|                                          | 5 May 1652. John Clarton and Dunkin complain that having had from the County Committee the lease of § of John Hodgson's tithes of Lanchester, co. Durham, sequestered for his recusancy, at the high rent of 100l. a year, the inhabitants refuse payment of the tithes; thus they are frustrated of their bargain, and the State of a year's rent.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |           | 666        |

|                                          | 5 June. The parishioners of Lanchester plead that the premises are demised to John Plumbton and 2 others, as well as to Clapton and Dunkin, all of whom, except Dunkin who is gone into Ireland, disclaim the foregoing petition, as proffered without their direction. Petitioners duly pay their tithes, but refuse payment of tithes for some small parcels of a large common, divers miles long, because it never paid tithes, has only been ploughed two years, and is worth but 1d. an acre. The premises, without the tithes in question, are well worth what the tenants pay for them. Beg that they may not be forced to pay these tithes, but that the lessees may be left to the law. | 100       | 383        |
| н. 16 543                                | 15 June. Petition renewed. If any tithes be due, yet only 2 parts in 7 belong to Hodgson, and if 2 parts were due, yet, as the waste parts were improved at petitioners' expense, no tithes ought to be paid till 7 years after the improvement, according to the 2nd and 3rd provisoes of the Statute for Tithes, 2 Ed. | L.c.o. \ 154 3991.&d. \ -415         | 2 March 1653. John Readshaw, Nicholas Byerley, and others, petition that, having purchased of the Commissioners for Sale of Dean and Chapter Lands, in Feb. 1650, the lands called Heleyfield, Whitehall, &c., in Muggleswick Manor, and parish of Lanchester, co. Durham, the premises ought to be free from tithes, but the impropriation of Lanchester being sequestered for Hodgson's recusancy, the tenants demand the tithes. Beg that they may not be allowed to levy the tithes, but be left to their remedy at law for recovering them; and pending the suit, that the tithes may remain in petitioners' hands.                                                                         | 138       | 427        |

|                                 | 28 May 1651. Jennett Mort, spinster, his sister, begs allowance of two rent-charges of 100l. and 40l., on messnages and lands in Bolton, Tonge, Harwood, Halliwell, &c., and in Preston, settled on her parents, Adam and Eliz. Mort, on their marriage, by her two grandfathers, Adam Mort and Seth Bushell, with proviso of payment of these charges to the younger children. Her parents and grand-parents are dead, and there remain only herself and one brother, Seth Mort, for whose delinquency the estate is secured, and the present County Committee say they have not power to allow her annuities. |           | 413               |

- 3 June 1651. Wm. Farrington, of Werden, and 2 others, co. Lancaster, petition that Wm. Preston, late of Preston, by deed of 12 Jan. 15 Car., conveyed to petitioners all his lands in trust for his wife Ann's jointure, and his children's portions, the remainder to Henry, his eldest son, and petitioners have enjoyed the same till the late sequestration for Henry Preston's delinquency; they heg that, as he has no interest therein till the said portions are fully paid, they may receive the profits as formerly.
- 3 June. The County Committee to examine and certify - 14 148
- 4 Aug. 1652. The trustees to account with the County Committee for what they have received out of the estate, which is to be seized and secured meanwhile.

L.c.c. 110 1073 22 April 1652. The estate not standing sequestered 1 Dec. 1651, 110 1069

HEN. Preston begs an order to the County Committee to discharge the seizure or to certify.

22 April. Referred to the County Committee - - 16 341

4 Aug. Petition renewed, praying the benefit of the Act of 110 1071 Oblivion.

Claimants on the Estate of KATHERINE READ (late), Co. Worcester.

3 June 1651. The Poor of Bredon, co. Worcester, Rich. Read, jun., Fulke and Edw. Read, petition that Katherine Read having died possessed of a lease worth 1001. a year, left 201. a year therefrom to Richard Read, jun., 151. to Fulke, 151. to Edward Read, 201. to the poor of Bredon, and 301. to Richard Read, sen., recusant.

The County Committee sequestered the estate, and leased it, with directions to the tenants to pay petitioners their annuities; but this year they have posted the lands, and are about to let them without any such direction; beg that like directions may be given to the new tenant, or the present tenant continued. With note of an order 2 July that Brereton report the title, and the County Commissioners certify.

WILLIAM RICHARDS, Kentisbury, Devon.

- 3 June 1651. Begs discharge of the seizure on his estate in 113 1053 cos. Middlesex and Devon, made in regard of its being formerly sequestered; it was not liable thereto, he having never assisted the late King, and there being no proof against him.
- 3 June. The County Committee to certify the cause of the 14 148 scizure.

L.C.C. 162 509 D. 113 1052 CASE 113 1047 O.C.C. 113 1050 4 Nov. Petition renewed. Living 200 miles from London, never 113 1049 knew of the sequestration of his estate in Westminster, on information given to the County Committee there against him as a delinquent, till two years ago, when he heard that one Norgate had extended it on a statute, that the sequestration was discharged, and the estate in Norgate's hands till Dec. 1650, when the County Committee of Middlesex again seized and secured it.

Has been well-affected, and was never suspected in Devon, where he lived 14 years till May 1651, when, upon summons from the Committee for Compounding, his estate was ordered to be seized, but it was immediately discharged, there being no proof of delinquency.

|                                            | JOHN RATCLIFFE and Susan his wife, relict of Wm. Carr, and THOMAS CARR, her son and heir, heg an order to the County Committee to examine Thomas Carr's title to the tithes of Etall, held till 11 years ago, when Rob. Carr, a Scot, commander of the Scottish army in their then expedition, finding Thos. Carr an infant, and his mother a widow, seized the tithes, and in those troublesome times, none durst question him, till she married Ratcliffe, a commander for Parliament. When the case should have been tried, Rob. Carr returned to Scotland, and took up arms against the State, whereby the tithes are sequestered, and they deprived thereof. | 136       | 473        |

Suffolk, is sequestered. It is let for 37l. a year, and yet for 7\hat{7} years, ending Christmas 1650, he has only received 51l. 8s. 1d. in all for his third part, and nothing from Michaelmas 1643 to Christmas 1645. Part of his lands were bona fide charged iu 1639 with 8l. a year till 100l. had been paid to Mrs. Clare Wigmore, who sued petitioner, and forced him to borrow 200l. for discharge of that debt, for which all the sequestered lands stand charged. Begs that the whole estate, and not the third merely, may be charged with the debt, and that on the County Committee's return of the true value, he may have a 7 years' lesse thereof. |

