| р. 66 210                                     | 26 June 1655. On Mrs. Kirton's request for help towards her charges in the suit with Bateman, he is show cause why the Committee should not stay his proceedings against Mrs. Kirton, as by delay he puts her to needless charge.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 27         | 431                                      |

| o.c.c. 73 286BOND 73 287L.c.c. 73 289 | The County Committee of Northumberland certify,—on information against him before the County Committee for London, that he is a delinquent within the Ordinance of 1643,—that 12 months before he had to fly Newcastle for his affection to Parliament, but that he was sequestered by the Camden House Committee, and then his ship was sequestered. At the same time all his estate in Newcastle was sequestered by Sir John Morley, governor for the King, and his wife was kept close prisoner in her house, but she escaped to Sunderland to her husband, then employed by Parliament for relief of the Scottish army at Boulden Hills. After the reducing of Newcastle, neither he nor his wife returned. He was very active at Sunderland, at Boulden fight, and in regaining the ships at Tynemouth Haven from the enemy. | 73         | 291                                      |

| P.E. 73 235o.c.o. 73 233237           | 1 June 1654. Rob. Carr petitions that the Committee [for the 4 Northern Counties] in Nov. 1652 discharged his estate from sequestration on composition and payment of fine, and several such compositions have been allowed. They sequestered the tithes of Etall, which petitioner did not compound for, being in suit for them with Thos. Carr, of Ford. Is a Scot, and within the Protector's late Act of Grace and Pardon [for Scotland] by which the sequestration is not to be continued after 1 May last. Begs discharge of Etall tithes, and the rest of his estate accordingly.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 73         | 228232                               |

| -420                                          | 4 Sept. 1655. He pleads that by his composition he was to have the rents of Old and New Etall for 1652 restored, but the County Committee refusing this, he petitioned the Commissioners for the 4 northern counties for relief and for the $\frac{1}{5}$ for his wife and children, but their power being ended, they could not relieve him. Begs an order therefor.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 7 3 | 218                                      |

|                                                   | 23 June. Petition renewed; the sequestration was in 1644, but Richard Sewall came in on Truro Articles with his horses, arms, and surgeon's tools, was accepted into Lord-Gen. Cromwell's regiment as a surgeon, and peformed many good cures. Then he got license to be absent, and repaired to the County Committee to get his discharge, but was obliged to return before it was procured, and died in the service, leaving his man, horse, and arms to the regiment, whereon the County Committee discharged the lands from sequestration. As that discharge is said to be invalid, begs to pay a reasonable fine for the estate. |           | 339         |

|                                             | 3 March 1652. ROBERT MEXHAM, sen. and jun., of Beere, Devon, beg to be dismissed from further attendance. They never bore arms against Parliament, but being questioned for adhering to the King's forces, had their estates seized and secured, and paid 100l. to the County Committee, whereupon they were freed. By mistake, the clerk has certified that they paid for their delinquency, and that thereupon their estates were discharged from sequestration. Have been summoned to produce their discharges, which they never had, not having been sequestered. Beg an order to the late County Committee to certify whether they were under actual sequestration either 25 Jan. 1650 or 25 Jan. 1652, the proceedings therein, and the receipts from their estates. | 102  | 2931                   |
|                                             | 3 March. |                                             | 17 March 1652. Complains that in 1646, John Daniel, Thos. Wood, and Wm. Wheildon, then sequestrators for co. Stafford, without order from the County Committee, and without petitioner being called to answer any charge of delinquency, sequestered and sold all his estate of wheat, rye, barley, malt, and oats, &c., value 400l. On petitioner's appeal to the Committee for Sequestrations and the Barons of Exchequer, he was discharged of delinquency, yet is without relief, as the said sequestrators have converted his estate to their own use, and not accounted for it. Begs an order for restitution, or a summons to the sequestrators. | 138                                       | 41                          |

