Devines], and cordially affected, and has been plundered by the enemy, his estate being in their power. To get the profits of it he, by advice of Parliament friends, allowed it to be sequestered as belonging to Sir John Fortescue, recusant, and thus he got the aid of the County Commissioners, upon which Sir John endeavoured to get possession of it.  It was then ordered that 225l. should be given to petitioner, 240l. to the chapels, and of the overplus \(\frac{1}{2}\) to Sir John and \(\frac{2}{3}\) to petitioner; but he, being aged and infirm, could not be present at the meeting of the County Commissioners, and they have allotted him his 225l. on a part of the estate much overvalued, and left him to pay the preachers, so that his \(\frac{2}{3}\) is 40l. a year less value than Sir John's \(\frac{1}{3}\). Begs relief. | G         | No. or p.  |

Henry Vawdry pleads that before the troubles, he bought of his brother Richard divers lands and goods, and held them till 6 years since; he was questioned before the County Committee, because Richard was a recusant at the time of the sale. Proved the validity of his olaim at the time, but now the County Committee re-sequester him on the same ground, and have fixed a day for sale of his goods.  Begs stay of sale and reference to counsel, as at the time of the deed, a convicted recusant's sale of land was not questionable except for arrears due for his recusancy. | 125       | 699731    |

Holt, of London, begs discharge from sequestration of a windmill, and ½ acre of land, a honse with three acres of land, the chapel and chapelyard in Singleton, and a cottage and garden in Greenalgh, all in co. Lancaster, bought a year acres by petitioner. Yet when he came to take possession, he was expelled by the present possessors, and they held the same by demise from the sequestrators of those parts for the recusancy of Ralph Eccleston, who was only tenant for years which long since expired, after which expiration Eccleston had no interest therein. Has been well-affected to Parliament, and a free and large contributor to their occasions. |           | 985995                 |

Murray assigned his lease of Petersham to trustees for his wife Katherine; Kingston Canbury Rectory, and other lands to the Earl of Elgin and other trustees for their children; and Ham House for his wife, he renouncing all right therein. He since became a delinquent, but the County Commissioners discharged these lands, as not being his estate. Query, whether they are sequestrable for his delinquency?  In Aug. 1643, Katherine Murray had a pass from the Lord-General for herself and children, 6 men and 6 maid-servants, 2 coaches with 4 horses each, and 6 saddle horses, to Oxford; she went in September and stayed till Feb. 1644, disposing meanwhile of the profits of her estate; but after her return it was sequestered, and again discharged by the County Commissioners 26 March 1644. Query, whether she be a delinquent and liable to sequestration? | 105       | 173                        |

|                            | 16 July 1653. He petitions the Committee for relief on Articles of War. Complains that though Exeter Articles allowed composition at 2 years' value for estates in possession, and 1 year for those in reversion, his fine was set at 3 years' value, and he is unable to obtain a reduction. Begs discharge of sequestration, on payment of his fine according to the said Articles.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |                                           | 537        |

Chatburne, of Billington, co. Lancaster, petition that at the instance of the late Thos. Winckly and Rich. Craven, they became bound in 5 bonds of 40l. each for payments of 20l. a bond to the late Thos. Walmsley. Winckly left his estate to his eldest son Thomas, now dead. He, in 1641, conveyed it for counter security to petitioner, who has had no benefit, as it has been sequestered for the delinquency of Thomas Walmsley. Applied to the Barons of Exchequer, but before hearing, their power was taken away. Beg examination of the deed and relief. |                  | 20887                              |

The petition (missing) of Blanch James, widow, referred to Brereton.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | 15  | 83           |
|                                         | 17 Dec. She claims an annuity of 401. on Barrow Minchin Manor, Somerset, sequestered from Sir Francis Doddington, whose estate is in the late Act for Sale; as she is very feeble, and the case likely to last longer than her life, she begs possession on security, with arrears as granted her by the Committee for Sequestration.                                                                                                           | 95  | 409          |
| с. 95 415                               | 6 Jan. 1652. As she cannot go abroad without danger of life, two of the County Committee for Middlesex are to go and take her examination as to how long she held the annuity, and proof of the order of the Committee for Sequestrations, when she shall be relieved.                                                                                                                                                                          |     | 171          |

|                          | —by Lucy Hesketh, who farms the other \(\frac{1}{2}\). She stops up the ways, pulls up the plats, &c. He also farmed \(\frac{2}{3}\) of a water corn mill on the premises; but Mrs. Hesketh, being formerly farmer thereof, has taken away divers materials belonging to the mill, &c. Begs redress.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |      |       |
|                          | 28 July 1653. The County Committee to see that the petitioner enjoys his bargain, and is quieted in his possession, and to certify.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 25   | 149   |
| L.C.C. 158 407           | Dec.? He petitions the County Committee of Lancaster that he farmed \(^3\) of the estate and mill of Lady Jane Houghton, sequestered for recusancy for 7 years from 1652, at 5i. 2s. rent, but was opposed, and his fences pulled down by George Croane, servant to Mrs. [Lucy] Hesketh. Appealing to the County Committee, was put in possession in June 1652 by their agent. Croane, for again opposing and seizing the tenants' goods, was summoned before the County Committee 8 Oct. 1652, and ordered to restore the goods; this he did not do, but again broke open the mill, and took away the hopper, so that petitioner has spent 2i. 7s. 11d. in repairs. Begs quiet possession and recompense for his great losses. | 158  | 405   |
| р. 93 121                | 17 July 1655. Thos. Hesketh, of Rufford, begs examination of his title to, and receipt of the rents of lands in Wrightington, &o., co. Lancaster, Lady Houghton having surrendered an estate for life therein to his late uncle, Thos. Hesketh, long before the wars, to enable him to make leases, which were allowed, and the rents paid to Jane Heneage, sister of Thos. Hesketh, in lieu of a rent of 201. a year on Hesketh's lands. By his said uncle's death, without issue, the premises come to petitioner, but the County Committee pretend that it is part of Lady Houghton's jointure, and sequestrable for her recusancy.                                                                                          | 93   | 57    |

|                                           | 11 March 1651. George Mills, of Covent Garden, complains that having bought from Matthews the lease of 2 houses and a garden in Westminster, not knowing him to be a delinquent, Matthews has compounded for his estate without including this. Begs that Mathews may be made to pay the penalty due for this estate, so that it may not fall on an innocent person; but if this may not be, begs to compound at the same rate as Matthews did for the rest of his estate. | 101         | 309          |