The late County Committee for Chester deny Bretland's charges against them. The depositions were impartially examined and truly set down; they know not whom Bretland calls his "embittered and implacable enemies," they sought to discover the malignants in the hundreds with their conspiracies and plots, and Bretland was such an one.  The examinations were written by one of the then Committeee or the clerk; they had no chairman. They know not that he ever attended 7 hours, much less 7 years; but whilst they were in office, he obstructed, affronted, and menaced them. He is a "subtle, impudent, and dangerous man," and they beg indemnity against him. | 149       | 99         |

|                                               | 2 Dcc. 1651. David Murray petitions that Sir John Ferrers, of Tamworth Castle, co. Warwick, in 6 James, granted to Temperance [daughter of Antony and Anne Bradborne, after the death of her mother, who died in 1639], an annuity of 77. on his lands in [Kirk Langley] Derbyshire. Married the said Temperance, now dead, and they had many children, and he has a right by the conressy of England to the annuity, but the lands have come to John Bretland, for whose delinquency they are sequestered. Having no remedy at law, begs an order for its allowance.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 105              | 135113        |

| г. 98 671                                         | 12 July 1653. The widow of Thomas Knight, of Northwich, co. Chester, petitions that her husband contracted with the County Committee for lands sequestered for delinquency of John Bretland, and gave security for the rent, but died before enjoying the lands. She living far remote, assigned her right to Reignald Goddard, but he complains that Bretland's wife and son withhold the premises, on pretence that Bretland has compounded for them, and yet she is liable to the rent. Begs an order to the County Committee to free her, or put Goddard in possession, and to Bretland to satisfy her for trespasses and costs. | 98         | 673        |

Simon Ford, of Reading, Berks,—being concerned in this order, as one of those ministers most of whose augmentation is to be abated, to satisfy John Lewin for pretended undue abatement of taxes,—complains that Lewin concealed the order, that he might receive the moneys before the ministers had notice so as to appeal; begs on behalf of his fellow sufferers a hearing of their reasons against the order.                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 85  | 277                |

|                        | 7 Feb. The Committee for Compounding reprove Bellingham's neglect of orders, will not allow on his account the money he has paid to Lewin, and summon him either to pay Ford or appear to answer; also to say whether the money was paid Lewin after he received their letter.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 27  | 286                |
|                        | 9 Feb. As Bellingham will appear on summons rather than pay, Ford begs to be heard at the same time.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 85  | 275                |
| р. 85 273              | 22 Feb. Affirmation by Ford that Bellingham is in good health, attending service at church, despatching business, and feasting at Col. | L.c.c. 148 397I.&D. 408D. 72 215 | 24 June 1651. John Brooke, of Newbold Astbury, complains that on pretence of a title made by Joseph Ward, a delinquent, by colour of a later assignment, lands called Fryer Fields, &c., settled upon petitioner for two lives by Richard Brooke, his father, in 1640, for the consideration paid out of his marriage portion with Anne Kilshall, have been secured for the delinquency of Ward, who never had any just title thereto. Begs reference of his title to connsel.                                                                                                                                                | 72               | 246          |

| р. 72 207-209                        | Feb. 1652? Petition renewed by Brooke and Hugh Kilshall. Richard Brooke, John Brooke's father, being lessee of the lands aforesaid, granted John a moiety of them, and on his marriage with Hugh Kilshall's daughter, he possessed himself thereof along with Kilshall, and received the profits, till 3 months ago, when, because Richard Brooke, 15 July, 17 Car., acknowledged a statute of 1,000l. to Joseph Ward, conditioned for payment of 10l. a year for 13 years, the statute being forfeited, the County Committee sequestered the premises, whereas petitioner's moiety is in no wise liable to the said statute. | 7 2       | 238          |
| P.E. 127 381224 117                  | 14 April 1652. Joseph Ward petitions that—having compounded with the former County Committee of Chester, and had the benefit of Oxford Articles, with a saving for a debt owing to him by Richard Brooke, and having found an estate of Brooke's chargeable with the said debt, and laid an extent thereon,—John Brooke endeavours to defeat him of his debt, and the State of the benefit of his composition, on pretence of a precedent grant, and has obtained an order for the examination of witnesses, but neglects to prosecute his cause to a hearing. Begs a short day for hearing.                                  | 127              | 386          |

|                                                    | 24 June 1651. Francis, Anthony, John, Giles, Garriel, and Mary, children of John Norris, petition that their father at his death in 1646 held 2 houses in Milverton, worth 40l. a year, and land worth 15l., which fell; the houses to Francis and Anthony, the land to the younger children, but all were sequestered for the father's delinquency; the profits, being 192l., were received by the County Committee, and they had not a penny, although for the \(\frac{1}{3}\) they should have had 48l., and they were maintained by their kindred. In 1649 the County Committee, in lieu of the arrears of the \(\frac{1}{3}\), ordered the henefit of the whele estate to the 4 younger children for years, and the mansion-house and \(\frac{1}{3}\) of the tenements were allotted to Francis and Anthony, but now the County Committee refuse to allow the same. |            | 451          |

|                            | 25 June 1651. GILBERT TAYLOB, of Bickerstaffe, co. Lancaster, begs allowance of his title to ‡ of the moiety of a tenement in Bickerstaffe held by Margery Geare for life, and sequestered for her recusancy; it descended to petitioner in right of his wife, and was discharged by the County Committee on his showing his title, but is of late re-sequestered. Noted for the County Committee to certify, and Reading to report.                                                                                                                                                                                            | 121         | 7 05        |
|                            | 1 March 1653. Petition renewed for discharge. Edward Simpkin held it by lesse from Sir Edward Stanley, for the lives of himself, Margery his wife, and Thomas their son. On Simpkin's death, she became possessed of \(\frac{1}{3}\) in right of her widowhood, and the rest came to the said Thomas, who was slain in the Parliament's service. Petitioner married Thos. Simpkin's widow Snsan, and compounded for a new lease for 3 lives with Sir Thomas, son and heir of Sir Edward Stanley, but \(\frac{2}{3}\) are sequestered for the recusancy of the said Margery, who married John Gesre, and died in January 1650.   | 121         | 676                |

| в. 8 7 587          | 25 June 1651. Wm. GIBBS, of Wilnecote, co. Warwick, begs trial of his cause against Richard Gunn, to whom, seven years ago, he lent 40L, his whole livelihood; this Gunn has refused to pay, so that petititioner has been obliged, for 3 or 4 years, to borrow money to live on. His kinsman, George Perks, brought the case to trial at Warwick Assizes, and paid 9l. for expenses; but the County Committee stayed the trial, charging petitioner with recusancy. Begs that he may receive \( \frac{1}{2} \) of the debt, and the consideration due for it since making of the bond, and that Perks may receive the said 9l. | 87          | 585                |

