commonwealth has imperiled national respect.

Langlade County, or the territory comprising it, has actively participated in at least three of the seventeen American wars. They were French-Indian War of 1756, the Spanish-American War of 1898, and the World War, 1914-1919.

Long before Langlade County was organized, years before the Northwest territory was legally defined and when the French had control of Wisconsin territory, bands of Indians roamed within the present limits of Langlade County. Charles De Langlade, noted leader of the French and Indians in their battles with the British and colonial troopers, drew recruits from within Langlade County.

The force under command of De Langlade, besides the French, was composed of Ottawas, Chippewas, Menominees, Winnebagoes, Pottawottamies, Hurons and Wyandotts and perhaps others. This force defended the French fort Du Quesne against the English and Colonists under the leadership of General Braddock in 1754 and included within the ranks were Indians from the territory now known as Langlade County. They were, no doubt, Chippewas, Menominees or Pottawottamies. Thus the military history of Langlade County begins and it has since been one of loyalty, faith and gratitude to country.

THE GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC.

The John A. Kellogg Post No. 78, G. A. R., was organized by District Commander J. H. Woodnorth of Waupaca, May 15, 1883, and was named in honor of General John A. Kellogg of Wausau. Charter members were: W. H. Blinn, B. F. Dorr, S. W. Chamberlain, William Brainard, John A. Long, F. M. Sherman, Henry Smith, John B. Bruner, A. L. Russell, Edward Daskam, Charles Beadleston, Edward R. Dudley and H. Springstead. First officers were: Commander, W. H. Blinn; Senior Vice Commander, B. F. Dorr; Junior Vice Commander, S. W. Chamberlain; Surgeon, J. A. Long; Officer of Day, F. M. Sherman; Quartermaster, J. Beemer; Adjutant, H. Smith; Quartermaster Sergeant, Abel Russell.

Civil War veterans are dying fast. The once flourishing membership of the John A. Kellogg Post has dwindled down to fifteen comrades. October 2, 1921, the John A. Kellogg Post No. 78 elected Robert M. Dessureau first honorary member for "meritorious devotion to the G. A. R." He is the youngest honorary member in the United States and one of two in Wisconsin.

June, 1913, and again in June, 1921, the State Encampments of the Grand Army of the Republic and auxiliary patriotic organizations were held in Antigo. Distinguished visitors were present at both conventions and were accorded splendid receptions. W. S. Carr and R. C. Dempsey were General Chairmen of the 1913 and 1921 encampments respectively.

VETERANS OF THE CIVIL WAR.

Daniel Webster once said, "When my eyes shall turn to behold for the last time the sun in Heaven, may I not see it shining on the broken and dishonored fragments of a once glorious union." He could see that the conflict between the North and the South was irrepressible. The three-cornered presidential fight of 1860 in which Abraham Lincoln, Republican, who maintained that slavery must not only be curtailed, but destroyed, was elected, forced the issue squarely before the American people. The South supported John C. Breckenridge of Kentucky. Stephen A. Douglas, formidable debater and opponent of Lincoln in the election, was the choice of the moderate Democrats. When the storm broke this distinguished statesman rushed to Abraham Lincoln and pledged unswerving allegiance to the Union. Lincoln's words,

"The nation cannot exist half slave and half free," was a warning to those who sought to perpetuate slavery at the expense of a united nation. When Fort Sumter was fired upon in the harbor of Charleston, S. C., April 12, 1861, the entire North was solidified into one unit, whose purpose was to save at all costs the union of the states. President Abraham Lincoln called for 75,000 volunteers April 15, 1861, and declared the coast of the Confederacy to be under blockade. Young men rushed to the colors in the defense of their country and for four years the world looking on, stood aghast as the contending armies of the Blue and Gray struggled. Langlade County was then a wilderness and had but few settlers at the outbreak of the war.

Twenty years later the Grand Army of the Republic became a vital factor in the village of Antigo. W. H. Blinn was its first Commander. The following Civil War veterans are now or have been members of the John A. Kellogg Post No. 78, G. A. R. The date of their enlistment, the date of their honorable discharge, and the unit in which they enlisted are given also:

GRAND ARMY MONUMENT.

THE SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR.

Langlade County was still in its infancy when President William McKinley issued a call for 125,000 volunteers on April 23, 1898, after the blowing up of the ill-fated Maine in Havana harbor. Yet Langlade County citizens were ready to do their part. Ed Kiefer enlisted at Portage, Wis., in the 3rd Wisconsin Infantry; John McGinley enlisted in Co. D., 49th

Iowa Volunteer Infantry, Waterloo, Ia. He saw service in Cuba and was mustered out at Savannah, Ga., May 13, 1899. George Doersch served in a South Dakota regiment; Frank Lyons served with Co. L of the U. S. Cavalry; Dan O'Brien served in the 34th Michigan Regiment with an Ironwood Co.; John Molitor served with Company "E" of the 2nd Wisconsin Volunteers, a Fond du Lac unit; Charles Clark served with "G" Co., 2nd Wisconsin Volunteers from Appleton, Wis. Both Mr. Clark and Mr. Mollitor soldiered in Porto Rico. Willis Otis enlisted January 10, 1899, with Co. "D" of the 4th U. S. Infantry. He was mustered out in 1901 after service in the Philippines. Fred Springstead enlisted in May, 1898.

FRED SPRINGSTEAD—HERO.

Fred Springstead, son of Mrs. Jane Springstead, of Antigo, was the only Langlade County man to be killed during the Spanish-American War. He was killed in action August 1, 1898, before the entrenchments of Cavite, P. I. by a sniping sharpshooter. He died while fighting with "D" Company of the 1st Colorado Volunteers.

FRED SPRINGSTEAD

The first Langlade County soldier to be killed in action, while fighting for his Country. He enlisted in Colorado during the Spanish-American War.

A bust of Fred Springstead now appears in the state capitol, Denver, Colorado, as young Springstead was the first Colorado soldier to fall.

His military funeral at the Antigo M. E. Church, March 29, 1900, was the largest gathering that had to that day ever assembled to pay homage to a Langlade County hero.

ANTIGO GUARD COMPANY.

After the Spanish-American War a military unit known as the Antigo Guard Company was organized, March 21, 1901. Officers chosen were: Captain, George H. Doersch; 1st Lieut., William C. Ross; 2nd Lieut., Thomas F. Thompson; Secretary, R. C. Lillie.

The muster roll of enlisted men was as follows: H. Baldwin, Herman Brecklin, Peter P. Chadek, F. C. Duchac, A. E. Dove, F. Doner, C. W. Frick, George Fehring, R. H. Ford, W. P. Fessenden, P. H. French, P. H. Flanagan, J. W. Flanagan, Will Flynn, Ernest Fondow, Walter Guile, E. L. Goff, J. H. Hopkins, William H. Hackett, E. D. Humphrey, Paul Heller, H. B. Heinemann, Colon Hutchinson, F. G. Hoffman, Alfred Klock, August Kurz, John Kebble, A. B. Kramer, Harry F. Kohl, Otto Molle, J. W. Mader, J. P. McHale, C. H. Rice, R. Rounds, F. J. Rhode, C. W. Rock, Julius Strauch, Max Steinhauer, G. H. Wanninger and Louis Zern.

The roll was augmented by new members during the six months following organization. The company was reorganized with a change in officers. Thomas Thompson, J. H. Hopkins, D. Moyer served as Captains successively. When the company disbanded, because it was not possible to be admitted into the Wisconsin National Guards, it had the following officers: Captain, J. H. Hopkins; 1st Lieut., Harry F. Kohl, and 2nd Lieutenant, Otto F. Berner.

THE ANTIGO GUARDS OF 1901.

Camping on the banks of the Eau Claire River.

The old Antigo Guards was a live unit, much more so than the Antigo Light Guards of 1888, who disbanded shortly after their organization. Many an Independence Day celebration and sham battle were given by the Antigo Guards. The Battle of Crocker's Landing was a thrilling mock battle staged by Antigo Guards at a July 4th celebration.

THE 14TH WISCONSIN REUNION.

The old 14th Wisconsin Regiment of Civil War fame held a reunion in Antigo in June 1902. Antigo was lavishly decorated. A welcome address was given the veterans by Mayor Thomas W. Hogan. Beautiful arches were erected at Edison, Clermont, and Superior streets and near the depot. Antigo people enrolled at the reunion headquarters were: George Jessie, "A" Co., 14th Wis.; Lieut. C. M. Beattie and wife; Edward Daskam, "G" Co.; M. V. Elliott, "H" Co., and E. Galligan, "H" Co., all of the 14th Wisconsin.

ANTIGO BOYS WITH PERSHING AT BORDER.

Pancho Villa, bandit chieftain, in his desire to wage guerilla warfare against the United States, ransacked the border town of Columbus, New Mexico. President Wilson ordered General John J. Pershing into Chihuahua and other northern Mexican states in pursuit. State militia was called out to patrol the border and excitement was high. Langlade County boys in Co. L., Rhinelander, Oneida County military unit, were Louis Maybee, Archie and Curtis Carpenter of the city of Antigo, Charles Gehrke, Summit Lake, Oscar Hertell of Bass Lake, and Otto Staats. They returned home after eight months of border service, February 28, 1917. Truck drivers were necessary for border warfare and Bert Nixon, Lester Tosch, Ben Pliska and Ward Walsh enlisted in that branch of service.

RECRUITING FOR WORLD WAR.

When it became apparent that the United States had no alternative but to enter the war against Germany, a recruiting office was opened in Antigo. It was located in the rear of the Rogers-McCollister fruit store, Voight Bldg., and later located in the Manthey bldg., corner of Fifth Avenue and Edison Street.

Edward Cody, Postmaster, and Otto F. Berner were the men most influential in organizing plans for an Antigo military unit. They were working quietly on the matter as early as June, 1916.

First volunteers to sign the roll on April 6, 1917, were as follows: O. A. Miller, William H. Leslie, Mike Skibbins, George Kolerus, Orville Green, Ezra Knapp, John Gesiorek, George Chadek, Leland Mayotte, Henry Tenant, Leland A. Tollefson, Frank T. Lynde, Stanley Talarczyk, John Chadek, Edwin Walker, Edwin Menting, Richard Hugnin, Bill Now, Al Menting, F. M. Hopkins, Floyd Topping, E. Krauk, F. Stidel, Silas Baird, J. Sharon, Jr., Evan Martin, Otto F. Berner, Alex Skibba, Leo Mountain, Al Dixon, B. Hogan, A. McGregor, P. J. Sleeter, Hermis F. Dionne, Leo Bowens, William Bonier, Henry Edwards, Frank Schyzyski, Henry Kawalski, O. G. Brandow, Hugh Nelson, S. V. Noble, F. Leslie, Harold Huntoon, George Rabi-deau, Otto Weiher, John Shadick, Edwin Boettcher, James Schultz, J. B. Zodrow, Robert Mattmiller, J. H. Hopkins, Norman Preston, Merritt Reader, Raymond Lange, R. S. Griffith, George E. Brown, Ray Clegg, Daniel Hayes, George McArthur, John Maltby, John Wall, I. Hoffman, Will Rice, I. C. Green, D. O. Richter, George Edee, J. Churney, Charles Bonnell, W. C. Peterson, C. H. Anderson, Charles McArthur, Anton Bosacki, W. Neary, Dan Kehlnofer, Jerome Riley, Frank Luckowicz, John Cherek, William Reif, F. Bahr, E. G. Winters, Walter Lange, James Garvey, and Theodore Sloat.

ANTIGO MILITIA LEAGUE.

The Antigo Militia League was organized April 18, 1917, two weeks after war was declared. Henry Hay was elected President; Edward Cody, Vice President; Fred L. Berner, Secretary, and J. C. Lewis, Treasurer.

The object of the league was to promote the organization of an Antigo military unit; to give moral and financial aid to the unit in its embryo stages. An executive committee consisting of G. J. Quigley, R. B. Johns, S. B. Ullman, Fred L. Berner, and John Hanousek, was appointed. The Antigo Militia League applied for state aid for an armory under the Wilcox Law after John Hanousek, a member of the executive committee, purchased the Antigo Opera House and presented it to the city for an armory. This work, together with a great patriotic meeting, May 16, 1917, when Col. Guy D. Goff and General Charles King spoke and the organization of Company "G," 4th Wisconsin Regiment, practically completed the purpose of the Militia League.

The Antigo Militia League performed a commendable service in an anxious time in the history of Langlade County.

CITIZENS' TRAINING CAMP.

The Antigo Citizens' Training Camp, a home military unit, recognized in war on an equal status with the state militia, was organized October 26, 1917. A Board of Governors consisting of C. J. TeSelle, James Cody, S. B. Ullman, J. D. Mylrea, and Fred L. Berner was appointed. J. D. Mylrea was elected Captain, C. J. TeSelle, 1st Lieutenant, and Edward Faust, 2nd Lieutenant of the unit. Captain Mylrea resigned shortly after his selection. C. J. TeSelle then became Captain, Edward Faust, 1st Lieutenant, and Charles Cody, 2nd Lieutenant.

The Citizens' Training Camp drilled regularly and performed a service of importance at home. The organization took its oath and was inspected by a representative of the Adjutant General. No definite termination was made of the home guards, as they were called. Drill ceased when war ended.

COMPANY G, 4TH WISCONSIN.

The application for creating an Antigo military unit was forwarded to the Adjutant General, Orlando Holway, at once after the necessary volunteers had enlisted and other arrangements made. April 22, 1917, at the Antigo High School, sixty-five recruits were sworn into service as soldiers of Company G., 4th Wisconsin National Guard. Otto A. Miller was elected temporary Captain, Otto F. OTTO F. BERNER

Captain of the 107th Trench Mortar Battery, was 1st Lieutenant of the original Co. G. He was promoted October 16, 1918. Captain Berner enlisted April 21, 1917 as a private. He served overseas from February 17, 1918 to February 27, 1919 and participated in the Alsace defensive, Chateau-Thierry, Juvigny and Meuse-Argonne battles.

Lieutenant, and Vernon Quigley, temporary 2nd Lieutenant. Captain Miller was permanently commissioned May 17, 1917. Lieutenants Berner and Quigley were permanently commissioned July 12, 1917.

The new company drilled at the ball park in earnest from July 15, 1917, to August 11, 1917, when it was ordered to Camp Douglas, Wisconsin. Amid impressive scenes and farewells that were heart-rending, the boys entrained. Thousands of people were at the Antigo depot at seven o'clock that eventful morning to bid farewell to Langlade County's military unit. Who knew but what they would not return?

Company G conducted itself admirably at Camp Douglas, from which place it was ordered to Camp

McArthur, Waco, Texas (with the 32nd Division). The 4th, 5th, and 6th Wisconsin regiments were re-organized at Camp McArthur and Company G became the 107th Trench Mortar Battery.

107TH TRENCH MORTAR BATTERY.

The 107th Trench Mortar Battery was a unit of the 57th Field Artillery Brigade. Lieutenant Otto Berner was ordered to Ft. Sill, Oklahoma, to take a three months' field artillery course. The battery left Camp McArthur February 8, 1918, proceeded to Camp Merrit, N. J., and on February 16, 1918, boarded the U. S. S. President Grant and a day later sailed from New York harbor. They arrived at Brest, France, March 4, 1918. While Langlade County citizens were aware that the Antigo unit would sail soon, they did not know it had embarked from New York until notification of the unit's safe arrival at Brest was given out by the War Department.

From Brest the battery proceeded to Pontinazian Barracks and after a few days' rest marched to Camp de Coetquidan, near Guer, France. Some of the Antigo soldiers were ill and remained at Brest. Private Ora N. Tidd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Tidd of Neopit, Wisconsin, a member of the 107th, died at Brest in March, 1918. He was 26 years old at the time of his death. He enlisted July 18, 1917.

The 107th Trench Mortar Battery evacuated Camp de Coetquidan for the Alsace Sector, near the Swiss border, June 10, 1918. Captain Miller and Lieutenants Berner and Quigley returned May 10, 1918, to the 107th headquarters, after attending a trench mortar school at Langres en Marne. Lieut. M. V. Griscom of Chattanooga, Tennessee, had charge of the battery during their absence.

IN ALSACE—REESE SPARKS KILLED.

The 107th was in action in the Alsace Sector on June 29, 1918, and it was here that Reese Sparks fell fighting for his country. Reese Sparks, first Langlade County soldier to be killed in action, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Sparks of Olive Hill, Kentucky, and enlisted in the Antigo unit in June, 1917.

ALFT AND BALLARD KILLED.

The 107th Trench Mortar Battery was located in a French fort and attached to French Mortar Batteries while in the Alsace Sector. Here Joseph Alft and Thomas Ballard were killed by a premature explosion on July 8, 1918. Joseph Alft was the son of John Alft of Shawano, Wis. He enlisted April 23, 1917. Thomas Ballard was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ballard, Elton, Wis. He was born August 12, 1895, and enlisted May 6, 1917. John Baetz and Jackimo Gambino of Detroit, Michigan, were wounded by the same explosion.

AT CHATEAU THIERRY.

July 20, 1918, the 107th Trench Mortar Battery was ordered to Chateau Thierry and there participated in the Vesle River engagement. The unit used captured German trench mortars in the skirmish. The 107th was under fire from July 27 to August 23, 1918, while in this section. When not in the lines the men were engaged in burying the dead and in salvage.

CORPORAL L. A. TOLLEFSON KILLED.

In the Vesle River engagement, where the American army won undying glory by pushing the German army back for miles, Corporal Leland Tollefson was killed on August 17, 1918. He was delivering an important message to brigade headquarters in the Chateau Thierry Sector and sacrificed his life while on that duty. Corporal Tollefson was the son of Mrs. A. M. Tollefson and was born May 30, 1894.

IN THE ARGONNE FOREST.

August 25, 1918, the 107th moved north of Soissons, just previously captured by the French and Americans. September 15, 1918, the battery was ordered to the historic Argonne forest. The unit arrived at its destination September 24, 1918. The battery was split into two groups and assisted two French mortar batteries in the Argonne offensive, which was launched with a terrific attack upon the Germans September 26, 1918. The end of war was now in sight, as the German army was retreating all along the entire front.

107TH OFFICERS PROMOTED.

On October 1, 1918, Captain O. A. Miller was promoted to rank of Major and assigned to a trench mortar battalion. Fifteen days later Lieutenants Berner and Quigley were promoted to Captain and First Lieutenant respectively.

The 107th Trench Mortar Battery assisted the 89th Division Trench Mortar Batteries in a drive against the Germans at Bantherville, twenty miles northwest of Verdun, October 25, 1918. Thirteen days later, November 17, the Antigo unit left the front lines.

November 9, 1918, the 57th Field Artillery Brigade was ordered to Bar Le Duc because of a shortage of horses needed to haul battery equipment. The battery equipment of the 107th was disposed of at Vitrey in December, 1918, and the Langlade County soldiers were now ready to embark for America. Joy spread over the entire unit at the thought of home and loved ones. But it was a long wait ahead of the now seasoned veterans of the greatest war in history before they would trod on American soil.

The 107th was detained at Angers, France, in the early part of January, 1919. Angers is a short dis-

James A. Cody, Charles W. Fish, William H. Brown, C. J. TeSelle and Fred L. Berner, were in charge of the great celebration, program and parade. Langlade County made it a holiday such as the children of its citizens of the coming generations will ask questions.

Thousands of mothers, weary and overstrained because of war, sweethearts, wives, fathers, brothers and sisters besieged the passenger coaches of that historic train. The Antigo band struck up the tune "On Wisconsin" as the boys stepped from the train. Rousing cheers were given them from the huge mass of humanity. It was a day Langlade County will not forget. God had delivered back to the folks at home the soldiers who had bid farewell August 11, 1917. They marched to the Antigo Armory where John Hanousek had prepared a regular meal, "the kind mother makes," for them. And although Uncle Sam fed his soldiers the best, the 107th soldiers thought much more of "what mother cooked."

RETURN OF THE 107TH TRENCH MORTAR BATTERY
May 17, 1919, thousands of relatives and friends greeted the boys, who served in the World War, as they marched down Fifth Avenue, Antigo, Wis. Antigo has never since been in such gala attire. It was a notable event in the history of Langlade County.

tance from St. Nazaire and here the 107th was on detail duty until the early part of April, when orders to proceed to St. Nazaire for embarkation were given.

HOMeward BOUND.

April 20, 1919, the 107th boarded the U. S. S. Mercury and ten days later, April 30, 1919, landed at Philadelphia. The boys were mustered out of service at Camp Grant, Ill., on May 15, 1919, and arrived in Antigo on a special train at 11.30 a. m., May 17, 1919.

THE GREAT WELCOME HOME.

Never in the history of Langlade County will there be witnessed such a welcome as that accorded the valiant soldiers of the 107th Trench Mortar Battery. The flag-bedecked special train pulled into Antigo near noon. The citizens' committee, consisting of

TWO PROGRAMS.

After the monstrous parade, second to none in the county's history, was reviewed by civic leaders and Civil War veterans, two programs were given. The Armory program was presided over by Judge T. W. Hogan and that in the Beavers' Hall was presided over by Judge J. W. Parsons. Officers and men of the battery talked of their experiences and sang trench songs. When the program closed that evening the boys began at once to turn their attention to the arts of peace, and, like Cincinnatus, took up their tasks where they left off almost two years before.

THE COUNCIL OF DEFENSE.

The Langlade County Council of Defense was organized April 10, 1917, with the following membership chosen by the State Council of Defense: Chairman, Leonard Freiburger; M. T. Canfield, Food Administrator; C. J. TeSelle, Secretary; Agricultural Department, F. G. Swoboda; Transportation, G. J. Quigley; Banks, W. B. McArthur; Red Cross, Edward Cody; Labor, Edward Gibbons; Press, Fred L. Berner; Public Nurse, Elizabeth Cornish; Women, Mrs. H. V. Mills; Executive Committee, Leonard Freiburger, Edward Cody and C. J. TeSelle.

The Council of Defense had as its many duties registration of the Antigo Militia unit, supplying organization and expense for the war registration, encouraging food production and conservation, distribution of funds to various committees and aided in meeting all labor emergencies, promulgated ideals of loyalty and Americanism, furnished speakers to every Langlade County community in all war drives, co-ordinated the women organizations to war conditions, gave their support to the State Council of Defense in mobilization, executed the supply, distribution and welfare of labor in the county, acted to curb disloyalty and sedition, assisted U. S. secret service agents in a campaign of education among the few who were disloyal, provided for the protection of public health, assisted the federal government in floating the various loans and war drives, encouraged community and patriotic singing with the aid of rural and city schools, distributed wheat and corn seed in car lots with the aid of the county agent, the Farmers Co-operative store and Hirt Brothers Milling Company, cared for the food and fuel supplies of the county, aided War Savings Stamp and Red Cross drives, executed the Victory Fund drive, and received whole-hearted support from the public in the "war garden and back yard poultry flock" campaigns of 1917.

C. J. TeSelle, District Attorney, Edward Cody, Postmaster, and W. J. Gallon were the local committee that acted on all sedition charges.

The Langlade County Board unanimously approved the action of the Council of Defense and without solicitation appropriated money to aid it. The Council of Defense automatically ceased its work six months after armistice day. Thirty-four cases of disloyalty were reviewed by the organization. Apprehension of slackers was accomplished by the U. S. District Attorney through the local committee.

FIRST MEN TRANSPORTED.

The first men transported by the Council of Defense was November 1, 1917, when John Chadek, Charles Dean, William Schatschneider, Edward Boerner, Laddie Bierczynski and Earl Hodgson joined a group of volunteers at Rhinelander and proceeded to Texas.

HISTORIC POSTERS.

The Council of Defense was charged with registering every male inhabitant of draft age. Governor E. L. Philipp was anxious that Wisconsin be first to report complete registration. He sent the following wire to C. J. TeSelle through the State Council of Defense: "Every point must be worked out carefully in each precinct. Wisconsin must be first"—Melville, State Council of Defense.

The Langlade County Council then posted large cards everywhere bearing the words: "Work or Fight," "Register or go to Jail." The State Historical Society has one of each of the posters in its archives.

C. J. TeSelle was appointed Government Appeal Agent by President Wilson at the opening of the war and was honorably discharged March 31, 1919. He worked with the Board of Exemption.

FOUR-MINUTE SPEAKERS.

C. J. TeSelle, T. W. Hogan, J. W. Parsons, W. J. Gallon, Fred L. Berner, Arthur Goodrick, Henry Hay, Robert M. Dessureau, F. J. Finucane, Charles H. Avery, T. J. Reinert, A. N. Whiting, H. Morson, E. A. Morse, A. M. Arveson and F. G. Swoboda.

OTHER WAR ACTIVITIES.

Antigo had a Labor Bureau in charge of A. A. Garland and much was accomplished by it. The United States Public Service reserve was represented in Langlade County during the war by Edward Cody. A. M. Arveson had charge of the Boys' Working Bureau. Peter Krier had charge of the bureau for returning soldiers and sailors as early as December, 1918. The Community Labor Board consisted of the following members: Peter W. Krier, Charles W. Fish, Esther English, for employers; Fred W. Luebke and Miss Althea Wade for employes. Peter Krier was examiner and John H. Menting, junior examiner of the Antigo war employment office. County Fuel Administrators were: R. Koebke, James Cody and C. H. Avery successively. Food Administrators for Langlade County in order of service were: Charles Metcalf, M. T. Canfield, David Stewart and Mose A. Jansen. F. J. Finucane had charge of the war history work for the Wisconsin War History Commission in Langlade County. The County Non-War Construction Committee consisted of Endre Norem of Bryant, Leonard Freiburger and Mose Jansen of Antigo.

LEGAL ADVISORY BOARD.

The Langlade County Legal Advisory Board rendered efficient service gratuitous to drafted men in filling out questionnaires. The board had the following membership: Chairman, Henry Hay, Charles Avery and Arthur Goodrick. They were often assisted by other citizens, including members of the bar, school officials and ministers.

BOARD OF EXEMPTION—SELECTIVE SERVICE LAW.

The Selective Service Law, section four, authorized the creation of a Board of Exemption in each county in the State or one board for every thirty thousand inhabitants in a large city. The Board of Exemption of Langlade County was appointed by President Wilson, membership consisting of the following: J. C.

Lewis, Valentine P. Rath, Miss Carrie Collins, Fred Jacobus, Henry Hersant, Edward F. Buchen, Dr. J. C. Wright and F. J. Finucane (deceased).

The Board of Exemption had power to hear and determine, subject to review, all questions of exemption under the Selective Service Act and all questions or claims for including or discharging individuals from selective draft, made under rules and regulations prescribed by the President, except for persons who, under the provisions of the Selective Service Act, were legally exempt because of their being engaged in industry or agriculture found necessary to the maintenance of military forces and national interest during the emergency.

DRAFT PLAN CHANGED.

The original draft method was changed in September, 1917, and all future registrants were required to fill out questionnaires in which general questions relative to physical fitness, citizenry, divinity, military service, federal or municipal service, dependency, religious conviction against war, industrial and agricultural occupation and numerous other matters were answered.

Draft ages were extended to all youths who had attained twenty-one years of age between June 5, 1918, and August 24, 1918. Registration took place August 24, 1918.

THE BOARD OF EXEMPTION OF LANGLADE COUNTY.

Valentine P. Rath. Miss Carrie Collins. Henry Hersant. Dr. J. C. Wright.
J. C. Lewis. Fred Jacobus. Edward F. Buchen. F. J. Finucane.

The order of military liability of registrants was determined by lottery. The serial numbers of all registrants drawn for service were published in local papers. Notice was given at once to registrants. This list was often referred to as the "red ink list." The local Board of Exemption fulfilled the purpose of the Selective Service Law in leaving at home in national interest, married men who were actually supporting families.

September 12, 1918, all Langlade County male inhabitants not in service between the ages of eighteen and forty-five registered in accordance with a state executive proclamation.

THE LAST DRAFT.

November 11, 1918, news and rumors were current in Antigo that the armistice was signed. The local Board of Exemption was instructed to proceed, however, with mobilization of men who were ordered to embark for camps beginning with the five day period starting November 11. A telegram, as follows, was received by the local board: "Work of Local Boards will proceed uninterrupted." About four o'clock in the afternoon of November 11, 1918, a telegram was received at the local exemption board cancelling the last draft contingent that would in a few hours have been on "their way to camp" had not these words—"armistice signed—cancel draft," been received.

The Exemption Board thereupon gradually completed its work in the county. A total of 4,579 registrants were passed upon during its existence. The total registration on June 5, 1917, was 2,024; June and August, 1918, total registration in Langlade County was 180 men; September 12, 1918, 2,555 were registered. Of those registered in Langlade County 530 were accepted at camp, 611 were chosen for general service, 38 were classed as remediables, 47 were placed in limited service, 51 were disqualified from service, 680 were granted deferments because of dependency claims, 122 because of agriculture claims, and 20 because of industrial service.

VICTORY FUND.

The Langlade County Victory Fund Campaign, organized to consolidate all war drives without waste or unnecessary effort, into one great fund raising campaign, was launched July 14, 1918. The organization perfected to raise this fund was under the supervision of the Council of Defense of Langlade County. Officers and trustees held office for one year and directed the disbursement of funds upon orders approved by the Executive Committee. The total amount collected during the campaign was $33,506.98, of which $25,000 was collected by the time the armistice was signed. The first subscription was $25 by the Community Welfare Association. Charles W. Fish contributed the largest individual subscription of $500. With the exception of $1,349.25 used for remodeling the Armory, $334.02 appropriated for the homecoming celebration of the Langlade County Soldiers, $8,771.96 turned over to the local Red Cross Chapter, together with a small amount for current expenses, the balance was turned over to the state headquarters of the United War Work Campaign at Milwaukee. Organizations participating in the Victory Fund were Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., National Catholic War Council, K. of C., Jewish Welfare Board, War Camp Community Service, American Library Association and Salvation Army.

Headquarters of the Victory Fund were in the City Hall at Antigo, managed by Mose A. Jansen. The fund was capably supervised under the direction of the Chairman and Town Committees, a complete roster of which appears:

WOMEN AND THE WAR.

The great burden of the war fell upon the women back at home. They labored incessantly while their brothers, husbands, sons and sweethearts crossed the Atlantic and faced the foe on the battlefield. They were helpful in maintaining here in the county the necessary morale, courage and sense of responsibility to keep the home fires burning. The last farewell and the terrible suspense did not leave until November 11, 1919, when the vigil ceased. The women of Langlade County played their part at home and in service. Future generations should concede all honor to them.

Temperance, Prohibition

F. A. Deleglise, Radical Prohibitionist—Dry Regime of 1878-1885—The Fight of 1886—"The Blind Pig"—Good Templars Organize—Anti-Saloon League In Langlade County—County Prohibitionists in 1885—B. F. Dorr and Congressman W. T. Price—W. C. T. U.—Antigo Prohibition Club—The Prohibition County Ticket in 1884—Order of Camels—Moonshine Era Since Volstead Act—Breweries—Pioneer Rallies—The Law and Order Plea.

Hon. Francis A. Deleglise, radical Prohibitionist, inaugurated the first Prohibition movement in Langlade County. Mr. Deleglise was determined that not a drop of liquor should be sold in the village of Antigo. With this view in mind the first officers were chosen at the first election. The issue was not "repeal the 18th Amendment" or "liberalize the Volstead Act," but was whether the town board should grant retail liquor licenses or not. Antigo, as a village, was officially as dry as the great Sahara. Not until after incorporation as a city in 1885 was the first sale of liquor made under a municipal license.

While Antigo was legally dry it was many times actually wet during the prohibition regime of 1878 to 1885. A blind pig operated on the west bank of the Spring Brook in a log cabin. Another way to defeat the purpose of local prohibition was explained by James Smolk: "We had a tent where great excitement prevailed. Announcement was made that a bear would climb a pole and then dance inside the tent. A small fee was charged. Those who were admitted received a nip o' rye that took away th' glooms." J. C. Lewis tells how the purpose and intent of the prohibition law was defeated when a man hid his "likker" in the hollow of an old stump near the M. L. S. & W. depot. Any person desiring a drink would place a dime in a cup in the stump, dip in a pail for a glass of spirits and "go about your business." The proprietor was where he could witness his business from a distance. Thus the law was unjustly violated then as it is today.

Retail liquor licenses were granted in the city until 1886. In the spring election, April 6, 1886, the voters declared for "No license." The anti-liquor forces fought valiantly and honestly and won.

The opposition to the temperance folks worked earnestly and fairly and did not give up until the vote was counted. M. M. Ross was chosen Mayor. In the county election of 1886 the Prohibitionists put up a complete ticket. Not a man was elected. The Republicans charged the Prohibitionists with splitting their normal vote.

While Antigo was dry in 1886 Casino clubs flourished. Members in good standing were allowed beer and whisky, by applying at club headquarters. Whisky could also be secured from druggists. This privilege was abused then as it is today.

Antigo citizens voted overwhelmingly for license in 1887. From then until the enactment of the Volstead Act the city granted license. The question was frequently voted on since 1887, but each time went down to defeat. Many old saloon keepers went out of business when the Volstead Act was passed. The annual municipal license for operating near beer parlors in Antigo is $100.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Society was organized in Antigo in 1883. It became a force in the little community. Years later Friendship Union, W. C. T. U., was reorganized. It is still intact.

The Anti-Saloon League, active temperance organization, still fights on. It opposes attempts to liberalize the Volstead Act. The League was a force in Antigo before Prohibition became law. Its chief purpose was to secure restrictive temperance legislation.

F. C. Fuller was the leader of the Langlade County prohibitionists in 1885. The party opposed granting license and sought to defeat anti-prohibitionist candidates. They had a complete ticket in the county field.

Antigo Lodge No. 11, Good Templars, did much in pioneer days to create favorable public sentiment for prohibition. D. S. Olmsted, F. C. Fuller, Gus Lind, and A. B. Hanks were its leaders.

November 13, 1883, Rev. Father Cleary, noted Prohibition speaker, addressed a large crowd at the county court house. Father Cleary then organized a branch of the Catholic Total Abstinence Society of America.

The first members were: Hon F. A. Deleglise, Mike Hafner, John McGahn, John Hafner, Joseph, John, and Mike Kennedy and Marvin Maloney.

B. F. Dorr was probably a more ardent Prohibitionist than Hon. F. A. Deleglise. He energetically espoused the cause of temperance at all times, contributing many articles to the press. Responding to a letter from B. F. Dorr, Congressman W. T. Price of Black River Falls said: "The whole fight, Mr. Dorr, is an uphill one. We shall never succeed in destroying the traffic, but we can, and ought to lessen its baneful influence." Almost a half century has passed since then and National Prohibition has become the law of the land.

On April 2, 1888, a Prohibition Club was organized in Antigo. W. R. Brown, state organizer, presided at the first meeting, which initiated 42 members. Officers were: President, R. C. Dresser; Vice President, W. D. Badger; Secretary, Julia Bliss; Treasurer, E. P. Bridgeman.

TEMPERANCE TICKET OF 1884.

During the Blaine-Cleveland presidential campaign of 1884 Langlade County temperance leaders put the following ticket in the field: Treasurer, B. F. Dorr; Sheriff, John Goodwin; District Attorney, J. H. Trever; County Supt. of Schools, L. K. Strong; County Clerk, George Clithero; Register of Deeds, M. M. Ross; Clerk of Court, F. C. Fuller; Surveyor, G. W. Bliss; Coroner, John F. Saxe. The ticket was sometimes referred to as the "Third Party" ticket. J. H. Trever and M. M. Ross, successful nominees, were the only two on the ticket elected.

The Langlade County Prohibitionists have always been active at the polls, ever striving to elect men, who were proven leaders and supporters of the temperance movement.

THE ORDER OF CAMELS.

In 1920 the Grand Caravan, Order of Camels, an anti-Prohibition order, sent A. R. Diegle, Grand Secretary, of Milwaukee, to Antigo. He installed temporary officers of the Antigo Order of Camels. The first and only meeting was held in Skibba Hall.

THE MOONSHINE ERA.

Much was said before Prohibition relative to the evil environment of a saloon. All of that doubled cannot lessen the pernicious damage that the illicit traffic in moonshine, "sour mash," has accomplished. This home-made product has ruined many men, caused the death of many and has made law breakers out of those who manufacture it. It has brought disgrace and sadness into many a good home.

December 24, 1921, three federal Prohibition officers with Deputy Sheriff Harry Morse, went to Elton where Julius and Joseph Wurzer were alleged to have operated a moonshine still. The officers surprised the Wurzer brothers and Luther Pennington in a shack. In the commotion Julius Wurzer was killed. The officers were held on a charge of manslaughter. The case attracted national attention. It is now in the hands of the U. S. Eastern District Federal Court.

RESPECT THE LAW.

The many temperance organizations mentioned in this chapter have had their influence in not only turning men from the whisky glass, but they have also created a public sentiment in favor of civic virtue, cleanliness and sobriety in living—all of which the saloon did not aid. The temperance cause grew as it was based upon a noble purpose. The traffic that brought distress and degradation to thousands of people has been legally banished.

In this age we need organizations that will uphold law as it exists—men and women with red-blooded Americanism—those who are ready to stand by and defend a law and condemn the citizen who does not. Dissatisfaction with a law can be settled by the electorate through the ballot box, not through disrespect and defiance.

PIONEER TEMPERANCE RALLIES.

March 22, 1883, Theo. D. Kanouse, Appleton, Wis., spoke at the court house. No license advocates held a jubilee.

November 13, 1883, Rev. Fr. Cleary, noted Catholic Abstinence Leader, spoke at court house.

October 15, 1882, Hon. H. H. Woodmance, Prohibition candidate for Congress, spoke at court house.

October 27, 1890, Hon. B. E. Van Keuren of Oshkosh, Prohibition candidate for Attorney General, spoke in Antigo.

The last speech given by a Prohibition leader before the 18th amendment was made by John Strange of Neenah, ex-Lieut. governor. He spoke in the Antigo Opera House before a fair sized crowd.

THE ANTIGO BREWERY.

The Antigo Brewing Company was organized September 25, 1896, by Albert Koles, Frank Hanzel, Frank Riendl, Albert Fisch, Thomas Schmitz, John Kestly, William Krier, Joseph Hoffman, Max Hoffman and A. Jenss. The plant and office were located on south Edison street. Near beer was manufactured for a while after the 18th amendment was passed.

THE CITIZENS BREWERY.

The Citizens Brewing Company was incorporated September 15, 1899. John Sipek, Wencel Sipek, Frank Boyanowski, and Frank Cherf were the incorporators. John Benishek was one of the active men in this industry also. Articles of incorporation were amended June 6, 1907, and the capital stock was increased from $25,000 to $100,000. Chris Wunderlich, deceased, was then president of the concern. May 27, 1913, the name was changed to the Great Northern Manufacturing Company. The plant was located on Superior street north of the office. The office was at the intersection of Sixth avenue and Superior street.

CHAPTER XVII.

Meteorology

Coldest Season—Dryest Season—Warmest Season—Meteoric Phenomena—Weather Observers—Cyclones of 1881-1898-1922—Floods—Fires, 1880 to 1922.

The Elfreth family, Quakers of Pennsylvania, preserved a diary indicating the coldest weather since 1790 to be in 1812. The summer of 1816 is the coldest on record. Killing frosts were prevalent each month. June 16, 1816, a shepherd searched for his sheep in a blinding Vermont snow storm. The most appalling blizzard on record in the United States was in February, 1817.

The coldest winter in Langlade County was that of 1917-1918. Winter set in early in November and zero weather prevailed until April. The winter of 1899 was a hard one. Pioneers still living can recall days of biting cold then. Years before, in 1876, the early settlers on the Wolf River recall the long winter siege when mail carriers found it difficult to make their "stretches" between the stopping places.

The coldest day on record in Antigo was February 10, 1899, when the thermometer registered 40 degrees below zero. Woodsmen, trappers, and Indians declared it was dangerous to attempt outside work that day. The fall of temperature that day is without precedent in Langlade County.

The summer of 1915 is the coldest on record in Langlade County. Potatoes, corn and vegetables were frozen, especially in the lowlands. The summer of 1863 was very cold, but as Langlade County had but few settlers then, every one of whom were sturdy prospectors, adventurers and land hunters, little is known of it. The settlers were: Hi Polar, Dan Gagen, Henry Strauss, Louis Motzfeldt, "Old Dutch Frank," George Gardner, and W. L. Ackley.

The winter of 1920-21 was the warmest winter in the county. There was little snow and automobiles ran the year round. Very little ice was cut and a shortage resulted in the summer of 1921.

Robins, meadow larks, horned larks and swallows made their appearance unusually early. Farmers began breaking ground in March. The snow was light the entire year, about one foot deep.

The hottest summer recorded in Langlade County was that of 1921 when the temperature was 95.7 degrees Fahrenheit.

The longest drouth probably occurred in 1862. However, official records show the year 1894 as the dryest for Langlade County. The spring of 1894 was "early" and the summer was very hot. There was a severe drouth in 1856, but as the county had but one white settler within its boundary then we learn nothing of it.

Antigo is situated in what is known as Twin Valley, with Springbrook running in a southeasterly direction and the Eau Claire River four miles west. Springbrook, while small, has caused considerable damage as a result of overflowing its banks. This is particularly true at the dam to the rear of the Neff-Roberts flat on Fifth avenue, where in the summer of 1921 many families were forced from their homes by the rapid rise of the little brook.

For many spring seasons, not including 1922, but more notably the spring of 1913, many portions of Antigo were inundated when storm sewers were unable to carry off flood waters. Minola street, a part of the Third ward, Fourth ward, and the north part of the city were affected. It was not uncommon to visit a neighbor by boat in the regions flooded. Residences were isolated. Often the fire department was enlisted into service to aid the beleaguered residents. Rainfall was no greater during these years than normal. Floods are sure to occur even where storm sewers, tiling, and ditching has been installed to facilitate in the discharge of water.

W. P. Stewart, meteorologist, in charge of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture weather bureau at Milwaukee, in response to a series of questions regarding the climatological history of Antigo, says:

"With reference to your inquiries regarding the station at Antigo:

1—The Weather Bureau does not maintain an office at Antigo, but we have had an observer there since May, 1894, who has kept a record for us of the temperature, rainfall, and weather conditions. Our first cooperative observer at Antigo was Mr. John McGreer. Mr. E. C. Larzelere, our present observer, has kept records there since May, 1905.

2—The average annual rainfall for Antigo is 30.02 inches.

3—The greatest 24-hour rainfall, 3.70 in., July 23, 1912.

4—The wettest year, 37.94 in., in 1919.

5—The mean annual temperature, coldest year, 38.7, 1917.

6—The mean annual temperature for the warmest year, 45.7, 1921.

7—The warmest day on record, 100 degrees, July 2, 1911.

Respectfully,

Signed:

W. P. STEWART,

Meteorologist.

In 1883, L. W. Bliss was an unofficial weather observer in Antigo. The winter of 1922, when in February one of the worst snow storms and blizzards tied up traffic for many days, will long be remembered.

It was the worst tie-up in the history of the Ashland Division, C. & N. W. Ry.

THE CYCLONE OF 1881.

In September, 1881, a cyclone struck the southeastern part of the county and severe damage resulted. Trees were uprooted in the village of Antigo. The G. W. Latta residence was damaged. No lives were lost.

THE DESTRUCTIVE CYCLONE OF 1898.

At 7 o'clock Wednesday evening, May 18, 1898, a cyclone struck the northwestern part of Antigo, causing the loss of three lives and approximately $35,000 worth of damage to property. Those killed were Frank Billings, who had a box car thrown against him; Goldie Sheldon, 7-year-old daughter of Homer Shel-house and contents damaged, I. E. Buckman, A. Goldberg, G. Parker, Will Botrell, Dr. H. V. Mills, Mrs. Harris, P. J. Millard, C. O. Marsh, W. Kenyon, Allan Taylor, Al Billings, L. K. Strong, H. C. Mumphrey, J. H. Trever, Ralph Briggs, Joseph Bainiaj, Bruno Krowlinski, Alex McMillan, Ed Grabowsky, Wm. Heckman, Edward Boettcher, Frank Valnets, Mike and Frank Lynski, Joseph Hoffman, August Reige, Joseph Holle, Mrs. Hayes, A. Kolte, J. A. Weaver, T. Bradnock, August Frieberger, and H. Ward all suffered either residence, barn, or household damages, some both household and residence damages. The Chicago & Northwestern Railway suffered considerably also.

Many farmhouses, barns, and sheds were destroyed in the eastern part of the county. Trees were uprooted and broken off and forests were laid low. The path of the cyclone was small, but very destructive.

don, and Ignatz Barr, struck while standing in front of the F. Ringsmith residence. Seriously injured were: Mrs. Alex McMillan and daughter, Mamie, Mrs. J. Kolte, Mrs. Martin Lynski, Dr. Frank I. Drake, Mrs. Francis Kaplanek, and Mrs. H. H. Ward.

Property damage was as follows: Electric light plant, water works power house, Isaac Cople residence, John E. Martin residence, and E. Houck residence demolished, household goods of Frank Newberry damaged, L. C. Bemis residence damaged, F. Ringsmith residence demolished, Homer Sheldon household goods damaged, Mrs. A. Tollefson residence and household goods damaged, Joseph Steidle, two houses damaged, Gus Urbank household goods damaged, L. Frederickson house demolished, Horace Kellogg house damaged, W. Putnam residence damaged, Henry Feindeisen house moved off foundation, C. H. Petters residence damaged, A. C. Conway, W. Whitney, Olaf Goldstrand, and C. Hungerford residences damaged or they were demolished. George Bemis Mayor Dailey immediately issued a proclamation calling upon the Antigo citizens to aid the suffering and homeless. A Citizens' Relief Committee was appointed. The Jones Lumber Company of Elcho donated $50 for relief. Food, clothing and financial aid was distributed fast. The city council appropriated $1,000 for relief purposes and offers for assistance came pouring in from every section to the sorrowing and stricken community. Never before or since has Langlade County witnessed such a holocaust.

THE TORNADO OF JUNE 16, 1922.

At 2.20 p. m. Friday afternoon, June 16, 1922, a destructive tornado entered Langlade County from the southeast corner, causing thousands of dollars of damage, endangering the lives of scores of people and creating havoc that will be discussed by generations to come. The path was almost the same as that of the tornado of May 18, 1898. In fact the basement of a house (just opposite the John Bahr, Jr., farm) is but a few feet from where the tornado did much of its destruction.

The George Wachal farm lost heavy. Two barns, a granary, a machine shed and minor buildings were destroyed. The estimated loss was $10,000.

Felix Adamski had a barn, valued at $5,000 destroyed. His silo, the windows of his residence and many shade trees were destroyed.

The farm of Charles Kloida was a heavy sufferer. The great barns, machinery sheds, silo and other buildings, implements and other property were destroyed. The residence of Mr. Kloida was also badly damaged. The family went into the basement just before the storm approached.

The brick veneer residence, the barn, silo and machinery buildings of Anton Zima were levelled to the ground. Mr. and Mrs. Zima were in Antigo shopping when the storm came up.

zens. Homes and business properties were laid low.

A strong southwest wind swept the city during the day. The fire department was called twice to extinguish a fire in a swamp along the Weed mill spur track. The volunteers were unable to cope with the second fire as it gained considerable headway. Weed's saw and planing mills were ignited. Burning cinders and shingles were blown through the air and landed on other buildings. Dwelling houses were destroyed, one after another. Many families managed to save their household contents, however. Losses were sustained by the following: J. H. Weed's mill—$20,000 to $30,000. Residences destroyed with losses ranging from $200 to $3,000 were those of: A. W. Cook, James Weaver, O. H. Williams, Rufus Payne, Mrs. L. E. McCorckle, Fred Able, Jule Grant, Wm. Oldenburg, Fred McBain, Caleb Morse, E. D. Davis, T. H. Ward, Mike and Jos. Servi, L. Berner, Max Kalouner, Mar-

WRECKED FARM HOME OF ANTON ZIMA

On Highway 64, a short distance from Fifth Avenue, Antigo, Wis.
This was one of the four farms completely or partially destroyed by the tornado, June 16, 1922.

The granary and the barn of John Bahr, Jr., suffered heavily. The roof of the granary was torn away. Barn doors were torn from their hinges.

Live stock belonging to Charles Kloida, Joe Herman, Joe Koudelka, Charles Kloida and Anton Zima was either killed or injured.

Telephone poles in the path of the tornado were pulled from the ground for a distance of about one-half a mile. The tract of maple owned by John Bahr, Jr., was torn to splinters.

Many Antigo people watched the white "twister" as it approached. None realized that it was but a mile from Fifth Avenue, Antigo's main street. The scene of the tornado was visited by thousands of people who drove through the muddy roads in the rain. It was an incident in the history of Langlade County that will be talked of for many years to come.

THE WORST FIRE IN ANTIGO HISTORY.

The most appalling fire in the history of Antigo occurred on the afternoon of May 20, 1893, and losses to the extent of $75,000 were sustained by scores of cititin Grash, Mrs. Jos. Grignon, Rube Paint, H. Schuer, A. J. Webley and David Clements, ($2,000 worth of wood, barn and household goods). The Prosser Livery Company lost sleighs, cutters and livery apparatus.

Many had just time to flee from their homes. One old lady fled carrying a hen in each hand, all she could save from her premises. Another lady fled with a curtain pole and two pups. Sewing machines, bureaus, organs and choice pieces of furniture were carried into the streets only to be burned to ashes.

ANOTHER BIG FIRE.

January 5, 1893, a serious fire occurred when the M. Binder saloon, C. B. McDonald store, O. H. P. Allerton store, I. Silbar store and contents were ruined or completely destroyed. Origin of the fire is unknown. The total estimated loss was approximately $20,000. In October, 1893, the Antigo Manufacturing Company mill was destroyed by fire.

OTHER IMPORTANT FIRES.

1880—Twin Valley Inn, M. L. Waite, prop., burned to ground.

September 5, 1883—Catholic church, Antigo, totally destroyed.

BRILLIANT METEOR.

On March 10, 1905, at about 9.30 p. m., the citizens of Antigo were almost blinded by a very brilliant flash-like illumination of the entire sky. A heavy clap of thunder followed. The cause was a meteor which struck southwest of the city in Rolling township.

Agriculture and Dairying

The First Farmer—Difficulties and Impediments—Homestead Immigration—Progress—Agricultural Society—First County Fair—Poultry Association—Potato Grower's—Breeder's Associations—Cow Testing—Short Courses—County Agents—Dairying—Patrons of Husbandry.

The beginning of agriculture in Langlade County dates back to the year 1853 when the first permanent white settler located within the limits of the county. The first white settler to clear away a space in the forest on which to cultivate a few crops was W. L. Ackley. Mr. Ackley settled on the northeast quarter of section 28, township 31, range 10 east. Here he cultivated potatoes, corn, and other necessary food-stuffs. In the winter months he busied himself in the forest, where both hardwoods and pine prevailed.

H. C. Fellows, U. S. Deputy Surveyor, surveyed the region about Ackley's place in August, 1860, and reported "good crops on Ackley & Hogarty's farm." Hogarty was never a resident of Langlade County, but was interested in business with Ackley. The vil-

Eau Claire banks were many. Here in this primitive wilderness W. L. Ackley lived until his death in 1894. He was well known and respected by all.

Agriculture developed slowly between 1860 and 1875. Settlers did not arrive in great numbers in that fifteen year period. A man named Boyington had a farm and logging claim on section 4, township 31, range 10 east, and another settler named Stone had a small farm with a number of buildings on the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter of section 9, township 31, range 10 east, in 1860. Boyington left the country because of the depressed state of the lumber market at that time.

The first farmers, Ackley, Boyington, and Stone, were followed by others coming into eastern Lang-

THE FIRST LOG CABIN ERECTED IN LANGLADE COUNTY.

These cabins on the banks of the Eau Claire river, near the junction of the east and west branches, were built by W. L. Ackley, the first permanent white settler in Langlade County. Mr. Ackley came up the Eau Claire river in a canoe in 1853 and was in this county at least eight years before "Old Dutch Frank" of the Wolf River country. He cleared the first farm in the county near the site of the once thriving village of Heine-mann.

lage of Hogarty, stopping place between Wausau and Antigo territory between 1853 to 1886, was named after him.

Mr. Ackley came into Ackley township from Wausau following the course of the Eau Claire river up to the forks of the east and west branches, where he settled. He married a Chippewa Indian maiden¹ and she proved a capable and thrifty housewife. After erecting his cabin and rude shacks he began the nucleus of the Ackley trading post. This was at his farm. He traded chiefly with the Indians passing over the trails in western Langlade County as well as river drivers, lumbermen and homestead seekers.

The trials and difficulties of this first settler as he pushed back the timber and erected a cabin on the lade County and to Norwood, Antigo and Rolling townships, between 1870 and 1880.

Charles Larzelere, driving a span of horses, came down the Military Road from Lac Vieux Desert, border settlement, to the Wolf river country in the winter of 1870-71. He settled on his claim on sections 3 and 10, township 31, range 14 east. Mr. Larzelere erected a small dwelling, made a clearing and cultivated crops the following spring.

Agriculture still progressed slowly. The great forests, where only pine was cut, and the great amount of labor necessary to clear a farm and remove logs and stumps were the chief obstacles. Poor roads and long distances from trading posts and cities figured as principal impediments. Then the farmer did not have the modern equipment of the agriculturist of 1922. Markets were lacking, therefore no incentive to produce more than needed for family consumption was stimulated. Natural meadows were often found for hay and grasses.

The giant forests abounded in game, deer, bear and wild fowl of every description. The streams were filled with fish. When the pioneer farmer and settler desired meats for his table he took his rifle or by use of his traps supplied the family wants with the choicest meats.

The pioneer relied chiefly on his own resources. He could not do otherwise. The housewife aided her husband clear ground and cultivate crops; she knitted his mittens and sox and made his home comfortable and cheerful. As time passed the housewife became the patron of the trading post or village stores of Antigo, which became a fair settlement in 1881. The farmer began to cultivate hay, timothy, clover and truck products. He became more scientific. Livestock became more common and a general change from the methods of 1853 to those of 1922 gradually took place. His neighbors became numerous, forests thinned, a greater acreage was tilled and, in short, the farm community became a reality.

COUNTY AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The Langlade County Agricultural Society was organized August 21, 1886, under the laws of Wisconsin. A mass meeting of citizens was held at which a committee was selected to draw up a constitution and by-laws, which were adopted. Charles Gowan, prominent farmer, and A. B. Millard, publisher, were elected President and Secretary respectively. The first county fair was held October 4 and 5, 1886, at the old Opera House. W. H. Hoard, later Governor of Wisconsin, was the principal speaker.

The success of the first fair created greater interest in the agricultural possibilities of the new county and steps were at once taken to secure permanent grounds for an annual exhibition. The County Board appropriated $1,500 for which a site of 40 acres was purchased. In June, 1887, $1,000 was appropriated by the county for erecting buildings and by October 1, 1887, a fine exhibition building was erected for $1,300. Agriculture exhibitions have been supported since; farmers and citizens generally have taken a keen interest in the annual fair and its success is a source of civic pride. The fair is now held three days, usually early in September. Present officers are: President, John Bowen; Vice President, A. L. Hayner; Secretary, Henry Berner; Treasurer, Leonard Freiburger, Sr.; Executive Committee, all officers, together with W. H. Wegner, R. S. Healy, Sr., James McKenna and John O'Brien. Officers are elected annually.

DAIRYING AND HORTICULTURE.

Langlade County is rapidly forging to the front in Wisconsin as a distinctive dairying district. The increased demand for milk and butter by the rapidly growing urban population and the large number of cheese factories in the county have created a rivalry and continued development in the industry.

James Cherf, Ed H. Marsh and other horticulturists in the county will organize a Langlade County Horticultural Society in 1922. The cultivation of fruits, vegetables and ornamental plants can be practiced in Langlade County for commercial as well as pleasure purposes.

BEE KEEPERS' ASSOCIATION.

The Langlade County Bee Keepers' Association was organized in 1918. Then it was known, however, as the Northwestern association. Reorganization took place January 14, 1921, when the name was changed to the present. Meetings are held annually with intervening special sessions. Officers are a President, now James Cherf, who owns a large orchard and farm east on Fifth Avenue, Antigo; Vice President, Otto Klesig; Secretary, Mrs. D. A. Blanchard, 825 Langlade Road; Treasurer, Otto Wirth, Rolling township. Board of Directors, D. A. Blanchard, chairman, Herman Wirth and Joseph Ramer. James Cherf, E. H. Marsh and H. H. Schroeder were active in organization of the association.

COW TESTING ASSOCIATION.

The Langlade County Cow Testing Association was active from 1913 to 1918 inclusive. It was reorganized in January, 1915, by F. G. Swoboda, County Agent. Testing was performed by an expert responsible jointly to the local association and the State Dairyman's Association. Eight farmers at Friebel's school, Peck township, and twelve at Elcho weighed their milk regularly and made monthly tests.

SHORT COURSE FOR BOYS.

That the young man might acquaint himself with scientific methods of modern farming, short courses were held in townships and at the court house since 1915. Then three were held—one at Friebel's school, Peck township, attended by twenty-five; one at Phlox, Norwood township, attended by fifty-four, and another, a six weeks' course, at the court house, attended by eleven. The course was continued at the court house while the County Agents were retained. They are now conducted under the auspices of the County Normal.

THE COUNTY AGENT.

The County Agricultural Representative movement, born in Oneida County, Wisconsin, has expanded over the entire nation. Langlade County has had three County Agents. The first, F. G. Swoboda, now General Manager of the Wisconsin Cheese Federation, commenced duties in 1913.

During his tenure in office, 75 meetings were held the first ten months. In the same time 395 farms were visited, 2,726 letters were written to farmers, 2,113 office visits were made by farmers and 41 committee meetings were attended. The pure bred cattle organizations, short courses, cow testing association, community fairs, bee keepers' association and potato growers' association, were either organized or developed during his tenure. He resigned in June, 1918.

J. J. Garland, Emergency Demonstration Agent, took up the work after the resignation of F. G. Swoboda. During his regime potato growers were induced to treat seed before planting; membership in the potato growers' association was increased; Dr. Ball, State Entomologist, examined potato fields attacked by leaf hoppers; boys' and girls' clubs were organized in 29 schools; 272 members joined the sheep club; poultry contests were conducted; a land clearing demonstration was held in Little Chicago district, sheep raising was encouraged and in 1918, 26 pure bred sires, 5 Guernseys and 12 Holstein breeds were brought into the county through the agent.

W. M. Bewick took charge of the County Agency in April, 1918. During his tenure, 3,345 letters were written to farmers, 1,849 conferences were held, 151 days were spent in field work, the township agricultural committee system was partially operative, land clearings, live stock improvement, potato inspection, sheep club work, calf clubs, and poultry contests were conducted. Mr. Bewick resigned in November, 1920.

POTATO GROWERS.

The Langlade County Potato Growers' Association was organized in 1914. The most enthusiastic members of the unit are: Homer Beattie, J. W. Smith of Kent, famous for his Smith strain of Triumphs, best in the U. S., Peter Krier and C. Sorenson. Local exhibits have been conducted, the most important in 1916. The association has not been active in late years. There is no reason why Langlade County should not be the banner potato county.

PURE BRED CATTLE ORGANIZATIONS.

Langlade County has three pure bred cattle organizations, whose objects are to promote and improve the quality of stock possessed by Langlade County farmers.

The Langlade County Jersey Breeders' Association was organized in March, 1914, by F. G. Swoboda, County Agent. First officers were: President, Blaine Stewart; Vice President, Harry Lyons; Secretary, P. T. Gillett; Treasurer, Charles Schotte. Present officers are: President, Charles Schotte; Vice President, Harry Lyons; Secretary, John Maichen; Treasurer, A. Oldenburg. The first meeting was held at the court house. Twenty members are now active.

The Langlade County Holstein Breeders' Association was organized by F. G. Swoboda, County Agent, in 1915. First officers were: President, George Wunderlich; Vice President, Walter Lloyd; Secretary, F. G. Swoboda; Treasurer, Adam Guenther. First meetings were held at the court house. Business sessions are held in the winter and an annual summer outing and picnic is enjoyed. Present officers are: President, Henry Diercks, Bryant; Vice President, Theodore Miller, Antigo township; Secretary, Clemans Bemis, Rolling township; Treasurer, Adam Guenther. Thirty-five progressive breeders are members of the organization.

The Langlade County Guernsey Breeders' Association was organized in May, 1915. First officers chosen were: President, Anton Follstad; G. Schroeder, Treasurer; F. G. Swoboda, Secretary. Present officers are: President, R. P. Guptil; Secretary-Treasurer, Anton Follstad. Eighteen Guernsey breeders in Langlade County are members.

POULTRY ASSOCIATION ORGANIZED.

The Langlade County Poultry Association was organized by A. B. Goodrick and E. J. Goodrick, November 12, 1912. The object of the association is to encourage and assist breeding and raising pure bred poultry, pigeons and pet stock and the public exhibition thereof.

SOIL TESTS ON COUNTY FARMS.

Four factors are considered in soil fertility. The crop producing ability of a soil depends upon the amount of Nitrogen, Phosphorus, Potash and acidity there is in the soil.

Soil tests have been made by the state soils laboratory, University of Wisconsin. Field examinations and chemical analysis was made by H. W. Ullsperger and E. J. Graul of the College of Agriculture. Tests were made on the following farms: Carl Follstad, George Moss, Casper Jilek, Walter Heyl, Joseph Guenther, S. B. Ullman, H. W. McDougall, Earl French, Homer Beattie, D. C. Dewey, Herman Wirth, Prosser Brothers, Charles Johnson, Charles Motts, William Pheister, Head & Jackson, Edward Nordman, B. Berendsen, Moss & Levis, George Grossman, E. S. Tradewell, Albert Kelly and Knight Brothers.

1,842 FARMS IN COUNTY.

In 1909, 30,000 acres of land were under cultivation in the county. In 1910, 128,828 acres were such as to be classed as farm lands. Ten years later farm lands increased to 152,683 acres, or an increase of 27.3 per cent. In 1920 there were 5,833 acres of county plow land in pasture. Statistics reveal that in 1920 there were 1,842 farms in the county, 1,776 of which were managed by their owners. Today Langlade County has farms classified as follows: 775 farms between 50 to 99 acres; 368 farms between 100 to 174 acres; 49 farms between 175 to 259 acres; 24 farms between 260 to 499 acres; 4 farms between 500 to 990 acres; 2 farms over 1,000 acres; 7 farms under 3 acres; 34 farms between 3 and 9 acres; 76 farms between 10 and 19 acres and 503 farms between 20 and 49 acres.

The average Langlade County farm is 82½ acres. Contrast the number of farms in the county in 1922 with the year 1881 when there were two-thirds less inhabitants in the county than there are farms today.

Although the entire acreage of Langlade County is far from under cultivation there is not a great amount of waste land. Agriculture is diversified, farmers not being confined to one single crop, therefore they must not rely on the results of one product.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY.

Langlade County, Wisconsin, is one of the most active grange centers in the United States. At the 1922 session of the Wisconsin Granges at Rhinelander, Oneida County, Wisconsin, Langlade County grange leaders took a prominent part.

Edward Utnehmer, Polar Township, member of Polar Grange, is State Overseer; Chaplain of the state unit is J. H. Howe of Winner Grange, Antigo township; Gatekeeper of the state unit is Floyd Frederickson of Antigo, and Fred Swenson of Langlade County is a member of the state executive committee.

Pomona Grange, No. 20, Patrons of Husbandry, was organized by State Organizer John F. Wilde, Rhinelander. The Pomona Grange is the parent unit over the subordinate granges in Langlade County. Its purpose is to solidify subordinate granges for mutual helpfulness and to discuss such questions of general benefit tending to educate and elevate the Langlade County farmer.

First officers of Pomona Grange, No. 20, Langlade County, were: Master, P. T. Gillett; Overseer, A. F. Goodman; Lecturer, George Sloat, Sr.; Steward, Jacob Price; Assistant Steward, Chester Nelson; Lady Assistant Steward, Jessie Dudley; Chaplain, Mrs. Malcolm Hutchinson; Treasurer, William Shanks; Treasurer, J. H. Howe; Gatekeeper, Theodore Kieper; Ceres, Amanda Koch; Pomona, Della Naumann; Flora, Mrs. J. H. Howe; Trustees, William Hafecker, David Mader and Norman Koch.

The present Master is Fred Swenson; H. H. Schroeder is Overseer; Alex Henry, Treasurer; Mrs. Cora Utnehmer, Secretary; Chaplain, Mrs. Fred Swenson; Lecturer, Mrs. Jess Dudley. Trustees are P. T. Gillett, H. H. Schroeder and Otto Hanke. Meetings are held every two months at a designated subordinate grange and occur on the fourth Thursday.

AN EXCITING MOMENT IN A MOTORCYCLE RACE AT THE LANGLADE COUNTY FAIR.

The Langlade County Fair Association has held races in connection with its annual agricultural exhibitions since 1886. The old Antigo Trotting Association was the first organization to use the race track.

Before the time of Hypocrates, the healing of the sick or the art of medicine was joined with the mission of Gods and priests. Religion, medicine and the superstition of the people combined into a so-called science of the ancients.

The writings of Hypocrates were standard guides for the medical profession for centuries after his death. Galen in 130 A. D., Andrew Vesalius in 1514, William Harvey in 1628, each were epochal medical writers. Edward Jenner, discoverer of vaccination against smallpox, Dr. Morton of Boston in 1846, discoverer of anaesthetix properties of sulphuric ether, all of these and others since, have done much to advance medical and surgical science.

Located at 1404 Fifth Avenue. It was purchased by Dr. G. W. Moore, former Antigo physician on January 3, 1918.

During the past quarter of a century, particularly during the World War (1914-19) great strides were made in surgery.

The first autopsy held in America was upon the remains of John Bridge of Roxbury, Massachusetts, who died of "Winde Collicke," August 20, 1674. The first doctors in the United States were Dr. Thomas Wootten of Jamestown, Virginia, in 1607, Dr. Walter Russell, 1608, and Dr. Lawrence Bohun in 1610. The first hospital in the world was built at Jerusalem by Helena, mother of Constantine, about 350 A. D. The first American hospital was built before 1524 by Cor-structure situated between Milton and Superior Streets where now the Langlade County Normal dormitory is located. It was organized by Dr. I. D. Steffen in 1889. He conducted it for three years.

Dr. I. D. Steffen purchased a piece of property in Antigo from Theresa Hirtz, March 11, 1897, and opened the Antigo Hospital. He sold the property to Mayme Boyle in 1917 and she in turn sold it to Dr. G. W. Moore, January 3, 1918. Dr. G. W. Moore has since associated with Dr. G. E. Moore, his former partner, in conducting the hospital.

Dr. E. J. Donohue purchased a two story brick structure from Osca Daskam, June 3, 1911. The property, located in block 2 of Daskam's subdivision, was converted into the City Hospital. It is in charge of the Misses Agnes and Theresa Donohue.

FIRST COUNTY PHYSICIANS.

The first Langlade County doctor was Dr. E. Smith, who came to Antigo from Little Suamico, Oconto County. Dr. Smith did not remain long in Antigo. He was immediately followed by Dr. F. J. Despains, who stopped for a time at the Springbrook House. Dr. Smith came here in 1880. Other pioneer doctors were Dr. E. A. Beckel, Dr. G. W. Moody, Dr. G. W. Remington, Dr. J. H. Dawley, Dr. M. J. Lower, Dr. F. J. Doyle, and Dr. Mills, dentist.

TRIALS OF EARLY PHYSICIANS.

Today we cannot imagine the trials and vicissitudes that confronted the pioneer physician of 1880. Before Langlade County was organized it was necessary remedies. These ordinarily consisted of herbs, barks, liniments, ointments, secured by stage from Shawano or Wausau. The families would "stock up" on such medicine as St. Jacob's Oil, Seller's Cough Syrup, burdock and pleurisy root and other home remedies.

The pioneer housewife was always on hand when illness overtook a neighbor or a member of her own family. She usually had a remedy for most any disease and when her remedy failed a doctor was called. His methods were crude compared with modern medical methods, but in justice to the pioneer doctor, he brought relief to as many a patient and exhibited as much resourcefulness and common sense as do the modern physicians. Many of the herbs and medicines of early days did not possess pleasing tastes. "I can taste some of the medicine yet," remarked a pioneer of 1879.

If Drs. E. Smith and F. J. Despains, the first doctors in the county, could come back to earth and witness the wonderful progress made in Antigo and vicinity, for settlers to send to Shawano, Wausau or Clintonville for a physician. Many a life was in the balance while the doctor, far away, with poor roads, wound his way through the forests, either on horseback or with his "buckboard" and pony. When calls were made in evenings in later years many a doctor would lose his way in the dark wilderness. Over on the Wolf River, Jeannie Hill, now Mrs. Art Janes, and Mrs. Charles Larzelere, who nursed many a sick person, recalled sending to Clintonville for a doctor, who would often be two to three days on the way.

DOMESTIC MEDICINES.

It is only reasonable to see that because of these conditions so prevalent in New County and Langlade, afterwards, every household was provided with home see the flying machine, the automobile, the roaring 20th century passenger train, the great farm tractors and observe doctors talking with patients miles distant, prescribing treatment by radiophone or telephone and giving other medical advice, they would be thunderstruck, so to speak. If they could visit the late meetings of the county Medical Society, hear the papers read and the medical terms created since their day, they would be amazed.

Many instruments and necessary appliances could not be secured by early physicians. The pioneer doctor acted as nurse, interne, attendant and operator. His hospital was a room in the home of the patient. The X-ray and other electrical apparatus were unknown. Aseptic surgery, as practiced today, was in embryological stages.

THE FIRST LANGLADE COUNTY MEDICAL SOCIETY.

The first Langlade County Medical Society was organized April 19, 1897, with the following officers: President, M. E. Williams; Vice President, Dr. M. J. Lower; Secretary, Dr. B. F. Harris, and Treasurer, J. H. Dawley.

LANGLADE COUNTY MEDICAL SOCIETY.

The present Langlade County Medical Society was organized in the municipal council chambers by Dr. J. M. Dodd, councilor of District No. 10, now District 11 (La Crosse District), of the State Medical Society, October 9, 1903. Officers elected were: President, Dr. I. D. Steffen; Vice President, Dr. M. J. Donohue; Secretary, Dr. F. I. Drake; Board of Censors, Dr. F. V. Watson, Dr. M. A. Flatley, and Dr. M. J. Donohue. Meetings were set at the first Friday of December, March, June and September. Present officers are: President, Dr. L. A. Steffen; Vice President, Dr. E. R. Murphy; Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. J. C. Wright.

The purpose of the society is to bring into one organization the physicians of the county, so that by frequent meetings and full and frank discussion, interchange of views, they may secure such intelligent unity and harmony as will elevate the opinion of the profession in all scientific, legislative, public health, material and social affairs, to the end that the profession may receive that respect and support within its own ranks and from the community to which its honorable history and achievements entitle it.

The county unit is a part of the state society and the American Medical Association, parent organizations.

The annual meeting, with banquet, was introduced in 1910. The society did commendable service during the World War as a unit as also did its members.

The first medical banquet was held February 9, 1910.

CHAPTER XX.

Soil Formation in Langlade County

General Character of Surface—Glacial Drifts—Merrimac Silt Loam—Gloucester Series—Igneous and Metamorphic Rocks of Archean System—Spencer Silt Loam—Peat Formations—Wolf River Ledges—Elevation of Antigo and Summit Lake.

Langlade County owes the general character of its surface to glacial action. Geologists have divided the time required to develop the earth to its present state in cycles or ages. Thus where rocks predominate they can be studied and their geologic age can be ascertained.

Two distinct periods of glaciation are represented in Langlade County. The older drift is confined to the southwestern part. The surface is gently rolling with no lakes and only a few undrained tracts. The newer glacial drift covers the rest of the county. The surface is more irregular, the drainage system, while developed, has not become so well established. Lakes and swamps abound. Thus the soils of the entire county are the result of glacial drifts.

In northeastern Langlade County a small tract of land is underlain by igneous and metamorphic rocks of the Archean system, consisting of granite, gneis and schist, with subordinate greenstone, porphyries and syenites. Here numerous outcrops occur and the formation has contributed extensively to the overlying soils.

Gloucester silt loam is an important soil. Elton and Langlade townships have important areas. This type consists of a brown or light brown, friable loess-like silt loam, which extends to an average depth of from 12 to 14 inches. Much organic matter is present, the amount of silt is higher and the percentage of coarse material lower than in the rolling phase of the same type. The subsoil becomes heavier with depth. Below 30 inches the subsoil grades into a bed of unassorted glacial till of sand and gravel.

Stones and boulders are present on the surface. As to distribution, while not uniform, they range in diameter from 12 to 14 inches. In the Gloucester silt loam territory of the county there are many stone-free areas of considerable size and with liming and inoculation of soil, livestock, dairying, potato culture and small grain growing have been developed.

EASTERN AND CENTRAL LANGLADE COUNTY.

The Gloucester silt loam, rolling phase, predominates in the eastern and central portions of Langlade County. Associated with it are the typical soil and numerous areas of the Gloucester sandy loam. The rolling Gloucester phase consists to an average depth of 10 to 12 inches of a grayish brown, friable silt loam, with smooth feel. It contains organic matter in a moderate degree. This soil has somewhat the appearance of loess. The sub-soil of the rolling phase consists of yellow, yellowish brown or slightly grayish yellow silt loam becoming heavier in texture with depth, extending to a depth of 20 to 26 inches. Below this depth the percentage of sand and gravel increases. In sections 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20 of Township 34, Range 10 east and in sections 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 in Township 33, Range 11 east, of the county, there is a considerable amount of fine sand incorporated in both soil and sub-soil, so that the soil approaches a fine sandy loam. Rolling, Norwood, Polar and Evergreen Townships, in the Gloucester silt loam, rolling phase, are all extensively developed.

Gloucester fine sandy loam is found in the county where crystalline rocks make up the underlying geologic formation. The general occurrence of this type of soil is in irregular belts running in a northeast and southwest direction, following the trend of the glacial ice sheet.

The Gloucester fine sandy loam surface soil consists to an average depth of 12 inches of light brown or yellowish brown mellow, friable sandy loam. The sub-soil consists of a light yellowish brown to yellow fine sandy loam coarser in texture with increased depth. Gravel occurs below a depth of 20 inches. Stones and boulders are plentiful on the surface and through the soil section, ranging in size up to three feet in diameter. They are not as numerous, however, as on the Gloucester silt loam, rolling phase. In section 33 and 34 of township 34, range 10 east, the surface is only undulating and the material is derived from an outwash plain. This type of soil owes its origin to the weathering of glacial till which was deposited over the crystalline rocks and it consists of material which was derived largely from this geologic formation through the grinding action of the ice and subsequent weathering. A part of this type may consist of lateral or recessional moraines.

There are only a few square miles of Gloucester fine sand in the county. The surface soil, to an average depth of 9 to 10 inches, consists of loose, friable, yellowish brown fine sand. The surface inch on virgin tracts is often darker due to the accumulation of organic matter, where the land has been burned over. The subsoil is a yellow fine sand. Gravel is not plentiful in within 36 inches of the surface. Where this soil is found in the county stones and boulders are present in moderate quantities on the surface and mixed with the soil. The surface of this type of soil varies from undulating to gently rolling while some areas consist of low hills giving a hummocky appearance. It owes its origin to the weathering of glacial drift derived chiefly from the grinding action of the ice sheet over the crystalline rocks.

Gloucester sandy loam has been extensively developed in Langlade County. The surface soil consists to an average depth of about 12 inches of a brown or yellowish brown medium textured sandy loam of a rather loose and friable structure. The subsoil is gradually lighter and often coarser in texture with depth. Below 22 inches it consists of an unstratified mixture of medium to coarse sand and fine gravel. Stone and boulders up to three or four feet in diameter are scattered over the surface and mixed with the soil material but they are not numerous. The most numerous boulders range from ten to eighteen inches in diameter.

ROLLING TOWNSHIP.

In Rolling Township the soil is somewhat heavier, less rolling and has fewer stone sand and is a better agricultural soil than Gloucester sandy loam elsewhere. Gloucester sandy loam in Upham Township is more gravelly than usual and the texture is variable within short distances. In places it is a loam or a gravelly loam while again it may be a fine sandy loam or gravelly sand. In the extreme northwestern corner of Langlade County, in township 34, range 9, and in the extreme southeastern part, in township 32, range 14 east, and township 31, range 14 east, Gloucester sandy loam is more stony, gravelly and rougher than usual and has a lower grade of agricultural value. In some places it is a gravelly sand. Excavations and well records show that the subsoil of sand and gravel extends to bedrock, and that the huge boulders occur to a depth of 20 to 30 feet.

The surface of the Gloucester sandy loam varies from rolling to rough and hilly. Over the greater part of this type of soil the surface is not too steep for cultivation, but there are exceptions to this where the topography is so broken and the slopes so steep that cultivated crops probably could not be produced with profit. In the vicinity of Edith and Rose Lakes, townships 32, range 14 east, and in the northwestern part of the county, township 34, range 9, except in sections 17 and 18, the surface is very rough and the land has not a high agricultural value.

The surface frequently appears as a series of parallel ridges varying in elevation from 15 to 40 feet above the intervening valleys and occurring from 20 rods to a quarter of a mile apart. These slopes are sometimes very steep and in a general outline they have an appearance of eskers, but the material is not stratified.

The material composing the Gloucester sandy loam consists of glacial debris deposited over crystalline rock by the ice sheet. The supply of organic matter in this soil is low. There is a probability that little of the material forming this soil has come from the immediate region and it therefore has the same relation to the underlying rock that a residual soil would have.

Gloucester sand, of minor importance, is found in the townships of Elcho and Ainsworth in small tracts. It is a light brown surface soil extending to about eight inches. The material is loose, has an acid condition and contains but little organic material. The subsoil is a yellow medium sand. Fine gravel occurs over the surface occasionally and in the deep subsoil. Few stones appear on the surface and none hinder cultivation. No limestone material is present as the material composing this type of soil consists of glacial debris not transported from any great distance. Farm crops do not yield as much on this soil as on silt loam and fine sandy loam, potatoes doing the best.

GLOUCESTER STONY SAND ALONG WOLF RIVER.

Gloucester stony sand is found in small patches in northern Langlade County along the Wolf River. This is a loose, incoherent sand of medium texture at a surface depth of 8 to 10 inches. The amount of organic matter is very small. The subsoil is lighter as depth becomes greater. It is yellow in color. Stones are plentiful on the surface and boulders frequently appear. Kames and eskers make up a great portion of the surface, which is very irregular and rough.

The material of which Gloucester stony sand consists is glacial debris deposited as kames, eskers and probably as lateral and recessional moraines. The gravel, stones and boulders are largely of crystalline rock. No trace of limestone can be found and the soil and subsoil are acidic. It is of little value for agricultural purposes, but is well adapted for forestation.

The Spencer silt loam, a most important and extensive soil type, is confined to the western part of Langlade County where it occurs as one continuous tract in Summit, Vilas, Ackley and the western part of Peck and Upham Townships.

The surface of this type of soil to an average depth of 10 inches consists of a light brown or grayish silt loam with a reddish shade and contains a small amount of organic matter. The percentage of silt is very high and the soil has a smooth feel characteristic of silt loam. This soil is heavy and compact because of the high clay content and at places approaches a silty clay loam in texture. The subsoil consists of a yellowish brown, buff or grayish silt loam which is heavier with depth and grades into a silty loam at 16 to 20 inches. Below this depth and at times above it the material is mottled with yellow, brown, bluish and reddish brown, indicating poor internal drainage. The lower subsoil below 24 and 30 inches has a reddish brown color. There are but little stones on the surface. The amount of organic material is greater in the depressions. The depth to bedrock ranges from 4 to 50 feet. The surface generally is undulating and gently rolling. Elevation differences between highest and lowest points do not exceed over forty feet. Slopes are long and gentle. There are some places where the surface is wet most of the time, but the natural surface drainage is fairly good.

This soil is formed from the weathered product of the ground-up rock left upon the surface early in the Glacial Period. It has been derived almost entirely from the old igneous rocks which make up the underlying formation through this part of the county. The soil has some of the characteristics of a residual soil. The small number of stones and boulders present is due to their disintegration and breaking up into soil during the long period that has elapsed since the old drift formation was deposited. This drift has been eroded and washed by streams and rains for so long a period that depressions in the surface have been largely drained or have been filled by wash from adjoining slopes. There are seldom any peat bogs, swamps or lakes in this section of the county. All the region is excellent for crops.

The level phase of Spencer silt loam is found in Ackley Township. In texture the soil is a silt loam, but it has a lower position and poorer drainage. The organic material is great. Drainage is not very good as the surface is so level and the texture of the soil so heavy that natural drainage is deficient. The most important consideration in the improvement of this soil is drainage after which the level phase is good for agricultural purposes.

Merrimac silt loam is an important soil from the standpoint of productivity and agricultural development. The most extensive tract in Langlade County is found in the southwestern part where there is an unbroken area covering approximately 150 square miles. Antigo, Deerbrook, Bryant, Elcho and Ormsby are all located in this tract. The surface of this soil is light brown or grayish brown, friable silt loam, which extends to an average depth of 12 inches. The content of the silt is high, organic material is very small, but the soil as a whole is in an acid condition. The subsoil is yellowish brown and at a depth of 22 to 30 inches it grades into beds of stratified sand and gravel. West of Antigo the silt covering in some places is five feet while in other places east of Antigo, particularly, gravel and sand sometimes are turned up by the plow.