29... Vol. No. 18 March 1652. G or p. 16 162 18 March 1652. Granted, unless the County Committee show cause to the contrary in 14 days. 31 March. Ordered to be proceeded against for assisting the 30 213 King of Scots. Claimants on the Estate of SIR JOHN SPILMAN (late), Heydon, Norfolk. 18 March 1652. Lady Anne Spilman, his widow and executrix, 118 1134 and ROGER, his son and heir, being summoned by the County Committee to produce the discharge of Sir John's estate, plead that they cannot do so, because it was never sequestered, nor any part of it received for the State. Beg to he discharged of the summons, and to enjoy their estate without interruption. Noted, "The Commissioners have no cognizance. Claimants on and Lessee of the Estate of THOMAS STUBBS, Llanvetherine, Co. Monmouth. 18 March 1652. The Committee for Compounding enquire from 30 174 the Committee of co. Hereford about a bond for 55l. said to be payable to him by John Maye, of Pantley, co. Gloucester. 2 April 1652. Maro petitions that in Aug. 1646 the County Com- 101 783 mittee of Hereford were informed that the house and lands called the Grange, the estate of Thos. Pritchard, of Llanvetherine, belonged to Thos. Stubbs, a Papist, but Pritchard D. 157 429 proved his right, Stuhbs being his sister's son and heir-apparent, and the estate was let alone. In Fch. 1648 petitioner hought the lands for 5601., but the County Commissioners told him the estate was engaged by Pritchard for 50l. lent to Powell, a Papist, and petitioner must either pay it or come to London. Being ill and unable L.C.C. 157 440 to travel, gave a bill, which they promised should not be used unless the 501. were proved to be owing on the lands. They now threaten to sequester 3 of the lands as belonging to Stubbs; though the estate not being yet sequestered, it is freed by the Act of Pardon. Begs an order that the 501 may be not called for, and that he may enjoy his estate. 2 April. The County Commissioners to certify touching the 16 253 debt. 8 Sept. Maye's request renewed for discharge of the house, 101 784 o.c.c. 101 780 being in Dore parish, co. Hereford, as not sequestered 1 Dec. D. 101777, 780, 785 8 Sept. Order that, as it appears he was in possession 7 years 17 208 since, Brereton is to state Pritchard's title, and if the County Commissioners seized the premises from Mayo's hands, they are to suffer him to keep possession for 3 mouths on security; meantime he may examine witnesses to prove his title before the County Committee, who are to certify. 154 441 15 Dec. Having proved that Stubbs had no interest in the estate, 101 775 Maye begs its restoration, with the moneys received from it by -447L.C.C. 224 709 the County Committee. & D. -711 15 Dec. The proof given being only the single affidavit of Thos. 17 510 sur. 58 74 Stubbs, the County Commissioners are to receive the rents, and р. 224 705 take further examinations. -707

28 Feb. 1653. Certificate that John Morgan, of co. Monmouth, 32 201

|                           | 30 May 1654. ELIZ. SKIPWITH, JOYCE GARDINER, and CLARE, LUCY, URSULA, and MARGARET TRAPPES, all daughters of Sir F. Trappes, beg allowance of portions of 100L each, granted them by their father in 1632 on his lordship of Bilton-cum-Harrogate, but which they have never received through delinquency of their late brother, Rob. Trappes. The County Committee ordered it them on appeal; then the estate was put in the Act for Sale, and they appealed to the Committee for Removing Obstructions, but the case was dismissed because the lands, being copyhold, are dismissed from sale. Ask allowance of their 100L and an order to the County Committee to pay the interest thereof in future, with arrears since sequestration. | 117        | 703           |

| PHILIP PLUMLEIGH, Sherford, Devon.  31 March 1652. Complains that he is in the late Act of Sale, his 112 name being, by a clerk's mistake, entered as having been sequestered, though he has quietly enjoyed his estate to this day. Begs that an order made privately and concealed for 5 years may not ruin him, and cause the sale of his small estate. Claims discharge on the Act of Pardon, not being sequestered 1 Dec. 1651.  L.C.C. 152 405  1. March. County Commissioners to certify, and if not then 16 241 sequestered, discharge to be granted.  26 May. They reporting that he was not then sequestered, he 112 26 begs discharge.  26 May. Refused because he had been sequestered without 112 29 notice by the County Committee, and not being allowed an 224 187 appeal, begs to compound.  27 July. |                                                    | 1654? Case of Lady Jane Gorges. She assigned her interest in 2 the office of 16 writs in Chancery to her son, Lord Newburgh, who in 1647 assigned for 20 years to John Nicholson a pension therefrom of 150l., in trust to permit Charles, Lord Stanhope to receive it for 12 years, giving Nicholson a power of entry into the office in case of non-payment. At the end of 1647, Lord Newburgh assigned his interest in the office to Lord Broghill and 3 others, on trust—(1) to pay Lady Gorgos 100l. a year; (2) to pay Lord Newburgh's debts, not exceeding 2,000l.; (3) to provide for Lord Newburgh's wife, if she survived him; (4) to maintain his daughter, and raise a portion for her and any other children he might have.  These conditions were fulfilled till July 1650, when Lord Newburgh's estate was sequestered, and since then the 150l. has not been paid to Lord Stanhope, but is in the hands of the State. |                                   | 4 Sept. 1655. John Williams, of Offord, Hunts, petitions that he obtained a judgment long since against Sir Hen. Moore, Bart., son and heir of the late Sir Hen. Moore, Bart., in the Common Bench for 1,000l. debt and 7l. costs; Dame Anne Moore, widow, lately dead, grandmother to Sir Hen. Moore, the son, held in jointure North and South Fawley manors, which descended to the son, were liable to be extended, and could not be meddled with till after her death; but they were sequestered in her life as Papists' lands, and Sir Hen. Moore, the son, became tenant. By order of 1 June 1655, the County Commissioners were to distrain for arrears of rent due by Sir Hen. Moore, and 30l. fine. Begs stay of proceedings, having extended the lands since Lady Moore's death for his debt, and there being no other estate of Sir Henry's in Berkshire. | 131                                      | 479               |