Vol. No. 2 July 1651. TRISTRAM LLOYD-cont. G or p. Tybroughton, for the lives of himself, and Margaret, his wife, and 21 years after their death. Ho died, and she married Rob. Lloyd, who survived her, and held the lands till he died, though they belonged to petitioner by right of his wife, brother's daughter to Rich. Hinton, and next of kin. Dared not make any claim, the late King's party being powerful there, and Tristram Lloyd, brother of Robert, long kept the estate, was adjudged a delinquent, and died. For quietness sake petitioner became tenant to the estate, at 51. rent, and compounded with Tristram's administrator for his title to the lands; but though the lands were charged with a proportion of the general composition of North Wales (and Tristram Lloyd, dying before the last rebellion, was not one of the persons excepted therefrom), the County Committee still continue the sequestration. Begs discharge, or leave to compound. L.c.c. 164367 & d. -3812 July 1651. County Committee to certify the cause and date of 14 188 sequestration. JAMES SCUDAMORE, Middle Temple, London, for his Nephew, JOHN SUUDAMORE, Infant. 2 July 1651. Complains that the Commissioners in co. Hereford 116 300 have ordered the tenants to detain the rents of the rectory of Ross, due to his nephew. now in France for his better education, by licence of the Council of State, although no cause is given for the detention. Begs to receive the rents on security. 2 July. The County Committee to certify the cause of their 14 187 proceedings. Claimant on the Estate of [WILLIAM] STONER, Recusant, Monks Risborough, Bucks. 2 July 1651. NATH. Anderson, minister of Monks Risborough, Bucks, begs for continuance of the allowance of wood for 2 fires 375 c. 63 377 out of the estate of Stoner; the wood being sequestered for his recusancy. 2 July. Referred to the County Committee 14 187 WILLIAM WATSON, Madams Court, Kent, WILLIAM STANLEY, Hooton, Co. Chester, and BARTHOLOMEW SMITH, Winchester, Hants.* 537 2 July 1651. Petition on behalf of themselves and others seques. 128 tered for recusancy. Having taken the Oath of Abjuration, and being ready to give all just satisfaction therein, they beg the Committee speedily and effectually to endeavour to have their reports heard and determined by Parliament, and meanwhile to allow them to enjoy their estates upon security. 2 July. Reading and Brereton ordered to search the former Acts 14 188 of Parliament touching recusants, and certify what as yet amounts to conformity. Watson may receive his rents on security of three years' value of his estate. Stanley being a recusant, and Smith being returned a Popish recusant convict, their estates are to be sequestered. 16 July. Watson begs a reinforcement of the foregoing order as 128 497 to his rents, complaining that the County Committee will not permit him to receive those due at Midsummer.

16 July. Order confirmed -

| c. 160 23                   | 3 July 1651. Matthew Walmsley and Elizabeth his wife, and Henry Birley and Mary his wife—the wives being daughters of Wright—severally petition the County Committee to discharge the § of a cottage and tenement in Samlesbury, leased in 1637 by Thos. Walmsley, of Dunkenhalgh, for 21 years, to Ralph Birley at 14s. rent. Birley conveyed it to Hen. Wright, father of Mary Birley. It was sequestered for Wright's recusancy, and at his death half of a cottage, &c., farmed for 50s. a year, descended to the daughters. | 160                                      | 22, 25     |

Durham, complains that he cannot longer sustain the cost of defending his title and the Commonwealth's interest in the estate at North Hebborn and Winlaton Manor, Durham, descended to him as heir tail by the death of his brother, Sir Rob. Hodshon, in Jan. 1643, with the exception of \(\frac{1}{3}\), the jointure of Sir Robert's relict, and farmed of the County Committee for 243l. a year rent, \(\frac{2}{3}\) of which are sequestered for petitioner's recusancy.  Has incurred a debt of 200l. besides spending all his receipts from the estate, in defence of the title against Francis Carr, of Cocken, who married the daughter of Sir Rob. Hodshon; is now scarcely able to subsist, much less continue |

Lost his goods after the Parliament's forces took Preston, Lancaster, and Garston, they not knowing that the goods were his, and that he was in their service in London. Found a man to go forth with the Earl of Essex, and sent his son to sea in the Adventure frigate against the Dutch. Begs a lease of $\frac{2}{3}$ of the estate, being the next heir, and a Protestant, and abatement in the rent, which is 12L a year, in consideration of his losses. | 93         | 340          |

|                | 19 Sept. 1651. Rockett petitions the Council of State [see General Calendar 1651, p. 440]. They having enlarged him, and ordered the restitution of his manors, the Committee for Compounding obeyed the order, but through the malice of their agents he has endured much wrong, the orders have been slighted, and their honours slandered. Begs consideration, in regard to his wife and children, of a paper annexed.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |      | 461        |
|                | With the paper in question, containing long details of unfair proceedings of the Committee for Plundered Ministers, in refusing to allow him to have the depositions against him, and of the County Commissioners in keeping his estate, and speaking ill of the Council of State.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 114  | 459463 |
| L.C.C. 114 477 | 23 Sept. George Bishop complains to Winslow of this conduct, and asks whether the Committee for Compounding own the actions of those under them. It is sad to have a man's estate seized without the depositions of 2 witnesses, to have orders disregarded, and the Council of State vilified. The State should be higher esteemed than that every fellow should vilify them.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 114  | 455        |
|                | 1 Oct. The County Committee not obeying the order of 16 July, the Committee for Compounding order them to proceed forthwith to release Rockett's estate, real and personal, and to suffer him to have all the rents in the tenants' hands without further trouble.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |      | 3724   |
|                | 3 March 1652. Rockett complains that [Mich.] Brett and [Fras.] Bland, County Commissioners, have let his lands to their friends, sold his corn, worth 60l., for 25l., and animate the tenants to detain his lands, to reap his corn, and to carry his hay. After the last order, they restored him 20l., took the sequestration off the parsonage, for which they were receiving 140l., though worth 180l., and secured certain moneys in the hands of George Gunthorpe, of Hickling, which will bring him into trouble in other courts. It being now too late to take his tithes in kind, he cannot get them at all, and has to borrow money for maintenance. Begs restitution and redress, that he may not have to appeal to a higher court. | 114  | 475        |

|                | Lenox Langdale for the rest of Sir Marmaduke's children, petitions the County Committee for $\frac{1}{5}$ of his estate, sequestered for delinquency. The last year that Major Copperthwaite farmed the estate at Gatenby, they had an order for their $\frac{1}{5}$ , but the tenants refuse payment, alleging that Major-Gen. Lambert has a grant of the estate by Act of Parliament, and so no $\frac{1}{5}$ is due.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |      | 304        |

|                                    | DOROTHY CLIFTON, widow of Sir Cuthbert, begs to be allowed the rents of Westby House and other lands in Lathom, settled on her in trust on her marriage, 9 James, and which she enjoyed after her husband's death, till they were sequestered for delinquency of Thos. Clifton, her eldest son. Appealed to the Committee for Sequestrations, who, on 10 Nov. 1647, ordered her \(\frac{1}{3}\) of her jointure with arrears; but now the County Committee have received her rents, and will not pay them without a fresh order. Noted as referred to Reading. | 75               | 259261         |

He pleads that the witnesses have absolutely disclaimed making the depositions said to be signed by them, and say that they deposed that he was firm to Parliament, and to his trust as deputy-governor of Oswestry under Col. Mytton. Begs that the false depositions may be withdrawn, his sequestration discharged, and his goods restored.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 88            | 458                         |