This soil is lighter east of Antigo than that west of the city. Where this type of soil is best developed there are few stones and but little gravel. However, on a small area two miles north of Ormsby, stones are thickly embedded in the soil. This surface is level or gently undulating and usually has a very gentle slope toward the water course along which it occurs. Streams that have cut through these areas have their channels 5 to 20 feet below the general level of the adjacent land. Flood plains along such streams are from a few rods to a quarter of a mile in width. East of Antigo and also north is a prairie-like plain in which the elevation differences do not exceed 6 to 10 feet in distances of several miles. This country is commonly called "The Antigo Flats" and is very productive. The gravel and sand generally comes close enough to the surface in this part of the county to make for good drainage. The Merrimac silt loam is composed of alluvial material and is the result of outwash plains and stream terraces by streams issuing from the ice sheet during the glacial period. Beds of stratified sand and gravel below the surface extend to a considerable depth, known to be as high as 58 feet at Antigo. The underlying rock is granite and the gravel found in this section is usually from granite and other crystalline rocks. The fine surface soil is the result of the grinding action of the glacial ice formation and the action of water, weather and wind upon glacial debris. Stones and boulders were carried in by floating ice or by the advance of an ice sheet after the stratified material was first deposited. The area of this type of soil about Antigo is the largest in the state and is some of the finest agricultural land in the state.

Merrimac sandy loam, a type of soil of minor importance, is found in Langlade County northeast of Antigo in a narrow belt of 7 or 8 square miles. The surface soil is sandy loam to a depth of one foot. The subsoil is loose and coarser with depth. This soil warms up early in the spring and general farming produces fair yields from it. The parent material from which the type of soil was derived consists largely of crystalline rock with a small quantity of material from limestone.

Peat is found in small tracts through Langlade County and consists of vegetable matter in various stages of decomposition. Muck, consisting of well decomposed matter with which there is incorporated an appreciable amount of mineral matter, is also found in the county in small areas.

There are some ledges in eastern Langlade County along the Wolf River.

The most important weed pests in Langlade County are Canada thistles, quack grass and wild mustard.

Antigo is 922 feet above Lake Michigan and 1,483 feet above sea level. Summit Lake is 1,697 feet above sea level and is officially the highest body of water in Wisconsin. There is a small body of water just north of Summit Lake declared to be much higher than Summit Lake. Rib Hill, Marathon County, highest land point in Wisconsin, is 1,940 feet above sea level. Koepenick, Upham Township, Langlade County, is 1,683 feet above sea level.

CHAPTER XXI.

Antigo, the County Seat

Surroundings—Hon. F. A. Deleglise—Rich Timber Belt—Influx Of Homesteaders—Famous Run-away Election—Population—Village Plat—The Fight To Incorporate A City.

Within the memory of the older settlers of Antigo, was a time, not so many years ago, when the great Badger country north of a line running west of Green Bay was denominated by a howling wilderness. Two streaks of rust and a right-of-way, the iron trail of the new north, through densely unbroken forests, were the only evidences that civilized man had ever penetrated a land so wild as to be practically worthless to humankind save to the sturdy woodsman and the huntly timbered, known as "the hills." From thence east, the land, to the county line, was heavily covered with basswood, maple, birch, rock elm with pieces of choice oak, ash, cherry and butternut scattered through other timber. From "the hills" to the east Eau Claire river across the Antigo flats, now hailed as the most productive soil in the state, the timber was as thick and heavy as on the higher ground but not as valuable.

The city of Antigo was located on Spring River, a

HOW FIFTH AVENUE, ANTIGO, WIS., LOOKED IN 1882.

Only a path through the great forests was then evidence of pioneer settlers. This picture was taken just east of what is known as the "Belt line." Contrast this picture with a bird's eye view of Antigo in 1886 and the advancement of the village in that four-year period will be easily noted. Then turn to page 101 and compare with a Fifth Avenue scene taken in August, 1922—Forty years later.

er of game. If the captious critic and explorer of fifty years ago could stalk across this country today he would be amazed. Here he would find white flocks feeding upon a thousand hills; he would see scores of stately cities, with great rivers flowing beneath their walls; cities with the best accommodations, thriving and prosperous, railroads, manufacturing establishments towering toward the sky, churches, schools, libraries and scores of happy and contented people.

It was through this progressing section 45 years ago that the city of Antigo, county seat of Langlade County, was staked by F. A. Deleglise, the surrounding aiding him materially in reaching that conclusion. The city was wisely located in the valley of the Eau Claire river, three miles east of it being an area of land, heavi-branch of the Eau Claire river and originally was a mile and a half long, east and west, by a mile in width, north and south. The attention of homesteaders was first attracted to this country and its surroundings by the exceptional quality of its soil and its adaption to agriculture, then progressing under the Homestead Act. F. A. Deleglise located the site of Antigo in 1877 and later moved his family to it. With him came his brother-in-law John Doersch. They were then the only white men at or near what is now the city of Antigo.

The far sighted Mr. Deleglise at once set out to plat a town, his life ambition being to found a city. It was his purpose to build a town of 500 or 1,000 inhabitants and he felt that the amount of timber in the territory adjacent to his embryo village would in short time require a mill to cut it. Thus a rising inland town would grow from out of the wilderness. The country demanded it and would therefore sustain it. Mr. Deleglise was an able civil engineer and he had his own notions about platting the village and having it look well. And it may be added that his notions were good. Acting on his own theories he stuck a stake at what he presumed to be a good center, without regard for section lines, and covered it with brushes so as it would be unmolested by the new inhabitants arriving. In the meantime he spent much time perfecting his plat on paper.

When the founder of Antigo first arrived in the wilderness where he later platted the village of Antigo, the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western Railroad Company were pushing their line north from Clintonville with the city of Wausau, then a small hamlet, known to be its objective. Beyond that, its course was a mystery. The first survey north from Eland Junction was not made until the fall and winter of 1879-1880.

F. A. Deleglise began his first survey of the intended village of Antigo at the south end of what is known today as Virginia street on October 12, 1878, with the single assistance of his daughter, Virginia, who was born after the return of F. A. Deleglise from the Civil War.

The original plat of the village of Antigo was filed with the Register of Deeds, R. G. Webb, at 5.30 p. m., July 10, 1882, in the name of Mary Deleglise, wife of the founder of the city. Niels Anderson was the notary public who affixed his seal to the historic plat. B. F. Dorr and Charles Gowan were witnesses. The plat ran north and south from First to Tenth Avenue inclusive and east and west from Aurora street to Lincoln street, inclusive.

The first addition to the village of Antigo was made on March 16, 1883, when M. M. Ross was Register of Deeds and was called Daskam's addition. The second addition was Jone's first addition, made August 30, 1883.

It may be interesting to readers to know how the streets of Antigo within the original plat of the village received their names and why. This is explained as follows:

THE CITY OF ANTIGO.

Antigo received its name from Nequi-Antigo-Seebeh, the Chippewa Indian name of Spring River, signifying balsam evergreen river from the balsam evergreen that bordered the river.

THE STREETS OF ANTIGO.

Aurora—East boundary of original plat—meaning dawn of day.

Watson—Named after an eminent Wisconsin astronomer, discoverer of the planet Vulcan and others.

Virginia—Named after Virginia Deleglise, daughter born to F. A. and Mary Deleglise after the return of the former from Virginia, where he had served under General Bragg in the Civil War.

Hudson—Named after Henry Hudson, discoverer of Hudson Bay.

Arctic—Most northern street in the Village of Antigo.

Field—Named after C. H. Field to whose perseverance mankind owes the laying of the Atlantic cable.

Milton—After the famous English poet, author of Paradise Lost and Paradise Regained.

Weed—Named after J. H. Weed's—the largest saw mill in Langlade County.

Superior—Leading thoroughfare, north and south—on highway to Lake Superior.

Clermont—In honor of Robert Fulton's steamboat, The Clermont.

Fulton—After Robert Fulton, inventor of the steam boat.

Edison—After the great inventor, Thomas A. Edison.

Reed—After the Vice-President of the M. L. S. & W. Railroad.

Morse—After Samuel F. B. Morse, inventor of the telegraph system.

Dorr—After B. F. Dorr, assistant surveyor of the village of Antigo in 1881-1882.

Lincoln—After Abraham Lincoln—emancipator of four millions.

Atlantic—After Atlantic Ocean.

Pacific—After Pacific Ocean.

The Atlantic was the block between Fifth and Sixth Avenues east of the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western railroad depot. The Pacific was the street between the same avenues on the west side of the depot. Both streets, Atlantic and Pacific and the territory between, included of course (the depot and its grounds), were called America. This no doubt signified that between the Atlantic and Pacific was America, the continent.

LONG PLANNED SETTLEMENT.

Regarding the founding of the city of Antigo, Mr. Deleglise said: "As early as 1857, I believed that there were openings in this neighborhood for several prosperous settlements. Looking over the map of Wisconsin, I came to the conclusion that the valley of the upper Embarrass river and of the upper Eau Claire river would afford sites for at least two central commercial points, one to be located in the Embarrass country and the other in the Eau Claire river country."

Mr. Deleglise had in view a location within a radius of a few miles around the southeastern corner of town 27, range 13 east and another in the vicinity of section 15, town 27, range 12 east, as the eligible points in the valley of the Embarrass river. He also had in view a point at the fork of the Eau Claire river, known as the Ackley trading post,¹ another at Bear Lake (now Elmhurst) in town 30, range 11 east, also another on section 21, township 32, range 11 east and another near Mueller's Lake in township 31, range 12 east.

1. The city of Antigo should have been located at the forks of the east and west branches of the Eau Claire river. The Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western Railroad Company originally planned to construct their road through what is now Ackley Township, Langlade County.

After considerable deliberation, while at Appleton, in the summer of 1876, Mr. Deeglise mapped out the present plan of the city of Antigo and determined upon its location as the point for the upper Eau Claire river valley. Most of the land was entered in the name of his wife, Mary Deeglise, in the fall of 1877, with $300 received from her parents. Entry was made upon a contract with the state. "We paid about $16 per forty acres down," said Mr. Deeglise.

The founder of the city built a log shanty on lot 13, block 35, of the future village and moved his family into it. Thus his was the first family and the first building in the original plat of the place. The first shanty, however in the neighborhood was that erected and delay, as they could, the diversion of the lumber business.

Pioneers of Shawano had succeeded in inducing the legislature in 1879 to attach Antigo and New County to Shawano County for county and judicial purposes. This actually bound Antigo, hand and foot, to Shawano. Twenty miles of woods separated Antigo from the Wolf River country, where the town board of Langlade township met. The town board was also antagonistic to citizens of Antigo. This was unbearable and the settlers of Antigo thereupon devised a plan to overthrow the town board and elect officers with sympathy for Antigo and who would afford the city the opportunity to grow that it was entitled to by law.

by Michael Weix in what is now Weix's addition to the city of Antigo. In 1878, there were just eighteen people, including laborers and transients in Antigo. The village of Antigo was originally included within the Town of Langlade, Oconto County. The nearest town officers were twenty-one miles away.

Mr. Deeglise engaged in lumbering operations and as a land and real estate agent having had control of 10,000 acres of land within a radius of ten miles of Antigo.

FAMOUS POLITICAL EPISODES.

During the early years of the settlement of Antigo, the people were apprehensive of trouble with their neighbor, the city of Shawano. Antigo was destined to rival and ultimately surpass Shawano as a business and commercial center. Shawano citizens believed that a great deal of the Wolf River lumber business would be diverted to Antigo. Consequently this served as an incentive to the people of Shawano to spare no means to prevent Antigo's prosperity and growth,

THE SURPRISE VOTERS.

The Antigoites kept very quiet on election day, thus leading the Wolf River party to think that Antigo citizens would not vote. The Antigo citizens, starting the day before election, in that fine spring of 1879, camped out during the night along the road and put in their appearance late in the afternoon of the following day and won by superior numbers. The Langlade settlement was defeated by about six votes, their strength being divided by dissension.¹ It has been said by an old pioneer that the Langlade settlers could have defeated Antigo by challenging the vote, which they did not do. The total vote was less than one hundred.

THE FIGHT TO INCORPORATE ANTIGO.

In 1883 an unsuccessful fight was made before the State Legislature to incorporate the city of Antigo. The defeat was due to dissension among the people of Antigo. Members of the county board not from the village of Antigo were opposed to its incorporation because they disliked the idea of greater representation of the village on the county board.

Proponents of the plan for incorporation declared that the village should be incorporated as a city because the pro rata of electors to each chairman of the county townships exclusive of the Town of Antigo was in 1883, 51 inhabitants. Thus, they argued, if the village becomes a city, each of the four ward supervisors would represent 53 electors. The four supervisors of the city and the Chairman of Antigo township would each represent 63 electors and that even with the four city supervisors on the board, that the county members opposed, the per cent of representation would still be in favor of the townships.

Two years later in 1885, Antigo citizens led a fight to have the city incorporated and were successful. The city was incorporated under chapter 79 of the laws of 1885 with four wards. The first election was held on the first Tuesday in April, 1885. Inspectors of ward elections selected by the act incorporating the city were: 1st ward—H. G. Borgman. 2nd ward—B. F. Dorr; 3rd ward—August Schoepke and 4th ward—Louis Mendlik.

The first polling places were held at: 1st ward—Clithero & Strong's lumber office on Superior street; 2nd ward—Spencer's Hall on 5th Avenue; 3rd ward—At Sherman & Dawley's office on Fifth Avenue; 4th ward—At Louis Mendlik's office on Superior street.

The first officers elected under the city charter were:
Mayor—Thomas W. Lynch,

2nd ward—George Clithero, two-year term; P. A. Koelzer, one-year term.

3rd ward—D. W. Keen, two-year term; John Saxe, one-year term.

4th ward—C. Taubner, two-year term; G. C. Williams, one-year term.

George Clithero was chosen first President of the city council at the first city council meeting held at Spencer's Hall, April 13, 1885. The first act of the council was to create by resolution the city of Antigo pursuant to the provisions and in compliance with chapter 79 of the laws of 1885.

Antigo's progress as a city is discussed in another chapter, as the opening of the new form of government closed a vivid chapter in early pioneer life.

On March 25, 1894, the city of Antigo lost its most illustrious pioneer, Hon. Francis A. Deeglise, known widely to the public as the "Father of Antigo." Hon. Francis Augustine Deeglise was born on February 10, 1835, in Commune of Baynes, Canton of Valais, Switzerland, the son of Maurice Athanase and Cath-Township, Dodge County, Wisconsin, where she is buried.

The father then moved with his family to Gibson, Manitowoc County, shortly after, moving to Belle Plain, Shawano County. Maurice Deeglise farmed here until 1878 when he was called by death. He was erine (Lang) Del'Eglise. The father of Mr. Deeglise was one of four brothers of the old and highly esteemed Catholic families of Valais vineyardists. Maurice, the father of the founder of Antigo, was a teacher and surveyor, he not following the occupation of his ancestors. In 1848 Maurice Deeglise emigrated to America, coming to Wisconsin where he engaged in agriculture. Pioneer life was hard and new to the teacher and surveyor and after five years' residence his wife passed away at their home in Theresa buried in the village of Antigo, the home of his son, Francis A. Deeglise.

Francis A. Deeglise was the eldest of the three children brought to America. An older daughter, Catherine, remained in the native land. Young Francis, an intelligent student in the Swiss Canton, found it necessary to aid his father in their new home in America, and he was largely responsible for much of the earnings emptied into the family purse.

On November 29, 1856, he was united in marriage to Mary Bor, at Two Rivers, Wisconsin. Mrs. F. A. Deleglise was born January 1, 1835, in Taus, Bohemia. Her father died in Antigo in the year 1881.

Francis A. Deleglise answered the call of President Lincoln for troops during the Civil War. He enlisted June 28, 1861, in Appleton, Wis., in Company E of the 6th Wis. Vol. Inf., under Captain Marston. He was promoted to Corporal and in July, 1862, when the regiment became attached to the Army of the Potomac, he participated in many of the struggles of the famous "Iron Brigade" of General Bragg. At Antietam, bloodiest Civil War battle, he was wounded September 17, 1862. During the first day's fighting at Gettysburg, he was wounded and taken prisoner, but was later rescued by Union forces. On July 16, 1864, he was honorably discharged, after gloriously serving the colors of the North and leaving behind a record of a valiant soldier. Mr. Deleglise suffered be remembered as the most public spirited Antigo citizen of his day. Mr. Deleglise was a member of the Roman Catholic Church all of his life. He died Easter Sunday, March 25, 1894, in the loyal profession of that faith. Mrs. Deleglise survived her husband fourteen years, dying December 20, 1907.

Mr. and Mrs. Deleglise were survived by five children of the eight born to them. Those who died were: Francis Joseph, John E., Henry, and Edmond. Mrs. Mary Teresa Deresch, eldest child, was the first white settler to enter a government homestead in the wilderness adjacent to Antigo. Mrs. Deresch was for many years the only white woman within a radius of twenty miles.

Mrs. Sophia Leslie, the wife of Sam. E. Leslie, was one of the first Antigo school teachers and assisted her father in platting the village of Antigo. She has two children, Loyal I. and Cyril.

much from exposure and wounds during the war and lost in weight from 180 pounds to less than 100 pounds.

After the Civil War he started locating lands in north central Wisconsin and it was then that he selected the future site of Antigo. He brought his family to Antigo in 1877, located and platted the village, more of which is told elsewhere in this volume.

Mr. Deleglise dealt largely in real estate in Antigo. He was an early Town Chairman, the first County Treasurer, and was elected to the Assembly in 1892, a Republican victor in the Democratic landslide. During his legislative career he made a brilliant record, manifesting his intelligence and his welfare for the constituents whom he represented. He was liberal in all things, donated many sites to industries, churches, and business interests in Antigo. He secured the first storekeeper, the first mill proprietor and banker who came to Antigo. He was farsighted and will forever

Anna E. Morrissey, as a girl of ten, accompanied her father, Antigo's founder, to Langlade County, when he brought with him the first vanguard of settlers. She was the first white child to come to what later became the city of Antigo. Anna E. Morrissey, wife of Thomas Morrissey, has four children, Margaret Virginia, John Francis, Gerald Deleglise, and May.

Adelbert Deleglise is unmarried and lives in Minneapolis.

Alexius L. Deleglise is an able civil engineer and has for many years been City Engineer of Antigo, but at the present time is City Engineer at Merrill, Wisconsin. He has three children, Margaret, Irene and Germaine.

The Deleglise family have enjoyed the respect, confidence and esteem of the citizens of Antigo and Langlade County and their place as pioneers is equalled only by their standing as citizens.

The original charter of the city of Antigo is to the citizens of Antigo what the Declaration of Independence is to the nation at large or what the constitution of Wisconsin is to the citizens of the state in general. The original charter of the city of Antigo is the very foundation upon which the city was created. The government of Antigo has and continues to be, in most respects, in accord with this original document. As a matter of record the complete charter is given herewith.

GENERAL CITY CHARTER ADOPTED.

June 27, 1905, the patent of the general city charter which was then adopted by the city of Antigo was received by the city from the Secretary of State. It brought a number of important changes in city government. The Board of Public Works became a more important body. All public work or city improvement jobs exceeding $200 in value were placed under the direction of this board. The power of eminent domain was greatly extended by the general charter and its operation much more complete. Six years before the adoption of the general charter, in 1899, the ordinances of the city of Antigo were ably revised by the then City Attorney Max Hoffman and were published in book form. No revision followed until when on August 2, 1905, the city council directed the City Clerk, A. M. Arveson and City Attorney, E. A. Morse, to re-write and revise the ordinances and have them issued in book form. They at once complied with the directions of the city council and on March 22, 1906, the revised ordinances were published. Since the revision of 1906, 103 ordinances have been passed by the law making body of the city of Antigo.

A review of the administrations of the Mayors of Antigo is the most feasible way to cover municipal activities in a span of years from 1885 to 1922. This review of Antigo, as a city, commences with the administration of Thomas W. Lynch, the first Mayor, who was elected on April 7, 1885.

corporation as a city, was elected first Mayor of Antigo, April 7, 1885, with practically no opposition, pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 79, Wisconsin laws of 1885. The first meeting of the Aldermen elected from the four wards and the Mayor was held at Spencer's Hall, the site of the Hill Building, Fifth Avenue, April 13, 1885. The city of Antigo was formally created then.

George Clithero, Alderman from the Second Ward was elected President of the first city council, on the second ballot. He defeated D. W. Keen and P. J. Koelzer.

The first ordinance passed prescribed the width of board sidewalks and the manner in which they should be constructed. This ordinance was passed April 16, 1885.

April 13, 1885, a poll tax of $1.50 was made upon every male inhabitant in the city of Antigo between the ages of 21 and 50 years, the said fund to go into the street improvement fund.

The salary of City Marshal was fixed at $50 and W. L. Crocker was chosen first marshal on April 14, 1885. The salary of the city clerk was fixed at $250.

May 1, 1885, the city awarded to Messrs. Wood & George the contract for pulling stumps from the principal Antigo streets for $84, the work to be completed in June, 1885.

Mayor Thomas W. Lynch issued the first public proclamation ever issued by an Antigo Mayor on August 6, 1885 in which he said:

TO THE CITIZENS OF ANTIGO:

"On the 8th of August will occur the funeral of America's great chieftain, General U. S. Grant. An event of equal universal regret has not occurred in our day, nor is likely to happen again. The preparations being made throughout this great country, to pay the final tribute to our world renowned fellow citizen, but feebly speaks the affections of the people for the deceased. Nor is the regret confined to this country; it prevails throughout the world co-existence with his fame; from the humblest village to the grandest metropolis, from the farm to the cabinet, the people are preparing to observe the obsequies of General Grant. It is to meet therefore, that our young city should join in the National event with appropriate ceremonies.

I therefore request that all business be suspended and all business houses close from twelve o'clock noon to four in the afternoon, August 8, 1885, and that the citizens meet at the Odd Fellows' Hall at 2 p. m. and proceed from there to the Antigo Opera House, where appropriate funeral ceremonies will be held.

The exercises will be given under the auspices of the Grand Army of the Republic. All civic societies are requested to be present.

(Signed)

THOMAS W. LYNCH,

Mayor of Antigo.

April 6, 1885.

Mayor Lynch officially welcomed the Wisconsin Press Association to Antigo on August 18, 1885. This was the first state-wide gathering of people who every visited Antigo.

September 15, 1885 at a special election the first vote was taken in the city of Antigo on the license question. The question was whether $500, $350 or $200 should be the annual license to be paid. The voters declared in favor of a $500 license by a vote of 42 majority. The total vote was 181 for $500; 19 for $350 license; and 120 for $200 license.

June 7, 1885, the city purchased fire apparatus for the volunteer fire department from Bailey & Gleason by a vote of 7 to 1. The fire apparatus was accepted on July 3, 1885, and a hook and ladder truck was purchased for $350.

W. F. White was elected first Antigo City Attorney on August 6, 1885.

Sixteen ordinances were passed during the Administration of Mayor Thomas W. Lynch. The last meeting of the common council under his administration was held April 12, 1886, when Mayor elect M. M. Ross and the new city officers qualified and took the oath of office.

ADMINISTRATION OF MUNSON M. ROSS— 1886-1887.

Munson Monroe Ross, the second Mayor of Antigo, was elected to the office April 6, 1886, over Geo. W. Latta. Mayor-elect Ross lead the Democratic city ticket. The election was very exciting the chief controversies were between the Mayoralty candidates and the vote on the license question. The license of saloons was discontinued in the city by a very large vote. Mayor Ross, born August 22, 1853, came to Antigo in June, 1881, and permanently located in the village in September, 1881. He was elected by a vote of 353 as against 200 for Mr. Latta. April 12, 1886, Mayor Ross presided for the first time over the city council. D. W. Keen was elected President of the council, Ed. McKinney was selected City Marshal, at this first session. George Schintz was elected the second City Attorney of Antigo on April 19, 1886.

In June, 1886, the city purchased a second hand steamer for fire fighting purposes from the city of Appleton. The apparatus proved very necessary and paid for itself in one fire.

Mayor Ross issued an order closing all "Casino" and other club rooms where liquor was sold in violation of the city government November 24, 1886.

In February, 1887, the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western railroad decided to locate its shops and machine factory at Antigo after the Ross administration, with the assistance of many public spirited citizens, made arrangements for an $8,000 appropriation to purchase the necessary grounds for the industry. This action meant much to Antigo—in fact if not then accomplished, Antigo probably today would not be the important railroad center that it is.

A public subscription was started to raise money to purchase the grounds for the railroad property and $4,300 was obtained in that way.

Mayor Ross was an efficient Mayor. When elected he was at Sheboygan, Wisconsin, but took charge of city affairs with vigor upon his return. His administration was handicapped due to the lack of funds, however. Nevertheless during his term of office considerable street improvements were made and the city in general made good progress.

Mayor Ross was succeeded in office by Daniel W. Keen, who was the first Mayor to be elected under the city charter after its first revision.

THE ADMINISTRATION OF DANIEL W. KEEN— 1887-1888.

Daniel W. Keen, former Alderman and public spirited citizen, was the first Mayor elected after the first revision of the original city charter. He defeated Charles S. Leykom, who was nominated at a meeting held at the headquarters of the Antigo Business Men's Association on April 15, 1887. The Business Men's Association and those affiliated with it were "for economical and conservative government and for the election of men who will faithfully discharge the duties devolving upon them." Mr. Keen led the Union Tax Payer's ticket, in opposition to the Business Men's Citizen's Ticket.

Mayor Keen presided at the first council meeting under his administration on May 9, 1887. Alderman L. Mendlick was elected President of the city council.

The first ordinance passed under the Keen administration was one granting L. K. Strong and his associates the privilege of erecting, operating and maintaining a system of electric lighting in Antigo.

A municipal well was authorized constructed in June, 1887. This well was located at the intersection of Fifth Avenue and Daskam (Morse) Street and B. P. Hopkins of New London, Wisconsin, secured the contract to dig the well, the first municipal one in Antigo.

Upon petition of many citizens an ordinance was passed May 17, 1887 discontinuing the following streets in Antigo. Commencing at the southeast corner of Pacific street, running thence northerly along the west line of the right-of-way of the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western railroad to a point in the north line of lot nine (9) in block forty-one (41), extended thence westerly on the line of lot 9, extended twenty-two feet, thence southerly to the place of beginning. Also the east twenty-two feet of Pacific street from the north line of said lot 9 extended to Fifth Avenue, the easterly twenty-two feet of all that part of Reed Street lying between Fifth and Fourth Avenues, the east twenty-two feet of that part of Reed Street between Fourth and Third Avenues; all of Reed Street lying between Third Avenue and the north line of First Avenue; all that part of First Avenue between the westerly line of lot 1, block 2, extended northerly to the north line of said First Avenue and the east boundary of lot 4, of block 1, extended north to the north line of said First Avenue; all that part of Second Avenue lying between the west line of lot 1, block 12, extending northerly to the west line of lot 10, block 2, and the east boundary line of lot 4, block 11, extended northerly to the east line of lot 15, block 1; all that part of the alley lying between blocks 9 and 10, block 1 and lying between lots 9 and 10, block 11.

These streets and alleys were discontinued to make room for the extensive improvements of the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western railroad.

In 1887 the common council passed an ordinance exempting all manufacturing plants from taxation for a period of five years, that would locate in the city of Antigo and would guarantee steady employment to at least twenty men.

Mayor Keen served until the election in April, 1888, when Thomas W. Lynch, Antigo's first Mayor, was elected. He was nominated by a coalition of Democrats and Republicans. He defeated W. E. Jones and W. B. Badger. The latter was the Prohibition candidate.

THE SECOND ADMINISTRATION OF THOMAS W. LYNCH—1888-1889.

Thomas W. Lynch began his second administration of Antigo municipal affairs on April 9, 1888. Mayor Lynch delivered his message to the new city council and made many specific recommendations regarding important city questions. He said among other things: "We have agreed to assume the trust of administering the affairs of the city for the coming year. In performing that trust the welfare and best interest of the city, present and future, should be our sole aim. Public money is just as sacred as private money. Between necessary and unnecessary expenses we should use the judgment that any prudent business man would use in his own business."

April 9, 1888, W. H. Dawley was elected President of the city council, defeating J. A. Thursby.

Saloon licenses were granted for the first time since the first administration of Mayor Lynch.

Ed. McKenna was appointed Marshal of Antigo by Mayor Lynch after the various municipal committees were appointed.

The Wisconsin Press Association made its second visit to Antigo on July 25, 1888 and a public reception was given the editors. Mayor Lynch delivered the address of welcome. Among the visitors were Editor W. D. Hoard of Ft. Atkinson and John Hicks, President of the Association. Mayor Lynch, P. J. Millard, A. B. Millard, J. C. Lewis, W. H. Dawley, J. A. Ogden, G. W. Latta and H. G. Borgman, accompanied the editors from Antigo to Rhinelander.

Applications for sidewalks (plank) were granted at every meeting of the city council during this administration.

In 1889 the matter of making certain amendments to the city charter was taken up by the Mayor and the city council.

The Sixth Ward was created as a result of revision of the charter and the boundary of the city was extended one half mile each way.

The Lynch administration of 1888-89 was less momentous than that of 1885-86 when that citizen who played such an important part in Antigo municipal affairs first piloted the municipal ship. Mayor Lynch was succeeded by Dr. J. F. Doyle. The proposed amendments to the city charter were endorsed by the electorate.

THE ADMINISTRATION OF MAYOR J. F. DOYLE —1889-90.

The first meeting of the city council under the Doyle administration was held on Monday, April 8, 1889. Mayor Doyle made some important suggestions to the Aldermen of the various wards, his address following the farewell speech of the outgoing Mayor Thomas W. Lynch.

One of the important achievements of this administration was the appointment of a committee, consisting of the Mayor, W. H. Dawley and H. C. Humphrey to investigate the matter of water works for the city of Antigo. This was not the first time the water works question was brought to the attention of the city, but this was the first practical step toward the solution of the problem.

June 28, 1889, a mass meeting was held at the city council rooms for the purpose of discussing the water question. H. G. Borgman and W. B. Johns were appointed to look over city water works in other cities.

H. C. Humphrey, J. H. Trever and Hon. Thomas W. Lynch were selected to represent the city of Antigo to confer with officials of the M. L. S. & W. R. R. Co. regarding alleged rumors that the Antigo shops would be moved to Kaukauna, Wis. The committee reported that the company had made no such plans and intimated that Antigo would ultimately be the point where the Lake Shore system would have its largest shops.

During the administration of Mayor Doyle, the city adopted the report of a committee on schools and authorized the expenditure of "not more than $20,000 for the erection of a high school in block 63."

The first ordinance making it necessary for transient merchants to pay a municipal license was passed by the city council in October, 1889.

The first arc lights were installed in Antigo on the principal streets during the Doyle administration by the Antigo Edison Electric Light Company.

The polling places for the municipal election of 1890 were fixed as follows: First Ward—Teipner's sample room; Second Ward—The Council Rooms; Third Ward—The school house; Fourth Ward—School house; Fifth Ward—Ratskey building, near Larzelere Livery; Sixth Ward—Freiburger's Shop, near bridge.

Mayor Doyle was succeeded by Dr. I. D. Steffen, who was elected April 1, 1890. Dr. Steffen defeated G. W. Latta. The city council under Mayor Doyle assembled for the last time on April 8, 1890, completed its work and turned over the city's destiny to the new Mayor and the new council. Dr. J. F. Doyle, the retiring Mayor and Dr. I. D. Steffen, Mayor-elect, delivered appropriate addresses.

THE FIRST ADMINISTRATION OF MAYOR I. D. STEFFEN—1890-91.

April 8, 1890, the first meeting of the new city council under Mayor I. D. Steffen was called to order by the new chief executive. W. H. Dawley was selected President of the council for the year, T. H. Robbins was elected City Marshal, H. A. Mills was chosen Deputy City Marshal, the retiring Mayor, Dr. J. F. Doyle was chosen as City Physician and F. J. Finucane was elected City Attorney at this meeting.

The subject of water works, which had been constantly before the Doyle administration was one of the problems with which the Steffen administration had to cope.

April 16, 1890, the city council thoroughly considered the question of water works for the growing city of Antigo. The rental system was decided to be the most feasible system to adopt. April 30, 1890, the proposals for the erection of a plant were opened by the city council and a committee was selected by Mayor Steffen to report May 2, 1890. The result was that a special election was authorized to be held May 31, 1890, at which time the voters decided by a vote of 621 to 39 to permit a tax levy of $4,000 per year to pay the rental of such a system as it might adopt. The vote demonstrated that the people were then fully alert to prosperity and needs of the city. New bids were at once called for by the city council and on June 12, 1890, the council adopted and granted a franchise to W. G. Maxcy, giving him the exclusive right to maintain a system of water works in Antigo for fire and domestic purposes for a term of thirty years (1890-1920). The question of levying a tax of $4,000 per year for a term of thirty years to pay fire hydrant rentals was again put before the electorate on July 28, 1890, and the people were in favor of the proposal by an overwhelming vote of 514 to 21.

The water plant was in operation by January 1, 1891 and this marked an important step in the municipal advancement of Antigo. We shall learn more of the water works in the administrations following.

Through the efforts of the city council under Mayor Steffen the Kingsbury & Henshaw flour mill and the saw mill, eventually, important industries in Antigo, were obtained in May, 1890.

November 24, 1890, the new hose cart for the fire department was received and accepted by the city council. Arrangements were made at this time by the council to provide sleeping quarters for four men in the fire department and to always have a team of horses on hand to haul fire apparatus to any fire.

The Frost Veneer Seating Company erected their plant in Antigo in the months of November-December, 1891, during the Steffen administration. W. D. Badger erected the plant.

The city council passed an ordinance in February, 1892, authorizing the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western Railway Co. to construct and maintain a track across the streets between the Frost Veneer plant and the Antigo Screen Door Company plant. This track is a part of what is commonly called the "belt line."

During the administration of 1890, Dr. Steffen was also President of the School Board and at this time also the first high school building was erected in the block now occupied for high school purposes.

THE ADMINISTRATION OF CASSIUS F. SMITH —1891-92.

Cassius F. Smith was elected Mayor of Antigo in April, 1891, by defeating W. H. Dawley. Mayor Smith was the unanimous choice of the Republicans of the city. He defeated his opponent by a vote of 437 to 357 in a contest that was very exciting.

The first meeting of the city council under Mayor Smith was held on April 14, 1891. Mayor Smith selected T. H. Robbins as City Marshal; Louis Novotny as Street Commissioner; Attorney George W. Latta as City Attorney; Dr. J. H. Dawley as City Physician and B. F. Dorr as the first City Engineer.

CASSIUS F. SMITH

Mayor of Antigo—1891-92.

During his administration many new buildings were erected in Antigo and streets were generally improved.

The stand pipe of the Antigo Water Company was erected in April, 1891. Ed. LaLonde was then Superintendent of the plant.

At that time the Antigo Water Works park was considered the best in Antigo.

The question of cattle running at large on the streets was again given serious discussion by the city council.

May, 1891, the city fire department, with the sanction of the city council, responded to many calls in the outskirts of the city, where forest fires were raging. During this month thousands of dollars of property was destroyed by the forest fires, among which was one at Bryant and Kent, Price township.

Mill Street, between Seventh Avenue and Eighth Avenue, was discontinued by the city to make room for extensive improvements by the Crocker Chair Company.

During the Smith administration G. E. Frost, President of the Frost Veneer Seating Company of Sheboygan and William Calhoun, an official of that concern together with W. D. Badger, Manager of their plant at Elcho, conferred with the city officials regarding the location of their plant at Antigo.

A bonus was granted the company and as a result the mill was moved from Elcho to Antigo.

Mayor Smith retired from office in April, 1892, declining to become a candidate for re-election. Shortly afterwards he moved from Antigo and today he is President of the Chicago Lumber and Veneer Company, Chicago, Ill., which concern has extensive operations over a wide field.

THE SECOND ADMINISTRATION OF MAYOR J. F. DOYLE—1892-93.

Mayor J. F. Doyle defeated John A. Ogden by a vote of 488 to 326, a majority of 162 votes. The entire Democratic ticket of the city was elected with the exception of a Justice of the Peace. The license question again came up and the vote was 643 for license and 157 against license, or a majority of 486 in favor of granting license.

April 11, 1892, the city council was organized under the Doyle administration. Ex-Mayor Steffen was elected President of the city council, T. H. Robbins as City Marshal; L. Novotny as Street Commissioner; G. R. Shaw as City Physician; W. F. White as City Attorney; Dr. J. H. Dawley as Health Officer; Mayor Doyle in his recommendations to the council dwelt with length on the financial conditions, treasury settlements, the street fund, the industrial bonus proposition and the publicity of council proceedings.

May 11, 1892, the city council authorized the enforcement of the ordinance prohibiting the running at large of cattle and elected Andrew Teske as Pound-Master. A fee of twenty-five cents was authorized paid to any individual who would drive any cattle running at large on the city streets to the city pound. This ordinance had its effect, when enforced, as but few cattle ran at large in Antigo since.

July 21, 1892, Mayor Doyle "unofficially" straddled L. E. Bucknam's bicycle and quite a crowd gathered on the corner of Clermont Street and Fifth Avenue expecting to see some fun but the Mayor got aboard with the agility of an expert and rode away on the "wonder machine" to the bewilderment of the people.

The city council, at a special meeting, November 1, 1893, decided to extend the Superior Street water main to Tenth Avenue to afford fire protection to the Antigo Manufacturing Company. The plant had been destroyed by fire the day before.

THE ADMINISTRATION OF J. F. ALBERS—1893-94.

The mayoralty campaign of the spring of 1893 was really started by the Citizens' League, a non-partisan organization, whose object was "to get the men best fitted for public service into office," to look over the transactions of the city council and the county board and to stand for economy and low taxation." The coalition of Democrats, Republicans and Prohibitionists endorsed and supported J. F. Albers for Mayor. The Democrats put up J. L. Klocke. Thus the contest was between two prominent business men of the city.

Mr. Albers was elected, receiving 464 votes to 350 for Mr. Klocke. D. J. Mahoney was elected City Clerk and the contest for City Treasurer between L.

J. F. ALBERS
Mayor of Antigo—1893-94.

Buckman and John McCarthy was a tie, which when settled by lot, resulted in Mr. McCarthy's victory.

When the result of the Mayoralty election was announced the adherents of the Citizens' League held a great parade and celebration on Fifth Avenue, which brought back the old days of 1884 when the Blaine and Cleveland torch processions were so lively.

The vote was canvassed by the city council on April 6, 1893.

The administration of Mayor Albers' was launched on April 10, 1893, with the organization of the city council of which T. D. Kellogg was chosen President. T. H. Robbins was elected City Marshal; A. C. Conway, City Attorney; Dr. I. D. Steffen, City Physician; L. Corrigan, Street Commissioner and B. F. Dorr, City Engineer.

The estimated operating expenses for the ensuing year were given at $23,476.20.

During this administration the great Weed mill fire occurred on May 20, 1893. Mayor Albers telegraphed to Rhinelander for aid which came at once.

An ordinance was passed by the city council stopping all bicycle riding on sidewalks of the city. The wheel men of Antigo resented this ordinance as the streets of the city were traveled by wheel with difficulty.

Acting upon the petition of residents a hose cart was established in both the Third and Fourth Wards during this administration.

City Marshal O'Connor applied for a franchise to erect and maintain a telephone exchange in Antigo in 1894 and his application was granted by the council.

The report was current during this administration that the Northwestern railroad would remove their shops from Antigo to Monico and thus minimize the importance of Antigo as a railroad center. Public spirited Antigo citizens together with the city council placed the matter before the officials of the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad Company and were given assurance that the shops would remain in the city. Thus an industry of great importance was retained.

The Citizens' League of Antigo became a potent force as the end of the Albers' administration approached. It was non-partisan in character. Dr. I. D. Steffen was President; W. H. Blinn, Vice-President; J. C. Lewis, Secretary; J. F. Albers, Treasurer; Advisors were: A. M. Millard, John E. Martin, W. F. White, M. F. Crowe and H. G. Borgman. The Committee on Special Inquiry consisted of Ed. Daskam, J. C. Spencer and John A. Ogden.

Mayor Albers was followed by George W. Hill, a Democrat, who served his first term as Mayor from 1894-95.

THE FIRST ADMINISTRATION OF GEORGE W. HILL—1894-95.

George W. Hill, a pioneer Antigo citizen, was first elected Mayor on April 3, 1894 defeating Dr. I. D. Steffen. Although a Democrat Mr. Hill did not have the support of the Democrat organ of the city in the election.

The first council meeting was held April 9, 1894. Mayor Hill appointed various committees and the council elected the following officers: President of the council—T. D. Kellogg; City Marshal—Peter O'Connor; Deputy Marshal—Frank Cunningham; City Attorney—W. F. White; Street Commissioner—L. Corrigan; City Engineer—B. F. Dorr; City Physician—Dr. I. D. Steffen. Fire Wardens were appointed in each ward.

By reason of the defeat of the proposition to increase the water tax $500 at the annual municipal election the city council ordered a special election to be held April 30, 1894. The proposal for the increase was defeated at the annual election due to the misunderstanding of the question. Thus when the vote was taken the second time it resulted in 419 in favor of the increase and but 75 against the proposition. This gave the city authorities power to grant extensions of the water works as the means of the city afforded.

In June, 1894, the city council, after a demonstration had been made before Mayor Hill and members of the council by three different machines, authorized the purchase of an Austin road machine for use on Antigo streets.

In 1894 there was considerable propaganda about the city purchasing the water works.

Fifteen hundred feet of hose for the volunteer fire department was purchased by the Committee on Fire and Water of the city council in August, 1894.

GEORGE W. HILL

First served as Mayor of Antigo in 1894-95.

A new fire department was organized in November, 1894, and the organization was accepted by the city council. An arrangement was made for four pipemen to sleep in the engine house, the city to purchase a team of horses and the volunteers agreed to furnish a volunteer chief, whose services were gratuitous.

In February, 1895, the finance committee of the city council was instructed to act with the Antigo Board of Education to devise ways and means for the construction of a new school house in the Second Ward. The proposition was finally defeated.

Mayor Hill served until April 8, 1895, when Mayor-elect R. H. McMullen presided over the city affairs for the first time.

THE ADMINISTRATIONS OF R. H. McMULLEN—1895-98.

R. H. McMullen came to Antigo in 1880 from Chilton, Calumet County, Wisconsin, and at once became an active leader in the affairs of the village and city of Antigo. He was chosen the first City Treasurer in 1885 and held other offices. He was first elected Mayor of Antigo on April 2, 1895, defeating the Republican candidate for Mayor, John A. Ogden, by a vote of 483 to 410. With the exception of one city officer and five members of the city council the entire official roster was Democratic.

Among the outstanding events during his administrations were the proposal to raise a sum sufficient to erect a new school in the Second Ward. The proposal went down to defeat on April 2, 1895.

A. M. Lanning was elected President of the city council under Mayor McMullen during his first administration. Ordinance No. 75 amended ordinance No. 42, prescribed new fire limits for the city and regulated the construction of buildings within those limits.

The telephone franchise of Peter O'Connor was repealed during the year 1895.

As a result of a conference with Superintendent G. F. Bidwell, Mayor McMullen and the council succeeded in having the Chicago & Northwestern railroad construct crossings at all Antigo streets and to maintain an arc light on Fifth Avenue at their crossing.

During the McMullen administration the Antigo Opera House, where the first county fair was held was burned to the ground. Hoeffler Brothers were then in charge of it. The fire was on May 22, 1895.

The license question was voted upon September 17, 1895, and $500 as an annual license was again decided upon by the voters.

Mayor McMullen was successively elected until 1898. In March, 1896, caucuses were held in Antigo Wards and T. D. Kellogg was nominated by the Republicans to contest the Mayoralty with Mr. McMullen. The result was the re-election of Mr. McMullen by a vote of 608-314.

The new city council met on April 13, 1896, and the following official roster was created: City Attorney—F. J. Finucane; City Physician—Dr. T. L. Harrington; City Marshal—John McArthur; Deputy Marshal—Isaac Lamont; Street Commissioner—Larry Corrigan; City Engineer—B. F. Dorr; Department Driver—Chet Hugunin; Janitor—M. Devoy.

April 6, 1897, Mayor McMullen was again victorious for the office. He defeated John A. Ogden by a vote of 510 to 457. The appointive city officials remained the same with the exception of City Physician, M. J. Lower, being selected.

Mayor McMullen and the city council did considerable street work during his last administration. There was then considerable agitation about paving Fifth Avenue. Nothing definite was then decided.

He served until the election of John F. Dailey on April 5, 1898.

In 1919 Mr. McMullen moved from Antigo to Portland, Oregon, which has been his home since. He was born in Marysburg, Ontario, Canada on May 10, 1850.

Mayor McMullen was the first citizen to be continuously elected by the voters of Antigo for three consecutive terms. He was the first Antigo Mayor to be re-elected after the expiration of his first term. Other mayors had been previously re-elected but their terms were not consecutive.

THE ADMINISTRATION OF JOHN F. DAILEY— 1898-99.

John F. Dailey was elected Mayor of Antigo on April 5, 1898, defeating W. B. Johns by a vote of 571 to 349. Mr. Dailey was the Democrat nominee and Mr. Johns was the Republican choice. Mayor Dailey was born on December 26, 1856, at Ogdensburg, Waupaca County, Wisconsin. He spent his early youth on a farm and secured his schooling at Waupaca. When a young man he became Superintendent of a large saw mill at Manawa, Wisconsin. He moved to Strassburg, Langlade County, eight years later and there operated a saw mill for nearly six years. From Strassburg in 1897 he came to Antigo and opened up a shoe store.

The principal events of his administration were the macadamizing of Fifth Avenue and the revision of the city ordinances by City Attorney Max Hoffman and the City Clerk.

Mayor Dailey was requested to run for re-election but refused because of business affairs.

The last meeting of the city council under his administration was held April 10, 1899. Mayor Dailey thanked the city council for the courtesies extended him during his administration and then the city council of 1898-99 adjourned.

Dr. I. D. Steffen followed Mayor Dailey in office, this being Dr. Steffen's second administration.

It was during the Dailey administration that the printing offices of the Antigo Herald, The Antigo Republican and the Weekly News Item were entered and the mechanical plants were damaged, January 19, 1899. The city council at their meeting of January 22, 1899, offered a reward of $250 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the party or parties who perpetrated the deed.

The city council tabled a request for aid when the Antigo Public Library Association presented a petition signed by one hundred tax payers on February 6, 1899.

Mayor Dailey moved to Birnamwood shortly after his term of office. He passed away on October 21, 1908, at that place. Many prominent citizens of Antigo attended his funeral.

THE SECOND ADMINISTRATION OF MAYOR I. D. STEFFEN—1899-1901.

Dr. I. D. Steffen was nominated on March 19, 1899 at a meeting held in the old council rooms. The meeting was non-partisan in character. A complete ticket was placed in the field by the non-partisans, with P. J. Millard for Clerk, Anton Schultz for Treasurer and Jos. Duchac and J. W. Allerton for Assessors.

The Democrats were lead by Leonard Freiburger, who, like Dr. Steffen, was a pioneer Antigo resident. This contest for the Mayor's office was the most exciting political contest ever conducted in Antigo up to that time. Dr. Steffen was elected over Mr. Freiburger by a close vote. Peter Chadek defeated P. J. Millard for City Clerk by thirteen majority. Anton Schultz was defeated for City Treasurer by James Wagner, who received 460 votes to 448 for the former.

The city council under the Steffen administration employed Edgar Williams, a civil engineer, of Chicago, to prepare plans for a sewerage system in Antigo in August, 1899.

An ordinance was passed on August 18, 1899 to bond the city of Antigo in the sum of $10,000 for the erection of a city hall. The same time Edgar Williams of Chicago submitted plans for a modern sewerage system in Antigo.

The new third ward school was erected during this administration. It was opened for school purposes on February 5, 1900.

Plans of the architect, Van Ryan, for the construction of the city hall were adopted by the city council on October 3, 1899. Mayor Steffen, Fred Ebert, C. O. Marsh and T. D. Kellogg constituted the building committee. The city hall was ready for use in February, 1900.

Dr. I. D. Steffen was re-elected Mayor on April 3, 1900 by defeating George W. Hill by 125 majority.

During his second administration Mayor Steffen continued his policies as enunciated when he became a Mayoralty candidate in 1899. His re-election was a vindication of his previous record.

Mayor Steffen served until April 1, 1901, when the city council was reorganized and the reins of the city government were taken over by R. H. McMullen.

THE ADMINISTRATION OF R. H. McMULLEN—1901-02.

April 2, 1901, R. H. McMullen was again chosen Mayor. He defeated Walter L. Elliott. The first meeting of the city council under his administration was on April 9, 1902, when the following city officials were chosen: President of the city council—Leonard Freiburger, Sr.; City Attorney—E. A. Morse; City Physician—Dr. M. J. Lower; Marshal—John McArthur; Deputy Marshal—G. L. Drake; Street Commissioner—A. B. Hanks; City Engineer—B. F. Dorr.

The city hall had been nearly completed during the administration of Dr. I. D. Steffen. The city clock was installed during the tenure in office of Mayor McMullen.

Antigo's Fire Department at that time had one hose cart, three hand hose carts, 2,800 feet of cotton and linen hose in good condition, 1,400 feet of rubber hose, six hydrant wrenches, ten play pipes, twelve spanners, ten pair of rubber boots, fifteen rubber coats and thirteen rubber hats for the equipment of the firemen.

At a special election held August 26, 1901, the matter of bonding the city of Antigo in the sum of $18,000 to put in a complete sewerage system was placed before the people. It was voted down by a vote of 273 to 170, or a majority of 103 who were against the measure.

Mayor McMullen served his last term as city executive of Antigo in 1901-02 and was succeeded by Thomas W. Hogan, who defeated W. L. Elliott, nominated on March 23, 1902. That day nominees were placed in nomination by Republican and Democrat conventions. There were times when, due to some dissension among certain wings of each city political coterie, a coalition ticket was placed before the electorate.

THE ADMINISTRATION OF THOMAS W. HOGAN—1902-04.

Thomas W. Hogan was elected Mayor of Antigo on April 1, 1902 by defeating Walter L. Elliott by a vote of 584 to 380. Mr. Hogan was nominated by the Democrats and Mr. Elliott by the Republican city organization.

On April 7, 1902, Mayor Hogan outlined his policies to the new city council. He made two suggestions, one that the fire team should sprinkle Fifth Avenue and that the street commissioner should also act as weed commissioner. He ignored party lines in the appointment of city officers. T. D. Kellogg was chosen President of the council by the aldermen. John McArthur was again named City Marshal with August Vogel and William Berner as his deputies; Dr. Fred V. Watson was elected City Physician and Max Hoffman as City Attorney. B. F. Dorr and Larry Corrigan were again chosen for the offices of City Engineer and Street Commissioner respectively. G. O. Palminter was made Chief of the Antigo Fire Department. Miss Maude Beattie was appointed Deputy City Clerk.

THOMAS W. HOGAN
Elected Mayor of Antigo in April, 1902.

One of the first acts of Mayor Hogan was to order all gambling devices and slot machines removed from saloons, public halls and tobacco shops.

May 5, 1902, a Board of Public Works was created, the first one in the city, and Aldermen M. F. Crowe, Leonard Freiburger, Sr., and Frank P. Ver Bryck were elected. J. F. Albers was then selected City Comptroller. The suggestion for the Board of Public Works was made by Alderman I. D. Steffen.

A new system of accounting was installed in the city offices in May, 1902 by G. D. Bartz, Wausau, expert.

May 30, 1902, the Board of Public Works recommended the installation of a more effective sewerage system in Antigo, but the proposals were defeated by the city council. The report of the Board of Public Works was then amended at the city council's request and was adopted at a meeting of that body on June 17, 1902. August 23, 1902, Harding, Nelson & Johnson of Racine, were granted the sewerage contract for $19,000.00.

Antigo's officials, including the Mayor and the city council, took part in the great reunion of the 14th Wisconsin infantry of Civil War fame, in Antigo June 18, 19 and 20, 1902.

Antigo was connected with Milwaukee by long distance telephone on October 2, 1902. The first telephone conversation to leave Antigo was one from the Antigo Republican requesting a supplement from Milwaukee containing Governor La Follette's speech at Milwaukee.

THE FIRST ADMINISTRATION OF FRED HAYSSEN—1904-06.

Fred Hayssen was elected Mayor of Antigo for the first time on April 5, 1904. He did not have any opposition, receiving 812 votes. The chief event of his first administration was the revision of the charter of the city in 1905.

Fulton Street was opened as far north as the First Ward school in 1905 upon petition of residents in that part of the city.

Alderman Frank P. Ver Bryck and John Olk resigned as Aldermen from the First and Sixth Ward respectively on August 1, 1905. W. A. Maertz succeeded Mr. Ver Bryck and Thomas Morrissey succeeded Mr. Olk.

Extension of sewers to various parts of the growing city was one of the achievements of the administration.

During the Hayssen administration the City Park, two blocks between Eighth and Ninth Avenues, east of Watson street, was purchased by the city council.

April 4, 1906, the last meeting of the city council under the first Hayssen regime was held. George W. Hill, the incoming Mayor, then took office for the second time.

Much public building was one of the noticeable occurrences during the term of Mayor Hayssen.

THE SECOND ADMINISTRATION OF GEORGE W. HILL—1906-08.

George W. Hill was elected Mayor of Antigo on April 4, 1906, by defeating J. F. Albers. The contest was one of the most exciting in the history of the city. Mr. Hill won by fifteen votes, he receiving 546 to 531 votes for his opponent.

The Hill administration took over the government of the city the following day, April 5, 1906. Mayor Hayssen and the old city council "cleared the deck" and in a few appropriate words the retiring Mayor bid farewell to his former associates. Mayor Hill made a plea for harmony in the conduct of the city and urged all factions to forget differences in the interest of the city's welfare.

In April, 1906, the contract for the remodeling of the second floor of the public library for training school purposes was let to Thomas Solar, at $1,117.00.

The Mary Deleglise park, block 68, city of Antigo, was sold to Mayor Hill on September 21, 1906. This block was platted and soon became an important addition to residential Antigo.

The estimated expense for operating the city of Antigo in 1906-07 according to R. Koebke, J. J. French and G. O. Palmiter, members of the Board of Public Works of that time, were $50,983.00.

During the Hill regime additional powers were accorded the Mayor by the city council in the enforcement of all rules governing the Antigo Fire Department.

Another important event in Antigo history happened during this period. November 14, 1906, the old C. & N. W. depot was removed from its foundation to make room for the modern depot now used.

Many blocks of cement walks and extensive additions to the sewerage system were laid during this term.

Mayor Hill served until the spring of 1908 when his former rival, ex-Mayor Fred Hayssen was again elected.

THE ADMINISTRATION OF FRED HAYSSSEN—1908-10.

Fred Hayssen, a pioneer Langlade County resident, who in an early day, before his residence in Antigo, had been in business at Bryant, Price township, was elected Mayor of Antigo on April 7, 1908. He defeated three other candidates, Leonard Freiburger, George W. Hill and A. F. Brehmer. Mr. Freiburger was his nearest rival, receiving 418 votes to 507 for Mr. Hayssen. Hayssen was elected on a platform of rigid economy in the conduct of the city and took advantage of the dissension in the ranks of his political rivals.

The license of saloons was again voted upon. For license again proved victorious. The vote stood: For License—770; Against License—451.

The city council under the Hayssen administration organized on April 21, 1908. Mayor Hayssen plead for harmony in the conduct of city affairs, making it plain that he would oppose any appropriations for improvements unless the money was provided previously.

James Steber was elected President of the city council, William Coblentz was elected Chief of Police, S. J. McMahan was elected City Attorney, Dr. G. W. Moore was chosen City Physician and B. F. Dorr as City Engineer.

June 20, 1908, the Antigo Water Company refused to give the city officials a test of the system. Four days previously the city council instructed the Board of Public Works to engage a competent engineer to furnish estimates of the cost of a complete water works for the city of Antigo. This was a direct defy to the Antigo Water Company. The test was made at a later date.

The law suit of the City of Antigo vs. The Antigo Water Company was argued before the railroad rate commission in 1908. The suit was instituted because the city was not satisfied with the company's program of improvements. The railroad rate commission sent four experts to Antigo on July 14, 1908, to make an examination of the water plant. A partial decision was handed down by the railroad rate commission in which the finding was "the testimony shows that the present water supply of the Antigo Water Company is inadequate." The company was given three months to take steps necessary for securing and maintaining a reasonably adequate supply of wholesome water. The order, however, was a provisional one, supplemented later by a more elaborate discussion.

August 4, 1908, the Board of Public Works of Antigo was authorized to advertise for bids for paving Clermont Street from Fourth to First Avenue.

September 17, 1908, the city council began plans for the erection of a sewerage disposal plant and John W. Alvord of Chicago was instructed to make estimations and recommendations relative to the erection of such a plant.

Hayssen served until the election of Burt W. Rynders.

THE ADMINISTRATION OF BURT W. RYNDERS—1910-12.

Burt W. Rynders, who had served in the Hayssen administration as Acting Mayor for many months, was elected Mayor of Antigo on April 5, 1910. He defeated George W. Hill by a vote of 648 to 622 in a hot fought contest. Both men appealed for support on the merits of their past records. The license question was again voted upon at this election and, as usual, was defeated by the overwhelming vote of 823 to 337.

Inadequate fire protection for the city was one of the chief questions confronting the Mayor and city council during the Rynder's administration. January 3, 1911, the fire and water committee of the council was ordered to investigate the cost of a modern fire engine.

The city council, February 7, 1911, delivered an ultimatum to the owners of the Antigo Water Company in which it was declared that "unless the said company does not comply fully with all the terms of its franchise on or before July 1, 1911, court proceedings would be instituted in the courts of the state or before the Railroad Rate Commission in order that the city and its inhabitants may be adequately supplied with water for the purposes of fire protection and for domestic use." This was but a part of the long fight between that concern and the city and which eventually led to the purchase of the water works by the city.

In the spring election, April 4, 1911, little interest was manifested.

April 8, 1911, the city council took favorable action on a petition of abutting property owners on Clermont Street between First and Fourth Avenues in which they requested that the street be paved. Westrumite asphalt was laid the following summer.

The Department of the Interior selected the post office site in April, 1911.

March 1, 1911, a petition signed by many citizens called upon the city of Antigo to construct and maintain an entirely new water system in Antigo, "because the present mains and pumps are not of sufficient capacity to furnish the necessary water and pressure for adequate fire protection."

Dr. G. W. Moore was elected City Health Officer and H. F. Morson chosen City Attorney to succeed City Attorney S. J. McMahan in May, 1918.

Extensive improvements were inaugurated by the Antigo Water Company, under the supervision of F. C. Robinson, expert waterworks man of Manitowoc, Wis., on June, 1911.

Work was started on the new sewerage disposal plant in Rolling township in June, 1911.

A water test by the Antigo Water Works was accepted by the city on June 29, 1911.

The American La France steam engine for the Antigo Fire Department was purchased during the Rynders administration. The old dispute between the city and the Antigo Water Works was settled.

Mayor Rynders served until in April, 1912. George W. Hill was then elected Mayor for the term 1912-13.

THE LAST ADMINISTRATION OF GEORGE W. HILL—1912-APRIL 20, 1913.

George W. Hill was again elected Mayor, defeating Burt W. Rynders for that office on April 12, 1912. Four days later the new city council was called into session. Mayor Hill advocated strict economy in the administration of the city. He took the office of Mayor following the farewell address of the retiring Mayor B. W. Rynders.

James Steber was elected President of the city council. F. Reindl, John McGreer and J. J. Laughlin were then made members of the Board of Public Works.

A proposal to establish a fire alarm system in Antigo was voted down by the city on July 1, 1912.

July 8, 1912, the Antigo Fire Department received a new team, which was purchased from the Ullman Sales stable.

H. F. Morson, who resigned, was succeeded as City Attorney by R. H. Smelker on July 16, 1912.

An ordinance for the building of a $30,000 trunk line sewer to relieve flood conditions in the northern part of the city was defeated at a special session of the city council on October 16, 1912.

Mayor Hill served as an efficient officer until his death at Montague, Muskegon County, Michigan on April 20, 1913. He was born on March 15, 1857, the son of Homer and Elizabeth Hill and came to Antigo in 1882. Mayor Hill was active in city and county politics from then until his death. His body lay in state at the M. E. Church until the funeral April 24, 1913. His eulogy was read by Rev. M. L. Eversz.

The following day Leonard Freiburger was elected Mayor of Antigo.

THE ADMINISTRATION OF LEONARD FREIBURGER, SR.—1913-14.

Leonard Freiburger, Sr., a member of the city council from the Sixth Ward, was elected Mayor on the seventh ballot at a meeting of the council, April 25, 1913. He was officially notified of his election by G. O. Palmiter, City Clerk, the following day. Mr. Freiburger had previously served for sixteen years as an Alderman from his ward. His nearest opponent for the office was Lee Waste of the second ward.

Among the important events of the Freiburger administration was the platting of Clermont Heights by Morse & Tradewell Co. This addition to the city was approved by the city council on May 6, 1913.

In 1912 the first experiments with street oil were made on Fifth Avenue. During the Freiburger regime the sprinkling of all city streets with oil was proposed in May, 1913. The applications then were placed on streets, upon request of citizens in the form of a petition. Then oil was applied for the following rates: One application; 12 foot roadway—75c; 18 foot roadway—$1.10; 24 foot roadway—$1.50; two applications—12 foot roadway—$1.50; 18 foot roadway—$2.20; 24 foot roadway—$3.00.

The old Antigo Commercial Club was very active in 1913. I. A. Herrick, then Secretary-Manager, was the leader in a movement to establish a public market square in Antigo.

Antigo's first modern moving picture theatre was erected by Harvey Hanson, who on May 17, 1913, purchased the Lee Waste Fifth Avenue property.

The city council appropriated funds for the purchasing of lighting standards for the high school park. The lighting system was installed during the summer of 1913.

It was during this administration that the Board of Public Works presented to the city council satisfactory plans for the division of the city into storm sewer districts.

L. P. Tradewell was awarded a contract for the construction of two blocks of concrete pavement on June 3, 1913. The streets paved were Fifth Avenue, from Superior Street east to Field Street and Superior Street, between Fifth and Fourth Avenues. The contract was let for $11,897.00.

June 7, 1913, the city of Antigo and Langlade County acted as hosts to the Merchants and Manufacturers of Milwaukee, who visited the city. The Cream City people were given a splendid reception by the Antigo business men.

The old homstead of F. A. Deeglise was moved from its original location to a spot on the public library grounds to be preserved. The city council authorized its removal to save it from being torn down.

The first municipal street sprinkler was purchased in 1913. Previously the merchants made arrangements with private organizations for sprinkling streets.

The completion of the sewerage disposal plant was inaugurated during the Freiburger regime.

During the term of Mayor Freiburger the city purchased the Antigo Water Works, which it has since successfully operated.

Mayor Freiburger served until the election of Dr. I. D. Steffen, the first Mayor to serve as such under government by commission, March 24, 1914.

THE ADMINISTRATION OF MAYOR I. D. STEFFEN—FIRST UNDER COMMISSION GOVERNMENT—1914-15.

Government of the city of Antigo was changed from the aldermanic system to that of government by commission by an overwhelming vote of the people. The primary election of that mayoralty contest was held on March 24, 1914. Candidates for election were Leonard Freiburger, Sr., Dr. I. D. Steffen, E. R. Gibbons, E. H. Palmer, T. J. Roberts, B. W. Rynders and L. P. Tradewell. E. R. Gibbons and Dr. I. D. Steffen, having the greatest number of votes, were declared nominees.

The contest between the primary election and the general election, April 7, 1914, was one of the most spectacular elections in the history of the city. Dr. Steffen defeated Mr. Gibbons by a vote of 730 to 693 and was thus elected the first Mayor to serve under the commission form of government in Antigo. He is called the father of that form of government in the city of Antigo. G. O. Palmiter and Frank Dvorak were both elected councilmen in the new government. They defeated John Callahan, and Thomas Daskam, the other two nominees. The other candidates for councilmen at the primary election were N. R. Babcock, James Cody, D. P. Corbett, William Kirg, John McGreer, Lee Waste and Joseph Skibba.

With the inauguration of government by commission the veto power of a city executive was abolished and a majority of the city council constitutes a quorum. This system also eliminated many committees and the administration of city affairs progressed rapidly.

The city council, Mayor Steffen, City Clerk G. O. Palmiter and City Treasurer Frank Dvorak, took over the reins of the city on April 21, 1914, when they held the first council meeting.

The late F. J. Finucane was selected City Attorney during the Steffen Administration and the stable foundation of that form of government in Antigo, is, in a large measure due to Attorney Finucane's wise counsel and advice.

The city took over the Antigo Water Works in April, 1914, and Frank Dvorak was made manager of the institution.

Dr. Steffen was elected to the office of Mayor upon his previous record as a public servant, extending over a period of years since 1887. He deplored factionalism in the city. The rigid enforcement of the law, particularly that city ordinance pertaining to Sunday closing of saloons, was one of his strong planks in his platform for election.

During his administration of affairs taxes were reduced in the city, the water department operated at a profit, an extensive street improvement program was inaugurated, many feet of cement sidewalks were laid, new streets and alleys were opened for public convenience, all city ordinances were enforced, water mains were extended in many parts of the city, the old business of the aldermanic system was closed and the city was placed upon an entirely new and economic foundation.

Dr. Steffen served efficiently until September, 1915, when at a special election he was defeated by C. Fred Calhoun. The election was given state wide attention.

THE ADMINISTRATION OF C. FRED CALHOUN —1915-1917.

C. Fred Calhoun, Superintendent of the Frost Veneer Seating Company plant in Antigo, was elected Mayor of Antigo at a special election in September, 1915. He presided over the city council as executive of the city, for the first time on Wednesday, September 29, 1915.

Mayor Calhoun proved to be a capable city officer. Among the important achievements of his administration was the settlement between the city council and the National Surety Company of New York relative to the repairing of the Westrumite paving on Clermont Street between Fourth and First Avenues. This settlement was made on October 15, 1915, when the city council accepted $1,000.00 from the National Surety Company with which to repair the street.

Before his election as Mayor, Mr. Calhoun was a member of the Board of Education from the Sixth Ward and he resigned from that body on October 14, 1915. B. H. Strong was chosen to fill the vacancy.

A contract was let, previously, to John Mulholland to lay 653 feet of water mains on south Clermont Street, between Eighth and Ninth Avenues. This work was completed during this administration.

December, 1915, the city purchased a tank from the Standard Oil Company. The tank is used to store street oil and has a capacity of 12,500 gallons.

While not a municipal affair, with which the city council had much to do, it is important to state that the Antigo Post Office was included, December 6, 1915, in the estimates submitted to Congress by Secretary of the Treasury Wm. G. McAdoo for the operating expenses for the year 1916. Thirty-four thousand dollars was listed as the amount needed to further the construction of the Antigo Post Office.

Twenty thousand square yards of macadam streets were resurfaced and thirty blocks were graded during the Calhoun regime.

New sewers were laid, extensions were made to water mains, and 8,785 feet of cement walk was put down by contractors, working for the city.

The valuation of the city of Antigo in 1915 was $4,707,752.00 while in 1914 it was $4,566,973.00.

November 10, 1915, the city council purchased a fire truck from the Seagrave Motor Company at a cost of $5,600.00.

The announcement was made on February 17, 1916, that the city was to have a new industry, The Langlade Lumber Company. This followed a formal ratification of an informal agreement between officials of the concern and the members of the Antigo Commercial Club. Mayor Calhoun was made Chairman of a Finance Committee to raise a large sum of money to insure the city that the lumber company would locate here.

March 2, 1916, the city council granted the Board of Education authority to engage an architect and obtain plans and specifications for a new high school. The corner stone of the school was laid on July 7, 1916.

April 4, 1916, G. O. Palmiter was against chosen City Clerk by the people, defeating Thomas Daskam.

Five thousand one hundred dollars was paid to the Immel Construction Company of Fond du Lac, this being the first of the payments on the new Antigo High School. The school was dedicated October 19, 1917.

Charles W. Fish was banqueted on November 2, 1916, at which time he announced his intention to erect a modern sawmill in Antigo, the mill to have a capacity of seven million feet annually.

During the Calhoun administration W. J. Gallon was elected first President of the Antigo Association of Commerce, which was organized on April 20, 1917.

Mayor Calhoun resigned in the fall of 1917 and a special primary election was held on November 13, 1917. Four aspirants for the office of Mayor were placed in the field. Mayor Calhoun left soon after for Sheboygan, Wis., to make his home.

THE ADMINISTRATION OF MAYOR JOHN BENISHEK 1917-20.

Four prominent Antigo citizens were placed on the ticket as candidates for Mayor in the special primary election held in the fall of 1917. Munson M. Ross, Antigo's second Mayor, Martin Robrecht, a pioneer citizen and a man who had served in various public capacities for many years, H. F. Morson, a former County Superintendent of Schools, former City Attorney and a prominent member of the Langlade County bar, and John Benishek, a well known real estate dealer, who had served on the city council for many years prior to the change from aldermanic to government by commission, were the candidates. H. F. Morson and John Benishek were chosen at the primary as the candidates to be voted upon at the general election.

The election was close, John Benishek defeating Mr. Morson by one vote.

without parsimony in the conduct of city affairs. His years of experience as a city official gave him a valuable insight to prevalent conditions.

Upon the death of City Attorney F. J. Finucane, Charles Avery, who had been Acting City Attorney for some time, was elected City Attorney. He performed a service of great value in that position.

Mayor Benishek spent much of his time as Mayor securing estimates and making plans for a general program of street improvement and paving. Material was secured with difficulty, yet many of the streets were placed in first class condition.

During his administration a resolution was passed whereby all of the principal streets were prepared for paving by getting sewer connections with all buildings and vacant lots, thus to eliminate the necessity of tearing up a street.

The coal shortage of 1918 was so serious that many Antigo citizens petitioned the Mayor and the city council to establish a municipal coal yard. By purchasing coal, direct from the mines, Mayor Benishek's policy saved the city approximately $2,000 each year in fuel alone.

The Antigo Armory, operated by the city, was under the direct management of Mayor Benishek, during his term. He found that the institution was operating at a loss each year. By booking first class shows and under proper management the Armory made money for the city.

During his administration new polling stations were erected in the Third and Fourth Wards.

Three thousand square yards of gravel were laid on Superior Street, Antigo's principal highway. A modern grader for road and street work was purchased and plans for scarifying Fifth Avenue were made.

The sewerage disposal plant was repaired and extensive changes were made in it, with the result that all complaints from Rolling township farmers ceased.

The storm sewer from Minola Street to the sand pit, east of the fair grounds, (purchased by the city during the Benishek administration) was completed.

Mayor Benishek served as Mayor for two and one-fourth years. He became a candidate for re-election in 1920 and made his campaign upon his previous record. The campaign was one of the most interesting of recent elections. He was defeated by but two votes.

THE ADMINISTRATION OF MAYOR CHARLES J. HANZEL 1920-22.

On February 20, 1920, Charles J. Hanzel, an Antigo business man, announced his candidacy for Mayor of Antigo. The six years of government by commission (1914-20) had produced three Mayors, Dr. I. D. Steffen, C. Fred Calhoun, and John Benishek.

CHARLES J. HANZEL
Elected Mayor of Antigo for term 1920-26.

Dr. Fred Kestly was placed in the field by a gathering of citizens who met at the Elks' Club January 21, 1920. Dr. Kestly later withdrew from the race.

Mayor Benishek, who had made an efficient public servant, announced his candidacy for re-election January 31, 1920. This made it a race between Mayor Benishek, who made his previous record the issue, and Charles J. Hanzel, who made the race on a platform of lower taxation and better streets.

When the votes were counted it was discovered that it was a tie and would have to be decided by lot. Mr. Hanzel won. Mayor Benishek demanded a recount, which showed the correct vote to be 641 to 639, Hanzel winning by two votes. Thus Hanzel was twice declared Mayor of Antigo in two days.

During the summer of 1920 important street improvements were made in Antigo. Fifth Avenue and the Westrumite paving on Clermont Street were repaired at once. A new gyratory stone crusher was purchased to replace the old stone crusher which had been in service since 1907.

May 4, 1920, Attorney R. C. Dempsey was chosen City Attorney, G. O. Palmiter, City Clerk and Vice-Mayor, and Frank Dvorak, City Treasurer. Lyman A. Steffen was made City Physician and City Health Officer. T. T. McGillan and M. T. Canfield were made members of the Park and Cemetery Board. All banks of the city were made city depositories. During the same month nine new wells were completed and added to the municipal water works.

An extensive program of water main and sewer construction was carried out. During 1920 and 1921 thirteen thousand feet of water mains were laid. During the same time one mile of sanitary sewers were laid annually. Two miles of storm sewers were laid under the supervision of Harry W. Jackson, Superintendent of the Water Department, during this administration.

June, 1920, an audit of the city's books was made by an auditor from the Wisconsin Tax Commission at the request of the city, to give the public a statement as to the actual financial condition of the city.

In November, 1921, in accordance with a plank in his platform or a promise to the electorate, Mayor Hanzel selected his unofficial Advisory Board. The twelve citizens chosen were A. K. Potter, Francis Brush, R. J. McQuillan, Peter J. Dunn, Al. Duchac, Wm. H. Wolpert, John Hessel, W. W. Smith, O. P. Walch, Walter Daskam, Edward McCandless, and James A. Cody. The first meeting of the Advisory Board was held on May 6, 1921.

An outstanding event in the administration was the fight for the ornamental lighting of Fifth Avenue.

The proposed white way was endorsed by the Advisory Board on August 8, 1921. The contract, calling for 46 single standards, with one light, was awarded to the Freeman-Sweet Company of Chicago, Ill., on September 27, 1921, for $9,210. Fifth Avenue was lighted with the white way for the first time at eight o'clock, Saturday evening, December 10, 1921. The lights were turned on by little Elizabeth Berner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Berner.

Among other achievements of the Hanzel administration thus far have been the creation of a Poor Commission in Antigo. Mrs. H. V. Mills was selected Poor Commissioner in December, 1921; the addition of one man on the police force, the establishment of a desk sergeant, which was approved by the Police and Fire Commission in November, 1920; the licensing of all Antigo liveries, according to an ordinance passed on June 16, 1920; the great July 4th, 1920, celebration, in which Mayor Hanzel unveiled a bronze tablet at the Antigo Armory; extensive improvements in the City Hall; passed a resolution, January 12, 1921, whereby a new fire department will be constructed, the present one to be turned into a rest room, in accordance with state law; laid thirty thousand feet of curb and gutter in 1921-22, or more curb and gutter in the city than any other administration, and, among other things, assumed care of the old cemetery on April 19, 1922.

At a meeting of the Association of Commerce April 19, 1922, the paving of Fifth Avenue was endorsed. The next day the Advisory Board of the Mayor unanimously endorsed the proposed paving of Fifth Avenue.

The contract for the paving of Fifth Avenue from Superior Street to Lincoln Street, Edison Street from Sixth Avenue to Fourth Avenue, Clermont Street from Seventh to Fourth Avenue, and Superior Street from Sixth to Fifth Avenue, was awarded to the F. P. Coughlin Co., Chicago, Ill., at approximately $81,000. This is the most extensive program of street improvement inaugurated in Antigo.

Mayor Hanzel became a Democrat candidate for Congress from the Ninth Congressional District, his announcement being made on April 22, 1922. He is the second Antigo man to be nominated for that office from this district, the other being Hon. Thomas W. Lynch, who was elected in 1892, the first Democrat ever accorded that honor in the Ninth Wisconsin District.

Newspapers of New and Langlade Counties

New County Republican of 1879—First Publication—Langlade Republican—Woodland Homes—The Weekly News Item—Langlade County Special—The Pioneer—The Antigo Forward—The Antigo Herald—Antigo Republican—The Antigo Journal—Antigo Daily Journal—Farmers Journal—The Antigo Banner—Antigo Herald—Newspaper Changes—Press Associations—School Publications—Directories.

The first attempt to publish a newspaper of the present type was made in 1615. Seven years later The Weekly News was started in England. The first American newspaper was issued in Massachusetts in 1690 and was called "Publick Occurrences." It displeased the government and was suppressed. The first Wisconsin newspaper, "The Intelligencer" was issued from Green Bay in 1833.

The first newspaper established in Langlade (New) County was in 1879 and was called the New County Republican. The first issue appeared January 3, 1880. George Ratcliffe, owner and editor, came to Antigo from Clintonville, where he had edited The Clintonville Herald.

When the legislature changed the name of New County to Langlade County the paper became The Langlade Republican. In 1884, The Langlade Republican was changed to The Forward with the issue of August 14th. George Ratcliffe was then editor, Gus Lind was the publisher and Ira C. Edwards was business manager. In 1886, The Forward was taken over by C. A. Martin, a brother of Attorney J. E. Martin of Antigo. The same year John A. Ogden purchased The Forward from C. A. Martin and changed the name to

THE ANTIGO REPUBLICAN.

John A. Ogden edited The Antigo Republican until August, 1899, when he sold the plant and paper to C. O. Marsh. Mr. Marsh published and edited the Antigo Republican until 1906, when it was sold to a corporation called the Republican Publishing Company. During that time it was managed by Messrs. Hopkins and Loper, C. A. Stedman and John T. Brown. In 1912, The Republican Publishing Company sold the paper to Berner Brothers Publishing Company, owners of the Antigo Daily Journal. The Antigo Republican was then discontinued. Thus ended the career of the first newspaper that sought the home of the pioneer by path, trail and blazed guide lines, telling them of the great strides of the future.

THE ANTIGO PIONEER.

The Antigo Pioneer, established May 8, 1884, was published every Thursday. The Pioneer was published by Henry Berner, Sr., and edited by Hugo Grosser, who came here from Manitowoc. The Pioneer was a German language weekly, five column quarto, half patent. It was moved to Shawano before the end of 1884 and continued to be published there under a new name. The Pioneer was Democrat in politics.

THE WEEKLY NEWS ITEM.

The Weekly News Item was established by Arthur B. and Paul J. Millard, August 12, 1882. They came to Antigo from Wausau. The paper was located originally on Fifth Avenue near the railroad track (M. L. S. & W.) in a small building, previously used by Peter Dolan, saloonkeeper. The News Item later moved into the Spencer House building, the present site of the Hill building, intersection of Fifth Avenue and Edison Street. It was next located in the second story of the structure now occupied by the H. A. Kohl Hardware Company on Superior Street.

In 1884, The Millard Brothers moved to their own building erected on Superior street (now the Mrs. A. R. Winter building). The paper occupied that location until 1898, when it was then sold jointly to John A. Ogden, owner of The Antigo Republican and W. H. Dawley, then proprietor of The Langlade County Special. The Special assumed the good will of The News Item. A division of the material and machinery was made by the two papers. Paul J. Millard severed his connections with the News Item when he was appointed Postmaster in 1893.

When the News Item was taken over by Mr. Dawley it was published from the Fidelity Bank Building (then known as Dawley Building) and for many years up to 1918 it was issued from that place. It was then moved to 521 Clermont Street, where it is still issued. W. H. Dawley is sole proprietor and editor.

THE JOURNAL—WEEKLY—DAILY.

In September, 1898, J. H. Fitzgibbons moved to Antigo from Neenah and started publishing a weekly Democratic paper, called The Journal, in the basement of the First National Bank building. It was not successful and was taken over by George W. Hill. Fitzgibbons moved to Mattoon, Wis. It was purchased in 1901 by Berner Brothers who returned to Antigo from Columbia County, where they operated a newspaper plant, and moved from the First National Bank building to the Journal building on Superior street. It was edited weekly until Sept. 18, 1904, when the first issue of The Antigo Daily Journal, Langlade County's first and only permanent daily newspaper, appeared.

Fred L. Berner is Editor, Earl S. Holman, City Editor, Henry Berner is Business Manager and Otto F. Berner is Advertising Manager of the Antigo Daily Journal. Berner Brothers also publish two weekly papers, The Farmers Journal and The Antigo Journal. The Journal is Republican in politics.

FIRST DAILY ISSUED.

The first daily newspaper issued in Langlade County was during the 14th Wisconsin Regiment re-union at Antigo in June, 1902. The Berner Brothers Publishing Company issued the Journal daily for three days in recognition of the event.

"OUR PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS."

March 1, 1887, a Catholic Journal, eight pages, all home print, was inaugurated at Phlox, Norwood township by Rev. Father Philip St. Louis. It was named "Our Parochial Schools." Its service to the community was such that it soon ceased to be a school paper and became instead a community newspaper. It was originally published monthly, then semi-monthly. Father St. Louis changed the name in 1890, after its growth from the denomination to the broader non-sectarian field to The Langlade County Special.

THE LANGLADE COUNTY SPECIAL.

The Langlade County Special was originally owned by Father Philip St. Louis of Phlox, who had as an associate John Menting. In 1891, John Menting, Thomas W. Hogan, Sam Leslie and Thomas Ward purchased the Special and its good will from Father St. Louis. In the year previous, 1890, The Special was moved to Antigo from Phlox, locating on the site of the Neff-Roberts building. It was later moved to the Lynch building, now the site of Nolte's Shoe Store. In 1892, W. H. Dawley, purchased Thomas Hogan's interest and he forthwith published The Special until August 13, 1898, when it was merged with The Weekly News Item.