|                                   | 7 Aug. 1654. Wm. Moore petitions the Protector for leave to compound for his whole estate, as well his own as his mother's possession, and for discharge of the sequestration under which he has languished 9 years, only for living in the King's garrison. Applied before to the Committee for Compounding, but was refused, as being both a recusant and delinquent; bas hut 200 l . a year, most of which is in reversion after his mother, and $\frac{2}{3}$ of it sequestered for her recusancy. Has long waited for rules for compounding; has a wife and 7 children, and is in great misery, and threatened with prison. With reference thereon to Council.                                                                                                                                                                                            | 241                                      | 77₄               |

|                          | 1654? Wm. Yeo, minister of Wolborongh, Wm. Randle, of Berry Pomeroy, and John Kempster, of Brixham, Devon, beg payment, with arrears, of their augumentations of 50l., 50l., and 30l. from the rectory and sheafs of St. Mary Church and Paignton, sequestered from Sir Edw. Carey, Papist delinquent; the County Committee hold some of the rents, which they have not paid in, and which would satisfy the arrears.                                                                                                                                                               | 144              | 529         |
|                          | 7 March 1655. The County Committee stating that as Sir Edward is dead and the sequestration discharged, the arrears cannot be paid without further order, the ministers beg this order.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 144              | 531         |
|                          | 7 March. | с. 33 244                | Connty Committee to the Committee for Compounding. We received your order of 6 March to discharge Barker, if not sequestered before 1 Dec. 1651, but we have not discharged him as he was judged a delinquent in 1644, and his estate seized in 1648, yet he has received his rents of 2,0001. a year, though we gave the tenants strict orders to the contrary. We beg directions. With notes that if he is actually sequestered, the County Committee should receive the rents, and referring to his case before the Committee for Advance of Money. |                                             | 24 June. She pleads that she held the land in lieu of jointure till 1648, when, marrying Thos. Lindsey, a Scot, who became a delinquent, it was sequestered; he left England the same year, so that she was miserably impoverished for want of support. Hearing of his death, she appealed, and her case is reported; having no other subsistence, she begs a speedy hearing, and allowance of her rents since her husband's death. | 95              | 419          |

Anthony Dormer, jun., of Wolverhampton, begs reference to counsel of his title to Fletcher's farm in Leaeroft, co. Stafford, sequestered for the delinquency of John Gifford, one of the persons in the last Act for Sale. At a Court Baron for the manors of Cannock and Ridgley, co. Stafford, 16 Car., John Gifford surrendered the premises to the lord of the manor to the use of John Cassy, on condition of avoidance on payment of 7001. before 25 March 1650. At another Court Baron, 17 Car., Cassy was admitted tenant to the premises under the former condition.  By deed poll of 1 June 1641, Gifford and Cassy declared that the surrender was in trust for the uses following:—That |          | 185219 |

| L.c.c. 150 303                         | Petitions for herself and her children that her husband's estate, after payment of legacies and expenses, was to be equally divided among the executors, of whom she is one, but it is seized before any payments for her suspected recusancy, though she was never couvicted, nor is any \(\frac{1}{3}\) allowed to the executors; her estate is posted at such a high rate that nobody will take it, and it lies waste. She having no \(\frac{1}{3}\) set out, put some exen and cattle in, but the County Committee distrained them, and forced her to pay the whole rent for which the estate was posted, and the old agents distrained several sums from her. Begs examination of the time and cause of aequestration.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 78   | 555   |

| o.c.c. 98 165  L.c.c. 30 420           | 28 May 1652. Marmaduke Lloyd, of Crickadarn, co. Brecon, deposes that he contracted with the late County Committee for a seven years' lease of lands of Bodenham Gunter's in Gwendor for 7 years at 20l. a year, and that since the late Commissioners were removed, it appears by a letter of the Committee for Compounding of 18 Fehruary las', that they confirmed the contract, and directed a lease to be drawn accordingly. That he requested the lease from the present Commissioners, offering security for his rent, but they let the lands to Thes. Williams, J.P., at 9l. a year, when deponent was in peaceable possession, summoned him before justices of peace for forcible entry, and outed him of his possession. He carried the case to the great sessions, where the indictment was quashed, and a writ of restitution granted him by the judges, and directed to the sheriff of the county. The writ was executed accordingly, and he restored to possession, but Williams indicted him at the last quarter sessions, and obtained an order for his own settlement, on which he broke open the door of the mansion-house and turned the deponent out. | 98   | 169   |
|                                        | 18 June. Marm. Lloyd petitions the Committee for Compounding, detailing the former contract for the lands, and the confirmation thereof by this Committee, and complaining of interpution in the enjoyment thereof by Thomas Williams, who formerly held the lands at an undervalue, and has now outed                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 98   | 162   |