York, dying 8 years since in Parliament service, left 10L for Henry, which was spent in 5 kine, but as these were taken by [Leonard] Dykes, then sheriff of Cumberland, their grandmother, Frances Robinson, sent them 3 kine more. Yet all were sequestered as their father's goods, and sold for $\frac{1}{5}$ of what their grandmother sent to redeem them, she having laid out 44L 8s. for their restitution. Beg that this money may be repaid, or at least $\frac{1}{6}$, on proof that the goods belong to them. | 69   | 439        |

| I.C.C. 70 809                                           | 26 Nov. He pleads that in 1643, being but a youth, he took up arms for the King, on which his small estate, one house in Aylesbury, was sequestered. In 1644 he submitted to Parliament of his own accord, and in 1645 compounded with he Committee for the 3 counties, Berks, Bucks, and Oxon, for 151., which he paid, being a year's value of his estate; the composition was presented to Parliament, but through ignorance he did not obtain his discharge, and is now threatened with re-sequestration, though never acting against the Commonwealth since. Noted, "The order that empowered the Commissioners to be produced before any further proceeding." | 70       | 807                                      |

|                                                    | 4 Nov. Farrer begs to prove in Bedfordshire his title to Newton Blossomville Manor, Bucks, demised 16 Car. by Lewis Mordaunt for 500l. to Hum. Monox, of Wootton, co. Bedford, and Thos. Boteler, of Bedford, for 31 years, at a peppercorn rent, but sequestered for his recusancy. The title was cleared, and the estate discharged by the County Commissioners in 1647, but now petitioner, to whom the lease was assigned, is summoned to clear the estate, and his witnesses are "remote in Bedfordshire, and not able to travel so far as London."                               | 85        | 899                        |

|                                                  | They petition severally that hearing that there is a charge of delinquency against them, and that witnesses have been examined by the County Committee; they beg that they may have the names of the witnesses, copies of the charge, and leave to examine. Granted.  27 Feb. 1652. They petition jointly that though they never bore arms against Parliament, the County Commissioners questioned them, and seized their estates, but freed them; yet the clerk of the late County Committee returned them by mistake as sequestered, and therefore they are ordered to produce their discharges in 28 days on pain of sequestration. Have none to produce, never being sequestered; beg dismissal from attendance, or an order to the County Committee to certify whether they were sequestered hefore Jan. 1652, and any moneys received from their estates.  27 Feb. The County Committee to certify proceedings in their cases. | 1171594 | 26383619851114153 |

Confesses that in the beginning of the war he adhered to the forces raised against Parliament, but being satisfied of their unlawfulness, submitted to Parliament. Being sequestered from the first, and having great debts, he has been unable till lately to raise money for his fine, but having now friends who will disburse it, he begs that his sad condition may be recommended to Parliament by the Army Committee.                                                                                                                                                                                              | 87       | 611          |

|                                                    | 30 March 1652. Capt. Lascelles states that Grange was unable to compound for his sequestered estate, within the limited times on account of great debts. Petitioner (who has been for 8 years, and still is, in service of Parliament) lent Grange much money, not knowing that he was a delinquent, and a year ago purchased his whole estate, not knowing but that he or petitioner might compound for it; being engaged in the wars, he was ignorant of the strict rules of Parliament. His whole fortnne depending thereon, begs reference to Parliament of his desire to compound. Noted, "The Commissioners can do nothing in it." | 99       | 399          |

|                                         | Thos. Garth, solicitor and agent for sequestrations in Cumberland, petitions the Committee for Compounding, that Thos. Salkeld and Wm. Patrickson, of Weddiker, held the tithee of Arlecdon, which were sequestered in Michaelmas 1648 for their delinquency. In Feb. 1649, Carlisle garrison needing money, fines were imposed on delinquents, and Salkeld and Patrickson paid their fines, and again compounded for the tithes with Sir Art. Haslerigg and the Committee for Northern Delinquents; before Patrickson's return from Newcastle, in Sept. 1649, William and Rob. Williamson, and others, intruded into the tithes, but petitioner issued a writ against them, and obtained restitution. Now Wm. Williamson has obtained a writ of restoration from the Upper Bench. Begs that Williamson may be summoned, the case referred to the County Committee, and meantime petitioner retain the tithes for the use of the State. |     | 278        |

| NOTE 80 196                                 | Being summoned to attend the Committee for Compounding with proof of the discharge of his estate from sequestration, is ready to appear. Part of the estate was settled on him by this Parliament, and the rest discharged by the Connty Commissioners was settled by his late father, Sir Alex. Denton, long before the wars, on Sir Peter Temple, for payment of debts which exceed its value, and about which a suit depends in Chancery, where the deeds are. Begs reference to counsel, and no prejudice meantime. | 80       | 195         |

Elizabeth, widow, and William, son of Dr. Curle, complain that the manors of Subberton, Longseryer, Flexlands, and Inglefield, co. Hauts, which reverted, part to Elizabeth for life, with reversion to William, and the rest to William, on Dr. Curle's death, and have been enjoyed by them till of late, are seized by the County Committee on pretence that they had been sequestered for Curle's delinquency. Beg their discharge on the Act of Pardon, not being sequestered 1 Dec. 1651; or an order to the County Committee to certify when and why they were first sequestered, and also examine their witnesses, in order to clear their estate. | G 79               | No.or p.6868 |

| р. 86 67                 | 6 Oct. 1652. Roger Farnolls begs indemnity from a demand of the County Committee of Lincoln, for 3 half-years' rents of Dalby Manor. It was leased to him and Lord Bayning for 1,000l. by Wm. Landen, who left 2,000l. legacy to Sir T. Glenham, and sequestered in 1645 for Landen's delinqueucy, but discharged till the legacy was paid. Became tenant thereof to Lord Bayning in 1650, and was not ordered to pay rent to the State till 4 September last; is willing to pay his Michaelmas rent. | 86   | 65        |

| PASS 99 23L. 99 19       | 4 Nov. He pleads that he was obliged by the sickness of his child to go to King's Lynn, where he was detained and his horse taken by the major, who kept it for the King. By the Articles of its surrender to Major-General the Earl of Manchester, his estate, real and personal, was to be preserved from sequestration; he had a pass for his protection, and has done nothing against Parliament for 8 years. Begs discharge on the said Articles. | 80        | 207         |

|                                        | 11 Nev. 1651. Wm. Potter, jun., of Rainhill, Prescot parish, begs an order to the County Committee to examine and report her title to a house and land in Rainhill, demised in 1614 by Baldwin Petter, his great uncle, for 21 years, in trust for Katherine, his wife, if she survived him, on condition of payment of his debts, and of 30l. to be left by his will. After his death, Katherine, in 1634, assigned her right after her death to trustees, for payment of 80l. to persons named, with provise of redemption by the petitioner if he paid the 80l., which he has done; the trustees in 1646 assigned him the estate, and in 1649 Wm. Potter, his father, assigned him the remainder in fee; but 2 of the estate was sequestered 4 years since for recusancy of Katherine Potter, and still remain sequestered, though she is dead. | 111      | 107138  |

Being unable to travel himself, employed an agent, who waited many days to inform of the bad condition of the estate, consisting chiefly of desperate debts, but the fine was set in his absence.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 77        | 791               |

Lambe, of Coxhoe, and Fras. Salvin, of Whitchurch, became bound in 1639 to Ant. Maxton in 2081., for payment of 1041 in 6 months; but Maxton died a convicted delinquent, and his widow and administratrix threatened to sue upon the bond, whereupon Hen. Jackson, servant to Maxton, and Thos. Lambe, on promise (which they will now not perform), to assign to petitioner a farm in Cornforth, procured him and John Chapman to enter into a bond for the said debt to Ann, daughter of Joseph Cradock, one of the administrators of Ant. Maxton.  On this bond Jos. Cradock has sued petitioner and Chapman, and obtained judgment and execution against them | 340              | 111                |