THE ANTIGO HEROLD.

The Antigo Herold, a German language publication, was published first in October, 1888, by Edward Goebel. Mr. Goebel came to Antigo from Appleton, where he had edited the Appleton Weiker. The Herold was published continually by Mr. Goebel until December 5, 1919, when the name and good will of The Herold together with the mailing list was sold to the Langlade Printing Company. Mr. Goebel then began editing The Antigo Banner, serving the same subscribers as did The Herold. The Antigo Banner is still edited weekly in the German language. Both The Herold and The Banner are Democratic.

THE ANTIGO HERALD.

The Antigo Herald, as an English language publication, was launched December 5, 1919. The Antigo

Herold, German language weekly; was purchased by W. F. Kasson and Will C. Brawley, proprietors of The Langlade Printing Company. The Herald is a six column well edited paper published every Friday. Will C. Brawley is editor. It is located in the Langlade Bank building. The Herald is Democratic in politics. A job department is operated in connection with the paper.

ANTIGO HIGH SCHOOL PAPERS.

Three Antigo High School papers have been known to exist. The first, "The Antigo High School Mercury" was published in 1896 and continued until 1898. It was a monthly publication.

The Scrap Heap was first edited by the class of 1915, during the year 1914. It continued to be published by the Junior Class each year until 1918, when it was abandoned. It started out as a monthly but was afterwards published twice a month.

The Astonisher, high school paper, made its first appearance in May, 1921, and is published by the students of all classes in high school.

"THE GRADUATE"—ANNUAL.

"The Graduate," annual published review of high school activities, is the product of the Senior Class. The first Graduate was published in 1909.

CITY AND COUNTY ADVERTISING.

The City of Antigo has been advertised frequently in well edited pamphlets and folders, the last of which was published in 1922. County progress was featured also.

OTHER PUBLICATIONS.

Antigo is the publishing location of The Beaver, official organ of the Beavers Reserve Fund Fraternity, The Clippings, house organ of the Langlade Lumber Company land department, the Langlade County Normal bulletin and the Outlook, Episcopalian pamphlet. The Antigo Publishing Company, for years managed by the late Rev. A. Grimm, publish booklets and pamphlets in German.

"WOODLAND HOMES."

In January, 1884, F. A. Deleglise and W. W. Hutchinson, prominent early pioneers and real estate dealers, began publishing a pamphlet boosting Antigo. It was called Woodland Homes. Its foreign circulation was extensive.

FIRST CITY DIRECTORY.

The first City Directory was published in Antigo by the Inter-state Directory Company. The directory contained approximately fourteen hundred names. It appeared in 1898. Fred L. Berner and Frank Doner were the canvassers who gathered the data. The last city and county directory was published in 1920. It contained approximately ten thousand names.

A NEWSPAPER OUTRAGE.

On January 19, 1899, the mechanical departments of the Antigo Republican, The Herold and the News Item were broken into and type was piled up in a promiscuous and chaotic state. Forms, jobs and advertisements were "pi heaped." The Herold, where the current edition was ready for mailing, was thrown into Springbrook. The motive or the culprits were never apprehended. The papers charged the Journal, rival publication, then owned by J. H. Fitzgibbons, and some of The Journal's "close friends" as the instigators of the deed.

GERMAN PRESS ASSOCIATION.

The Wisconsin German Press Association convened in Antigo Friday, Saturday and Sunday, August 19, 20 and 21, 1892. The following is a brief outline of the program: Reception at the trains; meetings at Marmes' Hall; Address of Welcome by Mayor C. F. Smith; Response by President A. Wittman of the Association. This was followed by a social meeting. Saturday, the German editors inspected the mills and business districts, journeyed to the Eau Claire River (not in automobiles) and on Sunday, the day was spent at Sylvian Lake, now known as Mueller's Lake.

THE WISCONSIN PRESS ASSOCIATION. 1885-1921.

The Wisconsin Press Association visited Antigo and Langlade County, first in 1885, also in 1888, and again in 1921. They gathered here on Aug. 13, 1885. Many of the editors present then were either at that time well known figures in Wisconsin and the nation or became prominent afterward. Chase S. Osborn, then editor of the Florence Mining News, was in Antigo. He later became Governor of Michigan. Wm. "Bill" Nye, W. C. Hoard, one time Wisconsin Governor, Col. J. A. Watrous, of the old Iron Brigade, Hon. Frank Leland, Sam Ryan, Hon. E. Hurlbut, J. C. Bartholf and others were present. Mayor Thomas W. Lynch welcomed the editors to the little city. J. C. Lewis, George Ratcliffe, Millard Brothers, were Antigo leaders, who took part in the entertainment.

The praise and publicity given Antigo, then a little city of less than three thousand, did much to aid its future progress.

Thirty six years later the Wisconsin Press Association again visited Antigo, July 26, 1921. The party arrived here from Laona, Wis., July 25, 1921. The following day a program was given at Elcho, Wis., and at the Antigo Armory. Charles W. Fish, Elcho lumberman feted the editors at Muskie Inn, Elcho, Wis. A wonderful opportunity to view the developed and raw resources of the county was given the visitors. A program presided over by Judge Arthur Goodrick was given in the Antigo Armory in the evening. J. R. McQuillan and L. A. Maier were General Chairman and Secretary of the reception committee. John A. Kuyper, President of the Association, responded to the address of welcome by Mayor Charles J. Hanzel. Toasts were given by: Walter Gallon, President of the Association of Commerce; Will C. Brawley, of The Antigo Herald; Bert E. Walters of the Reedsburg Times; D. C. Menefee of the Vilas County Review; Louis H. Zimmerman, Secretary of the Wisconsin Press; Fred L. Berner of the Antigo Daily Journal; Robert M. Dessureau of The Antigo Herald; Merlin Hull, ex-Secretary of State; Henry C. Campbell, of the Milwaukee Journal; Dr. I. D. Steffen, ex-Mayor of Antigo. Louis A. Maier introduced the "Antigo Mushroom" typical oldtime weekly newspaper, copy for which was "set up" on the Armory rostrum during the banquet. The meeting at Antigo ended a week motor excursion through northern Wisconsin.

CHAPTER XXVII.

The Antigo Post Office

First Established—Early Receipts—First Postmaster—Rural Routes—Old Locations—Postal Savings Banks—Postmasters—New Post Office.

Mail was carried through Eastern Langlade County over the old Lake Superior Trail twenty years before the location of the first Post Office. This was long before Langlade County was organized as the County of New, and when it was a vast wilderness stretching north to Lac Vieux Desert, and the State Line region known as part of Oconto County. Before the government survey in 1860, there was a mail station in section 17, Township 33, Range 13 East, of the present limits of Langlade County. This statement is substantiated by the U. S. field notes of Langlade County.

Building, now known as the Fidelity Bank Building on Fifth Avenue, W. H. Dawley, acting as Postmaster from August 20, 1885 to August 17, 1889. In 1889, the Post Office was moved to the same frame building as used in 1885, W. H. Blinn, acting as Postmaster from August, 1889 to April 23, 1893. The Post Office remained there until 1897, when it was moved to the frame structure south of the Fidelity Bank Building on the west side of Clermont Street. From April 24, 1893 to June 30, 1897, P. J. Millard acted as Postmaster. P. J. Millard was succeeded by Fred W. Kiefer.

Erected in 1915 at a cost of $60,000.00.

The first Post Office was established in the old log store of Neils Anderson, three years after the arrival of F. A. Deleglise in Antigo. The system of caring for mail then was much different than it is today, when Postmaster, Postal Clerk, Rural Carriers, City Carriers, Parcel Post Departments, Money Order Departments, Postal Savings Departments and Stamp Departments labor incessantly from day to day.

Neils Anderson was officially selected as the first Postmaster on April 1, 1879, and served until August 17, 1882. On August 18, 1882, Henry Smith was appointed Postmaster, and at that time the Post Office was moved to the frame building of Henry Smith, where he conducted a drug store at the corner of Fifth Avenue and Superior Street. This frame structure served as federal headquarters until 1885, when the Postoffice was moved to the west room of the Dawley who served from July 1, 1897 to July 20, 1901. The Post Office was then moved to the Molle Building on Fifth Ave., Edward Cleary serving as Postmaster from July 21, 1901 to July 30, 1910. From August 1, 1910 to Feb. 23, 1915, Richard Koebke acted as Postmaster. On Feb. 24, 1915, Richard Koebke was succeeded by Edward Cody, who is still serving. The site of the present Post Office was purchased from the Antigo Canning Co., June 30, 1911, for $8,250.00. The Post Office building was erected in 1915 at a cost of $60,000.00, by W. D. Lovewell, Minneapolis, Minnesota. F. W. Thomas was superintendent. Sydney Chaplin acted as government superintendent of construction. Edward Cody was the first Postmaster and property custodian of the new federal building.

City free delivery was instituted November 1, 1903, after Postmaster Edward Cleary had reported receipts in excess of $10,000.00. There were then three districts and the city was served by the following, the first mail carriers: Emmon J. Badger, Roy G. Lyons and Fred C. Brooks.

Rural Free Delivery was commenced November 1, 1893, with three routes in the county. The first carriers of these routes were: A. B. Hanks, George H. Hoffman and William Case. The rural mail service lished throughout the world and has met with growing sentiment everywhere in the United States, was established in Antigo in June, 1911. The first year's receipts were $415.90. Gene Palmer, a mail carrier, was the first depositor.

Mail was carried from Wausau to Springbrook by private carriers before July, 1880, when the first government contract was let. John Doerish operated the has proven a great service to the Langlade County farmers and the isolated communities springing up in the more remote sections of the county. It has put the settler, living in the sparsely settled regions, in constant touch with the outside world, bringing to his door pictorial news, the metropolitan daily newspaper, election returns almost instantaneously and has been an unsurpassed convenience to the farmer.

The Star Routes, with the exception of the Antigo to Elton and return route, have been abandoned. Rural Free Delivery meant the discontinuance of many old post offices within the boundary of the county as it eliminated their necessity.

The receipts of the Antigo Post Office for ten year periods since 1890 are: 1890—$5,271.73; 1900—$8,157.68; 1910—$19,783.20; 1920—$34,967.48.

The Postal Saving System, which has been established throughout the world and has met with growing sentiment everywhere in the United States, was established in Antigo in June, 1911.

Edward Cody, the present Postmaster, is assisted by the following: P. J. Millard, Assistant Postmaster and O. C. Bardwell, Miss Lily Ladwig, Glen Millard, F. A. Kolerus, Walter A. Petters and William Kuhr.

The City Mail Carriers are: Willis Wheeler, Eugene Palmer, Jos. Rath, Max Lyons, Emil Cherf and Jos. Feil.

The rural mail carriers are: Martin Fishback on Route No. 1, William McGregor on Route No. 2, John Feller on Route No. 3, S. B. Kendall on Route No. 4, and Frank Ferdon on Route No. 5.

The estimates and proposals for the erection of the Antigo Post Office were made during the terms of former Congressmen E. A. Morse and Thomas F. Konop, of the now Ninth Wisconsin Congressional District.

There can be no law without a lawmaker. The finite mind of man cannot explain the phenomena of nature about him. Knowing that system, general order and law, which governs nature, prevail, men of every race believe in some supreme being.

The advent of Christianity into Langlade County is co-temporary with its first settlements. As early as June, 1878, when Langlade County was a forest primeval, the Rev. Jesse Cole, a Methodist Episcopal preacher, drove through the Twin Valley townships and stopped in the little forest group of cabins, preaching the tary of State, June 26, 1882, by L. W. Bliss, W. H. Wheeler and B. F. Dorr. The church was erected on the present location and was dedicated on September 9, 1883. The dedicatory sermon was delivered by the Rev. J. D. Willard of Appleton. The church has been remodelled and an addition placed on the south end since. Pastors thus far have been: Rev. A. D. Adams, Deacon J. Tibbits, Rev. Henry Ketchum, Rev. C. C. Campbell, Rev. William Pease, Rev. P. H. Ralph, Rev. Jesse Sarles, Rev. William Reese Dixon.

gospel from the door of Baker's shanty. Rev. Cole had been through the vicinity in 1877 and prayed with a party of landseekers on the banks of the Spring Brook, which was then bordered with giant forest trees. Rev. Phillip St. Louis, born April 15, 1848, at Little Chute, Wisconsin, made a visit to Phlox in 1879. Much of his journeys from Menasha to Phlox and Antigo, his mission villages, were made afoot. The first established church in Langlade County was erected in Phlox, Norwood township in 1881.¹

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

Articles of Incorporation of the First Congregational Church of Antigo were filed with the Secre-

1. In 1880 mass was celebrated in F. A. Deeglise's log cabin, now preserved on the library grounds. Many Antigo settlers attended mass in the old cabin.

In the summer of 1915, the interior of the church was refinished. A handsome pipe organ was installed at that time also. The parsonage is just south of the church and is a two story frame structure.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL.

The Methodist Episcopal Church was erected in 1883 and on June 24, 1883, the Rev. E. L. Eaton, of Madison, dedicated the edifice. A parsonage was erected in 1895, when the second M. E. Church was erected. The Methodist church was then built in its present location. The present parsonage was erected during the pastorship of the Rev. W. A. Hall. The first M. E. Church is now used as the Polish Catholic Church.

Pastors and the date of service at the Methodist Episcopal Church are: Rev. Patrick Burke, 1881; Rev. Perry Miller, 1882-1885; J. J. Foot, 1885-1886; Rev. John Willis, 1886-1887; Rev. F. Howarth, 1887-1889; Rev. J. B. Beadle, 1889-1890; Rev. J. D. Kenestruck,

In 1909 a pipe organ was installed and the interior of the church was completely renovated.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

On May 2, 1880, Rev. Father St. Louis said Mass in the humble log dwelling of Frank A. Deeglise, pioneer and founder of Antigo. Father St. Louis nurtured his Antigo mission from Phlox, with a spiritual eye until in 1882, the Catholic population increased such in Antigo that a church was erected, completion of same being in 1882. Rev. Peter Lockman succeeded Father St. Louis. He was succeeded by Rev. Father John Seubert, under whose administration the present edifice was begun in 1884, the first church having burned to the ground on September 2, 1883. The first resident pastor was Rev. A. N. Buschle, who came to Antigo in 1885. He was followed in 1886 by Father William Takken and during his first services in Antigo, the St. John's church was completed. The parsonage was also erected in 1886. Father Takken died May 5, 1893, and was succeeded by Rev. Father Conrad Saile of Wilkesbarre, Pa. Father Saile has proven a worthy successor to Father Takken. During the thirty years that Father Saile has been in charge of St. John's congregation he has seen it progress to such extent that the present edifice is no longer capable of caring for the large congregation, and funds are now being raised for a new church.

ST. MARY'S CATHOLIC CHURCH.

St. Mary's Catholic Church located at the intersection of Lincoln Street and Third Avenue, was erected in September, 1901. The approximate cost of erecting the edifice was $10,000.00. The first priest was the Rev. Father Frank Kohler, who was followed by the Rev. Father Emanuel Kobat. He passed away while at this charge and was succeeded by the Rev. Father J. G. Vorlichek, who is still in charge of the parish.

The St. Mary's Parsonage was erected in 1904, during the pastorship of Father Kobat.

ST. HYACINTH'S CHURCH.

The parish of the St. Hyacinth Church was established on May 1, 1895. The Rev. L. Starostzick was the first appointed Pastor. He was succeeded by the Rev. Father Bieniarz, who, as assistant to the Rev. Father C. F. Saile, organized St. Hyacinth's church. Catholic organizations connected with the church are: St. Stanislaus Kostke Society, St. Hyacinth's Society and Holy Rosary Confraternity. Pastors serving the congregation thus far have been: Rev. L. Starostzick, 1895; Rev. J. C. Bieniarz, 1895-1899; Rev. Quirinas Zielinski, 1899-1907; Rev. Lad. V. Stefaniak, 1907-1912; Rev. S. A. Warzynski, 1912-1916; Rev. T. Malkowski, 1916-1919; Rev. V. Pruc, 1919-1921; Rev. P. Sokol, 1921, who was succeeded in September, 1922 by Rev. Fr. Bemowski.

PEACE EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN CHURCH.

In 1883 the Rev. C. Purzner came to Antigo and organized from the little band of Lutherans in the village, the Peace Evangelical Lutheran Church. He conducted services in private residences. Rev. Purzner was followed in 1884 by the Rev. H. Daib, under whose pastorate much progress was made. In 1887, the first frame edifice was erected. The resolution calling for a structure 26x40 was adopted by the congregation in April, 1887. The first church served until 1902, when the present church was erected at a cost of approximately $5,000.00. The church was dedicated October 19, 1902, with services conducted by Rev. F. L. Karth of Synco, Rev. O. List of Wittenberg and Rev. John Ebert of Birnamwood. The latter directed a sacred concert during the evening dedicatory services. The building committee consisted of Carl Fuss, Ferdinand Ebert and Joseph Hensel. The architect was A. F. Gruenhagen of Oshkosh, Wis.

The first parsonage was erected on Eighth Avenue, west of the church. In November, 1919, the present parsonage was purchased at a price of $5,000.00.

The Pipe Organ was installed in the church August 1, 1915, at a cost of $2,600.00. Dedicatory services were conducted by Rev. E. Englebert of Birnamwood, while an organ recital was given by Prof. H. M. Hahn of Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Pastors of the church have been: Rev. C. Purzner, 1883-1884; Rev. H. Diab, 1884-1889; Rev. P. Cuechke, 1889; Rev. A. Grimm, 1891-1919; Rev. O. Neuman, August, 1919-1922. Rev. Neuman was in Antigo as a student in 1901-1903. The Peace Evangelical Lutheran Church is located at the corner of Eighth Avenue and Lincoln Street.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

The First Baptist Church Society of Antigo was organized in May, 1883. The first meeting of the society was held at the old county court house. The people of the Baptist faith held their first services in the old Fourth Ward School, the Odd Fellows, Good Templars Hall, and the old Herman Hall, until the present church was erected.

The Baptist church was dedicated on March 17, 1887, during the pastorate of the Rev. J. Staley. The church cost $5,008.73. It was completely remodeled in 1919, a stone foundation and a basement dining room being added. Pastors of the Baptist Church were as follows: Rev. W. L. Cook, Rev. J. J. Staley, Rev. A. C. Brown, Rev. J. H. Fairchild, Rev. Brinsted, Rev. Theo. Hansen, Rev. Jos. Malley, Rev. Hansen, Rev. Arthur Irving, Rev. Charles La Reau, Rev. N. F.

This was January 3, 1886.

THE ZION EVANGELICAL CHURCH

The Zion Evangelical Church Congregation was organized in 1888. The church is located on Seventh Avenue at Edison Street.

The first church was a frame structure located on Milton Street near the present residence of Dr. C. B. Baker. The church was moved from its first location to the corner of Sixth Avenue and Clermont Street. The Episcopal church was called St. Joseph's until 1908, when the name was changed to St. Ambrose.

The present St. Ambrose Church was built by contractor J. W. Otis and completed July 14, 1908 at a cost of $10,748.00. The corner stone was laid amid impressive ceremonies under the auspices of the Grand Lodge K. of P. on August 18, 1908, with Bishop Coadjutor Weller of Fond du Lac as the guest of honor. CHRISTIAN SCIENCE (EDDY) CHURCH.

The Christian Science religion was founded by Mary Baker-Eddy, who was born in New Hampshire in 1821 and died in 1910 at Boston, Mass. The first church was established by her in 1879.

The Christian Scientists belief was brought to Antigo by E. R. Horn. The first church was organized CHAPTER XXIX.

Literature, Art, Music

The Unwritten Literature of the Pioneer—Charles McFarland, Wolf River Country Writer—Rev. Carl Nagel, Poet—Rev. A. Grimm and Writings—May Napier Burkhart Poems—Paul Swanson Short Stories—Margaret Ashmun—George Hutchins—Pioneer Art—Early Langlade County Artists—The Pioneer Singing Bee—Antigo's First Singing Master—Neighborhood Entertainments—The Village Church and Log School Centers of Music—The Quintet Club of 1883—The Forest City Band of 1884—Aeolian Band and Orchestra—Antigo Cornet Band—Antigo City Band—Orchestras—Musicians Association—Radio—"Music in the Air."

None of the writers of Langlade County have made literature a profession. Those who have written have done so at leisure—more for amusement and pastime. In the pioneer history of Langlade County there is the unwritten literature of the public address, the debates on local questions, the verbal thoughts and ideas of the county orators—all of which had a beneficial influence on our early citizens. The early churches, music halls and pioneer "gatherin' places" would often resound with the eloquence of the civic leader, the political leader and the reformer.

Charles McFarland was the earliest of pioneer writers. He was prominent in the development of the county. During his term as Chairman of Wolf River township (Evergreen township) he contributed articles to local newspapers commenting in his characteristic style on county progress. Mr. McFarland started a historical story dealing with the pioneer settlers of the Wolf River Country. It has never been published.

The Rev. Carl Nagel, Pastor of the Unity Evangelical Church, who was born at Port Washington, Wis., September 28, 1873, has composed several poems, many of which have been given national circulation. "The Amateur Sportsman," a delightful poem of a fisherman, and "Farewell to the Lake" were published in Outers Magazine. But recently a poem, "Is It Nothing to You," depicting the misery and the starvation of the Armenian children was officially adopted by the Near East Relief campaign and was widely distributed during the relief drive. Rev. Nagel has translated songs for publication from English to German and vice versa. He has composed many other poems of a patriotic, benevolent or charitable nature.

The Rev. A. Grimm was born in Petershagen, Kreis, Schevelbein, Pommern, Germany, January 18, 1864, and came to Antigo as Pastor of the Peace Lutheran Church in 1891. Rev. Grimm was an author of note, whose books were read all over the United States and elsewhere. In his early years his books were published under the non de plume of Alfred Ira. His works were written in German, but several were translated into English. His books include: Der Pastor's Nachlass, which was so used that four editions were required, Das Stiefmutterchen, Dodai, Unter Uns, Unter dem Apfelbaum, Bilder aud dem Reisepredi- gerleb—all stories of his German missions close to Antigo. Sommerfaiden, Der Missionplatz, Aus der Alter Kaffeemuehle, Liebe, Im Zukerbusch, Ehwuerden Nudel, Wenn Mann's Gut Meint Gemutlich, Gott-hold I and II, Der Prachtjunge are others of his work, of which many are in the Antigo Library. Rev. Grimm also wrote many plays in both English and German for enactment by church organizations. Rev. Grimm died February 12, 1922, following an attack of paralysis. He attained greater success in his literary work than any other Langlade County resident.

May Napier Burkhart, a graduate of the Langlade County Normal and a public school teacher, has written many poems, the first of which appeared in the local press when she was fourteen years old. Invariably they are of the Walt Mason type and deal with contemporary topics. More important of her poems have been: "Money in the Bank," "Aunt Sarah's First Basket Ball Game," "Hunting a House" and "Daily Habit."

Margaret Ashmun, once a teacher in the Antigo Public Schools, published Ashmun's Prose Literature for Secondary Schools in 1910. She was then an instructor in the English Department of the University of Wisconsin.

Paul Swanson, 162 Fred Street, Antigo, has written short stories for publication in nationally known magazines. His latest story is entitled, "His Unearned Reckoning," and was published in Truth Magazine.

George Hutchins has written many poems, one of the best of which is, "A Warning to Sinners." The town of Hutchins, Shawano County, was named in his honor.

ART AND ARTISTS.

In early days Langlade County pioneers were busy clearing away the forests, tilling little patches of soil and building their cozy log and frame houses. Little did they enjoy of the luxuries of life so apparent in this age. No man here was expected to live solely by his artistic talents. None of the artists of Langlade County have had any other than self training. Photography was in existence when the county was organized so painting and drawing were not necessary to preserve the memory and faces of family and friends.

Langlade County has had a number of artists who will be briefly mentioned.

James Smolk is the pioneer painter of Langlade County. He was born in York township, Medina County, Ohio, February 17, 1859. He came to Antigo January 2, 1882, and has since resided there. Mr. Smolk is a prolific painter of more than ordinary ability. His little studio is located on Fifth Avenue, where he divides his time between mixing colors and barbering.

William G. Lindsay, a young artist of talent and ability, was born April 1, 1878, at Oshkosh. His early education was in the Antigo public schools. Mr. Lindsay resides at 128 Fifth Avenue. He has painted many local scenes and takes especial delight in landscape. His chief work, however, is commercial sign painting.

George Falkenhagen, Jr., was born July 22, 1890, at Chicago, Ill. He moved to Antigo in 1904. Mr. Falkenhagen has made a number of landscape paintings and sketches of Langlade County's woods and streams. Two of his paintings, one a view of the south arm of Post Lake and another a view of Duck Lake, were exhibited at the Wisconsin Sculptor's and Painter's ninth annual art institute in Milwaukee March 1 to May 1, 1922. He has many decorative paintings in the county to his credit.

Mrs. John Burnet conducted her art institute and exhibits in the Cleary building (K. C. home) from 1914 to 1917. She then moved to her home at 303 Superior Street. Mrs. Burnet is an artist of local distinction. Her work is confined largely to landscape and teaching hand China painting in which she is an expert. She has conducted classes in the Vocational School for the past few years.

Mrs. Eugenia Hutchinson Worman, pioneer Antigo lady, has made a name for herself in the art world. She has been awarded honorable mention for her Painting, "Zinnias" at the University of Washington art exhibit. Mrs. Worman is a sister of Malcolm Hutchinson, pioneer settler. She was the first teacher of music and drawing in the Antigo schools.

Floyd Michaelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Michaelson, of Bryant, Price township, a promising student, now attends Pratt Institute at Brooklyn, N. Y. He is adept at commercial drawing and cartoon art.

Harold Pond, born in Appleton, June 20, 1897, is nevertheless an Antigo product. He entered Pratt Institute at Brooklyn, N. Y., after graduating from the Antigo High School in 1917. He is now with the American Crayon Company of New York. He is a splendid artist.

Nick Fredericks, a painter and decorator, was born January, 1866. He came to Antigo in 1904. His principal decorative work has been the interior of the Langlade County court house.

Lindsay Brothers, Leon and Frank, came to Antigo in 1886 with their parents. Frank Lindsay was born September 13, 1869, at Beaver Dam, Wis. Leon was born April 15, 1871, at Chilton, Wis. They are pioneer Antigo painters and decorators.

Clarence Freiburger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Freiburger, Sr., was born in Antigo, June 23, 1891. He has engaged in painting and decorating for many years. He specializes in interior, exterior and sign painting.

Max Dietz is a painter and decorator who has been in Antigo since 1904.

Charles Courtney came to Antigo in 1883 and began artistic sign painting in the village.

E. V. Palmer, a sign painter, came to Antigo the same year.

Harvey Guile, a native Langlade County resident, was born in Norwood township in 1887. He has followed the decorative painting field since his youth. Important decorative painting has been done by him on the court house building, Palace Theatre interior, ward schools, Antigo High School, county jail and other places.

George and Herman Strube, well known Antigo young men, have been engaged in decorative painting for a number of years, both as employes and now in a partnership of their own, organized in 1921. George was born in Audubon, Iowa, July 1, 1888. Herman Strube was born in September, 1886. The Strube Brothers moved to Antigo with their parents about 1890. They have done much in their field in Antigo, including the decorative work of The Hoffman House and the Unity Church.

Ernest Strube, deceased pioneer decorator, was born in Hanover, Germany, and after coming to America emigrated to Antigo in 1890. He engaged in painting and decorative work at once. His principal work was the Antigo Opera House, the old Music Hall interior scenery and the Unity Church interior.

L. G. Lambert, pioneer Antigo painter and decorator, came to Antigo in 1885. He was born in Marke-san, Green Lake County, Wisconsin, in 1869. Mr. Lambert has decorated, among other places, the Armory club rooms, public library, bank buildings, city hall, etc.

There have been and no doubt are others who have a local reputation for art work whose names are not enumerated here yet are equally meritorious.

The few mentioned prove that Langlade County, less than fifty years old, is well represented by artists and works of art as in other lines of human endeavor and progress. Our people are learning that as we live and admire the beauty of nature it enhances and develops the beauty of the soul.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.

"Music," said Victor Hugo, "is the vapor of art." It is to poetry what reverie is to thought, what fluid is to liquid, what the ocean of clouds is to the ocean of waves. This "vapor of art" made its appearance in Langlade County with the first settlers. When the county developed, when farms were opened and homesteads claimed, when churches, community halls and logs schools were erected, then the old fashioned singing master, the accordin and violin genius and the dance instructor introduced neighborhood entertainment into Langlade County.

The village church and the early log school were the gathering places of the early singers. Then the accordian, mouth organ and violin were highly prized. Few were able to play. However, each church had one or two members who could be relied upon. The early settlers on the Military Road and in Norwood and Rolling townships frequently gathered at the school where the younger folk of the community presented an entertainment. Antigo's first singing master was J. E. Anderson, who conducted a singing class starting December, 1883, and continuing until the spring of 1884.

The Antigo Quintet Club, consisting of Dr. H. V. Mills, Mrs. H. Mills, Dr. J. C. Petty, W. H. Blinn and H. Phillips, was organized in December, 1883. The club gave its first concert December 21, 1883, at the new Congregational Church. Dr. H. V. Mills and Dr. J. C. Petty composed the music, with one or two exceptions.

In the summer of 1884 The Antigo Cornet Band was organized with Dr. H. V. Mills as leader. The Forest City Band followed and was composed largely of the same membership. These were Antigo's pioneer musical units. Another early day musical organization was the Aeolian Orchestra in which James Smolk, pioneer violinist, Mr. Praehl, Ed Kiefer, John Haeffler, Frank Modl and Charles White were members.

The old Antigo Cornet band of 1884 was revived in 1891 and was active for a few years later. L. D. Dana was its leader. The Antigo City Band was organized in 1907. Fred W. Leubcke is its leader. Neva Imperial Band, organized by Neva township musicians, was most successful in 1918. Elcho supports a band equal to many in this section of Wisconsin.

Mrs. Lillian White Freyn of Chicago, who lived for many years in Antigo, has made a splendid record in the musical world. She is now conducting recitals and concerts in Chicago. Mrs. Freyn studied at the Fine Arts School, Chicago, Ill. She left Antigo in 1907.

James Strnad was a prominent violinist in Antigo for many years before he left in 1919 for Chicago. His son, a lad of nine years, studying in Chicago, has a wonderful career as a violinist before him.

The first violin to form the sound reproducer and amplifier of talking machine records was patented May 24, 1910, patent No. 959318, by Wm. H. Desureau, 1435 Clermont street, Antigo, Wis.

THE RADIO—"MUSIC IN THE AIR."

Great advancement has been made in wireless telephony. It is now possible to sit at home and hear a complete concert many miles away. Weather forecasts, the correct time, market reports, stock fluctuations can be communicated to the invisible audience. These communications travel on radio waves at a speed of 186,000 miles per second. The currents they induce alternate too rapidly for any mechanism yet devised to register directly. A detector, therefore, is essential in all radio work.

The experience of listening to music out of the air is quite unique and interesting. The novelty naturally makes a strong appeal and will be carefully watched by manufactures and retailers of the talking machine. In these and other matters there are signal opportunities awaiting the inventive genius of the coming generations.

It is difficult to realize that but twenty-six years ago, in 1896, the first talking machine was exhibited at the Langlade County fair by James McCarty. It was an odd looking instrument with many long tubes running from the sound reproducer. These tubes were placed to the ear of the listener. No record could be heard without the use of a tube. Five and ten cents was charged to hear one record.

The first broadcasting radio wireless in Langlade County was installed by Lynn Matthias of Antigo. Mr. Matthias is a member of the American Relay Radio Association. Irvin Leuck has cooperated with Mr. Matthias in radio experimentation.

Harold Chapman and Neal Thayer are among those known to have received messages and enjoyed radio concerts from great distances.

CHAPTER XXX.

Commercial Antigo

Business Firms of Today—Location—Organization—Commercial Associations—Business Men's Association of 1885—Mercantile Protective Association—Old Commercial Club—Fifteen Thousand Club—Association of Commerce.

History, it is said, repeats itself. The pioneer merchant, anxious to supply the demand of a critical public, handled many and diverse articles. A suit of clothes or a sack of oats could be purchased at the same store. As time passed business house in Antigo began to specialize in one line of goods. Today, however, firms are reverting to the pioneer method, viz., the purchasing of any article desired under the same roof. Thus came into existence the modern department store. The A. Goldberg Department store, organized in 1887, once located in the Goldberg building, Fifth Avenue and Edison Street, was the only department store that developed with the city, since 1887. A. Goldberg erected the brick building, corner of Clermont Street and Fifth Avenue, and moved from it in 1907.

The E. Wigderson Department store was opened in the Hill Building, Antigo, in 1903. E. Wigderson has two other stores, one at St. Paul, Minn., and another at Rhinelander, Wis.

M. Krom & Son are early Antigo merchants, the former coming here in 1888. The present store opened as Krom & Slepian in 1912 and M. Krom & Son commenced business in 1913.

The J. C. Penney Company opened a store in the Kratche Bldg., 717 Fifth Avenue, April 27, 1920. C. Melgaard came here from Williston, North Dakota, and assumed the management. Eight regular employes are on the clerical force.

COMMERCIAL ORGANIZATIONS.

The first Langlade County commercial organization was instituted April 19, 1885. Rooms were secured and fitted up in the second story of the block, corner Clermont Street and Fifth Avenue. The organization was called The Antigo Businessmen's Association. Its purposes were to "extend and improve social relations and to encourage local manufacturing, establish new industries and maintain good municipal government." It advocated prohibition and stood for no-license. Those who signed organization articles were W. H. Lord, F. A. Deeglise, J. C. Lewis, H. C. Humphrey, J. J. Simpson, W. W. Hutchinson, J. E. Martin, H. A. Kohl, M. M. Waite, Charles Sipes, T. D. Kellogg, C. A. Martin, C. S. Leykom, R. J. Leutscher, Ed. Daskam, George Ratcliffe, J. G. Champion, Irvin Gray, A. C. Clarke, W. B. Johns, J. E. Clancy, C. G. Adkins, L. Lusk, A. W. Dean, F. M. Sherman, W. S. Morgan, J. K. Smolk, Paul Weed, B. F. Dorr, and John E. Mulowney.

This was followed by other important civic and commercial associations, which lasted a few years and were replaced. The more important of these were the Mercantile Protective Association, organized April 14, 1893, the 15,000 Club, a real estate unit, organized February 26, 1908, and the old Commercial Club, which while not active, still exists.

The Antigo Association of Commerce was organized in January, 1917, and W. J. Gallon was elected first President, which office he still retains. Offices of the Association are in the Hill Building. Other officers are: Vice-President—Fred L. Berner; Treasurer—Frank G. Wanek; Secretary—Mrs. L. E. Dickensen; Directors—A. A. Lueck, Chairman, F. G. Wanek, Dr. F. C. Kestly, Chas. Cody and C. O. Miller. Meetings are held monthly.

Pioneer Merchants and Buildings

Merchants of 1879—Fifth Avenue a Wilderness—First Store—First Real Estate Office—Business Conditions—The Old Opera House—Difficult Access to Trading Points—The Approach of a New Era.

The first mercantile firm in Antigo was that of Niels Anderson, who came from Mills Center, near Green Bay, to the Antigo settlement in 1878. He opened a store on Superior Street, facing east towards Spring River, known now as Springbrook. It was a log store with scooped roof, and while very crude, was the beginning of what has since developed into the business district of Antigo. The Anderson store was a success and for years was the nucleus of all activity in the village and surrounding territory. It was through the efforts of F. A. Deleglise that Mr. Anderson was influenced to locate here.

The first real estate office of Antigo was located across from Niels Anderson's store in the log building owned by F. A. Deleglise. Many settlers can still recall negotiations of land affairs with the founder of Antigo.

In the year of 1879, L. D. Moses of Ogdensburg, Waupaca County, settled in Antigo, and opened the second store. The building was constructed of rough lumber and was located on the east side of Superior Street, south of the Ullman Block. Mr. Moses conducted this store for five years, and then engaged in the banking business. The store was then taken over by Irvin Gray, who assumed complete charge by 1886. When the first stores were opened, there were less than fifty settlers here.

Between the years of 1878 and 1880 there was not a house east of "Spring River." There were only two farm houses between the village of Antigo and Aniwa and the journey was long and treacherous between the two points.

Dr. D. S. Olmsted came to Antigo in 1879 from Embarrass, Waupaca County, and erected two crude buildings on the east side of Superior Street between Fifth and Sixth Avenues. "Doc" Olmsted was described as "cute and bright." He was Justice of the Peace, and Clerk of Court, and was one of the picturesque characters of early Antigo.

In 1879 Louis Mendlik of Manitowoc settled here. He built a two story frame building. This was located between Sixth and Seventh Avenues, across from the present site of the Antigo Public Library. He engaged in the book and stationery business.

In 1880 Antigo possessed two other buildings, a log school house on the present site of the P. F. Kelly Implement Store, Third Avenue and Superior Street, and the Old Twin Valley Inn, erected on the southeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Superior Street.

Julius and Charles Teipner of Oshkosh settled in Antigo in 1879. They erected a stopping place on the present location of the Market Square Hotel. They provided headquarters for the logging teams and lumbermen who went into the Wolf River country during the historic log drives.

This is a complete description of the pioneer district between 1877 and 1880, and is worthy of permanent record to preserve for posterity the names, locations and character of the early merchants and their business establishments.

During the first years business was limited. The Milwaukee Lake Shore and Western Railroad had been nothing but a dream. Our neighbors at Shawano had "scoffed" at its coming into Antigo and declared that it would go "up in smoke." Forty-five miles of wilderness separated Antigo from Wausau, from which place many an early settler laboriously hauled a sack of flour on his back the entire distance to his home in the woods. Shipments of produce necessitated expensive hauling by oxen or horse.

THE FIRST OPERA HOUSE ERECTED IN ANTIGO

It was then owned by Hoeffler Brothers.

It was a tedious journey from Aniwa to Antigo, and goods and food products were hauled over a trail that had not emerged from "totedom." There were few farmers in Langlade County in 1880 and as the government census indicates permanent settlers numbering 685. Those fortunate to have a surplus of produce such as potatoes, corn, hay or clover had difficult times to get in contact with the merchant. Roads were few, yet the merchants were busy. Produce was exchanged by homesteaders for needed household goods, and Antigo, in its embryo stages, was prosperous. We shall learn that through this period of mutual helpfulness and cooperation and through the gradual approach of the railroad, the wonder of the new north took on unheard of proportions and the dream of F. A. Deleglise to found a city unfolded in reality before his eyes.

THE NEW ERA

PERIOD OF 1882-1886.

The growth of Antigo from March, 1878 to the end of the period of 1881 was slow and at times discouraging to the first vanguard of mortals, who showed the way of those who followed. Antigo did not increase rapidly in population between 1878 and 1882. Nevertheless the hardy pioneers, strong of character, unswervingly kept faith in an ideal village, and by the summer of 1882, less than a year after the first rails were spiked, a new era of heretofore unsurpassed prosperity and expansion was witnessed. By 1886, Antigo was a city of 2,500 inhabitants. From eight business establishments it had grown to be an incorporated city. During this period of development the following were the chief business firms: Opera House; J. H. Weed Saw Mill; Antigo Planing Mill; City Planing Mill; Herman & Becklinger Sawmill; Fred Herman Planing Mill; Novotny's Sawmill, later Kellogg & Kellogg Sawmill; R. M. Goodwin & Co. Broom Handle Factory; W. D. Badger Hub and Spoke Factory; Ed Neff Blacksmith Shop; Johns & Kerlings Pioneer Iron Works; J. E. Clancy Building Factory; Milwaukee Lake Shore and Western Railroad engine house and depot; Bacon, Tollefson & Company; Irvin Gray Mercantile Store; Hessel & Leykom Hardware; Langlade County Bank; J. C. Lewis & Co.; W. W. Hutchinson, Real Estate; F. C. Meyers Meat Market; H. L. Ferguson; Antigo House; Teipner House; Spencer House; G. W. Hill Meat Market; Jacob Wavrunek Store; Sherman & Dawley Real Estate; G. C. Williams Meat Market; Luetsker & Wilterding Drug Store; H. Smith Drug Store; Morgan Art Studio; C. Censky Shoe Store; O'Connor & McDonald Livery; Shove & Baily Store; Captain William Stone, Blacksmith; Bridgeman Variety Store; W. H. Blinn, Jewelry; Janes Billiard Hall; Vantassel & Daugherty; Charles Jaekel Store; Smolk Barber Shop; Lillian Horton, Dressmaker; C. R. Morehouse, Blacksmith; Crocker and McHale, Contractors; Kropf & Zuehle Market; Lind & Sipes; Zahl & Robinson; Bowman Gun Shop; Henry Berner, General Store; Silbar & Goldberg; Clithero & Strong Lbr. Co.; Peter Fishback, Clothing Store; Bailey & Shaver; S. Buerger News Depot; S. Neuman Store, and C. G. Adkins, Store.

H. A. Mills was the first merchant police in Antigo. He was employed by the merchants on Central Avenue (Fifth Avenue) in February, 1885. Peter Johnson is the merchant police officer of Antigo in 1922.

T. H. Robbins and Frank Sherman opened the first roller skating rink in Antigo in 1885. Roller skating was the leading means of recreation and diversion for the people of Antigo then. It was then popular all over Wisconsin.

In 1885, the merchants of Antigo began a campaign for the construction of board sidewalks on Fifth Avenue. Considerable discussion was made at the time over the width of the walks. No sidewalks were constructed without authority of the common council of the city, after its incorporation in 1885.

Road improvements was advocated by Antigo merchants in 1885, with the result that the road from Antigo west into Ackley township (now highway No. 64) was turnpiked and greatly improved. Settlers in that vicinity had complained to Antigo merchants that it was then difficult for them to get their produce into Antigo to the markets.

Lots were sold in the South Park Addition to Antigo by W. W. Hutchinson in 1885 for from $25 to $125.00.

The Antigo Business Men's Association held their first meeting in their headquarters in October, 1885.

The program for City Advancement in Antigo as inaugurated in 1885 was as follows:

How to build the city of Antigo:

Talk about it.

Write about it.

Speak well of its public spirited citizens.

Invest in something, if you have money.

Don't be a knocker.

Be courteous to strangers.

Always cheer the men who go in for improvements.

Help to improve it.

Speak well about it.

Beautify the streets.

Advertise.

Elect good men to public offices.

CHAPTER XXXII.

Public Utilities

The Volunteer and Paid Fire Departments—Telephone Industry—Old Bowman Central Station of 1883—Progress—Antigo Telephone Corporation—Antigo Electric Light Systems—The City Hall—Antigo Water Company—Police Department—City Finances.

When the first settlers of Antigo were in peril of fire the "bucket brigade" was adopted, being the first system of fire protection in the village. When the early residents desired pure drinking water open wells, wooden and other pumps were sunk, this being the first "water system" of the little hamlet. When they wished to communicate with a neighbor a distance away they did not telephone, but hitched up old "Dobbin" and made the call. They carried an oil lantern to the barn instead of turning on an electric light switch and milking the cows by a Mazda light. They read the late arriving papers and magazines by the light of oil burning lamps that partially illuminated their homes. The "city fathers" or town officials met at Niels Anderson's log cabin and later at Spencer's Hall instead of holding conferences in the sanctum of a modern city hall. These hardy folk paved the way and suffered inconveniences that this generation and posterity might profit because of their faith.

From the story of the municipal and public utilities as presented the reader will notice an improvement and wonderful progress since the coming of the first white settlers into the land dubbed "Deleglise's Dream."

THE FIRE DEPARTMENT—VOLUNTEER AND PAID.

The paid Antigo Fire Department was organized in 1903 and G. O. Palmiter was chosen first chief. Previously equipment and organization consisted of a Hose Company, Hook and Ladder Company, and an Engine Company of volunteers. The first fire apparatus was a hand suction pump called "the man killer." The pump was first used the afternoon after its arrival in a fire at the Herman, Becklinger & Herman mill.

One of the first acts of the city, when incorporated, was to secure a second hand fire "steamer" from the city of Appleton. This was used at the Clithero & Strong mill fire for the first time and proved satisfactory. The steamer, called "The Ben Jones," was of a type such as the fire department owns today, but was smaller and of less power.

In 1885 and for a time later, the city did not own a fire team. When the alarm was sounded whoever came with a team first would hitch onto the apparatus and proceed to the conflagration. In the absence of a team, the hose cart, engine and truck and ladder were "man pulled" to the fire. The sons of Mr. and Mrs. H. Berner lived close to the fire department headquarters and were usually first to "hitch on."

The first Fire Wardens appointed by Mayor Thomas

W. Lynch, April 20, 1885, were: First Ward, W. F. Bowman and Thomas Sanvidge; Second Ward, T. D. Kellogg and B. F. Dorr; Third Ward, E. Meaghers and C. F. Dallman; Fourth Ward, E. R. Van Buran and Charles Thompson.

June 10, 1885, Alderman George Clithero introduced a resolution, which passed, instructing the fire department committee to lease a lot on "main street" near the Lewis corner on which to erect an engine house 24x40 feet and 12 feet high with "double front doors."

The first fire apparatus purchased by the city was June 7, 1885, when, at a special meeting of the city council, an engine, hose cart, and a hose and hook and ladder truck were purchased "from Gleason & Bailey." July 7, 1886, $900 was appropriated for purchasing fire hose from the Hamilton Rubber Company and Louis Novotny was engaged at a $100 a year salary to act as steam fire engineer.

August 8, 1886, all fire companies and the hook and ladder company were dissolved, shortly after F. M. Sherman had resigned as volunteer chief.

August 11, 1886, the fire department was reorganized with the following officers: C. S. Leykom, Chief; W. F. White, Assistant; A. D. Rice, Secretary. February 7, 1888, members of Rescue Hose Company No. 1, Volunteers, resigned. On February 21, 1888, the citizens were called upon to organize a hose, hook and ladder, and engine company pursuant to section 3, chapter 173 of the laws of 1887. The apparatus in possession of the resigned companies was collected by the City Marshal with authority of the city council.

It was not long before Antigo had a new fire fighting unit. May 6, 1888, a new constitution and new by-laws of the Antigo Engine Company were formed and accepted by the city council as follows:

ANTIGO ENGINE COMPANY.

Preamble: "The undersigned citizens of the city of Antigo hereby agree to associate 'ourselves' together for the purpose of forming an engine company to form a part of the Antigo Fire Department and request the common council to accept us as such; to have the custody, care and control of the two fire engines in said city." As such company the citizens organized themselves under an entirely new set of rulings.

RESCUE HOSE CO. NO. 1.

Under the provisions of section 3, sub-chapter 12, chapter 173, laws of 1887, Rescue Hose Company No.

1 was organized and accepted by the city council. The petition for acceptance was signed by E. B. Kennedy, Casper Peck, John Tobin, A. L. Ross, A. Novotny, Wm. Mader, Peter Becker, W. H. Dawley, Gabe Kaplanek, E. McKenna, C. Druesen, M. R. McCann, W. B. Johns, F. J. Finucane, G. E. Keen, S. Buerger, John Mader, Wm. Berner, Louis Berner, John Reide, Fred Myer, H. L. Furgeson, and L. Wahl.

ALERT HOOK & LADDER CO. NO. 1.

The constitution and preamble of the Alert Hook & Ladder Co. No. 1 was signed by the following: H. A. Kohl, J. C. Lewis, N. J. Boll, John Beadle, J. B. Loomis, G. Costley, Fred W. Kiefer, W. L. Crocker, J. Dunn, Thomas Smith, B. Hoffman, E. Meaghers, W. Bacon, O. Heller, and A. Boll.

THE PRESENT HEADQUARTERS.

The Antigo Fire Department occupies the north part of the city hall building. Sleeping apartments are located on the second floor east of the council chambers. There are now nine members of the department as follows: Chief, Elwin Billings; Assistant Chief, Guy Rice; Pipemen, Chester Hugunin, Louis Maybee, Edward Rynders, and Ben Joyce; Driver, Ernest Frisch; Extra Driver, George Case; Engineer, John Bowens.

The city equipped the department with an eighty horsepower Seagrave motor truck in 1916. The American La France steamer, now used, was purchased in 1911. It is capable of pumping 750 gallons of water per minute and has saved thousands of dollars worth of property.

Chiefs of the volunteer departments were W. L. Crocker, William Johns, Frank M. Sherman, H. A. Kohl, G. O. Palmiter, and Warren Hill. Chiefs of the Paid Antigo Fire Department have been G. O. Palmiter, Dan Leonard, Fred Ebert, Emil Panoush, and Elwin Billings, present chief.

THE TELEPHONE INDUSTRY.

Pioneers, who have passed to their reward, would be amazed to know that instead of sending a courier on horseback or afoot they could today pick up a receiver and in a few minutes talk to a physician at Shawano, Clintonville or Wausau, nearest settlements to the Langlade County wilderness of 1880. Such has been the wonderful change resulting from the invention of the late Alexander Graham Bell in 1876.

The first telephone system in Antigo was owned by the Wisconsin Telephone Company. Poles were erected in November, 1883. In December, 1883, the first telephones were put in business and residential places. Central office was located where the Masonic Temple now stands, in a gun shop owned by W. F. Bowman, who was the first manager.

Peter O'Connor in an early day operated a private telephone system with a few subscribers. In November, 1896, I. F. Strasser of Ripon, Wis., secured a franchise to operate a private telephone company in Antigo. The office was moved from the Bowman location to the Spencer drug store location, now the A. A. Lueck Drug Store. Richard Koebke managed the system and later became its owner. A new exchange was instituted in 1900. June 1, 1902, W. L. Elliott took over the Antigo Telephone Company. Two hundred and fifty subscribers used the service then. The same year the Wisconsin Telephone Company supplied Antigo with long distance connections.

T. W. Hogan, J. C. Lewis, Edward Cleary, L. L. Gibbs, and W. H. Brown purchased the Antigo telephone system from W. L. Elliott and improved the service during their years of ownership. In 1916 the stock was sold to E. A. Zundel and others of Sheboygan, Wis. Since, it has been known as The Antigo Telephone Corporation. Offices of W. J. Gallon, General Manager, are in the Ullman building, Superior Street. Central offices are located in the Cleary building. Other officers are President, E. A. Zundel; Vice President, J. E. Collins; Secretary-Treasurer, W. J. Gallon, and Ben Snyder, Assistant Manager. Directories are issued semi-annually.

ANTIGO'S ELECTRIC SYSTEMS.

The Antigo electric plant was established in 1888 by Louis K. Lusk, J. H. Trever, and C. S. Leykom. It was called the Antigo Edison Electric Light Co. The concern operated in the location of the present plant until September, 1897, when the original owners sold to W. L. Elliott, who made many improvements in the industry.

Mr. Elliott died on January 2, 1904, and John Wright of Chicago took over the plant. (Deal was made before Elliott's death). The electric light plant was destroyed by fire one day before Mr. Wright signed the legal papers. Mr. Wright completely remodeled his new plant and operated with success until 1909 when the present owners purchased it. Purchasers from Mr. Wright were John Manser, F. A. Hecker, D. J. Murray, John Anderson, F. J. Boyce, and C. M. Cleveland of Wausau. Antigo men became interested financially since then. The company reorganized in August, 1909, electing the following officers: President, John Manser; Vice President, F. J. Boyce, and Secretary-Treasurer, F. A. Hecker. Mr. Manser is now active manager of the plant. The present owners have made great advances and have practically a new A. C. plant. J. J. Healy is chief engineer and Walter Vaughn is chief of the linemen.

ANTIGO WATER CO.—WATER DEPARTMENT.

Before July, 1891, Antigo citizens did not have the conveniences of waterworks as enjoyed today. Antigo was then dependent on wells, cisterns, pumps, and bubbling springs for water supply. But a growing community is bound to attract capital, labor, and progressive citizens. W. G. Maxcy, his brother, and two other parties organized the original Antigo Water Company in 1891. A complete plant, pump house, and reserve tank were erected at the present waterworks site. The company served the business and residential sections as fast as they desired water service.

The city of Antigo purchased the Antigo Waterworks in 1914 at a cost of $148,507.13. The affairs of the plant are in charge of Frank Dvorak, Treasurer and Manager, and Harry Jackson, Superintendent, and Miss Grace Dessureau, department clerk, who have offices in the city hall. Other officers are Mayor, who is Chairman of the board of directors, and Secretary, who is the City Clerk, now G. O. Palmiter.

The water plant is equipped with two tubular boilers of 125 horsepower each. A steel stand pipe 100 feet high has a capacity of 150,400 gallons. The total amount of water pumped in 1921 was 291,355,930 gal-

Interest on funded debt, $4,250; interest on real estate mortgages, $1,150; contractual sinking fund requirements, $1,800.

Net income at close of business in 1921 was $6,880.54.

The department has 127 metered consumers and 1,108 flat consumers.

Daily capacity of the two municipal pumps is 1,735,000 and 1,500,000 gallons respectively.

THE CITY HALL.

When the city was incorporated in 1885, the old skating rink, property of T. H. Robbins, was purchased and made over into quarters for city officials and the fire department. The large frame structure was lons. The range of ordinary pressure on water mains is between 30 and 43 pounds, while fire pressure ranges from 100 to 125 pounds. At the close of business in 1921, 98,813 feet of mains served as distributors to all sections of the city. Two shallow wells with capacities of 750,000 and 800,000 gallons each, constitute a part of the system. These wells are 25 and 30 feet in depth respectively. All Antigo Water Department bonds mature in 1934. Operating expenses at the close of June, 1915, were $9,996.84.

Total revenues for 1921 were $34,063.11.

Total operating expenses for 1921 were $19,982.57.

Gross income for 1921, $34,063.11.

Total deductions from gross income $7,200 subdivided as follows:

used until the new city hall was erected in 1901. The "old skating rink" was razed.

Bids for erecting the new city hall were opened October 17, 1899, and the contract awarded to C. F. Dallman for $9,250.00. The building committee selected by Mayor I. D. Steffen consisted of John Kestly, N. R. Babcock, and J. W. Allerton. The city hall was completed in December, 1900, and final payments were made to contractor C. F. Dallman in January, 1901. Van Ryan & De Gelleke of Milwaukee were the architects.

The city hall is the home of Antigo's official body. It contains offices of the Mayor, City Clerk, Commissioners, Treasurer, Council Chambers, Water Department, Engineer, Fire and Police Departments, and department firemen sleeping quarters.

STONE CRUSHERS—DISPOSAL PLANTS.

Sewerage disposal land was purchased in October, 1910. John Brogan was the sewerage disposal contractor. Bonds for the erection of the plant were issued June 15, 1911, to the extent of $50,000.

The old stone crusher cost $1,185 and was erected in 1907. The crusher was to the rear of the J. W. Otis building. The second crusher was purchased from the Austin-Western Road Machine Co. in 1913 for $1,541.60. A stone crusher was purchased in 1896 for $1,000. In May, 1922, a new stone crusher was purchased from the Austin-Western Road Machinery Co., Chicago, Ill.

CEMETERIES—PARKS.

The first cemetery association was organized in Antigo by Jackson Tibbets, W. L. Crocker, Gus Lind, Hon. F. A. Deeglise, J. E. Martin, B. F. Dorr, L. Mendlik, L. W. Bliss, and George Ratcliffe. It was organized October 24, 1882. The Catholic Cemetery Association was organized in July, 1914. Leaders in the movement were J. J. Laughlin, Edward Cleary, A. J. Nowotny, Thomas W. Hogan, Fred W. Kiefer, Frank Riendl, Leonard Freiburger, and Thomas Morrissey.

The Antigo Cemetery Association controlled the Protestant and Catholic cemeteries until two distinct associations were formed—one Catholic and one Protestant. The Protestant continued as the old organization. Their cemetery, adjoining the Catholic cemetery on Aurora Street, is called the Antigo Cemetery.

During the mayoralty term of Fred Hayssen, June

8, 1905, eighty acres of land were purchased by the city and set aside for cemetery purposes. The cemetery is called "Elmwood." The Antigo Cemetery and Park Boards were consolidated in 1922.

The City Park was given to the city of Antigo by Mrs. Mary Deeglise in January, 1905. The deed was turned over to the city by Morrissey & Leslie. The park is situated between Eighth and Ninth Avenues east of Watson Street.

FIRST CITY ORDINANCE.

The first ordinance of the city was adopted April 16, 1885, after presentation by Mayor Thomas W. Lynch. The ordinance prescribed the manner of building wooden sidewalks and the width of same. The second ordinance fixed the regular meetings of the city council and was passed April 18, 1885. Both ordinances were repassed and published September 19, 1890, when Dr. I. D. Steffen was Mayor.

The first act of Mayor Thomas W. Lynch in 1885 was to sign a resolution declaring the city of Antigo duly created in accordance with chapter 79 of the laws of 1885.

CITY FINANCES.

The following statement from the City Comptroller gives the present financial status of the city of Antigo:

Total receipts for year ending 1921	$490,260.35
Total expenditure, all sources, for year 1921	505,842.26
Total Bonded Indebtedness, City of Antigo, 1921	201,000.00

That the generations to follow may know that Antigo, Langlade County, was one of the prominent fraternal and social cities of Wisconsin in this age, the various lodges, patriotic orders, clubs, and labor organizations are briefly enumerated. Where charter members were available they have been listed. These organizations are numerous and only a sketch of each can be made. They are benevolent, social, beneficiary, patriotic, and literary in character. Their memberships represent the entire city of Antigo and every township of Langlade County. In generations to come many of the orders will be dead and forgotten, and perhaps, by chance, in an old attic or from between the walls of a building being torn down or one that is decaying, this record of Antigo's fraternal, social, and benevolent affairs will be found.

REBEKAHS—TWILIGHT LODGE NO 184.

Twilight Lodge, No. 184, Rebekahs, was organized June 5, 1901. The charter members were H. Findeisen, W. F. Bowman, W. B. Johns, W. L. Crocker, W. J. Daskam, J. W. Allerton, Frank Irwin, Louisa Bowman, Amanda Johns, Fannie Crocker, Effie Crocker, Sophie Findeisen, Grace Daskam, Floy Truesdell, Hattie Kellett, Emma Weeks, Elizabeth Johnson, Eva Gee, Carrie Christiansen, Nellie Freyer, E. Antigo Camp 1847, Camp 6419, and Camp 8449 of the R. N. A. have been consolidated into one camp known now as Antigo Camp 1847. Charter members of Camp 1847 were Minnie L. GOVERNMENT LAND MEASURES.

Township.

Section.

For all legal or descriptive purposes the lands in Langlade County are referred to a town line and a range line. The largest division of land is a township, which is six miles square; the townships in Wisconsin are numbered 1 to 53 from the southern boundary line north, and are divided into townships by range lines running north and south. The range lines are referred to the 4th meridian, the ranges west being known as range 1 to XX west, and those east being known as ranges 1 to XXIX east. The city of Antigo is thus located in township 31 north, range 11 east.

A township contains 36 sections or 23,040 acres. A section is one mile square and contains 640 acres. A quarter section is a half mile square and contains 160 acres. A 40 acre tract of land is one-fourth of a mile square.

Lands are usually sold in tracts of 40 acres or a multiple thereof, except in case of land bordering on lakes, which are fractional sections and may contain more or less than 40 acres. These are called government lots.

The sections in each township are numbered 1 to 36, commencing at the northeast corner as is shown in the diagram. Sections are divided into quarters which are known as the northeast quarter, the northwest quarter, the southwest quarter and the southeast quarter. The quarters are again divided in the same way as shown in the accompanying diagram on page 174.

The description of this 40 acre lot then, for example, read as follows: The northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of section 1, township 33 north, range 13 east.

Historic Ackley township, with its vast expanse of uninhabited territory, reveals a most interesting chapter in the story of Langlade County. While not attached until long after the county was penetrated first by white men, yet its growth and prominence have not been retarded by its physical, political, or geographical features.

This township comprises two full congressional townships, about 40,080 acres or 72 square miles. Township 31, Range 9 East is referred to as West Ackley and Township 31, Range 10 East is designated as East Ackley. The township is bounded on the north by Vilas and Peck townships, on the east by Antigo township, on the south by Rolling township and Marathon County, and on the west by Lincoln County. The survey of both Ackley townships was inaugurated by H. C. Fellows, on August 18, 1860, and ended August 30, 1860.

It received its name from its first settler, W. L. Ackley, an Englishman, who played an important role in the early pioneer and official life of the township.

The principal water course is the west and east branches of the Eau Claire river. The east branch runs through sections 2, 3, 10, 15, 21, 27, 28, and 34. The west branch flows through sections 4, 9, 16, and 21, all in East Ackley. Black Creek flows through sections 19, 29, and 30 in East Ackley township and through sections 11, 12, and 13 in West Ackley. The Trappe river runs through sections 27, 32, 33, and 34, draining much of the West Ackley territory.

The general surface of the township is low, becoming, however, somewhat rolling in the southwestern portion. Ample drainage is afforded in East Ackley, but such is not the fact in West Ackley.

Both congressional townships of Ackley were originally covered with heavy tracts of white pine, maple, poplar, birch, oak, red birch, elm, iron wood and other forest products. The pine was first to be slashed. Except in the southwestern part and in other swampy regions the best of the timber has all disappeared before the axe of the conqueror.

Ackley township has five different phases of soil. They are the Spencer Silt Loam, Peat, Merrimac Silt Loam, Merrimac Sandy Loam, and Muck.

Spencer Silt Loam, level phase, is a light brown silt loam, average depth ten inches, containing a moderate amount of organic matter. The depth below 16 to 20 inches is mottled with yellow, brown, bluish, and reddish brown, indicative of poor internal drainage. This type of soil is found in West Ackley in all sections except 10, 15, 13, and 21.

Peat, vegetable matter in various stages of decomposition, is found in sections 10 and 15, principally, and in parts of sections 7, 19, 30, and 13 of West Ackley township and also in sections 17, 18, 23, and 19 and in narrow strips elsewhere in East Ackley township.

Merrimac Silt Loam is found in sections 12, 13, 21, and 25 of West Ackley township and with the exception of that part of East Ackley in which Peat and Merrimac Sandy Loam and Muck are found, all of East Ackley territory. This means that over two-thirds of East Ackley have that type of soil. The Merrimac Silt Loam, composed of alluvial material, is a light brown or grayish brown friable silt extending to an average depth of twelve inches. The content of silt is high. The subsoil becomes heavier with depth. It is under general cultivation and is highly improved. Oats, hay, potatoes, corn, rye, barley, wheat, peas, and poppy seed are grown successfully on this soil. Ginseng is a special crop, which, when handled properly, yields profitable results.

The Merrimac Sandy Loam is a type of soil, occupying a tract of land in sections 17, 18, 19, and 20, East Ackley township, with a total area of about one section. It is found in the south part of the first two and the northern part of the last two named sections. This soil on the surface is sandy loam to a depth of 12 inches. The subsoil is loose and incoherent yellow sand, becoming coarser with depth.

Muck is found in East Ackley in section 32.

FIRST TOWN MEETING.

The first annual town meeting in 1879 was held April 1. Forty-three votes were cast. The township then stretched north to the state line. The first voters were George Bessy, Willis Otis, Michael Kennedy, Frank P. Kennedy, Charles Nelson, Joseph Kenredy, Emanuel McGahan, John Hafner, William Taylor, Henry Shipley, Thomas Hafner, John Kennedy, John McGahan, August Hoglander, Jeremiah De Moss, Joseph Longworth, Rubin Vaughn, Leroy Furgeson, Peter Beck, Y. TOWNSHIP SCHOOL GOVERNMENT.

The pioneer settlers of Ackley also voted April 1, 1879 to adopt the Township School government system. Thirteen votes were cast, all in favor of that system, which was revoked in 1886.

FIRST TOWNSHIP OFFICERS.

First Ackley township officers were as follows: Chairman—Frank P. Kennedy; Supervisors—John Nelson, Joseph Parfitt; Assessor—J. W. Hampton; Township Clerk—John Hafner; Treasurer—W. L. Ackley; Justices—John G. Beardsley, John Kennedy and Y. Space; Constables—Jeremiah De Moss, Henry Day, Peter Beck.

ELECTION BOARD—1879.

Z. Space and John McGahn were the first election clerks and L. O. Shaw, John Kennedy and Thomas Hafner were election supervisors.

FIRST RESOLUTION.

The first Ackley township officials by unanimous vote resolved to raise "for town taxes and incidental purposes," $300. For road tax. 007 mills. For teachers' wages and incidental school purposes, $500.

REPORT OF TOWNSHIP TREASURER, NOV., 1879.

A committee was selected to examine the "accounts and moneys" of Edson Lloyd, Treasurer, November, 1879. The following correct and true report, showing a balance of $960.18, was produced then: State Tax, $38.40; County Schools, $31.27; County Tax, $340.84; Town and Road Tax, $218.30; Judgment Tax $182.44; Fees, $48; Total, $960.18.

EARLY ACKLEY BRIDGES.

Some of the first bridges in Ackley township were: W. L. Ackley built a roughly constructed bridge, the first in the township, over the Eau Claire river. This was the first bridge built by white men in Langlade County (1853). J. R. Balsh corduroyed Black Brook in 1881. April, 1882, Nathan De Moss was allowed $122.65 for bridge work in Ackley.

ROAD DISTRICTS.

Ackley township was divided into four road districts in 1880. They were in charge of Thomas Hafner, John Tinney, George Bessy, and W. L. Ackley.

EARLY TOWNSHIP ROADS.

In 1879 Ackley was divided into three road districts, while a year later, as stated, it was reorganized into four districts.

May 8, 1879, the township officials granted the application of J. Johnson, John McGahn, Neils Olson, Henry Holey, C. D. Wescott, Charles Holey, Thomas Hafner, John Hafner, Frank P. Kennedy, and John Kennedy, homestead applicants, for a road beginning at the quarter section corner in the center of section 26, Township 31, Range 10 East, and running north on the quarter line to the quarter post in the center of Section 11; thence on the quarter line to the quarter section corner in center of section 12; thence north on the quarter line to the quarter section corner in the center of section 1 and thence east on the quarter line to the quarter section corner on the east side of section 1.

One year before, 1878, bearing the date of November 11, A. D., the supervisors of the Town of Pine River laid out a highway which began at the center of Section 27, Township 31, Range 10 E., thence west toward the Lincoln County line. This was actually the first road in Ackley. It was named the Ackley road. F. A. Deleglise, with John Doersch and George Eckhart, assisting, surveyed this region in October, 1879. Five other roads were laid out in 1879. One began at the center of section 11 and ran west to the center of Section 10, Township 31, Range 10 East, authorized July 25, 1879. Another commenced at the quarter post on the west line of section 11 and continued north until striking the bank of the Eau Claire River (near the A. L. Hayner farm), and was authorized April 30, 1879. May 4, 1879, a road was authorized on the following survey: Beginning at the southwest corner of Section 31, Township 32, Range 10 East, then north (not in Ackley township now). June 20, 1879, a road was authorized beginning in the center of section 3 and running north into what is now Peck township. The last road authorized in 1879 was one beginning at the quarter post of section 12 to the quarter post on the east line of Section 12, Township 31, Range 10 East.

These were the first roads of Pine River or Ackley township. With their construction the tote road and Indian trail were trod less frequently and before long a new wilderness erased them forever.

ATTACHED TO LANGLADE, 1885.

In 1885, Chapter 436, Laws of Wisconsin, detached Township 31, Ranges 9 and 10 East, from Lincoln County and attached this territory to Langlade County. Frank P. Kennedy was the first Chairman of Ackley Township to sit in at a Langlade County Board of Supervisors session.

FIRST TOWNSHIP BONDS.

Ackley township had heavy expenses during its first years. New schools, bridges, cutting out roads, general township expenses, all were a constant drain on the treasury. Therefore, June 13, 1885, a resolution was adopted authorizing the township to issue bonds to the extent of $5,500 for the purpose of settling all outstanding township accounts.

ON THE WATER WAGON.

Nathan De Moss, pioneer settler, was authorized to procure a good pail of drinking water, said water to be drunk at the polling booth, 1885, (June) and for the service he was paid fifty cents in town orders. This resolution passed. It demonstrates that Ackley officials were moderate in their demands for ale.

DISTRICT NO. 1.

CLOVERVALLEY DISTRICT. This district is one of the oldest settlements in Langlade County. It is also one of the smallest, containing sections 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, all of Township 31, Range 10 East in East Ackley congressional township.

The district system of school government was adopted in Ackley township by a vote of 64 to 56 on April 6, 1886. Thus district No. 1 was created. It should be understood, however, that schools were opened in this territory six years previous.

District No. 1 originally consisted of all of sections 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36 in both townships 31, Ranges 9 and 10 East, and also sections 7, 8, 17, 18, 19, 20, 29, 30 in Township 31, Range 9 East. Originally a district containing 12,800 acres it has, by detaching, recreation of districts and organization of joint districts, dwindled down to but 3,840 acres.

In the year 1880, before the railroad pierced into the county, Matt Duda, Frank Wilson, Joseph Stengl, James Sisel, Alfred Brandow, B. Woledge, Sr., and son, James Witt, Matt Wachal, Sr., John Stengl, James Brick, W. W. Stone, Charles G. Koudelka, and George Brandow settled on cheap land or staked homesteads in this territory.

Upon their little domains rude log cabins were erected. Necessities of life were considered luxuries by the hardy inhabitants. Wausau was the trading post and one settler would follow the Indian trails on the Eau Claire river banks or an old road cut out by river drivers to that city for provisions. He would haul back to the sparsely settled region such provisions as flour, corn meal, meats, clothing, and garden seeds and grain for the pioneers. The journey, tedious, would take two to three days as oxen were used and they do not compare well with the motor car of today or the fast twentieth century locomotive. Yet in a time like that the settlers were content with what they possessed. The adjacent world was not more fortunate.

In the year 1884 a school was erected. Miss Mary Kiefer and Miss Brandow were very early teachers. The school was a typical pioneer institution of learning. A small stove, a few black boards, and rough floors and benches were used. Text books were not uniform. Teachers' salaries then averaged $25 per month.

The settlers welcomed new families into the district and before long an addition was made on the little school. The same school is in use by the district yet. It is located on the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter of section 35.

The district has splendid roads and rural free delivery since 1904 keeps the agriculturist in touch with events of the state, nation and world. He may receive election returns without leaving his plow or may order his supplies from Antigo, county seat, without leaving his comfortable farm home. The Stenglville and Eau Claire river telephone services are at his command.

The residents are progressive. Pure bred cattle are encouraged, scientific farming and modern dairying methods are practiced and fostered.

Lumbering was an important industry in pioneer days. The logs were hauled to the banks of the Eau Claire river and driven to Schofield, village near Wausau, Wis.

The first school officers were: Lloyd Breck, Director; John Stengl, Treasurer; and B. H. Woledge, Clerk.

DISTRICT NO. 2.

FERNDALE DISTRICT. District No. 2 is located in the southern part of East Ackley township No. 31, Range 10 East. It originally consisted of 20 sections, as follows: Sections 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, Township 31, Range 10 East, and all of sections 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, and 28 in Township 31, Range 9 East.

While the education of the youth was adequately provided for, considering the perplexities confronting the early settlers, the district was not organized until April 28, 1886. Schools were erected before then in many instances.

When the first settlers in Ferndale district arrived they found the country a desolate wilderness. Roaming bands of Indians, chiefly of the Chippewa and Menominee tribes, hunted in the forests and fished in the Eau Claire river. Their main Indian trail was along the Eau Claire river banks and went north and eastward toward Oconto County territory, and the old Lake Superior Trail. It was this trail that many settlers used to haul or "man pack" supplies to the settlement from Wausau. Settlers in other districts had the same experience. Some early settlers were M. Hermann, A. Hermann, J. Stengl, M. Orado, L. Legro, and H. Holley.

It was during the early settlement of the district that the Indians intermingled with the white settlers. The custom among the first white settlers was to take Indian maidens as their brides. They erected a little cabin, usually under the boughs of a giant pine tree, hunted wild game, secured provisions, worked on the river drives, trapped in the winter months, fished in the Eau Claire river and cultivated little garden patches while the dusky maiden reigned over the household affairs. Hospitality to no higher degree was ever exhibited than by the "squaw man" and his wife. Many of the pioneer settlers were taught by the Indians how to operate a light canoe down the Eau Claire river to Schofield, Wis.

The first school erected in the district was a rough frame structure in 1886. It was located on section 35. Miss Susan Watson was the first teacher. A Mr. Westcott was a member of the first school board.

The old school was moved from its original location to the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter of section 26, East Ackley township on land owned by John Bahr, Sr., pioneer settler. The wooden structure served until the settlers decided to construct a new school of brick. The old one was moved off the site by D. C. Woodcock, who purchased it after the erection of a modern school years later.

The 1922-23 school board consists of John Bahr, Jr., Treasurer; G. C. Woodcock, Director; and Steven Feigel, Clerk.

There are about twenty farmers residing in the district. It has a cheese factory, erected in 1917 by J. Grunderman, who since sold to E. Haase. The factory is located on section 26, near the school house. It is now operated by Michael F. Helmbrecht.

The soft drink parlor of Jess Hawkins is located on the northeast quarter of the southwest quarter of section 26.

Highway 64 runs through this district. All other roads are well maintained.

Agriculturing and dairying are the principal occupations of the residents. Excellent lighting systems, well kept barns, silos, farm machinery, neat residences, substantial out buildings, farm tractors, rural telephones, a rural mail system—all these are splendid features of the district.

The town hall of Ackley township is located in this district on section 23.

EAU CLAIRE GRANGE NO 647.

The Eau Claire Grange No. 647, Patrons of Husbandry, was organized April 27, 1917. Meetings are held every second and fourth Friday at the township hall, Section 23. The first Master of the grange was Frank Sheriff. Other original officers were: Overseer, William Heschke; Secretary, John Mauer; Treasurer, John Somer; Lecturer, Mrs. John Somer; Steward, Charles Hoerman; Chaplain, Mrs. Otto Klessig; Gatekeeper, Earl Klessig; Ceres, Mrs. Charles Motts; Pomona, Mrs. Beno Hoerman; Flora, Theresa Raff; Assistant Steward, Ivan Somer; Lady Assistant Steward, Mary Hoerman; Board of Trustees, John Mettler, Joseph Hell, Charles Motts.

Present officers are: Master, John Bahr; Overseer, Frank Sheriff; Lecturer, Mrs. John Somer; Secretary, John Somer; Treasurer, John Csuy; Steward, Mrs. Anton Zaverousky; Chaplain, Mrs. D. C. Woodcock; Gatekeeper, Anton Zima; Lady Assistant Steward, Mrs. John Bahr; Assistant Steward, Mrs. Anton Zaverousky. The membership is nearly twenty.

ACKLEY TOWN HALL.

Ackley township, progressive and alert, has a splendid town hall on section 23 of East Ackley township. The hall was erected at an approximate cost of $1,500. It has one acre of ground neatly fenced in. The hall was erected in 1917.

DISTRICT NO. 3.

LONGFELLOW DISTRICT. In the northeastern part of East Ackley is an area of land containing seven and one-half sections or 4,800 acres. This portion of Langlade County, lying northwest of Antigo, is known as District No. 3, since designated as the Longfellow district, in honor of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, distinguished American poet.

The first settlers braved the perils of a desolate wilderness infested with Indians as early as 1877. Those who were first to settle here were John Kennedy, Michael Kennedy, Frank P. Kennedy, Charles Nelson, G. Hoglander, John Nelson, John McGahn, Emanuel McGahn, Thomas Hafner, John Hafner, Michael Hafner, Albert Berdan, the O'Brien family, S. Goodwin, and J. Jilik. Following the first vanguard came Peter Higgins, Sr., his son, Peter Higgins, Jr., Henry Higgins, Joseph Singer, Martin Maloney, and others.

Many of the first settlers came from Wausau, Stevensville, Outagamie County, and other nearby cities. The first came from Wausau with yokes of oxen. The journey was a long one and many of the early homesteaders and land purchasers spent days on the journey. Their family belongings were carted by the same oxen.

Log shacks were hastily erected. Their scooped roofs furnished a picturesque contrast to those frame buildings first erected in the district by Michael Kennedy, who imported the lumber from Wausau. The Martin Maloney and John Nelson homes were second and third frame residences in the district.

Sustenance was provided by the excellent soil and work in the pine timber belt. The Brooks & Ross Company, Wausau, and other pioneer lumber interests, cut pine in the region. Many of the settlers took an active part in this industry during its high tide.

Education of the children was provided for before the expiration of the first year. In 1878 a log school house was erected just a little to the east of the present school site. This school was not a step in advance of the schools such as Abraham Lincoln or Daniel Webster attended. The first teachers were very conscientious and industrious, as are most of those of today. The first teacher, Michael Hafner, still lives in Langlade County. In 1922 he returned to the district to visit some of the remaining pioneers. Other early teachers were Carrie and Marian Finucane, Lizzie Young, Mrs. Margaret Hughes, Harry Logan, now a preacher at Appleton, Wis., and Margaret Kavanaugh. The Kennedy, Nelson, and Hoglander children were the first pupils.

Two years later, 1880, the first frame school was erected on the present school site. It was used until 1910. Its cost was $500, but additions and betterments since have entailed $500 expenses. The modern brick structure was erected in 1910 by August Stabe, Antigo contractor, at a cost of $1,800. It is located in the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter of section 11.

John Hruska erected the first cheese factory seventeen years ago. It was operated successfully by Ernest Jaess and Joseph Maresch until the fall of 1921 when it burned. On the same location, section 11 (NW $\frac{1}{4}$), the American Produce Company, a corporation in which Ackley farmers are principal stockholders, opened a new cheese factory May 22, 1922. The first factory was called the Kennedyville factory.

Members of the original school board of this district were Frank P. Kennedy, Clerk; John Kennedy, Director, and John Nelson, Treasurer. Agnes Kennedy was the district teacher in 1921-22, while the school officers for that term were Peter Higgins, Jr., Treasurer; Fred Swenson, Clerk, and John Fronek, Director.

The Indians, Chippewa, chiefly, had many favorite camping and fishing locations in the district. They were not very industrious, but were kind to the first settlers. Often these red folk entered homes for food or clothing.

District No. 3 originally consisted of fifteen and one-half sections, East Ackley township. The sections were 1, 2, 3, one-half of section 4, all of sections 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, or 9,940 acres. This is twice the present area of the district. Organization took place April 6, 1886. The district now comprises 5,440 acres of land in sections 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, and the south half of section 1, Township 31, Range 10 East.

EAST ACKLEY GRANGE NO. 593.

East Ackley Grange, No. 593, is located in this district. The grange was organized August 22, 1912, at the Longfellow school. The first officers were: Master, M. B. Emmerich; Overseer, John Fronek; Lecturer, Clara Emmerich; Steward, Chester Nelson; Assistant Steward, James Barker, Jr.; Chaplain, Anna Goodman; Treasurer, R. Krall; Secretary, A. F. Goodman; Gatekeeper, Joseph Maresh, Jr.; Ceres, Florence Hafner; Flora, Rose Hafner; Pomona, Mamie Maloney; Lady Assistant Steward, Helen Hayner. Present officers are: Master, A. F. Goodman; Overseer, James Barker; Lecturer, Rudolph Shaser; Steward, Joseph Jilek, Jr.; Assistant Steward, Louis Domke; Lady Assistant Steward, Anna Jilek; Chaplain, Clara Swenson; Gatekeeper, Harry Fronek; Treasurer, Fred Swenson;

Secretary, Ralph Krall; Ceres, Emma Singer; Flora, Elma Domke; Pomona, Anna Goodman.

The East Ackley hall was erected in the fall of 1914. The building was not actually completed, however, until the spring of 1915. Its cost was $1,500. Eighty enthusiastic grangers are on the membership roll.

District No. 3, pioneer district, faced the storms of reaction, lumber and agricultural reverses for a quarter century with calmness and high hope. Its future will be an important march of progress in Langlade County.

DISTRICT NO. 5

EAU CLAIRE DISTRICT. This district is located in the west central part of Ackley township, and lies almost wholly within Township 31, Range 9 East. It consists of all of sections 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, and the south halves of sections 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18 of Township 31, Range 9 East, all of sections 16, 17, 19, the south one-half of section 18, the north three-quarters of section 21, the west one-half of section 22, the northeast one-fourth of section 22, the northwest one-fourth of the southeast one-fourth of section 22, all in Township 31, Range 10 East.

District No. 5, organized April 6, 1886, originally consisted of all territory beginning at the northeast corner of section 7, Township 32, Range 10 East, thence running south to the southeast corner of section 12, then west to the southwest corner of section 10, Township 32, Range 9 East, thence north to the northwest corner of section 3, thence east to the place of beginning. It will be observed that this territory is not within the present Ackley township limits, but is in the northeastern part of Peck township.

The territory now known as Eau Claire district was within the original limits of districts 2, 3 and 6.

J. Schaeffer, John Galuski, Anton Smith, Albert Reggotki, Albert Preboski, and Charles Ackley were pioneer settlers. Ted Bera and John Borczyk were also early settlers, but later than the first.

The district was one of the principal pine belts in western Langlade County and logging and lumbering were the chief industries until the cut over lands were cleared and cultivated. The Brooks & Ross Company, W. L. Ackley, Boyington, and others logged and cut pine in this territory in a very early day.