County Committee to certify whether the estate was eequestered before 29 Jan. 1650, and what they find thereon.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 12        | 35         |
|                            | 8 Sept. He begs to compound. Though faithful to Parliament, was sequestered by mistake of the County Committee, appealed to the Barons of Exchequer, and the sequestration was not prosecuted till Feb. 1652; has since then been on appeal to the Committee for Compounding, but cannot be relieved, because the order of sequestration was made so long since, though not prosecuted.                                                                                                     |           | 129        |
|                            | 8 Sept. He cannot be admitted to compound, because the sequestration order was granted before Jan. 1650, and 1½ years' rents of his estate have been received by the State.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 17        | 203        |
| р. 224 325                 | 28 Sept. Petition renewed. Received his rents till 1650, when the County Commissioners forbade his tenants to pay him more; then appealed to the Committee for Compounding. Has examined witnesses to clear himself of delinquency, and the cause still depends; but he is aged, his estate very small, the appeal chargeable, and therefore he begs to compound for delinquency in the first war, and not to be left to the severity of an Act intended only for those who neglect favour. |           | 316        |
|                            | 28 Sept. | о.т.т. 87 641                           | 15 Feb. 1655. On a petition of Arthur Mallock, that Bower House and lands belonging to Green, purchased by him, are alleged properly to belong to the Savoy, and called Green's tenement in co. Lancaster, and that Shuttleworth refuses to deliver possession thereof, it was ordered by the Committee for Removing Obstructions, 8 February, that Shuttleworth's interest be allowed, on proof that he has compounded for the whole estate; order by the said Committee that the Committee for Compounding certify whether Mallock compounded for Green's whole estate or part, and he is to have what he compounded for. | 117            |             |

| R.C. 25 271                  | 21 Dec. 1653. Alex. Breres, of Marton, co. Lancaster, begs an order to the County Committee for his quiet enjoying of the moiety of the tithe corn and grain in Newton-cum-Scales, co. Lancaster, which he claims by conveyance from John Breres, his father, and in right of Isabel, his wife, both since deceased. The Commissioners for Lancasbire bave sequestered the said tithes for the delinquency of Thomas Clifton, on pretence that the term in the lease under which petitioner claims has expired.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 83         | 293  |

|                              | 28 Dec. 1653. ELIZABETH, widow and administratrix of Thos. PARKER, of Bidston, co. Chester, petitions that her husband for divers years enjoyed the moiety of the tithe corn and grain arising in Newton-cum-Scales, oc. Lancaster, by virtue of conveyances from Cuthbert Sharples, her father, and in her right, till the County Committee sequestered the tithe for the delinquency of Thos. Clifton, on pretence that the term in the lease which she claims had expired, and that the tithes had descended to Clifton; her writings establishing her claim having been detained till 2 months ago, the tithes have been received by the State. Being left administratrix with 12 children, she begs an order to the County Committee to satisfy her for the said tithes, or examination of her case. | 109        | 923  |

| L. 128 595CASE 128 589                    | 24 Dec. Edm. Watson begs confirmation of his estate in the said premises; the County Committee allowed Birkhead to re-enter, and he gave his interest in the premises to Alice, petitioner's wife, but it is contested in the names of [John] Marsh, attorney for Col. Lindsay, who married [Elizabeth] another daughter, and obtained through Col. Hen. Marten's influence an order for a lease to himself, pretending that the value is more than 80l., and that the surplus belongs to the State. With commendation of the case by MajGen. |                                      | 19 Feb. 1651. Wm. Parker, of Littleborough Ferry, co. Notts, begs a seven years' lease of a farm in Littleborough, sequestered for the delinquency of Thomas Holder, which he and his predecessors have farmed for 34 years; it has been lately taken by George Sandeford, of Habestrope [? Hablesthorpe], co. Notts, who voluntarily collected money for the late King, and was never sequestered for doing so. Sandeford's lease is at 33l. a year, and petitioner is willing to give 34l., by reason that his wife is very ancient. Part of his farm is a ferry for horses, carts, &c., and he has lately made two new boats. |           | 941                         |

| воии 134 35   | 10 March 1652. Mary Woolfall, spinster, petitions that on 2 Feb. 1651, she took a farm, the sequestered estate of Thos. Woolfall, at the improved rent of 50l. 2s. for a year, supposing that by that time the estate would be cleared. Has been at great charge in repairing and fencing the house almost mill, and made the premises worth 12l. a year, and finding they were not cleared, gave security to farm them for 7 years at the same rent. But during her absence, the estate being posted again, Rich Norris offered 60l. 15s. a year for the premises, and they were granted him. Begs on behalf of Wm. Woolfall, the infant, that her lease, for which she gave security, may hold good. | 134              | 33              |