The \(\frac{1}{3}\) claimed by petitioner to be discharged, and \(\frac{3}{3}\) of the remaining third to be continued under sequestration for the recusancy of Elizabeth Liddell, widow, whose jointure it is; petitioner to be paid all arrears.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 19              | 1078              |
|                                        | 1 April. Thos. Wharton, of Gray's Inn, guardian of Henry, son and heir of Thos. Liddell, complains of the continuance of the sequestration on the \(^2_3\) of the remaining third, and begs that the title of Susauna Fisher, or of his ward, Henry Liddell, may be allowed. The reversion, after payment of the money charged thereon, belongs to Henry Liddell, John Girlington, deceased, being possessed thereof in trust for payment of debts, with Henry Liddell's father and grandfather's consent, demised it to Dr. Eleazar Hodgson and Daniel his brother, for payment of a great sum which was assigned to Francis Fisher, whose interest came to Susanna Fisher. | 138             | 347               |

|                                  | 1652? The aged, impotent, and distressed persons of the Hospital petition that, whereas 5l. yearly was given to 20 persons, it was decreed by Lord Keeper Coventry that the farmer of Bissitt Farm, part of the revenue, should have it at such a rate that petitioners might have butter, when dearest, at 3d. a pound, and milk at 1d. a gallon. This was performed by Rich. Battison, who held the farm till 1645, but the present farmer has changed the farm from a dairy, cut down the wood which should be for their winter fire, and converted it to his own use. Beg that he may be called to account, and Sarah Battison restored to possession. [11 signatures, all by mark.] | 66   | 828         |

|                                  | 20 July 1654. Henry Errington, for his wife and 6 children, pleads that in 1637 his father, Mark Errington, left him by will 20l. a year for life, and 8l. more if he should not choose to live with his elder brother Gilbert. As his wife and children could not conveniently live with his brother, Gilbert during his life, and then his son Nicholas paid these annuities, as did the County Committee after sequestration, the present County Committee refusing them, application was made to the Committee for Compounding, who ordered the payment of the 20l., but by mistake the 8l. a year was left out. Begs that it may be allowed with arrears.                           |      | 906         |

They beg examination of, or leave to try by law their title to Bank Hall, bought in the name of trustees by Wm. Garstang, of Broughton, who promised to settle it on his eldest daughter Elizabeth, on her marriage with Rich. Walton of Preston, petitioner's grandfather; but dying suddenly, this was not done, and the trustees sold it to Peter Burscough, giving no account. The heirs went to law with him, but meantime Rich. Walton is dead, and also his eldest son James, leaving a daughter, the petitioner Anne, who hopes she can prove her title, but cannot try it, because the estate is sequestered for recusancy and delinquency of one Woodcook and Crooke, who now hold it. | 85        | 257                 |

If it was left with him, Saunders has his remedy at common law to prove it. 3. If it was delivered up as alleged, it was for private use, and not relating to the Commonwealth. 4. If it did belong to the State, petitioner is discharged by the Act of General Pardon. 5. He would have examined witnesses in his defence, if he had had a copy of his charge. 6. The Sub-Commissioner at Kingston suppressed, to petitioner's prejudice, the evidence of one of his witnesses; wherefore he begs to be dismissed. |                                                       | 23 Dec. Begs to be restored to the possession of a house and lands in Stoke Prior, co. Worcester, of which Rich. Barnsley was seized. On his death, entered upon the premises, and enjoyed the profits till of late the County Committee sequestered them for the supposed delinquency of Richard. By the ancient custom of the manor, no lands there holden are liable to any forfeiture, extents, or debts of the tenant after his decease, albeit he died a felon's death. | 66       | 489         |

Mary Trafford, his widow, begs confirmation of the discharge, in April 1646, of her husband's sequestered estate, granted by the late County Committee. He was in arms for the King, and died in 1645. On the surrender of Chester, she was summoned before the County Commissioners to show cause why the estate should not be sequestered, and produced a deed of 11 Car., showing the right to be in herself; thereupon it was left in her hands, and she has held it ever since, but is lately summoned by the County Committee to produce her discharge. | 124  | 627          |

THE PARISHIONERS OF DULVERTON, Somerset, petition that their parsonage is liable to acquestration for delinquency of John Byam, being granted to him 15 Car. by the dean and ohapter of Wells for 3 lives, all in being; he has prevented sequestration by pretence of a former lease to the late Thos. Balch of Dulverton, who often said that he had no interest therein, but that he received the rents as Byam's servant. George Pippin of Dulverton, Balch's auccessor in the parsonage, was questioned and ordered to prove his lease, but delays it. | ъ. 85 1181                   | 17 Dec. 1651. Complains that in 1649 he was unjustly sequestered by the County Commissioners; was acquitted on appeal to the Barons of Exchequer 21 November last, but on 24 October last, the County Commissioners, hearing that he would be acquitted, took many of his goods, and sold his corn at ½ its value, to his loss of 100L and his utter undoing. Begs restoration or satisfaction.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | 85 1178                       |

York, 118 466 begs allowance, or reference to the County Committee of his case. Was never in arms. Is a Papist and old, but holding lands in Awdburgh, as heir to his brother George, has compounded with Anue Walker [his father's widow], who claimed a jointure thereon, for 10l. annuity; this was allowed him in a composition for recusancy with the late Lord Deputy of Ireland, then Lord President of the North, and in a like composition with the County Committee for the West Riding, but now the County Committee will not allow it without order. His lands are dear at 25l. a year. |

CATHERINE, widow of ROBERT, LORD BROOK, petitions that Sir John Cooke, and 3 other executors of Fulke, late Lord Brook, 22 years since purchased of Richard Brent, sen., Admington Manor, co. Gloucester, charged with two annuities of 201. each, granted by Wm. Brent, grandfather of Richard Brent, to his grandchild, Richard Hawten, still living, for life, with clause of distress if unpaid; and Richard Brent for freeing the said manor from the said two annuities granted the executors a rent-charge of 401. a year on a pasture-ground adjoining the manor in Lark Stoke, for 40 years.  Admington Manor was by the said executors purchased in trust for her husband, and after her marriage with him, the said manor was demised to Francis, Earl of Bedford, her late father, for 99 years in trust for her, in lieu of jointure, and she has held it since her husband's death free from incumbrances, hut her tenants have often been distrained by Richard Hawten, for the said two annuities, to her damage already of 3001.; the molestation is likely to continue during his life, because alther said pasture-ground, called Overleasowe, is sequestered for the recusancy of Rich. Brent and his children, and no care is taken to pay the annuities. As Sir Francis Swift is the sole surviving trustee, begs that the arrears of the rent-charge may be paid to him, and that payment may be continued for the residue of the said term of 40 years. | 72               | 263           |

She begs restoration of 45L levied by distress by [Giles] Hancock, a sequestration officer for co. Gloucester, on lands in Lark Stoke, as she believes, for the recusancy of Richard Brent. Fulke Brent, by indenture dated July 1650, granted her the lands for 50 years, and she purchased the reversion of thom for 2,834L, and Fulke Brent in Jan. 1652, covenanted to levy a fine and suffer a recovery of them to her use, which he did, and she has since enjoyed them.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 1572         | 153267    |

* There seems a connection between this case and that on p.~2513 [see G 128 p.~663], but the relationship is not clear.