The farm home of Albert Reggotki was the location of the first school, which was taught by Phillip Aird, who became an Ackley township official later.

Some of the pioneer Ackley township roads were constructed in this district, the old beds of which are still visible. Indian trails abounded and many settlers used them to get from cabin to cabin.

The original farm dwellings were nothing but log shacks, just as were those of the other districts.

Early bridges were constructed of logs, sod, and stones. The most historic is the old Galuski bridge, which collapsed under a load in 1887.

The Chicago & Northwestern Railroad Company built a spur track into this territory to haul lumber products, logs, and to serve the village of Heinemann generally in 1901. The track runs through sections 23 and 24 in this district.

Mention has been made of the first school. The second was soon after erected near the Prasalowicz place, section 21, on the banks of the Eau Claire (East Branch) river. The present school was erected in 1910. It is a brick structure with cost $1,800.

There are approximately thirty-five settlers in the district which is named Eau Claire because of the two branches of that river joining nearby.

A vast portion of this district is not inhabited. Highway No. 64 traverses it on a direct west course to the Lincoln County line.

The present school is located on the northwest one-fourth of the northeast one-fourth of section 21.

DISTRICT NO. 6.

MARSH DISTRICT. District No. 6, situated in the northern part of Ackley, principally range 9 east, is the largest school area in Ackley township. It comprises 12,000 acres, or all that territory within sections 1 to 12 inclusive in Township 31, Range 9 East, the north one-half of sections 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18 in Range 9 East, the north one-half of section 18, Range 10 East, also sections 6, 7, 8 in Township 31, Range 10 East, and the southwest one-fourth of section 5, Range 10 East.

District No. 6 was organized April 6, 1886, when the school system was changed from the township method to the district method. It then consisted of all of sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16 in Township 31, Range 9 East, the west one-half of section 4, and also sections 5 and 6 in Township 31, Range 10 East, also more territory now in Peck township which was sparsely settled.

The first settlers were William Taylor and Thomas Woolets. William Taylor came into this district in 1877. His entire fortune consisted of a team, two calves, a hundred pound sack of flour and a few coppers in his pocket. It was necessary for him to drive through much swampy land to reach his small holding. He erected a log cabin, made his own shingles, hewed his logs and cultivated a patch of land to the rear of his cabin located on section 6, Township 31, Range 10 East. Other settlers later, but early, were Thomas Longworth and J. Finney.

Very few settlers moved into this district because of the marshy territory, poor drainage and inaccessibility to trading posts. Even water was hard to obtain by the first settlers, who carried many buckets from Black Brook, Peck township. Spring water was used also.

The first school was erected on a site three-quarters of a mile southeast of the present school site. Twelve pupils were in attendance at the first session which was in charge of John Kennedy. Elizabeth and Alice Kennedy were the second and third teachers in this district.

The log cabin school soon became inadequate to cope with educational needs of the district and a frame school was erected which Agnes Singer taught during the first session held. It was used until 1906, when a brick school house was erected on section 6. The second school was used afterward as a woodshed.

The first settler, William Taylor, moved from this district in 1917.

Members of the first school board were John Beardsley, Jonathan Reader and Peter G. Beck. (The district then included part of what is today Peck township). The school affairs in the Marsh District have been capably handled by various citizens, elected annually as members of the district board.

Much of the land in the district is owned by the B. Heinemann Lumber Company, the George Baldwin estate, and others.

DISTRICT NO. 7.

RIVERVIEW DISTRICT. When the township system of school government was abandoned in Ackley township, the township was divided into eight school districts. Reorganization took place from time to time in recognition of demands of new settlers and also because of Langlade County territorial changes from 1881 to 1885.

District No. 7 was organized by order of State Superintendent of Schools C. P. Cary, Thursday, July 26, 1906. The district was formed chiefly because of the demands for a school by the settlers residing at Heinemann, lumber village, in the territory. It consisted originally of the south half of the southwest quarter and the south half of the southeast quarter of section 20, the south quarter of the southwest quarter and the south half of the southeast quarter of section 21, the west half of section 27, all of sections 28, 29 and 30 and the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of section 32, all in Township 31, Range 10 East (East Ackley); also all of sections 25, 26, 27, 28, 29 and 30 in Township 31, Range 9 East. This took in territory once a part of the original Ferndale District No. 2. District No. 7 then contained 6,480 acres. Its area now, when changes in districts have been made, more important of which was made on petition of 27 citizens, June 4, 1919, is 10,320 acres. It includes all of sections 25 to 36 inclusive, Township 31, Range 9 East, all of sections 28, 29, 30, the west half of section 27, the south half of the south half of both sections 20, 21, and the south half of the southeast quarter of section 22, all in Township 31, Range 10 East.

The first officers of this school district were W. B. Heinemann, Treasurer; Charles Bruce, Director, and Fred Hoffman, Clerk. Present officers (1921-22) are John Mauer, Clerk; Charles Motts, Treasurer, and Herman Lucht, Director.

Early settlers in this district were: W. L. Ackley, Louis Poxleitner, Adolph Stall, Benno Hoermann, John Mauer, Matt Fuchs, Mrs. Joseph Kolet, and others.

The district has the distinction of having W. L. Ackley, first permanent settler of Langlade County, as its first settler. He arrived in this country in 1853. He was present in Ackley township when the government survey was made in 1860. Mr. Ackley lived on the Eau Claire river banks. He fished, hunted in the forests, lumbered in the pineries, aided the log drivers, established a business with D. Hogarty, traded with the Indians, lived, in fact, the life of a Daniel Boone in this country. Mr. Ackley was in this township, which bears his name, ten years before Henry Strauss, "Mystery Man" of the Wolf river country went into eastern Langlade County from Menominee, Michigan, to be from the haunts of all white men who he declared he wished no longer to see.

The district is, therefore, the oldest one in point of habitat by permanent white settlers.

The river driving on the Eau Claire river formed an important industry in pioneer days. The various improvement companies removed obstructions in the Eau Claire river, thus enabling the pine logs to be driven down the stream to Schofield, Wis.

Company, Antigo, Wis., and moved to the vicinity of the Langlade Lumber Company mill in August, 1917.

The first cheese factory was opened in 1919 in the old store building, once the Heinemann Lumber Company store. In 1920 it changed hands and the Ackley Farmers Dairy Produce Company operated the factory, which burned down in 1921.

There are now no cheese factories, cemeteries or churches in the district. Highway No. 64 runs through the district and is used constantly. It was opened to Merrill in the fall of 1921.

The Riverview Park, in which many Antigo people are interested, is located across the Eau Claire river (on the west bank) in the district. A large dance pavilion was erected in 1921 and is very popular.

Eugene Mullen conducts a soft drink parlor which he has operated for a number of years.

DELLS OF THE EAU CLAIRE RIVER

The junction of the east and west branches of the Eau Claire River are in Ackley township.

In 1897, H. C. Humphrey, G. W. Hogben, and A. M. Lanning organized the Antigo Screen Door Company. They discontinued business in Antigo after operating a short time. Then the concern erected a factory on the Eau Claire river in this district on section 28. A. C. Campbell and A. M. Lanning operated it until a change in ownership whereby the Heinemann Lumber Company took it over in 1901. They made extensive improvements in the industry. Their saw and planing mills operated until 1911 when the sawmill burned down. The village of Heinemann prospered during the life of the industry. Many employes were boarded at a hotel owned by the lumber concern. The concern also operated a store for the residents of the village. Many of the village houses were since purchased by the Langlade Lumber

Agriculture is the principal occupation of the settlers, all of whom are progressive.

Ruins of the once splendid planing mill, sawmill and thriving village still exist, reminding the observer

*"That trade's proud empire hastes to swift decay,
As ocean sweeps the labour'd mole away;
While self-dependent power can time defy,
As rocks resist the billow and the sky."*

At the opening of the twentieth century, Barker & Stewart and the Heinemann Lumber Company logged extensively in this district. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad serves this territory, passing through sections 19, 30, 31, 32 in West Ackley.

Settlements are along this road. They are called McGinnis, Bellmeyer and Behm.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Ainsworth Townships No. 33-34, R. 12 E.

Location—Original Timber Growths—Quality of Soil—Government Survey—Organization of Ainsworth Township—"Uncle Tom" Ainsworth—Ainsworth Originally in Cleveland Township—Town Hall—Township Officials—The Old Lake Superior Trail—Stopping Places—Dams—Pearson District—Arbutus Hill District—District No. 5—Swamp Creek District.

Ainsworth township was named after "Uncle Tom" Ainsworth, who was born in Dorchester, England on August 18, 1839, the son of Henry and Susan Ainsworth. When eighteen years of age he came to the United States, stayed two years in Ohio and then came to Wisconsin, settling at Oshkosh, Winnebago County. He was a Civil Engineer by profession. Henry and John Ainsworth, two brothers, were engaged in agriculture in Winnebago County at the time of "Uncle Tom's" arrival. Tom Ainsworth tended the dams for the improvement companies on the Wolf River between Post Lake and Shawano. He made three trips every two weeks from Shawano, Wis. He was married in 1874 to Anna B. Jones of Shawano. They had one child, Mary, now Mrs. Eugene Wescott, Shawano, Wis. "Uncle Tom" died January 11, 1910 at Shawano.

Ainsworth township clings to the name Ainsworth in more than one way. Charles Ainsworth, a nephew of "Uncle Tom" has been successively chosen Township Treasurer since the organization of the township.

Uncle Tom Ainsworth was one of the best known men among the pioneers in the Wolf River country.

AINSWORTH TOWNSHIP.

Ainsworth is situated north of Price township and occupies that territory in townships 33 and 34 of Range 12 East. South Ainsworth township was surveyed by James L. Nowlin, U. S. Deputy Surveyor, who commenced the survey May 6, 1865, and completed it May 17, 1865. South Ainsworth is bounded on the north by North Ainsworth township, on the south by Price township, on the east by East Upham township and on the west by North Langlade township. The south township was originally covered with a growth of white and yellow pine, hemlock, birch, oak and maple. Most of the timber was of poor quality. Extensive tracts of hardwood still stand. The soil of South Ainsworth consists of Gloucester sandy loam found in sections 1, 2, 3 and 4 of the township and in a spear shaped area in the western part of South Ainsworth. Merrimac silt loam is found in sections 5 and 6. Gloucester silt loam is not so extensive in the southern part of the township. Considerable Peat is found along the banks of the Wolf River and near the marshes and lakes. The junction of the Hunting and Wolf rivers is in this township in section 8. The famous military road runs through section 1 entering North Ainsworth in section 35.

North Ainsworth lies in congressional township 34 of Range 12 East. It was surveyed by James L. Nowlin, who started May 18, 1865, and completed the survey June 1, 1865. Hemlock, tamarack, white pine, cedar, birch and maple were the original forest products. There was but little pine in this township. The only stream of note is the Wolf river, which has a width from 1 to 3 chains. It runs through sections 30, 31 and 32 on the west. Pickerel Creek, in the east, runs through sections 13, 24, 25, 26, 27, 33 and 34. Principal lakes are Rich Lake, the western part of Pickerel Lake, in section 25, and other small lakes.

North Ainsworth is bounded on the north by Forest County, on the south by South Ainsworth, on the west by East Elcho township and on the east by Forest County. The soil of North Ainsworth consists principally of Gloucester silt loam, Gloucester stony sand in the south and a small area north near Little Rolling Stone Lake (at county boundary). Gloucester sandy loam is found in the center of the township, Gloucester fine sand in sections 22, 23 and 27, a strip of Plainfield sand is found south of Rich's (Rolling Stone) Lake in sections 13 and 14. The largest area of Peat in Langlade County is found in western North Ainsworth. It embraces an area of about eight sections, and extends north into the Town of Nashville, Forest County.

THE ORGANIZATION OF AINSWORTH.

Ainsworth township is the youngest of Langlade County civil divisions. The township was organized at the first annual township meeting, April 4, 1905. Charles A. Learned was appointed temporary Chairman of the meeting and Alexander Henry and Robert Schmidt were selected as Clerks of Election. H. B. Polar and A. Nixon were chosen ballot clerks and F. A. Thorn and Joseph Schoknecht as inspectors of election.

The township was named after "Uncle Tom" Ainsworth, who, for many years came to the dam at Pearson to care for it and "tend" for the Wolf River Improvement Company.

FIRST OFFICERS.

The first officers of Ainsworth township were: Chairman—Charles A. Learned; F. A. Thorn and H. B. Polar—Supervisors; Alexander Henry—Clerk; Chas. T. Ainsworth—Treasurer; Samuel Preston—Assessor; W. Newell—Constable; J. Thorn, Henry Harvey and J. W. Hoffman—Justices.

ONCE IN LANGLADE TOWNSHIP—1875.

The town of Ainsworth was once a part of Langlade township, Oconto County, in 1875-1879. (Langlade township then consisted of 44 and a third townships and extended to the state line, but was cut down to 27 townships just before New County was created in 1879). When Langlade County was organized Ainsworth was a part of Polar township. In November, 1883, it was detached from Polar township and became a part of Price township. It remained under the jurisdiction of Price township but one year. November 12, 1884, the county board was requested to organize Aetna township out of the present territory of Ainsworth and townships 34 of Ranges 13 and 14 East, now a part of Nashville township, Forest County. The request was granted and Cleveland township was created. (See Cleveland township in Chapter on Vacated Langlade County Townships). In November, 1886, this territory, with the exception of that part ceded to Forest County in 1885, was vacated and attached to Langlade township. It remained in Langlade township until 1905 when Ainsworth was organized.

AINSWORTH HALL.

November 6, 1907, James D. Polar, Sam Preston, F. W. Hoffman, C. A. Learned, Jos. Schoknecht, Charles T. Ainsworth, J. W. Spencer, J. K. Newell, Alvin Richter, F. A. Thorne, J. T. Thorn, Wm. Spencer, W. Crams, H. B. Polar, B. S. Powell, and J. H. Powell petitioned the township officials to vote on the question of raising $1,000 to erect a town hall. The question was put to the voters of Ainsworth and 13 voted for and 2 against the loan. The first meeting in the new town hall, located on section 9, was held April 7, 1908.

SETTLEMENT WITH LANGLADE.

Ainsworth township made a settlement with the officials of Langlade township May 20, 1905. Charles A. Learned, Alexander Henry and C. T. Ainsworth were the Committee on Settlement from the new town. The division of properties and treasury funds was made on a 491 to 509 per cent basis, the latter per cent to be retained by Langlade.

Ainsworth received $713.54 and Langlade received $739.70.

The division of Langlade township creating Ainsworth made the seventh recorded change in township jurisdiction of townships 33 and 34 of Range 12 East. These were 1—Territory was in Oconto County; 2—Territory in New County; 3—Territory in Langlade County in Polar township; 4—Territory in Price township; 5—Territory in Cleveland township; 6—Territory in Langlade township; 7—Territory in Ainsworth township.

FIRST HEALTH OFFICERS.

The first health officers of Ainsworth township were: Chairman of Board of Health—H. B. Polar; Health Officer—Frank A. Thorn and Clerk—Alexander Henry.

FIRST ROAD BEFORE U. S. SURVEY IN 1865.

The first road to penetrate the township was the old Lake Superior Trail that ran in a north and south direction through the center of the township. This road was cut before the government survey of Langlade County. The military road runs through this township on practically the same course.

STOPPING PLACES—DAMS.

Early stopping places and dams are found in the chapters on "Pioneer Lumbering on the Wolf River" and "Taverns—Old Stopping Places—Hotels."

DISTRICT NO 3.

PEARSON DISTRICT. The first historical event of importance in this district was the construction of the Wolf river dam, erected by the Keshena Improvement Company in 1869. Thomas Ainsworth, had charge of construction of this dam. P. Williams Maginey often termed "Bogus Bill" was the first dam tender. Buckstaff Brothers of Oshkosh had a camp on Craig's corner in this district in 1866. James Magee operated a camp on the site of the Henry Shadick residence, section 5.

The first permanent settlers in this district were Henry and John Seeman who settled in the district in March, 1883. Charles Ferguson came at the same time. Joseph Schoknecht settled on section 3, Township 33, Range 12 East, in July, 1883. Following him J. Pearson Hughes came in 1884 from Oshkosh, Wis., to regain his health. Henry Harvey and Charles Ainsworth followed, both coming from Shawano. The latter settled on section 9. Alexander Henry, Fred Hoffman, Albert Nixon, Sim Graves and Samuel Preston all were early settlers coming shortly after the first arrivals.

Henry Seaman and J. Pearson Hughes erected the first log school house on section 3. It was built in 1886. Edith Hughes and Rose and Frank Seeman were the first pupils. Early teachers were Louisa Romeis, Jane Reader, Nellie Reader and Mrs. J. Pearson Hughes. In 1891 a frame school replaced the log structure, being erected on section 10. It was in use until 1916 when a brick school was erected on the same site at a cost of $5,500. The old frame school house was moved to the Cloverdale district where George Mathison remodeled it for a store. The members of the school board when the frame school of 1891 was erected were Joseph Schoknecht, Treasurer; J. Pearson Hughes, Clerk and Robert Armstrong, Director. The 1921-22 officials were Fred Hartman, Treasurer; John Aird, Clerk; August Kussman, Director. The 1921-22 teacher was Vera Young.

J. Pearson Hughes was the first storekeeper and postmaster at Pearson village, which was named by him. The store was a typical crossroads place. Albert Nixon operated the first hotel on section 9. J. P. Hughes ran a boarding house before then.

Oscar Seeman was the first boy and Elsie Schoknecht was the first girl born in the district. She was also the first woman to vote in the district, at a general election.

Sim Graves operated a saw mill on section 4 from 1905 to 1907, when it was moved away. The land was purchased by the Paine Lumber Company of Oshkosh, Wis.

The first and only cheese factory was erected on section 4 in 1919 by R. Roeder.

Telephone service was brought into the district in 1915 by the Military Road Telephone Company.

Fred Hartman erected the first silo in the district. There are now four silos in the district.

The town cemetery is located on section 3, an acre of land having been purchased for that purpose from Joseph Schoknecht.

The Langlade Lumber Company, successor to the Paine Lumber Company, have extensive holdings in the district. They have brought in new settlers, through their cut over land sales.

The post office has been moved frequently since J. Pearson Hughes opened it, on section 9. Other postmasters were Alexander Henry, section 9; William Spencer, section 9; Samuel Preston, section 9, (it burned when he was in charge). It was then located on section 4. Other postmasters were Annie Monette, George Thrasher, Alonzo Buntin and George Mathison.

The Pearson district has a progressive population.

DISTRICT NO. 4.

ARBUTUS HILL DISTRICT. The pioneer citizens of this district were Charles A. Learned, H. B. Polar and David Getchell (who later moved to Langlade township, Elm Grove District).

H. B. Polar came into northern Wisconsin in 1861 and moved down the old Lake Superior trail from Lac Vieux Desert to the territory that later become Langlade County, but a short time later. He was one of Langlade County's most conspicuous pioneers. He lived with and among the Chippewa Indians, who revered and respected him. The chief occupation of this pioneer was that of a trader, woodsman, and later a proprietor of a so-called "stopping place." (See chapter on Taverns-Hotels-Stopping Places). Polar township was named in his memory. David Getchell, who came from Maine, is mentioned in the Elm Grove District. Charles Leonard became the first Ainsworth town chairman. He was active in Langlade township and Cleveland township affairs previously.

District No. 4 has long been the habitat of the Chippewa, who today lives within its borders. Many of them live in a primitive environment. "Old Blind Christ," a Chippewa Indian of advanced age lives nearby. He is reserved as are most of the Chippewa Indians hereabout. His name is John Pete and the story is related of how he became blind in an attempt to run from the authorities enforcing the peace and civil dignity of the district. Joseph Pete, a brother, fought in the Civil War.

The first school was known as the Polar School and was on the site of the present Arbutus school, section 34. It was a log building and was used a number of years. A frame building was erected and burned down in 1906. It was replaced by another frame structure which still stands, section 27, but is not used as a school. The brick school now in the district was built by Dallman & Hoffschmidt of Antigo. It is a splendid building, well equipped and a credit to the community.

The Chicago & Northwestern Railroad Company laid a spur track from Koepenick to Pearson and has done much to open this vicinity.

Lakes or Creeks in the district are: Pickerel Creek; Mosquito Creek, Dead Man's Lake, Sunken Lake, Hollister Lake and Mosquito Lake.

Loggers who have or are now operating: Fish Lumber Company crews, Kellogg Lumber & Mfg. Co., Langlade Lumber Co., Wittenberg Cedar Company and White Star Lumber Co., and Munsard & Perkins of Bowler.

There are about ten settlers in the district.

Early teachers were: Michael Hafner and Edith Buck. The 1921-22 teacher was Ione Preston. The 1921-22 school officials were: Lyman Jessey, Treasurer; John Harvey, Director and Frank Harvey, Clerk.

An Indian cemetery is located in the district and many of the Polar family are at rest in it. There H. B. Polar, the pioneer, James Polar and Barney Polar, who was charged with the murder of Henry Still, but was never captured for trial, are buried.

DISTRICT NO. 5.

This district has but four settlers, Frank A. Thorn family, Wm. Grames, William Vorass and Charles Franks. It is heavily timbered, lumbering, logging and agriculture being the chief occupations of the settlers.

Nicholas Preston homesteaded the southeast quarter of section 29. He was followed by Sim Graves, who also settled on section 29. Frank A. Thorn and family came into the district in 1899 and settled on section 27. E. C. Nichols settled on section 27 (NW $\frac{1}{4}$).

The first school was erected on section 29 and was used for many years until the frame structure was built in 1905. Early teachers were Edith Hughes, Dora Berendson, Lena Arentsen, Francis McBain, Francis La Veque and Nettie Hanson. The first teacher in the frame school was Minnie Brandow. The last teacher was Olga Grames. School has been discontinued because there are no children of school age.

The Langlade Lumber Company store and headquarters are located near this district on section 5. They moved their headquarters into the district from Bass Lake, Upham township in 1921. The company store was purchased from Hale, Mylrea Lumber Company in 1916.

DISTRICT NO. 6.

CLOVER DALE DISTRICT. In the region where the Hunting River joins with the Wolf River in a journey on to the St. Lawrence is a district known to the school children as the Clover Dale. Its early settlers were: John Powell, "Uncle West" Spencer, Columbus Spencer, B. S. Powell and Tillman Arrand. The district is not densely populated, but, because of recent extensive logging operations, has become settled.

A Catholic church was erected in 1919 in the district. The land for this church was donated by Oliver Shadick, Sr.

The Langlade Lumber Company has extensive logging operations in this vicinity. Their machine shop, general store operated by F. R. Cleveland and the Langlade Hotel, run by William Zerrenner, are all located in Clover Dale. George Mathison is the Pearson postmaster. He has a store which he runs in conjunction with the post office. Oliver Shadick, Jr., conducts a soft drink parlor in this district.

The present Clover Dale School was erected in 1909. It is located on section 5, township 33, Range 12 East.

DISTRICT NO. 7.

SWAMP CREEK DISTRICT is sparsely settled. The settlers are Charles Kreger, Wallace Fryer, the Brennerman family, George Maloney, Frank Slobach, William Tomlin and Joseph Schacher. E. S. Tradewell logged extensively in the district for many years until 1921. He also conducted a general store while engaged in logging. The school house, was erected by the Charles W. Fish Lumber Company. The first teacher was Miss Lola Mills. Mrs. Wallace Fryer is the present teacher. The 1921-22 school officials were: Frank Slobach, Treasurer; Mrs. Charles Krueger, Clerk and Wallace Fryer, Director.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

Antigo Township No. 31, R. 11 E.

Location—Boundaries—Organization—Old Town of Springbrook—Two Sets of Town Officers in 1880—Early Roads—Road Districts—First Improvements—First School District Boundaries—Expansion of Town—Boundary Lines Changed—School Districts—Early Settlers—The First Industries—Mills—Agriculture—Dairying—Schools—Churches—Cemeteries—Granges—Miscellaneous—Progress.

Antigo township, range 11, once extended from the southern boundary line of township 31, direct north in range 11 east to the boundary line between townships 37 and 38, range 11 east. Its original area was 252 square miles. Antigo township originally included its present area and all of Neva township, east Upham township, east Elcho township and township 35, 36 and 37, north of Langlade County.

The township lies in the south central part of Langlade County. Like the city of Antigo, it received its name from the Chippewa Indian word, Nequi-Antigo-Seebeh, signifying balsam evergreen. It is bounded on the north by Neva township, on the west by East Ackley township, on the east by Polar township and on the south by Norwood and Rolling townships. Antigo township embraces one Congressional township or thirty-six square miles. The most important water course in the township is Springbrook, which flows through sections 2, 10, 16, 23 and the city of Antigo. The township is generally level, its soil of exceptional fertility. Once the land was covered with dense timber, the great tracts of pine being first to fall under the blow of the woodsman's axe. Maple, birch, elm and cherry were also plentiful. It is distinctly a dairying and agricultural township. Its farms, cheese factories, stock and poultry farms, commodious barns and silos have taken the place of the stately pine tree of a half century ago. Antigo township was surveyed by H. C. Fellows of the U. S. Survey in September, 1860.

ORGANIZATION—TOWN OF SPRINGBROOK.

Antigo township belonged to Langlade township of Oconto County before 1879, when New County was organized. Thereupon it was under the jurisdiction of Shawano County and was known as Springbrook township.

Prior to January 1, 1880, the Shawano County Board of Supervisors ordered electors of Springbrook township to meet April 6, 1880 at the residence of Robert Sheriff, section 26, township 31, range 11 East. The meeting was adjourned from the Sheriff residence "because of illness in the family" to the farm home of A. O. D. Kelly, section 11, township 31, range 11 East. An election was held and the following were chosen first officers of Springbrook township: Chairman—Robert Sheriff; James Brenner and J. B. Beemer, Supervisors; A. O. D. Kelly—Assessor; D. S. Olmsted —Town Clerk; George Taplin—Town Treasurer; F. J. Despina, E. B. Morley and Charles Gowan—Justices of the Peace; John Cherf, D. H. Brands and Wm. Miller—Constables. Nineteen votes were cast by the following: D. S. Olmsted, Alex McMillan, George Taplin, James Brennen, Henry Jones, Richard Healy, Sr., John Everling, A. O. D. Kelly, Robert Sheriff, Fred Betke, Albert Betke, Charles Fred, Joseph Debrauer, Ferdinand Betke, Robert Webster, George Scott, Joseph Sheriff, Joel Quimby, D. H. Brands. J. B. Beemer, refused to qualify as a Supervisor, and John Cherf, was appointed to serve in his place from 1880-81. This set of officers held meetings at the homes of the officers the last one August 9, 1880, when $200 was appropriated from the drainage fund of the town to defend the township in an action begun by F. A. Deeglise in Circuit Court.

WHY THE ACTION WAS INSTITUTED.

When F. A. Deeglise, George Ratcliffe, M. W. Waite, V. Simmons, John Doersch, John Cherf, A. Price, E. M. Stevens, Charles Teipner, Wm. Shiel, Niels Anderson and Charles Gowan, all of the town of Springbrook, proceeded to the farm house of Robert Sheriff (the place designed by the Shawano County Board as the place of holding an election and organizing the town of Springbrook), they were informed of illness in the Sheriff family. The twelve citizens were indignant over the fact that "the polling place had been adjourned before the legal time of opening it and because a constable or any other person in authority was not left at the place from which adjournment was made to inform the electors of the new polling booths at the A. O. D. Kelly home."

Thus the township was divided into two factions before it was organized. The followers of Hon. F. A. Deeglise proceeded to the store of Niels Anderson, section 29, township 31. An election was held in which F. A. Deeglise was chosen Chairman; Joseph Duchac and James O'Connor as Supervisors; E. M. Stevens, Clerk; George Ratcliffe, Treasurer; Assessor—Charles Gowan; Justices of the Peace—F. J. Despina, V. Simmons and Charles Mosher; Constables—J. Compton and Lawrence Weix.

The fight between the two factions ended in Circuit Court at Green Bay when the Sheriff group were sustained.

STATE LAW OF 1881—FIRST OFFICERS.

A year passed swiftly and in accordance with provisions specified by the February 19, 1881, act of the State Legislature in which Langlade County was organized, an election for a Chairman of the new Township of Antigo (name of Springbrook dropped by voters) was held at Niels Anderson's store. The following first officers of Antigo township were elected: Chairman—V. Simmons; Supervisors—Joseph Duchac, George Ratcliffe; Town Clerk—H. E. Baker; Town Treasurer—Louis Novotny; Town Assessor—Thomas Leslie; Justices of the Peace—Louis Mendlik, Charles Mosher, M. Weatherwax, Thomas Leslie; Constables—D. McTaggart, James Brennen and Lawrence Weix.

FIRST ELECTION ADJOURNED—1881.

The first township election was adjourned from the Niels Anderson Store to the boot and shoe store of James Novotny. Niels Anderson was left at the first place to notify voters of the change. This election, April 5th, 1881, was the first one of the township as a part of Langlade County. Louis Mendlik acted as temporary chairman, Thomas Leslie and R. J. Richards as Inspectors of Election.

FIRST ACT OF VOTERS.

The voters first act was to agree to raise $600 to pay off the township school indebtedness of 1880. $1,000 was voted for school purposes for 1882.

JANUARY 11, 1883, TOWNSHIPS DETACHED.

All townships north of township 31, range 11 East in Antigo township were severed from Antigo township January 11, 1883, to form Neva township. Antigo township has since then remained one Congressional township.

ROAD DISTRICTS.

May 8, 1882, Antigo township was subdivided into ten road districts. Principal pioneer highways laid out were McMillan highway, Gowan highway, Brands highway, Oblique highway, Kennedy highway, Antigo-Neva highway, Krause highway, Byrnes highway, Langlade highway, Dawsen highway, Leslie highway, Betke highway, Sheriff highway, Crompton highway, R. C. Richard highway, Brennen highway, Polar-Antigo town line highway. The first road petition was granted May 8, 1880 by the town of Springbrook (before Antigo township was organized). This highway was four rods wide and ran as follows: Center line commenced at the west quarter corner of section 7, township 32, range 11 East, thence east on the quarter line to the center quarter corner of section 8; thence southeast touching at every corner to the southeast corner of section 16; thence southeast to the center line of a wagon road; thence south on center line of said wagon road (magnetia variation N. 6° E.) to the southeast corner of section 21, township 32, range 11 east, (now Neva township).

SCHOOL DISTRICT BOUNDARIES.

Before 1883 when Antigo township extended so far north and before Neva township was detached from Antigo township the school districts were vast incongruous sections of land. Since then Antigo township has been easier to divide into school districts. In 1885 the school districts were determined as follows: District No. 1 consisted of sections 19, 20, 21, 28, 29 and 30. District No. 2 consisted of sections 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 16, 17 and 18. District No. 3 consisted of sections 25, 26, 27, 34, 35 and 36. District No. 4 consisted of sections 1, 2, 3, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15 and the north ½ of sections 22, 23 and 24. District No. 5 consisted of sections 31, 32 and 33.

School district boundaries were changed, due chiefly to the growth of the city of Antigo, May 30, 1885; August 22, 1885; Nov. 17, 1890; November 20, 1900; April 21, 1903; October 16, 1906; Nov. 20, 1911; May 24, 1912; June 8, 1912.

Antigo township is now subdivided into seven school districts.

DISTRICT NO. 1.

PIONEER DISTRICT. School District No. 1, known as the Pioneer district, is one of the first of Langlade County school units. When the early settlers came to Antigo many also took up homesteads in this district as early as 1879. Pioneers in this district were George Bonnell, Peter Doucette, Ezra Galligan, Isreal Wood, August Baxter, J. W. Prosser and Oliver Leslie.

When the district was created it consisted of sections 19, 20 and 21 and the south $\frac{1}{2}$ of sections 16, 17 and 18. May 30, 1885, the NW $\frac{1}{4}$ of the NW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 30 was added to the district. August 22, 1885, this same territory was detached and became a part of the city of Antigo. November 17, 1890, the district was reconstructed, also on August 8, 1900, April 21, 1903, October 10, 1906 and June 8, 1912.

The district now comprises all of sections 16 and 17, the north $\frac{1}{2}$ of sections 20 and 21, also the north $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 19 (with exception of SE $\frac{1}{4}$ of the NW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 19), the south $\frac{1}{2}$ of the south $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 9 and the south $\frac{1}{2}$ of the SE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 8. The area is 2,440 acres.

The modern school in this district was built at a cost of $3,200 by Dallman & Hoffschmidt, Antigo contractors. A frame structure was used previously. Miss Anna Schultz was the teacher in 1921-22.

There are no cheese factories, churches or cemeteries in this district. Near Springbrook a gravel pit is located and it is from this pit that much of the gravel used on Langlade County highways has been secured.

Highways No. 64 and 39 either penetrate the district or are on its border. The district is situated in the north central part of Antigo township, just north of the city of Antigo.

The farms are some of the most up-to-date in the county.

Mrs. M. Jamieson, Mrs. D. J. Murphy, and Mrs. W. C. Krier, were 1921-22 members of the district Board of Education. The school is situated on the SE $\frac{1}{4}$ of the SE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 17.

DISTRICT NO. 2.

MAYFLOWER DISTRICT was legally established as District No. 2, in the north-western part of the township of Antigo. It comprises all of sections 4, 5, 6, 7 and 18 and the west $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 8, the NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 8, the north $\frac{1}{2}$ of the SE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 8, and all of section 9, except the south $\frac{1}{2}$ of the south $\frac{1}{2}$.

Early settlers in this district were Hedly Ralph, T. W. Leslie, Anton Reznichuk, Matt Elliott, Lee Elliott, John Sweet, Charles Reidl, Charles Johnson, Joseph Igle, Michael Bartl, Otto Steber, William Vlasczyk, Joseph Casey, and Jos. Wojtasiak.

The only industries in the district with the exception of agricultural pursuits is a cheese factory, The Fairview, located on the SE $\frac{1}{4}$ of the NW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 8. It was erected in 1916 by Charles Maloney. D. D. Korth, present proprietor, took possession May 7, 1917.

The Mayflower school is located on the NW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 8 and is a splendid brick structure. Before its erection in 1914 by C. F. Dallman at a cost of \$2,200.00 a frame structure was used.

This district was organized at the time district No. 1 was created. Changes in the district boundary were made from June 23, 1885, when the district consisted of sections 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 16, 17 and 18, on the following dates: August 5, 1885; May 5, 1887; August 10, 1900; April 21, 1903; October 16, 1906; June 8, 1912.

Highway No. 39 runs through the district.

The 1921-22 board consisted of D. D. Korth, Clerk; John Sweet, Treasurer and Charles Johnson, Director.

DISTRICT NO. 3.

BOULDER HILL DISTRICT. District No. 3, which is known as Boulder Hill district because of the topography of the vicinity in which the district school is located, was organized about 1882. Langlade County was not subdivided into school districts, however, until later when the school district system was adopted by the electorate.

June 23, 1885, this district consisted of the south $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 22, the south $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 23, the south $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 24 and all of sections 25, 26, 27, 34, 35 and 36. August 22, 1885, sections 25, 26, 27, 34, 35 and 36 constituted the district. The south $\frac{1}{2}$ of sections 22, 23 and 24 were detached then and added to district No. 4. (District No. 6 was created at that time.)

On August 10, 1900, section 27 and the NW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 26 were detached from District No. 3 and added to District No. 7. August 22, 1910, the NW $\frac{1}{4}$ of the SW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 26 was taken from District No. 3 and attached to District No. 7 and the SE $\frac{1}{4}$ of the SE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 27 was attached to District No. 3.

The area of the district at present is 2,720 acres or 4 and $\frac{1}{4}$ sections of land. The district is situated in the southeast corner of Antigo township.

Early settlers were: Michael Ford, John Ford, Mike Carney, James C. Maloney, R. Richards, Charles Frill, Frank Compton, John Monnette, Elias Tibbetts, John Clarke, Albert Boettcher, Fred Boettcher, John Now, Richard Healy, Sr., Robert Sheriff of run-away election fame, Joseph De Brauer, Lewilyn Richards and others. The first settlers cleared their cabin home spaces in 1879.

The first school was erected in the south central part of the district on section 36, the land for same being donated by John Ford. It was a quaint log building typical of the pioneer temples of education. Miss Kate Ford, now Mrs. James Maloney, was the first teacher. Fred Boettcher and G. A. Baker were members of the first school board, after the district system was adopted.

Other teachers were: Clara Alton, Clara Beals, Maggie Gilroy, Clara Sackett, Nettie Burdick, Addie Hill, Maggie Kavanaugh, Maggie McGinley, Minnie Morris, Florence McGuire, Bessie Chamberlain, Marie Driscoll, H. C. Logan, Jos. Flynn, Anna Shinnors, Josie Edwards, Maude Burns, Bertha Moss, Maud Lillie, Mattie Morson, Elizabeth Young, Pearl Williams, Myrtle Merrill, Margaret Healy, Clara Brockhaus, Ida Kitt, Mary Moss, Lula Ford, Edna Brakenyer, Pauline Waterman, Mattie Morson, Mildred Blood, and Ethel Gilmore. Average attendance at the school is thirty.

1921-22 school officers were: William Schroeder, Treasurer; Thomas Ford, Director and Frank Neigenfind, Clerk. The original log school was replaced years ago with a splendid frame school house, which has been improved frequently.

Instead of the old tote road, Indian trail, and oxen carts, the settlers of the district now have splendid highways and excellent transportation facilities. Many of the prosperous settlers own automobiles making communication with Antigo, the county seat, very convenient. The proposed route of the Soo Line (Wisconsin Northern) runs through section 34 in this district.

WINNER GRANGE NO. 588.

Winner Grange No. 588, Patrons of Husbandry, is located in this school district. This Grange was organized at Fairview School, in District No. 7, July 26, 1912. The Winner Grange building, however, is located on the southwest corner of section 34 in this district. The first officers were: Master—J. H. Howe; Overseer—H. J. Mathias; Lecturer—Mrs. W. G. Head; Treasurer—H. W. Green; Secretary—B. G. Stewart. Present officers are: Master—James Holup; Overseer—F. L. Seidl; Lecturer—Mrs. O. W. Johnson; Steward—O. W. Johnson; Chaplain—Mrs. J. H. Howe—Assistant Steward—F. A. Frederickson; Treasurer—H. H. Aldrich; Secretary—James Knox; Gatekeeper—Alfred Boyle; Ceres—Mrs. Thomas Ford; Pomona—Mrs. Frank Gustavis; Flora—Mrs. Frank Seidl.

The membership now consists of sixty, while the high tide of membership reached 118.

The present quarters were erected in 1915, when the Winner Grange Corporation was formed. Calvin Balliet, J. H. Howe, B. G. Stewart, S. E. Webb and James Knox were the trustees. The grange is an institution for good in the community.

DISTRICT NO. 4.

SELENSKI DISTRICT—District No. 4, better known as the Selenski district, consists of sections 13 and 14, all of section 15, except 120 acres in the northern part, all of section 23 and 24 and the north $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 22. The district is situated in the east central part of Antigo township.

June 23, 1885, it was described as follows by the Town Board of Supervisors: All of sections 1, 2, 3, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15 and the N $\frac{1}{2}$ of sections 22, 23 and 24. On September 22, 1885, sections 1, 2, 3, 10, 11 and 12, were taken from District No. 4, and formed into District No. 6. (Neff Switch District.) District No. 4 then became all that territory in Antigo township included in sections 13, 14, 15, 22, 23 and 24. August 8, 1900, the S $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 22 was detached from the district and added to Fairview District No. 7, October 6, 1906, and again November 20, 1911, changes were made in the district boundary.

Early settlers were Matt and Andrew Selenski, John Byrnes, Patrick Byrnes, D. W. Olan, and David Lucht.

In 1885 (two terms of school were held—spring and fall) the original school house was erected. It was a small frame structure, capable of caring for the education of the pioneer school children. Clarence E. Alton taught the fall term when the new school opened. The first school was located on the NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of the NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 14, now farmed by Ben Joyce. The school was moved to the present school site, the SE $\frac{1}{4}$ of the SE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 14 (W. H. Wall farm) in the fall of 1885. The first school board consisted of A. O. D. Kelly, Clerk; John Byrne, Treasurer; Dyer W. Olen—Director. In 1914 a new school was erected of brick. Miss Katherine Byrne was the first teacher in the new school. School officers then were: A. Wildman, P. Schramke, and Steve Wildman, Treasurer, Director and Clerk respectively.

Pioneer teachers were: Elizabeth Young, Mattie Beedle, R. Baxter, Mary McGuire, Clara Mire. The school is located on highway No. 64.

The district has made a remarkable growth during less than a half century. It has changed from a dense wild region to one of the most productive sections of Upper Wisconsin. New settlers continue to come into the district and improvements are many.

THE TOWN HALL.

Antigo township hall, where all of the historic gatherings of many years have been held, is located in this district on the NW $\frac{1}{4}$ of the NW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 22. The town hall was erected in June, 1889. The town board advertised for bids to furnish material and build the hall and they were opened May 27, 1889. The successful bid was that of Frank Borth, early settler. Other bidders were: J. L. Case, Gray & Ings, B. J. Daugherty, J. A. Sanders, Louis Krueger and Thos. Bradbough.

The first meeting was held in the town hall, June 22, 1889. Those present were: Chairman E. Winch, Richard Healy, Sr. and Jos. Shipold. The same hall is still used. It has a stone foundation.

DISTRICT NO. 5.

THE CHAMBERLAIN DISTRICT, legally established as District No. 5 was created when Antigo township was unknown and when Springbrook township was a part of Shawano County. This was forty-two years ago in 1880. March 28, 1885, sections 28, 29 and 30, were taken from District No. 1 (Pioneer District) and attached to District No. 5. This change made the district one of the largest, consisting of six sections, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32 and 33. It did not remain long in that status however. On May 30, 1885, all of section 29 and the NW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 30 were taken from District No. 5 and attached to District No. 1. Section 29 and the east half of section 30 were then the city of Antigo (established by act of the State Legislature.) This left the district comprising sections 28, 31, 32, 33 and the SW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 30.

On August 15, 1885, section No. 28 and the west $\frac{1}{2}$ of section No. 30 were detached from the district and added to the school district of the city of Antigo. This cut the district down to its original area, three sections, 31, 32 and 33. On May 5, 1887, the W $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 30, and all of section 28, were detached from the city of Antigo and placed in District No. 5. This action was because of illegal attachment of the same territory to the city of Antigo in 1885. S. W. Chamberlain and Charles Gowan were then Treasurer and Clerk of District No. 5.

November 17, 1890, District No. 5 consisted of sections 28, 33, the south $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 32, the south $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 31 and the SE $\frac{1}{4}$ of the NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 31 (Weed's mill site.) November 10, 1900, section 28 was taken from this district and attached to District No. 7, known as Fairview District. The last boundary change in District No. 5 was made in 1912.

This district now comprises sections 33, the south $\frac{1}{2}$ of 32, the south $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 31 and the SE $\frac{1}{4}$ of the NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 31.

THE EARLY SETTLERS.

Energetic and thrifty settlers came into this district in 1878 and 1879 from Waupaca, Brown, Marathon and Outagamie Counties. John Cherf, J. Prastil, James Quinn, Charles Gowan, S. W. Chamberlain, F. Heller, John Knox, Alex McCloud and E. Hubbard were early settlers in the original district. John Cherf, first settled in Antigo on lot 26, block 45 of the city of Antigo, SE corner of Fifth Avenue and Superior Street. He erected a log cabin there and after a short while moved to his present home in this district.

The country about was then a pine area, roads were not to be found, only the Indian trail abounding. The earlier settlers found it necessary to come into this wilderness by oxen from Hogarty (a place between Wausau and Eland), then but a small trading post for transients and Indians. The journey was tedious and long. It was necessary for the new immigrants to load the rear of the rough wagon with their household utensils, what little they brought with them.

These hardy pioneers were ever mindful of the value of proper education of the rising generation. Great precaution was taken that the rudiment of education should be accorded the children. Accordingly a one-room log school was erected on section 31 (south $\frac{1}{2}$) on the banks of Springbrook. Here the children, ranging from tiny tots to growing ladies and men, labored studiously. The school was small, the teacher, while intelligent, had much to cope with. The facilities of the modern school were not then dreamed of. Books, and maps were few. Nevertheless the three R's were well absorbed by the children, many of whom are today prominent in Langlade County affairs. First school officers were: Charles Gowan, E. Hubbard and Alex McCloud, Clerk, Director and Treasurer respectively. The old log structure, ever a faithful servant, was used for years. In 1908 an acre of ground was donated to the district by S. W. Chamberlain, a fine brick school was erected. The school is located on the north central part of the S $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 32. This school replaced a frame structure used for years. The contract was let to George Schoblasky. The present school is ideally situated and is a credit to the residents. It is well equipped and modern.

EARLY INDUSTRIES.

Lumbering was an industry in the district in pioneer life. The great tracts of pine succumbed to the attack of the army of lumbermen and settlers. The first were desirous of the pine for profit and the latter wished space in the forest on which to erect their little homes.

The J. H. Weed saw mill, shingle mill and planing mill were located in this district. The reader can find a full account of this industry in the chapter on "Industries 1873-1923."

AGRICULTURE—MERRIMAC SILT LOAM.

The principal occupation of the residents is agriculture. The soil of the district is adapted to oats, potatoes, corn, hay, clover, rye, barley and wheat and other products. The Merrimac silt loam found in this district is a part of a vast tract of this soil found in southwestern Langlade County. Stratified sand and gravel below the surface in this vicinity are known to extend to a depth of 58 feet.

INDIANS THERE.

When the first log cabin was rolled up by John Cherf a band of Indians, presumably Chippewas, had temporary camping headquarters in the district. They moved northward later.

DAIRYING—STOCK.

Dairying and pure bred cattle raising are important factors in the district. A cheese factory owned by A. A. Miller, operated in the district for a number of years until 1921, when it burned.

ELMWOOD CEMETERY.

Elmwood Cemetery owned by the city of Antigo since 1906 is situated in the southwest part of section 33.

KASSON'S PARK.

W. K. Kasson has a fine park, dance hall and cabaret in this district. He purchased the property, which is located in the SW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 32 from George Ottoman in 1916.

HIGHWAYS.

Highway No. 39, running north and south, passes through the district. The county trunk line roads are in excellent condition.

SCHOOL OFFICERS—TEACHERS.

The 1922-23 officers were: Paul Thompson, Director; F. Strong, Treasurer; Joseph Fischer, Clerk. Early teachers were: Nettie Palmiter, W. Chamberlain, Lottie Nixon, V. McMullen, Mae Raymond, Zura Fowler. Miss Shanks was teacher in the district school in 1921-22. The first teacher received $25 per month for a six months' term of school.

TAXABLE AREA.

Exclusive of Elmwood Cemetery, 80 acres, there are 1,200 acres of taxable land within the district.

DISTRICT NO. 6.

NEFF SWITCH DISTRICT. August 22, 1885, the Board of Supervisors of Antigo township met pursuant to a notice issued previously at the town hall for the purpose of altering districts and making specific changes in school district boundaries. It was at this meeting that District No. 6 was organized.

The supervisors detached sections 1, 2, 3, 10, 11 and 12 from District No. 4, "Selenski District," and organized District No. 6, known since as the Neff Switch District. November 20, 1911, 35.47 acres were detached from District No. 4 and added to District No. 6.

In 1884, Edgar Neff, late of Antigo, with Matt Miller of Green Bay erected a saw mill on section 2. Because of this industry there, the only saw mill that has ever been in the district, the school was named to commemorate the event. The mill burned on June 28, 1886. It was started by Matt Miller and J. Wright. Mr. Neff purchased their interests.

There have been no important changes in the district boundary since its organization. Before its organization the territory of the district was a part of District No. 4, of which it was a part when that district was formed. The area of the district is 216 square miles or 3,840 acres of land, with approximately 39 farms.

Early settlers into this district were: A. O. D. Kelly, who was prominent in early Antigo township affairs, Dan O'Brien, Jos. Kramer, Chas. Roberts, Joel Quimby, George Young, W. Skinner, Joseph Jecka, John Evans, and Charles Theisen.

FIRST CHEESE FACTORY.

The first cheese factory in the district was erected twenty-two years ago (1900) by Edward Hruska. He operated it for five years and sold to Edward Buchen, who sold to Fred Buss. Mr. Buss retained the factory until 1921, when he sold to Herman Genskow. District farmers are patrons of this institution. Anton Peroutka purchased the James Mundl hall situated in the NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of the SE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 11, August 11, 1917. He uses a section of his building for a meat market, which he operates during the summer months.

When the Selenski District or District No. 4 was severed from the territory of this district the school building was moved to a location south of Neff Switch District. A new school for the settlers was therefore necessary. Accordingly a frame building was erected on the same location where the present splendid school is located. It was moved from the original location to a position back somewhat from the highway. Extensive improvements were made in 1903, 1909, 1914, and since various improvements have been made at this school. The year 1903 it was brick veneered.

Early teachers were: Miss Bess Chamberlain, Ida Tollefson, Miss Doolittle, John Crondill and Mary O'Connor. Later teachers were: Alvina Shipek, Jennie Gibson, Ella Palm, Ella Randall, Anna Weix, Hazel Cunningham and Clara Lukas.

Neff Switch District has some of the oldest Langlade County farms within its borders.

Officers of the first school were: A. O. D. Kelly, Jos. Kramer and T. J. Roberts.

TRANSPORTATION.

The district is equipped with fine highway facilities. Most of the progressive farmers own automobiles making it very convenient to shop in Antigo. The Chicago & Northwestern Railroad branch line to Bryant and Elton and White Lake, passes through section 11 of this district.

The office of the town clerk, Charles Theisen, is on section 12 of this district.

DISTRICT NO. 7.

FAIRVIEW DISTRICT is situated in the south central section of Antigo township. It was organized at a meeting of the Antigo township board, August 8, 1900. Officers of districts No. 1, 3, 4 and 5 were present.

District No. 7 consists of the south $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 21, the south $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 22 (these two $\frac{1}{2}$ sections were detached from Districts 1 and 4 respectively), all of section 27, 28 and the NW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 26. Section 27 previously was a part of District No. 3 and section 28 was detached from District No. 5.

The territory embracing the 7th district to be organized in Antigo township consists of 2,080 acres.

Pioneer settlers in this district were: William Brennecke, Henry Brennecke and Christopher Brennecke. A glance over the officers of Antigo township since 1880 will show that these three men have been honored with various offices of public confidence and trust during their residence in the district. They were not alone in settling this district, soon to be one of the finest agricultural regions in Wisconsin. William Oldenberg and H. P. Ings were also early settlers.

INDUSTRIES.

In 1900, Edward Buchen came to Langlade County from Sheboygan County. The following year he erected a cheese factory in this district on the NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 27. Here he operated his factory until 1905 when he sold to Albert Eserloth of Glen Beulah, Wis. The latter conducted the factory until 1907 when it was purchased by P. G. Schaefer of Marshfield. In the fall of 1908, J. H. Howe purchased the institution from P. G. Schaefer and conducted it until April, 1921, when he sold to Otto Klessig. Earl Klessig manages the factory, which has been named the Klessig Dairy.

ELCHO TOWNSHIP.

Elcho township comprises two congressional townships numbered 34 of Ranges 10 and 11 East. It is situated in the northwestern part of Langlade County and is the farthest township north occupying two townships in different ranges in the county. Elcho township is bounded on the north by Oneida County, on the south by Upham township, on the east by North Ainsworth township and on the west by North Summit township.

East Elcho township survey was commenced July 18, 1859 and was completed July 24, 1859 by William E. Daugherty of the United States Survey. West Elcho township was surveyed six years later by James L. Nowlin. He started the survey July 8, 1865 and ended it July 20, 1865.

East Elcho township has but few swamps, those found being very small in area. The timber west of Post Lake and the Wolf river originally was very heavy and extensive tracts of the best quality of white pine were cut years ago. The soil of this township is good and well adapted to agricultural purposes. Gloucester sandy loam is found in sections 3, 4, 5, 8, 10, 16, 17, 21 and 22. Plainfield sand is found in an extensive area in sections 11, 12, 13 and 14. Gloucester fine sandy loam is found in sections 1, 2, 4, 5, 17, 18, 19, 27, 28, 29, 34 and 35, while Gloucester sand is the principal soil in sections 3, 9, 10, 14, 15, 23, 24, 25 and 26. Sections 6, 7, 8, 22, 25, 26, 32, 33, 35 and 36, all contain some Gloucester silt loam. Peat is found in sections 5, 6, 8, 9, 16, 22, 25, 26, 29, 32 and 33. Post Lake, Loon Lake, Mud Lake, and Bass Lake are the principal bodies of water. The Hunting and Wolf rivers both run through sections in the township. The Hunting river flows through sections 19, 30, 31, 32 and 33 and the Wolf river through sections 11, 13, 14, 24 and 25.

West Elcho township was the last Langlade County civil division to be surveyed by the United States government. The survey required twelve days.

The thriving village of Elcho, second largest community in Langlade County, is located in this township in section 23. The principal lakes are Enterprise, summer resort of note, located in sections 3, 4, 9 and 10, Duck Lake in section 33 and Elcho Lake in section 12, north of the village of Elcho and west of Highway No. 39. Gloucester silt loam is found in sections 1, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21 and 22; Gloucester stony sand in sections 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 29, 30, 31, 32 and 26; Gloucester fine sandy loam in sections 14, 15, 21, 22, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 33, 34, and 35 and Peat in sections 5, 6, 7, 11, 12, 14, 17, 18, 21, 23, 24, 33 and 35. The peat is not in one continuous tract. The main track of the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad Company runs through sections 13, 24, 25, 35 and 36 of West Elcho.

THE PETITION FOR ELCHO.

November 22, 1886, twenty-nine citizens of Summit Lake and Neva townships petitioned the county board for a division of these two townships and the creation of a new township to be known as Elcho. The petitioners were Byron E. Cole, Clarence H. Graves, Fayette Coie, John Schuh, F. Teske, N. G. Weaver, N. F. Weaver, Charles Races, Henry Ebner, Anton Follstad, Sigvart Solberg, Herman N. Idler, Ole K. Hedal, Hans Hanson, John Nelson, Charles F. Graves, F. L. Adams, Frank Cole, Thorvald Solberg, R. W. Cave, Lewis R. Lee, Christ Kunos, Ludwig Schladone, Anton Schuh, George H. Tappan, John W. Gormley, George Lorenz, Herman Wolfgram, and A. Seidenspinning, Supt. of the Frost Veneer Works, Elcho, Wis.

December 27, 1886, the petition was read to the county solons, who laid it upon the table on motion of Ed Daskam.

ORIGINAL AREA OF NEW TOWNSHIP.

The ordinance creating Elcho township passed February 23, 1887. It detached township 34 of Ranges 9 and 10 East from Summit township and township 34 of Range 11 East from Neva township. Thus the original area of this township was 108 square miles.

DETACHMENT OF PARRISH.

Elcho township consisted of three congressional townships until November 13, 1889, when township 34 of Range 9 East was detached from Elcho and formed into Parrish township. This left Elcho township, two congressional townships 34 of Ranges 10 and 11 East.

THE FIRST ELECTION.

The first township meeting was held at the store of Thorvald Solberg in the village of Elcho, April 5, 1887. T. Solberg, N. G. Weaver and John Nelson were the first inspectors of election. R. W. Cave was elected first Town Chairman; Charles F. Graves, first Town Clerk; J. N. Nelson and Frank Lee, first Supervisors, and N. Weaver, G. I. Tappan and Christ Callsen, first Justices. N. G. Weaver, J. W. Gormandy and B. E. Cole were the first Assessors of the township.

DISTRICT NO. 1.

ELCHO DISTRICT. This district includes all of township 34 North, of Range 10 East and some of township 34, Range 11 East. The western part of the district is sparsely settled. The village of Elcho, second largest community in the county, is located in the northeast corner of section 13.

The village of Elcho was surveyed and platted by B. F. Dorr, first City Engineer of Antigo, and pioneer county surveyor. This survey was made in 1887, being recorded March 21, 1887. Streets were named Dorr, Elmo, Riordan, Rumele, Echo, Elk and Owono. Dorr's addition to the village was recorded February 20, 1904.

Before the Frost Veneer Seating Company moved their plant from Elmhurst, Rolling township to the present site of Elcho village in 1887, Elcho had but few settlers. Col. Byron Cole and William Cole, came from Colebrook, Waushara County, in 1885 and erected log cabins in the district, south of the village plat. John Nelson settled in the district about the same time. Other early settlers were: Richard W.

La Fayette Weaver, Harry Stewart, Frank McCormick, and the Frost Veneer Seating Co., all conducted boarding houses in the village primarily to serve the transient laborer.

The Muskie Inn, located in the village on highway No. 39, was erected by Charles W. Fish. It has been the scene of many notable banquets and convention meetings. Wm. Litzen manages the Inn for Mr. Fish.

The Frost Veneer Seating Company erected the first manufacturing plant in Elcho in 1887. They operated until 1893, when the plant was moved to Antigo. The company located on Otter Lake, now known as Elcho Lake. The Jones Lumber Company of Manitowoc purchased the site and property of the Frost Veneer Seating Company in 1893 and erected a saw mill, the first Elcho saw mill. Charles W. Fish and Thomas Mullen, a traveling salesman, organized a $20,000 concern known as Fish & Mullen. They operated a planing and saw mill. The planing mill burned, was rebuilt, and shortly afterwards the saw mill burned. This left the concern with a planing mill and a saw mill site. At this time C. W. Fish purchased the interest of others in the business, but not until 1910, was the saw

THE ELCHO HIGH SCHOOL

Erected in 1921. J. W. Bluett was the first principal of this school. Hon. Arthur Goodrick delivered the dedicatory address when the school was dedicated.

Cave, Sigvart Solberg, Thorwald Solberg, Anton Follstad, Clarence Graves, Charles Graves, Anton Schuh, Charles Beard, Peter Tappan, John Gormanley, Wm. Brantner, and E. Youngbauer. Charles W. Fish, prominent lumberman, came to Elcho in 1895.

Elcho's first general store was opened in 1886 by Thorwald Solberg, a Norwegian, who had, before then, lived a short time, on a homestead in Antigo township. This storekeeper was also the first postmaster of Elcho. When the Jones Lumber Company came to Elcho, the Solberg store was taken over by them. Solberg & Niels Anderson, first Antigo merchant, followed the Jones Lumber Company. The Solberg & Anderson store was then taken over by Charles W. Fish, who, with the exception of an interval when it was sold to W. Litzen, still owns it. The original Solberg store was near the site of the Muskie Inn. Solberg first kept supplies at his home on section 12.

The Elcho House, first hotel, was erected in 1886 by N. F. Weaver. It served for many years as a hotel. It burned in 1919.

mill rebuilt. The rise and progress of Elcho since then has been interwoven with the success of the Charles W. Fish Lumber Company, which now operates five mills.

Postmasters at Elcho since 1886 have been: Thorwald Solberg, Mrs. Byron Cole, Richard W. Cave, G. W. Jones, George Burton, Dudley Burton, R. Hanson. The present postoffice building was erected in 1915.

Elcho has splendid educational facilities. The first frame school still exists. It was built in 1887. Early teachers were Mrs. R. W. Cave, Flora Wilson and Dora B. Benedict. The pioneer school was used until 1902, when a new school house was built in block 14. It was a one story two room building originally but a second story has since been added.

In November, 1921, a high school was added to the educational institutions of Elcho. Dedicatory services were conducted in 1921. The principal address was given by Hon. Arthur Goodrick, Municipal Judge of Langlade County. J. W. Bluett was the first H. S. principal.

Elcho has two churches, The Holy Family Church in which those of Catholic faith hold services. The congregation organized January 31, 1905. Organizers were: J. H. Wigman, Bishop J. J. Fox and Rev. Conrad Saile. The Free Union Church is located in block 8. Rev. Fred Harvey, Congregational Pastor conducts services in this edifice. Rev. J. A. Snartemoe of Rhinelander conducts Lutheran services in this church.

There are two cemeteries—a township cemetery and a Catholic cemetery, both located on section 18.

Elcho has a band of twenty-two pieces, led by Gustav Hanke. The band was organized in 1921.

The Elcho State Bank was organized in 1912 and a complete account is given in Banks and Finance chapter.

Most of the residences of Elcho were erected by the Charles W. Fish Lumber Company.

Present business places are: The Charles W. Fish Lumber Company mills and lumber yards, Muskie Inn Hotel, Wm. Litzen, Manager; A. J. Carnahan Boarding House, The C. W. Fish General Store and Market; J. F. Steel Grocery; C. W. Fish Hardware Store, J. L. Olmsted, billiard hall and confectionery; The Elcho State Bank; Elcho Garage; and the Rothenberger Garage; a Drug Store, operated by R. G. Germanson, a meat market run by Earl Weaver and a barber shop run by Wm. Estabrook; Anton Thomas, shoemaker.

Elcho physicians have been: Dr. Williams (first); Dr. Owen; Dr. La Coont; Dr. Seymour and Dr. J. P. Daily, present physician.

The first citizens to vote in Elcho township were: D. Callsen, Ed. Rosfach, W. H. Hinkley, J. Rutinger, B. E. Cole, George Behling, A. Follstad, R. W. Cave, C. Callsen, C. F. DISTRICT NO. 2.

District No. 2 is subdivided into three divisions with schools at Post Lake, the Sunset subdistrict and the Kosciusko (Polish) settlement. The Post Lake region is the most densely settled and the oldest in point of habitation by white settlers. Sunset subdistrict is situated nearer to the village of Elcho than the other two. It is well settled. The Kosciusko district has been settled since 1897.

District No. 2 was organized in 1894. From 1887, when Elcho township was organized, to 1895, the schools were conducted under the township system. This system was then continued from 1895 to 1912.

Post Lake is one of the most picturesque places in Wisconsin. The beautiful lake, stretching north into Oneida County from the center of section 23 of East Elcho township, affords excellent boating and fishing for the sportsman and tourist. Its shore line is dotted with the cottages of men and women, who, tired of the constant and incessant grind of the commercial whirl, come here in "The Heart of the Whispering Pines" to hold communion, so to speak, with God and His handi-craft. The Narrows are bridged at section 11 by one of the best iron bridges in the county.

But Post Lake held an attraction for more than the modern tourist. Long before the first pine was cut in East Elcho township, bands of Menominee and Chippewa Indians camped on the shores of Post Lake. At the narrows of Post Lake on the farm of Charles Thompson, section 11, Charles Thompson dug up the skeleton of a man, who was buried in a sitting position. Harry Graves once found on the same site a signet ring bearing the insignia "I. H. S." and also of a tiny cross. David Edick identified it as a Jesuit Missionary ring, thus proving that this was once the trading post of Indians and French missionaries, who probably travelled in small bateau down the Wolf river, portaging the rapids and impassable places.

This was once a strategical point. Before the Charles Thompson farm was cleared and plowed the walls of a general defense works, broken and crumbled by time and disintegration, were clearly discernible. David Edick, who has been in this region for a half century, was one of the first to observe this defense work. This point commanded both arms of Post Lake and the Wolf river as well. The ruins of the old trading post on the east bank of Post Lake are still visible. The trading post is probably one hundred years old. A large birch tree has grown up in the ruins. Early settlers at Post Lake can recall when the east bank of Post Lake was dotted with the wigwams of the red men. It was among these tribes that the pioneer fur traders and supply merchants of pioneer days lived. Many married squaws who proved to be thrifty and industrious housewives.

The first school at Post Lake was a log building on section 10, erected by C. W. Maney. A second log building was erected shortly after the first one by Knute Anderson. This was used until the frame school was built on section 11. Early teachers were Loretta Bishop, Tillie Schultze, May Cornish, Anna Beard, May Taylor. Others were Ada Jersey, Lucy Miller, Margaret Deleglise, Margaret Moss, Otelia Person, Madge Hoyt, Edna Dumjohn, and Florence Helgerson. Pioneer school children in the Post Lake school were Isabell, Minnie, Nellie, Grace, Gilbert and Jennie Maney and Nellie and William Dagl.

From 1900 to 1901 Frank Wagner operated a sawmill on section 11. Charles Thompson built a sawmill on section 11 in 1903 and operated it until April 17, 1905, when it burned down. John Monroe had a sawmill on section 12 for one year. George McNinch, who operated a sawmill on section 14, sold it to Crandon people in 1922.

In 1900 Thomas Bradnock erected a dam on lot 3 on the Wolf River at the outlet of Post Lake.

The Post Lake postoffice was opened in 1902.

Harry Harmon was the first Postmaster. He was succeeded by Sim Jones. In 1903 Mrs. Charles Thompson was appointed Postmistress. She retained the office until 1913, when the office was abandoned. The rural free delivery system has been extended to this district from Pelican Lake. The pioneer settlers obtained mail from Elcho and those who settled in this vicinity before Elcho was established, from Lily, (New) on the old Military Road.

The first store in this vicinity was erected in 1922 on section 11 by E. G. Benfield, who came from Chicago, Ill.

The Kosciusko or Polish District is situated south and west of Post Lake. The first settlers were Michael Miczekkak, who homesteaded on section 21 in 1897. The second settler was Valentine Dzewski, who came from Milwaukee in 1900 and located on section 21.

The school is located in the northern part of section 21, not far from the main highway from Post Lake to Elcho. It was erected by the Jones Lumber Company, once established at Elcho. The children attended school at Post Lake before this frame building was erected. There are about ten settlers in this region. The land is hilly and rolling. The school is in charge of the officials of District No. 2. Marine Javorsky was the 1921-22 teacher. The school may be abandoned in this subdistrict.

SYSTEM OF SCHOOL GOVERNMENT.

May 31, 1912, the Elcho township officials met at the town hall to change the system of school government from township to the district system. The notices for the meeting were posted at prominent places in the township May 21, 1912. Two school districts were formed. District No. 1 consists of all of Township 34, Range 10 East, and sections 6, 7, 18, 19, 30 and 31 of Township 34, Range 11 East. District No. 2 consists of sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 32, 33, 34, 35 and 36 of Township 34, Range 11 East.

VALUATION OF PROPERTY.

The valuation of real estate and personal property in the two school districts at the time of the change to the district system was: District No. 1, $396,787.00; District No. 2, $227,272.00. Assessed value of Elcho township, $624,059.00. The township indebtedness was apportioned as follows: District No. 1, $1,590.00; District No. 2, $910.00; Total, $2,500.00.

MISCELLANEOUS.

On October 7, 1893, District No. 3 was set off after the township board had voted favorably on taking territory from District No. 1 and No. 2. The first meeting was held at the home of C. W. Maney on October 18, 1893.

FINAL SETTLEMENT.

Final settlement was made April 1, 1886, between Summit and Elcho township officers. The Elcho officials went on record December 6, 1887, favoring an immediate payment of their township's proportion of money due Lincoln County from the old original Ackley township, of which Elcho township (as it then existed) was once a part, as soon as the settlement was made.

NEW SCHOOL IN 1902.

In 1902 the people of Elcho erected a new school house. The first township official meeting in the old school house was held on June 17, 1902.

NEW BRIDGE ACROSS NARROWS.

The Wisconsin Bridge & Construction Company of Milwaukee built an iron bridge across the narrows of Post Lake in 1902. The span of the bridge is 100 feet. The bridge was completed before December 1, 1902, at a cost of $2,490. The wooden bridge, previously used, was erected in December, 1895, by Gust Schmege. It was completed in February, 1896, at a cost of $500. J. W. Parsons and Walter Dorczeski, County Commissioners, looked after the bridge during process of construction.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

Elton Townships 31, 32, 33 N. R. 14 E., and 12 Sections T. 31, R. 15 E.

Elton township is the largest civil division in Langlade County, containing three and a third congressional townships or 120 square miles. It is also the most eastern township in the county. Elton township is bounded on the east by Armstrong and Wheeler townships, Octonto County, on the west by Langlade and Evergreen townships, Langlade County, on the north by Wabeno township, Forest County, and on the south by the northern boundary of the Menominee Indian reservation. This township consists of townships 31, 32 and 33 of Range 14 East and 12 sections in township 31 of Range 15 East. The northern townships are heavily timbered, containing immense tracts of hardwood owned by large lumbering concerns, residents and the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad Co.

Elton Township 32 North, of Range 14 East is very unequal in the northwest portion. In some places in this part of the township it is nearly level while the southern and eastern parts are rolling and hilly. A range of hills extends through the southern portion in a southwesterly direction. Much of the surface has large protruding boulders scattered about. Originally this township was heavily timbered (as it is still) with maple, hemlock, elm and some white pine. There are very few swamps in this township. Those found were once timbered with spruce, tamarack and cedar. The Wolf river passes through the southwest part of the township in sections 30, 31 and 32. The shores of the lakes were thickly grown with birch and cedar. The waters were originally stagnant and impure and have not changed much through the years. The Wolf river varies in width from 6 to 20 links (4 to 14 feet) in the township. The bed of the stream is filled with boulders. There are rapids and falls in many places, making navigation impossible. This part of the river affords excellent power for manufacturing institutions. Elton township No. 32 has a diversified soil. Gloucester stony sand is by far the predominant type, covering an area of one-half the township, or about 18 sections, in the central, northeastern and northwestern sections. In the north central part Gloucester silt loam, rolling phase, covers a large area. All of section 31 and the southeast part of section 36 are also covered by this soil. Gloucester sandy loam is found in sections 6, 7 and 8 and also sections 33, 34, 35 and 36. Peat is found on the river banks.

Township 33 North, of Range 14 East is the most northern Elton township. It was surveyed by James L. Nowlin, United States Deputy Surveyor, in April, 1865. There are no large streams in this township. Ada and Mary lakes are the only large bodies of water. The township is covered with a dense tract of timber. Maple, birch and hemlock, elm, ash and white and Norway pine were the original forest products. There are some swamps in the township. They cannot be drained without great difficulty and some cannot be drained irrespective of any efforts. The region has not been settled, contains no schools nor important highways or railroads, except the Wisconsin & Northern (now the Soo Line) and the C. & N. W. railroad tracks, serving territory north and south. The soil may be divided into three types, although Gloucester silt loam occupies nearly the entire township. That type of soil is more extensive in this part of Elton than anywhere else in the county. In the north part of the township it is the rolling phase. Gloucester fine sandy loam is found in a small area at the intersections of sections 20, 25 and 30. Gloucester sandy loam is found in sections 17, 18, 19 and 20. There is a large amount of peat on both sides of "Nine Mile Creek," which runs from the central part of the township in a southwesterly course, through Hollister.

Township 31, Range 14 East contains a few swamps unfit for cultivation. This township was surveyed in July, 1857, by U. S. Deputy Surveyor James McBride. Original timber was maple, birch, pine, hemlock and spruce. Before 1857 a terrific tornado swept through this township uprooting trees and laying waste everything in its path. The wind travelled in a wide and irregular path in the north and west parts of the township. It made the region very near impassable for many years. The Wolf river flows through sections 3, 4, 10, 15, 22, 23, 25, 26, 27 and 35. The Wolf river is shallow in many places. Its rapids in certain sections make it a valuable water for motive power. Gloucester sandy loam is found in the eastern part, Gloucester silt loam in the western part and Gloucester fine sandy loam in the north central part of the township. This township is the most populous of Elton townships. Langlade and White Lake villages are located in it. The Soo Line railroad serves the territory as does the Chicago & Northwestern. It is said that the Soo main line will eventually pass through this eastern part of the county.

Sections 5, 6, 7, 8, 17, 18, 19, 20, 29, 30, 31 and 32 or the west one-third of township 31, Range 15 East are also in Elton township. Dobbston, now named Markton, is located in this part of Elton. Boulder lake is the principal body of water. Gloucester silt loam is found in the extreme northwest and a small area in the southeast. Gloucester sandy loam is the most extensive type of soil and is found through the north and central parts. Gloucester fine sandy loam is found in the southern part of the territory. James McBride, U. S. Surveyor surveyed this region in September, 1857. Birch, pine, cedar, tamarack, hemlock and maple were the original forest products.

Before the United States survey there were no improvements in Elton township. It was not for six years after the final survey in 1865 that settlers began to trek into the vast wilderness. The old military road and the Lake Superior trail were the first highways of communication to bring in the pioneer settler and prospector. We shall hear of the trials, vicissitudes, tribulations and discouragements of these hardy folks in the story of the various districts. Before then it will not be amiss to give the process of organization that ultimately lead to the establishment of Elton township in 1887.

PETITION OF 1886.

November 10, 1886, Charles W. McFarland, Charles H. Larzelere, and others sent a request to the county board asking that townships 32 and 33 of Range 13 East be detached from Langlade township and created into Lily township and that township 31 of Range 13 East (Evergreen township) and townships 31, 32 and 33 of Range 14 East and the west one-third of township 31, Range 15 East be detached from Langlade township and organized into a new township to be henceforth known as Elton township. The township was accordingly created. It was named after Elton C. Larzelere, son of Charles H. Larzelere, now the C. & N. W. depot agent at Antigo. The first township meeting was held in April, 1887, at the house of C. H. Larzelere, section 10. C. H. Larzelere, J. J. Springer and J. F. Bunten were the first election inspectors.

LANGLADE TOWNSHIP FOUGHT ELTON.

January 18, 1887, a remonstrance was sent to the Langlade County solons denouncing the division of Langlade township and the formation of Elton. The remonstrance was signed by S. A. Taylor, Lewis Pendleton, U. G. Taylor, G. F. Truesdell, John Attridge, J. B. Hollister, H. G. Chase, O. A. Taylor, J. C. Johnson, Israel Stinson, Frank Kielzewski, J. J. Springer, William (his mark X) Guelky, Joseph Warblesky, Stephen H. Austin, S. D. (his mark X) Austin, T. M. Dobbs, Robert Gilray, Joseph M. Jackson, S. J. Robinson, J. E. Schultz, D. McDonell, H. L. Mason, David B. Edick, Henry Strauss, H. Ball, C. S. Dempster, W. B. Bell, H. N. Bell, H. N. Bell, Jr., Mike Willett, Bert Getchell, David Getchell, J. Vinton, Walter Dorszeski, Louis Moldrawski, S. Ball, A. E. Wheeler and J. Campbell. The remonstrance asked that the ordinance creating Elton township be set aside. It was defeated. The old town of Langlade retained townships 32 and 33 of Range 13 East, however. S. A. Taylor wanted the name changed from Langlade township to Keeps township. This request was defeated. Elton township lost no territory until Evergreen township was organized in 1896.

J. J. Springer was elected first Chairman of Elton township. Joseph Wurzer and C. S. Dempster were the first Supervisors; W. B. Bell, first Assessor; C. H. Larzelere, first Treasurer; C. W. DISTRICT NO. 1.

WHITE LAKE DISTRICT. When Isaac Farrow, pioneer Elton citizen, attempted to drain White Lake to create a natural hay meadow out of its level bottom in 1876, little did he dream that the shores of the same lake would a half century later be the site of a prosperous village wherein dwell 700 inhabitants. If George Gardner, Stockbridge Indian, who kept a stopping place on the old Lake Superior Trail and the Military Road fifty years ago, near what is now White Lake, could return to earth and visit this region he would have difficulty in locating the old trail and the site of his "ranch." (See Chapter on Stopping Places-Hotels-Taverns).

Marcus Wahleitner, Sr., came into this district in 1889 from Elton village, settling on section 29. John Evans operated a saw mill in this district until 1895. Much of the labor about this mill, one of the first in eastern Langlade County, was accomplished with the assistance of oxen. The mill was moved to Lily in 1895. In 1891 T. F. Smith purchased eighty acres on section 29. Joseph Kettner settled in the district in 1893 and Thomas Carson in 1899. Charles Switzer, father of W. E. Switzer of Wabeno, Forest County, who headed the Langlade County normal for a number of years, logged in this district in 1893 for the Menasha Woodenware Company.

The first school was erected on section 29. W. E. Switzer was an early teacher. Three pupils attended the first school.

In October, 1907, the village plat of Van Ostrand, proposed town of E. H. Van Ostrand, was surveyed by Alex Deleglise. The village contained 41 blocks and was owned by the Van Ostrand Town Site Improvement Company. Adams, Hayes, Madison, Harrison, Jackson, Van Buran, Grant, Monroe, Lincoln, Jefferson, Buchanan and Washington streets were laid out. Avenues from first to tenth inclusive were platted. Lots were sold but the purchasers sold back to the improvement company when Van Ostrand village was abandoned. A depot was built by the Wisconsin Northern railroad at the village site in 1908. The line then ended at Van Ostrand.

A brick school was erected in 1913 at a cost of $3,000 when the frame structure, inadequate and small, was vacated. The school enrollment had increased in six years from a few pupils to thirty-four. This school is under the jurisdiction of the school board in charge of the White Lake village schools. It is located on section 29.

THE VILLAGE OF WHITE LAKE.

A year before the Yawkey-Bissell Lumber Company, lumber kings of Wisconsin for a half century, located, rumors floated about to the effect that a large saw and planing mill would be erected at White Lake. The rumors became facts when in July, 1916, the Yawkey-Bissell Lumber Company began clearing land east of White Lake for a village and mill site. August 16, 1916, work was started on the large saw mill which commenced operations June 1, 1917. A year later ground was broken (August, 1917) for the planing mill which was completed and in operation January 1, 1918.

Following the mill came the hotel which was erected in the winter of 1917-18. It is managed by Mrs. Paul the village. Ten teachers have charge of the White Lake schools. The large enrollment is increasing every year. The White Lake rural school is still used on section 29. For three years it was vacated. W. D. Cavers, Director, B. C. Nelson, Clerk and H. F. De Horn, Treasurer were the 1921-22 officers in charge of the high school, White Lake graded and White Lake rural schools.

White Lake has 110 families.

Shipping facilities are good. Passenger service is not. The Yawkey-Bissell Lumber Company have enough timber in Langlade and Forest Counties to run until 1944. 15,000 acres were purchased in 1916 from the Menasha Wooden Ware Company. Most of this timber is in Langlade County. In 1919, 18,000 acres were purchased from the Kimberly-Clark Company. This tract is in Forest County. Smaller tracts were purchased from the Oconto Lumber Company, the C. & N. W. Railroad Co., and the S. W. Hollister estate.

Two camps operate all year around. Peter O'Connor, early Antigo citizen, whose wife was the first Antigo school teacher, is Wood Superintendent for the lumber concern. J. C. Horgen was the first manager at the store.

Leitl. The lumber concern also has a boarding house where many employes live. R. Pagel conducts it. In September, 1916, the depot erected at Van Ostrand by the Wisconsin & Northern railroad was moved to White Lake and W. H. Gamble became the first agent. A store was built by the lumber company in November, 1916. William Obendschein is in charge of the store and Julius Strauch of the meat market. A barber shop is operated by P. J. Reis. In August, 1917, the C. & N. W. Railroad Company built a depot at White Lake. The Yawkey-Bissell Lumber Company office was erected in 1916 and by January 1, 1917 was completed. A splendid club house, dance hall and community center building was erected at an approximate cost of $15,000 in 1918-19. It was opened June 1, 1919.

The White Lake graded school was opened October 1, 1917. The school was built at a cost of $13,000. In 1921 a union free high school, including about two-thirds of Elton township, was organized in

The Yawkey-Bissell Lumber Company has ten miles of track connecting their camps in the southern part of Evergreen township with the mills at White Lake. Annual cut is 30 million feet, while the capacity of the mill is 60 million feet.

The Military Road Telephone Company serves this district.

Dr. W. E. Ellis is the present doctor. Dr. Clayton Charles was the first doctor in the village.

White Lake has two churches and three church organizations. The St. Mathews Lutheran church, erected in 1917, has Rev. A. Hoswald as resident Pastor. The St. James Catholic church, erected in 1920 is in charge of Rev. Victor Happa. Rev. J. Landusky was the first pastor, followed by Rev. F. A. Bemowski. The Presbyterian faith is represented by a local organization. Services are held monthly in the club house with Rev. Westphal of Neenah as Pastor.

White Lake is 35 miles from Shawano, 32 miles from Antigo and 40 miles from Crandon. It is on section 16, township 31, range 14 east. The nearest point of the Wolf river is about one mile.

The White Lake Bank is discussed in the chapter on Banks and Finance.

Many of the residents of White Lake have been employed for years by the Yawkey-Bissell Lumber Company, who at the beginning of the twentieth century had large saw and planing mills at Arbor Vitae, Vilas County and Hazelhurst, Oneida County.

Employees at the Yawkey-Bissell Lumber Company general offices at White Lake are: E. G. Woodford, Sales Manager; O. A. Olmholt, Assistant Sales Manager; L. E. Prah, Stenographer; Charles W. Wickstrom, Bookkeeper; John Anderegg, Timekeeper; W. D. Cavers, Auditor and E. D. Sterling, General Superintendent. J. Collins and W. J. Edwards are in charge of camps.

Wm. Obendschein is the postmaster.

DISTRICT NO. 4.