|                            | 23 June. Petition of John Poyntz, of Christchurch parish, co.  Monmouth. John Morgan in 1644 was captain of a foot company at Raglan Castle, and plundered honest men; after its reducing, he fied the country, and left his estate, worth 1001 a year, to be sequestered, but within 2 years, he has managed by taking the Oath of Abjuration, to obtain a respite of sequestration.  In 1643 John George rode as a trooper at the siege of Glou- cester, has an estate of 201 a year, has not compounded, and yet has obtained a respite. Begs leave to prove their delin- quency, and to have a reward out of their estates, having come                                                                            | 109          | 716         |

|                            | 17 Nov. John Poyntz petitions that Jennet Poyntz, who in 1644 had sent a horse and arms to Lord Herbert of Raglan, died, leaving 2001. in goods, which could not be sequestered, as the late King was ruler in those parts; the will was proved in the Consistory Court of Llandaff, petitioner renouncing the administratorship, because she was a convicted Papist; yet he is now sued on a bond for a debt of 401., which she owed. Has pleaded in the Exchequer Court, but is told that the money should be paid there, and that he is liable for all the estate. Begs an order to the County Commissioners to take his evidence as to the estate, and to give him an allowance for discovering and soliciting it. |              | 729         |

Gloucester, to Rich. Hanslipp, who entered into a statute in 400l. for payment of 250l. in part of the purchase-money; but his estate being sequestered for his refusal to take the Oath of Abjuration, petitioner cannot take the benefit of his statute to recover the purchase-money. Lingwood, of Barnard's Inn, London, beg examination of their claim to, and discharge on the Act of Pardon of Dunklin Manor and park, demised in 1622 by Edw. Broad, for 99 years, on provise to repay 1,000l., with interest, to John Wakeman, whose son and administrator, Edw. Wakeman, sold it for 1,000l. to George Shiers, father of Robert. Also in 12 Car., Broad, for another 1,000l., released his interest in the premises to George Sbiers on non-payment at a given time.  In 1647, Rob. Shiers, as executor, sealed a lease of ejectment for non-payment, and obtained an order in Chancery for payment of 2,914l. 17s. 6d. In 1650, Broad, in consideration of 2,500l., part thereof, conveyed the reversion of the premises, with Heathy Manor, &c., to Ignatins Glascock, and Wm. Lingwood, and petitioner on payment of 2,500l. to him, assigned over his estate to George Needham, in trust for Glascock. Lingwood defeazanced the statute, first for payment of 360l., balance of debt dne to him, with interest, and then for performance of the covenance in the indentures. Since Glascock's death, petitioners have endeavoured to gain possession of the premises, but the County Commissioners secured the estate for delinquency of Edw. | 116      | 698                |

Vol. No. G or p.

- 31 July 1652. The County Committee report that the wife of 167
  Francis Lloyd, who is in London, says he will produce his 168 discharge there, and so they forhear to sequester; also that they have seenred John Lloyd's estate because he can only produce a discharge for the first ½ of his fine, though he promises the discharge for the second in 14 days.
- 21 Sept. County Committee certify that they have produced 168 95 their full discharges.

Claimant ou the Estate of ARTHUR FRY, London.

James Simkin, citizen of London, petitions that being bound 117 521 for Arthur Fry, in 2001., for payment of 1071. 13s. to Mrs. Brocklesby for goods sold to Fry, he was constrained to pay that sum to her in 1644. When Fry was found a delinquent, the County Committee of Camden House sequestered the goods, and sold them, promising to relieve petitioner on his discovery of several debts due in London to Fry, which he has accordingly discovered, and received 1021. 17s. by order of the said Committee, out of which they ordered him to pay 181. to one Clarke, which he did; but Clarke detains 981. due to the Commonwealth, not having paid it to Mrs. Brocklesby, for whose use he received it, according to order of the House of Commons.

The present County Committee in London have summoued him touching the 84l. 17s. by him received, and ordered him to procure allowance thereof from the Committee for Compounding. Begs allowance, and an order to Clarke or some other person to pay him 22l. 16s., to make up the sum of 107l. 13s., and his charges therein amounting to 10l. 8s.

29 June 1652, County Committee of London to examine and 16 607 certify.

DR. EDWARD STANLEY, Mottisfont, Hants.