| 24 Dec. 1651.L.c.c. 156 285                                                       | RICHARD BRENT, &c.—cont.  20 Jan. 1653. The County Committee certify that \( \frac{2}{3} \) of the estate of Richard Brent, sen., of Lark Stoke, deceased, were sequestered by the late County Committee in 1644 for his recusancy, and let from year to year; that two years ago they, being informed that he had conveyed part of them to Fulke, George, Ann, and Jane, his children, all recusants, Jane being the wife of Thomas Cassey, a recusant, sent for them to tender the Oath of Abjuration; some appeared, but refused the oath; others refused to appear, and thereupon they sequestered \( \frac{2}{3} \) of their lands, and let them in gress to John Rouse, of Admington, for one year at 50l. rent, and they have now let them for another year;—the Committee for Compounding thereupon order the County Committee to certify the names of the inclosures sequestered for Richard Brent's recusancy, to whom and at what rent let, which of the children refused the oath and when, and what lands of each of them distinctly and respectively were then sequestered, &c. |             | No.or p.615 |

Begs to compound for delinquency in the beginning of the wars, being engaged against the Parliament. Coming in early, obtained discharge from the County Committee, as not being worth 2001., but is now sequestered. Has been 4 years in prison for debt, and is sick of the palsy. Bethat the profits of the land now sequestered may be allowed in part payment of his fine. Is under no exception of Parliament, nor has been in any war since 1 Feb. 1649.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | •       | 419                 |

RICHARD ASTLEY, his son and heir, begs allowance of his title to and discharge of Boningale Manor and park, and lands in Patshall, co. Stafford, settled by his grandfather Thos. Astley, on his father, upon his marriage with Grace Trentham, who brought 1,200l. dowry, remainder to his heirs male, but sequestered for his father's delinquency. His father being in the late Act for Sale, petitioner put in his claim, which was allowed by the Committee for Removing Obstructions, but his father, who had only a life interest therein, is since dead. Begs that his title may be allowed. |                   | 701727         |

He pleads against the unjust assessment of taxes on the demesne lands of Walter Astley; for 8 years past the tenants were bound to pay all the taxes, and the lord of the manor freed, which was done till the sequestration, but allowed them out of their rents; since then, owing to the County Committee's ignorance of the said custom, ½ the taxes of the parish has been charged on the estate, the Commonwealth cozened ont of 200 l. , and the privileges of the lords of the manor infringed.                                                                                        |                   |                    |

Thomas Mason, of John Street, St. Sepulchre's, London, complains that he is not allowed the benefit of his extent on the moiety of the lands of George Poulton, against whom, in Trinity term, 17 Car., he obtained a judgment of 2001., besides costs. It is pretended that Poulton has become a recusant, though he was never sequestered nor convicted as such before the said judgment. Begs an order to the County Committee for certificate of the time and cause of sequestration.                                                                                                                                            | 102                                      | 191217 |

John Hammond and 2 others petition that by Act of Parliament of 30 July 1650 [see p. 284 supra], the copyhold tenants of Clitheroe were ordered, in lieu of fines for confirmation of their estates, to pay 4,000l. to Urian Oakes and other creditors of Sir Allen Apsley, on 1 Sept. 1650, on penalty of 5l. a day fine for non-payment. Petitioners undertook to collect the sum, but failing to get it in time, have had to borrow money on interest, and to pay besides the 4,000l., 833l. damages and expenses. They beg return of 94l. 5s. 4d., with interest, received by the County Committee from Rob. Blundell, and other copyhold tenants who have been sequestered. | 90         | 229329                                |

Risdon, his father, in 9 Charles, on marriage of Francis Risdon with Dorothy Blewitt, his mother, conveyed to trustees Hasworth Manor and demesnes, and other lands in Harberton, co. Devon, for the uncle for life, with remainders, part to the father, part to the mother for jointure, and then to their heirs. The father and uncle being dead, all that is not in jointure comes to petitioner, as the son and heir, but the County Committee on pretence that the whole estate belonged to Dorothy, have sequestered it for her recusancy. Begs discharge of what has fallen to him from his father, with arrears. | 113                                      | 769785         |

|                   | 8 Jan. 1652. The County Commissioners report that they ordered their agent to secure his personal estate, for being with the King of Scots in the late war; but since then his wife has given 154 sheep to Wm. Williamson, for a pretended debt of 50l., and they were sold for 37l. 10s. The high sheriff has taken 392 more on an extent of 30l. to Mr. Nicholson, of London, and they were delivered to Capt. Hudson on an engagement to repay 6l. a score for them, total 115l. 4s., if required. The moneys are secured. With note that if the sheep were taken after seizure of the estate, they or their value are to be required. | 150 | 477         |

Being in the late Act for Sale, he begs discharge on the Act of Pardon, not being sequestered 1 Dec. 1651, and a certificate to the Drury House Trustees.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 87        | 304      |
| L.c.c. 152 209                 | 26 Jan. The County Committee to send a copy of the records ofthe former Committee in the case, and the Drury HouseTrustees to be told that no decision can be made pending thisreturn.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 17        | 639      |
|                                | 2 March. Giles' petition renewed, as it does not appear by the return that anything was received from his estate, or that it was set before 1 Dec. 1651, and a certificate requested to the Drury House Trustees that the estate is not under actual sequestration. Noted that the certificate cannot be granted.                                                                                                                      | 87        | 301      |
|                                | 2 March. The County Committee not having received the books of the former Committee, and being therefore unable to make returns on the case, the 20L is to be levied on the late Commissioners according to the Act.                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 30        | 40       |

Fryer 771l. 10s., for security of which Fryer conveyed to him divers lands, which were confirmed to him by Chancery, unless the debts were repaid with interest. But Fryer having in vain used indirect means to interrupt him, now acknowledges himself a delinquent, and intends to sue for $\frac{1}{5}$ of his estate for his wife and children. Begs that this may not be granted, having held the estate many years, and it being only worth 30l. a year, which will not cover his debt. Asks stay of proceedings, and the rents on security. | 112        | 731               |

Her estate being sequestered 6 years ago for her recusancy, she compounded for it with the County Committee at 50% a year. She was at great charges in advancing the interest of Parliament in co. Worcester, and at the tsking of Worcester, was plundered of all her goods, and of 50% provided for her rent; but the County Committee have so raised the rent that she cannot pay it and maintain her family, having only a life interest therein as jointure. Begs to pay the same rent as the last 6 years. Noted, the contract to be confirmed as now let at 80%.                                                | 94         | 537               |

|                       | 21 July 1652. She pleads that Henlip Manor, her husband's estate, was sequestered 7 years since for her recusancy, and continues so, being her jointure. She took it at a rent of 72l. from the County Committee, and was promised not to be put out, but they wanted ls. in the pound for the lease, which she refusing to pay, they expelled her and put in Wm. Wickfield [or Wigfall], tenant, and though she sowed the land, they refuse her the crops as promised. Begs that she may be continued tenant, and Wickfield repay her his receipts. | 94    | 535         |
|                       | 21 July. The County Committee to certify to whom the land is let, and suffer her to reap the corn if promised to her, she paying rent as formerly.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 17    | 27          |
|                       | 24 May 1653. She begs justice; Edw. Asgill, an officer of the County Committee, whom she trusted and paid to get her lease renewed, has had the estate let for 6 years to Wm. Wigfall, whom she believes to be an officer of the County Committee; his lease is not certified, and he neither pays rent nor her \(\frac{1}{3}\), nor does he repair the manor-house.                                                                                                                                                                                 | 94    | 531         |
|                       | 24 May. The County Commissioners to certify whether they have observed the Act, and why the contract is not certified, and especially why 1s. in the pound was demanded for making the lease.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 25    | 77          |