WOLF RIVER DISTRICT. The first settler in the Wolf River district was Charles H. Larzelere, who came down from Lac Vieux Desert on the newly constructed military road in the winter of 1870. He had a short time previously driven north from Janesville with a yoke of oxen to the state line. Mr. Larzelere settled on section 3, township 32, range 14 east. O. J. Yates was the next early settler. He came from Maine in 1873 and settled on section 10. Isaac Farrow, came at the same time from Oshkosh. He also settled on section 10. John J. Springer, a Canadian, settled on an adjoining section No. 3, about that time. John Gibson came from Littleton, New Hampshire, with the first settlers and took up a claim on section 3. Thomas Hutchinson, who later moved to Price township, settled on the banks of the Wolf river in section 10, this district, in a very early day. Charles McFarland, pioneer writer and timberman, settled on section 10. Mr. McFarland was from Racine, Wis. Other early settlers were: Frank Derinski, who came from Poland, settling on section 3; Peter Novak, Poland immigrant, who cleared out a home for himself on section 10; Michael Baker came from Chicago and began farming on section 10; Robert Gilray, Canadian native, settled on section 10. H. McConley came from Bell Plaine, Wisconsin, settling on section 3. These settlers were all here very early.

The first school in the county was erected in this district on section 3. It was taught by Mrs. C. H. Larzelere, Addie Wescott, Annie Nolan, Wealthie Doolittle, Anna V. Cole, Carrie J. Larzelere, Myrtle Griffiths, Francis Churchouse, Orville Pulcifer and H. B. Kellogg, all early teachers. A second school was later erected on section 10. Both of these pioneer school buildings were frame structures. A third school followed. The fourth building was erected in 1908 by Kraisin Brothers of Tigerton, Wisconsin, at a cost of $4,233.00. The contract was let July 6, 1908. The 1921-22 teachers were: Lulu Livingston and Anna Cusick. The 1921-22 school officials were: Mrs. M. E. Spencer, Clerk; George Shannon, Treasurer and Mrs. A. J. Baseley, Director. The average enrollment is 45 pupils.

VILLAGE OF LANGLADE.

The village of Langlade, named after Charles De Langlade, is located in this district. Langlade, as platted, contains all that territory in the southwest $\frac{1}{4}$ of the NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 3, Township 31, Range 14 East. The streets were designated on the plat as A, B, C, D, E and F streets, with avenues from First to Third Avenues inclusive. The village plat was recorded October 16, 1906. W. C. Webley was the surveyor. Kielczewski's plat of Langlade is in the NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of the NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 10.

J. Yates had the first store, located on section 10. He ran it from 1874 to 1879 with success. He moved to the State of Washington from Langlade County before the city of Antigo was dreamed of by any one, (except F. A. Deeglise). Olaf Morgan ran a saw mill on section 27 and section 14. He came from Morgan's Siding, a place below Neopit.

The district has one church, a Polish Catholic church. There is a Protestant and Catholic cemetery on section 10. On section 3 a Polish Catholic cemetery is located.

In this vicinity are found many private cemeteries, where in early days, when the pioneers passed away, they were laid to rest near the old homestead or log cabin wherein they had spent so many days during these first momentous years.

The Wolf River district has thirty-five families. The principal occupation is agriculture. J. L. Whitehouse and H. A. Shannon are proprietors of general stores at Langlade.

The district has the following territory: Sections 3, 10, 15, 22, 27, 34, of Township 33, Range 14 East and sections 2, 3, 4, 9, 10, 11, 14, 15, 16, 21, 22, 23, 26, 27, 28, 33, 34, 35 of Township 32, Range 14 East and sections 2, 3, 4, 9, 10, 11, 14, 15 and 16 of Township 31, Range 14 East. It was once an important part of the famous Lost Nation.

DISTRICT NO. 5.

MARKTON DISTRICT. This district is located in southeastern Langlade County and was one of the first regions to be settled. Pioneers were Christopher Wheeler, who settled on section 30, Township 31, Range 15 East in 1871. Mr. Wheeler came from Embarrass, Wisconsin, and followed the military road north. H. N. Bell settled in the district in 1877 on section 30. He came from Chicago. Thomas M. Dobbs settled on section 30 in 1873. He erected a saw mill, the first in Langlade County. (See chapter on Industries 1873-1923). The Melville family came to the district in 1877 settling on section 30. Christopher Hill and Horace Rice settled on section 30 in 1877. They conducted the first stopping place north of the Menominee Indian Reservation for years. An account of this place is given in the chapter on old stopping places, hotels and taverns, found elsewhere. The district was one of the most active lumbering regions in Langlade County during the famous Wolf river log drives. Daniel McDowell of Embarrass came to this district in 1876 settling on section 30. S. A. Taylor, the dominant factor in county organization had much land and timber interests in the district. L. H. Taylor erected a store and also conducted the first Post Office on section 30. The Taylor people came from New York state. Allen Taylor came to Dobbston, as Markton was named by Thomas M. Dobbs, in 1874. William Schroeder of Shawano, Markton Roax and George Roax of Shawano and James L. Whitehouse, all of Shawano, settled in the Markton district in a very early day. George Roax re-named Dobbston after his son, Markton Roax. H. N. Bell is the last of the old settlers still in the district.

The first school house was erected on section 30 in 1873. It was a frame building and the lumber was bought from T. M. Dobbs. This lumber was some of the first ever manufactured in the county. In those days the entire number of settlers "chipped in" to pay the teacher's wages. (See the Lost Nation section in Langlade township.)

Mayme Kellogg was one of the first teachers. The old school was used from 1873 until a splendid brick building was erected in 1915 by C. F. Dallman. It is now preserved by the H. N. Bell family.

The old Gardner dam is located on section 25. Ruins of it are still visible.

Matt Heins has operated a saw mill in the district on section 7, Township 31, Range 15 East for the past twenty years. He came from Milwaukee.

In pioneer days the village of Dobbston hummed with the labors of the pine men. Philetus Sawyer, Republican leader in Wisconsin politics for many years, often visited in this district, during the pinery regime.

Henry Sherry, who operated a mill at Kent, ran several camps near Markton. The original Dobbs mill was moved to Lily in 1882.

Remnants of the old Lake Superior Trail are visible in this vicinity.

Wm. Alft, chairman of Elton township, lives in the district on the site where the old Hill & Rice log cabins once flourished.

DISTRICT NO. 6.

HOLLISTER DISTRICT. Squire A. Taylor, Founder of New (Langlade) County, dominant pioneer in the historic Wolf river country and leader of the Wolf river county seat proponents, came into eastern Langlade County in 1860. He was a timber and real estate dealer and as a sub-contractor aided in the construction of the United States military road. Nine years later, 1876, Leonard Marsh, the second permanent settler moved from Omro, Wisconsin, to this district, settling on the SE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 18. The same year extensive logging operations were inaugurated by Oshkosh lumbermen, more prominent of whom was C. B. Hollister, who had camps in this district. Thus the region became known as the Hollister district.

Robert Gilray and Fred Dodge followed as the next pioneer settlers. They both became proprietors of stopping places on the military road. The Dodge place was on the site of the Ehlinger Brothers mill, section 18.

Education of children was not overlooked by Leonard Marsh, Robert Gilray, Fred Dodge and the others who followed. In 1878 a humble frame school building was erected on section 19. It still stands a monument to pioneer progress. Meanwhile the district flourished. Men riding horse back took the place of the oxen and "man packed" mail from Shawano north into this district on the military road. Settlers received mail twice a week.

S. Moldrawski and family, Walter V. Dorszeski and family of Chicago moved into the community in 1884. Mr. Dorszeski later became actively identified with Langlade County's interests, serving as an official from this township many times. Frank Kielcheski settled in the district on section 7 about 1886. He came from Chicago. Antone Kielcheski now occupies the farm his father settled on. J. Schutte moved from Langlade into the Hollister district a few years later and J. Bombinski, who served as a town official many years, came here from Chicago at that time.

The second school was erected on the Dorszeski farm in 1890. Anna Kelly, Antigo, was the first teacher in the second school. After eighteen years this school was discontinued. The district developed its agricultural potentialities and the logging and lumbering industries flourished meanwhile. With the approach of the Wisconsin & Northern railroad in 1913 and now its purchase by the Soo Line (1921) the future of this region is exceptionally promising. Two years later, 1915, The Military Road Telephone Company erected a telephone line in this district.

In October, 1916, Michael, M. F. and Nicholas Ehlinger of Suring, Wisconsin, erected a mill at Hollister on section 19. It brought in settlers and employment. It operated until May, 1920, when a fire completely destroyed it. The Ehlinger Brothers re-built in June, 1920. Thirty men are employed on an average. Four million feet of lumber is the average annual cut.

In 1918 a postoffice was established known as Ehlinger. The Soo railroad station is known as Hollister. A third name for the district is "Nine Mile Creek" by which it is referred to by the settlers. George Burger of Suring erected a hotel at Ehlinger in November, 1921. He also conducts a supply store at the hotel.

The present modern brick school was erected on an acre of land donated by M. J. Wallrich, Shawano, Wisconsin, in section 18. This school is one of the best in the eastern part of the county. About thirty-eight families reside in the Hollister district. Another school will be erected to accommodate the increased school attendance.

The Campbell Lumber Company and the Weber, Anderson & Wallrich Lumber Company interests are cared for by C. A. Anderson.

CHAPTER XL.

Evergreen Township No. 31 N., R. 13 E.

Surface and Drainage—Soil—Lakes and Streams—Wolf River Township—Name of Township Changed to Evergreen—Evergreen Officials, 1896-1923—Cozy Corner—Sherry—McKinley and Wilson—Village of Elton—Kentuckian Settlers—Washington District.

Evergreen township is situated in southeastern Langlade County. It lies in congressional township 31 North of Range 13 East. James McBride, United States Deputy Surveyor surveyed this township in November, 1857. The entire surface of Evergreen is hilly and broken. The land is well watered by numerous streams and ponds. The township was visited by many destructive cyclones in an early day (before 1858) as was then evidenced by the many windfalls. Principal timber was hemlock and birch. The township contains a wealth of timber products yet, much of which is being extensively logged. It lies in the St. Lawrence river drainage system. The dominant soil is Gloucester silt loam, rolling phase. It is found in the southern half of the township. About eight sections in the northwestern part occupy the southern part of a great area of Gloucester sandy loam that stretches northeast and then northwest through Langlade and Ainsworth townships. In the center of the township about one section of Gloucester fine sandy loam is found. Principal lakes are McGee, Florence, West Florence, Dodgers, Town Line, Twin Hill and Mud Pond. Evergreen Creek runs through sections 4, 9, 16, 17, 21, 22, 27, 34 and 35. The Chicago & Northwestern road (Wolf river branch) runs through sections 7, 8, 16, 17, 21, 22, 23, and 24. The Crocker Chair Company railroad extends north from Elton village through sections 3, 4, and 16. The Wisconsin & Northern (now Soo Line) runs through the southeastern part of the township in section 36. The Yawkey-Bissell Lumber Company of White Lake, Elton township, have their logging railroads in the southeastern part of Evergreen. Their logging camp is located on section 26. It is in charge of John Collins.

WOLF RIVER TOWNSHIP.

November 18, 1895, residents of Elton township requested the County Board to detach townships 31, 32 and 33 of Range 14 East and the west twelve sections of Township 31, Range 15 East from Elton township and create the Town of Wolf River. A. J. Wood, W. J. Wood, Marcus Wahleitner, Sr., G. T. Truesdell, C. S. Dempster, Joseph Wahleitner, Albert Rolo, John Wurzer, Michael Coughlin, Walter V. Dorszeski, John Evans, F. Dasynski, Frank Spaulding, Will Schroeder, L. P. Wahleitner, Simon Post, Ned Sawyer, John Olkoewick, Andrew Jagla, J. S. Smith, M. Dazinski, George A. Roix, Louis Motorum, Henry Juetten, W. B. Bell and Robert Gilray were the leaders of this movement.

Walter V. Dorszeski, George Roberts and Chester

Starks, town organization committeemen on the County Board, referred the request to the members. Strenuous efforts were made to defeat the detachment. While a new township was organized it was not until February 26, 1896, and then the division was not in accord with the petition from the Wolf River township leaders. Township 31, Range 13 East was taken from Elton township February 26, 1896, and was established as Wolf River township. The Wolf River does not flow through the township and this name was not appropriate. It was changed in May, 1896, to the Town of Evergreen by its settlers.

CEMETERY OF EVERGREEN.

April 7, 1903, a committee of ladies were selected to chose a site for a township cemetery. The ladies reported to the town board and the same year the cemetery was laid out, section 16.

DISTRICT NO. 1.

COZY CORNER DISTRICT. There are five settlers in this region that lies in the sparsely and undeveloped southwestern part of Evergreen. The first settler was Simon Post of Oshkosh, who took up a farm on section 35. He was one of the pioneers of Langlade County and settled in the district in 1879. Simon Post settled on a little clearing made for oxen, used by Lyman Rumery, a prominent lumberman and logger of Oshkosh. Rumery was then logging pine in the district. Mrs. Post lived three years in this wilderness before she saw the face of a woman and she was a squaw. Albert Rollo, who came from Bear Creek, Outagamie County, was a pioneer in Cozy Corner. The Culber family of Portage and the Richard family settled on section 35. Later settlers were Ward T. Taylor of Omro and Nat Pomasl of Eau Claire.

The settlers now in this region are E. O. Finger, Nat Pomasl, W. E. Taylor, John McGee and Stephen Popelka. The 1921-22 school officials were: Mrs. W. E. Taylor, Clerk; E. O. Finger, Director; Nat Pomasl, Treasurer. The 1921-22 teacher was Helen McCarthy.

Miss Francis McFarland, a niece of Charles McFarland, was one of the earliest teachers. She is still following her chosen vocation. Among the first pupils were the Marcus Wahleitner, Sr., children and Maggie Post. The first school house, one of the oldest in Evergreen, was located on section 25. It was a one room log building. It was used but a short time when the present frame building was erected.

Cozy Corner was once a district embracing a large area. It now has but four sections, 25, 26, 35 and 36. The Yawkey-Bissell Lumber Company is engaged in logging, their camps being located on section 26.

With the hardwood cut, this district will forge ahead, as the Menasha Wooden Ware Company, heavy land owners, will sell the cut over land. An influx of new settlers is predicted.

DISTRICT NO. 3.

SHERRY DISTRICT. This district received its name after Henry Sherry, a prominent mill owner, who logged extensively in Price and Evergreen townships. Mr. Sherry operated a mill at Kent.

The first settlers were James Lambert, who located on section 6, George Thornbery, who settled on section 7, and B. Morse, who also located on section 7. Others were James Roe, section 8; Delaney Wheeler, section 7; William Bailey, section 8, and William Kevith, section 7.

These pioneer settlers emigrated to this hilly part of the county from Kentucky. The broken country was subdued only after much difficulty and hardships. Some good farms are now found. Much of the land is still to be cleared. The pioneers arrived in 1899 and 1900.

Section 7 is also the site of the frame school erected in 1899. James Lambert and Q. Rose were members of the first school board. Isaac Thornberry erected the first house in the district. The school is located north of highway 64, principal commercial artery to eastern Langlade County from Antigo.

Settlers in the Sherry community are: Everett Adkins, James Lambert, William Kevith, William Bailey, Delaney Wheeler, James Roe, Albert Basely, B. Morse, George Thornberry, D. H. Jenkins, Robert Lambert and Opal Tate. The 1921-22 school officials were D. H. Jenkins, Clerk; Robert Lambert, Director; B. Morse, Treasurer.

The Wolf River branch, C. & N. W. Ry., runs through this district.

DISTRICT NO. 4.

McKINLEY-WILSON DISTRICT. This district occupies western Evergreen township and is better settled than the Sherry or Washington districts. The settlers live in the vicinity of the schools, two of which are located in the district. Plans are being formulated for the division of the district, thus creating a separate McKinley district and also a Wilson district.

Pioneer settlers were Michael Servi, who settled on section 14; Anton Rammer, section 15; Samuel Mauk, section 15; R. N. Rose, J. H. Rose, section 11 and 2 respectively; James Sullivan, section 15 and Herman Zastrow, section 14. Other early settlers were George Brown and Thomas Campbell.

The McKinley school is located on section 11 and the Wilson school on section 14. They were named after William McKinley and Woodrow Wilson, American Presidents. The first school in the district was erected on section 10. It was moved onto section 11 to have it nearer the center of the district. July 8, 1915, the matter of a new school was discussed at the district meeting. Three thousand dollars was borrowed from the state with which to erect a new frame school. The old school was moved August, 1915, to section 11. This site was formally established by the settlers August 21, 1915.

The second school was erected by Charles F. Dallman, deceased Antigo contractor, at a cost of $2,985. It was contracted for August 7, 1915. This is the Wilson school, section 14. Mary Wurzer and Ethel French were early teachers.

The L. R. Roberts store is located on section 14. It was erected by A. R. Porter, who in 1919 sold to Mr. Roberts. There are about twenty-six families in the district. The Military Road Telephone Company serves the community with facilities for outside communication.

A Penticost church, frame structure, is located on section 15. George Brown conducts the services twice a month. The church was erected in 1921.

The 1921-22 school officials were: Charles Adkins, Director; A. R. Porter, Treasurer, and L. R. Roberts, Clerk. The 1921-22 teachers were M. Lenzner and Nellie Powers Rose.

DISTRICT NO. 5.

ELTON VILLAGE. Among the early settlers of Elton village were M. J. Binder, Henry Juetten, Dan Murphy, M. Wahleitner, Sr., the Santner family, Joseph Ramer, Ignatz Plattenbacker, the Steiner family, Charles McFarland, J. Morse, Joseph and John Wurzer, Theodore Smith, and Michael Rammer. Later settlers, but early ones, nevertheless, were John Wickerham, Ward Taylor, Nat Pomasl, George Wanning, Frank Patnode, William Teal, William Underwood and L. L. Pennington.

Suter Brothers, the Upham Lumber Company, A. Gill of Wausau, the Hilstrom Company of Plumb, Wisconsin, and lastly, the Crocker Chair Company have had manufacturing establishments in the village. The last named concern still operates at Elton.

Early postmasters were L. F. Bunten, John Smith, Joseph Wurzer, George Mosher and Merl Ladwig.

Present Elton business places are: Elton Garage, William Gillespie, prop.; Elton Hardware, Mix & Maertz, props.; Elton Mercantile Company, W. B. McArthur, prop.; Elton Hotel, M. J. Binder, prop.; L. R. Roberts store, and the Grange Hall.

DISTRICT NO. 7.

WASHINGTON DISTRICT. Washington District lies in the southwestern part of Evergreen township. It was settled in the early part of the twentieth century by Charles Bowen, who came to the district in 1904, Luke Powell, Miles E. Jones, Albert Crom, Joseph Powers, John Shelv and B. Rose. New settlers are constantly arriving in the district.

The first school was a small frame structure which is located opposite the present frame school built on section 29. It was used until 1912 when the new school was constructed and was named in honor of George Washington. Hazel Cunningham was the first teacher in the new school. Other early teachers were Irene McKinney and Miss Larzelere. The 1921-22 schools officials were Frank Tabor, Clerk; L. L. Pennington, Treasurer, and Joseph Powers, Director.

Dr. A. A. Lynn of Iowa has a shorthorn cattle ranch in this district.

The settlers are from Kentucky. Much of the district is hilly and unsettled. Improvements are being made frequently by the residents. All the settlers are living within a short distance from Elton.

CHAPTER XLI.

Langlade Townships No. 32-33 N., R. 13 E.

Survey of South Langlade in 1857—North Langlade Survey in 1865—The Lost Nation—Its Fight Against Attachment to Shawano County—The Passing of The Lost Nation—Organization of Langlade Township—Township Officials, 1885-1923—History of Pickerel, Elm Grove, Kent Consolidated and Lily Districts.

Langlade township comprises two entire congressional townships, numbers 32 and 33, of Range 13 East. It derives its name from the distinguished Charles De Langlade, French soldier and leader of the Indians. It is bounded on the north by Forest County, on the west by South Ainsworth and Price townships, on the south by Evergreen township, and on the east by central and north Elton township.

South Langlade township was surveyed in Sept., 1857, by Alfred Millard of the United States survey. The surface of this region is rolling and hilly. A range of hills extend through the township in a north and south direction and are covered with granite boulders. South Langlade township has two types of soil. In south and western parts of the township Gloucester sandy loam is found. In northern and eastern sections of south Langlade Gloucester silt loam, rolling phase is the dominant soil. Peat is found along river banks and in marshes.

North Langlade was surveyed in April, 1865, by James L. Nowlin. The township originally was covered with hemlock, birch, oak, pine, maple and elm. The Wolf river enters the township in section 18 and runs in an easterly direction passing out of the township at section 34. There are many marshes and ponds in the township that cannot be drained. The soil is Gloucester silt loam of the rolling phase, except in the central sections where considerable peat is found.

The Wolf river passes through sections 2, 3, 11, 12, 13 and 24 of south Langlade. Its width varies from one hundred to two hundred links. In many places it is very rapid and filled with boulders so as to completely obstruct navigation. South Langlade has but one swamp of any note in sections 11, 12, 13 and 14. It was originally very low and was heavily timbered with cedar, spruce, tamarack, and other forest products. Elm, yellow birch, white pine and ironwood were the principal forest products.

THE LOST NATION.

In 1881 all of the present territory of Langlade, Evergreen and Elton townships was detached from Langlade County and made a part of Shawano County. For two years the settlers refused to hold an election at the designated place stipulated by law, they refused to send a Chairman to the Shawano County Board of Supervisors sessions, refused to recognize the authority of the Shawano County Superintendent of Schools and defied the state legislature. They held that the detachment was not legal because none of the territory detached was "contiguous to Shawano County." (The Menominee Indian reservation is between the territory and Shawano County.) And the contention of the settlers was positively correct. This vast area should not have been detached from Langlade County. The settlers charged that leaders in Antigo plotted the detachment to "get the territory out of the county and thus block the ambition of Lily and Langlade settlers who dreamed of a magnificent county with Lily as the county seat."

The citizens of The Lost Nation, as this region was called, maintained their own schools, levied their own taxes, hired their own road inspectors, built their own bridges, cut out their own roads—all these and many other public affairs were conducted without contact or assistance from Oconto, Langlade or Shawano Counties. Their schools were declared the best by the Oconto County Superintendent who visited them, as did the Shawano County Superintendent. (Both claimed them in their jurisdiction.)

But this status could not continue indefinitely. In 1883 the legislature again directed that The Lost Nation be attached to Langlade County, thus restoring the region cut from the county by the provisions of Chapter 7, Laws of 1881.

Two years passed. The Lost Nation remained "lost," with Oconto and Shawano desirous of having it and Langlade County settlers in and adjacent to Antigo not so enthusiastic over it. The settlers in the six and a third townships refused to compromise. They desired a township in Langlade County with all the privileges of a township. In 1885 the legislature again directed that The Lost Nation be detached from Shawano County and be attached to Polar township. Thus came into existence Langlade Township, Langlade County.

ORGANIZATION OF LANGLADE.

The chiefs of The Lost Nation were quick to realize the phraseology of Chapter 137, Laws of 1885. Attached to Polar township they would be practically under the jurisdiction of the settlers in and near Polar village, whose voting power was larger than that of The Lost Nation. But the attachment law of 1885 held out another hope. If the settlers held an election the first Tuesday in April, 1885, and their officers qualified, a new township would be automatically created and the attachment to Polar would not hold. This the leaders in The Lost Nation decided was the best move to make.

THE PASSING OF THE LOST NATION.

The Lost Nation passed into history when the first memorable election of Langlade township was held at the school house in the village of New (Lily) the first Tuesday in April, 1885. Charles H. Larzelere was elected first township Chairman for the new town of Langlade, which consisted of the six and a third townships of The Lost Nation. He served as Chairman until 1887.

The settlers in the Lost Nation were called Chiefs over the state of Wisconsin. This term applied particularly to the leaders.

LANGLADE OPPOSED ELTON.

May 17, 1887, the Langlade township officials authorized the township Chairman, U. G. Taylor, to employ counsel and start quo warranto proceedings against the officers of Elton township. The object of this action was to set aside the ordinance made by the County Board of Langlade County November 10, 1886, when Langlade township was divided and Elton township was created. The Langlade township officials wanted the action of the Langlade County Board of November 10, 1886, wherein Cleveland township was to be attached to Langlade township by April 1, 1887, set aside. The suits were commenced, W. F. White and C. Werden Deane, Antigo lawyers, representing Langlade. The suit failed and on April 8, 1887, the township officials requested C. Werden Deane to ascertain the cost of carrying the case to the Supreme Court.

S. A. TAYLOR DEMANDED ACTION.

The Keshena Improvement Company owned property in Langlade township that went unassessed for some time. S. A. Taylor went before the township officials and demanded that they instruct the township assessor to assess the corporate property of this concern. The board accordingly directed the assessor to do this, July 30, 1887.

LANGLADE TOWN HALL.

May 9, 1908, the Langlade township officials met at the office of V. P. Rath, Langlade County Clerk, where sealed bids for the erection of the Langlade township hall were opened. Notices regarding the proposed hall were previously erected by Robert Gilray at Kent, Lily and Pickerel post offices. The contract was awarded to J. W. Otis for $900. The town hall was completed by August 1, 1908. It is located on section 27. The half acre site was purchased from William Priem for $150. It is on the east side of the Wolf river, near the intersection of the Kent and Military roads.

OFFICERS OF LANGLADE TOWNSHIP, 1885-1923.

DISTRICT NO 1.

PICKEREL DISTRICT. Joseph M. Jackson, bringing with him his worldly possessions, came to Langlade County from Bailey's Harbor, Wisconsin, in 1873 and settled on section 7, township 33, range 13 east. He cleared a little space out of the forests and before long a comfortable home was erected. Following him Thomas Simons, a native of Mary-Machee, New Brunswick, Canada, settled on section 7 in the year 1878. Three years before, in 1875, James McCloud, a native of the state of Maine, came into this country famous for its pine forests and settled on section 6. Len Clark, another "Maine stater," settled on section 5, on land purchased from the government at $1.25 per acre, in 1880. John Attredge, Canadian, settled on section 7 in 1880. Henry Chase came the year later from Maine, settling on section 7. The same year Timothy Connell, another Maine native, settled on section 7. In 1882 George Gilmore settled on section 7. James Campbell came to the district in 1883 and settled on section 5. He came from Canada.

The first school was erected in the pine wilderness on section 7 in 1873. It was built by J. M. Jackson at a cost of $100. The lumber for its roof was hauled from Shawano, over the military road. Miss Ida Norton was the first teacher. Others were Parker Ross, Hattie Kittell, Henry Strauss, later a prominent Democrat in Langlade County politics, and Mae Beaudette. The 1921-22 teacher was Berdetta Lutterman. The 1922-23 teacher was Ione Preston. The average enrollment at this school is 25 pupils.

The members of the first school board were Timothy Connell, George Gilmore and Henry Strauss. The old log school was used until 1893, when a frame building was erected on section 7 at a cost of $1,000. Michael Hafner was the first teacher in the frame school. The old log cabin stood for many years, "an idle beggar sunning." In 1915 the frame school was replaced by a modern structure erected by C. F. Dallman.

Present industries in the district are: Charles Jackson store, W. K. Harper store, Pickerel Cheese & Butter Company cheese factory.

The 1921-22 school officials were Robert Brown, Clerk; William Buckman, Director, and Charles Jackson, Treasurer.

Agriculture and lumbering are the principal industries of the district. Large areas of timber are located in this region. The land is rolling and in some places hilly.

Ruins of the old Hayter, Big Roll, and Little Roll Dams, reminiscent of pioneer lumbering on the Lily river, are found in this district.

The military road and county trunk lines are the principal highways.

DISTRICT NO. 7.

ELM GROVE DISTRICT. The pioneer settler of this district was "Old Dutch Frank," whose identity has been shrouded in darkness. He was in the district in 1863 and operated mail headquarters on section 17 at the place since known as the Strauss Crossing. He was followed by Henry Strauss, who came from Menominee where he had operated a sawmill. Strauss, with William Johnston as a partner, settled in 1867 in the district. He traded with the Chippewa Indians passing through the country over the Wolf river trails and became known for miles around as a friend of the Indian and a shrewd trader, fur buyer, trapper and scholar. Henry Strauss purchased the "Old Dutch Frank" place.

Henry Strauss and "Old Dutch Frank" both secured their merchandise and supplies from Henry Andrews, who was in charge of the government store at Keshena in 1863-68. The old crossing known as Strauss' Crossing can still be located on section 17. Trees, wild vegetation and grasses have long since erased from the view of the passerby for all time most of this historic and picturesque site of a romantic and stirring chapter in Langlade County's pioneer history.

The old Lake Superior trail, mail route from Green Bay, Shawano and thence to the state line, wound its solitary way through the district. In 1886 the sturdy mail carrier, who often rode many miles, fording streams and climbing treacherous hills, was discontinued.

David Getchell, pioneer, came from Waterville, Maine, in September, 1872, and settled on the historic section 17. Here he has lived since on the north bank of the rumbling Wolf river, that defies man and time as the settler of today becomes the pioneer in passing years.

The settlers in Elm Grove district are few. The school was erected in 1908 by F. F. Arndt at a cost of $1,089. The first schools officials were Mrs. David Getchell, Clerk; Christopher Priem, Director, and Herman Seidler, Treasurer. School was held before the erection of the school house at the residence of Christopher Priem for a year and two months of the second term.

Settlers in this district are: David Getchell, who has since 1900 operated a sawmill on the banks of the Wolf, section 17, Mrs. H. Armstrong, Earl Dalton, Sam Elliott, Charles Hoffman, Chauncey Ennis, Ed Schultz, John Taylor.

Agriculture is the principal industry.

Rev. C. D. Griese, Lutheran Pastor of Polar, visits at Lily every month and settlers of the Lutheran faith from this district attend his services.

There are no churches, cemeteries, cheese factories or stores in the district.

The 1921-22 school officers were: Mrs. C. Priem, Clerk; Charles Hoffman, Treasurer, and Sam Elliott, Director. Teachers in the district have been: Myra Dempster (first), Clara Johnson, Clara Monette, Madge Cecil, Harriet Kohl, Maud Smith, Alfreida Bruss, Flossie Robinson, Elizabeth Folk, Irma Vorass and Audrey Schoepke. The school is located on section 16.

DISTRICT NO. 8.

LILY DISTRICT. This district is situated in the North Langlade township. The principal village is Lily, thriving little hamlet at the junction of the Lily and Wolf rivers, section 27. It was settled by the first pioneers to come into Langlade township. Ammesey Smith came to the district from New York state in 1876, settling first at Lac Vieux Desert and then at Lily. S. A. Taylor came from New York into this then unsettled territory. Steven Austin, T. D. Kellogg, Henry Tourtillotte, David B. Edick, Ed Schultze, Napoleon Moran, John Moran, Wren Taylor, Duke Dalton, Israel Stinson, Allen Taylor, Robert Gilray, Nicholas and Jerome Winton, George Truesdell, Louis Pendleton and Henry Mason were all pioneers not only in this district but in the settlement of Langlade County as a whole.

The great pinery of the Wolf river country was the attraction that brought these hardy folks into the dense wilderness that stretched for miles on both sides of the roaring, foaming and picturesque Wolf river.

The first sawmill in the Lily district was erected by Thomas M. Dobbs, in 1882. Mr. Dobbs, pioneer sawmill owner in Langlade County, moved his mill to Lily from Dobbston (Markton) where he has established it in 1873. In the year 1892 it was moved to the south arm of Post Lake, Dobbs moving to Antigo to engage in a business. (He later moved to Price township).

J. E. Schultze and Allen Taylor moved the old John Evans sawmill, erected years before on the Evergreen river banks, to Lily in the winter of 1895 and located it on section 27. It operated until 1915.

William and Herman Haenke moved a mill into the district from Polar in 1916 and after operating it for two years sold to Chris Wunderlich of Antigo. The mill closed in May, 1922, following the death of its owner.

Lily district is located on the famous Military Road and the old stopping place erected by Ammesey Smith in 1876 was the scene of many pioneer activities. The long herds of cattle, often driven from Shawano to the copper regions of Michigan, slowly trod this important highway. Their herders, stopping on the way, fraternized with the dam tenders, timbermen, Indian traders, prospectors and river drivers. This was a country close to the throne of the Almighty. Man in his mad quest for wealth and power, had not begun to despoil it.

On section 15 of North Langlade township, David B. Edick kept a stopping place for Timothy Craine, lumberman, who was active in timber operations in the Wolf river country for many years.

Henry Ball and sons came to Lily from Shiocton in 1881 and erected a general store on sections 27. They had their supplies and merchandise in the Amessey Smith place in September, 1881, when the historic cyclone of that year went through eastern Langlade County. They operated their store until 1888, when

DELLS OF THE WOLF RIVER

The junction of the Wolf and Lily rivers is at Lily. The dell is down stream from Lily in the Menominee Indian territory.

Charles and Jesse Walsh came from Black Creek, Outagamie County, and took over the business. They moved to Antigo after seven years and June 5, 1895, the store was taken over by William Priem, who has a general store at Lily now. At the time William Priem came to Lily, Israel Stinson had a little store there.

The first school in the district was a one room log cabin erected on section 27. Miss Dempster was an early teacher. This school was used for a short time until a frame structure was erected on section 34. The frame school was used until 1895, when a second frame school was erected. The second frame school was used until 1914, when C. F. Dallman, Antigo contractor, erected a brick structure on section 34 at a cost of $4,600.

The old frame school was purchased for $100 by William Priem, July 6, 1914.

The Lily school is a state graded school of high rank. The 1921-22 officials were: Director, George Getchell; Treasurer, Roy Larzelere; Clerk, W. W. Clark. Mrs. Robert Dewey was Principal and Miss Nellie McDougal, assistant instructor, in 1921-22. The average enrollment is 55 pupils.

Lily has had a number of postmasters, as follows: George Taylor, Sim Ball, Wren Taylor, Israel Stinson, Charles Walsh, William Priem and Osca Tourtillotte.

The Lily cemetery is located on section 35.

There is still a vast area of valuable standing timber in the district.

Turtle Lake is located on section 28.

Before the spur track was laid from Bryant to Kent it was difficult for Lily settlers to get to Shawano or Antigo. This was also before the universal use of the automobile. The year 1914 brought the Wisconsin & Northern Railroad into the district, opening up to the outside world the resources of the country. In 1921 this road was purchased by the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie Railroad. Extensive improvements are contemplated and before many years the main Soo line will pierce eastern Langlade County. Lily has a depot erected in 1919 on section 34.

From the day when the red man using his bateaux on the Wolf or portaging about its rapids, on through the years of pine timber conquest to the present day of the prosperous farmer, the modern automobile and speeding locomotive, the Lily or the village of New, as S. A. Taylor once named it, has lived on. Its years in the unknown tomorrow may be for bigger and better things.

CHAPTER XLII.

Neva Township No. 32 N., R. 11 E.

Derivation of Name—Location—Soil—Early History—Organization—First Town Meeting—Early and Present Industries—Roads—Churches—Cemeteries—Granges—Schools — School District Boundaries—Township Chairmen, Clerks, Treasurers, Justices of the Peace, Supervisors, Assessors—1883-1923—First Bank—Cheese Factories.

Neva township was named in honor of Chief Neva, leader of a tribe of Chippewa Indians, who visited at what is now known as Neva Corners on their way north to Post Lake in an early day. Once one of the largest, it is now one of the smallest townships in Langlade County, embracing a territory of thirty-six square miles or one Congressional Township No. 32, North of Range 11 East. It is bounded on the north by Upham, on the east by Price, on the west by Peck and on the south by Antigo townships. Springbrook runs through sections 1, 11, 15, 20, 21, 22 and 30. The surface of the township is generally level except in the northwestern part. Originally the land was covered with a thick growth of white pine, elm, beech, maple and oak, which was rapidly cut. Neva township is a splendid agricultural district comparing favorably with any other section of Wisconsin. In 1878 it belonged to Langlade township, Oconto County. It was surveyed by H. C. Fellows, U. S. Deputy Surveyor, in September, 1860.

ORGANIZATION IN 1883.

Neva township was organized January 11, 1883, by the Langlade County Board of Supervisors. Supervisor H. Heim of Norwood township introduced the resolution in which all territory in townships No. 32, 33, 34, 35, 36 and 37 of Range 11 East was detached from Antigo township and "organized and formed into a new town to be henceforth known as "Neva township." The proposed ordinance was recommended by the Committee on Town Organization, consisting of Hon. F. A. Deleglise, Moritz Mueller and Henry Heim of Antigo, Polar and Norwood townships respectively in accordance with section 6, chapter 7, laws of 1882. Thus Neva came into existence and has since been the pride of its citizens and the county as well.

Neva township, when organized, contained 216 square miles or six Congressional townships. We shall now learn how the townships were detached and how Neva township was cut to its present area.

November 14, 1883, an unsuccessful attempt was made by C. C. De Long, S. B. Roberts and others of Neva township to have townships 35, 36 and 37 (now a part of Oneida County) detached and incorporated into a town to be known as Pelican township. The petition was laid over by the Committee on Town Organization until December 13, 1883, when an ordinance was passed creating Pelican township. Thus the three northern townships of Neva township were severed making Neva township one-half of its original area of January, 1883 or 108 square miles, (three Congressional townships). These three Congressional townships are yet within the limits of Langlade County, two of which form part of Elcho and Upham townships respectively.

In February, 1887, township 34, range 11 east, was detached from Neva township by an ordinance drawn up by District Attorney John E. Martin to become a part of Elcho township. This action cut Neva township, once a vast territory stretching north thirty-six miles, to two Congressional townships, 32 and 33 of range 11 east. Neva township remained as such until township 33 was detached to form a part of Upham township in 1894 and from that year Neva township has consisted of one township No. 32, North of Range 11 East.

FIRST ANNUAL TOWN MEETING.

The first annual town meeting was held at the farm home of Joseph Duchac on the NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of the SE $\frac{1}{4}$, Section 21, Township 32. The first Supervisors elected were Joseph Duchac, Chairman, A. F. Schoepke and Joseph Krause. First highway overseers appointed were Joseph Cherf, John Fisher, E. R. Whitmore and B. H. Darling on April 21, 1883. The Neva township Board of Review had a multitude of vicissitudes confronting it.

Seemingly insurmountable tasks were also coped with successfully, however. The first official act of the town board was to raise $2,090.00 for school purposes. This unanimously carried measure was a fitting precedent for the pioneer settlers to establish in promoting educational enlightenment and advancement. The measure passed April 3, 1883.

EARLY ROADS.

Neva township was originally subdivided into four road districts and much of the principal efforts of the first town board was in action on road petitions. Settlers along the Eau Claire river and in Pelican village needed an outlet for their products. Post Lake settlers wanted communication with Melnik as well as New. Thus wagon roads, crude and in instances barely traversible, were welcomed and encouraged.

The first application for a road was made by nine free holders petitioning for a road commencing at the stake in the east line of section 21, township 32, range 11 east; thence east about 3-4ths of a mile, thence southeast to the south section line of section 22; thence southeast to the S $\frac{1}{4}$ post of section 26. This road was built three rods wide. Construction was authorized May 21, 1883.

Other early roads were from Deerbrook to Pelican and Monico Junction; Crandon-Pelican road (all then in Langlade County.)¹ McDougal's town line road, Sipek's road, Westerhold's road, Pejsar's road, Koenick's road, Cherf's road, Schwartz road, Mosher road, F. John's road, S. Strasser road, S. H. Wright road and Jos. Petska road, Melnik-Kempster road.

BOARD OF HEALTH—1883.

The first Board of Health consisted of Township Supervisors, Joseph Duchac, A. F. Schoepke and W. W. Wheeler.

THE FIRST TOWN ELECTION.

Edward Dawson and Thomas Vohasky were the first Inspectors of Election in Neva township. At the first township election 37 votes were cast. Those who voted on that historic April 3, 1883, were E. R. Whitmore, R. N. Olmsted, Wesley Dawson, Anton Honzik, Joseph Krause, Martin Schaler, Samuel Preston, H. Anderson, Joseph Cherf, Thomas Vohasky, Edward Dawson, Martin Vochoska, John Fisher, Joseph Sipek, John Schultz, Jos. Holup, Wencel Rine, Sr., Wencel Rine, Jr., Frank Stasek, Jos. Randall, Albert Barta, John Barta, Albert Stowe, Frederick Jacobus, August Ahearns—37 in all.

April 1, 1884, at a meeting at the residence of Jos. Duchac a resolution was passed to establish a township hall on the NW $\frac{1}{4}$ of the SW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 22, township 32. Joseph Duchac furnished and cleared the land for the hall.

SCHOOL DISTRICT BOUNDARIES.

Neva township schools while erected soon after the arrival of the pioneer settlers were more pretentious institutions than some of the other pioneer schools of Langlade County. The hardships confronting the settlers in clearing a space in the dense forest for a school were nothing compared with financial demands of public schools and other township needs.

The township was divided into three school sub-districts in 1883. District No. 1 commenced at the SW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 31, township 32 and ran three miles to the SE corner of section 33; thence north two miles to the NE corner of section 28; thence west three miles to the NW corner of section 30; thence south two miles to the place of beginning. Deerbrook, Reeves, and Neva corners were a part of this first district.

School District No. 2 commenced at the SW corner of section 34, ran east on the town line to the SE corner of section 36; thence N on the town line four miles to the NE corner of section 13; thence west three miles to the NW corner of section 15; thence south one mile to the NW corner of section 22; thence west one mile to the NW corner of section 21; thence south one mile to the SW corner of section 21; thence east one mile to the SE corner of section 21; thence south two miles to the place of beginning. This district contained all of sections 34, 35, 36, 27, 26, 25, 21, 22, 23, 24, 15, 14 and 13. Melnik, now known as "Star Neva" was in District No. 2.

School District No. 3 commenced at the NW corner of section 31, township 33, range 11 and ran east three miles to the NE corner of section 33, township 33, range 11 east; thence south to the SE corner of section 9, township 32, range 11 east; thence west three miles to the SW corner of section 7, township 32, range 11 east; thence north to the NW corner of section 31, township 33.

Since 1883 the school districts have been changed frequently, the last change being made May 21, 1915. Neva township is now divided into five districts as follows: District No. 1, District No. 2, Joint District No. 3, District No. 4 and District No. 5.

DISTRICT NO 1 (JT.)

KEMPSTER DISTRICT NO. 1, consists of sections 5 and 6 of Neva township and was organized in 1904. Its chief settlement is Kempster, located in the northeast corner of section 6, and on the border line between Neva and east Upham townships.

Before the Chicago, Milwaukee & Lake Shore railroad pushed up from Aniwa, Shawano County, many settlers had explored and established themselves in District No. 1. Anton Honzik and Joseph Krause established themselves in the immediate vicinity of Kempster in 1877.

Joseph Hoffman and Julius Schultz erected the first saw mill at Kempster in 1899. It was a substantial establishment for the little hamlet and the means of livelihood for many settlers. The plant came into possession of F. C. Meyers and Frank Borth, who moved to Kempster in 1898. The new owners erected a planing mill and made extensive improvements on the saw mill, which they operated until 1907, when the entire institution was taken over by the Wisconsin Bark & Lumber Company, an Antigo firm, now extinct.

In 1880, Russell & Upham, Shawano County land dealers, who controlled much land in Langlade County, erected a small store at Kempster. One year later the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western railroad put in a turn-table and an engine house, both of which meant much to the growth of the district. A hotel was erected to provide lodging for the men employed in laying rail north. Six years before the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western was taken over by the C. & N. W. Ry., Kempster's railroad facilities were torn down. If the business had warranted it the engine house would have stayed. Antigo was near, however and the railroad authorities desired centralization of all shops and elimination of engine houses not needed.

Theodore Lenzner and Charles Tuma conducted the first hotel on the west side of the main track. In 1908 the hotel suffered a loss by fire. The building is now in custody of Kempster Grange No. 650, it having been moved from its original site. In 1909 the lumber yards of the Wisconsin Bark & Lumber Company were burned and the boarding house suffered a loss. The site of the first saw mill is still visible, the ruins serving as a monument to almost forgotten days. The old track bed is slowly decaying. Logs were rolled from this sidetrack into the little lake that lies between a group of rolling hills.

The first school house in the district was erected in 1902 with an enrollment of ten pupils. Miss Josephine Donohue was the first instructor. Frank Ringsmith, Theodore Lenzner and August Klever were members of the school board then. Improvements have been made at the school, which is situated on the west side of Highway No. 39, north of Kempster hotel, in 1919.

The school district is a joint unit with sections in Peck and Upham townships.

Other industries that have flourished are a cheese factory, a garage, now operating, a saloon and dance hall. The principal store is that of L. A. Taylor, who purchased from P. S. Anderson, in 1920. Mr. Anderson came to Kempster in 1914 from Amherst Junction, Wisconsin. The store was previously erected by Frank Borth, who opened the place in 1903.

Kempster Grange No. 650 was organized at the school house on November 4, 1917. First officers were: Master—Mrs. Emma Foreman; Overseer—Cleve Nelson; Steward—Emil Carlson; Assistant Steward—Frank Long; Chaplain—Frank Vining; Treasurer—T. R. Fowler; Secretary—Russell Knight; Gatekeeper—Oscar Larson; Lecturer—Ethel Tucker; Lady Assistant Steward—Mrs. Wm. Pheister; Ceres—Mrs. S. Tucker; Pomona—Mrs. E. G. Carlson; Flora—Mrs. Wm. Foreman. Present officers are: Master—Mrs. Anna Hess; Overseer—John Byers; Steward—Carl Foreman; Assistant Steward—Wm. Foreman; Chaplain—Noah Yoder; Treasurer—George Grossman; Secretary—Carl Mishler; Gatekeeper—Frank Knight; Lecturer—Mrs. A. Kelly; Lady Assistant Steward—Miss Wyomonia Lenzner. Meetings are held at Kempster hall. Twenty-five progressive people are members.

Postmasters of Kempster, District No. 1 (Jt.) have been E. S. Brooks, Frank Borth, P. S. Anderson, L. A. Taylor, (present incumbent).

The village received its name from Dr. J. Kempster, Milwaukee, who owned tracts of land in the vicinity.

Prominent settlers now are: Theodore Lenzner, Frank Borth, L. A. Taylor, Frank Grossman, J. Lavis, R. Knight, George Magoon, August Klever, Bert Keen, Ernest Anderson, Caleb Moss, George Moss, Frank Vining, Anton Kartz, Charles Piper, Mrs. Jno. Clauderman, John Young, John Petarski, Clarence Mishler, John Beyer, John Hilbert, Edward Barnett, K. Tucker, L. A. Taylor, F. Moss, J. Westneer, Wm. Burkatt.

A Congregational church was organized in the district in 1921.

DISTRICT NO. 2.

GILLIS DISTRICT can rightfully be considered the heart of Neva township, historically and geographically. The history of Neva township is constructed from the early deeds and achievements of the pioneers of District No. 2. It is essentially an agricultural and dairying district.

District No. 2 consists of $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 12, $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 11, $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 10, $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 16, sections 15, 14, $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 13, 3-4 of section 23, sections 22, 21 and $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 27.

Joseph Duchac, first settler, contracted for land from F. A. Deleglise, representing the Favinger Land Agency of Appleton, Wis., in 1878. Prior to then this was a vast wilderness. Joseph Duchac erected a little home for his family on section 21. He began at once to encourage other settlers to come to the district. The district while originally organized in 1883 has experienced many changes in boundary, the last of which was recorded in May, 1905. In the wake of the trail blazed by Mr. Duchac came other sturdy pioneers: James Rine, Sr., James Rine, Jr., Robert Rine, Wencel Krinek, Wencel Vanatanko, W. J. Karbon, Sr., Dan and James Gillis, Fred Behm, Wencel Shipek, Frank Kakes, Jos. Plzak, Jas. Fairchild, John Kramer, Jos. Cherf, Jas. Cherf, Frank Mattek, John Kasa, August Shaller, Jos. Stacek, Anton Stacek, Jake Koutnik, George Chadek, Wm. and Chris. Behm, Jas. Eckstein, Jos. Runstick, Abe Thompson, the Wendorf family, Novotnys, Nels Johnson, August Weber, Simon Brenner and Frank Metcalf were early settlers.

The settlers came principally from Manitowoc and Kewaunee Counties, Wisconsin.

The first community was Melnik, where Joseph Duchac erected the first saw mill on the south bank of the Eau Claire river on section 21. This afforded the settlers a means of sawing logs and using the lumber to erect houses, barns and other buildings.

A school was erected the first year of organization, 1883. James Rine, Fred Behm and Joseph Duchac contributed to the erection of the building in several worthy ways. James Rine, Jas. Gillis and Fred Behm were Clerk, Treasurer and Director respectively of the first district school board. Miss Eva Woodward was the first teacher in the district.

Thirteen pupils attended the first school session. The school was a small frame building. The first teacher received $30.00 per month for her services. The school was remodeled and additions were made in 1910. In January, 1920, the old school burned. The villagers made frantic efforts to save some of the school furniture and books. School was commenced in the modern brick school house completed at a cost of $14,000 in 1920. Members of the school board then were: Frank Chadek, Clerk; James Mattek, Director and Jos. Runstick, Treasurer. The school is a credit to the district, being one of the best in Langlade County.

Manufacture of lumber and agriculture were the principal occupations of the first settlers. Joseph Duchac operated his saw mill and a general store at Melnik until 1885. He permitted Hoxie & Mellor to cut logs at his Melnik mill, and then the plant was sold to Dan and James Gillis, who came to Neva township from Menominee, Michigan. The Gillis Brothers operated the mill and general store until 1890, when James Cherf, associated with his brother, Louis Cherf, purchased it. They dismantled the mill in 1900.

The old boilers still rest on the banks of the Eau Claire river and remnants of the old track of Fraker & Graves, loggers and lumber operators, is still visible. This track connected the Melnik mill with Deerbrook. Cars of lumber were hauled by horses to the main track of the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western railroad.

The old general store opened first by Joseph Duchac was taken over by Joseph Shimon and John Shimon, who operated a saloon and a store. Charles Steinfest then came into possession of the store and he was followed by Frank Chadek, who converted it into a garage, in 1916. In 1920 Arthur Nonnemacher and Dan Hale purchased the property from Frank Chadek. They now use the building for garage purposes.

The Henry Jacobus store in this district was first used as a store by Frank Jachl, who came to District No. 2 from the south. After operating a year he sold to James Rine, Jr., who in turn sold to Albert Bubholtz, who then after a short while sold to Henry Jacobus. A store was operated by James Cherf, where the Northern Cheese Factory, J. W. Mattek, prop., is now located. Mr. Mattek bought the factory site from Frank Mattek, who had purchased from Mr. Cherf. The store was operated about two years.

In 1914 the blacksmith shop, conducted by the late Joseph Chadek was burned. He was the first blacksmith in the district.

The saloon in the district was erected by James White and is now run by Joseph Diska. The Northern Cheese factory is the only one in the district, located on section 21.

The town hall is now located in District No. 2 on section 2.

There are a few log cabins still used in the district. A cemetery is located on section 22 in the district. This is the property of the Bohemian Cemetery Association organized December 8, 1892. The cemetery is located on the SE $\frac{1}{4}$ of the NW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 22. First officers were Wencel Rine, Valcav Rine and Wencel Krainik.

The early settlers can recall the proposed route of the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western road through the district in 1881.

Many of the pioner settlers came to this district in ox carts or in railroad box cars.

CHIPPEWA INDIAN VILLAGE.

Before the white settlers came into District No. 2, a tribe of Chippewa Indians were settled on the east side of Bass Lake on section 10. Another band were settled on the west bank of the Eau Claire river in the northeast quarter of section 15. They lived in rude log huts and cabins. After the white settlers came the Indians traded at their stores, sold blue berries, birch bark baskets and evergreen to the people. They also worked in the saw mill at Melnik. On the Nels Johnson farm in District No. 2, many old implements such as knives, bone needles, arrow heads and crude utensils have been found by Nels Johnson, owner of the property. The Indians on section 10 hunted game and also fished in the Eau Claire river, which connects with Sucker Creek. These tribes were very aggressive. On section 15, Joseph Duchac, first town chairman, recalls an old fortress. The logs of which it was constructed were ten feet high. An earthworks was thrown against the logs to aid in defensive operations of the Indians. The Indians here would canoe the Eau Claire river or follow the trails on its banks to Schofield, Marathon County from where they could go down the Wisconsin river. This is the same route used by early fur traders in Langlade County, who canoed to St. Louis, Mo.

A post office was once established at Melnik.

PRESENT INDUSTRIES.

Present industries are: Northern Cheese factory, Neva Garage, Star Soft Drink parlors and a store owned by Henry Jacobus.

The Eau Claire river runs through sections 14, 15, 21 and 22 in this district.

DISTRICT NO. 3.

LITTLE CHICAGO DISTRICT, Neva township was re-organized May 21, 1915. It comprises section 1, 2, 3, 4, 7, 8, 9, $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 10, $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 11, $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 12, 18, 17 and $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 16. It is familiarly known as Little Chicago District because of the many settlers who moved to it from Chicago.

Joseph Krause, Anton Honzik, Martin Schacher, E. R. Whitmore, Joseph Honzik, R. Olmsted, Frank Borth, James Nelson, were among the very early settlers. Others early but more recent than the first were: Frank Kletzka, Paul Masek, James Masek, Jonas Gleich, James Nelson, and W. Tesarek.

The Little Chicago district was first created in 1912. The first frame school was moved to the school site, southeast quarter of section 8 in 1886. The frame school served the little citizens, eager to acquire knowledge, for many years until 1912. A new school house was then erected of brick at a cost of $2,250.00. A. O. Sherwood of Antigo was the contractor. James Nelson, Frank Schacher, and Emil Honzik were then school officers.

The district is a little stony and rolling, but productivity is very good. It was once heavily timbered with pine.

Teachers since 1912 have been: Eva Schultz, Alice Doucette, Rose Stacek, Ernestine Kopeschka, Alvina Dvorak, Ione Preston, Irene McCormick, Marie Robinson.

The C. & N. W. Ry. serves the district with a spur track from Kempster. Loggers use the track for loading purposes. Loggers in the district are Theodore Lenzner, Frank Schacher, Fred Honzik, Frank Keller, Frank Kletzka, and James Masek.

Five young men went from the district to serve this country in the World War.

Kempster and Neva are the nearest trading posts. It is a new community that has fair chances for development.

There are 150 people residents or 27 families in the community. The Little Chicago Grange was for many years a force for good in the community.

JOINT DISTRICT NO. 3.

DEERBROOK DISTRICT consists of sections 19, 20, $\frac{3}{4}$ of 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33 and $\frac{1}{2}$ of 34. Most of the pioneer settlers of this district emigrated to America from Bohemia, settled at Manitowoc and then purchased land in Neva township, Langlade County. The first settlers in this district were: Wencel Smetana, John Novak and Charles Mosher. They came in 1879. It took the first two pioneers seven days to come from Manitowoc to Neva township with a pair of oxen. All of their worldly belongings were hauled in the rough wagon that trudged over the poor roads. In the night these sturdy settlers camped by the wayside as there were no hotels or taverns as convenient as today. Other early settlers were: Albert Chadek, Fred Schwartz, John Barta, Albert Barta, W. J. Mattek, Joseph Cherf, Jr., James Mattek, James Cherne, and Fred Jacobus.

The chief settlements in the district are Neva Corners and Deerbrook. Neva Corners is at the meeting point of five well travelled highways. The first general store was erected at Neva Corners by W. J. Mattek. He still operates the store. There is also a state bank at Neva corners (for more data refer to Banks and Finance). Germanson Brothers and the farmers as a cooperative body conduct cheese factories in the district. The Germanson Brothers are also in the creamery business. There is a saloon at Neva Corners also. The first saloon was erected by James Cherf, Jr. Jos. Benishek conducted the first cheese factory in the township on the NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of the NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 32. W. J. Mattek, Wencel Smetana and Andrew Kaplanek operate soft drink parlors.

Albert Smetana and Giles Rynders operated meat markets in the district, but Henry Jacobus is the only proprietor of a meat market at present. W. J. Mattek and Wencel Smetana are proprietors of two large dance halls.

Ed. Masek and Adolph Novak are the two blacksmiths in the district. In 1896 a German Lutheran church was erected on section 28. The late Rev. A. Grimm of Antigo was first Pastor.

Deerbrook, situated on the main line of the Chicago & North Western railway, was named by Edward Dawson, timber cruiser and prospector, who, while camping near the Eau Claire river watched the deer "drink his fill" each morning just as the sun peeped over the hills proclaiming a new day. Thus he called it "Deerbrook," by which it has since been known.

In 1898 a number of farmers of Neva township organized a cooperative corporation and erected a grist mill and saw mill at Deerbrook. They operated until 1910 when they went into bankruptcy. The entire plant and property was then purchased by Hirt Brothers, present owners.

Present industries are: Hirt's saw and grist mill, Fred Weigert store, post office, Henry Jacobus store, Deerbrook Hotel, Service Garage, all at Deerbrook.

The first school was erected in 1883 on the John Novak farm, and after many years of service burned down. The next school was built at what is now the Deerbrook sand pit in the old platted village of Reeves. The school burned and the school children attended school at Neva Corners school in the same district (there were then two schools in the district). In 1904 the present commodious school was erected on section 29. It is a first class state graded school of brick construction, two stories, and one of the finest in the county. The old school at Neva Corners is still standing. The progress of the district can be noted by comparing it with the present school.

Thomas Chadek for years prior to 1885 conducted a general store and blacksmith shop on section 29 in this district. The town board met for many sessions in "Chadek's Hall."

This district has a Catholic church and a German Lutheran church. Rev. A. Grimm, deceased, was the first Pastor of the Lutheran church. The Catholic church was organized by the then Pastor of St. Mary's church of Antigo. A Catholic and Lutheran cemetery are located in the district.

In 1886, J. Harlow and H. B. Luce of Wausau erected a saw mill in the district on section 30. It operated successfully for a number of years and was sold to Frank Dexter, who in 1898 sold to John Randall, Louis Novotny and Anton Jichi. The mill burned down in 1900. It was never rebuilt.

DISTRICT NO. 5.

SPRINGBROOK DISTRICT is not as old as other districts discussed, yet it is equally as progressive. It was organized in 1904 after discussion, pro and con, was heard at the home of Frank Kakes, section 25. Portions of Districts No. 1, 2 and 3 were detached to make District No. 5. Thus the district includes sections 36, 35, $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 34, $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 27, 26, 25, 24, $\frac{1}{2}$ of 13, $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 23. The area of the district is 6 3-4 square miles.

In the spring of 1905 after due notice was presented to the electorate land was purchased from J. Klapste and in the fall of the same year a modern school house was erected on the SE $\frac{1}{4}$ of the SE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 26. Accordingly the school district was named Springbrook because of that stream meandering through sections 25, 35 and 36, near the school house and in the district. The first school officers were: B. Lukas, Director; W. J. Kramer, Clerk and J. Wenzel, Treasurer. Present school officers are: Mrs. J. Wenzel, Clerk; Frank Plzak, Jr., Clerk and Jos. F. Klapste, Treasurer.

Teachers thus far have been: Frances Schooly, Pearl Davis, Jessie Trusdell, Irene Day, Lottie Brazzard, Mae Van Vleet, Erna Below, Jennie Lade, Harriet Congleton, Miss Melbrecht, Rose Friebe and Alvina Dvorak.

The cheese factory is operated by Mr. Plzak, section 25.

Early settlers are: Frank Plzak, John Cherf, Frank Kakes, Jas. Pavlicek, George Gallenberg, Jos. Klapste, Harry Klapste, J. Klapste, Robert Rine, Jas. Pacer, J. A. Wenzel, E. Nickels, John Behm. Many settlers are interested in the Neva Mutual Fire Insurance Co.

The district has splendid roads and modern farms, is well equipped and progressive.

CHAPTER XLIII.

Norwood Township No. 30 N., R. 12 E.

Lakes and Streams—Government Survey—Organization of Norwood—Township Officials 1881-1923
—Pioneer Settlers—Early Industries—Riverside—Phlox—Maple Grove—Apple Grove—Sugar
Bush—Mayking—Twintownship and Mayking Granges.

Norwood township is located in the extreme south central part of Langlade County and embraces the entire congressional township 30 north, Range 12 East, hence is six miles square and contains 36 full sections. It is bounded on the north by Antigo and Polar townships, on the east and south by Shawano County (Menominee Indian Reservation) and on the west by Rolling township. The United States government survey was inaugurated in Norwood by James Winthrow, November 22, 1854, and was completed December 12, 1854. The township was originally covered with a dense growth of white and Norway pine, maple, red birch, elm and basswood. The general surface of the township is somewhat rolling with small level areas. The Red river, which received its name from its red bottom clay, arises in the northwest corner and flows southeast through the township, emptying into Moose Lake in section 16 and flowing through sections 14, 15, 22, 23, 25, 26 and 36. A small rivulet flows from Demlow's lake through sections 2, 3, 11 and 14 emptying into Red river. Trout Creek flows through sections 1, 2, 12 and 13. Mud Brook runs through the southwestern part in the Maple Grove district.

With the exception of the northwest part in a strip running through sections 6, 7, 17, 18, 19, 30 and a small area at the southeast end of Moose Lake, Norwood soil is one vast area of Gloucester silt loam, rolling phase. In the region mentioned as the northwest part Gloucester sandy loam is found. Peat is found in small isolated areas in but few places.

ORGANIZATION OF NORWOOD.

Norwood township was once a part of Hutchinson township, Shawano County, and also of the old town of Mill, Shawano township. It was not a part of the original New County, detached from Oconto County in 1879. By the act of the state legislature, creating Langlade County, February 19, 1881, Norwood township was attached to Langlade County.

DISTRICT NO. 1.

RIVERSIDE DISTRICT. In 1878 Henry Mitchell, a resident of Menasha came to the town of Mill, Shawano County, and erected a saw mill on section 22 near what is now Moose Lake, Norwood township. Ross Young, also of Menasha was his associate. Mr. Young erected a cabin home for himself on section 15. Thus these two men, who came primarily because of the lumber industry, were the earliest settlers in Riverside. The Mitchell mill, as it was called, was erected on section 22 near the mouth of Moose Lake. Nearly a year elapsed before the arrival of the next two settlers, Peter Hilger and Michael Neubauer, who, in 1878, came from Appleton. Charles W. Moss moved his family from Neenah to section 16 in the year 1879. They started a store which operated from 1879 to 1881. Other very early settlers were: I. Narlow, P. Muhm, of Menasha, Austin Robinson, Appleton, and Henry Waterman, of Oshkosh, homesteaders.

These settlers came before the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western railroad stretched north from Clintonville, fifty one miles distant. All provisions were secured from that place.

Riverside district was then known as District No. 2, Hutchinson township, Shawano County.

The first school meeting was held September 8, 1879 in Hutchinson township. In 1880 this district was changed to Milltown district No. 2. In 1881, when Norwood was attached to Langlade County it became District No. 1 of Norwood. April 13, 1881, the settlers planned a log raising "bee" for the erection of the school house. Previously school was held at the home of Charles W. Moss, while the school (log) was built on the line between sections 11 and 14. In 1884 a new frame school was built and is still used. It is located on the southwest quarter of section 14.

The area of this district is, 3,840 acres, containing all of sections 13, 14, 15, 22, 23, 24.

The town hall of Norwood is located on section 22, this district.

DISTRICT NO. 2.

RED RIVER DISTRICT. In May, 1877, Joseph St. Louis, Moses St. Louis, Louis Bergeon and Joseph Bergeon, residents of Little Chute, Outagamie County, cut a trail through the wilderness from Leopolis, Township 27, Range 14 East, to Township 30, Range 12 East. These four prospectors staked homesteads in the country infested by nothing but animals—the deer, wolf, bear and lynx. Only an occasional Indian trail gave any evidence of man. Returning to Little Chute these adventurers told of the country “in the north woods” and in August, 1877, Albert Menting, Joseph St. Louis, John Menting and Mr. and Mrs. Frank St. Louis (Mrs. St. Louis was the first white woman in Norwood) moved in with teams. It was a tiresome journey over a poor tote road and often the wheels of the heavy overland schooners were mired in mud. The first night was spent under the hemlock boughs, corner of sections 23, 24, 25 and 26. Arriving at section 26, all the newcomers began building the first log cabin in Norwood township on section 26—the old Frank St. Louis homestead. All these pioneers lived in the St. Louis log dwelling until they could “roll up” cabins on their own homestead claims. Joseph Bergeon settled on section 23; Albert Menting homesteaded on section 24; Joseph St. Louis homesteaded on section 26; Mr. and Mrs. Frank St. Louis homesteaded on section 26; Moses St. Louis homesteaded on section 28. Before the arrival of these settlers the August Boelke homestead near Leopolis was the farthest northern cabin between Antigo and Township 28, Range 12 East. Other settlers followed and before long Pascal Langlois, came from Bay settlement, homesteading on section 27; Louis Morrison homesteaded on section 26. They came in 1878. Others who arrived the same year were: John Cardin from Bay Settlement; John Jansen from Buchanan, Wis.; J. B. Lawrence from Little Chute and Desert De Broux from Little Chute. Oliver Shadick settled on section 35 and Warren Jones on section 34 in the fall of 1878. They both came from Menasha. In the spring of 1879 Silas Bogan took up a claim on section 36.

John Jansen opened the first store, log cabin, which still stands, on section 26 in 1879. Shortly after the first post office was opened with Mr. Jansen in charge. Before then mail was sent in from Leopolis two to three times a week. The post office was named Phlox, after a wild genus of herbs growing in the forests nearby.

In 1879, the Rev. Father Masschelein of Keshena, Shawano County, was called to visit a sick person and while there celebrated mass in the little log cabin of Henry St. Louis. The distance to Phlox from Keshena then was thirty miles over rough rocky Indian trails. Rev. Father Masschelein came to the settlement on horseback. In May, 1879, Rev. Father Philip St. Louis walked from Clintonville to Phlox to administer to the spiritual wants of the people. In 1880, five acres of land were donated for church purposes and in 1881 a log church was erected, 34x50 feet. At the same time an Altar Society was organized with a membership of 25. In 1882, Rev. Father Ph. St. Louis became the resident pastor of Phlox. In 1883 a parochial school was erected, occupying an area of 26x27 feet. In 1884 the church parsonage was constructed. In 1888 a new church in honor of St. Joseph was erected by Father Ph. St. Louis. Father St. Louis closed his missionary labors at Phlox, September 12, 1893, moving to Aniwa. Pastors since in order were: Rev. Wm. De Haan, Rev. F. Vollbrecht, Rev. F. Ruessman, Rev. George Pesch, Rev. Wm. De Haan and Rev. I. G. Schmitt, who is now in charge of the Phlox church. The present Phlox parochial school was built in 1907. The parish was re-built in 1898, during Father Vollebrecth's pastorate.

The first public school was erected on section 26 in 1880 and was first taught by Olive St. Louis. Those who attended were: Thomas Mitchell, George Young, Henry, Herman, and Mary Menting, Leo and Maggie Langlois, Della St. Louis, Clophil St. Louis, Isadore Jansen, Thomas, Josephine and Philomene Lawrence, Michael and John De Broux, Kate Mitchell and Jos. and John Neubauer.

The 1922-23 public school teacher at Phlox was Mrs. A. J. Reinert. George Guertz, Andrew Regan and Nels Jansen, are Clerk, Director and Treasurer, respectively.

Postmasters at Phlox have been: John Jansen (first), Arnold P. Menting, Mrs. John Jansen, Ed. Knapp, Guy McIntee, Margaret Kaufman and George Guertz, present postmaster.

The first mill erected in the district was built by Thomas St. Louis on section 26 in 1880. It burned down shortly afterwards. Frank and Joseph St. Louis re-built the mill, sold to the Mattoon Mfg. Co., of Sheboygan, who in 1889 sold to John and David Matteson, who came from Wittenberg. A tramway was constructed from the mill to Elmhurst for hauling the product of the mill to the main track. The tramway was used but little, however. In 1897 Matteson & Co. sold to John Kaufman who in 1914 sold the plant to the Red River Mfg. Co. The Red River Mfg. Company is superintended by M. J. Ellstad. Charles Elscholz is the resident manager. It is now a modern plant, on the banks of the Red river.

Thomas Wilson operated a butter bowl factory from 1889 to 1892. John Menting was a partner to Wilson for some time. In 1889 John Menting erected a broom handle factory near the Andrew Regan property. A. P. Menting ran it also. Frank St. Louis had a cant hook factory on section 26, from 1892 to 1895.

The first Phlox hotel was built by Peter Bissonnette. The present Hotel Allright was originally the John Jansen residence. In 1904 it was taken over by John Matteson, remodeled, and has since been used as a hotel. It has gained considerable prominence as headquarters for tourists and fishermen. The Red river is nearby. Highway No. 47 runs through Phlox from Antigo to Shawano. Warren Jones once ran a hotel in Phlox. It was sold to the Mattoon Mfg. Co., who in turn sold to J. and D. A. Matteson Co. Mattesons sold to Ed. Knapp, who came to Phlox from Clintonville. He traded the property to Ed. Hadler of Antigo, who sold to W. B. Dresser. The building is now the Phlox Hardware location.

The present industries and business places of Phlox are: Red River Mfg. Co., the Farmers' State Bank, A. J. Reinert, Cashier; The George W. Guertz general merchandise store. Duenke & Moss general store, Hotel Allright, John Matteson, prop.; George Jansen Hardware; George Schlientz, soft drink parlor; John Van Ooyan soft drink parlor; Norman M. Racine soft drink parlor; M. W. A. Hall; Henry Menting, Chiropractor; Phlox Garage, W. J. Menting & Co., Props.; Peter Weber and Henry Eggink, blacksmiths; The A. F. Schulz Creamery, A. F. Schultz, prop., was established in 1902 by the Fargo Creamery Supply Co., a farmers cooperative unit. It was purchased by John and Glen Kaufman May 7, 1912, and then by A. F. Schultz, May 1, 1915. The plant has an annual capacity of 160,000 pounds of cheese and 20,000 pounds of Clover Leaf Brand butter.

The office of the Norwood township clerk, William Guertz, is in the village of Phlox.

Phlox, Norwood township village, is 33 miles from Shawano, 25 miles from Keshena, Indian Reservation village, 12½ miles from Neopit and 13 miles from Antigo, county seat.

DISTRICT NO. 3.

MAPLE GROVE DISTRICT. Maple Grove is ideally situated in the southwestern part of Norwood township, near the county line between Shawano and Langlade Counties. It was first settled in 1879 and 1880 by brave and courageous prospectors, homestead seekers and timber hunters, who came with their slow yokes of oxen or with the heavy wagons drawn by horses over the rough trails from Clintonville. Anton Sensenbrenner, Henry Lloyd, Walter Lloyd, then a child, Jesse Armstrong, Henry Hilger, Fred Goodwill, Charles Clifford and M. Thurot were the first settlers. Later settlers, who were in the district very early were: Israel Ano, Frank Brouillard, the Cunningham family, Ed. Jarvis, James St. Mitchell, Abraham Dione, Michael Rayome and John Rayome.

The first school house was built on section 29. It was erected by all the settlers, who set aside a day for a log raising "bee." The district settlers set aside their daily tasks and in a short time a one-room log cabin was erected. Miss Z. Grignon was the first teacher. Laura Royer was the second teacher. The children of the Lloyd, Henry Hilger, F. Brouillard, Ano, St. Mitchell, Cunningham, Jarvis, Goodwill and Clifford families attended the first school. The log school was used until 1896 when a frame school was built. It is still in use. The school was erected by Misseador Thurot. It was remodeled in 1918 by Frank Mottel of Mattoon. The 1922-23 school officials were: Mrs. Martha Beusch, Clerk; John Spiegl, Director and Alfred Resch, Treasurer. The 1922-23 teacher was Esther Nowotny.

The first cheese factory in this district was erected by Walter Lloyd on the site of the present Norwood Cheese Factory, section 28, in 1912. It was sold to Frank Barta by the original owner. The first factory burned down and in 1920 was re-built by him. September 16, 1921, Emil H. Hintz, progressive cheese maker, purchased the factory, which he operated until September, 1922, when it burned. It was known as the Norwood Cheese Factory.

The area of this district is 3,840 acres or six square miles. It contains all of sections 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, and 33. There are four lakes in the district.

DISTRICT NO. 4.

APPLE GROVE DISTRICT. Apple Grove is situated in the west central part of Norwood township and comprises all of sections 16, 17, 18, 19, 20 and 21. Its area includes 3,840 acres of tillable land.

Apple Grove was settled by a group of pioneers who came from Greenville township, Outagamie County in 1879. Its first settler was John J. Simpson, who came from Greenville township in the fall of 1879 and settled on a homestead located on section 17 (NE ¼). He was followed by George W. Bemis, who, in March, 1880, settled on section 19. Dallas Chappel came in 1879, homesteading on section 20. John A. Spencer homesteaded on section 22 in 1879. William McLean came from Omro in 1879 and homesteaded the SE ¼ of section 17. Other early settlers were: Thomas McNutt, Charles Shead, J. W. Morse, Langlade County's first County Judge, who, in 1880, homesteaded on section 18. He came from Menasha. Charles Shead came from Vermont state and operated a store for Daniel Chandler, of Menasha. The store was located on section 16 and was erected in 1880, and discontinued a few years later.

Education of the children was important to the pioneer. Therefore as soon as the log cabins were "rolled up" means of education were discussd. School was opened on section 18 in the log shanty on the old George Garrett farm. This was three years before the first log school was built in 1883 on section 20 on the Dallas Chappel farm. He donated an acre of land for school purposes. This pioneer temple of education was used until 1897 when a new school was erected on the NW ¼ of section 20 on the C. O. Peterson farm site. John J. Simpson, afterwards the first Langlade County Clerk, was the first teacher. Miss Hutchins was the first woman teacher. The first teacher in the frame school was Martha Miller. The first school board officials in Apple Grove district were: J. W. Morse, Treasurer; George W. Bemis, Clerk and Dallas Chappel, Director. Early teachers were: Osca Bemis, Miss Hutchins, John J. Simpson, Hattie Thompson and Nancy Hutton now Nancy Garrett. First pupils were: George and Osca Bemis, Charles, Henry, James, and Frank Morse, J. Spencer and Myrtle Chappel.

In 1910 a Methodist Episcopal church was established on section 18. It was named in honor of Rev. Sanborn, its first Pastor.

Apple Grove district has progressed wonderfully since the first vanguard of homesteaders came with horse and buck board or oxen from Outagamie County. It has a population of over one hundred inhabitants and more than twenty permanent farmers. The school, frame structure, is pleasantly situated in an apple grove, planted in an early day.

Instead of the old trail and tote road the district now has well kept highways. Most of the old pioneers have moved from the district and new settlers have taken over the old historic homesteads. Those still living can recall when G. W. Bemis of the district or Henry Peters of the Strassburg district, Rolling township, moved the settlers into the district, almost a half century ago. Antigo was then a hamlet with but three building, Doc. Olmsted's store, L. D. Moses' store, Niels Anderson's store and F. A. Deeglise's home and real estate office. The nearest railroad was fifty miles away at Clintonville.

TWINTOWNSHIP NO. 596.

DISTRICT NO. 5.

SUGAR BUSH DISTRICT. Sugar Bush is in the northwestern part of Norwood township, within easy riding distance from Antigo, county seat. It is on Highway No. 47, main route from Antigo to Green Bay and is in one of the most developed areas of southern Langlade County. The farms are well established, many being homesteads of pioneer days.

For years Sugar Bush was nothing but a desolate wilderness unmarred by homestead seeker, hunter, or prospector. Only the trail of the Indian, running from the Keshena country, was evidence of habitat by man. Not until almost a half century ago (43 years) did the first brave pioneers penetrate the region. John McCandless and Henry McCandless driving a span of horses on a rough tote road from Menasha, settled in this district in 1879. Their journey took four days and many times the heavy cart, that carried their worldly belongings, was mired in the swamps. August Boettcher came from Stevensville and Peter Tatro, who came from Menasha settled in 1879. Horace Beard came from Neenah the same year. The Beard family came to the district with a yoke of oxen and the journey was long and tedious and would have proven discouraging to the ordinary folk. Other pioneers trekked in until the district became a settlement of log cabins with their picturesque "scooped roofs." Henry Mitchell, prominent Milltown mill owner, Frank Thompson, Harry McCandless, B. Chandler, Charles Teckaline, Ernest Abel, S. Schufeldt, Joseph and W. H. Smith, Henry Boettcher, Gustav Boettcher, Eli St. Peter and O. St. Peter, were later, but early settlers, Henry Heim, George Hooker, and Peter Peterson, also came to the district early.

The first school was conducted in the log cabin built by John McCandless. The Tatro children, the Boettcher children and the McCandless children attended the first session in 1879. Mary St. Louis was the first teacher. Other early teachers were: Mary Purdey, Hattie Thompson, Cora Sackett, Lucy Bliss and Frank Churchouse. Charles, Edward, Bessie and Mamie McCandless, David, Harry, Mable Thompson, Alvin, David and Walter Clifford, the Tatro children, Gustav and Matilda Boettcher were also pupils in this pioneer backwoods school.

A year after the first school was commenced a permanent log school was erected. This was used until 1898, when a frame building was erected. It is still used. The school is located on section 5. Henry McCandless, Gust Schmeige and Ernest Able were the building committee members in charge of building the frame school. They were appointed February 26, 1894. An acre of land was purchased from E. D. Stewart for school purposes. The old log school was purchased from the district by O. Beard for $12.00.

Early school board officers were: John and Henry McCandless, Henry Mitchell, Peter Tatro, Henry Heim, H. Beard, and E. D. Stewart. The 1922-23 school officials were: W. H. Smith, Clerk; Stephen Palmer, Treasurer and Arley Gilmore, Director. The 1921-22 teacher was Sophia Augustine. The 1922-23 teacher was Mrs. Dan Hale. In the early days school was held in July and August, November, December and January.

The first cheese factory was built by John Keske. Ed. Tomae ran it for a while until it was purchased by Fred Buss, present owner.

Early teachers—1896 to 1922—were: Minnie Hessel, Emlie Trettein, Jennie McGregor, Blanche Killkelly, Jessie Weeks, Myrtle Merrill, Anna Quinlan, Harriet Holley, Maud Morson, Margaret Healy, Esther Polar, Louise Farnham, M. Keelan, May Guenther, Alma Stromberg, Agnes Walters, Margaret Follstad, Nora Wirig, Lillie Winters, and Helen Belsky. The average enrollment in Sugar Bush school is sixty pupils. In October, 1903, Carl Griswold built an addition to the school.

DISTRICT NO. 6.

MAYKING DISTRICT. Mayking is situated in the northeastern part of Norwood township and is one of the oldest established districts in the county. The first settlers came to this region in 1878 and 1879. No railroads went north of Clintonville then, so it was necessary to walk over a rough trail, through swamps and dense forests to this part of Langlade County. Some of the hardy pioneers were able to make this long trip in a day.

J. Morehouse, Fred Shank, Emil Shank, William Shank, Charles Price, Fred Nonnemacher, Lewis Robinson, Fred Robinson, Wallace Robinson, Frank Koch, Norman Koch, and Louis Tatro and their families, all were early settlers, coming between 1878 and 1885. Other early settlers, who arrived later, were: Frank Schisel, Wolfgang Schisel, John and Jaque Price, Frank Price, and William Nonnemacher. Morehouse was the first settler. He was a blacksmith by trade.

The first school house was a log structure erected in 1880 on section 2. It was used until 1890, when a frame school was built. The frame school is located on section 2 and is still used.

The first saw mill in the district was erected by James Kennedy and John Zehner in section 13. After operating from 1882 to 1893, they sold to Chris and Henry Wunderlich, in 1893. The Wunderlich brothers moved the mill in 1907.

George Wunderlich operated a saw mill on section 3 from 1917 to 1919 and then it was moved to Forest County.

While Henry and Chris Wunderlich operated their mill a post office was established and a thriving community developed. It was called Mayking. When the mill disbanded the post office was discontinued.

Mayking has had two cheese factories. The first was on section 12 and run by Henry Kletz and the second now is operated by Martin Parsons. The first factory burned in 1920.

Mayking is well settled, has progressive farmers and fine farm houses. The school was in charge of Helen Elsholtz in 1922-23. The 1922-23 officers were: William Shank, Harry Kraeger, James McGraff, Treasurer, Clerk, and Director, respectively.

MAYKING GRANGE.

Mayking Grange, No. 597, was organized by State Organizer John Wilde at the Mayking school December 3, 1912. The first officers were: Master—Norman Koch; Overseer—Jake Price; Lecturer—Mrs. Norman Koch; Steward—William Smith; Assistant Steward—Frank Price; Lady Assistant Steward—Mrs. Emil Shanks; Chaplain—Mrs. Wm. Nonnemacher; Gatekeeper—Leonard Koch; Treasurer—Emil Shanks. The first records show no representative to Pomona Grange and the chairs of Ceres and Flora were not filled.

The Mayking Grange is very active and has at this writing a membership of one hundred. Mayking Hall was constructed in 1914 and the material and labor on the same was donated by the membership. Regular meetings are held the second and fourth Tuesdays.

CHAPTER XLIV.

Peck Township No. 32 N., R. 10 E.

Location—Boundaries—Drainage—Topography—Organization—First Township Election—Original Road Districts—Survey of 1860—Township Officials 1891-1923—Ormsby—Badger—Friebel—Blue Bell—Rose Dale—Joint Districts—Early Settlers in Districts.