- 29 June 1652. The County Committee request directions in his 167 411 case; he is on appeal before the Committee for Sequestrations, but not having prosecuted his appeal, they have seized and secured his estate. Since then the Act of Oblivion has passed, and no part of his estate was in trust to any for the State on 1 Dec. 1651.
- 30 June. Registrar's certificate that he finds no charge of 32 30 delinquency, recusancy, &c., against him, but a letter dated 14 Jan. 1652 to the County Commissioners of Hants, to sequester his estate for not prosecuting his appeal since July 1646, and an order of 21 Jan. 1652, staying the said letter 7 days. |                                | 7 July. He complains that having paid ½ his fine, secured the rest, and got suspension of sequestration, the County Committee do not restore the goods, and that they have sealed an ejectment from the tenements, on pretence of a lease which cannot be found.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | 80               | 255                 |
|                                | 7 July. The County Committee to restore the goods, certify why they have proceeded against the estate compounded for, and not to meddle with it till further order.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 25               | 115                 |
|                                | 19 July. Order on affidavits of Thos. and Marg. Deffell, and on reading a lease of the estate made to And. Underhill, 11 July 1647, that the County Committee certify why they demand 4 years' arrears of rent at 12l. a year from Deffell. Also that on security in double value, they restore him all his goods taken for the said arrears.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 25               | 151                 |

|                                | 28 July 1652. Dame Seymour Hartines [widow of Sir George Hastings] and 3 other creditors petition that they obtained 3 judgments in 1642 against Hen. Hastings, who was one of the late King's party, but in 1645 he was freed from sequestration by the Articles of Ashby-de-la-Zouch, and they could not then extend the lands, which were under a lease not expiring till 1651; since then the County Committee have sequestered them, and received the rents, being 2001. a year. Beg discharge, as Hen. Hastings has only a life estate in the lands, and they will else lose their debt and interest.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 90               | 653679          |

Hill, but was sequestered by the then Governor of Plymouth for petitioner's delinquency, and employed as a magazine during the war. Afterwards, he being abroad and his wife dead, Phil. Francis, one of the Town Committee, who had charge of his deeds, took the house as his own, paid himself 401. out of public money for the rent, and has held it ever since, contrary to his trust, so that for 10 years the State has lost the rent. Wishes Francis to be summoned to give account of his title and profits. | 68          | 915        |

| o.c.c.125 36c. 125 61              | 11 Aug. 1652. RICH. TRENICK, jun., petitions that his father in 1632 settled West Dunwell Farm on petitioner and his wife, who brought 500l. portion, and they were to receive from it 50l. the first year, 60l. the second and third, and then 80l. yearly, and to distrain for default of payment. This was paid till the farm was sequestered for the father's delinquency, and then the late County Commissioners refused it without an order, so that he and his family are like to perish, | 125        | 15           |

In 1644 the premises were sequestered for the delinquency of Lady Wenman, interested in the former lease, upon the determination of whose interest petitioner had allowance of his title from the Committee for Sequestrations. Yet the sequestration was continued [for delinquency of Aroh. Hay], though petitioner endeavoured to serve his order for its release, but there was no County Committee then extant. Could not prosecute his discharge till 3 months ago, having been 3 years beyond the seas. | 95               | 663689                                |

|                                           | EYTON CROMPTON, his son and heir, begs examination of witnesses as to his claim to the lordship and castle of Great Dawley, purchased in fee by his father, and of other lands to which he is heir-at-law. Was in Ireland in the Parliament's service when his father died, and there continued till disabled by wounds and imprisonment. On coming to claim his inheritance, his mother-in-law, Mary, 3rd wife of Fulke Crompton, who brought him no portion, urged petitioner to side with the King, and on his refusal, olapped a garrison of the enemy on the estate, barred him from the place, and there she remained till it was taken by the power of the then County Committee, wherein petitioner himself was engaged as a cornet of horse. The said lands are sequestered for her delinquency, though she has no right thereto. | 77                    | 637655   |

George Greene, vicar of Theddingworth, Timothy Kirke, vicar of Biteswell, and George Boheame, vicar of Foxton, co. Leicester, petition that Lubenham Rectory was purchased by Fras. Nevill and other trustees for John Poulton, but sequestered for his recusancy, and after his death, for that of Frances his wife, who died Ang. 1652. Petitioners had augmentations of 50l., 40l., and 50l. therefrom, hnt Mawditt and Moorhouse having bought the rectory, the sequestration is discharged, and their augmentations made void.  The conveyance to trustees was disallowed by the Committee for Sequestrations, because the trust was never executed, but the premises remained 12 years in John Poulton's hands, and the purchase of Mawditt and Moorhouse was a month before Frances Poulton died. Beg that the whole business may be examined, and meantime that the estate may be kept sequestered, or the rents left in the tenants' hands. | 87         | 659                        |