Wm.] Collins, the County Commissioner, complaining that though she is paid her full $\frac{1}{3}$, she distrains the tenants for heriots formerly received for the State, she is summoned to show cause why she disturbs them, and why the money should not be repaid from her $\frac{1}{3}$ of the estate.                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 27    | 81          |
| с. 33 376             | 20 Feh. 1655. Her petition renewed for voidance of Wigfall's lease which is not confirmed. In 1651 she was plundered of all her money, plate, and jewels of great value, and could not pay her rent, so the County Committee let her estate and even let the very garden and walks adjoining her manor-house, and Wigfall takes the rents, and ploughs her pastures, "more than which cannot be done to oppress the aged and helpless widow." Begs restraint thereof, examination of the premises, and a new lease.                                  | 94    | 529         |
|                       | 20 Feb. |                         | OLIMANT ON THE ESTATE.  17 Feb. 1652. WALTER COLLINS, of Chorley, co. Stafford, petitions that he compounded in 1638 with the Commissioners for the North, for the estates of John, Bernard, and Ignatius Weedon, all recusants, in co. Stafford, at 331. 6s. 8d. rent, which was settled as part of the revenue, and the Revenue Committee ordered the Barons of Exchequer to take care for its receipts. In 1649 the County Committee confirmed his composition, but in 1651 the Barons of Exchequer decided that the estate was not sequestered, and bound him to stand to their order, and the County Committee boxed the estate as belonging to the Weedons. Begs an order to the said Committee to cease prosecution thereof. Noted that he is to amend his petition, there being neither sequestration nor composition in 1638. |            | 864         |

|                         | 10 Oct. 1654. Collins petitions that his father held land in Bruntwood, near Lichfield, which has descended to him as heir, and which he has held 20 years, but now the County Committee threaten to sequester it as belonging to Thos. Weedon, recusant. Begs examination of his title, and the rents on security meantime.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 75         | 854         |

Oxon, for 3 of John and Bernard Weedon's estate for 7 years, from 29 Sept. 1653, confirmed by the Committee for Compounding.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 30         | 357         |
| р. 145 236              | 17 May 1655. Higgins complains that John Hawtin, formerly in possession of part of the premises, detains the same from him on pretence of some lease from John Weedon, yet petitioner has been obliged to pay his full rent reserved on the said lease. Begs that the County Committee may have directions to put him into possession, and that Hawtin may be called to account.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 145        | 233237  |

|                         | 26 June. Hawtin pleads that in 1649 he had a lease for 7 years from John Weedon, of a house and ground called Woolahed, which was part of Weedon's third part, at the yearly rent of 401., a rack-rent this he paid to Weedon, till by him directed to pay it to Higgins five years ago, which he has done ever since; but being disturbed in his possession by Higgins, he detained the last half-year's rent. Begs that he may not be ejected, having built on the premises, and been at great charges in repairs, his term ending next May-day. Higgins has distrained petitioner's cattle since obtaining the order of the Committee for Compounding.                                                                                                                                                                              |            | 226         |

|                                                            | 28 Jan. 1652. ELIZABETH, widow of JOHN GIFFORD, jun., of Halesbury, Devon, begs allowance of an annuity of 501., settled on her for life by her husband's father, and charged on the farm of Winslade, Devon, then in possession of Wm. Gifford, her husband's brother, who, on a decree in Chancery in 1627, was obliged to pay the same, which was done till the war, when Wm. Gifford was questioned for his estate.  As soon as the county was reduced by Parliament, the decree was approved by the County Committee, and her annuity allowed. But the present County Committee have distrained the cattle on the said farm, demanded 521. for 2 years' arrears of the profits of 3 of the farm, on account of Wm. Gifford's recusancy, and security is given for answering the same, should her right not appear. Begs an order for allowance of the decree in Chancery also, and that the sccurity already taken for the distress may stand for what shall be due to the State after payment of her annuity.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |          | 206              |

Begs an order for the quiet enjoying of her livelihood, having never been convicted of recusancy; taxes considered, what is left will but preserve her from starving. Has been many years an orphan, and 41l. a year her whole living. Some years ago the County Committee of Lincoln conceiving her estate liable to sequestration, made question thereof, but understanding by the late Lord General's letter of her alliance to him, at his desire they suspended proceedings against her in regard of the poorness of her estate, which did not amount to 200l. Is now asked for the arrears. Note, "A letter to be written to the Committee in the county to levy what is due to the Commonwealth in as fair and moderate a way as they can,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |          | 273              |

Immediately before it, had contracted with the County Committee of Chester for the tithes of Marston-cum-Wincham, part of Great Budworth Rectory, now sequestered for the delinquency of the Duke of Richmond, at the rate of 44l. a year. Being engaged in the service of the State, as lieutcolonel to Colonel Brooke's regiment, he received damage by the quartering of Charles Stuart's army in those towns; the horses ate up whole fields of corn, disabling him from paying his rent. Begs an order to the County Committee to examine his losses on oath. Noted, "We cannot relieve petitioner without order of Parliament." | 72                                       | 253               |

|                                               | 4 Feb. 1652. Her husband's estate decaying, she was obliged to leave him and keep a school. Some of her boarders brought beds, &c., which, with some of her own goods, value 30l., are sequestered for her husband's delinquency, and now under sureties; "her scholars are thereby minded to leave her, and to question her for such of the said goods as helongeth to them, which will put her by her way of livelihood, and bring her to ruin." Begs discharge of the goods.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 87             | 1107                |

| c. 102 445443D. 102 443o. 102 471 | 4 Feb. 1652. Thos. Mackworth, of Gray's Inn, and Capt. Rich. Smith, of Shrewsbury, Salop, petition that the Trustees for sale of Crown lands conveyed to them in trust for Col. Humphrey Mackworth, governor of Shrewsbury, Winnington's tenant, part of the lordships of Drakelow and Rudheath, co. Chester, contracted for and sold as in possession and discharged of any lease. Neither John Winnington nor any for him having produced any lease thereof within the time prepared by the Act, petitioners obtained orders for receiving the rents, &c., due since Ladyday 1650; yet the County Committee, pretending that Winnington has a lease in being, have sequestered a moiety thereof for his delinquency, and require petitioners and Winnington's tenant to pay the rent to them. Beg an order to the County Committee to pay the profits to petitioners in future, until the delinquent obtain an allowance of his pretended lease from the Committee for Removing Obstructions. | 102            | 469                 |

Thomas Greenhalgh complains that on account of differences among the County Commissioners, he cannot procure their certificate, and thus the estate is in the Act for Sale, and he likely to be rnined, the Parliament Order notwithstanding. Begs a letter to the Drury House Trustees to stay the sale, and the stating of his case for the judgment of Parliament. Noted that no judgment can he given till the return of the County Commissioners' certificate. | 88         | 648        |