Peck Township No. 32, Range 10 East, named in honor of George W. Peck, Governor of Wisconsin from January 5, 1891 to January 7, 1895, lies in the west central part of the county. It is bounded on the north by Upham township, on the west by Vilas township, on the south by East Ackley township and on the east by Neva township. It embraces an area of 23,840 acres or thirty-six square miles. The northwest, central and southern portions of the township are drained by the west branch of the Eau Claire river, flowing through sections 5, 6, 8, 15, 16, 17, 22, 27, 29 and 33. The east branch of the Eau Claire river runs through sections 25, 35 and 36. Clear Water Creek in the northeastern part and Sucker Creek in the northwest part, drain those sections into the Eau Claire river. The central and southern sections of the township are level and flat, but the northeastern part is somewhat undulating. Peck was surveyed September 14, 1860 to September 20, 1860, by H. C. Fellows, U. S. Deputy Surveyor.

Peck township is a vast stretch of Merrimac Silt Loam, covering all of the township with the exception of those sections or fraction sections in which Peat or Muck are found. Peat is not very extensive, but more so than Muck, found along the banks of the east and west branches of the Eau Claire river. Peat is found in the NE part of section 3, a strip runs through the eastern part of sections 4 and 9, also sections 2, 5, 8, 9, 10, 17 and 36.

ORGANIZATION.

The territory comprising Peck township was once under the rule of Lincoln County. Later a part of Ackley township, and then Vilas township it was detached from the last named, January 28, 1891, by a resolution adopted by the Langlade County board.

The petition praying for the organization of Peck from Vilas township was sent from Morley, Peck township village, to the county solons, January 6, 1891. It was signed by Z. Space, J. S. Bedah, Nathan Fryer, Thomas Stinson, Carl Yopes, George Hotchkiss, G. N. Tinney, Charles Stinson, Herman Iven, Fred Balch, Abe Bovee, Win Nelson, R. Hampton, J. Harris, Wm. Frick, Jonathon H. Reader, George Fenton, G. F. Walch, Jesse Tinney, Mike Churney, C. H. Harder, Wm. Reader, W. J. Hampton, John Nelson, John Wolter, Moritz Friebel, J. H. Reader, Peter G. Beck, W. R. Anason, H. Fryer, Thomas K. Johnson, D. C. Forrest, Carl Friebel, W. Hampton, and August Wolfgram.

John Nelson and Henry Strauss, members of the Committee on Town Organization of the County Board recommended the organization of Peck township, upon which the county representatives acted favorably. V. P. Rath, George H. Jones and A. McMillan were selected to make a settlement between Vilas and the new township. The writ sent to the board by citizens opposed to organization was denied by the Town Organization Committee.

FIRST ELECTION INSPECTORS.

The first election inspectors were appointed by the County Board. They were: John S. Wilson, Moritz Friebel and Peter G. Beck. The first election was held at the school house in District No. 2, * of the new township.

FIRST TOWNSHIP OFFICIALS.

Thirty-four votes were cast at the first Peck township election, April 7, 1891. Peter G. Beck was elected first township chairman. Other officers were: Supervisors—G. F. Walch, Sidna Boda; Clerk—W. R. Mason; Treasurer—Moritz Friebel; Assessor—Herman Iven; Justices—Z. Space, T. Stinson (2 years) and C. H. Harder (1 year); Constables—John Nelson and W. Fick.

FIRST ROAD DISTRICTS.

Peck township was divided into four road districts April 14, 1891. Thomas Stinson, Z. Space, Carl Friebel and Carl Yopes were the first Overseers of Districts No. 1, 2, 3 and 4 respectively.

The first road constructed in this township was authorized May 4, 1879, upon petition of six homesteaders. It commenced at the southwest corner of section 31; thence north to the southwest corner of section 19; thence east to the northeast corner of section 19; thence south to the southeast corner of section 31. The hearing on the proposed road was held at the residence of Joseph Parfitt. The next early road established was in the spring of 1882. It started at the SE corner of section 19, Township 32, Range 10 E., and ran east on the section line to the Lincoln County boundary. Five other highways were laid out in Peck township between 1879 and 1885, the last in August, 1884. Early roads were constructed at a cost of sixty to seventy-five cents per rod. Others were as high as $1.25 per rod, while some went still higher depending upon the region through which they were cut.

* County Board designated District No. 3 School as voting place, but Township officials changed location, April 6, 1891.

DISTRICT NO. 1.

BADGER DISTRICT. One month after the first election in Peck township the entire township was divided into four school districts. District No. 1, created May 8, 1891, originally consisted of all of sections 1 to 8 inclusive, and the north half of sections 9, 10, 11 and 12, Township 32, Range 10 East. By redistricting, establishment of joint districts with other township sections the district has been gradually growing smaller, until now it consists of sections 4, 7, 8, 9, 17, 18, the N $\frac{1}{2}$ of sections 19, 20 and the W $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 16 or eight sections. The Badger district, situated in the northwestern part of the township comprises an area of 5,120 acres. The last territorial change in the district was made in 1914.

Before the arrival of the first white settler in Badger district Indians used the primitive region as a hunting and camping ground. Their trails crossed each other in various parts of the wilderness. Hunting the bear, the fleet deer, monarch of the north forest, the lynx, wildcat, wolf or wild fowl was their chief occupation. The adjacent streams afforded fishing for the impulsive red tribes. But just as the Indian was pushed westward from that moment when the Pilgrims first trod the soil of Massachusetts on that memorable December 21, 1620, so too his unchallenged reign of this county saw its ending when the first settlers arrived in 1876. They came from New London, Wausau, Merrill and other adjacent cities. Z. Space and P. Fryer, prominent in early Peck township activities, were the first settlers. They were followed by Jos. Parfitt, Peter G. Beck and E. Whitney, who came in 1879. Oxen teams were used and the journey to the district, unmarred by the hand of white men, took many days. The roads were poor, swamps were crossed and Indian trails were followed. Tenacity, courage and persistency were typical characteristics of these first settlers and the majority who followed. Like General Grant, they "did not turn back," but faithfully forged ahead.

Cabins were erected in the wilderness. Journeys for provisions were made with the slow oxen to Wausau, the village of Antigo or to Merrill. Most of the longer trips were made in the winter and the supplies for many months were thus brought to the pioneers.

The first school in this district was erected in 1886 on section 20. Here the children of the early homeseekers acquired the foundation for their future education. The first school term was six months. As in most districts the salary averaged $25.00. The log school of pioneer days was called the Beck school in honor of P. G. Beck, first Peck township Chairman.

In 1908, a frame school was erected on the southwest corner of section 17, near the M. E. church. It is a splendid school building, well equipped and a credit to the progressive district. The 1921-22 teacher was Miss Howe. Many of the children in the district attended schools in other districts before the erection of the present school, called "The Badger."

The first silo was erected by O. Anderson in 1920.

The district is actively interested in community fairs and grange leadership. The first Langlade County township fair was held in the fall of 1914 at the Badger school.

FOREST GRANGE NO. 615.

Forest Grange No. 615, Patrons of Husbandry, was organized at the Badger school February 18, 1914. Meetings are still held the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month at the school. The first officers were: Master—J. K. Walker; Overseer—Olaf Anderson; Lecturer—Alex Henry; Steward—Arthur Berg; Assistant Steward—Wm. Walker; Chaplain—Mrs. Alex Henry; Treasurer—John Christenson; Secretary—J. P. Cleary; Gatekeeper—Lawrence Nelson; Ceres—Eleanora Greenland; Pomona—Mrs. Jenny Greenland; Flora—Amelia Engeles; Lady Assistant Steward—Rose Christenson.

Present officers are: Master—Harvey McKinney; Overseer—Mrs. J. W. Walker; Lecturer—Alex Henry; Steward—Carl Strum; Assistant Steward—Harold Mosherosh; Chaplain—Mrs. Harriet Henry; Treasurer—Mrs. John Christenson; Secretary—John K. Walker; Gatekeeper—Emery McKinney; Ceres—Lina Fischer; Pomona—Gladys Lloyd; Flora—Blanche Holmes; Lady Assistant Steward—Alice Walker;

Highest membership was attained in 1916 when seventy members were on the roll. It is now about sixty strong.

The M. E. Church, a frame building, and an acre cemetery are located in the SW $\frac{1}{4}$ of the SW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 17.

District No. 1 has splendid promises for future development in agriculture, roads, community service and general public advancement.

Section No. 1 of Peck Township is a part of Joint District No. 1 of Neva, and is found under Neva township. Sections 5 and 6 are found under the Upham township subdivision, Joint District No. 2 of Upham and Peck.

DISTRICT NO. 3.

FRIEBEL DISTRICT. This is one of the oldest districts in Langlade County, being organized when this territory was a part of Lincoln County, long before it was organized as Ackley township, in 1876. The first settlers in this district trekked from Wausau, Green Leaf, Merrill, the state of Virginia and elsewhere.

Roads were few in this territory before the '80's and for a long time after. A tote road ran from Merrill to Neva township territory near the Eau Claire river. This old road, barely passable, was used by some of the first settlers who homesteaded in this district. Pioneer settlers were: Herman Harder, J. Tinney, Moritz Friebel, after whom the school was named, the Jetsoms, Jane De Moss, Wm. Fick. Later settlers were: Martin Helmbrecht, M. Churney, the Pillar family, H. Ivan and Mose Hawley.

Following still later came John Wegner, Will H. Wegner, the Leidheisl family, the Kauschinger's, Petersons, and Stranbergs.

The first school, log cabin of the back woods type of frontier days, was erected on the banks of the Eau Claire river, section 27. It was used for a number of years when another school was erected just a short distance away on section 22. The present school, located on the east banks of the Eau Claire river, section 27, is a frame structure, erected in 1894. It is well equipped and cared for. An addition was placed on the school to accommodate the recent increased enrollment. Miss Jetson of Ormsby taught the first school. The 1922-23 teacher was Clara Wagner.

John Tinney, Herman Harder and Moritz Friebel were the first school officials (long before present district was organized). The first officers of the district under Peck township were: C. H. Harder, Clerk; Moritz Friebel, Treasurer; H. Ivan, Director, elected in 1891. The 1922-23 school officers were: Herman Fredrick, Clerk; Bert Goodman, Director; and W. H. Wegner, Treasurer.

The first frame house was erected on section 22, and is now owned by William H. Wegner, present Township Chairman. This frame dwelling was followed by others and now most of the settlers have supplanted the log cabin with the modern farm home.

In 1895 W. J. Mattek erected a store on section 22.

It was later owned by Edward Hawley who was associated with William H. Wegner. Improvements were made and the business flourished. It was later replaced by a cheese factory (1917) operated first by Edward Thoma. The latter was purchased by H. Ehlman of Birnamwood, who sold to Emil Bartz in May, 1922.

Among other industries of pioneer days was a lath mill erected on section 22 by H. C. Humphrey. It operated only a short time when a destructive forest fire ignited and burned it down.

The Eau Claire river (west branch) runs through sections 22, 27 and 28 in District No. 3.

Most of the roads are well maintained, the settlers are engaged in scientific farming, telephones are becoming more numerous, pure bred stock, better dairying methods, community social gatherings, and constant touch with Antigo, county seat, makes this a district of high standing.

It is now a marked contrast to that time in 1880 when boats were used to go down the Eau Claire river to Wausau and then oared upstream with a load of supplies; or to that period when the oxen waited outside of the log cabin while the early settler took orders from his distant neighbors for flour and foodstuffs which he planned to return to them from Wausau or Merrill. Little trading was done at Antigo then.

This district consisted of sections 13, 14, 15, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, and 36, when organized May 8, 1891. It has experienced changes many times since. Its territory now includes sections 12, 13, 14, 22, 23, 24, and the east $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 28, the west $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 27, the SE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 21, the NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 27 and the north halves of sections 25 and 26. Its area comprises 5,440 acres.

RIVERSIDE GRANGE NO. 620.

Langlade County leads in grange activities. Important in the granges is the Riverside Grange No. 620 organized at the Friebel school with 44 charter members by John Wilde, State Organizer, February 22, 1914. The first officers were: Master, William H. Wegner; Overseer, Joseph Helmbrecht, Sr.; Steward, Louis Lensing; Assistant Steward, Charles Leidheisl; Secretary, August Lensing; Treasurer, Sebastian Leidheisl; Lecturer, Helen Friebel; Chaplain, Sara Lensing; Gatekeeper, Fred Fick; Ceres, Mrs. William H. Wegner; Pomona, Mrs. Jos. Kauschinger; Flora, Katherine Helmbrecht; Lady Assistant Steward, Esther Wegner.

One meeting each month is conducted during the winter, while sessions are conducted every second and fourth Saturday during the summer and fall. 1922 officers were: Master, August Lensing; Overseer, Joseph Miner; Steward, Amos Wagner; Secretary, William H. Wegner; Treasurer, Sebastian Leidheisl; Chaplain, Mrs. Joseph Kauschinger; Lecturer, Leona Kauschinger; Ceres, Marie Kauschinger; Pomona, Leona Helmbrecht; Flora, Verna Wegner; Gatekeeper, Louis Heimler; Assistant Steward, Joseph Kauschinger; Lady Assistant Steward, Gertrude Helmbrecht.

This organization is a potential force in community leadership.

DISTRICT NO. 4.

BLUE BELL DISTRICT. In the southwestern part of Peck township is an area of land consisting of six and one-half sections or 4,160 acres of land known as district No. 4 or the Blue Bell school district. It was first settled in 1877 by homesteaders. Among these early settlers were George Hotchkiss, Riley Mason, Mary Maltby, the Curtiss family, Wm. James, C. F. Balch, Mrs. Henry, Fadalia McCumber, the Johnston family, and the Fryer family. Then this was a vast territory, stretching north to the Michigan-Wisconsin boundary line and was a part of Lincoln County. All of the northern Wisconsin counties were very large in that period following the close of the Civil War.

The pioneer settlers were constantly facing crisis, almost unbearable burdens and hardships. Their homes were roughly constructed cabins. Two rooms in a farm home was considered very progressive for the period.

The first school was erected on section 31 on the old Maltby homestead location. It was used until 1883 when another building for school purposes was erected on the Yopes farm property, section 31. This school was used until 1891 when it was moved to section 32 where it now is used as the farm home of one of the settlers.

In 1909 a modern school was erected by J. P. Cleary on the northwest quarter of section 32. It cost $1,000.

On the McCumber old homestead, a general store and post office were operated for a number of years as Morley post office. It was then moved to the present site of Morley. W. J. Morley, Oshkosh lumberman, was the proprietor of the store. The old building still stands.

Average attendance at the Blue Bell school is forty-three pupils. Mrs. Johnson (formerly a Miss Prosser) was an early teacher. Miss R. Singer was the first teacher in the new school. The 1921-22 teacher was Bessie Augustyn.

Members of the 1922-23 school board were: J. P. Cleary, Director; Mrs. John Zirkel, Treasurer, and Ludwig Strum, Clerk.

District No. 4 was organized as a joint district May 8, 1891. It consisted of sections 1 and 2 of Township 31, Range 9 East, sections 4, 5 and 6, Township 31, Range 10 East, and the south one-half of the north west quarter of section 30 and all of section 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, Township 32, Range 10 East (Peck).

Peter G. Beck, G. F. Walch, and Sidna Boda were the township supervisors of Peck and Charles Nelson, W. L. Ackley and James Siota were the Ackley township supervisors who sanctioned the organization of this district.

New settlers are still coming into this district. The chief occupation is agriculture. Antigo is the principal trading center.

The first district school officers elected were: Jonathan Reader, Clerk; Carl Yopes, Treasurer, and G. F. Walch, Director. They were elected in 1891.

August 17, 1892, the school term was designated at six months. The old blue school house of district No. 4 of Vilas was moved to Peck township, having been purchased by the people of this district. Their children heretofore had attended that school, but it was too far for them to walk every day.

On September 17, 1906, this district ceased to be a joint unit with Ackley and became a complete Peck district. July, 1908, it was decided to erect a new school on the northwest corner of section 32.

JOINT DISTRICT NO. 5.

ROSEDALE DISTRICT. On July 30, 1906, this district was organized as a distinct school unit, including territory of both Ackley and Peck townships. That part of Peck included in this district consisted of the south half of sections 25, 26, the southeast quarter of section 27, the southeast quarter of section 33, sections 34, 35 and 36. East Ackley territory in the district included the north $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 1, all of sections 2, 3, 4 and 5. Nelson Shanks, P. Greenland and William Fick were then supervisors of Peck township and Charles Nelson, F. G. Kennedy and R. Yonkee were representing Ackley township.

No changes have been made in the district with the exception of the southeast quarter of section 25 and the northeast quarter of section 36 of Township 32, Range 10. This territory was added to Joint District No. 3, Neva and Peck townships, August 24, 1914.

This territory was originally a part of districts 3 and 4 as created May 8, 1891. When district No. 5, Joint, was organized the territory was taken from District No. 3 of Ackley and District No. 4 of Peck. Michael Kennedy and John Hafner represented the Ackley school and Willard Lloyd and H. W. James represented the Peck school at the negotiations.

Before the district was organized the children attended the Friebel and Longfellow schools.

The first school board in this district consisted of James Shopbell, H. J. Richey and W. J. Diamond, Director, Treasurer and Clerk respectively. James A. Barker, A. L. Hayner and T. Johnson were Clerk, Treasurer and Director in 1921-22.

The first school in this district was an old store building which was used until 1906 when a modern school was erected at a cost of approximately $1,600. In 1906 $375 was set aside as "teacher's yearly salary" for the ensuing year. Early teachers were: Nellie Kevan, Josephine Cook, Agnes Singer and Nannie Maloney. The 1921-22 teacher was Miss Sylvia Chadek.

The land used for school purposes is one acre leased from H. Fosterling.

Early settlers in this district were H. J. Richey, Vohun Yonkee, R. Yonkee, H. Fosterling, Goettlib Walch, William Klaves, W. J. Diamond, James Shopbell, and others.

In this district was once an extensive prairie where a Chippewa Indian settlement was located. This is within the memory of white settlers who established in the township in pioneer days. The Indians hunted and fished nearby. They left proof of their existence by burial mounds, utensils and arrow heads which are frequently found.

Ray Walch and A. L. Hayner, settlers in this district, were selected as members of the original Langlade County Board of Education in 1915.

The district has annual exhibits at the school. They are educational and instructive.

A M. E. church is established in Rosedale.

The Eau Claire river (east branch) runs through the district.

The district is principally an agricultural one. All farmers are progressive, have excellent farm buildings and excellent soil, all of which speaks well for the future.

DISTRICT NO. 6.

ORMSBY DISTRICT. This district comprises a small area of land situated in the north central part of Peck township. The first settlers were Orvis Vaughn, Barney Brennan, Wm. Ormsby and R. C. Brown. Mr. Ormsby, after whom the post office was named, came to this district from Milwaukee. Associated in his work with him was R. C. Brown of Oshkosh. They formed the Northern Woodland Company and in 1900 erected a sawmill on section 16. The mill was used until it burned in 1912. This original company, by reorganization, became the Union Lime Company and then the Ormsby Land & Timber Company. E. P. Hoelt, Ormsby, is the resident manager of the concern. H. R. Swanke of Tigerton, Wis., in his associate.

The first school was erected in 1906 and G. Deirlein was the first teacher. Other early teachers were Martha Petrofsky and Blanche Nelson. The last teacher was Stella Jacobus, school having been discontinued since 1920. The frame school, section 16, was built in 1906.

Present industries at Ormsby are the general store, hotel and blacksmith shop of the Ormsby Land & Timber Company. The first postmaster was Henry C. Eickert, also the first store manager for Mr. Ormsby. E. P. Hoelt was the last postmaster.

The Ormsby Land & Timber Company has four hundred acres of good land under cultivation in this district.

The track from Kempster was laid to Ormsby in 1900.

CHAPTER XLV.

Polar Township No. 31 N., R. 12 E.

Survey of 1857—Area—Drainage—Surface—H. B. Polar, Indian Trader—Territorial Changes of Polar—Early Roads—Officials of Polar, 1881-1923—Schuman—Highland—Franklin—Edison—Lincoln—Clark—First Store in Polar—Industries—Post Office—Sylvan Lake.

Polar township lies immediately east of Antigo in congressional township 31 North of Range 12 East. It is bounded on the north by Price township, on the east by Evergreen township, on the south by Norwood township and the Menominee Indian Reservation and on the west by Antigo township. The township survey was started November 21, 1857, and was completed December 1, 1857. James McBride was the surveyor.

The surface of Polar is undulating and hilly. Deep ravines, valleys, highlands and plateaus, all exist, and are very fertile. Originally the entire area was covered with a growth of heavy forest products, consisting of white pine, hemlock, oak, maple, elm, basswood and a dense undergrowth of small vegetation. All has yielded to the woodman's axe with the exception of some native groves that still stand.

The only occupants of this unimpenetrated forest were the wild animals, and Indians whose trails crossed each other. Today Polar has a splendid net work of highways, and excellently improved farms which produce luxuriant crops of all agricultural products adapted to a temperate climate. Herds of pure bred cattle, fine dairy farms, sheep and hogs, poultry, well constructed silos, modern lighting systems, telephones—all these have taken the place of the timber and brush line.

ONE OF SIX ORIGINAL TOWNSHIPS.

Polar was named after Hi. B. Polar, English prospector, Indian trader and Stopping Place proprietor of the Wolf river country. It was one of the six original Langlade County townships of 1881. When organized it consisted of all that territory embracing the present township of Polar, Price, Ainsworth, a part of Nashville township, Forest county and a part of Wabeno township, Forest county, in the following government civil divisions: Townships 31, 32 and 33 North of Range 12 East and townships 34 of Ranges 12, 13 and 14 East. The first township meeting was held at the log farm home of Moritz Mueller, section 16, township 31, Range 12 East. James Schufelt was elected the first township Chairman. Herman Schmeisser and Chester Starks were the first Supervisors of Polar township.

EARLY ROADS.

The first road application to be acted upon in Polar was a petition of settlers who wanted a township line road built between townships 30 and 31 of Range 12 East. The petition was sent to the Polar town board July 1, 1881. Other early roads were: Commencing at the southwest corner of section 31, Township 31, Range 12 East and running north on the range line to the quarter post of the west side of section 30, Township 32, Range 12 East. Another early road was the one built along the section line of sections 21 and 28 of township 31, Range 12 East. The road running between sections 31 and 32, 30 and 29, 19 and 20 was constructed in the fall of 1881. The application for this road was made August 23, 1881. The Antigo-Polar road was authorized in 1881.

Early highway overseers were: Horace Dudley, Burnam Dudley, Valentine P. Rath, August Hanke, Robert Sprang, William Flemming, Charles Lade, and Wm. Kieper.

TERRITORIAL CHANGES.

Before the organization of Langlade County Polar belonged to Langlade township, Oconto County, a vast wilderness embracing 44 and a third townships, stretching north to the Michigan-Wisconsin boundary. Its original area after the organization of Langlade County was 216 square miles, or six congressional townships. We will now see how it was cut down to its present area.

On December 13, 1883, townships 32, 33, 34 of Ranges 13 and 14 East were detached from Polar and formed into a new township called Price. Polar has since been one congressional township, No. 31, North of Range 12 East.

POLAR TOWN HOUSE.

The Polar township hall is located on Highway No. 64 in the NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of the NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 20. It is a frame building and was erected in 1882.

DISTRICT NO. 1.

SCHUMAN DISTRICT. The Schuman school district is located in the southern part of Polar township. The land was taken up by homesteaders in 1885, 1886, 1887, 1888 and later. Julius Schuman, William Kieper, Charles Rabe, August Kieper, Charles Behm, W. W. Wheeler, and the Pickel family, were among the first settlers.

The first school was located on section 18 in 1887. It was a log structure. This school was used until 1902 when a frame building was erected by William Rusch.

Edward Nordman, Hattie Reader, Mr. Conan and Anna Tibbets, Frank Ringsmith, C. Koenig and Mrs. Rine were early teachers. Carolyn McCarthy was the 1922-23 teacher.

The Franklin and Schuman districts were once one district. The 1921-22 school officials were: Wm. Schuman, Clerk; Ed. Kolpack, Director and Henry Parsons, Treasurer.

Much of the district is yet uninhabited.

DISTRICT NO. 3.

FRANKLIN DISTRICT. This is one of the oldest districts in Langlade County, being settled in 1877 by William Schmul, Jr. He was an immigrant from New London, Waupaca county, and with him came a colony of twenty-eight, all of whom moved elsewhere. Among this first group was Fred Demlow and Fred Rabe, who, in 1878 returned to the Franklin district. These hardy folk were followed by other homesteaders, including William Flemming, Sr., Valentine Weimer, William Malliet, William Schmul, Sr., Herman Schmeisser, Sr., E. P. Bridgeman, Charles Parsons, Sr., Ernest Demlow, James Kennedy, Anton Nonnenmacher, Martin Robrecht, M. D. Besse, Joseph Wilson, J. W. Parsons, August Hintz, Ernest Keiper, Charles Schuman, William Bottrell and August Hintz.

The thrifty pioneers of this district were not long in clearing the wilderness and erecting comfortable homes for their families. Roads were few, however, nothing but crooked, winding trails existing. Early roads were constructed east and west on the section line of sections 30 and 31 and also sections 29 and 32, 28 and 33. Another pioneer road was constructed on the section line between sections 31 and 32 running north and another on the south line of sections 31 and 32 running east and west.

Four years after the first settler came into Franklin district the first school house was erected on land leased from E. P. Bridgeman. It was a quaint structure 16x18 feet and entirely constructed of logs. All the benches, desks and other furniture were home made. Alice Root, a southern Wisconsin lady, was the first teacher. The Polar schools were then under the township system. Elfrieda Pautz was the 1922-23 term teacher.

Increased population made a new school necessary and in 1883 a larger, more pretentious frame school house was erected. This school was operated under the township system until 1885. The district was organized that year with William Schmuhl, Jr., William Malliet and Herman Schmeisser, Sr., as Treasurer, Clerk and Director respectively. Thus they were the first district school officers.

The frame school was condemned in 1915 and the following June, C. F. Dallman, who was awarded the contract, began the construction of the present brick school. It was completed in October, 1916. Appropriate dedicatory services were conducted in which Judge J. W. Parsons, W. E. Switzer, A. M. Arveson, and D. A. Mader participated. This was January 13, 1917.

The 1922-23 school officers were: R. Kieper, Director; H. Parsons, Treasurer, and Martin H. Parsons as Clerk.

A Lutheran church is located on the NW corner of the NW corner of section 33. It was erected in 1885. The following have been the Pastors: Rev. Stubenfal, Rev. Snider, Rev. Michalus, Rev. Dachstine, Rev. Ebert and Rev. C. D. Griese.

The district has rapidly forged to the fore as a dairying and agricultural center with the dying out of the lumber and logging industry. A cheese factory was erected in 1901 by Herman Krueger. It was moved to section 31 in 1907. Krueger sold it in 1912 to J. C. Holmes. In 1913 the factory was re-built. John Haese purchased the plant in 1918.

Robert Krueger operated a store in 1916 in the old Herman Krueger saloon building. In 1918 Herman Krueger took it over. Mr. Krueger also has a saw mill on section 31. He built it in 1913.

The old log house of William Flemming is the last of the early land marks in this district. Many of the pioneer settlers are still living, however.

Franklin district was named after Benjamin Franklin, the eminent American statesman, scientist, publisher and writer.

DISTRICT NO. 4.

POLAR DISTRICT. In the year 1877, Moritz Mueller, an esteemed citizen of Shawano County, Wisconsin, came through eastern Langlade County, passed over the Indian trails in what is now Polar township and staked a homestead claim on section 16, township 31 North, Range 12 East, near a beautiful little lake, since named Mueller's Lake, in memory of his settlement near its shores. A year passed and this pioneer homesteader moved his family into the wilderness. With him came his father-in-law. Mr. Mueller erected a provision camp, which developed into the first store in Polar. A post office was established and Mr. Mueller became the first postmaster.

Following the Mueller's came other pioneer homesteaders. Among them was John Fischer, John W. Parsons and family, Edward Nordman, Julius Yanke, Charles Greenburg, John Hose, Ernest Fischer, Herman Butzland, Fred Simmons, Chris Brandt, Ernest Radditz, Robert Sprang, David Montour, and James and John Drew. There were other early settlers also.

The first manufacturing institution in Polar village was erected in 1888 by the Webster Manufacturing Company of Menasha. It operated successfully under their ownership until 1898, when the T. D. Kellogg Lumber & Manufacturing Company purchased it. It has since been under their ownership and management. Thomas Kellogg, a grandson of T. D. Kellogg, who owned one of the first of Langlade County saw mills, has been Manager and Superintendent of the plant since 1910. The planing mill burned in 1918. It was never rebuilt.

Polar village originally adopted the name "Mueller's Lake." It was known by this name for many years. After 1888 when the Webster Manufacturing Company erected their mills at the village it was re-named Sylvan Lake by Mrs. Weeks, who was then Postmistress. The mill pond was then a large body of water and the name applied directly to it. When the Webster Company sold their interests the name reverted back to Mueller's Lake and was called such until the citizens voted to call it Polar, in honor of Hi. B. Polar, the Indian trader and prospector, after whom Polar township was named.

The first Polar school was a log building erected in 1878. Before this school was held in Moritz Mueller's residence. The first pupils were Herman and Clara Mueller and Ed. S. Brooks was the first teacher.

School was conducted for many years in the log school that once stood on the site of the present Polar school, section 15. Lucy Grignon and Tille Ferguson were teachers in the log school house. Following the log school a frame school was erected. After many years service it was moved from its original site and became a church.

Then a new frame school, one story, was erected. It was used in its original form until a second story was added on account of increased enrollment. The Polar graded school of today is well equipped. 1922-23 teachers in the Polar graded schools are: Elizabeth Kleiber, Mrs. Emil Kramer and Mrs. Ed. Hose.

The oldest building in Polar still stands. It was the residence of Ernest Radditz and was erected in 1881. A Sunday School was organized in Polar in 1880 by W. W. Wheeler and Mr. Masterson. Old frame structures still existing belong to William Bruening, Carl Gruenberg, Robert Hitz and Otto Bruening.

Robert Schmidt is the present postmaster.

Business places in Polar village are: Gus Henselman store and restaurant, the T. D. Kellogg Lumber & Manufacturing mill, T. D. Kellogg Lumber & Manufacturing Company store, R. A. Bloedorn, soft drink parlor, the Polar General Garage, Arnold Hoppe, prop., the Walter Trakel garage, a cheese factory, now operated by Emil Kramer, a blacksmith shop run by Charles Rusch, and a shoemaker shop conducted by Ed. Schultze, and the R. P. Schmidt store.

The Polar Grange hall is located in Polar village.

A Soldiers and Sailors Memorial Park is located at Polar and a full account of this project is found in the military chapter.

The principal highway is No. 64.

DISTRICT NO. 5.

EDISON DISTRICT. This school district contains all of sections 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, and the west half of section 9, in the northwestern part of Polar township. It was first settled by Charles Soman, Sr., who came there in 1878. Joseph Soman, Sr., and Frank Kuehl, Sr., also came in 1878. They took up government homestead lands. Edgar Neff, a pioneer mill owner in Antigo township, took up a homestead in this district in 1879. These men were the first pioneer settlers.

In 1880 a school district was organized and Charles Soman erected a small log school. The only children to attend this school were those of the Edgar Neff family. The school was then under the supervision of township school officers. The district originally was known as District No. 5, but after the Edgar Neff family moved from the community it was attached to District No. 2. In 1889 it was re-organized and a new school was erected. It was a frame school and most of the material was purchased from Davis Brothers of Bryant. Mr. Cunard was the first teacher in the frame school. Nelson K. Joles purchased the frame school for $13 in 1905, after a new one was erected of brick. August Stabe was the contractor. Nellie Larson was the first teacher in the brick school. Other teachers were: Nannie Congleton, Ida Hudson, Charlotte Tobey, Lola Wilson, Agnes Wolter, Anna Weix, May Napier, and Dorothy Borth.

The school officers once planned an eastern and western school in the district but this idea was abandoned just before the brick school was erected. The 1922-23 teacher is Delphos Michaelson.

The 1922-23 school officers were: T. C. Forthman, Director; J. L. Creech, Treasurer, and Mrs. Fred McCarthy, Clerk.

The district was named after Thomas Edison, distinguished inventor and world renown scientist.

DISTRICT NO. 7.

CLARK DISTRICT. The Clark district is located in the northern part of Polar township. The first settler was James Bodo, who came into the district, settled for a short time, and then moved away. He was followed by Mr. Clark, who came into the district from Antigo, where he had prospected previously. The third settler was a Mr. Caudill, who came from Kentucky. He, like those who came before, erected a rough log shanty on section 12. He was dissatisfied, however, and would not live in the country without his family. He then returned to Kentucky, arranged for moving his family, which he did. The first frame building was erected by him. It was a two story house, in which he has since resided.

Other settlers followed and before long Clark district was fairly populated. The railroad came through the district long before the first settlers, but roads were built after an elapse of years. The old Herman trail has since become the main highway.

The first school in the district was a log school erected just across the road from the present school. Mrs. Soman was the first teacher. In 1910 a frame school was constructed. Early teachers were: Cora Hungerford, Miss Censky, Maud Smith, Martha Weix, Alice Doucette, Mrs. Thornsberry, Anna Klitz, and others. The present teacher is Rose Singer.

The first school meeting was held in the old Logan house. The district was organized in 1910. The Logan house was used for one year as a school. Audrey Creech, Florence Caudill and Ora Caudill attended the log school.

Mr. Caudill owned the first automobile in this district.

The 1922-23 school officers were: Maud Jacobs, Clerk; F. M. Jones, Director, and Ben H. Baker, Treasurer.

Early settlers were: James Bodo, the Clark, Mr. Caudill, George Bonner, Mr. Dyer, W. W. Clark and Veclak families.

The pioneers of Clark district were forced to undergo many hardships. However they have developed farms, erected good buildings and have provided proper facilities for the education of their children. This is a striking contrast to that day when James Bodo, the wanderer, first came into this region.

CHAPTER XLVI.

Price township was named in honor of Congressman William T. Price, of Black River Falls, Wisconsin, who served in the 48th and 49th Congresses as a representative of the 8th district, (1885-86). Congressman Price died December 7, 1886. The township dedicated in his memory was surveyed December 2-12, inclusive in the year 1857. Surveyor McBride reported "that the township contains but few swamps and no streams." The north half and eastern part of Price are hilly, rolling and broken regions while the southwest quarter is level. Elm, maple, birch, pine and fir were the principal forest products. Lawrence Lake lies in the northwestern part of section 15. The U. S. survey of Price was conducted by James McBride upon orders from the U. S. Surveyor-General with headquarters at Dubuque, Iowa.

WANTED TOWN OF EAGLE.

November 13, 1883, a petition signed by Sam J. Price, George H. Fehl and others was presented to the county board requesting that all of townships 32, 33, and 34 of Range 12 East and townships 34 of ranges 13 and 14 East, be detached from Polar township and organized into a new town to be known as Eagle township. December 13, 1883, the committee on town organization recommended the creation of a new township out of the divisions proposed. Thus the resolution passed and Price township, containing the enormous area of 115,200 acres, most of which contained a wealth of forest products, came into existence.

The first annual meeting was held at the home of John Rath, section 21, township 32, range 12 east on April 1, 1884. Twenty-nine voters cast their ballot for or against the "mill ticket" or the "homesteaders" at this historic election. These early pioneers of Price were: Charles H. Davis, V. P. Rath, George Miller, Austin Muzzy, Walter Vanderhoof, E. M. Phillips, Nicholas Preston, Thomas Hutchinson, John B. Lavene, Joseph Houle, George H. McGregor, Isreal Kims, John Rath, George H. Fehl, H. P. Polar, Fred Hayssen, B. McKinney, Henry Stadler, Ed. Dalton, James Hartman, John Connelly, John McClaskey, Andrew Hartman, Charles Price, Sam J. Price, J. E. Davis, J. B. Buckstaff, John Hartman and A. A. Hurlbert.

THE ELECTION CONTEST.

George H. Davis, mill owner at Bryant lead the "mill ticket" while the settlers, principally homesteaders rallied around V. P. Rath, who headed the "homesteaders ticket." The remote homesteaders were unable to vote because of the distance from the polls and lack of roads. Oxen and horses were not plentiful and the Indian trail was the best road. Davis received 17 votes to 12 for Mr. Rath and was elected Chairman. A. A. Hurlbert and E. M. Phillips were elected Supervisors; Clark Walrath, Clerk; Fred Hayssen, who later became an Antigo Mayor, Treasurer; Charles Colta, Sam Price and H. B. Polar of the upper Wolf country chosen Justices of the Peace. J. McClaskey was elected Assessor and C. Walrath and R. Brush were chosen Constables.

J. E. David, J. R. Buckstaff and J. McClaskey were the first election inspectors in the town.

The settlers were opposed to licensing retail liquor establishments as was demonstrated by a 20 to 6 vote at the first election.

THE FIRST ACT OF PRICE OFFICIALS.

The first act of Price township officials was to raise $620 for teacher's salaries for the year 1884-85. They also appropriated $1,600 for school purposes at this same session, the first special meeting of Price township, May 24, 1884.

TERRITORIAL DETACHMENTS.

History has produced the fact that not a single Langlade County township originally a vast area has remained long in that status. Price township is no exception to this statement. The five townships did not have much in common with township 32 in which the village of Bryant is situated. The Davis Brothers, with their mill and its influence among the settlers and also the employes, controlled affairs, for many years.

Townships 34 of ranges 13 and 14 East were detached from Price and made a part of Forest County by Chapter 436 of Wisconsin statutes of 1885. This left Price township containing townships 32, 33 and 34 of Range 12 or all of the present area of Price township and Ainsworth township. It remained in that status until 1905, when townships 33 and 34 of Range 12 East were detached and created into Ainsworth township.

SCHOOLS UNDER TOWNSHIP SYSTEM.

Price township originally was under the township school system. As late as 1907 it remained under the township educational system. Then four school districts were created as follows: District No. 1—the

E. $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 15, the SE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 22, the SW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 22, the NW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 22, the S $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 21, all of section 28, all of section 27 and 34, the E. $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 33, the NW $\frac{1}{4}$ of the NW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 33, the E. $\frac{1}{2}$ of the NW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 33 or an area of 3,480 acres. District No. 2—the SW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 33, the SW $\frac{1}{4}$ of the NW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 33, all of sections 29, 30, 31, 32, the S. $\frac{1}{2}$ of the S. $\frac{1}{2}$ of sections 19 and 20 or an area of 3,080 acres. District No. 3—all of sections 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, the W. $\frac{1}{2}$ of sections 3 and 10, all of sections 16, 17, 18, the N. $\frac{1}{2}$ of sections 19 and 20, the north $\frac{1}{2}$ of the south $\frac{1}{2}$ of sections 19 and 20 and the north $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 21 or an area of 7,680 acres. District No. 4—all of sections 1, 2, 11, 12, 13, 14, 23, 24, 25, 35 and 36, the NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 22, the W. $\frac{1}{2}$ of sections 3, 10, 15, or an area of 8,800 acres. The same boundaries applied to the first four road districts of Price township after the last territorial detachments. The districts were in township No. 32.

FIRST SCHOOL OFFICERS.

October 6, 1884, A. A. Hurlbert was elected President of the Price township school board. H. B. Polar and Thomas Hutchinson were chosen Vice-president and Secretary respectively. Thomas Hutchinson, E. B. Knapp (who resigned and was succeeded by Clark Walrath), A. A. Hurlbert and H. B. Polar was chosen clerks of the four districts.

JOINT DISTRICT NO. 1.

KENT—(Cont.) DISTRICT. Kent, one of the oldest communities in Langlade County, was once a thriving mill village in the heart of a great tract of timber. It boasted a well stocked general store, a modern saw and planing mill, a post office and hotel, and a number of progressive inhabitants. That Kent has changed as time passed. With the passing of the lumber industry in its vicinity went the saw mill, the planing mill and the employes, together with the allied industries connected with such institutions. Since then the general store and post office have been retained.

The first saw mill was erected at Kent by Henry Sherry of Neenah, Wis., who came to the wilderness in Section 24, Township 32, Range 12 East. He operated on an extensive scale cutting pine until he sold his mill and the hardwood holdings to the Antigo Manufacturing Company. They ran the saw mill, boarding house, kept the post office and general store for many years until their entire possessions were dismantled.

When the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western railroad laid their track to Kent they called the village Drexell, in honor of a Mr. Drexell, an official of the concern. It still holds that name in so far as railroad maps are concerned.

The land for the first school, a quaint structure, was donated by Henry Sherry, first mill owner. This first school was in the village near the general store owned by Henry Sherry. It was a one-room log building. Its location was section 24. A frame school was later erected on the same section. This was used for many years until 1918 when a joint district was organized with sections in Langlade township. A modern brick school, the pride of the district, was erected then.

The first school records were burned in the fire which destroyed the Adolph Heggs residence and much of the early data cannot be secured. John Tye, J. W. Smith and Richard Miller were the officers of the district when the frame school was erected. A. Brandt of Polar built the frame school. The land was purchased from Abe Gum.

The 1921-22 school officials were: Thomas Ward, Clerk; Sam Wagner, Director and Ed. Cunningham, Treasurer. The teacher in 1921-22 was Hattie Verch.

Postmasters have been: Mr. Snow, Peter O'Connor, Marvin St. Claire and J. W. Smith, present postmaster. Mr. Smith has served since May 2, 1903. The post office was located southwest of its present location, SE $\frac{1}{4}$ of NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 24 at one time.

While there are still good tracks of standing timber in this district lumbering has long ceased to be the important occupation. Agriculture has taken its place. Kent has become famous because it is the home of J. W. Smith, producer of the famous Smith strain of Triumph potatoes, pronounced the best in the United States. He plants but six acres and receives orders from every section of the country.

There are 28 families in the district. It was once known as Rural District No. 4, previous to formation of the joint district.

The district consists of sections 1, 2, 11, 13, 12, 14, 23, 24, 25, 26, 36 and the E $\frac{1}{2}$ of 3, 10, 15, NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 22 in Price township and sections 7, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33 and 34 in Langlade township, (Township 32, Range 13 East.)

Nels Uttemark of Seymour once operated a saw mill on section 24 in Price township. He employed a number of men. The mill was dismantled and Uttemark moved to a place near Appleton, Wis., where he was injured in an accident resulting in him becoming blind.

DISTRICT NO. 1.

MALCOLM DISTRICT. This district is situated in the south central part of Price township. It was settled in 1880 and years following by Thomas Hutchinson, Malcolm Hutchinson, Henry Stadler, John McClaskey, Andrew Hartman and Gustav Hartman, all of whom have taken an active part in the progress of the township.

After the pioneer settlers arrived and erected their cabin homes a school was erected in 1883 on the site of the present substantial brick school. The first building was a frame structure erected at an approximate cost of $300.00 by Ed. Dalton. Thomas Hutchinson was clerk of the district then. He was responsible to the Price Board of Education (township system). Francis Churchouse was the first teacher. Other early teachers were Agnes Donohue, Minnie Moss and Annie Kelly. The first pupils to attend school were: Genie and Malcolm Hutchinson, William Dalton, Jessie Dalton, Earl Dalton, Grace McClaskey and Gustav, George and Annie Hartman.

The frame school was used until 1909 when August Stabe, Antigo contractor, erected the splendid school now used in the district. Its cost was approximately $2,100.00. Charles L. McArthey was Clerk, Malcolm Hutchinson was Treasurer and Wm. Daugherty was Director when the school was erected. The 1922-23 officials were: B. S. Powell, Clerk; Herman Bryant, Director, and Gustav Hartman, Treasurer. Miss Anna Kennedy was the 1922-23 teacher. Average annual school enrollment is 40.

The principal occupation of the settlers, of which there are thirty, progressive and active, is agriculture. Lumbering and other forest industries was the chief occupation of the pioneers.

southwestern part of Price township. It was surveyed by George A. Young in 1883 and the recorded plat was filed on December 18, 1883. The original village embraced the southwest $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 32. Five years later, in June, 1888, S. S. Bryant made an addition to the village. The eighty acre addition was surveyed by B. F. Dorr, pioneer county surveyor. The streets of Bryant are Vinson, Washington, David, and Bent.

The Milwaukee Lake Shore & Western constructed their railroad into Bryant in the fall of 1884 and this same year, James E. Davis and Charles Davis erected a saw mill in the village. The Davis Brothers operated until about 1890, when they moved from Bryant. During their lumber operations Bryant was at its high tide.

Fred Hayssen came to Bryant from Calumet County, Wisconsin and in 1883 erected the first store. He

THE BRYANT GRADED SCHOOL

This school is a marked contrast to the first Bryant school built in 1885 at a time when the village was just being opened up to new settlers. The present Bryant school is a state graded institution.

This district was organized in May, 1907. It consists of sections 27, 34 and 35, the east half of section 33, the east $\frac{1}{2}$ of the west $\frac{1}{2}$ of section 33, the east half of section 28, the SE $\frac{1}{4}$ of the NW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 28, the east $\frac{1}{2}$ of the SW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 28, the west $\frac{1}{2}$ of sections 22, 15, 10 and 3. The latter part of the district represents a strip of land two square miles running north and south, through the central part of Price township.

DISTRICT NO. 2.

BRYANT DISTRICT. The village of Bryant was named in honor of S. S. Bryant of Milwaukee, who once owned extensive tracts of timber in Price and other Langlade County townships. Bryant is situated in the was also the first postmaster. Other postmasters were: Sim Ball, T. M. Dobbs and Mr. Williams. Endre Norem, present postmaster has served in that official capacity for a quarter of a century.

Other store proprietors in Bryant in the past were: Williams & Brown, A. H. Merton, now of Antigo, and Thomas M. Dobbs. Present mercantile establishments are those of the Endre Norem Company and the E. M. Jecki store. Bryant has a garage, owned and managed by Emil Person. Dr. J. H. Baker is Bryant's present Physician. He is a former resident of the state of Kentucky.

Bryant is on the main highway between Antigo and Lily. The famous Antigo flats ends just north of Bryant, but a short distance.

Bryant's first depot was erected in 1884. The village is now on the Wolf River branch of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad.

Bryant has an excellent brick graded school. The first school was erected in the village in 1885. The 1922-23 school officials were: George Burmeister, Clerk; Leo Byrnes, Director and C. J. McClelland, Treasurer. The 1922-23 teachers were: Bessie Augustyn and Annie Schultz.

J. B. Loomis, one time town clerk of Price and an active leader in township affairs was Bryant's first and only lawyer. He was in the village from 1883 to 1889. Attorney Loomis was a member of the Langlade County bar.

THE WEST PRICE GRANGE.

West Price Grange No. 595 was organized at Bryant, October 17, 1912. First officers were: Master—Frank Furry; Overseer—Ed. Buboltz; Steward—Dewey Hartman; Assistant Steward—Arthur Paul; Secretary—J. W. Standiford; Treasurer—Henry Buboltz; Chaplain—Mrs. Malcolm Hutchinson; Lecturer—I. Hall—Ceres—Mrs. John Hartman; Pomona—Jewel Porter; Flora—Mrs. Peterson; Gatekeeper—Herman Carlson.

Present officers: Master—Matt Norem; Overseer—Leo Byrnes; Steward—Walter Diercks; Assistant Steward—William Bryant; Lady Assistant Steward—Mrs. L. E. Carlson; Treasurer—John Lamb; Chaplain—Mrs. Wm. Bryant; Lecturer—Anna Pearson; Ceres—Mrs. Leo Byrnes; Pomona—Mrs. George Hurlbert, Flora—Margaret Reif; Gatekeeper—George Carlson.

The West Price Grange has a membership of 101, probably the highest membership of any of the Langlade County granges. Meetings are held every second and fourth Thursday. Complete ownership of a hall is contemplated. (Now the grange has a half interest in the town hall).

BENT CEMETERY—TOWN HALL.

Bent Cemetery was recorded May 11, 1900. It is situated in the NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 32. Malcolm Hutchinson surveyed the plat. It received its name after Mr. Bent, a land owner, who gave the cemetery site to the township. A survey was made in May, 1899 also.

The Town Hall is located in the village of Bryant.

DISTRICT NO. 3.

PRICE (GREEN VALLEY) DISTRICT. The passage of the National Homestead Act did much to open the wilderness of Wisconsin to soldiers of the Civil War, prospectors and others seeking public lands on which to build homes. This district was settled by homesteaders the first of whom was Sam Price, who came from Waupaca County in 1879 and settled on 160 acres in section 19. His homestead was once staked by J. Cherf, who never proved his claim, he leaving shortly after staking. Following Sam Price came John and Valentine P. Rath, youthful and energetic, immigrants from the city of Sheboygan. John Rath settled on section 21 in the fall of 1880. V. P. Rath stayed with him during the time their rude log cabin was being erected. After that V. P. Rath settled on section 7. (He was not old enough to settle on a homestead at the time his brother did).

Charles Price, a son of Sam Price, came into the district from Waupaca County in 1881 and settled on section 17. A. A. Hurlbert came at the same time, he also taking up a homestead on section 17. Others who settled on section 17 in compliance with Homestead Laws were: George H. Fehl, Civil War veteran, who lost an arm fighting for the Union, and James Hartman. Mr. Fehl came from Dayton, Ohio and Mr. Hartman from Rhine township, Sheboygan. Walter Vanderhoof and Elijah Vanderhoof settled on section 7 shortly after.

In 1884 the first log school was erected on section 17. It was a crude log affair. Only the A. A. Hurlbert and Charles Price families had children of school age then. Early teachers were: Addie Hill and Sybil Cornish. The log school was used but a short time. The first frame school was erected on section 19. In 1911 a brick school took the place of the frame structure, which was moved across the highway on to section 20 and has since been used as a M. E. Church. Henry Buboltz operates a saw mill on section 19. The only other saw mill was once operated by Wm. Carlson on section 21.

The 1922-23 school officials were: Earl Shanks, Director; Charles M. Porter, Treasurer and J. M. Standiford, Clerk. The 1922-23 teacher was Mayme Jackinstahl.

There are about 16 farms in the district. The region is hilly and rolling.

August Carlson, J. W. Standiford, Henry Buboltz, John Seamon and John Hartman have lived many years within the district, coming in after the first pioneers.

CHAPTER XLVII.

Rolling Township No. 30 N., R. 11 E.

Boundaries—Soil—Lakes—Pioneer Settlers—Organization—Industries—School Districts—Property Value of 1881—Milltown—Township Officers, 1881-1923—Hillside—Strassburg — Sunnyside — Rolling Grange No. 635—B. F. Hall-Pioneer Cemetery—Fernwood—Elmhurst—Pine Grove.

Rolling township comprises the entire congressional township 30, North, of Range 11 East, and was the first Langlade County civil division to be surveyed by the federal government. William T. Bradley commenced the survey on October 13, 1853 and completed it on October 24, 1853. Rolling receives its name from the general topography of its surface. It lies in the extreme southern part of Langlade County, is bounded on the north by Antigo and Ackley townships, on the south by Aniwa township, Shawano County, on the east by Norwood township, and on the west by Harrison township in Marathon County. There is a great difference in the physical features of Rolling township as compared with Neva or Antigo townships. Springbrook runs through sections 4, 5, 8, 17 and 18, a small rivulet runs through sections 30 and 31, another runs through sections 22, 25, 26, 27 and 35. In the eastern part of the township are two streams of little importance, running through sections 13, and 24 in one instance and sections 25 and 36 in the other.

Rolling township soil varies from level to very gently undulating. It has a gentle slope excepting the south central sections which are quite hilly. Three distinct types of soil are found in Rolling. The Merri-mac silt loam, extending on an average to 12 inches in depth, is found in sections 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, and parts of sections 1, 2, and 9. Gloucester silt loam, an extensive soil, is found running in a northeast and southwest course. Small tracts are also found in sections 22, 23, 24 and 35. Gloucester sandy loam is found in sections 1, 12, 9, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18 and the greater part of the southeastern part of the township.

Peat can be found southeast of Elmhurst in section 27 with a small strip through sections 26 and 35.

The leading variety of timber in the township was white pine, Norway pine, maple, oak, basswood and elm. White and Norway pine has long ago been cut, as this township in the last quarter of the 19th century was essentially a lumbering district. Hardwood still stands in tracks on various sections of cut-over land.

ORGANIZATION—FIRST OFFICERS.

Rolling is one of the original townships of Langlade County. It sent its first Chairman, James Quinn, to the first session of the Langlade County Board in 1881. It was detached from Shawano County in 1881 and attached to Langlade County. The reader must bear in mind that this township was not included within the territory of the original New County. Before 1881, Rolling was a part of Milltown township. A settlement was made between the towns in April, 1881.

James Quinn, Luther Montgomery, and Henry Peters were the first township Supervisors elected in April, 1881. Louis Zahn was elected the first Town Clerk. Arthur Montgomery, first Town Treasurer, George W. Connor, first Assessor; Isaac Noble, A. Wenz and A. Winnege, first Justices and Charles Peters and Phillip Maloney, first Constables.

FIRST ELECTION.

The first Inspectors of Election and Clerks were: Charles F. Schroeder, Phillip Schweitzer and Ph. Bray, Inspectors and Louis Zahn and August Winnege, Clerks. The election was held at the school house of District No. 8, (now District No. 3).

PROPERTY VALUATION IN 1881.

The following is a statement showing the assessed valuation of all property in the township August 15, 1881: 15 horses, aggregate value, \$850.00; 51 neat cattle, \$816.00; 15 swine, \$31.00; 19 wagons and sleighs, \$187.00; 5 watches, \$24.00; 2 Melodians—\$110.00; 197 $\frac{3}{4}$ acres of improved lands and homes, \$375.00; Total—\$2,393.00. 15,418 acres of land, aggregative value—\$43,178.04; Total valuation—\$45,571.04.

ROLLING TOWNSHIP VALUATION IN 1879.

Louis Zahn, first town clerk, certified "that it appears by the books, files and records" that the valuation of "taxable property" in the town of Rolling is: 1879—$18,400.00; 1880—$19,002.00; 1881—$45,571.04. Aggregate assessed valuation—$21,704.00.

TOWN OF MILLTOWN.

Before 1881, Rolling and Norwood townships were territory comprising Milltown township, Shawano County. The territory was detached from Shawano County and attached to Langlade County on February 19, 1881. It became Norwood and Rolling townships, Langlade County. A settlement was made between the two townships April 15, 1881. John Jansen, Anton Sensenbrenner and Henry Heim represented Norwood and James Quinn, T. H. Peters and Luther Montgomery acted for Rolling at the meeting.

TOWN HALL QUESTION.

Rolling township has never erected a town hall. The Board of Review and all public assemblages are usually held at the office of the Township Clerk or otherwise at some previously designated place. The question has been voted upon but defeated. An agreement with the M. W. A. organization at Elmhurst was made whereby the township used the M. W. A. Hall until it was destroyed by wind in 1919.

Rolling township was divided into four districts March 28, 1882, as follows: District No. 1—Sections 1, 2, 3, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15. District No. 2—Sections 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 34, 35, 36. District No. 3—Sections 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 16, 17, 18. District No. 4—Sections 19, 20, 21, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, and 33.

The first road petition submitted to the Rolling Township Supervisors was read May 2, 1881. It was signed by T. A. Gillett and others.

The first list of jurors of Rolling township were selected from the original polling list as follows: Henry Peters, Louis Zahn, George W. Hall, Charles Schroeder, Luther Montgomery, James Quinn, Philipp Bray, Phillip Schweitzer, Almon Mosher, T. A. Gillett, Solon Hall and William Peters.

The first Overseers of Highways in Rolling township were: Almon Mosher, William Peters and Christian Hanson, who had charge of Districts No. 1, 2, and 3, respectively. Appointments were made April (first Tuesday), 1881.

Bernard Wright, Christian Hanson, John Sullivan, Andrew Nelson, H. Hale, L. W. Wright, Peter Anderson, John Linsdau, Gideon Frills, Dan Butler, L. L. Ferguson, Ole Olson, and T. Graves, were all residents of Rolling township before the end of 1883.

Dr. J. H. Dawley, Antigo Physician, was selected as the first health officer of Rolling township, May 12, 1883.

DISTRICT NO. 1.

HILLSIDE DISTRICT. District No. 1, Rolling township is situated in the northeastern part of the township. It consists of sections Nos. 1, 2, 11, 12, 13 and 14 and contains 3,840 acres.

District No. 1 originally was known as District No. 6 of the town of Milltown, Shawano County (before attached to Langlade). Its boundaries have never been materially changed, since it was created April 17, 1880. April 24, 1880, at a meeting at the Carl Schroeder home, section 14, Isaac Noble, Carl Schroeder and Phillip Bray were chosen first Director, Treasurer and Clerk respectively.

The first school a log cabin was built on the NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 13. John Lenzner gave one acre of land to the district for school purposes. April 23, 1881, the district number was changed to District No. 1. The first term of school was for three months in winter, an intermission, and then a summer session lasting three months. The first teachers received an average of \$25.00 per month as compared with a salary of \$75.00 to \$90.00 now. The second school was authorized June 15, 1896. Herman Laehn was awarded the contract at \$525.00. Before the erection of the first log school, Mrs. Phillip Bray, the first teacher, taught the children the rudiments of an elementary education at her log home, section 12. The present school is on the SW $\frac{1}{4}$ of the NW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 12.

Other early teachers were: Jennie O'Hearn, Lizzie O'Hearn, Amy Furgeson, Maggie Canty, H. Dunn, E. Nolan, E. J. Couch, F. R. Churchouse, G. W. Bliss, F. L. Burdick, A. J. Burbank, Miss L. Rynders, Clara Taylor, H. C. Logan. Miss Christina Folk was the teacher in 1922-23.

The first pupils to attend public school in the district were: Frank, William, Gustav, Robert and Herman Schroeder, Ida Schroeder, Jos. Guentner, Jr., Adam Guentner, Lawrence Guentner, Rose Lenzner, Perry, Millie, Libbie, Elsie and Claude Gillett.

Pioneer settlers immigrated into this district as early as 1878. Among them were: Isaac Noble, Carl Schroeder, Phillip Bray, Louis Zahn, T. A. Gillett, Jos. Guentner, Sr., John Lenzner and John Linsdau.

The district is a splendid agricultural district, which has emerged from a wilderness of almost fifty years ago to a prosperous section of Langlade County. By frugality, diligence and hard labors the settlers have developed some of the splendid farms of which the county has privilege to boast.

The school officials of 1922-23 were: Frank Schroeder, Clerk; Robert Schroeder, Treasurer and Harry Lyons, Director.

Trunk Line No. 32 is located in the district.

Many of the early settlers and now the new generation of the district play an important part in Rolling township affairs.

Since its organization there have been no churches, cemeteries, saw mills or cheese factories within the district boundaries. This is recorded for future reference.

DISTRICT NO. 2.

STRASSBURG DISTRICT. This district is located in the southeastern part of Rolling township. Its territory comprises all the civil sections of the townships 23, 24, 25, 26 and 36 and the east half of sections 22 and 35 and the SW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 22. Its area is 4,000 acres. The district was named by the settlers in honor of Strassburg, ancient capital of Alsace-Lorraine.

One year before the settlement was made between the duly accredited representatives of Norwood and Rolling townships an important meeting was held by the first homesteaders and pioneers for the purpose of solving the educational vicissitudes confronting them. Their children were growing, new settlers were arriving, and the hardy folk recognizing the value of temples of learning because of their own deficiencies, petitioned for a new school area. The request was granted by the Supervisors of Milltown Township (Shawano County) and District No. 7 was created. It originally consisted of sections 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 34, 35 and 36 or 5,760 acres. By a resolution adopted April 23, 1881, the number of the district was changed to District No. 2, (first action of the Board of Supervisors of Rolling, 1881). The district was organized April 17, 1880.

The first sessions were held at the residence of Henry Peters, one of the first Supervisors of Rolling township. This property is now owned by Albert Pagel, who runs a store. The first school, log construction, was erected on this site and after a number of years service burned. The first school officers were: Henry Peters, Clerk; Charles Peters, Treasurer and August Winnege, Director. The 1922-23 school officers were: Charles Vorass, Clerk; Julius Winnege, Treasurer and Anton Peters, Director.

Henry Peters, August Winnege and Terrence McCann were the building committee members who had charge of the first school, which was 18x24 and 12 feet high. Philip Schweitzer erected it at a cost of $140.

The present school was erected in 1893 by B. Garrity.

August 1, 1881, the valuation of assessment for District No. 2 was as follows: Real Estate—$8,320; Personal Property—$396.56; Total—$8,716.56. September 26, 1881, the amount of taxes voted to be raised within District No. 2 was two hundred dollars which was assessed upon the taxable property therein.

March 2, 1882, the amount of school money apportioned to this district was $16.90.

Early settlers in this district were: Charles Volkman, August Winnege, Ph. Sweitzer, Anton Sensenbrenner, William Peters, Charles Peters, Henry Peters, Charles Vorass, Sr., Charles Vorass, Jr., T. McCann, J. G. Bauendiend, T. Barnes, G. Klopstein, C. Doine, George Vanderhei, Louis Jordan, F. Leubcke, Sr., F. Jordan, John Martin, G. Trunz, James Weaver, Anton Weber and others.

Wella Peters, now Mrs. Henry Keen, and Ida Schroeder, now Mrs. Charles Vorass, Jr., were first and second white children born in this section of Rolling township.

Miss Lucy Grignon was the first teacher. She was followed by Minnie Moss, Minnie E. Jones, Effie Derby, Ella Rynders, Matilda Ferguson, Ellen McConnell, C. C. Williams, Della Nye, Clara Taylor, Matie Trettien, all of whom were pioneer school teachers. Miss Elizabeth Folk taught in 1922-23.

The principal pioneer industry was the saw mill erected in 1883 by Henry Peters on the NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of the NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 24. He sold the property to the Mattoon Lumber Company, who after operating successfully sold to John Dailey. Mr. Dailey suffered a loss by fire. He re-built the mill only to have it burn again. A store was operated in connection with the mill. John Dailey later became Mayor of Antigo and an account of his administration is found in Chapter XXV.

A community grew miraculously while the saw mill operated. Thus a post office was opened. Henry Peters and Anton Sensenbrenner were the postmasters.

Present industries are the cheese factory purchased January 28, 1916 by D. Korth from the farmers cooperative unit in the district and the John Pagel store.

There are thirty progressive and industrious farmers residents in this district. It is in rural free delivery division number three. The Rolling Mutual Telephone service connects the settlers with Antigo, county seat or with other centers. Still a young district, its future is full of promise.

DISTRICT NO. 3.

SUNNYSIDE DISTRICT. The first resolution of the township Board of Supervisors, April 23, 1881, was to change the number of the different district schools in the township. District No. 7 then became District No. 3, of which mention is now made. While the district was set off as such in 1881, it was not until 1885 that a school house was erected on a clearing donated by Charles Herman, who was the first County Sheriff. The school, of log construction, was one room and was situated in the northwest corner of the district. Miss Hattie B. Vasburgh was the first teacher.

District No. 3 has the distinction of possessing fine agricultural lands. As fast as the white pine forests were cut settlers took up the cut-over land.

The first settlers arrived in this region in 1878, three years before the coming of the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western. James Quinn, the Vetelle family, George Hall, Solon Hall, George Connor, Charles Herman, Roy Ferguson, August Duchrow, John Monroe, Mr. Thompson, who was a trapper and fox hunter, Charles Blamberg, William Gropp, James E. Monroe, Walter Bryant, Albert Smith, Rudolph King, George Schraml, Hiram Tenant, R. H. Buck, all were pioneer settlers. Later settlers, who may rightfully be classed as pioneers, were: Frank Kozarek, Albert Stone, Martin Marchiniak, Martin Murasky, Andrew Jahnkowsky, Anton Antoniewicz, Steven Noskowiak, Fred Becker, George Grall, Sam P. Nelson, Otto Hanke and Steven Scott.

It was not uncommon for the early pioneer to cart supplies and foodstuffs from Wausau or points farther away. The old corduroy roads, the marshes and rough oxen carts made the journey weary and tedious.

Mention has been made of the first log school, which was replaced by the present splendid frame structure located on the NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of the NW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 10. It was erected in 1888. An addition to accommodate its growing needs, was erected in 1908. Early District No. 3 teachers were: Hattie B. Vosburgh, Laura Thomas, Addie E. Hill, Mary Bertherlson, Henry F. Herman, John Schaen, Effie Gray, Anna Gropp, A. M. Arveson. Mrs. Irma Larzelere was the teacher in 1921-22. The first school board consisted of Charles Herman, George Connor and George Hall. The 1921-22 school board consisted of Martin Kozarek, J. E. Monroe and Walter Bryant.

There has been no recent territorial changes in District No. 3, which consists of sections 3, 4, 9, 10, 15 and 16.

In the early days the settlers, after a busy day clearing land, sawing logs or working in the "pineries" would gather at the Solon Hall place where dancing and merriment were featured. This lightened the weary labors of the homesteader and others.

Principal colonists and original land owners were: Upham & Russell of Shawano and F. A. Deleglise. Land sold for from $7 to $10 per acre in 1885.

Pioneer loggers in the district were: A. Weed, Charles Gowan, and J. O'Brien.

Present industries are: One saloon, owned by Louis Kruk and one cheese factory owned and operated by Umland Bros. of Birnamwood, who have been located on section 3.¹ Early factories were conducted by A. A. Miller and the Star Creamery, a co-operative company.

Highway No. 39 runs through the district. The Chicago & Northwestern Railroad main line runs through section 3, 9 and 16. The area of the district is 216 square miles or 3,840 acres.

DISTRICT SCHOOL TAX.

August 27, 1881, $650 was voted as the amount requested to be assessed in district No. 3. Persons liable for that taxation were James Quinn, Charles Herman, C. W. Connor, G. W. Hall, Moses Vitelle and L. M. Ferguson. In 1881 the valuation of assessment for district No. 3 was: Real estate, $11,833.08; personal property, $922.06; total, $12,755.14.

B. F. HALL-PIONEER CEMETERY.

The B. F. Hall-Pioneer cemetery, named after an early settler, is located east of the E. A. Sage farmhouse on the northwest quarter of the northeast quarter of section 15. This cemetery was surveyed by Joseph Duchac by authority of B. F. Hall in accordance with Chapter CI of the revised Wisconsin statutes of 1878.

ROLLING GRANGE NO. 635.

DISTRICT NO. 4.

FERNWOOD DISTRICT. In the northwestern part of Rolling township lies an area of land 3,840 acres in extent, consisting of sections 5, 6, 7, 8, 17 and 18. This area is commonly termed Fernwood by reason of a name designated by the school pupils residing in the district.

District No. 4 was one of the original Langlade County school districts. It was organized in 1880 and while the records of the first school officers are lost we have positive proof of the year of organization. It was known as district No. 9, Milltown Township, Shawano County, before Rolling township was created and attached to Langlade County.

The first settlers to arrive in this section came in 1878 and 1879. They were John McDonald, Luther and Charles Montgomery, John Rice, Theodore Luderman, John Hartl, Joseph Wild, Sr., Matt Fleischmann, Englebert Steber, John Olson, Chris Hanson, George Wenz, Charles Steckl, Joseph Modl, Julius Heschke, Wolfgang Babler, Joseph Babler, John Bitl and Wencel Zollpriester and others.

The first school was a log house erected on section 6. For four years it was used until another more pretentious structure of logs was erected on section 7. This was the knowledge center of the district until 1894 when a brick building was erected by Joseph Wild and Theodore Luderman. It cost $3,000. It was then and is yet one of the best of Langlade County schools. Mrs. F. A. Deleglise was the first teacher in the district. Miss Mabel Schultz taught the school in 1921-22. George Wenz and Theodore Luderman were Clerk and Treasurer of the district when first organized. The 1921-22 school officials were Matt

Wachal, Jr., Clerk; Joseph Frisch, Director; Anton Hallada, Treasurer.

Present industries are: Springbrook Cheese Factory, purchased by John Ehman from Emil Bartz in May, 1922. It originally was a creamery owned by the farmers in the district, who sold to John Hruska. Others who owned it were Chris Wavrunek and J. Reislager (jointly), Fred Buss, George Nore, James Pavunka, Emil Bartz. The Joseph Stearn saloon was erected by John Hruska, was later operated by Chris Wavrunek, before Mr. Stearn secured it. Both industries are located on section 5.

There are forty farmers, fully alert to the possibilities of District No. 4 as an agricultural and dairying center, living in the district. Splendid roads, rural free delivery service, The Fernwood Telephone Company, organized by Matt Wachal, Jr., and an air of progressiveness and optimism all tend to make the district a blue ribbon winner.

In 1881 the valuation of assessment in district No. 4 was as follows: Real estate, $18,986.50; personal property, $518.00; total, $19,504.50.

DISTRICT NO. 5.

ELMHURST DISTRICT. Before the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western Railroad pushed their main track north into the territory of Langlade County, a hardy optimistic prospector came into the wilderness of southern Langlade County and settled at what later became the thriving village of Elmhurst. This man, Frederick Spoehr, came from Shiocton, Waupaca County. He planned to locate at Antigo, but in his own words, "I decided not to because of the swampy land and marshes," and in 1880 came to section 21, township 30, range 11 east. Mr. Spoehr was preceded by W. J. Empey.

Many settlers followed. The pioneers of this district were W. J. Empey, Frederick Spoehr, Dan Butler, J. Wunderlich and sons, Mrs. Schraml, M. W. Brown, E. Ploeger, Sim Ball, James Pentony, Adam Schmoll, E. Schuster, Walter Strong, Joseph Haas and others.

As new settlers homesteaded or purchased land from land agencies or the Northwestern railroad (which, while not operating in the county then, owned large tracts of railroad land grants within it) the education of the young became a paramount necessity. Therefore a school was erected on the site of the present modern structure in the village of Elmhurst. The first school served until December 19, 1919, when it was destroyed by fire. The new school was erected at a cost of $13,000. The officers of the district in 1922-23 were H. A. Carley, Clerk; G. H. Wunderlich, Treasurer and Frank Prosser, Director. The district was organized following a petition presented by W. J. Empey and others on March 28, 1882. This territory in the township previously belonged to another district.

June 26, 1882, the town board appointed Daniel Buttler of Elmhurst to notify the electors of the newly created District No. 5 to meet at the home of James J. Haas for the first school meeting, July 18, 1882. This district was officially organized April 18, 1882, and consisted of sections 20, 21, 28, 33, 32, 29, 30, 31, 19, or the southwest quarter of the township. July 10, 1889, the boundaries of both districts No. 2 and No. 5 were changed. The northwest quarter of section 22 was placed in District No. 5.

The district experienced various changes from then until now it consists of all of sections 19, 20, 21, 30, the west half of section 29, the northeast quarter of section 29 and the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter of section 29, the northwest quarter of section 28 and the northwest quarter of the northeast quarter of section 28 and the northwest quarter of section 22.

Pioneer industries in this district were many. The J. S. Wunderlich & Sons industries were launched in 1881. J. S. Wunderlich and sons moved to Elmhurst from Stevensville, Outagamie County, Wisconsin, in August, 1881. They operated a saw and shingle mill for many years. George H. Wunderlich now owns considerable property in Elmhurst. He is proprietor of a sawmill, the large Bear Lake farm and a general store. His home is in Antigo, Wis. M. Brown and W. Saxon of Appleton conducted a mill in Elmhurst in 1884.

Sims & Jones, of Tuston and Appleton, Wisconsin, respectively, erected a barrel head and cheese box factory in the district in 1888. They sold out in 1894 to the Menasha Woodenware Company, which in turn sold to J. Clark of Pine River, Wisconsin, and Niels Nelson of Oshkosh. Sorenson Brothers of Tuston, Wisconsin, were then financially interested in the project. The latter owners sold to E. F. Nelson and Frank Deveau. The industry was discontinued in 1908.

The Frost Veneer Seating Company located in Langlade County first in Elmhurst in 1886. They moved to Elcho in 1887-88. Jaeger Brothers of Berlin, Wis., had a stave mill on the same site for three years later.

Frederick Spoehr conducted a small hotel and store from 1881 until 1888, when it was taken over by H. A. Carley. Other early hotel keepers were Thomas Irwin, who started in 1889, Wunderlich Brothers, P. Near, Frank Busch, Fred Kalkofen and E. Ploeger. Joseph Haas, Jake Fischer and Charles Abet were the three early saloon keepers.

Present industries in this district are H. A. Carley and George H. Wunderlich stores, two soft drink stands run by August Meisenhelder and C. F. Jessie, two boarding houses, a C. & N. W. depot, and a post office. The postmasters have been Frederick Spoehr, Hesh Tyler, George H. Wunderlich, John Zellmer, B. F. Vander Bogart, and Sim Ploeger, present incumbent.

The Modern Woodmen of America have a camp at Elmhurst. The Good Templars and F. R. A. lodges were once active in the village. Elmhurst at one time reached the high mark of 460 inhabitants and was for a short time a rival to Antigo.¹

cated in the village. It was erected in 1891. Antigo and Birnamwood pastors serve the congregation. The Elmhurst cemetery is located on section 28.

Elmhurst received its name because of the great elm forests that impressed the first settlers.

The 1922-23 teachers were Erna Below, principal, and Maude Smith, assistant principal.

DISTRICT NO. 6.

PINE GROVE DISTRICT. Within the memory of settlers still living the south central part of Rolling Township was a dense unbroken forest penetrated only by the zig-zag trails of the Indian. Its very surface pictured the weary trials and struggles of a "squatter," homesteader or land purchaser. Yet resolute men of faith and courage braved the vicissitudes of the forest and settled in this region in 1880. Early settlers were Jacque Raess, Fred Kalkofen, Frank Hanus, Louis Ramer, and Jacques Eric. The only permanent old pioneer still within the district is Fred Kalkofen.

Rolling township was originally four school districts. Then the fifth district followed and another change took place October 29, 1883, when District No. 6 was organized. It consisted of sections 27, 32, 33 and 34 and the south half of section 28. The district now consists of sections 27, 31, 32, 33, 34, the south half of section 28, the east half of the northeast quarter of section 28 and the southwest quarter of the northeast quarter of section 28, the south half of the southeast quarter of section 29 and the northeast quarter of the southeast quarter of section 29, the west half of section 35. The area contains 4,080 acres.

The district is drained by small rivulets and streams flowing through sections 27, 35, 31, 32, 33. The main line of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad runs through section 32 and a part of section 29.

The soil in the district is varied. Merrimac silt loam, sandy loam, Gloucester fine sandy loam and peat are found.

The only industry in the district, with the exception of agriculture, was a sawmill erected in 1883 on the southwest quarter of section 27 by Jacques Eric, who came to this county from Winnebago County, where he then owned a farm.

The Eric sawmill brought in an influx of settlers and was responsible to a great extent for the arrival of early settlers. A terrible accident occurred in 1884 and was the direct reason for abandonment of the industry. Mr. Eric made a trip each day to Elmhurst, nearest trading settlement, to secure mail and provisions for the settlers and employes at the sawmill. He failed to return one day and upon investigation it was found that his horses had run away. The heavy load of hay slid from the wagon box as the team ran down a hill. Mr. Eric was fatally injured. Dr. F. A. Beckel, Antigo pioneer physician, was called, but his efforts were futile.

Henry Gustavus, associate of Jaques Eric, took charge of the mill, the lumber was hauled away and the mill finally moved. While operating, it furnished employment to a number of men. A little settlement grew up near the mill on section 27 during this period. It died with the mill.

The first school was erected in 1883 on the present location, section 27. It is still used. The building cost $300 when erected. First pupils were Fred, Jr., Albert, Charles, Herman, Alfred, Ernest, Amelia, Anna, Rose and Minnie Kalkofen, the Frank Hanus children, the Frank Zarda (Aniwa) children, and the Wolf family children. Indian trails abounded even at this time and many of the children had to trudge over them.

Frank Hanus, Louis Ramer and Fred Kalkofen were first Director, Clerk and Treasurer of the district. The 1922-23 school officials were Frank Huggins, Treasurer; Mrs. R. J. Doine, Clerk and Mrs. Zoa Hoyt, Director. Mrs. Jessie Huggins was the 1922-23 teacher.

Sixteen farmers reside in this district. The office of the Rolling Township Clerk, Frank Huggins (1922), is in this district.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

Summit Townships 33-34 N., R. 9 E.

Two Congressional Divisions—Survey of 1860 and 1864—Physical Features—Timber, Soil, Streams—Boundaries—Organization in 1886—First Town Meeting At Summit Lake—Slashing Territory From Summit—Parrish Township Created November 12, 1889—Officers From 1886 to 1923—The History Of Sleepy Hollow District, Sunny Slope, Rocky Glen, Callsen, and Parrish Village.

Summit township consists of two congressional divisions, No. 33 and No. 34 of the U. S. government survey. The township lies in the extreme northwestern part of the county. South Summit was surveyed by William T. Bradley in September, 1860, and North Summit was surveyed by James L. Nowlin, commencing on September 15, 1864. The township is bounded on the north by Oneida County, on the south by Vilas township, on the east by Elcho township, and on the west by Lincoln County.

The physical and topographical features of Summite are similar to surrounding divisions. The surface is generally rolling except in some places where swamps and marshes prevail. The leading variety of timber consists of pine, hemlock, birch, oak, elm, basswood and maple, of which splendid groves are yet to be found.

The soil is Gloucester fine sandy loam, Spencer silt loam and Gloucester silt loam, rolling phase. The township has no large creeks or water courses, the Prairie river being the largest. It extends through the central part of North Summit, running through sections 6, 8, 11, 12, 14, 15, 19, 20, 22, 25 and 26.

THE RESOLUTION OF 1886.

February 2, 1886, J. C. Lewis introduced a resolution before the County Board calling for the organization of Summit township. The resolution stipulated that the proposed township consist of congressional townships 33 and 34 of ranges 9 and 10 east. It passed, but not without opposition.

The first township meeting was held at the Summit Lake village school house. W. H. Pool, who was then operating a sawmill at Summit Lake, was elected first township chairman. His right to sit on the County Board was challenged by other members who declared him to be a citizen of Antigo. He filed an affidavit to the contrary stating he had been a resident of Summit Lake for a considerable length of time previously. This quashed the arguments of his enemies.

J. C. Lewis, B. H. Woledge, Henry Heim, John G. Beardsley, Frank Kennedy and John Bahr were selected to make a settlement with Ackley township and the new town of Summit immediately after the township was organized. Their report to the County Board, November 9, 1886, was adopted.

SLASHING TERRITORY FROM SUMMIT.

Summit township did not enjoy its extensive area for any considerable time. December 27, 1886, an effort was made to have townships 34 of ranges 9 and 10 east detached from Summit. Ed Daskam prevented this action by having the proposed new township request tabled. Tabling the petition did not lessen the activities of those who desired a new township and on February 23, 1887, Elcho township was created. With parts of the original Neva township and townships 34 of ranges 9 and 10 east this new township was organized. Thus Summit, exactly a year after organization, was slashed to one-half its original area. But the slashing did not cease. On November 12, 1889, Parrish township was formed by detaching township 34 of range 9 east (North Summit township) from Elcho township. This left Summit township but one congressional township, No. 33, range 9 east, and it remained in that status until 1899, when Parrish township was vacated and attached to Summit township. Its area has remained unchanged since.

All of the officers of Summit township in 1886 came from the village of Summit Lake. Supervisors C. H. Graves, G. W. Glines; Clerk, R. C. Rice; Treasurer, Peter Loos; Assessor, L. M. Stearns, and minor officials were principally from Summit village. Their leader was W. H. Pool, who fought the first attempt to organize Parrish township before the state legislature.

DISTRICT NO. 1.

SLEEPY HOLLOW DISTRICT. When the first settlers arrived in the Callsen district John Cummings, who emigrated from Aberdeen, Scotland, took up 160 acres of homestead land in 1883 on section 19 of South Summit township. Following him came Frank and Anton Wildman, who settled on sections 17 and 19 respectively. They also arrived in 1883. Other pioneer settlers were Robert and John Holland who took up land on sections 19 and 30 respectively. It was not but a short time before other settlers arrived. Frank Kursts and Thomas Griese came into the district and settled on section 30. In 1884 Conrad Dore moved into the district taking a location in the northeast part of section 32. Phillip Atkins came at the same time establishing himself on section 29. He homesteaded the south quarter of the section.

The first school in the district was a log cabin erected on the Robert Cummings property in southeastern section 19. Miss Emma Dore was the first teacher. Six pupils were in attendance. The log school was used for many years until a frame building was erected on section 29. The 1921-22 school officials were Robert Cummings, Clerk; Wenzel Wildman, Treasurer, and Otto Bergman, Director.

This district has an area of 5,600 acres of land. Sections 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 29, 30, 31 and all of section 32 except the southeast quarter are in its limits. It was once known as District No. 5.

Their are many sections of the district not inhabited. Those parts where settlers have cleared farms is modern and progressive. Telephones, rural free delivery, splendid county roads, all aid in the general advancement of the district.

But few of the original settlers still reside here. Most of them have moved away or are now dead.

The soil of Sleepy Hollow is chiefly Spencer silt loam, with a little peat. The Pine river runs through section 33, nearby. (Section 33 is in district No. 3.)

The Lutheran cemetery of Bavaria is located in this district in section 16.

DISTRICT NO. 2.

SUNNY SLOPE DISTRICT comprises all of sections 15, 21, 22, 27, 28, the west half of section 36, all of sections 33, 34, 35 and the southeast quarter of section 32 in South Summit township, embracing an area of land containing 5,600 acres. It received its name from the picturesque slope on which the district school is located.