In 1644, had 560l. belonging to Francis Yardley, of Virginia, which he paid him at Christmas 1644, and got his discharge. The late Commissioners at Camden House, on false information of delinquency against Yardley, sent for petitioner to stop the said money in his hands; on answering that it was paid, he was dismissed, but lately the present Commissioners of London sitting at the Wardrobe have required him to pay it, alleging that it was stopped in his hands, as appears by an entry in the late Committee's books. Well remembers that he was not summoned before the said Committee till after the money was paid. Begs relief, no delinquency being proved against the said Francis Yardley. |           | 273                  |

|                                                 | 24 June. He complains that though he has paid his fine and got his discharge, the County Commissioners sue him for arrears of rent due before the discharge, and will sell his personal estate, unless ordered to the contrary. Begs that he may be discharged on the Act of Pardon, or that the County Commissioners may certify who owes the arrears, and forbear proceedings meantime. | 65        | 757                                        |

Merioueth, petitions that in Sept. 1643, Jones entered into a bond of 600l. for payment to him of 300l. in 6 months, but died in 1650. In 1651 put the bond in execution against Morris Jones, his executor, and got a verdict and execution. Has paid in his proportion on the Act for Wales, though he was never a delinquent, and the Act of Oblivion pardons all not sequestered before 1 Dec. 1651; has served Parliament as sheriff for the county and otherwise, yet the Committee for North Wales have ordered the sheriff to stay his execution, on a false pretext that the 300l. was lent to the late King. Begs leave to proceed with his execution, or an order to the said Committee to certify the cause of their proceedings. | 62               | 323              |

|                                                              | 3 Dec. Hankinson petitions, owning the mortgage, but pleading that he was to have 12 months' notice before redemption. He also owns the re-demise, Edm. Spencer entering into a statute of 600l. before Wm. Newton, then mayor of Congleton, but he died 3 months after. The estate was sequestered in 1642, and since then only 68l. 6s. 8d. has been paid to the late County Committee, of which he was allowed \(\frac{1}{2}\), 42l. to the present County Committee, and 21l. to him—131l. 6s. 8d. in all; so that of the 6 years' rent and 10l. arrears due in 1642, total, 210l., 78l. 13s. 4d. is still due, besides the 300l.  The Spencers could have held the land had they paid the rent to the County Committee; but to free themselves from the rent, they pretended a former mortgage of part of the estate to Anne Spencer's father, Mr. Rider, and this part they kept during the time of the late County Committee; but the present County Committee sequestered it 2 years since, and have advanced the rent to above 20l., keeping the overplus towards the arreara. He therefore declines the 300l., unless the 78l. 13s. 4d. and interest is paid. Being 70 years old, and weak and poor, begs that hie examinations may be taken by the County Committee, and he allowed to compound for the mortgaged estate. |                 | 147329        |

|                                              | Petitions the Committee for relief on Articles of War for the benefit of Pendennis Articles, within which he was comprised, as is proved by the list certified by Col. Rich. Fortescue, commander there. Though he has submitted to all orders of Parliament, his estate has been sequestered ever since the making of those Articles, now nearly 7 years, and great waste committed thereon—a far greater sum being thereby raised than would have paid his composition. His name is now returned to be put into the Bill for Sale.  Begs confirmation of the said Articles by Parliament, according to the letters of the late Lord-General Fairfax, and the now Lord-General Cromwell; and meanwhile stay of the sale of his estate, and of all proceedings thereon. | 118              | 1107       |

|                    | 18 Jan. 1653. Begs a certificate to the Trustees for sale of estates in the late Act for Sale of the cause of his sequestration, which has been ever since the beginning of the Ordinance for sequestration, for no other cause that he knows of but his being absent from his dwelling-house. Never aided the enemy by bearing arms or contributing supplies, but has lived peaceably in his friends' houses; therefore he can claim the proviso in the late Act exampling those who have not adhered to the enemy from loss of their estates. | 129      | 7           |

|                    | 6 April. On the return from Essex, and the registrar and auditor's certificates, the case is to be heard to-morrow.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 25       | 33          |
|                    | 8 April. On his requesting exemption from sale on the Act forPardon, not being sequestered before 1 Dec. 1651, the case isto be reported to Parliament and Brereton to state it.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 25       | 37          |
|                    | [13 May.] The County Committee reporting that he is only sequestered for absenting himself to avoid taxes, and for not assisting against the enemy, and Brereton having reperted his case, he begs speedy relief, his case lying unfinished because of the late disturbance to the Heuse; meanwhile the trustees expose his lands for sale, to the ruin of himself, wife, and children.                                                                                                                                                         | 129      | 4           |

| P.E. 170 187                            | 19 Jan. 1653. Complains that through the malice of a discontented tenant, who pretends he would give the same rent, but cannot secure it, she has been forced to pay 185 l . rent, besides 50 l . taxes, for $\frac{2}{3}$ of her farm, valued at 300 l . a year, and sequestered for recusancy only. Out of her third she has to maintain old Mr. Griffin and his wife, both 70 years old, his brother, four sons, two daughters, a widow, and three children, besides herself and children. The County Committee have lately surveyed the estate, and find it overrated, and confess that petitioner has not her third allowed. Begs that she may be tenant at a just rent for $\frac{2}{3}$ , and that the other third may be allowed.                                                                                                                 | 88         | 521       |