|               | 9 April 1651. George Stokely, of London, begs discharge of the 1/4 of Huyton Rectory, co. Lancaster, which John Stokely, his uncle, bought for 3 lives, his own, and those of Elizabeth and George Stokely, the petitioner. John is dead, and Elizabeth sold her life interest to Thos. Woolfall, a delinquent, for whose delinquency it is liable to sequestration. Both are since dead. Lord Molineux, to whom it descends after petitioner, has taken a lease for one year, petitioner covenanting to free the same from delinquency of Woolfall, who had only interest therein during the said Elizabeth's life.                                                                                   | 120              | 321             |

|               | JOHN and WILLIAM PALMES, his younger brothers, petition the County Commissioners to allow their annuities of 36L each on the sequestered estate of their brother at Naborn, being their necessary maintenance. Recommended to the Committee for Compounding, the County Commissioners having no power to allow annuities.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | 109              | 145             |
|               | 27 Nov. 1650. Petition renewed to the Committee for Compounding. Their deed being in Queen Elizabeth's time, and the witnesses very aged, they beg leave to prove it before the County Commissioners.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | 109              | 143             |
|               | 27 Nov. | в. 109 147     | 2 Oct. Order on report that on Wm. Palmes proving that he has not released his annuity and has received it formerly, he be allowed the house and lands settled on him by the deed of 10 Nov. 1600, his own annuity of 24t., with arrears since March 1650, and 10t. a year increase of rent-charge since the death, which is proved, of his brother John.                                                                                                   | 15        | 39                                      |
|                | 14 Jan. 1652. On his request for the arrears due to his brother John before his death, and on his producing letters of administration to his brother, he is allowed the arrears from 25 March 1650 to John's death, 10 July 1650, of the house and lands granted to John by his late father John Palmes.                                                                                                                                                    | 15        | 193                                     |
|                | 14 Oct. 1652. The Mayos, &c. of York, beg leave to prove the title of the poor of St. Thomas's Hospital to a rent-charge of 161. on Naborn lordship, paid for 100 years, but lately refused, the estate being sequestered for delinquency of Sir Geo. Palmes, and to have the rent-charge meantime.                                                                                                                                                         | 135       | 262                                     |

|                | 8 Dec. 1652. SIR GEORGE PALMES petitions the Committee for relief on Articles of War, for the benefit of the articles of York, having a certificate by the Earls of Leven and Manchester, and Lord Ferdinando Fairfax, that he was there at its surrender. By the 11th article, he should enjoy his goods and estate, yet they have been sequestered ever since, and are in the last Act for Sale, though he has not forfeited the benefit of the Articles. |           | 131                                     |

|                                      | 25 Dec. He begs that Wm. Gilbert, of Bridgwater, the informer, —who pretends an interest in his estate, procured its sequestration, receives 2l. out of the 12l. a year for which it is let, and has begun a suit in Chancery against him,—may not be allowed to take advantage in the suit of the sequestration, petitioner being unable to defend himself by reason thereof. With note of an order that he make oath that he is not worth 200l.                                                                                                                                                 | 220             | 771              |

|                                      | 16 Aug. He petitions Parliament. Was sequestered in 1648, and put from his spiritual estate on a charge of scandal, and Wm. Gilbert, a notorious delinquent, caused the sequestrators to take hold of his personal estate, to prevent his defending himself in Chancery, where, after 4 years' dispute, he obtained a decree against Gilbert. In the late Act for Sale, a copyhold, which he held in right of his wife, is also sequestered, to his ntter ruin. Col. Pyne, M.P., will certify in his favour. Begs them to follow the Lord's example in doing justice and relieving the oppressed. |                 | 100              |

Begs discharge for delinquency, or admission to 221 compound at \(\frac{1}{6}\). Married early, whereupon his father settled some land upon his father-in-law, in trust for him and his wife; the trustee went into Belvoir Castle, whither petitioner repaired for payment of the annuity, his only subsistence; was told that the estate lying near Newark was destroyed; therefore took up arms for two years. Being lately come of age, is sequestered.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 918                                      |

| REC. 143 408                     | 19 July 1654. Wm. Hudspeth petitions that the County Commissioners of Northumberland contracted with Thos. Gibson and Cuthbert Blackborne for all the lands of Sir Edw. Radcliffe in Corbridge, rent 40l., for 7 years from 1651. Became their tenant for Hill Farm there at 10l. a year, and paid the rent to them, till by order of the County Commissioners it was paid to their agent, [John] Pye; yet petitioner is returned as in arrear, and his goods detained. Has the acquittances, and is in arms and far from home. Begs restoration of the goods and quiet enjoyment of the premises. Will pay anything that is found due.                                                         | 143  | 407                 |

Lady Anne Thornton and John Thornton, the son and heir, beg examination by the County Committee, and reference to counsel of a deed by which, in 1633, on Lady Anne's marriage with Sir Nich. Thornton, he settled on her after his own life the manors of Nether Witton and Windgates, and other lands in jointure, with reversion to his son John. These they ought to have enjoyed since his death, October 1647, hut are kept out of them by sequestration for his delinquency, which ought not to continue after his decease. | 122       | 597737         |