In 1651, farmed Bedlington mill, sequestered for recusancy of John Widdrington, for 7 years, at 48%. rent; had a mill-close as pasturage for 2 cattle, and all the tenants in Bedlington were bound under a fine to bring their corn to the mill to grind; but 39 of them, encouraged by Rob. Fenwick, who has purchased the royalties, withdraw their custom, and grind where they will. Fenwick has also taken the mill-close, so that petitioner cannot keep swine or poultry, nor get thatch for roofing, to the loss of 40%. - 17 Feb. 1652. John Brooke, of Broad Clist, complains that by mistake of the clerk, he is returned as having compounded for delinquency. Never bore arms nor acted against Parliament, although upon suggestion that he had adhered to the King's forces, he was, without proof, ordered by the County Committee to pay 70l.; being too infirm to attend that Committee, he paid this sum, not for delinquency, but desiring to contribute to the service of Parliament. Has no discharge to produce, as he never had any sequestration laid upon his estate. Begs to be dismissed from further attendance, or to have an order to the County Committee to certify.
- 25 Feb. 1652. TRISTRAM MITCHELL, of Exeter, being summoned 101 to produce his discharge, declares that he has none. The late County Committee, on some untrue suggestion that he aided the late King's forces, ordered him to pay 50l. for the use of Exeter garrison, which he, being infirm and unable to attend the said County Committee, paid; but the clerk of the County Committee has certified by mistake that he paid it for delinquency. His small estate was never under sequestration.
- 25 Feb. The County Committee to certify all the proceedings 16
- 27 Feb. 1652. Anthony Ratcliffe, Philip Martin, Gilbert Ford, 136 Walter Kelland, John Brooke, John Sowdon, and Robert and John Hake, all of Broadclist, complain that by mistake of the clerk, they are returned as having been sequestered. Never bore arms, nor acted against Parliament, yet the late County Committee questioned them for adhering to the King's forces, and secured their estates, which they afterwards freed from seizure. Have been summoned to produce their discharges, which they cannot, because they have none, and in default they are to be sequestered. Beg that they may be dismissed further attendance.

- 17 Feb. 1652. Thos. Johnson, minister of Halsall, petitions that 95 661 having his estate secured only on some pretended charge, he may have a speedy hearing; begs an order to the County Committee to examine and certify, and meantime leave to enjoy his estate, both real and personal, on security.
- 18 Feb. The County Committee to give him his charge, and 16 allow him to examine witnesses.
- 24 Feb. The County Committee send up depositions to prove 241
  that the following ministers, Edw. Gee, of Eccleston, Thos.
  Johnson, of Halsall, and Sam. Boden, of Holland, were at Warrington with the Earl of Derby for a week, either free, or as reported later, taken prisoners by his forces.
- 24 Feb. The County Committee send up depositions to prove 241
  that Peter Harrison, of Hindley, late solicitor to the County Committee, joined the Earl of Derby, but that he was angry with the Earl for plundering, and therefore recalled his two sons from his service.
- 27 Feb. The potition of Thos. Johnson referred to the County 16 76 Committee, to give him his charge, and allow him to examine witnesses.

Order that Johnson be allowed his rents on security  2 March. Petitions of Peter Harrison and Edw. Gee to the same effect as that of Johnson of 17 February, with like references.  3 March. Like petition and references of Sam. Boden and of James Gerard, of Ince.  [31 March.] The three ministers, Gee, Johnson, and Boden, with Harrison and Gerard, unite in a petition for an order for examination of their cases, and freedom from molestation meantime.  31 March. The County Committee are to proceed according to their instructions in these cases.  6 Sept. The County Committee ask further directions about Harrison, there being only one witness against him, and that witness now refusing to depose. | G169413816 782891695 | No. or p. 76 814 39 9,80 862 439 85 (2) 667 213 303 |

|                                               | Begs restoration of his goods, which have been seized on the ground of their former seizure, though the then County Committee granted him a discharge because of his inability, and because he had not voluntarily acted against Parliament.  For his affection to Parliament suffered many hardships under the cruelties of a merciless enemy, Providence having seated him, with a great family, under its power. They forcing upon him an oath to join them against Parliament, he chose rather to flee, whereby his goods were plundered, his houses fired, and his family exposed to hard usage; returned at the surrender of Exeter to Parliament. Noted for the County Committee to certify whether he was formerly sequestered, and if not actually sequestered, he is to enjoy his estate on security. |                  | 417                |

| D. 119 477  -479 169 175, 176 c. 119 481 169 177 D. 119 475 | 25 Feb. 1652. Hen. Sterne, of Newmarket, co. Cambridge, begs reference to counsel of his claim on the estate late of Roger Webb, who in 15 Car. acknowledged a statute of 600l. for a debt of 300l., which, with interest, now amounts to 700l., of which petitioner has never had a penny.  In 1643 Webb went into the late King's army, and was slain at Newbury. His estate was sequestered, but on oath that he was slain before Michaelmas 1643, the Committee of Snffolk discharged the estate. Afterwards by advice of the Committee for Sequestrations that only the freehold lands should have been discharged, the County Committee re-sequestered the leasehold lands, and Thos. Webb, the heir-at-law, by order of the Barons of Exchequer, dated 4 Dec. 1649, was to receive the rents, &c., on security to be responsible for them if they should be adjudged against him; petitioner's statute was allowed if just, and before the delinquency, until the debt is satisfied. But the power of the Barons of Exchequer determining before judgment had, the premises were again sequestered. | 119             | 464469                                |

He complains that notwithstanding the order of the Barons of Exchequer dated 4 Dec. 1649, his estate has continued under sequestration, he being unable through poverty to prosecute his appeal. Begs that as the debts charged on the estate must be paid, and as he never was a delinquent, the Committee for Compounding would admit him to compound for it, with allowance of the debts.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                 | 861256                                |

Has a ten years' lease of the parsonage, and is to pay 18l. a year for the maintenance of a curate. He complains that since the survey of the estate, and petitioner's payment of the first moiety of his fine, Carew Woolrich of Cowling has felled twenty trees thereon. Begs reparation, and that the tenant of the parsonage may be accountable to petitioner for this year's profits.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |                 | 295                                       |

|                                  | 21 Sept. Houghton complains that many of his tenements being sequestered for recusancy or delinquency, the Committee for Sequestrations ordered examinations as to what leases were expired, and ordered discharge of a house in Walton, sequestered for recusancy of [Evan?] Catterall, whose lease was out, but the County Committee will not discharge it. Begs an order therefor.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 91              | 329                                       |

|                                  | 26 Feb 1652. Being seized for life, with remainder to her son John, of lands in Fobbing, Essex, let them for 60l. a year to Ralph Grubb, on whose death they were held by his executor, John Grubb. Wm. Telford, who held the next lands, contested at law the right to a close of 9 acres, value 6l. a year, but Grubb dying before trial, Telford sold his estate, including this land, to Wm. Bateman. He went to law with Grubb's widow and executrix, and petitioner was again put to charge in the defence, increased by his putting off the trial. Begs that—‡ of her estate, being sequestered for her recusancy, and therefore the profits received by the State—they will pay ‡ of the law expenses, and meanwhile order Bateman to stay proceedings till her canse has been heard before the Committee for Compounding.