|                                         | 19 Jan. 1653. Begs discharge, on the last Act for Sale, of 57 acres in Ash Marsh, Kent, of which his nephew, Fras. Nethersole, had a reversion after a lease to — Stockett, but before its expiration his nephew died; the land was sequestered as his nephew's, but on the knowledge of Stockett's interest, it was discharged, and the County Committee referred it to the Committee for Sequestrations as to whether the rest of the profits, the lease being ended, should not be restored to petitioner. Bradshaw reported, and petitioner continued to prosecute the reference without success before the Barons of Exchequer, till wearied out, he waived his appeal, and petitioned the Committee for Compounding a year or two ago to be allowed to compound, which they promised him, but as yet nothing is done. The land was never sequestered before 1 Dec. 1651. | 108        | 45        |

|                                                 | 28 Jan. 1653. Petitions the Committee for relief on Articles of War to make good to him the Articles of the surrender of the castle, by which he was to have security of person and estate, but all arms, &c., were to be delivered up to Col. Fras. Boynton for Parliament. The Colonel promised him satisfaction for bis own goods left behind, value 220l., and in 1646 the Committee for relief on Articles of War promised to report his case to the Honse, for payment and discharge of sequestration; but he could get no report, and now begs relief, Parliament having given full power to this Committee to give relief. |            | 317        |

|                                          | 7 Nev. 1654. Joseph Heldswerth, minister of Oswald in Elvet, city of Durham, petitions that in 1653 he was settled minister there by the late Commissioners for Propagating the Gospel in the 4 Northern Countiee, and was ordered the rectories of Oswald, Pittington, and part of Bellingham. The tithe corn and hay of Shincliffe, part of Oswald Rectory, had been in lease to Thos. Hopper, and was sequestered for his recusancy; but though the lease expired 23 July 1653, and the profits should now revert to him, the County Committee will not discharge the sequestration, and have let it for 141 to Charles Wren, of Durham. Begs discharge, with arrears. | 144  | 231                |

By an order of the Council of State of 30 Oct. 1651, letters of reprizal were granted to Rich. Pettingall, administrator of Robert and Wm. Paulet, to obtain reparation for the Dove of Minehead, and goods worth 20,9701., of which, in Jan. 1631, Rob. Paulet was piratically robbed by a man-oi-war of Rotterdam. Can discover the State's right to ½ of this. By those letters, Pettingall has taken prizes value 30,0001. beyond the sum limited in them, which overplus should also belong to the State. Will prosecute the discovery at his own cost, if he may have a reasonable share out of the premises due to the State. | 136        | 563                |

| 11 Feb. 1653.  | RICHARD PETTINGALL—cont.  State, he discovered the State's interest in Sir Pierce Crosby's \( \frac{1}{2} \) part, with himself and Robert and Wm. Paulet, in a depredation committed by Cornelius Kint of Rotterdam; has prosecuted it at great expense against Rich. Pettingall, Hugh Gamlyn, and other "unsufferable deceivers," and has now resigned the prosecution to Mr. Nagle, and it is ready for publication. Could have compounded for it long since, but would not deliver up the indenture. Begs for his services to receive an equal portion with the State, and protection from arrest till it is determined, or a request for it to the Council of State, for leave to take care of himself. | G    | or p. |
|                | 4 May 1653. Protection for 7 days granted by the Committee for Compounding.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | 25   | 58    |
| o.c. 25 85, 95 | 19 May. Renewed to 15 June, that he may fetch the deeds and writings, and find out other papers, and go to his counsel on that business, but no other.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 25   | 72    |
| o.c. 25 87     | 24 May. Other witnesses to be examined as to Crosby's delinquency and this discovery.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 25   | 77    |
| e.w. 25 87     | 31 May. The Committee for Compounding request from the Admiralty Committee copies of all orders of the Council of State relating to the letters of reprizal of Rich. Pettingall against the Dutch, or of Isaac Phillips against the French; also returns of the ships, where bound, their names, appraisement when freed, and copies of all particulars relating to them; the bearer to pay the fees.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 25   | 87    |
|                | 30 Aug. Publication to pass if Pettingall show not cause to the contrary.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 25   | 180   |
|                | 14 Sept. John Stephens begs to proseoute the discovery of Nagle, who was imprisoned, consumed his estate, and lost his life therein. Was intrusted in the business by him and his wife, has the papers, and will act for the wife. Nagle found papers in the Excise Office at Portsmouth, conducing to the business, and declared that Pettingall, Phillipps, Hugh Gamlyn, and others have taken a rich ship laden with wheat, &c., now at Portsmouth, and never accounted for it, and sold the goods to James Napper, of Weymouth. Begs copies of these writings, the seizure of the ship, and the securing of the principal persons.                                                                       | 120  | 103   |
|                | 14 Sept. Stephens admitted as discoverer, and he is to have copies of the writings relating thereto in the Excise; the Customs' officers at Portsmouth, at Southampton, and in the Isle of Wight, are to deliver him copies thereof without fee, being for the State.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 25   | 202   |
|                | 27 Sept. Sir Allan Boteler's (sic) protection renewed for 21 days -                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 25   | 210   |
|                | 26 Oct. Order to the clerks and officers of customs to deliver to John Stephens, who is prosecuting a discovery of ships and goods belonging to Crosby, copies of all entries in their books, or returned from Dover, Dartmouth, Plymouth, Poole, &c., relating thereto.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 25   | 234   |
|                | 28 Feb. 1654. Stephens having procured the said papers, for completion of the discovery, begs an order to Pettingall to bring in bills of lading, charter-parties, cockets and inventories of all the ships taken by him from the Dutch. Noted to be read to-morrow.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 120  | 98    |