| 4 Nov. 1650.  P.B. 10 202        | SIR WILLIAM Boswell—cont.  Bosevile, her brother, on their deaths without issue male, upon Sir Wm. Boswell, her husband, and her herself for life; and after on Dr. George Bosevile, brother of Sir Ralph Bosevile, but now sequestered as the estate of her husband; he died 2 April last, when the sequestration was ended, but the County Committee refuse to quit possession, and threaten to quarter soldiers on the tenants of the said lands for non-payment or rents. Petitioner cannot pay the annuities of 74l. charged, the lands in present possession being worth but 79l. a year. Begs discharge and restoration of rents since her husband's death.                                                                                                                            | ~    | No-or p. |
| R. 70 41L. 70 37D. 70 40 | 12 June 1651. |                                  | June 1651? George Bosvile, D.D., begs discharge of a messuage, mill, &c., at Bradburn, Kent, demised to him in 1637 by Sir Leonard Bosevile, rent 181., with other lands in Bradburn and Sevenoaks, rents 111., 91., and 31., but sequestered in 1643 as the possession of Sir Wm. Boswell who had no estate therein. Appealed to the County Committee, but they refused to discharge the sequestration and ordered the rents to be paid towards rent-charges granted to the younger sons of Hen. Bosvile, and to Lady Anne, widow of Sir Leonard Bosvile, whereas the rent-charges were on all Sir Wm. Boswell's estate. The County Committee engaged however to discharge the estate if petitioner obtained a verdict by law on his title, and having obtained this, he begs the discharge. | 70   | 5, 912   |
|                                  | 23 July 1651. Anne, widow of Sir Leonard Bosevile, and Pere-grina, widow of Lukenor Bosevile, petition that Anne has arent-charge of 44l. a year, and Peregrina of 30l. on landsabout Bradburn, Kent, sequestered for delinquency of SirWm. Boswell, but their rent-charges were paid by the CountyCommittee till Sir William's death, in April 1650. He beingonly tenant for life, the County Committee have received theprofits since, and their annuities are in arrear. Lady MargaretBosewell's estate in the premises is allowed, and they are ingreat want, Peregrina having many children. |                                | 5 April. Order that as the lease to the present tenants is not yet confirmed, the County Committee for Lancaster may let the estates to Ashton at the end of the year, he giving the same rent and security for payment, provided it was posted and boxed according to instructions.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 25   | 32        |
|                                | 14 Sept. John Moore, of Eccleston, and Rich. Marsden, of Croston, both co. Lancaster, petition that in Jan. 1651 they took a 7 years' lease of Croston Hall and demesne lauds, which was confirmed at the rent of 841.11s.8d., being 201. more than offered by Rich. Ashton.  Spent much money in repairs and stock, and farmed the estate to under-tenants, but are ordered to deliver it to Ashton, who with his wife entered the estate when the enemy was prevalent in those parts, and received profits without giving account; petitioners have been always faithful, and it will much discourage the cause if they are forced to yield the lands to a delinquent, dispose of their goods at undervalues, and break their contract with their tenants. | 100  | 730       |
| н. 25 200                      | 12 Oct. Ashton to prove the waste alleged to be committed on the lands contracted for, and the case to be heard in a month; if the waste is proved, the lease will be made void.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 25   | 224       |
| D. 64 232, 239CASE 238 111 | 14 May 1655. Ashton petitions the Protector for leave to compound, not having been in arms, but being on appeal, and therefore not in the additional Act for Sale, the Commissioners for Compounding say they have no power to admit him to composition. |                                            | 4 Feb. 1651. The Tenants of Errington's estate being threatened for arrears of certain fee-farm rents payable out of the estate, the Committee for Compounding desire the Northumberland Committee to acquaint the sheriff, and the collectors of such moneys, that they ought to give the Committee for Compounding notice of what is due, and then that Committee will allow of the same so far as they can. Meanwhile they are to suffer no distress to be levied on the tenants.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 30   | 309          |
| L.C.C. 154 45D. 154 47                 | 11 Nov. 1651. Thomas, son of Rich. Knight, freemason, of Dunstan's-in-the-West, London, begs allowance of his title to a yearly rent of 20L, charged on the manor of West Errington, Hexhamshire, Northumberland, granted by John Errington of Beaufront, 26 Nov. 1616, for 200L, to his said father, who duly received the same. Petitioner being not above 5 years of age when his father died, and without friends or means, and apprenticed to a tailor, has been kept from his right by the sequestration laid on the premises for the delinquency and recusancy of the heir of the said John Errington. Begs an order for examination of his witnesses by the County Committee of Durham, and to receive the 20L a year on security. | 98   | 694          |

|                                  | 7 Nov. Information by Thomas Fowle, agent of the Committee for Compounding, that in the late Kentish insurrection, Sir Walter greatly promoted the libellous and rehellious petition, by treaty with the officers of the trained bands, and engaged on their behalf to convey it to Parliament; that he caused divers persons of quality to subscribe the same, or that they would send for some of the Parliament to Blackheath and so have their desires effected; that he got a trumpet from Col. Kenrick, who was for the Parliament, and summoned the people in the street with a loud voice, as well as by trumpet, saying he was for the King.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |           | 205813        |

|                                  | 5 Feb. Walter Roberts, the son, begs discharge on the Parliament's declaration and the Act of Indemnity. He and his father, on their way to London, 29 May 1648, while staying at the King's Head, Cranbrook, were apprehended, along with others, by Major Gibbon, with a party of horse; upon their engagement not to bear arms against Parliament, they were released by Major Gibbon, who himself engaged that they should be no more troubled by his party, viz., the Parliament, nor have any more horses taken from them than those he then took, which were worth 60l.  He and his father returned home, and peaceably lived till July fellowing; when on false information to the County Committee of Keut, Captain Bowen carried them from their beds at midnight to the said County Committee at Rochester, and there imprisoned them 10 days without a hearing. They were both discharged 18 and 19 July, on taking the engagement not to bear arms against Parliament, and this was an absolute | 114       | 794               |