The first settlers to homestead arrived in the district in 1884. Carl Dumjohn, Frank Tomany, George Zagel, Stephen Simon and son, C. G. Simon, August Zelm, Henry Zelm, George King (now a resident of Rocky Glen district), Michael Pilhofer, John Strobel, Julius Bergman, Conrad Hauenstein and A. Leistikow came into the district between 1884 and 1888.

The first settlers had to walk to Dudley for provisions and for many years mail was hauled over poor trails and marshy roads to the settlement. Mr. Simon was the pioneer mail carrier, who would go to Dudley and return three times a week with the government mail.

The first school was located on section 28 in 1889. Meanwhile Albert Leistikow sold the school district a building for school purposes. An acre of ground was secured from Stephen Simon at a cost of $5. The school was 16x20 feet and the floor of rough pine lumber. It was ready for the fall term of 1889. Fred Kasten, Stephen Simon and Frank Nibler were the first Director, Treasurer and Clerk of the district. Fred Kasten, Frank Nibler and Frank Tomany were in charge of the building of the first school. Early teachers were Lizzie Griese, Celema M. Lavague, Mary Higgins, Emma Molzberger, A. M. Bessey, Elma M. Snyder, Margaret Slover, Miss Filby, Nellie Boyle, Lottie Hinch, Emma Nordman, Nellie Tracy. The 1922-23 teacher was Eleanor Greeland. The 1922-23 school officials were C. G. Simon, Clerk; J. L. Steger, Director; G. M. Simon, Treasurer.

In 1898 a second log school was built on land leased from George Zagel, who received $27 for clearing it. This site was the southwest quarter of the northwest quarter of section 27. Here a school was built at a cost of $300. It was 22x32 feet in dimensions. Stephen Simon erected it for the district. It was used until the modern school of red brick was built by C. D. Clark at a cost of $4,400. He was awarded the contract March 5, 1917.

The school officials when the new school was erected were C. G. Simon, J. L. Steger and George Zagel, Clerk, Director and Treasurer in order given.

BAVARIA is the chief settlement of the district. A post office was opened in 1906 with Stephen Simon as postmaster. The office was retained until rural free delivery was secured in the district, May 1, 1921. It is route No. 1 from Gleason, Wis. Bavaria was named after the kingdom of Bavaria, which next to Prussia, was the second largest state in the once German Empire. Many of the settlers came from that state.

A Lutheran Evangelical church is located on the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of section 21, just opposite the town hall. The Lutheran minister from Gleason serves the community.

Fred Molzberger opened a general store at Bavaria on section 34 in 1913. In 1920 it was moved to section 33 where it is now operated.

Floyd Hurlbutt of Parrish, continuation district No. 1, erected a mill on section 34 in 1915. He sold it in 1917 to Fred Molzberger, who, after running for two years, sold it to Doering Brothers. It was then moved to Doering, Wis., a nearby village. The only sawmill now in the district is owned by Ed. Walberger. It is located on section 33. He came to the district in May, 1922.

A cheese factory, located on the southwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section 34 was erected many years ago. It changes ownership frequently.

The S. Webster and the C. W. Matt stores are nearby but are located on sections in Vilas township, across the main highway.

The Lutheran cemetery nearby is in Sleepy Hollow district.

The Summit township hall is located on the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter of section 22 in this district. It has been repaired many times. It is located on highway "H."

The thrift and progressive traits of the settlers are reflected in their fine farms and modern buildings.

DISTRICT NO. 3.

ROCKY GLEN DISTRICT. Much of this region is still unsettled and great tracts of timber still stand within its boundaries. Lumbering and logging has been the principal industry. This district was set off in 1899, ten years after the first log school was erected. April 12, 1889, the first school district was created. Many of the early settlers homesteaded in 1886. William Knak, George Koch, Carl Shadewald, John Gnahn, Herman Pohl, S. Bruckner, George Hufnagel, Joseph Hufnagel, George Herbst, John Herbst, George and John King, and Frank Kowsky and others all were early settlers.

The first school, log cabin, was erected in 1889 on section 11. It was a 16x20 cabin. Karl Hammer erected the first school, it being completed September 20, 1889. The school ground was leased from Charles Schadewald. The school ground was cleared by Joseph Hufnagel. G. T. Conant, the first teacher, received $30 per month salary. Other early teachers were Emma Ketner, second teacher; others were: Anna D. C. Gropp, Emma Nordman, Emma Gleason, Jane Reader, Nellie Boyle, V. R. Berkman, Agnes Camic, and Albert Boettcher. The 1922-23 teacher was Echo Robbins. Wilhelm Knak, John Herbst and George Koch were the first Director, Treasurer and Clerk of this district. Eight children attended the first school.

In 1903 John King erected the frame school now used, section 11, at a cost of $800. The building is 26x36 and 12 feet high. The job was let to Mr. King, August 13, 1902. The old log school was then sold July 21, 1902, to J. King at $1.55.

The Langlade Lumber Company has been instrumental in bringing in many new settlers into the district, they having located 145 settlers in their cut-over lands thus far.

The district soil is chiefly Spencer silt loam, Gloucester sandy loam and in the marshy areas peat is found, more noticeable at the intersection quarter post of sections 1, 2, 11 and 12. The region is hilly and rocky.

In 1923 a new road from this district to Summit Lake will be constructed.

Many old logging roads, old railroad beds and wrecked camp sites are still visible.

CALLSEN DISTRICT. The year Antigo was divided into two camps as a result of an unsuccessful attempt to incorporate it as a city, a man, full of determination and energy, staked a homestead for himself in the wild virgin forest of this district. This man, Frank Lee, was not long a solitary mortal in the region of pine and hardwood forests. Two years later, in 1885, Stedson and Christopher Callsen, taking with them their worldly belongings, left Milwaukee, Wisconsin, to make a home in that land, which has been the choice of the intrepid Frank Lee. Others who followed were Edward Rosbach, Charles Haasman, Otto and Bernard Holtman, Alfred Wright, Gustav Brendemihl, Henry Brendemihl and Conrad De Horn, all sturdy pioneers of the new north.

The Callsen district comprises all of sections 7, 8, 9 and the west half of section 10, all of section 4, 5 and 6, the west quarter of section 3, a small strip of sections 1, 2 and 3 of South Summit township and all of sections 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36 of North Summit together with the south halves of sections 25 to 30 inclusive. The district has an area of 11,568 acres. The district has three types of soil, Gloucester sandy loam, Spencer silt loam and peat.

This district was organized in 1887 as a part of Elcho township and remained as such until 1890 when Parrish township was detached from Elcho. Then it was organized as District No. 1 and for nine years it remained in that status until 1899, when upon the reorganization of Summit township it became district No. 4, by which it is now known.

After preparing their homesteads for crops, building their log cabins and opening up some communication with the outside world, the pioneer settlers turned their attention to education of their children. In the year 1886 a log school was erected at the quarter post of sections 29 and 32. Ten children attended from the Haasman, Callsen and Rosbach families and were taught by Miss Lizzie Giese. Seven years later the log school gave way to the first frame school, erected in 1893 on the northeast corner of section 31. Miss Emma Castellion was the first teacher in charge. Frank Lee, Clerk; Detlof Callsen, Director, and Ed. Rosbach, Treasurer, had charge of the first school activities in this district in 1887. The 1922-23 school officials were John Callsen, a son of Detlof Callsen, as Clerk; Henry Brendemihl as Treasurer and Halvor Granum of Director. Miss Laurette Friebe was the 1922-23 teacher.

In October, 1916, the frame school was destroyed by fire. The children were housed temporarily in a log building nearby. School opened in 1917 in a modern $5,600 brick school erected by the Frazer Lumber Company of Appleton. It is on the site of the old frame structure, section 31. Early teachers in this territory were Anna Jensen, Alice Huntington, Martha Marsilliot, Jesse Waste, Blanche Kilkelly, Florence Bunton and Jeannie Lang.

There is one stream of importance in Callsen district, Haymeadow Creek.

Pioneer loggers were The Prairie River Lumber Company, J. C. Hollis and Paul Krueger, or The Parrish Lumber Company, Detlof and Christopher Callsen and John Callsen.

The office of the Summit township clerk, John Callsen, is in this district.

The district presents a vivid contrast today to that time in 1885 when the first settlers had to walk to Elcho, a hamlet in the wilderness, for provisions, flour and other necessities. Now it has splendid farms, telephones, splendid residences and while highways are few those that are found are good. The region is steadily forging ahead.

CONTINUATION DISTRICT NO. 1.

PARRISH DISTRICT. The village of Parrish is situated in the extreme northwestern part of Langlade County, 32 miles from Antigo, County Seat. It is in the heart of one of the great lumbering regions of pioneer days, and in fact is yet important because of that industry. It received its name in honor of Judge J. K. Parrish of the 10th Wisconsin Judicial Circuit of 1889.

Jule Edwin, first settler, located at the site now used as a hotel by Andrew Kuhl. Mr. Edwin erected the first store in the village for Brooks & Ross Lumber Company. Mr. Edwin was followed by Andrew Kuhl, who because of permanent residence has been termed the first permanent settler.

While the Brooks & Ross Lumber Company had their extensive lumber operations in the region Parrish became a thriving settlement of fifty-eight families. In 1888 it was divided into three districts consisting of French, German and Swedes. These sections were known as Frenchtown, Germantown and Swedetown. Frenchtown was located north of the Prairie river, while the other two groups lived on the south side.

The first school district was created in 1890. The school, a frame building, was erected on the north-

The Parrish school is one of the best in the county. Three teachers are employed. The 1922-23 teachers were the Misses Ethel Gallop, principal, and Gerda Tiller and Elna Augustead, assistants.

Elm City, Lincoln County, is located near Parrish. An old sawmill site is the only monument left as a memory of that place. The great sawdust pile, reminiscent of an industry that has passed, is covered with wild plants and good sized trees are growing at its top.

The soil adjacent to Parrish consists of Gloucester fine sandy loam and Gloucester sandy loam, rolling phase. This district is hilly and rolling generally.

THE PRESENT PARRISH SCHOOL which was erected over thirty years after the creation of the first school district in which the village of Parrish was included.

west quarter of the southeast quarter of section 19. Miss Ruschlow was the first teacher. Among the pupils were Margaret De Horn and Annie Kuhl.

With the construction of a track from Pratt Junction to Parrish contact with the main route of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad was made possible. Parrish thrived for years during the pine timber conquest. It declined from then, however, until 1904. The Parrish Lumber Company, owned by J. O. Hollis and L. Krueger of Wausau, gave employment to many people. C. O. Robinson once was interested in the concern also. The Hurlbutt-Tillman Lumber Company now operate a mill, general store and a planing mill in the village. Floyd Hurlbutt is in active management.

Parrish district consists of sections 1 to 24 inclusive and the north halves of sections 25 to 30 inclusive, all in North Summit township (Township 34, N., R. 9 E.)

The Prairie River Lumber Company saw, planing and shingle mills were erected in 1888. Barney Daugherty had charge of constructing the mills and George F. Rice supervised the work. The sawmill was 120x67 feet, had two band saws, one of which was a combined band and rotary saw. It also was equipped with a gang edger, a slasher and trimmer. Lumber capacity was approximately 90,000 ft. per day, 125,000 shingles per day and 25,000 lath per day. D. McGillis was the first manager. The mill first opened February 18, 1889.

Upham township lies immediately south of Elcho township, in congressional townships 33, north of Ranges 10 and 11 east. It is bounded on the north by Elcho township, on the south by Neva and Peck townships, on the east by South Ainsworth township and on the west by South Summit township. It is thus situated centrally and favorably among many beautiful lakes and the scenery about these lakes is incomparable. West Upham was surveyed in October, 1860, by H. C. Fellows, U. S. Deputy Surveyor. East Upham was surveyed by U. S. Deputy Surveyor H. C. Fellows at the same time.

Upham township has a diversified surface and presents to the homeseeker all variations of land, from the steep hillside to the low level marsh lands. Its natural resources, gravel and sand deposits, valuable timber, rich soil, springs of crystal pure water, wild fruits and wild game—all these were valuable assets to the pioneer homesteaders and land purchasers.

PURPOSE OF ORGANIZATION.

Upham township was created November 16, 1894, by the Langlade County Board in response to a petition from settlers from the original town of Summit and that part of Upham township previously in Neva township. The township was named in honor of Governor-elect Wm. H. Upham, Wisconsin's chief executive from January 7, 1895, to January 4, 1897. Township 33, North of Range 10 was detached from Summit township, with the exception of sections 32 and 33. Sections 34, 35 and 36 of Township 34, north of Range 10 East were also detached from Summit and Township 33, North of Range 11 was detached from Neva township to form the new township.

The voting precinct was established by a township resolution at Summit Lake. The ordinance did not take effect until the April, 1895, town meeting.

Phillip Ryan, Frank Schauer and George Bremer were chosen the first inspectors of election of Upham. H. G. Borgman, George Jones and Fred Jacobus, county solons, were selected to effect a settlement between Neva, Summit and the new township.

November 7, 1894, a petition was sent to the members of the County Board requesting the new township for two reasons: 1. There were no roads to travel the polls. 2. It required three days for some settlers to get from their homes to a town meeting, one day to go to polls, one day to attend town meeting and another to return home. The settlers did not wish to leave their families in the wilderness alone. The east part of Summit township charged that the west part of the township (as it then existed) secured larger appropriations for roads and schools by reason of a greater population. The Neva township petition's charges were the same. This petition was signed by J. J. Hanson, Peter Person, John Hedin, George Bremer, H. G. Harwood, Abe C. Alesond, M. B. Millard, O. C. Bardwell, Frank Schauer, Mike Haney, Thomas Haney, A. F. Franz, August Sharman, Frank Pillar, Charles Gehrke, Henry Ebner, John Miller, John Shuh, Phillip Ryan, Dave Woodmansee, Peter Loos, J. H. Andritz, J. H. Gibson, B. G. Olson, C. H. Calkins, Joseph Hasep, James Hurlbutt, George Hoover, John Murphy, John Shuh, Jr., Sib. Leidheisl, H. Bielbe, Wenzel Niesbauer, Donat Kille, Pins Milsbauer and Otto Christensen.

FIRST TOWN MEETING.

The first town meeting was held April 2, 1895. N. B. Millard was temporary chairman and J. J. Hanson temporary clerk. Charles Gehrke was selected clerk of election and John Miller and Peter Loos as ballot clerks.

Otto Christensen, J. J. Hanson, Phillip Ryan, N. B. Millard, John Miller, Johannes Anschutz, James Hurlbutt, George Bremer, Chas. Gehrke, P. Loos and Frank Schauer petitioned the meeting to include the question of township school government in the election. The petition was granted. The school district system was adopted.

The resolution granting the petitioners' prayer was the first one adopted by the Upham township officials. Phillip Ryan was elected the first township chairman and J. J. Hanson, first township clerk. The township was divided into two road districts, May 18, 1895.

The first road petition was signed by J. J. Hanson, Frank Schauer, Peter Loos, John Miller, George Bre-

mer, Mike Haney and F. Pillar, who asked for a road from the northeast corner of section 24 running south to the southeast corner of said section of township 33, range 10, May, 1895. The road was authorized June 3, 1895. The road to Koepenick was built in 1895. The Koepenick-Kempster road was built in the fall of 1895 after a special town meeting was held authorizing a loan of $500 to finance the project. The money was borrowed from the Bank of Antigo.

The first highway overseers of the township were appointed May 10, 1895, and were John Miller, District No. 1, and Donat Killes, District No. 2.

George Bremer was the first to receive a license to retail intoxicating liquors "in quantities of less than one gallon," June 25, 1895. (Saloons were operated before this as early as 1882.) The license fee was $100 per annum.

TOWN HALL.

March 16, 1897, voters of Upham requested town officials to include the question of raising $75 for a town hall to be submitted to the electorate, April 6, 1897. The officers purchased lot 8 of block No. 5, Summit Lake, for $45. The building thereon was used as the first town hall. The vote on the town hall question resulted in 22-1 in favor of purchasing the property, rather than building a new town hall. The first meeting in the "town house" was held June 28, 1897. It was used but a short time. At the annual meeting in 1899 the town hall matter was up again. The supervisors voted to appropriate $100 for a town hall of which $25 was to be applied on the old town hall indebtedness. The first session was held April 11, 1899, in the second town hall.

LAST BOUNDARY CHANGES.

The reader will recall that sections 34, 35 and 36, Township 34, Range 10 East were attached to Upham township November 16, 1894. These sections were detached from Upham and joined to Elcho township in November, 1902. Sections 31, 32 and 33, Township No. 33, of Range 10 East were taken from Summit township and attached to Upham. These two changes squared but every township in Langlade County. The request for detaching sections 31, 32 and 33 of Township 33, Range 10 East was signed by Henry Buck, Thomas Griese, John L. Meyer, George Gnahn, Julius Bergman, Leo Nagel, Joseph Hufnagel, Conrad Hauenstein, Andrew Kuhl, George Zagel, Joseph King, Stephen Simon, Carl Dumjohn, F. Nibbler, G. Strobel, George Herbst, Henry Oldenberg, Michael Pilhofer and C. J. Dore.

SETTLEMENTS WITH NEVA-SUMMIT.

George H. Wunderlich, Phillip Ryan, John Cumming, Fred Jacobus and John Jansen, committee selected by the county board, made a satisfactory settlement between Neva and Upham, August 10, 1895, and between Summit and Upham, July 19, 1895. The statement of settlement was filed with J. J. Hanson, Upham township clerk, August 10, 1895.

Upham township has many streams and lakes. The headwaters of the east branch of the Eau Claire river runs through sections 30, 31, 32, 33, 34 and 35 in East Upham township. The Hunting river runs through the northeast part of East Upham township through sections 1, 2 and 3. Lakes in East Upham township are: Four small lakes in section 31, Noboken Lake, Lack Lake, High Lake, Low Lake, Game Lake, Pence Lake. In the West Upham township the west branch of the Eau Claire has its headwaters in sections 7, 8, 18, 19, 30, 29, 32. Numerous other rivulets and streams are found. Bass Lake, Summit Lake, Partridge Lake, Duck Lake, Dynamite Lake and Lower Bass Lake are the principal lakes.

The C. & N. W. railroad runs through sections 1 and 12 of West Upham township and a branch line (Bass Lake branch) runs through sections 12, 14, 15, 9, 8, 7 and 18, West Upham. In East Upham the main line runs on the west through sections 31, 30, 19, 18 and 7.

May 10, 1895, Upham township was divided into two school districts as follows: District No. 1, the north half of township 33, range 10 and sections 34, 35 and 36, township 34, range 10, all of the north half of township 33, range 11, except the southeast quarter of the southwest quarter of section 18 of said town. District No. 2 consisted of the south half of township 33, range 11 east and the southeast quarter of the southwest quarter of section 18 of said town, and all of the south half of township 33, range 10 east except sections 31 and 32. The districts have been changed frequently and the present boundaries are found in the review of each separate district.

CON. DISTRICT NO. 1.

SUMMIT LAKE DISTRICT. This is the principal commercial district in Upham township and is also the oldest in point of permanent white habitation. The village received its name from the track laying officials of the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western railroad, who found it to possess the highest body of water in Wisconsin.

With the railroad came the first hotel and a number of homeseekers. W. J. Empey came from Elmhurst with the railroad in 1881. He conducted the first hotel in the village. Other pioneer settlers were: Frank Schauer, Charles Gehrke, E. S. Koepenick, George Bremer, Mrs. Elizabeth Kunza, John Miller, Frank Pillar, Henry Ebner, Peter Loos, Art Nichols, Joseph Helmbrecht, Spencer Cole and Frank Schabel.

Lumbering was the principal pioneer industry. In 1884, Wm. Pool, associated with Smith Brothers of Oshkosh, erected a sawmill in the district. It operated until 1888 when it was moved to Jeffries, Wisconsin. Edward Baird started a saw mill in 1884, but it never was completed.

In later years the Paine Lumber Company and from 1915 to 1919 the Langlade Lumber Company had extensive lumbering operations in the district. They had many camps and a company supply station at Bass Lake. A post office operated at Bass Lake for a short time also. The camps and store are now located in Pearson, Ainsworth township.

The first store was erected at Summit Lake by Bingham & Perrin of New London, who acted as supply agents for the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western while track was laid in this vicinity. They sold in 1882 to E. S. Koepenick, who came to this village from Oshkosh.

John Gorman was the first Summit Lake postmaster. Others were: George Bremer, Mrs. Mary Sherman, E.

S. Koepenick and Mrs. Elizabeth Kunza, present Postmistress. Smith Brothers, and a Mr. Phife were pioneer storekeepers, while Dan Hubbard was an early retail liquor vendor.

The first school was erected in 1882 on Section No. 1 and was used for a number of years. It was moved to its present site one-fourth of a mile from the present school and was purchased by the Lutheran congregation of Summit Lake for church purposes.

The modern Summit Lake school was erected in 1906 by O. S. Sherwood at an approximate cost of $4,000. George Durler, Martin Steinert and Mrs. George Durler were members of the school board when that building was erected. It is located on section 1, east of the main C. & N. W. track. William Pool,—Nichols and Louis Stearn were early school board officials in this district. The 1922-23 school officers were: Peter Rasmussen, Treasurer; Robert Seering, Director and Mrs. Henry Joyce, Clerk. 1922-23 teachers were Miss Susie Daily and Martha Weix, principal and assistant, respectively.

In 1910 the most destructive fire in the history of this district occurred. The J. C. Nelson saloon, the Henry Joyce residence, and the George Bremer hotel were destroyed. A year later another fire occurred in which the old Wyenberg saloon and a hotel were destroyed by fire. The Frank Schauer residence burned then also.

Summit Lake district has an area of water in section 2 that has attained distinction as a summer resort. Hundreds of people from all over the nation come here in the summer months. Many beautiful summer homes border the lake, which has some of the finest bathing facilities known. Its natural beach is one of the best in northern Wisconsin.

The town hall is situated in the village of Summit Lake. Present business places are: The Charles Snowden grocery; Howard Payne restaurant, Warren Boucher, modern dance pavilion, The C. & N. W. Railroad station, John Kunza store, Post Office, George Bremer hotel, Stedner Snowden's hotel, pool room and grocery.

Agriculture is the chief occupation of the settlers.

Summit Lake cemetery is situated in the NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 2, Township 33, Range 10 East. The cemetery was recorded September 8, 1908, when George Durler was Chairman and L. W. Filyes, Clerk of Upham township.

Congregational and Lutheran church services are held in the village, by non-resident Pastors.

A school was held at Bass Lake, section 12, when the Paine Lumber Company had headquarters there. Teachers were Margaret Healy, Irene Day, Mrs. M. Smith and Yarda Parson. The building was sold when the township was redistricted to Truman Rice. Koepenick and Bass Lake schools were closed in 1913 when pupils from that territory were assigned to Summit Lake school. A buss hauled the children to and fro.

DISTRICT NO. 6.

KOEPENICK DISTRICT. This district is situated in the central part of Upham township and consists of sections in both east and west Upham. It was one of the principal lumbering sections of the county in early days.

When the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western pushed north this district was one vast wilderness. Summit Lake was a hamlet with one or two prospectors within its present limits. Not until 1889 did Koepenick become a community as it now exists. In that year Andrew Bruette started a saw mill on section 18, Township 33, Range 11 East. Three years later he sold to Henry Sherry of Neenah, who moved it to High Lake, Upham township. For eight years the industry operated by Mr. Sherry. A. M. Millard of Antigo then took over the mill. He was succeeded by Henry Wunderlich, who, after successfully operating, sold to Fleet & Thompson of Wausau, Wis. The mill was then dismantled and moved to Michigan.

Early settlers were Orvis Vaughn, Peter Person, E. S. Koepenick, J. J. Hanson and others.

E. S. Koepenick moved to section 18, Township 33, Range 11 East, where he opened a store in 1890. He purchased his land from Thomas Spalding of Oshkosh. He was the first Postmaster of the village of Koepenick and continued as such until his death in 1914. He was then succeeded by Mrs. E. S. Koepenick, who is present Postmistress.

The first Koepenick school was erected in 1892 on section 19 and was built by Frank Krall and Joseph Hoshek. The first school board consisted of J. J. Hansen, Peter Person and E. S. Koepenick. The pupils grew numerous and in 1903 a new structure was erected on section 18 at a cost of $2,000. Knute Anderson was the contractor.

Early teachers were Ethel Cardin, Nettie Hanson, Anna Beard, Pearl Williams, Josephine Donohue, Mattie and Maud Morson, Harry Hopkins, Clara Williard, Lizzie Daily and Laura Spencer. Doris Sisel was the teacher in 1921-22 and Miss Margaret Gillis in 1922-23.

Settlers in this district are Harold Mattmiller, R. W. Beattie, J. J. Hanson, Peter Person, Emil Person, Julius Mai, Frank Dempsey, Paul Tappia, John Bale, Orvis Vaughn, Harry Beach, Joseph Ruffie, Mrs. Henry Albright, Mrs. E. S. Koepenick and R. Harvey.

This district was originally a part of District No. 2 created August 10, 1895. The 1922-23 school officials were Mrs. E. S. Koepenick, Clerk; Emil Person, Director and Harold Mattmiller, Treasurer.

DISTRICT NO. 7.

FOREST DISTRICT. This school district was organized June 22, 1917, by detaching parts of District No. 1, consisting of sections 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 15, 16, 17, 18, 20, 21, 22, 26, 27, 28, 34 and 35, all in Township 33 North of Range 10 East, from District No. 1.

The first district school meeting was held at the old Turner school house on the evening of July 2, 1917. C. H. Turner in accordance with a request from the town board notified Robert Quick, Frank Long, Minnie Tucker, John Tucker, Mrs. John Tucker, Helene Kasper, Louis Learman, M. Quick, George Quick, Bertha Quick, S. U. Tucker, Warren McDonald and Mr. and Mrs.

John Simmons of the proposed meeting. Accordingly Mrs. Robert Quick, Louis Learman and George Quick were elected Clerk, Treasurer and Director of the school district. The 1922-23 school officials were: August Klever, Clerk; Louis Learman, Treasurer; and C. H. Turner, Director. Miss Mabel Schultz was the 1922-23 teacher. Early teachers were Yarda Bronson, Mabel Earlinson, Rosella Armstrong, Irene Hoyt and Miss Hoffman.

While this district is situated a number of miles west of Highway No. 39 and a distance from Kempster it has a good population, many of whom were early homesteaders. The early settlers who first came into this rolling country were: C. H. Turner, S. U. Tucker, Warren McDonald, Jesse Hess, Andrew Bovee, Feight Loomis, Robert Quick, Louis Learman, John Turner, George Quick and the Tinney family.

Settlers now in this territory are H. A. Tromblie, Glenn Wolf, Wm. Adkins, Homer Shelley, John Tucker, August Klever, R. E. Tucker, Roy Tucker, Ted Patterson, James Tucker, Alvin Klever, C. H. Turner, S. U. Tucker, Warren McDonald, Jesse Hess, John yield of crops. This is an ideal region for plums and apples and C. H. Turner, Louis Learman, Robert Quick and Warren McDonald have taken advantage of the fact and have some fine orchards. They should give the region a reputation in future years. A strip of level land runs five to six miles north and south of the Kempster road and many log farm homes have been erected near it. Principal occupation is agriculture. In the winter wood cutting, logging and trapping the wolf, fox and other animals, are the chief occupations.

DISTRICT NO. 8.

This district was organized in 1921 and consists of sections 23, 24, 25, 26, 35 and 36 of Township 33, Range 11 East. The territory was detached from district No. 6. It was necessary to undergo many hardships and inconveniences before the creation of district No. 8. Roads were few and the children were unable to get to the Koepenick school except with great difficulty. Accordingly a hearing was held and the township authorities established the new district.

Turner, Louis Learman and George and Robert Quick.

The first log school, still standing on section 28, just a short distance from the modern school, was used until the present splendid school was erected by August Klever. (See photo on page 37.)

There are more lakes within this region than any other like area in Langlade County. Among them are Horseshoe, Black Oak, Bass, Moses, Government Pond (a government lake), Sucker, Cranberry, Fish, Saddleback, Snag, Partridge, Long (there are two Long Lakes, only one of which is in this district), Green Bass, Squaw, and Indian lake, all small bodies of water. The west end of the district is swampy.

The soil consists principally of Gloucester sandy loam, Spencer silt loam, level phase, Merrimac silt loam and some peat. While vast stretches of the country is hilly and must yet be cleared, that which has been cleared and cultivated produces an abundant

School was at once opened. The first officers, Mr. and Mrs. George Linsdau, Director and Clerk respectively, and Fred Moss, Treasurer, lost no time in arranging suitable quarters for a temporary structure. An old frame camp (No. 6) of the Langlade Lumber Company was rented and was in use the 1921-22 session. The property is owned by the Rev. Fr. J. J. Kaster, New London, Wisconsin. A new school, modern and complete, will be erected. The 1922-23 school officers are Mr. and Mrs. George Linsdau, Director and Clerk, and Mrs. Fred Moss, Treasurer.

There are now eight settlers in the district, Matt Schja, Herbert Lutey, Steven Lacib, James McDougal, Fred Moss, George Linsdau, Carl Firch and Louis Langlois.

This territory was originally a part of the old district No. 2, organized August 10, 1895. Mrs. Emil Kramer was the first teacher in this district, 1921-22.

Vilas township was surveyed in September, 1860, by H. C. Fellows, U. S. Deputy Surveyor. The survey commenced on September 21 and ended on September 27, 1860. The township was named in honor of William Freeman Vilas, American lawyer and statesman, who was elected to the United States Senate from Wisconsin in 1891, served as Postmaster General and Secretary of the Interior under President Grover Cleveland and has often been termed the state's most illustrious Democrat. The township is located in the extreme west central part of the county and has an area of 23,040 acres or 36 square miles. It is situated in congressional township No. 32, Range 9 East, is bounded on the north by Summit township, on the south by West Ackley township, on the east by Peck township and on the west by Lincoln County.

Vilas township is well watered and drained by the McCloud creek, flowing through sections 4, 5, 8, 18, 17, 19, 20, 29, 30 and 31. Pine river runs through sections 21, 22, 23, 24, 28, 29, 31 and 32. Pratt creek flows through the central part of the township. Many smaller rivulets and streams are also found.

The surface is somewhat undulating. Originally it was covered with a heavy growth of timber, consisting principally of hemlock, birch, pine, oak, ash, maple, poplar and other native trees. The lumber industry still exists in this township in isolated groves of forest products. The soil is not naturally as strong and fertile as some other townships, but with drainage and proper cultivation abundant crops can be produced. It is one vast area of Spencer silt loam, a small percentage of which is the level phase. Along the banks of the Eau Claire river (West branch) peat is found in small quantities.

Vilas township is a haven for new settlers, many of whom immigrate to this western part of the county from European Countries and larger cities of the United States.

ORGANIZED IN 1886.

Vilas township was organized November 11, 1886, after a resolution written by J. H. Trever, then District Attorney, was passed by a 10-3 vote of the members of the Langlade County Board. It originally consisted of township 32 of both ranges 9 and 10 east. January 28, 1891, township 32 of range 10 was detached from Vilas township to form Peck township. The township has remained as one congressional township since then.

W. H. Dawley, N. Bangs, J. H. Trever and Edward Daskam were members of the settlement committee appointed to adjudicate the affairs of the new township and Ackley. The petition for creation of Vilas was presented to the County Board April 17, 1886. Fifty-six settlers signed it.

W. L. ACKLEY OPPOSED VILAS TOWNSHIP.

The Vilas township petition to the County Board was followed by another remonstrating against any proposed division of Ackley township, until the settlers "knew better what they wanted" and was signed by W. L. Ackley, Charles Ackley, J. De Moss, G. F. Walch, Thomas Bagley, C. Vaughn, Edward Chey and G. W. Schaeffer. They charged that a division such as was proposed would leave the south township of Ackley with an open marshy territory and "old pine choppings that were almost worthless." The remonstrance succeeded in filing the detachment petition for one day, when it was again taken up, and turned over to the District Attorney, who drew up the ordinance at once.

William Hampton, H. W. James and R. Tracy were selected as the first inspectors of election in the township. The County Board designated the Morley post-office as the first polling station.

The first election was held at the home of W. H. Hampton, section 35. Z. Space and R. Balch were chosen ballot clerks. Then the meeting adjourned to the school house of district No. 6. Seventy-one votes were cast for Chairman, Jonathan Reader receiving 57 and Z. Space 14; 142 votes were cast for Supervisor, of which George Kasper and C. H. Harder, the successful candidates, received 46 and 58 votes respectively, and Richard Tracey and Robert Simms 13 and 26 votes. Elisha Rinney was elected first township clerk. Peter G. Beck, who later became the first Town Chairman of Peck, was chosen first Vilas Treasurer. A. J. Mittemore was elected Treasurer, receiving 48 of 71 votes. William Fick, Nelson Shanks, John Hubbard and J. S. Hughes were elected first Justices. John Barber and Al Hayes were selected as the first law enforcers (Constables) of the new township.

The new officials took their oaths April 12, 1887.

The first act of the township officials was to raise $300 for roads and bridges. Five hundred dollars was appropriated for township and incidental expenses. The town clerk was voted a salary of $75 per year.

Vilas was divided into eleven road districts which were in charge of Robert Sims, Thomas K. Johnson, W. R. Mason, Henry Fryer, John Darrow, Charles Wetzel, Benjamin Miller, W. J. Hampton, E. D. Pratt and George Dufick, April 18, 1887.

May 18, 1887, the Vilas township officials divided the town into seven school districts. Thomas K. Johnson was notified to call a district school meeting for the purpose of electing school officials. Alterations took place each year until Peck township was detached. Then the township was divided into four equal districts.

OLD ROADS RECORDED.

In 1887 the town officials authorized the clerk to place all highways legally laid out previously by Ackley or Pine River townships on the town records. Thus ten roads were recorded that were laid out between 1879 and 1887 but were not placed on record. Thirty-one new highways have been authorized and laid out by Vilas since June 21, 1887, up to and including May 10, 1920.

The B. Heinemann Lumber Company owns vast amounts of cut-over and timber lands in the township.

DISTRICT NO. 1.

LIBERTY BELL DISTRICT is situated in the northeastern part of Vilas township. Its area consists of 5,760 acres of land or one-fourth of the township. The outline of the boundary commences at the northeast corner of section 1, thence running west on the township line between townships 32 and 33, to the west corner of section 3, thence south to the southwest corner of section 15, thence east to the southeast corner of section 13, thence north to the northeast corner of section 1.

District No. 1 is a part of original district No. 5 of Vilas, created May 18, 1887, and also of the second district of this region, District No. 1 of June 26, 1893. District No. 1 of 1893 consisted of all of its present area together with sections 4, 5, 6 and 9 of the present District No. 2.

This district is bounded on the north by a part of Summit township, on the south by Ackley township, on the east by Peck township and on the west by Pine River township in Lincoln County.

The first settlers in Liberty Bell district were Richard Tracy, George Holland, E. I. Whitney, James Spurgeon, Arnold Engles and others.

The 1922-23 teacher was Luella Joles. The school officials for 1922-23 were Martin W. Strandberg, Clerk; A. Engles, Director, and W. W. Scott, Treasurer.

DISTRICT NO. 2.

GOOD LUCK DISTRICT. The boundaries of this district begin at the northeast corner of section 4, thence run west on the township line between townships 32 and 33 to the northwest corner of section 6, thence south to the southwest corner of section 18, thence east to the southeast corner of section 16, thence north to the northeast corner of section 4, embracing an area of nine square miles or 5,760 acres. Good Luck district was organized in May, 1908, and is a part of the old district No. 7 of 1887 and of old districts Nos. 1 and 6 of 1893.

This region once was a part of Pine River township, Lincoln County, of Ackley township and then Vilas.

Early settlers arrived in the district in 1881. George Dufeck, John Zema, and Joseph Zema came into the wilderness and cleared twenty to thirty acres each. Moses Wildfang settled at the same time in the northwestern part of the district on section 5. Joseph Yindra followed, settling on section 8. Other pioneers were J. Jirik, settling on section 4; George Dufeck settled on section 6. Dan Hubbard, another early arrival, settled on section 7. B. Tichacek, another early settler, established his farm a mile and a half west of the Jirik farm. The Ourada farm, section 5, is the former Tichacek property.

Most of the early settlers came over the rough trails and paths with yokes of oxen. They came either from Merrill or Wausau.

In 1883 a road to Gleason was constructed. This opened up an avenue of communication with the outside world, made trade relationship more agreeable and paved the way for the arrival of more settlers.

The first log school was erected in 1891 and was used until 1909 when a frame school house was erected on section 6. The enrollment averaged six to eight pupils in the earliest year. Pioneer teachers in this district were the Misses Molzberger, Gleason and Kettner. The 1921-23 teacher was Blanche Bonnell. The members of the 1922-23 school board were Wm. Anderson, Clerk; John Laughton, Director, and Mrs. M. Jirik, Treasurer.

The first and only store in the district was erected in 1912 on section 3 by Mr. Webster. In the year 1920 he erected a new building on the same location.

Near market places today are Gleason, Dudley, Bloomville and Antigo. Opening of new roads and the automobile make Antigo a convenient trading point, eliminating the disadvantages of distance.

Agriculture and dairying are the principal occupations. Potatoes and grains are the principal products. This district is making noticeable advances in both modern farming and scientific dairying.

DISTRICT NO. 3.

FOREST VIEW DISTRICT. In the southwest part of Vilas township is an area of land containing 5,760 acres and consisting of sections 19, 20, 21, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32 and 33, known as the Forest View District. It is well named for the children trudging along to and from their daily tasks at school have a wonderful panorama of nature's art to view. The school is ideally situated on the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of section 29. It is a model building, erected in 1900 by the settlers, who take especial pride in it. Previously a frame structure was used and before then a log cabin.

The first settlers established themselves in this region as early as 1877. The Edward Pratt family came to the district from Hilton, Wisconsin. The trip from Wausau was made by wagon over rough miry roads. Henry Cone was the second settler who came into the district. He was followed by John Hubbard and family.

Log houses were erected, one by one, as the sturdy pioneers arrived and before long the distances between them lessened. They gradually were followed by frame dwellings. However, many log houses are still found, many of which are the original cabins erected nearly fifty years ago. Hewn logs served as floors in these typical backwoods homes.

The early settlers were frugal to the point of parsimony. Necessity made them thus. During the long winter sieges cord wood was cut, but the market was far away. It did not pay to haul wood such a distance. But logging camps were numerous, affording employment to the settlers. When spring approached the log drives commenced on the Eau Claire river and the men folks received employment on the drives. The Eau Claire river was improved and thousands of logs were driven down it to Schofield. The housewife, anxious to aid her husband, would do much of the garden and field work, planting and cultivating in order that a bountiful harvest might be reaped in the fall. Thus the years passed on.

The children in the schools became young men and women, taking the places of their fathers and mothers. They filled the district and township offices, managed the farms, introduced new ideas into agricultural advancement and by this day the second generation has full command. Many of the pioneers have died or are too advanced in age to actively engage in labor.

The 1922-23 teacher was Leona Polar. The 1922-23 school officials were: Clerk, Charles Hubbard; Director, Jack Danburg; Treasurer, John Cockeram.

DISTRICT NO. 4.

ELMWOOD DISTRICT. The last territorial change in Vilas township school districts occurred April 14, 1908. The Elmwood district since has consisted of sections 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 34, 35 and 36 of the township. It is situated in the southeastern part of Vilas and has an area of 5,760 acres. This district is the southern portion of the original District No. 5, organized in 1887. April 24, 1906, Vilas was re-dis-tricted and District No. 3 was eliminated. District No. 4 was enlarged by the addition of sections 28, 32 and 33. This area was not changed until 1908 when District No. 3 was recreated.

Pioneer settlers in Elmwood were Henry Fryer, who cleared a little farm in the wilderness in 1877 after a long and tiresome journey from New London, and Edson Lloyd, who in 1878 brought his family to this district from Oshkosh. With him came Charles Lloyd, his son, who afterwards became prominent in Vilas activities. W. J. Hampton, Mrs. Hayes, A. Space, Frank Locks, William Holland, Ben Miller, M. E. Bessey and Olaf Anderson were early settlers. George Hayes, Edwin Hayes and Al Hayes and John Marlowe are old residents, who came into the district later.

The first school was erected in 1882 on the southeast quarter of the southeast quarter of section 4. It was a one-room log building, which was used advantageously for many years. Early teachers were L. Hermanson, Mrs. M. A. Dexter, Hannah Reader, S. Gunderson, Emma Molzberger, Mary Cadigan, Theresa Wanninger, Ella Rynders, J. Ross, Adell Muscher, Allie Kennedy, Olive M. Space, Alice Casper, Ruth Graves and Irene Marshall. Miss Alfrieda Bruss was the 1921-22 teacher.

On July 5, 1898, the school officials of District No. 4, Charles Lloyd, Clerk; H. O. Johnson, Treasurer, and Alfred Hayes, Director, decided to locate the new proposed school on the quarter post of sections 25 and 26. The school was completed by October 15, 1898. It cost approximately $375 and was erected by Justin & Jensen, mill men. The frame school was used until 1921 when a modern brick school was erected at a cost of $8,000 by H. Hoffschmidt. This splendid school is located on section 26. The 1921-22 school officials were Charles Lloyd, Clerk; Fritz Weisshahn, Director, and Leon Merry, Treasurer.

About 1899 George Drake and Justin & Jensen erected a sawmill on section 36 in this district. It was operated by Joseph Weir and John Menting for many years until it was moved away.

Louis Henry erected a cheese factory on section 24 in 1917. It has changed hands frequently and is now under the proprietorship of a co-operative concern organized among the neighboring farmers.

The Vilas township hall, located on section 25 (NW $\frac{1}{4}$ of NW $\frac{1}{4}$), was completed in the summer of 1922. Its cost was approximately \$3,000 and it is one of the best town halls in Langlade County. The first meeting was held in the hall (before its completion) in April, 1922. Louis Jacobs was the contractor. Formerly all township meetings were held at the school house in District No. 4.

Elmwood district has many splendid farms. The soil is rolling and level. The roads in the district are well maintained.

Antigo and Merrill are the nearest trading centers of importance.

The 1922-23 teacher was Elfrieda Bruss. The school officials for 1922-23 were: Clerk, Charles Lloyd, who is also Vilas township clerk; Treasurer, A. J. Polar, and Director, Fritz Weisshahn.

OFFICERS OF ORIGINAL (VACATED) TOWNSHIPS.

The townships of Carpenter and Gagen, two of the six original Langlade County townships, were vacated but a short time after. The first officers of Carpenter were: Chairman, Abe Vanzile; Supervisors, Charles and Jay Cook; Clerk, Charles Vanzile; Treasurer, Leonard Marsh; Assessor, Jay Cook; Justice of the Peace, L. J. Marsh; Constable, William Varzile. There were but five votes cast in Carpenter at the first election, 1881.

The first officers of Gagen, vacated in 1885, were: Chairman, Daniel Gagen; Supervisors, Odell Woodbury and H. Dow; Treasurer, L. Motzfeldt; Clerk, P. Shay; Assessor, Odell Woodbury; Justice of the Peace, H. Dow. The postoffice was at Freidenland (Frydenlund). Ten votes were cast at the first election in Gagen.

THEY ORGANIZED A COUNTY.

November 11, 1880, within the Lost Nation, Charles H. Larzelere, John Springer and James R. Buckstaff, Chairman and Supervisors, respectively, together with Charles W. McFarland, Fred A. Dodge, Thomas M. Dobbs, A. Smith, S. A. Taylor, David B. Edick, O. J. Yates, Ulysses G. Taylor, E. P. Bridgeman, and James Brennen, organized themselves together as officials of a new county to be known as Langlade County. They elected officers as follows: Charles W. McFarland, County Clerk; Thomas M. Dobbs, Register of Deeds; Fred A. Dodge, County Judge; U. G. Grant, Assistant Register of Deeds; E. P. Bridgeman, County Superintendent of Schools. Other officers were not chosen at the election held November 2, 1880. The county board, according to record No. 1 of the Register of Deeds, Thomas M. Dobbs, consisted of three men. Charles H. Larzelere was Chairman.

This attempt to elect officers for the County of Langlade was made nine months after the state legislature had passed an act changing the name of New County to Langlade County and three months before the legislature had created and perfected Langlade County and established certain towns therein. If these pioneers would have succeeded in their undertaking the county seat would have been established at Lily and the dream of Squire A. Taylor and his supporters would have been fulfilled.

THE GREAT BOILER EXPLOSION

At 9:30 a. m., Friday, February 24, 1905, a terrific explosion startled residents of the south part of Antigo. The boiler in the fire room of the Chris Wunderlich Lumber & Manufacturing Company mill has exploded killing one man instantly and inflicting fatal injuries on another. The man killed was Ed. Ploeger, Engineer. Peter Ingles, seriously injured, was rushed to a hospital, but died.

The boiler, weighing approximately 10,000 pounds, was blown three hundred feet in the air and landed two thousand feet from the mill in front of Bishop's residence on Edison street. It first struck the ground in front of John Herman's residence, tore the front from Cecil's residence but none of the occupants of the residences were killed. A small part of the boiler landed near Springbrook.

Bolts and splinters dropped from the boiler on the high school as it passed over the school building on its swift journey of destruction. School was in session and it was an act of Providence that prevented the death missile from plunging through the building. John Callanan, County Treasurer of Langlade County, was then employed as an Engineer and was switching in the C. & N. W. R. R. Co.'s yards near the flour elevator at the intersection of Dorr street and 7th Avenue. "I saw that object flying in the air but it was so high it looked like a piece of tin." I heard the noise of the explosion but thought it was the air coupling on my engine, that's why I stepped from the cab to look," he said. A few seconds later the boiler had struck the ground. Seven men were employed at the mill that day. The explosion was given nationwide publicity in newspapers.

ANOTHER BOILER EXPLOSION

On February 28, 1911, at 1:30 p. m., a boiler explosion took place at the Gillis saw mill, located in Neva township. One man was slightly scalded. The cause was a defection in the boiler.

S. A. TAYLOR BOOSTED NEW COUNTY.

S. A. Taylor, founder of Langlade (New) County, spent much of his life in advertising the county he was responsible for. A pamphlet he distributed in 1879 and 1880 contained the following interesting data:

THE COUNTY OF NEW, WISCONSIN.
200,000

ACRES OF THE BEST OF FARM LANDS for sale in New County on long time, as hereinafter set forth.

NEW COUNTY

was formed in 1879 and has a population of about 1,200 people.

This Is A Matter Worthy The Attention Of Every Person,

both old and young, farmers, mechanics, and merchants. A portion of the best part of the State of Wisconsin is yet to be settled. An opening for all kinds of business; and what every man should have is a good farm, it matters not what other trade or business he may possess; and

New County, Wisconsin, Is The Place To Secure It, for the least money, and expense of emigration from any portion of the Eastern States, the Canadas or any foreign country.

The County Of New Is Second To None in the State for its fertility of soil, and production of crops of every kind, has an abundance of timber of the best quality, and of all kinds; and is one of the best and purest watered counties in the State. All of its lakes, rivers and streams supply the sweetest and purest of water, and they abound with speckled trout, and fish of every variety.

New County Is Rather Sparsely Settled, the cause of this is, that a large portion of the lands were granted by the General Government to the State for the aid of great improvements in the way of ship canals, railroads, highways, and various other public enterprises, which grants covered nearly all of the unsold lands in the now County of New.

The First Settlements

of the State were in and about Milwaukee, along the shore of Lake Michigan, and at Green Bay and along the line of the State of Illinois, the whole Eastern and Southern portion of the State had been sold to real settlers so that the lands granted were mostly selected in the northern portion of the State and many of these improvements were under process of construction for a long term of years before they were completed, so that the companies and contractors could not secure a title to the lands from the State. So it will be seen that this answers the question, when it is asked, why the lands, if they are of the best quality of soil, timber, water and everything pertaining to a good country, have not been sold to real settlers long before this.

The Best Of Farming Lands Can Be Had

by settlers at from $2.50 to $3.00 per acre, and be paid for in the following manner: First payment, 10 per cent cash down of the total sum of money agreed upon to be paid. Second payment, to build a comfortable house on the land contracted for. Third, fourth and fifth payments are, to clear, fence and till one-eighth part of all the land you bought, each year for the term of three successive years, then the payment of the balance of the purchase money will begin to fall due in three yearly payments with six per cent interest, this gives six years for the payment of the purchase money.

Every Industrious Man Can Get A Good Home Here whether he has any money or not, and by this you will see that these chances are appreciated by a large number of people who have looked for themselves and have become satisfied that this place is preferable to others for securing a good home, as there has more than five hundred real settlers come into the territory that now forms New County within the last year.

The Lands In Question Are All First-Class Farming

well-watered, with abundance of timber, and as for crops they are the best of lands for growing winter wheat, and will produce the best of crops of all kinds. The soil is of a clay loam of black mold, interspersed with a small sprinkling of sand, which makes it a strong as well as a quick, warm soil.

Take New County As A Whole,

there is no better place for the poor to get rich, and the rich to get richer, and it is a conceded fact by all persons knowing of the advantages of this portion of the State of Wisconsin for real settlers and people who want cheap and good homes that every person who has any idea of going West of the State of Wisconsin, if they study their own interests, and the saving or making of money they never will go beyond the boundaries of this State, without first making a thorough investigation of the lands, location and the material advantages that are to be found in the county of New, for a home, health, wealth and prosperity.

When You Take Season and Climate Into Consideration, and the length of the seasons, there could not be anything more pleasant and congenial for the growing of crops, and the beauty of good homes. The snow generally begins to fall about the first of December, at which time there is little or no frost in the ground, there is good sleighing about Christmas, then the winter continues cool and dry until about the first of March, which gives about two months and a half of good sleighing. This makes the country clean and beautiful, then the Spring sets in, and the snow commences going off, and as there is little or no frost in the ground, by the time the snow is gone, the water is all gone from the surface of the ground and it is comparatively dry and ready for ploughing, then comes warm weather which is continuous and steady during the whole season, which is sufficiently lengthy for the growth and ripening of crops, vegetables and vegetation of all kinds.

The Northwestern Railway

runs along the shore of Lake Michigan from Chicago to Milwaukee, thence to Fond du Lac, where it intersects with the main line, passing the whole way through a well settled and a beautiful country. The main line of the road starts at Chicago; the first place of any note that it strikes in the State of Wisconsin, is Janesville which has a population of about 10,000 people, from thence the road courses on northward through a well-settled and fertile country, interspersed with small villages until it reaches Fond du Lac, a city of some 15,000 people, situated at the head of Winnebago Lake, thence along the West shore of the lake to the city of Oshkosh, which has a population of about 17,000 and is a city of immense business, thence to the city of Appleton, which has a population of about 8,000 and is one of the most flourishing manufacturing towns in the country, and has a good mercantile trade, also colleges, churches, and schools of every grade.

At This Place, Or At Appleton Junction, You should Change Cars and then take the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western Railroad for Clintonville, or you can take the same road at Milwaukee, Sheboygan or Manitowoc, and go direct to Clintonville which has a population of about 1,000 people, having first-class dry goods, hardware, grocery, drug and fancy stores, good wagon and blacksmith shops, also factories of various kinds furnished with the best of water-power, to which is attached a good sawmill, and one of the best flouring mills in the state. This is a place where you can get all kinds of merchandise at reasonable prices and also find a good market for all kinds of produce. The village has several churches, good schools, first-class hotels, and as a whole is a very enterprising and prosperous village.

Stages Leave Clintonville Every Day For New, New County, which is a distance of forty-five miles. The next places on the way to New are Pella, Raymond's Mills and Leopolis. These are small places, but are supplied with postoffices, stores, grist mills, sawmills, blacksmith, wagon shops and hotels, and will soon grow to be smart business places.

New Is Centrally Located

for all kinds of business. At the present time, August 1st, 1879, the business of the place is small compared with its capacity and demands. It has, however, a steam saw and shingle mill, hotel, blacksmith shop, and postoffice. There are good roads to and from the place, with mail routes established over them, and is a place where a good trade or business of any kind can be built up in a short time. It is a good location for a custom flouring mill, sawmill, and all kinds of manufacturing, having abundance of water-power for all such purposes, and is surrounded with the best of timber of almost all kinds; and there is no better place for grocery, dry goods and hardware stores, hotels, wagon and blacksmith shops.

New is so centrally located and so easily accessible from all parts of the country, that it is destined to be one of the best of markets and the place for furnishing and distributing supplies, for the whole lumbering interest, and the entire country of Northern Wisconsin.

The Village Of New

is located on the Wolf river, at or near the junction of the Lily river. Both of these streams extend away north across the county of New; they are beautiful streams of water, and are perfectly durable, with an abundance of water power and plenty of water at all times of the year. Building lots can be had free of charge by any one who will erect thereon a respectable dwelling, or business house, and the raw material can be had here as cheap as it can at any other place for building purposes.

All That Is Necessary For Anyone That Wishes A Good Home, in a good country, that is healthy and well supplied with everything that one must have, is to look New County over to satisfy themselves that it is the place above all others to make a home for themselves and families. It matters not what business or occupation they may have followed, it will pay them to investigate all points pertaining to New County and its surroundings before looking or going elsewhere for a home or a business of any kind.

New, New County, Wis.

LINCOLN DISTRICT, NEW SETTLEMENT.

There are about twenty-two settlers in the Lincoln District of Polar township. William Peters came to that district in 1900 from Germany, settling on section 35. August Erickson came from Sweden in 1905, settling on section 26. Frank Rychlik came from Bohemia, taking up land in section 26. He came in 1908. Albert Smola came from Pennsylvania in 1908, settling on section 26, and the same year Frank Hlinsky, a Chicagoan, took up a farm on section 35. This district had one sawmill on section 35, operated by water power. Adolph Blahnik ran it for four years. The first school was held in the William Peters home. Early pupils were Cora Peters, Emma Peters, and Eric Jartzke, while Lena Wendorf was the first teacher. The present school was erected in 1912 on section 25 by C. F. Dallman at a cost of $1,400. The 1921-22 officials of this district were A. Blahnik, Clerk; Louis Peters, Treasurer, and Emil Pautz, Director. The region is rolling and in some places level. Drew Creek runs through it.

In 1883 Squire A. Taylor was called "Old S. A. Taylor" by his enemies who opposed the County of Keeps. In this connection it is interesting to note that Mr. Taylor lived twenty years after that, dying in 1902.

The first mower disposed of in Langlade County was sold in 1883 by the J. C. Lewis Hardware Company. The inhabitants then though the idea of mowers was a "wild dream" of J. C. Lewis'. The old farmers of that day should now see the implements on a Langlade County farm.

In February, 1883, the announcement was made in Antigo "that land was rising in value at a rapid rate and that a tract adjoining the village of Antigo was sold at $25 per acre." This land now is valued at $200 per acre.

LARZELERE PAVED THE WAY.

While Squire A. Taylor was the father of Langlade County, which he succeeded in organizing as New County in 1879, the way was paved for organization in the winter of 1875, four years before organization.

In 1875 Oconto County set off forty-four and a third townships as Langlade township. Langlade township included all of townships in ranges 11, 12, 13 and 14 from township 31 north to the state line.

Oconto County had previous to 1879 divided the townships in such a manner that all of the timber regions of the state line as far north as townships 40, 41 and 42 in ranges 11, 12 and 13 and also in other northern parts of Wisconsin (in Oconto County) could be taxed for the benefit of the settlers down at Oconto and its vicinity. The method of dividing their townships gave Oconto townships the name "stairway townships."

This method of township division offended the heavy timber and land owners, who were not benefited by the division. They demanded a new county.

An example of the stairway township was the town of Pensaukee. It included all that territory in townships 37 and 38, range 13; also townships 34, 35, 36, 37 and 38 of range 14 east, a strip of territory one mile wide running from the southwest quarter of township 34, range 14 east south on the line of townships 33 and 34 between ranges 14 and 15 east, to a point just north of Langlade (village) thence east about a mile, thence south three miles, thence east three miles, thence south three miles to township 31, range 15, thence east on the south line of township 31, through ranges 15, 16 and 17, thence south through townships 30, 29 and 28, to the southwest quarter of township 28, where Pulcifer, Outagamie County, is now located, thence east on the south line of section 28 one mile into section 28, range 19, where the strip connected with township 27, ranges 19, 20 and 21.

Charles Larzelere went to Madison to confer with the County and Town Committee on Organization in the winter of 1875 with the purpose of securing a county to consist of the forty-four and a third townships in Oconto county and then eliminate the stairway system of townships, which was contiguous territory, but unreasonably so because of the description of each township. He was opposed by Oconto lumbermen and mill owners, who wanted the timber tax of northern Wisconsin sent into Oconto County coffers.

He was assisted in Madison by Sam Shaw, who later played an important part in the history of Forest County, and by Attorney M. Carpenter, Dean of the University law school, as well as Congressman Philetus Sawyer.

FIRST A. H. S. BASKETBALL TEAM.

The first basketball team of the Antigo High School was started during Christmas vacation in 1902 by William H. Fuller, now a locomotive engineer on the C. & N. W. R. R., who was then a teacher in the high school.

The only available place then to practice was the exhibition building of the Langlade County Agricultural Society, which was prepared for that purpose by Mr. Fuller and the players. The bounding boards were made and carried to the building. The first baskets were barrel hoops. Games were played also in the old Music Hall, now Brunswick Hall. The members of the first team were: W. H. Fuller, coach; Westley Goodwin, center; Walter Nelson, forward; William Donohue, forward; Adolph Shepek, guard; Harry Clements, guard; George Crowe, forward (died in service during World War); and a Mr. Martin, guard (he drowned at Pelican Lake).

The team played five games, winning four.

SAW THE IMAGE OF CHRIST

In the fall of 1901 Constantin Jankowski, father of Mrs. I. Pawlak, 803 Clermont street, while walking from his son's farmhouse, Rolling township, to his own home a short distance away, vows that he saw the image of Jesus Christ in the sky. He carried a rosary in his hands and began praying. The following spring Mr. Jankowski erected a statue of Christ crucified, on the exact spot. Father G. Zelinski of St. Hyacinth church said Mass at the spot where the statue is erected. Hymns were sung by a choir. The statue is located on the west side of the road near the Jankowski farmhouse, located on section 8, Rolling township 30, range 11 east.

CHIEF OF POLICE McARTHUR KILLED

All Langlade County was shocked June 23, 1905, when it became known that Chief of Antigo Police John McArthur had been killed while attempting the capture of James Weipinger, escaped inmate from the state insane asylum. Sheriff John Driggs then captured Weipinger, who had shot McArthur who didn't see the fugitive perched in a tree. Chief McArthur's funeral was one of the largest ever witnessed. He served as Chief of Police from 1896-97 and again from 1902-1906. He was a favorite with the children of Antigo, and an efficient officer.

FIRST TELEGRAPH OPERATOR

Jerry Dowling in 1885 resigned his position as operator at the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western depot and took charge of the telegraph office in the J. C. Lewis warehouse building.

IRON, LEAD AND OIL EXCITEMENT

In 1887 the city was drilling an artesian well on 5th Avenue and as those in charge cut through the dark granite, talk of iron, lead and oil became prevalent. But it was all talk.

REPORTS ON LANGLADE COUNTY TO THE WISCONSIN ARCHEOLOGICAL SOCIETY.

Mounds reported to exist at Antigo. Reported by Emil Wiese, Elcho, March, 1906.

Indian trading post formerly located on east shore of Post Lake. Several burial mounds also on shores of lake. One explored, human bones and implements found. Indications of camp or village site nearby. Arrowpoints, flint rejectage, etc. Antigo Daily Journal, July 31, 1902. Aug. 1, 1918, E. B. Barr, Duluth, Minn., reported to society that while clearing a tent site on the east bank he uncovered with a shovel a brittle pottery vessel and "all of the large bones and the skull" of an Indian. Mr. Emil Wiese, Elcho, reported on Sept. 6, 1903, the presence of a fine group of mounds at the narrows of Post Lake.

It is considered likely that some of the sources from which early Wisconsin Indians obtained quartzite are in Langlade County.

FIRST ANTIGO LAUNDRY.

The first Antigo laundry was opened by Amanda and Mary Krueger on May 1, 1885, on Superior Street.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The track of the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western from Bryant to Polar was laid under the supervision of George Young, a railway civil engineer, in 1888.

The first Bryant school was held in the law office of Loomis & Foster.

The mill owned by Henry Mitchell of Norwood was sold by him in July, 1889, to D. Brightman of Winnebago, Wisconsin. Mr. Mitchell moved into Antigo.

Charles Van Pelt was the first Superintendent of the Webster Manufacturing Plant at Polar, established in 1888.

Officers of the Antigo Light Guards in 1888 were: F. A. Forbes, J. M. Reed, L. S. Neuman, S. W. Larsen, W. Kiefer and John Blinn.

The late J. Pearson Hughes was the last person to walk across the lower Post Lake bridge erected in 1883 by H. B. Polar, contractor. The second bridge was completed in October, 1899, by John Byrne at a cost of $1,685.

The track from Koepenick to Bass Lake was laid under the direction of David Edick for the Paine Lumber Company.

John Menting had a saw and shingle mill on section 2, Ackley township and also a mill at Morley where he employed 35 men. M. M. Ross and Mr. Edwards erected the mill at Morley over twenty years ago. It was sold by Mr. Menting to the Martin Lumber Co., of Oshkosh, Wis., and was moved away.

The Pence Lake sawmill was erected in 1910-11. Menting & Hickey operated it from 1913 until 1920. It is on section 36, East Upham township. The Langlade Lumber Company has camps on section 23, nearby.

CHAPTER LII.

Commemorative Biographical Record

The Importance of Biography—The Life of W. L. Ackley, Englishman, Prospector, Indian Trader, Farmer, Township Official, Man—Sketches of Other Early Settlers—Biographical Record of Prominent and Representative citizens of the past and present.

Biographical records are of value, not only for their immediate worth, but for future reference. Family genealogy can be preserved in no better way. The history of the nation, the state and the county depends upon the calibre of its people. The data herewith was gathered from the individuals immediately interested and should prove to be a treasured section of this work.

WILLIAM LEROY ACKLEY—FIRST WHITE SETTLER IN LANGLADE COUNTY.

*"Look now abroad-another race has filled
Those populous borders-wide the wood recedes,
And towns shot up, and fertile realms are tilled;
The land is full of harvests and green meads."*

WILLIAM LEROY ACKLEY, the first white settler in Langlade County, was born in the State of New York on or about 1830. Little is known of his boyhood days except that he was a venturesome lad who was lured to the western states by the stories of adventure among the Indian tribes and the plucky fur traders of the great northern wilderness. He came west to the hamlet of Wausau where he stopped for a time before definitely settling in Ackley township, Langlade County, in 1853. Mr. Ackley was associated with P. Hogarty, a proprietor of a stopping place, who had extensive commercial intercourse with Indians and home seekers. He built a log shack on the banks of the Eau Claire river, section 28, when he first came into this vast wild country inhabited by Indians and animals. Young Ackley was twenty-one years old when he first made a claim in this region. He married Me-Da-Gee-Wa-No-Kwa, "Maiden of the Forests," a Chippewa Indian maiden, who bore him two children—De Witt and Charles Ackley. Charles Ackley is a merchant in Wabeno, Forest County; De Witt Ackley is living with the Pottawattomi Indians near Mole Lake, Wisconsin. Ackley, fur trader, lumber cruiser, adventurer, was a leader of the Indians who sought his counsel. He was a just barterer and those who were acquainted with him acknowledged him to be an upright business man. He never took advantage of the Chippewa's in their fur transactions. Most of his fur products were shipped down the Eau Claire river to Schofield and sold to agents of St. Louis fur buyers. Mr. Ackley died November 24, 1894. His wife died March 9, 1899, having lived to be over one hundred years of age.

DANIEL GAGEN, fur trader, pioneer lumberman, picturesque leader in the first Langlade County Board meeting, was born in England in 1835. In the early '60's he came to Eagle River, Wisconsin, where there was a small settlement of English and Scotchmen. Here he established a trading post and bought furs of the Indians. He engaged in logging operations during the winter. He was the first man to log on the Eagle Waters. Dan Gagen took the pick of the pine which grew on the banks of the lakes and streams and, instead of hauling them for miles, rolled them into the River of Lakes.

About the year 1877 he moved to Pine Lake (Hiles, Wis.) which was the headwaters of the Wolf river. Here he farmed and logged until about 1902 when he moved to Three Lakes, Wis. He died in November, 1908, at Three Lakes, Wis. His son, James Gagen, real estate dealer and abstract man, resides at Hudson street and Seventh avenue, Antigo, Wis.

Dan Gagen represented Gagen township in Langlade County until that territory north of the present limits of the county was detached in 1885. His place in county history is with those other sturdy men who came into the forests of this country between 1853 and 1870. They were: Louis Montzfeldt, Hiram B. Polar, Henry Harvey, Charles Larzelere, "Old Dutch" Frank, David Getchell, Henry Strauss, Williard L. Ackley, and S. A. Taylor, all leaders of their time.

THOMAS AND MALCOLM HUTCHINSON, were among the earliest of Langlade County pioneers and have left their splendid records here as monuments to their integrity and thrift. Thomas Hutchinson, the father of Malcolm Hutchinson, well known Langlade County citizen, was born near Nelson, in the Province of New Brunswick, Canada, in June, 1830, the son of Henry and Katherine Hutchinson. He was reared on a farm and when a youth he settled at Oshkosh, Winnebago County, Wisconsin, the lure of the lumbering industry having called him to the thriving occupation in Northern Wisconsin. He cast his first Presidential vote in the Abraham Lincoln-Stephen A. Douglas contest at the virge of the Civil War. In 1875, Mr. Hutchinson moved with his family to Langlade County, settling on the banks of the Wolf river near Langlade, being one of its very early pioneers. Two years later he took up a homestead on section 27, Township 32 (Price), Range 12 East. Here he lived until his demise on October 22, 1912, having lived long enough to see the great pineries slashed, the "iron trail" follow the ox cart, the automobile take the place of the "buckboard," to see cities develop, and the R. F. D. take the place of the mail carrier of the '70's who rode the saddle pony on the old "militaire".

Mr. Hutchinson was married on November 20, 1862, to Anna Farrell, a native of New Brunswick, Canada. Four children were born to this union, namely, Almira, now Mrs. Ben J. Daly of Oshkosh, Wis.; Malcolm, now a resident of Antigo, and Eugenie, now Mrs. William Worman of Seattle, Washington; and Jessie, now Mrs. Charles Powell, of Antigo, Wisconsin.

MALCOLM HUTCHINSON was born at Oshkosh, Winnebago County, on April 9, 1867. When eight years old he moved to eastern Langlade County with his parents and two years later settled at Price township with them. He attended the Price rural schools in the Malcolm District, named after him. There was once a community there and Thomas W. Hutchinson was the first and only postmaster of Malcolm.

Like his father, Malcolm Hutchinson has followed the lumbering industry, surveying and the woods. He has often been County Surveyor of Langlade County. Outside of Price schools he attended Dagget's Business College of Oshkosh for three years and then returned to Price to resume his work in the lumbering and surveying occupation, which fascinated him. He was united in marriage to Katherine Gratten of Oshkosh, Wisconsin, September 1, 1898. To this union eight children were born. One is deceased. Those living are: Paul, Norma, Lura, Jacqueline, Malcolm, Jr., Almyra and Thomas. The Hutchinson family resides at 511 Hudson street, Antigo, they having moved from the old homestead property in Price township in April, 1915. The Hutchinsons are honored and respected as pioneers of the county and in its history they deserve worthy representation. The family attend St. John's church and Mr. Hutchinson is affiliated with the Modern Woodmen of America.

FRANK DVORAK, SR., Manager of the Antigo Water Department, City Treasurer and Councilman, was born in Manitowoc County, Wisconsin, in 1869, the son of Frank and Philomena Dvorak. He attended the common schools of Manitowoc County and the Manitowoc High School from which he entered the Oshkosh Normal. He moved to Langlade County in 1882 with his parents, residing on a farm in the town of Antigo until 1902. Mr. Dvorak moved into the city of Antigo in the spring of 1903. He was elected County Treasurer in 1906, serving for two terms, 1907-11. He was then appointed City Treasurer of Antigo in September, 1911. He was elected to that office in the spring of 1912. He was elected City Commissioner under the commission form of government in the spring of 1914, being re-elected in 1918, serving as City Treasurer, as well as City Commissioner. Mr. Dvorak is a member of the Public Library Board, the Board of Public Works and a Jury Commissioner of Langlade County. During his public career he has been held in high regard as a man of good character, ability and integrity. He was united in marriage in 1890 to Miss Margaret Plzak, to which union five sons and two daughters were born. One son and two daughters died in infancy. Those living are: Frank J. Dvorak, Jr., Assistant Cashier of the First National Bank of Antigo, who in September, 1920, was united in marriage to Miss Marion Ver Bryck, daughter of Frank P. Ver Bryck, a well known pioneer locomotive engineer.

FRANK DVORAK

Prominent public official, who has been a resident of Langlade County since 1882.

The other sons are: Theodore, employed by the Thunder Lake Co.; Charles and Richard, students.

Frank Dvorak, Sr., is a member of the I. O. O. F., B. P. O. E., L. O. O. M., the Beavers, where he is now holding the office of Secretary, the Z. C. B. J. and M. W. A. lodges.

DAVID B. EDICK. Long before Langlade County was created, and at a time when the Military Road was a "new thoroughfare," a young man of splendid physique and mentally alert to the wonderful opportunities of the great "new north," cast his lot with the Wolf river country. This man has lived for forty-eight years in that country, which has since blossomed into an extensive and productive section of Wisconsin. It was on November 13, 1874, that David B. Edick, the subject of this sketch, arrived at Medina, Outagamie County, Wisconsin, after a four-day journey from Cleveland, Ohio. Young Edick was seeking his fortune in the great expanse of Upper Wisconsin. He was born at Western Star, Summit County, Ohio, February 20, 1850, the son of Nicholas H. and Anna M. (Koplin) Edick, being the first of ten children. When but eighteen months old he moved with his parents to Lorraine County, Ohio, where he lived until he was fifteen years old. From then on he made his own way through the world. He received an elementary education equivalent to the 8th grade of today. It was in the spring of 1865 that the Edick family moved to Medina County, Ohio, to settle on a farm.

Nine years later, 1874, the parents of young David decided to move to Garfield, Pawnee County, Kansas. Young David stayed in Ohio, leaving Cleveland on November 9, 1874, for Wisconsin, where he began his picturesque career as a pioneer of the Wolf river country. The first summer he followed his trade of a cheesemaker at Pickett, Winnebago County, Wisconsin, in 1875. That fall he came to Langlade County, spending the first night in the "old Henry Strauss stopping place" on section 17, Township 33, Range 13 East. He slept on the rough floor of the place. He worked as a woodsman for Timothy Crane on Crane Lake the first winter. In the spring of 1876 he went to Illinois, returning on October 19, 1876, working at Lily for Timothy Crane during the winter of 1876-77. The following spring he located on a farm, sections 15 and 16, township 33, range 13 East, and stayed on the farm from 1877 to 1881, inclusive.

Here he conducted a stopping place also. Mr. Edick was united in marriage to Mary L. Tourtillotte on June 22, 1880. Miss Tourtillotte was a pioneer teacher at Nine Mile Creek and also at Polar. After spending their honeymoon at Appleton they returned to the farm. In October, 1882, they moved to Lily, where Mr. Edick was proprietor of a hotel for one year, following which he logged on Stoney Lake with Henry Tourtillotte, his father-in-law. For one year he logged there and in the fall of 1884 moved to Lily, where he spent the next quarter of a century. For ten years he tended dam at Lily for the Keshena Improvement Company and in the winter of 1887-88 logged with J. E. Schultz as his associate. April 5, 1893, he started in as a log buyer and cruiser for the Paine Lumber Company and was a valued and trusted employe of that concern until January 1, 1915, when their holdings were taken over by the Langlade Lumber Company, whom Mr. Edick was retained by. He is a practical woodsman in every sense of the word, having had nearly fifty years of experience, probably more than any other man now active in the lumbering industry of Wisconsin.

Mr. and Mrs. Edick had ten children. Five are now deceased. They are Nicholas Henry, born in 1881. He died in infancy and is buried at Lily. Anna died in infancy; Mary died when ten months old; Ralph died on October 9, 1918, the day his brother, Lieut. Wm. Edick, was wounded on the battlefields in France. He (Ralph) died at Flagstaff, Arizona. He was a talented musician, a great organizer of bands. He is buried at Omro, Wis. His wife, Juanita Jackson Edick, to whom he was married in 1916, and one son, Robert, survive him. Charles D., born in Keshena, was electrocuted at Oslo, Manitowoc County, on June 11, 1922. He was an expert meterman and electrician and met his death while at duty. He is survived by his wife, Anna (Pautz) Edick, to whom he was married on January 1, 1918, and one child, Charles, who was born on November 24, 1884. He was buried at Omro on June 15, 1922.

The five children living are: James Harvey, of Manitowoc, Wis., who married Blanche Rhodes, daughter of Earl Rhodes, on August 17, 1917; George L., who married Mabel Kurtz at Danville, Ind. He is now at Washington, D. C., employed by the government as a Rural Engineer and draftsman for the U. S. They have two children, Mildred and Kenneth. William J., a reserve officer in the U. S. A., now in the Secret Service of the U. S., married Josephine Olsen. They have one child, William J. Jr. Mr. Edick served as a Lieutenant in the Word War. He was wounded in combat. Their home is in San Francisco, Calif. Edward Everett is Assistant Principal of the Weyauwega (Wis.) High School and athletic coach. He spent 28 months overseas during the war, part of the time in the aviation. He will soon complete a chemical engineering course at the University of Wisconsin. John E., now in Oshkosh, Winnebago, County, Wisconsin, is a student of the State Normal. He is following out his intention to become a Chemical Engineer.

Mrs. David Edick passed away on October 8, 1915, and is buried at Omro, Wisconsin, in the family lot.

David Edick is a member of the Masonic orders in which he takes a keen interest. His mother passed away at the age of 89 at Albuquerque, N. M., eight months after a visit from her son. His father died in March, 1894, and is buried in Albuquerque, N. M., also. He was eighty years old when he died.

David Edick has lived a life on honesty and his character as a citizen is of the highest type. His sons, four of whom served in the Word War, have grown to manhood and are all experts in their chosen fields of endeavor—an honor to the name of Edick.

Such is the story of David B. Edick—pioneer, woodsman, citizen and man.

WILLIAM WEGNER, prominent Peck farmer and leader, was born September 8, 1876, the son of Mary and Michael Wegner, in the Town of Gibson, Manitowoc County. He attended the public and parochial schools during his boyhood after which he journeyed to the scene of the great lumbering industry of northern Wisconsin and Michigan, working in the woods and mills. When he abandoned this field of endeavor he had attained the position of head sawyer. In 1897 he came to the Town of Peck, Langlade County, where he has since resided. Mr. Wegner took up his present farm on the south half or the southwest quarter of section 22 in the summer of 1905. It comprises eighty acres of land situated near the west branch of the Eau Claire river on route No. 1. Mr. Wegner was married to Laura Schwantes of Lincoln County, July 19, 1905. To this union three children, two boys, Amos and Ogden, and one girl, Ruby, were born. Besides operating his farm, Mr. Wegner has found time to operate a store and a saloon on section 22. This business he conducted from 1903 until August, 1909, when it burned down. He is a leader in Peck township affairs, and has served as Supervisor, Township Chairman and School Treasurer. The last two offices he served in eight consecutive years, exact dates of which are found in Peck township history. Mr. Wegner is

The following spring Mr. Janes bought property where the Molle building is now located and moved his family here. JAMES J. HEALY. Stability of character and purpose and a high order of citizenship are traits which are found with a pleasing degree of frequency in the men who have witnessed the period of expansion in Langlade County from the day when the ox cart and tote road were supreme to this era of modern industrial and civic progress. Hearing much of northern Wisconsin, he made a trip up into Langlade County and purchased eighty acres of land in Neva township in 1882. Here he settled. His land was purchased from Upham & Russell, Shawano, Wis., land agents, for $450. Mr. Behm cleared his land with difficulty. Mr. Behm was married first to Anna Sipek, who died a short time later. He remarried to Elizabeth Sipek. Mr. and Mrs. Behm had eight children—Fred, Joseph, Frank of Bavaria P. O., Summit township; John Behm, Neva township; Fred and Joseph reside in Antigo, Wis. perity of their community, and having succeeded themselves, are almost invariably ready to assist others to success, thus materially contributing to the public welfare.

Among the citizens of Langlade County who have been the architects of their own career and who have builded wisely and well, none stands higher in esteem than William H. Wolpert, prominent clothing merchant and leader in city affairs. Mr. Wolpert was born May 24, 1879. When a boy of ten years he came to Antigo, the county-seat of Langlade County in the year 1889, but four years after that little com-

WILLIAM H. WOLPERT

Pioneer Antigo clothing merchant, former member of the National Emergency Clothing Board and active public citizen. Mr. Wolpert has been a resident of Antigo since 1889.

WILLIAM H. WOLPERT. It is almost entirely upon the standing of its business men and leading citizens, upon their reliability, integrity, enterprise and public spirit, that the prestige of any community rests. That city or community is indeed fortunate when it can boast of a number of self-made men, for, while they have been advancing their own interests, they have at the same time been forwarding the growth and pro-munity had been incorporated as a city. Here he attended the public schools and in 1892 he left Antigo to enter the Metropolitan Business College of Chicago, Ill. He returned to Antigo in December, 1895, and the following year became an associate of M. Krom, in the conduct of a department store, one of Antigo's first. This copartnership lasted until December 14, 1910, after which Mr. Wolpert engaged in the retail clothing business in Antigo alone, commencing June 15, 1911. The William H. Wolpert & Brother clothing firm has since, through the practice of honorable dealing, gained an enviable reputation and the confidence of the people of Langlade County.

When the World War broke out the conservation of those necessary articles of commerce vital to the winning of the conflict became imperative. Accordingly the President of the National Retail Clothiers of the United States appointed a board of twelve men, representative of the entire clothing industry of the nation, to devise ways and methods of regulating the style for civilian dress to the end that millions of yards of woolen cloth be saved to the ultimate benefit of the fighting forces of the country. Wisconsin and more particularly Langlade County was signally honored by having as a member of that distinguished body none other than William H. Wolpert. The board acted in conjunction with the clothing manufacturers and the Commercial Economy Board of Washington, D. WALTER DASKAM. Among the members of that class of self-made men of whom Langlade County has reason to be proud, men, who without assistance, have fought the battles of life without capital and influential friends, and who have worked their way to the top of the ladder by sheer force of their own ability and industry, Walter Daskam, Cashier of the Fidelity Savings Bank, takes a prominent place. Mr. Daskam was born in Chilton, Calumet County, Wisconsin, on August 8, 1872, the son of John W. and Caroline (Ashdown) Daskam. When ten years of age he moved with his parents to the village of Antigo, then a few buildings in a forest. The old Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western railroad had been in this region but a few months before then. He attended the public schools of Antigo and the Antigo High School. Following his school days Mr. Daskam was employed by A. Goldberg as a salesman, was a bank clerk and bookkeeper in the old Bank of Antigo, was a bookkeeper for the J. C. Lewis (hardware) Co. L. W. FILYES. The late L. W. Filyes was a man of unusual force of character. He was born in Brillion, Wisconsin, on March 30, 1872. When a boy of three years of age his father died at Waukesha, Wisconsin. His mother passed away when he was a youth of seventeen years. Thus from the start of life he was denied the guiding hand of a father and mother. He received his early education while living with an uncle and aunt on a farm near Brillion. With his cousin he constructed a system of telegraphy from one house to the other and it was at this time that he mastered telegraphy. He often walked to town every Saturday to practise telegraphy. When but sixteen years of age he held his first position as a station agent for the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad Company. He then secured employment from Mr. Underwood at Appleton, Outagamie County, Wisconsin, as a bookkeeper. While engaged in that occupation he attended business college in the evening. He later became station agent at Birnamwood and for six years was in that village. From Birnamwood he went to Babcock, Wisconsin, to become a Train Dispatcher on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad. He moved to Oshkosh, Winnebago County, Wisconsin, from Babcock and entered the employ of the Paine Lumber Company with which concern he was affiliated for fourteen years, at Bass Lake and at Oshkosh. He held various positions of trust and responsibility with the Paine Lumber Company until he became the superintendent of their extensive operations at Bass Lake, Upham township. While thus engaged in Upham township he was regarded as one of the outstanding leaders of the township, was admired as an honest and efficient legislator who zealously cared for the interests of the township and the county. Mr. Filyes was honored with the office of township chairman several times, was school treasurer, school clerk, town clerk and held other places of importance in the township. He aided in the construction of some of the best roads in the county.

It was through his efforts that the first County Agent was secured for Langlade County and he worked harmoniously with F. G. Swoboda for the general benefit of the county. The potato conventions successfully conducted at Antigo during Mr. Swoboda's tenure in office were largely the result of Mr. Filyes' zeal. He it was who secured Mrs. Nellie Kedzie Jones of Madison for a highly successful potato demonstration in Antigo. Mr. Filyes was an active booster of the agricultural possibilities of the county and was one of the leading county exhibitors at both the Langlade County and the Wisconsin State fairs. During the World War he was chairman of the Y. M. C. A. campaign, gave much of his time to Liberty Loan and Red Cross drives, besides contributing liberally to these funds. He was Chairman of the Red Cross drive in Antigo and the county at one time during the war. He moved to Antigo in 1915, having engaged in business for himself. At the time of his death he was engaged in extensive logging operations at Lily, Wis.