Publication ordered, and a report to be drawn up for the Protector, and notice to be given in the report, if it appear that no depositions have been taken on Pettingall's side.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |           | 15093  |
|                                          | 4 Nov. John Marston urges, on behalf of Anne, widow of Rich. Pettingall, that her husband was only administrator of the Paulets to pay their debts, which are yet unpaid. That if anything be demanded as owing to Sir Pierce Crosby, it is pardoned by the general Act of Pardon. That neither she, nor her husband, are concerned in debts due to Crosby. Begs the benefit of the law,—an information on the case having been given into the Court of Exchequer, and not determined, whereupon the Admiralty Court forbore to Act. If a report be presented to the Protector, he begs that this answer may go with it. | 136       | 547549 |

ROBERT DILLON, of Heanton Punchardon, Devon, begs discharge of \(^2\)_3 of the manor of Lancras, which,—by virtue of a judgment obtained long before the wars, upon the moiety of the lands of George Bassett, of Tehiddy, Cornwall, deceased,—he extended for a debt of 500l. Let it to a tensar 10l. a year, but at the expiration of a year, his tenant refusing to pay any more, petitioner entered and scaled an ejectment lease; but his lessee was non-snited for want of circumstantial proof of the ejection, and before petitioner could begin anew, the manor descended to Ant. Gifford, for whose recusancy \(^2\)_3 were sequestered. He died, and thereupon Honor Gifford, his relict, enjoyed it till her death, and now their son has it, the sequestration being continued for his recusancy. Begs the discharge of \(^2\)_3 of the manor till satisfied his just debt and damages. |          | 352              |

|                                            | Petitions the Committee for relief on Articles of War, begging the benefit of the Articles of Anglesey, made in 1646, on surrender of Beaumaris Castle to Major-Gen. Thos. Mitton, and confirmed by Parliament, and freedom from imprisonment on account of an act of delinquency in the war,—viz., that on warrant from the late Sir John, or Lord Byron, commander-in-chief for the late King in North Wales, he, as governor of Carnarvon and high-sheriff of the county, stayed a merchant vessel riding at anchor, which was adjudged prize, and the merchants to whom the lading was consigned were compelled to pay the value to Byron, for which value he is now sued by the owners. | 95                | 87                                        |
|                                            | 23 Feb. 1653. On hearing the answer of Thomas Fowle, in behalf of himself and other defendants, the Committee for relief on Articles of War order both parties to attend the registrar, and let him know whether they consent to a hearing upon the simple question whether or no petitioner is included in the Articles, and should be freed from imprisonment, for an act done in time of war; if so, the registrar is to set the question down for speedy hearing.                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 95                | 111                                       |

John Reade, of Tarporley, begs leave to prove before the County Commissioners his title to a house in Tarporley, come to him by decease of Joan [wife of Wm.] Brock, his mother—he being her son by a former husband—but still sequestered for her recusancy. Is neither recusant ror delinquent; can prove that his mother is dead, and that he has not done anything to bar his right thereto. | 113                                      | 201211                                    |

|                               | 15 March 1653. Richard Maudsley, surviving trustee for James Westhead, petitions that in 1632 Thomas Westhead, uncle of James, settled a lease, not expired, of a house, &c., in Bickerstalle, on petitioner and Robert Maudsley, now dead, in trust for himself for life, and then for Rich. Westhead and his issue; but Alice, wife of Richard, got it during the minority of her son James, and $\frac{2}{3}$ of it is sequestered for her supposed recusancy, though she has taken the Oath of Abjuration and has no right to it, and James, the son of Richard, is well-affected and conformable. Begs discharge or examination. | 104      | 241           |

| 4 Sept. 1655. John Barney complains that having in 1652 taken the estate of Henry Berney, on condition of freedom from all fee-farm rents, out-rents, &c., yet his goods are distrained for a fee-farm rent, due 1647 to 1650, which the County Commissioners new refuse to allow or repay. Begs relief. | 136                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 645                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