Sir Edward bega to know his charge and accusers; doubta not to vindicate himself, and aska that meanwhile his rents may remain in his and the tenants' hands on security. |      |                | 17 April. He begs to compound. Obeyed all Parliament orders through the wars, paid his ½ and ½ parts, has taken the engagement, served as high sheriff of co. Stafford and justice of peace, and lent and disbursed money for Parliament, yet is sequestered on information that he assisted the King. Being very aged, wishes to have his poor estate free for his son, who is very young.                                                                                                                                                                                   | 222         | 278                |

| P.E. | 222 279        | 5 June. Begs to acquit himself of delinquency and bribery, his honour being dearer to him than his estate; is willing to pay a fine, but begs that when ½ is paid, he may have his charge, and leave to clear himself of the foul crimes imputed to him by those who have combined to injure him and defraud his lady; and that then on report to Parliament of his innocence, his fine may be restored.                                                                                                                                                                      | 116         | 55 7        |
|      |                | 5 June. | R.   | 222 275        | 16 June. Order that his fine shall be 3,618l., and that he may have 3 months time to bring in a particular of his personal estate; that he may examine witnesses as to the crime of brihery, and Mr. Carey is to examine his witnesses.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 12          | 241242         |
|      |                | 18 June. Dan. Cox petitions that [Rob.] Wakeman having deposed matters against him in Sir Edw. Seabright's case,—though he was never privy to the embezzling or altering the depositions, which was done by Wakeman,—he may have a copy of what concerns him, and leave to make his defence before a report is drawn up, the rather because Wakeman has contradicted himself.                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 238         | 117                |
|      |                | 18 June. | D.   | 116 540541 | 13 Aug. Order that Cox's petition (missing) be heard on Tuesday, and that he have notice; also that the case about Mr. Cholmley and Mr. Stint be then heard. Also that the registrar give Seabright copies of the depositions on the charge of bribery.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |             | 253569         |
|      |                | 9 Sept. Cox pleads that in justice fresh witnesses ought not to be examined in a case already judged, though he is willing to bear any scrutiny, and much regrets the embezzlement of the papers, they being the only ones that have miscarried with him. Mr. Wakeman having first deposed to his innocency, and then charged him with receiving 50l., shows discrepancies in his depositions; pleads that Wakeman was an agent, and had received 400l. to carry on the business, and hopes that the later narrative, given after judgment, will not be accepted as evidence. | 116         | 635                |
|      |                | Oct.? Counsel desire directions, as it appears that Seabright's lady gave 400l. to Wm. Dickenson; he paid 200l. to Rob. Wakeman, who told Cox and Kirk there was 50l. each for them; Stint was to have 50l., and most of the witnesses seem to have had money.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 116         | 639                |
| CASE | 238 118        | 10 Dec. Seabright begs publication of the depositions as to the charge of bribery, and a speedy hearing. On his request for further time, a fortnight granted, and his fine then to be confirmed.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 16                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 139                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| 23 March. Allowed 2 months to obtain the judgment of Parliament in his case, and the payment of the second ½ respited till then; he is to prove the alleged claim of 500 marks charged on the estate by the will of his brother Wm. Seabright.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 16                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 173                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |

On his request for the case to be reported to Parliament, order that no further time can be given for payment of the fine, but that if desired, the bribery only shall be reported, not the delinquency.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 12                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 468                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| [12 Oct. 1652.] He petitions Parliament. Pleads his services and affection to Parliament, for which the late King granted away his whole estate in those parts. Yet some persons, to get money, put in a charge against him before the County Committee of Worcester in 1646, alleging that he was a Commissioner of Array and had sent horses to the King, but he was acquitted.  In 1649, a charge was brought against him before the Committee for Advance of Money, he being high sheriff of co. Stafford, but this charge was dismissed.  In 1650, a charge was exhibited before the Committee for Compounding against Dan. | P.E. 220 475P.R. 12 13R. 220 471 | 13 Nov. 1650. Begs to compound. Adhered at first to the King, 22 but repenting of his error, has for 5 years served Parliament, and at hazard of his life endeavoured the reducing of the county, now happily accomplished. But the County Commissioners threatened to sequester him unless he paid 991. composition to Thos. Beare, their agent, which he did, not knowing but they had power to compound. Begs that this 991. may be repaid by the County Committee, or allowed on his composition. | 20         | 473               |

|                                          | 22 June 1654. Major Alexander Urrey begs satisfaction for the remainder of a debt owing to him by Henry Stuart for sums advanced many years ago. By ordinance of Parliament dated 21 July 1648, 1,500l. was directed to be paid to William son of the said Henry Stuart, and to his other children, and 400l. to James Gray, merchant, which sums were charged on the manors of Colton and Fairburn [co. York], part of Sir George Ratcliffe's sequestered estate. Henry Stuart dying, his son William assigned 130l. to petitioner in full satisfaction of that debt, to be paid out of the said manors.  Has received half his debt, but is debarred from receiving the rest by reason of the re-sequestration on pretence that Wm. Stuart was in Duke Hamilton's army, the contrary whereof has been sufficiently cleared. The said estate being now sold, he and others are like to be exceeding great sufferers. Has never acted against the Commonwealth, but always resided in town, and performed much faithful service when he had command, for which there are considerable arrears due to him. Regs payment out of the money received by sale of the said estate. |      | 749        |

Kenrick, merchants of London, beg discharge of Farthinglowe Manor, Hougham Rectory, and other lands in Kent, mortgaged to them by the late Sir Ant. Percival for a large sum. On his sequestration the Committee for Sequestrations in 1648 allowed them to hold the estate till repaid, but now the County Commissioners direct the tenants to bring their rents to them. Are never like to be paid, the estate heing held by a lease from the late Arohbishop of Canterbury, which has but 8 years to run. | 96                                       | 692               |

|                                                | 16 Jan. 1655. Bradley Hayhurst and 9 parishioners of West Leigh petition. The rectory is of good value, but the owners, having long been Papists, have concealed great part thereof, so that the ministers have sued in vain for a livelihood. The Committee for Plundered Ministers settled 151. 13s. 4d. on the minister, the rectory being sequestered for Popery and delinquency of Rich. Urmston, and he has enjoyed it, but now John, brother of Rich. Urmston, says that he has purchased the rectory, and many of the ancient vicarage lands, which by law are not purchaseable.  The daughters, who are married to Papists and malignants, have petitioned in their former names, and obtained privately an order for a rent-charge of 40l. on the minister's tithes, and their $\frac{1}{6}$ , so that there being no maintenance for a minister, the large parish will be left destitute. Beg the recall of this order till they have time to defend their rights. | 144                                      | 352                |