L. W. Filyes died on March 9, 1919. His death removed from the ranks of the leading citizens of Langlade County a man who had done much toward a greater and better community.

JOSEPH JULE DUQUETTE. The story of the pioneer would be incomplete if the hardships and trials of those first settlers were not set down. The Duquette family was one of the first of the settlers in Antigo. Joseph Jule Duquette, a prominent Antigo merchant of this day, was born on July 13, 1874, at Norton Mills, Vermont, the son of Joseph Jule and FRED SCHMEISSER. The life history of the gentleman whose name heads this brief review has been commensurate with that of Langlade County where he has made his home since his birth in Polar township, September 23, 1883. His father was a native of Germany, having been born in Hamburg in the year 1845. After he came to the United States he settled in Polar township, as a pioneer settler of that section of the county. He was united in marriage to Fredericka Demlow to which union thirteen children were born. Five boys and six girls of this family are now living. They are Ed of Elcho, Carl and Herman, Jr., of Polar township and Fred, the subject of this sketch, and Alvin of the city of Antigo. The daughters are Augusta, now Mrs. Ed Boernemann of Polar; Tillie, now Mrs. John Newberry of Antigo; Emma, now Mrs. Albert Krueger of Polar; Sophia, now Mrs. H. Up to 1910 he engaged in that pursuit and then logged extensively at Elcho, Pearson, Long Lake and other places. He then took over eighty acres of land in Antigo township, known as the Suburban Farm, because of its closeness to Antigo. In May, 1919, he was selected at the beginning of Mayor Hanzel's administration to take active charge of the office of City Street Commissioner of Antigo. He has filled the position of trust and responsibility with credit and success to himself and the city with a minimum amount of expense to the taxpayers.

Mr. Schmeisser was united in marriage to Elizabeth Byrne, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Byrne, pioneer Antigo settlers, and to this union three children were born, namely: Patricia, Lorraine and Valerie. The family attends St. John's church of Antigo. Mr. Schmeisser is a member of Antigo Council No. 1002, Knights of Columbus. During the World War the Wojtasiaks did their share to make the world safe for democracy. Francis enlisted at once as a private in the Franco-Polish army and soon reached the rank of 1st Lieutenant. He was wounded in an airplane engagement while fighting on the Russian front against the Bolsheviks. Joseph was a Corporal in the 107 Trench Mortar Battery and his name will be found in the roster of that unit elsewhere in this book.

Mr. Cherf has led a life of industry, is of high standing in his community and as one of the first of the pioneers, has lived to see Antigo grow from nothing nearly a half century ago to a thriving city of nearly ten thousand energetic souls.

Fraternally, Mr. Cherf is affiliated with the E. F. U. lodge.

THOMAS GRESKOVIK. Rolling township is the home of some of the earliest settlers in Langlade County. The parents of Thomas Greskoviak, the subject of this sketch, settled in that township in March, 1888, when it was yet a sparsely settled community.

Thomas Greskoviak was born on February 19, 1892, the son of Agnes and Albert Greskoviak. He was the last of five children in the family. He attended the rural school in District No. 3, of Rolling following which he engaged in farming for four years. During the winter months he began to log and was engaged in that occupation for five years. He then followed railroading for three years. During the summer months, for five consecutive seasons, he engaged in the threshing business, and at that time was one of the county's leading threshermen. He became proprietor of the Antigo Bottling Works in 1919 and operated that plant until December 1, 1921, when he sold to the Taylor Beverage & Candy Co. of Rhineland, Wis.

Mr. Greskoviak has since been engaged in financing and distributing a fumigating container, which will, no doubt, have a great demand. The container can be worn in a pocket and is a safeguard against diseases, particularly colds and influenza. Mrs. Agnes Greskoviak is still living, residing in Antigo township. Albert Greskoviak passed away on April 29, 1922, and is buried in the Antigo Catholic cemetery. He had sold his farm in 1920 and spent his last years in retirement in the city of Antigo.

MICHAEL F. CROWE, a retired pioneer locomotive engineer, residing at 836 Superior street, Antigo, Wisconsin, was born in Schuylkill County, Pennsylvania, on June 11, 1850, the son of Cornelius and Mary (Garvey) Crowe. He was the fifth of eight children. When he reached the age of twelve he was taken out of school to begin work in the anthracite coal mines. The Civil War was then raging and due to the shortage of man power the boys were used in menial work about the mines. It was Mr. Crowe's duty to haul coal from the mines on a cart to which a mule was hitched. At the close of the war, 1865, he moved with his parents to Neenah, Winnebago County in 1866. A half year later, Cornelius Crowe took up a tract of land in Grand Chute township, near Appleton, Wis. When Mr. Crowe had worked for three years on the farm he started out to seek his fortune, going to Cheyenne, Wyoming, which then consisted of nine buildings, eight of which were saloons and the ninth a trading post. English traders were there at that time purchasing buffalo hides. Mr. Crowe hired out to a Mr. Van Dueren, cattle owner, of Red Oak, Iowa, as a cattle herder. The equipment consisted of two bronchos, a revolver and a sawed-off shotgun, used to blind cattle in a stampede.

He stayed in that service for two years, being stationed between Cheyenne and Ft. Larra, Wyo. He returned to the farm in Grand Chute and a little while later hired out as a brakeman on the old M. L. S. & W. R. R. Co. Gerry Donohue was then Superintendent and the road went as far as New London, Wis. He first "braked" for Conductor "Vet" Graves. Accidents among brakemen were numerous and therefore Mr. Crowe entered the firing service in 1877. Three years later he was promoted, 1880, to the rank of an engineer. He first piloted Engine No. 1, called the "Ben Jones." He served as an engineer on the old Lake Shore road until it was purchased by the Northwestern road in 1893 and thereupon Mr. Crowe was in the employ of the latter concern in passenger service for nearly thirty years and for eight years on the Wolf River Branch out of Antigo, Wis. He was pensioned after nearly fifty years of railroad service on December 1, 1921. May 14, 1922, Langlade Division, B. of L. E., of which he has been a member for over forty years, presented Engineers H. Darton and George Watson, together with Mr. Crowe, with a Badge of Honor, which they prize very highly.

Mr. Crowe was united in marriage August 12, 1884, to Mary Hickey, daughter of Michael and Mary Hickey, of New London, Wis. To this union three children were born, as follows: George, deceased, was born May 27, 1885, in Antigo, Wis. J., on October 30, 1918, and was buried with military honors at Antigo, Wis.

Niel Crowe, the second son, was born April 27, 1889. He is a physician and surgeon at Delavan, Wisconsin. He served in the World War as a Captain, being stationed at Manchester, England, in the Western General Hospital there.

John Earle Crowe, the third son, was born December 27, 1896. He is now a student in the College of Medicine of Marquette University, from which he graduates as a dentist in 1923.

MARTIN D. ROBRECHT. In the early history of Langlade County there are many accounts of the trials and brave sacrifices of those who are numbered among the first settlers of the various districts and townships. Without these courageous pioneers the bustle of urban existence would not at this day replace the low flight of the prairie chicken, the wild fowl and the Wolf pack. Among the families that have contributed their share toward the development of Langlade County is that of Martin D. Robrecht, Senior and family. Martin D. Robrecht, Jr., was born in Bremen, Germany, September 18, 1870, the son of Martin D. and Johanna (Koch) Robrecht. When a child of thirteen he moved with his parents to the United States. The journey across the Atlantic was a stormy and perilous one for these hardy immigrants to the New World. They left Germany on January 23, 1883, and arrived at Defiance, Ohio, their destination, February 13, 1883, being twenty-one days on the trip, two days of which were spent going from New York to Ohio. The father settled on a farm in Henry County, Ohio, in the spring of 1883 and in the fall of 1886 decided to locate in Northern Wisconsin. Arriving in Langlade County the family lived with the Carl Frill family, pioneer Antigo township settlers, until their own little cabin home was erected in Polar township on section 30. Martin Robrecht, Sr., purchased a half of the Johnson Hutchins homestead located in the section named in Polar township. The country was a vast wilderness. Thus young Martin became a valuable asset to his father in chopping away the forest trees, pulling stumps and clearing the farm, which was a tract of virgin timber. Forty acres were cleared with the axe. It was on this farm that Martin Robrecht Sr., spent the rest of his life, which ended Deember 14, 1912. He has lived to see a prosperous farm grow from a once wild country; to see a city where when he came Antigo was but a hamlet. His wife still lives on the farm.

He was Assessor of Polar township for two years; leaving the farm he became engaged as a carpenter for the Chicago & Northwestern railroad for a time; was employed as City Marshal of Antigo under the Mayoralty term of the late T. W. Hogan for a year. In 1900 he was appointed as a Deputy State Conservation Warden and served efficiently until 1908 for eight years. He has held the office of Deputy Sheriff for the past twenty years. In 1913 he became branch manager of the Pabst Brewing Company interests in Antigo and on September 29, 1919, he purchased their entire interests and now conducts a beverage and soft drink distributing agency of his own. He was appointed as Under-Sheriff by Edward Buchen. JULIUS BELOW. It is not always the men of a community who make the greatest clamor and who take the prominent places who contribute the most to the solid growth and development of a community. It is, rather, an undisputable fact that some of the quiet, steady-going and persistent men have left more indelible marks upon their home town than a showy individual. Among these reliables is none other than Julius Below, pioneer tailor and chiropractor. He studied his Chiropractic profession in Elizabeth Hospital. Mr. Below was born in Greminz, Germany, March 29, 1858, the son of Freida (Von Bork) and August Below. He attended the public schools of his birthplace and then learned the tailor trade and the profession now known as Chiropractics. Mr. Below immigrated to the United States, April 27, 1881, and worked in New York City thirteen weeks before coming to Oshkosh, Winnebago County, Wisconsin, where for seven years he followed his chosen field of endeavor. PETER PETROWSKI. A pioneer Antigo resident, who has been employed by the old Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western Railroad and the Chicago & Northwestern railroad for years, was born in Offen, German Poland, on April 16, 1855, the son of Carrie (Ossowskae) and Jacob Petrowski. He attended the parochial schools of Offen after which he secured employment on the railroad entering Offen. In 1881 he was united in marriage to Miss Anna Zolodawske of Offen. The following year, Mr. and Mrs. Petrowski sailed from the native land to the United States, coming direct to Langlade County, Wisconsin. They settled at Antigo. John and Benjamin both served their country gallantly. John was in a hospital before and after his overseas experiences. John enlisted in March, 1918, serving a year overseas with the 112th Machine Gun Battalion of the 29th Division in the Alsace and Meuse Argonne battles, the most terrific in which American infantrymen participated. He was honorably discharged in July, 1919. Benjamin served with Co. L. 125th Michigan Infantry. He was wounded in the arm by machine gun bullets while in the Meuse Argonne sector. He was also shell shocked as a result of his war services and is now in the U. S. hospital, Maywood, a suburb of Chicago, Ill.

JOHN HOLLEY. Langlade County, it has been fittingly said, owes her greatest and best development to those men who have given their time and lives to the cultivation of the then waste places of the county and those who have aided in the commercial and industrial growth of Antigo, the county-seat, and its vicinity. One of the citizens of Antigo whose energy, sagacity and industry has enabled him to aid in the up-building of an important commercial enterprise, The Antigo Manufacturing Company, is John Holley.

John Holley was born in Ballycairn, Waterford County, Ireland, on March 15, 1847. As a boy Mr. Holley spent some time in the land of his nativity coming to the United States after the death of his mother. He immigrated to this country with his father, three brothers and two sisters, settling at New Orleans, Louisiana. When the father died the sisters and brothers separated and gradually became scattered to different points in the south. John Holley spent part of his boyhood days in Kentucky from where he went to Cincinnati, Ohio. From Ohio he came north to Wisconsin and took up residence with a sister, who had previously moved to Menasha, Winnebago County, Wisconsin. He made his first trip into Northern Wisconsin when he was a lad of sixteen. At that time he came to Merrill, called Jenny then, and floated a raft of logs down the Wisconsin and Mississippi rivers. This trip was a long and dangerous one over falls and rapids but at the elapse of six weeks he had safely arrived at his destination, St. Louis, Mo. Following this hazardous experience Mr. Holley spent some time as a pilot on the Great Lakes and subsequently engaged in the timber industry in the great "pineries" of Northern Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota. After his marriage to Miss Mattie Babcock of Neenah, Winnebago County, Wisconsin, in 1885, Mr. and Mrs. Holley moved to Marshfield, Wood County, Wisconsin, where Mr. Holley engaged as foreman in the manufacturing plant of Ex-Governor William H. Upham. In 1891 he came to Antigo, then six years old as an incorporated city, and in company with two brothers-in-law, H. A. Babcock, of Neenah, George Maxwell and G. K. Meneely, started the Antigo Manufacturing Company.

The plant was the first manufacturing plant in Antigo to establish a ten hour day and a weekly pay system. Later the company purchased the Henry Sherry Company at Kent and operated a small mill there for a number of years. A mill was operated at Mattoon, Shawano County, Wisconsin, by the same concern for several years. The Antigo Manufacturing Company originally manufactured staves, heading and broom handles but now is engaged in the manufacture of broom handles only.

The Holley family reside at 303 Sixth Avenue. Four children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Holley, as follows: Morris, the eldest, died in infancy; Malinda, now Mrs. Newton Rosenheimer, of Kewaskum, Washington County, Wisconsin; Mary, now Mrs. Ernest Johnson, of Iron River, Michigan; and Harriet, who resides with her parents in Antigo. During the long career of John Holley in Langlade County, he has ever possessed the respect and confidence of his fellow citizens and in a work of this character deserves honorable reference.

CARL OLSEN. Among the men of Langlade County who have won the confidence and esteem of their fellow men by the ability they have displayed while engaged as a public servant, none are better known than Carl Olsen, of Elcho township, the present Highway Commissioner of Langlade County. Commissioner Olsen was born at Larvik, Norway, September 26, 1872, the son of Ole G. Olsen and Trena Christoferson Olsen. During his boyhood he attended the public schools of Norway. When but eighteen years of age he immigrated to the United States, arriving in this country in September, 1890. He settled at Rhinelander, Oneida County, Wisconsin, where he engaged in sawmill work and was employed on the Wisconsin river in the lumbering industry. He stayed at Rhinelander until January, 1900, when he then moved to Elcho township, where he has since resided. He lived in Elcho village for about three years working for the Jones Lumber Company as a carriage rider and also worked in their lumber yard. He then purchased eighty acres of land northeast of Elcho and has, with his family, lived on that property since. For four winters he logged extensively for Richardson Brothers, of Sheboygan Falls, Wisconsin.

Mr. Olsen was married at Rhinelander, Wisconsin, on November 27, 1897, to Emelia Warg, to which union nine children were born—seven sons and two daughters, namely, Delia, Orville, Clarence, Friedolf, Edwin (deceased), Rudolf, Emil, Edward, and Inez.

Mr. Olsen is a member of the Elcho Lodge of the Mystic Workers of the World. The family attends the Norwegian Lutheran church. Mr. Olsen has held the position of County Highway Commissioner since January, 1917, being elected at the November, 1916, session of the Langlade County Board. During his administration the roads of the County have been developed to a higher degree of efficiency than at any time previously.

DENNIS VANOOYEN. It was to the pioneer who blazed the way to civilization and made a vast wilderness bloom and blossom like a rose that credit and honor is due. The Vanoooyen family was one of the earliest of Langlade County settlers who played their part in the general advancement of Antigo and the County. Dennis Vanoooyen, the subject of this sketch, was born in the city of Appleton on November 26, 1883, the son of Nina (Rodney) and Paul Vanoooyen. During his boyhood he attended the public schools of Antigo and later began his apprenticeship as a mason and bricklayer. He is an expert in his chosen trade, which he has followed for many years. Mr. Vanoooyen has laid brick in the construction of some of the best buildings in the city of Antigo.

The Vanoooyen family moved to Langlade County when Dennis was seven years old.

Dennis Vanoooyen was united in marriage to Miss Ina Boettcher, the daughter of Ferdinand Boettcher, pioneer Norwood township settler, on June 8, 1905. still living, having seen Antigo and vicinity grow from "a wilderness hamlet" to a modern little city of nearly ten thousand inhabitants.

PROSSER BROTHERS. Agriculture offers blessings in the greatest plenty, but does not allow us to take them in idleness. True there are those who are content to travel along the rut of mediocrity, taking from their land a bare living, but the full measure of success in farming only comes to those who are willing to work hard and faithfully, to observe changed conditions and practices and to remember that the only true success in life is that gained through honorable dealing. In this connection it is not inappropriate to mention the achievements of the Prosser Brothers.

In the spring of 1914 five young men took over 225 acres of excellent agricultural land in section 17, Antigo township. Since then they have developed this farm into one of the county's most productive areas. The entire acreage is under intense cultivation. They have 160 acres in Elcho township also under their care and proprietorship, 60 acres of which are cultivated.

In 1922 the young men planted the largest potato field in the county. 140 acres of their potatoes are of the Early Ohio and Early Irish Cobbler varieties. They also have the Rural New Yorkers and the Russet Rurals. The potatoes have yielded on an average of between 250 and 350 bushels per acre, depending upon the variety.

When the Prosser Brothers took over their place a farmer, less successful and not willing to experiment, scoffed at producing profitable yields of crops in "a farm of quack grass". The scoff of that farmer has been turned into amazement as the Prosser place developed.

Situated at the junction of 64 and 39, state highways, and with the Wolf River Branch, C. & N. W. near by, the city of Antigo but a mile away, the Prosser farm is ideally located. Soon a warehouse and a Fairbanks-Morse scales will be installed and a spur track run from the Wolf river branch to the warehouse. Then the Prosser brothers, James, Harold, Marvin, Ray and John, will engage in not only the cultivation but the purchasing of potatoes in carload lots.

IZZE COHEN. Perhaps it is true that each individual is born with one natural gift, but not every one seeks to discover it, or, finding it, has the opportunity to nurture or develop it. History and biography prove, however, that many of the most successful and brilliant careers in the direction of law, medicine, church, commerce or literature, have felt the natural bent for their life work in youth. Here and there are found those, who, at the open door of manhood, find also the door open to their chosen field of effort. In this connection respectful attention is called to Izze Cohen, who has gained a prominent place among the business and commercial leaders of the county. Mr. Cohen was born in Russia, the son of David and Fannie Cohen, on March 18, 1887. When sixteen years of age he immigrated to the United States, settling in Chicago. Here he began his life work. This lad, ambitious and thrifty, in time became fully absorbed in American ideals and customs. He was a native of Agoralecha, Greece, where in 1885 he was born, the son of George and Anastasia Adraktas. For six months he stayed in New York and then moved westward to Chicago where he was employed in some of the best known of United States

In 1913 he erected a modern structure to house his business there and on June 20, 1915, fire, which came from an adjacent building, was responsible for his business being burned to the ground. Mr. Adraktas then visited Antigo, decided to locate here, and on June 19, 1915, with $200 as his only capital, except much energy and grit, he opened the Adraktas Sweet Shop, which since has been very successful. Two years later he purchased the Daskam block, a splendid two-story brick structure in which he has his business, flats, office rooms and a lodge room and dance hall. THOMAS E. CAVANAUGH. The trials of the pioneers of Langlade County were discouraging, thus only settlers of a courageous spirit weathered the storms and hardships of the new settlers' life. Among the early settlers in Antigo township was the Edward Cavanaugh family. Thomas Cavanaugh, the subject of this sketch, was born in Appleton, Wisconsin, on August 30, 1866, the son of Edward and Margaret (Kevin) Cavanaugh, and was the oldest child in the family. When a boy of fourteen years he moved to the town of Antigo with his parents, arriving in that township on November 1, 1881. Previously, in 1879, Edward Cavanaugh had purchased a farm in section 6 of Antigo township, then called Springbrook township. For eight years young Thomas lived on the farm, clearing the forests, cutting wood, cultivating the crops and doing other work necessary. Then the family moved into Antigo, a growing little city. Thomas had but a meagre education, having attended the Third Ward School, Appleton, Wis., and spent one winter in an Ackley township rural school. He worked in the woods, on farms, sawmills, one winter with Val. P. Rath, veteran County Clerk, and was employed on a M. L. S. & W. work train in 1885. In 1886 he began his career as a railroad brakeman, beginning that work in November, 1886. Three years later, 1889, he was promoted to Night Yard Master and in June, 1891, received another promotion, being transferred to Milwaukee, where he was until February 2, 1906, when he was returned to Antigo to assume full charge as Yard Master of the Antigo yards of the C. & N. W. R. R. Co., which position he has maintained as a reward for responsibility and service.

Mr. Cavanaugh was married on February 20, 1895, to Ellen Buckley, then of Milwaukee, but a native of Canada. Six children were born, four of whom are now living. Marie and Ileen are deceased. The other children are Edward, James, Alice and Kathleen. The devoted wife of Mr. Cavanaugh passed away on February 4, 1912. The Cavanaugh residence is at 622 Lincoln street.

Edward and Margaret Cavanaugh, his father and mother, and pioneers of Langlade County, lived to see Antigo and the county at large grow into a thriving and progressive community. Edward Cavanaugh died in 1913, two years after the death of his wife, Margaret. Both are at rest in Appleton, Wisconsin.

James Cavanaugh, a brother of Thomas Cavanaugh, came to Antigo at the same time the rest of the family did, in 1881. He is now deceased, as is his wife. One son, Paul, a student of the University of Wisconsin, survives, and makes his home with Thomas Cavanaugh.

NICHOLAS BOLL. One of the pioneer families of Langlade County was that of Nicholas J. Boll, a native of Germany, who settled in the city of Antigo in 1885. No account of Langlade County's history would be complete without a sketch of this well known citizen, who passed away from this world on May 27, 1911, at the advanced age of eighty-two years.

Nicholas Boll was born in Dumstadt, Germany. He spent the first sixteen years of his life in his native land, coming to America then with his mother, a brother and a sister. His father died in Germany when young Nicholas was but a small boy. Landing in New York the family soon became absorbed in the customs of their adopted country. June 17, 1885, Mr. Boll was united in marriage to Mary Rettinger, who had emigrated from Dumstadt when eleven years of age. Mr. and Mrs. Boll shortly afterwards moved to Ft. Atkinson, Wisconsin, and from there to Manitowoc County, settling at Clark's Mills in 1864. Here he engaged in the hotel business for about nineteen years and then moved to Antigo. He then took up a homestead in Rolling township. While in Antigo he conducted a hotel and lived an honorable and useful life. He lived to see Antigo grow from a little hamlet to a thriving city of nearly ten thousand inhabitants. Ten children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Boll, as follows: Barbara, now Mrs. Henry Heim, of Santa Rosa, California; Anna, now Mrs. Anna Smith, of Norwood township; Mary, now Mrs. William Yentz, of the city of Antigo; Elizabeth, now Mrs. Thomas Schmitz, of the city of Antigo; Anthony, former Langlade County Sheriff, a resident of Antigo; Theresa, now Mrs. Anton

WALTER L. ELLIOTT. Among the men of prominence over a quarter of a century ago, none were held in higher esteem than the late Walter L. Elliott, successful and energetic citizen, who passed away January 2, 1904. The career of this active life should be an inspiration to any young man who has lofty ideals and ambition.

Mr. Elliott was born on a farm in the town of Winneconne, Winnebago County, Wisconsin, in 1868, the son of Thomas Elliott. He received but a limited education during his boyhood. Farm life did not satisfy his desire for accomplishing something definite in life. At an early age he became an engineer on a grain thresher. In 1887 he came to Antigo to take a position as an engineer for Herman Brothers, who then conducted a mill on the site of the Crocker Chair plant. A year later he accepted a position in the Antigo-Edison Electric Company, then managed by Lewis Lusk. In 1889 he went to Chicago after which his rise was phenomenal. He entered the employ of the National Electric and Construction Company and in four years was advanced to the position of Chief Engineer at a handsome salary. In 1896 he was made Consulting Engineer of that company. Mr. Elliott was also Superintendent of the Belvidere Street Railway. He returned to Antigo in October, 1897, and purchased the Antigo Electric plant, which he completely reorganized. He was active in civic affairs in Antigo and was engaged in other commercial enterprises, including the management of the Antigo Telephone Co.

Walter L. Elliott was united in marriage to Bertha Albrecht in 1887. To this union four sons, Henry T., Walter P., George E., and Clarence M., were born.

Murton, who has been a resident of this county for a number of years. Mr. Murton was born January 26, 1860, in the Town of Macomb, St. Lawrence County, New York state, the son of Martha (Walrath) and Thomas Murton. Until he reached twenty years he stayed on his father's farm, aiding him after he completed the rural school course. He then moved to Weyauwega, Waupaca County, Wisconsin, and worked in the lumbering industry as a teamster. Between six and seven years passed and then Mr. Murton came to Langlade County, settling first at Antigo, and in the fall of 1890 he moved to Bryant, Price township, where he operated a store and engaged in a general lumbering business for two and a half years. It was at this time that the Bryant village fire occurred and Mr. Murton's was one of the most disastrous fires of the town. In 1894 Mr. Murton moved to New London, Waupaca County, Wisconsin, and for that time up to 1908 he was engaged there in the mercantile business, after which he went to Sugar Bush and for two years operated a business successfully. He then returned to Antigo, Langlade County, engaged successively in the scaling of lumber, logging, potato industry as a representative of the L. Starks Company and was for a few years in the mercantile business. April 1, 1922, he purchased the bakery of B. In the spring of 1884 the family moved to Antigo, where Mr. Berner had purchased a general store. The building has since been removed, it being located just south of the city hall. Shortly after getting located here Mr. Berner also purchased a tract of land, which was then a solid wilderness and considered far from the city. It is now the south-east portion of the city, mostly covered with homes.

Mr. Berner was also the pioneer German newspaper publisher of the city, having started "Die Pioneer" in the year 1885, with a Mr. Groser as editor. It was published here for less than two years, and then moved to Shawano, as the town was too small to support the publication, and it is still being published, although the name has been changed several times since then.

CHARLES W. FISH. No better resume of the life of Charles W. Fish, one of the leading manufacturers of Wisconsin and often referred to as the largest individual lumber operator in the United States can be told than the following, which appeared in a current issue of THE AMERICAN LUMBERMAN in 1918:

"Men who fail to achieve conspicuous success are prone to take refuge in the excuse that the day of great opportunities has passed. It is a favorite alibi in the lumber business especially. We are told that the great captains of the industry won their positions through the fortuitous circumstances of a pioneer period, when the raw material was easy to acquire, competition nil and a developing nation clamorously demanded their products. It is an excuse that convinces many people, but seldom convinces the pioneer lumberman, who knows that he had his own special difficulties and the special handicaps of his time with which he had to contend.

The door of opportunity is as widely open today in the lumber business as it was in the '80s. It may require commercial genius; but these have inevitably been the price of real success.

There is no finer example of what the young man of today may do than is found in the life story of Charles W. Fish, of Elcho, Wis. Less than fifteen years ago he was a store clerk at $35 a month today he is the head of a million dollar proposition employing 700 men, operating three sawmills, electric light plants and other utilities, and is the creator, or re-creator, of one of the most progressive communities in America—the town of Elcho, in which he lives. He is 40 years old—and now that the fact is revealed many men will be astonished that he is so young, having accomplished so much—and at that age he has taken his proper place among the great lumbermen of the United States. He is no fortunate child of a pioneer period. He hewed out his own success while other men of his age were complaining that the day of opportunity in the lumber business was past, today offering them no promise.

There is no more fascinating story than the biography of men. There is no more romantic biography than that of "Charlie" Fish, sailor, gold hunter in the Klondike, structural iron worker out of a job and "broke"; then the door of opportunity opened an inch; he shoved his foot through and forced his way, overcoming every obstacle, until, in a rapid rise of eight years, he attained his present position.

Charles Wesley Fish was born August 28, 1877, at Otterville, a suburb of Toronto, Ontario, a son of Oliver C. Fish and Priscilla (Schooley) Fish. The mother died in 1915. Oliver C. Fish has lived to see his son reach success, and is a resident of the community which is his headquarters.

The Fish family moved to Michigan in 1878, the father becoming an inspector of lumber at Manistee,

After it had opened an inch, Chas. W. Fish shoved his foot through the door of opportunity, and by overcoming every obstacle, has attained a commanding position in the lumber world.

later managing the business at Gratwick, Smith & Fryer, of Tonawanda, N. Y., of Franfort. There were two other children besides Charles. His brother Donald is now associated with him in Elcho; the other brother is Dr. Edward Fish, chief of the interdenominational medical missionary corps of the province in Thibet.

At 14 years Charles began clerking in a general store. Then he was a Western Union messenger at $1 a week and spent a year at it. The big steamers of the Manistee lumber docks called to him, and he became a sailor, serving on the old propellers carrying lumber to Buffalo.

In 1895, when 18 years of age, he joined the rush to Cook's Inlet, Alaska, before the larger Klondike excitement. There were sixteen adventurers in that party and his father staked him for two hundred dollars to make the trip. He prospected all of the summer of 1895 in Turnagain Arm and lost nearly all he had. One of the men had sciatic rheumatism, and the party drew lots to see which should take care of him. Fish drew the long straw, and passed up the opportunity to seek a fortune to nurse his comrade through that illness. He had a little money left and he bought an interest in a clean-up in Canyon Creek, which used everything in his belt but never paid a dividend of any kind for the investment.

One day a mail boat that came once a month touched the coast. When the captain asked for an able-bodied seaman Fish replied "I guess I'm your man." He sailed on the steamer Commodore Perry in the coastwise trade and at the close of the season returned to Lake Arn, Michigan.

At Lake Ann he married Miss Grace Vernier and went back to sailing on the lakes. He sailed for four years on the lower lake boats, attaining a second mate permit, making him probably the youngest second officer on a big boat on fresh water. He had definitely made up his mind to be a steamboat man; but one night his captain had a bad evening and, disliking his language, young Fish quit the steamer at Cleveland and at the same time quit steamboating for good. He had had enough of wandering. The family had returned to Toronto, Mrs. Fish with them. Accompanied by his wife and his year old son he went to Manitowoc, and went to work climbing for a structural iron gang. One night he was pulled out of bed at midnight and offered a job as second mate on a ship. He refused; he was through with steamboating.

He was out of employment at the time. One day, crossing the bridge at Manitowoc, he met F. P. Jones, a lumberman whom he still defines as "the salt of the earth." "What are you doing" asked Jones. "I'm doing the hardest work any man can do," he replied, "I'm looking for a job." Mr. Jones owned a little sawmill plant at Elcho and offered him employment. The fare was $4.56. Fish borrowed $5 and went. He became a clerk in the store of the Jones Lumber Co. at Elcho at $35 a month, and sent for his wife. That was his salary for a year. Then he added $5 a month to it by looking after incoming freight for the Chicago & Northwestern Railway. One day his luck turned. A homesteader wanted to sell out. Fish gave him $50 for 160 acres, paying for it with $15 of his own money and $35 he borrowed in $5 lots. He had to live in a log cabin of two rooms and walk a mile night and morning to the store—and his work at the store was finished at 9:30 or 10 at night. One day the mill company needed that 160 acres of timber in which he had invested his $50. He sold it to the Company for $3,300 cash. He had nerve and vision and, to use his own words, "I began picking up timber." That was not in the pioneer days but only a few years ago.

When the G. W. Jones Lumber Co., to whom the Elcho plant belonged, decided to get out of manufacturing Mr. Fish bought a half interest in the plant and, with Thomas Mullen, a traveling salesman, as his partner, organized a $20,000 concern, Fish & Mullen. One afternoon the planing mill burned with little insurance. Fish rebuilt it; and then the sawmill burned. He was left with a planing mill and one sawmill site. He bought the stock of the others interested, but had nothing with which to rebuild or operate. So he went to Grand Rapids, Michigan, and for one and a half years was sales manager for the Hackley-Phelps-Bonnell Co. Then he was manager of the operations of the Mason & Donaldson Lumber Co. at State Line, Wis.

But he was determined to get back into business for himself. He returned to Elcho eight years ago, built a small mill and began cutting lumber by the thousand. He cut 400,000 feet the first year. He kept adding to his operations and made a specialty of hardwood piling. The last eight years is a continuous story of swift and aggressive progress. He bought a store in the village. He cut 1,000,000 the next year, 2,000,000 the next, between three and four million the next. He built forty or fifty houses. He started a bank. He built a model hotel. He made Elcho a real community. Then he bought the plant of the Andrews & Roepke Lumber Co. at Birnamwood, in 1915, rebuilt the mill and increased its capacity. He bought the electric light and water plant of the town. But he still didn't have the sawmill capacity for his timber holdings, which had grown to $500,000 worth of standing trees. In 1916 he built a mill at Antigo.

The Charles W. Fish Lumber Co. (which consists of Charles W. Fish) now operates night and day a band mill at Elcho, a band mill at Birnamwood, and a band mill and resaw at Antigo. In 1918 it will ship 45,000,000 feet of lumber, 35 per cent of it hemlock, the rest birch, maple, elm and ash. The name of Fish has come to mean good lumber to the yard and factory trade of Wisconsin, Chicago, and Michigan and a constantly widening territory.

Mr. Fish's family consists of his wife, his son, Glenn H. Fish, employed at the Birnamwood plant, and two charming daughters, Blanche and Grace, students at the Milwaukee-Downer College Seminary, Milwaukee. Mr. Fish is a member of the Wisconsin Consistory, Scottish Rite Masons. No one knows of his private charities except that they are many. He has never held public office, and recently, when mentioned by enthusiastic friends for United States senator, declined to be a candidate. He finds his chief joy in his family, his business and his timber—and Elcho. It is a model town with a happy and contented population, beautiful homes, a good hotel, drug store, commissary, electric lights, a boulevard lighting system, an excellent school, and other conveniences of good living. He has one dream yet—to put 400 families on 400 40-acre lots, and to give them such a long time to pay for it that each man may attain a home of his own.

His love of the woods is genuine. In 1917 he penetrated northern Alberta and walked 200 miles alone through the woods under the shadow of the Arctic. That was his idea of a vacation.

Such is the story of Charles W. Fish, sailor, gold hunter, structural iron worker, lumberman, captain of industry, man.

The late J. J. Kingsbury was married to Alice Paige, a native of Rock County, Wisconsin, on May 16, 1871, at Stevens Point, Wisconsin. To this union eight children were born, namely: May, Bessie and Leigh, deceased; Arthur J.; Beatrice and John E., all of Antigo, Wis.; Carl W., of Tulsa, Oklahoma; Faye, now Mrs. George Kircher, of Olivia, Minnesota.

Mr. Kingsbury died on August 2, 1917, and was buried in the family vault in the Antigo cemetery. He was a member of the Antigo lodge B. P. O. E. and all Masonic orders. He took the 32nd Masonic degree in 1913 at Milwaukee, Wis. The late J. J. Kingsbury was regarded as one of the busiest, most energetic and enterprising men of the county and his honorable methods of dealing with his fellow man firmly established him in the respect and confidence of all with whom he came in contact.

VALENTINE P. RATH, pioneer citizen and County Clerk of Langlade County, was born in Sheboygan County, Wisconsin, February 15, 1860, the son of Valentine and Mary Anna (Feser) Rath, both of whom were born in Bavaria and immigrated to America in 1858, settling in Sheboygan. The father died in Sheboygan in 1911. Valentine Rath, Sr., was a soldier in the Civil War, enlisting from Sheboygan County and seeing service in some of that conflict's severest battles.

Mr. Rath was reared in the city of Sheboygan and there attended the parochial school of the Roman Catholic church, of which his parents were, and he and his family are now, members. When a youth he learned the trade of a cooper and worked at that trade for two years or more and then entered the employ of Henry Rath, packing lime. When nineteen years of age he came to Langlade County, then a part of Oconto County, and he is one of the pioneers of this community. He settled in Price township and was active as Chairman, Assessor, Town Clerk, and in County affairs before his election to the office of County Clerk in 1902. He held the position of Town Clerk at the time of the election. Mr. Rath has been successively re-elected to the office of County Clerk at each election since 1902 with handsome majorities. He is a member of the Knights of Columbus as well as the Catholic Knights of Wisconsin and the Catholic Order of Foresters, having held various official capacities in the last two named. He is at present the Treasurer of the Wisconsin County Clerks Association, having been re-elected in 1922. Mr. Rath is also a member of the Modern Woodmen of America, the Sons of Veterans and the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

May 15, 1890, he was united in marriage to Madeline Mary Friederich, of Sheboygan, who was born and reared in that city. To this union six children have been born, as follows: George P.; Joseph F.; William M.; John H.; Clara Mary; and Thomas E. Rath. Four of Mr. Rath's sons served in the fighting forces of Uncle Sam during the World War, Thomas E. being too young at the time, later served in the U. S.

Navy, and Mr. Rath, as a member of the Board of Exemption of the Langlade County district, and who engaged actively in other war activities, distinguished himself as a true patriot. William M. Rath, while overseas, met and afterwards married Marthe Aubertin. This was Langlade County's only war romance.

Valentine P. Rath has played a conspicuous part in Langlade County activities for many years; he was instrumental in getting Price township detached from Polar township and was the leader of the homesteaders in their political battles in the pioneer days of Price.

When Mr. Rath first came to Langlade County he took up a residence on one hundred and sixty acres of land in Polar township, now Price township. He resided there for a number of years and then moved to Bryant, village in Price township, and was engaged as a lumber grader and cruiser, which work he followed until his election as County Clerk. He then moved into Antigo, where he has since made his home. By his capable and thorough performance of duty, his high order of citizenship and his fidelity to the county, Mr. Rath has won the confidence and highest esteem of scores of citizens all over Langlade County. The Rath family reside at 130 Lincoln street.

EDWARD FREDERICK BUCHEN, Sheriff of Langlade County, was born in the town of Lyndon, Sheboygan County, Wisconsin, March 21, 1877, the son of Elizabeth (Hanke) Buchen and Goodhart Buchen. He attended the rural schools of Lyndon township after which he engaged as a farmer on his father's farm until he attained the age of nineteen years. He then engaged in the cheese and dairy business at Adell, Sheboygan County, for five years, selling his interests then to his brother, George Buchen. November 20, 1901, he moved to Antigo township, Langlade County, and started a cheese factory and creamery on Highway No. 47, what is commonly known as the "Howe Cheese Factory" site. This was the second factory in Langlade County at that time. For three years Mr. Buchen operated this industry successfully and then sold out. He then became the proprietor of the Star Creamery, a co-operative organization in Rolling township, which he was associated with for two years. He then moved into the city of Antigo, opening the Buchen Creamery on Fifth avenue, which he conducted until 1915 when he sold out to Andrew Anderson. Mr. Buchen then conducted a cheese factory at Kramer's corner in Antigo township for two years until his election for the first time to the office of Sheriff. Mr. Buchen's administration of that office was so satisfactory to the general public that he was re-elected in 1920 by an overwhelming vote. The office of Sheriff has been faithfully administered by him since and with his announcement for re-election in 1922 Mr. Buchen merely yielded to the requests of numerous friends.

Mr. Buchen was married to Ella Ferk, of the town of Sherman, Sheboygan County, Wisconsin, November 18, 1900. Three children, two of whom are deceased—Clarence Edward and Violet—and Hilda, a daughter, now a student at the Whitewater Normal School, were born to this union.

During the war Mr. Buchen was active, serving as Chairman of the Langlade County Board of Exemption. He is a member of the B. P. O. E. and Beavers fraternities. The Buchen family attend the Lutheran church.

PETER J. ROUMAN. Among the younger citizens of Antigo and Langlade County are many industrious and ambitious men who have ably demonstrated their fitness to carry on worthy commercial enterprises. Peter J. Rouman, who is, comparatively speaking, a new resident, can be classed with this group. Mr. Rouman is a native of Greece, the son of Helen and Gregory Rouman. He was born November 23, 1894. As a boy he attended the public schools of his birthplace and then entered high school. He was a post-office clerk in Greece. When seventeen years old he sailed for America where he planned to settle. He went to Marquette, Michigan, and three months later came to Antigo to enter the employ of Peter Papadakis, an uncle, then conducting a confectionery in this city. Two years later he entered the popcorn and confectionery business for himself. At the outbreak of the World War he entered the U. S. National Army and served with the 86th Division for nine months at Camp Hospital No. 21, overseas. Returning to the U. S. he was honorably discharged at Camp Grant on June 12, 1919. He had enlisted June 17, 1918. He then returned to his business at Antigo. May 1, 1921, he sold his popcorn interests and purchased the Helmbrecht Cafe, changing the name to the Antigo Cafe. This cafe is located at 827 Fifth avenue and enjoys a fine local and a splendid summer tourist patronage. Mr. Rouman was united in marriage in Antigo to Miss Esther Saunders on August 24, 1920. To this union one child, Dafney Helen, was born. Mr. and Mrs. Rouman reside at 827 $\frac{1}{2}$ Fifth avenue. The subject of this sketch is a member of the Loyal Order of Moose.

ANTON J. NOWOTNY. Among the pioneer citizens of Antigo and Langlade County is no more conspicuous a figure than Anton J. Nowotny, the Clerk of the Circuit Court. Anton J. Nowotny came to Antigo in the winter of 1878-79 with his widowed mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Nowotny. With his mother the young lad lived in Ackley township for six months on a homestead. Mr. Nowotny moved to this wilderness from Manitowoc County with his mother, his father having passed away in Manitowoc County in 1873. The subject of this sketch was born November 15, 1865.

With an older son he came to this county with his mother. The embryo town was then a place that gave little promise of reaching its present population of close to ten thousand inhabitants. Anton J. Nowotny was then thirteen years old and he roughed it through the years of his youth and early manhood. He performed all manner of manual labor as a boy, serving as the janitor of the first Antigo school. Here he built fires and cut wood for the sum of six dollars a month. It should be stated that he went to school a part of the time, later attended night school and then entered St. Francis Academy at Milwaukee. He was variously employed at saw mill work, and at one time was active in contracting for the delivery of logs on the river. He also learned the cigar maker's trade and for a time ran a cigar factory, which, owing to the hard times then, he was compelled to close. He then took up a homestead in the town of Elcho on which he lived for about four years, and it was then that he was first elected Clerk of the Circuit Court for Langlade County, which office he has been honored with at each successive election since. This fact is a splendid testimonial of the esteem and confidence the public holds in Mr. Nowotny as a public servant, tried and found to be true.

In 1892 he was united in marriage to Theresa Boll of Antigo, Wis. To them were born eight children: Irwin, Clarence, Mary, Esther, Lester, Lloyd, Glen and Dorothy. Esther and Lester are twins. Irwin and Clarence were members of the 107th Trench Mortar Battery which served during the World War.

Anton J. Nowotny is a member of St. John's Catholic church and is fraternally a member of the Knights of Columbus and the Catholic Order of Foresters. He is one of the substantial property owners of the community and, with his family, he holds a high place among the respected citizens.

ARTHUR J. KINGSBURY. One who has considered the pursuits of private life as abundantly worthy of his best efforts, and who has concentrated his interests, energies and attention upon his home county, has labored for its advancement and growth and at the same time has promoted his private interests so that he had attained a position of prestige among his fellow citizens is Arthur J. Kingsbury, the son of Alice (Paige) and John Jerome Kingsbury, pioneer Antigo residents. Mr. Kingsbury was born September 23, 1876, in Stevens Point, Portage County, Wisconsin. When ten years old he moved with his parents to Ashland, Wisconsin, and a year later to Cornell, Wisconsin, from where the Kingsbury family moved to Antigo in 1890. Here Mr. Kingsbury attended public school and the high school, which was then located on the site of the Second Ward school. He then entered the Michigan Agricultural College, East Lansing, Michigan, and after completing his course returned to Langlade County engaging in farming. He then moved to Boulder, Colorado, and worked in the oil fields, and the following years was at Bay City, Michigan, thence to the state of Kansas for two years; thence a year he spent in Oklahoma in the oil fields. He then returned to Antigo and opened up a field photography and kodak business, which he has since developed into an extensive enterprise.

Arthur J. Kingsbury was united in marriage on February 16, 1897, to Miss Myrtle Cunningham, of Antigo. To this union three children were born, as follows: Claire, now engaged in the oil business at Tulsa, Oklahoma; Wayne, who passed away at the age of five; and Doris, a student in the Antigo public schools. Arthur J. Kingsbury is accounted one of the substantial and dependable business men of the city and county.

WALTER J. GALLON. Among the citizens of Langlade County who are rendering their community signal services both in a public and a commercial nature none stands in higher esteem than Walter J. Gallon, the alert President of the Antigo Association department of the Wisconsin Telephone Company in Milwaukee. He later became manager of the Janesville (Wis.) telephone industry, was then transferred to Chicago for a short duration following which he was promoted to the position of chief inspector of the Central Union Telephone Company, Dixon, Ill. He returned to Wisconsin later to become the chief contract agent for the Wisconsin Telephone Company from where he was called to Sheboygan to become manager of the Sheboygan Telephone Company. In 1916 Mr. Gallon assumed the active management of the Antigo Telephone Corporation, which he still holds.

of Commerce and General Manager of the Antigo Telephone Corporation. Through marked ability and conscientious devotion to duty he has climbed from obscurity to a position of prominence in the telephone world.

Walter J. Gallon was born in England in 1873, the son of John Gallon. He received an elementary grammar school education and when a youth started out in life on his own merits. He came to the United States in 1896 and in the fall of that year came to Wisconsin. For three years he worked in various vocations until 1899 when he began in the construction

He has been active in all civic and commercial welfare movements in Antigo and it is to his credit that the present Antigo Association of Commerce was organized. He has been President of the Association of Commerce since its organization in 1916.

During the World War Mr. Gallon took an active part in all local activities, including the Liberty Loan, Red Cross, Victory Fund, and other drives.

He gained distinction as a patriot during the war for his scathing denunciation of all things un-American. Mr. Gallon is a member of the Executive Committee, Antigo Chapter, American Red Cross.

Mr. Gallon was married on November 10, 1910, to Clara Lea. They reside at 615 Second avenue, Antigo.

Fraternally he is a member of all Masonic orders, including the Blue Lodge, Chapter and Commandery, and he is also a member of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

✓ JOHN SIPEK. The name of John Sipek has been associated with activities in Langlade County since 1881. The father of the subject of this sketch, John Sipek, Jr., was born in Centerville township, Manitowoc County, Wisconsin, on June 19, 1860, the son of Joseph and Anna (Rine) Sipek. He settled in Neva township, Langlade County, resided there some nine years, clearing about sixty acres. On February 8, 1885, he was married to Emma Skarivoda, a native of Manitowoc County, who was the daughter of Anton and Elizabeth (Krache) Skarivoda, who were among the pioneer settlers of Manitowoc County. During the spring of 1890 Mr. Sipek retired from his farm and purchased property in Antigo, where he kept a hotel, now known as Martiny's Hotel, Edison street.

Mr. and Mrs. Sipek had four children, Matilda, Alvina and John, living, and Joseph, who died when two years of age.

John Sipek, Jr., was born in Antigo on July 5, 1893. He attended the public schools of Antigo and graduated from the Antigo High School with the class of 1912. He then started in the plumbing business and for nine months was associated with Joseph Hoefler. He then began as a journeyman plumber with Louis Peters and has since been with Mr. Peters in that business.

Mr. Sipek was united in marriage on September 2, 1916, to Anna Fischer.

He resides at 600 Badger avenue, Antigo. Fraternally he is a member of Charter Oak Lodge, No. 150, Knights of Pythias.

The Sipek family is regarded as one of the oldest Langlade County families, having been in the county four years before the city of Antigo was incorporated.

ENDRE NOREM. Among the pioneer families of Langlade County whose members have contributed materially to the progress and development of the county, none is more highly esteemed than that of Norem, whose history is commensurate with that of Price township. Endre Norem, the subject of this sketch, was born in Christiansand, Norway, on August 7, 1864. Like the Viking of old, young Norem wanted to sail the seas. He made three trips to the United States, the last one which he decided to locate in this country. Previously he had visited the West Indies and New Orleans. He settled in Brown County, at Ft. Howard, to where he came direct from New York. From there Mr. Norem went to Angelica, Shawano County, Wisconsin, and secured employment in the woods. He settled in Price township, Langlade County, in September, 1889. He was employed for a time by N. C. Bruce at Kent as a bookkeeper. Mr. Bruce was then manager of the Henry Sherry interests at that place. For eight years he followed this employment, until 1897. Mr. Norem then moved to Bryant and engaged in real estate, merchandise and a general logging business, which has, during the time since, flourished and expanded.

Mr. Norem was married in 1901 to Edna Mildred Mills, of Brown County, Wisconsin, to which union seven children—four boys and three girls—were born. Two of his sons served during the World War in the United States Navy, and Mr. Norem took an active part in all patriotic drives and campaigns in the county during the conflict. One son served on the battleship Nevada and the other in the U. S. N. aviation.

Endre Norem has served as postmaster of Bryant for a quarter of a century, longer than any other postmaster in Langlade County, and there are few who can equal this period of service. He was originally appointed by President William McKinley. He has been Township Treasurer and has held other positions of public trust.

In 1895 Mr. Norem became associated with F. H. Van Ostrand. His brother, Ernest Norem, became a member of the concern in 1898. Mr. Van Ostrand sold his interests to Norem Brothers in 1905. The concern was incorporated to do a mercantile, real estate and forest and farm produce business in 1904.

Fraternally Endre Norem is a member of the Masonic orders, the Elks and M. W. A. lodges. He is a typical example of what thrift, ambition, integrity and good character can do toward a successful career.

WILLIAM F. INGS, Superintendent of The Antigo Gas Company, was born in Oshkosh, Winnebago County, Wisconsin, on June 6, 1884, the son of Henry and Ella (Fletcher) Ings. He was the first of three children. When he was six weeks old he moved with his parents to the city of Antigo. Here he attended the public schools and the Antigo High School. Following his school days he began working on his father's farm in Antigo township and stayed there until 1907. He then began employment with the Antigo Gas Company, rising to the important position of Superintendent, which he now holds. It was managed by Oliver B. Kohl when Mr. Ings first started with the utility fifteen years ago.

William F. Ings was married to Bessie Horn, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Horn, on June 6, 1906, and to this union three children, Marvel, Maxine and John, have been born. The Ings residence is at 114 Field street, Antigo, Wisconsin.

When off duty Mr. Ings likes nothing better than rambling off to a sparkling trout stream or to spend a week in the timber during deer hunting season.

Henry Ings, pioneer Antigo township resident, was for many years a public official and served with credit as County Treasurer of Langlade County. The Ings family has a wide acquaintance in and about the county.

CHARLES E. HENSHAW. In the earlier history of this country, there are many notable accounts of the trials and brave sacrifices of those who are numbered among the industrial pioneers of certain districts. The tide of civilization was then ever moving westward, and as soon as a section of country was fairly developed, there would always be some venturesome and hardy souls eager to pass still farther toward the frontier, making new boundary lines for the outposts of civilization. Without these rugged people the United States would not today stretch from age. He sacrificed his life for the cause of the North, being killed in action in 1865. Wharton Henshaw lies at rest in Franklin, Indiana.

Charles E. Henshaw was but a boy when, with his parents, he left his place of nativity in the Pan-Handle state, settling in Wooster, Ohio. The family moved successively from Ohio to Missouri, thence to Indiana and from there to Kansas, which was then in the throes of the great contest over organization precipitated by the Kansas-Nebraska bill. Returning to Indiana, the family located at Franklin, and it was here

Pioneer Antigo manufacturer, who with John J. Kingsbury, started in business in Antigo in 1890. coast to coast, from the Canadian boundary to the gulf, but would be clustered along the seaboard of the Atlantic. Among those who faced the perils of the west in this early period was the Henshaw family. Charles E. Henshaw, pioneer Antigo manufacturer, was born in Martinsburg, West Virginia, on September 14, 1849, the son of Anderson F. and Margaret (Busey) Henshaw. He was the second of two children, both of whom were boys.

At the outbreak of the Civil War Wharton, the other son, joined the Union Army, enlisting in Wilder's Mounted Infantry of Indiana when but fifteen years of that Charles received his education, consisting of the common school curriculum of that day, supplemented only by the fact that youths were largely dependent upon their own resourcefulness then.

At the age of fifteen, in the year 1864, he began work in the Premium Flour Mills of Franklin, being there employed for four years, during which time he thoroughly familiarized himself with the flour and grist business. From 1868 until he became proprietor of his first flour mill, at Trafalgar, Indiana, Mr. Henshaw was employed in the flour business at various places in Indiana. In 1882, having closed his business at Trafalgar, he began operations at Marcus, Iowa, and he was there until 1885. The Henshaw family then moved northward to Medford, Wisconsin, where the subject of this sketch entered the employ of the A. J. Perkins & Son flour mill. Mr. Henshaw had previously lost his entire business at Marcus, Iowa, in a disastrous fire.

His task of rehabilitation was difficult and for five years he stayed at Medford with the same concern. Becoming acquainted with John J. Kingsbury, a lumberman, the matter of a partnership was discussed and an organization effected prior to July, 1890, when the Henshaw family moved from Medford to Antigo. John J. Kingsbury and Charles E. Henshaw erected a grist mill in Antigo then. The firm was known as the Antigo Roller Mills. About seven years later the Kingsbury & Henshaw Lumber Company was organized and a sawmill, one of the substantial manufacturing institutions of Langlade County, was erected. The Company thrived and prospered, giving employment to many Antigo people, during the long span of years which was broken on August 2, 1917, by the untimely death of Mr. Kingsbury. The firm is now known as the Henshaw Lumber Company. For about two years after Mr. Kingsbury's death it was known as the Henshaw-Worden Lumber Company. The roller mills discontinued operations sometime previously.

Mr. Henshaw was married to Jennie Roberts, a daughter of Andrew and Sarah (Nelson) Roberts, of Carlisle, Indiana, on May 27, 1872, and to this union four children were born, namely: Louise, born on October 11, 1875. She was married to A. M. Arveson on September 11, 1901, and they had five children, all of whom are living. On October 18, 1920, Mrs. Arveson passed away in the prime of life. She is at rest in the Elmwood Cemetery, Antigo.

Jessie, the second child, was born on April 1, 1877, and on September 22, 1897, married C. W. Talge. They reside at Los Angeles, California.

Mabelle, born on March 20, 1890, was united in marriage to C. T. Te Selle, of Antigo, on October 11, 1916, and they have two children, Janette and Clarence John.

Nellie Henshaw, another daughter, died in infancy and is buried at Marcus, Iowa.

Anderson F. Henshaw passed away on October 11, 1888, and is buried at Medford, Wisconsin, where he died. Over a quarter of a century later his wife followed him in death, she passing away at Antigo on November 14, 1914. She is buried at Medford also.

Charles E. Henshaw, besides his local business connections, is Vice President of the Talge Mahogany Company, of Indianapolis, Indiana; is a Director of the American Founders' Security Company and an Associate Director in the Old Line Life Insurance Company of America, the latter two organizations having headquarters in Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Mr. Henshaw finds no time to enter politics as a seeker after personal preferment but in 1901-02 he was inducted into service as an Alderman, being thereupon selected as Chairman of the City Finance Committee. In him good government and ideal citizenship have always found a staunch friend and supporter as do movements tending to advance the cause of education, civic enterprises, morality and general progress.

As an avocation he finds keen delight in spending a few days at his cottage on the shores of Post Lake, Wisconsin, or in whiling away an hour or two in some clear, sparkling trout stream, of which Langlade County has many.

ARCHIE SPENCER, a pioneer Antigo citizen, was born at Fremont, Waupaca County, Wisconsin, on September 3, 1874, the son of Benjamin and Pricilla Spencer. He moved to the village of Antigo when a youth, his parents being among the first settlers in Antigo. This was in the fall of 1881 when the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western Railroad pierced north to Aniwa and thence to Antigo. At that time James Quinn and a man by the name of Mr. Hahn hauled the worldly belongings of the Spencer family with two yokes of cattle to the place where the J. H. Weed mill was erected just south of the city of Antigo. Ben Spencer, the father of Archie Spencer, was foreman in the woods for various lumber concerns in Langlade County and Mrs. Ben Spencer cooked for the lumber concerns. In the year 1882 Ben Spencer bought two corner lots where the Hill building now stands (at the intersection of Fifth avenue and Edison street) from F. A. Deleglise, paying $33 apiece for the lots. Ben Spencer started the Spencer House, one of the leading Antigo hotels for many years, which was operated until 1895, when the Spencers sold to George W. Hill. Archie Spencer used to cut wood on the lots now the site of the Antigo postoffice.

As a youth Archie Spencer attended the public schools and the Antigo High School. He also attended Daggett's Business College, Oshkosh, Wisconsin. Leaving school he followed the call of the woods, becoming an expert woodsman and river driver. He took part in many of the picturesque river drives of pioneer days when the great pineries were being slashed by the lumber barons of Wisconsin, many of whom in their greed for gold and pine left the country in a desolate state.

Archie Spencer was married to Mary Harvey of Shawano, Wisconsin, on July 12, 1895, and to this union ten children were born, namely: John, Harvey, Clyde, Clara, Pricilla, Wesley, Odean, Loean, Ida, May and William H.

Archie Spencer has found time to participate in public affairs besides attending to the arduous task of caring for a family. He was School Clerk in an Ainsworth township district, and while a resident of that township was once a town Supervisor. He was once a candidate for Sheriff on the Democratic ticket and secured that party's nomination for that office. Fraternally he is a member of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. During 1922 he was engaged in farming on two hundred acres in Elton township on sections 7 and 8.

He has been a resident of Langlade County since 1881. The Spencers now reside in Antigo.

THOMAS W. LESLIE, whose name in Langlade County is the synonym of progressiveness, liberality and honesty of purpose, has been a resident of this county for over forty years during which time he has built himself up an honored reputation and a good name.

Mr. Leslie is a native of Hortonville, Outagamie County, Wisconsin, where he was born on August 24, 1856, the son of Hugh and Dorothy (McComb) Leslie, who were the parents of eight children.

The subject of this review attended the rural schools of Hortonville, having received a common school education. He then began to make his own way in the world and became a well driller and pump dealer. He followed this occupation in and adjacent to Hortonville until 1879 when he came to Langlade County. Until 1883 he was associated with Niels Anderson, the first merchant of Antigo, in the well drilling and pump business. Retiring from the pump business in 1883, Mr. Leslie devoted his entire attention to his farm in Antigo (Springbrook township). When he secured his farm it was in control of Shawano County as New County was then attached to that county for county and judicial purposes. He moved into the city of Antigo from Antigo township in 1891 and has since been a resident of the city, where he has been engaged in the real estate and loan business for thirty-one years. He has also spent considerable time in looking over lands and conducting logging operations during winter months.

Thomas W. Leslie was united in marriage to Miss Anna Dvorak, the daughter of Frank and Philomena Dvorak. To this union six children were born, two of whom are deceased. Those living are Blanche, now Mrs. Edward Lackerman, of Rolling township, Langlade County; Robert, now at Hiles, Forest County, Wisconsin; Myra, now Mrs. Joseph Scholey, of Los Angeles, California; and Mabel, of Antigo, Wisconsin.

The Leslie residence is at 1444 Clermont street, Antigo, Wisconsin. Fraternally he is a member of the Beavers Reserve Fund Fraternity and the Equitable Fraternal Union. During pioneer days Mr. Leslie operated a general store at Deerbrook for a short time. This was one of the first stores in that part of the county. He had previously been associated with a brother, Sam Leslie, in a store at Tigerton, Wisconsin.

During the World War the Leslie family did its part. Robert was a member of the 22nd Base Hospital, U. S. A., and served from May 27, 1917, to April 23, 1919. He was overseas from June 2, 1918, to April 2, 1919. Mabel E. Leslie served as a nurse, having enlisted on November 11, 1919.

HUGH B. MUTTART, a prominent Antigo merchant, was born in Oshkosh, Winnebago County, Wisconsin, on August 22, 1882, the son of William and Helen (McCarthy) Muttart. William Muttart was born in Canada and Helen McCarthy Muttart was a native of Manitowoc County, Wisconsin, where the McCarthy family was among the early pioneers of the district. The father followed the trade of a well driller in the state for many years until his death in March, 1911.

H. B. Muttart was reared in Oshkosh where he attended the public schools. He followed the printer's trade for four years following his public school career. He then went to Milwaukee to take up the study of embalming under Professor Williams in his College of Embalming. Returning to Oshkosh he successfully passed the state examinations and in 1904 he located at Antigo in the undertaking and embalming business. In this work he continued alone until 1912 when a consolidation of three well known Antigo business houses took place, forming the Antigo Furniture & Undertaking Company, of which Mr. Muttart became President. A. D. Stewart and Rudolph Kratche were the other members of the original firm. This firm progressed and made an excellent showing in the business. In the fall of 1918 T. T. McGillan of Appleton became a member of the firm, which has since been known as Muttart & McGillan Furniture and Undertaking Company.

H. B. Muttart was married in 1908 to Miss Mary Hoffman, daughter of Joseph Hoffman, proprietor of The Hoffman House. Two children, Helen and Mary, have been born to them. H. B. Muttart is a member of the Roman Catholic church, as is his wife and children. He is a member of the Knights of Columbus, the Fraternal Order of Eagles, The Loyal Order of Moose.

PAUL J. MILLARD, former Postmaster, and now Assistant Postmaster, was born on June 23, 1859, at Wausau, Wisconsin, the son of Burton and Harriet (Crown) Millard. He received a common school education. When a young man he came to Antigo, in August, 1882, from Wausau, and, with his brother, A. B. HENRY BERNER. The history of Langlade County would be incomplete without a resume of the life activities of Henry Berner, the President of Berner Brothers Publishing Company. He was born in the town of Gibson, Manitowoc County, Wisconsin, on June 10, 1878, the son of Henry and Caroline Berner. When five years of age he moved with his parents to Antigo where he attended the public schools and the Antigo High School. Leaving school he began his career as an employe for the Weekly News Item and was with that publication for three years. It was then located where Mrs. A. R. Winters now has her grocery store. Mr. Berner then secured employment on The Antigo Republican and was with that paper from 1895 until 1899 when he went to Columbus, Wisconsin, where, with his brother, Fred L. Berner, he took over the Columbus Democrat. He returned to Antigo in 1901 and with his brother took over the Antigo Journal, then a weekly paper, purchasing the same from George W. Hill. The Journal has grown to be one of the best news and advertising mediums of a teacher in the Menasha public schools; Henry, Jr., a student at the University of Wisconsin; Artemus, of Antigo; Thelma, a student; Lynn, who passed away on October 4, 1922, following fatal injuries received in an automobile accident; Leland, who died on October 5, 1908. A. H. BERENDSEN is one of the oldest and most respected citizens in Langlade County. He was born in the town of Freedom, Outagamie County, Wisconsin, on July 25, 1869. He came to Langlade County from the town of Freedom on November 10, 1882, with three cows and five head of young stock. A yoke of oxen were hitched to his heavy wagon. Twelve days later he arrived at the Henry Hersant farm, Norwood township. Because of difficulties with the cattle it was necessary for him to leave the cattle at a place owned by Joseph Schnorich, now the site of the E. E. Hemingway home at Mattoon, Wisconsin.

John Menting and Gerard Berendsen made the trip with the subject of this sketch. With no roads and about a sixteen inch fall of snow it was difficult for these sturdy pioneers to find their way about.

The father of Mr. Berendsen, Theodore Berendsen, homesteaded on section 25, township 30, range 12 east. This place has since been known as the Bernard Berendsen farm and is situated one-half mile east of Phlox.

Mr. Berendsen recalls well when in the spring of 1883 he came in to Antigo with a yoke of oxen to do some trading at the Niels Arderson store, the first store in Antigo. He also went over to the depot to see a train pull into Antigo—then this was considered an event of great importance (the approach of an airplane is regarded with less significance by Antigo people now).

Mr. Berendsen stayed on the homestead for some time helping clear land, until he was sixteen years of age. Then as his parents were in need of some money he went to work at the carpenter trade. He earned ten dollars per month and board. He later secured work from Joseph St. Louis and son, Frank St. Louis, who had a mill at Phlox. After working there until the fall of 1888 he went to work for the Mattoon Manufacturing Company putting in bridges and culverts on the railroad between Mattoon and Aniwa. He was employed as camp foreman, carpenter and lumber inspector until the spring of 1898. He then entered the employ of G. B. Lesch as a lumber inspector and was with him until he went out of business in this territory, in the fall of 1900. Mr. Berendsen then entered the employ of the G. W. Jones Lumber Company of Appleton, Wisconsin, on November 1, 1900, and was with them until January 1, 1921, a period of twenty years and two months. He has been dealing in lands and forest products on his own initiative since.

Mr. Berendsen was married to Rosatia M. Hones at Phlox on June 2, 1921. He is a Catholic by faith and fraternally is affiliated with the B. P. O. E. and the Catholic Order of Foresters. The Berendsen family moved from Mattoon to Antigo in June, 1899, and has resided here since. A. H. Berendsen, during these many years, has won the respect and confidence of a score of citizens.

he settled on a farm. Here he held several responsible town offices, including the Chairmanship of Peck township for seven years. In 1900 he was elected Register of Deeds of Langlade County. Then he sold his farm and moved into Antigo. He served with credit as Register of Deeds from January, 1901, to 1909, when he was elected a member of the Assembly. in Columbia County for some time before moving to Portage, Wisconsin, where the father took up work as a blacksmith and dealer in implements.

It was in Portage, Wisconsin, that J. C. Lewis gained the main parts of his education. At the age of twenty-two he had completed an apprenticeship to the tinsmith's trade, and going to Waupaca he worked at his trade there in the branch store of the man with whom he learned his work. Three and a half years he continued there and then went to Merrill, Wisconsin, as manager of a hardware store at that place. From Merrill he moved to Antigo and established himself in the hardware business, the J. C. Lewis Hardware Company being the foundation of the present Antigo Hardware. It was not long before the thriftiness and industriousness of Mr. Lewis began to assert themselves in the little village of Antigo. Mr. Lewis erected the fine brick building now occupied by the Antigo Hardware. In 1887 he built the structure now known as the Odd Fellows building, intersection of Fifth avenue and Clermont street. Mr. Lewis has been worthily connected with many of the leading financial and industrial enterprises that have had their inception in Antigo.

The public life of J. C. Lewis has been one of long and devoted service to Antigo and Langlade County. In 1887-88 he was County Treasurer and rendered valuable services in that position. ADRIAN SCHILLEMAN. From the old world there has come to America thousands of thrifty and substantial people willing to become citizens of the United States and to do what they can to make this nation a haven for the oppressed of the war torn countries across the sea. The parents of Adrian Schilleman, the subject of this sketch, were natives of Holland and came to this country before the birth of this subject. Adrian Schilleman was born in New York state in 1844. When a young man he moved with his parents westward soon settling in the state of Wisconsin at Cedar Grove, Sheboygan County. Here he was married in 1872 to Mary Serier, born in 1853. The Schilleman family consisted of ten children, two girls and eight boys: Edward, of Casper, Wyoming; William, of Hollister; Anton, Lac du Flambeau; Jake, Wabeno; John, who died in October, 1916; Walter, of Mercer; Alvin, of Marshfield; Emma, now Mrs. V. J. WERNER. A resident of Wisconsin since 1899, J. Werner has lived a career not crowded with varied experiences but marked, nevertheless, by ventures of extent and importance, characterized at all times by the strictest integrity and adherence to honorable business methods, and stamped with the approval of all with whom he has come in contact. Mr. Werner was born in Russia, on June 15, 1877, the son of Moses and Esther (Rosenberg) Werner. He received an elementary and high school education following which he began as a law clerk with one of the leading law firms of his community. It was his intention to become thoroughly acquainted with the law and eventually to become a lawyer, but unfortunately conditions in Russia at that time placed too many technical as well as actual obstacles in his path.

When twenty-two years of age Mr. Werner settled in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, where he started in business selling ladies' ready-to-wear apparel. He has followed this field since and in September, 1916, he opened Werner's Shop for Ladies at 728 Fifth avenue, Antigo, which he has since conducted with success.

H. B. KELLOGG. Belonging to a family that has made Langlade County its home since the days of the first pioneers in 1875 and members of which have been identified with the substantial growth of this section of the state since then is H. B. Kellogg, President of the T. D. Kellogg Lumber & Manufacturing Company, a pioneer Antigo institution. H. B. Kellogg was born in Rockton, Illinois, on July 4th, 1859, the son of Thomas David and Harriet (Buffum) Kellogg. His father was a native of Connecticut and Mrs. Kellogg was a native of New York state.

When but two years old Mr. Kellogg moved with his parents to Appleton, Outagamie County, Wisconsin, where his father was engaged in the operation of a first class flour mill. The Kellogg family moved from Appleton to Stevensville, located in the same county and it was at that place and the Appleton High School where young Kellogg received his education.

In the year 1875 Thomas D. Kellogg moved to the territory in Oconto County, later to become New County, and that year he rented a saw mill from Thomas M. Dobbs, who had erected the first mill in the county two years previously, 1873. Mr. Kellogg moved the mill to the "burnt section", near Langlade, and later to Lily, then called New. The old Kellogg place on the Military Road is still pointed out to passers-by at this day as the "Kellogg farm".

Horace B. Kellogg began as a teacher in the territory that was to become Langlade County, he being one of the very first teachers in the first Langlade County school, located on section 3, township 31, Range 14 East. He also taught at Gagen, his pupils being

James, Henry and John Gagen. Since then he has followed the lumber business, being initiated into that industry in the days of the pine conquests on the Wolf River. He logged on both the Wolf river and Pickerel Creek, being associated with his father, T. D. Kellogg, up to the time of the latter's death, in 1903.

The Kelloggs moved to Antigo in March, 1883, and the following winter T. D. Kellogg and his son purchased the old Novotny Brothers mill, this being the first sawmill in Antigo. They operated a mill for many years on this site, selling in 1905 to J. H. Worden.

The T. D. Kellogg Lumber & Manufacturing Company was organized with T. D. Kellogg as President in 1890 and he remained at the head of that firm until his death. H. B. Kellogg has since been President of the concern, which has offices at 619 Superior street, Antigo. Besides being at the head of a large lumber industry Mr. Kellogg is identified with the First National Bank of Antigo, and since July, 1922, has been President of that institution. He previously served as Vice President, being selected for that office in 1902. He has been a director of the bank since 1910. Mr. Kellogg has also served as a member of the Board of Education, as did his father, after whom the Kellogg (First Ward) is named. Fraternally he is a member of the Masonic orders.

June 20, 1883, Mr. Kellogg was married to Mary Bauter at Appleton. Four children were born to this union, namely, Helen, who died in 1904, and who is buried beside her grandparents and her great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Hudson Kellogg, in the Kellogg family lot in the Antigo cemetery; Myrtie V., now Mrs. Ralph Krause, of Seattle, Washington; Thomas D., Superintendent of the Polar mills of the T. D. Kellogg concern; and Horace B., Jr., who assists his father in the management of the Antigo office.

During the World War the Kelloggs proved themselves stern patriots.. Both Thomas D.. and Horace, Jr., served in the U. S. Army and were honorably discharged in 1918 and 1919 respectively.

THOMAS D. KELLOGG. Born August 5, 1889, son of Horace B. and Mary Kellogg, and a grandson of T. D. Kellogg, pioneer Langlade County lumberman. Attended the Antigo public schools, graduated from the Antigo High School in 1908, attended Lawrence College. Took charge of the Polar township mill and other business affairs of the T. D. Kellogg Lumber & Mfg. Co. in 1909. September 1, 1915, was married to Lettie Uhlman, of Willston, N. D. Thomas B. Kellogg is a veteran of the World War, being honorably discharged December 31, 1918. He is a member of the B. P. O. E. lodge.

AUGUST A. LUECK. There is probably no more exacting vocation than that of the modern optometrist and pharmacist. A man of thorough training and absolute reliability, he must also be a master of several occupations beside his own, and to make a success of his enterprise must be capable, courteous in manner and ready to serve the long hours that the vocation demands. The most widely known optometrist and pharmacist in Langlade County is August A. Lueck, one of the leading figures in his vocation in the United States.

Mr. Lueck was born on August 12, 1875, at Tomah, Wisconsin, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Fred Lueck. As a boy he attended the public schools in Tomah and at fourteen years began working for the Thayer Drug Company, serving six and a half years. He later attended the Chicago School of Pharmacy, 1894-96, graduating then. This school is a department of the University of Illinois. Following engagement for a half year by H. J. O'Connor, at Whitewater, Mr. Lueck, in December, 1898, took the state board examination at Milwaukee, was successful and was then awarded full registered papers as a druggist. He located at Merrill, and until September, 1897, was employed by F. H. Hillyer, when he then moved to Antigo to manage Spencer's Drug Store, and after fourteen years, he purchased the entire business, since known as Lueck's Drug Store. In August, 1915, he was appointed a member of the Wisconsin Board of Examiners in Optometry, was re-appointed by Governor E. L. Phillip on July 28, 1920, his term expiring on August 9, 1925. He is a member of the Wisconsin Association of Optometrists, President of the State Board of Optometry for two years, President of the Wisconsin Association of Optometry and is a Director of the same. He has made addresses on Optometry and has conducted three dissecting clinics in Wisconsin. He has lectured frequently in and out of the state and his lectures are quoted by nation-wide optometry mediums.

Mr. Lueck married on September 3, 1903, to Hattie Delia Buffum, of Buffalo, N. Y., and they have two children, Irvin Buffum and Mildred Lucile.

During the World War he was a member of the Citizens' Training Camp and Sergeant of the Day upon return of the 107th Trench Mortar Battery, was a member of the old Commercial Club, being Chairman of its Rural Relations Committee, and is now a leading member of the Antigo Association of Commerce.

FRED W. BAUTER. The pioneers of Langlade have done their work and the result of their efforts is shown today in magnificent farms, cities, modern schools and well maintained highways of communication. Photography was in existence in that early day and to Fred W. Bauter, the pioneer Antigo photographer, has fallen the lot to preserve the memory and faces of these hardy folk. Mr. Bauter was born in Appleton, Outagamie County, Wisconsin, on September 6, 1869. His father died when he was six months old. He attended the Appleton public schools and when fourteen years of age came to Antigo, in 1883. He attended school in Antigo and spent a year in the Antigo High School. In 1885 he began as an apprentice to Morgan Brothers, who conducted a photograph gallery where Muttart-McGillan Company's Clermont street entrance is now located. By working faithfully for Morgan Brothers and later for R. Leutsker, who purchased out Morgan Brothers, Mr. Bauter mastered his vocation. About 1890 he purchased the gallery from R. Leutsker and has been in the photography business in Antigo ever since, being for about twenty years in his present location, 519 Superior street.

Mr. Bauter was married to Ida Hudson, of Green Bay, Brown County, Wisconsin, on September 28, 1897. They have one child, Dale, a Senior in the Antigo High School.

Fraternally Mr. Bauter is a member of the council, chapter and Blue Lodge, Masonic orders, and Charter Oak Lodge No. 150, Knights of Pythias. He served as Alderman from the Second Ward in 1905-06. The Bauters attend the First Congregational Church of Antigo.

Mr. Bauter loves the lakes and forests and during the summer delights in spending a week or two at his cottage at Pelican Lake.

EDWARD CLEARY. The late Edward Cleary was one of the prominent pioneer railroad and business men of Langlade County. He was born in Lancaster, Worcester County, Massachusetts, October 25, 1855, the son of Michael Cleary, a native of Ireland. In 1863 he moved with his parents to Appleton, Outagamie County, Wisconsin, from which place they moved on a farm, and then returned to Appleton. Until nineteen years of age the subject of this biography assisted his father on their farm. During the next four winters he worked in the lumber camps of Northern Wisconsin. In June, 1878, he secured employment as one of the workers on the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western, then piercing the northern part of Wisconsin. The following December he started as a brakeman on the M., L. S. & W. Ry., and for many years after was one of the most efficient conductors on the Ashland Division. He was granted his first passenger run in 1884. Two years later he took up his residence in Antigo and from that time until his death he labored faithfully in the promotion of everything he considered essential to the welfare of Antigo. He erected the Cleary Building in 1891 and became financially interested in numerous commercial undertakings, viz: President of the J. C. Lewis Hardware Company and an officer of the old Antigo Telephone Company. He devoted much of his energies toward helping the fortunes of the county and the success of many enterprises are directly due to his activity. Mr. Cleary was united in marriage in 1882 to Miss Margaret Morrissey, of Appleton, Outagamie County, Wisconsin, the daughter of Patrick and Margaret (Landers) Morrissey, natives of Ireland. To this union seven children were born, namely: John E., a resident of Chicago, Ill.; Agnes M., now Mrs. Charles E. Cody, of Antigo, Wis.; Raymond W., of Chicago, Ill.; Emmet V., of Antigo, Wis.; Aloysius F., deceased, who is buried in the Antigo Catholic cemetery; Marquette, of Antigo, Wis, and Eugene, also of Antigo, Wis.

Politically Mr. Cleary was a Republican. He was for several years a member of the City Council as a Supervisor and Alderman, and served on the Board of Education of Antigo for many years.

Fraternally he was affiliated with the Order of Railway Conductors, a charter member of Antigo Lodge No. 662, B. P. O. E., and also a charter member of Antigo Council No. 1002, K. of C., and of the Catholic Order of Foresters. In religious faith the entire family are members of the Catholic church. With the death of Mr. Cleary on February 21, 1918, Antigo lost from its citizenship a man who had taken a keen interest in all matters pertaining to the community and as a consequence a good and public-spirited citizen. When he was selected as Postmaster of Antigo on July 21, 1901, he had made no solicitation for the appointment which came to him as a surprise. He was postmaster from that time until July 30, 1910. Mr. Cleary's life should be an inspiration to any young man who, handicapped in youth because of meagre worldly possessions, strives to succeed.

NELSON WILCOX GORHAM, a pioneer Antigo citizen, was born on October 3, 1859. Mr. Gorham was named after Col. Wilcox, his grandfather, who was active in the war of 1812. His father was a school teacher and later a lumberman at Gorham, Maine.

The subject of this review spent his boyhood at Ingersol, Ontario, and on a farm near Rochester, New York. Moving to Wisconsin he was a millwright and hotel keeper at Necedah, Wisconsin. Here he was married to Anna Holms on April 2, 1883. To this union three sons were born, George, Will and Charles. The Gorham family moved to Antigo in the spring of 1890, Mr. Gorham becoming engineer for the Campbell & Lanning mill, then on the Heinemann site, Ackley township.

He was fraternally affiliated with the Odd Fellows, of which he was Noble Grand at Necedah, where he was active in Masonic circles. Mr. Gorham passed away on May 4, 1918, five months and nineteen days after the death of his wife, which occurred on December 16, 1917. Both are buried in the old cemetery, Antigo. Three children survive.

Thus with the passing of Mr. and Mrs. Gorham, two pioneers went to their reward. The substantial name so zealously guarded by them now occupies a prominent place in Antigo.

George Gorham, oldest son, was united in marriage to Glenna Duncan, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Duncan, on February 12, 1912, and they have three children—John, Robert and Phyllis. Mr. Gorham is active in Antigo Masonic circles and has been often honored with leading offices in the various branches of Masonry. He is a member of the Baptist church.

Charles Gorham, World War Veteran, was married to Alice Mader, a daughter of John Mader, early Antigo settler, on March 1, 1919. They have one child, Bettie.

William Gorham, married Iva Now on June 12, 1915, and they have three children. They are Marjorie, Kieth and Naomi.

The three Gorham brothers reside in Antigo.

WILLIAM H. DESSEREAU, retired, was born on July 30, 1854, at Champlain, P. Q., Canada, the son of Hermaine Lacourcir and Modest Dessereau. He attended the public and parochial schools of Champlain. In 1870 he moved to the United States, settling at Saginaw, Michigan, and for thirteen years studied the lumber business. In 1883 he entered Spencerian Business College, Detroit, Michigan, from which he graduated in 1884. He had studied landscape and portrait painting under W. Christian, of Bay City, Michigan. He followed the woods for three years at Otsego Lake, Michigan. In 1898 he moved to Wisconsin and was engaged in looking after the cutting of the Yawkey-Bissel Lumber Company for twelve consecutive years. On May 24, 1912, he moved to Antigo, the family residing at 1435 Clermont street.

Mr. Dessereau was married to Catherine Cunningham, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cunningham, of Bay City, Michigan, on August 25, 1886, to which union ten children were born.

He is a descendant of Julian Dubuque, the founder of Dubuque, Iowa. His grandmother was Tarcil Dubuque, a daughter of George Dubuque, who was a brother of Julian.

NORMAN SCHLEIS and CHARLES KOPESCHKA are proprietors of The Farmers' Feed Store, which was opened Sept. 1, 1921, at 623 Sixth Avenue. The firm deals in feed, grain, hay, salt, seeds and the following brands of flour: "Better Bread," Gold Medal, Royal Elk. Their business is from a radius of 25 miles. They have a feed grinder to accommodate the needs of the farmer. Mr. Schleis has eleven years of experience and Mr. Kopeschka eight years in the flour and feed business. Both are long time residents of the county. Their business is located in the old Freider Creamery building.