| L.c.c. 118 419                        | 27 Nov. 1650. Henry Grove begs reference to the County Committee of Berks of his claim for relief. John Smallbone, 19 Nov. 1641, gave him a bond of 100l. for payment of 50l. 22nd May following, but failed to pay. Petitioner, 4 years ago, obtained judgment in the Upper Bench, but Smallbone died sequestered I½ years ago, leaving nothing to satisfy the debt but the moiety of a lease for one life of a farm in Idstone, Berks, which by inquisition is found liable to the payment, but it being sequestered, the sheriff cannot deliver possession.  The sequestration was surreptitiously obtained for private ends, and not for the service of the State, although Smallbone had 1,000l. worth of goods taken from him. | 87           | 758          |

|               | 3 Dec. 1650. Johan Fleming, widow, of Berry Narbor, Devon, begs the benefit of the mortgage of a messuage and 38 acres in East Coker, Somerset, granted her in April 1643 for 150l. by Humphrey Coffin, for whose recusancy—of which she was then ignorant—they are now sequestered. The house has been burnt, and the land tilled out, so that they are let at 6l. a year, whereas formerly they let at 8l. and 10l. a year. Begs a lease for years, either in her own name, or in that of Wm. Cooke, of the same parish. | 85         | 776               |

|               | 4 Dec. 1650. John Coffin, jun., his son, of Parkham, Devon, begs that $\frac{3}{2}$ of his father, Hum. Coffin's estate in Lodge and Hassel-combe, in Wambrook parish, Dorset, sequestered for recusancy only, may be leased to him for 7 years. Complains that the County Committee have let the estates at 10l. and 15l. quarrerly, and that they are not worth more than 20l. and 30l. at most.  4 Dec. |                                           | 18 March 1651. LAWRENCE RAWSTERNE, his brother, begs reference to counsel of his title to lands in co. Lancaster, settled 30 years ago by his late grandfather on himself for life, with remainders to Edward, petitioner's father, now dead, and to Edward, his eldest son, for whose delinquency they are sequestered, but who is also dead, without issue, and then to his heirs male, so that they now come to petitioner. His father also held copyhold lands, which he invested in trust, and 4 years since the trustees surrendered them to petitioner, but they are now secured. Begs their discharge, having faithfully served Parliament. | 113        | 46               |

| L.c.c. 158 573D. 158 577              | 12 Oct. The Committee for Compounding write to the County Committee for further particulars, there being some attempt to blind them. It appears that Edw. Rawsterne, late governor of Lathom garrison, was sequestered before his death, 3 years since; but his brother Lawrence, pleading an entail, had enjoyed the estate, though it was never discharged. Ask the reason of this, and order a thorough enquiry, and the letting of the estate meantime.                                                                                                                                                                                         |            | 315              |

County Committee for Kent report that Browne's estate is the most considerable of any recusant's estate, except one, in the county, being value 700l. a year, the ½ of which (after the rate that Browne provided for 7 or 8 of the eldest children, and the rates of 40l. a year for the brothers, and 20l. for the daughters, mentioned in the report), will suffice to raise portions for the 6 younger children. They conceive by Browne's providing for se many of them in the lifetime of his wife, that it was not the real intention that the deed should take effect, but only be a security for assuring them competent portions.               |          | 167                                       |

|                   | 28 May 1652. County Committee report that $\frac{2}{3}$ of Jackson's estate being sequestered for recusancy, Potts received the profits for his extent, but they now find Capt. Rich. Whitehead, a Protestant, in possession, on grants from Barth. Jackson and his son Bryan, both recusants, and he pleads the Act of Pardon, the estate not being sequestered 1 Dec. 1651.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 159        | 187                  |
| NOTE 159 190      | 3 Aug. The Committee for Compounding order the re-sequestration of the estate, the Act of Pardon not extending to Papist delinquents. Potts is to account to the auditor on eath for his receipts from the estate, and Jackson and other claimants to prove their title before the Committee for Compounding.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 30         | 216                  |

Complains that while his estate in one division of the county is sequestered for recusancy only, in another part it is sequestered for recusancy and supposed delinquency, and no part allowed his children for maintenance, though ordered by the Barons of Exchequer 30 May 1649. Begs some allowance to save them from perishing, and examination of the cause of sequestration, with the heads of his charge. | i   | 826        |

17 Dec. 1650.

Vol. No. G or p. surer, to pay to Jos. Beverley, their officer, 242l. 13s. 4d. for his charges from Nov. 1647 to Nov. 1649, of which 201. 17s. 8d. remains unpaid; and as Mr. Beverley's account, stated with the auditor, shows that 125l. 3s. 11d. is ewing to him for employment in the service—Beverley pay in the halance of 104l. 6s. 3d. hefore 15 September. Also that his account of receipt of 3181. 17s. 3d. be sent to the York Commissioners to surcharge if they can, and they to certify whether any part of his salary of 4s. a day has been paid since 24 Nov. 1650, and whether he served as agent till the time when all agents were 17 Nov. 1654. He petitions the Committee for Compounding that, 451 -as Council is so full of business as not to have time to attend to his case referred to them by the Protector, and as meanwhile he is ordered to pay in 104l. due on his account,—that order may be suspended till next term, before which he hopes to procure an order for his \frac{1}{2}. 13 July 1655. Order that he pay it in 14 days, or it will be levied 29 22 on his estate. c. 238 196 25 Dec. He petitions the Protector. Has been agent in Yorkshire 238 195 R. 238 197 7 years, and received 6s. 8d. a day till 24 Nov. 1650, after which he was only allowed 4s. Discovered several delinquents, 198 CASE 238 199 and begged 1 of their fines, but the Committee for Compounding cannot issue money, and Council is too busy to attend to his case. Begs an order to the Committee for Compounding for the 6s. 8d. a day from 24 Nov. 1650, and his  $\frac{1}{5}$ , that he may proceed cheerfully in the service. 25 Dec. Referred by Council to the Treasury Commissioners, to 176 435 enquire into his charges and report. 25 Dec. 1656. Order in Council that the report from the Treasnry I77 596 Commissioners be considered next sitting. 13 Jan. 1657. Referred in Council to a committee 633 12 Feb. Order on report that Beverley be allowed to detain 177 705 541. 6s. 3d., part of the 1041. 6s. 3d. due by him, as a reward for, and on account of disbursements in his discoveries. THOS. CALOW, Tysoe, Co. Warwick. 17 Dec. 1650. Begs to compound on his own discovery, for the 220 614 reversion—after his parents, both living, and contingent on his marriage,—of a house and land in Tysoe, worth 201. a year. Adhered to the King in the wars, but has lived peaceably at home 5 years. R. 220 611 17 Dec. Fine at  $\frac{1}{6}$ , 26l. 13s. 4d. 12 65 ROBERT MADDOCKS, Co. Salop. 17 Dec. 1650. Begs a copy of any charge there may be against 102 567 him depending before the County Committee of Shropshire, with liberty to examine witnesses. Has always been cordially well-affected. 17 Dec. Granted, and the County Committee to certify -- 10 277 MARY NEWPORT, Widow, Pelham, Herts.\* 17 Dec. 1650. Her lands in Pelham being sequestered for her 107 156 recusancy, begs that according to the late law in that case,

|                                           | 18 Dec. 1650. Thos. Hamersley, of Nocton, co. Lincoln, petitions that his father, Wm. Hamersley, being engaged in several bonds for Sir Richard Fleetwood for payment of 600l., which he was forced to pay, sued Sir Richard, and had a judgment and extent on his lands in Wootton and Ellastone, co. Stafford. Sir Richard became a delinquent, and his lands were sequestered, notwithstanding that they were extended by Sir Edw. Moseley, then sheriff. Petitioner's father has died since, heavily indebted, and he has taken out letters of administration of his father's goods. Stoed engaged for his father for 600l. to Randall Ince, in hopes of repayment from Fleetwood, but now Ince has obtained judgment against him. Begs that as his father was always faithful to Parliament, the lands in question may he discharged, and made over to Ince for payment of the 600l. | 94  | 169          |

His father Christopher, in consideration of Mary's release of dower in the lands of Sir George Wandeaford, by deed dated 20 October, 11 Jac., charged his Yorkshire estate with an annuity of 100l. to her for life, and hy deed 3 July, 12 Jac., charged the manors of Thimbleby and Hudswell, co. York, with payment to Margaret Wandeaford of 20l. a year for life. The estate deacending to George Wandeaford, son and heir of Christopher, was acqueatered, and upon petition they were allowed to distrain for their rents, but the County Committee have re-sequestered the premises, and required them to obtain a fresh order from the Committee for Compounding. |           | 201          |

| Scarce Weat—cont.  Nicolas Tempest, in trust for the use of George Wray, and petitioner had, by decree in Chancery, power to redeem his estate for the same sum to Wray; but he, being a Papist and in arms against Parliament in the first and second engagements, and Sir Nicholas Tempest and Charles Brandling, heir and executor of Sir Brancis Brandling, being also delinquents, they cannot receive the redemption money; offers it to the Committee for Compounding, abatement being made for what profits Wray has already taken, over and above the interest of his money, and for such depopulations and spoils as he has made.  18 Dec. 1650. County Committee to examine and certify, and Brereton to state and report  24 Dec. Reuben Easthorp begs that in a cause depending between Geo. Beadmall and Geo. Wray, for 1,300L, referred to Brereton, such writings and witnesses as are in town may be there examined, and the rest be examined and certified by the County Commissioners. Granted.  10 299  10 68 495, 519-521  10 68 493  112 Feb. 1651. Beadmall begs reference of the County Committee's certificate to Brereton. Granted.  21 June. Beadmall begs reference of the County Committee's certificate to Brereton. Granted.  22 June. Beadmall complains that Mr. Rich, one of the Masters of County Committee to examine how much of the 2,050L debt, interest and repairs, mentioned in Brereton's report on Beadmall's damage, from 30 July 1630; and on the perfecting of the said account, and discharging what appears to be massisfied of the said sum, the sequestration shall be taken off, and Beadmall permitted to enjoy the estate.  19 Dec. George Wray petitions the Committee for Compounding, bough he can show that Beadmall has extinguished his right of redemption, and that petitioner is really 3,000L out of pocket,—the may be admitted, both for the interest of the Commonwealth and of himself, to examine witnesses, and that the Committee for Compounding would direct their order to the Commonwealth and of himself, to examine witnesses, and that the Commi |                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Vol. | No.        |

George Wray petitions the Committee for Compounding. Twenty years ago Beadnall, in consideration of 1,800l., mortgaged the township of Lemmendon and lands there, which by mean conveyances were for the like sum conveyed to petitioner, and by surprise obtained a decree in Chancery to be admitted to redeem the lands, and petitioned to have the sequestration discharged, alleging that petitioner had been fully satisfied out of the rents and timber.  Prays that,—having never been heard in Chancery nor before the Committee for Compounding, though he can show that Beadnall has extinguished his right of redemption, and that petitioner is really 2,300l. out of pocket,—he may be admitted, both for the interest of the Commonwealth and of himself, to examine witnesses, and that the Committee for Compounding would direct their order to the County Commissioners of Northumberland and Durham. Begs that he or some other well-affected person may be admitted tenant for seven years, pending the examinations.  19 Dec. Referred to the County Committee 15 145 and being in danger of arrest for debt, begs the protection of the Committee for Compounding pending the hearing. Granted. 16 523                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |                                                | 3 June. |                     | 8 Nov. Committee for Compounding beg the Trustees at Drury House that,—some doubt arising whether their order of 14 Oct. 1653, staying the sale of the premises, is sufficient to divest the estate in law out of the Trustees,—they would convey the lands to Beadnall, which may be done without charging their treasnry, by indenture of bargain and sale, shortly reciting the state of the business, and in consideration of a competent sum of money. The Committee for Removing Obstructions allowed Beadnall an equitable power of redemption, leaving it to the Committee for Compounding to fix the sum.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | 25       | 243          |

| NOTE 68 50 7 | 10 Jan. 1654. On Beadnall's complaint that he is denied possession by Mrs. Wray, the former order is reinforced, and the County Committee are to see that he is put into possession and paid the ½ year's rent.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 25       | 279          |
|                     | 3 July 1651. SIR NICHOLAS TEMPEST, of Flatworth, Northumberland, petitions the Committee for Compounding that the County Committee may be ordered not to hinder him from receiving the rents of the manor of Lemmendon, and of half of that of Wheatley Lawfield, and the Latage, and half that of a parcel of ground in the West Wood, and of Bolton Southwood, and of several messuages in Bolton and Lemmendon, Northumberland, which Sir John Clavering and Dame Ann his wife, by deed 7 June, 12 Car., sold for 1,850l. to petitioner and Sir Francis Brandling, deceased, and which they purchased in trust for George Wray; if he should discharge them from a debt of 1,000l., part of the money paid by them for the premises, and for which the said Sir Francis and petitioner stood bound with George Wray; in default of payment, they were to have the premises till discharged of the said debt and damages. Till the beginning of the troubles, Wray satisfied the interest, but not since, so that petitioner is now liable for principal and interest, and is sued for the same, the County Committee having sequestered the premises for Wray's delinquency. | 122      | 23           |

Dorothy petitions the Protector on behalf of herself and 8 fatherless children, that she had a portion, when she married Sir Charles, 26 years since, and had divers manors settled on herself, but he being forced into the King's quarters, the estate was sequestered till his death in 1652, and was put into the Act for Sale, and sold, no regard being had to her claims. She begs 1,053l. 6s. 3d., the second moiety of the purchase money. Referred to 3 members of the Committee for Compounding.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | I 9 2 | 105                  |

On report by the Committee for Compounding, on the petition of Dorothy, widow of Sir Charles Howard,—that she was married to Sir Charles 26 years ago, that his father, Lord William Howard of Naworth, by deed of 8 Oct. 1638, settled Plenmellar and other manors on him for life, with remainder to his eldest son William, and other remainders; that the estate was sequestered for Sir Charles' delinquency, but after his death ½ discharged and ½ sequestered for Wm. Howard's recusancy. That nevertheless, Phil. Purefoy bought at Drury House the lands named in Lady Howard's petition, and paid in the first ½, viz., 1,053l. 6s. 3d., on 10 Nov. 1653, whereby Wm. Howard is prevented from fulfilling his promise of providing for her and her 8 younger children. That this happened because William was ignorant that his claim ought to have been proved before the Committee for Removing Obstructions, as well as the Committee for Compounding:—order in Council to advise that the second payment of 1,053l. 6s. 3d. be applied to the benefit of the lady and children, Lord Commissioner Widdrington and Major Gen. Charles Howard to see how it may best be settled, and certify. | 177          | 533                  |

WILLIAM HOWARD, of Thorpe Bulmer, Durham, son and heir of Sir Charles, begs discharge of the manors of Plenmellar, &c., in cos. Northumberland and Cumberland, which are his by descent in virtue of a deed dated 8 October, 14 Car., by which his grandfather, Lord William Howard, settled them first on himself and Lady Elizabeth, his then wife, remainder to Sir Charles, and remainder to petition. They are now all dead, yet he is kept out of possession, on pretence of the delinquency of his father, who died a month since, and had only a life estate in the premises.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 91           | 6396 7 8  | estate to be continued sequestered for petitioner's recusancy, in regard he was tendered the Oath of Abjuration, and refused to take the same.

15 May 1654. Certificate by Richard and Art. Onelow of the death 238 203 of Sir Charles Howard, sen., of Merrow, Surrey, on 14 March 1654, not having acted against Parliament in the late wars.

LESSEES AND PURCHASERS OF THE ESTATES.

| 9 April 1651. Francis, William, Nicholas, and Walter Ridley, and other tenants of Plenmellar and Haltwhistle manors, Northumberland, beg retention of their tenements, or leave to prove their right thereto. Their ancestors long held them, paying rent to the Crown, but Lord William Howard purchased the royalties of King James, and expelled petitioners, because they would not, as others had done, let their tenants' rights to him.  After his death, Capt. Thos. Howard and Sir Charles Howard, Papists in arms, held the lands till the Scots' invasion, when they fled, leaving the lands waste. Petitioners thereon, having always adhered to Parliament, returned to their lands, and have held them 8 years, paying rent, but the County Committee, having sequestered Sir Charles Howard's estate, have let their tenements. Have appealed to Sir Art. Haselrigg and the Northern Commissioners, who refer them to the Committee for Compounding. Beg to remain, being in possession at the time of sequestration.
